City Students Accepted By New School

By LEIGH COAKLEY

On June 16, 1978, Governor Hunt presented guidelines to the General Assembly for the establishment of a new school, The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics.

The concept of this new school is to provide "gifted and talented" students showing excellence in science and mathematics as well as other areas with the learning environment that warrants growth and success in these technological fields.

According to Mrs. Rosalind Britt, guidance counselor at J.H. Rose High School, the selection process began soon after these plans were made, and the criteria used to determine who would attend the School was a lengthy process.

According to Mrs. Britt, this was a "first time thing" for the local school systems. "We were in the dark and are not sure what process they actually used for selection of students," said Britt.

Two students from J.H. Rose High School were accepted to attend The North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics this fall. The School is located in the heart of the Research Triangle Area.

Nominations for students demonstrating academic excellence in science, mathematics and related fields were submitted to the Admissions Office of the School in late February from school personnel, community representatives, parents, and students.

"Nine students from J.H. Rose chose to apply for admission to the School, and only 150 students from approximately 144 school systems from regions across the state were to be selected," Britt said. "For a small school system like Greenville, the fact that we had two students to qualify for admittance is quite admirable."

The two students accepted to the School are: Ishan Sehgal, son of Dr. and Mrs. Prem Sehgal, 211 Crestline Blvd., and Frank Hollander, son of Dr. David and Shirley Hollander, 1010 E. 10th Street.

Students attending the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics in the fall will be classified as high school juniors. Students were nominated from 10th grade high school classes. Britt said that the ultimate goal of the School is to integrate classes from 9-12.

The students will be provided with free room and board in the Old Watts Hospital Building in Durham which is being reworked into a dormitory. There is no charge to the students for attending this school. "The only cost to the student will be spending money," indicated Britt.

Governor Hunt, the General Assembly, and school officials have indicated that the "gifted and talented" student has been neglected in

Unemployment Sharply Rises; Wholesale Price Level Cools

Expect Senate To Override Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic and Republican leaders predicted today that the Senate will join the House in overriding President Carter's veto of a resolution killing his dime-a-gallon gasoline fee.

"We have no chance of sustaining it now," Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters. Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., agreed. "I think it will be overridden," he said.

The Senate moved toward delivering the final death blow to Carter's fee a day after his veto of the fee's repeal ran into a 335-34 override vote in the House.

If at least two-thirds of the Senate votes against the veto, the repeal bill would be forced into law over Carter's objections.

It would also make him the first Democratic president to have a veto overridden since Harry S. Truman in 1952.

The override vote was expected to be closer in the Senate than Thursday night's ten-to-one margin in the House.

But Senate leaders aren't holding out much hope that Carter's veto can be sustained — especially in the face of a 73-16 vote earlier this week disapproving the fee.

Carter cast 21 previous vetoes, all of which were sustained. Although no Democratic president had been overridden since 1952, Republican Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford had a total of 19 vetoes overridden.

Democrats have controlled both houses of Congress for the better part of the last 50 years.

In his veto message Thursday, the president told Congress that while he knew the fee was politically unpopular, members should rise above politics and let him impose it. He called the levy an important step in oil conservation, "good policy and good common sense."

His veto took two hours to reach the House and two minutes to discuss. "We've talked the matter to death," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, as the roll call was ordered.

Carter wanted the fee to help the nation begin withdrawing from its 8-million-barrel-a-day consumption of foreign oil. But opponents — Democrats as well as Republicans — called the fee a $10.3 billion tax on drivers that would serve little purpose but to help balance the budget.

The president announced the fee last March 15 and it was to have gone into effect

May 15. But a federal judge blocked it, saying Carter overstepped his authority in trying to place the levy on all gasoline instead of limiting it to oil imports.

The administration is appealing that order. However, an override of Carter's veto could make the outcome of that appeal a moot issue. It was not immediately known if government lawyers planned to pursue the appeal if the veto is overturned.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate shot up to 7.8 percent in May, the highest in 3½ years, while inflation at the wholesale price level continued to cool significantly, the government reported today.

Since March, a rapidly developing recession has swelled unemployment by 1.6 percentage points — the largest two-month climb since World War II, the Labor Department said. Some 1.7 million Americans were added to jobless rolls in April and May.

The unemployment rate rose 0.8 percent for a second straight month, climbing from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April and then 7.8 percent in May. It was the highest rate since November 1976.

At the same time, the Labor Department said wholesale prices during May rose by a mere 0.3 percent, down from April's 0.5 percent rise and the smallest monthly increase since September 1977.

The latest price figures suggest significant easing in inflation later this year for consumers, who have been confronted with prices rising at an 18 percent compound annual rate during the first three months of this year. During April and May, wholesale prices were rising at annual rate of only 4.6 percent.

Wholesale refers to the stage of production for goods just before they reach consumers. Prices at that level are considered a good barometer of subsequent retail price changes.

The economy has been deteriorating since early spring with unusual speed, and some economists believe the recession may approach the dimensions of the 1974-1975 recession, the worst economic downturn since World War II.

The recession has created more unemployment than the Carter administration predicted, but government economists say the downturn apparently is helping to cool inflation by dampening consumer demand.

"All of the major labor market indicators deteriorated further in May," Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress today.

"In contrast... the news on the price front is indeed encouraging," said Mrs. Norwood, whose Labor Department agency issues the monthly reports.

During May, the number of unemployed persons increased by 889,000 to 8.2 million, with most of the increase due to layoffs and job eliminations. Total employment declined by 166,000 to 97 million.

The Labor Department said jobless rates rose significantly for all groups of workers, but teen-agers apparently were hardest hit. Their unemployment rate soared by three percentage points to 19.2 percent, the largest monthly increase in that category since 1953.

The unemployment rate for both adult men and women stood at 6.6 percent, marking the first time in two decades that the jobless rate for men has been as high as that for women.

Unemployment increases were especially high among workers in construction and manufacturing, particularly in the auto industry. Employment among blue-collar workers fell by 450,000 during May, but white-collar employment was up by 200,000 jobs.

The government said that over the past three months, employment has declined by nearly 1 million jobs, with most of the drop hitting adult men. The sharp drop in jobs wiped out two-thirds of the employment gains that had occurred since May 1979, with total employment up only about 500,000 in the past year.

Farmer's Mart

The Farmers' Market will open from 8 a.m.-12 p.m. June 7 for the first time. It will be located near the theaters at Pitt Plaza, a location permanent for this year. The market will also be open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9-11 a.m.

According to Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, the farmers will have squash, collards, greens of different types, potatoes and garden peas. "Larger volumes are expected later into the season," explained Uzzell.

Anyone wanting information about buying or selling at the market should contact Uzzell at the Agricultural Extension Office or by calling 758-1196.

First Full Day Of Work Faces N.C. Assembly

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislators were ready to begin their first full day of work Friday in the 1980 session of the General Assembly, with some House members poised to do battle over a resolution listing new bills that may be considered.

The state's $358-million supplementary budget is the main item of business for the mini-session, which opened at noon Thursday.

A battle appeared to be brewing Thursday over a resolution introduced in the House and Senate by Rep. H. Horton Rountree, D-Greenville, and Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Charlotte.

The resolution, which was scheduled to be voted on today by both chambers, would not be allowed otherwise under rules for the short session.

It lists 16 bills that may come up for action, including two banking bills aimed at removing or raising the legal limits on most loan interest rates.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Raleigh, a frequent opponent of the banking lobby, called the maneuver an "outrage" and said he would fight it.

Adams said he will try to have the resolution sent to the House Rules Committee, where he is vice chairman and where he hopes to have the banking measures eliminated.

If the Legislature considers the interest-rate bills, Adams said he plans to oppose the industry proposal and offer a plan of his own. Adams said his version would link the legal limit on most loan interest rates to the federal discount rate, the rate at which the federal government loans money to banks.

Under that bill, Adams said, the legal limit for consumer and business loans could be automatically adjusted to remain one or two percentage points above the rate at which banks pay for their own loans.

The banking industry wants the 12 percent interest-rate limit removed from most loans of under $25,000, which are now regulated, and wants the 18 percent annual limit on credit-card rates to be raised to 21 percent.

"It legalizes the Mafia," Adams said. "They can charge you 20 percent a week under that bill."

One of the first items of business for the House and Senate Thursday was enactment of a bill to reinstate the Greensboro-High Point Airport Authority.

Ross Testifies He Had No Knowledge Of Acts

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Douglas Ross, suspended from the Greenville Police Department last July following his arrest on charges of possession of marijuana and maintaining and keeping a structure for the storage of a controlled substance, took the stand in his own behalf this morning, saying he had no knowledge that anything illegal was taking place on his property.

Ross was arrested two days after law enforcement officers found four tons of marijuana at a mobile home Ross owned. The house trailer was located 100 feet behind Ross's residence.

At the time of the raid, State Bureau of Investigation agents, Greenville Police and agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration found 169 bales of marijuana and arrested several persons, including Ross' sister-in-law, Mrs. Louise Whitehurst, at the scene.

The first witness for the defense, Mrs. Whitehurst testified yesterday that she arranged to have the marijuana placed in the trailer. She said neither Ross, nor his wife, her sister Marga, knew anything about the marijuana until the July 23 raid.

Mrs. Whitehurst said she arranged for the trailer to be rented by James Robert Bohannon of Kentucky, and believed machinery was to be stored there. She testified that she did not learn it would be used to house marijuana until four days before the delivery.

The witness said she paid Mrs. Ross $200 in rent. Mrs. Whitehurst also said other defendants in the case were concerned that Ross would find out about the marijuana and turn them in.

Six out-of-state men arrested in connection with the case — including Bohannon — have been sentenced in connection with their part in the case.

SUPPORT NEEDED

Greenville's Community Ambassador Program is in need of support from the community in order to continue to send ambassadors abroad this summer to represent Greenville through the Experiment in International Living.

This program has been, in the past, largely supported by a small group of citizens who have tried to obtain small contributions from a large segment of the population. The average contribution in the past has been $10, but this year the goal has fallen short.

The program was established 15 years ago under the sponsorship of the Greenville United Christian Youth Movement, an interdenominational organization that has since disbanded. Since that time 22 rising seniors at Rose High School have been sent to represent Greenville in 14 countries. Each student usually speaks to from 30 to 50 groups during the year following his or her summer abroad.

Individuals and group interested in contributing any amount are asked to contact one of the following: Dr. Richard Taft, chairman; Les Garner, treasurer; Sue Hochmuth, secretary; Pam Penland, publicity person; or Jo Anne Bath, past chairman.

Three City School Buses Collide; Eighteen Injured

Three city school buses collided on 14th Street, just North of the Chestnut Street intersection, about 1:10 p.m. yesterday, causing minor injury to 18 persons and an estimated $4,500 damage.

Greenville police reported that bus 158, headed North on 14th Street, slowed or stopped in the traffic lane and was hit from the rear by bus 174. Bus 181 slammed into the rear of bus 174.

The drivers were identified as James Earl Dixon, 30 of 1203B Davenport St. (158), Meldon Newton, 19 of 802B Tyson St. (174), and Annie Mae Teel, 28 of 1702B Hopkins Dr. (181).

Dixon and 10 students were taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by Greenville Fire-Rescue Department rescue units, while two students were transported by Greenville Police Department vehicles. The other five students made their own way to the hospital, investigators said.

Those injured were treated for their injuries and released. All the students were from Rose High School. Officers said investigation of the collision is continuing.

A spokesman at the county school bus garage estimated damage to the bus driven by Dixon at $500, while placing damage to the bus operated by Newton at $1,000. An estimated $3,000 damage resulted to the bus driven by Ms. Teel.

School officials said they have no idea exactly how many students were on the three buses at the time of the mishap. The Rose High exam schedule ended at 1 p.m. and the buses were taking students home for the day.

According to Rodney Bullock, supervisor at the school bus garage, regulations governing bus operations require a 300 foot separation between buses on the open road. "In town...no more than two buses in one city block."

Glenn Cox, superintendent of Greenville City Schools noted that it appears the buses involved in the mishap were "going too close together."

EIGHTEEN INJURED ... A Greenville fireman washed debris, left when three city school buses collided, from 14th Street, near the Chestnut Street intersection, early yesterday afternoon. One of the bus drivers and 17 Rose High School students were treated for minor injuries they received in the mishap, which caused an estimated $4,500 property damage to the vehicles.

Families Conferees Seek Minimize Differences

Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Delegates to the White House Conference on Families, admonished by President Carter to look for "creative, compassionate" solutions to problems facing modern families, are trying to minimize simmering differences over such issues as abortion and homosexual rights.

But leaders of a "pro-family" coalition that espouses traditional values said today they were considering a walkout unless those emotional issues were faced head-on and made the subject of recommendations.

Lawrence Pratt, a delegate from Springfield, Va., said he thought a national referendum on guaranteeing the civil rights of homosexuals would fail 90 percent to 10 percent. But delegates to this conference would not vote that way, he added.

Connie Marshner of the National Pro-Family Coalition said her group wants to work within the conference framework. But, she told reporters, "If it becomes obvious that it is not going to be a representative conference at all, then we will have to take another look at it."

About 700 delegates from 18 states and territories were meeting in small work groups today to begin drafting the recommendations that will be forwarded to Congress and the president. Suggestions from the Baltimore conference will be blended with results from similar meetings planned later for Minneapolis and Los Angeles in a final report.

resolving an individual family dispute. "We clearly do not all disagree on everything," he said.

But verbal conflict erupted anyway during a session on families and human needs.

Asked to offer a definition of "family," Sheila Kamerman, a Columbia University professor, said the one thing she believed everyone could agree on was the "concern about the environment in which children are born, reared and brought up."

But Mrs. Marshner of the Pro-Family Coalition offered a more specific view. "A family consists of people who are related by heterosexual marriage, blood or adoption," she asserted.

She said there should be no formal cooperation between parents and the "professionals" who provide family services in the rearing of children. She said government already has usurped too many functions that should belong to families.

Mrs. Marshner acknowledged that there have been changes in American life that affect the family, but she described most of them as bad ones and said the nation should return to traditional values.

"The battle lines are being drawn," she declared. "There is forming a constituency in this nation for policies that will be based not on fulfilling the economic needs of people but on a return to traditional moral values."

Marian Wright Edelman, president of the Children's Defense Fund, challenged that argument: "I will not accept the view that only some of us believe in traditional family values. I believe in a respect for other points of view. Each family has to decide what its values are. No group can dictate them."

Mrs. Edelman urged that the question of abortion, which was the subject of repeated references during the discussion, not be allowed to stall the group's work. "The important thing is for us to search for the common ground that we have," she said. "I'm not going to change your mind (about abortion) and you're not going to change mine."

Carter stayed away from specific issues in his keynote speech to the delegates. But he did advise them to face up to changes in society stemming from the fact that people are living longer, more women are entering the work force and the number of single-parent families is increasing.

Suspect PLO In School Bombing

UNION CITY, N.J. (AP) — FBI officials are investigating a bombing at a rabbinical school on the assumption that Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizers were responsible, federal agents say.

No one was injured in the blast, which occurred Tuesday when cans of gasoline with cloth wicks were thrown into two buses owned by the Hassidic Jewish College, officials said. The words "PLO" and "This is in revenge for our leaders" — an apparent reference to recent attacks on two Palestinian mayors — were scrawled on a school wall.

An unidentified woman at the PLO office at the United Nations said, "I'm pretty sure we haven't taken credit for that."

Hunt Asks Lost Colony Stamps

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has asked the U.S. Postal Service to issue stamps commemorating the Lost Colony and other English efforts to settle the New World in the 1580s.

"From 1584 to 1587, world attention will be focused on North Carolina as we celebrate the quadricentennial of the first English settlements," Hunt said in a letter to Postmaster General William Bolger.

Plead Innocent As To 'Abscam'

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Philadelphia congressmen were among five persons who pleaded innocent in federal court in Brooklyn to charges stemming from the government's Abscam operation.

Reps. Michael "Ozzie" Myers, 35, and Raymond Lederer, 43, both Democrats, were released without bail Thursday, as were the three other defendants.

The two representatives were charged with accepting bribes from undercover FBI agents in return for promises to help non-existent Middle East businessmen to immigrate to this country.

Also charged were Louis Johanson, a Philadelphia city councilman; Howard Criden, Johanson's former law partner; and Angelo Errichetti, who is mayor of Camden, N.J., and a New Jersey state senator. They were accused of aiding in the bribery of the two congressmen.

money. The rest was divided among four men — Criden, Errichetti, Johanson and another unnamed individual, the indictment said.

In Washington, Lederer reported the $5,000 he allegedly took from the FBI agents as a "consulting fee."

The disclosure was made in a routine annual financial report filed with the Clerk of the House.

Myers was charged with collecting $60,000 in illegal payments, keeping $15,000 and dividing the rest with the others.

Conviction on the charges carries a maximum penalty of 25 years in federal prison.

Indict Trio In Church Bombing

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted three Columbus County residents in connection with a series of bombings at a church in the county community of Sellerstown.

U.S. Attorney Ted Davis Jr. said the indictments, which were issued Tuesday night, are the result of a five-year investigation.

Indicted were Horry James Watts, a former county commissioner and a former Whiteville city board of education member; Bud Lawrence Sellers; and Frances Lewis Powell.

Each was indicted on one count of conspiracy in connection with a series of 10 bombings from August 1974 to December 1976 at the parsonage next to the Free Welcome Holiness Church.

Each is charged with one count of trying to violate the freedom of religion of the pastor, Robert F. Nichols, and his wife, Ramona, who is now dead.

Nichols, who became pastor of the church in 1969, left in 1978 when his wife was murdered. Kelton Williams is serving a jail term in connection with the murder.

Watts and Ms. Powell also were indicted for conspiring to detonate a bomb at the New Hanover County residence of Hazel Ward.

The 74-year-old Watts, in a related charge, was indicted for using the federal mail to issue a bomb threat with intent to kill, injure or intimidate Ms. Ward.

Authorities said Ms. Ward left her home near Sellerstown because of the threats.

A conviction of conspiracy to bomb carries a maximum of a five-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine. Watts, if convicted of the bomb threat, faces another five years and $5,000. Conspiring to violate civil rights could result in another 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Nichols earlier said he believed the bombings were prompted by some policy changes he initiated in the church.

Warm Springs Site Advised

ATLANTA (AP) — The nation's memorial to Franklin D. Roosevelt should be in Warm Springs, Ga., where the leader of World War II America died, says a National Park Service report.

Joe Tanner, commissioner of Georgia's Department of Natural Resources, said Thursday the report recommended Congress abolish the federal FDR Memorial Commission and designate the Little White House at Warm Springs as the Roosevelt Memorial. Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus earlier withdrew his support of an FDR memorial in Washington, which has a construction price tag estimated at $46 million.

Roosevelt visited Warm Springs for polio treatments.

Raps Banks' Drug Role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., says the illegal drug trade in southeast Florida is flourishing because of the cooperation of banks in the Miami area and he wants federal banking regulators to get tough.

"Not only are millions of Americans addicted to drugs, many banks are addicted to drug money," Proxmire said Thursday at a hearing of the Senate Banking Committee he was conducting.

The Wisconsin senator said banking regulatory agencies are not doing their job and that one unnamed bank with $37 million in assets, deposited about $600 million in currency in the Miami Federal Reserve bank last year.

Several witnesses, including Assistant Treasury Secretary Richard J. Davis, agreed with Proxmire that drug smugglers would have trouble conducting their illegal business if they couldn't deposit cash in banks and use cashier's checks to send the money outside the country.

Davis said the agencies are getting more involved in uncovering possible violators of the federal Bank Secrecy Act, which is aimed at exposing underworld deposits in banks.

More Flights Ahead?

“Sunbird Airlines now loading at Gate One.”
That might be the next call to be heard at Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Ralph Quinlan, president of Sunbird Airlines discussed the possibility before the noon Rotary Club this week.

“We are strongly considering coming to Greenville,” he said. “Our problem right now is getting enough equipment to allow us to expand our flights here.”

The airline now has eight aircraft and serves Charlotte, Fayetteville, Hickory, Kinston, Raleigh, Durham, Roanoke Rapids, Rocky Mount, Wilson, Wilmington, Norfolk and points in Tennessee.

Quinlan said he could foresee four or five round trips daily for Greenville on weekdays with craft that carry eight passengers and have two pilots.

Service by Sunbird would be an interesting development for the Pitt-Greenville Airport. The time of commuter service for Eastern North Carolina communities seems to have arrived, and the more flights we have out of the airport, the better opportunity there will be to meet connecting flights at major airports.

Few Favor Single Life

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J. — Despite the growing number of women who are holding jobs outside the home — about half of all women 18 and older now have a full-time or part-time job — they tend to do so within the traditional framework of marriage and parenthood.

The stereotypical “career-woman” lifestyle — single, free and in pursuit of a full-time career — has very little appeal to American women, at least as a permanent way of life. Only 8 percent say they would prefer this type of existence.

A Gallup survey recently conducted for the White House Conference on Families, which holds its opening conference in Baltimore today, shows that the vast majority of American women (74 percent) view marriage with children as the most interesting and satisfying life for them personally.

The latest results on the ideal lifestyle of women almost exactly parallel those recorded in a 1975 study, when 76 percent said the most interesting and satisfying life for them was to be married and have children.

Although 41 percent of all women interviewed say their ideal lifestyle would be to be married, have children and NOT to have a full-time job, one-third (33 percent) of those who prefer marriage and motherhood would like to have a full-time job as well. Presumably, this proportion would be still higher if survey respondents were asked about part-time jobs.

Analysis of the views of women by key population groups brings the following to light:

- Younger women (18 to 29 years old) hold almost identical views to those of the total adult female population, with 76 percent saying the most rewarding life for them would be to be married and have children.
- The relatively few women who express a preference for being single with a full-time job are more likely to be under 30 years old, college-educated and living in the West. At the same time, however, the vast majority of women, regardless of background characteristics or region of the country, want marriage and children.

The White House Conference on Families was called by President Jimmy Carter to “examine the strengths of American families, the difficulties they face and the ways in which family life is affected by public policies.”

Following is the question asked in the survey:
“Let’s talk about the ideal life for you personally. Which one of the alternatives on this card do you feel would provide the most interesting and satisfying life for you personally?” (Respondents were handed a card with five alternative lifestyles.)

The following table shows the latest results and those recorded in a survey five year ago:

Ideal Lifestyle (Views of Women)	1975	Today
Married with children	76%	74%
With full-time job	32	33
With no full-time job	44	41
Married with no children	9	10
With full-time job	6	6
With no full-time job	3	4
Unmarried with full-time job	9	8
Not sure	6	8

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 813 women, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period March 21-24.

California Message Good

California voters approved Howard Jarvis’ Proposition 13, which cut property taxes, and started a taxpayers revolt in the nation.

This week, however, Californians defeated the Jarvis sponsored Proposition 9 which would have cut state income tax in half.

This one had California state officials worried since it would have cut heavily into state revenues.

Often California voters set the pace for the nation in public expenditures matters. Now they seem to be telling government that they are willing to responsibly pay their taxes . . . but they expect responsible spending. If so, its a pretty good message.

THIS AFTERNOON

'Professionalism' Trust A Fortuneteller

By ART BUCHWALD

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A sharp decline in the North Carolina Association of Educators in recent months stems from a complex set of circumstances.

In a word, though, the issue is professionalism. That status is a goal long yearned for by the many truly dedicated teachers in North Carolina.

Being professional means having individual freedom to do your job; pushing for public support of essential ways of improving education; and enjoying the rewards which come from professional work, both financial and intangible.

Increasingly, over the years, the NCAE has devoted its considerable political clout to matters which a number of educators have concluded do not constitute professional growth. Legislative goals of the teacher organization have invariably concentrated on salary and benefits, with emphasis on “leveling” those rewards and unyielding opposition to any kind of merit reward system.

Unions

Collective bargaining is another NCAE goal. Politely termed, “Professional negotiations,” the aim is to allow NCAE representatives to negotiate with the state and local political structures responsible for the schools on such matters as salary and working conditions.

There are, indeed, rare items on the annual list of goals which directly speak to the professional concerns of educators: relief from petty clerical duties and daily routines which detract from teaching kids; improvements in school discipline and atmosphere which enhance teaching; an end to ill-advised programs which are supposed to socialize and equalize children but have little or nothing to do with teaching them.

Probably the single most important element attributing to the membership decline in the NCAE is the apparent drift toward unionism — and that is the opposite of professionalism in the view of many.

Two little recognized ingredients are in the formula: the federal courts have ruled that the National Education Association is a labor union, and it is rated as the nation's largest. It is the “parent organization” of the NCAE and such organizations in the other states. Many Tar Heel teachers resent this relationship, and particularly resent having to pay national membership dues as a requirement for membership in the state organization. They are forced, by membership in the NCAE, to join the national union.

There are numerous teachers who would like for their association to concentrate on educational matters; but concede privately that so long as the aggressive and sometimes militant colleagues among them “volunteer” for election to leadership posts in the NCAE while most teachers shrink from such involvement, the direction is not likely to change.

a skeptical look at the organization which they view as becoming almost totally devoted to classroom teacher interests while pushing measures such as collective bargaining which actually threaten the administrative position. There was bitter feuding, too, between administrators and NCAE leaders over the new salary schedule now being considered by the General Assembly. Considerable lobbying was done to keep assistant principals, principals, and superintendents from gaining as much from the change as did other educators.

In July, administrators who have formed their separate group, will consider pulling away from the NCAE altogether. That could result in another substantial membership loss of up to 2,000 for the organization which in the last three years has dropped from 51,000 to 42,000: an 18 percent loss.

WASHINGTON — Whenever I get depressed about the economy, I go over to visit with one of the Administration's leading forecasters, Arnie Hackle. Arnie shares his office with Madame Tula, the fortuneteller over Doc Dalinsky's Drugstore. He could have an office at the White House, but he needs the use of Madame Tula's tea leaves to make his predictions for the next fiscal year.

“You economists blew it again,” I said to Arnie.

“How did we blow it?” he asked.

“You predicted a mild recession and you wound up with a hurricane.”

“I think you're just reacting to the bad economic news that has been coming out. It's true the depth of the recession is deeper than we predicted, and the speed of it is faster than we thought, and it's sharper than we expected, but in the long run we expect to see a turnaround after the summer is over, providing the erosion of purchasing power is reduced.”

“I understand that,” I said. “But can't you Carter people even organize a good recession?”

“The model we used checked out perfectly in the lab. What we failed to take into consideration was that the Consumer Price Index, driven up by higher interest can see in an inflationary cycle,” Arnie said. “Once the bubble is broken, then you can start work on monetary and fiscal safeguards to maintain the status quo.”

“Your unemployment figures were way off, Arnie. What happened there?”

“When we planned this recession, we made allowances for a 7.5 unemployment rate, which we felt the Administration could live with. What we didn't count on was that more people would be out of work than we allowed for. They threw our model all off, and now we've had to re-calibrate” rates on mortgages, would reach a peak where no one could afford to buy a house. Now that mortgage rates are sliding down, we expect to see an upturn in the building industry either before or after the end of the year.”

“But by the time they come down everyone will be out of work and no one will be able to afford a house at any interest rate.”

“That is the conventional wisdom, but we economists have to ignore it if we ever hope to get the big bubble out of inflation. Once we get the bubble out, we can go to high single digit numbers.”

“Is the bubble the underlying cause of the rate of inflation?”

“No, but it is the thing you

To the editor:

Perhaps few people know that the inspiration behind the first Father's Day was an actual father, William Jackson Smart. His selfless devotion in raising his family of six young children after the early death of his wife inspired his daughter, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, in later years to promote the establishment of a special day to honor all fathers in this country.

Then, just what is a father? A father is a guiding light who listens to his children's sorrows and soothes them with his love; he is a teacher for he's the source from which his children think and navigate; he is a gift from God from which his children learn to be patient, strong and loving and filled with integrity; he thinks, plans, struggles as nobly as he can to set a good example and to be a respected man.

Can your children truthfully said, “My dad, the greatest guy on earth?”

From “Thank You Lord, For My Home,” by Gigi Graham Tchividjian: “I don't remember ever going to my father's office and being told that he was too busy. He dropped everything for me. He made me feel important, significant, loved.”

I can't think of a more appropriate poem for a dad/father to share with his son today than Rudyard Kipling's “If”—

“And — which is more — you'll be a Man, my son!”

Your House Is Really A Bank

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A house is a bank, a bank that millions of homeowners during the decade of the 1970's found would outpace stocks, bonds and other investments — with shelter thrown into the bargain.

The owner didn't always appreciate the fact, since much of the payout couldn't be realized until the owner sold or remortgaged the property. And, in the meantime, he was forced to pay stiff carrying charges.

But now the use of house-banks seems to be even more pronounced a way of life, according to a study released this week by the U.S. League of Savings Associations, which represents many mortgage lenders.

No less than 80 percent of repurchasers in that period, the league said, were able to retain some of the proceeds from the sale of the old home while meeting downpayment requirements on the new residence.

That is, they reaped dividends from the sharply higher value of the old home, had cash for things such as education, and used what was left for the down payment on a new and often more expensive residence.

The study, of 14,000 mortgages made last year, confirms the trend. Thirty-one percent of the repurchasers retained at least half the proceeds from the previous home; the median retention was 34 percent.

What use the money was put to, the league, which represents most of the country's savings and loan associations, did not say. But what the withdrawals quite clearly did was raise the household debt burden.

The equity accumulation that permitted the big withdrawals resulted mainly from sharp increases in values, from $44,000 in 1977 to $58,000 in mid-1979, a rise of 14.8 percent a year.

Since most repurchasers chose to retain sizable portions of that money, they greatly increased the pressure on their household budgets. The new homes cost much more to buy, and much more to finance too.

“Nearly 46 percent of repurchasers spent more than 25 percent of income on housing in 1979, up dramatically from 38 percent in 1977,” the study relates. Twenty-five percent, remember, was once the maximum.

When you consider that during this time the individual investor shied away from the stock market (the New York Stock Exchange says millions of them were lost during the past decade), and that the rate of savings dipped to near all time lows, you can see what homeowners were up to.

They are still up to it. The survey suggests they expect inflation to continue to raise the value of their homes and, of course, their equity in them. The home is their savings accounts and investment portfolio.

Various critics have commented that the procedure is fraught with dangers. If housing prices do fall, they point out, many families and their lenders too might find themselves badly overextended.

Median housing prices, however, have not fallen, although rates of increase have slowed. And the distress about inflation among those close to housing, such as Edwin B. Brooks Jr., league president, doesn't prevent them from expecting inflation to continue in the 1980s.

One of the strongest props, they like to point out, is demographic. They say that during the 1980s more young people than ever before, about 42 million, will reach age 30, a homebuying “threshold.”

Such people, having lived all their adult years with inflation, are presumed to be wise about inflation's pitfalls and advantages. And one advantage is obviously the manner in which homes are financed.

With downpayments as little as 20 percent, for example, a homebuyer obtains tremendous leverage. For $10,000 he controls a $50,000 asset. If the value of that asset rises $10,000 to $60,000, the owner's gross return on his $10,000 investment equals 100 percent.

The buyer must pay interest on the purchase, of course, but mortgage rates generally have been below the prime lending rate to the nation's most solid corporations, and often below the inflation rate.

In addition, the buyer splits interest costs with Uncle Sam, being able to deduct them from his income taxes. And the rise in value of the asset isn't taxed until he sells, and then at the lowest rate.

It explains why, for better or worse, so many Americans are banking on their home. It has become their investment, their lender, their savings, the hope for their kids' educations and their own retirement.

Strength For Today

POWER OF FAITH

Habbakuk is by no means a well-known Biblical figure. He is listed among the minor prophets, and today few Bible readers would know much about him or what he taught. But he made one statement which has become the citadel of Christian belief and life — “The just shall live by faith.”

At first glance this statement does not seem to have earth-shaking significance, but in view of repeated New Testament corroboration it has proved to be one of the most important and vital statements found in the entire Bible.

Habbakuk faced great personal problems and the truth which at last set his mind at rest was the assurance that those who are “justified” in the sight of God and who start out on the adventure of living the good life amid the temptations of the world will find that the only thing which will sustain them will be faith. — Elisha Douglass.

Life As It's Lived

One Does Go Overboard Explaining The Facts

By GAIL MICHAELS
We've all heard the story about the little boy who asked, "Where did I come from?" He listened patiently to his mother's detailed biological explanation, then said, "I know that. What city did I come from?"

His mother is only one of a generation which is overly conscientious about providing sex education for its children. And who can blame us? Millions of us, faced with our parents' conspiracy of silence, came to the conclusion through logical deduction that the belly button was the focal point of the birth process. Naturally, we're determined that our own children shouldn't be saddled with such misconceptions.

So we occasionally go overboard. We try not to. Before my son, Zachary, was born, I read everything I could on preschool sex education. I learned that I should wait for the questions, then answer them as honestly as I could. I should not volunteer information. That way Meg would get the facts she needed when and if she wanted them.

It would have been a perfect approach had it worked. Unfortunately, I found that when I didn't go the extra step, Meg's or her friends' imaginations did.

For instance, Meg was concerned that the baby was getting too dirty communing with all that food in my stomach.

I explained that the baby was not growing in my stomach, that it was growing in its own special place and that was surrounded by a sack full of water to keep it nice and clean.

The next day she relayed the information about the "baby bubble" to her best friend.

"Yep," the friend said, nodding sagely, "but that bubble has a sharp point on it and when the bubble bursts, it'll cut your mom, and that's how the baby gets yukky."

"The baby doesn't get yukky," Meg protested.

"Oh yes it does," her friend said with vampirish zest.

"They're so yukky the doctors have to wear gloves."

This was my cue to set the record straight. I accompanied my explanation with a diagram of the female anatomy so that no further flights of fancy could take place.

But they did. During the next few months I learned that the water didn't completely fill the bubble because the baby had to surface every few hours for air. The baby didn't have any teeth because I had eaten so many candy bars that its teeth had all rotted out.

Every time a new fiction surfaced, I reiterated the facts. So I was surprised when Meg asked after we brought Zachary home how he got out.

I conscientiously pulled out my diagrams and went through the entire explanation of the birth process again.

Meg looked at me as if I'd had a lobotomy instead of a baby. "I meant which door of the hospital."

Graduated 1st In Class

ECU News Bureau
S. Keith Porterfield, an East Carolina University campus police officer, was graduated first in a class of 34 in the 240-hour Basic Law Enforcement Instruction course at Coastal Plains Police Academy, Wilson, on June 3.

He was one of two ECU campus policemen enrolled in the course taught by the N.C. Criminal Justice Academy which covers such subjects as laws of arrest, search and seizure, criminal law, motor vehicles law, firearms, driver training, police-community relations and others. Graduation in the course as set forth by the Criminal Justice Training Standards Council is required within a year of employment by any accredited North Carolina law enforcement agency.

S. KEITH PORTERFIELD

Porterfield, 23, of Durham, also was graduated from ECU in May receiving a BS degree in Corrections. He was employed by the ECU campus police Nov. 1, 1979.

Also graduating at Coastal Plains Police Academy was ECU patrolman Charles E. Lawler of Greenville, employed by ECU since August, 1979.

The ECU campus police force includes 21 uniformed officers, one investigator, three dispatchers and two clerical employees.

Twenty Died On 'Suicide Curve'

JASPER, Ark. (AP) — Lorene Fancher has lived near "Suicide Curve" for eight years and knows the screeching sounds of trucks plunging into the ravine below. But the bus accident that claimed 20 lives "was the biggest and longest crash of them all."

Federal officials were working today to determine what caused a chartered tour bus from Texas to leave a twisting mountain road in darkness and careen 50 feet down a steep, wooded ravine.

The accident was the worst in Arkansas history, said Maj. Buren Jackson of the state police. The bus driver and 19 of the 32 passengers were killed and the other 13 were injured.

Some relatives were asked to identify jewelry, rather than the bodies themselves, because the bodies were badly battered. Four of the victims were decapitated.

"It looks as though the brakes apparently had failed," said Capt. Billy Bob Davis, commander of the Arkansas State Police at Harrison, a town of 9,000 20 miles north of the ravine.

Ross Goodwin, vice president of Central Texas Busines Inc., which owned the bus, said the bus's brakes had been checked last week. He declined further comment.

Jim Selby, state Highway Department district engineer, said he found "no evidence" that the brakes were used after the bus passed the crest of the hill about two miles above the site of the wreck.

Newton County Sheriff Ray Watkins and Coroner C.J. Easley said it appeared the driver of the bus may have tried to use the ravine as a braking mechanism. They speculated Jimmy Thigpen had given up his life in an effort to save others.

"I tell you one thing, he was one hell of a bus driver," Easley told the Dallas Morning News. "He laid that bus in on an embankment to stop it. He eased it in there on an angle, not straight on. If he hadn't done that, all of them would have been killed."

The twist in the road, known to people in this town of 400 as "Suicide Curve," has been the scene of numerous past accidents. The crash of the bus occurred just past the point where a 1,000-foot escape lane is currently under construction.

Patches of the highway bear deep grooves that produce vibrations and warn motorists of the curves in two-lane Arkansas 7, which winds through the Ozark Mountains.

Passengers said they remembered hearing "a grinding noise" or "the bus hitting some rough places" before the crash.

Davis said the bus traveled along a shallow ditch, then hit and culvert and plunged down the embankment, cutting through trees like a bulldozer.

"We were all praying and some of us must have been crying because we were so scared," said Jessie Morgan, 67, of Irving, Texas. She suffered broken ribs and cuts when she was thrown two seats forward.

"I was stuck between the seats—I caught a hand that was just swinging there ... Oh, it was so dark."

At least four bodies were found on the highway.

The passenger list had indicated 34 people were aboard the bus. However, authorities later determined that one of those listed, Enola Sheeley, injured her toe just before the trip.

"It might after a few more dips. Then again you wouldn't want it to bottom out before we get our inflationary expectations too high."

"From what you've told me, the Carter economic game plan is right on target."

"I would say so, providing we reduce inflation, balance the budget, and get people back to work as soon as possible. Afghan Rebels Mass; Soviets Fear Kabul Attack

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Afghan rebels were reported today to have massed a huge force in mountains as close as 13 miles to Kabul and a traveler arriving here said Soviet military units were preparing to defend the capital.

Other air passengers reaching India from Afghanistan were unable to confirm the information. However, a separate report from a Kabul source believed reliable confirmed that insurgents had gathered in the Paghman mountains west of the capital in what was described as preparation to attack a Soviet troop base.

The arriving traveler, an Afghan who requested that he not be named, estimated that 20,000 insurgents from Bamian and Wardhak, central provinces seething with guerrilla activity, were converging near the capital. They are now entrenched in the Paghman mountains and skirmishes with Russian troops have already begun, the traveler said.

The Soviets have moved tanks and troops in position to defend the outskirts of Kabul and city residents have heard apparent exchanges of fire, he added. These reports could not be independently confirmed.

Afghanistan has expelled Western reporters.

In Moscow today, Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev met with Indian External Affairs Minister V.P. Narasimha Rao and restated the Soviet position on Afghanistan — that Russian troops would be withdrawn once the United States guarantees to stop any intervention there, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The Soviets claim that Pakistan, China and the United States have been aiding the guerrillas. The three nations have denied the charge. Russia says its troops are in Afghanistan at that country's invitation to help put down the Moslem rebellion.

"As to Afghanistan, it was stated that the Soviet Union advocates a political settlement that would reliably guarantee full termination of aggression against that country and all forms of interference from outside into its internal affairs," Tass quoted Brezhnev as saying.

Some 85,000 Soviet troops were poured into Afghanistan in December to help the two-year-old Marxist regime there put down the rebellion by anti-communist Moslem tribesmen who control much of the countryside.

An Indian student arriving from Afghanistan on Friday said he had heard distant artillery firing for two or three hours on each of the past three days.

The travelers said Kabul television has explained "loud reports" heard outside the city as "normal target shooting practice" by military units.

The Afghan traveler also said Soviet troops have been combing the villages between Kabul and the mountains in house-to-house searches for weapons. He said the rebels were massed in a 30-mile arc from the Paghman range west of the city to Charikar, north of Kabul.

Roads from Kabul to the north and west were reported blocked by Russian troops.

The traveler also confirmed earlier reports of heavy fighting in the Pech Valley and other parts of Kunar Province, in eastern Afghanistan.

Soviet forces last Wednesday concluded 22 days of shelling and bombardment by helicopter gunships of rebel-held villages and valleys in the province, he said. Their targets included the Pech and Shigal valleys and Dar-i-nur and Dar-i-mazar, about 35 miles west of the Pakistan border and civilian casualties were heavy, the traveler said.

The Hezbi Islami rebel organization based in Pakistan said Thursday that 64 rebel tribesmen were lost in one recent encounter in Pech Valley but that Russian airborne troops suffered heavier casualties.

The valley, a rebel stronghold, lies in the shadow of the 14,000-foot Hindu Kush mountains, close to the Pakistani border some 100 miles east of Kabul, the Afghan capital.

Jamal Ahmed, a spokesman for the Hezbi-Islami, told reporters in Islamabad on Thursday that Soviet planes dropped paratroopers into the valley in mid-May. There was no independent confirmation of the report.

Ahmed also said that on May 15 guerrillas destroyed part of a natural gas pipeline running from the northern Afghan province of Balkh to the Soviet Union. The guerrillas broke the pipe open and ignited the gas, which burned for three days, Ahmed said.

The Soviets are the only customers for Afghanistan's natural gas, the country's most lucrative export, and have been largely responsible for developing the resource. Some Afghans claim, however, that Moscow is not paying enough for the gas.

The Soviet newspaper Pravda reported Thursday that the insurgents had intensified their anti-Soviet campaign, using growing spring caravan traffic from Pakistan to spirit men and arms into Afghanistan.

The Pravda article on the life of Soviet troops in the battle-torn land said nothing about combat involvement or casualties among the Soviets and instead, described rebel tactics against unidentified forces.

It did say, however, that rebel activities were at a high level.

The lengthy report by Pravda, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said the Afghan rebels have reduced the size of their individual fighting units to 30-40 men, and "they like to use ambushes at bridges and narrow places."

Unconfirmed reports from Afghanistan have spoken of ambushes that trapped Soviet troops.

Sculpture Lost To Jackhammer

NEW YORK (AP) — Two Art Deco sculptures on the facade of the Fifth Avenue Bonwit Teller building under demolition have been destroyed to the dismay of Metropolitan Museum of Art officials who expected to add them to the museum's collection.

The 15-foot high bas-relief panels, each depicting partially-clad females, were smashed by jackhammers on Thursday after the building's developer decided they would be too expensive and troublesome to preserve.

Art appraisers and museum officials — who expected to add the works to the museum's 20th century art collection — were stunned by the action. One appraiser has estimated the sculptures' value at several hundred thousand dollars.

"Architectural sculpture of this quality is rare and would have made definite sense in our collections. Their monetary value was not what we were interested in," said Ashton Hawkins, the museum's vice president and secretary of the board of trustees.

Developer Donald J. Trump is demolishing the building to make way for a $100 million, 62-story structure of apartments, offices and stores. He said several months ago that he would give the sculptures to the museum if the cost of removing them was not prohibitive.

But Donald Baron, a vice president of the Trump firm, said Thursday that the company decided not to save the panels because "the merit of these stones was not great enough to justify the effort to save them."

Baron said his firm was told by three independent appraisers that the sculptures were "without artistic merit" and worth less than $9,000 in "resale value."

Removing them would have cost $32,000 and delayed the demolition by 1 1/2 weeks, he said.

The sculptures were embedded in the facade between the eighth and ninth floors of the 11-story building on Fifth Avenue and 56th Street.

The building was designed by the firm of Warren & Wetmore, which also designed the Grand Central Terminal, and erected in 1928. It was sold last year by Bonwit Teller, which is moving its flagship store several blocks away.

Graduation At Rose High

The 1980 graduation exercises will be held at J.H. Rose High School tonight at 8 p.m. at Ficklen Stadium.

Four seniors will speak, including Marl Earl Grossnickle, Kevin Amos Clark, Gregory Bernard Whitener and Susan Riddle Vick. They will speak on the role of foundations, education, vocation and realization, respectively.

The seniors will march in to Pomp and Circumstance, and the Star-Spangled Banner will be played. The thought for the day will be given by Vice President of the senior class Cheryl Anderson, and Daniel Sawyer Mayo, Jr. will preside over the ceremonies.

Superintendent of Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox, Chairman of the School Board Edward Carter and Rose High Principal Howard Hurt will be present.

Mayor Talks At Luncheon

Greenville Mayor Donald McGlohon addressed the Pitt County Safety Council at a luncheon meeting Thursday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Mayor McGlohon spoke about "Risk Management in Government" and contrasted the motives with those of the private sector where profit is the primary objective. He noted that the techniques of risk management are similar to those of the private sector, however, services to constituents replaces the profit motive for governmental organizations.

The major concerns of risk management are compounded in cities as growth continues and additional services are demanded by citizens. McGlohon also pointed out that as services are expanded risk chances increase and the consequences become greater. "People begin to think there is no end to the financial resources of a city when making liability claims against it," he said.

"There are various ways of reducing risks. One way is to avoid risks, which is not always feasible, or to transfer responsibility to other parties and the last method is to insure, and you've got to know how to insure," McGlohon stated.

The mayor concluded by pointing out that the number one cause for losses stemming from accidents is the attitudes and habits of those persons involved and that city management is responsible for setting the stage for the reduction of risk possibilities.

In other council business, the following members were elected for 1980-81 offices: President, Dr. Al King, Vice President, Sarah Jenkins, Secretary-Treasurer, Polly Dail, and Melvin McLawhorn and T.B. Sitterson were elected board members.

Recognition For Graduate

Joseph T. (Tony) Liverman, grandson of Mrs. Mamie C. Liverman of Winterville, received special recognition for scholastic achievement at Bowman Gray School of Medicine of Wake Forest University recently.

Liverman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Liverman Sr. of Nashville, was presented the Robert P. Vidinghoff Memorial Award at the medical school's annual student awards ceremony.

The Vidinghoff Award, according to the school, is presented to the graduating student who shows the greatest aptitude and devotion to the field of family practice.

Liverman received the M.D. degree in graduation exercises on the Wake Forest campus. He also holds the B.A. degree from Wake Forest.

Liverman will take post-graduate training in family medicine at North Carolina Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem.

Results Of Elections Official

The Pitt County Board of Elections, in its official canvass of Tuesday's run-off primary results, confirmed the totals published by "The Daily Reflector."

Margaret Register, board supervisor, said that yesterday's canvass officially gave Jim Martin of Bethel, candidate for District Court Judge from the Third Judicial District, 2,362 votes in the county, while Moses Lasitter of New Bern tallied 391.

Martin won the four-county run-off with Lasitter, polling a combined total of 4,373 in the four-county balloting. Lasitter received 2,252 in the Pitt-Craven-Carteret-Pamlico County voting.

The local canvass also confirmed the Pitt total of 1,778 for State Senator Edward Renfrow in his successful run-off race with William Chestnut for the Democratic nomination for state auditor. Chestnut received 887 votes in Pitt County.

Just over ten percent of the county's Democratic voter registration of 26,319 visited the polls Tuesday, according to Miss Register. She said that 2,788 citizens made their choices at the county's 24 precincts.

Atta boy, Dave!

An Open Letter to a Discouraged Youngster

Dear Kid:

Today you came to me for a job. From the look of your shoulders as you walked out, I suspect you've been turned down before, and maybe you believe by now that kids out of high school can't find work.

But, I hired a teenager today. You saw him. He was the one with polished shoes and a necktie. What was so special about him? Not experience, neither of you had any. It was his attitude that put him on the payroll instead of you. Attitude, son. A-T-T-I-T-U-D-E. He wanted that job badly enough to shuck the leather jacket, get a haircut, and took the time to find out about my company. He did his best to impress me. That's where he edged you out.

You see, Kid, people who hire people aren't 'with' a lot of things. We know more about Bing than about Ringo, and we have Stone-Age ideas about who owes whom a living. Maybe that makes us pre-historic, but there's nothing wrong with the checks we sign.

Ever hear of "empathy"? It's the trick of seeing the other fellow's side of things. I couldn't have cared less that you're behind in your car payments. That's your problem. What I needed was someone with enthusiasm who'd keep his eyes open, and work for me like he'd work for himself. If you have even the vaguest idea of what I'm trying to say, let it show the next time you ask for a job. You'll be head and shoulders above the rest.

You know, Kid, men have always had to get a job like you get a girl. Case the situation, wear a clean shirt, and try to appear interested. Maybe jobs aren't as plentiful right now, but a lot of us can remember when master craftsmen walked the streets. By comparison you don't know the meaning of "scarce".

You may not believe it, but all around you employers are looking for young men and women smart enough to go after a job in the old-fashioned way. When they find one they can't wait to get him on their payroll.

Tehran Radio Claims Ramsey Clark Is U.S. Agent

By The Associated Press
Tehran Radio condemned Ramsey Clark today as "the vildest American agent" and asked Sadegh Ghotbzadeh's Foreign Ministry to explain why the former U.S. attorney general was allowed to participate in the "Crimes of America" conference. The four-day conference ended Thursday with a resolution condemning U.S. treatment of Iran, without mentioning the 53 American hostages seized more than seven months ago.

The government-owned radio, whose actions and commentaries occasionally anger some Iranian officials, said the aim of the conference should have been not only to investigate past U.S. activities but also to prevent what it said could be plots in the future.

It said Iran's continued dependence on imperialism and the "open and hidden conspiracies" of the United States leave no doubt that Iran must draw up as soon as possible a "comprehensive program" to counter this and to "separate and demarcate our relations with America."

It said the conference and the "conciliatory attitude" of the Foreign Ministry toward the United States need explanation.

Why, it asked, was Clark allowed to participate when the point of the conference was to investigate the actions of present and former U.S. officials and when a previous mission by Clark was "sent back in disgrace" by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

"We hope this clear departure from (Khomeini's) guidelines which resulted in the participation of the vildest American agent ... will be explained to the people by the officials," the radio said.

Clark was denied entry to Iran in November when he was sent by President Carter to try to discuss the hostage issue. His latest trip to Iran, with nine other Americans, was as a private citizen and in violation of a U.S. travel ban.

In the early months of the revolutionary regime, Ghotbzadeh headed the government broadcasting system, but he was replaced by a council whose members included Hojatoleslam Khomeini, Khomeini's representative among the embassy militants. The council is now believed defunct.

In February, President

Abolhassan Bani-Sadr ordered the broadcast system to halt its practice of giving automatic air time to the embassy militants. Tehran radio's precise political alignment since then has been difficult to judge.

Ghotbzadeh called the resolution adopted by the conference "a big victory for Iran," and said that "we Iranians need we got" from the meeting.

He said the Clark delegation's proposal to mention the hostages in the resolution would have led to inclusion of many other problems. "There are many other issues which are outstanding and, as far as we are concerned, are more important than the hostages," he said.

However, he said the hostage issue was covered implicitly because the measure calls for peaceful settlement of "all" Iranian-U.S. problems.

The Rev. Paul Washington, rector of the Church of the Advocate in Philadelphia, said the American delegation was ready to accept Ghotbzadeh's explanation. "What wasn't written explicitly, was stated explicitly," he said.

Although Iranian officials have repeatedly said the fate of the hostages will be determined by Iran's new Parliament, Ghotbzadeh, in his statements Thursday, said the next move in solving the crisis was up to Washington.

He said the United States should clarify what it has done in Iran to clear the way for ending the crisis. If the United States doesn't do that, he said, "the problem will remain the same."

Although he did not spell out what he meant by "clarifying" what America had done in Iran, he apparently was alluding to a proposal by Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr that an American commission be set up to look at and publish U.S. government documents on alleged American intervention in Iran.

Clark has agreed to try to initiate such an inquiry.

the conference condemned "the intervention of the United States in the internal affairs of Iran," and denounced "discriminatory treatment" of Iranian students in the United States.

It recognized Iran's right to "seek compensation for the enormous material and human losses which were incurred as a result of U.S. policies and practices in the last 27 years" in which the United States exerted its influence in Iran.

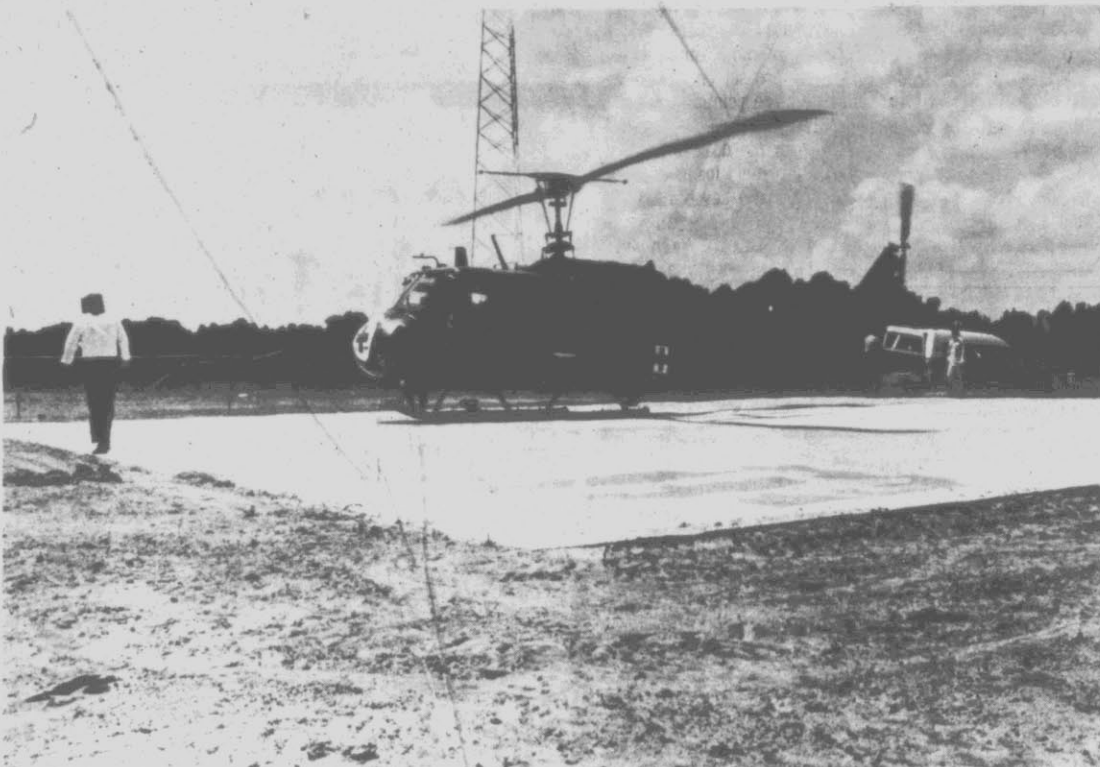

It said Iran has the right to seek extradition of the deposed shah and the return of the former monarch's wealth. The return of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who received cancer treatment in the United States last year and is now living in exile in Egypt, has been one of the consistent demands of the militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4.

The conference also condemned pressure by the United States on other countries to join an economic embargo against Iran.

In other developments: Eighteen more persons were executed, including Albert Danielpour, a leader of the 40,000 Jews still living in Iran. Iranian Jewish expatriates warned that the situation of the shrinking Jewish community in Iran was worsening under Khomeini's Islamic regime.

—In Washington, a report by Senate staff sharply attacked the command of the failed Iran hostage rescue mission April 25 as poor and its planning, helicopter training, maintenance and other preparations as insufficient. A Pentagon spokesman denounced the report as "full of inaccurate statements."

—In Cambridge, former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance warned a Harvard University graduating class of the "self-indulgent nonsense" of wishing American military power could solve any threat. Vance resigned to protest the attempted hostage rescue mission.

FIRST PATIENT — A U.S. Army MAST helicopter recently delivered the first patient to Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital's new heliport. The heliport, built to accommodate the medical center's growth as a regional referral center, is located behind the hospital complex. The Fort Bragg-based helicopter transferred the patient from Elizabeth City to the dialysis unit at PCMH.

Greensboro-High Point Airport 'In Business'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly worked with jet-like speed Thursday to put the Greensboro-High Point Airport Authority legally back in business.

The action was completed in the nick of time to enable the authority to award $43 million in contracts Monday for a new airport complex.

Everybody laughed when Rep. Jim Morgan, D-High Point, explained that the authority was abolished inadvertently nearly a year ago when the Legislature enacted a new city charter for High Point.

"I appreciate your laughter," said Morgan, "but I've got tears rolling down my cheek." He explained that the authority, which operates the regional airport at Friendship and is in the midst of a building program that will include a new terminal, had not legally existed for nearly a year.

With that, the House shouted its approval of the bill. It was sent to the Senate where a 45-0 roll call vote enacted it into law.

The Guilford County legislative delegation learned of the authority's plight Thursday morning when authority chairman Stanley Frank and Owen Cooke of Greensboro, the body's attorney, appeared and urged the enactment of emergency legislation in time for the award of contracts Monday.

After the session, Cooke said he had researched the matter and concluded that the accidental abolition of the authority would have no adverse legal effects on actions the authority has taken during the past year.

"It doesn't mean a thing," said Cooke. However he noted that bond attorneys had moved ahead with a sale of about $65 million in airport bonds only on condition the authority's legal status be restored as soon as possible.

Morgan said he had kept news of the authority's legal demise quiet until Thursday because he did not want it to affect sale of the airport bonds.

"We didn't try to hide it, but we didn't think it was a good time to announce it, either, when we were trying to sell bonds," he said.

Linda Hix Is Speaker

Linda Hix, coordinator for the Greenville Energy Program, was one of the featured speakers at a two-day conference on local energy conservation programs held recently in Cary.

Also representing Greenville at the conference, sponsored by the N.C. Energy Division and the town of Cary, were Sam Arnette, vice chairman of the Greenville Energy Commission, and Julie Unger, a staff assistant.

Ms. Hix's presentation provided information about the organization, scope of work, and experiences of Greenville's program for community energy planning.

The Greenville coordinator was also chosen as chairwoman of the North Carolina Energy Forum Steering Commission, which will function as advisor to the state Energy Division in the development of statewide workshops.

Energy conservation programs for local government operations in Greensboro, Orange County, Wilson, Cary, and Fayetteville were discussed by representatives from those areas. During other sessions of the meeting, the Energy Division staff reviewed federal and state regulations and grant programs that affect local energy use and conservation measures.

Store Robbed In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Bryan's Grocery at 303 S. Main Street here was robbed Thursday at 3:45 p. m. of an undisclosed amount of money.

Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper quoted the store owner-operator, Don Bryan, as saying that three strangers entered the store and worked together to distract him while one of them lifted a stack of bills from the drawer of the cash register. Cooper said investigation is underway.

More Big Banks Trim Prime Lending Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the nation's biggest banks have trimmed their prime lending rates to 13 percent as the cost of acquiring funds and the demand by businesses for loans continue to ease.

Late Thursday, First National Bank of Chicago announced it would take a percentage point off its prime, beginning today. Earlier, two other major banks — Bankers Trust Co. of New York, and Security Pacific National Bank of Los Angeles — cut their prime rates to 13 percent from 14 percent, effective immediately.

The prime lending rate has fallen from 20 percent to 13 percent in the last seven weeks, and analysts say it is likely to drop more before leveling off later this year.

Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, led the latest rate reduction, lowering its prime to 13 percent Wednesday.

Other banks that have matched the move include Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, Marine Midland Bank of Buffalo, N.Y., and several regional banks throughout the nation. One small bank based in Miami reduced its rate to 12.5 percent from 13.5 percent.

The prime is the interest rate banks charge on short-term loans to their best-risk corporate borrowers, while loans to most other businesses are set one or more percentage points above the prime.

The prime does not apply to consumer loans but is considered a key barometer of trends in all kinds of interest rates. When the prime changes, other rates — including home mortgage rates — usually follow in the same direction.

Since the prime peaked at 20 percent in early April, banks have been lowering their rates as businesses cut back on borrowing in the face of a steep economic slowdown.

In addition, open-market interest rates plunged, which meant banks' costs of acquiring funds dropped off.

Banks, for example, are now paying 8.415 percent interest on six-month money market certificates, compared with a peak of 15.7 percent reached in late March. The six-month savings certificates, issued in minimum amounts of $10,000, are a significant source of funds for banks.

Banks also are paying less to borrow money from other banks. The interest rate on federal funds, which are uncommitted reserves that banks lend one another on an overnight basis, stood at about 10.5 percent at the end of business Thursday, compared with a peak of about 18 percent in March.

The last time the prime was 13 percent was Sept. 20, shortly before the Federal Reserve Board initiated the first in a series of credit-tightening measures.

Cosmonauts In 'Test Mission'

By SERGE SCHMEMANN, Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet union has fired two more cosmonauts into space in an apparent test mission for the new Soyuz T2 craft. Soviet accounts of the mission left it unclear if the men would link up with the orbiting Salyut 6 space station.

The latest crew was sent aloft Thursday night, just two days after a Soviet bloc Interkosmos mission carrying Soviet commander Valery Kubasov and Hungarian Bertalan Farkas undocked from the Salyut and returned to earth in Soviet Kazakhstan.

Tass said Lt. Col. Yuri V. Malyshev, the mission commander, and flight engineer Vladimir V. Aksenov would be testing the new systems aboard the Soyuz T2 and conducting joint experiments with the Salyut which has been circling the globe since Sept. 29, 1977.

after Popov and Ryumin flipped it 180 degrees Wednesday to expose a new docking port.

The official Tass news agency indicated then that the maneuver was designed to open the way for an unmanned craft to link with Salyut.

Tass said both Malyshev and Aksenov received higher degrees in aviation by correspondence. Malyshev graduated by correspondence from the Gagarin Air Force Academy. Aksenov from the Soviet Politechnical Institute.

Aksenov, who flew aboard the 1976 Soyuz 22 mission, joined the Soviet cosmonaut program in 1973, Tass said. Malyshev has been in the program since 1967.

These Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $3,300 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 5:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of West Berkeley Road and 14th Street, involving cars driven by Richard Graham Nahouse of 2104 Charles St. and Stephen Adkins Scroggins of Kinston.

Police, who set damage at $600 to the Nahouse car and $800 to the Scroggins auto, charged Nahouse with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Explains Being A Shinto Priest Means Living A 'Maximum Life'

By DOLORES BARCLAY Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The number of women who are Shinto priests in Japan can be counted on one hand. And those who also are international novelists number only one.

Hisako Matsubara, whose book "Samurai" has been translated into 11 languages and is already a best seller in Germany, is the one.

"Being a Shinto priest means that you yourself live a maximum life so other people can see and feel and want to do the same," she said. "A Shinto priest keeps a garden and a Shinto shrine. It is beautiful and calm. People can sit and feel free and meditate and become one with nature."

How does a woman in a society that traditionally treated others of her sex as unequals become a priest?

"My father encouraged me," Ms. Matsubara said. "My father is one of the eight most important Shinto priests in Japan. He has his own shrine in Kyoto."

When she was about 5 years old, her father walked with her in his garden. "He would take me to the shrine, and he said, 'here you can be yourself,'" she said. "If you're sad, cry. And if angry, stick your tongue to the altar. And if happy, laugh."

"My father told me I had only one life and when I die, there is no life after death," she said. "Shinto says we have only now."

So making the best of now, she entered a Shinto seminary after receiving a doctorate in the history of thought at a German university.

"The men there regarded me as something strange," she said. "All of those men were to become professional priests. I just went there to understand the religion. I could bring some new ideas or aspects to the religion because I had been outside Japan. None of the men had."

She did everything the men did. But separate living quarters had to be provided for her. After about three years of training, she went to her father and offered to assist him.

Ms. Matsubara now lives in Cologne, Germany with her chemist husband. One of their neighbors is Nobelist Heinrich Boll.

She grew up in Kyoto, an ancient city of art, shrines and pavilions. She had started writing short stories by the time she was 16, many appearing in Japanese literary magazines.

Her novel tells of the collapse of the wealthy Hayato family, who are Sumurais at the turn of the century. The young son is sent to America to recoup the family's fortune.

"Many American whites still have such superficial images of Japan," Ms. Matsubara said. "They think all Japanese women are submissive and like Madame Butterfly, and that Japanese men are aggressive and they all look alike."

"I still have to fight stereotypes," she said. "I still have people come up to me and say, 'I know Japanese words — Sony; Toyota; geisha.' It's so embarrassing. It's like going up to an Italian man and saying, 'gigolo.'"

Ms. Matsubara writes her books in German because the Japanese language does not permit her to express "Western logic." And she says her English isn't good enough to write in that language.

"I must know my characters very well for a story to succeed," she said. "I let them play and I follow. I cannot direct them."

"When I die, I want to be remembered as someone who wrote some stories that went under the surface and grabbed your heart."

And in the Shinto belief, she said, one must be loved in order to be remembered after death.

Presbyterians Keep Boycott

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Southern Presbyterians have voted to continue their boycott against the Nestle Co. until the Switzerland-based multinational stops promoting the sale of its baby formula in developing countries.

The 120th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, adopted the recommendations on the Nestle boycott proposed by its Missions Board and a committee on women's issues.

The boycott against Nestle, which is backed by other church groups and citizen activist organizations across the nation, is several years old.

It was organized after reports were published that Nestle's sale of its baby formula in Third World countries had discouraged breast feeding and led to malnutrition and infant deaths.

In other action Thursday, the General Assembly refused to remove right-to-work language from a policy statement on labor relations, but added several amendments to the document following debate on the floor.

One amendment recognizes the "right of all workers, except those on whom national or community security depends, to join labor organizations and participate in collective bargaining agreements."

The other calls for labor unions to be "subject to anti-monopoly laws similar to those that apply to business organizations."

Also Thursday, the assembly voted to maintain the status quo regarding its positions on homosexuality and abortion.

The interpretation, which received approval of one of the assembly's 14 standing committees prior to open discussion, committed the church to be "sensitive to the difficulties of rejecting a person's sexual orientation without rejecting the person."

The assembly also agreed to create a task force on homosexuality.

A challenge to the denomination's existing stance on abortion brought by the Presbytery of South Mississippi lost steam during a committee review early in the week and made little more progress on the assembly floor.

The proposal was solidly defeated after a half hour debate revealed that most of the church's leaders favored the status quo on the issue.

The PCUS Assembly resolved to "affirm the importance of individual moral choices carefully considered and the existence of exceptional conditions" in stating the denomination's outlook on the issue.

However, accompanying denominational views such as "does not condone abortions of convenience" and "strongly affirms belief in the sanctity of life" appears to equalize opponents on the abortion stance.

Commissioners also considered a resolution condemning recent racial violence in American cities but removed specific mention of Miami, Fla., Chattanooga, Tenn., Tampa, Fla., and Dallas.

The eight-day assembly of the nation's second largest Presbyterian denomination concludes its business Friday at the Myrtle Beach Convention Center.

Bible Clubs To Be Offered

A series of Backyard Bible Clubs will be conducted by Immanuel Baptist Church during the weeks of June 9-13 and June 23-27 from 9:30-11 a.m.

The following homes will serve as locations during the first week: Westhaven, 204 Westhaven Dr.; Club Pines, 114 Greenwood Dr.; Oakmont, 1910 Fairway Way; and Eastwood, 208 Prince Rd.

The locations for the second week are: Cherry Oaks, 106 Joseph Place; Hardee Acres, 335 Circle Dr.; and Candlewick, 209 W. Cambridge Dr.

Bible study, singing, games and crafts will be offered to children in grades one through six.

The Bible Clubs are open to any interested child.

A Friend At Headquarters

sents millions of responsible people enjoying that common good.

Respect for Law and the desire for Order must be gained in childhood. Having a "friend at headquarters" helps.

But the heart of the matter is our early discovery of God. His love for us... His expectations of us... the hopes and promises that give life its highest meaning.

Headquarters for moral and spiritual growth is the Church, with its program of religious education. There can be found our most enriching friendships.

JCs Told More Charity Funds Possibly Diverted

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — According to a preliminary audit report, North Carolina Jaycees may have diverted $190,000 — $48,000 more than originally believed — in charity funds since 1977.

Earlier it was disclosed that the state Jaycee organization used $142,000 from a non-profit charity fund to pay national membership dues. The funds had been raised mostly through the sale of jars of jelly and were earmarked for the N.C. Burn Center in Chapel Hill.

State and local leaders will meet in Charlotte beginning tonight. They are expected to hear the preliminary audit report Saturday. The audit is being conducted by the firm of Peat, Marwick and Mitchell.

Also at the meeting, Jaycee officials are to decide whether to continue their support of former state Jaycee president J. Harold Herring in his bid for national Jaycee president.

Herring was president of the state organization during 1978-79, when some of the charity funds allegedly were diverted. Local Jaycee leaders also have charged that fictitious chapters were set up under Herring's leadership in an effort to boost membership.

At the closed meeting, Herring is expected to make his first public comment since the disclosures about the funds.

It will take several weeks for the audit to be completed.

and until then, Jaycees will not know how much money was diverted from their charity foundation.

The state executive committee voted during a recent state convention in Asheville, to withhold $50,388 of the diverted funds as a retroactive fee to pay for operating the charity fund.

Some Jaycees attending the meeting in Charlotte have promised to try to rescind that decision and to try to restore the $50,388 as soon as possible.

Questions also have been raised concerning the legality of withholding the funds.

In related matters Thursday:

— Jaycee chapters in Raleigh and Greensboro are threatening to pull out of the state organization unless the N.C. Jaycee Executive Board refuses this weekend to endorse Herring.

Frank Harris, Greensboro chapter president, said the group "still would be Jaycees, connected with the national office. We just would not be paying state dues."

— Five former Jaycee presidents issued a statement Thursday asking Herring to withdraw from the presidential race.

"If the Jaycees vote for Harold Herring, it will further damage their image. We are encouraging Harold to withdraw," said Joe Hollowell of Edenton on behalf of former presidents Jim Hastings of Boone, Gus Tulloss of Rocky Mount, Bill Hobbs of Wilmington and Avery Nye of Fairmont.

— The chief administrator of the national Jaycee organization said Thursday an investigation has started to purge the national roster of bogus memberships submitted from North Carolina during the past several years.

Don Varnadore, executive vice president of the U.S. Jaycees, said the investigation may be expanded to other states.

— The U.S. Jaycees decided Thursday to refund membership dues for 32 newly created fictitious chapters in North Carolina that were turned in to the national headquarters at the end of April, Varnadore said.

Maurice Wilson, state chairman of the board, requested the refund in a letter identifying the fake chapters and requesting their removal from the roster, Varnadore said.

Both the FBI and the State Bureau of Investigation have started their own probes of the diverted burn center funds.

John Lowery, current state Jaycee president, said as a result of the diverted funds, he has sent a directive to chapters that "We're on a cash-only basis now. We're allowing no charges for supplies, membership, for anything."

'The Undiscovered' Are Competing For Future

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, Tenn. (AP) — Twenty undiscovered singers or bands from the South and Midwest compete Saturday and Sunday for $10,000 and the title "country music star of the future."

The 20, who already have won $1,000 each at 20 regional preliminary auditions, will compete for the $10,000 grand prize at the Wild Turkey Jamboree of Country Music.

The runnerup gets $5,000 and the third-place finisher receives $2,000. Three others will get $1,000 for honorable mention.

Ten of the 20 will perform Saturday at a festival along with country music singers Marty Robbins and Lynn Anderson, the North Star Band and the Nashville Superpickers. The other 10 will perform Sunday, sharing the bill with country singers Merle Haggard, Johnny Paycheck and Asleep at the Wheel and the Carl Tipton gospel music show.

Festival officials expect a crowd of up to 10,000 each day at a 570-acre site at the bend of the Duck River. Some are coming from as far away as Montana, spokeswoman Barbara Parker said.

The festival will be filmed by Shine Productions of Nashville and edited into a 90-minute television documentary for national syndication, officials said.

The 20 are Cowboy Georgie & His Beer Drinkin' Rodeo Band, Louisville, Ky.; Cindy Crowell & Dennis Dittmore, a duet from Kansas City, Mo.; Sudown, a band from Milton, Fla.; Melonee Vana Winkle, New Orleans; Rocky Benton, Houston; Rick Fryfield, The Kosher Cowboy & the Bootled

County Band, Jacksonville, Fla.

Also, Cabin Fever, Cincinnati; Jim Aldridge, Little Rock, Ark.; Terri Williams, Memphis, Tenn.; Revival, Indianapolis; Lee Sanchez, Savannah, Ga.; Southern Ashe, Columbus, Ga.; Lynde Rain, Waco, Tex.; David A. Head, Orlando, Fla.; Stony Creek, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Also The Cumberland Gap, Fayetteville, N.C.; Jenny Cook, Birmingham, Ala.; Susie Coleman, Nashville; Willie Paul, Norfolk, Va., and Smokehouse, Owensboro, Ky.

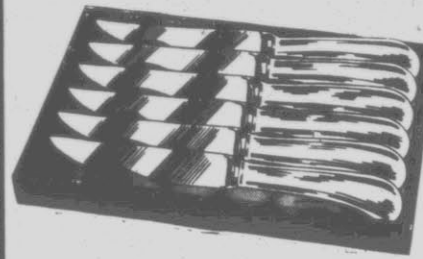

Judges will be from the Nashville Songwriters Association, Country Music Magazine and performing rights organizations which license music.

The weather outlook is for a chance of showers Saturday and Sunday with highs in the 80s and 90s. The festival will be held rain or shine, officials said.

Columbia is 50 miles south of Nashville.

tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the opening the government reported that producer prices of finished goods rose by a seasonally adjusted 0.3 percent in May — the smallest increase they have shown in more than 2 1/2 years.

The impact of that hopeful sign on the inflation outlook seemed to partially offset, however, by news that the unemployment rate jumped to 7.8 percent in the same month from 7 percent in April.

That marked the second sharp increase in a row in the jobless rate, and provided strong new evidence that the recession was taking hold rapidly.

Gulf United led the active list, up 3/8 at 21 1/2 in trading that included a 531,800-share block at that price.

Gulf & Western, also active, rose 3/8 to 18 1/8. On Thursday the company demonstrated a new battery and motor system for use in electric cars and storage of power by utilities.

The NYSE's composite index rose 22 to 64.60. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.61 at 281.15.

Volume on the Big Board came to 15.32 million shares at noon, down from 23.21 million at the same point Thursday.

Veeco Lowers Fuel Charge In State

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Virginia Electric and Power Company today announced it has reduced fuel charges for its 13 North Carolina municipal customers by almost 43 percent in May.

The fuel charges dropped from $10.34 per 1000 kwh in April to $5.91 in May. Total net reduction in bills is about 10 percent.

Fuel charges represent one portion of municipal customers' bills. With fuel cost increase or decrease the fuel portion of the bill rises or falls accordingly.

Randy McIver, VEPCO vice president — Southern Division, said "This substantial reduction in rates is overshadowed by the fact that, since February, the fuel charges have been reduced by over 65 percent. Our efforts to stabilize rates through reduced use of oil-fired generation are paying off in savings for customers."

VEPCO's reduced fuel costs during the last several months have lowered charges to its municipal customers from a high of $17.06 per 1000 kwh in February to $5.91 in May.

VEPCO's 13 municipal customers in North Carolina are Greenville, Washington, Elizabeth City, Edenton, Tarboro, Belhaven, Enfield, Hertford, Scotland Neck, Hamilton, Hobgood, Robersonville, and Windsor.

Ross Testifies...

Mrs. Whitehurst, who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy charged in connection with the case, has yet to be sentenced.

Before the State rested its case, law enforcement officers described in detail the surveillance and searches of Ross' property, which indicated that officers had been observing the trailer for at least three days prior to the raid and had seen a number of out-of-state men pass Ross' home while going to and from the trailer.

This morning, Ross outlined his activities prior to the raid, and indicated he observed no unusual activity. He said he did not know anything illegal was about to happen.

He admitted that he had seen the $200 Mrs. Whitehurst gave his wife for the rent, adding that Mrs. Whitehurst came to his home on July 21 and told Mrs. Ross, "and myself that the machines hadn't come in."

Ross also testified that on July 22, he took a man and wife to look at the trailer, suggesting that the couple was interested in purchasing the mobile home. He said they stood near the mobile home and, "talked about the trailer," before the couple went back to their car and left.

The State's cross examination of Ross was expected to get under way late this morning.

Car Smashed Into School Bus

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Nearly three dozen children were treated for minor injuries when a car smashed into the side of a city school bus, police said.

The bus, carrying 48 children aged 9 to 12, was on its way to South Morrison Elementary School at the time of the accident Thursday. Officials said the driver of the car, her son and 31 children on the bus were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises and were released.

Police Capt. E.H. Hiser said the car ran into the bus and was dragged for more than 100 feet. He said no charges were filed but an investigation was underway.

Point, said the airport authority inadvertently was abolished last year when the charter for the City of High Point was rewritten. Morgan said it was imperative the bill be approved quickly because $65 million in bonds for a new regional airport had been sold and the contract for the facility was to be let Monday.

In other legislative action Thursday:

Budget
The Joint Appropriations Committee met to discuss the supplemental budget and decided not to consider a controversial proposal to move 20 accountants from the state Auditor's Office to the Office of Budget and Management.

The move had been proposed by John A. Williams Jr., head of the budget and management office, who claimed the state auditor had a conflict of interest in retaining the accountants.

A bill filed in the House would authorize the state to require inspections of automobiles to see that they meet air pollution standards. Initially, the bill would take effect only in Charlotte, but later could be applied statewide.

Taxes
A number of bills providing tax incentives on items ranging from gasoline to savings were filed for introduction. One bill filed in the House would provide a temporary 4-cent tax cut on gasoline, to be phased out over four years. The bill has been proposed by a study commission and endorsed by Gov. Jim Hunt as a means of encouraging use of gasoline for automobile fuel.

Another bill filed by Rep. Vernon James, D-Elizabeth City, would provide an investment tax credit to companies that distill alcohol for fuel.

Bills filed by Rep. Dan Litley, D-Kinston, would provide an income tax exclusion on the first $200 in interest earned on savings accounts and exempt tips from sales tax when they are included in the price of a meal.

UN Employee Said Arrested

MONTREAL (AP) — A Canadian employee of the United Nations stationed in the West African nation of Guinea-Bissau has been arrested on charges of marijuana-smuggling, officials said.

They said Suzanne Bilodeau, 30, formerly of Montreal, was arrested with two men as they tried to cross the border between Guinea-Bissau and Senegal in a car carrying 6 1/2 pounds of marijuana.

The Canadian constab in Dakar is expected to arrive in Bissau today to arrange for the defense of Ms. Bilodeau, a secretary in the office of the U.N. Development Program.

Two Held For Death Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men are being held in lieu of $50,000 bail on federal extortion charges stemming from a death threat against the board chairman of the American Express Co.

Carmelo Hernandez, 37, of Brooklyn, and Elliot Duprey, 34, of The Bronx, were arrested Tuesday and charged with threatening to kill James Robinson and his family unless the company turned over $250,000.

Playground Killing Mystifies Police

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — An unidentified gunman shot and killed a man and then apparently opened fire at random into a crowd watching a women's softball game at a city playground, police say. Another person was wounded in the shooting.

"We're mystified," said a Richmond police investigator who said there was no known motive nor suspect in the Thursday night incident despite dozens of witnesses.

Damon Mealy, 24, of Richmond, was pronounced dead at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital a half-hour after the shooting. A hospital spokesman said Mealy had been shot once in the heart.

Pamela Mealy, 17, of Richmond, was shot once in the leg and was kept at MCV for treatment, a hospital spokesman said.

Police at the scene said they did not believe Miss Mealy was a deliberate target of the gunman. However, a report on the incident filed by police early today said Miss Mealy was shot in the leg while attempting to run from the gunman who had just shot her brother.

Detective Jimmy Jones said Mealy was approached by a man

Rams Squeeze Out First Game Victory

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
SNOW HILL — Greene Central committed suicide twice Thursday night but lived to hammer in the nails to Kings Mountain's coffin.

The Rams, held scoreless the first four innings, pushed across two runs in the fifth on two suicide squeezes and added two more runs in the sixth on a tremendous two-run homer by Jeff Scott to overcome Kings Mountain, 4-1, before a packed house of about 1,700 in the opening game of the state 3-A baseball finals.

The best two-of-three championship series continues tonight in Snow Hill at 8 p.m. with the 1-0's Ken Johnson (5-3) facing Ricky Proctor (7-0). A third game, if necessary, is set for Saturday at 2 p.m.

"We put the pressure on them," Greene Central coach Jim Fulghum said. "We laid down three pretty good bunts there in the fifth and I'm sure we caught them by surprise with the second squeeze."

Trailing 1-0 after four innings, the Rams employed three consecutive bunts to score two runs in the fifth and grab the lead.

After Chip Hardy struck out, Robin Bowen's fly ball to right fell in for a hit when the Kings Mountain right fielder misjudged the ball. Kevin Korpi followed with a bunt single to move Bowen to third.

Greg Holmes, after his first bunt attempt went foul, placed a squeeze bunt down third to score Bowen. Liking what he saw, Coach Fulghum ordered another squeeze. Fulghum's son, Jabo, executed it flawlessly, slapping the ball down the first base line to score David Shirley, who was running for Korpi. The Rams led, 2-1.

One inning later the Rams were back, poised to drive the remaining nails into the Mountaineer's coffin.

With two outs first baseman Walt Tyndall walked. Up stepped Jeff Scott, wielding his hammer — er, bat. In his two previous at bats Scott had walked and struck out. This time, after working the count to 2-1, he hammered a 365-foot shot over the right-centerfield fence for his third home run of the season.

Before the ball had even left the infield the Rams charged en masse from the dugout to homeplate to greet Scott.

"I got every bit of it," Scott said. "It was a low, outside fastball. The first time I got up I didn't see any strikes. The second time he threw me two fastballs and a curve. The last time he placed it just right."

Earlier in the week there had been hints that Scott was ready for Thursday's game. "I've never seen anyone hit the ball as good as he has in practice this week," Fulghum said. "He was really hitting the ball this week. He hit that one pretty good — it was 360, 365 feet, and it had some room to spare."

After a scoreless first inning, Kings Mountain took the lead in the second. Lynn Hayes singled and moved to second on Mark Shuman's bunt single. Tim Leach's sacrifice bunt moved the runners ahead one base before Eric Dixon's bunt brought home Hayes.

The game then settled down to a pitcher's duel between Tim Leach and Korpi. Leach, mixing a sharply breaking curve with a fastball, stymied the Rams. The left-hander struck out six and walked two.

Until the fifth, Greene Central's only serious threat came in the bottom of the third. With two gone, Holmes reached on an error and Jabo Fulghum followed with an infield single. Leach, who suffered his first loss in 14 decisions, got Al Murray to fly to left to end the inning.

Meanwhile, Korpi, now 14-0, was holding the Mountaineers to two hits the final five innings. The senior left-hander, who has gone the distance in all four of the Rams' playoff games, struck out nine and walked one.

Korpi, who has a .41 ERA, has been tagged for five of his six earned runs this season in the playoffs. He has given up 16 hits while striking out 31 and walking just six.

The only hitter who gave Korpi trouble Thursday night was Mountaineer catcher Hayes, who was two-of-three. "I threw him two curves and he hit both to left. I wanted him that last time and I got him," said Korpi, who struck Hayes out in his last at bat.

"His location was good tonight, especially on the corners, but his curve ball was flat," Fulghum said. "After he (Hayes) got the second hit on the curve ball we started calling more pitches from the bench."

Still, Korpi managed to stay out of trouble. The Mountaineer's only threat after the second inning came in the fourth when they had runners on first and third with two outs. The inning ended with Holmes losing the ball in the lights only to find it just in time for the out.

"He never saw it," Fulghum said. "He couldn't find it, but he stayed with it. Had that dropped they would have scored at least one run and would have been ahead 2-0."

As it was, the Rams, now 24-3, got out of the inning and went on to capture the first game of the championship series. The loss was the first for the Mountaineers, now 21-4, since a 1-0 defeat to East Rutherford midway through the season.

The Rams, on the other hand, have won 18 straight. Their last loss was to 4-A state champion Rocky Mount, 8-5. But Fulghum, whose Rams are within one game of the state 3-A title, is not ready to start celebrating yet.

"No sir, it ain't in the bag. I think they'll come back and hit the ball better from here on out," he said. "I think there'll be more hitting from now on. They didn't win 21 games to come down here and lose two in a row."

Pitt Legion Captures Second Win Rolling Past Washington, 14-1

WASHINGTON — Pitt County Post 39 won its second straight American Legion Area I East contest last night, rolling up a 14-1 victory over Washington.

Bob Hemingway, who got help from Jeff Porter in the final two innings, got the win, allowing only three hits in the seven innings he worked. He struck out 11 and walked five in getting the victory. Porter allowed no hits in the two innings he worked.

The lone run against the Pitt nine was a third-inning homer by Pete Lee after two were out. Lee drilled a line drive out in Washington's short right field area.

Even then, it was too late, as Pitt had jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the top of the first inning. They went on to add four more in the third, one in the fourth, another in the seventh and one more in the ninth.

Mark Shank started the parade in the first inning, arriving on a walk. Ron House also walked and Curtis Spencer singled to load the bases. Will Barrett reached when his infield grounder was misplayed, scoring Shank. Mike Campbell singled, driving in both House and Spencer, and Jeff Wilson walked.

Hemingway helped himself with a single to plate Barrett and Campbell. An error on the play allowed Wilson to score, and Shank singled to bring Hemingway around. That made it 7-0.

In the third, Wilson walked and Hemingway singled, moving to second on an error. Shank hit a sacrifice fly to score Wilson, and House was hit by a pitch. Spencer singled in Hemingway, and an error let House come around. Spencer scored on Barrett's single.

Skip Hill singled, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a hit by House in the fourth. Barrett singled and scored on Roy Lassiter's single in the seventh. Then, in the ninth, Barrett singled, moved up on an error and scored when Sammy Hodges singled.

Bullets Roll In Playoff Opener

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville's defending State 1-A baseball champions got a leg up on another title last night with a 7-1 victory over Hayesville in the first round of this year's championship best-of-three series.

Trent Ange held the visitors to only three hits in the victory, as the Bullets ran their record out to 24-2 on the season.

Jamesville jumped ahead in the bottom of the first, to stay. Carl Ange singled and Trent Ange doubled. Keith Modlin was then intentionally walked, and Clarence Thomas reached on an error, with both Anges scoring on the play. That made it 2-0.

Hayesville came back with its only run in the top of the second. Scott Massey singled and Rick Stanley walked. Toby Barrett then reached on an error, with Massey coming around on the play.

It was to be the lone Hayesville score of the night.

The Bullets added a run in the bottom of the second. Keith Waters reached on a fielder's choice and Ricky Bell ran for him, stealing second. When the ball was thrown into center, and then misplayed there, Bell kept going, finally reaching home before the ball was returned to the plate.

Three more Bullets crossed the plate in the third. Trent Ange singled and Modlin also got a hit. Rex Bell doubled in Ange, and Jeff Perry reached on an error, allowing Modlin and Bell to score.

The final Jamesville run came in the fourth. Jeff Rogers walked and Ricky Bell came on to run for him. Trent Ange was hit by a pitch and Modlin hit a long fly that would have been a three-run homer, but it hit a pine tree in the distant outfield and bounced back, allowing Hayesville to hold him to a double, with only Bell scoring.

Both Ange and Modlin had two hits to lead the Jamesville attack, while Massey had two of the three Hayesville hits. The visitors are now 20-3 on the year.

Four Bucs Drafted

Four members of the East Carolina baseball team are among those listed in the major league draft over the past two days.

Outfielder Butch Davis was an 11th round choice of the Kansas City Royals, and has been assigned to their Sarasota entry in the Florida State League. Davis set new career and single season home run records this past year, cracking out 12 on the season to up his career total to 26. He also set a new slugging record for a single season of .716.

Catcher Raymie Styons went to San Diego in the 17th round of the picks. He goes to Walla-Walla, Washington, to be with the club there. Styons is the number two home run career total man with 24. Oddly enough, this year, Styons lost two homers, one in a rain-out, and the other in the forfeit game against Southern Vermont.

Bill Best went in the 27th round to Kansas City. Best set career records in hits, at bats, runs scored, and runs batted in, along with stolen bases. He, too, will report to Sarasota.

Mickey Britt, who holds most of the career pitching records for ECU, went in the 30th round to San Diego. He has not been assigned as yet, but it is believed that he will also go to Walla-Walla.

Royals Batter Bruised Texas Hurlers

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
The rampaging Royals battered the already-bruised Texas pitching staff with a barrage of extra-base hits and powered to their 14th victory in 18 games. When it was over, after their 8-0 rout of the Rangers, Frank White explained how it happened.

by Kansas City Thursday night.
But it was more than the hitting that ruined Jim Kern's first start in four years. It was baserunning (five steals) and pitching, as Dennis Leonard held the Rangers' bandage brigade to three singles — the second consecutive three-hitter against Texas.
"Since I've been here, I've never seen performances like we've had back-to-back. We've got to put this behind us and go out and get a win," said the Rangers' Richie Zisk.

They also would like to get back some of their injured players.
With starting pitchers Steve Comer and Danny Darwin on the 21-day disabled list and Ferguson Jenkins out since May 27, Texas has gone to the bullpen for its starting pitchers the last two games.

Kern gave up the homer to White in the third and was gone in the fifth. Three relievers gave up the last seven of the Royals' 15 hits.
"I've never seen a team crippled like this one so quickly. We've been losing players left and right," Zisk said.
Rusty Staub made his first appearance since breaking a finger April 30, but third baseman Buddy Bell sat out his third straight game with a pulled rib muscle and may be headed for the disabled list.

The Royals, with White hitting safely for the 13th time in 15 games, put the Rangers on the disabled list early. Leonard, meanwhile, gave up singles by Mickey Rivers in the third. Staub in the fourth and Al Oliver in the ninth.

In the other games, the Montreal Expos blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0, the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 and the Toronto Blue Jays-Minnesota Twins game was rained out.
Expos 2, Cubs 0
Rowland Office hit his first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the seventh inning, to back the six-hit pitching of Scott Sanderson and lift Montreal over Chicago.

After Warren Cromartie beat out a one-out bunt, Office slammed the first pitch by starter Dennis Lamp, 4-5, over the right-field fence.
Sanderson, 6-3, struck out eight and walked two.
Mets 2, Cardinals 1
Mike Jorgensen's bases-loaded pinch single in the ninth drove in Steve Henderson to give the Mets their victory over St. Louis.

Henderson singled and stole second, Joel Youngblood walked and Alex Trevino beat out a bunt. Then Jorgensen batted for Doug Flynn.
George Hendrick put the Cardinals ahead in the second with a home run, but New York tied it when John Stearns tripled and scored on an infield out by Henderson.

Exchange 8,

First Federal 2

The Exchange handed Tar Heel Little League leader First Federal an 8-2 defeat yesterday. The win boosted the Exchange record to 5-5, while First Federal dipped to 8-2.

Exchange scored its first run in the opening frame, then came back to put it away with three in the second.

Josh Hickman led off the second with a walk, and Alex Smith also drew a free pass. Monty Atkinson followed with a home run, driving in all three runs. That made it 4-0.

Exchange added four more in the third, with Hickman hitting a two-run homer. First Federal scored single runs in the fourth and fifth.

Ricky Outlaw, who scored both First Federal runs, led his team's hitting with two. Atkinson and Hickman each had two to pace Exchange.

Lions 12,

Optimists 11

The Lions outlasted the Optimists in a North State Little League slugfest yesterday, 12-11. The Lions are now 3-7 in league play, while the Optimists are 1-9.

The Optimists grabbed the lead in the second with a run, then added three more in the third for a 4-0 lead. The Lions rallied for three in the fourth, only to see the Optimists score four more in the top of the fifth. The Lions came back with six in the bottom of the fifth. The Optimists moved back out to an 11-9 lead with three runs in the sixth, all coming on a homer by Kelly Barnhill.

But in the bottom of the sixth, the Lions came back to score three runs and win it. Tom Moye led off with a double and scored on Jarvis Groome's double. Ralph Harper singled, but Groome was thrown out trying to score. Terence Edwards doubled in Harper, and scored the winning run when Donald Perkins singled.

Barnhill and Anthony Coward each had two hits for the Optimists, while Perkins had three to lead the Lions.

Kiwanis 9,

Winterville 7

The Kiwanis won their first game in Senior Babe Ruth League play last night, downing Winterville. The Kiwanis are now 1-3, while Winterville is 1-2 in league play.

Winterville scored first, getting two in the first. The Kiwanis came back with two in their half of the frame, then pushed over two more in the second. Winterville rallied for five in the third, taking a 7-4 lead, but the Kiwanis came back with single runs in the fourth and fifth to pull within one.

Then, in the sixth, the Kiwanis pushed over three to pull out the win. Bobby Hopkins walked and Chris Jones singled. William Sneed got a hit, scoring Hopkins. Paul McMillan followed with a single, driving in both Jones and Sneed.

Sammy Tucker and Leroy Edwards each had two hits for Winterville, while Sneed led the Kiwanis hitting with two.

CHICOD — Chicod won its ninth game in 12 starts Thursday afternoon with a 7-5 victory over Stallings Marine.

Chicod was led in hitting by Allen Nethercutt and Steve Mills. Nethercutt was two-for-three while Mills was two-for-four. Mills was also the winning pitcher.

Stallings Marine was led by Clark Hunter, who was two-of-three, and Freeman, who was two-of-four.

Nancy's Putter Still Sizzling

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Perfection takes no holiday for Nancy Lopez-Melton, the first round leader in the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

The sport's sensation of the last three years had just one-putted eight times in a 28-putt round in the first major women's tournament of 1980. It was good for a 5-under-par 67 and a 2-stroke lead.

But there she was, patiently stroking putt after putt on the Nicklaus Golf Center's practice green under the watchful eyes of her caddy, Roscoe Jones.

"I want to step up to a five-footer and make it automatic. I don't want to think about it so much," Lopez-Melton had said earlier Thursday after opening a big challenge for her second LPGA Championship in the last three years.

"I want to work on my putting. I don't worry about my swing. I feel I can play well with what I'm doing with it right now," she said.

By Lopez-Melton standards, this has not been an exceptional year. But she's won one tournament and more than $78,000 — figures some of her LPGA rivals drool over.

The suspicion she's nearing her peak again strikes fear in her opponents.

"I hate to be behind Nancy. For her to have that kind of start is scary," said Sally Little, one of three players sharing second place at 69. The others were current U.S. Open titleholder Jerilyn Britz and 41-year-old veteran Clifford Ann Creed.

Britz, whose confidence soared with a course record 64 in this tournament last year, was unruffled by Lopez-Melton.

"It doesn't both me," said Britz, the runner-up to Donna Caponi Young in the 1979 LPGA Championship. "I found out she was human this year."

Young, seeking her fourth major title of a long career, took three bogeys in the last five holes in stride. She was five shots off the pace at 72.

"That was a good 72. I'm all right. You'll hear from me," promised the leading money-winner of 1980.

Among those at 70 were two-time U.S. Open winner Hollis Stacy. She was tied with Barbara Moxness, Donna Horton White and Jane Blalock.

In a 10-player jam at 71 was JoAnne Carner, who lacks an LPGA Championship among her 27 professional victories.

This 6,313-yard course north of Cincinnati did not treat two of the game's greats so kindly. Louise Suggs, the winner of 50 tour events and now 57 years old, struggled to 82. Kathy Whitworth, 39, the game's all-time money champion, had 83.

The winner Sunday will pick up $22,500 of the $150,000 total purse.

Shearer Tops Atlanta Round

ATLANTA (AP) — Australian Bob Shearer, a hypoglycemia victim who eats constantly during a round of golf, needed the lowest score of his professional career Thursday to claim the first round lead in the $300,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"That's the lowest round I've had as a pro and the lowest in the United States," Shearer said after touring the hilly 6,945-yard Atlanta Country Club Course in 9-under par 63 to equal the lowest round of the season on the PGA tour.

It gave him a 2-shot lead over Bob Murphy, who concluded his round earlier in the sticky 90-degree weather. And, Shearer was a distant 15 shots in front of Jack Nicklaus, in the midst of a comeback bid.

Nicklaus was making a rare appearance the week before a major event — the U.S. Open beginning next Thursday. He double-bogeyed three times and had three putts three other times in recording a fat 78, his worst effort this season.

"It hasn't happened very often, but I got down on myself," said Nicklaus who faces an uphill struggle today to survive the halfway cut. "I just didn't play well at all."

Shearer, who started on the backside, birdied three of his first four holes and began thinking "maybe I can make a score today."

He never came close to a bogey, knocking in birdie putts of five feet or less on five holes, scoring from 30, 25 and 12 feet on three others and getting another when he two-putted from 30 feet.

It could have been even better. He missed four-footers on three other greens.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

Ayden Golf and Country Club held its first Ladies Invitational Tournament this past week, with fine participation.

Harriette White of Greenville captured first place in the championship flight, while Pat Joyner of Ayden finished second. Mary Lee Creech of Goldsboro took low net, with Edith Ward of Goldsboro second. Mary Taylor of Roanoke won low putts.

In the first flight, Marguerite Johnson of Robersonville won low gross, with Euphany Twisdale of Scotfield second. Goldie Chapman of Ayden was the low net winner with Jean Ross of Robersonville second. Low putts went to Audrey Allsbrook of Scotfield.

Lida Calvert-Freuler of Brook Valley won low gross in the second flight, with Beverly Raskin of Hilma second. Low net went to Lilly Rackley of Farmville, with Doris Moseley of Grifton second. Low putts was won by Ruby Counterman of Farmville.

The third flight's low gross went to Lataine Webber of Farmville, with Grace Merritt of Ayden second. Low net went to Alice Wrubel of Ayden, while Ellen Fleming of Brook Valley was second. Susan Cox of Brook Valley took low putts.

Syble Taylor of Ayden won low gross honors in the fourth flight, followed by Winnie Stroud of Ayden. Debra Hardee of Ayden won low net, followed by Joyce Sawyer of Ayden. Low putts went to Vicki Smith of Ayden.

A total of 66 players participated in the tournament, which is hoped to become an annual affair.

Brook Valley Country Club

Brook Valley Country Club will hold a junior clinic on June 23 and 24, from 9 until 11 a.m. each day. A $2 charge per person is being made.

A Mixed-Guest-Couples Spectacular will be held on June 21 and 22. A $25 entry fee, which does not include carts, is charged per couple. The first 32 paid teams will be accepted.

Farmville Golf and Country Club

Farmville Golf and Country Club will be the site of the annual Pitt County Invitational Golf Championship this Saturday and Sunday.

A $20 entry fee is charged, and play is with handicap. It is open to any member of a country club in Pitt County. Pete Beaman of Ayden is the defending champion.

Entrants may make up their own foursomes for Saturday's play, and may call for tee times, available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday's pairings and starting times will be made up according to scores and flights.

Greenville Golf and Country Club

Greenville Golf and Country Club recently held a Best-Ball-of-Four Tournament for ladies. First place went to Louise Webb, Alice Hudson, Dardie Longino and Isabel Rivers. Second went to Sara West, Janet Turcotte, Myrt Leslie and Barbara Ellis.

In the Ladies Club Championship, Harriette White took the championship flight, while Sue Castellow was runner-up. First flight winner was Mable Blount, while Joan Warren was runner-up. Second flight winner was Isabel Rivers, with Marge Parrish runner-up.

Two holes-in-one were recorded recently. H.A.I. Sugg picked up an ace on the 150-yard third hole, while Clifton Edwards III had one on number 13, a 213-yarder.

Upcoming events include the Men's Club Championship, June 14-15, for which members may sign up in the golf shop. Groups for the first day are of the golfers' choosing, but second round play will be paired. The Father-Son Golf Championship will be June 21-22. On June 21, sons ages 12 and up play, with sons 8-11 playing on June 22. Anyone wishing to play may call golf shop to sign up and get details. A Better Ball of Pair is set for July 4.

Lloyd Has To Pay Heed 'Guys' Favored Over Risk To Her Own Prediction

PARIS (AP) — "Look out for that one," Chris Evert Lloyd warned last year about young Czech Hana Mandlikova, and at this year's French Open the American defending champion had to pay heed to her own prediction.

In a tense semifinal match in Thursday's heat here, the 18-year-old Mandlikova stunned Lloyd and took the first set 7-6 on the strength of crisp passing shots and a devastating first serve.

Lloyd, at 25 displaying her usual tournament-tested cool, then put herself through the same mental jolting she had used earlier in this two-week tournament to quell another young upstart, 16-year-old Bettina Bunge.

She got angry at herself, reverted to playing her "own game," and hit out strong. She finally took the match 6-7, 6-2, 6-2, but it was a strain.

"When I was No. 1 in the world, I won most of my matches from confidence alone," Lloyd said afterwards. "I'm not so confident now because I'm no longer dominating tennis. It's obvious the level of women's tennis has improved."

Riding a clay court winning streak of nearly 40 matches and looking for a fourth French title, Lloyd will face Romanian Virginia Ruzici on Saturday for the $42,500 title.

In the men's semifinals today, defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, the only non-American in the final, will pursue his fifth French crown against Harold Solomon. Vitas Gerulaitis and Jimmy Connors face off for the right to meet the Borg-Solomon winner in Sunday's finals.

Ruzici, who won the French Open in 1978 when Lloyd wasn't here, defeated Dianne Fromholtz of Australia 7-6, 6-1. Fromholtz, who upset Billie Jean King in the quarterfinals, held Ruzici to a close first set but lost control in the second.

Ruzici and Lloyd have met nine times, including only two weeks ago in Perugia, Italy, where Ruzici fell in a three-set match.

"I know what to expect of Virginia now," Lloyd said. But for her part, Ruzici was confident about the slow French clay surface and feels she is in better shape than when she won in 1978.

"It's something I've been dreaming about all year," Ruzici said. "Each time I go to bed I think of winning Roland Garros — instead of thinking of something else!"

Another person who has been dreaming of a French Open title is Solomon, the runnerup here in 1976. Solomon and the other American semifinalists, Connors and Gerulaitis, all face the same whammy: no American has won this tournament since Tony Trabert in 1955.

But Solomon has another problem: he has yet to beat Borg in 14 meetings, twice losing to the Swede at Roland Garros. Still, the feisty clay court specialist, like Ruzici, is another confident underdog, especially after upsetting favored Argentinian Guillermo Vilas in the quarterfinals.

NEW YORK (AP) — The filly Genuine Risk, Rumbo, who chased her to victory in the Kentucky Derby, and Codex, who beat her in the controversial Preakness, headline the field for the 112th Belmont Stakes Saturday at Belmont Park.

Both "guys" are the early favorites to beat the "glamor girl" of racing who since the Preakness seems to have become a "darling of the downtrodden." Codex is the early favorite at 2-1, with Rumbo at 5-2 and Genuine Risk at 4-1.

Joining the hunt in the final race of the Triple Crown will be seven other 3-year-olds including Rockhill Native, the gelding who failed as the Derby favorite; Pikotazo, a Mexican-bred who has not lost in nine starts but has never raced outside his homeland, and Bing, who has not won in nine starts.

A victory by Genuine Risk, the only filly to run in all three Triple Crown races, could rekindle the controversy that erupted during the Preakness.

Jockey Angel Cordero Jr., for interference at the head of the stretch, which Codex, who missed the Derby, went on to win by 4 1/4 lengths.

The stewards disallowed the claim, which brought an outcry, then the Maryland Racing Commission backed the stewards by voting 3-1 Wednesday to reject and appeal by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Firestone, owners of the filly.

The Firestones now have the option of going to court. Trainer LeRoy Jolley said he didn't know their plans, adding, "I hope for a different verdict, but to tell the truth I'm glad it's over and we can devote some time to getting ready for the Belmont."

"I'm glad that it's over," echoed Wayne Lucas, trainer of Codex, who has now has won four straight races.

Cordero, a controversial figure even before the Preakness, said, "I've been riding the same way for 20 years. I'm not taking anything from the lady, but when it's a great filly and a great colt, then 9 1/2 times the colt will win."

Adding spice to the renewal of the Genuine Risk-Codex rivalry is the fact that filly drew the inside post and Codex the No. 2 post.

"I just hope they don't fall in love," said Cordero, who attended a breakfast for the post-position draw. "If they ever get married, I hope they call the kid 'Controversy.'"

Rumbo will be rejoining the Triple Crown competition with a new jockey — the great Bill Shoemaker. Laffit Pincay Jr. rode Rumbo for four straight races — a third and three seconds including a one-length runnerup performance against Genuine Risk in the Derby. But Shoemaker, who finished second once and first twice on Rumbo earlier, took over May 24 and won the Gold State Breeders at Hollywood Park.

"Pincay rode the horse well in all his races," said assistant trainer Ray Bell III. "I do believe that Shoemaker suits the horse better. They get along together very well."

The Best Of Broadway Honored Sunday; Can You Pass The Quiz?

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight times a week, the Marx Brothers rub elbows with P.T. Barnum and Eva Peron ... live, on Broadway. The musicals "Barnum" and "Evita," both nominated for several Tony awards, are loosely based on the rich and varied lives of real people.

And some of the nuttier moments from Marx Brothers movies inspired the musical comedy "A Day in Hollywood — A Night in the Ukraine," another Tony nominee.

In fact, while nearly everything from the funny pages to the '50s — from "Annie" to "Grease" — has spawned a Broadway show at one time or another, there's nothing like a good movie to sire a great musical.

Mary Tyler Moore and Jason Robards are hosts for the American Theater Wing's "34th Annual Tony Awards Show," to be broadcast by CBS Sunday night 9:30-11 p.m. EDT.

Before the show, try to make the transition from the Silver Screen to the Great White Way with this quiz by Janis Hirsch. For each correct answer, score five points.

1. Movie buffs remember Bette Davis' Oscar-winning performance in "All About Eve," but when Lauren Bacall won a Tony for the musical adaptation of the backstage, backstabbing story, the title was: A. "Ain't Misbehavin'"; B. "The Apple Tree"; C. "Applause"; D. "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope."

2. Billy Wilder's movie peeked through the keyhole of "The Apartment." By the time Neil Simon and Burt Bacharach took over the lease, they had added jokes, songs and a title of their own: A. "Skyscraper"; B. "Promises, Promises"; C. "No, No Nanette"; D. "Bye Bye Birdie."

3. "Professor" Leslie Howard drilled his star pupil Wendy Hiller on the social graces of the upper crust on the screen in "Pygmalion." In the record-breaking Broadway musical, Rex Harrison took over as tutor to a flower-peddler played by Julie Andrews. The professor's goal was to pass off his protegee as: A. "Peter Pan"; B. "New Girl in Town"; C. "My Fair Lady"; D. "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

4. Shirley Booth may have been "The Matchmaker," but it was Carol Channing who sang she "had always been the woman who arranges things" in this box office champ. The waiters at the posh Harmonia Gardens marked this lady's "return" at every performance with the title song, appropriately dubbed: A. "Where's Charley?"; B. "Hallelujah, Baby!"; C. "I Love My Wife"; D. "Hello, Dolly!"

5. In the movies, Rosalind Russell played everyone's favorite aunt, but when Broadway adopted her, she was just plain: A. "Zorba"; B. "Mame"; C. "Jesus Christ, Superstar"; D. "Flora, The Red Menace."

6. When moviegoers went to "I Am A Camera," they saw Julie Harris, Laurence Harvey and Shelly Winters living and languishing in pre-war Berlin. On the Broadway stage, the scene-stealing ringleader was the dynamic Joel Grey. The musical's name also is where much of the action took place, old chum, and that was: A. "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas"; B. "Ballroom"; C. "Chicago"; D. "Cabaret!"

7. Mary Tyler Moore will join the "DuPont Cavalcade" production of the Tony awards show, with co-host Jason Robards. She'll be reunited — for the broadcast — with her one-time TV husband, Dick Van Dyke. The former Rob Petrie is back and Broadway is planning a 76-trombone salute to honor the eight-time Tony winner in which he will star as: A. "The Music Man"; B. "Man of La Mancha"; C. "Oliver"; D. "Fiddler on the Roof!"

Scoring: 25-35 points, you're "The Wiz"; 15-20 points, you really don't know "The Roar of the Greasepaint, and The Smell of the Crowd"; 10-15 points, you've got to learn "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying"; 0-5 points, have you been hiding in the "South Pacific"?

Answers: 1-C, 2-B, 3-C, 4-D, 5-B, 6-D, 7-A.

Qualified With No JR Theory

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lamar Case, car salesman, reckons he should be on television. "The Tonight Show," perhaps, or at least "Merv Griffin."

Why, Lamar? "I am unique into this world, or at least, this country," Lamar replies. "I don't have a theory as to who shot J.R. Ewing on 'Dallas'."

Johnny and Merv have had less qualified guests. Still, Lamar would have to be taken at his word, and it's hard to believe there is really anyone without a theory on the shooting of J.R. Ewing.

A rerun of "Dallas" finished No. 3 in the ratings last week, suggesting that viewers are poring over old episodes for clues to the crime, which occurred in the season's final episode.

At this very moment, "Dallas" producer Leonard Katzman is in Texas, preparing for next season. On Wednesday, shooting begins. Extra caution will be used to keep the cat in the bag through the summer.

Katzman, of course, knows who plugged J.R., the dastardly villain-hero of the CBS' Texas soap. Since Ladbroke's, the British betting house, began taking bets on the culprit, Katzman has received a number of interesting business propositions.

"The betting has gone out of sight," Katzman said last week, before leaving for Dallas. "In the last two or three days we've received at least 20 calls from British journalists giving us the latest odds and wanting to know if we'd go partners on a very good wager. We certainly could ... but we wouldn't, of course."

Reporters wanting to dutch the book? Nah. Katzman is willing to give hints:

"I guarantee you it will be someone the audience is well acquainted with."

That eliminates one of my theories, which was that J.R. was shot by Rula Lenska.

"All of the family will return, and there'll be a couple of additions as we go," he said. Hmm, another theory evaporates. My clever friend Howard surmised that Barbara Bel Geddes was leaving the show, so her character, Miss Ellie, was the perfect suspect.

She'd go on trial, get off on a loony plea, and vanish to the sanitarium.

Of course, the fact that the family will return intact doesn't necessarily rule out the Ewings. There could be jail episodes.

"A couple of people who were with us in the beginning may drop out after eight shows or so," Katzman says.

That's it. Two prime candidates, fringe characters, suggest themselves: J.R.'s sister-in-law-secretary-jilted paramour, Kristin (Mary Crosby), had profound motive after J.R. tried to pander her; and Alan Beam (Randy Powell), J.R.'s one-time protegee in evil who was foiled by J.R.

It's perfect. One of the Ewings, probably J.R.'s wife (Linda Gray) will be arrested and tried for attempted murder. In the midst of the proceedings, Alan or Kristin will leap up and confess.

He or she will be hung in a two-hour Christmas special.

Mel Brooks Is On The Loose

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Comedian-writer-director Mel Brooks is on the loose again with a new outrageous movie, "Mel Brooks' History of the World — Part I."

Brooks, who wrote the screenplay, is also directing and starring in the picture with his cast of familiar faces: Richard Pryor, Dom DeLuise, Madeline Kahn, Harvey Korman, Cloris Leachman and other zanies.

Burt And Roger In Raucus Story

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Burt Reynolds, who specializes in good old boys, and Roger Moore, best known for playing the polished spy James Bond, join forces in "The Cannonball Trophy," a new movie for Golden Harvest Productions.

Hostilities Chased 200,000 Thais From Homes

BAN NOI PARAI, Thailand (AP) — Border hostilities and the pouring of about a half million Cambodian refugees into Thailand has disrupted the lives of an estimated 200,000 Thais, making them unnoticed victims of a war that is not their own.

Some of the more fortunate are living in special villages under the care of Thai troops, but a large number are scattered around the border area, hoping to return to their homes.

The Thais were forced to evacuate their homes because of the heavy influx of Cambodians and the war that raged in Cambodia, sometimes spilling across the border.

Thai soldiers who helped the villagers evacuate their homes now find themselves giving aid and shelter to remnants of the same Cambodian forces who shelled and attacked them only three years ago.

Until late 1978 when Cambodia's energies were focused on its war with Vietnam, the 800-mile border was the site of bloody raids and massacres by the communist Khmer Rouge troops of Cambodian Premier Pol Pot. After the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia in late 1978, Thailand adopted a policy of giving humanitarian assistance to Cambodians of all factions.

Tae Rangkran, a resident of this remote border village, is among the survivors of a Khmer Rouge incursion on Jan. 28, 1977. All his children were killed when some 300 Khmer Rouge attacked three Thai villages and killed more than 30 people before burning their houses to the ground.

"Yes, I know that our government is helping these Cambodians," he said. "But sometimes, I wish we could kill them all for what they did to us," he said.

The majority of the displaced Thais are those who were evacuated from their homes when Cambodian refugees swarmed to the Thai border after the Vietnamese invasion and fighting swirled along the frontier.

The Thai Supreme Command said about 80,000 displaced Thais have been moved into 75 special villages under the care of Thai troops, while the rest are receiving food and other necessities from international relief agencies.

Foreign royalty, government leaders and numerous celebrities have visited the United Nations-sponsored Cambodian refugee centers and the Cambodian encampments straddling the border. Very little of this attention was paid to the Thais and there is growing resentment by some in Thailand of international relief workers.

"There are 88 doctors and 345 nurses for the 130,000 Cambodians at the Khao-I-Dang holding center, but very few of these medical personnel are willing to work for the Thais in the border area," claimed a Thai relief officer.

The displaced Thais do not receive special financial help from the government, but Thai officials get assistance from two major international agencies — the U.N. International Children's Emergency Fund and the World Food Program.

UNICEF has committed a million dollars for the affected Thai population in 65 villages in seven border provinces. As of April 15, the World Food Program had donated 6,000 tons of rice to the displaced Thais and is also developing a supplementary feeding program. The Food for the Hungry Program has proposed seven agricultural and animal-raising projects involving some $65,000.

Other volunteer agencies that have extended their assistance to the Thai border population include Catholic Relief Services, the YMCA, the International Rescue Committee, the Save the Children's Fund, the Church of Christ in Thailand and the community-based Emergency Relief Service.

But there is still reluctance among some agencies to assist the Thais in the border area.

At a refugee conference last month, some volunteer agencies opposed a proposal for the setting up of a special body to help the displaced Thais, reasoning that "the Thais have their own government to take care of them." Some of the relief workers reminded their colleagues that they came to Thailand to help the Cambodians, not Thais.

"Let's face it, the affected Thais along the border will be forgotten when the Cambodian refugee problem is over or dies down," said a Western diplomat who asked anonymity. "The international community must plan long-range projects to help the Thais survive after the refugee problem is over and when the relief workers return to their countries."

South Africa Guerrilla War Aims At Economy

By MATT FRANJOLA Associated Press Writer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A three-pronged bomb attack this week on South Africa's vital oil-from-coal industry represents a great leap forward in tactics used by black nationalist guerrillas.

The attackers blew up fuel tanks at three refineries at the Sasol complex south of Johannesburg.

The new director of the National Intelligence Service, Niel Barnard, said, of the attack last Sunday: "We must not delude ourselves that these were sporadic incidents. They must be seen as part of a broader strategy."

The guerrilla program of the 1980s, say black sources in the sprawling Soweto township ghetto outside Johannesburg, is aimed at vital economic and strategic targets or at symbols of the ruling white Afrikaners.

This is a step up from the random, ineffective bombings and shootings that have characterized guerrilla activities in the past three years.

Blacks tuned to insurgent thinking say guerrilla operations have gone through several stages since the June, 1976, riots in Soweto that left 700 people dead and caused thousands of black youths to flee the country.

After those riots and a police crackdown on black organizations and dissenters in October, 1977, advocates of the "armed struggle" reorganized cells in black urban townships and opened rural conduits for infiltrators from neighboring black-governed countries.

Next came isolated, ineffective shootings and bombings in public places, on rail lines or at police stations. Although these were amateurish incidents, blacks say they were symbolic and designed to bolster black morale as well as to show the authorities that guerrillas could operate despite an alleged omnipotent and omnipresent police apparatus.

A further development came in January when three black gunmen and two hostages died in a blazing shootout with police at the Pretoria branch of the Afrikaner-run Volkskas Bank.

The bank raid was botched, say black sources, when the trio tried to take hostages. The plan, they claim, was for the three to shoot up the bank, killing as many people as possible, then flee.

After the shoot-out, the banned African National Congress was to have made claims of responsibility and issue warnings from London of further guerrilla attacks.

Essentially, the bomb attacks on the Sasol sites are a continuation of the bank raid strategy aimed at economic or strategic targets.

Black nationalist sources say the guerrillas have several declared aims: to win support for armed revolution as the only way to bring about real change and overthrow the white-minority government, to demonstrate an insurgent presence, to reduce investor confidence in South Africa, to provoke a police crackdown further embittering blacks and resulting in more recruits for the guerrillas, and to halt reformist talk by Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha and his Cabinet ministers.

Blacks say Botha's reformist talk encourages radicals who see reform as their arch-enemy because it could mollify the population and decrease revolutionary fervor.

An Afrikaner at Parliament said: "There's no more talk of reform. Most talk is of increased security. The government is divided. They are treating the symptoms and not the root causes of black discontent. The Sasol raid is a blow for liberals."

School Bond Vote Timing Uncertain

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
 Associated Press Writer
 RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With $600 million in aid to North Carolina's public schools hanging in the balance, Gov. Jim Hunt, legislative leaders and education officials can't seem to get together on the timing of a proposed statewide bond issue.

All the state's leaders have backed the idea of the bonds, which will go to repair, renovate and build school buildings in every county.

But as the 1980 General Assembly opened Thursday, nearly everybody had a different opinion — and Hunt appeared to be left on a limb as the only one who wanted to postpone the whole matter until the 1981 General Assembly meets in January.

"It certainly looks that way, doesn't it," said Tom E. Davis, spokesman for Public Instruction Superintendent Craig Phillips. "It's been apparent that the leadership hasn't been able to get together, for a lot of good reasons."

Hunt outlined his position in a news conference, saying the current economic recession may make voters unwilling to approve a bond issue if it was on this November's ballot. At the same time, he acknowledged one factor was concern the bonds could get caught up in partisan politics if opposed by Republicans this fall.

"I have to believe this fall will not be a good time to have that bond issue," he said. "I don't think it would get a fair hearing."

But while Hunt was urging the entire idea be left to next year's General Assembly, the State Board of Education voted unanimously to ask the current Legislature to approve the bond issue. Under the board's plan, the Legislature could approve the bonds this year, and Hunt could schedule the required referendum anytime he wanted between now and November 1981.

"This session can handle it and we're hoping it will," Davis said.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Carl Stewart dissented from Hunt's position.

Green suggested Wednesday that the current Legislature approve the bonds, but that the referendum be scheduled for next February — avoiding the partisan politics threat and avoiding a year's wait for the schools to get the money.

"There are some real dire needs across the state," Green said in reaffirming his proposal Thursday. "I think they (the current session) will address it."

Stewart, D-Gastonia, who is ending his legislative career with the current session, said in an interview he opposed the governor's recommendation to wait a year.

"In the next couple weeks we should be examining that issue carefully," Stewart said. "If there's a chance of getting the bond issue passed in November, we ought to consider it in 1980."

No bill has been introduced yet to authorize the bonds, but Stewart said he expected one shortly.

Stewart also said he disagreed with Hunt's assessment that voters would be unwilling to support the large bond proposal because of the general economic conditions.

He called it a "fundamental mistake" to postpone the bond issue until next year's Legislature can look at it. Stewart said he was "not adverse" to Green's proposal for a February vote.

State Treasurer Harlan Boyles earlier expressed concern that the bond issue would be delayed, but he voted with the majority as a member of the state Board of Education on Thursday.

If there was any certainty in the dispute, it was that no one questioned the need for the money.

"The need is there," Davis said. "No one questions the need. That's what impresses us."

Under the proposal, each of the state's 100 counties would get $750,000. The remaining $325 million would be allocated to each school system in the state on a per-capita basis.

Free Tuition Plan Studied

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A plan that would permit children of University of North Carolina faculty members to receive free college tuition is being studied by a committee at N.C. State University.

In order to estimate costs of the proposal, the Group Insurance and Welfare Committee has mailed a questionnaire to about 1,800 faculty members, asking if they have pre-college age children.

But the committee says it has no current plans to seek state funding for the program. Instead, they are exploring the possibility of private funding.

"I just don't see it being successful (in the Legislature)," said A.C. Barefoot, head of university studies and chairman of the subcommittee that mailed out the questionnaire.

The UNC system has no plans to propose the move during the current short session of the General Assembly, said Raymond K.

Dawson, vice president for academic affairs.

Dawson said he was aware of informal discussion of the possibility by other UNC faculty.

Barefoot said the response to the questionnaires has been "rather fantastic." However, there were no statistics available on how many students at N.C. State University would qualify.

Under current state law, everyone who attends one of the 16 state universities is required to pay tuition, except for those who are over age 65 and UNC system faculty members.

Most of the 38 private colleges in the state offer free tuition for faculty children, said A. Richardson Love, administrative associate for the N.C. Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

Almost all who offer the opportunity also offer it to children of non-faculty staff, Love said.

Dawson said there were 6,601 faculty members in the UNC system.

Declares Dept. Is A Scapegoat

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The former acting athletic director at North Carolina A&T State University contends the athletic department has become a scapegoat in the school's fiscal problems.

Joe McKinley, who also is the school's football coach, said he believes the department deficit is less than half that recently reported by the state Auditor's Office.

The auditor reported the athletic deficit was more than $241,000.

"We've got a deficit, but it's not the magnitude of that," McKinley said. "I'd say it will be in the neighborhood of something like $100,000...I'm not alarmed by the deficit."

State Auditor Henry Bridges reported that A&T's records were in such disarray they were "essentially un-auditable." His report cited the athletic department as an example of "serious deficit spending" and pegged the shortfall at more than $240,000.

But McKinley said the figure should be much lower because of the school's book-keeping system. He maintained financial records don't include substantial amounts of money scheduled to be credited to the athletic department account by the university.

McKinley said Plummer Alston Jr., former vice chancellor for fiscal affairs, used the higher figure. Alston, who was dismissed from the post, declined comment.

John Buchan of the Auditor's Office said he understood some credits had not been listed at the time of the state audit, and he conceded that "what Coach McKinley says is possible."

McKinley said he believed the department's budget could be balanced by the end of the fiscal year "if we have a banner year in football."

Requirements Are Completed

AYDEN — Dr. Elliott Dixon has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, officials of the national association of family doctors — formerly the American Academy of General Practice — announced.

The academy, founded in 1947, is the country's second largest national medical association and was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years.

New Power Unit Now Producing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A $208-million Carolina Power & Light Co. unit at the utility's Roxboro plant produced its first electricity this week.

CP&L officials described the generation as a major first step toward commercial operation of the coal-fired unit scheduled to start this fall.

The unit will not run continuously during the summer, but it will help supply power for CP&L's system during hot weather.

Voted 'No' On Gas Fee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine North Carolina members of the U.S. House of Representatives were among the majority of representatives voting Thursday to override President Carter's veto of a bill disapproving his dime-a-gallon gasoline fee.

The two remaining North Carolina delegates did not vote.

Only two hours after Carter cast his promised veto, the House voted 335-164 in favor of overriding the veto. The 10 to 1 margin was far in excess of the two-thirds majority needed to override the veto.

The Senate was expected to take a similar vote Friday and force the repeal legislation into law over Carter's objection. That would make him the first Democratic president to have a veto overridden since Harry S. Truman in 1952.

Voting to override the president were North Carolina Democrats Ike Andrews, L.H. Fountain, Lamar Gudger, W.G. Heiner, Walter B. Jones, Stephen Neal, Charles Whitley and Republicans James T. Broyhill and James G. Martin.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Surgery for severe myopia, or nearsightedness, has captivated the attention of eye surgeons for many years. In fact, as far back as 1700, and again in 1890, the highly myopic eye was thought to be curable by the removal of the lens. The technique was unsatisfactory and the operation was abandoned.

Only very recently, a surgical technique was developed in Russia by Dr. S.N. Fyodorov. By cutting the cornea with 16 or more radial cuts, severe nearsightedness has been relieved.

Dr. Fyodorov, director of Moscow's Research Laboratory of Experimental Eye Surgery, claims 97 percent success in more than 2000 patients treated by this technique since 1974.

A group of American surgeons went to Moscow in order to watch the procedure and to learn the technique. These doctors, scattered over the United States, are now trying to duplicate the Soviet surgeon's results. They feel that this procedure has great potential and deserves to be pursued in the United States.

Oncologists are physicians who specialize in the treatment of cancers with chemicals. They are constantly on the scientific trail of chemo-therapeutic agents that treat cancers without causing unusual side effects.

Recently, a new drug, harringtonin, was isolated from a Chinese evergreen and found to be extremely useful in the treatment of some forms of leukemia.

At a recent conference at Columbia University, Dr. Xu Bin, of the Chinese Academy of Sciences in Shanghai, spoke impressively of his results with this drug. One of the doctors who recently returned from Shanghai, Dr. I. Bernard Weinstein, was very enthusiastic about the early findings. He said, "This is just the beginning, for the Chinese have a wealth of tradition in the area of natural or herbal medicine. They can uncover dozens, if not thousands, of new drugs to be tested."

The substitution of methadone for heroin has been of great value. Unfortunately, methadone itself is addictive and has produced a great many offshoot problems of heroin addiction.

Now, at the Harvard Medical School, researchers are using a new experimental drug, buprenorphine, that can suppress heroin addiction without inducing any significant dependence of its own.

Will Remember Harry Truman

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — They haven't found his body, but crusty old Harry Truman, who refused to leave his home on the slopes of a volcano, will be remembered in a memorial service this month.

Truman, 84, has been missing since the May 18 blast of Mount St. Helens that buried the area where he lived under mud and rubble. He had lived on the mountainside for 50 years and had scoffed at warnings that he might be in danger.

His relatives, including sister Geraldine Whiting, have scheduled a memorial service for June 14 at the American Baptist Church here.

Awards Day Held At School

On Friday, May 30 the annual Awards Day was held at Carolina Country Day School. The ceremony was attended by the staff, students, parents, and friends of Carolina Country Day.

Approximately 53 Academic Achievement Awards were presented to those students maintaining an average of 90 or above for the school year. Students were also recognized for perfect attendance, creative writing, and athletic achievement.

 Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

While there are certain fixed principles for the management of card combinations, the play of the hand can never be reduced to an exact science. Which finesse to take, or what suit to develop, may often be a sheer guess, with one line offering as good a chance as another. However, if you find that you are misguessing in a majority of the cases, there are grounds for suspicion that your technique may be faulty.

Given two possible lines of play, it goes without saying that you should choose the one offering the better chance. We do not expect the average player to learn a host of mathematical odds. Many times simple logic will provide the clue to the winning line.

We are not thrilled with North's action. It is doubtful whether he should keep the bidding open after his partner's one heart opening bid, much less raise hearts, which is the most encouraging simple response North could make. Wild horses couldn't keep South out of game after this start.

West led the queen of spades, and declarer won the ace in dummy. Faced with the choice of taking the heart finesse or the club finesse, declarer let his anxiety draw trumps sway him into leading to the queen of trumps. Though the finesse succeeded, declarer ended up down one when trumps failed to break.

"It was a tough guess, partner," remarked South. "If I had taken the club finesse, I would have made the hand."

"There was no way for you to tell," commiserated North graciously.

While declarer's play might have worked, it did not offer the best odds. The location of either king was a 50-50 chance, so the club finesse had as equal a chance of success as the one in trumps. However, there was another consideration: If the heart finesse succeeded, declarer's troubles would not be over — he would still need a 2-2 split which, we have seen, is considerably against the odds.

To put it in simple terms: A straight finesse is a better chance than a finesse plus a break in a suit. Therefore, the club finesse was the only proper play.

Recreation, Parks Summer Program Is Announced

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department announced its schedule of summer programs and activities.

All of the programs are available to residents of Greenville. Residents of Pitt County must pay a non-resident fee if they desire to participate in any Recreation and Parks programs. The non-resident fee is effective March 1 through Aug. 31 or on a yearly basis beginning Sept. 1 to Aug. 31. This fee can be paid at the Recreation and Parks office, located at Jaycee Park on Cedar Lane, before registration.

The summer brochure is now available at any recreation facility. Although there is variety in the programming, the department is interested in new ideas for additional programs or activities. Contact Jaycee Park at 752-4137, extension 262 for additional information. Dates shown are beginning dates.

Can Assist In Eye Gift

J.C. Hardee of Hardee's Funeral Home here was among those trained in eye enucleation and sterile technique under the direction of Dr. Kenneth L. Cohen at the Department of Ophthalmology, School of Medicine at UNC, Chapel Hill.

The procedure involves removing the eyes of deceased persons for use in aiding persons with diseased or damaged eyes. The number of eyes available for this procedure is inadequate as well as the number of persons qualified to do the procedure.

The primary motive behind the training of the embalmers is to make available people who can act as auxiliaries to the doctors.

The North Carolina Eye and Human Tissue Bank, Inc. is sponsored by a number of organizations, particularly the Lions of Multiple District 31 of Lions International. The Lions in North Carolina encouraged the North Carolina Eye and Human Tissue Bank, Inc. to carry out this training program and have financially supported many of the embalmers by purchasing instruments and paying the fees required by the project.
