Pitt Budget Is Adopted; 8-Cent Tax Hike Is Set

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners late this morning gave final approval to the 1980-1981 budget - a list of expenditures totaling some $10.08 million in county funds.

money coming to the county - including funds for school operations - total county expenditures for the coming year will total some $26.83 million.
In approving the new budget, the board set the tax rate at $1.03 per $100 valuation, an increase of 8 cents over the 95 cents tax rate needed to fund the 1979-1980 budget.

The various county departments and agencies had requested some $12.53 million in county money this year, an amount that would have required a $1.32 tax rate to fund. Before commissioners began their study of the budget early this month, county manager Reginald Gray had made cuts in the requests and recommended expenditures totaling $10.98 million, which would have required a $1.10 tax rate.

Gray told the board that his budget recommendations had been, "prepared from a basic necessity standpoint," adding that, "it is a budget with no frills. Hard decisions will have to be made that only you should make."

By early this week, the board had trimmed an additional $644,000 from Gray's recommendations and were facing a 10 cents tax hike - 1.05 per $100 valuation. (Ultimately, some $891,200 in county financing was cut from Gray's proposals to reach the $1.03 tax rate adopted today.)

Looking for ways to further trim the budget - and any necessary tax increase - commissioners met with members of the Pitt County Board of Education Tuesday night, asking them to use part of an estimated $963,200 surplus in current expense funds for capital outlay needs in the new budget.

Gray had recommended $571,300 be appropriated for school capital outlay for the coming year, and proposed the funds be divided between the county and city school districts on a per capita basis. Such a distribution would give $174,800 to the Greenville district and $396,500 to the county.

He told school board members that if they would budget up to $650,000 of the surplus current expense money for capital outlay, commissioners would be able to reduce their appropriation of new capital outlay funds and be able to trim several cents from any needed tax increase.

With the county school board's cooperation, commissioners this morning cut some $257,600 from proposed school capital outlay appropriations, thus effecting a 2 cents reduction in the needed tax rate. The new capital outlay sum, totaling $313,500, will give the city schools $95,900 in new money, with the county system receiving $217,600, plus whatever sum the county school board appropriates from surplus.

Informed sources said the County Board of Education is expected to use only $250,000 of their surplus for capital needs for the coming year.

Uncle Sam Taking Over 'Soul City'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal officials said Thursday the government has paid off $10 million in debts incurred by Soul City, a new community project that failed despite $29 million in government-backed loans, in a settlement ending foreclosure proceedings.

Spokesmen for the Department of Housing and Urban Development said the government would assume ownership of the project in North Carolina in January. The settlement was approved by directors of HUD's New Community Development Corp., which oversaw development of the project founded by former civil rights leader Floyd B. McKissick.

McKissick, who had been director of the Congress of Racial Equality before he founded Soul City, praised the agreement Thursday, saying it would protect existing property and allow continued development of the community.

Under the agreement, HUD will pay another $175,000 - including $165,000 to Chase Manhattan Bank - to clear the Soul City Co. of all outstanding debt.

HUD spokesman Andrew A. Gasparich said the government would sell the property "to an appropriate developer, possibly a non-profit or quasi-public group who will use the project as a major economic development tool for northeastern North Carolina."

It was indicated that neither McKissick nor the Soul City Co. would be allowed to buy the property.

Owners of the 31 occupied dwellings in Soul City will retain ownership. The Soul

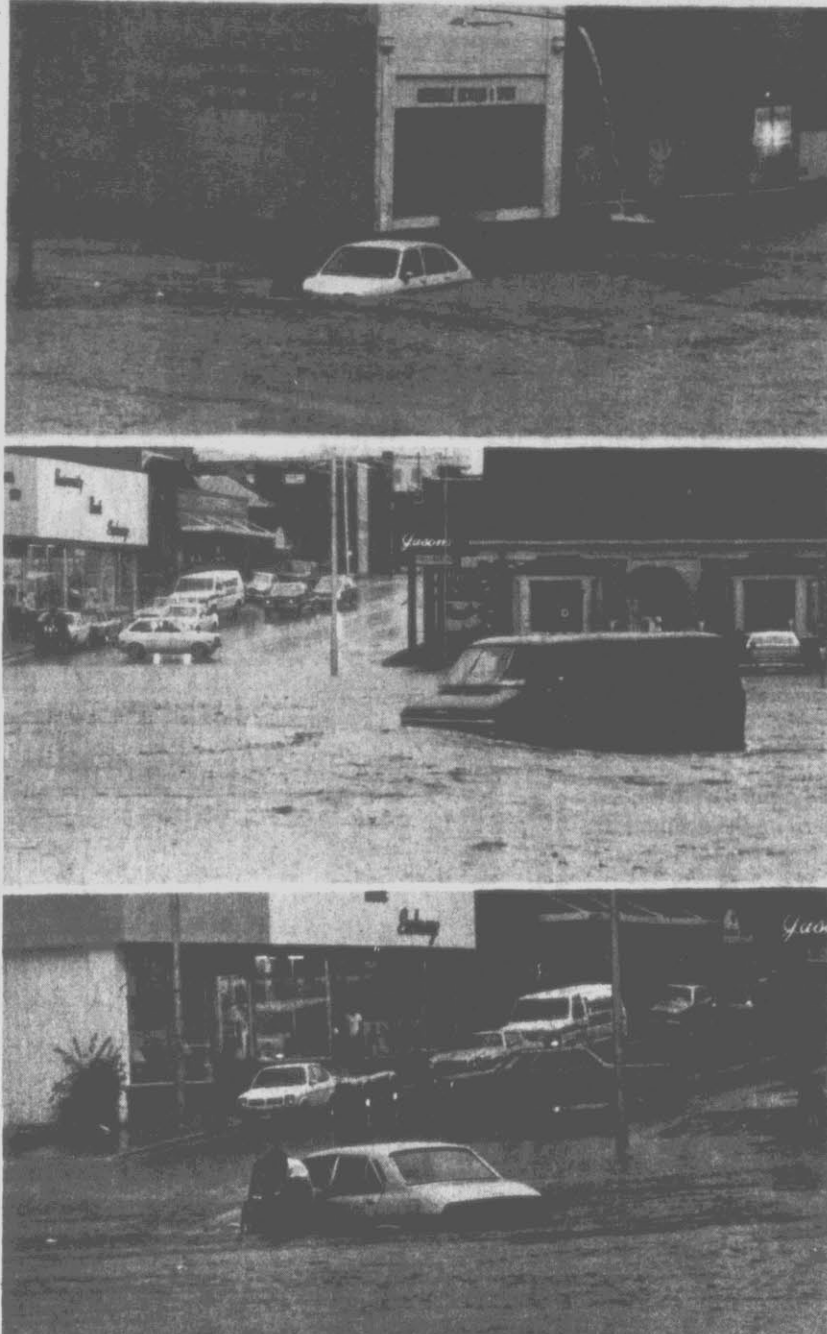

City Co. also will keep 88 acres, including the site of a mobile home trailer park and the Soul Tech I building, a 60,000-square-foot commercial building that has served as the project's headquarters.

HUD said the agency allowed Soul City to retain the property because the mortgage debt exceeded its resale value.

Soul City began as a federally sponsored new-town project in 1974. It had received $29 million in federal grants and loan guarantees before HUD decided last June that it was a failure.

The project originally included more than 3,000 acres. About 500 acres were sold recently to pay debts.

Foreclosure proceedings against the company, originally scheduled for hearing this week, were called off.

More Than 3-Inch Rain Fell Thursday In Area

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Over three inches of rain soaked Greenville and Pitt County Thursday, temporarily transforming many streets and roads into rivers.

saying, "More water than the catch basins could handle came down, so it collected on the streets and then ran off fairly quickly." According to Allen, the city experienced flooding in areas that never before had problems with water and had no problems in areas usually presenting trouble. "For example, at Reade and Cotanche," he said, "I've never before seen that amount of water on that street."

bris such as pine bark used for landscaping collected on the grates of storm drains, preventing drainage. Dickinson Avenue, a state-maintained street, was blocked from late afternoon to late last night by water deep enough to cover cars. At least one car was trapped underneath the railroad overpass near the intersection of Dickinson and Hooker Road.

According to Greenville Utilities' Water Plant, 3.27 inches of rain deluged the area yesterday. The level of the Tar River was 3.8 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge at 8 a.m. today. High and low temperatures for the past 24 hours are 86 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit. The thunderstorm inundated several streets in Greenville in water deep enough to completely cover cars. Superintendent of Public Works Mayo Allen explained what happened.

"We are checking and cleaning debris. Right now we don't think there's been any street damage," added the superintendent. According to the streets department, some of the water collected because de-

The railroad gates near the intersection of Fourteenth Street and Greenville Boulevard were down, snarling traffic. This problem was reportedly caused by water and debris on the tracks. The Department of Transportation reported no flooding of county roads and the Highway Patrol reported no weather-related accidents. Sgt. Pete Eure of the patrol said there was not an unusual (Please turn to Page 10)

Viets Hold Americans, Red Cross Officials

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) - Two U.S. photographers and two International Red Cross officials, including one recently decorated by Queen Elizabeth II, were captured by Vietnamese troops along the embattled Thai-Cambodian border, where fighting continued for the fifth day today.

The Vietnamese approached the four as they were inspecting the abandoned refugee camp at Nong Chan and led them away Thursday. Why they were seized was not immediately known, but their capture came one day after Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach warned to repatriate Cambodian refugees on grounds the returnees really are armed guerrillas battling to bring down the Hanoi-backed regime in Phnom Penh.

The Red Cross said it has approached all parties - the Thais, Vietnamese and Cambodians - to secure the release of the captured who it identified as Robert Ashe, holder of the Order of the British Empire, and Pierre Perrin of France. The U.S. Embassy named the Americans as George Lienemann and Richard Franken, photographers and co-owners of the Bangkok-based Lensman advertising company who recently completed a book for the U.N. high commissioner for refugees.

Perrin, the captured French citizen, is the medical coordinator for the Red Cross at the Thai-Cambodian border where the Geneva-based organization has an extensive medical and relief operation. Ashe was in charge of the distribution of rice and other supplies to Cambodians who daily flocked to Nong Chan from the interior of the food-short country.

Ashe, 26, was awarded the Order of the British Empire earlier this month by Queen Elizabeth II for his "outstanding humanitarian work among Cambodia's suffering victims." He was uniformly regarded by all who knew him as one of the most effective relief officials at the border.

Date?

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) - The South Carolina Tobacco Warehouse Association recommended Thursday that state tobacco markets open July 30.

Association members agreed on the date in response to the insistence of tobacco purchasers that there be a spread of at least one week in the openings of the various belts in the flue-cured area, which extends from northern Florida to southern Virginia.

In Georgia, warehouse operators have proposed opening the auction season July 23.

The industry-wide Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee meets in Raleigh, N.C. today to consider proposed market opening dates from the tobacco-producing states.

Last year South Carolina tobacco markets opened July 18.

Looking To New Offices

County Manager Reginald Gray told Pitt commissioners this morning that the new county office building should be ready for occupancy July 1.

"We will probably move the week of July 15," Gray said.

Commissioners agreed to hold their July 7 meeting at the Court House, as in the past, and hold their July 21 regular session in the new facilities - the renovated old hospital building off West Fifth Street.

Gray also told commissioners that $351,399 in interest has been earned during the 1979-1980 fiscal year on investment of county money.

The interest includes $286,819 on investment of general fund money, $40,858 on revenue sharing funds, and $23,649 on revenue bond money earnings.

Pointing out that county finance officer Margaret Roberts handles the investment of county money, Gray said, "she's done a bang-up job this year."

Gray noted that the 1980-1981 budget includes a projected $230,000 in earned interest. (Please turn to Page 2)

France Builds, Tests Own Neutron Warhead

By JEFFREY ULBRICH
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) - France built and tested a neutron warhead and will decide within two or three years whether to include it in its nuclear arsenal, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing announced. The disclosure apparently was aimed at blunting domestic and foreign critics of his coziness with the Kremlin.

Giscard d'Estaing made his announcement at a rare news conference at the presidential palace Thursday that was carried by radio and television nationwide. He did not give details on where or when the tests were conducted, or explain why a decision to produce the warhead would be delayed two or three years.

The State Department said the French tested a nuclear device on a South Pacific island earlier this week, and that Giscard d'Estaing's announcement came as "no surprise" because development of the warhead has been the subject of "extensive public discussion in France over the last several months."

Political observers here interpreted the sudden revelation as Giscard d'Estaing's way of quieting domestic criticism that he has been "soft" on the Soviet Union.

Giscard d'Estaing's refusal to support an Olympic boycott, his meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev in Warsaw last month and his insistence that the partial Soviet troop withdrawal from Afghanistan is significant angered French conservatives and several Western allies.

Political observers in France also said Giscard d'Estaing's decision to retain the neutron bomb option was a way of telling West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, whose relations with President Carter have been strained, that France's military commitment is more dependable than America's.

Carter shelved the neutron warhead in 1978 before it reached the testing stage but after winning West German support for the weapon. The shelving of the weapon was seen as inaugurating Carter's frayed ties with Schmidt, who goes to Moscow Sunday for meetings with President Leonid I. Brezhnev on the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, disarmament and other topics of world concern.

Brezhnev protested the development of the neutron warhead at the time Carter was talking to the Germans about developing it, noting that the Soviets had tested such a device years before. Carter abandoned the plan for a neutron warhead apparently to make progress in the strategic arms limitation talks with Moscow.

There was no immediate reaction to the French announcement from Soviet or West German spokesmen, but an official in Bonn said the issue would likely be a (Please turn to Page 2)

NEW EMERGENCY ENTRANCE

The administration of Pitt County Memorial Hospital has asked Hotline to help get out the word that the entrance to the Emergency Department of the hospital from Moye Drive will be closed as of Monday, July 7.

The closing is made necessary by the construction of a corridor that will connect the hospital and the Brody Medical Science Building.

The new entrance, located behind the medical center complex, is accessible from both the Stantonsburg Road (State Road 1200) and the Falkland Highway (N. C. 43 North).

Budget Voted...

the new budget — as usual — are in the areas of salaries and expenditures for education.

Included in the 1980-1981 list of expenditures is a 10 percent salary increase for all county employees, $6.15 million in school current expense funds ($1.76 million for the city and $4.24 million for the county), $566,400 for Pitt Community College (including current expense and capital outlay), increases in appropriations for county fire departments and rescue squads, and $408,900 for rental of data processing equipment.

The new budget also includes $38,300 for establishing a print shop which will enable county employees to do most of the printing required by county departments. By establishing the central print shop, commissioners hope to save between $14,000 and $15,000 per year in printing costs.

Some $240,000 is included for water, lights and fuel at county office facilities, up from some $60,000 budgeted for the current year, due primarily to increasing costs in general, and the opening of the new county office building off West Fifth Street.

The budget also provides $58,900 for contract management services for housekeeping at all county buildings, which will result in reduced housekeeping costs, and cleaner facilities.

Under the management agreement, the contractor will supervise housekeeping operations and provide the necessary housekeeping equipment and supplies.

Other items in the budget include $15,080 for tile needed to fill a ditch at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and $20,315 for Pitt-Greenville Airport operations.

By providing tile for the ditch-filling project (the hospital will fund other costs involved), more than an acre of additional parking space will be available at the medical facility.

The operating funds for the airport — matching a Greenville City Council appropriation — represents a 10 percent increase over the current years budget.

The council rejected requests by the Airport Authority for a greater increase in operating funds and for $50,000 in capital improvement money to help match a $150,000 grant designed to expand the terminal building.

Gray told the board this morning that the approved budget includes a projected 9 percent growth in sales tax revenues for the coming fiscal year. "If we start having drops in revenue, then we're going to have to freeze some positions" and take other steps to keep within the revenues. "We're going to have to watch it."

Delays Release Of Seized Boats

MIAMI (AP) — Warning of renewed activity by the "Freedom Flotilla," U.S. government attorneys have convinced a federal judge to delay for 10 days the release of 31 fishing boats that ferried Cuban refugees to this country.

Without elaborating, Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Targ on Thursday told District Judge Sydney Aronovitz the two-month boatlift, which has brought nearly 115,000 refugees here, might resume.

Aronovitz delayed until July 7 the order he had issued Wednesday releasing fishing boats and shrimpers. The judge had ruled that government delays in trying the 19 boat owners on charges of smuggling illegal aliens denied them due process of law and deprived them of their livelihood.

Targ argued Thursday that the government needed a chance to "review the order at the highest levels of the executive" branch before the vessels were released.

"The renewed boatlift I mentioned is not a scare tactic," he said.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, reported five Cuban-Americans and three Cuban aliens were intercepted in the Florida Straits Thursday, 75 miles south of Key West.

Lt. Norris Turber said the eight were being investigated for possible violation of President Carter's mid-May the ban on traveling to Cuba to pick up refugees.

The 31 boats affected by Aronovitz's ruling are among 900 seized by U.S. officials in an effort to clamp down on the influx of refugees. Defense lawyer Diane Tolbert said the 19 boat owners had signed affidavits swearing they would not return to Cuba.

"There's no threat of the clients practicing in a renewed boatlift," she argued. But the judge granted the delay, saying it would "afford the government the opportunity to review" the order.

The caucus, formed this year to coordinate black political efforts in the county, also was fined $100 by the state board for not filing an organizational statement

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT

The wedding ceremony of Alicia Lynne Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Martin, and Robert Louis Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Henry Baker, all of Greenville, took place last night at Arlington Street Baptist Church. The ceremony was scheduled for Saturday at 3 p.m. at Immanuel Baptist Church.

Tanning Parlors The Hottest Thing Not Under The Sun

Time was when the only way for most Americans to get a tan in February was to head south for an expensive vacation in the sun. But that's all changing with the nationwide proliferation of a brand-new phenomenon—tanning parlors.

"A tan makes me feel better because I look better—prettier and healthier," says Judy Moody of Bald Knob, Ark., who pioneered the idea for the nation's first tanning salon and franchise business. At tanning parlors, customers have a consultation with a "tanning technician", then remove their clothes in a dressing room and enter a small, metallic reflecting booth equipped with ultraviolet bulbs. The lights go on and the tan begins. Tanning time increases gradually with each visit, from 30 seconds to 10 minutes. A 15-visit series costs $35.00 and a 20-visit series costs $45.00.

Some dermatologists send their patients to tanning parlors to help correct skin problems, but many doctors remain opposed to the newest vanity business contending that the artificial rays are potentially just as dangerous and debilitating as the sun's.

Moody, however, who sports a golden Tantrific hue throughout the year, disagrees. She claims that tanning parlors are "actually offering a service to the public" by giving a base tan that helps to avoid bad burning once the skin is exposed to the hot sun.

All tanning parlors in the country—Tantrific was the first, but there are 30 other franchises with more than 900 parlors—are regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, which monitors all radiation-emitting devices like ultraviolet bulbs.

Moody says business is booming. Four parlors will open in Canada soon and potential buyers from Australia and England have contacted Tantrific. One of them, Lord Charles Churchill, nephew of Sir Winston, visited Tantrific's training center in Little Rock, Ark., last November and plans to open a parlor in England.

The newest suntanning parlor has just opened in Greenville, North Carolina. It's the HAWAIIAN SUNTANNING CENTER at 3006 East 10th Street and it's open 9 till 9, Monday thru Saturday. Call them at 758-0371 or visit them soon.

Dear Abby

Grandmother Writes Letter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Somewhere out there a couple is bringing home their newborn adopted baby. This letter is for the baby's new grandmother.

I know you are happy for the couple, but you're having doubts about the baby's "real" or biological mother. I am that girl's mother.

It has been an agonizing ordeal for her as well as for us — her family. I made sure she ate properly, took her vitamins and iron and was cared for by the best doctors in our area.

We all knew from the beginning that giving up the baby for adoption was the right decision, but as the time drew closer to delivery, our selfishness got in the way and we wanted to keep the baby even though it would have been a hardship financially.

For a teen-ager, my daughter showed remarkable maturity and unselfish love for this child to have given it a mother and father through adoption.

This is my first grandchild, and I will not be able to spoil it, but you can, so please love it enough for both of us.

A GRANDMOTHER

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy, sociable, easy-to-get-along-with 59-year-old widower whose wife died eight months ago. I am a Catholic but haven't been to church in years and do not want to talk to a priest.

I am seeing a very attractive woman who is 58, never married and is still a virgin. She is apparently normal in all respects, enjoys kissing and very heavy petting, but refuses to go all the way for religious reasons. She insists that her religion (also Catholic) does not allow her to complete the sex act without marriage, for to do so would be committing adultery. I know she is not holding out as a means of getting a husband.

I tried to explain that adultery is engaging in sex with a partner other than one's legal spouse, so as long as neither one of us is married she wouldn't be committing adultery. However, I can't seem to get through to her.

I am not the type to pick up girls at bars; neither would I go to a house of prostitution. I was married for 36 years and am a one-woman man. I don't want to marry yet, and perhaps I may never marry again, but I don't want to end my sex life while I am still able to enjoy it.

Is there anything in the Catholic religion that prohibits voluntary sex between unmarried adults?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Yes, there are several Biblical injunctions against fornication. Read, for instance, the seventh chapter of I Corinthians.

Inflation Is Slowing

Stagflation is a word which was coined for our times. It refers to a period of recession, accompanied by continued inflation.

It is, however, a pretty good bet that when recession comes, there will be a moderation of prices.

Already that is proving out. As the nation finds itself in a recession, consumer prices rose 0.9 percent in May. It was the same rate as April and much less than for the first three months of the year. On an annual basis it would mean an inflation rate of 10.9 percent and it has some economist predicting an inflation rate of 8 percent by year's end.

Nobody really favors recession, but it does sharpen the management of industry and business, and it makes all of us budget our funds and shop more wisely. The effect is an abatement of the binges on the part of all of us which contribute so much to inflation.

Suffering Not Over In SE Asia

However you view the United States role in Vietnam, it may be remembered that we blamed ourselves for bringing suffering on these people thousands of miles away.

The reasoning was, if the United States would only get out, the matter would be settled one way or the other and the killing would stop. Well we got out and the communist took over . . . but the killing still hasn't stopped.

Right now Vietnamese forces are striking along the Thailand border, and the bloodshed goes on in southeast Asia. It reinforces a lesson as old as time — that those who gain power by the sword continue to use the sword to gain more power. Vietnamese expansionism won't stop until it runs into more powerful forces.

Only The Governor

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — "I may run for governor in four years." With that declaration, State Rep. John Gamble has cast in a different light his open criticism of this year's state budget action.

In that criticism, Gamble draws on his post as chairman of the House Finance Committee and member of the governor's Advisory Budget Commission to warn that several steps are, in fact, deficit financing — borrowing from future income to pay for programs.

And that is both illegal and unconstitutional, the Lincoln County physician and eight-term legislator declares.

Gamble was a sponsor of the 1977 amendment to the State Constitution in which voters enthusiastically endorsed a balanced budget command on state government.

"We are now seeing the first major challenge to this constitutional mandate," Gamble says now, and lists the items:

school transportation funds without legal authority;

— A proposed $600 million school bond which will cost $75 million per year which must come either from higher taxes or cuts in the school program budget.

Gamble made the same criticisms as the Advisory Budget Commission deliberated on proposals put forth by Gov. Jim Hunt, and now criticizes both the process and the legislative system which produces the budget.

The governor initiates and defends his programs, and key legislative chairmen sit on the Advisory Budget Commission. Proposals go to the Legislative Appropriaset for change, Gamble thinks.

This is Gamble's last session of the General Assembly. He did not seek re-election, choosing instead to spend the coming four years "clearing my mind, thinking about state problems and issues, writing some papers, and deciding whether to run for governor. I will have a clean act, I have no ambition to stay at the public trough forever, and I will retire as a physician so I can run on my own gasoline as a candidate."

The removal from public life for awhile is something all politicians ought to do, Gamble believes. Staying year after year makes it hard "not to lose your soul. You forget your roots by becoming embroiled in the system. You become a member of the board concerned only with the health and welfare of the system and as a team member tions Committee for consideration, and, as Gamble describes it: "That committee operates to back the budget." No serious study of the budget takes place, and even the Finance Committee which Gamble has chaired has been simply told how much money to raise in order to pay for the budget.

So long as existing programs are never challenged and new programs are added, spending must go up. "Only the governor can initiate that challenge to archaic and ineffective programs," Gamble says.

As more citizens, and especially sophisticated and powerful business and civic leaders, come to recognize this fact, the stage is being

Agreeing Not Required

WASHINGTON — There was a time that, when a head of state came to Washington, after some haggling, he would agree to go along with the U.S. on some foreign policy objective the President had in mind. In exchange for this agreement, the President would announce that he was giving the head of state some of America's latest military hardware.

President Carter seems to have changed the protocol. You no longer have to agree with anything the U.S. wants and you still get the weapons.

Last week King Hussein of Jordan was in town and didn't budge an inch on the Camp David accords. The President then announced that, in spite of their differences, he would be happy to sell the king 200 M-60 tanks.

Some people might say this is stupid, but there are others who say that when it comes to foreign affairs Mr. Carter knows exactly what he's doing.

Meanwhile, back at the palace in Amman, Jordan, King Hussein was being congratulated on his successful trip.

"How did you manage to do it, Your Majesty?" a courtier asked.

"I told the President that I would have nothing to do with Camp David, or any agreement that the Egyptians and the Israelis came up with."

trip to Washington was a waste of time for him and myself. I could see nothing coming out of it except another diplomatic defeat for him, but since he's had so many of them this year, it probably didn't matter."

"How did he take that?"

"He smiled. As you know the angrier he gets, the more he smiles. He said, 'Well, Your Majesty, if you feel that strongly about my handling of foreign affairs, perhaps I'll only give you 100 tanks.'"

"I told him I refused to be threatened, and that we may be a small country but we have our pride and he could not blackmail me by offering to sell us America's latest tanks."

"Then what happened?" another courtier asked.

The king continued, "Brzezinski whispered in his ear, and then the President said, 'You leave me no alternative. If you leave Washington without signing some sort of an agreement supporting my peace efforts in the Middle East, we will ship you 150 tanks with night-fighting capabilities.'"

"He's tough," someone said.

"So am I," the king said. "I told him what he could do with his peace-keeping efforts and I got up to leave the room. Then he looked at me with those cold eyes and said, 'I'm sorry you feel the way you do. I am ordering the Pentagon this morning to send 200 tanks to Jordan, at very favorable financing.'"

"Good work, Your Majesty. You came out smelling like a rose."

"I'm not sure. I believe if I had been even more unyielding he would have thrown in a squadron of F-15 fighter planes as well."

ART BUCHWALD

"He must have been furious," the courtier said.

"He was. He said to me, 'In that case I will only give you 50 M-60 tanks.' Then I got angry and said, 'Your entire Middle East strategy is a shambles and the United States is losing all influence in the area.'"

"That must have hurt him."

"It did. He said I was sabotaging the chance for peace in the Middle East, and I was the biggest stumbling block to any chance of an agreement. He then told me that if I persisted in my intransigent attitude he would only give me 75 tanks."

"You stood up to him, of course."

"I certainly did. I said that as far as I was concerned my

Other Editors Say Same Old Formula

(Gastonia Gazette)

Gastonia Mayor T. Jeffers and City Manager Gary Hicks returned this week from the U.S. Conference of Mayors in Seattle with a clue as to what residents in Gastonia and elsewhere can expect from Washington in the days ahead.

What they can expect is more of the same, but perhaps sped up a bit.

The economic shoe is beginning to pinch and the nation's mayors are beginning to yell. They yelled to three presidential candidates: President Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and John Anderson, when the candidates appeared before the mayors.

While mayors from cities smaller than Gastonia seemed to agree that the national budget should be balanced, the big-city mayors let it be known that they expect somebody to rub the magic lamp and make all the nice people everywhere happy.

The mayor and his city manager report that the big-city mayors basically want three things:

- (1) Anti-recession aid. The mayors' proposed programs call for economic stimulus that would include new job programs for those put out of work by the recession and tax incentives for businesses located in inner cities.
- (2) Fiscal relief. The mayors want the federal government to abandon cuts of the general revenue-sharing programs and assume a larger share of the burden of welfare, Medicaid and mass transit.
- (3) New government investments. Congress should pour massive new funds into decaying cities to help rehabilitate the urban centers, they said.

The mayors have come up with the same old prescription for the country's ills: let the government do it. Let the taxpayers foot the bill.

This is the same formula that has been tried since Roosevelt, and found it wanting. There is no reason to believe that it will work today.

Strength For Today

NEW HIGHWAYS

As we drove along a new superhighway, a friend of mine remarked that this highway necessitated a profound readjustment in the lives of business people who lived along an older road which the superhighway replaced. Unless the people who had kept filling stations and motels along the old highway could move to new locations at intersections and access roads on the new highway, they would be out of business.

New highways always mean new adjustments, and

After Price-Cutting Is Over

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Here in the city that once was the low-cost airline capital of the country, there are worries that the current round of price-cutting can only lead to higher prices.

There is no contradiction in that viewpoint, as expressed by Henry Huff, president of Transamerica Airlines, one of two formerly all-charter airlines that are still based here. Once there were four.

Huff maintains that the big transcontinental lines, now offering New York-California trips for $99, are doing so at a loss. They can't afford it, he says. "It's absolutely crazy." It will end within a year, he says.

There is an irony to Hank Huff's words because he was among the strong advocates of low prices. His airline specialized in lower-cost charter rates, far lower than those offered by scheduled

Optimism Is 'Premature'

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J. — The claims of some of the more optimistic Republican leaders that the GOP will win control of Congress this fall would appear to be premature. The current national vote for the House of Representatives, based on the choices of registered voters, shows the Democratic Party with a 56-44 percent advantage over the Republican Party.

At the same time, however, the GOP has registered gains since earlier this year, when the Democratic lead was even wider, 59-41 percent.

While the Republican Party has made some recent headway in winning over voters to its congressional candidates, the GOP's present level of support still does not reach the proportion of the actual vote in the 1978 congressional elections.

From the evidence now at hand, at least, the Republicans appear likely to pick up few, if any, seats in the House this fall, leaving the current composition pretty much as it is (275 Democrats and 159 Republicans).

The following questions are asked by the Gallup Poll to determine congressional strength:

"If the elections for Congress were being held TODAY, which party would you like to see win in this congressional district, the Democratic Party or the Republican Party?"

Those who named another party or who were undecided were asked: "As of today do you lean more to the Democratic Party or to the Republican Party?"

Here are the latest findings, based on the choices of registered voters:

Vote For Congress — Latest (Choices of registered voters)
Democratic	53%
Republican	41
Other	1
Undecided	5
Taking into account only those who choose one or the other of the major parties, the division of the vote is as follows:
Democratic	56%
Republican	44
Following are the results recorded earlier this year:
Vote For Congress — Feb.-March (Choices of registered voters)
Democratic	53%
Republican	37
Other	2
Undecided	8
On a two-way basis, the vote divides as follows:
Democratic	59%
Republican	41
The actual division of the popular vote for candidates for the House of Representatives in the 1978 elections was as follows:
1978 Vote For Congress
Democratic	54.6%
Republican	45.4

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 904 registered voters conducted in scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period June 13-15.

To the editor:

We are writing this letter as lifetime residents of Greenville and graduates of East Carolina University. We are well aware, as we are sure many thousands of other eastern North Carolinians are, of the tremendous growth, development and service brought into this area by the University.

We have all witnessed with the new administration a great deal of change taking place in the staff and faculty at the school. Such changes are the subject of much debate and discussion, but the point of this letter is not to judge.

We would like to applaud the career efforts and dedication of the former deans of schools and heads of departments who have either stepped aside or returned to teaching. We want to let them know, along with our fellow eastern North Carolinians, that we recognize their innumerable contributions and have not forgotten them as their lives and careers are now changing. We want to wish all of them the best of luck in their new endeavors or much deserved happiness in retirement.

Life As It's Lived

Blinded On Search For A Family Resemblance

By GAIL MICHAELS
Love is blind, or at least nearsighted when it comes to determining whom the kids look like.

Parents and grandparents search for family resemblance like Knights of the Roundtable after the Holy Grail, but what they find is more often optical illusion than fact.

Take Meg for instance. She looks a great deal like Phillip. Anyone can see that. Anyone that is except my mother.

Mother has at various times seen Meg's resemblance to my grandmother, my sister, Queen Elizabeth, and Catherine Deneuve, but she never has admitted that Meg's father had more than minimal input.

other hand, refuses to see any differences between Meg and Phillip. As far as she's concerned Meg was cloned, and I just happened to be a spectator at the birth.

Having made a habit of tickling my tonsils with my toes, I keep standing up for my "softening" influence on Meg's looks. The only sympathizer is Phillip's sister, who has the same trouble with her child.

Phillip responds to this dispute by standing smugly on the sidelines. Then again he can afford to. He does occasionally try to sooth me by pointing out that Meg acts just like me. I am not consoled.

Zachary's birth has, of course, precipitated a similar battle. My mother immediately greeted the news of his arrival with, "Who does he look like?"

"It's hard to tell," I told her.

The next week my father arrived with an album of my baby pictures. "He's one of the prettiest babies I've ever seen," he declared. "He looks like you."

Naturally, Phillip's father's first look at Zachary produced a different reaction. "He looks just like somebody in our family, but I can't tell who?"

Zachary meanwhile has refused to reveal the secrets of his future facial structure. I have studied him diligently, and so far I've come to only one conclusion: he looks like a newborn.

But vanity compels me to continue my search, so it was with great hope that I met Phillip's first pronouncement on the subject. Zachary was in his favorite position; he was nursing with his little toes curled in contentment and each big toe pointed straight in the air.

Phillip stepped closer.

"Come to think of it, I do see some resemblance to you."

"What?" I said eagerly.

"His eyes?"

"No, his feet."

Avers Functional Segregation In U.S.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — American society is suffering from "functional segregation," says a noted Jewish philosopher. He sees it as bringing about a steady decline in moral values. Just as individual personality is warped if it fails to integrate various facets into working balance, Rabbi Shlomo Roth says modern society is crippled by not interrelating its various components.

Program Is Reviewed

The Human Services Technology Advisory Committee of Pitt Community College met recently to review the Human Services program curriculum and activities. Margaret French, chairperson of the department, distributed a copy of the revised curriculum to the committee and explained the changes. She noted that several college transfer course options have been added which will improve students' matriculation to four-year schools. Mercedes Erwin, a consultant to the advisory committee, reported that new job classifications will be available for the two-year graduates on July 1. She stated that tests are not yet available for these positions and urged students to go directly to the local agencies to apply. It was also reported that practicum and internship experience would not be counted toward eligibility for a higher position. Carolyn Means and Margaret French presented several new brochures now being used. They reported how these items may be used as a helpful recruitment tool. A supervisor's manual developed by Carolyn Means was presented to the group. She also discussed the course treatment modalities and shared a video-tape of students roleplaying a specific mode of therapy.

A Big Favor By Actress

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — When actress All MacGraw denounced "smug and fatuous" anti-abortionists as they opened a National Right to Life convention here, convention officials stopped just short of thanking her for her trouble. "It called out the press in a way we couldn't have," said Suann Maier, president of Southern California Right to Life Inc. More than 700 delegates from across the nation registered Thursday for the four-day meeting. Meanwhile, Miss MacGraw, who has appeared in "Goodbye Columbus" and "Love Story," criticized the Right to Life groups for "imposing their morality and religion upon us." An unwanted pregnancy, she said, "concerns only a woman and her physician."

She joined four other panelists, including congressional candidate Carey Peck, son of actor Gregory Peck, at a For Americans' Individual Rights press conference held a block from the anti-abortion convention. Ms. Maier said, "we will not be having any confrontation at this convention." If pro-abortion picketers show up as scheduled, she said, "They're going to have to come in and get us because we're not going to come out."

CONCERT SUNDAY EVENING

The Voices of Zion will present the Rev. Jasper Suggs in concert Sunday at 7 p.m. at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church, 614 Albemarle Avenue. Johnny Wooten will be the narrator. The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. Luther Brown Sr., and the program chairman, Mrs. Barbara Taft.

PEMBROKE GOSPEL GROUP TO SING

WINTERVILLE — The D & L Gospel-Singing Indians of Pembroke will be featured during a Gospel Singing at the Winterville Pentecostal Holiness Church Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

"Our institutions of nearly all kinds have a tendency to functional segregation," he said in an interview. "Each tends to operate only for its own purpose in isolation from the others." And that, he added, leaves them lacking an integrally balanced perspective. Roth, elected this week as president of the Rabbinical Council of America, the national organization of Orthodox rabbis, said the functional split exists in education, medicine, science, morals, art, religion and other fields.

"The idea of social synthesis, of integrating the insights of various disciplines gets little application in modern America," said Roth, a philosophy professor at New York's Yeshiva University. For example, he noted, it's now commonly held that science should be concerned only with science, art only with art, education only with knowledge, apart from moral values. "University presidents these days when they're asked about sexual behavior of students in co-ed dorms say the university's function has exclusively to do with knowledge and nothing to do with morality."

"Obviously in a pervasive situation like this, the whole effect is that values grow weaker. To merely communicate knowledge or information in any field is to abdicate the concern for values. In consequence, morality has been steadily eroded in America," Roth said there are no programs emphasizing moral values in the various non-religious fields, such as in education. "Students are simply left to decide what to do," he said, leaving the young pursuing various specialties in a situation resembling that of primitive man in regard to morality. "I don't expect universities to teach religious values, but there is a desperate need for them to teach moral values," he said. "It's a function that's not being fulfilled."

Roth, who has been rabbi of the Jewish Center of Atlantic Beach, N.Y., for nearly a quarter century, as well as teaching philosophy, said the functional segregation also affects religion.

The "prevailing inclination" among members of religious bodies — although probably not of clergy — is that the institutions are to serve "the purpose of religion alone," he says, and hence are "irrelevant to other human concerns." In other fields, too, "society is essentially in a state of functional segregation," he writes a book, "The Jewish Idea of Community," published by Yeshiva. He says the condition has led to various false assumptions. One of them is that religion conflicts with science, education and democracy since kept apart from them, but he says this is not the case and they all actually complement each other.

A "sense of coherence" between them can only be transmitted in a context of "social synthesis," he writes, in an atmosphere in which each field works in touch with the others, making for greater wholeness of them all. "But morality and religion have retreated in the face of secularization," he said. "The forces of secularization are very, very strong to the point that even some theologians speak of God in secular terms."

In fact, to a great extent, even his own field, philosophy, has been isolated from social issues as well as from morals and religion, making it a form of abstraction, he said, but added: "To me, of course, it still must be involved with life."

"O Say Can You See"

Festooning fire fingers streak down the sky while soft July breezes stir across upturned faces and the band plays softly.

Suddenly I see beyond the framework of our celebration. I see fireworks and flags, hard-boiled eggs and potato salad, a parade down Main Street, cotton candy, roller coasters, and the dance at the country club. I see a little band of people crossing the ocean to make a new life. A woodsman hacking a trail westward, a man and his woman working together to make a home in the new wilderness. I see rous of graves in France, marking fallen doughboys. Four young men raising a flag on Iwo Jima, and an astronaut blasting off to yet a new frontier. I see a sweet land of liberty.

One of the most important things this land stands for is a man's right to worship God in the way he wants. Go to your church and take advantage of this precious heritage.

Some Bureaucrats Run Into Bathroom Lockout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rank has its privileges, as some bureaucrats who had the privileges but lacked the rank have discovered. The government has locked them out of their bathrooms.

Several years ago, when top-level presidential appointees of the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare moved to a new building, civil servants who took over the old offices began using the bathrooms that went with them.

Until last week, when the General Services Administration, the agency that runs government buildings, took the bathrooms away.

Wilson Gale, who manages five buildings for the GSA, sent a locksmith to 34 offices in what is now the Department of Health and Human Services, split earlier this year from HEW. The bathrooms were cleaned one last time, then the locksmith changed the locks on 33 of the bathrooms.

He is still trying to get into the 34th, whose tenant is resisting. Yet to be changed are locks on 11 more bathrooms. "They were very upset," Gale said of the bureaucrats whose bathrooms were sealed. "But I've only got 68 people to clean a building in which 2,200 people work. A toilet has to be cleaned every day. We're not geared to give executive service to these people."

And, he said, there are at least eight public restrooms on each floor.

Gale was backed up by his boss, Ted Leininger, the deputy regional commissioner for public building services at GSA.

"The Federal Property Management Regulations say very clearly who's entitled to a bathroom and who isn't," says Leininger — who isn't.

"For example," he said, "a Level 1 official (cabinet secretary, making $69,630) gets 750 square feet of office space, a 500-square-foot conference room and a 45-square-foot bathroom containing toilet, sink, vanity and shower."

"A Level 5 person (administrator, deputy or associate administrator, general counsel or commissioner, making $50,112.50) gets 400 square feet of office space, no conference room and a toilet and sink in 25 square feet."

"Supergrades (the career people who inherited, then lost, the bathrooms, making from $47,889 to $50,112) are not entitled to bathrooms. The regulations are very clear."

Collisions Are Reported

An estimated $3,100 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated by Greenville police late yesterday afternoon.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:20 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, one-tenth of a mile West of the Evans Street intersection.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were identified as Eddie Franklin Moye of 113 Prince Rd., Rita Cobb Butler of 104 Greenwood Rd., and Joyce Cooper Staton of 101 Greenway Dr.

Damage was estimated by police at $400 to the Moye car, and $1,800 to the Butler vehicle. No damage resulted to the Staton car.

Cars driven by Shirley Tisdale Daughtridge of 309 Hillcrest Dr. and Joseph Nicholas Blasi of 200 Whittington Cir., collided about 5:35 p.m. on Arlington Boulevard, 150 feet West of the Hooker Road intersection, causing $300 damage to the Daughtridge vehicle and $200 damage to the Blasi car.

A 5:29 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 300 feet East of the Cedar Lane intersection involved vehicles driven by Debbie Alphin Cobb of Winterville, and Bette Watson Hudson of Roanoke Rapids. Investigators, who said no damage resulted to the Hudson car, set damage to the Cobb auto at $400.

Soviet Bomber Crashes In Sea

TOKYO (AP) — A Soviet TU-16 bomber, one of a pair of reconnaissance aircraft dubbed the "Tokyo Express," circled a Japanese naval patrol boat and then crashed in the sea and exploded today off Niigata, 180 miles northwest of Tokyo, the Japanese Defense Agency said.

The bodies of two Soviet crewmen were recovered, said an agency spokesman, adding the Tupolev bomber usually carries a crew of seven. The other bodies were presumed lost in mile-deep waters.

Known by the NATO code-name "Badger," the bomber was one of pair spotted about 70 miles north of Sado Island by Japanese radar and the crew of the patrol boat Nemuro, the spokesman said.

After circling the Nemuro, one of the planes crashed into the sea and exploded, he said.

The Defense Agency, Japan's military branch, scrambled four U.S.-made F-4 jet fighters to investigate the circling bomber and approached to within six miles of the two Soviet aircraft.

The second Badger orbited the crash site for 90 minutes after first plane went down at 1:50 p.m. local time. There was no indication what caused the crash.

Japanese officials said they had not yet decided whether to try to salvage the wreckage of the twin-engine jet, lost in about 5,700 feet of water.

The Badger first went into production in 1954 and is used primarily today for electronic surveillance.

Japanese sources Tupolev bombers, flying in pairs, make about 10 reconnaissance flights a month over Japan, and have been nicknamed: "The Tokyo Express."

Foreign Ministry officials said they had informed the Soviet Embassy here of the "accident," and would negotiate the return of the bodies to Soviet officials. They would make no other comment on the incident.

FOCUS

Blame It On the Moon

Don't be surprised if your newspaper reports an unusually high number of crimes for the next few days. Why? Because the moon is full. Researchers have found that crimes increase during full moon periods. So do incidents of suicide, auto accidents, and strange behavior in general. Some experts believe the moon's gravitational pull affects people's bodies, just as it affects the ocean tides. Bizarre occurrences associated with the full moon are nothing new. They have appeared in literature and folklore for centuries. As Shakespeare wrote in "Othello": "It is the very error of the moon. She comes more near the Earth than she was wont. And makes men mad."

PCC Committee Reviews Work

The Electronics Advisory Committee of Pitt Community College met recently and reviewed the electronics program on the campus.

The group discussed the needs of industries since many staff and faculty members had completed tours of area plants during the last four months. Some changes in course content were suggested in order to improve areas of instrumentation and industrial controls.

The importance of microprocessor training was discussed because of the increased applications in industry. It was announced that a microprocessor course is now being developed by the PCC Electronics Department.

Deny Bond For Church Killings

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP) — Alvin Lee King III, charged with five counts of murder and 10 of attempted murder stemming from a shooting attack on a church congregation, has been denied bond.

State District Judge Bill Moye said Thursday he would reserve the right for a rehearing when King is released from a hospital, where he is in fair condition with a self-inflicted head wound suffered after he allegedly stormed the First Baptist Church here on Sunday.

Free TV Couldn't Afford Its Creation

PRELIMINARY WINNERS — Preliminary winners during the second night of competition in the Miss North Carolina pageant in Raleigh were Darlene Annette Cropper, Miss Fayetteville, and Danette Dale Gordon, Miss Wake County. (AP Laserphoto)

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a dream television attraction, a prize event that generated its own publicity and promised to deliver a vast audience. Yet, the prize eluded ABC, NBC and CBS, and landed in the hands of two of their relatively tiny pay-TV competitors.

The Sugar Ray Leonard-Roberto Duran title fight marked a coup of sorts for pay TV: It was the first time pay television had won rights to a major sports event that "free TV" networks dearly coveted. It will happen again.

ABC had, in a way, helped create this jewel bout through Howard Cosell's fervent fosterage of Sugar Ray Leonard ever since the '76 Olympics. Sugar Ray, with Howard's help, became America's sweetheart. Now mean Roberto Duran presented an imposing challenge to the charismatic Olympic hero, and a dream fight was born.

But ABC couldn't afford the kind of money the bout's promoters were talking — in the neighborhood of $8 million. To make the venture pay, ABC would have had to charge exorbitant prices for advertising time, and the network couldn't be sure of finding enough high-rolling clients.

So, ABC palmed out $500,000 (at least) for rights to the bout's reruns — and had to agree to wait 29 days before broadcasting the fight.

The fight's promoters — Bob Arum and Don King — realized immediately that the bout had become a large enough event to warrant a closed-circuit deal. Hundreds of thousands of viewers paying 20 bucks a head is much more lucrative than going the network route, which is limited by commercial rates.

QUBE TV in Columbus, Ohio, and ON TV in Los Angeles were able to get into the act because they are the only home-delivery TV systems in the country with "addressable box" capability — that is, the capacity to direct their programs to specific viewers while blocking out the rest by scrambling the signal.

In essence, that capability enabled ON and QUBE to sell tickets to those of their subscribers who wanted to see the fight. The two TV systems acted as closed-circuit "houses," like the theaters.

With the proliferation of pay-TV systems, the implications of the Leonard-Duran event are clear: The networks are now in the position of having to compete for events not only with each other, but with pay TV as well. Increasingly, pay-TV figures to win out, unless the networks get help from Washington.

Working for the networks is the fact that when big events are sold to pay-TV, millions of Americans without access to pay-TV are shut out, and that riles Washington (remember the NFL "blackout" legislation).

And, there aren't many events with large enough appeal to warrant closed-circuit promotion. But Leonard-Duran was a beginning, and you can be sure the networks took note.

Pageant Finale Is On Saturday Night

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Miss Fayetteville and Miss Wake County were winners Thursday during the second night of preliminary competition in the 43rd annual Miss North Carolina Pageant.

Miss Fayetteville, Darlene Annette Cropper, 22, won the preliminary talent competition with a rendition of the song "He Touched Me."

Miss Wake County, Danette Dale Gordon, 22, won the preliminary swimsuit competition. Miss Gordon is a Meredith graduate, with a degree in Spanish and Education. She is now working on her master's degree at East Carolina University.

Preliminary competition will continue through the week, with the finals and crowning of Miss North Carolina 1980 on Saturday night at Memorial Auditorium.

Winners will be chosen each night in the swimsuit and talent categories, with a different group of contestants performing each night.

Wednesday night's winners were Miss Goldsboro, Teresa Renee Ham, in the talent contest, and Miss Elkin Valley, Barbara Foster, in the swimsuit competition.

Woman Contesting Darryl Zanuck Will

NEW YORK (AP) — The former companion of Darryl F. Zanuck has sued the movie mogul's estate for $15 million, claiming she was removed from his will when he was "not of sound mind."

Marvin Mitchelson, the Hollywood divorce lawyer, said litigation on behalf of former model Genevieve Gilles was a step toward the first "palimony" suit against a deceased person's estate.

Miss Gilles, 34, said she had six wills dating from 1970 to 1973 to prove her claim. She said Zanuck made the final will in October 1973 under duress and while senile, after his son Richard assaulted Miss Gilles and prevented her from seeing his father.

Zanuck, head of 20th Century Fox Studios for 40 years, died Dec. 22, 1979 in Palm Springs, Calif.

Miss Gilles' complaint said that she agreed to remain with Zanuck until his death, give up her career and "refrain from marrying or having any personal relationship with any other man" in return for 45 percent of his estate.

"We had a marvelous relationship. We loved one another," Miss Gilles said.

Thursday after legal papers were filed in Superior Court in Indio, Calif.

In Los Angeles, Richard Zanuck called Ms. Gilles' allegations "preposterous" and said his father was of sound mind until the time of his death. He also denied he had influence over the will.

"That's an absurdity," he said. "I have not been familiar with any of his wills. I never discussed a will with him or his lawyers."

He said he knew Miss Gilles years ago, but had not seen her "in at least eight years." He also said his father "was living with my mother up to the end. They never got a divorce."

Miss Gilles, whose real name is Genevieve Gillaizeau, said she and Zanuck did not marry because his wife, Virginia, would not give him a divorce.

Miss Gilles said she and Zanuck struck up a relationship in Paris in 1964, and she later became his constant companion, living and traveling with him for eight years.

She got a contract with 20th Century Fox in 1968, and made one film, "Hello and Goodbye."

Two Race Films In Production

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Two cross-country auto race films are currently in production, one in Africa and the other in the United States.

"Rally" stars David Caradine and Stockard Channing in a race through several wild animal game parks in Africa with Harry Hurwitz directing.

"Cannonball Run" involves Burt Reynolds, Roger Moore, Dom DeLuise and Farrah Fawcett in a screwball race from Georgia to California.

Susan Playing A Footballer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Susan Blakely will assay the unusual role of a feminine football player in "The Oklahoma City Dolls," a two-hour ABC-TV movie from Columbia Pictures Television.

The comedy drama, with strong statements for the women's rights movement, stars Blakely as a factory worker who organizes a football team among co-workers and becomes quarterback of the professional team.

More Surgery For Pryor Now Planned

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor, badly burned in a fire June 9, tentatively has been taken off the critical list and may undergo another skin graft operation late next week, hospital officials said.

"This is a tentative status change, and any further complications can put Mr. Pryor back on the critical list," said Gary Swaye, spokesman for Sherman Oaks Community Hospital.

Swaye said Thursday that about 75 percent of the skin grafts from Monday's surgery on "the majority of his wounds" appeared to have "taken." He said it was normal for some of the grafts to slough off.

Before the second operation can take place, he said, Pryor must grow new skin on his thighs and calves, from which the first grafts were taken, for "reharvesting" in future surgery.

He said that the actor's face, which was not operated on, "is healing quite well on its own at this point."

The skin was grafted onto Pryor's shoulders, neck, arms, back and chest. Since pink pigmentation sometimes results from grafts, Swaye said, the black comedian could need plastic surgery after he recovers.

Swaye stressed that burns, in addition to being extremely painful, caused a shock to the entire body and can cause complications even after the victim seems healed.

Complicating factors in pryor's case so far have been a case of pneumonia and a previous kidney problem, but both are under control, Swaye said.

The hospital continues to be inundated with letters, gifts and flowers for the entertainer, but physicians are restricting his visitors to immediate family members and one close friend, actor Jim Brown.

Swaye said Pryor is able to talk on the telephone but has no phone in his room and officials don't want him to take phone calls.

"When he's not in therapy, he's in his room to rest," Swaye said.

Making Sequel To 'Folles' Hit

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The producers of "La Cage Aux Folles," delighted with its box-office success in the United States and in other countries, are filming a sequel titled "La Cage Aux Folles II."

Reprising their roles as the two aging homosexuals in the farcical comedy will be Italy's Ugo Tognassi as Renato and France's Michel Serrault as Albin.

Capt. Kangaroo In 7,000th Show

NEW YORK (AP) — When Captain Kangaroo greeted the nation's children today, he was saying "Good Morning" for the 7,000th time.

And today marked the 53rd birthday of Bob Keeshan, who plays the soft-spoken Captain.

For 25 years now, children have been glued to their television sets on weekday mornings as Mr. Bunny Rabbit plots new ways to win carrots and Mr. Moose tricks the Captain into bringing down a barrage of ping pong balls. The CBS show is the longest-running children's program on network television.

Keeshan created the show in 1955 after a stint as Clarabelle the Clown on the "Howdy Doody Show." "Captain Kangaroo" has won three Peabody Awards and an Emmy and Keeshan last year was named Broadcaster of the Year by the International Radio and Television Society.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost more ground today in the wake of Thursday's late selloff. Declines outnumbered advances by close to a 2-1 margin in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 4.09 Thursday, dropped 3.59 to 879.86 by noon today. Analysts could find nothing in the news to explain the market's reversal after gains in the first three sessions this week.

al number of accidents either. "We were fortunate," he commented. "I would like to ask more drivers to cut on their headlights whenever inclement weather occurs. This will decrease the possibility of accidents."

Capt. A.G. Whitaker of the Greenville Police Department reported at least one and possibly three storm-related accidents in the city. "Between 3:45 and 7 p.m. we had four accidents, not an unusual number," he said. One accident occurred at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street when a vehicle was unable to stop on the wet surface and hit the rear of another vehicle, pushing it into a third auto.

A vehicle was stalled in a puddle at the intersection of Tenth and Anderson Streets and when another auto attempted to go around him, the stalled car rolled into the passing auto.

In a third accident, a car changing lanes was hit by another auto whose driver reportedly did not see his lane change indicator.

According to Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, the rain did not cause any damage to crops. "It was exactly what we needed," he explained. "The only damage I foresee is perhaps a bit of packing of the soil or some areas that drain poorly and the water stays put too long."

"Also, a few washouts may have occurred, and some wind damage. I did not hear any talk about hail, though," he added. Uzzell said the rain did not reach as far northeast as Bertie County, and that section is still in need of moisture.

Democrats Open Door To Carter Tax-Cutting

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While holding fast against the tax plan of Ronald Reagan and his fellow Republicans, majority Democrats have put President Carter on just a few weeks' notice to serve up a 1981 cut of his own or risk having one forced upon him by Congress.

That was the message Thursday, when Senate Democrats rejected the 10 per cent tax-cut bid by a virtually united minority and instructed its Finance Committee to write a more acceptable version by Sept. 3. The decision was yet another unofficial concession that there is very little hope left for a balanced 1981 budget, even as that remains a formal target.

Carter may well beat the Senate's timetable for advancing a tax cut. Though the president has consistently opposed any action this year on tax relief, sources within the chief executive's economic circle now say privately they expect a rather broad proposal to emerge in his mid-year budget revision, due no later than July 15.

Key advisers to the president say they want a multi-year tax cut to help spur investment and productivity through the mid-1980s, but they remain convinced it would do little in the short run to pull the country from the current economic slump. They would prefer enactment by the next session of Congress, with retroactivity to Jan. 1, on ground that moving sooner could set off a new round of inflationary expectations just as wholesale and consumer prices have moderated.

But that preference, they concede, likely will be overwhelmed by the rising pressures of an election year, and Carter could well be out with a comprehensive proposal at about the time the GOP meets in Detroit.

On a 58-38 vote, the Senate refused to attach Reagan's proposed $35.8-billion tax cut to a bill extending the federal debt ceiling. With the exception of Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who voted with the Democrats to table, or kill, the proposal, the vote was along party lines.

"The people of this country will not forget" that it was a Democratic-controlled Senate that turned thumbs-down on the tax cut, said Republican Leader Howard Baker.

Reagan, in a statement issued in Los Angeles, said much the same thing, adding that the Senate vote to delay consideration of a tax cut "rivals Jimmy Carter's empty rhetoric for sheer cynicism."

Democratic leaders accused Republicans and Reagan, the GOP nominee in waiting, of gimmickry and of playing Russian roulette with the economy. Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia decried the Reagan approach as a "Simple Simon, Tinkertoy" attempt to write major economic policy without benefit of full hearings.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the assistant Democratic leader, said Republicans "are counting on the Democrats to save the country by voting down their rash proposal — so they can claim that the Democrats are against cutting taxes."

The GOP proposal — which may be considered several more times in the Senate this year — would reduce individual income tax rates by an average of 10 percent and allow businesses a faster tax write-off of buildings, machinery and vehicles.

The Republican plan would provide $35.8 billion in tax relief in calendar year 1981, with 11 percent of it going to business. The cost would be $22.3 billion in fiscal 1981, which begins on Oct. 1, 1980.

The size, timing and details of the tax cut envisioned by Senate Democrats would be set by the Finance Committee.

Earlier this week, Alfred E. Kahn, the president's chief anti-inflation adviser, said for the first time that a tax cut in 1981 would be necessary and inevitable. And he suggested a figure of perhaps $25 billion.

Pressure on Carter to recommend tax reduction heightened on Wednesday when Reagan, in a coordinated effort with his supporters in Congress, called for an immediate tax cut for individuals and business to take effect next Jan. 1.

Senate Democrats hurried into a closed caucus Thursday and agreed that taxes should be cut starting next January. But in order to hear from the Carter administration, the public, business and labor, the Democrats agreed to give the Senate Finance Committee until Sept. 3 to produce a bill.

In addition to endorsing a tax reduction, the Senate Democratic Caucus named a 21-man task force, headed by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, to develop a long-range economic plan that would promote vigorous growth without inflation.

House Democratic leaders, who are still to be heard from in the tax-cut debate, discussed tax policy for an hour Thursday with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, the assistant Democratic leader, said much of the time was spent discussing "the irresponsibility of moving a major tax bill without any hearings."

Miller offered some suggestions, Brademas said, "but he did not come in with a proposal for a tax package to present to us."

Plant Delayed By New Rules

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — Completion of Duke Power Co.'s Catawba Nuclear plant may be delayed "five or six" months because of new federal requirements to make nuclear facilities earthquake proof, says Duke President Bill Lee.

Lee says the two Catawba reactors are scheduled to begin producing electricity in mid-1983 and 1985. Lee said Duke will decide next month how to proceed.

Total cost of the Catawba facility is now estimated at $2 billion, Lee said.

Wimbledon Struggles Against Rain

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Roscoe Tanner, a finalist last year, won a tie-breaker Friday to complete a 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 win over John Fitzgerald of Australia in the second round of the Wimbledon tennis tournament.

The match was halted by rain Thursday night with Fitzgerald, a 19-year-old who had played through the qualifying competition, leading 5-4 in the fourth set.

Tanner's big service saw him through to a tie-breaker, which he won 7-4.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, defeated Dick Stockton 4-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2 after the American had taken a tumble on the soft grass.

It happened in the fourth game of the final set. Nastase dropped a short one, and Stockton scrambled forward and took a dive by the net. Nastase held his service to win that game, and level the score at 2-2, and Stockton did not win another game.

He netted three volleys to lose his service at 2-3.

Fifteen-year-old American Andrea Jaeger beat Maria Redondo 6-2, 6-3 to reach the third round of the women's singles. Jaeger led 3-0 in the first set before Thursday night's rain.

And American teen-ager Tracy Austin, the No. 2 women's seed, comfortably defeated Nerida Gregory of Australia 6-1, 6-2.

A heavy backlog of matches built up after three days of rain. Friday's play started promptly, but dark clouds rolled in and a clap of thunder sounded as Nastase and Tanner neared the end of their match.

Jimmy Connors, 1974 men's singles champion, trounced Sherwood Stewart 6-0, 6-2, 6-1 Thursday and announced: "My career is far from finished."

Billie Jean King, six-time winner of the women's singles, and Evonne Goolagong, 1971 champion, both moved into the third round of the women's singles and made similar pronouncements.

That trio was among a handful of players to complete matches Thursday, when the program was once again wrecked by the notorious English weather, which brought hailstorms this time.

Four days into Wimbledon, former women's champion Chris Evert Lloyd has yet to hit a ball. Lloyd is one of a number of players forced into prolonged inactivity by the wet English weather. She was hoping to finally get on court Friday to play her second round match against Christine Jolissaint of Switzerland.

Lloyd, winner here in 1974 and 1976, had a bye in the first round and has spent four unhappy days waiting for the clouds to lift. They seldom have.

Bjorn Borg, four-time winner of the men's singles title, has played only one match in defense of the championship. His second-round match against former Israeli army sergeant Shlomo Glickstein Thursday was another victim of the rain.

That match is also scheduled to be played Friday, as is No. 2 John McEnroe's encounter with Australian Terry Rocavert. They were 2-2 in the first set when the rains came Thursday.

Women's champion Martina Navratilova meets American Rayni Fox in her second round match — also postponed from Thursday.

Connors' performance Thursday was the most impressive. He took just one hour and 12 minutes to destroy doubles expert Stewart with a display of controlled aggression that he has seldom matched.

"Right now I am hitting the ball as well as I ever have," said the third seed, mellowed by his marriage and the arrival almost 11 months ago of son Brett.

Last year Connors scowled his way to the semifinals, refusing interviews. Twelve months later he is calm and confident, giving freely of his time to both fans and media.

"Last year was difficult for me," he admitted. "This year is different. I'm concentrating and working hard, and I feel good."

King, winner of a record 20 Wimbledon titles, showed all her fighting spirit in saving two set points before defeating Anne Smith of Dallas 6-3, 7-6 in the second round of the women's singles.

Now 36, her knees crisscrossed by operation scars, King has lost none of her desire to win.

"My goal is to win another major title," she said, "I have been training hard for the past eight or nine days and am very relaxed."

Goolagong, mother of a 3-year-old daughter, is still as graceful as ever. At 29, she gives herself only a couple more years on the circuit before settling down with husband Roger Cawley and child Kelly at their home on Hilton Head Island, S.C.

"I am trying to play as much as possible while I'm still enjoying it," she said. "But I do want more children and maybe we will have a second child next year."

As if to prove she has retained her competitive edge, Goolagong had no trouble in brushing aside fellow Australian Jenny Walker 6-2, 6-2 Thursday and then announced: "I could do with a tougher match."

"After playing at Wimbledon for 10 years," she added, "I'm still very happy to be here. I wouldn't be here if I didn't think I had a good chance of winning."

Of the 13 men's seeds scheduled to play, only Connors and 10th-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia managed to complete their matches.

Lendl retrieved superbly to beat big-serving American John Sadri 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Among the non-seeds, Italian Davis Cuppers Adriano Panatta and Corrado Barazzutti staged a marvelous battle, with Panatta victorious 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Four Talking To Committee

The third of four candidates for the job of athletic director at East Carolina University is visiting the city today, and the fourth is expected to be here on Monday, sources say.

Two other candidates for the job were here earlier in the week. The four are believed to be the finalists in the search for a replacement for Bill Cain, who resigned the post in May.

Currently in town is Dr. Kenneth Karr, chairman of the Department of Athletics at San Diego State University in California. Coming in Monday will be Dr. Howard Hohman, who until a short time ago, was the athletic director at the University of Louisville, in Kentucky.

Those who have already been interviewed are Max Urlick, assistant athletic director at Iowa State University, and Dr. James O. West, associate director of athletic programs at the University of Virginia.

Karr, who served as the athletic director at San Diego for a number of years, beginning in 1969, recently was moved up to the post of chairman of the Department of Athletics. He also has administered sports and physical education programs at the University of Arizona. From 1964 until 1967, he served as an assistant football coach at Wake Forest University.

Hohman, who recently resigned from a similar post at the University of Louisville, has also served at Indiana University and Western Illinois University. His school's basketball team won the national championship this past season.

Louisville named a new athletic director earlier this week, and a source in Louisville said that Hohman left the position on his own.

West, who received both his undergraduate and graduate degrees from Virginia, has served as the baseball coach at that school for the past 20 seasons.

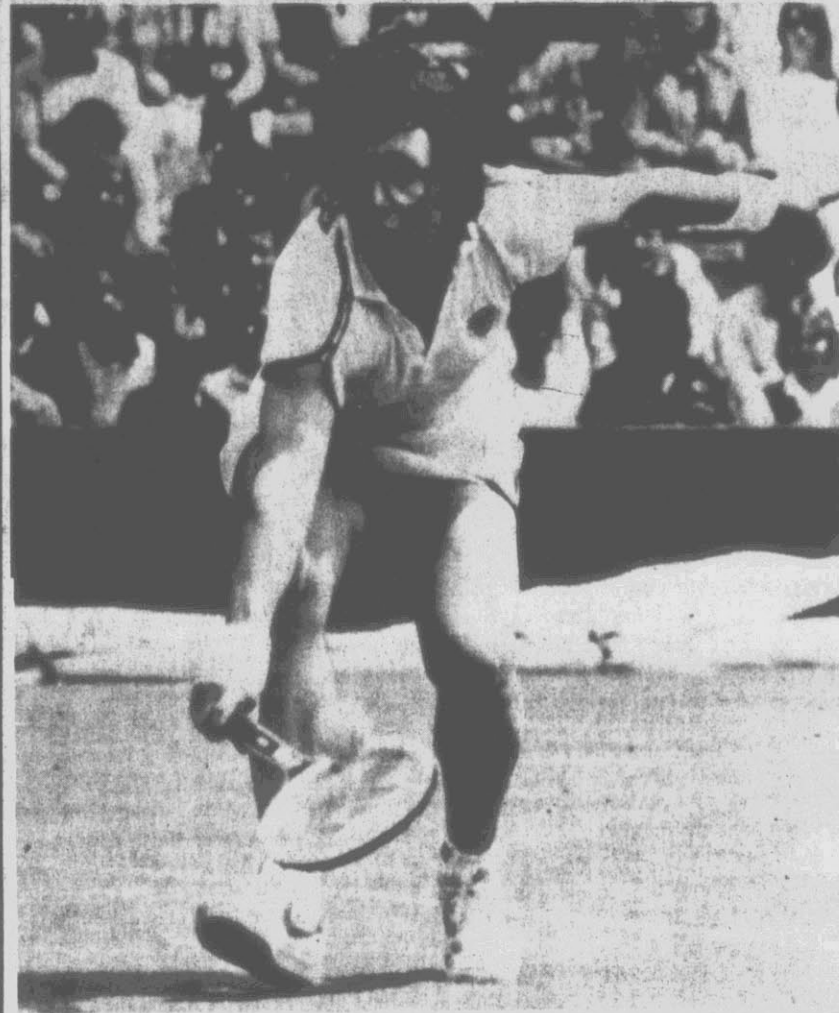

Urlick, at Iowa State since 1974, served on the coaching staffs of Army, Ohio State University and Duke University, prior to assuming his current post.

Over 60 applications were received by the search committee, which is headed by Chancellor Thomas Brewer. That group was cut to 15, and these four are appearing before the committee for face-to-face meetings.

At this time, it is not known whether any further candidates will be interviewed for the job. Dr. Ernest Schwarz is currently serving as interim athletic director.

University sources said the committee hopes to reach a decision in the next week or so, although it may be early August before the new leader of the athletic program is in Greenville to take over the program.

The new athletic director will be only the fourth to hold that position. Dr. Neph Jorgensen was the first athletic director of the University, holding the position from 1947-1963. He was followed by the late Clarence Stasavich, who served until his death in 1975. Bill Cain, who was the assistant athletic director at the time, was named a week after Stasavich's death to the post, holding it for four and a half years before his resignation in May.

Starts Another Quest

Veteran Billie Jean King of the United States runs in low to return a shot from fellow American Anne Smith during their Ladies Singles first round match at Wimbledon Thursday. Billie Jean, holder of 20 Wimbledon titles, defeated Smith 6-3, 7-6, to reach the second round of competition. (AP Laserphoto)

British Great Refuses To Compare The Best

EDON, England (AP) — Fred Perry is a tall, dignified, pipe-puffing Englishman with a roof of snow and an overview of tennis that spans half a century.

"There is one champion for every era. It is impossible to cross age boundaries and make comparisons," he insists, refusing to say whether Bjorn Borg could have beaten Big Bill Tilden in the latter's prime.

No one is better qualified to make such an assessment.

Perry, greatest of the British players, matched shots with the great Tilden on the professional tour, later battled it out with Ellsworth Vines and Don Budge, and finally retired to the life of a tennis marketeer and part-time broadcaster.

Although now a resident of Florida, he has been the voice of the British Broadcasting Corporation at Wimbledon for years.

Over a saucer of strawberries and cream, a square of cheese and a spot of tea, he surveyed the changing face of the game during a rain delay in the Wimbledon action.

"Tilden had remarkable longevity (seven United States and three Wimbledon crowns and numerous pro titles over three decades)," he said. "Borg already has four Wimbledon and five French titles and he's only 24."

"Comparisons are ludicrous. Since 1930 — when Big Bill won his last Wimbledon — and now, there have been significant changes not only in equipment but in rules and conditions. You have to rate a man in the era in which he exists."

Borg, like Tilden, possesses that intangible something that sets athletes apart in any sport — tennis, golf, baseball, football or soccer — Perry added.

"Nobody has found out what it is," he said. "Guts, fitness, concentration, determination. Apparently it's a gift. Tilden had it. Vines had it. So did Budge and Rod Laver. Jimmy Connors had it for one fleeting year — 1974 — then mysteriously lost it."

Modesty prevented Perry from saying it. But Fred Perry had it, too, in great abundance.

He was untouchable in the mid-1930s. He won three straight Wimbledon titles, the U.S. in 1933-34 and led Britain to four Davis Cup victories, breaking the domination of France's "Four Musketeers" in 1933.

"Back in my time, you had to play three out of five sets without benefit of a tie-break," Perry said. "You had to go non-stop. You couldn't sit down."

"Now players get a 90-second rest every two games. In serving, we had to have two feet behind the line and one on the ground when we struck the ball. Now players can jump at the ball. They have an 18-inch edge getting to the net. That's the difference of volleying at the hips rather than the shoetops."

Here's Perry's assessment of the great champions:

Tilden: "You never knew what he was going to do next. He was always out-thinking you. He imposed his character on you. On court, he acted like he owned it — and he did."

Vines: "Greatest sustained power of any player who ever lived."

Mand Quits ECU Post

Brian Mand, academic advisor for East Carolina's Athletic Department for the past year, has resigned his post effective July 1.

Mand will assume a similar post with Florida State University.

The Wake Forest graduate was the first academic advisor at East Carolina, working with the athletic department. He worked in the academic counselor's office at Ohio State and Rutgers before coming to Greenville. The Union, N.J., and native received his masters degree at Ohio State.

Parnell Inks NCW Pact

Jeff Parnell, a 6-4 basketball player at Greenville Christian Academy has signed a grant-in-aid with North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount.

Parnell, who led the Pitt-Martin-Greene area in scoring this past season, finished with a 21.9 points per game average, 2.6 ahead of his nearest rival for the scoring championship.

Chosen as Greenville Christian's Most Valuable Basketball Player, he was the recipient of the Sword Award for the outstanding Christian athlete at the school. He averaged 12.3 rebounds per game for the Knights during his senior season.

"Jeff had an outstanding career at Greenville Christian," Wesleyan coach John McCarthy said. "While there will be a period of adjustment to the more difficult level of competition, he definitely has the ability to become an excellent player in our program. He has good size and a super attitude."

Jeff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Parnell of Greenville.

Rain Hits Contests

Rain forced the delay of more area baseball and softball activities last night in Greenville and the area.

East Carolina's Summer League game with UNC-Wilmington was postponed, but no new date has been set as yet.

Snow Hill's American Legion baseball game with Washington has been rescheduled as part of a doubleheader on Saturday. Snow Hill will play Edenton at 2 p.m., then face Washington at 4 p.m., winding up the regular season for the team.

The Babe Ruth League lost its final game of the year, Coca-Cola vs. Pepsi-Cola, and it will not be made up, as the league moves into its post-season tournament tonight. A Prep League Tournament game between Auto Specialty and Greenville Hardware, set for yesterday, will be played today at 4 p.m. at Guy Smith. All Recreation Softball League play was postponed.

Sanderson Hurls 2-Hitter At Phillies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Montreal Expos pitcher Scott Sanderson is a cool "cat" for a young man just two years in the major leagues.

The 23-year-old Sanderson proved it again Thursday night in pitching a two-hit shutout to beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 1-0.

The triumph extended the Expos' lead in the National League East to 2½ games over the Phillies.

In the only other NL games played Thursday, New York beat Chicago 4-3 and San Francisco edged San Diego 2-1.

Sanderson, who boosted his record to 7-4, explained that he's always had poise, developed playing before large crowds in tense international competition.

"I pitched for the U.S. team in the intercontinental series in 1975, and at the Pan Am games in 1975. The noise of major league baseball doesn't bother me."

Sanderson demonstrated his poise in the seventh inning Thursday night. The Phillies had two out, trailed 1-0, and Mike Schmidt on third base.

Schmidt looked into the dugout and got permission to try and steal home.

The count was 1-1 on Manny Trillo when Schmidt broke for home. A lot of young pitchers might have balked, thrown the ball in the dirt, or threw a breaking ball which could be difficult for the catcher to handle.

Not Sanderson. Sanderson said he saw Schmidt break, thought at first the Phillies runner was hurting, but when he realized Schmidt really was going, the Expos' pitcher reacted perfectly.

"I threw a fastball up and in to drive Trillo off the plate and give my catcher room to make the play," Sanderson explained. "I kept my same fluid motion."

Carter said he saw Schmidt coming.

"I had him all the way," Carter declared. "I don't think there was any contest. I just stepped in front of the plate."

Did Schmidt think he was safe?

"I thought he could have called it either way," said Schmidt of plate umpire Dutch Remert's decision the runner was out.

Ironically, the game turned on another play at the plate.

In the Montreal fifth, Chris Speier opened with a single, was sacrificed to second, and with two out raced toward the plate on Andre Dawson's single to right.

Phillies' right fielder Bake McBride threw the ball home on two bounces, and Speier appeared to be out.

Catcher Bob Boone said Speier kicked the ball out of his glove. Speier said he thought he kicked Boone's shin guard.

Whatever, Speier was safe with the only run of the game off Randy Lerch, 2-10, who pitched a five-hitter.

Phillies' Manager Dallas Green said Schmidt's play was the kind he liked to see.

"That's the way I want our guys to play. Schmidt has good baseball instincts."

The Phillies not only lost a ball game, but also shortstop Larry Bowa for at least a week. Bowa pulled a hamstring in his right leg trying to field a ball in the first inning.

Mets 4, Cubs 3

Run-scoring singles by Joel Youngblood and John Stearns in the seventh inning lifted the Mets over the Cubs. Lee Mazzilli, who scored all the way from second base on a long sacrifice fly by Youngblood in the first inning, beat out a bunt to open the seventh, then stole second.

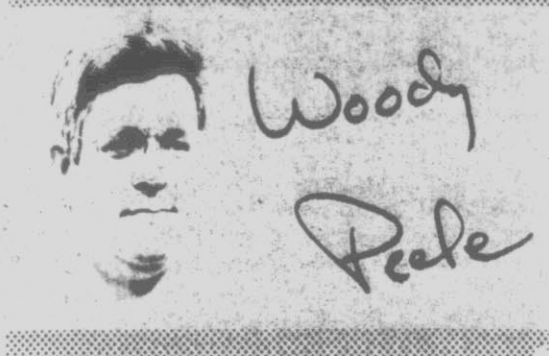

Giants 2, Padres 1

Jack Clark tripled home a run and scored on a single by Darrell Evans in the fourth inning and Ed Whitson earned his fourth straight victory, with clutch relief from Greg Minton in the ninth. Whitson allowed a run on Von Joshua's pinch homer in the eighth. One-out singles by Jerry Mumphrey and Tim Flannery put San Diego runners at first and third in the ninth but Minton got Gene Tenace to ground to third baseman Evans, who nailed Mumphrey at the plate.

doubleheader in Chicago. Mets' catcher Ron Hodges is at right. The Cubs won the second game to split the doubleheader with the Mets. (AP Laserphoto)

Brook Valley Country Club
Carolyn Clark, of North Augusta, South Carolina, scored a hole-in-one at the Brook Valley Country Club this past week.

She used a six-iron on the 132-yard 18th hole for the shot. It was her second career ace, the first coming just a few weeks early at Edisto Beach, S.C. She was playing with her husband, Tom Clark; her brother, Lee Alcorn, and sister-in-law, Martha Alcorn.

Dr. Raymond Garrison shot his best round with a 69. He one-putted 15 greens while playing with Dr. Dick Evans, Dr. Pinkney Young and Charles Gaskins Jr. According to Dr. Evans, none of the one-putts were under ten feet.

Twenty-four teams participated in the annual Mixed Guest Couples Spectacular recently. First place went to Mary and Gary Hess and Susan Corbett and Macon Moye with a 58. Taking second place, also with a 58, were Gay and Howard Waldrop and Harriette and Alex White. Third, with a 60 were Sandy and Jeff Cargile and Susan and Bill Cox. This was a two-day ringer score (taking the best score for the hole in two tries).

Bob Powell made an eagle two number three, hitting a five-iron into the hole. He was playing with Jim Fleming, Red Flanagan and Roger Riddick.

On Wednesday, a Jack and Jill Tournament will be held, starting at 5:30 p.m. On Friday, July 4, a Family Day Spectacular will be held. The Brook Valley Junior Championship will be held on July 15. The Lady Junior Captain Choice will be held on July 17. Signups for each may be made on the bulletin board.

Farmville Country Club
The annual Member-Guest Tournament is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday at the Farmville Country Clubs. The tournament is 36 holes of best ball play.

Problems Take Glitter Off Track Trial Opening

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Rainstorms, lawsuits and the Olympic boycott combined to take the glitter off the first five days of competition at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

But officials here hope sunshine and perhaps a world record or two over the final three days will make people forget all the problems that have plagued American amateur track this year.

The athletes took Thursday off and return today to Hayward Field, where the National Weather Service says there will be fair weather through the weekend.

"I have never seen it rain this hard in Eugene," Oregon pole vaulter Tom Hintnaus said after waiting through six hours of rain-delayed qualifying on Wednesday. "Now everybody thinks it's like this here all the time."

The rain has not held back the crowds noticeably. For the first five days, 69,610 people attended the competition in the 19,000-seat arena.

Several Trials' records were broken in the first five days of competition but no American or world marks have fallen.

That could change with the appearance of world record holder Mary Decker in the 1,500 meters, Brian Oldfield in the shot put, Franklin Jacobs and Dwight Stones in the high jump, and Mike Tully in the pole vault.

Oldfield and pole vaulter Steve Smith — both former professionals — made the meet's biggest news by going to court in a successful attempt to win the right to compete in the Trials. They had been denied entry because they are ineligible for the Olympic Games, even though they have regained their amateur status.

The athletes competing in the first five days of the meet said the cold, wet weather and a loss of incentive resulting from the U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympics kept performances from being what they might have been.

"Really, I feel this is a waste of time," said long jumper Arnie Robinson. "There really is no benefit to being here except to compete against Larry Myricks. The boycott really hurts. I think it is foolish."

There have been four major injuries to athletes at the Trials.

American record holder Deby LaPlante suffered a separation of her right shoulder when she fell during the 100-meter hurdle finals Wednesday night. High jumper Louise Ritter broke her right ankle when she stepped on a rock while camping near Eugene during the Trials.

Steeplechaser Bill Lundberg ruptured his left Achilles' tendon in the semifinal competition Wednesday night and pole vaulter Doug Searle cracked two ribs and broke his shoulder blade in a fall during qualifying, also on Wednesday.

Ali Says Deal Set For Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali said he had finalized a deal with promoter Don King to fight World Boxing Council Champion Larry Holmes in September.

Holmes and Ali originally had signed to meet in July at Rio de Janeiro, but the bout which was to mark Ali's comeback from retirement, was postponed and no new date or site has been announced.

There had been earlier reports that the bout would be held in September.

Ali was among scores of athletes and sports figures who paid tribute to television sports commentator Howard Cosell Thursday night as Cosell was honored by the American Friends of the Hebrew University.

The group included Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Pittsburgh Steelers running back Franco Harris, recently retired hockey star Gordie Howe, and basketball All America Darrell Griffith of Louisville.

Cosell received the organization's Sports Torch of Learning award at an annual program which memorializes 11 members of the Israeli Olympic team killed at the 1972 Games in Munich.

Pate Holds Lead At Memphis Open

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Pate had the lead, Jim Simons had the positive outlook and Lee Trevino had the fade working again in the $300,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

Pate, a disappointed runner-up again last week in the Canadian Open, fired a no-bogey, 6-under-par 66 for a one-stroke first round lead Thursday over Simons, Trevino and Tom Purtzer, tied at 67.

The group at 68 included recently crowned national seniors champion Don January, Morris Hatafsky, Peter Jacobsen, Leonard Thompson and Tony Cerda of Mexico.

Both Pate and Trevino are notorious hot-weather players and the humid, hazy weather with temperatures reaching into the mid-90's were entirely to their liking.

But each cited another factor as a possible key to their performances on the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course.

"I finally started driving the ball decently," said Pate. "I've been driving just awful for several months. And I've been putting great."

"That's a complete turn around for me. For years I was driving it great and putting awful. Now, the putting is still pretty good and I'm starting to get it back in the fairways."

The result was a solid effort in which he missed only two greens and never really was in danger of making a bogey.

Trevino, a winner once this year and almost constantly in title contention, said the weather could have been the reason he was able to work the ball from left to right, the action he has used in acquiring most of his victories.

"I got the fade back," Trevino said. "I think it's the heat. We've played a lot in cold weather and I've been hooking the ball. I think it's because I don't loosen up in cold weather and can't extend like I want to."

In any event, Trevino, who chipped in for one of his six birdies and dropped a 20-footer on his 17th hole to pull to within one of the lead, was bubbling with confidence.

"I think I can win," he said. "I'm playing good enough to win."

Simons, who built his score around a great saving par from the water and three spectacular iron shots, felt the same.

"I'm very optimistic," he said. "I'm rested, relaxed and my game is sharp."

Purtzer had an eagle-3 on the 16th hole and had a chance at another, which would have given him the lead, on the 18th. He reached the par-5 in two, then 3-putted for par.

Pate, who has been second in six events since scoring his last victory almost two years ago, got it going with a string of three consecutive birdies that was touched off by a 6-iron shot to two feet on the eighth, then closed it out with a little flip sand wedge that left him a 5-footer for the go-ahead birdie on the 18th.

Local Golfers High In Field

RALEIGH — A number of Greenville and area boys are among the leaders at the 27th annual North State Junior Boys Golf Championships, now underway at Raleigh's Wildwood Golf and Country Club.

Mike Moye, playing in the championship flight for 16-18 year olds, is just one stroke off the lead with a 209 total. Jack Mann, playing in the same flight, is 12 strokes off the pace with a 220.

Farmville's Gary Hobgood, playing in the championship flight for 14-15 year olds, leads the pack with a score of 217.

Doni White Jr., in the first flight for 16-18 year olds, has a three-round total of 225, and stands in a tie for second place.

In the second flight of the 16-18 group, Greg Howe is tied for third with a 223 total, and yesterday fired the low round of the day, a 68, attained in the rain. Tom Brewer and Ayden's Allen Daughtry, also in the same flight, have 228 and 233 scores, respectively, placing them in the lower half of their flights.

Among other 14-15 year olds, Farmville's Allen Wooten, has a total of 242, tying him for fourth place in the first flight, while Lyn Moore has a 248, tying him for second in the second flight.

Jim Blount, in the first flight of the 12-13 year old division, has a 264, leaving him about the middle of his group.

The 72-hole tournament is scheduled to wind up today.

Stone Hurls Eighth Straight Win For O's

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
The Baltimore Orioles' pitching staff includes a gourmet, a wine connoisseur, a restaurant owner and a poet.

The gourmet, wine connoisseur, restaurant owner and poet are all named Steve Stone, who also is the current ace of a staff that also includes two Cy Young Award winners.

The 32-year-old right-hander notched his eighth consecutive victory with a six-hitter as the Orioles defeated the Toronto

Blue Jays Thursday night. Stone, 10-3, struck out nine while tying New York's Tommy John for the American League lead in victories. It also was Stone's fourth straight complete game, the first time he has accomplished that feat since 1972.

As he did for a good part of last season, Stone heard boos Thursday night. Only this time they were for Manager Earl Weaver, when he came out to talk to the pitcher after Roy Howell opened the Toronto ninth with a single.

"The boing was pretty nice," Stone said. "Last year at this time they were boing my every appearance on the mound."

In the only other American League game, the Chicago White Sox downed the California Angels 5-2 and the Seattle Mariners whipped the Texas Rangers 8-4.

"I told Earl last year, during one of our famous run-ins, that I was not quite as bad as I was then," said Stone, who finished with an 11-7 record and 3.77 earned run average as the AL champs' No. 5 starter. "I needed regular work, and I never got regular work with a good ballclub."

He's getting it now with Dennis Martinez sidelined. Since last July 22, Stone has posted a 14-3 record and his current ERA of 3.25 is the lowest among the starters, including Cy Young winners Jim Palmer and Mike Flanagan.

John Lowenstein drove in two runs and also scored twice for Chicago. Don Baylor, on the disabled list since May 11 because of a broken bone in his left wrist, was in California's starting lineup for the first time since May 9. Last year's AL Most Valuable Player drove in a run with a sacrifice fly but was unable to prevent the Angels from losing Ken Singleton flied out, Eddie Murray, Terry Crowley and Lowenstein rapped consecutive singles to finish Clancy.

Concerning Stone's extracurricular activities, he is part owner of a group called "Let-tuce Entertain You," which owns and operates eight restaurants, including the "Pump Room" at Chicago's Ambassador East Hotel.

He also writes poetry and has been published in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago papers, as well as the National Jewish Monthly.

White Sox 5, Angels 2

Chet Lemon doubled to drive in two runs and also scored twice for Chicago. Don Baylor, on the disabled list since May 11 because of a broken bone in his left wrist, was in California's starting lineup for the first time since May 9. Last year's AL Most Valuable Player drove in a run with a sacrifice fly but was unable to prevent the Angels from losing for the 19th time in 22 games.

A throwing error by California third baseman Carney Lansford led to a pair of unearned Chicago runs in the second inning. The White Sox added three more in the third, two on Lemon's double.

Mariners 8, Rangers 4

Mario Mendoza and Larry Cox drove in three runs apiece as Seattle defeated Texas in steamy 108-degree weather, the hottest ever in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Winner Floyd Bannister had a three-hitter through six innings before the Rangers reached him for four runs in the seventh.

"I don't know how you'd ever get used to this heat unless you got in a sauna," said Seattle Manager Darrell Johnson. "Six strong innings is as much as you can ask from a pitcher in this heat, and Bannister gave it."

Mendoza had a double and two singles while Cox rapped a single and his third home run

Sherk's Other Life Gives Her Incentive On Women's Golf Tour

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — For most of the school year, Cathy Sherk devotes her time to being a wife and mother. Maybe that gives her incentive when she assumes her alter ego: a promising Ladies Professional Golf Association tour pro.

On 10 of her last 11 weekends, Sherk has been home in Port Colborne, Ontario, tending to the business of a housewife and keeping son Christopher, 5, in school.

But after firing a 4-under-par 69 Thursday, she took a one-shot lead over Murlie Breer and Pat Bradley into today's second round of a $125,000 LPGA tournament.

"I'm thrilled," said Sherk, whose 1980 earnings after making only eight of 21 LPGA events this year are less than one-third of the $18,750 first prize. "I feel good after taking some time off (five weeks). I'll be aggressive tomorrow too. I'd like another 4 or 5 under."

Eva Chang was fourth at 71, while Marlene Floyd, Kathy Whitworth and Pat Meyers were the only other entrants to break par with 72s over the 6,206-yard, par-73 Locust Hill Country Club course.

Eleven players were bunched four shots off the pace at 73. Only two — popular Nancy Lopez-Melton and defending tournament champion Jane Blalock — have won this season.

Donna Caponi Young, the top LPGA money-winner this year with earnings of $136,030, played only six holes before withdrawing because of a sore left shoulder. Young injured her leg, cheek and shoulder Tuesday when she tripped over a golf cart outside the clubhouse.

Blalock said worry over a slow-play penalty which cost Cathy Thompson two strokes bothered her into back-to-back bogeys on Nos. 13 and 14. Until then, Blalock was 1-under and easing within range.

Thompson, who carded a 79, fumed afterward because she received the slowness penalty while playing with amateur Deb DiStefano of nearby Webster, N.Y.

Meanwhile, Sherk had no problems as she breezed through 18 holes with seven birdies, three bogeys and eight pars.

Sherk had the advantage of an early start on a day when temperatures reached the 90s. She was the only player among 93 pros and three amateurs to birdie the par-3 fifth hole — a 159-yard sleeper which appeared easy but accounted for nearly as many bogeys as pars during the afternoon.

After a birdie on the 450-yard, par-5 No. 17, Sherk found trouble when she went for a birdie on the final hole.

"I pushed it too hard and it slid by about six feet," she said of three-putting the last green. "I wanted to go 6-under."

Bradley, 39, who ranks eighth on the tour with winnings this year of $70,680, sprang into striking distance with consecutive birdies on Nos. 17 and 18. The first exemplified the kind of aggressive play she said she was looking for — blasting out of a sand trap and one-putting.

"I've been close a lot this year and I've become too cautious. I feel I must be more calm and I'm working hard to stop my adrenalin," she said.

Playing in the same threesome with Bradley, the 41-year-old Breer also finished strongly with nine straight pars and a birdie on No. 18.

Wilma Rudolph, 20 Years Later, Takes Pride In Pioneer Role

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Twenty years ago, she was the toast of most of the world. One of 22 children, Wilma Rudolph overcame polio and impoverishment to become an Olympic champion.

Approaching the 20th anniversary of her Olympic triumph — and her 40th birthday — she takes pride in her pioneering role in women's sports.

"I was the beginning. I opened it up," said Rudolph, the first and only American woman to win three gold medals in track and field events at a single Olympics.

In July 1960 at Rome, as a 20-year-old mother of twin daughters, she swept the 100- and 200-meter events and gained another gold medal as a member of the 400-meter relay team.

Overnight, she was an international heroine, the Eric Heiden of her time.

"Prior to that, there had never been a time in history when girls were invited to major meets," she said, reminiscing in an interview with The Associated Press.

Her inspirational achievement and immense popularity brought change.

"They'd put in a special women's race for me in all the men's meets," said Rudolph, who currently lives in New York.

A year later, she retired as a world record holder. But unlike other Olympic greats who fade into obscurity, her feats were not forgotten.

A major television network aired her life story, "Wilma," in the late 1970s and black history books retell her triumphs.

Today, she is one of the nation's most popular after-dinner speakers on the lecturing tour and her life story is under consideration as a musical Broadway play.

How did she cope with the instant fame?

"More than anything, what really saved me was my children," said the mother of four. A year ago, she was named "National Mother of the Year."

While her gold medals remain a source of supreme achievement, she recently gave one away — to her mother, on "Mother's Day."

Her early years were marked by sickness and sacrifice. "All I can remember is being ill and bed-ridden. I wore braces and couldn't walk until I was nine."

"When I turned 10, I was challenging every boy on the block to a race," she recalled with a smile.

By age 14, she was a member of Tennessee State's track club. At age 15, she was a member of the Melbourne-bound U.S. Olympic team.

"It was the most frightening experience of my life. My whole world was black, and no one could understand me. But I was determined."

She returned home as one of the youngest medal winners in history, earning a bronze as a member of the 400-meter relay team.

Four years later at Rome, running in raggedy tennis shoes, she won the affection of the world, capping a stirring storybook career.

Of the 1960 U.S. Olympic boycott, she said, "It hurts me in the heart. It's just now beginning to sink in. The Olympics created me. I suffer with those athletes who have worked so long and so hard. We've got to let them know we care."

Contest Is Scheduled

The annual Pitch, Hit and Throw contest will be held on July 12 at 9 a.m. at Elm Street Park. The event is co-sponsored by the Greenville Parks and Recreation Department and Burger King Restaurants.

The event, part of the youth program of Major League Baseball, is open to boys and girls, ages 8-13 (age as of October 15). Youngsters compete in three areas: pitching for accuracy, hitting for distance and running the base paths for speed.

The national finals of the competition will be held at Cooperstown, N.Y., and the trophy presentations will be made on-field at the second game of the World Series.

Entry forms and details are available at Burger King, or from the Elm Street Gym.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 6-27

G V F N W V F B S A, O R Q K B C X O C V A V R
K Q S J V W V J K N X V G

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — STIFF WATER POLO POLISHES OFF A FRESH WHELP.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Neither vulnerable. South with a doubleton king of trumps, he might be lured into going up with that card on the lead of a low trump toward the queen, thus crashing the ace and king on the same trick. Or if West had a doubleton ace of trumps, he might rise with that card to cash a diamond trick, with the same happy result.

So South won the ace of diamonds and immediately led a low spade. After regarding that card with suspicion, West played low and the defenders were assured of four tricks, which they promptly cashed.

Declarer had available a line of play which, though it offered a considerably less than even chance of success, was nevertheless superior to the one he took. It depended only on the hearts splitting 3-3 and trumps 2-1.

After winning the ace of diamonds, declarer cashes three top hearts, and when both defenders follow, he continues with his last heart. If West ruffs, declarer discards his diamond and eventually loses only one trump trick. If West discards, so does dummy, and East must ruff with his ace of trumps. Either way, South loses only two trump tricks and the ace of clubs.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. BUILDING A FIREWALL — Firefighters work on fireline in the White River National Forest in western Colorado where a forest fire rages out of control. Frisbee Player Held In Robbery

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A soldier throwing a Frisbee by a lake wanted to know why these policemen were following him.

Authorities investigating a bank robbery Thursday said they arrested the man, 18-year-old Charles Keller Johnson, and found a wad of money in his waist band and a pistol in his pocket.

Johnson, who police said had been absent without leave from Fort Gordon since June 16, was charged with armed robbery.

Police said a man with a pistol handed a note demanding money Thursday afternoon to an employee of the First National Bank and Trust Company, then ran from the bank carrying more than $1,000 in a sack.

Witnesses saw the robber running toward Lake Olmstead holding a bag at his waist, investigators said.

When a search around the lake began, Johnson walked up to Detective Steve Scott and asked why he was being followed, police said.

Warn On Some Frozen Turkey Items

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government says some turkey products produced by Banquet Foods Corp. of St. Louis may be contaminated, although the company has not yet recalled the goods.

Department of Agriculture officials said Thursday that the products may have illegally high levels of the chemical dieldrin.

Dieldrin, a pesticide found to cause cancer in laboratory animals, has been banned from general use since 1974.

Banquet officials were not available for comment.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the products include about 2 million packages of Banquet frozen turkey dinners, turkey pies, "Manpleaser" turkey dinners, and turkey and gravy in boil-in-bags.

The USDA, which has no authority to order product recalls, asked Banquet to recall the product voluntarily. "But the firm has not yet agreed to do so," Ms.

Foreman said.

The USDA "will trace and detain any suspect product at distribution points and retail stores for further testing," she said.

The USDA said "further consumption of the suspect Banquet products should be avoided" although "there are no imminent health risks posed by the limited exposure" to food.

Poultry products cannot have more than 0.3 parts per million of dieldrin. Ms. Foreman said Banquet records showed that illegal levels of dieldrin may be present in four flocks of turkeys slaughtered "for further processing into turkey rolls" between April 21 and May 5 at the company's facility in Milan, Mo.

The Department of Agriculture listed the following as the codes on packages of turkey that should not be used: Banquet Turkey Pie — 8oz.

Potts Case Is Taken To Federal Appeals Court

ATLANTA (AP) — Convicted killer Jack Howard Potts, rebuffed by a federal judge in his latest attempt to avoid death in Georgia's electric chair, takes his off-again, on-again case before a federal appeals court today.

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley refused late Thursday to stay Potts' scheduled July 1 execution. O'Kelley said the 35-year-old condemned man waived his right to federal review of his case by abandoning an earlier appeal that blocked his execution on June 5.

Attorneys for Potts, maintaining their client really has changed his mind and wants to live, said they would file an emergency appeal of O'Kelley's ruling with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

A federal judge in Macon, Wilbur Owens, was considering another petition which seeks to halt the execution because of allegedly unconstitutional conditions on Georgia's death row.

Potts has twice fired his attorneys and abandoned his appeals, saying he would rather die in the electric chair than spend the rest of his life in prison. His renewed appeal was filed Wednesday afternoon.

Attorney Joe Nursey of Atlanta-based Team Defense said Potts now believes his newly adopted Catholic faith "will not allow him to destroy himself" and that his appeal might succeed.

"He's in it to stay now," Nursey said in an interview Thursday night.

Potts, who is awaiting execution at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center at Jackson, was sentenced to death for the 1975 kidnap-slaying of Roswell mechanic Michael Priest during a crime spree through north Georgia.

In an eight-page written order, O'Kelley — who issued the earlier stay of execution on the eve of Potts' last date with the electric chair — chided the inmate for abusing the federal appeals process with his erratic filing and withdrawal of appeals.

"There is not a shred of doubt or a grain of uncertainty" that Potts "understood the finality of his actions" when he withdrew his earlier appeal, O'Kelley wrote. "That this is a death case is irrelevant ... and although the consequences may be harsh, there must be an end to litigation."

The 5th Circuit Court on Thursday rejected another appeal of the Potts case filed independently by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of a Presbyterian minister and cousin of Potts acting as "next friends" to the condemned man.

But ACLU Regional Director Laughlin McDonald said late Thursday that the organization would not pursue the appeal any further now that Potts has taken up his own fight for life.
