Vietnamese Widen Their Attacks On Thai Border

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Vietnamese forces appear to have widened their military moves along the Thai-Cambodian border, with clashes reported in at least two more areas today.

said more Vietnamese forces appear to be heading southward inside Cambodia, possibly to strike at guerrillas who have been battling them since the ouster of Cambodian Premier Pol Pot 18 months ago.

The Thai command said Vietnamese troops fought a group of anti-communist "Free Khmer" guerrillas in the rugged southwestern Cambodian province of Oddar Mean Chey, and sent them fleeing across the frontier into Thailand.

The command estimated that up to 10,000 Vietnamese troops were deployed along the border inside Cambodia to the north and south of Aranyaprathet.

The command spokesman also reported Vietnamese clashes with guerrillas in rugged southwestern Cambodian border areas, but had no immediate details of the outcome of the battles.

Western relief sources said the Vietnamese were dug in just along the border and were inside Thailand in at least one sector - the now deserted, ruined Cambodian encampment at Non Mark Moon.

The spokesman said more elements of the Thai air force had been put on alert and that jet fighter-bombers were used to support Thai ground forces in fighting along the border.

The sources said large numbers of Cambodians, uprooted by the fighting, had gathered at several points and more were emerging from the battle zone.

He said intelligence reports indicated that the Vietnamese had moved some jet fighters closer to the Thai border but that they had not been used so far in military operations.

The Thai command said 21 of its soldiers were killed and eight wounded, including three airmen who died and three others who were wounded when Vietnamese gunners shot down a helicopter and a light observation aircraft Tuesday. Some Western diplomats believe Thai casualties are higher.

The three-day old border fighting has been concentrated along a stretch of frontier north of the key Thai frontier town of Aranyaprathet, 140 miles east of Bangkok.

The command said the bodies of 31 Vietnamese soldiers have been found but that many more were believed killed.

But the Thai command

RELIEF FROM LITTER?

I saw a segment on the "Real People" tv program which featured a device for training your cat to use the toilet so you wouldn't have to worry with a litter box any more. I have wondered ever since where I could get the device and how expensive it is. A. T.

You can order the "Kitty Whiz transfer system" from Brite Ideas Co, 396 Elm Drive, Wheeling, Ill. 60090. The price will depend on whether you have a fat cat. The regular model costs $12.95; the heavy-duty model for fat cats (12 pounds or over), $14.95. Price includes postage and handling.

The "system" is said to include complete and easy-to-understand instruction book, special blend of herbs that entice your cat to the toilet and then encourage him or her to use it for the first time, a precisely calibrated flex form which sits on the porcelain rim of the toilet until the cat has been trained, and a diploma to be given to kitty when the transfer from litter box to people toilet is complete.

Child Is Killed

FARMVILLE - Driscoll Lineberger, seven, died yesterday afternoon at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the result of injuries sustained when he was struck by a car near his home on Highway 121 north of Farmville.

North Carolina Highway Patrolman D. W. Taylor said Driscoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lineberger, apparently lost control of a go-cart which spun into the path of an on-coming car. The driver, Rosetta Duncan Matthews, 34, of Fountain, made every attempt to stop, even running into a ditch to avoid hitting the child, he said. She was not charged.

The accident occurred at 2:05 p. m.

Ancient Crown Back In Poland

NEW YORK (AP) - The cape that King Sigismund Augustus Jagiello of Poland wore during his 16th century coronation has been returned to the Polish people.

In a ceremony at City Hall Tuesday, the worn but still regal gold-and-silver-threaded cape was presented to Dr. Jerzy Szablowski, director of Poland's Wawel Castle Museum.

School Board Asked Help Cut Tax Boost

By STUAJET SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer County commissioners, at a budget workshop session last night, asked the Pitt County Board of Education to help reduce the size of a possible tax rate increase by appropriating some surplus current expense money for capital outlay use.

Ed Warren, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, told school board members, "With your help, I think we can cut the rate from where it is now."

County attorney W. W. Speight said, "We're faced with a situation here as to how the current problem of levying an increase in taxes can be prevented. The way it can be done, in my opinion, is the Board of Education could offer to use part of the fund balance . . . in current expense . . . to use some of that to meet the capital outlay needs without the county having to levy taxes to meet that need. This is a way we can solve part of the problem."

Gray had recommended $571,300 be appropriated for school capital outlay needs in the coming year, and proposed the funds be divided between the county and city school districts on a per capita basis. Such a distribution would allocate $174,800 to the Greenville system and $396,500 to the county schools.

The various departments and agencies funded by the commissioners had requested $12.53 million for the coming fiscal year, an amount that would have required a $1.32 per $100 valuation tax rate to fund.

Gray explained that the county schools have an estimated, "$963,200 in the current expense fund right now," that will be surplus and suggested that the school board could, "convert this to capital outlay money," when they adopt the 1980-1981 budget.

By cutting $359,600 from the total amount for capital outlay recommended by Gray, about 3.4 cents could (Please turn to page 8)

However, before the board began its detailed study of the 1980-1981 budget several weeks ago, County Manager Reginald Gray had pared the requests down to a recommended $10.98 million which would have required a $1.10 tax rate - an increase of 15 cents over the 95 cents per $100 rate in effect for the current year.

Commissioners, during their budget workshop sessions, have cut another $644,000 from the total recommended by Gray - an amount that would drop the

The agency also ran extracts from an interview by Cambodian Foreign Minister Hun Sen who said the United States and China were attempting to create tension along the Thai-Cambodian border.

Both the U.S. and Chinese governments are pledged to defend the territorial integrity of Thailand and said they were keeping close tabs on fighting along the frontier.

The Vietnamese struck across the Thai border Monday, apparently to punish the Thai government for allowing the Free Khmers to stage raids against the Vietnamese in Cambodia from Thai territory.

But the official Vietnam News Agency said this was a "slandorous allegation" aimed at diverting public opinion from U.S. and Chinese support for "Khmer reactionaries" bent on disrupting the security of Cambodia.

Another legislative action: Loans A heavily amended bill raising legal limits on interest rates on some types of consumer loans was approved by the House and returned to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.

There was a flurry of action on remaining bills in the final days of the session. On Tuesday, the last remaining bill raising legal limits on interest rates for some types of loans underwent heavy amendments before being approved in the House.

Legislators Head Into Closing Hours

WASHINGTON, D. C. - The 1979-80 General Assembly headed toward adjournment today, with legislators hoping to wrap up the biennial session by early afternoon.

installment loans would be limited to 16 percent in amounts from $3,000 to $25,000. They would remain at the current 22 percent limit under $1,500 and the current 20 percent limit from $1,500 to $2,000, and 18 percent from $2,000 to $3,000.

The House, pressing toward a conclusion, approved a resolution Tuesday afternoon calling for a 1 p.m. adjournment. But the Senate was not scheduled to convene until noon, lessening the prospects that both chambers can meet the House target.

The committee sent the bill to the floor with an 18 percent rate on loans over $3,000, but that was reduced to 16 percent with an amendment offered by Rep. Richard Barnes, D-Winston-Salem. The amendment passed on a 67-36 vote, after being rejected in the House committee on a 10-9 vote.

House and Senate leaders debated when to schedule the adjournment Tuesday afternoon, as the House plodded through a long calendar of bills and the Senate spent hours waiting on the House to send it

It would also allow banks to charge 18 percent annually - instead of the current 15 percent - on cash advances on credit cards. That is the same rate lenders can now charge on goods and services purchased with the cards.

The committee accepted an amendment that removed another section raising rates for small finance companies.

The House voted overwhelmingly to refer a controversial automobile-repair bill back to committee - effectively killing the measure.

On Monday, House members met in a session that lasted until 12:30 a.m.

The bill, which was amended four times, would have required that a garage give a customer a written list of repairs to be made before beginning work. It also would have required that any repair orders given over the telephone be listed and signed by the garage owner or manager.

The bill had been strongly backed by the attorney general. (Please turn to page 20)

GREAT Fares Increase On July 1

Fares on City of Greenville GREAT buses will be raised to 35 cents as of Tuesday, July 1.

This is a five-cent increase which hopefully will raise an additional $7,000 to help the city meet increased fuel and personnel expenses.

The price of a discount pass for 40 rides will be raised to $12.

Elderly and handicapped persons who have GREAT Reduced Fare Identification Cards may continue to ride for 15 cents, with a book of 40 tickets costing $6. Discount passes are available from City Hall.

Transit Manager Fred Haley Jr. said ridership of GREAT has increased more than 10 percent in the past year.

Expects Completing Towers Complex By July 15

Cameron Dudley, architect for the University Towers Elderly Complex, has advised the local Housing Authority that project construction should be complete July 15.

This will be good news for some 60 elderly individuals and couples who will benefit from the low housing costs made possible through assistance from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development Section 8 Housing Assistance Payments Program. Housing Authority Executive Director J. M. Laney said. He estimated that the average cost to the elderly individual or couple will be $60 per month, and this will include rent and utilities.

Laney said, is interested in elderly persons who desire to occupy the units. Preference will be given to elderly residents of the City of Greenville. The Housing Authority will use the Social Security definition of elderly, which is 62 years of age or older. Any questions concerning eligibility or other information may be obtained by calling Miss Emerette Stevenson, 752-3118, at the Housing Authority Central Office, 1103 Broad Street.

Dear Abby

"Fake Wake" Birthday Belongs 6 Feet Under

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: By the time you receive this the party will be over, but I would like your opinion. My father-in-law will turn 50 on Sunday, and he's been slightly upset about attaining this milestone. In order to help him through this traumatic birthday, his daughter decided to give him a surprise birthday party. The theme of this party is a "wake" for her father's youth. She is going to have a regular-size coffin on display and have the place decorated like a funeral parlor. My sister-in-law keeps assuring me and my husband that several of their friends have had similar parties with this theme and they were all great parties. My husband and I find the whole idea very morbid. Are we being stuffy and narrow-minded? I'd be interested in your opinion.

REPULSED IN COLORADO SPRINGS

DEAR REPULSED: This fake wake strikes me as sick, tasteless and strained. But now that it's past, I'd be interested in knowing how the idea went over — or under.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister is being married soon in another state. My husband and I plan to attend her wedding, but here is the problem. We have three children, ages 5, 3 and 14 months old. They are very active, and to say they are a handful is a mild understatement. I want to leave them home so that I can have a little vacation and relax away from home, kids and responsibilities.

My mother has offered to stay with them in my absence, but my husband wants to take them — to show them off! He says it will be "unfair" to his relatives if we don't bring the kids.

HARRISBURG HASSLE

DEAR HASSLE: I think it will be unfair to YOU if your husband insists on taking them. Furthermore, he owes you more than he owes his relatives. Besides, his relatives will look at the kids for two minutes, and you'll have to look after them the rest of the time.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are at odds over a family problem. A friend recently asked if he could spend the weekend at our home, as he was coming to town on business. I told him I was sorry but we would not be in town. Then he asked if he could stay at our home anyway. I said, "No, I would be uneasy having anyone in our home during our absence, but perhaps you can make it another weekend when we can all be together."

My husband agreed with my response, as this man wasn't a very close friend. Where we disagreed was with regard to relatives and close friends.

My mother-in-law is coming to town, and she has asked for access to our home in our absence. My husband says

"That's fine," but, Abby, I am very uncomfortable with the idea (we both don't get along with her as it is), and I think it was presumptuous for her to ask.

I am a very private person, and I don't want anyone in my home when I am not there. If she (or anyone else) is too cheap to spend the night at a motel, I will pay for it. It would be well worth it to me.

I feel this way about my own family and close friends as well. What is your opinion?

NO ABSENTEE HOSTESS

DEAR NO: Some people cheerfully allow friends and relatives to use their homes in their absence, but since you aren't one of them, it's your right to feel as you do. So stick to your guns and don't apologize or feel guilty.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F.B. IN LONGVIEW, TEXAS: Secondhand smoke irritates me, and so does the smoker, but I find that the more I like the smoker, the less the smoke irritates me.

Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

What Now For Soviets?

What are the Russians up to now? Over the weekend the Soviets, through Radio Moscow, announced that they were pulling one troop division out of Afghanistan.

The announcement caused surprise and doubt in the western nations. It is, of course, only significant in that it indicates that further build-up of troops in Afghanistan has temporarily halted, but there are still plenty of Soviet soldiers in the country.

It has been estimated that 85,000 Russian troops have been in Afghanistan since late last year. One division is made up of 7,000 to 11,000 men. Thus it is obvious that the Soviets are nowhere near to relinquishing their hold on the neighboring country.

So why did they do it? Who knows? Perhaps it is the beginning of a full pullout of Soviet troops brought about because the Russians got a decidedly adverse world reaction to its military excursion. Then again, the Soviets have been courting western nations aligned with the United States. Perhaps the move is conciliatory to them.

In the big picture, however, this minor pullout of troops is scarcely significant, unless it is followed by a full evacuation of troops from Afghanistan. The Russian invasion of Afghanistan was a clear act of aggression. It can only be rectified by a complete withdrawal.

Despite All, Center Built

Maybe it got lost in the Jaycee "Jamscam" which shook the state organization to the core, but the North Carolina Burn Center at Chapel Hill is being built and plans are to dedicate it in September.

The Jaycees have had as a project for a number of years the raising of funds to construct the burn center. This year it broke that some of the funds had been shifted to pay dues for non-existent members.

The money to build the center has come from several sources but the Jaycees played a large part in raising it.

There is no excuse for the diversion of funds, and they should be paid back. At the same time we should not lose sight of the fact the facility is being built and it will soon serve the people of our state.

Junior Colleges

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A statewide network of public junior colleges is the predictable result of the most controversial and significant recommendation developed by the Community College and Technical Institute Planning Commission.

Political controversy and public debate is guaranteed before such a notion is approved by the General Assembly in the 1981 session.

From the outset, educators and political leaders have vowed that it is not the purpose of the community colleges to become public junior colleges in which students take the first two years of college work and transfer to institutions of higher learning as juniors.

To avoid that, the General Assembly has kept tight reins on authorizing college transfer programs, and currently only 23 of the system's 58 campuses offer junior college work.

Opposition comes from private junior and senior colleges in strong measure, and as a result the guidelines have been set up to restrict college work whenever other institutions in the community already offer these programs.

Mission
Furthermore, it has always been "the mission" of the community college system to concentrate heavily, if not totally, on training people for jobs; not for higher education.

And given the recent track record for educational leaders to display upward mobility (all 16 colleges in the university system are "universities"; the rush to change the name technical institute to technical college when legislation authorized that last year) there are industrial leaders and government officials alike who fear that status-seeking community college officials and Tar Heel communities alike will be anxious to become college transfer schools.

The study commission chaired by former Gov. Terry Sanford has set up two major changes which work to accomplish the revision. First, every technical institute would be authorized to change the name to "community college," and the state organization would be the Department of Community Colleges. The commission complained that there is clumsiness, public confusion, and inconvenience in having some facilities called community colleges and others called technical institutes and others called technical colleges when differences are slight in the programs.

Then, the Sanford Commission suggests, every institution would be authorized to offer two years of college transfer work upon approval by the State Board of Community Colleges and without involvement of the General Assembly.

Safeguards
Sanford says there must be safeguards to prevent abuse of this progression, and that the state board should establish guidelines. Funding formulas and the existence of some communities which strongly favor a purely technical and vocational program over the junior college program will keep all 58 schools from rushing to college-level programs, he believes.

LACK-OF-PROGRESS REPORT!

The Glass-Jar Brigade

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has ruled that life forms created in the laboratory by genetic engineering may be patented like any other invention. It was a great victory for those who are trying to develop new micro-organisms for the marketplace.

The case that decided it concerned General Electric, which had asked for a patent on a bug it had developed to eat oil spills.

As soon as the decision was handed down, the offices of patent attorneys in Washington were jammed with genetic engineers trying to protect their creations.

I dropped in on one of the larger law firms. The waiting room was filled with people all holding glass jars on their laps.

"What do you have in the bottle?" I asked one man.

"It's a bacterium that eats condominiums," he said proudly. "It starts in the basement and just keeps eating away until the building collapses. Then it feeds on the rubble until there is nothing left."

He smiled and whispered to me, "It's a microbe that eats the bacteria which feed on oil spills."

"What a breakthrough!" I exclaimed. "How did you ever think of it?"

"I didn't." The Westinghouse people asked me to develop it. They're not going to let GE become No. 1 in the genetic engineering business."

A scientist in the next chair was studying a glass slide under a microscope and taking notes. He was very annoyed when I disturbed him.

"What do you have on the slide?" I asked.

"You sure you want to know?"

I said I was sure.

"Take off your shirt," he said.

I did and handed it to him.

He took an eye dropper and squeezed it onto the collar. I watched in amazement as the collar turned pure white.

"Does it eat dirt?" I asked.

"Only on shirt collars. You won't ever have to use detergent again to stop ring-around-the-collar."

"When did you develop it?"

"Several years ago, but I wasn't about to reveal the results until I could patent it."

The last person I talked to was a man wearing a white mask, rubber gloves and rubber boots.

"And pray tell, sir, what do you have in your jar?"

"I'm not sure," he said. "It can either cure arthritis or wipe out the human race."

"It sounds like it has great possibilities."

"It certainly does. That's why I want to license it before it gets in the public domain."

"I didn't start out to invent it. I was working on bacteria that would feed on manhole covers and something went wrong when I spliced a gene. I'm sure someone will have a use for it. But I want to be protected because you never know when another scientist will come up with the same thing."

The man sitting next to him was talking to his jar.

"Now behave yourself or I won't give you any sugared water when we get home."

I couldn't see anything in the bottle, but I assumed a microbe was there.

"What are you planning to patent?" I asked.

Seek Image On Tax Cuts

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Last Thursday evening as the Senate dined on, four Republican senators plotted a new strategy to preempt President Carter's imminent turnaround on tax reduction and inform the nation that Republicans no longer prescribe castor oil for economic sickness.

The hour-long session in a Capitol hideaway reached this conclusion: From now on, Republicans will offer a permanent tax-cut amendment to each and every money bill. Although chances of passage in the Democratic-controlled Senate are zero, the move will reiterate Republican primacy as the party of tax reduction.

Ironically, the nay-saying old doctors of the GOP are simultaneously complaining about too much tax-cut elixir dispensed by Ronald Reagan and yearning for old-fashioned Republican castor oil, heavy on budget cuts. Popular though this prescription is with economists and bankers, Republican senators and House members — and presumably Reagan, too — know it as a prescription for defeat.

That is why Republican tax-cutters in Capitol Hill are worried by reports Carter will unveil a tax cut, effective Jan. 1, that could outflank them (as we forecast in mid-May). These Republicans have been asking themselves how to convince the country that Republicans have the tax-cut copyright while Democrats are plagiarists.

That was pondered Thursday evening in the Capitol hideaway by Sen. William Roth of Delaware, the lesser known and less flamboyant co-author of the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill. Also present were two ardent tax-cutters, Sen. James McClure of Idaho and William Armstrong of Colorado, plus an important ally: Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, senior Republican on the Senate Finance Committee. They decided to offer a tax-cutting amendment to every money-related bill in the Senate (a procedure not permitted under more restrictive House rules). Five bills are early candidates: the debt ceiling, airport trust funds and three minor tax bills.

Tentatively, the amendment will cut personal income taxes in all brackets by 10 percent (the first-year proposal of the three-year Kemp-Roth), will index future tax rates to cover inflation, and will provide accelerated tax depreciation for business. Like Carter's expected proposal, the cuts would take effect Jan. 1. Roth & Co. prefer an immediate slash in tax withholding, but seem foreclosed by rigidities of the congressional budget process.

The Roth amendment's price tag for the first 12 months is $21 billion, about what the president is considering. But whereas Carter will likely provide only a one-year tax credit, Roth would change the tax code permanently with reduced rates and indexing.

If that nuance is too subtle for voters to catch, at least Republicans can celebrate with profit the phalanx of Democratic "nays" to tax reduction on vote after vote after vote, beginning immediately. Attaching a hopeless congressional rider to repeated bills for propaganda purposes is a hoary Capitol Hill tactic dating back at least to the Wilentz Proviso against extension of slavery, which never passed but popularized the issue.

Roth's ploy also will interfere with efforts by self-styled traditionalist Republicans to mute Reagan's tax trumpet. The taste of castor oil was hinted on NBC's "Meet the Press" June 15 when ex-Treasury Secretary George Shultz, now a Reagan economic adviser, subtly stressed spending cuts and de-emphasized tax cuts.

To the editor:

A sincere thank you to all members of the Pitt County Board of Health. Recently a group of citizens complained about the Family Planning Services offered by the Health Department. The Board of Health conducted a review of all Family Planning Services and found the following: That the Pitt County Health Department's Family Planning and Sex Education programs are intended to address the serious problem of teenage pregnancies in our area. The programs are conducted by competent, highly trained professional people.

That all Health Department programs are conducted within the laws, rules and regulations promulgated by both federal and state governments.

Since many Pitt Counties agree that parents are the logical providers of sex education, the Health Department will "increase emphasis on making available to all parents seeking assistance in teaching their children health education and all available resources of the Family Planning Program of the Health Department." The department will continue to offer education to young people who seek assistance at the Health Department.

An admirable compromise, and one that serious parents should be familiar with and make use of.

Split Yellow Pages Attacked

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Bell System campaign to split the yellow pages into separate editions for consumers and businesses in major cities has brought little criticism from the buying public.

But acceptance by businessmen who advertise in the yellow pages is a different matter.

"We end up with the worst of both worlds," Leonard Fink, president of Phone Depots Inc., of New York City, said recently. "It will obviously double our expenses without adding exposure."

Fink belongs to ADABUSE, a nickname for the Businessmen's Coalition Against Yellow Pages Advertising. The coalition, formed by small businessmen in New York City, fought split-directories before the New York Public Service Commission last year. The New York Telephone Co. won that battle.

The Bell System — the common name for the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., or AT&T — says it didn't expect to change a basic product like the yellow pages and please everybody.

"But it's a product change that's user-driven; the consumer is benefiting," maintains Earl Mix, AT&T's chief of directory marketing.

"Research has shown that as the yellow pages become bigger and more bulky, they are used less frequently by consumers."

Mix contends that "advertisers benefit from being able to target segments of the population."

And he notes, "The market hasn't changed for a company that's aiming its product at a certain segment, so the price hasn't changed for being in one book."

Among the other benefits, Mix adds, "there's a price savings or the phone company in distribution costs, paper and so on."

Some businessmen, however, say there's more than savings at stake for Ma Bell; there's profit.

Yellow-page advertising now accounts for about 4 percent of Bell's annual revenues, or $1.8 billion last year. In cities with split directories, businesses that serve both consumers and other companies must pay two charges to place ads in both books, although discounts are offered in some areas.

"We went along with it only because we had no choice," says Mary Busch, a vice president of the Emery Advertising Corp. in Baltimore.

"You have to wonder if the yellow pages will remain as viable as they have been," she said. "I think this is just going to lead to a lot of confusion."

In cities where directories are split, consumers can request the business yellow pages, which list products and services used at the wholesale level.

In general, Bell says it has found consumers don't want advertising for ball bearings, and businesses don't need a book loaded with advertisements for drug stores or beauty shops.

Bell first began splitting yellow pages in 1972 in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Omaha slowly followed.

Baltimore will make the switch this month, and within a year, residents of Minneapolis-St. Paul, Los Angeles, Denver, Indianapolis and Boston will receive two-volume directories.

Among other yellow-page changes being explored by Bell are coupons, red ink to highlight some listings and four-color ads. In the white pages, the system is considering "blue pages" for local, state and federal government listings.

Strength For Today

TRUE SUCCESS

Some time ago in this town there lived a businessman who often lamented to his family that he was unable to make any money because of the large amount of time he spent in civic and church projects. But on the day of his death, the public and parochial schools closed and the church in which he used to worship was crowded to the doors with people of high and low degree who spontaneously came together for a memorial service dedicated to him.

What is success, anyhow?

If you or I had been in Jerusalem the day after they laid Jesus's crucified body in the sepulcher, we would have shaken our heads and said, "How tragic that the life of such a promising young man should end in such failure!"

Success is one thing when viewed from the material standpoint, but something quite different when viewed from the spiritual standpoint. Jesus said, "Lay not up for yourself treasures on earth... but lay up for yourself treasures in heaven..." — Elisha Douglass

Severe Penalties For Highway Contractors

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Federal judges have given four contractors stern lectures and some the severest penalties handed down so far in the 10-month-old investigation of corruption in the Tennessee paving business.

Judge John Nixon, passing his first sentence since he was appointed to U.S. District Court, on Tuesday suspended all but 30 days of the year and one day sentence for M.G. West of Columbia and fined his M.G. West Construction Co. $200,000.

"You have committed this crime out of greed," Nixon told West. "You have a record of conviction of criminal activity that will last beyond a lifetime and that will last as long as there is a courthouse."

West was charged May 23 with rigging bids on a state road job in Lawrence County on a section of Railroad Pike near Barnesville.

Nixon ordered West to serve the 30 days in a halfway house and spend 384 days in public service work.

The $200,000 fine was the maximum under a plea-bargaining agreement between the company and federal prosecutors.

Gerald Tillett and Joe Tillett, officials of Tillett Brothers Construction Co., Shelbyville, attended the court hearing. They are to be sentenced Aug. 1 before Judge L. Clure Morton of U.S. District Court.

West became the second paving company official to receive a prison sentence in Tennessee's bid-rigging scandal, turned up by a federal grand jury which has been investigating highway

But despite the objections and controversy sure to come, Sanford thinks this change is essential to "opening the door to education beyond the high school to all North Carolinians."

"Will they all become junior colleges? That's the last thing in the world we want to see happen," says Sanford.

"But on the other hand, this is the only opportunity many young people will ever have to higher education."

Besides, Sanford adds, those schools which do offer college transfer work first provide the full range of technical and vocational courses, and the major portion of students are enrolled in those courses. College transfer students make up only three percent of the enrollment.

Sam Davis Bell, an official of Inter-State Paving Co., chose to serve 30 days at Eglin Prison Camp in Florida. Four other company officials were sentenced to public service work, an option also given Bell by Judge Thomas Wiseman of U.S. District Court.

Inter-State agreed last week to repay the state $1 million as a result of negotiations with Attorney General William Leech, who said part of the reimbursement agreement was to make the company eligible to bid on state construction contracts.

Morton on Tuesday sentenced William Carter, chairman of CFW Construction Co., Fayetteville, and Brown Brothers Construction Co., Chattanooga, to a year and a day in prison and fined him $100,000. Morton suspended all but five months of the term.

Also sentenced to terms of a year and a day were Bobby Rose, president of Brown Brothers, and Brad Miller, former president of Tennessee Paving Co. in Murfreesboro and former president of the Tennessee Road Builders Association.

Rose was ordered to serve three months and pay $50,000 and Miller was ordered to spend five months in prison and pay $10,000.

Brown Brothers Construction Co. and Tennessee Paving Co. were fined $100,000 each.

His "modification" of Kemp-Roth would have been even greater had he been pressed by his questioners.

Shultz reflected incessant pressure on Reagan to soften Kemp-Roth, or at least stretch it out. Having taken the innovative step of urging tax reduction for long-term economic growth during raging inflation and relatively low unemployment, Reagan is now being urged to throttle back even as the recession deepens. Just when Jimmy Carter reverses his field on tax reduction, Reagan is asked to move toward the president's lower level, which would blur any distinction between them.

That makes no sense to those senators who cooked up their tax-cut strategy Thursday night. Nor does it seem reasonable to rank-and-file House Republicans, who a month ago defied party leaders and followed the urgings of Rep. Jack Kemp to vote against a budget built on increased taxes.

Reagan himself agrees.

Expect Draft Registration Funding

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearing the end of a long and heated battle over peacetime draft registration, Congress is preparing to give President Carter enough money to sign up an estimated 4 million young men in the weeks ahead.

The House was expected to give final congressional approval today to a measure appropriating $13.3 million to fund the Selective Service System out of "deep standby" and conduct registration for the first time since 1975.

Even opponents conceded it would be passed and sent to the White House for Carter's signature. The only remaining step then would be for Carter to issue an executive order directing men born in 1960 and 1961 to register, and telling them when to report, perhaps as early as late July.

Selective Service officials have said they will start the program four to five weeks after the money is received. Young men will be required to go to a local post office to sign a registration form. The program will be spread out over two weeks, with young men born in 1960 registering the first week and teen-agers born in 1961 registering the second week.

Failure to register is a felony carrying a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. While the president has authority to order registration, he would have to win approval from Congress to bring back an actual draft.

Women are not required to register. Despite Carter's initial request to include women in the program, Congress made it clear it would not go along with that and the administration did

Again Requests VEPCO Hearing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Tuesday he has renewed his request for a federal hearing on management practices used by Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Hunt and members of the state Utilities Commission's Public Staff have contended that poor business practices by Vepco have resulted in high rates for the utility's customers in northeastern North Carolina.

The governor said he had written the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission renewing a request for a hearing, citing testimony by Vepco employees at a West Virginia plant that had been struck because of alleged poor working conditions as new evidence that should be considered.

Vepco officials have said a hearing is not necessary as it would duplicate previous sessions held by the federal commission.

not push the matter. The American Civil Liberties Union has promised to file suit challenging the constitutionality of an all-male program.

Registration opponents vowed to conduct nation-wide demonstrations that could tie up the post offices during the program, and also to protest at the Republican and Democratic national conventions this summer.

Opponents, led by the Committee Against Registration and the Draft, said they would distribute gummed labels to attach to registration forms, saying, "I am registering under protest."

They also are organizing a campaign to "register against the draft" — inviting Americans to print the words "I am registering against the draft" on a post card and to send it to the organization in Washington.

Carter and his allies argued registration would save 90 to 100 days in mobilizing recruits in an emergency.

But critics of the plan noted that a Selective Service report said registration would save only seven days. Selective Service officials disavowed the report's conclusions after Carter endorsed registration.

The House vote, coming on the heels of Senate approval June 12, marks the end of a chain of events that began Jan. 23 when Carter told a joint session of Congress the United States must renew registration as a signal to the Soviet Union of U.S. resolve in the aftermath of the Russian occupation of Afghanistan.

It was a complete turn-about for the president, who previously had helped kill congressional proposals to bring back draft registration. Announcing his change of heart, Carter said "registration for the draft is needed to increase our preparedness and is a further demonstration of our resolve as a nation." Registration critics said the program was an empty gesture that would do nothing to improve military readiness.

The registration measure initially was approved by the House April 22, but required approval a second time because of a minor Senate amendment in the House version — making the amount of the Senate bill $10,000 less than the House bill.

PINT-SIZE POOL — Zerrick Columbe gets a little help from his grandmother, Susan Clark, as he tries to beat the summer heat in Dayton, Ohio, by sitting in a kitchen pan full of cool water. The 10-month-old would splash the water out, making his grandmother have to periodically refill the pan. She noted he was getting real hot crawling around and the pan was the biggest thing to put him in. Luckily it was a perfect fit. (AP Laserphoto)

A Butterfly Versus Big Mall Project

GUILDERLAND, N.Y. (AP) — It seems almost like a rerun of the snail darter affair. On one side: a pale blue, two-inch butterfly. On the other: an $85 million super-shopping mall.

The would-be developers say, however, that they have the solution: a butterfly corral in the parking lot, behind an eight-foot chain link fence, with an observation tower for nature-lovers.

Opponents of the proposed Crossgates Mall say the Pine Bush site of the project is one of the last remaining homes for the Karner Blue butterfly. The 4,000 acres of stark sand dunes and pitch pines also provide a habitat for such scarce species of life as the prairie warbler, the hognose snake, the woodland jumping mouse, the spadefoot toad and the pine vole.

The Pine Bush is a seemingly misplaced piece of Cape Cod seashore, located 175 miles inland in upstate New York.

Maintenance of its peculiar ecology requires a natural or set fire every five to ten years. The fire prevents intrusion of alien hardwood trees and grasses.

A state hearing on the project is nearing the start of its fifth month and the Karner Blue butterfly is just one of the issues. Organized opposition to the project dates back nearly two years, and the opponents admit that they hope to drive away the developer by causing continuing, expensive delays.

The $130 million Tellico Dam project of the Tennessee Valley Authority was delayed for almost three years by a battle over the snail darter, a rare, three-inch fish protected by the Endangered Species Act. The authority ultimately transplanted the snail darters to another area and the floodgates were finally closed last November.

The Pine Bush was formed more than 10,000 years ago as water began to drain from glacial Lake Albany, once part of the last major ice sheet that covered all of eastern New York and New England north of New York City. The waters left a delta of sand, and over the years winds whipped the land into dunes.

Until the postwar construction boom of the 1950s, the Pine Bush area had been considered a useless barrier to development. In Revolutionary days, the Pine Bush constituted something of a "no-man's land," ruled over by highwaymen and renegade Indians who plundered passing stagecoaches on the King's Highway between Albany and Schenectady. Escaped slaves, convicts and other refugees from society also made the nearly inaccessible pine barren their home.

Today, the Pine Bush is a prime piece of real estate, located between affluent suburbs. No longer isolated, it is surrounded by urban sprawl and cut into quarters by highways.

Preservationists, joined by neighborhood groups, say the time has come to try to save some part of the Pine Bush.

"We do not have the right to pave over every piece of vacant land," said Don Ritter, president of the Pine Bush Historic Preservation Project.

"We welcome the environmental hearings," said Bruce Kenan, managing partner of the Pyramid Crossgates Co., a Syracuse-based group of shopping mall companies in the northeast. "We don't want ourselves or anybody else spoiling our environment."

Kenan said his company has done its homework on environmental concerns. Crossgates has proposed building a corral around a stand of lupine — the favorite habitat of the Karner Blue — on the mall site to keep people away.

"The rest of the questions are engineering problems," Kenan said.

Crossgates also has offered to purchase a 65-acre plot of undeveloped Pine Bush land and donate it to the City of Albany, "should the project be implemented."

 be cut from the prospective tax rate.
 The remaining $211,700, divided between the school systems, would leave Greenville about $64,800 for capital projects and give $146,800 in new money to the county system.
 Gray said that if the county schools would use about $650,000 in surplus money, they would ultimately have $796,800 for capital outlay projects.

Commissioner Bruce Strickland, after school board members indicated that they would consider the proposal, said, "This will help the people of Pitt County. That's what we're concerned with."
 Commissioner Charles Gasking noted that, "All the money we're talking about belongs to Pitt County. We have to do the best we can with the people's money," while commissioner Burney Tucker suggested that if the Board of Education were to reject the proposition, "It will mean a larger tax rate for all the people."
 The Board of Commissioners has no control over the surplus school funds. That money can only be appropriated by the Board of Education.

In another matter, Warren asked the school board to consider what measures could be taken to bring the working hours of all employees in the county office building in line after county offices move to the new facility next month.

County employees now work a 40-hour week — from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, with an hour lunch break.
 County School Superintendent Ott Alford said school board employees are now on a 37½ hour work week — 8:30 to 4:30 during the school term and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. during the summer months, with a 30 minute lunch period.

Commissioners, who hope to adopt the 1980-1981 budget by Friday, have scheduled another budget meeting for Thursday afternoon.

Five Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $4,200 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 10:10 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greene and Third Streets involving vehicles driven by Julius Ray Carr of 616B Clark St. and Samuel McCoy Baugham of 1601 East First St.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $300 to the Carr truck and $1,000 to the Baugham auto.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in an 8:57 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenville Boulevard.

The drivers involved were identified as George Baker Jr. of Route 1, Farmville and James Earl Andrews of Route 8, Greenville.

A truck driven by Roger Glenn Griffin of Route 76, Kinston and a car operated by Willie Walter Perkins of 1400A Fleming St. collided about 9:55 a.m. on Chestnut Street, 100 feet North of the 14th Street intersection, causing $200 damage to the truck and $800 damage to the auto, officers reported.

A 4:45 p.m. collision on Fifth Street, 60 feet West of the Reade Street intersection involved cars driven by Bobby Lee Norman of 103 Ford St. and Henry Thomas Holloman of Farmville.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the Norman car and $50 to the Holloman auto.

Cars driven by Fred Allen Elks of High Point and Jane Cranford Schwarz of 1748 Beaumont Dr. collided about 5:25 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 300 feet East of the Evans Street intersection.

Investigators estimated damage at $300 to the Elks car and $50 to the Schwarz vehicle.

thing at all.

"What is real significant is that it will help some soybeans planted behind small grain," he continued. "Of course it will be too late for some of them." Uzzell reported that the balance of the peanut and soybean crops look good.

At 8 a.m. today, Greenville Utilities' water plant recorded .07 inches of rain. The level of the Tar River stood at 3.9 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge. Tuesday's high and low temperatures were 82 and 63 degrees. Today at 8 a.m. the temperature was 69 degrees.

"Overall, this rain should help out a great deal as far as continuing growth. It will help extend the cucumbers' productive season and will be good for ornamentals, especially dogwoods," explained the agent. Dogwoods are shallow-rooted and require more moisture than other trees and shrubs. "Many people also plant them in hot, direct sun," he said.

According to Uzzell, tobacco harvesting will begin in Pitt County in around ten days. "This is about normal for the area," he commented.

"When temperatures are as hot as they have been lately we need about one inch of precipitation per week," Uzzell added.

Siamese Twins Said Stronger

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman says the Siamese twin daughters born to a Piqua couple last week are growing stronger and showing improvement in the intensive care unit of Children's Medical Center.

Valerie and Natalie Wackler, daughters of Randy and Rebecca Wackler, were born six weeks prematurely June 24 at Piqua Memorial Hospital. Their condition is reported to be critical, but stable. They are joined at the base of the spine and face away from each other.

The babies share a rectum and had no anal opening at birth. Surgery was performed Tuesday to open a passage so that they could eliminate normally when fed formula. So far, they have been fed intravenously.

Parade Entries Has Deadline

BELHAVEN — June 30 is the latest date that entries for the Belhaven Fourth of July parade will be considered for judging.

The Belhaven Chamber of Commerce urges all individuals and groups who plan to be in the parade to submit entry notification at the earliest possible date.

Happy Reagan To Stress Tax Cut Plans

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Smiling broadly from under his white cowboy hat, Ronald Reagan enthusiastically recounted the story of the bandits who hid out in the late 1800s near what is now his Santa Ynez Mountains ranch.

Refugio Pass, just below the ranch, was "kind of controlled by bandits" in those days until one celebrated murder case forced lawmen to act, Reagan said, sounding for all the world like he was following the script of one of his Western movies of four decades ago.

Later, as Reagan mounted one of his favorite horses at the behest of television camera crews, the Republican presidential hopeful reminisced about "The Last Outpost," his favorite among the numerous Westerns he starred in during his Hollywood acting days.

Reagan planned a return to political matters today with a news conference at which he intended once again to emphasize his support for the Kemp-Roth tax cut plan, starting with a 10 percent across-the-board reduction for individuals in 1981. That $22 billion slash would be accompanied by faster depreciation writeoffs for business, amounting to an additional $5 billion to $10 billion.

Overall, the proposal, drafted by Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., would cut taxes by 30 percent over three years, though Reagan at times has said he might spread the cutbacks over as much as five years.

The Washington Post reported today that Reagan's anticipated specific call for a 10 percent cut on Jan. 1 was a "shift" from Kemp-Roth, and "is expected to be interpreted by some as a retreat..."

But Reagan's chief of staff, Ed Meese, said it was "absolutely untrue" that Reagan was retreating from the overall Kemp-Roth plan, which in fact calls for a 10 percent cut the first year and has long drawn Reagan's support.

"This is just the first installment," Meese said of Reagan's intent to stress the need for a 10 percent cut next year. "This is in no way a change in Gov. Reagan's economic policy."

The event Tuesday was billed as a day at the ranch with the Reagans, one of the rare occasions when Reagan has allowed reporters and photographers to visit his secluded 688-acre spread in the mountains 25 miles northwest of Santa Barbara.

Ground rules for the two-hour press visit allowed no political questions of any kind, and reporters who attempted to raise politics were quickly interrupted by Reagan aides. Consequently, conversation was limited to horses, cattle, tales of home repairs and the rich folklore of the coastal mountains.

Reagan recited the names of each owner of his ranch, all the way back to the original Spanish land grant. He recounted tales of home repairs in his 90-year-old two bedroom adobe ranch home.

"Maybe this will stop some of the stories about our elaborate spread," the 69-year-old presidential candidate said.

In fact, the ranch house is modest. But it is furnished with mementos of decades of world travel, and the spread around it — more than a full square mile overlooking the Pacific Ocean — is anything but modest.

Wearing faded blue jeans and a casual Western shirt, Reagan leaned against a fence post as he talked about clearing brush for riding trails, painting and cleaning the adobe and building fences for the corral where he keeps five horses, including some now used by Secret Service agents for security patrols.

Then, hand in hand with his wife Nancy, Reagan strolled to "Lake Lucky," a quarter-acre fishing pond nearby where their canoe

"Trueluv" sat, as nearly 100 reporters and photographers tumbled over each other for color shots and a few quotes.

"We usually open the day with riding," Reagan said of his ranch routine. "Then we set out the day's chores, which often is cutting firewood for winter."

"With the schedule we have now, it's not a working ranch," he said. "So we run later in the year, hopefully grazing cattle. We buy them for a profit."

Suburban Community Sees Uncertain Future

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer
Kettering, Ohio, is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year, but the merry-making is being mixed with some soul-searching about where this suburban community of 70,000 is headed.

While this suburb of Dayton remains relatively affluent, Kettering's citizens are using this anniversary year as an opportunity to assess an uncertain future — uncertainties now shared by some of America's suburbs that grew rapidly and sometimes recklessly after World War II.

"We have everything coming down on us," said Mayor Charles F. Horn in a recent interview. "Urban sprawl, land use, the environment, and especially energy."

Horn typifies a growing energy consciousness in some suburbs where there is fear their way of life is slowly being undone.

"We want to awaken our citizens that life is going to change."

It already has.

Twenty-five years ago, Kettering, a township of 20,000, incorporated into a city. And the suburban rush was on. Young couples from Dayton quickly swelled Kettering's population, forcing rapid housing development.

The city never developed a real "downtown." There are shopping centers, requiring car trips.

"The average guy on the streets thinks things like gas guzzlers and one-acre lots will go on forever, and the environment is tough enough to take it," said Horn.

Kettering's close-in relationship to Dayton is now a mixed blessing. In its formative years, 40 percent or more held jobs in and commuted to Dayton.

But Dayton's population has nosedived in the past two decades — from 350,000 to approximately 200,000. The city has lost jobs, as firms like NCR Corp. have cut back operations. Now the effects are spilling into Kettering.

In the past three or so years, Kettering has begun to lose population, said Horn. As in other "inner ring" suburbs that are beginning to show their age, people are starting to move out to more distant suburbs, and even out of metropolitan areas entirely.

Horn said he believes the future for communities like Kettering lies in building more concentrated, energy-efficient housing, and more public transportation. To that end, a countywide levy was recently passed to boost public transit.

Horn also wants to see privately developed housing and commercial or recreational facilities built near the city government center.

Custer's Defeat

It was on this day in 1876 that an army of Sioux Indians defeated a column of the Seventh Cavalry Regiment commanded by Colonel George Armstrong Custer. Custer's mission was to help round up Indians living in the Montana Territory and bring them onto reservations. In a valley along the Little Bighorn River, Custer found an Indian village. Thinking it contained only a small band of Indians, he divided his regiment into three columns and attacked. The village actually held thousands of warriors — the largest Indian army ever assembled in the United States. Two of the cavalry columns held out until reinforcements came. Custer's column was completely wiped out.

Chemical Warfare Concern Growing

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Concern about reported Soviet use of chemical agents in battle appears to be pushing some key Carter administration officials toward a conclusion that the United States should produce new nerve gas weapons.

"If the Russians continue to go the way they are going in chemical warfare, the United States will have to say 'Enough, enough,' and go into production of binary weapons," said one administration official.

In a separate interview, a senior Pentagon official said,

"There is no doubt we should start building a binary plant." He cited repeated reports that the Russians have used chemicals in Afghanistan.

Binary munitions consist of two chemical agents that experts say are harmless when kept separate. They become lethal when mixed after a bomb containing them is dropped or a shell or rocket warhead is fired.

The senior Pentagon official acknowledged that any proposal to Congress for authority and money to produce binary nerve gas weapons "is going to be a tough and emotional issue because of an attitude of horror toward chemical warfare."

Both the Pentagon source and the administration official asked to remain anonymous.

The United States long ago renounced first use of lethal or incapacitating chemical weapons and in 1969 President Richard M. Nixon renounced any U.S. resort to germ warfare.

Avowedly to deter any Soviet impulse to launch chemical warfare, the United States has maintained a stock of Veteque bombs containing the nerve gas GD. These bombs were manufactured more than 10 years ago and are becoming obsolete.

In the mid-1970s, Congress twice refused the Army permission to produce binary weapons. The Defense Department rejected an Army bid to move toward production, but research on such weapons was allowed to continue.

The Carter administration has asked Congress for money this year to design binary production plants, but has stopped short of asking for actual production.

Army officials said they already have a 155-millimeter artillery round which could be filled with binary chemicals. Researchers are working on a binary warhead for a multi-rocket launcher.

Several months ago, Dr. William Perry, the Pentagon's research chief, handed down word that he wanted funds earmarked to complete development of the Bigeye, a binary bomb that would use the nerve agent VX. Specialists said VX is more persistent than some other forms of nerve agent and thus poisons an area longer.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said there was

"good evidence that the Soviets have used chemical agents in Afghanistan, at least of an incapacitating kind."

However, he spoke with less certainty about allegations the Russians had fired lethal nerve gas at Afghan rebels, saying that such reports "bear some more investigation."

So far, U.S. officials have reported no conclusive evidence of Soviet nerve gas attacks, although the belief persists in the Pentagon and elsewhere that such weapons have been used by the Russians.

Auto Sales For Month Sharply Below 1979

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Domestic car sales are stuck in idle.

Reports by the five U.S. producers Tuesday said their dealers sold 187,479 cars in mid-June compared with 253,694 in the same period of 1979.

That represents a 26 percent decline and a 45 percent drop from mid-June sales in the 1978 boom. The mid-month is a reporting period automakers use for the second 10 days of any month.

Like other recent sales periods, the daily sales rate of 20,831 was the lowest for the period since 1961, when it was 19,553.

Analysts estimated the annual selling rate at 5.8 million cars — what the year's sales would be if the period were characteristic of a typical year. Assuming imports took their recent 28 percent share of the market, that would mean an annual rate of 8.0 million cars for the industry compared with 7.3 million in May and actual sales of 10.6 million last year.

"If there's a tax cut announced in October, the 1981 models could be received very well," said one industry analyst who preferred anonymity. "But a recession of this severity usually means six down quarters for the auto industry, and we're only in our third — some say our second."

Chrysler Corp. sold 16,489 cars, 38 percent below the mid-June pace of 26,555 last year. That was only 8.8 percent of the market for domestic makes compared with Chrysler's 9.7 percent for 1980 so far.

Analysts said Chrysler

Changes Mind A Second Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration, changing its mind a second time, is proposing that bread labeled as low calorie have 33 percent fewer calories than regular bread.

FDA regulations that take effect July 1 will require other foods labeled low calorie to have 33 percent fewer calories. That requirement initially extended to low-calorie bread, too, but the FDA revised it to only 25 percent because the agency thought it would be difficult to make bread with 33 percent fewer calories. Now, FDA spokesman Wayne Pines said Tuesday, the FDA is going back to its initial position and proposing that bread meet the 33 percent requirement effective July 1, 1981.

sales were again dragged down by buyer concern over the company's future during the well-publicized effort to get the lenders behind the government-sponsored rescue effort.

Chrysler received a check for almost $500 million Tuesday in the first draw of government-guaranteed loans.

General Motors Corp. sales fell 24 percent from 154,871 to 117,014; Ford Motor Co. was off 30 percent from 62,900 to 44,256; American Motors Corp. sales rose 5 percent from 4,191 to an estimated 4,400 and Volkswagen of America sales rose 2.8 percent from 5,177 to 5,300. The estimate is necessary for AMC because it reports sales only once a month.

GM and VW were the only companies not offering buyer rebates during the period.

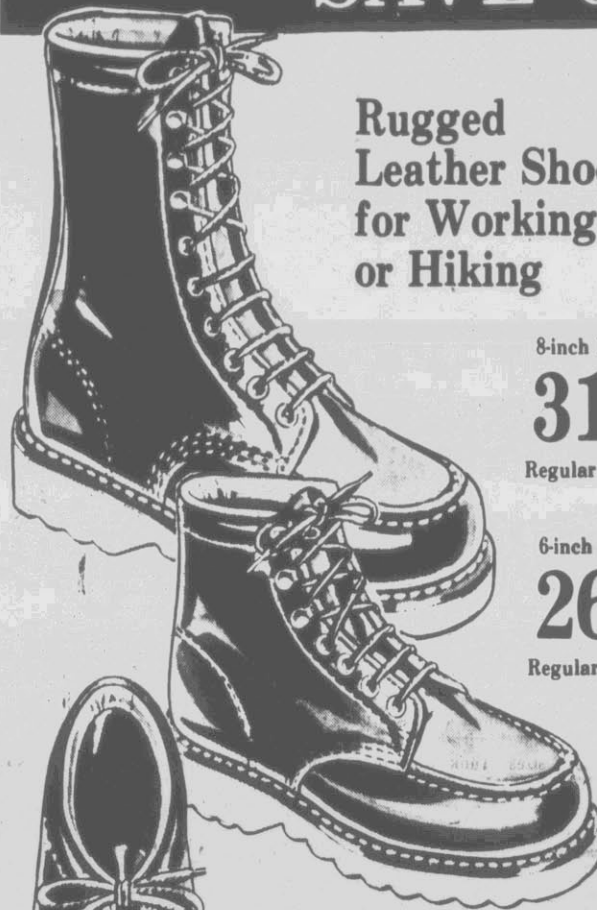

For the year so far, the domestic industry is down 23 percent, with sales of 3,216,677 cars compared with 4,123,321 in the 1979 period. GM is off 18 percent, 2,000,339 cars against 2,426,779; Ford is down 32 percent, 749,018 versus 1,079,398; Chrysler is down 34 percent, 311,708 compared with 469,337; AMC is up 9.8 percent, 75,586 against 68,345; and VW is up 11 percent with sales of 88,936 against 79,462.

Ready Accept Jail Over Secret Ballot

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Professor James Dinnan says he'd rather go to prison than divulge his secret vote on a faculty promotion committee involved in a sex discrimination suit. Next week, he goes to prison.

Dinnan, a specialist in adult education at the University of Georgia, refused to tell U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens how he voted when Maija Blaueberg's tenure and promotion request came before the panel. Owens cited him for criminal contempt of court and sentenced him to 90 days in a federal penitentiary, beginning July 3.

"I am going to surrender in my gown and my hood, because they're not locking me up, they're locking up the university," Dinnan said in a telephone interview Tuesday.

He contends he was acting as the university's agent and that the court has no right to seek the result of secret votes or to intervene in a university's internal decisions.

Ms. Blaueberg filed a sex discrimination suit against the university last year, charging she was refused tenure and promotion because of her activities with a women's studies program.

In February, she was refused tenure and promotion again, by a 6-3 vote, and her attorney added that decision to her original suit.

Dinnan said the plaintiffs say they need to know how each committeeman voted to aid in prosecuting their case.

Dinnan, who holds a doctorate in adult education, refused to divulge his vote when he was called to the attorney's office April 23.

When he was brought before Owens on June 2, he was given one day to reconsider his refusal. Owens pronounced the sentence June 3 and fined the professor $100 a day until July 3.

Dinnan asked both the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court to stay the sentence, but both refused.

The concept of prejudice or discrimination "is just irrelevant" in Dinnan's case, the professor said, and the real issue is the court's attempt to control the school.

"The court is certainly correct when it questions the procedures. It should look up guidelines and procedures and make sure they do not violate a person's civil rights," he said.

The secret ballot is "the right of the U.S. citizen. The next step is, 'how did you vote in the last election?' and 'you'd better not vote that way' and 'you'd better watch how you vote,'" he said.

Other faculty members have paid all but the first day of Dinnan's $100-a-day fine, and the university is filing a brief in his case contending the university should be free to decide its own issues.

Six other members of the committee divulged their votes. Two have not yet been asked how they voted, and at least one of those says he will not answer the question, Dinnan said.

Dinnan said he has been a consultant to the Atlanta federal penitentiary more than 10 years and has asked Owens' permission to serve the sentence there, to continue his work.

"I feel that if I am going to be locked up, I should be able to contribute something to my keep," he said. "It beats sitting around the pool."

Indict Warden In Theft Ring

GENEVA, Ill. (AP) — The warden of Stateville Prison, his wife and eight other persons were indicted Tuesday on charges involving a stolen auto ring that allegedly operated in 1977-78.

A Kane County grand jury returned the indictments after a seven-month investigation.

Marvin Reed, 38, an 11-year veteran of the Illinois Department of Corrections who was named as Stateville warden a year ago after serving at the maximum-security prison as a unit manager, was indicted on 11 counts.

Cynthia Nelson, both of Aurora.

Armentrout said most of those indicted had bought cars knowing they were stolen. The grand theft charges also involved conspiracy to steal cars. He said the Ms. Nelson was charged with lying to the grand jury.

Arraignment was set before Judge John Leifheit of Circuit Court on July 1.

Weigh A New Federal Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Estranged parents who kidnap their children after losing court battles over custody and visitation rights would be guilty of a federal crime under legislation being considered in Congress.

Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., sponsor of the bill, told the House Judiciary subcommittee on crime Tuesday that although some states have laws prohibiting child-snatching by parents, only a federal law can be fully effective because the children often are taken across state lines. The FBI can do little in such cases, he said. Bennett's bill would make it a crime to conceal a child for more than seven days in violation of a parent's right of custody or visitation, or to restrain a child without good cause for more than 30 days. The offenses would carry penalties of from 30 days to six months in jail and fines of up to $10,000.

SUSPECT IN CUSTODY — Policeman holds door open for Filmore Beazer as they arrive at central booking in the Bronx borough of New York Tuesday. Police say the legless teenager who uses a skateboard to move around led three other youths in the theft of women's jewelry aboard a subway train. (AP Laserphoto)

Gene Armentrout, Kane County state's attorney, said Reed, who lives in Aurora, was the "middleman" in the operation which involved new Cadillacs, Continentals, Corvettes and other high-priced vehicles "stolen on order."

Armentrout said that Reed's wife, Bette, delivered some of the cars to customers who had been contacted by her husband.

The ring allegedly dealt in car thefts mainly off the streets of Chicago, resales "at ridiculous low prices," and making up phony titles, Armentrout said.

The procurer, he said, was Donald Lawson who was shot to death in Chicago last year. Documents found in his dwelling led authorities to the investigation.

Also indicted were Jerry Gilmore, assistant warden at the Centralia corrections facility, and his brother, Lowell, of Bloomington; Billy Williams, a Kane County probation officer; Jerry Butler, a hearing officer at Stateville.

Others indicted were Frederick Rodgers, a supervisor at the Illinois Youth Center in St. Charles, where Reed started his corrections department work in 1969; Roland Daniels, chief of the department's prison advocacy services, a position held by Reed before going to Stateville as a cellblock unit manager in March 1979; James Weley Scott and

Big Exodus Seen Threat To Future Of Zimbabwe

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — Zimbabwe is suffering from a crippling shortage of skilled workers as thousands of whites emigrate three months after the election of former guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe as prime minister.

Every day newspaper columns bulge with house ads offering "urgent sales," "drastically reduced prices" or "no deposit required." Hundreds of jobs are offered for everything from typists to engineers. "Whatever the skilled person asks, the employer tries to match it," said Angela Harrison, manager of a Salisbury employment agency.

The Salisbury treasurer said his office is near collapse because of a loss of key personnel. In Bulawayo, the country's second-largest city, City Engineer Frank Bamber said the municipal power station has lost 14 experienced engineers in six weeks. "We are not able to carry out normal maintenance and our equipment is at risk," he said.

It's difficult to say how many whites have left. In January the white population was put at 212,000 to 230,000 — down from about 274,000 five years ago — compared with 6.7 million blacks.

Two sources said more than 45,000 whites have applied for South African residence, but the South African diplomatic mission refused to comment. Half the whites here hold British passports and could emigrate there without having to make applications.

The new black government's minister of manpower planning and development, Edgar Tekere, said, "It's very disappointing. It's training investment being carried away. I get so irritated sometimes...The use of expatriate (foreign) workers is something we should try to avoid, but it does not look like we are going to be able to do it."

Leaders of all sectors of the economy say they are having trouble attracting expatriate workers, despite high salary offers.

The white exodus was not surprising as most former black African colonies lost large numbers of whites after independence. But the reason cited for the emigration was not as expected. Mugabe has lived up to his promise not to seize white property despite his party's Marxist leanings.

And Mugabe's party, which commands a solid majority in Parliament, has made few major changes. These included the ending of some traditional white-oriented holidays, blocking the hiring or promotion of white civil servants and the introduction of a monthly minimum wage of 70 Rhodesian dollars ($10) for industrial workers. But the wage figure was far below that sought by other black parties.

Several business leaders and politicians, including former white Prime Minister Ian Smith, blame the emigration increase on "anti-white" broadcasts of the Zimbabwe Broadcasting Corp. and radical statements by some Cabinet ministers.

Smith said the Information Ministry, which runs the ZBC, is "trying to drive whites out" with pro-leftist, anti-South African commentaries and news broadcasts.

A recent ZBC memo ordered the staff to criticize South Africa at every opportunity. Many whites have close ties with South Africa, the strongest backer of the white-minority government during the seven-year guerrilla war that ended in December.

Other broadcasts have praised Cuba, which has an estimated 45,000 troops and advisers in 14 African states, and simultaneously criticized the United States as imperialist. Frequently an announcer ended a commentary with a slogan such as, "Onward to final victory!" or "Onward with the revolution!"

"I feel simply that some whites...are unable to reconcile themselves to the new order," commented Information Minister Nathan Shamuyarira. "For those who cannot take it — it's tough luck."

Mugabe said recently,

"Most whites are ultrasensitive, but we should not unnecessarily hurt people's feelings."

The same day the information minister announced in a nationwide telecast that there would be fewer commentaries and their style would be revised.

But government critics say Mugabe also must stop Cabinet ministers from making threats of radical changes in medical care, pensions, education and the constitutional provision giving whites guaranteed representation in Parliament.

Several weeks ago the South African diplomatic mission here, already inundated with immigration requests, was besieged when a government minister said the mission would be closed.

This was immediately denied by both governments. But in an interview published last Friday, Mugabe said, "We will maintain our economic links, but there will be no diplomatic ties with South Africa and that means we cannot retain the republic's mission here."

Smith said, "It's a tough time for the white people of our country...I would hope that they will hold on and see if things do not settle down...."

A foreign diplomat commented: "It's ironic. In many ways life is better than it has been for years. They're not in the army all the time, and the killing has stopped."

"Zimbabwe probably can afford to lose 100,000 whites," the diplomat added. "But the ones who are going are not necessarily the ones they can do without."

CONTROL YOUR DEBTS

If your present bills, because of economic pressures, cannot be met by your income, legal relief may be available to you under the provisions of Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, which permits individuals to petition the Court for an arrangement allowing a thirty-six month period to discharge indebtedness, without property repossession or creditor harassment. Attorney's fees, which may be paid in monthly installments, are determined by the Court. There is no fee for an initial conference to discuss your eligibility for a "Wage Earner Plan."

If you asked B. Jay Becker for a good hand, he would probably reply: "I don't have one!" Mr. Becker, as he is called by even his closest friends, has a reputation for steady and error-free technique rather than the flashy plays that are more easily remembered. Here is your opportunity to study the fine dummy play of this master.

Sitting South, Mr. Becker chose to repond one spade since he intended bidding both major suits. North jumped shifted to show his distributional powerhouse, then jumped in spades to allay his partner's fears about the solidity of the trump suit. West led his fourth-best diamond, and when dummy came down, it appeared that declarer would need either the heart or the club finesse to bring home his contract. However, Mr. Becker saw at once that if clubs were 3-2 and West held the queen, neither finesse was necessary. That gave him an extra chance, which he was quick to seize.

He won the opening lead, cashed the ace and king of trumps, then ruffed a diamond with a high trump. After drawing the last trump, he led a club to the king and a club back, but instead of finessing, he rose with the ace. When the queen dropped, Mr. Becker could take the heart finesse for an overtrick.

Note that if the queen of clubs did not drop on the second round, the slam would still be cold if West started with three clubs to the queen. West would be thrown on lead with the lady and he would have to either yield a ruff-and-sluff by exiting with a diamond, or lead a heart away from the king into declarer's ace-queen.

What if East had begun with three clubs to the queen? Then declarer would have lost a club anyway by taking the normal finesse, and he would have to fall back on the heart finesse for his contract. But he would then be no worse off than if he had taken, and lost, the club finesse.

Castro Strategy

Just A Rumor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports that Cuban leader Fidel Castro is preparing to send thousands more refugees to the United States are "nothing but rumor," a State Department official says.

Victor H. Palmieri, U.S. coordinator for refugee affairs, said Tuesday there is no evidence to support the statement by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., that Castro might try to send the United States another flood of Cubans considered undesirable by his regime. Aspin said Sunday he obtained information from within the Carter administration that Castro appeared to be planning such action in an effort to force new negotiations on U.S. trade and other issues.

Attorneys Battle An Execution Date

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Civil liberties attorneys returned today to a legal battle to save Jack Potts — against his will — from his date next Tuesday with the electric chair.

But Potts' mother raised the possibility that her son would change his mind once again and try to save himself. Carolyn Potts said Tuesday only bad blood between herself and a former girlfriend of the condemned murderer stopped Potts from renewing his appeals over the weekend.

Attorneys for the American Civil Liberties Union were to appear before U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley today, asking to be allowed to intervene on behalf of Potts, who faces the chair for the kidnapping and murder of Roswell, Ga., mechanic Michael Priest.

O'Kelley refused a similar ACLU request on June 4, the day before Potts was last scheduled to die, but later that same day signed a stay of execution when Potts himself agreed to request it. The next week Potts persuaded O'Kelley to dismiss the appeals and the stay.

Laughlin McDonald, ACLU regional director, said the application would be taken quickly to federal appeals courts if denied by O'Kelley.

In Macon, Ga., U.S. District Judge Wilbur Owens set a hearing on a separate legal action that could stop the execution.

Thomas West, an Atlanta attorney who represents death row inmates in a class-action suit challenging conditions in the prison at Jackson, Ga., where Potts is awaiting his death, said he would ask Owens to rule that Potts is suffering in unconstitutional living conditions.

"He can't decide to kill himself or whether he even wants to kill himself as long as he is subjected to cruel and unusual punishment," West argued.

"The action is being filed for everyone on death row, not just Potts," he said. "An execution of anyone would be harmful to all."

Lawyers familiar with the case say if Potts pursues his appeals he might well overturn the death penalty and could certainly delay his execution for years. Potts says he would rather die than live with uncertainty in Georgia prisons, where he says the conditions are intolerable.

Potts' mother said she was prepared Saturday, with her son's approval, to take steps to prevent the execution.

"I was going to ask for a new trial — there's something that makes me think we can do that — and he was glad for me to do that," Mrs. Potts said.

But an incident in the prison involving Potts' former girlfriend, Diane Nicholson, and the prison warden, Walter Zant, made Mrs. Potts refuse to initiate the appeals, she said.

The appeals plan began to unravel, according to Mrs. Potts, when she needed money for gasoline and Mrs. Nicholson offered a $20 bill — which is contraband in the prison area where they were visiting Potts.

"You're not supposed to carry any money back there where Jackie is, so I carried it and took it to the warden and told him where it came from," she Potts said.

"The warden knows about and he's still letting her visit. But his mother and nobody else can't even take him a Coca-Cola. She was loaning it to me at Jack's request and I didn't want to have anything to do with it. If I can't take something back there, I don't see why she can," Mrs. Potts continued. "She's using him — she's using the family and him, and Zant's not stopping it. She's acting like she's his mother."

Mrs. Nicholson's husband, Ed, said he believes Potts was indeed "on the verge of asking for a new appeal" Saturday, but he discounted Mrs. Potts' reasoning for refusing to cooperate.

"If she really wants her son to have a new trial, why in the world would she let Diane stand in her way?" Nicholson asked. "What has Diane got to do with it? What has the warden got to do with it? What has a $20 bill got to do with a man's life? I think that reason is full of holes."

Mrs. Nicholson and Potts' older brother were instrumental in obtaining the condemned man's approval for the eleventh-hour appeal on June 4, after Mrs. Potts had completed what she thought was her last visit with her son and left the prison.

Camera Angles

By SANDY COLTON
AP Newsfeatures

It will soon be the 4th of July, fireworks time — a time to get great pictures of flowery aerial pyrotechnical displays.

Photographing fireworks is relatively easy. Here are a few tips:

The best shots of aerial fireworks displays are time exposures, where you can capture more than one burst.

Since you will be taking time exposures you must have the camera firmly anchored, either with a tripod or clamp so that it does not move during exposure.

Vertical framing is usually best for composition. Try, if possible, to get some water in the foreground on which the fireworks will reflect. Also, if possible, try to add to the depth by getting something in the foreground — a boat anchored in the water or the ferris wheel of an amusement park, for example.

Plan your position well ahead, taking into account approximately where the fireworks will show in the sky and make sure your lens will take it all in. It's better to be too wide than too close since, if necessary, you can always crop the picture later or switch to a longer lens.

Use color film. Depending upon the type of film you are using, set the lens aperture at f-5.6 for ASA 25 film, f-8 for ASA 64 to ASA 100 film, and f-11 for ASA 200 to ASA 400 film. Set your distance scale at infinity.

Set the shutter at T (for time exposure) or B (bulb).

In either case, B or T, use a cable release to help prevent camera movement. If your camera has only a B setting, get a locking cable release. Once you depress it it will lock and keep the shutter open until you spring the lock so that it can close again.

When the fireworks begin, open the shutter and wait for five or more bursts before closing it again. Make sure that there are no bright lights in the picture which would cause flare. Pinpricks of light, as in distant city scapes, don't count.

Sometimes there are delays between bursts. You can hear the sound of the fireworks being blasted from a tube on the ground and frequently follow the sparkle of the fuse as it moves upward before it explodes. When there are long delays between shots I keep the lens open but hold a piece of black cardboard in front of the lens until I see the next shot going up.

If you have a completely automatic camera it may still be possible to photograph fireworks provided the camera is the type that will take long exposures in low light levels. Can you, for example, take a picture of a street at night lit only by the streetlamps? Check your camera instruction manual. Many cameras will lock when there is not enough light to take a picture.

If your camera will work under low light levels again make sure that it is solidly braced to prevent camera movement. Chances are that you will not be able to get as many bursts as you would on time exposure since the bright bursts will close the shutter.

Finally, moving back to those cameras with adjustable f-stops, be sure to bracket your exposures. Take some shots with the lens opened up one stop and some with the lens closed down one stop over and under the recommended apertures.

What about ground displays, a pyrotechnical American flag for example? Try shooting at 1-60th of a second but open the lens two stops. Again, bracket your shots, shoot some one stop over and one stop under the recommended apertures. Try to shoot as quickly as possible after the complete display is lit before smoke builds up and clouds over the display. Use a telephoto lens, if necessary, to fill the frame with the display.

'Samaritan' Role By Outfielder

NEW YORK (AP) — When Ingrid Rachingler of Nuetinger, Germany, was struck by a car at Madison Avenue and 78th Street, little did she know the attention the Good Samaritan who helped her could have generated.

She didn't know it, but the man who put a wet towel on her head and pleaded with Tuesday's noontime crowds to stand back was Yankee outfielder Reggie Jackson.

Jackson was walking nearby with his agent, Matt Merola, when the accident occurred. He sent Merola to call for an ambulance and rushed to the injured woman's side.

The Yankee superstar asked for wet towels and a pedestrian got them. As he applied to the towels to her face, he consoled her: "You'll be all right, an ambulance is coming."

The woman was taken to Lenox Hill Hospital for treatment of a shoulder injury. And Jackson walked off, unrecognized.

Compensate 8 Yrs. Late

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly has decided to pay more than $9,000 to a Salisbury man for medical expenses — eight years after he was injured when a bus driven by an escaped mental patient smashed into his car at a police roadblock.

The bill was approved by the House and Senate Tuesday after getting the approval of the House and Senate appropriations panels Monday.

Rowan County representatives first introduced legislation to compensate Brooks Phillips for his injuries in 1973. According to those legislators, it took a push by Gov. Jim Hunt to get it through.

Phillips was injured in February 1972 when his car was pulled over at a highway patrol roadblock near Rockwell in Rowan County. He was sitting in his parked car on the side of the road when his car was struck by a Trailways bus driven by an escaped mental patient.

Phillips, who was in his 60s at the time, suffered permanent leg and hip injuries in the accident.

Rep. Robie Nash, D-Salisbury, sponsored the measure to pay Phillips $9,249.

"In the 1973 session, $450 was approved to be paid for damages to a truck used in the roadblock," Nash said. "It didn't make any sense for Mr. Phillips not to be compensated for his injuries if damages to a truck were paid."

Nash said he introduced legislation to cover the compensation but it failed in 1975.

"It wasn't until the governor (Hunt) heard about it and became interested in it that it really got to rolling along," Nash said.

The Pitt Stop is a mobile recreation program providing activities. The mobile unit will have staff and equipment to provide softball, badminton, volleyball, flag football, arts and crafts, music, nature crafts, small games, preschool activities and others. Children ages four and over may participate. The Pitt Stop will begin its travels the week of June 23-27, and will continue for six weeks. Scheduled locations, days and times are as follows:

For Burn Victims, Scars Beneath Physical Scars

By MARK CRANE
Associated Press Writer
ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Anthony Luppino almost fainted from shock the first time he looked in a mirror after a plane crash left him severely burned and permanently disabled.

What he saw horrified him. His right arm had been amputated above the elbow. His face and hand were twisted and gnarled, almost as if they had been melted by a blow torch. His lip practically stuck to his chin.

"I thought I was a monster," says the 49-year-old psychologist, who admits to "crawling into a hole for about a year" because of his appearance and his fear about whether he would be able to function again in society.

Luppino thought he was so hideous that his wife would be repulsed. "After I saw what I looked like, I couldn't figure out why she was still hanging around me. But my wife knew something that I didn't know then. She knew that underneath the burns, I was still me."

Luppino now counsels other burn victims to help them understand who they are beneath the scars, excruciating pain and feelings of hopelessness.

He heads a crisis intervention team for the National Burn Victim Foundation, a private, non-profit organization which operates mainly in New Jersey. The foundation receives no government assistance and is not affiliated with any hospital.

Many burn victims go through what Luppino calls "the monster bit."

"So much more of our self-concept than we believe is wrapped up in our appearance and ability to function physically — the roles we play as father, housewife, breadwinner, etc.," he says.

Teaching victims how to cope with the agonizing pain involved in physical therapy is a key function of Luppino's team, which includes other recovered burn victims who lend moral support to the injured and their families.

Luppino or foundation social worker Marie Knoblock will contact the victim and his family within 48 hours after the burn accident "to let them know they are not alone," Ms. Knoblock says.

The first minute of a severe burn is a question of life and death. "You can smell your own skin burning and you think it's all over," Luppino says.

But once a victim knows he will survive, the crisis is no less severe.

In the physical recovery phase, burn victims must sit in tubs while the dead skin is peeled from their bodies. Nurses are often hit when patients flail their arms wildly to relieve the pain. Drugs help, but are often not enough.

Wishing for death as a respite from pain is a common reaction among burn victims. But once the physical therapy is over, the way a burn victim handles his relationship with his family, friends and, most importantly, himself determines the quality of the rest of his life.

"Many burn victims never leave the house in the daytime. Some just can't stand the gaze and stares of other people," says Harry Gaynor, who started the foundation on a shoestring budget in 1974. "They feel too ashamed to be seen."

Luppino tells victims that it's their responsibility to let society know they can talk about the accident. "You can't help but notice that I've been burned. People are afraid to offend. They don't know how well you're handling this, and they don't want to bring up bad memories by asking. So instead, they just stare," Luppino says.

To help with that problem, the foundation organized a group called Burns Recovered, a kind of Alcoholics Anonymous for the burn victim.

The victim must choose the way he will handle his disability. He can adopt a form of psychotic behavior or become totally dependent.

"I've got a piece of paper that says I'm totally and permanently disabled. I can stay home and be a victim. And who would blame me? It's a choice," Luppino says.

Foundation staff spend a great deal of time with victims' families, co-workers and, in the case of children, classmates. "It's a crisis for them too," says foundation communications director Danya Padilla, who often lectures at schools where a young burn victim is about to return after an accident to ease the "re-entry" process.

See Threat In Idled Guerrillas

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some 25,000 presently unemployed guerrillas, once part of the bitter Revolution in newly independent Zimbabwe, currently pose one of the most dangerous threats to stability in the country, according to a returned United Church of Christ missionary.

"These are highly idealistic youths," said the Rev. Richard Stenhouse, "but they have been trained to kill and they have taken anything they wanted in the field at the point of a gun." Now, they have come back to civilian life expecting to take over the white world's home, possessions and jobs.

Also Give Bible To Indira Gandhi

NEW YORK (UPI) — Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Roman Catholic missionary Mother Teresa of Calcutta have been presented Bibles by the Bible Society of India, American Bible Society officials have announced.

"The work of the Bible Society is good," Mother Teresa said in accepting the presentation Bible from the Indian organization. "I follow it." The Bible presented to Mrs. Gandhi came following her "urgent" request to the Bible Society, saying she had given away all of her copies.

How Tar Heel Congressmen And Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 12 through June 18.

ANTI-TRUST CASES — The House passed, 227 for and 169 against, and sent to conference with the Senate a bill (HR 4048) aimed at shortening the time it takes to resolve anti-trust cases, which now last an average of five years. If a federal judge feels the defendant has been dragging things out too much, he can add interest to the amount of actual damages eventually awarded.

Rep. Robert McGlory, R-Ill., a supporter, said that "all too often the reason that anti-trust cases are protracted is that the parties and their lawyers are engaging in dilatory tactics."

Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., an opponent, said "the one thing the federal judges of this country do not need is more power...but that is all that this legislation is."

Members voting "yea" favored increases financial penalties for anti-trust defendants judged to be unnecessarily dragging out the litigation.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

WATERWAY FUNDS — By a vote of 185 for and 230 against, the House refused to block an additional $58 million appropriation for the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway now under construction between the Ohio River and the Gulf of Mexico through Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. The $3 billion project, due to be completed in 1986, will provide an alternate shipping route paralleling the Mississippi River.

The amendment was offered to a bill (HR 7542) making additional appropriations for the current fiscal year. The bill was later approved and sent to the Senate. Congress previously allocated $188.5 million for this year's work on the waterway.

Rep. James Martin, R-N.C., a supporter of deleting the money, said "nearly three-quarters of the claimed navigation benefits for the project are spurious and fictitious."

Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., an opponent, said delaying the project would make coal shipment more expensive and "stifle progress toward America's energy independence."

Members voting "yea" opposed the additional funding. Neal, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose and Hefner voted "nay."

TAX BREAK — The House failed, 214 for and 196 against, to get the two-thirds majority needed to pass a bill giving an estimated $23 million in retroactive tax benefits to about 60 multi-million-dollar real estate investment groups known as REITs. A Real Estate Investment Trust (REIT) is a group of persons who for tax advantages pool their real estate investments. The bill (HR 4968) would permit REITs that were terminated in the early 1970s to carry forward net operating losses from those years, in keeping with a 1976 law that enabled REITs to carry forward losses. The two-thirds majority was needed because the bill came to the floor in a shortcut parliamentary procedure; it can be brought back to the floor under normal procedures requiring a simple majority for passage.

Rep. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., a supporter, said that to reject the bill would be "inequitable and unjustifiably punitive..."

Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., an opponent, called the bill "special interest tax legislation at its worst."

Members voting "yea" favored the bill to help REITs that terminated before 1976. Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea." Andrews voted "nay."

— By a vote of 29 for and 41 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to cut $21.3 million from the fiscal 1981 budget of the Legal Services Corporation. The Senate later passed a bill (S 2377) authorizing $321.3 million for the agency in fiscal 1981. Through 7,500 attorneys and paralegals working in 320 projects nationwide, the semi-governmental program provides free legal assistance to the poor.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the sponsor, said the Legal Services Corporation's record is replete with "horror stories of harassment and intimidation, far apart and beyond the intent of the legal services system."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., an opponent, called Legal Service "perhaps the single most successful" remnant of the war on poverty, adding that due to it "millions have seen that the judicial system can indeed work to the benefit of all segments of society..."

Senators voting "yea" wanted to cut Legal Services Corporation budget.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

ISRAELI SETTLEMENTS — By a vote of 85 for and 7 against, the Senate killed an amendment to withhold $150 million of the $2.2 billion in U.S. economic and military aid Israel is scheduled to receive during 1981. The money would be held until Israel heeds U.S. calls for it to halt the expansion of its settlements in occupied Arab territories.

The amendment was proposed to a $4.8 billion foreign aid bill (HR 6942) which was later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., who favored killing the proposal, said: "I am tired of the drumbeat we heap upon Israel...They have as much right to settle in the West Bank as does anyone else..."

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., who opposed shelving the amendment, said the settlement policy of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin "isolates Israel, threatening to make it an international outlaw."

Senators voting "yea" opposed economic retaliation against the Israeli policy.

Morgan voted "yea."

Helms voted "nay."

DEATH PENALTY — By a vote of 38 for and 50 against, the Senate refused to kill an amendment setting procedures for imposing the death penalty for certain federal crimes. This vote set the stage for a final vote on a capital punishment amendment, which was offered to a bill (S 2377) authorizing Justice Department programs in 1981.

More than a dozen federal offenses, including treason, espionage, deaths connected with kidnappings and killing of federal or foreign officials, now carry the death penalty. The government has been blocked from imposing death sentences by court rulings that there must be a standard method of determining when capital punishment will be used.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a supporter of delaying the capital punishment vote, said the Senate should not rush to decide "one of the most important issues we will ever vote on..."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., an opponent of putting off the issue, said: "innocent victims are being forced to walk the streets in fear because criminals do not fear being executed for their crimes."

Many Senators voting "yea" oppose the death penalty.

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Questioning Brother Of James Ray

ST. LOUIS (AP) — FBI agents questioned John Larry Ray, brother of the convicted assassin of Martin Luther King Jr., about the sniper shooting last month of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan Jr., the St. Louis Post Dispatch reported Tuesday.

Ray, brother of James Earl Ray, was captured Monday as he walked along a highway near Alton, Ill. He had been sought as a federal escapee after failing to report to a St. Louis halfway house in February to finish his sentence for a previous bank robbery conviction.

He was wanted for questioning in a May 30 bank robbery at Liberty, Ill.

In a copyright story, the Post-Dispatch quoted FBI Director William H. Webster as saying agents wanted to know where John Larry Ray was when Jordan, president of the National Urban League, was wounded May 29 outside a Fort Wayne, Ind., motel.

Although the FBI does not consider Ray a suspect, Webster said there were similarities between the shooting of King and Jordan that warranted the questioning. He said both men were stalked by their assailants.

He said that a bank robbery financed the King assassination.

King was killed in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968. James Earl Ray is now in prison in that state.

John Larry Ray was recaptured by a former staff investigator for the House Select Committee on Investigations, which had questioned the Ray brothers on the King assassination.

Madison County Deputy Conrad Baetz said he was taking his wife shopping when they drove past John Larry Ray. Baetz said he called for help, then approached Ray from behind.

"To distract him and confirm his identity, I called him by his nickname 'Jack,'" said Baetz. "When he turned around, that confirmed to me that he was John Larry Ray, so I stuck my gun in his face and told him he was under arrest."

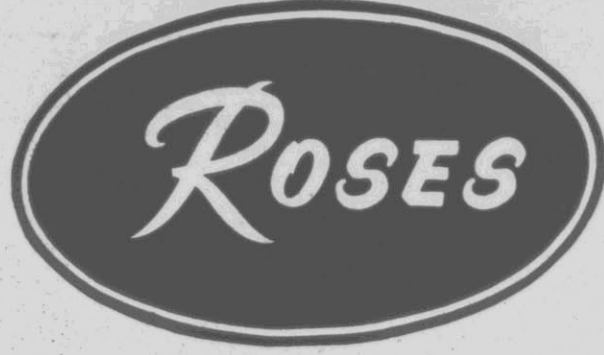

"After he had been patted down and handcuffed, I asked if he remembered me," said Baetz. "He looked at me and said, 'Oh, hi, Conrad.'"

Baetz said he thought John Larry Ray should be questioned about the Jordan shooting.

"The circumstances with Jordan are almost identical," he said. "A 30.06 rifle was used. Jordan, leader of the National Urban League, was shot in front of his hotel."

John Gardner Likes Teach The Aspiring

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Most writing, thinks author John Gardner, is "a lot like carpentry. There are so many gimmicks you can use — if you know the ways."

With some 30 books to his credit — the latest is "Freddy's Book" — Gardner knows the ways, and he is more than willing to pass along the tricks of the writing trade.

The 46-year-old Gardner says one of the reasons he teaches creative writing at the State University of New York at Binghamton — even though it's "tough to write and teach at the same time" — is that:

"You can help aspiring writers so much by showing them how to do it. It's so easy to change people's lives in writing by showing them how to do things — such as getting a character through a door — that you can save them 10 years. "That's why you teach — to help."

A soft-spoken, amiable man, Gardner points out that he used to teach medieval and classical literature but eventually decided "there were hundreds of people who could teach these things well but only a few who could teach creative writing well, so I decided to do what I had to do."

He says he teaches writing "about two long days a week" and devotes the rest of the time to his own writing, stopping "only when I have to do something or my guilt gets me to quit."

Gardner says he began writing when he was about 8. "My mother was an English teacher, my father was a reciter of poems, so at some point it seemed natural for me to write a poem."

"I showed the poem to my mother and she was delighted. I'd never received such praise before, so I wrote another poem, then a short story and I've just kept on writing."

Over the years, Gardner has written "scholarly books, children's books, poetry, plays, novels, diatribes" and has been so productive that he isn't quite sure how many books he has to his credit although he thinks it's about 30.

Of all the forms he has worked in, Gardner's favorite is the novel.

"It's so big," he enthuses. "It's the universe. You can pour all of your life experiences into it, although after you finish one you have to live a while to gather more experience. It takes a long time to write a novel."

He says that when he writes his aim is to produce "a fine novel. But there are different kinds of fine novels. There are those that are fine for the moment but are not lasting and there are those that stay fine for all time."

Asked what type he writes, Gardner says with a smile that "no writer can say if his work will last. Sure, I'm trying to write for literary history, all serious writers are, whether they admit it or not. But I feel that if what I have to say is important for our time then it ought to be important enough for human beings for ever."

"If you write several books and a few of them are great ones then the lighter ones will ride into history with them. If you don't, of course, then you'll just be a footnote."

"The truth is that this cannot be your first concern. That concern is to write very well-made, beautiful works of art from your own standard and if this standard is right the books will survive."

Gardner says his standard is "to create a vivid and emotional dream in the reader's mind so that he feels a fine, uninterrupted experience. A book which fulfills and rewards."

Gardner is currently working on — and has been off and on since 1974 — "a long book I may never finish called 'Shadows.' It uses the technique of the mystery story and it's a hard book to write. But it's the most interesting thing I've ever done, so even if it flops it will have been worth it."

"I'm also working on a shorter novel called 'Mickelsson's Ghost.' I've got a draft of it, and I hope to have it done soon."

("Freddy's Book" is published by Knopf.)

On the House floor Tuesday, Rep. Jim Morgan, D-High Point, said the bill was confusing and complex, adding, "It's too late in this session to be trying to handle a bill of this importance."

Public Utilities
The House Public Utilities Committee postponed action indefinitely on a Senate bill that would have allowed a higher rate of return on investments in alternate energy sources.

Sen. Jack Childers, D-Lexington, sponsor of the bill and vice chairman of the Senate public utilities panel, recommended that action on the measure be delayed until next year, saying, "The questions you have asked deserve better answers."

Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Statesville, called the bill "too complex and not well thought out."

Special Appropriations
A $7.7 million package of special appropriations bills won enactment when it gained final Senate approval.

Among the spending measures, which are in addition to the state budget, is a 20-cent pay raise for school bus drivers — to $3.50 an hour starting next March.

Alcohol
The Senate enacted a bill giving a 20 percent investment tax credit to persons who build a distillery for the purpose of producing alcohol for fuel. The credit would rise to 30 percent if the still is primarily powered by an alternate energy source.

School-Bus Bills
A pair of school-bus bills, sponsored by Rep. George Miller Jr., D-Durham, won approval in the House.

One of the bills would increase the penalties for passing a stopped school bus while the other would increase training for school-bus drivers.

Courts
Bills delaying two key courts measures — one setting uniform sentences for most crimes, the other ensuring speedy trials — were enacted after gaining final House approval.

The bills were both backed by Gov. Jim Hunt. The uniform sentencing act, proposed and enacted last year, will become effective March 1, 1981, rather than next month, as a result of one of the bills.

The speedy trials act requires that a person charged with a crime be brought to trial within 120 days, and that time limit was to drop to 90 days this fall. The bill postpones that 30-day change until October, 1981.

Workers Miss The Pay Checks

BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — For the fifth time since late last year, there were no paychecks for Benton Harbor's 110 municipal workers on payday.

"Cash flow problems" were cited by city officials as the cause for the postponement of Tuesday's $120,000 payroll.

City Manager Paul McCauley said accounting problems, which have brought threats of "serious sanctions" from the U.S. Department of Housing Development, were to blame for the financial squeeze.

COMMITTEE MEETS

The Beautification, Clean-up and Litter Control Committee will meet in the City Council chambers at the Municipal Building at noon, July 2.

ORDERED TO REBUILD PEKING (AP)

A rural production brigade has been ordered to rebuild a 650-yard section of the Great Wall of China it wrecked to gather thousands of bricks for sheds, animal pens, a kiln and public toilet, the People's Daily reports.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 25, 1980

Navratilova, Austin Triumph

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Defending champion Martina Navratilova raced to a 6-3, 6-0 first round victory over South African Ilana Kloss Tuesday and declared herself in great shape to win Wimbledon for the third straight year.

"I don't feel unbeatable," she said, "but I think it's right that I am the favorite."

The top seed took just 33 minutes to defeat Kloss. Navratilova has had very little grass court match play, losing in the third round at Eastbourne last week, but said she felt "match tough."

"People say that I have not had enough match play on grass, but I feel fine," she said. "I think I am the best judge."

"I got in lots of grass court practice after losing at Eastbourne and I felt confident today and was hitting the ball sharply. I don't think one or two matches makes much difference."

Navratilova's victory was watched by her entire family, who has now been granted exit visas by the Czechoslovak government and plans to settle in Dallas.

"It's a good job that I've won Wimbledon and get extra tickets, otherwise I would have had a problem," she joked.

Navratilova, who has lost six pounds to come down to 144 — her lowest weight in seven years — said her desire to win Wimbledon seemed to increase every year.

"Of course you want to keep winning," she said. "But my desire to win in this tournament seems to be getting greater. Once you know what it feels like you want to carry on."

Navratilova is seeded to meet 17-year-old Tracy Austin in the women's singles final and said she felt both players had improved this year.

"Sure Tracy has got bigger and better," said Martina, "but I've also got better. I have to feel this way."

"I feel I can do more with the ball than last year, but so can Tracy. I just hope I've stayed ahead."

"I have been working a lot on my topspin backhand and on my second serve, which is better, deeper and more forceful now. I also think I'm moving better. I certainly feel quicker on my feet."

"Despite that I don't feel over-confident."

"I know if somebody catches me when I'm not playing well I could lose. You have to be realistic. Sure, grass suits my game but it is also a great equalizer if you get some bad bounces and maybe some wind."

Martina said the pressure on her increased each year.

Wesleyan hurrier Mike Micene held the Pirates to only six hits, and just two in the first four innings, while his teammates were building up their big lead. For the righthander, it was his third win against no losses. Mike Williams, who started for the Pirates, took the loss, his second against no wins.

"When you've never won, people don't expect anything from you," she remarked. "As defending champion I find people expect a bit more."

She refused to accept the opinion that the title would be won by either herself or Austin.

"Trach has had the best results, but Chris (Evert-Lloyd) is coming back strongly and you never know what Evonne (Cawley) will do. Also, I have to meet Billie Jean King if I get to the quarters and she is a tough competitor."

Austin cruised to a 6-1, 6-2 victory over another Californian, Alycia Moulton, but only a handful of other matches were completed.

Tenth-seeded Kathy Jordan scored a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Kim Sands, while eighth-seeded Australian Dianne Fromholtz ousted American Roberta McCallum 7-5, 6-3.

Bishops Rain On Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

The weather forecast had been for rain, and threatening skies all afternoon made it look just that way.

But it didn't rain, and Coach Gary Overton of the East Carolina Pirates might have wished it had. About the only thing that rained on Harrington Field last night were 14 N.C. Wesleyan hits, as the Bishops romped to an 11-1 victory over the Pirates.

The Pirates used six pitchers during the night, including two, John Hallow and Pete Persico, who are normally considered outfielders. The two went the final two innings and were the only ones to hold Wesleyan scoreless.

The Bucs also used Charlie Smith for the first time, and Overton announced his intention to pitch him more. I was impressed with Charlie. He threw the ball well. But we didn't want to take a chance on his arm stiffening up on him, since we're going to need him later this week. (The Bucs have four games in the next four days.)

I knew both Pete and John had pitched before, so I just decided to see what they could do," Overton added.

It was evident early that our falling behind early was a factor in the game. Our pitching was not sharp in the early innings, and we were never in it."

The Bishops started the scoring early, pushing over two runs in the top of the first. Tweetie Thorbs opened with a walk and Cary Griffin, attempting to sacrifice, reached when his bunt rode the third base line and was allowed to die at the bag without going foul. Mochie Medley followed with a single to center driving in Thorbs, and Dale Richter reached on a fielder's choice.

That just missed being a double play, as the relay to first pulled Mike Sage off the bag. It proved fateful, as Earl Roberson hit a sacrifice fly, scoring Richter with the second run.

After a walk, an attempted double steal that would have seen a third run score was voided when the batter was called with interference.

East Carolina bounced back with a run in the bottom of the inning. With one down, Kelly Robinette walked and after two were away, Hallow singled. Mike Sage, after ripping one out just foul, singled to right driving in Robinette.

Wesleyan got the run back in the top of the second with an unearned run. Kenny Villines led off with a walk, the third issued by Williams. He moved up on an infield out, took third on a passed ball, and scored on a wild pitch. That made it 3-1.

The Bishops began to show it would be a runaway in the third, rolling in three more runs to up their lead to 6-1.

Medley led off with a single and stole second. He scored when Richter singled to center, ending Williams' term on the mound. Earl Roberson then banged a triple over the glove of the diving Hallow in left center, scoring Richter. W.J. Long drove in the sixth run with a single.

Two more runs crossed for Wesleyan in the fourth, as it kept up its parade across the plate. With one down, Medley singled and stole second. Richter brought him in with a double, and Roberson singled to score Richter. That ran the Bishop lead to 8-1.

It seemed as if the Bishops would not stop scoring, as they added two more in the fifth. With one down, Villines walked, as did Jody Tuttle, chasing relief pitcher Brian Felton. Thorbs beat out a bunt, loading the bases, and Cary Griffin's grounder to first scored Villines, with Tuttle scoring when the attempt to double Griffin was wide of the bag.

The Pirates finally shut Wesleyan off in the sixth, but the Bishops came back with one in the seventh. Villines walked, moved up on an out and scored on a double by Griffin.

But that finally was the end of the scoring. Wesleyan did load the bases in the final frame, but got nothing across.

East Carolina, handcuffed by Micene, didn't put a man past first until the fifth, after the scoring first, when it left one on third. The Pirates then put runners on second and third with one out in the eighth, and loaded the bases in the ninth, but got nothing further.

The win boosted the Wesleyan record to 4-9, while the Bucs dropped to 8-5. ECU travels to Lenoirville tonight, and returns home against the same Hurricanes on Thursday.

Pitt Nips Edenton, Wins 4th League Title

EDENTON — Pitt County Post 39 wound up the regular season in American Legion baseball last night gaining a 3-2 win over Edenton, and its fourth straight Area I East title to go with it. Pitt finished up the season with an 11-3 record, and will have the advantage throughout the league playoffs, which are scheduled to begin on Sunday. Pitt will be the host team for the first and third games of the best-of-three series in the first round. The opponent will either be Washington or Snow Hill, both of which are battling to escape the cellar. Doug McRoy hurried the victory for Pitt, going the distance and scattering six hits. He walked none and struck out 12. His opposite number, Al Bunch, gave up six hits also, walked three and struck out two.

Pitt scored first in the game, getting two runs in the top of the fifth. Post 39 had threatened in the third and fourth innings leaving men stranded on second and third, respectively, in the frames.

Finally, in the fifth, Pitt pushed in a pair. Skip Hill allowed the inning with a single and was sacrificed to second. McRoy reached on an error, allowing Hill to score the first run. Mark Shank followed, reaching on an error, and Mike Campbell singled, driving in McRoy.

The lead didn't last long, however, as Edenton came roaring back with its two, tying it up. Edenton had offered threats in the first and fourth earlier, also advancing men to second and third.

After striking out the first two batters in the bottom of the fifth, McRoy saw David Jordan reach on a single. The number nine hitter, pitcher Bunch, then banged the ball out of the park for a two-run homer, knotting it at 2-2.

McRoy bore down after that, however, and only two other runners reached base. That almost proved enough, however, as Pitt escaped from a close call in the event. With two away, Phil Woodell reached on an error and Jordan followed with a double. Woodell, trying to score from first on the play, was cut down on Campbell's relay of Shank's throw to the plate.

Conner Sweeps 3 Races

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Dennis Conner had steered Freedom to a three-race sweep of Courageous in the American preliminaries, but he wasn't ready to claim the America's Cup defense role from veteran Ted Turner.

"There's a long way to go yet," a beaming Conner said after reaching the dock Tuesday. "He's the champion. He's the guy you have to beat."

And beating Turner is just what Conner and the other U.S. skipper, Russell Long, have been doing since the round-robin preliminaries began last Saturday.

Conner, of San Diego, Calif., has won six of seven races while Long, a 24-year-old newcomer to 12-meter yacht racing, is 2-2 aboard the new yacht Clipper.

Turner, the Atlanta-based sports and broadcasting magnate and successful Cup defender in 1977, is 1-6. His single win came over Conner the first day of the trials.

Freedom and Clipper square off today in Rhode Island Sound as the trials continue.

"The summer is not made by one day. We're going to have our up days and he (Turner) is going to have his up days ... He's going to get a lot tougher," Conner said.

Turner was philosophical about his frustrating day.

"I think we'll give him a better race next time," he said. "It's a game of seconds, feet and inches, and we were wanting for every little bit."

Turner was out sailed by Conner all day and at one point was actually rammed by Freedom.

The collision came moments after the start of an aborted second race, when Freedom rode up on the starboard side of Courageous' transom, within four feet of Turner at the helm.

Both boats raised protest flags, and the race was canceled.

Damage to Courageous was not serious and the two yachts ran two more races before the day was over.

Asked later if he thought Conner was aiming for him, Turner said with a laugh: "You bet he was aiming for me. We went head to wind and he hit us."

In the three completed races

Tuesday, two of them shortened by the New York Yacht Club race committee that oversees the competition, Turner broke across the line first but ended up losing by margins of 54, 42 and 35 seconds.

After this week's competition, the American boats will square off again next month when the selection process for the boat that will defend the yachting world's most coveted trophy will become more heated.

The chosen boat will then meet a foreign challenger chosen from a field that includes France III, Lionheart of England, Australia and Sverige of Sweden.

Nehemiah Breaks Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Renaldo Nehemiah and Craig Virgin were among the record breakers at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

Both runners snapped Trials' records in the 110-meter hurdles and 10,000-meters, respectively. Virgin swept to victory in 27:45.61, breaking Frank Shorter's old Trials' record by 10 seconds.

In other competition, Madeline Manning, the 1968 Olympic champion, made the U.S. team for the fourth consecutive time, running away with the women's 800-meter final. She just missed breaking her own American record in the event, winning in a Trials' record time of 1:58.3. And Karin Smith fired the javelin 208 feet, 5 inches to edge Kate Schmidt.

Are You Burning Money To Heat Water?

If you have an electric water heater than you are burning money to heat your hot water. Solar water heaters save you money in two ways:

- (1) They save 50-80% of your water heating bill.
- (2) There is a 65% federal tax credit on the cost of a solar water heater. (That amount will actually be subtracted from what you owe the I.R.S.)

And that's just the beginning. In the years to come, as the cost of energy increases, you'll even save more.

Privately-Built Rocket Ship Passes Engines Test Firing

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Robert C. Truax, rejoicing over the successful test firing of his 25-foot, do-it-yourself rocket ship, is ready to launch the next phase of his own man-in-space project.

Truax, who helped develop Navy missiles 15 years ago, is hoping that his ship, the Private Enterprise, will help initiate an age of industrial space research.

He's planning a manned flight next year.

On Tuesday, against a scene reminiscent of a country fair with vendors selling hot dogs, beer and soda, Truax announced that he was ready for a 10-second countdown.

All eyes turned to the chained-down, 25-foot-tall, 25-inch diameter rocket 300 feet away at Fremont airport.

"Ten...nine...eight..." Truax counted. Then, most of the hundreds of spectators and reporters picked up the count. "Four...three...two...one..."

With the garbage dump that flanks Fremont Airport as a backdrop, the 63-year-old Truax pushed buttons that sent a fat spear of flame leaping from the four motors of the slender "X-3" rocket ship. For an ear-splitting 60 seconds, the 1,000-pound thrust engines performed without hesitation, as Truax hoped they would when he began the project three years ago.

Next year, Truax hopes to hurl a man or woman to an altitude of about 60 miles, hitting a top speed of 2,400 miles an hour during a sub-orbital flight of about 10 minutes. He said 200 would-be astronauts, including two women, have applied for the job.

But first, he plans to drop the spacecraft into the Pacific Ocean from a helicopter to determine its ability to withstand splashdowns. That test is scheduled for next month.

At the test firing, huge clouds of gray smoke poured out of a trough that caught the direct blast of a 10-foot-long shaft of fire. The crowd cheered and applauded when the unscathed little rocket flamed out in a rumbling gasp. A small area of dry grass caught fire.

"It came out just fine," the crewcut aeronautical engineer announced from the tailgate of his command center, a moving van.

NASA officials could not be reached for their comment on the testing Tuesday night.

The engines, which were originally used to adjust velocity and direction for the Air Force's Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles, initially cost $70,000 each. Truax bought them for $115 apiece.

He estimated that the 1,300 pounds of liquid oxygen and 650 pounds of jet-type kerosene used in the test cost about $400. The entire project so far has cost about $150,000, he said.

"We are America's newest space corporation," said John Oelerich, a Chicago businessman who said he was one of the 38 investors willing to finance Truax up to $1 million.

Oelerich said his group looks forward to industrial space research, including metallurgical, chemical and solar applications in the vacuum and zero gravity of space.

Truax played a key role in development of the Polaris fleet ballistic missile some 15 years ago, and held posts including organizer and director of the propulsion laboratory of the Navy's missile test center at Point Mugu, Calif.

He also was the designer of Evel Knievel's rocket motorcycle that failed to leap across Idaho's Snake River Canyon.

Back To Jobs In Scorched Tower

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 1,500 employees of offices in a Park Avenue skyscraper were returning to their jobs today after a blaze that fire officials say appears to have been accidental.

Fire officials said they would question workers today in their effort to determine the cause of the Monday night fire, which forced more than 100 people to seek medical treatment.

The Westavco Building was closed Tuesday as several investigators speculated the fire could have been started by a lighted match or cigarette accidentally thrown onto a pile of computer print-outs in a storage area leased to the Bank of America.

Investigators determined Tuesday that the fire, which was confined to the 20th floor of the building at 49th Street opposite the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, began in the bank's computer storage room.

Deputy Fire Commissioner John Mulligan, however, said all that was known was that "arson had definitely been ruled out."

Fifty fire companies and some 250 firefighters battled the blaze for nearly three hours before it was declared under control. About 200 cleaning personnel and late-working employees in the building were either evacuated or left by stairs or elevators.

Three firefighters, described as suffering from chest pains that mimic heart attacks, remained hospitalized Tuesday night. The three were among 125 people treated for smoke inhalation and minor injuries. Seventeen of 116 firemen treated were admitted to area hospitals and released.

Chief John J. Fogarty, Manhattan borough commander, said the heat from the blaze was so intense that when firefighters opened a door on the 20th floor a ball of fire shot out and melted an aluminum railing.

"I know that's hot," said Fogarty. "It takes 1,200 degrees to melt aluminum."

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Deceived," a film based on the rise of Jim Jones and the People's Temple, produced by Mel White for Gospel Films, was given a first-place prize in the religion and society category at the American Film Festival.

GUEST SPEAKER
BETHEL — Minister Ronnie Purvis of Greenville will be the guest speaker at the Church of God in Christ Saturday at 7 p.m. The public is invited.

Enrollment Sets Record

Enrollment in the first session of summer quarter at Pitt Community College stands at 1,258 curriculum students.

Edgar L. Boyd, dean of students, stated, "Pitt Community College has a record summer quarter enrollment which represents a 10.6 percent increase over the same period one year ago and is indicative of the enrollment growth at PCC for the 1979-80 school year."

Ola Porter, assistant dean of continuing education, reports that over 2,100 students are enrolled in non-curriculum courses during this summer quarter.

Registration for the second session will begin July 21 and end July 28, according to Sylvia Corey, college registrar.

Authors Eye A Working Family Plan

By BRIGID PHILLIPS TORONTO (UPC) — Anxiety attacks, stress, guilt trips and junk food seem to dominate North American life, but two Toronto authors have developed a system they believe will help working families cope with the situation.

Their handbook is a guide to eating healthfully, organizing household chores and keeping otherwise neglected children involved in the daily routine.

"The real impetus for writing the book came when I was faced with the situation of going back to work and upsetting the routines I'd established," said Susan Seidman, who helped write the 157-page book between teaching at a Toronto school and raising a four-year-old daughter.

"I thought I'd be living on TV Dinners the rest of my life, while my kid was off being babysat," Ms. Seidman said.

"There were a lot of books on quick and easy meals from seven cans, but I really don't like to eat like that," echoed co-author Sheila Kennedy, a teacher of children with learning disabilities and many times a foster parent.

The Working Family's Kitchen Guide, a $5.95 paperback, contains healthful, practical, fast recipes as well as tips for involving children in cooking, shopping and cleaning up, so everybody in a household shares the workload.

"A lot of people feel guilty because they're out all day and they don't want to ask their kids to help, so they end up having no time or energy to spend with their children," said Ms. Kennedy. "But eating is one of the most natural activities to share. And if you involve your kids, you will end up with a child who is really competent in the kitchen."

"And it can be an awful lot of fun mucking about," Ms. Seidman added.

The authors, now in their mid-30s, two years ago began delivering questionnaires to hundreds of working families, doing extensive research and collecting about 900 recipes. In choosing those for the book, the authors looked for simplicity, flexibility, adaptability and good taste.

Although much of their advice is children-oriented, they stress they're writing for any group of people living together. There are sections on games for grocery shopping and packing away, how to make your own convenience foods, getting kids to enjoy preparing and eating meals and tips on freezing, cleaning, reading ingredient labeling, growing edible plants and buying favorite foods.

The authors believe kitchen participation — even from the "mudpie set" — helps kids learn to handle themselves in a kitchen and develops skills such as counting, matching shapes, memorizing and, of course, understanding good food.

"As teachers, Susan and I have both seen the effects of haphazard eating on kids and it can really show," said Ms. Kennedy. "Frankly I find it appalling to walk around a supermarket and see what's in peoples' shopping carts, and the junk food that children are constantly shoving down their throats."

"But if you're well organized, you can feed your family well without relying on junk."

The book is being published simultaneously in the United States by 101 Productions, San Francisco, and John Wiley & Sons Canada Ltd., Rexdale, Ontario.

The authors said they have received perhaps the greatest commendation any household guide could hope for.

"My mother uses the book all the time," said Ms. Kennedy. "She's the book's biggest promoter."

WANT TO LEAVE BONN, West Germany (AP) — The West German Red Cross Society has identified approximately 250,000 ethnic Germans who want to leave the Soviet Union and other countries in Eastern Europe for refuge in the West, an official of the Interior Ministry says.

 BRIGHTEST AT ABOUT HIGH NOON.
 Today's Cryptiquip clue: X equals F

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Poor Boy Gave Away Millions

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A boy who was so poor he had to quit school at 14 to work for $3 a week, gave away $30 million in one day more than a half century later to four universities.

George Eastman, founder of one of the largest industries in the United States, began giving away his fortune when his salary was $60 a week with a donation of $50 to the then young and struggling Mechanics Institute of Rochester, according to researchers recording the 100th anniversary of Eastman Kodak Co.

In 1924, as he signed away $30 million to the University of Rochester, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Hampton and Tuskegee Universities, Eastman's explanation of his gifts were that "the progress of the world depends almost entirely upon education."

Concerned Over Govm't Role

ATLANTA (UPU) — Southern Baptist Home Mission Board officials, expressing alarm at what they called "excessive government entanglement in the missions" of the denomination, have called for changes in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

Under current interpretation of the law, missionaries and other denominational workers are excluded from retirement plans operated by the SBC Annuity Board, because of the Internal Revenue Service's definition of church which excludes some organizations and entities within a denomination as not part of the church.

Range Riders Capture 'Strays' From Mexico

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
HIDALGO, Texas (AP) — In 24 years of patrolling the Rio Grande on horseback, Albert Harlan has dodged bullets, stumbled over dead men, watched illegal aliens swim from Mexico and spotted signs of drug smugglers.

But none of that really concerns him. Harlan rides and ropes for Uncle Sam, watching for stray or smuggled livestock from Mexico that may be carrying dangerous fever ticks.

Harlan is one of the 108 people — including one woman — working for the Tick Eradication Service within the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal Health Services — government cowboys, in a sense.

It's a close-knit organization that helps protect the nation's livestock industry from devastating outbreaks of cattle tick fever. The service's territory covers eight Texas counties bordering Mexico from Del Rio south to the mouth of the Rio Grande.

Harlan, 53, a large man with a weathered face and a no-nonsense manner, wears a straw cowboy hat, boots, spurs and chaps. Harlan is the real article.

"My daddy retired from the force just about the time I went in. As a boy, I would go with him to translate Spanish," Harlan said. "I just like this kind of work and the kind of challenge that goes with it."

Harlan supervises 14 inspectors in Hidalgo County. Each furnishes his or her own horse, trailer, saddle and equipment. The job pays $11,243 for beginners. The government throws in another $2,600 a year to compensate its cowboys for the use of their own horses.

The government's tick quarantine zone ranges in width from 1 mile to 6 miles north of the river. All horses and cattle leaving the zone must be dipped in or sprayed with pesticides.

Any livestock found straying within the zone are rounded up and treated. Since Oct. 1, the force has corralled about 180 cattle and horses, said Dr. Wilson Boaz, tick force director.

Problems most often arise when Mexican cattle stray across the Rio Grande, or when they are brought into the United States by smugglers.

During the trail drives of the 1880s, Texas cattle spread fever-carrying ticks north into Kansas and into the Southeast. Texas cattle had built up an immunity to the blood disease carried by the ticks, but other cattle died in droves.

A federal eradication program began in 1906 and ultimately pushed the line of defense down to the current buffer zone between the Amistad Dam near Del Rio and the Gulf of Mexico.

The State of Texas pays $525,000 a year for chemicals and other expenses while the federal government budgets $3 million.

The tick force is the only mounted patrol along the river border and federal cowboys like Harlan often tip U.S. Customs and Border Patrol agents to illegal activity such as drug smuggling.

"You come up on all sorts of things. I wouldn't send anyone out alone at night," Harlan said. "If you come up to somebody sitting over $40,000 worth of marijuana, they're not going to have any qualms about killing you."

Each inspector in Hidalgo patrols about 10 miles of river. They know all the curves and sand bars, which horses and cattle belong there and the favorite smuggling spots. The cowboys can cover about four miles of river an hour, riding through the thick brush and high grasses along the banks.

The area abounds in owls, ground squirrels and some bobcats. For a break from the unrelenting south Texas sun, the riders often slice open cantelopes

Teacher In Riot-Torn Liberty City Earned Students' Respect

By RICK SPRATLING
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Every so often the kids at Miami Northwestern Senior High will say to Anne Rollins, "You're black, lady." They also call her "Mom" and tell her they love her.

Mrs. Rollins, who is white, considers the remarks high praise.

And she says she's coming back next year to her job as a math teacher at an inner-city school, even though it will take her daily into riot-torn Liberty City where only a month ago people were hauled from their cars and beaten to death by angry rioters.

"I'm needed," she says. "If I can turn one kid on to education, maybe I've succeeded."

Mrs. Rollins, 31, has taught at Northwestern for nine years — at first because she couldn't find another job, later because no other job would do.

All but seven of the school's 1,506 students are black, many from families with little money, living in tenements with names like the "Pork Chop Projects."

It was in such neighborhoods that anger burst out on May 17 when four white former policemen were acquitted in the beating death of a black Miami businessman. The rioting claimed 17 lives. Dozens of businesses lie gutted by fires.

The same streets are familiar to Mrs. Rollins. She's driven them for years, often late at night, picking up students for after-school functions, or taking anyone home who needed a ride.

The rioting changed that part of her life. "I no longer feel safe driving around the community," she says. "When I heard they were throwing rocks at cars and stomping people to death ... that scared me."

Yet danger seems only to have deepened the bond between the teacher and the students she calls "my kids."

As the destruction and killing reached a peak, a stream of telephone calls passed between Liberty City and Mrs. Rollins' suburban home. Mrs. Rollins urged her students to stay safely at home; they told her not to come to school. She stayed away more than a week.

Dr. George M. Koonce Jr., the school's principal, says such closeness between students and teachers isn't unusual at Northwestern.

"The students take such pride in the school. They work hard to overcome the stereotyping ... that anything that's all black is not so good," Koonce says.

He says none of his 109 teachers has indicated a desire to leave the school because of the recent violence. Just under half the faculty members are white.

Mrs. Rollins says the tough image of the inner-city school is overblown. "It's not as bad as people think it is," she says. "In all these years I've only seen one fight in my class."

Talking Car Is Within Reach

TALKING CAR
DETROIT (AP) — Imagine cruising in your car and a voice suddenly comes from a speaker in the dashboard: "I'm going to run out of gas in 50 miles."

The technology for a talking car now exists. And, some engineers predict, it is only a matter of time before a talking car goes on the market.

"With future developments," said Richard Wiggins, who works for a Texas firm, during the 75th meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers here recently, "verbal warning and information systems for automobiles and aircraft are likely to be commonplace — replacing dials and gauges which now must be visually monitored."

Revive Memory Of Big Bands

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Devotees of the big bands of the 1920s and '30s will get a chance to relive pleasant memories this summer at the "Goin' to Kansas City" exhibit in the Kansas City Museum. The exhibit, featuring the great mid-American jazz era, is produced by the museum and Mid-America Arts Alliance.

After the exhibit closes July 31, it will tour with the winner of the "Battle of the Bands" to Tulsa, Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Omaha, Dodge City, Salina, Kans., Hutchinson, Kans., and Magnolia, Ark. The events have been made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and Sciences.

The real problem, she says, is that many students simply see no purpose in learning.

"It's not a question of, 'Oh, I hate it.' It's a question of, 'What's it going to do for me?'" Mrs. Rollins says. "The majority of our kids come from low income backgrounds, and if they're not pushed, that's where they'll end up.

"They need to be pushed to go into college, to trade school, to the military, to something. That's why I stay here — I'm needed. They need education." Donny Stephens, 18, says students have no trouble spotting teachers who care.

"She's not just looking for pay. She's there to help the students any way she can," he says of Mrs. Rollins. "If everybody doesn't show up for something, she'll go door to door to get them. And she'll take every one of them home after. There's a difference. She takes time to listen."

Stephens says he plans to begin pre-medical study next fall.

Life Is Found On Daytime TV

By PETER J. BOYER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Life has been found on daytime television. Whether it can survive, or deserves to, remains to be seen, but at first glance, "The David Letterman Show" seems to present a rational reason to watch television after the morning news shows go off.

This judgment is based on only one viewing, and it may be that the "Letterman Show" is like the plain girl at an Ugly Convention — exquisite by comparison. But a live, 90-minute show that actually talks and breathes and features a jazz singer in its first week is already ahead of the game.

NBC canceled three game shows to make room for "Letterman," apparently supposing that viewers deserve something more in their diets than prepackaged frenzy and puerile game-show host wit. It is an admirable premise.

Letterman is the young comedian who so ably and so often filled in for Johnny Carson on "Tonight" in the past couple of years. He is bright and fast, and thus, so is his show. Indeed, the 90 minutes skip quickly by.

Letterman is thoroughly comic, almost obsessive in his wise-cracking. Yet, he is a more than adequate interviewer, not inclined to indignation or the puff question, common tools of the daytime variety-talk trade.

Merv Griffin, for example, recently turned one entire show into a glossy publicity vehicle for a disco movie. Letterman won't have to, supplied as he is with a troupe of comedians and his own relatively bountiful supply of talent. And there will be guests, one surmises upon first glimpse, who are there for reasons other than blatant hype.

In the debut show, Letterman interviewed an ingenious free-lance TV reporter, John Alpert, who has made a habit of scooping network newswires on big stories; Jeff Greenfield, commentator and CBS television critic; and, best, jazz singer Esther Satterfield, who'll be a guest all week.

At times, the show seemed a little self-conscious about its own uniqueness. At one point, Letterman brought out a TV set and flipped from station to station, discounting the competition along the way.

Later on, at Letterman's urging, Greenfield blasted network programming, including "Sheriff Lobo" and "Thursday Games" — two shows on the NBC schedule.

"If I have to sit there and tell an audience that 'Sheriff Lobo' is not a smart show," said Greenfield, "then, they're beyond my help."

J.R. Is Alive On 'Dallas' Set

DALLAS (AP) — It has long been said that only the good die young. Well, J.R. Ewing, the dastardly wheeler-dealer of CBS's "Dallas," is alive and kicking.

Larry Hagman, who portrays the sinister oil and cattle baron, rejoined the 10-member cast of the television series Tuesday on location here, said Lorimar Productions publicist Earl Wingard.

J.R., probably the world's favorite TV heavy, was shot in the series' closing episode last year. No one knew then if he would survive — and it has not been revealed yet who pulled the trigger.

Almost every character in the weekly, hour-long prime time soap opera is a suspect. And Lorimar executives are determined to keep the mystery a secret until the show airs Sept. 19.

Hagman flew from London to Texas on Sunday, almost two weeks after filming of the fall series began, and on Monday reached agreement with Lorimar in their lengthy contract dispute.

Industry spokesmen speculated Hagman had demanded as much as $100,000 per episode to return to the show. The settlement reportedly makes Hagman one of the highest paid actors on television. On Tuesday, J.R. was rolled in a wheelchair from the fictitious Dallas General Hospital.

"I was supposed to have guards 24 hours a day," cried J.R. "What burns me is how they got in the office in the first place ... They're just trying to drag more money out of me, that's what they're trying to do."

"Dallas" police already have arrested Cliff Barnes, played by Ken Kercheval, the brother of J.R.'s sister-in-law, and attorney Alan Beam, depicted by Raymond Powell.

Authorities planned to arrest J.R.'s wife, Sue Ellen, today, Wingard said. Sue Ellen Ewing, played by Linda Gray, was to be arrested and taken to police headquarters for questioning in the shooting of her husband.

But, Wingard insists, "Nobody really knows who did it." "That decision will be made after several shots (of nabbing the suspect) are made," he said. "One will be skipped in right before air time."

CBS Sees Momentum In Weekly Ratings Race

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS had the week's eight highest-rated programs, including "The Jeffersons" in first place, and continued to build momentum toward the upcoming fall season.

CBS won the race for the 1979-80 season which ended April 20 by a fraction of a point over four-time winner ABC. Then it lost the weekly competition twice in a row, but is unbeaten in the last seven weeks.

CBS' rating for the week ending June 22 was 14.6 to 14 for ABC and 13.2 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 14.6 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

Figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed CBS winning three nights of the week — Monday, Friday and Sunday. ABC won the other four nights, while NBC, which did not win a night, returned to the No. 3 position after a week in second place.

The top-rated show for the second straight week was "The Jeffersons" on CBS with a rating of 22.3. Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 22.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

Of 65 shows on the air in the week, only 16 had not been broadcast before. The highest-rated of the new shows was "The Barbara Walters' Special" on ABC, tied for 10th place with another ABC program, "20-20." An NBC movie, "Steel Cowboy," was 15th.

CBS won the week despite having three of the lowest-rated shows. An ABC movie, "Captains Courageous," was 61st, followed by NBC's prime-time broadcasting of the U.S. Olympic boxing trials and the three CBS programs — "Bad News Bears," "The Stockard Channing Show" and a Republican political announcement, "It's a Great Night America."

Here are the week's top-rated shows: "The Jeffersons," with a rating of 22.3 representing 17 million homes, "Dallas," 21.8 or 16.6 million, "M-A-S-H," 21.5 or 16.4 million, "House Calls," 20.7 or 15.8 million, "Lou Grant," 20.2 or 15.4 million, "Alice," 19.9 or 15.2 million, "Dukes of Hazzard," 19.6 or 15 million, and "Trapper John, M.D.," 19.5 or 14.9 million, all CBS; "Fantasy Island," 19 or 14.5 million, ABC, and "20-20" and "The Barbara Walters' Special," both 18.8 or 14 million, both ABC.

The rest of the Top 20: "60 Minutes," CBS; "Love Boat" and "Charlie's Angels," both ABC; Movie: "Steel Cowboy" and "Quincy, M.E.," both NBC, and "Three's Company," ABC, three-way tie; "Vegas" and "Taxi," both ABC, tie, and "Facts of Life," NBC.

Juliet Prowse Now A Citizen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Juliet Prowse, the leggy dancer-actress who first appeared before American audiences in the movie "Can Can," opposite Frank Sinatra, has become a U.S. citizen.

Federal Judge David Williams performed the ceremony Monday. Miss Prowse, who was born in Bombay, India, currently resides in Beverly Hills with her son Seth.

Twenty years ago, the dancer came to Hollywood from Barcelona, Spain, where she had been appearing at the Teatro Comico. "Can Can," a Cole Porter musical about life among Paris showgirls, was released in 1959.

DURHAM — The Erick Hawkins Dance Company will perform in Page Auditorium in Durham three days this week — tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday, June 26, 27 and 28. Performances each evening will be at 8 p.m.

Among works to be danced by the company is the premiere presentation of "Avanti," a new work choreographed by Hawkins to music by Lucia Dlugoszewska.

Other works on the Thursday and Friday program include "Agathon" to music by Dorrance Stalvey and sculpture by Ralph Dorazio; "Plains Daybreak" to Alan Hovhaness' music; and "Parson Weems and the Cherry Tree, Etc.," a piece choreographed originally for the nation's Bicentennial with music by Virgil Thomson.

The Saturday program will feature four different dances from those of the first two nights. These will be "Early Floating," "Lords of Persia," "Greek Dreams With flute," and "Cantilever."

Reservations for tickets can be made by calling the Durham box office at 684-4059.

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has refused to block Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc. from producing a remake of "Tarzan, The Ape Man," saying litigation could cause MGM to lose the "very popular" actress Bo Derek as star.

In a 16-page decision handed down Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, Judge Henry F. Werker cited hardships MGM could suffer if the project were suspended.

"If work on the project were suspended at this point, MGM would most likely lose the project, because the principal star, Bo Derek, is currently 'very popular' and MGM could not 'hold' a star of her caliber for the duration of this litigation," he said.

The actress recently appeared in the movie "10."

The judge's decision to deny a preliminary injunction, pending a final ruling, was an initial court victory for MGM in a copyright infringement suit brought by the heirs of Edgar Rice Burroughs, "Tarzan's" creator.

Windsurfer Plans A 2,500-Mile Pacific Jaunt

By RON STATON
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — A French baron who windsurfed across the Sahara Desert and the Bering Strait last year is preparing for another daredevil venture — a 2,500-mile jaunt on a sail-powered surfboard from the Marquesas Islands to Hawaii without an escort boat.

"People think I'm crazy until they see my 30-page study on the trip," said Baron Arnaud de Rosnay. "Then they are excited and want to participate."

De Rosnay plans to travel on a 12-foot, 6-inch custom-made surfboard which will have a sail attached to a 14-foot mast.

The board will feature plastic hulls which can be blown out to form an inflatable raft to allow de Rosnay to sleep. An inflatable kite will steer the board while he sleeps and navigates.

Food, water and other supplies will be dropped by parachute every five days, and the board will carry a small compass and a miniature VHF radio.

The 34-year-old adventurer plans to leave Nuku-Hiva in the Marquesas Islands on Aug. 18, and hopes to arrive in Hawaii two weeks to 25 days later, depending on wind conditions.

He will follow the approximate route of the early Polynesians who migrated to Hawaii from the Marquesas Islands.

"I have profound respect and admiration for the Polynesian sailors," said de Rosnay. "This trip is dedicated to those Polynesians who didn't succeed in their quest for hope and new land."

"I want to show that human-willed limits are boundless," de Rosnay said.

"The human will, in association with freedom and nature, can go beyond anything. With scientific study, man can succeed."

"I want to adapt myself to whatever nature offers. I want to go with it and not against it. I also want to show people to have respect for nature. We need to return to nature and find a home there."

De Rosnay also seems motivated by the uniqueness of his planned venture. "It's never been done before," he says. "The important thing is to be committed. It will require me to completely zero in on my goal."

De Rosnay says he is spending his time researching Pacific Ocean currents; testing boards, sails, food and clothing; and training in Hawaiian waters.

De Rosnay sailed across the Sahara Desert on a surfboard equipped with sail and wheels in March 1979. Last August, he windsurfed 80 miles across the frigid waters of the Bering Strait.

He estimates he has an 85 percent chance of completing the Pacific Ocean trip. "If I don't make it, there is a 70 percent chance I'll be rescued. It's a calculated risk," he said.

If he successfully completes the long-distance voyage, de Rosnay plans to return to another project — a film on sports of the future, with emphasis on leisure sports that use natural elements.

He describes the planned film as a "rock opera" but also says it is a "symphonic ballet of man's defiance of his limitations."

The script has been written but de Rosnay has been unable to get it produced.

Despite de Rosnay's quest for challenging of one's limitations, he says he knows when to stop, and the Marquesas-Hawaii trip will be his last big solo adventure.

"I'm crazy but I'm not dumb. I know exactly how far I can go," he said.

Medals For His Private Heroes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Conrad Braun has been honoring his economic heroes by minting gold medals of them for more than a year. He hopes to do similarly with his latest effort, a medallion of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov.

Braun arrived in Moscow Monday and began mapping plans to find Sakharov's wife so he can present the one-ounce medal to her. Sakharov himself has been exiled to Gorky, a city that foreigners aren't allowed to visit.

The piece, which Braun calls an Olympic boycott medal, is the latest in a series produced by his private Kansas City mint. One side shows Sakharov's likeness with the words, "Champion of Freedom." The other side shows the five-circle Olympic symbol, with the circles replaced by chain links.

Most of Braun's coins honor conservative economists, many of whom favor a return to currency based on gold. The latest honors Sakharov because the Soviet dissident has suffered for his attempts to win freedom, Braun said.

Voice Concern On TV Quality

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Southern Baptist officials have told top officials from the nation's three commercial television networks that Americans have grave concerns about the low moral quality of much network programming.

"We don't have an axe to grind about favors for Southern Baptists," Foy Valentine of the Christian Life Commission told the network executives. "Our concerns are moral concerns. When writers and producers give you programs that are immoral or amoral, we want you to resist them."

French Told More Babies Are Needed

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The French government, disturbed by a declining birthrate that could lead to an underpopulated, unproductive country top heavy with senior citizens, is instituting a major new program to encourage families to produce three or more children.

The project, approved last month by the National Assembly, is aimed at halting a recent trend toward smaller families and beefing up France's population, now just over 53 million.

President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who has designated 1980 as the year of the family, has said the declining birth rate is a danger to France's place in the world and the future of French society, noting that "a society that cannot replenish its generations is a doomed one."

The new law provides for a major increase in allocations for families beginning with the birth of the third child, institution of a minimum family income, increased maternity leave to six months and access to day-care centers for non-working mothers.

"Our goal is to allow a choice, notably to permit couples to bring into the world and raise all the children they desire by easing the constraints that weigh on these families by removing the obstacles," said Monique Pelletier, minister of family and women's affairs, in introducing the bill.

"Large families are necessary for our country, for its demography, for its vitality, for its future," she said.

Couples are continuing to have a first and second child in proportions similar to those in the past, according to Gerard Calot, director of the National Institute for Demographic Studies. "The number of third children and more, on the other hand, has fallen dramatically," he said.

The French, statistically, have been having 1.87 children per family since 1975, below the 2.1 considered necessary "to replenish the generations," and far under the 2.9 rate registered in 1964. The birth-rate trends of France are very much similar to those of the United States.

"The development of professional activities among women is a fundamental factor (in the decrease in France)," Calot said. "The image of the modern woman in our society is that of a working woman."

France's population as of Jan. 1, 1979 was estimated at 53,370,000, compared with 50,108,000 a decade earlier. Since 1975, however, the growth rate has dropped from an average of between 0.8 to 1 percent to between 0.3 and 0.4 percent.

One of the major aspects of the new family program is the maintenance of a minimum family revenue. For 1981, that minimum has been set at $1,000 per month for a family with three children, and an additional $95 for each child after the third.

Beginning Jan. 1, the government will make up the difference between the family's resources and the new minimum.

Maternity leave for working women having their third child will be increased from four to six months, under the new law — eight weeks before birth and 18 afterward.

Postnatal allocations, which now total $1,035, will be upped to $2,380 and will be paid in one lump sum instead of spread out in three payments over two years as was previously done.

And finally, any child of more than 3 years of age from a family of more than three children will be eligible for public day-care centers whether or not the mother works outside the home.

Mrs. Pelletier told the National Assembly the new program will cost the government $595 million.

Counseling Role Seen Beneficial

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — When he was six, Bobby wanted to live with his mom and dad. The problem was, Mom and Dad didn't want to live with each other any more.

Both of them wanted to live with Bobby, and their divorce, already messy, became downright nasty in a bitter legal battle over custody of their child.

Each began lining up psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers and other expert witnesses. Then one of the lawyers suggested a different approach, an impartial University of Wisconsin-Madison "divorce counseling" program.

The parents agreed, and went to see Dr. Jack Westman, the UW psychiatrist who runs the program geared to helping judges decide custody cases according to what's best for the child rather than what's best for the parents. Along the way, the whole family undergoes extensive counseling to prepare for life after divorce.

"Most parents going through divorce aren't aware of how it's affecting the kids," Westman says. "Parents get so involved in their own personal problems that they are preoccupied with tending to their own needs."

"The divorce decision is made in the interests of the adults, not the child. It's part of our long tradition of children being treated as chattel."

Westman says children, often bewildered by the whole divorce process, usually try to withdraw from the situation rather than be manipulated by their parents' selfish interests.

"One prominent feeling," he says, "is that they don't want to take sides."

Parents, he says, should realize that a child's problems, even years after the divorce, may be related to the breakup of the family. Children under age 6 may develop defiant attitudes, unfounded fears or regressive behavior such as bedwetting or thumbsucking. School-age children most often have academic troubles, while teenagers frequently become involved with alcohol, drugs or sex.

"Children need someone to understand their entire life structure," says Westman, himself the father of three boys. "They need someone to go to bat for them."

When Westman is called into a divorce case, usually by a lawyer or judge, he organizes a "team" that includes the child's court-appointed lawyer, UW psychiatry students and other university specialists.

"The whole thing is really counseling, trying to advise the parents and the court," Westman says. "The primary purpose is to make everyone concerned with the case more aware of the needs of children."

Spending an average of three months on each case, the team typically conducts about 20 interviews with everyone from school teachers and employers to the parents.

"We interview all family members in all possible combinations," Westman says. "We find people beginning to relate to each other in different ways."

He says that as parents realize that the counseling team is genuinely concerned with the child, they are willing to make concessions.

"No matter how inept a parent is, deeper down he or she wants what is best for the child," Westman says.

He says that in about two-thirds of the cases, one parent is finally persuaded to sacrifice custody in the interest of the child.

In cases where the parents never do agree, judges have invariably followed Westman's custody recommendations.

Even after a decision is reached, Westman stays in contact with the family. "In most cases we remain involved, sometimes on the order of the judge, but usually because the parents ask us," he says.

That's what happened in Bobby's case. After the judge followed Westman's recommendation and granted custody to the father, the mother continued counseling.
