Rate Of Consumer Price Gains Slowed

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose 0.9 percent in April, the smallest monthly rise in more than a year, as the costs of goods and services moderated across the board, the government reported today.

The increase in the Consumer Price Index last month was a marked improvement from the 1.4 percent increases registered in each of the first three months this year.

If prices continue to rise for the next 11 months at the same rate they did in April, the year will end with an inflation rate of about 11 percent, compared with 13 percent last year.

Prices had been going up at a compounded annual rate of 18 percent in the preceding three months of 1980.

The Labor Department report credited "smaller price increases for energy items, particularly gasoline" and less rise in the cost of food, clothing and home financing rates.

"About half the slowdown can be directly attributed to gasoline prices, which were unchanged in April following a nearly 4 percent increase in March," said Patrick Jackman, a Labor Department economist.

"With interest rates continuing to come down and food stable for at least another month, I'd expect next month's inflation rate to be the best we'll see in a while," he added.

In another report, the Labor Department said the inflation-adjusted average weekly earnings of Americans fell 1.2 percent from March to April. The decline came as inflation outpaced a 0.3 percent decrease in hours worked and no change in hourly earnings.

Spensible earnings — what a married worker with three dependents would have left to spend after federal income tax and Social Security deductions — also dropped 1.2 percent from March to a level 6.7 percent below April 1979.

Many analysts had been predicting a moderation in inflation this quarter, largely because the economy appears to have fallen into recession.

Lower business and consumer spending during the recession, which is likely to last through the year, should take pressure off prices, they explain.

And prices at the wholesale level have been rising at a more moderate pace, especially for food.

The April increase matched the 0.9 percent rise in January 1979 and was the smallest since a 0.6 percent increase in December 1978.

The report gave these breakdowns:

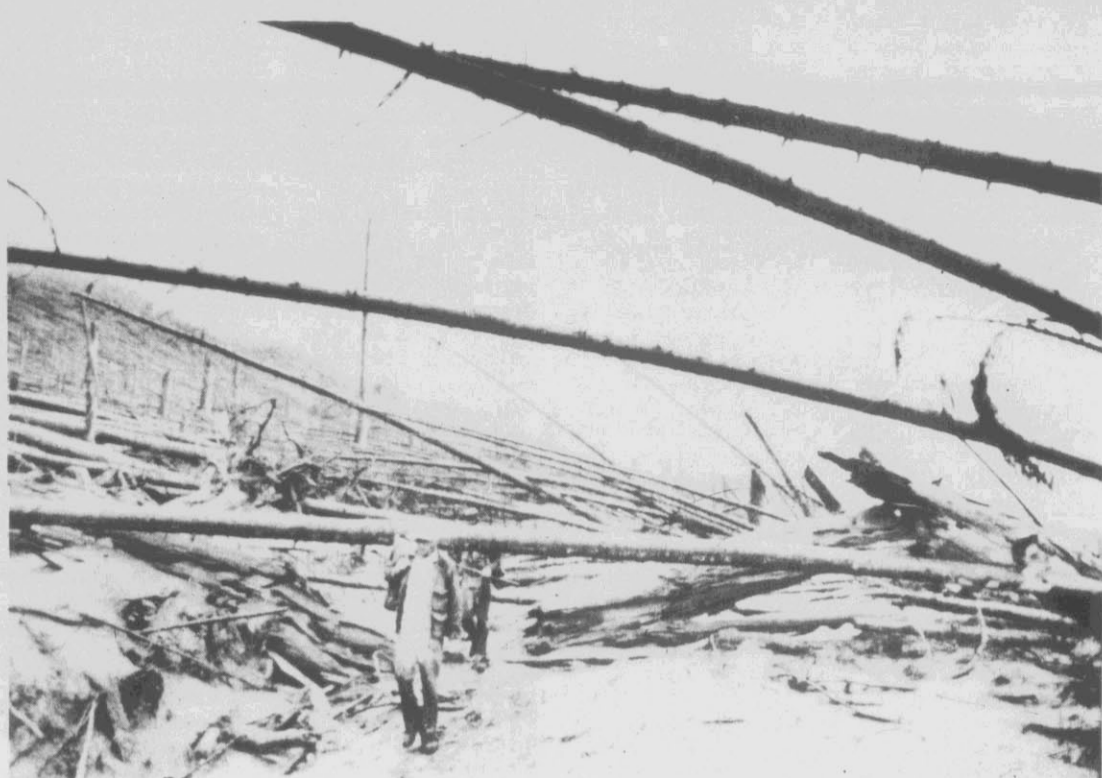

— Food prices went up 0.5 percent last month, compared with a 1 percent increase in March.

— Housing costs rose 1.3 percent in April, compared with 1.6 percent in the preceding month. "Mortgage interest rates rose less than in March, but house prices rose more," the report said. It added that home heating oil prices went up 0.5 percent, "the smallest increase since the summer of 1978."

— Clothing costs advanced 0.3 percent in April after rising 2 percent in March, when many women's clothing prices were boosted.

— Transportation prices went up 0.6 percent last month, compared with 1.7 percent in March and 2.8 percent in February, as gasoline prices held steady and used-car prices fell. It was the smallest increase in almost two years for transportation items, the report said.

— Medical care costs went up 0.7 percent in April, just under the 0.9 percent rise of March, and the increase in entertainment costs was 0.8 percent last month.

First Indictments In Abscam Inquiry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three City Council leaders, including the president, have become the first elected officials indicted by a federal grand jury on charges stemming from the FBI's undercover Abscam investigation of political corruption.

Council President George X. Schwartz, 65; Majority Leader Harry P. Jannotti, 56, and Councilman Louis C. Johanson, 51, were named in the indictment on charges they illegally accepted $65,000 for legislative favors.

Also accused Thursday of conspiracy, racketeering and attempted extortion in the indictment was Howard L. Criden, 53, Johanson's former law partner, who allegedly got $18,000 for arranging the payments to the councilmen.

The indictments followed a 14-month FBI investigation code-named Abscam for Arab scam, a "sting" operation in which undercover agents masqueraded as Middle East businessmen and sought help from congressmen and local officials for various enterprises.

Other grand juries in Brooklyn, N.Y., and Washington, D.C., are investigating the roles some 20 other people allegedly played in the Abscam inquiry, including seven members of the U.S. House of Representatives and one member of the U.S. Senate.

In the six-count indictment, Schwartz was accused of receiving $30,000, Johanson $25,000 and Jannotti $10,000 from three FBI agents posing as wealthy Arabs. According to the indictment, Criden agreed to aid the planned construction of a hotel by "promoting and facilitating the payment of cash to members of Council for the purpose of influencing their decisions..."

The four are expected to be arraigned May 30 before U.S. District Judge John Fullam. The charges carry penalties of more than 20 years in jail and fines of at least $25,000.

A third member of Johanson's former law firm was named an "unindicted co-conspirator." Ellis Cook was not available for comment immediately.

"I feel in the end I will be vindicated," Schwartz said, refusing comment on the charges. "I intend to remain as a councilman and as president of City Council."

Jannotti declined comment and said he would not resign. Johanson could not be reached for comment. His attorney said Johanson had been instructed not to discuss the charges.

Criden was out of town, his attorney said.

Schwartz, who made a fortune in law and real estate, became council president in 1972. Jannotti is majority leader and Schwartz' top aide. Johanson also received leadership responsibilities from Schwartz.

Meanwhile, Council members met privately to consider whether they want to serve under Schwartz. Councilman John Street, who had led efforts to unseat Schwartz, said "there will not be a meeting next week if George Schwartz is the chairman."

But Councilman David Cohen said there was a feeling among council members that the three may decide to step down from their leadership posts.

Suspension Is Ordered For Officer

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that Lt. E. E. Laughinghouse has been suspended for five days without pay and placed on probation for six months in connection with a May 16 incident.

Cannon said Laughinghouse was suspended after it was determined that he had violated the department's Standard Operating Procedures by reporting for work after having been drinking.

The chief said he came to police headquarters, talked with Laughinghouse, and reported that Laughinghouse voluntarily took a Breathalyzer test. That test, administered by the North Carolina Highway Patrol, indicated that the officer did, in fact, have alcohol in his blood.

Although Cannon declined to say what the Breathalyzer reading was, reliable sources said it was less than the .10 percent blood alcohol content level which, under State law, is a presumption of guilt of driving under the influence.

Laughinghouse joined the department full-time in April 1964 after serving five months as a reserve officer.

Local Jaycees Voice Concern

Greenville Jaycees, concerned over the revelation last week that funds raised for charity had been used by the North Carolina Jaycees to pay membership dues and fees to the U.S. Jaycees, met last night and adopted a resolution calling for the resignation of the State Jaycee president.

The resolution said that, "over the past two years or more, monies raised through the sale of jelly for the Burn Center (at Chapel Hill) and channeled through the North Carolina Jaycee Charity Foundation have been diverted by some top officials of the North Carolina Jaycees to pay national dues."

"The Greenville Jaycees strongly abhor this action by a few individuals at State Headquarters."

In light of that fact, according to the resolution, "the Greenville Jaycees strongly insist that J. Harold Herring, a candidate for President of the U.S. Jaycees, immediately withdraw from the race and that J. Harold Herring also submit his resignation from the rolls of the N.C. Jaycees..." The resolution also urges that, "the funds still missing from the foundation be repaid immediately by the persons involved and not through a mortgage of State Headquarters building and land," as has been proposed.

The resolution also calls for the resignation of any other individuals involved in the matter and, "after a thorough investigation," anyone who acted illegally, "be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

"Although we strongly object to the activities that have taken place," the resolution concluded, "we still believe in the ideals and philosophy of the Jaycee organization...and pledge continued service to the community through projects such as the July 4th celebration, aid to the Boys Club and the Christmas parade... (and) look forward to the coming year. With your support, we shall fulfill our commitment of community service."

consulting with other law enforcement agencies. Authorities said some persons may have been vaporized by the explosion, which U.S. Geological Survey scientists say may have been equal in power to the largest hydrogen bomb ever detonated on earth.

Virgin said a dog was found near the bodies of two victims and brought to safety Thursday, but he had no details on its location. He would not speculate on whether the animal's discovery could mean a chance of other survivors near the volcano.

Helicopter crews were airborne despite foul weather, ferrying bodies to a temporary morgue being set up at the Toledo airport.

Damage estimates from the blast, meanwhile, soared past half a billion dollars, and President Carter was visibly shaken Thursday after touring the southwest Washington region he earlier declared a major disaster area.

Robert Stevens of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said a disaster relief center would be established today in nearby Kelso. He said the government was prepared to offer low interest loans, grants, unemployment compensation and housing assistance for up to one year for people displaced by the blast, which leveled thousands of acres of pristine forest and sent mud and debris racing down rivers.

The volcano ejected only steam from its gaping crater Thursday but shot its white displays up to 20,000 feet at least once. Seismic noise — which some geologists say could mean the movement of molten rock deep within the peak — was recorded in the afternoon.

Tim Hait, a USGS geologist, called the Sunday blast "a 10,000-year event. The odds of having another within a few weeks or years are statistically very small."

Meanwhile, residents of ash-choked eastern Washington and northern Idaho got relief as rain helped settle and clear the grit that clogged machinery, made breathing difficult and stranded thousands of travelers.

Korean Rebels Demand Strongman Step Aside

KWANGJU, South Korea (AP) — The rebellious civilians controlling Kwangju held out today for the resignation of South Korea's new military strongman, Lt. Gen. Chun Doo-hwan, as 3,000 youths patrolled the streets. Residents began cleaning up after four days of street fighting with troops and police in which at least 64 persons were killed and more than 400 were wounded.

"We will fight until the last one if Chun does not resign," one young worker said. In Seoul, Kim Young-sam, leader of the opposition New Democratic Party, said any further move toward military dictatorship would lead to bloodier revolt and he would be "in the forefront of the people."

Amid growing concern over the possibility of a food shortage, leaders of the 200,000 demonstrators who seized control of the southwestern provincial capital Wednesday night met for the second day with local martial-law authorities to discuss amnesty and other conditions for restoring the city to government control.

The committee of 26 leading business and professional men, clergymen and professors submitted a list of demands Thursday including admission by the government of responsibility for the violence, acknowledgment that the paratroopers took "excessive measures" against the mobs, the release of hundreds arrested during the fighting and a pledge that there would be no retaliation against the rioters.

Conspicuously absent from the list were the two main demands shouted over and over by the hundreds of thousands of demonstrators — the resignation or dismissal of Gen. Chun, the chief of the defense security command and the acting head of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, and an end to martial law. Today the committee added Chun's ouster to its list of demands.

The local martial-law authorities were reported to have agreed to some of the earlier demands and to have referred others to Gen. Lee Hee-sung, the martial-law commander for the country.

Chun and his associates have given no indication since large-scale demonstrations against military rule began last week that they would give up any of their power. But they did withdraw the paratroopers and the police from Kwangju Wednesday night to stop the bloodshed.

Defector Says Tass Staffers Serving KGB

LONDON (AP) — All Soviet news correspondents abroad are KGB agents to some extent and send information to Moscow tailored to suit the Kremlin's point of view, a former KGB officer who defected last month was quoted as saying in an interview today in The Times of London.

Because of this, defector Ilya Dzhirkvelov was quoted as saying, Soviet leaders receive and even act upon this "disinformation," giving them a distorted picture of world events.

According to the newspaper, Dzhirkvelov, a former Soviet foreign correspondent and more recently, an official of the World Health Organization in Geneva, Switzerland, said: "More often than not we heard the news from the BBC rather than our own correspondents, and when our people do file we always check what they send against Reuters to see what is really happening."

The Times said Dzhirkvelov, who defected to Britain with his wife and daughter, was a full-time KGB intelligence officer until 1956, when he became a correspondent with Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

He was stationed in Zanzibar, subsequently part of Tanzania, in the mid-1960s and then in the Sudan in the early 1970s before returning to Moscow as chief foreign editor of Tass, the newspaper said.

The newspaper said quoted Dzhirkvelov as saying that while he was stationed in the Sudan, he had a meeting every morning at 9 a.m. with a regular KGB agent, during which he relayed in detail his conversations with Sudanese officials.

He reportedly said he also undertook intelligence missions.

In 1971, Dzhirkvelov was quoted as saying, he found out that Moscow believed the Sudan was ripe for a pro-Soviet coup but his knowledge of the country suggested otherwise. He claimed he advised Soviet leaders and the local Soviet Embassy to avoid making any move.

But in July 1971, a short-lived Communist coup was staged. The conspirators were rounded up and shot and the Soviet ambassador was asked to leave. Dzhirkvelov said he, too, fled the country.

In 1977, Dzhirkvelov was made information officer at the World Health Organization in Geneva where, he was quoted as saying, it is KGB policy to infiltrate the United Nations and other international agencies.

"Geneva is a huge center of international espionage, the Tangiers of our time."

All Soviet citizens in Geneva are KGB agents in some sense and all report back their conversations with Westerners, he was quoted as saying.

When he arrived at WHO, Dzhirkvelov claimed he was told by his Soviet superiors that his work would be judged not by its contribution to the United Nations but by the amount of information it yielded for the KGB.

Jet-Setter Marisa Berenson Now Works

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Marisa Berenson came into the world with a gold pass.

She was born to a celebrated family, wealth and social position. Marisa, a brunette with green eyes and tawny skin, also came into the world beautiful.

Her grandmother was Elsa Schiaparelli, grande dame of Parisian high chic. Her father, Robert L. Berenson, was a partner of Aristotle Onassis and a diplomat who served in capitals around the world.

From ages 5 to 15 Marisa was packed off to boarding schools in Switzerland, Italy, France, and England where she was an indifferent student. She spent holidays with her parents at a variety of embassies.

Marisa and her sister Berry (Berinthia), at ages 3 and 4 respectively, appeared on the cover of Elle, France's famed women's magazine. Thereafter, she was frequently in the public eye, a little princess of the "beau monde."

"I was brought up in fascinating circumstances in Europe," Marisa said the other day in her Beverly Hills home.

Marisa, dressed in a plum-colored silk blouse and beige slacks, wore several antique gold pendants around her neck. Her living room was filled with exquisite French antiques, contrasting with a mirrored baby grand piano. Paintings crowded the walls along with large blowup photographs of Marisa.

"As a girl I met the most interesting people in the world — the famous, the wealthy, the aristocrats. Because of these associations and my family, I was photographed often and written about."

In effect, Marisa because a celebrity without having accomplished anything except her birth. She had achieved virtually nothing on her own.

Marisa left school at 16, following the death of her father. She flew to New York, where she was born but had never resided, to set about establishing a modeling career.

It didn't take long. When she was 17, Marisa signed with Vogue magazine and soon jetted to and from Europe for other modeling assignments.

"I've been completely self-supporting ever since," Marisa said. "During my years as a model I took acting classes at night. I dreamed of becoming an actress. But it was difficult for models to break through at that time."

"My background and my social butterfly image was a bigger obstacle. No one would take a socialite jet-setter — terms I hate — seriously. Producers had the impression I didn't need a job and that it wasn't important to me."

"So I worked twice as hard to prove myself. It was nearly impossible to get people to see through my image to the hardworking sincere person I really am. And, believe me, I needed the money. Acting was, and is, my bread and butter."

Marisa learned there is a natural human animosity to young beautiful girls born to celebrity. She had to fight against being automatically marked down as a dilettante.

Her first break came in 1971 when Luchino Visconti cast her in "Death In Venice," playing a rich, fashionable young woman. This was followed by a similar role in "Cabaret" starring Liza Minnelli.

Marisa's big chance for stardom came with "Barry Lyndon" in which she played Ryan O'Neal's leading lady. The picture was a critical and box-office bomb. There followed two years of trauma and misery.

Marisa's promising professional future was immediately clouded, complicated by personal travails. She became the wife of businessman Jim Randall in a celebrated, glamorous marriage ceremony attended by stars and socialites.

She gave birth to a daughter, Starlite (now 2½), and divorced Randall.

Marisa costarred with Tony Curtis in a movie so bad it wasn't released in the United States. While filming "Killer Fish" in Brazil she was nearly killed in an auto wreck. She underwent successful facial surgery.

Midst great fanfare it was announced Marisa would star in a movie biography of Vivian Leigh. It never got off the ground.

"I'm grateful for that," Marisa said. "It would have been a big risk and responsibility. You can do biographies of people from a past century but not recent public figures. None of those contemporary biographies work in movies."

"Those two years were dreadful. But I've emerged as a strong, better woman."

Marisa's lifestyle is altogether different from what it was eight or nine years ago. A single parent devoted to her daughter, she shuns most social events, attending parties only rarely, avoiding the limelight and gossip.

She quietly declines to say if there is an important man in her life.

"When you get older, you calm down, mature and evolve," she said, smiling. "The only jetting I do now is to get to work. I'm losing that old image at last."

Marisa will be seen this June in the two-hour TV movie "Tourist," in which she finds herself again typed as an aristocratic, glamorous woman of means.

But next fall she costars with Vanessa Redgrave in CBS-TV's controversial film "Playing For Time," a terrifying story of Nazi brutality in Auschwitz.

Strawberry Carol: New Dessert

Last summer a young woman named Carole Brown created a blueberry pudding we had never come upon before — and contributed the recipe to a magazine devoted to food. We found her dessert so delicious that this spring we copycatted it, using strawberries; our tasters loved it.

Because we drew our inspiration from Carole Brown, we've named our dessert in her honor: Strawberry Carol. We intend to try the pudding using other fruits as they come into season and to pass along the recipes.

Perhaps these "carols" will eventually take their place along with other famous American fruit puddings — cobbler, grunts, pandowdies and slumps.

STRAWBERRY CAROL
Fork-stirred all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup (1/4 pound stick) butter, frozen and cut into 8 equal pats
1 large egg, separated
Topping, recipe follows
1 quart strawberries, hulled (whole if small, halved if large or very large)
Vanilla ice cream

In a food-processor, with metal blade, briefly whirl together 1 and 1-3rd cups flour, the salt and sugar; distribute butter over flour mixture. Turn on and off in rapid progression until butter is in pea-size pieces — about 1/2 minute. Add enough ice-cold water to the egg yolk to make 1/4 cup and whisk or fork-blend. Through feed tube, with machine on, pour egg-yolk mixture in a steady stream; stop machine as soon as balls of dough start to form.

Remove dough and press over bottom and halfway up sides of a 1 1/2-quart oblong baking dish (10 by 6 by 1 3/4 inches). Sprinkle with 1/2 tablespoons flour; set aside.

Prepare Topping and set aside.
In a medium bowl beat egg white until stiff; fold in the strawberries; spread over dough; sprinkle with Topping. Bake on rack below center in a preheated 400-degree oven until Topping is golden — 40 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes; serve at once topped with vanilla ice cream.

Makes 8 servings.
Topping: in a food processor, with metal blade, briefly whirl together 1/2 cup fork-stirred all-purpose flour and 1/2 cup sugar; distribute 1/2 stick (1/4 pound) frozen butter (cut into 4 equal pats) over flour mixture.

Dear Abby Abby Gets Day Brighteners

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: A reader who prefers to remain anonymous sent me the following day brightener:

You Just Know It's Going to Be a Rotten Day When ...

You wake up facedown on the pavement.
You put your bra on backward, and it fits better.
You call Suicide Prevention and they put you on hold.
Your birthday cake collapses from the weight of the candles.
Your son tells you he wishes Anita Bryant would mind her own business.
You want to hang up the clothes you wore home from the party and you can't find them.
You turn on the news and they're showing emergency routes out of the city.
You put both contact lenses in the same eye.
Your twin sister forgot your birthday.

DEAR ABBY: I just read an article stating there is now conclusive evidence that secondhand cigarette smoke is damaging to the non-smoker.

I am a non-smoker, but my wife smokes enough for both of us. She has quit several times, but she's never been able to kick the habit for good. Her excuses are that when she quits smoking she gains weight, and smoking "relaxes" her. I've even heard her say, "Well, a person has to die of something," which is the most stupid excuse of all.

What worries me now is the fact that we have three small children who are the innocent victims of secondhand smoke in our home. Abby, I know my wife would quit if she could because she's really tried. You've probably heard from hundreds of heavy smokers who have quit for good. Which method is the most successful? Cold turkey, cutting down gradually, hypnosis, stop-smoking clinics? Or are there other methods?

Please help me to help my wife without being a nag.

FREDDY IN ENCINO

DEAR FREDDY: The best thing I've ever seen on how to quit smoking is the new booklet titled, "Clearing the Air." It contains a variety of sensible approaches. What may seem silly to some may work a miracle for others. It may take a while for your wife to find the combination that will work for her, but if she really wants to quit smoking, she can.

The booklet is free to anyone who wants it and can be obtained by writing to: Clearing the Air, Box A, National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md. 20205.

Please let me hear from you in six months, Freddy. And if any of my readers send for this booklet, I would appreciate a progress report from you, too. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I are having a difference of opinion.

He says it is not possible for a girl to get pregnant the first time she goes to bed with a guy. I say it is.

Who is right?

VIRGIN (AGE 15)

DEAR VIRGIN: You are. Trust me ... not him.

Retirement Earnings In Perspective

WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's Commission on Pension policy says a person earning $50,000 a year needs only half that much to maintain the same standard of living in retirement.

But a worker who earned only $6,500 a year needs nearly 80 percent of that pay to get by in retirement, the commission said.

In a chart accompanying its interim report, the commission gave these estimates of what a single person retiring in 1980 needs to equal preretirement income.

The first figure is gross preretirement income; the second is after-tax disposable income; the third is the net after work-related expenses and savings; the fourth is the equivalent retirement income; the fifth is the percent of preretirement gross income.

Banks Trim Prime Rates

By The Associated Press
North Carolina National Bank and First Union National Bank of North Carolina lowered their prime interest rate Thursday to 15 1/2 percent, the lowest rate charged in months.

They joined several national banks in lowering their prime rate, including Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest commercial bank. Chase Manhattan started the trend by lowering its prime rate a percentage point to 15 1/2 percent.

Bankers Trust Co., the eighth-largest bank in the country, quickly followed suit, lowering its rate.

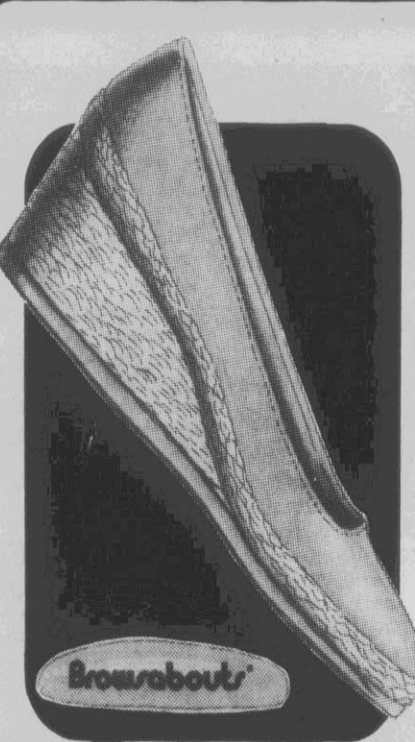

NCNB had been charging 16 1/2 percent, while First Union charged 16 percent.

A First Union official said it was the fifth time this month that the bank had lowered its prime rate.

The prime rate is the interest rate banks charge on loans to their most credit-worthy corporate customers. It climbed to 20 percent in April and has been on the decline since.

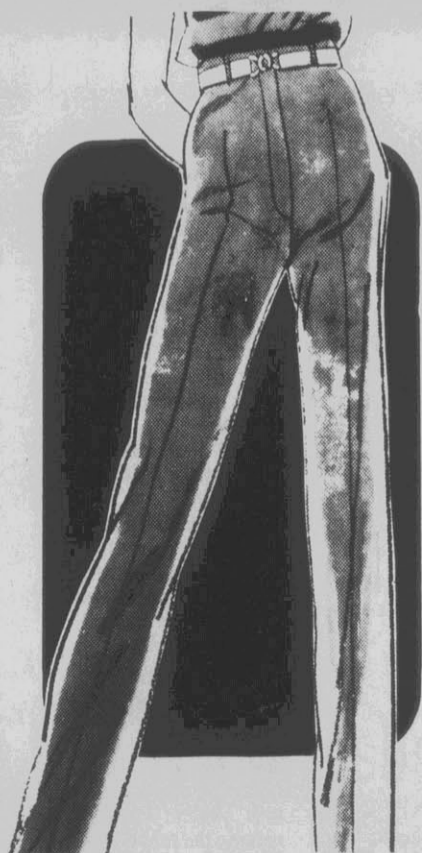

The prime rate is seen as an indicator of trends on all interest rates.

Although most banks currently are quoting a prime rate of 16 1/2 percent, financial analysts predict the lower rate will spread throughout the banking industry.

Reagan May Have It

It seems to be virtually all over in the Republican presidential nomination race.

Despite the fact that George Bush scored a victory in Michigan, it appears to all but the most stubborn that Reagan has the delegate strength to gain the nomination at the GOP convention this summer.

Even Reagan, himself, who has been cautious in discussing the nomination now is acknowledging that it looks certain. Only something completely unforeseen could change that.

What next? Well, Ronald Reagan will have to pick a running mate, and there is some speculation that he might be the next strongest contender, George Bush. It would not be wise to speculate, however.

The big job is gearing up for the campaign leading to the November elections. Even though President Carter has not yet duplicated the Reagan feat and sewed up the Democratic nomination, it is widely assumed that he will do so. Thus the Reagan camp is already attempting to heal Republican wounds and turn to the competition with the Democrats.

Obviously a major concern will be the independent campaign by John Anderson, which could drain off some GOP votes from Reagan in November.

The presidential campaign is shaping up quite rapidly now, and it is certain that Ronald Reagan will be one of the major candidates.

Time To Solve Problems

Canada is, or should be, a united country once again today, with a Quebec vote which was three-to-two against secession.

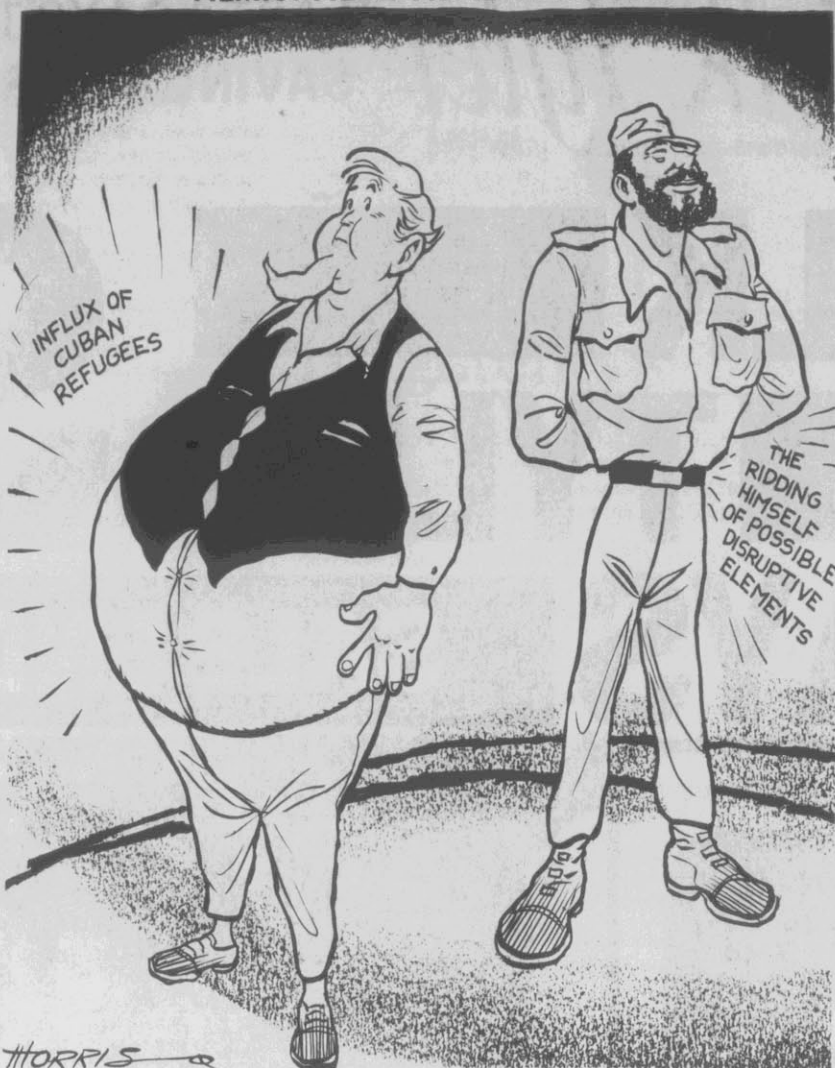

It would not be realistic, however, to think that the secession movement is dead. After all, some 40 percent of the Quebec voters showed they were in favor of forming a separate nation.

The United States enjoys good relations with its close neighbor to the north. Canada's fragmentation would not be welcome to us.

It is clear that feelings run deep in Quebec, but Canada has gained time to work on solutions to its problems.

HEMISPHERE HEALTH NOTES!

Carter Still Tops Reagan

By George Gallup
PRINCETON, N.J. — President Jimmy Carter continues to be the frontrunner over Ronald Reagan in the 1980 contest for the presidency.

In a Gallup Poll trial heat completed Sunday, Carter was the choice of 49 percent of registered voters nationwide to 41 percent for his GOP challenger. These figures are virtually the same as those recorded two weeks ago (May 2-5), when Carter was preferred by 47 percent of registered voters and Reagan by 40 percent.

In a three-way trial heat pitting independent candidate John Anderson against Carter and Reagan, the latest findings also do not differ significantly from the early-May test election results. In the latest survey, Carter is the choice of 40 percent of registered voters, Reagan, of 32 percent and Anderson, 21 percent.

As has been the case in earlier three-way tests, Anderson's support in the most recent trial heat comes about equally from both Carter and Reagan.

In light of the important events which have occurred in the past six weeks — in both domestic and international affairs — it is perhaps surprising there has been so little change in the standings of the candidates in five sets of two-way and three-way Gallup Poll test elections conducted since the end of March.

Here are the questions asked to determine the relative strength of Carter and Reagan:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held TODAY. If Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate and Ronald Reagan were the Republican candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Those who named another person or who were undecided were asked: "As of today, do you lean more to Carter, the Democrat, or to Reagan, the Republican?"

Here are the national results from the latest trial heat and the recent trend, based on the choices of registered voters:

These questions were asked to determine the relative strength of the three candidates:

Teen Pregnancies

By BILL NOBLITT

RALIEGH — What to do about the increasing numbers of teen-aged pregnancies in North Carolina has all the earmarks of a classic social and political dilemma.

How far, if at all, should government intrude into private family business? And sex is probably the most private of all family business matters.

The Governor's Advocacy Council on Children and Youth brought the issue back strongly into public notice the other day with a report on the degree of seriousness of the issue accompanied by strong recommendations for governmental action.

Among the proposals: family life education programs in kindergarten through 12th grade; expansion of confidential services such as counseling, pregnancy testing, use of contraceptives, and prenatal care; education in parenting for young people; and steps to heighten community awareness and involvement in combatting the problem.

Reaction
Reaction was swift and as expected. Sex education is a parental responsibility, and government particularly has no right to provide confidential services behind parents' backs. Futher, such programs in the schools only tend to promote sexual activity in teens. Those objections fairly well sum up the positions of politically conservative elements, and especially the leadership of the Fundamentalist Christian movement.

But as Ruby Milgrom of Battleboro, who chairs the advocacy council says, "Anyone can look at these statistics and clearly see that adolescent sexuality and pregnancy and their consequences are real problems for our state and for every community."

The statistics which she mentions clearly demonstrate that if sex education and discouragement of pregnancy is a family responsibility, then a lot of families are shirking their duty.

More than 26,000 teens, ages 10 to 19, became pregnant in North Carolina during 1978. Of this number, one-third had abortions. That is nearly 9,000 teenagers who had abortions. Some 17,335 teens gave birth to children. Half of those were not married.

Clear evidence of the touchy political nature of this dilemma was seen by Gov. Jim Hunt's response at a recent news conference. Stung by the attack of conservatives on his New Generation Plan package of government actions to aid youngsters, the governor walked most carefully around the question of whether government should increase its role in combatting teen pregnancies.

"I do not plan to make any new or special recommendations," said Hunt, and even went out of his way to clarify the separation between himself and the Governor's Advocacy Council on Children and Youth. It is not the "Governor's Council" but simply bears that name historically. Members are not appointed only by the governor.

Family

The council is not, Hunt made it bluntly and abundantly clear, speaking for him in its report. In fact, he said, he agrees that this issue is a family responsibility and the state should not impose upon schools or communities proposed methods of reducing the incidence. If local schools and local communities want to develop their own approaches, that

Class Of 1980 Blues

WASHINGTON — The class of 1980 is having a tough time finding jobs. Therefore, they have to lower their sights on what kind of positions they will accept. This is not only a burden on them but also on their parents who like to brag about what their children are doing.

I realized this when I attended a commencement exercise and overheard a group of parents discussing their children's plans now that they were graduating from college.

"What is your son going to do?" one of the mothers asked.

"He's getting a degree in economics, so he'll be driving a taxicab. We think he's very fortunate to get a position as a taxi driver right out of school."

"You must have pull."

"Well, his father did know a man who owned three taxis. At first my son said he wanted to get a taxi job on his own, but after pounding the pavements for a few months he realized it isn't what you know but whom you know in recruited for an excellent position."

"With a private law firm?"

"No, with the post office as a mail sorter in their main branch office in Elkhart, Ind."

"You must be very proud of him."

"It was worth the seven years of sacrifice. Isn't your daughter getting a degree in fine arts?"

"Yes. She made Phi Beta Kappa."

"What does she intend to do with it?"

"She's had several marvelous opportunities, but the one that interests her the most is selling classified advertisements by telephone for our local newspaper. The best part of the job, besides the security, is that she works on commission and in a good week can make $150."

"I'd like her to meet my son. He majored in biology and will be working for a landscape contractor mulching flower beds."

"She's been going steady with a boy in her graduating class who has a degree in business administration and they hope to get married in the fall, if he passes his test to be an airline steward."

"What is your son going to do, Sam, now that he has a civil engineering degree?"

"He lucked out. He was pumping gas at a Texaco station last summer, and they were so impressed with him they offered to take him on full time when he finished his education. You should see the taxi business that counts."

"What is your daughter Gertrude going to do?"

"She is getting a master's in library science and has already been offered a position as a waitress at Howard Johnson's. But she's holding out for a salesgirl's position at J.C. Penney. We warned her not to get her hopes up as we heard J.C. Penney was only hiring new sales personnel with Ph.D.'s."

Other Editors Say An N.C. Chamber?

(Washington Daily News)
We were thumbing through an almanac recently when we came across a listing of the addresses of all the statewide Chambers of Commerce in the United States. There were five states listed that do not have Chambers of Commerce.

The states are Iowa, Massachusetts, Utah, and Wyoming. The fifth state is North Carolina.

Now we knew that we had never heard about the activity of a North Carolina Chamber of Commerce, but quite frankly we didn't realize that the state was without one. Our questions now are, does North Carolina need an active Chamber of Commerce, and how effective might it be in securing industrial growth for the state?

Surely the worst reason in the world for wanting a statewide Chamber is that forty-five other states already have one. The only significance is the sheer number; that other states apparently feel statewide Chambers are worthwhile in promoting the various states and in procuring new industries to locate there.

We in North Carolina have done an admirable job in enticing new industries to locate here over the past several years, and much of the credit can go to the governor's office. Gov. Jim Hunt readily admits that a large portion of his time as governor has been spent making contacts in efforts to lure new industrial development to the state. Right now, Governor Hunt is the closest thing we have to a statewide Chamber of Commerce.

But the burden of industry-hunting should not fall totally on the governor's office. We feel that the state of North Carolina needs a coordinated program to provide information to potential industrial prospects. This role might be served by a North Carolina Chamber of Commerce.

Whether the proposed Chamber is funded privately like the United States Chamber of Commerce or funded publicly is an open question, and is one of many we should look at before committing ourselves totally to the idea. We just feel that North Carolina has so much to offer industry we don't want to be in a position that we ever have to question whether or not we have done all we can to attract new business.

We should all consider the possibilities. A North Carolina Chamber of Commerce just might be an idea whose time has come.

Strength For Today

EROSION
On a cliff above a New England beach is a ring of masonry which represents all that is left of an old lighthouse. When it was built, it was well back from the edge of the cliff, but erosion by the ocean has over the years undercut and brought down sections of the cliff, so that now the ring of masonry is precariously perched for a final plunge.

A great many forces in life in addition to the sea carry on this same invisible but seemingly inevitable erosion. Some people eat or drink too much, and as a result their health is steadily eroded. Others become involved in a series of moral compromises that eventually undermines their moral integrity and threatens to bring it crashing down. Other people allow preoccupation with material things such as money-making to erode their spiritual life and break the divine connection between themselves and God.

So in all these aspects of our life we should take a look at our foundations. Are they sound? — Elisha Douglass

Changes In Economic System

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A common thread connects their fates — the brothers Hunt after their silver speculation collapsed, Chrysler Corp. after it misread the market, First Pennsylvania bank after it misinvested.

In each instance public or private resources were rushed to their aid because, it was said, the collapse of any could hurt many. They benefitted from the size of their mistakes, and fears of the impact.

To reward inefficiency or failure is just one example of how the U.S. economic system is changing in ways that alarm some while earning the praise of others. Some foresee in such practices an erosion of the market system; others say it is our humane duty to temper the system.

Whatever, the system is changing, and here are a few, and only a few, of the possible reasons why.

—The growing regulation of enterprise.

To do without regulation, say its supporters, is to return to longer hours, lower wages, child labor, dangerous work sites, pollution of air and water, monopolies, and dozens more undesirable practices.

Today, even the most conservative business people support some degree of regulation. Some, in fact, seek it. When regulation helps a company retain privileges, philosophical opposition often goes out the window.

A very large number of people, however, fear regulation. The Center for the study of American Business at Washington University, St. Louis wonders if regulatory growth hasn't itself gotten out of control.

It states that the number of federal regulatory agencies established between 1970 and 1979, twenty-one, is more than twice as many as in any previous decade, including the New Deal years of the 1930s.

Not only are the agencies proliferating, but so are budgets. During the 1970s they grew at an annual rate of about $250 million in constant dollars (more than a half-billion if inflation is included). Fiscal 1981 spending is budgeted at $6.9 billion, and could amount to more.

While regulation protects, critics say it also destroys. Until the Supreme Court ruled otherwise, officers of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration challenged the right of private property owners to forbid inspection of their premises without a search warrant.

—Economic incentives.
Business and labor disagree more than they agree on incentives. Labor claims incentives for big profits are too readily available in the tax code. Business insists investment is discouraged by taxes.

But there is one aspect of the situation that touches almost everyone. Individual savings, which are needed to support investments in private enterprises, are thwarted by inflation and to some extent by taxes too.

Debt, however, is encouraged because the borrower pays back in cheaper dollars. In addition, while the saver pays taxes on some of his savings, the borrower receives a tax deduction on his borrowings.

—Executive remuneration.
The style of pay today may be contributing to fundamental changes in the way the economy performs. That, at least, is the charge of critics. Business today, they say, often ignores its long-term health.

They explain: executives are now recruited in the manner of athletes. They are scouted and courted by search firms, and induced to change jobs through offers of bonuses based on sales and earnings.

When so much of a new executive's income is based on performance, the critics charge, he is induced to seek immediate results even at the expense of the long-term fortunes of the company.

For one thing, he steers funds into marketing when they should go into capital investments, such as more efficient plants. Sales are increased for the time being, but soon the company is made less competitive.

—Federal budget deficits.
You'll get arguments long and hard on this one, but there is one area of at least some agreement, and it is this: Over a period of several years, continued deficit spending dilutes the value of money.

That's another way of saying that inflation ensues when deficits are uninterrupted, as they have been during most of the past decade. The impact is profound: savings accounts, insurance policies, pensions dwindle. Long-term investments are made only reluctantly. Instability and speculation hit markets. People tend to live for the moment.

Yes, America is changing. For the better?

Blood Program Supporters Honored At Luncheon

The second annual awards luncheon recognizing supporters of the Pitt County Blood Program was held Thursday at the Pitt Memorial Hospital cafeteria.

Ott Alford, county blood chairman, joined other officials of the program in presenting various plaques and certificates to a number of individuals and area firms that made key contributions to the success of the blood collection year.

Alford cited Col. Ed Tadlock, AFROTC commander at East Carolina University, for his work during the past four years with the blood program.

Tadlock, who is retiring this fall from ECU, was the campus "sparkplug" for the program, Alford said, noting that during the past year nearly 2,000 pints of blood were collected.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross, presented plaques to representatives of Burroughs Wellcome, Eaton, Procter & Gamble and Union Carbide for outstanding industrial participation during 1979-80. Alford said that local industry not only provides jobs for the area but take part in public service and community life.

Billy Ross, who Alford said has "given as much of himself as anybody I know," was called on to recognize three citizens who reached the eight-gallon level in their blood donation activities. Joining the eight-gallon club were Willie Briley, Craig Gardner and Charlie Hargett.

Glenn Cox recognized the principals of the five high schools in Greenville and Pitt County, pointing out that school visits resulted in the collection of some 736 pints of blood during the year.

Cox, who is superintendent of Greenville City Schools, also announced that D. H. Conley High School topped the others for the year in the percentage of student donors who participated in school Bloodmobile visits with respect to eligible students. D. H. Conley recorded 59 percent of its eligible donors in collecting 164 pints of blood, while Ayden-Gritton High School finished last with 30 percent participation and 94 pints of blood. Ayden-Gritton received the "chicken" plaque presented each year to the school with the lowest percentage and principal Bill Wiggins vowed that the distinction will be passed on to another school next year. The other three school totals included: North Pitt, 48 percent, 131 pints;

Farmville Central, 38 percent, 150 pints; and J. H. Rose, 37 percent, 197 pints. Other plaques and certificates were presented to: Ruggie MacKenzie for her work as a member of the Greenville Service League; Betty Bailey for her nursing assistance; Nancy Brame in recognition of making ten Pheresis Machine blood donations; Wachovia Bank & Trust employees for participating in the blood drive during the March snow storm; the Greenville Service League; Jim

Mallory, ECU; Capt. Steven Bienstock, head of AFROTC Detachment 600 at ECU; Pitt Community College; and to the area media, including WNCT-TV, WITN-TV, WCTI-TV, WOOW Radio, and "The Daily Reflector."

Alford reported that the county blood program raised some 4,500 pints during the year, exceeding the quota by some 1,100 pints for the fiscal period.

Dick Carney, administrator of the Tar River Sub Center, pointed out that the county program has progressed to a point where it is now the standard by which other blood programs are measured.

Jobless Claims Said Temporary

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Unemployment claims are up in North Carolina, but state employment officials say the situation that prompted the claims is temporary.

Don Brande, a statistical researcher with the ESC in Raleigh, said unemployment-insurance claims for the week ending May 10 totaled 61,742 claims, or a 15 percent increase in claims over the previous week.

Nationally, 616,000 Americans filed new claims for unemployment during the week ending May 10. The number is the highest in at least 13 years.

The figures are being interpreted as a signal that the jobless rate, now at 7 percent nationally, could shoot up again in May.

In North Carolina, temporary layoffs and reduced work hours at textile manufacturing plants accounted for much of the recent increase in unemployment filings.

However, state Employment Security Commission personnel say the layoffs are temporary and are not as severe as earlier this year. Filings were significantly higher in January, when 95,193 claims were filed during one week.

Brande said many textile plants are closing down for a week or two to allow inventory to catch up with market demand.

"The firms are trying to control their inventories," Brande said. He said that for the week ending May 10:

— Textile industry claims increased 11 percent over the previous week.

— Furniture industry claims increased 63 percent.

— Metal and machinery claims increased 86 percent.

— Construction industry claims decreased by 1 percent.

For the year to date, Brande said, claims are up by about 1 percent.

would be best, he feels.

What of the argument which Hunt himself has used effectively in the past to defend government intervention in other areas of family living — the argument that government programs must intervene when the family is unable or unwilling to handle the problem on its own.

Mrs. Milgrom makes the point that adolescent pregnancy affects North Carolina widely. It is not limited to the home... they affect the partners, parents, siblings and all other family members, the doctors, nurses, social workers, teachers and others who serve these teens are affected. The neighborhoods and communities in which these teens live are affected. The state and its taxpayers are ultimately also affected," she says.

"Am I correct, Edward, that your boy is getting his doctorate in nuclear physics?"

"Yes, and thank goodness they're still looking for people in his field. He's going to be working on top secret atomic bomb projects."

"Apparently, the U.S. government still needs physicists."

AT REALTORS MEETING ... with Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, who Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors president Ann Duffus talks spoke here yesterday.

Local Realtors Heard Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, fresh from his successful bid earlier this month for the Democratic nomination as a candidate in the November general election, pledged here yesterday that he will "continue to work toward the best interest of all the people in this state."

Speaking at a meeting of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors, Green said that during the time he has served in State government, "I've served with some of the best people," in the nation. However, the lieutenant governor said, none of them know it all.

"You have to listen," to the people, he emphasized, adding that there is, "no way . . . you can do everything that everybody wants done."

Green continued, "our state and our nation were born out of difficulty . . . settled by independent farmers." Then came the Germans and Scotch-Irish, which, "merged to form a citizenry as rugged as the Blue Ridge Mountains."

Because of its insistence on religious freedom, North Carolina, according to Green, although the first colony to declare its independence from England, was the last state to ratify the Constitution.

The state, although the last to join the Confederacy, "lost more of her sons in the Civil War," than any other.

Though impoverished following the war, Green pointed to the fact that the state has progressed to the point where North Carolina today, "has the highest credit rating of any state in the nation."

Mass Meeting Is Planned

Support Sadat For Lifetime President

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Preliminary results in the referendum that could enable Anwar Sadat to remain president for life seemed to show "unanimous public acceptance," Egypt's semi-official newspaper Al Aharam said.

Complete results were to be announced today. A relatively light turnout marked the beginning of the referendum Thursday, but balloting picked up later in the day.

The Interior Ministry said it had no reports of trouble from any of the 25,000 polling stations set up around the country for Egypt's 12 million registered voters.

The referendum was on constitutional amendments that would enable Sadat to run Egypt until he dies, make Islamic law the "main source" of legislation, formalize the multi-party system and allow a little more press freedom.

of confidence at a time when the Palestinian autonomy talks with Israel and the Egyptian economy are at a standstill.

Sadat suspended the talks last week after a member of Israel's Parliament introduced a resolution to reaffirm the annexation of Arab East Jerusalem, which the Israelis occupied in the 1967 war.

Sadat's second six-year term expires in October 1982. His National Democratic Party introduced the president-for-life amendment "in loyalty" for the peace mission he began with Israel in November 1977.

Party members said another reason for the measure was so Sadat could continue his efforts to get Egypt out of its economic difficulties. Inflation is running at 30 percent, and there are frequent shortages of consumer items.

Observers said a big "yes" vote would provide the 61-year-old Sadat with a vote

Auto Stopped; Arrests Made

Greenville Police yesterday arrested Leo Smith, 27 of 418 Tyson St., and Jimmy Lee Harris, 25 of 401 Darden Dr. on larceny charges in connection with two incidents at Rivergate Shopping Center here.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers stopped a car in which the two were riding on Pitt Street, near the intersection of 14th Street, about 3 p.m.

The chief said 10 pairs of jeans, five vests, and eight packages of ham were found in the car.

He said the clothing, valued at $449.25 had allegedly been taken from the Western Pleasure shop at the shopping center, while the ham had allegedly been taken from the Winn-Dixie store.

Both Smith and Harris were placed under $1,000 bonds pending court action in the case.

Historical Society To Meet

The Pitt County Historical Society will have its dinner meeting Wednesday evening, May 29, at the Masonic Temple here beginning at seven o'clock.

Anthony D. Holland of Fountain will speak on "Writing the History of Fountain, North Carolina." He is a member of the society and some of the subjects included in his talk are "What Was There Before Fountain," "Connections Between Fountain and the Surrounding Towns" and "What Life Was Like."

Holland has done research on the history of Fountain. His wife, the former Anne Jefferson, was reared in the Fountain community.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Fair Sunday through Tuesday with afternoon highs in the 80s except for some 70s over the mountains and Outer Banks. Lows from mid-50s to mid-60s.

Program Chaired By Dr. Pories

Dr. Walter Pories, Professor of Surgery at the ECU School of Medicine, served as program chairman for the recent meeting of the North Carolina Chapter of the American College of Surgeons in Wrightsville Beach.

He was given special recognition for his role in lining up a superior program.

Dr. James Bowman of Greenville presented a talk on sports medicine. He said males greatly outperform females in physical activities, with males in the Armed Services averaging 10 chinups to females' one. Females suffer 10 times more stress fractures, he said. Athletic training has become scientific with special diets and use of high speed movies to improve performance. Studies of movies have enabled basketball players to learn motions which increase their hang time, he indicated.

Candidate Anderson Sharpens Attack, On 2 Rivals

ASH-COVERED STREETS — Jan Eck carries her daughter Sally over ash-covered streets in Plummer, Idaho. Residents donned dust masks and respirators or covered their faces with bandanas like Old West Bank robbers. Plummer was the worst hit town in Idaho by Mount St. Helens. (AP Laserphoto)

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
CALDWELL, Idaho (AP) — As the presidential primary season draws to a close, independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson is sharpening his attacks on the prospective nominees of the two major parties.

Campaign aides say there is no conscious strategy for the Republican congressman to heighten personal criticisms of President Carter or Ronald Reagan.

Nonetheless, in recent days, the intensity of Anderson's commentary about the likely Democratic and Republican nominees has picked up.

In a chemistry classroom at the College of Idaho on Thursday night, Anderson was asked what he thought Reagan's qualifications to become president were.

In a direct reference to Carter and Reagan's shared background as former chief executives of Georgia and California, Anderson replied: "Why trade in one governor or another after what we've seen happen for the last 3 1/2 years."

Of Reagan, he said, "I don't think that he's terribly qualified."

The Illinois congressman noted that Reagan has cited the late Calvin Coolidge as one of his heroes.

Coolidge, Anderson said, was known for taking two hour naps.

"I don't think the next president — despite the infirmities of age — will be able to sleep two hours every afternoon."

Reagan is 69 and never before has Anderson made such a direct reference to his age.

Anderson began his campaign day in Los Angeles, where he sought the support of Hispanic community leaders, many of them former backers of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.'s aborted run for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In a Mexican restaurant, with photographs of Brown covering two outside windows, Anderson pledged to give high priority to filling important jobs in his administration with Hispanic Americans.

In Idaho, the congressman needs 10,000 signatures by June 24 to get his name on the November general election ballot.

Idaho is a politically conservative state where Democratic Sen. Frank Church, normally a liberal on most social issues, is running for re-election in firm opposition to gun controls.

Nonetheless, Anderson — as he did in New Hampshire — willingly expressed his support of controls for registration for handguns, although emphasizing that he has no intention of limiting hunters.

For the students, Anderson cited what he said was the unwillingness of other politicians to face such controversial issues directly.

"They told me that to get elected in Idaho you have to walk away fast from that issue," he said.

"That is what has gone wrong in America," said Anderson, pledging not to base his positions on issues on where he happens to be campaigning. Today, Anderson has scheduled a rally at the Idaho state House before flying to Denver, and then on to a series of campaign appearances in Albuquerque, N.M. on Saturday.

European Asthma Drug To Be Tested In U.S.

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — There've been times, says Vivian Naylor of Plymouth, when she has gone to bed at night and been surprised to wake up in the morning.

"The worst part is that you panic sometimes when you feel like you can't take one more breath," she said. "It's like somebody's smothering you."

Mrs. Naylor, a retired fabric shop owner and dress designer, has just been discharged after several weeks at Duke Hospital, where she underwent treatment for asthma.

Most people, she says, have no idea how debilitating asthma can be.

"I met a woman while I was at Duke who had lung cancer and emphysema and had just developed asthma," she said. "That woman told me the asthma was the hardest of the three to deal with."

In an effort to help people like Mrs. Naylor, physicians at Duke University Medical Center will conduct a clinical study of a drug that has been shown in Europe to be effective in controlling asthma.

The drug, Ketotifen, has not yet been licensed by the Food and Drug Administration for use in this country.

Researchers believe the drug may spare asthma sufferers many of the potentially harmful side effects of steroid therapy — in many cases the only possible treatment for asthma.

The study will be supported by the Sandoz Pharmaceutical Co. of East Hanover, N.J. Dr. C. E.

Recover Body In Catawba River

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — The body of the founder of Blue Ridge Oil Co. was recovered from the Catawba River late Wednesday.

The body of J. Earl Barringer, 76, a prominent Hickory businessman, was found about 6:30 a.m. by two off-duty policemen, who were out fishing. It was floating almost 10 feet from shore in a part of the river just below the U.S. 321 bridge, a police spokesman said.

The body has been sent to the state medical examiner's office for autopsy.

Barringer was founder of Blue Ridge Oil Co., the parent company of Smile Stations Inc. He also was president of a company that manufactures coin-operated oil-vending machines and he was president and a part owner of B.M.T. Corp., which owns and operates Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge in Hickory.

Barringer was a director of Northwestern Bank and Carolina Insurance and Realty Inc.

Funeral services were scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Hickory.

Buckley III, professor of medicine and director of Duke's allergy and immunology laboratory, will head the research effort.

Ketotifen is similar to a recently licensed drug called cromolyn, but can be swallowed in pill form, unlike cromolyn, which is inhaled as a powder.

Both drugs increase the stability of lung cell membranes that release substances similar to histamines during an attack. The substances cause lung muscles and tissues to contract, making breathing extremely difficult.

Asthma affects between 1 and 3 percent of the American population, Buckley said. It can be caused by a variety of factors including allergies, certain drugs, infections, strong emotions, exercise and irritants.

The study will involve 30 patients with extrinsic asthma. It will differ from previous respiratory drug research in that none of the patients whose asthma is under control will be suddenly withdrawn from their present medications and offered a placebo or inactive compound. Instead, the withdrawal will be gradual.

"If asthma can be controlled and if steroids and bronchodilators can be more easily withdrawn in patients taking Ketotifen, we will be able to conclude that the new drug is a good alternative to the asthma drugs now available," said Buckley. "We think this will show that it's not necessary to make people uncomfortable in order to get new information."

Defense Spending Feared Obstacle To Budget Bill

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders are worried about the chances of getting their colleagues to go along with a compromise $613.3 billion budget that contains the largest peacetime defense spending increase in history.

If the figures placed on paper by a House-Senate conference committee can withstand the reality of a worsening economy — with the possibility of lower tax revenues and higher unemployment payments — it would be the first balanced budget in 12 years.

The leadership began polling House members Thursday to get a feel for the budget's support. However, initial signs point to serious difficulty in pushing the package through the House on a vote expected next Thursday.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Majority Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., agreed that the vote looked "tight" and that formidable opposition was building against the budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Already opposed by many conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats, the compromise is now under attack from an influential group of liberal-to-moderate Democrats who object to the high defense spending.

O'Neill, D-Mass., said about 40 Democrats who voted for the House version of a balanced budget earlier this month had told him "they doubt if they can vote for" the compromise.

"If we lose 40, we really have problems," O'Neill said, adding that such a loss of Democratic votes would put the fate of the budget firmly in the hands of Republicans who traditionally vote against Democratic spending plans.

Rep. William Brodhead, D-Mich., one of five conference committee Democrats to oppose the compromise, said opponents had "an easy 100 (Democratic) votes" against the budget, a number that would make its approval extremely unlikely.

However, Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Colo., Budget Committee chairman, said he was "optimistic" that the budget would clear the House, drawing votes from moderate Republicans and Democrats. Senate approval is seen as almost certain.

Citing the absence of a deficit for the first time in a dozen years and the defense hike, Giaimo said, "It behooves the solid base of the Democratic Party to support this kind of budget."

But he added: "We will not please the extremists in either party."

Senior House Republicans, including House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., have indicated they will support the compromise because it is in balance and contains substantial increase in military spending.

However, an increasingly influential bloc of younger Republicans is opposing the budget.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., a leader of the group, urged Republicans to oppose the budget because of its high spending levels, lack of a tax cut and the growing doubt about its projected surplus.

"The very quick deterioration of the U.S. economy ... is causing this paper-balanced budget to be out of balance both in reality and on paper," said Kemp.

Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., also noted the political advantage in Republicans helping to torpedo the budget. "Why should we bail the Democrats out of their own mistakes?" he asked.

The compromise pushed the House defense number up $5.8 billion from $147.9 billion, while the Senate conferees lowered their figure by only $2 billion, down from $155.7 billion. President Carter requested $150.5 billion for the Pentagon.

The proposed 1981 military increase is $18 billion over the revised military spending total for the current year, or a jump of about 3.5 percent after inflation is discounted.

The highest previous peacetime military increase was $12 billion, recorded in 1977 and again in 1979.

Before giving the spending plan formal approval Thursday, the negotiators added unprecedented instructions to congressional committees, mandating them to achieve a total of $6.4 billion in savings.

The savings order, known as reconciliation, directs eight committees on both sides to report out by June 20 legislation to produce the savings. The savings proposals would then go into one bill and be voted on by the House and Senate.

DISPLACED FAMILIES — The Bob Johnson and Carma Chick families who left their Castle Rock (Wash.) homes following the flood of the Cowlitz River set up temporary housing and camp near busy Interstate highway 5 Thursday. The Cowlitz overflowed when Mount St. Helens volcano erupted. (AP Laserphoto)

Humber House To Be Presented

The people of Pitt County and the City of Greenville will become the owners of the Robert Lee Humber home at 117 West Fifth St. at ceremonies at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The property is being given to the county and city as an historical landmark and memorial to the late humanitarian, champion of world peace, and man dedicated to art.

Humber's sons, Marcel B.

and John Lee Humber, will present the deed to the property, located across Washington Street from the Greenville Municipal Building, to city and county officials at the site.

The property has been the site of the Humber homeplace since 1847. The existing house was built in 1895.

Local government officials hope the 3,396 square foot building will be used as a branch office for the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources' Division of Archives and History.

Public Works Closed Mon.

The Sanitation Division of the Greenville Public Works Department will observe Monday — Memorial Day — as a regular holiday.

All garbage and trash service will run one day late through Wednesday, and will resume regularly scheduled service on Thursday.

The Greenville Area Transit system — GREAT — will also observe the Memorial Day holiday Monday. There will be no bus service Monday. Regular service will resume Tuesday.

The Cemetery Division will be closed Monday, although cemetery gates will be opened from early morning until sundown.

Director of Public Works Mayo Allen said the police department should be called Monday for any emergency street or storm sewer damage or other problems connected with streets. The police department in turn, will notify the proper public works official.

Manned Space Shuttle Flight Is Delayed Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first manned launch of the oft-postponed space shuttle has been delayed another four months, from next November until March 1981 — putting the maiden flight two years behind its original schedule.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced the latest slip on Thursday, confirming what NASA officials have been saying unofficially for several weeks.

The officials have stated they did not expect the maiden launch until February or March next year, but they wanted to assess the program completely before setting a new, more realistic date.

The space agency said the revised schedule calls for four manned orbital test flights between March 1981 and April 1982, with the first operational flight now set for September 1982. That represents a six-month delay in the operational date.

NASA said the delays are necessary to gain additional confidence in shuttle systems, many of which have required technology breakthroughs.

The first shuttle, the Columbia, originally was to have been fired into orbit with a two-man crew in early 1979. But there have been repeated postponements, mainly because of technical problems in two high-technology areas — the main engines and the thermal system designed to protect the spaceship from re-entry heat.

Officials believe the engine problems have been resolved, but they have scheduled additional test firings of Columbia's powerplant in the next month to verify modifications.

"The completion of the thermal protection system and its mechanical integrity remain the primary technical concern," NASA reported Thursday.

Once the shuttle is operational, NASA and the Air Force plan scores of orbital flights for a variety of military, civilian and scientific missions. The ship will land back on Earth like a glider, and each of the four shuttles now planned will be capable of 100 or more round trips into space.

President Carter has given his full support to the project, primarily because many of the Air Force missions are considered vital to national security. These include placing in orbit and servicing advanced surveillance satellites.

NASA said the schedule changes mean that several commercial users which had intended to orbit communications and other payloads with the shuttle in 1982 and 1983 will have to shift to more costly expendable rockets. Among them, it said, are Telesat of Canada, the government of Indonesia and Hughes Aircraft.

In anticipation of the delay, several other customers already have contracted to launch their satellites on such rockets.

DROUGHT EMERGENCY
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — The government has declared a state of emergency in 529 municipalities in northeastern Brazil because drought has destroyed crops and driven people from their homes in search of food.

Familiar Actor In The Middle East Still 'Ambiguous Figure'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — That bearded cleric roving trouble spots of the Middle East in his black cassock and flat-topped kalimafi, Eastern Rite Roman Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji, has become a familiar actor in events there, but to many he remains a little-known, ambiguous figure.

It's highly questionable, under Vatican directives, whether he's even supposed to be in that region.

Various other anomalies and controversies surround the 58-year-old Syria-born churchman who has cultivated links with the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Iranian militants holding U.S. hostages and who presented himself as intermediary to retrieve bodies of Americans killed in a rescue attempt.

He says his actions are "as a pastor, as a Christian, as a man and as an Arab."

But his background and role have been nebulous and unclear in some respects, including general Western unacquaintance with Eastern Rite Catholicism to which he belongs.

However, his official ecclesiastical assignments, since his release in 1977 from an Israeli jail where he served time for smuggling guns to Palestinian guerrillas, have been to Latin America and more recently to Western Europe, not to the Middle East.

Yet he has been back there recurrently.

Other factors have clouded his status. News reports have varied about his title and even the spelling of his name. "Hilarion Capucci," the Vatican directory gives it, but that apparently is an Italian-toned transliteration of the Arabic. Some reporters in the area maintain that "Hilarion Capudji," matches the Arabic more phonetically.

Iran's Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh describes him as friend of Iran who has shown "independence and strength of spirit."

"One thing is apparent," writes National Catholic News Service correspondent Gerard E. Sherry who interviewed Capudji while he was in prison. "He's acting like a free agent involved in all the intrigue that goes with Middle East politics and religion."

Capudji is part of the Syrian segment of Eastern Rite Catholicism, the Melkites, and was their patriarchal vicar in Jerusalem and had become an Israeli citizen when convicted in 1974 for smuggling arms, said to be for PLO terrorists, and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Through Vatican negotiations he was released in 1977 after serving only three years, with a Vatican guarantee he would not be given any church post in the Middle East and would not publicly discuss Middle East issues. He was assigned to a vague post of archbishop visitor to Melkites in South America.

However, a little more than a year later, he was in Damascus, Syria, relates a U.S. Catholic weekly, Our Sunday Visitor, and reportedly told a meeting of the Palestinian National Council he would fight "to the last drop of my blood" for the liberation of Palestine.

He has criticized Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the Camp David agreements between Israel and Egypt, saying they "do not resolve the Palestinian problem" of "great injustice toward my people."

Capudji was received in Qum, Iran, by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's central authority, in early 1979. In May 1979, Pope John Paul II received the archbishop and Melkite Rite Patriarch Maximos V. Hakim of Antioch, Syria, and announced Capudji was being shifted to be archbishop visitor to Melkite Rite Catholics of Western Europe.

The appointment was protested by the Israeli Embassy in Rome which said it did not correspond to commitments made by the late Pope Paul VI to keep Capudji distant from Middle East affairs.

Capudji says the title "visitor" made his European post provisional and "my patriarch has assured me that once the pending political problems are resolved, I will return to work as his vicar in Jerusalem."

Capudji met in September 1979, in Madrid, Spain with Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, reportedly causing distress to the Vatican.

After militants in Iran seized the U.S. Embassy hostages, Capudji appeared in Tehran, saying he was there as a friend of the Iranian government. He has visited the hostages three times at the invitation of their captors.

While Capudji was in jail, Arab Christians claimed he had been beaten and tortured, his head and beard shaved. But correspondent

Sherry, who had visited Capudji while in prison says he showed no signs of being mistreated, had a private cell, was well fed, bearded, wore his black cassock and was permitted to have visitors and celebrate his liturgy.

"His living conditions in jail appeared to be much better than those many Israelis experienced on the outside," relates Sherry in the National Catholic Reporter, a Kansas City-based weekly.

The Melkite rite is one of numerous branches of Catholicism's Eastern Rite, often called 'Uniat.' They retain their own rituals, canon law and allow priests to marry. They were among Eastern Orthodox Christians who returned to union with Rome and the papacy after most of Eastern Orthodoxy split from it in 1054 A.D. There are about 10 million Uniat and about 250 million Eastern Orthodox Christians.

REFLECTIONS

Strange how a landscape sets the imagination to work. Right now, looking at this scene, I can imagine all sorts of things.

Winged steeds riding to heavy music . . . pioneers in the wilderness . . . castles on the cliffs . . . boating at high speeds.

Look at the magic that enables the lake to mirror the rocky mountain peak and the heavens! The vastness and stillness of the scene sets my mind to wondering about time and space and things I will never understand.

But in standing here and wondering so, I feel like I've been near God.

There is a place where I can find Him always—in Church. Will you come with me?

Geo. Bush On Verge Of Quitting Race

LYNDHURST, N.J. (AP) — Despite signs he is close to ending his two-year campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, George Bush is continuing to play the role of the full-fledged candidate.

His round of personal campaigning went on in New Jersey amid signs his overall political operation is unraveling because of financial pressure and the widespread perception that Ronald Reagan has the nomination locked up.

On Thursday, Bush campaign officials gave up hope of challenging front-runner Reagan in California and pulled their top political organizer out of the state.

Bush cancelled his weekend campaign schedule in New Jersey and Ohio to return home to Houston to decide whether he can raise the money necessary to continue the campaign.

But even as new doubts were raised about the future of the Bush campaign, the former CIA director went through his much-practiced political paces.

And aides said Bush is not yet ready to concede the nomination to Reagan.

Bush told a cheering student audience at Tenafly High School that his victories in the Pennsylvania and Michigan primaries prove that in growing numbers voters want "a different choice" than Reagan and President Carter.

Bush said he has no doubt he can beat Reagan in Ohio and New Jersey provided he can raise the funds to mount "a proper campaign."

And he said that many Reagan delegates would turn to him if he started winning "and they began to have doubts that Reagan's bandwagon will keep rolling in the fall."

Bush's decision was complicated by a number of conflicting factors.

Campaign aides in Washington reported they were being flooded with pleas from grass-roots Republicans that Bush stay in the race. They said that $50,000 in campaign contributions were received on Wednesday and Thursday.

But Bush said that many of his financial backers now believe that Reagan's lead is so commanding that it would be "an impossible task" to overtake and reverse it.

Bush said repeatedly that the delegate count and the money figures are both "very tough." A pared-down budget for California alone called for spending $600,000.

"We're not going to do California," said a key Bush aide who asked not to be identified. "There is no way.

We don't have any money."

But a Bush loyalist insisted "this does not mean it's over" as far as Ohio and New Jersey and the nomination are concerned.

During a day of campaigning in northern New Jersey, Bush had a private conversation with former President Gerald Ford as both men attended a meeting of the New Jersey State Republican Committee.

Ford told reporters Bush's victories prove Reagan could have difficulties next fall in states like Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Bush said that the main argument for staying in the race is that new victories in other key industrial states would force Reagan delegates who are not legally bound "to take another look."

However, with but 10 days left before the final round of primaries, Bush will have to act quickly if he is even to schedule an effective round of campaigning. And it's unlikely he could stop Reagan from gaining the 113 delegates he needs to get the nomination.

California alone awards 168 delegates in its winner-take-all primary June 3.

Big Quaalude Seizure In Traffic Crackdown

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Drug traffickers should be forewarned that North Carolina is cracking down on the growing influx of illegal tranquilizers in the state, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Thursday.

Edmisten pointed to a drug raid in Greensboro in which 100,000 Quaalude capsules were seized as evidence of the crackdown.

State and federal authorities arrested four persons Wednesday at a Greensboro motel and charged them with possession of 100,000 Quaalude capsules, valued at $300,000 to $500,000.

In Brunswick County last month, authorities seized a plane loaded with 700,000 Quaalude pills.

"The problem is virtually an epidemic," Edmisten said. "Quaaludes are dangerous drugs. They do radical things to your body. They are not headache powders."

Edmisten refused to comment on whether Wednesday's raid will lead to more arrests but he did say that the state has a network of agents and informants concentrating on the Quaalude problem.

"This was not an isolated case at all," he said. "Our department is watching people all the time. We are also looking for those who are dealing in cocaine, heroin and marijuana, but we are very concerned about the Quaalude trade."

U.S. Attorney H.M. "Mickey" Michaux Jr. also refused comment on the raid, saying it was too sensitive.

"We are maintaining absolute silence on this case," he said.

Quaaludes, or methaqualone as they are known generically, are potent tranquilizers which sell for $3 to $5 apiece on the street. Ed-misten said many of the Quaaludes being smuggled into the state are believed to be manufactured in South America from ingredients made in West Germany.

"It's rather easy to carry large numbers of Quaaludes in practically any type of conveyance. You can carry them in the trunk of your car. That's the sheer profit motive of the Quaalude trade," Edmisten said.

The four persons arrested Wednesday all were residents of Florida. They were identified as Michael Adkins, 21; Wesley Corbin, 21; William Corbin, 33; and Sue Eller, 28.

Adkins is being held on $1 million bond. Bond for both the Corbins and Ms. Eller was set at $750,000.

The four allegedly flew into Florence, S.C., Tuesday in a private twin-engine airplane. From there, sources say, they rented a plane and drove to Greensboro.

Another person, Otto Van Scalck, 66, also of Florida, was arrested in South Carolina and charged with conspiracy to violate drug law.

Boat Exams To Be Offered

Courtesy marine examinations will be given by qualified examiners from the Greenville Flotilla of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, May 31.

The examiners will check trailer boats brought to the parking lot at Nichols on that date. There is no charge for this service and no reports on defects are submitted to any government agency.

All boaters are reminded that to qualify for the courtesy marine examinations (CME) decal, distress flares are required in addition to all other equipment required by federal and state laws.

Members of the Flotilla will also man a booth at Carolin East Mall from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, June 2 and each evening at those hours through Friday, June 6. At this time all boaters and potential boaters are invited to come by and discuss boating techniques and safety. Free literature will be available to all interested persons.

Jim Hecker, Public Relations Officer for Flotilla 16-05, U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary notes these two events are excellent opportunities for boaters to see that their boats are properly equipped and that they are familiar with all that is entailed in a safe boating season.

The bidding:

Pass Pass 1♥ 1♠
4♥ Pass 6♥ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ace of ♠.

Study the auction and play of this hand, then decide how many bridge crimes were committed by whom.

West led the ace of spades and East contributed his lowest card in the suit. Declarer knew that he had to shift, but to which suit? Mentally he flipped a coin and it came up clubs. A delighted declarer picked off East's king, drew the outstanding trump and discarded his diamond loser on the king of spades. Making six-odd.

Now let's take a look at the errors. We cannot fault West's overall. Since his partner was a passed hand, his hope was to uncover a profitable sacrifice against the opponents' vulnerable game. And South's opening bid is surely beyond reproach. But things deteriorated thereafter.

North's decision to jump to four hearts is sheer madness—a simple raise to two hearts does ample justice to a hand that contains only one king—and that in the opponent's suit—and no ace, singleton or void. Over four hearts East, with four trumps, a singleton, and ace and a king should surely bid four spades. And South's leap to six hearts, despite the fact that he expected considerably more from his partner, was strictly a flight of fancy. Surely he could have checked for aces en route, and even then, the club finesse rated to be wrong.

The defense also left something to be desired. West is blameless—he could not tell that his partner held the ace of diamonds. But East could have steered his partner to the winning play at trick two by dropping the jack of spades under the ace. Since that cannot be a request for a spade continuation, it must be a suit preference signal, asking partner to shift to the higher-ranking of the other side suits. Assuming West obliges by shifting to a diamond, the defenders would collect their second ace to beat the contract off the top.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices rose in fairly active trading today as major banks sharply lowered a key business loan rate and the government announced the slowest monthly inflation increase in more than a year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 5.03 to 847.95 by midday. Gaining issues outnumbered losers by more than 3-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume came to 21.14 million shares compared with 17.46 million at midday in the previous session.

Citibank, the nation's second largest, today dropped its prime lending rate which applies to business loans an extraordinary 2 percent points to 14 1/2 percent. A number of other banks quickly followed that lead.

DAY OBSERVED
The Winterville Masonic Lodge No. 232 will be observing St. John's Day at Good Hope F.W.B. Church Sunday at 7 p.m. Elder Jimmy Dixon of Greenville will deliver the sermon and the Good Hope Male Chorus will sing.

All masons, Eastern Stars and the public are invited, according to Worshipful Master Calvin C. Henderson and Secretary Annianis C. Smith.

That move reflected sharp drops in money market rates which lower the costs of funds for bank loans. It also came after the Federal Reserve Thursday night said it was easing some special credit restrictions imposed March 14.

Banking and financial issues were generally higher. Beneficial Corp. rose 1/2 to 23; Chase Manhattan added 1/4 to 42 1/2; Citicorp rose 3/4 to 21 1/2 and BankAmerica rose 1/4 to 25 1/4. Household Finance slipped 1/4 to 17 1/4.

International Paper, up 1/2 to 34 1/4, was the most actively traded NYSE issue as of mid-day.

The NYSE composite index rose .52 to 62.71. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 2.36 to 265.28.

Taft Named DGA Prexy

William H. Taft Jr., a partner in Taft Furniture Co. here, was elected president of the Downtown Greenville Association by the DGA's board of directors, meeting this week.

In addition to Taft, officers elected by the board included I. J. Edwards Jr. as vice president, Clarence B. Tugwell as treasurer, and Dave Mosier, secretary and executive director.

Directors who will serve during the association's sixth year are carry-over members Morris Brody, Jack Edwards and Baxter Powell, as well as Helen Pope, Roy Taylor, Tugwell, Anne I. Guerrant, Reid Hooper, and Charles A. Forbes, who were elected at the annual meeting. All served two-year terms.

Outgoing president John W. Shannonhouse, who will serve for one year as a director, was commended by the board for his leadership during the past year.

Taft, one of the organizers of the DGA, is also presently serving as chairman of the Greenville Parking Authority.

Memorial Day Services Set

The annual Memorial Day Service, sponsored by American Legion Post No. 39 of Greenville, will be held at the American Legion Post Home on St. Andrews Drive at 4 p.m. Sunday. Col. A.E. Dubber of Greenville will present a Memorial Day address.

Members of American Legion Post 39 will assist in the service, as will members of the Two Hundred and Thirteenth Military Police Company of the North Carolina National Guard. The Rose High School Band under the direction of James H. Rogers will present a program of music before the service begins.

Special Tribute Is Sponsored

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Ruff and Ready Volunteer Firemen sponsored a Tribute to Mother Program at Selvia Chapel F.W.B. Church on May 18 at 6 p.m.

Eldress Shirley Daniels was the speaker and her topic was "Mother Love Has No Limit." Carrie Taylor paid special tribute to mothers with a poem as each member pinned a red corsage on their mother.

Special guests included the Rev. James Godley, the Rev. M.R. Wilson, the Gospel Chorus and the Gospel Consolation. Dinner was served after the tribute.

Conley FBLA Awards Night

D. H. Conley High School Chapter No. 4520 of the Future Business Leaders of America had Pamela Wing, marketing director of Carolina East Mall, as its keynote speaker during its Annual Awards Banquet Tuesday evening at Western Steer Steak House.

Ms. Wing told the group she was an FBLA member during her high school years in Nebraska. Her subject was "The Art of Communicating in the Business World."

The FBLA creed was led by Nancy Berg, who also presented two plaques that will remain in the school. On one are the names of Debbie Hall, a state winner in public speaking; Kay Heath, a Clerk Typist II winner and Donna Worthington, a Clerk Typist I winner. On the other are first place district winners.

Counseling Workshop Held

A two-day counseling skills workshop for Adult Basic Education teachers was held recently at Pitt Community College to teach listening design skills and transactional analysis in the classroom through role play.

Dr. Jane Vella, assistant professor for Adult Education and Community College Programs at North Carolina State University and Michael Chalmers, a doctoral student in adult education at N.C. State were consultants for the workshop. Problems in adult education and the identification of resources to help with these problems were discussed as well as ways to improve educational, personal and referral counseling skills.

GUEST SPEAKER

SIMPSON - The Rev. James Ward will be the guest speaker during 11 a. m. worship at Simpson Chapel F.W.B. Church Sunday.

The Senior Choir and Ushers of the church will be in charge. The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. Matthew Best.

CELEBRATION

The Young adult choir of St. Missionary Baptist Church in Falkland will celebrate its second anniversary Sunday at 6 p.m. Various choirs and groups will be participating in the celebration. The public is invited to attend.

Advices No Bonds Vote

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - A proposed $600 million school bond issue should not be considered by voters in North Carolina this year, says State Treasurer Harlan E. Boyeles.

Boyeles, an ex-officio member of the State Board of education, made his remarks Wednesday before the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association's annual tax-accounting seminar in Charlotte.

It was the first time Boyeles had expressed publicly an opinion about the timing of the bond vote.

Proponents of the referendum have called for the issue to be placed on the November ballot.

"At the same time we recognize that the school system does have legitimate needs, we are also aware that school enrollments are dropping," he said.

Boyeles added that a bond issue on the ballot in a partisan election year could become a campaign issue that, if defeated, would be even more difficult to get passed in a subsequent year.

Boyeles also proposed that the 12th grade in high school be eliminated because, he said, many high-school courses are duplicated by area community colleges.

"We now have a total of 17 years of education which is financially underwritten by the state - one year of kindergarten, 12 years of public schooling and four more years through our university system," said Boyeles.

Mental Health Show Repeated

The "Mental Health Matters" show featuring Bill Safriet will be repeated Sunday at 1:06 p. m. on WNCN radio.

Safriet, Mental Health Specialist in the Greenville Regional Office of the State Division of Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Alcohol/Drug Abuse Services of the Dept. of Human Resources, will talk about his role in relation to the Pitt County Mental Health Center, deinstitutionalization, the revolving door syndrome and the need for community support systems for clients needing appropriate mental health services.

Charges Made Following Stop

George Stephen Cox Jr, 25 of Rural Hall, was arrested by Greenville police early today on charges of driving under the influence and possession of marijuana.

Officers reported they stopped a motorcycle Cox was driving on Farmville Boulevard, near the intersection of Bancroft Avenue, about 1:30 a.m. after observing a passenger on the vehicle with no safety helmet.

The passenger, Alice Barksdale Allen, 23 of Farmville, was charged with having no safety helmet.

JACKSONVILLE — Greene Central waited a year for a return shot at White Oak. The wait was worth it.

In a game which had just about everything, Greene Central squeezed and leaped around White Oak, 3-2, Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the State 3-A baseball championships.

Greene Central, now 22-3, plays host to the winner of tonight's Western Guilford-South Johnston match next week in the state tournament semifinals.

Riding the pitching of Jeff Horne, White Oak defeated Greene Central, 4-1, last season en route to a second straight 3-A baseball crown.

Thursday night, the Rams got revenge — on Horne and the Vikings — but not until the game went into extra innings.

Trailing 2-1 after five, the Rams tied it up in the sixth and then scored the winning run in the eighth, only to have to sweat out a tortuous last half inning.

Jabo Fulghum led off the eighth with a walk. David Shirley came in to run for the Ram catcher and, after Al Murray fled to right, was thrown out trying to steal.

With two gone, Donald Shaw walked and went to third on Walt Tyndall's single. Jeff Scott followed with a clutch single to left to score Shaw and the Rams led, 3-2.

It wasn't over, however. Steve Thompson reached on an error by second baseman Robin Bowen and Richard Maddocks singled, giving the Vikings runners on first and second with no one out. Charles Canady reached on a fielder's choice when Hardy tagged third to retire Thompson.

Then came the play that saved the game.

Charlie Fonville sent a tremendous blast to deepest center field — 365 feet away. Murray raced backwards and at the last moment reached up and grabbed the ball, saving what Murray said would have been a home run.

"It was gone, there's no doubt about it," the senior centerfielder said. "I didn't hit the fence but the ball would have been out. I didn't worry about the fence. The fence would have been the first thing that stopped me."

Almost before Murray had caught the ball Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum, nicknamed "Rabbit," bounded out of the dugout — as if the grayhounds were indeed after him.

Fulghum claimed Canady passed Maddocks going to third and also did not tag second on his way back to first when the ball was caught. The appeal was disallowed.

Moments later, Jim Harris sent a check-swing dribbler down the first base line. After reaching the ball, Korpi had trouble picking it up but finally gained control and threw to first to nip Harris and give the Rams the win.

"We got to make this count," said Fulghum, his fist balled up. "We got to make this count."

Predicably, pitching dominated the early going. Horne struck out the first six batters he faced and wound up with 12 whiffs — the same number he had against the Rams in last year's playoff game. For the year, Horne notched 193 strikeouts in 88 1/3 innings.

Meanwhile, Korpi, who struck out four and did not walk a batter, kept Viking hitters off-balance by changing speeds on his fast ball and curve. He held the Vikings without a hit until a third-inning home run.

Greene Central finally broke Horne's strike out string in the third on Chip Hardy's lead-off double into left center. The Rams didn't waste the opportunity.

Robin Bowen followed with a bunt and when Horne's throw to third was late the Rams had runners on the corners with no one out. One out later Holmes laid down a squeeze bunt and Hardy came roaring home, giving the Rams a 1-0 lead.

White Oak tied the score when the Vikings' #8 hitter, Ed Purvis, sent a 1-2 pitch over the left center field fence, some 350 feet away.

The Vikings then took the lead in the fifth on Nick McAllister's solo home run.

"I just got the ball up," Korpi said of the two home runs, only his third and fourth earned runs in 8 2/3 innings this season. "I gutted both right down the middle on them."

The Rams, however, weren't through. They had waited a year for this shot at the Vikings and weren't about to give up.

Murray, who hit .420 during the playoffs, started the sixth by reaching on an error. Murray went to third on Shaw's bunt and when Walt Tyndall walked the Rams had runners on first and third with one out.

"We worked on our bunting this week," Fulghum said. "I had them working on the (bunting) machine, laying the ball down."

Ironically, it was a missed bunt that tied the game for the Rams. With the squeeze on and Murray coming down the line from third, Jeff Scott missed the ball. Murray appeared caught, but when White Oak catcher Jim Harris threw to third Murray came barreled home.

The return throw home was low and when Harris bent over Murray leaped over him to score and the game was tied, 2-2.

"If it hadn't been for that quick throw to third I don't know if I could have made it," Murray said. "I thought I had a chance and when he (Harris) bent down I just jumped over him."

score and the game was tied, 2-2.

"If it hadn't been for that quick throw to third I don't know if I could have made it," Murray said. "I thought I had a chance and when he (Harris) bent down I just jumped over him."

McPhatter In Semis

EUGENE, Ore. — East Carolina's Cookie McPhatter gained her way into the semifinals of the 800-meter run in the AIAW National Track and Field Championships, now underway at the University of Oregon.

McPhatter finished in the top qualifiers in a qualifying heat, then kept her high finish in the quarterfinals. The semifinals are set for today, with the finals on Saturday.

McPhatter is the lone ECU athlete to qualify for the meet.

Ron Butler Honored As Top Athlete At Rose Sports Banquet

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Ron Butler, a senior athlete at Rose High School, walked off with most of the honors at the school's All-Sports Banquet held last night. Butler, who participated in three sports, football, wrestling and track, was named the winner of the Dixon Cup, emblematic of being the school's outstanding male athlete.

Laurie Smith, a member of the girls' tennis and track teams, was the winner of the H.L. Hodges Award, as the top female athlete at the school.

The speaker for the night was the new head football coach at East Carolina, Ed Emory.

Emory told the group of athletes, parents and supporters gathered that self-motivation is a quality that everyone should have. He confessed that as a student in high school, he had little interest in academics until he went to military school, then learned some principles of self-motivation. The coach added that his great desire to become head coach at East Carolina was a part of this process.

"There are seven principles to follow to achieve this," he told the group. One of these is desire. "You have got to want to do things and have a great desire to get them done. You should set target dates for achieving things. You may have to adjust these, but you shouldn't give them up."

Another is faith. "Faith makes all things possible. You only have to believe in what you are doing."

A third is imagination. "You can create anything you can imagine. You can learn to handle situations if you create them in your mind and get properly prepared to do things mentally."

Another is organization and planning. "You have to have a plan of action. You should plan each day."

The fifth is decision making. "You have to be willing to make decisions. You might not always make the right decision, but you have to make them anyway."

Will power is another principle. "You have to have persistence, a winning attitude."

Finally, Emory said, you need to utilize your subconscious mind. "If you feed your mind positive thoughts, you will think positively. If you feed it negative thoughts, you'll think negatively. So prepare your mind for proper thoughts."

Awards were presented to athletes in each of the different sports at Rose following the program.

In football, the winners included: Most Valuable, Ron Butler; Most Improved, Kenny Barnes; Best Lineman, Wallace Brown; Best Defense, David Holley; Best Back, Mark Shank; Most Valuable Junior Varsity, Barry Smith.

Tennis awards included: Most Valuable Girl, Lisa Grant; Most Valuable Boy, Jeff Quinn.

Awards in cross-country included: Most Valuable, Harry Williams; Coach's Award, Kenny Smith.

Most Valuable in wrestling was Butler.

In swimming, Most Valuable went to Kevin Richards (boys), and Sheila Collie (girls). Eric Downes received the Coach's Award.

Donald House was named the Most Valuable in boys' basketball, with Calvin

Night Long Talks End Threat Of Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's longest night has resulted in a settlement of the lingering contract dispute between players and management and averted a strike which threatened unprecedented interruption of the major league season.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the 26 owners, struggled through a marathon day and night of negotiations, finally hammering out an agreement in a seven-hour wrapup session.

Terms were not disclosed immediately because the settlement must be presented to the Player Association's Executive Board and membership for ratification. Neither party would comment on the final disposition of the difficult free agent compensation issue, the major stumbling block throughout the talks.

"We've reached an agreement for four years," said Grebey. "We think it's a good one. There's something in it for everybody."

Miller called the settlement a victory for both sides. "That's what collective bargaining means," the union chief said. "When you reach an agreement without a strike, it's a great victory for everybody concerned."

The settlement means today's games will be played as scheduled. Grebey said only one team might have transportation problems but that he expected the schedule to be followed.

"It's a good deal all around," said Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who made his first appearance in the talks. "There was a lot of honest goodwill all around. The parties worked hard at it. I'm ecstatic."

This mutual victory was not easy to achieve and several times as the final day of negotiations stretched into night, it seemed a strike was inevitable.

The crisis atmosphere began at 10 a.m., EDT, Thursday when Miller and his negotiating team, which included attorneys Dick Moss, Don Fehr and Peter Rose, arrived for talks. The management team was one hour late, setting a pattern which was followed throughout the day. Grebey and the owners' negotiators were also close to an hour late for an afternoon meeting and a half hour late for the final night session. Miller was clearly annoyed by management's tardiness throughout the day.

The first meeting between the two sides lasted only 1 hour, 25 minutes, from 11:15 in the morning to 12:40. When Grebey and his people left the midtown hotel where talks were held, they seemed downcast.

"Right now, things don't look so good," said Lee MacPhail, president of the American League.

He might have been even more disheartened if he had heard what Miller had to say at that point.

"There has been a lack of good faith (in the bargaining) from beginning to end," Miller said.

What could prevent a strike, he was asked.

"It would take a small miracle," Miller snapped.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett also painted a gloomy picture.

"There was no progress," he said. "Nothing happened."

The afternoon session was set to start at 4 p.m. Again Miller arrived on time and again the owners' committee was late, arriving just before 5 p.m. One hour later, Grebey and his negotiating team left again and David Vaughn, counsel for Moffett, reported that a recess had been declared. Vaughn added that there was no guarantee that the two sides would meet in joint talks again that night, and it was at that point that the situation seemed bleakest.

Miller then left the hotel and met at another site informally with Grebey. At 9:30 p.m., he returned for more talks and confirmed the session with the owners' negotiator.

"We met off the record with each other," he said. "There was no note taking. It was an exploratory talk. I have no feeling one way or the other about it."

Then Miller was asked if the strike deadline still stood.

"There's no reason to stop the clock," he said. "We need an agreement."

Thirty minutes later, at 10 p.m., Grebey's team returned to the hotel, again a half hour late for a scheduled meeting with Miller. "We're still working away," the veteran labor negotiator said.

This time, they kept on working.

As Thursday night's games ended one by one, the talks continued on the 17th floor of the midtown hotel. Finally, the last game was completed at about 11:45 p.m. and the possibility still existed that the strike would be declared.

The first indication of a break came at 2:20 in the morning when Moffett and Vaughn arrived to report that the two sides were still bargaining and that progress had been made. Moffett said he thought they might have a statement in about an hour.

Grebey's party then team left the hotel and walked a few blocks to American League headquarters where they met with a committee of management people, including members of the Player Relations Committee and Executive Council, and presented terms of a tentative agreement.

Meeting with the league presidents and Grebey were Haywood Sullivan of the Boston Red Sox, Peter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Dan Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Bob Howsam of the Cincinnati Reds, Clark Griffith of the Minnesota Twins, Joe Burke of the Kansas City Royals and Commissioner Kuhn. A half hour later, the negotiators returned to the hotel, and 90 minutes after that the deal was sealed.

The settlement provides a new collective bargaining agreement, with improvements in minimum salaries and pensions among other items.

The key issue throughout was the clubs' demand for a system of free agent compensation, allowing teams losing a "premium" free agent to receive a replacement. The union had rejected the owner formula for determining whether a player warranted compensation and there was no immediate indication of what compromise might have been reached to permit a settlement.

It's A Deal

Ray Grebey, left, chief negotiator for the 26 major league baseball club owners, and Marvin Miller, executive director of the players union, shake hands after it was announced early Friday in New York that 11th-hour negotiations had averted a major league baseball strike. (AP Laserphoto)

Little League

Union Carbide 5, Optimists 4

The winless Optimists came close to their first victory yesterday, but finally bowed to Union Carbide, 5-4 in North State Little League play. Union Carbide is now 3-2, while the Optimists are 0-6.

The Optimists took the lead in the first with three runs, all scoring when Anthony Coward hit a home run. The other Optimist run came in the fifth.

Union Carbide scored one run in the third, two more in the fourth, then sewed it up with two in the fifth. In the fifth, Steve Rhodes walked and Steve Williams reached on a two-base error. Rusty Davidson reached on an error, scoring Rhodes and Williams scored on a fielder's choice. Coward led the Optimist hitting, while Kelly Barnhill held Union Carbide to only one hit in pitching the loss.

Exchange 10, Pepsi-Cola 9

The Exchange held off Pepsi-Cola to gain a 10-9 Tar Heel Little League victory yesterday. Exchange is now 3-3, while Pepsi holds a 1-5 record.

The Exchange pushed over three runs in the third to start the scoring, but Pepsi came back with six in its half of the inning to take a 6-3 lead. The Exchange added one in the bottom of the inning, then came back with five in the fifth, after Pepsi had scored once in its half of the fifth. Pepsi then scored two in the sixth to tie it at 9-9.

In the bottom of the sixth, however, the Exchange got the winning run. Axel Smith walked and moved up on the second out of the inning. Two passed balls then allowed him to come around to score.

Dewey Dunn led the Exchange hitting with two, while Fletcher Phillips had two for Pepsi.

S. Pitt Little League

Chicod 10, Sunshine GC 7

CHICOD — Chicod rolled up a 10-7 Southern Pitt Little League victory over Sunshine Garden Center yesterday.

Steve Mills hurled the victory and led the Chicod hitting with three, including a home run. Jerome Carter, Allen Nethercutt and Danny Boyd each added two. Farrow led the Sunshine hitting with a home run.

Chicod is now 5-2, while Sunshine is 4-4.

Pirates Open Regional Play

ORONO, Me. — East Carolina University was scheduled to open the Northeastern Regional Baseball Tournament today at 11 a.m. against Harvard. Mickey Britt (5-0) has drawn the starting assignment against the Crimson.

Britt will be facing the ace of the Harvard staff, Rob Alevixos, who put together a 6-0 record during the season with a 1.82 earned run average. He completed only one of the nine games he started, however.

Harvard comes into the game with a 22-10 record, while the Pirates are 28-5.

Weather for the game was partly cloudy, with the temperature in the 60's, and a breeze blowing in from center field.

The winners meet Saturday at 2 p.m., with the losers facing each other at 11 a.m.

Memorable Night For Toronto Rookies

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Whether or not there is a baseball strike, nothing could spoil the moment for rookies Joe Lefebvre and Mike Griffin of the New York Yankees Thursday night.

As strike negotiations dragged along in New York and the innings rolled by in Toronto, the two first-year players gave themselves something to remember.

Griffin, a 22-year-old right-hander, recorded his first major league victory and Lefebvre, appearing in his first game, hit his first big league homer — it also was his first hit — in the Yankees' 5-1 victory over the Blue Jays.

"It was a long time coming, but I sure feels good," said Griffin, who dropped his other two decisions and had become the hard-luck pitcher of the Yankees' staff. "I had all four of my pitches tonight, and my confidence."

"It's nice to get your first win on the final day of the year," teammate Ron Guidry joked, referring to the impending players' strike.

Hearing Set About Protest

BALTIMORE (AP) — The owners of Preakness Stakes runner-up Genuine Risk have a June 2 hearing date with the state Racing Commission's Thoroughbred Board on a foul lodged against winner Codex.

The public hearing will be held at Pimlico Race Course for testimony on the appeal by Diana and Bert Firestone, owners of the filly.

The Firestones have asked for a review of the decision of Pimlico's stewards in rejecting the foul claim lodged against Codex and his rider, Angel Cordero, by Jacinto Vasquez, Genuine Risk's jockey.

Vasquez contended Cordero purposely steered Codex toward the outside and then bumped the filly as the field near the top of the stretch in Saturday's race.

Vasquez also claimed Cordero hit Genuine Risk across the face several times with his crop. That contention was also rejected by the stewards.

Genuine Risk won the Kentucky Derby May 3, becoming only the second filly to win the first event in racing's Triple Crown.

In the Preakness, she went off favored to become the first filly ever to win the first two Triple Crown races.

The Firestones will be represented by Henry Lord, a former deputy attorney general in Maryland and now a lawyer with the Baltimore firm of Pier and Marbury.

and the Houston Astros downed the New York Mets 8-5.

Royals 16, A's 3

John Wathan drove in four runs and Clint Hurdle, Frank White, Darrell Porter and U.L. Washington each drove in two as Kansas City pounded out 17 hits in support of Renie Martin's seven-hit pitching. The Royals scored four times in the first inning and erupted for eight runs in the fourth.

An obscure utility man when the season started, Wathan is off to the best start of his career with a .327 average.

"I'm very hopeful the strike will be settled in a few days," he said after slamming a double and a three-run homer.

"But if it doesn't, I'll just have to stay in shape and hope I just don't cool off or get out of the groove."

"I was really down. I wasn't into the game at all. It seemed like the last game of the season and we were 10 games out. I really felt bad until I got the home run."

Rangers 12, Angels 6

Buddy Bell smacked two homers and drove in four runs as Texas backed the sharp relief pitching of Danny Darwin. Darwin struck out six of the first eight batters he faced and his total of 10 in 61-3 innings combined with five by starter Jon Matlack for a total of 15, a club record. Matlack left in the third inning after Al Cowens' three-run double gave the Angels a 6-4 lead. But Texas scored six times in the fourth, two on homers by Bell and Bump Wills.

"He threw the heck out of it. He's got a good arm, as live a young arm as you'll ever see," California Manager Jim Fregoso said of Darwin. "He really threw some fast balls past some fast ball hitters," added Texas catcher Jim Sundberg.

who took second on the throw to the plate, moved to third on a grounder and scored on Jerry Turner's single.

"I guess if there's a strike we'll go home and see what happens," said Winfield. "If it's a long one, maybe I can work a vacation in there. But, hopefully, we can resolve this without a strike."

"I don't think all the strike talk really had any effect on my pitching tonight," said Tekulve. "I gave up some runs, but I think that if there had been an agreement today, it would have been the same way."

Astrors 8, Mets 5

Craig Reynolds and Cesar Cedeno homered as Houston mounted a 17-hit attack against five New York pitchers. Reynolds connected off Mark Bombardieri in the first inning and the Astros took a 3-1 lead with two runs off Kevin Kobel in the third. Jeff Leonard doubled, took third on an in-field hit by Enos Cabell and scored on Alan Ashby's single. Joe Niekro then doubled to score Cabell.

Flyers Hold On, Gain 6-3 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Stanley Cup remains an orphan seeking adoption. The New York Islanders still need one victory to make it theirs because the Philadelphia Flyers found sudden life preferable to the alternative.

The Flyers could have folded, packed up their regular season National Hockey League title, wrapped their record 35-game unbeaten streak in black crepe and settled back for a summer of self-doubt. They didn't, for a reason best expressed by left wing Bob Kelly:

"Have you ever been on your death bed?" he asked.

The Flyers were, heading into Thursday night's fifth game of the NHL championship round. They trailed 1-0 after 10:28 on the first of two power-play goals by New York defenseman Stefan Persson and endured 16:38 without a shot on Islanders goalie Bill Smith.

"But when we came out for the second period we were pretty sure we could play good enough hockey to win this game and take it back to the Island," said center Rick MacLeish, who helped Philadelphia do exactly that. He scored two goals, and the Flyers forced a sixth game in this best-of-seven series with a 6-3 victory.

The triumph, with Philadelphia one loss from elimination and two injured skaters — defenseman Joe Watson and right wing Paul Holmgren — playing valiantly, gave Flyers Coach Pat Quinn a chance to taunt New York on its record of playoff failures the last few years.

"This might have tightened them up a little," he said. "They might think about that bugaboo in their past. They might think about that for a while."

They might, indeed. But most Islanders — especially Coach Al Arbour — said they didn't think they would.

"It's just another game on Saturday," insisted the coach.

"We're disappointed," added right wing Bob Nystrom, "but, hey — Saturday is another day."

"A lot of guys are a little disappointed in themselves," said defenseman Dave Langevin. "But we have a chance Saturday to rectify what happened tonight. We want to win the Cup and Saturday will be the day."

That's all there was to the New York clubhouse — no gnashing of teeth, no rending of garments in mourning, and apparently no thought of the quarterfinal loss to Toronto in 1978 or the six-game semifinal loss to the New York Rangers last April.

"Come on," said defenseman Denis Potvin. "People have been talking about that for too long."

It seems people will be talking about it a bit longer, the clinching triumph having escaped New York's grasp.

Bobby Clarke pulled Philadelphia even at 1:35 of the Flyers' three-goal second period, and MacLeish made it,

2-1 before Bryan Trottier tied it at 16:16 with his 12th goal and record-tying 27th point of this playoff season.

Rookie Mike Busniuk snapped the tie just 48 seconds later, though, and a three-goal Philadelphia third period ended any doubt.

There had been doubts earlier.

Quinn said he waited "until the final minute of the final hour" before deciding to play Holmgren on his severely sprained left knee. The right wing rewarded the decision of his coach with some lusty hitting and the game's final goal.

There had been some doubt about the chances of winning, because of the way the game began.

"We played with a lot of emotion at the start of the game, but that's not necessarily what you want," said Quinn. "It's frustrating to see your guys out there, playing with their whole heart — but with the head not quite in tune because you are so (emotionally) high."

Some big early saves by Pete Peeters helped settle things down. Then the Flyers rediscovered the grinding game they play so well.

In recent games, Philadelphia had dumped the puck into the corners of the attacking zone only to stand by as the New York defense controlled the puck and sent it right back out. The Flyers had refined the "dump and chase" to something that can only be called "dump and watch."

This time, though, they got to the puck first, they attacked a weakness they had found in Smith with high shots and they surmounted two record-setting Islanders performances to keep their hopes alive.

The two power-play goals by Persson gave the Islanders 13 for this series — snapping the mark of 12 Toronto had scored against Philadelphia in the 1976 quarterfinals. The tallies also gave New York 23 power-play goals for the long playoff campaign, eclipsing the record of 21 Montreal scored in 1965.

But the celebratory champagne remained in the cooler and the Stanley Cup remained in its padded box — to be driven to Uniondale for Saturday's sixth game.

Twenty-Three Vie For Field

By MONTE PLOTT Associated Press Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-three drivers who failed to make the field during the first two days of World 600 qualifying faced their final shot today at getting in Sunday's $377,225 race.

Twenty-three drivers, but only 10 spots left.

That meant a number of drivers and crews spent hundreds of dollars trying to get a spot in the 40-car field, and they faced failure.

While other drivers will be psychologically and mechanically gearing up for Sunday's race, the unsuccessfuls will head home with nothing but experience.

"Each one of those drivers is a different story," said Joe Whitlock, spokesman for Charlotte Motor Speedway. "Some go in debt to race, others race until their sponsor's money runs out."

For most of the 31 races on NASCAR's Grand National circuit, there are usually only a handful of drivers who fail to make the field.

"We get a lot more trying here because the purse is bigger. It's the same story at Daytona," Whitlock said.

JCs Name Accounting Firm To Conduct Audit Of Records

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Jaycees Thursday named an independent accounting firm to conduct an audit of the organization's financial record.

A Jaycee audit committee, meeting in Raleigh, named the Raleigh accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. to handle the audit.

The action comes in the wake of a disclosure by state Jaycees that $142,000 was diverted from charity funds to pay membership dues to the national Jaycee organization.

Audit committee members expressed hope that the audit could be completed by the time the state executive committee meets June 6 to discuss the situation.

Meanwhile, Terry Bechtol, president of the U.S. Jaycees, says he has examined financial records of the N.C. Jaycees and is convinced state members did not use any of the charity funds to pad state membership rolls.

"We are satisfied and convinced that no money taken from that foundation was ever misused," Terry Bechtol said from his office in Tulsa, Okla., after returning from a visit to North Carolina earlier this week.

The diverted money was part of a fund raised through the sale of jelly that was to have gone to the tax-exempt North Carolina Jaycee Foundation to help finance the N.C. Burn Center at Chapel Hill.

But Bechtol said he found no evidence that funds earmarked for the burn center were used improperly.

Bechtol said every state president since the tax-exempt charity foundation was started five years ago had borrowed money from the charity fund.

Some Jaycees have charged that former state president J. Harold Herring, a candidate for national Jaycee president, used the diverted funds to establish "paper chapters" of the organization, thus enhancing the reputation of state officials.

Herring has said he will drop out of the race for president if he does not get an endorsement from the executive committee when it meets in June.

Bechtol said North Carolina "probably has more than any other state in the nation of that kind of thing," but added he thought the allegations were mainly an attempt to damage Herring's campaign.

State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Wednesday his office will investigate the Jaycee organization to determine if it violated any laws when it diverted the funds.

A&T Financial Officer Resigns After Reports

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Henry E. Johnson, acting vice chancellor for financial affairs at North Carolina A&T State University, resigned Thursday in the wake of reports he had been charged several times with non-payment of debts and writing worthless checks.

Johnson's resignation was accepted by A&T Chancellor Lewis R. Dowdy, who said the resignation had been offered voluntarily.

Johnson could not be reached for comment. Dowdy named Quiester Craig, dean of A&T's school of business and economics department, to the post of acting vice chancellor of financial affairs.

The resignation of Johnson is one more uncertainty in the already troubled financial condition of the predominantly black college.

Revival

FALKLAND — Revival services will be held at Friendship Holiness Church here Monday through Friday by Elder James Turner of Rockingham.

There will be special singing at each of the 8 p. m. services, with the following choirs leading: Monday — Holy Temple of Saintsville; Tuesday — Burning Bush of near Stokes; Wednesday — Wells Chapel of Greenville; Thursday — Greater Mount Moriah of Farmville and Friday — Clemons Grove of Stokes. The public is invited.

Johnson was appointed acting vice chancellor last month after Dowdy fired Plummer Alston Jr. from the post. Alston was ousted after a report by the State Auditor's office found the school had $700,000 in outstanding debts and chaotic financial records.

The Greensboro Daily News reported Thursday that Johnson had faced criminal charges or civil suits on at least nine occasions since 1974. The newspaper reported that Johnson had at least two bad check charges and that several suits were filed by creditors seeking to collect money from Johnson. He lost all but one case, court records indicated.

After the disclosure, William C. Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system that includes A&T, summoned Dowdy to Chapel Hill to discuss the issue. Dowdy said later, however, that his decision to accept the resignation was not influenced by his visit with Friday.

Dowdy said he was not familiar with Johnson's court record when he hired him in 1975. But he defended the appointment, saying Johnson had demonstrated "outstanding competence in the handling of budgetary matters."

In announcing Craig's appointment, Dowdy said the new acting vice chancellor would "continue the work toward the solution of our fiscal problems." He said he would appoint a search committee in about 10 days to begin the task of finding a permanent vice chancellor for financial affairs.

Unit Trains In Hostage Rescue

IMPERIAL BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A training drill in rescuing "hostages held by terrorists" will bring a force of 150 Marines and five helicopters to the beachfront next week, spokesmen said.

A political figure will be kidnapped and held captive by terrorists in a mock rescue Wednesday at Imperial Beach south of San Diego, Marine officials said.

The drill is part of training at the Marine Corps Landing Force Pacific based at the Coronado Amphibious Base.

Motion Picture Will Be Shown

The motion picture "Sheffey" will be shown at the Temple FWB Church on May 31 at 7 p.m. The full-length color film is based on the book "The Saint of the Wilderness" by Jess Carr.

Sheffey deals with the life of an itinerant preacher, Robert Sayers Sheffey. Living in the 1800's, Sheffey ministered to the mountain folk of the Virginias, Carolinas and parts of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Produced and directed by Katherine Stenholm, this film won the silver medallion award at the annual film competition conducted by the International Film and Television Festival of New York.

The screenplay was written by Ti Rogers, and the film was produced by Bob Jones University's Division of Cinema. All youth are invited to attend. For more information call 752-5031.

The 'Message Movie' Non-Entertains

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "If you have a message to deliver," one of Hollywood's oldest clichés holds, "call Western Union."

Alas, filmmakers are no more inclined than anyone else to heed the advice of an adage, however wise. Thus, we have the "message movie."

As entertainment, it is singularly inferior to the film that simply aims to tell a story. Time spent preaching is time not spent entertaining.

Among movies with messages to deliver, the worst are those whose little sermons are conspicuous. Such a creature, "Fun and Games," appears Monday night on ABC. It is a clumsy, thick-fingered attempt to decry sexual harassment and exploitation in the job world.

The basic story here is fine, and could have, by employment of some subtlety, gotten its message across and still told a story. Valerie Harper plays a divorced mother (television's favorite type) whose chances for promotion depend upon the favor of a lecherous boss, Max Gail.

But the film's maker apparently didn't believe we would get the message if that story were simply told. So, they started adding things, dramatic signposts drawing our attention to their theme. Miss Harper works for a manufacturing company that is owned by a larger company, and we have the dubious pleasure of meeting some of the folks who work there, too.

Of course, the men are all sex fiends. One of them, rising executive Pete Dermot (played by Cliff DeYoung) tries to help Valerie Harper, but, it is suggested, only because he has a crush on her. See? Every man, even the good ones, want you-know-what.

Dermot wonders why there is such a high turnover rate among female employees of the subsidiary company. He asks his affirmative action officer (who just happens to be pretty and happens to be his girlfriend).

Well, she says, it could be a number of things... It could be speedup, or factory noise or long hours. Or, it could be sexual harassment.

Bingo! Dermot's eyes light up.

"Spell that out for me," he says.

"It ranges from leering to sexual and anatomical wisecracks to saying, 'I wish you'd wear skirts more often, you have such pretty legs' (He blushes here, having made the same request to the pretty affirmative action officer)..."

"To asking a secretary's advice about new sexual techniques, to touching, feeling, cornering behind file cabinets — known everywhere as grope alley — to requiring sexual favors for promotions and raises."

Dermot is simply shocked.

Ge, he must not have noticed as he walked through his office that his fellow rising executives had their secretaries up against the filing cabinets, one of the signposts the writers provided to remind us of their point.

It's so obvious, it's silly. Pantomime, groaning three-piece-suited fellows plastered against their reluctant secretaries in the middle of the office, like characters in a "G"-rated porn movie.

The same fellows, in another scene aimed at assuring us that sexual harassment really is a problem, bet on who can touch the more valuable part of the waitress's body while ordering lunch.

"All I got was an elbow," says one.

"I gotta thigh," adds another.

"I," a third proudly announces, "tagged her tail."

What counts more, an elbow or a tail?"

Valerie Harper and her problem, meanwhile, are lost somewhere in this mess.

It is possible that "Fun and Games" isn't a message movie at all, but a very clever parody of a message movie. Yes, look at it that way. At least you'll get some laughs.

Donahue, Marlo On A Honeymoon

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Three years of dating have come to an end for actress Marlo Thomas and television talk show host Phil Donahue — they're honeymooning in Europe today.

Donahue and Ms. Thomas were wed Wednesday in a private, double-ring ceremony at the home of her parents, comedian Danny Thomas and Rosemary Thomas. Spokeswoman Gloria Luckinbill said only family members — including Donahue's five children from his first marriage — attended the civil ceremony.

Ms. Thomas wore a simple white satin street length dress and spring flowers in her hair. After a dinner reception, the couple left for Europe.

It was the first marriage for the 39-year-old actress, who starred in the 1960s television series "That Girl" and has become well known in recent years for her work in feminist causes.

Exxon Hiking Gasoline Prices

By FLOYD NORRIS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Travelers preparing for the long Memorial Day weekend may find a drop in gasoline prices at Mobil stations, but an increase at Exxon stations.

The nation's largest gasoline marketer, Exxon Corp. raised its prices 2 cents a gallon on Thursday, citing the increase in Saudi Arabian crude oil prices announced last week.

Mobil Oil Co., also a Saudi customer, cut prices 3 cents a gallon, saying the move was in compliance with the Carter administration's price guidelines.

On Wednesday, Union Oil Co. lowered its prices 2 cents a gallon. The Los Angeles-based company gave no reason for the drop.

The moves affect wholesale prices, and it is up to individual dealers to decide about passing the changes on to consumers.

The price outbacks may not last long, however, since every major supplier of oil to the United States has raised its price in the last two weeks. Nigeria, the second largest supplier to the United States, boosted its crude oil prices $2 a barrel on Thursday, becoming the last major supplier to take that step.

The increase raised the price of Nigeria's best oil to $36.71 a 42-gallon barrel effective Thursday. Last year, Nigeria shipped about 1 million barrels a day to the United States.

On Wednesday, Venezuela, the nation's third-largest supplier, and Qatar boosted their prices.

Citing the Saudi increase, Standard Oil Co. of California last week raised its prices 4 cents a gallon. Other companies have not announced any changes.

The crude oil price increases, mostly $2 per 42-gallon barrel, could normally be expected to boost American gasoline prices about 3 cents a gallon.

But gasoline supplies now are far above normal, partly because Americans cut back on driving as gasoline prices rose 45 cents a gallon in the last year.

As a result, not all dealers are able to collect the maximum markup of 16.1 cents allowed by the Department of Energy. The average markup is now 11.5 cents, according to Dan Lundberg, an analyst whose newsletter follows the industry.

Exxon and Mobil also announced changes in the prices of distillates, including home heating oil and diesel fuel. Mobil said those prices were cut by up to 3 cents a gallon. Union said the reduction was 1 cent a gallon.

Exxon boosted its distillate prices 4 cents a gallon in most parts of the country, but held the increase to 3 cents in the Rocky Mountain area and 2.5 cents in the Pacific area.

Mobil said it will now charge its dealers between 91.5 cents and 96.5 cents a gallon for regular unleaded gasoline, depending on the region of the country. Exxon said a typical price charged its dealers would be 99.7 cents a gallon, but the company was unable to provide a range. The prices exclude taxes and dealer margins.

Family Life Exponent Has Filed For Divorce

MIAMI (AP) — Singer Anita Bryant, a crusader against "the disintegration of the American family," has filed for divorce from her husband of nearly 20 years.

Her marriage to former disc jockey Bob Green was "irretrievably broken," Miss Bryant said in a petition filed Thursday in Dade Circuit Court here.

In a statement released Thursday from her Miami Beach mansion, Miss Bryant said her husband had "violated my most precious asset: my very conscience." She claimed Green had cooperated "with certain hired staff members who conspired to control me and to use my name and reputation to build their personal careers instead of my ministry."

Green was not available for comment.

Miss Bryant, who did not name the staff members, said she is resigning from Anita Bryant Ministries, a center dedicated to preserving the American family.

In the divorce petition, Miss Bryant said she is "without sufficient funds" to support the couple's four children. She asked that Green pay child support and allow her and the children to use the 25-room mansion until it can be sold.

The petition said Green had moved out of their home, but then returned, creating "an intolerable situation."

Miss Bryant has asked for custody of the children — Robert, 16, Gloria, 15, and William and Barbara, both 10 — and half of the couple's property.

Miss Bryant, a former Miss Oklahoma and runner-up in the Miss America pageant, gained national attention in 1977 for her "Save Our Children" campaign against a gay rights ordinance in Dade County.

She also is known for commercials promoting Florida orange juice and for numerous albums of popular and religious music. She also has made numerous appearances at state fairs, conventions and religious gatherings.

Cars Collide; Charges Made

Greenville Police arrested Thomas Franklin Ford, 25 of Route 3, Greenville, about 1:40 a.m. today on charges of driving under the influence, hit and run driving, and failing to stop for a blue light and siren.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a car driven by Ford almost collided head-on with a police patrol vehicle on Cotanche Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets, then did collide head-on with a car driven by Ricky Earl Dunn of Route 1, Ayden, at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche.

The Ford car then proceeded east on Fifth, and stopped at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets, where he was taken into custody.

COMMISSION MEETS
The Environmental Advisory Commission will meet on Tuesday, May 27 at 5:15 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

Poitier Directs Prison Comedy

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor star as two men framed for bank robbery in the comedy "Stir Crazy."

Sidney Poitier is directing the movie from an original screenplay by Bruce Jay Friedman and Charles Blackwell.

Georg Stanford Brown also stars as a convicted murderer who feels more at home in a frilly frock than prison denim, and Jobeth Williams, as a lawyer who goes to bat for Wilder and Pryor.

Rosalynn Plans To Visit N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — First lady Rosalynn Carter is scheduled to attend Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee fundraising events in North Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi, beginning next week.

Mrs. Carter will attend a fund-raising reception at the Graylyn Estate in Winston-Salem on Wednesday. The event will be hosted by Gov. Jim Hunt, state Sen. Lawrence Davis and other state and local officials. The reception is scheduled from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Carter will attend a luncheon in Murfreesboro, Tenn., at Oaklands Mansion. This will be followed by a reception at the New Orleans Hilton from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.

No Way For Bush To Top Reagan Vote

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - If George Bush wins every delegate in the remaining primaries and caucuses before the Republican convention, he still would not have enough votes to win the GOP presidential nomination.

That is the bleak picture Bush has to face. Even his stunning and overwhelming victory over Ronald Reagan in Tuesday's Michigan primary served only to emphasize how far behind Bush is - and how close Reagan is to locking up the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count puts Reagan just slightly more than 100 votes away from the 998 majority he needs to lock up the nomination. Bush has only 255 delegates - more than 700 delegates away from the magic number.

There are only 682 delegates yet to be allocated. If Bush won all of them - meaning he would have to sweep the primaries in California, Ohio, New Jersey, Kentucky, Idaho and other states plus trouncing Reagan in all the remaining state caucuses and conventions - he would have 937, still 61 short of a majority.

That would leave the 168 delegates who are now uncommitted or were elected to support John Anderson with the key to the GOP nomination.

But contrast the all encompassing sweep that is Bush's only hope with Reagan's situation: Where Bush needs almost all of the states, Reagan needs but one - California.

If Reagan wins his home state primary June 3, he wins all 168 of its delegates. That would give him more than a majority of the 1,994 delegates who will attend the Detroit convention in July.

Bush has talked of a major effort in California to add those 168 delegates to his column. But he is also talking about "reassessing" his campaign prospects, leading to speculation that he may be thinking about pulling out of the race.

Even if Bush won California, that might not be enough. Reagan could win in New Jersey, Ohio, Mississippi, Montana or the other primaries that day and exceed the 998 delegates he needs without winning his home state.

The Bush campaign is fond of saying that reaching 998 in the delegate count of one news organization or another doesn't end the fight for the nomination.

"With 50 percent of the delegates not unbound, it really doesn't mean a thing," Bush manager James A. Baker III says.

What Baker is talking about is that only half of the delegates are bound by state law or party rule to vote for Reagan or for Bush or for anyone. The other half are free - theoretically - to vote for whomever they please when the nomination roll is called.

This is the reason the Bush campaign was harshly critical of ABC, CBS and others who put Reagan over the top in their delegate counts based on the Tuesday results. The campaign said such counts only serve to disillusion potential Bush supporters and end the nomination fight prematurely.

Bush staffers say they might be able to swing delegates in Pennsylvania and New York, for example, away from Reagan and into their column during the convention this summer at Detroit.

That is possible. But it is quite difficult, as Baker should know. In 1976, he was the chief of the successful effort by then-President Ford's campaign to prevent Reagan from stealing away delegates.

Little Buena Vista College Sparked By Big Gift

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer
STORM LAKE, Iowa (AP) — The nine-paragraph letter was signed simply "A Friend of Buena Vista College."

Nothing more. But with it came a gift of $18 million.

The bequest is more than double the current assets of the little Presbyterian school tucked amid rich farmland in northwestern Iowa.

"No one ever offered this big a chance to this size school. We want to be worthy," says Keith Briscoe, president of the college that counts fewer than 1,300 full- and part-time students.

Buena Vista has 899 on-campus students who attend classes in tidy red brick buildings near the wooded shore of Storm Lake. It looks like a quiet, ordinary campus, but looks can be deceiving, Briscoe said. Buena Vista strives for excellence.

Full-time teachers hold masters degrees or higher and are among the highest-paid in the state. Freshmen are taught only by professors, and nine of 10 have high school grade averages of "B" or better.

Seniors often find themselves in classes of four to six. Sometimes they are taught one-on-one. More than 70 classes have fewer than 15 students; 40 classes have fewer than five.

Briscoe praises his faculty, acknowledging how difficult it can be to attract professors to remote colleges.

"But many want, and find here, a real collegiate environment that serves as a haven. Here, they can do their research. There aren't the large-campus politics. There isn't the 'publish or perish' philosophy."

"We pay them to be outstanding teachers. Anything else they do, they do for the sheer joy of it."

In the eyes of the donor, whose identity the school has sworn to keep secret, Buena Vista is something special.

His letter said he first was apprehensive about giving money to such a small school.

"I found, however, at Buena Vista College a jewel quietly and continually radiating its mission and services through a truly dedicated teaching faculty and staff," the donor wrote.

"Greatness can come from as small a place as Buena Vista College. Great teachers and high-potential students can come from small towns. Our country and the world needs our small colleges."

"Great" is a word not often applied to small colleges when most in Iowa are projecting enrollment declines up to 25 percent next year.

But it is a word Buena Vista officials dare to say out loud.

Storm Lake attorney Edgar Mack, chairman of the school's board of trustees, said it as he noted that the University of Chicago and Buena Vista were founded the same year, 1891.

"Chicago got gifts totaling $35 million from John D. Rockefeller. Buena Vista did not. Any great institution requires one major, sparking gift. We believe this is ours," said Mack.

"It gets you away from the struggle with poverty. It gives us an opportunity to do things we could never do."

Here are Buena Vista's preliminary plans for the $18 million:

— Establish an endowed business school and set up endowments for the college's six academic divisions and the library.

— Build a conference center.

— Begin an "American heritage" lecture series featuring international leaders in business, academics, the press and religion.

— Upgrade pre-med and pre-law curricula.

As a condition of the donation, Buena Vista must raise $9 million on its own over six years, a figure that doesn't worry school officials. The fund-raising effort will become part of an existing 10-year program aimed at building school assets to $54 million.

Founded 89 years ago, the college got by for years with about 125 students, Mack said. Only after World War II did it begin to grow.

Today, the school has branches at Fort Dodge, Spencer and Council Bluffs and conducts a respected business program in Florida.

Although enrollment has climbed 60 percent since 1974 and the new business school likely will attract more, Briscoe said Buena Vista isn't interested in growing much larger.

"Each year, we've been turning down more applicants than the year before," he said. "We hope to stay the same size. We're about 100 percent now. ... We don't want to take 101 percent and put them in the boiler room."

Briscoe sees a continuing need for small, private colleges despite economic pressures that have driven Buena Vista tuition to $3,225.

"We are able to provide an awful lot for our kids. We have 60 out of 900 participating in student government. At a big state university, they might have 60 or 70 out of 20,000."

"One out of nine of our kids is in the band. One out of nine plays football — and they're probably in the band, too. That's exciting thing."

But there is a problem, of sorts, with the donation.

When Briscoe became president, he assembled a committee to set "impossible" goals: "We set goals that simply weren't attainable. We thought we were shooting for things we'd never reach."

He smiled. "But this gift, this has made them attainable. I think we'll have to set some new goals for ourselves."

Arts Festival At Pitt Plaza

A two-day Arts and Crafts Festival featuring artists and craftsmen offering a wide range of items is being held at Pitt Plaza today and tomorrow. The public is invited to browse among the show, with work by local, state and out-of-state people.

B. J. Dellinger of Newton is displaying grandfather and metal clocks and other crafted wood items; Rita Gearhart of Andrews Air Force Base has dried flowers mounted in frames; Don and Archer Kessler display basketry; and James Flynn of St. Augustine, Fla. has varied types of pottery.

Two specialists in metal sculpture exhibiting are Dexter Covington and Stanley Dinwoodie. Dinwoodie is from Sarastoa, Fla. Bernice Holbrook displays scarecrows; and Black Mountain's Jay Pfeil is displaying etchings and embossings. Stained glass items are being shown by Tom and Jo Cook of Jacksonville, and also from Jacksonville, E. J. Sink is offering leather items. Dried flower and shell arrangements are the craft subjects of two, Jeanne Sloop and Jean Leonard.

Handcrafted fabric and wood items are the specialty of Mrs. Bernard Hill, and Lucy Allen is showing Raggedy Ann Dolls. Bob Hensley of Kingsport, Tenn. is displaying watercolors, and L. T. Creech is showing items of macrame.

Also in the list of exhibitors are Marian Coleman with porcelain items; Bill Gardo of Greenville, S. C. with stone jewelry set in gold and silver; and bags by Nell Hungate.

Will Summon 1,000 Prospective Jurors

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jury-duty notices will be going out next week to 1,000 prospective jurors for the trial of six men charged with murder in connection with the Nov. 3 deaths of five communist sympathizers.

The list, now being prepared by Guilford County court officials, is believed to be the largest ever called in the county and one of the largest in North Carolina.

The jurors will be instructed by letter to report in groups of 100 on 10 specified days for the June 16 trial.

Defendants in the trial will be David Wayne Matthews, 24, of Newton; Roland Wayne Wood, 34, Winston-Salem;

Jack Wilson Fowler, 27, Winston-Salem; Coleman Blair Pridmore, 36, Lincolnton; Lawrence Gene Morgan, 33, Lincolnton; and Jerry Paul Smith, 32, Maiden.

Each of the six men is charged with five counts of first-degree murder and one count of rioting.

Separate trials will be held for five other men also charged with murder and rioting.

A total of 22 persons have been indicted on charges stemming from the deaths, which occurred at an anti-Klan rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party.

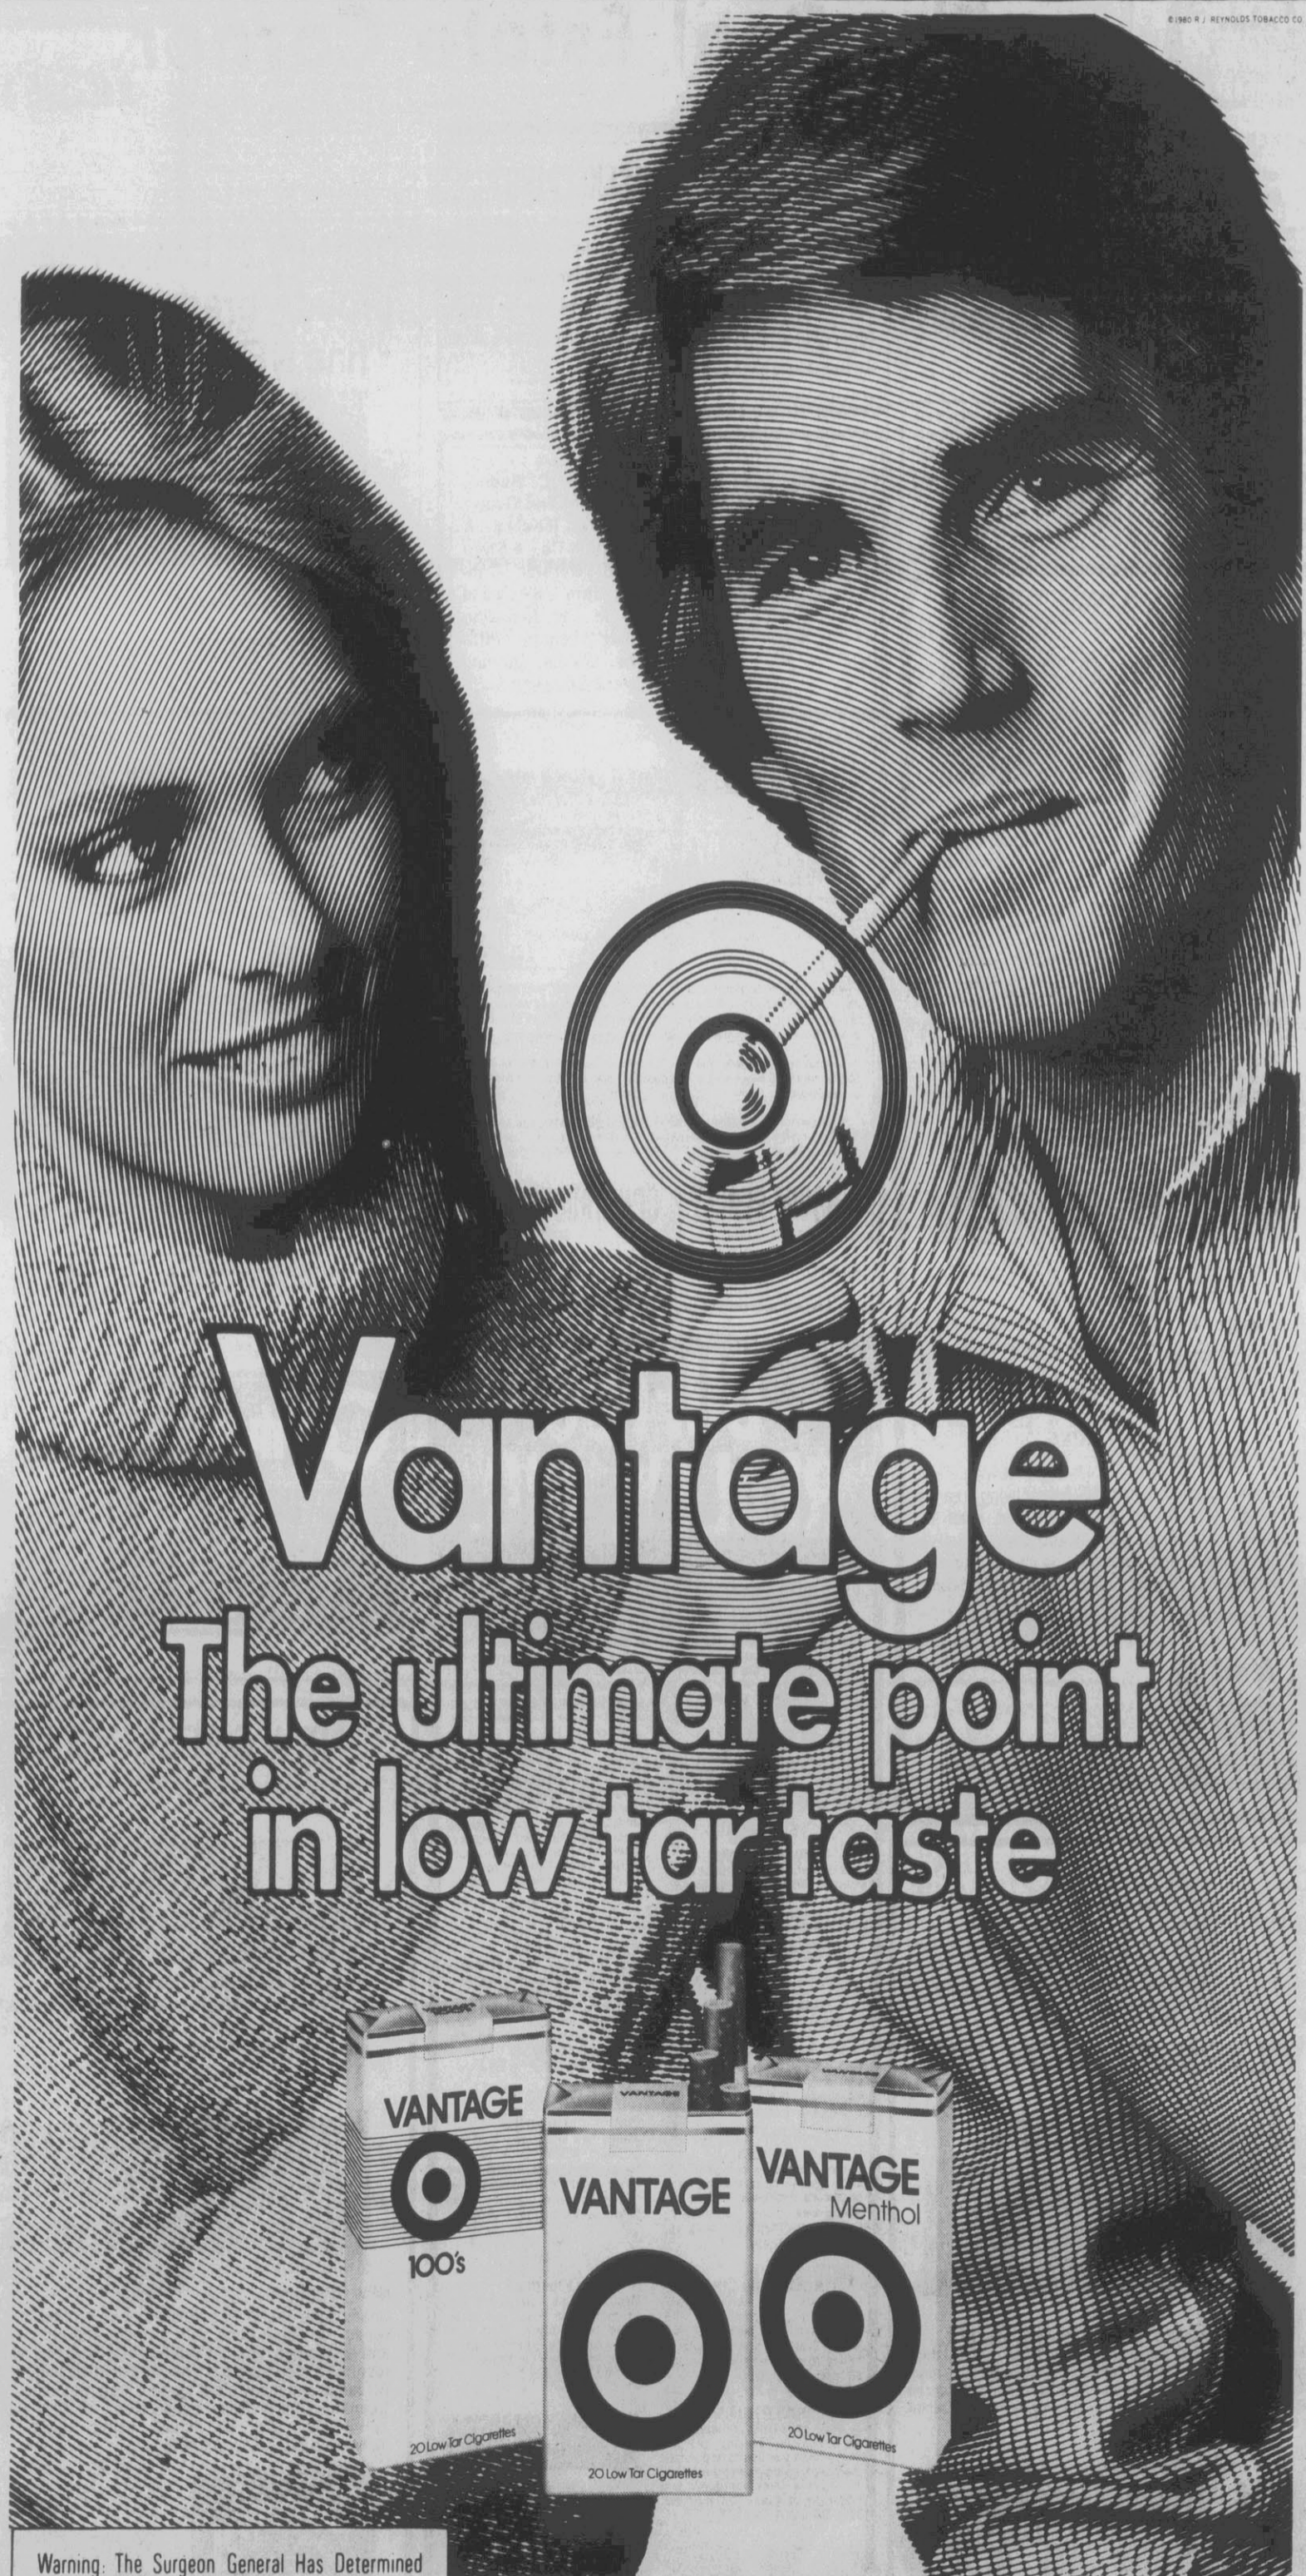

Tito's Yugoslavia

This Sunday is Youth Day in Yugoslavia. It's a yearly celebration that traditionally marks the birthday of the country's longtime leader, Josip Broz Tito. Yugoslavia has often been called a divided country, and many observers believe that Tito played a crucial role in holding its various peoples and regions together. The six republics that make up Yugoslavia were first united in 1918. The people of Yugoslavia speak three different languages, use two different alphabets, and follow three different major religions — Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic and Islam. Yugoslavia is a little larger than the state of Wyoming. Its name means "Land of the Southern Slavs."
