First Postgraduate Med School Residents Being Honored Today

The first medical and dental residents to complete postgraduate training at the East Carolina University School of Medicine and its related facilities here are being honored today at 4 p. m. in a ceremony that symbolizes a milestone in the development of the state's new four-year medical school.

The first four physicians to receive all their postgraduate training at ECU are specialists in family medicine and plan to remain in North Carolina to practice.

Two of them — Dr. George R. Everhart and Dr. Danny E. Huntley — plan to establish a private practice together in Salisbury. Everhart is originally from Spencer, a town contiguous to Salisbury, and Huntley is from Charlotte.

Dr. Lee R. Trent, from Richmond, Va., will join the faculty of the Family Practice Center here as an instructor of family practice.

Dr. Jerome E. Groll, a Wilmington, Del. native, has already established private practice here in Greenville.

Dr. Charles E. Burnham, originally from Lutherville, Md., will go into private practice in dentistry in Henderson and Dr. C. Douglas Peeden, from Halifax, will serve as a clinical staff dentist at ECU. The two are the first dental residents to complete the one-year training program in dentistry here.

The completion of their training is significant, Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, Associate Dean for External Affairs of the ECU School of Medicine, said, because it shows that the School of Medicine has met the goal of training its first practitioners, although it will not graduate its first medical students until 1981.

"These physicians," he said, "are the first real evidence that ECU is meeting the objectives set by the State General Assembly and the UNC Board of Governors when the school was authorized nearly six years ago. The school has a commitment to the state to train primary care physicians — specialists in family practice, pediatrics, medicine, and obstetrics and gynecology."

Dr. James G. Jones, chairman of the Department of Family Practice, explained that residents in the three-year family practice program spend most of their time caring for their panel of patients in the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center. The center, located adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital here, is a modern complex of doctors' offices operated by the medical school's Department of Family Practice. A special dental module in the center is equipped for postgraduate training in dentistry.

The School of Medicine's residency programs are supported by Pitt County Memorial Hospital, which serves as the school's primary facility for clinical training, and the Eastern Area Health Education Center, which provided construction funds for the Family Practice Center and offers continuing budget support for residency rotations in health care settings throughout Eastern North Carolina.

Carter Wants Hussein To Join Negotiations

By MICHAEL PUTZEL, Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will try to convince King Hussein of Jordan to join a renewed effort to decide the political future of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories, the president said in remarks made public Saturday.

Carter also repeatedly misquoted a key point in the 1978 Camp David accords dealing with Israel's right to maintain military outposts in the West Bank and Gaza after withdrawing its occupying forces.

Hussein is scheduled to arrive in Washington on Monday. He will meet with administration officials Tuesday and Wednesday in a state visit that U.S. officials hope will lead to improved relations with the Jordanian leader who was once America's closest friend in the Arab world.

The president's remarks came in a question-and-answer session with representatives of American Jewish publications on Friday. A transcript of the meeting was made public by the White House on Saturday.

Asked if Hussein is ready to take an active part in Middle East peace talks, Carter said he plans to use his first meeting with the Jordanian monarch since the signing of the Camp David accords to "use all the persuasive power that I have" to convince him to join the negotiating process set up by the accords.

Hussein was furious because he wasn't consulted before Carter summoned Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to the Maryland presidential retreat for intensive negotiations that led to the historic separate peace between the two nations.

Although the West Bank of the Jordan River belonged to Jordan before the 1967 Six-day War, and although the accords contemplate Jordan's participation in determining its future, Hussein has refused to have anything to do with the autonomy talks between Egypt and Israel.

Those talks, which for more than a year have failed to produce the promised self-government for 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs in the West Bank and Gaza, are scheduled to resume in Washington in early July.

While Carter said, "I will certainly encourage King Hussein to join in these talks as soon as it's possible for him to agree to do so," U.S. officials said the administration doesn't really expect any such breakthrough.

One administration source, who asked not to be named, said Carter's aim during his talks with Hussein will be "a resumption of friendly persuasion."

Three times, in discussing the key issue of Israeli security in the occupied territories, Carter referred to the accords' supposed use of the term "agreed locations" for the establishment of Israeli outposts, suggesting that the actual sites Israeli security forces will occupy are open to negotiation.

The actual language of the accords uses the term

"specified locations," and Israel insists that means it will decide where to position those forces.

After urging his listeners to "re-read the text because this is the text we follow meticulously," Carter cited the supposed use of the term "agreed locations" in explaining U.S. policy toward Israel's right to security.

He was asked: "Who else, besides Israel, is to determine Israel's security on the West Bank?"

Carter replied: "The phrase that's used in the Camp David accords is 'agreed location,' and the presumption there is that Israel would make proposals about where those outposts were to be made, and if there is a comprehensive settlement, the others would be involved. But I would say the primary choice of the outposts would be with Israel... If Israel proposed a location or a series of locations that was not acceptable, then Israel would not have to agree to the overall settlement."

Later in the interview, a questioner suggested to Carter that the agreement called for "specified locations, not agreed locations... a clear difference that the Israelis had requested."

"I'll let somebody bring the text back to you in just a few minutes and read it to you," Carter said. "I need to go."

In the transcript of the meeting, the White House acknowledged the correct quotation is "specified locations."

U.S. Production Plunged In May

By EILEEN ALT POWELL, Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

Production at the nation's factories, mines and mills plunged 2.1 percent last month as the recession continued to spread through the economy, the government reported Friday.

Meanwhile, the recession-bred slack in demand for consumer and business loans prompted the Chemical Bank in New York, the nation's sixth largest, to lower its prime commercial lending rate a full percentage point to 12 percent.

A number of other major banks quickly followed suit.

The action lowers the interest rate commercial banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers to the level that prevailed in August.

And it accompanied the Federal Reserve's decision to lower its key bank lending rate on Friday to 11 percent, where it stood before the central bank began fighting inflation by tightening up money and credit last October.

The May drop in industrial production was the fourth consecutive monthly decline and reduced factory output to its lowest level in two years, according to the Federal Reserve report.

The drop was the largest since a 2.2 percent decline in February 1975 during the last recession and followed a 2 percent production dropoff in April, the data indicated.

"Reductions in output occurred in all major market groupings and were particularly sizable for automotive products, home goods, construction supplies and durable goods materials," the report said.

William Cox, deputy chief Commerce Department economist, pointed out that the production decline of 4.8 percentage points since January was not as great as the 11 point drop that occurred during December 1974 through March 1975, which was the last time production declined for four consecutive months.

"Are larger drops ahead?" he was asked. "I would doubt that, simply because I continue to believe that we are seeing the worst of this recession in terms of the rate of contraction at present and that we are likely to see at least a beginning of a bottoming (in the recession) in the third quarter," Cox responded.

The Carter administration has been predicting a "mild and short" downturn.

However, joblessness in May rose to 7.8 percent of the workforce, or well above the administration's prediction of no more than 7.2 percent unemployment by year's end.

Most private economists now are saying that the 1980 recession could be the second worst since World War II, surpassed only by the 1974-75 downturn, and that unemployment could exceed 8.5 percent by year's end.

In other economic news Friday, the U.S. League of Savings Associations said mortgage activity in May dropped to the lowest level since March 1975, during the last recession.

The value of mortgages that were closed last month was $3 billion, the Washington-based trade association said.

This matched the March 1975 level, represented a 32 percent drop from the $4.4 billion in mortgage loans closed in April and was 71 percent behind the $10.2 billion pace of May 1979, the league said.

The Federal Reserve report said the index of industrial production stood at 145.5 in May, or 45.5 percent ahead of its 1967 base of 100.

This was 4.5 percent below the level in May 1979 and the lowest since a 144.8 reading in May 1978.

The index had dropped 0.2 percent in February and 0.5 percent in March.

The most significant drop in May occurred in the production of durable goods, those with a usefulness of three years or more.

Durable goods production, which includes autos, fell 4.9 percent in May, matching the drop in April.

This reflected "sharp declines in autos, utility vehicles, appliances, furniture and carpeting," the report said.

It added, "auto assemblies, at an annual rate of 5.5 million units, were about 8 percent lower than in April and about 40 percent below the level of a year earlier."

As a result, the production of durable goods was 18.8 percent behind the pace for May 1979, the report showed.

Meanwhile, the production of non-durable goods, which are those with a usefulness of less than three years, dropped 0.5 percent in May following a 0.7 percent decline in April to stand 0.7 percent below the May 1979 rate.

The report gave these other breakdowns:

—The output of finished products fell 1.5 percent in May after dropping 1.3 percent in April to stand 3.2 percent below the level in May 1979.

—The production of consumer goods was off 1.7 percent in May, versus 1.8 percent in April, while production of business equipment slid 1.2 percent following a 0.9 percent decline.

—Intermediate production fell 2.7 percent in May following April's 3.2 percent drop to stand 6.8 percent below the level of May 1979.

Huge American Flag Unfurled

By H. JOSEF HEBERT, Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

With the help of Boy Scouts, American Legion volunteers and passing tourists, Len Silverfine unfurled the largest flag in America on Saturday — a two-acre, polyester Old Glory bigger than a football field.

There was no flying in breezy sunshine for the gigantic banner, however. The red, white and blue expanse was spread out across the green grass near the foot of the Washington Monument.

The flag is 210 feet high and 411 feet long. Each of its 50 white stars measures 13 feet from tip to tip; each of its 13 alternating red and white stripes stretches 16 feet tall.

Silverfine, a former New York advertising executive, doesn't expect the flag's 86,310 square feet to always be just lying around. He plans to raise the gigantic banner next year on the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge in New York City, where it will face the Statue of Liberty and greet visitors to this country.

Four years ago Silverfine began a similar project and hoisted a 76,000-square-foot flag on the bridge only to see it tear after only eight hours. Silverfine, determined to try again, began a campaign for a new flag, this one 20 percent larger.

Saturday's unfurling was only the flag's second since it was completed near Evansville, Ind.

More than 100 persons pulled at the seven-ton flag to spread it on the grass after it had been lifted from a special truck with a crane. The display was short-lived. About two hours after the banner was unfolded, Silverfine was using a bulldozer to direct spectators in refolding the flag.

The banner's debut here was the highlight of the capital's Flag Day ceremonies, which also featured appearances by the U.S. Army Band

ECU Facility Move Rumored

By STUART SAVAGE, Reflector Staff Writer

"I'm disappointed to say the least," Miriam Moore, dean of the School of Home Economics at East Carolina University said Friday, when asked about rumors that the school's Bloxton Home Management House, located near Greene Dorm, will be occupied in the near future by other university agencies.

"I've had no official notice," Mrs. Moore said, but, "the rumor I heard," is that the home management house, "is being taken by two other facilities. I've not been informed about this."

"I can't believe the administration would not let me know about this. This is my concern...a 'back door' approach...not being told what changes are being planned."

"I'm very much upset that I wouldn't have been consulted on this coming about."

Robert Maier, vice-chancellor for Academic Affairs could not be contacted Friday for comment. However, Vice chancellor for Business Affairs Cliff Moore said his office has received a copy of a letter to vice-chancellor Elmer Meyer, requesting that the Career Planning and Placement office telephones be moved from the old Jenkins Alumni Building to the Bloxton House on June 24.

Meyer, vice chancellor of Student Life, under whose supervision the planning and placement office is operated, acknowledged that such a move has been proposed. However, he added that it would be, "a temporary arrangement," until the school's Planning Commission completes studies on the best use of school facilities.

James Lowery, director of the university's physical plant, when asked about the proposal, explained that the placement office hoped to be moved by July 1. The Institute of Coastal and Marine Resources, now located in Wright Building, will move into the alumni building space vacated by the placement office, Lowery noted.

He explained that the area of Wright Building now occupied by the Marine Resources Center is scheduled for renovation. "We've got to get those people out of there."

Chancellor Thomas Brewer, who said the proposal to move the placement office, "is still on the staff level," for consideration, noted that the possible move of the Marine Resources office would be the third move for that office.

According to Brewer, space in the old cafeteria building — built in 1909 as one of the first six buildings at the school — was renovated at a cost of $12,000, and occupied by Marine Resources. Shortly after they moved into the quarters, the roof on the building began to sag, Brewer explained, forcing the offices to move into Wright Building. He added that estimates to repair the roof of the old cafeteria have been in the neighborhood of $190,000.

Brewer emphasized that Marine Resources, "can't occupy that space," in the old cafeteria. "It's a growing institute bringing in a lot of grant money," and has to have somewhere to go.

The Bloxton House, according to Brewer, has been, "unused for several years. Nothing has gone on there for several years. That's the reason the proposal was made."

One administration official asked about the move suggested that, "it's a heck of a way to do business," if Mrs. Moore has not been informed about the plan.

Mrs. Moore, who will return to the classroom in August, after 18 years as head of the home economics at ECU, explained that the home management house has been used in the past to train students in home management. She added that the School has submitted proposals to the ECU administration which would result in the increased use of the facility — such as a family research center and use by students, faculty and alumni as a site for luncheons and dinners.

Simple Funeral Held For Ohira

OHIRA FUNERAL — Hiroshi Ohira, son of the late Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira, carries his father's ashes as he accompanies his mother following cremation of Ohira's remains Saturday in Tokyo. Ohira died June 12 at age 70. Ohira was a member of Japan's Christian minority. (AP Wirephoto).

By ANTONIO KAMIYA
TOKYO (UPI) — Three thousand friends, relatives and politicians mourned Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira in a simple but solemn Christian funeral service Saturday. His death left the ruling Liberal Democratic Party leaderless as campaigning for a crucial general election entered its final week.

Following the ceremony at Ohira's private residence in Tokyo's exclusive Setagaya residential area, a hearse bore the body of the Japanese statesman, to a crematorium in downtown Tokyo.

Ohira, who died of a massive heart attack Thursday at age 70, was cremated with some of his favorite personal belongings, including a golf cap, sources said. In accordance with tradition, close family members later used chopsticks to collect the bones and ashes.

The ashes will be scattered following a state funeral after the June 22 elections for the upper and lower houses of parliament, officials said.

Sources close to the LDP said it would seek "sympathy votes" from Japanese voters. The party — conservative, pro-business and pro-American — has ruled Japan for a quarter of a century, but in recent years its strength has been eroding.

Recordings of speeches Ohira made before he was hospitalized with exhaustion May 30 have been mailed to official candidates running on the party ticket, sources said.

Some LDP candidates wore black armbands as they roamed the streets in sound trucks broadcasting election slogans over loudspeakers. Opposition candidates also mounted intense campaigning.

Ohira's widow Shigeko and their son Hiroshi officiated at the two-hour funeral as mourners filed past the cross-draped casket. Women guests sobbed audibly as the Rev. Kunisuke Saw read passages from the Bible and a women's choir sang psalms.

Ohira was a baptized Christian though not a regular churchgoer.

His close friend and political ally, Acting Prime Minister Masayoshi Itoh, helped bear the casket to the hearse for the short trip to the crematorium.

Four Members Of Family Perish

MOUNT AIRY, N.C. (AP) — Four members of a Pinnacle family died Friday night in a fiery collision with a tractor-trailer, officials said.

The Highway Patrol said the car was struck in the rear by a truck driven by Roger Carle McKinney of Columbus, Ind., and was knocked through an intersection into another car.

Killed in the 8:30 p.m. wreck on U.S. 52 north were Thomas B. Jones, 43; his wife, Shirley, 39; their daughter, Karen, 17, and their son, Nathan, 2, the patrol said.

The driver of the second car, J.W. McMillan, 55, of Mount Airy, and his wife, Garnell Hazel, 58, were injured in the wreck, the patrol said. Mrs. McMillan was being treated at Northern Surry Hospital, where she was listed in satisfactory condition this morning.

McMillan and McKinney, who was also injured, were treated at Mount Airy Hospital and released.

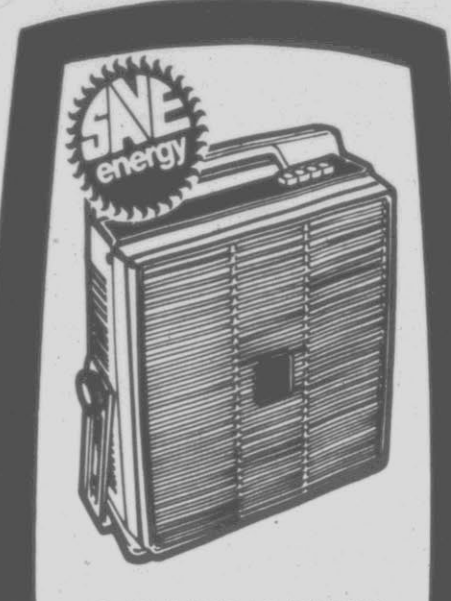

McKinney was being held this morning at the Surry County Jail in Dobson on charges in connection with the accident, a jail spokesman said. The patrol said McKinney had been charged with four counts of manslaughter and with driving too fast for conditions.

The patrol said the bodies of the Jones family were burned beyond recognition in the crash.

Iranian Leaders Condemn Violence Within Iran

HEBRIDES CULTISTS MARCH — Carrying make-believe rifles, members of the John Frum Society march on the New Hebrides island of Tanna, in this file photo. Members of the group, along with other cultists, who believe a World War II GI god will ascend from a volcano with worldly goods, rebelled May

By SAJID RIZVI
TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — The son of Ayatollah Khomeini denounced Moslem militants Saturday for last week's bloody rioting, saying his father's fanatic disciples should be ashamed of violent acts against opposition groups in Iran.

An Islamic clergyman, Sayed Ahmad Khomeini called the attack, "a disgrace to God and Islam." He told fundamentalists, "If force could rule, the shah would still be here."

In Stockholm, Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh welcomed President Carter's statement that the United States would pursue all peaceful means to resolve the crisis in relations between the two countries.

"This is a hopeful and positive stand," Ghotbzadeh said. "I welcome it. We hope his words will be translated into realities. We believe the only way to deal with this problem has to be peaceful and honorable."

Ghotbzadeh said he thought a meeting with Carter would be useful, but not possible at the moment.

"Probably it would be a good thing, but it would be a very bad thing for me back home," the foreign minister said.

The younger Khomeini's statements came as political analysts said the fighting between Islamic militants and rival groups may lead to a breakdown in public order.

A member of the Mujahideen Khalq (People's Warriors) organization, the largest opposition group, was killed and nearly 400 persons were hurt when militants tried to break up a 100,000-strong rally at a stadium near the U.S. Embassy.

The fundamentalist newspaper Islamic Republic accused the left-leaning Mujahideen group of trying "to create martyrs for itself" to further "the interests of American imperialism" during the hostage crisis, now 224 days old.

Some observers said the five hours of shooting outside the embassy looked like it might have provided cover for another rescue attempt.

But the militants who seized the U.S. installation Nov. 4 say the hostages were dispersed across 15 cities following the April rescue attempt that aborted in central Iran, killing eight members of the mission.

In an interview with the Ettelaat newspaper, President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said if the hostages were brought to trial on spy charges the sessions would have to be conducted differently than Iran's secret revolutionary trials.

"These are foreigners," Bani-Sadr said. "They will not accept that kind of trial. They would ask for a lawyer and ask for an open trial and full investigation."

If some of the hostages were to be found not guilty, he said, "What answer can we give? Won't they ask why they were held all that long?"

He said such questions had to be answered "without opportunism, but it must be seen as to what decision the Majlis (parliament) will take on this matter."

The Islamic parliament is scheduled to meet in July to discuss the hostage issue, but analysts expect the choice of a prime minister to be taken up first.

May Lose Millions In Loans

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government could lose up to $8 million on loan guarantees to an Alabama contracting firm that apparently benefited from the intervention of two U.S. senators, a congressman and the Carter White House.

The loan guarantees were issued under a 7-year-old Agriculture Department program designed to create jobs in rural America but which is coming under increasing scrutiny as possibly a new source of political favoritism.

Some Agriculture department officials point to the case of Ball-Co Contractors Inc. of Bay Minette, Ala., as an example of some of the problems facing their business and industrial loan program.

Over the past three years, Ball-Co has received $9.3 million in loans guaranteed from 80 percent to 90 percent by the federal government. That means that if Ball-Co goes out of business, the taxpayers will be stuck with an $8 million bill.

The loan guarantees were made despite the strong objections of the federal loan officer assigned to the case, who repeatedly warned his superiors that the company was in poor financial shape and a bad credit risk.

The president of Ball-Co,

Lowell Harrelson, however, was supported in his loan applications by the late Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., Allen's widow, Maryon, who was appointed to his seat after he died in June 1978, and Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala.

The last of the three loan guarantees was issued in August 1978 after an inquiry from President Carter's chief of congressional liaison, Frank Moore, who had received a strongly worded demand for action on the guarantee from Mrs. Allen.

Despite the government's help, Ball-Co's financial condition continued to worsen and the firm began selling off its equipment early in 1979. It currently continues a scaled-down operation and is seeking restructuring of its loans.

Agriculture Department officials, however, believe the government will eventually be forced to accept a loss of at least $4.5 million and some privately say the loss could be much greater.

The concern about such potential losses on high-risk loans has led Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland to begin tightening lending procedures.

Last month, the department issued new guidelines intended to increase review of loan applicants and to reduce — or at least pinpoint — one of the program's apparent problems, the use of political influence.

Since its creation in 1974, the program has assisted hundreds of enterprises to get started or keep going in rural communities. Those businesses have ranged from a steel mill in West Virginia to a racket ball court in Ohio.

Harrelson sought loan guarantees under the program when his building and mechanical contracting firm ran into financial trouble in the mid-1970s and lost its bonding, which insures a contractor's satisfactory completion of a job.

In his effort to obtain the guarantees, he had the backing of Allen, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture subcommittee on credit, and Edwards, who represents Harrelson's district.

Cuban Sealift Ends

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — The sealift of Cuban refugees came to a halt Saturday morning and even Cuba's Prensa Latina news agency agreed it was virtually over.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency reported no boats reached Key West between midnight and noon and the Coast Guard said none had been sighted heading across the Florida Straits toward Key West.

Prensa Latina in a dispatch quoting Saturday's edition of the Cuban Communist Party daily Granma said there were only 15 boats remaining in the harbor at Mariel. It said 118 "anti-social elements" left the port Friday for the U.S.

However, U.S. Customs at Key West recorded only one boat with 47 refugees aboard arriving during the 24 hours ending at midnight Friday.

Friday's arrivals brought the refugee total since April 21 to 113,434 persons aboard 1,913 boats. Another 652 boats returned empty. A total of 1,004 boats have been seized by federal authorities for bringing aliens without visas into the U.S. since May 15, when President Carter issued an order to halt the sealift.

Still A Candidate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ted Kennedy says he still is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination. Why not? He has nothing more to lose and potentially plenty to gain between now and the party's national convention in August.

It would have been really amazing if Kennedy had surrendered after winning five of the last eight primaries or at his meeting with President Carter late that week. It would have thrown away just about any gain he could salvage from six months of physically and emotionally exhausting campaigning.

Just look at George Bush. He threw in the towel before the last week of primaries and got about 15 seconds on the evening television shows. Hasn't been heard of since.

That won't happen to Kennedy. He will be in the mind of the president and his campaign staff

Lake Plan Won't Hold Water

Beverly Lake, the GOP candidate for governor in North Carolina has come up with a plan for cutting the tax bill of our citizens.

All we have to do is cut $143 million from the state budget.

In making the proposal, Lake said Gov. Hunt's proposed budget for 1980-81 is "irresponsible in the extreme."

Lake's plan calls for reducing the budgets of all state agencies by 5 and 10 percent, excluding the state auditor and treasurer departments. Gov. Hunt's budget calls for ten percent raises for state employees. Lake calls for significant salary increases, but the amount is "undetermined. There would be no increases for the governor, lieutenant governor, General Assembly, school principals and "political appointees."

Lake said his proposals would "give general, substantial tax relief to the people of North Carolina."

Sen. Lake's proposals sound tempting to we overburdened taxpayers and certainly we favor decreased government spending and a lower tax burden on our citizens.

We can tell it is an election year, however, when the plans come forth for general tax decreases and general reductions of all governmental agency budgets.

Simply lopping some off all budgets could do great harm to money programs, while leaving others with the fat still in them. What is really needed at all levels of government is administrators who are willing to show the courage and energy to dig into departmental budgets and really cut out the unnecessary spending. We can have adequate government services and lower tax bills, too, but it won't be done by general slashing of the budgets.

The Lake plan won't hold water.

Prime Minister's Death Is A World Loss

Japan is one of our strongest economic competitors and, at the same time, one of our staunchest friends; consequently it is a matter of great concern that its prime minister, Masayoshi Ohira has suddenly died.

The 70-year-old prime minister, who has been a friend to the United States, died suddenly of a heart attack.

A political struggle is expected in Japan to choose his successor, and, while no great changes in U.S.-Japan relations is expected, there is concern about an unknown leader taking over.

The death of the prime minister is a major loss for Japan, and it is also a loss for our own nation and the world.

Troubled Budget-Making

By BILL NOBLITT

RALIEGH — Deepening recession and angry taxpayers combine to confront county commissioners in North Carolina with what specialists consider "the most troubled budget-making period for counties since the 1974 recession."

The education budget is the most prominent problem, according to officials with the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners.

School boards are asking for sizable increases in county funds, and a sample of the action shows the range of increases being sought: Bladen schools want 48 percent more; Pender is seeking 32 percent; Orange wants 24 percent; Davidson is pushing 16 percent, and both Burke and Watauga are asking 13 percent.

And most counties pushing for big increases are following Wake's example. Asking a 30 percent increase, school officials are turning the screws on county commissioners by going public with their needs and proposed solutions. Meetings are being packed with citizens demanding more school money, and the press is being urged to report conditions.

Most local school boards are pushing budgets which exceed the generally accepted 13 to 15 percent inflation rate. Two matters are blamed: rising cost of fuel and other energy; and the pending state raise for teachers which will require that locally hired educators get matching money. The bottom raise is 10 percent, with changes in the salary schedule boosting that to 15 or 20 percent in many instances.

What?

A news release from the North Carolina Department of Transportation about the prospects being improved for rail service between Raleigh and Charlotte, possibly connecting with Winston and Greensboro as well, intends to fully inform the public.

A note printed on the mailout is addressed to "Media," and reads: "Audio actuality is available on the Media Update Line (MUD) this weekend."

Converted from governmental gobbledegook, that seems to mean that they have a recorded story on the telephone if radio or television stations want to use it.

More Jobs

Some may wring their hands in anxiety over such environmental impacts as an oil refinery, an aluminum plant using a lot of electricity, or the prospects of computer manufacturing firms turning the Research Triangle area into "silicon valley east."

But Gov. Jim Hunt says his renomination campaign has proved one thing to him: people can appreciate the immediate impact of more jobs and better paying jobs and what that means to them and their families far more than they can appreciate the possible environmental impacts.

Wherever he went across the state, Hunt says, individuals repeatedly thanked him for his efforts at getting new jobs, and urged him to keep that activity at the top of his list of priorities.

Better jobs, says Hunt, cut across all manner of social problems affecting a host of ills which government seeks to correct; problems such as nutrition and health and education yield to increasingly more affluent families. Rewards go not only to those out of work or on low incomes, but to merchants and service personnel and professional as well.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Russian Afghan Dividends

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON

— Despite new evidence showing popular resistance to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan far beyond anything anticipated by Moscow, the widening split in the Western alliance is making it difficult for President Carter to exploit what ought to be an opportunity against the Kremlin.

The evidence is clear: rapid disintegration and unreliability of the Soviet-controlled Afghan army, assassination of Soviet and pro-Soviet officials, rising Russian casualties.

But Western Europe — especially France and West Germany — shows no liking for any muscled response to the Dec. 1979 invasion despite strong pressure from Carter. Thus, the Kremlin can bide its time in achieving control over 15 million Afghans. There is nothing standing in the way.

"A major benefit for Moscow is discovering they can do this Afghan invasion without the Europeans rising up," one administration official told us. "That's quite a discovery."

President Carter had to beg, cajole and genuflect to win even the marginally-thin support he has gained from America's NATO allies. Only West Germany has boycotted the Moscow Olympics, and none of the Europeans like Carter's effort to block sophisticated industrial equipment for the Russians.

Carter's own response to the invasion was mild enough, particularly in view of his hot rhetoric. But at least the president was realistic enough to withdraw his cherished Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT II) from the Senate, and, in effect, to decree a temporary end of detente.

In contrast, his allies want to shrug off the invasion as of no real concern and get about their money-making business of ever more trade with the East. But now, considering the continued political and military resistance in Afghanistan, is the time to press Western demands to get out. Carter knows that the European "cover" position — that the Kremlin can soon be persuaded to let Afghanistan revert to its historic neutrality — is fraudulent.

That leaves him in a difficult position to handle the most devastating setback to the West thus far in his administration. Without the full, aggressive support of Western Europe, Carter's policy is stuck on dead center. Considering what is actually happening on the ground in Afghanistan, this may be the last moment — and certainly the most advantageous time — to compel the Russians to cease and desist.

STEWARDSHIP
Christian people have generally held to one of two ideals in reference to possession of money. They have either said that money is essentially evil and as a result have turned to the ascetic life, or else they have believed that money is a factor which consecrated to God can be of use in His kingdom. The latter belief is known as stewardship.

This is undoubtedly the truth which the Bible teaches about money. A steward is a trustee administering property which belongs to someone else. Stewardship is the acknowledgment that God ultimately owns everything, and that we are trustees holding divine gifts in our possession for a short time and are obligated to use them for the upbuilding of our lives, the welfare of our fellows, and the glory of God. Stewardship is a Christian duty, but it is also a rich source of satisfaction and reward. — Elisha Douglass

China Thaw Signs

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent VATICAN CITY (AP) — Faint, fuzzy signals of growing rapport have been passing through the frigid upper air between St. Peter's Square and the Square of Heavenly Peace.

Two cardinals, princes of the Roman Catholic Church, have traveled in communist China in recent months, discreetly exploring full-time diplomatic ties. Cardinals Franz Koenig of Vienna and Roger Etchegary of Marseilles were received with courtesy and even religious respect in the People's Republic of China where only three decades ago American bishops were imprisoned as spies, all foreign missionaries expelled, convents disbanded and churches turned into theaters, army barracks and granaries.

On Easter Sunday, 1:30 p.m. Rome time and 7:30 p.m. all across China, Vatican radio made its first transmission of a Mass in the Chinese language and reported "no difficulty." In layman's language this means there was no government attempt to jam the broadcast. Father Joseph Shi, a professor at Rome's Gregorian University and director of Chinese programming at Vatican radio, celebrated the Mass over the Jesuit-run station, which had been transmitting a daily half hour cultural commentary, but at the pope's urging stepped up its religious content. Jesuit Michael Chu, who was permitted to visit relatives in China last year preached a sermon on the resurrection of Christ.

(The Raleigh Times)

North Carolina's road system deserves the pride the state takes in it. But with the Auto Age showing wrinkles and slowing its gait, just keeping the vast Tar Heel road network pridesworthy and serviceable — let alone improving it — will rapidly get harder.

It could get impossible unless the state is willing to freshen up its thinking on financing highways.

The first official version of that fresh look won't come 'til next fall, when a blue ribbon commission led by ex-Governor and Supreme Court Justice Dan K. Moore formally reports.

But road funds are drying up so fast that legislators now briefly in town had better heed the early word on probable Moore Commission recommendations. They are expected to be two — a 4 percent wholesale gasoline surcharge and a hefty boost in the sales tax limit on cars, trucks, planes and boats.

The surcharge tax would, of course raise gas prices at the pump. But that is bound to happen anyway, and to go on happening, whether the extra money goes to OPEC and the Seven Sisters or to the public. The nation and the world are including to ration it any other way.

The second suggestion, upping the maximum sales tax on vehicles, boats and planes from $120 to $300 is already overdue. With a $120 limit, the buyer of a Cadillac, a four-passenger Cessna or a sleep-in power cruiser pays no more sales tax on his $10,000 to $30,000 purchase than the buyer of a $4,000 used Pontiac.

This has never been right. The higher vehicle prices go, the wronger it gets. Removing the limit and changing the rate from 3 to 2 percent would equalize the bite — and bring in enough to cover funding the Highway Fund from the General Fund instead of, as now, from the Highway Fund.

Last week Congress refused to let President Carter, through his 10-cent gas tax proposal try to discourage wasteful driving and reap some public benefit at the same time.

The 4 percent gas surcharge would have some of both these efforts at the state level. Why shouldn't Tar Heel drivers get back, by keeping their roads in shape, some of the money they're bound to spend anyway on gasoline?

Aerospace Sees Own Problems

By JOHN CUNNIFF

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Supported by a backlog of orders for commercial jets, and with defense spending destined to rise again, California's huge aerospace industry looks almost immune to recession.

But what recession cannot do, a unique housing situation might. The house that costs $50,000 in many parts of the country can cost $100,000 here, or enough to discourage skilled workers from accepting transfers.

The impact is likely to grow, even as jobs grow scarcer in many parts of the nation. Even now, Lockheed Aircraft reports some difficulty in findings engineers, riveters and welders for its Sunnyvale operations.

"It's hard to find a house they can afford," said Harry Biederman, Lockheed economist, who feels he was lucky to have bought a house near here for around $60,000 12 years ago. It may be worth $300,000 now.

While most of the industry's problem is in the electronics component, centered nearer San Francisco than here, there is no assurance it won't spread. Housing inflation hurts all skills, and collars blue and white.

But the fact that the industry can continue to expand — in spite of housing prices and in the midst of a general recession — testifies to the strength of a rare combination of economic forces.

The first is defense spending. Ted Gibson, Crocker National Bank vice president and economist, an aerospace authority, estimates that nearly 20 percent of all U.S. defense procurement spending is in California. Any increase at all is bound to be felt here, he believes.

The second is the pressing need of commercial airlines for fuel-efficient jets. "All of a sudden," says Gibson, "your modern jet airliner is obsolete because of the fuel situation."

Gibson concedes that many airlines are in poor financial shape for making major investments. He doesn't discount the possibility of some cancellation of orders, but most lines, he feels, have no choice but to buy. "They're going to have to re-equip," he says flatly.

The situation at Lockheed, based in nearby Burbank, lends weight to his statement. "We expect to continue making 1011s at the rate of 25 a year, and we won't reduce it until mid-1982, if then," said Biederman.

While McDonnell Douglas Corp. may cut some production of DC-10s, they and other aerospace companies in the state — and Boeing, based in Washington but a big subcontractor here — should share in the bonanza.

What this means to California cannot be discounted. Aerospace and electronics — so entwined they are often considered one industry — account for 620,000 jobs, or 31 percent of all those in manufacturing.

Seeking to be more specific, Gibson somewhat arbitrarily breaks this total into 367,000 electronic workers and 252,000 in "traditional aerospace," those involved with air and spacecrafts, and missiles.

In the past year traditional aerospace employment has grown 11 percent, and almost all industry and financial analysts project continued growth right into 1985, recession or not.

What is harder to foresee, and equally hard to understand, is where the labor supply will come from if immigrant workers can't find a place in which to live. With single-family home prices already resuming their upward climb in some areas, that problem isn't likely to improve.

Biederman has found one possibility, at least for the short term. "The recession (in other industries)," he believes, "will make some people available." And some of them already own houses here.

Public Sees Some Hope

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — For the first time in almost two years, the American public is beginning to be less pessimistic about the prospects for a continuation of the nation's crippling inflation rate.

In the latest Gallup survey, not only has there been a sharp increase in the proportion of Americans who expect prices to rise less steeply than they have in the past 12 months, but perceptions about their personal financial situation a year from now also show a marked improvement.

Nevertheless, while the public is more optimistic about the future outlook for inflation and for their own personal financial situation, it remains decidedly gloomy about the present state of the national economy. Most political observers agree that if the nation's faltering economy continues to worsen between now and November, President Jimmy Carter's chances for reelection will be seriously jeopardized.

An assessment of the public's current economic mood brings the following to light:

1. A higher percentage of Americans today than in March believe prices will rise less sharply during the next 12 months. At the same time, about seven in 10 (69 percent) think there will either be no improvement from current high inflation rates or that inflation will get worse.

Here is the question asked and the national results:

"During the next 12 months, do you expect prices to go up at about the SAME RATE as in the last 12 months, or will inflation get WORSE, or will there be LESS inflation..."

	CHANGE IN INFLATION RATE
	March	LATEST (May 16-19)
Less inflation	9%	25%
Same rate	35	30
Worse inflation	49	39
No opinion	7	6

2. There is also a positive trend since April in the percentage of the public anticipating an improvement in their personal financial situation.

Following is the question asked and the national comparison with the April findings:

"Now looking ahead — do you expect that this time NEXT YEAR you will be financially BETTER OFF than now, or WORSE OFF than now?"

	CHANGE IN FINANCIAL SITUATION
	April	LATEST (May 16-19)
Better off than now	34%	41%
Same	21	23
Worse off than now	38	28
No opinion	7	8

3. Although the public remains very pessimistic about economic conditions in the country as a whole, a slightly smaller majority today than in April foresees bad economic times during the next 12 months.

The question, national results and the recent trend:

"Thinking of economic conditions in the country AS A WHOLE, during the next 12 months do you expect the country will have GOOD TIMES financially, or BAD TIMES, or what?"

	ECONOMIC CONDITIONS DURING NEXT YEAR
	April	LATEST (May 16-19)
Good times	8%	11%
Mixed	10	12
Bad times	75	70
No opinion	7	7

4. Americans' perceptions on the bedrock issue of whether their income will outstrip prices continue to be strongly negative, with a majority feeling they will lose ground to the inflation within the coming year.

Here is the question asked and the national comparisons:

"During the next 12 months, do you expect your income to go up MORE than prices go up, about the SAME, or LESS than prices go up?"

	INCOME UP MORE THAN PRICES?
	April	LATEST (May 16-19)
More than prices	8%	7%
Same	28	30
Less than prices	58	55
No opinion	6	8

5. The Gallup Poll's latest Job Security Index — the proportion of adult Americans holding either full-time or part-time jobs outside the home who think it is very or fairly likely they will lose their jobs within the next 12 months — is now at 14 percent, or about the same as the 12 percent recorded last November. However, with the "official" government unemployment figure for May reaching 7.8 percent, it is significant to note that an additional 14 percent of Americans feel their jobs are in jeopardy.

Here is the question asked and a comparison of the current national findings with those from the November survey:

"Thinking about the next 12 months — how likely do you think it is that you will lose your job or be laid off — very likely, fairly likely, not too likely or not at all likely?"

controlling Communist Party. One administration report claims that "if the present uneasy truce" between the two feuding factions continues, "there could be another major upheaval," ending all pretense that an Afghan government exists.

In fact, it does not exist. Administration officials say that even foreign embassies of Afghanistan are now "completely subservient and responsive" to Soviet ambassadors in each capital of the world.

It is no wonder, then, that Kremlin planning today does not even contemplate any future withdrawal from Afghanistan: If the Russians went home, anti-Soviet insurrection would take over. To counter this, the Soviet occupiers are trying to brainwash Afghan youth with new Soviet-style textbooks, molding education to fit Moscow's view of history in hopes of building a pro-Soviet generation for the future.

Evidence that the Russians are digging in for the long haul is pervasive: The first Soviet railroad to Kabul is being constructed; two permanent bridges are replacing the pontoons that carried Soviet troops into their bloody invasion over the river along the Soviet-Afghan border; the tour of duty for Soviet troops in Afghanistan has just been extended to two years; fuel storage bladders are being replaced by extensive underground storage facilities.

Tapi Tajbek Palace, where Soviet gunmen assassinated President Amin Dec. 29 as the invasion hit high gear, is being cleaned up and renovated. The new occupant of this historic Afghan treasure, a Soviet command headquarters to run the country.

Carter administration officials discount reports that a major reinforcement of the 85,000 Soviet troops fighting in Afghanistan is about to occur. With the West split in its response to the first case of military aggression outside the Warsaw Pact since World War II, the Kremlin can proceed slowly. It wants no bad headlines until the Olympics have finished celebrating the just and peaceful nature of Soviet foreign policy.

In truth, Soviet subjugation of Afghanistan, slow or fast, would have been impossible against a West that was united, militarily prepared and armed with a common strategy for dealing with the Russians. Since none of those three conditions exist, it matters little whether Moscow encounters hard times in Afghanistan, a fact of utmost gravity in the struggle for world pre-eminence.

As I Recall It Since Tolar, Commanders Come From Ranks

By NOEL YANCEY

Mourners at the funeral of Tobe Moore back in February 1950 were horrified when an automobile sped past the house with its siren blaring loud enough to awaken the dead Beaufort County farmer.

That caper plus a couple of arrests for speeding cost C.R. "Tony" Tolar his job as commander of the State Highway Patrol.

The appointment of Tolar, a 39-year-old Raleigh farmer and used car dealer and former N.C. State University football player, to head the patrol was about as big a boner as W. Kerr Scott made as governor.

Tolar, a hefty, affable extrovert, got his patrol job as reward for having served as Scott's campaign chauffeur and before that as driver for J. Melville Broughton in his U.S. Senate campaign. He had none of the coldly professional air that all the patrol heads since him have possessed. And the fact that Scott went outside the patrol for a commander aroused resentment among that group of professional law enforcement men.

The Raleigh man had another strike against him when he was sworn in as patrol commander. About a week before Scott announced the appointment, two officers at Scotland Neck said in an affidavit that Tolar had tried to "pressure" them into not issuing a ticket when they arrested him for speeding several months before.

Chief of Police J.W. Cobb and Officer W.Z. Moore swore Tolar had urged them to forget the ticket because "he (Tolar) was due to be appointed head of the State Highway Patrol next year." Cobb said Tolar had driven through Scotland Neck at 50 to 60 miles per hour when they stopped him. He paid court costs in the case.

Tolar, who was born on St. Patrick's Day in 1910 and liked to sport a green shirt and tie on his birthdays, appeared to be doing pretty well as patrol commander, until he happened on the Tobe Moore funeral scene at Chocowinity on Feb. 28, 1950. Witnesses said there were automobiles parked on both sides of the highway by mourners attending the services. When Tolar drove up, a policeman tried to flag him to a halt. But instead of stopping, he turned on his siren and sped past the house.

Almost a month later, the Beaufort County Grand Jury indicted Tolar on charges of careless and reckless driving and of improper use of his siren at a funeral. Three months later, Tolar was acquitted on the reckless driving charge. At the same time, Superior Court Judge Henry Stevens declared a mistrial on the illegal use of siren charge after a jury reported it was "hopelessly deadlocked."

Tolar had testified he did not realize a funeral was in progress when he blasted away on his siren. Two days after his indictment, Tolar had announced that he would drive to Chocowinity to apologize to the Moore family. He said he was "terribly sorry" and explained that he thought cars along the highway "were parked there as the result of an accident" and he used his siren so he could hasten to the scene.

But by the time Tolar was tried, he was no longer patrol commander. About three weeks after the Beaufort County indictment, Tolar was charged with speeding on Bragg Boulevard at Fayetteville. He pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs. He wrote Scott offering to resign, but told the governor his speeding was not intentional. He said he felt "if I should break the law, I should pay as any other citizen of the state."

But Tolar was upset when Scott accepted the resignation. Referring to the fact the speeding arrest was on Easter Sunday, Tolar told

Fiddlers' Convention A Source Of School Funds

TUSCALOOSA COUNTY, ALA. — During the depression years, the schools of our county were so impoverished that officials could not make ends meet without soliciting funds from private citizens. Thus a phenomenon known as the "fiddlers convention" became popular. Star fiddlers, guitar pickers, harmonica players and the like would congregate for an evening at a particular school and compete for prize money sometimes as steep as $3.

Folks for miles around would shell out hard-earned cash for admission tickets, pennies more to enter or sponsor someone in the "pretty girl contests" and still more to bid for cakes and pies auctioned by women of the community. As a result, the schools could buy coal to heat their classrooms, pay light bills and replace broken window panes. Then one night the emcee called on a candidate for Congress "to say a few words" to the audience. Other politicians heard of the happening and trickled into later fiddlers conventions to address the crowds, sponsor "pretty girls," and generally solicit votes.

With that was born a completely new institution, unique to the area and still vividly remembered — the famed political rallies of Tuscaloosa county. During the 1940s, these rallies became even more popular when the women of the communities seized the idea of having public suppers along with the rallies.

Crowds would squeeze into one-armed, old-fashioned desks in rooms heated by coal stoves; tank up on fried chicken and chocolate cake; and listen to the speech-makers tell why they should be elected to everything from coroner to the governor of Alabama.

The events, as social as they were political, became so popular that during the Democratic primary season there was a rally almost every night.

Families and followers of the office seekers would pass out literature proclaiming the virtues of their candidates, then give away an array of politically-embazoned gifts, from lollipops to thimbles to matchbooks, nailfiles and pencils. They would shake hands with voters (sometimes several times over), and send forth special cheers for their man (or woman) at the conclusion of his or her talk, and eat lots of food. Indeed the wife of one contender claims to have gained 14 pounds during one of these "mad merry-go-round" seasons!

From 1940 until the county's rallies ebbed three decades later, there was a single master of ceremonies for all of them — Bob Kyle, a political reporter for The Tuscaloosa News. An accomplished musician who had won many a prize at the earlier fiddlers conventions, Kyle believes "one of the reasons why the rallies were so successful is that they were short."

In fact, Kyle ran his rallies with a stop clock designed to keep the speakers within a two or three minute limit.

"At the start of a rally I would tell everybody how long the candidates had to talk, and that those who kept talkin' after the bell had rung were 'losers'. That clock is what saved the day."

Today, the solemn, pipe-smoking newspaper man remembers one gathering in particular. It served as a platform for 42 speakers and "lasted from 7 to 8 p.m.," he says with pride.

Another memorable rally centered around the race for county coroner. "One candidate brought a skull to the speakers platform, then challenged his opponent, a chiropractor, to declare whether it was a man or a woman and how long it had been dead. His opponent replied, 'I've seen a lot of dead ones in my day, but that's the deadiest one I've ever seen.'"

Due to changing customs and priorities, the Tuscaloosa County political rallies, Bob Kyle style, faded to mere memories during the early parts of the 1970s.

Kyle, retired now as a reporter but still a celebrity to the many readers of his daily column, "Fiddlin' Around," can't help but compare current election techniques with those he coordinated.

"They talk about debates now, but we had a debate every night for three months. We could look at the set of their ears and how they wore their britches. They met each other face to face."

A Consumer Advocate Gets An Early Start

Living with a consumer advocate may be Linda Ronstadt's cup of decaffeinated tea, but it will take 20 years off the life of a usual woman.

I should know. I've been living with an aspiring Ralph Nader for the past two months. It all began when Meg came home from preschool and announced in a jaded tone of voice, "I am sick and tired of school. Those three-year-olds are going to be the death of me."

"Why is that?" I asked. She sank down into a chair and shook her head. "They are so loud I can't stand it. My teacher calls it noise solution."

I soon found out that ending noise solution was only the first of Meg's many causes. It wasn't long before she was telling her grandmother that her nasty cigarettes would give her black lung if she didn't quit smoking.

She informed me that if I didn't clean up the house, the baby would get sick from the germs. When I asked her about her room, she quickly replied that it didn't count because the baby never went in there.

This double standard upon which Meg's consumer advocacy operates becomes increasingly obvious as the days go by. Not long ago she pointed out that I should not eat Oreos because they make me fat.

"Fat is no where it's at," she told me. "Thin is in. Drink a Tab."

She, however, is not adversely affected by cookie calories. They are, in fact, an excellent source of energy for children.

She is also down on caffeine for adults. I cannot drink a cup of coffee without risking a rebuke. Meg doesn't know what the coffee is going to do to me, but she knows its effect must be dire.

She, on the other hand, is immune to the consequences. At least that's the impression she gave me the afternoon I acquiesced to her repeated requests for iced tea.

After a few sips she smacked her lips with a satisfaction which surpassed Don Meredith's. "This is so refreshing, and I can drink it because it doesn't have caffeine."

"Yes it does," I said. "No, only hot drinks have caffeine."

"I don't know where you got that idea. Meg. Iced tea has caffeine, too."

She was horrified. "And you're letting me drink it? You ought to be ashamed."

"Good grief, I'm sorry. I'll pour it out."
She gripped her glass. "No! I haven't finished!"
"You mean you're going to drink it anyway?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I'm just a little kid. I don't know any better."

Washington's Counter-Conference On Family

WASHINGTON — This past week saw two entirely different conferences on the American family. Probably you heard about the noisy one, over in Baltimore. Let me say a word about the quiet one, here in Washington.

The noisy sessions, financed by tax funds, were stage-managed by the White House Conference on Families, Under the domination of social activists, the Baltimore conference notably concerned itself with homosexual rights, abortion rights, and with demands for greater governmental programs in such areas as health insurance and child care centers.

The counter conference in Washington, financed by private funds, was sponsored by the American Family Institute. It was as one-sidedly conservative as the Baltimore affair was one-sidedly liberal. Participants were not concerned with getting government into family affairs; they were concerned with keeping government out.

In the nature of things, the quiet conference commanded no attention in the press. Nobody stomped out.

Nobody picketed. There isn't much news, as any editor will tell you, in a day-long symposium dedicated to strengthening the institution of the family. Old values are old news.

But the institute's speakers made great good sense. One of them was Mr. Justice William Rehnquist of the Supreme Court. His purpose was to deplore the increasing tendency to resolve family differences in courts of law. He remarked upon such bizarre lawsuits as the complaints filed by children here and there charging their parents with being bad parents — with imposing too much discipline and granting too few privileges. If parents want their teen-agers home by 11 p.m., Rehnquist was suggesting, this is no business of the courts.

The afternoon's principal speaker was Paul Johnson, former editor of the New Statesman, now a scholar attached to the American Enterprise Institute. His superlative address made more sense than all the Baltimore effusions put together.

"The conventional liberal wisdom," Dr. Johnson observed, "teaches us to see the family as a restrictive, even a repressive force in society — the last surviving institution of the Victorian Age, against which youth is properly encouraged to revolt." On the contrary, he would argue that the family today "is essentially a protective force, and not least against the claims of the state."

"The family provides an area of private custom, as opposed to public law. It is an alternative to the state as a focus of loyalty, and thus a humanizing force in society. Unlike the state, it upholds non-material values — makes them paramount, indeed... It scorns the exclusive economics of profit-and-loss. It rejects political ideology as a sole guide in life. The family, in fact, is a gentle ideology in itself, because it is inconceivable without a system of morality based on altruism."

"The family embraces tradition, rather than fashionable dogma. It upholds a balance of rights and responsibilities, and not merely within generations. It insists upon respect for the past and concern for the future. We are to farm, not to plunder, the earth. We are to honor the memory and heed the wishes of our forebears. And we are to plan not just for ourselves but for our posterity — all this is family doctrine."

In Dr. Johnson's view, these previous values today are imperiled by the encroaching state. A social and legal system gradually is emerging "in which marriage has no legitimate status and the family no natural role." The stable, monogamous marriage is yielding to trendy and transitory relationships. "It is with consternation — and almost with disbelief — that we observe today the systematic and deliberate attempt to undermine the institution of the bourgeois family, and the legal definition of marriage on which it rests."

Serious readers who share such concerns may want to get a copy of Dr. Johnson's address from the American Family Institute, 114 Fifth Street S.E., Washington, D.C. 20003. Over in Baltimore, the proceedings were mostly hot air and froth. Here in Washington, they went to the heart of what "family" is all about.

Carter Still Expanding His Delegate Total

MEDALS FOR NEWSMEN — Commandant of the Marine Corps. Gen. Robert H. Barrow pins a Bronze Star on Charles Mohr of the New York Times, one of three newsmen who received the medal in Washington Friday the three, the only civilians to receive the Navy citation for action in the Vietnam War, were honored for disregarding their personal safety to rescue a mortally wounded Marine during the first Tet offensive in Hue, South Vietnam, on Feb. 19, 1968. President Carter boosted his delegate total ever so slightly Saturday as Democrats held state conventions in five states but his gains were still greater than those of Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Carter expanded his delegate total by just three over previous projections at the Colorado and Missouri state conventions while Kennedy eked out just one more delegate.

Democrats were also holding party conventions in Iowa, Washington state and Idaho.

According to UPI's delegate count, Carter now has 1,978 actual or projected delegates — well above the 1,666 needed for a first ballot nomination at the Democratic National Convention in New York. Kennedy has 1,231 and 124 are uncommitted.

Colorado will now send 20 Carter delegates, 14 Kennedy delegates and six uncommitted delegates to the August convention.

The state party convention at Boulder, Colo., completed selection of the state's 40-member delegation with the selection of 13 delegates — six for Carter, four for Kennedy and three uncommitted.

The results plus other shifts boosted Carter's Colorado delegate total by seven and Kennedy's by one. Previous projections showed Carter and Kennedy with 13 Colorado delegates each and 14 uncommitted.

In Columbia, Mo., the Missouri Democratic Convention rounded out its 77-member delegation with the selection of 24 delegates — 17 for Carter and seven uncommitted. Five uncommitted delegates are Kennedy supporters.

The state will now send 57 Carter delegates, five Kennedy delegates and 25 uncommitted delegates to New York.

Carter lost four delegates from previous projections, which showed him with 61 Missouri delegates to five for Kennedy and 11 uncommitted.

There was no change in the Iowa delegate count as a result of the state party convention in Des Moines. Carter still has 31 Iowa delegates to 17 for Kennedy and two uncommitted.

handsome twin-spired Catholic cathedral, which was supposed to reopen soon. In Shanghai, the Moore Memorial Methodist church had reopened and there had been "a cautious beginning" of services at the Catholic cathedral. Five Protestant missionaries are restoring the old Methodist mission at Fuzhou in Fujian province on the southeast coast.

On Easter Sunday in Peking, according to the Turin daily, La Stampa, 2,000 Catholics joined in Easter services led by Bishop Michael Fu Tieshan, who was consecrated in December without Vatican approval and is regarded as one stumbling block to ecclesiastical detente between Christian Rome and atheistic Peking. Recently printed tiny prayer books for Catholic and Protestant Chinese reportedly are selling faster than the thoughts of Chairman Mao, and there are plans to publish a new Chinese Bible and reopen the former Union Theological Seminary in Nanjing.

How much of a Christian spark survives in the ashes of long dead martyrs in the world's most populous country is difficult to determine, even with the Vatican's finely tuned faith seeking devices.

China has always been an elusive missionary goal. Dying on Sancian Island, within sight of his dream, mainland China, the great 16th century missionary St. Francis Xavier considered himself a failure because he never got to set foot in China. Yet wave after wave of European and American missionaries made a sturdy beginning.

When Maryknoll's Brooklyn-born Francis Xavier Ford named for the famed "Apostle of the East," was building his cathedral at Kaying in the Hk-ka hills at the outset of World War II, the town crier went through the fields ringing a bell and calling out, "time for evening prayers, come to night services."

When two jeeps of communist soldiers drove up to his seminary at Christmas time, 1950, to carry him off to the prison where he died, with the crowds chanting "death to Ford the spy," the 60-year-old bishop could look back, on 33 years of service in the Chinese vineyard. He had ordained the first native priests and seen the church grow to include 144 Chinese dioceses, 27 native bishops, including Chinese bishops in the large sees of Shanghai, Peking and Canton, an archbishop, China's first cardinal, 2,547 Chinese priests, 6,000 seminarians and 4,735 native nuns.

newsmen he "was crucified for the Scott administration on Easter Sunday." He told reporters Scott had been stopped twice for speeding in No. 1, the governor's official limousine.

"I don't understand his line of reasoning," Tolar said of the governor. "...The fastest I ever rode in this state was in No. 1. Governor Scott was in the car. We made about 85."

But Scott, who had told reporters Tolar had done "a fool thing" and had made "a mighty big mistake" in driving past the funeral scene with his siren blaring, proved he could learn from his mistakes: He appointed Maj. James R. Smith, a patrol veteran, to succeed Tolar and thereby started a tradition. Since Tolar, all patrol commanders have been men who came up through the ranks.

Small, But Sweet

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's peach farmers are anticipating a smaller but sweeter than normal crop, officials say. Joyce Smitherman, a spokesman for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service in Troy, said this year's crop would be slightly smaller than last year's. But she added that habitually dry weather during the past several months that are sweeter because they contain a lower percentage of water.

Some peach stands are now open, and peaches are selling for $6 to $7 a bushel, about the same as last year.

Robert Chappell, whose orchard is near Candor, said, "We'll be just a little below last year. We had a big crop last year, and usually after a big year things drop off a little and some of the buds won't grow as much."

D.P. Gallimore, of Richmond County, said a period of cold weather in March had killed some of the buds on his trees, which will yield only 60 percent to 70 percent of what they did last year.

"I think we'll still have a nice crop if it rains. A little rain would make things look good," he said. However, an expected big crop this year for Georgia and South Carolina peach growers could hurt North Carolina producers, Gallimore said.

Harvesting season lasts until August.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury charged Friday that Rep. John W. Jenrette Jr. took a bribe after promising to introduce legislation that would allow an Arab businessman to remain in the United States.

The indictment said the South Carolina Democrat arranged for a Richmond, Va., businessman, John Stowe, to receive a $50,000 bribe from an FBI undercover agent last Dec. 6.

The three-count indictment said Jenrette and Stowe, who also was indicted, believed the federal agent was represented an Arab business-

Jenrette is the third member of Congress to be indicted as a result of the political corruption investigation code-named Abscam. Reps. Raymond Lederer and Michael O. "Ozzie" Myers, both Pennsylvania Democrats, were indicted earlier this month.

Four other House members and a senator have been implicated in the probe, in which FBI agents posed as front men for fictitious Arab businessmen seeking legislative help.

"I'm relieved and yet deeply saddened," Jenrette told a news conference in Florence, S.C. He said he was relieved that the investigation was moving toward a conclusion but saddened because he felt the Justice Department had been trying to find wrongdoing in his activities for the past five years.

Jenrette, who is running for re-election, accused the Justice Department of "trying to do at the ballot box what they failed to do at any jury box." He said he planned "to continue a rigorous campaign and to be renominated and re-elected."

The indictment Friday charged Jenrette with one count of conspiracy to commit bribery and two counts of bribery. Stowe was charged with conspiracy and with aiding and abetting the bribery.

If convicted, they could face maximum penalties of 35 years in prison and fines that could more than triple the amount of the bribe each.

The indictment does not specify how Jenrette and Stowe split the $50,000.

The grand jurors charged that Jenrette and Stowe had hoped to earn considerably more than that in the conspiracy.

Miami March

MIAMI (UPI) — A sparse troop of young black men chanting "We want justice" marched on Dade County's Justice Building Saturday in the first large organized black protest demonstration since Miami's bloody May 17 riots.

About 100 marchers, led by a bicyclist carrying an American flag on a 6-foot pole, strode down the southbound lanes of busy 12th Avenue.

The marchers were preceded by a dozen or so tandem bicycles. Behind the marchers came a motorcade of 25 cars with their lights burning.

Two young marchers at the head of the column carried a bed sheet-size sign reading, "March for Justice."

Clay Kirkman Says...

Now that summer is upon us, and those spring gardening chores are finished, it's time to rest and enjoy the summer. Don't rest too long though, because it's time to take care of those azaleas you planted in the spring.

The faded flower blossoms should have been removed simply by sweeping the plants with a broom. The fallen flowers should also be removed from around the base of the plant to prevent dry disease. You may want to prune your azaleas now if they have become too tall or leggy. You will only want to prune the dead and diseased branches along with any that have become too long. Azaleas look best when they retain their natural shape.

Azalea leaf gall is frequently a problem in areas of high humidity. The infected leaves become enlarged, thickened, fleshy and pale green. Young leaves are affected the most. The only real damage it does is to the appearance of the shrub. This problem can be controlled simply by picking the galls off by hand and destroying them. If the problem is severe, you may spray the plants with captan or zineb before the buds open.

Lace bug is also another common problem on azaleas. The leaves appear gray or stippled with brown or black spots on the undersides. The best control is to spray the plants with malathion at 7 to 10-day intervals. Be sure to spray the underside of the leaf, since this is where the insects are.

Also be sure to give the newly planted azaleas plenty of water during the hot summer days. Belk Tyler Garden Shops now have insecticides you need, as well as garden hoses and sprinklers for those dry periods.

Western Powers Want PLO Included In Talks

BY HENRY GOTTlieb
Associated Press Writer
VENICE, Italy (AP) — The Common Market countries on Friday launched a new Middle East initiative that would bring the once-ostracized Palestine Liberation Organization into peace talks up to now dominated by the United States, Israel and Egypt.

In a declaration issued at the end of a two-day summit conference here, heads of government of the nine nations said involvement in negotiations must be extended to the Palestinian people, "and to the PLO, which will have to be associated with the negotiations."

In Washington, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said he did not see anything in the statement that directly challenged the process set in motion at the Camp David peace talks in 1978, and he offered the PLO a role in negotiations if it disavowed its commitment to destroy the state of Israel.

Farouk Kadoumi, head of the PLO's political department in Beirut, Lebanon, said the Common Market action was "positive but lacking several basic subjects." The declaration "deserves more consideration," he said, and the PLO leadership will meet Saturday in Beirut to review the matter.

Israel, which has said any mention of the PLO would legitimize the organization, made no immediate comment on the European initiative or Muskie's words.

But in Cairo, Egyptian Foreign Affairs Minister Butros Ghali said the principles in the European declaration are "compatible" with those of the U.S.-mediated Camp David accords.

"The European declaration calls for a comprehensive settlement, and so does Camp David, it calls for Palestinian participation in the negotiations, and so does Camp David, and it considers East Jerusalem an integral part of the West Bank and so does Camp David," Ghali said. He added "we have no objections to any contacts the Europeans may seek in the common quest for peace in the Middle East."

Palestinians refused to join the negotiations to determine the extent of autonomy to be granted to the 1.2 million Palestinians living in Israeli-occupied territories. The talks have stalled, but Egypt, Israel and the United States are working on a plan to resume the negotiations.

European officials said Friday's announced policy was not meant to be a slap at President Carter and his hopes for autonomy talks. But the leaders said the member states "consider that traditional ties and common interests which link Europe to the Middle East oblige them to play a special role and now require them to work in a more concrete way towards peace."

Carter had urged the Europeans to hold off on a Mideast initiative and continue giving support for the peace proposals outlined at Camp David. The Americans fear that attempts to bring the PLO into the peace process will make Israel more intransigent.

Italian Prime Minister Francesco Cossiga, spokesman for the nine heads of government, said "we did not embark on a collision course with Camp David or support Camp David; it will be alongside Camp David."

Unrest In So. Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha, addressing Parliament days before the anniversary of bloody 1976 race riots, issued "a final warning" Friday to anyone intending to create trouble.

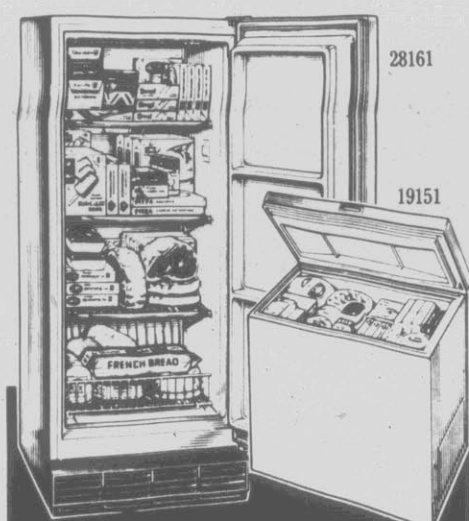

Botha, addressing Parliament on its last day of the year's session, said, "The government has a duty to the country to maintain law and order and it will carry it out strictly and fairly. It will be a serious mistake to underestimate the government's determination in this regard and those responsible will have to bear the consequences of their actions."

A few hours after Botha spoke, the U.N. Security Council — meeting in New York — called on South Africa unanimously to release its political prisoners, stop political trials and dismantle its policy of racial segregation.

This is the third time since 1976 the council has condemned policies in South Africa.

Botha urged ethnic leaders to work together to keep the nation calm.

"Continued boycotts and attempts to create unrest only waste money and time and thwart the government's efforts to correct the wrongs and improve the situation," Botha said.

Heavy New Fighting Reported In Afghanistan

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
PESHAWAR, Pakistan (AP) — Heavy fighting and scores of casualties were reported Friday after Afghan rebels ambushed a Soviet armored column on its way to reinforce an isolated and besieged Afghan army garrison, an insurgent group here said.

There also was a report from New Delhi that five Kabul policemen were killed this week by Afghan guerrillas who penetrated the Afghan capital and launched a two-hour, nighttime gun-battle.

The Russian column was cut off Wednesday night in hilly eastern Afghanistan, about 34 miles west of the Pakistan border, as the Soviets entered Sultany Valley, a spokesman for the Peshawar-based insurgent group said.

Abdul Akbarzai, a spokesman for the National Islamic Front of Afghanistan, said 25 rebels were killed and the Soviet force suffered greater casualties in the ambush sprung from two sides of the valley.

No independent confirmation was available. Western reporters have been denied visas by the Afghan government.

Akbarzai said the clash was continuing and involved thousands of fighters on both sides.

Radio Kabul claimed Pakistan is asking Saudi Arabia to aid the Afghan rebels. There was no elaboration.

The radio report follows Soviet rejection of a bid to solve the Afghan crisis by a committee appointed last month at the Islamic Foreign Ministers' Conference.

A report from Moscow reaching Pakistan said the Kremlin would not meet with the Islamic group until Islamic nations recognized the Soviet-backed Kabul regime of President Babrak Karmal.

According to a radio report from Kabul, Karmal told a gathering of Afghan tribal elders Friday he was a practicing Moslem and not, as has been alleged, an atheist bent on transforming Afghanistan into a Communist state or Soviet satellite.

"You know I am a Moslem and I am promising that I will serve Islam," the president was quoted as saying.

The broadcast reported the tribesman, who had come from seven provinces, pledged support for Karmal's regime which was installed in a Soviet-backed coup last December.

In New Delhi, a reliable Afghan source told The Associated Press that Moslem rebels killed five Kabul policemen and wounded 11 others during a two-hour gunfight Tuesday night. The source told the AP one guerrilla died but the others escaped into the tense city.

The source said there was frequent artillery firing in the hills surrounding the Afghan capital where the rebels are dug in.

"Shabnama," clandestine "night letters" circulated in the capital by the resistance movement, have warned residents around the Kha-ikhana Soviet military complex north of the city to leave their homes because an attack is planned.

Area military experts are skeptical that the insurgents, with their limited fire power and weak organization, would engage Soviet forces in anything beyond the hit-and-run strikes they have used so far, reportedly with considerable success.

A Western traveller to India from Afghanistan said Friday that Kabul is filled with rumors of villagers killing Russians and hacking their bodies to pieces.

"The Russian mystique has vanished" for most Afghans, the traveller added. She said Kabulis derisively refer to Russian soldiers as "toy soldiers" or "babies."

The traveller, who has contact with Afghan business people, said people also have a label for the members of pro-Moscow president Babrak Karmal's Parcham faction of the ruling Marxist Party, now reportedly a main target of rebel snipers and assassins.

They call the Parchamites "Russians in an Afghan body," she said.

Poison gassings of schoolgirls and schoolboys dominate the troubled talk of Kabul, the traveller said. Nightly government radio broadcasts tell of hundreds of students taken to hospitals unconscious from gassings blamed on "agents" of the Americans and Chinese, as the insurgents are called.

The broadcasts say that all the victims are out of danger but travellers Thursday and Friday quoted unconfirmed reports of some deaths.

The "night letters" maintain the poisonings are carried out by the government to punish students at schools that led the anti-Karmal and anti-Soviet demonstrations in April and May.

Most reports agree that the gas smells sweet, like perfume or fruit.

"At first the kids were smelling it because it smelled so good. It was said that during the first attack there were a lot of deaths because they sniffed it," a traveller said.

Proposes Powerful Smasher

BATAVIA, Ill. (AP) — Officials at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory announced plans Saturday for a $500 million, 10.5-mile circular "atom smasher" for high-energy physics research.

The proposed particle accelerator would be able to push a beam of atomic particles to an energy level of 5 trillion electron volts, making it 10 times more powerful than the world's largest accelerator, which also is located at Fermilab.

Laboratory officials said the plan to build the new machine, called Pentevac, was approved about two weeks ago by the Woods Hole (Mass.) Panel, a group of American senior scientists drafting a 10-year program for high-energy physics research.

The panel's recommendations will be presented to the Department of Energy, which provides funding for such projects.

If the DOE approves the plan and grants funding, construction of Pentevac could begin in 1985 and be completed by 1990, Fermi officials said.

Researchers hope larger accelerators will provide further insight into the quark, a particle that apparently cannot be subdivided. Some scientists believe it to be the basic particle of nature.

To Make Decision On Clark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department said Saturday that Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti still plans to make the final decision on whether to prosecute Ramsey Clark, despite a published report that President Carter intends to make that call himself.

The Washington Star, in Saturday's editions, said Carter is determined to have the final say on taking action against Clark, a former attorney general who violated the president's ban on travel to Iran.

Asked about the Star's report, White House press secretary Jody Powell said he would have no comment.

But other senior administration officials cast doubt on its accuracy in interviews with The Associated Press, which suggests there may be disagreement on the matter within the White House.

The AP sources said it would be highly unusual, if not unprecedented, for the president to so usurp the prerogative of his attorney general.

At the Justice Department, spokesman John Russell said, "We know of no change in the plan to have the Clark case reviewed by the heads of the civil and criminal divisions, and a final decision made by the attorney general."

"We know of no departure from the previous practice that the White House will not dictate whether we prosecute or not."

Russell noted that "constitutionally, the president has that authority, but we're sure he would take the recommendation of his top law enforcement officer."

The AP sources, who asked not to be quoted, said although the president has the constitutional duty to enforce the laws, the attorney general's decision on whether to prosecute normally would be final.

Council Plan Annual Meet

RALIEGH — The North Carolina Council of Home Health Agencies, a statewide association of agencies and individuals providing health services to patients in their homes, will have its annual meeting Monday, June 16 at the Sheraton-Crabtree Inn.

Keynote speakers for the opening session are Representatives Ike Andrews, 4th District and Lamar Gudger, 11th District, both members of the House Select Committee on Aging.

On hand to address later sessions during the conference will be Alan P. Brownstein, Director, Division of Home Health Agencies and Community Health Services for the National League of Nursing and Hugh Tilson, M.D., director, Division of Health Services, N.C. Department of Human Resources.

Ms. Elizabeth Hudspeth, director of Home Health Services of Cumberland County, Inc. is president of N.C. Council of Home Health Agencies.

Answers Given On Radio Show

Dr. Robert P. Nanno, psychiatrist at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, is answering questions about marriage each Monday at 12:55 p. m. on the WOOW radio program, "What's On Your Mind?"

Tomorrow he will answer questions about adjustment needs after the honeymoon which are necessary to prevent disenchantment. Included in the discussion will be unrealistic expectation, sharing of time and duties, two-career lives, relationships with in-laws, managing finances, and decisions about becoming parents.

Next Monday, June 23, he will talk about the middle years of marriage and modifications in lifestyles which often are necessary.

Monday, June 30, he will talk about when the marriage is over because of the death of one of the partners or because of divorce. Grief, acceptance, and resolution of single lifestyle are phases the newly single person must go through. He also will talk about specific problems faced by divorced persons.

Budget Hearing Scheduled

The City Council has scheduled a public hearing for Tuesday, June 17 on the proposed budget for the city and Greenville Utilities Commission for fiscal year 1980-81.

When Queen Christina of Sweden visited Rome in 1654, she slept in a different room each night in the Palazzo Farnese.

The hearing will be held at 8 p.m. in the council chambers at city hall.

The board of trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library has also scheduled a public hearing on the proposed library budget for 1980-81, according to Elizabeth Copeland, secretary to the board.

The library hearing will be held on Tuesday, June 17 at 8 p.m. in the conference room of Sheppard Memorial at 530 Evans Street.

Ed Wyatt, city manager, said the city and GUCO budget is available for public inspection in the office of the city clerk, city manager's office, and at Sheppard Memorial during normal working hours. The Sheppard Memorial budget is available in the office of the library director.

The city has ordered four new heavy duty buses for the Greenville Area Transit System (GREAT), local officials reported.

According to the city, Blue Bird Body Co. of Fort Valley, Ga. was awarded the contract for the new vehicles, which are to be delivered in December or January.

The amount of the contract was for $426,777, including about $100,675 for each bus, as well as spare parts and tools, it was pointed out.

The 30-foot coaches will be equipped with air conditioning, automatic transmission, power steering, and a heavy-duty diesel engine. A wheelchair lift will also be installed in the rear exit door. Each vehicle will seat 28 passengers and have one wheelchair tie-down position.

Officials said the new vehicles will replace the city's present fleet of 20-passenger Mercedes Benz buses.

According to the GREAT transit staff, ridership on the local system increased over ten percent during the last year. Average weekday ridership through May was 790 persons for the three bus routes.

The wheelchair lifts were included as part of the city's effort to make the transit service accessible to the handicapped. It was noted that studies are underway to coordinate the transit system with the social services transportation programs.

Urges Return To Traditional Domestic Policies

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Several labor leaders urged the Democratic Party on Saturday to return to previous policies of promoting full employment for Americans, saying it risks an election loss in November if it fails to do so.

Douglas A. Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers union, said the party is courting disaster because of rising unemployment.

"With each increase in unemployment, we increase the possibility of Ronald Reagan being elected president of our country," Fraser told the party's platform committee.

The panel held the final day of hearings prior to drafting a platform here next week to submit to the party's national convention in New York in August for final approval.

Fraser and other labor leaders said the 1976 platform, which advocated full employment for Americans, was a good platform. But, Fraser added, "it just hasn't been used yet."

"It is time to demand compliance with that platform," he said. "It is time to require responsibility and accountability in this party, and indeed in American political life."

Fraser supports Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic Party presidential nomination. President Carter already has more than enough delegate support to win the nomination in August.

William W. Wimpinger, president of the International Association of Machinists, also said the party's platform in 1976 was a good one, contending "it has been deliberately and willfully violated."

Although he and other labor leaders did not name Carter specifically, it was clear their criticism was directed at him.

"It would be hypocritical to come before the people with a new platform in 1980 if the party doesn't have any more intention of keeping it than it did in 1976," said Wimpinger who also supports Kennedy.

Fraser, Wimpinger and Thomas R. Donahue, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO, all urged the platform committee to endorse a full employment plank and Donahue further urged that the party reject the idea of a balanced budget as a panacea for the nation's problem of inflation.

"Instead of fighting inflation by attacking its real causes — energy, health care, high interest rates and commodity speculation — there has been a misguided effort to balance the budget," he said.

Italian Hoodlums Surrender

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Three small-time Italian crooks held 29 terrified hostages at gunpoint in a downtown bank for 17 hours before surrendering to scores of heavily armed police Saturday and freeing their captives unharmed.

Hundreds of citizens pressed against barriers near the six-story Banco di Roma building and howled "shoot them!" and "turn them loose — we will deal with them!" as police brought out the handcuffed bandits one after the other.

The leader, an escaped felon who was sentenced to a two-year, four-month jail term for abetting a kidnapping and murder in 1976, shot himself in the stomach in an apparent suicide bid that climaxed the drama, police said.

He was identified as Alberto Monfrini, 34. Hospital doctors said he was not in serious condition.

Weeping relatives hugged and kissed the hostages as they emerged.

Apart from Monfrini, the only person injured in the siege was a 25-year-old bank doorman who suffered a scalp wound when he was hit on the head with a pistol butt.

The bandits released him Friday night. They freed 13 other hostages, including four women, before setting the final 22 free at 9 a.m. Police said the would-be robbers apparently found many more people in the bank than they expected.

Donahue and the other labor leaders urged an immediate program to create jobs to relieve unemployment.

"We support the broadest range of counter recessionary measures, both for the immediate months ahead and for the year or two years that this recession is going to plague us," he said.

The AFL-CIO has not yet endorsed any candidate for the party's nomination.

Dan Mundy, an official of the building and construction trade department of the AFL-CIO, urged the committee to find some way to bind its candidates to the platform, a recommendation made by virtually every other labor witness.

"We believe that the party conventions must restore public confidence in their platforms by binding their standardbearers and their legislative leadership to the party's word," he said.

Witnesses for business organizations generally supported Carter's actions in reducing spending to relieve inflation and also called for tax relief to stimulate business investment.

Richard Rahm, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, urged the committee to endorse a ceiling on federal spending and reduce it by 1 percent a year until it reaches 18 percent of the nation's gross national product, down from about 22 percent currently.

He also called for a five-year program of tax reductions both for business and individuals. He said the nation must "reduce the tax burden on individuals and encourage a higher level of personal savings and investment."

Alexander B. Trowbridge, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said "the best way to assist the people of this nation is to revitalize the productive capacity of American industry," adding this can be done by reducing the regulatory burden on business and by providing businesses with tax relief.

Camp Lejeune Marine Band To Perform In The Park Today

AT ATTENTION... Members of the 2d Marine Division Band of Camp Lejeune are shown at attention. The big band, which will travel about 50,000 miles during 1980 to fulfill over 1,000 performances, will be the featured attraction in today's Sunday in the Park. The public is invited, and the concert, to be held on the grassy slope east of Reade Street between East Third and East Fourth Streets, begins at 7 p.m. (Photo courtesy U.S. Marine Corps).

The Marines are coming to Greenville to entertain patrons of Sunday in the Park today. Beginning at 7 p.m., the Division Band of Headquarters Battalion, 2d Marine Division, FMF, Camp Lejeune, will play a varied repertoire of music for music lovers in the Greenville area. The concert will be on the grassy slope east of Reade and between East Third and East Fourth Streets. Those attending are reminded that children are welcome, and are advised to bring along cushions, folding chairs, pillows or other creature comfort items for easier listening. Warrant Officer R. P. Myers conducts the Marine Division Band, and the enlisted band leader is S/Sgt. M. M. Tillar. The 2d Marine Division Band carries on the tradition of the first Marine Musicians, who were drummers and fifers in 1798. The band maintains the individuality of military music while encompassing a comprehensive choice of musical arrangements.

the New York World's Fair, the Armed Forces Day Parade in New York City, the 'Mardi Gras' in New Orleans — plus tours in the Caribbean and the Mediterranean areas. During 1980, the 2d Marine Division Band is expected to travel in excess of 50,000 miles to fulfill more than 1,000 appearances. Sunday in the Park, an annual summer program of entertainment provided free to the public, is funded by the City of Greenville and is operated under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department. In the event of rain today, a rain date has not been scheduled. Stuart Aronson, director of the program, said that if rain occurs, efforts will be made to have the 2d Marine Division Band return at a later date this summer.

Horn In The West Drama Opening Set

BOONE — Friday, June 20 is the opening date for the 29th consecutive season of the outdoor drama, Horn in the West.

For this gala opening, the admission price of $6 for adults and $4 for children will cover admission to the drama's performance as well as a dinner on the grounds. The dinner is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and Sollecito's Restaurant of Boone.

The opening performance dinner will be served at 6 p.m. Prior to the meal, festivities will begin with a tour of the Daniel Boone Native Gardens, a visit to the Tatum Cabin, and watching members of the Watauga Party of the American Mountain Men as they demonstrate skills of the early pioneers by working on the authentic fort being constructed at Horn in the West.

Indian Miniatures Being Shown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eighty-three Indian miniature paintings continue on display at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art through June 15.

Called "The Classical Tradition in Rajput Painting," the exhibition was organized by the Pierpont Morgan Library and the Gallery Association of New York State. It focuses on the art of a period from the 16th to the 18th century, when Northern India came under the influence of Islamic culture, after falling to the Mughal emperor Akbar.

CONTINUING GENESIS — The rock group Genesis — (left to right) Michael Rutherford, Tony Banks, and Phil Collins — has built its reputation and fan following as purveyors of sophisticated rock fairy tales. Although the group routinely sells out large-sized halls and arenas, their record sales in the U.S. have been disappointing — a trend which hopefully will be reversed with their new album, "Duke." (AP Laserphoto)

—PBS Specials—

CHAPEL HILL — Planned suicide, two Schubert symphonies and original film dramas are among the subjects being aired on UNC-TV (PBS), Channel 25, Greenville during the coming week. Brief details are:

— Monday, June 16, 8 p.m. — "Choosing Suicide" is a one-hour documentary that focuses on the 32 days preceding the suicide of New York artist and psychotherapist Jo Roman. The 62-year old woman, who had breast cancer, asked her friend, documentary producer Richard Ellison, to record her ideas and plans on tape. Also recorded were conversations with close friends and relatives, some of whom strongly opposed Ms. Roman's death intentions. A panel discussion on the concept of "rational suicide" will air following the documentary.

— Wednesday, June 18, 8 p.m. — In another "Great Performances" broadcast, Sir Georg Solti, conductor of the Chicago Symphony, will lead the orchestra in a performance of two symphonies by the Franz Schubert — Symphony No. 6 and Symphony No. 8, the "Unfinished." The broadcast is made possible by a grant from EXXON and additional support from member PBS stations.

— Saturday, June 21, 10 p.m. — "Exit 10" and "Nomadic Lives," two original dramas by independent filmmakers. "Exit 10," written and directed by Stephen Gyllenhaal, examines the sometimes complicated feelings between men and women, and among men. The film stars Patrick Collins, Amy Robinson and Peter Weller. The second film, "Nomadic Lives," tells the story of Gretchen, a go-go dancer, and Wesley, a quick-sketch portrait artist. It was written and directed by Mark Obenhaus and stars Marcia Jean Kurtz and James Carrington.

Savannah, A City Oriented To Art

SAVANNAH, GA. — The coastal Georgia city of Savannah, long noted for its riches in architectural design, has in recent years become the chosen city for a number of talented artists.

Artists representing a varied range of achievement and media live and work in present-day Savannah. One of these is Ivan Bailey, a master in the field of iron sculpture. Bailey specializes in dolphin downspouts, business placards, decorative gates and balustrades. His forge is located at 215 Whitaker Street.

Ann Osteen, an active artist as well as a promoter of the arts in the Savannah area, is best known for her work in compiling lists of original paints, fabrics and wallpaper coverings used in historic Savannah homes. As a consultant she helps the city accurately carry out its restoration work.

Color application is also a major concern of mural artist Larry Connatser. The massive application of his art (on large canvases or walls) has been exhibited in shows throughout the southeast — most notably at Marta's Rapid Rail Decatur Station, and the lobby of the Selig Enterprise Building, Atlanta.

Another Savannah artist who has received extensive recognition is self-taught artist Mary Darby. She works in stained glass from her studio located in a cotton warehouse on River Street.

These are but a few of the artists who have made the old town of Savannah their home.

$1 Million Grant To Art Museum

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Strong community spirit in Michigan's second-largest city has helped the Grand Rapids Art Museum win a $1 million grant from the state. The money will be used to renovate the former downtown post office and courthouse building as its new home.

Strong local and regional support for the project was a major consideration in Gov. William G. Milliken's recommendation for the grant. A local fund-raising drive matched state dollars by more than a 2-to-1 ratio.

The move to the historic building will be complete by fall 1981.

D.H. Conley Seniors Publish Literary Works

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor
Refreshing and fascinating are the words that come most readily to mind in an attempt to describe Crossroads: A Collection of Senior Writings written, collected and published by seniors of the English classes of Gino M. Abessinio at D. H. Conley High School.

Completed shortly before the seniors graduated on June 12, the mimeographed booklet constitutes a fitting gift these students are leaving behind — an inspiration to younger students who hopefully will be encouraged to try their hand at writing.

"Dr. Keats Sparrow of East Carolina University suggested the eastern North Carolina motif for the students to use," Abessinio commented about early ideas for the project. "I feel it was an excellent choice. This gave the students something familiar to look into. They talked to their families, to older people in the community, and some did research reading in libraries to find out more about stories, legends and customs of this area."

Aside from the general suggestion that their writing be focused on some phase of life, past or present, of eastern North Carolina, the young writers had no restrictions placed on them.

"I was really surprised, pleased at the enthusiastic response," Abessinio said. "They got into the project wholeheartedly and seemed to enjoy the work involved." This enthusiasm brims over time after time in stories, articles and poems included in this selection. The appeal of colorful legends of the past, of long gone Indian tribes, hardy early settlers of rural life of a generation ago — are all evident as favorite topics for the student writers. In several instances, authors have fictionalized history with unexpected twists that are highly entertaining.

Getting back into the past via some form of futuristic time machine is a device used effectively by several of the youthful writers; and another method employed is the finding of long hidden diaries from the past as the springboard of relating an interesting tale.

Ricky Mitchell's Close Encounters of a Savage Kind is exceptionally rich in the details of treasures discovered at a beach in a patch of seaweed. The fact that colorful artifacts described are not altogether of the type attributable to an Indian treasure tribe doesn't matter. Mitchell uses these to frame a tale of excitement, — lightweight, provocative suspense.

In My Journey Back in Time, Sterling Daniels blithely converts an old VW Bug into a modernistic time machine to go back to North Carolina's past. He chooses the year 1586 and stumbles upon a confrontation "between an Indian with limited English" and a colonist. The Indian is trying to convince the whites that they must take precautions against a terrible event due to befall that night, which of course is greeted with skepticism. The sudden appearance of the author is propitious, with the Indian declaring him to be "Mula, God of knowledge." Daniels wiggles out of the tight spot by displaying his "Flick my Bic" which properly astonishes both parties. He throws in a dash of exotic, bi-racial romance in having one of the white girls, Christen Van Horn, discovered carving "Croatoan loves Christen" on a massive oak tree.

Another familiar figure from history, Blackbeard, comes to the aid of a boy who skipped school to go fishing in Jeffrey Gould's story Long, Black Beard. When the young boy's father beats him for skipping school, the boy runs away and hides on a boat, just in time to be on the scene when the famous pirate is beheaded.

Gayle Schoepster's The Circle of Light is an intriguing account of a woodman who lived among the towering cypresses of a Pitt County woods, and on a Halloween night discovered six huge eggs which he carefully hatched by the heat of his open hearth fire. Not birds, but six mischievous goblins emerged by the big eggs. How the woodman solves the dilemma of dealing with six energetic, exasperating little creatures is delightful — and the reader will wonder if the woodman and his proteges are still inhabiting the depths of Pitt's cypress groves.

—In verse, the student poets, predictably for the most part, tackle the universal concern of all beginning poets — love, death, time, fate. Some fine lines turn up among the conventional phrases . . . "But yet we seem to follow the man / With gold or diamonds upon his hand. . . ." (from Yetta Smith's The Blind Leading the Blind).

Mark Meyers offers different viewpoints in a couple of poems "It was Christmas in prisons, / The food was real good, / We had turkey and pistols carved out of wood. . ." (from Dreams I Don't See) and — in a poem about the 70s, Passing Time, Meyers writes . . . "We've seen one president cheat and rob, / Now we have Carter who grows peanuts for a side job."

The most poignant lines are penned by an anonymous poet (A Senior) in House or Home? — "Do I really have parents, or just a man and a woman / who don't love each other?"

One of the jewels in this collection is a statement in Antoinette Best's story, The Rocking Chair. Writing about the death of her grandfather, she says "The coroner said he died of natural causes, for the love of his wife."

Articles on soap making, hog killing and home remedies add an extra dimension to this collection. The ghost stories are excellent, and carry out the theme of the supernatural element that figures so prominently in many of the stories.

Abessinio, a native of Wilmington, Delaware and a graduate of East Carolina University, has been teaching in Pitt School for seven years. Earlier, at Farmville Middle School, he carried out a writing project "on a smaller scale."

"This writing project here at Conley has been one of the most exhilarating experiences I've ever had," Abessinio said. "I'm as enthusiastic as the students about what has been achieved. Next year, I hope to repeat this and to make it available to all students, not just those that I teach."

The only unfortunate thing about this remarkable collection is that it is not generally available to the public. "There were no funds available for printing copies other than the mimeographed ones we made for each contributing student," Abessinio explained. "However, we hope to get permission to place a reference copy in Sheppard Library and possibly in one or two other central points."

Any reader who would welcome an opportunity to find out just how good our local young writers can be should make every effort to locate and read the 22 stories and articles and 34 poems in Crossroads: A Collection of Senior Writings.

Tsu Wen Kwok Show At The Art Center

The show of art opening at the Greenville Art Center today is a festive flower show with dogwood blossoms, wisteria, daisies, jonquils, morning glories and other beloved flowers in watercolors.

The work of Tsu Wen Kwok of Kinston, the first exhibition of summer at the Center has about four dozen works in watercolor and in stichery. Flowers, birds, and landscapes with waterfalls, rocks, gnarled trees clinging to cliffs and in a few of the paintings, dainty maidens dressed in finery are rendered in the conventional Chinese mode of painting, tempered with modern influences.

Mrs. Kwok, who is acting director of the Neuse Regional Library in Kinston, uses balance and harmony in these formal works. While her application of color is more concentrated than in much Chinese nature painting, the artist compensates for this tightness in the utilization of ample white spaces surrounding the painted object.

The most noticeable modern influences are the extensive use of flat colored matting and simple silver frames, with the exception of a few pieces matted in more conventional patterned paper or fabric. These departures from tradition work well, though perhaps the utilization of white, eggshell or very light pastel mats would undoubtedly serve to accent her delicate, beautifully drawn flowers and leaves.

Mrs. Kwok's stichery works combine a number of influences — the lyrical arrangement inherent in Chinese art, the abstracted qualities of 20th century art, and the resurgence of interest in using textiles to create art with a close resemblance to painted art. Shimmering thin silks, chiffons, textured silk — cut, sometimes overlapped and stitched together with vivid silk threads are used to good effect. In a couple of these works, Mrs. Kwok has added glass bead-like objects.

Based on the works in this show, Mrs. Kwok is more successful in handling flowers than in depicting human figures or the exotic, rugged landscapes so closely associated in the public mind with Chinese art. She does not quite capture the elusive quality that gives the best in this genre a touch of poetic magic.

A reception is being held from 3 to 5 today with the public invited. The artist will on hand to meet the public and to give a demonstration of Chinese brush painting.

Jerry Raynor

WISTERIA . . . has long been a favorite flower in Oriental painting, and Mrs. Tsu Wen Kwok's show at the Greenville Art Center has several wisterial paintings in watercolor.

DETAIL FROM "TULIPS" . . . a work in stichery by Mrs. Kwok, shows the way in which she combines textiles of various textures and stitched threads to create flowers, landscapes and other works with an abstract quality. Her show opens at the Art Center with a reception from 3 to 5 p.m. today, with the public invited to attend and to meet the artist.

New Show In Kinston

KINSTON — Work by 23 North Carolina artists, a traveling show drawn from the N. C. Artists Exhibition and on loan from the N. C. Museum of Art, Raleigh, is now on view at the Community Council for the Arts in Kinston, 111 E. Caswell Street.

The art work was selected from the 88 works exhibited in the 42nd N. C. Artists Exhibition. These 88 pieces in turn were chosen from a total of 1,290 entries submitted by North Carolina artists. Jurors for the show were Garo Antreasian of the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque; Benjamin Forgey of the Washington Star newspaper, and Richard Marshall of the Whitney Museum of Art, New York City.

W. Eugene Smith Annual Photographic Fund Is Established

HOME AGAIN FOR THE PANTHER — A historical restoration of sorts took place recently on Grandfather Mountain when an environmental habitat was established for the panther, also called cougar and mountain lion. The huge cat became extinct in North Carolina over 40 years ago, but it has now been seen again, an event which has caused considerable excitement. (Photograph by Hugh Morton)

The late W. Eugene Smith, widely regarded as the world's premier photographic essayist, will be commemorated by a series of annual grants to photographers "who aspire to work in his great tradition."

The grants will be made by the trustees of the W. Eugene Smith Memorial Fund, a newly formed non-profit organization, following an international competition.

The recipient of the first grant of $10,000 will be announced on Oct. 15, second anniversary of Smith's death in Tucson, Ariz. His archives are housed in the University of Arizona's Center for Creative Photography.

Smith first became famous for his courageous coverage of World War II. He was severely wounded on Okinawa in 1945. The first picture he made following his convalescence, of his children making "The Walk to Paradise Garden," is one of the celebrated images of the century.

Rejoining the staff of Life magazine in 1947, Smith produced a memorable series of essays including "Country Doctor," "Nurse Midwife," "Spanish Village," and "Man of Mercy," on Albert Schweitzer.

Smith resigned from Life in 1956 to freelance, producing photographic essays on the city of Pittsburgh, on mental health in Haiti, and, with Aileen Smith, on the victims of chemical pollution in Minamata, Japan. He joined the faculty of the University of Arizona in 1977.

In defining the grants program, the trustees of the fund say of Smith: "His life was committed to focusing his camera on the concerns of the human spirit, to documenting and personalizing the ravages of war, to affirming life and calling attention to injustice and abuse of power where he found it... The grants program aspires to perpetuate the spirit and dedication that characterized his work by providing one or more grants to a photographer or photographers whose performance or current submitted work, either proposed or in progress, merits support according to stringent standards of responsible journalistic ability, dedication, integrity and demonstrated artistic skills." Grants are not restricted to citizens of the United States.

A leaflet covering the guidelines of the competition and an application form is available from the Fund's office at 170 West End Ave.,

Apt. 15-D, New York, N.Y. 10023. The deadline for preliminary applications for this year's competition is July 15.

Facing Shortage Of Nurses

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina is facing a severe shortage of registered nurses, a state official says. As many as 1,500 vacancies for nurses exist across the state, said Tom Bacon, associate director of the N.C. Area Health Education Centers program.

"This is not a new problem, but it seems to be getting worse," Bacon said.

Bacon said the state has about 27,000 active nurses, with about 5,000 more licensed but not working.

Although nursing-school enrollment is down slightly, Bacon said increasing the number of nursing students would not solve the problem because turnover and resignations among nurses are too high. "Nurses are just not staying employed," he said.

A recent statewide survey by the center showed hospital resignations in the past year exceeded 20 percent of the total number employed, he said.

Bacon said the average pay for nurses isn't high enough to keep nurses active for long.

"One anecdote I hear is that a waitress can make more than a nurse, and the work is less demanding," he said.

The average wage for a nurse just out of school is $5.29 an hour. After 10 years experience, the average pay is $6.19 an hour.

18-Month Federal Ban Against Rea

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The federal highway administration says it, too, will discontinue its business with the Charlotte-based Rea Construction Co.

But, unlike the state Transportation Board's decision Friday to remove Rea from its approved bidders list indefinitely, an 18-month ban was imposed by the federal agency.

An administration spokesman says the ban could have been imposed for the next three years. But Rea's decision to cooperate in the continuing probe into bid-rigging earned the shorter penalty, he said.

The company has already pleaded guilty to bid-rigging on various paving projects in North Carolina and Virginia. In addition, company president Norman Wilhelm is serving a two-month prison term in connection with the alleged rigging.

Approves 100 Additional Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee, acting in a closed-door session this week, approved a measure that would add 100 multiple-warhead Minuteman III missiles to the 550 already deployed, according to published reports.

The action, on an amendment by Sen. Gordon Humphrey, R-N.H., has the potential for pushing the United States above the ceiling of 1,200 land- and sea-based missiles with multiple warheads, set by the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union. The treaty has not yet been ratified by the Senate.

The committee action, according to an account in Saturday's editions of the Washington Post, took place as the panel was winding up work on the Defense Department's $51.9 billion weapons procurement bill for the 1981 fiscal year, which starts Oct. 1. No mention of the action was made in a public statement released Thursday by the panel, reportedly due to an "oversight."

Committee staff members were not immediately available for comment.

Soviet Workers Reportedly Staged Strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Soviet auto and truck plant workers staged wildcat strikes last month in protest of poor food supplies, according to the Washington Post.

In a dispatch from Moscow in Saturday's editions, the Post quoted unofficial sources as saying more than 200,000 workers may have been involved in the unprecedented walkouts at the Togliatti auto works and the Gorki auto and truck plant, both in central Russia.

The protests, which were described as peaceful, ended early last month after authorities sent fresh food and other supplies to the industrial complexes, the newspaper said.

There was no official Soviet mention of the action and a Togliatti city official told the Post the reports were "a provocative anti-Soviet statement."

The food shortages follow a long winter and may also reflect the U.S. grain embargo that followed the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, the Post said. In addition, the Soviets reportedly were stockpiling food for the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow as part of a public display of an abundance of food.

Truce Worked Out With Indians

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — State police and Puyallup Indian police shared duties at Cascadia Juvenile Diagnostic Center on Saturday after the tribe dismantled barricades set up in a dispute over ownership of the facility.

Tribal police blockaded the center Thursday, seeking eviction of the state as an "unwanted squatter" after the U.S. Supreme Court upheld state taxation of cigarettes sold to non-Indians on Indian reservations.

Tribal leaders agreed to remove roadblocks Friday and await a federal court ruling on ownership of the center. State officials and tribal officers monitored those arriving at the center.

"Both sides agreed to a double checkpoint — some department staff and tribal police — just to be sure that neither Indian nor non-Indian troublemakers come in," said Warren Netherland, director of the state Division of Juvenile Rehabilitation.

The state agreed to halt further court action to force the tribe from Cascadia's perimeter, and a State Patrol special weapons and tactical team was removed.

Arab, African Students Fight Over Women

By RAYMOND WILKINSON PEKING (UPI) — China closed a provincial medical college and told foreigners to stay at home following a brawl over women between Arab and African medical students in which six people were stabbed, one fatally, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

The knife fight at Shenyang Medical College in northeast China was the latest of several incidents involving foreign students in China, often triggered by disputes over women. The sources reported the situation at Shenyang "very tense" following the slaying Tuesday, with the medical college closed and foreign students warned to stay at home until the situation eased.

American students at Shenyang University told friends in Peking by telephone they had been ordered to stay away from the medical school.

The clash grew out of a brawl between Syrian and African students, reportedly over a girl, and six persons were stabbed, including a student from the Congo Republic who died the following day.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry confirmed the stabbing and said "school authorities and department heads tried their best to stop the fighting. Despite this some six foreign students were stabbed in the melee."

There have been other incidents in the past involving foreigners.

Aoki's Birdies Catch Struggling Jack

Makes The Bird

Jack Nicklaus bits his lip as he rolls in a birdie putt on the fifth hole of the third round of the U.S. Open in Springfield, N.J. Saturday. Nicklaus stumbled during the round and shares the lead now with Isao Aoki. (AP Laserphoto)

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus' so familiar, so frustrating putting problems dropped him back into a tie with Japan's Isao Aoki for the third-round lead Saturday in the 80th U.S. Open golf championship.

"I would have loved to have made it a very dull tournament," Nicklaus said after posting his round of par 70, which included 12 putts on the last five holes.

"But," he sighed, "you are going to have a very exciting tournament."

"I had an opportunity on the back nine to run and hide from the field. But I gave back what I had."

And he left unanswered a question about his possible retirement from the game he has ruled so long.

"If he wins tomorrow," Tom Watson said of Nicklaus, "I think he may retire."

"I'll let you know tomorrow," Nicklaus said.

He obviously had other things on his mind. Like winning a record-tying fourth American national championship.

Once holding a 3-stroke lead, he had a chance to all but clinch it.

And the putter gave it away.

"Walking down the 10th fairway after shooting 32 (on the front side) I felt very confident, very relaxed. I was playing with a 3-shot lead and playing the easiest holes."

"And now I don't have the lead. Now you're vulnerable to six or eight players. If I was at 10 under par, it might have been one or two."

Aoki, a slender 37-year-old who has 31 of his career 32 titles in Japan, birdied the last two holes for a third consecutive 68 and a tie with Nicklaus for the lead at 204.

It set up a dramatic confrontation for Sunday's final round of the most prestigious of all the world's tests of golfing greatness.

On the one hand is Nicklaus, now 40, considered by many as the greatest player of all time. He's trying to cap a comeback from two years of deep frustration with a record-tying fourth American national championship.

On the other hand is Aoki, by far the finest player in his country and seeking to become the first Oriental to win one of the game's Big Four titles. Should he do it, it would mark the first time in history that non-Americans had won four consecutive major titles.

But Nicklaus and Aoki, who have played together for three days and will be paired again Sunday, are not alone.

With Nicklaus failing to take advantage of his opportunities, Lon Hinkle, Keith Fergus, Mark Hayes and Tom Watson — the most dangerous of them all — moved into position.

The long-hitting Hinkle, an easy-going guy who caused such a stir when he discovered a shortcut in last year's Open, birdied the final hole for a 69 that left him one shot behind at 205.

"Whatever will be, will be," he said in a look-ahead to Sunday's chase for golf's greatest title. "It's not a matter of who can putt or anything now."

Watson, Fergus and Hayes were another stroke back at 206, only two away.

Watson, a gritty determined man who has supplanted Nicklaus as the leader of world golf over the last three years, birdied four holes in a row on the way to a 67.

"I want to win the tournament," repeated Watson, who has named this title as his goal throughout the season. "I simply want to win it. And I'm in good position to do it tomorrow."

"You can't force it to happen. You have to let it happen. It will be a game of patience."

Hayes finished off his 69 with an eagle 3 on the last hole and Fergus, who once shared the lead this hot, humid day, had a 70.

The only others under par figures for three trips over the 7,076 yards of wooded, rolling hills that make up the lower course at the Baltusrol Golf Club were Lee Trevino and Craig Stadler, a two-time winner this year. But, at 209, they were five stroke back and tied for seventh. Both had a 69, with Trevino closing with an eagle 3.

Hubert Green, a former Open champion, had the day's best round, a 5-under-par 65 that included a remarkable string of eight consecutive "3s." The string started on the par-3 ninth and concluded on the par-3 16th. In between were five birdies and another par.

David Graham of Australia, the current PGA champion, had a 72 and was at 217. Seve Ballesteros of Spain, who won the Masters and the 1979 British Open, was disqualified after failing to make his starting time for Friday's second round.

The defending American titleholder, Hale Irwin, had a 73 and was at 213.

Nicklaus' problems down the stretch served as a crushing disappointment to the proud man who owns a record collection of 15 major professional championships. At age 40, he's attempting to fight his way out of the longest, Shimata!

Lundquist's 66 Takes Big Lead

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — "When I'm playing my best, Dale Lundquist found her put-ting stroke and shot the best and imaginary line where I round of her career, a 6-under-par 66, to grab a commanding 4-stroke lead after the third round of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament Saturday.

The closest golfers to her total of 12-under-par 204 with the aggressive final set for Sunday were Beth Bradley, who had 69. Both were followed by Daniel and Pat par 5 ninth hole.

Lundquist is in her fourth full year on the tour and never has finished better than a third-place tie. She has won only $9,190 this season, never finishing higher than 18th. But this has been her tournament from the start.

She was the sole leader after the first round with a 68. Her 70 Friday tied her for the second round lead with 1979 rookie-of-the-year Daniel at 6-under-par 138 on the par 72, 6,029-yard Ferncroft course.

After she rediscovered her putting touch on the practice green after Friday's round, she bolted away from the pack Saturday.

"I only had 28 putts today, a little improvement over 35 yesterday," said Lundquist, 26. "I was moving my head (on Friday's putts) and getting a little anxious to see where the ball was going."

Isao Impresses Nicklaus

SPRINGFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Isao Aoki has won 31 golf tournaments in Japan, one in England and will be in excellent position to capture his first event in the United States — the U.S. Open — on Sunday.

The Japanese master of the short game is tied with Jack Nicklaus at 6-under-par 204 after 54 holes of the Open at Baltusrol Golf Club.

Aoki has put together three straight rounds of 68 and Saturday birdied the final two holes to pull even with a faltering Nicklaus and move one stroke ahead of Lon Hinkle and two shots in front of Tom Watson, Mark Hayes and Keith Fergus.

Aoki and Nicklaus were paired for the first three rounds and because they are the leaders, they will play together again Sunday.

"I enjoy playing with Jack Nicklaus," the 37-year-old Aoki said through an interpreter. "I'm looking forward to playing with him again."

Aoki finished 34th in his first U.S. Open last year and missed the cut in his sixth Masters this year. Nicklaus was asked if they talked much as they walked the course. Aoki speaks very little English.

"We don't say a lot," Nicklaus said.

He was asked how Aoki pronounces his name.

"Jack," he said.

A victory for Aoki in this, one of the most prestigious tournaments in the world, would no doubt make him a national hero in Japan, along the lines of Sadaharu Oh, a baseball slugger.

"I don't know what the reaction in Japan would be," he said. "This is the toughest golf tournament, it doesn't compare with any other tournament."

Aoki, who tied for seventh in the 1978 and 1979 British Opens, has impressed Nicklaus with his skill on the greens and with the short irons. Nicklaus skirted the issue when questioned if he would be surprised if Aoki won.

"I'm not looking forward to that," he said.

Aoki is a four-time leading money winner in Japan and a five-time winner of the Eastern Japan PGA. His victory in England was the 1978 World Match Play when he defeated Simon Owen of New Zealand. Last year, he lost to American Bill Rogers in the finals of the match play event.

In Japan this year, Aoki has played six times, won twice and has pocketed about $100,000. Last year, the 6-foot, 170-pound Aoki earned over $200,000 from Japanese tournament play.

Soviets Predict Record Entries

MOSCOW (AP) — Despite a boycott by the United States and other major sports powers, Soviet officials predict a record number of entrants in track and field events at the Moscow Summer Olympic Games.

"Traditionally this is the most representative sport. Track and field athletes compete for the biggest number of Olympic medals. In Moscow they will compete in 38 events," the Soviet news agency Tass noted in a report Saturday.

"Around 1,500 athletes, a record number for a modern Olympics, are expected to take part in the track and field tournament," the agency said.

Thirteen gold medalists from the 1976 Montreal Olympics are among "a real constellation of famous track and field athletes" expected at the July 19 to Aug. 3 games, it said.

Among entries in the men's events are sprinters Donald Quarrie of Jamaica and Hasely Crawford of Trinidad and Tobago, middle distance double winner Alberto Juantorena of Cuba, Finnish distance star Jasse Viren, high jumper Jacek Wsolya and pole vaulter Tadeusz Susarski of Poland. Also signed up are Mexico's 20-kilometer walker Daniel Bautista, Miklos Nemeth of Hungary in the javelin, East German shot putter Udo Beyer and Yuri Sedykh of the Soviet Union in the hammer throw.

Women gold medalists who will try to repeat their triumphs at Lenin Stadium are East Germans Ruth Fuchs in discus, Rosemarie Ackermann in the high jump and Soviet runner Tatyana Kazankina, double gold medalist in the 800 and 1,500 meters at Montreal.

A number of other world stars will be trying for their first medals at the Moscow games, Tass said.

Sebastian Coe of Britain, holder of all world records in middle distance events; teammate Daley Thompson, the world record holder in the decathlon; Thierry Vigneron of France, world record pole vaulter; Ethiopian distance runner Mireus Yifter and triple jump record-holder Joao Oliveira of Brazil are among the challengers.

Tass said that the large number of world records at the beginning of the season showed that "competitions will be stiff and the results brilliant" at the Summer Games.

Among the new marks were the 10.87 clocking in the 100 meters by Soviet sprinter Ludmila Kondratyeva, East German Ilona Slupianek's world record effort in the shot put, Hungarian Ferenec Paragi's javelin record and a world record hammer throw by Soviet Sergei Litvinov.

Skeets Nehemiah Back In Form

WALNUT, Calif. (AP) — World record holder Renaldo "Skeets" Nehemiah showed Saturday that he was back from the injuries that have plagued him most of the year, winning the 110-meter hurdles event at The Athletics Congress Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

The fluid Nehemiah, hampered by a torn cartilage in his left ankle, a "hip tilt" and an Achilles tendon injury in 1980, skimmed over the hurdles in 13.49 seconds in edging Dedy Cooper, the runnerup in 13.56.

Rod Milburn, the 1972 Olympic champion who is making a comeback this year after a seven year absence from amateur competition, finished fourth in 13.76, behind Anthony Campbell of the University of Southern California, timed in 13.70.

Nehemiah had shown signs that he was fully recovered from his physical problems in Friday's heats and semifinals, but he still said he needed to prove his comeback was complete by winning the final.

Although his time was not close to his world mark of 13.00, he beat some of the best hurdlers in the country. The only major absentee was Greg Foster, the NCAA champion from UCLA. Foster decided to race, Auburn University freshman Stanley Floyd extended to get ready for next week's U.S. Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore., nipping James Gilkes of Guyana. Both were timed in 13.70.

Nehemiah, winner of his third 10.19 seconds, and after the straight national title, had not raced, Gilkes went around wavered in five weeks. In his ing his right hand as if he had last appearance, he finished fourth in the UCLA Invitation- al, a race won by Foster.

In this meet, Nehemiah said Floyd, the NCAA champion, he did not need Foster to run had been declared the winner.

well. "Greg is a smart athlete," out of the blocks, bolting to a said Nehemiah. "He knows quick early lead. But McTear what races he needs to run. I faded in mid-race and finished don't need a certain guy to third in 10.25.

Wiggins, Campagna Are Named Coaches For Boys Home Game

Coaches have been selected for the 18th annual Jaycee Boys Home Game, which will be played in Greenville on July 19.

Head coach for the North squad will be Walt Wiggins of Rocky Mount High School, while Will Campagna of North Mecklenburg will serve as the South head coach.

Wiggins, a Goldsboro native, is a graduate of Guilford College. He has been at Rocky Mount for 15 years. His ten-year record as head football coach is 77-31-2. His teams have won four Division I championships and his 1977 team was state 4-A runner-up.

Campagna is a graduate of Catawba College, and received his masters from Appalachian State. He has a record of 139 wins, 54 losses and 10 ties over a career at Charlotte Catholic, Albemarle Brown and North Mecklenburg. This year, his team was undefeated during the regular season and lost to eventual state 4-A champion High Point Central in the playoffs. His teams at North Mecklenburg have a 23-4 record.

Assistant coaches for the North will be Mac Allen of Plymouth High School and C.K. Siler of Southern Guilford. South aides will be Boyce Dietz of Swain County and Tommy Sloan of Midway.

Allen is a 1969 graduate of N.C. State, where he played baseball and football. Before coming to Plymouth in 1977, he was head football coach at Apex and was Wake County Coach of the Year in 1974.

Siler is a graduate of Elon and has 26 years of coaching experience. He has a record of 173-92-10 and a 1979 record of 11-1-1.

Dietz is a Western Carolina graduate and served for seven years as an assistant at Sylva-Webster. He has built a record of 30-6 at Swain County High as head coach.

Sloan, a graduate of Campbell, coached his 1978 team to the state 1-A championship. Prior to his six-year stay at Midway, he was an assistant at Clinton.

The game is annually sponsored by the North Carolina Jaycees and net proceeds go to the Boys Homes of North Carolina, Inc. The game was played in Ficklen Stadium in Greenville for 15 years, prior to moving to Raleigh for the past two seasons.

Leonard, Duran Meet For Title

MONTREAL (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran will meet Friday night in Olympic Stadium in possibly the richest fight in history and one of the most anticipated.

At stake at the 78,000-seat Olympic Stadium will be the unbeaten Leonard's World Boxing Council welterweight championship.

Bob Arum, the promoter who is involved with rival Don King in the closed-circuit telecast, said the 24-year-old Leonard is getting a percentage of all revenues and stands to make between $8 million and $10 million. Duran, the former lightweight champion who has lost once in 70 pro fights, reportedly will make $1.5 million tax-free.

A source closely involved with the fight game said that, despite various reported purses, the most Muhammad Ali ever made for a fight was $6 million for his successful defense against Ken Norton in New York's Yankee Stadium in 1976.

The fight will be seen at 310 locations in the United States and Canada, with a total of 1.6 million seats and tickets ranging from $15 to $30, Mike Malitz of Arum's Top Rank, Inc., said. The fight also will be televised live or on a delayed basis in 60-70 other countries.

The bout rivals in anticipation such fights as the Ali-Joe Frazier series, Ali-George Foreman, the second Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey fight and Joe Louis' rematches against Max Schmeling and Billy Conn. Veteran fight observers consider the scheduled 15-round bout the most anticipated non-heavyweight fight since the first Sugar Ray — Robinson — fought Randy Turpin for the middleweight title the second time and met welterweight champion Carmen Basilio twice in the 1950s.

The principals are two of the most exciting fighters in the world — Leonard, an Olympic gold medal winner here four years has become a "household" name in the United States through his flashing, bashing style and the fact that most of his pro fights have been seen on home television; Duran, "Manos de Piedra (Hands of Stone), a legend in Latin America and the king of the lightweights for most of the 1970s.

Leonard, of Palmer Park, Md., will go into the fight with a 27-0 record, with 18 knockouts. He won the WBC title by knocking down previously unbeaten Wilfred Benitez twice and stopping him with six seconds left in the fight last Nov. 30 and made his first defense by knocking out Davey "Boy" Green in four rounds March 31.

Duran, of Panama, who will be 29 four days before the fight, has a 69-1 record, with 55 knockouts. Before voluntarily giving up the lightweight title (135-pound limit), which he won by stopping Ken Buchanan in 13 rounds, to campaign as a welterweight (147 pounds), he made 12 defenses, winning 11 of them by knockouts.

The Union Plaza book in Las Vegas last Tuesday made Leonard a 9-5 favorite. Duran's feeling is that the favoritism and the purse structure are in Leonard's favor because he is an American.

Leonard's favorite's role seems to be based chiefly on the fact that Duran has not been as devastating as a welterweight as he was as the king of the lightweights.

Since relinquishing the lightweight championship, Duran, whose only loss was in a non-title bout eight years ago, has fought eight times as a welterweight, with half the fights going the distance.

But Duran's fans note that the Panamanian knocked down former welterweight champion Carlos Palomino and easily outpointed him and also contend that their hero was less than at his physical and mental peak for several of his welterweight fights, which were against average opponents.

Joy At Baltusrol
Jack Nicklaus appears pleased as he walks off the fourth hole in Springfield, N.J., Saturday. Would Jack Quit?

SPRINGFIELD, N. J. (AP) — Tom Watson said Saturday that Jack Nicklaus might retire from competitive golf if he wins the 80th U.S. Open championship.

"It's just a surmise," said Watson after Saturday's third round of the Open at Baltusrol. "He has never told me in so many words but it would not surprise me."

Nicklaus, tied for the lead with Japan's Isao Aoki going into Sunday's final round, has often said he would like to win four U.S. Opens to join the elite group of Willy Anderson, Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan.

Later, when the question was put to Nicklaus, he replied: "I will let you know tomorrow if I win the tournament. I will let him (Watson) know tomorrow, too."

The 30-year-old Watson, the best golfer of his generation, said of the 40-year-old Nicklaus, who has won 17 major tournaments: "I think that in the back of his mind he doesn't want to play any more. He wants to go out on a good note."

Nicklaus and Aoki, at 204 hold a stroke lead over Lon Hinkle and a 2-stroke edge over Watson, Mark Hayes and Keith Fergus.

"Nicklaus wants it badly," Watson said. "I don't know if it is going to play on his mind that he wants it so badly. I don't know if he will retire if he should win but that will be going through his mind. There is probably a lot more pressure on Jack Nicklaus than on Tom Watson. But I still would rather be in the lead than chasing Jack Nicklaus."

As for Watson, he would like to win the Open for his baby daughter, Meg, born last September, and his father, Ray. Especially for his dad as a Father's Day present.

"My father taught me the game of golf," he said. "He told me to cool it the last two weeks before the Open. He said don't get too up for it, don't pressure yourself."

McEnroe Wins, But Vitas Out

LONDON (AP) — Australia's Kim Warwick, ranked No. 57 in the world, upset Vitas Gerulaitis of the United States 6-3, 6-4 in windy weather Saturday and unexpectedly reached the final of the Queen's Club grass courts tennis championships.

Defending champion John McEnroe, less troubled by the conditions, used his heavy service to defeat Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-4, 6-0.

Gerulaitis was the No. 2 seed. Warwick was unseeded, but had had a comparatively easy passage to the semifinals with no seeds in his path.

Warwick will challenge McEnroe in the final Sunday for a prize of $17,500. The tournament is an important warm-up event on grass before Wimbledon.

The wind blew across the court while McEnroe was playing. "It was troublesome on one side of the court but not on the other," the American left-hander said.

But it changed direction, and when Gerulaitis went on court he found himself serving into strong gusts. Even Warwick felt sorry for him.

"Sometimes he threw the ball up to serve and the wind blew it back into his face," the rugged 28-year-old Australian said.

The wind blew Gerulaitis off course. From 3-3 in the first set he dropped service twice running and lost the first set.

Duo Tied For Lead At Open...

The first came on a 30 footer that had so much velocity on the slick greens that it hit the back of the hole, bounced two or three inches into the air and then rattled comfortably back in the cup.

The 15-footer on the 18th was the exact opposite. That one reached the hole on the last turn of the ball, hung for a tantalizing moment on the lip and finally dropped in.

Aoki bogeyed the two previous holes but still made up two strokes on Nicklaus in final four holes.

Nicklaus, with a 2-stroke lead, bogeyed the 14th from a bunker, missing a very makable putt.

He bogeyed the 15th when he three-putted, leaving his first putt some five feet short. He missed a 12-footer for birdie on the 16th. He missed an even shorter one for birdie on the 17th. And, with an eagle opportunity on the 18th, he ran a 25-footer some five feet by the hole and missed it coming back. It was a three-putt par.

At one time, however, Nicklaus had it in his hand. He dropped birdie putts in the 20-30 foot range on the fourth, fifth and seventh holes and appeared ready to move away from the field as he did with such regularity in other days.

But this time it was not to be. His putts wouldn't fall and the pesky Aoki stayed with him, lurking just off his shoulder.

Nicklaus kept booming the drives some 20 yards beyond Aoki. But they kept leaving the greens with matching pars. It all turned around on the final few holes when Aoki's long putts fell and Jack's short ones did not.

Former Lobo Coach Ellenberger Set To Go On Trial On Monday

ROSSELL, N.M. (AP) — "I'm not guilty," he said. Ellenberger, 48, who was fired by UNM President William E. Davis in December, was indicted by a federal grand jury Feb. 14. If convicted, he could receive up to 35 years in prison and $31,000 in fines.

The federal indictments stemmed from a grand jury investigation that began Dec. 13 after the FBI revealed in late November it was looking into possible mail fraud and bribery in connection with the preparation of junior college transcripts for Lobo basketball players.

Ellenberger also has been indicted by a state grand jury on one count of fraud in excess of $2,500, 10 counts of fraud in excess of $100 and 11 counts of making false public vouchers. He has pleaded innocent and the trial will be held following the conclusion of the trial on the federal charges.

U.S. Attorney R.E. Thompson said last week he expects the federal trial here will last at least 10 days.

The trial was shifted from Albuquerque to Roswell by U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga, despite the fact that Ellenberger had not asked for a change of venue.

"I would prefer to be tried in Albuquerque," Ellenberger said recently. "If you can't get a fair trial in Albuquerque, I don't know where I could get a fair trial."

But he said he is anxious to have his day in court.

"It has been hard for me than anything I can put into words, because I am not a criminal, I am not a crook and I am not a thief. It has been a hideous thing to endure," he said.

"I was ready to go months ago and I am ready now. I've already been tried somewhat in the press and in a lot of corners already been found guilty," he said.

The judge has denied several defense motions, including one asking the charges be dismissed because of "prosecutorial misconduct" and another requesting information obtained by the FBI in a wiretap last fall be suppressed.

NCAA Warned School Of Problems In 1975

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — National Collegiate Athletic Association investigators warned the University of New Mexico since 1975 of possible problems with travel and expense vouchers involving the school's basketball team.

William E. Davis, New Mexico president, said Friday he was aware the investigators were examining travel vouchers, but he thought they were referring to NCAA violations and not fraudulent practices.

J. Brent Clark and Doug Dunlop, two former NCAA investigators who probed the New Mexico athletic department from 1975-78, said they told Davis their probes were aimed at the relationship between the basketball program and a travel agency.

However, Davis said he did not have a hint of that in his conversations with the investigators.

In September 1979, New Mexico received from the NCAA 57 allegations of rule violations. "It was obvious to anyone in the administration what I was investigating," Dunlop said in Colorado Springs, Colo. "I was copying volumes of documents."

Clark said, "The NCAA and the university administrators were aware of the vouchers and other problems long before this thing broke."

However, Davis said he did not recall the NCAA investigators being specific about the nature of the probe.

"It has been my experience that during a preliminary inquiry, which this was, that the NCAA is not specific about what they are investigating," Davis said.

However, he said he knew the NCAA investigators were looking at travel vouchers.

"My assumption was they were checking dates for recruiting, and transportation of athletes to and from campus," Davis said.

Last month, former New Mexico basketball Coach Norm Ellenberger was indicted by a state grand jury on 11 counts of fraud and 11 counts of making false public vouchers. He has pleaded innocent to the charges.

Former New Mexico assistant basketball coach Manny Goldstein also was indicted by the state grand jury on four counts of fraud and four counts of filing false pay vouchers. He pleaded innocent Friday to the charges.

And another former New Mexico assistant basketball coach, John Whisenant, was indicted by the state grand jury on six counts of making false public vouchers and six counts of fraud. He also has pleaded innocent to the charges.

Ellenberger and Whisenant also face federal charges in connection with the recruiting and transcript-rigging scandal that has rocked the New Mexico athletic department.

The federal indictments stemmed from a grand jury investigation that began last Dec. 13 after the FBI revealed in late November it was examining possible mail fraud and bribery in connection with the preparation of junior college transcripts for New Mexico basketball players.

Yount Sparks Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Robin Yount is growing accustomed to hitting home runs. But the Milwaukee Brewers shortstop admitted that hitting one inside the park is something special.

Yount electrified a crowd of 50,605 Saturday when he lined a shot off the top of the right field wall. The ball caromed away from a leaping John Wathan and rolled toward center field.

Yount raced around the bases and scored behind Dick Davis to cap a four-run second inning, and the Brewers went on to defeat the Kansas City Royals 5-2.

"It was a lot more exciting than hitting one over the fence," said Yount, who set a personal season high with his 10th homer.

It was the third inside-the-park homer of his career, and all have been against the Royals.

"Sure, I was excited," Yount said. "It's always a thrill to do something like that. The guys in the dugout were all jumping up and down — a lot more than if the ball had just gone over the fence."

"I really didn't see where it hit," he added. "They just kept waving me around and I just kept running."

Don Money and Ben Oglivie also homered for the Brewers. Oglivie drilled his 16th homer off Renie Martin, 7-3, to start the Brewers' second inning, and Sixto Lezcano and Davis followed with singles.

A sacrifice by Jim Gantner and an infield grounder by Charlie Moore scored another run, and Yount followed with his homer.

Buck Rodgers, the Brewers' third base coach, said the ball appeared to hit off Wathan's head or shoulder after it struck the wall.

TORONTO (AP) — Roy Howell's sacrifice fly scored Garth Iorg in the bottom of the ninth inning Saturday, capping a two-run rally and giving the Toronto Blue Jays a 7-6 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Trailing 6-5 entering their final at-bat, the Blue Jays loaded the bases — for the fourth time in the game — on three walks. Barry Bonnell came home with the tying run when Pepe Frias bobbled Damaso Garcia's grounder and, with one out and the outfield drawn in, Howell hit a fly ball to deep left field to win the game.

Tom Buskey, 3-1, came on in the sixth inning. Bob Babcock, the fifth Ranger pitcher, took his second loss in as many decisions.

Carlton 1st To Win 11

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A two-run homer by Greg Luzinski and a solo shot by Mike Schmidt helped Steve Carlton become the major league's first 11-game winner as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the slumped San Diego Padres 3-1 Saturday night.

Carlton boosted his record to 11-2, allowing six hits and striking out 13 in eight innings. It was the 35th time in his Phillies career that Carlton has been in double figures in strikeouts.

The 13 strikeouts tied the National League high for this year, set by Houston pitcher J.R. Richard, who has accomplished the feat twice. Carlton leads the league with 118 strikeouts.

Carlton earned his sixth straight triumph with last-inning relief help from Tug McGraw, who gained his fifth save. In his previous seven starts, Carlton compiled a 1.56 earned run average.

Sage Powers Pirates To 10-1 Victory

LOUISBURG — East Carolina University won its second game in the North Carolina Collegiate League Friday night, gaining a 10-1 victory over Louisburg, as Mike Sage batted two home runs and drove in seven runs.

The result left East Carolina with a 2-3 record, and Louisburg dips to 4-3.

Bill Wilder picked up his second win of the season in the contest, going the distance. He scattered just four hits, struck out ten and walked five in extending his record to 2-0.

The lone Louisburg run came on a solo homer in the second inning by Steve Furman, who had two of the Hurricane hits.

The Hurricanes had two other good threats, in the fifth and sixth, loading the bases with one out each time. In the fifth, Wilder struck out the next batter and got a fly out to get out of the jam. He had loaded the bases by hitting the one and walking two others.

In the sixth, a one-out single followed by a walk and an error filled the sacks, but a pop up and a strikeout ended the threat.

East Carolina got its action going in the first inning, pushing four over. Starting pitcher Jack Marchant issued a double to Mike Sorrell to open the game, followed by a Kelly Robinette single. Todd Hendley then got an infield hit, scoring Sorrell. After John Hallow hit into a fielder's choice, DH Mike Sage hit the first of two home runs, scoring three runs.

After a walk and a Robinette double, Tony Moody relieved Marchant striking out the next two batters to cool that inning.

The Pirates picked up three more in the fourth, extending their lead to 7-1. Sorrell again got it started, getting a single to center. He moved to second on a wild pitch and Hendley walked. Both advanced on a passed ball, and a wild pitch brought in Sorrell.

With two away, Sage again did the job, binging a two-run homer to right-center. The scoring was completed in the fifth when three more scored. Sorrell once more started it with a single, followed by a hit by Robinette, chasing Moody. Reliever Cam Frostick's first pitch was drilled to center by Hendley for a run-scoring single. Hallow reached on an error, loading the bases. That set the stage for Sage, who hit a bad-hop single over second for two more runs batted in, giving him seven for the night.

East Carolina was to travel to Campbell on Saturday for a doubleheader, then will return

This Is The Time When All NBA Teams Happy

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For professional basketball teams, this is the sweetest time of year. There are no games to lose, and each has just dipped into the pool of college talent and gone home convinced it hooked some players who will help.

"Everybody looks good this time of year," says Marty Blake, who runs a scouting service for the league and whose reports are used as the basis for talent evaluation prior to the draft. "Wait till they show up at training camp in September — it's amazing how different some of them will look."

But for now, everyone looks like an all-pro. Nearly all the 23 teams have gone home bragging about the holes they've filled.

The holes they didn't fill? Well, why spoil things by talking about that now?

The draft, in which clubs select in reverse order of their win-loss records of the previous season, is supposed to give the have-nots a chance to close the gap that separates them from the haves. But it doesn't always work that way — through shrewd trading and drafting, some good teams just keep on getting better via the draft.

For example, the Boston Celtics and Atlanta Hawks, two division winners, are significantly stronger now than they were a week ago following some fancy footwork by the Celtics and solid drafting by the Hawks.

Here's a team-by-team recap of the draft, focusing on what problems were solved and what remain.

Atlantic Division
Boston — The rich get richer. Dealt for 7-footer Robert Parish of Golden State on eve of draft and then took 6-11 Kevin McHale of Minnesota. Those two join Larry Bird, Dave Cowens, Rick Robey and possibly free agent Cedric Maxwell on a strong, deep front line. Still needs a big guard, so either a trade will be made or swingman M.L. Carr will see more action from the back line.

New Jersey — Filled two of its needs with two "good-attitude" types, 6-11 center Mike Gminski of Duke and 6-7 forward Mike O'Koren of North Carolina. Also wanted help in backcourt, drafted Lowes Moore of West Virginia and Rory Sparrow of Villanova but may still have to deal.

New York — Didn't get the power forward it needed, instead landing a fine small forward in Indiana's Mike Woodson. Second-rounder DeWayne Scates is a gamble, a 6-9 super-shooter who could be a star if he shows his bad off-court reputation is unfounded. Already signed steady guard Reggie Carter of St. John's, drafted a year ago.

remember how badly Sixers were beaten under boards by the Lakers?

Washington — Needed a point guard and gambled on speedy Wes Matthews of Wisconsin. Also dealt for Iowa center Jeff Ruland, who should provide depth up front.

Central Division
Atlanta — Got two fine forwards in Don Collins of Washington State and Craig Shelton of Georgetown, which should enable Hubie Brown to finally unload John Drew, never one of his favorite players.

Chicago — Found the guard it wanted in Ronnie Lester, whose only problem is his injured knee. Second-round pick Sam Worthen of Marquette, another guard, should guarantee departure of guard Ricky Sobers for forward help.

Cleveland — Picked up a playmaking guard in Chad Kinch of North Carolina-Charlotte who should team with Randy Smith in lightning backcourt. Still needs help under the boards.

Detroit — Desperate for guard help, landed a fine playmaker in Larry Drew of Missouri, who should be a starter. Frontcourt situation is still unsettled.

Indiana — No first-round pick. Forward Louis Orr of Syracuse and guard Kenny Natt of Northeast Louisiana, both second-rounders, were not rated among the top prospects by most scouts.

Milwaukee — No first-rounder, no second-rounder. Pot luck after that.

Midwest Division
Dallas — Needed help up front, got a team-oriented forward in UCLA's Kiki Vandeweghe No.1 and a good defensive center in Syracuse's 6-11 Roosevelt Bouie No.2. Also signed ex-UCLA 7-footer Ralph Drollinger as free agent, making it a very productive day.

Denver — A tremendous draft, with six picks in top 51. Got the power forward it desperately needed in 6-9 James Ray of Jacksonville and also a guard who could start in Carl Nicks of Indiana State. Also, pivot depth in 7-0 Jawann Oldham of Seattle and 6-10 Kurt Nimphius of Arizona State and two others who could stick in guard Eddie Lee of Cincinnati and forward Ronnie Valentine of Old Dominion.

Houston — No first-rounder, got a fine shooting forward in John Stroud of Mississippi on second round. He should replace Rick Barry, a free agent not expected to return.

Kansas City — Hot-shooting Hawkeye Whitney of North Carolina State will provide points off the bench and depth at small forward and big guard. Third-rounder Tony Murphy may or may not be the man to succeed waterbug Billy McKinney, lost in expansion, as Phil Ford's backup.

San Antonio — Needed a pure center, used first two picks on 6-9 Reggie Johnson of Tennessee, a college center who is considered a pro forward by most scouts, and 6-8 forward Michael Wiley of Long Beach State. Third-rounders Lavon Mercer of Georgia and Rich Yonokor are both 6-9 and have chances to make it. All provide insurance in case free agent forward Larry Kenon signs elsewhere.

Pacific Division
Golden State — Finally decided to rebuild, after three years in division cellar. Dealt off center Robert Parish and replaced him with No.1 pick in draft, 7-1 Joe Barry Carroll of Purdue. Also got two tough rebounders in 6-10 forward-center Rickey Brown of Mississippi State and 6-7 Larry Smith of Alcorn State. Still needs guard depth and is expected to sign Washington's Larry Wright as free agent.

Los Angeles — Needed backup help all over, got 6-9 Wayne Robinson of Virginia Tech and 6-5 Butch Carter of Indiana on second round. Neither is a household name.

Phoenix — No picks till late in second round, when it took unknown forward Kimberley Belton of Stanford. Sun's big rookie will be Kyle Macy, Kentucky's All-American guard who was drafted a year ago. Still needs a big rebounder and has veteran Don Buse as trade bait.

Portland — Dealt with Chicago for the playmaking guard it wanted, Kelvin Ransey of Ohio State. Took two unheralded players on second round, 6-8½ David Lawrence of McNeese State and 6-5 Bruce Collins of Weber State.

San Diego — New Coach Paul Silas was anxious for a good-attitude, hard-working forward, and nailed him in Michael Brooks of LaSalle. He and Silas might be the best forwards on the team.

Seattle — With Dennis Johnson having been traded, tabbed Notre Dame's 6-6 Bill Hanzlik as its defensive stopper. Hopes third-rounder Carl Bailey, a 7-footer from Tuskegee, can be backup center.

GERIATRIC RECORD
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Doc Counsellman, the legendary swimming coach at Indiana University, became the oldest man in history to swim the English Channel when he made the crossing in September of 1979, at the age of 58. He doubts the record will last.

"I'm sure my record won't last long," he said recently.

Snow Hill Falls, 6-4

ROCKY MOUNT — Rocky Mount remained unbeaten in American Legion play Friday night, gaining a 6-4 victory over Snow Hill. The win left Rocky Mount in the league lead with a 3-0 mark, while Snow Hill slipped to 0-2.

Snow Hill scored first, getting a pair of runs in the top of the third. Kevin Korpi led off with a walk and Billy McLawhorn reached on a fielder's choice. Al Murray doubled, scoring Korpi, and a single by Walt Tyndall brought McLawhorn over.

The lead didn't last long, however, as Rocky Mount tied it up with two in the fourth. Bill Merrifield opened with a single and Kevin Bunn walked. David Downs singled in Merrifield, and Bruce Ellis' single brought Bunn around for a 2-2 tie.

Snow Hill scored once in the fifth, but Rocky Mount moved ahead with two in its half of the inning. Snow Hill tied it one last time with one in the sixth, making it 4-4.

Then, in the eighth, Rocky Mount took advantage of Snow Hill mistakes to push over the winning runs. Ellis reached on an error and Tim Reese singled. After two were out, Thomas Babry's infield grounder was thrown away, allowing both runs to score.

Merrifield led the Rocky Mount hitting with three, including a pair of doubles. Reese had two hits. No one had more than one for Snow Hill, but Jeff Scott had a triple to go with Murray's double.

Snow Hill returns to action today, traveling to Edenton.

New Coach For The Cavs

Charges Fly As Cavs Sign Coach

CLEVELAND (AP) — The signing of Bill Musselman as head coach of the Cleveland Cavaliers kicked off a number of changes, official and unofficial, in the management of the National Basketball Association club.

Along with the signing of Musselman to a one-year contract on Friday, new Cavaliers President Ted Stepien introduced rookie General Manager Don Delaney and other front office personnel to reporters.

"We're all new to this. We're green," Stepien admitted, asking for patience on the part of fans and the media. However, he predicted the city won't have to wait long to see a winner.

"All we ask is the opportunity to be judged when the season is over," said Stepien, a Cleveland businessman who purchased a 37 percent interest in the team in April.

Musselman, 39, coached in the old American Basketball Association in 1975 and 1976 and before that directed the University of Minnesota's basketball program from 1971 to 1974. He coached the Reno Bighorns in the Western Basketball Association in 1978.

He replaces Stan Albeck, who left the team on Wednesday to take over as head coach of the San Antonio Spurs.

"What's happened in the past is all over," said Stepien, referring to the controversy surrounding Albeck's leaving. Albeck had signed a three-year pact with the Cavs' previous management before Stepien was named club president this month, but former President Nick Mileti released Albeck from that deal, the Spurs said.

In New York, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien Friday said Mileti must file a written brief explaining his actions. Stepien had asked the league to investigate possible tampering by the Spurs.

Musselman had been hired by Stepien as the Cavaliers' player personnel director, but it was known for some time that he was first in line to take over the coaching chores if Albeck left.

Steapien said Musselman will get his support throughout Musselman's initial NBA year. "I would never fire a coach in the middle of the season," Stepien said.

Delaney, 43, formerly was basketball coach at Dyke College in Ohio. He is also the coach of the Competitors, Stepien's professional softball team.

Steapien also announced that Mo McHone, Albeck's assistant coach, resigned Friday morning, and Musselman will pick his own assistant coach. Trainer Charlie Strasser has been retained by the club.

Unofficially, Stepien said he will continue his efforts to have a sports arena built in downtown Cleveland. The Cavaliers currently play home games in the Coliseum in Richfield, about halfway between Cleveland and Akron.

"I'm a downtown person," he said. However, he said building a downtown arena is "up to political leaders," since he has tied up his money in the Cavaliers.

He said he would like to see the Cavaliers "courted" by both Coliseum management and downtown interests. He said it is possible he will someday become involved in the ownership of the Coliseum.

Pitt County Wins, 7-2, Ends Two-Game Skid

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Pitt County's American Legion baseball team bounced back after two straight losses Friday night to grab off a 7-2 victory over Edenton, raising its record to 4-2 on the season.

The Post 39 players banged out 11 hits along the way, but got into trouble several times with some sloppy fielding: they committed five errors. And while Coach Pat Smith was pleased to win, he wasn't all that pleased.

"I don't know," he said afterwards. "Maybe it's just the mood I'm in. And it is caused by several things that happened tonight that I just don't want to talk about."

"But I just didn't think we played all that well. Of course, I'm tickled to win, but I wasn't impressed with the way we did it."

Smith noted that some of the longer offensive innings for the Pitt team may have taken away some of the timing from pitcher Roger Williams, who had a no-hitter going until the fourth inning, and even then only his own mental error cost a hit then.

"We might have made some mistakes out there but we really needed this win after losing two in a row on the road," Smith pointed out.

"We've got a bunch on games in a row now, and we needed to get started on them on the right foot."

The hitting was a very pleasant factor for Smith. The 11 hits represented more than the team got in both of its losing efforts. "I guess at the end of the season, we're just going to look at the record, not who we beat and how. We can play better than this, and I hope we will from now on."

Smith noted that the fielding had a bit to do with the trouble the team found itself in during the contest. "Their first run should never have scored. They got it on a little pop that someone should have caught, but that was the way we seemed to be in the field."

Offensively, the Pitt team did the job, led by Mark Shank and Skip Hill, who collected six of the 11 hits, three each.

Pitt jumped ahead in the first, scoring twice. Shank led off with a single to left and moved up on an infield out. He moved to third on a passed ball, scampering home when the ball was thrown into left trying to get him.

Will Barrett kept it going with a single to left. He stole second and scored on Williams' single to center.

In the third, Pitt pushed over its third run. Shank beat out a bunt down the third base line, moving all the way to third when the ball was overthrown. He scored on a double by Barrett. Barrett was thrown out trying to stretch it into a triple.

The fourth run came in the fourth. With two away, Ronnie House walked and stole second. He scored on Hill's single to center.

Edenton finally came up with a run in the fifth. Al Bunch opened the inning with a double to center that was misjudged by Shank. He moved to third on an infield out and scored when Ed Alston's two-out popout to short right center fell in as three fielders converged on it.

Pitt came back with the final three runs in the sixth. Williams reached on an error and Mark Douglas walked. With one down, Hill reached on a Texas League single, loading the bases. A wild pitch let Williams in, and Shank singled to right, scoring both Douglas and Hill.

The second Edenton run came on a lead-off homer to dead center by Phil Holton in the eighth.

Edenton had big threats in each of the final five innings, leaving men on second or third. They left ten men standing in these frames, when all five of the Pitt errors were recorded.

Edenton dropped to 4-3 with the loss.

Local H.S.s Finish High In Cup Race

Rose High School, Jamesville and Greene Central completed the year high up on the list of schools in the Wachovia Cup standings, with Jamesville ending up as the 1-A runner-up.

Chapel Hill captured the 4-A crown, while Durham Jordan took the 3-A title. Bandy's was the 2-A champ, with Princeton winning in the 1-A ranks.

The Wachovia Cup Award, sponsored by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. and the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, recognizes schools which have the best overall interscholastic sports program in the state. Winners are determined by a point system based on performance in state championship events and the number of sanctioned sports in which the school participates.

"This award creates additional incentive for schools to make a total sports program, and not just concentrate on one or two sports," said Simon Terrell, Executive Director of the NCHSAA. "The Cup gives the same recognition to girls and boys and to minor and major sports. This year, the awards program covered 17 sports, six for girls and 11 for boys."

Chapel Hill fielded teams in 16 of the 17 sports and picked up 285 points, including 80 for participation. South Mecklenburg finished a close second in the 4-A ranks with 282½ points, including 70 for participation in 14 sports. The winners finished first in the state in girls' swimming and boys' cross-country; fourth in boys' tennis and boys' swimming; and reached the quarterfinals in boys' basketball and boys' soccer.

GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro, behind Jeff Brodgen's five-hit pitching, defeated Williamston, 6-1. Friday in an American Legion baseball game.

Williamston, now 3-5, took a 1-0 lead after the first half inning but saw Goldsboro counter with two in the first and single runs in the second, sixth, seventh and eighth to win.

In the first, Williamston's Randy Ellis and Eldred McQueen reached on back-to-back singles before Steve Wallace was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Wiley Keel's sacrifice fly scored Ellis.

Williamston travels to Greenville Monday night to play Pitt County.

Rose was tied with Winston-Salem Parkland for sixth with 172½ points, while Rocky Mount was eighth with 170.

In the 3-A ranks, Jordan finished with 235 points, well ahead of second place Burlington Williams with 150. Reidsville was third with 145, followed by T.C. Roberson and Shelby with 135 each.

Greene Central finished in a tie for 15th place with 100 points and was the lone area team in the top 20.

Bandy's ended up with 160 points, edging past Monroe, with 140, for the 2-A title. There are no 2-A schools in the Pitt-Martin-Greene area.

Princeton nipped Jamesville for the 1-A title. Princeton finished with 140 points, while Jamesville had 130. Cherokee and Robbinsville tied for second with 90 each, while Hayesville won fifth with 85. No other area team was listed in the top 17.

His Cars Have Won 2 Of Last 3 Indy Races

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Looking out his office window at land flatter than the oval race track at Indianapolis, Jim Hall leans back in his chair, folds his hands behind his head and says, "It worked out very smoothly."

Hall is the 44-year-old championship auto racing team leader whose cars have won two of the last three Indianapolis 500 races — the only three he has entered.

The most recent victory — the one that "worked out very smoothly" this year — caps a 26-year career as a driver, designer, developer and race team leader, a career highlighted by dozens of achievements and marred by just as many frustrations.

Now that his Indy-style "ground effects" car has become the one to watch the rest of this race season, pride, satisfaction and a sense of achievement are obvious when Hall speaks.

"I have to consider myself an innovator," he said during an interview at his Chaparral Cars headquarters, an unimposing cluster of brick and cinder-block buildings a few miles south of Midland. "I never have been a follower.

"The personal satisfaction I get is to look at the circumstances, the regulations, and decide what would be the ideal machine to fit that category. And I'm not afraid to try something new. I do it on a scientific, engineering basis with a lot of research...and I've done it several times."

The facts support the claim. Hall, as lean today as when he was named U.S. Road Racer of the Year in 1964, has been a dominant figure in the field of auto design and development for nearly two decades. His innovations have been outlawed by racing's governing bodies more often than those of any other designer.

"I had some regulation problems with the sport," he said matter-of-factly, "where everything I built for a while turned out to be illegal."

The first instance came in 1967, while Hall was still active as a driver, when he installed a movable airfoil, or "wing," on the rear of his Chaparral racer to force the car downward onto the track.

"I was the first guy to put a wing on a car in modern times," he said. The airfoil is now on almost every Indy-style racer, but not the wing Hall invented.

"The way I did it was a little more sophisticated than the way it's presently done because the angle of the wing could be changed by the driver. That system was disallowed by the international sanctioning body in 1968 for no good reason, in my opinion, and I did take that a little personally. As you know, it's in almost universal use now, so at least I had one good idea in my lifetime."

That statement was deliberate irony, since Hall had another shocker for the racing world just two years later.

His Chaparral 2-J featured a motor-driven fan to create a partial vacuum under the car, increasing downforce and allowing greater cornering speeds. It was banned in 1971, and Hall quit driving.

He returned in 1973 as a team leader, still quietly burning with his major racing passion — finding a better way to keep the car flat on the ground at high speeds and through corners.

That search culminated in the "ground effects" car, named the best-engineered car at Indy in 1979 even though it did not win. This year, Johnny Rutherford drove it to victory and a record purse. But Hall is not sure he'll be returning to the Brickyard in 1981. The reason is that he was so successful.

He formed a limited partnership in 1978, with some local business friends, to finance a three-year program for victory at Indianapolis. It did not take him that long.

"We were fortunate to win the first year, but I thought I had blown the whole deal," Hall said. "But everybody stuck in there, they realized my program was to study the Indy racing, learn about it and try to win it in the third year and, by golly, I've done that. But my partners did it mostly for the fun, and they may not want to stick with it, so I may have to reorganize my program."

Hall, bitten by the racing bug at age 19 when he borrowed his brother's sports car to enter an amateur race in New Mexico, has a degree in mechanical engineering from the California Institute of Technology.

"I have the right background for what I'm in," he said drily. He also manages an independent oil company, and — when he has time — he's an aerobatics pilot in a World War 2 trainer he rebuilt himself.

But his consuming interest continues to be auto racing.

"It takes a certain individual that's willing to take the risk," he said. "There's been automotive competition ever since they built the second one. I think it's just human nature to do that."

Smiling After Verdict

O'K, Gminski — A Nets' Exacta

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Mike O'Koren and Mike Gminski, the exacta combination of the Nets draft, are the type of players New Jersey hopes to build with and around for the next 10 years.

Discounting their athletic ability, which is considerable, the 6-foot-7 O'Koren, a local player from Jersey City, and the 6-11 Gminski, from nearby Monroe, Conn., are outstanding young men.

There were players with more talent in this year's National Basketball Association draft, but when the whole package is put together, the Nets couldn't have written a better script.

O'Koren, who played four years under Dean Smith at North Carolina, and Gminski, who played for Bill Foster — now at South Carolina — at Duke, are well-coached, well-drilled players. They received the biggest cheers when the picks were announced at the NBA draft center in New York and at the Nets draft headquarters at Giants Stadium.

Both players are white, which any general manager will say helps in the market-ability of the club. The latest trend in sports is to go with players with "character," a quality some feel is more important than talent.

Putting together a squad of diligent, conscientious players, like the Dallas Cowboys of the 1970s, is the new, accepted formula.

O'Koren should start for the Nets when the season rolls around in October. Trading Calvin Natt, last year's No. 1 draft choice, created a hole on the weak side of the Nets forward line. O'Koren is regarded by Coach Kevin Loughery as the best passing forward in college and outstanding on the fast break. He'll bump Jan van Breda Kolff from the starting lineup.

Maurice Lucas, acquired with two No. 1 draft picks for Natt, will start at power forward, backed up by 20-year-old Cliff Robinson, the second of New Jersey's two first-rounders last year. Robinson, who came on strong late in the season, will also play some center, his natural position.

Gminski's playing time will depend a great deal on whether the Nets sign incumbent free agent center George Johnson, a defensive specialist. Gminski is a good shot from 20 feet, giving New Jersey an offensive-minded center, something they've never had.

If O'Koren was taken by the time New Jersey picked, they would have drafted Iowa guard Ronnie Lester. Center, small forward and point guard were considered the three areas of greatest need.

Holdover point guard Eddie Jordan is the kind of player Loughery would rather have coming off the bench. In the third round the Nets picked Lowes Moore of West Virginia and in the fourth round they went for Rory Sparrow of Villanova — both point guards. Mike Newlin and Roger Phegley are more than capable shooting guards.

Black Hawks Tab Magnuson

CHICAGO (AP) — The naming of Keith Magnuson as head coach of the Chicago Black Hawks on Friday stunned the sports world — not to mention his predecessor, Eddie Johnston, who first heard the news on the radio.

"I wish Mr. Pulford (the team's General Manager Bob Pulford) would have had enough courtesy to tell me," Johnston said, "but it's Friday the 13th and I guess that is what you can expect."

Magnuson, who spent his 11 years as a defenseman with the National Hockey League club, retired from playing last year after a knee injury limited him to only three games.

Johnston was unable to come to contract terms after working out his one-year pact with the Hawks. Talks broke off Monday but it was expected that they would resume Friday, when Magnuson was named instead.

"It is too bad that our negotiations with Eddie Johnston didn't work out," Pulford said, "but I have no hesitancy in turning the dressing room over to Keith."

Although no contract has been finalized, Magnuson said they are talking about "two to three years" in the job, which he said Pulford offered him Wednesday night.

"It was my conflict with Pulford, not money disagreements, that led to my dismissal," Johnston said.

Pole Sitter

Benny Parsons, left, is congratulated by Cale Yarborough after Parsons drove his Chevrolet to win the pole position for today's

Gabriel 400 NASCAR stock car race at Michigan International Speedway. Yarborough was the fastest driver Saturday until Parsons went onto the track. (AP Laserphoto)

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Benny Parsons, who once drove a cab in nearby Detroit, gave himself a sweet ride Saturday to take the pole position for the Michigan 400 Grand National race away from Cale Yarborough.

Parsons wheeled his Chevrolet Monte Carlo to a lap of 163.662 mph on Michigan International Speedway's 2-mile oval, nudging Yarborough into the second starting position for Sunday's 400-mile race. That kept Yarborough from breaking the modern NASCAR record of five consecutive pole victories, which he now shares with Bobby Allison. Yarborough, his eyes shaded by his usual wide-brimmed western hat, leaned against a pile of tires with a stopwatch in his hand as Parsons began his qualifying run.

Only minutes earlier, the 40-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., driver, also in a Monte Carlo, had set what figured to be the day's standard at 163.332 mph — nearly two mph faster than anybody else had gone up to that point.

People were congratulating Yarborough, but he just nodded his head and said "It ain't over yet. Benny's been going real good out here."

Actually, Parsons has been going "real good" almost everywhere, although he's been overshadowed by Yarborough.

In the last five races, the 39-year-old Parsons has started next to Yarborough on the front row three times. And, last month at Dover, Del., Parsons was second to Yarborough only because the track's electric eye malfunctioned during his first — and fastest — lap.

"And I also felt I had the pole at Texas (two weeks ago), but Cale came along and knocked me off just like this," Parsons said.

"For the past nine races, those two cars have been basically the cars to beat from qualifying times, but we've had our problems in the races," he added. The former Detroit resident, whose father still owns a cab company there, said, "I knew I had a shot here (at the pole) if everything went smoothly. "Cale came by and congratulated me and he told one of my crew guys, 'It'll be strange to look over and see you on the inside of me at the start.'"

This has not been a very lucky track for Parsons, who now makes his home in Ellerbe, N.C. He had never before won a pole here and never has finished better than third in 20 Michigan races.

"I'm glad I was able to do this for the people who've been with me since I starting off running two-bit races on dirt tracks. Now, to run a two-mile track at 161 miles an hour in front of these people is a really good feeling."

Rams Dominate Baseball Stars

State 3-A champ Greene Central placed five players on the 1980 Eastern Carolina All-Conference squad, it was announced this week.

The Rams, who defeated Kings Mountain in the state finals to win the 3-A crown after winning the ECC with a 16-1 mark, placed five seniors on the all-star squad. They included centerfielder Al Murray, pitcher Kevin Korpi, shortstop Donald Shaw, first baseman Walt Tyndall and catcher Jimbo Fulghum.

Greene Central's James Fulghum was named coach-of-the-year.

Farmville Central and North Pitt both had three players selected for the club. Pitcher

Bob Hemingway, catcher William Beacham and centerfielder Ronnie House made it for North Pitt. From Farmville were pitcher Tony Eason, centerfielder Alan Corbitt and shortstop Greg Hardison.

D.H. Conley had catcher Curtis Spencer and rightfielder Sammy Tucker named to the squad while Ayden-Grifton was represented on the team by pitcher Tyrone Gay. Gay was the only freshman named to the team.

Other members of the 20-man team were Southern Nash's Allen Perry, Wayne Grady and McCullen Wiggins, C.B. Aycock's Rusty Talton, Southwest's Jay Harrell and North Lenoir's Kevin Battle.

They Still Love Army's General

SPRINGFIELD, N. J. (AP) — Arnie still wows 'em.

Shortly before 9 a. m. Saturday, the graying, 50-year-old golfing legend appeared on the practice tee at Baltusrol to find some 3,000 spectators packed six deep for 200 yards against the restraining ropes.

"When I hit the first ball I thought the sky was coming down," said Arnold Palmer, the man who triggered the pro golf boom of the 1960s.

"It's absolutely amazing." These enduring relics of Arnie's Army — plus thousands of new recruits — still were with him when the magnetic onetime charger from Latrobe, Pa., trudged to the final green, carding a lackluster 77 for a total of 223, 13 over par, for the first three rounds of the U.S. Open.

"Yeah, Arnie!" they yelled in unison. "I felt like I was coming down the fairway on the last round at Cherry Hill," the pleased veteran said, referring to his lone Open triumph at Denver in 1960.

"This is why I am determined to continue to play. These people are great." As the last finisher and the odd man of the 63 players who survived the 146 cutoff point for the final rounds, Palmer had to play the course alone, first off the tee at 9:56 a.m.

Dow Finsterwald, a longtime friend and PGA champion in 1958, went along as the marker. They didn't play in privacy.

"The crowd must have set a record for a practice session," said Joe Schwendeman, director of communications for the U.S. Golf Association and former official of the PGA tour. "They never deserted him. They followed him to the first tee and the gallery seemed to swell as Arnie went along. It was people to people against the ropes all the way."

Palmer wore a white eye-shade, pea-green shirt, light slacks and two-tone shoes. At less than 180 pounds, thin-hipped, thick-shouldered and with arms like wagon tongues, he looked like the Palmer of old — except for his graying hair.

"I don't mind the gray hair, it makes him look blond," said Polly Imhoff of Allentown, Pa., who said she had been following Arnie for 20 years.

The crowd cheered wildly when Palmer teed up his first ball. They cheered again as he prepared to take that familiar crouching stance. As he walked the fairway — always 20 yards ahead of his caddy and with that familiar urgency — cheers followed his path.

Palmer responded by tipping his visor and occasionally thrilling the crowd with a wave of the hand.

There really wasn't much to cheer about, but they cheered anyhow. Arnie, after paring the first hole, three-putted both the second and third, then dumped his tee shot into the drink on the short fourth.

A moan went up from the crowd.

"That's okay, Arnie, we all do it," a man was heard to mutter under his breath. It was as if the gallery wished it could share the burden of Arnie's frustrations.

"I was surprised they stayed with me," Arnie said afterward. "After I three-putted two and three and put the ball in the creek at four I thought they'd start drifting away." "They never did."

China Group, USOC Meeting
COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A Republic of China sports delegation is meeting with U.S. Olympic Committee officials in an effort to regain equal international athletic recognition now granted only the Peoples Republic of China.

"The Republic of China welcomes the opportunity to compete against athletes from the Peoples Republic of China when the competition is conducted on an equal footing," C.K. Yang, national coach of the Republic China training center, told a news conference here Friday.

"In other words we expect that both the athletes from the Republic of China (Taiwan) and those from the Peoples Republic of China should be recognized as representing two independent nations," Yang said.

The International Olympic Committee denied Republic of China athletes the right to compete under their own flag at the Winter Olympics in Lake Placid.

Yang, 1960 Olympic decathlon silver medalist, said his country would welcome an invitation from the Athletics Congress of the USA to take part in the pre-Olympic international track competition at Berkeley, Calif., July 17-19.

Yang also said his country's track and field team is planning to attend a training camp at the U.S. Olympic Training Center here in August and indicated his national basketball team would come here for a November basketball tournament.

Martin, Yanks Hold Reunion

By The Associated Press
Billy Martin and the New York Yankees got together again Friday night.
The reunion took place at the Oakland Coliseum, where the former Yankee manager is now employed by Charlie Finley's A's — and both sides got quite a wallop out of it.
The A's walloped first with ex-Yankee Mickey Klutts hitting a ninth-inning homer for a 4-3 Oakland victory in the opener of a two-night double-header. The Yankees walloped back with Reggie Jackson's grand slam homer pacing a 6-4 New York victory in the nightcap.
"It was a very emotional experience for us," said Jackson about facing Martin for the first time in an A's uniform. "I'm glad we got it out of the way."
Jackson's controversial relationship with Martin, of course, was at the center of a lot of Yankee turmoil during Martin's stormy reign in New York.
Now the Yankee slugger shrugs it off.
"The media tried to perpetuate the things between Billy and me," said Jackson. "We're old friends."
Martin, too, seemed to be a lot more amiable about their relationship now that he is in Oakland.
"Reggie has no vendetta against me and I don't have one against him," noted Martin. "When he hits a home run, it's nothing personal against me. When we strike him out, there's nothing personal in it against him."
Klutts won the opener for Oakland by leading off the ninth with a homer off Ron Guidry. Klutts hit a 2-0 pitch from Guidry, 6-3, on a line over the left field fence. The homer, Klutts' second of the year, made a winner of Brian Kingman, 3-6.
In the second game, Jackson brought the Yankees from behind with the eighth grand slam home run of his career, a 400-foot drive in the seventh inning.
Mariners 7, Orioles 6
Tom Paciorek and Jim Anderson each hit solo home runs to help Seattle beat Baltimore. Six different Mariners drove in runs off Mike Flanagan, 6-5, in support of winner Glenn Abbott, 6-2, who needed relief help from Shane Rawley and Dave Heaverlo.
Paciorek hit his fifth home run in the fourth to tie the score at 2-2. Anderson's third home run in the sixth chased Flanagan, who had beaten Seattle three straight times.

Tigers 8, White Sox 4
Detroit's Allen Trammell triggered a six-run fifth inning with a triple to support eight-hit pitching by Jack Morris as the Tigers defeated Chicago.
Trammell started Detroit's big inning with a line shot off loser Steve Trout, 2-6. Al Cowens doubled home the first run of the inning and Lance Parrish followed with another RBI double.
Indians 6, Twins 2
John Denny gained his fifth straight victory and Jerry Dybzinski drove in two runs and scored two more to lead Cleveland past Minnesota.
Denny, 7-4, scattered seven hits while striking out one and walking three over the first seven innings, before leaving because of stiffness in his neck. Mike Stanton finished the game by hurling two scoreless innings, collecting his third save.
"You can only talk about Dybzinski in this game," raved Indians Manager Dave Garcia. "He got the key hits and made the big plays. He's outstanding."
Rangers 6, Blue Jays 3
Al Oliver drove in three runs, two with a double in Texas' five-run seventh inning, as the Rangers beat Toronto.
Doc Medich, 6-3, struck out three batters and walked three, scattering nine hits before getting last-out help from Sparky Lyle, who earned his sixth save.

Oliver increased his RBI total to 44.
"My forte is hitting the ball hard," Oliver said. "I'm a contact hitter and don't strike out that often."
Royals 4, Brewers 3
Willie Aikens knocked in three runs with a pair of homers and a grounder, leading Kansas City over Milwaukee. Aikens' second homer of the game and fifth of the year, off Rickey "Buster" Keeton, 2-1, broke a 1-1 tie in the seventh.
The Royals made it 4-1 in the eighth on an RBI single by Hal McRae and an RBI grounder by Aikens.
Red Sox 3, Angels 0

Butch Hobson drove in two runs with his third home run in two games, leading Boston over California.
Dennis Eckersley, 2-5, making his second start since being sidelined with a back injury May 10, struck out five and did not issue a walk in seven innings before needing relief help from Tom Burgmeier and Dick Drago.

Stargell Looks Ahead, But Yesterday Not Bad

By The Associated Press
For Willie Stargell, tomorrow is always the most important day. Yesterday wasn't bad, either.
"You never really know when you've gotten to the point where you can say you're satisfied," Stargell said after Friday night's 4-for-4 performance — a pair of two-run homers, a double and a run-scoring single — in Pittsburgh's 5-3 victory over Houston.
"You keep striving," Stargell continued. "What you did today is certainly not going to help you tomorrow. You have to come back out here tomorrow."
...presumably to the dismay of the Astros, whose eight-game winning streak crumbled under the weight of Stargell's eighth and ninth homers of the year, the 36th time in his 18-year career he's hit two in one game. He has 470 in that career.
"Too much Stargell," mused Astros Manager Bill Virton, who also played for the Pirates when Stargell was a rookie. "He's done it before and he'll do it again."
Stargell brushed aside all the comments about his two-homer games and perfect-at-the-plate nights. "I'll have time to think about all that when I can sit back and listen to my whiskers grow long after I'm retired," he said. "Right now there's too many other things I have to think about." Right now, by the way, he's also batting a hefty .310 and has driven in 31 runs.
Expos 4, Dodgers 3
If anybody would like to take Warren Cromartie to task for failing to come through when it counts, take this!
"I want to put aside the rumors that I can't hit in the clutch," he said after a seventh-inning single, his fourth straight hit, drove Rodney Scott home with the winning run to give the Expos their 10th straight victory, matching a club record.
Cromartie was at the plate because Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda decided to walk Gary Carter intentionally with Scott at second.
"It's happened to me before," said Cromartie. "But sooner or later you have to gear yourself up and say, 'This stuff has to stop.'" Cromartie also scored in the fourth and sixth innings following singles.

Phillies 9, Padres 6
Mike Schmidt, with his 19th home run, and Garry Maddox, drove in two runs apiece as the Phillies scored seven runs in the first inning to put the Padres away.
The first seven Philadelphia batters got base hits — Lonnie Smith, Pete Rose, Schmidt, Greg Luzinski, Bob Boone, Maddox and Larry Bowa — to chase Randy Jones. Rose and Smith each had four of the Phillies' 15 hits, with Rose moving past Honus Wagner and into fifth place on the all-time major league hit list — third behind Stan Musial and Hank Aaron in the National League.
Giants 3, Mets 1
Vida Blue extended his personal winning streak to seven games, giving up just four hits and one unearned run, while Milt May and Darrell Evans hit homers for San Francisco to dampen the New York fans' enthusiasm.

"I didn't encounter any Mets' magic," Blue deadpanned.
Reds 5, Cards 2
Whitey Herzog's debut in St. Louis (he took over as the Cards' manager last Monday, the day after Ken Boyer was fired) was spoiled by the Reds' Dave Collins, who singled, doubled and scored two runs, and by Johnny Bench, who chipped in with his ninth homer of the year.
Cincinnati peppered out 11 hits, two apiece by Bench, Ken Griffey and Junior Kennedy.
Braves 7, Cubs
Chris Chambliss followed singles by Glenn Hubbard and Dale Murphy with a two-run double in the seventh inning, then he scored what proved to be Atlanta's winning run when Jerry Martin of the Cubs dropped Bob Horner's fly ball.

Tanner Upset; Lloyd Advances
LONDON (AP) — Victor Pecci of Paraguay upset Roscoe Tanner 6-3, 5-7, 6-4 to reach the semifinals of the London Queen's Club grass court tennis championships.
In other matches, John McEnroe pounded Vijay Amritraj of India 6-2, 6-2; Vitas Gerulaitis topped Stan Smith 7-5, 4-6, 6-1; and Kim Warwick of Australia overcame Peter Rennert 6-3, 6-2.
CHICHESTER, England (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd scored a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Pam Shriver in the semifinals of the $100,000 Chichester Tennis Tournament. In the other semifinal match, Evonne Goolagong beat Betty Stove of The Netherlands 6-1, 6-4.

"Red" Grange 77 Twice Over

INDIAN LAKE, Fla. (AP) — Harold "Red" Grange thought he would let this birthday slip by quietly. He was wrong.

Too many people remembered the hero of the gridiron who helped boost pro football to a major sport.

Grange turned 77 on Friday. That was the jersey number he wore during his dazzling football career, when he earned the nickname "Galloping Ghost."

"I wore 77. Now I've finally arrived at my football number. And I don't know whether that's good or bad," Grange quipped. "I do know it means I'm one year older."

Letters, cards and telephone calls poured in steadily. Before noon, Grange had already been greeted by 40 callers. "It's been a steady string."

"I planned to stay home and have a bottle of champagne with my wife. But all I've been doing is answering the telephone."

At the University of Illinois, he once raced for four touchdowns in 12 minutes.

During the 1920s, the blazing speed and electrifying performances of the brilliant Chicago Bears halfback catapulted the game from deep inside sports sections to front-page headlines across the country. "Yes, I think I brought some attention to the game," Grange said modestly.

At New York's Polo Grounds in 1925, where an average crowd was fewer than 20,000 fans, Grange packed in 65,000 when Chicago played the Giants. And for the first time, four sports writers joined the Bears and began to travel with the club.

Football had such a sparse following in those years, Grange said, "I would have been more popular if I had joined the Capone mob in Chicago instead."

Now, more than half a century later, his red hair is white; his muscular frame slouches just a bit and he's picked up seven pounds since his playing days.

But the image is still there — lean legs, a quick pace and eyes that catch every movement around him.

Grange played at the University of Illinois from 1923-25. In his junior year, he scored four touchdowns in 12 minutes, racing 95, 67, 56 and 45 yards against Michigan. The next season, he gained 363 yards against undefeated Pennsylvania. He averaged 8.4 yards a carry and more than 10 points a game for his combined college and pro career.

He played his last game at Illinois on a Saturday. On Thanksgiving Day, "after three days to practice," he was on the field in a Chicago uniform. Grange played with the Bears through 1934, then coached until 1937.

That was a time, too, when the payoff for a winner in a championship game was $210.34 per player. A loser got $140.22.

Grange said he never dreamed his football career would be anything special.

"It was never too important to me at that time," he said. "There wasn't much money in it. You did what thousands of other kids did at the time — went to school, played sports and nobody thought much about it."

Community Services Survey Revealed

The city wide survey for the Community Schools Program has been completed and the results tabulated. Carolyn Ferebee, director of the state directed program, has provided the basic results of the survey, grouped into major categories of interest.

"There's one point I want to stress emphatically," Mrs. Ferebee said. "Many of the suggestions and ideas for programs and classes are for things that are already available through other Greenville agencies, particularly the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department. Where this is true, I urge our citizens to take part in these existing programs, as one of the aims of the Community Schools Program is to avoid duplication. Our goal is to work cooperatively with other agencies in meeting needs of the community."

"In essence," Mrs. Ferebee added, "interagency cooperation is the central idea."

In the surveys, each participant had the opportunity to identify the school he or she was nearest. Of those responding, about 53 percent indicated a willingness to take a class even if it becomes necessary to charge a small fee.

Tuesday and Wednesday appeared to be favored days for taking classes, and 42 percent stated they preferred attending evening classes.

Survey results, in major categories reveal:

— Most people are more interested in recreation and sports activities, in arts and crafts, do-it-yourself classes, health and human relations classes, and in classes about jobs than in other divisions of activities.

— Under recreation and sports activities, the top six choices are: tennis, swimming, softball, bicycling, roller skating and basketball.

— In the areas of arts and crafts, expressions of interests are for needlepoint, holiday crafts, sewing, knitting, and crocheting.

— The do-it-yourself category interests are oriented to home repairs, interior decorating, landscaping and lawn care, cake decorating, and gourmet cooking.

— For the health and human relations sector, interest was shown in: first aid, CPR (cardio pulmonary resuscitation), drug-abuse education, self-image improvement, human sexuality, babysitter training, death and dying, and teen counseling.

— Among possible classes for teenagers, the greatest degree of interest is shown in teenage sexuality, drug-abuse education, cheerleading, summer theater and birth control.

On the basis of the surveys, it has been determined that the most urgent concerns of the Greenville neighborhood are those of drug-abuse, vandalism, crime, alcoholism, and recreation.

A number of citizens indicated an interest in volunteering time to tutoring in the schools, as well as helping with special projects.

Mrs. Ferebee said she was grateful for assistance given in the survey, especially to Pitt Community College for printing the survey forms, and to volunteer groups such as the gifted and talented classes at Wahl-Coates School and the Man Power students of Carver Library.

To further assess the results and to consider plans accordingly, the Community Schools Advisory Council will meet at 5 p.m. Wednesday, June 18 at the conference room at Sheppard Memorial Library.

Scholar Co-Authored Burlesque Comedy

THE GAY DATING GAME — Marty Chavkin, left, and Mark Seidenberg, co-producers of "The Gay Dating Game," pose in San Francisco with host Bonnie Steiger. The show, San Francisco's answer to a popular TV show, made its debut Friday night with young male contestants selecting a date from male panel members. (AP Laserphoto)

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Down in Knoxville, at the University of Tennessee, there's a kindly drama professor, the son of professors, holder of a doctorate from the august Yale School of Drama.

But Ralph G. Allen's world does not consist entirely of ibids, op. cit. and dissertations. He co-authored Broadway's hit show of burlesque comedy, pretty women and music, "Sugar Babies."

"Burlesque is an anomaly in my life," he says. "I'm just a classic scholar who's gone the way of all flesh."

Allen and co-writer Harry Rigby received a Tony nomination for best musical-book for "Sugar Babies," which got eight nominations in all.

That's nice consideration, at the least, for someone whose work is a labor of love. In Allen's case, it began when he was a young man in the '50s and tarried at the Truck Theater in Philadelphia.

It was a striptease palace then. Quivering, pastied displays of the female figure had long since crowded out the memorable, raffish, leering burlesque comedy that flourished in the '20s and early '30s.

"Comedians by then just filled in time between the relatively obscene performances," he says. "But there were still some great comics around, and I kept thinking of the possibilities."

He pauses to emphasize he went to see the comics, not the strippers: "I really did. I found striptease really boring, taking 15 minutes to remove a glove, that kind of thing."

Speaking of much earlier good old days, he says, "The marvelous thing about burlesque humor was that the comics weren't sentimental."

He feared that what he calls a "distinctive American form of folk comedy" would be lost in time. So he became a burly-humor buff, and tracked down still-living practitioners of it, guys like Billy "Cheese and Crackers" Hagan.

His labors as student, collector and historian of the whizbang, pun-filled school of yesteryear burlesque persisted through his college days and his 20 ensuing years as a university professor.

In 1976, it all began to bubble. Allen, a director as well as teacher, author of four plays, was asked to do a bicentennial show in Tennessee.

What better way to celebrate America, he thought, than to salute a homegrown art form called burlesque. He created a show called "The New Majestic Follies and Lyceum Garden Revue."

He even invited New York producers to come see it. They said no dice, no possibilities in it for Broadway.

It came to pass he was invited to Lincoln Center here to speak, with other scholars, about theater in America.

His scholarly paper dwelt on the history, ingredients and appeal of burlesque and bore the title, "At My Mother's Knee and Other Low Joins."

Present in the audience — at Allen's instigation — was Harry Rigby, Broadway mogul, fan of nostalgia. Afterwards, the producer told the professor, "We ought to do a show."

Whereupon the professor said, "Well, I happen to have one right here in my pocket."

Whereupon work began, but it was more than trotting out the old burlesque classics and staging them again.

"We've written them from scratch. So it really is an invented past, not a remembered one."

The rewrites and polishing took a year, during which time Mickey Rooney and Ann Miller were lured from Hollywood, and the rest of the cast and chorus assembled.

Speculation Pushes Prime Interest Rates Up

By KATHY OSOBA
AP Business Writer

Sharply higher cash prices based on speculation by a well-respected financial analyst that the prime rate would fall below 10 percent pushed interest rate futures prices sharply higher Friday.

Other news favorable to high-her prices was the decision by the Federal Reserve Board after the close of trade Thursday to lower the discount rate from 12 percent to 11 percent to keep pace with falling interest rates.

The futures market didn't have a chance to react to those two pieces of news until Friday, said Richard L. Sandor, director of ContiFinancial, a division of ContiCommodity Services Inc.

Sandor said that at the beginning of trading, cash futures were two full points higher than the futures market. The report that triggered the rally was one late Thursday by Henry Kaufman, chief economist for Salomon Brothers, the securities firm, which predicted that the prime rate could fall to below 10 percent from its current 12 percent level.

Late, heavy buying by Salomon Brothers at the close of trade Thursday started the move. Since interest rates and futures prices move inversely, a lowering of interest rates means prices would rise higher.

Bearish news that came out during the session was the May industrial production figure that showed a decline of 2.2 percent, less than the trade ex-pected, Sandor said.

"It was bearish, and the market fell off and then came back," he said. Gloomy economic news is favorable to fu-tures prices because an eco-nomic slowdown normally re-duces credit demand. That al-lows interest rates to fall and bond prices to rise.

The interest rate futures market also sold off slightly on news that the Fed was trying to raise the federal funds rate by draining the system of excess reserves.

At the close, U.S. Treasury bill bonds were 34 to 39 ticks higher, Ginnie Maes (Gov-ernment National Mortgage Asso-ciation certificates) were 14 to 15 ticks higher, and Treasury bills were .05 to .25 points high-er.

Tobacco Queen To Attend Annual Meet

Miss Jeri Bullock, Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival Queen, will be in Myrtle Beach, S. C., Monday through Wednesday. She will be attending the Bright Belt Warehouseman Association's annual meeting.

She will be promoting the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival to be held in Greenville in November.

The 17-year-old queen received her crown after a week-long festival promoting the tobacco industry last fall.

A recent graduate of Rose High School, Miss Bullock plans to continue her education in fine arts at East Carolina University this fall. With the experience of several commercials and 10 years of dancing, she plans to pursue a modeling and acting career but has not ruled out the possibility of teaching dancing.

Miss Bullock is combining her duties as queen along with being a hostess at Margaux's Restaurant this summer.

OLD MASTERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A selection of 90 "Old Master" prints from a distinguished collection of graphic works will be on display at the Nelson Gallery of Art through June 15.

Among the works shown are 27 etchings by Canaletto, the Italian master, and three engravings by Albrecht Durer. Also included are works by Aldorfer, Van Dyck, Ribera and Schongauer.

Yellow Fever Rise

ATLANTA (AP) — Jungle yellow fever swept into seven South American countries last year, the highest number of nations to report the deadly disease in 15 years, says the Pan American Health Organization.

Two hundred five cases of the viral disease were reported in Bolivia, Brazil, Columbia, Ecuador, Peru, Trinidad and Venezuela in 1979, the PAHO said in a report published here Friday by the national Center for Disease Control.

"Since 1972, the incidence of the disease has shown an upward trend, occurring in two- or three-year cycles and gradually affecting areas in which no cases previously had been reported," according to the study, which was published in the CDC's Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

A yellow fever epidemic began in mid-1978 in the Tarra region of Colombia, in rural areas adjacent to forests. Twenty-eight deaths were reported that year. Fifty-one yellow fever cases were reported in that nation in 1979, the report said.

In Trinidad, eight cases resulting in two deaths were reported between December and March of 1979. Between August and December, 10 more cases were reported.

After the first cases of the year were reported, however, about 85 percent of the population was vaccinated against the disease, PAHO said.

Information was unavailable on how many inhabitants of the seven countries were exposed to the disease or how many were vaccinated. Vaccine coverage in the urban areas of Trinidad, Tobago, Venezuela and some Colombian cities was believed to have been substantial, however, the report said.

Powerful Novel About Marines

TO KEEP OUR HONOR CLEAN. By Edwin McDowell. Vanguard. 313 Pages. $10.95.

Is punching a man — who dares not strike back — in the stomach an act of sadism? How about ordering a man to do push-ups over an unsheathed bayonet? Or, are these and other brutal acts necessary lessons in teaching a prospective fighting man how to survive in combat?

This is the thorny question Edwin McDowell, a former Marine, wrestles with in his powerful new novel, "To Keep Our Honor Clean." On one side he places Sgt. Krupe and on the other is Cpl. Sanders. Krupe is a war hero, a veteran of World War II and Korea. Sanders has not seen combat. Krupe believes — and as senior drill instructor puts into daily practice — that to become a Marine a recruit must undergo the roughest treatment possible. Only in this way, Krupe feels, can he be taught to protect his own life and, even more important, the lives of his comrades.

Sanders also feels that recruits must be taught survival, but he does not believe that a man must be brutalized in order to learn to become a Marine. Naturally there is conflict between the two and McDowell is most fair in presenting the clashing philosophies of the two drill instructors. A third DI, Sgt. Bennett, also figures in the plot, but he is just a sadist and lacks the philosophical dimension of Krupe, who at times reminds of Capt. Ahab in his monomania to mold Marines his way.

Filling out the narrative are the luckless recruits who suffer and bleed through 10 miserable training weeks in 1952 as they prepare to go to Korea. McDowell writes of their plight with sympathy, although he tempers his compassion by wisely pointing out that putting a rifle in a man's hands doesn't automatically make him fit to fight.

By Erma Bombeck

"Daddy just didn't know how to show love."

"It was Mom who held the family together. He just went to work every day and came home and she'd have a list of sins we'd committed and he'd give us what-for about them."

"Once when I stole a candy bar, he made me take it back and tell the man I stole it and that I'd unpack boxes to pay for it. But it was Mom who understood I was just a kid."

"I broke my leg once on the swing set and it was Mom who held me in her arms all the way to the hospital. Dad pulled the car right up to the door of the emergency ward and when they asked him to move it because that space was reserved for emergency vehicles he shouted, 'What do you think this is? A tour bus?' Mom carried me in. Seems like all my life Dad was parking the car someplace and coming in wet or half frozen. But Mom never left me for a moment."

"He was always sorta out of place at birthday parties. He just busied himself blowing up balloons and setting up tables, and running errands, but it was Mom who carried in the cake with the candles on it for me to blow out."

"When I leaf through picture albums people always ask, 'What does your Dad look like?' Who knows? He was always fiddling around with the camera taking everyone else's picture. We'd tell him, 'Enough already,' but that never stopped him. I must have a zillion pictures of Mom and me smiling together."

"I remember when Mom told him to teach me how to ride a bicycle, I told him not to let go, but he said it was time. I fell and Mom ran to pick me up, but he waved her off. I was so mad I showed him. Got right back on that bike and rode it myself. He didn't even feel embarrassed. Just smiled."

"When I went to college, he was fiddling with what else... the luggage and the boxes. Mom sat down and told me everything would be all right. She did all the writing. He just sent checks and a little note about how great his lawn looked now that I wasn't playing football on it."

"Whenever I called home, he acted like he wanted to talk, but he always said, 'I'll get your mother.'"

"When I got married, it was Mom who got all choked up and cried. He just blew his nose loudly and left the room."
"All my life he said, 'Where are you going? What time are you coming home? Do you have gas in the car? Who's going to be there? No, you cannot go.' Not Mom. She just loved me, but Daddy... he just didn't know how to show love... unless... My God, is it possible he showed it and I didn't recognize it?"

Dear Abby

What Hath Bell Wrought?
Too Many Ding-A-Lings

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A while back you had a letter from an employer who resented having his telephone calls to others screened by a secretary. The stupidity and ignorance that make people believe they can invade anyone's privacy at a time of their choosing by simply picking up the telephone and calling is indeed remarkable.

After 30 years of professional life, I have concluded that one of the most difficult tasks in secretarial training is teaching office personnel how to handle telephone calls.

Alexander Graham Bell invented a wonderful instrument, but unfortunately he never anticipated the problems his invention would cause with its improper use.

When I get to heaven, I plan to discuss this with him in detail.

SYRACUSE PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: If there's a line to heaven, it must have an unlisted number, so I will have to wait to join you up there to hear the outcome of our discussion.

In the meantime, may I suggest the proper (and most tactful) way to screen telephone calls:

Caller: "May I please speak to Mr. Smith?"
Secretary: "May I tell him who is calling, please?"
(Never, "Who's calling?" Those four little words, "May I tell him," soften the demand to know who is calling and dispel the implication that only persons on a preferred list can get through to the boss.)

If the boss is out, unavailable, unable or unwilling to take the call, the secretary then says, "I am sorry, but Mr. Smith is unavailable at the moment, but if you will give me your number I will ask him to return your call." (She never says, "I'm sorry, but Mr. Smith is in conference." There is no way of saying those words without sounding pompous.)

An increasing number of busy executives are answering their own phones, having given their direct-dial number to only those they want to have it. If the call is a nuisance or inconsequential, anyone bright enough to be an executive will know how to terminate it quickly and diplomatically.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a charming woman who is new in town, and when we parted, I casually said, "I hope we can get together sometime in the near future."

She telephoned the very next day and said she and her husband would like to come to my home for lunch next Saturday! This shocked me, as I certainly did not intend for her to bring her husband. Also, I resented her inviting herself, so I said Saturday was not convenient for me. Well, she has been calling me daily to set up a convenient date!

If she is this nifty after only one meeting, what can I expect if we become better friends? Knowing how presumptuous she is, I would rather not get involved with her at all. How can this be handled tactfully?

HARRASSED IN HARRISBURG

DEAR HARRASSED: Continue to find each suggested date "inconvenient." She will get the message eventually — I hope.

DEAR ABBY: My wife sleeps in the raw. Then she showers, brushes her teeth and fixes our breakfast — still in the buff.

We're newlyweds and there are just the two of us, so I suppose there's really nothing wrong with it. What do you think?

ED

DEAR ED: It's OK with me. But tell her to put on an apron when she's frying bacon.

Finds Them As 'Rude As Ever'

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been two years since cellist Mstislav Rostropovich was stripped of his Soviet citizenship. But he says folks at Moscow's airport are "as rude as ever."

The music director of Washington's National Symphony spent an hour, alone and unnoticed, in the airport last week during a stop on a flight between Paris and Japan, according to his secretary, Nadya Efremov.

She said Rostropovich, who carries a Swiss passport, bought one of his own record albums there and paid for it with a credit card. The exiled cellist reported the airport was "dirty, noisy and crowded and the people were as rude as ever," she said.

A Variety Of Reasons 'Why It Won't Work'

DALLAS (AP) — So you think you've heard all the excuses? All the reasons why your great idea won't work? Just in case you've missed a few, a Dallas-based insurance company has come up with a tongue-in-cheek list of 60 ready-made ways to say: "Forget it."

They range from a respectful "You're two years ahead of your time" to a scornful "Not that again."

The list is the work of the corporate relations department of the Southland Life Insurance Co., and is one of a series of regular display cards prepared for the 18 elevators in the company's main office. "It's just something to give the employees something to look at in the elevators except the floors," said June Rogan, a Southland communications assistant.

Joe Josephson, vice president for corporate relations, said the material on the cards comes from all over. He said the cards are popular with employees and visitors to the building. "People swipe 'em all the time," he said.

Here are the "Reasons why 'it won't work'":

1. We tried that before.
2. Our place is different.
3. It costs too much.
4. That's beyond our responsibility.
5. That's not my job.
6. We're all too busy to do that.
7. It's too radical a change.
8. We don't have the time.
9. Not enough help.
10. That will make other equipment obsolete.

11. Let's make a market research test of it first.

12. Our office is too small for that.

13. Not practical for operating people.

14. The staff will never buy it.

15. Bring it up in six months.

16. We've never done it before.

17. It's against company policy.

18. Runs up our overhead.

19. We don't have the authority.

20. That's too ivory tower.

21. Let's get back to reality.

22. That's not our problem.

23. Why change it, it's still working o.k.

24. I don't like the idea.

25. You're right, but...

26. You're two years ahead of your time.

27. We're not ready for that.

28. We don't have the money, equipment, room, personnel.

29. It isn't in the budget.

30. Can't teach an old dog new tricks.

31. Good thought, but impractical.

32. Let's hold it in abeyance.

33. Let's give it more thought.

34. Top Management would never go for it.

35. Let's put it in writing.

36. We'll be the laughing stock.

37. Not that again.

38. We'd lose money in the long run.

39. Where'd you dig that one up.

40. We did all right without it.

41. That's what we can expect from the staff.

42. It's never been tried before.

43. Let's shelve it for the time being.

44. Let's form a committee.

45. Has anyone else ever tried it?

46. Customers won't like it.

47. I don't see the connection.

48. It won't work in our company.

49. What you are really saying is...

50. Maybe that will work in your department, but not in mine.

51. The Executive Committee will never go for it.

52. Don't you think we should look into it further before we act?

53. What do they do in our competitor's company?

54. Let's all sleep on it.

55. It can't be done.

56. It's too much trouble to change.

57. It won't pay for itself.

58. I know a fellow who tried it.

59. It's impossible.

60. We've always done it this way.

Dentists Researching Sedatives, Analgesics

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — A team of New Jersey researchers is experimenting with sedatives and analgesics in its search for new ways to take the pain out of going to the dentist.

Studies by the team of dental professors at the dental school of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey involve the use of sedatives like Valium and pentobarbital while a patient is undergoing surgery, and various new analgesics for alleviating post-operative pain.

Working in CMDNJ's Oral Surgery Clinic, the researchers are testing and comparing the effectiveness of new, investigative analgesics, which, says Dr. Stephen A. Cooper, director of research and an associate professor of oral surgery, may "revolutionize oral therapy."

The analgesics used in the tests, Cooper said, are Flurbiprofen, Butorphanol and Diflusal. He said they relieve pain by altering the patient's perception of stimuli without producing anesthesia or loss of consciousness.

These analgesics, which are swallowed after an operation, operate similarly to aspirin but are "far superior to codeine" in killing pain, according to Cooper. He said they are non-narcotic and cause no sensual side-effects such as euphoria or sedation.

Usually prescribed to calm or relax nerves, sedatives can also be used to lessen pain because they interfere with nerve impulses to the brain, spinal cord or skeletal muscles.

In one of the projects, which will continue through 1981, sedatives such as Valium are injected into a vein in the arms of patients with impacted wisdom teeth, and the effects of the drug are compared with the anesthetics commonly used by dentists today.

"The most interesting aspect of this is what we aim to do with sedation," says Cooper.

"A dentist will be able to take the patient down to a desirable level of sedation, perform the surgery and then when the doctor deems it appropriate, he can reverse all the effects of the sedation with an antagonist or reversal agent. We think that's a feasible goal in the near future."

Cooper says the problem with local anesthetics, which control pain in specific areas, is they do nothing to affect a patient's consciousness.

Two commonly used treatments, nitrous oxide, or laughing gas, and xylocaine, "often do not provide adequate control over pain, fear and anxiety," says Cooper.

Dental surgery can be quite "invasive," as when doctors cut tissue and remove bone, and that, says Cooper, can make a conscious patient "petrified."

In such cases, dental surgeons today use barbiturates as a general anesthetic to knock the patient out. However, these drugs are risky and have serious drawbacks.

"They depress respiration and blood pressure," says Cooper, "and require special training." Putting someone out can be "the most dangerous part of the procedure."

"What we have to do is devise better techniques to sedate a patient without general anesthesia... and without the ability to remember," says Cooper.

Under sedation, the researcher says, his test subjects are calm during surgery and when they "come back" to normal they cannot recall what they've been through.

"They say, 'When are you getting started,'" and we say, 'It's already finished.' They never even shut their eyes," Cooper notes. "It's a far safer procedure."

Bible School Begins Monday

Vacation Bible School will be held at Sweet Gum Grove F.W.B. Church beginning Monday, June 16 and continuing through Friday, June 22. Hours for the school will be 7 to 9 p.m.

The school theme is "Jesus, I Believe in You." Classes will be held for all ages. Mrs. David Hill is directing the Bible School.

A picnic will be held Saturday evening for those who attended during the week and commencement will be at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, June 22.

Increased Bible Study Observed

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A Michigan State University theologian says increased Bible study and evangelism is showing up among young people, but it's often not happening within traditional churches.

"There is more religious activity on campus now, but lower percentages of young people in churches," says W. Fred Graham, professor of religious studies.

"Within the last half decade there has been a movement to non-denominational expressions of Christianity."

In the university's religious studies department, he says "we have moved from great interest in Eastern religions in the '60's to more students wanting courses on the Bible than we can handle."

"Our newest faculty appointment will be a New Testament scholar — a discipline we would not have chosen even three years ago."

Hummingbirds Are Back

They whirl, fly backwards, forwards, sideways and hover. They have long, slender bills and even longer, threadlike tongues. They are tiny and seldom still.

Hummingbirds are plentiful in eastern North Carolina. Although there are over 300 species worldwide, only one species, the Rubythroat, is native to the eastern United States. The Rubythroat male, true to its name, has a red gorget that he flashes to attract females. The female is a soft gray.

Hummingbirds are said to be scarce, but according to local birdlovers and naturalists, there are plenty to be found in Pitt County. Christine Helms, former professor of biology at East Carolina University, has been watching the tiny creatures for years.

"They usually come around the tenth or fourteenth of April," she explained, "and they stay through August. It's not as easy to tell when they leave." All hummingbirds go to Central America, South America and Mexico for the winter, then return again in spring. "Probably none of the ones we have around here get as far as South America," said Helms. "They mostly go to Mexico, and their trip is in sections; they take it little bit at the time." Still, added the biologist, the birds must make the long flight over the Gulf of Mexico. "I don't know how they manage it," she said.

To attract the creatures to her yard, Helms cultivates columbines, scarlet sage and salvia. "They are drawn by the deep red blooms from these plants. The color red attracts them and the supply of nectar keeps them here," explained the naturalist. "Mimosa, scarlett runner and cardinal flowers are good, too." Cardinal flowers are wild flowers that grow in the swamp and bloom for one month in late July and August.

Hummingbirds can be attracted by feeders filled with red-colored sugared water. Commercial feeders, capable of accomodating three or four birds at once, are available at hardware stores and garden shops. A hamster feeder, suspended and fitted with a perch, does equally as well.

A mixture of one part sugar to three parts water will please the birds. The sugar content is important because, according to Helms, the birds have a high rate of metabolism. "Their heart beats so fast it can't be counted except mechanically," she explained. "It takes an enormously large amount of food to support this much activity. Sugar is their energy."

Hummingbirds also need large amounts of protein for the unique muscle structure of their wings. "They get some insects from flowers, mostly those they can swallow whole. Then they feed their young with this mixture of nectar and insects," said the biologist. It is this unique muscle structure that allows the birds to fly in all directions and hover.

Hummingbirds are creatures of habit. They require regular attention once they are attracted. Birds that feed a certain place once are not only likely to feed there again, but will return to the same place year after year. Even where they are seen, however, it takes time and patience to attract them. Feeders are helpful, but the surest way to get their attention is to plant a garden of their favorite plants.

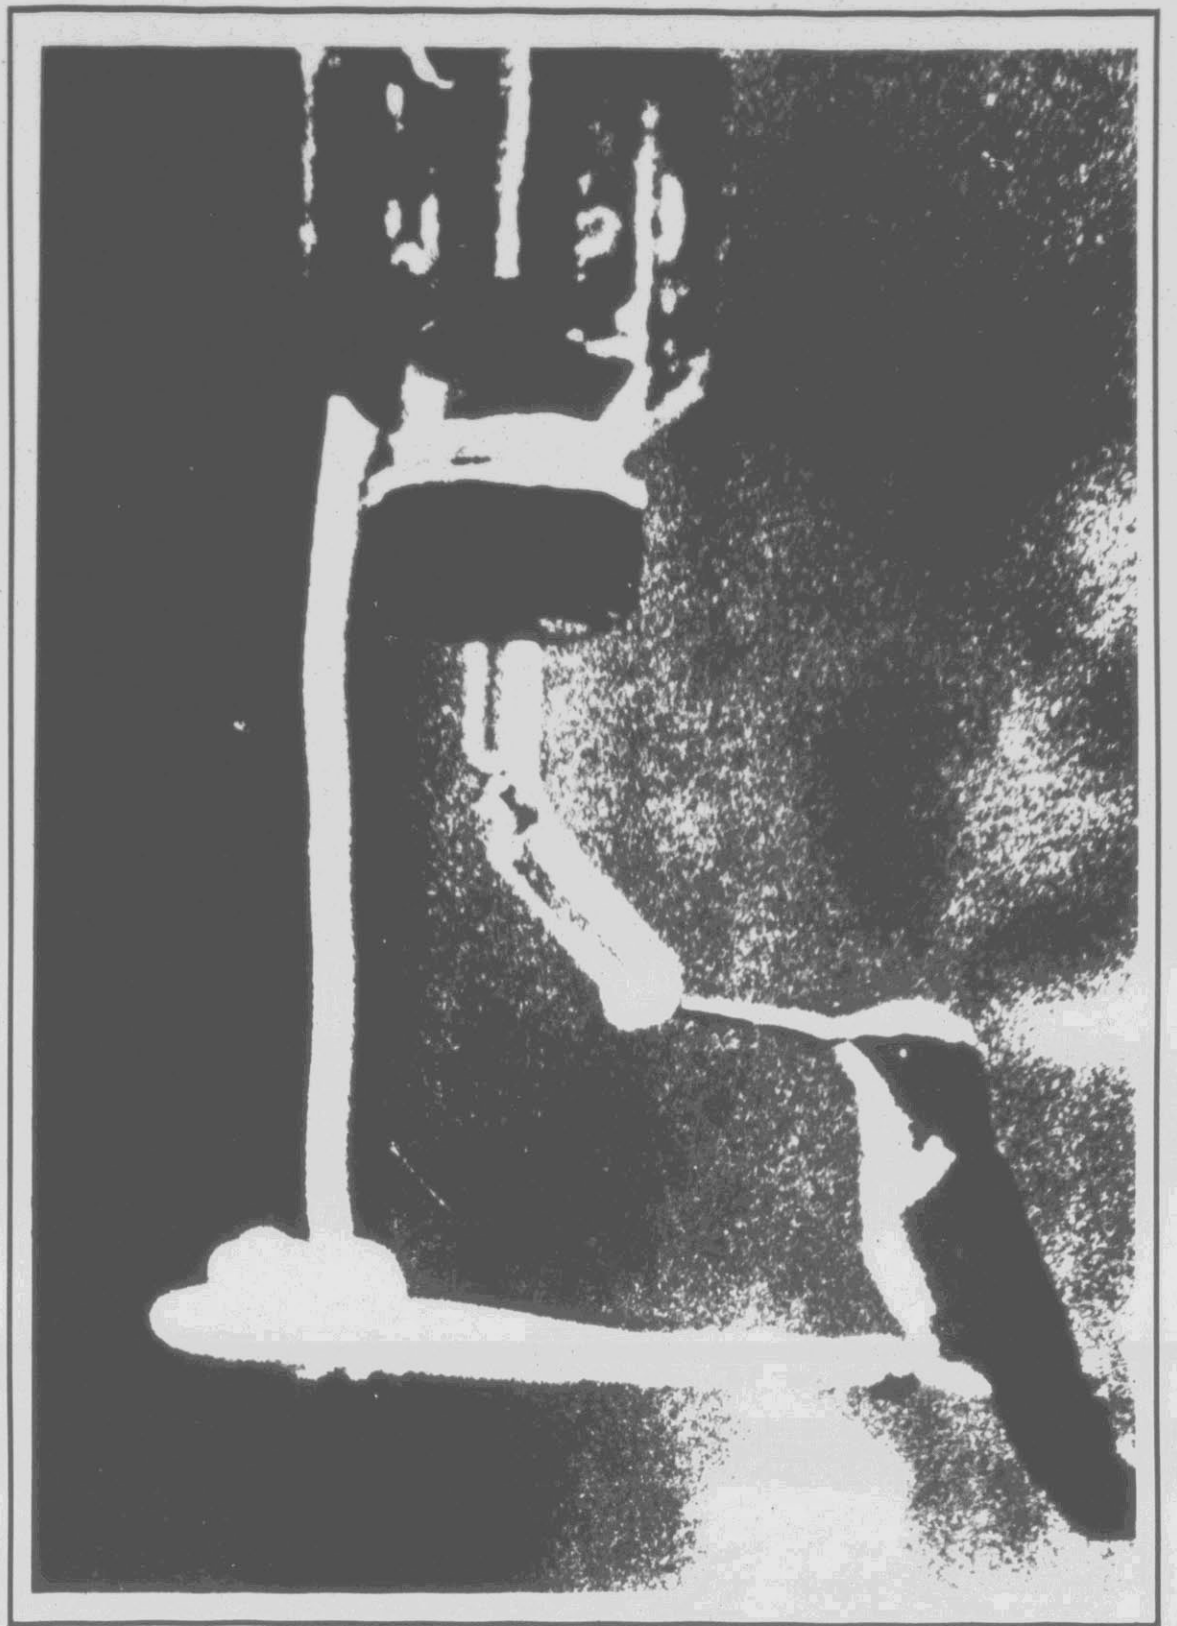

The creatures' nests appear as a small round cup, secured on top of a limb.

"They look like a little cup and are made from lichen, the gray scaly matter on the bark of trees," explained Helms. "They are woven with spider webb to the limb, and look very much like knots. Usually they are one and one half inch in diameter." Their eggs are the size of garden peas.

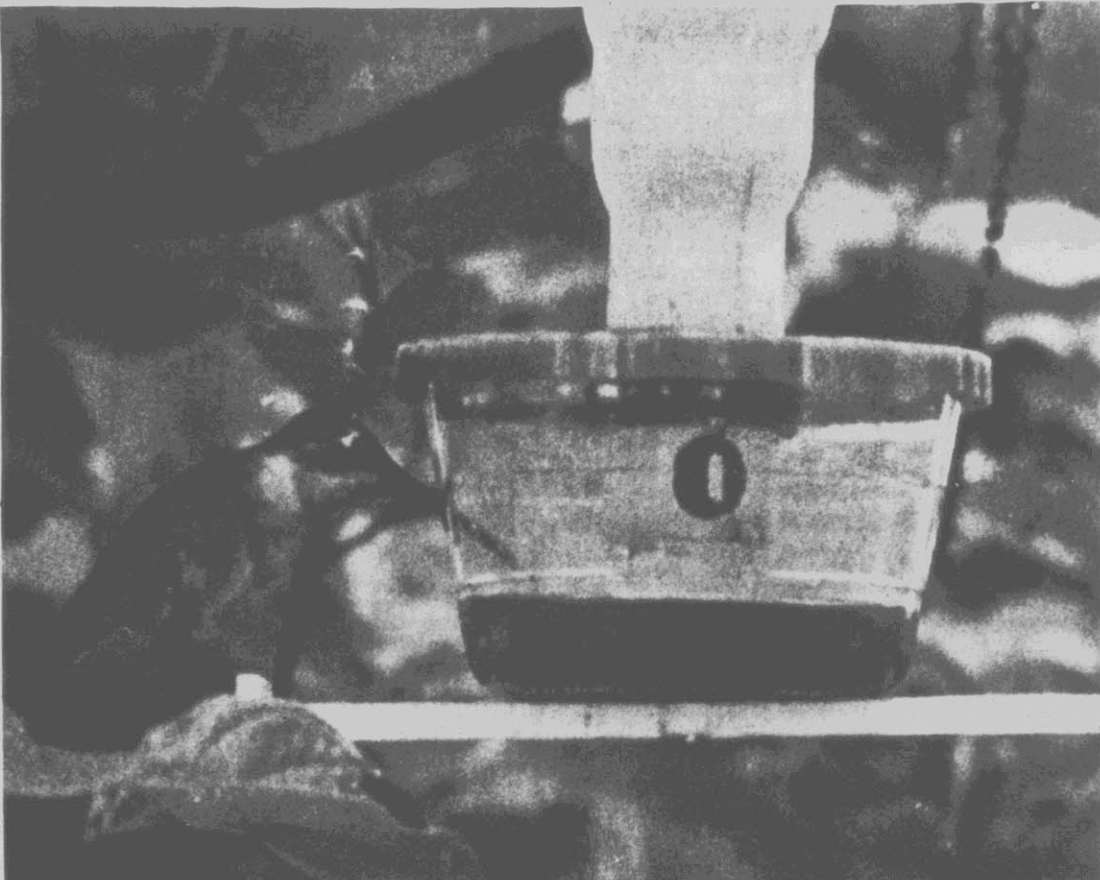

Charlotte Purrington of Greenville found what she believed to be a destroyed nest and re-constructed it. The nest is of rough material like that found on the bark of trees. Purrington has planted scarlet runners for several years, and noticed that the same birds appear year after year. "As a matter of fact one came this year, and I had no scarlet runners for him to feed from," she commented.

The mating ritual of the birds is impressive. Dr. Thomas Quay, ornithologist at N.C. State University, describes it: "The male flies up, down, backwards and forwards. The female is sitting on a little branch and the male swings in an arc. Then he flies back, down and up in a perfect semi-circle." In addition to this spectacle, Quay said, "The male has muscles at the base of his throat, where the red is. He erects these muscles and flashes his gorget an iridescent red. The female cannot resist."

Hummingbirds, although they are numerous, are not as plentiful as they used to be. According to Helms, pesticides are blamed for this. "It's not that the pesticides destroyed the birds themselves, it's that the eggs are so fragile and the chemicals made them even more so," she said. "Perhaps the reason we see them more now is because we spray less indiscriminately."

The Tahoe

Design Suggests Spanish Influence

By Jerry Bishop

Painstaking attention to detail accounts for the success of this Spanish-inspired design, which blends stucco, brick, and exposed rafters to ornament this four bedroom ranch plan.

The Tahoe, true to its Spanish heritage, features a sloping chimney, shake shingle roof, ornate garage doors and an arched entrance that exudes gracious living. Inside the tiled foyer, a high sloping ceiling, decked in exposed rafter beams, defines the theme and suggests the interior pace of the plan.

Besides its function as guest entry point, the foyer also becomes a traffic director, leading to living areas at right, kitchen ahead, and bedroom hallway at left.

directly from the foyer, offers a 21-ft. expanse of space for entertaining. Side windows admit light, and wood-burning fireplace adds warmth on chilly evenings. Plentiful wall space is a plus for furniture arranging.

For family meals and activities, the family room is generously proportioned and extends further via sliding glass doors to the terrace. The room features a closet for storage of games and toys.

Compact and totally efficient, the kitchen adjoins the family room on one side and half bath/laundry on the other. It is close to the terrace for outdoor dining.

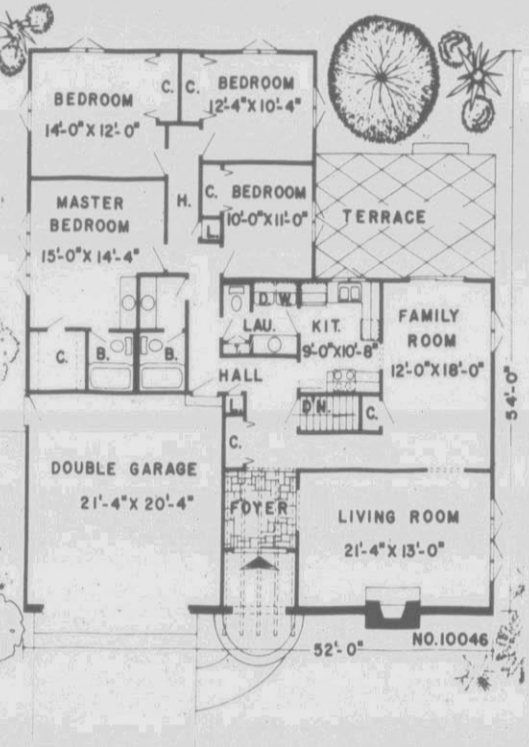

Four bedrooms fill the sleeping wing of the plan. Spotlit is the lavish master bedroom with walk-in closet and private bath. Another full bath serves the remaining bedrooms, all comfortably large.

For storage and utilities, the full basement creates another 1885 sq. ft. of potential space. The large double garage opens to the hallway bordering the kitchen for easy unloading of groceries and parcels.

Q. The leaves on my rose bushes get black spots, turn yellow and drop off. What can I do about this? (E.S., Claremont)

A. Your roses have a fungus disease called black spot. You can control black spot by spraying every 10 to 14 days with one of the following fungicides: benomyl, Daconil 2787, Phaltan or Triforine. Follow label directions. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. What is the best way to get rid of moles? (G.B., Youngsville)

A. By setting a trap on their main runs. Another way is to control the grubs on which the moles feed as they tunnel through their yard.

You can control white grubs with diazinon or trichlorfon, which is sold as Proxol or Dylox. You can control green June beetle grubs with Sevin. (James R. Baker, extension entomologist)

Q. What will get rid of bitterweed in a seven acre pasture? (M.W., Greensboro)

A. 2,4-D. Use the amine form. One word of caution: 2,4-D will kill or severely damage clover. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. — I am going to put down vinyl tiles in a playroom. It is my understanding that you have to find the center of the room first and then lay the tiles outward from that point, but a friend says it is a lot of gelatinous tela horns (orange colored structures) of the cedar-apple rust fungus. This fungus has two hosts, the red-cedar and apple, and it requires both of these hosts to complete its life cycle. The spores that cause the infection on cedar come from the fungus while it is on the apple tree. These spores can be windblown from as much as four to five miles away. The cedar is infected by the spores in July and August.

nonsense and that the quickest and easiest way is to start at one wall and keep going until you reach the other wall. Is he right?

A. — Many floors are tiled in that fashion and nobody is really the worse for it. What it means is that you risk a less-than-perfect pattern, since walls are not always in straight lines. Also, you will have no border on one side and a border of some kind on the other. When you tile a room that way, very few persons ever may notice that it hasn't been done properly. But if you want to insure a good result, an even pattern and equal borders, find the center of the room and proceed from there. Lay a row of tiles each way — without cementing them down — and be sure everything is the way you want it to be before you do the actual installation. It takes only a little extra time to get it right.

Thailand Gets Energy Loan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank has loaned the Government of Thailand $107 million for the development of natural gas reserves in the Gulf of Thailand.

The loan will support a project to construct a pipeline system to transport natural gas from the offshore wells to industrial users, chiefly power generating stations.

Early Summer And Late Spring For Porch-Fixing

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Autumn traditionally is the important season for home redecorating projects. But there's one home project that is almost sure to be done in the late spring and early summer. It's redoing the porch.

Whether your sun porch is indoors or out, chances are you will spend more time there during summer. And if that porch reflects the season with leafy plants, wicker furniture and delightfully cool breezes, so much the better.

Decorators asked for advice on how to decorate a summer porch came up with some practical suggestions. First of all, several agreed, furnishings depend on whether the room is for year-round use or is only a warm weather place.

However, if you have an unheated, uninsulated porch or even an outdoor porch and are in need of more space, you may be able to convert your one-season room to a year-round room. Insulating and installing windows and a floor covering may be possible. Check with a building contractor or a home center if such a project seems possible, since summer is a perfect time to work on such a conversion.

If you have an indoor porch, start with the window coverings. Choose coverings that offer flexibility in light and air circulation. It is usually necessary to provide some protection for rooms from the hot summer sun while at the same time allowing for air circulation so that cooling breezes may enter.

Coverings such as blinds, either vertical or horizontal, or inexpensive Japanese matchstick or bamboo blinds are excellent because they permit air to enter but can be adjusted to keep out the sun.

Cotton print curtains of a loose weave are another possible choice.

Floors can be left bare during the warm months. Choose a surface that will take spills in stride, such as a painted wood floor treated with polyurethane or another hard surface flooring. An easy-care rug that can go into a washing machine or rugs of natural fiber such as sisal also are excellent.

Furniture should be durable, comfortable and easy to care for. Choose furniture covers that are not too susceptible to fading in the sun. Look also for stain release treatments on the fabrics.

The amount and type of furniture obviously depends on the size of the porch and the activities that occur there.

But it is easy to see that by keeping the atmosphere informal and cheerful, you will make your porch a more welcoming place. A rustic, country style of furnishing is particularly appropriate to a porch.

Furniture that can be moved around as need arises is also useful. Wicker and rattan furniture with cheerful, printed fabric cushions fulfill this need. Also highly useful is molded plastic furniture as well as all sorts of outdoor furniture such as wrought iron and cast and wrought aluminum framed pieces with cushions or strap seats.

Furniture which has been found useful on a sun porch includes comfortable, cushioned seating, a combination game and dining table with chairs, side tables for lamps and accessories, and storage furniture in the form of an etagere or bookshelves or built-in shelving and cabinets.

For a year-round porch that can change with the seasons without much trouble or expense, paint the walls and floor a neutral color. In warm months, use a cotton fabric with smooth textures and garden colors. Leave the floors bare and accessorize with plenty of potted plants.

When fall comes, add a textured rug and replace the cotton print with a nubbin sort of fabric. Use a different and warmer window treatment. Remove some or all of the plants and bring in some wintry accessories. Candles and brass objects provide an air of warmth to a wintry room.

For economy, consider reversible cushions, summer-like on one side and wintry on the other, or have slip covers for summer use.

THE PRODUCT — A cyanoacrylate adhesive with a clog-resistant applicator.

Manufacturer's claim — That the applicator simplifies the use of this type of fast-setting, clear, strong adhesive ... that only a single drop is required to hold 5,000 pounds ... that it resists water, extreme temperatures and most chemicals ...

that it is recommended for use on a variety of nonporous materials such as glass, steel, aluminum, most plastics, rubber and ceramics ... that there is none of the uncontrolled application and mess sometimes associated with this type of adhesive.

THE PRODUCT — An exterior finish designed for use over weathered aluminum or steel siding.

Manufacturer's claim — That this refinishing material is a latex coating formulated to resemble the sheen, surface and performance characteristics of original baked-on enamels ... that the new film minimizes accumulation of dirt, resists peeling, blistering and mildewing ... and that colors are fade-resistant after a 30-minute drying period.

THE PRODUCT — A sealing system for doors.

Manufacturer's claim — That this do-it-yourself kit includes weatherseals for the perimeter of the jamb, a door sweep which mounts on the door bottom and a pair of corner seals for the bottom corners of the frame where the other seals join ... that the seals are invisible when the door is closed ... and that they won't shrink, crack, rot, corrode, fade or develop mildew.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

(The adhesive is manufactured by Borden Chemical, 180 East Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43215; the exterior finish by PPG Industries, One Gateway Center, Pittsburgh, Pa., 15222; and the door sealing system by Schlegel Corp., P.O. Box 23113, Rochester, N.Y. 14692.)

Inmates Raise Special Birds

VIENNA, Ill. (UPI) — The "birdmen of Vienna" raise quail and pheasants at a model prison just a few miles from the grave of Robert Stroud, the self-educated bird authority of Alcatraz.

Convicts at Vienna Correctional Institute will raise 4,000 quail and 3,000 pheasants this year — the second year of a cooperative project with the Illinois Department of Conservation and Southeastern Illinois College.

"We don't know of a similar project in the nation, said Scott Obourn, assistant director of education at the state minimum-security facility less than 20 miles from Metropolis, where Stroud, the legendary "Birdman of Alcatraz," is buried.

"We got 3,000 day-old quail chicks from the State Game Farm at Mount Vernon last year and returned 2,000 grown birds about a week before the quail season opened."

The center kept 15 pairs of birds for mating purposes and the result is a half-dozen nests with eight or nine eggs in each.

This year, the center is getting four shipments, each of 1,000 day-old quail to be raised in wire pens. The 3,000 four-week-old pheasants will arrive from July 12. "We have added incubator and hatchery equipment and with the birds arriving at different times we can take different groups of inmates through the entire quail-raising process," said Obourn.

The program, limited to 15 inmates at a time, will help compensate for quail and pheasant losses due to harsh winters and in areas where habitat destruction has almost depleted quail and pheasant populations, Obourn said.

As for the prisoners, he said, "We have had some contacts that indicate that inmates who finish the course will have some job opportunities in the poultry industry in northern Illinois."

"After two semesters, they will be certified through Southeastern Illinois College as game farm workers. That would also qualify them for job opportunities at such places as aviaries, zoological gardens, hunting preserves and in game management."

GETTING THE DUNK TEST — Workers at Chrysler Corporation's engine plant in Trenton, Mich., check out the four-cylinder engine which the automaker will use to power the 1981 K-cars. The suburban Detroit plant has undergone a $150 million conversion to produce 400,000 of the engines, and plans are underway to invest another $150 million in the next two years for retooling that will push production to 800,000 engines. (AP Laserphoto)

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Connally Branch

People have been interested in property rights and land use ever since they have had consciousness. After all, our earliest sustenance was from the land in the form of berries, roots and the like. As civilization developed, people became more sophisticated about agriculture and land use and farms were started. With farms came the idea of property. At first, it was all tribal property, but eventually public and private property concepts developed. We still deal in those terms today.

The Self-Extinguishing Cigarette Again Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Careless smoking is blamed for about 70,000 fires, 1,800 deaths and 4,000 injuries each year in the United States.

Periodically a suggestion has been made that cigarettes and other tobacco products be developed that will burn out before they can set fire to furniture or mattresses.

The latest such recommendation to surface in Congress is supported by the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The agency has told lawmakers it would like a crack at trying to require the production of a safer, self-extinguishing cigarette.

Bills introduced in both the House and the Senate give the CPSC authority write such regulations.

Rep. Joe Moakley, D-Mass., who authored the House version, said research shows a freshly lit cigarette will burn 20 to 45 minutes on a flat surface.

“Unfortunately the cigarette manufacturing companies have not addressed this problem, and I believe the serious nature of this problem demands congressional action,” Moakley said.

The Tobacco Institute, a trade association and major spokesman for the industry, denies the allegation. It claims, among other things, that some processes for reducing the smoldering time would increase cigarettes’ tar and nicotine content — which consumers have indicated they don’t want.

In addition, the institute says competition in the industry is so great that a self-extinguishing cigarette would probably be on the market already if such a product could be made.

Both Moakley’s legislation and a similar measure introduced by Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., would require cigarettes and little cigars to “have a minimum capacity for igniting smoldering fabric fires.”

Moakley had originally suggested that cigarettes should burn themselves out in five minutes, but later decided not to specify a time limit so the regulators could have as much flexibility as possible.

A Moakley spokesman said backers of the legislation are hopeful hearings may be held this summer.

In letters to the House and Senate commerce committees, the CPSC said testing now under way at the National Bureau of Standards indicates a five-or-10-minute burn-out time may not be adequate because some furniture fabrics can ignite in less than two minutes.

The commission said NBS researchers say it may not be practical to design a cigarette that will self-extinguish in less than two minutes.

As a result, the commission said, NBS is looking at other aspects such as the porosity of the paper and tobacco’s burning temperature.

The goal is identification of cigarettes with a minimum capability for causing smoldering, regardless of how long they burn.

Country Queen Meets Opera King

She chews gum. He drinks Perrier. She wears jeans. He wears a tuxedo. She was born in Butcher Holler, Kentucky. He was born in Modena, Italy. On the surface they seem worlds apart, but they're not. Music is their life and their bond.

She is country music queen Loretta Lynn and he is grand opera king Luciano Pavarotti. And these two consummate artists were together for the first time perhaps the only time during the taping of "Omnibus," ABC's new version of the performing arts series of the 1950s, airing Sunday, June 15 (8 to 9 p.m.).

Host Hal Holbrook was rehearsing his introductory remarks that frigid February afternoon which marked the first meeting of Loretta and 'Luke,' as she now calls him. "We believe that grand opera and Grand Ole Opry have more in common than meets the ear," said Holbrook. In the background, there was the beat of a tape replay of Loretta singing "I'm Pregnant Again," her latest hit. In counterpoint was Luciano's voice performing "Sorrento," which was coming from a cassette recorder Loretta was listening to.

Moments later, Luciano, whose lovable, expansive personality is as famous as his extraordinary tenor voice, appeared on the set and quickly captured Loretta's heart. "You are so BUTE-ee-faul, so SKEEN-e," he said in his heavily accented voice. She was enchanted. Then, when she told him she would sing "I'm Pregnant Again," he was puzzled. Loretta pointed to his rotund middle and said 'pregnant, pregnant.' "Ah! Si," he responded. "I understand."

As she sang the song ("The car payments are late, the mortgage is due...I'm pregnant again, what will we do?"), Luciano understood and was genuinely moved by the lament of poverty and struggle. But why wouldn't he? Like Loretta he comes from hard-working people. His father was a baker and she of course is a "Coal Miner's Daughter." It's obvious that fame and fortune haven't erased their roots.

Trust, consideration, and admiration for each other grew as the taping proceeded. And by the end of the session, it was evident that there was, indeed, more than music that brought Loretta Lynn and Luciano Pavarotti together. There is now friendship.

GRAND OPERA KING Luciano Pavarotti charms country music queen Loretta Lynn in a magical, musical moment when the "Coal Miner's Daughter" and "Rigoletto's" Duke share their art on ABC's new "Omnibus," airing Sunday, June 15 (8-9 p.m.).

Disney Salutes Fathers

"Disney's Wonderful World" pays homage to fathers with "Goofy's Salute to Father," re-broadcast Sunday, June 15 (7 to 8 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Win a few, lose a few, that's old George (Goofy)... a carefree bachelor on the loose. Surfing at the beach in the summer, grand-standing on the playing fields in the winter, but not allowing anything to interfere with night-clubbing when the sun goes down. Unless, of course, a poker game is in progress or George can hear the dice clicking in a crap game. If everything else seems dull, he can always bet a few bob on the horses.

Then, one day, George takes a look at himself. What is life without a mate, a loving wife to share this wonderful life? So how does he find the perfect partner? By learning to dance.

A few frantic nights of tripping the light fantastic leads George straight to the altar with his sweetheart. Then, presto! Our hero's leisure time is consumed by baby bottles and diapers.

"George...the bottle," doesn't mean a shot of red eye, he soon discovers. "As soon as Junior grows out of the infant stage, I can take it easy," says George.

Barry Relates To Character

The smell of crabs was in the air. It wasn't too heavy, however the 30 degree weather prevented that. But it was certainly pervasive enough to remind the assembled actors that the picture they were making was not about a family of desert dwellers.

The picture "King Crab," airing on ABC-TV, Sunday, June 15 (9 to 11 p.m.) is about a family that deals in seafood. They are noted as the final word in fresh crabs in the wholesale market and live both by and from the sea.

Surprisingly enough, the very urbane Barry Newman can relate to that family in many ways.

"My dad was primarily in the nightclub business he had the largest club in New England, called The Latin Quarter. But he used to take fishing parties out into Boston Harbor on his boat in the summer," the actor recalls. "I was around that as a kid, going out with him. He'd been a whaler working out of New Bedford when he was 16 years of age. My brother and I always called him 'Captain' and he's listed in the Winchester, Mass., telephone book as Capt. Carl Newman even today."

The rivalry between brothers is a key part of "King Crab," and Barry Newman finds a personal contact there, too.

Now Filming

Filming is underway on "Rape and Marriage — The Rideout Case," a new motion picture for CBS.

The script is based on the case of Greta and John Rideout, who presently reside in Oregon. The couple made legal history last year after the wife instigated the prosecution of her husband by filing a formal complaint that he had committed rape against her. The case also resulted in headlines around the world.

Jennifer Wright and Mickey Rourke are portraying the couple, and Rip Torn also has a starring role.

Q: What happened to Iris Bancroft, one of the characters on "Another World"? It seems weeks since she's been on the show.
A. ANDERSON, HOPE MILLS, N.C.
 A: Iris made a hasty exit from the series when actress Beverlee McKinsey tumbled from a ladder back in February. She suffered multiple breaks of her left shoulder and is expected to regain only 75% use of the affected arm. But Beverlee and 'Iris' will be back — in "Texas," a spin-off of "Another World" premiering in August.

Q: Is Clint Walker still acting? M. PEARSON, SANFORD, N.C.
A: The muscular star of two TV series — "The Cheyenne Show" and "Kodiak" — is now in his early 50's and concentrating primarily on movies these days. One of these, "Night of the Grizzly," was based on his own idea and released theatrically. It later became a highly-rated TV film.

Q: I've been wondering if "240-ROBERT" will ever be back on Monday nights? S. REVELS, PEMBROKE, N.C.
A: You couldn't have asked at a better time! I'm happy to say that ABC-TV's had second thoughts about the show and decided to air it this summer. But you won't see it on Mondays. '240' is now airing Saturdays, 8 p.m.

Q: Why was "One in a Million" cancelled, and is there a chance of it airing again? How do I write to the series' star, Shirley Hemphill? V. VANZANDT, MT. OLIVE, N.C.
A: The series never got out of the cellar, as far as ratings go, and ABC promptly cancelled it. Now it's back on the air in a Monday p.m. time slot and will probably continue in that spot through most of the summer. Write to Shirley, c/o ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90067.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO 'MICHELE,' GREENVILLE DAILY REFLECTOR, P.O. BOX 1451, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

'Watcher' Yanked
 Walt Disney Prods. has yanked their new film, "The Watcher in the Woods," from its release schedule in order to re-shoot portions of the mystery. Bette Davis, Carroll Baker and Lynn-Holly Johnson star. "Mary Poppins," originally scheduled to be re-released later this year, is replacing it.

Fans Remember Them!

The memory — indeed the vision — of Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly dancing across the screen is cherished by millions of their fans around the world. A whole new generation of Astaire-Kelly admirers has arisen, thanks to the popularity of their films in revival houses and television.

They will both be seen as narrators in "That's Entertainment, Part 2," to be rebroadcast on CBS-TV Wednesday, June 18 (8:30 to 11 p.m.).

Credit must go to Astaire for revolutionizing the art of the movie musical. Basically a 'beat' man, Astaire's feet seldom stopped tapping and his fingers never ceased to drum out a catchy tattoo.

With matchless grace and aplomb, Astaire danced with virtually every dancer in Hollywood. He is best remembered as the partner of Ginger Rogers in such movies of "Gay Divorcee," "Top Hat," "Swingtime," and "The Barkleys of Broadway."

He also danced with Jane Powell in "Royal Wedding," Vera Ellen in "The Belle of New York," Cyd Charisse in "The Band Wagon" and "Silk Stockings," Leslie Caron in "Daddy Long Legs," Audrey Hepburn in "Funny Face," and Betty Hutton in "Let's Dance."

In 1949, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented Astaire with a special Oscar for his unique artistry and his contribution to the technique of musical pictures. In 1974, his performance in "The Towering Inferno" earned him an Oscar nomination as Best Supporting Actor.

"Fred and I are not trying to compete with the numbers we did 30 years ago," said Kelly. "We're just doing the kind of routines we can do well — as older fellows."

Although the two legendary dancers have been close friends for many years, this was only their second appearance as a screen team. The last time they tapped in tandem was in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Ziegfeld Follies" in 1946.

An 'Angel' Causes A Nightmare

On the surface, selecting a new angel to augment and complement Jaclyn Smith and Cheryl Ladd in "Charlie's Angels" seems to be a reasonably and easy assignment. But to the series' producers, Spelling/Goldberg Prods., it's evolved into a monumental, time-consuming and expensive task.

The company's casting executives went to their voluminous files of photos and audition tapes while, at the same time, auditioned countless new candidates.

Finally, they went to one of the most renowned casting agencies in the entertainment field and signed Lynn Stalmaster & Associates. Now Lynn and his Vice President, Toni Howard, are personally conducting the search.

The two immediately embarked on a nationwide talent hunt, recalling the halcyon days of the silver screen when producers scoured the country for future stars.

Film Was Hard Work

There are those slammed-down-to-earth times in performers' lives when they are "swamped" with tough physical work as they take a "crash" course in realism. The stars of "Crash" (The ABC Friday Night Movie, June 20, 8 to 10 p.m.) soon found out this was a motion picture with no easy landings.

Illusion and special effects created the stark realism of the giant plane's smash-up. Many of the sequences were filmed in the Everglades and some on a Hollywood back lot. Parts of a plane lay scattered near a small lake. Plants indigenous to the Everglades were added and the lake was turned into a swamp. The whole effect was so realistic that the only thing that looked make-believe was the very real moon that hung low in the sky.

William Shatner, Lorraine Gary, George Maharis and Laraine Stephens worked for the major part of three nights waist-deep in murky water, spending infrequent breaks wrapped in blankets and sipping hot coffee through chattering teeth.

Among the other cast members who endured difficult moments was Ed Nelson who had to spend some time suspended in the air while strapped in an uncomfortable harness-like contraption. Eddie Albert was pounded with 600 pounds of water while seated in the cockpit seat, and Brett Halsey was hit in the face with the water. Several others, including Maharis and Gerald S. O'Loughlin, were hooked to special wires that sent them flying through the air during the scene when the plane makes impact.

In most plane crashes the great momentum of the craft and the force of the impact cause the clothes to be ripped from the victims. To capture this phenomenon, strings were attached to the clothes of Laraine Stephens and held out of camera range. On cue, with the cabin of the plane rocking wildly, the strings were pulled and Laraine was left in her unmentionables.

Pleased with all the effects he achieved, director Barry Shear said, "It was the most exciting thing I ever did and the members of the cast were the best sports I've ever worked with."

One of the stars, however, looked the same at the end of the picture as he did at the beginning. The character Ron Glass played suffers from shock during the crash but remains with not one hair out of place.

In making the announcement regarding the show, the network's Herman Keld said, "We are excited about this addition to our late night schedule. JIMMY VALENTINE, (Ken Berry, left) a safe cracker who wants to go straight, must use his skills to save the life of a little boy (Sean Marshall) whom he has befriended in "Valentine's Second Chance," on ABC Short Story Specials, Saturday, June 21 (12-noon-12:30 p.m.).

Character Belongs To O'Henry

Who was Jimmy Valentine? Some believe he was a colorful gangster in the roaring '20s. Others think of him as a latter-day Jesse James. In a song sung by Bing Crosby in the 1939 film, "The Star Maker," a group of appealing youngsters was warned to "Look Out for Jimmy Valentine."

Nor will you find him in any encyclopedia or long-forgotten police blotters. Although he is featured in "Valentine's Second Chance," an ABC Short Story Specials to be rebroadcast Saturday, June 21 (12 to-12:30 p.m.), the program doesn't deal with the 'real' Jimmy Valentine.

In an attempt to solve this riddle, ABC-TV's Allen 'Duke' Ducovny has this to say: "Jimmy Valentine came from the imagination of a master story writer named William Sydney Porter, known throughout the world by his pen name, O. Henry. Valentine was the delightful hero of O. Henry's short story classic, 'A Retrieved Reformation.'

Ever since man first looked skyward, he has carried with him the dream of self-powered flight.

Last June 12, a bicycle racer made history by pedalling a specially-designed lightweight aircraft from the shores of England to France — 22 miles across the English Channel. This remarkable feat is the subject of "Gossamer Albatross — Flight of Imagination," which airs Sunday, June 15 (3-4 p.m.) on CBS. The sports special is narrated by Hal Holbrook.

The Albatross was designed by Dr. Paul MacCready, a prominent scientist, using ultra lightweight and ultra high-strength materials produced by Du Pont, sponsor of the flight.

MacCready is considered the foremost pioneer in slow-powered flight, and his career in aviation has brought him numerous awards and international recognition, including the prestigious Collier Trophy, with which he was recently honored.

Just before 6 a.m. on June 12, the fragile, strange-looking airplane took off from Folkestone on the English coast. It averaged between seven and eleven mph and split the air at altitudes never more than 15 feet above the water. The progress of the aircraft was closely monitored by 23 small boats, as Bryan Allen, 27, of Bakersfield, Calif., steadily pumped his legs for two hours and 49 minutes. The Albatross then landed safely on Cape Gris Nez, France.

Completion of the flight brought not only instant headlines around the world to both Allen and MacCready, it also earned them a prize of 100,000 pounds ($220,000) that had been posted by British industrialist Henry Kremer.

The airplane is powered by a single propeller connected by chaindrive to a bicycle-like pedalling device operated by Allen.

Referring to MacCready, Du Pont and Allen, it has been said that the Gossamer Albatross is a triumph of the human spirit, plastics technology and leg power. Flight of the Imagination is the visual recording of this amazing, historical triumph.

THE FIRST HUMAN-POWERED FLIGHT across the English Channel is the subject of "Gossamer Albatross — Flight of Imagination," airing Sunday, June 15 (3-4 p.m.) as a CBS Sports Special.

Still No Regrets
ABC-TV's Brandon Stoddard says his network turned down the Guyana project, which CBS picked up and turned into a top-rated presentation.
"We still have no regrets," Stoddard says. "We just didn't think the project was informational, that it could keep such a thing from happening again. We want our projects to do more than just tell a story and dramatize headlines."

Had Lean Time
Concerning pitchers, the Kansas City Royals had a lean time of things during the 1960's, when not one hurler posted a season with 20 or more victories.

Fawcett In Film

Farrah Fawcett will be starring in "The Cannonball Trophy," a feature film which will begin lensing late this summer.

It took a lot of sole searching to come up with this boat shoe.

Timberland

A whole line of fine leather boots and shoes that cost plenty, and should.

The Shoe

The Sole

We did a lot of soul searching before we decided to make boat shoes. We were already up to our ankles, you might say, making the best boots and hand sewn shoes on land. But after we decided, that's when the real sole searching began.

We tried a lot of soles that missed the boat before we came up with a specially designed Vibram® sole. One that holds fast and really lasts. And after we'd gone overboard making such a fine sole, we made the whole rest of our shoe just as good.

We took fine waterproof leathers that stay soft and supple even after you dunk 'em in salt water. We added nylon stitching to resist rot, mildew and stress. Eyelets that were all solid brass. And a padded leather collar that really snuggles up around your ankles.

New Timberland boat shoes. Now the folks who make the best handsewns on earth make the best handsewns on water.

HOLLYWOOD — There's a lot of smoke billowing from the "FANTASY ISLAND" set, and it's all coming from HERVE VILLECHAIZE. The little guy's furious over an article that appeared in a recent issue of HUSTLER titled "Ecstasy Island" that referred to him as a "sexual deviate." Herve's so mad, in fact, that he's filed a $4,000,000 suit against the publication.

Don't be surprised if JAYNE KENNEDY's face is missing from CBS SPORTS' telecasts next fall. GEORGE SCHLATTER, who's helming NBC's new "SPEAK UP AMERICA," says he's huddling with Jayne about becoming one of the show's co-hosts and expects a firm answer "within a day or two."

When CHERYL LADD left town for a promotional tour of Japan, her traveling companion was none other than her singer-songwriter boyfriend, BRIAN RUSSELL.

MARY TYLER MOORE, who's been heavy-dating MICHAEL LINDSAY HOGG, the producer of her Broadway show, is now being squired around New York by writer PETE HAMILL, a 'sometime' escort of JACKIE ONASSIS.

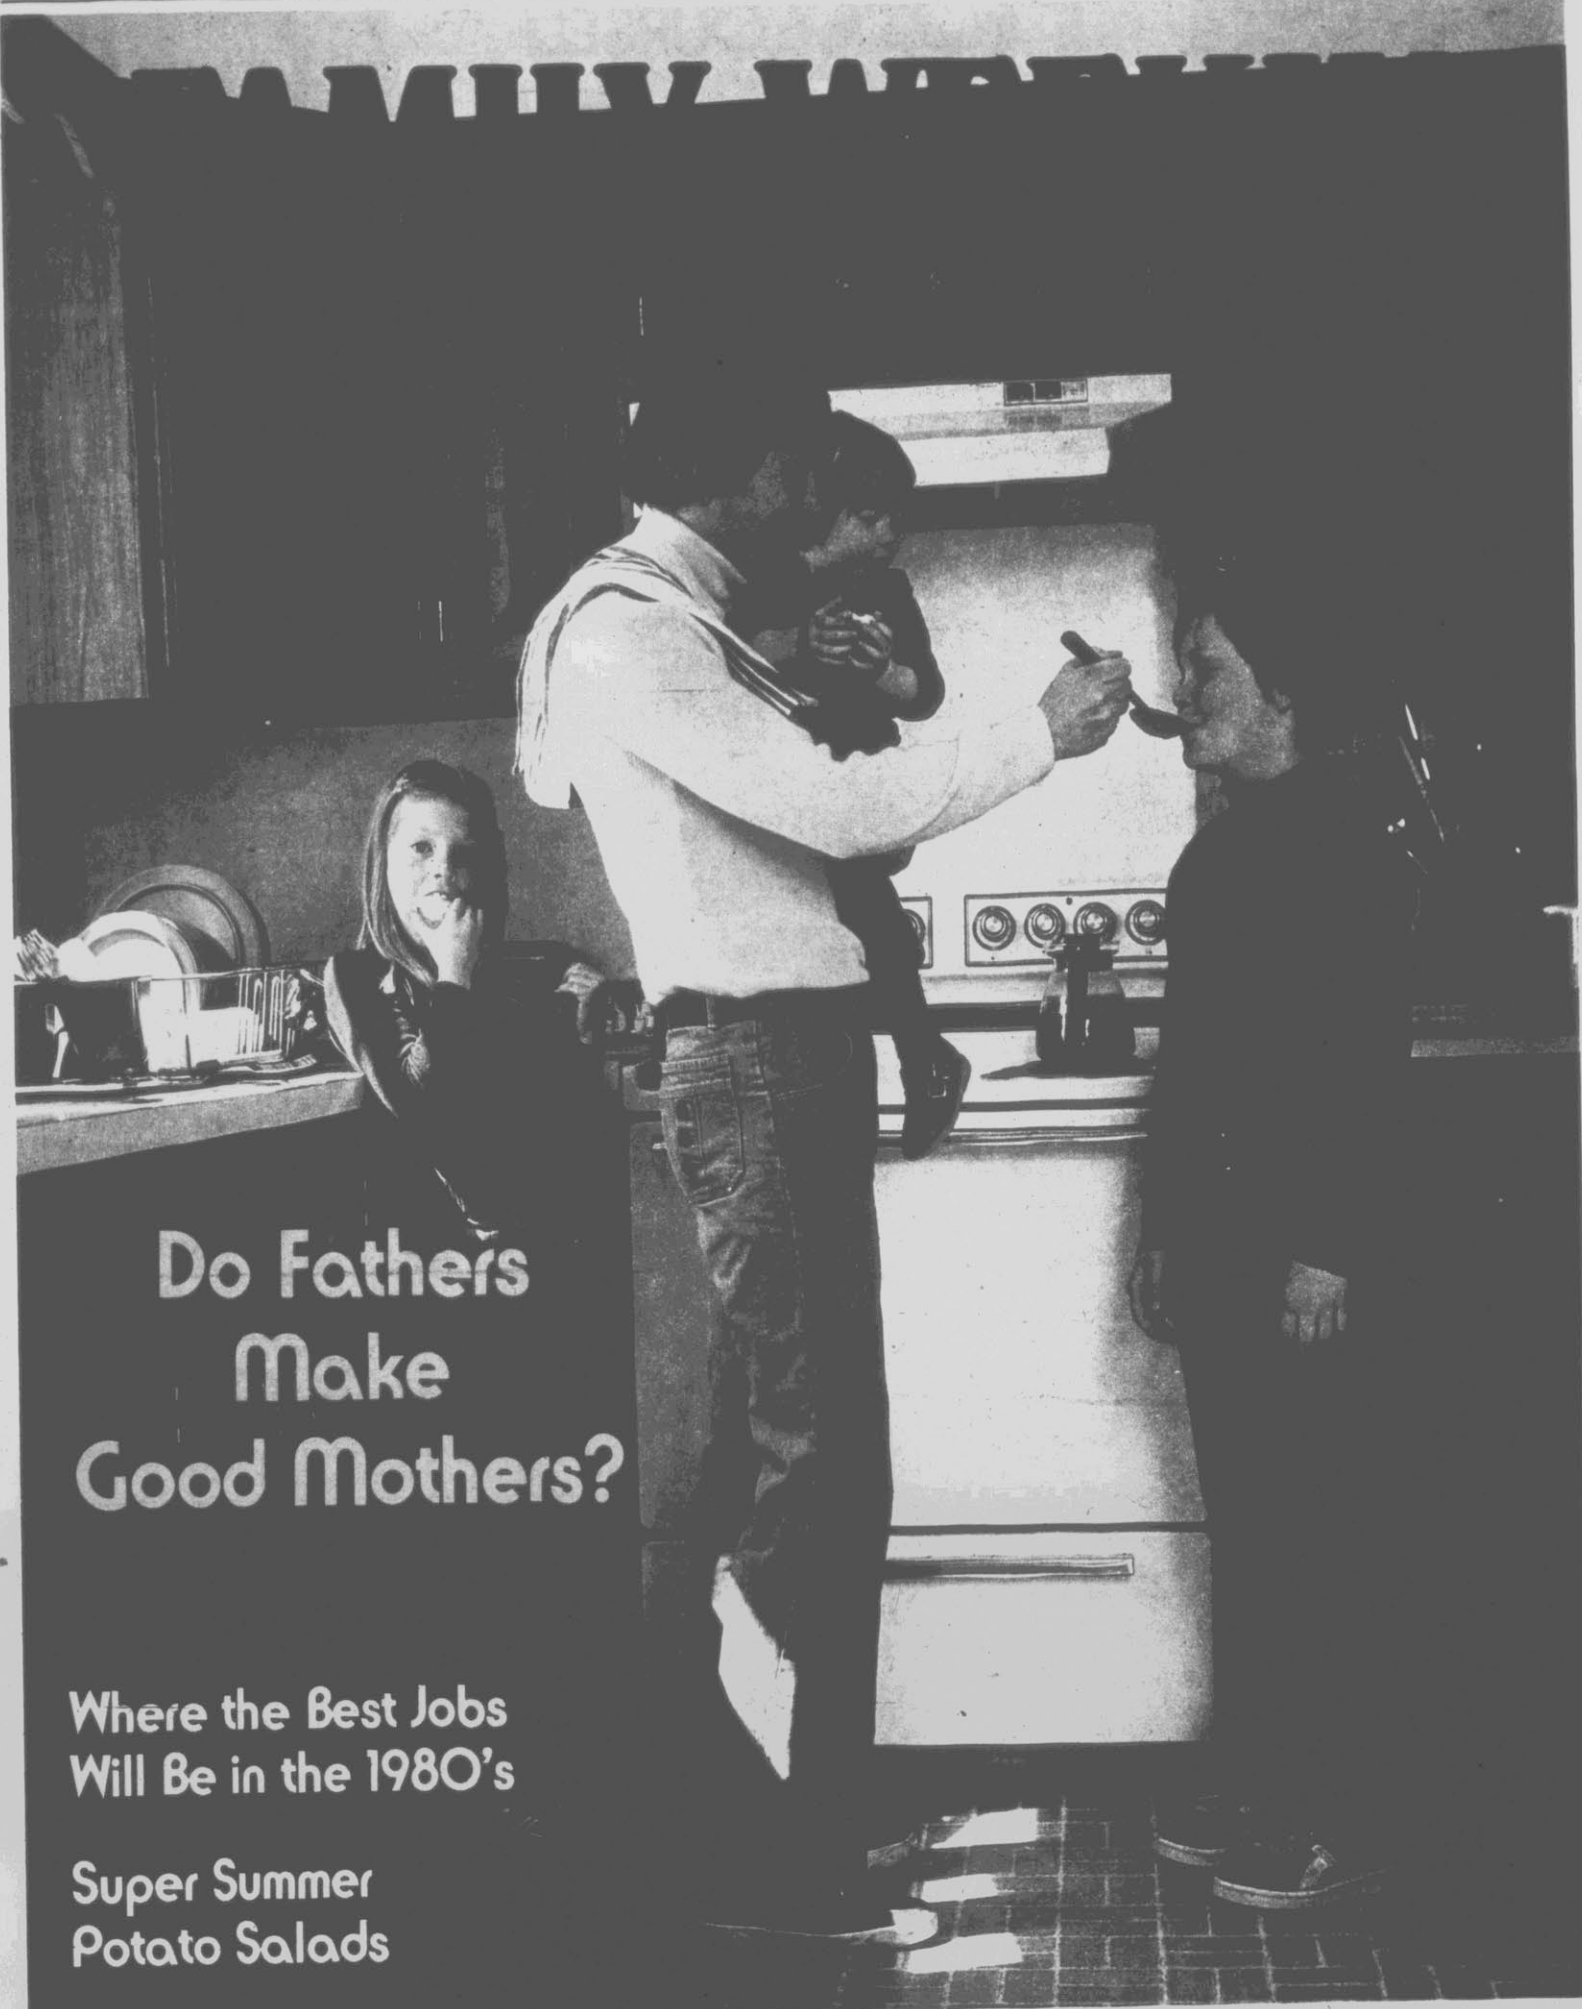

Now that "VEGAS" is on hiatus, BART BRAVERMAN is busy filming a movie, "ALLIGATOR." One of the other cast members happens to be his mom, KENDALL CARLY BROWN! This is the first time the two have ever worked together.

Reports are coming from the set where LYNDA CARTER is filming her first movie, "THE LAST SONG," that it certainly won't be her last! In fact, she's so good that even hard-nosed crew members are stopping to applaud her scenes!

FOR SENATOR BARRY GOLDWATER (R.-Ariz.)

You recently stated that you were totally opposed to a Constitutional Convention to require a balanced Federal budget. Why? —Z.L., Bangor, Maine

● May I remind you that the Founding Fathers were very, very vague in this field. For example, they didn't say how to call a convention; they didn't say how many delegates would come from each state or how those delegates would be selected; and, worse than that, they didn't build any fences around the scope of a Constitutional Convention. Now I happen to believe in a Constitutional amendment, very, very carefully drawn up and submitted to the people in order to put a curb on spending; but if you place the question directly before a Convention, we'll be lucky if we wind up with the Lord's Prayer being acceptable.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is Bing Crosby's daughter, Mary, planning a "nasty" book about him? —M.T., Great Falls, Mont.

● Absolutely not. Mary (co-star of TV's Dallas) speaks of her dad with great love. She says she inherited from him an aversion to the bright lights and the conventional show-business life and people. What she did not inherit from him is his unique voice. She said he didn't pass on any tips, since he rarely spoke about his work to his family. Bing didn't approve or disapprove of Mary taking up an acting career. What Bing did frown on was turning his kids into child stars. Only recently did Mary discover that in her early years her father let it be known he did not want her offered parts in plays. When she was old enough to decide for herself, he left the decision to her.

From Bing: No child stars, please.

FOR POLLY HOLLIDAY, star of CBS-TV's Flo

How much research did you do for your present role as a roadhouse owner? —C.T., Elkhart, Ind.

● I didn't do any because I grew up in that environment. My father was a trucker, and whenever I could, I went out on the road with him, where I met so many women like Flo. In the South there are roadhouses all over the place, and Dad and I stopped at almost all of them. Incidentally, he taught me how to drive — on a truck.

FOR STEPHEN KING, author of The Dead Zone

How did you get interested in writing horror stories? —Matt Leachman, Saginaw, Mich.

● My father was a merchant seaman who left home when I was 2 years old. But among other things he left stored in the attic of an aunt's house was a box of paperback books, short-story collections by H.P. Lovecraft, novels by A. Merritt, that sort of thing. I stumbled on them while exploring, so I became hooked on horror when I was only 8 years old.

FOR JAN MURRAY, comedian

Did you inherit your sense of humor? —J. Macking, Westchester, N.Y.

● Yes, from my dad. He had a wry, dry sense of humor. The first time I was aware of it was when he insisted I finish my soup. "I don't want it," I whined. "It's good for you," he thundered. "It's good for nothing," I insisted. "You are nothing. So it's good for you," he told me. "So eat it." While I was busy sorting that one out, I finished the bowl.

FOR O.J. SIMPSON, athlete-actor

Would your life have turned out differently had your parents not separated? —G.S., Little Rock, Ark.

● Not having a man around the house certainly forced me to grow up quicker and more independent. From an emotional point of view, then, I'm sure the separation did change my personality, but I didn't lack love. I got that from my mother. Also, I knew how to reach my father, and I saw him on holidays. From a career point of view, I doubt I would have chosen differently.

FOR SUZANNE SOMERS, star of Nothing Personal

Is your father interested in pursuing a show-business career? —L.S., Muskogee, Okla.

● No. But he did enjoy making a commercial recently. What he enjoys even more is getting the checks. When the first one came in he rushed off with it to the bank. He came back and told me, "When I made the deposit, this is the first time in years they did not ask me for identification!" He celebrated by buying my mother a string of pearls.

FOR CHAD EVERETT, star of TV's Hagen

Is it true that you're a terribly strict father? —P.R., Green Bay, Wis.

● No, because I don't have to be. My two girls are really well behaved. What annoys me about them is when they don't listen — which is more a sign of their ages (10 and 8) than of disrespect. I get irritated when I say it's time to come out of the pool, and they ignore me. Our kids have never been spanked because we manage to get our points across verbally.

PRO Representative Norman E. D'Amours (D.-N.H.)

Tax credits do work. If they didn't, our Government wouldn't give them to industry (including oil companies) to spur investment. Numerous scientific studies, including the prestigious Harvard Energy Future report, advocate tax credits as a cost-efficient way of encouraging conservation.

Credits require no additional bureaucracy to administer, and the money goes directly to where it is needed. Rising energy bills have prevented many people from investing in energy conservation. Tax credits offer people an opportunity to help themselves while freeing America from OPEC.

PRO AND CON

Are Consumer Energy Tax Credits the Best Way for the Nation to Conserve Energy?

CON Representative Bill Gradison (R.-Ohio)

Consumer energy tax credits simply don't work. In 1978 less than 5 percent of households filing tax returns with incomes below $15,000 claimed a 15 percent energy credit. Many residents living in the oldest and most energy-inefficient housing paid too little in taxes to claim a credit; even for higher-bracket taxpayers, the credit is at best a marginal stimulus. While insulation expenditures pay for themselves fairly quickly, more effective Federal conservation incentives, such as low-interest loans and grants, would encourage residential energy efficiency at all income levels.

Do Fathers Make Good Mothers?

By Robert Miner

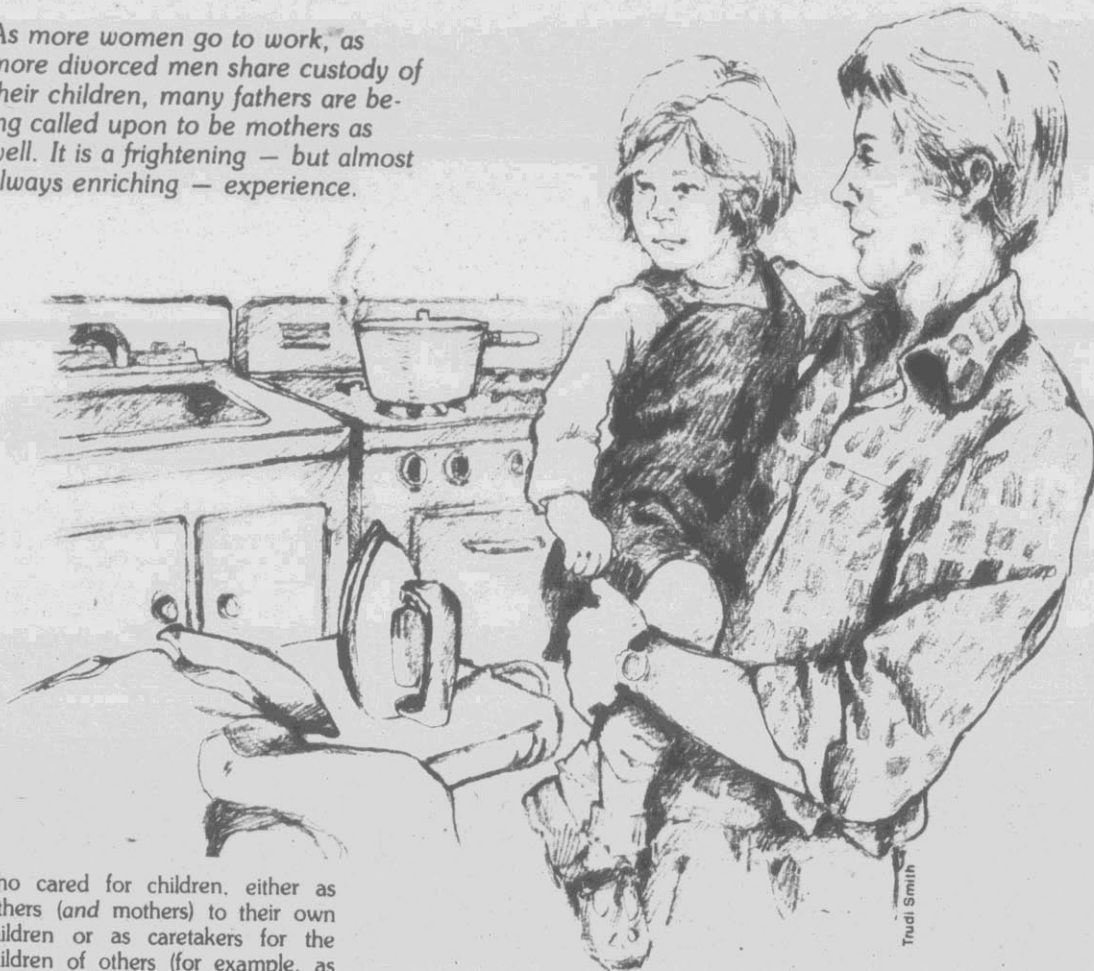

Do fathers make good mothers? For most of us, the instinctive answer is a resounding no. Often, for that matter, they don't even make good fathers. For a variety of reasons, they just don't seem to have the time and inclination, let alone the skills, to develop a good relationship with their kids. In New York State, where I live with my children, most fathers could be prosecuted under the laws defining child neglect.

But does this mean that fathers are doomed to be that guy who sits at the head of the table and asks dumb, formal questions like "How is math class coming?" Or the "you-just-wait-till-your-father-gets-home" guy we learn to hope will stay late at work again tonight? Surprisingly, experts in a variety of fields are coming to the conclusion that fathers are made, not born (just as mothers, by the way, are made, not born), and that a father, given the right opportunities, can, indeed, make a good mother.

Before we go on, I should explain a couple of things. For four years I was a single parent to my two children by my first marriage, beginning when one was about six months old and the other just starting his terrible two's. [Miner is pictured on the cover with, from left, daughters Tess, now 9, and Alison, 2, and son Nickolas, 11.] I have a gut investment in the mothering men can do. And although no definition will satisfy everyone, I think I echo this society's common definition when I say that mothering means nurturing — the capacity to be emotionally available and to give emotional support to others. We would all agree that kids need more than just this to grow up — and that mothers provide more than just nurturing — but most of us would probably agree that it is in the emotional domain that mothers have specialized.

And it is in the emotional domain that fathers will have to perform if they are going to make good "mothers." A pioneer chronicler of the natural capacities of men is James A. Levine, child-care researcher at Wellesley College's Center for Research on Women and author of Who Will Raise the Children? Shocked to discover that no one seemed to know much about men and children, Levine interviewed hundreds of men who cared for children, either as fathers (and mothers) to their own children or as caretakers for the children of others (for example, as day-care teachers). What he found was that an increasing number of men were taking an active part in the care of children — and doing it very well. "The sharing of child-rearing between men and women," he concluded, "will reduce the isolation of contemporary motherhood and many of its consequent emotional stresses. And in those families in which men stay home full time as househusbands, the quality of child care may even improve, because a factor essential to the high quality of such care in the care-giver's choice of the role."

As more women go to work, as more divorced men share custody of their children, many fathers are being called upon to be mothers as well. It is a frightening — but almost always enriching — experience.

But change is not coming about as fast as many had hoped. One reason is that men get very little encouragement from society for undertaking new responsibilities with children. Judges deciding custody cases often point out that fathers don't make good mothers, and that view is often echoed by employers and even wives and mothers. "Encouraging men to accept child-care responsibilities," says Levine, "means questioning our existing economic structure and also the competitive, individualistic, achievement-oriented ethic that underlies it. It means placing our value primarily on the family, saying that it is society's job not just to create conditions in which individuals achieve and produce but also in which the internal, stable functioning of the family is promoted."

But what do we really know about the family? Some of the assumptions about sex roles that have governed family values for so long — for instance, the presumption that men are meant to be breadwinners while women should care for the children — are now undergoing scientific examination. Psychologist Bernice Lott of the University of Rhode Island studied a group of 4-year-olds in a preschool to see what she could learn about the development of sex roles.

"Adults — both parents and teachers — expect boys and girls to behave differently along certain lines, but what you find is that the kids don't behave differently along those lines, although they do behave differently along other lines," says Lott. "Boys, for instance, turned out to be sociable, cooperative and willing to touch each other — things many of us would have expected from girls. Girls tended more to be loners, to play by themselves and to be observers of the scene."

What does all this tell us about men as mothers, then? Lott's new book, Becoming a Woman: The Socialization of Gender, analyzes the ways in which women learn to be women. "And what it says about becoming a woman," says Lott, "is relevant also to becoming a man. My assumption — and it is well documented by a variety of data — is that we acquire those behaviors that permit us to be called men or women, boys or girls."

Lott makes the point that nothing science knows about the anatomy and physiology of men prevents natural behavior. And although many experts feel that breast-feeding establishes a special bond between a mother and her child, Lott feels that men can establish their own, equally strong, bonds. "We know," she adds, "that infants do not discriminate. They can learn, for instance, to respond to a male voice as easily as to a female voice. The infant doesn't care whether the person holding it is a man or a woman." Based on what science now knows, says Lott, we have every reason to be confident that any adult can learn to be nurtural — under the right circumstances.

What those circumstances are is also well documented. Early access to a dependent infant; experience; the desire to be a parent and to receive a decent return on the nurtural behavior one invests, either from the infant or from others, are all important ingredients in "mothering." How much leeway is built into these circumstances was demonstrated by my experience as a "mother" to my own children after their mother and I separated.

I had early access to a dependent infant, all right. But I had no previous experience. (Boys don't get to play with dolls, baby-sit or hold their friends' babies.) I had the desire to be a parent. (One of these days we are going to notice that it's often men, not women, who want families.) But I had few chances to get the kind of return I needed for the meager nurtural behavior I knew how to offer. And yet I turned out to be what my research tells me is probably an average mother, even a good one at times.

But I also want to say that it was hell, sheer hell: that special kind of hell many mothers have endured for too long. My experience was overwhelming. Overwork, sleep deprivation and poor diet were only a few of the stresses I endured. I had to provide for children more than any one person can provide and survive intact.

But like most mothers I still think it was worth it, far and away the most important experience I'd had in my life. I learned how to love, and I learned how to be emotionally available to others. I also learned that

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. In fact, it's a problem that millions of American women face. And all the vitamins in the world can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take GERITOL, America's #1 iron and vitamin supplement. GERITOL is so rich in iron, just one tablet each day gives you more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins that are essential to good health.

GERITOL will actually build iron poor blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

most of us men have little to congratulate ourselves for on Father's Day. Few fathers experience what matters about being a parent, perhaps what matters about being human — and we're each going to have to do something to change that. "People can change," says

James Levine, "but they have to understand how much they are victims of the past. Growing public awareness that fathers can care for children, along with increasing labor-force participation of women, are two factors that should help spur change."

Jennifer Birckmayer, early-childhood specialist at Cornell's College of Human Ecology, agrees. She notes that "there are two strands to parenting. One is knowledge, and the other is affect, feeling. And one doesn't operate without the other. In the traditional perspective of what a mother and father have been, the balance of these two strands differs for each parent. Traditionally, the father has relied more on what he sees to be the information strand, while the mother has been freer to operate in the affective domain. But what we are seeing with the changing views of males and females in our culture is that those distinctions are no longer real in other areas — so they are beginning not to be as real in parenting."

This could have a profound effect, says Birckmayer. Children learn to be adults by watching adults, and if they see men doing more nurturing, boys will learn to nurture more naturally and girls will learn to accept it more easily.

Another way to speed change, Birckmayer indicates, is to allow boys to explore nurtural roles when they are young. "Little boys have less freedom than little girls to find out what it's like to be different people," she says. "They don't have the chance to practice those more tender kinds of roles. That means they go into parenting with less experience. It's like an actor having to do a play without rehearsals."

Most of us men have little to congratulate ourselves for on Father's Day... and we're going to have to change that.

I wish I'd had a rehearsal before my first try at mothering. I wouldn't have had to learn at the expense of my two children. And this is not just speculation. I know. I've been remarried for four years, and my wife, Linda, and I have a 2-year-old. This time around all the circumstances are right. I've been exposed to Alison since the moment she crowned; I've had plenty of experience; I knew why I wanted to be a parent; and I get a rich return on my nurturing investment. I think I am being merely objective when I say that, yes, fathers can make good mothers. Even this one does. FW

Making Waves: Everything You Wanted to Know About Permanents

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

With today's permanents, you can have any look, from smooth to curly.

ing before perming can't be overemphasized. The combination of water and the slightly alkaline composition of most shampoos will give the permanent a headstart by breaking down some of the hair's bonds, helping to soften the hair's inner cortex.

Hair that is to be permed should always be left damp (not soaking wet). The slight water content helps to even out the porosity of the hair so that it will better absorb the permanent wave lotion all over the head.

Should you cut your hair before you perm?

Yes. Make sure you start with a good cut. Have your hair shaped and split ends removed. The cut that works best with a perm is slightly layered to add to the hair's natural body. If hair is left longer than shoulder length, don't expect it to hold a tight curl, since long hair weighs down the curl, stretches and softens it.

How should you maintain your perm?

The way you care for your hair after a permanent is as vital to a full-bodied, long-lasting curl as the care taken with the process itself. Permed hair is more vulnerable to drying and breaking, so follow diligently the same rules for keeping ordinary hair healthy. That is, use a creme rinse/conditioner after every shampoo; gently use the proper brush and comb. A wide-spaced tufted brush with a few rounded bristles on each tuft is the best choice, and a wide-spaced comb with rounded tips in bone or plastic, not metal, is preferable. Forget the "100-stroke-a-day" adage — it's too much stress for most hair. Remember to comb hair, not brush it, when it's wet. You should also avoid overuse of heating appliances.

What if you don't like it?

It can happen, but there are alternatives: You can have it cut away; have several deep hot oil-conditioning treatments, which will tend to "weigh" out some of the curl; or, not particularly recommended, go through a hair-straightening process — best done at a salon, after a "test strand" is examined. Some soft perms done at home last only about two months, so the length of time you have to wait for the curl to grow out will not be interminable. FW

Some fashion pundits might disagree, but permanent waving has never been "out" for the countless women everywhere who simply won't put up with the straight hair nature bequeathed them.

If you've never permed your hair or are ready to try again, here are some answers to questions you may have:

What happens to hair during the perm process?

All permanents depend upon the use of chemical formulas to penetrate the hair's protective cuticle (the outer layer of each strand, which gives hair its bounce and shine) in order to reach the hair's inner cortex — the center of the strand — where the waving takes place. Permanent lotions soften this inner cortex, so its shape can be changed from straight to curly when the hair is wound on special perm rollers.

What types of hair "take" best?

Whether your hair is normal, dry or oily, it can respond to the permanenting process. But if you have very fine hair, it's considered resistant and more difficult to wave. Such hair is often more receptive to a second permanent.

Is there a hair type that should not be permed?

Yes. If your hair has been through a lot of processing — bleaching, streaking, tinting or straightening — and is very damaged, it should not be. The best way to find out is to request a test curl if you're getting a permanent at a beauty salon (most operators don't bother, unless asked). If you're giving yourself a home permanent, the kit usually supplies instructions for this. Generally, if hair doesn't look and feel right — if it's frizzy, breaks easily or shows discoloration — postpone the permanent until your hair is in better condition.

What if you color your hair?

If you've just colored it, wait at least two weeks, then do test curls before you consider having a permanent. If you're planning to color your hair and also want a permanent, for best results perm first, then wait until you have shampooed your hair several times (usually two weeks or more).

Is it difficult to give yourself a home permanent?

Reports are that it is getting easier and less messy all the time. If you can set your hair on rollers, you're really halfway there.

Research-and-development experts for Rave home permanents offer this advice: The importance of shampoo-

Where the Best Jobs Will Be in the 1980's

By Brie Quinby

June is here: the month that marks the beginning of the job-hunting season. What kinds of jobs can high-school and college graduates expect to find during the next decade?

"During the next 10 years, the areas that will probably have the most demand for employment will be those that involve technical knowledge," notes Ron King, assistant dean of the College of Business and Public Administration at the University of Missouri. And, at least according to recently released figures from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, he's right. Computer specialists can expect a 27.3 percent growth in the number of jobs available to them, while medical secretaries will enjoy a whopping 80.3 percent growth in their field.

"We're moving into a period where jobs will demand definite skills," asserts King. Marvin Barab, president of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, agrees. "The person with no skills will have a hard time during the 80's," he adds.

Of the 3,160,000 high-school students who were graduated in 1979, approximately half went on to college, and that trend is expected to continue over the next 10 years. However, for those students who aren't planning on any post-secondary education there are a number of jobs that have good employment futures and that are often available to high-school graduates. "High-school students can go into the secretarial area, the building trade and into car mechanics, particularly if they've had some vocational training," says Richard Cassani, guidance counselor at Champlain Valley Union High School in Plattsburgh, Vt. "Construction crafts and most food service workers can also expect a healthy range of job opportunities over the next decade."

For those students who want a skilled job but who don't plan on going to college, a trade or technical school may be the answer. These schools equip students for a variety of jobs that are expected to grow during the 1980's. The health field will boom as paraprofessionals take over more of the duties once performed by doctors," predicts Barab. Indeed, dental hygienists can look forward to a 18.9-percent growth rate in their field, while the area of clinical laboratory technology will spurt by 28 percent.

For college graduates, the competition for jobs has become increasingly tough, and experts predict that the trend will continue through the next decade. "We see a lot of students going into accounting, sales and marketing and technical fields, and an increasing number of those students are women," says King. Computer science and engineering are also fields with good career futures. At the graduate level, dental, medical, legal and business degrees are still in demand.

Although jobs are becoming increasingly technical, a degree in a specialty is not an automatic opening. "I'm seeing more students who are taking pains to impress the interviewers," notes King. "Anyone applying for a job should remember that well-thought out responses and a polished résumé are still good assets." FW

HOW TO BURN OFF BODY FAT, HOUR-BY-HOUR!

MEDICAL DOCTOR'S NEW DISCOVERY
BURNS AWAY MORE FAT AND FLUID THAN IF YOU RAN 98 MILES PER WEEK!

Dear Friend,

My name is Don Schwerdtfeger. I am an M.D. and have been practicing medicine here in San Diego for 14 years.

I am reproducing my business card at the bottom of this page and I am writing to ask the people of America a personal favor.

If any of you will do this favor for me you will be helping me with my research and I will gladly pay you for your help.

Here is what it is all about: I am a psychiatrist and in addition to my other patients I have been helping people with alcohol and drug addictions. So far, I have treated more than 2500 various types of drug addicts.

But strangely enough, over the years, my practice has taught me that over eating is even more difficult to deal with than many hard-core drug addictions.

Some time ago I began to realize that any person who is overweight needs much more than just a diet. I now know that every overweight person needs an anti-fat weapon that is both safe and very powerful!

Finally, after years of research, I feel I have developed just such a weapon. What it consists of is a new diet product and a system that actually burns off body fat, hour-by-hour!

Believe it or not, my new diet system burns away more fat and fluid than if you ran 98 miles per week.

Many of the people who have tested my program have lost as much as 2 pounds of fat and fluid every day for the first week. Actually, many people have reported a 6 pound weight loss in just the first 48 hours! After the first week, many people continue to lose as much as 9 pounds every two weeks thereafter. Some people (who were very obese) have used my method to lose 50, 60 and even 100 pounds and more.

When you begin to use this program, you can expect to be able to measure the difference in your waistline in just 24 to 48 hours. You will probably lose more inches each week than even if you faithfully did hundreds of situps every day. You may very well lose as much as 3 to 5 inches off your waistline in the first month. If you are a woman you can lose as much as a full dress size in only 7 days.

Apparently, what happens is that my diet system allows your body to break down your excess body fat and flush it out of your system quite rapidly.

The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this system works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fat and fluid in the very first weekend. Just imagine how it must feel to drop up to 2 pounds a day and shrink your waistline up to 3 inches the first week.

My first concern when I developed this program was safety. Therefore, my anti-fat formula contains absolutely no drugs. It is made up entirely of 100% natural ingredients. I first tested it on myself and I now use it religiously every day. I have found that my program can even help people who have been hopelessly overweight all their lives, including those who need to lose 20 to 30 or 70 pounds or more.

My diet product does not necessarily produce a specific spot reduction, but if you are considerably overweight a significant overall loss of excess pounds could easily mean that you could lose:

- 6 inches off waistline
- 4 inches off stomach
- 4 inches off buttocks
- 3 inches off thighs
- 5 inches off hips

Remember — you don't have to wait weeks for results with my system. It starts instantly! You can actually see the results in just a few days.

The way you use this formula is simple. All you do is mix it with a glass of your favorite beverage and drink it every day the first thing in the morning.

Then, during the rest of the day, you eat a wide selection of tasty foods which are scientifically programmed to maintain a high level of fat burn-off.

That's all there is to it. This may be the most effective fat-burning method ever developed. It is not a drug. It is not a gimmick. It is a formula that I was only able to develop after years of research and, as I said before, I use it myself.

It works. And now I want to spread the word to other doctors so they can use my diet system to help all of their overweight patients. To make a long story short, what I want to do is write an article and have it published in the various medical journals as I sincerely felt this is the best way to convince other doctors of the value of my system.

But I need a lot of proof in order to get my article published and this is where you can help me. And, as I said before, I will be more than happy to repay you for your help.

So therefore, here is what I would like for you to do: if you or any member of your family is overweight I would like for you to go ahead and order a supply of my crash-loss system and test it yourself. It is sold by Millburn Products, Incorporated. As soon as you receive this fantastic diet system — start the program and see if it works for you. Frankly, this or any other diet program will not work for everyone because a very small percentage of people have un-usual problems. (By the way, naturally you should check with your doctor before you use this or any other diet plan.) However, Millburn Products is so positive about this diet system that they are making the following guarantee:

IF YOU HAVE NOT LOST UP TO 6 POUNDS IN THE FIRST 48 HOURS AND UP TO 12 POUNDS IN THE FIRST WEEK, OR, IF FOR ANY REASON YOU ARE NOT 100% SATISFIED — THEN SEND BACK THE EMPTY PRODUCT CONTAINER AND THE COMPANY WILL

"... The amazing thing, of course, is the speed at which this program works. It is rather remarkable to throw off as much as 6 pounds of fluid and fat in the very first weekend..."

ABOUT DOCTOR SCHWERDTFEGER

Don Schwerdtfeger, M.D. has been practicing medicine in San Diego for 14 years. During that time he has treated more than 2500 heroin addicts. However, he now believes that over eating is even more difficult to deal with than many hard-core drug addictions. That's why he has developed the super fast diet system he is writing about on this page. He has also just completed a new book titled "The Secret Truth About Fat People." Dr. Schwerdtfeger is available on a limited basis for interviews concerning his new book and the contents of this advertisement and he can be contacted at the address on his business card which is reproduced below.

Walt Garrison answers your questions about moist smokeless tobacco.

Q: Walt, just what is Moist Smokeless Tobacco?

A: It's just what it says: Tobacco you enjoy without lighting up and smoking.

Q: And, "a pinch is all it takes!" is that right?

A: You bet. Just take a small pinch in your thumb and forefinger, and put it between your cheek and gum. Leave it there. No need to chew. The tobacco slowly releases its great flavor giving you real satisfaction.

Q: Does "Going Smokeless" take some getting used to?

A: Sure. At first you could feel a slight irritation on the gum, and the tobacco may move around your mouth more than it should; and you might work up too much saliva. But learning is part of the fun and these things pass with practice. Two weeks should make you a "pro."

Q: Is there a difference among the three brands?

A: There sure is. Happy Days is a mild, satisfying blend of mint-flavored tobacco, while Skoyal is full-bodied with the added good taste of wintergreen. Copenhagen is a stronger, natural blend of choice tobaccos. All three are packed in convenient cans and every one is dated for freshness.

Q: What's the cost?

A: We figure an average user "dips" about 1 1/2 cans per week at a cost of about $1.00. Nice to know in these times when everything else costs so much.

Q: How many people use Happy Days, Skoyal and Copenhagen?

A: A lot more than you might think. Last year we sold over 325 million cans. New users, of all ages, from every part of the country, are joining up all the time. (Even loose-leaf chewers are mixing it in with their brands for extra flavor.)

Q: Thanks a lot, Walt. Where can I buy Happy Days, Skoyal and Copenhagen?

A: Just ask for it at your favorite tobacco counter. Or mail the coupon below and we'll send you a free can of Happy Days to get you started.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Hot-Weather Reading

Summer officially arrives this week, but most of us have noticed it sneaking up for awhile. This is reading season: the time of lazy afternoons that are just right for sitting out in the backyard. So, herewith, a selection of books with something for everyone.

For chair-gripping excitement, The Bourne Identity (by Robert Ludlum), the story of an amnesiac trying to discover his real identity, can't be beat. Fans of Helen Van Slyke are certain to enjoy her last book, No Love Lost, the chronicle of three generations of women each searching for a sense of self.

For romance with an air of mystery about it, read The Girl in a Swing (Richard Adams), the intriguing tale of a confirmed bachelor who falls in love with and marries a beautiful woman about whom he knows nothing. Lovers of historical romances will have fun with The Emerald Necklace

H. Armstrong Roberts

Content with a good book.

(Diana Brown), which glitters with glimpses of Regency London. And Lovers on the Nile (Richard Hall), the story of Sam and Florence Baker's search for the source of Africa's Nile River, is a real-life historical romance.

There's nothing like a fast-paced mystery to give you chills on a summer day, and Whip Hand (Dick Francis), about an ex-jockey who discovers some dirty dealings going on at the race track, is just that.

Children will have fun learning about one of America's best-loved artists with Calder: Mobilist/Ringmaster/Innovator (David Bourdon). And they'll love the antics of a young chimpanzee learning human sign language that are recorded in the photographs and text of Nim (Anna Michel).

There, now didn't the afternoon pass quickly?

Summer Games

While the Olympics may be grabbing the biggest headlines, another national sports program is quietly getting underway. Across the country, youngsters, aged 9 to 15, hoping to reach the finals in Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program, are preparing to compete in meets set up by their local parks and recreation departments. Approximately 2.5 million young men and women will take part in the local events; winners then go on to compete in district and state meets, and state winners are then selected (based on their scores) to be members of the regional teams. The nearly 500 regional winners each receive an expense-paid trip to the National Finals, which will be held on August 16 in Charleston, W. Va.

The events in the program, which was designed for beginning track-and-field enthusiasts, include 50-, 100- and 200-meter dashes, the 4 x 100-meter relay, the softball throw, 400-, 800- and 1,500-meter runs and the standing long jump. The program is open to all youngsters who have not been lettered in track and field or who do not belong to an organized track-and-field club, and no equipment except shorts and sneakers is necessary. For more information, contact your local Parks and Recreation Dept. or write to Jim Johnson, National Coordinator, Hershey's National Track and Field Youth Program, Dept. FW, 1524 Kanawha Boulevard, East Charleston, W. Va. 25311.

Quiet: The Baby's Sleeping!

Most parents assume that their newborns need peace and quiet in order to sleep, but two University of Florida psychologists have found that repetitious noises, even at a fairly intense level, have a calming effect on babies. "Within a fairly large range, the louder the noise, the more quieting it is on the very young child," says Dr. C. Michael Levy, who, together with Dr. Yvonne Brackbill, is now studying how children respond to the effects of noise as they grow older.

Research done by Dr. Brackbill several years ago revealed that babies exposed to "white noise" (a manufactured sound involving all the frequencies audible to humans) slept longer and spent less time crying when they were awake than babies not exposed to the noise or those exposed to intermittent sounds.

"White noise sounds like a long, steady hiss," says Levy. "But as a person grows older, the noise creates less of a calming effect. However, it seems that adults find fairly constant, monotonous and intense noises soothing also, probably because they mask more irritating sounds. For instance, the sound of waves on the beach or rain pounding on the roof hides the noise made by the leaking faucet."

Lifestyles

Sports. As more Americans take up roller-skating, the number of related injuries is rising rapidly. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that roller-skating causes an estimated 135,000 injuries yearly; roller skates have passed skateboards as a major cause of recreational injury.

Children. The Education Advocates Coalition, a group of 13 advocacy groups, has charged that hundreds of thousands of handicapped children are being denied services that the Federal Government has already mandated for them because the Bureau of Education for the Handicapped has failed to enforce the nearly one-billion-dollar Education for All Handicapped Children Act. The Bureau's failure to develop policies has frustrated efforts to educate and place handicapped children.

Health. High blood pressure affects nearly 40 million Americans, and many physicians now feel that even individuals with borderline or fluctuating hypertension should be treated. Left untreated, hypertension can result in heart disease, stroke and kidney failure.

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it—does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

This is your son, Spike, writing to wish you a happy Father's Day.

I am still living here on the desert as you can see by this post card. I have a lot of friends among the coyotes and cactus.

Snoopy and I see each other once in awhile. He has a good home with a round-headed kid.

I could never be a house dog. I like being independent.
