

City Services Belt Tightens

Expected recession, inflation and the city's rapid growth are making it more and more difficult to live up to Greenville's past reputation for providing a more than adequate level of sanitation services for local households and businesses, according to City Manager Ed Wyatt.

The city manager said the Public Works Department here, which includes the Sanitation Division, is currently spending a lot of time trying to come up with an acceptable budget which will maintain the level of services Greenville citizens have come to expect.

City administration has emphasized that this is the year of the "hold the line budget," it was pointed out, and Mayo Allen, director of Public Works, said that he and others in the department are committed to that goal.

Allen reported that labor expense is the major line item in the Sanitation Division's budget, and rising labor costs have forced the department to learn to get the job done with fewer people.

The director expressed concern about the fact that there is a possibility that the new city budget, which is now being prepared for City Council consideration, will probably not allocate funds for new garbage trucks. He said, however, that living within that reality may depend on how good the Public Works Garage functions.

According to Allen, the city has in service some garbage trucks which were purchased in 1969. Keeping those older trucks in service and providing preventive maintenance for all Sanitation Department vehicles is a line budget expense of $65,000 for the new fiscal year, he explained, or some $10,000 less than the current budget.

The spokesman said that while budget allocations for the new fiscal year may reflect a "hold the line" policy, the amount of garbage and trash to be picked up and the number of containers involved are not expected to show anything but an increase.

Commenting on another area of Public Works, Allen noted, "The Street Division was fortunate to have CETA employees to assist in the maintenance work for the past couple of years. CETA is now being cut out. This will result in a shortage of labor in street maintenance, but through good management and productivity improvements, the...division will assume more responsibility and get the job done in our upcoming fiscal year."

According to Allen, a recently developed ten-year plan for resurfacing city streets will result in a line item request of approximately $95,000 in 1980-81 to implement a five-miles-per-year resurfacing schedule, which the city's Engineering and Public Works Departments hope to follow.

He said that the Engineering Department's latest survey of resurfacing needs and priorities has been issued and the first contracts under the plan will be let and resurfacing begun in the next month or two.

The Street Division crews are responsible for street maintenance on some 125 miles of city streets, Allen mentioned. The city resurfaced some five miles of city maintained streets in fiscal year 1978-79, he said, and despite a limited budget, the director said he is still hopeful that five more miles will be funded in the upcoming budget.

Threatens Carter Trip

Rain Dampens Search For Mt. St. Helens Survivors

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A chance of rain dampened the prospects for a search for survivors of the Mount St. Helens volcano today and threatened to ground President Carter's plans for a helicopter tour of the mountain.

But rain was welcome in the communities to the east that have been nearly shut down as ash from the volcano lay down a gritty blanket up to seven inches deep.

Officials in eastern Washington extended emergency orders to prevent new health hazards from the material spewed out in the blast that killed 14 people, laid waste to thousands of acres of pristine forest and sent tons of mud and debris slithering down into nearby rivers.

The missing list from Sunday's eruption — an explosion estimated at 2,500 times as powerful as the World War II atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Japan — stood at 90 today.

Gray rainclouds hung over the mountain as Carter arrived Wednesday night to assess the devastation. The president has declared Washington state a major disaster area.

Carter told reporters he had come to express "my admiration for the courage and for the calmness that the people have shown in the face of one of the most devastating natural explosions our nation has ever known."

But state officials told him they needed money. Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., whose district includes the volcano, said the president was told that cleanup of ash-laden cities in eastern Washington could cost between $150 million and $200 million.

As poor weather hampered helicopter searches Wednesday, the mountain was quiet. Scientists, however, worried that cascading mud could raise the bed of the nearby Cowlitz River, resulting in flooding, and kept watch on a giant mud logjam at the top of the Toutle River that was holding back the waters of Spirit Lake.

Meanwhile, states of emergency in several eastern Washington counties hard hit by the volcano's ash fallout were extended for health reasons.

Ron Edgar, a chemist with the Spokane Air Pollution Control Authority, said the ash — which shut down businesses and schools and stranded some 5,000 travelers — was similar to the substances that cause lung ailments in miners and stonemasons. Officials said air particulate levels here, normally 80 micrograms per cubic meter, were measured at 11,000 micrograms Wednesday.

TURBOPROP PURCHASED...Wheeler Airlines, which offers commuter service to Greenville, has added a 40-passenger F-27 prop-jet to its fleet to serve the Newport News, Va. to New York City market. A second F-27 will be purchased in the fall by Wheeler to serve North Carolina commuter traffic. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Wheeler Airlines Shows Off New 40-Passenger Aircraft

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The president of Raleigh-Durham Airport-based Wheeler Airlines personally flew his company's newest aircraft addition into Greenville on Wednesday to offer a preview of the expanded commuter service that could soon be available here.

Warren Wheeler, who introduced commuter airline service to Greenville in 1973, was at the controls when the Fairchild F-27 turboprop airliner touched down at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Wheeler, who had been at headquarters at Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority over hanger facilities for the prop-jet, told newsmen that the 40-passenger aircraft will be based in Newport News, Va. where it will provide commuter service between that city and La Guardia Airport in New York City.

The airline president explained that his company operations will continue to be headquartered at Raleigh-Durham and offer commuter service as before to Raleigh, Greenville, Charlotte and Asheville. In addition, connections with the Newport News flight will be available the first of June, including 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. flights out of Greenville for Virginia on 15-passenger and nine-passenger Wheeler aircraft.

Wheeler revealed that plans are being made to add a second F-27 to the fleet in the fall and if arrangements can be made, three flights a day through North Carolina service areas will be initiated and at least one flight per day through Greenville is projected.

He explained that the recently-purchased F-27 is now undergoing "proving runs" to meet Federal Aviation Administration requirements and after those flights are completed the aircraft will begin the Newport News-New York service. Wheeler said that a smaller plane is already handling service for the new market while arrangements are being made for the turboprop.

Local airport manager Jim Turcotte said Wednesday that expanded terminal space is sorely needed in order to handle growing air service demands in the area and to be able to provide adequate service for the new Wheeler venture. Turcotte mentioned that 50 percent state funding for an addition of approximately 4,500 square feet to the present terminal has been promised, with county and city participation for the remaining 50 percent being requested.

The airport manager said that if terminal facilities are not expanded, it will be difficult to handle the 40-passenger airline service planned by Wheeler. If Wheeler has to bypass Greenville, he said, progress made at the airport since commuter service was initiated could be hindered.

Tide Of Refugees From Cuba May Be Ebbing

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — The wave of Cuban refugees arriving on the "Freedom Flotilla" appears to be ebbing, and officials believe the number of boats at Cuba's port of Mariel finally is dwindling.

Only 28 boats with 1,150 passengers arrived here Wednesday, and officials believe there may be only 500 boats in Cuba.

A Havana radio broadcast, monitored in Miami, with different but still dwindling figures, reported there were 697 American-based boats at Mariel as of late Tuesday.

Nearly 68,000 Cuban refugees have arrived here in the 33 days of the boatlift.

Despite a string of Coast

Guard cutters blockading the Straits of Florida to stop boats trying to leave for Cuba, four small boats slipped through on Tuesday while cutters were busy on rescue missions, Dennis said. Radio Havana reported that 10 boats slipped through.

Two Cuban-American representatives, meanwhile, were in Washington trying to win permission to continue the boatlift.

Miami businessman Wilfredo Navarro and Frank Sturgis, a former Cuban security chief who later was charged in the Watergate burglary, met Wednesday with U.S. Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and White House official Luis Lauredo.

They hoped to meet with State Department officials today, but admitted chances were slim for getting permission to send 20 large shrimp boats chartered by "United Cubans" to pick up more refugees.

"We just are asking them to let us go free our people... just don't interfere," Navarro said.

They say they will organize mass demonstrations if they are refused permission to send the boats to Cuba.

To handle the refugees already here, U.S. officials have asked for help from the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration.

WHY NO HTN?

Greenville Cable TV's Home Theatre Network has recently been cut from its programming. It had been aired at 8 o'clock each week night. When I called Greenville Catv, they said they never advertised it. Maybe not, but that's the reason a lot of people, including me, purchased Superservice. I feel Greenville Cable TV should furnish the HTN as part of its regular programming. What can be done to get it reinstated? T. F.

Hotline talked to Ray Bell, Manager of Greenville Cable TV, who said that the Satellite Program Network (SPN) has never been supposed to include Home Theatre Network (HTN). It was always advertised as a 22-hour service. For a long while, he said, because the local station did not pick up the digital tone turnoff from the supplier of HTN, it was shown inadvertently at no charge to the customer. However, the correct equipment has now been installed so the turnoff is made each night at 8 o'clock. He said he regrets that customers have gotten used to this service and miss it. He said he or a supervisor at Greenville Cable TV try to talk personally to every customer who calls to try to explain the situation.

Asked if his firm might be willing to offer this service if customers want it, Bell said, no, that he believes that Showtime, already offered, is a much better service, showing a more varied array of first-run movies.

Firm Moves To Farmville

FARMVILLE — The Board of Directors of Electrical Utilities Company of La Salle, Ill. has announced plans to transfer all operations to Farmville.

The La Salle plant will be closed and the company which manufactures electrical capacitors will operate exclusively in Farmville, where it has operated a plant employing about 40 persons since March, 1979.

EUC President Richard Hauser said, "The main reason for the move is to meet a competitive situation in the capacitor industry. Cost of manufacturing in Farmville match costs other competitors are experiencing in the industry, whereas the cost of wages and fringe benefits in Illinois are far above the industry average."

Hauser said the transfer will most likely take place between July and October of this year. A number of EUC executives will make the transfer. He said, "While employment levels will be influenced by recession our economy is experiencing, the transfer will eventually create approximately 180 additional jobs."

He added, "This move acknowledges the good experiences our company has had in Farmville. The citizens of Farmville have helped us a great deal. That kind of help makes a difficult move like this possible."

He had special praises for the Farmville Economic Council and both Edgecombe Bank and Trust Company and Branch Banking and Trust Company of Wilson, which will help finance the plant expansion.

Local, State Officials Honored At Banquet

Local and state officials were honored at the Annual Governmental Officials Appreciation Banquet Wednesday night sponsored by the Local Concerns Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Pitt County Commissioners, Greenville City Council members and state representatives and their spouses were honored at the banquet.

According to Dick Farris, Chairman of the Local Concerns Committee, the purpose of the banquet is to allow chamber members to meet the local and state officials and to thank the officials for their public service.

David Duffus, Vice Chairman of the Public and Governmental Affairs Council of the chamber discussed the "chamber's role in local-state governmental concerns." Duffus said that the Local Concerns Committee and the State Concerns Committee of the chamber are made up of business and professional people who are interested in how tax revenues are spent by governmental officials.

Duffus also said that the committee members attend regular meetings of the local governmental bodies to observe actions taken and to encourage continued progressive leadership in the economic development of Pitt County.

John Baggett, assistant chairman of the Local Concerns Committee, presented certificates of appreciation to representatives of the Greenville City Council, Pitt County Commissioners, and State Representatives Sam Bundy and Horton Rountree.

Entertainment for the banquet was provided by the Greenville Barber Shop Quartet. Approximately 80 persons attended.

Dear Abby

"King Heroin" Makes A Lousy Ruler

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a column you ran eight years ago when I was in high school. It helped me make a decision about drugs I have never forgotten. I wasn't a drug user, but some of my friends were into drugs and trying to get me to join them.

Now that kids in their pre-teens are trying drugs, I hope you will reprint it. You have been so good about rerunning articles that have helped people, please don't let me down. If it helps just one kid like it helped me, it will be worth it. Thank you.

TAMMY IN LITTLE ROCK

DEAR TAMMY: The article you enclosed is indeed worth a rerun, and here it is:

"King Heroin is my shepherd, I shall always want..." These tragic words, part of a twisted rewording of the beloved 23rd Psalm, were discovered recently in Reidsville, N.C., in a closed car alongside a dead heroin addict. She was 23 years old.

Her death was ruled a suicide. A hookup with the car's exhaust had sent carbon monoxide fumes from a running motor into the vehicle. Here's the complete "psalm."

"King Heroin is my shepherd, I shall always want. He maketh me to lie down in the gutters.

"He leadeth me beside the troubled waters. He destroyeth my soul.

"He leadeth me in the paths of wickedness.

"Yea, I shall walk through the valley of poverty and will fear no evil, for thou, Heroin, are with me.

"Thy Needle and Capsule comfort me. Thou strippest the table of groceries in the presence of my family. Thou robbest my head of reason.

"My cup of sorrow runneth over. Surely heroin addiction shall stalk me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Damned forever."

Also found in the car with the dead woman was the written message:

"Jail didn't cure me. Nor did hospitalization help me for long. The doctor told my family it would have been better, and indeed kinder, if the person who got me hooked on dope had taken a gun and blown my brains out. And I wish to God he had. My God, how I wish it."

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who keeps her late husband's ashes in a fancy porcelain jar on the mantel in her living room. Perhaps I should say that she claims they are her late husband's ashes, because this lady has a rather wild imagination.

The jar containing the so-called "ashes" is not tightly capped. In fact, my friend frequently shows it around; it looks (and smells) exactly like cigarette ashes to me!

Do you think they could be her husband's remains?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If the cremated remains look (and smell) like cigarette ashes, that's probably what they are.

It's a common misconception that after cremation the body is reduced to fine ashes. Actually, what remains is a combination of bone fragments and ashes.

DEAR ABBY: I recently came across a book that described masturbation as a "valuable tension safety valve."

As a woman of 77, brought up to believe that "self-abuse," as it was called in my day, would lead to idiocy, I was startled and confused.

During all my 44 years of married life (and five children), I never once experienced an orgasm. Now, as an old widow, I self-induced one, and found it wonderful! Am I on the path to perdition? Is single ecstasy wicked?

Being of a logical turn of mind, I cannot see how an occasional self-indulgence is harmful. Certainly no one else is involved or harmed. How can such a glorious, exciting and relaxing experience be wrong, harmful or dirty?

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Masturbation is normal, natural and universal. The only harmful aspect is the guilt it produces in those who have been programmed to believe it is wrong, harmful and dirty.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO BE POPULAR": When you enter a room, do you say, "There YOU are," or "Here I am?" Ponder that a while.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Suspects Hostages In Iran Face Trial

By The Associated Press
American being held hostage in Iran probably will have to stand trial before they are released, says the former president of an Iranian student organization.

"My speculation is that they will go ahead and put some of the hostages on trial. After the trial, I'm sure they will free all of them," said Majid Jamshidi, 28, an economics student at North Carolina State University and former president of the school's Organization of Iranian Students.

Two observers of Iran agreed Wednesday with Jamshidi's assessment of the hostage situation.

"I think there will be a trial, as a ritual and a forum for the airing of grievances," said Gordon D. Newby, an associate professor of history at N.C. State who specializes in Islamic history.

"Perhaps they'll be sentenced to death, then pardoned by the Ayatollah Khomeini in an act of mercy and deported from the country."

George W. Braswell, professor of mission and world religions at Southeastern Baptist Seminary in Wake Forest, taught at the University of Tehran from 1967 to 1974.

Braswell agreed that, even without the return of the former shah or his wealth, the Iranian parliament would deal with the hostages in a way to "save face" and then release them.

"Anyone who says anything about the future in Iran is taking a big leap, but I think once the parliament is established, they will probably handle the hostage situation and clear it up," Braswell said.

The Iranian Congress is to begin meeting on May 28.

Both Newby and Braswell said severe economic sanctions against Iran would aggravate internal tensions and further decrease Iranian-U.S. goodwill, with unpredictable results on the fate of the hostages.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

With the price of postage going up to 20 cents a letter next year, I don't know how much longer I can afford to communicate.

My correspondence isn't exactly sonnets from the pen of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, you know.

Usually, I begin my letters with an apology for not writing, followed by a list of 15 or 20 excuses that would depress the Osmonds. This is followed by a quiz to show I really care.

"How in the world are you? Are you sewing anything new? How's your mother? Did you see M*A*S*H last week? Did you ever find out why Rob's ears were ringing?"

Then I move along to the current stuff, like what I am having for dinner and an update on what every member of the family is doing at the moment I am writing the letter. (Reading the paper. Teasing the dog. Hanging on the phone. Going through my purse.)

I usually take half a page to explain that the only thing I hate more than cheap gossip is the people who spread it. This is followed by three pages of cheap gossip. Then come a few cute sayings by my children with ha, ha's in parenthesis, a reprise of my penitence for not writing and a promise to do better next time, and that's it.

That drive will have been worth three cents at one time, but it is clear that the quality of my letters has not kept pace with the cost of writing increases.

There are several changes in letter-writing that Americans will be looking at.

1. Assuming that delivery delays will get worse instead of better, letters should have a flexible reference of time. Example: "The baby is cutting his teeth and is crabby" (if letter is received June 1980-July 1980). "The baby is toilet-trained and no longer applying for a chafing scholarship" (if received April 1981-February 1984). "The baby has graduated and is unemployed" (if received June 2000-July 2003).

2. For 20 cents you should have something important to say in your letters. A Tupperware party is not an earthshaking event unless Burt Reynolds shows up for it.

3. Long letters will become a thing of the past. Look for Christmas newsletters that will abbreviate their accomplishments with "Overachievers still wonderful. (See Newsletters 1978, 1979, 1980, etc.)"

Yes, I predict letters will become the newest status symbol in this country. I can just see a kid in college shrugging, "He couldn't afford a letter?"

Will Ask Harsh Penalties For Drug Dealers In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Calling drug smuggling an "epidemic" in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten will ask the General Assembly next month for stiff new laws setting mandatory prison terms and fines for big-time drug dealers.

The proposed laws would eliminate the chance of parole and also allow prosecutors to press murder charges against a dealer who sold heroin or a similar drug that caused the death of a drug user.

"This proposal is tough. However, the proposal is fair," said Edmisten. "Those who derive the most profit are going to be facing the severest penalty. We hope that it will deter those who seek to make North Carolina a drug haven."

Saying smuggling in the state is "nothing short of an epidemic," Edmisten joined Hunt in outlining their proposal at a news conference Wednesday. Both said they would send the measures to the General Assembly when it convenes for a short budget session next month.

The new sentences would apply to four main groups of drugs — marijuana, cocaine, heroin and methaqualone, a depressant often known as Quaalude.

Each category of drug would carry several mandatory sentences and fines, increasing with the amount of drugs seized.

— For marijuana, mandatory penalties would begin with a two-year sentence and $5,000 fine for those convicted of trafficking 50 to 100 pounds. The mandatory penalties would increase to three years and $25,000 for amounts up to a ton; to six years and $50,000 for one to five tons, and 16 years and $200,000 for more than five tons.

— For heroin, mandatory penalties would be six years in prison and a $50,000 fine for four to 14 grams, ranging up to 20 years and $500,000 for more than 28 grams.

— For cocaine, the penalties would be three years and $50,000 for 28 to 300 grams, ranging up to 16 years and $250,000 for more than 400 grams.

— For methaqualone, penalties would range from three years and $25,000 for 1,000 to 5,000 dosage units, up to 16 years and $200,000 for more than 10,000 dosage units.

Lesser sentences could be imposed for those who cooperate with authorities and help prosecute people higher up in the drug operations.

Under existing law, the maximum penalty for trafficking marijuana is five years in prison, with parole possible after one year, and a $5,000 fine. For other drugs, the current maximums are 10 years, with parole possible after two years, and a $10,000 fine.

Edmisten said the sentences are comparable with those established by new drug laws in Florida and other states. He said lesser existing penalties in North Carolina, combined with its irregular coastline and abundance of rural airstrips, have made the state an increasingly attractive port for drug smugglers.

Awards Presentation Highlights Luncheon

The 42nd anniversary of the Greenville Service League was observed yesterday at the annual awards meeting held at the Greenville Country Club. Highlighting the day was the presentation of awards and recognition of service.

The Ormond Service Cup for 1979-80 was awarded to Mrs. Gerald Crane by Mrs. Donald Patrick. This award is given each year to a member in recognition of versatility, leadership and commitment to the league program.

Mrs. Leon L. Moore Jr. was the recipient of the President's Tray, presented by Mrs. Herbert Carter. The tray is given a board member for outstanding service during the year.

In delivering the annual report, President Mrs. John Whichard highlighted accomplishments of the past year, notably equipment purchases for Pitt Memorial Hospital totaling $45,211.50. League funds are derived from the lease of the hospital coffee shop, operation of the gift shop and vending machines in the hospital. All profits are returned to the hospital in the form of equipment as requested by the Hospital Gifts Committee.

Funds of approximately $10,000 were dispensed to the community through the Laughinghouse Fund and Emergency Charity Fund.

Mrs. Whichard announced the 122 members had given 10,207 hours to these projects. Thirty-nine members contributed 100 hours or more during the year. Including: Mrs. Donald Bailey; Mrs. R. Kelly Barnhill; Mrs. Charles Brown; Mrs. J. Bryan Brown; Mrs. Thomas E. Burkhart; Mrs. William

Couple Speaks Vows On Saturday Afternoon

BELMONT—Belmont Abbey Cathedral here was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Deborah Marie Landy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie J. Landy of Charlotte, and Michael Hardy Cobb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Hardy Cobb of Falkland, Saturday.

Father Wilbur Thomas performed the double ring ceremony at three o'clock in the afternoon. A program of wedding music was presented by Father Kenneth, Belmont Abby Monastery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her honor attendant was Dawn Colwell of Boone. Bridesmaids included Cindy and Lisa Cobb of Falkland, sisters of the bridegroom, and Barbara Landy of Charlotte, sister of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included John and Mark Landy of Charlotte, brothers of the bride, and Jeffrey Cobb of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a formal gown of chantilace which featured a Queen Anne neckline, fitted lace covered empire waist, bishop sleeves with fitted cuffs and full ruffled skirt that flowed into a cathedral train. Her bridal veil was a lace covered Juliet capulet attached to a cathedral length veil of nylon illusion bordered in matching chantilace.

The attendants wore formal gowns of pink ice floral lace knit designed with an open squared neckline outlined in corded fabric. The sleeveless dress featured a ruffled collar. The modified empire waistline was enhanced by a satin ribbon tie belt in matching pink. The full skirt was edged by a ruffle founce of matching fabric. She carried a bouquet of pink orchids and carnations with pink streamers.

Grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Henry Landy and Mrs. H. B. Freeman were remembered with corsages.

The mother of the bride wore a formal two-piece gown of ice blue knit with a rounded neckline. She wore white orchids. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mint green magic knit with an open V-neckline. She also wore white orchids.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Pete Brooks.

A reception was held at Queen of the Apostle Center. The hall was decorated with spring flowers. The buffet was served by Mrs. Josephine Watson.

An after-rehearsal dinner was held at the home of the bride's parents. The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina. The bride and bridegroom are graduate students at ECU.

Borrowing From Future

It can readily be seen what spiraling energy costs are doing to virtually all budgets in the need for the county commissioners to shift funds.

The county commissioners approved the advancement of funds to Greenville City School Board of Education and Pitt Community College to help pay higher utilities and fuel expenses for the fiscal year. The money is to be advanced from the 1980-81 budget. The city schools are to get $45,000 in advanced funds and Pitt Community College $7,000.

The commissioners decided on the advance procedure after it was determined that the county had inadequate reserve funds to make an emergency appropriation to the city schools and PCC.

We don't see any other way out if the college and the city schools are to finish out the fiscal year, but it is disturbing that the two agencies will be borrowing from future appropriations to meet current obligations.

We understand that gasoline, electric and other energy cost have skyrocketed during the year. The same thing may happen next year, but all governmental agencies should be expected to live within their budgets. While borrowing from next year's appropriation may be necessary in this instance, it is definitely something that should not become habitual.

Office Space Was Needed

County agencies are moving into the new county office building (the remodeled old hospital) off West Fifth Street.

Last week the Pitt Board of Education offices moved to the building and other agencies will be there.

Whether or not to carry out the expensive remodeling necessary to make the space suitable for offices was somewhat controversial. Nevertheless it is certain that additional office space for county agencies was needed.

School Bus Risks

By BILL NOBLITT

RALIEGH — In spite of elaborate new equipment such as a confusing array of mirrors and "walking arms" which extend from the front of the buses; and in spite of television promotions urging parents and students to exercise bus safety, North Carolina's school bus safety record is heading toward another bad year.

Public concern ran high last year when 11 youngsters died in school bus accidents.

So far this year there have been nine deaths on public school buses during school hours, and three others either on privately operated school buses or after regular hours.

Routine wrecks and injuries appear headed toward a record high as well. During the first seven months of school there have been 947 wrecks with 254 injuries. If that rate continues till the end of school the total will soar past 1,350 with nearly 400 injuries.

Last school year there were 1,255 wrecks and 302 injuries.

Concerned
Concerned parents, students, school officials, legislators, and school bus drivers themselves are wrestling with the dilemma in several different forums, in hopes of coming up with some solutions.

So far the consensus appears to be the need for more mature and experienced bus drivers, and the only way to get that is to pay the drivers more than the current $3 per hour.

Mulling over a wealth of information from the various legislative hearings, meetings of a special legislative committee, remarks from a variety of people involved in school transportation and worried over the situation, and from research studies, especially one conducted by the Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina, one factor dominates all others: wrecks, injuries, and deaths result most often from human error.

Bertie County School Supt.

BILL NOBLITT

Larry T. Ivey has told lawmakers it is not equipment or road conditions, but rather a different breed of students riding buses, drivers who are not as careful and concerned as they were in the past, and school administrators who because of sprawling districts and larger schools no longer keep close tabs on the bus situation.

In the past, Ivey recounts, younger and older kids rode the bus together, looking after one another. Bus driving was a proud occupation. Principals had direct control over the drivers and equipment. Much of that has changed in today's society of cross-district and urban busing.

Too Young
Meanwhile, John Lacy at the Highway Safety Research Center has concluded that while student bus drivers have demonstrated that they can drive the buses safely, by and large, the younger of the students have a "significantly worse" record.

That finding only parallels the pattern among all drivers, not just those driving buses. The 16-year-old with a new license lacks judgment and experience, and is more apt to speed and show off. It is also more difficult to exercise control over the passengers at that younger age. Yet, the younger drivers are anxious for the low-paying bus jobs while the older drivers take higher paying jobs elsewhere.

The conclusion of all the debate now going on will have to be that chief cause of school bus wrecks is driver error, and can be corrected only through a better system of recruiting, training, supervising, and paying the drivers.

THEIR WAVE OF THE FUTURE!

Death Of A Principle

WASHINGTON — Now that the uproar over "The Death of a Princess" has subsided, it may be possible to raise a couple of quiet questions about the whole affair. This is the fundamental question: What business does our government have in the broadcasting business?

My own answer, of course, is that our government has no business whatever in the broadcasting business. Not one line in the Constitution authorizes Congress to appropriate tax funds for the production of this film or any other film intended for the entertainment of the people. The same objection applies to tax subsidies for writers, artists, dancers and coloratura sopranos. Show biz is Johnny Carson's biz; it is not the Treasury's biz.

In this regard, it is immaterial whether "The Death of a Princess" was an accurate portrayal of life in Saudi Arabia. My contention is that the U.S. government never should have been involved in this production anyhow. Had the film been privately financed for broadcast on privately owned television stations, no questions would have been raised of official censorship.

The trouble with the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the Public Broadcasting Service is that they are political hybrids. They are children of the Treasury, but they are bastard children; Congress fathers them and then disowns them. In the current fiscal year, the taxpayers are turning over $122 million to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting; this year's budget calls for $162 million. But Congress has no control whatever over how the money is spent. Once the corporation has made its grants — such as $625,000 to Boston's public station WGBH — the corporation abandons all responsibility

Ohio Threat For Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio

The disgust of the president's most prominent endorser in this economically ravaged former steel city that gave him a 1976 landslide reflects a bitterness toward Jimmy Carter through industrial northern Ohio threatening him in the June 3 primary.

While Youngstown's Democratic organization is aligned with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Carter's Ohio managers point to Mayor George Vukovich as the president's man here. But, to use Lenin's phrase, the mayor supports Carter as a rope supports a hanged man. "I wouldn't say I was really supporting him," Vukovich told us, "between you and me, I'm disgusted."

His disgust stems from a sense of betrayal and neglect that is endemic here. The complaint of Youngstown Democrats from the mayor to the lowest precinct worker: Carter has repaid Youngstown for its huge plurality in 1976 with neglect; we will repay him in kind on primary day. That the president has nearly enough delegates for nomination means nothing here.

Carter faces somewhat lesser resentment in Cleveland and Toledo, where (as in Youngstown) the Democratic county chairmen back Kennedy. He also could lose Akron, Dayton and perhaps Columbus. That adds up to a possible Kennedy upset in Ohio, which if coupled with Kennedy victories in California and New Jersey the same day, could create an unhealthy climate for the president at Madison Square Garden in August.

Rural southern Ohio, whose small towns are subjected to tireless visitations from Chip Carter, will give the president the same 60 percent-plus vote he enjoyed in neighboring Indiana. But this area does not have nearly enough Democratic voters to overcome a Kennedy sweep in the north.

Accordingly, Carter's campaign last week began the remorseless repetition of anti-Kennedy television commercials that aborted the senator's rise in Pennsylvania. The difference in Ohio is a spirit-sapping recession that began long before the national slump. Unemployed steel, rubber and auto workers form a dagger pointed at Carter's throat. In Youngstown, where failure to replace the now departed basic steel industry has reaped despair, unemployment is around 12 percent and rising.

Just four years ago, this was Carter country. When he needed Ohio to pin down his 1976 nomination, the 19th Congressional District gave him 60 percent (to 14 percent for second-place Frank Church). The district delivered him the same 60 percent in November against Gerald Ford, the third largest Carter victory margin in the nation. But he has never visited northern Ohio as president.

Don Hanni, the tempestuous Mahoning County Democratic chairman, two years ago pounded the table over cheeseburgers in the White House mess to demand help for this stricken area. When no help came, Hanni endorsed Kennedy even before he ran. While postponing formal organizational endorsement to avoid undercutting his candidate for sheriff, Hanni will pass the word for Kennedy a few days before the primary.

John Knapp, a precinct committeeman who owns a saloon called the South Side Civic Club, told us "Hanni is my godfather" and he awaits his direction. But he added that "the boys" who drink at his bar are anti-Carter anyway. Indeed, a night spent among Democratic activists here indicates Hanni will not have to push very hard.

At a Democratic candidates night rally, not one hand out of 135 people present was raised when we asked for Carter supporters. A meeting of 6th Ward committeemen split 4-to-1 against Carter. Out of 24 committeemen at a 5th Ward meeting, 22 backed Kennedy. "Carter don't even know we exist," complained one 5th Ward committeeman.

That is precisely the complaint of Mayor Vukovich, who as court clerk in 1976 was an early booster of Jimmy Who. "Since then," he told us, "they haven't done anything for us." Vukovich's 11-page letter to the president in mid-March, detailing the torment of Youngstown, went unanswered. The last straw was the icy stare from federal bureaucrats when Vukovich tried to restore $3.5 million in desperately needed urban grants denied for non-compliance with regulations. The neighboring town of Warren won similar grants, after which its mayor, Daniel Sierra, endorsed Kennedy.

"The president has the Monopoly board in this game," one of Carter's Ohio operatives told us, "and whatever happens, he's going to be around to help and punish at least until next January." But for Youngstown, the carrot and the stick have long since lost all validity.

These Democratic activists say they are for "ABC" — Anybody But Carter — and are lukewarm about Kennedy. Could this Democratic bastion embrace Ronald Reagan? All the party people say it is possible. Jimmy Dunne, district leader of the 6th Ward, told us the rest of his family would vote for Reagan in a Reagan-Carter choice. The threat posed here to the president will not end June 3.

Other Editors Say A Talking Dollar

(Jacksonville Daily News)

As the economy comes down with a bad case of the blahs, any little break in the clouds is welcome.

It is no secret about the dollar. It just does not buy as much as it once did. Not nearly as much. If it's any comfort however, neither do the currencies of other countries.

When you put the dollar up against other currencies in purchasing power, the dollar still talks the talk and walks the walk. The bottom line is that "purchasing power is still the strongest in the United States."

That quotation was taken from a little pamphlet issued by the Union Bank of Switzerland, entitled "Prices and Earnings around the Globe." The study measures incomes and prices in 44 major cities throughout the world as of mid-1979, then calculates how much people could buy with their incomes.

Twelve occupations are covered for a good cross-section of jobs found in all the cities. Included are school teachers, secretaries, bus drivers, auto mechanics, construction workers, toolmakers, saleswomen, textile workers, bank tellers, cooks, electrical engineers and managers' metal-working production plants.

As for what income will buy, the survey checks over 100 goods and services, including 39 food products.

Four United States cities are listed in the survey — Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York. When the purchasing power in these cities is averaged together to compute a composite figure, the figure tops the list of cities, and that is true regardless of whether pretax or net incomes are used in the comparison.

Those cities which came closest to the United States are in Switzerland, Australia and Canada. Surprisingly, Dusseldorf, Tokyo, Paris and London are far down the list.

Conclusion: Our economy, though troubled still, provides the highest living standard in the world for the average American worker.

Imagine how it could zing if the government would just get out of the way.

Strength For Today

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CALVARY

Many Bible readers, as they read the narrative of the crucifixion, fail to catch its profound significance. In some way which we cannot understand, the death of Christ on the cross produced for all mankind release from the bondage of sin.

The guilt of sin is something so terrible that God alone knows its awful dimension. The cross represents God's method of dealing with this tragic scourge. When we say that it liberated mankind from the bondage of sin, this does not mean that mankind now has no sin. What it means is that man has an escape if he cares to take it through faith in God and asking for forgiveness in the name of the crucified Christ.

The German poet Goethe had a penetrating insight into the heinous nature of sin when he wrote, "If I saw the world and felt toward it as God does, it would break my heart." The breaking of God's heart on Calvary means the healing of our heart today — that is, if we will take advantage of God's offer.

To the editor:

The letter to the editor by Dr. Nenzo on the industrial site near Grimesland concerns me. Dr. Nenzo has already organized opposition to this firm before its identity is known or what type manufacturing will be done, which shows irresponsibility or a lack of facts. He states the site is not suitable and the project would be harmful to the environment. I ask is he more experienced in plant location and environmental protection than a major corporation and our own Environmental Protection Agency?

When we start planning a house or major plant, all we hear from a select group is environmental protection. This group has contributed strenuously to pricing the U. S. auto industry out of business. Environmental protection is good to a point, but let's not protect ourselves into another depression or starvation. Dr. Nenzo, let's get all the facts before making a conclusion.

Housing Market Sees Changes

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the problems of housing tend to be divided these days between those who own (and wonder if they should) and those who rent (and probably wish they owned), other vast changes are occurring.

In fact, so much is evolving that you might say the contrast in the housing markets of the 1980s will be more marked than the changes in automobiles, to which so much attention is being given of late.

The demographics will differ, and so will the affordability, the size, the style, the availability, the financing, to mention a few areas of change. The house will change and ideas about the house will change.

You can begin your list anywhere, and proof of it is the lament for inflation made in a talk this month by Philip Kozloff, president of Citicorp Real Estate, a commercial (rather than home) mortgage banker.

"We learned in the 1970s," said Kozloff, "that inflation is real estate's best friend. It has been a fundamental underpinning of the prosperity we have enjoyed in real estate." Almost all mistakes, he said, "were or will be bailed out by inflation."

Then he cautioned his audience about "indications of deflationary trends." A fall from double-digit inflation could cause problems, he said. Owners must be alert, so they can handle "the new challenge."

But if inflation recedes, financing costs might not. The conventional mortgage, in which payments are fixed for a period of 20 or 30 years, is likely to become less popular. The negotiable mortgage, in which the interest rate is reviewed every three, four or five years, is in.

So is the smaller, more efficient house. Relatively unpublicized in the concern about higher prices during the 1970s was the fact that houses also tended to be more elaborate. An extra bath and a family room were added. Housing people now say sizes might shrink in the 80s.

Heating costs pose a problem, but those close to the industry report "that an enormous amount of work is being done in this area. For one thing, the heat pump, which draws heat from air, is gaining acceptance.

One of the drawbacks to the heat pump is that in cold northern areas it may be inefficient for at least three winter months, but there may now be an answer to that. The answer: draw energy from well or stored water, which retains some heat in even the coldest American climates.

The demographics remain a problem for those wishing to buy. There are simply too many people seeking too few housing units. And, for various reasons, mainly financing, the supply of new units is below new need.

Jay Janis, who as chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board is charged with regulating most home mortgage lenders, estimates that 43 million people will reach age 30 in the 1980s, contrasted with only 32 million in the 70s. They will be seeking homes, he accurately observed.

Those figures alone don't define the extent of the problem. As Janis points out, the elderly are living longer, the divorce rate is higher, and the number of non-family households seems to build inexorably.

Increasingly, the only group with money to buy are existing owners who have built up equity. Of course, if they cannot sell their existing home they just won't have the down payment for a new home.

It is this predicament that forces regulators, lenders, sellers and buyers — groups that do not always see eye to eye — to concur in saying that whatever problems afflict housing, financing is the basic one.

The demand is there, the willingness to buy is there, the technology for adapting to change seems to be there. And, it is believed, would-be owners have accepted the need to put forth more of their takehome pay.

There even have been innovations in lending aimed at encouraging institutions to do what they're supposed to do, which is lend. But, in an economy that discourages saving, an important ingredient is missing.

It is money to lend.

also. The public television stations play the same buck-passing game. Who's running the store? Nobody is running the store.

As a consequence, we fall into the bizarre situation that developed in Houston, where station KUHT-TV announced that it had decided not to run "The Death of a Princess." The station is affiliated with the University of Houston, which depends upon state funds. A local gadfly, Gertrude Barnstone, rushed into United States District Court, asking a court to compel the station to broadcast the film.

Fantastic. Judge Gabrielle McDonald issued the order. Her reasoning, so I am told, was that under the 14th Amendment, states may not deny "equal protection of the laws." The university's TV station is an agency of the state. To deny Mrs. Barnstone the right to watch "The Death of a Princess" while other viewers elsewhere were watching it would constitute a denial of equal protection. Besides, the decision of the university's vice president was a "political" decision, and political censorship is abhorrent in a free society.

As it turned out, the Fifth U.S. Circuit speedily nullified Judge McDonald's order and the U.S. Supreme Court, through Mr. Justice Powell, refused to intervene, but we probably have not heard the last of this litigation. If a court can order a university's public TV station to broadcast a particular film, could a court order a university's newspaper to run a particular story? In the name of the First and 14th Amendments, could a court order the teaching of fundamentalist doctrines of creation? What mischief is afoot?

This tangled web of law, public policy and editorial judgment provides a sticky trap that catches everyone along the line - taxpayers, congressmen, grant-makers, producers, broadcasters, private benefactors, Saudi Arabian diplomats and defenders of First Amendment freedoms.

The film in question was financed not only by the taxpayers but also by such private corporations as Ford and Polaroid. If businessmen want to invest in movie-making, hoping thereby to sell more automobiles and cameras, fine with me. But let us adhere to the wise precept that the business of government is government. We ought not to be concerned with "The Death of a Princess," but with the death of a principle instead.

Area Jaycees Fearful Their Efforts Damaged

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Officials of four Jaycees organizations in Pitt County feel that recent charges that North Carolina Jaycees officials have diverted funds raised for state charitable projects to pay membership fees and dues to the U.S. Jaycees will hurt future state fund raising projects.

State Jaycee officials allegedly borrowed more than $143,000 from funds raised for a 23-bed burn center at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill. Part of the money has been repaid to the N.C. Jaycee Foundation which handled the funds, while state officers said the remaining $56,330 still owed to the foundation will be repaid.

Most of the funds were raised through the sale of jelly by local clubs which turned the money over to the state organization.

Mike Joyner, president-elect of the Greenville Jaycees said, "adverse publicity always has an effect," on projects, but said the Jaycees have a "com-mittment to support," the center, and will continue to raise funds for the project.

Joyner said in his opinion, the State problem would not affect local Jaycee projects.

He added that most funds raised by local Jaycee organizations go directly to the charity, rather than to the North Carolina Jaycees, citing as an example, funds raised for Boys Home.

Joyner suggested that the state organization may not have, "proper controls," in light of the fact that the money was allegedly diverted for other use.

Tommy Wilson, past-president of the Grifton Jaycees said, "this is going to hurt the jelly sale. I feel like it is."

SPONSOR PROGRAM
BETHEL—The Brothers in Christ Male Chorus will sponsor a program at Mayo Chapel Baptist Church here Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Anderson Chapel Choir, ushers and members will render a program at the church Sunday afternoon at five o'clock. The speaker will be Walter Cherry. The public is invited.

People, he said, will wonder, "what's really happening to the money?"

Wilson said in addition to hurting the state projects, the disclosure will, "hurt local projects too."

Farmville Jaycee president Charles Phillips commented, "right off hand, I do not think it will affect local projects," but conceded, "I believe it could hurt," the state jelly sales project.

"People will remember this," he noted.

David Hooks, a member of the board of directors of the Winterville Jaycees said, "I don't really know what's going on," but emphasized, "I don't think this should have happened to the jelly money."

Saying state projects might be hurt by the report, Hooks noted, "I don't think it will bother our projects," at the local level.

First Woman At Indy

When Janet Guthrie took her first test to try to qualify for the Indianapolis 500 in 1976, veteran driver Bobby Unser remarked that he could teach a hitchhiker how to drive better than Janet Guthrie. Since then, Guthrie has proved that she drives considerably better than the average hitchhiker. She has competed in three straight races at Indianapolis. Her best performance was in 1978, when she finished ninth in the field of 33 cars. Guthrie began her auto racing career 20 years ago. She also pilots airplanes, and made her first parachute jump when she was 16. This year's Indianapolis 500 is scheduled for Sunday, May 25.

DO YOU KNOW — Who is the only driver to win the Indianapolis 500 four times?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The donkey is often used as a symbol of the Democratic Party.

Controversy On Key Price Index

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

With inflation at record levels, controversy is surrounding the Consumer Price Index (CPI), the most widely quoted measure of inflation. The arguments over the accuracy of this index are nothing new - they have surfaced numerous times since the government's initial attempt during World War I to measure the cost of living.

The argument that the CPI overstates inflation is of greater significance today, however, since some 45 million Americans receive income increases based on it. The major criticism of the CPI today concerns housing costs. Current calculations assume that a new house is bought each month at the prevailing mortgage rate, an obviously inaccurate assumption. To illustrate the overstatement of inflation, the Personal Consumption Expenditures segment of the GNP deflator, which uses a rental index to calculate housing costs, showed inflation last year was 8.9 percent compared with a CPI rate of 13.3 percent.

Another problem with the CPI measurement is that its current market basket of items is based on 1972 buying patterns. As prices have risen sharply since then, consumers have changed their buying habits; this substitution effect is not reflected in the market basket. Consumption of heating oil and gasoline have declined in the past eight years, but they still account for 13 percent of the market basket. The market basket continues to reflect 1972 buying habits on food, particularly beef, yet consumers are clearly buying more pork and poultry to reduce food costs.

A third area of controversy involves quality changes over the years, a major factor in our higher standard of living. Price and quality may go up for a particular product, yet quality improvements do not show up in the calculations.

There are basically two paths to take on the CPI. First, the index could measure housing costs as they are measured in the Personal Consumption Expenditures index (using a rental index) and the market basket could be revised more frequently to take into account changing spending habits.

The second choice would be for Congress to repeal the law which indexes transfer payments to the CPI. This is not likely to happen because of extreme pressure from special interest groups. Rather, a likely course would be for transfer payments to be only partially indexed, with increases limited to perhaps 75 percent of the increase in the CPI. There is also a possibility that a new index that would mirror living costs of senior citizens could be created.

Because of the income indexed to the CPI (such as union contracts and Social Security), improvements must be made or the index itself will build more and more inflation into the economy.

Plan To Revamp Dept Collections Set Back

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A plan to revamp state debt collection laws suffered a setback Wednesday when a banking industry spokesman said the industry would not accept certain debtor protections in the bill.

Banking industry lobbyist

John R. Jordan Jr. called the bill "unrealistic" and told a legislative study commission that the industry would oppose the measure when the General Assembly convenes June 5.

Jordan said he expected the business community in general to join the fight against the bill, which would create a court-supervised system of collecting money judgments by creditors against debtors. Enforcement of judgments now is in the hands of county sheriffs.

The bill also would allow limited wage garnishment for the first time as a means of collecting debts.

Bankers have wanted to use the bill to exempt the state from a new federal bankruptcy law that gives debtors broad protections from creditors.

The committee refused to exempt the state from the law, adding instead a provision that gives debtors the choice of using either federal property exemptions or state exemptions created by the bill.

Those proposed state exemptions give persons who are in debt but who have not declared bankruptcy protection from creditors against seizure of property.

Under the bill, the debtor could decide whether federal or state law offers the best protection for his personal holdings. For example, a debtor who does not own a home but owns a lot of personal property would opt for the federal exemptions that protect a variety of small items. A debtor with more assets in real estate would opt for the state exemption that completely protected the home.

The study commission voted to send the bill to House and Senate judiciary committees. The bill already faces a stiff battle for approval in the June session, which legislative leaders are trying to limit to budgetary matters.

Even if passed next month, the bill would not become effective until Oct. 1, 1982, a delay the bill's backers added Wednesday in hopes of increasing its chance of passage.

Name Eamon To State Bar Committee

Dr. Thomas Eamon of Greenville, has been named to a special committee of the North Carolina State Bar to study the question of lawyer competency in the field of specialization and the best method in which to assure the public receiving legal services.

Eamon was one of 28 persons named to the committee by state bar president E. K. Powe.

Powe said the question of lawyer competency, "is of major concern to the public and within the legal profession. Concern has been expressed by the bench, bar, the law schools, and the press.

"Alternatives ranging from periodic reexamination of members of the bar, to curricular requirements within law schools, to examinations administered by the federal courts, to mandatory continuing legal education, have been proffered as solutions."

Powe continued, "it is ironic that the problem should arise at a time in which the law schools are most selective and the number of students receiving skills training is higher than at any previous time in history.

"It is particularly perplexing that the problem must be faced in an era of such rapid change, in which advertising solicitation, group legal services, specialization, and even the issue of whether the practice of law should be a monopoly, are being re-evaluated."

Bloodmobile Has Good Day

The Bloodmobile experienced a "very good day" at Burroughs Wellcome on Wednesday as plant employees and staff members donated 225 pints of blood, according to Mrs. Ruth Taylor of the Pitt Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor said that in addition to the collection total, some 18 persons were deferred for various health reasons.

The Red Cross spokesman offered her thanks to Burroughs Wellcome for making the facilities available and to the plant nursing staff for assisting. Mrs. Taylor also thanked all of the volunteers who helped yesterday.

The county blood program will close out the fiscal year with a June 4 visit at Union Carbide Corp. here, she said. The visit will be open to the general public.

Health Agency Holds Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will be held June 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Included on the agenda is the approval of the Application for Continuation of Full Designation, and a report of the nominating committee, as well as a number of project reviews.

SERVICES ANNOUNCED

Revival services are being held this week at Wilson Chapel FWB Church in Wilson by Elder Tyrone Turnage, pastor of Little Creek FWB Church. Islamic Govm'ts Seek Soviet Pullout

By BARRY SHLACHTER Associated Press Writer ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The 39-nation Islamic Conference formed a three-member committee including Iran's foreign minister early today to work for a withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan and unambiguously condemned the United States for its unsuccessful attempt to rescue the 53 American hostages in Iran.

The conference of foreign ministers which began Saturday termed the aborted

American military action "armed aggression" against Iran, expressed "outrage" at Egypt and other Mideast states for allegedly helping the American attempt and deplored the imposition of economic sanctions against Iran by any country.

It also appealed to Iran "to continue to work toward a solution of the question of the hostages in the spirit of Islam."

The Afghan crisis committee was authorized to take any initiative it considered necessary including visits to the Soviet Union and Afghanistan, conference spokesman Kacem Zaheri said.

It is led by Agha Shahi, foreign affairs adviser to Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq and the conference's host. The other members are the secretary-general of the Islamic Conference, Habib Chatti of Tunisia, and Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh. The resolution called for the immediate, unconditional and total withdrawal of Soviet forces from the Central Asian Moslem country. But it omitted the harsh language used in a resolution at another conference in January demanding a Soviet pullout.

Bangladesh Foreign Minister Shamsul Haq said the committee could meet with "groups" in Afghanistan, indicating it would not meet officially with the communist government of President Babrak Karmal. The January conference refused to recognize the Karmal government because it was installed by the Soviet intervention.

New Energy Savings Plea

PARIS (AP) — European Common Market Energy Commissioner Guido Brunner called today for oil consuming nations to adopt more precise energy saving policies in the wake of the latest round of oil price hikes.

He praised President Carter's proposed oil import tax and said Congress should recognize its importance.

Addressing a ministerial meeting of the International Energy Agency, Brunner said: "We must not be deceived by the current relative stability of the energy situation."

If major oil consumers fail to implement precise energy saving measures, the situation could "get out of hand" in the coming years, with a likely supply shortfall of 4 million barrels daily in 1985, he said.

"This would create a bottleneck which would hinder economic and social developments in our countries and would present unsolvable problems for the poorest nations," he said.

Brunner said the nine Common Market nations are currently in "a phase of growing economic tension," with a likely total growth of only 1.2 percent this year and a $20 billion deficit in their combined balance of payments.

At the same time, unemployment and inflation rates are growing amidst signs of recession, he said.

Brunner said the Market has about 112 days of oil stocks and he expects its oil imports to fall below the previously agreed target of 472 million tons.

"The smaller demand is essentially due to the general economic slowdown and is only partially the result of our energy saving efforts," he said.

He called on world leaders participating in next month's economic summit in Venice, Italy to give top priority to coordinating an approach to a political solution of oil production and consumption problems.

"If we want to talk with credibility to oil producers, we must show some progress in our energy policies," he said.

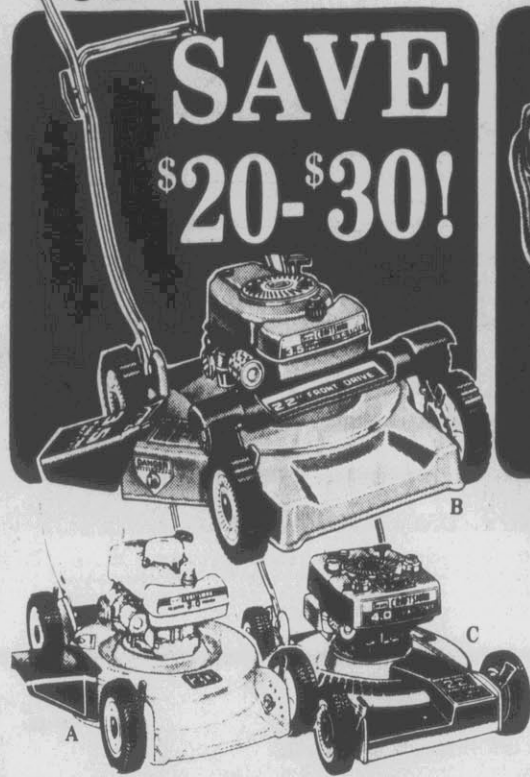

In the past week, Saudi Arabia, Venezuela, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates, Iraq, Kuwait, Indonesia, Libya and Mexico have raised oil prices.

Bribe Charges To Grand Jury

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Evidence concerning an alleged attempt to buy a state representative's pro vote on the Equal Rights Amendment may go to a grand jury, and the FBI confirmed it has entered the case.

Sangamon County State's Attorney William Roberts said Wednesday he was considering what action to take concerning evidence related to an alleged bribe offer to state Rep. Nord L. Swanstrom.

While there was no "decision yet whether (the information) merits turning over to a grand jury," Roberts the case possibly could culminate in a criminal prosecution.

A federal agent also said Wednesday the FBI began interviews here to see if federal laws may have been violated in connection with alleged attempts to improperly influence lawmakers' ERA votes.

Roberts received evidence in the case developed by investigators under Dan K. Webb, state law enforcement director.

"Of all the allegations we received, I believe this was the strongest case," said Webb.

The case involves an allegation that Swanstrom, R-Pecatonica, was handed a card with the name of a representative from the National Organization for Women printed on it. Allegedly written on the back of the card was an offer of $1,000 to vote for ERA, sources said.

Swanstrom, an ERA opponent, declined to directly confirm specifics of the alleged offer, but told the Associated Press a woman from NOW made an improper and possibly illegal effort to gain his vote.

Eleanor Smeal, NOW national president, angrily denied at a news conference in Chicago that any such incident occurred. She said "this most recent charge is not only outrageous, but it tests our intelligence. It was never done."

Ms. Smeal said the organization made no campaign or other contributions on a "quid-pro-quo" basis.

NOW is coordinating the effort to get the amendment to the U.S. Constitution banning sex discrimination passed in Illinois.

"I believe all the allegations are attacks by opponents of the amendment. It is an indication that we are coming too close this time," Mrs. Smeal said.

Egypt's People Polled

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — An overwhelming "yes" vote was expected in today's referendum on constitutional amendments that would enable Anwar Sadat to remain president for life, make Islamic teachings the "main source" of legislation, formalize the multi-party system and allow a little more press freedom.

Some 12 million voters registered in 25,000 precincts around the country had to decide either to approve or disapprove all four amendments as a package, an analysts predicted the vast majority would make red circles on their ballots indicating "yes." A black circle on the ballot meant rejection.

The polls opened at 8 a.m. and close at 5 p.m., and the results will be announced Friday. Voting was sparse in the first two hours of balloting in the northern Cairo suburb of Heliopolis, but two of three persons interviewed said they voted yes.

Abdel Salaam Abdel Rabou, an accountant, said Sadat's being able to serve longer would be "the greatest thing because he has brought us peace and is working for our welfare."

One voter who requested anonymity, said: "I don't care if it is Sadat or somebody else. My only concern is that people have enough to eat at reasonable prices." Egypt is wracked by 30 percent yearly inflation and recurring shortages of basic commodities such as soap and vegetable oil.

This vote is not an election but a referendum on the amendments. Elections will be held in 1982 at end of Sadat's second term.

Egypt's tiny leftist party, which has no representation in Parliament, circulated pamphlets calling for "no" votes. It charged the government with trying to impose the measures on the people. Egypt's minority Coptic Christian population expressed reservations about the Islamic amendment.

Sadat came to power in 1970 following Gamal Abdel Nasser's death. The present constitution, worked out in 1971 under Sadat's supervision, allows a president two six-year terms.

This amendment would allow a president an unlimited number of terms. It does not name Sadat.

In a speech to the Parliament last week, Sadat did not resist the proposed amendment that would allow him to be president for life but said he believed 12 years were enough.

The amendment was suggested by a member of Sadat's political group, the National Democratic Party, and was approved last month by Parliament, in which the party holds 347 of the 392 seats.

The amendment to make Islamic teachings the main source of legislation is a cause of concern among members of Egypt's 6 million Coptic Christians.

They fear it would affect their social status in this overwhelmingly Moslem nation of 40 million.

The proposal on the party system would affect the economic-political concept of the country, changing its definition from that of a socialist system to a "socialist democratic system." It would formalize the multi-party system introduced by Sadat several years ago and abolish the Arab Socialist Union, established by Nasser as the country's only authorized political party.

Can your film be damaged by the X-ray machines at airport security checks? The answer is probably not — BUT there are a lot of qualifications.

Most X-ray machines, where airport security personnel check the contents of your carry-on luggage, have signs which state that the machines are safe for film.

The X-ray dosage is so low that it will not normally affect the film that passes through it — at least, not if the machine is properly adjusted.

Still, for a variety of reasons, I always have my film and cameras (when they're loaded with film) hand checked when I must go through one of these lines.

First, the effects of X-ray radiation are cumulative — the second trip through doubles the dosage, the third trip triples it, etc. On one trip I may pass through these check points five or 10 times before the trip is over and, while the machines may be safe for one or two doses, I don't believe that they are for five or 10.

Then, too, some airports may have improperly adjusted machines that emit higher dosages. Many of the machines used in foreign countries are definitely known to be unsafe.

What about checked baggage? That's a game of Russian roulette. Hold baggage is also subject to X-rays.

If your trip consists of only one or two trips through a security check, going and coming back, I wouldn't worry about it. If you are going to be passing through these stations more frequently, or will be visiting foreign countries where high-dosage machines may be used, I would try to protect the film from radiation.

There are only two ways to do this that I know of. If you are not carrying much film you can purchase at most photo stores lead-lined bags that will protect the film from X-rays. Some of these bags are even large enough to carry your camera in if you have film in the camera. Film stored in such bags will be safe from X-rays at either the hand-baggage security check or the hold-baggage check.

If you carry a lot of film, as I do, then the only other safe way to protect it from X-ray damage is to ask for a hand inspection.

Despite the sign saying that the check is safe for film

AVOIDING X-RAY DAMAGE — Sandy Colton, AP director of photography and camera columnist, demonstrates the way to avoid radiation damage to film: have it hand-checked by airport security personnel.

I have had mostly polite inspection from the security guards when I've asked for it. Not once have they refused to inspect my camera bag and cameras.

I've heard of cases where others have had a hard time. One friend had to remove the film from his camera. I've had the inspectors ask me to take off the lens so that they could look inside the camera, take off the lens caps so that they could look inside the lenses, and remove the caps from the film cans so that they could make sure they carried only film. Still, they have a job to do and I don't begrudge them the minute inspection. I'd rather be safe than sorry.

If you do carry a lot of film here's a room-saving tip. I remove all the film from the cardboard box in which it comes, keeping only the small plastic can. This way I'm able to pack almost three times as much film in my camera bag.

When I carry more than one type of film, I either color code the top of each can with a small, colored gummed label (you can buy these at most office-supply stores) or mark a code on the top of each can with colored grease pencil — green for Tri X, blue for daylight color film, red for tungsten color film, yellow for negative color film.

I do wish, though, that Kodak and other film manufacturers would save me the trouble by packing the film in cans that are already color coded either on the can or lid so that you know what is inside without having to open the can. All Kodak films, for example, come in gray cans with black tops. It can be frustrating to search for a particular type of film when you have a hundred or more of these cans jammed into your camera bag.

It would be even more helpful if, in addition to the color coding, they stamped the code for the film and number of exposures onto the lid — TX-36 for a 36 exposure roll of Tri X, for example. I guess that's asking for too much, though. Still, if any of you agree with me, drop a line or send a copy of this column to: Eastman Kodak Co. 343 State St., Rochester, N.Y. 14650.

Now, how do you tell if your film has been damaged by X-rays? Depending upon the dosage, it can be difficult. Some doses will have obvious effects like the shadow of sprocket holes or a piece of the camera showing on the film (this effect can also be caused by improper processing.) Less obvious will be the loss of contrast in the picture, the amount depending upon the dosage.

Be safe. Get a lead-shielded bag in which to carry your film, or request a hand inspection of your camera bag.

Grant Programs Assisting A&T

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Federal reimbursements for money spent on grant programs will enable North Carolina A&T University to pay off more than $1 million in debts this week, a school spokesman said Wednesday.

Henry Johnson, acting vice chancellor for fiscal affairs, said the university had received $700,000 in reimbursements for costs incurred in carrying out federally funded research programs.

Johnson said he did not know immediately how much indebtedness the university still had, but contended the school's financial position was improving.

The state auditor's office recently criticized A&T's handling of its financial records, prompting the University of North Carolina system to call on a special team of accountants to straighten out A&T's records.

Charge Plot To Steal The Mail

ATLANTA (AP) — Three California men have been bound over to a federal grand jury on charges of plotting to steal registered mail — valued at some $1 million — from an Eastern Airlines plane.

Authorities allege one of the three hid in the hold of a May 14 Los Angeles-to-Atlanta flight and stuffed mail into suitcases marked for Kansas City, where the bags were to be picked up.

One of the men was charged with violating federal stowaway laws and stealing registered mail, while the other two were charged with aiding and abetting him. The three appeared before a federal magistrate Wednesday.

Indict Former R.I. Official

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A former state House speaker is to be arraigned next week following his indictment by a federal grand jury on charges stemming from alleged kick-backs and influence peddling.

The indictments handed down Wednesday included allegations that Edward P. Manning demanded $7,500 but settled for $3,500 to arrange the 1977 purchase of over-priced furnishings for some Statehouse offices. The overcharges later were refunded to the state.

The charges carry penalties of up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine, said U.S. Attorney Paul Murray.

Budget Compromise At Hand, Dissent Is Growing

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a hard-fought compromise finally at hand, House and Senate negotiators face a bigger battle ahead as they try to sell the full Congress a 1981 budget that outlines a huge increase in defense spending and projects the first federal surplus in 12 years.

Even as the $613.3 billion spending plan awaited final approval from the conference committee, strong opposition appeared to be building in the House against its guns-over-butter priorities for fiscal 1981.

On a 10-6 vote Wednesday, House negotiators accepted a Senate proposal for $153.7 billion in defense spending. That is $5.8 billion above the figure settled on earlier by the full House and almost $20 billion more than this year's defense budget. The additional defense money would come from a wide variety of cuts in domestic programs favored by the House.

Five liberal-to-moderate Democrats, representing an influential swing bloc of House votes, opposed the deal, along with one conservative Republican.

The dissenting Democrats, who were promptly dubbed the "gang of five," vowed to join with other Democrats, upset with cuts in domestic programs, to fight the budget when it reaches the House floor next Wednesday or Thursday.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., House Budget Committee chairman, conceded that House approval would be "very difficult."

Giaimo apparently was counting on the support of Republicans and moderate-to-conservative Democrats to push the budget through the House. However, House Republicans traditionally have opposed Democratic budget proposals.

House rejection of the package, which would send it back to conference for further work, would be another blow to the balanced-budget drive already in trouble because of a deepening recession and rising unemployment.

"We lost the balanced approach that I feel is absolutely essential to achieve a balanced budget," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., one of the dissenters.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., another opponent, said he objected to the increase in the overall 1981 spending level that went above both the House and Senate versions. The overall increase was adopted by the conference committee largely to accommodate the higher defense figure.

Gephardt and Panetta were joined in opposing the compromise by Democratic Reps. Norman Y. Mineta of California, William Brodhead of Michigan and Timothy Wirth of Colorado. Rep. Eldon Rudd, R-Ariz., also voted no.

While the compromise defense amount was $5.8 billion above the House-approved figure of $147.9 billion, it represented a drop of only $2 billion from the original Senate amount of $155.7 billion. President Carter had requested $150.5 billion.

The agreement also set 1981 revenues at $613.8 billion and projected a $500 million surplus.

The House-passed budget called for $611.8 billion in spending and a $2 billion surplus. The Senate favored a $613.1 billion package that was balanced by using $100 million from Carter's 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline fee, which was blocked by a federal judge before it could take effect May 15. The administration is appealing that ruling.

Although favoring broad cuts in domestic programs, the 1981 budget compromise would not cut as deeply as the Senate had recommended into food stamps and public service job programs.

The compromise would keep alive the public service jobs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, a program the Senate wanted to kill. The number of jobs, however, would be reduced from 200,000 to between 100,000 and 150,000.

The agreement also dropped a Senate proposal to reduce food stamp benefits for families whose children receive free school lunches.

Earlier, the conferees agreed to delete money for Saturday mail delivery, revenue sharing to state governments and grants to local police departments.

The negotiators also agreed Wednesday to raise the 1980 budget ceiling, which already had been reached, by about $25 billion to $72.3 billion to accommodate higher-than-expected government spending due mainly to inflation. The revised 1980 budget projects a $46.6 billion deficit, up from a $29.8 billion deficit approved last fall.

Users Want To Burn Radioactive Wastes In Ga.

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Power Co. and the state's hospitals and universities are having trouble disposing of nuclear wastes and their problems may lead to a nuclear waste disposal site in Georgia. And a Nuclear Regulatory Commission official says many other states faced with the same problems also are considering creating their own dumping grounds.

The disposal problems began about six months ago when South Carolina imposed strict regulations on Chem-Nuclear Inc.'s Barnwell nuclear waste disposal site, where 85 percent of the nation's low-level nuclear waste is buried.

Since then, "between half a dozen and a dozen" requests for the Georgia's regulations on nuclear waste disposal sites have been received, said Bill Cline, a state Environmental Protection Division official.

In addition, the University of Georgia also has received permission from the Department of Human Resources to burn its low-level radioactive waste, Cline said.

"We've taken the position that its up to industries to evaluate potential sites and come to us with a proposal," Cline said. "We've had a number of people ask us what our requirements may be, but so far we haven't received any petitions for waste disposal sites."

Other states also are taking the first steps toward establishing their own disposal sites, said Robert G. Ryan, director of the Office of States Programs at the NRC in Washington.

"Every state in the union produces low-level nuclear wastes. The NRC has been saying it's a problem that must be addressed by the states as well as the federal government," said Ryan, noting that Texas, Illinois, Virginia and Michigan have been working on waste disposal site proposals. Creating a nuclear waste disposal site in Georgia is "presently under investigation by the company," said Tom Beckham, manager of nuclear generation at Georgia Power Co.

"We're looking at what other facilities are doing, looking at what we can do and we're looking at the regulations," Beckham said.

Under the strict new rules set up by Chem-Nuclear, a Georgia Power truck carrying low-level waste was cited for being too "hot" when it reached the Barnwell site.

Beckham said the problem has since been eliminated. NRC spokesman Ken Clark said the utility would "receive some regulatory action" for the recent incident.

Clark said other utilities, including Virginia Electric and Power Co. and the Tennessee Valley Authority also had been cited for transporting low-level waste with radiation levels above allowable limits.

"Low-level repositories such as Barnwell have temporarily suspended the burial rights of some companies because of improper shipments," Clark said. "They're cracking down, and we are too."

The problems facing university research laboratories and hospitals using nuclear medicine are different from those experienced by the power companies. But several university officials say the problems are complicated by a tangle of bureaucratic regulations.

Georgia Medical College at Augusta is about 30 miles from Barnwell, but some of its nuclear waste must be trucked cross-country to the disposal site at Hanford, Wash., said Dr. Jerry Allison, radiation safety officer at the college.

Georgia Tech has the same problem with a material known as liquid scintillation, a toluene-based oily material used to measure small amounts of radioactivity.

But the University of Georgia has solved its liquid scintillation disposal problem by getting a Department of Human Resources permit to burn it.

"The regulatory agencies sort of dragged their feet at first, but since we were within the limits there was nothing they could do to legally stop us," said Lowell Muse, radiation safety officer at Georgia. "We calculated the amount (or radiation) being emitted was less than 1 percent of the federal limits, so we decided to go ahead and do it."

Muse said the special boiler needed for the project has not been constructed yet, but when it is, "we'll mix 19 parts fuel oil to one part toluene. The University will have the option of using it to heat steam like they use any other fuel oil."

Muse said the liquid scintillation has only traces of radioactivity in it and the federal Environmental Protection Division recommends burning it.

But he said some state officials opposed the project because "they simply knew there would be some public outcry and they didn't want to take the pressure. There is a small group in Athens opposed to it, but they haven't seemed to generate a large following."

Burning the material is safer than the way the university used to dispose of it, Muse said.

"The university has over the years been allowed by the NRC to bury small amounts of radioactivity on the campus," he explained. "Then a couple of years ago, because of tougher regulations, it became difficult to do so, so they began sending the material to Barnwell."

"They discovered at Barnwell this oily waste was causing damage to the soil so it wouldn't hold the radioactivity in place, so they decided not to take it anymore," he said. "Ever since then, all universities have had trouble disposing of it."

VEPCO To Cut Salaries

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A "carrot and stick" program that will reduce the salaries of 150 executives of Virginia Electric & Power Co. by 8 to 10 percent will go into effect June 1.

The salary cutbacks are an incentive for the executives to make the utility more efficient and productive, said Vepco President William Berry.

"We've cut salaries, and that's the stick. The carrot is that, if we achieve our objectives, then in 1981 we will restore what was cut, plus a slight additional increase" of from 3 to 5 percent, Berry said.

The objectives cited by Berry are "to reduce rates and improve earnings."

Berry also said a variety of Vepco projects must be carried out well and on schedule if the lost pay is restored and the bonus paid.

To accomplish the goals, Berry said, "we felt we needed the dedication of each one of our management and executive people, and that one way to assure their full support was to provide them with an incentive plan to link their compensation with the success of the company."

Vepco's six top executives will take salary cuts of 10 percent, Berry said.

Humperdinck Is Declared Father

NEW YORK (AP) — A Manhattan Family Court judge has ruled that singer Engelbert Humperdinck is the legal father of a child born to a Sunday school teacher in 1976.

Judge Bruce M. Kaplan said after his ruling Wednesday that although Humperdinck's lawyer offered "a fine defense," the evidence offered by Kathy Jetter, 24, of Queens, was more decisive.

Although Miss Jetter reportedly sued Humperdinck for $1 million, Kaplan said lawyers for both sides would confer in early June to decide the size of any financial settlement.

Miss Jetter, mother of a three-year-old girl named Jennifer, charged that Humperdinck broke off the affair they began in June 1975 when she told him she was pregnant. She charged he told her, "You better get yourself a good lawyer."

It's More Fun Being A Waiter

CLEVELAND (AP) — Being a mayor can be a thankless job, especially when you're trying to pull a city out of fiscal default. It's more fun being a waiter, says Mayor George V. Voinovich.

Voinovich donned a red-and-white striped jacket Wednesday to pour coffee and fetch drinks at a luncheon to benefit the Northern Ohio Lung Association. The 48 celebrity volunteers also collected tips in their straw hats for the Christmas Seal benefit.

A TRUCK FOR THE WOUNDED — Anti-government demonstrators drive an army truck through Kwangho, South Korea, Thursday. The truck was commandeered during four days of fighting with the martial law troops, who were driven out of this provincial capital. The sign in front of the truck says it is for people wounded in the riots. (AP Laserphoto)

Approve Bill To Spur Competing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has approved a bill to encourage competition in the trucking industry by relaxing government regulation.

The measure, similar to one approved by the Senate, was sent to the to the full House Public Works and Transportation Committee on Tuesday. Sponsors said the bill would make it easier for new firms to get into trucking markets, require removal of circuitous route limitations, increase the number of commodities exempt from the Interstate Commerce Commission's economic regulations and provide greater rate flexibility.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined in moderate trading today but recovered from the day's steepest losses near the close of trading.

Analysts cited a number of factors weighing on the market but today's decline was also seen as a natural fading of buying interest after its recent gains.

"The market's action has been increasingly labored over the past six days' rise," said Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp.

He also noted that declining interest rates, which have been a major power behind the market's rally, also may have reached a level where investors feel uncertain about future moves.

Edmisten Eyes Jaycee Inquiry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Wednesday his office will investigate the North Carolina Jaycees to determine whether any laws were violated in the diversion of $142,000 in charity funds.

Edmisten said he would launch the investigation as soon as he receives a formal request from District Attorney Russell G. Walker Jr. of Asheboro, where the state Jaycee home office is located.

Walker made a verbal request for the probe on Tuesday.

"I have been besieged by people — Jaycees in town and in other areas — who are concerned about the situation," Edmisten said.

The investigation stems from an admission by state Jaycee officials that more than $142,000 collected through the sale of jelly at the N.C. Burn Center at Chapel Hill had been diverted to pay membership dues to the national Jaycee organization.

The money was to have gone to the tax-exempt N.C. Jaycee Foundation, the charity arm of the state Jaycees.

A spokesman for the attorney general said if the investigation determined that laws were broken, a thorough state investigation into the organization's handling of funds will be conducted.

A group of past and present Jaycee officials have scheduled a special meeting June 6 of the organization's executive committee and local officers. At that time, they will vote by secret ballot whether to endorse the candidacy of J. Harold Herring, a former state president and currently the unopposed candidate for national president.

Herring, who figured prominently in the financial scandal, has said he would drop out of the race if he does not receive an endorsement.

Herring, 32, now a fundraiser for Mount Oliver College and other educational institutions, is a former administrative aide for Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. He was president of the state Jaycee organization when the funds were diverted.

Local Woman Meet Leader

The objectives of the conference were creating public awareness of the necessity for leadership development for conference participants, identifying and defining leadership, stimulating leadership training through resources at local, regional, state and national levels, and encouraging follow up activities through volunteer efforts of conferees.

Other topics covered at the conference were coping with stress, church careers for women, financial management, women and business, women and the law, and women and community service.

Rebellion In South Korea

KWANGJU, South Korea (AP) — A citizens' rebellion against martial law spread over the southwest corner of South Korea today after up to 200,000 demonstrators seized control of Kwangju, the capital of Cholla Namdo province and a city of 800,000 population.

Some 100,000 protesters turned out again today, listening to anti-martial law speeches. Acting Prime Minister Park Chung-hoon, meanwhile, helicoptered to an army compound in Kwangju and urged citizens to return to their homes and jobs. "Nothing can be solved through rioting and violence," he said.

At least 24 persons were reported killed, there were more than 300 injured, and 36 buildings were wrecked in four days of street battles in Kwangju as paratroopers and riot police were unable to quell well-armed demonstrators demanding the resignation of South Korea's new strongman, Lt. Gen. Chun Doo-hwan, and an end to martial law.

Other demonstrators burned the central police station in Mokpo, on the coast 50 miles southwest of Kwangju; raised a police armory in Naju, midway between the two cities.

Returned To West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops returned two Palestinian families to their homes in the occupied West Bank today, six days after they were sent to an abandoned refugee camp because a son threw rocks at a military jeep, a spokesman for the West Bank military command said.

On Tuesday, one of the families appealed the eviction to the Supreme Court, but no date was set for a hearing. In the meantime, the defense ministry decided to send the families home for "humanitarian" reasons.

The families had been moved to the middle of the Ein Sultan camp outside Jericho after a son was caught throwing stones at a military jeep in Bethlehem. The camp, which has been empty for years, has no running water or electricity and press reports said the families were besieged at night by wild dogs.

Military authorities said there was no plan to keep the families there for very long, but the punishment was used to deter others from throwing stones or firebombs at Israeli vehicles.

Pirates Face Harvard In First Round

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's Pirates will be facing Harvard University, winners of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League championship, in the first game of the Northeastern NCAA Regionals Friday morning.

But the Crimson doesn't worry ECU Coach Hal Baird as much as the long layoff his Pirates went through while waiting for the NCAA bid.

The Pirates were the last team in the 32-team NCAA field to gain a bid, having to wait until Wichita State clinched the Missouri Valley Conference title to know whether they would get the chance to play or not. In the meanwhile, the Pirates haven't played a game since April 28, over three weeks ago. It will be nearly four weeks, less a day, since the Pirates actually faced a foe when they take to the field in the opening game of the Regional tournament.

Nevertheless, Baird feels that the Pirate chances are good. "I know that our bats are going to be a little slow at first," Baird said, "but I'm hopeful that our defense can carry us until we get going."

The ECU team was hastily called together on Tuesday, after the bid was confirmed, but it wasn't until Wednesday that the team had a chance to work out together. Two workouts that day, coupled with another scheduled this afternoon after the team arrives in Orono, a suburb of Bangor, Maine, site of the tournament, should help get out some of the kinks.

"But it's not like playing all along," Baird said. "These other teams have been playing and that is going to be an asset for them. Here we are trying to cram two weeks of work into two days."

Harvard and East Carolina meet in the first game of the double-elimination event Friday at 11 a.m., while St. John's and hosting Maine collide at 2 p.m. The first day's losers meet at 11 a.m. Saturday, with the winner's bracket teams facing each other at 2 p.m.

The losers' bracket finals will be Sunday at 12 noon, and the championship game at 3 p.m. Should a second championship game be needed, it would be played on Monday.

"I think we are probably better prepared for this tournament than any other East Carolina team I've known about," Baird said. "I've been associated with two of the NCAA teams before, one as a player, and one the first year I was an assistant here."

"This team has more talent overall than either of those teams. We feature more balance and we have a good pitching staff, more scoring capability. I don't think we have any glaring weaknesses. So I have to feel like we have a good chance in the tournament."

While the hasty regrouping of the Pirates could present some problems as far as getting the cobwebs off the game, Baird doesn't feel like the quick travel plans, to ECU, and then on to Maine will be a problem. "It may be a little cooler up there than it is here, but that's about all. I don't know what kind of field we'll have to play on, but I understand it's well kept. I don't know about the size of it however."

Baird still isn't sure who will draw the starting nod on the mound for the Pirates. "I'll have to look and see what kind of lineup the opposition has first before I decide: how many lefthanders they have in the lineup."

More than likely, however, the nod will go to righthander Bill Wilder, who posted a 10-1 record this season, while fashioning a 1.79 earned run average.

Second game honors could go to either Mickey Britt (4-0, 3.38), Bobby Patterson (6-2, 3.40), or Rick Ramey (5-1, 2.95).

"I hope that our defense will stabilize us until we get back on our feet at the plate," Baird said. "I'm not so much worried about the opposition as I am about how quickly we'll be playing our own game again. "We don't really have enough time to get ready. I'd like to have had a week, but our defense shouldn't suffer. I just hope our pitching won't."

Butch Davis, who set a new single season slugging average of nearly .900 this year with seven doubles, six triples and 12 home runs, leads the regulars in hitting with a .383 average.

But he's only one of seven starters who own a .300-plus average. Next comes designated hitter John Hallow and first baseman Rick Derechallo, both hitting .337, and centerfielder Billy Best, at .336.

They are followed by catcher Raymie Styons at .330, rightfielder Macon Moyer at .326, third baseman Todd Hendley at .306. Shortstop Kelly Robinette, .227, and second baseman Mike Sorrell, .215, are the only regulars not in the .300's.

Harvard, 22-10 on the year, will be somewhat handicapped by the loss of their leading hitter, centerfielder Charlie Santos-Buch, who missed the last ten games with a broken hand. He was hitting .348 prior to his injury. He is not expected to be ready to play in the tournament.

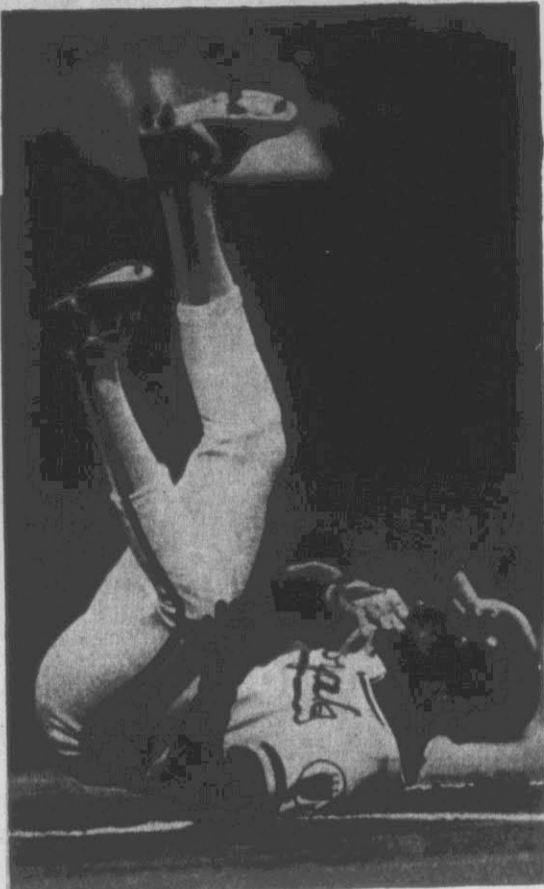

The next leading hitter among the regulars is second baseman Bob Kelley at .292, followed by Mark Bingham, the first baseman, at .277. Brad Bauer, the shortstop is third with a .265 average.

Harvard's team batting average is .263, as compared to .312 for the Pirates.

Rob Alevizos, 6-0, is likely to get the call to face the Pirates on the mound. The righthander owns a 1.82 earned run average, having lowered it from the 4.00 area by hurling three straight shutouts. Next in line is Bill Doyle, 6-2, with a 3.42 earned run average.

Harvard's team ERA is 3.48, while ECU owns a 2.83 mark.

The tournament winner advances to the final field of eight for the College World Series in Omaha, Neb.

Eight Years: Big Difference

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Eight years ago, in their first year of National Hockey League competition, the New York Islanders won just 12 games. Tonight, they're on the verge of winning the Stanley Cup.

All the Islanders have to do to become the second expansion team in NHL history to earn one of sport's most prestigious trophies is beat the Philadelphia Flyers.

The Islanders lead the best-of-seven championship series three games-to-one but coach New York coach Al Arbour is trying not to take anything for granted.

Maybe it sounds corny, but Arbour says bluntly, "It still takes four victories to win the Cup."

This, even though the Islanders' coach can almost taste the champagne that will fill the huge silver trophy for the winner.

Actually, Arbour's words aren't completely empty.

In 1942, the Toronto Maple Leafs came back from a 3-1 deficit to beat the Detroit Red Wings for the coveted Cup. But it isn't likely, since history also shows that was the only time such a feat has been accomplished in an NHL final.

Arbour also recalls a 1975 playoff series in which his team trailed the Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 in a best-of-seven quarterfinal and then won three straight.

The Islanders also will be trying to create a new image for a franchise that just two years ago was in financial trouble.

The Islanders had their problems during the season. They got off to a poor start, losing star defenseman Denis Potvin for 40 games because of an injury. The team actually didn't begin to jell until March after a trade that brought center Butch Goring from the Los Angeles Kings.

They moved from ninth in the overall standings to fifth and finished third in the Patrick Division, 25 points behind the Flyers, who were the regular-season champions.

In the playoffs, however, the Islanders disposed of Los Angeles, the Boston Bruins and the Buffalo Sabres. It was a team reaching its peak. On the other hand, the Flyers had a dream season, but they're ever-so-close to a nightmarish finish.

Coach Pat Quinn's team set an NHL record, going unbeaten through 35 games, but experienced a mild slump in the final month of the season.

The Flyers appeared to regain their sharpness in disposing of Vancouver, the Rangers and Minnesota en route to the showdown with the Islanders.

In the first game of the final series, the Flyers lost to the Islanders and gave up the home ice advantage it took them 80 games to acquire.

The Flyers still are hopeful. There is a good chance that winger Paul Holmgren and defenseman Jimmy Watson, both injured in the third game of the series, may be available tonight. Holmgren, if he plays, probably will have a brace on a damaged knee, while Watson would have extra protection for an injured shoulder.

Even if Holmgren and Watson do play, the Flyers are a team that has to shake a slump in its overall play.

Cowens Leaves Texas With A Big Headache

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

A stomach disorder kept California's Al Cowens from sleeping all week, but he slipped the Texas Rangers a knockout drop in the form of a pinch three-run homer Wednesday night.

The towering blast off Sparky Lyle was Cowens' first homer in a California uniform and capped a four-run seventh inning that enabled the Angels to defeat the Rangers 9-8, their third consecutive triumph in Arlington Stadium where they won only once in each of the last three years.

Two nights ago, Cowens was in the hospital.

"I had stomach cramps so bad I couldn't sleep, so I went to the hospital at 3 a.m.," he said. "I had to get some shots so I could sleep."

He must have taken a quick medical lesson because his three-run shot put the Rangers to sleep.

"Al has been taking medicine that makes him dizzy, but I imagine he feels a whole lot better now," California Manager Jim Fregosi said.

If the baseball season ends tonight — and the players are scheduled to strike at midnight, for how long nobody knows — the final American League games will be meaningless. The New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox have "insurmountable" leads in their respective divisions.

The Yankees took a 1½-game lead over Toronto in the AL East by defeating the Detroit Tigers 9-5 in 11 innings while the Blue Jays were thrashed by the Boston Red Sox 11-2. In the AL West, the White Sox bowed to the Minnesota Twins 3-2 but maintained their one-game advantage over Kansas City when the Oakland A's shaded the Royals 4-2 in 14 innings. The White Sox are not scheduled tonight.

Yankees 9, Tigers 5
Graig Nettles opened the New York 11th with a home run and Ruppert Jones added a two-out, three-run shot, both off Aurelio Lopez, as the Yankees unloaded five homers and posted their first triumph in six extra-inning games. Nettles' blow snapped a 5-5 tie that existed since the eighth, when Detroit's Steve Kemp greeted New York reliever Rudy May with a first-pitch three-run homer.

Lou Piniella hit a three-homer and Eric Soderholm and Bobby Brown had solo shots for the Yankees while Duffy Dyer slammed a two-run homer for the Tigers.

"You've got to hit somebody good," said Nettles. "Why not Detroit? When I first broke in back in 1968 I played well here and it's carried over. Tiger Stadium is the worst park to hit a ground ball in because the grass is so high, but it's probably one of the best to hit a ball out of."

Twins 3, White Sox 2
John Castino banged out four singles and Jose Morales hit a solo home run to back the seven-hit pitching of Geoff

Zahn and help Minnesota snap Chicago's four-game winning streak.

Bullets To Play Again

Both the Jamesville baseball and softball teams continue their pursuit of state titles Friday.

The baseball team, now 21-2, travels to Bath for an 8 p.m. battle while the girls' softball squad, 16-1, meets Currituck at 5 p.m. in Plymouth.

In other playoff action, Greene Central's baseball team, 21-3, travels to Jacksonville to meet White Oak at 8 p.m. tonight in the quarterfinals of the State 3-A Championships.

Phillies, Reds Play Like Season Over

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds played their three-game series as if it were coming at the end of the season. With a players' strike likely after tonight's games, maybe it was.

The two teams combined for 40 runs and 67 hits in the series, with the Phillies winning two of the games, including Wednesday night's cliff-hanging 9-8 decision. The matchup saw some aggressive play usually only seen in the playoffs or late in the season when a pennant is on the line.

With the Reds leading 8-7 going into the ninth, Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt led off with a shot down the third base line that took a hop over Ray Knight — who had two triples, a single and four RBI in the losing cause — and head into left field.

Schmidt decided to try for a double and when left fielder George Foster's throw came to the inside of second base, Schmidt slid around the lunging tag of second baseman Junior Kennedy. He then scored the tying run on a single by Greg Luzinski, who is on a hitting tear that shows him with four homers and seven hits in his last nine at-bats. "I saw the ball hop over Knight and I thought I could make second," said Schmidt of his daring baserunning. "Sure, a good throw would have had me. I just took over."

"I can't see anything wrong with that baserunning," said Phillies Manager Dallas Green. "You're going to get that poor throw at times. I talked about aggressiveness all spring."

After Del Unser walked, Manny Trillo lined a ball to right that Dave Collins muffed for an error, and pinch-runner Lonnie Smith scored the winning run.

"I missed it," said the shaken Collins. "The ball was kind of glaring in the light and at the last second it sort of fish-tailed. No excuses, I should have had the ball."

"I've never dropped the ball before with the game on the line," added Collins, who also had his 15-game hitting streak snapped.

"I guess there is a first time for everything," Collins said. "I'm not happy with the way I played tonight. I didn't contribute offensively and then defensively I cost us the game."

Luzinski, faced with seeing his hitting groove lost because of the potential strike, said everyone on the team is upset.

"You could feel it around the batting cage," said the Phillies' outfielder.

"I'm just sitting back waiting for a catastrophe to happen," said Green, who added that he couldn't enjoy the victory.

The Reds' 8-7 lead going into the ninth was built primarily on Knight's two triples and four RBI.

Pirates 4-3, Padres 3-2 Pittsburgh came from behind to win both games of the doubleheader. Mike Easler's solo homer and a bloop RBI single by Bill Robinson won the opener in the ninth inning and Tim Lincecum's first homer and an RBI groundout by Steve Nicosia brought the defending World Series champions back in the second game. Foli's homer, which tied the second game in the seventh inning, was only the 18th of his 11-year National League career.

Expos 3, Braves 2 Rowland Office's out-out double in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Ron LeFlore from second base to give Montreal the victory. Atlanta had tied the score in the top of the inning on Joe Nolan's two-out, pinch-hit single that temporarily denied Steve Rogers his fourth victory in eighth season.

Mets 5, Astros 1 Lee Mazzilli drove in two runs and Doug Flynn scored three times to support pitcher Pete Falcone as New York downed Houston. Falcone, 3-2, allowed only four hits, including Enos Cabell's homer that gave Houston its only run, through eight innings before being relieved by Neil Allen, who picked up his seventh save.

Dodgers 5, St. Louis 3 Los Angeles won its sixth straight game and 10th in 11 decisions with a four-run eighth inning highlighted by Dusty Baker's three-run homer. St. Louis starter Bob Forsch held the Dodgers to three singles and had a 3-1 lead through seven innings before they struck back. Steve Garvey preceded Baker's homer with an RBI single.

Giants 4, Cubs 1 Vida Blue held Chicago to four singles after the first inning and finished with a six-hitter to register his fourth straight victory. The veteran left-hander, who has allowed just six earned runs in the four triumphs, was helped by run-scoring doubles in the fourth inning by Terry Whitfield and Milt May.

Cowens...

(Continued From Page 17) streak as well as Zahn's personal four-game losing skid. Morales' second home run of the season tied the score 1-1 in the fourth inning and Roy Smalley's grounder with runners at second and third in the fifth put the Twins in front. The decisive run came in the sixth when Pete Mackanin singled, went to third on a single by Morales and scored when Ron Jackson grounded into a force play.

Red Sox 11, Blue Jays 2 Jim Dwyer and Tony Perez each hit two home runs and Jim Rice also homered while Mike Torrez hurled seven innings for his first victory of the season. Perez hit a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the ninth while Dwyer hit a solo homer in the fifth and a three-run blast in the ninth.

"I just feel real good up at the plate," said Dwyer, who has hit four home runs this season, all against Toronto in the last three games. "Whatever they throw, I'm able to see real well. I'm not trying to hit home runs. I'm just trying to make contact and hit it hard wherever they throw it."

A's 4, Royals 2 Tony Armas drove in the winning run with a single in the 14th inning and Bob Lacey pitched 52-3 innings of scoreless relief as Oakland ended Kansas City's four-game winning streak. Rickey Henderson drew a one-out walk off Dan Quisenberry in the 14th and stole second. Quisenberry intentionally walked Dwayne Murphy but Armas followed with a single and Wayne Gross' single produced an insurance run.

Indians 4, Orioles 2 Rookie Joe Charboneau drove in two runs with a homer and single and Len Barker picked up his fifth victory by pitching 71-3 innings. The Indians scored twice in the first inning off Mike Flanagan. Toby Harrah doubled, stole

Wellcome 8, Moose 6

Wellcome slipped past the Moose, 8-6, in Tar Heel Little League action yesterday. The win left Wellcome with a 3-2 record, while the Moose fell to 1-4.

Wellcome scored first, getting three runs in the bottom of the first inning. The Moose rallied, however, scoring five runs in the second to gain the lead. Wellcome came back with two in the third, tying it at 5-5, then pushed over what proved to be the difference in the fifth.

John Whichard reached on a fielder's choice and moved up on an error. Dallas McPherson walked after a passed ball had moved Whichard to third. McPherson stole second and another passed ball scored Whichard. Scott Carawan walked and also stole second, and another passed ball let McPherson in, moving Carawan to third. Terry Warren walked, and a double steal allowed Carawan to score. The Moose added one more run in the sixth.

Lark Wetherington led the Wellcome hitting with two, while Peter Kallweit had two for the Moose.

Coca-Cola 5, Jaycees 3

Coca-Cola knocked the Jaycees off their unbeaten perch in the North State Little League yesterday, gaining a 5-3 victory. The loss dropped the Jaycees to 4-1, while Coke climbed to 3-2. The Jaycees struck first, getting all three of their runs in the top of the third. Coke came back in its half of the inning to score three, all on James Matthews' home run, tying it up.

Then, in the fifth, Coke pushed over the winning runs. Mark Coburn walked and Mike Sasser followed with a two-run blast over the fence for the 5-3 margin.

Sasser and Matthews each had two hits to lead Coke. No one had more than one hit for the Jaycees.

Little Hope In Averting Baseball Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — With a strike deadline only hours away, baseball negotiators faced a nearly impossible task today, meeting for one last time in an effort to reach an agreement on a new contract that would prevent a play stoppage.

There was little hope that a strike could be averted after another round of fruitless talks Wednesday.

"Unless there is a complete change of heart, we're headed pell mell for a strike," said federal mediator Kenneth Moffett. "We're in deep trouble."

Moffett said no progress had been made at Thursday's session when the players association presented a revised proposal to owner representatives.

"Sitting at the end of the table and hearing the two sides, it sounded to me as if we were a month away from a deadline instead of 30 hours," the mediator said.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, said there would be no avoiding the deadline in his talks with management.

"A strike creates pressure," Miller said. "Removing the deadline creates no pressure."

Miller said player representatives of all 26 major league teams had been sent telegrams restating the will of the union's executive board which voted unanimously on April 1 to strike unless a contract is negotiated by May 23.

"Games Thursday night will be completed. The strike begins May 23," Miller said. "Nothing changes that except an agreement."

But the two sides seem miles away from any settlement.

"We did not make any progress," Miller reported. "We have negotiated for six months and produced nothing even approaching an agreement, even with a strike deadline. That's the best shot for progress. Now they propose removing the deadline and then work for an agreement. They say if we reach one, it would be retroactive. Well I learned a long time ago that if you're offered zero retroactively, it's still zero."

Ray Grebey, chief of the management negotiating team, dismissed a player association proposal made Wednesday which Miller said had "substantially revised downward" a number of union demands.

"It contained nothing new or that we hadn't already talked about," Grebey said. "And there was a serious omission. It didn't deal with compensation."

Miller bristled at that description.

"I love the way he obscures the truth," the union chief said. "It's true that the proposal dealt with no issues not discussed before. But he led you to believe it didn't change anything and that's misleading."

Miller said the players had offered reduced demands in the areas of minimum salaries, pension contributions and "split" contracts for players who perform both in the major and minor leagues in a single season.

"There were other important revisions and deletions," Miller said. "It produced virtually nothing in the way of movement."

The movement management still insists on from the players is acceptance of a formula for compensating clubs losing "premium" free agents. The last proposal on that matter was made last week. At that time the owners suggested ranking players by pitching or batting appearances in order to determine whether they would qualify for compensation as free agents.

The players association rejected that idea, saying such a formula would classify 222 hitters and pitchers with earned run averages of over 6.00 as "premium" free agents.

Management responded Wednesday with a four-page information sheet distributed to all players. It said that only nine of last winter's 44 free agents would qualify for compensation under their proposal.

Some who would not have fallen into "premium" classification, the owners said, included Rudy May, Fred Norman, Tony Perez and Renie Stennett.

Meanwhile, clubs prepared for what seemed an almost certain interruption in the season. Although weekend advance ticket sales remained strong in many cities, teams were readying refund plans for fans.

"Our ticket sales have never been better," said Jack Schrom, vice president of public relations and marketing for the Pittsburgh Pirates. "The threat of a strike has not put a dent in us in the least. In fact, we have well over a half million seats sold for future games, conservatively speaking. The money's in."

The Pirates expected about 80,000 fans this weekend for a series against San Diego. If the strike comes, the team said refunds would be made.

Cincinnati hoped for 100,000 for a three-game series against Montreal, slightly higher than the team drew over Memorial Day last year. Fans have not asked for refunds yet and the club has not made any refund plans yet.

In Baltimore, the Orioles sold 37,000 advance tickets for a weekend series against Detroit. It would be the club's first weekend home series this season. "We don't want to say anything at this moment about refunds," said General Manager Hank Peters. "We'll make those announcements at the proper time."

Milwaukee has sold between 65,000 and 70,000 seats for a six-game home stand against Minnesota and Seattle which was to begin Friday night.

Soviets Try New Olympic Enticement

By The Associated Press
With more than 40 countries boycotting the Summer Olympics, the Soviet Union needs all the teams it can get.
That's why, it would seem, Soviet officials have made a rather unique gesture to Colombia's Olympic team.
In an apparent move to save what's left of their scaled-down Olympics, Soviet officials will fly the Colombian team to Moscow for the Summer Games.
Colombia's participation in the Olympics was in doubt because the Colombian Sports Federation was having financial problems. But the Colombian Olympic Committee (COC) said Wednesday that Soviet officials would fly Colombian athletes roundtrip from Mexico to Russia.

The COC said it will appeal to private Colombian businesses to come up with $76,000 needed for equipment, uniforms, roundtrip fares from Bogota to Mexico and other costs.
A total of 34 athletes, coaches and aides will be sent by Colombia to the Games in July. Meanwhile, Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said it would probably not be until Tuesday before he gets "a full report from Moscow" regarding exactly how many countries will attend the Games.

Although the deadline for entries is Saturday, Killanin said:
"I would be ready to extend the deadline to help any national Olympic committees which are late in making their decisions."

Killanin was back home in Dublin, Ireland, following a trip to both the Soviet Union and the United States, where he talked with the heads of both countries in an attempt to take politics out of the Games.
Killanin said Wednesday he had told Soviet President Brezhnev that the awarding of the Summer Games to Moscow was not a stamp of approval for the Soviet Union's policies, as stated in the handbook for Communist activists and sent to Soviet embassies all over the world.

"I understand this book was printed only in Russian and that the award of the Olympic Games to Moscow was an expression of confidence in the Soviet system and foreign policy," said the IOC leader. "I told President Brezhnev as clearly as possible this is not so. I told him, 'We did not award the Games to Moscow for any political reasons, but in recognition of the Soviet Union's contribution to sport.'"

Killanin saw Brezhnev in the Kremlin and President Carter in the White House in an unsuccessful attempt to resolve the dispute that is likely to cut participation in this summer's Olympics by virtually half.
Following Carter's call to boycott the Games because of the Soviet's military presence in Afghanistan, 49 countries—according to an Associated Press count—have decided not to send teams to Russia.
Killanin said the implacable Brezhnev showed no emotion when he warned him that only 50 or so countries might be represented in Moscow as a result of Russia's military action.

In another development, the U.S. Congress was asked Wednesday to strike special gold medals for America's Olympic athletes.
Sens. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, introduced legislation to strike

650 gold medals to honor the athletes "who, on the basis of outstanding performance, have earned places on the 1980 Olympic team."
Even though the U.S. Olympic Committee voted April 12 to support President Carter's boycott call, trials are being held to select a full team.
Elsewhere, the IOC announced that it will review the hotly disputed case of five East European women athletes who were reinstated after being disqualified for taking anabolic steroids.
Lord Killanin has asked the eligibility commission and medical commission to review the five cases and report to the executive board at its meeting at Lausanne, Switzerland, on June 9.
The athletes, whose cases have split the track and field world, are Natalia Marasescu, Iliana Silai and Stanla Vlad of Romania and Totka Petrova and Daniela Teneva of Bulgaria. They were disqualified by the European Athletic Association but reinstated by the council of the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF).

Simons Feels Tom Not Up To Jack's Par Yet

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Golfer Jim Simons believes Jack Nicklaus would beat Tom Watson most of the time if you could match golf's two professional superstars in their primes.
"I don't think at this point Tom has what Nicklaus had," said Simons before the first round today in the $360,000 Memorial golf tournament. "Jack is the greatest pressure player I've ever seen. And he's the most composed player I ever saw."
"I like the guy who can gear himself up for a golf tournament and win. That's what Nicklaus did."
Nicklaus, 40, owns two all-time records, 17 major tournament victories and career earnings of $3.5 million in 20 professional years. The 30-year-old Watson's totals are three majors and $2 million in his PGA tour decade.
"It looks as if Jack's majors record may never be broken. As great as Tom is, he's not even close to Jack's majors," Simons said.

Simons, the 1978 Memorial champion, offered some reasons why Nicklaus is mired in the worst slump of his career and Watson is off to his best start ever.
Nicklaus has not won since August 1978. Meanwhile, Watson has reeled off 12 victories in that stretch.
Simons said of Nicklaus: "He's pushing too hard. He's to the point where he's playing poorly for him. He may doubt himself. That's not characteristic. Jack is as strong-willed as anyone."
"I think he needs more competition. There's no substitute for competitive golf. You can practice all you want at home, but you're not going to accomplish anything."
Nicklaus made only 12 tour appearances in 1979, spending time with his family in Florida and tending to his businesses. He has played in just seven tournaments this year, finishing in the top 10 only once.
"It's not the physical part, it's the mental part that Jack has let slide. But I don't have any doubt he will win again. If he had won at the Doral (second), it would have done a lot for his psyche," Simons said.

The nine-year pro from Pittsburgh is puzzled over Watson's success, which includes five tour victories and more than $331,000 in earnings this season.
"He hits a lot of poor shots," Simons said of Watson's game. "He's very inconsistent at striking the ball. But he's very consistent around the greens. He's not disturbed by a poor shot. Nicklaus wasn't either."

Consumer Health Specialist Urges Congress To Ban Darvon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer health specialist is urging Congress to ban the painkiller Darvon, contending it is a form of "legalized dope" which has been responsible for more than 11,000 deaths in the last eight years.

Sidney M. Wolfe, a physician who heads the Public Citizen Health Research Group, was to make his case for tighter controls on one of the nation's most popular prescription drugs at a hearing today before a House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee on health.

He said the drug is no more effective than aspirin but is responsible for more deaths than any other prescription product. Abuse is made simple because Darvon is frequently prescribed and there are loose restrictions on refills, he added.

"That this narcotic drug — tantamount to legalized dope — is a serious public health problem is not arguable," Wolfe said in prepared testimony.

He cited other estimates from the Drug Abuse Warning Network that there have been about 79,000 hospital emergency-room visits involving Darvon since 1972, the first year data was collected.

If a ban on the drug seems too stringent a course, Congress at least should order federal programs like Medicare and Medicaid to stop paying for its use and doctors should be urged to deny their patients automatic refills, Wolfe said.

Wolfe also discounted the voluntary educational campaign run by Eli Lilly & Co. of Indianapolis, the major maker of the drug, to remind the public and physicians of the dangers in misusing Darvon.

The Food and Drug Administration sharply criticized the campaign, saying the company's representatives were doing more promoting than warning when they talked with doctors.

FDA Commissioner Jere Goyan, who also was scheduled to testify, was expected to cite a decrease in the number of cases of Darvon abuse and associated deaths over the past two years. Goyan was likely to argue that although the agency is monitoring this evidence closely, it is too soon to decide whether a ban is warranted.

The FDA rejected a petition by Wolfe's group last year to ban the drug.

Darvon, which has the chemical name propoxyphene, can cause addiction, serious injury or death when taken with alcohol, with other drugs or in large doses.

A United Nations Commission on Narcotic Drugs has called for its members to observe production quotas on propoxyphene products. The United States is a commission member, but federal officials have yet to take final action on the U.N. commission request.

Wolfe estimated that Eli Lilly has sold more than $1 billion worth of Darvon since the drug was introduced in 1957.

He said there is a correlation between the quantity of Darvon prescribed and the amount which is abused.

Between 1976 and 1979, for example, prescriptions fell one third from 37 million to 24.9 million while emergency-room visits dropped 29 percent from almost 4,000 to 2,817.

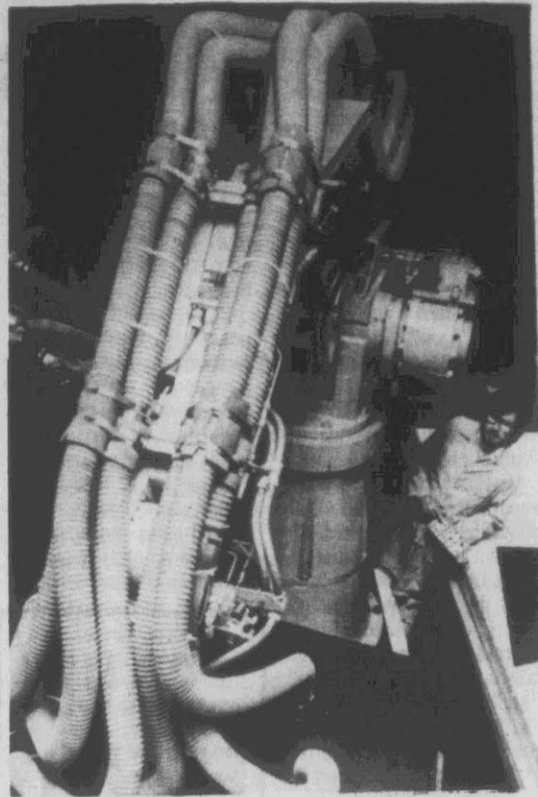

Between 1976 and 1978, the last year for which there is complete data on deaths, the number of Darvon-related deaths dropped 12 percent while the number of prescriptions dropped 16 percent, he said.

Wolfe cited an FDA study estimating there were 11.6 million Darvon users in 1978 and that 72,000 were refilling their prescriptions so that they had access to 12 pills a day. This amount is twice the recommended dose and enough to cause addiction if used regularly.

Another 426,000 persons got refills which gave them more than 180 pills a month, or more than the recommended amount, the study said.

Higher Tobacco Price Supports

RALEIGH — Price supports for 1980 flue-cured tobacco will be increased to an average level of $1.414, an increase of 9.4 percent over the 1979 average, U.S. Department of Agriculture officials said Tuesday.

In announcing the increase, the department also said eight grades of downstalk tobacco would be dropped from the support program because of light demand and excessive supply.

Loan support rates range from 87 cents to $1.82 depending on the grade of tobacco.

The average loan rate is set annually by the USDA according to a federal formula based on all farmers' costs of production for the preceding three years.

Price supports are guaranteed prices that farmers are paid if they are unable to sell their leaf at auction. The tobacco bought under the program is held by the grower-owned Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp.

North Carolina tobacco specialist John H. Cyrus praised the move by USDA to drop price supports on the eight grades of downstalk.

"It would have caused considerable problems in the stabilization program because of apparent weak demand," Cyrus said. "It made poor collateral for loans."

Without price supports, it would not be profitable for farmers to market downstalk leaf because there would be no federal guarantee that it would be purchased.

Stabilization Corp. manager Fred G. Bond said he hoped farmers would leave the eight grades without supports in the fields.

Twenty-four educators from campuses in 13 states will be participants in a solar energy workshop at East Carolina University June 9-29.

The workshop, co-sponsored by the ECU Department of Physics and the U.S. Department of Energy, is primarily designed for educational personnel at two-year colleges and technical institutes who will conduct solar energy science and technology programs for their local communities.

Each participating educator will be involved in lectures, laboratory sessions and field trip activities which emphasize practical aspects of solar energy use.

Among specific topics will be solar radiation, energy conversion and transfer, heat load calculations, collector design and choice of materials, energy collection system performance and control, passive solar systems and solar electricity.

Directing the two-week program are Drs. Carl Adler and J. William Byrd of the ECU physics faculty.

Riot-Torn Businesses Ponder Their Futures

By ANNE S. CROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — "I'll never understand it," said Norton Pallot as he waded through the debris of his huge auto store, destroyed when rioting erupted in his northwestern Miami neighborhood.

Pallot's 60 employees are out of jobs. And his Norton Tire Co. has lost a million dollars. "But it's more than the money," he said Wednesday as he tried to decide whether to rebuild in Liberty City. "We worked hard to build this business."

As the rioting sparked by the acquittal Saturday of four white ex-police officers in the death of Arthur McDuffie subsided, community and business leaders faced the question of whether to rebuild, where to locate, how to start over.

"It's like owning property in the Keys when a devastating hurricane comes through," said a real estate analyst who declined to give his name. "It takes years for people to forget the damage and be willing to buy property there."

Businessmen Ronald Rideman vowed to clean up the family business, Jet Drugs, which was ransacked and firebombed in three days of rioting.

"We've been there for 17 years," he said. "We have a lot of friends there."

"This was my family's lifeblood. Now my whole family is out of work. It's like every day is Sunday now and we're just waiting for Monday so we can go back to work."

Gasification Plant Planned

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — City and federal officials hopped aboard a Mississippi River boat to sign a contract for the construction of a $700 million experimental coal gasification plant.

The plant, to be completed in five years, is expected to provide an alternative fuel source for industries dependent on natural gas. Deputy Energy Secretary John Sawhill said Wednesday the plant could give private industry "the technical confidence to build a truly national synthetic fuel industry."

The plant will be operated by the city-owned Memphis Light, Gas and Water Division. The DOE will provide $400 million of the construction costs.

But Harry Hammack, a white businessman who was stunned that rioters torched the junk shop he's owned for 30 years, said he was out of business.

"If you've got grievances, you take them to God. Who else can do something about them but Him?" Hammack said.

With many businesses gone for good, state officials said they expected to process as many as 3,000 new unemployment claims.

Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre suggested a coalition of business and government leaders make immediate ar-

Avert Another Police Strike

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Just hours before a threatened strike deadline, police and city officials reached agreement in a dispute over police demands for pay for work missed in a May 2 strike.

Under the terms of the agreement reached Wednesday, the police chief will be allowed to determine on a case-by-case basis whether officers may get paid days off or additions to their retirement benefits.

rangements for jobs, low-interest reconstruction loans and cultivate new local black leaders.

"I think for too many years now, we in cities have been sitting around expecting the federal government to solve all our problems," Ferre said. "I don't think the federal government should do it all, nor should we ask them to."

"There's no way those of us who live in air-conditioned comfort can live side-by-side with people who are 10 to a room that's infested by rats," Ferre said. "We've got to recognize the reality of where we live, what we are, who we are and where we're going."

Corporate leaders, though willing to help, were uncertain what they could do in a recession.

"Right now, the airlines are not setting things on fire economically, so we can't say we're going out and hire lots of people," said Tom Myers, spokesman for Miami-based Eastern Airlines.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In West Virginia, citizens who sign a petition to get John Anderson's name on the November ballot as an independent presidential candidate and then vote in a state primary could actually be sent to jail.

It's just one of many obstacles Anderson faces in getting his name on the ballot in all 50 states, a move that is necessary if his independent run for the presidency is to stand a chance.

In Kentucky, officials have notified the Anderson campaign that the presence of the congressman's name on the Republican primary election ballot May 27 — before he dropped his GOP campaign to run as an independent — will block him from an independent slot on the ballot in November.

In Michigan, officials are requiring Anderson to hold a nominating party convention even though he has no intention of forming a third national political party to get himself elected.

In California, where Anderson campaigned today, he must obtain 101,300 signatures by Aug. 8. But his supporters were barred from seeking signatures on petitions until after the June 3 presidential primary.

Legal barriers have yet to stop Anderson's campaign in any state, but it is becoming clear that they could. Much time and money are going into the problem, and it sometimes seems lawsuits are as plentiful as chicken dinner speeches in other campaigns.

West Virginia is a prime example of state where elections laws designed to discourage third-party and independent candidacies are proving troublesome.

There, potential supporters are being told that by signing petitions in his behalf, they will forfeit the right to vote in hotly-contested primary elections June 3.

Anderson, a House member for 20 years, must obtain 7,500 signatures on petitions by June 2, the day before presidential and local primary elections in the state.

There have been 1,949 names gathered over the last three weeks so that means another 5,551 signatures must be found over the next 12 days.

Anyone who signs a petition and then votes in the primary can be sent to prison for 10 days under a state misdemeanor statute.

"People are saying, 'I'll be damned if I'm going to give up my vote,'" said Jim Grant, Anderson's West Virginia campaign coordinator.

Only 1 of each 40 persons approached have agreed to sign, Grant said.

He said while he senses a deep well of support for Anderson in the state, many voters want to insure their right to vote in closely-fought congressional and local races.

Partially because the petition drive was going so slowly, Anderson made a hurriedly-planned surprise campaign visit to the state last weekend with his wife, Keke.

Ed Coyle, the national deputy campaign director, conceded Tuesday that West Virginia is "presenting us with our biggest problem."

He and Grant say they are confident they will find enough petition signers by June 2, but with little margin to spare.

If the campaign comes up short of the needed 7,500 names, officials say they will file a federal court suit to get Anderson's name on the ballot. Anderson, a firm supporter of the free-enterprise system, has also joined a lawsuit by the Socialist Workers Party seeking to overturn the West Virginia election statute.

In Michigan, the Anderson organization attracted three times the required 39,000 signatures, but now find themselves with a new legal thicket. State officials are interpreting the election law as requiring Anderson to pretend that he has formed a new party, including the holding of nominating caucuses and conventions. That also may be challenged in the courts.

Later this week, Mitchell Rogovin, Anderson's principal attorney, plans to file suit in Kentucky where the congressman is in a "damned-if-I-do, damned-if-I-don't situation."

Campaign strategists unsuccessfully attempted to get Anderson's name dropped in March from the May 27 Republican primary ballot.

Officials refused to drop his name, but are now invoking a "sore loser" provision of the law, which prevents anyone who has run in a primary as a Republican or Democrat from getting on the ballot as an independent or third party candidate.

Anderson lawyers are similarly considering challenging federal election laws which permit the major

Begin Study Harassment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today began mailing questionnaires to 20,000 federal employees for its first comprehensive study of the extent of sexual harassment in the federal workforce.

The Merit Systems Protection Board, which monitors aspects of the 1978 Civil Service Reform Act, is conducting the scientific survey, as requested by Congress.

The survey seeks to determine if sexual harassment problems are more prevalent at certain agencies or among specific age groups, occupations and geographic regions. The survey also will attempt to measure the effect of the problem on morale and government productivity.

Congress ordered the survey after hearing public testimony that sexual harassment is widespread in the federal government.

The Merit Systems Protection Board was set up last year to monitor whether the federal civil service is operating under the merit principles established by the Civil Service Reform Act. The board also watches for prohibited civil service practices, such as personal favoritism in hiring or reprisals for "whistleblowing."

party candidates to receive $29 million to finance their fall campaigns, but provide nothing for Anderson until after the election, and then only if he receives 5 per cent of the vote.

Postal regulations which permit the Republican and Democratic candidates to pay lower mass mailing rates will likely be challenged, too.

And other suits either have been or will be filed in five states where filing deadlines passed before Anderson announced on April 24 that he would run as an independent.

Brazilian Govm't Tactics Running Counter To Goal

By PETER EISNER
Associated Press Writer
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Persistent economic trouble and a crippling metalworkers' strike have led the military-backed government to adopt strong-arm tactics that go against President Joao Figueiredo's plan to re-establish democracy in Latin America's largest nation.

The recent government response to worsening inflation and social strife has been authoritarian and reminiscent of the stern military rule-by-decree that Figueiredo, a former army general, has pledged to eliminate. His regime also opened old conflicts with the Roman Catholic Church, complaining that some church leaders were inciting public disorder.

The government arrested key union leaders in the southern industrial state of Sao Paulo, where a strike that began April 1 idled more than 200,000 workers at its peak and cost the car industry, dominated by multinational corporations, almost $500 million.

Courts denied writs of habeas corpus for the imprisoned union leaders, including Luis Inacio da Silva, the most important labor leader in this nation of 123 million people.

Da Silva was arrested last month by political police, held incommunicado for a time and banned from participating in the union. He was charged with "endangering national security" and a could be sent to jail for 12 years if convicted.

Police clashed with demonstrators during the strike, arresting at least 100 persons and injuring others in scattered violence. Scenes of helmeted police clubbing strikers, journalists and passers-by, though isolated, did little to enhance Figueiredo's image as a liberalizing, populist force after 16 years of right-wing military rule.

The metalworkers voted to return to work as of May 12, but there were warnings of work slowdowns in an atmosphere of hostility toward the government and toward industrial leaders.

The strike added to Brazil's worsening economic woes. Inflation has been rising at an annual rate of 87 percent. The nation's trade deficit for the first three months of the year was $1.4 billion, compared with $2.7 billion for all of 1979. Brazil's foreign debt, biggest in the Third World, is close to $60 billion.

In an attempt to raise money for its depleted treasury and decrease borrowing pressure, the government also risked alienating important big businesses. Last month, presidential advisers sidestepped constitutional taxation questions by imposing a "compulsory loan" system on previously non-taxable income.

The program, which amounts to a 10 percent capital gains tax, wipes out most of the tax incentives that have made Brazil a haven for investment. The tax will be applied retroactively on 1979 income tax statements, already filed with the government, and is expected to collect nearly $1 billion from Brazil's 30,000 richest taxpayers.

The hard-line tactics come little more than a year after Figueiredo took office as the fifth retired or active army general to lead this Portuguese-speaking nation since a 1964 military coup overthrew the elected government of the late President Joao Goulart, a leftist.

In the years that followed the coup, strict censorship was imposed, and government opponents were imprisoned — sometimes tortured and killed. Others disappeared or were exiled. The nation was always under the watchful eye of the military and police-backed vigilante groups.

But in the last few years, Brazil has experienced a loosening of military rule and something of a renaissance in politics. Following Figueiredo's March 15, 1979, inauguration, hundreds of exiles were allowed to return home, and political prisoners were freed. The government virtually eliminated censorship, though it moved slowly to dismantle the bureaucratic structures that made it work.

Figueiredo's advisers also initiated a political party arrangement with the stated goal of a return to free elections and full political activity. But recently, the government has indicated it may delay municipal elections scheduled for this year until 1982.

The government's long-standing feud with liberal church leaders also erupted as a result of the Sao Paulo strike. Priests opened church doors to union meetings when public squares and soccer fields were declared off limits by police. The government complained directly to the Vatican last month when Cardinal Paulo Evaristo Arns of Sao Paulo made pro-worker statements. The Vatican took no action, church officials said.

Most analysts doubted that the new tough stand really presaged the end of liberalization. A university social studies professor who usually supports the opposition defended the government and blamed strikers in Sao Paulo for forcing the regime to take repressive steps. He noted that the metalworkers already earn an average of more than $300 a month, almost four times the national minimum wage of $85 a month.

"This strike was not intended to help the workers, it was a political move by the union leadership," said the professor. "The government had to act."

One Western European diplomat often in close contact with the government said he was convinced the Figueiredo regime remains committed to a gradual return to democracy.

"What happened was that they opened the door and felt the first breeze. And, I suppose, for them it was like catching a sudden cold."

Being Caught 'Really Stupid'

LONDON (AP) — Rock superstar Paul McCartney says being caught in Japan with eight ounces of marijuana in his luggage made him feel "really stupid, like a schoolboy caught smoking a ciggie in the lavatory."
"I goofed. I didn't check if I was carrying any grass with me," McCartney said in an interview here. He said he has spent much of his time since the January arrest — when he was forced to spend nine days in a Tokyo jail before he was deported — at his farm in Sussex County and his cottage in Scotland.
He said he had no hard feelings about the incident.

Legacy Of Pain For Many After Miami's Violence

MIAMI (AP) — Shanreka Perry was playing in front of her house when a car, careening out of control with a shattered windshield, smashed into her. Barely alive when she reached the emergency room, the 11-year-old black girl pulled through. But her left leg and hip were amputated. Andy Vasquez, a 25-year-old medical student, was struck by a bullet and paralyzed — probably for life — from the neck down. Bertha Roger, doused with gasoline and set afire, will need years of therapy to regain use of her charred arms.

tioned Green. "But the chances are maybe one in a million... Don't fill him with false hope. Otherwise, he'll never be able to deal with the reality."

Mrs. Roger's boss at Tut-ties Restaurant says she can have her job back even if her recovery takes three years. Her daughter-in-law, Ileana Roger, who bears a 4-inch cut on her jaw from a rioter's rock, is bitter. "They say this is because one man didn't get justice," she said. "Do they think this is justice?"

Anderson In '2nd Stage'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson says while some legal obstacles may remain, he has begun the second stage of his independent campaign for the presidency.

"Sure, I'm in. Sure, I'm in," Anderson said Wednesday when asked about his continuing the race.

Anderson announced on April 24 he would stop competing for the Republican presidential nomination and mount a tentative independent effort which would depend upon his ability to get on the ballot in enough states for the general election. In the second stage, Anderson would remain in the race at least through the late summer or early fall, campaign sources have said.

Since his April announcement, Anderson has gotten more than enough signatures in Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Utah and Kansas.

Asked at a Los Angeles news conference Wednesday if he would continue the campaign, the congressman said:

"Well, there isn't any question really in my mind that I am going ahead."

He said there is a chance of "unexpected reverses," which might derail the effort, but at this point Anderson indicated the second stage has begun.

"We have an excellent chance of getting on the ballot in every one of the 50 states," he said.

Black, white and Latin, these are victims of the rage that swept Miami last weekend after four white former policemen were acquitted in the beating death of a black man.

Fifteen people were killed and nearly 400 injured in the frenzied wave of violence, fires and looting.

When Miss Perry reached Jackson Memorial Hospital last Saturday night, her eyes were dilated and she seemed near death. Emergency room nurses went to work and "brought her back from the dead," said neurosurgeon Barth Green.

In another room at the same hospital, Jeffrey Kulp was still unconscious Wednesday. He was a white passenger in the car that hit Miss Perry. After the accident, Kulp was pulled out of the car, beaten on the head, shot in the back and had his ear cut off.

Vasquez, a student at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., was visiting relatives here when he was caught in the violence. A bullet smashed through his car door, hitting the base of his neck and crushing his spinal cord.

When he learned he would be a paraplegic, his only question was whether he could return to medical school.

"You can," Green said. "But it'll be tough."

Vasquez' aunt said, "God willing, in a year he'll be walking."

MX Missile Approved By House; Sent Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $53.1 billion weapons bill containing full authorization for President Carter's proposed MX missile system is on its way to the Senate after gaining House approval.

The House approved the bill 338-62 Wednesday after rejecting a second effort to delay development of the MX missile.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, working on its own version of the bill, has tentatively voted to cut the size of the MX system in half, shutting 200 intercontinental nuclear missiles between 2,300 launching points rather than 4,600.

The MX system would move the 200 missiles between the launching points like a shell game so the Soviets could not find and destroy them to prevent U.S. nuclear retaliation in a war.

President Carter approved development of the system to replace the present Minuteman missiles, which the Pentagon says will be vulnerable to Soviet destruction in the mid 1980s.

The House defeated 268-135 an amendment by Rep. Dan Marriott, R-Utah, that would have prohibited use of federal land for the system until the Pentagon determines its full future impact on Utah and Nevada.

"All we ask is that you let us know what the impact is — even the Air Force doesn't know what the impact is — and how to deal with it a — then we'll be with you 100 percent," Marriott said.

But Democratic Leader Jim Wright said the requirement would tie up the system in years of litigation by "legions of skilled lawyers" claiming the proper studies had not been made.

"That is a grave invitation to slow strangulation of this system," Wright said.

The $53.1 billion authorization for the 1981 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, is $6.2 billion higher than President Carter asked.

It includes $36.3 billion for military hardware procurement, $16.7 billion for research and development and $167 million for civil defense.

The bill also resurrects a slower version of the B-1 bomber canceled by Carter in 1977. The new version would carry and launch nuclear cruise missiles.

Wednesday, the House approved an amendment extending combat pay at a cost of $7.9 million for crews stationed on ships in the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf for more than 84 days.

SEIZE CROCODILE HIDES COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Police raided a crocodile skin tannery and seized 205 skins that had been cured or were being processed, authorities said. Crocodile hunting is prohibited and the export of crocodile skins is illegal.

Blames Veto On Racist Feeling

NEW YORK (AP) — Gloria Vanderbilt, who parlayed a glittering name into a jeans empire, says a co-op's directors vetoed her purchase of a $1.1 million duplex because they felt she might marry black entertainer Bobby Short.

Miss Vanderbilt charged in papers filed with Manhattan Supreme Court and with the city Human Rights Commission that the rejection was "a purely racist act." She obtained a temporary restraining order Wednesday against the sale of the River House apartment on East 52nd Street to anyone else.

There was no immediate comment from River House spokesmen. The building's shareholders include former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Broadway director Joshua Logan.

Attorneys for Miss Vanderbilt, who had put down a 10 percent deposit on the duplex, said she had no plans to marry Short, and Short agreed. Miss Vanderbilt and the pianist-singer are friends and appeared together in television advertisements for the jeans bearing her name.

The Waltons, A Retrospective

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —
The two-hour special retrospective of "The Waltons" tonight has the tone and impact of a final farewell — to the dedicated core of "Waltons" aficionados, it will impart a sense of loss and regret.

But surprise! "The Waltons" is coming back to CBS for one more go next fall, jumping out of the coffin, so to speak. It may be a diminished "Waltons," absent some freshness and much of its original cast, but CBS believed there was enough left in Earl Hamner's life story to try another season.

Grandma Walton's birthday.
The family is gathered around Mama Walton (Michael Learned, for whom this really is a farewell) as she prepares a photo album for Grandma.
The photographs, of course, remind our favorite family of their lives and times on Waltons' Mountain, and we're soon off on an odyssey of remembering. It's a sort of microcosm of the "Waltons" experience, perhaps a bit corny in its unabashed wholesomeness, but finely attuned to a romanticized national memory of ideals perceived as lost and irrecoverable — honor, hard work and, foremost, the nurturing family.

For eight seasons, "The Waltons" has artfully worked the fact that hindsight is certainly not 20-20, building a family hit that has become something of a national shrine, the flip side of the beleaguered, urban Bunker family.
"If we've been successful, it's because our audience recognizes our characters as human," says creator Hamner in his narration, "endowed equally with strengths and weaknesses, reaching out to those around them for warmth, support and affirmation.
"We've found drama in the simplest of situations — in the homely setting of the kitchen, in an exchange between young and old members of the same family.
"Whatever we're always trying to do is entertain, to tell good stories ... but as time passed, it turned out we were doing something in addition — we were celebrating some values in American life that go back to pioneer times."
Scenes are taken from eight years of "The Waltons" (all the way back to the 1971 pilot movie, "The Homecoming") and those willing to wade in a river of sentiment will delight in the experience.
There's Grandpa Zeb Walton, who, portrayed by the late Will Geer was the embodiment of pioneer independence and grandfatherly charm; Grandma (Ellen Corby), whose real-life stroke was tastefully and touchingly worked into the series; John-Boy, (Richard Thomas), America's eldest son, who was the first to leave the Waltons' nest.
It's like a big family reunion, without the squabbles and the drunk uncle. Which is what has made "The Waltons" work.

invariably failed. There is a safety play that virtually guarantees twelve tricks.
Win the ace of diamonds and lead a low heart. West must lead the jack to win. Continue with the ten of hearts, and West must hold off again. Now declarer starts running clubs. West can ruff whenever he cares to, but there is still a heart in dummy to take care of a diamond continuation. Declarer can win any return, draw the last trump (using the king of spades as an entry to hand, if necessary), and then get back to dummy with the ace of spades to run the rest of the clubs.
The trouble with that line is that, if East has the king of hearts, declarer gives up all chance of taking all the tricks, which could cost dearly in the scoring. So, after winning the ace of diamonds, declarer crossed to dummy with the ace of spades and ran the jack of hearts. When that won, he continued with another heart. West ducked again. Declarer's only hope was to try to run clubs. West ruffed the second club and exited with his last trump, and declarer had to lose three diamond tricks for down three.
Don't try to convince us that those Wests who led diamonds instead of spades played well!

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — HI-FI AND STEREO OFTEN HAVE FEVERED ADHERENTS.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Horowitz Sued By Arts Society

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Philadelphia arts society has filed a $2.5 million suit against Vladimir Horowitz contending the concert pianist refused to sign a contract to appear at a recital here in 1978.
According to the suit, filed Wednesday in the Supreme Court of New York, Horowitz refused to sign the contract though promoters secured fresh grey sole, a closet with eight wooden hangers, a dishwasher, a limousine and other items requested by the artist.
The suit was filed by attorneys for the Performing Arts Society of Philadelphia, Inc., a nonprofit, charitable trust, and James Robb, president and executive director of the society.
According to the suit, the dispute arose when Horowitz, 75, of New York, refused to sign a contract for a recital at the Academy of Music here. When the pianist did not sign the contract, Robb announced the concert had been canceled. Horowitz's manager, Harold Shaw, threatened court action, but did not sue.

There was no immediate comment from Horowitz.

Doc Severinsen Is Wed Again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The "Tonight Show's" brightly dressed bandleader tied the knot for the third time, his manager says.
Carl "Doc" Severinsen married television writer Emily Marshall in a poolside ceremony at his home, Bud Robinson said Wednesday. The May 17 ceremony was witnessed by actor John Ritter and his wife, Nancy.
Severinsen met his wife — who has written for "The Bob Newhart Show" and the "Angie" TV shows — when she was secretary to "Tonight Show" producer Fred DeCordova, Robinson said.
It was Ms. Marshall's second marriage.

TO BE REUNITED

PEKING (AP) — More than 4,500 married men and women, separated by their work assignments in North China, will be reunited as a result of work transfers, the People's Daily reported.
Note that West has no clue to his choice of opening leads. Here and there West selected the queen of diamonds as his opening lead, and at those tables the slam depended on West's opening lead. If West opted to lead a spade, declarer was on easy street. He won in dummy, lost a trick to the king of hearts and claimed the balance after drawing trumps.
