

Shouting Match At Meeting Of OPEC

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Iran and Iraq got into a shouting match at the OPEC meeting during the night. Qatar stalked off and Saudi Arabia stayed away, another sign the world oil cartel is so badly split it won't be able to compromise on a uniform price.

Conference sources said without a compromise, prices would stay about the same for the rest of 1980. Analysts here say disunity within the oil cartel saves money for oil consumers, including the United States.

The sources said during the session Monday night that Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinfar accused Iraq and Saudi Arabia of "serving American imperialism by raising production rates."

They said Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeh Abdel-Karim shouted back that Iraq was the first power in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to nationalize Western-owned oil operations.

The sources said Saudi Arabia's minister did not even attend and Qatar's walked out of the hall in the middle of the session. But the oil ministers of the 13-member nations met again today, without staff assistants, in an effort to reach an agreement on pricing policy and production levels.

"The most important thing is not the price but production," Moinfar told reporters, adding that he and other OPEC militants would press for Saudi Arabia to cut its output. Conference sources said the Saudis, who produce one-third of OPEC's output at 9.5 million barrels a day, were resisting the pressure to decrease production levels by 1 million barrels daily.

Qatar sources, meanwhile, said Iran was also urging a cut in production by Iraq, OPEC's second largest producer with daily production of 3.5 million barrels.

Production levels are a key issue because a "mini-glut" of oil on world markets is making it difficult for those OPEC members whose oil is expensive to sell their crude. OPEC officials estimate the current world surplus at about 1 million barrels a day.

Iraq has proposed that all OPEC nations charge $32 a barrel for their oil. Under the proposal, OPEC hawks — including Iran — would have to drop present prices by $3 a barrel, middle-of-the-roads would raise theirs $2 and Saudi Arabia, which produces one-third of all OPEC oil, would increase prices $4.

But Moinfar said "there was no way" Iran would decrease prices, that he was "sure" there would be no agreement and that along with Algeria, Libya and Nigeria, Iran will continue to sell oil for as much as it can get for it.

Iraq and Iran are at ideological odds and recently, have engaged in sporadic fighting along their shared border. Iran accuses Iraq of being a stooge of the United States.

For different reasons than Iran, Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani is resisting the Iraqi plan.

Ross Cleared By Jurors, Fired From Police Dept.

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Douglas Ross, suspended from the Greenville Police Department since his arrest in July 1979 on drug charges, has been dismissed from the Police Department, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

A Pitt County Superior Court jury yesterday afternoon found Ross, a sergeant, not guilty of charges of possession of marijuana and maintaining and keeping a structure for the storage of a controlled substance.

The jury was out of the courtroom for 80 minutes before returning with the verdict at 4:15 p.m.

After the verdict was announced, Judge James Strickland said, "Let the record show that he is discharged by the court...Mr. Ross, you are now discharged by the court."

Ross, 47, was arrested two days after agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, Greenville police, and federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents raided a mobile home he owned, located 100 feet behind his home, and found two tons of marijuana, valued at $3.5 million. Six persons were arrested at the time of the raid — five out-of-state men and Ross' sister-in-law, Ms. Louise Whitehurst.

After he was released by the court yesterday, Ross wept as he hugged family members.

The acquittal was due, "basically to the lack of evidence," jury foreman Glenn Gaylor said. "We just think there was insufficient evidence."

Gaylor added that the jury voted four or five times before reaching the not guilty decision.

Ross, who took the stand in his own defense Friday, denied any knowledge of any illegal activity at the trailer. He said his sister-in-law had rented the trailer from his wife.

Ms. Whitehurst, who has pled guilty to conspiracy charges in connection with the case, and is scheduled to be sentenced next week.

Local Firm Qualifies As Bidder On Redevelopment Parcels Here

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A local firm qualified Monday night as a bidder on several parcels of land owned by the Redevelopment Commission in the Southside urban renewal section.

Commissioners, after hearing a proposal submitted by the Lily Richardson Agency here, approved the firm as a qualified bidder on the five tracts. Two other local firms qualified in May as bidders on the same parcels, indicating plans to develop the property with single family residential units.

Faye Brewington, Southside project manager and staff real estate officer, said that the Richardson Agency proposed to build single family and duplex units on the parcels. The duplex development would take place in the Greene Street-Brown Street area and involve townhouse style units.

Mrs. Brewington, reporting on Community Development activity during May, said that five acquisitions took place, involving three parcels in the West Greenville Thoroughfare area, and one each in the West Meadowbrook and South Evans sections.

A Taylor Street structure in West Meadowbrook was demolished, she said, and two relocations were handled by the staff in West Meadowbrook and South Evans. Mrs. Brewington added that options were obtained on two parcels in the thoroughfare area.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported that "good progress" is being made in the Broad Street to Farmville Boulevard segment of the 14th Street (West Greenville) thoroughfare, with options secured on most of the property. He said the city will initiate quick-take condemnation proceedings on parcels where negotiations have been unsuccessful.

Laney, saying that it is hopeful that construction bids can be taken in the segment soon, noted that acquisition activity is also in good shape in the thoroughfare section from the railroad to Charles Street.

The spokesman said that if the project can be under contract within 60 days, construction work can begin and the city will be in a favorable position in December when it is being considered for the small cities grants program.

The executive director said that the commission has been contacted regarding improvement of the alleyway beside the structure on Evans Street housing the Internal Revenue Service office. Laney said that the owner of the building indicated a willingness to participate in the costs of improving and beautifying the one-way corridor as a

Kennedy Offers Jobs Program

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, vowing once again to remain a candidate until the Democratic presidential convention this summer, today outlined a $12 billion anti-recession program to create 820,000 new jobs.

Back on the campaign trail a week after the end of the primary election season, Kennedy blasted President Carter's economic policies in a speech to a union convention. He said that surrender to recession would cost the federal government billions of dollars in food stamps, welfare benefits and other payments to the jobless.

"Let us resolve that never again will a Democratic administration call for a federal budget that reduces safety in the workplace, deprives children of school lunches and brings real hardship to cities, states and millions of the poor, the elderly and the unemployed," he said in remarks prepared for a meeting of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Kennedy did not say whether his proposed anti-recession program would be financed by increasing the current budget deficit or by imposing new taxes.

Kennedy had been scheduled to deliver an urban policy address before the U.S. Conference of Mayors, meeting in Seattle. But the mayors abruptly withdrew their invitation at the urging of White House officials, who did not want the Massachusetts senator to speak immediately after Carter's scheduled address to the city leaders.

"He says he wants to bring the Democratic Party together, but apparently that was too close for comfort," Kennedy said in a sarcastic reference to the president. "Maybe he was afraid he would talk too long and I would show up — and he would have to debate."

Kennedy has been trying unsuccessfully for months to force Carter into a campaign debate.

Giant Flag's Dedication On Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two huge stars dwarfed the visitors, but it was only a tiny sample of what will fly on Saturday, National Flag Day.

The complete flag, covering 83,000 square feet, will be unveiled Saturday.

The fund said it the flag is being brought here "for a dedication from the people to the people to pay tribute to the American servicemen who sacrificed their lives in an attempt to free the hostages of Iran."

Officials of the Great American Flag Fund displayed about one percent of the two-acre, seven-ton flag Monday on the

Street Resurfacing Will Get Underway June 16

Ron Sewell, director of the city's Engineering Department, reported that projects designed to resurface some five miles of local streets will begin in Greenville on June 16.

Sewell said the resurfacing work will be carried out in six areas of the city and is expected to be some 85 percent completed by the end of July. Resurfacing of selected streets will be delayed beyond that date, he noted, to allow for completion of scheduled utility cuts prior to the application of the three-quarter inch sand and asphalt top coat.

Pointing out that efforts will be made to inconvenience as little as possible the residents of streets being resurfaced, Sewell mentioned, "We anticipate that resurfacing a particular street will involve about two days. Generally, the street will be barricaded the evening before and residents will be requested not to park cars on the street."

Streets involved in the projects were selected on a priority basis which considered the number of utility cuts, number of failures and pothole repairs, and the extent of wear to the street's surface course.

Sewell said that contracts exceeding $90,000 will be involved in the resurfacing work scheduled for this summer and early fall.

Streets scheduled for resurfacing beginning June 16th (area one) include: Greenfield Boulevard, section from Memorial Drive to Fireside Road; Woodside Road, from Ashton Drive to Greenfield Boulevard; Ashton Drive, from Greenfield Boulevard to Woodside Road; and Beachwood Drive, from Woodside to Greenfield Boulevard.

Area two streets designated for resurfacing are: Pitt Street, from Fifth to Second Street; W Sixth Street, from Bancroft Street to Hudson Street; Watauga Avenue, from Chestnut Street to Dickinson Avenue; Chestnut Street, from Columbia Avenue to 14th Avenue; and Pitt Street, from Dickinson Avenue to the Pitt-Greene connector.

Area three designated streets are: 11th Street, from Charles Street to Charles Boulevard; Forbes Street, from Tenth Street to 14th Street; 13th Street, from Evans Street to Charles Boulevard; Ninth Street, from Cotanche Street to Evans Street; and 11th Street, from Evans Street to Washington Street.

Area four streets designated for work are: Second Street, from Cemetery Road east to the landfill; Third Street, from Cemetery Road to Cedar Street; Sixth Street, from Oak Street to Elm Street; and Meade Street, from Second to First.

City streets selected in area five are: Jefferson Drive, from Cedar Lane to Hamilton Street; Crockett Drive, from Jefferson Drive to Cedar Lane; Eden Place, from Crockett Drive to Tryon Drive; W Wright Road, from Wright Road to Austin Place; Slay Drive, from Ragsdale Road to E. Wright Road; Cotten Road, from Slay Drive to E. Wright Road; and Edgewood Circle, from W Rock Springs Road to dead end.

Sewell said that Millbrook Street, from Hooker Road to Sunset Avenue, is designated as the street to be resurfaced in area six.

Streets scheduled for resurfacing later in the summer, following planned utility cuts, are: Moore Street, from N. Greene Street to east end pavement; Fourth Street, from Rotary Street to eastern boundary of Central Business District; Summit Street, from Fifth to Fourth; and Lord Ashley Drive, from Crown Point Road to Martinsborough Road.

Ayden Board Discusses A Development Grant

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — A Community Development Block Grant and new rules and regulations for the tennis courts were the topics of discussion at the monthly meeting of the Town Board of Commissioners Monday.

D. Wayne Harris, formerly with the Mid-East Commission, explained, at the first of two public hearings to be held on the grant, the objectives, areas, and monetary consideration of the funding.

"A Community Development Block Grant," explained Harris, "is a 100 percent grant. No money from the town is used." The total amount for the grant is $451,000.

The grant is aimed at benefiting low and middle income people. The target area includes New Street, East Avenue, East Barwick, Planters Street, Pitt Street, and McKinley Street. "In 1976 the town applied and was funded for a grant of this type and completed one-half of what needed to be done," said Harris. "Now we're going to go in and try to finish what had been done. The main problem in Ayden is housing. Houses will either be removed or rehabilitated."

A program administrator will be hired to assist with rehabilitation or moving. The town's pre-application for the grant was accepted and their formal application is now being processed. Said Harris, "Once a pre-application is accepted, the money is almost a certainty."

The plan of action will include demolition of five dilapidated rental occupied units, one dilapidated owner occupied unit and six dilapidated vacant units at a cost of $36,000. Rehabilitation of 24 renter occupied houses, 19 owner occupied houses and one vacant rental for $264,000 is called for. The town will acquire one dilapidated home and lot, five dilapidated homes and 25 vacant lots at a cost of $66,000. Relocation of six rental occupied households and one owner occupied household for $39,000 is included. A $36,000 figure is put on the administration of this program and $41,000 of the money is left for contingency.

The town will be notified by October whether the money will be available.

The board voted to annex Bill Clark's subdivision between East Third Street and East Second Street as well as the new subdivision land. A public hearing was held on the annexation.

Recreation Director Gil Davis explained to the board the new rules and regulations for the tennis courts. The town will be using what is called the "key system." A key to the courts will be available to each family at $5 yearly. "Each family is responsible for their guests or whoever they let use their key," explained Davis. "A member from each family is

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's a look of elegance at a down-to-earth price. Creamy fisherman-white yarn, plastic needlepoint canvas and three easy-to-learn decorative stitches combine to create a stunning totebag with matching eyeglass case.

The six-mesh plastic canvas needs no blocking, is sturdy enough to hold its shape indefinitely and, when used with acrylic yarns, is completely washable. The finished needlepoint sections are simply whipped together with no hems or complicated construction details. A great gift or bazaara project for the beginning needlepointer!

To obtain directions for making Pat's Learn-a-Stitch Tote Bag, send your request for Leaflet No. LS-4423 with $1 and a long self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, The Daily Reflector, P. O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S. C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-4423 by sending check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at same address. Each kit contains the instruction leaflet, plus sufficient acrylic yarn and plastic canvas to complete one tote bag and one eyeglass case. Design is worked from charts and is not stamped on canvas. Fisherman white yarn will be sent unless other color is specified.

In knitting or in crochet, the beginner has to first master the basic stitches before plunging into pattern stitchery. Not so with needlepoint! The beginning needlepointer can start with fancy decorative stitches in her first project.

By the basic needlepoint stitch, I mean a single slanting stitch covering just one mesh of the canvas. With decorative pattern stitches, you are usually covering more than one mesh or thread of the canvas with one stitch and are often crossing stitches in opposite directions to achieve interesting effects.

Many other pattern stitches — notably Bargello stitches — involve long straight stitches covering several canvas threads vertically or horizontally. Because such stitches cover larger area with each single stitch, pattern stitches usually are quicker to work than the basic stitch — another plus for the beginner.

Usually, pattern stitches are diagrammed on graph paper with the blank square of the graph representing the holes of the canvas and the graph lines denoting the threads of the canvas.

Most of the diagrams will be numbered with instructions to bring the needle up at the odd numbers and take the needle down through the work at the even numbers. For example, you will bring the needle up from the wrong side to the right side at No. 1, pass it down from the right side to the wrong side at No. 2, bring it up again at No. 3 and take it down at No. 4, just making sure that you cover the same number of threads as designated by the chart lines.

Once you learn to follow such numbered charts, you should be able to master any pattern stitch charted in this manner. Then your possibilities for creative needlework are endless.

I recently gave a pattern stitch workshop for a number of friends who had never done this type of work. Rather than give them specific project details, I simply taught them five pattern stitches, showed a few sampler pieces I had previously done and suggested that they go home and create their own designs.

Though most were skeptical that they were capable of doing so. All tried and the results were astounding! Each one combined stitches and colors in a different way and I would have hated to judge which was the prettiest.

To teach yourself decorative stitchery, I suggest that you get one sheet of plastic canvas, a tapestry needle, knitting or tapestry yarn and a set of stitch diagrams. Then just experiment with several pattern stitches without trying to make anything specific.

Before long, you will probably be bursting with ideas for putting these stitches to use. In a future column, I will give you some hints for laying out designs and planning a full project.

Because of the large volume of mail I receive, I am unable to answer letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

A STUNNING TOTE BAG...with eyeglass case, can be done with fisherman-white yarn, plastic needlepoint canvas and easy-to-learn decorative stitches.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Dressing for success was never one of my priorities.

When you write from a utility room, your chances for making it big in the corporate world are somewhat limited, no matter what you wear.

What I'm really "into" is how to dress for intimidation.

I'm not just talking about luncheons where the deafening sound of ultrasuede rubbing together makes conversation impossible — I'm talking about little tricks women employ to make you feel inadequate.

One of these days I'm going to have a charm bracelet that sounds like an anvil every time I hoist my glass. Embarrassed by the clatter, I will hastily explain, "I told my husband a typewriter charm with 44 diamonds on each key was too much, but he insisted. And, of course, my six grandchildren, Robin, Ricky, Renee, Rush, Richie and Rothmoor, had to be immortalized in gold!"

I dream of the day when I sail into a room with one of those organizer bags that has a pocket for everything, and everything for a pocket. Oh, I had one once, but I stored discarded nose tissue under credit cards; safety pins under passport; pizza coupons under calculator, and a broken watch under address book.

Do you know what I'd give to walk into a room wearing shoes with a big "G" on the heels that stood for Gucci and not Grasshopper?

Of course, there's nothing that intimidates me more than to enter a room with a woman dressed completely in white. Talk about clothes making a statement! Everyone who crowds around her knows and respects her. When her clothes talk, everyone listens. She is thumbing her nose at the world. Bring on your mustard oozing out of a sandwich, your dusty chairs, your friendly dogs, your long cigarette ashes, your clumsy waiters, your filled-to-the-brim coffee cups, your oil on the car door, your low-flying birds. This woman is defying the odds.

And if she's wearing a hat...that tears it. It doesn't matter if it's a large brim, a veil with an ostrich plume, a beach straw, or a tennis cap with a visor. I feel as practical as a woman who launders and hangs her zip-lock bags out to dry.

Don't Roast Them: Beasts Nor Children

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for using your column last summer to remind people never to leave their pets in the car during the hot summer months. Will you please do as much for children?

So often children are told to wait in the car while Mother goes into an air-conditioned store for what she thought would take only a few minutes, but she's delayed and doesn't get back to the car until an hour later.

Leaving youngsters in a car unattended is cruel and thoughtless.

As the song goes, "Bless the beasts and the children, for in this world they have no choice, they have no voice."

CONCERNED IN COLUMBUS

DEAR CONCERNED: Read on for a letter from a clergyman in Kentucky:

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to tell you about a strange coincidence. I quote from your column (last August) in the Louisville Courier-Journal:

"DEAR PET OWNERS: With summer here, please do not take your pet along for the ride and leave it locked in the car while you run errands and shop.

"When the temperature is 85 degrees outside, the temperature inside a parked car (even with the windows slightly open) will reach 102 degrees within 10 minutes. And in 30 minutes it will reach 120 degrees!

"The normal body temperature of a dog is approximately 102 degrees; it can withstand approximately 108 degrees for a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage or death.

"Never leave a pet in a parked car in the sun — even with the windows open."

Abby, on the same day in the same newspaper, this news release appeared: "Bond was set at $10,000 each yesterday for an Ohio couple charged with second-degree murder after their 2½-month-old son apparently suffocated in a car at Mammoth Cave National Park."

The couple had left the infant in their car while they went on a three-hour cave tour. The temperature outside the car was in the 90s, and observers said the windows were left open about 2 inches!

Abby, now that summer is here again, please emphasize the importance of protecting children as well as pets. I am sure you can put this better than I have.

JAMES H. RUCKER, ASHLAND, KY.

DEAR MR. RUCKER: You put it well enough. The facts speak for themselves. Thanks for a timely reminder.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define "old age?"

BILL HERRICK IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR BILL: To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder. But I would say that you've reached it when:

You need your glasses to find your glasses.

You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for.

People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking.

You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart.

You think today's policemen look like kids.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

But the real test of security is the tennis court. I sprung for the tennis dress, Chrissie Evert shoes, little socks with the ball fringe over the heel, and a racket press, but the moment my opponent walkout wearing a sweatband...it's all over.

The Joseph Spells Renewed Vows

FOUNTAIN — The wedding vows of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Spell were renewed in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in the couple's church, Dildy's Chapel Free Will Baptist.

Joseph and Mary Lee Bynum Spell were married 50 years ago, June 7, 1930, in Greenville. The ceremony was taken before their pastor, Bishop Robert Gorham, with their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren as attendants.

A worship service preceded the ceremony. The sermon was brought by the Rev. J. H. Williams. A number of testimonies and musical solos were given by the couple's friends and relatives. Mistress of ceremonies was Ms. Bernice Hines, sister of the honoree.

A dinner given by the Spells' children was held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the service.

The children are Leander Spell, Ray Lang Spell, Ms. Doris Spell, Donald Spell, Andrew Spell, and Ms. Darlene Carney, all of Richmond, Va., Delores Grace Parker of Rt. 1, Fountain, and Josephine Horne of Washington, D. C. The Spells also have a foster son, James Allen Mitchell of Bridgeport, Conn., 25 grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Brenda Faye Littleton Married In Parents' Home

WINTERVILLE — Brenda Faye Littleton of Winterville and Michael Allen Smith of Ayden exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 7 p.m. at the home of the bride's parents.

The Rev. E. L. Newton officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Littleton of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Lee Allen and Rose Marie Smith of Portsmouth, Va.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white gown of silkened organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with a double row of silk floral miniature Venise lace. The sheer empire bodice was overlaid in the floral silk Venise lace with the waistline trimmed in the miniature lace. The full bishop sleeves repeated the miniature lace at the cuffs with a profusion of lace appliques on the sleeves, and self fabric covered button closure.

The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accentuated by rows of floral lace with appliques. Miniature lace edged the hemline of the skirt and train. She wore a tiered illusion veil held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in silk Venise lace beaded with pearls.

The bride chose a nosegay of daisies, cushion poms, baby's breath, and white mini-carnations.

Following a wedding trip to

MRS. MICHAEL ALLEN SMITH

Nags Head, the couple will live in Ayden. The bride is a graduate of Rose High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of Western Branch

High School, Va. and is currently employed as the manager of Fine's Men Shop at the Carolina East Mall here.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

For the past couple of summers, I've been extending seasonal fruits, as their cost rose, with the always available and comparatively thrifty banana.

Take strawberry shortcake. Bananas added to the strawberries make a delicious and thrifty variation of the traditional dessert.

When fresh apricots appear, they may be coupled with bananas in the famous New Orleans dessert — Bananas Foster. To bananas cooking in a bubbling-hot mixture of butter and brown sugar, add halved and pitted fresh apricots, banana liqueur and rum. The flame. I serve this topped with vanilla ice cream.

When blueberries are here, team them with sliced bananas. Pass a bowl of brown sugar and some heavy cream, yogurt, sour cream or creme fraiche. Simple and delectable.

Fresh raspberries for use "as is" are expensive. Alternatives? For a fresh summer dessert stud the top of an old-fashioned New England cream pie or a simple frosted white or yellow cake with the fresh berries stretched with sliced bananas. Voila!

A compote of fresh peaches or nectarines and bananas is sheer heaven. For a light summer lunch, serve bananas with peaches or nectarines and a creamy cheese on salad greens.

I've been addicted to the banana ever since I read Berton Roueche's profile of it in The New Yorker magazine. He noted that bananas' low-sodium content recommends them for low-sodium diets, their low-fat content for low-fat diets. Their high satiety factor recommends their use as a satisfying and wholesome between-meals snack. Summing up bananas' nutritive value, he wrote that they include Vitamins A, B1, B2, B6, C and niacin, three of which — Vitamins A, B6 and C — are present in significant amounts. Bananas also offer a wide range of minerals and are particularly rich in potassium.

Club Sends Tent To Honduras

St. Peter's Women's Club held its June meeting Wednesday with installation of officers given by Vice President Eleanor Close.

The new officers are Sheila Lueck, president; Anne Allen, secretary; and Beth Guertin, treasurer.

The club welcomed new members, Linda Sprecher and Mary Muzzarelli.

It was decided that next year's project will be a craft and bake sale. Mary Daniels volunteered to be chairman.

A motion was passed that all women of the parish be considered members of the Women's Club with no dues required.

A two-man tent is to be given to Sister Jane, who left

June 5 to work in missions in Honduras.

Meetings will not be held during the summer, it was decided.

Look Again At Budget

Greenville City Council members took a look at a "hold the line" budget of some $9,974,478 last week. It held the line in every area but taxes. City Manager Ed Wyatt recommended a tax increase of seven cents from 70 cents per $100 to 77 cents.

There were also other recommended increases. Higher fees for Greenwood and Brownhill cemeteries were suggested, as well as increases in city bus fares. A $120,000 increase in Greenville Utilities turn-over to the city was also included in the budget revenues.

Citing personnel cost, Wyatt said,

"A primary objective of this year's budget is to maintain the present work force without reducing personnel."

He also said a "great deal of capital outlay has been cut from the recommended budget."

No one could argue that city costs have not been hit by inflation, just as have all our costs. Nevertheless that doesn't mean that the City Council shouldn't look carefully at this budget to see if at least some of that seven cents tax increase can't be pared. It is a lot of new tax to add to our homeowners and businesses, and the city should see that every efficiency is realized before taxes are increased.

Short Session Should Be

A short session of the State Legislature got underway last week.

It is expected to be a session with minimum action. The largest item is a $358 million supplementary budget.

It will be proper if this session is as short as possible and certainly the Legislature should not try to act on many items.

It is a political year and we doubt that the best decisions will be made as the lawmakers look to the November election. The off-year session was not designed to be anything more than a time to adjust the budget. That thinking is still wise.

Nearer A Distant Goal

WASHINGTON — If there is one concept that our nation cherishes more than any other, it is the commitment that is carved in stone at the Supreme Court. The legend reads, "Equal Justice Under Law." Year by year we creep a little closer toward that distant goal.

That cheerful observation is prompted by a report from the Legal Services Corporation, marking its first five years of operation. The corporation has come a long way from those angry days in 1973 and 1974 when many of us on the conservative side fought like bobcats against its very creation.

These days the Legal Services Corporation keeps a low profile. That was not the image projected by its predecessor outfit, the legal services arm of the now defunct Office of Economic Opportunity. Many "poverty lawyers" identified with the OEO program were hot-eyed social activists, little interested in the humdrum legal problems of the poor. Conservatives in both House and Senate had good reason to oppose the expenditure of tax funds on firebrand causes.

As a consequence, the bill to transfer the legal services program from OEO to a new corporation ran into a filibuster in the Senate and a bitter floor fight in the House. In order to avoid a presidential veto, sponsors accepted a host of restrictive amendments intended to dispel these lingering apprehensions. Lawyers attached to the corporation are positively forbidden to engage in public demonstrations, picketing, boycotts, strikes, lobbying, partisan politics, voter registration drives and the like. The act prohibited the establishment of "backup centers" that were seen by many of us as mere seedbeds for hothouse revolution.

By a margin of only seven votes in the House, the legal services bill survived a motion to recommit. The corporation wobbled into existence, on rubbery legs. Now, six years later, it stands on its own two feet. Pending bills to extend the program's life for two years (in the "Senate version") or three years (in the House) may set off brief thunder on the floor, but no typhoons are in sight.

As one of those who hollered the loudest six years ago, perhaps I may be permitted a round of applause today. Here and there abuses continue. A sneaking suspicion will not go away that the corporation has neatly evaded the law's prohibition against backup centers by creating backup centers and calling them something else, e.g. the National Clearinghouse on Legal Services.

Let it go. As it moves into its sixth year, the corporation is funding 335 independent programs staffed by more than 5,000 attorneys and 2,500 paralegals. In 1979 local offices dealt with more than a million legal problems of the poor. What kind of problems? Child custody. Food stamps. Eviction. Disputed bills. Contested eligibility for welfare benefits. None of this is the stuff from which landmarks are made; but it is the very heart and soul of a legal services program.

The corporation's clients are 57 percent white, 30 percent black, 10 percent Hispanic. Only a fifth of them are employed; most are live-

Most Doubt U.S. Action

PRINCETON, N.J. — Six Americans out of 10 approve of the recent economic and diplomatic sanctions the United States has taken against Iran but most express doubts that these actions will secure the release of the American hostages.

A majority of the publics in both Great Britain and West Germany also support the U.S.'s Iranian moves and the British share the doubts of Americans that these sanctions will pay off. (The question about the release of the hostages was not asked in West Germany.)

A round-up of public opinion in seven countries by Gallup-affiliated survey organizations shows that the citizens of three favor their country's imposing sanctions against Iran, three are opposed and one is evenly divided.

Canadians, West Germans and Netherlands lean to the view that their nations should employ economic and diplomatic sanctions against Iran such as the United States has done. But public opinion is split in Great Britain, and in Sweden, Switzerland and Uruguay, residents oppose their country's following the U.S. lead.

Although the nine-member European Economic Community agreed in April to impose stringent sanctions against Iran, the Europeans have only implemented watered-down countermeasures, far less strict than those President Carter had requested.

Following are the questions asked and the international comparisons:

Confidence-Builder

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Selection of the first group of students for the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics could well be a giant step toward restoring public confidence in education.

Over 900 nominations from across the state were received as the staff and the admissions committee went through a long and detailed selection process to finally pick 150 rising high school juniors for the specialty school at Durham.

The school is off and running despite strong objection from two primary sources: public school educators who see it taking away both funds and outstanding students from local high schools; and NAACP and other black spokesmen who see it as inevitably discriminatory and racist.

The key word is "egalitarianism" in today's society. Not only was every man treated equal, but should be treated and rewarded equally regardless of individual achievement or talent.

Equality

It is that philosophy which undergirds the great leveling of public school education, with those who embrace "equality" objecting even to student grouping by ability within classrooms as showing favoritism to some while wounding others.

Even in the face of objections, and even with prospects for federal funds already shaky and getting more precarious, Gov. Jim Hunt and the General Assembly launched the School of Science and Mathematics. The search will be on for private grants to augment state funds, especially in light of current federal budget cutting. The Congress is not only under little pressure to approve money for gifted and talented students but is being actively lobbied not to fund programs which are not "egalitarian."

Opponents to the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics reckoned without the strong support which would be forthcoming from people across the state who wish to see some reward for effort and some notice of outstanding merit in the schools. That attitude underlies a public demand for a return to basics, for discipline, for competency testing, for an end to unproven innovation and experimentation in education such as "new math" and "open classrooms" and "social adjustment."

Running down the information used in choosing the first students at the specialty school, it is clear that the goal is to identify those students who are above average: tests of aptitude, achievement, writing skills, and logical thinking, self-assessments in creativity, performance, leadership; school grades; community involvement and school activities; evaluations by school and community people of persistence, innovative performance, analytical-divergent thinking, and desire to achieve.

Not Ordinary

Also indicators of curiosity and imagination, along with special interests and talents; a personal written statement from the student describing how he could benefit from the school, and contribute to the school; and a personal interview.

There are those who have gifts above the ordinary. They are not equal. Else there would be no great books or music or paintings or advances in medicine, transportation, computers....Man would still be living in a cave and slaying wild beasts with wooden clubs.

Gov. Jim Hunt describes the goal of the school: "so we could provide accelerated instruction to students who are exceptionally gifted in science and mathematics. We literally are going to be

Other Editors Say End Congestion

(The Salisbury Post)

Anything that will reduce court congestion has to have merit.

For reasons we don't pretend to understand, the case loads in North Carolina courts are far, far higher than they were only a decade or two ago. They have increased far more rapidly than the population.

One result, despite the increase in number of court days, has been congestion. People facing charges often have to wait for hours or even days for their cases to come up. And this means a considerable inconvenience including a loss of wages for witnesses as well as defendants.

The North Carolina Courts Commission is aware of this and is studying the matter of decriminalization of many traffic charges as one of the answers. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten agrees. Minor traffic charges for the most part do not involve criminal actions, and most people do not regard them as such.

Courts, Edmisten contends, should not be tied up hearing traffic charges. They should only consider the more serious traffic charges — driving while drunk, manslaughter, racing, radical speeding, dangerous and reckless driving.

Although a majority of minor offenses are handled through waivers, they still pass through the court system. "A system of administrative adjudication of traffic offenses," the commission report says, "would very substantially reduce the number of motor vehicle criminal cases filed in district court."

Not only would this help eliminate a ranking situation but it would also reduce the costs to the offending motorists. They wouldn't be taxed with the $27 court costs fee now charged although undoubtedly there would be a compensatory fee of some nature.

Doubtless there will be a lot of tinkering with the proposal before the General Assembly will accept it. But if it will reduce the costs of justice, reduce the inconveniences to the drivers and free the courts for more serious matters, we're all for it.

Strength For Today

HAPPINESS, BLESSEDNESS

The word happiness doesn't occur in the entire Bible. Jesus only once (John 13:17) used the word happy. But the gospel speaks often about blessedness. The English word "happiness" comes from the old English word "hap" meaning "fortune" or "chance". But the words "blessed" and "blessedness" come from an Anglo-Saxon word meaning "consecrated with blood".

The Bible pays almost no attention to the satisfaction which comes from the possession of things or from being able to have one's own way. The Bible sets forth a superior quality of that satisfaction which comes from the putting aside of self. This may take place in the relief of someone who needs relief, or even in the shedding of one's blood, if need be, for a good cause.

Jesus expressed the matter well when he said, blessed are the poor in spirit, the pure in heart, the peacemakers — even those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake. Elisha Douglass

Good News If You Look For It

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Rarely does the ordinary American get much economic encouragement any more because, it seems, when the news turns bad it tends to be very, very bad, smothering the good news with it.

But there is good news, if you look for it.

Horticulturists tell us, for example, that backyard farmers can cut $25 to $100, and in some instances several times that much, if they don't put a price on their own labor.

Says Ricardo Gomez, an Agriculture Department horticulturist, "If you don't count your labor, you'll probably get back $5 to $10 for every dollar spent on a garden."

A system that helps you to build savings is beginning to make headway. Under the system, various shops give cash discounts that are applied to a customer's savings account at the local savings and loan association. The idea seems to have developed simultaneously in several parts of the country as a way to serve three needs: the need of shops for sales, the need of S&Ls for funds, and the need of customers for savings.

Homeowners, especially those with access to a water well, are getting good news about heating and air conditioning. Big savings, it is said, are available because of refinements in the heat pump.

During the winter the pumps, which draw warmth from the air for home heating (and heat from household air for summer cooling), have been of little use in northern tier states, such as Chicago and Boston.

Now, however, the pumps are making their way north, drawing their energy from well water, which seldom dips below 40 degrees even during the coldest winter days in the nation's coldest cities.

Some pump manufacturers contend the pumps can cut heating costs by well over 50 percent, and that in some instances a fuel oil bill that was $1,500 before conversion could be reduced to less than $500.

Installation costs range from $2,000 to $4,000, but the cost of drilling a well, if none exists, might add another $2,000 or more.

Speaking of homes, the National Association of Home Builders points to something that some potential homebuyers might have overlooked. "Now," it says, "is a good time to buy a home."

Michael Sumichrast, NAHB economist, says "prices are starting to level off and will continue to do so during the next six or seven months before they head up again." And interest rates, the NAHB seems to suggest, might not get much lower before they too tend to rise.

Another group, the National Association of Investment Clubs, has good news for beginning investors. "There is at least one area where prices have come down, and come down a lot," it says. "That's the price that the small investor has to pay to get a start in the stockmarket."

The association has devised a plan that permits an individual to buy very small amounts of stock in a limited number of companies, make additions to the portfolio from time to time, and incur only small or in some instances no commissions.

Only 19 companies, such as Aetna Life & Casualty, Foxboro Corp., and Gould, Inc., are making their shares available through the plan, but the NAIC, based in Royal Oak, Mich., expects the list to expand.

And for those who like to buy stocks directly, and who don't mind a good risk when the potential rewards are great, there are plenty of natural resource stocks available for less than a dollar.

No promises are made, but when you can't even buy a stick of gum for a penny, there is some appeal to the idea of owning some shares in a company that, if it doesn't go broke, might make you a dollar or two.

NBA Draft

Today is the day many of the country's top college basketball players have been waiting for. It's the day teams choose players in the annual National Basketball Association college player draft. As the recent NBA season proved, first-year players can make important contributions to successful professional teams. Among the players expected to be picked early in today's draft are Kevin McHale of Minnesota, Joe Barry Carroll of Purdue and Louisville's Darrell Griffith. Also on the list of possible draft picks is Nancy Lieberman, an all-American who helped Old Dominion win two consecutive women's college basketball titles. "If I'm picked," Lieberman says, "I'll give it a try."

Competition Is Held By 4-H Clubs

Members from four 4-H clubs in Pitt County were recently involved in the 4-H annual county competitive events held throughout the month of May. These events are held in preparation for the district competition which involves 4-H'ers from 15 counties.

The 1980 District Activity Day will be held in Chowan County on June 17. 4-H winners representing Pitt County are Cheryl Thompson, Kim Howard, Pam Hardy, Camille Gorham, Angela Jones, Amber Harris and Becky Jo Bateman in the foods category; Cynthia Lilley, pork cookery; Tonya Carter, Reenie Chancey, open class; Wayne Bass, photography; Regina Carter, public speaking; Vonnie Purvis, sewing; Ken Worthington, automotive skill driving; and Clinton Tucker and Craig Bonner, archery.

There were three acts chosen to be in the District Talent Show competition. These were: Al Clark, disco skating; Ken Worthington, Tony Cannon, Melanie Manning, "blue grass picking and singing"; Ogden Wiggins and Joseph Buck, piano and saxophone duet.

In the tractor skill driving, Kelly Wall took first place with Tim Johnson runner-up. Wall will represent Pitt County in the state tractor driving at 4-H Congress in July.

Cautious In His Thanks

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Tabor City, was given a major legislative committee chairmanship Monday, but he was careful not to go too far in extending his thanks.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green named Soles as chairman of the Senate Judiciary II Committee during a brief Monday night session. He replaces Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., R-Raleigh, who resigned as chairman after bolting the Democratic Party to be the GOP candidate for governor.

Soles, in accepting the chairmanship, noted that both Green and Lake were responsible for his new position, and he thanked Green profusely before noting Lake's new campaign.

"It's customary to wish someone who has helped you, 'Good luck,'" Soles said. "But in this particular instance, I say to you, Beverly, 'Good health.'"

Poses Revocation Of Va. VEPCO Charter

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Virginia Electric & Power Co. should have its charter revoked if it doesn't improve its performance, a state legislator says.

Delegate Glenn B. McClannan, D-Virginia Beach, made the threat of charter revocation during a State Corporation Commission hearing Monday on Vepeco's request for a $72.6 million rate increase.

If Vepeco should lose its charter, McClannan said, another utility, such as Appalachian Power Co., Carolina Power & Light Co. or Duke Power Co., could take over serving its customers. In addition to its Virginia customers, Vepeco serves several counties in northeastern North Carolina.

Unruffled by the charge, Vepeco President William W. Berry testified at the hearing before SCC Hearing Examiner Stewart Farrar that the increase is essential if the utility is to continue adequate service.

Vepeco also pointed out that the requested annual rate increase would be offset almost entirely by its separate request to reduce its fuel factor charges to customers by $71.9 million a year because its nuclear power units were back in service.

McClannan, a member of the House Committee on Corporations, Insurance and Banking, said he would introduce a bill in the 1981 legislature to strip Vepeco of its charter to do business in the state if the utility does not show "substantial progress" in efficiency.

McClannan said Vepeco had made "numerous imprudent management decisions" which had contributed to rate increases totaling about 40 percent in the past year alone.

Vepeco, he said, has not provided "reasonably adequate services and facilities at reasonable and just rates" as required by the State Code.

McClannan acknowledged that his bill would stand little chance of passage, but he said it could win approval "over a period of years if Vepeco's inefficiency continues."

Attorney General Marshall Coleman said Monday that his office would testify today that Vepeco can get along without any increase whatsoever.

Shrimper Boats Still In Custody

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — A dozen Georgia shrimp boats remained docked in federal custody as the season opened today because a federal judge refused to order them returned to their owners.

The boats, owned by five Thunderbolt shrimpers, were used in the Cuban freedom flotilla.

The public interest would not be served by returning the vessels, which were impounded when they landed their human cargo in Florida, U.S. District Judge B. Avant Edenfield ruled Monday.

The public interest "lies with obedience of the law," he said, adding that the shrimpers should have known that returning to the country with Cuban nationals would have violated that law.

Meanwhile, the 1980 shrimp season opened inside the three-mile limit at 6 a.m. in both Georgia and South Carolina.

The crop will be "abundant," but shrimpers' earnings will be hurt by lower prices and higher costs, including fuel costs, said Robert Reimold, coastal resources director for the Department of Natural Resources.

"The price of shrimp is mainly set by landings on the Gulf Coast," he said, and prices there are down about 15 percent from last year.

In addition, last year's excellent crop and high prices have brought more shrimpers into the business.

"There are probably going to be more boats here than in any year in the past. With more boats, that will dilute the catch for each shrimper," Reimold said.

His department, he said, licensed about 1,500 commercial shrimp boats last year and expects more this year.

"A court cannot find that any public interest would be served by ordering the immediate release of the vessels," Edenfield said.

"The public has been greatly harmed by the influx of these aliens to this country. The cost of supporting these persons is being born by the public," Edenfield said.

The five plaintiffs had sued President Carter and other federal officials, saying they faced bankruptcy if they were not allowed to regain their vessels.

They argued that the Cuban action had been a humanitarian venture designed to rescue persons separated from their families and that armed Cubans had forced them to take part in a mass exodus.

Edenfield rejected the argument of a humanitarian motive for the effort, labeling it instead "capitalistic."

The judge said that while the plaintiffs had shown a significant threat of irreparable injury, they had not shown that it was likely they would ultimately win the case involving alleged violations of customs laws.

ing on welfare or Social Security. More than a third of the legal problems involve family matters. Another 13 percent concern landlord-tenant relationships. Half the cases are settled within a month. The corporation proudly notes that only 2 percent of its budget goes to administration; 95 percent of last year's $270 million appropriation went directly to legal services.

The pending Senate bill would authorize $321.3 million for the corporation in fiscal

'81. It is obviously a substantial sum, but it is a seriously needed sum. In the nature of things, poor families can accept the realities of being poor; they are not going to have the food, clothing, housing, higher education and material amenities of the rich. What they cannot accept is gross injustice — the sense of being unfairly ground down by the millwheels of the law.

We never will achieve the millennial ideal of truly equal justice. Outside the antiseptic realms of mathematics, literal equality does not exist and ought not to exist. But at law, we must keep trying.

Clear Way For A New Terminal

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Greensboro-High Point Airport Authority cleared the way Monday for construction to begin on a $55.2 million terminal complex with the awarding of seven new construction contracts.

Roger Sekadlo, the airport's executive director, said work would begin in July. The terminal, five times larger than the existing facility, is scheduled for completion in December 1982.

Students Earn Dean's List

GREENSBORO — The following Pitt County students have been named to the Dean's List at North Carolina A. & T. State University for the 1980 spring semester.

Myron D. Brown, Greenville; Lennox Green, Winterville; Barby James, William Joyner, Greenville; Annette Moore, Farmville; Ricky T. Valentine, Anita Whichard, Greenville.

BRAKES WEAK
JASPER, Ark. (AP) — A bus loaded with sightseers apparently was not operating with full braking power and may have had some transmission trouble when it left a winding Arkansas highway last week and plunged down a ravine, killing 20 people, investigators say.

Kennedy Can't Get Debate, White House Is Chilly

HEADS UP — Dade County sheriff's deputies look to the sky as a rock or brick sails through the air moments after the President left the scene in Liberty City. President Carter had met with Miami black leaders in the area where riots ripped through earlier in the middle of May. Although there were reports of the President's car being hit by thrown objects, no damage was apparent to the car when the President left Miami's International Airport. (AP Laserphoto)

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy not only can't get a debate with President Carter, he now finds the White House treating him like the black-sheep cousin who, ever unrepentant, still eyes the family silver. It doesn't want him around, period.

Kennedy presumably would have been embraced by Carter's fold had he dropped his moonshot challenge in their meeting last week. Today, his refusal to do that was rewarded with a lesson in the kind of power politics which fall uniquely within the domain of an incumbent president.

Simply put, Kennedy wanted to be in Seattle today, as invited, to address the U.S. Conference of Mayors. So did Jimmy Carter. And the White House saw to it that Carter was, and the senator from Massachusetts wasn't.

While the president's camp worked to keep Kennedy from the same stage, meanwhile, the Democratic National Committee aimed its efforts at keeping independent challenger John B. Anderson from the same ballot this fall, underscoring party concern that he would hurt Carter more than Republican Ronald Reagan.

DNC leaders said their decision to wage a court battle over Anderson's ballot-access drive was necessary, in part, because Republican election officials are making it all too easy for the Illinois congressman in some states.

The president flew to Seattle early today after a tour of riot-scarred Miami, where he vowed Monday to hold firm on his fight against inflation. But the mayors have said they're more interested in having him prime the employment pump.

So, too, is the Congressional Black Caucus, which accused the president Monday of "trading off jobs to the vain hope that this will solve inflation." And Carter got another taste of black anguish when demonstrators threw rocks and bottles at his motorcade as he left the Liberty City section of Miami.

Kennedy, who hoped to share the president's limelight at the mayor's conference by appearing within an hour of the chief executive, was left to deliver his urban speech to a union group in Anaheim, Calif., instead.

The senator was disinclined by the mayors, said conference president Richard Carver of Peoria, Ill., after the White House declared that having two rivals for the Democratic nomination appear on the same day was "unacceptable."

"Let's be honest," said Carver. "It's important for this conference to have the president of the United States appear before our organization, and we're certainly going to accommodate him."

"And so I have communicated to Sen. Kennedy's staff that... we will not be able to provide a forum for him" at any time today, he said.

"We discussed this with the White House, suggesting a number of alternatives," which included morning and afternoon sessions which would separate the pair, he said, "and they have informed us that no alternative is acceptable."

A Kennedy spokesman huffed that "if they want to play stickball, they can play stickball. We're in the big leagues."

The mayors did offer the senator a chance to appear Wednesday, but Kennedy apparently ruled that out. His schedule called for him to come straight back to Washington from the California visit.

While the White House's move conceivably could backfire by accentuating Kennedy's claim that the president is afraid to take him on, it was, on the other hand, a clear example of the advantage enjoyed by an incumbent when political push comes to shove. And it is just that kind of power which mitigates so severely against Kennedy's hope of swaying hundreds of Democratic delegates away from the president.

Reagan remained secluded today at his mountain ranch outside Santa Barbara, Calif., and intended to pursue that solitude until a GOP unity dinner on Friday night. But Anderson, like Kennedy, was on the hustings seeking support from Reagan's fellow Californians.

Anderson, in San Diego, opened a drive to obtain the signatures of 101,296 residents to place his name on the ballot and drew his biggest cheers with a pitch for "making use of that solar energy which shines so brightly out here."

On Monday, Anderson told the mayors in Seattle he would divert 90 percent of federal excise revenues from alcohol and tobacco sales to help the cities. That would raise $8 billion, he said, and half of that should go for mass transit and the remainder for basic services.

Anderson scoffed at the charge by Democratic party officials that Republicans are helping him overcome legal barriers to the ballot in some states. "There is no collusion," he said. "That would undermine the integrity of my independent candidacy."

But Les Francis, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, said that "in some states — Texas and Tennessee are two I know of — Republican secretaries of state are assisting the Anderson effort... and that seems to be clearly politically motivated."

In Texas, Secretary of State George Strake, a Republican, has ruled that Democrats who voted in the Democratic state primary may sign petitions for Anderson. Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat, had ruled otherwise, but Strake asserted jurisdiction on the matter.

Francis said the DNC would wage legal fights on a case-by-case basis wherever possible to keep Anderson off November's slate. But two Democratic senators, Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri and David Pryor of Arkansas, disassociated themselves from that effort. "It smells of smoke-filled room politics and that could turn people off," said Eagleton.

Charges Anderson Gets Some Republican Help

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leader of the Democratic National Committee charges that Republican election officials in some states are leaning over backward to make sure independent John B. Anderson gets a place on their November ballots.

The charge underscores the concern among Democratic professionals that Anderson will damage the Democrats' prospects more than the Republicans' in November if he succeeds in making a race of it.

"In some states — Texas and Tennessee are two I know of — Republican secretaries of state are assisting the Anderson effort in getting on the ballot and that seems to be clearly politically motivated," Les Francis, executive director of the DNC, said in an interview. He was unable to document his charge, saying he was unfamiliar with the details.

"They are bending over backward to interpret the law favorably to Anderson's position," Francis said. "That makes his claim to be a true independent a little suspect."

Anderson, asked in San Diego, Calif., about the charge, scoffed at it.

"There is no collusion," he said. "That would undermine the integrity of my independent candidacy."

In Texas, Secretary of State George Strake, a Republican, has ruled that Democrats who voted in the Democratic state primary may sign petitions to put Anderson on the Texas ballot. Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat, ruled the opposite, but Strake said he was the final arbiter and called White politically motivated.

Texas Democratic officials said they would sue if it turned out Anderson got on the ballot only with the help of signatures from Democrats who voted in the primary.

Francis said the DNC would continue plans on a case-by-case basis to help efforts to keep Anderson off state ballots despite protests from two Democratic senators, Thomas F.

Eagleton, Mo., and David Pryor, Ark.

"I think this kind of legal maneuvering can backfire," Eagleton said. "It smells of smoke-filled-room politics and that could turn people off. It certainly turns me off."

Pryor said he was "outraged and embarrassed" by the effort.

"To devote the time, energy and money of the Democratic party to court battles in order to keep a contender for the presidency off the ballots does not, to me, speak well for our party," he wrote Democratic National Chairman John White, a close friend of President Carter.

But Francis said the DNC was acting to preserve the democratic system. He said ballot access rules are vital "to provide stability and to prevent a proliferation of wildcard candidates."

Last week, Robert Neuman, a spokesman for the DNC, said the committee will "probably spend what it takes" in the effort to mount legal challenges, wherever feasible, to Anderson's drive to run wherever possible.

In a separate effort to discredit Anderson with liberals, the Democrats are picturing Anderson as a conventional Republican who on many issues marches in lockstep with Reagan.

When 50 state Democratic chairmen went home last week from a strategy session and a pep talk from Carter, they were given packets of information on "the real John Anderson."

The material said Anderson should be judged "by his 19 years in the Republican congressional mainstream" rather than "by his 'progressive campaign rhetoric.'"

Anderson, a lifelong Republican, became an independent presidential candidate April 24.

The document reviews Anderson's sponsorship of a constitutional amendment to declare America a Christian nation, accuses him of taking both sides on some sensitive issues and charges him with trying to minimize his past conservatism.

The packet says Anderson and Reagan have taken the same position — and one opposite from Carter's — on 20 issues of particular importance to liberals. Among them are national health insurance, minimum wage restrictions, food stamp cutbacks, building the B-1 bomber and labor law changes sought by the AFL-CIO.

The compilation says Anderson has supported both sides of the gun control issue: 60 percent of the vetoes cast by Republican Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford; the B-1 bomber and the neutron bomb; and the Kemp-Roth bill for a 30 percent tax cut over three years.

Asked to comment, Anderson said, "There has been an evolution in my thinking on a lot of issues. I have never perceived myself to be doctrinaire. If Mr. Carter wants to talk about issues, then perhaps it's time for him to agree to debate."

Offer Communal Living Example

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — There's a 70-year-old restored house in Greensboro that is serving as an example to a unique arrangement in communal living. The house is occupied by senior citizens.

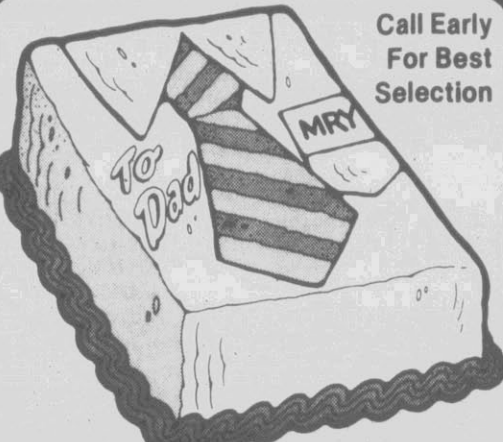

The residents divide the expenses of running the home, including the salary for a live-in housekeeper. Each resident comes and goes as he chooses. For the first 30 days, a new resident is on approval, meaning he must pass muster with the other residents.

Mary Copeland, the home's executive director, said most of the residents cannot maintain their own homes yet they do not need a nursing home. "Except for this, they'd probably have to go to a nursing home."

The non-profit home opened more than two years ago, patterned after a similar home in Winter Park, Fla. The home is sponsored by Holy Trinity Episcopal Church with the help of other churches.

'New Team' In Garwood Case Ready

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) - With a new team of lawyers and indications of a possible change in defense strategy, Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood went back to court Monday as his case against charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam resumed.

Garwood and his lawyers launched a barrage of legal motions at a pretrial hearing, which may be the last time for pretrial motions before his court-martial begins.

The trial for the 34-year-old Indiana native was set to crank up June 30 with jury selection, but the long list of motions to be argued threatened to delay that.

Garwood is accused of deserting and helping the Vietnamese communists during the nearly 14 years that he spent in Vietnam. But Garwood, who returned to the United States in March 1979 claims he was held prisoner during that time.

Garwood's lawyers argued that the commanding general of Camp Lejeune, Brig. Gen. David B. Barker, should testify at the hearing and explain the reasons why he ordered a court-martial for Garwood.

Garwood's lawyers argued that the strict set of military rules preceding a court-martial was not followed in this case, resulting in what defense lawyer Vaughan Taylor called the "extremely unusual way in which this case got to trial."

Col. R. E. Switzer, the trial judge, listened to defense arguments calling for Barker's testimony and prosecutors' objections to the testimony, but Switzer put off announcing a ruling on that motion until the hearing resumes at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Garwood, who has been waiting for disposition of his case for more than a year, went into court Monday with his new team of lawyers together for the first time.

In addition to Taylor, Garwood is represented by civilian lawyer John C. Lowe, a Charlottesville, Va., attorney, and Marine Corps lawyer Lewis Olchin.

Garwood had started the pretrial round of hearings with two other Marine lawyers and civilian attorney Dermot Foley of New York, who had been on the Garwood case since a few days after Garwood came home in 1979.

But, it was announced in court Monday that Foley was off the case and no explanation was given.

In a telephone conversation with the Jacksonville Daily News from his New York office, Foley said he would have no comment on the move until later.

"I am fully aware of what is going on, but I want to see exactly how it was presented," said Foley.

He indicated that he had been dismissed from the case.

"This is the kind of thing a lawyer has to get used to. I just want to get a clear picture of what happened before I say anything," he said.

Foley had taken a heavily philosophical approach to the Garwood case, portraying Garwood as a victim of the war and the only one of the American prisoners of war to be prosecuted for his actions in that unpopular conflict.

But, judging from Monday's hearing session, Garwood's new defense team is aiming at a more realistic and technical line.

The new lawyers said they planned to argue at least 32 motions during the hearing session, including several dealing with technical aspects of previous proceedings.

Former Deputy Is Being Tried

CURRITUCK, N.C. (AP) - A grand jury indicted former Sheriff's Deputy Jack Jarvis in mid-morning Monday on charges alleging he tried to plant evidence and, by 3 p.m., a jury had been seated for his trial.

Jarvis, 36, was indicted on one count of conspiracy to solicit another person to possess and deliver marijuana and on one count of misconduct in office.

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil issues set the pace as the stock market staged a modest advance today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.47 to 863.14 by noon. Gainers led a 7-5 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Among actively traded oil stocks, Gulf Oil was up 1/4 to 43%; Exxon rose 1 to 66%; Standard Oil of Indiana 1 1/4 to 57; Texaco 1/4 to 37, and Mobil 1/4 to 77%.

At a meeting in Algiers, oil ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries were reported still unable to agree on a single base price. One delegate said the ministers agreed on the need to cut production, but Saudi Arabia said it would not go along without such an accord on pricing.

Interest rates, meanwhile, have recently resumed their steep slide, putting yields on short-term government securities at their lowest levels in more than two years.

The decline is considered positive in many respects for the stock market, particularly since it has steadily reduced the appeal of interest-bearing investments that compete with stocks for investors' funds.

But analysts say it has also resulted in new pressure on the dollar in foreign exchange, and contributed to worries about just how severe the recession will be.

The NYSE's composite index rose .29 to 65.23. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.42 to 285.31.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 17.13 million shares at noontime, against 16.30 million at the same point Monday.

Accidents Are Reported

An estimated $3,800 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated Sunday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 1:45 a.m. mishap on Charles Street, 35 feet South of the 11th Street intersection, when a car driven by Dawn Teresa Quinn of 124 Osceola Dr. ran off the roadway and collided with a guardrail.

Police, who estimated damage to the vehicle at $2,000, charged Ms. Quinn with driving under the influence.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9 p.m. collision on Dickinson Avenue, 21 feet East of the Wilson Street intersection.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Venessa Barrett of Route 1, Winterville, and James Thomas Owens Jr. of Ayden.

Cars driven by Timothy Moore of 408 Davis St. and Joseph Michael Simonowich of Route 1, Greenville, collided about 2:35 a.m. Sunday at the intersection of Tenth and Greene Streets.

Investigators estimated damage to the Moore car at $400 and set damage to the car driven by Simonowich, a Police Department patrol car, at $150.

A 6:25 a.m. mishap on Memorial Drive, 100 feet north of the Fairlane Road intersection involved a car driven by Vernon Ray Phippen of Caneto.

Police said the Phippen car collided with two newspaper boxes, a mail box and two highway signs after running off the road.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the car and $150 to the signs and boxes.

Herring Out Of Running

MOUNT OLIVE, N.C. (AP) — Yielding to pressure from local Jaycee chapters across North Carolina, J. Harold Herring withdrew Monday as a candidate for president of the U.S. Jaycees.

"I regret having to withdraw but will not dwell in the past. My energies will be directed in the future," Herring said in a brief statement.

He said that, "In seeking to be president of the U.S. Jaycees, I had hoped to be of the greatest service possible to my fellow man in the finest tradition of our great organization."

"Circumstances have now left me with no alternative but to return to the Mount Olive Jaycees as a local member and to offer my best in that capacity."

Herring's withdrawal followed a vote in Charlotte during the weekend by the state Jaycee executive committee and local chapter presidents not to endorse his candidacy.

That action came as the Jaycees were trying to find a means of repaying an estimated $191,000 that was diverted over a period of years from a charity fund for use in paying such items as national membership dues.

Herring has been accused by other Jaycees of applying pressure during his term as state president in 1978-79 to have fake chapters created.

State and federal authorities are conducting an investigation into the membership expansion drive to determine if any laws have been violated.

supposed to be with any guest using the key. We think this will cut down on the incidents of abuse and vandalism at the courts." The key system will be in use basically during unsupervised periods.

A reservation system will also be in effect. Persons having keys can reserve the courts for one and one-half hour periods. Reservations can be made by signing up for the court and time desired on a sheet just inside the door of the courts. Reservations are not accepted during supervised periods, and keys are not needed. The courts are supervised, according to Davis, for eight weeks during the summer.

The lights at the courts can be set at 15-minute intervals for up to one hour. "They can be turned on for 15, 30, 45 or 60 minutes," said Davis. A buzzer warns players five minutes before the lights turn themselves off.

The town reported that a $2,000 grant has been approved to support the Ayden Theatre Workshop for 1980-81.

Guy Braxton was recommended for a re-appointment as an extra-territorial representative to the planning board for a three-year term. His appointment must be approved by the planning board.

NARC ROUNDUP

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Thirty-three persons have been indicted on drug charges as the result of a five-month undercover operation by state and local authorities. Police Chief Frederick Heineman said this morning He said those arrested thus far dealt in large scale operations.

Lawman Quits At Winterville

WINTERVILLE — A third police officer has left the Winterville Police Department. The Town Board of Aldermen, in their regular meeting last night, accepted the resignation of Officer Craig Finley.

Finley, who has been with the town since May 6 of 1978, will take a position with the High Point Police Department. His resignation will be effective as of June 26.

According to Finley, the main reason he is leaving is the job in High Point. "The biggest reason is that I've accepted the job, the pay is better, and I feel I'm better suited to working on a big department," he commented. "I feel as though I can better myself through this position."

Finley's absence will leave the town with one police officer. Police Chief G.I. Jones and Juvenile Officer Keith Gardner resigned in late May. Finley said his leaving was not connected to this incident or the troubles the department reportedly has experienced.

In other business, the board accepted a priority list for paving and curb and gutter during the next year. These priorities include Gaylord Street; Liberty Street; Bethanna Court; South Railroad from Cooper to Blount; between Main and Cooper; Blount Street from South Railroad to Mill; West Hammond Street; Knox Street (curb and gutter); Walter Circle; Tyson Street (curb and gutter); and North Railroad from Tyson to Boyd St (curb and gutter). The board voted that the above will be done as money is available and what is not completed will be carried over until the next year.

The board also signed a lease agreement with Pitt County allowing the county to take 1.46 acres of the Winterville Town Dump and

Turning To 4-Cylinders

DETROIT (AP) — Most General Motors Corp. engines will be four-cylinder models in two years, judging by the automaker's machine tool orders, an auto trade publication says.

The orders for two production lines, eventually to total $300 million, will give GM at least seven production lines for four-cylinder engines compared to six lines for six-cylinder engines and fewer for V-8s, Metalworking News reported Monday.

Increased emphasis on smaller engines is only one aspect of the race for fuel economy by all manufacturers. Chrysler Corp. already plans to produce nothing but four-cylinder engines in a few years.

When GM introduced its front-wheel-drive compacts a year ago, it believed 60 percent of the buyers would prefer sixes over fours, but so far 60 percent have preferred fours.

GM's Chevrolet division has ordered two block machining systems and two cylinder head machining systems to be installed at the Tonawanda, N.Y., engine plant near Buffalo, Metalworking News said. The cost was estimated at $60 million to $70 million.

The plant now makes V-6 engines. The journal said the tooling program, "appears to have taken the place of an earlier plan" to expand V-6 production.

The two lines would be capable of building 800,000 to 900,000 four-cylinder engines a year, giving GM a total capacity of more than 3 million "four-bangers" annually in the 1983 model year, the weekly said.

Chevrolet spokesmen declined comment.

'Satisfactory' After Close Call

An eight-year-old Ayden youth, Tore S. Claiborne, was in satisfactory condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital late this morning after coming close to drowning in a swimming pool here.

The Greenville Fire-Rescue Department was called to a possible drowning at the Camelot Inn on South Memorial Drive at 10:03 a.m. Responding rescue units found young Claiborne breathing and transported the youth to the hospital.

Officers said Claiborne had been swimming in the pool and apparently got into trouble. He had been under water for about 45 seconds when discovered. Persons at the scene began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and within about 15 seconds, the child began breathing on his own.

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan."

Baltusrol Club Under Fire For Memberships

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The prestigious golf club which this week will host the U.S. Open Championship lost Richard Nixon as a member more than a decade ago because of its allegedly discriminatory admission practices.

As the Republican presidential nominee, Nixon in 1968 was a member of the Baltusrol Golf Club, where this year's U.S. begins Thursday. Faced with charges that the club had a discriminatory membership policy, Nixon at first promised to make changes "from within."

A month later, after the New Jersey Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union challenged Nixon by saying there were 10 blacks and 10 Jews seeking membership, Nixon resigned his membership.

"I believe it appropriate that I disassociate myself from all organizations," Nixon wrote to the club's board of directors, "and activities not related to the commitment I have undertaken by acceptance of the foregoing nomination."

Twelve years later, Baltusrol (named for Baltus Roll, the victim of an unsolved murder in 1831 on what was to become the club's grounds) has a membership of about 500, with "a few Jews and no blacks," according to John McGuire, a club member and tournament organizer.

"There are no blacks here and we're not going to find them," he said Monday. "Because of our admission procedure, blacks have not reached the point in our socio-economic strata to apply for membership."

"The real point is they must first worry about educating their children, paying the mortgage, dealing with everyday expenses, before joining a club like ours," said McGuire, a Newark lawyer. "In general, the percentage of blacks has not reached that point. It's a fact, unfortunately."

Baltusrol's admission procedures are actually quite similar to most private golf clubs. A prospective member must have a sponsor, someone to second a nomination, then four letters from members to the admissions committee.

Then, the prospective member is invited to the club to meet the admissions committee before his name is released to the general membership, which is asked for input. To be admitted, the prospective member must be approved unanimously by the club members.

McGuire said it costs about $5,000 for the first year of membership, which includes the initiation fee, purchase of stock in the club and the annual dues, about $1,250 a year.

"It is not particularly expensive compared to other golf clubs," McGuire said.

Baltusrol President Robert Boutillier was very hesitant to discuss Baltusrol's membership and admission policies. The club has come under criticism in the past for its highly selective standards, and Boutillier was outwardly nervous when the subject was mentioned.

"It's a delicate subject," he acknowledged, "but like any other country club, the members choose the people. If someone objects, the person is rejected. We have no black members, but I don't believe any have applied."

Boutillier stresses that being a private organization, Baltusrol may pick and choose members as it sees fit.

"The whole thing is we're a private club and we operate under the laws of the country we live in," he said. "The constitution gives us the right to have a private club and to choose the members we want to associate with, to pick the people we are comfortable with. We don't admit the town drunk."

Baltusrol's highly restrictive reputation, rather than any club policy, might be responsible for its predominantly non-Jewish, non-black membership, he suggested.

"I don't really know if we have any Jews," Boutillier said. "We don't have anything in our bylaws restricting to race, color or religion. We don't have any discriminatory language in our admissions policy. Some of my best friends are Jewish."

Boutillier said his club is no more exclusive than the average country club. "We have a beautiful golf course and we're very proud of it."

"Many in the area are just as exclusive, that's why they're clubs," he added. "We haven't had any pressure on our policies. Most people go by the laws."

Catfish Hunter Has A New Job

HERTFORD, N.C. (AP) — Catfish Hunter stood in silence, his hat held over his head as the final strains of the national anthem drifted into the evening. Another town ... another ballgame.

But there would be no Steve Garveys or Johnny Benches to vitch to with a World Series me hanging in the balance.

There would be no lines of baseball body hunters poised with unlimited checking accounts and fountain pens.

Instead, there would be a rake...common garden variety. And on this night Catfish Hunter would stroke with that rake perhaps 10 times for each of his 224 major league victories.

The 34-year-old retired Cy

Young Award winner is now the head groundskeeper for the Perquimans County Youth League. He also is a manager and assistant scorekeeper.

To earn his keep he lives off deferred payments from the New York Yankees on the remainder of a storied $2.85 million contract. He makes television commercials and hopes 200 acres of fine farmland in eastern North Carolina pay dividends through peanuts, corn and soybeans.

And he would be among the last to trade the serenity and security of his native surroundings for the fame and glitter he knew during 15 years as one of the great pitchers of his time.

In Hertford, N.C., population 2,000, Catfish Hunter is never called Catfish. He's Jimmy, one of the boys. Nobody asks for his autograph.

The townfolk don't care where he's been or how much money he's made, basically because they know he doesn't care either.

"Jimmy never changed with all that happened to him," explained one of his friends, Joe Meads. "He belongs here. He told me he quit baseball to play with his kids."

Hunter won't deny any of that. All he really wanted was to be a farmer, he says.

"But it's a lot harder than pitching," said the five-time winner of 20 games. "Sometimes I go to work at 4 o'clock in the morning and stay until 8 or 9 at night."

When he gets off early, chances are he'll be lining the field on which his 10-year-old son Todd and other youngsters will play the game of his youth. On the opening night of the season last week he soaked the field too thoroughly and had to till the soil with a giant rake attached to his pickup truck.

Later, the right arm that once propelled fast balls and sliders worked furiously with a garden rake to put the finishing touches on the field.

"Who plowed the infield?" asked one early arriving player.

"Mr. Hunter," answered another.

But Hunter returned from dinner, flipped the giant rake and saved the infield. It was as if he had walked the first three batters and struck out the last three.

"I guess I learned a lesson about that hose," said Hunter, a volunteer fireman, who had borrowed a fire truck to overcome the effect of a two-week drought on the infield.

Then came the game, during which Hunter twice corrected the scorer about the run count of the opposition. He won both times, but it didn't help. Hunter's Bethel team was a 6-5 loser.

The outcome of the game hardly mattered. He was home for the first summer since high school, playing groundskeeper and managing a baseball team.

"You know, I told them I'd take care of the grounds and keep the grass mowed," said Hunter. "But then they stuck me with managing, too."

It's all in fun. No more pressure; he's a farmer.

"They don't care," Hunter said when asked if he was surprised that no one considers him a celebrity. "I get up and go to work and so do they," said Hunter, who admitted it always was easy to identify his friends even in crowded ballparks.

"If somebody yelled, 'Hey Catfish, I knew they didn't know me. If they said, 'Hey Jimmy, I knew they did.'"

Does he miss the major leagues? "I miss the guys," he explains, but emphasizes that hotel rooms and "red eye" flights were never his idea of life as it should be lived. "We had fun, though."

His home includes a sprawling brick ranch-style house a short way up the road from the shed in which he stows the bases in his capacity as director of stadium operations.

And it includes a group of people who never bought Charlie Finley's manufactured "Catfish" tag. Nobody calls him Chapstick, Catfood or Catnip, Madison Avenue notwithstanding.

There's a billboard on the edge of town proclaiming its proud ownership of James Augustus Catfish Hunter...World Series hero...gentleman farmer. To his friends, he's just plain Jimmy with a rake.

Wilson Hands Pitt First Loss By 7-2 Score

WILSON — Wilson's American Legion baseball team gained revenge for an earlier loss last night, gaining a 7-2 win over Pitt County's Post 39. The defeat was the first in four starts for the Pitt County team.

Pitt fell behind early, tied it up in the third, 1-1, but then fell behind for good in the third, when Wilson pushed over three runs for a 4-1 lead it never lost.

Pitt threatened in the first inning, but failed to get its man past second base. Wilson, instead, came up with the game's first run, in the second inning. With two away, Wade Farmer singled and scored when Randy Deans cracked a triple.

Pitt did come back to tie it up in the top of the third. Mark Shank led off with a single and stole second. Will Barrett followed with a run-scoring triple knotting it at 1-1.

But the bottom fell out in the third, when Wilson pushed over three runs. Mike Wells led off, reaching on an error, then stealing second. After two outs, Mac Smith singled, scoring Wells, and the hitter took second on the throw to the plate. David Lawhorn singled in Smith, then stole second. Ricky Matthews reached on an error, scoring Lawhorn.

Wilson upped its lead to 5-1 in the fifth, scoring once. Smith walked, stole second and scored when Lawhorn singled.

Pitt came back with its other run in the eighth. Shank walked and moved up when Emmett Walsh walked. Will Barrett also walked, loading the bases. Roy Lassiter hit into a fielder's choice that scored Shank.

Wilson added two more in the bottom of the eighth. With one down, Jim Barnes singled and was sacrificed up. Jeff Davis walked and Wells singled, scoring Barnes. Charles Simpson reached on a fielder's choice that was errored, scoring Davis with the game's final run.

Wilson's hitting was led by Wells, Simpson, Lawhorn and Farmer, each with two. No one had more than one hit for Pitt County.

Pitt travels to Rocky Mount tonight.

Door Still Ajar For Olympic Athletes

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The door was still ajar

Begin Search

Screening work began yesterday in the task of finding a new athletic director for East Carolina University.

Bill Cain, who had served for the past four and a half years, resigned the position a month ago, and Dr. Ernest Schwarz is currently serving as acting athletic director.

The search committee, headed by chancellor Tom Brewer met yesterday to make the first cut-down of applications. According to reports reaching "The Daily Reflector," more than 60 applications were received by the school by people seeking the job. In its meeting yesterday, the screening committee trimmed the list down to 15 names.

From those names, it is believed that further screening will cut the list to around five. At that time, candidates will be brought in for interviews, and the final selection made.

It was not known when the next meeting of the committee would be held, but it was expected to take place within the week. One committee member said he hoped to have the new man on the job by July 1.

Tuesday for athletes from the United States and other boycotting countries to get into the Olympic Games as individuals.

The executive board of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), meeting in Lausanne less than six weeks before the opening ceremony in Moscow, awaited a report from Arpad Csnadi, its Hungarian member and technical adviser.

The board adjourned earlier than expected Monday night to give Csnadi a chance to contact the international sports federations to see if they would agree to a bending of Olympic rules.

Lord Killanin, IOC president, gave Csnadi the job of trying to find a way past a situation that has blocked individual athletes from the Olympic Games for the last 24 years.

"I may be able to tell you more in 24 hours," said Killanin in an interview — a clear sign that something might happen.

When the U.S. Olympic Committee responded to President Jimmy Carter's call and decided to boycott the games in Moscow, many American athletes who wanted to compete despite the Soviet military action in Afghanistan found their entry barred.

The national committees of Canada, Japan and West Germany, among some 36 countries altogether, followed the U.S. line.

But the Japanese women's volleyball team wants to go for a medal in Moscow.

Masaji Kiyakawa of Japan, a vice-president of the IOC, pushed the claims of the Japanese volleyball women at the executive board meeting Monday.

Inevitably, Kiyakawa was supported by another vice-president, Vitaly Smirnov of the Soviet Union, who for obvious reasons wants get as many athletes from as many countries as possible in the Olympic Games opening in Moscow July 19.

Moves to bring individual athletes into the games have failed in the past. This happened after World War II, when displaced persons without nationality were barred from competing.

Injured Indians Get Two Back

CLEVELAND (AP) — The injury-plagued Cleveland Indians will take on another new look when they face the Kansas City Royals in the first game of their rain-delayed three-game series tonight.

The series was scheduled to start Monday but was put off until tonight because of soggy grounds at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. Monday's game is to be made up as part of a two-night double-header beginning at 5:35 p.m. Wednesday.

Two injured Indians are expected to return to the starting lineup tonight, according to Manager Dave Garcia.

Jorge Orta, who has been suffering with sore legs, and Tom Veryzer, sidelined for nine days with an inflamed left shoulder, are expected to be in the lineup — and Garcia welcomes both with open arms.

Orta, the Indians regular rightfielder, is hitting .317 with three home runs and 19 runs batted in.

Veryzer, known for his defense, is hitting a surprising .303. He'll take over at shortstop from rookie Jerry Dybzinski. And Dybzinski, who has made several outstanding plays in the field while filling in at short, will move to second base.

Regular second baseman Duane Kuiper is out for the season following knee surgery. Dybzinski is hitting .255, and earned the second base job over utility infielder Dave Rosello.

Not expected to join the regular lineup immediately is first baseman Andre Thornton, who was reactivated Monday to fill the roster vacancy created by Kuiper's absence.

Jackson Blast Aids NY Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Despite swinging from the left side of the plate, the Yankee slugger has been defying baseball logic by hitting southpaws with unaccustomed regularity.

Eight of his 11 homers have been socked off left-handers, including one Monday night that helped the Yankees beat the California Angels 8-7 in 10 innings.

"I usually hit better against right-handers," said Jackson, who can enjoy it but can't explain his success against southpaws.

In addition to his dramatic solo homer in the ninth inning off Dave LaRoche, which tied the game at 7-7, Jackson had a two-run double off LaRoche in the seventh, when the Yankees scored four times to wipe out a 4-0 Angel lead.

"My thought was to give the team, the manager and myself the best chance," said Jackson, recalling his thoughts before the seventh-inning double. "I wanted to get the fat of the bat on the ball with a good compact swing."

In the only other American League game Monday night, Baltimore beat Oakland 3-2 and Seattle edged Boston 8-7 in 13 innings. Rain washed out the contest between Kansas City and Cleveland.

After Jackson tied the game in the ninth, Bob Watson won it for New York in the 10th with a two-out RBI single. Bobby Brown had reached base on a fielder's choice and stole second before Watson singled off Dave Lemanczyk, 2-6.

Rich Gossage, 1-0, picked up the victory with 22-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Orioles 3, A's 2

Eddie Murray's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning scored Pat Kelly from third base, leading Baltimore over Oakland. Before Kelly drew a walk, the Orioles had been virtually helpless for more than six innings against the A's Rick Langford, 4-5. After three straight hits in the second inning, Langford retired 22 straight batters.

Ken Singleton sent Kelly to third with a single and Murray followed with his sacrifice fly to right. "The ball wasn't too deep and I knew the right fielder had a strong arm. But I wasn't going to wait until the 22nd inning," said Kelly after beating Tony Armas' throw to the plate.

Mariners 8, Red Sox 7
Juan Beniquez hit his first homer of the season in the 13th inning, lifting Seattle over Boston. Beniquez hit the first pitch from Dick Drago, 2-3, with one out. Dave Heaverlo, 4-0, worked the final 22-3 innings to pick up the victory for Seattle.

Behind 5-0 after three innings, the Mariners finally caught Boston at 6-6 in the seventh on Tom Paciorek's run-scoring single and Jim Anderson's sacrifice fly.

Sampson Is Among Missing

NEW YORK (AP) — Did Ralph Sampson make the right decision?

The 7-foot-4 freshman at the University of Virginia turned down a lucrative, multi-year contract offer from the Boston Celtics this spring, saying he preferred to stay in school. That ended a lengthy and intensive recruiting effort by the Celtics, who felt that between Sampson and last year's prime rookie, Larry Bird, they would have the foundation for another dynasty.

As a result, when today's National Basketball Association's college draft got under way at noon, EDT, the first name announced was not that of Ralph Sampson.

The Celtics had acquired the No. 1 pick in a deal with Detroit and were prepared to use it on Sampson even though he only had one year of college ball under his belt. One report said the Celtics had offered Sampson $700,000 a year over 10 years, while others said the numbers were considerably less.

When Sampson elected to stay in school, the Celtics considered taking Purdue center Joe Barry Carroll, then decided to deal the No. 1 pick to Golden State for 7-footer Robert Parish, a four-year veteran who averaged 17.0 points and 10.9 rebounds per game last season. The clubs also exchanged their other first-round picks, Boston getting the third choice overall and Golden State the 13th.

But the man the Celtics really wanted was Sampson, and General Manager Red Auerbach was very upset when he elected to stay in school. Although Auerbach said Sampson was being misled by his advisers, most executives around the NBA feel young players in general are better off staying in school as long as possible.

"I'm dead against kids coming out of school early," says Norm Sonju, vice president of the Dallas Mavericks, echoing the general sentiment. "A kid who stays in a good program is going to be much better off. Look at Bill Willoughby — he isn't anywhere near the player he would have been had he gone to Kentucky."

Willoughby, a 6-foot-8 forward who was a standout at Dwight Morrow High School in Englewood, N.J., turned down over 200 scholarship offers and chose to bypass college entirely in 1975 and become at 18 the youngest player in NBA history. He was selected by Atlanta with the top pick on the second round of that draft but never made his mark in the pros, spending two seasons with Atlanta and one with Buffalo, going with that franchise to San Diego.

"Willoughby just wasn't ready to play for us," said Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown. "His physical equipment dictated that he play the big forward, but he wasn't mature enough to handle it."

In late 1978, at the age of 21, Willoughby was waived out of the league. He spent some time in San Diego and some in New Jersey, then decided to give basketball another shot. He won a job with the Cleveland Cavaliers last fall and appeared in 78 games, but five years after leaving high school, his pro career is tenuous at best.

Two other players who went from high school to the pros have fared better.

Moses Malone signed with Utah of the American Basketball Association in 1974. He was an instant success in that league, then moved to the NBA in 1976 and became the league's leading rebounder and most valuable player in 1979.

Darryl Dawkins, who came out the same year at Willoughby, hardly played at all during his first two seasons. But since then he has become Philadelphia's starting center and one of the NBA's most colorful and popular players.

Both Malone and Dawkins were centers, big men who could rely on their size to get by. Malone also benefited from weak competition in the ABA during his early years.

While only three players have gone from high school to the pros, about a half-dozen per year leave college before their four years of eligibility are completed and turn pro. Among the undergraduates who have made it big in the pros are Julius Erving, Bob McAdoo, Phil Chenier, Maurice Lucas, Reggie Theus, Campy Russell and Alvan Adams.

Eight players who turned pro early and were first-round draft choices since 1973 are no longer in the NBA — Raymond Lewis of Cal State-Los Angeles (picked by Philadelphia in 1973); Mike Sojourner of Utah (Atlanta, 1974); Gary Brokaw of Notre Dame (Milwaukee, 1974); Cliff Pondexter of Long Beach State (Chicago, 1974); Eugene Short of Jackson State (New York, 1975); Frank Oleynick of Seattle (Seattle, 1975); Norm Cook of Kansas (Boston, 1976); and Frankie Sanders of Southern (San Antonio, 1978).

The idea of players turning pro before completing their final year of collegiate eligibility is one the NBA would rather have avoided. But in 1971 Spencer Haywood sued the league for the right to play before his college class would have graduated, and the league instituted a "hardship" draft in which youngsters could become eligible at any time by showing economic hardship.

That plan was scrapped in 1976 as part of the agreement between the NBA and its Players Association and the settlement of the Oscar Robertson suit. The agreement, approved by U.S. District Court, prohibits the NBA from denying draft eligibility to any person whose high school class has graduated and who notifies the NBA in writing at least 45 days prior to the draft that he has renounced his college eligibility.

"We have not actively sought out athletes to come in," said Simon Gourdine, the NBA's deputy commissioner. "The system provides that he can come in if he chooses. It's an intensely personal decision."

Seven undergraduates applied for the draft this year. The best known of the group were guard Wes Matthews of Wisconsin, forward DeWayne Scales of Louisiana State and center Jeff Ruland of Iowa. The others were Joseph Cammarano of Los Angeles Mission College, Bill Phillips of Tennessee-Chattanooga, Rob Webb of Oklahoma and Randolph Owens of Philadelphia Textile

Billy Wants Umpire Ousted

OAKLAND (AP) — What's good for baseball player Bill Madlock should be good for baseball umpire Dale Ford, according to Oakland A's Manager Billy Martin.

American League President Lee MacPhail will have to decide whether, as Martin charges, Ford pushed the manager during an argument early in Sunday's game against the Boston Red Sox.

"If Madlock can be suspended and fined, so should an umpire. There should be no double standard," said Martin, citing the case of the Pittsburgh Pirates' third baseman now under suspension for sticking his glove in an umpire's face.

Ford denied pushing Martin during their argument, which resulted in Martin's ejection from the game, and the umpire also denied Martin's charge that he challenged the manager to fight after the game.

"I'd say he was the one doing the challenging," said Ford, who is in his fifth season as a major league umpire.

He said he "might have brushed" Martin as they faced off near home plate, but said the allegation he pushed the manager was "an out-and-out lie."

Martin said television tapes will prove him correct, and he said a radio reporter's tape of the postgame confrontation also will support his story. Ken Kaiser, a former professional wrestler in the 250-pound range who was Sunday's third base ump, stepped between Martin and Ford in the second inning and also after the game.

Ford noted that this was his first run-in with Martin, and he said, "After this one, I don't believe it'll be my last."

Both Ford and Martin talked by telephone Monday with MacPhail to give their versions of the action, which started after Ford ruled in the second inning that the A's Tony Armas struck out on a swing he tried to check.

Martin said he merely yelled from the dugout asking Ford to check on the call with another umpire and that Ford ejected him before he left the dugout. Under baseball rules, a manager automatically is ejected if he comes out of the dugout to protest a strike call.

"He took one step onto the field, and that's when I ran him," said Ford.

Richie Phillips, executive director of the Major League Umpires Association, said in Philadelphia Monday: "From everything I have received to this moment, I would say that the association will support Dale Ford in every way, but before making a definitive statement, I want the opportunity to look at the (video) tape to see the written report and to hear the cassette of the conversation between Ford and Martin."

He added: "I have always had a great deal of respect for Dale Ford as an umpire and for Billy Martin as a manager. I know that he (Martin) is somewhat feisty, and has been somewhat troublesome to some of the umpires over the years, but I've always had great deal of respect for him as being a great competitor."

Earnhardt Still Tops

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Despite a fifth-place finish in his last race, Dale Earnhardt remains atop the NASCAR points and money-earned standings with more than $237,000 in winnings.

Darrell Waltrip won the 400-mile stock car race Sunday in Riverside, Calif., but Earnhardt held onto his lead in the points column Monday with 2,260. In second place was Richard Petty with 2,219, followed by Cale Yarborough, 2,174; Waltrip, 2,154, and Bobby Allison fifth at 2,022.

In the money standings, Earnhardt was No. 1 with $237,660, Waltrip second at $217,575. Petty with $203,950, Benny Parsons with $191,980, and Allison in fifth place with $189,545.

The next race of the NASCAR 1980 season is Sunday at Michigan International Speedway for the Gabriel 400.

Youth Baseball League Action

Little League

Union Carbide 9, Optimists 8

Union Carbide scored a run in the bottom of the sixth inning to slip past the Optimists, 9-8, in a North State Little League game yesterday. The win ran the Union Carbide record to 6-5, while the Optimists fell to 1-10.

The Optimists scored first, getting a run in the top of the second. Union Carbide came back with three in the second, gaining the lead. The Optimists again rallied, scoring three in the third for a 4-3 lead. They added two more in the fifth, moving ahead, 6-3. But the Union Carbide nine rallied for five in the bottom of the fifth, gaining an 8-6 margin. The Optimists made one last effort, scoring twice in the top of the sixth to tie it up, 8-8.

But Union Carbide would not be denied, and came up with the winning run in the bottom of the inning. With one down, John Flenoy walked, stole second and then stole third. He scored the game winning run when Steve Rhodes singled.

Tim West and Chris Stokes each had two hits to lead Union Carbide. No one had more than one hit for the Optimists.

Pepsi-Cola 22, Exchange 12

Pepsi-Cola outlasted the Exchange in a Tar Heel Little League slugfest yesterday, gaining a 22-12 victory. Pepsi and Exchange are both 5-6 now.

Pepsi started it off, scoring nine first inning runs, including homers by Paul Sullivan. Robert Formville and Clark Stallings. The Exchange came back with three in the second, but five more by Pepsi put the game away.

Pepsi saw Fletcher Phillips lead off the second with a double, scoring on an error on the play. Clay Young doubled and moved up on an out, scoring when Sullivan doubled. Paul Kelly reached on an error, scoring Sullivan, and Formville banged out a two-run homer for a 14-3 lead.

The Exchange added two in the third and seven in the fifth, with Monty Atkinson, and Mike Hathaway homering. Pepsi picked up five more in the fourth and three in the fifth, the last on a homer by Phillips.

Phillips led the Pepsi hitting with four, while Formville and Stallings each had three, and Sullivan had two. Hathaway led the Exchange hitting with four, while Atkinson and Joyner each had two.

Sr. Babe Ruth League

Farmville 8, Winterville 2

WINTERVILLE — Farmville scored twice in the seventh to tie the game and then erupted for six runs in the top of the tenth, sparked by Mike James' triple, to whip Winterville, 8-2, in a Senior Babe Ruth baseball game.

Farmville trailed 2-0 going into the seventh but was able to tie the score in the inning. Farmville, now 5-0, then loaded the bases in the top of the tenth and James blasted a triple to drive home three of his team's six runs in the inning. Winterville, now 3-3, was led in hitting by Emory Vines, who had three hits. Micah Dixon, Arnell Credle, Jeff Cox and Dixon Page had two hits for Winterville. Farmville did not have anyone with more than one hit.

S. Pitt Little League

Chicod 9,

Sunshine Garden 8
WINTERVILLE — Chicod won its 10th game of the season with a 9-8 win over Sunshine Garden in Southern Pitt Little League play Monday.

Mike Elks struck out 10 in winning his fifth ballgame of the season against two losses. Chicod is 10-3 overall.

Chicod was led in hitting by Danny Boyd (3-3), Steve Mills (3-4) and Allen Nethercutt (3-4). Mills had a double and triple.

Jimmy Faulkner led Sunshine Garden at the plate, going three-for-four. Dean Taylor had two hits for Sunshine Garden.

Babe Ruth League

Action Movers 8, Pepsi-Cola 6

Aaction Movers held on to a share of first place in the Babe Ruth League with an 8-6 victory over Pepsi-Cola last night. Aaction is now 6-2, while Pepsi slips to 3-5.

Pepsi got a run in the first to take an early lead, then added two more in the fourth. Aaction came up with three in the bottom of the fourth, tying it up. Pepsi moved back ahead with two in the fifth, but Aaction came back with five to wrap up the win.

Herzog Wins First; Giants Finally Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It took a while for Whitey Herzog to get his first victory as a National League manager. But that was nothing compared to how long it took San Francisco to win its game Monday night.

"We went through a lot of these games last year," Herzog said after the former Kansas City Royals manager returned triumphantly — sort of — to the major leagues at the St. Louis Cardinals' helm.

Herzog, succeeding Ken Boyer, needed a lot of help from George Hendrick, namely his run-scoring single in the first inning, RBI-double in the sixth and three-run homer in the 10th inning that gave the Cardinals a nail-biting 8-5 victory over Atlanta and ended their five-game losing streak.

It took the Cards 2½ hours to make Herzog a winner. In Philadelphia, it took an incredible 7½ hours from first pitch to last — including the five-hour rain delay — before the Giants locked up a 3-1 victory.

Elsewhere on the National League's weather-plagued schedule, the Cincinnati Reds and San Diego Padres played to a 6-6 tie with the game called after 10½ innings following 3½ hours of rain delays, the Los Angeles Dodgers' game against the Mets in New York was rained out before it began and the Houston Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 6-2. Pittsburgh and Montreal were not scheduled.

The Cardinals still have the worst record in the majors, 19-34, having won only six of their last 28 games. "We dug a little hole for ourselves," the 48-year-old Herzog said, "and we've got to put a streak together to get back in it (the pennant race). And that's hard to do without good pitching."

He got five innings of good pitching from 41-year-old Jim Kaat, then the Braves began chipping away at St. Louis' 5-0 lead, finally tying it in the ninth on Glenn Hubbard's RBI-single off winning reliever John Littlefield.

"It's tough when in my first game back my starting pitcher's older than me," Herzog joked before the game, nodding toward Kaat. And after the see-saw affair Herzog joked again: "A lauder. That's the way they say all our games have been."

"I was very particular about the job I'd take," he said. "This was the first one offered to me — so I took it."

"I don't think we are a last-place club," he said of the Cards, who trail fifth-place Chicago by five games and first-place Montreal by 12 in the NL East. "Things have happened and I'm not blaming anybody. We've just got to right it."

In the 10th inning, Keith Hernandez walked and Ted Simmons, who had homered in the third inning, singled off Larry Bradford before Hendrick greeted Gene Garber with his 12th homer of the year.

Giants 3, Phils 1

For four innings Steve Carlton pitched perfect ball and had a 1-0 lead thanks to Bob Boone's homer. Then the rains came... and came... and came...

And when they finally stopped, Carlton lost his perfect game. And after he left, the Phils lost the game as well when Jack Clark unloaded a two-run homer off Dickie Noles in the eighth inning.

Umpire Bob Engel, the crew chief, insisted he wasn't thinking about Carlton's potential perfect game when he refused to call the game a washout.

"I'd like to see it stop, get the game in, get the gate in, be fair to both sides," he said during the delay. "There are so many things to consider. You're damned if you do and you're damned if you don't."

Reds 6, Padres 6

San Diego appeared to have a 6-2 victory in the bag, especially when it started pouring in the middle of the eighth inning. But the ump's waited out the rain and, more than 1½ hours later, play resumed.

And in the ninth, Cincinnati erupted for four runs, three on Dave Concepcion's bases-loaded double, the other one on Ken Griffey's single. Dave Collins had a two-run homer for the Reds in the fifth while Jerry Turner and Willie Montanez each drove in three runs for the Padres.

Astros 6, Cubs 2

Ken Forsch retired the first 15 Chicago batters he faced, then needed relief help in the sixth inning to pick up the victory. But it was his two hits, one of them a run-scoring single in Houston's five-run third inning, that had him smiling.

"I enjoyed that," he said. "I enjoyed getting those hits as much as anything else."

Testimony Resumes In Slander Suit Vs. Ali

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Testimony resumes today in the $20 million slander lawsuit against former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who denied ever accusing two white promoters of acting out of racial animosity.

Ali was definite on that point Monday during his hour on the witness stand before the six-member, all-white U.S. District Court jury.

However, there was a lot he could not recall about the aftermath of his 1978 Superdome fight with Leon Spinks and the news conference which resulted in this damage suit against him.

"I just can't remember," Ali said to many questions put to him by William Wessel, the lawyer for Jake J. DiMaggio, a wealthy businessman, and City Councilman Philip Ciaccio.

Each of them sued Ali for $10 million. The virtually identical lawsuits are consolidated for this trial before Judge Morey Seal.

They accused Ali of racial slurs and accusations that caused them public embarrassment, ridicule, and damaged their business enterprises and their reputations.

DiMaggio, for instance, contends the quarrel upset then-Gov. Edwin Edwards and wound up costing him the governor's friendship.

The alleged damage took place in New Orleans on Sept. 18, 1978, when Ali strode into a news conference at a hotel to complain about a lawsuit that Ciaccio and DiMaggio had filed against two other promoters of the Ali-Spinks fight, Sherman Copelin and Don Hubbard, both black.

It was a vintage Ali news conference — loud, disjointed, outrageous, unpredictable.

The defense contended Monday that the multi-million dollar slander suit that resulted from it was an attempt to make a mountain out of a molehill.

Pair Takes Putt Victory

Allen Elder and LaVern Mayo combined to shoot an 81 for three rounds and easily win the Monday night Bestball Tournament at the Putt-Putt Golf Course.

John Cadwell and Mike Brown finished second, 19 under par, but eight strokes off the pace. First-round leaders Carl White and Jock Squires had to settle for third place with a 17-under-par total.

READY FOR ACTION — Veteran actor Henry Fonda adjusts his special beekeeper's hat and veil prior to excursion among the bees in the hive behind his Bel-Air community home in Los Angeles. Fonda has been an avid beekeeper for years. (AP Laserphoto)

Henry Fonda Busy As A Bee With His Hives

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He looks as anonymous as any masked beekeeper. But behind the mask is a face familiar to millions of moviegoers, who have seen him play presidents, outlaws and nearly everything in between.

And the unique flavor of the honey from "Hank's Bel-Air Hive" has made beekeeper Henry Fonda almost as famous to local honey-lovers as he is to movie fans for his roles in "Young Mr. Lincoln," "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Return of Frank James," "Advise and Consent" and "Twelve Angry Men."

"There's not a honey on the market like mine," Fonda said in an interview beside his backyard hives. "It has nothing to do with me. It's the variety of forage on my back 40."

Fonda, 75, isn't keeping bees for profit, though he could. He delights in passing out jars of Hank's Bel-Air to his co-workers, as he did recently on the opening night of the play "The Oldest Living Graduate" at the Wilshire Theater in Beverly Hills.

And he always has a jar ready for the knowing hostesses who invite Fonda and his wife, Shirlee, to dine.

"We've noted an upswing in our dinner invitations," he said with a chuckle.

Tuition Will Rise Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Tuition at private colleges during the next school year will increase by about 10 percent, according to the North Carolina Center for Independent Higher Education.

"There's no single new expense involved. It's just that the cost of running a school increases with inflation," said James Olliver, vice president of the center, which represents the state's 30 private elite colleges.

Olliver said the private schools were more susceptible to inflationary trends than public colleges, which can overcome higher costs by increased state support.

At Age 14, He's Horticulturist

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — At the age of 14, Lamar Carter is well on his way to becoming a recognized horticulturist.

He planted his first grapefruit seed at age 5, has written a book on house plants and a frequent guest speaker at garden clubs and on television shows. Lamar also has won several contests in landscaping, gardening and greenhouseing.

As if that was not enough, he has landscaped two homes, a restaurant and the entrance to a school. And, he has started a mail business, called Greenthumb Plants by Lamar Carter.

Kate Jackson In TV Movie Debut

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kate Jackson will star in "Thin Ice" for CBS and Lillian Gish will make her TV movie debut as a guest star.

Jackson plays a school teacher who falls in love with a student and stirs up a community controversy. The movie will be filmed in Charleston, S.C.

"I have a really tough time keeping up with demand," Fonda said. "Waiting in line are my daughter Jane, my son Peter, my sister in Omaha, a cousin in Denver, nieces all over the place, friends all over town and jars set aside for those dinner dates."

He said he took up beekeeping after a colony set up residence in the walls of his house and began "pouring out of cracks in the plaster into our living room."

A beekeeper was summoned to rescue the beleaguered Fondas. After the visiting beekeeper, retired Alhambra Fire Department Battalion Chief John Manke, removed the bees, he gave Fonda a hive and a few pointers.

"You'll have a lot of fun with bees," Fonda recalled Manke saying.

An eight-page pamphlet from Manke led to an extensive library on beekeeping, "and I've been at it ever since," Fonda said.

Author, Actor To Be At Mall

An author and an actor will be on hand at Belks, Carolina East Mall from 4 to 6 p.m. on Friday.

Carol Marsh, author of a children's mystery book, "The Missing Head Mystery," with a locale in eastern North Carolina; and E. B. Ambrose, an actor who plays the lead role in the Bath outdoor drama, "Blackbeard: Knight of the Black Flag," will both be at Belks for the two hour period.

Ms. Marsh will autograph copies of her book, and Ambrose will be in full beard and in his Blackbeard costume. Also, some of the eastern North Carolina children portrayed in Ms. Marsh's book will be on hand to tell how it feels to be a character in a book.

Parents and children, as well as other members of the public, are invited to meet these visitors.

Deaf Family Is Overjoyed

DEVILS LAKE, N.D. (AP) — "Our cup runneth over," Phillip Frelich wrote after watching his daughter win a Tony Award as best actress in a Broadway play.

Frelich, his wife and their nine children are deaf. On Sunday, daughter Phyllis was honored for her performance in "Children of a Lesser God," a play based on her own life as the wife of a man who can hear.

After the show, the telephone at the family home here was cluttered with typed messages of congratulation.

"I couldn't believe it was my daughter up there on television," Frelich wrote in response to written questions. He added that he and his wife and two children still living at home planned to visit New York this summer to see the play, which also took best play honors and a best actor award for co-star John Rubinstein.

Dreary TV Season Underway

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's dreary season has begun in earnest.

It's an insidious thing, the rerun season. In May, networks schedule big movies and first-run episodes of series because, even though the regular season is over, May is a big ratings sweeps period.

Then June arrives, creeping in on the heels of May, gamey reruns dragging from its jaws. Ugh.

June television is irrefutable proof that most network series fare really is vacuous tripe, junk food for work-weary minds not inclined to bother with heartier stuff. Sitting through original episodes of "House Calls" or "Three's Company" is, perhaps, therapeutic, like slugging down a dry martini — it numbs you just a little, and slows the troublesome process of thought.

Sitting through reruns, though, is like volunteering for a lobotomy. You may never think again.

The arrival of June television was recognized at my house one evening last week. I was thumbing my TV flipper-dipper, bouncing the signal from rerun to rerun, when I came upon the image of Tab Hunter on a surfboard.

"Ride The Wild Surf," 1964. Tab Hunter and Fabian and some other guy go to Hawaii to ride the big ones and to chase Barbara Eden and Shelly Fabares and say "Wow, stoked!" and "Boss wave!"

I left it on. Tab and Fabian and the other guy ran from their car to the surf, then back to their cherry woody. They ran to their beach hut, changed clothes, then ran to the beach party. They appeared to be having a high time.

Tab (or was it Fabian?) wrestled with Barbara Eden, who knew judo. Then Fabian shot a pineapple off of some guy's head with a spear gun.

My wife looked at me. I looked at her. "Do you realize," she asked, "that we are sitting here watching 'Ride the Wild Surf'?"

I didn't answer. She reached for the flipper-dipper and turned the set off. I came to, and thanked her.

Thus was born the "Things To Do In The Summer Besides Watch TV" list:

—Read a book. Reading not only stimulates thought, it can soothe and entertain as well. It is said that some people read books even after the fall TV season has begun.

—Run for Congress. Master the art of "Social Liberalism and Economic Conservatism." Even if you don't win, you can impress your friends, and hit them up for campaign contributions.

—Talk. With desire, proper guidance and some effort, the most dulled tube addict can learn to converse. You may find you have something to say.

—Open an "in" Hollywood

Comedian Burned By Butane Lighter

By JACKIE HYMAN
Associated Press Writer
SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — A burn specialist and plastic surgeon treated comedian Richard Pryor for third-degree burns on his chest, back, face and arms after a cigarette lighter exploded and set his clothes on fire and he ran screaming from his house, officials said.

Pryor was in critical but stable condition today with burns over 50 percent of his body.

Firefighters, tipped by a telephone call, had found him Monday night, walking "in a lot of pain" in this community just northwest of Hollywood, officials said.

Dr. Jack Grossman, a burn specialist and plastic surgeon, treated Pryor in the burn unit of Sherman Oaks Community Hospital. He said a cigarette lighter exploded and set fire to the actor's clothing.

Sgt. Hal DeJong of the Los Angeles Police Devonshire Division said officers were called to Pryor's home in Northridge when the accident occurred and were told he had run screaming from the house when his clothes caught fire.

Los Angeles County Fire Department spokesman Ned Chatfield said firefighters received a call from a woman who said she had seen a man on fire running down the street. He said she gave two addresses to check, but they were unable to locate the man at either.

However, while returning to the station, the firefighters saw a badly burned man walking down a street. He was not on fire but "he was in a lot of pain," Chatfield said.

The hospital's assistant executive director, Gary Swaye, said that no friends or relatives were with Pryor when he was admitted to the hospital. However, Sgt. DeJong said officers believed a relative was at the comedian's home when the accident occurred.

Pryor, who was born in 1940, began his career at the age of 7, playing drums with professional musicians. He moved on to night club appearances and television guest spots as a standup comedian.

He was one of the authors of the hit Mel Brooks film, "Blazing Saddles," has made several record albums and starred in such films as "Silver Streak" and "Greased Lightning."

Beauty Co-Host With Ron Ely

NEW YORK (AP) — Dorothy Benham, who landed the Miss America title in 1976, is returning to Atlantic City this year as co-host of the beauty pageant.

Miss Benham will share duties with emcee Ron Ely when the event is televised live on Sept. 6, the Daily News said today. The former Miss Minnesota, now married to a member of the Pittsburgh Penguins hockey team, will sing and dance on the program.

It will be the first pageant for Ely. Long-time host Bert Parks, who was dropped last year, has been signed to emcee the Miss Young International pageant.

Carson Back On Show June 18

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Johnny Carson, who underwent successful treatment for a blocked artery last week, will be back on the "Tonight Show" June 18, says NBC-TV.

The 54-year-old talk show host plans two three-day weeks before beginning his vacation in July, NBC publicist Joe Bleeden said Monday.

Carson took a two-mile walk Monday and felt "fine," Bleeden said. His doctors had worried that surgery might be needed to clear the blocked leg artery, but successfully dilated the vessel with a tiny balloon.

A certain amount of wishful thinking goes into any defense—you predicate your play on partner having certain specific cards. It is a great asset to know what to wish for, and you should never set your sights too high. East was lucky enough to get the long end of the bone, but he ruined everything by asking for too much!

South did not have an easy rebid. In view of the fact that he did not have a single distributional value, he wisely decided to rebid one no trump even though his spade stopper was something less than tenuous.

West cannot be faulted for choosing to lead his fourth-best heart—all too often we have seen contracts handed to declarer because the opening leader felt it incumbent on him to do something "brilliant." East was compelled to shift, and he made what might seem like the natural selection of a club, his long suit. Declarer won, forced out the ace of diamonds and was assured of nine tricks. He eventually made a spade as well for an overtrick.

—Watch television, but leave the set off. Imagine the unfolding of a gripping drama, heroes and heroines wrestling fate and the human condition for a moment of glory or love; or, imagine a comedy without a laugh track, but instead, wry humor (featuring neither precocious children nor toilet jokes) that genuinely makes you laugh.

No, better forget that last one. You may never turn the set on again.

WGUSQ OPLGZSLLDXZ'L DBUXVS

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — OUR ABLE BEAUTICIAN CAN SET BEAUTIFUL COIFFURES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You could find confusion and muddled thinking exists due to planetary reasons and this could be a nonproductive day unless you channel your energies in constructive outlets.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure your regular activities are wisely scheduled and then carry through in a sensible manner. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Obtain important information for a project you are interested in before you go ahead with definite plans. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you handle routine duties in a modern manner, you gain benefits. Study a new plan before making any changes.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't neglect important work early in the day. Try to cooperate more with co-workers. Strive for harmony.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be sure you don't take on any heavy expenditures of money in the evening. Allow time to engage in creative activity.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Postpone going ahead with a new interest you have in mind. Wait until a better time. Evening is fine for recreation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Improve the foundation of your life so you can have more abundance in the days ahead. Get rid of annoying conditions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Iron out any problems with others in a quiet and tactful manner. Seek the company of congenials in the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have to use careful thought in handling monetary affairs today. Use your intuitive faculties for best results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Use a different attitude in handling a puzzling situation and you get better results. Seek the company of friends tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have hidden desires that need more study before you pursue them. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some of your friends may have problems so be sure to give a helping hand. Show others you have practical wisdom.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who comprehends the problems of others and knows instinctively how to solve them. Be sure to give the best education you can afford to bring out this ability. A good life in this chart.

Bankers Attend ECU Workshop

ECU News Bureau
Eighty-four commercial lending bankers from the Carolinas and the Virginias have completed an intensive workshop in loan practices at East Carolina University.

The workshop, cosponsored by Robert Morris Associates' Carolinas-Virginias Chapter, included lectures, case studies, discussions and participant interaction.

Its purpose was to provide bankers who have six to 24 months of commercial lending experience an opportunity to acquire additional skill in the basic fundamentals of sound commercial lending.

Instructors from the ECU faculty and from the banking field directed sessions on types of loans, real estate lending, interpersonal communications, aspects of credit, consumer compliance and small business lending.

Among them were Ben Anderson and Richard Verone of Planters National Bank, Rocky Mount; John Allison of Branch Banking and Trust Co., Wilson; Mickey Dry of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co., Raleigh; James Nicholson and J. Scott Edwards of Central Carolina Bank and Trust Co., Durham; William Barksdale and Virginia Grose of South Carolina National Bank, Columbia, S.C.;

Gaines Mason of First National Bank of South Carolina, Columbia, S.C.; Kenneth Summers of Kanawha Valley Bank, Charleston, West Va.; Stan Forbes of Fidelity American Bank, Lynchburg, Va.;

Ralph Deglio of Bank of Virginia, William Pruitt of Central National Bank and Walter Tucker of United Virginia Bank, all of Richmond; and James Rees, associate professor of speech at East Carolina University.

AP Plans Experiment In Home Computer News

ATLANTA (AP) — An experiment by The Associated Press and some of its member newspapers will allow home computer owners to read the news on their computer screens, AP President Keith Fuller said Monday.

Any individual with a personal computer taking part in the program will be able to read selected news, sports, business and feature stories provided by the newspapers and the AP.

The individual would link his computer to the newspaper computer by telephone.

The experiment will be conducted in association with CompuServe Inc., a Columbus, Ohio, computer firm.

The AP is making the experiment "on behalf of the entire newspaper industry," Fuller said.

"As an industry-owned organization, the AP has but one interest in learning about information retrieval — that is to see that the people who pay our bills are in on the ground floor of this new medium," he said.

Information retrieval is among the hottest topics in the newspaper industry today. There are some predictions that computer-viewer news might someday replace the home-delivered newspaper.

"We have no idea where information retrieval will lead in the future," said Fuller. "We do know that the people who are best qualified to handle information retrieval are the people in the media in the United States today."

Under the experiment, at least 11 newspapers and the AP will begin providing their information to CompuServe's computers in Columbus.

Each paper will experiment for a six-month period, providing news, features and advertising material in its community."

The first of the newspapers — the Columbus Dispatch — has already been chosen. The other newspapers will be chosen to provide a cross-section of markets across the country, said Fuller.

There would be an initial charge of between $15 and $29.95 for home computer owners, who would thereafter be charged $5 for each hour's use of the system, said CompuServe President Jeffrey Wilkins.

Fuller made the announcement at a news conference at the American Newspaper Publishers Association Production Management Conference.

Joining him at the conference were: Jack Tarver, vice chairman of Cox Enterprises, which publishes The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution, and chairman of the board of directors of the AP; David Bowen and James W. Mangan, vice presidents of the AP; Robert Johnson, vice president of the Columbus Dispatch; and Wilkins.

"The AP, owned by newspapers, will never sell news directly to the consumer. It has to go through newspapers. But our job is to see that the industry, itself, is brought in on the ground floor of this new medium," Fuller said.

"Where it goes, no one knows. Whether it will ever replace the conventional media that we know today, no one knows," Fuller said.

The AP is the world's oldest and largest news gathering organization, serving more than 1,370 newspapers and 3,681 radio and television stations in the United States.

CompuServe is an established national remote computing services company, recently acquired by H&R Block Inc. It also provides computer programing and games through an existing personal computing network available in more than 250 cities.

The experiment with CompuServe is one of five information retrieval projects in which the AP presently participates.

The others are in Miami with Knight-Ridder where 150 homes can gain access to AP information through a TV set; with Mead Data Corp. and its news library service; with Dow Jones & Co. by providing current stock quotations for its news retrieval services; and by the AP Political Databank, a constantly updated events file on the 1980 national and state political campaigns, with the New York Times Co.

Fuller said the information gained through the experiment with CompuServe and the member newspapers will "be available to any AP member anywhere. So no one who is outside the actual participation will be in any way starting from way back because the information will all be for you."

To Represent Pitt In Statewide Events

Two 4-H'ers have been selected to represent Pitt County in statewide 4-H tractor operators and automotive driving events. Kelly Wall, 16, of Ayden, will vie for honors at state elimination events July 21 at State 4-H Club Congress at NCSU. Ken Worthington, also of Ayden, will compete at state elimination events to be held June 17 at District 4-H Activity Day in Edenton.

Announcement of the winners was made by Dale Panero, associate extension agent, 4-H.

Wall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Earl Wall. Worthington is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kinsey Worthington. He has been a 4-H member for three years.

Runners-up in the local 4-H event were: first runner-up, tractor driving, Tom Johnson of Fountain; first runner-up in auto skill driving, Kelly Ward.

In the statewide contest the county winners will be competing for trips to the eastern U.S. 4-H Engineering Event at the State Fair of Virginia in Richmond Sept. 22-24. Top 4-H'ers from 25 states will participate in the three-day regional event conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service with the assistance of National 4-H Council.

Members of the Winterville Jaycees who volunteered their time and efforts to conduct the tractor driving contest were: Robin Abbott, Sam Allen, David Hooks, Linwood Hines and Ralph Vincent. Other volunteers were Patrolman Hugh Benson of the Greenville

Police Department, David Kivette, Hilda Worthington, and Kenneth Johnson, all 4-H leaders. Charles Waller was responsible for providing the tractors used in the event.

All participants in the eastern regional at Richmond will take a written examination. In addition, tractor operators will be tested on parts identification and on skills in both two-wheel and four-wheel driving events. Small engines participants will be scored on parts identification and a visual presentation.

Set Days Of Honor

Mayor Donald McGlohon proclaimed the 21 days, Flag Day, June 14, through Independence Day as a period to honor America.

The story of the origin of our national flag parallels with the origin of our country, the proclamation explained. It pointed out, "As our country received its birthright from the people who were gathered on these shores to found a new nation, so did the pattern of the stars and stripes rise from several origins in the mists of antiquity emblazoned on the standards of the growing republic."

"The things that the flag stands for were created by the experiences of a great people," proclaimed President Wilson in another age. "Everything that it stands for was written by their lives. The flag is the embodiment, not of sentiment, but of history. It represents the experiences made by men and women, experiences of those who do and live under the flag."

To focus the attention of the American people on their country's character, heritage and future well-being, the Congress has set aside the 21 days from Flag Day through Independence Day as a period to honor America.

A nation's flag reflects the country's principles, it's good name, it's history, it was noted. Like any other symbol, the American flag has special meaning in the minds of those who look at it.
