Threat To World's Security Charged

By BARRY SCHWEID

Associated Press Writer
VIENNA, Austria (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko looking on, accused the Soviet Union today of violating "territorial integrity" in Afghanistan and threatening world security.

"We are faced again with a vital lesson from the past that an act of aggression anywhere threatens security everywhere, today no less than in the past," Muskie said in a speech during ceremonies marking 25 years of Austrian independence. Muskie did not mention the Soviet Union by name but after days of warning that Moscow should withdraw its troops from Afghanistan he said "principles of neutrality, of independence, of territorial integrity so respected in the case of Austria are today being violated."

"My country and others will oppose such actions through the firmness and clarity of our response, through a strong defense and a strong alliance," said Muskie, who was sworn in last week as the new secretary of state.

Gromyko, who only minutes before had pledged to the same audience that the Soviet bloc was fully committed to a policy of detente, sat through part of the attack with his eyes on the floor, his eyebrows slightly raised.

"Together with all the countries of the socialist community we are fully determined to follow this course further," Gromyko said in his speech in the Belvedere Palace room where the treaty ending Austria's post-World War II occupation was signed May 15, 1955.

"Nowadays when the policy of detente is being tested for its strength," Gromyko said in an unofficial translation of his speech in Russian, "it is proper to remind us of the collective responsibility for the fate of international peace." This remark was his closest to an open criticism of the United States.

"As far as the Soviet Union is concerned, it is a consequent supporter of a policy continuing detente in international relations, adding to political detente proper measures of military detente," Gromyko said.

Muskie and Gromyko were to meet privately after the ceremony in the first high-level contact between Washington and Moscow since the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan last December.

Their talks were expected to focus on a new Afghan peace plan proposed Wednesday by the pro-Soviet government in Kabul, and the world peace initiative raised Thursday by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

There was no immediate U.S. comment on the Warsaw Pact proposals. But Muskie and other U.S. officials discounted the Afghan peace plan, which for the first time spelled out conditions for the withdrawal of the nearly 100,000 Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Muskie got a boost on the eve of the meeting when West Germany agreed to join President Carter's boycott of the Moscow Summer Olympics, organized to protest the Kremlin's Afghan intervention. The West German decision raised to 77 the number of countries expected to boycott the games.

Shortly after his arrival in Vienna from a NATO conference in Brussels, Muskie said the Afghan peace plan was designed to gain recognition for the government of Afghan President Babrak Karmal and "legitimization of the (Soviet) invasion."

"I regard it as a cosmetic and not a meaningful proposal at this point," he said.

One U.S. official traveling with the secretary said the plan was a "non-starter," and another said it was "nice, but no sale."

The plan, as reported by the official Soviet news agency Tass, called for Afghanistan and neighboring Pakistan and Iran to sign bilateral agreements barring hostile action against each other and a U.S. pledge not to conduct "subversive activity" against Afghanistan.

"The question of the withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan will depend on the resolution of the issue of effective guarantees of the bilateral agreements of Afghanistan with Pakistan and Iran," Tass said.

Moscow has said repeatedly the Afghan government invited it to send in troops to help quell anti-government Moslem rebels, whom the Soviets say are backed by the United States, China and Pakistan.

All three countries have denied the Soviet charges and the United States has demanded a total Soviet withdrawal as a precondition for negotiations on the neutralization of Afghanistan.

Board Meeting Monday

The Board of County Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. at the Pitt County Court House.

Included on the agenda is an executive committee report on additional funds requested by the Greenville City Board of Education and Pitt Community College for fuel and utility bills, a review of firms interested in auditing county records, and consideration of appointments to the Juvenile Task Force and the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women, as well as appointments that should be made to the Greenville Planning and Zoning board, the Mental Health Authority and the Sediment Control Commission by June 30 when terms of some members will expire.

Other agenda items include reports on the Mid East Commission, rental of landfill equipment, and on the new county office building, and a tour of the facilities at the new building.

IMPOUNDED BOATS — The "Robert B" out of Miami cruises through the crowded dock area at the Truman Annex Naval Station in Key West where boats in the background are those that have been impounded by the U.S. government to stop the private boat flotilla that has been ferrying thousands of Cuban refugees to Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

'Freedom Flotilla' Facing Coast Guard Shutdown

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Coast Guard reinforcements have been dispatched to help shut off the "Freedom Flotilla" of Cuban refugees amid reports that some unwilling U.S. skippers were being forced at gunpoint to carry refugees from a Cuban port.

The Coast Guard late Thursday dispatched 400 active and reserve Guardsmen, six cutters, nine aircraft, six utility boats and 14 boating safety detachments to South Florida.

"We're going to have half the Coast Guard down here," said quartermaster Lou Merck, duty officer at the Coast Guard Station in Key West.

Merck said a handful of boats were known to have left Key West Thursday for the Cuban port of Mariel, despite warnings of seizures and stiff fines if they returned with refugees.

Refugee-laden boats were "coming in hot and heavy" here early today, said Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Clay Edwards.

Merck said, "We've had reports over the radio from Mariel all night that the Cuban government is holding them forcibly and at gunpoint and not letting them come back without refugees."

Immigration officials said that as of 6 a.m. today, 48,651 refugees had arrived since the boatlift began, including 1,260 on 14 boats between midnight and 6 a.m. Ten boats docked without passengers in the first six hours today.

Officials said 105 boats arrived Thursday, 73 carrying 4,276 passengers and 32 with only crew. The 73 boats with refugees and about two dozen boats that arrived late Wednesday were seized by Customs agents. The captains were told they could face fines of $1,000 for each refugee.

In Washington, the Treasury Department announced that U.S. skippers who defied President Carter's order to end the boatlift could be fined $50,000 and jailed for 10 years.

In his statement Wednesday, the president said the ragtag boatlift was too dangerous, and ordered that no more boats leave Florida and that those in the Cuban port of Mariel return empty.

Carter offered to send planes and ships to ferry refugees back to the United States if Cuba would agree to let U.S. authorities screen refugees before departure.

Meanwhile, Key West Coast Guard Cmdr. Samuel Dennis said four U.S. government-chartered boats were en route to Key West to begin a sealift of refugees if Cuban President Fidel Castro agrees to Carter's plan.

Carter's order was mocked by the official Cuban newspaper Granma. "Carter governs in Florida but in Mariel, Cuba governs," the newspaper said in an editorial broadcast by Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

Opposition Sounded To Industrial Plant Site

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

GRIMESLAND — Reliable sources acknowledged today that a major industry is considering locating on a 1,100 acre tract of land on the Tar River near Grimesland.

One source, who asked that he not be identified, said "we've been assured that the industry is environmentally clean, that it will cause no damage to the environment or natural resources" of the area.

"It's one of those blue-chip jobs that we'd be lucky to have," and ultimately would employ about 1,500 persons, the source continued.

The spokesman, who could not identify the industrial prospect, reported that the company was "looking at a site in another state. They (residents of the area in the other state) found out the name (of the company) and the firm won't consider it now."

The area under consideration includes the old Grimes Plantation about two miles East of Grimesland. The plantation has been looked at by industrial prospects several times over the years, and each time, opposition has been voiced.

Opposition to this latest possibility is being led by Dr. Robert P. Nemo, who says the site is not suitable for industrial development.

He has written letters to area news organizations and to Gov. Jim Hunt, saying the project would be harmful to the environment and that the project would use 7 million gallons of river water a day.

A state government source confirmed that a national company is considering the land, and insist environmental regulations would protect the area. Other officials in the state Division of Environmental Management say there has been no application for a water discharge permit.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

UNITY?

Hotline has been asked to appeal to those interested in starting a group to study the principles and foundations of the Unity School of Practical Christianity. Those who would like to be a part of the group or to have a local contact may call 756-8917. For written information from Unity Headquarters, one may write Unity, Unity Village, Mo. 64065.

ENTHUSIASTIC RESPONSE

Cox Honored By Educators

Glenn Cox, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, was honored with two recognitions at the annual meeting of three professional educator's organizations. The district in which the Greenville City Schools is located is District 15, comprising 17 school systems in northeastern North Carolina counties.

In recognition and appreciation of Cox's efforts to encourage and promote the work of the professional organizations, the three groups jointly presented Cox an inscribed gold desk pen mounted in marble.

Cox was also honored at the district level for his efforts in promoting district work in professional educator's organizations. The district in which the Greenville City Schools is located is District 15, comprising 17 school systems in northeastern North Carolina counties.

Periodically, the combined associations within the district honors a superintendent who has exhibited leadership and support to the professional groups. In recognition of his efforts, Cox received a silver NCAE lapel pin.

Cox, a native of Elizabeth City, has been with the Greenville City Schools for 13 years. He has superintended for seven years.

Electric Refund To Be In Full

FARMVILLE — Farmville Commissioners voted in a call meeting last night to return virtually all of an electric rate refund from Carolina Power and Light to individual customers.

The action came after hearing a presentation from Utilities Director J. A. "Bud" Wooten and Bob Padgett of the L. E. Wooten and Company Engineering, saying that an electric load management program earlier considered by the town is not economically feasible at this time. The board had earlier voted to retain a portion of the refund from the company to the town to finance the program.

There has been considerable protest from Farmville citizens, including some petition-signing, since the earlier decision was announced.

Town Administrator Pat Thomas said this morning that most of the checks for the earlier refund amounts have already been written. He said a decision has not been made as to whether to start all over or whether to send each customer two separate checks.

In other action, the board approved a bid from Whitehurst and Sons for fencing for the town well site on Highway 258 North and directed the town administrator to effect change orders on the contract with Crain and Denbo, general contractors of the town waste treatment plant.

In executive session, the board talked about recruitment of a new town administrator, to replace Thomas, whose resignation will be effective in mid-June.

Miss Nash, Mr. Adams Wed

MONROE—Teresa Dianne Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Glenn Nash of Monroe, and Thomas Myers Adams II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Myers Adams of Greenville, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. J. S. Larrimore performed the ceremony in the First Baptist Church here.

The bride wore a formal gown of peau de soie and embroidered chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline and empire bodice which had a satin band and bishop sleeves with cuffs. Lace details were repeated on the skirt which flowed into a chapel train.

Her mantilla of English illusion was edged with alencon lace and accented with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white cascade silk lilies, baby's breath and lily of the valley.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Bridesmaids were Melanie Nash, Deborah Lee and Mary Helen Secrest, all of Monroe, and Tani Shae Adams of Greenville. They were dressed in seafoam qiana gowns with shirred bodices with a cummerbund and gathered skirt. A matching capelet with a boat neckline tied at the waistline. They carried natural baskets of mixed yellow, white and aqua silk flowers and eucalyptus.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included C. B. Bobbitt of Pine Level, Linus Martinez of Greenville, Chris Hargett of Raleigh, and Dillon Forbes of Wilmington.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of maize misty knit with a capelet neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a long gown of sheer organza with a white overskirt with a floral pattern of spring flowers. Both mothers wore corsages of yellow silk lilies.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception held at the Monroe Country Club.

The couple will be living in Morgantown, W. Va., after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina.

The bride graduated from Monroe High School and attended East Carolina University. She will continue her education at West Virginia University. The bridegroom received his undergraduate and graduate degrees from ECU and is currently working on his doctorate at West Virginia University.

Dear Abby

Life Begins At Eighty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you published a priceless article describing the advantages of being 80 years old. I foolishly neglected to cut it out, and now that I am approaching 80 I would very much like to have it. Can you please locate it and run it again?

MARY P. IN LA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR MARY: With pleasure. Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: We oldsters sure do get away with a lot just because we've managed to keep breathing longer than most folks. I have just celebrated my 80th birthday and I've got it made.

If you forget someone's name or an appointment or what you said yesterday, just explain that you are 80, and you will be forgiven. If you spill soup on your tie, or forget to shave half your face, or take another man's hat by mistake, or promise to mail a letter and carry it around in your pocket for two weeks, just say, "I'm 80, you know," and nobody will say a thing.

You have a perfect alibi for everything when you're 80. If you act silly, you're in your "second childhood."

Being 80 is much better than being 70. At 70 people are mad at you for everything, but if you make it to 80, you can talk back, argue, disagree and insist on having your own way because everybody thinks you are getting a little soft in the head.

They say that life begins at 40. Not true. If you ask me, life begins at 80! Sign me . . .

GOT IT MADE AT 80

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl, 12, very inexperienced, and I need to know the correct way to kiss a boy. My mother says it will just come naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me a few pointers?

Should the girl quit breathing? I heard she isn't supposed to make a "smack" when kissing a boy, but it's OK for kissing relatives, right?

Another question: Am I supposed to move my head? Or do I just move my lips? One last thing: What am I supposed to do with my nose?

NEVER BEEN KISSED

DEAR NEVER: You should not quit breathing. No "smack" sounds — not even with relatives. It's not necessary to move anything. And all you do with your nose is breathe through it.

DEAR ABBY: Would it be ethical for my husband and me to stipulate in our wills that the gold in our teeth be removed upon our demise and returned to our estate?

People aren't buried with jewelry, so now that gold is so valuable, why not?

After the mortician is through, who's to know anyway?

PRACTICAL PERSON

DEAR PRACTICAL: It would be ethical, but whether it would be practical is another matter. My dentist informs me that the gold in one's teeth usually isn't worth extracting.

P.S. Since most wills are read after the deceased has been buried, if you have any instructions for the mortician, better leave them with your family, lawyer, physician, clergyman or the mortician himself while you're still able.

Miss Patterson Is Bride

GREENSBORO—Karen Marie Patterson and William Ray Beavans were united in marriage here Saturday afternoon, May 3, at three o'clock in the First Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by Alton H. McEachern.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy F. Patterson Sr. of Greensboro, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John David Beavans of Enfield.

A program of wedding music was presented by David Winstead, organist, and Dale Beavans, brother of the bridegroom, soloist.

The bride was dressed in a gown designed by the House of Bernelle. It was of white qiana jersey trimmed with capella and Venice lace on the sleeves, Queen Anne neckline and a border of lace outlined the hemline. The gown had a wateau train. Her walking length veil was trimmed with Venice lace motifs on the English illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses, daisies, baby's breath centered with a white orchid.

The bride's honor attendant was Lynne Patterson of Raeford, her sister-in-law. Bridesmaids included Janice Black of Burlington, cousin of the bride, Wanda Spikes of Raleigh, Teresa Stokes and Darlene Hobson, both of Greenville.

David Beavans of Enfield, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers included Billy F. Patterson of Raeford, brother of the bride, Steve Acai of Raleigh, John Acai of Littleton, and Ronald Wood of Tillery.

Mrs. William Ray Beavans

The bride's niece, Audrey Patterson of Raeford, was flower girl.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride graduated from ECU and is a staff nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Greenville. The bridegroom attended ECU and is an EMT-IV and employed by the Greenville Fire Department.

Safety Serious Matter

It's done every year and perhaps it seems to become routine . . . the annual presentation of safety awards to area businesses and industries for their outstanding safety records.

There is nothing routine about preventing on-the-job accidents, however. Anyone who has ever been through the pain and inconvenience of an injury, either on the job or elsewhere can testify as to the importance of preventing such injuries.

Some 48 area firm representatives gathered here Tuesday night to hear N. C. Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks and to receive the awards on behalf of their firms.

"We believe that the promotion of safe and healthful working conditions is an integral part of the plan for quality economic development that we advocate for North Carolina," Brooks told the group. He cited a partnership between his department and management.

"But the real responsibility and credit must go to the employees who day-by-day make the partnership work as it has in the companies we honor here tonight."

The awards ranged from safety periods of one year to six years.

We hope there will be many more there to receive awards next year.

Cuba Policies Are Proper

President Carter this week in effect declared an end to Castro Cuba's dumping of undesirables on the United States.

The president said an official sea or airlift would be instituted but he indicated that the refugees would be screened to make certain they were not hardened criminals or other undesirables.

Castro has used the despair of huge numbers of his citizens to ship out the criminal element of Cuba. We should not stand for that, and the new Carter administration policies on the matter are proper.

THIS AFTERNOON

Chips Are On Jobs

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH - Jobs. More jobs and better paying jobs.

That is one thing everybody can understand regardless of educational level, income, religion, philosophy, or politics.

And that's why Gov. Jim Hunt is increasingly making jobs the central theme of his administration and his re-election campaign.

So many of the things which government can do and does in so many areas of people's lives is either expensive or controversial or both.

But even Republicans appreciate economic growth, and for that reason among others, Hunt believes he will get a lot of support from GOP ranks come November. And the same holds for the widely divergent wings of his own Democratic Party, Hunt says.

"People are excited and proud and full of enthusiasm for the future of North Carolina. We have been so far behind for so long that people are excited at the progress," he says.

During the primary campaign in various areas of the state, it mattered little what was on the agenda. People from all walks of life kept coming up to him for bringing new jobs to town, and encourage him to keep that action going, Hunt says.

Get More

The proposed oil refinery on the coast may be a matter for environmental debate in some quarters, but be assured state officials are going to find a way to get that project in place. The people who need jobs are getting the governor's ear. Same for the aluminum plant proposed in a depressed southeastern area. Hunt gets downright indignant when questions are raised about the amount of electricity aluminum manufacturing requires and the prospect that added power capacity will be needed. The important thing is, he insists, the jobs.

Soon, Hunt hopes, an internationally prominent business firm ranked among the nation's tops will announce a decision to relocate its headquarters in North Carolina.

All of this and more, says Hunt, is why he can pull together such otherwise sharply divided groups. "We have a real coming together of people who believe in progress," and progress in business means progress for individuals and that means improvement in all sorts of important areas like school, health, nutrition,....

BILL NOBLITT

As for Republicans supporting the Democratic candidate, Hunt believes that some are disenchanted at the role of the Jesse Helms Congressional Club in this election; and some simply don't like having a party-switcher as their candidate.

"But the big thing is that so many Republicans are business people. They are civic minded and want to move their communities ahead . . . they like economic growth. You can't bring new industry and growth into communities where people are fighting," Hunt says.

If indeed, as it seems, the most serious concern in the minds of the people is the state of the economy — inflation, taxes, savings — then Hunt thinks he has a firm grip on his November campaign.

One Way

Contrary to what most economists say about the disability of state governments to do very much about what is essentially a national problem, Hunt argues that North Carolina is doing the most important — perhaps the only — thing which can effectively answer the ravages of economic woes.

New jobs at better pay make it possible for Tar Heels to better withstand the storm, Hunt says.

Other Editors Say Voters Unaware

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

H.L. Mencken once said nobody ever went broke underestimating the intelligence of the American voter. He must have had North Carolina in mind when he said it. In last week's election Nazi leader Harold Covington was able to muster 56,006 votes running as a Republican candidate for attorney general. He was defeated by former U.S. Attorney Keith S. Snyder of Asheville who received 74,582 votes or 57.11 percent.

If Covington were just another political candidate the vote would be neither surprising nor of great concern to the populace. Covington, though, is the avowed national leader of the Nazi Party in this country. He headquarters in Raleigh where he holds the title as leader of the National Socialist Party of America. The Republican Party should have disavowed him from the beginning.

This democratic form of government that we keep talking about might not be so democratic after all. In the primaries last week only about 40 percent of the eligible voters took the time to go to the polls and vote. Less than 20 percent of the voter turnout was Republican; and Covington ended up with 42.88 percent of that vote. Covington actually received only about five percent of the total eligible vote in North Carolina, but he gave the Republican Party a black eye that will not heal overnight.

Covington's vote proves once again that, beyond one or two offices, the average voter does not even care enough about the candidates running to cast an intelligent vote. Covington sounded like a good North Carolina name. Although U.S. Attorney Keith S. Snyder is highly respected in the western part of the state, his name is not one that sounds as American as Covington.

More people should vote, but it would be more advisable to leave part of your ballot blank than to vote for the way a name sounds or some other second-hand information. "I voted for Covington," one of our citizens told us, "but I never associated him with the Nazi or Socialist Party until I read the results in the press. It has taught me a good lesson."

H.L. Mencken is right. No one will ever go broke underestimating the intelligence of the American voter. In these days that thought could even be carried a step further: No one in these times will ever go broke underestimating the intelligence of most of the candidates for whom those voters are casting their ballots.

RULES FOR PRAYING

There are few things concerning religion about which people speculate more often than about prayer. Everyone would like to know more about it. Even unbelievers are intrigued by its possibilities.

There are three things we should always bear in mind both when we think about prayer and when we pray. The first is that we never pray effectively until we deal with the sin in our lives. The second thing to remember is

'Goodbye Marshal Tito'

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of criticism about President Carter's failure to go to Marshal Tito's funeral. The White House has reacted strongly to the criticism and various spokesmen in the Administration have been ordered to go out and defend the President's decision.

"It all boils down to a question of signals," the Administration spokesman, in charge of leaking to columnists, said. "President Carter was terribly saddened by the marshal's death, but if he went to Tito's funeral, he would be sending the wrong signal to Moscow."

"How's that?" I said.

"If Carter had appeared in Belgrade, he would have had to say hello to Leonid Brezhnev, and if he had said hello to him, Brezhnev would have gotten the message that the United States was not as upset about the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan as we really are."

"Why didn't Carter go to Belgrade and not speak to Brezhnev? This would have been a stronger signal as to how we felt about the aggression."

"Yes, but our allies would have been very upset if Carter didn't speak to Brezhnev at the funeral, because it would have been a signal that Carter wanted to rekindle the cold war."

I said, "Carter wouldn't have had to discuss Afghanistan with Brezhnev. He could have kept the conversation light by talking about Cuba."

"Believe me," the spokesman said, "this decision was given a great deal of thought. At first we believed the President should go, if for no other reason than this would be a signal that the U.S. would not tolerate any Soviet interference in Yugoslavian affairs. But we felt we could send the same signal by shipping over Vice President Mondale and Miz Lillian."

"Apparently, the Yugoslavs didn't get the signal," I said. "They thought Carter stayed home for political reasons and didn't care if Tito had died or not."

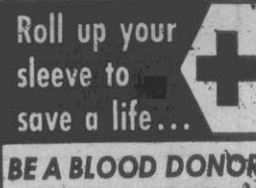

"If they got that out of it, then there was a mixup of signals. The President was very heartbroken by Tito's death, and if it hadn't been for Brezhnev deciding to go to Belgrade, Mr. Carter would have been one of the chief mourners. The other consideration was that the President can't be photographed looking sad at this time as this would be a signal to everyone that things are worse than most people think they are."

"I guess your problem in the White House now is to send another signal to the Yugoslavs asking them to disregard the previous signal concerning the President's absence, so they won't send a signal to Moscow saying they want to be friends."

"We're working on that now," the spokesman admitted. "The President is going to Italy next month, and probably will visit Belgrade to make up for his failure to say goodbye to Tito last week. He'll lay a wreath on Tito's grave, which is a pretty strong signal to the Soviets to keep their cotton-pickin' hands off Yugoslavia."

"Do you think the Yugoslavs will get over their hurt that Carter never came to the funeral?"

"Yes," he said, "as long as we explain to them that Tito would have wanted it that way."

U.S. Institutions Pressured

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The most influential political party of the past 40 years has been the Socialist Party, said Prof. Richard Eels. "Almost every plank of its 1932 platform is now law."

Eels commented in support of his thesis that threats to private sector enterprise in the United States, though more subtle, are just as real as they are in some of the world's poorer, less developed nations.

In such countries the retreat of the private sector — not just its businesses but institutions, rights and freedoms too — may be forced by revolutionary takeovers, guerrilla wars, cartels and terrorism.

In the United States, says Eels, the attack is dispersed, but equally relentless: Protest against institutions, growing dependence on government, erosion of private property rights and freedoms.

"The absence of a highly visible socialist-communist movement here is simply the absence of a familiar symbol of enterprise under attack, rather than an indication there is no attack at all," Eels declares.

Eels has just written "The Political Crisis of the Enterprise System," a little volume with an alarming theme: Private enterprise could be on its way out if it doesn't adjust to political realities.

But, said Eels in an interview, private enterprise doesn't protect itself in the political arena. It avoids mixing its economic well-being with political issues. Its

Can Be Hurt By Anderson

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ask the people close to President Carter's campaign whether they think Rep. John B. Anderson is a threat to the president's re-election and you get a variety of answers:

—"No one can ignore the potential problems."

—"It remains to be seen what kind of effort John Anderson will mount."

—"We're not very concerned about him."

But what says even more about how the Carter camp views Anderson's independent campaign is an analysis of the situation completed for John White, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

"In a close campaign, a well organized independent could greatly influence the outcome," the analysis says. "Free of spending limits, an appeal to independents (nearly 40 percent of the electorate considers themselves 'independent') could draw sufficient votes to dramatically influence totals in the volatile political climate we foresee this year."

"It is safe to say that an Anderson campaign would be harmful to the Democrats in a Carter-Reagan race," the memorandum states, echoing the findings of most surveys and conventional political wisdom.

An ABC-Louis Harris poll made public Wednesday showed Reagan with 39 percent of the vote, Carter 33 percent and Anderson 23 percent if the election were held immediately.

But when the 1,190 respondents were asked how they would vote if they thought Anderson really had a chance, the results narrowed to 35 percent for Reagan, 31 percent for Carter and 29 percent for Anderson — with Anderson the leader in eight states having 216 of the 269 electoral votes needed for victory.

The response of a White House aide who was asked about Anderson was as telling as the Democrats' analysis. He had ready a litany about the Illinois Republican's record in Congress and offered it on the condition his name not be used.

The aide's comments called attention to Anderson's conservative side. They reflected a White House concern that Anderson's appeal to liberals could attract support that might otherwise be Carter's.

The official, who is knowledgeable about the Carter political operations, said Anderson has "an erratic track record."

"People will see he is not the sort of progressive and thoughtful leader he is portraying himself as being," he said.

Then, he turned to what has become a standard line: Anderson, in 1961, 1963 and 1965, proposed a constitutional amendment declaring the United States to be a Christian nation. The congressman has since said "I was totally wrong" to propose the amendment.

There is also the matter of Anderson's rating by the Americans for Democratic Action, the White House aide said. The prominent liberal organization found that only 11 percent of Anderson's votes in 1979 were what they consider correct.

The White House official pointed out that this was the same rating as that assigned to House Republican Leader John Rhodes and Rep. Jack Kemp, a conservative New York Republican.

He did not mention — as an ADA staff member later did — that the rating was not necessarily an accurate reflection of Anderson's philosophy because he was already out campaigning for president part of the time and missed many of the votes on which the survey was based.

While this official and

To the editor:

Can any "thoughtful voter" believe that to insure that one's equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged just because of one's sex is "part of the implementation of the U. N. World Plan of Action to make America gradually collectivist under humanist principles of government"?

Can any "thoughtful voter" believe that this effort "is the means to the social planners' end: the New World Order, (whose) intent through present legislation is to destroy patriotic and traditional family institutions in this country"?

Can any "thoughtful voter" believe that this effort, which is supported by millions of loyal and patriotic Americans who cherish the rights of the individual and the integrity of the family, is being made in response to "Chairman Mao"?

The writer of this nonsense in the Sunday Forum displays the kind of Henny Penny hysteria that continues to characterize those who believe that equality of rights under the law should be denied or abridged only because of one's sex which, incidentally, can apply to men as well as women.

There would have been no United States of America, and we would not be as far along the road of individual independence and freedom as we are, if earlier Americans had championed the powers of government to deny equality of rights to them as individuals.

Such misguided efforts, which would deny equality of rights under law, hinders America's progress toward liberty and justice for all "thoughtful voters" and for all precious families.

Peoples Bank Has Its Opening

NEW PEOPLES BANK OFFICE...at Carolina East Mall was opened this morning with bank officials and other dignitaries

Peoples Bank & Trust Co. formally opened its new Carolina East Mall branch this morning with "break-in" ceremonies involving bank officials and other dignitaries.

Taking part in the ceremonial break-in were Bill Stanley, bank president and board chairman; Joe Long, manager of the new facility; Congressman Walter Jones; and Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon.

Stanley, in his remarks to the opening gathering, said that Peoples Bank has had a "long interest and long history" in eastern North Carolina. He noted that the bank, with headquarters in Rocky Mount, opened its first office in 1931.

The bank president said that Greenville is a "logical move" for the bank to make in its program of expansion.

In welcoming PB&T to Greenville, McGlohon said that it has been shown that people who are associated with financial institutions "add a great deal to the community." He told bank officials that "it is a pleasure to welcome a new corporate citizen" to Greenville and Pitt County.

Jones welcomed Peoples Bank to a new location in the First District.

The 3,200 square foot branch, PB&T's first in Greenville, is contemporary in design with the white exterior in keeping with the Carolina East Mall appearance.

The full-service facility offers two remote drive-in tellers for customer convenience.

Oswald Probe Again Rebuffed

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A British writer who wants to dig up Lee Harvey Oswald's grave to prove Oswald is not buried there has been rebuffed by a state appeals court.

Author Michael Eddowes has written a book that contends Oswald did not assassinate President Kennedy. Eddowes said a Soviet impostor killed Kennedy and claims the impostor is buried in Oswald's grave.

charge or water withdrawal permit at the site.

Local area residents who are not convinced that an industry would not endanger the area, called a meeting for today to discuss the matter.

The main attraction of the site — now prime farmland — for industrial prospects, is its closeness to the Tar River, and to the transmission lines of two electric power suppliers — Carolina Power and Light Co. and Virginia Electric and Power Co.

State Sen. Vernon White of Winterville, is owner of the land. He said an industry has looked at the site, but added he did not know who. He said there are no plans to develop the tract and that no one has taken an option on the property.

Extra $70,000

CHICAGO (AP) — The two lawyers who defended convicted mass murderer John W. Gacy Jr. have submitted expenses of $70,000 in addition to the $60,000 they were paid in fees.

The lawyers, Sam Amirante and Robert Motta, submitted the expenses Thursday while telling Circuit Court Judge Louis B. Garippo that they were withdrawing as attorneys for Gacy's appeal.

Plan Enter German Sub

BEAUFORT, N.C. (AP) — Navy divers will enter the remains of a German submarine that has been buried off the North Carolina coast for 38 years during an expedition that is to get under way in late May.

A Navy Department spokesman said Thursday the 17-day project, scheduled to begin May 27, will involve an internal survey of the U-352 and removal of torpedoes and other explosives from the wreck site about 26 miles south of Beaufort.

The divers also expect to find the remains of German sailors killed when the vessel sank in 1942.

The West German government has given its permission for the United States to remove any remains to a U.S. cemetery for burial.

It will be the first time that divers have actually entered the U-352, which lies in 110 feet of water. The submarine was sunk by the Coast Guard Cutter Icarus on May 9, 1942.

At least seven torpedoes and 11 Germans were believed to be left in the ship.

The project, originally scheduled for February but cancelled because of rough seas, will be conducted by a unit from a naval base at Little Creek, Va.

Ladies Night Meeting Held

WINTERVILLE — The 20th anniversary Ladies Night meeting was held Thursday night by the Winterville Kiwanis Club at the Winterville Christian Church Fellowship Hall.

Special honored guests were wives of Kiwanians who have died — the women so honored were Mrs. Poe Worthington, Mrs. Helen Cox, Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Louise Langston, Mrs. Jenny Faulkner, and Mrs. Estelle Boyd.

President James Cobb presided at the meeting. Four new members were installed by Sparky McCaskill. These were Woodrow Worthington, Frank Branch, Bob Mansfield, and Robin Abbott.

The program of entertainment was provided by "Amazing Malcolm and His Magic Show."

King Is Named To Authority

The City Council, in a brief special call meeting Thursday, endorsed Mayor Don McGlohon's appointment of Roscoe King to the Greenville Housing Authority for a five-year tenure.

King, senior vice president of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Pitt County, will fill the Housing Authority seat vacated this month by Woody Crumpler. Crumpler completed the maximum of two five-year terms on the board and was not eligible for reappointment.

In other business, the Council adopted a resolution approving an amendment to the grant contract between the Federal Aviation Administration and the city, Pitt County and the Pitt-Greenville Airport, for increased airport development aid.

The amendment calls for an increase in the federal grant obligation of some $60,000 from $698,400 to $758,400. The county previously approved the amendment, which must be submitted by June 15.

developed, the single issue which brought most criticism to bear against Hunt was his New Generation Plan, a governmental approach to improved services for children in a variety of areas which bedrock conservatives and Fundamental church people feared as state intrusion into family living.

The primary returns put that controversy to rest, Hunt believes. "Polls show that people believe it is a good thing to help children. We are seen as working for children and their opportunities."

From now till November we will hear a great deal about economic growth, for Hunt has determined that "economic growth and progress go hand in hand."

others have indicated in private a concern about Reagan, Richard Moe, Vice President Walter F. Mondale's chief of staff and a member of the campaign inner circle, expressed no such worries.

"I don't regard Anderson as a serious candidate," he said. "He has a huge burden of proof."

The analysis prepared for White profiles the states with sizable independent votes. It notes that support for Eugene McCarthy, who ran an independent campaign in 1976, denied Carter 26 electoral votes in four states.

"This time it would be much worse," said one Democrat not tied directly to the Carter campaign.

"There is a hard core of independent votes in a lot of key states and Democrats are the ones who get hurt," he said.

Asked whether the Carter-Mondale campaign organization was looking at the Anderson threat seriously, he replied emphatically, "Oh, yes."

Manteo Center Is Considered

MANTEO — The Regional Development Institute of East Carolina University will conduct an environmental assessment of possible locations for a Lost Colony Cultural Center, according to Thomas W. Willis, Director of the Institute.

Willis has designated Tim Brinn, assistant director, to work with local Dare County people in evaluating available sites for such a building. Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, former chairman of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, and now the producer of "The Lost Colony" pageant, favors a site as close to Fort Raleigh as possible because of its use by cast members of the play.

Property now under consideration by the Roanoke Island Historical Association would involve moving some structures presently used by "The Lost Colony" to Morrison Grove. The present parking area could be jointly utilized by the theater and the center. But there are other sites to be considered during the assessment.

In a recent interview, Joe Layton, director of "The Lost Colony" production, said the development of such a center on Roanoke Island is an essential goal. "We've got to have it," he said. "With proper direction it can be the home of the Lost Colony Repertory Theater, an American dance company, all the arts going out from Roanoke Island."

Safriet Guest On Radio Show

Bill Safriet, Mental Health Specialist in the Greenville Regional Office of the State Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Alcohol/Drug Abuse Services of the Department of Human Resources, will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p. m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCT radio. He will talk about his role in relation to the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center.

Other topics Safriet will discuss will be deinstitutionalization, the "revolving door" syndrome, and traditional services, as well as the need for community support systems for clients needing appropriate mental health services.

Speaking on the recent site visit by professionals evaluating services at PCMHC, Safriet praised personnel, services and programs at the center. The Center rated commendable appraisal reports, he said.

FOCUS

Election in Peru

Voters in Peru go to the polls Sunday to try to elect a new president. Yet the actual election of a president may still be months away. To be elected president, a candidate must receive at least 36 percent of the popular vote. But with 12 candidates seeking the job, some observers predict that no candidate will get enough votes to win. If that happens, the new Congress, which also will be elected Sunday, will elect the new president when it convenes in late July. This is the first general election Peru has held in 17 years, and the first in which people who are unable to read and write will be eligible to vote.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the capital of Peru?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Benjamin Franklin was the first U.S. postmaster-general.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MAY 17, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider all the various aspects connected with home, family and possessions, and to make plans for improvement. Take steps to have your fondest dreams come true.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You know how to establish more harmony at home now, so do so. Avoid a temptation to criticize others. Be kind.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy attending to routine chores early in the day so you'll have more time for social activities later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your financial assets and liabilities and try to balance them more intelligently. Spend only within your means.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to study your environment and make plans for improvement. Make the evening a delightful one.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Analyze how to get rid of any limiting conditions and be happier. Make your personal life more as you want it to be.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Close ties will support you in some personal project that means much to you. Join friends whose interests are similar to yours.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to outside duties without further procrastination and they are soon behind you. Avoid one who talks too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Make new contacts of worth. Show that you have an open mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure you keep any promises you've made and make real progress now. Take no risks with money or reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Have a heart-to-heart talk with a close tie and come to a better understanding. Sidestep one who is a hypocrite.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy handling those tough jobs which you've been putting off lately. Attend a group affair and enjoy yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in activities that can bring you added income and better self-expression. Take time for meditation. Be wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who can see new ways of making conditions more ideal, so provide with the best education you can and much success will follow. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Ticks Found In The Woods

Ticks are being picked up in the woodlands of eastern North Carolina once again, according to Area Extension Forestry Agent Jim Kea. Care should be taken to check for ticks whenever exposed, and dogs should be checked frequently since children and adults may get ticks from them.

"If you find a tick attached, remove it by grasping the body with tweezers or your fingers and gently pull the tick away from the point of attachment," explained Kea. "This removal must be done without twisting or jerking," he added.

Removing the tick this way allows him to release his hold, reducing the chance of breaking off the mouth parts in the bite. Kea explained that mouth parts broken off can cause secondary infection similar to that caused by a splinter. If mouth parts are broken off, they should be removed with a sterilized needle.

Kea cautioned that ticks transmit Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever and also tick paralysis. "Tick paralysis may occur if a female tick feeds for several days on a child or animal," said the forestry agent. "Death can result but recovery is normally rapid and complete when the tick is removed."

Ticks must be attached for six hours before Rocky Mountain Spotted Tick Fever can be transmitted. "However, if in removing a tick or killing a tick some of the juices enter a break in the skin, the disease may be contracted," said Kea. "Only a small percentage of ticks carry the disease. More publicity has been given to it in the past few years due to the increase in deaths attributed to it."

The forestry agent cautions persons that have been in contact with ticks to consult a physician immediately if they develop headache, fever, chills, aches, nausea, or a rash on the wrists and ankles. Symptoms may develop from two days to two weeks following a bite. Kea encourages anyone who comes in contact with ticks frequently to contact the county extension office and ask for the bulletin entitled The American Dog Tick and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

FRICTION EASING

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudan and Ethiopia, after five years of friction over Sudan's support of the Eritrean rebels, have patched up their differences and agreed to expand areas of cooperation.

Mothers Stand By Old Adages

GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "What you do speaks so loudly I can't hear what you say." "A man is as good as his word." "Bad deeds, like poison weeds, grow from little seeds." Such old adages may seem trite and dated to some people, but they're still highly current among leading American mothers.

Like a lot of other valuable goods, the old truisms derive from the past. But questionnaires filled out by 1980's top state mothers who met last week in Phoenix, Ariz., show they give prime modern maxims of conduct and faith.

Mothers chosen by 50 states for their outstanding qualities of character, competence and service to others were present for the annual affair at which Betty Lieder of Spencer, Iowa, was named American Mother of the Year.

Asked in questionnaires to cite the "inspirational saying" that had helped and stayed with them through life and which they have repeated to their children, the state mothers came up with a host of handed-down epigrams

Speaker At Services

Anand Chaudhari, Christian educator and evangelist from India, will report on evangelization efforts in the State of Rajasthan, India, Sunday at 10 a.m. at Trinity FWB Church here.

ANAND CHAUDHARI
Chaudhari is an associate of Christian Nationals' Evangelism Commission and director of Rajasthan Bible Institute, a training school for workers among the Hindi-speaking people of India. He is a well-known radio preacher and oversees a literature ministry. Born into a Hindu family in Goa, he became a Christian in 1954 and trained in theology in India, Canada and the United States.
The public is invited to hear Chaudhari speak.

Homecoming

The Rev. Wade Goldston will be the preacher for Homecoming services to be held at Wesley Methodist Church on the Stantonsburg Road, Rt. 2, Farnville Sunday at 11 a.m.

The noon meal will be shared in the fellowship hall of the church. Then there will be singing in the church sanctuary. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. Terry L. Shackelford.

which they're perpetuating. Items like these:

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."
"Look before you leap."
"Be yourself, not an imitator."
"Take a stand and stick with it."
"Many hands make light work."
"Whether a task is great or small, do it well or not at all."

Many of the mothers cited short phrases from the Bible, religious injunctions or other aphorisms that had come down to them from parents, relatives or grandparents and which were being passed on to their own offspring.

Services Set

Dedication services will be held at Edwards Chapel Miracle Church in Christ at Haddock's Crossroads this weekend.

Saturday at 8 p.m. Holy Communion will be led by the Rev. R. Williams. Sunday at 11 a.m. the pastor, Bishop C. F. Edwards will be in charge. A pig-picking will be held at 1:15 p.m. At 2:15 p.m. Pearl M. Edwards will preach her trial sermon. At 3:15 p.m. Bishop D. L. Darden will be in charge. The public is invited to all these services.

GOSPEL SING
There will be a gospel sing at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The guest singer will be Donnie Harris from the Grindle Creek Church of God. There will also be other local singers at the event.
The pastor, the Rev. Philip Bland, invites the public to attend.

Here are some of them, with identities of state mothers citing them:
"When a job is once begun, never quit it 'till it's done." (Norma Larsen, Bountiful, Utah)
"A man's reach should exceed his grasp, or what's a heaven for!" (Anne Jones, Bowling Green, Ohio)
"All things are possible with God." (Agnes Stewart, Beaumont, Texas)
"Nothing so bad happens to you that you cannot find some good in it if only to teach you patience." (Emma Tibbets, Rapid City, S.D.)

"Never let the sun go down without having done something to help or encourage someone else." (Nellie Mae Parker, Halifax, Va.)
"If you can't say something good about someone, don't say anything." (Betty Heare, Mount Vernon, Wash.)
"When you come to the end of your rope, tie a knot and hang on!" (Frances S. Hughes, Charlotte, N.C.)
"All things work together for those who love the Lord." (Cecil Dial, Pine Bluff, Ark.)

Life's roughest years

Being a teen-ager can be torture . . . a lot of the time. And the early twenties don't flatten out that smoothly. There's a desperate loneliness about having problems your kid-brother hasn't encountered and your parents must have forgotten.

The loneliness is worst if your folks gave you nothing to believe in — or if they turned you off when they tried to share their convictions with you.

No one has to stay away from God. Many a young searcher has found his faith, found himself, and found his family in his quest for spiritual certainties.

Sunday morning there's more to do than lean on a tree.

CROWNED MISS U.S.A. — South Carolina's Shawn Weatherly is in tears as she is crowned Miss USA in Biloxi, Miss. last night by the 1979 winner Mary Therese Friel of New York. (AP Laserphoto)

Miss U.S.A. Can Now Pay The Telephone Bill

By TERRY GOGGIN
Associated Press Writer
BILLOXI, Miss. (AP) — The new Miss USA, Shawn Weatherly of South Carolina, says she and her boyfriend ran up enormous long-distance telephone bills last year.

"At least now I can help him pay for them," she said after winning Thursday night's preliminary to the Miss Universe pageant.

Miss Weatherly's boyfriend is Dwight Clark, a wide receiver with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. She herself lists weightlifting among her hobbies and said she runs eight miles a day.

The 20-year-old, blue-eyed blonde from Sumter, S.C., gasped and wept when she was proclaimed winner over 50 other contestants in an internationally televised event. She stands 5-foot-8, measures 35-25-35 and succeeds Mary Therese Friel of Rochester, N.Y.

"Daddy can't get too upset about my final exam grades now," said Miss Weatherly, one of six children of real estate agent A.T. Weatherly and his wife, Connie.

"Fine. We'll burn them," said her beaming father.

First runnerup was Jineane Ford, Miss Arizona. Second runnerup was Barbara Bowser, Miss Florida. Third and fourth runnersup, in order, were Pamela Rigas, Miss Alabama, and Lisa Deville, Miss Kentucky.

In addition to the five top finishers, the seven other semifinalists were Tonja Walker, Miss Maryland; Carla Peterson, Miss Minnesota; Becky Staab, Miss Nebraska; Eva Dyer, Miss New Hampshire; Kathy Dawn Patrick, Miss New Mexico; Debra Maurice, Miss New York, and Barbara Anne Buckley, Miss Texas.

Miss Patrick, 19, had to get a court order to compete. A resident of the Texas-New Mexico border community of Anthony, she was stripped of the Miss New Mexico title by contest officials on grounds she lived in Texas, but got a federal court in El Paso to restore her title.

Miss Weatherly's mother is a professional model and one of her sisters, Susan Shoemaker, is a contestant in the upcoming Miss South Carolina preliminary to the Miss America pageant.

The new Miss USA said she prayed Wednesday night — "Let the best girl win."

Miss Weatherly will receive $75,000 in cash and prizes.

She said she probably would use some of the prize money to pay phone bills of the size run up last year when she was attending Clemson University while her boyfriend was playing football with the 49ers.

"We'll work it out," she said of the anticipated separation.

Laughter On Airwaves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Times may be rough and you don't have to laugh if you don't want to, but at 7:45 p.m. PDT Monday, people all over the West Coast will be tee-heeing, guffawing, cackling and generally laughing it up.

What's so funny?

About 30 radio stations will simultaneously play a one-minute tape recording of people laughing. The idea came from Judith and Fred Auda of San Francisco, who want to replace the scowls on people's faces with smiles.

"What we're hoping is that people will open their windows and share their laughter," said Auda, who calls the project "Pacific Ha."

The Audas have invested $1,000 in the "Laugh-In" and they're hoping it will be a sort of cure-all for the pressures of modern life.

"We've had people ask us, 'Will it relieve tension along the San Andreas Fault?' I think it has a good chance," says Auda.

Trial Set For Strangling Boy

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A 32-year-old white woman is to go on trial Aug. 11 on charges of kidnapping and strangling a 5-year-old black boy, whom she did not know, because of his race.

The trial date was set Thursday for Darlin June Cromer, charged in the Feb. 5 death of Reginald Williams of Alameda.

Assistant public defender Dean Beaupre, who is representing Ms. Cromer, said he would enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity. Conviction on a murder charge with special circumstances can bring a death sentence.

Boat Theft Is Reported

The theft of a boat and trailer from a lot off Highway 43 South is under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Joseph Hill of 214 Cherrywood Drive, Cherry Oaks, reported that the 14-foot boat and 1975 model trailer were stolen from a lot just beyond Bell's Fork.

The sheriff said that Hill estimated the value of the boat and trailer at $500.

Budget Conferees Are Taking Weekend Off

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators remain far apart on a compromise 1981 balanced budget, but the new Senate Budget Committee chairman says progress made so far has taken the Senate's plan out of the red.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said Thursday he was not happy when the news media reported earlier in the week that the Senate "dipped" $100 million into President Carter's gasoline fee revenues to balance its $613.1 billion budget.

The use of that $100 million put the Senate package in deficit Tuesday when a federal judge struck down the 10-cent-a-gallon fee as unconstitutional.

However, on Thursday, citing spending cuts already approved by the House-Senate conference, Hollings proudly declared that "we undipped and got a balanced budget on the Senate side."

The conference, which next meets Monday, has so far achieved a net decrease of $200 million from the Senate proposal, although most categories of government spending are still to be considered and serious questions remain as to whether the budget can be balanced.

The negotiations reached a near standstill Thursday as a congressionally imposed deadline for approving the budget resolution passed with wide differences remaining in the House and Senate spending plans for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

The main sticking point has become the order in which the spending categories are considered.

The Senate negotiators want to deal with defense at an early stage, while Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, acting chairman of the conference, has insisted on delaying action on the Senate's proposed steep increase in defense spending.

Ashley claimed an agreement on defense "would predetermine what follows" and that Rep. Robert N. Giaino, D-Conn., the Budget Committee chairman, should be present when defense is considered.

Giaino has been undergoing medical tests for a stomach ailment but was expected to return Monday.

No Help By Jerry Paul

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Odom prison inmate Robert Cady testified Thursday that former Durham attorney Jerry Paul filed no legal papers or took any other court action three years ago on Cady's behalf.

Cady, testifying before a N.C. State Bar disciplinary committee, said he fired Paul because the attorney did little work on the appeal of the inmate's murder conviction.

The testimony came during a disciplinary committee hearing on an allegation that Paul engaged in unprofessional conduct by not completing legal work for which he had been retained.

Paul, who was scheduled to testify when the hearing continued Friday, has denied the allegation.

The attorney received national attention in 1975 for his defense of Joan Little, who was accused of the stabbing death of a Beaufort County jailer.

Paul's attorneys suggested Thursday that Paul never agreed to handle Cady's appeal, but agreed instead to represent him in a different legal proceeding which involved a request for post-conviction relief.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Cars driven by Terry Whitford and Gloria Brewington, both of Greenville, collided about 3:06 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Fourth and Pitt Streets, Greenville police reported.

Damage from the collision was set at $150 to the Whitford car and $400 to the Brewington vehicle.

defense prompted a threat from Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., that the Senate side might refuse to consider domestic spending categories until a defense figure was set.

By dealing with defense last, Ashley's strategy would add pressure on the Senate to accept a smaller military spending hike by effectively creating a choice between a steep increase for the Pentagon or a balanced budget.

The Senate has proposed $155.7 billion in 1981 defense spending, compared to $147.9 billion approved by the House and $150.5 billion requested by President Carter.

Under the 1974 Congressional Budget Act, the House and Senate had until Thursday to agree on a target 1981 budget. However, missing the deadline has no practical effect.

Talk Shuffle Of Accounts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An accounting change may produce a $50-million windfall to balance the state's financially troubled highway fund next year.

A Raleigh newspaper reported today that under the plan, the state would take money from the monthly cash balance of the Transportation Department and would change the payment schedule for highway construction contracts.

Quoting sources, the News and Observer of Raleigh reported that the proposal would be submitted to the Legislature in June.

some other major new source of revenue, the sources said, the highway budget of $653 million would have to be cut back by about $50 million for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

The highway fund gets its financing from gasoline tax revenues. But a decline in gasoline consumption has meant lower collections. And inflation keeps driving the cost of highway projects up.

The plan was reported to have been developed by John A. Williams Jr., who is Gov. Jim Hunt's budget officer.

Under the plan, according to the report, the state would tap the unused monthly balance from the department, which normally exceeds $100 million a month.

And the payment schedule for multi-year construction contracts would be changed to allow the state to stretch out payments.

Report Nuclear Waste 'Trap'

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has discovered a chemical compound that may provide safer underground disposal of nuclear wastes, a government scientist says.

Dr. Yoshinori Fujiki, a ceramics expert leading a research group at the National Institute for Research in inorganic materials, said the new compound traps radioactive material in crystal "tunnels."

The compound, potassium titanate, allows less leakage of intensely radioactive cesium or strontium than old glass containers, Fujiki said. He said the new method also could be cheaper than existing measures.

Carter Oil Package Based On Old Ideas

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gasoline fee President Carter was forbidden by a federal judge from imposing this week was a package of three old ideas that came apart at the seams:

—Raise new revenues to help balance the federal budget.

—Impose a fee to cut crude oil imports.

—Institute a surcharge to reduce gasoline demand.

The first idea is as old as governments.

The second dates from 1959, when the U.S. government began using quotas to limit oil imports.

Those quotas ended four years later, when President

Richard M. Nixon imposed import fees in the face of production's inability to meet rising demand. That move let more foreign oil in, although discouraging such imports a bit.

Within a year, though, Nixon's modest fees were left far behind by the OPEC cartel's quadrupling of foreign oil prices.

President Gerald R. Ford temporarily imposed new import fees as a tactic to push energy legislation through Congress.

The third idea, that of a gasoline surcharge, goes back at least to 1974, when it was proposed as a way of cutting oil consumption after the Arab oil embargo.

John C. Sawhill, then head of the Federal Energy Administration, backed this unpopular idea and, partly as a result, was dismissed by Ford. Now Sawhill is back, as deputy energy secretary, and so are gasoline surcharges.

While the federal government has for years collected a four-cent-per-gallon tax to pay for federal highway programs, Congress has repeatedly rejected a tax aimed at conserving gasoline.

Highway construction brings jobs, business, easy travel and grassroots political support. Gasoline conservation doesn't.

In fact, although authorizing the president to adopt fuel-saving measures, Congress specifically said he could not do it through a gasoline tax.

The president could impose oil import fees to protect national security, but not to balance the budget.

The three ideas came together last March, when the Carter administration linked them ingeniously.

Carter would put a large fee on all imported oil, to be paid by American refiners. But those refiners would be allowed to recover the fee only on gasoline sales.

The resulting pump price hikes would cut demand and thus, in the name of national security, imports. And in the process, the federal Treasury would collect more than $10 billion a year from the fee.

Carter maintained he was not imposing a congressionally-forbidden gasoline tax but merely administering a congressionally-allowed import fee.

Carter proposed that his plan be eventually replaced by an equivalent gasoline tax, but Congress could have delayed that until after this fall's elections.

By then the public might be used to the 10-cent fee and scarcely notice its legal conversion into the first gasoline-conservation tax.

In politics, as in stage magic, it's no trick to pull a rabbit out of a hat — the trick is to hide the rabbit until it's time to pull him out.

Independent gasoline marketers thought they saw a rabbit's ear dangling out of Carter's sleeve, and pointed it out to District Judge Aubrey Robinson.

In his decision Tuesday, Robinson in effect yelled "fake".

"Congress has thus far denied the president authority to reduce gasoline consumption through a gasoline conservation levy," Robinson said. Carter's plan, he added, "is an attempt to circumvent that stumbling block in the guise of an import control measure."

The administration said it would appeal.

While Carter's legal tactic was coming apart in court, his political tactic was unraveling in Congress, where House and Senate committees worked on legislation to block the fee.

On Thursday, he pointedly accused Congress of withdrawing support for something it had originally requested.

Last March, Carter said, congressional leaders "asked me to impose an oil conservation fee amounting to 10 cents a gallon on gasoline ... I took the action unilaterally. No congressional action was necessary.

"Now there are pressures in Congress to take legal action to stop the imposition of this conservation fee," he complained.

Should Congress or the courts show a change of heart, Carter may get the rabbit out of the hat yet, but somehow the magic's gone out of it.

Organize For Quick Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a new step aimed at readying U.S. troops for possible intervention in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf area, a California headquarters for a 12,000-man quick-reaction Marine brigade goes into operation today.

The air and ground forces assigned to the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade Headquarters are to be ready to take off — and move into action — at short notice in case of a crisis.

As the new headquarters is being established at Twentynine Palms, Calif., supplies and equipment for are being loaded aboard supply ships and tankers which are to sail soon from Port Hueneme, Calif., and Wilmington, N.C., for the Indian Ocean, probably to the British-owned island of Diego Garcia, site of the only present U.S. military base in that area.

In a serious emergency, according to the plans, the Marine brigade would meet the supply ships at a friendly port as near as possible to the crisis scene, and several Air Force fighter squadrons from the United States would land at fields as nearby as possible.

Specific units under the new brigade headquarters will be drawn from the existing Marine force.

At present, the only U.S. ground combat troops in the Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf area are 1,800 Marines aboard a Navy amphibious task force in the Arabian Sea.

Pitt Deputies Make Arrest

Pitt County deputies arrested a 23-year-old resident of Colonial Park north of Greenville Wednesday night and charged him with misdemeanor possession of marijuana, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said that Adoniram Joseph Huntington III of 111 Colonial Park was arrested at 8:45 p.m. on the possession count. Deputies confiscated a quantity of marijuana seeds, he added.

A first appearance hearing has been scheduled for May 30 in District Court.

Heavy Damage In House Fire

A Winterville residence was heavily damaged by fire Thursday afternoon. Winterville firemen arriving on the scene found flames coming from a bedroom window in the rear of the brick home at 516 Evergreen Dr.

The occupants of the house were identified by officials on the scene as the Leon Edwards family, who was not home when the fire started. A neighbor saw the flames and reported the blaze.

The fire was contained in the bedroom, but heavy smoke and water damage resulted to other parts of the house.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known. Damage estimates were placed at $4,000 by officials.

Revival Set

Revival services will be conducted Monday through Friday nights at Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church beginning at 7:30.

The guest speaker for the week will be the Rev. W. K. Rainger of Jacksonville.

The following will be present during the week: Monday, Mount Calvary FWB Church, Greenville; Tuesday, Mount Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Winterville; Wednesday, Triumph Missionary Baptist Church; Thursday, Selvia Chapel FWB Church; and Friday, Holy Trinity Holiness Church, Greenville.

The Rev. Jasper Suggs, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Rampants Win, Claim Playoff Berth

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor
The long hard struggle ended last night for Rose High School's Rampants, and the long hard struggle is ready to begin again.

The Rampants, who saw their Division I title hopes crushed during the last three weeks of the season when they dropped three of their last six games, were in a must-win situation against Northern Nash. Wilson Beddingfield, one game behind the Rampants, had beaten Bertie, and needed only a victory by the Knights over Rose to force a playoff for the second place Division I 4-A playoff spot.

But Rose put those hopes to rest early, scoring four runs in the bottom of the first inning and went on to record a 5-1 win over the Knights.

Scott Galloway hurled a two-hitter at the Knights, and only once in the entire game was he in any trouble.

"Our pitching and catching have carried us through these last few games," a happy coach Ronald Vincent said later. "Our defense was awfully tough tonight too."

"We played a lot better tonight; like we're supposed to have been playing these last few weeks. But I'm happy to have won and wrapped up the playoff berth. I'm really looking forward to the playoffs, and I know the players are too."

Those playoffs are scheduled to begin Monday night at 8 p.m. at Garner High School, the winners of the Cap-Eight Conference.

Galloway, in going the distance to win his second game in three decisions, had hardly any trouble. In the second inning, a runner reached on an error, but was cut down in a double play. In the third, two walks put men on first and second, but the lead man was cut down trying to steal third.

The lone Northern Nash run came in the fifth. With one down, Thomas Mabry drilled a liner just beyond the reach of third baseman Skip Hill and it fell in for a double down the left field line. Carl Payne followed with a single to center, scoring Mabry. Payne took second on the throw-in, and moved to third on a wild pitch, but died there as Galloway firmed up and struck out the next two batters.

No other runners reached against him.

By then, it was all over anyway as Rose put the game away with four first inning runs.

With one down, Mark Douglas slashed a single into center. Mark Shank laid a bunt

Rose Qualifies Three, Tigers, Greene C. One Each For State

WILSON — Five area athletes, including three from Rose High School qualified for next week's State High School Track and Field Championships during the Eastern Regionals in Wilson yesterday.

Rose's Ted King, Kenny Smith and Harry Williams all gained berths in the state meet, along with Williamston's Vincent Peele and Greene Central's Melvin Bynum.

Bynum was the lone winner among the group, capturing first place in the triple jump, and adding a fourth place finish in the 165-meter low hurdles.

The top four finishers in each event qualified for the state meet, where they will go up against the top four from the west.

Northern Durham captured the team championship, finishing with 58 points. Durham Hillside was second with 38, followed by Ashokle with 37 and Richmond County with 36. Rose finished fifth with 21.

Peele qualified in the discus, finishing second with a throw of 162 feet, 4 inches. Two other area participants failed to first run of the game.

Emmett Walsh then settled things with a three-run homer over the fence in left center, running it to 4-0.

Rose left runners at first and second in the second, but didn't score again until the bottom of the fifth.

In that frame, Shank walked with two away and Campbell singled to left. Shank was able to score on the play when the ball got through the outfielder.

The victory closed out the regular season for the Rampants with a 15-5 record, 10-4 against Division I competition. Northern Nash ended up with a 11-10 record overall and 6-8 in the league.

West Germans Joining Boycott; Carter Hopeful Others Will Join

By The Associated Press

The West German Olympic Committee has joined the United States in deciding to boycott the 1980 Summer Games in Moscow, and White House sources say President Carter now is hoping other European Olympic committees will fall in line.

The West German Olympic Committee voted 59-40 Thursday to boycott the Games, giving the United States' call for a boycott its strongest European support thus far.

The National Olympic Committees (NOCs) of Australia, Japan, the Netherlands and Portugal have said they probably will follow the West German lead. Administration sources said Carter also hopes Italy and Spain will decide to boycott.

France's NOC voted on Tuesday to participate in the Games, disappointing the Carter administration. However, sources said the West German vote was considered more significant because "many nations have said they will follow Germany, whereas few are expected to follow France."

The vote in a hotel ballroom in the Rhineland city of Dusseldorf followed an emotional, four-hour debate. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and the West German parliament firmly supported a boycott to protest Soviet military presence in Afghanistan, while several of West Germany's national sports federations opposed a boycott.

Although the vote was not as one-sided as the 2-1 margin by which the U.S. Olympic Committee's House of Delegates approved the boycott, it was not as close as expected.

Josef Neckermann, a six-time Olympic medalist in equestrian events from West Germany, expressed the athletes' view. He said the vote to boycott resulted "out of solidarity with the American athletes. We couldn't let them stand alone."

National Olympic committees have until May 24 to notify the Moscow Olympic Organizing Committee whether they will participate.

"There is now an effective boycott of Moscow, and the effect of the West German decision on other countries in Europe, including Italy, the Netherlands, Portugal and Spain, could lead to similar support for a boycott," Australian home affairs minister Robert Ellicott said.

Although the Australian government has supported the boycott, Australia's NOC remains uncommitted.

Australian NOC President Syd Grange conceded the West German vote would affect his committee's decision.

The chances of an Italian boycott, meanwhile, dimmed slightly when three parties in Italy's coalition government announced in Rome they had reached an agreement that could permit Italian athletes to send a team to Moscow. Giovanni Spadolini, secretary of the Centrist Republican Party, said he and representatives of the Christian Democrat and Socialist parties, reached accord on Tuesday.

Although the parties agreed that Italy should not officially be represented in Moscow, a team could be sent without a flag, Spadolini said.

Billingham Likes New Boston Home

Cut Down

AP Sports Writer

Jack Billingham has a new lease on his baseball life but in a way it seemed like old times.

"I'm 37 years old and I felt like I was 21," Billingham said after making his debut with Boston Thursday night — he previously pitched for Los Angeles, Houston, Cincinnati and Detroit — and hurling five effective if inelegant innings as the Red Sox whipped the Cleveland Indians 6-2.

"Any time you join a new team it's like that. You want to impress them," he added.

And there was Billingham's old colleague Tony Perez, one day past his 38th birthday, driving in the runs just like he did when they were teammates in Cincinnati for six years. Perez walked and scored on Carlton Fisk's two-run triple during a three-run rally in the second inning, doubled a run across in the third and socked a two-run homer in the eighth.

Thursday's baseball schedule consisted of only five games. Elsewhere in the American League, the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Seattle Mariners 1-0, and the Chicago White Sox downed the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4.

In National League action, the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the San Francisco Giants 3-2 in 12 innings, and the San Diego Padres shaded the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1.

Billingham, who was acquired from Detroit earlier in the week, allowed two runs on five hits while walking four but picked up the victory with help from Dick Drago. The veteran right-hander gave up two runs in the first inning, then stranded runners in scoring position in three of the next four innings.

"We wanted Billingham to pitch five innings and Drago four and it worked out perfectly," said Manager Don Zimmer.

Cleveland Manager Dave Garcia thought otherwise.

"He (Billingham) never should have gone five innings, but he did," Garcia griped. "We could have gotten to Billingham. In the first inning we had a shot, but just didn't do it."

Blue Jays 1, Mariners 0

Jim Clancy pitched a three-hitter, and Barry Bonnell broke an 0-for-19 slump with a run-scoring single in the second inning. Clancy outdueled Floyd Bannister, who allowed only four hits. Toronto scored when Damaso Garcia singled, stole second and came home on Bonnell's single. Seattle's only hits were third-inning singles by Bob Stinson and Dan Meyer and a ninth-inning single by Meyer.

White Sox 6, Brewers 4

Pinch hitter Wayne Nordhagen capped a four-run seventh inning with a three-run double. Claudell Washington drilled a pair of run-scoring singles and Chet Lemon homered to lead Chicago. With the White Sox leading 2-1 in the seventh, Bob Molinaro tripled and scored Washington's single and two walks loaded the bases. Bob McClure relieved Lary Sorensen and Nordhagen looped his bases-clearing double down the right field line.

Pirates 3, Giants 2

Ed Ott led off the 12th with a single off Tom Griffin, advanced to second on Dale Berra's sacrifice and scored on Bill Madlock's ground single up the middle as the Pirates posted their sixth victory of the season in their final turn at bat. Winner Enrique Romo worked out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the 11th. The Giants went ahead 2-1 in the seventh on Jack Clark's two-run homer but the Pirates tied it in the eighth on a walk, Dave Parker's single and Bill

Robinson's sacrifice fly.

Padres 2, Cardinals 1

Dave Winfield's double and a single by Willie Montanez produced the winning run in the seventh inning against Pete Vuckovich. Winner John Curtis went the first seven innings, allowing seven hits before giving way to Rollie Fingers.

Lakers To Learn Of Life Without Kareem

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Can the Los Angeles Lakers win without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar?

"He's our offense, he's our defense," said Lakers guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson. "He's the man we go to when we're in trouble."

But the Lakers won't have the 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar to go to tonight when they take on the Philadelphia 76ers in the sixth game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

Abdul-Jabbar is back in Los Angeles nursing the sprained left ankle he suffered in Wednesday night's 108-103 victory that gave Los Angeles a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven playoff finals. Postgame X-rays were negative and Abdul-Jabbar was supposed to accompany the team here, but when the Lakers' flight took off Thursday afternoon, it took off without Abdul-Jabbar.

"It is extremely doubtful that Kareem would be able to play," said Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Lakers' team physician, who reported the ankle had swollen and become stiff overnight. "By keeping him in Los Angeles and treating him here, he will be much better prepared to play on Sunday if that game is necessary."

But Kerlan said the odds of Abdul-Jabbar playing on Sunday are only 50-50 at this point.

A win tonight and the Lakers don't have to worry about Sunday — they'd be wearing the NBA crown for the first time since 1972. But winning without Abdul-Jabbar, a five-time most valuable player and the most dominating force in the game, won't be easy.

Especially since it's a must-win situation for the Sixers, who will have a noisy crowd of 18,276 at the Spectrum rooting them on.

"There's no tomorrow for us," said Philadelphia guard Henry Bibby. "Either we win or else. And we're not ready for anything else yet."

Los Angeles survived without Abdul-Jabbar for the final 3:58 of the third period Wednesday night, even extending its lead from two points to eight.

"But it's a completely different thing to be without him for 48 minutes instead of just four," observed Doug Collins, the Sixers' injured guard. "They need his scoring and his presence inside."

That was apparent in Game Five, when Abdul-Jabbar came back onto the court for the final period and scored 14 of his 40 points as the Lakers held off a Philadelphia rally. With the score tied and the game on the line, he scored a three-point play with 33 seconds left that proved decisive.

The injury to Abdul-Jabbar, coming after last week's suspension of forward Spencer Haywood, leaves Los Angeles with nine players in uniform tonight. And since Marty Byrnes, Butch Lee and Brad Holland hardly ever get off the bench, Coach Paul Westhead may use only six players against the Sixers.

Jim Chones, who played much of his career at center but has been the Lakers' starting power forward as well as backup pivotman this season, will open at center in place of Abdul-Jabbar. Mark Landsberger, a forward acquired from Chicago in midseason who is a tough rebounder but not a scoring threat, figures to start in Chones' forward position.

Westhead will also probably make more use of his "slim" lineup, with sixth man Michael Cooper at guard with Norm Nixon, and guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson moving to forward with Jamaal Wilkes.

The Lakers have outrebounded the Sixers 256-187 in this series, but without Abdul-Jabbar around, Philadelphia's "Gruesome Twosome" of 7-footer Caldwell Jones and 6-11 Darryl Dawkins figures to be more effective. The lane should also be open more often for the drives of Julius Erving, the Sixers' brilliant forward who has been double and triple-teamed throughout the series.

Abdul-Jabbar hurt his ankle in a strange way. He had just rolled across the lane and put in a short flip shot when he lost his balance and began to stumble. Philadelphia guard Lionel Hollins reached out to keep him from falling, but Abdul-Jabbar stepped on Hollins' foot and turned his ankle.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias once won 17 consecutive women's golf tournaments.

Big Value Drugs 19, Exchange 0

Big Value Drugs romped to a 19-0 victory over the Exchange in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

The victory boosted the Big Value record to 2-2, while Exchange fell to 2-2.

Sterling Edwards hurled a two-hitter at the Exchange, shutting them out for the day.

Big Value got all it needed in the first for two runs. Edwards led off with a home run, putting the game away. Mitch Phillips followed with a walk and moved up on two stolen bases. He scored on a wild pitch.

Big Value added six more in the second, two in the third, three in the fourth and six in the fifth. Edwards had another solo homer in the third.

Edwards led the hitting with five, while Phillips added two.

Kiwanis 18, Optimists 6

The Kiwanis handed the winless Optimists an 18-6 defeat yesterday in North State Little League play. The Kiwanis are now 3-1, while the Optimists are 0-4.

The Kiwanis struck first, getting a run in the top of the first. The Optimists, however, came back with five in their half of the inning, taking the lead, 5-1. The Kiwanis came back with three in the third, all on a homer by Robert Ehrmann, then added four more in the fourth to move ahead for good.

In the fourth, Scott Scharinger led off with a single and moved up on a wild pitch. With two away, Jason Galloway singled and stole second. Scott Davis doubled in both runners, then scored when William Smith doubled. Van Alston reached on a single, and an error let Smith single for an 8-5 lead.

The Kiwanis added one in the fifth and picked up nine more in the sixth, including a three-run homer by Smith. The other Optimist run came in the fourth.

Alston led the Kiwanis hitting with four, while Galloway,

Smith and Ehrmann each had three and Davis and Scharinger each had two. The Optimists got only two hits off Alston.

Simpson Saints 12, Bethel Bombers 6

The Simpson Saints rolled to a 12-6 Southern Pitt Little League victory over the Bethel Bombers yesterday.

Mark Hardee hurled the victory for the Saints, who are now 1-5 on the year. Anthony Harrison and Jeff Best led the Simpson hitting with two each. Bethel is now 0-6 on the year.

Chicod Hornets 5, Chicod 1

CHICOD — The Chicod Hornets downed Chicod, 5-1, in a Southern Pitt Little League game yesterday.

Rusty Dixon hurled the victory, while Butch Mills led the Hornets hitting with two. No other player had more than one hit for either team.

Both Chicod and the Hornets are now 4-2 on the year.

Genuine Risk Facing Stronger Field

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I definitely think it is a stronger field than the Derby," says trainer LeRoy Jolley in sizing up Saturday's Preakness which he will try to win with sensational filly Genuine Risk. "It shapes up as a tougher race than the Derby," agrees Riley Coter, trainer of Jaklin Klugman, who finished third when Genuine Risk became only the second filly to win the Kentucky Derby. "It's got tougher horses in it." "There are the two horses from the Derby (Genuine Risk and Jaklin Klugman," Jolley said Thursday, "and there is another who has shown he's at his very best — Colonel Moran, and another, Codex, who is coming off three bang-up races in California."

Genuine Risk is the early favorite, at 9-5. "This is a super filly," said Tommy Kelly, who trains the speedy Colonel Moran. "She won the Derby and she has a good shot at them all (the Triple Crown)."

Kelly's colt is listed at 3-1 behind Codex, 2-1, and ahead of Jaklin Klugman, 3-1. The other four 3-year-olds entered Thursday are outsiders who have never won a stakes. In fact, Bing has failed to win a race in eight career starts. The others are Samoyed, Knight Landing and Plucky Luck, a gelding who was made a supplemental nominee for $10,000.

If all eight go to the post at 5:40 p.m., EDT, the 105th Preakness will be worth $250,600, with $180,600 to the winner. Each starter will carry 126 pounds except Genuine Risk who gets a five-pound sex allowance. ABC will televise from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. Genuine Risk, owned by Mrs. Bert Firestone and ridden by Jacinto Vasquez, joined Regret (1915) as the only fillies to win the Derby. Her eighth victory in nine career would make her only the fifth filly and first since Nellie Morse in 1924 to win the Preakness. None has run in the race since Ciencia finished last in a six-horse field when Challedon won in 1939. Trainer Wayne Lukas thought he had entered Tartan Stable's Codex in the Kentucky Derby but was told in the winner's circle at the Santa Anita Derby that he hadn't. He was nominated to the Preakness and Belmont Stakes and it was decided the Tuesday after the Derby to send him here. Codex, who will be ridden by Angel Cordero Jr., didn't arrive at Pimlico until Tuesday and he hasn't raced since April 13 when he made the Hollywood Derby his third straight victory.

Williamston, which ends the season at 7-7 in the Northeastern Conference and 8-8 overall, fell behind 1-0 after the first inning but quickly rallied with five in the second and two in the third to go up, 7-1. The Tigers then scored three times in the fourth and once more in the fifth before the game was called because of the 10-run rule. Theresa Duffy led the Tigers at the plate with three hits. Betty Davis, Caroline Hudgins, Sherrie Singleton and Ginger Edwards all had two hits for the Tigers. One of Davis' hits was a home run. Sneva's Backup Driver Relieved

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — If Tom Sneva can just keep his car together a few more days, Vern Schuppan figures he'll have his third start in the Indianapolis 500.

"Fortunately for me, they got another car and put Tom in it," said Schuppan, who turned a lap at nearly 188 mph in practice Thursday, fast enough to make the 33-car starting field. "But if he has another accident, I'll probably lose my ride again."

After Sneva wrecked his Phoenix racer beyond repair Wednesday, one possibility was that he might take over the backup car originally assigned to Schuppan, his teammate. But it appears Sneva will get the third entry by the Jerry O'Connell racing team and Schuppan, to his relief, will keep his ride.

"When I heard he crashed, I didn't know whether I had a ride or not," said Schuppan, a 37-year-old Australian who was Indy rookie-of-the-year in 1976.

"I just hoped maybe he had knocked a wheel off or something not too severe. Then, when I heard it was bad, I first hoped he wasn't hurt, but then I thought I had lost my car...because that was made clear when I took the ride that it was Tom's backup. "Then, it was a nice bonus when they said I could keep it."

Sneva, the track record-holder at more than 202 mph in qualifications two years ago, qualified at 185.290 mph for a fifth-row start in the May 25 race. Regardless of whether he takes over Schuppan's car or the third entry, he will have to start the race in the 33rd position.

Schuppan, who still must qualify on Saturday or Sunday, can start as high as 20th and is a cinch to make the field if he approaches Thursday's practice speed.

"I had a lap at 187.9. That's a sniff off 188. I'm really thrilled," said Schuppan, who wound up 21st last year.

"I'd say 180 will make the race," he said. "This car isn't one of the quickest in the straightaway, but we can work with it and I think we can get it up to 190 — not that it's going to be necessary, but that it's a possibility."

Schuppan's quick lap was one of the fastest speeds during Thursday's practice session, two days before the final weekend of qualifications to fill 14 of the 33 spots.

Rookie Gordon Smiley had a hot lap at 187.891, and rookie Tim Richmond, who had a lap over 193 mph last week, came back for the first time since crashing on Saturday and was clocked at 186.877.

Johnny Parsons nearly duplicated the speed that earned him a third-row start in last Saturday's qualifications with 187.071. His qualification speed was 187.412. Three-time winner Al Unser, who qualified on the outside of the third row at 186.442 mph, had a lap at 186.104.

Rookie driver Phil Calivan became the 11th driver to bang the wall in the 13 days the track has been open. The 35-year-old native of Sicily, who now lives in Hermosa Beach, Calif., went high going into the third turn, spun once and slid 570 feet into the wall. Caliva was checked out at the Speedway infield hospital and released. The car sustained moderate damage.

Williamston, which ends the season at 7-7 in the Northeastern Conference and 8-8 overall, fell behind 1-0 after the first inning but quickly rallied with five in the second and two in the third to go up, 7-1.

The Tigers then scored three times in the fourth and once more in the fifth before the game was called because of the 10-run rule. Theresa Duffy led the Tigers at the plate with three hits. Betty Davis, Caroline Hudgins, Sherrie Singleton and Ginger Edwards all had two hits for the Tigers. One of Davis' hits was a home run. Flyers Take 8-3 Victory, Tie NHL Series

Flyers Score

Flyers' Bobbie Clark (16) flips the puck between the legs of New York Islanders' Bob Lorimer (4) and past fallen Islanders' goalie Bill Smith (31) to score the Flyers' first goal Thursday night during NHL Stanley Cup playoff action in Philadelphia. (A P Laser photo)

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For more than one and a half games, the National Hockey League championship series sat smoldering like a forgotten stew on a kitchen stove. The New York Islanders and Philadelphia Flyers — two notably physical teams — had been very nice to each other in New York's series-opening overtime victory. Then it boiled over.

It may have been because, by the time the ugliness started at 12:54 of the second period, the Flyers already led 5-2 on the way to a series-tying 8-3 triumph Thursday night. It may have been because, "Possibly we took everything too light. We weren't hungry enough," as Islanders Coach Al Arbour put it.

Whatever the real cause and effect, be it the loss they suffered or the punishment they took, the New York dressing room had all the frustrated fury of a rush-hour traffic jam.

"Maybe the referees were intimidated in this building, but running after a guy after he passes the puck, like the Flyers do, is ridiculous," said goalie Bill Smith, ineffective the two periods he played before being replaced by Glenn Resch. "If they keep doing it, our guys are going to retaliate. They are going to have to put their sticks up — hold their sticks up to protect themselves in the next game. Otherwise, I'm afraid someone will get hurt."

Arbour, who put an abrupt end to his post-game remarks by walking away from his interviewers, later charged into the dressing room and bellowed an unprintable characterization of the winners. He added, "All they (the Flyers) do is wield their sticks."

But that, as mentioned earlier, came after Philadelphia had taken command on the first of three Paul Holmgren goals and the first of three Bobby Clarke assists that made the veteran center only the 15th player in Stanley Cup history to reach the 100-point playoff plateau.

"We had some good scoring chances and we put it in. They had some good scoring chances and did not score," said Flyers Coach Pat Quinn, noting that Butch Goring — who opened the scoring at 3:23 — hit the

"We have to be very guarded about our own personal impressions of what happened out there," Quinn said. "We have to be very careful of not allowing the game to change our common sense about what really happened on the ice."

What happened was Philadelphia began to force the play, put pressure on the New York defense and rushed the Islanders into plays they did not want to make — aspects missing from the Flyers' execution in the opener. They got three goals from their power play (two by Holmgren) and killed all but two of their eight manpower disadvantages.

"We couldn't go into their building two games down," Holmgren said. "It was a must win."

Because Philadelphia got its "must win," this best-of-seven series heads to Uniondale, N.Y. tied 1-1 in games.

Highlights of the victory were Bill Barber's game-winning goal at 1:06 of the second period — the 40th tally of his playoff career and one of eight scoring points recorded by his line with Clarke, who also scored a goal, and Reggie Leach. Also spicing the rout was the Philadelphia goal total, their most ever in postseason play and equal to the most the Islanders have given up in the playoff game (the New York Rangers scored eight against them on April 10, 1975).

All that, however, shared the attention with the rough stuff that started in earnest when Philadelphia's Brian Propp nearly beheaded defenseman Bob Lorimer with his stick at 12:54 of the second period. Just 1:18 later, Barber — chasing the puck behind the net — was struck in the chest by Smith's ubiquitous stick. Barber slashed back in retaliation, then New York defenseman Gord Lane slashed Barber.

In the third, Smith — by now relegated to the bench to watch

Resch give up a goal to Tom Gorence on the first shot he faced — got into a row with Holmgren. With Resch in goal, Smith was given the walkie-talkie that funnels information from assistant coach Bill MacMillan to Arbour on the bench. Holmgren later charged Smith was punching at him with the walkie-talkie firmly in his grasp.

"I know I'm not the cleanest player in the NHL," admitted Smith, displaying a firm grasp of the obvious.

Later, New York's Duane Sutter and the Flyers' Mel Bridgman fought and later still, Philadelphia's Behn Wilson pummeled the Islanders' Garry Howatt — ostensibly for a cross-check Howatt dealt Peeters.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias once pitched for the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Killer Schoolgirl Finally Freed

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Pretty, pixie-like Mary Bell was a 10-year-old schoolgirl when she was charged with strangling two toddlers in her hometown of Newcastle-on-Tyne in northeastern England.

Tried as an adult at age 11 and convicted of manslaughter, she spent part of her childhood, all of her adolescence and her first years of womanhood behind bars, in a prison system ill-prepared to deal with a child inmate.

But on Wednesday, the now 22-year-old Mary Bell was released on probation. At question is how much she has changed in 11 years.

"She has in fact become a test case for the system," said Gitta Sereny, a Sunday Times reporter and author of "The Case of Mary Bell."

"Will the treatment she received enable her to lead a normal life? This is, indeed, what Mary Bell will have to teach us: whether it is possible and right to nurture a human being into adulthood under such conditions."

A normal life may be hard to come by for Mary Bell. She became notorious when she went on trial in 1968, and relatives of her young victims don't want her back in their town.

The body of 4-year-old Martin Brown was found May 25, 1968. That of 3-year-old Brian Howe was found two months later. Both had been strangled. Mary and another girl were charged with murder.

At her trial, during which she admitted killing one boy by accident but denied murdering the other, she was asked if she knew what would happen if a child's throat were squeezed.

"Yes, he would die," Mary replied calmly. "I know because I watched, 'The Saint' (a popular television show)."

The trial lasted nine days. On Dec. 17, 1968, Mary was cleared of murder charges but convicted of manslaughter. The other girl was acquitted.

Detaining her "indefinitely" — up to life in prison — Justice Sir Ralph Cusack said Mary had killed the boys "solely for the pleasure and excitement of murder. This girl is dangerous, and therefore steps must be taken to protect other people."

Psychiatrists at the trial described Mary as "a psychopath" with an "unsocialized, manipulative personality." But British officials made the controversial decision to place her in a penal institution rather than a mental hospital.

Authorities quickly realized, however, they had no suitable place to confine a young girl. She went first to Red Bank Boys' Institution, where from February 1969 to November 1973 she lived in a specially created "girls' unit" including a flower-filled private room. She was schooled in the company of 22 teen-age boys.

At the age of 16½, Mary was remanded to Styal Women's Prison with inmates twice her age.

"I can't understand why they moved me to a place like this," Mary wrote to her mother in 1973. "They say they are adjusting me to living with women but THESE type of women surely can't be a good influence upon anyone."

"They have to realize one day that I'm human, that I'm sorry and that living with my own damned conscience is enough punishment for me."

In the early 1970s, Mary underwent puberty, but her budding maturity only made her more depressed at how much she was missing. She wrote a poem, part of which reads, "No one will ever know the pain, the lonely days ... Just dying every second, wasting my life away."

Despite making "considerable progress" and getting transferred in June 1977 to Moor Court, an "open prison" where she could sunbathe, watch TV and earn money from light assembly line work, she ran away.

She was free for 50 hours, most of which she spent with a man she met hitchhiking. According to her mother, Betty Bell, the two got drunk together at a pub and spent the weekend in a hotel.

"She enjoyed herself, and I'm glad," Mrs. Bell was quoted as saying in an interview. "She hadn't had much to enjoy for the past nine years."

Mary asked the Home Office, which manages prisoners and probation, to parole her despite the escape. "I am shut away and I have never experienced any life. ... I have never been anywhere or done anything. I decided I wanted to make a break for it even if it was only for a few hours. ... I just wanted to be free."

A year ago, Mary was transferred to Askham Grange, an open prison set amid rose beds, wide lawns and a reed-edged lake. In preparation for parole, she served meals in a local cafe where her employers knew who she was, but workmates knew her only as "Lisa."

Declare SAT Not Accurate

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — The Scholastic Aptitude Tests — a crucial hurdle for most students who want to go to college — aren't really aptitude tests, according to two researchers.

They say high school grades are better for predicting how well a student will do in college.

Dr. Warner V. Slack and Dr. Douglas Porter, experts in computer medicine at Boston's Beth Israel Hospital, said that SATs measure achievement, not intellectual potential, and that the scores can be improved by coaching.

Their opinions are given in the current issue of Harvard Educational Review, and they based their conclusions on available data on the tests, which are administered by the Educational Testing Service (ETS) of Princeton, N.J.

The researchers obtained the data from ETS after filing a freedom of information suit. That followed release of a study by the Federal Trade Commission's Boston office which concluded SAT scores could be improved by coaching.

"We are hoping that the SAT will not be used when it is stripped of its present aura of aptitude and is regarded as an achievement test," The Boston Globe quoted Sack as saying on Thursday.

"We would like to see colleges follow the lead taken by Bowdoin College and the University of Wisconsin and drop the requirement that applicants take the SATs."

Mary Churchill, spokeswoman for ETS, said the findings reported in the review did not turn up anything new. "They still haven't demonstrated anything that shows that coaching works," the Globe quoted her as saying.

In the article, Slack and Porter wrote, "Unfortunately the members of college admissions committees that use SAT scores are unlikely to have the time or the resources to subject the test to critical analysis."

Furthermore, beleaguered admissions officers are understandably ready to use any measure that might help them with the time-consuming and difficult job of selecting and rejecting applicants."

Grace Slick Flying Solo

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Grace Slick, after 15 years as the "brazen, self-destructive diva" of hard rock, is now slim, sober and 40. And, no longer vocalist for Jefferson Airplane, renamed Jefferson Starship, she has a solo album called "Dreams" on RCA.

It's No. 41 and climbing on the best-selling chart of April 26.

She isn't going to tour until after her second solo album comes out, so she'll have plenty of non-Starship songs to sing on stage. She'll spend the summer writing songs, record next fall and the next solo LP should be issued next January.

Miss Slick may sing "White Rabbit" and "Somebody to Love" when she does live shows, because she likes them. Although they were the Airplane's first two hits, she wrote them in the Great Society, the band she was in earlier, with her first husband, Jerry Slick, and his brother, Darby.

Miss Slick isn't drinking now. The San Francisco rock-band scene may have been known for its dopers but it was alcohol that got her down, she says. "I'm aggressive to begin with. Alcohol sends that into the ceiling like dynamite."

"I sort of liked it. I could blame anything I did or said on it. 'Oh, well, I was loaded.' It got like a joke. People would say, 'You sure were funny' or 'You were obnoxious.'"

"If it gets to be expensive paying traffic tickets and spending nights in jail, it's not fun any more. And I had appalling hangovers. You have to plan your life so you can erase all these days spending time with these gigantic hangovers. It's a waste of time."

"I made the decision to stop drinking about four years ago. I'd be sober in long chunks of time. The longer I'm sober the more I like it. You miss too much the other way."

In 1976, she married a second time, the Starship's lighting director, Skip Johnson, now 28. He's now her manager.

Her daughter, China, now 9, has a woman who has taken care of her since birth, who lives in the home of China's father, Paul Kantner of Jefferson Starship. On alternate weeks, when China is with her mother, her mother takes care of her.

Miss Slick doesn't even have a cleaning woman. She says if she hired one, she'd clean the house before the woman got there; she wouldn't want her to know the place had been messy.

"China looks exactly the same as I did at her age," Miss Slick says. "But she isn't as introverted as I was. I always preferred it if it was quiet. She likes to have a lot of people around and a lot of stuff going on and to do things fast. She's more like her father. He can live with 15 people in the room."

"I like my own room and very quiet. I still do; I shut things off."

Professionally, Miss Slick quit the Starship after a tour of Germany in 1968 that generally was called disastrous.

"It was a relief for a while," she says. Asked why she didn't make a solo album sooner, she says, "I would have loved to but I was afraid at the time. My head wasn't on straight enough to make large decisions. What I did was just pretend I was going to be a housewife for five months. That worked about as well as if I'd pretended to be a bank teller."

In 1973 Miss Slick made "Manhole," which she doesn't think of as a real solo album since members of Jefferson Airplane played on it. Trying a solo album only occurred to her one other time, she says.

"In 1970, I think, I went to Los Angeles with Spencer Dryden, then the drummer, and talked with an executive at Elektra. The idea of going down there and wearing fancy clothes and a lot of makeup and being in all that competition scared me. I came back and stayed with the group. I dressed as my usual slob self.

"My idea of having a solo act at this time was nothing more than a star trip. I didn't have anything in my mind how I wanted the music to go. It was, 'Let's go down and be a star.' It was not a musical decision."

After she left Jefferson Starship, Miss Slick says, "They got a new singer and new drummer. The drummer had an accident that put him in traction a long time. That shot them up with new blood. Our new project shot us up. It needed to be done, I think. That was the only way."

Her new album, Miss Slick says, "is not an acceptance or rejection of anything. It is its own statement of what I'm doing right now. It doesn't say, here's what we're doing from now on."

"I always have been interested in and loved the sound of acoustic instruments as well as loud, blasting rock 'n' roll. This album is the beginning of my attempt to marry those. Pink Floyd is a beautiful example of the sort of thing, acoustic instruments and rock instruments together."

"I haven't stopped doing hard rock. Maybe the next album or the one after that will be nothing but flat-out volume. Maybe it'll be nothing but flutes."

Miss Slick says she can sing low, which is all right for records, but doesn't carry live. She can sing high loud but can't hit a high note softly. "Rock 'n' roll is perfect for this instrument."

A biography, "Grace Slick," by Barbara Rowes has just been published. "It is her right to put it down any way she wants to," Miss Slick says.

Australia challenged strongly for the 1979 world team championship, failing to qualify only in the last round of the preliminaries. Here's an example of the skill of one of the team's stars, Dick Cummings.

West's no trump is known in the trade as the "Comic No Trump." It is either a weak hand with a long suit, or a normal one no trump overall — 16-18 points. East's two clubs asked his partner to describe his no trump, and two spades showed a weak hand with spades. The rest of the auction was natural.

West led the queen of spades — a natural choice, though as the cards lie, the other queen would have defeated the contract. Declarer won the ace and led a trump to the nine, jack and queen. East returned a spade and declarer ruffed. After

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alas, ABC's new passion for the television freak show (which wrought "That's Incredible" and the upcoming series, "Those Amazing Animals") extends even to the deep blue sea.

Sunday night, ABC offers a two-hour special called "Mysteries of the Sea," about the "breathtaking adventures and death-defying challenges" of the deep. Sort of "That's Incredible Goes to the Beach."

Actually, the subjects are rather interesting, if somewhat standard (great white sharks, treasure hunts and such), but the producers were afraid to leave well enough alone. Perhaps fearing their program would come off as educational (heaven forbid!), pains were taken to accentuate the weird and dangerous.

The same philosophy is what lowers "That's Incredible" from the level of human interest to the realm of the campy sideshow.

One of the "Mysteries" segments, for example, deals with a diving expedition to the North Pole. National Geographic Editor Gilbert Grosvenor and Dr. Joe MacInnis, an arctic diving expert, cut through seven feet of polar ice to dive into the frigid waters below.

They may have some reasonably sane purpose for doing this, but you'd never know it. William Holden's narration is focused on the dangers involved. "Trapped, the divers would be entombed beneath the frozen surface of the Arctic Ocean," Holden says, and, indeed, you are positive that you'd never want to be trapped "in this tomb of intense freezing darkness."

There is a piece on an expedition whose mission was to "tag" a great white shark with a radio transmitter and learn his living habits. I think that was the mission, anyway, but it was difficult to ferret out among all the scary talk.

Mr. Holden reminded us that great whites are ugly and mean, that their nasty-looking teeth are always growing "to replace those wrenched out by the great white's ferocious feeding habits," which are thoroughly demonstrated.

Eventually, after much teasing of the sharks for good camera shots, the expedition gets around to the matter of trying to spear the transmitter into his side.

"The attempt fails," Holden tells us. Naturally. The fellow now "has" to get into one of those shark cages, for a better vantage point. Meanwhile, "a huge shark, driven to frenzy by the scent, ravenously devours the bait."

I don't remember if they ever actually speared one of the sharks, but I do remember seeing a long, ugly

Kennedy And Bush Calling For Debates But Prospects Dim

By DAVID ESPO

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — To Vice President Walter Mondale, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's latest challenge for a campaign debate — that classic American political confrontation — amounts to "desperation" politics from a loser.

To a top Kennedy aide, it was a "bold" move in which the Massachusetts senator offered to withdraw from the race for the Democratic presidential nomination if President Carter agrees to a campaign debate and then whips him in the last big round of primaries June 3.

By whatever description, though, it doesn't appear that the senator will get his debate, a prospect which he hints could lead to a floor fight this summer at the Democratic national convention.

Kennedy was not alone in calling Thursday for a debate. Republican George Bush also wants to face his party's frontrunner, Ronald Reagan, in public debate before the voters. It remains to be seen whether he'll get the chance.

Kennedy and Mondale both campaigned Thursday in California. The Massachusetts senator then flew to Oregon where he arranged to stump today for votes in the state's primary next week.

"Why should the sitting president debate a losing candidate in his own party," Mondale said in response to Kennedy's new challenge.

"We will debate the Republican nominee, but not once in 200 years has a president debated a member of his own party and I think that it would be preposterous," he said.

Mondale also put in a plea for party unity, saying it is time that Democrats "stop fighting ourselves and start fighting" against the probable Republican nominee, Ronald Reagan.

But Kennedy, too, discussed unity, saying that if President Carter "is as concerned as he claims for party unity, let him debate the issues before the primaries end."

Kennedy is far behind in national convention delegates, 1,365 to 770, and most observers believe the president will go over the 1,666 delegates he needs for the nomination on June 3. Eight states, including California, Ohio and New Jersey, hold primaries that day, electing 696 delegates.

In his speech to the Los Angeles Press Club, Kennedy laid out his differences with Carter's economic, energy and foreign policies, and declared, "It is the quality of... lives, not the quantity of delegates, that we should be counting in this campaign."

A debate, Kennedy said, would make the final day of the primary season "the truest test" of the campaign. If there is a debate and Carter then gets the most votes in the eight primary states on June 3, "then I will withdraw," he said. "If I prevail, I will continue in this race, and I expect to win the nomination."

Kennedy coupled his offer with a veiled threat to lead a floor fight at the party convention is turned down.

"I know that if a debate is not held in the primaries, it will be held at the convention," he said.

"I could not prevent this if I wished to," he said to the laughter and applause of his audience.

Bush, in Los Angeles, called for "a public forum to discuss the issues that interest California Republicans" before the state's GOP primary June 3. He said he could win in California "by continuing to spell out the issues for Republican voters in the days ahead."

A spokesman for Reagan, a former California governor, said the frontrunner hadn't learned of Bush's challenge and therefore there would be no immediate response from the Reagan camp.

Bush and Reagan have debated several times before in the campaign, and the League of Women Voters had scheduled a debate before the California primary but canceled it as unnecessary. Kennedy has challenged Carter to debate throughout the campaign, but the two have never faced each other.

Debates have more than once changed the course of American politics. Abraham Lincoln first gained national attention in the Lincoln-Douglas Debates of 1858. Lincoln was running for the Senate, and though he lost to Stephen A. Douglas, his performance laid the groundwork for his running for president.

In recent times, the most famous debates were the televised confrontations in 1960 between Edward Kennedy's older brother, John F. Kennedy, and Richard M. Nixon, watched by an estimated 80 million Americans.

Kennedy had prepared carefully for the debates and had rested, while Nixon came directly from the campaign trail and came off looking tired. The debates gave Nixon his "five-o'clock-shadow" image and, many feel, helped give Kennedy the presidency.

Savings & Loan Prexy Fed Up With Roller Coaster

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

KINGMAN, Kan. (AP) — Jack Paul, who runs the savings and loan in this small farm community, boarded an economic roller coaster a year ago. And now, after a dizzying ride, he's ready to get off.

"I come in every morning and it's kinda like Disneyland — I wonder what's going to happen next," says Paul, president of the Kingman Savings and Loan Association in this south-central Kansas town of 4,000 people.

The past year has been a tumultuous time for the savings and loan business. Interest rates shot up, then down. And for the first time in history savers started withdrawing more than they were putting into their local S&Ls.

Time was when Paul could shuffle through the papers in his tiny office on this town's main street, bring out his pen and outline the coming year with confidence. Now, he says, "I can't even guess what will happen next week."

With higher interest rates in 1979 and early 1980 came a sudden shift in savings. Large numbers of savers took their money out of low-yield passbook accounts and ran for higher-yield money market certificates. Some took their money out of savings just to pay the monthly bills.

Home mortgage rates generally followed the spiraling prime lending rate, peaking in the 16 percent to 18 percent range in late March. Then the economic slowdown, predicted for months, took hold in April and May, puncturing high interest rates on mortgages.

Last week the nation's largest savings institution, Home Savings and Loan Association of Los Angeles, slashed its mortgage rate more than 4 percentage points, to 12½ percent.

This week Kingman Savings and Loan cut its mortgage rate from 15 percent to 13½ percent in the face of sinking demand for home loans and the perilous state of the new home construction business.

"I really don't think it's going to make any immediate difference (in borrowing); it takes time to build up the momentum again," Paul says. "But the housing industry here and everywhere is in a bind, and if we can get ourselves in a position to help we want to do that."

Mortgage rates rose through March when S&Ls found themselves paying more for the saver's dollar. The saver, as a result, began to change his savings habits. Investment in six-month certificates of deposit, yielding 14 percent and higher in March, grew by a record $17 billion that month. However, Americans withdrew $940 million more than they put into S&Ls in March, much of it for day-to-day living expenses pressed upward by inflation.

This week the interest rate paid on money market certificates fell to about 9 percent, and as certificates come up for renewal savers nationwide are looking for other places to put their money. It hasn't happened in Kingman yet, but Paul fears it will.

"The average savings customer is so much more sophisticated today than even a year ago," he says. "The old rules of the game don't apply anymore. We don't know what they're going to do when that certificate comes up for renewal."

Those decisions could significantly affect the fortunes of the local savings and loan. More than a third of the Kingman S&L's $23 million in deposits are in money market certificates today, triple what it was a year ago.

Meanwhile, demand for home loans has fallen. Paul says he makes fewer than two loans a week. And unless farm prices in this area improve soon, the local S&L faces a tough road.

"We had a good wheat crop last year and cattle prices were good so people put their money in savings," Paul says. "But this year both markets are bad. I've been through four of these financial crunches and this looks like it'll be the worst."

Peru Seeking Civilian Rule, Better Times

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — This is the year of brown sugar in place of white, of waiting in line at the supermarket to buy rice, of high inflation and no work.

It is a time when armored personnel carriers are street-corner fixtures and strikes and street demonstrations are commonplace.

In a few days, the people of Peru will seek better times by electing a civilian government to replace 12 years of rule by the Revolutionary Government of the Armed Forces.

For most Peruvians who go to the first general elections in 17 years on Sunday, it will be their first opportunity to vote or choose their own government.

They will elect a president, two vice presidents, 80 senators and 180 representatives — all to serve five-year terms.

Inauguration day has been set for July 18.

When Peru completes the return to democracy, it will make the five-nation Andean Group common market a new bastion of civilian government in South America, which has long been dominated by generals.

Summer Positions Offered

WILLIAMSTON — Area young people who are between the ages of 14 and 21 and who can qualify as being economically disadvantaged — and who are residents of Martin, Pitt and Beaufort Counties may be able to get employment this summer through the Martin County Community Action CETA 1980 Summer Youth Employment Program.

Enrollees (or workers) will be working in county and town offices, in schools, public works and other non-profit agencies through funds supplied by CETA. The jobs vary from clerical work to outdoor labor in a number of areas.

Remedial and vocational education courses are an integral part of the program. Classes will be taught at Rose High School in Greenville and at the community colleges in Martin and Pitt Counties.

Applications for these summer jobs can be procured from any high school in the three county area or from any of the three following locations: Pitt County Manpower Office, Masonic Lodge, Fifth Street, Greenville (phone 758-3575); Beaufort County Manpower Office, 110 Oakland Building, Market Street, Washington, phone 946-0016; or Martin County Community Action, Inc., Ray Street, Williamston, phone 792-7111.

HOMECOMING
Carson Memorial Pentecostal Holiness Church will have homecoming Sunday with the Rev. Bobby Hunt as guest speaker.

Dinner will be served at 1 p.m. Singing afterwards will be rendered by the Nelms Family of Rocky Mount. The pastor, the Rev. Bobby Howard, invites the public.

Ecuador and Bolivia elected civilian governments last year and the common market's other members, Venezuela and Colombia, have been governed by civilians for years.

Peru's military leaders appear as anxious to return to the barracks as the people are to see them go.

There has been no serious objection from within military ranks to the desire of Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez, a moderate president who seized power from leftist dictator Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado in 1975, to bring the military revolution to a close.

The generals credit themselves with achieving the reforms necessary to end nearly 400 years of near-feudalism and to bring Peru into the 20th century.

They nationalized the country's natural resources, seized foreign companies, established worker participation in companies and cooperatives, curtailed freedom of the press by expropriating the major newspapers and TV stations and distributed the haciendas of the rich among the landless poor.

But the reforms were accompanied by the worst economic crisis in half a century, brought about by reduced agricultural production, heavy borrowing to finance public works and major arms purchases and a depressed industrial sector.

Strict austerity measures in the last year and a half have kept the country out of bankruptcy, but brought hard times for the people.

Many basic foodstuffs, such as rice, sugar, flour, meat and milk, must be imported and are scarce. Inflation averaging nearly 70 percent in the last three years has swallowed the buying power of paychecks for those fortunate enough to have a job.

The Labor Ministry estimates 60 percent of the labor force is either unemployed or under-employed. The lack of jobs forces computer scientists to drive taxis and taxi drivers to shine shoes.

There are 15 party tickets for this year's election, but a vigorous campaign on TV, in the newspapers and at rallies around the country has narrowed the presidential candidates down to three front-runners:

—Fernando Belaunde Terry, 67, an architect who studied and lived in the United States for many years and who was the country's last constitutionally elected president. A Belaunde victory would mean the soldiers would turn over the government to the same man they kicked out of the presidential palace 12 years earlier.

Belaunde is the founder of Accion Popular, a centrist party with strong support in Lima, the south of Peru and the jungle. He has promised to create a million jobs by low-cost public work projects, such as constructing highways with picks and shovels.

—Armando Villanueva, 64, a professional politician who heads the powerful American Popular Revolutionary Alliance, the oldest and best organized party in the country. The party has socialist, non-Marxist principles and is considered center-left in the style of Europe's Social Democrats.

—Luis Bedoya, 61-year-old chief of the Popular Christian Party, which broke off from the Christian Democrats in 1966. Bedoya is a corporate lawyer and a political conservative who has the support of the industrialists and businessmen.

The opinion polls have shown Villanueva and Belaunde in the lead at different times during the campaign with Bedoya in third place.

None of the candidates is expected to get the 36 percent of the popular vote required for election, which means the election would be thrown into Congress on July 20 for it to choose between the top two candidates.
