

Slight Dip Reported For Nation's Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate slipped slightly in June to 7.7 percent, the government reported today, but many economists cautioned that joblessness will continue to rise in coming months and exceed 8.5 percent by year's end.

The 0.1 percent dip from May's 7.8 percent jobless level followed unusually sharp increases of 0.8 percent in both April and May, bringing the unemployment rate to the highest level since President Carter took office.

Despite the stability in overall joblessness last month, the number of persons on temporary layoff as well as those whose jobs had been terminated continued to rise in June, the Labor Department said.

This trend was countered by a decline in the number of unemployed people who re-entered the labor force.

The department's report showed that the number of unemployed persons fell by about 148,000 to 8 million in June.

The jobless rate for most worker groups showed little change from the previous month, with the only rise occurring among adult men from 6.6 percent to 6.7 percent. The rate for adult women dipped to 6.5 percent from 6.6 percent; teen-agers, 18.5 percent from 19.2 percent; whites 6.8 percent from 6.9 percent; and minorities 13.6 percent from 13.9 percent.

Among minority teen-agers, the group traditionally highest in unemployment, the jobless rate dropped to 34.4 percent from 35.2 percent.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, told reporters that the new development in June was the "spread of job loss to the service-producing sector, which had continued to grow earlier in the year."

"Sizable job losses were registered (in June) in wholesale and retail trade and in services," she said. "On the other hand,

Typhus, Too

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The former Shah of Iran, battling cancer and recovering only slowly from pneumonia and abdominal surgery, is also suffering from a typhus infection, his spokesman disclosed today.

The spokesman, Robert Armao, also said ex-shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's weight has dropped below 139 pounds.

The medical reports from Maadi military hospital outside Cairo have not mentioned typhus, but this additional complication may help explain the concern expressed Wednesday by a highly placed Egyptian source who said the 60-year-old exiled Iranian leader remained dangerously ill.

employment held steady in transportation equipment, where jobs have dropped sharply in the past several months as large cutbacks occurred in the automobile industry."

Ms. Norwood also noted that the average number of hours worked per week have declined by nearly a half-hour since March.

Economists say this figure traditionally indicates a future rise in unemployment because as a first step to ward off a recession, employers cut overtime and work hours. If orders continue to fall and inventories pile up, as they are doing, the next step often must be layoffs.

The Labor Department also reported that total employment in the country fell by 450,000 in June, the fourth consecutive monthly decline. Since February, when the employment level peaked, the number of persons with jobs has fallen by 1.4 million, with most of this loss affecting adult males.

The downturn in employment since February had about matched the job gains of mid-to-late 1979, so that the overall level of employment for the month — 96.5 million people — was about the same as in June 1979, the department said.

However, during that time, the level of women working rose by a million while the number of employed adult men and teen-agers dropped 700,000 and 470,000, respectively.

The total number of people employed and unemployed makes up the labor force, which dropped by 600,000 in June to 104.5 million people, the department said.

Approve Center's Money

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced final Congressional approval of $1,500,855 for the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center in Greenville.

The appropriation, added to an earlier grant of $2,190,000, will enable the construction of a new residential-recreational building.

Sen. Robert Morgan successfully earmarked the new money in an amendment added to a supplemental appropriations bill passed by the Senate Saturday. Congressman Jones said, "This completes a four-year effort to obtain federal funds for 90 percent of the cost of this much-needed facility. In fiscal 1978 my efforts led to the first Congressional appropriation for the center. Now Sen. Morgan's dedicated efforts have resulted in the present appropriation, bringing the total federal share to $3,690,855 and insuring the construction of the project."

The Eastern Carolina Vocational Center provides therapy and training to persons suffering from physical disabilities, mental retardation or emotional disturbances. It then helps its clients to find private-sector jobs. The residential section of the proposed new building will have rooms and apartments to house 80 residents. It will feature dining areas and a central lounge. The facility will replace aging mobile home units now in use. The new building will also feature a gymnasium, pool, activity rooms, showers and offices. These facilities will permit an expanded recreational program to be coordinated with physical therapy and vocational training. Howard Dawkins is the director.

HOW ARE JURORS PICKED?

I've been called to jury duty every other year now for the last six years. I'd like to know how the jurors are selected for Pitt County and I'm getting a little bit tired of the answer that it's all done through random computer selection. E. V.

You should not, by law, be called on to serve during two bienniums (two-year periods) in a row, Pitt County Clerk of Court Sandra Gaskins said. She said that if you believe you have, you should contact the Clerk of Court's office, which will check with the Register of Deeds' office and find out for sure. It could be however, that you served near the last of biennium-before-last and that since it's near the first of this one, you feel it's been a very short time since your last jury service.

Ms. Gaskins explained how the 9,663 jurors for the 1980-81 biennium were picked: The Jury Commission, now composed of Jesse R. Moye, J. J. Brown and Herbert Brown, began meeting in August of 1979, picking names from voter registration and taxpayer lists. The number needed was, by law, to be not fewer than one and one-fourth times as many as was used in the previous biennium and not more than three times as many.

(The members of the Juror Commission are appointed, one by the clerk of court, one by the county commissioners and one by the resident Superior Court Judge, now Judge Robert D. Rouse Jr., incidentally. Their lengths of term are at the discretion of the appointers.)

The Commission, she said, first formed a culling list by picking one out of ten names from the voter lists and one out of four from the tax abstracts. There were not enough, so they then went back and picked one out of 30 from the voter lists and one out of 40 from the tax abstracts. This list was then compared to lists supplied the county computer to delete names of persons who had died, moved out of Pitt County, been declared mentally or physically incompetent or been convicted of a felony.

The final list is assigned numbers and that number of disks (as we said, 9,663 this biennium) have been put in a hopper from which they are drawn as needed by the clerk of court. The numbers chosen for each court session are sent to the register of deeds office, which puts the names with the numbers and sends a list for summoning to the Sheriff Department.

Anyone who is called and feels he or she cannot serve because of mental or physical disability can contact the clerk of court, which will forward the information to the judge who will make a decision, usually based on certification from the person's physician. Postponements can sometimes be obtained because of illness or death in the family. Occupational excuses are almost never accepted.

Summoning is now done about two-and-a-half to three weeks prior to time of service, Ms. Gaskins said.

Arrested For Embezzlement

Donna Brown Hill, 24, employed by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department for the past 4 1/2 years, was arrested about 3 a.m. today by police on charges of embezzling $1,975.25 in non-resident and program fees from the agency.

Chief Glenn Cannon said investigators recovered $1,128.75 — including $1,108.75 in checks and $20 in cash — leaving $866.50 in cash unaccounted for.

According to Cannon, Recreation and Parks Department officials became aware that the cash and checks were missing on June 12. However, the loss was not reported to the Police Department until July 1.

Cannon, who said agents of the State Bureau of Investigation assisted in the investigation, reported that Ms. Hill told Parks and Recreation Department head Boyd Lee in June that an envelope containing $1,200 — half cash and half checks — had been missing from her office since May 14.

Ms. Hill, of Glenwood Apartments, was a clerk-typist in charge of keeping records and receiving funds at the department's office at the Jaycee Park complex.

She told Lee that she had prepared a $1,200 deposit, left her office for a time, and when she returned, the envelope was missing. She said she delayed reporting the missing money in hopes that it would turn up.

Lee said this morning that the loss was not reported to police until the amount of cash and checks unaccounted for could be determined exactly.

The Parks and Recreation director noted that Ms. Hill, who two weeks ago "handed in her resignation," to become effective July 18, was suspended today.

A Georgia native, Ms. Hill was placed under a $500 bond pending a first appearance hearing on the embezzlement charge July 8.

Ask Reconsidering Of Emission Rule

By WARENE LEARY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

Federal officials should reconsider the tough 1981 automobile emission standard for carbon monoxide because it may be unnecessarily stringent and has certain disadvantages, says a new study.

The National Academy of Sciences report, released Wednesday, said the government can justify granting automakers extensions for meeting the carbon monoxide standard.

In any event, the report said, the government should re-examine the need for the tighter controls.

The report said overall federal ambient air quality standards for carbon monoxide may be met with a less stringent auto rule. It also noted that engineers tried to meet carbon monoxide standards, release more nitrogen oxides, making it harder to control that pollutant.

The government's methods of calculating the contribution of auto emissions to overall carbon monoxide pollution give different results than other assessments and need closer examination, it said.

The academy's National Research Council said in a report to the Environmental Protection Agency that the technology is available for automobile manufacturers to meet the 1981 standard.

But only the largest automakers now have this technology, including new types of catalytic converters, available and smaller concerns that have to depend on independent suppliers are encountering delays, said the study.

All manufacturers should be able to meet the standard by the 1983 model year, it added.

The EPA had no immediate comment on the report.

The law requires that automakers cut carbon monoxide emissions from 15 grams per mile to 7 grams per mile in 1980 models, and to decrease this to 3.4 grams per mile in 1981 models.

The same law allows manufacturers to seek exemptions for 1981 and 1982 models, and the EPA has granted waivers from the standard for 24 percent of the scheduled 1981 production so far. Other waiver requests from domestic and foreign companies are pending.

The study said the agency should reconsider the stricter 1981 standard because of problems associated with meeting it.

Another disadvantage of the stricter carbon monoxide standard is a loss in fuel economy, perhaps 2 percent in most models, the report said.

Many cars with the new carbon monoxide control devices also will be harder to start, particularly in cold weather, and subject to increased stalling, it said.

Half-Dozen States Ripped By Vicious Storms

VICTIMS OF THE STORMS — Sorry to see her mobile home destroyed, but happy to be alive, Tammy Boyer sits with her children outside the overturned trailer Wednesday in Festus, Mo. The trailer was destroyed by one of several storms which ripped through eastern Missouri Wednesday evening. The storms caused millions of dollars in damage but only minor injuries, and no deaths were reported. (AP Laserphoto)

Vicious thunderstorms and tornadoes ripped through a half dozen states, causing flash flooding that swept several children to their deaths, while the south-central states sweltered in hellish temperatures and parched farmland cracked in the northern Plains.

In Kentucky, after a day of near-100 degree temperatures, two people were killed in storms Wednesday. One man died when 60 mph winds blew a tree onto his mobile home near Cave Hollow Bay.

In Taylorsville, 7-year-old Mathew Jeffries drowned when the car he was in was swept away at a creek crossing. His mother rescued her three other children.

A thunderstorm thrashed southern Indiana, bringing more than 2 1/2 inches of rain in two hours. Officials were searching for the body of a 4-year-old Evansville girl whom they believed was swept into a street sewer as she was walking home.

On Lake Kincaid, in southern Illinois, a 7-year-old girl drowned when a heavy thunderstorm capsized the boat she and her mother were in.

At least 25 people were injured in the Illinois storms, and six counties, sustaining some $15 to $20 million in damage, were declared disaster areas by Gov. James R. Thompson.

In Carbondale, Ill., the storm toppled 40 mobile homes and tore the roof off a 24-unit apartment building. In Bremen, St. John's Church, a 98-year-old building, was struck by a twister that left only the steeple and pulpit standing.

Meanwhile, heat-related deaths in the Southwest topped 90 with 60 in Texas, 14 in Oklahoma, 16 in Arkansas and one in Missouri.

One of the latest victims was a 19-month-old Texas boy who walked away from his babysitter. His body was found a few hours later behind a home, his body temperature at 103 degrees.

In Texas, where 100 degree-plus readings have been common since mid-June, forecasters predicted the horrendous temperatures would last at least one more week possibly for the rest of July.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's a game we play. Every time the phone rings during M*A*S*H* my husband and I fake one another out. Last Monday, I won and he took the call.

The tone of his voice made me tune out Alan Alda as he gasped, "Oh, my God! You're not serious! When?" He covered the receiver and shouted to me, "Get on the extension. We're grandparents!"

My first reaction was how could that be when none of our children was married.

My second reaction was would my mother buy the old Science-Fair-Project-That-Got-Out-of-Hand theory.

The caller was our neighbor who explained that our Yorkshire terrier, who was never allowed out of the yard, got out, and her spinster poodle, who was too old to get pregnant, did, and in a Sears box in the utility room were three poodles in Yorkshire terrier bodies — a virtual billboard for Planned Parenthood.

"What month was Murray born in?" she asked.

"June."

"I should have known," she said. "A Gemini. They never finish anything they start."

"Just a minute," I said. "Are you implying that Murray is not willing to accept maternal responsibilities?"

"Who are you kidding? Every female dog in the neighborhood doesn't have her act together and has neither the stability nor the unselfishness to raise these puppies. If you will bring them over here Murray will raise them as a single parent."

The first night, we photographed them from every angle. Murray moved from one to the other getting to know them. He was going to make a wonderful father.

The second night he refused to share his food with them. When they spilled water all over his bed he crouched behind a waste can. He subsequently trampled them, bit their tails, rejected them, barked in their ears and tried to abandon them.

By the end of the week the puppies were demanding, cried all night, frolicked all day and were driving him crazy. When we returned them to the mother, our neighbor snapped, "What happened to Kramer vs. Kramer?"

Dustin Hoffman wouldn't have been such a hero either if his child hadn't been paper-trained.

Generally Applaud U.S. Court Ruling On Trials

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court decision that says the public and press have a constitutional right to attend criminal trials drew praise Wednesday from North Carolina newspaper editors and attorneys, who called it a "victory for the American public."

The court decided in a 7-1 vote that judges may conduct trials, or portions of trials, in secret only as a last resort to ensure fairness to a defendant.

The decision marked the first time the high court has given direct constitutional protection to the public's right to know what the government is doing.

"I think it's quite a victory for the American public," said Jim Wilson, executive editor of the Asheville Citizen-Times. "It will help us do a much better job in reporting judicial activities to the public.

"Previous decisions apparently were encouraging judges to close courts. We appreciate this reinforcing of the principle of the public trial," he added.

Fred Harwell, director of the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research, said the high court's opinion "should make everyone who's interested in freedom and freedom of the press, as well as freedom of the courts, very happy."

"I think that the decision is especially gratifying for those of us who live in a state where both bar and court officials have stated publicly that they favor closing trials to the public," Harwell said.

Harwell referred in part to a judge in Burke County who closed a trial in which a 9-year-old girl was to testify against a man charged with indecent exposure.

William C. Lassiter, general counsel to the North Carolina Press Association, said state laws allow the judge discretion to exclude the public and press during testimony in a trial by a prosecuting witness in rape cases.

Lassiter called Wednesday's ruling a "decision of great importance" that "will be welcomed by the news media across the United States."

Claude Sitton, editor of The News and Observer of Raleigh, expressed concern about reservations of Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger over the opening of all trials to the public.

"I can think of no overriding reason to close a trial other than in the case of a juvenile or, as North Carolina state law provides, where the prosecutrix in a rape case is giving her testimony," Sitton said.

Sitton referred to a part of the opinion saying that "absent an overriding interest... the trial of a criminal case must be open to the public."

MRS. LESLIE E. WASHBURN will be principal of Elmhurst Elementary School beginning with school year 1980-81. Her election for the principalship was approved at a special call meeting of the Greenville Board of Education held Monday night. Mrs. Washburn comes here from the Jacksonville school system.

Military Voted A Pay Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $51.9 billion weapons bill passed by the Senate includes an 11.7 percent pay raise and a host of benefits in an effort to attract more people into the all-volunteer military forces and keep career people in.

The pay increase would go into effect Oct. 1 and range from $50.50 a month for a private, who now gets $448.80, to $96.80 for a second lieutenant, who now gets $827.40, to $580 a month for a four-star general, who now gets $4,961.10.

The House Armed Services Committee has already approved a separate bill with similar benefits, the ones President Carter proposed last month aboard the aircraft carrier Nimitz.

The Senate bill's benefits include:

—$45 million in educational benefits as a one-year test program.

—An increase in the maximum enlistment bonus to $5,000 from the present $3,000 for certain skills.

—An increase in the maximum re-enlistment bonus to $20,000 from the present $15,000 for certain skills.

—A bonus of up to four months basic pay for pilots with 6 to 18 years service.

—An increase in traveling expenses to $50 a day from the present $35 for service people on temporary duty travel, and increase to $75 a day from the present $50 for travel in high cost areas.

—An increase in the reimbursement for moving a mobile home to a new duty assignment.

—New CHAMPUS military health care benefits including coverage of infant medical care, and an increase to $1,000 a month from the present $350 for care of handicapped dependents.

A 5 Percent Cut Is Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is lowering the voluntary gasoline conservation targets that each state is expected to meet for the last half of this year.

The department set a 5 percent nationwide reduction target Wednesday for the final six months of 1980. That compares with about 7 percent in the first quarter of the year and 6.7 percent in the second quarter.

Latest government figures show that gasoline consumption through June 20 actually averaged 7.7 percent less than during the same period of 1979.

The targets for the rest of the year range from no reductions in Nevada, Utah and Wyoming to 7.9 percent in Pennsylvania. North Carolina's target was set at 1,513.9 million gallons, down 4.9 percent.

The percentages for each state are not actually related to the amount of gasoline used in the states last year, but represent an estimate of what last year's figure would have been when adjusted for the effects of such things as weather and fuel shortages.

Bible School Is Completed

STOKES — The Sweet Gum Grove Bible School, Stokes, was held June 16 through June 20 with Mrs. David Hill as director. The course was entitled "Jesus, I Believe in You" with the theme "Miracles of Jesus."

Commencement was held the following Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. with each department taking part. The song leader was Mrs. Ginger Briley and Mrs. Becky Futrell served as pianist.

Bibles were given to Lisa Thompson for raising the most money for the bikathon and Paula Stillely for raising the most money for the rockathon. Both events were held to raise money in support of the Bible School. Samuel Tripp and Regina Clark were given a gift each for bringing the most visitors.

Should Be Qualified

The nomination of Ronald Reagan for president by the Republican Party is virtually certain now.

That leaves for speculation only the question of who will be his running mate.

Because of Reagan's age he has been advised that he should be particularly careful in his choice of a vice presidential candidate. The implication is that the GOP vice presidential candidate would stand a good chance of succeeding to the presidency. The advice, of course, should stand whenever a United States' vice presidential candidate is chosen. Ronald Reagan's health is no less certain than Jimmy Carter's — or for that matter, George Bush's, John Anderson's or Ted Kennedy's.

Too often in American history the vice presidential pick has been for his vote-drawing potential more so than his ability. But also too often the vice president has become president due to the death of the president by natural causes or assassination.

Some of the nation's finest outstanding presidents have come to office through the vice presidency, so too have some of the nation's worst.

The possibility of a man there that the vice president is not qualified and fully versed in governmental affairs.

Freedom Is Abridged Again

A North Carolina trade mission in Dusseldorf, West Germany suddenly found itself the object of the international sport these days — the quarters were "occupied" by German demonstrators seeking to have their friends released from jail.

It has become almost acceptable, one group detaining another in support of some cause or another. This particular take-over ended peacefully and no one was injured or arrested. We are happy to leave it at that, except that one group's freedom was abridged by another. It will happen again, somewhere, and freedom loving people should be much concerned.

Skirting The Law

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is a far more dangerous thing being done by government as a result of the passage of open meetings law in North Carolina than ever resulted from closed meetings.

That is the considered opinion of a legislative scholar who is in a unique position to observe actions of the General Assembly from the inside.

"Politicians and bureaucratic leaders alike are accomplishing their aims through confusing and misleading language."

"They are doing right out in the open — complying with the law requiring public access to meetings and documents — the things they once did in private," this expert finds.

This is true not only in state government, but in city and county governments as well. Elected officials are only beginning to recognize the potential for deceit in labeling proposals and the language within them, while fulltime professional employees have already developed considerable expertise in the method.

Schemes

Bureaucrats have long had to practice such methods in order to get past the elective bosses the schemes and programs which they sought.

Now, elected officials are engaging in the same sort of deceit, this individual believes. Language isn't the only technique.

A common practice is to overload the public with information that nobody has the time, patience, or intimate knowledge to wade through the material and come up with the hidden purpose. Another is to devise a strategy which will accomplish the goal in a series of steps which, taken one at a time, do not reveal the ultimate plan, but which, having been taken, lead to assuring that the next step must then be taken.

News media forces were brought to bear strongly in getting open meeting laws for North Carolina, and continues in revising those procedures whenever abuses occur.

As the eyes and ears of the public, shouldn't the press be able to keep tabs on this emerging method of accomplishing in the open what was once done privately?

"Not necessarily," answers our source. "If government officials have all the time they need to devise their methods while the press must try to keep tabs on a variety of governmental activities, press coverage is likely to be superficial and limited to the surface of the issue."

One of the most effective means of this is the "leak" of information. The General Assembly's staff of 150 members, without membership and not including administrative and related personnel.

It all begins with some notice of the bill getting secreted to them. Then all legislative staff members, then some go to a press conference, some will have articles in the press and a "leak" will be made. Then the bill is passed. In the past, this has been done in the "back" building, a committee of another couple of million dollars.

Most newspaper people are generalists. Government hires people with a profession in their areas.

The public and the press are on the outside when these experts talk their highly skilled, technical language and write their proposals in jargon which defies popular translation.

NATURE OF SIN Two men were standing in front of a church at the close of a Sunday morning service. "That was a good dissertation on sin we listened to this morning," remarked one of the men. "Yes," drawled the other, "but an awful nothing to do with sin." The second gentleman had made a very subtle remark. He meant that dissertations on sin can be very misleading. THEIR FATE TO BE IN SUCH HANDS!

By James J. Kilpatrick

Could Lose Old Image

WASHINGTON — If Republicans aren't careful, they have nurtured so carefully all the years, an image of business shrewdness, of being "in the know." With Ronald Reagan's call for a 10 percent cut in income taxes as an Emergency, the GOP is kicking up its heels. By George, that's life in the big game!

The interesting thing about Reagan's proposal is that it is not just Reagan's proposal. It is a specifically Republican Party proposal. Behind it were the sponsors on page 1, spouting into the sun, training time. Republican leaders, and we could marvel at the presence not only of such senatorial stalwarts as Robert Dole and Dale of Kansas, but also Perry of Illinois, and Jacoby of New York. Ah, unity! Blessed is thy holy name. The proposal a serious proposal? Yes and no. It surely is serious politics. It is indeed gorgeous politics. This is gamesmanship at the level of Wimbledon's centre court, a perfect example of how to win credit without actually losing revenue. But the question is, Will the bill pass? The answer is, no, not hardly.

The GOP's proposition scarcely had been voiced before the Washington Post was snorting and fuming. Reagan contends that a tax cut would get the economy out of its recession provide the capital on which new jobs depend, reduce unemployment and not feed inflation. That argument, snuffed the Post, "lacks verisimilitude." That means the Post doesn't believe it.

But in this area, who knows, what to believe? Ten years ago, in fiscal '70, the Treasury took in $90.4 billion in individual income taxes. By 1975 these revenues had grown to $122.4 billion. In 1979 the income tax produced $203.6 billion. Revenues in the current fiscal year are estimated at $257.8 billion. Without a change in tax rates, the individual income tax would produce $275.7 billion in 1981. By 1985, according to the Congressional Budget Office, the tax would take $590.2 billion from the people — an amount equal to a stunning 12.5 percent of the gross national product.

Under the Republican proposal, assuming no offsetting gains, individual income tax revenues would drop in 1982 by perhaps $24 billion. That's all.

Are we to believe that everything would therefore go to the bow-wow? The argument lacks

Reaction To A Re-Arming

By A. STILES COGNOM

Serious observers agree that today the United States is no longer the world's foremost military power. The Soviet Union has taken over the top spot. Moreover, the Soviet Union has built up great momentum in the research, development and production of weapons while the U.S. has closed down assembly lines and reduced the pace of research. This Soviet superiority will continue to grow for the next few years, regardless of what we do.

For example, because of decisions taken in the mid-60s and reaffirmed in every subsequent administration, the U.S. does not now have any missile warheads which would have more than a 50 percent chance of destroying a Soviet missile silo. The Soviets have about 5,500 such warheads and are building up fast. The same holds true for their anti-ballistic systems.

The Soviet Union is planning to fly a space-based laser weapon by the mid-80s. The United States, however, will not have such a weapon until the early or mid-90s.

We could reverse these and other baleful trends, of course, but to reverse trends takes time — perhaps four years at the earliest if we scrap our current laughable weapons system acquisition programs.

Let us assume for the moment that as president, Reagan decides to rebuild American military power and Congress agrees. What would the Soviets do during the four or more years before these decisions would have paid off? Would they attack the U.S. while their own chances were at their best? Fortunately, the evidence suggests that the Soviets would do no such thing. What, then, would they do?

Both Marxism and experience have taught the Soviets that Western nations are governed by complex forces and that decisions once made can be reversed if the right pressures can be brought to bear. The Soviets cannot possibly forget that in 1950 the West had crushing superiority in every category of military power except raw, very new manpower. Some Soviet artillery was still drawn by horses and Soviet infantry walked. They cannot forget that the West's economies were booming, that the West literally ruled the world, and that in the years which followed, the West threw it all away. Why shouldn't the Soviets think that the U.S. in 1981, militarily outclassed, dependent on oil from companies subject to Soviet influence, and habituated to defeat, could not be made to give up such re-arming plans? After all, political pressures alone made the U.S. accept defeat in Viet Nam — even after suffering over 50,000 dead.

The Soviets must remember that in 1968, Richard Nixon — the man who exposed Alger Hiss, the man who symbolized anti-Soviet policies, the man who had been elected President in part on his promise to be tough on the Soviets — ended up by cancelling the last vestiges of American plans to stay ahead of the Soviets, and by shipping massive amounts of American technology to Moscow. The Soviets believe that Nixon did not change his mind about the Soviet Union; rather they believe that the position of the West in the world as well as the character of American Society had changed permanently. Thus, Nixon had no choice but to reflect that change.

To the Soviet mind, the course of nations is not determined by Presidential or Congressional decisions, nor even by elections. They think that the character of the ruling classes, the complex of interests, the fundamental mentality in a nation are far more important.

Thus, faced with a decision by President Reagan to re-arm America, the Soviets would try to foster the "Nixonization" of Reagan. They and their sympathizers in the world would campaign against certain of his advisors and policies and

To the editor:

Regardless of one's religious or ethical beliefs concerning abortion, one can only be deeply saddened by the Supreme Court's decision to uphold the Constitutionality of the Hyde Amendment that restricts federal Medicaid funds for abortion.

This amendment denies to the woman who is poor and has perhaps the least control over her life the choice that is readily and safely available to the more fortunate. Forcing women to have unwanted children because of lack of funds only perpetuates poverty, ignorance and human misery.

Despite the restriction on federal funds, it is to be hoped that the State of North Carolina will continue to provide state Medicaid funds for abortion so that, for all women, the decision to have an abortion can remain where it rightly belongs: a private matter between a woman, her conscience and her physician.

Inflation Has A Constituency

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation has its supporters and don't you forget it.

On reflection, that admonition might be unnecessary in your case because, the statistics suggest, there's a very good chance you already are a supporter. Inflation, like ecology, has its constituency.

While deeply in debt, many homeowners are also deeply indebted to inflation, which has helped to double the median price of existing single-family homes since 1974. That beats the consumer price index.

"Home ownership," says the U.S. League of Savings Associations, "is one of the most distinctive characteristics of American society." Nearly 65 percent of all residences, it notes, are owner-occupied.

Most are mortgaged too. About 89 percent of consumer debt is in the form of home mortgages, according to the National Consumer Finance Association. It put the year-end 1979 figure at $859 billion.

The owner of a mortgaged house doesn't have to rely on appreciation only for his gains. If interest on his mortgage is less than the inflation rate, he automatically comes out ahead. If inflation continues, he repays in cheaper dollars.

And he gets to deduct the interest on his income taxes. In effect, he has joined forces with the enemy.

Homeowners are only part of the constituency. Almost all borrowers benefit to some extent so long as inflation continues. And almost all Americans are or have been borrowers. Some are constantly in debt.

Last year the total of consumer debt outstanding was $1,241 billion, again according to the Finance Association, and $311 billion of it was for installment loans, mainly to finance consumers goods such as cars.

Non-installment loans, mainly 30-day charge credit held by retailers and single-payment loans at commercial banks, make up the remainder. Summary: Mortgages $859 billion, installment loans $311 billion, and non-installment $71 billion. Total: $1,241 billion outstanding.

There are other supporters, often tacit ones, because few people like to declare themselves in favor of something almost all people regularly denounce. You might even include recipients of Social Security checks.

Checks now being mailed to recipients this week are swelled by 14.3 percent "cost-of-living" increases — increases based on the consumer price index, which often overstates retirees' cost-of-living increases.

Business often benefits from inflation, particularly for products in strong demand and short supply. Collectibles of various sorts — art, stamps, coins, gold, to name a few — are beneficiaries. Oil might be housing often is. Even Japanese small cars can sometimes be included.

Government can't be excluded from the list. In fact, it is considered by many to be the prime cause and the No. 1 beneficiary since politicians, it is observed, create inflation with spending programs designed to win votes, and win more votes by denouncing the result.

For years the federal government sold U.S. Savings Bonds to patriotic buyers at yields far below the rate of inflation, thus helping to finance itself with cheap money. It's deficit spending further worsened inflation and permitted it to pay back with increasingly cheap dollars.

"A substantial constituency for inflation appears to have developed in the United States," said John Paulus, vice president of Goldman Sachs, in an essay published this week.

The big obstacle to overcoming inflation, he suggests, is middle class indebtedness, particularly for houses. For some, he says, "a decline in inflation and income growth would represent an intolerable burden."

Prompt Action On Truck Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just one day after President Carter signed a bill to de-regulate the trucking industry, the Interstate Commerce Commission has taken the first step toward making it easier for new firms to enter the business and removing restrictions on those already on the road.

The commission issued eight new rules Wednesday and chairman Darius W. Gaskin Jr. said more than 25 other new or modified rules are expected in the new few months.

Under the changes approved unanimously by the commission Wednesday, truckers no longer will have to file long, burdensome applications detailing the service they plan to offer, and the applications can be expected to be approved or rejected in half the time it now takes.

The average time for the ICC to reach an initial decision on an application for new operating rights in 1979 was 378 days. The new law says that now must be accomplished in 180 days, and Gaskin said it might be done in half that time in cases where an applicant has no opposition.

A trucker also no longer will have to go into detail on what goods are to be hauled and no longer will have to list each stop on the route. The new rules require only a general description of both the freight and the service area.

campaign for others. "World opinion" would also play its role. American businessmen with Soviet trade interests could be counted on to bring pressure. But the greatest pressure would come from within the American political system itself which by now contains enough of that certain element who simply cannot bear the prospect of actually fighting the Soviet Union. The Soviets would, of course, raise the prospects of fighting by a series of "tests" — perhaps the occupation of the Iranian or Saudi oilfields.

The odds are that even if the Reagan administration were to win several of the "tests" and proceed upon the course of re-armament, the Soviets would not quickly abandon their hope of "Nixonizing". They do not want a fight with the U.S. if they can win their objects in another way. Perhaps by the time the Soviets realized that their strategy of "Nixonizing" was in vain, the U.S. would have regained the ability to fight, survive and even able to win a war against the USSR. War would thus be averted.

The bidding:
North East South West

Simply reciting the bare facts about the play of a hand might make it seem that bridge is a bland and unexciting game. Follow South's play on this hand see if you spot the moments that make this hand worth recording. Some of the plays by the defenders should also be noted.

The bidding requires no explanation. After North opened the bidding with one no trump, South simply bid what he expected to make.

West led the top of his broken heart sequence

Declarer played low from dummy and East followed suit with the three. West shifted to a diamond. Declarer won in his hand and ran the ten of clubs. East took the king and returned a heart to the eight, nine and ace. Declarer cashed two high clubs, discarding his losing heart, then came back to his hand with a heart ruff. Next he tried the spade finesse, but that lost. However, the contract was safe.

The aficionado can appreciate the points of technique involved. First, declarer made a good play at trick one when he held up the ace of hearts, thereby forcing West to shift or else lose a trick in hearts. With the jack, East would not have discouraged hearts by playing his lowest card in the suit, and West correctly shifted to a low diamond.

Declarer was still faced with the prospect of losing, in all, two heart tricks and one in each black suit. If either black king was onside, the contract was assured. But what if both black kings were offside?

If declarer takes the spade finesse when he is in his hand with the ace of diamonds at trick two, East will win and return a heart, forcing out the ace. Now when East gets back in with the king of clubs, he can play another heart to defeat the contract.

Declarer foresaw this possibility and correctly took the club finesse first. Though it lost, he was able to get rid of his second heart loser on a good club, and then he could fall back on the trump finesse for an overtrick.

Suspected A Mafia Role

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of singer Mario Lanza, who died in Italy in 1959, believed her husband was killed by underworld figures because he backed out of a concert planned by reputed mob kingpin, Charles "Lucky" Luciano, according to an upcoming book.

The New York Daily News reported today it had obtained a manuscript copy of "Lanza, His Tragic Life," co-authored by close friend Terry Robinson for Prentice-Hall.

According to the News, the authors say Lanza, who fled to Italy when the federal government sought back taxes, was hounded by underworld figures who wanted him to sing for them. He agreed to a charity concert at Luciano's urging, but missed a rehearsal and was told that if he failed to perform he would "never again perform in public."

Lanza became frightened and checked into a hospital, complaining of leg pains. The day after the concert, which went on without him and was a failure, Lanza was found dead, an empty intravenous bottle feeding air into him. The chauffeur who found him and the nurse disappeared.

Had No Time For Channels

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday he asked the Council of State to provide start-up money for a proposed microelectronics center because "we have absolutely not had the time to do it any other way."

Hunt obtained a commitment from the Council of State last Friday for $972,000 in state contingency funds to start the center. The action came two days after the General Assembly adjourned.

In an interview Wednesday, Hunt said the council's appropriation was intended merely to help defray start-up costs for the center, which is expected to cost between $18 million and $22 million. He said the next General Assembly would have an opportunity to decide whether to commit more substantial funding for the project.

"I suspect the state is going to have to pay for the facility and pay part of the cost of equipment and personnel," Hunt said.

Hunt said the council was acting on precedents established in 1975 and 1978, when it appropriated a total of $400,000 to help pay for construction of the National Humanities Center at the park. He said both centers are important to the economy and the state's future.

The governor said General Electric Co., which is considering the park as the site of a major integrated circuit research facility, had expressed a need for such a center as the microelectronics center, which could train research personnel for the GE facility.

NAACP 'Warning' In Its Kennedy Ovation

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — NAACP convention delegates say their enthusiastic welcome for Sen.

Edward Kennedy should serve as a warning to President Carter that blacks who once supported him are unhappy with his leadership.

for Carter in 1976. But she not only voted for Kennedy in the New York primary this year, she also worked in Kennedy's New York campaign.

Reading Program Is Success

According to Carolyn Ferebee, community schools coordinator for Greenville City Schools, the first session of the Community Schools Summer Reading Enrichment Program has been an excellent example of the schools and the community working together for progress.

Kennedy was widely cheered during his appearance Wednesday afternoon. "To me, it's a protest," said Richard Mills of Hammond, Ind., who tried to explain Kennedy's reception. "It's a warning that he (Carter) will have to do better or come up with some definite commitments to win black support."

"The man has done nothing but promise," she said of Carter. "Somewhere along the line his Christianity has gotten off base where the truth is concerned."

In 1976, more than 90 percent of the 6 million blacks who voted gave their support to President Carter.

Carter will take a turn politicking at the convention Friday night. Rep. John Anderson, the independent candidate for president, was favorably received when he appeared at the convention Tuesday night.

But few listeners seemed convinced that Anderson has a good chance of disrupting the traditional two-way race for president.

"I think he's a spoiler," said Vanessa Gatliff of Waterbury, Conn. "A vote for Anderson is a vote for Reagan."

Reagan declined to appear at the convention.

A few delegates said they cheered Kennedy on despite their allegiance to Carter.

"I think his speech was wonderful," said Elizabeth Turner of Orlando, Fla., "but it was not enough for me to change and want to vote for Kennedy. I've always supported Carter and I always will. I can't say he is doing everything I would like, but I do have faith in Carter."

Suspended Sentence Is Ordered

Janet Eva Zurav, 26 of 3007 Briarcliff Dr., charged with manslaughter and driving left of center in connection with a January 28 collision - described as an alleged suicide attempt - on U.S. 264 Business, west of the Dansey Road intersection, was given a suspended prison sentence in Pitt County Superior Court yesterday as part of a plea-bargaining agreement.

Miss Zurav, released from Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro a few days before the incident, had allegedly tried to drown herself, and tried to kill herself by lying in the highway earlier in the day.

Later, driving west on U.S. 264, her car swerved across the center line of the highway and collided head-on with a car driven by Anne Ball Rhodes of Kinston, who was killed in the crash.

Miss Zurav and a passenger in the Rhodes car, Drucilla Husey Hearn of Kinston, were injured in the crash. Assistant District Attorney Tom Haigwood said, "It would appear that she ran headlong into that car with the intent of trying to kill herself."

Judge Napoleon Barefoot gave Miss Zurav a 12 to 18 month sentence, suspended it and placed her on probation for one year after the defendant entered a plea of no contest to a misdemeanor charge of death by motor vehicle. Judge Barefoot also ordered that Miss Zurav continue psychiatric treatment.

Haigwood said the plea was negotiated because the defendant had a good case for an insanity defense on the manslaughter charge.

Mrs. Rhodes, a former Lenoir County school teacher, was chosen the outstanding young educator in 1973 and named outstanding elementary school teacher of America in 1974 and 1975.

Ass'n President Urges Prayer

The Rev. Stewart LaNeave, president of the local ministerial association, today urged local pastors to support efforts of the Pitt County Branch of the National Association of Colored People in a "month of local prayer," program, designed to "bring about community unity and trust... by turning to God for help."

In personally endorsing their efforts for having a month of prayer for unity and trust, LaNeave urged local ministers to schedule a prayer service at their churches, sometime during the day of July 11.

SERVICE SUNDAY

There will be a service Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Patrick Chapel FWB Church in Greene County.

The Best family of New York and New Jersey will honor Raymond Best of Greenville in a birthday musical.

The pastor, the Rev. W. Joyner and the Best family invites the public to attend.

Large Salary Jump No Match For Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) - Are you keeping up with your co-workers when it comes to money?

A government report released Tuesday gives white-collar workers a chance to check their standing without asking a lot of personal questions.

Did you get a raise last year? The Bureau of Labor Statistics said that salaries of white-collar workers went up an average of 9.1 percent in the 12 months from March 1979 to March 1980.

That was the biggest increase in the 20 years during which the bureau has been collecting this kind of information. The previous high - 9 percent - came in the year that ended in March 1975.

But the record rise wasn't enough to offset inflation. The Consumer Price Index went up 14.7 percent from March 1979 to March 1980. Each dollar you had this March would buy only as much as 87 cents would have bought a year earlier.

Exactly how much are you making? The bureau report, which covered 23.3 million white-collar workers who are employed in the private sector, listed average starting and top-level salaries for selected occupations. Here are some of them.

Accountants, $14,958 to $50,073; auditors, $14,858 to $26,782; attorneys, $20,911 to $60,641; buyers, $14,861 to $27,777; job analysts, $16,056 to $26,315; personnel directors, $24,719 to $49,730; chemists, $16,200 to $45,883; engineers, $18,411 to $50,079; drafters, $10,216 to $21,690; computer operators, $10,164 to $19,511; accounting clerks, $8,806 to $15,358; file clerks, $7,889 to $11,026; personnel clerks, $9,591 to $19,837; secretaries, $11,296 to $17,132; stenographers, $11,899 to $13,876; typists, $9,161 to $11,010.

Would you gain by switching jobs? An earlier government report showed that blue-collar workers fared slightly better than their white-collar colleagues in the 12 months that ended in March. Their salaries went up an average of 9.4 percent. Service employees, however, didn't do so well, managing an average 12-month raise of only 7.6 percent.

There are variations within the job categories. In the white-collar area, for example, the government said Tuesday that average salaries for professional, administrative and technical employees went up 9.3 percent from March 1979 to March 1980. Average salaries for clerical workers were up 8.8 percent in the same period.

If you really want to get ahead, go into show business. The government report didn't cite the entertainment area, but David Harrop, author of "America's Paychecks," said recently that, "Entertainment is the best paid field, decade... People are making just as much now as they did in the old days."

'Not Guilty' On One Charge

A Pitt County Superior Court jury yesterday found Alton Warren, head of the Inspections Department for the City of Greenville, not guilty of transporting a bottle of liquor with the seal broken in the passenger compartment of a city-owned car.

A mistrial was declared on a separate charge of driving under the influence when the foreman reported to the court that the jury was split 8 to 4 and could not reach a verdict, after deliberating for more than two hours.

Warren was arrested December 1, 1979, by Greenville police, who testified that after the vehicle was stopped, they found a bottle of whiskey with the seal broken in the passenger compartment of the auto.

According to testimony, a Breathalyzer test was administered and a reading of 13 percent blood alcohol content was registered (.10 percent is considered legally intoxicated).

Warren testified that he was not drunk and that he did not know the liquor bottle was in the passenger compartment.

An employee of the Inspections Department, Lester Brown, told the court that he had placed the liquor in the car without Warren's knowledge.

Warren was suspended for five days without pay following his arrest.

A spokesman for the district attorney's office said the driving under the influence charge would be re-scheduled for trial, while defense attorney Marvin Blount Jr. said he would seek to have the charge dismissed for lack of evidence.

El Salvador Guerrillas Rob, Threaten And Killing

By GORDON D. MOTT
Associated Press Writer
LAS VUELTAS, El Salvador AP — Leftist guerrillas are robbing, threatening and sometimes killing peasants in these remote mountains to get food and coerce recruits for their drive to overthrow El Salvador's moderate military government, according to refugees who say they fled to escape.

"They stole all my corn and pointed a gun at me and said if I didn't join up with them, they would kill me," said Jose Domingo Guardado, 40.

"I barely grow enough to feed my family. I don't agree with what they are doing, but I couldn't afford to give them anything anyway."

Guardado and his family of 10 are among 1,500 refugees in Las Vueltas, a village near the Honduran border 30 miles northeast of San Salvador, the capital. He said he abandoned his home in Conacaste, about a day's walk from here, in the middle of the night for refuge in the dingy mud buildings here and the protection of a 12-man national guard outpost.

The guerrillas use the mountain area's remoteness and a nearby demilitarized zone to set up camps from which they attack military patrols. The peasants say they became alienated by the rebels' terror attacks on them and have turned their villages into ghost towns, depriving the guerrillas of a base of support.

Three leftist guerrilla organizations — the People's Revolutionary Army, the Popular Liberation Force and the National Resistance — operate in the countryside, but officials said they could not determine which is near here. The guerrillas seek to oust the junta that replaced the rightist government of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero last October, then launched a program of land reform and nationalized the banks in the spring.

The refugees say the guerrillas are getting more desperate.

"They robbed 300 colones ($20) from a house on the outskirts of town here and threatened to rape the woman," said one woman. "They are coming down from the hills around here every night now to try to frighten us."

Another woman said the guerrillas hid in the hills around her village of La Laguna during the day and as soon as night fell sneaked in to terrorize the people.

"They stole from us at gunpoint. They threatened us or our families and said they needed us to join up with them," said the woman. "None of us support them. We are here to be near the national guard."

"Five men went back to their village to get some belongings. But when they were coming back here, the guerrillas were waiting in the dense woods and ambushed them. One man was killed."

The woman, who asked that her name not be used, said some of her neighbors may have joined or supported the guerrillas.

In other parts of the country, leftists claim it is the national guard, El Salvador's army, and right-wing paramilitary terrorists who are killing and harassing peasants. Some of the claims have been proven true and even the government speaks of army "excesses."

But the Chalatenango department, where Las Vueltas is located, benefits from a man who some officials say is the "only moderate army field commander in El Salvador." Lt. Col. Rene Arbaiza says he promotes

"civic actions" by his troops. The peasants' lack of fear of the national guard shows he apparently has been successful in building confidence in the soldiers stationed here.

"Every house has refugees staying in it," said one local leader who asked not to be identified. "Everyone is helping the refugees. The refugees have been telling us how the guerrillas treat them. We don't want the same thing to happen here."

Two school buildings, a crumbling convent, a warehouse and the local police commander's house are filled with refugees. They cook on outdoor campfires and sleep in hammocks. The children play in the muddy plaza. The women sit on porches or make corn tortillas. The men sit silently under the shade trees on the edge of the plaza.

Food is critically short, but the government has been supplying rice, beans, corn and oil.

"We don't have a lot of food here," said Guardado. "But no one is starving."

With the planting season already past, the refugees face months of dependence on government food donations. But most say they won't go back to their farms until the guerrillas are crushed. Col. Arbaiza wouldn't speculate when that might be.

Sony Reports Development

NEW YORK AP — The Sony Corp. of America says it has developed a single-unit video camera and cassette recorder that will revolutionize the home movie industry.

Sony demonstrated a prototype of the compact 44-pound camera Tuesday. The "Video Movie" records sound and picture on a small magnetic tape cassette which needs no developing and can be played back immediately on a television set.

Akio Morita, Sony's chairman and chief executive officer, said the new handheld system would be on the retail market in 1985, adding he hopes it would cost less than $1,000.

An Old-Fashioned 4th At Village In Heartland

CONNER PRAIRIE, Ind. (AP) — If it's an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration you want — truly old-fashioned — drop in at this village in the nation's heartland.

Kids run sack races, men pitch horseshoes, women turn suckling pigs over open fires. Guns boom with the smell of black powder, politicians harangue, charlatans work the crowd.

Above it all, Old Glory flies — 13 stripes and 26 stars. "It is our biggest day of the year," a resident explains.

Conner Prairie Pioneer Settlement is one of those living museums, as they are called, in which the residents assume the characters of people who lived in another period. They dress, cook, build, work and play as if actually living in that era.

"It always surprises me how the visitors fit right in with the village life," said Mrs. Barbara Abel, a member of the museum staff. "Last year, one of our people was making a political speech on behalf of William Henry Harrison and a visitor stood up and argued with him on behalf of Martin Van Buren."

The Harrison-Van Buren presidential campaign was in 1836, the year the museum village is frozen in time.

Typically, the museum research staff, in its passion for authenticity, has troubled to dig up 1836 campaign speeches. When a Van Buren partisan, orating from the porch of the general store, called Harrison "The hero of the rear guard," and his opponent counters that Van Buren "swaggers like a crow in a gutter," the listener can know that that's the way it was.

No village of Conner Prairie actually existed in 1836, or at any time. It was constructed, Mrs. Abel explains, as a typical frontier village of 1836 might have appeared — homes, shops, schools, farm buildings.

It is built around the authentic home of a prosperous pioneer trader, William Conner, who did exist.

Eli Lilly, the Indian industrialist, took an interest in Conner and his home and financed its restoration. The museum, 20 miles north of Indianapolis, is now an affiliate of Earlham College.

"Last year, 4,000 visitors came for the Fourth of July and we expect as many this year," Mrs. Abel said. "They bring picnic lunches and join the games and the fun and the spelling bees."

"That's right, spelling bees. Our research shows spelling bees were a big thing on Independence Day 1836. We hold them in the schoolhouse. We take the words from Noah Webster's 1831 American Spelling Book. "We start the day with rifle shooting, using muzzle loaded guns, then the circuit rider leads the invocation, then the Declaration of Independence is read, then the games start.

"A traveling phrenologist will be in town. He reads the bumps on people's heads. A lot of people took them seriously in 1836, but ours is an obvious charlatan which is usually the case. "Last year, the townspeople threw him in the horse trough."

gain today in the closing session of a holiday-shortened week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.84 to 879.86 by noontime. Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In the economic news, the government reported that the unemployment rate declined to 7.7 percent of the workforce in June from 7.8 the month before. The seasonally adjusted data came as something of a surprise to analysts who had been expecting the rate to go as high as 8.5.

Separately, the Federal Reserve announced that it would begin dismantling the remainder of the credit controls it imposed last March, saying that those measures were no longer needed.

Oil stocks were among the leaders of the advance. Gulf Oil gained 1/4 to 42 1/2; Mobil 1 1/4 to 76 1/4, and Exxon 3/4 to 68.

Airline stocks were strong for the second straight session. UAL rose 3/4 to 18 1/2; Pan American 3/4 to 5 1/4; Eastern Air Lines 1/2 to 9 1/4, and U.S. Air 1/2 to 12 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index rose .28 to 66.44. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.41 at 303.75.

Volume on the Big Board came to 19.34 million shares at noontime, against 19.52 million at the same point Wednesday.

Fuel Charge To Be Down In June

Virginia Electric and Power Co. announced that it reduced fuel charges for its 13 North Carolina municipal customers by 7.5 percent in June, dropping charges from $5.91 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours in May to $5.46 in June. Vepco said that fuel charges represent one portion of municipal customers' bills. When fuel costs increase or decrease, the fuel portion of the bill rises or falls accordingly, it was noted.

Randy McIver, Vepco vice president-Southern Division, said that the reduction continues a trend of fuel charge decreases since February, when costs were $17.06 per 1,000 kwh. He added that fuel charges have been reduced by some 68 percent since then.

In addition to Greenville, Vepco's municipal customers in North Carolina are Washington, Elizabeth City, Edenton, Tarboro, Belhaven, Enfield, Hertford, Scotland Neck, Hamilton, Hobgood, Robersonville and Windsor. Greenville Utilities Commission recently notified Vepco that, beginning May 1 of 1981, the city will no longer purchase all its wholesale power from the Richmond-based utility.

Store Break-In Is Investigated

Greenville police this morning were investigating a break-in at the J. C. Penney Co. at Pitt Plaza, according to Chief Glenn Cannon. Cannon said thieves gained entrance to the building by breaking the glass from a door opening onto the mall area at the shopping center.

He said an undetermined amount of merchandise, including a quantity of firearms and watches, were taken. The break-in was reported shortly after 9 a.m.

PEKING (AP) — A fishing boat from Nationalist China saved a Communist Chinese boat from being blown out to sea in a storm after its rudder was broken, the People's Daily reported today in Peking. The communist newspaper did not name the Taiwanese craft but said it halted its own fishing and towed the crippled craft close to the mainland and waited until a ship came out to bring in the disabled boat.

Borg, In Semifinals, Admits He Has Pressure

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg let his iceman mask drop for just an instant.

"The pressure?" He asked, "sure I'm under pressure. It is always the other guys who have nothing to lose."

"It worries me sometimes. Maybe the other guy doesn't care and plays out of his mind. If I have a bad day that is it."

The Swede, usually devoid of all emotion, gave a rare insight into his hopes and fears ahead of defeating sixth-seeded American Gene Mayer 7-5, 6-3, 7-5 Wednesday to move into the Wimbledon semifinals.

Borg, the top seed who is bidding for his fifth successive Wimbledon title, never looked in the slightest danger against Mayer, yet felt the match was tougher than it looked.

"It wasn't easy," he admitted. "This was my best match of the tournament but it was a much more difficult match than the score suggested."

Borg is delighted with his current form.

"I am serving well and returning much better than I was," he said. "I'm very consistent every year — in fact that is probably the strongest part of my game. I always feel confident, and most of the time I play well, but I know I must keep being consistent. I can't afford an off day."

Borg was to meet unseeded American Brian Gottfried in the semifinals Thursday. Gottfried, who has yet to drop a set in the championship, beat No. 13 seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland 6-4, 7-6, 6-2 Wednesday.

"Brian has started to play very well," said Borg. "He is playing with a lot of confidence and that is the most important thing."

Gottfried's career went through a major slump last year, but he has returned to peak form over the past weeks.

The other semifinal will be between second-seeded John McEnroe and the winner of the outstanding quarterfinal between American left-handers Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner, last year's defeated finalist and the No. 5 seed here.

No. 3 Connors moved into the last eight by ousting big-serving Hank Pfister 6-4, 6-7, 6-1, 7-6 in a match that was halted Tuesday night when darkness fell.

Connors is less than happy that his match schedule is trailing behind.

"I now have to play Thursday and Friday if I'm to get to the final," moaned Connors, who has been in a good mood throughout the tournament.

"I'll either be in great shape or dead."

"I'm just caught up in the backlog and it's not my fault."

Connors was more happy with his own form.

"I hit the ball very well out there," he said. "My serve wasn't all that good but I sometimes frightened him by coming to the net on my second serve."

McEnroe, the belligerent New Yorker who has become the new idol of the Wimbledon crowds, scored a straightforward 6-3, 6-2, 6-2 victory over his friend and doubles partner Peter Fleming to earn his semifinal spot.

"Peter has never done much on grass, but he has the potential," said McEnroe. "If he's on, he's tough. It's lucky for me he was off."

Evonne Goolagong of Australia, the 29-year-old 1971 champion, had the Center Court crowd on its feet when she defeated No. 2 seed Tracy Austin 6-3, 0-6, 6-4 to advance to the women's singles final.

The fourth-seeded Australian, always a popular figure here, was cheered through every point against 17-year-old Austin, who had been tabbed as the player most likely to stop Martina Navratilova from taking her third straight women's title.

Goolagong will be playing her 18th major championship final Friday when she meets either Navratilova or Chris Evert Lloyd.

Navratilova made it to the semis by scoring a dramatic 7-6, 1-6, 10-8 victory over 36-year-old Billie Jean King.

The fifth-seeded King served for the match in the final set and then staved off eight match points before finally going under. In the second set — the match was carried over from Tuesday, when Navratilova won the first set — King won 20 of the first 23 points and was in total control.

The third set was tight all the way, with each having chances to put the other away.

Navratilova, the 23-year-old Czech-born left-handed power player, said:

"I couldn't believe it. Every time I needed just one point she kept getting her first serve in. My serve was atrocious and she served well and kept hitting winners off my passing shots."

"I could feel my heart beating in the final set."

"That was the biggest choke in the world," said King, a six-time singles champ and winner of 20 titles overall here.

"I don't think Martina is playing well," she announced. "If Chris plays well she could beat her."

"I have been spotty," said Navratilova. "I haven't played as well as I can, but I'm certainly playing as well as I was last year. I make the shots when I have to.

"I'll have to go for it against Chris. If I don't she will pass me."

Lloyd, Wimbledon champion in 1974 and 1976, had a rest day Wednesday. She has a 25-12 record against Navratilova.

ROCKY MOUNT — East Carolina University's baseball team gained a bit of revenge for its last loss, downing N.C. Wesleyan last night, 8-6. The Bishops had downed the Pirates on Tuesday night on the ECU home field.

Bill Wilder hurled the victory for the Pirates, highlighted by a first inning grand slam homer by Mike Sage, his second of the season, and his seventh round-tripper.

After that initial inning, the Pirates led the rest of the way, holding off several late stage rallies by the Bishops.

Wilder, who remained unbeaten during summer league action, had some problems, giving up ten hits, walking four and striking out eight.

By the time the first frame saw the dust settled, Wesleyan's starting pitcher Luke Challenor was headed for the showers and the Pirates were solidly ahead.

With one out, Kelly Robinette walked and Todd Hendley doubled, putting runners on second and third. John Hallow also walked, leading them up for Sage.

The big designated hitter responded with a blow out of the park, putting the Pirates into a 4-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the outh, when East Carolina added four more runs for an 8-0 advantage. Robert Wells led off the inning with a walk and Mike Sorrell singled. Both moved up on a Robinette sacrifice. Hendley then singled in Wells, and Hallow reached on an error, scoring Sorrell. A wild pitch brought in Hendley, and Hallow scored on a hit by Charlie Smith.

Wesleyan finally got into the act in the bottom of the fifth inning, scoring twice. Tweetie Thorbes was hit by a pitch and stole both second and third. Cary Griffin walked, who then stole second. Moochie Medley brought in Thorbes with a sacrifice fly, and Ritcher doubled, driving in Griffin.

In the seventh, Wesleyan added two more, cutting the gap to 8-4. Thorbes singled and again stole both second and third. Griffin walked, stealing second. Medley also walked, loading the bases. Then, after Wilder had struck out two, Dan Hilling singled in both runners.

The final two came in the eighth. Voight singled and Thorbes doubled. Both then came across when Medley doubled.

Hendley and Smith led the Pirate hitting with three each, while Thorbes had three and W.J. Long had two for Wesleyan.

The Pirates are idle until Monday when they host the University of North Carolina in a doubleheader at Harrington Field.

Yarborough Captures Firecracker Pole Slot

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Nobody is coming right out and saying that Cale Yarborough is cheating, but neither is anyone saying he isn't.

"I can't really believe that guy," said Darrell Waltrip, rolling his eyes skyward and echoing the sentiments of most of Yarborough's competitors.

"He keeps coming up with a couple miles an hour more than anybody else. I sure don't know where he's getting it."

Yarborough had just barreled his Oldsmobile around the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway at 194.670 to win the pole position for Friday's Firecracker 400 Grand National stock car race.

That made it seven poles this season and six in the last seven races for the Timmonsville, S.C., driver.

"I know people are talking and wondering about what we're doing, and that's fine," Yarborough said, a smile playing around his lips. "We're not doing anything tricky. The engines are just really putting out horsepower and the chassis is really good. That's all you need."

Yarborough, the only man ever to win three consecutive NASCAR championships, shrugs off the veiled hints about cheating.

It was just three weeks ago at Riverside, where Yarborough won his record-tying fifth straight pole, that the burgeoning talk led NASCAR officials to tear down the race car.

"That doesn't bug me because I know we're legal. But it's aggravating because it's so much work for the crew," Yarborough said. "They know we couldn't afford to get caught cheating."

Winning the most pole positions during the year is worth $25,000.

"That's a lot of money, so the poles are more important to us than they used to be," the 40-year-old driver explained.

"But my team is just working real strong. We're not doing anything special to qualify. The engine I used today (Wednesday) is the engine I'll use in the race."

David Pearson, driving with a cracked engine head that his crew didn't have time to fix, was the second fastest qualifier Wednesday, posting a lap of 193.532. That was more than 1.1 mph slower than Yarborough's top lap.

Defending champion Neil Bonnett was third at 193.133, with former Firecracker qualifying recordholder Buddy Baker next at 193.021.

Waltrip, who is second to Yarborough with four pole victories this year, was fifth at 191.738, followed by Benny Parsons — the man who broke Yarborough's streak — at 191.481.

Richard Petty, the only seven-time NASCAR champion, had his 43rd birthday celebration spoiled when his 187.982 qualifying run failed to put him among the 20 spots decided Wednesday. He'll be in the 40-car field, but will be starting among the also-rans for the first time in four years.

Yarborough's speed failed to approach the track qualifying record of 196.049, set by Baker prior to the 1979 Daytona 500. However, the speeds in the July races generally are much slower than those in February because of the summer heat.

"The heat definitely takes something away from you," Yarborough said. "And it will take its toll in the race, too."

He said the driver sits in temperatures up to 150-160 degrees during summer races.

"It can really be brutal because it just drains you completely by the time you're done," the polesitter added. "And it makes things a lot more difficult now than it used to."

"The competition is so keen now that you might have four or five cars right there at the end. Up until a few years ago, if you were winning the race, you'd probably have half a lap on everybody else late in the race. Now you've got to have those reflexes there at the end."

Almost everybody has something to help with the heat problem.

Some carry ice in their pockets or use head-cooling helmets. Bobby Allison, who qualified 14th for Friday's race, said his crew is putting in a special duct to blow fresh air on him as he drives.

Legion Opens Second Round

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team will open a best-of-three series with Rocky Mount Friday at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

The series is the second round of the Area I East playoffs. Wilson is hosting Williamston in game one of the other semifinal round.

Play will switch to Rocky Mount on Saturday night for the second round of play, with a third game, if needed, scheduled for Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Williamston will host Saturday night's second game of its series, with the third game, if needed, returning to Wilson.

The two winners will collide in a best-of-seven series to determine the league's representative in further state championship competition.

Pitt won the regular season title with an 11-3 record, but lost both of its meetings with the Rocky Mount club, which finished 8-6 and tied for third place with Goldsboro. Pitt swept last place Washington in two games to advance into the second round, while Rocky Mount beat Snow Hill two games to one, winning the final two contests of the series, both in the final frame of play.

Williamston is the lone upset winner of the final four, having topped Goldsboro, the third-seeded team in the playoffs, two games to one.

Braves Hand Astros Second Straight Lopsided Loss, 13-4

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
The Houston Astros left the red-hot weather in Texas — only to run into a red-hot team in Atlanta.

As if playing "can you top this" with themselves, the Braves followed their 13-4 triumph Tuesday night with a 14-0 rout Wednesday. In winning the first three games of the four-game series that concludes tonight, the Braves have amassed 45 hits and 32 runs against the National League's West Division leaders.

The results left Braves Manager Bobby Cox low-key and Houston Manager Bill Virdon shaking his head.

"A play here or there and they would have been out of several innings," said Cox, noting all of Atlanta's runs Wednesday night — including the seven in the third inning — had come with two out. It was more of the same for the Braves, who waited until two were out to score their 13 runs Tuesday.

"We just haven't gotten the outs, I guess. That's all I can say," offered Virdon. "They're hitting the ball well."

And often, the Braves collected 18 hits after getting 15 Tuesday.

"I've never seen this since I've been in baseball," said Virdon. "This is about as rough as you can have it."

In the other NL games Wednesday, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Diego Padres 10-7, the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Francisco Giants 6-2, the Montreal Expos downed the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1, the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5 in 11 innings and the New York Mets topped the Chicago Cubs 3-1.

While the Braves were mounting their hit parade on a succession of four Houston pitchers, the Astros managed just five off Phil Niekro, who also had a two-run single in Atlanta's big third.

"I can't recall having ever pitched with a 14-run lead in the ninth inning before," said Niekro, who recorded his second shutout and eighth complete game of the season. The knuckleballer also struck out seven to raise his career total 2,488, and pass Don Drysdale for 16th place on the all-time strikeout list.

Bob Horner had four runs batted in, including a three-run homer in the fifth inning, and Chris Chambliss had three RBI as the Braves beat the Astros for the fifth time in their last six home games against Houston this season.

Luis Gomez, Chambliss and Niekro had two-run hits in the third. All seven runs were unearned because of an error by Houston third baseman Enos Cabell — with two outs, naturally.

Dodgers 10, Padres 7
Bill Russell keyed a four-run fifth inning with a two-run single, carrying Los Angeles to its comeback victory and helping the Dodgers survive a five-for-five performance by San Diego's Dave Winfield.

Winfield's performance included a three-run homer in the first and four singles, but all was wasted by shoddy San Diego pitching, according to Padres Manager Jerry Coleman.

"Both sides had rotten pitching, but ours was a little worse," said the manager. "I can't take the fact that we scored seven runs and weren't even in it."

Reds 6, Giants 2
Cincinnati right-hander Frank Pastore smothered San Francisco on six hits, dropped his earned run average to 3.04 and named himself a natural replacement for the Giants' Vida Blue on the all-star team.

"If they're going to pick a replacement for Vida, I can't see it being anyone else," said Pastore, 10-4.

Blue was named to the team but was placed on the disabled list Wednesday because of a herniated cervical disc in his left shoulder.

Ken Griffey and Dan Driessen backed Pastore with three hits apiece and Driessen reached base five consecutive times.

Expos 6, Phillies 1
Montreal's Steve Rogers helped himself with an RBI single in the second inning and the Expos got some unexpected help from the major leagues' winningest pitcher in beating the Phillies.

Steve Carlton, 13-4, contributed to his own undoing by throwing a pair of run-scoring wild pitches. The first came in the third inning, allowing Andre Dawson to score the go-ahead run, and the other helped make it 3-1 in the fifth.

Carlton did, however, strike out five to raise his career total to 2,829 and take over eighth place on the all-time list. He moved ahead of Ferguson Jenkins.

Cardinals 7, Pirates 5
St. Louis shortstop Garry Templeton preserved a 5-5 tie with a circus catch in the ninth inning and teammate Ken Oberkfell snapped it in the 11th as the Cardinals trimmed Pittsburgh.

With one out and Pirates runners at first and second, Templeton ran down an apparent game-winning bloop hit by Omar Moreno. He made a lunging, waist-high catch and turned it into a double play.

"That was one of the greatest plays I have ever seen," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, who will handle the NL all stars next Tuesday but already has been told — by Templeton — that Templeton is not willing to play as a reserve.

Mets 3, Cubs 1
John Pacella and Neil Allen combined on a two-hitter and Lee Mazzilli hit a first-inning homer to carry the Mets to victory. Pacella pitched 7-3 innings but gave way to Allen after an 18-minute rain delay.

Allen recorded his 14th save of the season, second only to Chicago's Bruce Sutter in the NL.

It is absolutely not true that Ross Baumgarten has to pitch a no-hitter to win a ballgame. He has to pitch a one-hitter.

And that's what Chicago's hard-luck left-hander did Wednesday night, limiting California to Rod Carew's leadoff single in the seventh inning plus one walk as the White Sox nipped the Angels 1-0.

Still, Baumgarten almost earned no better than a stand-off, but the White Sox squeezed out an unearned run off Frank Tanana in the seventh inning. Only once since Baumgarten's only previous victory way back on April 13 have they scored more than one run in his behalf.

"I figured we'd score sometime, somehow," said Baumgarten, who has been supported with just nine runs in his last 762-3 innings.

Baumgarten retired the first 17 California batters and allowed only one walk before Carew spoiled his no-hit bid with a bouncing single up the middle. He then set down the last nine batters. Tanana allowed only four hits and Chicago scored without a hit in the seventh. Chet Lemon was hit by a pitch, was sacrificed to second and took third when shortstop Bert Campaneris booted Junior Moore's grounder. Greg Pryor then grounded to second, driving in Lemon.

"I only needed one tonight, but next time is a different story," said Baumgarten, who also threw a one-hitter against the Angels on May 25, 1979. "I'll take it a game at a time."

Baumgarten nearly retired Carew in the seventh. Carew swung at the first pitch and hit a foul fly down the left field line. Wayne Nordhagen raced in and got a glove on the ball but couldn't hold it.

Royals 4, Twins 3
John Wathan's one-out single in the 10th inning scored pinch-runner Rusty Torres from third base. Kansas City, snapping a three-game losing streak which equaled its longest skid of the season, opened the 10th with singles by Dave Chalk and Willie Wilson.

Torres ran for Chalk and U.L. Washington sacrificed before reliever Mike Bacsik took over for starter Jerry Kosman. Wathan, who drove in two earlier runs with a triple, then delivered a line single up the middle for his fourth hit.

Yankees 6, Red Sox 0
Veteran left-hander Rudy May, making his first start in Boston since 1973, pitched five hitless innings before settling for a six-hitter as the Yankees completed a sweep of a three-game series. May, given his second consecutive start after 19 relief appearances, faced the minimum 15 batters before Jim Dwyer beat out a slow grounder over second for Boston's first hit to start the sixth.

A's 5, Brewers 3
Pinch-hitter Jeff Newman and Wayne Gross rapped RBI singles in the 10th inning as Oakland ended a four-game skid as well as the Brewers' four-game winning streak. Dwayne Murphy, who homered for Oakland's first two runs, and Mike Davis reached on bunt singles with one out in the 10th before Newman and Gross singled, giving Mike Norris, who hurled a five-hitter, his 10th victory.

Orioles 6, Blue Jays 2
Lee May drove in four runs and Mike Flanagan scattered eight hits as Baltimore downed Toronto for its 22nd triumph in the last 24 meetings with the Blue Jays. May singled his first three times at bat, twice with the bases loaded.

"The trouble I've had in some games this year, is getting behind batters," said Flanagan, who threw 92 pitches, 69 of them strikes. "It's a lot easier to pitch 0-2 than 2-0. I had all four of my pitches working well, which helped. I was getting my breaking stuff over the plate."

Tigers 7, Indians 6
Alan Trammell and Lance Parrish homered. Tom Brookens drove in three runs and John Morris posted his fifth consecutive triumph with relief help from Dan Schatzeder. Cleveland went ahead 3-2 in the fifth on singles by Jorge Orta, Mike Hargrove and Joe Charboneau. But the Tigers regained the lead in their half when Brookens hit a two-out, bases-loaded bloop that fell in short right field for a two-run double. Trammell homered in the sixth, then Al Cowens singled ahead of Parrish's homer. It was the 16th victory in 20 games for the Tigers.

Rangers 6, Mariners 3
Gaylord Perry scattered seven hits to pick up his 28th career victory, striking out a season-high 10 batters. Texas scored three runs in the third, two of them on Richie Zisk's single after Seattle right fielder Joe Simpson dropped a two-out fly ball. The Rangers had scored earlier in the inning on Al Oliver's RBI single. Mickey Rivers opened the game for Texas with a triple and scored on Buddy Bell's single.

Little League

Jaycees 6,

Big Value Drugs 4

The Jaycees, the North State Little League champions, picked up the first game of the City Little League championship yesterday, downing the Tar Heel League representative, 6-4.

The Jaycees need only one more win in the best-of-three series to win the title.

Big Value grabbed the initial lead in the first inning, as Sterling Edwards hit a solo home run. The Jaycees came back with two in their half of the inning, however, moving ahead. Big Value once again took the lead, scoring three in the third for a 4-2 lead.

It remained that way until the sixth inning when the Jaycees erupted for four runs. Following a doubleplay that opened the bottom of the sixth, Brian Pierce walked and David Lee singled. Curtis Perkins then singled, loading the bases.

At that point, Tyrone Jones stepped up and cracked a grand-slam home run that turned the tables on Big Value. Lee, Perkins, Michael Garris and Kelly Parrisher each had two hits for the Jaycees, while Frankie Atkinson had a pair for Big Value.

The second game in the series will be played today at Elm Street Park.

Prep League

First State Bank 15,

Auto Specialty 0

First State Bank, winners in the regular season, jumped on Auto Specialty in the finals of the Prep League's post-season tournament for a 15-0 victory last night, giving the Bankers the tourney title.

The game closed out the season for the league, which will open All-Star play in Washington on July 10.

The Bankers got all they needed in the first, scoring six times. Doyle Kirkland led off with a walk and moved up on a passed ball and a stolen base. Daryle Perkins walked and stole second. Kirkland and Perkins both scored when Gary Scott grounded out.

Billy Michel kept it going with a walk and moved up when Dwight Smith walked. Matt Saieed singled, loading the bases and Lee Allen grounded out, scoring Michel. A wild pitch brought in Smith, and Jimmy Best singled in Saieed. Best advanced on a wild pitch, and scored when Jeff Howard reached on an error.

The Bankers added three in the second, four in the third, and one each in the fourth and fifth.

Auto Specialty got only two hits off Scott's pitching. Michel, Saieed and Best each had two hits to lead the Banker hitting.

Babe Ruth League

Aaction Movers 16,

Planters Bank 9

Aaction Movers, the runner-up during regular season play, came back from the losers bracket of the post-season Babe Ruth League Tournament, to down champ Planters Bank, 16-9, last night, forcing one more game for the championship. Both teams have now lost once in the double elimination series, and the winner tonight captures the tournament crown.

Aaction pushed over three in the first, and added one in the third. Planters came up with two in its half of the third, but Aaction added a fifth run in the fourth. Planters scored three times in the fifth to tie it up, then after Aaction got one in the sixth, scored four times to take a 9-6 lead.

But Aaction broke Planters' back in the seventh, scoring ten times. Toby Fisher led off with a walk and with one away Jeff Wilson singled. Billy Godley singled, and a walk to Bill Owens brought in Fisher. Rudy Stalls singled over Wilson and Godley, and Keith Stocks reached on an error, scoring Owens. Jessie Atkinson reached on a fielder's choice, bringing in Stalls, and Daryl Pettis singled, scoring Stocks. Fisher reached on a fielder's choice that nailed Atkinson, and Bryan Brannon singled in Pettis. Wilson doubled in both Fisher and Brannon. Wilson then took third on a wild pitch and scored on an error.

Godley and Stalls each had two hits for Aaction, while Wilson and Pettis each had two. Kenny Kirkland led the Planter hitting with three, while Mont Carter and Jamie Jones each had two.

Again Ask Charges Dismissed

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) - Lawyers for Marine Pfc Robert Garwood have again asked a military judge to dismiss charges against Garwood in what would be a legally unprecedented ruling.

The judge had not ruled on the motion when he adjourned the court session Wednesday until 8:30 a.m. today.

In an unrelated aspect of the case, Garwood is now waiting for what may be a secret rendezvous with a mysterious witness who, Garwood says, could exonerate him.

Garwood, 34, faces court-martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam. His team of three lawyers are arguing defense motions in a pre-trial session.

The defense has repeatedly but unsuccessfully argued motions calling for dismissal of the charges on various grounds.

On Wednesday, they set down yet another motion for dismissal on a fresh contention - that prosecutors took an unfair advantage by withholding information from Garwood's lawyers early in the case.

Defense lawyers told Col. R.E. Switzer, presiding judge, that they couldn't cite specific laws to back up their motion but they pleaded with Switzer to break new legal ground.

"You are more than a referee here. You are the cornerstone in insuring that there is justice," defense attorney Vaughan Taylor told Switzer.

The defense argued that, under military law, a defendant is entitled to know practically everything that prosecutors have gathered to use in court.

Garwood's current lawyers argued that prosecutors kept from Garwood's former lawyers results of the military investigation into his case.

The defense also said prosecutors withheld tapes and transcripts of interviews with former prisoners of war until prosecutors dumped more than 100 hours of tapes on the defense during a pre-trial hearing earlier this year.

Those issues go "completely to the heart of the due process of the law," said John Lowe, another defense lawyer.

Prosecutors, meanwhile, insisted that the defense eventually got everything it was entitled to have, and that there was no attempt to show up the defense.

The defense, at all times, had the best source of information. It would talk to the accused, we would not," said Capt. Werner Hellmer, chief prosecutor.

Switzer ordered Garwood that he would be allowed to confront a mysterious Vietnam refugee who testified before a congressional subcommittee last week. The refugee, named a "J" identified only as a "J," admitted he knew that if bodies of some 400 Americans were still in Vietnam, Garwood, according to his lawyers, believe the man is actually the former head of North Vietnam's secret police, and the man who ordered executions and torture of prisoners.

Switzer denied a defense request that the refugee be subpoenaed, but he ordered Defense Department officials to "hold the man in this country until Garwood can confront him and make a positive identification."

"Even if he is not the person Pfc. Garwood says he is, he certainly may be able to say, 'Yes, I saw Pfc. Garwood in those (prison) camps as a prisoner.'"

But that prompted Hellmer to question whether Garwood is confident of his identification, which was based on a newspaper photo of the masked refugee.

"They're not clear on any identification other than that this may be the man," Hellmer said. But he said he would help arrange a confrontation.

No date or location was announced for that confrontation.

CAPTURED EQUIPMENT - A South African soldier holds up a shoulder-fired missile captured during a recent two-week-long invasion into Angola. The heat seeking surface-to-air missile, having been used successfully in the Middle East, Vietnam and Rhodesia, is part of about 250 tons of East Bloc and Soviet military equipment captured in the invasion that began June 13. The operation was designed to destroy the command structure of the People's Liberation Army of Namibia and their logistical system of underground storage bunkers. (AP Laserphoto)

Teacher Salary Okay Expected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A new salary schedule for North Carolina teachers was expected to be approved by the state Board of Education today.

The Legislature approved the pay scale during its recent short summer session, and the Education Board's Finance Committee gave its approval to the measure Wednesday.

The full board traditionally follows the recommendations of its committees.

Under the new salary schedule, educators' salaries would be determined by experience and education.

The General Assembly already has approved a 10 percent across-the-board pay raise, and with the new salary scale, teachers with a bachelor's degree would average a 14 percent increase in pay.

The salary package would raise the beginning teacher's salary from $10,380 to $12,380, or 19 percent. The most experienced teachers, with 13 years or more, would get an 11.6 percent raise to $16,230.

The schedule would also open up four new salary steps to be progressed through over the next four years, reaching a peak of $19,610. The result is to guarantee top-paid teachers they will make at least 35 percent more, to $19,610, four years from now.

Al Hill, assistant controller for the board, said committee members questioned one part of the new salary schedule that requires school superintendents be paid at least 1 percent more than the highest-paid principal in their school system.

Of the 144 school superintendents, Hill said 51 were earning less than at least one principal in their system.

DECEPTIVE PARADISE — Young men overlook Port Louis, capital of the troubled Indian Ocean island paradise of Mauritius. There is much contrast in this island barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The greatest problem appears to be finding enough work for everyone in a stagnant economy. (AP Laserphoto)

Lush Tropical Paradise Offers Picture Of Contrast, Confusion

WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — As with the dodo bird behind the glass case in the Port Louis museum, appearances can be deceiving on this lush tropical island in the Indian Ocean.

The dodo — this nonflying, distant cousin of the swan, was hunted to extinction in the 1600s by early settlers — is only a replica covered by feathers suspiciously similar to those of a chicken.

Likewise, the beauty of Mauritius — thick green carpets of sugar cane fields, craggy peaks of black basalt, jungles populated by deer, white sand beaches and swaying palm trees — masks serious problems.

There is much confusion and contrast in this island, barely 40 miles long and 30 miles wide. The law is French. The culture is Creole. The government institutions are British. The bureaucrats are Indians. Most shopowners are Chinese.

An average of 160,000 sun-seeking tourists wing in to Mauritius every year aboard jumbo jets from Europe and Africa. But an estimated 60,000 of the 759,000 Mauritians have applied to foreign consulates to leave their homeland.

"It's very sad," said a local newspaper editor, whose own parents and other relatives emigrated to Australia several years ago. "Our bodies are here but our minds drift elsewhere."

The stagnant economy, dependent on exports of sugar to world markets, cannot offer ample opportunities to all. So many leave.

Mauritius, with 1,000 people per square mile, is one of the most densely populated countries in the world, in part due to a baby boom sparked by elimination of malaria epidemics after World War II. On a bright note, an aggressive birth control campaign begun in the 1960s has staved off Malthusian disaster.

Resistance was at first strong among the Hindu-Moslem majority but the campaign reached a turning point in 1971, said Nanda Ramenah, director of the Mauritian Family Planning Association.

"That was the year we distributed posters showing people falling into the ocean off the edges of the island," Ramenah said. "The point got across."

The birth rate is down to 1.8 percent, but the government is still hard pressed to find 10,000 new jobs a year for young people. Thanks to free secondary and university education, new job seekers are also better educated and less eager to accept unskilled employment in the labor-intensive sugar industry, the island's No. 1 industry.

The unemployment rate is officially 9 percent. Unofficial estimates put it as high as 12 percent.

The trade deficit last year was 1 billion rupees, about $125 million. There is enough foreign currency for just two weeks of imports. The cost of living is growing by 10 percent a year and the average monthly salary is 800 rupees, about $100 American.

The labor government of Prime Minister Sir Seewoosagar Ramgoolam called in the International Monetary Fund last year for first aid. The country finds itself caught between rising expenditures on imports and declining income from sugar exports, partly due to four damaging cyclones at the end of 1979 and the beginning of this year.

The IMF advised a 30 percent devaluation last October and is now helping with an austerity budget for 1980 and 1981.

The leftist opposition, the Mauritian Militant Movement, says the country's malaise is basically caused by an indolent government.

The Labor Party, which has 29 seats in the 70-member Parliament, rules in coalition with the small, eight-seat Social Democrat Party, a conservative group. The MMM has 30 seats and the other three seats belong to a tiny socialist party which split from Labor and generally sides with the opposition. The government edge is 37-33.

"The economic situation is very bad," said MMM president Anerood Jugnauth in an interview. "Even people already in jobs are losing them. The government isn't governing. It's just patching things up here and there."

Jugnauth is the official opposition spokesman but the real leader of the MMM is Paul Berenger, 35, a Franco-Mauritian who launched the party with young friends in 1969.

Berenger, who studied philosophy in Wales and then revolution in the 1968 Paris riots, says his party easily will win the next scheduled general elections in 1981. The MMM already controls the island's major trade unions.

The MMM wants to introduce socialism to Mauritius, but not completely dismantle capitalism. It also wants to make Mauritius a non-aligned nation. At present, the Ramgoolam government, which has ruled since independence from Britain in 1968, leans toward the West.

Ramgoolam says the West, especially the United States, should "do more" for Mauritius, especially in aid to fight unemployment. "If not, this country will go communist," he said in an interview.

Mauritius is a key crossroads in the Indian Ocean, where Soviet and American naval forces are building up because of Iran and Afghanistan.

Jugnauth shrugs off the communist label as "nonsense," and Berenger said the MMM is pragmatic. He wants socialism. But he said in an interview, "there is no place for revolutionary schemes that won't work, or cause inflation or cause unemployment."

Librarians At Symposium

ECU News Bureau
KINSTON — More than 60 librarians from North Carolina communities participated in "Stretching the Media Dollar," a symposium co-sponsored by East Carolina University's Library Science Alumni Association and Lenoir Community College.

Both were North Carolina delegates.

Pitt Native New Division Director

RALEIGH — Sandra P. Babb, a Pitt County native, has been appointed director of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development's Division of Community Assistance.

Ms. Babb, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Porter, grew up in the Eastern Pines Section of Pitt County and graduated from Chicod High School in 1957.

She earned her undergraduate degree from East Carolina University in 1960, a masters degree in education from ECU in 1962, and a masters in American History from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1970.

After teaching in public schools in North Carolina, California and Florida, and at N.C. State University and St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, Ms. Babb became the first director of Raleigh Action City program (which has evolved into the City of Raleigh Human Resources Department) for three years before joining the North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts.

For the past three years, Ms. Babb has been director of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation grant program, which administers funds used by governments to build park and recreation facilities.

With a staff of some 60 persons, the Division of Community Assistance provides technical assistance to about 300 units of local government each year, in areas ranging from land use planning, improving public administration and revitalizing downtowns, to promoting the federal flood insurance program and allocating planning funds provided by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Ms. Babb, who replaces Lenwood V. Long, who resigned last week, is a member of the Raleigh Planning Commission and a member of the board of directors of the Raleigh Women's Center. She is also active in the Democratic Party at the state and local level.

Erase Missile Parley Barrier

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Soviet government agreed this week to drop its conditions for opening negotiations with the United States to limit medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt told the West German Parliament today.

Reporting on his meeting with President Leonid Brezhnev and other top Soviet officials in Moscow Monday and Tuesday, Schmidt said the Russians abandoned their demand that, as a condition for negotiations,

Three Wrecks Investigated By Police

An estimated $1,570 damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:51 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive near the Moore Street intersection, involving cars driven by Hilda G. Joyner of Oakgrove Avenue, and Walter P. Page of Elizabethtown.

Damage from the mishap was set at $425 to the Joyner car and $295 to the Page vehicle.

Norman Earl Crisp of 310 East 13th St. was charged with following too close after investigation of a 7:30 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Wilson Street and Myrtle Avenue.

Investigators reported the Crisp car collided with a car driven by James Albert Tripp of Route 2, Ayden, causing $50 damage to the Crisp auto and $300 damage to the Tripp car.

Officers reported an estimated $500 damage resulted to a parked car owned by W. L. Johnson Motor Co., 3006 Memorial Dr., when the vehicle — parked on Rotary Avenue near the First Street intersection — was struck by a trailer.

Police said the trailer had come unhooked from a truck driven by Jimmy Lee Clemons of 1406 Colonial Ave., which was traveling along First Street.

No damage was reported to the trailer.

the North Atlantic Alliance must first cancel its plans to place new medium-range U.S. nuclear missiles in Western Europe in the next three years.

"The demand to suspend the NATO decision no longer stands in the way of talks about bilateral limitation of medium-range weapons," Schmidt said. "The normal process of pre-negotiations has now been set in motion."

Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher relayed the Soviet offer to President Carter and Secretary of State Edmund Edmund Muskie in Washington on Wednesday, the chancellor said.

He reported that Muskie told Genscher the United States and its allies would investigate the Soviet proposals "carefully and in a constructive spirit."

"The Soviet leadership said it is ready, even before the ratification of the SALT II treaty, to enter into talks with the United States about the limitation of the nuclear medium-range weapons," he said.

But he said Brezhnev told him any agreement on the medium-range missiles could only become effective after the ratification of SALT II, which has been bogged down in the U.S. Senate by adverse American reaction to the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Medium-range missiles are not covered by the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty, which deals only with intercontinental weapons.

NATO decided on Dec. 12 to place 572 new medium-range missiles in Western Europe by 1983 to counter the buildup of mobile Soviet SS-20 rockets aimed at NATO bases which the Soviet Union is already deploying in its Central European allies. NATO also suggested negotiations to limit the deployment on both sides, but the Soviets refused to negotiate unless the Western deployment was called off.

Schmidt also reported that he and the Russians discussed the crisis in East-West relations over Afghanistan with "great frankness and without diplomatic niceties." "This discussion was not easy," he said. "The Soviet leadership knows that it is our view that the intervention in Afghanistan must be ended and the balance in that region be re-established."

He said the announced withdrawal of 10,000 Soviet troops and 108 tanks from Afghanistan was a "step in the right direction," but only if it leads to total withdrawal of the Soviet troops and guarantees for self-determination for the Asian nation.

"The differences of opinion on this matter between the Federal Government and the Soviet leadership have not been overcome," Schmidt said.

BITE THE BOXOFFICE DUST — Superstars John Travolta, Clint Eastwood and Burt Reynolds are biting the dust at the box office this summer, leading some Hollywood-watchers to predict the movie industry may be on the brink of a bust. Travolta's latest motion picture "Urban Cowboy" has brought in a disappointing $20.5 million in two and a half weeks in 1,100 movie houses. This is a recent photo of Travolta as he appears in character in "Urban Cowboy". (AP Laserphoto)

CBS Dismisses Jayne Kennedy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jayne Kennedy, co-host of CBS-TV's "NFL Today" show, has been fired for allegedly violating her contract by joining a prime-time series on rival network NBC, sources say.

Miss Kennedy, who replaced Phyllis George on the football show two years ago, was notified by mail of her release from CBS. The network said she broke her contract when she joined the cast of "Speak Up America," an NBC series to be broadcast this fall.

Miss Kennedy said she had been given oral permission several weeks ago to work outside of "NFL Today." However, a CBS lawyer said last week that CBS didn't feel Miss Kennedy could meet the demands of both shows.

SUPPER FOR GROUP

A group of Pitt County young men were given a going away party last week before they left for Tulsa, Okla. The group is called the "God Squad" and consists of Timmy J. Mills, Eddie Taylor, Larry Jones and George Harrington.

The special supper was a pig-pickin' and barbecue chicken. Among friends that attended the supper were the Rev. Paul Jackson of Morehead City; the Rev. Jesse Caton of Raleigh; and the Rev. Frank Gentry of Greenville.

Dan Rather's Last Floor Stint

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Dan Rather will be CBS floor correspondent for the last time during the 1980 presidential conventions — by 1984 he will be sitting in the anchor booth.

"I don't tend to be nostalgic about things like that," Rather said in an interview, but added with a grin, "It's a very exciting job — all indoor work and no heavy lifting."

The man who will replace Walter Cronkite as anchor man of the CBS Evening News next year — and at future presidential conventions and other top stories — is 48 years old, has black hair flecked with grey, and a generally serious demeanor but a flashing smile.

The interview was held in Walter Cronkite's sailboat-decorated office in the main building of CBS News, rather than in Rather's office across the street, as a matter of convenience. Rather seated the reporter on a brown leather couch, then sat on a matching chair rather than behind Cronkite's desk.

He dismissed the idea that this year's conventions would be boring because the presidential candidates were foregone nominations, saying:

"I have never found a convention boring. That's not hype. I never find politics and political conventions boring. It's true that there are a few things more boring than a politician at a Washington dinner party pushing politics. That's Sominex time."

"But at a convention you have a four-day crash course in modern American political science and an ongoing civics lesson, in a room filled with interesting people of accomplishment."

Rather, Texas-born and educated, began his career with United Press International, worked for the Houston Chronicle and several radio and television stations. He joined CBS News in 1962 as Southwest Bureau chief in Dallas.

He proved his worth when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas in 1963, was White House correspondent for CBS from 1964 to 1974 except for a year-and-a-half as CBS News London Bureau chief. He has covered 13 presidential conventions — the 1960 pair will be his ninth and 10th as CBS floor correspondent.

Rather, a hard-nosed reporter who managed to raise blood pressures in both the Johnson and Nixon administrations — Nixon White House aide John Ehrlichman tried to get him fired — retains an almost naive enthusiasm for reporting that probably has been as important as talent, hard work and luck in putting him into the most coveted seat in television news.

That enthusiasm shows when he talks about the 1980 presidential nomination conventions.

"One thing I look for is comers," Rather said. "It's a good game to play. Make a list of the people interviewed, a young congressman who makes a sensation, any politician that makes sense or stands out in the crowd. Two years from now, take a look at the list and see if you spotted the comers."

Rather also finds conventions a good place to spot issues and he added, "I don't agree that the platforms are meaningless. Granted, most candidates, after they are elected, ignore the party platform as it suits them. But input from a lot of people goes into the platform and it defines a lot of the issues and concerns."

The newsman also uses the conventions as a place to "separate the bull from the bullfeathers," by which he means "picking out what people really mean from what they say. People are on television longer and in more concentrated form at conventions and I feel I hear what they are saying, what they are really trying to get across — or what they are trying to hide."

Each convention also is part of an ongoing story. For the Republicans, as Rather defines it, it's the latest episode in a saga that began in 1960 — or perhaps as far back as the New Deal — of whether the party will survive.

"The Republican hall will boast the largest collection of this endangered species we will see for another four years," he said, "and what's happening to the moderate-progressive-liberal section of the Republican party is the big question because they can't survive as a narrow base party."

As for the Democrats: "Can they keep the family together? They didn't in 1972. Does Kennedy take a walk? How hard is Kennedy prepared to fight?"

Rather looks forward to taking over Cronkite's anchor booth, aware his show will differ from his predecessor's — for whom he has enormous respect.

"I don't think I'm the uncle type," he said, referring to Cronkite's avuncular image. "I know the show will be different but I don't know how. The basics of good reporting and good writing will remain. There will be no shortcuts or Walter Cronkite will come back, grab me by the nape of the neck and toss me out of here. There will be hustle. We will be active as opposed to reactive, aggressive but not hostile. A reporter who isn't aggressive isn't much of a reporter."

"In this job you have to have self-confidence but you can't become arrogant. It's an egocentric business but you also have to walk humbly. Television can be really bad stuff for people who can't handle it.

Nurse Recruitment Challenge Reviewed

ECU News Bureau
"The magnitude of recruitment of qualified nurses to careers in mental health research is a major challenge," says Dr. Dixie Koldjeski of East Carolina University.

Dr. Koldjeski, a member of the ECU School of Nursing faculty, appeared on a panel at a National Academy of Science symposium in Washington to discuss problems of recruitment of psychiatric and mental health nurses for mental health research careers.

Along with nurse educators from Boston University and the University of Washington, Dr. Koldjeski cited major difficulties which deter nurses from deciding to undertake research in the field of mental health.

Clinical services are in more demand and offer better career opportunities to nurses, she said, and until recently, there was minimal support for nurse researchers at academic institutions — in terms of resources and release of faculty time.

Dr. Koldjeski recommended that teaching and program development support be made available at the master's degree level as well as at the doctoral level, since it is at the master's level that most students are "stimulated and challenged" in advanced research.

Dr. Koldjeski herself is one of only 78 psychiatric and mental health nurses in the nation actively involved in mental health research, a figure which contrasts sharply with the 39,000 total number of psychiatric nurses.

A clinical specialist in community mental health nursing and a fellow of the American Academy of Nursing, Dr. Koldjeski did doctoral study under the HEW Nurse-Scientist Program, specializing in sociology at Indiana University.

Her own research has been involved with defining more clearly some of the social factors in clinical decisions to label as mental illness such "odd and unusual behavior" as strange dress and hallucinations.

Help Scott Pay Debts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some of Gov. Jim Hunt's supporters are helping pay off the campaign debts incurred by his primary opponent, former Gov. Bob Scott, but the post-primary harmony between the two Democrats apparently has stopped at that point.

Scott, who pledged his support to Hunt after his primary loss, appears to have cooled as his campaign aides find it difficult to find jobs in the Hunt administration.

A few of Scott's aides have been considered for state or party jobs, but only one — Peggy Bond — has landed a job.

Scott has not said for sure whether he will stay out of the fall battle between Hunt and Republican I. Beverly Lake, but he met with his campaign staff last week to discuss the matter.

"I would not want to comment about it other than to verify that we met," Scott said. "I'm trying to keep a low profile, and I'd better not comment on that at all."

Scott has turned down invitations to speak at political functions, saying he was not inclined to do much politicking for a while.

Joe Pell, Hunt's patronage assistant, said there were "not any plans that I know of to hire Scott's people... We're not going to be vindictive about it or anything, but I don't think there is any move to hire them."

More Bike Patrol

ALBION, Mich. (AP) — On television, police in cars race to the scene of the crime — engines roaring, tires squealing.

In Albion, police roll up on bicycles — tires whirring, gears clicking.

It's easier to get closer to a suspected criminal activity, Police Chief Jerry Baker said Tuesday, discussing the success of a bike patrol program believed unique for Michigan city.

Officers patrolling on two-wheelers, which cost the city 12,000 nothing, have made a major contribution to a 40 percent increase in arrests for crimes such as vandalism and prowling, Baker said.

Albion's 26-member police force has used bicycles on occasion for years, but stepped up the program last fall, he said.

The bikes generally are 10-speeds found and impounded by police. They are put to work if officers cannot locate the owner, and are auctioned off like other impounded bikes once a year.

Bike patrols are carried out on afternoon and overnight shifts only and the city never is guarded by officers on two-wheelers only, Baker said.

They also have one tremendous advantage over patrol cars, says the chief: "They save gas."
