639 Are Graduated From High Schools Of County

Marching in to the familiar "Pomp and Circumstance," Pitt County high school seniors received their diplomas during graduation exercises held last night at the four county high schools.

Six hundred thirty-nine seniors, 150 from D.H. Conley, 176 from North Pitt, 132 from Ayden-Grifton, and 171 from Farmville Central, listened to speakers from each of their classes discuss the implications of the past 12 years and the possibilities of the next 12.

At North Pitt, Donna Grace Brown addressed the subject of beginnings. "We the class of 1980, who stand tonight at the junction between a happy past and an unknown future," said Brown, "have reached not the end, but another commencement in our lives."

"As we leave North Pitt High School to start lives for ourselves, we not only have an obligation to ourselves, but to our parents, fellowmen and our country," added the speaker. Brown named knowledge, ability and confidence as prerequisites to success.

LaVorn Teel, also at North Pitt, spoke to her class about gratitude. "To the parents we extend our deepest gratitude," she began. "They have inspired us to go to school by teaching us that education is the key to success." Teel also expressed gratitude to teachers, administration and staff and to friends and underclassmen. Speaking about teachers, she said, "The success of our future lives will depend on what they have taught us."

D.H. Conley speaker Eleanor Avery spoke of the future, quoting the philosopher Voltaire and the poet Robert Frost. "Tomorrow we shall each begin choosing the paths we shall follow in the future," commented Avery. "There are many paths to choose: college, work, marriage or a combination of these." Avery used Frost's words "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I — I took the one less traveled by, and that has made all the difference in the world" to describe the situation the class of 1980 finds themselves in. Said the speaker, "To me, that means that we, as a graduating class at the beginning of this new era, have a special challenge.

"We must ignore past failures and do our best to preserve our lifestyles," she added.

Jolinda Rouse spoke of "A New Awakening." "Upon entering high school as freshmen, we were eager for the future, especially the night of our graduation; yet we possessed feelings of apprehension for what awaited us — the time when we would grow and accept new challenges," she said. "The experience of high school has transformed once children of the '70's into searching young adults of the '80's."

Lynn Chappelle and Shirley McArthur from Farmville Central were the principal speakers there, sharing the topic of "growth." Said Chappelle, "As we enter life for the first time on our own, we will find that many different situations are going to confront us. There will be times when we will feel as if our world has come to an end — times when we will have hit bottom. But there will also be

Target Budget Has Congress' Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four weeks behind schedule, Congress has adopted a $613.6 billion 1981 balanced budget. But many policymakers believe the deepening recession is already pushing the tentative spending plan back into the red.

Besides projecting the first balanced federal budget in 12 years, the approved spending plan allocates $153.7 billion for defense, $3.2 billion more than President Carter requested. That figure contains the biggest peacetime military increase ever, a jump of $18 billion over the current year.

Partly to pay for that hike, the budget recommends cuts in an array of domestic programs, including public service jobs, food stamps, Saturday mail, mass transit, grants to local police departments, state revenue sharing and urban aid.

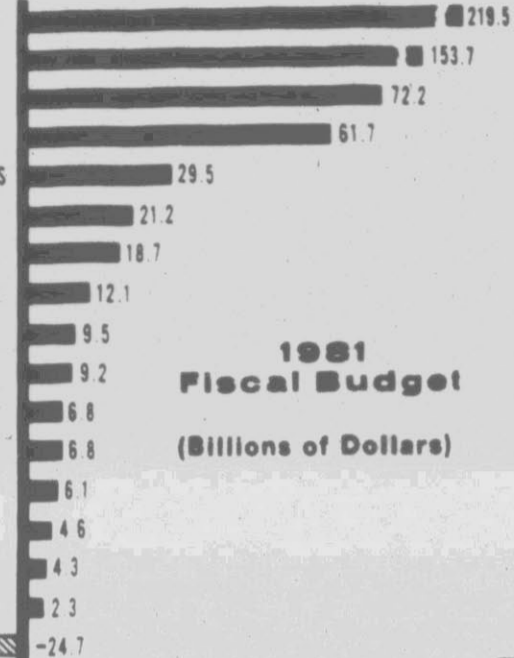

Within hours of each other Thursday, the House and Senate approved the budget, ending a long gains-vs.-butter dispute that has blocked action on emergency spending for a wide variety of government programs.

The House, relying almost entirely on Democratic votes, passed the budget 205-195. The Senate, in a bipartisan show of support, then gave it final approval, 61-26. Carter's signature was not required.

The House, which rejected an almost identical budget two weeks ago, reversed itself after Democratic leaders warned that failure to pass a spending plan would be seen as an inability to govern.

"We are running out of time," declared Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., House Budget Committee chairman.

Carter and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., who opposed the first budget for giving too much to defense and too little to social programs, supported the slightly revised compromise.

The target budget includes unprecedented instructions to congressional committees to report out within three weeks legislation to save $6.4 billion and raise $4.2 billion in new revenues.

Approval of the target 1981 budget, coming four weeks after a self-imposed May 15 deadline, leaves Congress little time to rest before work begins in mid-July on a binding budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

During the summer, Congress must make new judgments on how severe the recession will be and whether it will wipe out the target budget's slim $200 million surplus, throwing the spending plan into deficit.

Government economists say each rise of one percentage point in the jobless rate adds between $20 billion and $25 billion to the federal budget deficit by cutting revenues and driving up spending on unemployment benefits and food stamps.

Congressional economists are forecasting a 7.5 percent jobless rate in fiscal 1981. However, figures for May show the recession has already pushed unemployment to 7.8 percent.

Noting these figures, O'Neill said this week that he "can't conceive" how the 1981 budget can stay in balance.

House Republicans expressed similar doubts, charging that describing the budget as balanced was dishonest and arguing that tax cuts were needed to stem the recession.

The revised 1980 budget would permit $572.6 billion in current-year spending, $25 billion more than was contained in the budget approved last fall. The deficit would climb to $47 billion, $17.2 billion higher than earlier projected.

NEEDS PLACE TO RENT

The REAL Crisis Intervention Center has asked Hotline to appeal for a place to rent for a young woman and her two young children who can afford to pay no more than $100 monthly.

The woman has an income of less than $6000 yearly and must support her children, one of whom is legally blind. She would like to continue to keep three family pets, if the owner would agree, because she believes the pets provide stability for her children. Local realtors have so far been unsuccessful in helping her locate a suitable residence.

Anyone who believes he or she can help is asked to call 756-4752.

AGORAPHOBIA FEEDBACK

Dr. C. Lewis Ravaris, in response to the June 2 Hotline item on help for agoraphobia provided through a Charlotte counselor's office, has told us that he is in the process of setting up a no-fee program for treatment of agoraphobic anxiety. He said he is especially interested in helping persons who have experienced such severe panic reactions out in public that they never or very seldom leave home. He and his staff are willing to make home visits to contact these people if they only can learn about them.

Dr. Ravaris is Professor in and Vice-Chairman of the East Carolina University School of Medicine. His office phone number is 758-6812.

City Council Approved Eight Items At Meet

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council gave its approval to eight items last night following public hearings, including four rezoning matters, two applications for special use permits, and a request for placement of four mobile structures.

The public hearings were among a variety of items considered by the Council during what amount to one of the board's more routine meetings, in terms of controversy, in recent months.

Council members followed the recommendation of the City-County Planning and Zoning Commission in voting to rezone, from RA-20 to Neighborhood Commercial (CN), some .73 acres at the corner of NC 33 and Port Terminal Road, as well as the adjacent properties (Branch's Trading Post and an auto shop).

City planning director Bobby Roberson explained that the initial request involved rezoning of the .73 acres to Highway Commercial (CH), but the planning board agreed with a staff recommendation that CN be considered instead for the tract and the adjoining properties.

Roberson mentioned that vacant Highway Commercial property already exists along the highway, including 1,000 feet of frontage, that has attracted no development. The restaurant at the corner of Port Terminal Road and NC 33 is currently a non-conforming use under RA-20 and would be in conformance under CN or CH zones, he said.

The planning official suggested that the area lends itself more to CN development than CH. He said it is his opinion that property on both sides of the highway should be CN.

Attorney Charles Vincent, representing Cliff's Seafood & Oyster Bar, noted that the original request sought CH zoning and the property is adjacent to CH.

While CN would make the restaurant a conforming use and allow for rebuilding in case the structure is lost to fire or other means, he said the petitioner feels that CH "would seem to be a more proper zone."

The attorney, saying that CN zoning is too restrictive, suggested that the city should re-examine the restrictive nature of local zones.

Council member Judy Greene, in offering the motion to rezone to CN, observed that it appeared that the petitioner would not be adversely affected by CN in lieu of CH. For planning purposes, she said that CN would be in the best interest of the city.

Mount St. Helens Again Blows Its Top; 'Looked Like A-Bomb'

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens thundered into its third big blow during the night, shooting a plume of steam and volcanic ash 10 miles high and dusting this city and neighboring Portland, Ore., with the heaviest fallout yet.

No deaths or injuries were reported, but as Friday the 13th dawned, a million people were warned to stay indoors or wear masks if they ventured out. One tiny logging town, pelted with pumice the size of marbles, was evacuated.

Mayor Connie McReady declared a limited state of emergency in Portland, which lies just across the Columbia River and 40 miles southwest of the volcano, and imposed a speed limit of 15 mph. Winds from the opposite direction at high altitudes carried a light sprinkling of dust 100 miles north to Seattle.

"It looks like an atom bomb," an observer in a U.S. Forest Service plane radioed as the volcano exploded Thursday night for the third time in a month. "It's very, very black ... It's still booming, it's really booming."

Scientists said the eruption could become the worst since May 18, when the volcano blanketed six states with ash and claimed the lives of dozens of people.

Portland International Airport was closed to traffic as ash-laden rain cut visibility. Within three hours of the eruption, a quarter-inch of the powdery grit had accumulated in Hazelwood, just north of Vancouver.

In Vancouver, the Clark County sheriff's office halted patrols and was making only emergency runs.

There were numerous reports of minor traffic accidents and vehicles stalling after ash clogged their air filters.

Pebbles of pumice up to an inch in diameter were reported falling in Cougar, a tiny logging town 10 miles south of the mountain. Cowitz County sheriff's deputies said people were being evacuated from the restricted "red zone," an area within a 20-mile radius of the peak.

Twenty people at Cougar were evacuated, but another 20 at a sporting goods store just down the Lewis River from the logging town were forced to stay put until the ash fallout subsided.

"It's a major eruption," said Pete Rowley, a U.S. Geological Survey geologist. He said the plume from the southwestern Washington mountain, first reported at 8:45 p.m. PDT by an Eastern Airlines pilot, rose as high as 52,000 feet and was the greatest activity since a May 25 blast that stranded thousands of Memorial Day travelers.

By 4 a.m. PDT today, the plume had dropped to about 16,000 feet.

Pitt's Commissioners Begin Study Of Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday began their detailed study of the proposed 1980-1981 budget which, as recommended by County Manager Reginald Gray, totals some $25.74 million — down $1.45 million from the current year's budget and $2.14 million less than what the various departments and agencies have requested for the coming year.

In his budget message to the board, Gray said, "the budget recommended for your consideration has been prepared from a basic necessity standpoint," adding that "it is a budget with no frills, and is based upon the guidance you... gave me when the budget process was begun."

Gray said his recommendations include a 10 percent cost of living raise for employees which, "was what I thought the Legislature was considering for State employees." However, he said, "after reading accounts of what the State is planning to do, with an average of 12.9 percent for State employees... I would like to recommend that one percent of salaries be set aside for incentive raises," although the one percent has not been included in the budget totals.

Capital projects in the budget include the continuation of the solid waste container site program through revenue sharing funds, and renovations to the courthouse, after county offices move to the new office building off West Fifth Street, to be financed from Facility Fees funds.

Gray's recommendations also call for five new people in data processing, to be paid for primarily from work done for Pitt Memorial Hospital, five new workers in the Solid Waste program (one of them transferring from Buildings and Grounds), a net reduction of three persons from the Department of Social Services, although an agency attorney and other personnel would be added, and a reduction of two persons from the Buildings and Grounds staff (one the

Work Study Program Involved 52 Students

Fifty two students participated in the Work Study Program at Pitt Community College during the past 12 months, according to a survey completed by college officials.

The program provides the student an opportunity to earn a portion of his or her college expenses by working on campus up to 20 hours per week during the academic year. All students worked under the supervision of the faculty and staff in accordance with their requests for student assistance. Salaries in the program are funded 80 percent by the federal government and 20 percent from local funds.

"PCC has utilized this program for the past eight years," Edgar Boyd, dean of students, explained. "It is the most beneficial type of financial aid because it is based on the student's financial need and the work assistance needs of the college. It has enabled many students to complete their education who otherwise would not have made it."

"Monies are paid directly to the students as long as they make satisfactory academic progress and satisfactorily perform their campus jobs," Boyd added. "During the past year, the 52 students worked an average of 10 hours per week while receiving a total of $36,468. Forty eight were employed in clerical and clerical related work, two as laboratory assistants and two with the maintenance department."

According to PCC President Dr. William Fulford, Jr., the Work Study program fills a void in state and local funding for support services plus it frees support money that is needed for instruction. Fulford estimates that it would take eight to ten full-time clerical and at least one maintenance person to re-

Life As It's Lived

The Hours Are Lousy, Fringe Benefits Great

By GAIL MICHAELS

One of the more common contemporary platitudes is that parents are the only workers in our society who perform an extremely important job without extensive preparation.

It would be more correct to say that parents are the only workers who must endure on-the-job training under someone who can't even focus on his fingers, much less on his objectives.

Contrary to popular wisdom, there is no way to alter this situation. Preparing for parenthood before the fact is simply impossible. What's worse, you've got to start over with each baby.

I'm not sure why this is so. I think it's because the preservation of the human race depends on the poor memories of parents. Those first three months with a new baby are like undergoing surgery without anesthesia. The experience is simply too painful to remember.

This tendency to forget is exacerbated by wishful thinking. Mothers who haven't forgot enough are always eager to listen to mothers who have. For instance, when I expressed some concern about how I would find time to write with a new baby around, a friend of mine told me I could always do what she did—put the kid in a playpen and feed him junk mail.

Fat chance. But I wanted to believe, just as I wanted to believe that two Megs couldn't happen to the same family. I figured that one baby who fell asleep only while being waltzed around the room to a Nat King Cole record was enough. My second child should in all fairness be undemanding. Little did I know that 3 a.m. social hours, colic, and a one-hour feeding schedule were locked into my genetic code.

So is a one hour laundry schedule. No sooner do I get everything washed than Zachary spits up. We've had a few days when everything from his bassinett mattress to me has been dressed in receiving blankets. At least I've learned not to burp him while sitting on the edge of my bed.

"I just don't remember Meg spitting up like this," Phillip said after his second milk bath of the day. "Do you?"

"You're asking a woman who required three bath demonstrations at the hospital. I don't remember anything. I'd even forgot which direction the diaper pins go in."

"I think that's because changing his pants is a totally new experience. If I don't learn to keep a diaper between us, I'm going to have to get a shower cap."

"I just wish I weren't so tired. I know I wasn't this tired with Meg."

"You weren't this old either."

I stuck out my tongue. "It's not age that makes the difference. It's big sisters. Every time I got him down for a nap today, Meg came in and rotated his head to see if he was asleep. And that was after I was up at 12, 2, 4, and 6 for his wee hour feedings."

"And I was up at 1, 3, and 5 to walk him."

We looked wearily down at the culprit. He smiled back at us.

"One thing's for sure," Phillip said. "The hours on this job may be lousy, but the fringe benefits are unforgettable."

Iranian Student Quiet Graduate

By PETER MATTIAICE

Associated Press Writer ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Iranian student Tina Bahadori has quietly graduated from Atlantic City High School, listening instead of speaking at the ceremonies because of a protest by her teachers.

Wearing a white cap and gown, a red tassel and the gold tassel of an honors student, Miss Bahadori sat in football field bleachers Thursday as a classmate, replacing her on the dais, described America as "the land of dreams (that) promotes the rights of the individual."

Miss Bahadori, 18, a straight-A student and fifth in her class of 550, had won a speaking contest to give one of two valedictory addresses.

But she withdrew after 80 of the school's 140 teachers signed a petition protesting her selection as a graduation speaker.

"She wanted no notoriety drawn to herself and to her family. That's why she requested to withdraw," said school superintendent Dr. Jack Eisenstein. "If the girl wanted to speak, she would have had every right to speak."

History teacher Theodore Manos, 39, launched the petition drive because he felt an Iranian should not address the graduates while 53 Americans are being held hostage in Iran.

Miss Bahadori, who had attended the high school for 18 months on a student visa, was shielded from photographers and reporters by gowned classmates. She refused to speak with reporters.

There had been "extra security precautions" for the graduation, but Eisenstein would not describe them.

Miss Bahadori will attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology this fall.

Her close friend and replacement, honors student Helene Plotka, 18, spoke on the theme originally given to Miss Bahadori, "Hold Fast to Dreams."

"Yes, America does afford the opportunity to dream—perhaps more than any other country in the world," Miss Plotka said. "The dreamers might sometimes be misunderstood, the dreams sometimes mistrusted, but the dream of America remains."

Miss Plotka, along with many teachers and students, protested the faculty's petition. But counter-petitions urging Miss Bahadori to give her speech came too late.

Students Recognized

GAINESVILLE, FLA.—The University of Florida's College of Health Related Professions recognized 14 outstanding students during its annual honors convocation at the Health Center held recently.

One of those honored was Mark Howard Waugh of Greenville, a doctoral candidate in clinical psychology. Waugh received two awards—the Florence Shafer Memorial Award, recognizing excellence in psychotherapeutic counseling; and the Molly Harrower Award for excellence in psychodiagnostic assessment. Waugh is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William Waugh.

The University of Florida college trains allied health specialists in medical technology, speech and hearing disorders, dietetics, occupational therapy, physical therapy, rehabilitation counseling, clinical psychology and health systems administration.

Michael Landon, Wife, Separate

NEW YORK (AP)—Actor Michael Landon, who has been in some of television's most popular families, has separated from his wife of 17 years, says the New York Daily News.

The News said today that Landon has moved to an apartment and his wife, Lynn, has taken their four children to Spain for a vacation. The newspaper quoted an unidentified family friend as saying the separation was an experiment and the couple planned to try weekend reconciliations when Mrs. Landon returns.

College officials stated that the 20 percent local matching funds necessary to operate the program for the next 12 months will amount to $10,714. This amount is required locally before the federal government will provide its 80 percent of the total Work Study budget.

Plea-Bargain Dismissal In Stranglings

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In a brief court hearing, the last 16 charges against confessed "Hillside Strangler" Kenneth Bianchi have been dismissed as part of a plea bargain saving him from the death penalty.

Superior Court Judge William Keene dropped the charges Thursday—five counts of murder, 10 of conspiracy to commit murder and one of pimping—during a 10-minute session Thursday, said Deputy District Attorney Roger Kelly.

Bianchi had been sentenced to life imprisonment last October after pleading guilty to five counts of murder, one of sodomy and one of conspiracy in connection with the "Hillside Strangler" deaths of 10 young women between October 1977 and February 1977.

In exchange for the guilty plea and an agreement to testify against his cousin, Angelo Buono, prosecutors agreed not to seek the death penalty and to drop the remaining charges.

It was not known if Bianchi had testified against Buono during a preliminary hearing because the session was closed to the public and all participants were under a gag order.

Kelly said Bianchi still must testify at Buono's full trial if the case reaches that stage. Bianchi will remain at the county jail until proceedings against Buono are completed, at which time he will be sent to a state prison.

Bianchi also faces two consecutive life terms in Washington state, where he was convicted in the deaths of two students.

Meanwhile, a local television reporter, partly reversing an earlier stand, agreed to let the judge in the Buono case view parts of an interview with one of two former prostitute who are witnesses in the case.

Couple Weds In Garden Rites

MRS. GLENN MAURICE ORMOND

MAURY — Miss Barbara Dean Whichard and Glenn Maurice Ormond were united in marriage Sunday at 5 p.m. in a double ring garden ceremony on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper E. Ormond, parents of the bridegroom. Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Whichard of Greenville are parents of the bride.

The ceremony was officiated by the Rev. F. E. Tootle of New Bern.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mickey Terry of Greenville. Ms. Wyna Payton of Greenville sang "Sunrise Sunset" and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Willie Mae Hammond of Greenville sang "One Day At A Time" and Ms. Linda Reid of Greensboro sang "We Both Deserve Each Others Love."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride selected a formal gown of ivory bridal satin and galloon lace fashioned with a princess styled scooped neckline. The empire bodice gown featured long fitted sleeves of galloon lace trimmed with a scalloped edge. The gown was accented with a detachable cape of matching lace with a scalloped edge. The bride's mother selected an ivory two-piece polyester suit with long fitted sleeves and the mother of the bridegroom selected a mint green eyelet cotton dress. Both wore corsages of roses and baby's breath. The grandmother of the bridegroom was given an orchid.

A reception was held in the East Greene Elementary School cafeteria which was decorated in pink and green.

The bridal table was covered with an ivory lace cloth and centered with pink and white carnations, baby's breath and greenery. Mrs. Dianne Scott, cousin of the bridegroom, and Ms. Brenda Gray presided at the guest book and distributed rice bags. Ms. Annie Harris received gifts. Mrs. Noah Reid served wedding cake and punch was poured by Ms. Marylene Dunn and Mrs. Georgia Jackson.

For a wedding trip, the bride changed into a two-piece ivory suit of polyester and cotton. She carried flowers lifted from her cascade.

An after-rehearsal party was given at the home of the parents of the bridegroom.

Dear Abby

Husband Is Open-Minded

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I suppose you've had dozens of letters like this, but here goes. My wife of 18 years came to me about a month ago and said, "I've been in love with another man for a year and I want to be with him as much as I can, so I'm leaving you."

It turns out the guy is well-heeled, married and has a family. He isn't sure he wants to leave his family, but he can manage to get away from home about three nights a week, so my wife moved into their "love nest," which he provided.

I am now baching it with my teen-age son. My wife comes home every Friday and goes back on Sunday. She says she's not sure what she wants — it's still too soon to know. She claims she still cares for me and isn't sure she wants a divorce, but that she is happiest when she is with this other guy. I have tried to be open-minded about it, but it's tearing me up inside and my ego is down to zero. Any advice?

DEAR OPEN: Don't be so "open-minded" that your brains fall out. Give "Seesaw, Marjorie Daw" a deadline to decide which man she wants. Tell her you don't want a part-time wife. And whether or not there will be a divorce shall not be decided by her alone, because you may want to be free to fall in love with someone else. And be tough!

DEAR ABBY: I can't understand why my husband, who never thanks me for anything, always says "thank you" after a love session.

Somehow, I can't feel good about it. Am I wrong? We've been happily married almost 50 years.

DEAR PITTSBURGH: Never question his thank-you, just accept and appreciate it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: I found this lovely Irish prayer (author unknown) displayed prominently on the desk of Al Zitnick, the faithful Jewish "schleppercaun" who sorts the Dear Abby mail:

"Take time to work,
It is the price of success.
Take time to think,
It is the source of power.
Take time to play,
It is the secret of perpetual youth.
Take time to read,
It is the foundation of wisdom.
Take time to be friendly,
It is the road to happiness.
Take time to love and be loved,
It is the privilege of the gods.
Take time to share,
Life is too short to be selfish.
Take time to laugh,
Laughter is the music of the soul."

will return to Greenville to complete her studies at ECU. She will also continue as dinner pianist for the King and Queen Restaurant.

Clark Punished Himself

The wayward Ramsey Clark has returned home, apparently self-satisfied with his unauthorized trip to Tehran. . . and President Carter in an interview said he was inclined to order the prosecution of Clark.

Carter called the Clark trip "damaging to the nation's foreign policy and to carrying out sanctions against Iran."

Clark could be taken to court under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act.

The former attorney general attended a Tehran conference on United States "crimes", offered to exchange himself for the hostages, and was virtually hooted out of the country.

Now he returns home, presumably expecting a hero's welcome which hasn't been forthcoming.

No one can be happy with the way things are progressing in efforts to free the hostages, but the Ramsey Clark episode might well be the most laughable at this point.

We frankly don't care if Clark is taken to court or not. He has already reduced himself, a former attorney general of the United States, to a pitiful level.

Iran Must Look West

The United States obviously doesn't have much to say in Iranian affairs these days, but even Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is now admitting that his revolution is threatened by internal problems. He called on forces in the country to mend their differences on the choice of a premier and the fate of the American hostages.

Obviously internal problems are serious in Iran, and the Russians are standing by ready to pick up the pieces. It is ironic but Iran has no place to turn but the United States if it wants to stay independent of Soviet domination. That won't happen in a few days, of course, but hopefully somewhere there exists the leadership in Iran which recognizes the Soviet threat.

THIS AFTERNOON The New Approach

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — As various citizens' groups around the nation and in North Carolina have discovered in their efforts to force state and local governments to trim taxes, this approach is not working to bring runaway governmental growth under control.

being tested which would impose on government strict limitations to spending, or growth, or both. Mentioned are such approaches as a limit to growth in personnel pegged to job growth in the private sector; bans on borrowing or deficit spending; limits on budget growth based upon private sector economic performance.

state legislatures will consider proposals this year to limit state or local spending; a citizens initiative to accomplish the same end is qualified for the November election in Massachusetts; 16 states have proposals to cut the income tax on the legislative agenda; and three states have citizen elections slated to cut income taxes.

BILL NOBLITT

State legislatures in 20 states are considering property tax reductions while nine others will have elections on that question.

Initiatives by citizens in Utah and Arizona are underway to remove the sales tax from food while 13 state legislatures face proposals to remove them from certain items.

In three states voters will

It is now clear that taxpayer associations will turn their attention to ways of clamping a lid on government expansion, mostly through rigid limitations on spending.

The movement started in California with the famous Proposition 13 voter initiative slashing property taxes, and has rapidly spread across the nation. Government officials who at first dismissed as unique to California the citizen revolt have since come to realize that, indeed a large number of taxpayers are fed up in all states.

In North Carolina, citizen organizations have realized that to bring such limits into being it is first essential to gain for private citizens some means of directly influencing the lawmaking mechanism. Thus, a major push is coming for initiative legislation which would allow citizens to petition for a statewide election on proposals which, if approved, would become law. This would bypass the political structure of the General Assembly which is the only lawmaking body at the state level.

A host of other activities are underway across the nation, and a survey by the Coalition of American Public Employees as reported by the National League of Cities shows action in 41 states.

Limits
The survey demonstrated that even though tax cuts remain a priority at this time, emphasis is moving strongly toward limits on spending.

Among the activity: 26

A number of tax-cutting measures have been pushed by citizens, or even by elected officials, in the wake of that phenomenon.

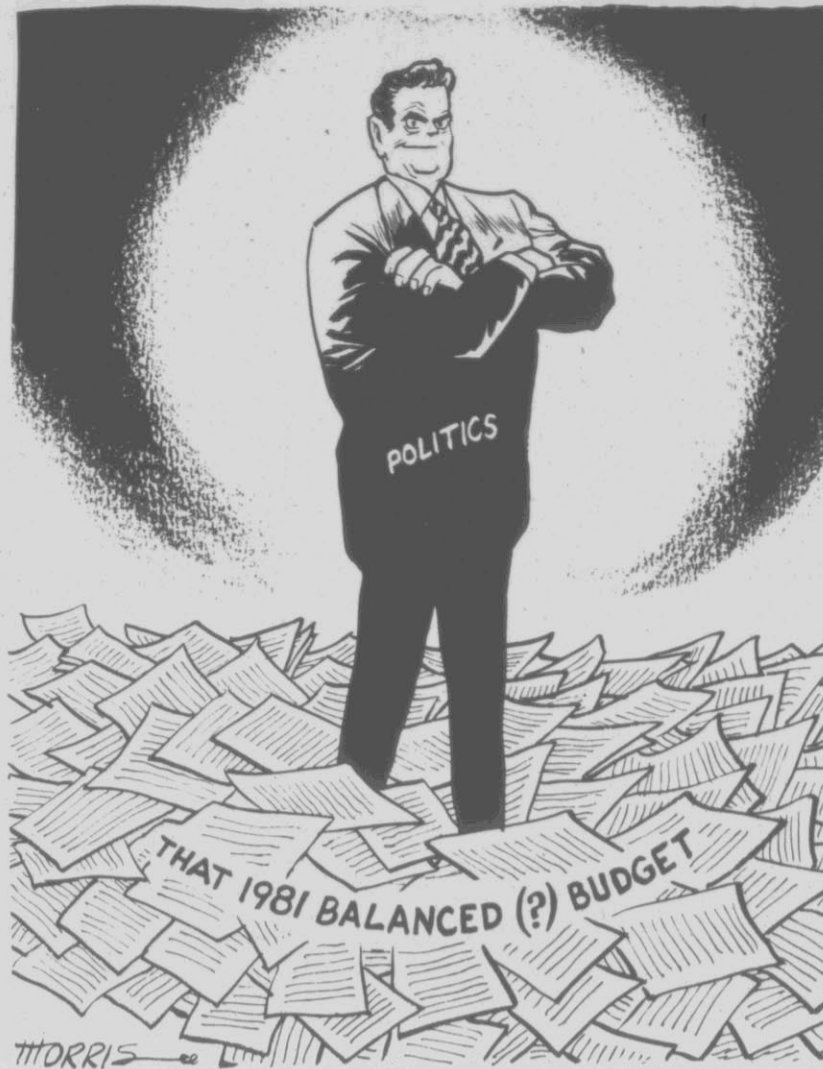

Upward
But it has quickly become apparent that tax cuts of various sorts are not doing the desired job. Rapid growth in the economy coupled with rampant inflation has meant that even though rates are reduced, values of property or income escalate to the degree that government continues to get more and more money.

And, it has become just as apparent that government at all levels intends to spend every dime it can get its hands on.

Typically, government in recent years has been outstripping the private sector in growth of employees, programs, spending, benefits for employees and almost any other standard measure available.

And so the citizen movement has begun to take on a new tone. Techniques are

The Letters To Losers

WASHINGTON — We always hear about the presidential candidates who made it. But there isn't much to say about the ones who didn't. What happens to them? They get letters like this:

"Dear Gov. Connally:
"I happen to be the owner of a pizza joint in Green Forest, S.C. During your campaign you came into my pizza parlor and one of your staff said, 'Governor, this is a great ethnic photo opportunity. Eat a pizza.'

"You said it was the best pizza you ever ate in your life and slapped me on the back. That's when we had our picture taken. I didn't give you a bill at the time because I figured if you ever made President' I could put the photo in the window. But since you didn't even get close, the food costs to $10.90 and the beer cost $15.75.

"I would appreciate a check as soon as possible. Pizza doesn't grow on trees.
"Arrivederci,
"Giovanni Valenti"

ART BUCHWALD

"Dear Sen. Baker:
"While you were visiting the Sioux Indians, our chief presented you with a headdress and made you an honorary member of the tribe. He told the council that if you were elected, you would remember this gesture of goodwill, and would look kindly on the Sioux when we came to Washington for redress.

"Since you dropped out of the race, we would like the headdress back so we can present it either to President Carter or Ronald Reagan. These Indian headdresses are hard to come by, and the chief made a mistake by giving it to you so early in the primaries. You can send it United Parcel as we don't trust the mails.

"Red Sunset, Chairman, "Sioux Political Action Committee."

"Dear Mr. Bush:
"First of all I think you got a raw deal in New Hampshire when Ronald Reagan grabbed the microphone away from you and said he had paid for it.

"I wonder if you have cashed my check for $500 yet? If you haven't, please let me know as I could use the money for something else. I sent it to you after you picked up all that momentum in Iowa. I'm not going to ask you what went wrong, because you're probably still trying to figure it out yourself.

"If you've already cashed my check, perhaps you could have your treasurer send me one of his. I don't care where it comes from as long as I get my $500 back.
"Best regards,
"Arnie Schmidlapp"

"Dear Congressman Crane:
"We are planning our American Express card commercials for next year — the ones that show a person saying, 'You don't know me, but I carry an American Express card everywhere I go, etc.' etc." We were wondering if you would consider being one of our unknown politicians for next spring's campaign. If you are interested, we will send you a contract and tell you when you are on the schedule.

"Yours truly,
"Karl Malden"

"Dear Sen. Dole:
"I understand that you have withdrawn your name from nomination at the Republican National Convention in Detroit. If this is true, does this mean I have no chance of becoming secretary of agriculture? The reason I'm asking is that my wife has been house-hunting in Washington, and I better

A Familiar GOP Trait

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Only days before the Republican "unity" dinner in Los Angeles tonight, Ronald Reagan faced advice from his oldest, most trusted political associates that he renege on his promise to retain William Brock as Republican national chairman through the 1980 campaign.

The unity dinner was billed as "a laying on of hands" in which Reagan and Brock at the head table, would confirm each other's legitimacy. But it could result in fists, not hands, considering Republican infighting all too reminiscent of the bad old days of the 1960s.

The advisers who say Brock must go are so influential that it would be a major surprise if Reagan kept him. But Brock's fate is less important than the mess made of handling him. That Reagan as prospective presidential nominee neither firmly retained Brock nor cleanly severed him is evidence that his political operation is by no means honed to run against Jimmy Carter.

Simultaneously, Reaganites have been waging a poorly coordinated, consistently unsuccessful campaign to purge anti-Reagan state party leaders. The causes are not policy disagreements but ancient feuds buttressed by cultural differences. Contrary to greatly exaggerated reports of the Grand Old Party united by a passion for victory, these look like the same old Republicans expert at snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. Perhaps fearful of losing to Carter in November, these Reaganites want to consolidate party power now.

When Brock journeyed May 3 to Reagan's California home, such blood-letting seemed likely to yield to good sense in the interest of defeating President Carter. Nobody had ever accused Brock of pro-Reagan passions, but now he conceded Reagan's nomination.

A deal was struck on the Pacific shores. Brock, highly esteemed in the party's non-Reagan establishment, would be retained as chairman through the national election. Reagan would assign his own operatives to Republican national headquarters.

But nobody pinned down the fate of Ben Cotten, the tough Washington lawyer who is Brock's deputy chairman and far less an admirer of Reagan than even his chief. The Reaganites thought Cotten would go; Brock recalled no such commitment. Returning to Washington, Brock began to feel like a figurehead at national headquarters with Reagan's agent, New Hampshire Republican leader Jerry Carmen, in real control.

Oddly, nobody included Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, national chairman of the Reagan campaign, in the deal. Laxalt was outraged that Reagan would not have a national chairman of his own choosing. Carmen last week sent the candidate a secret report urgently recommending that Brock must go in order to remove an anti-Reagan aura at national headquarters. Old Reagan hand Lyn Notziger, just returned to the inner circle, enthusiastically concurred. So did veteran Reagan adviser Edwin Meese.

Against this array, Reagan is told by the party establishment that the purge of Brock will shatter the gossamer of Republican unity. That view was once supported by Reagan campaign chairman William Casey, but he has quietly bowed to the insistence and persuasion of Laxalt. That is to be made clear to Brock by Casey when they meet in Los Angeles just before the unity dinner.

This is being played out against a comic opera background of victorious Reagan legions reaching for power around the country and falling flat on their faces. The Reagan high command asked that one of Iowa's two national committee members be a Reaganite; that produced a fitful effort to purge former Republican National Chairman Mary Louise Smith, which collapsed when Lt. Gov. Terry Branstad and other conservative Iowans refused to cooperate.

A deal in Michigan to elect one Reaganite national committee member ended in double defeat when local Reaganites grasped for two seats. They lost in Colorado and Mississippi, and were too weak to mount a challenge in Connecticut. These efforts were neither controlled nor advised from the Reagan high command in Los Angeles.

Thus, on the eve of the "unity" dinner, the Reagan political command showed itself divided, ineffective and irresolute in the Brock affair. Illogically, blundering efforts to purge anti-Reagan members of the national committee left a hard core so furious it might openly oppose the nominee's desire for a new chairman at Detroit. Only Bill Brock's sanity in agreeing to Reagan's wishes as a good party man would prevent such ultimate Republican madness.

That Reagan's political apparatus is not ready to run a national campaign is not surprising. What surprises is the priority on seizing the party machinery, national and state, now in the obvious fear that Reagan may not survive Nov. 4. That Republicans are acting like their old selves is the best political news at the White House in some time.

Other Editors Say Not 'Yes-Men'

(The Salisbury Post)

It is not his natural foes, the Republicans, who are worrying Governor Jim Hunt. It's his fellow Democrats.

Everytime we pick up the paper, we find that Treasurer Harlan Boyles, Labor Commissioner John Brooks, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten or Auditor Henry Bridges are in the headlines. Traditionally, in North Carolina, labor commissioners, treasurers and other such elected cabinet members keep a low profile. In the interest of continuing their service, they have never been wave-makers. If, they figured in the past, the voters don't know much about you they will at least continue to vote for a familiar name.

But that's not the way it's been, recently. Bridges has come out with a series of auditing investigations that raise some serious questions. Brooks has gone head-to-head with the governor on a couple of issues. Now Boyles has put down the governor on the issue of when a school bond vote should be held. And he is getting a good deal of support in his advisory that retirement benefits should not be raised on the basis of future taxation. Edmisten, as is his nature, remains in the news.

Although Governor Hunt probably doesn't enjoy these minor rebellions in the ranks, we find it a healthy trend. There is no reason why departmental heads, who presumably have expertise in their fields, should be yes-men for the governor. While disagreement carried to an extreme can rock a political boat, the recent objections and disclosures are almost certain to result in better government.

Boyles' objection to a 10 percent hike in retirement benefits for state employees may seem heartless in view of inflation. But Boyles was not objecting to the raise; he charged that pay-today-and-tax-tomorrow was the wrong way to go about it. The retirement plan should be financed by its current assets, not by some future taxation.

This and other objections put forward by cabinet members are related to serious matters, best given a full consideration. The Hunt view, while generally sound, is not necessarily always correct. In the interest of full consideration, state government should not speak in a single voice.

Strength For Today

TRUE SYMPATHY
Charles W. Eliot, for many years president of Harvard University, had a quite disfiguring birthmark on his face. One day as he was walking down the street, he saw some youngsters teasing and abusing a little fellow who was similarly disfigured. Instead of passing by and ignoring the incident, Eliot stopped and put his arm about the miserable little boy. "Don't worry, son," he said in tender tones, "you see I have the mark also."

If we can bear the disfigurements of our disfigured brothers, limp because they limp, grope with them in blindness, or stand in the midst of the deaf and speechless and understand; if we can weep with those who sorrow and sit with quiet understanding beside those whose disappointment is too deep to measure, then are we friends indeed. Then do we truly sympathize. In feeling with them we become one with them and we demonstrate to them that Christ still lives in human hearts. — Elisha Douglass

Stop Inflation Immediately?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
LOS ANGELES (AP) — After listening to the chitchat at social and sometimes business gatherings, Robert Parry wonders if Americans are really prepared to deal with inflation.

Two questions predominate, he said.
The first is posed dutifully: "What are we going to do about inflation?"
The second question follows almost before the questioner has finished wringing his hands. "Do you know," he asks in a more animated tone, "how much my house is worth now?"

Parry, senior vice president and chief economist of Security Pacific National Bank, believes that many Americans secretly like inflation, at least that inflation which pushes up the market value of homes.
When he delivers addresses on the economy, one of his chores as president of the National Association of Business Economist he sometimes conducts a revealing little test. Many people don't pass it.

"If I gave you a little black box that contained a button, and all you had to do was push the button to end all inflation immediately," he asks his audience, "would you push the button?"

It is his opinion that many of them would not, an opinion verified by the stunning silence that often precedes any response. Many of those who pause before answering are owners of homes whose value has soared.

This is especially true in the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas, where median prices jumped last year to $83,000 and $90,000, respectively, far above the $67,000 national median for large cities.

But housing isn't the only vested interest people have in inflation. Some day, says Parry, the nation must come to grips with many of its spending programs, including those for Social Security payments.

If people are living longer, he asks, shouldn't we at least consider restricting benefits until a person is older? "Perhaps to 67?" he asks provocatively. "It would dramatically lower the costs."

And isn't it absurd, he asks, for Social Security to be indexed to inflation in a manner that permits a 14 percent increase July 1, while wage increases are restricted to single digits by executive guidelines?

He concedes it is unpleasant to think of cutting Social Security. Almost everyone, he recognizes, has a relative, friend or acquaintance receiving it. "But indexing just perpetuates inflation," he says.

He extends the reasoning to state and local pensions that sometimes permit retirement in early middle age. "The costs are prohibitive," he says. "Someone has to say no. We just can't afford them."

He paused. "I suppose I can say this as an economist, but I'm not running for office," he said, fingering what he sees as a prime cause. Politicians seeking office, he feels, often are inflation perpetuators.

"Long term," he said, "the nation has to make tough decisions. We have to increase spending more slowly. We have to consider tax changes to stimulate saving and investing, and maybe to restrain spending."

But, it seems, people like to borrow and pay back in cheaper dollars, politicians like to win votes, retirees like their pensions, and homeowners are overjoyed at soaring market values, even if they might be unable immediately to convert those values to cash.

"Too many people have learned to live with rising prices," said Parry. "They have made decisions that require continued inflation."

Widow Sues In Shooting Death

ATLANTA (AP) — The widow of an Ohio convention center shot to death on a city street in 1979 wants $1.5 million in damages from the city of Atlanta and a motel chain.

In a suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, Rise Dae Tetelman names the city and Holiday Inn, United Inns Inc., and Lammons Hotel Courts Inc., all located at the same Atlanta address, as defendants.

The suit contends the defendants made false claims that city streets were safe.

The "city of Atlanta advertised itself as a desirable convention center which is safe for conventioners," but the city "was in fact unsafe for conventioners," the suit charges.

It also claims that the city failed to warn Dr. Marc Tetelman "of any danger areas within the city and failed to properly protect him while he was within the city limits."

A spokesman for Mayor Maynard Jackson said the mayor's office had not received notification of the suit.

According to the suit, Mrs. Tetelman and her husband asked an employee of the Holiday Inn "whether or not it was safe to walk in the street during the night-time hours in the general areas where they intended to go."

They were assured that the area was safe, the suit says, and "attempted to walk back to the said Holiday Inn from a nearby restaurant during the evening hours." The party was "held at gunpoint and robbed and were made fearful for their lives," the suit continues.

During the robbery, Dr. Tetelman, 35, director of nuclear medicine at Ohio State University, was shot to death.

Bernard Glenn, 20, of Atlanta, pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery and voluntary manslaughter in the case last month and was sentenced to 25 years in prison.

Two others were believed involved in the robbery. One of those is being sought, and the other was shot to death on Aug. 1.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Amid charges by several legislators that a controversial "cash-flow" system for awarding highway contracts violates the state constitution, House and Senate appropriations committees Thursday gave tentative approval to the measure.

The cash-flow system would allow the state to begin a road-construction project before all money to complete it has been appropriated.

House and Senate appropriations panels voted to leave the cash-flow item in the state's proposed $358 million supplementary budget, which is nearing final approval before the budget committees.

The plan would create a one-time $57 million windfall next year. It would free for immediate use money appropriated but not spent on other highway projects.

Rep. John Gamble, D-Lincolnton, chairman of the House Finance Committee, has called Gov. Jim Hunt's cash-flow plan unconstitutional, charging that the system would violate the state constitution's ban on deficit spending.

Attorney General Rufus Edmisten has said the plan does not violate the state's balanced budget principal. However, a 1978 memorandum from his office takes the opposite position.

Hunt, at a news conference Thursday, said the proposal now is constitutional because of an added safeguard allowing the state to cancel contracts if money runs out.

"The attorney general's memo that time (1978) assumed that contracts were not subject to cancellation," Hunt said. "When you go to cash flow, you must make contracts subject to existing revenues. When you do that, it's constitutional."

Approval of the new book-keeping system is still subject to final committee action on the budget proposal.

Opponents have charged that the plan will cover a shortage of highway revenues next year but will leave next year's Legislature with little choice but to raise gasoline taxes.

In other legislative action Thursday:

Tax Break

A bill that would exclude from state income taxes the first $1,000 in annual interest from an individual's savings account won approval from the Senate Finance Committee. The proposal must now go to the Senate Ways and Means Committee, where an alternate bill — setting the exclusion at $200 — also is expected to be considered.

The committee took the action as Hunt, in a news conference, said he opposed the $1,000 exclusion because he did not believe the state could afford it.

Hunt supports the smaller tax cut, which analysts say would reduce state revenues by $6 million this year. The larger tax break would amount to $21 million, legislators estimate.

A Senate Judiciary Committee eagerly met and approved Gov. Jim Hunt's bill that would set long, mandatory prison sentences and fines for persons caught dealing in large quantities of drugs.

The Senate Judiciary III committee met immediately after the bill was introduced Thursday by Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro, and voted to send it to the full Senate. Floor action could come as soon as Monday.

Hunt and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten have asked for the bill, which would set up mandatory prison terms without chance of parole for those convicted of having large amounts of marijuana, methaqualone, cocaine and heroin. For marijuana, the penalties range from five years and a $5,000 fine for 50 to 100 pounds to 16 years and $200,000 for five tons or more.

In addition, the bill would allow second-degree murder charges to be brought against a drug dealer whose drugs caused the death of one of its users.

Bus Drivers
A bill preventing anyone under 18 years of age from driving a public school bus was filed by Sen. Robert Wynne, D-Raleigh. The bill would appropriate $1 million for local school boards to use in providing incentive pay for drivers with more experience.

"I believe this bill could go a long way toward preventing some 60 percent of our school bus accidents," Wynne said.

A related bill, requiring anyone to have six months driving experience before becoming a school bus driver, was sent by the Senate to its Rules Committee for action. It had been languishing in another committee, which had declined to take action.

New Bills

Among other new legislation was a proposal by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Asheville, appropriating $500 to begin planning a new state office building in Asheville.

Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Deep Run, filed a bill to appropriate $500,000 for the state school system to expand the teaching of economic principles.

Rep. Parks Helms, D-

Charlotte, filed a bill that would allow a person erroneously convicted of a felony who has served a prison sentence to file a claim for losses against the state. The measure would apply to those who have been pardoned by the governor or whose conviction is reversed. The petition for retribution would be filed with the state Parole Commission.

Arrest Fisherman In Turtle-Stabbing

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — An attack on a loggerhead sea turtle, which is on South Carolina and federal threatened species lists, could land a Greensboro, N.C., man in prison.

Roger Dale Lowery, 22, was arrested by a state conservation officer early Sunday, shortly after witnesses reported that a man was stabbing a huge turtle in the neck.

A dead loggerhead was found on a nearby beach the next day bearing stab marks and a large broken fishhook in a front flipper, according to the arresting officer, Craig Campbell of the Wildlife and Marine Resources Department.

Lowery was charged by the state with unlawfully taking and possessing a sea turtle without a permit. He was released from the Horry County Jail in Conway Wednesday after posting a $500 bond.

Campbell said federal officials were considering whether to file civil charges against Lowery.

Witnesses told authorities that around midnight Saturday, an unidentified fisherman at Springmaid Pier caught a loggerhead on a rod and reel and that a second angler snagged the large turtle with a gaffing hook.

The second fisherman and Lowery then dragged the animal to the beach, where Lowery began stabbing the turtle in the neck with a large knife, according to witnesses.

Gasoline Rationing Plan 'Will Be A Royal Pain'

Arrest Priests For 'Boatlift'

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — After landing here with 423 Cuban refugees aboard the "God's Mercy," two Episcopal priests and six other Americans were arrested in connection with the outlaw boatlift.

The refugees arriving Thursday on the 112-foot converted World War II submarine chaser brought to more than 113,000 the number of Cubans who have fled the port of Mariel in the "Freedom Flotilla."

The Rev. Leo Frade and the Rev. Joe Dass, both of New Orleans, face arraignment with six others today on charges of bringing undocumented aliens into the country, said Florence Gabriel, spokeswoman for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

She was unable to identify the other six persons.

The eight were released on their own recognizance, she said.

Two small craft carrying a total of 15 refugees also docked Thursday night, pushing to 113,387 the number of refugees arriving since the boatlift began nearly two months ago.

At its height, the ragtag operation was ferrying 4,000 to 5,000 refugees a day to Key West.

The priests, who both serve at Grace Episcopal Church in New Orleans, organized the trip to fetch relatives of Cubans living in Louisiana, according to The Times-Picayune and The States-Item of New Orleans.

The party reportedly set out for Mariel on May 29, two weeks after President Carter banned U.S. vessels from traveling to Cuba to pick up refugees.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Mike Kelley said in Miami that the captain of God's Mercy reported he saw at least 20 U.S. boats remaining at Mariel.

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline rationing, if it ever comes to that, will be a royal pain. At best, it would be a massive, muddled system prone to mistakes and abuse.

And that's the assessment of the Department of Energy, which prepared the standby rationing plan sent to Congress Thursday.

The only excuse for using the rationing plan, the department says, would be a gasoline shortage so deep and prolonged it couldn't be handled any other way.

If Congress does not take action to block it, the plan will become government policy in 30 days. The system could be put in actual working form 12 to 15 months after that. Ration coupons could be in the mail about 90 days after a severe shortage appears.

Here, in question-and-answer form, is how the plan would work:

Q. What would it take to bring on gasoline rationing?

A. The president must find that the nation faces a shortage of at least 20 percent lasting at least 30 days, and Congress must not act to block rationing within 15 days after his declaration. Rationing could be imposed before things got that bad only if Congress voted to waive the 20 percent standard.

Q. How bad is a 20 percent shortage?

A. The Arab oil embargo of 1973-74 shut off only about 5 percent of the U.S. oil supply for a couple of months, and that was enough to cause widespread lines or closings at gas stations. To suffer a 20 percent shortage, the United States would have to lose all of the oil it gets from all seven Arab members of OPEC, plus one or two other major exporters.

Q. Is that likely to happen?

A. Not in the foreseeable future, says Energy Secretary Charles Duncan. Congress ordered the standby plan, just in case.

Q. If we ever do have rationing, where would I get my coupons?

A. The federal government would mail you a "check" every three months, which you would exchange for gasoline ration coupons at a local bank or other designated distribution outlet.

Q. Everybody in the country would get a ration check?

A. No. Owners of motor vehicles would receive the checks, assigning gasoline rations to each registered vehicle.

Q. Why not assign the rations to people — to licensed drivers, or to families?

A. The Energy Department found that actual amounts of driving, presumably reflecting real transportation needs, are matched more closely to the number of vehicles than to the number of licensed drivers in a family or the total size of a family.

Q. Wouldn't that give almost unlimited gasoline rations to people who can buy up junk cars and register them?

A. Possibly, but the Energy Department says it would limit the number of vehicle-based rations assigned to an individual or household. It didn't say how many cars you could claim rations for.

Q. What if you buy or sell a car?

A. The ration would be transferred with the car, but it would probably take a while for the system to catch up with the paperwork.

Q. How much gasoline would the average motorist get?

A. You won't know that until the time comes. It depends on the total amount of gasoline available. The federal government would put aside a reserve of 1 percent and then allocate the supplies needed by agricultural users. The remaining gasoline would be divided among the states, in proportion to each state's gasoline consumption during the most recent year for which data are available.

Q. Why not spread it around equally, nationwide?

A. Congress recognized that people must drive longer distances for essential activities in some states than in others, and ordered that the plan take that into account.

Q. How much will there be for the average motorist after the states set aside 5 percent for hardships and emergencies and take care of priority users such as fire departments?

A. More than you might think. If a 20 percent shortage had triggered rationing in 1978, the department figured, the average motorist still would have received about 70 percent of his or her normal gasoline supply, or around 42 gallons a month.

Q. Suppose I want more gasoline than my rations provide?

A. Coupons could be bought and sold legally. The department estimated coupons would be worth around $1.70 a gallon during a 20 percent shortage, in addition to the cost of buying the gasoline itself at the service station.

Commission Recovers Funds

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Employment Security Commission recovered $135,488 in unemployment insurance overpayments during May, according to figures released by the commission's anti-fraud unit.

Of the money recovered, $111,512 was obtained by withholding payments to eligible unemployment insurance claimants, and $23,976 was refunded to the commission by recipients of overpayments.

The anti-fraud unit found that 115 of the 194 persons it investigated during May had been overpaid a total of $37,509. Thirty-nine of those cases, involving $19,344, were classified as fraud, while non-fraud overpayments discovered during the month total $18,165.

Of the 29 persons tried for unemployment insurance fraud in the state's courts during May, the commission reported that 28 were convicted.

Questions, Answers On Draft Registration Action

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has won all-but-final approval from Congress for the $13.3 million he needs to renew peacetime draft registration.

The funding legislation was passed by the Senate on Thursday. It already had been passed by the House but must be approved again — probably next week — because of a minor amendment added by the Senate.

Carter's plan will resume mandatory registration, halted since 1975 when then-President Gerald Ford signed an executive order putting the Selective Service system in "deep standby."

Fifteen Are Chosen For Boy's State

Fifteen rising seniors have been selected by Post 39 to attend American Legion Boys' State this year. Boys attending are Robert Hemingway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hemingway; Gregory S. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Johnson; Scott M. Taylor, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold J. Taylor; Thomas B. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.W. Brown; Paul M. Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tucker; Broughton L. Goodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Goodson; Ramon B. Latham, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Grady Jr.; Elvy Forest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elvy K. Forest Sr.; Daniel P. Lueck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lueck; Lance A. Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Warren; Kenneth R. Lang, son of Robert C. Lang; Michael A. Tucker, son of Dr. and Mrs. Donald H. Tucker; Lyman L. Edwards Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman L. Edwards; and James W. Byrd Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Byrd Sr. The 1980 Boys State will be held at Wake Forest during the week of June 15-21.

will be required to register at post offices, probably in mid-July. An exact date will be announced later.

Here, in question and answer form, is an explanation of how the program will work:

Q. Who must register?
A. Young men who were born in 1960 and 1961. Beginning next January, all 18-year-olds will be required to register, and the program will continue enrolling 18-year-olds each year.

Q. What about women?
A. Congress decided not to require women to register, although President Carter had proposed including them.

Q. Is the exclusion of women legal?
A. There's some argument about that. The American Civil Liberties Union says any registration program that does not include women is unconstitutional, and that it will file suit.

Q. How will I get details about when and where to register and what I have to do?

A. Selective Service is sending information to more than 7,000 radio stations, 700 television stations and 2,500 daily and weekly newspapers. It is counting on them to carry the material as a public service announcement, at no cost to the government.

You will not get an individual notice telling you what to do.

Q. Where will young men register?

A. Registration will be conducted at the nation's 34,000 post offices.

Q. What will I have to do?
A. Registrants will be asked to fill out a form, giving their name, address, date of birth, telephone number and Social Security number. The forms will be sent to the Selective Service System where the information will be stored in computers.

Persons who register will receive a letter confirming that they have been registered and asking that they notify Selective Service of any change in address.

Q. Will everyone register the same day?

A. No. The program will be spread out over two weeks — one week for 19-year-olds and one week for 20-year-olds.

In addition, your registration day will depend on your birth month. Persons born in January, February and March will register on Monday; persons born in April, May and June will register on Tuesday, and so on.

Friday will be a makeup day.

Q. Will I have to take a physical and be classified as to my eligibility for service?

A. No. That is not part of the program.

Q. Will I get a draft card?

A. No.

Q. What happens if I refuse to register?

A. Failure to register is a felony punishable by a maximum penalty of up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Q. What about people who fail to register during the two-week period because they didn't know about it, or couldn't get to a post office?

A. Selective Service Director Bernard Rostker said they "technically would be in violation." He said, however, that post offices have been directed to allow persons to register late after the two-week period.

Q. Is there going to be a draft?
A. President Carter says he hopes a draft will not be necessary. Before the country could return to the draft, it would have to be authorized by Congress.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., and other critics of registration charged that registration was the first step toward a return to the draft. Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., and Sam Nunn, D-Ga., supporters of registration, said they would support renewal of the draft.

Q. If there is a draft, what about exemptions and deferments?

A. Congress in 1971 eliminated many of the broad categories for deferment or exemption, such as family or occupational status.

The student deferment was replaced by a postponement, whereby a student would be permitted to finish the semester in which he was enrolled. A senior would be allowed to complete the year.

High school students would be permitted to stay in school until graduation or until reaching the age of 20.

The primary grounds for exemption would be for hardship or for conscientious objectors, according to Selective Service. The law also provides an exemption for "regular or duly ordained ministers of religion."

Q. Doesn't the draft law cover everyone in the 18-26 year-old stering all males in the 18- to 26-year-old age group would create a pool of 16 million names. Selective Service says it does not need that many to meet the Pentagon's initial manpower requirements in an emergency.

If mobilization were ordered, the other age groups would be registered quickly. The entire 18- to 26-year-old age group remains eligible for a draft.

Since registration in subsequent years will be of 18-year-olds, the size of the pool will grow over time and eventually will include 18 to 26-year-olds.

Troubled Congressman More Auto Assembly Facing Abscam Charges Plants Will Be Idled

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Rep. John Jenrette, already dealing with alcoholism, a primary runoff, financial troubles and investigations of his land transactions, now faces the likelihood of a federal indictment in the FBI's Abscam probe.

Jenrette's attorney, Kenneth M. Robinson of Greenville, S.C., said Thursday that an indictment could come any time.

The third-term congressman was unavailable for comment. But he earlier conceded that the problems — particularly Abscam — followed him during the primary race.

"It's terrible," he said. "I don't sleep well and I worry about how I'm perceived with friends who have helped me in the past." He says he has had trouble raising funds.

REP. JOHN JENRETTE

His wife, Rita, said she sold some of their property and stock shares in April to pay his legal bills, which then were about $250,000.

Four other Democrats jumped into the primary against him after Jenrette's name turned up among eight members of Congress implicated in February in the FBI's probe of official corruption.

Law enforcement sources and John Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, said undercover agents made an arrangement with Jenrette to give him a $50,000 bribe. Stowe said he delivered the money to the third-term congressman.

Jenrette denied taking anything but a $10,000 loan from Stowe, and said he only met with the agents posing as Arab businessmen and their representatives in hopes of obtaining an investment for a company in bad financial shape in his district. In an $11 million suit against the government, he claims entrapment and says he was intoxicated at the time of the meeting.

The 43-year-old Democrat received 45 percent of the vote in Tuesday's Democratic primary and faces a runoff on June 24 against state Rep. B. Hicks Harwell, a flamboyant 47-year-old Florence attorney who got 27 percent.

Jenrette, a bushy-haired, blue-eyed North Myrtle Beach attorney is no stranger to trouble. He was divorced during his first term in 1975, but remarried his current wife, Rita, in 1976.

He was the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in 1976 and 1977 into allegations that he sold land that was under water and used lots that did not belong to him as collateral in getting loans.

That investigation was dropped, but a subsequent probe was launched after federal prosecutors learned that the foreman of the grand jury investigating the land deals was a contributor to Jenrette's political campaign and had met with him privately during the inquiry. Both men denied any wrongdoing.

Federal law enforcement officers also have leaked to reporters that they were probing travel vouchers and pay records in Jenrette's congressional office.

Twice last year and for several weeks earlier this year after the Abscam scandal broke, Jenrette spent time in hospitals undergoing treatment for alcoholism.

The state attorney general's office and the state Real Estate Commission filed a suit on March 28 against Jenrette and a partner, charging them with failing to inform buyers of a time-sharing plan at some condominiums on Edisto Island of contract terms. The suit said they failed to tell the Real Estate Commission what they were doing, as required by law.

A circuit judge ordered the resort development's assets placed in the hands of a receiver.

Jenrette has maintained that his troubles are due to "mistakes of the head, not of the heart."

The voters will judge him, he said, and "the Justice Department knows damn well they can't get me at the jury box ... If they can't get me at the jury box, they will try to get me at the ballot box."

DETROIT (AP) — The number of U.S. autoworkers on open-ended layoff increased again this week to 238,650, up from 237,850 last week, according to reports from the automaking firms.

The picture for temporary layoffs — revealed in the firms' regular Thursday reports — was less certain. Chrysler Corp. has started lumping temporary assembly plant layoffs with those in component plants, while General Motors Corp. released no figure for its temporary layoffs from component plants.

Seven car, truck and bus assembly lines will be idle next week compared with five this week.

U.S. car production this week will rise 7.6 percent from last week but will fall 29 percent short of output in the same week last year, the trade publication Automotive News reported.

GM said it would stop seven assembly lines and furlough 18,000 next week compared with 12,550 this week. GM's indefinite layoffs were 137,000, up 2,000 from last week.

GM also said it had 5,000 salaried workers on indefinite layoff, up from 3,200 a week previously. In a new report, the company said another 1,040 had been transferred to the hourly ranks and 1,450 had retired, quit or had been dismissed since it announced in April it was trimming its white-collar ranks by about 10 percent.

Ford Motor Co. said it would send home 7,700 workers next week from four assembly lines for a week or two compared with 20,850 this week. The No.2 producer reported indefinite layoffs unchanged at 59,500.

Additionally, Ford said it had 9,250 workers temporarily idle in component plants this week. Last week, the figure was about 13,000.

Chrysler has 8,900 workers idle in three assembly plants closed for retooling and in its component plants. Chrysler's open-ended furloughs were 39,400, a decline of 1,200 from last week.

American Motors Corp. said it would shut its Kenosha, Wis., assembly plant next week, idling 7,500. AMC had no short-term layoffs this week. The smallest U.S.-owned automaker said its indefinite layoffs were unchanged at 2,750.

Volkswagen of America has no layoffs.

Here are next week's plant closings:

GM
Cars: Flint, Mich., 2,150 from the big-car line and associated body plant; Linden, N.J., 4,000. Trucks and buses: Janesville, Wis., 600; Lorain, Ohio, 1,250; GMC Truck & Coach division at Pontiac, Mich., 10,000 from the medium-duty, heavy-duty and bus lines. Ford Cars: St. Louis, 1,110; Wayne, Mich., 3,750; Wilcox, Mich., 2,050. Trucks: San Jose, Calif., 800.

Chrysler
Newark, Del. and Detroit's Lynch Road and Jefferson Avenue plants, retooling.

AMC
Cars: Kenosha, Wis., 7,500.

U.S. automakers this week will produce 131,869 cars, up 7.6 percent from last week's 122,561 but down 29 percent from the 186,252 turned out in the same week of 1979, Automotive News said. That will bring 1980 production through Saturday to 3,158,822, 30 percent below the comparable 1979 figure of 4,509,475.

Truck production was put at 17,313, 25 percent less than last week's 23,057 and 77 percent from 73,990 built in the same week last year. The year's output through Saturday should reach 777,648, 58 percent under the 1,839,252 built to the same point last year.

Canadian plants will assemble 20,824 cars, a 25 percent increase from last week's 16,678 but an 11 percent drop from 23,321 built in the same week last year. That will bring cumulative 1980 production to 413,810, off 22 percent from 531,686 built in the same period last year.

Truck production in Canada was slated at 11,587, 8.4 percent more than this week's 10,691 and 19 percent below the 14,294 turned out in the same week last year. For the year through Saturday, production should be 262,078, a drop of 29 percent from 369,377.

Senate Panel OKs Weaponry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee has disregarded the wishes of President Carter and approved a $51.9 billion weapons bill.

The bill provides $5 billion more than Carter asked for weapons purchases and research and development during the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

The bill approved Thursday, which now goes to the Senate floor, compares to a $53.1 billion weapons bill in the House.

Carter had urged the Senate panel to cut $6.2 billion from the House bill to meet the president's earlier request to spend $46.9 billion on weapons in fiscal 1981.

"I'm the one that has to make a judgment," said the panel's chairman, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of Carter's letter. "Everybody writes you a letter."

The Senate bill includes $50 million for the CX supercargo airplane that Carter wants as an integral part of his proposed rapid deployment military force. The plane is not included in the House version of the bill.

The Senate version also would halve the proposed MX missile system and directs the Pentagon to locate the other half of the new system someplace other than Utah and Nevada.

The MX system would use a series of hidden launching sites to shuttle around 200 intercontinental missiles in an updated version of the old "shell game." But the proposal to locate all the sites in Utah and Nevada has met with strong local opposition.

The Senate weapons bill would cut the number of proposed launching sites in Utah and Nevada from 4,600 to 2,300. The other 2,300 would have to be located in other states, but Stennis said the panel is not suggesting which states.

The Senate bill also provides for a pay raise of 11 percent and other benefits for members of the military.

Gloria Drops Her Duplex Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Anyone looking for a $1.1 million duplex? The one sought by jeans designer Gloria Vanderbilt is now available.

Miss Vanderbilt, who had filed suit when her bid for the River House apartment was turned down, dropped her court fight Thursday, giving no explanation.

She had charged sex discrimination and alleged that the apartment's directors worried she might marry black entertainer Bobby Short. Apartment officials denied her allegations and contended she did not have the money to buy the lavish East 52nd Street dwelling.

Under the termination signed by Acting Supreme Court Justice Norman Ryp, there were no costs or liabilty to any party. The termination frees River House from a court ban on selling the apartment to anyone else.

Chapplelear added, "Life has to be a mixture of experiences, and we've got to take these experiences and learn from them."

McArthur began by saying "The greatest achievement a person can make is to develop his potential, whatever that may be." She explained physical growth, and commented that mental and emotional growth are even more important. "New experiences and knowledge change the way a person sees himself, the way he sees the world, and the way he deals with what he sees. If we're lucky, this process never stops," she added.

Ayden-Grifton High School senior Kenneth Langston spoke on "Today." "Class of '80, today is our day. It is this day that we will always remember," he said. "Therefore, let us on this great day, as we stand together in a group awaiting our chance to face the world as individuals, quietly pause and reflect upon our many blessings," added the

"Some of us will marry, others will become teachers, or engineers, or Picasso's or Rockwells." Elks said she forsores the day when a woman will become president of the United States. City Council....

strictions regularly imposed by the Council, including the prohibiting of films, live entertainment except for a band, topless activity, pornographic movies, or massage parlors. Dancing is allowed under the permit restrictions.

Approval was also given to an application by Leroy T. Cherry for a special use permit to operate a supper club or restaurant at 507 N. Greene Street.

Cherry, appearing before the Council, said that when the initial request was submitted for a special use permit, plans had not been completely formulated and cocktail lounge was included on the application. He said that he would like to amend the request to specify supper club or "full line restaurant" since the idea of a private club facility has been completely abandoned.

Cherry said that the restaurant will be "done on a very high plane," with the only difference in the facility from conventional restaurants involving facilities for dancing. He suggested that the only thing offering comparable service now is the country club and Cherry noted that everyone can not be country club members. The petitioner also agreed to the set of special use permit restrictions imposed by the Council.

Following a fourth public hearing, Council members voted to follow the recommendation of the city planning board in rezoning some 16.5 acres, located just north of the present Union Carbide facility, from R-6 and Highway Commercial to Unoffensive Industry. Roberson said the matter involves an extension of an existing Unoffensive Industry classification.

In a related item, an application by Union Carbide to place four mobile homes on the north and east side of the existing building was approved. Union Carbide indicated that the mobile structures would be used as office space and a conference room until the permanent structure can be built.

The Council concurred in the recommendation of the city planning board that approximately 1.2 acres located on Cemetery Road adjacent to the landfill be rezoned from RA-20 to R-6 (high density residential).

In the fourth rezoning matter, approval was given for the rezoning, from RA-20 to R-6, of property located on the west side of Verdant Drive, involving some 4.2 acres. Roberson, who said that the rezoning involved an extension of an existing R-6 zone, noted that the planning board recommended Council approval.

The eighth hearing involved amendments to the Community Development program and the Council authorized the submission of the amendments, which reflect a net change of $335,440 for various CD activities, to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The amendments, aimed at providing for additional project funds, involve more funding for the 14th Street thoroughfare project, rehabilitation grants, administration matters including salaries and related expenses for all CD administrative staff, historic preservation funds, and money for unpaved streets.

Ben Shivar, assistant to the city manager for CD, said that the funding amendments are important in order for the program to be completed, particularly in regard to the West Greenville Thoroughfare project (14th Street). He said the action will also put the city in a more favorable position to compete for small cities funding from HUD.

Applications for the renewal of mobile home permits were approved for: Mrs. P. O. Allen for the mobile structure at 107 Church Street; Mini Storage of Greenville Inc. for the mobile home at State Road 1534; Ms. Almata L. McCoy for the mobile home at 1306 S. Pitt Street; and Burroughs Welcome for two mobile units located at the plant site as temporary office space.

Approval was given to a lease agreement between the city and First Municipal Leasing Corp. of Englewood, Colo. for the equipment for a new Mitel SX 200 telephone system. Gail Meeks, assistant to City Manager Ed Wyatt, explained that the new system will enable the city, Police Department, and Sheppard Memorial Library to share the same PABX system but maintain separate units.

Mrs. Meeks said that the system will result in savings for the city and library. In addition, the system will provide trunk WATS lines which will be shared by the city, police, library, and the Utilities Commission. The WATS service to Sheppard Memorial Library would be offered at no charge, she said.

Other business on the agenda included:

— Scheduling of four rezoning requests for public hearings at the July 10 regular meeting;

— Approval of applications for the renewal of beer and wine privilege licenses;

— Acceptance of Red Banks Road from Arlington Boulevard to NC 43, Quail Ridge Road from 14th Street Extension to a point some 590 feet east, and Beech Street from the end of the existing street to a point some 525 feet north of the end of the existing street, for permanent maintenance by the city;

— Approval of a list of tax releases and refunds, and approval of a levy of discovered property for 1977 through 1979 taxation for Blount-Harvey Co. and F & D Motors on an airport hangar on leased property at the airport (involved apparent clerical error in county supervisor's office); — Receipt of the Bike and Pedestrian Facilities Proposal from the Bike and Pedestrian Task Force of the Chamber of Commerce (committee member Shirley Morrison made a report on the facilities proposal and requested that funding be considered in the budget for bicycle commuter routes);

— Approval of a request by Ms. Novella Exum that the city repurchase Lot 73 in Cherry Hill Cemetery and sell to the James F. Higson family;

— Approval of the city's participation in the railroad signalization at the crossing of 14th Street and Seaboard Coast Line Railroad (ten percent local funding); and — Appointment of Charles Horne and Thomas Shea as commissioner and alternate, respectively on Municipal Power Agency No. Three (involves CP&L territory), and appointment of Malcolm Greene and Gene Prescott as commissioner and alternate, respectively on Municipal Power Agency No. Two (involves Vepco territory). Horne and Shea resigned as commissioner and alternate on Agency No. Two.

The Council scheduled a public hearing for July 10 on an application for Section 18, 1981 transit operating, capital, and planning assistance.

Council members approved the appointment of Mrs. Julia C. Davis to a three-year term on the Recreation and Parks Commission and reappointed Dan Earnhardt and Mrs. Becky McDonald to their second, three-year terms on the commission.

The migrant students at Sam D. Bundy, H.B. Sugg, Falkland Elementary and Farmville Middle Schools went on a field trip to Atlantic Beach and Beaufort today.

The students visited the Marine Resources Center at Pine Knoll Shores and then went to Fort Macon for a picnic lunch. The students were given free time to explore the fort and beach area. After lunch, they viewed the aquariums at the Mariner's Museum in Beaufort. Parents were invited to go on the trip.

Mrs. Julie Tucker services the students of all four schools.

In Cairo's Traffic You Zip At Snail's Speed

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A newspaper cartoon recently depicted a man crossing between two buildings on a tightrope while pedestrians battled a snarling mass of automobiles in the street below.

Escaping Cairo's seemingly endless traffic jams is the undoubted wish of the city's four million commuters who suffer through four rush hours a day, six days a week.

Cairenes, as the people of the Egyptian capital are known, battle the jams going to work at 9 a.m. and going home at 2 p.m. and again at 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. for the post-siesta crush of evening shoppers.

A U.S. study undertaken for the Egyptian government found that traffic averaged only 1.8 miles an hour in key downtown areas during the rush periods. The study also found that traffic jams cost Egypt $71.5 million a year in fuel consumption of cars stopped or creeping in traffic, time wasted in stalled traffic and the loss of productivity due to worker fatigue.

In the horn-honking crunch of humanity and machinery. Cars park on sidewalks and pedestrians take to the roadways. Traffic lights are frequently ignored and harried police write copious tickets with little apparent affect.

"There is a class struggle in the streets of Cairo between the people who have automobiles and those who don't — a fierce struggle," observed New York City's deputy transportation commissioner, David Gurin, on a recent visit.

More Egyptians own cars than ever before — about 200,000 by the end of last year — thanks in part to President Anwar Sadat's economic liberalization policy. It has encouraged free enterprise and spawned a growing middle class able to pay the $5,000 for an Egyptian-made Fiat on the open market.

Private cars contend with horse-drawn wagons carrying produce from the countryside, donkey carts ferrying garbage, trolleys, buses, trucks, pedicabs loaded with bread, bicycles and 12-year-olds on motorcycles.

Added to the melee are women carrying baskets on their heads and beggars weaving between cars on skateboards in search of handouts.

The competition for space on Cairo's narrow streets has become increasingly critical in the capital city of 8.5 million, which is expected to nearly double in size by the year 2000.

It has been an increasingly bloody battle, as well. Police reports show that 4,600 people have been killed, 20,000 permanently maimed and 100,000 injured in road mishaps during the last four years.

Car for car, the English-language Egyptian Gazette asserted, Egypt has one of the worst road records in the world with one vehicle in every five having a history of violence. An estimated 619,100 cars, trucks and buses were registered in 1979.

The Gazette called for stricter enforcement, a hefty increase in traffic fines which now average about $1.50 each and more stringent driver tests.

Many transportation officials see creation of a subway system as the only answer to the traffic problem. Cairenes unable to afford cars now rely mainly on 1,600 buses, 40,000 taxi cabs and limited rail service to outlying suburbs.

But a subway system, under study since 1954, is estimated to cost $1.4 billion and financing has thus far eluded the government.

As a stopgap measure, the government created a number of one-way streets to reroute traffic through the heart of Cairo last year and is more than half-way along in building a freeway from the West Bank of the Nile River to the bedroom community of Heliopolis in the northeast outskirts of the city.

FOCUS

Flag Day

Tomorrow is Flag Day. It marks the anniversary of the day in 1777 when the Continental Congress approved the stars and stripes as the official United States flag. The original flag had 13 stripes and 13 stars. For more than 200 years, the flag's basic design has remained the same. But the number of stars and stripes has changed many times. At first, Congress added a new stripe and a new star for each new state. In 1818, Congress changed the number of stripes back to 13, and ordered a new star to be added on the July 4 after each new state joined the union.

DO YOU KNOW — What poet first called the U.S. flag the "Star-Spangled Banner"?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — James Madison was called the "Father of the Constitution."

Abortion Is Strongly Condemned By Southern Baptist Convention

By GEORGE CORNELL AP Religion Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Emphasizing its sharp swing to deep conservatism, the nation's largest Protestant body has issued a firm condemnation of abortion and demanded that its teachers believe in the infallibility of the Bible.

taken by a major American Protestant body, but the convention firmly behind the drive to overturn the 1973 Supreme Court decision permitting abortion.

The call for an anti-abortion constitutional amendment or law represented a stiffening of an earlier, more qualified position of the 13.4 million-member denomination.

also help dispel an erroneous view that only Catholics oppose abortion."

The positions, displaying a reaffirmation of tradition and the influence of conservative leadership elected for two consecutive years, were taken Thursday as the 13,800 messengers of the Southern Baptist Convention closed their annual meeting.

"All medical evidence indicates that abortion ends the life of a developing human being," the convention said, opposing the use of public funds for "selfish, non-therapeutic abortion."

"It is intolerable that the lives of 1.5 million babies are being taken every year through abortion," said the Rev. Larry Lewis of St. Louis, member of a committee that pushed through the new Southern Baptist stand.

Before adjourning, the convention also told trustees of seminaries and other denominational institutions to employ only those who consider the Bible to be without error.

The Rev. Herschel H. Hobbs of Oklahoma City, a former convention president, opposed the measure, saying it smacked of a "creed which Southern Baptists never had." The Rev. Willard Brown of Wake Forest, N.C., said it indicated a "spirit of creeping creedalism."

But insistence on avowing Biblical infallibility has been a watchword of the election victories of the convention's outgoing president, the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., and the new president, the Rev. Bailey E. Smith of Del City, Okla.

Convention presidents pick the committee that draws resolutions and name committees that select some members of boards of denominational agencies, thus also applying leverage in Southern Baptist institutions.

Although the convention does not purport to speak for all Southern Baptists, it is their most broadly representative organ. President Carter is a Southern Baptist.

In other action, the convention: —Called for political action to elect officials "governed by moral principles based on biblical authority."

—Reaffirmed the traditional separation of church and state but said that did not mean "separation of God from government."

—Declared lack of support for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment, saying the Bible stresses the "equal worth but not the sameness" of men and women.

HOW BIG?

Gwenn was in kindergarten, and for fun, we'd play "How big?"

"How big is the beachball, Gwenn?" Mary would ask.

"Two inches!" she'd answer.

"How big is Daddy?"

"Eighteen inches!" said the thirty-six-inch giant.

"How big is that building?"

"A mile! No, two miles!"

So it went until Gwenn learned about the standards of length: the inch, foot and mile. Now, at eight, a beachball is "twenty inches;" Daddy has grown to "six feet;" and that building over there is "about two-hundred feet." Now, Gwenn has a better idea of the "bigness" of our physical world.

But what of spiritual dimensions? Gwenn must learn to gauge problems, worries, hopes and aspirations — lest her troubles seem too big, her dreams too small. She will turn to God's living Word, the Bible — taught in her church.

A little girl learned. Will you?

When A Candidate's Name Is Daley, Anything Can Happen

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Here's a guy running for county prosecutor who's scheduled a fund-raiser in Washington, a reception at the vice president's home and a White House visit with the president.

Peculiar? Not if the candidate's name is Daley. When state Sen. Richard M. Daley, eldest son of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley, goes to the nation's capital for events Wednesday and Thursday, he'll be toasted by some of the biggest names in Democratic politics, including House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd.

It's an impressive assemblage of politicians — but not really extraordinary, considering the long-standing Daley link to Washington.

Democratic presidential contenders courted Mayor Daley for 20 years, aware of his awesome power as a vote-getter because of the army of patronage workers at his command.

Even though the mayor has been dead 3½ years, the high-power guest list for his son's fund-raiser is proof the name carries some of the magic it did when Richard J. Daley presided over the nation's second-largest city. "I would say Richard Daley is an important political name in this country," said an aide to Rep. Daniel Rostenkowski of Illinois, who is sponsoring the fund-raiser. But the 33-year-old Richard is using the Daley name to create a new aura of power.

Nowadays, the name is not linked with the inner sanctums of City Hall. Far from it. In March, the younger Daley defeated both Mayor Jane Byrne's candidate in the Democratic state's attorney primary and the Chicago machine his father had worked so masterfully.

In addition, the younger Daley has formed alliances with the independents who scorned the mayor, managing to capitalize on the positive aspects of his father's image without linking himself to the negative, said Lynn Williams, a Democratic committeeman.

Part of that, Williams said, comes from Daley's running against the machine.

Daley — who like President Carter has been rebuffed by Jane Byrne — can thank the mayor for part of his image.

It was Mrs. Byrne who pushed him to the fringes of the Democratic Party during the primary, thus helping him avoid being tainted by the problems that have plagued her administration.

And it was also the mayor — said by some to fear Daley as a potential challenger in 1983 — who hacked away at Daley's own fiefdom when she began firing patronage workers in his ward.

Less directly, the mayor also contributed to Daley's new stature in the Illinois Legislature when she sided with Republican Gov. James Thompson's veto of a sales tax cut. Daley led an unsuccessful attempt to override the veto.

Daley — once rated by a Chicago magazine as one of the worst Illinois legislators — has gradually matured into a social reformer and champion of the taxpayers.

"He (Daley) has mastered the new politics," said Milton Rakove, a political science professor at the University of Illinois-Chicago. "You build a coalition and go to the streets. He did what Jane Byrne did. He beat The Machine.

"Richie's much more sensitive," he added. "He's reached out to the liberals."

One of those liberals, state Sen. Dawn Clark Netsch, teamed up with Daley in the sales tax override fight and joined him in pushing through the Legislature a comprehensive mental-health reform package.

The new Daley image is not lost on the voters.

A poll taken shortly after the March primary showed Daley and Mrs. Byrne running neck and neck if a hypothetical mayoral race were held then.

Although Daley says he has no plans to run for mayor and plans to complete the four-year state's attorney's term if elected, many local politicians say he'll be in a great position to challenge the mayor in 1983.

"Jane sees Richie as the guy for '83 and he probably is," said Rakove. "One of the greatest assets he'll have is his dad's name and record."

The mayor, he said, "is worried and she's got something to worry about. If Richie wins the state's attorney's race," Rakove added, "they'll be saying, 'Boy, that name looks good.'"

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market managed a modest gain today, responding to further declines in interest rates. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .60 at 873.21. Gainers outnumbered losers by a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. At the close Thursday, the Federal Reserve lowered its discount rate — the rate it charges on loans to its member commercial banks — from 12 to 11 percent. Today, the steady descent of the bank prime lending rate continued with several large banks cutting their basic charges on blue chip loans to 12 percent. Yields on bonds, meanwhile, continued to drop Thursday as Henry Kaufman of Salomon Brothers, whose interest-rate forecasts get considerable attention in the financial community, predicted that the prime would go below 10 percent this summer. Stocks sensitive to interest-rate trends were mostly higher. Federal National Mortgage gained 1/4 to 17 1/4; Southern Co. 1/4 to 13 1/4, and MGIC Investment 1/2 to 26 1/2. The NYSE's composite index picked up 14 to 66.06. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index added 1.14 to 288.26. Volume on the Big Board totaled 19.18 million shares at noontime, against 21.17 million at the same point Thursday.

Aside from pay increases and money for education, other major changes proposed in the budget include an increase for water and lights for county buildings, from $59,800 this year to $240,000 in 1980-1981 (due primarily to increasing costs and the opening of the new county office building), $58,800 contract management services for housekeeping at all county buildings, $40,500 for contributions toward the purchase of new fire trucks for county volunteer departments, and $508,928 for rental of data processing equipment as compared with $406,656 this year. Yesterday and this morning, the board heard from representatives of a number of departments and agencies at hearings designed to give the representatives an opportunity to explain special needs and requests included in their budget requests.

In the field of education, Gray has recommended $71,300 for school capital outlay, to be divided on a per capita basis between the Pitt County and Greenville city school districts. Under the per capita distribution, Greenville would receive 30.59 percent — $174,800 — while the county would get 69.41 percent, or some $396,500. This year, from the same total amount appropriated, Greenville received $96,000 in capital outlay money while the county system received $475,000. The city school system had requested $255,800, while the county request totalled $1.05 million. In the area of current expense funding, Gray has recommended a total of $6.15 million — $1 million less than had been requested, and $486,000 more than was

Nicklaus, Weiskopf Charge Into First Round Lead At Baltusrol

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf, two Ohio natives, have fought for Buckeye honors since the early 1960s. They're battling again, this time in the U.S. Open.

Masters champion who held the early for a couple of hours, put things in perspective when he said: "Any player who feels he has a shot to win the Open heels no pressure during the first or second day. I think the pressure starts in the third and fourth round," he said.

one many predicted would be a good score by the end of the championship on Sunday. Tom Watson, the pre-tournament favorite who has won five times this year, scored a hole-in-one with an 8-iron on the 156-yard par 3 No. 4 but came in with a 71.

ever played. It means that much more when you're playing in an Open championship. "I drove the ball exceptionally well," he said. "I hit some iron shots as good as any I have hit in my life and I made every makeable putt there was to make. And that's the way you have to shoot to shoot 63."

"I wasn't conscious of Tom's score until the back nine," said Nicklaus, who explained that he put his whole game together in the round for the first time in a long while.

Lee Trevino, two-time Open winner whose putter was working in the first round, shot a two-under 68 and joined Mark Lye, Andy North and Isao Aoki of Tokyo who played in the Nicklaus trio.

Neither Nicklaus nor Weiskopf, or any of the other leaders, believe the low scores will continue once the course dries out and the greens can be cut even lower than they are.

Lundquist In Women's Lead

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — The Ferncroft course that Dale Lundquist conquered may be short, but its big, rolling greens can make for some very long days.

"If I have to ever put my driver away, I'm in trouble. This course doesn't play short for me," she said. "The course is shortened, but the greens are very large. They may move the tees up but they can move the holes back."

Despite Injury Streak, Expos Playing Best Ball Of Season

Williamston Wins In Fifteen

ROBERSONVILLE — It was a long 'un. Washington and Williamston got together Thursday for a marathon American Legion battle and when the race was over Williamston had grabbed a 5-4 win in 15 innings.

Post 163, now 3-4, saw Washington take the lead, 4-3, in the top of the 15th but then rallied to score twice in the bottom of the inning to win.

Washington tied it up in the eighth on Vic Walls' solo home run and took a 3-2 lead in the 10th. Again, however, Williamston was able to rally.

With a steady round, she finished early Thursday with a 4-under-par 68 that stood up through the day and gave her a 1-stroke lead after the first round of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

"I think at least 10 under will win this tournament," Lundquist said. "The key to the first two rounds is to stay within four or five shots of the lead."

"When I learned to play bridge, I was taught to lead the top of partner's suit. However, the two of you do not follow this practice in your column. Why are you trying to confuse me?"

If nothing else, this plaint serves to date our reader, for in the early days of contract it was accepted practice to lead the top of partner's suit. We have previously pointed out why modern theory has departed from this method, and recently another hand came to us that again showed how wrong our forefathers were.

We do not reproduce the auction for any reason other than to record for posterity how South managed to reach the delicate contract of four spades. The only bid that deserves comment is North's three diamonds, which was invitational and non-forcing.

West, a player of the old school, led the jack of hearts — top of his partner's suit. East won the king and ace of hearts, but the defense was helpless. No matter how East continued, declarer would be able to win, draw trumps and force out the ace of diamonds. He would capture any return and make the rest of the tricks for his contract.

Today's expert would have led the four of hearts at trick one — low from three or four to an honor in partner's suit. Let's see what would happen in that case.

East would win the ace-king of hearts, felling declarer's queen. Now he can continue with a low heart to his partner's jack, thereby forcing declarer to ruff. Declarer can no longer make the contract!

If he draws trumps, East will be able to cash hearts when he gets in with the ace of diamonds. If he first knocks out the ace of diamonds, East can continue with a fourth round of hearts. Declarer, down to four trumps, must discard, so West ruffs with the ten of spades for the setting trick.

An Oasis For TV's Summer Doldrums

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is, in the desert of summer television, the occasional oasis.

"Omnibus" is back. Only for two shows, at first, and only on a trial basis, but you take your oases when you can get them.

"Omnibus" is a reprise of one of television's class entries of the fabled "Golden Age," which was a sort of "Saturday Evening Post" of television. Alistair Cooke hosted the show, on CBS and then ABC, on Sunday afternoons, before the NFL claimed that territory.

has been described as "a vaudeville show of the imagination," a happy, gentle mixture of poetry readings, drama, dance, conversation, an occasional adventure ... "60 Minutes" tranquilized.

Hal Holbrook is just right as host of the new "Omnibus" (to broadcast by ABC this Sunday night and next), charming and calm, promising "a vehicle for many different passengers." It is that.

Sunday's show is comprised of six segments, ranging from a rousing "Peter Pan" number to a Hollywood fashion show. Actor Lewis J. Stadler does a funny, warmly nostalgic bit from his one-man show, "Groucho."

There is a charming segment featuring country singer Loretta Lynn and opera king Luciano Pavarotti. They kid each other about their accents, and they sing — he belts out "La Donna e Mobile" from "Rigoletto" ("O Sole, Mio..."); she offers "I'm Pregnant Again" ("The car payment's late, the mortgage is due, I'm pregnant again, what will we do?")

It's fun. "Omnibus" is essentially classy variety, and as such, it has its share of silly. There's a feature with Pittsburgh Steeler receiver Lynn Swann dancing with Peter Martins of the New York City Ballet that's supposed to suggest a common artistry, but comes across as a couple of goofy-looking guys dressed in shorts running around on a football field set (they even use slo-mo instant replays).

Still, "Omnibus" is an uplifting entertainment, and nutritious viewing. TV can be fun without dulling the senses.

Jeffrey De Munn is younger son Sam, a college kid who sells his services and book-learned knowledge to a giant conglomerate that means to swallow up the Campanas and corner the wholesale crab market.

Fine acting jobs in a tense, taut family soap.

'Doc Adams' Of Dodge City Dies In Hospital

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Milburn Stone, known to millions of television viewers as Doc Adams in the long-running Western series "Gunsmoke," has died of apparent heart failure at the age of 75.

A close friend, producer A.C. Lyles, said the actor died early Thursday at Scripps Memorial Hospital. Stone, who had a coronary bypass operation in 1971, had been ill for a few days.

"He was one of my very dear friends and associates and just the ultimate professional actor," said Dennis Weaver, who as the perpetually complaining deputy Chester joined Doc Adams in numerous checker games. Doc — along with Chester, James Arness's Marshal Matt Dillon, Amanda Blake's saloon keeper Kitty and Ken Curtis's Festus — became one of the most beloved figures in television as "Gunsmoke" played out week after week for 20 years. In 1968, Stone won an Emmy for best supporting actor.

John Mantley, who produced "Gunsmoke" in its final years, called Stone "a marvelous man, a close friend and a splendid actor."

Kildare and Marcus Welby M.D., many wrote in asking him for prescriptions for their ailments. He got mail from doctors as well.

"About a dozen wrote telling me I had my stethoscope backward in one episode," he recalled.

In between filming, Stone was an equally popular draw on the state fair and rodeo circuit. Weaver recalled traveling with Stone and Miss Blake in the late 50s, and when Weaver left the series, his replacement, Curtis, joined Stone in a comedy act.

When the series ended, Stone and his wife, Jane, built a $300,000 home stocked with western and movie memorabilia in the resort community of Rancho Santa Fe, north of San Diego.

Stone was born July 5, 1904, in Burrton, Kan., about 150 miles from "Gunsmoke" locale, Dodge City. He was a good student and was offered an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy. But instead he joined a repertory company and in 1930 entered vaudeville with a song-and-dance act.

Stone's Broadway debut was in the 1932 Sinclair Lewis play, "The Jayhawkers," and two years later he appeared in his first film, "Ladies Crave Excitement."

He appeared in more than 150 movies, including "The Savage," "Arrowhead," "White Feather" and "The Long Gray Line."

Stone is survived by his wife and a daughter. Funeral arrangements were not announced immediately.

Famous Soviet Oil Center Is Now Dry

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
BAKU, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The vast oil fields girding this Caspian Sea port city once formed the backbone of the Soviet oil industry. But now the old wells are idle and drillers have moved out to sea in search of new supplies.

According to calculations of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the Soviet Union, now the world's No. 1 oil producer, will reach its peak production this year and begin to fall back in 1981. U.S. oil industry analysts call the CIA forecast unduly harsh, however.

Sitting behind her desk in a pre-revolutionary building in downtown Baku, the capital of the Azerbaijan republic in the Soviet south, Taira Tairova reeled off figures that clearly painted the picture of this region's decline as a major oil producing area.

"Last year we met the plan. Our oil production was 15.5 million (metric) tons — 3 percent of the Soviet total," said Mrs. Tairova, 66, the Azerbaijan foreign minister and an oil engineer. This is the equivalent of about 300,000 barrels of oil a day.

Based on the official Soviet total for 1979 of 586 million metric tons, or 4.1 billion barrels, Azerbaijan's production actually would be closer to 2.6 percent. The year before, the percentage was 2.8.

At its peak, during World War II, the republic pumped 71 percent of all Soviet oil.

Oil's importance for the region is clear. The main thoroughfare along the sea is called Oil Man Street. It runs into Oil Square. The warm air still is pungent with the smell of crude oil.

An oily film covers the sea near the shore. Big tankers wait to take on new loads of oil for shipment up the Volga River to the industrial north.

Baku's decline is twofold. The old wells have gone dry on the barren ground around the city. But more important has been the massive Soviet drive to develop new oil fields in the frozen and nearly inaccessible Siberia, 1,300 miles to the northeast.

The Siberian fields now produce 52 percent of Soviet oil and help maintain the Soviet Union's No. 1 position in world oil production at an estimated 11.7 million 42-gallon barrels a day. Saudi Arabia, which has the world's largest proven reserves with around 163.4 billion barrels, now produces 9.5 million barrels a day. Soviet reserves are estimated by U.S. oil sources at 67 billion barrels.

Despite Siberia's prominence in the overall Soviet oil production figures, Baku keeps its grip on past glory as a refining center and producer of oil drilling and transport equipment.

Kasum Kasumov, director of the Azerbaijan's oil refinery, said 30 percent of the facility's crude last year came from Siberia.

Proof of the Soviet plan to keep Baku at the forefront of refining lies with a massive pipeline building plan that eventually will link the area with Siberian fields by 1982. The Soviets show no intention, either, of giving up on what oil remains under the Caspian Sea near Baku.

Ferdun Musayev, chief of the Peschanoye field 15 miles offshore, claims that oil there is as pure as can be found anywhere.

The profit motive also is strong, Musayev says it costs his state-owned enterprise $23.25 to get a metric ton of crude oil out of the ground.

He sells it to the local refinery for $28. The same $23-a-ton crude is being sold to Yugoslavia, sources say, for $240 a ton, double what it was last year.

At that price the Yugoslavs are paying the Soviet Union about $34 a barrel for crude, as opposed to $28 that Saudi Arabia has been charging for its light-grade oil. The other communist states in Eastern Europe, members of the Warsaw Pact, are paying about 60 percent of that figure, Western experts say.

Poland and Czechoslovakia have just learned that no matter what the price, they won't be able to count on increased Soviet oil deliveries in the early part of this decade.

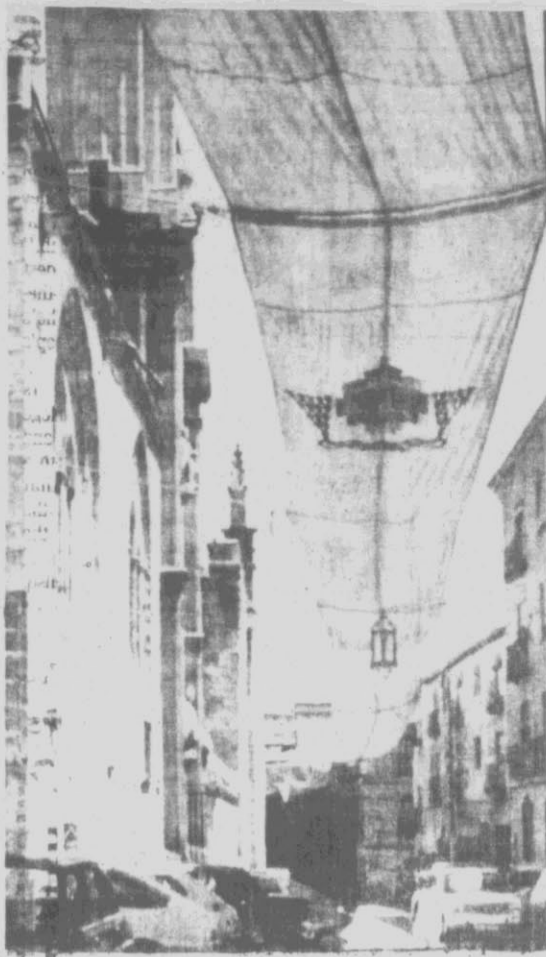

The restrictions on what the Warsaw Pact allies can buy seems to indicate that Soviet production now might be leveling off.

Three years ago, the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency predicted the Soviet Union would become an importer of oil by 1982. It said imports would amount to 700,000 barrels a day. The United States, which has about 28 billion barrels of oil reserves, now is importing around 7.6 million barrels a day.

The CIA forecast last month that Soviet output will peak at 12 million barrels a day this year and "begin falling next year," dropping to "10 million barrels a day or less."

The Soviet oil production of 4.1 billion barrels for all of 1979 was 49 million barrels short of the plan for the year. The production target for this year is 4.24 billion barrels, scaled back from earlier plans calling for the production of 4.34 million to 4.48 million barrels.

Quadriplegic Can Use Phone

By LILLIAN SWANSON
Associated Press Writer
QUIPPA, Pa. (AP) — When Robert Marince wants to phone a buddy or check on his order at a pet shop, he can't just pick up a receiver and dial.

The 21-year-old Hopewell Township resident is paralyzed from the neck down. He became a quadriplegic in an auto accident three years ago.

But Rob is able to reach outside his bedroom walls by using a telephone device that he can operate independently. All he has to do is whistle and his calls go through.

"It keeps me active," Rob said. "It keeps me knowing what's going on."

Lying flat on his back at his Beaver County home, Rob can answer incoming calls or "dial" regular and long distance numbers by whistling one of two pitches. The homemade device consists of readily available parts, including semiconductor chips, spare pinball machine parts, microphones and two speakerphones. It works this way:

Rob whistles a low note, which produces the same effect as picking up the telephone's receiver. Orange digital numbers begin flashing in sequence on a display case. When Rob sees the digit he wants he whistles a second, higher, pitch that puts that digit into the memory bank. When he has selected all seven digits, the call goes through.

To invent the telephone device, Gary Marince, Rob's older brother, enlisted the aid of a friend. After 200 to 300 hours of trial and error, the device was put into operation in November.

Gary is seeking a patent, but said he has no plans to market the device. He said he would be glad to share the idea with others trying to help the handicapped. "I really feel it has a lot to offer people," he said.

"It may be difficult to understand what it means to a person like Robbie to be able to talk on a telephone. That's an outlet," Gary added.

On a recent afternoon, Rob talked to a friend at a local radio station and got an update on worldwide news. Then his father called and Rob relayed the message to his mother.

"I'm the answering service when she (his mother) is doing the laundry," he teased.

"He's as active with a telephone as anyone else," Gary said.

Rob's hobbies range from his saltwater fish tank to his pet macaw.

Survey Planned During June

How many children do married women expect to have within the next five years? Will they average the same number as in the recent past? Answers to these questions will help indicate the future growth and composition of the nation's population, data vital to planners both in government and private business.

Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Census Bureau's regional office in Charlotte, said information on birth expectations of American women will be collected during the week of June 16-20 from a sample of households in this area.

Information supplied by individuals is kept strictly confidential by law. Results are used only to compile statistical totals. The interviewer for this area is Mrs. Janet P. Conway of Greenville.

Girls State Participants Selected

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 160 is sponsoring seven girls from Rose High School, all rising seniors, who will be participating in Girls' State this summer.

Those attending are Davena Cherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francine Anderson; Sarah Houston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L.P. Houston Jr.; Rose Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.N. Jackson; Ann Karsnak, daughter of Peggy C. Karsnak and John Andrew Karsnak II; Karen Kingsberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen J. Kingsberry Jr.; Anne Richards, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John T. Richards; and Billie Jessica Ward, daughter of James E. Ward and the late Golda B. Ward.

The Gathering Place

The manager of the Gathering Place, Gary Dolbee, would like to help you entertain your guest. If you are planning:

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I had an interesting experience in my office yesterday. It is significant enough for me to relate it to you, wondering if it could have as much meaning for you. A patient on whom I had operated a number of years ago came in for a routine visit. He began to extol the virtues of his routines of yogi exercises, jogging, health foods, meditation, and high vitamin intake. All of this stuck me as admirable in a man of 54 who was anxious to keep fit and healthy.

However, during the time that he spoke so enthusiastically about his daily regimes of exercise and diet he smoked six cigarettes in a period of 20 minutes. I was so fascinated by the paradox of a health faddist who was polluting his lungs (and mine, too) that I deliberately refrained from calling attention to this immediately. Before I broached the subject of his tobacco, I asked him if he was bothered by a cough. He casually mentioned that this occurred only when he lies down at night. With further questioning, I found that his sleep was interrupted by a hacking cough. Somehow, he gave no thought to its possible meaning.

This, then, gave me the opportunity to point out how life-threatening his tobacco was and how contrary was this habit to all of his life-extending exercises and special diets. Here is a man who is polluting his lungs with smoke, tars and nicotine, and running the risk of death-dealing emphysema, bronchiectasis, heart disease, cancer of the lung, cancer of the larynx, vascular disturbances, and even stroke.

Does this make sense to you? Think about the number of people that you know who are deeply involved in dozens of routines or programs that are "good for the health" and yet continue to remain addicted to the life-threatening habit of smoking.

Closely allied to this aspect of smoking is a new approach to giving up the habit. Two scientists at the University of California in Los Angeles indicate that quitting cigarettes by "cold turkey" is better than trying to cut down on them a little at a time. These doctors report that smokers who quit "cold turkey" are by far the most successful in overcoming tobacco withdrawal symptoms.

Dr. S.M. Shiffman and Dr. M.E. Jarvik recognize that the withdrawal effects are a major barrier to smokers trying to give up cigarettes. It is this withdrawal effect that is responsible for so many people returning to smoking. These doctors believe that those who try to cut down on their smoking are more likely to maintain the habit and return to their full-blown smoking pattern.

On the other hand, those who quit "cold turkey" seem to be able to hold out without withdrawal pains and are more likely to give up the habit entirely.

Solar Heating Discount Eyed

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Owners of solar heating systems will get a 10 percent discount on their utility bills, a move city officials believe may be the first such discount in the nation.

The discount will be granted to those who provide 50 percent or more of their domestic needs through solar-heated water. Palo Alto owns its utilities system, and is offering the discount as an incentive to increase the use of solar heating.

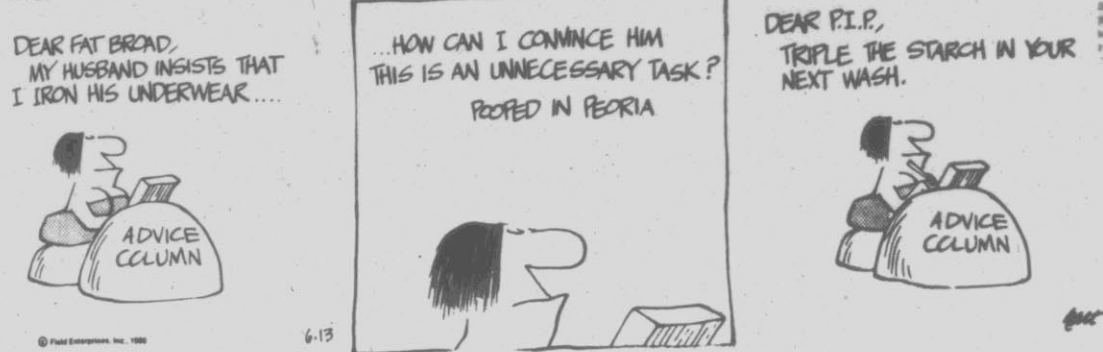

Utilities director Ed Aghajyan said Palo Alto expects to lose up to $6,000 in revenues the first year and more in later years.

DEFEND EFFORTS
MOSCOW (AP) — Vietnam has issued a document charging the U.S. with trying to discredit that country's attempts to "resolve the question of the Americans reported missing in action", the Soviet news agency Tass reports.

PLEASURE CENTER — The $50 million Sun City hotel complex is seen in its poolside view. Every weekend some 10,000 South Africans and other

SUN CITY RESORT — This glittering silver casino is part of the Bophuthatswana resort that some

visitors have suggested would be more aptly named Sun City, instead of Sun City. (UPI Photo)

Tourists Find Bophuthatswana's Forbidden Fruit

By HELEN GIBSON
SUN CITY

Bophuthatswana (UPI) — Sex and gambling are both forbidden fruits in South African entertainment, but tourists will find both flourish in Sun City in Bophuthatswana, a country only South Africa recognizes.

The independence of Bophuthatswana, the black "homeland" created by the South African government, may be ignored by the United Nations, but not by South Africans and other pleasure-seekers.

Every weekend some 10,000 of them charge across the Bophuthatswana border into Sun City, a 50 million hotel complex two hours by car from Johannesburg.

Some visitors have suggested Sun City would be more aptly named Sin City.

It offers everything from slot machines to high-stakes punto banco (baccarat) in a private roped-off section of the glittering silver casino. Soft porn movies fall all afternoon and evening and the million-dollar cabaret offers black and white beauties — topless.

Sol Kerzner, millionaire boss of the Southern Sun hotel chain and creator of Sun City, reckons guests soon will be splurging 120 million a year in his nowhere "fantasy" city.

Bophuthatswana President Lucas Mangope also loves the booming six-month-old, multi-racial oasis. His economically depressed country earns a lot from gambling and other tourist activities, and some 1,400 of his people have found employment here. Mangope allegedly drops into the hotel several times a week to check on operations.

About 80 percent of the visitors come from South Africa. Two or three conventions a week make it hard to find rooms at any time. But Kerzner hopes to encourage other tourists — including Americans and Europeans — to stop by.

The idea of a 900-bed hotel looking like a Mexican pyramid in the middle of the dry African bush with 250 one-armed bandits in the foyer and an artificial lake for water sports sounds brash and even vulgar. Yet somehow it all comes off.

Kerzner built a lobby larger than a football field, with an atrium five stories high. Dozens of mirrors line the circular black hall roofed in copper. The only light comes from silver Christmas tree bulbs that reflect in the mirrors, the copper and pools.

The general effect is something between the inside of a microwave oven and a "Star Wars" docking station. The main bar hangs like a giant copper space module from the center of the ceiling.

For guests who have come to see Africa rather than Las Vegas, there is a 130,000-acre game reserve next door. Sun City guests can tour it in safari vans.

In another two years, the plan is to have 14,000 animals from all parts of South Africa to supplement the leopards, baboons, hyena and buck that are indigenous to this area, one of the largest alkaline volcanic regions in the world.

Guests also can learn golf with international star Gary Player on the course he designed, swim in a vast pool set in tropical gardens, go bowling or play tennis with South African pros.

The Sun City complex is unique in southern Africa, but it is not the only hotel to cash in on Pretoria's prudishness.

Lesotho and Swaziland, former British protectorates and now independent enclave states within South African territory, also offer gambling and pornography around the clock.

Sun City guests, however, note that pornography in Sun City is "tasteful," not the hard variety of the other states. President Mangope is a religious man and would not have allowed it, they say.

Louisiana Seeks Crawfish Crop

By WOODY BAIRD
Associated Press Writer

CAJALOUPE, La. (AP) — Cajuns here will tell you there's a world of difference between the puny "crayfish" found in ditches and creeks up North and his fat Southern cousin, the Louisiana crawfish.

Take size, for example: while the little yankee critters are often used as fish bait, fishermen here use fish to bait their crawfish traps.

And taste. If biologist Don Gooch and his friends are successful, people from Maine to California will learn what folks hereabout have known for generations — crawfish make good eating.

"You could quadruple the production right now and sell every crawfish," Gooch said as he stood at the edge of his research pond inspecting a swarming catch of the big-clawed crustaceans. "People are calling for crawfish from all over the world."

Gooch is director of the Crawfish Research Center at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, located in the heart of French-Cajun country. He and other scientists are trying to boost crawfish production, improve harvesting methods and even develop a better crawfish, one with a bigger tail but smaller head and claws.

Louisiana crawfish look like small lobsters and are at least three inches long when they hit the market. Often they're much larger.

They taste like spicy shrimp and have been a delicacy in these parts for years. Fishermen plying their ancient trade in the wild Atchafalaya Basin and in the dark bayous of southern Louisiana are hard pressed just to keep up with local demand.

So in recent years, crawfish have been grown in ponds, and some large restaurants even manage their own so they'll have a steady supply.

That's where the scientists come into the picture.

Gooch said crawfish farmers won't be able to expand their markets until they use more scientific production methods.

"Nobody can sign a piece of paper now and guarantee a certain supply at a certain price," he said.

Gooch is also trying to convince rice farmers they can make extra money by turning their fields into crawfish ponds during the off season.

"They have everything they need," he said. "Their fields are surrounded by levees and they can drain them if they need to. Rice stubble left after harvesting is an ideal forage for crawfish."

An efficient, educated farmer, he said, can get 1,000 pounds of crawfish an acre each year.

The market price for crawfish varies considerably, but just now fishermen are getting about 60 cents a pound. In France, Gooch said, where crawfish also are a gourmet's delight, live crawfish sell for as much as $8 a pound.

Gooch said genetic studies won't be producing giant crawfish for some time, but harvesting can benefit from research immediately.

Using a specially designed pond, crawfish boat and traps, Gooch can cut a fisherman's work while increasing his catch.

For generations, Louisiana fishermen have used the same crude methods to harvest shallow water crawfish.

A fisherman slogs through the muddy marshlands, pulling a small boat behind him. As he works his stand of crawfish traps, he empties his catch into the boat.

It's slow, hard work.

Gooch and graduate assistant Charles Lutz ride in a flat-bottom boat equipped with a special outboard motor that runs in the shallow water of the experimental pond, which is equipped with levees and pumps to keep the water circulating.

As they go, one man pulls up full traps and dumps the crawfish into a trough that feeds them into bags. The other man, meanwhile, is baiting traps and dropping them back over the side.

They can run the 30-acre experimental pond in an hour.

"That used to be one full day's work for one man," Gooch said.

But Gooch said his harvesting methods, though far superior to the old way, still aren't good enough.

Eventually, he said, rice farmers may lay out their fields leaving open strips every so often. When it's time to harvest the crawfish, fishermen will drop a line of special pellets that attract crawfish, return with a seine and scoop them up.

Gooch said one area of research that must be better explored is what to do with crawfish waste, especially if people begin to eat lots more crawfish.

About 80 percent of a crawfish is inedible, but the waste is high in lime and protein. Gooch said scientists are trying to find ways to make fertilizer or livestock feed from it.

Shoeshiner In A Steady Job

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —

Samon Brewster began shining shoes at the foot of his father's barber chair when he was a small boy in Eldorado, Ark.

At 72, Brewster refuses to retire and fought the Milwaukee County Board for the right to maintain his post at General Mitchell Field where he and his employees have been giving shines for the last 26 years.

"I never want to retire," he said. "I don't want to retire because there are so many young people who don't want to get started in life. I want to be an example and work until I can't work."

Earlier this year the staff of the airport received letters from two people who said they wanted to take over the space Brewster has been paying 75 a month to rent for nearly a quarter-century.

The County Board considered opening the space up for bids. After some debate, local media coverage and two appearances by Brewster and his attorney, the County Board Transportation and Public Works Committee recommended Brewster be allowed to continue to run his stand on a month-by-month basis. But plans are under way to remodel the airport and county officials are unsure how many shoeshine stands will be included in the new floor plan or where they will be located.

Brewster said he's not worried.

"No, ma'am, I'm not afraid with the years I got out here," he said. "I never gave them trouble no kind of way. I feel like the board will let me keep them. I had never had no trouble out there."

"I worked with some mighty fine people for years. I feel like I don't have no enemies out there."

Brewster doesn't do much shining himself anymore. He has employed some young men whom he not only trains to shine, but teaches the hustle of a good shoeshiner.

"I love people as they come in," Brewster said. "All over, just nice people. You got to be all right yourself. You got to invite a warm welcome. Thank you come again. You got so many young people, you understand, who got a jaw-o-hard against everybody."

"I hope to be going back on a few days. I want to meet new friends and keep the old ones. I'm getting homesick for it."

Luce Guest On Radio Show

Scott Luce, geriatric specialist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p. m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCT radio.

He will talk about his work with the aging population in the community and about the need for public education about epilepsy.

Luce, who was recently elected president of the local chapter of the Epilepsy Association, said epilepsy can develop at any ages, although three out of four cases develop before the age of 18. In an effort to provide materials about epilepsy to teachers and school nurses, an annual School Alert information program is being sponsored by local chapters of the Epilepsy Foundation of America.

Luce also will talk about mental health outreach endeavors and prevention activities. He is available to work with both geriatric clients and concerned family members. Luce may be reached at the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center Annex by calling 752-0119 or at the center by calling 752-7151.

STEP UP AND RIDE A CAMEL — For just $1.50 American, tourists at the Great Wall of China can climb aboard a camel, don a costume and wave a sabre. An enterprising peasant, right, lowered the price last season because he had no takers at $7.50. (AP Laserphoto)

Egypt To Host U.S. Fighters For Exercises

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first deployment of U.S. F-4E jet fighters for training exercises with Egyptian warplanes next month may signal a gradual and cautious increase in American military air operations in the Middle East.

This was indicated Thursday by Gen. Lew Allen Jr., Air Force chief of staff, in an interview.

His remarks came in conjunction with a Pentagon announcement that a squadron of F-4 Phantom jets will fly to Cairo for about 90 days of joint training to "give the pilots and crew members of both countries additional experience with regard to operating sophisticated equipment in the area."

The twelve planes and about 400 U.S. Air Force personnel will travel from Moody Air Force Base, Ga., and will live and work in temporary shelters and maintenance shops during the unprecedented exercises, which will include live firing on Egyptian ranges.

As Allen pictured it, the operation will be beneficial for both air forces: The Egyptians will be able to sharpen their skills in flying 35 U.S.-supplied F-4s, while "it's in our interest to learn to operate in that region."

Looking at the F-4 deployment in a broader context, Allen spoke of "a cautious U.S. effort to project force into that area in ways that do not exacerbate tensions."

He made it clear that U.S. strategists hope to expand such periodic U.S. air operations into the Middle East-Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf areas, possibly to include similar joint exercises with the air force of Saudi Arabia, which already is partially equipped with American planes and which is buying 60 F-15 jets.

Further, Allen said, the United States would like to expand its recently agreed access to Oman, which is strategically located on the approaches to the Persian Gulf, to permit some U.S. air operations around that country.

U.S. naval power in the region was built to major proportions last fall after Iran's seizure of U.S. hostages and the later military move into Afghanistan by the Soviet Union. Apparently because the U.S. fleet stayed well to sea, this caused only minor political ripples in the area.

But the presence of U.S. military aircraft, even on a periodic basis, at air fields in some Persian Gulf-Indian Ocean nations apparently would be more politically sensitive because, U.S. officials said, such a presence would appear to some countries closer to United States.

Allen left no doubt Saudi Arabian security, considered by U.S. strategists to be the key, so U.S. objectives in the area are concerned. Saudi Arabia is the biggest source of U.S. oil imports.

Speaking of the Persian Gulf and the neighboring Mideast region, Allen said, "What we'd like to do is obtain experience in operating in the area and, by so doing, increasing tolerance of nations in that area to our operations."

This, he said, would be done "by gradually increasing deployments," subject to approval of the countries concerned.

"From a military point of view," Allen added, "our interests are to expand our activities (in the Persian Gulf region) as the political realities will permit."

He said "the most limiting factor to our operations in the Persian Gulf area" has been the lack of bases to provide fuel, water and a variety of support for U.S. air and naval units.

Allen conspicuously avoided mentioning Israel in his scenario for increased U.S. military air operations in that part of the world. Under questioning, he conceded that there were "overwhelmingly political" restraints against joint U.S.-Israeli operations, which he said would "cause concern to some neighbors" of Israel.

Rock Song Is Adopted By N.J.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — "Born to Run," a rock song urging young people to flee a "death trap" town, has been endorsed by the New Jersey Assembly as the unofficial theme of the state's youth.

The state's lower house gave voice-vote approval Thursday to a resolution hailing the song and its author, Freehold native and rock music star Bruce Springsteen.

The Assembly also approved a bill to name "I'm From New Jersey" as the official state song. The song was written 20 years ago by Joseph "Red" Mascara, a Phillipsburg chemical operator.

Springsteen fans had hoped to have "Born to Run" declared the official state song, but some lawmakers questioned whether it was a song to be proud of. Others argued it was "an anthem for people who are trying to better themselves."

TIM ALLEN

Producer Takes Honors

KINSTON — A Winterville livestock producer took top honors in the Twenty-Sixth Annual North Carolina Hog Show held June 10 in the Lenoir County Livestock Arena. Tim Allen, a registered Duroc breeder, walked away from the competition with two trophies and two ribbons.

Allen won the Reserve Champion Pen of Three Hogs competition, beating out 28 other pen of threes. The Pen of Three Competition included all breeds. The producer also won Reserve Grand Champion Truckload of Six Competition, all Durocs. Seven other truckload of sixes competed in this event. Allen received a second place ribbon for Reserve Breed Champion competition, all Durocs.

The farmer has been in the purebred livestock business since 1970. He has won honors in the show several years prior to this one. The show was sponsored by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, the North Carolina Pork Producers Association, and the Kinston Chamber of Commerce. Judge for the show was Dick Nash of Sharpville, Ind.

Hogs were judged on their basis of the most desirable, or largest, carcass.

Balloonist Will Pay For Damage

QUEBEC, Canada (AP) — Balloonist Maxie Anderson was treated to a drink by a Canadian farmer when he agreed to pay $1,500 for damage caused when his balloon, the Kitty Hawk, landed in a field last month.

Rosaire Plourde's field was trampled when Anderson's balloon, chased by reporters and the curious, landed there at the end of a flight across North America.

Anderson, a New Mexico mining executive, told reporters Thursday that after his balloon trip across the Atlantic two years ago, he and his companions landed in a barley field in France.

Charge Of Bid-Rigging May Require Revision

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Troubled by charges of bid-rigging on paving projects, state officials say they may have to start all over on the procedures they use to estimate the cost of highway projects in North Carolina.

A special deputy attorney general reported earlier this week that representatives of a Charlotte contractor that has pleaded guilty to bid-rigging charges say most of the paving contractors in North Carolina plan their bids in advance on state projects.

The State Transportation Board was to meet today to consider sanctions against the Rea Construction Co., which pleaded guilty last week to rigging bids on an airport project in Charlotte and a highway job in Wake County. Earlier Rea officials also admitted they rigged bids on an airport project in Richmond, Va.

Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw, who has said the state may take over paving projects with its own crews, said Thursday that a new system of estimating highway costs will be needed if the alleged bid-rigging is as widespread as reported by H. Al Cole of the attorney general's office.

"If it's that rampant, they've destroyed our estimating system," Bradshaw said.

Bradshaw said highway project estimators may begin calling on suppliers and asking for prices of various items, instead of basing their estimates on the cost of previous jobs.

Low bids on state highway projects last year averaged 5.5 percent less than the cost estimated by the Division of Highways.

Cole said Wednesday that representatives of Rea Construction had told him that "virtually all, if not all" paving contractors in the state got together to arrange their bids on state projects.

One large contractor, Nello L. Teer Jr. of Durham, said Thursday he knew of no bid-rigging in the industry. Of Cole, Teer said: "He sounds like a jackass."

Teer, president of the Terr Co. of Durham, said Cole's statement condemned an entire industry based on information from one contractor admittedly guilty of rigging bids.

"I presume no industry is without its bad apples. But I have no way of knowing. I know my company is not involved," Teer said.

The News and Observer of Raleigh, in a story published today, quoted a contractor who was not named as saying numerous contractors or their representatives meet at a Raleigh motel before each project is awarded by the state.

"It's been going on since at least the Depression. It's principally on the large jobs and it principally revolves around the large contractors," the contractor was quoted as saying.

"Paving is a very, very risky business ... What they're doing is completely and totally illegal but they're strictly trying to protect their turf," the contractor said.

Usage of these products in a conscientious program, following directions on each label, will provide you with vigorous, healthy, and beautiful plants.

Roses come in many forms and colors. Each of these types can be successfully grown with a specific program of ferti-lome rose products and regular watering. Two thorough waterings per week will do it. In addition to rose foods, ferti-lome provides specific rose products for insect control and disease control.

Planting

Using a sharp hand pruner, cut off any broken or dead roots. Be sure hole in ground is large enough to allow roots to spread comfortably. Pack soil firmly around roots. Fill hole with water, allow to soak in and fill again. Now add remainder of soil to fill hole. Prune tops back to 6 or 8 inches (4 to 6 inches on floribundas).

Systemic Action means that the insect control enters the root system of the plant and therefore protects every part of the plant by traveling the plant's own sap system. This also means that it cannot be washed off the plant's exterior.
