R. L. Humber Property Given To City, County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Robert Lee Humber home, at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets, was given to the City of Greenville and Pitt County yesterday, as an historical landmark and memorial to the late humanitarian, champion of world peace, lawyer, politician and a man dedicated to art.

The deed to the property was presented to Ed Warren, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and Mayor Don McGlohon, by Humber's sons, Marcel B. and John L. Humber. His widow, Lucy B. Humber, was unable to attend the ceremony.

Humber was born in the home in 1897, and died of a heart attack while attending the movie "War and Peace" at a Greenville theater in November 1970.

A 1918 graduate of Wake Forest College (BA degree), Humber received other degrees from Wake Forest (Bachelor of Laws, 1921 and honorary Doctor of Laws 1949), Oxford University in England (Bachelor of Literature, 1923), where he was a Rhodes Scholar, Harvard University (Masters Degree, 1926), The University of Paris (American Field Service Fellow, 1926-1928), the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (honorary Doctor of Laws, 1958), and Duke University (honorary Doctor of Human Letters, 1967).

A lawyer by profession, Dr. Humber was admitted to the state bar in 1920, and served as an officer in the Field Artillery of the U.S. Army during World War I. He married Lucie Bernier, a native Parisian in 1929, and lived in Paris from 1930 to 1940, where he was a lawyer and business executive, until the war forced him to return to Greenville, with his wife and two sons.

Dr. Humber's "Declaration of the Federation of the World," written in the opening months of the Second World War, was one of the first attempts aimed at establishing a world government. Always active in any effort to further the cause of world peace and unity, he represented the Southern Council on International Relations in 1945 at the San Francisco Conference, which formulated the charter for the United Nations.

Two years later, in December 1947, at his summer home on Davis Island off the coast of North Carolina, the Movement for World Federation was founded, and the principles and objectives embodied in the resolution calling for World Federation he authored, was passed by 16 State Legislatures.

In 1948, for his work for world peace, Dr. Humber was awarded the World Government News Medal for the most outstanding service by an individual to World Federation, and the American War Dads Prize for the greatest single contribution toward World Peace.

Next to his concern for unity and cooperation among nations, Dr. Humber was noted for his efforts to further the cause of art.

He was instrumental in the establishment of the North Carolina Museum of Art in 1948 (North Carolina became the first state in the nation to appropriate money for a state art museum), and in obtaining some $18 million in art for the museum's collec-

Koreans Demand An End To Martial Law

BY JOHN NEEDHAM

KWANGJU, South Korea (UPI) — Thirty thousand demonstrators demanding an end to martial law poured into the streets of besieged Kwangju Saturday, defying a government warning that its patience is wearing thin. In the suburbs, students and troops exchanged gunfire that left six wounded.

There was growing fear among Kwangju's 800,000 residents that the thousands of troops ringing the provincial capital might move soon to crush the seven-day uprising that has left at least 97 dead and more than 360 wounded.

An official statement warned that "this state of lawlessness in the Kwangju area cannot be tolerated indefinitely."

The political tension was intensified by the hanging Saturday in the capital of Seoul of five men convicted of the assassination last Oct. 26 of President Park Chung-hee, including former intelligence chief Kim Jae-kyu, 54.

Kim said he shot and killed Park to restore democracy. The Supreme Court upheld the death sentences last Tuesday.

Troops were pulled out of Kwangju to avoid a bloody showdown with the well-armed protesters, but a top military official said Saturday that authorities would move to finish off the disturbance in a day or two unless the insurgents voluntarily surrendered.

Word spread quickly and increasingly, and the men in their early 20's who unexpectedly found themselves last Wednesday in control of South Korea's fourth largest city expressed worries that the army might storm Kwangju.

Sources said more than 10,000 soldiers had been dispatched to Kwangju, 170 miles south of Seoul. They patrolled the hills around the city, stopping anyone trying to escape.

Before dawn, a series of shootings broke out in a suburb southwest of the city. Students said some of their colleagues trying to leave came under attack by soldiers. At least six persons were reported wounded.

From inside the city and on the perimeter, however, there was no noticeable troop reinforcement or movement Saturday. Soldiers stood behind barbed wire barricades across a 100-yard no-man's-land where students maintained their own blockades of junked cars, rocks and wire.

The tense, quiet city came alive in the afternoon when about 30,000 people demonstrated for an immediate end to martial law, amnesty for anyone arrested during the riots and compensation for the loss of lives and property.

In front of what once was the provincial government building and is now an operations center for the students, young men and a handful of women cleaned the streets. The shattered

Iran Claims Hostages To Be Put On Trial

By SAJJID RIZVI

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — A U.N. mediator arrived Saturday in another bid to negotiate the release of the 53 American hostages but Iran's government-run radio declared that "without doubt" all of the captives would be tried as spies.

Acting on behalf of the United States, the Swiss Embassy said it has told 200 or so Americans still residing in Iran to leave "at once."

The embassy's disclosure that the State Department had requested it to again urge Americans to leave Iran came a few hours before the state radio bitterly denounced a World Court verdict Saturday that found the Iranian regime guilty of violating international law and ordered it to free the hostages and pay the United States damages.

"Without doubt we shall put all those spies on trial by order of parliament and, by disgracing America in the world, we shall ensure that no other country may allow itself to indulge in spying activities through its embassy and diplomats," the radio said.

The fact that the commentary was carried by the state radio made it official. But as Iranian authorities frequently have contradicted or overruled one another in the past, it was not clear if it was authoritative.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the supreme authority in Iran, earlier summoned his top advisers to a three-hour meeting but what they discussed was not immediately disclosed.

Khomeini has given parliament, convening on May 28, the responsibility of deciding the fate of the hostages held for 203 days. The Islamic fundamentalists who control a majority of parliament's 270 seats are believed to favor the spy trials that have also been demanded by the hostages' militant captors.

Meanwhile, Syrian jurist Adib Daoudy, acting as U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim's special envoy, arrived in Tehran to renew a United Nations effort to negotiate the hostages' release.

Daoudy said his first order of business would be a meeting with Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who reiterated that the subject of the hostages was taboo and that Iran only was willing to discuss its grievances against the deposed shah.

A spokesman for the Swiss Embassy, which is representing U.S. interests in Iran, said the State Department asked it last week to renew an appeal to the 200 or so Americans still in Iran to leave at once.

He said the appeal was a Man Shot At Motel

Herman Earl Phillips of Grifton died late Saturday afternoon as a result of a gun shot wound to the head, according to officials of the Greenville Police Department.

Investigators said Phillips and a companion, identified as Joyce Faircloth Dixon of Snow Hill, occupied a room at the Greenville Motel on Memorial Drive.

Phillips reportedly left the room briefly, and while he was gone a man wearing a silk stocking over his head knocked on the door. Sources said that Ms. Dixon opened the door thinking it was Phillips. The intruder forced his way in the motel room, tied up Ms. Dixon, and waited for Phillips to return.

Upon his return, Phillips and the intruder engaged in a scuffle making their way to the bathroom where Phillips was shot.

The assailant fled the scene, and as of Saturday evening, Greenville police had not found the suspect. Investigation is continuing.

PCC Graduation Exercise Held Friday

Spring Graduation Exercises for Pitt Community College were held Friday evening in Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University.

Associate in Applied Science degrees were awarded to graduates of 20 technical programs and diplomas were awarded to graduates of six vocational programs. Individuals who had successfully completed the GED tests received their High School Equivalency Diplomas.

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Special Assistant to the Governor and former Chancellor of ECU, was the speaker. Dr. Jenkins pointed out the obligations of every graduate of publicly endowed colleges and universities and stated that the great strength of America in higher education is found in its diverse objectives slanted simultaneously toward the Vocational and Liberal Arts.

"As higher education becomes increasingly more expensive in our state," Jenkins pointed out, "the voices of those crying for specialized training may well become louder. We must let it be known, that there should really be no basic conflict between vocational training and liberal education. As our need for more specialists increases, so will the need for instruction in the 'Art of Living'."

In conclusion, Dr. Jenkins reminded the graduates that public education in North Carolina was everyone's business and everyone's concern, for it is our state's largest governmental function. He urged them to continue their education, both their liberal and vocational education.

The commencement speaker was introduced by Senator Vernon E. White, member and past Chairman of the PCC Board of Trustees.

Dr. William E. Fulford, PCC president, welcomed the graduates and their guests. Edgar L. Boyd, Dean of Students, introduced the 1980 candidates for degrees and diplomas, and Senator White conferred the degrees and diplomas.

The Invocation and Benediction were pronounced by Rev. John R. Brick, Minister of the University Church of Christ.

Ms. Marietta Williams, graduate of the Electronic Data Processing Department, gave the Graduates' Response to Pitt Community College.

Trying To Avoid Oil Spill Off N.C.

CAPE FEAR, N.C. (UPI) — A 640-foot tanker carrying 12.6 million gallons of molasses-thick crude oil was reported dead in the water Saturday, its decks only three feet above the sea as the Coast Guard worked to avert the potentially largest oil spill ever in U.S. waters.

"There is a potential for a major oil spill," said Lt. Rod Bowles of the Coast Guard Rescue Coordination Center in Portsmouth, Va.

None of the No. 5 and No. 6 oil being transported from Aruba to Wilmington by the Esso Portland was reported leaking. Coast Guard and Navy ships and helicopters converged on the Liberian-registered vessel with pumps and pollution control equipment.

The engine room was reported flooded.

There is normally about 25 feet of space between the ship's decks and the waterline but Coast Guard spokesman Andres Bolinaga said the ship, which issued a distress call at 9:47 a.m., had only three feet of freeboard left by mid-afternoon before it stopped settling.

"The information we have seems to indicate that it is stabilized," Bolinaga said.

J.J. Siegner of Exxon, which leases the ship, said No. 6 oil "is a very heavy black material."

"It looks like molasses," he said of the fuel, burned in industrial boilers.

The worst oil spill from a ship in American waters came Nov. 4, when the tanker Keo sank off the Massachusetts coast, spilling 8.8 million gallons. The wreck of the Argo Merchant off Nantucket Island in 1976 spilled 7.7 million gallons.

The Esso Portland was loaded with 300,000 barrels of oil. There are 42 gallons per barrel.

The vessel was located in about 90 feet of water 20 miles south-southeast of Cape Fear, off a coastal area that is favorite of tourists. An oil spill would also damage North Carolina 100 million fishing industry.

Demonstrations At Seabrook

By MICHAEL M. KRAMER SEABROOK, N.H. (UPI) — A demonstration by opponents of nuclear power Saturday sputtered into a series of sharp but minor skirmishes between riot-ready police and protesters disappointed more anti-nuclear activists did not turn out.

State police Cpl. Nicholas J. Halias was struck in the head by a grappling hook thrown by a demonstrator aiming for a fence surrounding the site of the 3.1 billion dollar project. He was listed in good condition.

At least four demonstrators were injured as police repelled a crowd of protesters who had used a plywood shield to fend off officers and, with heavy wire cutters, snipped out a portion of fence — which was quickly replaced.

The injured were taken to a Newburyport, Mass., hospital.

Brian Feigenbaum, 36, Cambridge, Mass., was arrested on aggravated assault in connection with the Halias incident. Peter Howard, 22, of Boston, was arrested elsewhere at the site on criminal trespass charges. "Isn't it something to see all those American soldiers and American students battling against one another?" asked a resident watching the demonstration, shaking his head.

About 1,100 demonstrators showed up for the Memorial Day weekend protest, far below the numbers organizers had wanted.

The goals of the Boston-based Coalition for Direct Action — to storm the seven-foot-high fence surrounding the 140-acre site and permanently blockade its three gates — were not fulfilled.

"It seems like we don't have as many people as we hoped to have," said Jan Holdman, 21, of Stonybrook, N.Y.

Confrontations ranged from the gates, which the demonstrators tried to block with debris barricades, to several points at which the protesters hauled down the high fence.

Helmets police, at times using tear gas at point blank range and shoving the crowds back with riot sticks, were in control of the situation throughout the day, moving in unison to break up clusters of demonstrators.

"I think it's a standoff," said one of the organizers, Peter Lowber, 35, of Boston. He said leaders would have to "evaluate" Saturday's efforts before defining future action over the weekend.

Acting New Hampshire Attorney General Gregory Smith said that although perhaps fewer in number than in previous big demonstrations, the protesters were "much better organized" now. "They're able to keep their efforts around the site coordinated," he said.

Gov. Hugh J. Gallen, who has declared a civil emergency for the duration of the weekend demonstration, toured the site by car and complimented police and national guardsmen for their "professionalism."

Cuban Boat Seized

By J. PAUL WYATT KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — The Coast Guard seized a 35-foot fishing boat with three Cuban exiles aboard Saturday for trying to slip through a sea barrier the government established in an attempt to shut down the Cuban sealift.

The wooden-hulled, blue and white Star was the second boat forcibly seized by the Florida Strait by the Coast Guard since President Carter ordered the sealift of refugees halted on May 14.

under surveillance, Parris said. Finally, when the fishing boat got to within 25 miles of Mariel, the Cuban debarcation point for exiles, the cutter Courageous halted it again and put a three-man Coast Guard custody crew aboard.

The boarding party piloted the fishing boat back to Key West, arriving at the Truman Annex dock at 11:45 a.m. where the three boat operators were turned over to Coast Guard intelligence officers for questioning.

passengers, have crossed the 90-mile-wide Florida Strait and returned.

Reports reaching Key West indicated about 600 American boats still remained in Mariel Bay waiting to load refugees. Returning skippers reported Cuban officers handling the embarkation were moving slowly, working only in daylight hours.

A Coast Guard plane making a partial patrol of the Strait early Saturday reported sighting only three northbound boats off the Cuban coast, three of them apparently without passengers.

A Coast Guard spokesman said the cutter Point Estero was watching a refugee boat which was heading west, to determine if it was trying to evade the designated entry point for all refugee boats at Key West.

The spokesman said two other vessels halted while heading south had convinced Coast Guard boats on the scene that they indeed were bound on fishing trips and were not heading to Cuba.

He was chairman of the Board of Trustees of the North Carolina Museum of Art from 1961 until his death, was a member of the Board of Directors of the State Art Society from 1945, was chairman of the State Art Commission from 1951 until 1961, and president of the Rachel Maxwell Moore Art Foundation, which provides funds for the purchase of art for the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center.

Dr. Bill Price, assistant director of the Cultural Resources' Division of Archives and History, said, "the initiative was entirely a local one. We're particularly pleased when a community not only welcomes us, but invites us to be a part of them."

In presenting the deed to the property to the representatives of the citizens of Greenville and Pitt County, John Humber said the gift, "reflects something of what daddy has done for the community," and serves as a continuing demonstration of the concern his father had for the people of the area, and his commitment to serve his fellow man.

as a bridge between generations." The family, he said, "is not losing a part of our past, but sharing something very precious."

Marcel Humber, saying his father, "developed a great appreciation for western culture," during his years in France, explained that, "in this house...his house...he tried to capture some of the details," he saw. And, Humber added, "a great deal went into the transformation of this house."

Humber continued, "in his own words, 'in a democracy, each person has a duty to contribute something to society.'"

This house, Humber concluded, "will hopefully serve to perpetuate this idea."

Boating Course To Be Offered

A "Boating Skills and Seamanship" course will be given by Greenville Flotilla 16-05, Coast Guard Auxiliary, at Pitt Community College, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. on June 2, 5, 9, 12, 16, 19, 23.

Registration for the course will be on the first night. The subjects covered include: boating safety, boater's language and trawling, boat handling, legal requirements, rules of the road, aids to navigation and nautical charts, piloting and radiotelephone.

Students passing a final examination (if desired) will be issued a certificate that can result in boat insurance premium savings and provide initial credits toward qualification relative to membership in the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Fee for the course is $5 for PCC registration, plus $5 for text and workbook, if desired.

He was also a member of the Board of Directors of the N.C. State Symphony, the Tryon Palace Commission, and the Roanoke Island Historical Association, as well as president of the N.C. Literary and Historical Association.

In the field of education, as in world peace and art, Dr. Humber was a champion of causes to broaden the scope of facilities available to young people. He was instrumental in establishing Pitt Technical Institute — now Pitt Community College — and served as chairman of the school's board of trustees until his death. He also served as a member of the board of trustees of Wake Forest College and of Meredith College.

"He loved his state, his county and his city," John Humber continued, adding that, "the people were his people."

"A house like this serves

A professor at the University of North Carolina, John Humber now lives in Chapel Hill, while Marcel Humber, a retired U.S. Navy commander, lives in Falls Church, Va.

Following his defeat, Dr. Humber said, "Oh, that's all right. The people have spoken and I respect their decision. There will be any number of places where I may serve; the welfare of our people and the advancement of our area will continue to be a foremost consideration on my part."

The Humber property, valued at about $155,000, includes a traditional turn-of-the-century wood-frame home built in 1895, and a 15,755 square foot lot, located at 117 West Fifth St.

Site of the Humber homeplace since 1847, the property may be used for a branch office of the North Carolina Division of Archives and History.

County Attorney W. W. Speight and County Manager Reginald Gray said it was efforts to locate a suitable site for the proposed Archives and History office that led to the gift of the property to the city and county.

Sara Hodgkins, secretary of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources, who was invited to attend the deed presentation yesterday, said last week that, "we're delighted with the proposal...made to us by the city and county. It's a very natural thing to happen. Dr. Humber was such an outstanding citizen of North Carolina and the world, I can't think of a more appropriate way to use his home."

"Our Western office (in Asheville) has helped so much, we feel the need for this kind of facility in the East."

She added that, "the proposal has gone to the General Assembly as a recommenda-

Hospital's Role Changing Rapidly

Things are changing rapidly at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The facility was initially planned as a new county hospital to replace the old one nearby.

All that changed when the hospital became affiliated with the ECU School of Medicine and the story of additions and expansions, even before the hospital opened, is well-known.

Changes are still quite rapidly taking place. Last week the hospital's board of trustees voted to establish a Department of Emergency Medicine, corresponding with a similar department in the medical school. Planning is also underway for establishment of a Kidney Transplant Center, although various agencies have to give their approval.

Work is currently underway on a bed tower addition and the Brody Medical Science building looms upward adjacent to the hospital complex.

The addition of physicians, nurses and other support personnel has been rapid at the hospital.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital is becoming a major medical center in every way and in the years to come it is going to offer much needed medical service to Eastern North Carolina.

Sen. Kennedy Should Know Race Is Run

Sen. Edward Kennedy must have some ego to continue his losing race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The senator has lost in primary-after-primary and, while President Carter doesn't yet have the nomination assured, he is far ahead of his intra-party rival.

It would seem to be so much better for the Democratic party if Sen. Kennedy would recognize that his candidacy is only going to cause disharmony. He should withdraw.

SUNDAY MORNING

Giant Global Classroom?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALIEGH — The electronics technology is in place which could with some additions and modifications turn North Carolina into the first global classroom.

Acting on advice from his recently established Telecommunications Commission, Gov. Jim Hunt is trying to get a federal satellite tracking station converted into a language and cultural exchange center.

From a site near Rosman in the Blue Ridge Mountains about halfway between Brevard and Lake Toxaway, the facility has been used by NASA since the early 60s as a tracking station keeping touch with various satellites and space experiments. The federal government plans to close the facility next year.

Using the sophisticated communications equipment and the technology available from the chain of satellites now in place nearly circling the globe, Hunt has proposed to President Jimmy Carter that a regional school be established in languages and cultures.

American students could have daily live television contact with foreign countries. Hunt has told Carter the program could "revolutionize international relations in business and industry, as well as in our diplomatic endeavors..."

Knowledge of foreign languages and customs has been identified as a key impediment to expanded world trade.

A personal expert in state government says he has determined precisely how to tell when a business slowdown will occur, based on years of careful observation and research.

"At 4:15 p.m. on Mondays through Thursdays, and at 2:30 p.m. on Fridays," he says.

Without taking a stand either way on the question of another penny sales tax earmarked for local governments in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt has promised to take a close look at the situation.

The notion is gaining headway among county commissioners that there are so many state-mandated spending increases... notably the schools and welfare programs... that the state must help find a way to pay for them. The additional sales tax has been suggested as one promising solution by a number of county officials.

"I know local governments are in a pinch, and over this summer I hope to immerse myself to the fullest extent in study of their problems," Hunt says.

The governor has a responsibility not only for state matters, but for the people of the state, and so must be concerned with the problems affecting local government, Hunt said.

What he must find out, the governor said, is the full extent of local governmental needs and the resources which are available; and whether those resources are being best used.

As for the sales tax boost, Hunt says, "I wouldn't have any reaction to that until we see what the needs are and the resources... Perhaps it will be necessary to provide more resources, but not necessarily in that way."

Still More
The price of that $8 million office building for state legislators now being built just behind the State Legislative Building keeps on climbing. Legislative leaders caught considerable fire for a pedestrian tunnel connecting the two structures, and so trimmed about half-a-million from the tab. Now, they have made that back: furniture will cost more than $30,000, and in the works is a computer system separate from the regular state computer set-up which would cost another quarter-million. And those on the inside still insist the tunnel will be built, one way or another.

Sunday Morning Notes

Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Congressional Action group, composed of business people, traveled to Washington recently for a conference with Sen. Jesse Helms, Sen. Robert Morgan and Rep. Walter Jones.

It was an interesting and fulfilling trip for the local people in that they were able to talk to the senators and congressman about business problems.

There was also another benefit. Members of the group got to ride the Washington Metro subway system, some of them for the first time.

Susan Nobles who accompanied the group, said they flew from Kinston to National Airport on the outskirts of downtown Washington. There they went to the Metro stop, purchased 50 cent tickets and boarded the train. There were orange and blue trains and it took a map to figure which to take, but once on, the group "thoroughly enjoyed it," Susan said.

The train went to the Capitol South stop near the Capitol building. The trip took 20 to 25 minutes and made about 12 stops. It was underground under the river and surfaced near Arlington Cemetery.

"It was clean, efficient... on time... and very quiet," Susan said.

At one stop there was an escalator said to be the tallest on the east coast. "You look at that thing and it goes right straight up in the sky," Susan recalled. "We were very pleased with the transportation system."

Silber Wins, Loses

By FRED BAYLES
BOSTON (AP) — When John Silber became president of Boston University in 1971 he found a university on the skids.

Enrollment was falling and the school's budget was millions in deficit. Its entire endowment was a fourth what neighboring Harvard earned on just its investments.

Now, nine years later, enrollment has risen. The budget is balanced and government grants have tripled. BU has even started fielding winning football teams.

But those years have not been calm for the nation's fifth-largest private university. There have been four labor strikes, demonstrations and faculty votes for Silber's dismissal. Some faculty even went to the state legislature, seeking a special investigation of the university.

Amid the storm stands John Silber, educator, tough-talking administrator, Ph.D. in philosophy.

But a classics education at Yale doesn't mask Silber's pugnaciousness. He wears suits tailored to allow ease and view of an arm withered at birth. His speech is colored by a Texas accent and a sprinkling of church cussing.

Critics blame all of BU's ills on Silber. They paint him as a tyrannical, almost schizophrenic administrator who uses intimidation and censorship. He has been accused of keeping files on critics and having demonstrators and strikers photographed.

Silber says much of the furor is actually the death throes of the last decade's education boom. Other universities are faced with the same money problems, he says, stuck with soaring costs and falling enrollments.

Other Editors Say Rip-Off Proposal

(The Wilson Times)

President Carter has placed great emphasis on balancing the federal budget for fiscal 1981, but to accomplish this objective he proposes — among other steps — withholding 15 percent of the interest paid on savings accounts and dividends.

Justification for the proposal is the contention that the Internal Revenue Service believes some $3.4 billion in income tax is now going uncollected because people fail to report interest and dividend receipts on their tax returns.

Actually the measure is a thinly disguised effort to allow the federal government an interest-free "loan" in the form of funds squeezed from the earnings of savers and investors.

There are three principal objections to the withholding proposal:

"The return on savings would be reduced because interest withheld would not be figured in compounding;

"Savings and loan associations, banks, corporations and individuals would be saddled with more burdensome paperwork;

"It would discourage savings at a time when economists agree that savings and investment must be encouraged to provide capital needed to stimulate increased productivity — an important goal in the war against inflation.

The Carter proposal to withhold interest on savings and dividends has not received much public attention, probably because it had to share the media spotlight with a companion plan to add 10 cents to the present federal per-gallon tax on gasoline.

But the five savings and loan associations in Wilson have alerted the public in a full-page advertisement in the Daily Times.

In the advertisement, the savings and loan associations call attention to the flaws in the proposal and provide a "ballot" which citizens may use in indicating approval or disapproval of interest and dividend withholding.

One point made in the advertisement torpedoed the contention that many people are failing to report interest earnings: the IRS is already provided this information on Form 1099. Thus it is the fault of the IRS if all the taxes owed are not being collected.

Congress should shelve this rip-off proposal and devote immediate attention to the structural deficiencies of a tax system that creates disincentives for savings and investment.

One lady compared it to Ontario, which she said was faster and didn't have as many stops."

Someone else said it was cleaner than any other subway they had seen.

Certainly the subway is convenient for flying into Washington and then visiting the Capitol area. The group returned by subway to National Airport for the flight home

THE INSIDE REPORT

Navy Buildup Is Undercut

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Less than four months after his stirring call to arms in the Jan. 23 State of the Union address, President Carter completed his mulling as a born-again hawk by quietly insisting that Congress abandon efforts to save the Navy.

On May 15, the president wrote Chairman John Stennis to urge that his Senate Armed Services Committee remove from the defense authorization bill $6.2 billion in hardware added by the House Armed Services Committee. Specifically, Carter's unpublished letter said no to $3.1 billion in naval and air items; no to taking capital ships out of mothballs; no to stepping up F-18 aircraft production; no to extra submarines and frigates; and, of course, no to resurrecting the B-1 bomber.

Nowhere in the terse letter is there a hint of world crisis set off by the Kremlin's Afghanistan adventure. Instead, the president made clear that the plight of the hardpressed Navy should never obstruct the chimerical "balanced budget." While one Jimmy Carter speaks loudly to the Soviet Union by boycotting the Olympics, the other Jimmy Carter carries a small stick; it takes no genius in Moscow or NATO capitals to understand which is the real Jimmy Carter.

What is surprising is not the substance but the style. It is unusual enough for a president personally to set out such detailed military hardware desires ("like assigning the tennis courts," one sarcastic defense contractor told us). Beyond that, Carter has dropped all deception, making clear it is not Congress which blocks a defense buildup.

The most predictable of Carter's requests is to remove $600 million for development of the proposed B-1 bomber as a cruise missile launcher. The president understandably opposes resurrecting the B-1 on the shoulders of the cruise missile, but the modified B-52 he proposes is a debatable, even risky alternative. In his letter, Carter urges Congress to wait for "full determination of the timing and specific form of an appropriate B-52 follow-on."

That sets the tone for the rest of the letter. Although Carter ignores it, the hardpressed Navy wants the redpencilled items as a quick-fix for its desperate condition following years of inattention. In response, the president is calling for long-lead help in the by-and-by.

Thus, Carter wants to delete $560 million to reactivate two mothballed warships, the aircraft carrier Oriskany and the battleship New Jersey — both pleaded for by Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, chief of naval operations. With two carrier battle groups on station in the Indian Ocean since the Iranian-Afghan crises began, additional ships are needed quickly.

The president calls it "inefficient to apply hundreds of millions of dollars to resurrect 1940s technologies for only a few years of stretched operation." Actually, the Oriskany was not commissioned until 1950 (and deactivated in 1976); the New Jersey, mothballed most recently in 1979, is suitable for cruise missiles.

"Because they require thousands of new crew members," Carter wrote, "both these ships would aggravate current Navy ship manning problems." Thus, the president has adopted a reverse beer-and-pretzels argument as rationale for the undersized Navy. The small size of the fleet justifies the low manpower level; but the manpower level limits the size of the fleet.

Carter similarly rejects modest increases in new shipbuilding, modest indeed when compared to the Soviet program. He rejects $495 million for increasing the four new guided missile frigates to six, considered a bare minimum by the Navy for anti-aircraft

OPPORTUNITIES
One Sunday in 1782 Robert Raikes went into the slum section of his native city, Gloucester, England, in search of a gardener. The man he wished to see was not at home, and Raikes noticed that the street was full of children who appeared to have nothing to do and were idly bickering with each other.

Raikes determined to help the children in some way, and the result was the modern Sunday School. He hired competent teachers and established the first school in the gardener's home. Under his constant encouragement the movement spread, and by the end of his life three hundred thousand boys and girls were attending Sunday School in England.

Raikes found his greatest opportunity for service right in his home town and in the least desirable section of that town. There are plenty of places to serve if we will keep our eyes open, and often they are nearer at hand than we think. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor:

It is easy to understand why so many of our young people have so little respect for law and order. Many of us who are older are beginning to share their disillusionment for those who have been chosen to protect and look after our interests.

Are building inspectors so hard to find and police officers so hard to come by that we, the public, must put up with their drunken behavior and abuse of public trust?

Our society has traditionally looked upon certain professions to set an example for the rest of us: preachers, teachers, law enforcement officers and public officials. The excuse that they should not be held any more accountable than anyone else is not valid. When these positions of responsibility were accepted, the commitment to moral, physical and mental courage went along with it.

If strong courageous action had been used in the past to correct and discipline, perhaps the latest incident involving the police department would not have happened.

To the editor:

Mark C. Olds recently confessed to the crime for which another man (Marc L. Williams) had been arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to a 40-year prison term. This case illustrated two very important points.

First, the judicial system is far from being perfect. Even under the best of circumstances, a conviction is no guarantee of guilt. Many innocent people are now languishing in prison for crimes which they did not commit.

Secondly, it seems that the district attorney's office was extremely slow in communicating information concerning Olds' confession to Williams and his lawyer. Why did they sit on the information from early October until the middle of May? This unwarranted delay in action by the prosecution suggests a total disregard for justice and a willful unwillingness to correct an obvious mistake. All too often it appears that the primary interest of the district attorney is to get a conviction, rather than to find the truth. The district attorney should be equally as interested in protecting the innocent as he is in punishing the guilty.

The judicial system will not be significantly improved until there is a change of attitude in the average district attorney's office.

Judge Britt observed that "direct and substantial evidence" which was "material, competent and relevant" had not been available to Williams at the time of his trial. He should be applauded for ordering a new trial.

To the editor:

I would like to praise the Department of Transportation for the work they have done on State Road 1202. I have lived on this road for about eight years and at times it has been a problem to get in and out to my home. There has been flooding at the intersection of 1202 and 1203, hub-deep mud, to say nothing of the problems that we have had with some of the school buses. We had one almost turn over in our front yard! Now that the road has been widened, maybe we won't have that problem again.

I have had close contact with most of the people involved in the work done on this project, not only with Mr. Johnson, but also with the "nuts and bolts" people, and have found them to be a most agreeable, congenial group. Of course, there have been some problems, but you have to take the bad with the good. Anytime I asked for help, I got it!

My wholehearted thanks to the D. O. T. for the work they have done. I wish them all the best luck in the world!

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, May 25, the 146th day of 1980. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1961, President John Kennedy asked the nation to strive to send an American to the moon within the decade. The first moon landing was in July 1969.

On this date: In 1803, poet and philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson was born in Boston.

In 1836, Rep. John Quincy Adams warned his colleagues in the House that the annexation of Texas would trigger a war with Mexico.

In 1944, the first news story to be sent by telegram was dispatched by a Washington correspondent for the "Baltimore Patriot."

If the dust got here it didn't have much effect, however. Wednesday afternoon some local residents scanned the sky and there was not much to be seen.

Or was the sunset a little redder and the sky somewhat more copper colored that day? Perhaps.

There wasn't much doubt about it in the Northwest, however. Photos came in to the newspaper office of great billowing clouds of dust hovering over large areas... and there were news reports of communities wrapped up in volcano dust.

There can be no doubt that active volcanoes pack great power, just as many of nature's shows do. Thunderstorms generate enormous voltage and tornados and hurricanes have unimaginable intensity.

Nature has put here all the energy that we need. Man only has to learn how to harness it.

protection. He also rejects $907 million for two badly needed 688-class nuclear submarines, asking the Navy instead to await a new class of submarine "we plan to design."

Finally, Carter comes down against yet another Navy priority: expanding F-18 aircraft production from 48 to 72 at a cost of $492 million but at a saving of $4 million a plane. "An increase beyond 48 would likely be done at the expense of funds needed to operate and maintain existing Navy aircraft," Carter argued.

That buttresses the letter's overriding theme: a defense appropriations bill "consistent with a balanced budget" cannot contain these new planes and ships without "severe reductions" in operations, maintenance and personnel funds that "could adversely affect today's military readiness."

But the same president has been vigorously fighting amendments to the budget resolution that would increase money for operation, maintenance and personnel by taking it from social welfare spending. Furthermore, any chance for a balanced budget went down the drain with the onset of recession. President Carter, therefore, actually is calling for no change in the domestic priority amidst deficit spending. Afghanistan or not, that is just the same old policy.

Georgia Finally Accepted The N.C. Boundary

By NOEL YANCEY

A few years ago the North Carolina House of Representatives adopted a resolution calling on the governor to mobilize the National Guard and to resist with force territorial claims made by Georgia.

The lawmakers were jesting when they shouted approval of the resolution, but the episode did serve to demonstrate their determination to fight Georgia's claim to an extensive slice of territory in southwestern North Carolina.

Georgia based its claim to about 200 square miles of Tennessee and North Carolina on ancient maps and documents which showed the state boundaries following the 35th parallel. Apparently as the result of surveyor errors the actual boundary on the ground ducks some distance south of the parallel.

The Georgia Legislature set up a Boundary Dispute Commission to press its claim, and when North Carolina and Tennessee refused to negotiate, it voted unanimously to take a suit to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Although the resolution by Rep. Ernest Messer, D-Canton, called on the governor to mobilize the militia and if necessary to fortify the border, the Senate let the resolution die, and the administration of Gov. Bob Scott took the matter calmly, confident it could win a suit if one was brought.

"I believe we are prepared to answer them," said Carroll L. Mann Jr. of Raleigh who was then state property control officer. Believing that the courts would say that the boundary was where the people had believed it to be for more than a century, Mann recommended to Scott that North Carolina should take a no-compromise stance. He told the governor that if Georgia should claim the 35th parallel as the boundary, North Carolina "should resist such procedure with all of its power."

"There is no justification for moving a line because of present ability to more precisely determine a point of latitude, when the line was laid down on the basis of the most precise determination of the latitude which could be made at the time," and "has been recognized in that general location for many years," he said.

Mann said that if a new boundary were established following the 35th parallel, "it would relocate the entire 70 some miles of the line between Georgia and North Carolina to the northward, encroaching upon the present southern boundaries of Macon, Clay and Cherokee counties to a maximum of perhaps in excess of one mile at the North Carolina-Tennessee corner."

"This would involve the community of Orlando in Macon County, the town of Culberson in Cherokee County, as well as other communities along the southern border of North Carolina," Mann continued.

A similar relocation of the line in Tennessee would have had a much more drastic effect. Half of Chattanooga, all of Lookout Mountain and Copperhill, Tenn., would have been annexed by Georgia.

T. Buie Costen, now a special deputy North Carolina attorney general, recalled the other day that he had made ready to argue the case in the U.S. Supreme Court by having himself admitted to practice in that court.

"But Georgia never filed suit," he said.

Perhaps a major reason the Georgians backed down was what the Supreme Court had said in ruling on a suit brought by the state of Virginia, in denying that states

GOOD--BUT STILL SHORT OF THE HONOR ROLL!

Susie Lott Knew What The Waste Site Held

Barnwell, S.C. — One day last October Susie Lott was fixing supper in the kitchen of her mobile home near Barnwell, S.C. She kept one ear tuned to the television news, listening for a report from her former employer.

Like many people in the area, Susie had worked for a nuclear facility. Between December 1974 and October 1978, she was employed at Chem-Nuclear Systems Inc., where 85 percent of America's low-level nuclear waste is buried. She worked her way up to become supervisor of the company's accounting department.

Susie glanced up when she heard the voice of Dave Ebenhack, the company's manager of health and safety. Earlier that day the Palmetto Alliance, a South Carolina anti-nuclear group had suggested that Chem-Nuclear's burial trenches were criss crossed with thin cracks, which could cause serious leakage problems. As Susie had expected, Ebenhack denied the existence of any cracks.

Susie remembers that Ebenhack said any cracks would be insignificant anyway, since no liquid wastes were buried at the site. By law they couldn't be. On hearing that, Susie Lott became furious!

Her job at the waste site, she later explained at a press conference sponsored by the Palmetto Alliance, called for her to bill those companies which shipped their wastes to Barnwell. "I know what is buried there," she insisted, "and it includes liquids." In addition she said the trenches contain trucks which were received "too hot to decontaminate" and were buried "cab, trailer and all;" they hold packages that were found on arrival to leak radiation, that were heavier than regulations allowed, or poorly packaged. And many Chem-Nuclear workers, Susie said, have received large doses of radiation.

The company denied Susie's charges, but the state's attorney general considered them sufficiently serious to warrant an extensive investigation that is still underway. Companies that deal with nuclear materials are responsible for protecting the public from the great dangers of radiation exposure. Radiation can damage human cells, and cause the growth of cancers. Sometimes these may not appear for 30 to 40 years, but all scientists agree: radiation can kill.

If Susie's claims are true, Chem-Nuclear and the other nuclear facilities near Barnwell could be seriously threatening the health of thousands of people in the area.

Despite the possible health hazards, in the past local citizens have often come to the defense of the nuclear industry — worried about what would happen to the community financially if the nuclear plant were to shut down. And now somebody — she doesn't know who — is trying to intimidate Susie into silence.

"We get phone calls now," Susie says. "Calls at one or two in the morning saying

'Why don't you keep your mouth shut, you'll live a lot longer.'" People ask her two daughters to tell their mother to shut up. One day, when the girls were home alone, they heard a loud noise out the back door. When they opened the door they found the heavy plastic which had enclosed their porch had been ripped from the walls. Her family is the victim of frequent harassment.

Susie's husband Allen has now taught both girls to fire a shotgun, though it knocks the youngest to the ground. No one leaves the house without a gun. Friends have suggested that they might need 24-hour armed protection.

In late February, Susie was released from her job at a neighborhood grocery. Employees at a local job-finding agency told her that they were instructed to ignore her requests for employment.

Yet Susie Lott refuses to be run off. She's heard the threats and knows the dangers.

She stays because of pride, because of courage, and because she wants to protect her home. "I love South Carolina," she says. "I have a husband and two children and I want to live here for a very long time. But in five years or ten years, I don't want to be growing contaminated food or be drinking from a well that has contaminated water."

Ample Space After A Refrigerator Cleaned

By GAIL MICHAELS

The last time I cleaned out the refrigerator President Nixon was making a State of the Union address.

It's not that the thought never occurs to me. It's just that when it does, I always have something much more important to do. When it occurred to me in 1977 I had to memorize the legal notices in the newspaper.

In 1978 I had to count my split-ends. And in 1979 I had to comb the fringe on my bedspread.

But this year there were unmistakable signs that the project could not be put off any longer. There was the day I noticed that my baking soda needed a shave.

Not long after, Meg accidentally leaned up against the refrigerator door, and we had to pour warm water over her to get her loose.

I finally decided the time had come when I reached in to pull out an apple that had rolled to the back and something bit me.

So I gathered together the usual tools — a sponge, cleanser, water, rubber gloves, a surgical mask, and a chisel — and started to work.

I began with the vegetable drawer. In it I found a carrot with a root system that had wound itself around the drawer handle and had to be hacked out with a meat cleaver. I also found a black tomato, four mummified oranges, and a soggy paper bag that I didn't have the nerve to open.

The shelves were even worse. Within the confines of 19.1 cubic feet were some of the most exotic cultures ever to be found outside the government's Center for Disease Control. A few of them actually embossed their patterns on the plastic containers.

These I threw out. In addition, I threw out all those containers which, on the basis of a quick sniff of the lid, threatened more than minimal brain damage if opened. Just the contents of my trashcan could have supported a Tupperware lady for a month.

And that included only about half the refrigerator rejects. The other containers

I decided to wash. I washed the plate which had harbored the piece of petrified pot roast. I sterilized the jar which had restrained the remains of the chicken-zucchini gumbo recipe that I had tried out six months earlier. Most of the rest of the stuff I left to soak for about two weeks.

When I had finished, I was exhausted, but the experience was rewarding. For instance, I rediscovered that the original interior was actually white porcelain instead of avocado and black stucco.

And I learned that our family didn't really need a big side-by-side. With the amount of edible food we keep on hand, we could make do with a Wee Winkie cooler.

Yes, as I stared at our one carton of milk, our jar of jelly, our bottle of ketchup, and the two teaspoons of spinach left over from supper, I was truly pleased with myself. Who knows? Today the refrigerator! Next year the stove!

High Court Still In The Swamps Of Miranda

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Nearly 14 years have passed since a bitterly divided Supreme Court marched into the swamps of Miranda. A few days ago the court demonstrated a melancholy truth: It is still in the swamps of Miranda and cannot find its way home.

Miranda, of course, was the famous case in which Chief Justice Warren led four of his brothers into a constitutional morass. The general idea was to put an end to coerced confessions. Once a suspect was taken into custody, there could be no interrogation until the suspect had been advised both of his right to remain silent and of his right to have a lawyer. Dissenting members of the court strenuously protested that Warren's "utopian" dream would create nightmares in the lower courts.

The dissenters in Miranda were right. The law no longer focuses on the guilt of the accused but on the conduct of the constable. May a confession be admitted in evidence? Must a confession be excluded? Who knows? The court gives little help.

Two cases will illustrate the confusion. They contain remarkably similar elements. One is the Innis case, just decided two weeks ago. The other is the Williams case of 1977.

In Providence, R.I., in 1975, police arrested Thomas J. Innis on charges of abduction and shotgun murder. They took him into custody, four times read him the Miranda warnings and put him in a car to drive to the station. On the way, one officer remarked to another officer, making certain that Innis could hear him, that a school for handicapped children was nearby. "God forbid that a little handicapped girl should find the shotgun and maybe kill herself." His conscience thus pricked, Innis led the police to the concealed weapon. At his trial the gun was introduced in evidence. Innis was found guilty.

In Davenport, Iowa, in 1968, police arrested Robert Anthony Williams on charges of abduction and murder. The victim was a 10-year-old girl. Police took Williams into custody, five times read him the Miranda warnings, permitted him to speak with two lawyers and put him in a car to drive from Davenport to Des Moines.

On the way, one officer remarked that the little girl's body deserved a Christian burial. It was snowing, and soon it might be difficult to find her. His conscience thus pricked, Williams led the police to the body. At his trial police testified to Williams' voluntary disclosures. Williams was found guilty.

All right. If there is any significant difference in the two cases — any difference of constitutional dimensions — it surely escapes the eye. Mr. Justice Stewart spoke for the court in the Williams case three years ago; he spoke again for the court in Innis this month. Both cases involved savage crimes; both defendants were unquestionably guilty. But behold: The conviction of Innis was just affirmed; the conviction of Williams was reversed.

The disputations of medieval theologians could not be more baffling. When the Iowa officer made his "Christian burial" remark, it was "tantamount to interrogation" and hence forbidden. When the Rhode Island officer audibly mused on the risk to a handicapped child, he was just musing. Mr. Justice Stewart's new rule is fashioned from the same cobwebs from which Miranda was woven long ago. "A practice that police should know is reasonably likely to interrogation." But, concluded the justice, "we cannot say that the officers should have known that Innis would so respond."

Marvelous, is it not? The court has wandered miles from the language of the Constitution. The Fifth Amendment says that no person may be "compelled" in any criminal case to be a witness against himself. The Sixth says that in all criminal prosecutions, an accused shall enjoy a right to have the assistance of counsel for his defense. Nobody "compelled" Innis or Williams to do anything. Both defendants repeatedly were advised of their right to remain silent and to have a lawyer. Both confessed their guilt.

Mr. Chief Justice Burger, who had dissented in Williams at the top of his lungs, wearily concurred in Innis the other day. Trial judges, he said, have enough difficulty discerning the nuances of Miranda cases, "and we do not clarify that situation today." The chief will never speak a truer word.

CITY MANAGER LISTENS TO POLICE — City Manager Joseph Grassie uses a bullhorn to talk with a crowd of police, some of whom had threatened to walk off their jobs over the suspension of five policemen for their actions during the weekend of riots. Officer Jerry Kuffner wears a sign that says "I'm a bum" as he confronts the city manager during the rally at police headquarters. The sign referred to a comment made by the major in regards to the five suspended officers. (AP Laserphoto)

Bayles Col...

When the former dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Texas arrived, he says he found an $8 million deficit had been covered by raids on BU's $24 million endowment.

The deficit was cut to $2 million that year and a few hundred thousand dollars in 1972. The budget has been balanced ever since.

"There were no management systems in place," says Silber. "When I asked how many professors are on the faculty, they didn't know."

Some $3 million was discovered witting in no-interest accounts. The school now puts $20 million a year in short-term, high interest investments.

But Silber won no popularity contests. Outspoken, he has called opposition faculty "morons" and has compared protesters to Nazis. He was quick to fire, replacing many of his own appointees.

"John Silber is a very hard man to work for," says Hans Estin, the former chairman of the board of trustees. "He expects a tremendous amount from all his people."

Silber opposed attempts by the American Association of University Professors to unionize the faculty. His failed battle lasted five years and cost the school legal tabs as well as the price of a consulting firm that specializes in keeping unions out.

BU, ordered last spring to bargain with the union, reached a preliminary accord. But delays prompted a 10-day strike by professors.

A strike last fall by clerical workers brought more rancor when Silber warned he might fire five professors who refused to cross picket lines. Shortly afterward, the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts reported it had collected information "sufficient to constitute reason to believe that Boston University has violated fundamental principles of civil liberties and academic freedom."

Silber said he would sue those reporting the group's findings. They published. Silber never sued.

"He is simply creating an air of intimidation; the quality of education suffers when people are made afraid," says Frances Fox Piven, a political science professor who heads the Committee to Save Boston University.

Piven's group won a 457-215 faculty vote calling for Silber's removal last December. When the trustees responded by supporting Silber, Piven's group asked the state to probe the school.

Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti refused; a bill to establish a legislative panel is buried in committee.

Silber will sit calmly smoking a cigar during discussions of university finance and organization, but he paces his wood-paneled study when the subject changes to campus controversies.

His response is a blunt mix of philosophical reference and country aphorism. Asked if he has enjoyed his role despite the fights, Silber replies, "I feel like the rabbit who made love to the skunk. I enjoy as much of it as I can stand."

The N.C. Boundary...

claim to a slice of Tennessee.

In that case, the court said:

"A boundary line between states that has been run out, located and marked upon the earth afterwards recognized and acquiesced in by them for a long course of years, is conclusive even if it is ascertained that it varies somewhat from the courses given in the original grant."

The 1971 to-do over the state's border with Georgia caused some history buffs to recall the time nearly two centuries ago when Georgia laid claim to a large section of land in North Carolina and even set up in the area the county of Walton, precipitating what North Carolina historian Marvin Skaggs referred to as the Walton War.

After considerable civil strife in the area — now Macon, Clay and Cherokee counties, the two states agreed to appoint commissioners to settle the dispute. Meeting in Asheville in 1807, the commissioners quickly agreed that the boundary ran along the 35th parallel, and they set out to locate the parallel on the ground.

As a result of the commissioners survey, the governor of Georgia told his legislature their report indicated that "no part of the territory heretofore claimed by this state as Walton County remains to Georgia."

Georgia, however, remained unhappy about its northern boundary. In 1819, the Georgia Legislature called for the appointment of commissioners who would "ascertain, run and plainly mark" the boundary. North Carolina agreed and the survey was made.

After that, the North Carolina Legislature passed an act declaring the line as thus surveyed to be "fully established, ratified and confirmed forever."

The Georgia Legislature took no action then but apparently acquiesced in the survey. However, in 1861 it passed an act declaring the boundary followed the 35th parallel. And so the argument continues.

New Officers Are Installed

The Greenville Jaycees and Jay-C-Ettes held their annual installation night activities on Saturday evening at the American Legion Building.

Mike Joyner was installed during the session as the new

Former State Jaycee president Joe Hollowell, who was a candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from the First Congressional District in the May 6 primary, installed the new officers.

Jaycee officers installed with Joyner included: Bobby Tripp, administrative assistant; Don Fleming, internal vice president; Doug Bonds, external vice president; Jeff Allen, ways and means vice president; Mac Simpson, secretary; Glenn Cutrell, treasurer; Herb Wilkerson, assistant treasurer; Mike Messick, state director; and Warren Stroud, past president.

Simpson will also serve as chapter chaplain, while Jack Myers is parliamentarian and N.C. Jaycee district director.

Directors installed by Hollowell include Brian Berkey, Steve Hecker, David Leech, Wayne Williams, Randy Smith, Greg Tripp and Brad Walls. The new directors join continuing members Floyd Little, Keigh Bielby and Jack Foley.

New Jay-C-Ette officers include: B. J. Cutrell, external vice president; Linda Fleming, internal vice president; Janice Hardee, ways and means vice president; Susan Cox, secretary; Ludie Smith, treasurer; Eileen Foley, reporter; and Margaret Peters, past president. Diane Myers has been appointed parliamentarian and chaplain.

Incoming directors are Dorothy Smith, Faye Tripp, Liliuokalani Last To Reign In Hawaiian Is.

Mrs. John Owen Dominis, also known by the names of Lydia Paki Liliuokalani and Liliu Kamakaeha, was best known to her loyal subjects as Queen Liliuokalani.

She was the first and only woman to govern the Pacific Polynesian kingdom, and was queen when the U.S. annexed the islands in 1898. She bitterly opposed annexation, advocating "oni pa'a" — or the "Hawaii for Hawaiians" movement.

The queen, who died in November, 1917 is today best known worldwide for her song, "Aloha Oe," which is now used as a traditional song of welcome, friendship and farewell.

Marilyn Danford, Laura Jackson, and Billie McDowell.

Special Jaycee awards presented during the evening included Spark Plug of the Year to Brian Berkey and Spoke Award to Don Fleming. The Jaycee of the Year Award will be announced later.

Jay-C-Ette Presidential Awards were presented to Betty Cox, Susie Clark, Janice Hardee and Mary Jane Sisk.

Past presidents of both chapters were invited to attend the installation dinner and dance.

Receives NCSU Scholarship

Jeffrey Atkinson, a Rose High School senior has been selected as a recipient of one of the Dean's Merit Scholarships at N.C. State University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Atkinson of 1603 Lincoln Drive.

These merit awards are made to students who show promise in academic achievement and leadership in the study of engineering and in a professional engineering career. The award is renewable, based on performance. Less than ten of the more than 100 minority students entering engineering at NCSU for the first time in 1980 have been selected to receive a Dean's Merit Scholarship. Atkinson is presently serving as Student Government Association president at Rose. He is also president of the Minority Affairs Club and a member of the National Honor Society, Council for Christ Club, Greenville Human Relations Council, Math Club, Mu Alpha Theta and the Rose High wrestling team. He is a member of the St. Peter Baptist Church where he is president of the Youth Choir.

Competition Set

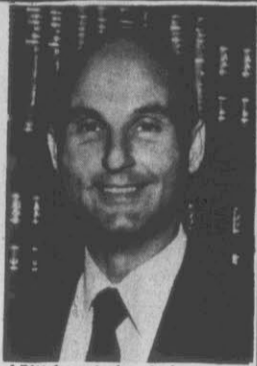

GREENSBORO — Grassroots Productions Limited of Greensboro has announced a Playwriting Competition with a $1,000 cash prize for production in March 1981.

The theme of entries is to be events that led up to the Battle of Guilford Courthouse, March 15, 1781.

Deadline for submission of entries is June 30, 1980. The play chosen for production will receive a $1,000 cash award which is being provided jointly by the Society of Cincinnati, the United Arts Council of Greensboro, the N. C. Arts Council, and the Grassroots Arts Bill.

In addition, other prizes to be awarded are: $300 for the best play submitted by a college undergraduate, provided by the Nat Greene Kiwanis Club; and $300 for the best play submitted by a high school student, provided by the three Greensboro Chapters of the DAR.

MOSES D. "MOKEY" LASITTER For District Court Judge

I want to thank the voters of Pitt County for their support on May 6, 1980.

The Third Judicial District consists of four counties, Pitt, Craven, Pamlico and Carteret. There are currently six District Court Judges in the Third Judicial District with Pitt County having three, Craven one, Pamlico one and Carteret one. Norris C. Reed, Jr., is the District Court Judge in Craven County and he, because of retirement, is not seeking re-election. I am a candidate for his seat.

Because of the size of the counties, it has been recognized that each county needs at least one District Court Judge in order to better serve the judicial needs of the citizens within the District. I chose not to run for a judicial position which I recognized as Pitt County's. I felt it was necessary for Pitt County to maintain its three District Court Judges, just as I feel that it is necessary for Craven County to maintain its one District Court Judge.

Because of the importance of maintaining this judicial balance, I have called for a second primary June 3rd. I urge each of you to vote Moses D. "Mokey" Lassiter June 3rd, so that Craven County can keep its one District Court Judge.

DEATH ROW — This is an exterior view of Qsar prison in Tehran, Iran, where many of the 54 persons executed since Wednesday by the government were put to death. Many of the victims were accused of drug smuggling, while approximately a half dozen were accused of belonging to a radical political group responsible for the assassination of several key Iranian figures since the nation's revolution. (AP Laserphoto)

Reagan Now Over The Top

By PETER A. BROWN
United Press International
One-time New Deal Democrat Ronald Reagan, who left Hollywood to champion the Republican right, Saturday won eight delegates at the Kansas state convention, ensuring him of enough votes to win the GOP presidential nomination.

The Kansas voting, along with a similar state convention in Vermont, gave Reagan at least 1,001 delegates in UPI's count — three more than the 998 needed for nomination at the party convention this summer in Detroit.

The results culminated a 12-year drive for the GOP presidential nomination by Reagan, who began seeking the White House in 1968 while governor of California.

At the GOP state convention in Topeka, Kan., Reagan supporters took all eight uncommitted delegate slots elected after winning a strategic rules fight Friday night.

The rules victory allowed them to win the delegate positions, even though five of them should go to John Anderson — a Reagan ideological foe — based on the results of the state's April 1 primary.

In all, Reagan got 28 of Kansas' 32 Republican national convention delegates. George Bush got the other four.

Of Vermont's 19 delegates elected Saturday, 16 ran as Reagan supporters. In addition, Gov. Richard Snelling — elected officially as uncommitted — told UPI "I will vote with the majority (of the Vermont delegation) on the first ballot." Snelling acknowledged that meant he would vote for Reagan. His vote was not included in the UPI total of 1,001.

UPI previously had awarded the Reagan slate 17 votes, not including Snelling, based on the results of local caucuses. But, in the interest of party unity one of those seats was given to Rep. James Jeffords, who remains uncommitted, Saturday.

Reagan had 994 delegates in the UPI count going into Saturday's Vermont and Kansas state conventions. Although he lost one vote in Vermont, the eight in Kansas put him over the top.

Reagan, who came within a hair of wresting the nomination from President Gerald Ford four years ago, defeated a formidable field for the nomination and in some polls leads President Carter, the likely Democratic nominee.

Only former Ambassador

Bush remains of the other six major GOP contenders who challenged his front-runner status, and Bush is spending the weekend at home in Houston trying to decide whether to throw in the towel. He currently has 270 delegates.

Reagan, who previously had declined to claim victory, acknowledged the inevitable Friday: "I guess I have to accept that I should start looking ahead to beyond the convention."

reiteration of earlier advice but did not indicate why it was being made now. He said the embassy would pay the airfares for Americans who could not afford tickets out of Tehran.

Revolutionary Council spokesman Hassan Habibi said they were free to go.

Daoudy's mission was one of two new diplomatic initiatives to settle the hostage crisis in advance of parliament's meeting May 28.

Iranian officials also said they were expecting the arrival Sunday of a mediating team from the Socialist International, whose efforts were being spearheaded by Austrian Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, Swedish Social Democratic Party leader Olaf Palme and Spanish Socialist chief Felipe Gonzalez.

But the militants holding the hostages, now reportedly scattered to 14 different locations outside Tehran, said none of the mediators would be allowed to meet the captives, who have not been seen since by outsiders since early April.

glass and bloodstains of last Wednesday were gone.

The 30-member Crisis Settlement Committee, composed of clergymen, college professors, civic and student leaders said it had confirmed 97 persons killed since last Sunday, when the protests began against the imposition of full martial law.

Under the martial law decree, political activity was banned, college campuses closed and opposition politicians arrested, including Kim Dae-jung, who is popular in Kwangju.

The death toll will undoubtedly go higher as students say some bodies were lying too close to troop positions to be retrieved and some deaths might not have been reported.

The crisis settlement committee said 95 percent of the 3,500 rifles, carbines, machine guns and a grenade launcher or two seized from police and soldiers forced to withdraw from the town had been turned in.

Trying To Avoid Spill...

Bolinaga said Coast Guard personnel examined the tanker, trying to determine if the water could be pumped out and the ship salvaged.

"We may make an arrangement to transfer some of the oil off," he said.

Coast Guard Lt. Archie Smith said the ship had 28 crewmen aboard. Authorities said eight people, described as non-essential personnel, were removed from the ship, but the remainder of the crew had decided to stay on board.

"We've instructed them to lower their life boats so that should something happen they can immediately get into their lifeboats," Bolinaga said.

Bolinaga said the flooding apparently was caused by a fitting on a heat exchanger that takes in sea water.

The Coast Guard said cutters Conifer and Vigor and the USS Saipan, a helicopter assault carrier, were dispatched to aid the ship.

Thunderstorms were reported in the area but winds were generally less than 10 miles per hour. Seas were reported at one to three feet.

BATHROBE — A two-color lithograph by artist Jim Dine is one of more than 80 works in graphic art going on view today at the N. C. Museum of Art in Raleigh in an exhibition entitled "Graphicstudio USF." The works were produced during 1968-74 in the University of South Florida Graphicstudio in Tampa. Other artists in the show include Robert Rauschenberg, James Rosenquist, Mel Ramos, Philip Pearlstein and other well known American artists. The exhibition is on the fourth floor of NCMA and will be on view through June 29. (Photo Courtesy NCMA)

'Real People' Spawns Imitators

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's hard to imagine "Real People" as a seminal development in the history of television — but that's the way it looks.

"Real People" has turned into a genuine hit for NBC and has spawned a gaggle of imitators.

ABC followed with "That's Incredible," which became a hit even faster than the original. The creators of "Real People" came up with "Speak Up America," and ABC has inked into next fall's schedule a clone called "Those Incredible Animals."

More imitations are in various stages of development, and CBS reportedly is readying its own version.

As nearly everyone knows by now, these programs have become showcases for real but unusual people. Such as: the guy who serenades turkeys, the official witch of Salem, Mass., a woman who lives out her food fantasies, a team of geriatric cheerleaders, and a man who walks backwards and another who rides his bicycle looking where he's been.

Not actors, not paid performers, not celebrities, but real folks like the people next door. Well, almost. Some critics say they're really sideshows that offer us voyeurism and exhibitionism and exploit a parade of — to quote Newsweek — "weirdos, loonies, cranks, and screwballs."

"I think there's a hunger for something new and different," says George Schlatter, the creative force behind "Real People" and "Speak Up America."

"I think we've been bombarded with so many of the same type of shows, that have gone through the same process of testing, and all come out the same. I think that in 'Real People' there is a sense of genuine affection for the people and they appreciate the fact that these people are just like they are."

Schlatter, who was also largely responsible for "Laugh-In," the trend-setting show of the 1960s, has little patience for the critics:

"That's Incredible" varies from "Real People" in that it also incorporates a sort of Ripley's "Believe It Or Not." It has things like a yogi who twists himself into a tiny box, an escape artist who performs his amazing feats while skydiving, a woman who raises tarantulas, and a man hit seven times by lightning.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

BY ANN NOBLE

Among Sheppard Library's newest non-fiction acquisitions are two which deal with the current U.S. economic situation: "The Squeeze and The Inflation Beater's Investment Guide." The book, by James Dale Davidson, is billed as the book for those who are outraged by the overall economic decline of America and the plight of the middle class. Davidson divides the population into two great classes: taxpayers and taxspenders. He then goes on to describe the taxspenders and how to stop them before our middle class is squeezed out of existence. Davidson is chairman of the National Taxpayers Union.

"The Inflation-Beater's Investment Guide: Winning Strategies For The 1980's" is by Burton Malkiel, who is currently director of the Financial Research Center at Princeton and former member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers from 1975-1977. In spite of inflation and the energy crisis, he contends that the 1980's will be a boom period for the stock market. Malkiel's practical advice covers liquid asset funds, floating rate notes, bonds, and real estate. He tells how to buy premium stock at discount, how to rate mutual funds, and how to gear all your investments toward inflation. His previous book, "Random Walk Down Wall Street" was called by Paul Samuelson "the Dr. Spock of investment."

The history of the situation in Iran is explored in "The Fall of The Shah," from the standpoint of Fereydudd Hoveyda, the Shah's ambassador to the United States and the brother of the former Iranian prime minister who was assassinated by the Khomeini government. His account of personal and political forces which destroyed the monarchy includes credit for the Shah's early success, but also horror at the progressive corruption of power. He also comments on America's handling of the Shah's downfall and the causes of revolution which led to the rise of Ayatollah Khomeini.

Jogging may be the answer to getting one's mind off these economic and political problems, in which case you will want to read Jim Fixx's "Second Book of Running." This is the new companion volume to "The Complete Book of Running" which was a national bestseller. It includes updated information on training, motivation, and health factors. New findings in medicine and psychology are discussed as well as evaluations of current equipment, literature, services, running organizations, and a tribute to runners everywhere.

CHAPEL HILL — Nightly review of highlights of the 1980 Spoleto Festival in Charleston; the future of our lives; a front-line documentary on Viet-Nam; and a full ballet production are among offerings to be aired over UNC-TV, Channel 25, Greenville, during the coming week. Brief details are:

— Monday, May 26 (and ten nights thereafter) at 6:30 p.m. — Highlights of each weekday of the 1980 Spoleto Festival in Charleston will be shown. Each segment will focus on a different aspect of the festival, with interviews and excerpts from performances of ballet, theater, cinema and music events.

— Monday, May 26, 9 p.m. — The future, full of promise and of peril, is the topic to be explored in "Your Future Isn't What It Used To Be." This is the first in a new Cover Story series which features the editorial resources of "Newsweek" magazine and a number of special guests.

— Tuesday, May 27, 9 p.m. — "Front Line" is an hour-long on the spot documentary filmed by Australian cameraman/correspondent Neil Davis in 1964. A believer in complete realism in reportage, Davis was one of the few correspondents who chose to be with South Vietnamese troops because "It was their war. It meant a great deal to them, and they were fighting it on their own terms. He suffered back and leg wounds on the front line. In 1970 Davis went to Cambodia to cover the war there, and in 1975 returned to Viet-Nam, and filmed the takeover by the Viet Cong in Saigon.

— Wednesday, May 28, 8 p.m. — Live from Lincoln Center will televise the American Ballet Theater's full-length production of "La Bayadere," staged by Natalia Makarova. Principal dancers for the performance will be Ms. Makarova and Anthony Dowell.

Green Hill Gallery Show

GREENSBORO — A group exhibition of two dimensional and three dimensional artworks with the landscape as subject and source will open June 5 at Green Hill Art Gallery, 200 North Davie Street, Greensboro.

The show opens June 5 and will be on view through July 27. A reception is being held from 8 to 10 p.m. Thursday, June 5, to which the public is invited.

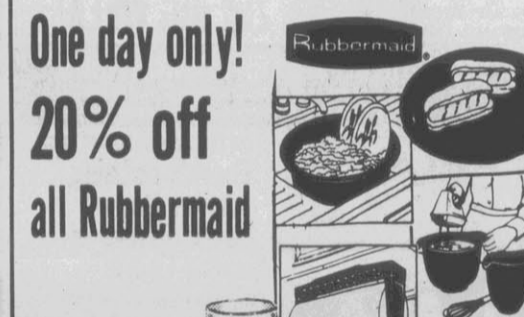

Regular gallery hours for Green Hill are 10-5 Tuesday through Friday, and 2-5 p.m. on Sunday.

Kimball of Enfield on town topics; 7:30 a.m., Around Town (subject to be decided on); and 7:35 a.m., Captin Eugene (Red) McDaniel, congressional liaison and author of a book on his experiences as a POW in Viet-Nam for six years.

Lost Colony Second Grant

MANTEO — The Theater Arts Section of the N. C. Dept. of Cultural Resources has announced its second major grant within the last 12 months to "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama.

The first grant, received in the autumn of 1979, is being used to install new speaker systems in the theater. The most recent grant is for the purpose of making professional tapes.

Spoletto Festival Underway In Charleston

CHARLESTON, S. C. — Spoletto Festival, U.S.A., now in its third season at Charleston, has established itself as America's most comprehensive festival of the arts as well as one of the most popular cultural attractions in the country.

The festival is the American counterpart of the famed Festival of Two Worlds held annually in Spoleto, Italy, and was founded by composer-director Gian Carlo Menotti in 1958.

The festival opened on Friday, May 23 and will continue until June 8, offering 17 days of varied events — including five opera productions, three dance companies, 50 chamber music concerts and recitals, a dance gala starring Aleksandr Godunov, the world premiere of a new Arthur Miller play, major symphonic and choral concerts — all along with "Piccolo Spoleto," a multitude of small, intimate and diversified free outdoor events. Among highlights of events are:

- Opera — Bellini's "La Sonnambula," with soprano Gianna Rolandi, Jon Garrison, David Cumberland and Sunny Joy Langton. Two one-act operas, Bizet's "Le Docteur Miracle" and Offenbach's "Monsieur Choufleuri," with performers Diane Curry, Susan Peterson, Francois Loup and Bruce Reed. Conrad Susa's opera "Transformations" with George Shirley, Karen Hunt, Kathryn Bouleyn, Jane Shaulis, John Lankston, Jake Gardner and Joseph McKee. Also being performed is Menotti's short opera written for children, "Chip and His Dog," of which this will be the premiere U.S. performance.
- Theater — The world premiere of Arthur Miller's "The American Clock," set in the depression years, will be produced by the Harold Clurman Theater with Jack Garfein, Artist Director.
- Dance Gala — Aleksandr Godunov will dance "The Moor's Pavane" with members of the Jose Limon Dance Company in two performances. In addition, three dance companies will be in residence including the Nikolais Dance Theater, the Joyce Trisler Dance company, and Maria Benitez-Estamps Flamenca.
- Japanese Special — "Directions to Servants," by contemporary Japanese playwright Shuji Terayama is a "total theater" presentation that was featured in the 1979 Festival of Two Worlds. It combines actors, singers, acrobats and musicians in an erotic entertainment.
- Chamber Music, Recitals, Intermezzi — In this category of the festival, a wide range of music will be heard in week-end recitals, and also in Charleston's churches for the later afternoon "intermezzi" concerts featuring organ and harpsichord recitals as well as choral and instrumental ensembles.

- Verdi Requiem and Gala Finale — The young Romanian-born conductor Christian Badea, Spoleto U.S.A.'s acting Music Director for the 1980 season, will conduct two performances of the Verdi "Requiem" with the festival orchestra, the Westminster Choir, the Bel Cano Chorus of Milwaukee and several well-known soloists. Badea will also conduct the Grand Finale concert at Middleton Place Plantation which will feature the music of Tchaikovsky, Berlioz and the Sibelius "Violin Concerto" with violinist Cho Liang Lin as soloist. This will be followed by the traditional display of fireworks.

Other events scheduled for the festival include:

- Czech pianist Rudolf Firkušny in recital at the Gaillard Auditorium;
- A gala performance by the 80-voice Westminster Choir at the Gaillard Auditorium;
- An Orson Welles Film Festival, with a showing of virtually all of Welles' films;

- Country Music and Jazz in five special concerts at the Cistern of the College of Charleston and at the Gaillard Auditorium; and
- Lectures and art exhibits at the Gaillard Auditorium, at various locations throughout Charleston, and at the College of Charleston.

A First Novel Deals With Facing Personal Loss

Departures. By Jane Bernstein. New York, Holt, Rinehart and Winston. 288 pages, $9.95.

"Departures" is an honest first novel about getting over pain. Lydia is a myrmecologist, a scientist who studies ants, and, in that field, she plans to make her mark on the world. She loses three people she loves: her father and grandfather die, and Kramer, the man she lives with, leaves for California to pursue his career. "Departures" takes us with Lydia as she fights bitterness, neurosis, and ghosts of the past to be healthy again.

Lydia, a graduate at a New York University, instructs a few undergraduate lab students and works on her dissertation. She runs, is nearsighted, eats health food, likes to sit in the dark, and hates budgets. Her father has just died.

Kramer runs into Lydia, literally, at the gym where she puts in about five miles a day. Kramer, a frustrated filmmaker, plays basketball, eats a lot of junk food, and plans to take off for Los Angeles soon, hoping to make it big writing original screenplays and directing. They fall in love, and within two months, Kramer moves into Lydia's apartment. Lydia's not quite sure she likes being in love. "The only difference between falling in love and being thrown over and brokenhearted, she decided, was that loving Kramer, for all the physical pain she felt, also gave her some expectation." She's disturbed because she can't stand to be alone anymore, and before Kramer she went for weeks without a phone call or date. Most of all, Lydia is afraid that she's losing not only her independence, but the drive to fulfill her career goals. "She knew Darwin's theory of disuse was wrong, yet she believed that as her love for Kramer deepened, her ambition, will and independence would atrophy."

Bernstein does an excellent job of using the ideas and terminology of Lydia's profession in her voice and thoughts. This kind of writing is effective for several reasons. It makes Lydia's work believable and understandable to the reader, and it tells us that Lydia's work is a metaphor for her life. Her nearsightedness, physical and social, gives her a kinship with the ants, specifically a strain that are totally blind. Pheromones (the female sexual attractant) are their means of communication, and Lydia believes that "one day scientists would prove conclusively how important pheromones were in human attraction as well."

Lydia's grandfather dies in late spring. A week later Kramer leaves for California, making no indication of a future with Lydia. School is out and Lydia does little more than lie naked under a quilt on her living room floor for a week.

Rescued from starvation by her building super, Lydia visits her mother's new family and dredges up memories of her father and grandfather, fighting to come to terms with their deaths. She flies on to England where she visits her sister, Jill.

In London, Lydia gets over the departures of the three most important men in her life. She moves to her own flat and works in a lighter factory to earn her plane fare home. She learns to budget, starts running again, joins a film society, risks a lover, and, in the process, realizes she's still the woman who wants to be someone in the world of scientists.

When Lydia does make it home, she faces the ruins of her life with Kramer bravely. Shopping done, and mop in hand, Lydia is about to begin scouring the apartment when Kramer calls and asks her to move to the Philippines with him. He says he's tried calling and even wrote once.

Maybe we can believe Kramer. But, having been through the pain with Lydia, we can also understand why she won't run off to the Philippines at the drop of a hat. She hasn't become a hard-nosed woman with a capital W. She's just healthy again. Lydia's not too tough, though, to let him know she still loves him, and Kramer has enough of his priorities in order to make a trip to New York, even if it is only to make one more plea for the Philippines.

"Departures" is a good book, and it's believable. Renee Dixon

FROM ONE WALL . . . A typical range of the variation of style, material, and subject matter is evident from this quartet of student art work. An exhibition of art by students in Pitt County elementary schools is currently on view at the Greenville Art Center and will be up through the month of May. Center hours are 9 to 5 daily, Monday through Friday.

Writers To Meet Tuesday

The second meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for the month of May will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, May 27, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Steele, 104 Avon Lane.

All persons interested in any type of creative writing, including poetry and plays, are invited to attend. There is no fee involved, and meetings normally last for two to three hours.

Pitt County Student Show At Art Center

The last of the series of the Pitt County-Greenville student art shows for the spring of 1980 is now on view at the Greenville Art Center. The big show, happily another of the floor to ceiling, door frame to corner type of shows, bears the name "Pitt County Ott Show," an obvious double-play on words — "Ott" in reference to Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools; and/or "Ott" as the preferred southern pronunciation for "art."

County schools with student work represented in this show and the teachers are:

- Ayden Middle-Elementary School — Marsha Hemby;
- A. G. Cox Elementary-Grammar School — Joanne Robertson;
- Wellcome Middle School — Annette Williams Brooks;
- Grifton Elementary School — Elizabeth Gomes;
- H. B. Sugg, Belvoir, and Falkland Elementary Schools, Mary Helen Meyer; and
- G. R. Whitfield and Chicod Elementary Schools, Freddie Outterbridge.

All the favorable comments that many viewers of children's shows in past years, both city and county art shows by elementary students, apply in full extent to this show.

The exciting gift of young imagination is vividly projected time after time as these children, ranging from kindergarten through elementary grades, express their ideas of what the world around them is like. They unabashedly use friends, families, TV characters, essentials of current events, landscapes — whatever is at hand as gist for their talent.

And whereas a generation or so ago, public school art students (when they did have art) were limited to paper and crayons, it is now a different story. Today, student artists learn early to work with construction material — wire, string, plastic. They experiment with weaving, simplified printing, papiermache, and basic ceramics.

The show has been hung and arranged to give the maximum pleasure in viewing, with good contrasts between one and two-dimensional work in the show.

The show will remain on view through the month of May. Hours of the Art Center are from 9 to 5 Monday through Friday.

Correspondence Art Exhibition On View At Gray Gallery

postmarks. An optimist, Cavellini has projected his date of death as 2014 — 100 years after his birth date in 1914.

Picasso Retrospective

NEW YORK — In celebration of its 50th Anniversary, The Museum of Modern Art (MOMA) is presenting the most comprehensive exhibition of Picasso's art ever shown in any one show of the master's work.

"Pablo Picasso: A Retrospective" went on view at MOMA early in May for a four-month period. The show will end September 16.

consists of nearly a thousand works in every medium in which the artist worked — painting, sculpture, ceramics, theater and costume design, drawings, and prints.

Generously lent by private and public collections from all over the world, these works span the long creative life of Picasso, generally acknowledged to be the

This landmark exhibition central figure of 20th century art.

The French National Museums are saluting MOMA's anniversary by collaborating in the organization of the exhibition, which is co-directed by William Rubin, Director of the museum's Department of Painting and Sculpture, and Dominique Bozo, the curator responsible for the future National Picasso Museum in Paris.

For the first time ever, the Museum of Modern Art will devote its entire gallery space, including the second and third floors — normally reserved for exhibitions from its permanent collection — to the Picasso show.

Works of major importance have come from museums in Paris, Barcelona, Prague and London, as well as from other public and private institutions and from private collectors in the U.S. and abroad.

The largest single group of works is drawn from works in the artist's estate at the time of his death a few years ago.

The Museum of Modern Art has since its opening been in the forefront in the U.S. in exhibiting Picasso's work — in one of its first exhibitions in 1930, in the Cubism and Abstract Art show of 1936, and in Picasso anniversary shows in 1939, 1957, and 1962.

A fully illustrated catalogue of the exhibition, containing essays by Rubin and Bozo, a chronology, and documentary material will be published by the museum in conjunction with the exhibition.

Persons interested in purchasing a copy of the catalog can request details from: The Museum of Modern Art, 11 West 53 Street, New York, N. Y., 10019.

SELF PORTRAIT . . . Pablo Picasso painted this self-portrait in Paris in 1901, when he was 20 years old. It is one of nearly a thousand works by Picasso now on view (through September 16) at the Museum of Modern Art in New York in the most comprehensive exhibition of his work ever shown. The show is made possible by a grant from the IBM Corporation.

There are many phases of enjoyment provided in the exhibition, "Suitable for Framing — An Exhibition of Correspondence Art" currently on view at the Gray Gallery, Jenkins Fine Arts Center on the East Carolina University campus.

Correspondence art, encompassing as it does elements of art, stamp collecting, and literature, is growing in popularity and with good reason. By and large it is an art form of immediacy and spontaneity with the freshness that is often reflected in the first conception and projection of an idea.

This is not to infer that all correspondence art items are the first draft of ideas — but even when a particular piece shows the result of considerable thought and time expended, the end result is seldom studied or over-formalized.

BFA candidate Stacey Jones compiled and arranged this rich show as an independent study project. His consultant is George Brett — a local young artist currently on the Pitt Community College faculty and probably the foremost proponent of correspondence art in the area. (Brett gave a gallery talk at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 22 in connection with the opening reception for the exhibition).

One of the most prominent contributors to "Suitable for Framing" is an Italian, Cavellini. Of this personage, Jones said "originally, he was a successful businessman who decided to do something different with his life. So he turned his energies and time to a project of self-glorification and self-historification. He does this through mail out of materials and advertising himself."

The results, as Jones pointed out, are some colorful, imaginative examples of the fine art of self-aggrandisement — multicolored postage stamps of himself inscribed "International Postage" with imaginary denominations. The designs on the stamps mostly depict Cavellini garbed in a manner similar to and sometimes double billed with artists such as Van Gogh and Gaguin.

"He even has clothes tailored with the biography of his life printed as the pattern for the material," Jones said, and showed a large wrapper the material in the show came in that has photographs of the man in his biographical clothes.

And Cavellini's correspondence art is but one of many fascinations in this show which contains decorated (and occasionally non-decorated) combinations of art and literature whose range covers drawings, montages, mimeographed and Xeroxed items, small objects pasted to paper, correspondence art in small books — as well as post cards and letters to which have been senders have added personal touches in the form of simulated cancellations, special postmarks, and frequently small delightful sketches and drawings.

To make this show possible, a large number of corresponding contributors generously responded by sending material. In addition, two local artists, Brett and Rosie Thompson of Goldsboro, loaned correspondence art from their personal collections. Ms. Thompson, an ECU graduate, has correspondence art in bound volumes — which consistently take on new dimensions as these are mailed from person to person who add to the book and then return to her.

The fact that "Suitable for Binding" does not take up a considerable portion of the large gallery space at Gray Gallery should not mislead a viewer into thinking it's a small show to pass over with a quick glance. Rather, it's a large show of a considerable number of miniature items that offers a couple of hours of provocative exploration — from the standpoint of philately, engaging art work, and compact literary work.

Jerry Raynor

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON — Divorce, the eye bank, beautification and quilts are topics on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House," airing from noon until 1 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 17.

On the subject of divorce and separation, Rev. Odell Walker, pastor of First Methodist Church, Washington, discusses this subject which will also be taken up at a May 29 meeting of the Tideland Mental Health Center.

Guest Frances T. Hughes of the Education and Public Relations Division of the N. C. Eye and Human Tissue Bank, Winston-Salem, and Dr. Ernest Larkin of Washington talk about donation of eyes to the bank and give details on corneal transplants.

To mark the observance of May as N. C. Beautification Month, Vance Hamilton of N. C. State University, and Ann Rouse, chairman of the Beaufort County program, talk about ways to clean up and beautify.

Craft Day is represented by two guests — Karen Pervier of Washington and Carmella Hollis of Blount's Creek, who show examples of paper doll and lap quilting.

On the film segment, Ms. Currie shows spots from "Sanford" with Marguerite Ray and Dennis Burkley, and from "Here's Boomer," guest Ray Berwick and a dog named Johnny.

Shakespeare Festival Set

HIGH POINT — The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival's fourth season will open on July 10 at the High Point Theater, 220 East Commerce Street with a production of Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night." Richard Mangan, British director and playwright, will direct.

On July 15, the Festival will present Moliere's "The Imaginary Invalid," with Peter Bennett directing.

The Festival's third offering of the season, which is slated to open July 18, is Shakespeare's "Macbeth." Malcolm Morrison, Dean of Drama, N. C. School of the Arts, will direct.

All three productions will be presented in rotating repertory (alternating performances in succession) through August 17.

For information on the complete schedule of performance dates and ticket prices, interested persons are to write to: The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival, Inc., 107 West Green Drive, High Point, N. C., 27260.

Special On Runaways

NEW YORK — A film that takes a close look at the growing problem of young runaways is being shown at 9 p.m. Thursday, May 29 over NBC network.

Hosted by Robert McNeil, and directed by Chris Jeans, the documentary type film explores some of the pitfalls for wandering youth — such as winding up as young prostitutes, male and female, in New York's Minnesota Strip.

Other segments reveal help being provided by places such as Galveston's Youth Shelter. Jeans interviews a number of young runaways, and also talks to parents of some of the youths involved.

Chris Jeans recently appeared before a congressional hearing held in connection with the proposed Runaway Homes Youth Act.

The special is designed to show the public the extent of child abuse.

Lace Making By American Indians

SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ. — A little known facet of American Indian art, the making of lace by Indian women, is reported in an article by Kate C. Duncan, "American Indian Lace Making," in the summer 1980 issue of "American Indian Art."

A survey of such work with several illustrations of lace work by various Indian tribal women of the 19th and early 20th centuries shows this art was a means for Indian women to make money on their own. Copies of the magazine are available from: American Indian Art, 7333 E. Monterey Way No. 5, Scottsdale, Arizona, 85251.

Pirates Falter, Lose 2-1

Special To The Reflector
ORONO, Me. — It was a classic case of neither team deserving to lose Saturday as Maine held off East Carolina for a 2-1 win that eliminated the Pirates from the NCAA Northeast baseball regional.

Senior right-hander Skip Clark won the pitchers' battle against East Carolina ace Bill Wilder. Clark gave up six hits and issued five walks while bailing himself out of jams in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Wilder, 10-2, suffered only his second career loss at ECU despite striking out nine and giving up just five hits. He walked two.

Maine got all the runs it needed in the first two innings. Rightfielder Kevin Bernier, the only player to record two hits on the day, drove a ground ball through the left side of the infield to bring in designated hitter Dick Whitten.

In the second, Whitten hit a ground ball which Pirate second baseman Mike Sorrell mishandled, allowing Mike Schwob to score from third. Schwob walked to lead off the inning for the Black Bears.

Shortstop Kelly Robinette raced home on a bases-loaded grounder to second by Billy Best in the seventh, but the Pirates were denied any more runs.

The Pirates loaded the bases in the sixth with one out, but designated hitter John Hallow grounded into a double play. The Black Bears barely missed another double play in the seventh on Best's one-out infield chopper.

It was a day of frustration for the ECU nine — they left runners on base every inning but the fourth. In all, 10 Pirate runners were stranded.

In the top of the ninth, pinch hitter Mike Sage drew a walk with one out. When Butch Davis fouled a second-strike pitch into his face and was unable to continue, John Krol replaced him and missed a Clark fastball for the second out.

Best then hit into a force play, ending the Pirates' season and dashing any hopes of a College World Series showing.

While Clark stayed in hot water in the late innings, Wilder just got stronger. The sophomore sidearm specialist mowed down the Black Bears after a scare in the fourth.

With Schwob on second and shortstop Pete Adams on at first, catcher Raymie Sytons threw wide on a pickoff attempt at first, putting runners in scoring position with one gone. Wilder promptly struck out Tom Vanidestin and got Whitten to pop up to end the threat.

The loss made the Pirates the first team to exit the double elimination event. Maine Sunday will play Harvard, a loser to St. John's in Saturday's winners' bracket.

ECU ends the season at 28-7. Maine is 23-12-1.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Islanders won the first Stanley Cup of their eight-year history Saturday on Bob Nystrom's fourth career overtime goal at 7:11 of extra play, defeating the Philadelphia Flyers 5-4 and completing their rags-to-riches climb to National Hockey League supremacy.

Six years ago, they were league laughingstocks, winning just 31 of their first 156 games. Two years ago, they were bankrupt, $25 million in debt and a hair's breadth away from being moved or dissolved.

But Saturday — with a crowd of 14,995 rocking the Nassau Coliseum — the Islanders survived a two-goal Philadelphia comeback that tied the game 4-4 in the third period and got Nystrom's goal to complete a 4-2 triumph in the best-of-seven series.

"This team wasn't willing to lose," said Nystrom after the tally that moved him into second place on the all-time list of overtime scorers. Maurice Richard of Montreal had six.

"It was a long time coming," said Nystrom. "It was a dream we've all had."

The dream has come true, thanks to Nystrom's second goal of the contest and New York's remarkable ability to win in overtime.

After the two-goal Philadelphia flurry had tied the game and forced the Islanders' seventh overtime contest of their 21 games this spring, Nystrom did what he always does before the extra period begins.

"I took my little scalpel and carved a notch in my stick," he said.

Then he scored the goal that unleashed hysteric joy at the Coliseum.

In the first few moments of their finest hour, after they had finished rolling with each other in glee on the ice — after captain Denis Potvin had led the jubilant lap of glory with the gleaming silver trophy held over his head — the Islanders found out some strange new things.

Some of them discovered that champagne drunk out of a sterling silver bowl doesn't taste that great. Some of them opted for beer instead.

And left wing Clark Gillies, handed the Cup after the lap of triumph, found out something else:

"The Cup is a lot heavier than I thought," he said. But to him, it was the most wonderful of burdens. And to the Flyers, champions twice themselves, it was the bitterest of ends.

"I felt we were going to win this hockey game and go home for Game Seven," said Philadelphia Coach Pat Quinn. "I nearly was right. But nearly isn't good enough."

Still, he insisted, "I've got so much to be proud of with these people. Throughout the year they've battled problems and done well. The outcome of today's game is the only thing I'd like to change."

First period goals by Denis Potvin and rookie Duane Sutter, plus eon-period tallies by Mike Bossy and Nystrom had given New York a 4-2 lead as the teams entered what could have been the final period of the playoffs.

But Philadelphia got a goal from Bob Dailey on a 55-foot shot at 1:47 of that third period and John Paddock — a replacement for injured right wing Tom Gorence — tipped in an Andre Dupont shot at 6:02 to force the extra session — the seventh overtime playoff game this spring for New York and the fourth for the Flyers.

But the Islanders persevered and — in the eighth minute of overtime — Nystrom broke up ice on a two-on-one with John Tonelli. Tonelli passed to Nystrom on his left and the big right wing shoveled a 15-foot shoot over goalie Pete Peeters to send the crowd into bedlam.

Moments later, after the teams had shaken hands, NHL

President John Ziegler presented the Cup to Islander captain Denis Potvin. And as the crowd bellowed: "We're Number One!" the traditional triumphant victory lap began around the rink.

The Flyers battled valiantly. They took a 1-0 lead on a Reggie Leach goal during a two-man power play at 7:21 of the first period, then surmounted New York goals by Potvin and Sutter in a 2:12 span beginning at 11:56 of the period.

Potvin batted the rebound of a Bossy shot between the leg pads of goalie Peeters to tie the game at 1-1. Peeters saw Bossy's chopping shot bounce out of his glove and high into the air, when Potvin — with his stick barely at the legal level, just beneath shoulder height — swatted the disc downward and into the cage.

Center Bryan Trottier assisted on the play, giving him 28 points this playoff campaign and snapping the record of 27 that had been set by Boston's Phil Esposito in 1970 and equaled by Montreal's Frank Mahovlich in 1971.

Then New York got a gift on a missed offside call by linesman Leon Stickle. Clark Gillies brought the puck up left wing, then sent it backward — and clearly back across the blue line — to Butch Goring. Goring carried the puck back inside the attacking zone, but the linesman was looking elsewhere.

An instant later, Goring spotted Sutter streaking up right wing. Yd fed him a pass for an 8-foot shot high into the cage.

Rookie Brian Propp tied it for Philadelphia with 1:02 left in the first period, but Bossy netted a 10-footer on New York's fifth power play at 7:34 of the second period and Nystrom converted a Tonelli pass with 14 seconds left in the session for a 4-2 New York lead.

Then the Islanders overcame the game-tying third-period rally by Philadelphia, making the Flyers their third consecutive 100-point victim since the playoffs began 47 days ago.

Japan Votes To Boycott

By SAM BOYLE
AP Sports Writer

The Japan Olympic Committee voted Saturday to go along with the United States' call for a boycott of the Moscow Olympic Games, joining dozens of other nations whose athletes will not compete because of Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The decision came on the day set as the deadline for Olympic committees to notify the Moscow Olympic Organizing Committee about participation — a process that is normally a formality but has taken on global significance.

The Japanese vote was 29-13. Japan Olympic Committee Chairman Katsuji Shibata, speaking in a breaking voice, said participation was "impossible" under present circumstances.

"The Japanese committee said, 'The Moscow Games under present circumstances are not conducive to peace and friendship.'"

The vote, plus Uganda's last-minute decision to reverse an earlier decision and send a team, brought to 52 the number of countries boycotting the Games for one reason or another, according to an Associated Press count of National Olympic Committee votes.

The International Olympic Committee says it will have an official list Tuesday of who is going and who is staying away.

Shibata said that with the United States and West Germany boycotting the Games as a protest of the Soviet presence in Afghanistan, the Japanese committee had "no choice" but to follow the government's stand and vote to boycott.

Last week, the Japanese Olympic Committee discussed the idea of sending only its top medal prospects instead of a full team because of the lack of government financial support.

President Carter called in January for a boycott of the Games unless the Soviets withdrew their troops within a month. In February, at a meeting in Lake Placid, N.Y., the IOC rejected the idea of moving, postponing or canceling the Games.

Months of political jockeying followed, with Carter trying to persuade the U.S. Olympic Committee and other nations to boycott.

USOC Executive Director F. Don Miller said Friday that the committee "will just let the deadline pass. We have already stated our position that we won't be sending athletes to the Games."

The USOC decided April 12 that it would go along with Carter and stay away from Moscow. West Germany, Canada and other countries and committees followed. But some Olympic committees — such as those of Australia, Britain, Italy, and Spain — decided to defy their governments and send teams to Moscow.

The State Department said Saturday it was pleased by the Japanese decision because it involved sacrifices by many athletes.

The State Department said 73 countries were boycotting the Games. But the Soviets say more than 100 nations plan to attend and there are only 143 countries that are part of the Olympic movement.

Countries are boycotting the Games for a variety of reasons, many of which have nothing to do with the U.S. call for a protest.

United States nor Iran is sending a team. China and Taiwan are staying away. Israel and much of the Arab world will not compete.

Although Saturday was the deadline for accepting invitations to the Games, the IOC has said it will accept late entries.

The Russians had hoped to use the Games as a showcase of the Soviet system with thousands of foreign visitors expected and millions around the world watching on television. But the boycott has cost them a large part of that audience because the Games will not be televised in the United States and some other countries.

Even without the teams from the boycotting nations, some of the world's top athletes will compete.

Sebastian Coe, holder of three middle distance world records including the mile, will be on the British team. And Cuba will be sending some of the world's top amateur boxers.

The countries that are boycotting this year accounting for about 40 percent of the medals won at the 1976 Montreal Games — the bulk of them won by the United States and West Germany.

'Pearl', 'Pistol' Among Names Available

Dallas Mavericks Pondering Picks

LOS ANGELES (AP) - If you were putting together an expansion franchise, would you rather take Earl Monroe, one of basketball's all-time great guards, or Mike Glenn, a fine shooter who has played little in three pro seasons?

Would you pick Spencer Haywood, a four-time all-star with a career scoring average of 22 points per game, or Marty Byrnes, a forward who has sat on three benches in his two years in the league?

Would you choose "Pistol" Pete Maravich, one of the sport's certified gate attractions, or Jeff Judkins, a guard who may not sell as many tickets but is eight years younger and has healthier knees?

Those are among the questions being pondered right now by the people in charge of the Dallas Mavericks, the newest member of the National Basketball Association.

The Mavericks, voted in as the league's 23rd franchise in February for an entry fee of $12 million, will announce their 22 selections from the expansion pool of player talent Wednesday at the start of the annual meetings of the NBA coaches and general managers.

The meetings, scheduled to last for three days, will be followed by the league's summer Board of Governors meeting at Coronado, Calif. June 2-4.

The coaches and general managers are expected to make recommendations regarding the three-point goal rule, which was tried this season on an experimental basis, and the use of three-man refereeing crews, which was tried a year ago but dropped by the club owners for financial reasons. All they can do is recommend - the final decision is up to the Board of Governors.

The league is also expected to announce the winner of the NBA Coach of the Year award. The balloting by a panel of writers and broadcasters was conducted prior to the playoffs, and Bill Fitch of Boston is rated the favorite.

But the big news will be made at the start of the meetings, when Dallas makes its expansion picks. Each existing team submitted a list of eight protected players to the league office last Monday, with the Mavericks getting their pick of the rest.

For tax reasons, the Mavericks must pick one player from each of the 22 teams. Since that will give them more veterans than they probably want, their selections should spark some trade discussions as they try to package two or three players for a front-line performer, or else deal players for future draft choices.

Monroe of New York, Haywood of Los Angeles and Maravich of Boston are among many well-known players expected to be left unprotected because of their advanced age, high salaries or shaky physical status.

Others in that category include Doug Collins of Philadelphia, Marvin Barnes of San Diego, Wes Unseld of Washington, Paul Silas of Seattle and Rick Barry of Houston. Because of Collins' injuries, Barnes' troubled past and the ages of the others, all may be unprotected.

All may also be bypassed by Dallas.

"There are so many variables that it's hard to pin us to any formula," said Rick Sund, the player personnel director for the Mavericks who formerly worked in the Milwaukee Bucks' front office. "Certainly age is a factor. We'd like to get proven players, but we'll also be looking for the young, aggressive player who may not have played much but who will want to come to an expansion club and prove what he can do as a pro."

"We really want to concentrate on good character people," he added. "We want players from good backgrounds who will accept that fact that for the first couple of years we will be struggling."

Complicating the situation are the 40-50 players who completed their contractual obligations this season and are now free agents.

If Dallas drafts a free agent and signs him, it doesn't owe any compensation to his old team. But if it drafts one and is then unable to sign him, Dallas won't get any compensation from the team that does sign him. Thus, while many free agents may be left unprotected, it would be a significant gamble for Dallas to pick them.

But it's a gamble Dallas may take. "If they put a free agent out there, we will definitely investigate the possibility of signing him," said Sund.

Center figures to be the hardest position for the Mavericks to fill. Few clubs have depth in the pivot, and those who do are not likely to let their big men get away. The Mavericks are interested in Ralph Drollinger, the former UCLA center who bypassed the NBA in favor of Athletics in Action but now says he wants to go pro.

As for the college draft, Dallas will have the 11th pick in each round. "I think we'll get at least one quality player, one whom we'll be able to build with," said Sund.

He also says the Mavericks intend to hold onto their draft picks.

"You can never say never," he said, "but I really don't anticipate our trading any of our top picks for several years."

60% Of '76 Medal Winners To Attend Olympics

By EDSCHUYLER JR.
Ap Sports Writer

Countries which won about 60 percent of 613 medals in the 1976 Olympics and star international athletes such as runner Sebastian Coe of Britain and boxer Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba are set to participate in the Moscow Summer Games.

Among the missing will be the United States, which finished third in 1976 with 34 gold medals, West Germany, fourth in golds with 10, and fourth overall with 39, and Japan, fifth in golds with 10.

But there will be many strong teams in Moscow, led by the Soviet Union, which led the standings in Montreal four years ago with 47 gold and 125 total medals, and East Germany which won four gold and 90 total medals in 1976. Also on hand will be other East European nations, which especially are strong in gymnastics, wrestling and weight lifting, and Cuba, which is strong in track and field and boxing. There also will be many of the African nations who boycotted the 1976 Games in protest of a New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa.

The absence of the United States unquestionably will detract from the Moscow Games because there will be no United States vs. the world atmosphere that lends excitement to many international events. It also has smothered public interest in the United States, where the Olympics would have been televised in great detail by NBC.

But the Moscow Games still stack up as a major athletic competition, especially in the glamour category of track and field where U.S. men were able to win only six gold medals in the 1972 Olympics and the 1976 Games. They would have been hard-pressed to better those totals at Moscow.

Middle distance runners expected in Moscow include Coe, of Britain, the world record holder in the 800 meters, 1,500 meters and the mile; Coe's countryman, Steve Ovett; Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland, the indoor mile world record holder; John Walker of New Zealand, winner of the 1,500 in Montreal and former world record holder in the mile, and Filbert Bayi of Tanzania, the former world record holder in the 1,500. Bayi missed the 1976 Olympics because of the African boycott.

Among the distance runners expected to be in Moscow are Lasse Viren of Finland, winner of the 5,000 and 10,000 meters in both the 1972 and 1976 Olympics, and Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia, winner of the 5,000 and 10,000 at Spartacade and the World Cup and currently ranked No. 1 in the world in those events, and Waldemar Crepsinski of East Germany, winner of the marathon in Montreal.

Other runners who should display their world-class abilities in Moscow include Albert Juantorena of Cuba, who won the 400 and 800 meters in Montreal but is injured now, and sprinters Silvio Leonard of Cuba, twice winner of the 100 and 200 at the Pan American Games; Hasley Crawford of Trinidad and Tabago, 1976 Olympic champion in the 100; Donald Quarrie of Jamaica, 200 winner at Montreal; Pietro Mennea of Italy, world champion in the 200, and James Gilkes of Guyana, who tried to run but was not allowed to in 1976 when his country boycotted.

Some of those who should be in the field events are world record holders Vladimir Yashenko of the Soviet Union, high jump; Wladyslaw Kozakiewicz of Poland, pole vault; Udo Beyer of East Germany, shot put; and Wolfgang Schmidt of East Germany, discus. Yashenko currently is injured. Another to watch in Moscow will be Daley Thompson of Britain, holder of the world mark in the decathlon.

Among the women stars set to compete are East Germans Marlies Gohr, world record holder in the 100 meters, and Marta Koch, world record holder in the 200 and 400, and Tatyana Kazankina of the Soviet Union, the 1976 Olympic 1,500 champion who holds world marks in the 800 and 1,500.

There is no question that the U.S. defection will thin the ranks of top swimmers, especially among the men. But there will be many good ones in Moscow.

Some who could have won gold medals even if the Americans had not boycotted include women world record holders Barbara Krause, East Germany, 100-meter freestyle; Tracy Wickham, Australia, 400- and 800-meter freestyle; Julia Bogdanova, Soviet Union, 100 breaststroke, and Petra Schneider, 400 individual medley; and Vladimir Sahnkov, Soviet Union, world record holder in the men's 400 freestyle; Djan Madruga, Brazil, U.S. national champion in the 400 and 800 freestyle, and Par Arvidsson, Sweden and the University of California, world record holder in the 100 butterfly.

Another sport opened up by the U.S. boycott will be basketball, where the Americans have won every time except in 1972 when they were beaten by the Soviet Union in a controversial final. The top teams in Moscow could be Yugoslavia, beaten finalist in 1976 and reigning world champion; the Soviet Union and Cuba.

The U.S. absence definitely will open up boxing, a competition in which Americans won five gold medals four years ago. The only roadblock to Stevenson winning a third Olympic heavyweight gold medal appeared to be an American - probably Marvis Frazier or Tony Tubbs. The Cubans will field another strong team, probably as strong as the one that won three titles in Montreal. Russia will have another strong team, but one that will be much younger than the squad that won only a silver medal in Montreal.

Competition should also be intense in the gymnastics, weight lifting, and freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling, sports in which Eastern European nations traditionally do well in.

Young Leads Corning Classic

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — Donna Caponi Young shot a 3-under-par 69 Saturday and took a 4-stroke lead with a 9-under-par 207 after the third round of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $100,000 Corning Classic.

Donna Horton White, Sandra Spuzich and Lori Garbacz were tied for second at 211.

Australia's Penny Pulz, the defending champion, moved within striking distance with a 5-under-par 67 that gave her a 212. Pulz had started Saturday's round trailing Young by 7 strokes.

Young, going after her 17th career victory and third triumph of the season, has led the tournament from the start. She said she was confident she would finish strong on Sunday.

"I know they are going to be shooting at me out there. I am going to be dodging their balls all day, but the way I am playing it's going to be tough to catch me."

Spuzich and Garbacz shot 2-under par 70s on the third round while White finished Saturday's round with a par 72 to go into Sunday's round with a 211 total.

Barbara Barrow, who shared the second-round lead with Young, faltered Saturday, making a double bogey on the sixth hole and finishing with a 75 that tied her with Vivian Brownlee and Betsy King 6 strokes back at 213.

Unbeaten Conney Faces Young

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Undeclared and top-ranked heavyweight Gerry Cooney, the latest of the so-called "Great White Hopes" in boxing, takes on Philadelphia's Jimmy Young in a 10-round fight Sunday in Atlantic City's Convention Hall.

Cooney, 23, of Huntington, N.Y., is ranked as the No.1 contender by the World Boxing Association and third by the World Boxing Council.

Known as "Gentlemen Gerry" for his otherwise soft-spoken style, Cooney has 22 straight victories, including 18 knockouts, in the ring.

Young, 31, is 25-9-2 with nine knockouts as a pro. Those two defeats included unsuccessful 15-round title tries against Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton.

The tough Philadelphian, ranked sixth by the WBC, insists he is on the comeback trail following his recent defeat of London's John Gardner, Europe's heavyweight champ.

Top-Seed Gains Net Semifinals

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Topseeded Peter Rennert of Stanford fought back Saturday to gain the semi-finals at the 96th National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis championships.

Rennert lost the first set to Pepperdine's Eddie Edwards, and trailed in the second set, but fought back for a 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 victory to advance to Sunday's semi-final match against Eddie Fernandez of Ohio State.

In the other semi-final, No. 5 seed Robert van't Hof of Southern Cal takes on Princeton's Leif Shiras.

The unseeded Fernandez, who has knocked off four of the top 16 seeds, gained the semifinals by defeating Tennessee's Rodney Harmon 1-6, 7-6, 6-4.

England Wins Soccer Crown

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — England's soccer team returned to winning form Saturday and defeated Scotland 2-0 in the closing game of the British international championship before a crowd of 85,000 at Hampden Park.

England led 1-0 at halftime. The goals were scored by Trevor Brooking in the eighth minute and Steve Coppell in the 76th minute.

The victory boosted England's confidence for the forthcoming European Cup of Nations finals in Italy. England climbed into second place in the four-nation tournament behind Northern Ireland, winners of the title for the first time in 64 years.

In previous games in the tournament, England had lost to Wales 4-1 and managed only a 1-1 tie at home with Northern Ireland.

England is grouped with Belgium, Italy and Spain in the European Cup of Nations finals.

Rookie's Home Run Leads Indians Past Red Sox

American League

BOSTON (AP) — Rookie Joe Charboneau drove in three runs with a homer and a double, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 7-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Charboneau put the Indians in front to stay with a two-run homer off Boston starter Jack Billingham in the fourth. Then he doubled in another run in the seventh against reliever Keith MacWhorter.

Charboneau's homer was a line drive which just cleared the left field wall as it curved around the foul pole. It was his sixth homer of the season, boosting his RBI total to 21 in 32 games.

Rick Waits, 3-5, won and Billingham, 1-2, lost.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ken Singleton's two-run single and a three-run homer by Eddie Murray capped a six-run Baltimore outburst in the fifth inning as the Orioles trounced the Detroit Tigers 9-1 Saturday night.

After Lenn Sakata opened the inning with a double and scored on Lee May's single to snap a 1-1 tie, a fielding error by third baseman Richie Hebner led to five unearned Baltimore runs and sealed Detroit's fourth loss in a row.

Milt Wilcox, 2-4, retired two batters following Hebner's error but then hit Rich Dauer with a 1-2 pitch to load the bases. Singleton grounded a 2-2 pitch through the middle and Murray then hit his sixth homer and the first by the Orioles this season with more than one runner on base.

OAKLAND (AP) — Mitchell Page and Jeff Newman had three hits apiece, leading a 17-hit Oakland A's attack to their season-high run total that buried the Texas Rangers 15-7 Saturday.

Steve McCatty, 4-4, cruised to victory and allowed only one hit before the seventh inning, when a double by John Ellis and a single by Dave Roberts produced the Rangers' first run. McCatty left after facing four batters in the eighth, when the Rangers added six runs.

The A's built a 12-0 lead before Texas scored, with the help of a five-run fourth that made the score 6-0.

Gilder Leads Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Bob Gilder emerged from a multiple-man scramble with a 67 that gave him the third-round lead in the Memorial golf tournament, but he says he's not even thinking about winning.

Not yet. There are two good reasons for it.

"There's too much golf left on this golf course to think about winning yet," Gilder said Saturday.

That's one reason. The other is Tom Watson.

The game's dominant player, winner of five titles already this year and the defending champion here, is but a single stroke back going into Sunday's final round.

"Most likely," said PGA champ David Graham of Australia, one of three men tied with Watson in second, "he's the man to beat. But if he wins it, it will be because of his talent, not because someone gives

Preventing Double Play
Clemson's Tim Teufel (11) jumps over U.S.C.'s Joe McCarthy, who was tagged out on the play, in an effort to break up a double play in NCAA Atlantic Regional baseball action Saturday. Clemson defeated the Gamecocks, 6-2, to advance to the championship of the regional tournament. Clemson will meet the winner of the South Carolina-East Tennessee game at 3 p.m. Sunday in the double-elimination tournament. East Tennessee edged Georgia Southern Saturday, 3-1. (AP Laserphoto)

CHICAGO (AP) — Reggie Smith went to the plate in the seventh inning with only one thought in mind and that was to hit a home run. He caught a Dick Tidrow breaking ball and sent it over the right field wall Saturday as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2 in a nationally televised game.

"That made the score 4-2 and meant they had to get three runs to beat us," said Smith. "With the pitching we've been getting, I knew that was going to be hard to do."

The homer was the eighth this season for Smith, but "I don't look at numbers as a pace. The home runs I hit from the seventh inning on are the yardstick I use to measure my performance."

"In a situation like that, I want to hit the ball out of the park," said Smith. "That's what I'm up there to do."
Also hitting the ball out of the park was Ron Cey, who nailed his fourth homer off loser Mike Krukow, 3-5, in the second inning to provide the Dodgers with a 1-0 lead, but his strikeout in the fourth proved more productive.

Harvard Handcuffs ECU, 7-3

Special To The Reflector
ORONO, Me. — Heady right-hander Bob Alevizos handcuffed East Carolina's highly-touted batters for seven innings and his Crimson teammates rapped out 14 hits as Harvard rolled to an easy 7-3 win in the opening game of the NCAA Division I Northeast Regional.

Alevizos, 7-0, allowed only one run (unearned) and five hits over the first five innings while rightfielder Ed Farrell and shortstop Brad Bauer were supplying the power at the plate for Harvard, now 23-10.

Catcher Raymie Styons figured in all three Pirate runs as he scored on designated hitter John Hallow's ground single up the middle in the fourth. He also blasted a two-run homer in the eighth. Pirate head coach Hal Baird was not looking for excuses after his team dropped only its sixth game in 34 starts.

"We made a few mistakes early in the game. We had a couple of plays on which we did not execute well," Baird said. "We were very impressed with Harvard. They played with a great deal of intensity and they were very aggressive."

Farrell led Harvard with three hits in four trips, scoring once and driving in a run. Bauer singled twice and had two RBIs.

Alevizos was chased in the eighth after centerfielder Billy Best doubled, Styons homered and rightfielder Macon Moyer followed with his third single of the day. Ron Stewart came on to preserve the win, yielding only a single to first baseman Rich Derechailo in the ninth.

Harvard took charge from the start when Bauer and Farrell hit run-producing singles. Farrell's double off the leftfield fence put men on second and third in the third inning, setting up back-to-back squeeze bunts by Bobby Kelly and Vincent Martelli.

The Crimson put in the coffin nail in the sixth against Rick Ramey, who came on in the fifth after ECU starter Mickey Britt gave up a lead-off single.

Designated hitter Paul Chicarelle drilled a grounder that got past shortstop Kelly Robinette, scoring Steve Tilles from second. Rick Pearce followed with an RBI single to left and Bauer launched a sacrifice fly to deep center to score Chicarello.

Things could have been worse, except for a great play by Butch Davis in the seventh. The senior leftfielder reached over the eight-foot tall leftfield fence to rob Martelli of a sure two-run homer.

"I thought East Carolina was a good hitting team, and they are," Harvard coach Alex Nahigian said. "I told Rob (Alevizos) just to throw the ball and he did the rest. They hit the ball well but we played good defense."

Alevizos nipped the corners while mixing fast balls with a good slider. The crown jewel of his day's work was the 0-for-4 performance at the plate by Davis, who came into the game with a .383 average. He went 0-for-3 against Alevizos.

Alevizos has completed only one of five starts this season but he was pleased with his solid seven innings before bowing out in the eighth.

"I usually don't last that long because I throw a lot of fastballs and a slider, but I felt strong today," he said. "I lost concentration in the fourth and got mad at myself, but coach talked to me and I came back strong. I just lost it in the eighth."

Robert Kavalsky, the #9 hitter for St. John's, belted a two-run, two-out homer in the bottom of the ninth to carry the Redmen to a 6-4 win over Maine in the second game Friday. East Carolina was to have faced Maine Saturday at 11 a.m. St. John's was to have faced Harvard at 2 p.m. in the winner's bracket.

ground ball by shortstop Kelley Robinette. Harvard shortstop Brad Bauer flipped to Pearce covering third for the out at the NCAA Northeast Regional Playoffs at the University of Maine at Orono. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Netters Defeat Soviets

BERLIN (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd scored a 6-0, 6-2 victory over Olga Zaitzeva, and Tracy Austin beat Olga Morozova 6-0, 6-1 to lead defending champion United States to a 3-0 triumph over the Soviet Union in the Federation Cup women's team world championship quarterfinals.

Players, Owners Happy There's Not A Strike

By ALEX SACHARE
 AP Sports Writer

"I'm a happy man," said Kansas City Royals outfielder Clint Hurdle, when told there would be no baseball strike. "I get to play baseball and my wife doesn't have to go to work."

Players and management personnel alike were unanimous in expressing their relief that last-minute talks had averted a threatened walkout Friday by major league baseball players.

"It wouldn't have been a summer without baseball," said Pittsburgh Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

"I'm tickled to death we're playing," said Philadelphia Phillies General Manager Paul Owens. "Both sides had to realize how important it was to the game. I never felt either side could afford to go out."

"I was very relieved," said second baseman Frank White of the Kansas City Royals. "I'm just glad no one has to lose a lot of money. A lot of us would have been hurt by a long strike."

"A strike would have been horrible for the game," said Buzze Bavasi, executive vice president of the California Angels. "The last time we had a strike (in 1972), it took us four years to get everybody interested in baseball again. Now, as soon as we win one with a homer with two out in the ninth, the fans will forget all the business about the strike."

His son, Peter Bavasi, president of the Toronto Blue Jays, also was relieved a strike was averted.

"I had a lot of things on my mind and compensation was not very high on my priority list," said Bavasi, referring to the issue of compensation for free agents, the key to the negotiations. "I was more concerned about a lot of hot dogs and what would happen to them."

The Blue Jays receive 26.2 percent of the gross take from concession sales, and they expected to draw around 100,000 fans for three weekend games against the New York Yankees. That translates to a gate of about $430,000 — and quite a few hot dogs.

Many players had decided to go home if a strike had been called and thus had to change their plans.

Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro had told his wife he would hold a cookout Friday night in the event of a strike. When news of the settlement was announced, Nancy Niekro said, "I'll have to cook tonight, but I don't mind."

Outfielder Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees was going to attend Sunday's Indianapolis 500 auto race.

"It's something I've never done, and I'm involved with cars," said Jackson. "A lot of guys had never had a summer vacation, but I think we were all rationalizing."

"We were building up in our minds how wonderful it would be to have time off during the season as a way to cushion the blow of a strike. Down deep, I think none of the players really wanted a strike. I know I didn't."

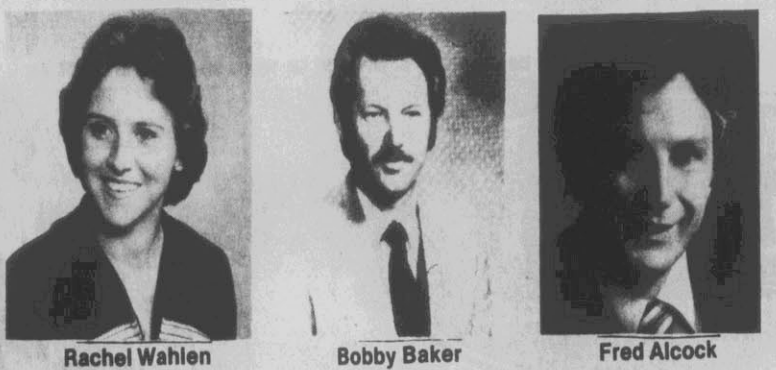

Elliott Maddox, the New York Mets' third baseman, was wary about the four-year agreement, which left unresolved the issue of compensation for free agents. A four-member committee was set up to study the matter, but a strike could be called next spring if it is not resolved.

"We've just postponed it a year," said Maddox. "What makes anybody think the owners will change their minds about demanding compensation for free agents? And what makes anybody think the players will accept it? It's the same issue."

"There'll be a strike next year," he predicted.

2nd In 2-Mile

RALEIGH — Rose's Harry Williams finished second in the two-mile and two other Rampant athletes came in fifth Friday in the State Track Meet. Williams' ran the two-mile in 9:26.69, a school record, in helping the Rampants score 12 points at the meet. Rose's Kenny Smith wound up fifth in the mile with a school-record time of 4:16.5 while Ted King ended up fifth in the pole vault with a leap of 13'0". Three jumpers were tied for second at 13'0", all of whom had one less miss than King.

single. Stocks scored on Bill Godley's sacrifice fly. Stalls went to third on the play. With two gone and Stalls still at third and Mike Walsh on second with a walk and a stolen base, an error on a ground ball allowed Stalls to score and AM led, 4-1. Pepsi scored single runs in the fifth and seventh but could not get closer. Neither team had anyone with more than one hit.

Kiwanis 8
 Coca-Cola's Mike Sasser struck out ten and rode a seven-run first inning to hold off Kiwanis, 11-8, win Saturday afternoon in a North State League baseball game. Coca-Cola's Mark Coburn and Sasser walked to lead off the first. James Matthews doubled home Coburn before three consecutive walks — to Chris Hilliard, Timmy Woods and Eddie White — brought home Sasser. Timmy Hines then singled home Hilliard and Wood after

Matthews had scored on a wild pitch. White subsequently scored on a fielder's choice before Hines came home on a wild pitch, giving Coca-Cola a 7-1 first-inning lead. Coca-Cola had only three hits but was helped by 11 walks. Robert Evans had two hits for the losers. Coca-Cola added three more runs in the second to go up 10-1 before Kiwanis scrambled back. Kiwanis scored once in the fourth and then added three runs in both the fifth and sixth to close the gap to the final score of 11-8. Coca-Cola's final run came in the fifth.

Pearson Wins 300; Crouch Badly Hurt

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — David Pearson maintained a comfortable 32-second edge to win a 300-mile Nascar race Saturday at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Pearson's victory was marred by a five-car wreck on lap

34, when John Prior of Centralia, Ill., slammed into the side of a Chevrolet driven by Junior Crouch of Taylorsville.

Crouch's left arm was mangled badly and he was knocked unconscious in the accident. He was taken to Charlotte Memorial Hospital where his arm was amputated. Doctors said the 36-year-old driver showed no evidence of extensive brain damage although he suffered massive head injuries.

Hospital officials said Crouch remains in "very guarded condition." He also is suffering from chest injuries.

Prior was taken to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital for chest X-rays and he was being held overnight for observation.

The race was slowed to a crawl for about 15 minutes as a result of the accident.

Pearson took command of the race when Winston Cup point leader Dale Earnhardt lost a wheel after leading 65 of the first 98 laps of the race. Once in command, Pearson led the final 98 laps of the 200-lap event, finishing 32.4 seconds ahead of Bobby Allison.

Pearson averaged 119.773 mph in his Pontiac to take the $13,130 prize.

Sunday, Pearson will attempt to place first in the World 600 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. That event is the longest stock car race on the Nascar circuit.

Cale Yarborough will be sitting on the pole for Sunday's race.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Here are the top 10 finishers in Saturday's 300-mile Nascar race, with driver, type of car and laps completed at the 1.5-mile Charlotte Motor Speedway.

1. David Pearson, Pontiac, 200 laps, 1:13.130.
2. Bobby Allison, Chevrolet, 200 laps, 58.495.
3. Dave Marics, Pontiac, 198.
4. Joe Huttman, Pontiac, 197.
5. Richard Childress, Chevrolet, 195.
6. David Rogers, Pontiac, 195.
7. Jack Ingram, Ford, 195.
8. Boscoe Lowe, Pontiac, 193.
9. Joe Thurman, Pontiac, 193.
10. Phil Parsons, Pontiac, 193.

million in the last two years, primarily because of the lack of a lucrative television contract.

The sale, to be finalized Aug. 10, will cost the South its only NHL franchise.

Skalbania made a "substantial deposit" to bind the sales contract, Cousins said Friday. He declined to divulge terms of the agreement, although there was speculation the price approached $16 million.

Cousins said he retained for one year an option to buy back an interest in the club, and the sale was not subject to approval by the NHL.

Cousins said Skalbania was the first party to approach him about purchasing the Flames, even though other groups had publicly expressed interest in the team before Skalbania's name surfaced.

Skalbania "assures me he has no plans for any changes" in personnel, Cousins said. Thus, it appears that Coach Al McNeil and General Manager Cliff Fletcher, both of whom are under contract, will go to Calgary with the team.

Atlanta Flames Sold To Canadian

ATLANTA (AP) — It was a sad day for Atlanta Flames hockey players when owner Tom Cousins announced he was selling the team to a Canadian businessman.

"We knew it was coming, but it's a shock, I guess, when it hits," said right wing Willi Plett. "My wife and I are sitting here trying to figure what to do. Leaving Atlanta is the tough part; we really love the city."

Cousins announced Friday that the National Hockey League team would be sold to Nelson Skalbania, a Vancouver businessman who plans to move the franchise to Calgary, Alberta.

Cousins said he had "mixed emotions" about the sale. "It's very sad — almost like selling a bunch of your best friends," he said. "The sad part is our whole family had such high regard for the players. I'm sorry from that standpoint."

Right wing Bob MacMillan said he and many other players also are unhappy about the move.

"I have sure become attached to Atlanta," he said. "I've never stayed in a city more than three years, but I certainly became attached here."

Cousins, a real estate developer, had placed the team on the market in April after reporting losses of $1.7 million and $2.8

School Bus, Cab Engines Set To Compete In Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Roger Rager will be at the wheel of a car whose engine came out of an old school bus and Jerry Karl insists his engine could have been plucked from an average New York taxi cab.

Rager and Karl are two of four drivers who will send bargain basement machines against million-dollar juggernauts in Sunday's 64th Indianapolis 500-mile race.

"We've got a shot — this is the trend of the future because of revised USAC (U. S. Automobile Club) regulations," said Karl, a 39-year-old airplane plant operator from Harrisburg, Va.

"We're getting closer to those sophisticated machines." Since last year, the eight-cylinder turbo-charged engines have been reduced from 50 to 48 inches of manifold pressure — known as boost — in their turbo-chargers, lowering the overall horsepower and speed. This affects the bulk of the 33-car field, consisting of sleek, sophisticated Offenhausers and the English-designed Cosworths.

It's estimated that the latest car designs, with their exotic improvements, are worth $1 million on their inflated rubber.

Rager, Karl, Mike Mosley and Hurley Haywood will be driving cars with stock-block Chevrolet engines, not far removed from the engines that power the American family car.

The first eight drivers in the field will be steering Cosworth-powered cars. Johnny Parsons, the ninth qualifier, leads those driving Offenhausers — not long ago the most successful power plant in championship racing.

The sport's top drivers — A.J. Foyt, Johnny Rutherford, Rick Mears, Bobby and Al Unser, among others — complained loudly against the new speed restrictions, arguing that it would diminish interest in the race and become a safety hazard.

They pointed to the disappointing crowds during qualifying tests as proof of their argument.

"That's ridiculous," said Karl. "The economy and the fuel crisis was the cause of that. We will still have 300,000 or 400,000 for the race Sunday. You could put go-karts out there with 33 of the world's best drivers and still fill the house."

Rager, with his old V-8 Chevy engine, had one of the best qualifying times, 186.374 miles per hour. Johnny Rutherford won the pole position with 192.256 mph. That was 1.167 slower than last year.

Tom Sneva set the track record of 202.156 in 1978 when there was an unlimited boost. The thrust has varied from unlimited to 90, 80 and 50 inches prior to this year's stricter regulation.

The track officials said the change was made because the speeds of the championship machines were endangering safety. There hasn't been a racing death here since 1973 or a serious accident since 1975.

Rager, a 31-year-old rookie from Mound, Minn., estimates that his bid for the rich Indy purse will cost him around $60,000 overall. The other three Chevy drivers give equivalent figures.

"The new rules on boost have given the race more equivalency," says Karl. "Now we little guys are getting a chance. I think we relate more than they do to the general public."

Former Champs

Defending Indy 500 champs Rick Mears, 29, listens to the advice of teammate Mario Andretti, 40, during practice at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Andretti won the race in 1969. Andretti will start in the middle of the front row, and Mears will start on the outside of the second row in the 64 Indianapolis 500-mile race May 25. (AP Laserphoto)

Top Steward Talks, Indy Drivers Listen

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Tom Binford, the chief steward for the Indianapolis 500, gave the 33 starters for Sunday's race their final instructions, paying particular attention to the bumper crop of rookies.

The race, which is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. EST, will include a cadre of veterans — including seven former champions — and 10 rookies. That's the largest group of first-year drivers at the Speedway since 11 started the 1965 race.

The Facts, Figures

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Facts and figures of the Indianapolis 500-mile race Sunday, May 25, at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Event—The 64th annual International Sweepstakes.

Distance—500 miles; 200 laps around the 2.5-mile, asphalt-on-brick Indianapolis Motor Speedway track.

Sanctioning body—The U. S. Auto Club; also open to NASCAR, SCCA, Grand Prix and other drivers through International FIA listing; does not count in world standings because of engines up to 4.2 liters against Formula 1 limit of 3 liters.

Start—11 a.m. EST from a flying start, following warmup, parade and pace laps.

The pace car, a 1980 Pontiac Turbo Trans Am, powered by a 4.9-liter, 301 cubic-inch turbo-charged V-8 engine, will be driven by 1950 Indy winner Johnnie Parsons. Finish is unofficial until posted at 9 a.m. Monday.

Pole position—Johnny Rutherford, Fort Worth, Texas, who qualified his Chaparral-Cosworth at 192.256 mph.

Defending champion—Rick Mears, Bakersfield, Calif., who averaged 158.899 mph for the full 500 miles. The victory was Mears' first in just his second Indy 500 race.

Other former winners in field—A.J. Foyt, 1964-66-67-77; Rutherford, 1974-76; Bobby Unser, 1968-75; Gordon Johncock, 1973; Al Unser, 1970-71-78; Mario Andretti, 1969.

Race record—162.962 mph by Mark Donohue in 1972.

Purse—Depends on attendance and necessary awards; 1979 payoff was a record $1,271,954, of which Rick Mears received $270,401.

Crowd—Speedway never discloses attendance, but admits to 237,500 reserved seats in permanent stands and room for 100,000 more in the infield.

Television—Delayed telecast by ABC beginning at 8 p.m. Indianapolis-area blacked out.

Radio—Speedway network to 1,200 stations in the United States and Canada, plus worldwide coverage on American Forces Radio and special Spanish language broadcast.

Mortality—There have been 61 deaths at the Speedway, including pre-500 races of 1909-10. Last death was in 1973, when driver Art Pollard was killed in practice and driver Swede Savage and crewman Armando Teran were fatally injured in the race. The total includes 33 other drivers.

The trophy—Sterling silver with base relief bust of each winner; 80 pounds, four feet tall, insured for $52,000.

Vilas Downs Teltscher To Reach Italian Finals

ROME (AP)—Flashing his acrobatic form, top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina wore down Eliot Teltscher of the United States in a 6-4, 6-1 victory Saturday and reached the final of the Italian Open men's tennis championship for the second straight year.

Vilas was paired against Yannick Noah of France, 20, who crushed Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-0 to gain his first major final.

"I have nothing to lose, I'll go for my shots," said the tall Cameroon-born Noah after eliminating Smid, who played with a heavily taped right leg, in 45 minutes on the clay at the Foro Italico.

The Vilas-Teltscher match was tighter than the score indicated, but the Argentine's experience and strength were the determining factors.

"He was very tough, he always runs after every ball," said the 27-year-old Vilas, ranked No. 1 in the world. "But you can't think that a player his age can make the important points that I can."

Vilas has rolled through the tournament, in which he was the losing finalist in 1979 in an epic five-set battle against Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States. The Argentine has won all his matches in two sets.

The 21-year-old Teltscher was extended to three sets in a quarterfinal match against the favored Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia before winning 7-5, 4-6, 6-4. Little more than two hours later he went out on the court against Vilas.

After torrential rains washed out play Friday, the organizers scheduled the quarters and semis on the same day, with the finals Sunday, to avoid a conflict with the Paris Open next week.

With a hot Roman sun finally breaking through the clouds, 8,000 spectators crowded the center court of the Foro Italico for the Vilas-Teltscher match and were treated to the best tennis of the tournament.

Vilas broke serve right away in the first game but the American refused to go down without a fight. Booming his first serve and returning line drives, he kept the left-handed Vilas back at the baseline and scored points with deft drop shots.

In the tight fourth game, Teltscher battled to break service and even up the set. Twice he angled ground strokes out of Vilas' reach and grabbed the advantage, but the Argentine refused to yield and raced to the end line to save a lob and made it deuce. He then held his service and went on to win the opening set.

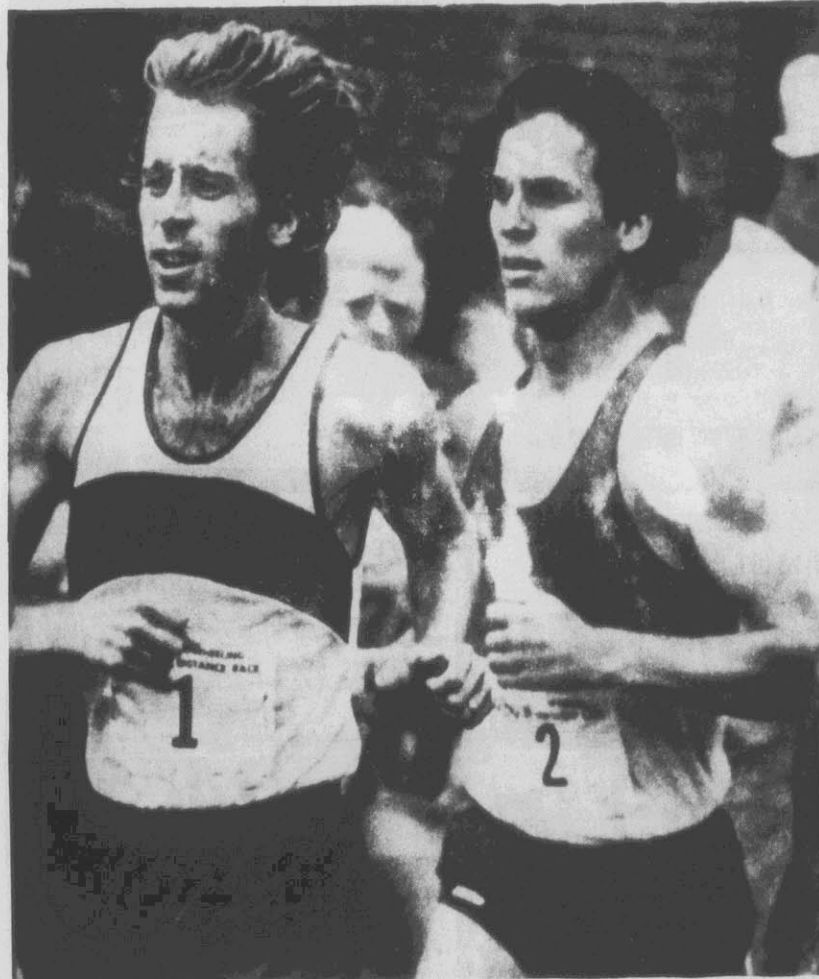

In the second set, Teltscher's fatigue began to show. Vilas broke him in the first, third and seventh games for an easy 1-1 victory.

"Against Noah you have to play very well," said Vilas, who beat him in Paris in 1978 but added he would have preferred to face Smid in the Rome final. "He always goes to the net but if I play my shots I'm all right," said Vilas.

Noah looked especially strong in his match against Smid, serving up three aces in the second set, but barely had a workout.

In addition to his taped right leg, Smid appeared to develop a blister on his thumb during the match. Noah said the Czech battled him at the start but then eased up. "After the first few games, he let it go," said Noah.

Total prize money in the tournament is $200,000.

Lindsay's Star Rises Past Rodgers In Race

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—Colo. Bill Rodgers, who might have been on the road to Moscow Saturday, instead ran a demanding foot race through the hills of this Ohio River community.

At the same time the U.S. Olympic marathon trials were being held in Buffalo, N.Y., Rodgers was finishing second to rising young star Herb Lindsey in the 20-kilometer Wheeling Distance Race.

"I wonder who won in Buffalo," Rodgers pondered moments after the race here.

Four-time winner of the Boston Marathon, Rodgers made his decision to bypass the Olympic trials after it became clear the United States would not send a team to Moscow this summer.

"For me, it is all past," said Rodgers. "When the Olympic Committee voted not to go, that was the day of impact for me. That was it."

Rodgers remained firm in his opposition to the boycott called by President Carter to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

"I don't support it. I could never support a politically motivated influence at the Olympics, no matter which country."

However, he said he ran without bitterness here and enjoyed the race like the rest of the 1,625 official entries.

"You don't remain really bitter when you lose the chance to do a thing like that," he said. "You just start aiming for the next race."

Rodgers regarded this as his first serious race since he won the Boston Marathon in April. But he wasn't up to the test presented by Lindsay, a 25-year-old former Michigan State who now trains in Boulder, course records. Lindsay won in 1 hour, 27 seconds. Rodgers' time was 1:00:51, also breaking the course record of 1:00:55 he set here in 1977.

"The last hill was my worst last hill ever," Rodgers said with a smile. "But I'm relatively happy with my race. I had a feeling Herb would wait until that last hill to make his move."

Lindsay, considered one of the world's best at 10 kilometers, plans to take part in the Olympic trials over that distance later this summer.

Summer League To Be Dog Fight

The North Carolina Collegiate Summer Baseball League opens its tenth season the first weekend in June, and from all indications the race for the title will resemble a dog fight.

No single team figures to dominate the six-club pennant race this year — not even North Carolina, which won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season championship, nor East Carolina, which assembled one of the best records in the nation this spring.

The Tar Heels will be sending a number of key players elsewhere for summer ball while the Pirates lose seven seniors through graduation.

The 30-game season opens Friday, June 6, with UNC-Wilmington traveling to ECU and Campbell University at Louisburg Junior College. Saturday, Louisburg moves on to UNC-W, ECU takes on N.C. Wesleyan in Rocky Mount and the Tar Heels go to Buie's Creek to face Campbell.

East Carolina, though losing its powerful crew of seniors who dominated opponents all spring, "can definitely be competitive," Coach Hal Baird says. Gary Overton, who will coach the Pirates this summer, will have two excellent pitchers — Bill Wilder, whose ten victories and 1.79 ERA made him one of the nation's top hurlers, and freshman Mike Williams, who turned in a 5-1 mark this spring.

The infield is set with .300-hitting Todd Hendley at third, Kelly Robinette at shortstop and Mike Sorrell at second. Freshman John Hallow (.300) will add power to the outfield.

Though UNC-Chapel Hill will have 13 junior varsity players on their 23-man roster, nobody is counting the Tar Heels out of the Summer League title chase. Mark Ochal will head up an experienced pitching staff, with Steve Streeter, back as the number-one relief pitcher.

The infield, which will feature three freshman but, will include powerful Joe Reto at first, Mitch McClenney at shortstop and Eddie Waynick, injured all spring, at third.

The outfield will include Shawn Dean, a .338 hitter, and veteran J.D. Henderson in left.

Campbell, which finished the spring in strong shape after a slow start, may be the team to beat, according to several league coaches. The Fighting Camels hit .288 as team this spring and most of their regulars will be on hand for the summer, including home-run hitting shortstop Bobby Spicer and outfielder Tom Montgomery, who hit .333.

"If our pitching comes through we'll be in the top three," Campbell coach Jim Britt says.

Louisburg, fresh from a big spring and a bid to the Eastern Division of the National Junior College Tournament, will be a strong contender, as always. Coach Russ Frazier's Hurricanes are counting on two freshman pitchers, Tony Moody and Hans Herzog, to come through along with control specialist Jack Marchant.

Much may depend on whether outfielder John Milholland, whose .439 average led the team this spring, signs a pro contract or decides to stay around. Matt Schibner returns bringing with

Lee 'Slows' Cincinnati

By The Associated Press

There was no baseball strike, but Bill Lee and Mike Schmidt opted for slowdowns of their own.

"I used slow curves, slow sliders, slow fastballs, slow everything," said Montreal's Lee, who kept Cincinnati's batters off-balance with his off-speed stuff. "I guess they got tired. On a good day, I could out-run my fastball."

Lee scattered 11 hits in going the distance as the Expos took a 6-0 lead after two at-bats and coasted to a 7-4 victory over the Reds Friday night.

"Six runs is awfully difficult to make up when you're playing catch-up baseball," said Cincinnati Manager John McNamara. "Our starting pitchers just aren't keeping us in the game."

The Expos collected four first-inning walks off Mike LaCoss, 3-4, and Ellis Valentine and Warren Cromartie knocked in five runs with doubles. Valentine's two-run double came off LaCoss, who lasted just one-third of an inning, and Cromartie's three-run shot came on reliever Mario Soto's first pitch.

Soto only gave up one more hit and struck out seven his 62-3-inning relief stint.

Lee, 2-3, gave up three runs in the first three innings before settling down to retire 13 straight hitters.

Schmidt slowed down his swing, but the Houston Astros still were hit hard by the impact. His 11th homer of the season tied him with teammate Greg Luzinski for the major league lead and propelled the Philadelphia Phillies to a 3-0 victory behind the four-hit pitching of Steve Carlton.

Schmidt provided Carlton with all the offense the left-hander needed when he followed two-out singles by Pete Rose and Bake McBride in the third with a line drive homer off Nolan Ryan that ironically struck the Astros' logo on the left field wall backdrop.

"I was just getting relaxed for the 3-1 pitch, aiming to make contact," said Schmidt. "I'd have swung and missed if I was trying to hit it out."

The pitching duel between Ryan, 2-4, and Carlton never materialized as the Houston fireballer couldn't control his curveball and left after 32-3 innings.

Meanwhile, Carlton held the Astros hitless until Terry Puhl legged out an infield hit in the fourth. The left-hander posted his 24th career shutout, third best among active National Leaguers.

Carlton, 8-2, became the major league leader in season victories. He struck out eight to also take over the NL strikeout lead this season.

Padres 2, Cards 0

The last-minute, late-hour contract settlement early Friday caused a physical and emotional strain for San Diego and St. Louis.

"Neither club looked like it was going for the pennant," said San Diego Manager Jerry Coleman after the Padres scored twice in the ninth to win. Willie Montanez doubled home Dave Winfield in the ninth and scored one out later on a balk by losing pitcher Jim Kaat, 0-1.

"None of our club got much sleep," Coleman said. "I was up all night. I think all our players were playing cards all night long. They were having a final get-together before they went their separate ways."

The Padres, who waited out player-owner negotiations while in Pittsburgh, arrived at their hotel in St. Louis Friday afternoon. "If we'd gotten no hits, it wouldn't have surprised me," said Coleman. "We were out on our feet. Thank goodness our pitching kept us in the game."

Left-hander Bob Shirley, 4-1, stopped a St. Louis threat in the eighth and hurled a perfect ninth to gain the victory in relief. Starter Rick Wise gave up four hits in the first seven innings.

Mets 2, Braves 1

Ray Burris, with last-out relief help from Neil Allen, fired a seven-hitter for his first victory since April 21 as New York beat Atlanta.

Burris, 3-3, struck out eight and walked two, but he lost eight pounds during the warm night.

"I was trying to hang on," said Burris. "It was really humid out there tonight. I work very hard on the mound, putting everything I have on the ball."

Allen recorded his eighth save.

Steve Henderson singled home Frank Taveras in the fourth for the first New York run. Taveras, who had opened the inning with a double for his sixth consecutive hit, has hit safely in 10 straight games with 21 hits in 42 at-bats.

Cubs 2, Dodgers 0

Bill Buckner's sacrifice fly and Tim Blackwell's RBI single accounted for the two runs and Dennis Lamp provided the four-hit pitching in Chicago's victory over Los Angeles, snapping the Dodgers' six-game winning streak.

"I slept well and took it easy," said Lamp, 3-4. "Something had to happen. I figured I was going to pitch sooner or later, and I made up my mind to be aggressive."

Don Sutton was tagged with his first loss in five decisions.

Pirates 5, Giants 4

Pittsburgh and San Francisco worked overtime on the first day of the contract settlement. Tim Lincecum's sacrifice fly in the 13th inning scored Steve Nicosia, ending the Giants five-game winning streak.

On Thursday, Foli stayed up most of the night waiting for the results of the negotiations. He spent most of Friday calling teammates to tell them the strike had been averted.

Royal Academy Of Art Features Art Collected By Soap King

London Landmarks 7th May 1980

LONDON LANDMARKS — Five noted landmarks of London are shown on new stamps issued May 7 by the British Post Office. They are: Buckingham Palace, 10½p; the Albert Memorial, 12p; Royal Opera House, raised glass with a packet of soap and attach the slogan, "Happy is the bride that Sunlight Soap shines upon." Henry Tate of London's Tate Gallery bought the painting first.

But that sort of idea built Lever Bros. into a world-spanning company within two decades. (It merged with a Dutch company in 1930 to become Unilever, and that giant conglomerate's 50th birthday is behind the Royal Academy show.)

Lever himself was elected to Parliament, knighted, then created Baron and Viscount Leverhulme. He grew rich beyond most men's dreams.

The collecting bug outgrew his commercial idea of using art for ads. Like other Victorian tycoons, Lever bought art as if it were going out of style, often snapping up entire collections. He bought so much it threatened to burst the walls of his 13 stately homes.

His enthusiasms are reflected in the current show — British art of his day, including some outstanding Pre-Raphaelites, 18th century painters like Constable and Gainsborough, plus fine furniture, Chinese ceramics and one of the world's most comprehensive Wedgwood collections.

He gave much of it to the public and donated an art gallery to display it — the gallery is being renovated now, freeing many of its best items for the London show.

Lord Leverhulme was not content merely to provide the funds to build a collection," says Sir David Orr, Unilever chairman, introducing the show.

He was full of traits rather looked down upon today — greedy for material possessions and for show, a genius at the hard sell, a paternal despot toward his workers, a relentless social climber. But in the Victorian era when Lever thrived these were admired qualities.

Lever was the driving force behind Lever Bros., makers of Lux and Lifebuoy and many other products. He pioneered the idea of wrapping soap in convenient packages rather than cutting a hunk off a grocery store block, and he promoted his soap with every Madison Avenue trick.

"By trade Lever was a grocer," the current show's catalogue says, "and by profession a marketing man."

Lever, who joined his father's wholesale grocery business in 1867 at 16, didn't get into soap until he was 35. At that point, the catalogue says, he "began serious collecting for a very specific purpose — advertising."

He bought new works by leading artists of his day and, without bothering to ask permission, used them to sell soap.

He once tried to buy a sentimental Victorian painting of a best man toasting a bride and groom. Lever wanted to replace the up-

3 Relate Surviving St. Helens Blast

By CARRICK LEAVITT
MOSSYROCK, Wash. (UPI) — Al Brooks cries sometimes when he talks about how he survived the searing death cloud spewed by Mt. St. Helens.

Brooks, 47, along with Mr. and Mrs. Dale Davis, were in the direct blast line when the mountain blew up a week ago today, shooting out a pyroclastic fire cloud thought to have killed more than 80 people.

"I know one thing," says Brooks, a forklift driver, "I won't have to be worrying about dying because I know now what it's like."

Brooks and the Davis couple were high up on the Green River taking pictures when the volcano erupted at 8:32 a.m. May 18. They survived a half-hour holocaust that rocked and thundered around the pickup cab in which they huddled, then spent 10 hours walking out 25 miles while the hot black cloud crashed and boomed around them.

The noise "was like taking and cupping your hand and slapping both ears," said Davis, 56.

It was so dark he held a flashlight inches from the ground to see where he was stepping and the three walked in tandem holding hands.

"We was on the south side of the Green River when I got out to take a picture of a deer," Davis said. "I looked up and saw a big puff come out of the cone. I said 'the ol' girl is gonna flow a little bit. Maybe we can get a look.'"

"Hon, we'd better make a run for it," said his wife, Leslie.

Davis estimates they were 14 miles away as the crow flies from the volcano's blowout area.

"Them other people that survived, they was mostly over on the Tootle side. I think we were the closest in the direct line of the blast."

The three hunched down in the pickup with the windows rolled up while a huge black cloud consuming everything in its path thundered toward them.

"It was just a black ball. It was taking everything in the way, but the Lord was with us."

The cloud hit the truck, rocking it violently and bursting a wing window into the cab. Pyroclastic ash spewed through the window, severely burning Brooks on the arms and Mrs. Davis on her back and legs.

All three prayed out loud as the cloud "bang-roared" around the truck, hurling rocks against its side, melting the grill and nearly burying the vehicle in hot ash.

"I prayed and I prayed hard," said Mrs. Davis. "Dale prayed out loud."

After a half hour, the shock waves eased but the area was totally black. The three then decided to walk.

Holding hands, with Davis leading the way, they inched through a surreal world of total destruction. Every tree was blown down. All living things had disappeared and a stream was coursing with bubbling mud.

"I stepped off the creek bank and went into hot mud clear to my waist," said Davis. "It like to take my hide off."

They walked in total darkness until 10:30 a.m.

"Pretty soon we lost the road," said Davis. "They thought we were going in circles but I told them 'I got that hot wind on one shoulder and if I turn I know we will make a circle.'"

Eventually they made out outlines of shapes and knew they were approaching safety, but at one point, Brooks had given up.

"Al said, 'Leave me, go on' but I said, 'No, we are going to stay together,'" Davis said.

"I was ready to give up — just sit down and get it over with," Brooks said.

For 25 miles they walked with hot ash inside their clothing and shoes "curling your toes."

"You had to dig it out of your mouth with your finger. You couldn't spit it," said Davis.

"You know that false teeth mold. It was like having your mouth completely full of that."

Goodbye To 3.2 Beer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia will bury a little bit of its history this holiday weekend — but the passing will be mourned by few.

On Monday, the state joins most of the rest of the nation in the sale of "real" beer.

No more the familiar imprint on the top of each can reminding state beer drinkers their suds are a little less potent.

Instead, as of 7 a.m. Monday, those lucky enough to find stocked coolers will be able to buy "high-test" beer — 4.2 percent alcohol by weight, rather than the 3.2 percent now available.

It's unclear just how much of the real stuff will be available right away.

State Beer Commissioner John Hoff said he expects some shortages and diminished selection until supplies are built up, and distributors can't legally deliver the new brew until Monday.

Hoff also said the change will probably be accompanied by price hikes.

"Some will increase now and some in June," he said. "The average increase we've been seeing is between 6 and 7 percent."

BEFORE AND AFTER — In the top photograph, Mount St. Helens is shown as it used to be, a quiet, pretty snow-capped peak in the state of Washington, with Spirit Lake nearby. Then on May 18, the mountain became an inferno of activity, in an explosion of hydrogen bomb force filling the sky with ash, smoke and debris. To date, 17 persons have been found dead, and search efforts continue to locate more than 75 persons still missing in the area. (AP Laserphotos)

Ten Pitt Community College students from the Nursing Assistant Program were awarded pins and certificates Thursday night.

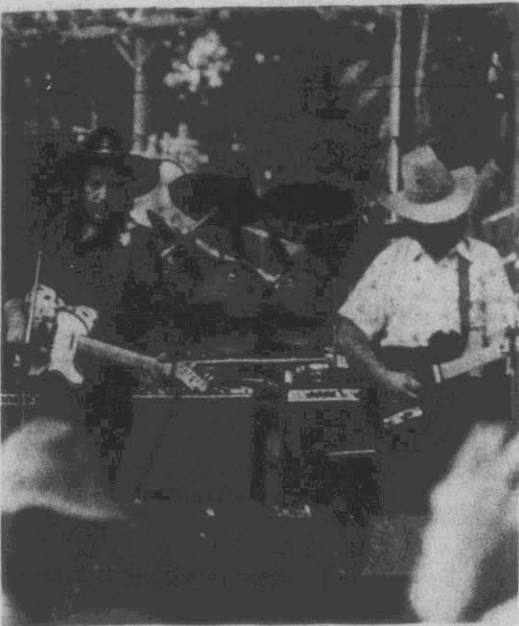

Chairperson of Nursing Education at PCC, Judith W. Kuykendall, was the principal speaker.

Angela Buck, PCC's instructor for Nursing Assistant Training, presented the pins and certificates. She also announced the Highest Achievement and Most Empathy Award was earned by Rose Wilkes of Winterville.

Ten At PCC Pinned

Student Christy O'Neal gave the welcome and introduced the speaker. The Benediction was given by Student Pauline Wilkens.

Those receiving pins and certificates were: Vera Jones, Elaine Moore, and Pauline Wilkens of Greenville; Lula Dixon and Brigitte Taylor of Farmville; Delinda Newton of Fountain; Lorraine Dillahunt of Gritton; Rose Wilkes of Winterville; Christy O'Neal of Lowland; and Lisa Patrick of New Bern.

'WAYLON JENNINGS AND THE BOYS...' — "Peggy Sue, I love you, pretty, pretty, pretty, Peggy Sue..." sang Waylon Jennings Saturday afternoon at Hugo Outdoor Theatre near Gritton. Music by Danny Joe Reagan, The Bill Lyster Band, Super Grit Cowboy Band, The Waylors, The Original Crikets and O' Waylon and the Waylors added a bit of excitement to a rather dreary afternoon. Many came prepared with tents and umbrellas for the heavy rains that were predicted this weekend for the eastern part of that state while many preferred the coolness of a summer rain and the feeling of mud between the toes. Approximately 3,000 country music lovers old and young from South Carolina to Virginia flocked to the festival with their coolers full of food and drink if only to catch a glimpse of the legendary Waylon Jennings. DEBT PROBLEMS?

In times of easy credit and high unemployment, many consumers are finding it difficult to manage family budgets as well as being in debt with no hope of remedying the problem. If this sounds like you, then you should consider filing a wage-earned plan under Chapter XIII or Bankruptcy Act, which will enable you to pay off your creditors without declaring bankruptcy or borrowing money. To see if you qualify for this plan contact:

James E. Brown, Attorney
P.O. Box 1356, Greenville
758-7255

Coffee Talk

Daniel P. Roth, Executive Director of the N.C. Department of Travel and Tourism will be the guest speaker at a Coffee Talk Thursday at 7:32 a.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Roth will discuss "What the Travel Dollar Means to Greenville/Pitt County." According to the North Carolina Department of Travel and Tourism many North Carolinians are planning in-state vacations this year and the tourist revenues are expected to increase for the state.

According to Maxine Brown, Chairman of the Coffee Hour Task Force of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, the Coffee Talk will be co-sponsored by the Travel Committee coffee hour task force and the following: Camelot Inn, Holiday Inn & Watertree Terrace Restaurant, and Ramada Inn & The Arbor Restaurant.

Brown said that chamber members, citizens, and business leaders in the field of travel and tourism are invited to attend the Coffee Talk. The Coffee Talk is a free service provided by sponsoring businesses. To make reservations call the Chamber office at 752-4101.

Couple Marries In High Noon Ceremony

CLINTON—Ann Graham Barwick of Clinton and David Jordan Whichard III of Greenville exchanged marriage vows Saturday in a high noon ceremony here.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. John W. S. Davis at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Brooks Barwick Jr. Mr. and Mrs. David Jordan Whichard II of Greenville are parents of the bridegroom.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. George Wayland Wilson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white silk-embroidered organza and re-embroidered alencon lace over peau de soie. The all-lace bodice, adorned with bridal pearls, was fashioned with a colonial neckline, raised waistline and long fitted sleeves finished with laced cuffs. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace enhanced the A-line skirt and cathedral length train bordered with matching lace.

Her cathedral length mantilla of imported silk illusion, bordered with re-embroidered alencon lace, fell from a Juliet cap. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Elizabeth Cozart Barwick of Alexandria, Va., sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Nancy Holt Barwick of Clinton, sister of the bride, Virginia Suther Whichard of Greenville, and Kathryn Whichard Poston of Cary, sisters of the bridegroom.

Honorary attendants were Nancy Britton Smith of Whiteville, Mary Carter Warren of New York, N. Y., Laura Jane Lewis of Raleigh, and Susan Barwick MacGill of Clinton, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Groomsman included William Clem Poston of Cary, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Hugh Brooks Barwick III and Benjamin Cozart Barwick of Clinton, brothers of the bride.

Honorary groomsman included Tommy Joe Payne of Greenville, Stuart Mays Frantz of New York, N. Y., and Van William Martin of East Lansing, Mich.

The bridal attendants were dressed in formal gowns of blue styled with accoridian pleated skirts with matching capes. They carried nosegays of white daisies.

After a wedding trip to British Virgin Islands, the couple will be living in Greenville, S. C.

The bride graduated from St. Mary's College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The bridegroom also graduated from UNC-CH and will be employed by Multimedia Inc., Greenville, S. C.

A garden reception followed the ceremony. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. James Fulton MacGill, aunt and uncle of the bride.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of spring daisies and baby's breath. The yard was decorated with hanging baskets of begonias and potted spring flowers lined the entrance to the yard.

Wedding cake was served by Mrs. B. F. Cozart, great aunt of the bride. Punch was poured by Mrs. E. B. Graham and Mrs. Carl Altmaier, great aunts of the bride. Music was presented by Carolina Clubmen, directed by Jimmy Aycock.

Friends of the bride entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a dance Friday evening at the Coharie Country Club, Clinton.

The parents of the bridegroom and David Julian Whichard, grandfather of the bridegroom, entertained the wedding party and relatives of the bridal couple Friday evening at The Country Squire, Kenansville, at a rehearsal dinner. A cocktail party was given before the dinner by aunts and uncles of the bridal couple in the garden of the Country Squire.

Couple Weds On Friday

Lindsay Kittrell Gurganus and Garry Jay Ingalls were united in marriage in a private ceremony Friday at 7 p.m. in the First Christian Church. Dr. Will Wallace, pastor of the bride, officiated. Douglas Newell, organist, presented wedding music.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Earl Kittrell and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Ingalls of Chocowinity.

Following the ceremony, a reception honoring the bridal couple was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Ingalls is employed by the Pitt County School System and is a teacher in the Farmville Middle School, Farmville. The bridegroom is an employee of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., Washington.

The couple will live in Greenville.

Sumrell-Stocks Vows Said

VANCEBORO—Dora Forrest Stocks and Stephen Gary Sumrell were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in a ceremony performed in the Epworth Methodist Church here. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Steve Hickie, pastor.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Kelly L. Forrest of Ayden, and Mrs. Argen D. Sumrell of Greenville, and the late Mr. Howard E. Sumrell.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Emily Barwick and Tina Edwards, who sang "Longer" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her honor attendant was Vickie T. Mills of Greenville. Bridesmaids included Donna Riddick and Kathy H. Paramore, both of Greenville.

Flower girls were Lesley Crawford of Greenville, niece of the bride, and Stacey Sumrell of Whiteboro, niece of the bridegroom.

Anthony Reger of Greenville, was best man and ushers included Ron Leary of Washington, and Steve Riddick of Greenville. The ring bearer was Chad T. Mills of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal gown of white lustrous designed with a high neckline encircled with schiffli embroidered lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke outlined in double ruffled lace to form a bib effect. Double ruffled cuffs were featured on the full bishop sleeves. The sunburst pleated skirt and attached chapel length train were bordered at the hemline with matching lace. She wore an imported braid garden hat overlaid in matching lace complementing her gown. She carried a bouquet of pink, yellow, blue and white daisies and mums with baby's breath and fern.

of powder blue flocked dotted organza over blue taffeta. They wore powder blue matching garden hats.

The flower girls were dressed in pink street length dresses.

The mothers and bride's grandmother wore corsages of white carnations. The mothers wore blue street length dresses.

The church altar was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and white pom poms.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Sharon Bland.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Dianne F. Crawford, sister of the bride.

The couple will live in Winterville after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C.

The bride works at Empire Brushes, Inc., and is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School. The bridegroom works at Empire Brushes, Inc., and is a graduate of J.

Engagement Announced

Willis-Clark Vows Solemnized Saturday

Emmaus Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony Saturday at 2 p.m. of Janet Lee Clark and Timothy R. Willis. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Earl Farrell.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Clark of Pittsboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Willis of Beaufort.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Joan Lewellen, organist, and Mrs. Sally Hearn, vocalist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silesta over white peau de soie with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk floral Venise lace and bridal pearls. The lace extended down to the empire waistline and inserts of the lace enhanced the long fitted sleeves. A sunburst of knife pleats accented the center front of the skirt. She wore a walking length veil of illusion bordered in silk Venise lace. The bride carried white stephanotis and camellias.

Christie Clark of Dunn, niece of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Ericka Sandbank of Raleigh, and Mrs. Holly Stewart of Sanford. They were dressed in formal gowns of turquoise woven qiana designed with cap sleeves and a scoop neckline. The skirt flared from a gathered waistline. They each carried a nosegay of spring flowers in mixed colors.

Jim Davis of Beaufort was best man and ushers included Bob White of Virginia Beach, Va., and Ross Gottstein of Norfolk, Va.

A reception followed the ceremony and was held on the church lawn. The couple will live in Santa Clara, Calif., after a wedding trip of a two-week drive across country.

The bride graduated from ECU and was a staff nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from Old Dominion University and is employed as senior reliability engineer at Barnes-Hind Pharmaceutical Co.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I had a grandfather who, when he climbed behind the wheel of a car, (a) refused to make a left turn and (b) never asked directions anywhere.

After drivers who drank and pranksters who stole detour signs, he was the No. 1 menace to our highways.

Before I exchanged wedding vows with my husband-to-be, I jokingly said, "Don't look upon marriage as a risk, but as one adventurous left turn." We had a good laugh over that.

Somehow, we never got around to exploring how he felt about asking directions until after we were married. We had circled a cloverleaf expressway in Cleveland for 16 hours one day when I said, "Dear, why don't you ask directions from someone?"

He looked at me like I had just suggested he address a bund rally and said, "I am not lost!"

"What do you mean you're not lost? To drive behind you is to 'See America First.' Why are you too proud to admit you haven't the foggiest notion where you are?"

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Barbara Dean Whichard, bride-elect of Glenn Maurice Ormond, was honored at a miscellaneous bridal shower Saturday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Whichard. Hostesses included Miss Julia Ann Whichard, sister of the honoree, and Miss Wyna C. Payton, directress.

A color scheme of pink and green was used. The refreshment table was covered with an ivory lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink miniature carnations, mint green cushion poms, white daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

The mothers of the couple and the bride-elect were given corsages of pink miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Whichard was also honored at a miscellaneous shower given by the Guilford College registrar's office and at a surprise bridal shower given by friends.

Engagement Announced

Surprise Reception Set

A surprise 40th wedding anniversary honoring the Rev. and Mrs. James G. Lupton is being planned for Sunday, June 1, from 2-5 p.m.

The reception will be held in the Salem United Methodist Church community building, Simpson.

No invitations are being sent. Church members and friends are invited to attend.

That was to be the first of many trips where we wandered aimlessly about the countryside, too lost to last and too proud to ask. True, we have stumbled upon things that ordinary people who know where they are going never get a chance to see. There's the hidden city of Shangri-La, the Lost Dutchman mine, secret missile stockpiles, and one Sunday we even discovered the illusive Mrs. Tucker's Inn and had a "whipped cream experience."

We've explored every dead-end road in the United States (some of them twice), blazed trails where only covered wagons have been, and discovered a maternity home for blood-sucking mosquitos.

My husband is not unique. There is something in the male genes that breeds stubbornness and will not permit him to form the words, "Could you please tell me how to get to...?" They regard it as a genetic weakness. He says it causes shortness of breath.

I know this. My husband will go down in history with the other patron saints of not-lost-but-never-really-found Americans: Christopher Columbus, Dr. Livingston, Wrong-Way Corrigan, General...

Miss Wade, Dr. Jones Speak Vows Saturday

Brenda Diane Wade of Raleigh and James Grady Jones, M.D. of Greenville, were married Saturday at 3 p.m. at Oakmont Baptist Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gordon Conklin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. York of Pinetops, and the late Mr. Norman L. Wade. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton B. Jones of Houston, Tex., and the late Mrs. Nora Jones of Pembroke.

A program of wedding music was provided by Mrs. Sharon Erwin, organist, Dr. Frank Sellers of Concord, and Sigsbee Duck of Greenville, soloists.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, wore a formal gown of bridal satin and Venise lace. The gown featured a Queen Anne neckline scalloped with Venise lace, a natural waistline and traditional sleeves of inlaid sheer and Venise lace. The semi-fitted skirt had a border of Venise lace at the hemline extending into a chapel train. The bride wore a hat with two large silk roses seeded with pearls covered by netting and swept into a bow in the back with a double layered, chapel length illusion. She chose a flowing cascade bouquet featuring yellow sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations with ornamental foliage and baby's breath.

Mrs. Betty Roncase of Phoenixville, Pa., sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a sleeveless formal gown of yellow knit with an empire waistline, accordin pleats and a waist length sheer shawl bordered in yellow satin. She carried a colonial bouquet of mixed spring flowers.

Bridesmaids included Rhonda York of LaGrange, niece of the bride, Alexis Munn and Mrs. Betty Mann of Raleigh, and Mrs. T. Katherine Pratt, Pace Swindell, and Sandra White, all of Greenville. They wore kelly green formal gowns fashioned like that of the honor attendant. They carried a single long-stemmed yellow rose with baby's breath and a yellow satin ribbon and wore yellow sweetheart roses with baby's breath in their hair.

Jenifer Turner and Sara Turner of Greenville were flower girls. The twins wore yellow dotted swiss dresses with short floral puffed sleeves. The front of their dresses were gathered with tucked floral yokes. They carried white lace baskets filled with flowers.

Marvin K. Blount Jr. served as best man. Ushers included Jim Jones Jr. and Robert Jones, sons of the bridegroom, Dr. Robert Brame, Dr. Edwin Monroe and Dr. Jim Mathis, all of Greenville, and Dr. George Wolf of Greensboro.

Bill Chalk of Greenville was ring bearer.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at Lake Ellsworth. A large European-style centerpiece of spring flowers was placed in the center of the club room with spring bouquets throughout. The serving table was covered with white linen cloths and graced by overlapping ice hearts. Guests were greeted by Ms. Gloria Simmons, sister of the bridegroom. Wedding cake was served by Betty Roncase, sister of the bride. Janice Schroeder, sister of the bridegroom, poured punch and good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mercer.

Doctors Edwin W. Monroe, Robert Brame, James L. Mathis, William Laupus and their wives honored the couple at a buffet dinner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Brame Thursday night.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given Friday night in the fellowship hall of Oakmont Baptist Church. Mr. and Mrs. Sal Aragona of Jacksonville hosted the dinner. The linen draped tables were graced by spring bouquets.

A wedding breakfast was held in Pinetops for the bride's out-of-state relatives and bridesmaids Saturday morning at the home of the bride's mother.

Following a wedding trip to Naussau, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bridegroom, a graduate of Mars Hill College, Wake Forest University, and Bowman Gray School of Medicine, is professor and chairman of the Department of Family Medicine at East Carolina University. The bride attended East Carolina University and plans to return in the fall to seek a degree in nursing.

Miss Hardison Weds Saturday

STOKES—Oak Grove Church of Christ here was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Marilyn Olivian Hardison of Raleigh, and Michael Egan Fasola of Shreveport, La. The 1 p.m. ceremony was performed by Donald Hardison, brother of the bride, and Father Harry Webb.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Theibert Hardison of Stokes. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Samuel V. Fasola of Savannah, Ga., and the late Mr. Fasola.

A program of piano music was presented by Mrs. Gail Crisp.

The bride wore a long gown of white silk shantung and carried a bouquet of gardenias and lily of the valley.

The bride's sister, Kathie Hardison of Raleigh, was honor attendant. Daniel F. Fields of Atlanta, Ga., was best man.

Ushers included Fred Kilcline of Moorestown, N. J., and Gene Roy of Savannah, Ga., cousin of the bridegroom.

The couple received wedding guests at a reception in the church hall following the ceremony.

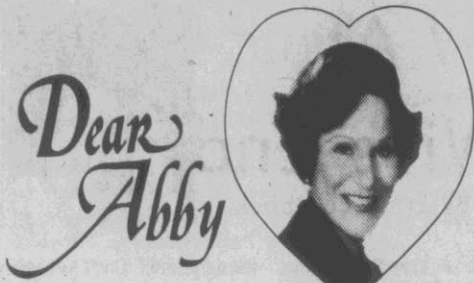

After a coastal wedding trip, the couple will live in Shreveport, La.

The bride is a graduate of Bauder Fashion College and is owner of Marilyn Hardison Bookkeeping Service. The bridegroom attended the University of Georgia and is district sales manager at G. Heileman Brewing Co.

Out-of-town guests and members of the wedding party were honored at a pig pickin' given by Mr. and Mrs. Ron Crisp and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Bullock at the Bullock farm Friday evening.

Dear Abby

Have Husband Answer Wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We are three secretaries in a relatively small office. We have a wonderful boss. The problem is his overbearing wife. She is a real pain, and we don't know how to handle the situation.

She calls several times a day and asks us questions concerning what is happening at the office, such as, "How did my husband's meeting go with Mr. So and So?" right down to things that are privileged information. "Did he have a lunch date with anyone?" "What are his travel plans?" We think if he wanted her to know these things, he would tell her, right? (We wonder what they talk to each other about at night.) She complains to us that her husband never tells her anything. How can he when she's already dug all the day's happenings out of us?

Abby, please print this, and tell all those meddling, nosy bosses' wives to enjoy their garden clubs, painting classes, etc., and whatever else they do all day since they don't have to work, and please leave us secretaries alone so we can get our work done.

Any suggestions on how to solve our problem?
FRUSTRATED IN FORT WORTH

DEAR FRUSTRATED: The solution is simple. When the boss's wife asks for information you do not wish to disclose, tell her that you are very busy, but you'll have her husband call her. Then tell your boss to call his wife and forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old attractive single woman who has been going with a 47-year-old divorced man for two years. (I'll call him Tom.)

About six months ago I was at Tom's apartment when his son dropped in. The son, Billy, is 22. Tom and I were both pretty drunk. I had to get home and was in no shape to drive and neither was Tom, so Billy drove me home.

Well, I guess you could say Billy took advantage of me. It really makes me sick and ashamed every time I think of it, but there's nothing I can do about it now.

Tom would be very hurt if he knew what happened. Since then, Billy has hit me up for money, and I have given it to him because I don't want to get on the wrong side of him for fear he'll tell his father about us.

I don't like being blackmailed, and that is what is happening to me. I need your advice and will do whatever you say.

GUILTY REDHEAD

DEAR GUILTY: Tell Billy that the blackmail game is over, and if he wants to tell his father what happened to go ahead and tell him. The chances are that he won't. But if he does, admit it, and get it over with.

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How To Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

The 1980 Rose High competitive honors banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 29, at Western Sizzlin'.

The purpose of the banquet is to honor students who have participated and/or placed in school-related contests such as the various math tests, typing contests and vocational competitions. The Quiz Bowl team, who became the state champions in April, will also be honored.

The staff of "Rampant Lines," the school newspaper, was announced last week. Teresa Little will be editor-in-chief, with Dorothy Wang serving as associate editor.

Features editor is Sarah Hester with Betta Pignani as managing editor. Page editors include Kathrynne Yorke, Jeff Jones, Kim O'Connor, Wendy Walsh, Susan Lalik, Mary Kate Cunningham, Lisa Priestly and Billie Wilkins. Katherine White will serve as typist. Robert

Bright and Michael Davis will be photographers. File and correspondence secretary will be Susan Blake while picture editor is Wanda Daughtry. Circulation manager is Kathy Justice, ad manager, Susan Wynne, Andrew Harris, Susan Blake and Kathy Justice will be reporters.

The 1980 yearbooks "VISA" were distributed this past week. Editors of this year's edition were Ken Lang, Billie Ward and Michael Johnson.

Ten students from Rose took part in the state mathematics contest in Raleigh Thursday. To qualify for the contest, participants had to score in a top percentage in various regional math contests held this year. Students representing the school were Kevin Clark, Eric Downes, Susan Vick, Fred Parham, Sarah Hester, Sarah Cooley, Frank Hollander, Mark Grossnickle, Bert Singleton and Michael Tucker. Parham received the highest score on the test of all the participants.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes recently held election of officers: Lou Taft was elected president; Bert Singleton, vice president; and Allan Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The Health Careers Club has also held elections for next year's officers. Dorothy Wang will serve as president assisted by Barbara Logsdon, vice president. Shaela Ray was elected secretary with Mary Vick as treasurer.

Couple Weds On Saturday

Constance Inez Barr of Greenville and George Atlas Corbett of Raleigh were united in marriage Saturday at 2 p.m. at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church here.

Dr. James Bailey performed the double ring ceremony. Mickey Terry, organist, and Mrs. Judy Bowen, soloist, provided wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. Lenwood Barr of Chadbourne and the late Mrs. Inez Ingalls of Washington. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Randolph Corbett and the late Emily C. Muir of Ayden.

The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Emmett Russell. Mrs. Lynda O'Neal of Washington, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Marlene Dixon of Kinston, sister of the bridegroom, Kathleen O'Neal of Ayden, niece of the bride, and Virginia Lloyd of Ayden.

Tracy Dixon of Kinston, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Gerald Dixon of Kinston, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Carl McLawhorn and Charles Williamson, both of Raleigh. Randy Dixon of Kinston, nephew of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer.

The bride wore a formal length gown of ivory organza over ivory peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with scalloped re-embroidered lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of Brussels lace embroidered in a floral design, outlined in the chantilly lace that extended to and encircled the waistline. The full sheer bishop sleeves featured panels of lace and cuffs of the matching lace. Similar panels of lace extended down the modified A-line skirt and around the attached chapel length train.

She wore a fingertip length veil of illusion edged in embroidered Brussels lace held in place by a Camelot caplet overlaid in the matching lace beaded with pearls. The bride's bouquet contained white miniature carnations, orchids, and blue baby's breath with tips of greenery tied with ivory satin.

The honor attendant wore a long blue dress of polyester. She carried a bouquet of white peonies and blue sweet peas tied with a blue and white bow.

The bridesmaids wore long dresses made of blue polyester with small white floral print. The ruffled pointed collar came down to the waist in a point and provided short capped sleeves. They carried bouquets of white peonies and blue sweet peas tied with a blue and white bow.

The flower girl wore a long ivory dress with an empire waist, puffed sleeves, and a lace collar. She carried a white wicker basket filled with blue and white summer flowers tied with a blue and white bow.

Following a wedding trip to Atlantic City, N.J., the couple plans to live in Raleigh.

The bride graduated from East Carolina and presently teaches kindergarten at Chicod Elementary School. The bridegroom graduated from North Carolina State University and is employed as an engineer at Telex, Terminal Communications, Raleigh.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAY 25, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day for you to study and decide what you want your relationships in the future to be with close ties and friends. Strive for more harmony with family members.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact associates and discuss policy matters for the future. Get a good rest tonight and renew your energies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to repay social favors to loyal friends. Engage in civic affairs and gain added prestige. Express happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use the early hours perfecting a creative talent you have. Relatives and friends can bring happiness later in the day.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can easily make the improvements at home that are needed. Use tact and diplomacy in pursuing personal aims.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Obtain the data that gives you a spiritual lift and help you plan the future better. Show special devotion to loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do whatever will improve your environment and make it more comfortable and valuable. Take time for social relaxation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go after personal aims that can bring you more happiness. Show that you have good common sense in communicating with others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study the philosophy that can improve the quality of your life. Take it easy tonight and restore your energies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look to a good and understanding friend who is in a position to do you a favor you need. Improve your appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look over your environment early in the day and make changes that are needed. Be more understanding of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine day to become inspired and make progress in career and personal affairs. Show others that you are generous and kind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Find a better way of accomplishing various things today. Use your intuition and good judgment and get excellent results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to do well in joint ventures with others, since there is a basic desire to be cooperative, so be sure to give the best education you can afford and a most satisfying life will follow. A happy person in this chart.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MAY 26, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You may find it difficult to reach an agreement with associates early in the day but later, after studying the whys and wherefores, you come to a complete mutual understanding.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure your business affairs are well organized in the morning. Come to a better accord with your mate in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Work does not go as fast as you would like it early in the day, but later all speeds up with the aid of associates. Be patient.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use tact with your mate and avoid arguments which could prove costly. Engage in new outlet that could prove lucrative.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to please those at home and establish more harmony there. Be cautious in any new work you handle.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have to be extra careful in business dealings now if you wish to gain your objective. Maintain a cheerful manner today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure not to commit yourself beyond your financial ability in the morning, then go about business in a positive way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans to add appreciably to your income in the days ahead. Avoid a con artist who has an eye on your assets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It may be difficult to solve a problem in the morning, but later you can do so easily. Take time for meditation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't let others waste your valuable time today. Stick to facts and figures and get the results you want.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle a difficult matter wisely and gain the respect of others. Safeguard your fine reputation at all times today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be clever in dealing with those around and get more cooperation. Study new aims but don't commit yourself now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) It's important you keep promises and in a most precise way. Soothe the ruffled feathers of your mate in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can carry through with a plan intelligently upon reaching maturity, so be sure to give a fine education and there can be much success here. One who will like to investigate any matter thoroughly.

A Class For Job-Seekers

ECU News Bureau

Two of East Carolina University's summer evening classes will be of particular interest to students and job seekers: "How to Survive in College, or Increasing Your Learning Efficiency" and "The Interview."

"How to Survive," scheduled for Thursdays, June 17 — July 1, 7-9 p.m., is recommended for the college-bound or those already in college, who wish to develop good learning habits, including managing time efficiently, rapid grasp of text material and successful performance on examinations.

Dr. George Weigand, director of the ECU Counseling Center, will instruct the class.

"The Interview," a one-session class set for Thursday, June 12, 7-10 p.m., is for the first-time job hunter or the person who plans to relocate.

One Senses Americans Find Washington Irrelevant

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) —
"Buy American?" snorts a perfectly good American. "Why should I?"

"Half this country keeps the other half going," says a bitter housewife in line at the check-out counter. Ahead of her is a man buying more meat than she can afford. He pays with food stamps.

"We can't do anything about those crazy Iranians holding our people," writes a rural editorialist, "but we can do something about taxes. We can control them."

"I'm relatively affluent but will I be able to send my kids to college?" asks the executive director of what used to be a pillar of American optimism, the local Chamber of Commerce.

"The election?" ponders an old mountaineer. "I ain't heard it mentioned except on the TV."

Something is wrong, Jimmy, Teddy, Ronnie, George and Johnny, and you ain't reaching them. If this part of the country is any barometer, America is turned off by the election of 1980. Most people here seem to think that the identity of the next president won't make much difference. He's up there and they're down here, two different worlds that no longer meet.

They don't use the word but they mean the word that used to be heard only from hell-raising college kids. Except in negative ways, they find government irrelevant. More precisely, these Middle Americans find government relevant to their pain, not their pleasure.

Church membership is up. Even the Baptists and the Episcopalians agree on that. Nobody is sure why. "I'm not at all certain it means a greater spirituality," says the Rev. Frederick H. Dennis of the All Souls Episcopal Church. "Maybe we're getting them by default as they lose faith in government and other institutions."

Malaise, a diagnosis projected by President Carter and other unlicensed sociologists, is not the word for the people of western North Carolina. They are not bent low with immobilizing gloom and doom.

The opening of the trout season, the explosion of the azaleas and dogwoods in spring, when "even the telephone poles look like they're in bloom," are still festivals of joy. Bluegrass music still packs 'em into the dance halls and beer distributors are not hurting. People are still nourished in their souls by the surrounding grandeur, by the misty mysteries of the Blue Ridge and the Smokies, the mountains that Thomas Wolfe, the best known native son, found "lordly, with a plan."

But inflation gnaws away at their earthly plans and pocketbooks, rising taxes corrode their civility as citizens, and the spectacle of Americans held hostage abroad does profound violence, yet again, to their national pride and sense of reason in the world. Perhaps it's true that the barometer of a nation's dismay may be read by the intensity of its celebrations. Here, as apparently everywhere, Americans cheered loudly, with an exquisite sense of pride and community, over the U.S. Olympic hockey team because recent history has provided so little to cheer about.

If there is a malaise, these people feel, it is not here but in Washington and Detroit, in Houston and other places where, in their perception, leaders are screwing up.

Here, where Thomas Wolfe lived, it is now painful to recall a scene from "Look Homeward Angel." On the porch of his mother's boarding house, with its grand view of the mountains (now obliterated by a 12-story hotel), among the wood and cane rockers and the slatted gliders hanging from the ceiling, his father is holding forth on the glories of America to a mesmerized group of boarders (who paid $1 for a room and "three square meals" a day):

"And what did we do, gentlemen? We sank their navy in an action that lasted only 20 minutes (and) stormed at by shot and shell, Teddy and his Rough Riders took the hill at Santiago."

The was a spring day near the turn of the century, when the curve of American power in the world was beginning its upward arch. Now, on another spring day 80 years later, at the other end of the curve bent low in national humiliation and frustration, this:

"All day long I've been walking around feeling hopeless and foolish and I can't shake it," said a man in downtown Asheville the day after the rescue of the hostages failed in Iran.

In the first place, they should've done something much sooner," said Cindi Wyatt, who runs a restaurant in Waynesville, west of Asheville. "In the second place, they shouldn't have screwed it up."

"They" are in government and "they" are in industry, in the litany of grievances people here voice against their leaders.

"We don't expect miracles, we don't expect our leaders to take all of the up-hill out of life," said Dr. Cecil Sherman, pastor of the First Baptist Church, the biggest around. "I'd accept any economic policy that was fair. The irritating thing is the unevenness of the bite."

"It gripes me that the oil industry is getting rich on my pain. It's not only the sheiks in the Mideast but the sheiks in Houston. I don't expect favors from Saudi Arabia but I also don't expect Exxon to rob me. "And if Detroit had been responsive to our needs, I would now be driving a small American car instead of a Datsun. The leaders in the auto industry could not see what every plumber and bus driver and postman in Asheville saw a long time ago, that we need cars with more gas mileage. So why should I 'buy American'?"

A town of 57,000, richly endowed by nature and partially bleached by man, Asheville rests somewhat restlessly on a high plateau at the confluence of the French Broad and Swannanoa rivers. Its chief industries are tourism, textiles, lumber, paper and furniture. Most of the surrounding farms, which produce tobacco, apples, tomatoes and other vegetables, are small and increasingly more farmers have to moonlight in factories to survive inflation.

The mountains are still here, although one ridge, a happy necking ground in Thomas Wolfe's youth known as Beauatcher, now bears a shocking gash for an expressway. There has been some pollution of air and stream but much less than elsewhere.

The summers are still cool, mostly in the 70s, making this stretch of North Carolina an attractive part of the Sunbelt, enticing rich Floridians to build summer homes in the mountains while dismayed natives watch the price of land climb even higher. To the west, the Great Smoky Mountain National Park is still irresistible, so much so that tourists have made it the first national park to require traffic lights. Beauty here, like beauty everywhere these days, brings mixed blessings. So does change. Merchants followed home buyers in the classic rush to the suburbs, leaving much of downtown Asheville empty or crumbling and the city desperate for tax revenue. An argument rages over whether to spend $35 million to build a big downtown shopping mall in the hope of luring shoppers back.

Historically, North Carolina was the first of the 13 colonies to vote for independence, the next to the last to ratify the Constitution and, in the Civil War, one of four border states which wavered over secession but finally joined the Confederacy. Most of the state's large plantations were east of Asheville, which accounts for the fact that the western part of the state has fewer blacks and more Republicans.

In party registration, Democrats still outnumber Republicans 3-to-1, a ratio which is more important in state politics than national. Western North Carolina, largely conservative, went for Eisenhower and Nixon. Carter carried the area with ease in 1976, mostly because he seemed like a nice Southern boy, but this year is expected to have a closer battle if the opposition is Ronald Reagan. Neither man is setting this electorate afire. People don't see much difference between them. People question Carter's competence and Reagan's age and "impulsiveness."

"I'll have to flip a coin," said Wade Wilson of Dillsboro, whose own meteoric career in politics may say more about the mood of voters these days than either Carter or Reagan. Wilson returned home one night from a Rotary meeting when his wife said:

"Guess what?"
"What?"
"You've just been elected mayor."

"No way. I wasn't running."
"You won on a write-in vote."
Wilson swept greater Dillsboro, population 194, because the incumbent had the temerity to talk about raising taxes. He serves now with an enthusiasm that is explained by the fact that the job pays nothing and the official duties include being rousted out of bed at night to unplug a sewer or fix a water line.

The reluctant mayor works for an oil company and travels every week through seven counties of western North Carolina, where he finds people bugged by inflation, apprehensive about the economy and reluctant, in business and their private lives, to spend money on anything more than they absolutely need.

"Nothing, nobody is turning people on these days," he reports. "Everything is turning them off."

UNUSUAL STERLING PIECES NOW WORTH MORE!

A NEW WAY TO PAY!

It has become apparent to us that lovely, unusual sterling pieces are worth more than broken common pieces. We have adopted a new pricing policy which takes into consideration the type, condition, variety, brand and pattern of the piece as well as its weight. We have several buyers and collectors who are especially interested in highly decorative, ornamental sterling pieces in good condition and we will pay more for such beautiful, unusual pieces than we do for scrap silver.

Did you know that many cigarette cases, picture frames, and tie clasp are marked Sterling and are valuable?

Of course, many other things are Sterling too. Identification bracelets, baby's teething rings, pill boxes, money clips, lipstick holders, etc. If they're marked Sterling, we buy them.

Do you have an old fraternity or sorority pin, a service pin or an employment pin you don't wear anymore? Many of these are marked 10 Kt. Gold. Look to see if its marked 10K on the back. If it is, Coin & Ring Man will pay you cash for it.

Police Give Public Tear Gas Course

By GAYLE FISHER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Given a choice, bar owner Frank Mah says he'd rather squirt than shoot. Squirt tear gas, that is. He's one of several hundred people who have completed a tear gas course with the San Francisco Police Officers' Association, the only class of its kind in the country taught by police officers.

At the end of the two-hour, $35 course, which started in January, a person leaves with a can of tear gas and a seven-year permit to carry the non-lethal self-defense weapon.

"Why do I have tear gas? For self-preservation," Mah said from behind the bar at Zuka's, located near the school. "Mainly, it's for the kook who might come in here."

He paused, then added, "If someone came in and just asked for money, I'd say, thank God, and let him have it."

His wife, who works during the day at Zuka's, also carries tear gas. She takes the bus to work and "can't be too careful," Mah said.

What Mah has realized, and what instructor Jack Ballantine emphasizes to the class, made up of men and women of all ages, is that tear gas is no match for a gun or a knife. "If you spray tear gas at a man with a knife, that may only irritate him," Ballantine said.

"It's not the answer to every situation," said instructor Mike Griffin. "You have to know how to use it and when to use it. It's not the police department of the future."

He and Ballantine explain that tear gas is helpful in situations when a person can spray and then scam, since the physical effects — stinging, burning and blurred vision — last only from one to 20 minutes. The spray also has the psychological benefit of disorienting and unbalancing the assailant.

"If it keeps an old lady from falling down and breaking a hip it's well worth it," Griffin remarked. "This is designed for the honest citizen."

Ballantine guessed that 95 percent of those taking the class will never use the tear gas since they're usually the "cautious type." And although he tells the class that "you'll all be armed by the end of the evening," he doubts whether most of them want to carry a harmful weapon. Carrying the gas "makes them feel they're doing SOMETHING to protect themselves," he says.

California is now the only state that requires its residents to take a course and get a permit before using tear gas. Classes are taught across the state by the California Tear Gas School.

Companies that want to sell tear gas in this state also must be certified by the state Department of Justice and the state Department of Health. Certain rules on the chemicals used and the potency of the gas must be followed, said Earl Bauer of the state Justice Department.

Reasons for taking the course vary. Ballantine estimates that up to 15 percent of the members of most classes have been crime victims at some time in their lives. Three women in one class, he says, had been raped.

Clare Sapiro, a middle-aged San Francisco woman, says she took the class because it makes her feel she's doing something to help herself. "It's just a good thing to be able to protect yourself," she said. "Otherwise people are afraid to walk outside. Everybody's vulnerable in some way."

An attractive 23-year-old woman, who refused to identify herself, says a friend was attacked in her apartment in Oakland recently.

"Seeing what it did to her I didn't want to take any chances," she said.

M16 Rifle Cursed In Vietnam, But Now Reliable

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — In Vietnam, some cursed it. Some discarded it and used its Russian-made counterpart. Some called it the "Mattel Toy." Some blamed American deaths on it. Its weaknesses caused a congressional inquiry.

But the M16 rifle is still the United States' most basic weapon and it is a far cry from the weapon that brought on the wrath of GIs in the early days of Vietnam.

It is only 39 inches long, with plastic and fiberglass parts, a pistol grip, and it fires a .223 caliber bullet — once considered too light and too subject to wind and foliage deflection to be a good combat cartridge.

Sgt. Alvin York, using the Springfield 1903 rifle, demonstrated American marksmanship in World War I when a German force surrendered to him because they thought they were heavily outnumbered. They learned later they had surrendered to one sharpshooter from Tennessee.

The Springfield — often called the "03" — was so noted for accuracy that it became the choice of American snipers in World War II after it had been officially replaced by the Garand, America's first standard-issue automatic infantry rifle. Both the "03" and the Garand fired the .30-06 cartridge.

But the services were looking around for a new weapon in the years after Korea. Ordnance officials at the Pentagon were interested in using an ultra-velocity, light-weight cartridge similar to those used by "varmint hunters" to kill woodchucks and crows at long range.

The chief allure of a light-weight cartridge was the extra amount of ammunition a soldier could carry. Another factor was that a small bullet traveling at high speed was almost as effective as a heavier one at a slower speed.

The noise made by such a small cartridge could not be traced as easily — a lesson learned from the Japanese jungle snipers in World War II who fired a .25 caliber rifle cartridge.

So in the early days of the administration of John F. Kennedy, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara learned of a small, 6.8-pound rifle that theoretically could fire up to 950 rounds per minute, but more practically from 150 to 200 aimed shots per minute.

Peter S. Copeland of the U.S. Army Materiel Readiness Command in Rock Island, Ill., said the weapon, designed by Eugene Stoner, then with ArmaLite Inc. at Costa Mesa, Calif., was a radical new concept in military weaponry.

Conventional wisdom in the pre-M16 days was that a military cartridge should be at least .30 caliber — as with the World War I and II .30-06 cartridge.

McNamara, however, was intrigued by the light weight and rapid rate of fire of the rifle. After tests proved it reliable, McNamara approved an 8,500 order for the Air Force in 1961. The Army took 85,000 later in the same year, followed by 85,000 more in 1963.

But the rifle that performed beautifully in tests, with a muzzle velocity of 3,250 feet per second, a mere 5.5 foot pounds of recoil, and a muzzle energy of 1,270 foot pounds, caused an uproar in the early days of Vietnam combat.

Will Davis, a civilian ordnance worker at Aberdeen, Md., Army Proving Ground and a former company commander in Vietnam, said U.S. troops complained that the slide action would jam closed. That action is operated by draining a tiny bit of gas from the cartridge detonation through a small hole in the barrel, which in turn rotated and unlocked lugs and opened the breech for another round.

"I still believe it's a fantastic weapon," said Davis, "but we had a lot of people who were still in love with the old M1."

He said there were some complaints that the light projectile drifted a good bit on a windy day, but he added this is true to a certain extent of any rifle bullet.

Congress learned that some troops actually began picking up captured Russian AK47 assault rifles to use in combat despite the tendency for the different sound of the weapon to draw fire from friendly forces.

An investigation in the mid-1960s showed that the Army had switched to a new kind of gunpowder that congealed in the breech, sometimes actually cementing it so tight that it could not be opened.

Ordnance experts went to work on the problem, supplying troops with cleaning kits during the interim. The rifle had been considered so foolproof that no cleaning kits were supplied.

Ordnance engineers have made a number of changes in the weapon used in the early days of Vietnam. They say a clip-on tripod and a three-clip arrangement make it as formidable as a light machinegun.

Marines at Parris Island are working with a heavier-barreled M16. The bore has been chromed — making it more resistant to fouling by gunpowder residue — and the "buffer" mechanism which shoves another cartridge into the chamber has been strengthened. The rate of fire on automatic has been reduced, but the weapon is more reliable.

Sgt. Seldon P. Truitt of Dayton, Ohio, a two-tour combat veteran of Vietnam who instructs recruits at Fort Jackson in the use of the new M16, said it is as good or better than any military rifle in the world.

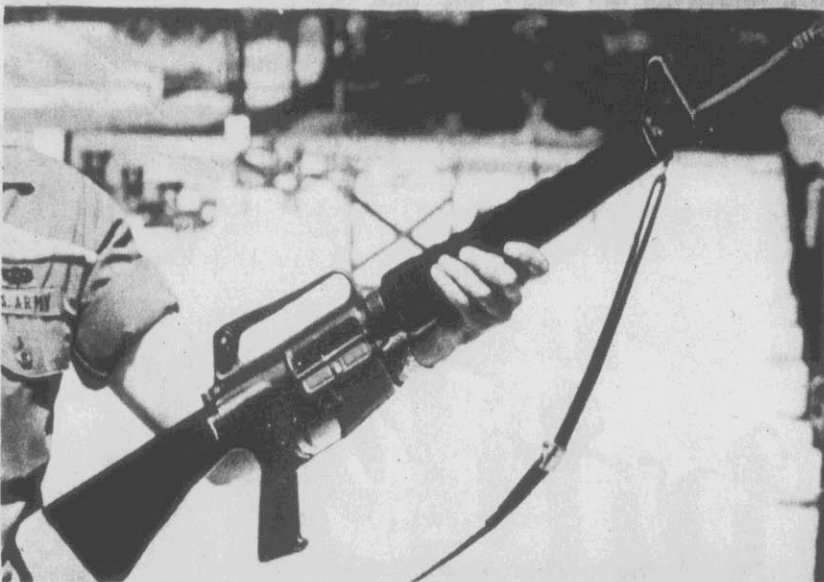

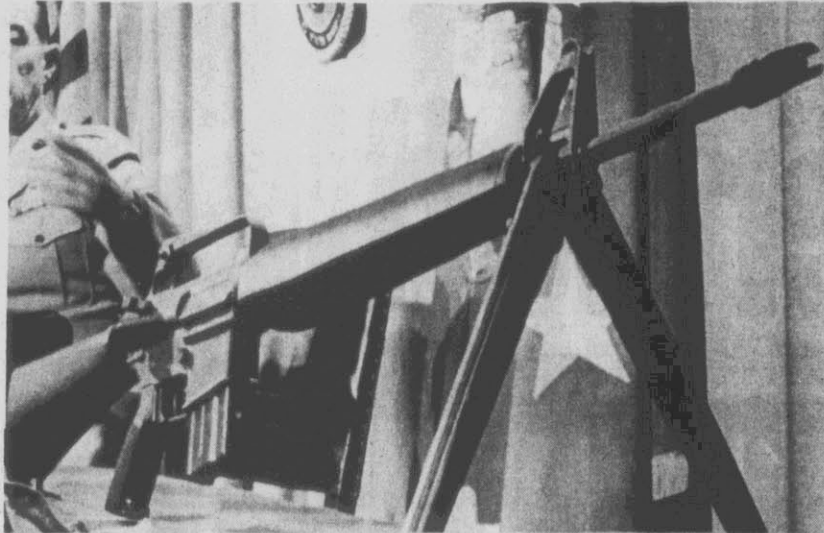

The modified version, he said, rarely malfunctions, is extremely accurate, and enables one soldier to carry hundreds of rounds of the light ammunition into combat.

A reporter was skeptical of the space-age look of the weapon.

"You try it," said Truitt.

The reporter, firing semi-automatic, full-automatic and short bursts, missed man-sized targets only twice out of 50 shots, including targets at 300 meters that looked like specks.

A Mini-Course On The Wallet Card

By DAVID EINHORN, Associated Press Writer, SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There was a time when, if somebody stopped breathing, resuscitation techniques included hanging the victim by his feet from a tree. Or rolling his body over a barrel. Or blowing air into his lungs with a bellows.

Today there's a better way. Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation, pioneered in the '60s, is now being used both by medical professionals and the general public to preserve life for heart attack and accident victims. Mount Zion Hospital here has even developed a wallet-size card with moving images that provides an instant refresher course in the technique.

The card, called the ABCs of CPR, can be tilted at three different angles to review the basics of the technique. It shows how to open the victim's breathing airway by lifting the neck while tilting the head back; how to begin breathing into the mouth; and how to begin circulation by pumping the chest.

On the back is more detailed information, such as the number of times to breathe into the mouth and the rate at which to pump on the chest.

Dr. Herman N. Uhley, associate chief of medicine at Mount Zion and the man behind the cards, points out they are not a substitute for a complete course, but rather are intended to help the 12 million Americans who already know CPR recall how to do it.

"You can't give everyone a videotape or a movie projector, but you certainly can give them this card," he says.

Immediate application of CPR is vital in cases where breathing has stopped, since if respiration is not restarted within four minutes, irreversible brain damage can result.

In the three years since the cards were first produced, some 225,000 have been distributed to groups in both government and the private sector. They have been printed in Spanish, Chinese and Hebrew in addition to English.

Uhley says he got the idea for the card one afternoon in 1975 from a pencil sharpener his son brought home. On the sharpener was an image showing a baseball player who swung his bat when the sharpener was turned.

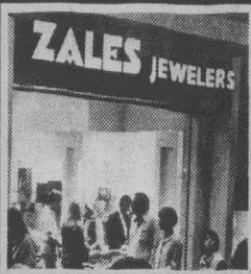

The importance of CPR and therefore of the Mount Zion card, is reflected by statistics. Each year nearly 650,000 Americans die of heart attacks, and some experts say almost half of those might be saved by CPR.

"In my own practice," Uhley said, "I have seen at least two dozen people whose lives have been saved or prolonged with CPR."

Divorce Mediation Plan Eases Strains

By MARY ELLEN HASKETT
United Press International
Sam and Sandra Mayo spent 2½ years and 38,000 to get their divorce. They became increasingly hostile as they fought over child custody and visitation. Their two children suffered in the emotional tug-of-war.

Finally, they asked a divorce mediator to help them. Without going back to the courtroom, they reached an agreement in six sessions at a cost of $21, paid by Los Angeles County, Calif.

"The court battle was horrible, a terribly frustrating and frightening experience," said Mrs. Mayo. "I was so angry I didn't want to talk to my husband, but mediation gave us a calm atmosphere to work out our anger."

"It was a sane atmosphere and the court was insane."

Advocates of divorce mediation contend lawyers try to keep clients angry and hungry for a favorable settlement. The problem is that the anger remains for years afterward, said Midge Stulberg of the American Arbitration Association.

Said Stulberg: "People are realizing you don't have to hate the other person afterward."

"Divorce is one of the vital areas of dispute settlements in society and it's one of the worst handled," agreed association President Robert Coulson.

The American Arbitration Association, court systems around the country and private groups have begun divorce mediation services to allow separating spouses to determine their own divorce settlements through negotiations moderated by professional mediators.

Mediators say fighting over a divorce settlement keeps spouses from doing what they know to be best for themselves and their children. They say the adversary system of hiring separate attorneys fosters anger and bitterness.

Divorce settlement is also cheaper.

Mediation costs a couple about 200 to 700, with another 200 to 300 for an attorney to put the mediated agreement in legal form. But most couples still hire separate lawyers to sort out their conflicting interests at a cost of about 3,000 to 4,000 — more in some cases.

Attorney James Coogler was divorced in July 1974 after going through the traditional legal process and decided "there had to be a better way of parting."

He took courses in family therapy and became one of the first divorce mediators in the country in January 1975. He now directs the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., family mediation unit funded through the Broward County Circuit Court.

"In the adversarial court process, competition between parties is encouraged for a favorable court decision," Coogler said. "Even an out-of-court settlement is done as if it had reached court — it poses the marriage partners in opposition to each other."

"Lawyers and the whole judicial system tend to look for present answers by looking at the past," he said. "The couple has to churn around in past controversies that led them to court and the bad feelings are exacerbated and reinforced."

Mediation works on the theory that the past should not be reviewed. Instead, the couple should look for ways to restructure the family relationship so communication can continue and the children are given what they need from parents, Coogler said.

"It focuses on planning for the future, teaching the couple how to communicate with each other rather than focusing on all the things that tended to break the marriage up," said Coogler. "We ask the parties to give the mediators control over how they talk to each other, what they talk about and insist that they be respectful. Mediators control the process, the couple makes the decisions."

"They know what is best for their family," he said. "Our job is to draw that information out of them in a rational, compassionate way. You want people to cooperate and if you keep them from doing anything else, they've got to."

Coogler said couples still get angry or tearful in mediation, but "we stop them from engaging with each other and deal with it to get them functional again so they can go on with the process."

Hiring a mediator to help reach a divorce agreement is not a panacea. Some people are going to remain angry no matter which process they use.

"But it is effective in diminishing the anger and strife," said Jay Folberg, executive director of the Association of Family Conciliation Courts. "With mediation, there are fewer post-divorce legal filings."

The American Arbitration Association offers divorce mediation services in Boston, Chicago, Detroit, New York, and Phoenix, Ariz. Several private groups in the Washington, D.C., area, Atlanta, Hartford, Conn., Winston-Salem, N.C., and other cities also provide mediators.

California recently enacted a law requiring all court systems to provide for divorce mediation. Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco already do.

Other government subsidized programs are offered through the court systems of Minneapolis, Tucson, Ariz., Madison, Wis., Oregon City, Ore., the state of Connecticut. The mediation services offered through the courts usually are paid by using part of the marriage license fees.

In Oregon City, couples getting their marriage licenses are given brochures explaining how divorce mediation works.

"At one time legislators were worried about no-fault divorce being too easy (so reconciliation services were offered)," said Folberg, a University of Oregon law professor. "But there has been a shift now to recognizing that one of the best services that can be performed is to help people get a divorce easier — to close the books gently and recognize that parenting still continues."

"Mediation is less divisive than divorce and gives a greater likelihood that parenting will continue," he said. "It also is less costly to the divorcing people and to courts with backed up dockets."

While those offering mediation services praise the negotiation process as a low-cost, less stressful alternative to divorce, the most praise comes from people who have tried it.

Pat Ford, of McLean, Va., separated from her husband, Judson, in 1976 after seven years of marriage. Their minister recommended they visit mediator Mark Lohman.

"It's far preferable to the legal process because it minimizes the differences," she said. "You both go to a mediator. If you go to lawyers, you can't see the same lawyer. If you were mildly annoyed, by the time you leave you are damn mad."

Mrs. Ford said Lohman's services in mediating the divorce settlement cost 150 and she and her husband paid a lawyer another 550 to file the legal form of the agreement in court.

"That paperwork cost me 550," she said. "Mark, for a more creative effort, cost a lot less. I would hope for the sake of couples who separate that some day there could be someone like Mark available for everyone. I'd like it to go a step further and get rid of the lawyers."

Her husband, now living in Albuquerque, N.M., said Lohman provided a viable service that could help many divorcing couples, but he said he felt Lohman agreed to his wife's idea that they get a divorce without hearing his side of the issues.

"Mark provides a creditable service as a mediator where there is no chance of the couple getting back together and they have to settle the property, but I was seeking a counselor."

The American Arbitration Association trains mediators, who should have backgrounds as lawyers or in social work or psychology, to learn how to be impartial while still listening to both sides. They are given information in property and tax laws and child custody statutes.

"Working out the terms of an agreement is only one part of the answer, the other part is a problem-solving mechanism," Lohman said. "If you enable them to solve their practical problems, you enable them to release anxieties so they can settle their property."

Lohman's divorce mediation procedures are similar to those used by most other mediators.

The couple meet with Lohman for an explanation of what happens in mediation, then Lohman meets with each spouse individually, and then holds another joint session. He said most couples reach an agreement in six to 10 sessions.

He drafts their agreement and they take it to a lawyer for a legal analysis, a legal document is drafted and the couple signs it.

"The purpose is not to eliminate the lawyer, but to attempt to place the lawyer in the more proper role as legal adviser," Lohman said. "It removes the lawyer as an activist stirring up emotions."

He said many marriage partners are looking for revenge and can get it by hiring attorneys to take their spouse to court, but mediation offers a way of reducing the anger and tension.

"It's an art form," Lohman said. "You have to know when and how to apply pressure in extraordinarily difficult situations. It can get very, very vicious — guns, child kidnapping, that sort of thing."

"You can listen to that anger, then try to appeal to the healthy side by taking that anger and refocusing it on rebuilding their lives."

Hugh McIsaac, a mediator for the Los Angeles court system, said judges started sending couples who were fighting over child custody to the mediation service because the judges recognized that "spouses coming in on custody issues were hostility junkies. They were using the courts as a club to beat back at the other person."

In 1979, the courts referred 1,746 cases to McIsaac's unit and 1,041 were resolved at a savings to the courts of 600 days in judicial time.

"We tell them the court is giving them a chance to work out their own agreement," McIsaac said. "If they are not successful, they will have to go to court and someone else will make the decisions for them."

In addition to talking with the couple individually and jointly, McIsaac and his colleagues also let the children become part of the negotiations by asking them how they think the family should be reorganized to provide for the best interests of all.

"In the old court system, the kids had to make a choice between parents and then feel guilty or were not involved at all. They were like refugees in this gigantic civil war. We provide a happy medium — they participate without having to make the final decision."

The Los Angeles mediation unit, like most others that are funded and operated through the court system, generally is limited to mediating only child custody and visitation issues.

But once those issues are settled, property division often falls in line, McIsaac said.

The more homework each spouse does determines how quickly the negotiations can be completed, said Chuck Divorce Mediation . . .

 the separation. But a mediation settlement still is more likely to be fair than something hacked out in court."
 Mediation also can help women who may not have been aggressive in their marriages, said Will Neville, of Divorce Mediation Associates in Atlanta.

 "If such a woman is active in the mediation process, then she tends to be more satisfied, unlike wives in the adversarial process,"

Neville said. "The post-marriage adjustment is better."
 He said a divorced husband and wife may not leave mediation the best of friends, but they at least are respectful of each other.
 Susan Little, of the Family Mediation Service Center in Winston-Salem, N.C., said her center's emphasis is keeping the family intact and emotions low-key during one of the most crucial moments of a couple's lives.
 "The majority say they could not believe they could make a big step like this without hating the other party," she said.

Mediation has therapeutic value for husbands and wives because they learn communication skills — how to ask for what they want and need in a manner not threatening to their partner, said Virginia Stafford, a mediator at the Winston-Salem center.
 They also feel good about having reached a divorce agreement without the traditional bitterness and alienation, she said.
 Ms. Stafford and other mediators said some attorneys have opposed mediation because it cuts into legal fees, but most would rather avoid messy property and child custody battles. The reaction from attorneys generally has been supportive of mediation and some lawyers have offered their services as mediators.

 Because it is a new field, many divorcing couples are unaware of the service.
 Phoenix, Ariz., Superior Judge Robert W. Pickrell was active in founding his city's Family Dispute Service, which is operated under the aegis of the American Arbitration Association.
 He and others said most people hear of the service through friends who used it or through the media.
 "It's new and it's a matter of getting public thinking turned around to use it," Pickrell said. "I would like to see the time when this would become the way to get a divorce. I can foresee the day when colleges put out people with degrees in mediation of family disputes."

 Daniels McLean, a family court referee in Hennepin County, which includes Minneapolis, said there is a definite increase in the use of mediation.
 "It has gotten to the point where our normal policy is to refer divorcing couples to mediation and then, only if the mediation breaks down, do we resort to the adversary process," McLean said.
 He said his service attempts to treat the "root causes" of marital break-ups because simply processing divorces means many families will be back in court again.

 "Some people prefer to have an outsider make the decision since it relieves them of the responsibility of the long-range effect, but most people want to make the decisions that affect their lives," McLean said.
 Said the California Mediation Institute's Foley: "Who knows you better, a judge who hears your case for 15 minutes or you and your spouse?"

$930,000 For 'Hidden Crisis'

MONROVIA, Calif. (AP) — World Vision International says it plans an emergency relief program of $930,000 for what it calls a "hidden human crisis" for 1.5 million refugees from Ethiopia.
 After a four-day survey of the situation in the northwest section of the country, the Rev. Stan Mooneyham, president of the relief organization, said 650,000 refugees are in camps in Somalia and another 750,000 are living outside the camps. He added:
 "The world has been so preoccupied with Southeast Asia and the Middle East, they have overlooked the largest refugee problem in the world."
 He said refugees are pouring into Somalia at the rate of nearly 1,000 a day, driven from their homeland by Ethiopians backed by Russians and Cubans. He said checks indicate up to 70 percent of the children are malnourished and require therapeutic feeding.

Most Pitt Parents Favor Sex Education In School

ECU News Bureau

Most Pitt County adults believe that the school system should be involved in sex education, according to a recent survey directed by an East Carolina University faculty member.

The survey, undertaken by Dr. Grant Somes, statistician in the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions, indicated that 78.43 percent of the 649 persons responding believe that schools should be at least partially responsible for a child's education concerning:

- personal cleanliness,
- bodily growth and development,
- human reproduction,
- risks involved in sex, including venereal disease,

—courtship and marriage, and —birth control methods.

Dr. Somes's information was gathered by students in two of his classes as well as students in the School of Nursing and several volunteers. Questions were directed to persons selected at random from the telephone directory.

Each respondent was asked to reply "yes" or "no" to whether the family, the church, the school system, the family physician or the local health department should be involved in sex education.

Leading the field was the family, which about 98 percent of respondents believe should provide basic sex education. Following were the school system and the family physician.

Only half replied that the church should play a role in sex education, and most respondents who did specify that instruction regarding courtship and marriage is an appropriate area of responsibility for churches.

A fairly high percentage responded that the local health department is a proper source of education concerning human reproduction, risks of social sexual activity and birth control.

Dr. Somes noted that his sample of adults included 239 males and 410 females, ranging in age from 18 to 76; 435 of the participants had children ranging in age from newborn to 59.

"Of particular interest is the fact that almost everyone agrees the parent should be involved in a child's education in any of the categories," he said.

"Perhaps if almost all parents were indeed involved in their children's education, there would not exist such a great problem with teenage pregnancy in Pitt County."

Somes's data suggests that while most people say they believe families should be involved in sex education, they are in fact not involved in the education of their own children — or at least not involved "at a level to alleviate the problem," he explained.

Somes plans a second interview survey to determine if parents would like some information on any aspect of sexual activity, and if so, what type of information would be helpful to them.

"We suspect that parents of teenagers might like to know more about the risks and benefits of birth control methods," he said.

Somes initiated the survey after a local controversy here earlier this spring, in which spokespersons for various groups argued for and against the involvement of schools and health agencies in children's sex education.

Faddists Told Avoid Trouble

By MICKI MAYNARD

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — If you are 35 and can't resist a set of tennis even when it's damp, look out. You're a prime candidate for tennis elbow.

If you took up jogging in May and plan to run a 26-mile marathon in June, you're also asking for trouble.

A pair of sports medicine experts told a recent conference here that many tennis and running injuries are caused by too much enthusiasm and too little common sense.

Dr. Neal Marcus, a former tennis pro who is an orthopedic surgeon at Detroit's Henry Ford Hospital, said tennis injuries are most evident in players over 30 who play often but not well.

"If you play frequently for many years, but aren't a world class player, you're bound to be hit by tennis elbow sometime," Dr. Marcus said.

The physician said tennis elbow — the inflammation of muscles around the elbow — is rare among so-called "weekend athletes."

While bad form accounts for most injuries, Dr. Marcus said players can avert trouble by using new balls as much as possible and playing only on dry courts. He said the new large-faced racquets are also helpful in cutting down stress.

Younger players generally have few elbow problems — except those who hit the tennis tournament circuit.

Elbow problems rarely bother joggers, but Dr. Robert Teitge said he's seen plenty of torn leg ligaments and aching feet since the running craze began.

Dr. Teitge, who takes over this summer as head of Henry Ford Hospital's Center for Athletic Medicine, said American runners' number one problem is "pushing up those miles too quickly."

"People who want to run a marathon in two months are asking for trouble. Any mechanical system has a point of failure when it's pushed past its limit."

He said 60 percent of running injuries are caused by improper training. Major errors include running too far, abrupt changes in terrain and insufficient rest.

His one piece of advice to runners was "Don't run so far" and be sure to do stretching exercises before starting out.

Promotes Childbirth As The Indians Do It

By BRUCE HANDLER

Associated Press Writer RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A Brazilian gynecologist and obstetrics professor is gaining attention through a campaign to persuade women to have babies while squatting on the floor — like native South American Indians — rather than lying on a delivery table.

Dr. Moyses Paciornik, who has written and lectured extensively on the subject both in Brazil and in other countries, contends this method of giving birth results in less danger to the baby plus reduced delivery stress and better overall gynecological health for the mother.

"When a woman is lying down, the birth canal becomes a violent uphill curve pointed straight at the ceiling, along which she must force out a 7-to 10-pound baby," the 66-year-old doctor explained to the Associated Press. "But when a woman assumes the squatting position, she transforms the birth canal into a relaxed downhill passage, taking advantage of gravity instead of fighting against it."

Although Paciornik discovered Indian-style childbearing in remote tribal villages in Brazil, the place where he's trying to put his theories into practice is his modern obstetrical clinic in Curitiba, a prosperous, skyscraper-filled city of 600,000 in the southern part of the country. And the women he's talking to are not illiterate Indians, but rather sophisticated mothers-to-be from the urban middle and upper classes.

The campaign is succeeding. "As recently as 1978, 90 percent of the pregnant women at our clinic said they'd rather give birth the 'usual' way — lying down," the doctor said. "They considered squatting ridiculous and degrading. But now, the immense majority of our patients favor the Indian method."

Paciornik's clinic currently delivers some 200 babies a month.

Paciornik blames hospitals and doctors themselves for many of the birth complications that now occur in "standard" baby deliveries. He says attempts to "modernize" childbearing in fact wound up defying the laws of physics and biology and creating unnecessary risks for mothers and infants.

Brazilian Indian women who have babies while squatting report far fewer birth complications and almost rarely need the aid of forceps or last-minute C-sections, the doctor says, in sharp contrast to delivery difficulties frequently observed in standard big-city Brazilian hospitals.

Also, according to Paciornik, Indian mothers have comparatively fewer routine gynecological ailments than their non-Indian urban counterparts.

Superior At Being A Woman

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

The president of the Southern Baptist Convention told 4,000 women that "woman is infinitely superior to man — at being a woman — and man is infinitely superior to woman — at being a man."

"Before the Lord Jesus we are all equal, but we are not the same, and anybody with an 'umption of gumption' and a fraction of sense knows that," the Rev. Adrian Rogers told a Mid-Continent Women's Concerns Conference.

ON TEMPORARY DUTY NEW YORK (AP) — A group of soldiers with their horses, assigned some 2,000 years ago to a permanent guard of the mausoleum of the First Emperor of China, has left its post to appear in New York City.

The men and animals are larger-than-life-size terracotta figures excavated near the ancient Chinese capital of Xi'an yang. They were part of an underground army created as the external bodyguard of Qin Shihuangdi, who died in 210 BC.

Sees Disaster In Declining Faith

LONDON (AP) — Theologian-scientist Ralph Burhoe of Chicago, accepting the 1980 Templeton Prize for Progress in Religion, said a widespread decline of religious belief must be reversed if civilization is to be preserved.

He said this is the conviction of a growing number of scientists. They're convinced, he said, that a "revitalization of adequate religion is required if our free, prosperous, scientific, technological Western civilization is not shortly to collapse in a hellish period of war, coercive repression, disease, starvation and death brought upon ourselves by the use of scientific technologies without proper wisdom and moral motivation."

Burhoe received the $200,000 prize for his studies concluding that religion has been central to the evolutionary emergence of civilized humanity from lower forms.

Disability Pensions Near Scandal For Some Cities

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

It's a deal difficult to pass up: retire at half pay before age 50 and enjoy a tax-free income for life, often with full cost-of-living protection. And when you die, your spouse continues to collect.

That's the deal many cities provide police officers and firefighters who are injured or become chronically ill because of their jobs. In some of those cities, disability pensions are remarkably easy to get.

So easy in two cities especially — Seattle and Washington, D.C. — that more than 90 percent of police and firefighter retirements in the past decade have been due to disability.

"This whole thing has been an embarrassment and a problem to law enforcement and fire people here," said Norman Losk, chief actuary in Washington, where the state funds the local pension systems.

"You want to encourage people to take these tough jobs. You want to properly compensate them. But apparently there are cases where people are getting disability and still working at other jobs and getting substantial compensation. And that's what bruises sensibilities."

Most pension experts blame inadequate rules and lax enforcement, rather than out-and-out cheating. They say police and firemen are simply taking advantage of loopholes at a time when it makes economic sense.

M. Lewis Thompson, who retired last year after 23 years as manager of the City of Los Angeles Fire and Police Pension System, blames the rising disability rate on changing mores among city workers.

"In my mind it's a matter of motivation. There's very little fakery in these retirements," Thompson said in an interview.

Thompson, who made a 44-city survey of disability pensions before he retired, found that such retirements had increased more than 20 percent in three years.

The leading disability cause is heart trouble, followed by mental problems and bad backs, Thompson found — ailments not always easy to prove or disprove.

Union officials, like Mike Smith of the International Association of Firemen in Washington, D.C., concede that abuses exist in some cities but argue that these are "the most dangerous jobs in the world."

National Safety Council studies support Smith's contention that police and firemen face greater job hazards than practically anyone. But how does job danger explain why Seattle has 90 percent of its police and fire retirees on disability pensions, while the disability retirement rate among Chicago firefighters is about 9 percent?

Losk explained it this way: "You could drive a Mack truck through the regulations governing disability in Seattle."

He said disability rules formulated in 1970 do not even define what is meant by "disability." And although the state pays the pensions, disability rulings are made at the local level.

In 1977 the Washington Legislature tightened these rules, but the changes affect only those hired since October of that year. Thus the rate of disability retirement in Seattle is still around 90 percent, said Clarence Stoor of the Firemen's Pension Board.

So many disability retirements inevitably increase taxes. In 1968, pensions cost Washington, D.C., taxpayers $14.2 million. This year, the cost is $67.2 million, an almost fivefold increase.

It is harder to gauge the cost in Seattle because it's lumped in with pension costs from local systems all over the state. But state pension costs have more than doubled in four years: from $125 million to an estimated $265 million in fiscal 1981.

Moreover, the firefighters' pension systems in Seattle and Washington are funded on a shaky pay-as-you-go basis, without building up funds for future retirees.

Both cities are working to plug some of the most gaping loopholes — with far better results so far in Washington, D.C.

In the late 1960s, the percentage of disability retirements in Washington, D.C., reached a high of 98 percent. Thomas O'Brien, assistant city budget director, said disability rules were tightened in the mid-70s and again last November, gradually reducing the rate of such retirements to about 44 percent.

O'Brien noted several unusual provisions that had made it easy to retire on disability. The Aggravation Clause allowed retirement if a person could show that further duty would likely aggravate his condition, even if his job hadn't caused the condition. That was repealed last November.

In addition, until 1975 the city bore the burden of proving a person was not disabled. Now the person making the claim has to prove the disability.

In New York City, the "heart bill" still makes it simple to retire on disability. The law says, in effect, that any firefighter or police officer who develops heart trouble can retire on disability — without having to prove the ailment had anything to do with duty.

City actuary Jonathan Schwartz says the New York City firemen's system has been paying out more than it has been taking in for two years — in part because half the city firefighters who have been retiring do so on disability.

"Not to overdramatize it, but if there is no change in the law, the fund will go broke by 1990," said Schwartz.

Freddy Is Hit On Job

ROMEO, Mich. (AP) — Freddy's job gets him into hundreds of head-on collisions — and he doesn't get paid for the work. Freddy is a dummy.

There are five more like him in his "family." They, too, work for nothing. The life-size figure resembles an average male American, 5-10, weighing 155 pounds. Freddy's "relatives" range from infant-size to 200-pounders. They're all used in a seat belt and inflatable restraint (air bag) testing laboratory at Firestone's Hamill Manufacturing Co. in Romeo, 30 miles north of Detroit.

Freddy is called on a half-dozen times a day to show scientists what motorists experience in head-on collisions at 30 mph. He's survived hundreds of crashes only because he was properly belted into his seat.

High-powered lights focus on him as an ultra-high speed camera catches the results that occur in a split second, or, for the time it takes the eyelid to make a half-blink. The scientists' eyes don't catch what happened, but the camera does.

"The dummy's legs and arms often are twisted by the rebound," explains Robert M. Kemmerer, manager of product testing and evaluation. "But the upper body and head are kept from advancing to the area where the windshield or dashboard would be by the belt systems or inflatable systems upon impact."

"When a car hits a wall it stops. But the car passengers don't. They are still going 30 mph. It's the job of the seat belt system — whether it be active or passive — or the inflatable system to stop passengers, too."

Kemmerer, a veteran mechanical engineer, claims that some 9,000 to 10,000 additional drivers or passengers would be saved annually if 70 percent of Americans used their seat belts.

Iowa Minister A Rebel For Labor

ROCKS BOATS — The Rev. Gilbert Dawes, pastor of a small church in Camanche, Iowa has fought a dozen policemen in riot gear, invited a Communist political activist to speak in his church, and led bitter picketing strikers. (UPI Photo)

KAREN M. MAGNUSON
CAMANCHE, Iowa (UPI) — The Rev. Gilbert Dawes does not look the type who would fight a dozen policemen in riot gear, invite a Communist political activist to speak in his church or lead bitter picketing strikers.

He has done it all in recent weeks. The Dawes, 46, barely 5-foot-9, 140 pounds and soft spoken, is pastor of a small, 119-year-old white-frame church in this Mississippi River town of 5,000.

But behind his gentle appearance and frail exterior is a fighter for labor rights who has stirred up his community with activities aiding the striking workers of Clinton Corn Processing Co.

The strike, in its ninth month, has been marred by violence, several arrests of union members and their supporters, and alleged police harassment.

Dawes often demonstrates with the strikers and preaches to them at the plant gates. He was arrested and charged with rioting during a confrontation between police and striker supporters.

The minister wore a ski mask along with other supporters, hiding their identities. He said he was knocked down, kicked and clubbed by police before the arrest. The beating, he said, may end up helping Clinton Corn strikers.

"I certainly intend to expose what is going on," he said, displaying photos of cuts on his face and bruises the size of a fist on his body. "My being beaten shows what has been going on all along and it has served a very useful purpose."

"As far as I'm concerned, the significant thing was not that I, a minister, got beaten. It showed that it was what they (police) do to everybody — even a minister."

Despite the arrest and alleged beating, Dawes has joined strikers on the picket line and at union rallies attracting thousands from across Illinois and Iowa.

At weekly demonstrations at the Clinton Law Enforcement Center, Dawes — wearing faded, beltless blue jeans and a western-style shirt — meets in with the crowd, sometimes walking arm-in-arm with protesters.

His wife, Lauri, dressed in blue jeans and a bright orange T-shirt which says "Stop union busting," joins him and carries a sign: "Police incite riots. Ignore them."

Dawes also got involved when union members, who originally asked avowed Communist Angela Davis to speak at a rally, decided she should not come to the union hall and withdrew their invitation.

In a last-minute request, Dawes was asked if Ms. Davis, vice presidential candidate on the Communist Party ticket, could speak at his church. He consented without consulting his congregation.

The talk drew as many protesters as listeners and angered some of Dawes' superiors. Iowa Methodist Church leaders summoned him to appear before the church Cabinet to explain his actions, but later postponed the Des Moines hearing when union supporters threatened to hold a prayer vigil outside the closed meeting.

Dawes does not regret what he did. He said it was time the church took a more active role in the search for freedom, justice and the needs of "the common people."

"I'm a person who believes justice is a first priority and other things take their place after justice. 'I see a very great hunger on the part of the working people for a church which really cares about them."

"The church should take them seriously, rather than preach to the country clubs and chamber of comers."

The minister said his congregation has grown and members have participated more in church activities since he became involved in the Clinton Corn strike.

"The majority of the congregation has been supportive or I wouldn't be there," he said.

Son of a poor Methodist minister who frequently moved his family to small towns in Indiana and Iowa, Dawes has a bachelor's degree in history and political science from Cornell, a masters in psychology and counseling from Boston University.

He served at churches in New Jersey and Massachusetts before he went overseas to be a missionary in Costa Rica. He also served as a minister in Argentina for five years.

Dawes returned to the United States in 1970, became a truck driver so he would have time on weekends to speak about his experiences overseas and, when he was laid off, organized his first union: the Brotherhood of Jobless Workers.

Since he became pastor in Camanche nine years ago, Dawes has helped organize other unions and has traveled across Iowa to support union efforts. He also is chaplain to the Clinton County Labor Congress, a federation of AFL-CIO unions.

"Religion and labor are so intricately linked today it's impossible to separate them," Dawes said.

Continue Talks

CHICAGO (AP) — Major superiors of Anglican (Episcopal) and Roman Catholic religious communities met together for the first time, and agreed to establish a continuing consultation to promote ecumenical dialogue.

"A sign of greater things to come," observed the Rev. Donald P. Skwor, associate director of the Roman Catholic Conference of Major Superiors of Men.

The Rev. Connor Lynn, superior general of the Order of the Holy Cross, said "our future actions should make us a people who can't stay apart."

Woman Auctioneer In Love With Her Work

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — On a typical day, Jeanette Sees takes a spin through her home and sells everything in sight.

She says that's the best way to practice. Mrs. Sees is an auctioneer.

A good auctioneer, she says, should practice at least two hours a day. So, while she's pretending to give the store away, she rattles off numbers and tongue twisters in a singsong voice.

"Tommy Tademus took two tees. Tied them to the tops of two tall trees," Mrs. Sees chants flawlessly.

Her interest in auctions began when she was a child, going to as many as three auctions in one day with her parents.

"It got so they had so much, they had to sell it," she said in a recent interview.

Asked why she became an auctioneer, she replied: "Money."

"I could see how antiques, and at that time, land and gold were going up. I decided I might as well sell."

A little more than a year ago, Mrs. Sees, 33, left Parkersburg, her husband, Robert, and two daughters to attend a two-week course at the Missouri Auction School in Kansas City.

She says it cost about $1,500 for the schooling and certificate, but as she sees it, it's worth the price.

"If you can get your following built up so you can get the people to trust you, you can get a lot of money."

The flat rate for an auctioneer is about 20 percent of the money brought in for the goods, she says, and the average Wood County estate sale nets about $1,500.

So, she is gearing up for the auction season, which starts when "the weather breaks" and runs through November.

Last summer she helped out at a few auctions, but got wet in a downpour and came down with pneumonia. "It slowed me down a bit."

A plump woman with a ready smile and darting eyes, Mrs. Sees describes herself as a tomboy who would just as soon be fixing a car back on her parents' farm as sewing clothes for her family.

"Some people are leery of a woman. They don't think you can value," Mrs. Sees said. "Some men listen, but they don't bid, it's so much of a novelty."

Mrs. Sees said her goal was to be a good auctioneer "mainly to show a woman can be good if she tries."

That means, she says, knowing the value of an item and how to sell it.

"The first obligation is to the owner. A lot of auctioneers go too fast. The people don't know what they're buying or what they're paying.

"You can't go too slow, but there's a medium."

Each auctioneer develops a spiel, she explained. Fancy auctioneers use a lot of "filler words" between the numbers during the bidding.

But Mrs. Sees says she prefers a simple, direct patter.

"Filler words don't make any sense," she said. "The more filler words you use, the more time it takes to sell each item. It's good to use filler words for expensive items to give them time to think."

She says auctioneering is a fickle business.

"You never know what they're going to buy. It's entirely up to the mood of the people that day."

Famous Names Signed On Old Hotel Register

By STEVE K. HINDY
ALEPPO, Syria (AP) — Mystery writer Agatha Christie could not have dreamed of a more provocative cast of characters than haunts Aleppo's Baron's Hotel, one of the more notable watering holes on the tracks of the Orient Express.

When the author of "Murder on the Orient Express" signed the leather-bound guest register at the blue-shuttered, stone Baron's a few years ago, she doubtless took note of previous guests — T.E. Lawrence (of Arabia), Iraqi King Faisal, aviator Charles Lindbergh, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Cardinal Spellman and boxer Gene Tunney.

There have been no murders here. But the narrow, arched entrance to the Baron's, barely wide enough to admit proprietor Krikor Mazloumian's battered '58 Chevy station wagon, has seen royalty, generals, millionaires, writers, diplomats, peace makers and astronauts in its 69 years.

Even today's visitors to this 4,000-year-old city spurn more modern accommodations for the Baron's mahogany-paneled dining room, its brass chandeliers and doorknobs, Oriental carpets and arched doorways flanked by stone columns — all of which recall a day, barely 30 years ago, when guests used to shoot ducks in the gardens outside.

Born the year before the hotel was opened in 1911, Mazloumian remembers seeing Lawrence and many other great Baron's guests.

"I think a lot of these people came through Aleppo because the Orient Express used to split into two parts here: the better half went to Baghdad and the other to Beirut," said Mazloumian, a natty dresser with a British wife and a British accent.

Gene Tunney passed through Aleppo in the late '20s, on the trail of an automobile expedition to Peking.

"Tunney had a calling card that identified him as a special assistant to the governor of the state of Connecticut and his wife was with him, an absolutely smashing woman," said Mazloumian. "They had heard that my father had a few cases of rare German wine. They bought them all."

The Baron's elegant terrace, tall-ceilinged bedrooms and heavy teak doors have seen royalty from all corners of Europe: King Gustave Adolphe and Queen Louise of Sweden, Queen Ingrid of Denmark, Prince Peter of Greece, Lady Louis Mountbatten of England, to name but a few.

Latinate names in the guest list register the term of the French mandate in Syria, after Lawrence's time. A crop of Vichy French names spring up with the rise of Nazi Germany, on to surrender during World War II to British generals with names like Slim, Spears, Auchinleck, Templer.

On April Fool's day, 1914, Lawrence of Arabia, who was then leading the Arab revolt against the Turks, wrote on Baron's stationery to his family: "Another letter from this beautiful hotel, whose face you must be getting to know by heart."

The bill of the great Englishman is framed in a dusty showcase in a sitting room off the Baron's lobby, just over 76 gold French francs. Generous old Armen Mazloumian, who named his hotel for the Armenian word "Sir," had deducted the price of a bottle of Cordon Rouge champagne.

Krikor, who took over the hotel when his father died 12 years ago, says the tab is the equivalent of what it now costs to stay in the first-class hotels of Damascus, about $65 a night. The Baron's prices have grown modest as the importance of the ancient trading city has dwindled.

West Coast's Pyramid Craze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The word had spread like wildfire — for a mere $1,000 outlay, an investor could make $16,000 in less than a week. The hopeful gathered — 250 of them — sitting two to a chair and lining the greasy walls of a dilapidated Van Nuys garage.

It was a "pyramid party," the latest in a seemingly endless chain of endless chain schemes that has put dollar signs in the eyes of hundreds of Southern Californians.

The craze also has police worried about possible involvement of Mafia figures, robbers stalking the pyramid winners and even one shooting.

In Orange County, authorities were told that four gunmen held up one Anaheim party May 14, and another man was robbed of his $8,000 winnings and then shot by a bandit last Friday after leaving a Costa Mesa pyramid party.

Anonymous callers are beginning to flood police with complaints.

"My wife just pulled all our savings out of the bank and went off to a pyramid meeting. What are you guys going to do about it?" demanded one caller whom police termed typical.

Banks all around Los Angeles report sudden sizable cash withdrawals — an unusual $75,000 in one day at one suburban branch — and runs on $50 and $100 bills.

"I've never seen anything like it — everybody knows it's the pyramid," said one bank official, who asked to remain anonymous.

It's a misdemeanor to participate in an endless chain scheme, and the penalty is a fine of up to $500 or a jail term of up to six months.

"So what?" said one eager, anonymous winner at the party Tuesday night in Van Nuys. "What's a $500 fine? I've already made $16,000. And you can get a misdemeanor taken off your record."

As in chain letters, the problem with pyramid schemes is that once they fall apart, those who have invested but not collected are left with nothing.

In Northern California, San Jose police said Wednesday they are belatedly getting complaints from people who have lost thousands of dollars.

"The schemes are all built out up here," said Officer Jack Morris.

Many of the complaints have been second-hand or anonymous. The Costa Mesa shooting was reported by the victim's minister, said police Lt. Jack Calnon. He said participants may be reluctant to speak out for fear of prosecution.

At a party Monday night in Burbank, 13 people out of 118 attending were arrested. Among those nabbed was a man identified by police as a low level Mafia figure. But investigators declined to give his name for fear of jeopardizing pending investigations.

Even the shooting didn't seem to worry the partygoers.

"Well, it's scary. I mean it's just so incredible seeing all that money, all those hundred dollar bills changing hands. It's so incredible.

That's why I just can't get too scared," said one woman.

Like the chain letters spawned in the '30s by the Great Depression, pyramid parties promise profits to people who can persuade two others to join for $1,000 apiece. Each pyramid has room for 64 participants. New recruits entering the bottom 32 slots give half their $1,000 to whomever recruited them and the other $500 to the one on top.

When the top pyramid collector collects the $16,000, the next two people begin their own pyramids and the cycle continues until nobody new is willing to join.

Despite the euphoria, Tuesday night's party was a tense, businesslike affair. The doors were locked and flanked by burly guards. On a table in the middle of the garage was a neat stack of white envelopes to be filled with money. A hush fell as the host gave his sales pitch.

"I've made money — a lot of money. I've reinvested. My children have all made money. My employees have all made money," he said. "I can't get any work done in my office because everyone is on the phone all day calling friends and neighbors and they're all making money."

But UCLA mathematics professor Thomas Liggett put the odds of winning at one in 32.

Los Angeles Police Lt. Bill Mossman said, "When the victims start calling and we hear the howls of pain, then we'll know the worst is over," he said.

The more the police crack down, the tighter the security at the parties. Passwords are used. Secret places are chosen. One party Tuesday night in Topanga Canyon was held in a nudist camp.

Classes On Wednesdays

ECU News Bureau
Greenville area gourmets may wish to develop their tastes and skills in either of two Wednesday night classes, "Wine-Tasting" and "Oriental Cooking," to be offered by East Carolina University's Division of Continuing Education next month.

"Wine-Tasting," scheduled for June 9-23, 7:30-9:30 p.m., is instructed by Charlie Harrison, owner of a local wine and cheese shop and experienced director of wine seminars.

"Oriental Cooking," June 18 — July 9, 7-9:30 p.m., will introduce the basic techniques of Chinese cuisine, including use of the wok, stir-frying, steaming and "red-cooking."

Course instructor is Betty Grossnickle, experienced cooking teacher who has studied in Washington, D.C. and New York and co-owner of a local kitchenware specialty shop.

Further information about these and other summer classes is available from the office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., telephone 757-6143.

Researchers Uncover More Health Risks In DES

By SPENCER SHERMAN
United Press International
Researchers are encountering a new range of health risks associated with the once-popular female hormone DES.

It is already banned as a means of preventing miscarriages but is still prescribed for other purposes.

However, DES is now suspected of increasing the chances of sterility and problem pregnancies in the daughters of mothers who took the drug. Researchers have also begun to worry about physical abnormalities being found in male offspring, including sterility, malformed testicles and testicular cancer.

Previously, the most dangerous effect from the controversial drug was thought to be an increase in the rate of a particularly virulent form of cancer in the female offspring of mothers who took it while pregnant.

While researchers generally agree that the cancer threat is not as great as previously thought, new studies indicate the possibility of other risks for DES-exposed women, estimated to number around 4 million.

A study published in the January issue of Fertility and Sterility evaluated 276 women exposed to DES — diethylstilbestrol — in the womb.

The report found that instances of ectopic pregnancies — where the fetus develops outside of the uterus and usually miscarries — is five times greater than normal.

The report says "both intrauterine fetal death rates and prematurity rates are unusually high" among so-called "DES daughters."

Other difficulties like uterine and cervical abnormalities were mentioned in the report as possible factors in the prevention of pregnancy, but conclusive evidence was not available to the doctors.

Another study, reported in the March issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, generally concurred with these findings reporting that stillbirths, miscarriages and premature births were more than one and one half times as frequent in 618 "DES daughters" studied as in 618 unexposed women.

The more recently recognized problem of physical deformities in DES-exposed male offspring was studied last year at the University of Chicago.

That study, comparing 308 men exposed to DES in their mothers' wombs with 307 unexposed men, indicated the probability of cancer of the testicles was unconfirmed, but other abnormalities were unmistakable.

According to the report, the DES-exposed men had a greater occurrence of undescended testicles, sterility and malformed sperm ducts.

As many as 31.5 percent of the exposed men had testicular cysts or unproducing testicles as compared to 7.8 percent of the unexposed. "Severe pathological changes" in the formation of sperm was found in 18 percent exposed and only 8 percent unexposed.

The report concludes that "administration of DES during pregnancy appears to be followed by effects on the fetal male genital tract ... that may well impair fertility in a certain number of patients."

The use of DES in pregnant women was banned by the Food and Drug Administration in 1971.

But the drug is still legally used to alleviate symptoms experienced by menopausal women, to suppress lactation in women choosing not to breast feed and can be used as a "morning after" birth control pill.

also used to stimulate growth in cattle and sheep.

The hormone causes cattle to put on weight before slaughter, but residuals of the hormone have been found to appear in the meat of such animals, thus posing a risk as a food.

In 1958, through the Delaney Act, the federal Food and Drug Administration was given the power to ban the use of carcinogenic agents in feed additives. After pressure from agricultural lobbies was applied, an amendment was added to the act saying drugs could be used as feed additives so long as no residue was detected through HEW-approved methods of analysis.

Only recently has HEW analysis been sufficiently effective to detect harmful residuals of the DES hormone. Using the new detection methods, the FDA has been able to impose the ban and make it stick.

As recently as the first week in April the FDA found some 90,000 cattle in the Southwest that were given DES contrary to the federal ban. As a prescription drug, DES is considered safe by the FDA for the medical problems brought on by menopause. But it is not always used for that purpose alone, according to William C. Hill, the western regional director of the FDA.

Women still use it as a birth control device.

Vodka War Is Echoing The U.S.-Soviet Chill

By ANDRES OPPENHEIMER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —

Importers of Turkish, Chinese and Scandinavian vodkas, cashing in on the current chill in U.S.-Russian relations, are ganging up to put Soviet vodka sales in the United States on the rocks.

Major importers of non-Russian vodkas have launched a hard-hitting advertising campaign of sometimes subtle, sometimes blatant anti-Soviet appeals to urge Americans to say "nyet" to Russian vodkas.

Imports amount to less than 10 percent of the U.S. vodka market, but the Soviet brands account for 80 percent of America's import share.

The campaign is controversial, described by some as brilliant advertising strategy and by others as unethical.

It all began early in January, following the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan. Importers of the Turkish vodka, Izmir, ran an ad in several American newspapers saying, "Serve the finest without buying Russian."

In smaller letters, the ad said Izmir drinkers "are just not as aggressive as the Russians."

The Turkish attack continued a few days later with ads such as "Izmir Vodka — the best reason for giving up Russian Vodka" and "Izmir Vodka — revolutionary vodka without revolution."

By early February the Chinese entered the "vodka war" with an ad featuring a sign they said could be found in bars throughout this country, saying "Russian vodka not served here."

The message: don't drink Russian vodkas; try Tsingtao, imported from China.

Then Finlandia, the Finnish imported brand, ran ads declaring:

"It's no surprise that the world's finest vodka has acquired so many allies."

Ironically, producers of vodkas made in the United States who had earlier tried to project a Russian image found themselves desperately trying to emphasize the true red-and-white-and-blue nationality of their products.

Smirnoff vodka ran full-page ads on the day following the U.S. Olympic team's victory over the Russians to "congratulate" the American heroes.

"The campaign has been a hit," says Marshall Goldman, a spokesman for Tsingtao. "Our sales have increased by 300 percent since we launched it."

Steve Ryan, Izmir's vice president of marketing, says sales of his company have increased substantially.

As for ethical questions, Ryan says they don't concern him. "The role of advertising is to give the consumer a good reason to buy a product," he says. "We're telling people to stop subsidizing the Russian economy, and it works."

But a sales manager for another major vodka brand, who asked not to be identified, says the attack on Soviet vodka is an irony in itself.

"After all, the Chinese invaded Vietnam last year, and the Turks took Cyprus in 1974," he commented.

What has this all-out crusade done to Soviet vodka sales?

Experts in the U.S. alcoholic beverages business say it will take at least a couple of months — until the U.S. government releases its figures on vodka imports — to find out if Russian vodka sales have been damaged.

Meanwhile, importers of Soviet vodkas claim their sales are still in good shape. Larry Soll, a spokesman for Soviet-imported Stolichnaya, the best-selling imported vodka in the United States, says "we are still on top, and don't expect any significant losses in the near future."

However, he adds, "we hope things will go back to normal soon. The vodka war may not hurt us, but it certainly doesn't help either."

Until last Nov. 1, DES was Higher Value On Intelligence

NEW YORK (UPI) — A national survey of fathers and daughters indicates fathers spend at least as much time with their daughters as with their sons and they value intelligence much more than looks.

Today's young fathers told The Gallup Organization researchers they spend much more time with their preschool daughters than with their preschool sons.

When daughters were asked "what their fathers valued most about them when they were growing up, two-thirds of the women said school grades, and more than half said character. Far fewer — four out of 10 — named charm and personality, just as many cited 'non-academic achievements,' but only one out of five said looks," the report says. "Fathers told much the same story."

The survey for Ladies' Home Journal is reported in the May issue of the magazine.

Revival

Revival services will begin May 26 and continue through May 30 at Joy Temple Holiness Church. The speaker for each night will be Elder I.J. Robertson of Kingston.

On Monday the Joy Temple junior choir will provide the music, and on Tuesday night the Holy Temple Choir of Walstonburg will sing. Wednesday the Clemons Grove junior choir will perform and Thursday night the Vines Sisters will sing. On Friday music will be provided by the Saintsville Choir. The pastor, Mable Hargrove, invites the public to attend. Services start at 8 p.m.

Grocery Trip Regarded Educational For Kids

PROVO, Utah (AP) — If kids can learn from television's Sesame Street show that "C" is for cookie, then why not take them to the supermarket where they can learn that "O" is for orange juice or "B" is for bread?

Dr. Floyd Sucher, an educational specialist at Brigham Young University, believes that the local grocery store just might be one of the most valuable learning centers in the community for preschoolers.

"The typical supermarket contains about 10,000 items that you can use as an excellent resource for first-hand teaching," he says.

Sucher, professor of elementary education and past chairman of the department of Elementary Education at BYU, has compiled his research into a book, "A Parent's Guide to Early Childhood Development in the Supermarket," to be published this year.

It is his theory that weekly trips to the supermarket, if properly structured with educational goals, can enhance a child's ability to read, write, think and even to learn moral principles.

"If parents go through and name and discuss all the products in a grocery store, the child's vocabulary would expand automatically," Sucher explains.

Corn is one item that Sucher suggests in his book as a starting point for teaching multiple principles. Under the area of concept formation, a child would learn that corn is used for many products — muffins, tacos, corn flakes, margarine, cereal — and that it can be purchased frozen, canned or fresh.

With a few ears of corn serving as a teaching tool, the child can see and feel its texture and be taught where it comes from and how it grows.

To develop auditory perceptions of letter sounds, the parent can point out other products that begin with the letter "C," such as carrots or cranberries, Sucher advises.

This principle can be reinforced at home with a "sound box," — where several objects that begin with the same letter sound are placed in a box, or sometimes mixed with objects that are dissimilar, so the child learns to distinguish differences.

Math skills can be learned when the corn is weighed and when it is paid for at the checkout counter.

"A child can do some rather high levels of thinking in the process of analyzing, and then eventually synthesizing the way things are put together," Sucher says. "There is no place quite like a supermarket where you can go and teach all these concepts."

"Children can also be taught to look for similar geometric shapes, to identify similar letters, to match upper- and lower-case letters, and even to learn about different occupations."

They can at the same time also be taught not to steal and that they are individually responsible for damaging products in the store, Sucher points out.

Sucher has been using his supermarket education method for 15 years and has taught it in some of his early childhood education classes at BYU.

Dr. Mary Ann Manning and her husband, Dr. Gary Manning, visiting professors from the University of Alabama, have been assisting Sucher in the preparation of the book.

"We aren't suggesting that parents push children into concepts they aren't ready for," Dr. Mary Ann Manning said, adding that the lessons aren't burdensome to either parents or children.

Using the lessons demystifies the process of teaching early development skills to preschool children, she notes. "So many parents think they aren't capable of teaching unless they have a degree in education," she said.

ASLEEP AT THE WHEEL — Little Anna Harrison appears exhausted after a bicycle ride with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McLeod of August, Georgia. (AP Laserphoto)

"It's to be a fun approach, when they go shopping with a got to be fun or it will destroy the whole learning process."

Covered Patio Extends Living Areas

By Jerry Bishop

With living room and dining room joining it via sliding glass doors, the covered patio in the Holmdale, a three bedroom design, seems to double the total amount of living space. In addition, the bedrooms are substantial, with two over 16 ft. in length, and the result is a spacious, airy design.

Even on the exterior, the steeply sloping roof, vertical siding, and tall chimney emphasize size. Inside, rooms are large, closets plentiful, and windows used liberally.

Entry is into a long, elegant foyer, which, unlike most foyers, features a front-facing window. At right, the 20-ft. living room highlights a fireplace that is visible from the foyer so that a mood of warm welcome is set at once.

Both the living room and adjoining dining room are connected to the patio by sliding glass doors. The dining room also merges with the kitchen for an informal activity center, and the kitchen shows a wealth of counter and cabinet space.

For convenience, a half bath and closeted laundry room are combined and set next to the foyer. Again, a window is used.

Three bedrooms and two full baths make up the second level. Each of the bedrooms is large and well-closeted, and the hallway offers a linen and large storage closet. The master bedroom merits ample space and a private, windowed, bath with shower.

Featured in the design is a large double garage with entry to the rear yard or directly into the foyer, a bonus in inclement weather. A basement is provided.

Home Furnishings Star In High Point Markets

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Even those too young to remember the 1930s and 1940s have heard about Hollywood film studios and their elaborate back-lot sets.

Replicas on those back lots gave many Americans their first ideas about how places like Manhattan, Paris, the Court of Versailles and Western cow towns were supposed to look.

Hollywood's back lots are mostly gone today. But the idea of creating a world of fantasy and illusion that seems real is far from gone. And in a North Carolina town, another kind of back lot is thriving and growing at Alderman Studios.

High Point, N.C., a center of furniture marketing, is headquarters for Alderman's — whose unique business encompasses designing, building sets, photographing, developing and printing photographic images of thousands of "rooms" a year.

Alderman's is the back lot of the furniture industry. It is a place where home furnishings instead of people star. The settings are created for the purpose of selling home furnishings in furniture catalogs, ads and magazine pictures.

And if you think there probably isn't too much use for this kind of thing, you're wrong. The demand is large enough for the family-owned business to employ 600 persons, 450 of them in High Point where a complex of studios and other facilities is outgrowing 4½ acres.

According to Robert Gayle, senior vice president and a grandson of Sidney L. Alderman who founded the firm, Alderman's is the largest still photography studio in the world and is among the 100 top printers in the United States.

Among the company's resources are half a million props arranged and catalogued by subject, and seven fulltime prop people to care for them. There are 26 designers, 12 set carpenters and painters, and a staff of 15 who schedule use of the many studios on the premises. Two casting directors cast models who "accessorize" the room settings and there are an on-premises greenhouse and a sewing workroom, as well as an untold number of photographers, artists and technical employees. There are even three dummy houses on landscaped grounds, constructed for a roofing client and used now to provide locals for exterior settings and products.

Although Alderman's goes back to 1898 when Sidney Alderman opened a small portrait studio in Greensboro, the company began to grow into its present dimension after World War II when migration of jobs plus pent-up demand and postwar prosperity helped to create the modern furniture industry in North Carolina.

Before the war, furniture photography was far from a developed art, as Gayle recalled in an interview. In the early 1900s, in fact, the photographer went to the factory, instead of the merchandise being sent to a well-equipped studio.

"A photographer would go out to the factory and take a plain black and white shot of each item of furniture, shooting where the light was decent, which often meant dragging the furniture out into the fields," said Gayle.

Unlike today, photos were simply put on sales sheets — four items to a page. A set was given to each salesman who traveled to retail stores to sell the manufacturer's line. There were no showrooms, no furniture wholesale market and no room settings or color photography to show the furniture off to best advantage.

The Depression of the 1930s and then the discontinuance of most furniture manufacturing during World War II put most furniture photo houses out of business. It reduced Alderman's to a shell with only one or two employees.

But when the war was over, Sidney Alderman's GI grandsons and a few others joined the firm, which grew as North Carolina's furniture factories grew.

There were many battles to win, recalls Gayle. "First, we had to convince manufacturers to send their products to a studio where proper lights could be set up. No factory was even really suitable for taking good furniture pictures," he said.

The next step was to convince manufacturers to show their furniture with accessories and then to photograph in color.

"You may meet manufacturers who will tell you that they pioneered color photography with their furniture. But I remember when we couldn't sell color to anyone. We gave away more than a few sample color photos to convince them to use it," said Gayle.

What started as a simple task — to photograph furniture samples too bulky to carry from store to store — has developed into an elaborate business.

Looking at the long road to fashion Alderman's and the furniture industry have traveled together makes it clear that fashion makes its own progress.

Here's the Answer

Q — Some day we hope to buy or have built a home using solar energy for some of the heating and all of the hot water. In a discussion the other day, there was a disagreement about whether a saltbox design, with one side of the roof sloping very low, is good for the placement of solar collectors. Any ideas about this?

A — It depends on whether you are talking about an old saltbox house or one designed especially to handle solar energy. The original saltboxes were built in response to harsh climatic conditions, especially in New England. Therefore, the long sloping side of the roof faced north, the front entrance south. Now, when that design is used for the collection of heat from the sun's rays, the roof slope and its collectors face south.

Q — We plan to install prefinished hardboard wall panels in our attic, but we have been told that they might expand after being installed. Is this so?

A — They might expand slightly if exposed to very high moisture, but they will not do so under ordinary conditions. Even so, it is wise to let the panels stay at least 48 hours in the room where they will be installed in order to become acclimated to the existing conditions. They should be placed separately on their long edges. If a room has such high humidity that you fear expansion of the panels after installation, it means you should take some steps ahead of time to remove the excessive moisture.

Q — My big project this year will be a deck at the rear of our house. I expect to make it of 3-foot pieces of 2 by 4s, setting them in squares and in different directions like a parquet floor. Can these be installed in a level bed of sand? Does the deck have to be connected to the house?

A — You should lay the sand — about 3 inches of it — on a bed of gravel, also about 3 inches. No, the deck does not have to be connected to the house.

A portable electric drill usually is the first power tool purchased. It isn't just that so many persons have to make holes in wood or metal; it's that the drill performs such a wide variety of tasks with such reasonable ease that it is the most useful tool in the house.

The drill's versatility is tied in with the large number of accessories and attachments it can handle. Thus, the drill is used for sanding, polishing, grinding, buffing, stirring paint, driving screws, sawing and many other chores not associated with drilling holes.

A drill is identified principally by the capacity of its chuck, which is the opening into which the shank of a bit, accessory or attachment is placed and tightened. If the chuck accepts a shank with a maximum diameter of a quarter-inch, it is called a quarter-inch drill. Quarter-inch and three-eighths drills are the most popular for the do-it-yourselfer.

A half-inch drill is for big projects and frequent use in concrete. The larger the size, the slower the speed and the more torque or twisting power. While a single-speed drill is adequate for most jobs, a two-speed or variable-speed model is more suitable if you intend to drill material that requires a slower speed or if you plan to use many accessories. When there will be much driving of screws, a drill with both variable speed and reverse is excellent, since it fulfills the double purpose of driving and removing screws.

When choosing a drill, pick it up and handle it as much as possible. Sometimes a tool that feels perfectly comfortable to one person seems a bit awkward to another. Most users prefer the pistol-grip type. There are also variations of switches. Generally, when a drill has added features, it costs more. Also, generally, you should not buy something for a few dollars less if it isn't exactly what you want. If you do, the chances are that you will regret your decision at some later time.

Ampere ratings on drills for home use range from 2 to 13 amps. If two models are otherwise the same, the one with the higher rating usually has more power. But you must be careful about overloading a circuit. For instance, if you have a drill that draws 12 amps, it should not be plugged into a household circuit on which another appliance is operating. It's almost a sure way to blow a fuse or trip a circuit breaker.

A drill whose housing is double insulated protects you against shocks. Another safety measure is what is called external grounding. The tool has a wire that runs from the housing through the power cord to a third prong on the power plug. But this third prong must be connected to a grounded, three-hole electrical outlet. The grounding wire then will carry any leaking current away from you and into the ground of the home wiring.

Plan Organize Quilting Guild

There will be a group of Greenville area women meeting Tuesday afternoon, May 27, to make plans to form a quilting guild.

The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. at the Community Recreation Building, located on the corner of Fourth and Greene Streets.

The possibility of establishing an evening group will be discussed. The meeting is open to all persons from beginners to blue ribbon winners. Interested persons are encouraged to bring their completed quilted items and other articles to the meeting.

Future meetings will feature history and care of quilts, introduction of new techniques, guest instructors and many other facts concerning the folk art of quilting.

China Cultivates Its Bright Students To Make Up Losses

By ROBERT CRABBE
FUZHOU, China (UPI) — Everybody is supposed to be equal in China, but Zheng Junshih runs a high school for bright teen-agers only.

In the worst days of China's 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, Chairman Mao Tse-tung's Red Guards halted Zheng's teaching. They made him clean pigsties instead at a farm set up on his campus.

Now Zheng is back at his old job, polishing the bright young brains of future Chinese engineers, scientists and economists.

In China, less than two percent of all high school graduates qualify for college. But last year 37 percent of Fuzhou City No. 1 Middle School's senior class passed the brain-torturing entrance examinations for Chinese universities.

Before 1966, it sent an average of 80 percent of its students to universities.

About 18,000 boys and girls enter the ninth grade every year in Fuzhou, a city of more than one million on the South China coast. Only 500 make it into No. 1 Middle School, a four-year high school.

The revival of elite high schools that stress academic excellence is under way all over China. Post-Mao leaders like Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping are well aware of China's shortage of trained engineers and scientists.

"We now emphasize students' grades without regard to their social origins," says the 57-year-old principal. "We have no statistics on what kind of families the students come from."

Zheng and his teachers deal only with motivated pupils. Discipline problems amount to no more than an occasional fight on the school's outdoor basketball courts.

Fuzhou No. 1 Middle School is symbolic of China's effort to restore a system of higher education shattered in the political turmoil of 1966-76. Mao and his followers closed the universities for 10 years, accusing China's small, educated elite of haughtiness toward ordinary people and tyranny over them.

No. 1 Middle School was stripped of its elite mission and made a purely neighborhood high school. Sixty-one of its teachers were sent to the country as farm laborers, separated from their families.

Arguing that white collar people should share the toil of the masses, Red Guards set up a farm on the campus and made Zheng the keeper of the pigsties.

The turmoil ended with Mao's death in 1976. New leaders like Deng, aghast at the loss of a whole generation of trained leaders, began pointing the schools back toward studying.

A Chinese education mission that visited Japan in late 1978 reported that China had only 300,000 fully qualified scientists and engineers. Japan, with around one-tenth of China's population, had 500,000.

Today Zheng's school is on its way back to being a communist version of America's Groton or Britain's Eton.

"Eton's strict demands on its students are quite reasonable," he says.

Zheng doesn't use the American system of "tracking" to separate fast learners. But brighter students get special help from the faculty outside regular school hours.

In spite of his official disregard of the class origins of his students, Zheng says educated parents tend to raise educated children.

"Researchers, technical people and cadres (managers) pay special attention to the way their children study," he notes.

In one way, the school is typical of about every human organization in China. It is completely under the thumb of the Chinese Communist Party.

Of its 235 faculty and administrative people, 41 are Communist Party members. These include Zheng and his four deputy principals, two men and two women. The 41 teachers who belong to the party include most of the school's supervising teachers.

By Chinese standards, No. 1 Middle School is splendidly equipped. It has chemistry and electrical science labs and a language laboratory for teaching English.

By American standards, it would be considered run-down. Its floors are unvarnished planks. Many windows are boarded up, because glass is too expensive to repair them.

That doesn't bother Zheng. "Our job isn't just to pass on knowledge," he says. "We try to make them think."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A friend of mine, about my age (I'm 63), has had a bypass operation of his heart. I must confess my ignorance and curiosity about how this is done. — Mr. H.V., Nev.

Dear Mr. V.:

The bypass operation of the heart is one of the great, almost miraculous, surgical contributions of the century. To understand the operation, one must know something about how the heart functions.

The heart is a muscle, and, like all muscles and organs of the body, its life depends on the adequacy of its blood supply. Blood and oxygen are essential to the survival of all tissues, and are carried to the heart by the coronary arteries that surround and penetrate the heart muscle. The word "coronary" originates from "corona," or "crown," which describes these arteries that surround the heart.

The heart muscle is only as functionally effective as its blood supply. When the coronary arteries are narrowed by arteriosclerosis, or by spasm from tobacco, the heart muscle cries out in pain for more blood and oxygen. This pain is known as "angina pectoris," and is often brought on by exertion.

When one of the coronary arteries closes off completely, a portion of the heart muscle, deprived of its blood and oxygen, becomes weakened, and the so-called coronary heart attack occurs.

The wonders of the body are many and varied. Unlike other organs of the body, which can compensate for their vascular deficiencies, the heart is unable to do so. It is for this reason that the bypass operation has been created. The operation is performed by removing a large vein from the leg and inserting it into the heart muscle. In this way, blood is rerouted around the closed coronary artery (or arteries) and thus bypasses the defective artery.

The return of a greater supply of blood and oxygen to the heart revitalizes the heart muscle and helps to return it to a higher level of efficiency.

Besides the brilliant surgery, other factors also help to account for the return to productivity of thousands of people who otherwise might have become invalids because of coronary artery disease. Computerized electronic devices created by engineers, and angiogram studies of the blood vessels, can now pinpoint the number of coronary arteries that are involved and the exact site where the closure is most marked.

Bypass surgery is a modern miracle, made possible by the combined efforts of dedicated and gifted physicians and scientists.

Bad Check Passer Decided Turn Over New Leaf

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — When former Miamisburg policeman Wavil B. Lewis Sr. saw how easy it was to pass bad checks, he said he had to try it himself.

But, Lewis got hooked on the easy money, at one point 10 years ago, clearing as much as $40,000 in one week.

"It's like dope, checks are like dope. Once I started handing out this phony paper, and people began taking it and giving me money, it became so simple. Each time it became easier," he said.

Lewis' bogus check days are over. Today, he's the Rev. Wavil Lewis, 53, and he has just celebrated his fifth anniversary as minister of the Spiritualist Temple of the Burning Bush in Dayton.

"I had to investigate many check-passing crimes as a cop," he said. "It seemed to me that in those days all we did was throw the bad-check complaints into a desk drawer and let them pile up. And what I learned about the activity as a policeman eventually led me to try it."

Eventually Lewis quit his police job. Later he became involved in a robbery, was convicted, and given probation. "... That's when I found out how hard it is to do honest work when you have a record. Things got tougher and tougher for me," he said.

"So I got me a road atlas and tracked down all the major cities in the United States. I put a figure on how much money I would clear in each city and I set out to become a master 'paper hanger,' the best there was." Lewis said he had started passing bad checks in Dayton supermarkets.

"They changed clerks in those little booths in the supermarkets every six hours, and I made the rounds. I would buy groceries and cash a check for a lot more than the groceries were," he said.

"Often I accumulated a car full of groceries, and would go over to west Dayton, look for homes where there were signs of little kids, like toys in yard, and I would leave groceries on people's doorsteps."

Eventually, Lewis was caught and convicted in Florida, where he served two years in prison — the first six months on a chain gang. After he was released from prison, he says, he went straight, got a job, married and moved to Dayton, where he became a car salesman.

"I got arrested on a bad-check charge. Ironically, and I swear it is true, it was a womanizer. But the church became a miracle for me that turned my life around," he said.

six months in the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus when I was innocent," he said.

Lewis got religion in prison, and in 1973 he was ordained as a Spiritualist minister. "I never did drink or smoke. I was a womanizer. But the church became a miracle for me that turned my life around," he said.

Lewis has counseled other ex-convicts, helping them adjust to the world outside prison. He says he doesn't accept any money from the church for his services. He supports his family with a used-car dealership.

"I take no money from the church. This is my way of paying back God for what He has done for me," he said.

Casey Jones Is In New Museum

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer
VAUGHAN, Miss. (AP) — In an era and area where train wrecks were not uncommon, the death of an engineer 80 years ago in the rural heartland of Mississippi would usually have long been forgotten by all but the most serious railroad buffs.

But not this accident nor the engineer, for he was Missouri-born Casey Jones and, according to the ballad and the history books, he chose to remain at the controls of his racing steam engine as it plowed into the rear of another train.

Legend has it that Jones fought the engine to the end to save the lives of his passengers. He was the only fatality.

Massena Jones, a retired Vaughan postmaster and no relation to Casey, has spent much of his life researching the accident and for the past 11 years has worked to make sure the legend lives on.

Jones' first effort at memorializing the wreck was a small museum tucked away in a corner of his post office.

But, with the state's help, the 72-year-old Jones has finally realized his dream — the dedication of a real museum filled with artifacts of the fateful wreck and railroading's past.

"My temporary museum stimulated some interest in the Casey Jones story and consequently the state of Mississippi appropriated money for the building and for establishing the museum," Jones said.

"The museum itself is an old railroad depot from Pickens, about 7 miles north of Vaughan," he said. "It was moved down the road to Vaughan and restored."

"The state Bureau of Recreation and Parks did a marvelous job in restoring the old building in the old depot style," Jones said. "The only modern thing in it is the air conditioning and the heating."

He said artifacts from the wreck included pieces of glass from the cab of Casey Jones' engine, No. 382, a scrap of wood from a torn car involved in the wreck and the engine's bell.

Jones said finding artifacts from the wreck was difficult because the coal-fired engine was repaired following the accident and returned to service.

"That engine went on to kill more people and it was wrecked several times before being scrapped in 1935," he said. "There just wasn't much left of it."

It took several years to secure the necessary funding for the museum project and to locate, secure and restore the artifacts.

"I think the time was worth it," Jones said. "I could see the need for preserving the historical significance of the Casey Jones wreck — it is such a nationally known thing I thought it should be memorialized."

Jones, who will serve as curator and manager of the new museum under contract with the state, said he had another reason for devoting so much time to the project: "This will show future generations that the Casey Jones legend was not myth but an actual happening."

"Casey was a hero because he stayed by his post and no doubt saved the lives of some of his passengers," he said. "Casey Jones was buried in Jackson, Tenn., where he lived at the time."

Jones believes the story of the wreck and the artifacts will attract tourists to the museum, off Interstate 44 at Vaughan.

Still Trade In Port City

QUAN ZHOU, China (AP) — Old women and tough-looking youths are selling foreign cigarettes and Hong Kong cassettes in a public black market in this once wide-open port city where gems and pearls were traded.

Streets are dotted with cigarette vendors selling "Dunhill," "Viceroy" and other Western cigarettes for 75 cents to $1.27.

They display their wares in baskets in the open but hurry off when approached by foreigners with cameras.

From one shop pours pulsating music from Hong Kong — played on a fancy foreign recorder. It sells cassettes for $1.50 to $6.75. The shop also sells lyrics to popular songs and tiny pinup photographs of coy and openly sexy Hong Kong movie stars.

Quan Zhou is believed to have the biggest black market in Fujian province, opposite Taiwan.

The province receives thousands of visiting overseas Chinese and clearly is receptive to overseas televisions, radios, music and stylish hair and clothes.

Students report that many overseas Chinese go especially to Quan Zhou at the mouth of the Jin Jiang River.

Many arrive laden with television sets, records and cassettes — everything from disco and torch singing to Beethoven and Mozart.

They resell them, it is said, for several times their original cost.

Summer Time Tips By A.A.A.

1. From the American Medical Association:

—Don't overdo anything, especially recreational sports. Warm up. Work up to your peak gradually. Never push beyond exhaustion. Be liberal with rest breaks.

—Allergic to insect stings? Get desensitizing shots. If you've never had an allergy but you get a quick, huge and angry reaction to a bug bite, see the doctor pronto. This could be an early warning sign you're allergic in a big way. Watch for welts. Watch for swelling. Watch for super itching. Be alert for tingling lips and noses. When these things happen, get help at once. You could be swelling on the inside, too. And that could be fatal. Fast.

—On super hot days get out of heat zones. Do the yard work or fun things outdoors early in the morning or in late afternoon when sun's not blistering.

—When too hot, move to shade and rest. Drink plenty of liquids to replace what is lost in sweat. Hot or cold drinks? It doesn't make much difference. Cold drinks warm up once inside you.

2. Tips about sun rays on skin:

—"Far and away the most effective single sunscreen is P-aminobenzoic acid," says a report in "Sciquest," an American Chemical Society journal. This is abbreviated PABA on many sunscreen product labels. People who applied PABA 45 minutes before sunbathing could take over twice the sunlight before burning. They could swim farther without the stuff washing off and they could go longer between applications. Tanning occurred through the sunscreen... —"Other sunscreens that fared well in tests," said the report, "were salicylates like homomenthyl salicylate or homosalate, for short. Also PABA esters (derivatives) such as glyceryl aminobenzoate. Mixtures of sunblocks and sunscreens have the potential for even better results." One mixture cited in the report gave 50 percent more protection than PABA alone.

—Sunlight thickens skin and dries it out. Skin becomes coarse, leathery and wrinkled. The lower level of skin — the one you don't see — bakes and contracts, making upper level pucker. Sun-battered skin undergoes same changes associated with aging — except it happens much faster. The changes are permanent.

3. Powermower safety tips: —Long pants and heavy shoes protect legs and feet. —On a hill, mow parallel. Never push up from down. —Never use an electric mower on wet or damp grass. —Only refuel when engine is cool. Gasoline splashed on redhot metal can cause a fire. —Conserve fingers. Make sure power is off before tinkering with a cutting blade that's blotted. —Conserve the kids. Keep them inside when mowing so they don't get struck by bits of rock, wood or metal hurled by the swirling blade. —4. Cookout safety: —Barefoot chefs get burned feet when hot liquids spill, when charcoal bits settle on the patio or terrace. Barefoot chefs also get cut when bottles break. Chefs should wear shoes. —Chefs shouldn't drink too much. Drunk chefs don't know what they're doing and cause accidents.

LET'S BE MORE SUCCESSFUL TOGETHER

On your side you have energy and enthusiasm, the desire to sell for a first-class company that leads its industry and a personal commitment to make a lot of money.

On our side we offer a draw against an exceptionally generous commission structure that even covers phone and mail orders, a rapid shipping operation and unusual incentives like a leased Cadillac.

You'll be representing Cleveland Cotton Products in this area, joining a select team of several hundred successful salespeople around the country. Our company has pioneered for over 50 years in the development of industrial wiping materials and related supplies.

Whether you're an experienced salesperson or just starting a sales career, we think it makes sense to get together because we'll both profit. Must have a late model car. Take advantage of a great opportunity.

SEARS HIGHWAY TIRE WARRANTY

A. Full Warranty During 25% of Usable Treadlife

Tire Failure. During the first 25% of original usable tread, if the tire is properly sized for your car, Sears will, upon return, replace the tire, free of charge, or refund the purchase price, if a failure occurs apparently due to a defect in material or workmanship of the tire.

B. Limited Warranty

Tire Failure. After 25% of the tread is worn, and for the remaining 75% of the original usable tread, if tire is properly sized for your car, Sears will, upon return, replace the tire or give you a refund, charging you only the proportion of the current price that represents the portion of the usable tread used, if a failure occurs apparently due to a defect in material or workmanship of the tire.

C. Limited Warranty

Tire Wearout. For the number of miles of usage specified, if the tire is properly sized for your car, Sears will, upon return, replace the tire or give a refund, charging you only the proportion of the current price that represents miles of usage received compared to the miles specified, if wearout (2/32" or less tread remaining) occurs. This does not apply to wearout caused by failure to use and maintain the tire in accordance with recommendations.

Olympic Games Provides Setting

A U.S. athlete dreams of winning a gold medal at the 1980 Olympics, but his poignant romance with a pretty Russian gymnast becomes both an inspiration and threat to this dream in "Golden Moment: An Olympic Love Story." The two-part Big Event special, starring Stephanie Zimbalist, David Keith and Richard Lawson, airs Sunday and Monday, May 25-26, on NBC-TV (9 to 11 p.m. both nights).

In Part I, the professional football hopes of star athlete Wayne Robinson (Keith) are shattered when a recent rodeo head-injury flares up, leaving him legally ineligible to participate in contact sports.

Fighting his depression and buoyed by the encouragement of his uncle, Todd Simms (Olsen), Wayne begins rigorous training for the decathlon at the Moscow Olympics. Simms reminds him of the Olympic accomplishments of late-starting decathlon Gold Medalist Bill Toomey. The youth is also buoyed by the unprecedented feat of Bob Mathias, who won a decathlon championship in his first Olympic competition.

During this training period, Wayne meets two people who are to have a major influence on him and his struggle toward his dream of winning an Olympic gold medal. One is Gene Davis (Lawson). He's a cocky, flamboyant fellow-competitor whose only apparent concern centers around the financial rewards of Olympic participation. The other is a pretty, equally dedicated Russian gymnast, Anya Andreyev (Zimbalist), with whom Wayne falls in love and who tenderly responds to his affection.

The romance, however, begins to clash with their determination to succeed personally as well as to become their country's athletic representatives. This, of course, creates a problem they must overcome as the 1980 Olympiad approaches.

In Part II, as they start their Olympic competition in Moscow, even the confident Davis begins to rile against the commercial machinations of his ever-plotting manager and promoter Marv Jordan (McMahon) while Robinson's preoccupation with Anya is of serious concern to his coach Dane Oliver (Jones).

Anya, too, is admonished by her family that her only thoughts should be of her Olympic performance.

AT THE OLYMPICS — Stephanie Zimbalist, as a Russian gymnast, and David Keith, as an American athlete, star in "Golden Moment: An Olympic Love Story," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast Sunday and Monday, May 25 and 26 (9-11 p.m. both nights) on NBC-TV.

Seven former champions, including last year's winner, Rick Mears, will be among the leading entrants in the Indianapolis "500" the most important auto race in the world.

ABC Sports will present an expanded three-hour telecast of the race on the same day in prime time, Sunday, May 25 (9 p.m.).

The mammoth spectacle is one of the biggest single-day sporting events in the world on the basis of attendance (estimated at 300,000) and prize money (over $1 million).

Last year, Rick Mears won the race from the pole position in only his second try at the storied Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

A.J. Foyt, the only four-time winner in the history of the "500," will be back for the 23rd consecutive time. Runner-up to Mears a year ago, Foyt has two of the 99 cars entered in the race. He'll either drive a VPJ-Foyt or a WPJ-Cosworth. Time trials cut the field to 33 cars.

Other former champions of the Indy race who are getting ready for its 64th running are Al Unser, a three-time victor; Bobby Unser and Johnny Rutherford, two-time winners; and Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock.

Andretti, one of America's most versatile racers, became the second U.S. winner of the World Driving Championships in 1978. Last year, his commitment to Formula One racing and a conflict in dates between the Indy "500" and the Grand Prix of Monaco forced him to miss Indy. This year is different, and Andretti will be shooting for his second "500" victory.

Rutherford, winner of the race in 1974 and 1976, is regarded as a major challenger this year. On April 13, in the only previous 1980 Indy-type car race, the Ontario "200," Rutherford won the pole position and also the race in his Chaparral.

Other strong challenges are expected from Tom Sneva, first man to break the 200-mph barrier at Indy and the record holder for the four-lap qualifier with a time.

Rather To 'Follow', Not 'Replace'

DAN RATHER to follow Walter Cronkite as Dean of "CBS Evening News."

Although some people will disagree, the anchor seat of the "CBS Evening News" isn't the throne of England or the Presidency of the United States. Just as the 1980s won't succeed or replace the '70s or '60s, Dan Rather will not be succeeding Walter Cronkite when he takes over the reins early next year. Nor will he replace Walter.

The 80s will simply follow the last two decades. They will be marked by their own crises, triumphs and changes. So, too, Dan will follow Walter as anchor for the highly praised program. He, too, will have his own triumphs along with the crises and will evolve them in his own way.

Cronkite has helped shape television in a most powerful and creative way. He's provided a sense of trust and respect that at times seemed to be one of the few threads holding together an otherwise torn and weary nation. Selecting an individual to follow Walter was probably the network's most difficult decision of the past year. And it was made even more difficult by the abundance of talented correspondents at CBS News.

Dan Rather's new position comes after nearly 20 years of service at the network. He's covered a wide-ranging number of domestic and foreign assignments, from the assassination of President Kennedy to his latest role as a correspondent on "60 Minutes." After Rather takes over his new duties, he'll also anchor future election night and convention broadcasts, as well as a number of major special events.

Bill Leonard, President of CBS News, has mixed emotions regarding the change-over. "I view this new assignment with a mixture of enthusiasm and sadness — sadness that Walter feels he must get away from the day-today grind, and enthusiasm that we've picked Dan Rather. He's a journalist of impeccable qualifications who embodies the great traditions of our network that go back more than fifty years."

Leonard further said that Dan has distinguished himself in every phase of broadcast journalism. "I have absolute confidence that the 'CBS Evening News,' with him at the helm, will continue and expand its leadership."

Jane Fonda Debuts in 'Dollmaker'

Linda Likes Role

In real life, Linda Gray is the opposite of Sue Ellen, the nasty gal she portrays on "Dallas." But she still get a kick out of the role.

"If I were in a series where I had to be nice all the time I'd be so bored," she said. "I can get all my frustrations out as Sue Ellen. Also, while I'm doing something I really enjoy, I'm earning a bit of money, too."

Different Twist

There was a different twist to the taping of an hour-long television pilot, titled "Live at the Backlot." It was filmed at one of the country's best known nightclubs, Studio One. Top-lining the show are Tom Dreesen, Maureen McGovern and Rick and Ruby.

Jane Fonda, a two-time winner of an Academy Award for Best Actress, will make her dramatic television debut in "The Dollmaker," an ABC Theatre presentation. She'll portray Gertie Nevels in the drama, based on Harriette Arnow's American Classic of the same name.

During World War II, Nevels is a fiercely self-reliant woman who is uprooted from her home in the Kentucky hills. With her five children she accompanies her husband to Detroit where he works in a factory. Displaced from the land she loves, Gertie endures incredible hardship and great personal anguish through which she struggles, survives and ultimately triumphs.

"We are very excited that Ms. Fonda, one of the most sought-after superstars today, chose to make her dramatic television debut on ABC," says the network's Tony Thomopoulos. "We know that her talent and conviction will bring this story of courage and determination alive."

Last year, the actress won her second Oscar for "Coming Home," the moving story of a handicapped Vietnam War veteran. Her first one came in 1971 for her performance in "Klute." She was also nominated for Best Actress in 1969 for "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" and in '77 for "Julia."

Fonda made her first feature film in 1960, starring with Tony Perkins in "Tall Story." Among her credits are: "Walk on the Wild Side," "Period of Adjustment," "Sunday in New York," "Cat Ballou," "The Chase," "Any Wednesday," "Hurry Sundown," "Barefoot in the Park" and "Barbarella." On Broadway she starred in "Sunday in New York," "Any Wednesday" and "Barefoot in the Park."

Behind The Scenes

Since John Femia moved to California last summer, the Brooklyn-born teen-ager's had a ball touring Disneyland, comparing footprints in front of Mann's Chinese Theater and making new friends.

Most of all, he enjoys working on the set of NBC-TV's comedy series, "Hello, Larry," in which he plays the role of the Alders' wise-cracking young neighbor, Tommy.

In fact, John's enjoyed himself so much that the only twinges of homesickness for his native New York are those he feels for his beloved dog.

Femia says that he and the character he plays in the series can't be classed as duplicates.

"Tommy likes all sports and he's more athletic," he explains. "I only like baseball. We do both like girls, but in a different way. Tommy's much more anxious than I am. He's more like one of my friends back home."

John made his professional debut in a small part in "Nunzio," a 1978 feature film about a mentally retarded boy. Then, a few months later, he received extremely favorable reviews for his performance as Aurelio in "New York City Too Far From Tampa Blues," an NBC 'Special Treat' presentation.

The youth had never taken formal acting lessons until moving to Los Angeles. Now his dream is to be a stand-up comedian like Steve Martin or George Carlin. His wit, warm personality and dramatic talents all fall into the category of being natural. At the moment John is very pleased with all aspects of his life — naturally.

NATALIA MAKAROVA will dance the lead role in the American Ballet Theatre's new production of Ludwig Minkus' "La Bayadere," choreographed by Miss Makarova, to be nationally televised on PBS' "LIVE FROM LINCOLN CENTER" Wednesday, May 28 at 8:00 p.m.

Michele Will Tell

Q: On the daytime series "Days of Our Lives," Doug and Julie are separated, and I wish they'd get back together. Are they apart in real life, too? J.B., LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: Doug and Julie may have hit 'Splitville,' but off-camera Bill and Susan Seaforth Hayes have one of Hollywood's happiest marriages. They met on the show, were wed in 1974, and their relationship seems to thrive on constant togetherness. "We look at everything the same way," says Susan, "and our priorities are exactly the same." As for Doug and Julie...with all the changes underway regarding 'Days,' there's no telling WHAT will happen next!

Q: I'd like to know something about Anthony Hopkins. Also, where do I write to him? P. PETZOLD, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: The English actor is considered to be one of the most acclaimed stage, TV and film performers on both sides of the Atlantic. His rise to stardom has come via portrayals of widely different characters, and it's been as much the result of personal determination as the luck he credits. Hopkins, who's approaching his 40th birthday, was raised in Port Talbot, in the southern sector of Wales. "We're a sombre breed and maybe the weather has something to do with it," he quips. "My wife says we Welshman are all bloody pessimists. She may be right." Send your letter to Hopkins c/o Peter Witt Associates, 321 S. Beverly Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Q: My sister and I have a bet about Larry Wilcox. I say that he divorced his first wife and is going to marry again. She says it's not true. Who's right? C. DAY, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: YOU are — almost! Larry ended his marriage to Judy Wagner several months ago, and married Hannie Strasser in April.

Q: I thought the marriage vows that Chris and Snapper exchanged on "The Young and the Restless" were lovely, and I'd like to use them in my wedding. How may I obtain a copy of them? S. ROWE, CHOCOWINITY, N.C.

A: Write to the show's producer, John Conboy. His address is: Columbia Pictures Television, 300 S. Colgems Square, Burbank, Calif. 91506. You'd better check with your minister first, though.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO 'MICHELE,' GREENVILLE DAILY REFLECTOR, P.O. BOX 1451, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

Lincoln Center Presents 'La Bayadere'

"Live From Lincoln Center" will nationally televise the American Ballet Theatre's new production of "La Bayadere," staged by Natalia Makarova and danced by Miss Makarova and Anthony Dowell, on Wednesday, May 28, (8 to 11 p.m.) on PBS.

The new production of the full-length "La Bayadere," which will be premiered on May 21st, is choreographed by Miss Makarova after Marius Petipa. The music by Ludwig Minkus has been specially arranged by John Lanchbery who will conduct the ABT orchestra. The scenery is by PierLuigi Samaritani, the costumes are by Theoni V. Aldredge and the lighting is by Toshiro Ogawa.

Miss Makarova has previously been seen on "Live From Lincoln Center" in the ABT productions of "Swan Lake" and "Giselle." Born in Leningrad, she joined the Kirov Ballet in 1959 and remained with that company until she sought political asylum in London on September 4, 1970.

In October 1970, Miss Makarova became a Principal Dancer with American Ballet Theatre, a company, she says, whose varied repertoire particularly appealed to her. She made her debut with ABT on December 22, 1970 partnered by Ivan Nagy in "Giselle" at the City Center 55th Street Theatre. Since then, while continuing to perform with ABT, she has appeared as a guest artist with companies throughout the world.

Miss Makarova's repertory, in addition to her leading role in "La Bayadere," includes leading roles in "Giselle," "Don Quixote," "The Nutcracker," "The Sleeping Beauty," "Swan Lake," "La Sylphide," "Firebird," and "Les Sylphides." She also performs Jerome Robbins' "Other Dances," a pas de deux created for Mikhail Baryshnikov and Mis Makarova in the Spring of 1976, and "Contredances," created for her and Anthony Dowell by Glen Tetley in the Spring of 1979.

Anthony Dowell, born in London, is considered one of the great dancers of our time. He received most of his ballet training at The Royal Ballet School, and joined The Royal Ballet in 1962. He made his American Ballet Theatre debut at a Gala Performance during the Summer of 1976, dancing the Black Swan pas de deux with Natalia Makarova. He joined ABT as a Principal Dancer in the fall of 1978 on a leave of absence from

The Royal Ballet.

Mr. Dowell's repertory with ABT includes leading roles in "Don Quixote," "Giselle," "The Nutcracker," "Swan Lake," John Neumeir's "Desir" and Jerome Robbins' "Other Dances."

Front Line Report

Neil Davis, an Australian cameraman/correspondent, covered the Vietnam War for 11 years and tells of his experiences in the hour-long documentary Front Line, airing Tuesday, May 27 (9 p.m.) on PBS.

Davis was 30 when he arrived in Vietnam in 1964. He'd had no previous combat experience, but before long his footage, filmed for a British-based television news syndicate, was watched by millions of people around the world.

"I would always try to go to the extreme front line, because that's where the best film is," says Davis. "You can't get it if you're 100 meters behind the soldiers with a telephoto lens," he adds. "You don't see the faces, the expressions on their faces. You don't see the compassion that they may show for their wounded comrades — or their enemy, for that matter... The only way to show that was being in the front line, the real front line."

VALERIE HARPER AND MAX GAIL star in the dramatic film "Fun and Games," the "ABC Monday Night Movie," May 26 (9-11 p.m.).

TV Movie Deals With Harassment

Almost a year ago, Fay Kanin and Lillian Gallo, who'd just set up their own production company, took a stack of clippings to ABC executives. The clippings, from publications as diverse as Ms., the New York Times, Redbook and Vogue, dealt with sexual harassment on the job. Kanin and Gallo got the 'go' signal the same day, a 'yes' from Valerie Harper to star soon after, and produced the first TV film to deal with the problem. The end result is "Fun and Games," airing as The ABC Monday Night Movie, May 26 (9 to 11 p.m.).

During this same period of time, the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunities Commission had been considering that same problem. On March 11 of this year, the EEOC issued interim guidelines stating explicitly that "...unwelcomed sexual advances are unlawful whether verbal or physical in nature." The guidelines provide clarification in the sex discrimination area of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The new guidelines put employers on alert: they have "...an affirmative duty...to insure that the work situation is free of discrimination in any form..." Further, an employer is held responsible for the actions of its supervisory employees. Because few women are willing to come forward with accusations of sexual harassment because of fear of retaliation, Title VII prohibits an employer from dismissing an employee who has a complaint. The new rules apply to federal, state and local government agencies and private employers with 15 or more employees. And they cover complaints by men as well as women. Should an employer refuse to settle a complaint through the conciliation process, the EEOC can file suit. An injured employee can receive back pay, reinstatement to a job, promotion, or other types of relief available under Title VII.

Valerie Harper heard about the EEOC action during the shooting of "Fun and Games."

"I'm more proud of this film than of anything I've ever done on television," says Jason Miller, in a conversation about "The Henderson Monster," airing Tuesday, May 27 (9 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

"The title, when taken out of context of the script, might make it sound like a horror film. Of course, it isn't at all. It's a highly literate, intelligent, thought-provoking and thoroughly timely drama."

Miller's character, Dr. Tom Henderson, is a gruff, brilliant and egotistical Nobel Prize-winning scientist embroiled in a controversy over recombinant DNA research. This is the laboratory creation of new life forms with the genetic ability to enhance the world. However, once out of control, they could easily have the potential of destroying it.

Christine Lahti also stars as Henderson's P.H.D. assistant, Louise Casimir. Her husband — a glib, cynical, perceptive and hard-drinking science-fiction writer — is portrayed by Stephen Collins. Others in key roles are David Spielberg, Nehemiah Persoff and Larry Gates.

"I really didn't know an awful lot about the film's subject," Miller admitted, "except for bits and pieces I'd picked up from reading news magazines and newspaper items. Actually, it was from a newspaper magazine article that Herbert Brodtkin (the executive producer) got the idea to do the film."

Brodtkin and Buzz (Robert 'Buzz' Berger, the producer), of course, are, as Jason says, "the Tiffany of production teams. They've been doing top quality — and I mean consistently top — for years."

Miller also stated that the script for this film is the "best for television that has ever been submitted to me, in terms of its content, playability and characterizations. I can honestly say I was in awe of it. It is well constructed, and it has various themes woven into it. The intellectuality never bogs down."

JASON MILLER AND CHRISTINE LAHTI star as a Nobel Prize-winning scientist and his assistant in "The Henderson Monster," to be presented Tuesday, May 27 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Spiraling out from the central theme, the drama evokes serious questions about scientific responsibility and man's future in a world he may not be able to handle.

It focuses on how such a project can affect individuals in an academic community which is divided in its opinion of the project and motivated by a variety of forces. These include personal ambitions, politics, old grudges, self-doubts and insecurity.

"The important question is how much precaution to use to prevent such research from getting out of hand," continued Miller. "That's what this film is all about."

Who's The Culprit?

After all these months, Claude Akins is still searching for the infamous Golf Ball Bandit.

What started out as a one-time joke about a year ago, has turned into a running gag that's driving Akins goofy. Someone is bombarding the star of NBC-TV's "The Misadventures of Sheriff Lobo" (Tuesdays, 8 to 9 p.m.) with a barrage of battered golf balls.

Akins is a fanatic golfer who spends every spare minute on the greens. And he first became aware of the Golf Ball Bandit when he reported to work last fall and went to get into his costume. He slipped his foot into his boot, but something stopped it. He shook the boot and out rolled a golf ball.

Later that same day he was sipping a cup of coffee. He looked away for just a second, and when he looked back, a golf ball was floating in his coffee.

"That was the start of it," laughs Akins. "It hasn't let up since. Whoever is doing this is a genius. Those golf balls are showing up in the craziest places — and I can't figure out who it is."

The City Becomes A 'Star'

In recent years, Washington, D.C., has become a starring player in a number of movies. It's one American city with an atmosphere purely its own, with imposing buildings, mammoth sculptures, broad boulevards and sweeping vistas. Like any 'star,' it has a personality. And, in this case, it's the feel of power and authority, of secret power struggles hiding behind an impersonal facade.

This feeling is an integral part of the suspense drama, "The President's Mistress," to be rebroadcast on The CBS Saturday Night Movies, May 31 (9 to 11 p.m.).

The film involves Washington intrigue at the highest possible level when the mistress of a United States President is suspected of being a Russian agent. The subsequent top-secret investigation leads to an accidental death, a cover-up murder and, eventually, the discovery of a power cabal within the administration pulling the strings for purposes of its own.

Beau Bridges and Susan Blanchard play a couple thrown into the middle of the dangerous wheelings and dealings. Karen Grassle plays the President's mistress. Larry Hagman and Joel Fabiani portray Washington schemers.

The story demanded authentic Washington settings, and once again the city was cast in a leading part.

The uniqueness of the location was obvious as soon as cameras started rolling across the street from the White House to shoot a scene in which Bridges spies on the comings and goings at the executive mansion. On the opposite side of the street, several groups of actual picketers marched, each with its own demand or protest. A steady stream of camera-toting tourists passed by. Inside the White House, a network television crew was filming an interview with the First Lady.

The movie makers had to complete their work by lunchtime to give way to a large-scale demonstration scheduled for the afternoon.

Fonda Debuts

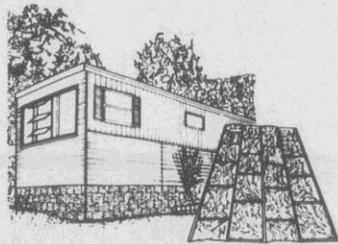

Jane Fonda, a two-time winner of an Academy Award for Best Actress, will make her dramatic television debut in "The Dollmaker," an ABC Theatre presentation. She'll portray Gertie Nevels in the drama, based on Harriette Arnow's American Classic of the same name.

During World War II, Nevels is a fiercely self-reliant woman who is uprooted from her home in the Kentucky hills. With her five children she accompanies her husband to Detroit where he works in a factory. Displaced from the land she loves, Gertie endures incredible hardship and great personal anguish through which she struggles, survives and ultimately triumphs.

"We are very excited that Ms. Fonda, one of the most sought-after superstars today, chose to make her dramatic television debut on ABC," says the network's Tony Thomopoulos. "We know that her talent and conviction will bring this story of courage and determination alive."

Fonda made her first feature film in 1960, starring with Tony Perkins in "Tall Story." Among her credits are: "Walk on the Wild Side," "Period of Adjustment," "Sunday in New York," "Cat Ballou," "The Chase," "Any Wednesday," "Hurry Sundown," "Barefoot in the Park" and "Barbarella." On Broadway she starred in "Sunday in New York," "Any Wednesday" and "Barefoot in the Park."

Jane's Role Was Lucky

"Most of my roles were of smart, well-turned out women," says Jane Wyman. "But when I strayed from that image, I had my greatest success." This, of course, was her Academy Award-winning performance in the 1948 film "Johnny Belinda," in which she portrayed a deaf-mute outcast in a rural mountain community.

Wyman again portrayed a character she describes as "a lucky role," in "The Incredible Journey of Doctor Meg Laurel," to be rebroadcast Wednesday, May 28 (8 to 11 p.m.), on CBS-TV. Lindsay Wagner stars in the title role as the Boston physician who tries to bring her modern (1930's) knowledge to benefit a backwoods community in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia.

Wyman, who first gained renown as a light comedienne, portrays Granny Arrowroot in the drama. And the character is a mountain 'folk doctor' who calls on her "twenty times four years of mountain learnin'" to administer to her flock's ills.

Granny finds herself prodded into some understanding of modern techniques for treating the sick as she patiently leads "outlander" Meg Laurel into an understanding of the ways of the hill people of Appalachia.

It's a role Jane Wyman loves and understands. "Granny Arrowroot is a woman of great wisdom and great insight," she says. "But she has very little in the classic definition of the term sophistication. She is a special kind of woman."

Wyman is considered by many as a special kind of actress. She was first acclaimed for her dramatic ability after her role in the Oscar-winning "The Lost Weekend." In 1947, she was nominated for an Oscar for her performance in "The Yearling." She credits her early training as a singer and dancer and comedienne for her success as a dramatic actress. "You learn timing, you learn to react, and you learn to work and work until you get it just right."

LINDSAY WAGNER (l) stars in the title role of "The Incredible Journey of Doctor Meg Laurel," and Jane Wyman portrays Granny Arrowroot, in the three-hour drama to be rebroadcast Wednesday, May 28 (8-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Wyman had been in the profession for many years before receiving her first accolades as a "serious" talent. But it was an apprenticeship that she found invaluable, and she warns that it takes more discipline in today's entertainment world's accelerated pace. "Television is responsible for the biggest change in the development of today's talent," she points out. "It's now possible for a young actor to become known to millions of viewers after only one role. Only a mature and serious youngster, in these circumstances will have the incentive to expand," she concluded.

To See Is To Believe

Hypnotized lobsters, a hog-calling contest and an empty opera house that's right in the middle of the California desert are among the highlights of "Real People," airing Wednesday, May 28 (8 to 9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Hosting the popular series are Sarah Purcell, John Barbour, Skip Stephenson and comedian Bryon Allen.

Frank Hashorva's the man who hypnotizes lobsters, and Skip will be talking to him at his home in Philadelphia. Next the series' cameras zero in on a hog-calling and swine beauty contest in North Platte, Neb. Then Purcell visits the Mojave Desert opera house where the 'audience' is painted on flats.

Other features include: People tickling themselves at Los Angeles' Farmers Market. A look at the fanciest dressed chickens in Lexington, Ky. A visit (with Bill Rafferty) to a Boston school for wrestlers, run by former wrestler Killer Kowalski.

Hope Celebrates

Bob Hope will continue his practice of big variety birthday parties when NBC-TV presents "Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Birthday Party at the Air Force Academy: A USO Salute," Wednesday, May 28 (9:30 to 11 p.m.). To help Hope celebrate his 77th birthday, Diana Ross, Andy Gibb, Loni Anderson, Barbara Mandrell and champion ice skaters Randy Gardner and Tai Babilonia will be on hand at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Top acts in their field will be performing before an audience of 50,000 people in the Air Force's Falcon Stadium. Superstar Diana Ross is one of the most popular female singers of the past 20 years. She has sung lead vocals on 16 number-one records since 1964. Only the Beatles and Elvis Presley have had more number-one records.

Andy Gibb is a top recording artist in his own right. He has had three number one singles, including "Shadow Dancing." He has two songs on the current Hot 100, "Desire" and a duet with Olivia Newton-John, "I Can't Help It." Loni Anderson has been winning fans with her performance as the bright, sensitive and beautiful Jennifer on "WKRP in Cincinnati." And Barbara Mandrell has had a succession of chart-topping hits on the country charts.

Randy Gardner and Tai Babilonia were considered top contenders for Gold Medal honors in the 1980 Winter Olympics until they had to withdraw when Gardner suffered an injury. They have now turned professional and recently signed a contract with the Ice Capades.

This will be the third consecutive year that NBC has televised a birthday salute to Hope and the years this entertainer has provided audiences with his delightful wit and humor are worth celebrating.

'Where Is Bob Newhart?'

"Ladies and Gentlemen...Bob Newhart" is the title of the popular humorist's first network comedy special, to be rebroadcast Thursday, May 29 (10-11 p.m.), on CBS. However, there was a time when the cry went up from Greg ured we needed every second of the time allotted us. However, Bob didn't show up until after 7, and we were a bit frantic." Newhart, who's noted for his promptness, was actually a victim of circumstances beyond his control. On that day, he'd ar-roused the bewildered store manager. Then he learned it was the Burbank store he was looking for — and he was already a half-hour behind schedule. The timing was also critical for another important reason. "We had to make another quick move to a local Burbank cemetery for another sketch," said Tighe, "and we had to be in and out of there by 9:30 a.m. We were literally running a casket to the cemetery, using several jogging pallbearers in a comedy spot about a newly departed jogger. And a real funeral was due at 9:30 a.m. We didn't want to offend the honest mourners with our comedy sketch, so we had to be out of there on time."

BOB NEWHART stars in the comedy special, "Ladies and Gentlemen...Bob Newhart" airing Thursday, May 29 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Garrison, the producer-director, "Ladies and gentlemen...where the heck is Bob Newhart?"

The setting was a prominent local Burbank, Calif., grocery store, where arrangements had been made for a tight filming schedule from 6:30 to 8 a.m. The crew had to be out of the store no later than that to allow store officials to ready the premises for regular business.

"We were filming Newhart's very funny monologue on inflation," said Garrison's associate producer, Janet Tighe. "It was a three-minute spot, and we fig-ranged for a special limousine service to pick him up instead of the regular driver. And he did this so that he might be driven later to an informational program on the problems of child abuse that was being sponsored by his wife in a nearby town.

The limo driver dutifully picked up Newhart in plenty of time to be at the location by 6:30. But, alas, he drove him to the only grocery store in that particular chain that he knew of, another branch in Sherman Oaks. Newhart continually knocked on the unopened doors and finally

What Makes You Laugh?

Pam Dawber, Martin Mull and Milton Berle join Chevy Chase in a romp through several comedy sketches in an effort to find out what makes people laugh in "The Chevy Chase National Humor Test." The spoof of national TV tests, also featuring Dr. Joyce Brothers, Hugh Hefner and jazz musician Tom Scott, will be rebroadcast Thursday, May 29 (9 to 10 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Chase opens the show with some nonsensical remarks about humor, introduces his 'Humor Council,' and embarks on a trip to a museum for a misguided tour of the history of humor.

A visit with the curator (Carl Gottlieb) of the Great Hall of Jokes ends in total disaster, at which point the first of a number of multiple-choice humor tests is given.

Chevy is also seen in a love scene with Pam Dawber. Then he's dropped by parachute into the secret National Humor Forest, where he undergoes a grueling Humor Survival Test.

Mull portrays a 'professional comedian' as he tries to define humor with the aid of admirers — Christopher Guest, Harry Shearer and Tom Leopold.

SPOTLIGHT

Course Brought Change

DOUG BARR

The rough and tumble world of heavy construction people that's the focal point of ABC-TV's "When the Whistle Blows" is far removed from a majority of viewers' lives. It's also one of the last places a young actor named Doug Barr ever thought he'd find himself in. But he's not complaining!

Doug, who grew up in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, planned most of his life on a career with the diplomatic corps.

During his second year of studies at George Washington University, he even enrolled in the World Campus Afloat, a college program. Its participants circumnavigate the globe in a ship while continuing to study in their chosen fields.

"Say you're about to make port in Tokyo," Barr explains. "In the weeks before that, you study the Japanese political system. On land, you have the chance to check it out."

The ship's last port of call was New York, and Barr said, "That's when I realized I had lost interest in being a diplomat."

He then returned to G.W., only to find that he needed some extra credits in order to graduate. He decided on "something easy" —

Last year he moved to Los Angeles when he was offered a role in a television pilot, "Semi Tough." This was followed by his role of Buzz Dillard in "When the Whistle Blows." He's also made a movie, "The Unseen," that's not been released yet.

The quiet-spoken actor says he enjoys skiing, tennis and other racquet sports along with swimming. He is also a talented painter, and lately has been experimenting in oils and acrylics. "I'm not sure I'll ever be salable, but it's great therapy," he admits.

Doug's a single who likes to "date around." He hopes to marry and settle down one day, "but not any time soon," he adds with a grin.

a drama course. "Needless to say," he reflects, "it changed the entire course of my life."

The summer following graduation, the handsome brown-eyed brunette headed for Paris, where he worked as a model. "When I decided to come back to the U.S., I went to New York and was able to work at modeling regularly." Eventually, he branched out into commercials, and this meant there was enough extra cash to add acting classes to his schedule.

Doug started out with parts in off-off Broadway productions, then got several roles in New York's Catskill Mountain resorts and summer stock.

A Wacky Race Airs

A flat-out, full-speed, coast-to-coast car race, in which a pit-stop encounter with a beautiful woman is more hazardous than a head-on collision on the highway, turns a bizarre combination of apparently sane citizens into wincrazy roadrunners in "The Gumball Rally," a comedy adventure to be rebroadcast on The ABC Friday Night Movie, May 30 (8-10 p.m.).

Michael Sarrazin stars as the bored New York executive who decides to put a little more action into his life by organizing an illegal cross-country car rally for his fellow car buffs. The drivers are strictly non-professional (except for one amorous Italian pro whose passion for fast cars is exceeded only by his adoration of fast ladies). The police detective who is determined to stop the race is supposedly professional, but his conduct doesn't prove it.

The eager contestants are two rich old men, two off-duty cops, two country bumpkins, three delivery men, a mad motorcyclist, a Harvard professor, the organizer and his partner, the pro and his sponsor (who is so unscrupulous he won't even abide by the illegal rules of the illegal race) and two romantic racing housewives who are perfectly happy to be more than friendly with any mechanic who will guarantee them fast car repairs.

Breakdowns, accidents, police traps, roadblocks and hasty love affairs slow the dauntless drivers for a moment or two along the way. A voluptuous blonde hitchhiker almost puts the pro out of the race altogether, but nothing can stop them in their headlong race for the ultimate prize — a candy machine.

Normann Burton, Raul Julia, Gary Busey, Susan Flannery and Tim McIntire are among the cast members. Busey, who was a sensation in the title role of "The Buddy Holly Story," is also featured (without guitar) as one of the reckless roadsters.

The performers treat their comic bits with flair, and Julia is a standout as the smooth-talking, fast-driving Italian who makes love like he's heading for a finish line and keeps a supply of long, stylish white scarves always handy.

Special On 'Merv'

A 90-minute special about the hit musical comedy "Can't Stop the Music" will be aired on "The Merv Griffin Show" June 20. The show was recently taped in New York City.

Witch Makes Switch

An old fashioned witch and two children with a curiosity for the unknown, ban together in an animated tale of magic and adventure in "The Trouble With Miss Switch," on the ABC Weekend Specials, Saturday, May 31 (12-noon to 12:30 p.m.).

Miss Switch is a washed-up witch-turned-schoolteacher when she is banished to the world of ordinary folks because her witchcraft is thought to be out of date. But she still has problems even in the land of the ordinary.

Rupert and Amelia are the students who suspect that their new teacher is something special. The children become suspicious when strange things occur in the classroom, such as a blackboard erasing itself and a spitball that backfires on the smart aleck who aimed it at the teacher's back.

Miss Switch is not only special

Assesses Cutbacks

Because of the recently announced BBC cutbacks, PBS will begin looking for other domestic and foreign markets, according to a spokesman for the network. Since the largest part of these cutbacks are in the area of network programming — tele-features and docudramas — it is expected to reduce the number of British imports available.

Most of PBS' foreign shows — about 105 of its total programing — come from the BBC.

because of her magic, her human qualities are the ones that make her unique. She is a very good and totally fair teacher who understands what it's like to be a kid. It doesn't hurt her relationship with them either when they discover she can make them float; a neat trick that would win any kid's heart. And that's just what she does.

When Miss Switch confides in Rupert and Amelia that she is about to be banished to the Dead Forest by the evil Comput-O-Witch, the children devise a plan to save their new extraordinary friend. They are finally confronted with the wicked Saturna, the unfeeling computer, when they fly past the point where the moon turns into a skull (a sure sign that you're nearing the Dead Forest). It is at this point when it must be decided who will be the stronger.

HOLLYWOOD — The hot 'n' heavy romance between PENNY MARSHALL and ART GARFUNKEL has cooled down a bit with the news that the divorce he obtained five years ago in Haiti has been declared invalid.

LOU FERRIGNO's wedding to agent CARLA GREEN was supposed to be a very quiet, intimate affair with only immediate family and a few close friends attending. But 'THE HULK' changed his mind at the last minute, and the incredibly small affair turned out to be a real bash with a top-disco group keeping things lively for about 250 guests.

The latest actress who's decided to sponsor a line of cosmetics is LYNDIA CARTER. The gorgeous gal's just signed a long-term contract with MAYBELLINE. She's also been named beauty and fashion director for the firm.

One of Tinseltown's happiest couples — SHIRLEY JONES and MARTY INGELS — have consented to a TV film about their courtship. And they'll be playing themselves!

SKIP STEPHENSON suffered a hair-line fracture of his right hand just as the "REAL PEOPLE" co-host was to begin filming a "LOVE BOAT" special. It happened in a freak accident aboard the ship that was en route to the Caribbean.

ERIK ESTRADA'S pretty blonde wife, JOYCE, is on the mend after hurry-up surgery for acute glaucoma. Fortunately, the operation was a complete success, and doctors have assured the couple that there's little or no chance for a recurrence.

Here's a coincidence...JODIE FOSTER was signed to star as a college freshman in a motion picture, "THE PETTING ZOO," before its producers even knew she'd been accepted as a first-year student by Harvard. But Jodie'll still topline the cast, because on-location filming will be done on the campus of nearby Sarah Lawrence. This means the young actress should have no problems going from classes to camera, then back again.

LONI ANDERSON took time out from her "WKRP IN CINCINNATI" chores the other day to be the guest of honor at a fund-raising dinner for an L.A. Girl Scout group. Loni — who made the occasion a huge success — was given a plaque by the grateful youngsters expressing their appreciation.

20th Anniversary

When Henry Mancini consented to compose the original score for Blake Edwards' feature film, "S.O.B.," there was a special reason to celebrate — it's their 20th anniversary as a team.

This film marks the 18th collaboration between Mancini and Blake over the past two decades.

Wants To Sit In

Ron Guidry, former Cy Young winner and hurling ace for the New York Yankees, is an avid drummer and was once the leader of his own band. He says one of his fantasies is to sit in with Billy Joel, and, in return, he would let the composer-songwriter take the mound against some of the American League's top sluggers, like Jim Rice, George Brett and Rod Carew.

Borg Top Male

The top-seeded male tennis player in the world, Bjorn Borg, was topping the list in earnings as of May 2, with a total of $332,700. But Martina Navratilova was more than $10,000 richer by the same date, with a sum of $343,175.

Problems Did Help

Jim McGee

Last year, professional golfer Jerry McGee was having problems with his sponsor and took the issue into court on two occasions. Each of the separate court visits happened to fall a couple of days after major events on the PGA Tour, and probably would have broken the necessary concentration of many golfers.

McGee, however, seemed to channel his energies effectively and shot his way to one-stroke victories in both tournaments — the Kemper Open and the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

McGee will be on hand, along with a collection of the finest players on the Tour, to try and defend his Kemper title. CBS Sports will telecast third-round action on Saturday, May 31 (4-5 p.m.).

Struggles Have Started

The Boston Red Sox have a habit of staying right in the thick of the race for the American league crown until it really counts.

The team, already off to an unimpressive start in 1980, will try to improve its record when the Milwaukee Brewers make a visit to Fenway Park on the Major League Game of the Week. NBC will telecast the division rivalry match-up on Saturday, May 31 (2:15-5 p.m.).

Last season, the Red Sox led the league in hitting (.283), homers (194), and were third in runs. But while Milwaukee sports a talented bench, Boston has been lacking in that department and has also been plagued by injuries in the past.

One big reason Boston was able to stay near the top of the AL East standings in 1979 was the powerful bat and outfielder's glove of Fred Lynn.

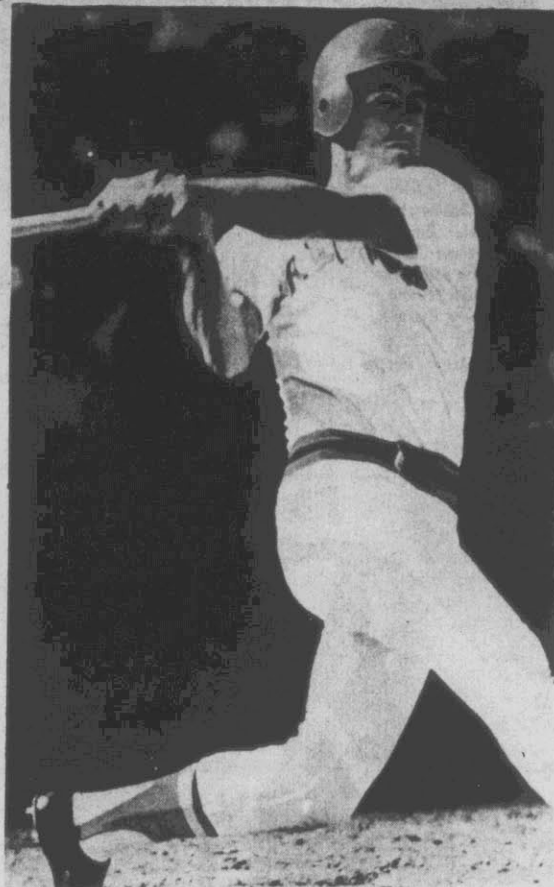

Lynn, who is joined in the outfield by Jim Rice and Gold Glover Dwight Evans, had his greatest all-around year after five years in the majors. He led the league with a .333 batting average and a .637 slugging percentage, making him the first AL player to sweep both categories since Tony Oliva did it in 1971.

Fred, 28, was born in Chicago and resides in Placentia, Calif., when he's not in uniform.

The Red Sox made Lynn their second draft choice in 1973. He was a three-year regular for Ron Dedeaux at the University of Southern California and made All-American in 1972 and 1973. Despite winning several batting titles in Little League and high school, he entered USC on a football scholarship, although he switched to baseball after his freshman year.

Lynn has a lifetime batting average of .309 with Boston to put him in the eighth spot on the team's all-time list. The only other active Red Sox on the list is Jim Rice, who is seventh with .310.

In 1979, Fred led Boston in game-winning RBI's with 13, and tied with Rice to lead in homers (39). Lynn cranked out 28 of his in Fenway. He was also named "Baseball" Magazine's "Center Fielder of the Decade."

But even if Boston usually proves to be a disappointment in the waning days of the season, the club still has some of the greatest fans anywhere.

"The Red Sox always get a big boost from the New England fans, who are really amazing," says Manager Don Zimmer. "It's a thrill to play in Fenway Park with them rooting behind you. We've come awfully close the past three years and I know it won't be easy in 1980."

Boston drew over two million fans on the road last year to rank third in the American League. Since Zimmer came on the scene more than three years ago, the Sox have averaged 96 wins per season.

Feels Responsible

Last season, "Walloping" Willie Horton was the Seattle Mariners' bread and butter at the plate, with 29 homers and 106 RBI's, but so far in 1980, he's been struggling. "I've got to start hitting. I've got to. These people have been good to me."

Is Happy Again

Bert Blyleven, who has been one of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates' most dependable hurlers, expressed that, for the first time in a long time, he is happy after informing the Bucs' front office that he is quitting and wants to be traded.

Scott, Martin Meet In Match

Live coverage of the boxing bout between James Scott and Jerry Martin, the AIAW National Collegiate Swimming Championships from Las Vegas and a report on the Indianapolis "500" will be featured on NBC's "SportsWorld," on Sunday, May 25 (4:30-6 p.m.).

The 10-round light-heavyweight match between Scott and Martin will be telecast from Rahway (N.J.) State Prison, where Scott is inmate No. 57735. Scott will enter the ring with a record of 18-0-1, with 10 knockouts, while Martin has an 18-1-0 tally, with 12 KO's.

Scott made big headlines as a fighter when he upset then top-ranked WBA light-heavyweight Eddie Gregory at Rahway in October of 1978. He is currently serving a 30- to 40-year term for armed robbery and a parole violation, and has spent most of the last 18 years as a maximum security prisoner. This prevents his boxing outside the facility's wall.

Scott was once ranked second by the World Boxing Association, but was stripped of his title and is currently unrecognized by both the WBA and World Boxing Council.

Last year, Scott recorded convincing victories over Richie Kates, British champion Bunny Johnson, Italian champion Enio Cometti, and Yaqui Lopez, the WBA's top contender in his class at the time.

Shortly after he was stripped of his No. 2 WBA ranking last October, Scott announced he was retiring from the ring. Several days later, though, he decided to honor two prior fight commitments, against Jerry Celestine and Lopez.

Good fights have always been difficult for inmate Scott to get, and now, as a sudden exile from the boxing establishment that up until last year accorded him the privilege of being measured against the best light-heavyweights in the world, ranked fighters have nothing to gain and very much to lose by stepping into the ring with him.

BOXER JAMES SCOTT, an inmate at Rahway (N.J.) State Prison, will take the ring against Jerry Martin in a bout featured on NBC's "SportsWorld" on Sunday, May 25 (4:30-6 p.m.).

The session with Jerry Martin, who was the North American Boxing Federation champ in 1978, should be a hard-hitting one, with Scott exhibiting his awesome power and strong desire to again prove himself before the television cameras.

Rahway sanctions Scott's fights to highlight one aspect of its progressive rehabilitation system. "We've got dozens of important rehabilitation programs at Rahway, and boxing is one of them," says Superintendent Robert S. Hatrak. "I admit that teaching inmates to become professional fighters is unique, but why not? If we can teach them to lay brick or build a house, why not teach them to box? When they leave here, they take something very important: a way to earn an honest living, a sense of self-respect — the tools to become a useful citizen."

Staubach Is Signing Up

Roger Staubach, quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys for 11 years and the all-time leading passer in National Football League history, has signed on as a football analyst for CBS Sports.

The announcement was made earlier this month by Frank M. Smith, president of CBS Sports, during the 25th General Conference of CBS Television Affiliates held in Los Angeles, Calif.

"We are extremely pleased to have a person of Roger's aptitude for football join our outstanding staff of football broadcasters," Smith said. "We believe Roger will be as insightful in the broadcast booth as he was proficient on the field."

Staubach, 38, led the Cowboys to four Super Bowls, winning two — in January 1972, over Miami (24-3), when he was a third-year pro, and over Denver in January 1978 (27-10).

Will Be Produced

Norman Cousins' "Anatomy of An Illness" will be produced as a two-hour television movie and will air on CBS next season.

Plays Himself

There's an interesting story behind Julius LaRosa's recent guest appearance on an episode of "Laverne & Shirley."

While the popular singer was in New York in rehearsal for a production of "South Pacific," he received a call from series executive producer Garry Marshall asking him if he would be interested in making a cameo appearance as himself. The only catch was that they would be shooting the segment the next day. LaRosa said that he'd love to do it. He went home, packed, caught the "red-eye special" to Hollywood and was on the set the next day, full of vim and vigor.

Being a true professional, LaRosa finished his bit and caught a plane out that very night to once again rehearse for his role.

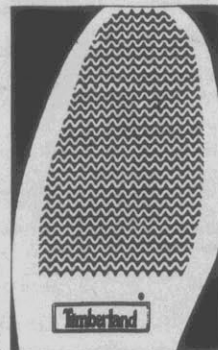

It took a lot of sole searching to come up with this boat shoe.

The Shoe

Timberland

A whole line of fine leather boots and shoes that cost plenty, and should.

The Sole

We did a lot of soul searching before we decided to make boat shoes. We were already up to our ankles, you might say, making the best boots and hand sewn shoes on land. But after we decided, that's when the real sole searching began.

We tried a lot of soles that missed the boat before we came up with a specially designed Vibram® sole. One that holds fast and really lasts. And after we'd gone overboard making such a fine sole, we made the whole rest of our shoe just as good.

We took fine waterproof leathers that stay soft and supple even after you dunk 'em in salt water. We added nylon stitching to resist rot, mildew and stress. Eyelets that were all solid brass. And a padded leather collar that really snuggles up around your ankles.

New Timberland boat shoes. Now the folks who make the best handsewns on earth make the best handsewns on water.

FOR BETTE B. ANDERSON,
Under Secretary of the Treasury

How does the Department of the Treasury react to fluctuating gold prices? — S.G.S., La Crosse, Wis.

● The sudden rise and subsequent fluctuations in the gold price result primarily from fears of political instability overseas. Actually, gold doesn't have much direct impact on the U.S. economy, and the dollar has remained strong against other currencies regardless of gold's recent ups and downs. While it's not our job to stabilize the gold market, we reserve the right to sell gold when it's in our interest to do so. Our gold sales, totaling 15.8 million ounces since May 1978, have successfully served their main purposes: helping to lower the U.S. trade deficit (by allowing gold exports or substituting for gold imports) and helping to counter fluctuations in the foreign exchange markets.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is it true that Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton are seeing a lot of each other because they are worried about their adopted daughter, Maria, and are trying to straighten out her future? — H.L., Burlington, N.C.

● No. And worried about their daughter? Absolutely not. In fact, the reverse is the case. Liz and Dick are delighted with Maria's choice of a career — that of a model. When Burton heard that he had a future cover girl on his hands, the first thing he did was warn Maria, 19, not to go on a crash diet. Too late, it seems. Says Maria: "I lost 9 pounds by drinking only pineapple juice." She's 5 feet 9 inches, and her goal is to stay at 120 pounds. First thing Elizabeth did was caution Maria against baring all. She didn't have to. Says Maria: "I'd walk out the front door if anyone suggested it. I'm an old-fashioned girl."

The Burtons — of old; they agree again.

FOR STOCKARD CHANNING, star of Broadway's They're Playing Our Song

You were a rich kid but later led a Bohemian life; which did more to prepare you for an acting career? — J.J., Easton, Pa.

● It was not an advantage to be raised as I was, in a wealthy household. It didn't do much to ready me for the world outside. When I went out on my own, at the start of my acting life, I suffered financially. I guess being rich and being poor both helped mold me.

FOR REP. JOSEPH P. ADDABBO (D.-N.Y.)

Are any new laws being adopted for senior citizens? — A.B.K., New York, N.Y.

● There are always new programs to help senior citizens. Unfortunately, Congress has never addressed the basic problem that senior citizens must always face: money enough on which to live comfortably. (For more information, write to the House Select Committee on Aging, House of Representatives, c/o The Capitol, Wash. D.C. 20515.)

FOR LIBERACE

You constantly mention "Gladys." Who is she anyway? — J.K., Tupelo, Miss.

● She is Gladys Luckie, my long-time friend and housekeeper, who has been with me for over 30 years. Gladys is my confidante, my adviser, my sounding board. She lives with me in Las Vegas, and, while she has been taking such wonderful care of me, she has also raised her own family of five — and has done a superb job on them.

FOR BEBE WINKLER, interior designer

What's the most common mistake made by newlyweds when they decorate? — V.K., Westchester, N.Y.

● Most brides err by shopping in a hurry. When they arrange their purchases in their homes, they see differences in scale, proportion and lighting that most likely end up in an unflattering setup. A bride would do better to consult an interior designer. Otherwise, she may end up happily married, but unhappily wed to her furnishings.

FOR JOSE FELICIANO, composer

You sing other composers' songs; have you stopped writing your own? — D.R., Port Huron, Mich.

● No, but if a composer sends me a song, and I like it, there is no reason in the world for me to avoid it. In fact, I welcome the chance. My new record, "I'm Coming Home Again," was created by two writers — Carole Bayer Sager and Bruce Roberts. It's a beautiful song. As for my own output, I'm still slogging away. If they come up to par, I'll start a recording session soon.

FOR IRVING R. LEVINE, NBC-TV correspondent

What can be done to make news broadcasting more up-to-date and interesting? — T.R., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● Extend the half-hour evening network news to one hour. More news could be covered, and in greater depth. When 15-minute programs went to a half-hour, some people thought there wouldn't be enough news to fill the time. That hasn't proven to be a problem. There are only 22 minutes of actual news in a half-hour program.

PRO Richard M. Scammon, director, Elections Research Center

The Presidential preference primaries are the most democratic, people-oriented method of selecting our Presidential candidates. With the decline of effective political parties, the primary has made a real contribution to the American electoral process by taking this crucial political power out of the smoke-filled room and turning it over to the people. The primary guarantees that any serious candidate must go to the people. No candidate can win by appeals to a limited group of the elite. That is democracy, and that's good.

PRO AND CON

Does Our Presidential Primary System Produce the Best Candidates?

CON Howard Penniman, resident scholar, American Enterprise Institute

The present system takes flexibility out of the nominating process. Five months before the Democratic convention, the primaries had already assured the nomination of a candidate who had received the lowest Presidential popularity rating since the invention of public-opinion polls. Participants in primaries do not represent the opinions of most party members. Unless power is returned to convention delegates, who wish to please voters rather than select candidates for their ideological positions, we can expect a low turnout in November.

Unraveling the Mysteries of Outer Space

Man has always been fascinated with the heavens, but only recently have scientists begun to understand its secrets. We know now that the universe began with a gigantic explosion, and that there just might be other worlds out there like our own.

By Robert Jastrow

Strange words like "black hole" have been cropping up in conversations in the last few years. People ask: "What is a black hole?" "What are red giants and white dwarfs?"

The answer is that these peculiar objects, scattered throughout the heavens, are stages in the life of the universe. They are the characters in a fascinating story — the story of the birth and death of stars. Scientists have been working on bits and pieces of that story for years, little dreaming that they were writing a new, updated version of the Book of Genesis. To their great surprise, they have done just that. They have found new solutions to age-old questions: How did the world begin? How was man created?

The astronomer's story of genesis, like the biblical account, begins in the dazzling splendor of the moment of creation. Few astronomers could have anticipated that this event — the sudden beginning of the universe — would become a proven scientific fact, but two discoveries have forced them to that conclusion.

The first discovery goes back about 65 years, to the period between 1912 and 1914, when an American astronomer, Vesto Melvin Slipher, was studying the great clusters of stars called galaxies. The universe teems with galaxies, each containing billions of suns like ours. Galaxies are the nation-states of the heavens; and the individual stars are their citizens.

Slipher discovered that all the galaxies within the range of his telescope were moving rapidly through space. And, he realized, not only were they moving, but they were all moving away from the earth, some at speeds of millions of miles an hour! Later, other American astronomers confirmed Slipher's strange finding. The universe is blowing up before our eyes, as if we were witnessing the aftermath of a great explosion.

Now the biblical element:

Dr. Jastrow adapted this material from his book, Red Giants and White Dwarfs (W. W. Norton). He is director of NASA's Goddard Institute for Space Studies and professor of astronomy at Columbia University.

If we retrace the motions of the outward-moving galaxies backward in time, we find that they all come together, so to speak, about 20 billion years ago. At that time, all the matter in the universe was packed into a mass of hot gases at a temperature of trillions of degrees. This dense, hot universe must have exploded with indescribable violence. The picture suggests the detonation of a cosmic hydrogen bomb. The moment in which the cosmic bomb exploded marked the birth of the universe.

Why do I call that event the creation? Because in that instant was planted the seed of everything that has happened since; every star, every planet and every living creature in the cosmos has come into being as a result of events that were set in motion in the first moment of the cosmic explosion.

Many details of the astronomer's story differ from those in the Bible. In particular, the age of the universe appears to be far greater than the 6,000 years of the biblical account. But the most essential feature is the same in the two stories: There was a beginning, and all things in the universe can be traced back to it.

Most astronomers have been hostile to the idea that the world had an abrupt beginning. However, the skeptics were convinced some years ago, when a second great discovery was made. In 1965 Arno Penzias and Robert Wilson, two physicists working for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company (Bell Labs), detected a puzzling glow of radiation coming from the sky. The radiation was very faint and diffuse and did not seem to come from any particular object, such as the sun. The entire universe seemed to be the source of the strange radiation.

Other astronomers who had been studying the evidence for the so-called "big bang" — the explosive birth of the universe — knew immediately what the faint radiation was. Their calculations showed that if the world really did explode into existence, then immediately after the explosion the universe must have been filled with a fireball of white-hot matter and radiation. As the universe expanded and cooled, the light of the fireball would have become less intense, but a remnant of the cosmic glow would still be detectable today. It was this echo of the creation that the two physicists had detected. They had stumbled on the final proof that the world had an abrupt beginning. The big bang was no longer a theory but a fact.

In 1978 Penzias and Wilson received the Nobel Prize for their discovery. Since then, just about every astronomer has accepted the idea. Since they believe that science has an answer to nearly every question, they have to ask themselves, Why did the universe begin in an explosion? What were conditions like before the explosion? Did the universe even exist prior to that moment? To these questions, they can find no answer — at least, not in science. A British astronomer wrote, "We can make no propositions about the state of affairs in the beginning; in the Divine act of creation God is unobserved and unwitnessed."

But when it comes to explaining the events that took place after the beginning, scientists find their strength. With the aid of telescopes and other instruments, they have reconstructed the chain of events by which the gases of the newly created universe were gradually transformed into stars, planets and man. It is in this part of the story that those strange-sounding objects — black holes, red giants, white dwarfs — make their appearance.

After the creation, the universe was very hot and filled with radiant energy. Because of its internal pressures, the hot, young universe expanded rapidly, cooling as it expanded. When the universe was about one million years old, the first atoms appeared.

With the passage of time, the matter of the universe cooled further. The clouds of atoms condensed into galaxies; within the galaxies, smaller clouds condensed into stars. Stars probably began to form when the universe was about one billion years old. Now the first lights went on in the heavens, but no eye perceived them, for the universe was without life. Stars continued to form as the universe grew older; we can see them forming at this very moment, in the mists of the cosmos. Our own sun and its family of planets formed about four and a half billion years ago, as a minor detail in the story.

Why do stars form? Why doesn't the matter in the universe stay in the form of tenuous clouds of gas? The answer lies in gravity. Sometimes, in the random movements of a cloud of gas, atoms come together by accident to form a little pocket of gas. Once formed, the pocket of gas is held firmly in the grip of its own gravity. As time passes, the atoms in the pocket "fall" inward toward the pocket's center, picking up speed as they fall. They meet at the center and pile up in a dense mass: the temperature mounts, and when it reaches 20 million-degrees Fahrenheit, nuclear reactions flare up in the hydrogen gas, similar to the reactions in a hydrogen bomb. Vast amounts of energy are released, causing the ball of gas to glow brilliantly. A new star has been born.

The nuclear reactions continue, burning hydrogen steadily and converting it to carbon, oxygen and other elements. All the elements of the universe are made from hydrogen in this way, in nuclear reactions at the centers of burning stars. Eventually, the hydrogen within the star is used up, and its life nears an end. The first signs of old age are a swelling and reddening of its outer regions. Such aging, swollen stars are called red giants.

Eventually, the sun will swell to a red giant in six billion years, vaporizing the earth and any creatures that may be left on its surface. Probably — and one hopes — we will have escaped to another star in the galaxy before then. FW

Next week in FAMILY WEEKLY, Dr. Jastrow relates more on the evolution of stars, including information on how black holes are formed — and why maybe, just maybe, we are not alone.

Observations

Super highway guide. When you hit the road this summer, be sure it doesn't hit back...in your pocket-book. Prices of meals and motels are at an all time high. Latest figures show the average seven-night vacation trip of over 200 miles now costs more than $450—and that's for a couple traveling without kids. But if you can't outrun inflation, you can outfox it. How? With the most complete trip planner for the U.S. and Canada: the Mobil Travel Guide. Saving gasoline, time, and money is even easier with the new 1980 guide—if you use it to plan ahead...now. You're probably too late for today's Great Bolton Bed Race in Bolton Landing, N.Y.—dozens of beds on small wheels being pushed down the street two at a time—but thousands of other events and places await you in the guide.

Closer encounters. You'll save by picking precise destinations instead of touring about, hit or miss. With the guide's seven regional editions, you'll find even one tankful of gasoline can lead to someplace new, exotic...and affordable. If you love anything chocolate, head east to Hershey, Pa., where the streetlights are shaped like "kisses," or west to San Francisco's Ghirardelli Square, once a chocolate factory. Movie buffs might recognize Oak Creek Canyon south of Flagstaff, scene of many a horse opera. Visit the 70-room Vanderbilt "cottage" in Newport, R.I., or the exceptional Andrew Jackson national shrine outside Nashville. Have a summer snowball fight in Montana's Glacier National Park. Or step right up and see Baraboo, Wisc., a genuine circus town.

"Listen to this place—fine continental cuisine, superb..."

Clarity begins at home. Before you wander, use the Mobil Travel Guide's four color maps to plan your way, on highways where you can cruise at a fuel-efficient 55 m.p.h. New map coordinates make it easy to locate each town and find where to stay and eat, so you don't burn up fuel—and patience. Every year trained inspectors check each of the more than 21,000 hotels, motels, resorts, and restaurants listed. And if you've secretly longed to be a reviewer, join in: We also rely on thousands of readers' comments a year.

Award from the sponsor: Top rating is five stars—"one of the best in the country"—for 13 restaurants, 11 resorts, eight hotels, and just one motel, the Salishan Lodge in Lincoln City, Ore. What can you expect from these? Expensive perfection. But you can pay less and still get a lot with our check-rated "good values."

You'll save even more with the guide's discount coupons—an average of $86.85 of them per book can make each edition's $5.95 suggested retail price a fantastic bargain. No wonder travel writers call the Mobil Travel Guide "highly recommended," "most reliable," "America's leading vacation guide-book." Copies you need are at bookstores and most Mobil service stations.

It's free: For an order card with gasoline-saving tips, and with details on the seven regional editions and a special guide to 53 major cities, write to Mobil Travel Service, P.O. Box 25, Versailles, Ky. 40383.

The Scrumptious Strawberry

By Marilyn Hansen

Red-ripe strawberries are in our markets now waiting to be enjoyed in a basketful of winning ways.

Strawberries are an excellent source of Vitamin C, with 1 cup supplying about 150 percent of the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance for the average adult.

Also one of the nicest things about strawberries is that a whole cup of them has only about 60 calories.

3. Blend remaining 1/2 cup port and arrowroot smoothly. Stir into strawberry mixture; heat to boiling, stirring. Chill.
4. Serve in large glass bowl; garnish with mint sprigs; ladle into soup bowls or punch cups. Makes 5 cups

STRAWBERRY SHORTBREAD MOUSSE

Crust

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1/4 cup sifted powdered sugar
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour

Filling

- 2 pints strawberries
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 2 packages unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup water
- 2 cups whipping cream, whipped

1. To prepare crust: Cream butter and sugar. With fork, gradually stir in flour.
2. Pat dough into bottom of 8 1/2 or 9-inch spring form pan. Prick with fork.
3. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven 10 minutes. Lower heat to 300°F; bake 20 to 25 minutes longer, or until golden. Cool.
4. To prepare filling: Puree enough berries in blender to make 2 cups.
5. Reserve remaining berries for garnish. Blend lemon juice and sugar into puree.
6. Soften gelatin in water; warm over low heat to dissolve. Stir into berry puree; chill until mixture begins to thicken.
7. Fold in whipped cream. Pour over crust; chill.
8. Halve remaining berries; arrange cut side down around edge of mousse. Makes 8 servings

FLAMBOYANT FONDUE

Fondue Sauce (recipes follow)

- 1 pint strawberries
- 1 banana, cut in chunks
- Seedless grape clusters
- 1 cup fresh or canned pineapple chunks, drained
- 1/2 frozen pound cake (11 1/2 ozs.), thawed and cubed

1. Pour sauce of your choice into fondue pot. Set over candle warmer or on hot tray.
2. Arrange fruits and cake on small platter or serving-plate. Use picks or skewers to dip fruits and cake into warm sauce. Makes 4 servings

Creamy Kirsch Sauce

1. Pour 3/4 cup each whipping cream and powdered sugar into small saucepan. Bring to boil, stirring. Cook 1 minute.
2. Remove from heat. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons Kirsch. Makes about 1 cup

Butterscotch Sauce

1. In small saucepan, blend 3/4 cup whipping cream and 1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar. Bring to boil, stirring. Cook 1 minute.
2. Remove from heat. Add 1 to 2 tablespoons rum, if desired. Makes about 1 cup

Chocolate Sauce

1. In heavy pan, over low heat, melt 3 squares semisweet chocolate.
2. Stir in 1/3 cup sugar and 3/4 cup half and half. Cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and smooth. Makes about 1 cup

STRAWBERRY SOUP

- 1 lb. (1 1/4 pints) fresh ripe strawberries
- 1 cup water
- 3 cups port wine or cranberry juice
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- Dash salt
- Dash ground cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon arrowroot, potato flour or cornstarch

1. Clean strawberries. Place in saucepan with water and 2 1/2 cups wine.
2. Add sugar, lemon juice, salt and cinnamon. Heat, stirring until sugar dis-

BERRY BLENDER ICE CREAM

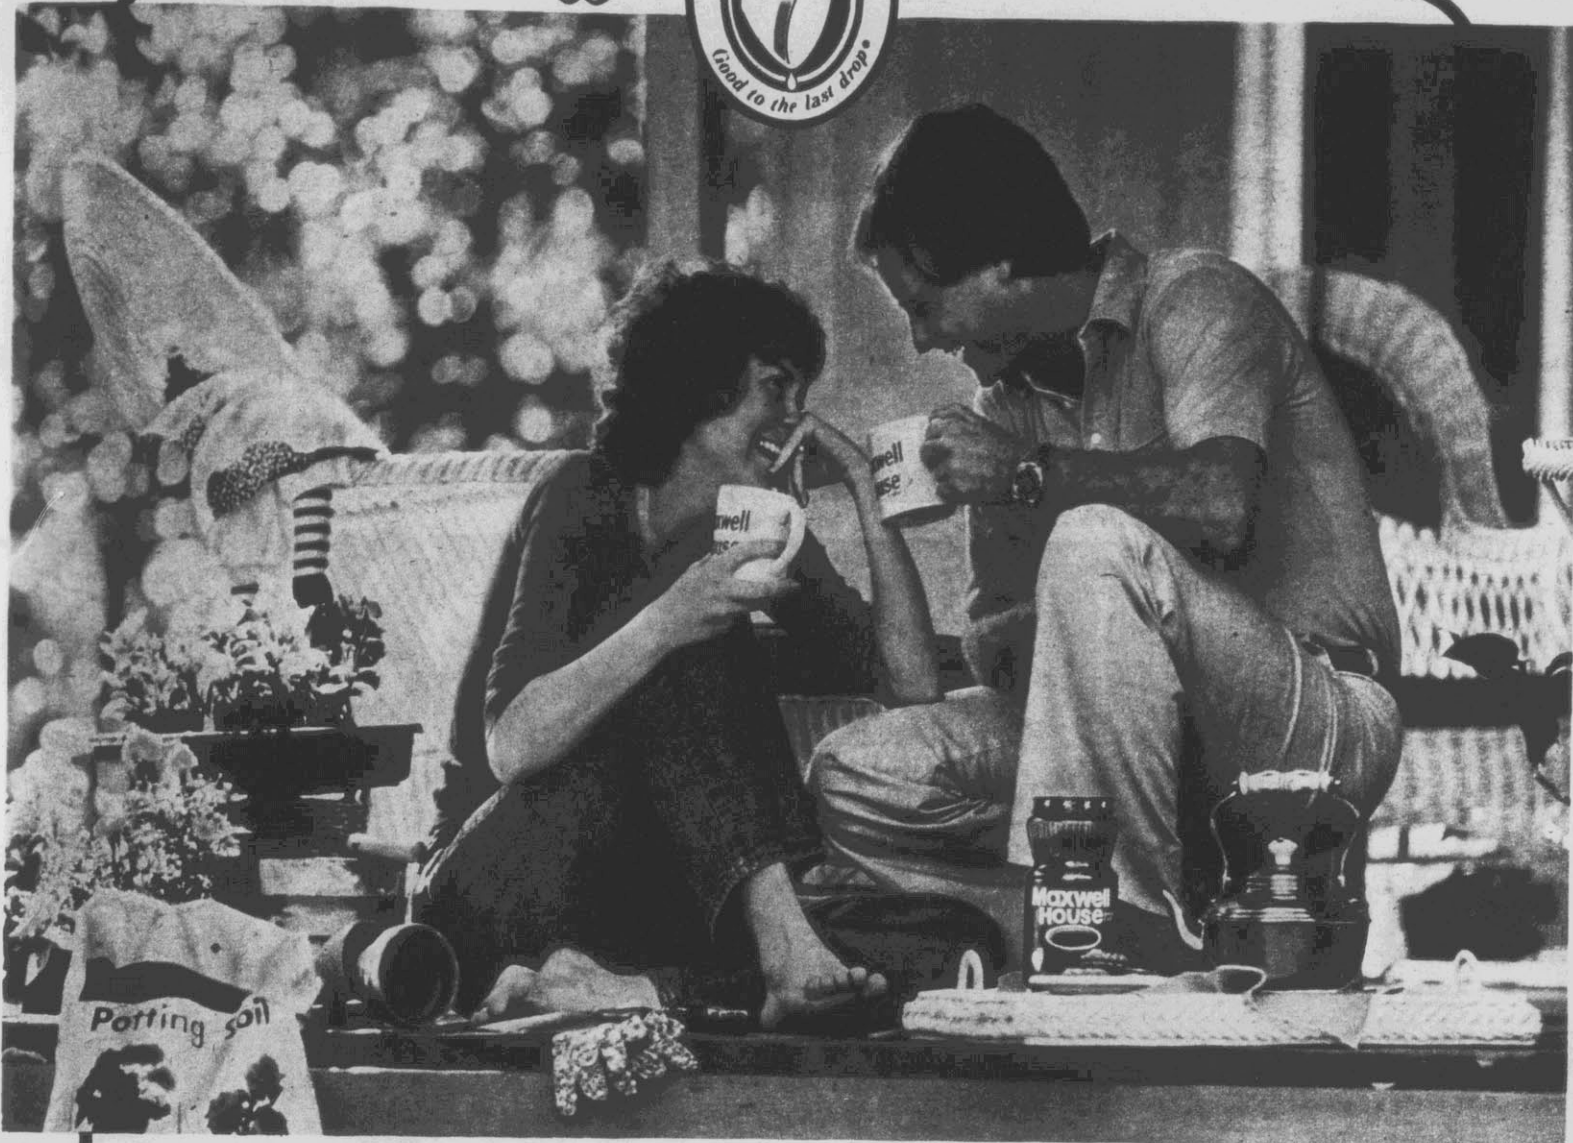

- 1 pint strawberries, washed and stemmed (about 3 cups)
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice

1. Early in the day: Arrange berries in shallow pan or ice-cube trays (large berries should be halved). Freeze.
2. A few minutes before serving, remove berries from freezer. Put cream, eggs and sugar in blender. Whirl 2 seconds.
3. With motor on high, drop in frozen berries, one at a time. Whirl smooth, stopping motor when necessary to stir thick mixture with rubber spatula. Stir in lemon juice.
4. Spoon into serving dishes. Serve at once or store in freezer, removing 15 to 20 minutes before serving to soften slightly. Makes about 2 1/2 cups or 4 or 5 servings aren't so low.

Merit at 8 mg. Vantage at 11.
Winston Lights at 14.
Today's low tar is Triumph® at only 3 mg.
And taste. Full, rich, flavorful taste.
Something Carlton at 1 doesn't even claim to have.
Try it for yourself. Compare Triumph with your present "low tar" or "light."
Taste and a lot less tar.
That's a Triumph.

TRIUMPH. TODAY'S LOW TAR™

Helping "Lazy" Kids Help Themselves

By Katherine Barrett

Five minutes after running outside, 9-year-old Tommy returns red in the face, panting heavily and sweating. "My friends play too hard," he tells his mother. For gym, 13-year-old Margaret suits up in shorts, a T-shirt and running shoes, but then sits for most of the period while the teacher takes attendance and lectures on sportsmanship.

At their young ages, Tommy and Margaret are already on their way to sedentary lives — lives that invite coronary disease, obesity, low back pain, chronic fatigue and a variety of American cities — a trend that affects about 750,000 students. And even when schools have physical-education classes, the amount of exercise may be negligible.

The problem, says Keelor, is that parents aren't always aware of the connection between fitness and health for their children. They may show concern if their child can't read at his grade level, but if he can't do a push-up, the parents shrug it off.

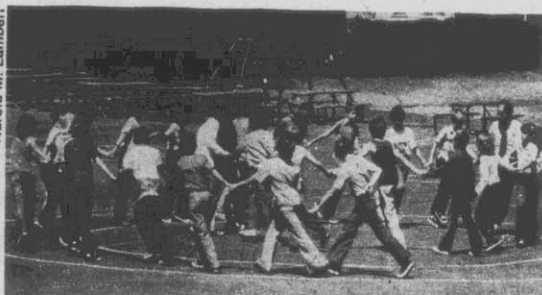

There is, however, more than a glimmer of good news in this grim picture: First, there's strong evidence that the degenerative process can be stemmed. With exercise, children as well as adults can reverse the atrophy of their muscles, get rid of excess body fat and maintain the fitness of their cardiovascular systems. They also can improve their posture, respiration, lower back strength and sports skills.

Second, the models for good school programs already exist in states such as California, Florida, New Jersey and North Carolina. These are based on the principle that children should be engaged in daily, vigorous physical activity; receive individualized attention to conquer their weaknesses; learn lifetime sports; and be taught the connection between fitness and health.

The key, says Keelor, is accountability. Parents should check to see that their schools have daily programs, special help for the underdeveloped, screening tests to identify problems and vigorous activities. (For other suggestions from the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, write for its Performance Checklist, at 400 Sixth Street, SW, Washington D.C. 20201.)

For parents who can't get satisfaction from their schools, there are plenty of other routes. Park and recreation offices often sponsor local activities for kids. The YMCA has some notable programs for children, including "Feelin' Good." Of course, parents can get extra benefits by exercising with their children. Find a place where your family can swim together, play tennis or roller skate. "If a parent is active, then the child can learn by example," says Kathleen Bulger, director of youth sports programs for the YMCA of Greater New York. "He can see exercise is fun."

other health problems.

"Youth fitness in this country is in bad shape," says Dr. Richard Keelor, director of program development for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports. "In fact, it's a national tragedy."

The facts support Dr. Keelor's strong statement. Recent studies by the Council indicate that one in six young Americans is physically underdeveloped and one in three is overweight. After a promising improvement in the early 1960's, the National Youth Fitness Test results have remained static and discouraging since 1965.

"Children are transported to and from school, extracurricular events and even sports activities. They sit for long hours watching television and consume lots of high-calorie food," says Thomas B. Gilliam, assistant professor of physical education at the University of Michigan. "As a result, children are showing increasing evidence of conditions that are associated with heart disease in adults."

Unfortunately, schools that might try to counter the effects of a mechanized, sedentary society often fail. Currently, tighter budgets have reduced physical-education requirements in the high schools of at least six major

FAMILY FUN PROJECTS

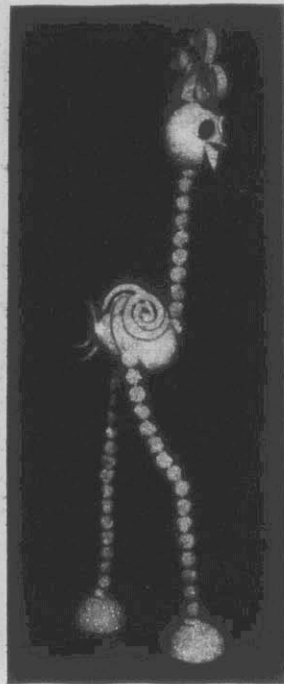

A variety of easy and inexpensive craft projects to make your family's leisure hours productive and filled with fun.

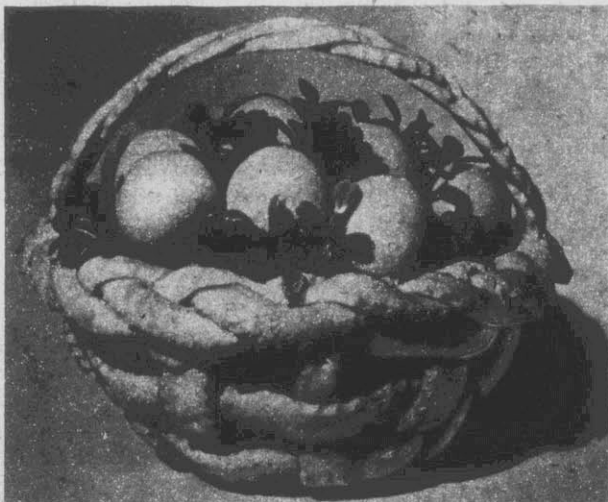

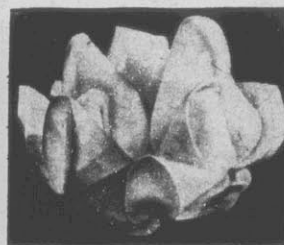

323-Quickie Gifts

Create attractive and decorative, yet useful and practical items for your home and gifts out of recycled materials, discarded objects, or everyday items by using simple techniques and a little imagination.

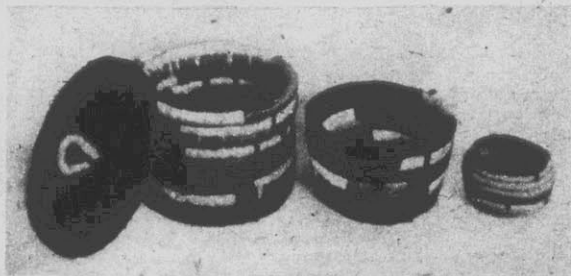

These are some of the projects that will appeal to the entire family. Each leaflet contains easy-to-follow instructions.

323-Quickie Gifts. For last-minute giving or bazaars—pendants and pins from eyeglass lenses; a funny bird from foam balls, chenille and string; decorated soap and card holders. All with full instructions.

314-Home Entertaining. Enhance the holiday table setting with unusual centerpieces—a basket made of bread dough; napkins folded like lotus blossoms; plus lovely candle and placecard holders, etc. Full instructions given.

317-Yarn Things

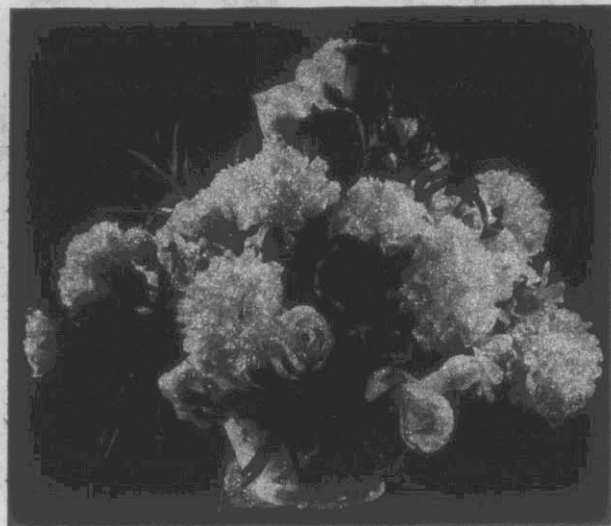

317-Yarn Things. Tiny dolls, bright baskets, belts and necklaces can easily be made from a skien or two of colorful yarn and scissors in your spare time.

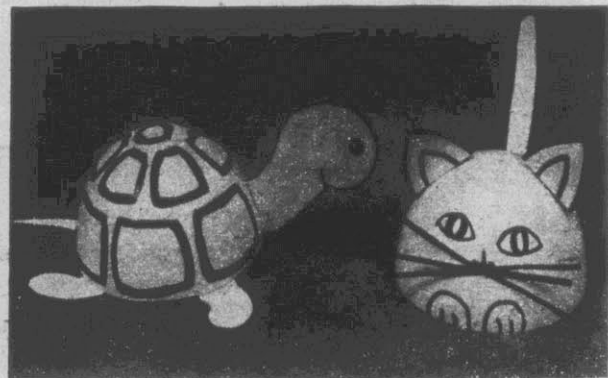

315 - Creative Gift Wraps

315 - Creative Gift Wraps. Simple and imaginative ideas for all-occasion gift packages; with patterns and step-by-step instructions.

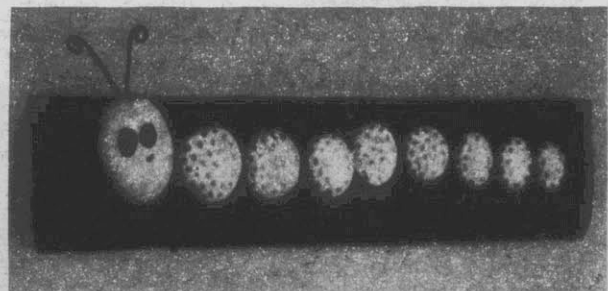

322-Sand and Stones. Decorative and amusing placques, candles, etc. from backyard stones, beach sand or shells. Fun for the entire family with the aid of a few kitchen utensils, paint or markers. Detailed instructions included.

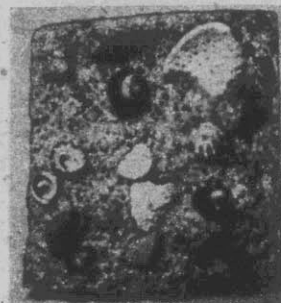

301-Fabric Flowers. Make a lovely bouquet of wild roses, daisies, carnations and poppies from inexpensive remnants of nylon, silk, cotton or velvet. Easy-to-follow instructions; pattern pieces.

321-Crafts for Kids. Non-messy, fun things like scooter toys, funny-face planters and key-ring fobs, using marbles, plastic eggs, boxes, crayons and construction paper. Directions, photos, and how-to illustrations included.

Be sure to include your name, address, zip code along with leaflet number and $1.00 for each leaflet ordered. (New York State residents add sales tax).

The New, Glamorous Valerie Harper

day night is an ABC-TV movie, Fun and Games, dealing with sexual harassment on the job. Her character works in a factory. Next, she and Tony will look for projects they can produce for their newly formed TAL Productions. "It stands for Together At Last," Tony says without one trace of embarrassment over his sentimentality.

By Isobel Silden

Valerie Harper has lost 44 pounds since she exchanged playing plump and lovable Rhoda on television for thin, and sexy roles on the movie screen. But she's still the same funny, nonstop-talking lady. She is also in love — with body-builder/dancer/sometimes actor Tony Cacciotti, to whom she gives full credit for the "new" Valerie.

There are those who were a bit shocked by her emaciated appearance in her recent films, but she insists she wanted to look that thin. "I went to Tony to tone up my body because I had to wear a swimsuit in Chapter Two. Tony was recommended by a friend who knew he'd worked with John Ritter in Hero at Large and Richard Gere in American Gigolo. He put me on a program; I worked out three hours a day, six days a week."

Valerie also played a thin and sexy role in the recent film The Last Married Couple in America. This new phase of her career was not pre-planned: "I was happy doing Rhoda. I got four Emmys, and it was steady work — which you seldom get in this business. When the series ended, I had to think about whether I wanted another. I'd be looking at five more years of a commitment."

The decision was practically made for her. "The series was canceled November 21, 1978," she notes. "On December 3, I started The Last Married Couple. I did the first reading for Chapter Two in April, and filming started that summer. In December, 1979, I started the TV movie The Shadow Box with Joanne Woodward and James Broderick."

So Valerie, 39, will now balance TV and movies. Upcoming Mon-

He and Valerie are devoted to each other. Valerie says, "I'm as married to Tony as I can be. And it's 1980 and I can tell my mother!" There will always be shades of her Rhoda character because, in the nine years she played the part they often blended together.

But there were definite differences: "I was never as fat as I looked on Rhoda. I had been a dancer before in a number of Broadway shows. The first years on The Mary Tyler Moore Show I wore sweatshirts to look heavier in contrast to Mary."

But eventually, she did balloon up to 163 pounds. Now, thanks to Tony, she's become an expert on the subject of diet and exercise: "Rona Barrett said on TV that I looked overly thin. But you have to remember that Rhoda, the Crown Princess of Chubby, was in the national consciousness for nine years: People expect to see what they'd been accustomed to see. So the change was a surprise."

Valerie isn't sure what the future holds when it comes to either acting or love: "Maybe I would do another series. It would depend on whom I'm acting with, who's directing and what the material is. I have the same answer about remarriage. I have no bad words for marriage or TV. My marriage was fine for 13 years. [She was married to actor/writer Richard Schaal. They divorced two years ago.] The love didn't go out of our marriage. We just became roommates who had grown distant."

"And now I'm happy, happy because I can feel in the moment. A beautiful day can make me happy. So can being with Tony and other people I really love. When I ran four miles this morning, I said, 'Good girl, Valerie.' You have to be your own parent and be good to yourself," she says with a big Rhoda grin.

My Feet Were Killing Me ...Until I Discovered the Miracle in Germany!

It was the European trip I had always dreamed about. I had the time and money to go where I wanted—see what I wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, I tried to keep going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until I got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting breakthrough for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom-made foot support called Flexible Featherspring. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed! I learned that women also can wear them—even with sandals and open backed shoes. They're completely invisible.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover that these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that I would share the miracle I discovered in Germany with my own countrymen.

Today thousands of Americans including those who have retired—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet. Flexible Feathersprings will bring you relief with every step you take.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Germany can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. No salesman will call. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE MIRACLE:

Received my wife's Feathersprings two days ago. They are super—neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is much better... As a retired physician, this result is amazing.
Dr. C.O.C./Tucson, Arizona.

"My husband felt a great relief and no more pain. They are truly an answer to our prayers. Only wish that he had heard of them twenty years ago."
Mrs. F. S./Metairie, Louisiana

"I have checked your corporation with (A Consumer Protection Agency), and received an excellent report."

WHAT IN THE WORLD

International Aid

Since 1970, over three million Cambodians have died from war and from the starvation that began when so many were uprooted from their homes during the planting season in 1979. And now that the food harvested from the meager crop in 1980 is totally gone, the 4.5 million surviving Cambodians are entirely dependent on international relief for food and medical supplies.

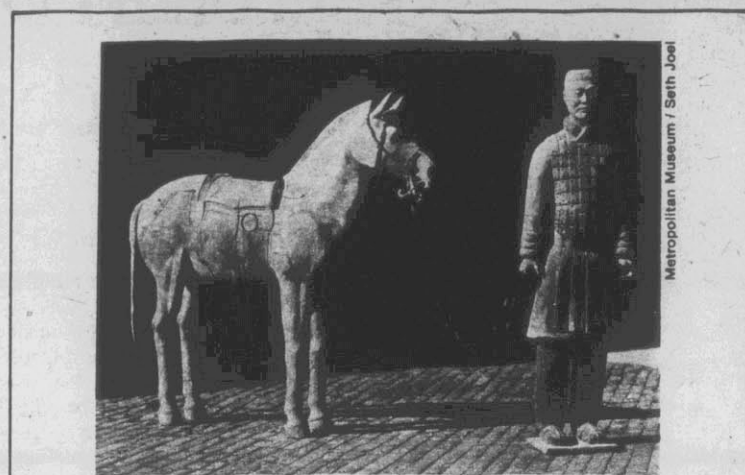

Charitable organizations in this country estimate that more than $300 million will be needed to meet the cost of relief operations in Cambodia this year. Because the country's transportation and communication systems were totally destroyed during the fighting, much of that aid must be carried into the country's interior by boat, oxcart, bicycle and on foot. The National Cambodia Crisis Committee, a 109-member group made up of leaders of business, labor and church and service organizations, has begun a nationwide effort to raise some of those funds from private citizens. The Committee suggests you send your contributions to the church, synagogue or international relief agency of your choice or to the Cambodia Crisis Committee, P.O. Box 242, Washington, D.C. 20044.

In Her Majesty's Service

Benjamin Disraeli was one of England's more flamboyant Prime Ministers. A dandy whose outrageous wardrobe and wit gained him entry into London society, Disraeli had a brilliant career. But his rise to power

These 1,000-year-old figures were only recently unearthed.

Lost And Found

Ancient China has long been renowned for its treasures; after all, Columbus came upon the New World while trying to find a route to Asia. But only recently have many of those works of art been unearthed, since archaeological exploration in China is just beginning. Now a magnificent group of objects is beginning an 18-month tour to museums in New York, Chicago, Fort Worth,

Los Angeles and Boston.

"The Great Bronze Age of China; An Exhibition from the People's Republic of China" includes objects of carved jade and cast bronze. And standing guard over the show are eight life-size terra-cotta soldiers and horses that were part of a vast army found guarding the tomb of the first emperor of China, buried more than 1,000 years ago.

was not meteoric, and "Dizzy," as he would later be called, suffered many setbacks before he gained a seat in Parliament and the affection of Britain's Queen Victoria.

The story of Disraeli's life is both political and romantic, for Dizzy owed much of his success to a woman he at first disliked and later grew to respect and love. Next week, PBS begins airing Disraeli, a four-part series about the man who was responsible for, among other deeds, buying the Suez Canal for Britain (check local listings).

Marathon Man

The Boston marathon has been a news-making event since it was first run in 1896, but in 1979 a new dimension was added to the race. Just hours after the marathon's finish, a computer, using extensive personal information furnished by each official entrant, supplied a printout that profiled the "average" male marathon runner. He's 34.5 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 147.6 pounds. However, the average runner was not necessarily the one who finished the race. The group with the most finishers was comprised of men, aged 40 to 44, and when they were 5 feet 9 inches or over, they weighed 150 to 159 pounds.

How typical is Bill Rodgers, the winner of last year's marathon? He's 31 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 128 pounds. And while he sounds fairly average, his time of 2 hours 9 minutes and 27 seconds left everyone else trailing.

Lifestyles

Medicine. The Food and Drug Administration has found that rinses and gels containing fluorides help prevent tooth decay and recommends that they be sold without prescription. The FDA estimates that consumers spend about $600 million a year on dental rinses, gels and toothpastes.

Entertainment. A Louis Harris study shows that museums are top entertainment spots. The U.S. has some 6,000 museums that total more than 300 million admissions each year. Major league sports games garner only 70 million annual admissions.

Health. A 20-year cancer-prevention study undertaken by the American Cancer Society has found that obese women who are at least 40 percent over the average weight have a higher rate of cancer of the uterus and ovaries. The study also indicates that the younger a woman is at marriage, the higher her risk of later developing cancer of the cervix. Single women have a lower rate than married women.

TIGER

Our Story: THE WINDBREAK DESTROYED, A VIOLENT SANDSTORM SPREADS CHAOS THROUGH THE SALT MINES. THE SHARIF'S GUARDS SEEK SAFETY, BUT THE SLAVES ARE CAUGHT IN THE TEMPEST. OVERCOME BY THE POISONOUS SWIRL OF SALT AND SAND, PRINCE VALIANT COLLAPSES.

TIME IS WASTING. FIVE HUNDRED STRONG, ARN AND HIS NOMAD WARRIORS THUNDER THROUGH THE BREACH THEY HAVE CREATED...

... AND BURST UPON THE SALT MINES. THE SHARIF'S MEN ARE SURPRISED TO DISCOVER THAT THE STORM HAS ARRIVED ON HOOPS AND WIELDS A SWORD. THEIR RESISTANCE, LIKE THEIR SURPRISE, IS SHORT-LIVED.

"FATHER!" ARN SHOUTS DESPERATELY. ALL ABOUT, INTREPID NOMADS PULL WEARY SLAVES INTO THE SADDLE. BUT WHERE IS VAL? ARN DOES NOT SEE THE MOP OF BLACK HAIR UNTIL HIS MOUNT HAS NEARLY CRUSHED IT.

TENDERLY ARN PULLS HIS FATHER FROM THE SAND. LIKE A FATHER WITH A NEWBORN CHILD HE CLEANS VAL'S MOUTH AND NOSTRILS REPAYING THE GIFT OF LIFE IN KIND.

WITH AN EXHILARATION BORN OF GREAT FATIGUE, ARN BOOSTS VAL INTO THE SADDLE AND LASHES HIM IN PLACE. THEN THEY SET OUT FOR AHMED'S CAMP.

FOR ARN, NO VICTORY HAS EVER BEEN SO SWEET--OR SO SALTY.
