Reagan, Bush Set Demo Strongholds As Target

DETROIT (AP) — Ronald Reagan and George Bush, accepting their roles as the Republican presidential ticket at a festival of party unity, are opening a campaign that will be directed at traditionally Democratic strongholds in the Northeast and industrial Midwest.

"We're obviously going to concentrate in the Eastern and Central time zones," Drew Lewis, a top Reagan campaign aide, said Thursday night, on the floor of the GOP National Convention as delegates waited to hear the acceptance speeches of the two nominees.

Bush, who spent his youth in Massachusetts and Connecticut and was educated in the Northeast, is a key element in that strategy.

Accepting the presidential nomination he had sought for 12 years, Reagan expressed his strategy with a speech that called on Americans to cross party lines "to build a new consensus with all those across the land who share a community of values embodied in these words: family, work, neighborhood, peace and freedom."

Reagan closed his acceptance speech by urging the delegates to "begin our crusade with a moment of silence." With that, he bowed his head, his eyes closed. The hall fell silent.

A moment later, Reagan opened his eyes, jerked his head upright and said, "God bless America." The delegates erupted into a tumultuous demonstration.

Reagan, Bush and their families stood on the podium waving to the joyful throng. Joining the 1980 Republican ticket on the podium was former President Gerald R. Ford and his wife, Betty.

All day Wednesday, even through the balloting that gave him the presidential nomination, Reagan had sought a way to convince Ford to take the vice presidential nomination and when the negotiations failed settled on Bush as his choice and made a dramatic midnight appearance before the convention to announce it.

Ford said in a broadcast interview early today that he and Reagan had "almost made it" in their negotiations to make him the vice presidential candidate and might have succeeded if they'd had more time.

"We had a number of very, very constructive meetings but the reasons I think are understandable and it just wouldn't fit," Ford said in the interview with the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Thursday's final session of the convention had none of the high drama of the night before. It was a happy show staged by a party confident it had named a strong ticket and buoyed by polls showing Reagan with a substantial lead over President Carter. Bush, Reagan's former rival and now running mate, warned Republicans that "though Jimmy Carter has in the past four years been a failed president, he is a formidable campaigner who can be expected to use the power of his office to suit his own political ends..."

Iran Group Tries Kill Ex-Premier

PARIS (AP) — Former Iranian Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtiar escaped an assassination attempt today in which a French policeman and a woman neighbor were killed and a second officer was seriously wounded, police said. An Iranian group called "Guards of Islam" said they had condemned Bakhtiar to death.

Bakhtiar, the leader of exiled forces opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime, was not hurt when three terrorists, claiming to be journalists, tried to break into his apartment in the posh Paris suburb of Neuilly, a police spokesman said.

He said three of the attackers were captured, including one who was shot in the face in a gunfight with police.

Authorities said a fourth suspect was being sought, but an eyewitness said he thought there were five attackers, including a woman.

"We don't know yet if they are Iranians," the spokesman said, referring to the captured assailants, aged 25 to 30.

Police sources said one of the attackers carried a

Syrian passport and a second said he was Lebanese.

The French Foreign Ministry said the attack was "particularly odious," and promised a vigorous investigation.

The police spokesman gave this account of the attack:

Posing as reporters, three persons got past the doorman of the apartment house where Bakhtiar lives. They then opened fire on the police guards stationed permanently outside his apartment, killing one and wounding the other.

The trio tried to break through an armored door into the Iranian exile's apartment. When they failed, they rushed out of the building, shooting Yvonne Stein, 45, when she opened her door. Mrs. Stein died later in a hospital.

Meanwhile, the doorman called the police, and a patrol car arrived as the attackers were fleeing from the building. After a further exchange of shots, three of them were arrested, but their driver escaped.

Eight Executed By Firing Squad

By The Associated Press

Iran's stern revolutionary judge Sadegh Khalkhali sent seven men and one woman before a firing squad on a downtown Tehran street today on charges ranging from drug trafficking to sodomy and running brothels.

Today's sunrise shootings in Tehran were the second such sidewalk executions ordered by Khalkhali on Jamshid Street in the Iranian capital's red-light district. The judge contends open-air executions deter crimes.

Tehran Radio reported two other executions today — one of "an agent of the former regime" in the city of Kashan, and the other, in Mahadan, of a man who committed adultery.

Meanwhile, Iran's Parliament cleared its final organizational hurdle Thursday, but there was no indication when it would debate the fate of the 52 American hostages.

The Majlis, or Parliament, elected six laymen to complete the membership of the Council of Guardians, to which Iran's Islamic constitution gives the final say on legislation.

The council, composed of the six laymen and six Moslem clergymen already appointed by Khomeini, will judge all legislation according to Islamic precepts. The six lay members were said to be close to the Islamic Republican Party.

Last Bid To Stop Sign-Up

BOSTON (AP) — Lawyers for three college students are making a last-minute attempt to stop the resumption of draft registration, scheduled to begin Monday.

"This appears to be the last chance nationwide to stop registration," said attorney Jeffery Denner. "There were cases filed in Washington and Philadelphia, but they were based on narrow grounds and have been dismissed."

Denner and his partner, Mitch Benjoya, were to argue the constitutionality of the registration order before U.S. District Judge Walter F. Skinner today.

Denner said he and Benjoya were prepared to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court if the case were dismissed.

The three plaintiffs are Benjamin H. Detenber, 19, of Cambridge, a Stanford University student; Harrison B. Miller, 18, of Wellesley, a Princeton University student; and Christopher Olson, 20, also of Wellesley, a Denison College student.

Denner was seeking an injunction against draft registration and said he would challenge it on the basis of sex and age discrimination.

Plan A City 'Blueprint'

City Manager Ed Wyatt reported that "work is underway to develop a detailed document which will serve as the initial blueprint for the city... for the present and next decade."

Wyatt said that beginning this month, the Planning Department will initiate a 12-18 month process of developing a "comprehensive plan" for the city.

The city manager explained that the document, "as perceived by city staff members, will encompass the entire geographic area of anticipated city jurisdiction and will include all elements of physical development which can be significantly influenced by city action."

He noted that the plan is scheduled to be presented to the City Council by next fall following approval by the Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Board.

Bobby Roberson, city planning director, said that following adoption, the plan will become an official public document of the council, serving as a "long range, general policy to guide decisions which concern primarily the physical development of the city."

Roberson pointed out that the purpose of the proposed plan will be to communicate the council's policy on long range physical development in one, detailed, all inclusive report which incorporates a series of specialized subject areas.

"A well prepared comprehensive plan will enable the city staff, developers, property owners and interested citizens to assess specific questions in relationship to the overall plan," Roberson added.

He said a public hearing will be required before the plan is adopted and public opinion is welcomed as an important part of the process.

Among the primary areas which the plan will address are: population projections, economic base reports, land use survey, water and sewer lines, thoroughfares, recreation, open space and land development plans. Other areas include: mass transit, bikeways, airport, storm drainage and the city's community development plan.

Once the initial plan is adopted, a five-year update is recommended for the overall plan, and some sections will be updated annually.

Gross National Product Reported Sharply Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy tumbled at an annual rate of 9.1 percent from April through June, equal to the worst quarterly decline during the last recession in 1974-75, the government said today.

The steep decline in real gross national product — the inflation-adjusted output of goods and services — proved even greater than Carter administration economists initially predicted.

They had expected a drop of between 8 percent and 9 percent, seasonally adjusted. During the first quarter of 1980, the gross national product rose 1.2 percent.

Despite the precipitous plunge last quarter, administration economists point to new signs the economy will begin to recover soon, including a sharp increase in housing starts, lower interest rates and easing inflation.

Nevertheless, private and government economists now see unemployment reaching about 9 percent and then remaining somewhere around 8.5 percent through most of next year. Moreover, signs of industrial lag continue with production at the nation's factories expected to continue declining for several more months.

The Commerce Department reported that before adjustment for inflation, the nation's output from April through June stood at an annual rate just exceeding $2.52 trillion, slightly above the first quarter level.

However, when adjusted for double-digit inflation, the nation's output was at an annual rate of $1.41 trillion.

An annual rate figure indicates that would happen over the course of a year if this quarter's economic conditions continued for three more quarters.

Inflation, as measured by the so-called implicit price deflator rose 10.4 percent in the second quarter, compared with a 9.5 percent increase in the first quarter, the department said.

The decrease in real output last quarter was attributed to a sharp 9.6 percent falloff in final sales, following a 1.5 percent rise in the first quarter, the department said.

The sales plunge occurred primarily in the consumer sector, where people cut back purchases in the housing and auto sector.

The output figures are preliminary and will be revised in coming weeks, the department said.

The decline in the GNP reported today was identical to the worst drop during the last recession, when the gross national product fell at an annual rate of 9.1 percent in the first quarter of 1975.

But George Schultze, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, predicted a recovery from the recession will begin soon, although he said it would be a slow recovery.

Schultze pointed to indications that the housing slump has bottomed out and auto sales — while still down — are improving.

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that the long-slumping housing industry turned around in June, with construction starts surging 30.4 percent and building permits up more than 28 percent.

Starts of privately owned single- and multi-family houses rose to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.019 million units last month, compared with 913,000 in May, the department said.

Canada Okays Pipeline Plan

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's government has given the go-ahead for construction of the 450-mile Canadian section of a pipeline that eventually will carry natural gas on a 3,600-mile journey from fields at Alaska's Prudhoe Bay to markets in the lower 48 American states.

The decision, announced Thursday in the House of Commons, means natural gas from Canadian fields in Alberta is likely to start flowing to U.S. markets by early next year, some four years before the target date for completion of the entire $20 billion project, billed as the largest civil engineering feat ever undertaken.

Construction on the Canadian section of the line, with an estimated price tag of $8 billion, is expected to begin next month. Work on the U.S. portions of the line reportedly has been stalled by delays in the U.S. regulatory process.

"I do not believe there can be any doubt that our national interest lies in proceeding with this important undertaking at the earliest possible date," said Sen. Bud Olson, the Liberal Party minister responsible for construction of the pipeline.

"We are satisfied that the United States is committed to build their portion of the line by 1985," a government statement said.

Seventeen EMT Certificates Given Last Night

Local Fire-Rescue Department personnel who recently completed their Emergency Medical Technician requirements were presented EMT certificates Thursday night in ceremonies at city hall.

Seventeen fire-rescue employees were certified after completing the 118-hour course and two others will receive their certifications after taking the EMT examination.

Completing the course, taught on the job through Pitt Community College, were Michael G. Cable, Raymond L. Carney, Harvey

R. Case, Kirby A. Coward, Donnie B. Foell, Thomas W.

Harris, Linwood O. Green, Bobby R. Jackson, William E. McKinney, Joseph B.

Meeks, Carl L. Miller, Joseph P. Nethercutt, Roger L. Page, Raymond C. Pettitt, Garrett F. Phipps, Ralph P. Rogers, William M. Turner Jr., Jonathan C. West, and Hubert K. Leggett.

EMT certificates were presented by City Councilman Clarence Gray and letters of appreciation and recognition from Mayor Don McGlohon and certificates of completion from PCC were also awarded during the activities.

Adam Corbett and Tony Smart, fire-rescue employees who served as instructors for the course, were presented statements of recognition and appreciation from department Chief Jenness Allen, City Manager Ed Wyatt and McGlohon for their performance and for going beyond the call of duty in teaching the course.

Ellwood Inscow, deputy commissioner of insurance with the N.C. Department of Insurance, was on hand for the presentations and offered congratulations from Commissioner John Ingram and the staff of the department's Fire and Rescue Services Division.

Inscow, who is in charge of fire and rescue training for the state, observed that "Sooner or later, if you are wise, you discover that life is a mixture of good days and bad days, victory and defeat. Give and take. We learn that sometimes we lose both lives and buildings."

The deputy commissioner said, "You have been blessed with the opportunity to reach a level of training which can be a real asset to the citizens you serve."

'Citizen Award' Is Given Joyner

The "Outstanding Citizen Award," a new project for the Woodmen of the World, was presented to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner last night at the quarterly meeting of the Pitt County Firemen's Association.

The award is based on "Life Saving Attempts by Citizens" as well as other things done for the community.

Joyner, the first recipient of the award, came to work with Pitt County in 1971. He is a member of the International Association of Fire Chiefs and a member of the Fire Marshal's Association of North America. A certified fire instructor for the state, Joyner has been through the chairs of the State Firemen's Association and presently serves as treasurer of the state association. He has also been through the chairs of the Eastern State Firemen's Association.

Joyner and his family reside in Farmville.

Hearing Set For Sirhan

SOLEDADE, Calif. (AP) — A new parole-status hearing will be scheduled for Sirhan B. Sirhan, convicted killer of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, after the state Board of Prison Terms ruled that Sirhan had been improperly denied his prison file.

Sirhan, 36, said Thursday he has been an exemplary prisoner and deserved an early release.

Board member Ralph Pizarro said Sirhan should have been allowed to see his central prison file before Thursday's scheduled hearing on whether he should be granted parole. The hearing was canceled, and a new one will be held within 90 days.

Sirhan said Pizarro's decision was "the first time the board had been fair" to him. It was not immediately known why Sirhan had been denied access to his file.

The state has set a Nov. 11, 1984, prospective parole date for Sirhan, but is required to hold a hearing each year to see if he is entitled to an earlier release.

Sirhan was described as a responsible inmate who has been "absolutely no problem," according to Dan Byrd, administrative assistant at Soledad State Prison, where Sirhan is an inmate.

Sirhan originally was sentenced to death in the 1968 assassination. But the sentence was reduced to life imprisonment after the state's death penalty law was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

While the board deliberated in closed session, Sirhan repeated his claim to reporters that he was under the influence of alcohol when the shooting occurred.

"I pray that I will get out of here before (1984). They have declared me to be exemplary... My behavior is exemplary."

He claimed that continued imprisonment would be "inhumane."

Moderator Will Preach Grimesland — The Rev. W. C. Horton, moderator of the New Bern Eastern Missionary Baptist Association, will preach at St. Monica Church tonight at 7:30.

Reagan, Bush...

"Remember only that political victories are won by hard dedicated work — and that in this crucial election year, the stakes for America and the free world are too great to allow ourselves to become complacent."

Attempting to tie down loose ends of potential dissent, Reagan and his campaign managers agreed to give Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, an arch conservative unhappy with the choice of Bush, a chance to address the convention.

When Helms strode to the podium, a delegate shouted: "Give 'em Hell, Jesse."

"I will," replied the senator. But his speech was conciliatory, referring to "a common commitment to the pro-American and pro-family principles."

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas placed Bush's name in nomination and told the delegates "this is not a time to stress our differences; this is a time to stress agreement."

And one of the earliest references in Reagan's acceptance speech was directed at supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment, many of them bitterly disappointed by the candidate's opposition to the amendment and to the decision of the platform committee to drop party support for it.

"As president I will establish a liaison with the 50 governors to encourage them to eliminate, wherever it exists, discrimination against women," said the candidate.

In addition to its appeal to a new coalition, Reagan's speech was a restatement of familiar campaign positions and attacks on President Carter and a government he called "overgrown and overweight."

"I will not stand by and watch this great country destroy itself under mediocre leadership that drifts from one crisis to the next, eroding

Heat Deaths

By The Associated Press
 The nation's heat wave has claimed at least 986 lives in 20 states since June 22, according to an unofficial count by The Associated Press as of Thursday. Here is a state-by-state count:

Alabama	114
Arkansas	98
Florida	33
Georgia	62
Illinois	67
Indiana	2
Iowa	5
Kansas	58
Kentucky	8
Louisiana	15
Mississippi	51
Missouri	234
Nebraska	4

our national will and purpose," said Reagan.

He restated his pledge "to impose an immediate and thorough freeze on federal hiring" as his first act as president.

"We are taxing ourselves into economic exhaustion and stagnation" he said and went on to call for enactment of the across-the-board tax cuts that he has made a keystone of his economic program.

Reagan political aides involved in planning the campaign in the major industrial states of the Northeast and Midwest appeared delighted with the choice of Bush for second spot on the ticket.

One said Bush effectively appealed to "the white, Protestant, upper-class Republicans" who were uneasy with Reagan's western conservatism.

"The selection of Bush speaks to that fear as much as Bush himself," said the aide.

The Reagan campaign has drawn up a budget for use of the $29.4 million in federal funds allotted to each presidential candidate. The Reagan budget calls for spending about half the total for advertising, nearly all of it on television.

In the euphoric atmosphere of the closing night of the convention, aides were reluctant to concede any states to the Carter-Mondale ticket, expected to be renominated in New York City next month.

They described Reagan's base as the West and South, and they including the South, with its conservative tradition, despite the fact Carter is a Georgian.

Georgia is the only southern state they were willing to concede to Carter.

With Bush on the ticket, the Reagan aides believe the Republicans can carry major Northeast states such as New York and Pennsylvania. In New York, they expect to be helped if Rep. John Anderson, running as an independent, becomes the Liberal Party candidate on the state ballot.

Reagan is likely to be listed in three places on the New York ballot, as the candidate of the Republican, Conservative and Right to Life parties.

Action Meet To Be Monday

The action meeting for the month of July of the Greenville Board of Education will be held at 8 p.m. Monday, July 21 in the multi-purpose room at Eastern Elementary School.

Agenda items include school fees, school insurance, the 1980-81 budget, a trial of policy matters, meal costs, surplus property, and personnel resignations and elections.

City Receiving Bids On Bonds

The city is receiving bids until July 29 for the purchase of local tax exempt municipal bonds totaling some $15.4 million, according to Al Averette, city finance officer.

Averette said that the bond issuance involves $7.5 million in water bonds, $5 million in electric bonds, $1.9 million in public works facilities bonds, and $1 million in sanitary sewer bonds.

Averette pointed out that he, Mayor Don McGlohon, City Manager Ed Wyatt, and Pitt County Development

Commission Executive Director Reese Hart traveled to New York City one day this week to appear before the two agencies that rate municipal bonds. He said the city delegates discussed the official financial statement and answered questions regarding financial management in order to aid the agencies in assigning ratings for the local bonds.

The spokesman said that

Winterville Has New Officer

WINTERVILLE — The town hired a new police officer last week. Patrick Joseph DeCuzzi of Winterville began work July 10.

DeCuzzi was a member of the auxiliary police force and was already certified when he was promoted to policeman. His experience includes farming and three years in the military as a U.S. Army Postal Clerk. The officer graduated from D.H. Conley High School in 1971. DeCuzzi is married to the former Alexine Dews.

"The town feels like we are fortunate to get someone as qualified and familiar with the town as DeCuzzi," commented Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

Activities Are Reported

Operation Sunshine this week had a daily attendance of 30-38 girls per day.

The girls have filled the summer doing macrame, basket hangers, belts, travel hangers and sewing. They have also made plaster crafts, wall hangers, bookends and paper weights.

Porter Shaw and Don Vickers, Pitt County Mental Health Center, completed a study on drug and alcohol, focusing on coping with persons who are addicted.

Mrs. Alice Moore, South Greenville Park and Recreation, is continuing her work with the girls in softball and small crafts.

On Friday the girls completed a week of planning and preparing a full course meal at the center.

Future plans include a trip to the zoo, Voice of America and Bath.

North Pitt High School sophomore Keith Coltrain of Bethel served as a page in Governor Jim Hunt's offices in Raleigh during the week of July 14-18.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Coltrain, Box 411, Bethel.

Bynums Honored By Children

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Bynum Sr. were honored on their 40th wedding anniversary in the parlor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

Hosts were their children, Ina and Floyd Wiggins, Joanne and Vic Pate, JoAnn and Merrill Bynum Jr., and Ann and John Bynum.

Mr. and Mrs. Bynum were married July 3, 1940 in Louisburg. They have four children and eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Bynum wore a rose and white ensemble and was presented a corsage of light and dark pink carnations. Her husband wore a pink carnation boutonniere.

The serving table was covered with a white and green lace cloth and was centered with an arrangement of light and dark pink carnations, baby's breath and pink candles. Pictures of the honored couple taken when they were married were displayed.

Mr. & Mrs. Merrill Bynum Sr.

Mrs. Bynum's sister, poured punch. Mrs. Joanne Pate, Mrs. Ina Wiggins and Mrs. JoAnn Bynum assisted in serving. About 150 persons attended, some of them from Oriental, Louisburg and Kinston.

She Made Herself Surgeon

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — There were only seven women among 90 men when 20-year-old Elizabeth Morgan entered Yale Medical School in 1967. It was the beginning of 11 years of training for Dr. Morgan, who now has her own private practice in plastic surgery in the Washington, D.C., area.

Dr. Morgan estimates there are some 2,000 women surgeons in the United States, including some 200 female plastic surgeons.

How does it feel to be in this unique position?

"I think of myself as a woman and a doctor and then a surgeon," the 33-year-old Dr. Morgan said with a smile. "It's what you're good at, it's what you're trained to be, and the fact that you're one of a few doesn't mean that you walk around all the time saying, 'oh, here I am, one of a few.'"

Dr. Morgan studied at Radcliffe, Yale and Oxford and did her internship and residency at major metropolitan hospitals in the United States. She describes her years of training in her book, "The Making of a Woman Surgeon."

"When I applied to medical school, I decided I wanted to be a surgeon and ... I was told that really, as a woman, it wasn't the right field for me. They'd never had a woman surgeon; they said they'd had a woman resident who hadn't been able to make it and she'd had a nervous breakdown, just couldn't take it. I didn't see any reason that made it so mysterious and impossible and uniquely male. And it isn't," Dr. Morgan said.

She said Harvard's admissions policy and attitudes toward women led her to turn down a spot in that medical school and accept placement at Yale.

"I think the figure is about 10 percent of people who start training in general surgery drop out to something like radiology or pathology," she said. "I've never known a woman who has dropped out, they've all been men. And I don't know whether that's because the women who go in, it's more of a challenge, or whether there's just too few women."

Dr. Morgan said the most difficult part of her training was the long hours she had to work.

"My internship was absolutely grueling...to start work Saturday morning and not sleep until Monday night and then go back to work Tuesday morning for another 36 hours, that's terrible," she said.

Dr. Morgan said she had encountered some difficulties during her training because there were so few female students but, she added, "most of the people who trained me were just great."

"On the two times when I worked with doctors who really didn't like me, they didn't like me as a person, they didn't like me as a woman, they felt I was rejecting them sexually, that was horrible. But that only happened twice," she said.

Dr. Morgan said she began writing her book when she was an intern "because so many things were happening to me, I just wanted to write them down. And a lot of them were very emotional. Patients were dying, patients had diseases I'd never seen before, and it was very exciting."

She has been in private practice in plastic surgery for two years.

"Plastic surgery has a lot of reconstruction. And the psychological aspects appealed to me, too, because people who've had their faces scarred, a woman after a mastectomy, or children who are born with deformed hands and so forth, there's a lot of surgery but there is a lot beyond surgery that you can do to help them."

She does about 20 percent cosmetic surgery "but it's such an expensive thing to undertake that I really try to talk people out of it. I think it's a bad investment. You don't get interest on it and you can't take it back to the manufacturer."

Dr. Morgan said she stopped taking new patients for a time after her book was published "because I would hate to find that I was advertising myself through my book."

For the future, Dr. Morgan plans to change from solo private practice to group practice because "it's a 24-hour-a-day, 365-days-a-year job, otherwise." She also plans to write another book about her experiences as a woman surgeon and someday hopes to marry and have children.

She makes it very clear that she enjoys her work.

"The great thing about surgery is that things happen all the time, and there are so many fascinating things that are just going on, it's like a mini movie theater," she said. "It's very exciting, there's a lot of drama, a lot of action...It's a great field and very satisfying."

Are You His Social Secretary?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: IRRITATED is mad because her daughter-in-law never called to invite her to dinner. It was always her son who did the calling. Tell me, would she be equally irritated if her own daughter did all the inviting instead of her son-in-law?

Usually the son-in-law is considered a "hero" if he just shows up and talks civilly to his wife's family when they come to visit. No one ever expects a married man to pick out a Mother's Day present for his mother — that's his wife's job, and she's lucky if she can get her husband to sign the card.

Who ever heard of a man going to visit his wife's Uncle Ed in the hospital? Or picking out graduation gifts for his wife's nieces and nephews — much less his own?

Isn't it time men got more involved in family affairs? Sign me anything you wish. I live in Costa Mesa, Calif.

ALSO IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: Traditionally the wife has written all the letters, purchased the gifts and acted as the unpaid public relations agent for her husband's family as well as her own. It started way back when women didn't work outside their homes. Times have changed, and now nearly as many married women as men go out to work, but men still consider it a wife's "duty" to be the social secretary. And as long as women permit it, instead of insisting that those responsibilities be shared, that's the way it will be.

DEAR ABBY: My pet peeve is the "schnorrer" — someone who tries to get something for nothing. I buy a newspaper every morning on my way to work to read during my coffee break, and the minute I clock in, someone says, "Hey, can I see the sports section?" Or "Give me Dear Abby when you're finished with her." It's the same during lunch.

No one around here ever buys a newspaper, but they all enjoy reading mine. One guy had the nerve to ask me if he could take my paper home with him!

How can I handle these schnorrers without making enemies?

SICK OF SCHNORRERS

DEAR SICK: Give the schnorrers the part you aren't reading with instructions to return it afterward.

DEAR ABBY: It's been three months since our brother died. Joe was terminally ill for a long time, and although he was fully aware of his condition, he never discussed it with anyone. Joe was a well-known and loved businessman who had been active and healthy before this hit him.

During his illness and after his death, dozens of people expressed their sorrow and feelings of inadequacy that prevented their visiting him and giving him the support and company he would have enjoyed so much.

I feel fortunate that I was the one who spent the most time with him during his last months. I enjoyed conversations that he hadn't had time for before his illness. His knowledge and fantastic memory gave me so much pleasure! We laughed, we cried together, we talked. Much time was spent in comfortable silence.

I'm sure Joe would have enjoyed visits from his contemporaries. He was always so cheerful. They would have gone away feeling good.

Sandy Noblitt, Bruce Tripp Honored

Sandy Noblitt and Bruce Tripp Jr., bridal couple-elect, both of Chapel Hill, were honored at a pig-pickin' wedding shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Tripp Saturday afternoon.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of white silk snapdragons and carnations. Mrs. W. E. Tripp Jr. and Mrs. Edward F. Switzer served punch preceding the barbecue. The bride-elect was presented with a corsage of white daisies and baby's breath. Mothers of the couple received corsages of miniature white chrysanthemums.

Hosts and hostesses for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Switzer, Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Tripp Jr. and Mrs. William Tripp.

The honored couple will be wed in an August 3 ceremony in Chapel Hill.

Board Moves Carefully

The Pitt County school board has run into that classic dilemma — whether to spend scarce capital improvement funds for upgrading of athletic facilities or for classroom space.

And, whether the funds allotted for athletic facilities should be divided so as to equalize facilities between the four high schools, or divided equally.

The facilities at the four county high schools are in various states of development and there was a motion to divide the $100,000 available into six parts, giving North Pitt and D. H. Conley four parts and Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton two. The thinking was to bring the North Pitt and D. H. Conley facilities up to the standards of the other two. That motion was tabled as was one to split the funds four ways.

Finally the entire matter was tabled and Jack Edwards, a member of the board, noted the critical need for classroom space and suggested "we need to stop and assess our priorities."

We're not going to try to tell the county board of education here how to spend that $100,000. The board seems to be giving the matter a lot of thought, and that is the way it should be. Capital improvement funds are scarce in the current budget, and with rising inflation, the funds available don't go very far. The board will do well to consider all the school system's needs very carefully before any allocations are made.

Improve? Let's Ask More

How do we make our schools better?

Well, there has been some improvement, with students in the county school system showing up better on the achievement tests this year, and in other ways.

Assistant Superintendent

Katheryn Lewis commented to the board of education, "It still appears that the more is demanded of students, the more they produce."

If we can apply that philosophy universally to our school systems, we will all be astounded at the improvement we will see.

THIS AFTERNOON

Removing 'Walls'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Tearing down the walls which have been built between North Carolina's public high schools and the community colleges is a high priority as a new governing system is installed for the community colleges.

The commission which has detailed plans for the split of the community college system from the State Board of Education pulled no punches in fixing blame and suggesting solutions to the problem.

former Gov. Terry Sanford suggests a simple alternative: unless permission is forthcoming, let the transfer take place and that fact be duly reported back to the high school. Further, says that group, consideration ought to be given to allowing students to enroll in both public schools and community colleges at the same time in order to get the best of both opportunities.

There should be, the

"Funding schemes based on the number of students enrolled and the fear of a mass exodus from the high schools if other options are opened to the students have played a part in maintaining transfer barriers between these two education systems," the commission found.

But North Carolina still has one of the highest dropout rates in the nation, losing one of every three students between the ninth grade and graduation. And the state ranks third in the nation in illiteracy with fewer than half the state's population having finished high school.

Restricted

Severe restrictions have been placed in the past against youngsters moving from the high schools to the community colleges — they can't make the move if under 16; they can't change unless they first drop out of the public schools and wait six months; they aren't allowed on the community college campus during daylight hours; and while some of those restrictions have been eased somewhat, the permission must come from public school officials.

The commission headed by commission concluded, "a policy of freedom to move in either direction between the public schools and community college institutions for people 16 years of age and above (and perhaps younger in exceptional cases) for whom the public school system is no longer the better educational option."

Falling in that category would be technically oriented youngsters frustrated by academic focus in the high school; bright students whose maturity and ability exceed the capacity of the public schools to satisfy; young people who have already dropped out despite being under age 16.

Another aspect of the situation is that the restrictive

The Butter Capability

WASHINGTON — There is a big debate going on in the country right now concerning guns and butter. It isn't a question of how much we should spend on guns, but what we should buy with the money.

Some people want to give it all to the U.S. Navy. Others want to put it into underground missile systems. Still other men of good will think we should spend it on new bombers. And there are those who believe we have to beef up our airborne strike forces.

Once these problems are resolved, Congress will have to deal with the question of butter.

A Senate Subcommittee on Strategic Buttery has been holding hearings on the subject, and the testimony so far has painted a grim picture about this nation's ability to stay ahead of the Soviets.

A Deputy Secretary in charge of Dairy Intelligence, told the committee in closed session, "At the moment, this country has enough butter to spread over every piece of toast in the world. But we know that the Russians are developing their own spread, which could make our butter supplies obsolete."

A senator asked, "Are we talking about the salted or unsalted variety?"

"Salted butter, sir. Since the SALT talks broke off, the Kremlin has been putting all of it in their butter."

"But," another senator said, "we know that the Russians are spending half their gross national product on guns, while we're spending 90 percent of ours on butter. How can they ever expect to attain parity?"

"Quantitatively speaking, that's correct, but our intelligence people report that the Russians are putting a higher butterfat content into their product so it will taste creamier. Their butter has more of a bang to it, although there is less to go around. Our concern is that if they up their production, they will be able to smear the United States."

"Why can't we put a higher butterfat content in ours?"

"It's a question of money. We just don't have the funds to give America the butter capability we need. The more we spend on guns the less we can spend on butter."

"Are you saying this country can't have guns and butter at the same time?"

"Butter now costs $2.15 a pound. Many people can no longer afford it, and are resorting to cheaper spreads. But even they aren't cheap any more, so a lot of Americans are doing without."

"Do you mean to tell us we can't even afford guns and margarine?"

"We're reaching that stage, sir. Every time Congress authorizes another fighter plane, someone in America winds up putting chicken fat on his bread."

"This is a terrible situation," a senator fumed. "Why weren't we informed of this before?"

"The butter people have been trying to tell you this for some time, but every Congress has churned a deaf ear to their warnings. No one wanted to make a choice between guns and butter, and now we don't seem to have either."

"What do you suggest we do about it?" a senator asked.

"If you ask people which they would prefer, guns or butter, most of them will tell their politicians' guns. But in their hearts, the electorate really wants butter. It's very hard to scramble eggs with a

Other Editors Say Willing To Pay

(Henderson Dispatch)

Figures cited by energy and highway authorities indicate gasoline consumption in the United States has decreased by eight percent or more during the first six months of 1980, compared with the same period last year; but miles traveled by motor vehicles on streets and highways is equal to or greater this year than in the first half of 1979.

The statistics seem contradictory. However, the officials explain that nationwide conservation efforts have curtailed fuel consumption somewhat, while more fuel-efficient vehicles are on the roads and traveling more miles on less gasoline or diesel fuel.

So far in 1980, fuel supplies have been more than ample for those willing to pay the premium prices.

Apparently motorists are willing to pay the prices. The Carolina Motor Club reports members of that organization requested over five percent more travel routings during the first half of this year compared to the same period in 1979. A survey by the club revealed that a 22 percent increase in trip-routings in June was primarily responsible for the gain.

In addition to the June increase, survey results showed a decline of three percent in January, a six percent increase in February, a six percent drop in March, one percent rise in April and five percent increase in May. Routing requests totaled 41,249 for the first half of 1980, compared with 39,037 in the first six months of 1979.

Beach and mountain sites within North and South Carolina were listed as the most popular destinations for Carolina motorists, apparently indicating travelers were not planning many long, cross-country journeys.

An earlier report by the club's parent organization, the American Automobile Association, indicated that the Southeast was the most popular destination for motorists in four of the seven regions analyzed in the continental United States. Within the Southeast, the Carolinas ranked immediately behind Florida in popularity.

On the basis of the surveys, it seems earlier fears that North Carolina's travel and tourism industry might head into a decline in 1980 will not materialize — that is, provided the gasoline keeps flowing.

Strength For Today

ATONEMENT DOCTRINE

"Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures." What does this mean? Some theologians have held that God ransomed mankind from the bondage of Satan through the death of His Son on the cross. Others, viewing the matter legalistically, find the cross meeting the full requirements of divine justice, appeasing God's anger over man's sin.

To most Christians today such theories appear fantastic, almost repulsive. Christ's atoning sacrifice

NEW YORK (AP) — A newly conceived financing vehicle offers hope to people who want to buy a home but who cannot afford the down payment.

The plan, expected to be put into operation this fall by a group of real estate professionals, could help solve the dilemma of those who see prices rising faster than their ability to save purchase funds.

Under the plan, Home Partners of America Inc. would pay three-quarters of the down payment and share equally in the costs of closing, taxes, financing and insurance, becoming in the process a 50 percent owner.

Home Partners would also charge its partner a monthly occupancy fee, which would be a major portion of its return. In addition, it would be able to depreciate its share of the house for tax purposes.

Lois Vitt, founder of Home Partners, whose offices are in Westfield, N.J., said the plan is designed to serve two groups:

1. Those people who want to buy homes and who can afford the monthly charges, but who have been unable to save down payments. Among them are first-time buyers, the recently divorced, and former renters.
2. Investors who until now have had no institutionalized way of investing in the private home market, in which prices in recent years have outpaced inflation and many other investments, including stocks.

Miss Vitt, a former government housing official and high-ranking executive with major real estate companies, said the company's investment funds will be raised through public offerings of limited partnerships.

In an interview, she said investors in the partnerships "should realize a 10 percent to 12 percent fully tax-sheltered cash return, plus appreciation, if any, in a pool of prime single-family homes."

Miss Vitt's board is made up of C.J. Faherty and Peter C. Faherty, investment bankers and former top officers of Eastdil Realty, Robert F. Yoke, former trea-

Reagan Still Leads Rivals

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — In the latest nationwide Gallup survey, completed Sunday, Ronald Reagan maintains his lead over President Jimmy Carter and independent candidate John Anderson. Reagan wins the support of 38 percent of registered voters to 32 percent for Carter and 22 percent for Anderson.

The current figures are a virtual carbon copy of those recorded in a late-June survey which showed Reagan with 39 percent, Carter with 31 percent and Anderson with 21 percent.

While voters currently prefer Reagan, they give Carter about an equal chance of winning the presidency. Asked which of the three men they think will win in November, 44 percent of registered voters say Carter, 42 percent say Reagan and only 2 percent say Anderson. Another 12 percent are undecided.

The vote for Anderson over the period of three and one-half months and in nine national surveys has stayed within a narrow five-point range, varying from 18 to 23 percent.

As in previous trial heats, Anderson's support comes about equally from both Carter and Reagan. In the current survey, he draws 10 percentage points from Reagan and nine from Carter. (The latest two-way race shows Reagan with 48 percent of the vote of registered voters, Carter with 41 percent.)

Here is the question asked to determine the relative strength of Reagan, Carter and Anderson:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held TODAY. If President Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate, running against Ronald Reagan, the Republican candidate, and John Anderson, the independent candidate, which would you like to see win?"

Those who named another person or who were undecided were asked: "As of today do you lean more to Carter, the Democrat, to Reagan, the Republican, or to Anderson, the independent?"

Following are the latest results and the full trend, based on the choices of registered voters:

	Carter vs. Reagan vs. Anderson (Choices of registered voters)
	Reagan	Carter	Anderson	Other/Undecided
LATEST (July 11-13)	38%	32%	22%	8%
June 27-29	39	31	21	9
June 13-15	36	35	23	6
May 30-June 2	32	39	21	8
May 16-19	32	40	21	7
May 2-5	33	38	21	8
April 26-27	35	38	19	8
April 11-14	34	42	18	6
March 28-31	34	40	21	5

None Of Three Has Solid Support

Responses to another survey question indicate that none of the three candidates can boast of very solid or enthusiastic backing. Large majorities say they "only moderately" rather than "strongly" support the candidate of their choice in the latest trial heat.

Following are the latest results on strength of support:

	—Those Choosing—
	Reagan	Carter	Anderson
Strongly support him	39%	43%	30%
Moderately support him	60	57	66
No opinion	1	1	4

*Less than 1 percent.

Carter Popularity Remains At 33 Percent

The president's current popularity rating stands at 33 percent approval, the same figure as recorded in the previous survey.

Following is the question asked to measure public response to the president's performance in office, and the results of the two latest surveys:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Carter is handling his job as president?"

	Carter Popularity
	LATEST	Late June
Approve	33%	33%
Disapprove	57	56
No opinion	10	11

The following question was asked to measure expectations as opposed to preferences:

"Regardless of how you, yourself, feel, which candidate do you think will WIN the presidential election this fall — Reagan, Carter or Anderson?"

Here are the national results, based on registered voters:

Who Will Win?
Carter	44%
Reagan	42
Anderson	2
Undecided	12

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,242 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period July 11-13. The questions dealing with both voter preferences and expectations are based on interviews with 908 registered voters.

The investors will join with the occupant in making major repairs or capital improvements. Savings on insurance or other services obtained through group arrangements also will be shared, Miss Vitt said.

She and the Fahertys are known for real estate innovation. All were once with Eastdil, known for creative financing, she as president of Eastdil Housing, C.J. Faherty as chairman and Peter Faherty as vice president.

C.J. Faherty also was a long-time senior vice president of Prudential Life Insurance, and is credited by Miss Vitt with developing that company's amortized mortgage loan during the depression of the 1930s.

Miss Vitt said she has been working on the concept for several years, beginning when a friend found himself with an opportunity to purchase a condominium but found himself unable to make the financial commitment.

Life As It's Lived

There Is An Essential Role For Man In Home

By GAIL MICHAELS
I don't care what the social scientists say, the female-headed household will never become the norm in this country.

I hate to admit it, but men are most essential to the smooth functioning of a home. And it's not because we women can't do without them. We can. Unfortunately, our appliances can't.

Now I can't begin to explain the dynamics of this relationship. If Phillip is any indication, it's certainly not a question of compatibility. He has to call in a repairman for anything more difficult than replacing a light bulb.

It may have something to do with body chemistry.

All I know is that everything can be working perfectly, but the minute a man leaves the house for more than eight hours, anything that can fail will.

My friend, Amy, recently experienced this strange phenomenon. I heard all about her plight when she called me to get the name of my appliance repairman.

"What's wrong?" I asked.
"Bill's out of town for two weeks."

"That's terrible. Has it been bad?"

"Let me put it this way. I'm considering advertising for a replacement."

"For him?"
"No for me. I'm going to pieces and my appliances aren't far behind me. Bill wasn't out the door ten minutes when the freezer defrosted itself."

"So?"
"It's not self-defrosting. But I didn't really get upset until the air conditioning went out. We've been sweating ever since."

"You should have come over here."
"I couldn't. I didn't think you'd want your kids exposed to chickenpox."

"Not really. Which one has them?"

"The youngest. I just wish I'd known when I took his brother to the emergency room, I could have killed two birds with one stone."

"What happened?"

"He fell off the gym set and required 15 stitches."

"But you don't have a gym set."

"Oh yes I do. We ordered it six months ago. It arrived the day after Bill left."

"Assembled?"
"Are you kidding? The U.S. Mint doesn't have as many separate metal pieces. I went bananas trying to figure it out."

"You don't mean you tried to put it together yourself? Why didn't you just leave it for Bill?"

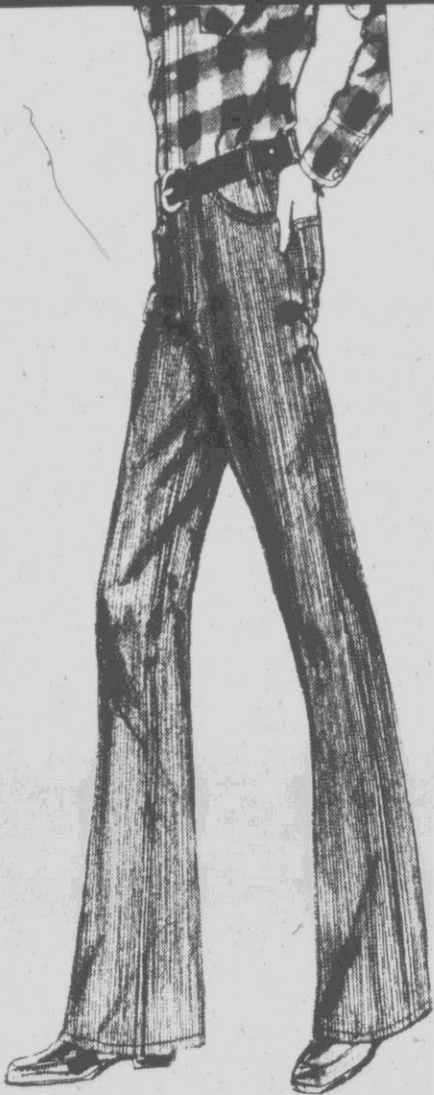

"Have you ever listened to three kids moan in unison for 13 days? Anyway I finally hired someone to put it up."

"You poor woman. It's a good thing Bill isn't gone for a month. When does he get back?"
"In 12 days."

It is important for the governing boards at the state level, the local boards of education and community college trustees, and if necessary the General Assembly and the governor, to respond to "an urgent need for making certain that we do not have young people who simply fall between the cracks that now exist in the transition from the secondary schools to the community college institutions", the commission urges, and goes on to note that many young people caught in that crack simply surrender and never return to school of any sort.

Recommendations contained in the report by the planning commission will be considered in phases as the new board is established and either by policy decisions or through legislative change begins to operate the community college system.

Helms Loyalists Disappointed By Bush Selection

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — As George Bush and the Republican convention celebrated Bush's vice presidential nomination, Lucy Chatham Everette and a handful of others sadly waved a dissenting sign.

"Helms" was all it said, and she and others in the North Carolina delegation were using it to voice their message — that the party's far right is going along with presidential nominee Ronald Reagan's choice for a running mate but it's not enthusiastic about it.

"I'm going home and work for the ticket as hard as I can," said Mrs. Everette, of Elkin, N.C., an alternate who voted as a delegate for Sen. Jesse Helms for the vice presidential nomination.

"But I want to say, 'Hey Ronnie, I love you, but we're out here too,'" she said. "I'm still convinced the conservative movement is alive and well in this country, and not just in North Carolina."

While conservatives dominated the GOP convention, some weren't satisfied with the choice of Bush and voiced it by voting for Helms and other also-rans.

After threatening all week to take his own vice presidential candidacy to the convention floor if Reagan's choice wasn't satisfactory, Helms backed down Thursday night and settled for 10 minutes on the podium to praise the party's platform and conservative principles.

Although his name wasn't placed in nomination, Helms received 54 votes — and more than half, 34, came from Mrs. Everette and others in his home state. The rest came from a smattering of states, the largest being the seven cast by the Texas delegation.

"I feel like Bush has compromised himself," said Mrs. Everette, 31, a lawyer and active local party official. "He basically said he could run on the platform, while he campaigned (for the presidency) as pro-abortion and pro-ERA. And there's nothing in our platform for those things."

In his speech, Helms avoided ever mentioning Bush's name, but said he would support the Reagan-Bush ticket because of the staunchly conservative GOP platform — which Helms played a large role in shaping.

"I support our ticket because our nominees have emphasized their faith in, and dedication to, the platform adopted by this convention," he said.

Delegate Tom Ellis of Raleigh, Helms' strategist, said he was deeply disappointed with Bush's selection. He sported a "Stop Stassen" button, a reference to perennial candidate Harold Stassen, and quipped, "It's the only think I've won."

Despite the long faces of the Helms' loyalists, others in the North Carolina delegation said the Helms votes should not be viewed as anti-Bush.

"They didn't vote against Bush. They voted for Senator Helms as a favorite son," said former Gov. James Holshouser. "I think a majority of them find George Bush acceptable."

Holshouser cast his vote for Bush, as did James Godfrey, Albert Partridge, Tom Lucas and Jerry Hardesty in the North Carolina delegation. Helms didn't vote, but his vote was cast for him by alternate Mary Jane Hollyday of Asheville.

"My vote was not anti-Bush. It was just that I thought we needed to go with Jesse," said state Rep. Harold Brubaker of Asheville.

"It was loyalty to the Gipper," said Tom Dlugos of Hickory.

"It was simply a matter of courtesy and respect for him," said Alan Pugh, a delegate from Asheville. "But I'm very enthusiastic about the Reagan-Bush ticket. It couldn't be better."

New Confidence In Republicans

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
DETROIT (AP) — This time, conservative Republicans are behaving as though they expect to win and to govern.

Conservative Barry Goldwater read his opponents out of the Republican Party.

Conservative Ronald Reagan is trying to read dissenters, and Democrats, into it, as he begins his final campaign for the White House.

The Republican presidential nominee swallowed some leftover primary campaign grudges to put a defeated rival, George Bush, on his ticket.

He quoted Franklin Delano Roosevelt in his triumphant final address to the Republican National Convention.

He spent his days in Detroit declaring that in 1980, no voter and no voting bloc is out of reach, that blacks, blue collar workers, big city Democrats, all can be enlisted to vote Republican.

His managers saw to it that Benjamin Hooks, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, was added to the convention program, for a speech urging Republicans to promote programs for jobs, equality and an end to racism.

It may not work; traditional Democratic voters may vote Democratic again on Nov. 4. But Reagan and his Republicans are trying to reach them.

And that is some change from the last time that conservative Republican triumphed 16 years ago.

When Arizona's Sen. Goldwater accepted his nomination in San Francisco in 1964, it was with a message of defiant conservatism.

"Anyone who joins us in all sincerity, we welcome," he said. "Those who do not care for our cause we don't expect to enter our ranks in any event."

"And let our Republicanism so focused and so dedicated not be made fuzzy and futile by unthinking and stupid labels. I would remind you that extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you also that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Goldwater's ticket had no place for one-time rivals. His chief competitor, then-New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, was hooted down when he addressed the convention.

Rep. William E. Miller of New York was his running mate, and that choice was another signal of unbending, uncompromising conservatism.

Goldwater himself seems to have mellowed a bit since his presidential campaign days, which ended in landslide defeat. He told this

GOP convention that when he looks back, he realizes that "with a little less carping, a little less nitpicking, a little more willingness to share, a little more willingness to give in," the story might have been different.

Reagan hasn't given in on much; the 1980 Republican platform is conservative to the core. But he has tried to ease friction with moderate and liberal Republicans who don't like it.

For example, four paragraphs into his acceptance speech, Reagan offered assurances of equal rights action despite his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment. "I know we have had a quarrel or two in our party, but only as to the method of attaining a goal," he said. "There was no argument about the goal."

He said where laws are needed to eliminate discrimination against women, he'll propose or promote them.

And he ended the address by quoting Roosevelt's 1932 Democratic convention pledge of economy and efficiency in government.

Reagan strategists said the campaign now beginning will concentrate heavily on the states of the northeast and upper midwest, which haven't been rated promising territory for conservative Republicans.

And the former California governor began the first full day of that campaign over breakfast today with two staunch Democrats: Coleman Young, the black mayor of Detroit, and Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers Union.

Dr. Longshore Radio Guest

Dr. Tim Longshore, resident in psychiatry at Pitt County Mental Health Center, will be a special guest on "Mental Health Matters" Sunday at 1:06 p.m. on WNCT radio.

Dr. Longshore will speak about his role as therapist at the center in working with individuals, couples, and families. He will also discuss developmental aspects of psychiatry and the medical and psychotherapeutic treatments for clients.

Working under the direction of Dr. Robert P. Neno, center associate medical director, and other consultants from the East Carolina University Medical School, Dr. Longshore is building a case load at the center as well as performing emergency psychiatric duties at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

A graduate of Medical University of South Carolina, Dr. Longshore is in his second year of residency in psychiatry and began work in July at Pitt County Mental Health Center.

Hemingway Display Set

BOSTON (AP) — In a celebration lubricated with Ernest Hemingway's favorite double frozen daiquiries, the author's manuscripts, war medals and stuffed trophies go on public display for the first time tonight at the John F. Kennedy Library.

Mary Hemingway and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, widows of the writer and the president, were among 150 Hemingway friends, family, and aficionados planning to attend the official opening.

Kennedy and Hemingway never met, but the writer's fourth wife picked the harborside building as the most suitable place for her husband's papers and artifacts.

The Hemingway Room, located on the library's fourth floor, is mainly intended for people researching the author's work and life. But folks who just want to look around will be allowed in, too.

Included are 800 Hemingway manuscripts — early drafts of his novels, short stories, poems and unpublished tidbits — the largest collection anywhere.

Also as part of the celebration, the $6,000 Ernest Hemingway Foundation Award will be given to Alan Saperstein for his first novel, "Mom Kills Kids and Self."

It is a natural reaction to take a discard when the opportunity presents itself. Frequently, however, you would do better to postpone the happy event until you are sure which card you want to sluff.

East was somewhat surprised to find the opponents in a game-forcing auction, considering that he held a pretty good hand. However, it was obvious that, unless the opponents were lying, his partner held nothing, so he wisely refrained from making a takeout double of three clubs. When the opponents climbed all the way to six clubs, though, he could contain himself no longer.

Technically, East's double calls for a spade lead. Since it is assumed that you don't double a slam to increase your riches by 50 or 100 points, the double is lead-directing. It usually calls for the first side-suit bid by dummy, but since dummy didn't bid a suit, the second choice is declarer's first-bid side-suit. So West led a heart!

Declarer rose with dummy's ace and discarded a diamond from his hand. Then he led a low diamond in the hope that he would be able to sneak through his now singleton queen. But East rose with the ace of diamonds and reverted to a heart, and even though the spade finesse worked, declarer eventually had to lose a spade trick for down one.

Observe the difference if declarer saves his ace of hearts at trick one and plays low from dummy, ruffing in hand. He crosses to dummy with a trump and, since it is reasonable to assume that East has the ace of diamonds for his double, he leads a low diamond. If East rises with the ace, declarer will be able to get two spade sluffs on the king of diamonds and ace of hearts, so the defenders get only the ace of diamonds. If East plays low, the queen wins. Declarer gets back to dummy with a trump and sluffs a diamond on the ace of hearts. Now the defenders will get only one spade and East goes to bed with his ace of diamonds.

Free TV Time To Blatant Reagan Ad

By PETER BOYER
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Republicans had this film — a mushy little biography narrated in patronizing tones, exalting a kid named "Dutch" who wanted to be President. ABC, CBS and NBC, uniquely able to accommodate this blatant political freebie, did so.

The networks ran the Reagan advertisement in full, smack in the middle of prime time. It was the Republican National Convention.

The Republican National Convention ended Thursday as it had begun, with the GOP in full control of its own show. What a difference a day makes.

Just 24 hours earlier, these same Republicans and the networks now obliging them, were partners in chaos. With the eager assistance of network reporters, the well-ordered convention had threatened to come apart — swelling to the bursting point in anticipation of a Reagan-Ford "co-presidency," collapsing when it didn't materialize.

But Thursday, Reagan held the reins again, and television let him have his night. For the most part, anyway.

During the many dead periods — the rollof of states, and such — the three networks spent their time recollecting the night before, when the GOP television show erupted into a genuine, by-gosh story.

Oh, how they recollect. All of the networks devoted the first portion of their closing night coverage to a step-by-step reconstruction of the aborted Ford-Reagan union. Each network's tailoring of the story reflected its own role in the wonderfully bizarre event.

CBS, for example, made specific reference to Walter Cronkite's interview with Gerald Ford, the one in which Ford stunned the place by saying he'd run with Reagan if Reagan would agree to his terms.

ABC, which had a similar Ford interview, also mentioned television's role, but NBC, which had no interview, focused in its reconstruction on behind-closed-doors machinations.

On the whole, though, the networks all seemed anxious to downplay TV's role in the affair, perhaps sensitive to the fact that television's overwhelming presence had altered the story it was covering.

NBC's David Brinkley self-righteously boasted, "We never did report that the deal with Ford had been struck, I'd like to point that out."

Actually, NBC did quote a "reliable source" saying that the deal had been struck.

Finally, however, the string was pulled, the speechmakers hushed, and the balloons dropped from the ceiling, ending a convention that was better than television had expected.

At the end, ABC cut to a local watering hole for reaction from the patrons. At Millie's Bar the whole thing was put neatly into perspective: Nobody had watched the proceedings.

And they say we are a people in decline. Bah.

Donna Summer Is Quietly Wed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Donna Summer, the queen of disco rock, wore white organdy and lace as she married her longtime boyfriend, Bruce Sudano of the rock group "Brooklyn Dreams."

Ms. Summer and Sudano, both 31, were married Wednesday at The Church on The Way.

"There were no celebrities there. It was an intimate, family affair," said Ms. Summer's manager, Susan Munao, who was maid of honor.

Sudano's brother, Barry, was best man, and Ms. Summer's 7-year-old daughter by a former marriage, Mimi, was flower girl.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices ran up another sharp gain in heavy trading today, extending Thursday's rally amid hopes for an early recovery from the recession.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which closed Thursday at a three-year high, picked up another 6.49 to 921.59 by noon today.

Gainers held a 5-2 lead over losers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported this morning that economic activity plunged at a 9.1 percent annual rate in the second quarter.

But that showing in the inflation-adjusted gross national product figures was about what had been expected. Lately, economists have been talking of a revival in business as early as this fall.

The market's strength this week has also been attributed to enthusiasm in the conservatively-inclined financial community over the Republicans' nomination of Ronald Reagan for president.

Point-plus gainers among the blue chip and glamor stocks included Procter & Gamble, up 1 at 76 1/2; Merck, up 1 1/4 at 76 1/2, and Alcoa, ahead 2 1/2 at 65. Alcoa reported higher second quarter earnings on Thursday.

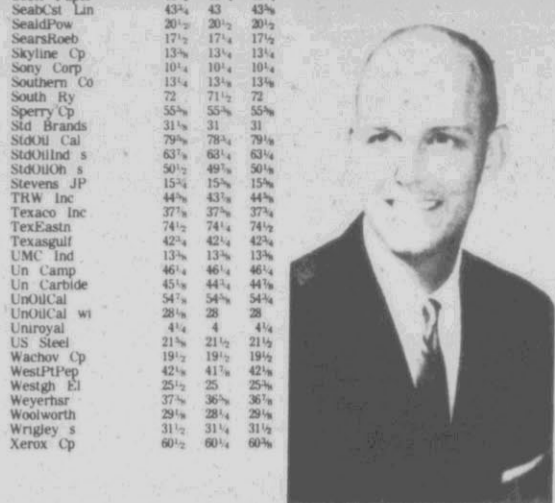

The NYSE's composite index rose .30 to 69.83. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .52 at 313.42.

Volume on the Big Board reached 28.43 million shares by noon, against 21.38 million at the same point Thursday.

New Library Chairman

A new chairman and vice-chairman were elected to the board of trustees of Sheppard Memorial Library at the board's July meeting Thursday night.

Dr. J. E. CLEMENT

Dr. J. E. Clement was elected the new chairman, succeeding Wilton R. Duke, Jr. of Farmville. Another Greenville resident, Mrs. Janice (Walter) Faulkner, was elected vice-chairman. She succeeds Mrs. Marjorie Dunn of Winterville.

Both Clement and Faulkner will serve two-year terms in office.

Reported Crime In N.C. Jumped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Reported crime jumped 12.4 percent in North Carolina during 1979, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Thursday.

Statistical crime had increased only 15 percent during the previous five years, Edmisten said, noting that losses from crime probably would exceed $250 million annually.

Edmisten's report listed 240,970 criminal cases reported during the year. The largest increase was in robbery, which showed an increase of 17.3 percent.

"Approximately two murders, three rapes, 12 robberies, 51 aggravated assaults, 196 burglaries, 363 larcenies and 34 motor vehicle thefts occurred on the average day in North Carolina last year," Edmisten said.

Salyut 6 To Be Visible In N.C.

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — The Soviet space lab Salyut 6, in an orbit about 200 miles above the earth's surface, will be visible to the naked eye over western North Carolina on July 25, according to Dr. Tom Rokoske of Appalachian State University.

Rokoske said the lab will appear as a moderately bright star moving rapidly southwest to northwest and should be visible for at least two minutes. The best viewing time will be about 9:56 p.m., he said.

Child Dies Of Neck Injury

FALKLAND — The Pitt County Medical Examiner has ruled that a neck injury caused the death Thursday of an infant at a rural residence near Dupree's Crossroads.

Dr. Stan Harris said this morning that the matter by which Kenyatta Bowers received the neck injury is still under investigation.

The Falkland Rescue Squad responded to the call, which was reported to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department at 12:10 p.m.

The infant, nearly five months old, according to the medical examiner, was the foster child of Reta McDaniels of Falkland.

Trio To Represent Area In Boys Game

Related story, page 10

By LARRY SULLIVAN
Reflector Sports Writer

If local products have anything to do about it, come Saturday night, the South is going to do it again.

Mark Shank and Wallace Brown of J.H. Rose High School and Jeffrey Cooper of D.H. Conley High School will suit up for the Confederacy on Saturday night's 18th annual Boys Home Football Game against the Union. They couldn't be happier.

"I really feel lucky to be a part of this team," said runningback Shank, who will be attending East Carolina in the fall. "We're all all-stars working toward a common goal — a win Saturday night. I'm glad I'm here," the former Rampant added.

Brown, an offensive lineman who will be playing football for North Carolina A&T this fall, is also happy to be on the team. "It's a real experience being on a team of all-stars," the two-time Division I all-conference player noted. "I enjoy meeting the different players. Most of them are going on to college and may end up being some of my opponents. I just think it's a great learning experience."

"It's just great," said linebacker Cooper, who is Elon-bound after a high school career at D.H. Conley. "I'm really looking forward to playing and winning Saturday night. It's a real privilege to be a part of this team."

While all three local players are united in the common goal of winning Saturday's annual battle, they are well aware of the obvious size advantage the North squad has in its players. However, it doesn't seem to bother them that much.

"We know they are bigger than we are," Shank observed, "but we're much quicker. We are going to have to get the lead out in order to beat them but I think we can do it."

"Our offensive line is much quicker which might offset their size," Brown added. "Knowing that they are bigger might give us an advantage. We know what to expect. They might not know that we've got more speed."

Cooper feels that the answer lies in the obvious. "We've just got to hit them and hit them hard," the defensive standout stated. "We've got to want to win more than they do. I think we can do it if we really want to."

In addition to the pressure of being in the spotlight on an all-star unit, the local products feel the added pressure of performing in front of the home fans in the friendly confines of Ficklen Stadium, where Rose plays all of its home football games.

Shank was frank as he summed up his feelings. "We definitely feel the pressure," he conceded. "We represent football in this area and have a lot to prove. We also want to show our home fans how we stack up against talent from all over the state. The pressure is really on us to perform up to our potential."

Brown seemed to echo his teammate's voice. "Playing in front of home fans makes us feel the pressure even more. It means that we will have to be ready to play when we arrive at the stadium Saturday. I know I will be and I think the team will be ready also."

Cooper sees the pressure as a mental stepping stone in preparing himself for the big game. "It's all in your mind. You've got to tell yourself you can do it and then go out and prove it. I can do it. We've got to be ready mentally as well as physically for the game. I think we'll do it."

Brown and Cooper will be starting in their respective positions for the South squad Saturday while Shank is expected to see a good deal of action in the game.

Despite the outcome, Shank, Brown and Cooper are three local boys who have done good.

Trevino, Watson Tied At Open

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — When the squalls sweep in from the stormy North Sea, Lee Trevino is apt to shudder and Tom Watson remembers freezing winter days in Kansas City.

But both men conquered miserable conditions in the first round of the British Open golf championship to score 3-under-par 68s and share the lead in a field that includes golfers from 14 nations.

Trevino is not a cold weather player and says he never has been. "I don't like the cold. I can't get loose. My back hurts." He said before the championship started. But when the chips were down and the tournament opened Thursday in bone-chilling temperatures and pounding rain, Trevino played steadily through the first nine and scorched home in 33 to belie his own words.

He explained that he'd expected foul weather, prepared himself mentally and brought plenty of heavy clothing. "God save me if it ever turned warm," he wisecracked. "I'd die... I have nothing cool to wear."

Trevino holed out on the 18th green more than four hours after Watson had returned to the clubhouse with his pace-setting performance.

Watson said nobody liked playing in the rain, but he made a point of working on his game while wintering in Kansas.

"I prefer 85-degree heat and shirtsleeve weather," said the No. 1 U.S. player. "But I practice a lot at home in the cold and the rain. It's not an intentional program. But those are the conditions we get there at that time of the year and I'm stuck with them."

Watson and Trevino each has won the British Open twice.

Trevino's late surge prevented Watson from leading alone at the end of the first day, the position he had promised himself. For Watson is a firm believer in getting out front and staying there.

His round was a model of control, out in 34 and back in the same figure. He notched five birdies and his only bad drive of the day came on the second where he pushed to the right, bunkered his next shot but blasted out to three feet for his par.

Jack Nicklaus, another top American threat here, finished five off the pace with a 73 in what he called one of those "rounds when you never really get going."

But British Ryder Cup player Nick Faldo went around with Nicklaus and reported there was nothing much wrong with his game. "Jack was hitting them solidly but missed a few greens."

Faldo returned a 69 along with Australia's Jack Newton, Argentina's Vicente Fernandez and fellow Britons Mark James and Glenn Ralph.

Ralph, a newcomer to the circuit whose best tournament finish is 23rd, could only record astonishment at his one-round showing. "I don't think I've quite come down to earth yet," he said.

The 6,926-yard 71 par Muirfield course was expected to play easier today.

Brighter weather was forecast with occasional showers, but temperatures were due to continue in the chilly mid-fifties.

Only eleven players broke par for the course on the first day and defending champion Seve Ballesteros was not among them. The young Spaniard, who won this year's U.S. Masters, held for a 72 despite some bad shots and his confidence is still taking a beating. He added however that he hoped things would change before the four-day tournament ended.

At one point, it looked as if Ben Crenshaw would get a share of the lead.

Coming off the 11th, the young Texan was two under par and going strong, but he dropped two shots on the next two holes.

Bunkered at the side of the green on the 12th, he splashed out for three but his putt for a four stopped just short.

On the short 13th, he was safely on the green but off-line and short with his putt. He took two more to get down.

Crenshaw, a runnerup in the last two British Opens, repaired part of the damage with a birdie on the long 17th.

His round of 70 left him right up in contention along with fellow American Mark Hayes and two British Ryder Cup players Sandy Lyle and Ken Brown.

Deju Vu: Ali, Holmes

NEW YORK (AP) — For the boxing community, it was a case of deja vu.

Here were Muhammad Ali and Larry Holmes hurling insults at one another, even wrestling briefly. Here was promoter Don King dropping one-liners left and right. Here was the formal announcement of "The Ultimate" match — Ali against Holmes for the World Boxing Council heavyweight championship.

If you get the feeling that you've been through this scene before, well, that's because you have. A couple of times, in fact.

Taiwan ... Rio de Janeiro ... Cairo. At various times the Holmes-Ali confrontation has been reported on its way to each of those exotic places. But it wound up in a familiar setting — Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, which has hosted nine of Holmes' last 11 bouts.

The date is Oct. 2 for the record $14 million closed circuit promotion and this time the details — including a reported $8 million for Ali and $6 million for Holmes — are in place. So is a $1 million down payment check delivered by Caesars Palace at Thursday's signing ceremony.

The date and the site had changed but the rest of the routine was familiar. King called the fight "an epic," and "mind-boggling." Holmes recited a brief poem, borrowed from Ali's repertoire. Ali recited a longer one and goaded Holmes, just to show he could make the champion lose his cool.

"I cannot lose," murmured Ali in a stage whisper loud enough to be heard all over the swank St. Moritz hotel, where the fight crowd gathered for the announcement.

"It will be a nuclear explosion," promised King. "It will be a war," interjected Ali.

"Knock out Holmes!" he said. "I'm going to knock out Holmes."

It was as if, the former champion, now 38 and away from the ring for two years, was trying to convince himself and the audience that he could recapture the magic.

Holmes, of course, did not buy that. Neither did his manager, Richie Giachetti, or, for that matter, King.

U.S. Absence Felt At Games

MOSCOW (AP) — Even in absentia, the United States had a very real presence at the Moscow Games.

The U.S. impact is felt by the athletes who sympathize with their missing fellow sportsmen and wonder how the Summer Olympics will be with the boycott — and would have been without it.

"The Americans would have had a very strong team," said Dennis Johnson, a coach with the Jamaican track and field team. "Their not being here will make it a lot easier for others to win medals."

And the American influence is strongly felt outside the sports arena, in the political dispute over raising the U.S. flag and playing the "Star Spangled Banner" at the closing ceremony Aug. 3.

On Thursday, the White House demanded that the International Olympic Committee refrain from its unauthorized use of the American flag and anthem, calling such an action inappropriate since the United States had chosen to boycott the Games in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The protest came in the form of a letter from Lloyd N. Cutler, counsel to President Carter.

"The United States objects to any use of its national flag and anthem at the Games in Moscow, including the closing ceremony," said the letter which was carried to the IOC by Wallace W. Littell, the U.S. Embassy's counselor for press and cultural affairs.

Monique Berlioux, the IOC's executive director, acknowledged receipt of the letter and said: "We are studying it." When asked if it would cause a change in IOC policy, Berlioux offered a stiff: "No."

IOC tradition dictates that the symbolic linking of one Games to the next be demonstrated by raising the flag and playing the anthem of the host nation four years hence. The 1984 Summer Olympics are scheduled for Los Angeles.

"This is our protocol and this is what we're going to do," Berlioux has said prior to receiving Cutler's message Thursday.

It would be a terrible irony for the U.S. Government if the Moscow Olympics, which the Carter Administration so desperately wanted to destroy, ends Aug. 3 with the flying of the red, white and blue while "Oh, say can you see..." strikes up in the background.

Proof of the pervasive "presence" of the invisible American giant is that some of the focus here has shifted to the closing ceremony when the opening ceremony is still one day away.

In preparation for Saturday's traditional Olympic pageant, the Olympic flame was to arrive here today at Sovetskaya Square for public viewing at City Hall.

The boxing draw was also scheduled for today. Alberto Mercado of Puerto Rico was expected to be entered in the 112-pound class, and there was speculation that two of his countrymen, who came here to help him train, would also be nominated to fight.

Luiz Pizzaro and Jose Molina said Thursday they would abide by the decision of Libertario Perez, the head of the Puerto Rican delegation, who arrives here Friday night.

Mercado, the 1979 Pan American and World Cup champion, could be the only U.S. citizen to win a medal here. There are several other U.S. citizens holding dual citizenship who aren't considered likely medal prospects.

Mercado is here because of sports; politics couldn't keep him away.

"What I am concerned about is sports and my love for boxing and I came here to box," said Mercado, who will carry the Puerto Rican flag in Saturday's opening ceremony.

Mercado's government supported the Carter boycott and withheld all funds from Olympic athletes, but the boxer received financial aid from Olympic Solidarity, an IOC faction that aids international amateur sport.

Besides the United States, the governments of Canada, West Germany, Japan and Norway, among the major nations, were able to persuade their Olympic committees to support the boycott. Some pro-boycott governments, like Australia and Great Britain, couldn't keep their teams home.

The pressure on the athletes who were bucking their governments was intense, and that divisiveness is mirrored by the mixed feeling towards the boycott here.

BOYS HOME GAME

DHC's Cooper, Rose's Brown To Start In Annual Battle

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

The preliminaries for the Jaycee Boys Home Game are over and the main event is nearly here. After a two-year absence from Greenville, the Boys Home Game returns to Ficklen Stadium Saturday night and both head coaches agree it should be an offensive show.

"You're going to see a lot of offense on both sides," says South coach Will Campagna, who is 26-4 the last three seasons at North Mecklenburg. "There's so much speed on both sides. It should be a good offensive game. Now whether there'll be a lot of scoring is another story. You can run up and down the field and not score."

North coach Walt Wiggins agreed. "I hope its a wide open game for my sake and the sake of those watching," Wiggins said. "That's the kind of game I'm used to at Rocky Mount. Basically, we were wide open there. We threw the ball 30, 40 times a game and I look for us to have a versatile attack Saturday night."

"I think the offense will be a little ahead of the defense," he added. "We've gotten everything in that we can in a week and it should be good game."

Wiggins also disputed the North's supposed size advantage going into the contest. "We're only three pounds heavier per man than the South," he said. "I used a calculator and we average 194 pounds per man and the South averages a 191 pounds a man. I've heard we're suppose to be bigger, but I don't know where they're getting that from."

The game, played for the benefit of the Boys Homes of North Carolina, returns to Greenville after two years in Raleigh. The previous 18 years the game was played here but when Ficklen Stadium was being renovated it moved to the capital city. This year's game, as always, features some of the best football players in North Carolina.

Both squads will run a pro-style offense, with the South set to open with two tight ends and a flanker. The North will use a split end. On defense, according to the special rules for the game, both squads will use a 3-2-4. As in most all-star games, blitzing and stunting will not be allowed.

Pitt County will have two starters on the South squad: D.H. Conley's Jeffrey Cooper at linebacker and Greenville Rose's Wallace Brown at guard. Rose's Mark Shank is expected to see a lot of action at running back.

Coffman Wins Liberty Decathlon

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Bob Coffman could have been the last angry man instead of the winner in one of sport's toughest tests of endurance, strength and speed.

The 29-year-old Coffman won the decathlon at the Liberty Bell Track and Field Classic, an alternate for the Olympic Games.

The husky Coffman edged Nee Pales, a Raleigh, N.C., accountant, by 49 points in a grueling two-day, 18 hour, 10-event competition held in mid-90 degree temperatures and humidity to match.

You would think Coffman, a 6 foot, 3 inch, 205-pound former University of Southern California athlete now living in Houston, would be exhilarated.

He wasn't. He was upset that one of his finest triumphs came in a meet admittedly a showcase for U.S. Olympic athletes and other countries boycotting the Olympic Games in Moscow.

The 28 other nations on hand joined President Carter in his boycott of the games, because of the Russian invasion of Afghanistan.

Coffman, who spent a year training for the Moscow event while his pretty schoolteacher wife supported him, wasn't about to gracefully accept a copy of the Liberty Bell in lieu of a possible gold medal at the Olympics.

"The Liberty Bell Track Meet is just somebody's self-serving idea to honor the athletes," said Coffman sullenly.

"I'm 29, been playing for 10 years. I think it's about time to get a job," said Coffman, alluding to the fact that by the time the next Olympics rolls around he'll be too old for his specialty, the decathlon.

Coffman didn't win by all that much. He finished 49 points ahead of Pales - 8,058-8,009. He finished a staggering third in the 1,500-meter run, the final event on the program, to salvage his triumph. Pales won the race.

Coffman wouldn't admit it, but he might have been soured by the fact that Guido Kratschmer, the West German with the pending world record for the decathlon (8,649 last month) pulled out after seven events. Kratschmer quit after fouling three times in the discus.

Kratschmer went home after saying he simply wasn't motivated by the meet.

New IOC Team Will Try Saving Games

MOSCOW (AP) - A largely new team will put out in rough seas when the Moscow Games end to try to save the Olympic movement from disaster.

The inner cabinet of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), elected here in the last two days, has a fresh look and has to prove itself as it grapples with the problems that threaten to swamp the Olympic Games' ideals in an sea of politics.

The XXII Olympic Games in Moscow have been undermined by a political boycott by 36 nations following the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. This is the most critical hour in Olympics history since the late Baron Pierre de Coubertin started the modern Games in 1896.

How well equipped is the new leadership to deal with current problems?

The nine-man leadership group of the IOC has little connection with major sporting countries. This is how it looks: President: Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain, 60, his country's ambassador in Moscow, who has participated in many sports but was never near to Olympic standards.

Vice-presidents: Vitaly

Putt Putt Roundup

Robert Higgins came from two shots down in the first round to win the Thursday Nite Amateur Tournament with a 36-hole total of 59 at the Greenville Putt Putt Golf Course.

Ron Hughes' 27 led the way after the first round with Higgins' 29 gaining a tie for second with Donnie Heath.

While Hughes and Heath struggled in the second round, Higgins carded a 30 to finish six strokes ahead and win his first tournament.

Hughes' 65 placed him second while Jay Wynne finished fourth with a 68.

Karen Evanski won the women's division with an 81 while Susan Mann was second with an 84.

Smirnov, 45, the Soviet Union, a man with no personal competitive sporting background; Masaji Kiwakaya of Japan, 67, an Olympic gold medalist in swimming (1932) and former secretary of the International Swimming Federation, and Louis Guirandou-N'Diaye, 57, Ivory Coast, his country's ambassador in Canada, a former international judoist.

Executive board: Lance Cross, New Zealand, 68, a retired television executive. He ran for president, but received scanty support and withdrew before the voting; Alexandru Siperco, Romania, 60. He has been a sports administrator in the Communist framework of his country's affairs. He has gone in for swimming, shooting and tennis, but not at an international level; Virgilio de Leon, Panama, 66. A fun-loving and likeable man, who has fenced and played water polo in the Central American and Caribbean Games; Ashwini Kumar, India, 59. He attained national level in field hockey, boxing, rowing and track, but not Olympic level. He writes poetry in English and Urdu and is liable to break into poetry in the midst of conversations on sport. Prince Alexander de Merode, Belgium, 46. One of the diminishing number of titled men in the IOC, which was once dominated by princes, barons and lords. He has made a deep study of drugs and heads the Medical Commission, which has led the campaign against anabolic steroids, the banned body building drug.

Samaranch, a quiet man of few words, is a very different personality from the outgoing president Lord Killanin, who likes a joke and performs at news conferences with flair and good humor.

The new president is a charming and courteous man to those who know him. But some IOC members have said in the last few days they do not really know him at all. He tends to be aloof.

The elections in the last few days have been held in a slightly political atmosphere.

Come To CHURCH

Gospel Expo Next Friday

York Memorial A.M.E. Lion Church will hold its first annual Gospel Expo next Friday night at York Memorial Church. The program will feature an exposition of local accomplished soloists and gospel singing groups.

A special workshop choir has been formed for the "Gospel Expo" consisting of new and recent gospel selections from a recent music convention.

Headliners of the program include local recording star and gospel singer Barbara Rogers. She will also perform with Rev. Dave Hammond, Mrs. Wyna Payton and Sandra Moore of Wells Chapel Church of God in Christ, Mrs. Molly Small of Mt. Mariah in Farmville, Mary and Carolyn Streeter of the Interdenominational Choir of Farmville, Rev. Thorbs of St. Paul A.M.E. Lion Church, Tarboro, Mrs. Lillie Parker of Phillippi Baptist Church, Simpson, Mrs. Rosa Harris of The Gospelaire, Rev. Jasper Suggs of Cedar Grove Church, Mrs. Eve Roger of Holy Trinity and the Wootenaires.

Johnny Wooten, Sandra Moore, and Roger Ingram will serve as accompanists for The Expo and The Combined Mass Choirs of York Memorial will also appear. The program also includes percussionists and instrumentalists.

There is no admission to the program, and the public is invited to attend.

In ceremonies at St. James Church, the covenant was signed by Episcopal Bishop Morgan Porteus and Roman Catholic Bishop Daniel P. Reilly of Norwich, Conn.

Described as one of the first such diocesanwide agreements in the country, the covenant affects about 3,000 people in 75 Catholic and 35 Episcopal parishes in eastern Connecticut.

It pledges members of the two traditions to join in worship services on special occasions, share facilities, work together for social justice and seek mutual understanding through study both by clergy and laity.

However, sharing in Holy Communion remains forbidden by the Vatican.

Martha "Sugarboat" Collier will speak Sunday at 8 p.m.

The public is invited to both services, says the pastor, the Rev. Matthew Best.

The Senior Ushers of Rock Spring Church will celebrate their anniversary Sunday at 7 p.m., with Eldress Phyllis Watts as speaker.

The public is invited, according to the pastor, Bishop W. L. Phillips.

The Home Mission Circle will meet at 6 p.m. at the church.

Bishops Named By Methodists

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Roy C. Clark of Nashville, Tenn., and the Rev. Carlton P. Minnick Jr. of Alexandria, Va., were elected Thursday as bishops of the United Methodist Church.

Their assignments were to be announced on Friday at the church's Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference, which ends Saturday.

The assignments will be for the next four years, and the bishops will assume their new positions on Sept. 1.

On Wednesday, delegates chose Dr. Paul A. Duffey of Montgomery, Ala., to fill another vacancy among the region's bishops.

The bishops are among 16 being elected across the nation to replace men who are retiring this year.

Clark has served as a delegate to two General Conferences and as a member of the World Methodist Council.

In Nashville, he has served on the board of the Council of Community Services and on the board of the Academy of Medicine. He is president of the Ecumenical Association for Christian Training and Service.

Minnick, 52, is superintendent of the church's Alexandria District and he has served his entire 25-year ministry in Virginia.

The following schedule of services has been announced for Haddock Chapel F.W.B. Church, Rt. 1, Winterville: — Sunday, 11 a.m., Sunday School; 3 p.m., The Mother's Board will observe its sixth anniversary; and 7:30 p.m., Joy night services.

— Thursday, 7:30 p.m., Young Adult Choir rehearsal.

SERVICES AT ANTIOCH — Eldress Lewis and her choir and ushers will hold services at Antioch Holy Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Sunday at 3 p.m. Eldress Mary L. Phillips will preach. Music will be provided by the C. R. Parker Chorus and the Prayer Band Choir. The public is invited, says Pastor Lewis.

MEETS MONDAY — Lydia Chapter No. 170 of the Order of Eastern Star will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Mitchell's Funeral Chapel, Mills Street, Winterville.

All members are asked to be present, according to Georgiana Patrick, W. M. and Luvernia Dixon, Secretary.

Heat-Related Death In North Carolina

By The Associated Press — Temperatures soared above the 100-degree level in some sections of North Carolina Thursday but a wave of harsh, rain-laden thunderstorms washed out the heat — at least temporarily — Thursday night and early today.

As the 90-degree plus heat continued, the state recorded its first heat-related death.

Marie Murphy Gregory, 49, died at Charlotte Memorial Hospital where she was admitted Tuesday, a hospital spokesman said. Authorities blamed her death on a heat stroke, adding that Mrs. Murphy's home was not air conditioned.

Late Thursday, a series of thunderstorms crossed southward across the state, leaving up to two inches of rain in Lincolnton, 1.2 inches in Charlotte and nearly an inch in the Raleigh-Durham area. A tornado also was sighted in Stokes County, but there were no reports of damage.

Large hail and heavy rain were recorded in Cherokee County. No damage estimates were available.

Salisbury and Taylorsville recorded highs of 102 Thursday. Hickory and Shelby reached 100, while Murphy, Charlotte and Hot Spring had readings of 98 and Brevard recorded a 95. Record temperatures were set in Asheville, which had a 95. Charlotte, Murphy and Hickory.

Grandfather Mountain also had an all-time high: 82 degrees.

The eastern part of North Carolina was not quite as high, with temperatures ranging mostly in the low to mid 90s.

Criticism Withheld

TORONTO (AP) — Officials of the Baptist World Congress last week declined to criticize dissident Soviet Baptist representatives who were infiltrated by agents of the KGB, secret police.

"We're not here to disagree with anyone," said the Rev. Robert Denny, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, sponsor of the Congress. "Our commission is to preach the Gospel, not meddle in politics."

The charges were made by a group headed by the Rev. Georgi Vins, a dissident Russian Baptist leader allowed to leave that country last year in a prisoner exchange. He has set up an organization with offices in Elkhart, Ind.

Leaders of the Soviet Baptist delegation called the charges "insulting and stupid." Denny and other alliance officials said they have no evidence of any KGB infiltration of the All-Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists, the officially recognized group in Russia.

Denny said Vins had been invited to participate in the Congress but declined. Another outsider airing similar charges was the Rev. Carl McIntire of Collingswood, N.J., who heads an international group of smaller, separatist denominations.

Sign Covenant To Seek Unity

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — A covenant has been signed between the Episcopal and Roman Catholic dioceses of eastern Connecticut to work, pray and study together in seeking to remove remaining obstacles to unity.

In ceremonies at St. James Church, the covenant was signed by Episcopal Bishop Morgan Porteus and Roman Catholic Bishop Daniel P. Reilly of Norwich, Conn.

Described as one of the first such diocesanwide agreements in the country, the covenant affects about 3,000 people in 75 Catholic and 35 Episcopal parishes in eastern Connecticut.

It pledges members of the two traditions to join in worship services on special occasions, share facilities, work together for social justice and seek mutual understanding through study both by clergy and laity.

However, sharing in Holy Communion remains forbidden by the Vatican.

Martha "Sugarboat" Collier will speak Sunday at 8 p.m.

The Senior Ushers of Rock Spring Church will celebrate their anniversary Sunday at 7 p.m., with Eldress Phyllis Watts as speaker.

The public is invited, according to the pastor, Bishop W. L. Phillips.

The Home Mission Circle will meet at 6 p.m. at the church.

Gospel message to fill your soul, thrilling music to lift your spirits. God's word to sustain and strengthen.

A REAL VACATION

They had waited for this real vacation — this long trip — for years. But this time it was different: this time he wouldn't be going back to his job.

At first, retirement seemed frightening, like being shut off from the mainstream of life. He had seen too many men age beyond their years, after their career ended. He had no wish to be on the sidelines. He and his wife could have moved to a warmer climate and just have taken it easy. He didn't want that. So, before he left home, he had a long talk with his minister.

He found that there was plenty a man his age could do. Financially secure, he could afford to volunteer for a job. In fact, through the Church there was work he could do that would spread to the farthest corners of the world.

Right now, he is enjoying this vacation. He is savoring every moment of it. Because, when he gets home, he's going to lead a full and useful life. And that's the way he wants it.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — POETASTERS REALLY ANNOY POETS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals N

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Two Reporters Killed In Crash

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two members of The Burlington Daily Times-News staff and a Charlotte man were killed Thursday in the head-on collision of two cars near Charlotte.

Killed in the accident were reporter Sylvia Smith Johnson, 43, and photographer Steven Lee Daniels, 24, both of Burlington, and Kenneth Dale Mays, 40, of Charlotte.

Mecklenburg County police said Mays's car and a car driven by Daniels collided on N.C. 27 about two miles east of Charlotte. Police estimated the speed of both cars at 55 mph.

Daniels and Mays were pronounced dead at the scene. Mrs. Johnson was pronounced dead at Charlotte Memorial Hospital from multiple injuries.

A spokesman for the Burlington newspaper said Mrs. Johnson and Daniels were working on an investigative article about the Ku Klux Klan and were on their way to Stanley, a small town in Gaston County.

Don Bolden, managing editor for the Daily Times-News, expressed shock and regret at the deaths of Mrs. Johnson and Daniels.

"Sylvia and Steve were professionals in the truest sense of the word and that's

Environmental Week For N.C.

The week of July 20-26 has been proclaimed as Environmental Health Week, by Gov. James B. Hunt.

This proclamation honors and recognizes all public sanitarians and other environmental employees throughout North Carolina. It also emphasizes the complexity of today's society in the environmental health areas of institutional and food sanitation, insect and vector control, recreational safety and sanitation, solid and hazardous waste management, air and water pollution control, sewage disposal, radiological health, housing, rabies control, water protection and purification, and environmental epidemiology.

Throughout North Carolina there are approximately 527 local environmental health officials located in local public health departments.

Supporting these local professional groups are environmental health specialists located in the Division of Health Services within the N.C. Department of Human Resources. The Environmental Health Section of the Pitt County Health Department is headed by Willie Pate. This section of the County Health Department is committed to protecting the health of its citizens by insuring private sewage disposal facilities, inspecting public swimming pools, restaurants, day care centers, nursing homes, and institutions. In addition, there is an active rabies and dog control program. The Environmental Health Section is also responsible for insuring the milk sold in Pitt County meets pre-established standards set forth by the Grade A Pasteurized Milk Ordinance.

Many medical health advances have been brought about by Environmental Health Professionals. The work of these people has made diseases such as yellow fever and typhoid fever a rarity in our times. And while the control of infectious disease in the environment has favorably affected the population, other problems, now require the attention of the environmentalist. Disposal of hazardous and radioactive waste presently is in the spotlight, but also needing control are the vectors that spread many of the virus diseases such as encephalitis and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

GOP Vision Of Victory Is 'Bright'

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Throw a crowd of Republicans together for four days, fill their brains with 100 speeches, build up their Reagan-Bush ticket in a giant carnival atmosphere, and they start to feel invincible.

"We're going to carry our state, you can bet." Like a drum cadence, it rolled off the tongues of politicians at delegation after delegation Thursday night as the GOP's 32nd National Convention ended with hoopla, hysteria and high hopes for the fall campaign.

If post-convention conviction measured up to election day results, Jimmy Carter is headed for deep trouble in November.

Talk to 30 state delegations and get 30 different reasons why Ronald Reagan will win their state's presidential election, or come awfully close in a state that hasn't gone Republican in decades.

Some states are clearly Reagan country, so the politicians are on safe ground when they proclaim certain victory.

"There is no doubt about Washington," said delegate Dick Derham. "Oh, we're going to win. Big."

"Carter never did well in New Mexico," said Sen. Harrison Schmitt. "And he'll do worse this time."

Then there are the southern states, where politicians are promoting the domino theory. Alabama will fall to Reagan, declares Jim Hicks. Surely, Mississippi will be next. And that leads to the imperponderable. Could President Carter lose his home state of Georgia?

"Now, I'm not predicting we'll win," offered a cautious delegation chairman T.E. Stivers, "but I think we've got a shot at it."

Some politicians appeal to blind faith, never mind that presidential contests traditionally are close in their states — New York State GOP Chairman Richard Rosenbaum: "We'll definitely win, no doubt about it." Illinois Gov. James Thompson: "You bet, we're going to win." Hawaii delegate Frank E. Cooper: "We're going to win."

In states where Republican victories are rare, the politician resorts to imaginative arguments.

In Minnesota, Republicans will exploit the guilt-by-association issue. Never mind that they love Vice President Walter F. Mondale there, "Reagan's got an excellent chance of winning," insisted co-chairwoman Marsie Leier. "Mondale is guilty by his association with Carter."

The GOP in South Carolina will work on the embarrassment factor. "I think we'll take the state," said Congressman Floyd Spence. "Carter carried it in '76 and they've been embarrassed about it ever since."

Massachusetts, the only state that George McGovern carried against Richard Nixon in 1972, could go GOP because Vice Presidential nominee George Bush was born there, figures Rep. Margaret Heckler. "For the first time, we have a very good chance. And that's a very rare thing."

Isn't there any Republican willing to admit likely defeat to the Democrats this fall?

Art Fletcher is an honest man. He heads the delegation from the District of Columbia, where only 9 percent of the voters are registered Republicans, and even a lot of them like Democrats.

Ask Art Fletcher with a straight face if the Reagan-Bush ticket will carry the city where Reagan hopes to become a resident, and he'll break into 30 seconds of uncontrollable laughter.

"Reagan may do better than people expect," Fletcher says, regaining his composure. "But he won't win in Washington, not by any stretch of the imagination."

Catalogue Of Reagan Promises

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Ronald Reagan said he would try to do quite a lot to change the federal government and the very spirit of America if he were elected the next president of the United States.

The GOP nominee laid out his plans in the acceptance speech to the closing session of the party convention Thursday night with pledges that ranged from domestic policy to foreign affairs, from taxes to jobs, for the specific to the lofty.

In tune with the central theme of his campaign, Reagan promised to cut back on government and on taxes. "It is time for our government to go on a diet," he said, adding that his first act in the Oval Office would be to freeze federal hiring.

He promised to push for a 30-percent cut in federal taxes, and added that he would seek faster depreciation and other measures to stimulate investment.

Reagan said he would find and root out waste and inefficiency in the federal government. "Any program that represents a waste of ... money... must have that waste eliminated or the program must go," he said. As a start toward identifying such waste, he said he would enlist the help of leaders in business and labor to examine the federal government and recommend changes.

New Source Of Heroin Appears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A major new source of heroin is being developed in remote areas of Southwest Asia and a Senate report warns the United States and Western Europe are targeted as prime markets with Italy as a connecting link.

The report said three large heroin labs seized in Italy "were found to be capable of processing enough heroin to supply a substantial portion of America's addict population and were apparently designed just for that purpose."

opium and its morphine-base derivative through Afghanistan and Iran to Turkey and Bulgaria and into the hands of international organized crime networks in Italy.

The report said three large heroin labs seized in Italy "were found to be capable of processing enough heroin to supply a substantial portion of America's addict population and were apparently designed just for that purpose."

But he also promised to preserve "the integrity of all aspects of Social Security." Reagan pledged to help put Americans, particularly minority Americans, back to

"The potential escalation of heroin addiction and related crime in this country and the reality of the heroin epidemic already raging in Western Europe pose a severe threat to the increasingly fragile social order of the West," the report says.

Prepared by Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., and the staff of his Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal justice, the report calls for tougher action by the U. S. Justice Department and joint U. S.-European efforts to break the heroin connection.

In addition, the GOP nominee said he would try to transfer programs from the federal government to state governments where possible, along with the money to support them.

On the issue of women's rights — a major point of controversy at the convention — Reagan promised to work with all the state governors to "eliminate, where it exists, discrimination against women. I will monitor federal laws to insure their implementation and to add statutes if needed."

On energy, he pledged efforts to promote production of more energy — the use of coal, oil and nuclear power — in this country, while lessening the dependence on foreign oil.

But some of Reagan's promises went beyond the pledge of a new effort here or there. They dealt with less concrete matters.

"I pledge to restore to the federal government the capacity to do the people's work without dominating their lives. I pledge to you a government that will not only work well, but wisely," he stated.

And he went beyond the government to the intangible.

"More than anything else, I want my candidacy to unify our country, to renew the American spirit and sense of purpose," he said.

McHenry Taking U.S. Appeal To Nicaraguans

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-level U.S. delegation headed by U.N. Ambassador Donald McHenry is flying to Nicaragua with an appeal to that country's revolutionary leaders to abide by democratic principles.

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said the message is to be delivered in President Carter's name by McHenry during a meeting today with Nicaragua's five-member governing junta.

The occasion for the visit is the first anniversary of the ouster of President Anastasio Somoza by the Sandinista rebel movement. The Nicaraguan government is planning a massive celebration on Saturday.

The officials said Carter's message will offer congratulations to the junta on the anniversary but also will make clear the U.S. hope that Nicaragua will not stray from the revolution's stated principles. These include commitments to maintain political pluralism, a mixed economy and protection of human rights.

Besides McHenry, the delegation includes Sen. Edward Zorinsky, R-Neb., chairman of the Senate Western Hemisphere subcommittee, and Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas.

Jeff Carter, a son of the president, initially was to take part, but officials said the delegation would have been too unwieldy with his presence because of the added security personnel requirements.

Nicaraguan authorities have invited delegations from scores of countries to attend the ceremonies. Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh plans to take part, but U.S. officials said McHenry has no plans to meet with him to discuss the 52 Americans still held hostage in Iran.

McHenry's role as delegation head was kept secret until Wednesday, mostly to keep the Cuban government in the dark, according to diplomatic sources. It was felt that Cuba might decide on its own representation on the basis of who the United States was sending.

There has been intense speculation as to whether Cuban President Fidel Castro will attend. As of late Thursday, Cuba had made no announcement.

Cuba has established close ties with the Managua government, having sent to Nicaragua some 1,200 teachers in addition to other personnel shortly after the Sandinistas took power.

Nonetheless, the Nicaraguans have maintained a working relationship with the United States. The Peace Corps announced Thursday that 29 volunteers, mostly agricultural experts and teachers, will go to Nicaragua this fall. These will be the first volunteers assigned to Nicaragua since the revolution.

The U.S. relationship with Nicaragua has become a presidential campaign issue. The Republican Party platform calls for a suspension of U.S. economic aid to Nicaragua on grounds that these programs serve only to promote Marxism.

Roger Fontaine, a Latin American affairs adviser to GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, said in a recent interview that the Nicaraguan government is using U.S. aid to help rebuild the country but eventually plans to join the Soviet-Cuban bloc.

The Carter administration believes Nicaragua's future political course is unclear. Officials say that essential freedoms remain intact in Nicaragua and that non-Marxist elements still play an influential role in government.

Didn't Turn To Actors' Guild

NEW YORK (AP) — Although Ronald Reagan rose to political prominence as president of the Screen Actors Guild, don't look for that organization to endorse the Republican standardbearer for president of the United States.

James McGuire, executive director of the New York SAG, was quoted in the Daily News today as saying, "We never endorse candidates, and will not this time, even though it is the first time that one of our members has been nominated for national office."
