

After Nomination, The Waiting

Reagan's Triumph Due Tonight

DETROIT (AP) — Ronald Reagan's long-sought moment of triumph and decision arrives tonight when the Republican National Convention nominates him for President of the United States and then awaits his choice of a running mate.

While the outcome of the presidential balloting is a foregone conclusion with Reagan the only surviving candidate from a once-crowded field, his choice for second spot on the ticket remains the convention's only guessing game.

Will it be George Bush, the man who gave him the toughest fight in the Republican primaries? Or Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, whose convention keynote speech was put off until tonight when Tuesday night's program ran past midnight. Or Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, whose supporters staged a noisy, sign-waving demonstration when he addressed the convention Tuesday night.

Others on most speculative lists include Sens. Richard Lugar of Indiana and Paul Laxalt of Nevada, and former Cabinet members Donald Rumsfeld and William Simon.

Party leaders streamed in and out of Reagan's suite on the 69th floor of the Detroit Plaza Hotel on Tuesday to discuss the vice presidential nomination and most came away with the same impression: Reagan had not made up his mind.

For Reagan, the balloting on the presidential nomination will be like a moment out of one of his Hollywood movies.

Beaten in two earlier tries for the nomination, he tried again, his last chance at age 69, and this time he overwhelmed the opposition.

The former California governor, following tradition, has no plans to go to Joe Louis Arena until Thursday night when he will accept the nomination with a speech, already written, which will make a strong appeal to Democrats to cross party lines and vote for the Republican ticket.

But Nancy Reagan, the candidate's wife, and his two oldest children, Maureen and Michael, attended Tuesday night's session. They were welcomed by cheering delegates and chants of "Viva, Ole" from the Texas delegation.

The chants reminded many onlookers of the moment four years ago when Nancy Reagan and Betty Ford arrived at the convention hall in Kansas City with the presidential contest between their husbands still undecided and delegates on both sides started up competing demonstrations.

Before Mrs. Reagan took her seat at one end of the hall this time, the convention had quickly approved a conservative platform spiced with sharp attacks on President Carter's record and calling for a tougher foreign policy, broad tax cuts, boosts in defense spending and restraints on growth of government in other areas.

Potential fights over two planks — one dropping party support for the Equal Rights Amendment, the other endorsing a constitutional amendment banning abortions except to save the life of the mother — didn't materialize.

Opponents had failed to muster enough support to get a roll call vote on the platform. A majority in at least six state delegations is required to force a roll call vote.

Miami Police Are Shot In Violence

By MIKE McQUEEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Gangs of black youths roamed the streets of Liberty City overnight after five white policemen were shot and wounded, and 500 officers in riot gear cordoned off a 9-square-mile area of northwestern Miami. Police said most of the youths had gone home by dawn and streets were empty.

More than 25 people were reported injured during a night of rock- and bottle-throwing, sporadic looting, arson, firebombing and sniper fire.

Police said "under a dozen" people had been arrested by early today but could not give an exact number. Police reported the Liberty City area was quiet at 6 a.m.

The nightlong violence by hundreds of youths was triggered Tuesday by a plainclothes officer's attempt to stop two black youths from robbing a white motorist in the same neighborhood devastated by race riots two months ago, officials said.

A smaller area in Coconut Grove in southwestern Miami also was sealed off by police carrying shotguns and automatic weapons.

"Hell, man, we're fighting back," one black teen-ager said.

"Blacks have to stand up, man," said 17-year-old Jerry Pounder. "The way they (the police) handle things is all wrong. It's just a disgrace. They come in here bluffing somebody down."

Firefighters were battling three fires, including one at a gasoline service station where youths shoved a tow truck into the middle of a street and set it afire.

Police, hampered by sporadic gunfire, also were trying to move several garbage bins that had been shoved into the path of a freight train. The train stopped before reaching the bins.

"We've had numerous sniping incidents reported throughout the night," said Dade County Central District officer Jim Bigler. "But for the most part, we've been trying to stay out of the area and let things calm down. The tension (from the May 17 riots) has not eased. It is still acute."

However, George Knox, Miami city attorney and a leader in the black community, said the considerable "police presence" could keep violence from reaching (Please turn to Page 18)

Financial Plans, Budget OK'd By Hospital Board

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

The board of trustees of Pitt County Memorial hospital approved the financial plan and operating budget for the hospital fiscal year beginning October 1, 1980, and running through September 30, 1981 last night.

Officials reported that operating expenses of $38,836,594 for the next year represent a total increase in expenses of 26 percent. The major portion, 16.4 percent of this increase, is representative of cost of living salary adjustments and establishment of new positions.

Preparations are planned for the opening of new beds in the psychiatric unit, establishment of a post-intensive care medical unit, a pediatric intensive care unit, and more staff in the newly created department of emergency medicine. An allocation to recruit 51 additional registered nurses for the current nursing staff, $647,310 was appropriated.

Adult and pediatric patient days are projected to increase next year by 2.4 percent officials said, adding that the hospital has been operating at near capacity for the past seven months, with a major increase in patient days expected in the neonatal center. Based on these expected increases, cost-per-patient will be up by 22 percent, with 14.7 percent of this increase identified as an inflation factor and the remaining 7.3 percent representing growth and development of the medical center.

The board said the capital equipment budget of $1,009,586, coupled with building modifications for the medical records, laboratory, pulmonary function study and cafeteria areas in the amount of $650,000, brings the capital expenditure estimates to $1,659,586 for the new year.

The rate structure of the hospital has been revised to meet these financial requirements, the board reported, as a developing regional referral center.

Private room rates will be increased to $110 and intensive care rates will go up to $250.

Previous rates had not been adequate to cover these changes based on a cost analysis of services provided.

The ECU School of Medicine will reimburse the hospital for shared services and the cost of medical education in the amount of $1,073,000 and AHEC grants for residency training programs will be received in the amount of $540,000.

Salary adjustments are expected to average 10 percent for most hospital personnel. It was reported that 187 new positions represent an increase in the salary budget of $1,864,944. The total payroll at the hospital for the coming year will be $20,494,180 and will represent 52.7 percent of the total operating expense budget. Net patient revenues of $38,984,962 are expected in addition to other operating revenues of $2,702,418, for a total operating revenues of $41,687,380.

The financial plan and budget were presented to the board with the understanding that no operating funds would be represented from (Please turn to Page 30)

School Board Talks Funding, Test Results

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education met Tuesday to discuss funds and athletic facilities around the county. Included in the meeting was an explanation of the 1980 Achievement Test Scores for county students grades 1-9 and a summary of the highlights of the 1979-80 academic year.

Plans for the use of capital outlay funds approved by the Board of Commissioners and any surplus current expense funds for emergency projects were enumerated. A review of the athletic facilities in grades 7-12, prompted by requests from Ronnie Carroll of the D.H. Conley Viking Club at a previous meeting, was presented.

The study showed the following facilities at the four county high schools: Ayden-Grifton — a 17,477 square foot gym, football field with lights and bleachers, a baseball field with lights, softball field, an incomplete field house, two activity buses, no vans; D.H. Conley — a 17,202 square foot gym, a football field with lights and bleachers, baseball and softball fields, one van, one activity bus; Farmville Central — a 17,477 square foot gym, football field with lights and bleachers, baseball and softball field, an incomplete field house, a track, concession stand, two vans, two activity buses; North Pitt — a 17,202 square foot gym, a football field with bleachers and lights, baseball and softball fields, a concession stand, one van, two activity buses.

A motion to take $100,000, divide it into six parts and give North Pitt and D.H. Conley, the high schools with the fewest facilities, four parts and Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton two parts, was tabled. A motion to split the money evenly four ways was also tabled until further study is made.

"With our critical need for classroom space," said Board Member Jack Edwards, "we need to stop and assess our priorities. I am in favor of having complete athletic facilities at the schools, but we need enough classrooms first."

Representatives from the Belvoir Community appeared at the meeting to request more space at Belvoir Elementary and appeal to the board not to move their fifth grade to Wellcome Middle. They expressed concern over losing one grade, and then eventually losing them all. Parents in the Belvoir area, noted the spokesman, don't want their fifth-graders going to Wellcome.

The community also requested funds for enlarging the cafeteria and providing more classrooms.

The board voted to talk with principals and teachers around the county to determine what their priorities were and meet July 23 at 7:30 p.m. to have public input on the matter of funds.

Assistant Superintendents Kathryn Lewis and John McKnight presented the highlights in instructional activities and a summary of achievement tests and related data for the past year.

Lewis listed the first Pitt County Math Contests, a drop in retentions, the Carolina East Mall Vocational Exhibits, recognition of the library/media system and national validation of project PROMISE as the primary achievements of the year (Please turn to Page 30)

ANDERSON FEEDBACK

A yard sale to benefit Brenda Anderson is being held Saturday, July 26, beginning at 8 a. m. at the Army-Navy Store on Evans Street here.

Mrs. Anderson, 23, wife of Willie Glenn Anderson and mother of a three-year-old, has been comatose in Pitt County Memorial Hospital for several weeks. Relatives report that her condition has improved since her plight was written of in Hotline recently, but that she still has a long way to go.

Anyone wishing to donate items for the yard sale may call either Tammy Gurkins, who is organizing the sale, 753-5736, or Mrs. Neta Vanderburg, grandmother of Mrs. Anderson's husband, 758-1332. Items in good condition may be brought to the site of the sale that morning as early as 7:30 a. m., Ms. Gurkins said.

In Step With The Times

FOR SALE: ICE COLD LEMONADE — Neighborhood children on North Harding Street found a way to cool themselves in the shade, and help others, with special attention to joggers. The children, charging 15 cents for a cup of lemonade, tried a new angle, catering to joggers who frequent the street with their

Golden Anniversary Celebrated Sunday

Dr. and Mrs. William Earl Roseveare's 50th wedding anniversary was celebrated during a reception held at the Ramada Inn here Sunday. They were married in Berkeley, Calif., July 16, 1930.

Honoring Dr. and Mrs. Roseveare were their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roseveare of Stone Mountain, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. David Roseveare of Hartsville, S. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Roseveare of Evinston, Va.

Guests were greeted by grandchildren of the couple, Bill, Mark, Ronny and Cynthia Roseveare. Their granddaughters, Suzanne, Barbara and Beth poured punch. Their granddaughter, Christine, presided at the guest book.

Honored guests were sisters of Mrs. Roseveare, Mrs. Frank DeVore of Woodside, Calif., and Mrs. Robert Baker of Grass Valley, Calif.

A golden anniversary theme was carried out with yellow and gold arrangements on the serving, punch and register tables.

Mrs. Roseveare wore a formal powder blue gown of chiffon over satin with a chiffon cape. She wore a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

Dear Abby

September Bride Has Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have two girlfriends I'll call Peg and Dot. My problem is that Peg and Dot are not on speaking terms. It's not just a temporary little spat that might blow over soon; they have not been speaking for a long time. I am going to be married soon, and I want them both in my wedding party. (I was maid of honor for both of them.)

Peg says if Dot is in the wedding party, I can count her out. On the other hand, Dot says she doesn't care if Peg is in the wedding party or not, but if she is, she'll ignore her. I want them both, so what should I do?

SEPTEMBER BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Don't let Peg force you to choose between her and Dot. Tell Peg you want her in your wedding party, but you intend to invite whomever else you want, and she may accept or decline — the decision is HERS!

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago as a volunteer for a crisis center, I gave lectures on how to prevent rape, never realizing that one day that information would be useful to me.

Recently it was necessary for me to drive a houseguest to the bus station at 3:00 a.m. After seeing her off, I returned to my car and started home. Soon I noticed a man in another car following me. To make sure I was being followed, I made several turns. After the third turn, he turned off his lights, but kept following me. I did not go home; instead I drove to the police station and began honking my horn, whereupon the man in the other car took off like a rocket. Then the police came out to investigate. I told them what had happened; they commended me for the way I handled it and gave me an escort home.

I would like to tell women: If you suspect you're being followed, never drive home, always drive to the nearest police station and honk your horn. If you don't know where the police station is, drive to an all-night business place and honk your horn. The worst that can happen is that the owner will think you're weird and call the police.

I never thought this would happen to me, but now that it has, I want to tell other women what to do if it happens to them.

LUCKY IN COLORADO

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for a useful letter. And Readers, if you don't know where your police station is located, make it your business to find out today.

DEAR ABBY: Has anyone ever written to you in defense of mothers of young children?

A bride complained that a baby's crying "ruined" her wedding. I agree, the mother should have taken the baby out, but at 4 months old, some babies cannot be left with anyone else. My breast-fed son nursed every other hour, and he would have driven a sitter crazy. He's 2 now, and I refuse to leave him unless the place (and person) is familiar to him.

Anyhow, I'm tired of childless people telling me how to raise my child. They're entitled to a child-free life if they so choose, but if that means I can't attend their weddings, etc., they'll have to accept my regrets. (One friend said, "Oh, can't you leave him for a few hours with my Aunt Agnes?" whom I had never met.)

Abby, if you don't print my letter, please print someone's to give our side of the story.

I LOVE MY KID, RICHLAND, WASH.

Leaving Classrooms To Study W. Va. Religions

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Divinity students from Harvard University and other schools are leaving their classrooms to live for a time this summer among the snakehandlers, mystics and pious of West Virginia.

Harvey Cox, a Harvard professor and one of the nation's leading theologians, and Dr. Mary Lee Dougherty, are leading the group on what they hope will be a major new approach to the study of religion.

Instead of relying on textbooks and documents, religion will be studied through immersion in the cultural and spiritual values of different churches and sects, Cox said.

"It's my conviction that while the classroom, the theory and the history is necessary, it leaves an awful lot out, namely the direct participation and observation of what people are doing," Cox said. "You can read an awful lot of sermons and not know what people are doing."

"It's a first step of what we hope will become a new method to train students in divinity and anthropology," Ms. Dougherty said.

Many religions and splinter groups have found homes in the remote areas of West Virginia, where the spiritual descendants of older sects and beliefs have lingered on long after they have disappeared in other parts of the country.

"In West Virginia, there are grouplets that have been able to shield themselves from much of what has been happening in America," Ms. Dougherty said. "I don't want to say these West Virginians are yesterday's people, but this is true in a way."

The group will stay in the Hare Krishna commune near Moundsville, with members of black fundamentalist churches, a snake handling sect, a Mennonite community and fundamentalist sects whose lives are based entirely on biblical dictates.

The group also will meet with figures involved in the Kanawha textbook controversy, which pitted religious fundamentalists against liberal groups over the use of modern schoolbooks.

The students and instructors will spend several days with each group, often living in their homes and sharing their daily lives and beliefs, Ms. Dougherty said. "It's going to be very personal, a one-on-one experience," she said.

Much of the students' time will be spent talking with leaders and teachers of the various groups. Many of the smaller sects lack written history, depending on an oral tradition to preserve their history and beliefs. Ms. Dougherty said.

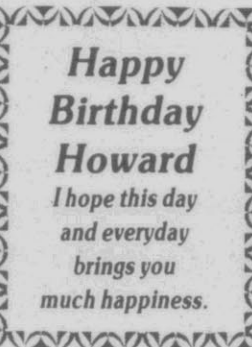

"We'll listen to people, listen to services, trying to reach in a microcosmic fashion a consensus on each religious group," she said.

Cox said he plans to employ anthropological, historical and sociological methods to supplement the group's findings. In time, a new way to study religion that captures the full cultural and historical setting of each group may emerge, profoundly effecting the study of religion, he said.

"The way in which religion is studied now tilts students towards texts and abstract observations and studies. To be a participant is an indispensable component of rounding out a full education," Cox said.

After years of studying foreign religions, American scholars are becoming increasingly interested in the many faiths that flourish in their own backyards, Cox said. The West Virginia expedition reflects that interest and Cox and Ms. Dougherty said it will be followed by similar expeditions in other parts of the country.

The project is being jointly sponsored by Harvard University, Marshall University and the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies.

A Heavy Responsibility

Tonight is the big one for the Republicans at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

It is the night that the delegates choose their candidate for president of the United States.

There, of course, will be no surprise. Ronald Reagan long ago sewed up the nomination and the actual vote tonight will merely formalize it. Nevertheless it is an important duty that the delegates face. The same will be true of the delegates who make the choice at the Democratic National Convention next month. One group or the other will be choosing the person who will serve as president of the United States for the next four years . . . and there has seldom been a time when the choice of our chief executive was more important. Our country is drifting in many ways. The economy is in a dangerous condition and our world leadership role is badly eroded. Maybe laying down the burdens of leading the free world would be tempting, but there is no other country to pick them up. To ignore our world responsibilities now would be to allow the Soviet Union full range in its expansionism.

So leadership is important to us. It is not for us to say who the Republicans should choose or, at this point, who should be elected in November. We only hope that the best people the two parties can gather will be choosing candidates who will lead our nation responsibly. The president still has more to do with setting the course we will follow than any other individual.

Choice Could Have Future

Tomorrow night the Republican National Convention will be choosing the vice presidential nominee who will run with Ronald Reagan.

At this point the Reagan choice is not known.

North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms has let it be known he is available, but the knowledgeable observers don't count him as a serious contender.

George Bush, Reagan's former opponent for the nomination seems to be a popular favorite, but the man who would make the decision was playing it close . . . until tonight.

So we will see. It could be a fateful choice, and not necessarily because Reagan won't make out a four-year term. Rather a relatively youthful and able vice president could establish himself as the presidential candidate either four or eight years hence.

THIS AFTERNOON New Age Dawning

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The great Industrial Revolution in this nation passed North Carolina by for a long time.

The wealth-producing plants stayed up North. Tar Heels clung to the soil.

The second great revolution is only now beginning, the dawning of the Electronics Age; and many state leaders are convinced that North Carolina is in a uniquely strong position to make certain that this opportunity does not escape.

The drama centers around a tiny chip of silicon, molded to channel electrons so that, adding at the speed of light, all sorts of complex computer functions are achieved.

The silicon chip, the size of a fingernail can do the work of early computers which required miles of wiring, whirring discs, glowing tubes, gross amounts of electricity, and a spotless, air-conditioned environment.

Now the chips can be tucked in a telephone, an airplane console, an automobile dashboard, a satellite, on a ship's bridge . . . anyplace.

Assembly will be called upon to produce even more millions.

For this, he has been criticized by some. His decisions and moves came without public debate and lengthy legislative deliberation. This, Hunt contends, is sometimes essential to put you up front: a quantum leap based on faith.

BILL NOBLITT

N.C. State University Chancellor Joab L. Thomas says that institution "has been involved for a number of years in this sophisticated science and technology. Three of our electrical engineering faculty in the Solid State Laboratory are on the leading edge of the field", and he predicts that the university is "on the threshold of some dramatic developments that will affect the future of the state . . . and the microelectronic industry".

Creation of the research center with State in the lead role might have come about eventually at any rate. But another consideration sparked quicker action. General Electric was talking to North Carolina officials about locating a new plant in the state — a plant which, for the first time, would put that firm into the microelectronics race. One of their requirements is research capability nearby.

Other Editors Say Foresight For All

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There is no shortage of economists in this country and elsewhere, but what may indeed be a rare bird is that economist who can accurately forecast the economic situation years in advance.

Such an economic thinker is Alice Widener, syndicated columnist and editor of USA magazine. She was the first writer to warn of the rise of the New Left. Her articles in USA magazine and Barron's Financial Weekly in the 1960s accurately forecast the climate of hostility toward business.

Indeed, on a variety of issues, Mrs. Widener was ahead of her time in predicting threats to a free economy and a free society.

Long ago, Mrs. Widener should have been honored for outstanding journalism, but such recognition does not go to writers who warn of the encroachment of big government.

The American Economic Foundation has performed a public service in printing a pamphlet by Alice Widener entitled "Nobody Mentions Surplus". It is a text for our times.

"In economics", she writes, "the simple truth is that no sustained progress can be achieved if outgo is 'in balance' with income or if outgo 'exceeds' income."

And, she adds: "A surplus — accumulation of capital above savings needed for a rainy day — is the sole means of economic progress. An economic system that stimulates consumption ahead of production has got the cart before the horse."

Mrs. Widener cites the root problem of our time when she says that "our present runaway inflation is caused by the ugly necessity of having to use present funds to pay off accumulated debts."

The writer quotes Dr. Kurt Richebaecher, managing director of the Dresdner Bank in West Germany, as saying that nothing good can be achieved by governments that drain national productive capital resources for the purpose of consumption.

All this has special relevance in a presidential election year. There is real danger that between now and the election, the administration will attempt to stimulate the economy by priming the pump, by stepping up federal spending in order to produce more consumption.

If this is attempted, the result will be even worse inflation after January, 1981. The pump has been primed to often. We cannot spend our way out of current difficulties.

The root problem in this country is a lack of investment in new plants and the technology that makes possible industrial production. An across-the-board taxcut isn't the best approach. The need is for selective tax cuts that will lead to investment in new machinery which, in time, will produce new jobs.

Strength For Today

HAMMER AND ANVIL

The French philosopher Voltaire once remarked that every man is either a hammer or an anvil.

We might ask ourselves which of the two we are. Do we let the events of life pound us day by day as the hammer pounds the anvil? Or are we the hammer, fashioning the events of life in accordance with what we believe to be right and desirable?

We can have that inner power which gives us the qualities of the hammer, but "Will the gentleman in the living room in his undershirt please sit down. You are out of order."

"Don't tell me I'm out of order. You know the only reason you're going through this charade is because of the television audience."

"What seems to be the problem, sir?"

"I want to see the reruns of Charlie's Angels. Why can't you people hold your convention in the daytime when everyone is at work?"

"That's impossible. It would mean preempting the soap operas, and our female viewers would never stand for that. Besides, this is a very historical moment on television. We're nominating the person who may be the next President of the United States."

ART BUCHWALD

"Who's that?"

"Ronald Reagan."

"No, you got it all wrong. It's Jimmy Stewart for President — Ronald Reagan plays his best friend."

"We know what we're doing. Ronald Reagan for President — the part's all sewed up. Now will you please sit down so we can get on with the speeches?"

"I'd rather see The Gong Show — and I hate The Gong Show."

"If you don't keep quiet, sir, we'll make you listen to Sen. Charles Percy."

"I'll be quiet."

"All right. Now, ladies and gentlemen, we have a real treat in store for all of you. How would all you Americans like to have the Panama Canal back? You would? Well, it's now possible. If you vote for Ronald Reagan in November, we will send you absolutely free, without any obligation on your part, the Panama Canal as well as all the locks that go with it. Just think of it, the canal that you've always dreamed of is yours, once you put Ronald Reagan into the White House."

"We're coming to the tax cut, sir, right after we return from Clare Boothe Luce. Why don't you go and take a nap and as soon as we get to the tax cut we'll wake you up."

"I don't wanna miss anything. You go right ahead with whatever you were planning."

"We have a film on Ronald Reagan as a young man."

"Beautiful! I'm glad I didn't go bowling tonight."

"And then we get to the tax cut."

Kemp Earns Reappraisal

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
DETROIT — Shortly after Rep. Jack Kemp guided through the platform committee a foreign policy-defense plank free of embarrassing right-wing amendments, he was called aside by a senior Reagan aide for congratulations and advice.

The congratulations: His work on the platform had erased the image of Kemp as a "Jacky One-Note" obsessed with tax reduction. In fact, said the aide, the performance had greatly enhanced his own opinion of Kemp.

The advice: Steep yourself in the platform planks with which you are least familiar — agriculture, health, transportation. Talk about them, not taxes.

That conversation showed that Kemp, given up for dead as a vice presidential prospect a month ago, was back again. He had not only intellectually dominated the platform proceedings but had finally demolished the old canard of the light-weight football player high on cheerleading and low on brain matter. "I'll tell you frankly," Frederick Biebel, Connecticut's veteran Republican national committeeman and a top Reagan operative, told a friend, "that Jack Kemp went up 300 percent in my estimate this week."

sour thoughts about him by Ron and, more particularly, Nancy Reagan.

But that has led one senior adviser to propose a serious — and public — bid to Gerald R. Ford, who probably cost himself re-election by not making such an offer to Reagan in 1976. Despite constitutional complications caused by the fact Reagan and Ford now both vote in California, the adviser considers such an offer a no-lose proposition.

If Ford says yes, the Republicans have a Reagan-Ford ticket that everybody agrees would be the strongest possible. If Ford says no (which likely would be the case), Reagan would have done his duty to the moderates and would not be obligated to take on Bush.

Even so, there would be pressure to pick a running mate offensive to nobody — specifically, Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana. But vibrations from the Reagan campaign have turned negative. One middle-level staffer contorts his mouth in attempted mimicry of Lugar. A senior staffer called the Hoosier Rhodes scholar "a wimp," adding: "Can you imagine how it would look with him standing on the platform next to the governor (Reagan)?" Seasoned political professionals do not usually talk that way about the man they think their boss will pick.

Several Reagan insiders have concluded that if Ronald Reagan wants a dynamic campaigner to woo the blue-collar voter, he cannot do better than Kemp. Reagan aides have complained in recent weeks that the aggressive congressman from Buffalo is a chronic complainer whose skin is too thin for big-time politics; many were won over last week.

Kemp's irremediable failing is that he does not and cannot reassure the party's moderate wing, still uncomfortable with Reagan. George Bush's ability to do just that keeps him in the vice presidential picture, despite

While making converts by his platform committee performance, Kemp put his intellectual stamp on the platform as has no individual in memory. The most obvious example was endorsing the Kemp-Roth tax bill by name in its original dimensions: 30 percent cut spread over three

To the Editor:

One of The Daily Reflector's advertisers, a local car dealer, has placed an advertisement which begins, "DEFEAT THE ARAB'S HIGH PRICE ON GASOLINE." Of course, the patriotic way to defend the United States against "the Arab" is to buy this dealer's car — which just happens to be foreign!

We should remind ourselves that many Arab oil producers have frequently charged us less for oil than have our ostensible "friends," Canada and Mexico.

We should also remind ourselves that an Arab is not necessarily an enemy or a faceless abstraction: We are a diverse community, and there are people of Arab descent among us. They are individuals, as are members of all other ethnic groups, and we are embarrassingly ignorant if we assume that these individuals fit a stereotype.

We are more than embarrassingly ignorant if we pander to the belief in stereotype so we can make money.

No doubt a grocer could have sold much merchandise several years ago, when Idi Amin ruled Uganda, if the grocer's advertisement had begun with the words "DEFEAT THE BLACK MAN'S HIGH PRICE ON COFFEE. . ."

Economic Progress Is Stalled

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — While politicians promise to get the country moving again, the present reality for America's millions is the recognition that progress has all but stopped in many areas of their life.

Economic progress, at least. Incomes aren't growing enough to make much difference. Millions are shut out of the housing markets. Debt limits have been reached. Living standards have been forced lower.

Moreover, say some of those who poll consumer feelings, the repeated failure of the nation to do very much about its problems has eroded confidence, the very confidence needed to get things done.

It now takes $20,187 pre-tax income for a family of four to equal in buying power the $10,000 income of 1970, the Conference Board reports. And $3,408 of that is in federal income and Social Security taxes.

Nevertheless, there seems to be a common perception that government is failing to fulfill its part of the bargain, and among those who complain are recipients of greatly increased Social Security benefits.

A sense of insecurity seems to prevail about the Social Security system. The threat of eventual if not immediate collapse is the theme of repeated commentaries in the media and among pension consultants.

If, asks one of them, the Social Security system were operated like a private pension plan, how much would have to be in its fund to pay all benefits earned to date by currently employed and retired people?

The correct answer, according to Hay Associates, a consulting group, is $3.75 trillion, an amount equal to 60 percent of the net worth of U.S. households, or almost five times the national debt.

In contrast, it points out, the system's actual reserves total just $30 billion. It operates on a pay-as-you-go plan, in which dollars coming in are simply paid out — rather than being invested for growth.

The country's inability to do much about another central problem, that of inflation, has clearly discouraged millions of people, as documented in surveys of consumer intentions and of actual buying patterns.

Despite their daily experience with it, inflation is still very much a mystery to both professional and amateur observers. And if you don't understand it, how can you solve it?

Most consumers, for example, seem to believe that food prices are at the top of the inflation list when, in fact, such items as potatoes, eggs, milk, chicken and white bread have risen much less than the CPI.

It seems likely also that most people would put rents, gasoline prices and the price tags of automobiles high on the inflation list. But a University of Chicago professor claims that all have been falling.

Apartment rents, says Prof. Roger C. Kormendi, are actually lower than they were in 1948, and have been declining since 1964.

On what basis? They're lower when related to other prices in the same period. Or, alternatively, when measured by the number of hours one must work to pay the rent.

On these bases, Kormendi insists that gasoline prices in 1977 were lower than in 1947, and he says that relative car prices have been dropping fast since a post-war high in the years 1958 and 1959.

Whatever, the net impact is to make some people feel that they and their institutions are going nowhere, except perhaps into reverse.

If, after a decade of dealing with crises in personal, institutional and governmental budgets, the problems aren't even fully understood, it isn't any mystery why so many sense a lack of progress.

years. The long effort by Dr. Alan Greenspan, President Ford's chief economic adviser and now a Reagan adviser, to make it "three years or more" died in Detroit. More impressive was Kemp's success (collaborating with his tax-cutting colleague, Sen. William Roth of Delaware) in amending the platform to call for "a monetary standard." That came closer to Kemp's goal of a revived gold standard than Kemp dreamed possible or that traditionalist Reagan advisers such as Dr. Milton Friedman thought prudent.

Kemp successfully kept labor-baiting out of the platform and fought off a barrage of right-wing amendments by Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. He bought off a Helms protectionist amendment on foreign trade in return for a mealy-mouthed compromise and then talked Helms out of introducing a double-barreled amendment to revive the Panama Canal issue and attack the Trilateral Commission.

This was a remarkable performance for the former professional football player whose personality and philosophy made no mark whatever on the 1976 convention. Chances for this being rewarded with the vice presidency depend on whether Reagan is in a mood for risk-taking.

Waiting General Electric stood aside in recent years as others engaged in research and development which saw fortunes made and lost overnight as the technological race produced one revolutionary product after another.

The big leap has now been made into the sophisticated future in which fiber optics, laser transmission, satellite chains, silicone chips and micro-miniature solid state devices can communicate, remember, advise, control, design — almost anything — worldwide.

If all of the pieces come together, Hunt says it will be the most significant step forward for North Carolina in her economic development history; or perhaps second only to establishment of the Research Triangle Park.

Early July Truck Sales Top Same Period In 1979

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Auto sales of U.S. companies are coming back slightly from May's slump, but the surprising news is in trucks, the automakers say.

Each of the Big Three companies reported Tuesday that truck sales in early July exceeded those of the same period of 1979. It was the first time that has happened this model year.

Car sales trailed the 1979 period by 19 percent, the first time since March the comparison has been better than a 20 percent decline.

No one had a ready explanation of the strong truck showing, but heavy rebates on light-duty models by General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. helped. Chrysler Corp., however, was offering no rebates.

Harvey M. Allen, truck industry analyst for the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. in New York, cautioned that it was too early to draw conclusions.

"June and July were weak last year and August and September were relatively stronger. I want to see what the rest of July and August and September are like," Allen said.

Trucks have been harder hit than cars in the domestic industry's 15-month decline. Since trucks carry higher profit margins, the decline has been worse in company financial statements.

Ford's truck sales rose 21 percent to 29,026, GM's rose 8.7 percent to 29,770 and Chrysler's rose 1.9 percent to 7,278.

The five major carmakers delivered 156,252 cars compared with 169,936 in the first 10 days of July.

The annualized selling rate was 9.2 million cars compared with 7.7 million in June and 7.4 million in May. The rate is an estimate of what a year's sales would be if the selling period were characteristic of a typical year. The figures include 2.2 million imports in each case.

The rate nudged 11 million before credit controls, now dismantled, were imposed in March. Actual 1979 sales were 10.6 million cars.

Noting that Ford's small cars accounted for 57.6 percent of sales, down from 58.4 percent in June and the second decline in a row, Bennett E. Bidwell, vice president for the car and truck group, said buyers were "beginning to look toward an upturn in the national economy."

Ford, which ended most rebates Saturday, sold 45,884 cars, off 14 percent from 46,732 in last year's period. GM, which had no car rebates, sold 88,462, down 22 percent from 98,991; Chrysler, which ended rebates in June, sold 14,463 cars, down 23 percent from 16,383.

American Motors Corp., which ended rebates July 5, sold an estimated 3,700 cars, off 16 percent from 3,837, and Volkswagen of America sold 3,743, up 9.4 percent from 2,993. AMC reports actual sales only once a month, making interim estimates necessary.

For the year so far, GM sales were 2,203,311, off 18 percent from 2,672,133 for 1979 to the same point; Ford's were down 31 percent from 1,197,318 to 827,471; Chrysler's fell 34 percent from 516,856 to 342,221; AMC's rose 6.7 percent from 76,828 to an estimated 82,488 and VW's rose 12 percent from 88,548 to 99,929. There was one more selling day this year so percentage comparisons are based on sales per day.

Nab Speeder Four Times

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A woman who took a wrong turn in St. Louis on her way to Oklahoma was nabbed for speeding four times in three hours while driving across Missouri, police said.

The first time the 23-year-old Youngstown, Ohio, woman was caught Monday, she was doing 99 mph, Lt. Ralph Biele said Tuesday. She promised to pay the ticket by mail, he said.

A short time later, she was pulled over for doing 68 mph and gave the officer her driver's license instead of posting bond on the ticket. The summons served as a temporary license.

The third time she was caught, also at about 68 mph, the highway patrol decided they ought to take her to the Lafayette County Courthouse.

As she was headed for the courthouse, the woman was pulled over again for speeding, Biele said.

"At that time, she threw a can out of the window toward the patrol car and we booked her for littering," Biele said.

The woman, who was by then about 200 miles out of her way, posted a small bond and was released, Biele said. He refused to divulge her identity and said he did not know why she had driven so far off course.

"I'm sure she didn't include the Highway Patrol in her prayers last night," Biele said.

Islamic Education Curtailed In Soviet

By BARTON REPERT
Associated Press Writer
KHIVA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Six decades of communist rule have severely reduced the scope of Islamic education in the Soviet Union. There is evidence that Soviet Moslems may be relying more on underground religious brotherhoods for perpetuation of their faith.

Just outside this medieval walled city in western Uzbekistan, a Soviet republic that borders on Afghanistan, an old Moslem mullah tends a centuries-old Islamic cemetery, fully obscured by tall reed thickets. Without a guide, an outsiders would have difficulty finding it.

Adjacent to the cemetery is a tiny, dilapidated but still-functioning mosque. The low-key but palpable survival of Islamic ways of life and death on the outskirts of Khiva contrasts with the situation in the old city itself, which Soviet authorities have transformed into a sparsely populated "museum city."

All but 2,000 local residents have been removed from the once-bustling center, founded in the 10th century. In their place, groups of Soviet and foreign tourists come to gaze at an array of meticulously restored monuments.

Among the architectural landmarks is the blue-domed mausoleum of 16th century Khiva poet Pahlavan Mahmud. Part of the elaborately decorated structure served as a mosque until 1959.

In that year, an official Intourist guide said, Soviet literary scholars concluded that the long-venerated poet really had been an atheist, with a mocking attitude toward the Moslem clergy.

The guide claimed that as a result, "There was a request from the people to close the mosque. Then it was turned into a museum and opened up to tourists."

In pre-Soviet times, Khiva could take its place proudly alongside Bukhara and Samarkand as one of the Moslem world's major centers for Islamic education and theology. It boasted a total of 69 Islamic schools.

The massive Amin Khan Medresseh, built in the 1850s, had 200 students plus a sizable faculty — making it the biggest Moslem seminary in all of central Asia. Now, it is a hotel for Soviet tourists.

Soviet rule has meant a similar fate for the rest of Khiva's Islamic schools, as well as scores of other seminaries throughout Moslem areas of the Soviet Union.

Today only two Koranic schools are officially allowed to operate — the Mir-Arab seminary in Bukhara and an advanced-level institution in Tashkent, where the Moslem Board of Soviet Central Asia and Kazakhstan is headquartered.

A booklet issued earlier this year by the Soviet Novosti Press Agency said the Bukhara seminaries use "the most modern methods of teaching" in its seven-year curriculum, covering social sciences, history and literature along with religious studies.

"Its graduates enjoy prestige and respect among the Moslem communities," the Novosti publication said, adding that some Soviet seminarians also have studied abroad at Islamic universities in Egypt, Morocco, Libya and Syria.

Nonetheless, the Bukhara and Tashkent institutions together produce fewer than 50 graduates a year — a tiny number to meet the needs of the Soviet Union's estimated 50 million Moslems.

Some Western specialists on Soviet Islam argue that such tight constraints on the scope of regular Moslem education has enhanced the role of unofficial groups, including semi-clandestine Sufi orders.

Known as "tariqas," these Islamic brotherhoods "are not small underground chapels but rather illegal mass organizations," according to Professor Alexandre Bennigsen of the University of Paris.

Writing in a recent issue of the East-West studies journal Survey, Bennigsen said the brotherhoods maintain a network of underground Islamic schools and operate hundreds if not thousands of illegal prayer houses.

"These groups are better organized and more dynamic than the 'official' hierarchy, and are spectacularly and uncompromisingly hostile to the Soviet regime," said Bennigsen, currently a visiting professor at the University of Chicago.

He estimated that in one Moslem area alone, the Checheno-Ingush Autonomous Republic in the northern Caucasus, the membership of Sufi brotherhoods could number up to 200,000.

Other Western observers, including Moscow-based diplomats, have cautioned against exaggerating the size and influence of such underground groups, contending that this cannot be determined with any real accuracy.

Soviet spokesmen generally ignore or deny the existence of unofficial Moslem organizations. However, the Sufi brotherhoods from time to time have drawn sharp attacks in official Soviet atheist literature.

Expanding Its Use Of Gasohol

CHICAGO (AP) — Following a 12-month test, a Midwest utility has decided to expand the use of gasohol in its 8,000-vehicle fleet, reports an energy-industry journal.

According to Energy User News, the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. plans a switch to gasohol that will reduce the company's reliance on gasoline by some 700,000 gallons annually.

The gasohol tests reportedly showed an overall increase of 4.8 percent better mileage, improved air-quality results, and a reduction in the number of tuneups.

Severe Food Shortages Affecting Half Of Africa

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—
Across this vast continent, a disaster caused by nature and compounded by human waste and conflict has taken shape. Africa is starving.

Africa's goal of feeding itself, proclaimed when colonies began becoming independent nations 20 years ago, seems impossibly remote.

Some 440 million Africans, a tenth of the world's people, have measurably less to eat than they had 10 years ago. Tens of thousands are starving to death.

Twenty-one African countries, nearly half the continent, are gripped by severe food shortages, the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization says. Ten countries from Ethiopia to Mozambique are particularly hard hit.

Maurice Williams, executive director of the U.N. World Food Council, predicts "a period of permanent food crisis." Some experts believe the crisis will be deeper than the 1972-74 drought, when 300,000 or more died in Ethiopia and the Sahel belt south of the Sahara.

U.N. planners estimate that apart from emergency aid, more than $64 billion is needed if Africa is to approach food self-sufficiency by 1990.

Equally important is the will of African governments to make the difficult decisions to turn the situation around.

"I'm scared about what may happen," said an American analyst after a tour of eastern Africa. "Some governments have had their priorities all wrong. They'll have to make tough choices to recover the food balance. In many countries, if the decisions are made, governments may fail."

Africans don't need governments to tell them they're in trouble. Scenes from a hungry continent:

— In Nairobi, thousands stand in line as long as 12 hours to buy nine pounds of maize meal, enough to feed an average family for one day. Fights are common.

— Near the Lake Victoria port of Mwanza, Tanzania, some families eat every other day. Villagers buy food with the money they saved to build a school.

— In the Karamoja region of Uganda, hungry men snatch meat from children and old people. The strong survive but tens of thousands die, and the habits of civilization vanish.

— In Zambia, private dairymen slaughter cows because of low, government-controlled milk prices, while state-run dairies wallow in inefficiency. A French agronomist reported one state dairy with 25 workers tending 51 cows.

— In Somalia, the world's worst refugee problem depletes the meager resources of one of the world's poorest countries. Some 15 million refugees from a guerrilla war in Ethiopia, most of them women and children, exist on daily food rations of one pound or less. Pregnant and exhausted women stagger into relief camps, give birth and die. Disease claims hundreds.

The underlying cause of the crisis is rain — lack of rain, too much rain or rain at the wrong time. There are other afflictions, such as persistent locust swarms and infestations of caterpillars, but a major cause of famine, many observers say, is man himself.

Eastern Africa would have no problem feeding itself and even exporting some if everyone got his act together. But will they? asked the American analyst, who asked not to be identified by name or organization.

With only 7 percent of its land arable, and only half of that given to food crops, Africa can ill afford its human tollings war, population explosions, poor farming and storage methods, overgrazing, mismanagement and corruption.

War has been particularly disruptive. Besides the 1.5 million who fled Ethiopia to Somalia, some 3.5 million are affected by guerrilla war in Eritrea, Tigre and the Ogaden desert, say officials.

Uganda's famine was deepened by the chaos in Karamoja following the war that overthrew Idi Amin.

Civil war in Chad has produced 200,000 refugees; in Angola, it helped change that country from an exporter of 10 percent of its grain crop to an importer of 21 percent of its grain consumption.

Years of war have cut Zimbabwe's maize fields by more than a third. When drought struck two years ago, one of Africa's most efficient food exporters became an importer.

Africa's population, 285 million less than 20 years ago, is expected to be almost 600 million by 1990. The FAO estimates population is growing at 3 percent a year, food production at less than 2 percent.

African grain yields per unit of land are the lowest in the world. Much farmland is already overgrazed or eroded beyond use. Because of poor land use and changing rainfall patterns, the Sahara has spread 60 miles south since 1960.

"These countries inherited complex government machinery" from colonial powers, the American analyst said. "The government set prices, stored crops, arranged transport, provided cash and loans, made seed and fertilizer available, gave technical help and stabilized the market.

"Over the years, governments have allowed these systems to fall into disrepair... Now it's going to take a major effort to overhaul the system and restore efficiency."

The food crisis is self-perpetuating. The volume of food imports more than doubled during the 1970s, but inflation boosted import costs nearly 400 percent, draining currency reserves that might have been used to expand farm production.

The $100 million in food aid the United States provided this year is about three-quarters of the amount the United Nations wants just for Ethiopia.

San Jose Eyes An Answer To Youth Gang Problem

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — To hear state Attorney General George Deukmejian tell it, San Jose faces a grave threat, posed by dozens of teen-age gangs bent on murder and mayhem as they defend their turf.

But officials of this city of half a million draw a strikingly different picture, one of cooperation and hope that makes San Jose a model for other cities coping with gang problems.

Deukmejian came to town June 12 to announce formation of a state task force to combat what he termed "the trend toward lawlessness" in youth gangs.

He was talking about the whole state, but he used statistics from San Jose, showing a rise in the number of gangs here from two to 48 in three years. Gangs, he said, were responsible for 11 murders in the city in the last 18 months.

Deukmejian's views did not sit well with city officials, who say only three to five of the 48 groups have been involved in violence, and that only three gang-related homicides have occurred in the last 18 months.

Police Chief Joseph McNamara admits gang violence is rising in the city's predominantly Hispanic and mostly poor East Side but said, "I don't think that calls for San Jose to be pictured as a place where your life is in jeopardy ... It's kind of frightening to say to the citizens of the city that there are 48 of these gangs and they may kill you at any time."

A spokesman for Deukmejian said he had focused on San Jose "only because we (officials of the attorney general's office) were in San Jose and we localized the problem. If we had been in San Francisco we would have used their statistics."

Indeed, at the time Deukmejian said he was using San Jose statistics only as an example and that youth gangs were also problems in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Madera and Fresno.

But San Jose's community leaders took Deukmejian's speech personally.

"The terminology he used was that of warfare," said Jim McEntee, director of the Santa Clara County Human Relations Commission. "And to me that was a slap in the face of a lot of positive things that have taken place."

Officials see nothing wrong per se with young people gathering to form clubs.

McNamara grew up in New York and was a police officer in the mid-50s at the height of that city's gang problems. A lesson he learned: "It's a tragic mistake to try to suppress the youth groupings."

"We are very hard-nosed and make no apologies for suppressing violent activities or the carrying of weapons or any other illegal activities," said McNamara. "But we certainly don't want to see a situation develop in which the police are viewed as enemies by these youngsters."

Officials have devised several programs designed to develop trust. One of the newest is a seven-person police task force formed to patrol the No. 1 trouble spot, the intersection of King and Story streets.

There, on any given evening, thousands of youngsters custom "low-ride" cars, driving slowly back and forth in peacock-like displays of paint and chrome.

The task force officers, led by Lt. Tom Perez, are bilingual and sensitive to the situation. They make few arrests, preferring to confiscate beer and settle disputes through a kind of arbitration.

Community leaders like Ramos work with the task force, and that further bolsters trust.

"The kids see police officers showing a different kind of approach than merely locking them up or citing them," said McNamara. "And next to those officers they see some of the people they know and trust."

McEntee's Human Relations Commission runs a new program that takes disadvantaged youths on country retreats to discuss their problems. The first retreat was for 45 youngsters selected for their leadership qualities in hopes they'll return to their neighborhoods and provide positive peer pressure.

Another program, the Police-Youth Conferences, provides an on-going dialogue in which police and other leaders meet with teen-agers and young adults once a month. Meetings start with dinner and socializing and progress to reverse role-playing, in which citizens get a chance to experience police problems and vice versa. As San Jose moves into summer, officials are optimistic the community services will prevent the restless East Side youth from turning to violence.

The last thing the city needs, said McNamara, is someone coming in and sounding an alarm the way

Deukmejian did. "It can be a self-fulfilling prophecy," he said. "You start turning television cameras on these kids and give them the publicity such as happened in New York in the 1950s, and they do start killing each other because they begin to believe their own image."

PTA on Wheels Gives Sessions

RALEIGH — Eight training sessions presented by "PTA on Wheels" will be conducted at various points in the state by the N. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers during the last two weeks in July. The sessions are expected to reach more than 200,000 N. C. PTA members during about 1000 miles of travel.

In the local area, the nearest training session will be held July 29 at Williamston High School. The training will begin at 1 p.m., and an evening meal will be served at a small cost.

Workshops and group discussions will be part of each session. The "PTA on Wheels" begins its state tour at Waynesville on July 21 and concludes its visits on July 31 in Fayetteville.

Persons interested in more information or those planning to attend the session at Williamston should contact the State PTA Office in Raleigh in advance. The address is: 3501 Glenwood Avenue, P. O. Box 10607, Raleigh, N. C., 27605 — the telephone number is 787-0534.

Blacks Opine Reagan To Draw Others

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — North Carolina's two black representatives to the Republican National Convention say they think Ronald Reagan's presidential nomination will appeal to blacks and bring them into the GOP.

"He's a man of great sensitivity," J. Harold Davis, an at-large alternate delegate, said as the convention attended by few blacks prepared to nominate Reagan for the presidency.

"I assure you we will bring blacks into the party, and other groups who thought this party was limited in scope," he added.

Reagan and the Republican Party appealed to blacks Tuesday night, with Reagan speaking to a reception by the black delegates and alternates and NAACP chief Benjamin Hooks making a hastily scheduled speech to the convention.

Davis, of Southport, and the Rev. Aaron Johnson of Fayetteville are the only blacks at the convention from North Carolina, and both are alternates.

Both expressed concern at the small number of blacks attending the GOP convention this year. But after listening to Reagan at the reception, Johnson said he was pleased with what he heard.

"I think the message he has for blacks is that the door will be open in his administration to blacks and he wants their support," said Johnson, a Fayetteville city councilman who gave the benediction at the conclusion of Monday night's convention.

"If he's going out to blacks and if he means what he says, I think he could get a large percentage of the black vote," Johnson said.

Johnson said Reagan can appeal to blacks on economic issues and on his record of appointing blacks to government posts while governor of California.

"I think Reagan said basically what the philosophy of black Republicans is," he said. "We need programs that will keep money invested in the black community, and he is supportive of minority businesses."

There are no black delegates from North Carolina and no black alternates or delegates from South Carolina. Only 3 percent of the nearly 2,000 delegates at the Republican convention are black — a smaller number than were at the 1976 GOP convention.

Johnson expressed some reluctance about North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms' vice presidential bid, doubting it would lead anywhere. "I think the convention's going to go along with whomever Reagan picks," he said.

Gospel Singer Appears Here

Mack Evans, acclaimed by many as one of the top gospel singers, will be appearing in concert at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at the People's Baptist Temple located on 264 Bypass west, next to Red Oaks.

The Rev. J.M. Bragg, pastor, invites the public to attend. As a recording artist, Evans has recorded some 20 albums, not only as a soloist but with major gospel singing groups. His albums are being aired on gospel and sacred music radio stations across the nation.

Evans has appeared on stage in gospel concerts and evangelistic meetings and has recorded video tape recordings which can be seen on weekly television broadcasts.

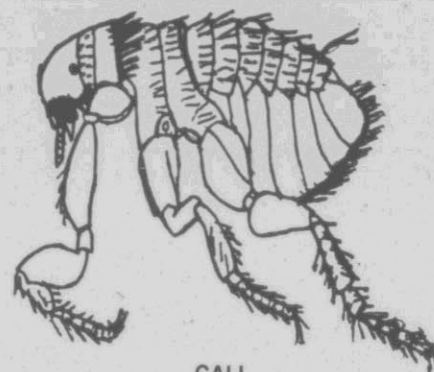

He and his wife and son can be seen regularly on the international telecast of The Old Time Gospel Hour.

Nixon Watches From Florida

KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon is vacationing at a posh club here this week while his fellow Republicans are meeting at their national convention in Detroit, an aide said Tuesday.

Spokesman Paul Bateman wouldn't disclose the exact length of Nixon's stay at Key Largo, which is about 30 miles south of Miami. But he did say it will be "at least through the duration of the Republican convention and probably until the end of the week."

Bateman said Nixon's only activity while in Florida will be "taking a short vacation."

The Nixons were accompanied here by his longtime friend and confidante, Bebe Rebozo, a Key Biscayne resident. The Key Biscayne "Florida White House" in which Nixon often vacationed during his presidency was sold soon after his resignation.

The Nixons vacationed at the Ocean Reef Club in March, when they were moving from San Clemente, Calif., to New York.

In 1976, Nixon visited China a few months before the Republican convention. Some Republicans felt that trip revived the controversy over then-President Gerald R. Ford's decision to grant him a presidential pardon after Nixon became resigned at the height of the Watergate scandal.

Some also felt the China trip was possibly harmful to Ford in his quest for the Republican nomination, which he narrowly won over Ronald Reagan.

But after returning to the United States, Nixon then stayed at his San Clemente, Calif., home during the 1976 convention, which an aide said he watched on television.

Clerk Charged In Shooting Death

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Convenience store clerk John Wall Jr., 44, was charged with murder Tuesday in the shooting death of a teen-ager after two six-packs of beer were stolen from Wall's store.

Police said Steven Shawn Smith, 19, was shot as he drove his car away from the store. Authorities said Wall fired on the car after a young woman with Smith allegedly walked out of the store without paying for the beer.

Must Rebuild A Capitol Dome

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The 48-year-old copper dome on the Utah Capitol will be entirely rebuilt following damage from windstorms earlier this month, state officials say.

Officials have released no estimate of the cost.

A large portion of the copper sheathing the dome was blown off during a storm two weeks ago in which winds gusted to more than 70 mph.

Freed Hostage Returns Friday

By HARRY DEDERICHS
Associated Press Writer
WESTBADEN, West Germany, AP — Freed hostage Richard Queen will return to the United States Friday and undergo further treatment for multiple sclerosis before going to his parents' home in Camden, Maine, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said.

Muskie told a group of officials in Washington Tuesday he talked to Queen by telephone at the U.S. Air Force hospital here and "found him in excellent spirits, happy, of course, at his release."

He called Queen's release

Friday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini a "very unexpected and surprising development," and said he has "no doubt" that the remaining 52 American hostages in Iran eventually will be freed.

Informed sources said Queen would be flown to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington and would be treated at a hospital in the Washington area.

Dr. Jerome M. Korcak, the State Department physician in charge of Queen's case, told a news conference in Wiesbaden Tuesday that the 28-year-old vice consul developed "very disturbing symptoms of multiple sclerosis during his 250 days of captivity in Iran, including incessant vomiting, dizziness and a stiffness or numbness of his left arm. He said the symptoms first appeared in December, a month after he was taken hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. "It's well known that stress has a part to play in the clinical development of multiple sclerosis," Korcak said. "Whether the conditions in Tehran did that it would be impossible to prove or disprove."

But Korcak said he and Queen's other doctors "have every hope that he will be among that group of patients with mild and transient manifestations of the illness."

"He will resume his duties as a foreign service officer as soon as his health permits," he said. We have every hope, every expectation that he will return ... to a normal life span and to a productive life."

Multiple sclerosis is a

May See Leaf Exports Grow

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Export levels of U.S. flue-cured tobacco could exceed the 1979 output this year despite the return of Zimbabwe to the world market, a federal economist said Tuesday.

However, Samuel D. Smith, an economist with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said the overall trend — a shrinking share of the world market for American tobacco — would not change.

"Our exports might be above last year, but overall the trend is down," Smith said. The United States exported 510 million pounds of tobacco last year, down from the 598.7 million pounds the previous year. The country's share of the world tobacco market has dropped from 61 percent 20 years ago to 27 percent in 1979.

Smith attributed the decline to increased production and leaf quality in other countries such as Brazil, India, Malawi and Korea.

He said the prediction of increased U.S. exports this year was based on three prime factors: the relatively low quality of the Zimbabwean tobacco, depletion of stocks of U.S. leaf in Europe and the anticipated improvement in quality of American tobacco.

Zimbabwe, formerly known as Rhodesia, was barred from the free world market in 1965 when the United Nations imposed trade sanctions against the country. At that time, the country held a 13 percent share of the world market.

The trade sanctions were lifted in December, allowing international trade again — including trade with American companies, which have imported about $7.4 million of Zimbabwean tobacco this year.

Smith said the quality of Zimbabwean leaf is equal to medium-grade U.S. tobacco. The average market price for the leaf this year was about 50 cents per pound.

Superior quality U.S. tobacco exported last year for $2.09 a pound. Brazil's average export price was $1.04. Korea was $1.13 and Malawi's $1.29.

Funeral Director Urges Nat'l Program To Bolster Widows

By ALICE NOBLE
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An undertaker who launched a series of informational seminars to help widows adjust to their new life alone wants to make it a national program.

Herman Kriegshauser began sponsoring informational seminars for widows to keep them from being isolated in society.

"Society is set up such that women socialize with their husbands' friends,"

Kriegshauser said in an interview. "After he dies, the woman is like an odd thumb and other couples find it difficult to invite her as a single."

Kriegshauser's seminars have developed into a program he calls LIFT — Living Information For Today.

He said he wants to interest organizations in other cities in setting up chapters.

"It wouldn't take much to get a program established,"

he said, "it's just a matter of us providing them with the material."

For his first seminar, Kriegshauser brought in Sarah Morris, a widow and author of a book called "Grief and How to Live With It." He said Mrs. Morris "used her own personal experiences to analyze how she evolved through her own grief and loss."

LIFT now holds semi-monthly meetings, including social events as well as information seminars.

About 300 members attend regularly. An additional 600 widows attend whatever meetings appeal to them.

Most of the seminars deal with practical matters formerly handled by the women's husbands — such as home and auto maintenance, investment practices, insurance purchases and how to spot unethical salespeople.

"The majority of widows today were from a generation of primarily housewives and probably had no more education than the high school level," Kriegshauser said. "They were more dependent on their husbands and may have just lived off a budget their husband gave them to buy groceries."

Kriegshauser says LIFT's most important feature is its social function.

Most participants agree.

Vernette Plein, who joined when her husband died four years ago, said, "What has helped me most is being with other widows and knowing you're not the only one going through this."

"At my age — I'm 70 years old now — I feel I am very fortunate because there are a lot of young women who have lost their husbands."

Mary Kelly joined a year after her husband's death 2½ years ago. "It was difficult for me to get into LIFT because I'm not a joiner," she said. "So I put it off for a while and was sorry I did."

"They (the other widows) have all been through this. Unless you have been through it, you don't know what it's all about. They make you feel welcome and you're not sticking out like a sore thumb because you're a widow."

"The makeup of everyone is different, but you've got to get across to the widow that she needs to work her way through her grief," he said.

"That means getting active, getting with people and taking the immediate loss off your mind. It'll take several months to get over, however, because the death of a spouse is the greatest grief we have."

Kriegshauser said LIFT helps widows build on their one common denominator — "their widowhood, and now they've started their own friendships."

"Bringing the people together with others who can identify with their situation gives them the opportunity to share their experiences, which I feel is very healing and helpful ... It takes them out of sitting at home in a corner."

Kriegshauser said one woman was so depressed over the loss of her husband "it could have led to suicidal tendencies."

"By associating with these people it really turned her around. She's back and normal and has a job now. She has a new life."

Kriegshauser won't take personal credit for the woman's achievements.

"I didn't do this for her, the other ladies did," he said. "I just afforded them the opportunity to be together."

LIFT director Joanne Church, a charter member, agreed.

Tar Heel Republicans Solidly For Ronald Reagan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — North Carolina's Republican delegates, united in their support of the impending nomination of Ronald Reagan for president, still have their differences over his choice of a running mate.

"It's a relief, almost a let-down now," J.A. Dalpiaz, 48, of Gastonia, said as he watched from the floor of the Republican National Convention on Tuesday night. "I'm happy to the point I'm worn out. But it's a good worn out."

All 40 of North Carolina's delegate votes are expected to be cast for Reagan following their release by George Bush, who had a right to 10 of them.

Bush won his share in the North Carolina primary, which Reagan won overall. But in fact, none of the 40 delegates in Detroit was for Bush.

All 40 delegates came to the convention committed to Reagan, and Bush didn't even bother to include North Carolina in the delegations he spoke to in releasing them this week.

"All 40 will go to Reagan," said former Gov. Jim Holshouser, co-chairman of the delegation. "This is a Reagan group first."

Delegates expressed a sweet feeling of anticipation Tuesday night, particularly in the tumultuous greeting they gave Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater before and after his speech. Many of the state's most ardent Reagan delegates cut their political teeth in Goldwater's unsuccessful 1964 campaign for president.

"I've been fighting for Reagan to come to this position since 1964, and Goldwater was my idol until then," said Dalpiaz, 10th District GOP chairman and a Reagan delegate four years ago too.

"This is almost anticlimactic. The fight's just about out of us," he added. "There's one more fight, the election, but this is my last hurrah."

Still, differences continued among the delegates and alternates over North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms' plans to pursue the vice presidential nomination.

Many delegates quietly wished for his withdrawal from consideration when Reagan makes his selection for a running mate on Thursday, saying that would allow him to lobby Reagan to pick a conservative without putting his own name to a vote.

"I personally feel it's not going to go that far," said alternate David Flowers of Hickory. "I hate to say I'm opposed to it, because no one loves Jesse Helms more than me. But I was opposed to it from the start."

Helms didn't attend the

Tuesday night session, and his aides said he was resting after spending the day appearing on two network television morning shows and speaking to two groups.

Helms told the American Conservative Union that the party's staunchly conservative platform was "not a bunch of idle rhetoric."

Helms' aides continued to maintain that he had 300 to 400 delegate votes for his bid for the vice-presidential nomination. But they didn't say where they were, and some delegates expressed doubts about the figures.

South Carolina Rep. Carroll Campbell, regional floor whip for Reagan, emerged from a meeting with Reagan and others Tuesday with a discouraging comment on Helms.

"I'm not sure what he's going to do. I have great respect for him and I hope he doesn't push this issue, because I think he'll be embarrassed if he does," Campbell said.

Tobacco

Tour Again Planned

July 21 will start off the annual Eastern Extension Research on Wheels Tour.

According to Roger Cobb, assistant agricultural extension agent, the tour will cover tests from a number of counties. Fungicide tests, nematode tests, blue mold studies, a seed farm tour and special functions will highlight the tour.

All tobacco growers, dealers and persons interested in tobacco and the welfare of tobacco in Pitt County are invited to attend part or all of the tour.

The tour will arrive in Pitt County about 4:25 p.m. July 22 at Speight Seed Farm in Winterville. A tour of Speight Seed Farm will follow. At 7:10 p.m. the Annual Fellowship Hour and Pig-Picking will begin.

Special functions include the welcome dinner at the Henderson Country Club on July 21; the Annual Fellowship Hour and Pig-Picking July 22; and the Pride in Tobacco Dinner at the Bordeaux Motor Inn, July 23. In addition, a watermelon feast is planned for Tuesday morning at the Robert Griffin farm in Wilson County. Coffee and coke breaks and dutch breakfasts are planned for each day of the tour.

If any additional information is needed about specific stops and times, contact the Agricultural Extension Service.

'Full Power' Bid Hinted

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. may seek a license next week to operate its fourth nuclear reactor, North Anna Unit 2, at full power.

The 934-megawatt unit was ready to go into operation one year ago, but was delayed by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission after the Three Mile Island accident.

Veeco spokesman August Wallmeyer said that the utility may seek a full-power license next week, but that unexpected delays could stall the move. The unit could go into full operation several weeks after approval from the NRC.

The utility was given a license in April to operate the reactor at low power for testing.

Wallmeyer said Veeco would learn today whether the NRC and the Federal Emergency Management Administration will require Veeco to hold a test evacuation of an area around the unit's Louisa County site.

The NRC has required that evacuation plans around new reactors be upgraded and tested before it will issue licenses.

If the South is going to rise again this Saturday night, these will be the guys responsible. Members of this year's South team are, front row from left, waterboy, Mark Shank, Bobby Clayton, Tim Sluder, Reginald Barnette, Chris Cook, Todd Armstrong, Andre Mangum, Derrick Cunningham, Mitchell Smiley, Darryl Lucas and another waterboy. Second row, from left, are waterboy, Stanley Davis, Tim Emory, Wallace Brown, Arthur Colson, Glen

Boys Home Game

Annual Battle Shaping Up As Size Vs. Speed

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

It is Tuesday afternoon, the second day of practice for both the North and South teams as they prepare for Saturday's Jaycee Boys Home Game. The South squad is well into its second hour of practice and are now taking a water break.

South head coach Will Campagna sweeps his hand through his silver-gray hair and then replaces his hat before responding to a question about the North's size. "Are they big?" he says, turning to assistant Boyce Deitz of Swain County. "Put it this way, they've two linebackers who are 6'3" 240 and 6'2" 220 and the guys we have who will be blocking them are around 180."

So, although it's still early, all indications point to the classic football struggle: size versus speed. And if the South is to rise again it will have to depend not on its muscle but on its ability to outrun its North opponent.

"We're pretty quick," Campagna said. "That'll help. And we plan to pass some. We would have been as big as they are if all our players had showed up. Two of the players who didn't show up are 6'3", 230 and 6'2" 225 and both are centers. We also had a tackle and a guard both around 6'2", 225."

To neutralize the North's size, Campagna plans to use a pro-style offense with a flanker and either a split or I backfield. "We'll be looking to get outside some but so far we haven't really been able to polish our offense. We're trying to do what it takes us five weeks to do during the pre-season," Campagna said.

It does appear, however, that Campagna's troops are starting to work better together. "You'd be surprised how much we've improved since (Monday)," he said. "We couldn't get the ball past the line of scrimmage."

"They've been real hesitant so far," Deitz added. "I think now they're finally getting to know each other and are beginning to work better together."

Campagna said. "They don't have to know as much. They can go out and hit. On offense, you've got to learn the pass plays, the running plays and where to be at all times.

"We're making a lot of mistakes — a lot more than I thought we would," he said, shaking his head. "But a lot of it comes from not having played in this kind of offense or the fact that the kids timing are off.

"Most of the kids are in good shape, and some are in great shape, but their timing is not there — especially the quarterbacks. It takes time."

And time is not something Campagna has a premium of, with the all-star battle only days away.

"For most of the rest of the week we'll work on execution and polishing up our offense," Campagna said. "I'd say we'll begin to get an idea of who's starting after Wednesday's practices, but right now we've still got a lot of work to do."

IOC Decree Upsets U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The opening ceremonies for the Moscow Olympics are just three days away, but it's the closing ceremonies that have already angered the United States because of the International Olympic Committee's decision to raise the American flag at those festivities Aug. 3.

Monique Berlioux, director of the IOC, told a news conference Tuesday that Olympic protocol requires ending the Games by raising the flag of the next host country. The 1984 Summer Games are scheduled to be held in Los Angeles.

Peter Ueberroth, general manager of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee (LAOOC), who was to update the IOC today on Los Angeles' preparations for the 1984 Games, said the decision to hoist the Stars and Stripes here was strictly an IOC matter.

"That's an IOC ceremony," Ueberroth said. "We're not part of that decision."

At President Carter's Georgia vacation retreat, presidential spokesman Jody Powell said: "If they do that, it will be against the wishes of the American government."

A spokesman for the State Department in Washington said the United States objected to the flag-raising and would contact the IOC about it. However, there appeared to be nothing that the U.S. could do to stop its flag from being used at the Games, the boycott of which has been President Carter's most visible form of protest against the Soviet Union's military intervention in Afghanistan.

Soviet Deputy Prime Minister Ignaty Novikov said representatives of the U.S. government had written twice before requesting that the American flag not be flown at the XXII Summer Games.

"This is not our decision," said Novikov. "The objection was raised by the United States. But it is not our problem because the closing ceremony belongs to the IOC." He added that the Soviet Union will send athletes to the Los Angeles Games if invited to do so.

Novikov told the IOC Tuesday that preparations for the Games, which begin with the opening ceremonies Saturday and a full slate of events Sunday, are complete.

Today, it will be Ueberroth's turn to appraise the IOC of the preparations for the Los Angeles Games. He said Tuesday that he didn't expect any sanctions imposed against the U.S. Olympic Committee, and certainly not against the LAOOC because of its unique independent structure.

"For the first time in Olympic history, the Games were awarded not to a city but to a private corporation," he said.

Also scheduled for today's IOC session was the election of a new president to succeed Lord Killanin of Ireland, who is stepping down after eight years in office. Five candidates have emerged. They are Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain, Marc Hodfl Canada and Lance Cross Daume of West Germany, James Worrall of Canada and Lance Cross of New Zealand.

A clear majority is needed for victory. If no majority is gained on a ballot, the low vote-getter drops out for the next ballot.

Samaranch, Spain's ambassador to the Soviet Union, is the favorite. His strength was expected to come from Latin Americans and Eastern bloc representatives of the IOC. His strongest challenger was expected to be Hodler, longtime president of the International Ski Federation, whose support comes principally from European IOC members.

Meanwhile, athletes and visitors continued to arrive here. Forty members from an expected French delegation of 130 athletes arrived Tuesday. The French team, along with several other western European delegations, will not participate in the opening ceremonies in protest of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. In all, nearly 6,000 athletes, and some 2,000 team officials were housed in the Olympic Village.

Among the many journalists on hand, the major topics of conversation were the weather and security — things they could do nothing about except complain.

Hits 314th As Catcher

Reds' Bench Sets HR Milestone

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

It had been well publicized. Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench was closing in on another milestone — Yogi Berra's career home run record for catchers. When it finally was over, Bench was understandably pleased.

He stood watching the ball as it sailed deep into the left field seats at Cincinnati's Three Rivers Stadium — No. 314 as a catcher, 347 lifetime and 15 for the year.

"As soon as I hit it, I knew it was gone," Bench said. "I don't even know where I threw my bat, but I knew I jumped high in the air."

As the ball cleared the fence, Bench raised his arms.

"I never remember doing that before," Bench said of his melodramatics. "I don't want to show a pitcher up, but I think he understands why."

The historic two-run blast came on the first pitch from Montreal right-hander Dave Palmer, 6-3, and capped a five-run, fifth-inning rally that helped the Reds to an 11-7 victory over the Expos. It followed a three-run homer by George Foster and helped snap our-game Cincinnati losing streak.

Bench had tied Berra's record Saturday, and he said the toughest part about breaking it "was the long walk to the plate every time with the crowd cheering for me...."

"The fans wanted it, and on that trip I said, 'Please let's get it over with,'" Bench said.

Palmer got two homers in support from Ellis Valentine and another from Andre Dawson. For his own part, he was puzzled.

"I just can't understand what happened," Palmer said. "I was breezing along, and it seems I just lost my location. But giving up home runs to powerful swingers like Bench and Foster is nothing to be upset about."

Paul Moskau, 7-2, pitched Cincinnati's first complete game since the Fourth of July, yielding nine hits but benefiting by 13 Reds hits and three Montreal errors. Two errors were by Expos third baseman Larry Parrish in the third inning and led to two unearned runs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2, Pittsburgh downed San Francisco 5-2, New York whipped Atlanta 9-2, St. Louis beat San Diego 5-3 and Los Angeles defeated Chicago 6-2.

Astros 3, Phils 2

A win would have tied Philadelphia with Montreal for the NL East lead, but a balk and an error by Phillies right-hander Dick Ruthven gave the game to Houston and dropped the Phils to third behind Pittsburgh.

Tied 2-2, Alan Ashby led off the Houston ninth with a single, and Jeff Leonard came in to pinch run. Leonard took second on Ruthven's balk, and Ruthven threw away Craig Reynolds' grounder to score the winning run.

Joe Sambito, 4-1, picked up the victory with one scoreless inning in relief of Nolan Ryan, who yielded one earned run in eight innings and at one time retired 13 straight batters.

Pirates 5, Giants 2
Dave Parker cracked a two-run single to cap a three-run Pittsburgh rally in the eighth inning that snapped a tie and ended San Francisco's seven-game winning streak.

Pittsburgh loaded the bases on a single by Phil Garner, a freak throwing error and an intentional walk. The error came when Steve Nicosia tried to sacrifice Garner to second. Giants pitcher Bob Knepper and first baseman Darrell Evans both charged the bunt. Evans' throw to second struck Knepper in the head, and the runners wound up on second and third.

Manny Sanguillen was walked, and a fielding error by shortstop Johnny LeMaster allowed the first run to score. Parker capped the rally with a two-run single.

Mets 9, Braves 2
Steve Henderson homered twice, Lee Mazzilli added a two-run shot in the ninth and Pat Zachry tossed a six-hitter as the Mets reached the 500 plateau for the first time this late in the season since Aug. 19, 1976.

Mazzilli's homer came amid two bench-clearing confrontations between the clubs. One was sparked when Braves reliever Al Hrabosky threw a pitch above Zachry's head while the Mets pitcher was trying lay down a sacrifice bunt, and the second came as Mazzilli was rounding the bases on his homer.

Mazzilli said he told Hrabosky, "How do you like that? Don't you be throwing at my pitcher."

No punches were thrown as the players milled about, although Hrabosky had to be restrained twice by home plate umpire Nick Colosi. There were no ejections.

Cardinals 5, Padres 3
Ted Simmons doubled home two runs to cap a three-run St.

Louis first inning, and the Cardinals held on to snap San Diego's three-game winning streak.

Bob Forsch, 6-6, went 62-3 in six starts since beating Atlanta on June 11. He got relief help from Kim Seaman and John Littlefield.

Dodgers 6, Cubs 2
Dave Lopes led off the game with a homer and added a pair of singles for three RBI as the Dodgers dealt the Cubs their seventh loss in eight games.

Los Angeles starter Burt Hooton, 8-3, retired the first 11 batters for the win.

Hail To The King

But For A Wave, Ovetv May Have Set Record

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Britain's Steve Ovetv has equalled the world record for 1,500 meters, but he will not hold it any longer than May 1, 1981.

And he could have owned the mark by himself were it not for a brief wave to the crowd.

Nine and one-half months from now, under new rules of the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF), the world governing body for track and field, records in races of all distances will be carried out to hundredths of seconds. At present, the rule applies only to races 400 meters or less. But when the new rule is instituted, it will be retroactive.

Therefore, Ovetv's current official time of 3 minutes, 32.1 seconds, recorded Tuesday night at Bislett Stadium, "the world record track," will revert to 3:32.09 — and Sebastian Coe, his countryman and arch-rival, will be the record holder with a time of 3:32.03 registered at Zurich, Switzerland on Aug. 15, 1979.

Coe's time currently also is listed as 3:32.1. Ovetv's record-tying performance adds even more intrigue to the upcoming Olympic Games in Moscow, where he and Coe are scheduled to meet in the 1,500 for the first time. The race is expected to be the high point of the track and field competition — and possibly of the Games.

The two never have liked each other, and Ovetv has been grimly determined to wipe Coe's name from the record book. He did it July 1 at Bislett, breaking Coe's world mile mark of 3:49.0 with a clocking of 3:48.8.

And he almost did it again Tuesday night. Only the wave to the crowd, with about 40-50 meters remaining — when he had the race won — cost him sole possession of the mark.

Asked if he thought he had lost the record by waving, the usually uncommunicative Ovetv, known as "Mr. Arrogance," because of his disdain for the media, said, "I have no idea."

Told by a television commentator that the fans thought he had run an outstanding race, the abrasive Ovetv said: "I don't think it was that wondrous at all."

Then he walked away. West Germany's Dr. Thomas Wessinghage, the second-place finisher in 3:33.16, was more cooperative.

He said he thought Ovetv muffed his chance to own the record alone by waiting too long to make his move. That move came without about 200 meters left, shortly after Ovetv had swept past Steve Scott of the United States and into the lead.

"Ovetv went only when I was nearly at his shoulder," said Wessinghage, who set a West German record.

Asked who he favored in a race between the two brilliant Britons, Wessinghage said: "In a slow race in the Olympics, I think Coe will win. In a race with sheer speed from the beginning, I think Ovetv would win."

"No other runner in the world stands a chance to beat them."

Scott, the last runner to beat Ovetv — in 1977 in a 1,500 at Kingston, Jamaica — thought he could do it Tuesday night.

But after taking the lead, shortly after the start of the second lap and holding it until approximately 250 meters remained, he wound up a dismal seventh, being passed by two runners in the closing strides, when he virtually slowed to a walk.

The usually fit and talkative Scott said only, "I'm disappointed," then refused to say anything else.

Ovetv, 24, is the 11th runner in history to hold the 1,500 and mile records simultaneously. He is the sixth to set or equal the marks in the same year.

Neither Scott nor Wessinghage nor John Walker of New Zealand, the 1976 Olympic champion and the third-place finisher Tuesday night in 3:33.31, will be at the Olympics. Their countries are boycotting the Games.

That will leave the show to Coe and Ovetv — and it promises to be a great show.

There also is a possibility that the two will clash in the 800. They have faced each other once in that event, with Ovetv finishing second and Coe third to East Germany's Olaf Beyer in the 1978 European championships.

Ovetv's victory, before 9,900 wildly cheering fans — the crowd was held down because of an all-day rain that soaked the track and delayed the start of the meet for about 40 minutes — was his 43rd in a row in either a 1,500-meter race or mile.

American Edwin Moses also extended his streak to 43 straight victories in finals — and 51 overall — winning the 400-meter intermediate hurdles in 48.36 and Mary Decker set an American record in the women's 3,000 with a time of 8:38.8.

Brett, Gale Back, Royals Romping

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Don't look now, but the Kansas City Royals have George Brett and Rich Gale back, and a whopping lead in the American League West.

"We went through a period of about two weeks before the All-Star break when we were getting hits and couldn't score," Kansas City Manager Jim Frey said. "Since the break it seems we've turned it around and are scoring runs. The one big thing that has happened since the break is we got George Brett back."

Tuesday night, Gale, the Royals' big right-hander, returned with a winning performance as Kansas City stopped the Boston Red Sox 8-4.

"He hadn't pitched in a couple of weeks, but he threw the ball well and with good control," Frey said. "I really didn't expect him to go as long as he did, hoping he'd go just six or seven innings."

"Maybe he needed the little rest to rejuvenate his arm. His control is better than it was early in the season, but maybe the fact we're getting him a lead once in a while has helped."

Kansas City, 18 games over .500 with a 5-1 record since the All-Star break, leads the Chicago White Sox, the Minnesota Twins and the Texas Rangers by 1 1/2 games in the AL West.

In other AL games Tuesday, Minnesota edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Chicago nipped Texas 2-1, Baltimore stopped Milwaukee 7-3 and California topped Cleveland 7-1.

Gale allowed only five hits for eight innings before needing relief help in the ninth as the Royals pounded out 15 hits. He was making his first appearance since being stricken by shoulder tendinitis July 2 for the second time in three years.

"It's something I thought was over when I felt great all last summer," Gale said. "However, it's there and I'm a little concerned about it. I also feel a little frustrated because it's the second time in two years."

Amos Otis staked Gale to a 1-0 lead with a homer off Steve Renko, 5-3, in the second and Hal McRae made it 3-0 with a two-run shot in the third.

Otis finished with three hits and Willie Wilson, Brett, Willie Aikens and Frank White two apiece against Renko and relievers Win Remmerswaal and Skip Lockwood.

White Sox 2, Rangers 1

Rookie Britt Burns outdueled veteran Ferguson Jenkins in Chicago's victory over Texas. Both pitchers gave up seven hits and Jenkins struck out 13, his best as a Ranger, before being relieved in the ninth.

Burns, 10-7, got a fifth-inning home run from Bob Molinaro and outstanding defensive support from shortstop Todd Cruz.

Molinaro's homer in the fifth gave Chicago its winning margin.

Twins 5, Yankees 4

A suicide squeeze bunt by Mike Cabbage scored Ron Jackson from third base in the eighth inning, giving Minnesota its victory over New York.

Two of the Twins' runs were tainted. Ron Jackson singled to left in the second inning and continued all the way to third when Lou Piniella let the ball go between his legs and all the way to the left field wall. Jackson scored on a single.

Then, in the seventh, Sal Butera singled home Pete Mackanin and went to second when right fielder Reggie Jackson fell down and bobbled the ball. Pinch-runner Rick Sofield replaced Butera and eventually scored.

Rob Wilfong homered for Minnesota while Reggie Jackson and Willie Randolph slammed home runs for the Yankees.

Angels 7, Indians 1

A bizarre four-run fifth inning, keyed by Don Baylor's single, led California past Cleveland.

California loaded the bases in the fifth on singles by Rick Miller, Carney Lansford and Rod Carew. Miller and Lansford scored on Baylor's single and Carew came home when Baylor eluded a run-down to get back to first base.

Later in the inning, Bobby Grich scored Jason Thompson from third with a long sacrifice fly. When left fielder Miguel Dilone thought the inning had ended and started to trot towards the dugout, Larry Harlow tried to score from second base, only to be thrown out on a relay by shortstop Tom Verzyer.

Orioles 7, Brewers 3

Three RBI by Dan Graham and two by Terry Crowley paced Baltimore's victory over Milwaukee. The Orioles' Jim Palmer, 9-6, got the victory although he needed eighth-inning help from Tim Stoddard.

Nicklaus Wants To Win 4th Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, spurred by his U.S. Open victory, is making an untroubled approach to his next major challenge: winning the British Open golf championship for a fourth time.

Nicklaus and fellow-American Tom Watson are co-favorites for the tournament that opens Thursday over the windswept 6,926-yard par 71 Muirfield course on Scotland's East Coast.

"I'm playing all right, hitting the ball all right," said Nicklaus, who has completed three practice rounds here and found nothing amiss with his game.

"I'm not worried about anything right now," he added.

Nicklaus won his first British Open title as long ago as 1966, following up with further wins in 1970 and 1978. But then came the longest lean streak of an illustrious career, leading to rumbles that he was over the hill. But his win last month in the U.S. Open silenced the gloom merchants and the Golden Bear was back on top.

"I'm hitting the ball about the same as then," said Nicklaus, now 40. "I'm not tired at all and I don't have any problem getting motivated."

Other leading rivals in the tournament that offers more than $400,000 in total prize money are Seve Ballesteros, the Spaniard who added the Masters title to the British Open championship he won last year, PGA champion David Graham of Australia, South Africa's Gary Player, Japan's Isao Aoki, who was runnerup in the U.S. Open and a whole squad of America's seasoned circuit veterans.

In addition to Watson, who has twice won the British event, these include Lee Trevi, former champions Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller, Andy Bean, Hubert Green, John Mahaffey, Larry Nelson, Jerry Pate and Ben Crenshaw, a runnerup in both 1978 and 1979.

Crenshaw told reporters that he is backing himself to win this time, although he nominated Nicklaus and Watson as his major problems while Trevino was playing "very well."

So far however, Trevino lacks the warm weather that suits his game best. He won his last British Open in 1972 — also at Muirfield — at the height of a heat wave. The cold wind and showers gusting in from the North Sea show little sign of letting up and unsettled weather is forecast.

"I'm not a cold weather player," said Trevino, "never have been. I don't like the cold. I can't get loose."

While Nicklaus and Watson have been watched by largely silent crowds in the practice rounds, Trevino still amuses his gallery. "Get on with it," he growled belting a ball from the 10th tee Tuesday and drawing a chuckle the British golf fans.

Arnie Palmer is watched with the reverence due to one of the sport's immortals. "He's such a gentleman," gushed a grey-haired Scottish matron. "He'll always take time to talk."

Palmer said weather will be important at the championship, adding that "if it's warm Lee (Trevino) will be a big factor."

He described his own game as better than for some time and said — without making any prediction on his own prospects — that he was "reasonably pleased."

Ballesteros, the dashing European favorite rated right behind Nicklaus and Watson in popular rankings, is going through a tough time according to his own account. He was disqualified from the U.S. Open for failing to make his tee-time on the second day. Here, he told reporters that his confidence was adrift and he was having trouble with his swing, his drives and his irons.

Ballesteros still hopes something will change before the first players in the field of 151 competitors go out at Thursday morning to start four days of battle for the oldest of the world's four major golf titles.

Nicklaus noted that the way things are in Scotland, conditions may vary vastly during the day. "You play in the morning and get really different weather in the afternoon," he said, adding that on the whole he'd prefer some Scottish sunshine to the wind and rain.

Tyson Signs With Shaw

RALEIGH — Former East Carolina and D.H. Conley basketball player Al Tyson has signed with Shaw University, it was announced Tuesday at a press conference here. For Tyson, it is his third university in three years.

As a freshman at ECU, the 6'11" Tyson averaged six points and four rebounds, before leaving for Virginia Commonwealth in Richmond. Tyson lasted less than a semester before leaving VCU. "I felt like coming to a small school," Tyson said at the press conference. Shaw's enrollment is about 1,400 students. "Even out of high school, I wanted to go to a small school, but I started letting other people help make decisions for me."

While at ECU Tyson had trouble with former Pirate coach Larry Gillman, feeling he wasn't getting the playing time he deserved. He was also blamed as part of the cause of ECU being placed on probation this past season for recruiting violations.

Shaw coach Warren Reynolds, whose team was 0-20 last season, said plans to play Tyson at forward. "He's very quick and can shoot well enough from the outside to break up a zone. I think a lot of coaches have misused his assets and abilities."

Tyson has 2 1/2 years of eligibility left. He won't be eligible to play this season until the second semester.

Putt-Putt Roundup

Farmville Presbyterian swept both of its matches to capture the league crown and Salem Methodist split in Church League action at the Greenville Putt Putt Tuesday night.

Kenny Petterson led Farmville with a 68 in its 298-304 win over Salem. Jeff Taft paced Salem with a 67. Mt. Pleasant, which lost both matches, was led by Michael Taylor with a 79.

The two wins left Farmville at 14-1-1 and the league champ. Salem finished second with a 9-6-1 mark while Mt. Pleasant finished last with an 0-16 record.

The All-Star team was announced following the matches. The top five players with the lowest scores who were in at least six matches were given trophies. Ray Taft and Jeff Taft from Salem were named as the top putters while Stuart Gordon, Mel Williams and Kelly Heizer made the squad from Farmville.

In Junior League play the front-running Jr. Aces swept both the Squirrels and the Seals Tuesday to stretch their lead to six games with two games left to play.

Carl White's 66 and a 77 by Aaron Williams led the Jr. Aces. Paul Williams led the Seals with a 73 and Ernie Phiel carded a 79 in their win over the Squirrels. Dusty Carter led the Squirrels with a 74.

DRIVE UP YOUR NET WORTH IN A RABBIT.

Part of Rabbit appreciation is its depreciation. Take the 78 Rabbit. It's actually increased in book value through the years. That's performance unmatched by the 78 Toyota Corona, Peugeot 504 and Cadillac El Dorado.

Of course, you don't have to get rid of your Rabbit to appreciate its value.

While you own it you can enjoy surprising spaciousness, perky acceleration (0 to 50 mph in 8.3 seconds), and remarkable braking (50 to 0 mph in under 4 seconds).

And when the day finally comes to take your Rabbit to market, if you've taken good care of it, chances are it will take good care of you.

That's why many people think the Rabbit isn't just a car but an excellent investment vehicle.

United States Has 2 On IOC

MOSCOW (AP) — Douglas Roby, a retired Detroit industrialist, and Julian Roosevelt, a New York investment banker with a proud family name, are America's only official links to the boycotted Moscow Olympic Games.

They are the U.S. members of the pontifical International Olympic Committee, a self-perpetuating body of princes and potentates, sheiks and industrial tycoons. As such, they must balance water precariously on both shoulders.

Theirs must be a double-pronged allegiance — loyalty to their country and fealty to an organization dedicated to the preservation of world peace through sports.

For both, the choice has been agonizing.

"When President Carter announced the decision to boycott the 1980 Games, my first impulse was that it was a hasty, impulsive action using our athletes for a political tool," said Roby, a chipper 82-year-old, whose membership in the IOC dates back to 1952.

"Then, when it became evident that our national security and patriotism were involved, I had to weigh my country's concerns against my love for the spirit of the Olympic movement."

"I had to go with my country. To do otherwise would be like slapping your mother."

Golfers Begin 'Rabbit Race'

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — They spring the barrier in golf's biggest rabbit race Thursday.

More non-exempt tour golfers — called rabbits because they jump around to qualifying rounds — play in the $200,000 Quad Cities Open than any other tournament.

A hutch of 90 of them went for 76 qualifying spots Monday, the most openings of any tour outing this year. The average is about 40. Billy Lytle, a 36-year-old Californian, led the way with a 65.

His par-busting gives an idea how the compact, 6,514-yard, par 35-35-70 Oakwood Country Club course will be unde sieged when a field of 156 players tees off Thursday. The course record is 63.

Top prize is $36,000. But more valuable is a one-year exemption to the title.

The British Open, also being played this week, syphons off mainline pros. But not many, if any, would come to this western Illinois country anyway.

The result is open season for rabbits at the well-run Quad Cities event. Returning is D.A. Weibring, an upstart on the tour a year ago when he won here.

The field is interesting because of a fine crop of young, hungry pros. But Curtis Strange is the only player among the top 25 money winners here.

The 1980 Houston Open champion shared third in the Greater Milwaukee Open Sunday and took the No. 8 spot in the dollar derby at $147,725.

Roby abstained when the IOC voted almost unanimously not to move the Games from Moscow as Carter demanded because of the Soviet Union's military involvement in Afghanistan.

Roosevelt, 56, a gold medalist in yachting in 1948 and an IOC member since 1974, resolutely opposed the boycott on the grounds that it used Olympic sport as a political weapon.

"Which I find," he added in a formal policy statement circulated among IOC members Tuesday, "unconscionable and totally morally unacceptable."

"The USSR-Afghan situation stems solely from political and military decisions and policy of which I thoroughly disapprove. It does not stem from USSR Olympic sport policies."

Expressing disapproval of the Soviet incursion into Afghanistan, Roosevelt said he personally boycotted all political situations and associations.

"As a tourist, I may attend a cultural program such as the Balshoi ballet, the best in the world," he added, "and which bears no resemblance to Soviet political and military policies in Afghanistan."

Roby and Roosevelt, attending the IOC meetings here, largely see eye-to-eye in opposition to the proposal by France's Count de Beaumont that the Games be depoliticized by removing the emphasis on national anthems, flag-raising ceremonies and medal tables.

"As a gold winner myself, I have mixed emotions," said Roosevelt, whose family strain is that of Teddy instead of FDR. "For an Olympic athlete, there is nothing like seeing your flag go up and hearing the strains of the national anthem."

"I would hate to see this eliminated as I would hate to see the end of the opening parade of athletes. There are so many guys who won't win medals who get pride out of marching behind their countries' colors."

"Personally I would like to see the end of the medal tables, a press concoction. But pagantry has always been an integral part of the Games."

Roby agreed and embellished. "If you remove the colorful ceremonies, the Games would become bland and unexciting," he said. "Public interest would die. I always get a tug in my throat and tears in my eyes when I see those flags go up and hear the band play — even when it's not my country."

The Detroit executive said he would never forget the victory of little Josef Barthel of Luxembourg in the 1,500 meters in 1952 in Helsinki.

"It was the first medal ever for the little principality," Roby said. "The medal ceremony was delayed until the Luxembourg anthem could be found. Tears rolled down Barthel's cheeks. Many spectators cried. I cried."

"It was a matchless thrill just as was that of the young U.S. hockey team at Lake Placid. If we get rid of this, we might as well get rid of the Olympics."

Samaranch Named IOC Pres.

MOSCOW (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain was elected president today of the International Olympic Committee (IOC). He will succeed Lord Killanin of Ireland when the flame goes out at the end of the Moscow Games and will serve for eight years.

Samaranch, who will be 60 Thursday, won a clear majority on the first ballot of the IOC election. It was believed 75 of the IOC's 85 members were present.

There were four other candidates—James Worrall of Canada, Willi Daume of West Germany, Marc Hodler of Switzerland and Lance Cross of New Zealand.

According to IOC traditions, the voting was secret and no figures were released.

Killanin, who took over from the late Avery Brundage in 1972, appeared at the head of a staircase in Moscow's palatial House of Unions, flanked by members of his executive board, and announced the results of the election to waiting reporters.

Samaranch, an industrialist and former president of the Barcelona City Parliament, has been Spanish ambassador in Moscow since 1977.

He was elected to the IOC in 1966 and almost immediately began playing an important role in the running of the Olympic movement.

Since 1968, with one short interval, he has been the IOC's chief of protocol, arranging meetings and ceremonies.

He had terms as vice president and member of the executive board and since 1974 has presided over the IOC Press Commission which advises on press coverage of the Olympic Games.

NCAA Investigating UO

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — A University of Oregon official confirmed that the National Collegiate Athletic Association has begun a preliminary investigation of some university athletic department affairs.

Ray Hawk, university vice president for finance and administration, said the NCAA notified the university about the inquiry and sent investigators to the campus. He said he did not know the object of the investigation.

Hawk said, "In a very general way, the letter indicated the NCAA had received information that there may be violations that involved NCAA regulations."

He said the letter, received early this month, "made no reference to whether they were talking about telephone calls, the travel accounts or bogus credits."

David Cawood, NCAA public relations director in Shawnee Mission, Kan., also confirmed the beginning of the preliminary investigation. The results of the investigation will indicate whether a full inquiry is warranted. A full inquiry, if conducted, might not be completed for six months to a year, an NCAA spokesman indicated.

Earlier investigations, not conducted by the NCAA, indicated that four Oregon football players received unearned college credits from outside the university in 1979, and four others received phony credits in 1977. One swimmer also received bogus credits.

A Lane County grand jury has charged seven football players with theft of telephone services and two former assistant basketball coaches with first-degree theft in connection with a secret travel agency account.

Seven University of Oregon football players, including first-string quarterback Reggie Ogburn, were declared ineligible for NCAA competition recently for receiving airline tickets from the agency where the secret account was located.

The university intends to appeal to the NCAA for restoration of the players' eligibility before the season begins.

University officials said the preliminary inquiry apparently is the first the NCAA has conducted into the recent charges against the institution's athletic department.

East Expects Helms To Be Nominated For VP

DETROIT — North Carolina's senior Sen. Jesse Helms may find his name placed in nomination for the Republican vice-presidential post, although national committeeman John East of Greenville, said last night the situation at the party's national convention here is, "too fluid to say."

Ronald Reagan will receive the party's nomination as president tonight, and will announce his choice of a running mate Thursday. Chances are considered slight that Reagan will choose Helms.

East, a candidate for the U.S. Senate in the November general election, reported that Helms has, "a lot of grass-roots support... a lot of latent support," from across the nation. At the 1976 convention, East explained, Helms was second to Kansas Sen. Robert J. Dole, "and was not even trying to run."

In order to win the nomination, 999 votes are required. In 1976, sources close to Helms said he could have received 700 votes if he had remained in the race and not thrown his support behind Dole.

"It's so fluid," now, East said last night, it's hard to tell what will happen. "The closer you get, the more fluid it gets."

"In Helms' case," East emphasized "he has gained a strong, devoted nation-wide following. The option is open."

Convention delegate Herb Lee of Greenville, said yesterday that Helms spoke to the delegates from North Carolina, earlier, saying that several months ago he received requests to become a vice-presidential candidate and, "discouraged it."

"The Reagan people," according to Lee, "said not to discourage it."

"The options are open," Lee said. "Apparently they are keeping the options open (to) let the situation be fluid." Lee added that there were, "Helms for Vice President flyers being circulated," on the convention floor yesterday.

Suspension Is Announced

City Manager Ed Wyatt said this morning that Rescue Capt. D. R. Daniels "has been suspended" from the city's Fire-Rescue Department.

Wyatt, in consulting with the city's legal advisors on the matter, said that he could "not elaborate... due to requirements under the general statutes," specifically the state privacy law.

Saturday, Helms said his name would be placed in nomination regardless of Reagan's choice for a running mate, a move that would apply pressure by conservatives to keep the ticket from moving away from the right.

Helms, who helped forge a strongly conservative GOP platform, said, "if it does nothing else, it will serve as a reminder," to Reagan's advisors, "don't go too far afield."

East and Lee indicated that other possible vice-presidential candidates include, Sen. Richard G. Lugar of Indiana, former Texas congressman George Bush, and Congressman Jack Kemp of New York.

Insurance Industry Wins Another Court Battle With John Ingram

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The insurance industry won another major battle with Insurance Commissioner John Ingram Tuesday as the state Supreme Court upheld premium increases in four cases over Ingram's objection.

With the ruling, tens of millions of dollars held in escrow — some since 1978 — will be released to the companies, who had invoked state laws allowing them to collect the premiums while the cases were under appeal.

The exact amount of money involved was not disclosed, but Ingram's office earlier had indicated more than $78 million in premiums would be affected annually.

In the ruling, the court held that Ingram acted "arbitrary and capricious" in rejecting the proposals on the basis that data used to support the premium increases was unaudited.

The decision upheld the following increases:

— Two automobile hikes totaling 12 percent that became effective in 1978.

— A 9.1 percent increase in homeowners insurance effective Jan. 1, 1979.

— A 19.8 percent increase in workers' compensation insurance that became effective in 1979.

The state Court of Appeals had upheld Ingram's denial of the automobile insurance rates, but had overturned his decisions on the homeowners and workers' compensation cases.

Ingram, who has now lost 14 of 15 decisions carried to the Supreme Court since 1973, expressed disappointment. Industry spokesmen said the rulings vindicated their contentions in filing for the increases.

The rulings Tuesday were the first involving automobile and homeowners hikes since the Legislature, in 1977, allowed companies to implement increases over Ingram's denial.

The court said that Ingram had the power to require audited data if he had requested it when he notified the industry of public hearings to be held on the proposals.

"We hold that, while such a requirement... does not exceed the commissioner's statutory authority, the commissioner here failed to comply with lawful procedures and his actions were arbitrary and capricious," the court said in an opinion written by Justice J. Phil

Carlton. "The record is equally clear that previous filings had not required audited data. Since the commissioner knew the data was not audited and his subsequent rejection of the filing was based primarily on that ground, both fundamental fairness and... (state statutes) mandated that he give notice of his dissatisfaction of the quality of the data in his notice of hearing," the court said.

Col. Sanders Is Back In Hospital

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Col. Harland Sanders, 89, the symbol of Kentucky Fried Chicken, has been readmitted to the hospital, this time suffering from a problem with his esophagus, according to an official of the restaurant chain.

Sanders was hospitalized in early June for pneumonia, and doctors also discovered he had leukemia. Sanders was released and began receiving chemotherapy. On June 30, he was again admitted to the hospital for pneumonia, but was released Saturday.

Cathleen Partlow, spokesman for the fast food company, said Sanders condition was not serious.

"It is a condition which makes swallowing difficult," she said.

Rattlers Can't Hold Liquor

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (AP) — A 39-year-old Pingree man has learned the hard way that rattlesnakes don't hold their liquor very well.

Paul Gallegos is nursing a blackened finger after he was bitten by a pet rattlesnake he and friends were trying to get drunk with beer, his wife, Joyce, told the Blackfoot News.

"Sometimes I think he's 13," Mrs. Gallegos said. "This was just too much. I hope he's learned his lesson."

Gallegos, a mechanic, and friends were taunting the snake in the back of a pickup truck on West Bridge in Blackfoot early Saturday, Mrs. Gallegos said. The snake belonged to one of the friends, she said.

After the snake struck, Gallegos was rushed to Bingham Memorial Hospital, where he was kept overnight for observation.

Conservative Note In GOP Platform

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The Republican National Convention is promising "a new beginning for America" in a 1980 platform that it hopes will help speed Ronald Reagan into the White House in January.

If it doesn't, it won't be because it fails to reflect Reagan's conservative views: it's the most conservative GOP platform since Sen. Barry Goldwater went down to defeat in 1964.

Goldwater, in fact, praised the platform during an emotional speech to the convention Tuesday night in which he urged all party members to support it even if some don't like it.

"If we're not happy with every dot and comma in the platform, all right, let's live with what we got and like it," he said. "Let's give the new president (Reagan) everything we have in us."

The only objections at the convention came from Benjamin Hooks, the president of the NAACP, who urged reconsideration of the platform's stands against abortion and for capital punishment and its failure to endorse the Equal Rights Amendment for the first time in 40 years.

The convention was far more in tune to Goldwater's words than Hooks', however. Before they spoke, the 1,994 delegates approved the platform by an overwhelming voice vote after beating back a weak, last-minute attempt by Republican moderates to amend it.

Hawaii's delegation sought to suspend the rules to discuss some changes, but the motion by delegate Hannibal Tavares died for lack of a second.

A disappointed Tavares said afterward, "Only one state stood on the principle of full discussion." He had hoped to propose a pro-ERA plank in the platform and relax its anti-abortion stance.

An attempt by the Massachusetts delegation to obtain a roll-call vote on the platform was declared out of order. Support of six delegations was needed to force a roll-call vote and none joined Massachusetts.

The delegates who are almost unanimously committed to Reagan were in no mood to change a platform that had already won their candidate's praise. Consideration of the platform was the last major item of convention business prior to the nomination of Reagan as the presidential nominee tonight.

As approved, the platform lambasts the Carter administration for allegedly leading the country toward economic collapse and military weakness and says if the trend continues "the 1980s promise to be our most dangerous years since World War II."

"It doesn't have to be this way; it doesn't have to stay this way," the platform says. "We, the Republican Party, hold ourselves forth as the party best able to arrest and reverse the decline."

The document pledges a tax cut for Americans in 1981 to help boost the economy and a big increase in defense spending, the first step on the road to regaining military superiority over the Soviet Union. The SALT II treaty is opposed.

"We believe this platform reflects the concerns and aspirations of the American people," Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., the platform committee chairman, told the delegates prior to the vote. There was no debate.

Although pro-ERA delegates argued for an ERA endorsement in a meeting with Reagan earlier in the day, warning him he could lose votes in November without it, Reagan declared he was satisfied with the platform as written.

"While individual Republicans will continue to advocate different methods for achieving the goal of equal rights for women, our party has written the most comprehensive plank on equal rights for women it has ever had and we are united as a party in our goal," Reagan said in a statement.

Without Reagan's support, any attempt to amend the platform was doomed to fail as his supporters have dictated the platform and convention proceedings from the very beginning without serious challenge.

"We go forth to the people with ideas and programs for the future that are as powerful and compelling as they are fresh," the platform says. "Together, we offer a new beginning for America."

Barry Goldwater Has Golden Moment In Detroit

BY HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) - He was the Barry Goldwater that the Republican party has known for years and loved for years, and his call for a strong America had the ring of old.

And the Republicans who convened Wednesday night, on the eve of their formal selection of Ronald Reagan as their presidential nominee, paid Goldwater an unusual compliment. They listened.

His son, Barry, introduced Goldwater as "a prophet in his own time...everything he predicted in 1964 has come to pass."

"In our hearts," the son said, "we knew he was right."

The Republican National

Convention roared at that past-tense version of Goldwater's 1964 campaign theme. Those words became as well known as Goldwater's speech accepting the 1964 nomination when he said "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice and moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

To the 1968 convention he said: "If this country had been adequately armed in the '30s, there never would have been a World War II. If we had leadership worthy of the name, Vietnam would not have lasted more than a few days."

"If our country were adequately armed and defended and... if our leadership had displayed the strength and guts and the courage America is noted for, no country in this world would ever have taken hostages from us."

Although Goldwater's words had strength, his voice did not. He came straight to the convention from a month's recuperation from surgery at a military hospital, walking onto the platform aided by a crutch on the left and his son on the right.

The Arizona senator, 71, is afflicted with calcium deposits. He has had both hips replaced and he underwent surgery to remove new calcium deposits on June 11, leaving the Andrews AFB hospital the same day. Six days later, Goldwater checked back in because he didn't heal.

"If you get tired of seeing me come to these conventions on crutches, believe me, I get tired of being on them," Goldwater told the convention.

Sixteen years earlier, almost to the day, Goldwater won the Republican nomination in a convention nearly as conservative as the one he addressed Tuesday night. There, too, he was on crutches and his right foot was in a cast.

Reagan got his start as a nationally known spokesman for conservative causes at that convention.

Tuesday night, the Reagan-oriented crowd clearly idolized Goldwater, applauding nearly three minutes as he walked onstage. In the gallery, a banner unfurled, touting "Goldwater for V.P."

"I think I'll accept your nomination." Goldwater told the convention.

Goldwater said the country is "distracted, confused, alarmed and uncertain, full of distress."

He said there must be a dramatic change in the country's direction, from distrust in government to confidence, from uncertainty and weakness to strength and trust.

He called for a halt to the "endless tinkering with our society."

Especially on military strength, it was the Barry Goldwater of old who warned about "the relentless determination of the Soviet Union to conquer the world for communism."

He added:

"We are not cowards. We do not subscribe to the belief that it is better to be red than dead. We will eagerly support the rebuilding of our military capabilities."

It was the old Goldwater and this convention wouldn't want it any other way.

Hospital Board....

the county for the ninth consecutive year.

The hospital budget also provides for the retirement of the $2 million HEW guaranteed loan negotiated when the new building project was implemented.

Building committee chairman Charles Gaskins reported that Phase One of the psychiatric unit is progressing as expected and should be ready in March, 1981. Gaskins also reported the patient tower construction is moving slowly due to slowness of concrete installation, but should not delay the opening of the tower, expected some time in January, 1982.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson reported June's patient census was the highest recorded, with 351 beds and 94 percent occupancy.

Richardson also said the Pitt County board of commissioners approved $15,000 in the 1980-81 budget for tile to be placed in a ditch on hospital property.

The administrator stated 20 new staff members received orientation during the past month.

Richardson said a letter from the Health Systems Agency had been received, approving the Renal Transplant program.

Chief of Staff Dr. William Bost told the board of the retirement of Dr. George Salle's from the hospital after 43 years of service.

Dr. Bost commented, "Dr. Salle devoted tremendous time and service to the hospital which has been commendable. We want to continue a good friendship."

A motion was made and passed by the trustees to grant honorary staff privileges to Dr. Salle in recognition of his service.

Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the School of Medicine of East Carolina University, reported to the trustees on the construction of the new medical school complex adjacent to the hospital. He said work is progressing and brick work is expected to begin on the east wall in the near future.

Dr. Laupus also commented on the Renal Transplant Program, adding that similar reports to the Health Systems Agency would be submitted on the CT Scanner and other sophisticated devices used in research in the hospital.

Dr. Laupus said in closing, "We are pleased the financial business of the ECU Medical School and the hospital are in the open and easy to understand."

The board adopted a resolution of respect honoring the recently deceased Jesse R. Moye, former member of the board of trustees, from 1949 to 1969.

The resolution stated, "He was a devoted and conscientious worker on the board of trustees and served the board with exceptional ability as its chairman from March 17, 1959 through March 19, 1953."

Energy Meeting To Be Here

A meeting will be held here Thursday, July 17 to discuss the proposed North Carolina Emergency Energy Conservation Plan.

The session, scheduled for 10:30 a.m. in the council chambers at city hall, is being sponsored by the N.C. Energy Division, the N.C. League of Municipalities, and the N.C. Association of County Commissioners.

The Greenville Energy Program staff has assisted the sponsoring organizations in making local arrangements and will be developing area publicity to facilitate attendance and public awareness.

Linda Hix, local program coordinator, said that formal public hearings on the plan will be held in September, but tomorrow's meeting is designed as an informal briefing and input session for local officials and energy coordinators from the eastern North Carolina area.

The energy plan is intended to be a coordinated, statewide plan for dealing with possible future gasoline shortages, it was explained. The proposed plan has been developed by the state energy division, with contributions from a number of other state agencies and private organizations, in response to the Federal Emergency Energy Conservation Act of 1979.

School Board...

Speaking about the retentions, she reported a total of 735 students in grades K-8 being retained this year, compared with 1440 for the past year. In the high schools, the number remained virtually the same.

"It still appears that the more is demanded of students, the more they produce," commented Lewis.

According to John McKnight, the achievement tests show Pitt County's reading average in first grade to be above the national norm and the region average by one month, but equal to the North Carolina average. The mathematics scores are above national norms by six months, ahead of their region by two months, and the state by one month.

In grade two, the reading average is above national norms by five months and above state and regional average. The mathematics average is equal to the state and regional average and above the national norm by five months.

Grade three students read equal to national, state and regional students. Mathematics scores are above national and regional norms and equal to the state average.

Grade four reading scores have increased two months over last year's scores, but remain two months below the national norms. Mathematics scores increased two months and are above national norms.

Reading scores for fifth grade are at national norms, reflecting an increase of three months. Mathematics scores are two months above national norms, an increase of three months.

In grade six, the reading is three months below state and national averages and one month below regional averages. Scores are equal to the national norms but below regional and state averages by four to seven months.

Seventh grade students show a four month increase over last year, but are still four months below national norms. Math scores are two months below national norms, but have increased one month over last year's score.

Eighth grade students scored seven months below national norms with no increase from the year before. Mathematics scores are three months below grade level, an increase of three months.

Reading scores in grade nine are nine months below the national norms, five months below state averages and one month below regional averages. Math scores are seven months below national norms, equal to regional averages and four months below state averages.

Pitt County first graders scored at a grade level of 1.8 on the total reading tests; second graders at 3.2; third graders at 3.7; fourth graders at 4.5; fifth graders at 5.7; sixth graders at 6.4; seventh graders at 7.3; eighth graders at 8.0; and ninth graders at 8.8.

On the total math tests, first graders scored at a grade level of 2.3; second graders at 3.3; third graders at 3.9; fourth graders at 4.8; fifth graders at 5.9; sixth graders at 6.7; seventh graders at 7.5; eighth graders at 8.4; ninth graders at 9.0.

Helen McClanahan of D.H. Conley presented a request to the board for support for a Pitt County Close-Up project modeled after the North Carolina Close-Up. Two students who attended the Close-Up in Raleigh, Pat Barnes and Susan Dunn, spoke to the board praising the project. Pitt County Close-Up will attempt to give the participating students first-hand knowledge of local government agencies and workings. Initially 20 students in grades 10-11, chosen from all four county high schools will participate

A. B. Whitley Reappointed

A.B. Whitley of Greenville has been reappointed to the N.C. Advisory Council of the Small Business Administration for a two year term. The 14 member council, which meets four times a year, works closely with the federal agency on small business matters in the state.

Whitley was first named to the council in May 1978 on the recommendation of Sen. Robert Morgan. The reappointment was made by Larry Cherry, state director of the SBA in Charlotte.

We Can Make Your Color TV Reappear!

Most policies wouldn't pay to replace your color TV if it were destroyed by fire or some other peril. Your set would be considered "used" and that's what your policy would pay for—a used set.

We're offering insurance that would furnish you with a new one, just like the one you lost. Aetna's new Contents Replacement Cost Coverage pays up to 400% of the item's current cash value. This great new coverage is appearing at our agency today. Call us.

It goes counter to the instincts of most bridge players to play the ace from an ace-queen tenace. They believe that combination exists for the purpose of taking a finesse, and failure to do so is almost sacrilegious to them.

Similarly, on defense, it is next to impossible to persuade some players ever to lead into an ace-queen tenace. These players have been taught early in life to lead through strength, never up to it. Yet if there is only one suit available in which you might take tricks, you might as well face it—that's the suit that should engage your attention.

Today's hand provides a striking example of this principle. North is full value at any vulnerability for his lead to four spades, and West made the textbook lead of fourth-best in his partner's suit. East won the queen and noted declarer's nine. Since there was no reason to suppose that declarer was falsecarding, it meant that West had started with a five-card suit and that the defenders could count on only one club trick. Add two heart tricks to that and you are only up to the book. To set the contract, the defenders would have to score a diamond trick as well.

There was one important consideration: The trick in diamonds would have to be built before declarer could establish dummy's heart suit for discards. To build a diamond trick, it would be necessary to find West with the king. So at trick two East shifted to the jack of diamonds!

Declarer won the trick, extracted trumps and led the nine of hearts, but the defenders were one step ahead in the race. East won the queen and continued with the ten of diamonds. When he won the ace of hearts, he led a diamond to his partner's king to collect the setting trick.

Note that if East does not shift to a diamond at trick two, declarer is in the lead. He will force out the two hearts before the defenders can set up a diamond trick, and his diamond loser goes away on dummy's heart.

PRESIDENT NAMED BOSTON (AP) — Lawrence E. Fouraker has been elected president of the board of trustees of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts.

Fouraker succeeds Howard W. Johnson, who was elected chairman of the board of overseers of the museum. Both appointments take effect in September.

GRIFTON STUDENTS AT BAND CAMP — Two students from Grifton, Clarence Baker (left) and Tim Bates (right) were participants in the Winthrop College Summer Band Camp, held on the Rock Hill, S. C. campus between July 6 and 12. A total of 208 high school students attended the camp, which was served by 35 school band directors and the faculty of Winthrop. Groucho's Show TV Log Is For Hackett

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Intrepid Buddy Hackett will star this fall in a revamped "You Bet Your Life" TV series, following in the enormous footsteps of Groucho Marx who hosted the old show for more than a decade.

The original show had a cult following, revered by intellectuals and would-be highbrows who honed in on the Marxian wit, ripostes and outright insults.

Groucho loved nothing better than to badger an unfortunate polyestered boob from the outback wearing sneakers and a Rotary button. The rube, matching wits with Groucho, found himself minced by the comedian's sharp tongue.

It was like feeding Christians to the lions. Groucho had an instinct for the intellectual jugular and a palpable hostility toward the contestants. He was a master of the unsolicited put down.

The game itself was secondary to Groucho's caustic verbal slashes.

Hackett, whose wit and temperament are altogether different from Groucho's, is essentially a jolly, economy-sized bundle of exuberance.

Groucho was primarily a comic actor — in concert with brothers Harpo and Chico. Hackett is a stand-up comedian and monologist, although he, too, has done movies, a TV series and starred on the stage.

Buddy is not intimidated by the comparisons sure to be made between himself and Groucho once the new shows go on the air.

"I don't mind inviting comparisons," said Hackett. "Groucho never was as fast as me. He shot his show in two hours and it was edited down to 24 minutes. They only took the best of his ad libs. "I do four shows in 2-1/2 hours and edit nothing. I'm in focus all the time. I don't have to stop and think. I already taped the first 25 shows in eight days. I'm crazy about 23 of them and not unhappy with the other two.

"I seem to be undisciplined on stage, but I'm not. I've been doing stand-up comedy since I was 21, grinding it out. I know what I'm doing up there. You have to be physically and psychologically up, like a fighter, every time.

"We're going to revolutionize game shows. The components of a game show are an interesting host, guests and a game. I can ad lib every day, doing five shows one right after the other. Groucho did only one a week.

"The quality of my show is exciting because it's not set. It rolls along and all of a sudden it blows up. You don't know what's going to happen. I prepare nothing except my two-minute opening; all the rest is ad lib. If I don't know what's going to happen, how is the audience going to know?"

"That's the revolutionary part. Young comedians today, like me, write all their own stuff instead of hiring writers. So today there's more young comedians and not many comedy writers.

"The ones who are capable of ad-libbing for 24 minutes will mimic my idea and game shows will change. They'll have comedians as hosts instead of handsome, well-tailored, tall guys who look good when they smile."

Hackett took the game show offer on his own terms. He wanted to spend less time in Las Vegas and Atlantic City clubs to devote more time in his luxurious Beverly Hills home with his wife, Sherry, and their three children.

Although "You Bet Your Life" belongs to NBC, Hackett refused to have the show produced for the network, or even its owned and operated stations. He insisted it be syndicated and that's the way it turned out.

MCA-TV signed 42 stations across the country to start telecasting the show Sept. 8. An additional 24 stations jumped at the opportunity before the first segment

Boxing, Baseball And Beauty Scored On TV

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball, boxing and beauty scored in the ratings while programs previewing this week's Republican National Convention fell flat, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week ending July 13.

ABC won the three-way ratings competition for the second straight week with a boost from the major league all-star baseball game, the highest-rated show, and the heavyweight championship fight between Larry Holmes and Scott LeDoux, rated third.

In between was CBS' broadcast of the Miss Universe beauty pageant, and the two networks split the Top 10. ABC finished the week with a rating of 15.1 to 14 for CBS and 12.4 for NBC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 15.1 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

The victory made it two in a row for ABC, which was beaten by a fraction of a point by CBS in the season that ended April 20.

The rating for the all-star game was 26.8. Nielsen says that means of all the country's TV-equipped homes, 26.8 percent saw at least part of the sports program.

The highest-rated of the pre-convention programs was CBS' "Campaign '80" report, No. 58 for the week. An ABC News special previewing the GOP convention finished 66th, last, with an "ABC News Closeup," "Lights, Camera, Politics," 65th and an NBC News pre-convention show 64th.

Two non-political shows were among the five lowest-rated: "Joe's World" on NBC, in 62nd place, and CBS' "Bad News Bears," 63rd.

NBC's highest-rated program, a repeat of a movie called "Battered," was tied for 12th for the week. Another NBC film "Animals are Beautiful People," finished in a tie for 16th.

CRYPTOQUIP 7-16

NEAYF IGCCAN MYG ITTF MEE
N G I N

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ORACLE FORECASTS CLEAR FUTURE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: G equals E

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1980

YOUR DAILY
Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can solve a difficult problem when you are fresh and thinking clearly early in the day. Take constructive steps to overcome obstacles in your path of progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to experts for advice you need. Take time to concentrate on making your life more harmonious with close ties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on how you can be more productive in the days ahead. Sidestep one who likes to waste your time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to improve conditions at home. Use your own excellent taste where clothing and furnishings are concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get your points across to others easily in the morning and get ahead in career activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle matters of credit intelligently in the morning and later you can join congenials for recreation. Be happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Going after your personal aims will see you gaining them quickly. Try to meet the expectations of family members.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning should be spent taking care of personal matters, then go after what means the most to you financially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Close friends can be helpful in a new project you have in mind. An intuitive prompting could be wrong so forget it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Let others know that you are a good citizen. Study a new outlet that looks promising. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) New ideas you have can be put in operation quickly with good results following. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle your duties wisely, then engage in more pleasurable activities. Avoid the expenditure of too much money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make better arrangements with those you wish to be associated with in the future. Be practical in making your plans.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the knack for getting others to join in some worthy cause, and should have sufficient education in order to make the most of the ability. One who can easily gain the cooperation of others in almost any endeavor.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Obesity Victim Helping Others

By JACK A. SEAMONDS
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jeremy Harris says someday he'll soar like an eagle — literally.

Harris, an engineer for Battelle Memorial Institute, has been awarded a patent for an ornithopter, a flying machine that takes off and moves through the air by flapping its wings like a bird.

The initial balsa wood model he made with the help of a professor of aerospace engineering from the University of Toronto has a 3-foot wing span, is powered by a rubber band and weighs little more than 3 ounces.

After wind tunnel tests and a few 50-foot flights, Harris said he "retired" the tiny craft.

Now, Harris and colleague James DeLaurier are designing a radio-controlled model with a 7-foot wing span and model airplane engine that will weigh about 5 pounds. Eventually, they'd like to build an ornithopter with a 60-foot span capable of carrying a pilot.

Harris, 44, got interested in ornithopters about 12 years ago. He was honored by Battelle recently for his ornithopter research, which he called a "serious hobby."

He spent more than $2,000 to obtain the patent, which is in his name, and "hundreds and hundreds" of hours developing the model, he said.

"Flapping wings are not considered effective thrusters, but you'll notice the birds do all right with them," he said. "The small model we made had a wing-flapping cycle of about eight per second. Birds flap their wings from two cycles per second for the large ones like condors to near 100 for hummingbirds."

Lift is provided by the flapping of the wings, with thrust maintained by angling the wings toward or away from the horizon.

"The trick is to flap the wings as slowly as possible and still stay in the air," Harris said. "Birds are exceedingly bright about doing that."

"To date, a good man-powered aircraft hasn't been designed because they're all too fragile," he said. "But if I had been born 50 years later, I doubt there would be much room left for research in slow-speed flight, because it's one of the few areas of aviation where there has been little exploration."

One problem with flapping, tilted wings is that they will make the aircraft easier to "stall," he said. That occurs when the air passing under the wings does not produce enough lift to keep the craft in the air.

Harris said flight by ornithopter "will certainly be the quietest form of aviation around, because it would use large, slow moving surfaces for thrust."

But it will be a while before just anyone can go flapping around, he added. He does not foresee an immediate commercial use for the aircraft.

Dolley Truly Left 'Mark' On History

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — On July 16, 1849, last rites were held in St. John's Episcopal Church in Washington, D.C. for Dolley Payne Todd Madison.

To honor the "Incomparable Dolley," the United States Postal Service has just issued a 15-cent stamp containing her likeness.

The stamp comes at an appropriate time — during sweltering weather — for Dolley is said to have introduced ice cream to the White House.

That is not, however, her chief claim to fame.

During her lifetime, she knew 11 presidents and for half a century was the undisputed society leader in the nation's capital.

When she died, the world mourned as her body was interred in the Congressional Cemetery. Later it was moved to Montpelier in Virginia.

Dolley was born near Guilford College, N.C., on May 20, 1768, while her parents, John and Mary Coles Payne, lived briefly with relatives. A year or so later they returned with the child to Hanover County, Va., where Dolley grew to the age of 15.

But being born in North Carolina is enough to make one a Tar Heel for life.

Rearing in a strict Quaker home, Dolley lived a plain life and received little schooling.

While she was a teenager, Dolley's parents moved to Philadelphia where in 1790 she married John Todd Jr., a Quaker lawyer. They had a son, John Payne Todd Jr., before her husband died of yellow fever.

Philadelphia was the capital of the nation at that time, and Dolley came into contact with many politicians. Senator Aaron Burr introduced her to a young Virginia congressman named James Madison.

In 1794 the widowed Dolley married the much older Madison. When he became Thomas Jefferson's secretary of state in 1801, Dolley moved to the new city of Washington.

President Jefferson was a widower, and he called upon Dolley Madison to help him with social affairs in the unfinished White House. She accepted the role of unofficial first lady with relish and aplomb.

Eight years later her husband succeeded Jefferson as president, and she became first lady in name as well as in practice. Madison, busy with the affairs of state, left the finishing and furnishing of the White House to her.

Dolley worked closely with the architect Benjamin Latrobe in converting the drab interior of the White House into a glittering social setting.

She inaugurated weekly "drawing rooms" — informal gatherings of the social elite of the town. She set the cultural tone for the nation's capital.

Her beloved White House was fairly well finished when war broke out in 1812 with the British. Dolley wrote Mrs. Latrobe about what happened two years later:

"Two hours before the enemy entered the city, I left the (White) house... On that very day I sent out the silver (nearly all) and velvet curtains and General Washington's pictures, the Cabinet papers, a few books and the small clock and left everything else."

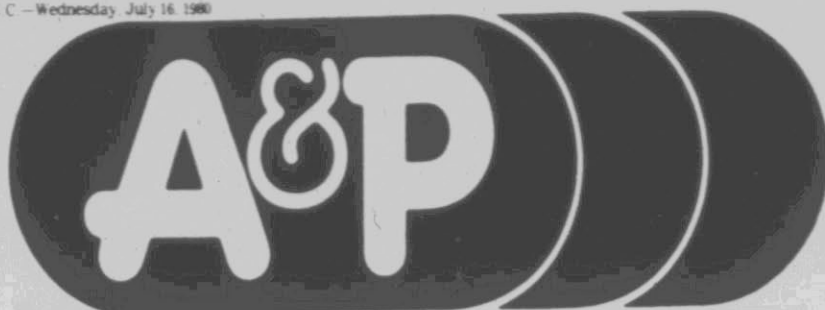

Only the shell of the building was left, even the furnishings were destroyed except for the precious few items that Dolley saved.

The house was rebuilt within the shell, but it was essentially a new White House that became familiar to later generations of Americans.

Following his presidency, James Madison took Dolley to Montpelier, a plantation in Orange County, Va. There she cared for him until his death in 1836.

The following year Dolley moved back to Washington and lived a block from the White House. Again the "venerable Mrs. Madison" entered the social life of the capital.

However, she was in need of money in her last years and sold her husband's papers for $55,000 to the federal government. They are now in the Library of Congress.

By KERI SWEETMAN
Canadian Press Writer
OTTAWA (AP) — The village of Massive, Alberta, wasn't massive enough to make it into the 1976 Canadian census but it has found a spot in the new Canada Gazetteer Atlas.

So did Punkeydoodles Corners, Ontario; Honey-moon, Saskatchewan, and Leading Ticksles (West, East and South), Newfoundland.

The atlas, published this month by the federal government and Macmillan of Canada, is the most comprehensive geographic reference book Canada has ever produced.

George Falconer, the enthusiastic project leader, says: "It just simply hasn't been done before."

It took 70 geographers, cartographers (map-drawers) and toponymists (experts in place names) in the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources almost four years to put the 170-page work together.

With a gold maple leaf on the cover, the book includes 48 colored pages of maps and a 64-page index listing all 22,000 communities in the country, including 1,800 with 50 residents or more whose names have not been approved by the provinces.

"Places like Al's Trailer Park might not sound like much but they're communities like any other place," says Falconer.

The atlas also lists 13,000 rivers, mountains, lakes, coves and bays.

Falconer said the closest he could come to an estimate of the cost of the project was "hundreds of thousands of dollars." Bookstores are charging $39.95, the equivalent of $34.73 in American money.

Canadians have named their communities after capitals of the world, animals, queens, battles and hometowns across the ocean.

Paradise can be found in Newfoundland, Ontario, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec.

Victoria is the queen of place names. Her name or its variants appear 32 times.

There's Damnable Bay, Newfoundland, and nearby Bloody Reach, Dark Cove and Salvage. And Lake Despair, Ontario; Desolation Sound, British Columbia, and Desperation Lake, Northwest Territories.

One of Falconer's favorite tongue-twisters is Keesekoowenin, an Indian reserve in Manitoba.

The presses have turned out a first run of 14,000 copies, including a French version published by Guerin Editeur. A second printing is possible if there is enough demand, and a similar project may be undertaken in a few years if the first is judged a success.

Horse Show On 3 Days

RALEIGH — Governor James B. Hunt Jr. has proclaimed the week of July 13-19 as Morgan Horse Week in North Carolina.

In conjunction with this proclamation, the Virginia-Carolinas Morgan Horse Club will present its ninth Annual Southern States Morgan Horse Show at Dorton Arena on the N. C. State Fairgrounds in Raleigh on three days — Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 17, 18 and 19.

Showtimes on the three days are: — Thursday and Friday — 8:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. — Saturday — 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Admission is free with the public invited to attend any part of or all of the shows. Riders in the show will be coming from all parts of North Carolina, as well as from many southern and eastern seaboard states.

Mrs. Margaret Gafford of St. George Farm, Dinwiddie, Virginia will perform in a dressage exhibition at the Friday and Saturday evening performances. She is an internationally known equestrienne, and is a finalist for the 1980 U.S. Olympic Dressage Team.

British Physicist Showed Way To Supercomputer Of Future

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer
YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N.Y. (AP) - The computer of the 1990s may fit in a soccer ball, sit in a bath of liquid helium, deliver instant weather predictions and converse in human speech.

Twenty times faster than any machine today, it would be the first computer in two decades not based on "semiconductors," those transistor-like devices that ushered in the computer age.

Such projections are based not on speculation, but on work already done with a new circuit element known as a "Josephson junction."

A Josephson junction - named for British physicist Brian Josephson, who discovered its principle as a graduate student 18 years ago and later won a Nobel prize for his work - is simply a super-fast electric switch. It will replace the semiconductor switches that are the nerve cells of current computers.

Scientists are using it in developing a supercomputer that will tackle problems that now make even the most sophisticated machines gulp. These include speech recognition, where computers now need two hours to decipher a 20-word sentence, and weather prediction, where a 24-hour forecast can now take hours to compute.

A Josephson computer might aim and fire a satellite-based laser weapon at attacking missiles. Its small size and preference for low temperatures should make it ideal for many uses in space.

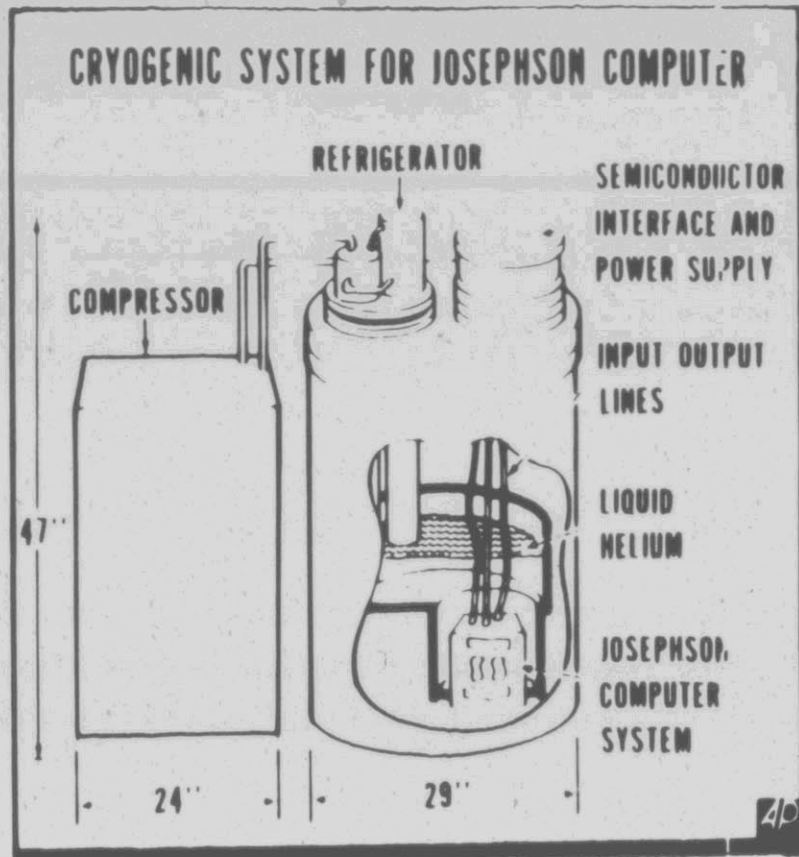

With 130 scientists and technicians working on the problem at research headquarters here and at a lab in Zurich, Switzerland, IBM is considered to have the largest single effort to build a Josephson computer.

Wilhelm Anacker, 54, head of IBM's Josephson project, calculates that a Josephson computer measuring only 7 inches on a side would have all the computing power of one of IBM's top-of-the-line computers, the 370-168, but could do 70 million instructions a second compared to 3.5 million for the 370-168.

Since the two machines should cost about the same, there would be a savings in cost per instruction, he said.

Commercial versions of the Josephson computer are a decade away, but Anacker and the others believe the Josephson junction will help break a practical computer speed limit.

The speed of modern computers is limited less by switching time than by how fast electric signals, traveling at one-third the speed of light, take to get from switch to switch in the circuit.

Designers have cut this travel time by packing more semiconductors onto smaller silicon chips. But semiconductors produce heat, and if they were packed more tightly it could melt the computer.

The Josephson switch avoids this problem by using "superconducting" circuits.

Scientists have known since 1911 that when some metals are cooled to near absolute zero (minus 476 degrees Fahrenheit, the temperature where all molecular motion ceases) they become superconducting, meaning they lose all the electrical resistance that generates heat.

Early attempts to build a superconducting computer were foiled by the fact that, at such low temperatures, semiconductor switches operate so sluggishly they offset any gain in speed.

Josephson's discovery solved this problem by making quick switches possible. He found that a superconducting current will still flow between two superconducting wires when they are separated by an ultra-thin insulator - perhaps only a few dozen atoms thick. But current can be instantly extinguished if a small magnetic field is applied to the insulator.

This principle allows a switch as fast as 10 picoseconds, compared to 250 picoseconds for the fastest semiconductor. A picosecond is a trillionth of a second.

IBM scientists can now pack up to 4,000 of these Josephson devices onto a single cornflake-sized chip.

Scientist Mark Ketchen showed a visitor one of these chips through a microscope. Like most chips, it looked a bit like a map of a futuristic city, or a painting by Piet Mondrian done in iridescent silvers and pale yellows, greens, browns and blues.

"You spend months designing a chip and then, after it's fabricated, you want to spend time just looking at how pretty it is before you turn it on to see if it works," said Ketchen, 31.

Josephson circuits must be kept very cold for the superconductivity to work. Chips are tested in a vat of liquid helium at minus 469 degrees, only 7 degrees above absolute zero. Current plans call for the Josephson computer to be immersed in 20 gallons of liquid helium and communicate with the outside by electric cable.

An important message to Mothers...from Wrigley's.

America's leading dental organization recommends the all-natural sweeteners in Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

Only natural sugar free sweeteners.

America's leading dental organization, like most of America's mothers, is concerned about children's dental health. There is also general concern about the effects of certain sugarless sweeteners. That's why it's important to know that the all-natural, sugar free sweeteners in Orbit have been recommended for use by America's leading dental organization. And that's why they're the only sweeteners in Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

No saccharin in Orbit.

If you're a mother who reads packages carefully, you've probably noticed a warning label on products that contain saccharin. There may even be one on your current brand of sugarless gum. But look at Orbit's package the next time you buy sugar free gum for your family. You'll find no warning label, because Orbit doesn't need saccharin to taste great. Only all-natural, sugar free sweeteners.

Orbit's sweeteners are recommended.

Clearly, America's leading dental organization has good reason for recommending the natural, sugar free sweeteners in Orbit. So if you think good teeth are important, you've got a mouthful of beautiful reasons for chewing Orbit Sugar Free Gum.

Orbit doesn't promote cavities.

If you've always wanted to find a sugar free gum you could trust for your family, now is the time to try Orbit. The sweeteners in Orbit don't promote cavities. And that's something to chew on if your kids chew gum.

Beetles In County Take Costly Toll

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County gardeners and farmers are experiencing problems this year with Japanese Beetles. The insects, which feed on virtually any leafy plant, have appeared in abundance and are damaging shrubs, vegetables and crops.

"There are over 250 plants Japanese Beetles can feed and reproduce on," said Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, "and many of these host plants are in this area." Uzzell explained that he has received numerous inquiries and complaints about the pests. "Their preferred host plants are in the rose family," he added. "These include most fruit trees and many ornamentals. You will notice them more on yellow or white roses, however, because they are attracted to the colors yellow and white.

"They will even feed on crops such as corn, soybeans or tobacco occasionally," Uzzell commented.

Plants affected by Japanese Beetles are characterized by a skeleton-like appearance. "The tissue between the veins is typically eaten away, giving the impression of a sieve," explained the farm agent. "Normally groups of beetles feed rather than individuals, so their presence is very detectable."

Japanese Beetles are less than one-half inch long and are shiny metallic in color. They have coppery brown wings and six small patches of white hairs under their wings. "The male is marked identically to the female," said Uzzell, "but he is smaller.

"The best and simplest control for adult beetles is the insecticide Sevin but there are also some baits and traps they are attracted to," explained the farm agent. "These contain a floral scent or a sex ferone and can be placed upwind of flowers or fruit trees, drawing many beetles to the traps rather than the trees."

Adult beetles are not the entire problem. The insects breed in low, grassy areas, and according to Uzzell, damage roots of grasses. "The immature stage of the beetle is the white grub. Our soil lacks the bacteria, called Bacillus popilliae, that controls these grubs," he explained.

"Since the beetles are native to Japan, we don't have this natural control." Japanese Beetles first appeared in this country in 1916 in Riverton, N.J. and have spread over most of the east coast since that time.

"Next year we hope to get into a program sponsored by the North Carolina Department of Agriculture and the Pitt County Extension Service where the Department of Agriculture will supply the bacteria (Bacillus popilliae) to local garden centers that want to participate in selling it at a reduced cost," explained the farm agent. This material is sold under the trade name of Milky Spore Disease, or Doon.

"What the bacteria does is cause the liquids of the larvae to turn milky, hence the name Milky Spore Disease," said Uzzell. "The material will be available at a substantially reduced cost," he added.

Anyone in the county who has noticed a problem with beetles feeding should contact Uzzell at the Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196. "Persons should also contact their neighbors and enroll in the program for next year," Uzzell said.

"Soil treatment with Milky Spore Disease is an effective and long-lasting reduction practice for limiting the numbers of grubs in grassy areas," he added. "Otherwise, treat with Sevin for adults and keep the number of beetles present in mind in case it needs to be verified with NCDA."

Uzzell recommended communities and neighborhoods get involved with treatment rather than individuals.

"I've Had Problems With Other People,
But Not With Lowe's."

... Linda Rentz
Pensacola, Fla.

"We started doing business with Lowe's when they first opened here. I've bought a range, an air conditioner and a riding lawnmower. I've found that they try to help me more than other people. I've had problems with other people, but not with Lowe's."

"I Just Like The Service That They Give Here At Lowe's."

...Irene Seago
Dyersburg, Tenn.

"Their personnel are so courteous...when you buy anything at Lowe's, if you have a problem they'll always help you with it...when you go into a lot of self-service stores, you can't find what you want and really there's no one to help you. I just like the service that they give here at Lowe's. There's a wider variety...almost anything you would want here."

"We've cut our energy cost just about in half."

...Ken Bolling
Jonesboro, Ark.

"We have Lowe's storm doors and windows in our home and recently put in one of your wood-burning stoves. That's been one of the biggest helps in keeping our fuel bills down. We also bought about 1700 sq. ft. of 6-inch insulation. With all of them...we've cut our energy cost just about in half!"

Lowe's Pricing Policy

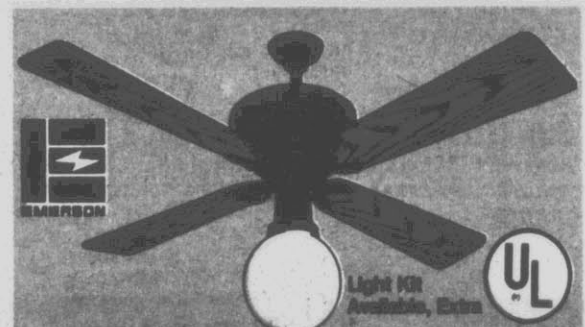

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. This reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our selling area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling price. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you. Stop by today!
