

'Mistaken Presidency' Assailed By GOP

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Republicans opened their national convention today with an attack on President Carter's "mistaken presidency" and a determination to present a united front for Ronald Reagan's campaign to return the White House to GOP control.

When party chairman Bill Brock called the 32nd GOP National Convention to order in late morning, Reagan's vice presidential choice was the only element of suspense to occupy the delegates' zest for political gossip and rumor.

Since delegates and party officials began arriving here last week, the convention city has been the scene of intense speculation about the vice presidential nomination as well as efforts to influence it.

The agenda for the opening convention session was devoted to routine business and a few speeches, led off by a welcome from Mayor Coleman Young of Detroit, a Democrat, who is a top political ally of President Carter.

Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, one of those on Reagan's list of vice presidential possibilities and the featured speaker at the opening session, set the tone of this week's convention oratory with a slashing attack on Carter.

Said Lugar: "Thank goodness for an election year in this country. Thank goodness for a chance to undo the damage of a mistaken presidency while there is still time."

In remarks prepared for delivery, Lugar described Carter as "weak and ineffective" in his handling of foreign affairs.

"It can now be said of President Jimmy Carter that he has failed in the worst way a president can — he has increased the possibility of war," Lugar said.

By contrast, said the senator, "Ronald Reagan understands that if America offers steady and reliable leadership, we will find support from our allies in Western Europe, Japan, Australia and elsewhere and we will rebuild an effective free world alliance."

Reagan was flying to the convention city today, a journey capping a 12-year quest for the Republican presidential nomination. Most of his top aides arrived last week and worked to defuse potential conflicts over the party platform and to try to ensure that the convention will adhere to a script as tightly crafted as that of any of Reagan's old Hollywood movies.

While there was a lot of guessing about which way Reagan might be leaning on the vice presidential choice and a lot of behind the scenes maneuvering on lobbying on behalf of one or another prospect, there also was plenty of open, unabashed promoting of favorites.

Supporters of Rep. Jack Kemp of New York were wearing hats with bands reading "Reagan-Kemp."

Two Officers Flee Country

Iran Executes 2 Dozen In Alleged Plot

By The Associated Press

Iranian firing squads today shot two dozen people — including a top general and two leaders of the small Bahai religious sect — in one of the busiest days in months for the country's revolutionary executioners.

Turkish reports said, meanwhile, that two Iranian air force lieutenants, possibly stragglers from a coup conspiracy crushed by Iranian authorities, flew a helicopter to a Turkish airstrip and asked for political asylum.

Tehran Radio reported Sunday that 500 people had been arrested in connection with the alleged military plot to overthrow the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The executions were reported to have taken place in four Iranian cities.

In Tehran, eight people were executed — Lt. Gen. Houshang Hatam, who was deputy commander of the joint chiefs of staff during the last year of the shah's reign; Kiomars Rajabian, an officer of the shah's Imperial Guard, and six "well-known drug traffickers" convicted by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali's anti-narcotics court.

In the northwest city of Tabriz, Tehran Radio said, Khalkhali and another judge sent 14 people before firing squads, 12 of them for drug trafficking, adultery, spreading prostitution and gambling.

The other two shot in Tabriz were identified as Dr. Faramarz Samandari and Yadollah Astani, who the radio said were put to death for "running the Bahais' centers in Tabriz, working for SAVAK (secret police of the deposed shah), cooperating with international Zionism, giving financial aid to Israel and spreading prostitution."

Many of the 50,000 Iranian members of the Bahai sect, an offshoot of Islam, were close to the regime of the ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Dozens of them have been executed or imprisoned since the victory of the anti-shah revolution 15 months ago.

Their supporters abroad contend the Iranian Bahais are being persecuted on religious grounds by the fundamentalist Moslem revolutionaries.

The Iranian news media reported two other executions — of a policeman in Isfahan, and of a student in Rasht who who accused of fomenting anti-government unrest and "killing the people."

The Tehran government announced last Thursday it had foiled a military plot to topple the Khomeini regime. By Sunday, it said it had arrested 500 people as conspirators, many of them military men. The mastermind was alleged to be a former air force commander, and the takeover of airbases was said to be the key to the plot.

Sources in eastern Turkey said today two Iranian air force lieutenants flew their helicopter to an airstrip in Turkey's Agri province Sunday, asked for asylum and told Turkish authorities they want to go to the United States eventually.

The officers were not identified, and there was no immediate confirmation that they were involved in the reported plot.

Today was the 25th day in captivity for the 52 American hostages remaining in Iran.

Hojatoleslam Hassani, a leader of the Islamic Republican Party that dominates the new Majlis, or Parliament, said 99 percent of the deputies think the 52 Americans should be tried as spies unless Pahlavi and his fortune are returned to Iran, the revolutionary guards' newspaper, Payam Enghlab, reported Sunday.

Khomeini has said the Parliament must decide the hostages' fate.

The paper quoted Aazam Taleghani, one of the two women in the Parliament as saying the Americans should be tried before an international panel of judges.

"When their espionage crimes are proved, we ask the nation to free, imprison or execute them," she said.

Hassani also said the Majlis should not debate the hostage issue "for two months ... because (President) Carter tries to be re-elected by releasing the spies." The Tehran newspaper Donya Iran reported recently that the Majlis would not open its debate on the fate of the hostages before October.

The hostage released last week because he was ill, Richard I. Queen, 28, was being examined at the U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, and U.S. officials said he would remain there for several more days. He is believed suffering from a neurological disorder that caused dizziness and stiffness on his left side.

Queen's parents took him in a wheelchair Sunday to the base post exchange, where he got a suit, a shirt and a pair of shoes for his trip back to the United States. His father, Harold Queen, said the young man was "in very good spirits.... He's looking better every day."

Reagan Running-Mate Selection Apparently Is Still Up In The Air

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Rep. Jack Kemp's friends wore hats touting a "Reagan-Kemp" ticket. Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. made it clear that he would have to be pulled kicking and screaming into the vice presidential ring. And a supporter of George Bush decided his best strategy was to lay low.

As the Republican National Convention opened today, well-known names continued to bubble to the surface, as speculation about Ronald Reagan's vice presidential choice focused on first one Republican and then another.

Reagan portrayed the choice — the only element of suspense left in the convention — as "the biggest problem confronting me right now." He said he did not expect to make a decision until Wednesday night, when he is formally awarded the GOP presidential nomination.

And in a pre-recorded interview with CBS News, Reagan said he did not "have anyone tucked away in my mind" as his running mate.

When reminded that he would turn 70 shortly after inauguration day next January, Reagan said: "This is why it is such a problem and why I am not rushing into anything."

When pressed about whether he had not made up his mind, the former California governor said "I don't think that's unusual. I think there's something cynical in choosing someone with a different political view than your own with the idea in mind of getting votes."

In another CBS interview, Michigan Gov. William Milliken boosted the prospects of Bush, and said that if the party chose the former presidential candidate "it would have established a position in my judgment in the middle which would have broad support across the country."

An Associated Press-NBC News poll found that most rank-and-file Republicans across the nation don't know who they would like to see as Reagan's running mate, but those who have a favorite choose George Bush, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

By Sunday, a source close to former President Gerald

R. Ford said that Reagan was focusing on three Republicans — Bush, Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan and former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

This source, who asked anonymity, said Ford was pushing Reagan to pick Vander Jagt, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee who will give the convention keynote address Tuesday.

The congressman left no doubt about what he would do if offered the nomination: "I would consider it and agonize for one-tenth of one second and then I'd say yes," he said.

A member of Reagan's campaign inner circle who is an unabashed Bush supporter indicated that there was a quiet lobbying effort on his man's behalf inside the Reagan camp. But he said that the most dangerous thing they could run into now would be a campaign to "wave flags" for their favorite.

On Sunday, Bush dismissed reports of his being picked as "strictly rumor and speculation.... That's all I know and that's all I care to say about it."

More Medical Testing Of Richard Queen Due

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Freed hostage Richard Queen bought a new outfit in preparation for his return to the United States, but U.S. officials said he would remain in a U.S. military hospital in Germany for several more days of medical tests.

"They are doing tests and it takes time to get the results," said one American diplomat. "I was led to believe that nothing would be available on him for a couple of days."

The 28-year-old vice consul and his parents went shopping at the air base post exchange Sunday and talked about family news and the Chicago White Sox, his father said.

"He's in very good spirits...He's looking better every day. He looks good, but on the other hand I ain't no doc," Harold Queen told reporters outside the U.S. Air Force Hospital where his son is undergoing tests.

He is believed suffering from a neurological disorder causing dizziness and stiffness on his left side. Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolutionary regime, ordered him released because of his illness and he was flown to Europe last Friday.

The elder Queen and his wife, Jeanne, of Lincolnville, Maine, were reunited with their son in Zurich, Switzerland, early Saturday. The family was flown to Wiesbaden later Saturday to give the freed hostage a period of "rest and decompression," State Department officials said.

Queen's parents visited him for about an hour Sunday, his father said, and took him in a wheelchair to the base PX.

"He got a shirt, suit and shoes. But most importantly, the shoes, since he came here with only a pair of Iranian plastic sandals," Harold Queen said.

He said they talked about personal matters since U.S. officials requested they avoid discussing the Iranian situation and the remaining 52 American hostages, in their 25th day of captivity today.

He said his son lunched on pizza "but he informed us that he's had pizza in Iran. I guess he didn't miss that too much." His son had "been asking for walnut ice cream and about the Chicago White Sox," Queen added.

There have been no official reports on the condition of the young man, and it was not known what medical tests were being performed at the three-story hospital, the central medical station for U.S. armed forces in Europe. The eight black men and five women hostages freed last November also were taken there for checkups and debriefings for several days before being flown to the United States.

N.C. Aging Plan Hearing Is Held

The North Carolina Division of Aging held a public hearing here this morning on the three-year State Plan on Aging, which will become the basis for developing programs under the Older Americans Act.

The plan provides for planning, administration, coordination and advocacy for older adults programs and services, and direct funding support for social services, senior centers, congregate nutrition programs, home delivered meals, employment, training, long term care ombudsman activities, and legal service projects.

Its purpose is to specify the direction in which the Division of Aging is to take during the next three years in order to accomplish its primary goal, which is, "to assist older persons throughout the state to live independent, meaningful, and dignified lives in their own homes or other places of residence, emphasizing the lessening of isolation and the prevention of unnecessary institutionalization."

The plan is also designed to insure that older citizens have equal access to the opportunities and privileges afforded others, and promote the development of a comprehensive and coordinated community based service system, with emphasis on services to sustain the most vulnerable older persons in their homes or in the least restrictive setting.

The plan attempts to deal with the three most profound problems facing the elderly — health, income, and loneliness or isolation — by providing better access to and information about services available in the community, providing in-home services, through housing rehabilitation, residential retirement community and congregate housing programs, and programs designed to help increase the financial independence of older adults.

It is estimated that there are more than 832,000 persons in North Carolina 60 years old or older — 14 percent of the population. It is estimated that by 1990, 16 percent of the state's population will be in the 60 or over category.

Rev. H. L. Mitchell, a member of the state advisory council, presided over the hearing here today, the third of four hearings scheduled across the state. The final hearing will be in Sanford tomorrow.

Dr. Dykstra Receives Honor

By JILL ALLEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Otto Dykstra of Burroughs Wellcome has been named a recipient of the prominent Fellow Award for his outstanding work in the field of statistics. He will be honored at a special installation ceremony August 12 in Houston, Texas.

Dykstra, a New Jersey native, came to Greenville about two and a half years ago after he obtained his MS and PhD in statistics at Rutgers in New Jersey. "Getting my PhD is something I really wanted and knew I'd be proud of. Working and going to school at the same time was hard on all of us (his family), but it was worth it in the long run," he said.

Dykstra's current position as senior statistician at Burroughs Wellcome was developed for him when he came here. "I'm concerned with experimental data," he said, "and my special strength is in planning experimental programs. A lot of data analysis is involved. My position is nice because I'm the sole statistician here. I really have a voice in matters."

Dykstra described his honor, the Fellow Award, as a "special recognition by your peers — a super pat on your back."

New members are inducted each year. Nomination for the honor has to be initiated by a particular person. "A member of the (fellow) association came up to me some time ago saying he noticed that I wasn't a 'fellow' and asked if I thought it should be corrected. I told him yes." Dykstra said he felt his qualifications were better than some of the other 'fellows' named in the past.

"After my nomination was initiated, I was asked to give two names supporting my nomination." Dykstra listed George Box and J.S. Hunter, both distinguished 'fellows' who had publications along with Dykstra in a national magazine, "Technometrics."

Dykstra received a letter in May from the American Statistical Association notifying him of his award. "It's a super honor," he said, mentioning only 20 members from the United States were selected this year while he was the only one from Greenville.

Besides his work at Burroughs Wellcome, Dykstra served as adjunct associate professor in statistics at ECU during the spring semester. "I've taught in the past also," he said — about 11 years ago. He plans to teach a course next semester also.

Dykstra and his family reside in Greenville and are members of the Oakmont Baptist Church where he was installed as a deacon Sunday.

HCG AND 500 CALORIES?

My mother in another area is taking HCG shots every day and staying on a 500-calorie-per-day diet to lose weight. It's working, but I'm worried about the long-term effects on her health. M. C.

You have reason to worry, according to Nancy J. Kennon, R. D., president of the North Carolina Dietetic Association Inc. She said HCG (human chorionic gonadotropin) hormone injections are often used in conjunction with a 500-calorie-per-day diet, one inadequate in energy and nutrients for normal metabolism to continue. "It should not be attempted unless a person is under close supervision of a physician," she said. "It cannot be considered close supervision when a patient is praised for being in a state of ketosis for a month."

HCG, she said, has been approved by the FDA for use as a treatment for certain problems concerning human fertility. "It has not been approved as an aid in weight loss. Tests results reported in the 'Journal of Clinical Nutrition,' January, 1973, and the 'New England Journal of Medicine,' January, 1975, reveal that HCG and a 500-calorie diet did help the patients lose weight; but when HCG was used alone, patients did not lose weight."

The FDA has demanded that a statement be included on all literature pertaining to HCG which indicates that "HCG has no known effect on fat mobilization, appetite, or sense of hunger or body fat distribution," she said.

Mother Puts Money Into Trust Funds

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 37. I have two children. My husband was killed on the job in an industrial accident two years ago, and I was awarded a large sum of money. (I sued.) All the figures were in the newspapers, so the whole town knew how much money I was awarded.

I have some cash, but most of the money I put in trusts for my children's education and future.

My problem is that I have been besieged with phone calls from people who want to fix me up with an eligible man. I hardly know some of these people, Abby. And most of them never paid attention to me before I got all this publicity after winning my suit.

I would really like to marry again, but how can I tell who is for real and who is interested in me for my money?
SUDDENLY SOUGHT AFTER

DEAR SOUGHT AFTER: Accept no dates arranged by people you "hardly know." And if you inform those you do know that all your money is tied up in trusts for your children, it should reduce the stampede considerably. Those who continue to show an interest in you are probably for real.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write after reading the letter from the woman who hesitated to buy a home in which the previous owner had died of cancer because she was afraid she might "catch" cancer. It reminded me of something I now laugh about.

I had just turned 30 when my annual Pap test indicated that I had cancer of the uterus. Needless to say, I had a complete hysterectomy. It all happened so fast, I didn't have time to be upset.

After my surgery I noticed that my friends sent notes, cards and flowers, but very few came to see me.

My first day out of the house, I was walking slowly to the end of the block for exercise when I saw one of my neighbors and her little girl in their driveway. The woman quickly grabbed her child and hurried into the house. And through her screen door — at a very safe distance — she shouted, "How are you?"

I replied, "I'm just fine, thank you!"

Then she yelled, "Does the doctor think it had anything to do with your smoking?"

"No," I responded, "I have always smoked with my mouth."

By the way, this happened 10 years ago and I'm still kicking.

It is quite usual for a child to be brought in for an eye examination after being observed holding a printed page too closely. Only a professional can discern deficiency and prescribe treatment. However, in many cases, this habit is due to a lack of reading confidence. The habit may be acquired as early as in the first grade when the child is used to large type print. Later, the child feels more comfortable with larger type and makes it seem larger by holding the book closer. With the help of a professional, the problem can be cleared up.

The delegates are Cynthia Lilley of Grifton and Jeff Johnson of Rt. 1, Fountain.

Dale Panero, Pitt County extension agent, said delegates were selected for achievement in their 4-H electric projects.

The highlight of the Congress comes Monday night with the announcement of a state winner and territorial winners and runners-up in the 4-H electric project.

On Tuesday, the delegates will listen to project reports and view electric demonstrations and exhibits during the morning, and go to Nag's Head and Kill Devil Hills in the afternoon.

The 4-H Electric Congress is sponsored by four power companies in cooperation with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

PUBLIC OPPOSES?

HOBRO, Denmark (AP) — Despite protests from the public, shopkeepers on the main street of this Danish town say they are going to use videotape cameras on their stores at night to combat a wave of burglaries and vandalism.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens quivered but Mount Hood lay quiet as scientists in Washington and Oregon monitored the two volcanos for any hints of an impending eruption.

Both mountains, about 70 miles apart on opposite sides of the Columbia River, are wired for sound. Additional instruments were placed around Oregon's Mount Hood following a series of earthquakes last week. Washington's Mount St. Helens showed similar seismic activity before it began belching steam and ash March 27.

At Mount Hood, the word Sunday was "nothing. Nothing at all," said Norma Koski of the U.S. Forest Service.

Twelve earthquakes were recorded early Saturday on Mount Hood, but scientists remained uncertain whether the 11,245-foot peak would erupt, said Tim Hait, U.S. Geological Survey geologist.

Hait said the 90 quakes recorded on Mount Hood since July 6 were fewer than

Beacon Tower Bomb Target

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A bomb exploded early today at the base of a U.S. Coast Guard radio beacon tower in San Juan. No injuries were reported.

The Coast Guard attributed the bombing to "terrorists." It was the third such attack in recent years against the 40-foot tower, which transmits a directional beam as a navigation guide for ships coming into San Juan Harbor.

The bombing followed two days of public hearings by a U.S. House armed services subcommittee on Vieques, an island off Puerto Rico's east coast used by the U.S. Navy for ship-to-shore shelling practice. Police have linked past attempts against the Coast Guard tower to protests over the Navy presence in Vieques, but have made no arrests.

Expect Record In Tree Fruit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — California's tree fruit crop this year is expected to be the largest in history.

More than 39 million packages of peaches, plums and nectarines will be available during the May through September season, according to the California Tree Fruit Agreement.

The fresh Bartlett pear crop is expected to top 1979's. Pear quality is expected to be excellent, barring unforeseen weather developments before the harvest, which begins in late July and runs through October, and occasionally into November.

recorded at Mount St. Helens the week before March 27.

"Scientists don't think an eruption is imminent," Rick Shuster of the Federal Emergency Management Agency said Saturday.

At Mount St. Helens, one tiny quake was recorded Saturday and another early Sunday, Ms. Koski said. Scientists say such quivers may indicate avalanches or steam explosions.

Meanwhile, about 50 news media representatives from throughout the United States dined in Portland on Saturday within view of Mount St. Helens. They were on an expense-paid trip, sponsored by the tourist industry, to show the region wasn't covered with volcanic ash.

And the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers began work today on a project that will use silt washed down from the eruptions of Mount St. Helens to expand the bank of a one-mile stretch of the Columbia River.

The corps' drainage chief, Adam Heineman, said extension of the river bank was deemed the best solution for disposing of part of 55 million cubic yards of silt that washed into the Columbia from the Toutle and Cowlitz rivers after the volcano's May 18 eruption.

The 600-foot-wide fill will be added to the bank of the Columbia in front of the Crown Zellerbach Corp. lumber mill in Rainier. The project will require relocation of the mill's waterfront facilities at a cost of $2.2 million.

Report Cuban Vessels Strafed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Two warplanes without identification marks strafed two Cuban ships 30 miles off the coast of the former Spanish Sahara, killing the captain of one ship and wounding three crewmen, Cuba's official news agency, Prensa Latina, said.

It said the attack off the north African coast occurred Saturday when the ships were delivering fuel to a fleet of Cuban tuna boats.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted the Cuban press as identifying the ships as the Moroboro and Gilberto Pico, and saying the skipper of the Moroboro was killed.

Polisario guerrillas supported by Algeria are battling for control of the former Spanish Sahara, annexed by Morocco and Mauritania after Spain gave up the territory in 1976.

Several thousand Cuban troops are operating in Africa to help the Marxist regimes in Ethiopia and Angola fight anti-communist guerrillas.

Titanic Search Crew Leaving

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Deep in the freezing waters of the north Atlantic lie the remains of 1,500 victims of the wreck of the Titanic — the ship that was advertised as unsinkable.

The exact position of the wreck has never been determined. But the crew of the H.J.W. Fay hopes that sophisticated sonar instruments will change that.

On Sunday, the crew unpacked the last crate of equipment and prepared for departure today.

The Titanic, a luxury liner, struck an iceberg April 14, 1912, during its maiden voyage from England to the United States and went down about 380 miles southeast of Newfoundland. Only 705 of the 2,200 passengers were saved.

"I don't think we'll find any bodies," said expedition leader Mike Harris, a documentary filmmaker from Tampa. But, he said, "We hope to fully document the debris."

The 30-day trip — postponed from Saturday when some equipment was delayed — is the first of two that will cost up to $4 million.

Next year, Harris's group plans to reactivate the Aluminaut, a research submarine that has been dry-docked in Jacksonville since 1972, mostly because it's so expensive to operate.

The scientists and adventurers accompanying Harris hope to locate the Titanic, in 12,000 feet of water, with a sophisticated sonar system and to pierce its shroud of darkness by remote control, using powerful strobe lights and a battery of cameras.

After the crew pinpoints the location of the Titanic, Harris said, they will return with the Aluminaut hoping to retrieve some material from the ship with the submarine's robot-like arms.

Baris has faint hopes of coming up with a jewel-encrusted book of poetry, the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, which was on its way to a museum.

He also says there is an outside chance of recovering the passenger manifest — a list that includes such prominent names as John Jacob Astor, the wealthy financier, and Isidor Straus, owner of Macy's department store in New York. Both died.

GOLD IS UP!

SOME PEOPLE HAVE LEARNED FROM PAST EXPERIENCE!

Many people sell to Coin & Ring Man time and time again because of our prices, service, and REPUTATION. Here are some of the kinds of things our customers tell us have happened to them.

1. Some dealers quote that they're paying a certain price and then weigh the merchandise light.
2. Some dealers quote a higher price for rings but then subtract for the weight of the stones.
3. Some dealers quote a much higher price on the phone and then pay much less when the customer gets there in spite of how the market may have changed.

Coin & Ring Man doesn't practice these kinds of business tactics because we want our reputation to speak positively to you about the Professional Integrity you can rely on when you sell to Coin & Ring Man.

Council Messed It Up

It didn't seem to be such a major decision to us . . . all the City Council had to do was call for a referendum and let the city's citizens decide on whether or not mixed drink sales would be allowed locally.

State law was amended by the Legislature this year to allow the city to do this. One would think that allowing the citizenry to vote on an issue according to procedures proscribed by law would be a fairly routine matter.

Somehow, our City Council managed to mess it up.

The matter came up on the agenda Thursday night. Two councilmen were absent. After hearing various representatives discuss the issue, two council members voted in favor of having the referendum and two voted against. So the mayor breaks the tie, right? Wrong. It takes a majority of four members to pass an issue, so apparently everybody is off the hook.

This strikes us as poor preparation for the handling of the people's business. One council member pointed out that the referendum can still be brought about by petitioning. Undoubtedly this will be done, but the Greenville City Council had the responsibility to act on this matter and allow our citizens to decide. Maybe the members saw it as a hot potato. If they did they should have just said so, and left it alone. Why sniff at it and get a nose burn?

There is real political danger in denying the voters the opportunity to decide an issue when the law says that is their right.

Our city council has been totally ineffective in its handling of this matter. We hope it is not indicative of the way other affairs of our citizens are being handled.

Release Is A Surprise

The world was surprised to hear that Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomein has ordered the release of one of the American hostages in Terhan.

Richard Queen was freed because of illness and so he could obtain medical treatment elsewhere.

It is difficult to understand the thinking in Iran today, but certainly the release of even one hostage is welcome.

The move should not raise hopes too high, but perhaps it will lead to the release of the other innocent people being held captive. Possibly it could set a pattern of releasing them one at a time, as a face saving method. Anything that will end this international crime will be positive.

Farmland Is Gold

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There may no longer be much gold in North Carolina hills and streams, but it turns out the land itself is just as good.

Farmland prices in 1978 state have outstripped most of the nation in their increase in value, and the average price-per-acre is now better than $819. That's more than an ounce of gold will bring.

Economists at N.C. State University have pulled together a comprehensive look at farmland values here and elsewhere in the nation, looking at figures kept by both the state and federal governments, and at information from experts in land transactions.

In the last two years, farmland values have hit a new peak, and the 18 percent rate of increase for last year was exceeded in only five other states in the nation.

Between 1970 and the present, average acreage value has leaped from $333 per acre to the present $819. For those who have owned the land a long time, the increase is fantastic: from an average of $39 per acre in 1939 to the current record high.

Strength The university specialists see strength in land values in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, and predict that this year will see per-acre worth increase another 14 percent in this region.

Value in North Carolina is well above the national average of $559 per acre. State averages vary sharply from a low of as little as $100 per acre in New Mexico to a high of $2,222 per acre in New Jersey. Cornbelt states of Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio show the most rapidly increasing farm values.

Naturally land values vary sharply within the state, and the study took a close look at what causes that.

D.F. Newman, in his section of the report, notes that demand for farmland, which affects prices, is founded upon the many alternative uses which can be made of to occur in the more heavily populated areas of the state.

Booming But Newman sees two other significant factors which are causing land prices to increase rapidly in North Carolina locations far removed from urban centers: the summer, or vacation, home developments of the mountains and the coast, and the booming commercial developments taking place the property: a farm business, a place to live, an investment, satisfaction for the simple desire to own land, or conversion to commercial, recreational, industrial or housing uses.

Proximity to a city has a strong upward influence on land values, and conversion to urban uses of one piece of property generally has a carry-over effect on surrounding farmland. This, says Newman, "is an important factor affecting farm real estate prices in the Piedmont, mountains and coastal fringe of North Carolina as well as around all growing cities in the Coastal Plain."

Demand for farmland to convert for urban uses tends

THE EXCITING PART---CAN YOU STAND IT?!

By ART BUCHWALD

High Grass Advocate

WASHINGTON — A 68-year-old man in Lawrence, Kans., was jailed recently after he refused to pay a fine and court costs for waving a pellet gun in the direction of two men mowing his lawn. The city of Lawrence has an ordinance that requires the mowing of grass once it gets more than 12 inches high.

Since the man refused to do it, the city sent out a crew to mow it, and then billed him for the labor. When the men came back to mow it again, the homeowner tried to chase them away with the pellet gun.

This story upset me very much, and I believe the reason it did is that I identify so closely with the man who didn't want to cut his lawn. There are some ordinances that are good for the entire community, and there are others, such as this one, that seem to infringe on a person's freedom. What right does any city have to tell a person how high his grass should grow or to send people on his property to mow it?

ART BUCHWALD

I'll be very honest. I happen to like high grass. To me there is nothing more beautiful than to sit on the porch steps and watch thousands of tall blades of grass waving in the warm summer breeze. It can't grow too high as far as I'm concerned.

My wife, on the other hand, likes short grass. She believes everybody's lawn should look as smooth as a putting green on the Augusta National Golf Course. She also is afraid of her neighbors.

It seems almost every week she'll say something like, "I believe it's time someone cut the lawn."

"How do you know?" "Because Seigel is cutting his," she says.

"Seigel is always mowing his lawn. I think he has a grass fetish."

"Sullivan is cutting his also."

"The only reason Sullivan is cutting his lawn is because Seigel started mowing his. I talked to Sullivan the other day, and he said he wished Seigel would take a rest for a few weeks and paint his kitchen instead."

"If we don't cut our lawn, everyone in the neighborhood will start talking about us."

"What can they possibly say?"

"They'll say we're troublemakers because we let our grass grow too tall."

"I don't see what the height of a person's lawn has to do with whether he is a good neighbor or not. People shouldn't be judged by the length of their grass."

"I hear Guggenheim's lawnmower going now."

"Sure, and do you know why? Because his wife saw Seigel and Sullivan cutting their lawns. I know for a fact that Guggenheim would rather play tennis today than mow his grass."

"How do you know that?" "Because he had a game with Symington."

My wife looked out the window. "Then how come Symington is taking his lawn mower out of the garage?"

"Because Guggenheim canceled his game! Don't you see what's happening to all of us? We're becoming a nation of lawn mowers. We've lost the pioneer spirit that made this country great. Do you think Thomas Edison would have had time to invent the electric light bulb if his wife had kept going down to the cellar and telling him it was time to mow the lawn? We wouldn't have the telephone if

Other Editors Say Labor's Love Lost

(Richmond News Leader)

Good for Federal District Judge James Turk. He saw through the transparent arguments offered by the Labor Department in setting unrealistically high minimum wage levels for alien workers hired by Virginia farmers and orchardists. He told the fellows at Labor to take a walk.

The heart of the dispute goes to the department's zeal in protecting American workers from low-priced foreign labor. In the past the department has set the minimum wage for farm labor on a state-by-state basis.

Last year Virginia farmers employing foreign workers had to pay $2.96 an hour, or six cents above the federal minimum wage.

This year the department decided to set its minimum on a national basis. It announced a minimum wage of $4.51 an hour—a figure so outrageous that the department was forced to reduce it to $3.51 an hour, or 41 cents above the federal minimum wage.

However much it may offend the department, its exercise of setting high minimum wages to protect Americans' jobs is a doomed effort, except that it makes life more difficult for farmers.

Most field workers expect a low minimum wage, to be augmented by bonuses for productivity. But field work holds little appeal for Americans who can draw as much or more in welfare and unemployment benefits.

To foreign workers used to lower standards of living, though, field work offers a bonanza. It pays them enough in a few weeks to get them through the rest of the year in their home countries.

Yet the Labor Department persists, and with each new edict from Washington, farmers working on low profit margins find those margins shrinking still more.

They can't find Americans to do farm work, and the department is pricing foreign labor out of their reach. So each year they not only have to battle caprices of nature, they also have to cope with the Labor Department's impossible demands.

Judge Turk's injunction against enforcement of the department's latest pipedream covers only Virginia's tobacco farmers, but it logically should be extended to all farmers and apple growers as well.

THE COMING OF THE KINGDOM

In the Book of Revelation, the kings of the angels is that the kingdoms of this world "have become the kingdoms of our God and His Christ." We should note the tense used — "have become."

The Bible does not teach that this kingdom will grow until at last we have perfection upon this earth. The unmistakable Scripture message is that at some time in world history a cataclysmic change will take place, and what has begun here and has been growing throughout the ages will be consummated with heavenly glory. The kingdom is here, but its final and complete glory is still to come. — Elisha Douglass

Sen. Church Runs Scared

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BOISE, Idaho — The rising tide of conservatism threatening to end Sen. Frank Church's quarter century in the Senate was visible here last Tuesday evening at a Republican fund-raiser for Rep. Steve Symms in the comfortable south Boise home of lawyer Robert Kootz.

What made the cocktails-and-hors d'oeuvres more than routine was that Kootz and a dozen others among the several score Republican fat cats who paid $100 each to Symms' campaign had sat on their hands when Church swept to his fourth Senate election six years ago. Indeed, several actually sweetened Church's Democratic campaign kitty in 1974—but not in 1980.

That is an indication that the cultural and money center of Boise looks on four-term Rep. Symms as a Republican who can finally end the Senate career of the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. It is also a measure of what one Republican here calls "the Reagan revolution" that has made big government, high taxes, welfare spending and weakness abroad heavy burdens for liberal Democrats in 1980.

The campaign between Church and Symms is the ideological litmus test of whether the "Reagan revolution" has enough force to defeat liberal Democratic senators from California to New Hampshire. Church is running scared. His latest poll shows him slightly ahead—but under 50 percent, an unsafe level for an incumbent.

For Symms, an early, right-winger and ex-Marine, gaining political credibility with business and banking sophisticates of Boise is a significant breakthrough. For Church, their enlistment in Symms' cause despite the prestige that the Foreign Relations Committee chairman gives to Idaho, is a signal that his support is dangerously weakened.

Church played his foreign relations power skillfully. He claims credit for using his proximity to the world's mightiest as a tool in the service of his state. Speaking to seed men from western Idaho in Twin Falls one day this week, Church told how he had arranged sales of Idaho's rich agricultural products to foreign countries.

But the value of such claims must compete with the senator's more public actions, particularly in the last 10 years. His vote in favor of the Panama Canal treaties hurt badly in nationalistic Idaho. Church has trimmed back on other issues as the Nov. 4 election closes in: He fought the B-1 bomber but two weeks ago suddenly voted to support the development of a new penetration bomber; he praised Cuba's Fidel Castro in 1977 but last year took it upon himself to make the first announcement of the Soviet combat brigade in Cuba. That embarrassed the Carter administration but made Church look like Paul Revere.

The senator told us in Twin Falls that his 1977 compliments for Castro were simply carrots to persuade Castro to free Americans held in Cuba. But Church used the opposite tactic—the stick of punishment by the U.S.—when it came to trying to persuade Saudi Arabia to join the Camp David peace process. His first major speech last year after becoming foreign relations chairman was an attack on Saudi Arabia so extreme that the Washington Post took him to the woodshed for it.

Church, whose voluminous foreign travels have not once taken him to Saudi Arabia, told us the Castro and the Saudi affairs were in no way comparable. But some Republicans here think differently: That Church's whiplashing of Saudi Arabia was to mollify Israeli's concern over the U.S. becoming too chummy with its No. 1 oil supplier.

Middle East politics, in fact, is the largest hidden issue in this campaign. Symms is attacked by Church as a potential "senator from Exxon" because of Texas oil money moving into his campaign. The Symms camp, using reports filed with the Federal Election Commission, charges that Church is running almost entirely on contributions from "the liberal Eastern establishment"—heavily larded with donations from the American Jewish community.

When actress Elizabeth Taylor accepted a promised appearance here for Symms in April with her husband, Sen. John Warner, the reason given was a schedule conflict; Republicans believe the real reason was that Liz Taylor, a convert to Judaism, was persuaded not to do anything that might hurt Church.

There has been no trimming by Church on Mideast politics. Elsewhere, the senator is skillfully adjusting to the conservative surge, cashing in 24 years of hard work for his constituents—and praying that the strong Reagan tide here won't wash him out of office.

Today is the first day of the rest of your life. Give blood, so it can be the first day of somebody else's, too.

Red Cross is counting on you.

Overcome By Soaring Prices

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have decided to battle inflation, said a stock market analyst on reading that consumer installment debt fell a record $3.43 billion in May.

He might as easily have phrased it another way: American buyers were overcome by rising prices. Using that viewpoint, the credit decline is seen not so much as a battle as a defeat.

Whichever viewpoint suits best, the conclusion is the same: There has been a marked change in consumer attitudes, from buying quickly before prices rose to avoiding purchases in hopes that prices will fall.

The Federal Reserve helped foster the change, particularly by making credit harder to obtain but also by promoting the notion that unless buyers restrained themselves the economy was going down the drain.

It might still, and some will blame the Fed's tight money policies, but consumers in the meantime have lessened their personal liabilities, albeit by the revolutionary policy of lowering their living standards.

Yes, some Americans at least are getting back to fundamentals. They are actually committing the un-American crime of doing with less, which is contrary to all they have been told and taught about America.

But in many instances they are doing so not as an exercise in restraint, not as a battle against enemy inflation, but simply because they have little other choice. They have been priced out of the market.

This elimination from the marketplace has been achieved not simply by high prices, but also because pay increases often push people into tax brackets that take most of the increase.

Unofficial estimates now suggest that the federal take of the nation's total output is close to the highest ever, nearly 23 percent, or more even than during the days of wartime mobilization in the 1940s.

U.S. News & World Report

estimates that if tax laws aren't changed, and inflation continues at the 7.8 percent annual rate of the past decade, a family that earned $15,000 in 1970 will need $87,708 in 1990.

For the time-being, prices too seem to be growing by an odd formula. Supply-demand, we've been told, dictates what prices will be. Lately, though, the seller's needs seem to be determining prices.

You have noticed, for example, that domestic automobile pricetags continue to rise despite shrunken demand. And you've seen some jewelry prices remain the same whether gold sold for $800 or $500 an ounce.

Careful shoppers have seen something of the same thing right across the spectrum of items: In the face of lessened demand prices have resisted declines. Maybe they haven't gone up. But down! No way.

The explanation is undoubtedly complex, but there are some aspects that are crystal clear and understandable. First, price and tax inflation has hurt sellers as badly as buyers. Some businesses are heavily in debt and barely profitable, their margins cut to all-time lows. And some, such as Chrysler, are worse off.

Many large companies, in fact, aren't earning enough to cover their dividend payments. Discounted for inflation, their profits are not profits at all. Indeed, if reality were faced, some managements would admit that their companies survive only because they are, in the same manner as people lost in the wilderness, consuming their own fat.

Second, prices remain high because so many people refuse to believe that we'll lick inflation. Why lower prices—and probably be stuck with those low prices in catalogues—only to increase them later?

Have Americans decided to do battle against recession by withdrawing from the market? Maybe. But the evidence seems to indicate that, instead, and for the time-being, they have been defeated by it.

DETROIT LOVES A GOOD PARTY

The Republicans Come To Motown

"Detroit loves a good party," is the message Republicans are receiving this week, as their national convention meets in Michigan's largest city. Detroit is located along the Detroit River, which connects Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair. The river also forms part of the border of between Canada and the United States. "Detroit" in French means "strait." Detroit is well known as the world's leading producer of automobiles, and is often referred to by such nicknames as "Motor City" and "Motown." Besides cars, Detroit factories turn out hardware, chemicals, machinery, medicines and paint. Detroit also has one of the largest salt mines in the United States. It lies underneath the city.

Five Persons Arrested On Charges

North Carolina Alcohol Law Enforcement Agency agents, assisted by Pitt County ABC officer J. M. Ward and Pitt Sheriff's Department deputies arrested five persons Friday and Saturday night on drug law violation charges.

The charges resulted from a six-week undercover investigation by ALE officers, Danny Dilda, supervisor of the local ALE office reported.

Those arrested included: Billy Joyner, 20 of Route 1, Fountain, charged with possession and sale of Valium; Dennis Gene Sawyer, 20 of Route 1, Macclesfield, possession of LSD (two counts) and sale of LSD (two counts); Jerry Lamort Pitt, 19 of Bethel, possession and sale of marijuana; Wilbur Ray Gay, 46 of Farmville, possession of Valium (two counts) and sale of Valium (two counts); and Bennie Whitley Jr., Route 2, Tarboro, possession and sale of marijuana.

Dilda said other arrests will be made in connection with the investigation. Bonds for the defendants ranged from $500 to $5,000, pending first appearance hearings scheduled for today.

All of the charges, Dilda noted, were felony drug law violations.

Expect Deficit Of $60 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Carter administration reportedly foresees a federal budget deficit of $60 billion this fiscal year and $20 billion in fiscal 1981 because of the recession.

The National Journal said Sunday that the figures reflect current estimates by the Office of Management and Budget and, possibly with minor changes, are to be submitted to Congress by July 21. Administration officials have recently conceded the possibility of a deficit because the economic slowdown has caused a reduction in the amount of taxes collected and forced higher expenditures for programs such as unemployment compensation and welfare.

CP&L Joins Others In Shrugging Off Report

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. joined other industry officials Sunday in discounting the significance of a report that shows CP&L's Brunswick nuclear plant ranked among the leaders in the country last year in the number of reported problems.

Critical Mass, an anti-nuclear group affiliated with Ralph Nader, released a report Sunday saying more than 2,300 unexpected incidents, including operator and equipment failures, had occurred at nuclear reactors in 1979.

Virginia Electric and Power Company's North Anna 1 unit led the nation with 130 such incidents, which are known in the industry as licensee events reports.

CP&L's Brunswick plant had 159 reported LERs — 82 reports on the Brunswick II unit and 77 on the No. 1 unit. Only the Hatch plant in Georgia, with 177 reports, had more incidents at one plant.

Mac Harris, a spokesman for CP&L, said the statistics released by Critical Mass were "not very meaningful" without an analysis of the nature of the problems and their seriousness.

"Counting LERs is not an exercise that has particular merit. You can't determine the nature of a problem by counting LERs. You have to look at the significance of each one of those," Harris said.

Harris said LERs could include anything ranging from malfunctions as minor as a nonworking switch to any number of serious problems. He said the numbers also could reflect differing "reporting policies" of various companies.

"There are areas of interpretation in determining what are reportable incidents," he said. "Some incidents clearly should be reported while in other cases, some determination must be made."

Carl Michaelson, head of the NRC office that analyzes such reports, also took issue with the conclusion that the reports in themselves reflected safety problems. "I would attach no significance whatsoever to" the number of reports, Michaelson said. "What counts is the nature of what happened and not necessarily how many times it happened."

Critical Mass Director Richard Pollock, however, said the incidents provided "an unsettling picture" about nuclear power plant safety.

Critical Mass listed CP&L's Brunswick Reactor No. 2 as sixth among the nation's nuclear reactor units in the number of incidents reported to the NRC in 1979, while the No. 1 unit was eighth nationwide.

CP&L's Robinson plant in South Carolina reported 28 incidents on its No. 2 unit.

Duke Power Co. reported 51 incidents for its three units at the Oconee plant in South Carolina.

Thief Took The Governor's Car

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — Police in Michigan often are told to keep on the lookout for stolen cars, but one that was reported swiped over the weekend was a bit special — it was the governor's.

Gov. William Milliken's 1980 Lincoln Continental Mark VI limousine — complete with state police radio, a "riot gun" in the trunk and a license plate reading MSG-000 — was taken early Sunday from a hotel parking lot. The governor, head of the state's delegation to the Republican National Convention, is staying at the hotel during the convention, which opens today in Detroit.

Another limousine — an Oldsmobile 98, bearing the license plate MSG-001 — was brought from Lansing for Milliken to use until his limousine is recovered, said George Weeks, Milliken's executive secretary.

"I think it's just too bad. This is the second time," said Milliken. His car was stolen about five years ago by a band of Lansing youths who later abandoned it in Detroit.

BEACH DEATHS

TOKYO (AP) — Twenty-one persons were drowned and 10 others missing from Japan's crowded beaches during the weekend as high temperatures and humidity sent millions to the shore, the National Police Agency reported.

There are two good solutions to keeping capacity crowds happy without cluttering a room. Consider including the use of twin love seats or small sofas with a choice of lightweight pull-up chairs as compliments. Another solution is to create a conversation seating group entirely of chairs. These may include one of each seating style, or it may include a favorite style, such as high-back TV loungers, small scale tubs or club types or even large square or round party ottomans. Chairs on wheels are a wizard variation for the static living room permitting impromptu changes of scene and seating arrangements.

Change the look of your room with beautiful wall to wall carpeting or area rugs available from us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 758-2300. We have close to 20 years of successful carpet experience. Our Shop At Home Service is always available. No pressure is ever used. We want our clients and friends to take all the time they need to find the exact carpet they want to go with their decor. Open: Mon. thru Fri. 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Closed Sat. thru August.

Alexander Graham Bell had worried about his grass. Henry Ford couldn't have given a tinker's damn about his front yard.

"Do you want me to cut it, or are you going to do it?"

"You can't be serious. Who ever heard of a woman cutting grass? Physically, they're not built for it, and emotionally they can't take the pressure."

"Don't try to trick me with that women's liberation stuff. If you don't have any pride about our house, I do. But if I mow the lawn, you do the laundry."

"I'll cut it later when the weather cools off. I have an errand to do first."

"What are you going to do?"

"I think I'll go out and buy a pellet gun."

"What on earth for?"

"Just in case Seigel tries to cut my lawn."

How about land as an investment?

E.C. Pasour, Jr., has tracked land values compared to other possibilities, and finds that the annual increase in farm real estate prices was 6.1 percent from 1949 to 1959; 6.6 percent from 1959 to 1969; and 9.3 percent in the last 10 years. Inflation rates were two percent, 2.3 percent, and 6.6 percent in those periods.

"Farm real estate in North Carolina during the past 50 years has been a good inflation hedge from the standpoint of preserving purchasing power," Pasour concludes. But that does not necessarily imply that land is a good investment.

Investment potential hinges on comparative returns from other investments such as precious metals, stocks, bonds, and those ratios can vary sharply from year to year. Besides, the return from land can vary sharply from one tract to the other depending on a variety of circumstances and even the management skill of the owner.

Begin Ban Of Mexican Tuna

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on the importation of tuna from Mexico began today in the United States.

The ban is required under a four-year-old federal which provides for the embargo in retaliation for the seizing of American tuna boats. Three U.S. boats — all from San Diego — were seized off the coast of Mexico last week in a dispute between the two nations over territorial fishing rights.

Pitt 4-H Group Attends Meet

Pitt County 4-H members and adult leaders will attend the N.C. 4-H Congress July 21-25 in Raleigh.

These delegates will join some 1,000 4-H members, leaders and extension agents from across the state for the annual event.

Registration will be held on the N.C. State University campus where delegates are residing. Activities are scheduled for the State Fairgrounds and the Jane S. McKimmon Continuing Education Center.

The Congress officially opens Monday night with a flag ceremony, talent show and Honor Club tapping.

On Tuesday some 30 contests will be held to pick state winners and some olympic contests are scheduled. A "fun carnival" with 30 booths will be held at night.

N.C. Rates Accelerating

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Automobile liability insurance is cheaper in North Carolina than in most states, but premiums have begun accelerating faster this year than at any time since the early 1970s.

Even so they are not going up fast enough, according to Paul Mize, manager of the industry-operated North Carolina Rate Bureau.

Mize said during the weekend "there isn't going to be any profit" in the bureau's latest filing, for a 6 percent increase in rates to become effective Dec. 1. Mize contended the increase should be for 23 percent to enable insurance companies to average a 5 percent profit.

The insurance commissioner's office, however, reports that actual and proposed premium increases this year will add $153 million in income for the 200 companies operating in North Carolina.

There were no increases in liability rates between 1973 and 1978.

Jeanne Swanner Robertson, a former Miss North Carolina, will speak at a Wednesday morning assembly. The 4-H'ers will have a free afternoon to go to the movies, attend a special performance at the Village Dinner Theatre or tour Raleigh Finals in the olympics will be held Wednesday night.

Thursday's program is filled with seminars, election and installation of new officers, a banquet, fashion revue and dance.

During the week state winners will be determined in some 35 demonstration programs and various judging activities.

Among the events in which Pitt County 4-H'ers are participating are Auto Skill Driving, Tractor Driving, Dairy Foods (senior division), Photography Demonstration, Pork Cookery and State Talent Show.

Members of the Pitt County delegation include Ken Worthington, Kelly Wall, Angela Jones, Wayne Bass, Cynthia Lilley, Oden Wiggins, Tony Cannon, Joseph Buck and Melanie Manning.

Leading the delegation are Cynthia Lilley, Pitt County Council president and Dale Panero, Pitt County 4-H coordinator.

City Approves Two Requests

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits in Greenville.

Wyatt said the requests were submitted by: University City Kiwanis Club for permission to conduct a pancake sale at King's parking lot on Sept. 10 from 6 a.m. until 7 p.m. in order to benefit the Boys' Club; and by

The Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens for permission to conduct a door-to-door and merchant solicitation from July 9 through Sept. 12 for the annual fund raising benefit.

Record Number Of Hogs

There were just under 66 million hogs and pigs on U.S. farms last month — the largest June inventory on record, according to agricultural extension specialists at North Carolina State University.

The number was up 1 percent from a year ago and up 19 percent from the 1978 level.

Breeding stock totaled 9.5 million head, down 8 percent from a year ago but well above the 1978 level. Market hogs, at 56.4 million head, were up slightly from a year ago and a whopping 22 percent above the number in June 1978.

The spring pig crop, farrowed from December through May, was moderately larger than a year earlier and 25 percent above the level of two years ago.

Producers say they intend to farrow 6.7 million sows from June through November this year. That would be 8 percent fewer than in 1979 but 5 percent above the 1978 level.

In general, hog production trends in North Carolina and in the nation are similar.

Pork supplies have been large this year and hog prices to producers have been depressed. This is why producers have scaled down their breeding plans compared with a year ago.

Vans, Pickups Change Scene

WASHINGTON (AP) — The increasing popularity of vans and pickup trucks means that for the first time, more than half the nation's trucks are used for personal transportation, the Census Bureau says.

The report released over the weekend, based on 1977 figures, shows that 54 percent of trucks were used for personal transportation, up from 41 percent in 1972. Trucks used for agriculture were a distant second.

Saving money is on everyone's mind this year. One way to save money on this year's tobacco crop is to make curing barns as efficient as possible. Also, wet bulb thermometers help save money by reducing the tendency to overventilate and waste fuel.

There are several energy saving recommendations to use with your curing barns. First, stop all hot air leaks. Check door gaskets and structural cracks because even a small crack in the lower or pressure side of a bulk barn can be the source of large quantities of heat loss. Sometimes air leaks between the barn walls and the cement pad or foundation can go unnoticed. A crack one-fourth inch by 15 feet between the pad and the building may lose as much as ten percent of the air and heat.

Growers need to ventilate only enough to hold humidity down. The wider the vent opening, the more fuel is required. Open the vent or fresh air damper only enough to hold humidity down to the proper level.

Add insulation to the walls, roof and floor if it is needed. This could save up to 75 gallons of fuel per cure.

Load boxes uniformly. Uniform loading assures even drying, better quality, quicker kill out and less energy usage. Each rack or box should have an air seal around it. Small cracks between boxes or racks reduces ventilating efficiency to a surprising degree.

Growers need to tune up their fuel burners. Both oil and gas burners require periodic maintenance and adjustment for efficient operation. Fuel dealers usually have the proper instrument and know how for this job.

Growers need to harvest only ripe tobacco. Shorter curing time means less heat loss and more efficient curing. Ripe tobacco cures better and is of higher quality.

A wet-bulb thermometer should also be used for efficient curing. The wet-bulb thermometer temperature is the same as the temperature of the tobacco leaves. The wet-bulb readings should range from about 90 degrees Fahrenheit during yellowing up to 110 degrees F during the stem drying stage. Until the leaf itself is dry, you should never let the wet-bulb reading go above 105 degrees F. Tobacco leaves that haven't dried will begin to scald at about 113 degrees F.

To lower the wet-bulb temperature, open the fresh air damper. The idea is to have the fresh air damper closed as much as possible.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,600 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported Irvin Roderick Bellamy of Rocky Mount, was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 12:41 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets.

Police, who identified the driver of the second car involved as Margaret Eakes of 1702 Berkley Rd., estimated damage at $700 to the Bellamy auto and $1,000 to the Eakes vehicle.

Cars driven by Jeane

Burton Jones of Kinston and David Warren Belangia of 105D Cherry Ct. collided about 12:10 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and 14th Street, causing $600 damage to the Jones car and $300 damage to the Belangia vehicle.

Investigators charged Jones with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

- A. Cost of Service - Rates are to reflect cost of providing electric service to various classes of customers.

- J. Procedures for Termination of Electric Service - Service may not be terminated unless reasonable notice is given and an opportunity is provided to the consumer to dispute the reasons for termination. Also, service may not be terminated when to do so would be dangerous to health as determined by the regulatory authority and the consumer shows that he is unable to pay in accordance with the requirements of the utility's billing or he is able to pay only in installments.
- K. Advertising - Promotional and political advertising expenses must be charged to shareholders, not ratepayers, and to provide public comment pertinent thereto.

Support ERA And Abortion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Delegates to the third White House Conference on Families have voted to support resolutions favoring the Equal Rights Amendment and government-funded abortions — issues that have split those attending all three meetings.

The 613 delegates also approved resolutions endorsing a fight against pornography, elimination of tax policies that hurt families and support for the handicapped.

Defeated was a measure urging "that the status of homemakers should be viewed more positively as career choices in our school system."

When the ERA and abortion resolutions came to a vote Saturday — the last day of the three-day meeting — about 50 delegates refused to vote, saying the meeting was stacked with supporters of the two measures.

The ERA measure passed 334-162, while the abortion resolution passed 308-192.

A spokeswoman for the dissidents, Janie Triggs of Nevada, contended the predetermined outcome on the resolutions would "drive one more nail into the federally funded coffin of the American family."

Organizers of the conference have denied it was rigged.

The Los Angeles meeting was the last in a series set up at the direction of President Carter.

The first meeting, in Baltimore, saw a walkout by a group opposed to the ERA and abortions which contended the conference was rigged. At the second meeting, in Minneapolis, ERA and abortion opponents picketed outside.

A final report incorporating the recommendations of the three meetings will be presented to the White House and Congress before March 1981.

Jim Guy Tucker, former Arkansas congressman and conference chairman, said in Los Angeles that despite dissension over abortion, delegates were able to agree on a range of less emotional issues.

"You have clearly spoken for the families of America," Tucker said. "Eighty percent of the delegates agree on 80 percent of the recommendations."

While the conference was meeting, an America's Pro-Family Conference was attended by 7,000 people in nearby Long Beach on Saturday. Speakers included Phyllis Schlafly, national chairman of the Stop ERA movement.

The one-day conference was picketed by 40 members of the National Organization for Women.

Plan Early Release For Freedom Flotilla Boats

MIAMI (AP) — Some 500 fishing boats that have been sitting idle since they were seized for ferrying refugees from Cuba in the "Freedom Flotilla" could be turned over to their owners this week, an attorney says.

Meanwhile, the number of Cuban refugees to reach Key West climbed over 116,000 during the weekend as boats continued straggling across the Florida Straits from the Cuban port of Mariel.

More were expected today.

U.S. District Judge Joe Eaton of Miami ordered federal officials to release seized fishing boats if the owners post personal surety bonds, sign over mortgages and liens on each craft to the federal government and insure them against loss or damage.

Edwin Underwood, an attorney representing the fishermen, said paperwork to release the boats could be completed by Tuesday.

"I haven't made a dime since I left for Mariel April 26," said commercial fisherman Jerry Hemphill, 31, of Key West. "It sounds good — now I can go back to work."

The boats were seized by the Coast Guard and the U.S. Customs Service as they returned to Florida after President Carter ordered a halt to the boatlift May 14. The ban was called three weeks after Cuban-Americans began streaming to Cuba to get relatives and friends.

NEW MEDALLIONS — Two new medallions, being issued Tuesday by the U.S. government are pictured. The one-ounce and half-ounce medallions bear the likenesses of

Mexico Hunts Two Men Linked To Alien Deaths

TUCSON, ARIZ. (AP) — Mexican authorities say they are looking for two more men in connection with the deaths of 13 aliens who collapsed in an Arizona desert.

allegedly while sneaking into the United States.

The two men are cousins of Silvano Rodriguez Macia, who the Tucson Star said was being questioned by Mexican authorities in the case.

Three other men are being held in the United States on charges stemming from the case. Two of them were among 14 survivors of the desert trek.

The 14 were found over the July 4th weekend near Ajo in Organ Pipe National Monument park, police said. They said they had become so thirsty during their ordeal that they had resorted to drinking urine and after-shave lotion. Officials recovered the bodies of 13 people, 12 Salvadorans and a Mexican.

Authorities said they believed that the guides who were smuggling the aliens into the United States had botched the attempt.

The latest arrest came Friday when Santos Elias Flores, 22, of San Salvador, El Salvador, was charged with illegally transporting aliens, the Border Patrol said. He was being held in the Yuma County, Ariz., jail in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Rodriguez Macia was arrested Wednesday and was being held in San Luis Rio Colorado, Mexico, the Star said. It was not clear whether he had been charged in the Organ Pipe case. The Star quoted authorities as saying he was being questioned in the matter.

His cousins were identified by Mexican federal judicial police commander Sergio Rubio Garcia as brothers Ricardo and Eusebio Rodriguez Macias.

A Thursday hearing was scheduled for two other men, Elias Nunez Guardado and Mateo Preciado Navarro, who were held in lieu of $50,000 bail in Tucson on federal charges of illegally transporting aliens, authorities said. The two were found among survivors of the trek.

Ten of the other survivors remained free today on conditional release. They had been held on $500 bond each on administrative charges of being in the United States illegally. Churches and individuals posted the bond and the 10 were released to the custody of area Hispanic families.

The other two survivors, both women, remained hospitalized but were expected to gain conditional release as soon as they recovered.

Meanwhile, officials reported slow progress in their efforts to positively identify the 13 bodies.

John Brooks, director of the Adair Funeral Home in Tucson said the bodies of sisters Claudia, Rosa and Manta Huevo were to be sent to Los Angeles where the teenagers' mother lives.

Their ages or hometowns in El Salvador were not available.

The bodies of a woman and a man were identified from dental charts, but relatives had not been notified, and identities were not released, he said.

Brooks said the other eight bodies were being sent to him for storage pending identification.

"They're going to have a real problem unless they get dental charts," he said. "The bodies are rather decomposed."

Study Charges Against Youth In Hijacking Try

SEATTLE (AP) — A 17-year-old who allegedly often talked of hijacking a plane was in custody here today as officials decided whether to prosecute him as an adult or as a juvenile in the 10-hour commandeering of a Northwest Airlines jet.

If Glen Kurt Tripp is tried as an adult on charges of trying to hijack a jetliner for ransom, he could face life in prison, prosecutors say.

However, if the Seattle resident is tried as a juvenile, the maximum sentence would be imprisonment until he turns 21, said Mark Sidran, deputy King County prosecutor for juvenile cases.

State laws allow greater flexibility than federal laws on the prosecution of a minor for hijacking, but authorities had not decided Sunday how to charge Tripp, county prosecutor Norm Maleng said.

Formal charges were expected today against Tripp, who turns 18 next month. He was arrested in connection with the commandeering of Northwest Airlines Flight 608 on Friday at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, said FBI Special Agent Ray Mathis.

A hijacker who said he had a bomb in a briefcase took over the Boeing 727 before it could take off for Portland, Ore., and held the plane for 10 hours on the runway, demanding $100,000 in ransom.

Passengers were released after four hours. FBI agents delivered the money, then jumped the hijacker as he left the plane for a rental car he had demanded for a getaway. He was unarmed.

Tripp frequently spoke of hijacking a plane, said his roommate, Larry La Caille, 35.

"I didn't think he'd really do it, but it was a concern to me," La Caille said Saturday.

Tripp would discuss how a hijacking could be perpetrated by bluffing or using a fake bomb, the roommate said. La Caille said he argued against each scheme, "and he would counter any objections."

On the wall of their apartment, Tripp had circled

July 11, the date of the hijacking, and wrote "Pay-day." The rest of the spaces were blank.

La Caille said he and Tripp met in Ramona, Calif., at a school for the "emotionally disturbed and educably retarded" where La Caille was an education aide and Tripp a student.

"He had learning disabilities and was a little slow, but he could be taught," La Caille said.

La Caille said he moved to Seattle and later paid for Tripp's fare "to get him out of a brutal family situation."

The two became roommates in June 1979, then "this girl came along," La Caille said. "It shook him up."

The girl told Tripp she would marry him but refused to give up another boyfriend until she got an engagement ring, La Caille said.

Tripp became troubled. On Wednesday, he threatened La Caille with a knife, and La Caille evicted him, police reports indicate.

The youth telephoned later and said he wanted to be friends, then talked again about hijacking, La Caille said.

Commission Holds Hearings

The North Carolina Wildlife Commission will hold two public hearings at the Craven County Court House in New Bern, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday night.

One of the hearings will deal with crop depredation by wildlife, of interest to farmers. The other will deal with tagging fur bearers, of interest to trappers.

At the hearing, the commission will outline proposed new regulations dealing with wildlife depredation of crops, and is seeking input from farmers on the proposed regulations.

The commission will also review proposed new regulations requiring a $1 tag for each mink and/or raccoon taken, and is seeking input from trappers.

MEETING CANCELLED

The July meeting of the Pitt County Planning Board, originally scheduled for Wednesday night has been cancelled, according to county planner Craig Smith.

The planning board will not meet this month because there are no new agenda items.

Group Cited By The Mayor

Mayor Don McGlohn proclaimed the period of July 13-19 as Radiologic Technology Week in Greenville.

According to McGlohn, the American Society of Radiologic Technologist has designated the period "as a week set aside to honor the members of this profession."

He said that the Department of Radiology at Pitt Memorial Hospital will be observing the occasion with special events throughout the week.

The mayor, referring to local radiologic technologists as "Professionals on the Best Health Care Team in the World," said they "strive to maintain high standards of education to elevate the quality of patient care through radiation protection to the public."

ALL-STAR GAME RETURNS TO GREENVILLE — After two years in Raleigh, the Boys Home All-Star Game has returned to Greenville this year. Mayor Don McGlohon, left, helps John Johnson, center, state president of the Boys Home All-Star Game, and Mike Joyner, right, president of the Greenville Jaycees, raise the official All-Star Game flag on the Town Common at 11 o'clock this morning. This is the 18th year the game has been played. "We are glad to be back in town," said Johnson. The game was moved to Raleigh while Ficklen Stadium was renovated. (Reflector Photo by Mary Schulken)

GOP Convention.... New Cargo Jet On Test Flight

place on the ticket "would have broad support across the country." Four thousand delegates and alternates and thousands more reporters, technicians and political groupies arrived in town over the weekend and filled hotels for miles around, including several across the Detroit River in Windsor, Canada.

The mood was festive; the dominant colors were red, white and blue; and the Republicans were enjoying public opinion polls that said Reagan holds a strong lead over President Carter and that GOP candidates could make substantial gains in Congress where the Democrats still control the House and Senate.

The Reaganites' script was mostly holding up but there were exceptions. The Connecticut delegation voted Sunday, for example, to back an effort to overturn an anti-abortion platform plank calling for the appointment of federal judges sympathetic to the rights of the unborn.

Other expressions of doubt amid the air of confidence came from party leaders concerned that Reagan, a leader of the conservative wing of the party, might slight moderates in his moment of triumph and fail to unite the GOP behind his presidential candidacy.

Most prominent among them was former President Gerald R. Ford who said in a television interview that he thought Reagan should choose a running mate who would "broaden the base of the party, who would heal any differences."

Ford, who defeated Reagan for the 1976 GOP presidential, is regarded as a key figure in Reagan's efforts to unite the party in 1980.

Sources close to Ford said he was urging Reagan to choose Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan or Donald Rumsfeld, who was secretary of defense during the Ford administration.

Another prospect regarded as acceptable to Ford would be Bush, the former U.N. ambassador who gave Reagan his toughest competition during the primary campaign.

The same source who named Vander Jagt and Rumsfeld, also said that the former president believes Reagan has agreed to limit his choice to someone acceptable to Ford. Ford and Reagan have a private meeting scheduled for Tuesday.

Another source said Lugar was still a strong contender. Lugar could emerge as a compromise candidate who would be acceptable to both conservatives and moderates.

The two men favored by the conservatives were Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Kemp.

Reagan said in an interview at his California home that choosing a running mate was "the biggest problem confronting me right now" and that he hadn't made a decision.

"I am not sitting here with someone tucked away in the back of my mind, comfortably waiting for the time to reveal it," said Reagan. "I have not made a decision and I am still gathering input."

Reagan said he doesn't expect to make his final decision until late Wednesday night after a committee delegates shows up at his suite on the 69th floor of the Detroit Plaza Hotel to notify him that he has been voted the party's presidential nomination.

On the eve of the convention, an Associated Press survey gave Reagan 1,692 delegates out of the total of 1,994. Bush had 168, Rep. John Anderson, now running as an independent, had 21 and 113 were uncommitted.

Assured of the nomination, Reagan also was buoyed by public opinion polls showing him leading President Carter. An Associated Press-NBC poll said Reagan was the choice of 41 percent of likely voters. Carter was supported by 27 percent and Anderson by 18 percent.

In addition, Republicans also are touting surveys indicating a growing number of people now believe the GOP is better able to deal with the major issues facing the country.

Bush arrived at the convention on Sunday and planned formally to release his delegates today and urge them to vote for Reagan.

As they arrived at the convention, several men commented on their own vice presidential prospects.

Former Texas Gov. John B. Connally said, "I'm one of the few men in America, I believe, who's not available."

"I'd take it so fast it would make his head spin," said Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois.

Neither Connally or Crane is anyone's list of leading prospects.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, the target of a strong conservative campaign to block his nomination, said he has told Reagan "that it is my personal preference that he choose someone else."

Laxalt said he was startled by a published report that he had been eliminated and that he called Reagan aides in Los Angeles who assured him the story was incorrect.

"I think it's wide open," said Laxalt.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — McDonnell Douglas Corp. officials called the initial tests of the company's new KC-10 cargo-tanker aircraft "extremely successful" after the jumbo plane's maiden flight to Yuma, Ariz.

The converted DC-10 airliners must complete some 300 hours of flight tests before six are delivered to the Air Force as part of a $305.5 million order.

"I would say it was extremely successful," Douglas Aircraft Division spokesman David Eastman said Saturday after the plane landed safely in Yuma after a 4-hour, 16 minute flight from Long Beach Airport.

"No problems were reported, although I expect a few minor things may come up," Eastman said.

The plane is designed to carry fuel and support equipment for deployment of U.S. fighter planes and men anywhere in the world without landing at foreign bases.

The Air Force plans to buy as many as 20 of the redesigned version of the DC-10 Series 30 intercontinental range freighter, Douglas spokesman Jack Cook said.

Death Leap Off Shea Stadium

NEW YORK (AP) — A 28-year-old man with "a long history of mental illness" apparently leaped to his death from an upper level of Shea Stadium, police say.

Police said Bruce Winick scaled a wire barrier on the mezzanine and plunged 100 feet to the pavement outside the stadium, shortly before the start of a New York Mets doubleheader against the St. Louis Cardinals. He was dead on arrival at a nearby hospital. Police called the death an apparent suicide.

The Queens man's companion told police that Winick had been under a doctor's care and the ballgame had been recommended by the doctor as "a therapeutic measure," officials said.

Kratzert Wins At Milwaukee, To Skip Open

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bill Kratzert is skipping the British Open at Muirfield, Scotland, this week.

The winner of the Greater Milwaukee Open Sunday said: "Why should I go if it is distasteful to me?"

Kratzert meant he didn't want anything to do with the British Open, and his next tournament will be the Greater Hartford Open in two weeks.

He won that tourney in 1977, and his victory in the Milwaukee event was his first since then.

But Kratzert, whose father, William, is head professional at the Fort Wayne, Ind., Country Club, has won at least $100,000 in each of his four full seasons on the PGA tour. And this year he has made the cut in 19 of 21 starts and has had seven top-ten finishes.

He won the Greater Milwaukee Open, and $36,000, with a 22-under par 266 on rounds of 67, 66, 67 and 66, as the pros burned up the 7,010-yard par-72 Tuckaway Country Club links.

Howard Twitty was second at 270, and grouped at 271 were Curtis Strange, George Cadle and Mark Lye.

A dozen players were 13 under par or better for the tournament, and only two were over par at 289, South African Jeff Hawkes and Stan Lee.

Kratzert's victory was a 29th birthday present to his wife, Cheryl, who stayed at home in Fort Wayne. The couple expect their second child in December.

Kratzert said he was not knocking the British Open. "It's the oldest tournament, but I would rather stay here, where we are treated like kings in tournaments."

His only journey to the British Open was in 1978, when he missed the cut at St. Andrews.

"Over there they can't accommodate the players the way they are accustomed to," he said. "In an effort to get a grand slam, I can see going there, but otherwise no."

"Perhaps the condition of the courses over there had turned me off," he said. "Over here, we have courtesy cars driving us to the clubhouse and we stayed in hotels that are close by."

Alcott Strides To Victory

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Calling it the culmination of a childhood dream, Amy Alcott strode away with the U.S. Women's Open golf championship, winning by nine strokes.

Two-time Open winner Hollis Stacy finished second. In carding a 280 on the par-71, 6,229-yard Richland Country Club course Sunday, Alcott broke the U.S. Women's Open 72-hole record of 284 established last year by Jerilyn Britz at Fairfield, Conn.

That earned the 24-year-old from Santa Monica, Calif., a $25,000 bonus from Golf Magazine, plus the $20,047 winner's purse — a $45,000-plus payday.

Her 1980 earnings, without the bonus, stand at $152,304, making her the year's leading money-winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

"When I was growing up in California, I'd play a lot of golf with Sue Kennedy," Alcott said after the final round. "I'd drop a ball eight feet from the pole, say the shot was for the Open, and put it in. Today, I did it for real."

She said winning the Open was everything she ever dreamed about as a golfer.

"I know I can play. I've proved that all along. But it's nice to win a major championship because I think you're remembered for the championships. I often dreamed I could be here on the 18th green and today I was. It was my show."

Indeed it was. The 1975 LPGA Rookie-of-the-Year shared or held the Open lead after each round. Her 54-hole total of 208 was two strokes better than Donna Caponi Young's record of 210 set in 1970 while on the way to her second U.S. Women's Open title.

In Sunday's final round, Alcott birdied hole No. 1, then drew bogeys on Nos. 2 and 4 and shot a 37 on the front nine.

She birdied the par-3, 181-yard No. 12 hole after coming inches from scoring a hole-in-one. She finished the round with a 72 — the first time in the four-day tournament she failed to break par.

Stacy, who earned $11,347 for her second-place finish, couldn't match Alcott's aggressive game and fell still another stroke behind the leader from her 54-hole deficit of eight. Stacy finished the tournament with a 75-71-70-73—289, two shots ahead of Kathy McMullen, whose who earned $8,547 in third-place money.

Tied for fourth were Caponi Young and Judy Clark, each with a 292 total.

Barbara Moxness, who shared the first day's lead with Alcott, posted a 299.

Boys Game Back, And It Feels Good

By LARRY SULLIVAN
 Reflector Sports Writer

Reunited, and it feels so good. That's the way State Jaycee Chairman John Jackson feels about the Greenville Jaycees and the Boys Home Football Game.

The game, played for the benefit of Boys Homes of North Carolina, originated in Greenville 18 years ago. All the games were played in East Carolina's Ficklen Stadium until 1978 when the game was moved to Raleigh because of stadium renovation. Now, after a two year's absent, the game is back.

"It's a homecoming, of sorts," Jackson said this morning while the players from both the North and South squads were preparing for the week's first practice. "Cooperation here between the merchants, ECU and everybody involved is just super. We're glad to have the game back."

The game will be played Saturday night at 7:00. After arriving in Greenville yesterday, the players began their week-long preparation Monday morning with the mid-morning practice.

Rocky Mount's Walt Wiggins will be the head coach of the North squad. Assisting Wiggins will be Plymouth's Mac Allen and Southern Guilford's C.K. Siler. As of Monday morning, all but two of the 33-man roster were present.

On the other side of the field, Will Campagna of North Mecklenburg will head coach the South team. His assistants will be Boyce Deltz of Swain County and Tommy Sloan of Miday. The Rebels were missing only one player of the expected 33 at the week's first workout.

Members of the team will be staying on the second floor of Aycock Dorm during the week. Coaches of the squads will be housed in the Ramada Inn. Net proceeds from the game go to support Boys Homes of North Carolina, which has campuses at

Pirates Nip Louisburg, Strengthen Hold On 1st

LOUISBURG — East Carolina scored two unearned runs in the seventh to defeat Louisburg, 9-8, Sunday and strengthen its hold on first place in N.C. Summer League.

ECU, which faces Louisburg tonight at home, is now 16-7 going into the final week of the season. Louisburg is 1 1/2 games behind the league-leading Pirates at 15-9.

ECU wasted little time in taking the lead Sunday, scoring five runs in the first. Louisburg, however, countered with three runs in the second. The Pirates added to their lead in the fourth with two more runs but Louisburg again countered, this time scoring five runs in the bottom of the inning to tie the game before ECU took the lead for good in the seventh.

With one gone in the seventh, Jay Carraway and Robert Wells were hit by pitches and when Pete Persico walked the Pirates had the bases loaded. Mike Sorrell then sent a grounder to the second for the force out but the relay to second went over the first baseman's head to score both Carraway and Wells, giving the Pirates the lead, 9-7.

Louisburg closed within one with a run in the bottom of the seventh but ECU pitcher Kirk Parsons then got the Hurricanes out in order in the last two innings to give the Pirates the victory.

Early on, it appeared ECU would have things its own way. In the five-run first, two consecutive errors put Sorrell at second and Kelly Robinette at first with no outs. Todd Hendley was then hit by a pitch to load the bases before John Hallow followed with a single to score two runs.

After Mike Sage struck out, Charlie Smith singled, driving home Hendley. Then with two gone, Wells singled one Smith, giving the Pirates a 5-0 lead.

Louisburg countered with three runs in the second on Mike Russell's three-run homer but the Pirates came back with two runs in the fourth.

Persico singled, moved to second on Sorrell's sacrifice bunt, and went to third on Robinette's single. He scored on Hendley's single. Hallow then singled home Robinette to give ECU a 7-3 lead. The Hurricanes knotted the score with four runs in the inning, sparked by Mike Velesquez's two-run homer and a solo shot by Fred Donegar. ECU, however, rallied to take the lead three innings later — and this time hold it.

Hallow led the Pirates at the plate with three hits. Robinette and Persico had two hits for ECU.

Trio Win Net Titles

Carlisle Wille won the women's championship and Stephen Creech and Walter Jones won the men's titles in the City of Greenville Tennis Tournament Sunday afternoon at the River Birch Tennis Center at Evans Park.

Top-seeded Wille, hitting flawless groundstrokes, defeated second-seeded Francis Cain in the Women's Open division in straight sets.

Creech, who lost only four games in the tournament, meanwhile rolled past J. Ritzer to win the Men's Novice title 6-2, 6-0.

In the men's 35's, Jones won a three-set marathon over top-seeded Al King. Jones fought off five match points to even the third set at 5-5 before King stayed off two match points at 6-5 before finally losing 3-6, 7-5, 7-5.

The men's open singles final between Randy Bailey and John Eatman will be played at River Birch today at 5 p.m.

Samaranch Leads Race For Olympic Presidency

MOSCOW (AP) - Juan Antonio Samaranch, the quiet and polished Spanish ambassador to Moscow, was leading James Worrall of Canada Sunday night in the race to be president of the International Olympic Committee.

Members of the IOC were arriving in Moscow for the Olympic Games, darkened by the boycott sparked by the Soviet military intervention of Afghanistan, and for an important session at which a new president will be elected.

Lord Killanin, 66 during these Games, ends his eight-year term when the Moscow flame goes out. His successor is due to be chosen next Wednesday.

A third candidate, Lance Cross of New Zealand, was expected to run but was not picking up much support. His role could be to win some of the Commonwealth votes away from Worrall, split the support for the Canadian and give Samaranch a clearer run to the presidency.

The boycott, which has reduced the Olympics to an expected 80 nations, has plunged the movement into its deepest crisis since the late Baron Pierre de Coubertin started the modern Games more than 80 years ago.

Whoever leads the IOC in the next few years has a difficult task to halt the Olympic movement's slide down the slippery slope of political and commercial intervention.

Samaranch, favorite for the job, is 60 and has been quietly rising in the IOC hierarchy in recent years.

He has served a four-year term as vice-president. He is the chief of protocol, which gives him responsibility for organizing meetings and ceremonials, and he is chairman of the IOC's press commission. He became a member of the IOC in 1966.

He is diplomatic and discreet, a man who says little in public but is much consulted by IOC members. Samaranch is an industrialist who has held government posts in Spain and was chosen as ambassador to Moscow in 1977.

Williams Is 3rd In 3,000

RALEIGH - Harry Williams finished third in the 3,000 meters and three area relay teams finished third at the Southeastern Junior Olympic Track Meet here Saturday.

Williams, which ran the 3,000 in 8:52.7, qualified as an alternate to the national meet in California.

In the mile relay for senior boys, Chris McLawhorn, Serrell Guen, Joe Dixon and Terry White came in third with a time of 3:24. In the intermediate girls 400-meter relay, Angie Atkinson, Sheila Murphey, Judy Daniels and Tammy Mayo set a Rose High school record with a time of 49.6.

The team of Williams, Owens, Summerell and Vines were third in the two-mile relay with a clocking of 8:41.

Other results include Carmon, Brunson, Brown and Brooks, a fourth place in the 400-relay in the intermediate boys division (43.9) and Harrell, Frazier, Owens and Carmon, a fourth in the mile relay in the intermediate division (3:28).

terville extended its lead to 7-3 with a run in the fifth, Kiwanis went ahead, 9-7, with six runs in the sixth before the Winterville's seventh-inning outburst.

Jeff Allen and Micah Dixon both had two hits for Winterville while Chris Jones and Brian Dye led Kiwanis with three hits apiece. Paul MacMillan had two hits for Kiwanis.

Dixon Page singled to lead off the fourth, moved to second on error, which allowed Jeff Cox to reach. Joel Brown followed with a single to load the bases. Then, after a pop out, Page scored on Emory Vines' sacrifice fly. Following that, two errors allowed Cox and Brown to score, giving Winterville the lead, 5-3.

After Jamie Futrell was hit by a pitch and Greg Hardison struck out, Michael James singled to score Bunting with what proved to be the winning run.

Italians, Czechs Win Davis Titles

By The Associated Press
Italy and Czechoslovakia have won their respective Davis Cup zone tennis championships.

Italy clinched a 4-1 victory over Sweden in the European Zone A tennis finals after Adriano Panatta and Corrado Barazzutti defeated their Swedish opponents in singles matches Sunday in Rome.

In Sunday's first match, Panatta downed Kjell Johansson 3-6, 6-4, 1-6, 6-4 in a marathon 3 1/2-hour duel. Barazzutti defeated Stefan Simonsson 8-6, 6-1 in the final singles match.

The Swedes, playing without injured five-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg, had lost a doubles match and split two singles Friday.

The victory moved Italy into the inter-zonal competition against Australia Sept. 19-21 in Rome.

Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, defeated Romania 4-1 in the European Zone B competition and will meet Argentina in Buenos Aires in September.

In the final two singles, played Sunday in Bucharest, Pavel Slozil defeated Eduard Pana of Romania 7-5, 6-0 and Florin Segarceanu defeated Stanislav Birner of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 2-6, 8-6.

Czechoslovakia had built up an unbeatable 3-0 lead Saturday with a victory over Romania in the doubles competition.

Brewer Named Shrine Coach

Farmville Central's Gene Brewer has been selected as an assistant coach for the 44th annual Shrine Bowl football game to be held in Charlotte on December 13.

Brewer joins head coach Marion Kirby of Page Senior High and assistants Bob Colvin of Robbinville and Will Campagna of North Mecklenburg on the North Carolina staff.

Brewer, an Elon College graduate, has coached at Farmville for the past 11 years and had compiled a record of 91-27 and 2 ties.

Muhammad Wins, But Looks Like The Loser

McAFEE, N.J. (AP) — The winner — Matthew Saad Muhammad — looked like the loser, and the loser — Yaqui Lopez — looked like the winner.

Lopez can be deceiving. "It was pretty much the toughest fight I've had recently," Muhammad said Sunday after stopping Lopez in the 14th round to retain his World Boxing Council light heavyweight title. "I went on to prove I'm the undisputed light heavyweight champion." Well, he's still the champion, but it's far from undisputed. Muhammad is the man the WBC recognizes while the World Boxing Association gives the nod to Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, the former Eddie Gregory.

After the fight, however, it looked like Lopez was the new champion.

The 28-year-old native of Stockton, Calif., was fresh and full of life despite cuts on his nose, cheek and under his left eye. He was talking freely and graciously.

Muhammad, who disappeared for 90 minutes after the fight, was speaking softly, obviously exhausted, his right eye puffy. Every word out of his mouth seemed to sap what little energy he had left.

"I don't usually look like this," he said, patting his face. "I usually look pretty good."

But it was the 26-year-old Muhammad, coming back from absorbing 23 consecutive shots in the eighth round, who

Few Challenges Left For U.S.'s Moses

LONDON (AP) — For Edwin Moses, there are few challenges or challengers left.

The American holds the all-time world record of 42 consecutive victories in 400-meter intermediate hurdles finals and the world record of 47.13 seconds for the event. He won an Olympic gold medal at the 1976 Montreal Games.

All Moses can possibly do now is continue his amazing winning streak and lower his world record, but neither appears of much significant to Moses.

The Olympics are out of the question for this year...and possibly for 1984.

"Without the Olympics, this seems like any other year," the usually solemn Moses said Sunday after posting 400-meter hurdles victory in an international track and field meet at rainy Crystal Palace.

There are no Olympics for Moses or any other American athletes this year because of the U.S.-led boycott.

"There is no climax (to the track and field) season," added the tall, bespectacled Moses after winning in 48.53 — much slower than the world record time he set 10 days ago at Milan, Italy.

"Even a lot of Western athletes feel the same way."

"There is nothing I can do about it, nothing anybody can do about it."

"I was waiting for the Olympics...I wanted to go. That's what I was working for."

Perhaps the only further satisfaction Moses will get this year will be to beat the Olympic gold medalist after the Games in competitions throughout Europe. He plans to race twice more before the Moscow Games, which begin July 19th.

His next race will be Tuesday in Oslo, Norway — the third stop of Phase One of the U.S. Olympic team's swing through Europe — and in Paris Thursday. He will skip an international meet in Philadelphia Wednesday and Thursday, and possibly rejoin the team in August for meets in Rome Aug. 5, Berlin Aug. 8, and Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 13.

The usually flawless Moses described his latest victory as "sloppy."

Nixon-Purvis Win Title

Perto Nixon and Rudy Purvis downed Robert Johnson and Merietta Williams 6-2, 6-2 to win the Greenville Tennis Association's mixed doubles tournament this weekend at the Thomas Foreman tennis courts.

Nixon-Purvis defeated Bernard and Bernestine Haselrig in the semifinals 7-5, 6-1 while Johnson-Williams whipped Howard and Yvonne Pearce 6-2, 6-2.

Lake Waccamaw and Huntersville.

Local students were among those selected to participate as cheerleaders at the 18th annual Jaycee Boys Home Game.

State Chairman Jackson announced that the persons selected were nominated by their schools and would be adding spirit and enthusiasm at the all-star contest.

A pair of cheerleaders were selected from J.H. Rose Senior High. Jennifer Davis and Martha Carla Tadlock will represent the Rampants at the annual event.

Teresa Daniels and Victoria Lynn Whitaker were selected from Roanoke High School.

Farmville Central High's Melinda Denise Williams will also cheer for the South squad in Saturday's game.

Looks can be deceiving. "It was pretty much the toughest fight I've had recently," Muhammad said Sunday after stopping Lopez in the 14th round to retain his World Boxing Council light heavyweight title. "I went on to prove I'm the undisputed Griffith has a summer home within walking distance of Waterside Theater on Roanoke Island, where the outdrama drama is staged.

Sales Soaring In Motorcycles

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Despite a generally shaky economy, motorcycle sales are up - dramatically - in North Carolina this year.

R.L. Polk and Co., a Detroit firm that compiles motor vehicle registration figures, reports that new motorcycle registrations in North Carolina during the first four months of 1980 totaled 5,152 - an increase of 75 percent over registrations for the same period in the previous year.

"Every time there's an increase at the gas pump, our sales pick up the next week," Raleigh cycle dealer Edward Watkins said.

Economy and gasoline mileage apparently are the biggest factors in the rush to motorcycles. While a good economy car will get possibly 40 miles per gallon of gasoline, motorcycles routinely top 50 mpg and can get as much as 130 mpg.

Heston Rented A Drive-In

LA VETA, Colo. (AP) - Actor Charlton Heston headed to the West to watch his latest film, "The Mountain Men," premiere on a huge outdoor screen. But the outdoor screen wasn't the one he wanted.

High winds Saturday toppled the original screen, so off went the opening-show crowd to a drive-in theater. Heston told about 1,000 people gathered to see the film that he had rented the drive-in, about 30 miles away from the original site, for a special screening Sunday.

The actor was here taking part in the 1980 Western State Rendezvous, sponsored by the National Muzzle Loading Rifle Association and the National Association of Primitive Riflemen.

Members of the groups worked as extras in the film.

Violinist Plays For 130,000

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Violin virtuoso Isaac Stern has played to a lot of large crowds during his 49-year career, but none quite so large as the one that turned out for an outdoor concert here.

On Saturday, 130,000 people showed up to hear Stern, 59.

"They were so self-disciplined in that large a crowd," Stern said Sunday before another performance, this time a nationally televised concert with the Israel Philharmonic.

In an interview, Stern remembered playing to 30,000 or more American troops during World War II in the Pacific. But he said Saturday night's crowd was "amazing."

Four-Night Run Begins For 'Ron Reagan Show'

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - "The Ron Reagan Show" commences its four-night run on the tube this evening. As miniseries go, this one - otherwise known as the Republican National Convention - doesn't figure as a powerhouse entertainment.

For one thing, everyone already knows the ending: B-movie actor and former governor Ronald Reagan finally gets the girl.

That knowledge pretty much robs the beginning and middle of "The Ron Reagan Show" of any dramatic value. The plot is composed of political speeches, 33 of them, scripted to prelude smoothly the inexorable denouement.

So, how will ABC, CBS and NBC make a show of this thing?

CBS has at least one advantage, a little side attraction, so to speak - Walter Cronkite's penultimate presidential convention. If the show itself doesn't move you, maybe nostalgia will suffice.

CBS' evening coverage begins with a special edition of "60 Minutes," to be broadcast just before the convention in most of the country, immediately following the convention in parts of the West (because of the time difference).

Mike Wallace will go solo on the special "60 Minutes," which consists of separate interviews with Nancy and Ronald Reagan.

Should the Republican show somehow erupt into excitement - say, a contentious minority report rapping the party's Reagan-backed anti-ERA stance - Cronkite has a crack squad in the Joe Louis Arena to cover it: Bill Moyers (a welcome returnee), Dan Rather, Bruce Morton, Harry Reasoner, Morton Dean and Bob Schieffer.

CBS also sent Andy Rooney, Charles Kuralt and Charles Osgood to Detroit; a pool of wit that should help.

ABC News is eager to perform under its relatively new boss, Roone Arledge, who has strived to polish his division's image. Last time America held its presidential conventions, you may recall, ABC "cheated" a bit by only yielding portions of its precious prime time to the conventions.

While the other two webs covered the events gavel-to-gavel, ABC created for itself a precious prime time advantage by running some entertainment programming.

This year, ABC joins its rivals in gavel-to-gavel coverage, but it is still hedging just a bit by broadcasting two special editions of its relatively popular magazine show, "20-20," on Monday and Tuesday.

They will injected directly into prime time coverage - not before, or after it, as CBS is doing with its "60 Minutes" special - and their content, while broadly political, does not relate directly to the convention action.

There is a segment on where the delegates can go in Detroit for a little fun after the convention; another one takes a look at political jingles.

NBC News is also going to the convention with a new boss, former CBS man Bill Small. Old reliables John Chancellor and David Brinkley will anchor, with Tom Brokaw, Tom Pettit, Garrick Utley and Chris Wallace reporting from the floor.

The good stuff - assuming that no unexpected brouhaha occurs on platform night Tuesday - will come on Wednesday, when Reagan becomes the Republican nominee, and on Thursday, when his campaign-mate is chosen.

The Democrats' convention next month figures to provide lots of excitement, which isn't necessarily good for that party but is great for TV.

No Inquiry Called In Melee Of Police, Community

Yo-Yo Contest Is Planned

Boys and girls in Pitt County will soon have a chance to demonstrate their skills with the yo-yo, as American youngsters have done historically for over 50 years.

Local communities in Pitt County will be holding neighborhood competitions. A county wide tournament with all local winners will be held at Wellcome Middle School August 2 at 10 a.m.

Youngsters through age 15 are eligible to participate in two age categories — 11 and under and 12 through 15.

Boys and girls will be called upon to perform ten tricks at the local park level, including such favorites as Gravity Pull, Sleeper, Walk the Dog, Forward Pass and Around the World, but can qualify for community, state, and regional finals with a minimum number of points, along with the winners in each division. State and regional winners and runners-up will receive Yo-Yolympics T-shirts.

Nine regional titlists will go on to compete in the Yolympics National Finals on Saturday, September 13, at Universal Studios Tour Entertainment Center in Hollywood, California. A $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond will be awarded to the gold medalist, with $500 and $250 in scholarship bonds to the silver and bronze medalists, respectively. Each regional winner earns a $100 bond, awarded at national finals.

It is expected that in excess of one million youngsters will compete in this year's event, in over 1,000 cities and counties.

The 1980 Super Sugar Crisp Yo-Yolympics is a cooperative public service effort jointly sponsored by the Community Schools Program, Recreation Departments, and the Duncan Toys Company on behalf of U.S. youth. Those interested in competing in the Yo-Yolympics call your local recreation department, or the Pitt County Community Schools Program phone 752-6106, ext. 248 or 249.

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — High temperatures, the slaying of a black teen-ager and 25 percent unemployment combined to spark a violent confrontation between police and hundreds of residents of a predominantly black neighborhood here, black leaders say.

The confrontation came after the fatal shooting Tuesday of William Taylor Jr., 15, who was killed by police as he allegedly fled the scene of a house burglary.

On Saturday, detectives investigating a double homicide at the Disco 96 nightclub drew a crowd of 500 people. Some pelted police with rocks and bottles, injuring two officers before the crowd was dispersed.

Mel Brannon, president of the Flint Urban League, said the shooting of Taylor was "the straw that broke the camel's back" in a city plagued with high unemployment, mostly from layoffs at General Motors Corp., the city's major employer.

"We have the highest unemployment rate in the nation, the temperature's been hot, there's a feeling of hopelessness and despair as far as the general economic situation — add those up and you get a situation that's volatile," Brannon said.

"There has always been the underlying attitude in the black community that if you're white and have money, you get justice, and if you're poor and black you don't."

Sgt. Robert Aguirre agreed that tensions had increased since white Officer Gerald Collins shot Taylor. Some witnesses contended Taylor had stopped on Collins' order, contradicting police reports.

That shooting is being investigated by the department and by Flint Ombudsman Joe Dupczka, said Mayor James Rutherford. Collins has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

Brannon said Flint's Black Community Congress, a coalition of local black organizations, planned a meeting this week to discuss the situation

Rutherford said Sunday no investigation was needed into the confrontation on Flint's north side. However, he said, the City Council was to renew discussion tonight on a proposed revision of the policy allowing police to use deadly force to stop a fleeing felon.

The outburst at the nightclub flared after detectives arrived to investigate the apparent robbery-related slaying of Mary Washington, 30, and Joan Myers, 21. The women, both black, were nightclub employees.

Three men were arrested during the melee but none was charged in connection with the slayings, said Lt. William Dye.

Seventy officers from Flint, Michigan State Police and four neighboring communities eventually were called to control the crowd, Dye said.

Dye said police blockaded an area four blocks long and two blocks wide. Three store windows were smashed and several police cars were damaged by rocks and bottles.

"I've heard the word riot thrown around — I was out there last night, and I was here in 1967 when it was a lot worse," said Dye. "It wasn't a situation for mass arrests and the area is by no means bombed out. There are no civilian injuries we're aware of.

"Most of the people were just curious onlookers, and we found once we got the onlookers to move the mischief makers just melted," he added.

Someday, Soar Like An Eagle

CHICAGO (AP) — At age 13 he weighed 410 pounds, had a 64-inch waist, and was taunted and rejected.

"I always sent out nice Valentines, but all I ever got was the kind that said I was a hippo or an elephant," said Ken Dachman.

Dachman remembers years of torment — a boy trying to find a seat big enough on which to sit down; a boy who couldn't see his feet, who couldn't cross his legs, who could just barely put on his socks.

Now, at age 21, he owns a company in suburban Arlington Heights, selling a system for losing weight and how to prepare psychologically to do it. His 6-foot frame carries 175 pounds and has a 32-inch waist. And he is engaged to be married this fall.

"School was a disaster," he said. "By the 7th grade I really had emotional problems. When the other kids ignored me, I began to think they were right, that I really didn't have any business mixing with 'normal' kids."

Dachman said that after attending the Psychosomatic and Psychiatric Institute at Michael Reese Hospital when he graduated from 8th grade he began meeting people and slowly learned to be an independent individual. He went on a diet and lost 250 pounds in less than a year. It was done by just eating three nutritious meals a day, he said, instead of cases of food.

"On a typical Saturday, when I had all day to eat, I would wake up, turn on the cartoons on television and make breakfast," said Dachman.

"I would cook six eggs or 10 or a dozen, however big the pan was. I would cook them in half a stick of butter and throw maybe half a loaf of bread in. I'd eat maybe eight strips of bacon or a dozen sausages with thin sliced onions or ravioli or ribs or Chinese food."

Dachman said his parents tolerated his eating habits, kept the refrigerator well stocked, and left him money if they were not home. He said as a baby he had been very ill and his mother wanted to protect him. He became a mama's boy.

"When my parents went away for a weekend, I loved it. They left me $20 and a fully-stocked house," he said.

"Other kids would play spin-the-bottle when their parents went away. I made Kenny burgers — a pound of hamburger, peppers and onions cooked in a stick of butter. I thought the butter made it taste good," he said.

N.C. Republicans Pushing Helms But Look For Bush

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Senator Jesse Helms, R-N.C., pushed by conservatives as a candidate for the Republican vice presidential nomination, says Ronald Reagan and his advisers may be too concerned with forming an ideologically balanced ticket as they decide on a running mate.

Meanwhile, Helms' chief political strategist, Tom Ellis, said that he now expects former presidential candidate George Bush to be selected by Reagan once he is formally nominated for president.

Helms, speaking to reporters Sunday during a dinner reception for North Carolina delegates, said he has had no discussions of the vice presidential nomination with Reagan or his advisers. But he said he believed the Reagan campaign was leaning toward the selection of someone more moderate than Helms in an attempt to "go straddle-legged to victory."

"They are my friends and I am theirs, but they may be hung up on this balanced ticket business. I am not," Helms said. "I think the best course to follow is the principled course."

"If it's so bad to be a conservative, why is he where he is?" he added.

Helms returned Sunday to Detroit from an overnight trip to Los Angeles, where he appeared at a rally with evangelist Jerry Falwell, a supporter of Helms for the vice presidential nomination.

Helms and Ellis denied suggestions the trip may have been designed to consult with Reagan, or his advisers. Helms said his only conversations with Reagan aides during the past week have been over the platform.

As delegates from North Carolina arrived in Detroit, several of them named other candidates as their favorites for vice president. And several said they want only to support whomever Reagan chooses for a running mate.

Acknowledging that sentiment, Ellis said he believed those delegates were uninformed on the efforts of the Jesse Helms for Vice President Committee.

"I don't think they're up to date on what's been occurring and when they are, I think they'll be for Jesse," Ellis said.

"My bet right now is that Bush is going to be the (vice presidential) nominee, and I don't think the people from North Carolina realize that yet. ... George Bush is no heroic figure amongst conservatives in the South," Ellis added.

Ellis said his belief that Bush would be the Reagan choice was based in part on the fact that six Southern Republican state chairmen said Saturday they supported Bush as Reagan's running mate.

Ellis said the Helms campaign has secured commitments to vote for Helms for vice president from 100 delegates, and he described that as a "minimum figure."

Helms, asked who will place his name in nomination on Thursday, said it may be Rep. Charles Bauman,

Bush Releases His Delegates

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — George Bush, keeping the commitment he made when he dropped out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination, is urging the 168 delegates who still support him to back Ronald Reagan and work for him in the fall campaign.

On Sunday, Bush dismissed reports of his being picked as Ronald Reagan's vice presidential running mate as "strictly rumor and speculation."

"That's all I know and that's all I care to say about it," Bush said.

Bush scheduled a day-long series of meetings today with Bush delegates from 22 states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to officially and formally release them to support Reagan.

"It's exactly what I said I would do when I backed off in May," Bush told a reporter. "The delegates are going to be released fulfilling the commitment to release them and support Reagan."

Bush arrived at the convention in Detroit saying that while he is not campaigning for the vice presidency, "I'm not going to stand here and say I'm disinterested."

He said he can only speculate about what decision Reagan will make but added, "If I was asked to do it, I'd do it."

Meanwhile, conservatives at the convention said they would try to block Bush from receiving the nomination.

John Karbo, an aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said the North Carolina delegation would "definitely" place Helms name in nomination if Reagan turns to Bush.

Bush, the last dropout in the race for the Republican nomination, has been prominently mentioned as a possible Reagan running mate along with Sens. Richard Lugar of Indiana and Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, former Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York.

The former U.N. ambassador is to meet with Bush delegates from Alabama, Arkansas, Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Delaware, Oregon, Wyoming, Colorado, North Dakota, Washington, Texas, Illinois, Minnesota, Hawaii, Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, New York, and Tennessee.

He scheduled meetings later in the week with the Pennsylvania delegation.

Bush will speak to the convention on Wednesday. He made it clear that he is likely to stress party unity.

"The party is more unified than at any time I can remember," Bush said. "There are going to be some differences. Some of them have surfaced. But they will be sublimated to the necessity of seeing that Governor Reagan beats Jimmy Carter."

"I'm inclined to think that the things that hold this party together in the summer of 1980 are so much stronger," he said. "The key point is that the differences are going to be outweighed by the common interests."

Leg Ripped By Motorboat

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) — A 20-year-old man swimming in Lake Lanier near the North Carolina border had his leg ripped off by a motorboat Sunday night, a Landrum, S.C., rescue worker said.

Bruce Cogdill said Wayne Wyatt, who lived in the Spartanburg County section of the lake, was swimming around 10 p.m. when a boat ran over him. His leg was severed at the hip, Cogdill said.

Cogdill said the boat's occupant or occupants pulled Wyatt out of the water. Details were sketchy.

Wyatt was transported to Spartanburg General Hospital, where he was listed in serious condition.

'Presumed Dead' Not Enough For The Families Of MIA

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Samuel Roza sat in a hallway of the Capital Hilton ignoring the bustle around him. A button bearing a picture of his son, in crisp Army uniform, stood out against his blue cardigan sweater.

"Jimmy wasn't a hothead — kind of cool," Roza said. "He made friends easily. ... He was the type who could survive."

Roza has not heard from his son in 10 years. On a June day in 1970, Army SFC James Roza, on his second tour of Vietnam, disappeared after an ambush 20 miles from Saigon.

Although reported at one point to have been seen walking through the jungle as a prisoner, his fate is still unknown.

The Pentagon, as it has done with 2,437 other American servicemen unaccounted for in Southeast Asia, lists

Roza as presumed dead. But for Samuel Roza, a stroke of a bureaucrat's pen is not enough.

So the 69-year-old retired machinist from Buffalo, N.Y., came to Washington with his wife and daughter the other day to meet with nearly 200 other relatives of servicemen who disappeared during the Vietnam war.

It was the 11th such convention by the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia. The league has battled with the State Department and Pentagon for a decade in trying to determine the fate of hundreds of American pilots and soldiers.

It has been an often frustrating effort, say many league members. Interest among government officials and citizens has deteriorated. Four years ago the Pentagon stopped providing transportation for league members to their annual convention, although government officials still meet with them at each gathering.

And interest among the relatives themselves has faded. At the league's recent conference, only 178 people registered, compared to more than 1,000 who attended annually in the early 1970s.

Money, too, has become scarce with a balance of $9,000, prompting talk of the league's Washington office closing. To raise money, the league holds auctions and sells bumper stickers proclaiming "MIA: Missing or Captured. Only Hanoi Knows."

Outside of league members, there are few takers. To drum up interest, league members recently tried to get on TV talk shows, but were rejected. Now they're trying to get one family to participate in the television quiz program "Family Feud."

Roza has attended most of the conventions; his wife has been at every one since 1970. "Why do I come? I'm still hoping," he says, "but of course you never know — 10 years is a long time."

Sue Sullivan, 47, of Austin, Texas, has attended every convention since her husband was shot down 8½ years ago. "It's just like coming to a family reunion," she said. "You get to know everybody's name, a little bit about what happened to their family member. You get a feeling of support."

But her words belied the anger she admitted holding toward a government which she and many others claim has done far too little to pin down the fate of their loved ones.

"What drives me on? It's maybe anger," Mrs. Sullivan said. "I feel that the U.S. government used my husband for 17 years ... then all of a sudden when he was no longer there to work the seven days a week and 24 hours at a time, there was no interest in him."

Her Air Force pilot husband was shot down on Jan. 27, 1972, while on a bombing mission over North Vietnam and was declared presumed dead by the Pentagon two years later.

"The dates, they're stamped on your mind," she said. "I don't know if he's dead or alive, but neither does the government." The Pentagon, she said, claimed an eyewitness — an American POW released in 1973 — saw her husband crash.

"When I contacted him he didn't know what they were talking about. He had only seen the plane for 300 feet," she said. "Members of my husband's squadron... wrote me letters and were all of the opinion that he could have gotten out of the plane. One of the crew members said they saw him outside of the plane with the drag chute open."

The Pentagon says there is no evidence which conclusively shows any American captive alive in Southeast Asia. The Pentagon has received more than 700 reports — 231 of them this year — from refugees who claim to have seen living Americans in Vietnam since the U.S. withdrawal.

Although they remain open cases, none has been independently verified, says Admiral J.O. Tuttle of the Defense Intelligence Agency. Discussions with the Hanoi regime even about the existence of American remains in Vietnam has been at an impasse.

"I am convinced there are some Americans alive over there," said George Brooks of New Windsor, N.Y., whose son, a Navy pilot, was shot down in 1970.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♥KJ9862 ♦AQ7 ♣K102
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Dble. ?

What action do you take?
A.—Offensively, this hand might not be as strong as it looks. East surely has four hearts for his double, so it is quite likely that your partner has no more than a singleton. In other words, you have a potential misfit. The way to tell partner that you have a good hand is to start with a redouble; then double anything the opponents bid. What if the redouble gets left in? With your values, partner should have no trouble wrapping up seven tricks even if trumps break badly.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ72 ♥K10854 ♦A98 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♥ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—You have arrived! Even though undertricks are worth only 50 points apiece, it is better to collect a few 50s than to lose points by taking any action. Don't double—that would be for takeout and you might not like the contract partner chooses.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ72 ♥K10854 ♦A98 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♣ Pass Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—In terms of point count your hand leaves something to be desired, but it cannot be right to let the opponents play in three clubs. Partner might have quite a good hand but could not act because of a flaw—probably length in clubs and shortness in one of the majors. Double. Since you are in the balancing position, partner will allow for the fact that you are protecting him and might be a bit light. However, if he bids a game, you should be confident of making it.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♥987 ♦KQ72 ♣AQJ52
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—While you are going to commit the hand to game, your distribution suggests that a suit contract might be preferable to no trump. However, you cannot jump to four hearts—partner might have only a four-card suit—and three hearts is an underbid. The solution to this problem is to bid three diamonds. If partner rebids hearts, you can raise. You will pass a three no trump bid, and if partner doesn't have spades well stopped, you may end up in a minor-suit game.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J9852 ♥862 ♦K6 ♣Q95
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ Dble. ?
What action do you take?
A.—You do not have much in the way of defense, so there is a temptation to jump to three spades in an attempt to interfere with the enemy auction. However, your hand is too balanced for that action. Your partner might easily go for a number in three spades doubled when the opponents have nothing more than a part score. Two spades is adequate.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable with 70 on score, you hold:
♠QJ6 ♥843 ♦AJ95 ♣KQ4
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—Even though you have 70 on score, there is no reason why you should do anything other than make your normal response. If you did not have a part score, you would have jumped to two no trump, so make that bid now. The difference is that this is no longer forcing on partner—with a minimum hand and no ambitions, he is free to pass.
