History And Memories Of The Former Pitt Theater Recalled

A VANISHING LANDMARK... Bulldozers and workers demolished the burned out hulk of the former Pitt Theater on Evans Street last week. Opened on January 4, 1934, the theater was the scene of the showing of many movie classics before a night fire destroyed the building last August. It was at the that "Gone With The Wind" first showed in Greenville, and the big stage of the original building featured appearances by entertainers of past years such as Will Rogers and Constance Bennett. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest).

By JERRY RAYNO, Sunday Reflector Editor

As heavy equipment clawed and dug into brick and beams and men in hard-hats worked in a hot June sun last week to clear out the debris of the burned out hulk of the former Pitt Theater on Evans Street downtown, the building's passing stirred nostalgic memories for many of Greenville's long time residents.

Two who voiced their reminiscences and who also provided highlights of the movie house's 45-year history are Clifton H. (Cliff) Edwards, Jr. and his wife, the former Ann Morton, both Greenville natives. Theirs is a dual relationship to the building that for years was a central gathering place for entertainment in Greenville. Edwards' father, the late Clifton H. Edwards, Sr. was builder, owner and operator of Pitt Theater from early 1934 until his death in 1948. After the elder Edwards' death, Clifton Jr. carried on the operation of the theater. "Pitt opened on January 4, 1934," Edwards said. "The architecture of the building was Georgian Colonial and it had a slate roof. The walls were of a sculptural effect with plaster swirled and stippled."

Edwards noted that "a portrait of William Pitt was installed in the lobby. Later this was given to the county, and I believe it still hangs in the County Courthouse."

Mrs. Edwards remembers that "Pitt Theater soon became the place where all the young people, including courting couples, went to in Greenville. You could say I spent much of my youth in that theater and I remember well seeing many of the movies that have become classics."

"The original theater building," Edwards commented, "was as much theater as it was movie house. It had a big stage, dressing rooms and two bathrooms backstage. Back in those days, there were jackpot nights and a number of stage shows came in too."

"One I particularly recall was the appearance of Will Rogers. Then, in the early days of World War II, movie actress Constance Bennett was on stage in a bond-selling drive. We also had local talent coming in, such as the students from Marie Wilson's Dance Studio."

Like his wife Ann, Cliff Jr. admitted to "spending lots of time in the theater. On Saturdays, beside the regular movie there was always an exciting serial with a chapter to look forward to the next Saturday."

The price of movies for children then was nine cents. "For adults, movies were 40 or 50 cents, depending on the movie," Mrs. Edwards said.

What was known under the general term of "B" movies were shown a short distance away at the State Theater on Fifth Street, now renovated and re-named the Park Theater.

Some of the memorable movies the Edwards' recall seeing at Pitt over the years include the great Civil War epic, "Gone With The Wind." This landmark film of 1939 showed about three weeks at the Pitt," Edwards recalls, "a long showing. Usually, movies changed every two or three days."

Other films the couple recall seeing at Pitt include "Rebecca," the musicals "Oklahoma," "Camelot," and "An American In Paris." They also remember movies starring glamor names of past years such as Bette Davis, Betty Grable, Dick Powell, Joan Crawford, Alice Faye, Eleanor Powell and Dick Haymes, and a long list of other luminaries of the screen.

"I remember distinctly that when I went to see 'Gilda,' which starred Rita Hayworth," Mrs. Edwards said, "I had to sit in the balcony, the first time I'd ever had to do that."

Edwards pointed out the original theater "had 999 seats, and they were numbered. There was a regulation that a theater with over a thousand seats had to pay an extra tax, so my father limited the seats to one under a thousand."

At one time a play by Shakespeare was produced on stage, and Edwards remembers that during World War II "there was a constant run of war movies. In addition (Continued on Page A-3)

Senate Reluctantly Agrees To Cut In Spending Bill

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM, Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, biting the bullet

after three days of divisive money arguments, reluctantly agreed Saturday to cut $363 million from an emergency spending bill. The Senate agreed to the package of spending cuts by a 71-10 vote, but the enthusiasm did not match the wide margin. The proposal was drafted by Senate leaders, and they admitted they were driven by desperation.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the package of cuts was "an effort to get us out of our dilemma."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd said he supported the package "reluctantly, as we all do." And Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker said, "I don't like it. ... But we're in a bind, and we have to work our way through it."

The spending cuts included $143 million from federal revenue sharing; $30 million from the Corps of Engineers; $150 million from the Defense Department, intended to come from salaries; and $40 million from Amtrak. The Amtrak money had been intended to help repay the railroad's debt to the Federal Financing Bank.

Approval of the amendment brought the $15.9 billion emergency spending bill back within the Senate's self-imposed budget ceiling.

On Friday, the Senate had voted to put $572 million into revenue sharing, a vote that busted the budget ceiling and tied the Senate in knots.

Lawmakers searched until nearly midnight Friday for a way to bring the bill back within budget limits, and spent more than eight hours in the effort Saturday before agreeing to the leadership proposal.

With the dilemma resolved, final passage of the bill was expected late Saturday night, meaning House and Senate conferees could begin work early this week to resolve their differences over emergency spending.

The dilemma that faced the senators was illustrated in one vote earlier Saturday, when the Senate voted 47-36 against a proposal to cut $58 million in supplemental funding for the controversial Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway.

The $1.8 billion waterway in Alabama and Mississippi, intended to connect the Tennessee River basin with the Gulf of Mexico, is considered by many environmentalists to be a bloated "pork barrel" project, a waste of taxpayer money. Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., termed it "an effort to clone the Mississippi River."

But a move by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., to cut the funding failed to sway the project's defenders.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The cancer-stricken ex-Shah of Iran was hospitalized in "very serious" condition Saturday, under treatment by a team of French and Egyptian doctors, President Anwar Sadat reported.

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, the deposed Iranian monarch who has been living in exile in Egypt for the past four months, was readmitted Friday afternoon to the Maadi military hospital, where his cancerous spleen was removed in March.

Rumors that the shah had died were denied in Cairo and by the New York office of the ex-monarch's spokesman, Robert Armao.

Chris Godek, at Armao's office, said Pahlavi had been hospitalized for a type of typhoid, but "the rumor that the shah died is completely false." She said Armao, who is in Cairo, "was just on the telephone with the shah and said he is doing fine."

Egyptian Information Minister Mansour Hassan was asked about the rumor and said, "It's not true. We are following this very closely ... he is in the hospital, he is seriously ill."

Sadat disclosed June 17 that the 60-year-old Pahlavi had suffered a relapse, attributed to complications resulting from chemotherapy for treatment of cancer, which doctors said had spread to his liver. Sadat disclosed Saturday that the deposed Iranian monarch also contracted pneumonia at about that time.

The Egyptian leader, in Alexandria, said he had received an urgent message from the hospital saying Pahlavi's condition was "very serious," the official Middle East News Agency reported.

"Thus we should all pray for him," he said. Asked by reporters whether the ex-shah's death was imminent, Sadat replied, "Only God knows that, and I wouldn't want to hear of such a thing."

He said he was receiving hourly reports on Pahlavi's condition and planned to go to Cairo to see him if there was no improvement.

A presidential spokesman said later that Sadat would return to Cairo Sunday, interrupting his stay in Alexandria that had been expected to last until mid-July. The spokesman declined to say if Sadat would go to the hospital, but other sources indicated he would visit Pahlavi Sunday.

Officials at the hospital, in a Cairo suburb, refused to discuss his condition with reporters, and further details of the medical situation were unavailable.

As during Pahlavi's first stay there, the hospital was protected by heavy security — two armored cars, four trucks of riot police and (Continued on Page A-3)

Heat Death Toll May Go Higher

DALLAS (AP) — City and electric power company officials pleaded with residents Saturday to keep home air conditioners running or seek public shelter from a relentless heat wave bearing 100-degree temperatures that already has been implicated in at least 18 deaths.

The mercury streaked to 117 in Wichita Falls Saturday afternoon, breaking the all-time record high of 116 set Friday. The record high for June 27 in Wichita Falls was 108, set in 1928.

At 4 p.m. CDT, it was 112 at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, breaking the record for the date of 103 set in 1930. Dallas-Fort Worth registered 113 for the second day in a row Friday, the highest ever recorded.

The early summer heat wave pushed temperatures to the 100-degree mark for the fourth straight day Saturday in Oklahoma. Residents of Albuquerque, N.M., endured their seventh straight day of 100-degree weather.

Palm Springs, Calif., reported a reading of 110 degrees at midafternoon. In Los Angeles, midafternoon readings were in the mid 90s and Los Angeles County lifeguards said beach attendance was high.

Scores Dead In Plane Crash

By ROBERT McCARTNEY, Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — Navy ships, police boats and helicopters on Saturday recovered the bodies of 42 of the 81 persons aboard an Italian jetliner that crashed into the dark blue waters off Italy's Amalfi coast.

Officials said an explosion aboard the DC-9 of Italy's state-owned domestic airline, Itavia, was the most likely cause of the disaster Friday night. The airline named an investigative committee but told the Transportation Ministry there was no evidence to suggest sabotage. The ministry also began an investigation.

The search for more bodies was called off at nightfall, with authorities convinced there were no survivors. They said it would be resumed Sunday.

Itavia officials said the plane was carrying 77 passengers and four crew members when it went down in the Tyrrhenian Sea off Italy's west coast. They said they believed all aboard were Italians. Helicopters flew the bodies from search ships to Palermo, Sicily, where many grieving relatives stayed up all night awaiting news of the passengers' fate. Many of the passengers had been going to visit their families on summer vacations.

The twin-engine jetliner suddenly disappeared from radar screens during a flight to Palermo from Bologna in central Italy, authorities reported.

"It's an atypical accident. It's most likely that the plane blew up in midair but we can't be sure until we've examined the wreckage more carefully," Itavia spokesman Paolo Torrani said.

The wreckage was strewn over a 22-mile stretch of Tyrrhenian Sea about 90 miles southwest of Naples and the nearby Amalfi coast.

The crew of a small motor launch found the aircraft's tail, and other vessels found bodies, life-preservers and remains of inflatable rafts floating in an area marked by a large oil slick, officials said.

The tail section was found about 20 miles from most of the bodies, leading authorities to speculate the aircraft may have exploded in flight.

But Angelo Saccavini, chief of flight coordination for the airline, cautioned, "It's risky to jump to conclusions at this point."

The plane already had begun its descent to Palermo's Punta Raisi Airport when it lost contact with air controllers.

McDonnell Douglas Corp. of the United States built the plane in 1966 and sold it to Itavia in 1972. It had logged 14 years of service and 29,544 hours in the air, said to be an average amount for a plane approaching the end of its career.

The pilot, Domenico Gatti, 44, was a veteran with 7,255 hours of flying experience.

There have been two major air crashes at the Palermo airport since 1972. In May that year 115 people died in a crash.

In December 1978, a crash there cost 108 lives.

Apparently by coincidence, a committee of inquiry reported Saturday that pilot errors were the "probable determining causes" of the 1978 DC-9 crash.

The investigating group said the pilot failed to control altitude properly and relied too much on vision, rather than instruments.

Seventeen aircraft and four navy ships led the search effort Saturday.

Helen Douglas Dies

By JOHN R. BLOCK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Helen

Gahagan Douglas, a former stage star who never forgave Richard M. Nixon for the bitter U.S. Senate campaign he waged against her 30 years ago, died Saturday of cancer. She was 79.

Mrs. Douglas died at about 3:35 a.m. at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center after a seven-year battle with cancer, a disease she had urged the federal government to fight during her three terms in Congress.

Her husband, actor Melvyn Douglas, and daughter, Mary Helen, were near her bedside at her death, said Mrs. Douglas' secretary Nan Stevens. Her son Peter had visited Friday.

The 1950 Senate campaign in California between Mrs. Douglas and Nixon — on the eve of both the Cold War and the McCarthy era — was one of the most bitter ever waged for American elective office.

Mrs. Douglas' supporters charged Nixon put the congresswoman on the defensive by implying she was soft on communism.

"He (Nixon) left no stone unturned to leave the impression that she was a communist," Eleanor Roosevelt once said. "... He knew quite well she was no communist."

Mrs. Douglas campaigned saying she had consistently opposed communism but objected to the methods of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and to a bill backed by Nixon as "contrary to the principles of American civil rights."

Nixon won by 650,000 votes, polling 60 percent of the vote.

Mrs. Douglas' hostility toward Nixon never subsided. In 1972, she campaigned for Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern, saying Nixon "is still trying to convince the electorate that anybody who opposes him is un-American."

Just before Nixon resigned in disgrace in 1974, she said: "He never had the appreciation for high office that a candidate should have, but I never would have believed that it could go as far as this (Watergate)...."

Efforts to get the former president's reaction to Mrs. Douglas' death were unsuccessful.

Nixon aide Murray Chotiner said some years ago, "We never accused her of being a communist or of sympathizing with communists or of being in league with them. All we did was publish her voting record."

Mrs. Douglas had surgery when breast cancer was discovered in 1973, but cancer recurred three years ago. She entered the hospital a week ago, Miss Stevens said.

As a California congresswoman from 1944 to 1950, Mrs. Douglas was one of the first members of the House to urge federal support for research against the disease that claimed her life.

A stage star and concert singer before she went into politics, Helen Gahagan debuted on the Broadway stage at age 21, during her sophomore year at Barnard College.

Columnist Heywood Brown once listed her as "one of the 12 most beautiful women in America."

Her career as an actress was launched when Owen Davis selected her for the lead in his new play, "Dreams for Sale." She subsequently starred in such plays as "Young Woodley," "Enchanted April," "Trelawney of the Wells," "Mary Queen of Scotland," "First Lady" and "Tonight or Never."

In "Tonight or Never," she fell in love with her leading man, Melvyn Douglas, and married him in 1931.

Jose Iturbi Dead At 84

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pianist and conductor Jose Iturbi, who appeared in Hollywood musical films in the 1940s and later conducted symphony orchestras around the world, died Saturday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. He was 84.

A native of Valencia, Spain, Iturbi died of "a heart condition," hospital spokeswoman Tess Griffin said. He was admitted to the hospital Tuesday.

Iturbi, who made his American concert debut in 1929, was a longtime resident of Southern California.

Although his piano-dubbing for Cornell Wilde in Columbia's "A Song To Remember" became his Hollywood signature piece in 1945, Iturbi also sold more than 1 million copies of his recording of Debussy's "Clair de Lune."

He played popular songs in such musicals as "Thousands Cheer," "Music for Millions," "Anchors Aweigh," "Two Girls and a Sailor," "Holiday in Mexico," "That Midnight Kiss" and "The Birds and the Bees."

Iturbi shared the movie screen with such film greats as Kathryn Grayson, Gene Kelly, Frank Sinatra, Mary Astor, Ethel Barrymore and Walter Pidgeon. He played himself in several films, acting as an urbane European father confessor to young singing stars.

Eventually, he retired from films, saying people misinterpreted him. From 1935 to 1943, he was permanent conductor and music director of the Rochester, N.Y., Philharmonic Orchestra.

Iturbi made numerous world concert tours and guest conducted symphony orchestras around the world. He also composed a number of classical works.

Gas Leak Cause Found

FERNDALE, Md. (AP) — The cause of a massive natural gas leak which triggered the evacuation of about 300 homes here was discovered Saturday and residents were able to return home.

The leak, discovered at about 9 p.m. Friday, had caused gas to mix with water and spurt from spigots in the homes.

Charles Franklin, a spokesman for the Baltimore Gas and Electric Co., said a steel water pipe laid against a gas main was the source of the leak. The water pipe and gas main had corroded, allowing the high-pressure gas to enter the water system, Franklin said.

Electricity and water service, which had been cut off to reduce the danger of explosion, were restored early Saturday, but Franklin said it might be several hours before gas service was fully restored.

Paul Hailey, chief deputy of the county fire department, said an explosion that blew the lid off a toilet in a home Friday prompted the call to the fire department.

When firefighters arrived at the development, there was a heavy odor of gas both inside the homes and outside.

"In a lot of instances we didn't have to tell them to leave, they were getting out themselves," Hailey said. He said, however, that a few residents would not leave, choosing to remain in their darkened and gas-filled homes.

No injuries were reported as county police and firefighters removed residents to a shopping center parking lot.

"I didn't know what to think at first," said David Cross, a resident of the area.

"I turned the water on and it started spluttering, then it turned rusty, then it spluttered some more. It did the same in all the faucets," he said.

Fire officials said even the water in fire hydrants was mixed with natural gas.

Some residents were taken to Andover High School in Linthicum, Md., while some stayed with friends or relatives, officials said.

Franklin said no fires resulted from the leak, and no looting or vandalism was reported while the homes were vacant. Fire officials, aided by Red Cross and Civil Defense workers, said the evacuation was orderly and without incident.

today at 2 p.m. in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by Rev. Jim Nason, her pastor. Burial will follow in the Meeks Family Cemetery near Bethel.

Mrs. Meeks, a native of Martin County, had lived in and around Greenville for the past fifty years. She was a member of Parker's Free Will Baptist Church.

She is survived by three sons; Clayton Meeks of Gastonia, Bobby Meeks of El Cajon, California, and Howard Meeks of Mann's Harbor; two daughters; Miss Clara Meeks of Los Angeles, Ca., and Mrs. Ellen Harrell of New Bern; sixteen grandchildren and fourteen great grandchildren.

Spencer

Mr. George Spencer of 418 West 3rd Street died Saturday in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He is the father of Mrs. Fannie Evans of Greenville.

Funeral services are incomplete at Flanagan's Funeral Chapel.

Vietnamese Reportedly Sending More Troops Into Border Area

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam sent more troops into guerrilla strongholds near the Thai-Cambodian border Saturday, the Thai military command said, in what could be the start of a major drive to crush the remnants of toppled Cambodian Premier Pol Pot's supporters.

In Malaysia, U.S. Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie pledged to accelerate military aid to non-communist Thailand, whose troops traded artilleryfire with Vietnamese forces in Cambodia in the sixth day of border fighting.

Thailand says Vietnam's anti-guerrilla offensive, which began Monday, forced the Thai military response when it spilled across the border into Thailand. Vietnam and Cambodia have accused the Thais of infiltrating Pol Pot guerrillas into Cambodia and of outright armed attacks into the country — provoking an engagement with Vietnamese soldiers to rally support for Thailand's anti-Vietnam position. Vietnam has denied its troops crossed into Thailand.

Analysts in Bangkok said Saturday's reports of increased Vietnamese infiltration of Pol Pot strongholds could signify a major drive to clear the rebels from the border area. They also speculated it could simply be a move to keep the jungle fighters off balance.

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a report from the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh, carried a Cambodian Foreign Ministry statement saying the Vietnam-backed regime had no intention of violating Thailand's borders and accusing the Thais of ignoring repeated offers to negotiate "all problems of mutual interest." Thailand does not recognize the Vietnamese-backed regime of Heng Samrin.

Tass also quoted the Foreign Ministry as saying Thai authorities, "instigated by Peking and Washington, are allowing the use of the country's territory for the training and supplying of the remains of the Pol Pot gangs." The statement complained of shelling of Cambodia from Thailand and of "systematic" violations of Cambodian air space.

Muskie's promise of stepped-up deliveries of military equipment and increased humanitarian aid was made at the end of a two-day meeting in Kuala Lumpur among the five members of the non-communist Association of Southeast Asian Nations.

The five — Thailand, Indonesia, Singapore, the Philippines and Malaysia — issued a joint communique Saturday demanding an immediate withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from the troubled frontier and the rest of Cambodia.

An estimated 200,000 Vietnamese troops remain in Cambodia, where they helped topple Pol Pot in 1979 and replaced him with Heng Samrin, the current leader. Since then, the Vietnamese have supported Phnom Penh's battle against Pol Pot's Khmer Rouge and reported resistance from Free Khmer anti-communist guerrillas.

The Thai command reported an artillery exchange between the sides in the village of Sumphe, and that artillery were attempting to knock out Vietnamese gun positions inside Cambodia at the village of Sumphe.

The International Red Cross in Bangkok said there was no word on the fate of two of their employees and two American photographers captured by Hanoi's forces Thursday at the deserted refugee camp of Nong Chan.

Prem, viewing captured Vietnamese military equipment and inspecting pith helmets reportedly captured from Hanoi's soldiers, said Thailand had no designs on even "an inch" of Cambodian territory but would defend its own in face of further attacks.

Microelectronics Center For N. C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state will spend nearly $1 million to establish a Microelectronics Center of North Carolina to coordinate computer technology research and development, the Council of State agreed Friday.

The council, meeting in a closed session, approved the spending of $970,000 from the state's emergency and contingency fund to begin the center.

The center will be located at the Research Triangle Park, where Gov. Jim Hunt and state officials say they hope to attract manufacturers and researchers in the field of integrated computer circuits, called chips.

"The center will help make research in this field a cooperative venture and prevent duplication of efforts," Gov. Jim Hunt said in a prepared statement. "It will play an important role in helping us to recruit the best research talent available."

Hunt proposed the center to the council, and sources close to the governor who asked not to be named said it was closely linked with tentative plans by General Electric Co. to build a $200 million computer chip plant at the Research Triangle Park.

Helms For GOP VP Move In High Gear

WASHINGTON, AP — A campaign to put Sen. Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., on the Republican ticket as Ronald Reagan's running mate has moved into high gear.

The Raleigh-based Helms for Vice President Committee mailed 10,000 letters out this month, asking conservatives across the country to sign a petition urging Reagan to choose Helms as his running mate.

So far, about 5,000 petitions have been returned to the committee, said Carter Wrenn, director of the Congressional Club, a bipartisan conservative group organized by Helms. The petitions will be presented to Reagan sometime before the Republican National Convention in July.

Senate Agrees ...

Friday, Johnston had scolded the Senate for failing to face the hard task of cutting spending.

The $15.9 billion bill provides supplemental money for agencies throughout the government to carry them through to the end of the current fiscal year on Sept. 30.

Included in the bill, Ryan noted, is almost $1.1 billion for victims of the Mount St. Helens volcanic eruption money to provide benefits for sufferers from black lung disease, and trade assistance payments for the unemployed — all issues that need quick action.

To provide that money and still come under its $72.6 billion spending ceiling, approved by the Senate only two weeks ago, the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to cut $572 million in revenue sharing funds for the states.

The full Senate reversed that decision Friday amid promises to make up the money in other cuts and bring the appropriation back under the ceiling.

The decision tied the Senate, in knots, however, when legislators were unable to agree on any spending cuts — and backed into a corner by a later vote not to waive the ceiling limit.

The Tenn-Tom proposal would have appropriated money above the $133 billion already appropriated for the current fiscal year.

Supporters said the money is needed because contractors are working faster than planned, but Chaffee said that ignores the fact that the earlier appropriation was also a congressionally approved limit.

Venting Halted At Three Mile Island

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP)

Venting of radioactive krypton gas from the crippled Three Mile Island nuclear plant began on schedule today at 8 a.m. but was halted four minutes later when an alarm sounded on a radiation monitor inside the stack.

"It was not coming up at allowable levels," said Sandy Polon, a spokesman for the plant's operator, Metropolitan Edison Co. "There's no danger at all, that's what it's all about."

Polon said technicians would examine the problem and make adjustments to slow the rate of krypton flowing from the contaminated containment building.

Many of the residents of the small towns around the plant said they would follow their normal routines during the emission of krypton gas from the containment building of the reactor, where the nation's worst commercial nuclear power accident occurred 15 months ago.

"I've heard of four families that are leaving, from my group of friends, but the majority are staying," said Anne Trunk of Middletown, who was on the President's Commission on Three Mile Island.

"It's really pretty calm, which surprises me," she added.

Police reported only two or three families asked for checks on their homes over the weekend, which dispatcher Dane Kleinteller called a normal number. A state police spokesman in Harrisburg said Friday "traffic was no heavier than normal on the way to work."

Officials of Metropolitan Edison Co., operators of the plant, and such state authorities as Gov. Dick Thornburgh, were to be on hand for the start of the venting.

But some residents, particularly pregnant mothers or those with young children, had said they would take off for vacations and family visits to escape the first releases, which were to contain the highest concentrations of gas.

A volunteer at TMI Alert said the anti-nuclear group had received calls that thousands of people planned to leave. Kay Pickering said residents were also canceling outdoor activities.

The TMI Legal Fund, an anti-nuclear coalition based in Harrisburg, filed a last-minute court appeal Friday to halt the process. The group petitioned the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia to overturn its Thursday decision allowing the venting to proceed.

At least six of the 10 judges on the court would have to agree to reverse the earlier decision, in order for a stay to be granted.

The order denying the initial petition, signed by two judges, set a September hearing date for the case.

several police cars stood by.

The return of the "criminal" Pahlavi to Iran is the principal demand of Iranian militants for the release of 53 American hostages held since last Nov. 4.

Pahlavi fled his homeland at the height of the anti-shah revolution in January 1979, stopping first in Egypt before traveling on and eventually settling in Mexico. His admission to a New York hospital last October led to the hostage seizure in Iran. In March, at Sadat's invitation, he flew to Cairo from Panama for the spleen-removal operation.

Photographs taken of him in May showed him to be in better health than he was two months earlier. He said in an interview with the Washington Post on May 23 that he was feeling better and regaining lost weight.

The shah's personal physician, Houston surgeon Michael DeBakey, was reported to be in Europe Saturday on a long-planned visit. A spokesman for DeBakey in Texas said he did not believe the famed physician planned to go to Cairo.

tion to the regular movie, the "March of Time" newsreels and special features such as "Passing Parade" were shown. Most movies ended with a short comedy of about five or ten minutes.

In 1968 Edwards made a decision to renovate Pitt Theater. The renovation cost $82,000. That's when we installed drapery on the walls and put in air conditioning.

"Until then," Mrs. Edwards remarked, "it could be rather warm in the summer and a little cold in the winter."

Then, on the night of August 12, 1979, it really got hot as fire hit the Pitt during a showing of "Amityville Horror." The cinematic landmark building of Greenville was extensively damaged — fortunately with no injuries.

Last week, wrecking crews moved in to demolish the remains of Pitt Theater.

"It was a sturdy building, well-built," Edwards said. "So far as plans for the vacant site are concerned, we haven't finalized anything on that yet."

"We are going to miss having Pitt Theater downtown," Edwards said, "and I think many Greenville residents will share my feelings on this."

Wallace Plans To Enter Oregon Hospital

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Former Gov. George C. Wallace planned to enter an Oregon hospital over the weekend to undergo an experimental treatment aimed at relieving paraplegia discomfort, an aide said Saturday.

Elvin Stanton said Wallace was expected to be hospitalized for about two weeks at the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center in Portland.

"Wallace, a three-term Alabama governor, has been confined to a wheelchair since he was wounded in a 1972 assassination attempt while campaigning for the Democratic nomination for president at Laurel, Md.

Stanton said Wallace will undergo treatment with DMSO, or dimethyl sulfoxide, an industrial solvent which some researchers say shows promise in relieving the symptoms of arthritis and other painful conditions.

The treatment is not available in Alabama and is still being tested before being approved by the federal government for general use.

University Towers To Be Helpful

Elderly individuals and couples will have a place they can call their own by July 15. The University Towers Elderly Complex will be completed by that time and the first of persons 62 years old and older will begin to move in.

There are 60 units in the brick structure which is nearing completion on Third Street between Reade and Summit. It was constructed by the local housing authority through assistance from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

It is the first local development designed with the elderly in mind. The structure is five stories and includes 12 one-bedroom units on each floor. Each unit has 500 square feet of living area and a balcony.

There will be income limitations for occupants — $7,600 for individuals and $8,700 for couples. Their rents are expected to average $60 per month.

The development is, of course, located near the downtown business area, a neighborhood shopping center and city bus lines.

The complex will provide adequate housing for a number of older people in the community, many of whom are retired and on limited incomes.

City Bus Fare Increase Is Justified

City transit authority officials announced an increase in fares for riding GREAT buses effective July 1.

Regular fares on that day will be raised by five cents to 35 cents, with the price of a 40-ride pass increased to $12. Elderly and handicapped will continue to ride for 15 cents, with identification cards. They can obtain discount books for $6.

The price increase is expected to bring in an additional $7,000 annually which will be used to offset higher operating costs.

The increase is clearly justified in view of the fact that the transit system is not a paying operation and never will be. Fares have to be kept as low as possible in order to encourage ridership. At the same time the funds collected must pay a certain percentage of operating costs.

SUNDAY MORNING

Many Eye 1984 Election

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — Even before the 1980 election becomes history, the jockeying is underway for North Carolina's 1984 gubernatorial contest.

The Democratic Party nomination is the sought-after stepping stone, and important qualifications for would-be nominees include public service, party service and loyalty, public recognition, and a proven track record of success in election campaigning... either as a candidate, or as a key person in another candidate's campaign.

Here is how a number of people close to the activity view the present slate of hopefuls:

Maybe

Hargrove (Skipper) Bowles lost his bid when Republican Jim Holshouser became governor on Richard Nixon's coattails. The ambition remains.

Tom Bradshaw, former Raleigh mayor and now chief of the state's Department of Transportation has kept alive his hopes and a small organization of supporters.

Phil Carlton now sits on the state Supreme Court and was almost named chief justice by his loyal friend Jim Hunt. Carlton headed the state's first Department of Crime Control and Public Safety and authored a Crime Control Agenda for North Carolina. He is the current favorite of the powerful Bert Bennett-Hunt organization.

Rufus Edmisten, state attorney general who gained fame as an aide to U.S. Senator Sam Ervin in the Watergate proceedings had been busy building his own campaign organization statewide for the past four years, and that work continues apace.

John Gamble, Lincoln County physician and legislator will take four years off to study and write about issues as he considers an independent bid.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is in line for re-election this year and has in place an effective fund-raising and advisory organization as a result of his four years in office.

Eddie Knox, mayor of Charlotte and former state senator presents the fascinating prospect of North Carolina's first bid for the governor's office from the base of an urban mayor.

Bob Scott, former governor who lost this year's race for nomination to incumbent Jim Hunt still yearns for the job and sees no reason to quit now.

Carl Stewart, speaker of the House of Representatives who lost to Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green in that nomination race, is studying the problem of retiring campaign debts, remaining in the public's eye, and building a new campaign—all as a loser.

Bill Whichard, state senator from Durham, who is having difficulty getting attention in an already crowded field and will likely choose to run for lieutenant governor instead.

Upset

History has upset a lot of dreams and plans on that list. When the voters approved a constitutional amendment allowing the governor to run for a second term in office, a lot of timetables were thrown into disarray. Trying to recover momentum, hold supporters, raise funds, remain in some public office to maintain public exposure without making fatal mistakes, and keep from getting too old is proving difficult.

These are the hopefuls at this early time as viewed by insiders in the press, the party, and the power structure. They have not been asked individually about their plans since there is no need to gather a long list of comments like: "It's too early...we'll wait and see...I never close any door...this election isn't over yet..."

It is a sure thing that from this list, you wouldn't get a single Yes or No.

Sunday Morning Notes

Moving causes all kinds of problems. Your columnist sat in his new home surrounded by boxes on the first night.

Getting up on time in the mornings depends absolutely on a series of alarms... and even they won't always do the job.

Anyway, that first night I knew it was essential that I find two wind-up alarm clocks in all those boxes. They were needed even more than a toothbrush. But where were they? I rummaged through several boxes but to no avail.

Finally an idea dawned. I turned off the television, and anything else that made any noise, and listened. I heard the tell-tale ticking of the clocks in one of the dozens of boxes. Digging through some shoes and boots I found them and set them up for the following morning.

After working half the night straightening things out even the two alarm clocks were not fully sufficient to wake me up. They rang in succession and I was finally half awake. But when I managed to crawl out of bed it was only 15 minutes to reporting-to-work time.

I had planned well. A shaving kit was packed with

Other Editors Say One Set Of Rules

(Washington Daily News)

For the seventh time the Illinois legislature has defeated a bill that would add the state to the list of those endorsing the Equal Rights Amendment for inclusion in the United States Constitution.

Illinois is considered to be a key state in the drive for the ratification of the ERA since it is the last Northern industrial state not to have passed the proposed amendment. Pro-ERA groups lobbied hard in Illinois, and the defeat served as yet another blow to the drive which has seen thirty-five states pass the ERA bill.

But whenever the thirty-five state number is mentioned, there almost always seems to be a footnote. That footnote is that three states have rescinded their endorsement and vote on the Equal Rights Amendment following votes in favor of the proposal. The question has arisen whether or not a state can rescind a vote on a proposed constitutional amendment. Many so-called legal experts say that the states cannot reverse the positive vote, and that sentiment is echoed by ERA supporters across the country.

To our way of thinking this is hypocrisy in its finest detail. The ERA supporters wish to play by one set of rules when a state legislature votes in favor of the proposal, and under another set when a body votes against it. The "experts" are telling us that when a state legislature votes against the ERA it is merely tabling the amendment for a future session. But when the same body votes in favor of the ERA it closes the book forever on reconsideration. This just doesn't make sense to us.

Any body empowered to judge the merits of the Equal Rights Amendment and then pass it certainly should have the power to rescind that passage at a later date. A battle over this issue could take place, for thirty-eight states must pass the ERA for it to be written into the Constitution. Three more states are needed before the question of the three states to rescind will come into clear focus.

We support equal rights, but we don't believe that an amendment to the U.S. Constitution is the answer. If there are inequities in the laws, let our state legislatures leave no stone unturned until the discriminatory laws are changed. But don't allow the federal courts to make the decisions. With the legislatures we know what we're getting. The same cannot be said for the judiciary.

We say use the same rules for everyone. That, by the way, is equal rights.

all the things I would need for that first morning. Tooth brush, tooth paste, comb, shaving cream, razor... razor? That was what I had forgotten. That 15 minutes was flying and I had an overnight stubble of beard.

Frantically I tore through several packed boxes. Finally, success. I found a package of those disposable razors, raced back to the sink and shaved.

All that was a couple of weeks ago, however. Now everything is unpacked and placed in drawers, on shelves and in closets. Everything has a place, and a place for everything... all except that original razor. It never showed up.

It takes weeks to accumulate enough boxes to move... and then when it's all unpacked you have to get rid of them.

In my case that meant stacking them out back and gradually feeding them into the always-full dumpster on the premises. I would move a few each day but they seemed to multiply. Finally they are all gone and I'm feeling pretty proud.

Then what happens? Why you need a box, of course.

A Home On The Canal

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

 VENICE, Italy (AP) — There are the Picassos, of course, and the Klee, the Chagall, the Dalis and other modern masterpieces, but it is the front and back gardens that evoke the greatest reaction from visitors to Peggy Guggenheim's famed palazzo on the Grand Canal.

The back garden brings a gasp, a sigh and sometimes tears.

The front garden brings a gasp too, then a giggle and the inevitable click of camera shutters and flurry of flash bulbs. After St. Mark's Square and the Rialto bridge, it may well be the most photographed sight in Venice, although unsuitable for any but French postcards.

In a quiet corner of the back garden is her grave — she died last Dec. 23 at age 81 — and the inscription: "Here rests Peggy Guggenheim."

Close by appear to be more graves and the inscription: "Here lie my beloved babies," followed by their names and dates:

THE INSIDE REPORT

Basis For Haig At State

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — Unraveling of the Western alliance is the justification given by Ronald Reagan's national security advisers for making Gen. Alexander M. Haig the leading prospect to become secretary of state in a Reagan administration.

Reagan's foreign policy team, headed by Richard K. Allen, sees a major asset owned by Haig in any future dealings with Western Europe: intimacy with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt developed by Haig during nearly five years as supreme commander of NATO.

Reagan is alarmed at signs of a breakdown in the alliance, most lately President Carter's sharp letter to Schmidt on the eve of the Venice summit. Restoration of strength and harmony, particularly between the U.S. and West Germany, is Reagan's first step to any workable Western strategy in dealing with the worldwide Soviet offensive.

Therein lies Haig's allure as Reagan's instrument to make the industrialized, democratic world whole again. In the words of one high-level West German leader: "Naming Haig secretary of state would do more to revive the alliance than any single step I can think of."

It is the Reaganite thesis that Europe is the key to Western survival and that Schmidt is the key to Europe. That thesis, shared by many American foreign policy experts outside the Reagan camp, assumes a big Schmidt victory in the October election.

This points toward Al Haig as a natural Reagan agent for rebuilding the alliance. During Schmidt's last visit here, a March 6 dinner given for the chancellor by banker David Rockefeller in his Manhattan townhouse was conspicuously marked by a long, private chat in the library between Schmidt and Haig. When Haig underwent heart surgery at Houston Presbyterian Hospital in early April, Schmidt sent him a personal letter urging a speedy recovery.

To Schmidt, Jimmy Carter has been an uncertain partner with a dismaying tendency toward sudden policy swerves that have left Western Europe numbed and angry. Reagan is unknown in Europe; Haig at his side would provide reassurance. Arriving unwanted in Brussels in Nov. 1974, for his NATO assignment fresh from duty as Richard Nixon's White House chief of staff, Haig shed the Watergate taint quickly. In a few months, he had become a rallying point for the Western alliance.

The one impediment to Haig, however, could be Watergate. One Reagan insider told us "some stuff" on a White House tape, not available to the public, could hurt the general by revealing his reaction when Nixon first briefed him on the Watergate scandal. If this actually showed Haig knowing more than he later admitted, it would be fatal. But nobody is claiming this, and the tape may never be played publicly.

But Reagan's advisers think Watergate is outweighed by Haig's assets. Haig, Kissinger's lieutenant on Nixon's National Security Council staff, could be a bridge

Strength For Today

A PERSONAL GOD
 If, on the desk blotter in front of us we draw two circles, one on the left side and one on the right, and assume these to represent the sun and the earth, the planet farthest from us in our solar system would be ten miles away from where we are sitting. And the farthest galaxy from ours would be thousands of miles away.

When we are confronted by the vastness of the universe in dimensions beyond our comprehending, it is very difficult to believe that there is a personal God who cares for each one of us and is interested in our troubles and our aspirations.

A poet in a pleasant piece of verse cites a solution reached by a little girl lying in a hospital ward. She says to a worried girl companion lying in an adjoining bed: "The Lord has much to see to, but Emmie, you tell Him plain, It's the little girl with her arms lying out on the counterpane."

The Bulls Look To The Future

By JOHN CUNNIFF
 AP Business Analyst
 NEW YORK (AP) — Amidst the wailing that accompanies some of the worst economic news in years you can hear the roar of the bulls on Wall Street.

Recessions, the bulls say, are a time for looking up, a time to think of the future, a time for investing. Forget the present, the bulls say — there's profit in the future.

"Incongruous as it may seem the market has repeatedly posted large gains during recessionary periods," a brokerage house economist reminds us. And, with unemployment rising, it takes reminding.

The explanation isn't hard to grasp when you consider that successful investors live way out in the future, using the present only as a reference point. And the future, they are guessing, will be better.

Aubrey Zaffuto, economist at Schroder Naess & Thomas, comments that the high expectations result in part from the reactions of businessmen and consumers during a recession.

"For those who are not badly impacted, either by facing layoffs or sharply reduced demand, it is a period of saving.

"Both the consumer, who pulls in his horns a bit, reduces borrowing and increases his savings, and the corporate treasurer who tries to improve his balance sheet, contribute to a higher level of saving.

"This increase in savings is usually associated with a dramatic rejuvenation of the savings institutions and hence housing, and the stock and bond markets. The rise in savings lowers interest rates."

John Wright, whose Wright Investors' Service endorses a conservative point of view, now recommends a fully invested position in equities "in anticipation of a higher level of stock prices by year-end.

"During the last six recessions," Wright comments, "the Standard & Poor's 500 average bottomed at a point which always occurred well before the end of the recession, usually close to the halfway point."

Smart investors note that when short-term interest rates peak a major market bottom may also be reached, a correlation that is hardly a coincidence. The two, in fact, are facets of the same phenomenon.

High interest rates, for example, add to business expenses and also drain money away from stocks into bonds. When rates begin to decline so do business expenses. And funds are released for investing in stocks.

The explanation for those who dislike details is that a recession corrects imbalances and creates the mood for a new beginning. People and corporations get their financial houses in order for a big push.

In the new perspective people are less worried about the worst that can befall them because, as is often the case, they have met the worst and they have survived, although often with wounds.

The future offers an opportunity. Instead of balancing on a high rope and wondering if they'll fall, people find their feet planted on firm ground. They have fallen. The downward risk has been reduced, and the odds on rising, at least to where they were, are in their favor.

Timing remains the big question. Some of those who earn a living trying to see the future believe we haven't yet seen the bottom, and that the recession will last well into 1981.

But if you listen to the bulls, and it is hard to avoid hearing them, they will try to convince you that stocks are the bargain basement buys today because economic conditions will begin improving later this year.

Anderson Is 'Poor 3rd'

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — If, as in the past, issues play a dominant role in the presidential election outcome this year, a continuing high inflation rate would likely impair President Jimmy Carter's chances while an international crisis would almost certainly hurt GOP challenger Ronald Reagan.

In a recent nationwide Gallup Poll, a cross-section of the public was asked to indicate which of the three presidential contenders — Carter, Reagan or John Anderson — would do a better job of handling each of eight key domestic and international issues.

Of the two major-party candidates, Reagan leads Carter as being better able to deal with inflation. Carter, on the other hand, enjoys his greatest advantage over his Republican rival as being better able to keep the U.S. out of war.

Carter Wins On Four Of Eight Issues

The survey shows Carter winning on four issues: keeping the U.S. out of war, dealing with racial problems, dealing with Russia and handling the Iranian crisis, while Reagan wins on reducing inflation and cutting government spending. A close division of opinion about the relative ability of the two men is found on the remaining two issues: reducing unemployment and building trust in government.

Anderson, running as an independent candidate, lags behind Carter and Reagan on each of the eight issues tested, with his support ranging from 10 to 16 percent. It should be borne in mind, however, that voter preference for Anderson in the latest Gallup Poll test election is less than that given his two rivals for the presidency. As reported last week, Reagan wins 36 percent of the vote in the latest three-way trial heat, while Carter scores 35 percent and Anderson 23 percent.

It is politically significant to note which issues would draw Anderson voters to either Carter or Reagan in the event Anderson's support during the campaign were to decline or he were to withdraw from the race.

Today's analysis shows that Anderson backers lean heavily to Reagan on the inflation issue, but turn overwhelmingly to Carter on the "peace" issue.

Personality Factors Are Also Important

Although issues tend to play a dominant role in presidential elections, party loyalty, personality factors and perceptions of leadership ability are also of prime significance.

According to a recent Newsweek poll conducted by the Gallup Organization, Inc., for example, Reagan enjoys a decisive lead over Carter and Anderson for his perceived leadership qualities while the president has the edge in personal characteristics.

Here is the question asked and the national findings, with the results ranked from the greatest Carter support to the least:

"Regardless of which man you happen to prefer — Carter, Reagan or Anderson — please tell me which one you, yourself, feel would do a better job of handling each of the following problems."

Which Man Would Do A Better Job?

| | Carter | Reagan | Anderson | Un- decided |
|--------------------------------|--------|--------|----------|----------------|
| Keeping U.S. out of war | 47% | 20% | 10% | 23% |
| Dealing with racial problems | 41 | 20 | 12 | 27 |
| Dealing with Russia | 35 | 30 | 10 | 25 |
| Handling the Iranian situation | 34 | 28 | 10 | 28 |
| Building trust in government | 32 | 29 | 16 | 23 |
| Reducing unemployment | 29 | 31 | 13 | 27 |
| Reducing government spending | 29 | 37 | 12 | 22 |
| Reducing inflation | 25 | 36 | 14 | 25 |

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,597 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period May 30-June 2.

Collector Guggenheim tells about it in her delightful autobiography, "Out of This Century." She went to Milan to borrow a Marini work for an exhibition in her garden but "ended up buying the only thing available," the horseman.

The statue's nudity and anatomical details caused some embarrassment, and it was prudently neutralized on occasions when the cardinal-patriarch of Venice and other dignitaries passed along the canal in front of her villa — and she had to receive "stuffy visitors."

Tourists passing Venier dei Leoni, her 18th century palazzo of white stone, still climb on the seats and life-jacket hatches of the vaporettes — the canal ferries — to get a look at the horseman.

Now, with no one living there, the palazzo is open six afternoons a week to visitors, instead of three when Peggy Guggenheim was in residence, throwing her marvelous parties, playing house mother to young artists and writers like Alberto Giacometti and Truman Capote, hiding from the tourists in her bedroom with the unique bedstead Alexander Calder made for her.

between Reagan and Kissinger. Under no circumstance will Kissinger be invited into the Reagan administration; nevertheless, Reaganites do not want an open rift with him.

Reaganites also credit Haig for his connection with the old East Coast Republican establishment, or what is left of it. Such Republicans backed Haig's abortive campaign last year for the presidential nomination. Haig in the end declined to run for lack of support, and instead became president of United Technologies.

Another source of support for Haig is the American-Jewish community, especially the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee. American supporters of Israel believe his standing with European leaders, particularly Schmidt, could influence them toward a friendlier attitude toward Israel.

But the main driving force of Haig's Jewish backing is identical to Reagan's own reason for seriously considering him as his secretary of state: a realistic view of Soviet power and expansionism in the world. As such, Haig as secretary of state would fit a Reagan world view that is more coherent than his critics are willing to acknowledge.

As I Recall It Chapel Hill Has Art Museum Meant For Duke

By NOEL YANCEY

The will of William Hayes Ackland left his entire estate to create and endow an art museum at Duke University — in the heart of the southland which H.L. Mencken once described as that Sahara of the beaux-arts. But if you have visited Chapel Hill in the last 20 years, you may have noticed that the Ackland Museum is on the campus of the University of North Carolina. How did that happen, you may ask?

The answer is rather simple. Duke rejected the gift because of conditions set forth in the will of the crusty Washington attorney — a Tennessee native who loved art, loved the South and who dreamed of using his fortune to create an art museum as a memorial to himself on the campus of a Southern university. UNC won the bequest because O. Max Gardner, a former North Carolina governor, and then a top Washington lawyer, and other members of his firm persuaded federal courts that a museum on the Chapel Hill campus could best carry out Ackland's dream of advancing art in the South.

One of the conditions in the Ackland will that likely prompted Duke to reject the offer was a stipulation that the museum contain a suitable spot for Ackland's tomb together with a recumbent statue of the benefactor. One reason Duke gave was that the residue of the estate was to remain under the control of trustees named in the will rather than the university. And finally, Duke was rolling in dough. It had received $40 million from the Dukes a few years before, and the $1.4-million Ackland estate must have seemed like small potatoes to the Duke trustees executive committee who voted not to accept the Ackland money.

But the trustees' decision did represent a change in the official Duke position. Dr. W.P. Few, Duke president, had ardently wooed Ackland at one time.

On learning of Ackland's determination to finance the building of an art museum at a Southern university, Dr. Few invited Ackland to the Durham campus and displayed plans for an art museum he had asked the Duke architect prepare. The plans were complete and included an apse for the interment of Ackland beneath a recumbent statue.

Apparently Ackland was delighted. He drew up a new will leaving his entire estate to Duke, making no mention of UNC or Rollins college in Florida which had been his second and third choices in an earlier document. In 1938, Few wrote Ackland, suggesting that he advance part of the money immediately so that the museum building could be erected at once. However, the Washington attorney, described as something of an eccentric, did not see fit to do that.

Facing South

Lala Had A Way With Teaching', And A School

CHARLESTON, S.C. — I was born in 1888, right here where I am living now, in my great-uncle J.B.'s house in Charleston. Next door were J.B.'s sisters Lucinda and Harriet. Harriet's only surviving child — out of 13 — was Anna Eliza, whom we called "Lala." Lala excelled in school and was in the first graduating class of Avery Normal Institute. Later she had her own school, which was the first that I attended.

Aunt Harriet — Lala's mother — used to do what they call "social work" now. She didn't only take care of her own children and her next door neighbor's (which meant my mother's), she took care of all the children around, it seemed. If they didn't do what Aunt Harriet thought they should, she'd whip them good and then tell their mother what they were doing and that she had whipped them. Many times you could see her bringing children by the hand up to her house. If mothers around the neighborhood lost their children, people would say, "Go on down to Miss Izzard's." Nobody paid her. She'd just take that child out of the sun and bring it into the house. "Don't be walking around in the sun. Go to bed, go to sleep." And the mothers would find them resting or playing on the porch. I recall once she broke up a crap game. Some of the older boys would go into a small alley between Short Court and Spring Street, putting a boy at each end for a look-out. Not even the policeman could stop them. But when Aunt Harriet found out about it, she broke up that crap game. It didn't worry her that some of them were supposed to be "bad boys," rough. She went right in and pulled them out. Old Auntie stood for no nonsense. Lala took some of these qualities of her mother's.

Lala was educated to be a schoolteacher, but in her time black people could only teach in the country, and even then only in some of the schools. Because she was their only surviving child, her parents were very careful about her. They were afraid for her to go into the country, where she might get sick. So when the time came, Uncle Izzard built her a school in the back of the house: Miss Anna Eliza Izzard's School. He saw that everything was first-rate. He made benches and desks, divided the rooms, hung a blackboard — a "modern" thing to have in those days, since most school children only had slates. Lala kept maps and a globe, schoolbooks of all kinds, storybooks, songbooks, magazines. She had no piano in the school, but when she wanted to teach a new song, she would bring a few children over my mother's house, where they would use the organ to learn the song and then help her teach the rest of the school. After a while, Miss Izzard's was well known around Charleston and very successful. There was no other like it in Charleston.

At three years' old, I got tired of staying home while everyone else went to school, so one day I took over my potty-chair, asking to be allowed to stay. Lala let me sit by her that day, and I was admitted. She gave us a very good basis in spelling, arithmetic, and especially in geography, which she loved. Her geography lessons made us feel we were going all around the world. We knew what rivers we would cross where, when we would have to go over the mountains, what cities we would find. Sometimes we would find the places on the maps or on the globe and then look at the pictures in the "National Geographic." Geography wasn't boring with her, as it is with some teachers. Lala made it easy for us to learn even the difficult foreign names by using songs and rhythm. The same in arithmetic. We learned the time-tables with songs. And I can remember her teaching us the Roman numerals by a song and hand-claps: "O-n-e, t-w-o, t-h-r-e-e, f-o-u-r, f-i-v-e, s-i-x, s-e-v-e-n, e-i-g-h-t, n-i-n-e, t-e-n." "M-one thousand!" Some children in Charleston never learned these at all, but I did before I was six.

Lala gave us things that you didn't get at public school. Every Friday we had Bible reading. The children on the back bench, who were the highest in the school, would read, while the rest of us listened. The Lala would interpret, since the language was hard for us.

She also liked history. It was from her that I learned about slavery as our relatives had experienced it and what it meant. She told us about her grandfather, who had gone to England as a valet with the Middleton boys; how he studied right along with them and then taught his own sons, Uncle Abe and Uncle J.B., to read and write English, Hebrew, and Greek; how abolitionists sent them to school after the civil war to become pastors. She taught us how strong our ancestors back in slavery were and what fine people they were. I guess today people would say she was teaching us "black history."

SO BUSY WITH OTHER THINGS!

By GAIL MICHAELS

If Males Had An Equal Role In Child-Rearing

If men had historically taken an equal share of child-rearing responsibility, would the face of the world be the same today?

It's doubtful. After all, would Queen Isabella have financed a man with spit-up on his shoulder?

Just think about it. Ponce De Leon might have spent his entire Florida vacation in a laundromat. Napoleon might have cancelled Waterloo for an appointment at the pediatrician's. And without disposable diapers how far could Magellan have made it?

With a kid in tow getting across the street is a major production. It took me an hour to load the car with baby paraphernalia the last time I went anywhere. And that was to the drycleaners.

I keep getting this feeling that Zachary should be in college before I try to leave the house again. Since he was born, the only leisurely trip I've been able to make was to the mailbox.

But not until Phillip and I tried to go to church last Sunday did I realize how hopeless the situation was. I was pessimistic from the start. I knew from the moment I woke up and looked at the clock that we were going to need more time. It was 7:30.

"I've been thinking," I said to Phillip over breakfast. "Maybe it would be a good idea if you and I took turns going to church from now on. That way we don't have to worry about Zachary."

"No way. Families should attend church together."

"That sounds like something Truman Capote would say."

"Come on, Gail, why are you so worried?"

"Why are campers avoiding Mount St. Helens?"

"Okay, if that's your attitude, why don't you let me get Zachary ready this morning?"

"Are you going to nurse him?"

"Everything but."

"What else is there? He eats every 15 minutes."

"He has to be dressed, doesn't he? I'll take full responsibility for that."

I raced around the house trying to get Meg and me ready and urging him to hurry, but he didn't get Zachary dressed until 10:15. He picked Zachary up off the changing table, and Zachary spit up all over both of them.

Phillip dressed Zachary again and practically threw him in my lap. "Here, you feed him," he growled, "while I change my suit."

He had just finished putting on a clean shirt when I handed the baby back. "He puddled in my lap. You change him while I change me."

"But it's 10:50 and I'm not dressed yet."

"I tried to tell you."

I jumped into a clean dress and grabbed the diaper bag. "I'm ready to go. Are you?"

Phillip was still in his undershorts. "No, I'm not ready, and even if I were, I wouldn't go with a woman who's wearing a towel on her head."

I sat down on the side of the bed and sighed. "Oh well, let's hope God believes it's the thought that counts."

Phillip scowled. "Let's hope He doesn't."

'Dumping' Practice Is Ruining Our Industries

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — On his return from his get-away-from-it-all trip to Europe, Mr. Carter will find on his desk one of those items that is at once small and large. He will have to decide whether to retain or to lift the restraints that now limit the number of color television sets the Japanese may export into the United States. It is not an easy question.

By way of background: Fifteen or 20 years ago, when color TV began to make a profitable splash in the market, American manufacturers held an excellent position. There were 22 such domestic companies then. By the standards of such giants as automaking, steel, coal and chemicals, the color TV industry was small potatoes, but within the sphere of electronic manufacturing, the industry ranked fairly high. The technology is still young, and still growing.

This picture of robust health has faded badly in recent years. In 1972, roughly 42,000 persons were employed directly in making color TV sets; another 63,000 were employed indirectly by suppliers. Today the best estimate is that only 26,000 direct and 39,000 indirect employees remain. The 22 companies have dwindled to six — RCA, Zenith, General Electric, GTE-Sylvania, Wells-Gardner and Magnavox. This is a sick industry.

I count myself a lifelong advocate of international trade that is free and fair. Such devices as import quotas and protective tariffs have impressed me as crutches for cripples. In the case at hand, if it could be demonstrated that domestic makers of color TV sets had been guilty of poor design, I would kiss the domestic industry goodbye. Let it go.

But spokesmen for the color TV industry make a convincing case that the situation cannot be blamed on their own products or prices or marketing. American manufacturers have been victims of "dumping" — primarily by Japanese exporters — and they have been helpless to do much about it.

Somewhat oversimplified, this is how dumping works: A Japanese manufacturer builds a color TV set that can be sold profitably at, say, $150. The company then sells the set to its dealers in Japan for $200; and it sells the identical set to its dealers in the U.S. for $100. By earning large profits at home, the company is able to swallow large losses abroad. Meanwhile, the U.S. manufacturer, who also has unit costs of perhaps $150, cannot compete at the retail level.

Dumping is a vicious business. It is condemned by U.S. law and by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade as well. And there is no question that the Japanese manufacturers are guilty as charged. Two years ago the Treasury Department, after an exhaustive investigation, found that the Japanese companies owed $400 million in duties attributable to dumping between 1972 and 1977. The sum indicates that the Japanese took an average loss of roughly $40 on each set they dumped in the U.S. As a consequence, Japanese sets gained a retail price advantage of $65 to $75 over American-made sets.

This is dirty pool. For reasons beyond easy understanding, the Carter administration has made no serious effort to collect the $400 million. The Commerce Department has proposed settlement at about 10 cents on the dollar. No matter what ultimately is collected, it will not benefit our domestic industry.

What would help would be a decision by the president to continue the Orderly Marketing Agreement imposed after the 1972-77 dumping was discovered. The OMA limits Japanese imports to 1,750,000 sets a year, or about 17 percent of the total American market. Japanese-owned companies within the U.S. sell another 3,100,000 sets. Together, the figures mean that the Japanese have about 47 percent of the American color TV market. That would seem to be quite enough.

The existing OMA expires on June 30. Mr. Carter has authority to extend it. As I suggested at the onset, the problem is at once small and large — small in terms of protecting a relatively few jobs, but large in terms of preserving an area of American technology of value far beyond the TV tube. At some point, a line must be drawn against foreign competition that is neither free nor fair. In the matter of color TV, I'd draw the line here and now.

Special Blood Collection

A special American Red Cross Blood Collection will be made Saturday, July 5, from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. at the Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital Rehabilitation Center Gymnasium.

Since the Greenville Sub Center will be closed Friday, July 4, the Red Cross must collect Saturday to ensure platelet availability.

Platelets, the part of the blood that controls bleeding, are often required to treat cancer or leukemia patients undergoing chemotherapy. Unlike whole blood which can be stored for 35 days, platelets only have a shelf life of 72 hours. This short lifespan and the continuous demand for platelets forces the Red Cross to collect blood over a three-day weekend.

The American Red Cross Blood Services is the only source of blood and blood products for the 60 hospitals in eastern North Carolina and Virginia. During the holiday weekend 75 to 100 pints of blood must be collected for platelet production. It is through the support of the volunteer blood donor that the Red Cross can meet the hospital requests with a safe and effective blood supply, Tar River Sub Center Director Dick Carney said.

Two Receive Fellowships

WINSTON-SALEM — Robert L. Dough and Kathryn Ann McConnell, both of Greenville, are recipients of a student fellowship to conduct research at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine this summer.

Dough, a third year medical student at Bowman Gray, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dough of Greenville. Miss McConnell, a second year medical student at Bowman Gray, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. W. McConnell of Greenville.

The grant's purpose is to enable students to take part in research under the direction of a faculty member. Seminars as well as the involvement of scientists from different disciplines are part of the training.

Dough will take part in research entitled "The Complete Blood Count As a Health Screening Technique." The work will be done under the direction of a family practitioner and a research sociologist.

Miss McConnell will conduct research entitled "Subcellular Localization of the Glycoproteins of Friend Leukemia Virus." An immunologist will direct the work.

Dough holds a B.S. degree from East Carolina University while Miss McConnell holds a A.B. degree in chemistry from Duke University.

To Speak At Seminar

William G. Staton, certified financial analyst, will be the speaker at a seminar and social Monday at 5:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn. The event is sponsored by the local office of Interstate Securities Corporation.

Staton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Staton of Bethel. He is director of research for Interstate Securities Corp., member of the New York Stock Exchange, with 44 branches in North and South Carolina.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Staton received his master's degree from Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Marian Biggs at 752-3152, or the Interstate Securities office, 308 Evans Street.

Alumni Group Plans Reunion

The Greenville Industrial-Eppes High School Alumni Association will have its first annual reunion here July 4-6. Varied activities have been planned, beginning with registration Friday at 6 p.m. at the Holiday Inn. The festivities end Sunday when alumnae worship with the Cornerstone Baptist Church.

Former teachers will be the special guests of the reunion weekend.

Hasey Named President Of Chapter

Michael Hasey of the Burroughs-Wellcome Company here has been elected president of the Eastern Carolina chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

Other officers include vice presidents Andy Chused, Bill Ford and Jerry Sutton of Hampton Industries in Kinston and Curtis Howell of the Greenville Utilities Commission. The secretary is Charlotte Hale of the Burroughs-Wellcome Company and Ronald Pound of the Weyerhaeuser Company in New Bern is treasurer.

Harold Mills and Charles Schwidde of the Burroughs-Wellcome Company were elected to the board of directors.

The Eastern Carolina chapter of the National Association of Accountants, headquartered in Greenville, has a service area of all or parts of 19 counties. Membership is composed of men and women in a variety of occupations, including corporate officers, executives, engineers and others — anyone interested in the activities and objectives of the association.

As Yancey Recalls...

of both Ackland and Few, the attitude at Duke had changed. The trustees' executive committee voted not to accept the bequest. And Gardner conceived the idea of winning the bequest for his Alma Mater. But to do so he had to convince the courts that Ackland's wishes could be carried out better at UNC than at Rollins. And he also had to counter the claims of Ackland's nieces and nephews, his legal heirs.

In arguing the UNC case before the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington on June 16, 1943, Gardner asserted that the issue was whether Ackland's money may yet "serve on the campus of some comparable Southern university, the cause it was intended to serve at Duke University, or whether the gift shall fail and the property distributed among persons the testator in his last will specifically said should not have it."

Gardner had died before the court battle ended six years later in complete triumph for UNC. After his death, members of his firm of Gardner, Morrison and Rogers carried on that battle. Before the final victory, they had to appeal a court ruling that sided with Rollins. The Gardner firm did not charge UNC for their services.

Finally, the Ackland Art Center was dedicated at UNC on Sept. 20, 1958. In the interim, the Ackland estate had grown to the point that it financed the construction of the museum and there was "well over $1 million" left as endowment, the income of which is used to purchase objects of art to improve its collection.

Dr. Evan H. Turner, a former director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art and now director at Ackland, said the endowment is now worth between $2 million and $2.5 million. He describes it as "still a very small museum, but it's a museum of considerable national international reputation."

The question remains why Duke changed its attitude after the death of President Few, William E. King, the Duke archivist, noted the conditions in the Ackland will, and commented that "these gifts with strings attached present a problem."

Possibly an important factor in the decision was the provision in the will calling for a "mausoleum" in which Ackland was to be buried, King stated.

Perhaps there was a feeling among the Duke trustees that the shades of Washington Duke, Benjamin Duke and James B. Duke, who inhabit the crypt beneath the Duke Chapel, would not have been pleased to share even a small part of their star billing with the crusty Washington attorney who so badly wanted an art museum as his memorial and as a spot for his restless spirit to rest.

Perhaps that spirit was gladdened by comment made on the museum's 10th birthday by Dr. Joseph C. Sloane, its first director who said:

"It is with real pride that the Ackland can show the richness and diversity of historically significant and aesthetically excellent works of art which have been acquired through the William Hayes Ackland Endowment. Mr. Ackland generously gave his personal fortune to endow an art center which would serve the people of the South, (so) they would come to love the fine arts."

U.S., Mexican Border Governors Hold Meet

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer
CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — No major problems were solved during the historic two-day meeting between U.S. and Mexican governors from border states. But U.S. governors said they had achieved their primary objective of generating good will.

"The most significant accomplishment? That we met," said Texas Gov. Bill Clements, the Dallas oilman who became the state's first elected Republican governor two years ago.

Holding such a conference has been one of Clements' pet projects, but he has come under fire from fellow Texan Bob Krueger, a defeated Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, for "meddling" in foreign affairs.

Krueger, a special U.S. ambassador to Mexico who attended the conference which ended Friday, said problems between the neighboring nations should properly be discussed at the federal level.

State officials simply lack the authority to tackle problems like drug-smuggling, illegal aliens and pollution along the U.S.-Mexico border, said Krueger.

The nine governors at the meeting — all Democrats except Clements — disagreed with Krueger.

"Border relations are too important to leave to impersonal decisions in Washington and Chapultepec," Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt said. "The most significant accomplishment here was that ... for the first time the six Mexican border governors and the American governors have sat down together. It's the beginning of an important and historical process."

Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico said Krueger was wrong because officials on both sides of the border vowed to press their federal governments into action on policies agreed to first at the state level. Among the governors attending — only Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California was not there — Clements made the most concrete recommendations. His most controversial plan, which he had urged months before the conference, calls for issuing special work visas to Mexicans, allowing them to cross the border for limited periods of time.

The other governors agreed in principle with Clements' plan, but could not come to terms on the specifics. They agreed to set up a permanent border task force and several sub-task forces to work out details of that and other border issues.

The governors also agreed to hold another meeting within a year.

More than 200 American and Mexican reporters converged on this border city just south of El Paso, Texas, for the conference — but they were barred from morning meetings in which the governors discussed controversial issues. The reporters were permitted to attend afternoon sessions on such topics as industrial development, tourism and cultural exchange.

U.S. Assistance Pledged To Thailand

By HARI S. MANIAM
Associated Press Writer
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)— Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie pledged Saturday to accelerate U.S. military assistance to Thailand and then joined representatives of nine other non-communist nations in calling for the immediate withdrawal of Vietnamese and Soviet troops from foreign soil. The 10 nations condemned the Vietnamese "occupation" of Cambodia, the attacks by Vietnamese forces across the Cambodian border into Thailand, and the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. A joint communique was issued by Thailand, Indonesia, Singapore, the Philippines and Malaysia at the conclusion of their conference of foreign ministers of ASEAN the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. It included a pledge to bring greater international pressure for the Vietnamese-Soviet troop withdrawals. The communique was supported by foreign affairs chiefs from the United States, Japan, Australia, Canada and New Zealand, who met with the ASEAN ministers here. The Soviet Union moved at least 85,000 Russian troops into Afghanistan last December to support that country's Marxist government in its battle against Moslem rebels. Vietnam has an estimated 200,000 soldiers in Cambodia, where they helped topple the government of Premier Pol Pot in January 1979 and installed the regime of Heng Samrin.

at ASEAN, and the Kremlin recently accused Muskie of trying to spread American military influence through the association. The conference chairman, Malaysian Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen, told reporters ASEAN was formed in 1967 for socio-economic cooperation and would remain as such. "But politics and security cannot be divorced" he added, and the Cambodian fighting could not be ignored.

Two-Week Strike Ends

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — "We won!" a jubilant union member shouted as carpenters celebrated a new three-year contract that ended a two-week strike which shut down $1 billion worth of commercial and public works construction in Northern California. "I am very happy with the settlement," strike office worker Mike Stier said Friday after notification arrived that the 400-member Associated General Contractors had approved the pact.

The dispute had halted work on multi-million-dollar projects such as the state Capitol restoration in Sacramento and the new San Francisco convention center. The Northern California plasterers and masons union still have no contract, but it withdrew pickets Thursday as a sign of good faith for renewed bargaining.

Plans To Replace U.S. Ambassador To Guatemala

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration plans to replace the current U.S. ambassador to Guatemala in hopes of inducing the Guatemalan government to work to end the continuing political violence there, sources said Friday night.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said career diplomat George Landau will be appointed to replace Ambassador Frank Ortiz. The sources said it was felt that Landau's style would be "more appropriate" to deal with the task at hand. Ortiz, 54, has been in Guatemala for only a year. Landau, 60, has served since 1977 as ambassador to Chile, where he has become known as a strong advocate for protection of human rights.

Stier said work would resume Monday in the 46 counties where about 18,000 other trade union members have honored picket lines set up June 16 by representatives of the 8,000 members of the striking United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, AFL-CIO. The settlement provides a $2.30 hourly first-year increase in the former $18.49 wage-benefit hourly package. The daily subsistence for the 7,000 carpenters in the union will increase from $14 to 19, and

In 1983, about 200,000 people demonstrated in favor of the civil rights movement at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington.

Chopper Down In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Kenyan security troops forced a Tanzanian army helicopter to land at the Kenyan border town of Busia after the craft allegedly violated Kenyan airspace, but they released it after questioning the occupants, according to reports here Saturday. Hundreds of university students, meanwhile, marched through central Nairobi Saturday in a demonstration against the presence of Americans and other Western foreigners. No violence was reported. The detained helicopter carried two Tanzanian army officers and three civilians believed to be Ugandan politicians, the reports here said. About 10,000 Tanzanian troops are in Uganda to help maintain security following the ouster last year of former Ugandan President Idi Amin.

Disturbance In Oregon Prison

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Three state penitentiary inmates who were part of a group that held one guard hostage Friday night before guards charged into the cell block firing shotguns were listed in serious to critical condition Saturday, officials said.

Prison authorities imposed a lockdown on the prison Saturday and state police were searching all cells, Department of Human Resources representative Dave Fiskum said.

No disciplinary action will be taken until the investigation is completed, he said.

"We have no idea of what these individuals' roles were in the incident," Fiskum said.

Guards freed 55-year-old guard Stan Fitts, who was not injured, after the inmates had held him for about an hour Friday night. The entire incident lasted about an hour and 45 minutes.

Warden Hoyt Cupp, returning to the prison after having left for the day on Friday, ordered the charge by guards when the prisoners refused to return to their cells, Fiskum said. He said Cupp ordered the guards to shoot low.

Fiskum said about 15 inmates became unruly because they thought guards were mistreating four intoxicated prisoners who were being taken to the penitentiary's segregation unit.

He said the impression of mistreatment arose from guards' efforts to deal with the intoxicated prisoners' resistance.

"It took a lot to handle them," Fiskum said. "They were fighting all the way, they were drunk."

Fiskum said four prisoners were in Salem Hospital Memorial Unit with birdshot wounds in the legs. Listed in serious-to-critical condition were George Nulph, 28, convicted of murder and kidnapping, and Marion Piening, 76, convicted on a sexual assault charge, he said.

Gerald Albers, 29, was listed in serious condition and James Thompson, 21, in fair condition. Thompson was convicted of murder and Albers of attempted burglary and escape charges, Fiskum said.

A fifth prisoner was released from the hospital after treatment and a sixth was in the penitentiary hos-

Potts Wins Stay Of Execution

By JON BIXBY
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Ga. (AP) — Convicted murderer Jack Potts won a stay of execution Saturday from a federal appeals court panel, just three days before he was scheduled to die in Georgia's electric chair.

It was the second stay won by Potts this month in his on-again, off-again appeals.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals issued the stay pending a hearing on an emergency appeal filed Friday by Potts' attorneys. Joan Perkins, a clerk at the appeals court, said her office had been instructed to expedite the appeal.

On the eve of Potts' scheduled June 5 execution, U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley of Atlanta issued a stay after Potts agreed at the last minute to renew the appeal he abandoned last fall.

O'Kelley vacated that stay, however, when Potts appeared at a hearing June 10 to renounce his appeal.

On Thursday, O'Kelley balked at reinstating the stay after the condemned man changed his mind again and resumed his appeal.

Potts, 35, received word of the stay from Diane Nicholson, a former girlfriend who was visiting him at the Georgia Diagnostic and Classification Center near here.

Mrs. Nicholson said Potts was "elated" and jumped up and hugged her when he heard the news.

She said she received a telephone call at the prison from Andrea Young, an attorney with the Atlanta-based Team Defense Project who was at the court in New Orleans. The call came just minutes before the 1 p.m. close of prison visiting hours, she said. "I would have been gone in five minutes."

Potts was moved Saturday morning to a special holding cell in the newly constructed death house at the Jackson prison to begin a 72-hour "death watch" prior to the scheduled execution.

Prison spokeswoman Sara Engle said the "death watch" would continue until the Georgia attorney general's office had an opportunity to review the 5th Circuit Court's decision.

Georgia Attorney General Arthur Bolton said his staff would appeal the stay immediately.

Turkey Recall

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Banquet Foods Corp. has announced the recall of at least 2 million packages of turkey products said by the federal government to be contaminated with a pesticide.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said Thursday that the products contain illegally high levels of the chemical dieldrin, a pesticide found to cause cancer in laboratory animals. Dieldrin has been banned from general use since 1974.

In announcing the recall Friday, the St. Louis company stressed that the products including frozen turkey dinners and turkey pot pies posed no imminent health risks.

"Banquet has an 80-year record of producing high-quality products in full compliance and cooperation with government agencies and regulations and is continuing to do so in this instance," Banquet president Floyd F. Smith said.

An assistant secretary of agriculture, Carol Tucker Foreman, said high levels of dieldrin may have been present in four flocks

Colorado Forest Fire

EAGLE, Colo. (AP) — Crews fighting the largest forest fire in Colorado history were sent scurrying to other battle positions when the 7,000-acre blaze did a sudden about-face and consumed another 1,000 acres.

The fire had burned northeasterly since breaking out Wednesday, but on Friday afternoon turned around and raced back through the steep, rough terrain of the White River National Forest. Before the fire turned, forest officials had reduced estimates of destruction to about 7,000 acres.

New Directions Seen In 'Can't Stop The Music'

A Review

"Can't Stop The Music," the lavish, glittering musical that opened Friday night at the Buccaneer Movies, is an immensely entertaining 1980 variation on the formula musicals of a generation ago.

Remember the "spectaculars" of the 30s and 40s that Americans loved and cheered — as Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Don Ameche, Carmen Miranda, Judy Garland, and Gene Kelley, among others, sang and danced their way into our hearts?

"Can't Stop The Music" in many ways is true to this genre — but with several important differences. In the old days, the songs — "You'll Never Know," "Moon Over Miami," "Be Careful, It's My Heart," etc., as a rule were sentimental ballads. Orchestration tended to be oriented to great sweeps of strings. Now the music is snappier, with the disco beat predominating.

Also, the consequences of the great liberation movement of the past decade manifestly influences the direction of the plot of "Can't Stop The Music." Somewhere along the way, a significant reversal has taken place. In this musical, it is the male who is the object of the female's attention — and woman is the primary manipulator in paving the road to success. Instead of the typical young chorus girl being eyed menacingly by an aging daddy-angel, we have a woman successful in an advertising firm (Marilyn Sokol as Alicia Edwards) lecherously leering young Felipe Rose, the Indian of the Village People.

Miss Sokol, a sultry brunette, is one of the real show stoppers in this film. A trio of not-so-young actresses — Tammy Grimes as the advertising tycoon power to be reckoned with; Barbara Rush in the role of Bruce Jenner's rich, lovely mother; and June Havoc as the hovering, protective mother of Steve Guttenberg, still dazzle with their middle-aged charm.

And they fill the role of characters providing the expected ingredient of home-spun philosophy and the genius for sniffing out ideas for success — Ms. Grimes conceives a campaign "to make milk more glamorous than champagne;" she's also delighted about a trip to San Francisco "because that's where my favorite ex-husband lives." Ms. Havoc wistfully notes that "when it comes to eating, all mothers are Jewish."

In the time-tested vein of musicals, "Can't Stop The Music" offers several a extravaganza production numbers. "Milk Shake" is an-white spectacle, including white balloons. "YMCA," one of the hit songs of The Village People a couple of season ago, is the basis of a muscular song and dance routine featuring an array of body builders, gymnasts, swimmers and other athletic types. (The PG rating given "Can't Stop The Music," rather than a G rating, is likely based on the absence of costumes for a group scene in a steam room. This scene, however, is filmed discreetly, with the steam obscuring what might otherwise be objectionable viewing. True to the scripts of long ago musicals, the dialogue is about as pure as Ivory Soap.)

One curious plot twist — all the quitters become winners. Valerie Perrine, as Samantha Simpson, who'd given up her job as the top model in New York City, finds a new world to conquer as manager of The Village People. Bruce Jenner, in his movie debut as Ron White, lawyer and son of an eminent lawyer, quits his lucrative practice to become part of the Village way of life. Eventually, he is welcomed back into the firm with a promotion. Steve Guttenberg, who plays the young composer, was a two-time washout.

The Village People are, predictably, rousing good playing themselves — Glenn Hughes, the leatherman; Felipe Rose, the Indian; Alex Briley, the GI; Randy Jones, cowboy; David Hodo, the construction worker; and Ray Simpson, the cop.

Hughes adds a nostalgia trip with a fine rendition of "Danny Boy," and Raleigh's Randy Jones is resplendent as a cowboy in brilliant red. The Richie Family makes a guest appearance in the film's exuberant finale, the San Francisco sequence featuring the title song.

The spirited choreography, the splendor of the photography, which involves ingenious use of mirrors to reflect singers and dancers in several sequences, and the pulsating disco beat of the musical score all add up to care-free musical entertainment. The film also marks the directorial debut of veteran stage and star screen Nancy Walker. Hopefully, "Can't Stop The Music" will be a signpost of the form musicals will take in the 1980s.

The Monitors Return For A Sunday In The Park Concert

The Monitors, an eastern North Carolina musical group which has entertained every summer at Greenville's Sunday in the Park since its inception, will be returning for the 1980 series as the attraction for today's concert on the slope east of Reade Street.

The eight member ensemble — two vocalists and six instrumentalists, are: singers Georgia Holmes and Charles Proctor, saxophonist William Myers, bassist P. A. Best, guitarist Elton Jones, drummer Sam Latham, organist Cleveland Floure, and trumpeter Clinton Patterson.

For their program today, The Monitors will present a program of varied American music of the 1930s through the 1970s, including that of the Big Band era, Beach Music, Rock 'n' Roll, Blues, Jazz, and Disco.

Patrons are reminded to bring along folding chairs, blankets, pillows or other items for comfortable listening. The concert, as usual, will be held at the Sunday in the Park site, east of Reade between Third and Fourth Street. Starting time is 7 p.m.

Sunday in the Park, under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, is funded by the City of Greenville.

Carolina Today

North Carolina's Outer Banks is again the focal point for the Monday segment of "Carolina Today," the early morning talk show broadcast daily from 6 to 8 a.m. over WNCN, Channel 9. The calendar for the coming week is:

— Monday, June 30 — "Carolina Today" visits the scenic island of Ocracoke in the June Special North Carolina Travelogue Series. Interviews include a talk with Captain Durwood Gallup of the Swan Quarter Ferry, the "Governor Hyde," with 75-year-old Clinton Gaskill, whose 101-year old mother is the oldest inhabitant of the island; and Myra Wahab (Lady Ocracoke). A tour of Ocracoke with Irwin Scot Garish in a Trolley includes visits to the Lighthouse, Teache's Trench and the British Cemetery. The Around Town segment of Monday's show features "Tales of Blackbeard," a new play opening this week in Ocracoke.

— Tuesday, July 1 — 6:40 a.m. Bill Staton, stockbroker; 7:15 a.m., Healthbreak, with Dr. Richard Marx, ECU School of Medicine; 7:35 a.m., Kerry Maher and Steve Porter, assistant director and lead actor, respectively, of "The Liberty Cart" outdoor drama.

— Wednesday, July 2 — 6:40 a.m., Larry Garrett and Chris Rowe, co-chairmen of the Greenville Jaycees Fourth of July celebration; 7:15 a.m., Dr. Clyde A. Irwin, president Wayne Community College, in the Education Spotlight; 7:25 a.m., Social Security information; and 7:35 a.m., Stuart Perry and Jeff Minges, coordinator and sponsor, Kids Tennis Tournament, Kinston.

— Thursday, July 3 — 6:40 a.m., Marilyn Davenport, homemaker and business woman; 7:15 a.m., Evelyn DeLoatch, home extension agent; 7:25 a.m., Job Information Service; and 7:35 a.m., Tony Lopez, U.S. champion, Full Contact Karate.

— Friday, July 4 — 6:40 a.m., Dick Carney, American Red Cross talks about the fourth of July special Red Cross Blood drive; 7:15 a.m., plant doctor Eddie Harrington; 7:35 a.m., John Moran, State Youth Champion for declamation.

CHAPEL HILL — Carolina Regional Theater will produce three new plays this summer in the initial season of The First Stage, a playwright's workshop in Cherokee.

The plays selected to be given fully-mounted workshop productions are "The Johnny Bull" by

Snow Camp Sets Dramas

SNOW CAMP — Two outdoor repertory entertainments for the 1980 summer season are scheduled to open in July.

"The Sword of Peace" outdoor drama will be performed at 8:30 p.m. each Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings beginning July 4 and continuing through August 30.

The second play, "Cane Creek Calamities," will be performed at 8:30 each Wednesday evening beginning July 9.

Reserved seats are priced at $5, general admission is $3, and children under 12, $2. Season tickets and group discounts are available. For reservations, write: Sword Of Peace, P. O. Box 535, Snow Camp, N. C., 27349, or call 376-6948.

Kathleen Betsko of New York City; "Shelter," by Karyn Traut of Chapel Hill; and "Mesmer," by Richard James of Asheville.

Betsko's "The Johnny Bull" depicts the lives of Hungarian immigrants in the Pennsylvania coal mines, and will be directed by Norman Ussery, a Duke graduate who currently works with the Florida Studio Theater in Sarasota. It is scheduled for production on July 12.

"Shelter," slated to be produced on July 26, is set in Venice, California. It is a major revision of "Venice Sonata" which was produced in Hollywood. Duane Sidden, UNC-Chapel Hill graduate currently working with the New York Shakespeare Festival, will direct "Shelter."

James' "Mesmer" is set for an August 9 production. A professional playwright for eight years, he was formerly playwright-in-residence with the Palisades Theater Co., St. Petersburg, Fla. "Mesmer" dramatizes a historical event in the life of Franz Mesmer, the father of hypnotism. UNC-Chapel Hill graduate John Whitty, now with the drama department faculty of the University of West Virginia, will direct.

The First Stage is co-sponsored by Carolina Regional Theater and the Cherokee Historical Association, producer of the outdoor drama, "Unto These Hills."

Western Carolina University is also cooperating on the project. "Unto These Hills" director William M. Hardy will coordinate the academic portion of the project.

Grassroots funding for the project has been provided by the Cherokee Historical Association with additional financial support being sought from other arts foundations and corporations.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — The way July 4th is being celebrated in various eastern North Carolina communities is the major topic of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House," airing over WITN-TV, Channel 7 from noon until 1 p.m. today. Guests today are:

- Mrs. Robert (Ruth) Statham for the Pamlico Croaker Festival, a new festival being held in Oriental for the first time this year — dates are July 4, 5 and 6.
- Winnie Leister, caller for the Tryon Twirlers of New, a square-dance group.
- Larry Garrett, representing the Greenville Jaycees for their 4th of July celebration in Greenville.
- Halifax Town Crier Wrenn Phillips and narrator of the Halifax outdoor drama, "First For Freedom," and Gerald Butler, director of Historic Halifax, show slides and talk about the show and other Halifax attractions.

- Dr. Ralph Worthington of the Division of Non-Credit Program, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, and Mrs. Dot Tankard, Historic Bath Director, discuss the upcoming July 26 Bath Symposium.
- For the ladies, Alice Padgett, beauty consultant and aesthetician for Honeycutt of Greenville, talks about an electronic tweezer hair remover.

Also included in today's "Hospitality House" are details on the July 4 concert and fireworks display at Tryon Palace in New Bern, and the day long festivities at Behaven.

July 4th Celebration Set For Tryon Palace Lawn

NEW BERN — The town of New Bern — after Philadelphia and Boston, was the third town in America to stage an Independence Day celebration. Bonfires, official toasts, gun salutes, and the assembling of townspeople at Tryon Palace were features of that first observance in New Bern on July 4, 1778.

Now, two hundred and two years later, the July 4, 1980 celebration in the historic town of New Bern will feature a colorful concert and fireworks display on Tryon Palace's Great Lawn facing the Trent River.

The Tryon Palace gates on Pollock Street will be opened at 7:30 p.m. with the public invited to come to the celebration without charge. Those attending are asked to bring blankets or lawn chairs for viewing ease.

The 32-member Second Marine Aircraft Wing Band from Cherry Point will present an hour-long concert of spirited American music beginning at 8 p.m. As the band ends the concert with "The Marine Hymn," the fireworks display will begin and will illuminate Tryon Palace and be reflected in the waters of Trent River.

Visitors will have an opportunity to stroll the 18th century style gardens surrounding the colonial capitol and royal governor's residence. Lighted torches, reminiscent of the 1778 celebration, will guide visitors from the historic site through the evening's celebration is over.

The History Of N.C. Lighthouses In New Book By David Stick

BODIE ISLAND LIGHTHOUSE — on the Outer Banks of North Carolina stands in sharp relief against an evening sky as a setting sun signals the beginning of the night shift. A powerful rotating beacon will soon appear, stretching 19 miles out to sea warning mariners to steer clear of shoals which have claimed hundreds of ships over the years. (Photo by J. Foster Scott, Dare County Tourist Bureau.)

North Carolina Lighthouses. By David Stick. Raleigh, N. C. Dept. of Cultural Resources, Division of Archives and History. Paper, 85 pages, illustrated. $2.50.

Between the University of North Carolina Press and the publications issued by various division of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources, North Carolinians are well served on topics of exceptional regional interest. A new Archives and History volume is sure have wide appeal — for who does not love lighthouses, those tireless sentries that stand tall and majestic at points where sea and sand meet? Quite often, lighthouses take the form of light vessels anchored in water. These too, have a special fascination, although the coastal ones naturally are more familiar to the average traveler than the screw pile or light tower types in inland waters or placed out in the Atlantic. Author Stick, who has entertained so many readers in the past with books such as "Graveyard of the Atlantic," "The Outer Banks of North Carolina, 1584-1958," and "Fabulous Dare," again puts his love of and expertise of the Outer Banks area to advantage. His meticulous research makes this volume a comprehensive, up-to-date work on the subject. Stick traces the history of lighthouses from the first known ones in the Mediterranean area to the innovative ones of Great Britain, then moves on to lighthouses in the early history of the U.S.

He chronicles lighthouse developments along coastal North Carolina, at the same time bringing in enough of lighthouse progress in other parts of the U.S. to provide a nicely balanced perspective on the ups and downs of lighthouses in America. And ups and downs is an applicable term as funding shifted from state to federal responsibility. Stick reveals the major role played by U.S. Fifth Auditor Stephen Pleasanton. For nearly a third of a century, Pleasanton was the man behind the scenes in lighthouses development during the 19th century. The human element — the intrigues by individual to secure the profitable post of lighthouse keeper; the frustration and loneliness of men serving aboard the screw pile type of lighthouses for long months separated from family; and the continuing endeavors of local leaders to secure their lighthouses on a first priority — are all fascinating reading. Those with an eye for complete details will be grateful for extensive information on costs, how material was laboriously transported to nearly inaccessible sites, and technical problems to be overcome. For some, it will come as a surprise that a lighthouse was at one time installed as far inland as the mouth of the Roanoke River, or that the light tower of Roanoke Marshes was kept in use until 1955. The larger, striking lighthouses that comes to mind for most people at the mention of the word lighthouse — the ones at Cape Hatteras, Bodie Island, and Currituck, for example, are called "majestic coastal towers" by Stick — an apt description. A number of photographs of lighthouses long gone, as well as charts and maps illustrate the volume and adds considerable interest. Stick wisely points out that with even the most advanced technology, the forces of nature still pose a challenge to man's efforts to chart and keep lit the treacherous, shifting passages and inlets of North Carolina's coast. An informative "Note on Research Sources" and a comprehensive index are other good features of North Carolina Lighthouses. The book will be available beginning early July in a $6 hardback edition, and in addition, a North Carolina Lighthouse poster can be had for $1. Any of the items can be ordered from: Historical Publications Section, Div. of Archives and History, Dept. of Cultural Resources, 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N. C., 27611, or in many instances, may be purchased from bookstores. Jerry Raynor order." This manifestation of the love of paper, of printing on paper, is the springboard for an exhilarating tour of words in Michael McFee's poem, "Roll For the Rump of the Year."

Patterned visually on the structure of a roll of bathroom tissue, not the decorator's "patterns & colors" but instead "on this basic / white, / so soft, so clean, so long, / ... " McFee employs the analogy of the unrolling of a roll of tissue to the unscrolling of a leisurely, contemplative poetic vision.

The method in which this long — 21 pages — poem is printed, horizontally, and McFee's placement of words in the center of the black bordered strip that runs across the pages, doubly heightens the euphony of harmonies and the distinct visual pleasures of his beautifully balanced lines. He establishes a rhythm, an interior interaction of Biblical, allegorical and contemporary allusions in a lyrical cadence well suited to sustaining the emphatic musical flow of thoughts addressed to his muse — along with his own affirmations and observations on the creative process of writing poetry.

The poem is structured on a series of entries in diary form. The first entry is dated November 23 and ends December 10. This time date span obviously justifies the title "Roll For the Rump of the Year."

"Roll For the Rump of the Year" has an abundance of lines readers will return to time and again — "the glory of / myth & truth / lies more in story / than in any neat / turn of a word. . . . " — "5 hours on the interstate / will drain the philosophy / out of anybody. . . . " — "the sky sustains / this illusion / with its subtle airbrush / counterfeited of color, / warm & amber / near the disk. . . . " and the realization "there are answers / but they are slow / & require that one / impossible vow / of patience."

McFee's poem is first-place prize winner in this year's "Crucible" poetry competition. It is a superb demonstration that poetry is a very much alive art, one infinitely capable of enriching the experience of living in the fullness of the rich and varied use of words to convey new, unexpected insights.

Jean S. Moore's first place short story, "Union," is a low-keyed, tragicomic exploration of a bizarre event in the life of an ordinary man named Howard. When his left hand, for no apparent reason, suddenly grows to (or becomes in union) with the side of his thigh, nobody among his co-workers, friends or even his fiancée, is capable of sympathizing with his understandable anxieties. Thus the victim faces the terrible prospect of being ignored, whatever the degree of alienation he will develop in consequence of his physical oddity.

The second prize short story, Jim Caldwell's "Good Christian Men," is a much more conventional tale. A man facing the knowledge of coming death finds the courage not to be guilt ridden about his past, and a deeper faith to wisely accept himself for what he is and for what he has been in the past.

The love of a woman, of a family, a man's love of the familiar corner of the earth that has nourished him are delineated with warmth and conviction in this fine story.

The second place in poetry goes to Agnes McDonald for "The White Lion of Timbavati," and "In the Hawk's Eye," a short poem by R. T.

Smith, received the Sam Ragan prize.

The art work in "Crucible" again does not measure up to the literary contributions. Glenn Tucker's bold, strong drawing of a figure, and his stark lithograph are impressive, and Anne Rawlings' photograph of cows reflected in a pond has a nice pastoral quality. There's several other poems and stories in this issue of "Crucible" that are a pleasure to read.

The price is not given, however, persons interested in having a copy can write to: The English Department, Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, N. C., 27893. Chances are the cost of a copy will be minimal.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By LINDA STANCILL

The automotive do-it-yourselfer will welcome the new auto repair books now available to help you save money on repairs and service.

"Chilton's Repair and Tune-Up Guides" are intended to help you learn more about the inner workings of your vehicle and save you money on its upkeep and operation. Written for the do-it-yourselfer, they have detailed step-by-step instructions to fill the gap between the owner's manual in the glove compartment and the factory service manual used by professional mechanics. Specifications, line drawings and photographs make tune-ups, brake jobs, general maintenance and hundreds of other repairs routine. Each handy paperback guide is written for a specific model of vehicle. They cover various models of trucks, vans, and passenger cars as well as motorcycles. An added feature of each guide is a list of 25 ways to improve your vehicle's fuel economy through regular maintenance and tune-ups.

"Chilton's Auto Repair Manual, 1980" covers American cars from 1973 through 1980. It's an authoritative manual with instructions to help you make your car run better, safer and longer. The cross-referenced text contains over 2,900 clear illustrations, time-saver tips, notes and cautions to make your job simpler and your car run smoother. For the novice or the experienced mechanic, it's the manual that gives you a complete automotive education.

"Motor's Auto Repair Manual, 1980" combines for ready reference and ease of use the car maintenance and repair facts from over 300 factory manuals. This edition covers mechanical specifications and service procedures on 1975 to 80 models. A compact, comprehensive manual, it's an essential resource for the auto mechanic.

Older editions of "Chilton's Auto Repair Manual" and "Motor's Auto Repair Manual" are available as well as other general books on car and motorcycle care and repair.

Durham Dance Program Tuesday

DURHAM — Kei Takei's Moving Earth will premiere "Light XV" at the American Dance Festival program at 8 p.m. Tuesday, July 1 in Page Auditorium.

Since the late 1960's, Ms. Takei's choreographic efforts have been directed to extending her continuing epic, "Light," which presently consists of 14 parts.

The new segment, "Light XV," has been jointly commissioned by the American Dance Festival, the John Senior Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Moving Earth has performed extensively in the U.S. and overseas, including appearances in Austria, Holland and France. In 1979 she toured Japan under the auspices of that country's Office of Cultural Affairs.

Ticket information is available by calling 684-3227 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekdays.

Discovery In A Juvenile Book

Safe As The Grave. By Caroline B. Cooney. Illustrated by Gail Owens. New York, Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, Inc. 48 pages, $6.95.

High Point writer Caroline B. Cooney, who in real life is the mother of two daughters — though not twins — has written a charming juvenile book that captures the bickering tension that often exists between sisters. It also rates high as tall adventure.

Even for young readers, the ultimate reason for the existence of a mysterious grave — marked only "Cornelia," in the Greer family cemetery will soon become fairly obvious. This does not in the least negate the interest and excitement the author sustains, as she is a writer with a fine flair for words and dialogue completely believable for 11-year olds.

The characters of the twins, Victoria and Lynn — the latter the inquisitive, tom-boyish heroine of the tale, are vigorously drawn — as are the girls' parent and a colorful ancestress, Euphemia Anne Greer, who left England to elope with the young man she adored and then settled on the banks of the Tar River to raise a family and becoming the community's beloved eccentric (within the bounds of being ladylike, of course).

Any reader of Safe As A Grave will appreciate the keen, telling portraits of adults seen in the eyes of the two girls — i.e., observing friends of her mother's at a church committee meeting . . . "All of Mother's kissy friends were there, in their elegant pants suits and gold necklaces and beauty-parlor hair. . . . Off went the women into their meeting room, laughing and chattering about uninteresting things. . . . " And the child's summation of the church parlor . . . "There is nothing in the parlor but dusty books and an Oriental rug. It's boring."

Lynn encounters poison ivy, suffers missing out on field day at school. She also has knack for saying and doing things not proper for a young girl. But her insatiable appetite for finding out things brings about the recovery of a long lost church treasure.

Gail Owens has added to the pleasure of this enjoyable book with half a dozen full pages of excellent black and white drawings. Boys as well as girls will be delighted with Safe As A Grave.

Entertainer Devotes His Life To Recreating Elvis Presley

BY JILL ALLEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Friday night at Papa Katz, a fairly new night club here, one might have thought to be hallucinating. The entertainer was no ordinary one. His gyrations and hip movements, smooth voice and audience involvement was all an impersonation of a past singer/actor — Elvis Presley. Crazy? Dennis Wise of Joplin, Missouri doesn't think so.

The 26-year-old calls himself an 'Elvis Allusionist,' not an 'impersonator.' "An impersonator is someone like Rich Little who does it for the fun of it. An allusionist, on the other hand, is someone who goes on stage and projects that image." And projects is what he does — not only on stage either. The former car salesman stated that he spends 80 percent of his life like Presley. His greased and dyed black hair, smooth, fast talk, and fancy apparel is an everyday thing.

"I've been a fan of Elvis since I was five years old," he said, also mentioning he collected pictures, magazines and other Presley items. "My mother was the one who started me doing Elvis impersonations." He said it was something he did well and she encouraged him to continue.

Wise made his own decision to devote his entire career to Presley. He had plastic surgery performed on his face to resemble Presley's facial features. According to Wise, "I did it because I love Elvis. If I hadn't been the one to do it, someone would have that didn't care about Elvis." Wise commented that he has been mistaken for Presley a few times. "You know, some people think he's still alive," he said.

Soon after the surgery, excitement began in Dennis Wise's life. "I have no regrets," he said. "I'm very happy." TV interviews, concerts, talk shows — it was what Wise had dreamed of. But what makes him different from the other several hundred Elvis impersonators? Wise says it's because he can do any Elvis song put in front of him.

His schedule is a hectic one — always on the road. Having recently returned from a trip to South America where he was on a TV special with Brenda Lee, he has also been in concert at the Richmond Coliseum, Hampton Coliseum, and Portland, Oregon, to name a few. He says there's been good attendance. Preparations are now being made for a trip to Europe. His goal, Wise explained, is to bring as much Elvis as he can into people's hearts.

Friday night, Wise's performance was similar to Presley's acts in concert from the 1950's to 1977. And like the real Presley, he had a special way with the audience. His warm smile makes one feel at ease. None of his clothes were torn off that night, but he did mention that in past performances his suits have been torn.

During his act Friday, when Wise walked around talking to different spectators, they responded openly.

His future? Wise said that he was taking one day at a time. "Well," he stated, "When I get old, I want to look back and I say I did something for someone."

He is presently having an album put out with his original songs on one side and Presley's songs on the other.

Eskimo Conference Has Opened

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
GODTHAAB, Greenland (AP)—Eskimos, ignored for centuries on the coldest edges of the planet, opened the Inuit Circumpolar Conference Saturday to examine the promise and problems posed by the discoveries of natural wealth under their frozen homelands.

Against a backdrop of the flags of the United States, Canada, the Soviet Union and Greenland, 54 representatives of an estimated 90,000 Eskimos began a four-day conference to set up a permanent body for their scattered peoples.

The Eskimos want a bigger share of the profits from exploitation of the vast deposits of minerals, oil and natural gas under the arctic and semi-arctic lands that have traditionally been their home.

But they also fear their hunting and fishing grounds will be wrecked by the effects of mining and drilling.

"We in the arctic regions live at the limits of the possibilities for existence," said Jonathan Motzfeldt, an Eskimo and premier of Greenland's home-rule government. "The living resources have been and still are the basis of our existence."

This vast northern island was granted autonomy over its internal affairs last May by the Danish crown, ending 250 years of direct rule from Copenhagen. Denmark still directs Greenland's foreign and defense policies.

In Greenland, 40,000 Eskimos outnumber Danish settlers 4-1, but Eskimos are a minority in the other three countries and have little if any say in government policies.

Moscow did not allow representatives of the estimated 5,000 Eskimos in Siberia to attend.

Motzfeldt, who leads a middle-of-the-road socialist administration, said of the Soviet action, "As an Inuit, I am very sorry about this."

Earlier, Greenlandic organizers dismissed as a "standard response" the Soviet claim that there was no time to organize and dispatch a Siberian delegation.

New EEii Show Opens

BELHAVEN — An exhibition of paintings, drawings and sculpture by two artists — Donald Bruce Simpson of Cherry Point, and Gary Jones of Williamston, will open today at EEii's little Korners of the world in Belhaven. An open house and reception will be held from two to five this afternoon, with the public invited to attend and to meet the two artists.

Simpson, a Navy hospital corpsman, has contributed extensively to art work for decorating military clubs and buildings, and has also done cartooning and illustrations for military newspapers. He will be returning to his native Minnesota this summer to pursue studies in art. Jones works primarily in opaque water colors, using as his subject old houses and the landscape of eastern North Carolina. He also does pastel portraits and terra cotta sculpture. He teaches at Martin Community College.

The exhibition of the work of Simpson and Jones will be on view at EEii's through July.

New Hanover Show On Tar Heels In China

WILMINGTON — The New Hanover County Museum, in conjunction with the North Carolina China Council, is currently showing "North Carolina's China Connection: 1840-1949 — Perspectives on the Meeting of Two Cultures."

The exhibit, a photographic one, records the experiences of North Carolinians who traveled to and lived in China in various capacities — in the Christian mission field, with the tobacco industry, and in military service. All these activities are documented through photographs assembled for this exhibit.

The public is invited to see this show at the museum, located at 814 Market Street. Hours are 9 to 5 Tuesdays through Saturdays, and 2-5 on Sundays.

Borg Ties Mark For Singles Victories

Fleming Defeats Nastase
Peter Fleming of the United States sweeps in to collect shot from Romania's Ilie Nastase during their match in the Wimbledon Tennis Championships Saturday. Fleming defeated Nastase, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 7-6. (AP Laserphoto)

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — On a day in which five men's seeds were ousted, the magnificent Bjorn Borg tied the record for consecutive singles victories at rain-plagued Wimbledon Saturday.

Borg won his 31st consecutive match at the All-England Club, defeating Rod Frawley of Australia 6-4, 6-7, 6-1, 7-5. The four-time defending champion from Sweden and No. 1 seed here, Borg dropped his first set in the tournament. He is tied with Rod Laver of Australia for the Wimbledon mark of consecutive singles victories.

The seeded men who lost were Americans Stan Smith and Pat DuPre, Victor Pecci of Paraguay, Jose Luis Clerc of Argentina and Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Sports
SUNDAY MORNING
JUNE 29, 1980

That left only eight of the original 16 seeds in the last 32 among the men. In the women's field, 10 of the 16 remaining players are Americans and a dozen of the 16 seeds are alive.

The top challengers to Borg — John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors — each moved forward.

McEnroe opened the day with a 6-0, 7-6, 6-1 triumph over Dutchman Tom Okker, then grumbled about the conditions. Connors overcame plucky resistance from Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland to win 6-7, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis dropped a set to fellow-American Bruce Manson in winning 6-4, 4-6, 7-5, 6-4. Roscoe Tanner, last year's losing finalist and the No. 5 seed, beat Paul McNamee of Australia 7-6, 6-4, 6-4. No. 6 Gene Mayer trimmed Adriano Panatta of Italy 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Brian Gottfried of the United States was the most convincing of the giant-killers. He humbled No. 15 Smith, the 1972 Wimbledon champion, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Nick Saviano played his second marathon match in two days to put out DuPre, the No. 9 seed and a semifinalist here last year, 7-6, 1-6, 4-6, 7-5, 11-9.

In the previous round, Saviano edged Britain's Buster Mottram in a five-setter in which the final set went to 13-11.

Big-serving Phil Dent of Australia beat No. 8 Pecci 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. Onny Parun of New Zealand, who had to go through the qualifying tournament, topped No. 16 Clerc 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Another heavy server, Colin Dibley of Australia, eliminated No. 10 Lendl 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-6. Gottfried's service worked like a machine at times. Gottfried served four times in the third set and dropped only three points. Smith managed only three points in the last four games of the match.

McEnroe's service, too, went like a dream in his first and third sets against Okker. But in between the 36-year-old Dutchman, who was playing his 17th Wimbledon and is one of the most experienced campaigners on these courts, caused some problems.

In the second set, Okker turned back the clock and played the kind of strokes that have delighted fans over the years — feathery drop shots, delicately angled returns and one magnificent looping forehand which dropped on the line and gave him a set point in the tiebreaker.

McEnroe faltered for a while. He missed frequently with his first service and tried a half-dozen lobs, all of which landed over Okker's baseline. But once McEnroe had saved a second set point with a forehand volley, Okker faded. McEnroe won the tiebreaker 11-9 and then raced through the third set.

"You sit around waiting all the time, and you don't know when you're going on, with all these interruptions and rain delays," McEnroe said of the troubles caused to the players by the rain that has plagued the tournament and caused a huge backlog. It was still 70 matches behind schedule at the halfway point.

Lost, Moyer Finds Triumph

RALEIGH — Being late for his tee time cost Seve Ballesteros his place in the U.S. Open field a few weeks back. But being late Friday morning for his tee time may have been just what Greenville's Mike Moyer needed. He came from one stroke off the pace in the 28th Annual North State Junior Boys Golf Championship to win the 16-18 age group by a whopping five stroke margin.

"I just got lost in Raleigh," Moyer later admitted. While in Raleigh for the tournament at that city's Wildwood Golf and Country Club, Mike stayed with his brother and had a little difficulty in finding his way around.

"I got there about five minutes before I was supposed to tee off," Moyer said. "The people I was playing with were already on the tee, so I really didn't have much time to loosen up before I teed off. But I don't think it affected me at all."

Moyer, who fired a 70 for the final round of the 72-hole tournament, finished with a 279, beating John Marshall of Henderson, the third round leader, by five strokes. Moyer used some late birdies on the front side to move ahead, then just held onto his advantage on the back side to wrap up the title.

"It's probably the high point in my golfing career so far," the redhead admitted. "It's probably the biggest victory I've had playing in state or regional tournaments."

Just prior to the tournament, Moyer took part in the Mid-South Amateur, where he finished well behind. "I was ten shots off the pace after the first two rounds, and I kind of lost interest," he admits.

He had no such troubles this past week.

A rising sophomore at East Carolina, Mike has not set his sights on a golfing career. "I want to get my diploma first," he said. "I'm majoring in business, and I want my education, and I want to play golf too. If I can play well while I go to school, that's okay. If there is to be a golf career ahead of me, it will be decided later."

While at Rose High School, Mike was a member of that school's golf team, finishing in tenth place his senior year in the State Tournament. He led the Rose team to a fifth place team finish.

Now a member of the East Carolina golf team, Mike feels that his first year of competition has been a great help to him. "I've been playing steady for about five years now. Playing in college has helped me. I guess the more you play, the more it helps."

Moyer plans to keep busy this summer, playing in local, state and regional tournaments. He'd also like to move into some of the more major amateur tournaments—but admits that that may lie further in the future.

Elsewhere in the tournament, Jack Mann, also in the same age group and in the championship flight, finished with a 292, about midway through the flight.

Also in the 16-18 group, Don White Jr. with a 305 finished around fifth in the first flight, while Greg House, with a 297, won the second flight, with Tom Brewer, at 304, taking third place after a playoff. Allen Daughtry of Ayden, in the same flight, had a 309.

Greenville's Mike Moyer

Gary Hobgood of Farmville, after leading the championship flight in the 14-15 age group, finished second at 293. Farmville's Allen Wooten was about midway in the first flight of that same age group with a 327, while Lyn Moore was third in the second flight with a 330, winning a playoff for that spot.

Jim Blount participated in the 12-13 age group's first flight, but did not turn in a score for the final day's round.

A total of 215 golfers from around the state participated in the tournament.

For Kansas City Scout Everyday Is A Saturday

By RICK SCOPE
Reflector Sports Writer
For Kansas City Royal scout E. E. "Red" Whitsett, every day is Saturday.

"Back in the days when I was coaching high school baseball I didn't have much time off, but on Saturdays I'd sleep in, get up and eat breakfast late, and then look around for a ballgame to go to," Whitsett said.

"I loved those Saturdays. Now every day is Saturday."

Over the years as a Royals' scout, Whitsett has become a baseball connoisseur, so many games has he taken in. And when he's not getting his fill of ballgames Whitsett is holding tryout camps.

This past week the veteran Kansas City scout — he's been in the business for nearly 20 years — was in Greenville doing just that. About 30 players were at the tryout Tuesday and, although he wasn't ready to sign any on the spot, Whitsett was pleased with the players he saw.

names," Whitsett said. "My wife has them up there in the stands."

The players are a ragtag bunch dressed variously in high school uniforms, East Carolina purple and gold or simply shorts and t-shirts. Having already run the 60-yard dash, they now separate into groups — it is time to test the arm strength of the players.

The outfielders jog to centerfield. From there, they throw three times to third and three times to home, trying to make their throws just miss the cutoff man's glove.

Following this, the infielders throw three times to first from third base. Next, the catchers squat behind the plate and throw to second.

That test complete, two teams are formed and a scrimmage game begins. "We like to let them take infield, just like a normal game, and then give each one a chance to hit and field in a game-like situation," Whitsett said.

Off to the side is the ever-present Whitsett, in his royal-blue Kansas City uniform, observing. In the stands sits Whitsett's wife, a speed gun in hand, keeping a record of the pitcher's speed.

The game progresses. Each hit or fielding play brings Whitsett's pen across his clipboard. He is assigning the play a number on his scouting chart (see illustrations). The

Pirates Sweep Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina's Charlie Smith singled home Todd Hendley in the sixth for the winning run and Bill Wilder scattered three hits as the Pirates nipped the University of North Carolina, 2-1, Saturday in the first game of a Summer League doubleheader.

The Pirates came back to sweep the twinbill, taking the twincap, 5-2, behind the three hit pitching of Kirk Parsons.

With the score tied 1-1 going into the sixth, Hendley singled, stole second and went to third on John Hollow's sacrifice bunt. After a ground out he scored on Smith's single.

That was all the Pirates needed as Wilder held the Tar Heels to a first-inning run while striking out seven en route to his fifth win of the season against no losses.

The Pirates scored first in the game, Mike Sorrell led off with a single but was forced at second on Kelly Robinette's fielder's choice. Robinette moved to second on a wild pitch before Hendley walked.

After two were gone and Robinette on third, Mike Sage singled to score the ECU shortstop.

In the second game, the Pirates broke the ice with three runs in the third inning. Jeffrey Warren walked and moved up on a sacrifice. Robinette was hit by a pitch, and Hendley doubled in both of them. Smith then singled to score Hendley.

The win boosted the Pirate record to 10-5, while the Tar Heels dropped to 2-9.

East Carolina is at home Tuesday to N.C. Wesleyan.

Pitt Faces Wash'ton Today In Playoffs

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team will open Area 1 East playoff action this afternoon at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field, facing Washington.

Pitt County, which won the regular season title, will meet Washington in a best-of-three series, for the right to move on into further play. A second game will be played in Washington on Monday at 8 p.m., with a third game, if necessary, to be scheduled either Tuesday or Wednesday.

Elsewhere in the league, second place Wilson will be at Edenton to open its best-of-three series, then will play the final two, if needed, at home. Wilson's Fleming Stadium was unavailable for today's game.

Williamston travels to third seeded Goldsboro, also for a 3 p.m. game. The second game will be in Williamston, and the third if needed, in Goldsboro.

Rounding out the league, Snow Hill travels to number four Rocky Mount also for a 3 p.m. start today. The second game will be in Snow Hill, and if a third is necessary, it will be back in Rocky Mount on Tuesday.

The winner of the Pitt-Washington series takes on the Rocky Mount-Snow Hill winner, while the Wilson-Edenton survivor meets the winner of the Williamston-Goldsboro series.

Minter Keeps Middleweight Title

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Alan Minter of Britain retained his undisputed world middleweight boxing title when former champion Vito Antuofermo of the United States retired on his stool at the end of the eighth round of a scheduled 15-round contest at Wembley Arena Saturday night.

Antuofermo was bleeding badly from cuts around both eyes and his handlers advised the referee he was in no position to continue.

Minter, who won the title from Antuofermo at Caesar's Palace, Las Vegas, three months ago, dominated the fight, repeatedly pummeling Antuofermo's face with right jabs.

It only was the third time that Antuofermo—born in Bari, Italy, but fighting out of Brooklyn, N.Y.—had been stopped in 51 professional contests.

He called 28-year-old Minter a "pussycat champion" after their first fight but there was no doubt who was the master in their second meeting.

The Englishman, an odds-on favorite, dominated the fight from the opening bell, connecting with lefts and rights to Antuofermo's face with alarming regularity.

The bout was televised in the United States by ABC.

Cheered on by a partisan crowd of 10,000 fans, Minter, the only world champion recognized by both the WBC and WBA, did not appear to lose a round.

TAC Votes Amateurs Can Get $

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The Athletics Congress announced Saturday that amateur track and field athletes will be able to receive money legally from competition in five meets in the United States next year.

TAC announced the unprecedented action jointly with leaders of the newly formed Association of Track and Field Athletes at a news conference at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

The events would be called the Track and Field Grand Prix, according to Jimmy Carnes, coach of the U.S. Olympic track team. Money would be distributed to the clubs representing the athletes based on the performance of the athletes in the five meets.

"It's up to the clubs and the athletes how they all spend the money," said TAC Executive Director Ollan Cassell. "This system is the legal way to do it."

Turner Takes Pair In Am. Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Veteran Ted Turner, hoping to repeat his 1977 role as America's Cup defender, took a pair of races Saturday from young Russell Long to wrap up the preliminary sailing trials for U.S. skippers.

Dennis Conner, who finished up Friday, was the big winner in the week-long series, steering Freedom to victory in 11 of 12 races against his American rivals.

"We've got six weeks to get our act together," said Turner, referring to the final defender trials that begin Aug. 19.

Turner, who lost five of six races in Courageous to Conner, said the San Diego, Calif., skipper brought a well-schooled crew to Rhode Island Sound.

"They were definitely better prepared than we were. Sailing for two years, you ought to be better prepared," Turner said.

He also groused about the money Conner's Freedom-Enterprise syndicate has spent on the campaign — reportedly well over $2 million.

Dokes TKOs Ocasio In First

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Michael Dokes knocked Osvaldo "Jaws" Ocasio to the canvas three times and stopped the Puerto Rican fighter in the first round of their scheduled 10-rounder Saturday.

The fight was a rematch of a draw two months ago that Dokes still believes he won.

"I was a little cocky," said Dokes after referee Ismael Quinones Falu stopped the fight after three knockdowns and 2:33 of the first round.

"I got him with a right uppercut," he said of the third time that Ocasio went to the canvas. "I set him up with a left hook."

"This time I planned to be more aggressive," the 21-year-old Dokes said, referring to the April 19 fight that ended in a draw — a fight Dokes still believes he won.

Dokes said one key to Saturday's fight came after the first knockdown, when he anticipated a bull-like rush as Ocasio got off the canvas. "I hit him with a left hook because I knew he would try to grab me."

Ocasio went down for the second time and remained on the canvas for an eight count. It was all over seconds later when Dokes crumpled Ocasio with the hard right hand.

In his dressing room, Ocasio was completely cowed about the loss, saying very little.

"He (Dokes) hit me," Ocasio said. "He didn't fail."

The only other comment he would make about the loss was that "I want to fight him again as soon as possible."

Ocasio's cornerman, Ralph Hernandez said, "Dokes really surprised Ocasio. He was hurt by that first punch and that was it."

Youth Baseball League Roundup

Little League

Coca-Cola 4, Kiwanis 3

Coca-Cola slipped past the Kiwanis, 4-3, in eight innings, to advance to the finals of the North State Little League's post-season tournament. Coke now meets the Lions in the championship on Monday, with the winner advancing into the City Championship against the Tar Heel League winner.

Coke pushed over three runs in the second inning to take the lead. The Kiwanis scored once in the second, then added two more in the sixth, tying it up. It stayed that way until the eighth.

In that frame, Coke pushed over the winning run. James Matthews doubled to open the inning. He moved up on an infield out, then scored on an error when the attempt was made to double him up.

Matthews led the Coke hitting with two, while Robert Evans had two for the Kiwanis, which ends its season with the loss.

Jaycees 14, Union Carbide 0

Curtis Perkins hurled a two-hitter as North State Little League regular season champ Jaycees downed Union Carbide, 14-0, in playoff action Saturday. The Jaycees now meet second-ranked Coca-Cola in the finals on Monday.

The Jaycees got all they needed in the first. Perkins reached on a fielder's choice and advanced on an error.

Marsh Sets U.S. Steeplechase Mark

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Henry Marsh, unbeaten in the 3,000-meter steeplechase this year, slashed more than three seconds off the American record Saturday night in winning the difficult event in 8 minutes 15.68 seconds at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

It was the first national mark broken during the trials and continued the precedent that began when the pre-Olympic competition started back in 1928. Every trials since then has produced at least one American or world mark.

With a strong finishing kick, Marsh easily erased the previous American record of 8:19.3 set by his Athletics West teammate, Doug Brown, at West Berlin on Aug. 18, 1978.

Brown finished second Saturday night in 8:20.60 and John Gregorek was third in 8:21.32.

The 26-year-old Marsh, formerly of Brigham Young University, finished 10th in the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal. He came into his own last year when he won the steeplechase titles at the Pan American Games in San Juan, Puerto Rico and the Spartacade Games in Moscow. He also finished fourth in the prestigious World Cup meet at Montreal.

His record smashing effort was his fifth victory this season.

It had been predicted by several runners prior to the final that the American record would be broken because of the exceptionally fast clockings turned in during the semifinals.

"I think it will take 8:15 to win and more than one guy will better my record," Brown had said.

He was not entirely correct, but he was close.

The world record is 8:05.4 by Henry Rono of Kenya on May 13, 1978 at Seattle.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oddly attired Franklin Jacobs, arriving three hours after the start of his competition, and Dwight Stones, angry over his No. 1 adversary's tardiness, were among 18 qualifiers Saturday for the high jump final at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials.

The unpredictable Jacobs, scheduled to arrive late Friday night, did not get into Eugene until 1:15 p.m. Saturday because his flight from Newark, N.J., was late arriving in Denver and he failed to make connections.

The delay cost him several hours, and by the time he arrived in Eugene on a standby flight, he was without his baggage. The only track equipment he had were his jumping shoes and socks.

"I make him carry those with him all the time," said his coach, Russ Rogers of Fairleigh Dickinson University, "because they've gotten lost several times."

After reaching Eugene Airport, Jacobs was rushed by car to his hotel. There the anxious Rogers sped him to the competition at the University of Oregon's sun-splashed Haywood Field.

At the stadium, Jacobs had to hurriedly borrow some equipment, and he wound up with the pants and top of long distance runner Marty Liquori and the warmup suit of former long jumper Henry Hines.

The high jump qualifying originally had been scheduled for 2:30 p.m., but because there were 60 entrants — 51 of whom competed — the time was changed to 11 a.m.

When Jacobs reached Haywood Field, the competition had been in progress for three hours. He was in the third of three flights, but his name already had been called. Since Jacobs had not checked in yet, there was some conjecture whether he would be allowed to jump without some strong protests from the other jumpers.

"All the jumpers were supposed to check in one hour before the qualifying (10 a.m.)," said Alex Woodley, coach of the Philadelphia Pioneer Club.

Big Value Drugs 4, Wellcome 2

Big Value Drugs moved into the finals of the Tar Heel Little League playoffs with a 4-2 win over Wellcome Saturday. Big Value will face regular season winner First Federal in the finals, to be played Monday.

Wellcome scored first, getting a run on a solo homer by Terry Warren in the first inning. They added another run in the fourth for a 2-0 lead.

Big Value came up with one in the fifth as Sterling Edwards homered, then pushed over three in the sixth to wrap it up. With one down in the sixth, Tad Castellow walked and Eric Jarman reached on an error. Edwards doubled in Castellow, and a wild pitch scored Jarman. Frankie Atkinson singled in Edwards.

Edwards led the Big Value hitting with three, while Atkinson had two. No one had more than one for Wellcome.

Babe Ruth League

Pepsi-Cola 8, Coca-Cola 5

Pepsi-Cola downed Coca-Cola, 8-5, in the first round of the Babe Ruth League post-season tournament Saturday. Play in the game had begun Friday night, but the game was suspended due to curfew until Saturday morning. Coke falls into the losers' bracket, while Pepsi continues in the winners' bracket.

Coke scored first, with a run in the bottom of the first, but Pepsi came back with three in the second. Coke rallied for two in the third to tie it up, 3-3, but Pepsi wrapped it up with five in the fourth.

Ted Stanley led off the fourth with a walk and stole second. Bill Messick singled and Cyrus Blackwell got a hit, scoring Stanley. Terry Smith reached on an error, loading the bases, and Lance Searl also was safe on an misplay, scoring both Messick and Blackwell. Tim Norris reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Smith, and a double steal scored Searl.

Coke added two in the fifth. Randy Warren had two hits for Coke, and was the game's lone hitter with more than one.

First Federal 11, Exchange 4

Regular season champion First Federal rolled over the Exchange, 11-4, in the Tar Heel Little League playoffs Saturday. The winners now face Coca-Cola, the number two finisher, in the finals Monday. The winner there meets the North State winner for the City Championship.

First Federal scored three runs in the first, then added three more in the second for a 6-0 lead.

Aaction Movers 9, Wachovia Bank 0

Aaction Movers moved into the semifinals of the Babe Ruth League tournament with a 9-0 victory over Wachovia Bank Saturday. Wachovia falls into the losers' bracket, facing Coca-Cola.

Aaction pushed over three in the first, scoring all it needed. Jeff Wilson walked and Billy Owens also drew a free pass. Rudy Stalls reached on a fielder's choice, and an error let Wilson score. Keith Stocks sacrificed Owens over, and a single by Jessie Atkinson brought home Stalls.

Aaction added one in the second and five in the fifth.

Atkinson led the Aaction hitting with two, while Wachovia got only one hit off the pitching of Owens.

Planters Bank 3, Pepsi-Cola 1

Planters Bank, the regular season champion, downed Pepsi-Cola, 3-1, in the winners' bracket of the Babe Ruth post-season tournament yesterday. Planters moved into the semifinals of the tournament while Pepsi drops into the losers' bracket.

Planters got its first run in the second, then added the clincher in the fifth. Mont Carter singled, stole second and took third on a wild pitch. A passed ball then allowed him to score.

The other run came in the sixth. Pepsi's lone run came in the sixth.

Wachovia Bank 11, Coca-Cola 5

Coca-Cola became the first team sidelined in the Babe Ruth League post-season double elimination tournament yesterday, bowing to Wachovia Bank, 11-5 in the losers bracket. Wachovia continues in the tournament.

Wachovia scored three times in the first, and added one in the third.

Three in the fourth, however, put it on ice. Troy Fleming tripled to open the fourth and scored when Marvin Barrett reached on a three-base error. Bill Johnson doubled Barrett over, scoring the seventh Wachovia run on a single by Troy Hudson and a fielder's

Prep League

1st State Bank 9, G. Hardware 2

First State Bank, the regular season champion, moved into the finals of the Prep League post-season tournament yesterday, downing Greenville Hardware, 9-2.

Greenville Hardware will face the winner of today's game between the Elks and Auto Specialty for the right to face First State Bank for the title.

The Bankers pushed over one in the first, while adding another in the third.

The fourth was decisive as they scored four more for a 6-0 lead. Doyle Kirkland got a one-out reprieve when his third strike got past the catcher, allowing him to reach safely. Dwight Smith doubled and Jeff Howard was walked, loading the bases. Gary Scott then doubled in all three runners, scoring the sixth run when Jim Best grounded out.

The Bankers added three more in the sixth, while the Hardwaremen picked up one each in the fifth and sixth.

Bill Michel, Matthew Saieed and Darryl Perkins each had two hits to lead the Bankers, while Traye Fuqua had three for Greenville Hardware.

Cubs Snap Cards' Streak

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Krukow pitched a three-hitter and Cliff Johnson's two-out single in the sixth inning drove in the winning run as Chicago snapped St. Louis' six-game winning streak with a 2-1 victory Saturday and a split of their doubleheader.

Rookie Leon Durham's two-run double keyed a four-run ninth-inning rally that lifted the Cardinals to an 8-6 victory in the opener.

With two out in the sixth inning of the nightcap, Lenny Randle and Mike Vail singled before Johnson singled home the winning run.

Krukow, 6-8, scattered three singles for the victory, striking out seven and walking two. Jim Otten, 0-2, took the loss.

The Cubs scored five runs in the third inning of the opener, with Randle, Buckner, Johnson, Jerry Martin and Ken Henderson each driving in a run. They added an unearned run in the fifth on an error, a single by Buckner and a sacrifice fly by Johnson.

National League

John Littlefield, 3-1, allowed one hit over the final two innings to gain the victory.

San Francisco 4

Los Angeles 3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Terry Whitfield's run-scoring single in the 11th inning gave the San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

The Giants began the winning rally when Rich Murray walked with two out against Rick Sutcliffe, 2-5. Murray went to second on Johnnie LeMaster's single and scored on Whitfield's hit.

Giants reliever Tom Griffin, 2-1, was the winner.

The Dodgers had scored once in the top of the 10th inning when Derrel Thomas, a late-inning defensive replacement, belted a run-scoring double.

But the Giants came back to tie it in the bottom half of the inning. Pinch-hitter Whitfield singled, pinch-hitter Wille McCovey walked, Sutcliffe replaced Bob Castillo on the mound for the Dodgers and Jim Wohlford walked to load the bases. Larry Herndon then hit a sacrifice fly to tie the game 3-3.

Philadelphia 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Stearns' tie-breaking double in the 11th inning gave the New York Mets a rain-delayed 2-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday in the first game of a twinning doubleheader.

Joel Youngblood opened the 11th against Ron Reed, 6-2, with a single and raced home on Stearns' hit-and-run double up the left-center field alley to give the Mets their sixth victory in seven games. New York reliever Neil Allen, 4-5, was the winner.

Stearns was thrown out trying for third on his hit. One out later, play was halted by rain. The delay lasted 32 minutes.

Montreal 3

MONTREAL (AP) — Dave Parker drove in three runs with a homer and a single to support a combined seven-hitter by Jim Bibby and three relievers as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat Montreal 4-3 Saturday night.

Parker's two-run homer, his ninth of the season, erased a 1-0 deficit in the fourth inning. It followed a walk to Omar Moreno by loser Charlie Lea, 2-2.

In the sixth, Moreno walked again, stole second and scored on Parker's two-out single to right.

Beanballs Increasing?

NEW YORK (AP) — The "problem of union rights" is an obstacle to preventing beanballs and the violence that sometimes results, says baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

In an interview, which NBC aired on Saturday, Kuhn was asked about the highly publicized brawls this season that have been triggered by brush-back pitches. "If you say fine them, believe me you'll hear from the union," Kuhn said of the batters who have charged the mound after being hit or decked by pitches. Most recently, Al Cowens of the Detroit Tigers was suspended by American League president Lee MacPhail for fighting pitcher Ed Farmer of the Chicago White Sox.

Barber Ties Trevino At Memphis Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Lee Trevino, tied for the lead with veteran Miller Barber, figured he had history in his favor going into today's final round of the $300,000 Danny Thomas Memphis Golf Classic.

"I'm a front-runner," Trevino said. "I love to play from the front. If you're in front, you can make a mistake and get away with it. If you're trying to catch up and make a mistake, well, that's about it."

"I can't remember losing but once when I went into the last round leading or tied for the lead."

Barber, a 49-year-old veteran who was gasping for breath after he finished in the steamy heat, seemed equally confident after making birdie on two of his last three holes for a 4-under-par 68 in Saturday's third round. He and Trevino shared the top spot at 203, 13-under-par on the 7,249-yard Colonial Country Club course.

It must have seemed longer than that to Barber.

"Man, it was hot," he said. "Coming down the 18th fairway, it was questionable to me whether I was going to make it to the green."

"If the weather stays like this tomorrow, it's going to be survival of the fittest."

"But I like my chances. They're as good as anybody's. I like the heat. This is the kind of grass I grew up on. This is my part of the country," Barber said.

He paused for a moment and offered a sly grin.

"The hot weather is good for the old bones. I've got my health back now. I feel like I can hurt somebody right now."

Barber, in his 22nd year of PGA Tour activity, won the last of his 11 titles two years ago.

Trevino, a notorious hot-weather player in his element in the temperatures that soared into the upper 90s, also had a 4-under-par 68, including an eagle-2 on the fourth hole, and shared the top spot.

"I played pretty good today," he said. "I'd set a goal for myself, to shoot 67 on the first day, and I did it. I wanted to shoot 68 today and I figure 68 tomorrow ought to do it."

But Trevino, twice a winner of this title, quickly reconsidered.

"But you can't tell. Ol' Miller is playing pretty good; 68 might not handle his act. We'll just have to wait and see."

They shared a 3-stroke lead over Tom Purtzer, who shot a 71 and had a 206 total.

Jerry Pate, who led the first two rounds, made double bogey 6 on the eighth hole, hit one in the water on the 18th and finished with a 74 that dropped him back to a tie for fourth with Danny Edwards at 207, 4 strokes back. Edwards had a 67.

Perry Cools Off Twins With 5-0 Shutout

By ALEX SACHARE,
AP Sports Writer

Gaylord Perry often takes three hours or more to pitch a game. Not Friday night. In a very sensible attempt to keep his Texas teammates happy, and also keep them from suffering heat prostration, the 41-year-old Perry took just one hour, 49 minutes in beating the Minnesota Twins

5-0. Perry threw just 82 pitches, allowing only four hits, in going the distance for the third time this season despite game-time temperatures of 109 degrees in Arlington, Texas, down from a record-tying 113 earlier in the day.

Kansas City Royals nipped the Seattle Mariners 2-1.

Perry, 46, struck out two and walked none. He retired nine batters on the first pitch and seven others on the second pitch.

"Do I pitch better when I work faster?" said Perry. "Anything to get those guys happy and get those runs in early."

The Rangers responded to their pitcher's considerate gesture by scoring four runs in the first inning, two on Pat Putnam's homer, and Perry was never in trouble en route to his 52nd career shutout.

Some of the Texas players complained because Manager Pat Corrales put them through regular pre-game drills despite the heat, but Corrales defended his actions.

"With heat like this, you've got to get out and get used to it," Corrales said. "If you get out in it, it's not so bad. But if you sit in the clubhouse under air conditioning until seven and then go out, it's like walking into a furnace."

In other American League games, the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-2, the Boston Red Sox edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2, the California Angels shaded the Milwaukee Brewers 6-5, the Cleveland Indians blanked the New York Yankees 2-0, the Oakland A's trimmed the Chicago White Sox 3-1 and the eight hits in pitching his sixth complete game as Detroit won its eighth in a row.

Lance Parrish led the Tigers' attack with a three-run homer in a five-run first inning. Richie Hebner and Rick Peters had three hits apiece for the Tigers.

Red Sox 3, Orioles 2

Chuck Rainey and Tom Burgmeier combined on a seven-hitter for Boston, with Rainey raising his record to 8-4 and Burgmeier coming on in the eighth to post his 13th save.

Butch Hobson's two-out single in the sixth inning brought home Fred Lynn with the winning run.

Angels 6, Brewers 5

California rallied for two runs in the eighth and two more in the ninth to post only its fourth victory in the last 23 games. The tying run scored on a bases-loaded walk to Don Baylor and then Jason Thompson drove in the winner with a sacrifice fly.

Ben Oglivie, the American League home run leader, and Gorman Thomas, last year's champion, hit two homers apiece for the Brewers. Oglivie now has 20 for the season and Thomas 14.

Indians 2, Yankees 0

Rick Waits, who went into the game with a 5.18 earned run average, scattered seven hits for his first shutout of the season as the Indians handed the Yankees their fourth loss in the last five games.

Mike Hargrove's sacrifice fly in the first and Joe Charboneau's double in the sixth accounted for Cleveland's runs.

A's 3, White Sox 1

Mike Norris, 9-5, gave up a run in the first inning but settled down to pitch a four-hitter as the A's beat the White Sox. Norris retired 15 batters in a row in one stretch.

Royals 2, Mariners 1

Solo homers by Frank White and Willie Aikens backed the combined four-hit pitching of Rich Gale and Dan Quisenberry as Kansas City topped Seattle.

Straining For Home

California Angels' Jason Thompson, right, strains to touch home as Milwaukee Brewer catcher Buck Martinez makes the tag, but drops the ball during eighth inning action Friday night in Anaheim. Thompson was called safe on the play and the Angels went on to defeat the Brewers, 6-5, breaking their eight game losing streak. (AP Laserphoto)

Babe Ruth League

Wachovia Bank 5, Home Builders 4

Wachovia Bank finally shook off Home Builders in the first round of the Babe Ruth League's post-season tournament Friday night, scoring a 12-inning 5-4 victory. The win sends Wachovia into the winner's bracket of the event, against Aaction Movers, which had a first round bye. Home Builders falls into the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament.

Wachovia scored first, getting a run in the first, then added two in the third. A fourth run scored in the fourth inning. Home Builders rallied, however, scoring once in the fifth and three times in the sixth, tying it at 4-4.

It stayed that way for the next seven innings, as neither team was able to take advantage of its opportunities. Finally in the 12th, with one down, Troy Hudson reached on a three-base error. He scored when Barry Nichols singled, winning the game for Wachovia.

Marvin Barrett and Nichols each had two hits for Wachovia, while Tim Shank, Curtis Evans, Tony Burroughs and Scott Irwin each had two for the Builders.

A second game scheduled for Friday night between Pepsi-Cola and Coca-Cola was suspended due to curfew and was to be completed Saturday morning.

Little League

Wellcome 4, Moose 2

Wellcome outsted the last place Moose in the first game of the Tar Heel Little League's post-season tournament Friday, 4-2. Wellcome was to face Big Value Drugs in the tournament's second round Saturday.

Wellcome pushed over its first run in the opening inning, then added two in the third.

Terry Warren led off the third with a double and Chris Brown reached on an error. Another error advanced him to second, and a wild pitch let Warren score. Lark Wetherington reached on an error, scoring Brown.

The other run came in the fifth, while the Moose got both of its runs in the third.

Exchange 22, Pepsi-Cola 3

The Exchange romped to a 22-3 victory over Pepsi-Cola, eliminating the losers from the Tar Heel Little League playoffs Friday. Exchange was to play regular season champ First Federal on Saturday.

The Exchange pushed over two in the first, one on a homer by Monty Atkinson, then added the clincher in the second, scoring three times.

Chris Coble reached on an error and moved up on another. He stole third, and scored on a passed ball. Doug Bray was hit by a pitch and moved up on two passed balls. Atkinson walked and a double steal put him on second and scored Bray. An error moved Atkinson to third, and he stole home. That made it 5-0.

The Exchange added 14 runs in the fourth and three in the fifth, the latter all on a homer by Mike Hathaway.

All three Pepsi runs came in the third.

Atkinson and Jim Hall each had three hits, and Coble had two to pace Exchange. No one had more than one for Pepsi, which got only two off Hathaway.

Kiwanis 5, Optimists 1

The Kiwanis gained a 5-1 victory over the Optimists Friday in the opening round of the North State Little League post-season tournament. The loss eliminated the Optimists, while the Kiwanis were to face Coca-Cola in Saturday's second round.

The Optimists got their only run in the top of the first, while the Kiwanis countered with one of their own in the bottom of the inning.

Then, in the fifth, the Kiwanis pushed over four more to win it. With one down, Robbie McDonald walked and so did Jason Galloway. With two away, William Smith singled and Van Alston reached on a fielder's choice, scoring McDonald. An error allowed Galloway to score, and Smith stole home. Alston then scored when Robert Erhmann singled.

No one had more than one hit for the Kiwanis, while Anthony Coward had two for the Optimists.

Union Carbide 6, Lions 4

Union Carbide outlasted the Lions, 6-4, Friday in the first round of the North State Little League tournament, ousting the Lions from the field. Union Carbide was to face the Jaycees, the regular season winner, in Saturday's second round game.

Union Carbide scored first with a run in the first, but the Lions tied it up with one of their own in the second. Both teams scored single runs in the third, but Union Carbide put it away in the fourth, scoring four times.

Steve Williams led off the fourth with a single and with one down, Billy Hall singled. John Flency's infield ball was errored, allowing Williams to steal put him on second and scored. He scored when Tim West doubled. Devin Gatlin singled and a double by Chris Stokes brought in West with the final run.

The other two Lion runs came in the fifth.

West and Gatlin led the Union Carbide hitting with two, while Donald Perkins had two to pace the Lions.

G. Hardware 8, Auto Specialty 5

Greenville Hardware advanced into the winners' bracket of the Prep League Post-Season Tournament Friday night with an 8-5 win over Auto Specialty. Greenville Hardware was to meet the other unbeaten in the league, First State Bank, in a Saturday afternoon game, while the Elks take on Auto Specialty on Sunday at 5 p.m. in the losers' bracket. The loser of that contest is out of the field.

Greenville Hardware scored first, getting three runs in the second inning. Auto Specialty came back with one in the third and two more in the fourth, tying it at 3-3.

The Hardwaremen, however, picked up three more in the sixth to put it out of reach. With one down, Ken Butler walked and Cedric Hines singled. Rob Deyton got a hit, loading the bases. After a second out, Traye Fuqua reached on an error, allowing all three runners to score.

The other Hardware runs came in the seventh, while Auto Specialty also added two in that frame.

Tony Taylor, Jay Wynne and Hines each had two hits to lead the Hardwaremen. Patrick Rand had two hits to pace Auto Specialty.

S. Pitt Little League

WINTERVILLE — Chicod gained a 13-5 victory over Harris Supermarket in the semifinals of the Division I Southern Pitt Little League tournament Friday night.

Mike Elks, who went three-for-three at the plate, hurled the victory. Chicod was also led by Todd Hembly with two hits, while Harris was led by Jody Vines with three.

Reuss Hurls Season's First No-Hitter

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It was a perfect game for Jerry Reuss — but not for the rest of the Los Angeles Dodgers, which is why it'll go into the books as just another no-hitter.

Reuss, a 31-year-old left-hander who came within three outs of a no-hitter eight years ago, when he was with Pittsburgh, got it Friday night as the Dodgers blasted Vida Blue and the San Francisco Giants 8-0.

In the rest of the National League, New York edged Philadelphia 3-2, Pittsburgh beat Montreal 6-4, Atlanta topped San Diego 5-3, Houston trimmed Cincinnati 5-4 and St. Louis defeated Chicago 3-2 in 12 innings.

But for a wild throw by shortstop Bill Russell on Jack Clark's routine grounder in the first inning, Reuss would have had a perfect game instead of the season's first no-hitter and the Dodgers' first since Bill Singer turned the trick in 1970.

Was he disappointed at missing out on perfection? Reuss was incredulous. "I just got a no-hitter!" he exclaimed. "What could be a bigger thrill?"

But Russell clearly was disappointed. "I threw it away," he said. "It was as simple as that. I thought there was nothing I could do about it. The perfect game's gone, so let's go after the no-hitter." And go after it Reuss did — almost from the opening pitch. "I started thinking about it in the first inning," he said.

His catcher, Steve Yeager, insisted he blocked the no-hitter out of his mind, in effect admitting to being a victim of one of baseball's oldest superstitions. "I didn't think about it until he fielded the ball for the last out," he said. "I didn't want to jinx him."

"I felt the pressure," Reuss said. "I knew what was going on. I didn't want to make a mistake. When you're just trying to get someone out, you have a little leeway. But this was a no-hitter. I came close once or twice before and I didn't want to make a mistake."

"I've been in total control before but never with these results," he added.

Jim Lefebvre, the former Dodger now the batting coach of the Giants, was similarly impressed. "This was one of the most overpowering games I ever saw," Lefebvre, a Dodger when Singer worked his magic, said of Reuss' effort. "He literally knocked the bat out of our hitters' hands."

The Dodgers got a run in the third, then blasted Blue from the mound in the fifth, getting seven hits and five runs with two outs. Three of the runs came on Dusty Baker's homer. Steve Garvey homered in the seventh.

"As a pitcher I can appreciate what Reuss did," said Blue, who hurled one of his own when he was with the Oakland A's. "Personally, I'm glad for him." Then, laughing, Blue added: "As far as the Giants, go, though, I hate his guts."

Mets 3, Phillies 2
Left-handers have been driving New York slightly nuts this year. But when they met the NL's best southpaw, everything was just fine. "These guys always seem to rise to the occasion. They beat teams and guys they're not supposed to beat," Manager Joe Torre said after his Mets handed Philadelphia's 13-game winner, Steve Carlton, his third loss and second to New York this season. Carlton is 24-27 against the Mets in his career. The Mets have won only three of their last 13 games against lefties.

Lee Mazzilli hit a looping fly ball down which bounced over hard-charging left fielder Bake McBride and wound up as an inside-the-park homer to open the Mets' three-run sixth inning. Singles by Frank Taveras, John Stearns and Joel Youngblood made it 2-0, then Alex Trevino hit a sacrifice fly. The Phillies runs came on a single by Garry Maddox and Bob Boone's homer.

Pirates 6, Expos 4
The Mets' triumph could have helped Montreal widen its 2½-game lead over the second-place Phillies in the East Division. Instead, that spread remained the same and third-place Pittsburgh, rising a four-run sixth inning against the Expos, pulled within 3½ games of the front-runners.

John Milner's two-run pinch-single was the big blow in the sixth for the Pirates, who won for only the second time in their last 11 games.

Braves 5, Padres 3
"The team looks to me for defense. It's good when I can contribute, hitting-wise," shortstop Luis Gomez said after capping a four-run eighth with a two-run single that helped the Braves beat San Diego and halt a three-game slide. Gene Tenace had a homer for the Padres.

Astros 5, Reds 4
A double by Rafael Landestoy and a walk to Denny Walling preceded Jose Cruz's triple in the eighth inning as Houston wiped out the last vestiges of Cincinnati's four-run first-inning lead and beat the Reds.

Cards 3, Cubs 2
Keith Hernandez followed Garry Templeton's triple with a line single to right, snapping a 12th-inning tie with the Cubs and giving St. Louis its fifth successive victory. "I've got the feeling we're putting it all together," Hernandez said.

Mean And He Means It

Hintnaus Just Misses On Record Vault Bid

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — With only two days left in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials, there still hasn't been a world record. But local boy Tom Hintnaus tried his best Friday night.

Hintnaus thrilled the Hayward Field crowd of 16,029 on the sixth day of competition by taking three cracks at a world record pole vault height. He thought he was close on three of his bids at 18 feet, 11 inches.

The world mark is 18-10½. Hintnaus, runnerup in the national collegiate championship meet for the University of Oregon this month, said he thought he had the world mark "on my last two attempts."

He added, "I was really close on both of them. I know I'm capable of a world record now. I know I can do it. I didn't know it before today but I know it now."

Hintnaus, 22, of Manhattan Beach, Calif., won with a personal best 18-4½ while favored Mike Tully and veteran Dan Ripley tied for second at 18-2½. Former professional Steve Smith, who got into the meet on fewer misses, was fourth at 18-2½.

"This was icing on the cake," smiled Smith. "Just getting into the meet was a victory."

"I really think I can do 19 feet in Europe this summer," Hintnaus said. "It's something I'm really going to shoot for now. This really gave my confidence a shot in the arm."

Hintnaus was born in Brazil and has dual U.S.-Brazilian citizenship. He could go to the Moscow Olympics as a member of the Brazilian Olympic team.

The United States is boycotting the Games because of the Russian intervention in Afghanistan but Brazil is not.

"I won't be at Moscow," Hintnaus said. "I'd rather have a gold medal than a world record but it wouldn't be any fun going to the Olympics without the other Americans."

Friday night's other men's winner was 30-year-old Pete Shmuck in the shot put at 68-4 and University of Southern California freshman Bill Green at 45.85 seconds in the 400-meter dash.

In the women's 200-meter dash, veteran Chandra Cheeseborough won in 22.70 seconds. In a special women's 10,000-meter finale, Kristen Banks won in 33:45.6.

Brian Oldfield, a former professional who also needed a judge's ruling to compete at Eugene, has the U.S. best of 71-7 this year but wound up fourth at 67-4½. He walked off the infield after the competition and wouldn't talk to newsmen.

Trouble Still Following Ilie Nastase

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Times may have changed for John McEnroe, but trouble still follows Ilie Nastase.

McEnroe, dubbed "Superbrat" and booed by the spectators last year, is the new hero of Wimbledon's teenybopper fans. Nastase, perennial bad boy of tennis, is in trouble again.

The 1980 version of John McEnroe is a far cry from the brash, arrogant youth who used to alienate crowds and officials on both sides of the Atlantic and was regularly vilified by his hometown crowds in New York.

No more scowls, no angry outbursts at umpires, McEnroe is a changed man — thus far.

But Nastase, bane of many an official, got himself into trouble with the police Friday after being involved in a brush with reporters that ended with one newsman's glasses being smashed.

Ironically, Nastase's on-court behavior had been impeccable as he carved out a 4-6, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 second-round victory over American Dick Stockton.

Nastase, however, is realistic enough to agree that his chances of winning here are minimal.

Not so with McEnroe, the 21-year-old left-hander and second seed, who battled back from the brink of defeat to edge little-known Australian Terry Rocavert 4-6, 7-5, 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

Top-seeded Bjorn Borg had things a lot easier and scored a straight-set victory over Israeli Shlomo Glickstein 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

Seven other men's seeds saw action and all advanced. Americans Vitas Gerulaitis (No. 4), Roscoe Tanner (No. 5), Gene Mayer (No. 6), Peter Fleming (No. 7) and Stan Smith (No. 15) were successful, as were No. 8 Victor Pecci of Paraguay, No. 13 Wojtek Fibak of Poland and No. 16 Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina.

Gerulaitis beat Sashi Menon of India 6-7, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2; Tanner topped John Fitzgerald of Australia 6-1, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6; Mayer downed Andrew Jarrett of Britain 6-4, 6-4, 6-2; Fleming defeated Czech Stanislav Birner 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and Smith won over Peter Feigl of Austria 4-6, 6-1, 7-6, 6-1.

All the men's seeds won, but four seeded women were defeated.

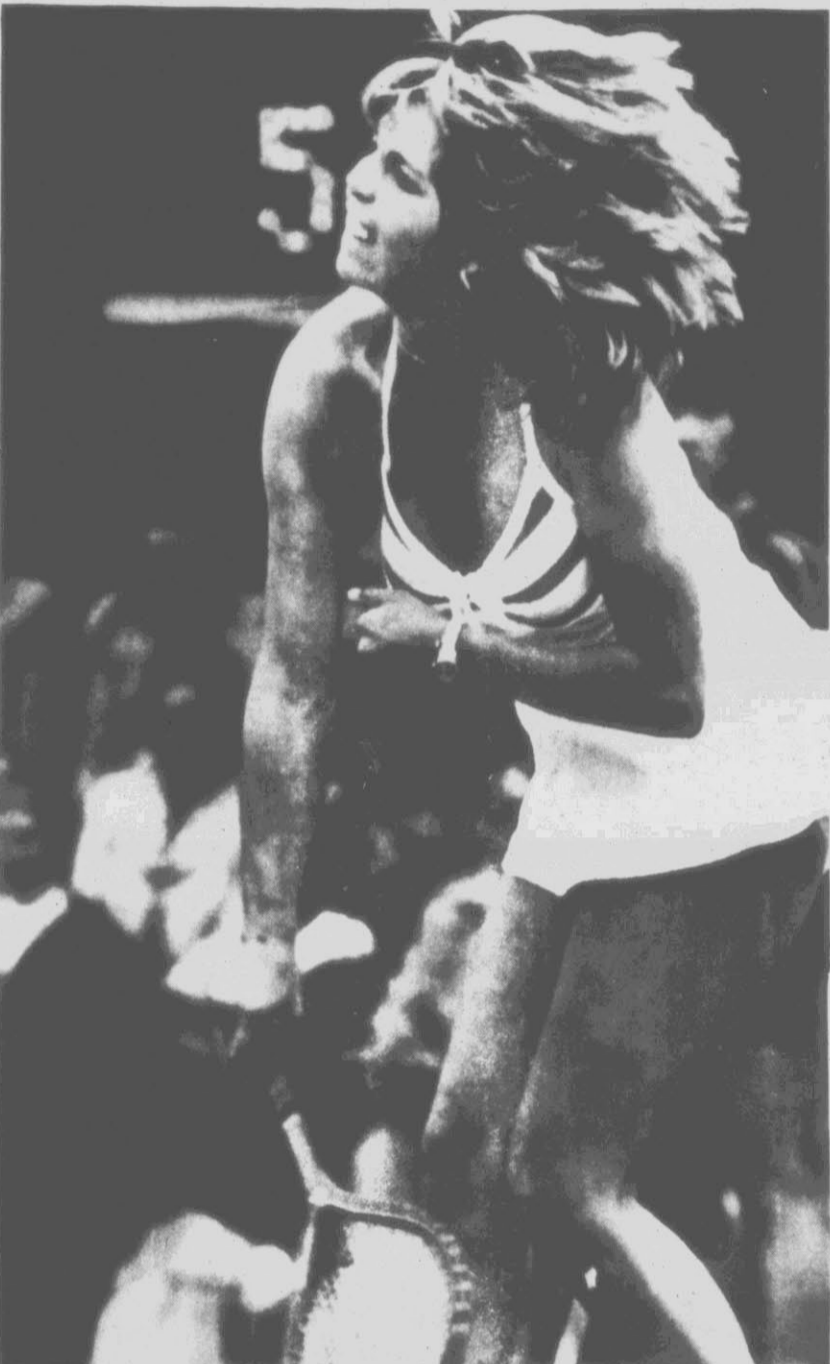

The three leading players had easy victories. Navratilova crushed Rayni Fox 6-1, 6-1 in 38 minutes. Tracy Austin ousted Nerida Gregory of Australia

6-1, 6-2. Chris Evert Lloyd, in her first match of the tournament, demolished Christiane Jolissaint of Switzerland 6-0, 6-1.

The seeds eliminated were Virginia Ruzici of Romania (12), Sue Barker of Britain (13), Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia (15) and Sylvia Hanika of West Germany (16).

Joanne Russell of Naples, Fla., defeated Ruzici, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4. Barker fell to Bettyann Dent of Newport Beach, Calif., 3-6, 7-5, 6-2. Sue Saliba of Australia accounted for Marsikova 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. Pam Shriver, the tall 17-year-old long match against Hanika, from Lutherville, Md.; won a 6-3, 1-6, 9-7.

Baseball Is Making Comeback In China

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — The Chinese, curious about Western ways after years of isolation from their neighbor across the Pacific, have rediscovered the most American of games, baseball, according to a U.S. coach who recently conducted a training program there.

"They are very enthusiastic about all sports now and baseball is making a comeback," said Bill Arce, the Claremont Men's College athletic director who spent seven weeks working with 49 coaches and 40 players in the People's Republic of China.

"They have baseball now at the Beijing Institute for Physical Education and they will re-instate baseball on the middle and lower school levels within the next couple of years. I understand," said Arce, a past president of the American Association of Baseball coaches who has coached and conducted clinics in many countries.

"The Chinese theory about building up sports is to find youths who show promise and place them in special schools where they can concentrate on a particular sport. They were continually asking me about what makes a good catcher, a good pitcher, and so on."

Baseball was introduced to China by American missionaries and military personnel in the 1930s. After dropping out of sight twice since, during the Sino-Japanese War that began in 1937 and during the cultural revolution of the 1960s, the game has resurfaced in China.

While the Chinese are behind on some of the more intricate baseball skills, their natural abilities and the repetitive drills common to their training philosophy give them great promise," Arce said.

"The Chinese seem to have exceptional hand-eye coordination, they're quick, and they generally have a sinewy kind of strength," Arce explained. "It's mostly because of the lifestyle, I suppose. Their fielding and throwing are surprising good. What they need is the more refined skills in areas like pitching and hitting and things like setting up the cutoff man.

"Of the 40 players I worked with in China," Arce continued, "I think you could take the top 25 and have a team that could compete with all but the top five or six amateur teams — like Cuba and the U.S. — in the world now. They really work at the game, taking hitting practice until they have blisters on their hands.

"China was the 15th country I've conducted baseball training in," he said, "and it was by far the most unique and interesting. I found the Chinese to be a delightful people."

With "Dukes of Hazzard" leading the way, CBS mounted a powerful challenge to NBC and ABC in the networks' prime time ratings competition. With seven of the eleven highest-rated programs, CBS won the ratings race for the month of May, according to surveys conducted by the A.C. Nielsen Company. (Nielsen ranks shows according to the percentage of homes in Eastern North Carolina, that have television, who saw at least part of the program.*)

CBS led the way with "Dukes of Hazzard", "Miss USA Pageant", "Dallas", "The Waltons", "The Jeffersons", "Alice", and "60 Minutes". NBC came in second with "The Country Music Awards", "Real People", "Little House on the Prairie", and "Chips". ABC had no shows in the May Nielsen ratings in the top 30 shows in Eastern North Carolina.

North Team Listed For Game

The North Squad of the Boys Home All-Star game was announced this weekend, with no area players listed among those chosen for the contest. The annual game will be played on Saturday, July 19, in East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium. The contest is returning to Ficklen this year, after having been played for the past two seasons in Raleigh's Carter Stadium. The first 15 of the 17 games were played in Ficklen. The game not only recognizes outstanding high school athletes from across the state, it provides funds for the Lake Waccamaw and Huntersville Boys' Homes. The contest is annual sponsored by the Jaycees of North Carolina.

Tickets for the contest may be purchased from any Jaycee. Sanctioned by the North Carolina High School Athletic Association, the players are picked by the coaches. The North coaches include Walt Wiggins of Rocky Mount, aided by Mac Allen of Plymouth and C.K. Siler of Southern Guilford. The South squad, announced earlier, will be coached by Will Campagna of North Mecklenburg, assisted by Boyce Deitz of Swain County and Tommy Sloan of Midway.

Members of the North squad are as follows, along with position and high school: Dwayne Greene, quarterback, Raleigh Broughton; David Couch, quarterback-defensive back, Asheboro; Randy Joyce, quarterback, Mount Airy; Cleveland Quick, halfback-linebacker, Southwest Guilford; Michael Robinson, tailback, Northern Durham; Carl Tolbert, tail back, Hibernia; Benson Gray, tailback-linebacker, High Point Central; Jack Cameron, tailback, Person County; Victor Thorne, tailback, Rocky Mount; Todd Bowman, center-defensive tackle, Alexander Central; Clayton Williams, center, North Surry; Also Michael Ferraro, tackle, Raleigh Sanderson; Todd Blackwell, position not listed, Reidsville; Sheldon Meehan, offensive tackle, Burlington linebacker, Eastern Alamance; Joe Lampkins, position not listed, Winston-Salem Reynolds; Also Aubrey Johnson, tight end, Elizabeth City Northeastern; Michael McKenzie, tight end-defensive end, High Point Central; Donald Eldred, defensive end, Southern Guilford; Jeffrey Putzulu, linebacker, Burlington Cummings;

Rodney Semmons, offensive tackle-linebacker, Aoshkie; Jeff Milligan, linebacker, Burlington; Jay Roberts, linebacker, Western Guilford; Walter Black, halfback-safety, East Forsyth; Mike Transou, safety-tight end, Elkin; Bryan Burleigh, back, West Forsyth; and Thomas Chapman, kicker, High Point Andrews.

Racing Pair Set For 6-Hour Race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The new pairing of Roger Mandeville and Don Whittington likely is to have the early front-runners looking over their shoulders at the start of the Six-Hour Endurance Challenge today at Daytona International Speedway. Mandeville, the defending series champion, recruited Whittington, the defending world endurance driving champion, to be the co-driver of his Mazda RX-3.

Whittington, teamed with Roy Woods in another Spirit. English driver John Fitzpatrick, who drove with Barbour at Sebring and LeMans, where they finished fifth, will work with Gene Felton in a Spirit. This race is also the eighth of 15 races in the $100,000-plus World Endurance Series, which is currently led by Paul with the team of Barbour-Fitzpatrick right behind.

Then Mandeville went out and qualified the car ninth on the grid for the event involving production-based racing sedans using radial tires.

The experienced duo will have to do some fancy driving to catch the hot cars at the front of the field, including the pole-sitting Buick Skylark of Jim Reeve and German import Juergen Barth.

Veteran pilots Jim Downing and John Paul, who won this race together in 1978, were the second fastest qualifiers in another Mazda, while two-time Daytona 24 Hours winner Hurlie Haywood and current sedan series point leader Rob McFarlin put a Datsun 200 SX in the third spot.

Other teams to watch on Daytona's 3.84-mile road course — including most of the Speedway's famed high-banked oval — are brothers Irv and Scott Hoer, in the AMC Spirit in which Irv won a six-hour race here earlier this year; John Mafucci and Sebring 12 Hours winner Dick Barbour in a Mazda RX-7, as well as defending champion Dennis Shaw (who drove last year's race with

LeDoux Ready For Title Fight

ANDOVER, Minn. (AP) — When Scott LeDoux was a boy growing up in tiny Crosby, Minnesota, a don't-blink-or-you'll-miss-it hamlet on the Cuyuna Iron Range in northern Crow Wing County, he would do his chores on the family farm, go to school, take part in athletics, do some more chores and then go to bed.

LeDoux knows that he needs the fight of his life to beat Holmes. He knows he must box to the best of his ability and, if that fails, to slug it out the way he's been doing since turning pro in 1974. "Once you get to the arena, the fight is all you think about," LeDoux explains. "You go over and over in your mind what could happen. It's like a test in school. You say to yourself, 'What if he asks this question?'"

That's all there was to Scott LeDoux's world back then and all, it seemed, he needed. "I didn't know what a girl was until I got to college," he admits. But now the 31-year old LeDoux is readying himself for the climb to the summit of his profession. On July 7, at the Met Center in Bloomington, Minn., he will fight undefeated Larry Holmes for the World Boxing Council championship.

"You hope you have all the answers in your subconscious," LeDoux weighed 220 pounds for his first fight 14 years ago in Hibbing, another small town in northern Minnesota. It's what he hopes to weigh on July 7 when he stares across the ring at Holmes. "He's not the meanest man I've ever fought, and he doesn't have the best punching power," says LeDoux, who trains every day at 3 p.m. in a ring he installed in the garage of his three-bedroom rambler.

Is it possible for this man, who once built muscle and calluses by digging post holes in the hard earth all day, to achieve that which most boxers only dream of? "You know it is," smiles LeDoux. "In my heart I know I can beat Larry Holmes. A lot of people used to say LeDoux can't win. They said I couldn't even get here. I shut them up once. I'll shut them up again."

"But he's got the belt and that gives him a three-round edge before the bell even rings. I've got to get to his body early. If I can get to the body in the first six or eight rounds, he won't be there in the 15th. You can't win the title boxing; you've got to fight."

LeDoux will be an overwhelming underdog against Holmes, who has won all 34 of his professional fights, 25 by knockouts, and successfully defended his title six times. LeDoux will bring a pedestrian record of 26-8-4 into the ring for the 15-round fight. He will need every thread of courage his body can summon and every ounce of desire his heart can produce.

Perhaps it is his curly blonde hair. Perhaps it is his healthy nordic appearance, or his lack of flashy boxing skills and un-boxer-like. "I can realistically look at my abilities," he says. "I know some are limited. But some are the best in the world and I am the best puncher in the business."

But much of LeDoux's dream is made of heart. Heart and emotion. Emotion that sometimes gets him in trouble. Emotion that even he admits has cost him fights.

"Before my first Duane Bobick fight (in 1975), I'm in the ring, and they're playing the national anthem and I'm standing there crying," said LeDoux. "I'm very emotional. I was just so happy to be there."

LeDoux lost that fight, and for some reason could never beat Bobick, his Minnesota rival. But it is LeDoux and not Bobick who now has the chance to shake the boxing world.

It is a chance LeDoux has been waiting for all his life and a chance on which he intends to capitalize. "I've never turned down a fight; I've never ducked anybody," says LeDoux, who has battled the likes of George Foreman, Ken Norton, Ron Lyle, Leon Spinks and Mike Weaver and always been standing in his corner at the end of the fight.

"In any profession, you like to compare yourself with the best. I've gone against five world champions and always answered the bell. That's my measuring tool," he said.

Kinch Signs With Cavs

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers signed their top draft pick Chad Kinch to a three-year contract, the National Basketball Association club announced. Kinch, a 6-foot-4, 190-pound guard, was a four-year starter at the University of North Carolina-Charlotte, averaging 18 points a game. The Cavaliers chose a big guard because of the loss of Austin Carr to the Dallas Mavericks in the expansion draft.

The first year of Kinch's pact is guaranteed, but no other contract terms were disclosed. The Cavaliers also announced Friday that principal owner Ted Stepien has increased his share of the club's stock to 47 percent by purchasing 65,000 shares from Richard Miller, a member of the club's board of directors. Stepien said he intends to control 54 percent of the Cavaliers through other stock purchases by next year.

Blue Jays Take Two Victories

Greenville's Blue Jays, coming off two routs of Princeton this past weekend, will seek to continue their winning ways this weekend when they travel to Rosewood for a doubleheader.

The Blue Jays, Greenville's entry in the Coastal Plains League, bombed Princeton, 16-1 and 21-6, last weekend to push their record to 4-12. In the opener, Jim Doffins pitched a one-hitter, striking out 15 along the way. Jeff Daniels, Marvin Hardy and Charlie Boyd all had three hits for Greenville.

In the nightcap, Dan Blount was the winner while Greg Lassiter, Ike Smith and Kelvin Tyus homered for the Blue Jays.

Cities Hope For A Cool Summer

By RICHARD BEENE
United Press International
With the nation in a recession and unemployment rising, officials at the federal, state and local levels hope enough jobs will be available and communications will be good enough to cool racial tensions this summer.

Black leaders warn that the racial atmosphere is tense, not only in the big city ghettos but in small towns like Wrightsville, Ga.

A survey by UPI reporters across the country found that jobs appeared to hold the key toward heading off racial disorders reminiscent of the 1960s.

But the question is how many jobs will be available to keep blacks — primarily young blacks — off the streets?

"We've got a whole generation out there with nothing to lose," said Birmingham, Ala., black leader Rev. Abraham Woods. "I've been through the 1960s and I know what can happen. Anyone who says it can't happen again is misleading the public."

In the aftermath of the Miami rioting that left 17 people dead and parts of the "Liberty City" area in rubble, the mood among blacks appears to be one of frustration and suppressed rage. During President Carter's tour of the area a month after the riot, his limousine was pelted with rocks, beer bottles and cans by blacks who believe the government has not done enough.

"There are many Miami's, many Harlems, many Watts throughout the country," said Jose Torres of the League of United Latin American Citizens in New York. "In the city of New York things are boiling over."

The ingredients for civil disorders are there: high unemployment among minorities with little hope that things will get better; a faltering economy that threatens what few jobs there are; a belief by many minorities that the system is not working for them again; police brutality, and cut-backs in key social services.

There are other factors, however, that could work to contain trouble. Cities with black mayors — Atlanta, Birmingham, Detroit, Los Angeles and New Orleans to name a few — are generally given a better chance of avoiding problems because better channels of communication have been opened with minorities and the "street people."

But minority group leaders and city officials warned of the single incident, sometimes minor, involving an injustice or what was perceived as one, that could touch off a riot. Such incidents, far removed from the root causes — the underlying social problems, happened in Watts in 1965, Cleveland in '66, Detroit in '67.

What is being done to prevent summer riots? In Washington the emphasis and hope — is placed on the summer jobs program.

In early June, the president said 1 million jobs had been prepared for disadvantaged young people this summer.

"I don't guess there will be many 15-year-old or older young people in this nation who cannot get an adequate job this summer under that program," Carter said.

The program will cost about 750 million and will hire high school students and graduates for a variety of nine-week jobs ranging from being lifeguards to working as secretaries.

Whether the program will be sufficient remains to be seen.

Nationwide, estimates are that black unemployment stands at more than 12 percent. That jumps to 40 percent among black teen-agers with some large cities such as Los Angeles and Detroit reporting rates of over 50 percent.

Shortly after the shooting of civil rights leader Vernon Jordan, Carter said the Justice Department and other federal agencies were assessing the attitudes of minority groups and "we are doing everything to deal with the root causes of social unrest in an effective fashion."

The major component of that effort appears to be the summer jobs program.

But the congressional black caucus accused Carter of misunderstanding "the intensity of the situation" in the cities, which one black congressman compared to the eruption of Mount St. Helens volcano.

Many were also critical of Carter's effort to balance the budget, which they saw as a move to undercut vital social programs.

"The president I don't think fully understood the intensity of the situation that we find throughout the United States today," said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill. "There is indeed a Mount St. Helens ready to explode in any urban community today."

In Philadelphia, city officials are planning to hold a lottery to award 14,657 jobs to unemployed youngsters. But they concede this is a mere drop in the bucket when compared to the more than 55,000 youths seeking jobs.

In Atlanta, City Councilman Marvin Arrington said unemployment among blacks has created a "powder keg atmosphere." "It's a fight between the haves and the have nots and you'll always have racial unrest in a situation like that," he said.

But Mayor Maynard Jackson sees some reason for hope that Atlanta will continue its reputation as a "city too busy to hate" and avoid racial bloodshed.

"The communications channels to city government are wide open and blacks participate in every aspect, including city government and the police department," said Jackson, who is black.

The situation appears encouraging in Houston, where unemployment among blacks and Hispanics is well below the national average.

"There is economic and political movement (among minorities) in Houston," said Dr. Alex Swan, sociology chairman at the predominantly black Texas Southern University. "There is a political and economic boom. Those groups which are oppressed still think they have a chance to make it."

But Swan warned if the "economic situation gets tight to the point where the influx of Cubans and (illegal)

Mexicans interferes with those struggling for vertical mobility or economic security, then it is ripe for violence. The single greatest source of tension in the ghetto appears to be the hostility between blacks and police, the UPI survey found.

As in Miami, the "police brutality" issue threatens to trigger racial disorder in a number of cities, large and small.

In tiny Wrightsville, Ga., last month, five people, including a 9-year-old black girl, were wounded during several nights of racial violence sparked by a march by blacks protesting alleged police brutality and the lack of jobs.

The Justice Department is conducting an investigation into possible civil rights violations in the small southcentral Georgia community.

And in Wichita, Kan., the arrest of a black man by a white policeman triggered a violent confrontation between 300 policemen and hundreds of angry blacks. Scores of people were injured.

In Boston, where blacks and whites have clashed over the busing of school children, the racial climate hinges at least in part on the resolution of the slaying of Billy Ray Kelley, a 32-year-old black man stabbed May 1 outside a bar in the predominantly white Charlestown section.

JOBLESS — An unemployed auto worker in Michigan files for benefits earlier this month. Officials at federal, state and local levels hope enough jobs will be available, and communications will be good enough, to cool tensions this summer. (UPI Photo)

Alternatives Being Offered

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI) — Supplemental, zone, auxiliary and spot heating and cooling offer economical, localized alternatives to the rising cost of centralized heating and cooling methods.

It's cheaper in the long run to keep thermostats low and switch on built-in or free-standing equipment to help heat or cool the room in use at the moment, says James Rankin, head of Scovill's Housing Products Group.

Such alternatives are especially useful in bathrooms, family rooms, bedrooms and covered porches, Rankin says. One such unit is a modernized version of the old-fashioned paddle fan, which can be used to force warm air downwards to save heat in winter and create cooling breezes in summer.

RESIGN POSTS
SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Government party leader Kim Jong-pil and four other politicians under arrest since May 17 for illegally amassing wealth, have formally resigned from the National Assembly and all other public posts they hold, government party sources report.

ABANDONED SILO — Not for 20 years have cows come lowing from pasture toward the old feed silo on Stagecoach Trail in Greensboro, N.C. The David Cummings Dairy Farm has been out of operation that long. Nowadays the weathered dairy buildings attract only artists and strollers — one of whom, bearing a camera, recorded this evidence of emptiness. (AP Laserphoto)

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to renew your devotion to the principles and precepts which you have accepted and live under for they can be even more satisfactory to you in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your position in the community and try to improve it. Show your benefactors that you appreciate their support.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get out to whatever place that will bring you peace of mind. Make plans for the week ahead so that it becomes more productive.

Pose Questions About U.S. Life

PEKING (AP) — "Can you tell us the technology of making a hamburger?"

"If a student man and woman live together, how are they criticized and punished?"

"Would you be so kind as to explain to us, 'the American dream'?"

These are among the hundreds of questions asked American photographer J.W. Canty who recently packed up the first American color photo exhibit in China, "Glimpse of America."

From the exhibit's opening last spring in Peking until its closing nearly three months later in Shanghai, more than 250,000 Chinese saw the 150 giant-sized photographs of Americans at work and play, sweating in coal mines and chatting over back-yard fences.

In Peking, 58,000 persons saw the exhibit, 48,000 saw it in Shenyang, northeast China, 45,000 in Hefei and 100,000 in Shanghai.

In Shanghai, the world's largest city with 11 million people, the exhibit was advertised only by word of mouth. Canty said one reason the show was not formally announced was because of the current Chinese effort to curb interest in the West and foreign influence.

The non-profit show was assembled by Canty, an entrepreneur and Episcopal priest from New York City. Various American photographers donated their work for the exhibit — an upbeat kaleidoscope of American life.

Canty also lectured about photography and America and received hundreds of questions from Chinese audiences.

"The questions," he said, "are most revealing about Chinese life and Chinese perceptions of America."

Some examples:
—What happens if the electricity goes out and people are trapped in elevators in the World Trade Center?

—Why are people poor in America and what do they do every day?

—Do many people believe in God ... Thanksgiving ... the Sabbath?

—What is a Christmas tree made of?

—How much does a bicycle cost?

—How many children does your government allow you to bear — what will they do with you if you have borne three or four children?

—Why is Elvis Presley more popular than Edgar Allan Poe?

—Women in America are afraid of being old, aren't they — please tell us why.

—Have you ever made a mistake to recognize a man who looks like a woman with long hair?

—What's the difference between jazz and country music?

—How do you introduce the one you take cohabitation with?

—Are classes divided by wealth or social status?

—How many different taxes are there in America?

—How many kinds of disco music?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to keep promises to others and plan for greater things in the future. Express happiness with family and friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A fine day to be of assistance to others in need. Situations arise now that could lead to self-improvement.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to be of service to others wherever needed, even if you're not asked to do so. Avoid one who wants to waste your time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Figure out a better way to express your creative talents. Schedule your activities for the new week and get excellent results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make any changes needed at home so that everything is more ideal. Show increased devotion for family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to communicate with others very well now, so contact key people and get good results. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good time to make plans to have more abundance in the days ahead. Strive to have increased harmony at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) The early hours are fine for making important decisions about the future. Catch up on your rest today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you get in touch with friends who are looking forward in seeing you. Keep any promises you have made.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle civic duties that appeal to you and gain more prestige. Plan the week ahead wisely and receive added benefits.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who can understand the practical phases of any situation, so be sure to give good spiritual and ethical training for best results in lifetime. An outstanding sports leader in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Margaret Williams Grows Daylilies, Other Delights

ROCKY MOUNT — "We always had flowers," Margaret Mills Williams said of her childhood in the Cox-Mills community of Pitt County. "I can't remember when I haven't loved flowers and worked with them."

Mrs. Williams, now an English teacher in the Rocky Mount City Schools, and her husband, Zeno, have at their home in Rocky Mount a yard that is a showplace of well-kept flowering plants. They have between 400 and 500 varieties of daylily, about 10 different types of hosta, several different kinds of bromeliad, and hostas. Other flowering plants, all beautifully circled by manicured lawns, include geraniums, petunias, and gladioli.

"Daylilies, hostas, and bromeliads are my three big passions," she said, but she declares she cannot say which one she likes most.

Mrs. Williams serves as secretary-treasurer of the North and South Carolina Region 18 division of the American Hemerocallis (daylily) Association. The group meets twice a year in one of the two states and members attend a national meeting once a year, also. "I enjoy this group," she said. "It's fun to share with others as enthusiastic as I am about daylilies. Plus, we have some interesting garden tours during our meetings."

Mrs. Williams was one of the organizers of the Southern Hosta Association, a group she also enjoys.

Flowers in her yard are limited to one climatic zone. "And I'm weeding out from around here," she said. "I'm going to get down to about 100 plants that I dearly love and have the best of."

The flatness of the slopes in the yard, she said, makes the flowers open, and, of course, the color and form all have a bearing on her choice. Daylily variety is favored over any other Mr. Williams.

Aided by her husband, and their son, Margo, she does all her yard work herself, in spite of a busy teaching schedule and her pursuance of her many and varied other interests. "The yard doesn't take much of my time now," she said. "It's been basically as it is for years. Daylies and hostas and most of my other plants are types that take care of themselves."

Her conversation during a tour of the yard, however, casts doubt on this assertion: "I took out the pansies last week and put in those begonias. Can you believe that all those begonias came from that mama plant there on the steps?"

"How do you like this area? I've widened it out some. Margo and I are going to bury the bottoms of the rocks soon, so it will be more naturalized.

"That load of dirt out there is to fill in the holes when I take out some daylilies. I've done some and they're covered with straw now."

"I need some limbs cut in the front yard so the daylilies there won't be drawn away from the yard." Daylily blooms, she explained, face the direction from which the plants get the most sunlight, and thus sometimes are uncooperative about facing the area from which they can best be viewed.

Most of the Williams' yard is shaded, so sunlight is filtered by the trees. Mrs. Williams said she likes this situation because it allows for both sun- and shade-loving plants.

There are several rock gardens in the yard, all made by Mrs. Williams herself. She's even built a couple of rock waterfalls, with water recirculated by pumps. "Moving water adds a lot to a garden," she said, "and the birds are attracted by it."

The Williamses have a screen of mostly holly and holly growing on the outer edge of the yard. Then white azaleas are planted against the boundary shrubs, with colorful azaleas alternated in front of the holly. Examples of every flowering plant imaginable are interspersed in wide curving beds which encircle the back yard and all but the front of the front yard. The daylilies are planted throughout, as are the hostas, though there is one area devoted almost entirely to hostas, ferns and gladioli.

There is one section set aside for wildflowers and another that's Oriental in mood, complete with bamboo-sheathed teahouse. There is a lily pond, too, and a border beside the driveway that soon will be comprised mainly of blueberry bushes and strawberry plants.

The Williams' garage was long ago converted into a greenhouse, where non-wintering plants can be moved and where potting can be done. Hundreds of begonias grown from seed are now waiting there to be set out.

"If there's anything that gives me pleasure," Mrs. Williams commented, "it's putting a plant into the ground or a pot just the way it should be and then watching it live and flourish and multiply. This simple act never ceases to be thrilling to me."

Editor's note: Mrs. Williams is the sister of Mrs. Frances Bailey of Greenville and the daughter of Mrs. Vera Mills, formerly of the Cox-Mills community, now of Blount's Creek in Beaufort County. Her husband, Zeno Williams, is a native of the Hollywood community of Pitt County.

Wide beds of flowers encircle manicured lawns at the Williamses.

CINDY KAYE MOORE... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Moore of Burlington, who announce her engagement to Charles Timothy Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Curtis of Cary. The wedding will take place Aug. 30.

Miss Maready Speaks Vows

CHINQUAPIN — The Salem Presbyterian Church here was the scene of the 5 p.m. Saturday wedding of Sandra Elaine Maready of Greenville, and Ryan Kent McLawhorn of Winterville. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jack Dail.

A program of wedding music was presented by Ms. Kim Edwards of Beulaville, pianist, and Ms. Brenda Fountain sang, "Evergreen" and "The Wedding Prayer." The director of the wedding was Mrs. Nell Bryan of Chinquapin.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William E. Maready of Chinquapin. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McLawhorn of Winterville.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Linwood Maready, wore a gown of polyester silesta featuring a high neckline, full bishop sleeves, an empire bodice trimmed with silk Venise lace, and a full A-line skirt which fell into a chapel train with a ruffle flounce edged in matching lace.

She wore a picture hat trimmed with matching silk Venise lace and motifs and an antique brooch which belonged to her grandmother. The silk bridal illusion accented the ensemble which fell to elbow length. Her bouquet consisted of a dozen white roses, carnations, ivy and gypsophila in a nosegay accented with candlelight satin ribbon and lace.

Beverly Lingerfelt of Rocky Mount, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a camisole styled gown of polyester voile fabric in a candlelight blue flowered print with a front tucked bodice, button closing, elasticized waistline and fabric tie belt. The gown was accented with an ivory eyelet insertion and blue ribbon on the bodice front and straps. She also wore a picture hat with ivory lace motifs and ivory ribbon and streamers.

Bridemaids were Mrs. Vicky Quinn of Albemarle, Mrs. Julia Craft of Winterville, Ms. Susie Patterson of Greenville, and Ms. Jacqueline Hatcher of Chinquapin, niece of the bride.

They wore gowns identical to that of the honor attendant in candlelight voile with orchid flowered print and orchid ribbon and insertion. Each wore orchid hats with ivory lace motifs and ivory ribbon streamers on the brim. The attendants carried nosegays of fuji poms, miniature carnations, gypsophila and daisies.

Brother of the bridegroom, Dan McLawhorn of Cheasapeake, Va., served as best man. Ushers included Bill Walker of Greenville, Jerry Lingerfelt of Rocky Mount, brother-in-law of the bride, Patrick McLawhorn of Cheasapeake, Va., nephew of the bridegroom, and Rusty Hatcher of Chinquapin, nephew of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of blue polyester crepe which featured a bodice overlay with capped sleeves. She wore a corsage of white roses. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of peach silk polyester and chiffon. She wore a corsage of peach-colored roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall given by the bride's family. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of blue and orchid carnations and baby's breath around a silver candelabra. Cake was served by Mrs. W. W. Maready, aunt of the bride, and Relma Ayers poured punch. The reception was coordinated by Mrs. John Bryan. Mrs. Janice Hatcher, sister of the bride,

Miss Smith, Mr. Kane Marry

Cindy Lou Smith of Greenville, and Sean Donovan Kane of Petersburg, Va., exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 3 p.m. at the St. James United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Dewey Tyson performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Frances Cain of Greenville, organist, and Beth Auman of Fayetteville, soloist and cousin of the bridegroom, sang "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Smith of Salisbury, and the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel James Kane of Aberdeen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silesta over white peau de soie designed with a keyhole neckline outlined in a panel of scrolled silk floral Venise lace that extended to the empire waistline to form a yolk effect. The capelet sleeves and waistline were trimmed in matching floral silk Venise lace. The flared skirt and attached chapel length train were enhanced by a sunburst of accordin and knife pleats. She carried a cascade of yellow roses, snowdrift poms, ming fern and baby's breath and wore a headband of white daisies.

Belinda Harvey of Salisbury, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of mint green silesta knit designed with a fitted bodice with slip straps overlaid in matching mint green pleated silesta chiffon gathered at the shoulders. The sleeveless gown featured a corded waist, centered with a self-fabric bow, from which fell the flared skirt. She carried a white chrysanthemum with yellow and blue daisies and blue bows and streamers in an arm bouquet.

Lena Faye Manning of Greenville was bridesmaid. She wore a gown styled identically to the honor attendant in buttercup. Her flowers were identical also except for yellow bows and streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Jenny Crisp of Macclesfield, and Dana Kane of Minneapolis, Mn., sister of the bridegroom.

John Andrew Auman of Aberdeen, cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man while ushers included Randall Smith of Salisbury, brother of the bride, Kevin Kane of Aberdeen, brother of the bridegroom, Allen Spivey of Wilson, and Al Inman of Greenville.

The mother of the bride and the bridegroom's aunt were remembered with yellow daisy corsages. The bride's grandmother was remembered with a corsage of white miniature carnations.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr. Vickie Auman presided at the guest register.

The church was decorated with a basket of white gladioli, yellow and blue daisies and yellow cushion poms. A seven branch candelabra was placed on each side of the altar. The pews were marked with white bridal satin ribbons.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Moose Lodge Red Room. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Berliner. The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of yellow carnations, white and yellow daisies, purple static and ice blue lily of the valley. Robin Styers poured punch while ushers served champagne. Peggy Barringer, aunt of the bride, served cake and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Greer said good-byes.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Auman were hosts at a rehearsal dinner Friday night at the Ramada Inn here.

The couple plans to reside in Petersburg, Va., following a wedding trip to the Outer Banks. The bride and bridegroom are graduates of ECU. The bride was employed by Craven County Schools and the bridegroom is employed by Prince George County Schools, Va.

Vows Are Solemnized

SALISBURY — The wedding vows of Tamra Lynn Keeter of Salisbury, and Mark Steven Miller of Statesville, were solemnized Saturday afternoon during a two o'clock ceremony at the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church here.

The Rev. Fenton Moorhead officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was provided by David Ott, organist, and Ken Davis, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford Keeter of Salisbury. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pearce Miller of Rt. 8, Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk chiffon over taffeta featuring a Victorian neckline embellished with Venise lace and sheer netting, long fitted chiffon sleeves accented with lace appliques and a waistline which flowed into a full circular skirt with a chapel length train. The skirt was enhanced with scalloped Venise lace and chiffon tucked flowers. The waltz length veil was made of silk illusion and matching Venise lace appliques. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias accented with white snapdragons, azaleas and gypsophila. The bouquet was bordered with silk fern and white lace.

Carolyn Keeter of Salisbury, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Carol Carmichael, Gloria Gilbert, Rindi Haynes and Robin Propst, all of Salisbury. They wore pink lustre gowns with point d'esprit lace banding the flounce bodice. A self-tie belt with floral trim adorned the circular skirt. The bridesmaids carried nosegays of pink California poppies and gypsophila, accented by white daisies and baby's breath. White lace and a pink ribbon adorned the nosegays. The honor attendant carried a nosegay of California poppies and gypsophila with white daisies, baby's breath and white azaleas adorned with a pink ribbon and white lace.

Honorary bridesmaids were Karen Jarrell of Winston-Salem, Elexis McGowan of Wilmington, Ammie Miller of Tarboro, and Joy Williamson of Franklin. They carried a long-stemmed pink rose tied with a pink ribbon.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Sprite Barbee of Aberdeen, Randy Keeter of Salisbury, Wayne Miller of Tarboro, brother of the bridegroom, and Drew Rumbley of Farmville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church, given by the parents of the bride. The serving table was centered with a pink and white arrangement of carnations, daisies and snapdragons bordered with greenery.

A rehearsal dinner was held Friday in the Whitehead

MRS. MARK STEVEN MILLER

Room of the church hosted by the parents of the bridegroom.

Following a wedding trip to Savannah, Ga., the couple plans to reside in Statesville. The bride graduated from UNC-Chapel Hill with a B.A. in early childhood education. The bridegroom received his B.A. in psychology from UNC-Chapel Hill and a M.S. in rehabilitation counseling from ECU. He is currently employed as a rehabilitation counselor with the N. C. Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, Statesville.

Couple Marries Saturday

RALEIGH — Victoria Lynne Beaver and Richard Lee Pippin, both of Kinston, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon during a three o'clock wedding at the Westover United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Kenneth Sexton and the Rev. Kermit Braswell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling A. Beaver of Raleigh. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Pippin of Kinston.

A program of wedding music was provided by Mrs. Barbara Snead, organist, and Mrs. Anne Wells, soloist, both of Raleigh.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Gwen Beaver of Raleigh, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Pat Wallace of High Point, Susan Carroll of Greensboro, and Dianne Pippin of Kinston, sister of the bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Herman Pippin of Kinston, brother of the bridegroom, Styron Wood of Greenville, Bill Roberts and Edwin Taft, both of La Grange, and Ronnie Wooten of Lumberton.

The bride wore a formal gown of white satin and re-embroidered alencon lace. The semi-fitted skirt had alencon motifs on the front of the gown. The chapel length mantilla was worn over a matching Juliet cap. She carried a continental arm bouquet of white roses and pink carnations accented with baby's breath and ivy.

The honor attendant wore a pink colored dress of qiana with a chiffon capelet featuring spaghetti straps, empire waistline and an accordin pleated skirt. The bridesmaids wore identical dresses but in a deeper blush-colored pink. They all carried pink carnations centered with a pink rose accented with baby's breath and ivy.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

The rehearsal dinner was given Friday night at Balentine's Restaurant, Raleigh, by the parents of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Snead.

Following a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will live in Winterville. The bride is a graduate of UNC-Greensboro and the bridegroom is a graduate of Wake Forest University. The bride is a social worker at the Lenior County Dept. of Social Services. The bridegroom is a second year medical student at East Carolina University School of Medicine.

LIME TEA CAKE

After cooling, let stand overnight in a tightly closed plastic bag for easiest slicing.

1½ cups fork-stirred unbleached all-purpose flour

1½ teaspoons baking powder

¼ teaspoon salt

6 tablespoons butter, room temperature

1 cup sugar

Grated rind of 2 large limes (1½ tablespoons)

2 large eggs

2-3rds cup milk

2-3rds cup chopped (medium fine) walnuts

On wax paper stir together flour, baking powder and salt. In a medium bowl thoroughly beat together the butter, sugar and lime rind. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until blended. Stir in flour mixture in 3 additions, alternately with milk, just until dry ingredients are moistened. Stir in nuts. Turn into an 8½ by 4½ by 2½-inch loaf pan whose bottom has been lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 50 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; turn right side up; cool completely. Adapted from "Gifts in Good Taste" by Helen Hecht and Linda La Bate Mushlin (Atheneum).

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Vows Said In Candlelight Ceremony

Barbara Lynn Briley and George John Saleeby II were married Saturday at five o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

The Rev. Ralph Messick performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Rosemary Fischer, organist. Karen Wheeler sang "More," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Daughter of Mrs. Leonard Randolph Briley of Greenville, and the late Mr. Briley, the bride was given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her brother, Leonard Randolph Briley Jr. of Monroe. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George John Saleeby of Grifton.

The bride wore an original matte jersey formal gown designed with a high Venise lace neckline. The fitted bodice featured a lace bib front extending to the waist, accented with pearls. Venise lace cuffs adorned the long full sleeves and the built-in train extended chapel length. The bride chose a walking length veil of illusion trimmed with Venise lace attached to a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet with a white orchid and miniature carnations accented with foliage.

Connie Briley, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of suede rose lustregio featuring gathered shoulders and blouson front. The waistline was encircled by a rolled tie sash from which fell the full accordin pleated skirt. She carried a clustered bouquet of mauve silk wood roses, dusty pink bell blossoms tied with satin ribbons, accented with baby's breath and greenery.

Bridesmaids included Mrs. Fran Briley of Monroe, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Brenda Hoke of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Susan Tommasi of Fayetteville, cousin of the bride, Miss Deborah Scott, Mrs. Margo Sherman and Miss Frances Garrett, all of Greenville. Their gowns and flowers were identical to that of the honor attendant.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Jeff Saleeby, brother of the bridegroom of Grifton, Ray Hoke of Raleigh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Pratt Sherman, Jim Herring and Gary Bach, all of Greenville, Greg Davis of Raleigh, and James Herring of Grifton.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pink qiana and the mother of the bridegroom selected a gown of beige qiana. Both wore white cymbidium orchids.

White carnation corsages were given to grandmothers of the bridal couple, Mrs. John W. Cain of Fayetteville, Mrs. Delmar Moore of Ayden, and Mrs. John Saleeby of Wilson.

Mrs. James William Byrd of Greenville directed the wedding.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga.

The bride is a M.A. Ed. graduate of ECU and employed by the Pitt County Schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of Raleigh School of Data Processing and is employed with the United Food and Commercial Workers.

A champagne reception was given by the mother of the bride at the American Legion Building. Mrs. Linda Brown, Mrs. Mary Ann Briley, Mrs. Peggy Briley, Mrs. Nina Weston, Mrs. Helen Kleinert and Mrs. Katie Kittrell assisted in serving.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard T. Whitehurst, Miss Debbie Briley, Judge and Mrs. Robert Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Faulkner and Dr. Dan Jordan also assisted.

Engagements Announced

PAMELA KAYE TRUELOVE... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Earl Truelove of Rt. 1, Erwin, who announce her engagement to James Vincent Haslup Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Vincent Haslup Sr. of Baltimore, Md. An Aug. 16 wedding is planned.

PAMELA JOYCE TROTTER... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beauford Trotter of Rt. 2, Thomasville, who announce her engagement to George Franklin Rice Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rice of Wilson. An Aug. 17 wedding is planned.

An after-rehearsal party and dance was held at the Moose Lodge given by parents of the bride, Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Carson, Judge and Mrs. Wheeler and Mr.

and Mrs. Jeffrey Saleeby. The wedding party was entertained at a luncheon Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hawley given by friends of the bride.

Insurance Women Meet

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its meeting Wednesday evening at the Ramada Inn. Toni Lassiter was guest speaker.

Ms. Lassiter is director of the Hertford-Bertie Volunteers to Court. She works with juveniles in a special program for first offenders.

President Joyce Mills conducted the meeting. The proposed budget was presented by Mrs. Evelyn Stroud, CPIW, chairman of the Budget Committee.

Reports included: Education, Sandra Sawyer; Welfare, Sarah Jenkins; Safety, Hilda Pinkham; and Ways and Means, Mrs. Stroud. A change in the presentation of Fire/Rescue Person of Year Award was approved.

A bazaar will be held in October at Carolina East Mall.

Potted plants and candles were used in decorating by hostesses, Sandra Sawyer and Sophia Sumner. Marian Smith and Dot Newton will July hostesses.

Fish cooks very quickly. If overcooked it becomes tough and dry and loses flavor. When properly cooked fish is firm but flakes easily.

Wedding Vows Exchanged

TABOR CITY — Nancy Jean Strickland of Rt. 2, Tabor City, and Dr. William Curtis Lee Jr. of Greenville, exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 2 p.m. at the St. Paul Methodist Church here.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Edwards. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Faye Daniel of Tabor City, organist, and Donna Terrence of Wilmington, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Irvin Harold Strickland of Rt. 2, Tabor City. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Curtis Lee of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Michael Strickland of Rt. 2, Tabor City, served as honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Michael Deans of Tarboro, and Donna McKenzie of Durango, Col., cousins of the bride, Kimberly Strickland of Tabor City, niece of the bride, Kimberly Dietz of Chapel Hill, Gayle Connor of Conway, S.C., Mrs. Jon Correll of Chapel Hill, and Jamye Eberhart of Aberdeen.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Greg Lee, brother of the bridegroom, and Whitney Miller, both of Greenville, Dr. Bill Blaylock of Chapel Hill, Charles and Michael Strickland, brothers of the bride of Tabor City, Chris Knepp of Houston, Tex., and Gil Whitford of Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of white sheer knit chiffon with a modified empire waist, V-neckline with English net yoke and long shadow sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were adorned with beaded silk Venice lace. The A-line skirt flowed into a chapel length train.

She wore a Camelot cap with silk Venice lace and pearls and a waltz length illusion with a blusher attached. She carried springerli fern cascades from a Victorian bouquet of white sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

The bridal attendants wore peach floor length knit and chiffon gowns. The blouson chiffon bodice featured split bell sleeves and was accented with a fabric belt tied at the waist. A mock wrap tunic topped the full length skirt. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of white snowdrifts, sonia ribbon poofs and acuba foliage.

They wore snowdrifts in their hair. The honor attendant's flowers were identical to the bridesmaids but with some peach-colored snowdrifts.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a white cymbidium orchid and the grandmothers wore white carnation corsages.

The altar was flanked by two brass candelabrum with a background of jade palms. The two silver church urns held bouquets of white gladioli, snapdragons, fuji mums, snowdrifts and baby's breath.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Refreshment tables held an arrangement of snowdrifts, white carnations, snapdragons, fuji mums and baby's breath. The bride's table was adorned by her portrait and a budvase of roses.

The wedding party, relatives and friends were entertained by the parents of the bridegroom at a pig pickin' at the bride's home after the rehearsal.

The bridesmaids were honored at a brunch Saturday given by Jean Strickland, sister-in-law of the bride, and Gayle Connor.

Following a cruise to Freeport, Nassau and the Berry Islands, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bride received her B.S. degree in dental hygiene from UNC-Chapel Hill and worked as the educational program coordinator for the Dental Clinic at the Fayetteville Veterans Administration Medical Center last year. The bridegroom received his B.A. degree in psychology and his D.D.S. degree from UNC-Chapel Hill.

MRS. WILLIAM CURTIS LEE JR.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A lot of women sitting out there today contemplating marriage are saying to themselves, "Could I make a serious commitment to a man who doesn't dance?"

Dancing in a marriage is important. It's one of the few things you do together in public that makes you remember why you got married.

A few naive little fools say, "I'll get him to dance after we're married." Oh, sure. And you're going to grow hair on his bald spot and put a volume button on his snoring. My husband's feet have been under the table so long, they wilt when light hits them.

We were out the other night when the orchestra began to play and the three other couples at the table got up to dance. He looked over at me. "You don't have to look like you just became eligible for the orphan's picnic. What possible kick can you get out there on a crowded floor dancing backwards? I tell you dancing is a fad. In another ten years it'll be out!"

"You said that about sirloin and electricity."

"Look at them," he said. "Do you think they're having a good time? That fella is shoving that woman back and forth like he's moving a piano."

"It wouldn't hurt you to dance one dance with me."

He got out his watch, looked at it, and then said, "Okay, just one."

Do not be misled. He had no intention of dancing. He was setting me up for the old modern-equation-for-non-dancers trick. This is the way it works. First, he calculates the distance from the table to the dance floor. This is divided by how many seconds are left for the song to be finished. If the first number is larger than the second, he can fill in by helping you out of your chair, buttoning his coat, stopping by a table to say hello to someone he thought he knew, or getting lost on the way to the floor.

Whatever, he made it to the dance floor just in time to strike a pose and hear the music stop. When the music started again, he looked at me and said, "If you think I'm going to be the only one on the floor dancing to the theme from Star Wars, you're crazy."

"How do you do that?" I asked.

"Do what?"

"The same way you know that when the bases are loaded with two outs and the batter has a count of three and two, you turn off the TV set and announce, 'DINNER!'"

Marriage. It all comes down to timing.

Double Ring Ceremony Held

The marriage of Nita Daugherty Shiley and Paul Harper Raspberry took place Saturday afternoon at five o'clock in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. James H. Bailey.

A program of organ music was presented by Mickey Terry. Miss Terry Leggett sang "You Light Up My Life," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Daugherty of Winchester, Va., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Raspberry of Bell Arthur.

Miss Kim Shiley of Greenville, daughter of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Mrs. C. E. Price Jr. of Berryville, Va., sister of the bride, and Miss Cindy Shiley of Greenville, daughter of the bride.

Paula Raspberry of Raleigh, granddaughter of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Rocky Butler of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom, served as best man while ushers were Randy Shiley, son of the bride, and Ron Butler, nephew of the bridegroom, both of Greenville.

The bride wore a sleeveless cream colored satin wedding gown complemented by a matching chantilly lace cape with a Queen Anne neckline. She carried a flowing cascade of miniature pink roses accented with baby's breath and foliage.

The maid of honor wore a pale blue dotted swiss formal gown and carried a colonial bouquet of pink miniature carnations, yellow and white daisies with accents of blue silk bell blossoms, baby's breath and blue satin ribbon streamers. The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and carried identical bouquets. The flower girl wore a pink formal gown and carried a fireside basket of pink miniature carnations and yellow and white daisies. She wore a daisy and ribbons in her hair.

Mrs. James Lewis of Greenville directed the wedding.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom.

The couple will live in Greenville.

Meeting Held By WOTM

Greenville Chapter No. 1308 of the Women of the Moose held its meeting Thursday night at the local Moose Lodge. A special installation ceremony was conducted.

Collegian Dorothy Anderson conducted the ceremony for co-workers Hazel Barnes as College of Regents chairman and Shirley Daughtridge as ritual director.

The meeting was conducted by Senior Regent Jean Clark.

The next meeting is scheduled for Thursday night, July 10, at eight o'clock. The newly elected and appointed officers and chairmen will be in charge.

Dear Abby

"No Fool" Bachelor Must Stop Fooling Around

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Shortly after we were married, my husband's brother came to live with us. It's been five years now, and I am a nervous wreck.

He's a bachelor with a good job, money in the bank, a new car, yet he has no interest in sports, women, church or anything. He spends hours in the bathroom getting ready to go nowhere. He's an authority on every subject and has his nose in everything that goes on in this house. We have absolutely no privacy.

When I suggest he find some nice girl and get married, he says only fools get married.

My husband says we can't ask him to leave because he has no place to go. What do you say?

SICK OF HIM

DEAR SICK: I say you should tell Bachelor Brother that two "fools" who have provided a home for him have had it. And if he's not "foolish" enough to take a wife, he should take an apartment.

DEAR ABBY: I'm an adult woman, employed as an office manager. I take classes at college at night and work weekends as a volunteer in a nursing home. I am also the mother of three fine teenagers.

I am happily married to a wonderful man who adores me. By the way, I am fat, I know I am fat and I've been that way for years.

Last night I was offended by a slim, well-meaning acquaintance who said, "You don't need that," when I reached for a pretzel.

Abby, I am sick and tired of people who feel compelled to tell me what I should and shouldn't eat. I am fully aware of my problem, and will handle it — or not handle it — as I see fit.

I am convinced that thin people do not understand fat people. I know this person meant well, but if she and others like her knew how their fat friends felt, they would keep their comments to themselves. Please convey our feelings of frustration, anger and humiliation.

Overeaters Anonymous has a rule about not pushing a person into the program until he/she is ready. Please appeal to your readers to honor that philosophy. It's the only one that works.

HEAVY IN HICKSVILLE, N.Y.

DEAR HEAVY: Strange you should mention Overeaters Anonymous. I read the following letter immediately after yours:

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago you recommended Overeaters Anonymous in your column, and it was the best thing that ever happened to me. I saved my life.

At that time I was grossly overweight and no longer cared if I lived or died. (I was strongly leaning toward the latter.) Even with a fine husband and four wonderful children needing and loving me, I felt there was no reason to go on living. I looked like a fat slob and didn't have the willpower to do anything about it. Every time I looked in the mirror I came away hating myself. Then I read an article in your column that turned the tide for me. I had tried all sorts of diets but nothing lasted. I wasn't totally convinced that Overeaters Anonymous was the answer, but as an ardent fan of Dear Abby, I had to try.

Today I am 75 pounds lighter, maintaining my ideal weight, feeling great, looking terrific and loving life.

Please keep plugging this marvelous group. I found people at O.A. who were exactly like me with the same kind of problems. We all work together, helping each other overcome the desire to eat compulsively. Thank you, Abby.

GRATEFUL IN KENTUCKY

DEAR GRATEFUL: I, too, am grateful for another opportunity to tell my readers to look for Overeaters Anonymous in their phone books. Or write to Box 1640, Torrance, Calif. 90504, for information about the chapter nearest you. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I understand that there are more psychiatrists in Beverly Hills, Calif., than plumbers. That seems incredible. Is it true? And if so, why?

CURIOUS IN NEBRASKA

DEAR CURIOUS: It's true. Their sinks are OK, but their heads are clogged up.

Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-ager Ought To Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Still Drawn To Ginseng

GINSENG — Chuck Dewattsville, in New York, displays a bottled ginseng root and a number of forms the root may be purchased in: packets, powder and liquid concentrates. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Ginseng, the mysterious root from the Far East, is gaining popularity in the United States as a "super vitamin" or "energizer," despite persistent skepticism among government officials and scientists.

"It used to be a fad. The people took interest in ginseng as they did in all other health foods. But now, they are taking it seriously, realizing many beneficial effects of the herb on the human body," says Chuck Dewattsville, a salesman at the Il Hwa Ginseng Center on New York's 5th Avenue.

Discovered 5,000 years ago in Korea and northern China, ginseng's white, multi-filament roots were brewed into tea that supposedly enhanced general physical well-being, promoted sexual potency and increased longevity. Now, the dried ginseng roots are ground into powders to be taken as instant tea or, in capsules, pressed into pills or soaked in brandy.

Oriental physicians prescribe ginseng for infections and to relieve stress. It is also effective, they say, in alleviating asthma, indigestion, high blood pressure and diabetes. A recent European study found that ginseng can be effective in fighting effects of air pollution and foods that contain toxic chemicals such as insecticides, dealers say.

There has been no conclusive scientific evidence to back these claims.

The American Medical Association has included the ginseng root among "magic cures and mystery drugs," while the U.S. Federal Trade Commission classifies it as a "grass generally recognized as safe food," thus allowing it to be sold in health food stores rather than in pharmacies.

Ginseng's popularity, however, seems unaffected by the lack of official backing. South Korea, which sends almost all of its exported ginseng to American markets, has increased its shipments from $10,000 in 1970 to $12 million in 1978, says Moon-yong Yoon, a sales agent for the monopoly office of the South Korean government.

Yoon says ginseng is expensive because the short, leafy plant is very difficult to cultivate. It takes six years to grow, and during this time it absorbs so much of the nutrients from the soil that the soil must lie fallow for at least 10 years. Chemical fertilizers always kill the plant, as does direct sunlight during the first few years of growth. The properly harvested and dried roots, therefore, are worth thousands of dollars, Yoon says.

Outspoken General Says U.S. Has 'Hollow Army'

By NICHOLAS DANILOFF
WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Shy" Meyer is what they call the Army's top general. But Gen. Edward C. Meyer, 51, of St. Marys, Penn., is shy only about how he got his high school nickname.

The youngest Army Chief since Douglas MacArthur, he is quietly outspoken. He relies, in fact, on the power of words, not swagger.

His subordinates believe Meyer will make Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff — the nation's top military post.

Meyer startled members of Congress recently when asked to comment on the Carter Administration's 1981 military budget.

"Right now, we have a hollow army," he bluntly told a House investigations subcommittee. He explained the Army is 20,000 men short and must pay out more in incentives to attract and hold the quality soldiers.

His testimony, and that of other members of the Joint Chiefs, was trumpeted as a public break with the White House. But Meyer was only expressing publicly what he has been saying privately.

At a recent interview in his Pentagon office, Meyer shed his green jacket, revealing his tie-dip with the famous "Rock of the Marne" insignia. The general propped up his feet up, and talked about his job.

(Meyer commanded the 3rd Infantry Regiment which saw action in Korea but made history in the World War I Battle of the Marne.)

The budget revisions the White House sent up to Congress to help balance the 1981 budget, he said, cut some programs and hurt Army buying power.

"It lowered our real buying power by 0.7 percent," he said. "That means less than 1 percent real growth between 1979-1980. In 1981, it lowered our buying power from 7.6 to 6.9 percent, a decrease of about $600 million in the last two years.

"I'm not going to say it's unacceptable. I'm going to salute and accept. But people should understand it does have an impact on the things we are charged to do."

Like all members of the Joint Chiefs, Meyer treads a tightrope between loyalty to the Commander-in-Chief and loyalty to professional convictions.

He won't say so publicly, but Meyer is hardly ecstatic about current Army funding. But he's not about to quit, either. After all, "Nous resterons la" is the 3rd Infantry Division's motto: "We'll stay there."

Meyer is quietly pleased with the increased respect for the military across the nation.

"Whenever there" is a perceived threat, or the need for the armed forces is clearly perceived, respect for the military goes up," he said. "During periods of quiescence, the need for the military goes down."

"As a result of the SALT discussions last summer, as a result of Iran, of Afghanistan, as a result of the secretary of defense speaking out on the current situation, there is a better understanding on the part of the American people. With that perception comes greater appreciation.

"That is not to say we don't have a lot to do internally within the Army to make service in the military more meaningful to the individual."

Meyer is a strong backer of registering able bodied men for military service. A nation can't go to war if it doesn't know where its manpower is, he said.

But he has doubts about reinstating the draft.

What is needed, he feels, are educational incentives for the ordinary soldier and greater respect for the individual. "I do believe we ought to go back to the G.I. Bill," he said.

"I do believe that education is at the heart of the problem. We really ought to be providing educational benefits for the first term soldier and educational scholarships for career soldiers as an incentive for their children. The more we can do in that area the better."

Meyer says education is one reason he joined the Army: "It was an opportunity to serve in the World War II era when patriotism ran high. It was also an opportunity for a college education when few could afford it from my hometown."

He wants Army commanders to apply discipline with sensitivity.

"I believe that most young people are searching for some form of discipline," he said.

"There is a difference between rigid discipline which is imposed from without and the type of internalizing of discipline which forces people to obey because they understand that it is in their best interests if they want to survive on the battlefield."

How does Meyer get his views out?

Not by orders but by personal contacts, visits to units, discussions.

As top general, he says, he suffers, from "vertical discrimination."

He relies a lot on trusted friends. These are, he explains, "The old sergeants I've known since I was a young lieutenant who aren't afraid to say: 'H— s—, General, you're all screwed up!'"

THOUSANDS OF SENIOR CITIZENS, WIDOWS AND COIN COLLECTORS ARE DELIGHTED WITH THE CASH THEY RECEIVE FOR THEIR GOLD AND SILVER VALUABLES.

COIN & RING MAN has had a significant influence on gold and silver trading in North Carolina. Gold and silver dealers all over the state are copying us. Almost every day we pick up a newspaper which is running one of Coin & Ring Man's ORIGINAL ADS under some OTHER dealer's name and logo. We're proud to be a leader and we're flattered that our competitors admire us so much, but unfortunately, we're not always so pleased with their ethics — because although other dealers may copy our ads (instead of being creative enough to design their own) they can't imitate the service and prices Coin & Ring Man offers you. So, if you see an ad for a gold and silver buyer, be sure you're dealing with THE ORIGINAL COIN & RING MAN.

Test Your Knowledge About Recreation

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Recreation is not a new phenomenon. It was not a brain child of the sixties or a discovery of the seventies, nor will it be new to the eighties. Recreation has been around since the beginning of time.

Despite this, the word and the concept are almost universally misunderstood. June was National Recreation Month, and Greenville celebrated the occasion with numerous activities. Sunday in the Park, softball, swimming lessons and the Tot Lot filled the leisure time of many.

The following is a quiz designed to test knowledge and conception of recreation. Answer true or false to each question.

1. Recreation is a luxury, not a necessity.
2. Recreation occurs only during leisure.
3. Greenville has many opportunities for people to participate in leisure.
4. People whose main interest is work have personalities different from those whose main interest is not work.
5. Attitudes towards recreation depend on personality types.
6. Cynics hold the record for living the longest number of years because of their negative outlook on life.
7. Recreation is neither active nor passive, but simply a positive emotional feeling.
8. Recreation is the feeling or emotional state resulting from an activity, not the participant in the activity itself.
9. Athletics are the major part of recreation.
10. Generally speaking, a person over 65 who enjoyed recreation as a young person will actively participate in recreation after 65.

Split Foyer Plan Emphasizes Economy

By Jerry Bishop

One of the most economical approaches to homebuilding is the split foyer plan, which allows a family to finish the lower level as needs dictate and budget allows.

In the Sena, an appealing hipped roof design, the cost-oriented floor plan manages to fill family needs on the upper level and allot another 1500 sq. ft. of space on the lower level for future use.

The design is easy to customize and calls for two bedrooms, one of which is 23 feet long and can be partitioned to create a third. Formal living areas, an extensive kitchen, walk-in closets, and two full baths are featured.

A charmingly traditional exterior features hipped roof, stone siding, and shuttered windows, and uses double entry doors for an inviting effect. Inside the foyer, a few steps puts visitors on either level. On the upper level, a coat closet edges the hallway, and all living areas are immediately accessible. The long living-dining room stretches the width of the plan to take in a deck via sliding glass doors.

For now, the adjoining kitchen functions as food center and family living area, with the family room to assume part of those duties at a later date. The kitchen takes in a laundry niche and snack bar and merits an entry to the deck for summertime cookouts.

Bedrooms and baths fill the remainder of the level, and space and efficiency are stressed. Large walk-in closets are specified, and both baths open directly to bedrooms as well as the hall. Perfect for a dormitory arrangement, the massive front bedroom may be partitioned or closed off with a folding door, since each half of the room merits a closet.

The lower level takes in a side entry garage and, when finished, will include a 20-ft. family room, den or extra bedroom, and full bath. Ample storage space is shown.

Decorative Phones Rings Up Ever-Increasing Sales

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Many consumers are willing to go far afield to find the perfect, unique accessory that just "makes" a room.

Antlers mounted on the wall, fur rugs in front of the fireplace, and recycled pickle jars for plants are a few examples of odd decorative accessories that are sought after by some.

But, another kind of accessory which has very practical value is appearing in more and more American households. It's the decorative telephone.

What kind of novelty phone can you buy? The range of available designs gets larger every year. You can have a phone that looks like a statue of Snoopy or Mickey Mouse or a colored bagel. You can buy a sleek, one-piece instrument that is at home in an ultramodern interior, a phone that resembles one seen in France in the early 20th century, or a wood model at home in mid-America, circa 1913.

Phones come in all sorts of colors. They come hidden in a box. Or, for the opposite effect, you can buy a plexiglass-encased version that reveals its inner workings for one and all to see.

"There are literally thousands of companies out there competing to sell phones," one independent phone dealer says.

And Ma Bell herself has gotten into the decorative phone competition with some 15 phones in the Bell System's Design Line.

"We try to introduce at least one new Design Line phone every year," said Tom Pollock, product manager for Design Line for the Bell System. Pollock added that decorative phones sell best to less tradition-minded young singles. "These are the people with more disposable income," he said.

There appear to be no significant geographic differences in demand, however. Popular phones for Bell, like its Sculptura, Noteworthy and Antique Gold models, sell well across the country.

Nobody seems precisely sure why novelty telephones appeal to a certain segment of the population. From Bell's point of view, it was its own ability to saturate the market with plenty of those basic, black boxes that gave rise to today's heavy competition to provide consumers with novelty telephones.

Nevertheless, this competition can be helpful to a consumer since it apparently has resulted in more choices in phone styles.

By shopping around and comparing costs, a consumer might be able to have the decorative phone of his or her choice and save some money at the same time.

Those considering purchasing a novelty phone are well advised to compare the costs of buying it from an independent or from the local phone company.

In most states, consumers may now choose to buy a phone outright from an independent dealer and pay a one-time charge only for the instrument. When it comes to novelty phones from the phone company, in most cases the company sells you the novelty case but retains ownership of the inner workings.

Since July, 1979, all new phones are supposed to carry a Federal Communications Commission registration number, which means they may safely be hooked into the utility system's wires. If a consumer already has modular jacks, the new phone is simply taken home and plugged in. If not, one may choose to buy an adapter that will fit older phone company jacks. Adapters and other parts such as telephone cords are now widely available where phones are sold.

Another option is to have the phone company install the proper jack, paying a one-time installation fee.

Consumers who own their own phones still pay a monthly fee for service and for the phone company-installed jack. But they save the monthly fee for equipment by buying their own phone. Incidentally, consumers are obligated to inform the local phone company that they have installed their own phone. And if the phone should break, they are on their own to have it repaired.

Don't try to refinish a wooden floor unless you are prepared to forget about using the room for at least one day and probably more.

And don't rent a floor-sanding machine for a particular time on a particular day unless you are certain you will be ready to use it exactly at that time. Considerable preparatory work must be done before you can use the sander. If it stands idle while this chore is being done, the sander may cost you more than you planned, not to mention the probability that the dealer needs it back at a certain time so that some other customer can pick it up.

The preparatory work can be considerable, especially if you are doing it alone. Everything must be removed from the room — furniture, drapes, blinds, pictures, knick-knacks, etc. That can take hours. After that, you must examine the floor carefully to be sure there are no loose boards or protruding nails that can tear the abrasive paper or damage the sanding drum. The floor should then be swept and vacuumed.

When you rent the sanding machine, be sure you know how to attach the paper. Ask the dealer to show you how, since different machines have slightly different constructions. Most important when you get the machine at home is to be certain the paper is tightly attached to the drum, a procedure that usually requires the use of a key.

Three passes should be made with the machine, one with coarse paper, one with medium and one with fine. The first pass can be diagonal across the boards if the floor is in very bad shape. But you can make all three cuts parallel with the grain of the wood in most cases. The coarse paper is used first, the medium second and the fine last. The same order is followed with the edger, a small sander for getting close to the baseboard and other places where the big machine can't reach.

More important than anything else in using the drum sander is that the drum must never be kept in contact with the floor except when you are pushing the machine. Thus, when you turn the motor on, be sure the drum is tilted slightly away from the floor, then lowered and pushed at once. And when you are ready to turn off the motor, tilt the machine away from the floor, then turn it off.

Even though the sander has a dust bag, it is virtually impossible to keep a certain amount of grit from settling on everything. As soon as you have finished the sanding, vacuum the entire room, including the walls and ceiling.

No matter which finishing material you select, read the label on the container carefully and follow the instructions to the letter regarding safety precautions.

Value Varies With Clime

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Solar-energy heating systems are probably more economical in off-snowbound Minnesota than in sunny Arizona because heating needs are much greater in Minnesota, says an economist.

"The small size of the heating load combined with high fixed costs of the system may make solar energy more expensive in Arizona than in Minnesota," said Frank W. Geary.

Conversely, solar-energy systems might not become economically feasible in Arizona until their use for home cooling is made practical, said Geary, an economics professor at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn.

Geary analyzed solar-energy costs in the current issue of "Arizona Review" magazine, a business and economics publication of the University of Arizona.

In a complex review of the costs of solar energy vs. the costs of conventional heating methods, Geary said that both in Arizona and Minnesota, conventional methods are cheaper.

"...in both locations at present, solar costs more than any conventional fuel per million Btu (British thermal units) delivered," he said.

Even taking average fuel cost increases into account, it would take 10 years or more for conventional energy costs to equal the costs for installing and operating a solar heat system, he said, with the time period longer in Arizona than in Minnesota.

"For all fuels, the rate of price increase required to break even in a specified number of years is larger in Arizona than in Minnesota," Geary wrote.

Here's the Answer

Q — I always seem to have a difficult time cleaning screens. I am talking about the screens that you take off the windows and replace with storm windows. Every year I take them down and try various methods of cleaning them, but I never am able to get off all the accumulated dirt from the mesh without working for many hours. Is there an easy way to do this?

A — Not exactly easy. But you can make the job a bit simpler by resting each screen against a sawhorse or something similar in your backyard and then turning the garden hose on it. Usually, this will take off most or all of the dirt. If a stubborn area remains, then you can work on it with a brush or something similar.

Q — I do a lot of woodworking and use quite a few chisels. I used to send them out for sharpening, but the price of this has gone up quite a bit and I now would like to do them myself. I tried to sharpen one the other day, but don't seem to have the knack of holding the chisel to the grinding wheel at the proper angle. Can you help?

A — Are you following the angle of the bevel on the grinding wheel? If not, you should be doing so. Should you continue to have trouble, consider the purchase of a special jig that will keep the chisel at the proper angle while the wheel is turning.

Q — We have several highly polished pieces of furniture that were finished with varnish some years ago. My wife now would like me to give the varnish what she calls a satin finish. How do I do this?

A — You can use a satin-finish varnish over the old finish. You need not remove the old finish, but you should dull it a bit with a fine grade of sandpaper or steel wool. Wipe off any grit, then proceed with the new finish. Another solution is to rub down the finish with rottenstone powder and water. Also, there are some rubbing compounds on the market for the purpose of producing the kind of finish your wife wants.

Q — I just used oil stain on an old cabinet and now want to protect it with varnish. Do I have to use anything between the stain and the varnish?

A — Yes. Use a ready-mixed sealer or one made from half white shellac, half denatured alcohol.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, remover, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 50 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Q. What chemical can I use to control squash borers? (M.B., Raleigh)

A. Squash vine borers can be controlled with the insecticide endosulfan. This is sold under the trade name Thiodan. Thiodan should be directed to the base of the plants, for it is here that brown eggs are deposited and from which worms emerge and enter the stems. Applications should be made every 10 to 14 days from mid-June through mid-August. Hand removal of worms and good care of plants are also suggested. For more information, contact your local agricultural extension office and request the Insect Note on squash vine borer. (K.A. Sorenson, extension entomologist)

Q. Will ammonium sulfate harm the beneficial bacteria found in soil? (R.L., Greensboro)

A. There is no evidence that ammonium sulfate will harm beneficial bacteria. On the contrary, both ammonium nitrogen and sulfur supplied by this product might enhance bacteria growth. (Jack Baird, extension soils specialist)

Q. What causes brown or rust spots on Japanese maples? (M.S., Greensboro)

A. No cause or cure for these brown spots is known. The spots are fairly common on Japanese maples during the spring, but they do not seem to cause much damage. (R.K. Jones, extension plant pathologist)

Q. What can be used to control the elm leaf beetle and when and how should it be applied? (S.S., Clemmons)

A. Orthene or Sevin insecticides can be used by home gardeners for elm leaf beetle control. Spray the pesticide into the foliage where it will contact the beetles. Professional landscapers with large spray outfits may be needed to reach into tall trees. Professional landscapers can also work Di-Syston 15 percent granular insecticide into the soil under the dripline of infested trees at a rate of two and one half ounces per inch of trunk diameter. Every time you add a building to property, or make improvements on existing buildings, you are adding to its total value. Adding a tool shed, garage, and sometimes a pool, generally adds to the selling price of your house. Extra rooms, fireplaces and enclosed porches have the same effect. However, there are some things that will not significantly change the value one way or the other. Your real estate professional can provide some reliable insights such as to which items will have positive effects. The location of the home and the neighborhood has some influence as well.

Are You Burning Money To Heat Water?

If you have an electric water heater than you are burning money to heat your hot water. Solar water heaters save you money in two ways:

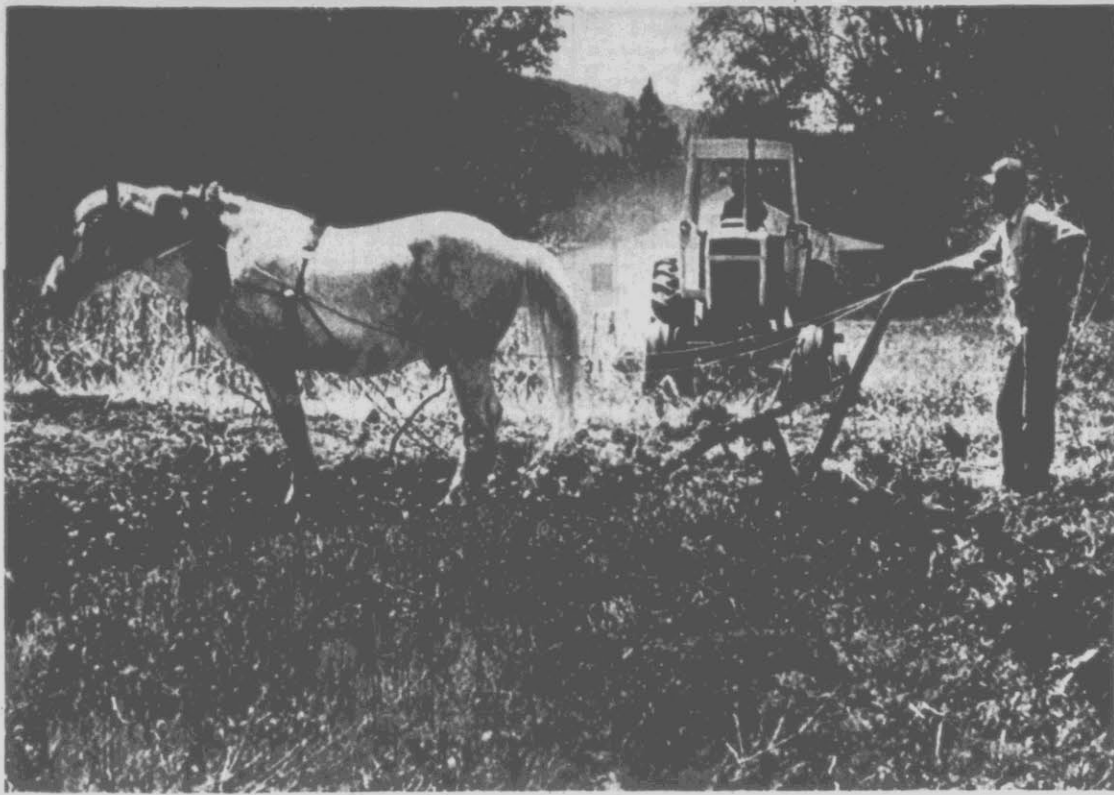

- (1) They save 50-80% of your water heating bill.
- (2) There is a 65% federal tax credit on the cost of a solar water heater. (That amount will actually be subtracted from what you owe the I.R.S.)

And that's just the beginning. In the years to come, as the cost of energy increases, you'll even save more.

AGRICULTURAL CONTRAST — Ollie Fanning, 69-years-old, pauses at the end of his small field to watch as a large diesel tractor plows the adjacent field. Shaking his head, Ollie smiled and said "Yeah, but you can't feed that tractor weeds . . . I can, this old horse. Been farming with a team of horses since my daddy bought me a team when I was 13 years old." Scenes such as this are quickly disappearing from the Alabama landscape. (AP Laserphoto)

Answers To Recreation Quiz

1.False
This myth was disproved during the depression when the number of jobs in recreation was increased through the support of the government. Surveys show that with the increase in recreation, morale and the desire to get things back to normal was boosted.

2.False
According to "Future Perspectives," a series of studies by Dr. David Gray and Seymour Greber, specialists in recreation, recreation is a positive emotional response to an activity and can occur at any time.

3.True
Greenville has many activities, programs, special events and classes to offer its citizens. Recreation is available to anyone willing to look for it.

4.True
At least for industrial workers, according to a broad study scale done by university researchers. The study measured personality characteristics and primary interests.

5.True
Research shows that there are two major categories of personalities:
— Those who feel they are

Antiques Retain High Interest

MIAMI (UPI) — Americans' interest in antiques is high these days because the quality and stability of workmanship evident in old furniture "give us a sense of our durability and quality," says a furniture company executive.

H. Jay Shaffer advanced this theory in a workshop at the 21st annual conference in Miami of the National Home Fashions League.

The league's members are women executives in interior furnishings and related industries.

Shaffer is vice president of marketing, planning and research for The Sperry & Hutchinson Co. furniture division.

worthwhile experience.

Those who feel life is controlled by chance often feel cheated and they make little effort to be masters of their fates.

6.False
Research from a leading university has revealed that a positive point of view is one of the most important ways of increasing longevity. Recreation is a major factor in producing a positive viewpoint.

7.True
According to Gray and Greber, any activity can be performed during leisure, but the activity is irrelevant unless a positive emotional feeling results from the participation.

8.True
Recreation is the positive feeling one gets before, during and after an activity.

9.False
Athletics is a part of recreation, but recreation is a multifaceted field that encompasses everything.

10.True
According to various gerontological studies, likes and dislikes accumulated during childhood will generally be reinforced and magnified during an entire lifetime.

Fewer Work In Private Office

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Fewer people work in conventional private offices these days, compared with two years ago. Only 29 percent of the office workers questioned in a Louis Harris survey said they had private offices. This represents a 10 percent decrease over 1978.

Open plan offices with movable partitions now hold 36 percent of the nation's white collar workforce, up 6 percent from the previous poll. Twenty percent now work in pool type offices.

The survey was sponsored by Steelcase, Inc., an office furniture manufacturer.

Even Small Businessmen Have Cash Flow Problems

Your Daily Reflector carrier depends on his collections each month to pay his bill, whether or not he has received payment from his customers. When he doesn't get paid, he has to dip into his pocket to make up the difference.

You can help keep a small businessman from going under if you pay your carrier each month when he calls to collect. Thank You.

Shophlifters See Little Intervention

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (AP) — Four young women recently went on a shoplifting spree in Walla Walla. They stole merchandise from a neighborhood market in plain sight of other shoppers and were amazed to find that few people tried to stop them.

One of the "shoplifters," Virginia Bacon of Tacoma, Wash., said, "It got kind of infuriating after a while. I got really mad to think that people weren't turning us in."

It was all part of a Whitman College psychology-research project. And it was done with the permission of the store owner, Jack Michelson, a former Los Angeles law-enforcement officer.

Michelson, who says he is a perennial student himself, helped the four Whitman College sophomore psychology majors conduct the study to see if people would intervene when they saw a crime in progress.

"I was pretty sure I knew what the results would be," Michelson says. "We have really worked to make this a friendly neighborhood market where we care about our customers and they care about us, and I thought all of my customers or nearly all of them would tell me about anyone who was ripping me off."

Now Michelson is perplexed by the fact that only eight out of 40 shoppers reported the theft to him or tried to intervene in any way.

"And two of those really don't count," he says, "since one was an employee and the other a former employee of the store."

Susan McMurchie, of Portland, Ore., says, "We know that they saw us because we made sure that they did. We had two observers who were watching in every case and they were certain that those shoppers saw and heard us every time."

Working in pairs, the students shoplifted food items in clear view of women shoppers between the ages of 20 and 50. Waiting until they were alone in an aisle with only one shopper, one of the students would take a food item from the display, glance over her shoulder, and then drop the package in her purse.

Her companion would say in a loud voice, "I don't think we should do this."

The shoplifter would reply, "Oh, it's OK. Nothing will happen," and walk quickly from the store.

One thing that prompted the project for the experimental psychology class was the students' curiosity about the 1969 New York City murder of Kitty Genovese, who screamed for help for more than half an hour in the vicinity of hundreds of apartments and was finally murdered because no one called the police or helped her in any way.

Sarah Christensen of Federal Way, Wash., said, "Apparently people are apathetic to all sorts of crimes, not just the violent ones."

Michelson feels that many of his customers may have refused to get involved for many reasons.

"Maybe it's not the same as being confronted with a violent crime," he says.

And he points out that people may not realize that they would never have to testify or even be identified in the prosecution of a shoplifter, or that the Washington state law was recently changed to simplify the prosecution of shoplifters. All that has to be proved is the intent to steal the item.

When the students started the experiment they had wanted to determine whether the way the shoplifters were dressed would make a difference in whether they were reported.

"We thought a shabbily dressed person would probably not be turned in as often as one who was well-dressed," said Michelle Segal of Scottsdale, Ariz. "As it turned out only two people were turned in when they appeared to be affluent, but six people were turned in when they appeared to be poor."

However, our results on all of it were so small that we really couldn't draw any conclusions, about the influence of mode of dress."

Two great ways to charge

Although we try to stock our stores with enough merchandise to meet expected demands, occasionally supplies may be exhausted. If this occurs or if certain merchandise is not normally part of the store's stock and is available through our Catalog, you may order the merchandise through our Catalog and receive it at the sale price plus a low handling and shipping charge.

FIBER GLASS ASPHALT SHINGLES
Asphalt Coating-A heavy coating of asphalt is applied to the front and back of each shingle.
Self Sealing Strip-Special adhesive is softened by the sun after the shingles are applied. The adhesives seal the shingles together to protect against blow-ups in high wind.
Fiber Glass Mat-Inorganic fiber glass mat resists moisture as well as fire, for durability and protection.
celotex
Ceramic Clad Granules-Ceramic clad granules embedded in the asphalt give the shingles color and added fire resistance.

What better way to modernize your home than to install the things that stop energy waste and reduce operating cost? Since it takes twice as much energy to heat an uninsulated home, insulation pays for itself in reducing heat & cooling bills.

A Carteret vacation

By STEVE JONES

MOREHEAD CITY—Not so many years ago, Carteret County was a place you went through on your way to The Beach. There were no beachfront cottages, motels, condominiums or campgrounds west of Pine Knoll Shores on Bogue Banks. The Bogue Inlet bridge was nonexistent, and persons choosing to get to the island that way often had to wait more than just a few minutes for a ferry to take them across the sound. But while they waited, they consoled themselves thinking about all those people roasting in their cars at the bridge from Morehead to Atlantic Beach.

The Coast Guard station kept watch over deserted beaches at The Point, the name eastern North Carolinians gave to the western tip of Emerald Isle where Bogue Banks climbs out of Bogue Inlet. If you knew someone with a boat or an army surplus jeep, you could go see it.

When it rained, you packed your beach blanket, picnic lunch and short-tempered kids into the car and went to "the show" in Morehead City. Or you retreated to cottage or motel to finish the jigsaw puzzle you began the last time it rained. About the only other time you left the island would be to eat at Tony's, as the Sanitary Seafood Market was affectionately known, or Rex's, or Capt. Bill's, or one of the other restaurants on the mainland. And chances were good that you would bump into at least three or four other people from "home" at the same restaurant.

MY OH MY

But, my oh my, how things have changed.

These days, the whole county is taking on the look of a bigtime resort. There is movement everywhere as vacationers motor from one attraction to the next; and if you happen to be among the tourists on any given day, chances are good that you'll see some of the same people at the Marine Resources Center as you saw that morning in Beaufort. And you'll probably see them later that evening at a water slide or a miniature golf course.

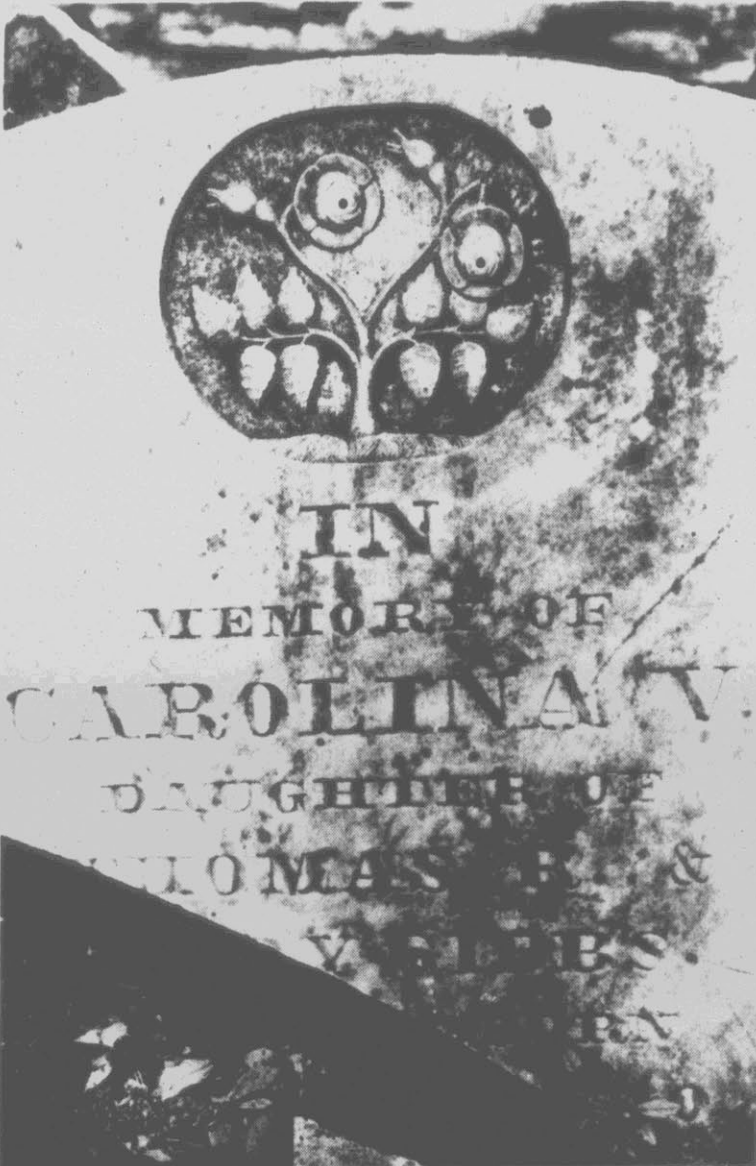

If you are a shopper, you can spend several weekends at a minimum browsing through an abundance of antique stores, curio shops, surf shops, boutiques, bookstores and one major shopping center where you can find everything from groceries to jogging shoes.

Sportsmen will find that Carteret

An old gravestone, fallen from its original location, stands upright at the Old Burying Ground.

By STEVE JONES

Old Burying Ground

*"The form that fills this silent grave,
Once tossed on ocean's rolling wave,
But in a port securely fast,
He's dropped his anchor here at last."*

Beneath gnarled trees that beg to hold errant souls lies Beaufort's Old Burying Ground.

The final home of some of North Carolina's great and near-great, this graveyard near downtown Beaufort is listed on the National Register of Historic Places and contains such fascinations as one person buried standing up, one in a rum keg and one in a glass-domed coffin.

Mystery, too, abides there.

No one knows for sure when the graveyard first began to be used, but it is believed that at least one Revolutionary War soldier is buried there. The oldest marked grave is dated at 1756, a simple stone with only the initials "A.P." to identify its occupant.

Land for the cemetery was deeded to the town in 1731 by

A mix of museums

By STEVE JONES

It used to be that when you went to the beach, you went to the beach. Period.

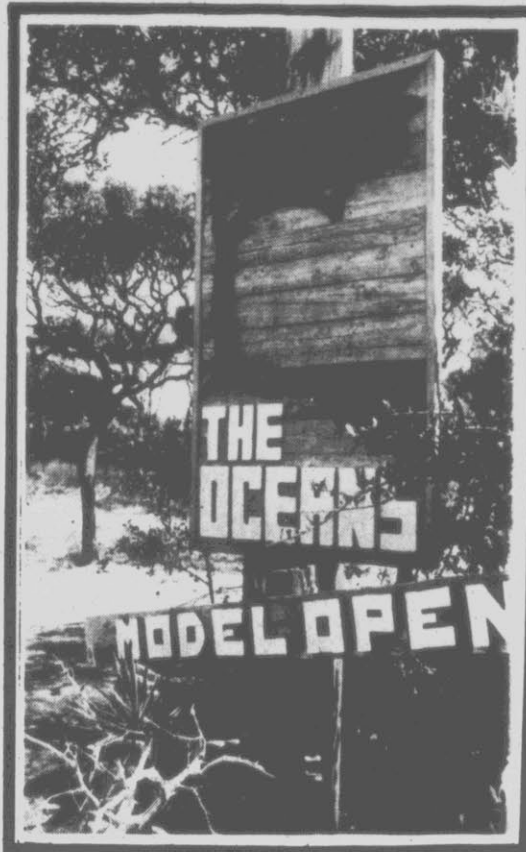

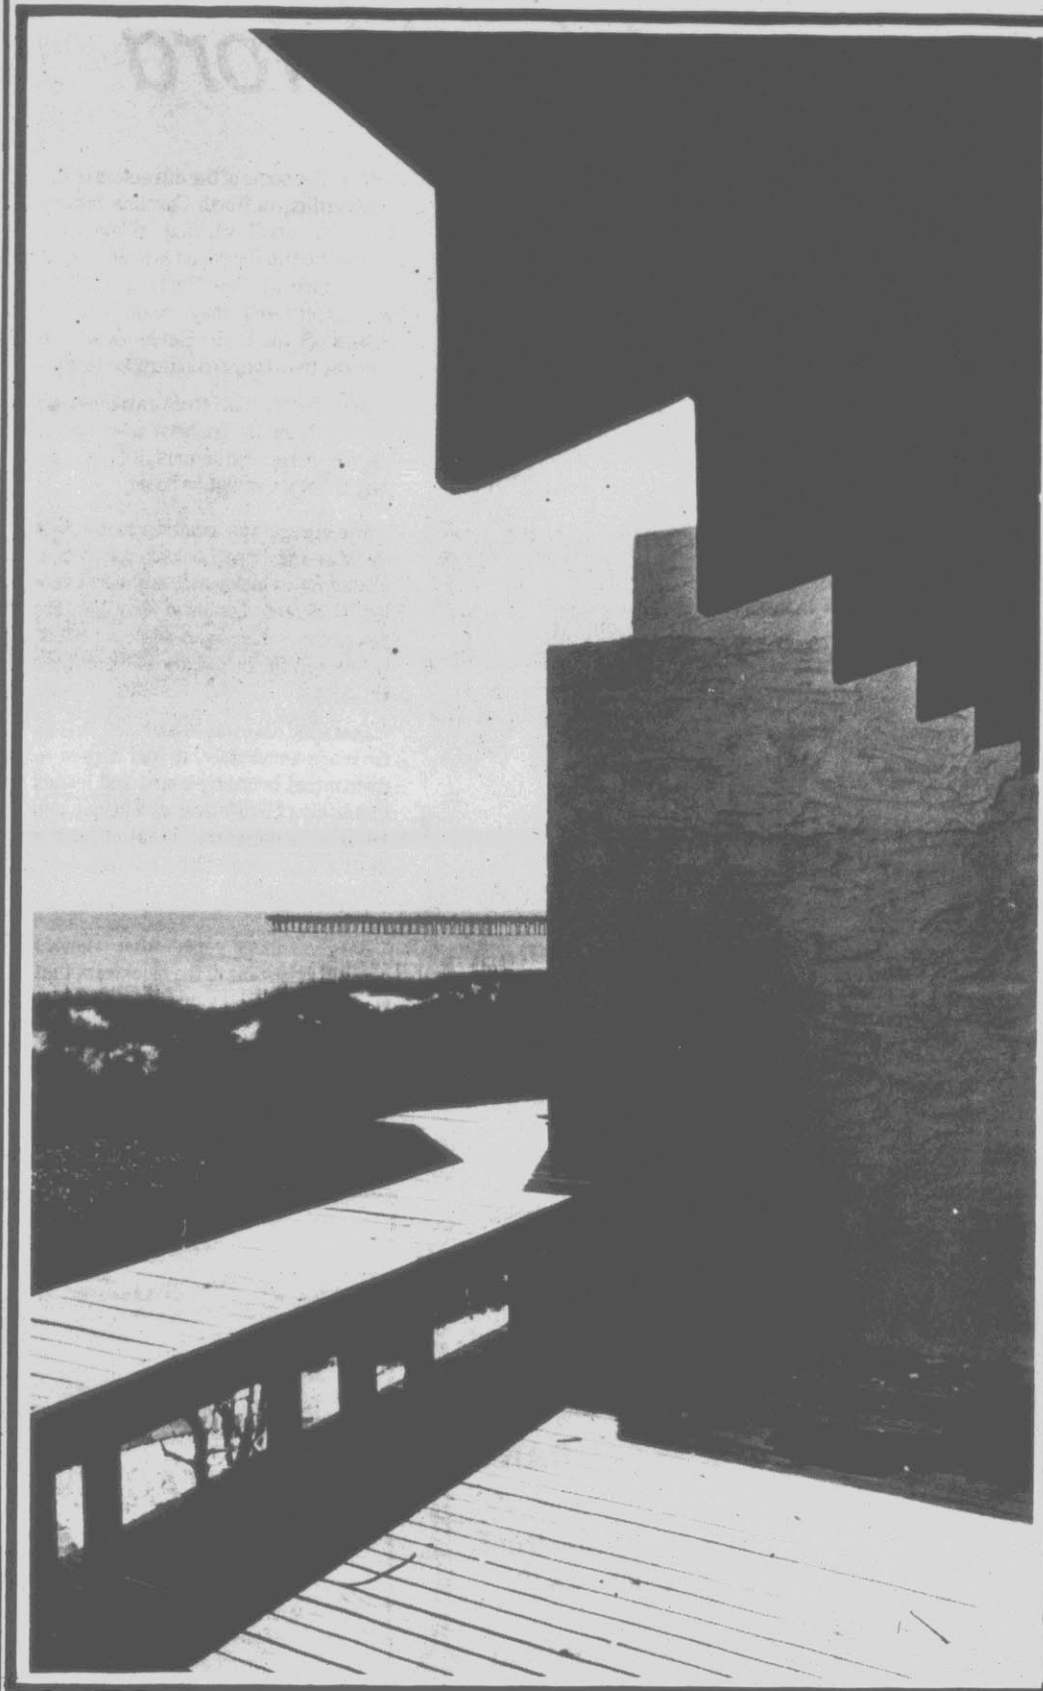

Things are different now, however, and among the non-surf related activities that have sprung up along The Crystal Coast are three state-supported museums: The Hampton Mariners Museum in Beaufort, Fort Macon at the eastern tip of Bogue Banks and the N.C.

Marine Sciences Center between Pine Knoll Shores and Salter Path, also on the island.

Each is open to the public daily and each offers a unique look at the coastal community and its history.

Located in historic Beaufort next door to the restoration area, the

The white beach sands, the flying gulls, the driftwood and windswept cedars are all echoed in the elegance of "The Oceans."

These contemporary condominiums, located in Pine Knoll Shores near the Iron Steamer Pier, are nestled into the dunes and cedars overlooking the Atlantic Ocean.

White stucco walls, maintenance free, combined with weathered decks and large expanses of glass enclose about 2,000 square feet in each unit and provide space for four bedrooms, four baths, and over 500 feet of great room with fireplace. All units front the ocean with large sundecks.

There are not a lot of them, just enough to fit comfortably into the natural surroundings, which add, not subtract from it. Sales price during construction $88,000.00 to $106,000.00. As low as $9,000.00 or $10,000.00 down, balance payable over 20 to 30 years term.

Some will be completed and ready for occupancy in about 30 days.

Get away to Shackleford

SHACKLEFORD BANKS — Most people think you have to go to the Caribbean or the South Seas or some place equally expensive to find a pristine island, free of man's additions.

In Carteret County, you can do it for eight bucks.

Just a short launch ride from Beaufort is Shackleford Banks, uninhabited since 1899. It is an island covered by sand, scrub growth and maritime forest. It is noted for its shelling, artifact hunting and meanderable beaches.

But it wasn't always that way, and therein lies some of the attraction of it.

According to North Carolina history books, a small whaling village was established on the island around 1750. It was settled by New England whalers, who discovered they could capture whales off the Outer Banks earlier in the year than they could further north.

The whalers built their own boats on the island, but the business was never a big one there, with an annual catch topping out at six or eight whales.

The village was located about a mile south of the Cape Lookout lighthouse, according to historians, and was eventually named Diamond City for the distinctive black-and-white pattern painted on the structure. The paint job remains.

Diamond City was abandoned in 1899. Or more accurately, it was moved — dismantled board-by-board and loaded into fishing boats along with people and animals — under the threat of further destructive storms that had periodically hit the area.

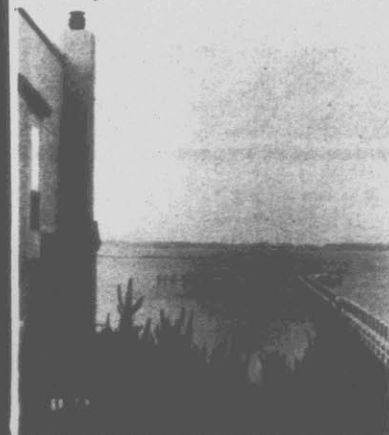

Beachcombers report that visitors can still find some of the brickwork that remains from Diamond City.

Harbor Tours, based at the Beaufort waterfront, runs twice daily ferry service to Shackleford Banks. Reservations can be made by calling 726-0437.

Shackleford Banks, off the coast just northeast of Beaufort, is a blend of ocean, sand and maritime forest. The uninhabited island is accessible by boat with a ferry service operating out of Beaufort.

Today's home buyers are finding the townhouse to be the best choice for casual luxury living. The Bluffs, situated on the site of the old Biltmore Hotel overlooking Bogue Sound, offers this type of lifestyle.

The keynote is luxury and it is evident at every turn—in the thoughtful design of 2- & 3-bedroom interiors, in the quality of construction, in the arrangement of buildings to assure each townhouse a view of the water, and in the planning of recreational areas.

Visit today. The Bluffs is an unexpected "discovery"—a hidden treasure on North Carolina's Crystal Coast. A small, intimate grouping of waterfront townhouses tucked away from the noise and traffic common to most resort areas, The Bluffs offers you the perfect lifestyle at the perfect location—truly an address of distinction!

Carteret expects record year

By STEVE JONES

MOREHEAD CITY—Don't go to Carteret County to talk about the recession. People here have decided not to participate.

"We're anticipating a record year here," says Executive Director Doug Everett of the Carteret County Chamber of Commerce. "Many requests for our literature are coming in from Ohio, D.C., New Jersey and West Virginia.

"We also find that people are making plans to stay longer."

Such optimism is not Everett's alone. His view is shared by golf pros, rental agents and other businessmen of this water-bounded county who say they've already noticed that, despite a gloomy national economic forecast, tourism is picking up along the coast.

"If the inquiries are any indication of what we can expect," says Everett, "we'll easily top $20 million (in annual revenue from tourism)."

THE BIG TIME

The decision to go for the bigtime tourist bucks here was made several years ago and has suddenly thrust the area into competition for those desirable dollars with Virginia Beach to the north and Myrtle Beach to the south.

The competition is tough, admits

Everett, but everywhere along the 30 or so miles of beach as well as in Beaufort and Morehead City, the signs are crystal-clear that businessmen are willing to accommodate even more visitors. New rides are being erected, condominiums are going up faster than the occasional visitor can keep count, convenience stores, cottages and eateries seem to appear mystically from one day to the next. Brooms, paint brushes and squeegees are in demand. A ride through the area gives the distinct impression of great preparation, as though for a Presidential visit.

"I refer to this area as having been the best kept secret on the East Coast," says Everett with more than a touch of irony. Then he adds, a quiet humor tinkling in his voice, "It's now being found."

Being found, indeed, to the tune of a possible 35 percent boost in business this season alone.

THE CRYSTAL COAST

To help, the chamber is developing a new identity for its coastline, "The Crystal Coast." Like the more familiar Grand Strand, Gold Coast or Miracle Strip, the new name will be used in advertising and public relations promotions for Carteret County. Already, it is finding use in the county's daily shore conditions reports to radio and television stations throughout the region, WATS line weather reports, and a new brochure complete with a stylized map by artist Jean Hoxie.

"Our tourist promotion division determined that one of the problems was that we had no identity," says Everett. "We looked at all kinds of names."

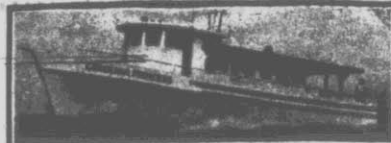

Hoxie's map, the one in the brochure, has generated enough interest that the chamber has decided to have prints made for sale. The original will hang in the chamber's offices on Arendell Street; those wishing a copy — to cost $15 each — should contact the chamber.

All this hustle and bustle is heartening, but Everett says it also brings up questions about Carteret's future that need attention now.

"I think it's time we set some kind of guidelines as to how we want this area to develop," Everett says. Later, he adds, "We have to make a decision in this county. Do we cut services? Do we raise taxes to citizens? Or do we develop some kind of plan to attract industry to the area?"

Unlike many beach communities, Carteret County already has a diversified economy, with large fishing and agricultural interests. It is also the site of an expanding state port, and has been mentioned as the location for a new oil refinery.

Beaufort goes spiffy

By STEVE JONES

BEAUFORT — In the mid-1700s, the Spanish captured this coastal community; a few years later, the British were driven out; during the Civil War, both the Confederates and Yankees controlled the town at one point or another.

In 1971, the urban renewal folk got hold of Beaufort and over the next decade changed the aging community into a model of transformation.

Today, even the former skeptics stroll along a spiffy new boardwalk, pause for refreshment in any of a number of new restaurants and shop in boutiques that have sprung up as a result of that last siege.

"I think everybody's proud of it now," says Lucille Guthrie, one of the prime movers in the restoration.

But that was not always so. Mrs. Guthrie and her husband, local druggist Clarence, remembered the painful rebirth of the town.

"Everyone in Beaufort wasn't for this," Mrs. Guthrie says. "There was a lot of opposition to it, and it took a lot of hard work."

MISHMASH TO SPIFFY

And it took eight years of waiting between the time the HUD urban renewal grant was first approved until the actual work began in 1978. Before, the south side of Beaufort's Front Street was a mishmash of old, worn buildings sitting on pilings above the waterway. They had been battered by five hurricanes in the late '50s and early '60s, and had been to a large extent left to the elements.

Now, a new bulkhead has been built, the area between that and the old mainland filled in, a new sewer system installed and Front Street repaved. Docking facilities have been added to the bulkhead, and with the plantings and buildings in the filled-in area, the town has taken the look of a quaint, seaside village.

But the problems Mrs. Guthrie laments still. The problems were almost too much.

First, there was concern over a swamp grass growing from the water below the old buildings. Then there was the matter of the bank building with the unique front and nothing behind it. And, finally, there was a furor over possible artifacts that would be forever buried by the rebuilding.

"Somebody said we were going to find the missing link," Guthrie recalls the town's reaction to the last hold-up.

"Every time we'd think we'd gotten over the last hurdle," Mrs. Guthrie remembers, "they'd come up with something else." And later, she emphasizes, "It got to be such a boondoggle, we thought we'd never get started."

BOND CRITICAL

Then, of course, there was the bond issue that needed to be passed if the federal dollars were to be secured. In a last-minute move, the women of the town took a full-page ad in the local newspaper urging the referendum's passage.

The finished project has attracted the likes of Walter Cronkite and has the full stamp of approval of Beaufort's historical group.

"Each (historical renovation and downtown renewal) complements the other," says Mrs. Kathryn Cloud, president of the Beaufort Historical Association and chairman of the town's Architectural Review Board. "Each needs the other."

Mrs. Cloud is pleased with the renewal.

"I think if all downtown buildings had been colonial, it would have been a phoney colonial look," she says of the mixed architectural styles downtown.

"In the beginning," she continues, "we all tended to think that we wanted the signs with the little curlicues at the top, sort of a Williamsburg look. But we're not Williamsburg."

Of those buildings torn down, Mrs.

Cloud says, "You learn that there are buildings that are worth saving and there are buildings that are not worth saving."

"Maybe this is where our charm is. We have used an adaptive restoration instead of always being the purists."

For those who want authentic history, Beaufort has plenty of that as well. The third oldest town in North Carolina, the Beaufort Historical Association has bought, moved and restored a number of structures that are now grouped in an area near the downtown. Included are the old jail, apothecary shop, town hall and several of what were private reside became infused with a spirit that has made today possible.

What's the result, in real terms?

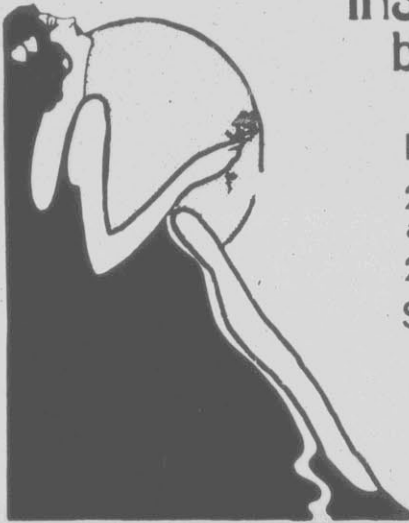

"One of the first things you notice," says Mrs. Guthrie, "is that the parking lots are filled. It's brought in a wealth of talent."

"Another thing that's happened is we've got young people coming here now. A lot of people who have been roaming about the country trying to find themselves have found Beaufort. And this is just what they've been looking for."

The Guthries share a bench at the waterfront.

Emerald Isle

A place for families

By STEVE JONES

EMERALD ISLE — So you say the razzle-dazzle of the beach scene isn't for you? You say you don't like to pick your way among 1,001 blankets to find a space for your family that isn't quite big enough? You say you'd like to sleep to the gentle sounds of nighttime surf instead of listening to crowds, cars and radios?

Emerald Isle may be just the spot you've been seeking. Primarily a residential community of privately-owned cottages and mobile homes, the town boasts 12 miles of relatively uncluttered, clean beaches that beckon to the family on vacation.

And, enough attractions to keep life interesting without being hectic.

Unlike much of the rest of Bogue Banks, Emerald Isle has taken great pains to channel development along residential, rather than commercial lines. Public parking places for day visitors, while relatively scarce, are available and more are promised in the future. Rentals, however, abound, with the variety of luxury cottages, mobile homes, campsites and motel rooms almost mind-boggling. On a good weekend, the population of the town may swell by as much as 15 times.

But even with that, it seems less crowded than much of the rest of the island.

SOME ACTIVITY

What activity there is away from the surf and sand tends to center on the small but growing business area at the western end of town. Here, there are gift shops, motels, a miniature golf course, skateboard park, go-cart track, Going for golf?

By STEVE JONES

Golf is, to many, a passion.

It can be as consuming as television is to a soap opera addict, as exciting as danger is to a soldier of fortune, as intense as speed to a race car driver.

Perfectly normal men and women will risk their lives in a thunderstorm on a golf course. They will lose emotions there that otherwise remain beneath a placid, friendly exterior. A vacation, to such people, is never so fine as when it includes some time on an unfamiliar set of links.

Carteret County currently has 36 holes of golf available for public play. Another 18 are under construction, and by the fall of 1981, a total of 27 new holes will have been added to what now exists. Although neither of the courses open is on the ocean, Bogue Banks Country Club is located on the beach island in Pine Knoll Shores. The other course, Star Hill Golf and Country Club, is set in gently rolling terrain on the mainland in Cape Carteret. By September, another nine holes should be ready for play at Brandywine Bay, between Newport and Morehead City, with the back nine slated for completion by the fall of 1981.

BOGUE BANKS

Coy Brown, the pro at the Bogue Banks club, likens that course to a Scottish, seaside course with its sand and dunes.

"It's a typical links-type course," says Brown. He continues that it's a very tight course, not long, "but you have to keep the ball in play. It's a thinking course is what it is."

The greens fee at Bogue Banks is $10 per day, and it includes use of the tennis courts. Package roomgolf arrangements are available through a number of motels in the vicinity and cottage rentals are also available, although there is no lodging at the club.

Brown says the course is in excellent condition and adds that the greens are among the best in the state.

Already, he has seen an increase in the number of visitors at the course this year. "I think the gas situation is having people staying closer to home," he says. "We have a large increase in greens fee play over last year."

Par for the 6,048-yard course at Bogue Banks is 72. The course rating is 70.

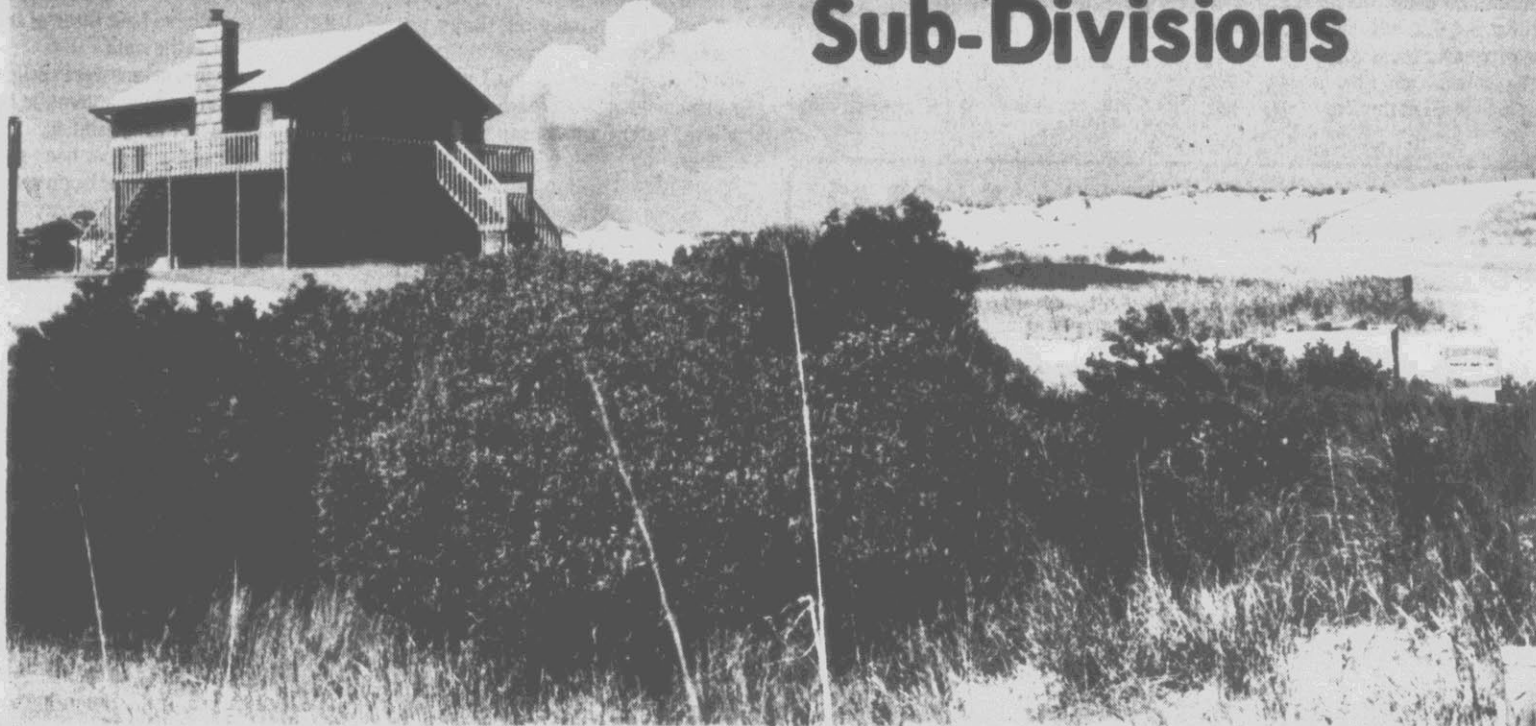

STAR HILL

At Star Hill, another nine holes is being added to the 18 already there. Also, a 5,000-foot, grass airplane runway divides the course, but does not interfere with play. Lights are currently being added to the runway.

"It's got as much character as any course around here," says club manager Fred Fredeen. "That means it's not just a blase course." He describes the course as being challenging, but not difficult, pointing out that fairways never cross one another.

The championship tee for Star Hill's first hole is set in the woods atop a hill, in front of a long lake, and the 18th green is elevated, sloping off on three sides. While not characteristic of the difficulty of the entire course, it does indicate the care that has been taken to provide golfers with a challenge.

Greens fees for the 6,917-yard course are $6 during the week and $7.50 on weekends. Par is 71; the course rating, 68. Pool and tennis fees are charged separately.

One advantage of the course, emphasizes Fredeen, is its ability to shed moisture.

"We can get an inch of rain and play in five minutes," he says.

BRANDYWINE BAY

Up Highway 24 toward Morehead City from Star Hill are the forming hills and valleys of Brandywine Bay's golf course. Designed by Bruce Devlin and Von Hagge of Miami Beach, the course is a challenging blend of small hills and valleys, water hazards, sand traps and doglegs.

Consultant Ron Hardee, in charge of the course construction, says that building a golf course is a science that requires time and knowledge, in addition to a great deal of care.

The Brandywine course, he adds, will require the golfer to keep the ball in play if he wants to go home with a score he can talk about.

Final plans for the course were completed by Ellis and Dan Maples of Myrtle Beach, whom "Carolina Golfer Magazine" says have built three of the top four courses in the state.

The fairways and greens were sprigged this month and a fully automatic irrigation system has been installed.

Par for the course has not been set. Work on the pro shop should begin soon. The front nine will be open for play this autumn.

marina, fishing pier, restaurants and convenience stores that attract those moving about. For people who want more, Emerald Isle is just a short drive from historic Swansboro, on the mainland, as well as the other attractions of the island. Also, just across Bogue Inlet from Emerald Isle is Hammocks Beach, a state-run park that can only be reached by boat (a public ferry takes visitors to and from the mainland throughout the year).

Several times a year, in the spring and fall usually, a local campground will sponsor beach music concerts that have attracted thousands of spectators. During the Fourth of July holiday, town merchants join with those in Swansboro to stage a festival.

But miles and miles of beach is still what brings people to Emerald Isle. That, and the opportunity to enjoy it free from the madding crowd.

Diving

BEAUFORT — To scuba dive, say many people who have done it, is to experience a complete release from the world as we normally see it.

It is the joy of near-weightlessness, the spirit of pioneering and the boundless excitement of solitude all rolled into one. It is, also, a burgeoning sport along the North Carolina coast.

"People really enjoy the wreck diving around here," says Lou Ann Masters of The Discovery Dive Shop in Beaufort, Carteret County's only business devoted totally to the sport.

They also enjoy exploring the reefs, shoals and spear-fishing spots that dot the waters of the area. But it is the wrecks, and the opportunities they provide for underwater photography buffs and artifact hunters that really attract divers to North Carolina.

Masters says that persons on their chartered expeditions from this seaside town may come back with portholes, bottles or other material left from many vessels sunk in the treacherous waters off the Outer Banks.

A World War II German submarine, sunk off the coast, has been particularly popular. Currently closed to the public by the U.S. Navy because it still harbors live ammunition, the area should reopen to the sport soon, whether the Navy decides to blow up the ship or leave it intact after removing the explosives.

CERTIFICATION NEEDED

"If you know nothing about diving," says Masters, "you can come in and talk with any of us." But to dive, she adds, you need to be certified, a process that takes 33 hours of class work, both through books and in a swimming pool. Classes are offered at the shop.

Charters normally involve six people, she says, with the cost varying with the length of the trip and the number of people on the trip.

The shipwrecks can be located with the use of sounding equipment, Masters says, and visibility is good on a calm day.

She admits that the underwater clarity is not comparable to tropical waters, but says the colors are still bright and distinctive.

According to Masters, the dive shop is something of a mini-museum itself, housing fish and artifacts collected on various expeditions.

Experience the Beauty of Brandywine Bay

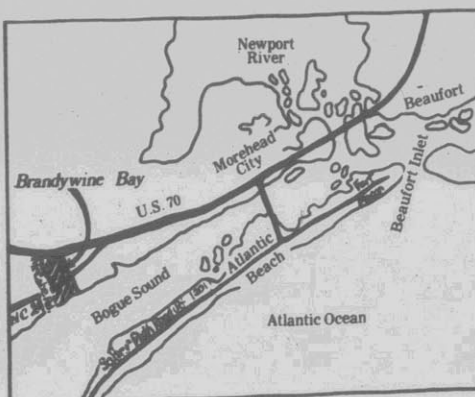

The Brandywine Bay community is located approximately five miles west of Morehead City on the coast of North Carolina. It is a master-planned development consisting of more than 600 acres, with a border to the north of U.S. Highway 70, and Bogue Sound and the Intracoastal Waterway to the south. Only 80 miles north of Wilmington, and 147 miles from Raleigh, Brandywine Bay is easy to get to.

To get here, travel on either N.C. Highway 24 or U.S. Highway 70. From the intersection of the two highways just west of Morehead City, there's a gatehouse Information Center approximately 1½ miles on Highway 70, and the gatehouse and entranceway to The Bay Club and Carriage House offices on Highway 24, about 1¼ miles. At the Information Center, you can obtain general information about Carteret County, and about all of the communities at Brandywine Bay.

Or, come to visit by boat. Steer down the Intracoastal Waterway to Marker 13, and tie up at our visitor's dock in front of The Bay Club. You can gas up at nearby Spooner's Creek Marina before continuing on.

No matter which way you come, you'll find Brandywine Bay ideally located - close to beaches, shopping, schools and activity, yet quietly and beautifully tucked away from the noise and traffic. Truly a perfect blend - that's Brandywine Bay.

Resorts

County is still one of the best jumping-off points for deep sea fishing on the East Coast, but they will also find lots, lots more. Now there is golf to break the monotony of landing all those big ones, and sailboating, jet skiing and, land o'goshen, honest-to-goodness surfing. And, there are more piers for those who choose to fish landbound as well as for those who like to stroll along them to see what others are catching.

If you're a nosher, or one who enjoys eating for the pure joy of the experience, you'll find the quality and the quantity to make your eyes bulge with anticipation. New restaurants have sprung up throughout the county, and those who say they can't find anything they want to eat either aren't looking or are determined to be hungry.

For the young and young-at-heart, there are new arcades, new miniature golf courses, skateboard parks and bumper boats. Beach music has made something of a rebound in recent years, and while The Pavilion at Atlantic Beach is now a top-notch pizzeria, new clubs and concerts are the places to bop and be-bop.

NEW ROOMS

Natch, there are many, many new rooms of all varieties to accommodate all the new visitors. Cottages now line the beachfront from Fort Macon through Emerald Isle. You can rent an entire cottage, part of a cottage, an apartment, condominium, motel room or campsite. Sleeping on the beach, however, is less cool than it used to be — it's against the law.

If you want to just go and sit, that's okay too. There are more movie theaters to do it in, or if you don't want to leave your room, cable tv is there to rescue you. You can sit on a pier, a sand dune, a jetty or a boardwalk. At a restaurant, in a park or a historic graveyard. In a boat, on a battlement, in a museum or at a mooring.

The point is of course, RELAX. It's your vacation, you've earned it, and if you're in Carteret County or at its Crystal Coast, there is plenty to help you along.

The Villas

Newly-Completed Townhouses
Come see for yourself!

As you enter the gateway to The Villas at Brandywine Bay, you will get a very special feeling about this place. Feel the tradition preserved by the lane of majestic cedar trees that have been guarding this property for years. Experience the sights and sounds of the North Carolina coast as you stroll the banks of Bogue Sound, with boaters passing just off shore in the Intracoastal Waterway. You will find that this community, which rests quietly in nature's setting, is also very much alive with activity—tennis, swimming, fishing, clamming, sailing and jogging are all a part of the daily life here.

Landscaping designs have been carefully planned to complement and enhance the beautiful setting. Small gardens, courtyards, walkways and screened patios are just a few of the outstanding features of The Villas that make it the perfect place to live. Located five miles from Morehead City, The Villas offers the ideal location—convenient, yet secluded and private.

Tourist dollars, though, are what Everett calls "clean" money, meaning that few services are needed to accommodate the temporary tourist population, that pollution is not a major byproduct concern and that the money brought into the economy by outsiders is spent five times by local citizens before it comes to rest. Using this formula, the $20 million or so Carteret will get this year will translate into a $100 million boost to the economy.

But that doesn't mean that Carteret is interested only in tourist-related businesses. Everett cites a need for more jobs for young people, a need for street and water improvements and other growth items that require the boost of a larger tax base to support them.

As Everett puts it, "It's not a matter of 'if' the area will change, but 'how' it will change."

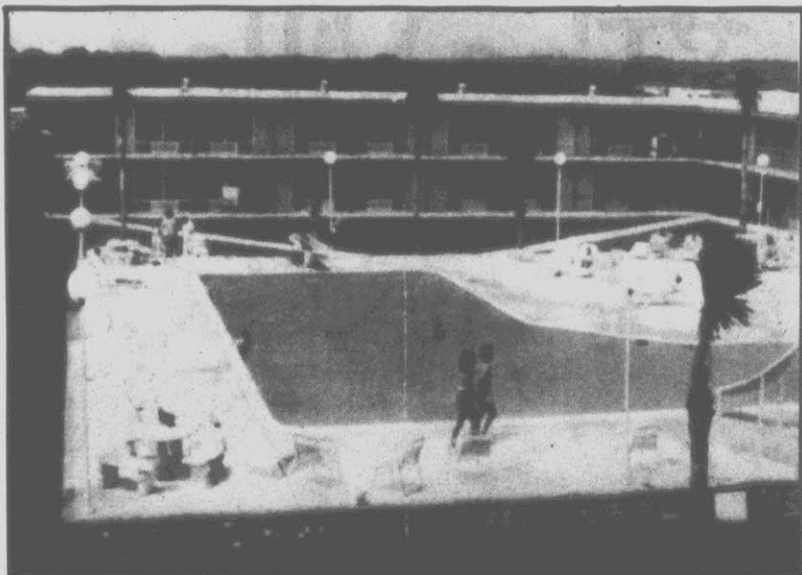

So don't talk about the recession in Carteret County, unless you like spending time alone. Talk about the boom, and you'll find more people who are willing to spend time with you.

Bumper boats are among this season's new attractions along the beach strand.

Mariners Museum is dedicated to chronicling North Carolina's rich maritime history. Its exhibits include sea and shore birds, fish and mammal specimens, marine fossils and collections of native seashells.

The museum also houses an impressive collection of boat models ranging from sailing skiffs to full-rigged ships that plied coastal waters since the early 1700s. Its Heritage Watercraft Program provides research, records and preservation of unique wooden sail craft and traditional boat-building indigenous to the state. Visitors can watch the construction of the vessels at the museum boat shop on Front Street.

The "Ship's Library" contains plans, charts and books on traditional boat building, boating and maritime and natural history. The museum is an agent for NOAA defense mapping hydrographic charts and geological survey maps.

Also, the museum offers a variety of programs and activities throughout the year, from formal lectures to informal field trips in maritime history and marine natural history. Birding, fossil hunting, shelling, wildflower walks and history tours are among the activities available to the public.

The Hampton Mariners Museum is open, free to the public, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays and 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

FORT MACON

Guarding the Beaufort Inlet entrance to Beaufort and Morehead City is Fort Macon, originally planned in 1820 as part of the federal government's coastal defense system.

The fort's site, however, had been in use since 1756, when the earthen Fort Dobbs was built there as a result of a 1747 Spanish invasion of Beaufort. Fort Dobbs became Fort Hampton in 1803 when the town was named a U.S. Port of Entry.

Fort Hampton saw use during the War of 1812, but was left to the sea afterwards. Fort Macon was constructed 1,300 yards from where Fort Hampton stood.

The present structure has been garrisoned on a number of occasions — during the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and World War II.

When first built, the walls of the fort contained some 15 million locally made bricks and many tons of earth and stone. It surrounds a parade ground of two and a half acres, and there are 34 rooms built into the fort. The mortar for the masonry was made of lime produced by burning oyster shells and beach sand. The fort was surrounded by a deep moat with access by two bridges.

After the Civil War, the fort was used as a prison for Confederate soldiers, and the dungeon is still a favorite spot for visitors.

The fort is open until 5:30 p.m. daily. No admission is charged.

MARINE RESOURCES CENTER

One of three Marine Resources Centers in the state, the one on Bogue Banks is located in the Theodore Roosevelt Natural Area and is an educational and research facility for marine life.

The Center features exhibits that take a close look at marine life and the changing nature of the coast and how it affects people. The exhibits also explore the worlds of whales, pirates, fishermen, hurricanes, beach erosion, sailboats, seashells and lighthouses.

A number of aquariums house fish and other sea life indigenous to the North Carolina coast. Especially popular among visitors are the touch tables that allow persons to hold starfish, sea urchins, hermit crabs and other sea creatures.

The Center also has a library, a guest speaker program and a number of activities throughout the year. From mid-June through mid-August, the center is offering on Thursday afternoons an opportunity to taste seafood dishes ranging from eels to sharks, skate to conch.

The Center is open, free, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday; and 1 to 5 p.m., Sunday.

Burying Ground

Nathanael Taylor, and the plot has since been public property. It is conceivable, according to some historians, that some of the unmarked graves represent victims of the Indian Wars, "their skulls cleft with tomahawks of hostile Core or Nous Indians."

The earliest graves were marked with shells or cypress slabs, more easily obtained than stone markers. Many are marked with wooden slabs or pyramids of crumbling brick.

In the north corner of the cemetery, the oldest part, is a group of graves that face East — so the occupants could be facing the rising sun on Judgment Day.

The graveyard was declared full by the state in 1825, but stubborn residents refused to abandon it until a new cemetery was opened in this century.

Among the more celebrated occupants of the burying ground are:

- Mary and Robert Chadwick, who took in a Chinese stowaway, educated and converted him to Christianity and sent him back to his native land where he became the father of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek and Mme. Sun-Yat-Sen.

- Nancy Manney French, who carried a torch for Charles French. He subsequently moved West to seek his fortune, found it and returned many years later to marry Nancy — who died a few weeks later.

- James W. Hunt, a U.S. Army surgeon who married for the second time, made out his will and died, all on the same day.

- Dill child, who died of yellow fever and was buried in a glass-top casket. The grave was dug up by vandals and the body was found to be intact. When the coffin was opened, however, the body disintegrated. The child was reburied.

- Capt. Otway Burns, who has a cannon from his privateer "Snapdragon" atop his tomb.

- British officer, who requesting not to be buried "with his boots off," was placed in the ground standing up.

- Samuel Leffers, who left this inscription for all to ponder: "Praises on tombstones are but idly spent; A man's good name is his best monument."

Oceanfront Homesites

Maritime Place is the newest oceanfront single family residential subdivision in Pine Knoll Shores. Bounded by the Atlantic Ocean on the south and the 300 acre Theodore Roosevelt Natural Area on the north, Maritime Place is situated among the old oaks and cedars of the Maritime Forest. Protected by a high primary dune, the rolling terrain provides intriguing building sites which are rare in coastal areas. With prices starting at $45,000, the owners will offer 80% financing of the purchase price over a term of 5 years at an interest rate of 9½% per annum on the unpaid balance.

Pine Knoll Shores WEST

Soundside Condominiums

Westport was designed with marina activity in mind. Each unit is located near the water with walkways to the docks. Westport owners can choose from a variety of floor plans ranging from a 600 square foot studio with a loft to an 1,100 square foot 2 bedroom. Every unit features an auto park, deluxe kitchen and large screened porch overlooking the marina. Prices start at $48,500. A pre-construction discount of $2,000 is in effect for the first ten units sold. Financing is available.

McMahon Hosts 'Junior Pageant'

"There's not a father in this country who wouldn't be proud to see his daughter named America's Junior Miss."

So said Ed McMahon, who will host the upcoming 23rd annual "America's Junior Miss Pageant" special, to be broadcast live from Mobile, Ala., July 2 (8 to 9 p.m.). This marks McMahon's fourth stint at the helm of the Pageant. He also hosted the event in 1971, '72 and '73.

America knows Ed McMahon well as an announcer, super-salesman, and convivial sidekick to Johnny Carson. But McMahon conceded that his strongest affinity to the Pageant is as the father of two daughters. (He also has two sons.)

"When I was in Mobile before," he said, "it wasn't difficult to imagine my own two daughters participating in this event. And I would have been awfully proud, because this is not a beauty contest. This is recognition of a girl's accomplishments during the first 17 years of her life."

McMahon was right. According to the Pageant officials, approximately 25,000 high school seniors participate — and over $1,000,000 in scholarships and prizes are offered — on the local, state and national levels.

High school seniors from each of the 50 states are in Mobile competing for the coveted title of America's Junior Miss. During the three nights of preliminary events, Pageant judges rate each of the state winners in scholastic achievement, poise and appearance, youth fitness, and creative and performing arts.

On the final televised night, the contestants will join McMahon for the naming of the new America's Junior Miss. Her crown will be presented by last year's winner, Susan Horvath of Johnstown, Penn.

"What I remember most from my previous hosting of this Pageant was the freshness and vitality of the girls," McMahon recalled. "I just fell in love with all the girls, and they fell in love with me. These are excellent ladies, and it was great to be around them."

"I remember their vitality; their curiosity, their excitement. What I look forward to now is returning to Mobile so that the love affair can happen all over again."

ED McMAHON will host the proceedings when the current America's Junior Miss, Susan Horvath of Johnstown, Pa., presents the crown to her successor, on the 23rd annual "America's Junior Miss Pageant," Wednesday, July 2 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Broadway's Top Banana

After more than a half a century in show business, Mickey Rooney says he's finally found his niche.

Rooney, a Tony Award nominee for his performance in the enormously successful "Sugar Babies," is the talk of the town. Relishing every moment of his triumphant debut on the New York stage, Rooney says, "I couldn't live without being on Broadway anymore: it's incredibly exciting."

Rooney has played in everything from slapstick comedies to heartwrenching dramas. One of his most engaging roles is as a con man in the fast-paced tale of the Old West, "Donovan's Kid," concluding on Disney's Wonderful World, Sunday June 29, (7 p.m.) on NBC. Darren McGavin and Shelley Fabares also star.

Rooney made his show business debut at the age of one and says he has no intention of stopping now. "I will never stop working," he says emphatically. "I have too much fun doing what I'm doing. I will only inspire — never retire."

He says the Broadway role is overall the most satisfying of his life. "I was the number one star of the world as a 19-year-old and it didn't bring me happiness. It brought me a lot of unhappiness. Now? I've never been happier in my life. How often does a fellow get a second chance at a career at age 59?"

Rooney is making the most of his new-found popularity and believes he can handle it better than in days gone by.

DEAN JONES stars in "When Every Day Was the Fourth of July," encoring on The Sunday Night Big Event, June 29 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

His Message Is Special

Dean Jones is enjoying life more than ever before, making family pictures only, and trying to bring a message to people. The actor, who stars in "When Every Day was the Fourth of July," to be rebroadcast on the Sunday Night Big Event, June 29, (9 to 11 p.m.) on NBC-TV, says he found himself four years ago. "My wife and I became Christians," he explained, "and I feel alive now." Jones, who will only accept parts that "I feel right about in my heart," looks back on the cold days before his conversion as a depressed desert. "I was working then, doing about the same thing I'm doing now, but those were days that I wasn't enjoying." Jones says it was "the bankruptcy of the value system which I was pursuing" that precipitated his conversion. "I was in a hotel room, preparing a new play, and it was like a side show. All of my values came before my eyes, along with the realization that if I elevated Dean Jones to whatever pinnacle of career or financial accomplishments I attained, it would still not satisfy me." This realization was followed by a "long, frank talk with God," during which Jones poured out his doubts, frustrations and misgivings. "I prayed for three days and then I said, 'Okay, if you exist, I'll commit my life to you.'" an attorney, Ed Cooper, who succumbs to the pleas of his 9-year-old daughter, Sarah. He agrees to defend a 'weirdo' handyman on a charge of slaying a candy store owner. By doing so, he faces hostility from the townspeople. The setting is Bridgeport, Conn., 1937. The town handyman, Snow Man, a mute World War I veteran suffering from shell shock, is considered retarded because he is unable to talk. When Officer Mike Doyle reports finding him kneeling over the dead body of Mr. Najarian, the citizenry are quick to assume that Snow Man is guilty of the slaying. But Sarah knows better, because she previously established communication and became friendly with Snow Man after coming to his aid when young toughs taunted him.

This, Jones did, and this commitment to God has brought him an abundance of peace, an immense joy, and happiness that knows no bounds. In "When Every Day Was the Fourth of July," Jones portrays

Michele Will Tell

Q: What happened to Joan O'Brien, who was on "The Bob Crosby Show"? B. HEWITT, HICKORY, N.C.

A: Joan retired in 1965, just after the release of her last film — "Get Yourself a College Girl." She was on Crosby's first TV show, that aired 1953-54.

Q: Please give me some information about Gil Gerard, the star of "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century." Also, what's his address? H. AIDEN, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Gil's 36 years old and was a highly successful industrial chemist in Little Rock, Ark., when he decided to change career paths. He headed for New York City, where he supported himself driving a cab until he could find a job as an actor. Then he landed the role of Dr. Alan Stewart in "The Doctors," and it's been smooth sailing ever since. He's all smiles these days. His series has been renewed, and he recently married an attractive actress, Connie Sellecca. Write to him c/o NBC-TV, 3000 Alameda Ave., Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: I'd like to know something about Steve Kanaly, who plays Ray on "Dallas." B. STONE, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: Steve's a native Californian who returned home after serving in Vietnam and opened a trap and skeet shooting club in the San Fernando Valley. He never gave acting a thought until one of his customers encouraged him to give it a try. He did, and was quickly cast in "The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean." He's a rugged outdoorsman who enjoys hunting, fishing, gardening, tennis, and jogging. He and his wife, Brent, have a two-year-old daughter named Quinn Katheryn.

Q: A friend of mine says David Carradine has never been married. I say he was once married to actress Barbara Hershey. Who's right? L.L.E., SUPPLY, N.C.

A: Neither. David and Barbara lived together for a few years — even had a son — but they were never married. He did marry Linda Gilbert in 1977, however.

Q: Who plays Cal on "Sanford"? He looks familiar, but I don't know where I've seen him! What other shows has he been on? S. BRITAIN, MORGANTON, N.C.

A: He's Dennis Burkley, who's best known to TV viewers as Mac, the truckdriver who became romantically involved with a number of women on "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman." He's also guested on several other series.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO 'MICHELE,' GREENVILLE DAILY REFLECTOR, P.O. BOX 1451, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

accepted a diploma and a commission from the U.S. Military Academy — along with 61 other female "survivors." "But that summer and first year was the most difficult time of my life. There was not a day that I did not consider packing up and heading home."

That aptly describes fictional character Jennifer Scott's feelings in the drama, "Women at West Point," which revolves around the trails of that first year for women in the "man's world" of the Academy, with its professional and personal confrontations, defeats and triumphs. The drama, starring Linda Purl (as Scott), Leslie Ackerman, Jameson Parker and Andrew Stevens, will be rebroadcast Wednesday, July 2, (9-11 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

It Was Worth It

In July 1976, Nancy Guwra and 118 other women packed their bags and headed for West Point. "I've always thrived on challenges," recalls Second Lieutenant Guwra, who this month

Use Your Imagination

The myriad combinations and qualities used in ballet dazzle the mind as well as the eye. Audiences are frequently left wondering how a choreographer conceived a certain work. They never realize that even the choreographer often finds it impossible to explain his thought process.

So says Jerome Robbins, who'll offer a sampling of his ballets on "An Evening With Jerome Robbins," Wednesday, July 2 (9:30 to 11 p.m.) on NBC. "In order to explain how a ballet came about, I'd have to talk for days — and even I wouldn't be able to explain the whole thing," says Robbins. "It isn't that you see something while walking down the street and then you think of a ballet. It's never that way. Too much of your life is in that work and you can't say one specific thing made you do it."

Robbins is equally reluctant to analyze his works. It is something he would rather leave to the imagination of his audience.

"To describe in words the experience of watching live dancing is close to impossible," he says. "It itself is a non-verbal art. And I don't like to analyze it verbally, particularly because a person that is watching the dance is liable to read the dance in terms of that one analysis. I would rather let people be free to make their own interpretations."

On an emotional level, it is impossible to describe Robbins' creative process on this — or any other — ballet. On a practical level, "Dance At a Gathering" is an outgrowth of what began as a pas de deux for Patricia McBride and Edward Villella.

"When I started working on it, Patty and Eddie didn't have the time to work with me," says Robbins, "so I worked with two other dancers. Then I noticed it was growing a little bit, so I planned to extend it to a work for six dancers. But again, rehearsals kept those six away from me, so I used other people. Then I realized I had 10 people."

He then showed it to George Balanchine, another leading choreographer.

Wednesday Evening

BRINGS HIS DANCES TO TV — Internationally acclaimed choreographer Jerome Robbins brings some of his famous dance creations to television on "An Evening With Jerome Robbins," Wednesday, July 2 (9:30-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Arnold and Willis fear that it may be curtains for them after they are accidentally locked in a storage room while hunting for Valentine Day costumes. (CLOSED CAPTIONED) (repeat)

9-11 CBS Wednesday Movie: "Women at West Point" Linda Purl. The drama tells the story of two young women who, in 1976, break the all-male barrier at the United States Military Academy, and the reactions they faced — from comradely friendship to outright contempt. (repeat, 2 hrs)

6-7 NBC Special: "An Evening with Jerome Robbins" Works by Jerome Robbins, including, "Fancy Free," "Dances at a Gathering," "The Cage," and "Afternoon of a Faun," will be danced by members of the New York City Ballet, where Robbins has been a principal choreographer for many years. (90 min)

3-5-12 Vegas: "The Lido Girl" Dan must nail an international gang who uses chorus girls to rig the casino's roulette wheels. (CLOSED CAPTIONED) (repeat, 60 min)

'Music Man' Returns

Robert Preston and Shirley Jones star in Meredith Willson's "The Music Man," the screen adaptation of the hit Broadway play which won an Oscar for Best Score (adaptation or treatment). The musical comedy, which also stars Buddy Hackett, Hermione Gingold and Paul Ford, will return to the small screen on "NBC Friday Night at the Movies" July 4 (8-11 p.m.).

Preston stars as Professor Harold Hill, a traveling salesman who arrives in River City, Iowa, in 1912 with the announced intention of organizing a boys band — even though he lacks musical skills.

Hill is generally considered a fake among his fellow road peddlers, but he does manage to win the comradeship of Marcellus Washburn. Hill follows Washburn's suggestion to woo Marian Paroo, the town librarian, as he sets out to pull his elaborate ruse.

Hill's plan is to sell musical instruments and band uniforms to the town children and then leave with his profits. From the very beginning, however, problems abound.

Paroo is cold to Hill's advances and soon begins to question his credentials. Then, the salesman alienates the town's mayor and his wife. When the mayor sends members of the Board of Education to demand Hill's credentials, the wily peddler is able to divert their attention with a musical ploy. And incredibly, he soon wins his way into the townspeople's good graces. But when the uniforms and musical instruments arrive, and Hill is not able to train the youngsters successfully, River City is in an uproar.

In a tumultuous meeting in the Assemble Hall, Hill is denounced until the youngsters arrive in uniform and respond when he pleads with them to play by the "think system."

Reeve Flies High

"Superman II" is now in the can and will be released soon, and actor Christopher Reeve has signed a pact for an estimated $3,000,000 to star in a third and final Superman flick. He will reportedly have a two-year break before starting work on the second sequel, and will have "reasonable" script, cast and director approval. Reeve was pleased with the outcome of "Superman II," and says the adventure and love story go further than the original.

Sissy Gets Offer

Producer Steve Tisch has made Sissy Spacek a firm offer to return to Nashville, and not to do a sequel to "Coal Miner's Daughter." He wants her to star as the Nashville reporter, Dorrie Bridges, who makes it big as a powerful Hollywood gossip columnist in a film based on the best-selling novel, "Hot 30."

This Horse Can Really 'Hoof' It!!

A baseball team of hopeless losers winds up in the World Series when a horse with heart shows them how the game should be played in "The Horse That Played Center Field." The two-part animated comedy will be seen on the ABC Weekend Specials series on consecutive Saturdays, July 5 and 12 (12-noon to 12:30 p.m.).

The New York Goats are a major league team. But their performance on the field is strictly bush, mostly because they've begun to believe that they're no good. Manager Casey Balloo is a tough-minded old pro who knows that his players should be performing as well as anyone in the league. Then he sees a chance to embarrass them into playing their best when he discovers a horse that can catch any fly ball within a hundred yards. He seizes the opportunity, and puts the horse on the team. Oscar the horse plays well because he loves the game. Another reason is that no one's ever told him he can't play well. The rest of the players just don't trust themselves, so they come to think that only Oscar's 'luck' can make them winners.

It's a bright, lively story that has something to say about confidence and teamwork.

Heroine In Film

"Sheena, Queen of the Jungle," a popular comic strip heroine of the '30s and '40s, and later a television series, will finally make her screen debut.

We point out every detail.

America's Turning Zup

Dynamic Duo To Compete

Each summer, nearly every sports lover turns his attention to a small London suburb, where the world's best tennis players meet for the oldest and most prestigious event in the history of the game. Its official name is the All-England Tennis Championship, but it is more commonly and affectionately referred to as Wimbledon.

This year marks the 12th consecutive time NBC Sports will televise the grand event, and a record total of 13 1/2 hours of exclusive and taped coverage will be presented.

Coverage of early-round matches from the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club will be aired on Sunday, June 29 (3-5 p.m.), and through-the-week late-night updates (11:30-11:45 p.m.) with results and highlights of crucial late-round matches will provide the build-up for the network's first-time-ever same-day coverage of the women's singles final on Friday, July 4 (2:30-5 p.m.). Like last year, NBC will show the men's singles final live, highlighting the scheduled six-hour telecast on Saturday, June 5 (9 a.m.-3 p.m.).

The early favorites for the coveted singles titles are the defending champions: Bjorn Borg, shooting for his fifth straight Wimbledon singles crown — an achievement unrivaled in modern-day Wimbledon history, and Martina Navratilova, aiming for her third consecutive singles championship. There will be a couple of determined youngsters in attendance, however, who will be trying their best to break the streaks held by the two top players in men's and women's tennis, respectively.

Dynamic young tennis stars John McEnroe and Tracy Austin, both of whom won singles titles at the 1980 U.S. Open, are certainly two faces to watch this year.

McEnroe, a 21-year-old left-hander who resides in Queens,

N.Y., notched his first auspicious performance when he reached Wimbledon's semi-final round, as an amateur in 1977. He was also the first qualifier ever to reach the semis.

He started 1979 with a splash by winning the Grand Prix Masters in New York. At 20, he became the youngest U.S. Open Champion since Pancho Gonzales.

Tracy Austin, 17, who is currently women's tennis second top moneymaker behind Navratilova, came on strong last season to thwart a late comeback effort by Chris Evert-Lloyd. It was Austin who snapped Lloyd's incredible 125-match win streak on clay en route to her Italian Open victory, and she was also the youngest person ever to win the U.S. Open Championships, polishing off Lloyd in the final to bury her hopes for five consecutive U.S. singles titles.

DYNAMIC YOUNG TENNIS STARS John McEnroe (pictured) and Tracy Austin, both of whom won singles titles at the 1980 U.S. Open, will be among those competing at Wimbledon. NBC Sports will be telecasting early-round matches on Sunday, June 29 (3-5 p.m.), through-the-week nightly updates (11:30-11:45 p.m.), same-day satellite coverage of the women's singles final on Friday, July 4 (2:30-5 p.m.), and live coverage of the men's singles final on Saturday, July 5 (9 a.m.-3 p.m.).

HOLLYWOOD — The cast of "GENERAL HOSPITAL" had a surprise visitor the other day — none other than DUSTIN HOFFMAN! No, it's not that he's a fan of the show. He said he was doing "research" for his next film project.

MICK JAGGER's determined to prove that he's indeed a serious actor. He's recently purchased the re-make rights to a 33-year-old movie, "KISS OF DEATH" which he plans to star in. This happens to be the film that catapulted RICHARD WIDMARK to stardom.

After calling a halt to their togetherness a while back, ballet stars MIKHAIL BARYSHNIKOV and GESLEY KIRKLAND are giving their romance another whirl-around.

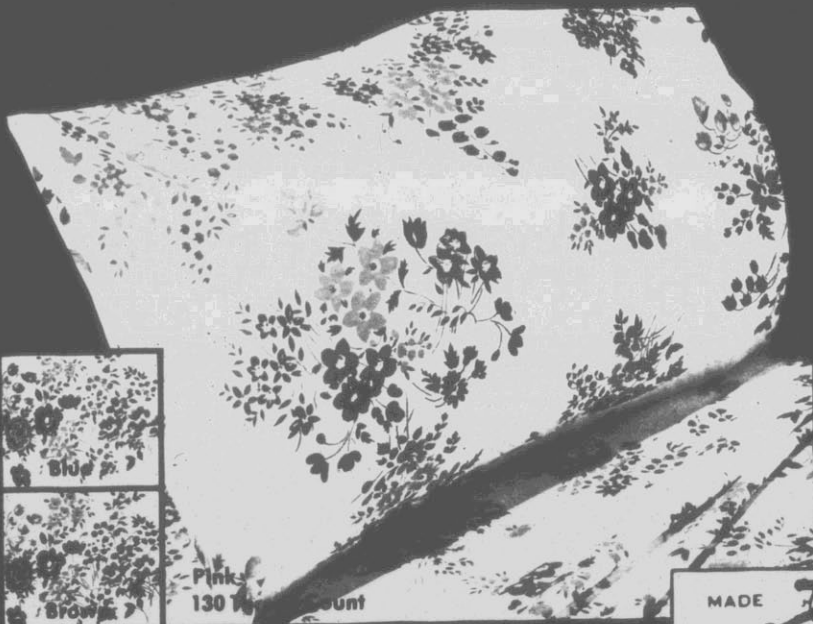

BARBRA STREISAND quietly gave a half-million $$$ to UCLA's cardiology department. She'd hoped to keep it from the press, but word's gotten out anyway.

A well-known gynecologist is calling the plays for LIZA MINNELLI, who's determined not to have another miscarriage. She's even cut out the cigarettes and booze, and replaced them with a handful of vitamins.

Keep an eye on 18-year-old CHRIS ATKINS, who may well be Tinseltown's next teen fave. Even before his first film, "THE BLUE LAGOON" — in which he shares top-billing with BROOKE SHIELDS — was even released, the foxy guy received more offers than he could handle!

4th OF JULY SALE AT A&P!

THE FARM

A&P

ADVERTISED ITEM POLICY

Each of these advertised items is required to be readily available for sale at or below the advertised price in each A&P Store, except as specifically noted in this ad.

Where do you go for the freshest fruits and vegetables? To the farm, of course. So A&P brings The Farm to you.

Somewhere in the world, it's harvest time. And that's exactly where A&P's eagle-eyed produce buyers are right now—gathering the pick of the crop and getting it rushed to The Farm in your nearby A&P store.

Their demanding standards and their ability to buy in large quantities means you get exceptional value whenever you buy produce at A&P.

So come take a fresh look at The Farm at A&P and get to know the Farm Manager. He's so proud of his fine fruits and vegetables, you'd think he grew them all himself! And he'll help you find exactly what you need to be equally proud when you serve it to your family!

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave. New York, N.Y. 10022
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR C. BARRY RALEIGH, Earthquake Prediction Program Office, U.S. Dept. of the Interior, Geological Survey

Why is California so closely monitored for earthquakes? What puzzles scientists about earthquakes and what progress is there toward predicting them? —S.R., Trenton, N.J.

● Though less seismically active than Alaska, California has far more people at risk from a large earthquake. In southern California, a 300-mile-long section of the San Andreas fault is presently thought to be a seismic gap where a great earthquake will happen in the next several decades. Earthquakes vary more than one might expect. Some are preceded by obvious warning signs but others are not. Predictions of major earthquakes have been made successfully in China and the USSR but it is still an uncertain, slowly emerging scientific discipline.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Exactly what is "Disco Foot"? — Louise Fitzpatrick, Pennington, N.J.

● It's a new medical entity, identified by Dr. Joseph D'Amico, chairman of the New York College of Podiatric Medicine, that involves the painful combination of sprains, strains, bursitis and excessive muscular fatigue and soreness. He told us: "This malady accounts for one-quarter of all the dance-related foot and leg problems treated in my office. It is caused by slippery dance floors, lack of proper warm-up, alcohol-produced instability and improper footwear, such as shoes with stiletto heels and platform soles. Basically, disco-dancing is an athletic activity and should be treated as such. Warm-up exercises and more sensible footwear for the dance floor should help to reduce the number of injuries."

The disco beat isn't easy on the feet

FOR BETTE MIDLER, actress, recording star and author of A View From a Broad

Who is your favorite off-stage designer; do you prefer sports or formal clothes; whom do you rate as the country's best-dressed women? — L.M., Elkhart, Ind.

● My favorite off-stage designer is Chance; I prefer casual and dress-up clothes. Both at the same time. I find the combination irresistible. As to the best-dressed women, they are, in this order: Julia Child; Miss Piggy; Joey Heatherton; Amy Carter.

FOR WILLARD SCOTT, NBC-TV weather forecaster
How did you happen to get interested in weather forecasting? Weren't you once involved in kids' shows? — E.C., Wilmington, Del.

● I was an NBC staff announcer for 25 years in Washington D.C., where one of my assignments was a five-minute radio spot. When the TV weatherman suddenly left, I was assigned to take his place. Prior to that, my TV experience was limited to kids' shows. (I was a clown like Bozo.) That was 14 years ago.

FOR BEL KAUFMAN, author of Love, etc.

Are you one of those authors who never talk about their work when with strangers? — F.O., Staunton, Va.

● I know writers who avoid discussing their work for fear of "talking it all out" and having nothing left for the written page. I find, on the contrary, that talking to people and sharing my thoughts about my work stimulates me into more abundant ideas and more exact expression. I am a social creature, a talker. I am also a listener

FOR LYNN REDGRAVE, co-star, CBS-TV's House Calls
Is it true you're a terrible worrier? — C.L., Waco, Texas

● I am a worrier, but not a terrible one. Just like my mother, I get anxious about trivia. I have a tendency to worry about a problem that might not surface until the following week, which is silly, because quite often, the problem tends to dissipate: it is not as bad as I expected. My fear is always "How will I cope?" My husband, John, is right when he tells me to wait till it happens.

FOR CY COLEMAN, composer of Broadway's Barnum
Fact or fiction that you were a child prodigy? — D.P., Lowell, Mass.

● Fact. Quite often the tenants in the Bronx apartment house that my father managed were in rent arrears. So they'd sneak out in the dead of night with most of their possessions. One morning my father found a piano left by one vacating family. We moved it to our place, and I started tinkling the keys. That's when I got interested in music. I was 4.

FOR GLORIA MONTY, producer, ABC-TV's General Hospital

Is there any unusual technical problem for your show? — G.V., Racine, Wis.

● The truth is we use only one set and change floor numbers as the action demands. For instance, if Dr. Hardy is leaving the hospital, we follow him from the floor he is on to the elevator and then to the lobby. Floor numbers and elevator numbers have to be changed as he descends. It's quite tricky.

PRO Fred Wertheimer, senior vice president, Common Cause

Emphatically, yes. Decisions in Congress should be made on their merits, not on which special interest group can contribute the most money. Congress is living by a double standard. After Watergate, Congress voted to establish public financing to clean up Presidential elections. But it refused to clean up its own elections. As a result, special-interest groups will give $55 million to 1980 Congressional candidates. Our representatives are dependent on their private financial backers. They should be indebted to no one but the American people.

PRO AND CON

Should Congressional Elections Be Publicly Financed?

CON Richard L. Lesh, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

No. Public financing would virtually assure election of incumbents — good or bad. The same spending limits would be put on incumbent and challenger. But an incumbent has time to build name recognition through tax-supported mass mailings and newsletters worth about $1 million. The proposal invites further intrusion by an already over-sized bureaucracy into our voluntary political process based on individual choice. Americans intuitively understand that ultimate control of the political process must remain in their own hands.

Should We Try to Create a Brave New World?

Could we actually create a race of supersmart people? Some scientists are setting out to do just that, amid a growing controversy over the ethics of breeding for brilliance.

By Isaac Asimov

A sperm bank has been set up. The sperm of men of proven brilliance (Nobel Prize winners, for instance) are frozen and set to one side, awaiting women of proven brilliance who wish to be artificially inseminated by these super-sperm, in order to produce unusual infants of double brilliance.

If enough men contribute sperm and enough women are willing and qualified to accept them, the vision is of a whole group of double-brilliant; a group, one might think, that the human species sorely needs.

And yet the only reason I can think of to hope that the experiment continues and is brought to fruition, is my conviction that it will prove that this sort of thing just won't work.

The human brain is the most complex bit of organized matter we know of anywhere in the universe. It is incredibly more complex than a star, for instance, and that's why we know so much more about stars than about the human brain. And the most complex aspect of the brain is its intelligence, so it's not surprising that we know next to nothing about that. We aren't even certain we know what we are measuring when we say we are measuring intelligence, or just exactly what it is that the I.Q. ("intelligence quotient") is supposed to be.

We know how inheritance works in its simpler aspects. We know about genes, and we can work out nicely what happens to characteristics that are controlled by single genes in a very straightforward manner, such as plant-stem lengths or human eye color.

We don't know the relationships of genes and intelligence, however. We don't know how many genes play a role in the development of intelligence, how the different genes interrelate, the nature of the chemistry they control or anything else. There is, therefore, no way in which we can predict that the offspring of two intelligent parents will be intelligent in the same way that we can predict that the offspring of two blue-eyed parents will be blue-eyed.

Isaac Asimov is the author of 216 books. His latest is In Joy Still Felt (Doubleday).

All that can be done is to make statistical I.Q. studies of parents and children. The trouble is that we're not sure how good the I.Q. tests are, or whether they're any good at all.

And we don't know how much is the effect of chance or of nongenetic influences. For instance, all sperm cells of a given male should, in theory, have identical sets of genes, but it is quite possible that no two are exactly alike. Genes don't always duplicate themselves exactly, as millions of different sperm cells are formed. There might be a large range in quality of the sperm cells produced by a particular male at a particular time, and it is just a matter of chance which sperm fertilizes a particular egg. (Every egg cell formed by a woman may be different, too, and likely is.)

If it's simply a matter of eye color, tiny gene variations may not matter; but in something as subtle and delicate as human intelligence, chance may be everything.

Then, too, what of the influence of the mother's physiology and chemistry during those nine months when a fetus is growing. Even a delicate and subtle distortion, unnoticeable in other ways, might affect so delicate and subtle a thing as intelligence.

And the environment after birth? What about the subtle effects of differences in mother's milk or in the water used to dilute the baby's formula? What are the psychological factors of interaction with mother, with father, with siblings, with playmates? What are the sociological factors of the availability of books and of competitive games?

We don't know the answers to any of these things.

Nevertheless, there are people who have studied I.Q.'s of parents and children and are convinced there is a strong hereditary factor and that by following eugenic principles (mating "superior" parents), we can develop a "superior" strain of humans.

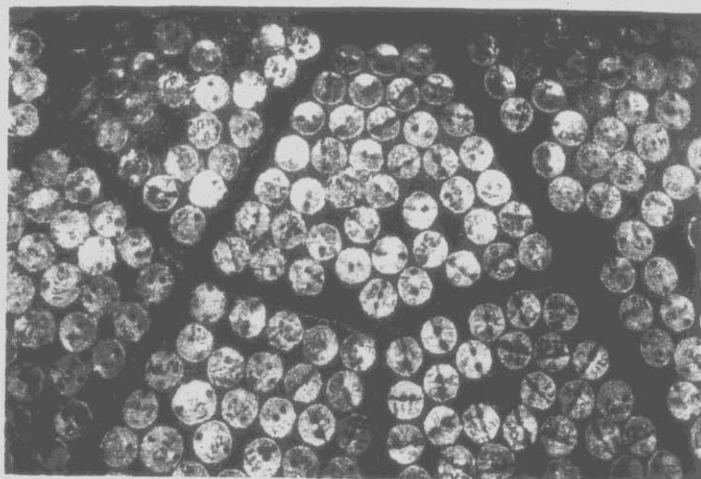

There are many bright people with not-so-bright children; and vice versa. Of course, intelligent people might have intelligent youngsters a little oftener than not-so-intelligent parents might, but the chances are not great enough to make the eugenic experiment really worthwhile, in my opinion.

Millionaire Robert Graham invited Nobel Prize winners to donate sperm for impregnating highly intelligent women.

William Shockley has contributed to Graham's Nobel sperm bank.

In the typical sperm bank, code numbers identify each aluminum tube of sperm. The tubes are then frozen under -321°F . liquid nitrogen.

In fact, it might conceivably do harm. Suppose a number of children are produced which, on the assumption that they are superior, are then treated with all possible tender and loving educational care. They are warmed before the benevolent fire of books and intellectual games and stimulating conversation. Naturally, they will come closer to their full potential of intelligence than if they were just thrown in with a bunch of children and teachers from the very common herd. They will then seem superior, and we will be well on the way toward developing a racist philosophy, a kind of feeling that there are subspecies of human beings that either exist or can be developed and that differ from each other unalterably in intelligence.

We would then go on to develop, or try to develop, or convince ourselves that we have indeed developed, a ruling class of pure-bred intellectuals; a middle class of respectable but inferior people; and a lower class of unutterable cads and swine, fit for enslavement.

It would be a terrible world. Such worlds have existed in the past, and we still struggle with the marks of injustice and cruelty they have left behind.

What should we do, then?

Ought we not to consider that all over the world, human beings with the potential of high intelligence are being born at all times? It may be just possible that the percentage of such births is higher in some places and among some groups, but that doesn't really matter. The percentage isn't zero anywhere.

If, then, we tried to develop a society that made sure that pregnant mothers were well-cared for and babies well nourished everywhere; if psychological and social surroundings were healthy everywhere; if we developed a system of education that encouraged intelligence everywhere; and if we made no artificial distinctions of appearance, language or ways of life — if, in short, we developed a sane and just society — we would soon find ourselves harvesting highly intelligent children all over the world, and it would be a crop worth more to the human species than anything else conceivable.

And we would gather millions for sure, while the sperm banks would gather dozens, perhaps.

But can we manage to develop so ideal and utopian a society as to harvest intelligence?

If we even accomplish just a little in the way of improvement, that would grant us a richer harvest than the sperm banks will give us. And the additional intelligent people that would thus enter our society might help us accomplish still more — and so on.

We might as well try. At this stage in history, there is just about nothing left to lose.

Now more than ever you need a car you can live with.

GM

1980 Malibu Classic Sedan

The next time you buy a new car, buy wisely.

Because if you're like most people, you'll probably be holding on to it for quite a while.

Don't just go for high EPA mileage ratings. Get a car that'll please you in many ways.

Chevy Malibu, for example, has a [20] EPA estimated MPG and a highway estimate of 26.*

Yet in spite of those substantial numbers, Malibu has room for up to six people. It is truly a family-size car with a family-size trunk.

We think you'll find Malibu a delight to look at and drive. Not just now, but years from now.

Chevy Malibu, for 1980.

It's the kind of a car a whole lot of people want and need today.

See your Chevy dealer about buying or leasing your new Malibu soon.

Remember: Compare the "estimated MPG" to that of other cars. You may get different* mileage, depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions, and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the highway estimate. Estimate lower in California. Malibu is equipped with GM-built engines produced by various divisions. See your dealer for details.

For TV Host David Letterman, A.M. Is Now Prime Time

By Mark Goodman

And now, he-e-e-r-e's David, looking spiffy in a three-piece suit, swinging easily into his monologue: "Saw a sign on a garbage truck the other day... 'Do Not Follow'... Another of life's simple pleasures ruined by a meddlesome bureaucracy... Remember the good old days, when Dad used to load all you kids up in the family car and follow the garbage truck around?"

Now cut to The Tonight Show's featured guest, Ben Vereen, discussing science's attempts to communicate with underwater creatures. Guest host David muses: "Wouldn't it be something if we finally made contact with the dolphins, and it turned out they were boring? I mean, after all these years of effort, they just had nothing to say?"

Well, David Letterman, 33, has plenty to say, and he seems to say it most wittily, agreeably and effectively.

And when talk was rife that Johnny Carson would leave The Tonight Show, Letterman's name was bandied about as a possible successor. He'd seemingly become the show's permanently floating guest host, filling in for Carson some 30 times since his first stint behind the desk in March 1978.

But now that Carson has signed on for another three years (announced in early May), whe-e-e-r-e's David? "I was neither surprised nor disappointed about Johnny staying," Letterman says. "All along I said I hoped he'd stay. He's the best."

Don't worry though. Letterman won't be sleeping in the bus station. Even though he won't take over as the king of late night, he's got a shot at becoming the prince of mid-morning. His own 90-minute, five-day-a-week morning talk show premiered on NBC last week (10:00-11:30, check local listings), and The David Letterman Show has been promised a run of at least 26 weeks.

The show is seen as an ambitious attempt by NBC to break free of the traditional morning fare of soap operas, game shows and sitcom reruns. Cracks Letterman, "It will be a combination of the styles of Donahue and Little House, Dating Game and the evening shows, professional wrestling and Make Room for Daddy... I thought we'd do it as sort of cowboy chuckwagon with me as the modern version of Cowboy Bob."

But seriously, folks, the program displays elements of a lot of the old talk shows and includes service features and serious interviews, as well as Letterman's sophisticated deadpan style of comedy. "At any rate," Letterman says of his big break, "it should be fun. We're not looking for a way to go to Jupiter or anything; after all this is just television. We just want to have a good time."

Despite featuring regulars such as comedians Bob Sarlatte, Valri Bromfield and Edie McClurg, Letterman will have no Ed McMahon sidekick per se. "We plan to use the audience a lot," David notes. "In fact, the second banana will probably just be a civilian I pick out of the crowd. We're really looking to key into that typical American family."

That's something Letterman knows all about.

The son of a flower-shop owner and a doting Midwestern mom who, he says, is still a bit embarrassed by his comedic calling ("she thinks I'm a notch or two above a carnival worker"), David grew up in Indianapolis. He attended Ball State University, majored in radio and television and married a fellow student, Michelle Cook. He spent a full year doing a radio talk show and six fretful years as a TV weatherman, carving a precarious announcing career out of a benign buffoonery — such as giving out phony weather reports — that was the delight of local listeners and the despair of station owners.

Finally, in 1975, thanks to his wife's coaxing, Letterman gave up local announcing and he and Michelle struck out for California, where he attempted to become a TV writer. He also tried his hand at the now-celebrated improvisational club. The Comedy Store. He was an immediate hit there and gathered sufficient minor notoriety to get a call from the Carson people.

No longer married (It wasn't his sudden success that caused the split, he says, "the marriage just ran out of steam"). Letterman now lives with Merrill Markoe, a former writer on Mary Tyler Moore's 1978 variety show, who will be writing for and appearing on his new show. He is in constant demand on the club circuit, and he's quietly confident that his show — admittedly a gamble for all involved — will make its mark. "After all," he says, "you don't want to spend your life being known as the guy who sat in 'for Johnny Carson.'" FW

For the Fourth: It's Easy, It's Fun, It's Hot Dogs

By Marilyn Hansen

With the snapping cadence of a drum roll, the Fourth of July independence celebration will be upon us. And ever true to our own ways, picnics and barbecues will cheer the scene. As one of America's favorite foods, hot dogs will be on their way, making life easier for the holiday cook. Simply grilled over hot coals, placed snugly in a toasted bun with a quick spread of mustard, few things in life are as easy or as satisfying. Some of us can't leave well-enough alone, however, and we must fiddle and fuss a bit: hence this selection of recipes to try.

HOT DOG CHOP SUEY

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 pkg. (16 ozs.) frozen mixed Chinese vegetables or 1 can (16 ozs.) mixed Chinese vegetables, drained
- 1 cup celery, diagonally sliced
- 1 cup sliced onion
- 3 cups shredded cabbage or Chinese cabbage
- 1 lb. chicken or turkey frankfurters, sliced on diagonal
- 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- ½ cup water or chicken broth
- 3 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1½ tablespoons cornstarch

1. Combine broth, Chinese vegetables, celery, onions and cabbage in skillet. Heat to boiling; cover and simmer about 5 minutes until tender-crisp.

2. Add sliced frankfurters; cook, stirring until mixture returns to boiling.

3. Combine sherry, water, soy sauce and cornstarch smoothly. Add to skillet mixture, stirring as you pour. Heat, stirring until mixture bubbles and thickens.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

NEW YORK PUSH CART ONION SAUCE

- 2 medium onions, sliced ¼-inch thick
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- ¼ cup ketchup or tomato sauce
- 1 pinch ground cinnamon
- ¼ teaspoon chili powder
- Dash Tabasco
- Dash salt
- 1 cup water

1. In medium skillet, sauté onions in oil over medium heat, stirring until golden and limp, about 7 minutes.

2. Mix in ketchup smoothly. Add cinnamon, chili powder, Tabasco and salt. Pour in water; stir.

3. Bring mixture to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, until onions are tender, about 10 minutes.

4. Spoon about 2 tablespoons hot onion sauce over grilled or boiled frankfurter in bun.

Makes 1½ cups, enough for 6 frankfurters

WURST SALAD

- 2 cans (1-lb. size) sauerkraut, drained
- 1 lb. big- or hearty-size frankfurters or knockwurst, thinly sliced on diagonal
- ¼ lb. sliced salami, julienned
- 1 cup dill pickles, thinly sliced on diagonal
- ½ cup carrots, thinly sliced on diagonal
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ cup vegetable oil
- ½ cup dill pickle liquid
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¾ teaspoon celery seed
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- Crisp lettuce leaves

1. In 3-qt. bowl, combine sauerkraut, sliced frankfurters, salami, pickles and carrots.

2. In saucepan, combine sugar, oil, pickle liquid, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, celery seed, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling, stirring until sugar dissolves.

3. Pour hot mixture over sauerkraut combination; toss well. Refrigerate.

4. Serve cold in lettuce-lined salad bowl. Makes 2 qts., 8 servings

Editor's Note: There is no need to cook the frankfurters or the knockwurst, as they are fully cooked already.

HOT DOGS TROPICALE

- 1 can (10½ ozs.) tomato soup
- ½ cup currant jelly
- ½ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup dry sherry
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- Dash Tabasco

- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon molasses
- 1 can (20 ozs.) pineapple chunks, drained
- 1 lb. frankfurters
- 2 tablespoons slivered green onions

1. Combine tomato soup, currant jelly, vinegar, sherry, garlic, ginger, Tabasco, soy sauce and molasses. Heat mixture, stirring until it comes to boiling and jelly melts.

2. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes.

3. Score frankfurters lightly on the diagonal in short cross-wise slashes. Cut in 1½-inch pieces diagonally.

4. Place frankfurters on broiler rack and broil about 5 minutes until lightly browned.

5. Place frankfurters in sauce with pineapple chunks; heat to boiling, spooning sauce over. Stir in green onions just before serving.

6. Place in chafing dish or pan over candle warmer.

Makes about 24 appetizer servings

Do Women Find Long-Haired Men More Macho?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. One person's hair can affect another person's blood pressure.
2. It's not only the hair that grows on a man's head that causes people to make judgments about him.
3. Women who have dark hair and light eyes are more sensitive.
4. A woman's preference for hair length on a man provides a clue to her own personality characteristics.

ANSWERS

1. True. A University of Nebraska

investigation shows that one man's hair can cause another to become angry more quickly than words or actions. It is pointed out that "long or shoulder-length hair on a late adolescent has the unique ability to evoke a rather predictably intense reaction from many of the establishment — the over-30 group.

2. True. In a Chicago Medical School study of the attitudes and judgments of both male and female college students, it was found that "there was a strong tendency for the hairy chest to be seen as more masculine and more virile." Findings of other investigations are cited also showing that hair on the arms, legs and chest symbolizes masculinity and virility for a great many people.

3. True. Psychological studies, conducted over a four-year period at the University of Texas, have shown that dark-haired women with light-colored eyes (blue, gray, green, hazel) react more sensitively to the stresses of everyday life, are more subject to sudden mood changes and have the type of emotional problems that result from feeling things too deeply.

4. True. Studies at Purdue University have shown that a woman's preference for hair length in a man reveals a great deal about her own character. In the first place, short-haired men were perceived by female subjects to possess a high degree of traditional "masculine" virtues, while long-haired men were perceived to be less dominantly macho, to be primarily interested in self-gratification and to look askance at many traditional standards of moral behavior. It was found that women who preferred long-haired men were themselves less traditional and more likely to have experimented with different lifestyles, while those who preferred short hair were more conventional.

Pants Make a Comeback—Swinging with Style

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

After a few seasons of being somewhat "out" of fashion, pants are suddenly "in" again. Bermudas are back (now called "city pants"). So are culottes, pedal pushers and toredors — or some version of them.

As far as sportswear designer Adri is concerned, "Pants are a way of life." She believes that women every-hand-knit short-sleeved twin sweater set. Says Adri: "I like to design pants a woman can breathe in, eat lunch in and put-her-hands-in-her-pockets in!"

Designer Donna Karan of Anne Klein devotes 60 to 70 percent of her spring-summer collection to pants. Her inspiration comes from the kinds of trousers Garbo and Dietrich wore, emphasizing eased-at-the-hip, fluid tailoring. "When a woman wears pretty hose and heels with pants, instead of boots, she's as dressed up as when she wears a skirt," says Karan. "A short blazer or long cardigan completes the outfit equally well."

Richard Assatly, who designs day and evening wear, has covered all pants lengths for this season's collection — from above-the-knee to 18-inch-wide ankle-length trousers. He has an incontrovertible theory about the on-again, off-again popularity of pants: "Whenever there's uncertainty about whether hemlines will drop or rise, women will turn inevitably to wearing pants — at least until the confusion resolves itself."

Choosing Pants For Your Figure

Here are some guidelines to follow when you're shopping for pants.

● If you have a short, heavy figure, avoid pants with gathers, patch pockets or light solid colors that give the illusion of more width to the figure. To minimize large hips, wear tops over pants. In a pants suit, select a box jacket instead of a long, fitted one.

● If you're short and thin, avoid pants in large-scale prints, two-color pants suits (which cut height) or clinging fabrics. Do wear pants with pockets (which "add weight") and simple, straight-leg pants without cuffs. Shop for "petite" proportioned pants.

● If you're tall and thin, wear white or light solid colors to appear heavier, pleated fullness around hips (not too full, which will make legs and body appear thinner) and cuffed pants to cut height.

where will echo that sentiment — especially for evening — because pants are easier to dance in and are more graceful when one is sitting across a floor cushion at a neighbor's party. But, whether it's for after-five or the office, Adri believes in a "pulled together" look of top and pants.

Adri's three basic pants silhouettes, all cut on the bias, give a softer, better-draped look on the body. One style has soft pleats at the waist, then falls straight to a 16-to 17-inch-wide ankle-length bottom. The more avant-garde styles: a mid-calf length (with a 25½-inch-wide straight leg) and the "city pant," which is designed to graze the knee, often worn with a contrasting jacket — or, newer-looking, a

The Eye-Opening Truth About Cataracts

By Paula Dranov

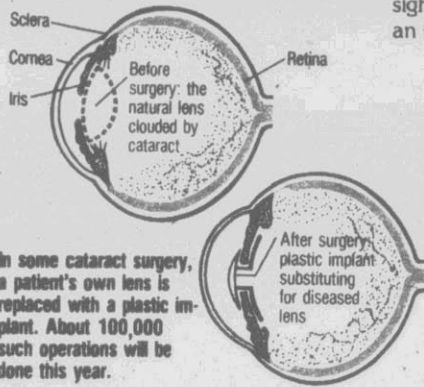

If we live long enough, just about all of us can expect to develop cataracts — clouded areas or opaque spots that form in the lens of the eye. But luckily, only 5 percent of those who do will ever need surgery to remove them.

Even when surgery is necessary, treatment has come a long way since the days when patients had to lie in bed after their operations with sandbags holding their heads in place to prevent the stitches from being dislodged. Yet despite vast improvement in surgical techniques, there is still no way to prevent cataracts from developing or from getting progressively worse once they do.

Why are cataracts so inevitable with age?

"The lens of the eye, which is normally clear and lies directly behind the iris and pupil, ages in much the same manner as the skin," explains Dr. Stuart Gluck, a California ophthalmologist. "As it does, it becomes progressively less and less transparent. Thus, it gradually loses its ability to focus light rays, and vision becomes blurred, hazy or smoky."

Paula Dranov frequently reports on medical topics for FAMILY WEEKLY.

In some cataract surgery, a patient's own lens is replaced with a plastic implant. About 100,000 such operations will be done this year.

Although cataracts occur most frequently in persons over age 55, they can be present at birth or may develop as a result of certain diseases — diabetes, for example — some eye infections, injuries or exposure to toxic materials or radiation. Left undetected and untreated, cataracts can lead to blindness since they eventually block light from entering the eye.

The first sign of cataracts is a gradual, painless decrease in vision. Patients may see spots before their eyes or experience double vision. Farsighted people may suddenly notice an improvement in their close-up vision. If the cataract is far advanced, people may note a whitish or yellowish reflection in the pupil of the cataract victim.

Doctors can often detect cataracts in their early stages during eye examinations. But unfortunately, early diagnosis doesn't really help. Even after a doctor has spotted a cataract in the making, nothing can be done to prevent its growth, although eyeglasses or contact lenses can often control deteriorating vision. As a rule, when one eye is affected, the other eye will be, too. It may take months, even years, though, for cataracts to progress to the point where surgery is needed — if it ever is. In most cases it is not necessary because vision isn't seriously impaired.

"It's time to operate on a cataract when it interferes with a patient's normal activities," says Dr. Norman Jaffe, a Miami ophthalmologist and clinical professor of ophthalmology at the University of Miami Medical School. As long as a patient is in good general health, even those in their 90's can benefit from cataract surgery.

The operation itself is not the incapacitating procedure it once was. Extra fine sutures are now used to close incisions and have greatly reduced the danger of hemorrhages within the eye. They have also made long hospital stays unnecessary. "I discharge my patients the day after the operation," explains Jaffe. "There are still some restrictions, though — no showers, sports, bending over or lifting for about two weeks."

After the operation, contact lenses are usually prescribed for younger patients, while for older ones, over 55 or so, who might have more difficulty adjusting to contacts, the patient's own lens is often replaced with a plastic implant called an intraocular lens. This will be done in roughly one-quarter of the estimated 400,000 cataract operations performed this year. "This surgery is now being done in all leading medical centers," notes Jaffe, "but patients should make sure their surgeons have adequate experience with the procedure."

Eventually, the intraocular lens itself may be replaced by "refractive keratoplasty," a new procedure that involves reshaping a segment of the patient's own cornea to act as a lens. So far, though, fewer than 70 of these operations have been done in the United States. FW

Doomsday Powder for Roaches could Endanger Species.

The cockroach could become the next endangered species if a California manufacturer has his way.

Alan Brite, who 30 years ago developed and lent his name to what is now a standard household cleaner, COPPER BRITE, has a new product called ROACH PRUFE.

Brite states that because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUFE as an insecticide, they do not avoid it, then scatter to other parts of your residence as they do with the more toxic insecticides. Plus, the electrostatically charged powder sticks to their bodies which they then carry back into the walls spreading among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in your walls and then you are protected for years against reinfestation.

In scientific tests conducted during a major research project by a leading Southern California University, the ROACH PRUFE formula was tested in heavily infested housing developments, restaurants, hotels and grocery stores against the most powerful insecticides used by professional exterminators. In every instance including tests just completed in 1979, ROACH PRUFE proved strikingly superior in eliminating roaches and preventing reinfestation.

One Application Does It

ROACH PRUFE is registered by the United States Environmental Protection Agency for use in all buildings, plus new construction and can be used in homes with children and pets.

The powder is odorless and non dusty and no harmful or irritating effects await the user as it is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and other hidden areas.

Brite has a problem, however: he says retailers apparently think it's unprofitable to stock the one-shot roach killer on their shelves when the same customers will come in again and again to buy the other roach insecticides. So he has decided to sell his product directly to consumers.

ROACH PRUFE™ costs 7.95 (including postage) for a one-pound can. Airmail is 1.00 additional per can. In California add 6% tax. One can covers up to a 9-room residence, plus one can for basement and garage. To obtain the product, send a check or money order to Copper Brite Inc., Dept. 93 at 5147 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90016.

be found and addresses of organizations that will match you up with a pen pal are covered. The booklet, which costs $1.50 (send check or money order), is available by writing to the National Council of Teachers of English, Dept. A., No. 01135B, 1111 Kenyon Road, Urbana, Ill. 61801.

Credit Responsibility

Walter Cavanaugh has done something no one else has ever done; he's collected 1,003 credit cards. As a matter of fact, his name went into the Guinness Books of World Records in 1973 after he'd collected only 143, but, as he says, "Once you've established a world record, you have to keep going."

The 36-year-old Cavanaugh actually has another world record to his credit. "I have the world's longest wallet," he says with a chuckle. "It's 250 feet long and reaches the ground from the top of a 30-story building."

Cavanaugh keeps his credit cards in three different safe-deposit boxes.

Household Chores

Housework has always been considered women's work, and Dr. Catherine Berheide, a Skidmore College sociologist, has found that the average woman spends six hours and 49 minutes doing housework every day, even if she has another job outside the home.

Dr. Berheide, who is now completing a survey for the National Institute of Mental Health, asked wives and their husbands about their housework habits. "We found that both spouses give the husband credit for more work than he actually does," says Berheide. "In general, men inflate their own participation; doing the dishes occasionally turns into 'but I always do the dishes.' And for many women it's just plain easier to do the work themselves. For a woman to want her husband or children to participate, she must be willing to teach them and to live with results that often aren't up to her standards."

How should couples divide the household tasks? "One way to really determine who is spending time on what is to keep a diary of the hours spent doing housework," advises Berheide. "Then you can compare and maybe come up with a more equitable solution."

All together, his cards weigh 31 pounds and represent $1.25 million in credit. He can charge gas at 43 gas stations and travel on 23 airlines. "But I've never been to 99 percent of the places where I have credit," he admits, "although I probably could go around the world without having to use cash." Needless to say, Cavanaugh has an excellent credit rating.

Diners Club

He can "charge it" almost anywhere.

Cover Story

Jim McCloskey has been winning fans with his spirited FAMILY WEEKLY covers for a year now. Last July 4th, he introduced himself with an exuberant illustration of a riverside celebration of patriotism. This year, he's turned to a favorite tradition: the Fourth of July parade.

In his parade, McCloskey included 54 flags, 140 people, eight crows and three dogs. "I didn't really count them," admitted the artist (we did though). Another confession McCloskey made was that he's been painting for only three years and that he knows nothing about art. But he certainly knows about having fun.

Lifestyles

Snoring. Contrary to popular belief, loud snoring does not indicate that a person is enjoying a satisfyingly deep sleep, reports the Insurance Information Institute. "Heavy snoring prevents restful sleep, which, in turn, causes irritability, depression and unclear thinking," says Dr. David Hudgel of the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center. Overweight men past the age of 45 are the most susceptible to heavy snoring.

Divorce. Since 1970 the number of American women who believe divorce is an acceptable solution to an unhappy marriage has jumped 10 percentage points to 62 percent, according to a Women's Opinion Poll conducted by the Roper Organization. The poll also found that 59 percent of the women questioned believe that if a divorced woman has or can earn a reasonable income, she should not be entitled to alimony, and 57 percent believe that both parents should be given equal consideration by the courts in custody decisions.

Solid 22-Karat Gold Krugerrand

The World's Most Famous Gold Coin in exact miniature

Only $22 if you act by July 31, 1980!

The famous Krugerrand, symbol of gold's elegance, beauty and value! In today's gold market, the Krugerrand is the most popular gold coin of our time because it contains one ounce of fine gold; in fact on May 21, 1980 the First National Bank of Chicago was selling the famous Krugerrand for $579.

Now, you have the rare opportunity to possess a Solid 22-Karat Gold Miniature Krugerrand available exclusively through the Columbia Mint for the special price of $22 if you act by July 31, 1980.

AN EXQUISITELY DETAILED MINIATURE

Individually die-struck by master craftsmen, each miniature captures the full three dimensional relief of the full sized coin. Each brilliant uncirculated 22-Karat gold piece has the likeness of Stephanus Johannes Kruger, the late 19th century President of South Africa on one side, and the distinctive depiction of the Springbok, the small African antelope on the reverse side.

Each solid 22-Karat Gold Piece is presented to you in a specially designed collector's case, accompanied by an individually numbered Certificate of Authenticity and a historical account of the Krugerrand. It's a golden treasure to be cherished for years to come—and the ideal gift for every occasion. A stunning solid 14-Karat Gold Frame for your miniature gold piece is also available.
