ERA Fight Shaping Up For Republicans

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken today turned a welcoming address to delegates drafting the Republican platform into a ringing endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment, touching off what was expected to be a divisive party platform battle.

"To drop the ERA plank from our platform now would be a public demonstration that this party had abandoned its goal of equal rights for women," Milliken told the 106-member Republican platform committee.

The battle over whether to keep a pro-ERA plank in the platform was expected to dominate this week's platform drafting sessions. Members of the platform committee, told that 1980 will be a "banner year" for Republicans, were putting the final touches on an issues document that GOP leaders say will be closely attuned to Ronald Reagan's conservative political philosophy.

The ERA controversy provides a delicate political test for Reagan, who opposes the ERA but does not want to antagonize party moderates. His backers, hoping to maintain the GOP unity that exists on almost all other major platform issues, worked behind the scenes to find an ERA compromise.

The compromise plank reaffirms the party's "historic commitment to equal rights and equal opportunities for women" but stops short of calling for ratification, as the platform has done every year since 1940.

Reagan personally opposes a plank urging ratification of the ERA, but his aides said Sunday he probably would accept a pro-ERA statement if that is what the platform committee decides.

A group of prominent Republican women told reporters here that the compromise was not satisfactory. They want a specific endorsement of the amendment.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, R-Mass., warned of political repercussions should the GOP abandon its support of the ERA.

"I feel that a platform that is negative on the ERA will have a very dampening effect on many candidacies and including the presidential one," Rep. Heckler said. "In view of the closeness of presidential elections we've seen lately this certainly can be a pivotal, crucial issue."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a leading conservative opponent of the ERA, said the draft language also was unacceptable to him. "I think it would be better to leave the ERA out entirely," he said.

Committee leaders had sought to keep most of the feuding over the ERA plank under wraps, with most of this week's drafting sessions scheduled to be held behind closed doors.

But Milliken, the leadoff speaker and a longtime ERA supporter, brought it out in the open. The Republican governor said proposals that would back equal rights for women without specifying ratification of the ERA "is not enough."

"To do that would be a clear statement to people across the country that we are retreating from our traditional support of equality for women," he said.

Milliken's remarks received loud applause from spectators, with a scattering of hisses from ERA opponents, some waving "Stop ERA" signs.

Milliken also told the Republicans, who came here a week before the party's convention, that the GOP platform should not ignore the plight of the cities.

Pitt Bd. Awards Supplies Contract

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County commissioners this morning awarded a contract to Eastern Office Supply Inc. of Greenville, for standard office supplies used by county agencies for the coming year.

The low bid totaled $9,791.70, with an agreement to give a 30 percent discount on additional supplies purchased during the year. Other bids ranged from $9,855 to $10,845, with discounts from 20 to 25 percent for the year.

The board adopted a resolution asking the N.C. General Assembly to authorize the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission to regulate fox hunting in the county, and approved changes in the mileage and other travel expense paid to county employees in accordance with changes in the amounts authorized by the General Assembly for state employees.

County employees will now receive 25 cents per mile for use of personal cars as compared with 19 cents in the past. Allowances for food and lodging were also increased.

In other action today, commissioners approved a request by the Village of Simpson for an easement across the back of a county-owned lot for construction of a drainage ditch, approved an agreement between the Board of Health, the county, and the Town of Farmville for a dog warden to operate in the Farmville area, and approved a resolution asking that Circle Drive, Springhill Road and Ridge Road in Hardee Acres Subdivision be added to the State system.

The board this morning also authorized county attorney W. W. Speight and Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner to take whatever action is necessary to have corrected problems with a two-way radio installed at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Woman Slain, 3 Wounded In Family Feud

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — A woman was killed and three persons, including a police officer, were wounded early today by gunfire which erupted at a public housing project in a dispute between two families over how a child was being treated, authorities said.

"I think in the final analysis you'll find this originated from mothers getting irate about others mishandling their children," said T.W. Harper, head of the Kings Mountain Housing Authority.

Harper said the dispute appeared to involve two families, one white and one black. He said one family didn't like the way a child was being treated by the other.

The Chesterfield Apartments, a racially mixed government-subsidized housing project in this southern North Carolina community of 8,500, has had racial problems in the past, officials said.

"We have trouble down there all the time," said police dispatcher Greg Hambricht.

Joyner told the board that the General Electric radio installed two months ago — which links rescue squads to the hospital emergency room — does not meet specifications.

Speight reported that representatives of the state Division of Archives and History are scheduled to meet here tomorrow to discuss the lease of the Robert Lee Humber house as the site for a branch office.

The Humber House, at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets, was given to the county and city recently as an historic site and memorial to Humber.

Harper confirmed that assessment and said he had visited the complex Saturday night and asked residents to cool the dispute.

Cleveland County Coroner Bennett Masters identified the dead woman as Beverly Ernestine Mauney, 22. She was pronounced dead at the scene.

A spokeswoman at Kings Mountain Hospital said the wounded officer, Sgt. Johnny Belk, was listed in good condition. She said earlier reports that he underwent surgery were erroneous.

She identified the most shooting victims as Ernest Mauney, 57, shot in the shoulder, and Herman Queen, 25, who had leg wounds. Both were reported in good condition.

Police today refused to discuss details leading up to the shootings, and a prepared statement by acting Police Chief J.D. Barretta made no mention of two persons aside from the dead woman and a police sergeant being shot, or of cars riddled with bullets, windows shot out and bullet holes evident on two facing buildings.

TWO SOURCES

Two area firms have called to say they have the large packages of powdered Gatorade which most area grocery wholesalers have apparently discontinued carrying. These, H. L. Hodges Sporting Goods Store in Greenville and White Enterprises in Winterville, apparently stock it for use by school sports programs, but it is also sold to the general public, Hotline was told.

WRONG REFERRAL

Hotline recently referred a person complaining about practices at a particular day care center to a representative of the Day Care Section of the Department of Human Resources. We now have a letter from the N. C. Department of Administration saying that this referral should have been to the Office of Child Day Care Licensing, which is responsible for regulating child day care operations in North Carolina. "It is our responsibility to monitor facilities in order to insure that the mandatory standards are in compliance with the law," Claudia A. Geraghty, Licensing and Program Consultant, said. "If necessary, I would be glad to talk to the complainant and arrange a compliance inspection of the facility in question."

Smuggled Aliens Relate Abandonment, Ordeal

By LES SCHLANGEN
Associated Press Writer
AJO, Ariz. (AP) — Robbed and abandoned by smugglers who ferried them over the border, a group of Salvadorans, including three children, drank aftershave lotion and fought over drops of urine in a desperate attempt to stay alive in searing desert heat, a survivor says.

"We put it (urine) in rags and we wiped our faces with it," said 20-year-old Yolanda Estela Hernandez. "It was so hot and we were so thirsty."

She was one of 13 survivors, from a group of 40 to 50, rescued from the sun-baked desert, where the air temperature reached 110 degrees and the soil reached 150. Thirteen Salvadorans were found dead from dehydration and three children were among the missing.

The middle class Salvadorans, who officials say may have fled their country to escape civil strife, paid up to $1,200 each to be smuggled into the United States and were abandoned in Organ Pipe Cactus National Monument park at least four days ago.

Officials say there's no hope of finding more survivors, but a "low profile search" for more bodies was being conducted today in the 516-square-mile park.

A search by horseback and helicopter began Friday after a motorist reported seeing a man lying by the roadside. Two bodies and 10 survivors were found Saturday, and 11 more dead and three survivors were found Sunday.

Veteran Fireman Killed Fighting Residence Fire

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A Sunday morning fire at a Greenville residence had a tragic ending when a nine-year veteran fire officer lost his life after falling through the roof of the burning home.

Lt. Jerry Steve Mills, 27, officer with the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, died while fighting a fire at the David Evans Jr. home at 211 Dalebrook Circle, according to Fire Chief Jenness Allen.

The fire chief said that three other fire-rescue personnel were overcome by smoke inhalation in their attempts to rescue Mills. He reported that Lt. Michael Branch, a rescue officer, was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital for observation, while John Billymer and David Nelson, both fire medics, were released after receiving emergency room treatment at the hospital.

Allen said that Mills fell through a section of the roof apparently weakened by fire in the attic of the structure. The lieutenant, who was assigned at the nearby Gardner Fire Station on Brownlea Drive, was on the first truck to arrive at the scene of the fire, reported at 6:20 a.m.

According to Allen, fire personnel arrived at the Evans residence and found extensive smoke. He said they entered the house and "found an extremely hot situation." The chief reported that the men "hit the fire with water" but "it was so hot they had to get out."

He said that the fire apparently started in the den of the home and was drawn up a stairway, located in a corner of the room, to the attic section. Allen noted that the den walls were paneled and varnish from the paneling and furniture in the room compounded the fume, heat and smoke problem.

Mills, he said, went up on the roof, according to "standard operating procedure," to cut a hole and use water to "relieve some of the pressure on the house" in fighting the attic blaze. The lieutenant, according to the chief, walked up the roof valley but fell through when he stepped from the valley to shingled area.

Rafters at the head of the stairs were apparently burned and weakened the roof section, he said, collapsing when the lieutenant stepped onto the shingles.

Two other fire personnel were on another area of the roof when Mills fell through and "immediately upon him falling through... all nozzles were moved to that location to provide him water cover... to keep him cool." Allen reported. Smoke in the attic area was heavy, he said, and Mills apparently was able to move some 12-15 feet toward a window on one end of the attic before he was overcome by smoke.

The chief said that Mills was equipped with full safety and breathing apparatus at the time of the accident but he noted that Mills may have removed his face mask on the roof when it fogged. The lieutenant was never able to get the face piece back on after falling, it was noted.

Dr. Alvin Volkman, medical examiner on call during the weekend, said this morning that the presumptive finding is that Mills died from asphyxiation from carbon monoxide inhalation. The medical examiner added that confirmatory tests were being run at the state medical laboratories.

The cause of the fire, which resulted in extensive damage to the Evans home, was still under investigation today by the Greenville Fire Prevention Bureau and the State Bureau of Investigation, Allen reported.

He said that at the time Mills fell through the roof, there were approximately 15 men at the scene and units were called from Winterville and Station House to assist. Eastern Pines also responded, he added.

While reports are still incomplete, the Evans family evidently was away for the weekend but fire personnel reported that one person, who was unidentified, was at the house when they arrived. It was not clear whether the person was staying at the house for the weekend in the Evans' absence.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said that a report of the fire incident by his department was not complete this morning.

Mills, who resided near Galloway's Crossroads near Simpson, joined the Fire Department in July of 1971. A D. H. Conley High School graduate, he was promoted from Firefighter II to lieutenant in March of 1979. He was honored during his tenure with the department as a "Fireman of the Year."

Allen said this morning that "this lieutenant was a professional firefighter if we have one. He lived firefighting 24 hours a day and was very knowledgeable and knew what he was doing." The chief said that Mills "was not a green man" in his

Heat Wave In 15th Day For South-Southwest

By The Associated Press

After a sizzling holiday weekend, the South and Southwest faced more blistering temperatures as the heat wave that has claimed at least 142 lives entered its 15th day.

The death toll today stood at 86 in Texas, 28 in Arkansas, 17 in Oklahoma, 5 in Kansas, 3 in Louisiana and one each in Missouri, Mississippi and Alabama.

In Arkansas, the National Weather Service said the outlook for the rest of the summer was for continued sizzling temperatures.

"The type weather pattern we're seeing usually comes later in the summer," said forecaster Mike Thompson at Temperatures were at or above 100 degrees in many parts of Kansas on the last day of the holiday weekend and forecasts predicted no letup in the heat. Wichita sizzled under a record 107 — the eighth time since June 24 that Kansas's largest city has tied or broken a maximum temperature record.

The 107-degree reading broke Wichita's 105-degree record set in 1954. Hutchinson reported 107 degrees, with Belleville, Hill City, and Beloit baking at 105. A high of 103 degrees was reported in Chanute, Dodge City, Emporia, Goodland and Lawrence, while the mercury in Topeka and Coffeyville was at 100.

Little Rock. "But because it has been established earlier than normal we have a chance of seeing above normal temperatures later this summer."

Three Arkansas residents succumbed to the heat Sunday. One person collapsed after digging in the yard and two others were found inside their homes in Lawrence County, where temperatures reached 104 degrees Sunday.

In Oklahoma, railroad tracks expanded after two weeks of sweltering temperatures and caused a 15-car freight train to derail near Fort Gibson late Saturday. Said Missouri Pacific Railroad officials.

No injuries were reported.

they did not share their urine.

She also said, "I had my baby when we started and the 'coyotes' (alien smugglers) took him away. I don't know where my baby is. I want my baby."

Scott promised the smugglers would be caught, adding "This is going to be an international deal."

He said he believed the abandonment was "deliberate because all they had to do was say, 'See those mountains? Go three miles in that direction and you'll be on the highway.'"

Eight Lives Gone, But Nine Is Enough

TUKWILA, Wash. (AP) — The ride was free, but the Siamese cat may have used up eight of her nine lives during a 22-day trip in a packing crate.

The crate, in a metal trailer that had traveled mostly by barge from Fairbanks, Alaska, was unloaded Saturday by six movers here.

In the midst of the job, the Lincoln Moving & Storage Co. Inc. employees spied a grey lump of fur in one of the boxes.

"At first we thought it was a big rat. Nobody wanted to touch it," one employee remembered.

It was Tony Jackson who had the courage to reach in and pull out the creature — a female Siamese cat.

"She was blind and she wasn't making a sound," Jackson said. After her liberation, she started meowing weakly, then with growing strength.

The other workers stared in disbelief.

"She was in a cardboard carton that had been closed 22 days ago," said Bill Scott.

The cat had chewed through the carton. But confronted by other boxes and the meat walls of the trailer, she couldn't escape and so took refuge in a pile of clothes in the original box.

The cat refused to eat until Scott moistened his fingers with milk. She began to lick. The next offering, spareribs from a lunchpail, disappeared in minutes.

Terry Austin, meanwhile, sped to a store for cat litter and food.

"I got Nine Lives," Austin said. "I thought it was appropriate." The cat soon recovered from its temporary sun blindness and was growing stronger with each meal.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Buck of Rt. 1, Winterville, the bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. Her honor attendants were her sister, Mrs. Hazel Barnett of Winterville, and Miss Lisa Westbrook of Kinston, sister of the bridegroom. A program of music was presented by Mrs. George Byrd of Kinston, organist, and Mrs. Steven Barrow of Snow Hill, cousin of the bride, and Harvey Edwards of Raleigh, soloists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown with a fitted bodice featuring a Queen Anne neckline and full length tapered sleeves, both with clusters of seed pearls and crystals. The full length organza skirt extended into a cathedral train of organza and alencon lace. The bride chose a cathedral mantilla bordered with alencon lace flowing from a face frame design headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis, stephanotis and pink roses with variegated greenery and white ivy.

Sister of the bride, Leigh Bethany Albritton of Rt. 1, Hookerton, was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of pink organza over pink taffeta designed with a portrait neckline featuring a ruffled bertha collar edged in petite chantilly lace. The full skirt was accented by a double ruffled flounce at the hemline, with the pick-up overskirt edged in petite chantilly lace featuring white tie bows. She wore a headpiece of pink silk flowers with white streamers and carried a nosegay of pink miniature carnations with snow flake pom pons and greenery.

Bridesmaids were Chana Christine Jones and Kelly Renee Jones of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Karen Elizabeth Heath of Rt. 1, Hookerton, cousins of the bride, and Donna Lynn Heath of Snow Hill. They wore formal gowns of pink organza over pink taffeta designed with a portrait neckline with the draped off-the-shoulder bodice accented with pink silk flowers. The full southern belle skirt was enhanced by a deep ruffled flounce at the hemline with a pick-up overlay skirt with motifs of pink silk flowers. They wore headpieces of pink silk flowers and ribbon streamers. Their flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

Crista Sharon Albritton of Rt. 1, Hookerton, was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of mint green organza over mint taffeta designed with a portrait neckline of crushed self-fabric enhanced with rosettes of organza and styled with an off-the-shoulder effect. She carried a basket of white lace with miniature carnations and snow flake pom pons with white ribbon streamers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Christopher and Danny Tyndall, brothers of the bridegroom, Ted Douglas Sauls Sr. and Roger Grant, all of Snow Hill. Ted Douglas Sauls Jr. of Snow Hill was ring bearer.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Godwin greeted guests. Presiding at the register was Mrs. Valeria George, aunt of the bride. Mrs. William B. Albritton served cake while Mrs. Faye Sugg poured punch. Nieces of the bride, Stephanie Marie Heath and Jennifer Evelyn Heath passed out rice bags and wedding scrolls. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Ned Sauls.

Saturday a bridesmaids luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Marjorie Albritton. The bride presented her attendants with gifts. Hostesses were aunts of the bride, Mrs. Marjorie Albritton, Mrs. Evelyn Heath and Mrs. Valeria George.

Following the rehearsal Saturday night, the parents of the bridegroom entertained the bride and bridegroom and wedding party in the church fellowship hall with a party.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Greenville. The bride is a graduate of Greene Central High School and is presently attending East Carolina University where she is studying interior design. The bridegroom is a graduate of Greene Central also, and attended Wayne Community College and Professional Real Estate School, Raleigh.

A Healthy Cure For Kissing Cause

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last year our hospital auxiliary had a fund-raiser that proved hugely successful. We put on an "Evening in Monte Carlo," and the biggest money-raiser of all was our "kissing booth." It was staffed by three attractive college girls (daughters of members) who volunteered their services.

Kisses lasting three seconds were sold for $10 each; kisses lasting seven seconds went for $25; kisses lasting 15 seconds went for $50; and all kisses over 15 seconds went for $100. One man bought three $100 kisses and said it was the best tax-deductible donation he ever made!

Although we're planning to have a dinner dance this year, some of the women want to have the kissing booth again, but some objections have been raised on the grounds that it's unhygienic and, therefore, risky. What is your opinion?
FOR A GOOD CAUSE

DEAR FOR: For an antiseptic solution to a tongue-in-cheek problem, provide the kissees and the kissers with germicidal cocktails. You'll make a fortune and minimize the risk.

DEAR ABBY: We are employed as librarians in Iowa City, Iowa. The enclosed item from your column was recently found in our suggestion box:

"Dear Abby: I am a girl, 12, very inexperienced, and I need to know the correct way to kiss a boy. My mother says it will just come naturally, but in case it doesn't, can you give me a few pointers?"

Should the girl quit breathing? I heard she isn't supposed to make a 'smack' sound when kissing a boy, but it's OK for kissing relatives, right?"

Another question: Am I supposed to move my head? Or do I just move my lips? One last thing: What am I supposed to do with my nose? — Never Been Kissed"

"Dear Never: You should not quit breathing. No 'smack' sounds — not even with relatives. It's not necessary to move anything. And all you do with your nose is breathe through it."

Attached to the above exchange was this message: "Dear Librarians: How come you never answer questions like this one? They would be a lot more interesting than how hot or cold the library should be, or if business students belong here. — Dedicated Reader"

Abby, we thought you might enjoy the following reply offered by our resident problem-solver:

"Dear Dedicated: We answer all questions found in the suggestion box. Up to this point we haven't received any of the type illustrated here. We have a feeling, though, that you really are concerned about this particular problem and are a bit hesitant to admit your own lack of experience in this area. Rest assured we will do our best to help you. File this under 'Youth Wants to Know.'

"1. The girl should definitely not quit breathing. Cessation of breathing will inevitably end in death unless CPR measures are employed. Contrary to what you may think, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is not the same as kissing.

"2. Don't make a 'smack' sound unless your partner starts to do more than kiss, in which case a firm smack applied to his face would be both appropriate and effective.

"3. Once your lips are engaged, moving your head can be kind of messy unless your partner moves with you. Work this out beforehand.

"4. Leave your nose in the middle of your face. Most noses look fine there."

Public Trial Is Proper

Hopefully the U. S. Supreme Court has put to rest the question of whether trials should be open to the press and the public in our country.

Of course they should be. Yet the question has been a nagging one since the Constitution was framed.

There was great concern when the Supreme Court ruled last year that trial judges had great authority to close pre-trial hearings to the public and the press. That, too, violates the principle of public trial, but at least now a citizen can't be put on trial behind closed doors, with all the potential for abuse that situation carries.

There was, of course a loophole in the ruling. The wording left judges some authority to conduct closed trials as a last resort to ensure fairness for a defendant. And that will be seized upon by some judges as an excuse to conduct secret trials.

As always, those few judges will be telling us, the citizens, that they expect us to sit on juries, but don't trust us to render fair judgements and still live in an open society.

Our Constitution is clear that public trials are a right. It is a right that citizens of repressive societies would give everything to have. We hope the courts will fiercely protect this right as long as we are a nation.

Being Average Is Progress

Being average is not what we are taught to strive for in our society, but sometimes achieving the average is an accomplishment.

North Carolina has been appalled for many years to find its students below the national averages.

This year, Gov. Hunt announced, first, second, third and sixth grade students scored at the national average in reading and math on the standardized California Achievement tests: Ninth graders were still below, but, lo and behold, we seem to be making progress.

THIS AFTERNOON Affecting People

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Despite its brevity, and its preoccupation with state employee salaries, the 1980 session of the General Assembly did some things which will affect the average North Carolinian.

Action was taken on air pollution from vehicles and on the mixed-drink law which can have considerable effect.

There were 402 new bills introduced during the three-week session, and 255 new laws enacted. About 25 percent of those were strictly local bills, and as always it will be weeks or months before the full impact of some measures adopted will be realized.

threatens to cut off federal highway funds unless the state complies. It is not clear whether the action is more to satisfy clean air concerns, or federal funding concerns.

School bus drivers will get a raise to $3.30 per hour effective immediately, and to $3.50 per hour in March of next year; this to attract older, more experienced drivers. To get a job, applicants must have six months driving experience.

Liquor-by-the-drink created a brief flurry of interest as the law was amended to allow cities located in counties where ABC stores and would benefit the court process by their presence, and should not be automatically excluded. The judge must still decide whether to grant the exemption.

Some lawmakers have been bragging about the tax cutting action in the 1980 session, but the impact is minimal. A $200 exemption on personal income taxes on interest earned from savings will mean, at best, $14; and most close to the scene really don't expect many taxpayers to use this new tax measure designed to encourage savings by citizens. The other tax cut is a four-cent reduction in the per gallon tax on gasoline.

Criminal law got a couple of major changes, including stiff penalties for those convicted of drug smuggling, and delays were enacted for implementation of both the speedy trial laws and the presumptive sentencing laws.

are located, but where no separate city ABC system exists, to hold elections apart from the entire county. That can be done if there is a liquor store within a mile of the city limit. It affects cities in Catawba, Dare, Carteret, and Pitt counties. There have been cases in which voters rejected drinks countywide, but the cities wanted them. Before, a separate city election was possible only if the city had its own ABC stores.

Jury

A proposal to exempt citizens from jury duty if 65 years of age or older was rejected, but the assembly decided to allow the elderly to write for an exemption rather than having to appear in person. The obvious sentiment was that some older people would like to serve on juries,

WASHINGTON — The theme for this year's Republican convention, according to California's Lt. Gov. Mike Curb, who is in charge of the show, will be "nostalgia." Since there is no contest, and not even an expectation of a fight, the networks will have to cover 15 hours of entertainment.

The biggest burden will be on the TV anchormen and the floor reporters in Detroit, who will have to create the excitement in order to keep their listeners.

I now take you to the producer's booth of CBS in Detroit where all the action will be directed. It is opening night of the convention.

The producer, sitting in his chair, is staring at all the TV monitors, not only those of his cameramen but also NBC's and ABC's.

He says, "I want a tight shot of Kate Smith singing the Star-Spangled Banner. Then we go to the floor and talk to the delegates."

The director says, "John Chancellor and David Brinkley are coming up with an exclusive interview with Dorothy Lamour."

"Dammit, who do we

"ABC is coming up with Sander Vanocur and The Andrews Sisters in the Illinois delegation."

"Where's Harry Reasoner?"

"He's trying to get over to Shirley Temple, but he can't get through the mob."

"Walter wants to do Shirley Temple."

"It's too late. Tom Brokaw has her on NBC."

Other Editors Say On The Agenda

(The Raleigh Times)

Thanks to a suit filed against the N.C. Department of Human Resources in Wake Superior Court recently, the department's "blue ribbon" committee appointed to study its mosquito control program at least has an agenda.

It would have to include some serious charges brought against the department by the N.C. Conservation Council and the N.C. Consumers' Council, Inc.

The suit filed by the two groups charges that the $888,000 the state spends a year for mosquito control is going to private landowners for property improvement rather than to an on-going war against the mosquito. The funds, the suit claims, are going for stream channelization and diking and ditching private land in coastal counties. Some, it is charged, are used to build private boat docks and for duck hunting preserves.

In some instances the charges may be hard to prove since it might be difficult to determine if opening a ditch which is a haven for breeding mosquitoes serves the farmer or the public most. But a concentration of spending in one particular area of the state or limited choice of weapons in the war against the mosquito might suggest there is more politics than perfection in the state's mosquito control program.

Raleighites can remember when mosquito control was very visible. Fogging trucks moved slowly through neighborhoods, spraying noxious chemicals that cowed residents as well as mosquitoes. The latter presumably died while the former fled to the safety of their living rooms. The program died in the wake of regulations forbidding the use of DDT.

But now neither the county nor the city operates a spraying program. Apparently the local folk kill their own mosquitoes or learn to live with them.

What Human Resources' blue ribbon committee learns about the state's almost-a-million-dollar mosquito control program will be interesting.

It may find that the program isn't needed any more than public funding of private docks or dredging is needed. It will probably learn that the department needs stricter guidelines on allocating mosquito control funds or that it needs to abide by the criteria it already has.

Revolt Amid Preachers

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ATLANTA — The disaffection on Nov. 4 of a steadfast source of Jimmy Carter's support was signaled in the heart of what supposedly is still Carter country by Dr. William W. Pennell, pastor of the huge Forrest Hills Baptist Church in Decatur, Ga.

"I've had about all the born-again diplomacy I can stand," he declared in his rich baritone. That reference to the conduct of foreign policy by President Carter, a born-again Christian, was greeted with laughter, applause and a few shouts of "Amen, brother" by his audience: some 200 Georgia preachers.

What makes this so disquieting for the White House is that Pennell admittedly was a staunch supporter of Carter in 1976 (ironically, while living in Gerald R. Ford's Michigan). Whether they admit it or not, so were most of the clergymen listening to him.

The nature of their unpublicized, invitation-only meeting in Atlanta also ought to disturb Carter. These Protestant preachers, mostly evangelical and fundamentalist but from many denominations, were gathered to get organized for political action from the pulpit unprecedented in this nation.

The day-long session in Atlanta started with exhortations on issues (conservative social policy, pro-defense buildup) and ended with nuts-and-bolts advice on how the ministers can tell their flocks how to vote without losing their tax exemptions. Through it all not much was said about Carter, but what was said was all negative.

"New right" political activist Paul Weyrich, the leadoff speaker, predicted the president would veto any school-prayer bill passed by Congress. Dr. George Stanley, pastor of Atlanta's First Baptist Church, broke in to say that Carter had left no doubt whatever of his intention at a meeting with evangelicals earlier this year.

Do any of the clergymen attending the political action session here still back Carter? "None," one small-town Georgia Methodist minister informed us. "The problem is to get any of them to confess they voted for Carter last time. But believe me, they did."

Dr. Pennell is not reluctant to confess those past ties. "I was thrilled at the thought of a born-again in the White House," he told us. But the thrill began to fade on inauguration day when Carter mentioned the Lord's name less often than any other president." Pennell flatly predicts that church opposition will cost Carter even his native Georgia, a state politicians regard as overwhelmingly the president's.

The preachers feel Carter has betrayed them on the social questions they care about most deeply, as stressed in the Atlanta conference: abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), homosexuals (usually referred to as "queers" during the meeting here) and school prayer. There was no talk about economics or taxes. While "socialism" was never mentioned, "humanism" was anathematized repeatedly.

So was Carter's defense

Non-Return Check Plan Tried

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Americans write and cash between 35 billion and 40 billion checks a year — more than 1,000 checks per second. And some banks are trying to cut paperwork and costs by not returning canceled checks.

The non-return or check-storage programs work like this: Banks copy canceled checks, usually on microfilm, instead of sending them back to account holders. The banks keep the originals for a short period, then destroy them. Customers still get monthly statements. And anyone who needs a copy of a check itself can get it from the bank, usually at no charge.

"The banks are trying to work out some means of stemming the flow of paper," said Martha Myers of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

Bankers say the non-return plans — most of which are still experimental — are convenient for depositors and limit cost increases for financial institutions. Check storage programs are not likely to reduce customers' bank fees, particularly with next year's expected rise in postage, but they may keep checks from rising.

Gerard Milano of the American Bankers Association said that on the average, it costs about a quarter to process a check. Savings due to photo-electronic storage vary, but industry sources said the per-check costs can be cut by three cents to a nickel.

Robert V. Sabek, executive vice president of the Valley National Bank of Arizona, which is testing a check-storage plan, said savings average $1.75 to $2 per account per year. "It's a way to contain increasing costs," he said. "We won't have to increase fees as rapidly."

Milano said non-return — formally known as check truncation — means depositors don't have to worry about keeping track of a stack of paper. "People lose the checks that get sent back to them," Milano said. "Why go looking through your garage for old canceled checks when you can pick up the phone and call the bank?"

The Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Co. of Baltimore is one of a handful of the 14,500 commercial banks across the country offering a non-return plan. Mercantile started what it calls "Courtesy Check Storage" on a limited basis in November 1977. The service is now available at all of the bank's 17 branches.

Ben Leaf of Mercantile said the program has "been working very, very well." Leaf said customers can get up to 24 free photocopies a year. Most people, he said, need one or two at the most.

"It's really a feature that customers would like to have," said Leaf, adding that when the company initially offered "Courtesy Check Storage" in conjunction with the opening of a new branch, 85 percent of the customers opted for the non-return service.

The Valley National Bank of Arizona started "Courtesy Check Storing" early last year in a pilot project involving five of the bank's 200 branches. The program is being expanded. Sabek said that a survey after six months showed that customers "liked the convenience of it... liked saving all that storage space and liked the safety of it."

All the bankers interviewed insisted that check truncation is not likely to cause problems for consumers. They said photocopies are legally acceptable as evidence of payment. "It's important to have a good retrieval system" for the microfilm records, said Milano, "but in this age of automated systems, that's not too difficult."

The bankers said that computers are less likely to make mistakes than people. "When information is wrong, it's generally human error," said a spokesman for Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago, who did not want his name used.

Continental is participating in an American Bankers Association pilot project that takes check truncation one step further: the checks aren't even returned to the bank on which they are written. Instead, the checks are kept — in electronic form — by the bank that cashes them. The pilot project involves corporate customers only and is being tested on stock dividend checks.

Strength For Today

TRUST AND EFFORT
The story is told about a man lost in a barren area. Suffering from thirst, he prayed for rain and crept into a small cave to sleep. During the night it rained, but although the unfortunate wanderer had several pans and dishes in his pack he had forgotten to put them out, and so lost the rainwater that he so desperately needed.

Some people go through life in the same way. They desire something, they earnestly hope for it, they even pray sincerely for it — but they never do anything about it. They want the water to drink but they never have the awareness of their plight or the faith to put out vessels to catch the raindrops.

Praying is like writing a check on God. Merely to write it is not enough; you must go down to the bank with it, endorse it, and hand it to the teller, confident that you will receive the money.

If the check is drawn for the right purpose, you will. — ELISHA DOUGLASS

Better Sucker Job Is Needed

High MH (maleic hydrazide) residue levels have made it necessary for Pitt County tobacco farmers to do a better job of controlling suckers with contact materials.

According to Roger Cobb, assistant agricultural extension agent, two applications of a contact material may be necessary where one has been used in the past so that we may cut down on our MH usage.

The tobacco has moved into the sucker control stage. Farmers need to be thinking about sucker controlling chemicals correctly.

Contacts should be applied at 20 psi pump pressure with the spray boom 12 inches above the tobacco plant. Spraying when the plants are wet or wilted should be avoided. The best results can be expected on bright, clear days. The sucker is killed by dehydration caused by the contact material. This dehydration is rapid on bright, clear days.

Two applications of contacts applied properly about three to five days apart should control both primary and secondary suckers. Poor timing and poor technique will get only the primary suckers.

By doing a good job with the contact, the grower will be able to pick the best time to make the one application of the recommended rate of MH containing materials. The MH materials should be applied about two days following a rain of irrigation so that they are most readily absorbed. Applying MH ma-

Festival Names Committee

The Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, Inc. named its executive committee at a meeting on Wednesday morning.

Robert L. Mills of Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company was named president. Burke H. Barbee with Wachovia Bank & Trust Company was appointed vice-president and program chairman. John Moore of WNCN Radio was named vice-president, publicity. Mrs. Anne Briley with Home Savings and Loan Association was appointed treasurer and vice-chairman, program. Kaye Hampton, the festival's executive director, was appointed secretary.

The festival is gearing up for its activities to take place in mid-November. A schedule of events was discussed and announcements of these activities will be forthcoming. Committee chairpersons for the various events were also discussed. In an effort to expand the Third Annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival, making it bigger and better than last year's, the committee chairpersons will be selected from Pitt and the seven counties surrounding Pitt County at a future executive committee meeting.

policy. The need for greater military spending was a keynote at a meeting where several ministers mentioned "just 1,000 days remaining" for the American republic to save itself from communist domination. While not related to apocalyptic Biblical prophecy, this warning reflects the conviction by many evangelicals that this world is in its "last days."

Can these preachers, new to politics and naive about it, sway their congregations? Here in the Bible Belt, chances are good.

Even before the Atlanta meeting, Georgia clergymen were passing out to parishioners a tract called "Ronald Reagan: A Man of Faith." In it, Reagan supports private Christian schools and school prayer while attacking abortion and homosexuality. "The time has come to turn to God and reassert our trust in Him for the healing of America," he says. That spells big problems for Carter among voters he cannot afford to lose.

"Switch to Walter. He's seen 'Mrs. Miniver' three times."

"Barbara Walters has Joe DiMaggio in the booth."

"Chancellor is now talking to Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire."

"Does anyone know where Mary Pickford is sitting?"

"She's dead, Bill."

"Oh Yeah. I guess we better go to the commercial."

New Hazard In Cigarette

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be a new danger in cigarette smoking: carbon monoxide.

The government previously has warned smokers about nicotine and tar contents of cigarettes. Now, the Federal Trade Commission will begin tests to discover the carbon monoxide levels.

A report on smoking last year by the surgeon general said that carbon monoxide may be a "possible critical factor" in heart disease and other ailments.

The FTC results will be published in January. But the figures may show that cigarettes low in tar and nicotine are not necessarily also low in carbon monoxide, the FTC cautioned.

Tar and nicotine levels have been published for cigarettes for nine years, since they were identified by the government as health factors. The listings have led to a shift by the smoking public to cigarettes low in tar and nicotine, the FTC says.

Federal officials have repeatedly warned about the health dangers of smoking since a 1964 surgeon general's report linked smoking to lung cancer and heart disease.

But the tobacco industry claims there is not yet any conclusive proof that smoking and various diseases are related.

Three Of 'Four Seasons' Hurt

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three members of the Four Seasons singing group were injured during an open-air concert on Independence Mall when a sudden gust of rain and wind blew down two light standards.

The accident Saturday night also injured three other people and demolished $125,000 worth of the group's equipment. The injured were treated and released.

"It just seemed to have been an act of God," said Frankie Valli, the group's lead singer. "I had just left my microphone when everything seemed to explode."

Confusion ensued among the 30,000 spectators at the free concert, as some struggled to get out of the way while others moved closer to see if any of the group had been seriously injured.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦Q3 ♦Q105 ♦A72 ♦AJ954
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—It is a matter of simple arithmetic. If partner has a minimum 16 points, you want to be in game. Even if partner has a maximum 18 points, you do not have enough for slam. Therefore, to bid three clubs is futile—it might get you too high. Just raise to three no trump.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A14 ♦KQ6 ♦AK9 ♦QJ105
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♦ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—The preempt has accomplished its task—you know you want to be in slam, but you can't be sure whether to settle for a small slam or try for a grand. If you cue-bid four spades, you will probably elicit a heart response, which leaves you no better placed. While it is true that seven clubs could be a good contract if partner has four or five cards in that suit, we would take the practical approach and settle for six no trump.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K6 ♦A1093 ♦J872 ♦A93
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♦ Pass Pass Dble. Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Since partner is in the balancing seat, his takeout double might be shaded. However, he must have at least 11 points for his action, so we feel that some effort should be made to get to game. A jump to two hearts will convey the value of your hand. If partner has a full takeout double, he will act again.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

A.—Partner has shown 19-20 points and a balanced hand, and you have a sound opening bid. Therefore, you must not yet give up on slam. Partner surely has three cards in at least one of our suits, so we must have an adequate trump fit. For the moment, we would simply complete the description of our hand by bidding four diamonds.

♦J108 ♦6 ♦9873 ♦AQ1072

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has made a game try, and we have a rather good hand for him despite the fact that we have only three-card spade support. The one bid that should be ruled out is three spades—that is much too timid. It is a choice between a jump to four spades and a bid of four clubs. We slightly prefer the latter, since it might alert partner to the fact that we have only three-card spade support. Partner won't misread our strength—after all, we made only a mild bid at our first turn.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦Q93 ♦AK86 ♦Q7 ♦K854
What is your opening bid?

A.—In first, second or fourth seat, you should prepare for your rebid by opening one club. If partner responds one diamond, you can bid one heart; if he responds one heart, or one spade, you can raise. In third seat, there are tactical considerations, for your left-hand opponent might have the best hand at the table. In this case we would prefer the lead-directing opening of one heart.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AK872 ♦9 ♦A8742 ♦J6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 NT Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Partner has shown 19-20 points and a balanced hand, and you have a sound opening bid. Therefore, you must not yet give up on slam. Partner surely has three cards in at least one of our suits, so we must have an adequate trump fit. For the moment, we would simply complete the description of our hand by bidding four diamonds.

Pitt County's Season Ends

Rocky Mt. Does It Again, 3-1

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer
Rocky Mount did it again.
Five times Pitt County's American Legion Post 39 baseball team squared off against Post 58 from Rocky Mount. Four times, Post 58 came out on top. Sunday afternoon, RM made it the last time.

After winning the first game of the two-out-of-three Area 1 East semifinals Friday night, Pitt County watched as the visitors knotted the series Saturday night before ending Post 39's season Sunday, 3-1.
"We just didn't get the hits when we needed them," Pitt coach Pat Smith said from the dugout after the game. "We made some mistakes early and that hurt us. Ellis (Rocky Mount southpaw Bruce) kept us off stride throughout the game. It's tough."

It was tough for the hitters from the home team as Ellis allowed only five hits in going the distance in the series finale. Using a mixture of off speed pitches, the lefthander struck out five and walked three in the contest, working out of a pair of jams in the process.

Pitt starter Gordan Douglas yielded just five hits in his six innings of work but a second-inning throwing error by the righthander proved to be his undoing. He fielded a bunt and threw wild to first, allowing one runner to score and moving another to third in the game-deciding second.

Smith's troops struck for the game's first run in the bottom of the first inning. Mark Shank led off with a double down the third baseline and moved to second on Curtis Spencer's sacrifice bunt. Shank crossed the plate when Ellis threw a wild pitch. Post 39 left men on second and third in the inning, using a pair of walks, but could not score another run in the frame.
Post 58 rallied for a pair of runs in the second, taking advantage of Douglas' error. David Downs led off with a clean single and Chuck Davis followed with a bunt. Douglas fielded the ball and threw the ball into right field, allowing Downs to score and Davis to move to third. Davis scored on Bill Wilkes' fielder's choice.
The usually potent bats of Pitt County were held hitless by Ellis until the fifth when Shank laid down a bunt single. He was left stranded on first.
The visitors added an insurance run in the top of the sixth inning when, after one out, Down slapped the first pitch he saw over the left-centerfield fence.
PC managed one more threat against Ellis, that coming in the seventh when the locals used a pair of singles and a sacrifice bunt to put runners on second and third with only one out. Mark Douglas and Skip Hill laced back-to-back singles and Jeff Wilson moved them to third and second, respectively, with his sacrifice. Sammy Hodges then hit a short fly ball to right and Shank struck out to end the threat.
Roger Williams came on in the sixth for Pitt and hurled three innings of one-hit ball but the offense of the home team was held at bay by Ellis.
Shank and Mark Douglas each had a pair of hits in Pitt's final game of the legion campaign with both players collecting a single and a double. Hill garnered the team's fifth hit with his seventh inning single.
Timmy Tucker and Downs paced the winners with two hits each while Wilkes and Bill Merrifield each had one hit for Rocky Mount.
The loss gives Pitt County a 14-5 record for the season, with four of the five losses coming at the hands of Rocky Mount.
Sunday, Rocky Mount did it again.

For Fans, It's Still A 'Classic'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The outcome isn't reflected in any standings. It's a contest annually accompanied by controversy over the player selection process, and the game itself lacks the lingering tension of the playoffs or the World Series.

But when the teams take the field at Dodger Stadium Tuesday night for the 1980 All-Star Game, it's still the "Midsummer Classic" for fans. And the game seems somehow to bring out the best in baseball's best players.

The contest, to be nationally televised by ABC, is scheduled for a 5:40 p.m. PDT start.

The game shapes up as a version of "hungry youngsters versus successful veterans," as the new-look American League squad tries to end the National League's long dominance — eight victories in a row and 16 wins in the last 17 meetings.

Half of Manager Earl Weaver's AL squad is comprised of players who'll be making their first All-Star appearances, giving Chuck Tanner's NL contingent a definite edge in experience.

Weaver, who hopes to guide the AL to its first victory since 1971, will have just two pitchers on his staff who've seen previous All-Star duty, the Yankees' Tommy John and Rich Gossage. Newcomers are Baltimore's Steve Stone, Kansas City's Larry Gura, Toronto's Dave Stieb, Seattle's Rick Honeycutt, Chicago's Ed Farmer and Boston's Tom Burdmeier.

Tanner's pitching staff will feature Philadelphia strikeout artist Steve Carlton; Los Angeles' Jerry Reuss, who recently threw a no-hitter; and Chicago's Bruce Sutter, the winning pitcher in the last two All-Star Games. Houston's J.R. Richard, Pittsburgh's Jim Bibby, Los Angeles' Bob Welch, Pittsburgh's Kent Tekulve and San Francisco's Ed Whiston round out the formidable NL mound corps.

The contest will be the first festivities at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, where tomorrow night the annual All-Star game will be held. (AP Laserphoto) hosted by Los Angeles in 21 years, and the NL lineup will have a distinct Dodger flavor. First baseman Steve Garvey, second baseman Dave Lopes, shortstop Bill Russell and outfielder Reggie Smith of Los Angeles were all voted into the starting lineup.

Although hitting .240 this season, Lopes received 3,862,403 votes, most of any player, raising some accusations that Los Angeles fans overstuff the ballot box.
"I didn't feel I was having an All-Star type of year," Lopes admitted. "To get more votes than anyone, that's surprising. But it's nice to know you are that popular with the fans."

Smith, leading the NL in hitting, had threatened to pass up the game if Dodgers teammate Dusty Baker was overlooked for the contest. But when Baker, an outfielder who finished fourth in fan balloting, was not named to the squad by Tanner, Smith relented, saying, "Since I was voted in, and I consider that an honor, I'll play."

The rest of the NL lineup is Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, outfielders Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Dave Kingman of Chicago, and third baseman Ray Knight of Cincinnati. Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt was voted the starting third baseman, but will miss the contest with a hamstring pull.

Three AL starters as voted by the fans — Boston outfielder Jim Rice, second baseman Paul Molitor of Milwaukee and third baseman George Brett of Kansas City — will not play because of injuries.

Milwaukee's Ben Oglivie is the probable starter in Rice's spot, while California's Bobby Grich or the Yankees' Willie Randolph will open at second. Graig Nettles of the Yankees or Texas' Buddy Bell is expected to start for Brett.

The other starters are California first baseman Rod Carew, New York shortstop Bucky Dent, Boston's Fred Lynn and New York's Reggie Jackson in the outfield, and Boston's Carlton Fisk behind the plate.

Simpson Battles Course To Triumph

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Despite the large doses of publicity given to the blighted greens at Butler National Golf Club, 24-year-old Scott Simpson's victory in the 77th Western Open came to down to excellent golf played over one of the most difficult courses on the PGA tour.

Simpson, a 1977 and 1978 NCAA champion for the University of Southern California who joined the tour in January 1979, finished a sizzling 281 Sunday for a new Western Open record over the Butler course. His score over the 7,097-yard, par-72 course tops Andy Bean's record of 282, set in 1978.

Simpson admitted there had been some "grumbling" among the pros in the early rounds over the conditions of the Butler greens, affected by what experts called "red leaf spot." The disease had turned most of the greens to a dead rust color, with the only green coming from a weed that wasn't supposed to be there.
The unsightly putting surfaces were sprayed with a dye for the pro-am earlier in the week and for Saturday's and Sunday's televised rounds.

"I don't think anyone had much of an advantage," Simpson said of the greens, adding that "everyone had the same" chances over 72 holes. Whoever hit the most good putts is probably going to make the most putts.
Simpson's win Sunday netted him top prize of $54,000, boosting his earnings this year to $102,000. His victory exempts him from qualifying for next year's Western, and puts him into the World Series of Golf and the Masters.

A member of the 1977 Walker Cup team whose best finish last year was a tie for fourth in the Westchester Classic, clinched his victory when he scored an eagle at the 475-yard, par-5 12th hole. The eagle left his closest competition, 1975 Western Open champion Hale Irwin, no closer than five shots off the lead.

Perez's Three RBIs Leads Red Sox Past Baltimore

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Age apparently hasn't tarnished Tony Perez's princely skills. In fact, he's hitting these days with the old authority. "I'm not striking out as much this year," says the Boston Red Sox first baseman. "I'm making contact. I feel I'm a better hitter now than I was five years ago. I'm getting my second wind — I'm born again."

The Red Sox picked up Perez in the free agent re-entry draft last winter in hopes of adding power to their lineup — and so far, he has more than fulfilled their expectations.

The 38-year-old veteran is currently leading the American League in RBI with 64, including the three runs he knocked in Sunday to help Boston's 6-4 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

"I knew I could get a lot of runs batted in with this club," said Perez. "They always leave a lot of men on base."

Perez was a longtime terror with the Cincinnati Reds and Montreal Expos in the National League before coming over to the American League this season.

In other AL games, the Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from the Oakland A's 2-0 and 5-4; the Cleveland Indians stopped the New York Yankees 5-3; the Seattle Mariners defeated the Kansas City Royals 5-3; the Detroit Tigers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-5; the Minnesota Twins turned back the Texas Rangers 4-1 and the California Angels blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 2-0.

Perez drove in runs with a sacrifice fly in the first, a single in the third and a solo homer in the fifth, his 12th of the season and 335th of his career.

Carlton Fisk, who returned to the Boston lineup during the Baltimore series after missing two weeks with a bruised elbow, laced a two-run single during a four-run rally in the third which finished Mike Flanagan.

White Sox 2-5, A's 0-4

Jim Morrison and Harold Baines each singled home first-inning runs and left-hander Steve Trout pitched a five-hitter as Chicago beat Oakland in the first game of their doubleheader.

Trout, 4-8, didn't allow an Oakland runner past second base. He fanned two and walked three in going the distance for the fourth time this season.

Pinch-hitter Greg Pryor's two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning off reliever Bob Lacey lifted the White Sox past the A's in the second game.

"He gave me a slider on the first pitch and I thought that was the pitch I should have hit," said Pryor after hitting Lacey's second pitch to him. "Because of the shadows, I couldn't see either pitch too well. But I figured I needed a double to bring the runner around and I went after it."

Indians 5, Yankees 3

Gary Alexander smashed his second pinch home run in two days, a three-run shot in the sixth inning, to lead Cleveland over New York. Alexander's wallop broke a 2-2 tie and tied an American League record shared by eight other players for hitting pinch homers in consecutive at-bats.

Rick Waits, 7-7, was the winner, scattering nine hits over 8 1-3 innings before needing help from Sid Monge, who gained his sixth save.

Mariners 5, Royals 3

Bruce Bochte and Tom Paciorek slammed solo home runs and collected four hits apiece to power Seattle past Kansas City.

The victory lifted the Mariners into a 35-45 record, their best at the All-Star break in the four-year history of the franchise.

Floyd Bannister, with help from three relievers, evened his record at 6-6, while Paul Splittorff, 5-6, took the loss.

Tigers 7, Blue Jays 5

Richie Hebner drove in three runs and scored the winning run to back the combined six-hit pitching of Jack Morris and Aurelio Lopez as Detroit defeated Toronto.

Toronto's Ernie Whitt had tied the game 5-5 in the Blue Jays' seventh inning with a three-run homer before Hebner came home with the Tigers' winning run in the bottom of the frame on John Wockenfuss' single.

Twins 4, Rangers 1

Fernando Arroyo and Jerry Koosman combined on a four-hitter, pitching Minnesota over Texas.

The Twins took a 1-0 lead in the second on an RBI single by Pete Mackanin off loser Jon Matlack, 4-5. They scored their eventual winning run in the fifth on Mackanin's double and another two-bagger by Hosken Powell.

Arroyo, 1-1, had a no-hitter until Mickey Rivers beat out a roller with two out in the sixth and later needed relief help from Koosman in the eighth after the Rangers scored their run on an error.

Angels 2, Brewers 0

Ed Halicki pitched two-hit ball for 81-3 innings and Jason Thompson blasted a home run to carry California over Milwaukee. Thompson smashed his seventh homer of the season with one out in the second and Joe Rudi and Bobby Grich followed with doubles for the Angels' second run.

Halicki, 2-1, allowed a single to Cecil Cooper in the first and later gave up a double to Robin Yount in the ninth before giving way to reliever Mark Clear, who gained his sixth save.

Ali, On Toes, Floats Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — "I can levitate," said Muhammad Ali. "You all get your cameras ready."

"I will raise myself in the air two inches," said the man who held the heavyweight championship three times before he retired last year.

Then he got onto a table, turned his back to his audience and his body lifted two inches in the air, where it remained for several seconds. You had to be at the right angle to see the toe of Ali's shoe on the table.

The 38-year-old Ali had a ball at a news conference, doing "magic," reciting some of his time-worn poems, building himself up and putting down Larry Holmes and Scott LeDoux.

Patterson in three rounds in 1959.

"I don't go to many fights because I cause chaos," said Ali, who then disrupted the weigh-in ceremony.

He hid behind a post and booed when Holmes was introduced. He let the crowd in chanting, "Ali, Ali, Ali."

Then a fan recognized Ali and shouted, "Here comes the real champ."

"I'll destroy Holmes," hollered Ali, who then worked up the crowd, held up his arms and said, "OK guys, army retreat."

The crowd began dispersing.

Lady Ump

When Fans Disagree They Yell Go Wash Dishes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Pam Postema finds only one difference in being a lady umpire. When vocal fans disagree with a call, they holler for her to go home and wash dishes.

"My being a woman in this game doesn't mean anything," says the determined 26-year-old from northern Ohio. "I'm only judged on my ability."

"Nobody ever says anything to me about being a woman. The people in the stands and the players yell at the other umpires as much as they yell at me. It's just that they tell me to go home and wash the dishes or go home and get married."

Late one afternoon on a hot, muggy day, Postema was sitting by the pool at a local motel. Home plate was far away.

"It's great working at night," she said. "You have the whole day to yourself."

At night she'll be calling balls and strikes at a minor league baseball game.

The Class A Florida State League. And complaints are rare from male counterparts, she says.

Says retired umpire Al Somers, "She is very determined to make it. She said she really wanted to be an umpire. I told her about the difficulties. I told her about the problems of a woman making it. But she's made it. She hasn't quit yet."

On the field she tucks her hair behind her cap. Her voice booms. Her throws to pitchers are sharp.

Sometimes fans can't tell her gender under all the equipment. "I hear a lot arguing about whether I'm a girl or not," she says.

Traveling from April to September, living on fast food, she earns $300 a month, plus $1,050 monthly living expenses.

She's on the road, works nights, has a few beers and sleeps late. But sometimes traillazing has its drawbacks. "You're by yourself a lot in this business," she says. "I don't mind being alone, but everybody gets lonely sometimes."

"It's the 20 hours you don't work that kill you each day. Those are the tough ones."

Boxer Denny Is Dead

MONTREAL (AP) — Boxer Cleveland Denny, in a coma since June 20, died at 3:30 a.m. Monday, according to a woman acting as a family spokesman.

The woman, who refused to identify herself, made the announcement by telephone early this morning. She said the family will issue a statement later today.

Officials at Maisonneuve Hospital, where Denny had been kept alive since his tragic bout against Canadian lightweight champion Gaetan Hart, would not immediately confirm the report.

However, they did confirm that Denny's family was at the hospital and would issue a statement later.

The woman said Denny, 24, never regained consciousness. He was kept alive by a respirator even after being pronounced clinically dead last Wednesday after a brain scan revealed little or no mental activity.

His family, which kept a vigil at his bedside, had considered disconnecting the life-support system but decided against it when doctors said he would likely die in a few days in any case.

The boxer was knocked out in the waning seconds of the 10th and final round of his non-title fight, a preliminary to the World Boxing Council welterweight title fight between Robert Duran and Sugar Ray Leonard at Montreal's Olympic Stadium.

Denny was married and the father of Cleveland Jr., not yet one year old.

U.S., Soviet Stars To Meet In Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — American and Soviet track and field stars, who will not be facing each other in Moscow later this month because of the U.S. Olympic boycott, were to meet in at least one event during a star-studded two-day international meet starting here today.

It's the 5,000 meters and the Americans in the race were former U.S. record holder Duncan McDonald, Dick Buerkle and Matt Centrowitz. They were to face at least one Russian, Alexander Fedotkin.

Fedotkin, fighting for a berth on the Soviets' Olympic track team, has a personal best of 13:17.7. It was not certain whether Valery Abramov, the Soviets' top runner at that distance with a time of 13:15.6, would enter.

Also competing were Suleiman Nyambui, a Texas-El Paso student from Tanzania who won a 5,000 race here three weeks ago, and the highly rated West German trio of Thomas Wessinghage, Klaus-Peter Hildebrand and Karl Fleschen.

Several world records have fallen in this pre-Olympic season, and some of the events at Stockholm's Olympic stadium could produce more. An amazing 66 world records have been broken there since the 1912 Olympics.

West German Dietmar Moegenburg and Poland's 1976 Olympic gold medalist Jacek Wszola were both entered in the high jump.

Chenoweth Wins Golf Cup

MADISON, Ind. (AP) — A tired Dean Chenoweth said his victory in Sunday's Gold Cup Regatta was the toughest boat race of his life, even though he was already a lap ahead of the pack when the starting gun went off.

Four other drivers, jockeying for position in the flying start along the Ohio River course, crossed the starting line just before the gun sounded. That meant a one-lap penalty for the others, but Chenoweth didn't realize his start was legal.

"I thought we all jumped the gun, and all I knew was that I had to catch the boats ahead of me," the 42-year-old driver from Tallahassee, Fla., said after winning the Gold Cup for the third time.

"I'm so tired. It took everything out of me. I put everything I had into that last heat," he said.

After that heat got underway, Chenoweth found his new Miss Budweiser hydroplane trailing defending champion Bill Muncy's Atlas Van Lines — though neither driver knew that Chenoweth had not been penalized.

By the time this week is over, East Carolina University could have a new athletic director.

The committee, headed by Chancellor Tom Brewer, is to meet this week, after having held interviews on campus with the four considered to be the final candidates for the job replacing Bill Cain. The four included Max Ulrich, assistant athletic director at Iowa State; James West, associate athletic director at the University of Virginia; Kenneth Karr, former athletic director at San Diego State, and Howard Hohman, former athletic director at Louisville.

One of them likely will be the new AD for the university. There are some reports, however, that one or more new candidates may be brought in, but that may not be the case.

As to which of the four it will be, the most likely candidates, from what we hear is that Dr. Karr may be the top choice of the group. Dr. Hohman also stands an excellent choice, with Dr. West as the dark horse. Ulrich is no longer believed to be in the race for the position.

Karr, from what we can learn, may have the most experience, having served at San Diego for most of the 70's. He left office (kicked upstairs, according to one report) when a new president came to San Diego. Since then, there have been three athletic directors at the school, and there are supposed to be regrets that Karr is not still in that position. He is also the oldest of the group, around 50.

Hohman only recently resigned his position at Louisville. According to what we have heard, he left after disagreeing with that school's president over several internal questions involving a possible in-house investigation of parts of the athletic program. Hohman was in favor of the investigation; the president was not.

West would bring a good deal of experience with schools in the area, having headed the baseball program at Virginia for 20 years. He might also be more willing to listen to the problems of the so-called "non-revenue" sports, having come from one of them himself.

The new man, regardless of who he is, will face a number of problems. One of the greatest will be the financial situation the school currently finds itself in. Another will be football and basketball scheduling: bringing in the teams the fans want to see. Then, there is the continuing problem of upgrading the other sports, along with Title IX compliance.

Before it is all over, there is the definite possibility that some sports may be dropped, at least temporarily. This is something that many other schools are already doing because of the financial burdens placed on it by Title IX and inflation.

It will not be easy, and patience should be used by East Carolina backers. He won't solve problems overnight.

Borg Defrocked As Invincible

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg has gained his fifth straight Wimbledon tennis title and his deserved niche in history, but he has been defrocked as an invincible man of ice and steel.

Ice melts and steel can bend. It took a gutsy, nerveless kid from the New York suburbs to prove it in the Center Court final Saturday, won nevertheless by the stony Swede in a 3-hour, 53-minute marathon 1-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-7, 8-6.

Young McEnroe showed conclusively that ice water pumps in his own veins as well and there is a healthy store of steel behind that brash, brassy facade that hides the real man.

The bearded, golden-haired Borg clung to his indisputable position as world's No. 1 but his grip on the crown has been loosened rather than tightened by his latest victory.

He found on the Center Court a younger man who could match him shot-for-shot and who, under the fiercest pressure, would not buckle but would call upon some mysterious, unshakable resolve.

No matter where Borg journeys in pursuit of new honors, no matter what the surface or the event, there will always be this tough, talented left-hander breathing down his neck.

The Swede knows it's not going to be easy. Men's tennis is no longer a monarchy. It's a two-way dogfight, and Heaven help the hindmost.

Seven times in this grueling, pressurized final, McEnroe faced match point. Each time, never flinching, he came up with the bold, go-for-broke shot that kept him alive.

The "Ice-Borg" as British papers dubbed him — admitted afterward that McEnroe's refusal to succumb peacefully had shaken his renowned concentration and raised self-doubts in that steel-trap mind of his.

"I kept thinking about all those match points I lost," he said. "I thought for sure I may wind up losing the match."

Before Wimbledon, Borg had told a national news magazine: "I think I am Superman. I can do anything with a tennis ball. I try all the things because suddenly I can't miss the ball."

After Saturday's final, he was more subdued.

Although he says his aim is to be "the greatest player of all-time," he realizes he is only half a champion. He has never won the U.S. Open on clay or cement, nor the Australian on grass. He has failed to dominate the Grand Prix.

He has yet to prove himself a champion of all seasons such as Rod Laver, who won two Grand Slams. He has yet to subjugate McEnroe.

The Douglaston, N.Y., phenom beat Borg three times in 1979. He carried Borg to tiebreaks in two of the three sets earlier this year in the Grand Prix although ailing and in a slump. In Saturday's final, he scored more points than Borg, 195 to 178. It was a match that hung by a tender thread.

McEnroe, swallowing the hurt of a hostile gallery, kept his cool and, in the end, those who had dubbed him "Superbrat" were calling him "Mac-nificent."

He and Borg are contrasts in personality. Borg never shows a flicker of emotion. McEnroe is intense, volatile, quick to dispute a call when he feels wronged but never vulgar or nasty to the crowd.

McEnroe is so high-keyed that he is in perpetual motion, tugging at his shirt, tying and retying his shoelaces, twirling his racket, running hands constantly through his unruly hair. Then there is that bizarre serving ritual — legs wide apart, parallel to the net, body bent over and racket nearly touching the ground before he swings into that lethal twisting delivery.

Pirates Win In 20 Innings

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The innings and hours passed at Three Rivers Stadium, and the scoreboard operator after the top of the ninth had nothing to do but punch zero after zero. It didn't end until Ed Ott, who had caught 20 innings' worth of pitches, lumbered home on Omar Moreno's single to left and started the All-Star break on a positive note for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I'm physically whipped, believe me," Ott said Sunday after the 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs concluded the five-hour, 31-minute battle that gave baseball its longest game of the season.

"It's a great feeling to win a game like this and then have three days off for the All-Star break," Ott continued. "Having those three days to think about what you did wrong to lose a game like this wouldn't be very nice."

He almost ended up thinking those not-so-nice thoughts. With two out in the ninth inning and Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven clinging to a 4-3 lead, pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson's foul tip on a 2-2 pitch slipped into — and out of — Ott's glove.

A few pitches later, Johnson homered to tie the game — continuing the parade of batsmen to the plate, runners to the basepaths and pitchers to the mound. When it was over, 43 players had made a total of 132 official trips to the plate; 13 pitchers had given up 28 hits and 25 runners had been unable to score.

For 122-3 innings, ending with Lee Lacy's 19th inning single, the Pirates couldn't manage a hit off Chicago pitcher.

"They did a great job today," said Cubs Manager Preston Gomez on a discouraging afternoon, "but the pitching has been the most encouraging thing about our ball club the entire first half."

But it was a Pittsburgh pitcher who got the victory on this strange afternoon — Jim Bibby, in his first relief appearance of the season, pitching the final three innings to take an 11-1 record to Los Angeles for the All-Star Game.

"I didn't think I would pitch today," said Bibby, whose .917 winning percentage leads the majors. "But I also didn't think it would go this long."

Cubs slugger Dave Kingman might have wished it hadn't. He lost 15 points on his batting average by going 0-for-9.

In the other National League games Sunday, Steve Carlton and the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 in 10 innings, the Montreal Expos downed the New York Mets 9-4 in 10 innings, the Houston Astros edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and the Atlanta Braves trimmed the San Diego Padres 6-5.

Ott legged out an infield hit to start Pittsburgh's 20th-inning rally, moved to second on Dale Berra's sacrifice and watched Willie Stargell accept an intentional walk before Moreno mercifully singled.

Lost in the shuffle was the 12-strikeout performance by Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven, who pitched the first 10 innings and moved into 28th place on the all-time strikeout list with 2,176. Camillo Pascual had 2,167.

Phillies 8, Cardinals 3
Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, who started his career in St.

consecutive singles by Larry Parrish and Rowland Office delivered two more runs and pitcher Woodie Fryman added an RBI single to cap the burst.

The Mets led 3-1 before Tony Bernazard hit a three-run homer in the Montreal seventh.

Astros 3, Reds 2
Joe Niekro pitched 82-3 innings and gave up just six hits — three of them, including a homer, to Johnny Bench — as Houston defeated Cincinnati.

Errors by left fielder Dave Collins and second baseman Junior Kennedy of Cincinnati led to the two fourth-inning runs that gave the Astros the victory.

Braves 6, Padres 5
Gary Matthews hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning. Jeff Burroughs followed with a two-run shot and Phil Niekro earned his first save of the year with two innings of relief to carry Atlanta past San Diego and give the Braves their seventh victory in eight games.

Wilson Ousts Williamston

ROANOKE — Wilson struck for three runs in the first and six more in the third to whip Williamston, 14-4, Saturday night and move into the Area I East American Legion finals against Rocky Mount, which beat Pitt County two games to one in the other semifinal battle.

Wilson, which defeated Williamston, 12-3, Friday night, got all the runs it needed Saturday in the first three innings. After going up 3-0 in the first half inning, Wilson saw Williamston cut the gap to 3-2 in the bottom of the inning. But a six-run third and a three-run fourth enabled the visitors to pull away for the victory.

Williamston's final run came in the third on Steve Wallace's solo home run. Wallace led the home squad at the plate with four hits in four at bats. Randy Ellis was two-for-four.

Williamston ends the season at 8-11 overall.
Wilson 306 302 000-14 14 0
Williamston 201 000 000-4 9 2
Doug Gowdy and Mack Smith, Cecil Downes, Trent Ange (3), Carl Ange (5) and Greg Harris, Leslie Beacham (6).

B.C. Insurance 25, Farmville 4
Bill Clifton Insurance ripped out 21 hits and scored 15 runs in the first two innings to wallop Farmville, 25-4, Sunday to win the Senior Babe Ruth baseball title.

B.C. Insurance's Bill Kittrell led off the bottom of the first with a home run and, after Crowell Pope singled, Todd Galloway walked and Billy Dough reached on an error, Barry Tyson hit a grand slam to put B.C. Insurance up, 5-0. It was all downhill from there for Farmville. Insurance added 10 runs in the second inning and two more in the third, after Farmville had scored all four its runs in the top half of the inning. B.C. added four runs in the fourth and fifth for its total.

Scott Galloway led the winners at the plate with four hits, including a double, while Mitch Brann and Pope both had three hits. Kittrell, Todd Galloway, Dough, Tyson and Keith Phillips all had two hits for Bill Clifton.

David Joyner had three hits for Farmville.

Alcott's Opponents Finding Difficulties

NOBLESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Amy Alcott says she's a prime example of one who likes to make it hard on herself.

But her opponents on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour are finding the 24-year-old Californian is making it increasingly difficult on them.

Alcott moved up to the No. 2 spot on the tour's 1980 money list with her three-stroke victory over Sally Little and JoAnne Carner in the $150,000 tournament which ended Sunday.

"They did a great job today," said Cubs Manager Preston Gomez on a discouraging afternoon, "but the pitching has been the most encouraging thing about our ball club the entire first half."

But it was a Pittsburgh pitcher who got the victory on this strange afternoon — Jim Bibby, in his first relief appearance of the season, pitching the final three innings to take an 11-1 record to Los Angeles for the All-Star Game.

"I didn't think I would pitch today," said Bibby, whose .917 winning percentage leads the majors. "But I also didn't think it would go this long."

Cubs slugger Dave Kingman might have wished it hadn't. He lost 15 points on his batting average by going 0-for-9.

In the other National League games Sunday, Steve Carlton and the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, the San Francisco Giants beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4 in 10 innings, the Montreal Expos downed the New York Mets 9-4 in 10 innings, the Houston Astros edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-2 and the Atlanta Braves trimmed the San Diego Padres 6-5.

Ott legged out an infield hit to start Pittsburgh's 20th-inning rally, moved to second on Dale Berra's sacrifice and watched Willie Stargell accept an intentional walk before Moreno mercifully singled.

Lost in the shuffle was the 12-strikeout performance by Pittsburgh's Bert Blyleven, who pitched the first 10 innings and moved into 28th place on the all-time strikeout list with 2,176. Camillo Pascual had 2,167.

Phillies 8, Cardinals 3
Philadelphia's Steve Carlton, who started his career in St.

round 69 on the 6,044-yard par-72 Harbour Trees Golf Club Course.

"I think I played very aggressively today," she said, although she finished with 11 consecutive pars after making a 22-foot birdie putt for her third birdie of the day.

The winner, who was second after the opening day and topped the standings after each of the next three rounds, never was seriously challenged on the final day after her first birdie.

Little cut her deficit to one stroke with birdies on two of the first three holes but then had 12 straight pars before finishing with a final round 69.

"If it's real difficult out there, I'll make it even harder," said Alcott after receiving the $22,500 top prize that pushed her 1980 earnings over the $132,000 mark. "I enjoy winning that way."

The victory came after Alcott had set single-round, 36-hole and 54-hole records in the four-year-old Mayflower Classic.

"I told my caddy the other day that I'd like to win a tournament by three to seven shots," Alcott said. "But I don't know if I'd really be happy winning by a lot, because I'd know I just walked away with it."

Alcott said she followed her game plan in posting a final

Putt-Putt Roundup
Jimmy Allen aced the last hole to edge Mike Brown by one stroke to win the Sunday Nite Amateur Tournament at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course.

Allen, who finished with a 93, faltered during the third round, when Brown came from four strokes down to move into a tie after 53 holes. On the last hole Brown got a par two for a 94 while Allen aced the hole to win his first tournament of the year.

Eddie Robinson was third with a 96 while Johnny Carrow and Danny Harris tied for fourth with 99s.

Concert Today Needs 'Concept'

By MARY CAMPBELL, Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Impresario George Wein, reflecting on this year's 10-day Newport Jazz Festival, said the successful concerts are more like Broadway shows than concerts.

"Up till now, we could get away with just presenting artists doing their thing," Wein says. "Now the public and press is really more concerned with concept concerts."

The Newport Jazz Festival, which began 27 years ago outdoors in Newport, R.I., has been in New York since 1972. This year, there were simultaneous concerts in Carnegie and Avery Fisher halls on most nights.

The festival was dedicated this year to the architect of bebop, alto saxophonist Charlie Parker, who was born 60 years ago and died in 1955. It began with excellent tribute concerts to Parker in both halls. Parker was also frequently mentioned and his music played during a tribute concert to bebop vocalist and lyricist Eddie Jefferson.

The second night's tribute in jazz to Fred Astaire was sold out. Singer Angela Bofill sold out two concerts in one evening and Sarah Vaughan sold out hers. "We had an incredible number of sellouts or near sellouts, beyond expectations," Wein says. "For the Toshiko Akiyoshi Big Band concert, we had estimated 60 percent and it did 70 percent. The Gato Barbieri concert was within 100 tickets of selling out."

Still, Wein says, "what we have to work on in the future is the fact that people are looking for similar elements to a Broadway show, a concept, lighting, sound."

"Now it's driving us crazy when something isn't perfect. Artists come in the day before a concert and rehearse that afternoon - like the band for the tap dancing concert - and they weren't together. It necessarily takes more time and rehearsal to get perfection."

Highlight of the festival for Wein was the first half of the soldout "Blues is a Woman" concert. Rosetta Reitz, who produced and conceived the idea, "tried to do a little too much in the second half. I've made the same mistake a lot of times," Wein says.

A young French violinist, Didier Lockwood, joined the Dave Brubeck Quartet and got a standing ovation. New music concerts did well. Wein says, "For the first time there is a growing public for this." "The New Music Remembers the Old Master, Duke Ellington," was an appropriate ending concert.

Disappoints for Wein were Herbie Hancock not selling out a second late-night concert and Chick Corea's charming Saturday afternoon concert for children which also was not full.

The Greenville Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship is happy to invite you and your friends to hear GERALD (Jerry) HANNAH MONDAY, JULY 7, 1980
Our speaker for July, Jerry Hannah, lives in Clinton, N.C. and is Area Supervisor for Blue Cross & Blue Shield of North Carolina. After 21 years in the United States Air Force, he retired as a Senior Master Sergeant having served as operations superintendent of Air Force Recruiting for North and South Carolina as well as Officer for Research and Development Procurement. He has had extensive professional training in various Air Force schools.
Jerry was one of the two original purchasers of Gospel Television Goldsboro (GTG-TV) which airs Christian programming from the local cable company offices. GTG-TV is a nonprofit organization under the direction of a local Board of Directors airing 24 hours a day. Henry Harrison, PTL, co-host, has assisted in telethons and is a friend and supporter of this ministry.
Jerry leads the music for the Goldsboro and Clinton Chapters of FGBMFI. He is a past minister of music for Hickory Road Baptist Church, Sumpter, South Carolina; First Baptist Church, Tuberville, South Carolina, and Trinity Baptist Church, Montgomery, Alabama. He has also been active in Little Theatre, Montgomery, Alabama, in the musical "South Pacific."
We cover your prayers and support this ministry and the advancement of the course of Jesus Christ.
The FGBMFI is not a church or denomination. We are a fellowship of business and lay people who hold the Lord Jesus Christ first in all phases of life. We are a service arm of the Body of Christ seeking first to bring people to a realistic, saving knowledge of Jesus Christ and second, to help Christians experience a deeper, more personal relationship with Jesus Christ. We believe that God, through Jesus Christ, is interested in every area of our life, mind, body and soul. With his wisdom and guidance, we are willing to minister to you His love, peace and joy.
