City School Board Okays Budget In Action Meeting

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The 1980-81 budget resolution for the Greenville City Schools for a grand total of $9,868,753.78 in the current expense category, and $156,962.71 in the capital outlay category was accepted by the Greenville Board of Education at its action meeting Monday night.

Superintendent Glenn Cox, prefacing a discussion of the budget, explained that the formal resolution was in essence acceptance of the budget as approved by the County Commissioners, and that the budget action also constituted accepting the financial functions for operating the schools.

A breakdown of the budget by major categories is:

— Instructional program and supporting services, funded by all sources in the Local Current Expense Fund, $2,594,699.78.

— State Public School Fund, all categories, $5,535,357.00.

— Federal Grants Fund, all programs, $972,044.00; and,

— School Food Service Fund, local and federal sources, $766,653.00.

— Capital Outlay: (Totally county funds), $156,962.71.

Following acceptance of the budget, Cox presented recommended amendments to the Current Expense Budget involving a total of $795,543.02 of the funds. The recommendations, he explained, did not in any way change the dollar figures, but was a shift in line item authorization that was made possible by the increase in the amount of state funds over what was expected. Totally, the items in the recommended amendments represented an increase (and a corresponding decrease) of only $6,848.

After extended discussion of the recommended amendments, the board approved them, with Mrs. Terry Shank abstaining from the vote. Mrs. Shank voiced concern over being able to see only a shift in figures, and of not being able, based on the information supplied, to know which programs were affected.

In conjunction with explaining the process of fund shifting in the amendments, Cox reiterated that these amendments did not reflect a change in any of the cuts necessitated by the initial cut back of $456,000 from requested current expense funds. "The losses remain," he said, enumerating a number of the cuts made earlier. Among these cuts are $260,950 in the instructional program, which means a loss of ten positions as well as money for instructional material; $40,000 cut in the fuel oil projection; $7,000 cut for library books, $25,000 cut in utilities, a $9,121 cut and the loss of a position at the Central Office; $6,900 cut of a planned data processing piece of equipment; and numerous other cuts resulting from the $456,000 cut back.

One other budget action involved the approval of taking $7,000 from the current expense fund balance to be used for the athletic program. This action followed an appearance by Tommy Little, president of the Booster Club. Little reported that the program ended the year $5,173 in arrears and added it would have been nearly $10,000 had it not been for the money made by Rose High being in the state football championship. Little said it was a difficult matter to raise funds, and that donors would hesitate to give if these funds had to be used for basics like gas and transportation costs.

In capital outlay, the board approved a recommendation to add $10,000 from the capital outlay fund balance of $46,562. This $10,000 will be used for curbing and repair work of the track at Aycock Junior High.

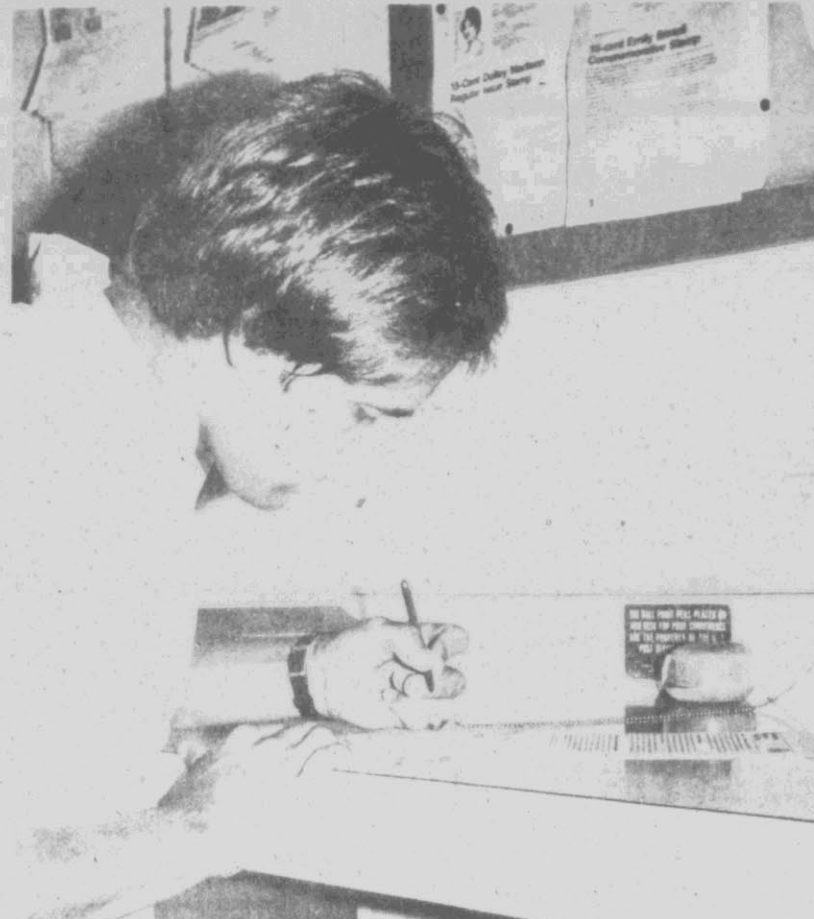

Authorization was approved for declaring the completed Live Project house as surplus property so that it can be offered at a public auction. The beginning bid price has been placed at $55,000, and the house will be advertised for auction at a future date.

School and lunch fees for the coming school year were approved Monday night.

The school fees are: General Instructional Materials fee for all students K-12, $4.00; physical education (towel fee) grades 8-12, $2.00; home economics fees — exploratory, $2.00, home economics I, $4.00, and advanced courses, $7.50; industrial arts — exploratory, $2.00, industrial arts I, $4.00, and trades and industry, $5.00; arts and crafts, $2.00 per semester; and business education, $10.00 maximum per year for practice sets.

Special Session

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly opens a special session today that is considered certain to end in adoption of a resolution calling for creation of a Palestinian state governed by the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the assembly will be unable to force Israel to comply.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim issued the call for the special session Monday after 87 countries approved the request for it filed two weeks ago by Ambassador Falliou Kane, the Senegalese chairman of the U.N. Palestinian Rights Committee. The United States and Israel opposed the holding of the session, but Egypt, their partner in the Camp David accords, agreed to it.

Kane's committee requested the session to get a new expression of international support for the PLO and a Palestinian state because the United States vetoed a Security Council resolution last April 30 calling for Palestinian statehood.

It is the seventh emergency assembly session in 30 years and is expected to end next Monday or Tuesday.

Draft Registration Quiet Here

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Kenny Jenkins was one of 282 Pitt County men born in 1960 who registered for the draft yesterday, the first full day of resumed registration throughout the United States. "It's all Greek to me," he commented as he first looked over the Selective Service form at the Greenville Main Post Office. He quickly filled in the information about himself, however, and presented the form at the Post Office window, where Postal Service employee, Douglas Teel, officially date stamped it and verified his identification.

"It all seems so unofficial," Jenkins said. "I guess they're just taking a roll. It's okay with me, though. If worse comes to worst, I'll sign up anyway — probably in the Navy. My dad and some of my cousins were in the Navy."

Jenkins is a rising junior at East Carolina University and is employed this summer by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

"It doesn't bother me," Karl Gatlin of Grimesland said. It's just something I've got to do. If I had to go, I would. I have a cousin who served in Vietnam and he came back all right. I hope I don't have to, though. Gatlin works for a local engineering firm.

Edward Carter, 20, of Greenville seemed not quite so resigned: "I'm against the whole thing," he said. "I'd go if I had to, but I wouldn't want to."

Carter's friend, David Payton, who said he'll be signing up as soon as he turns 18 on Dec. 14, was more verbal: "I don't think any of us should be being drafted," he said. "Let those that want to go, go. This whole national crisis, if there is one, is not our fault. Those people in Iran and Afghanistan brought the problems on themselves and it shouldn't be up to us to help straighten them out. Carter should've sent, my man, the Shah, back to start with, and we wouldn't have all this mess."

Payton and Carter agreed that women their age should be signing up, too. "They enjoy living in the United States just like us guys," Payton said.

Tony Sutton, 20, was accompanied to sign up by his wife, Betty. "I'm not going to let it worry me," he said, "but I won't go till they draft me."

Women should not be called on, the Suttons agreed. "At least it should be up to the individual woman," Mrs. Sutton said. "If she wants to go, let her. I want to stay home."

Mrs. Pat Benson of Greenville said it seems to her that the draft is necessary. "Our country has to have defense," she said, "and there's not much patriotism any more."

Her husband served in two wars, Mrs. Benson said, and her son served six years in the Armed Services. "It's not fun," she said, "but national defense is a real need that all of us must face."

Wayne Critcher, 20, said he's not in favor of the draft, but that he would go if he had to. His father was in World War II, he said. Asked if he thinks women should be drafted, he said, "It seems just, but I wouldn't like to see it happen."

When the Post Offices closed at 5 p.m. yesterday, 144 men had registered at the Greenville Main Office; 54 at the ECU Branch, 14 in Ayden, 25 in Farmville; six in Fountain, one in Falkland; eight in Stokes; 12 in Winterville; two in Simpson, none in Bell Arthur, and 16 in Grifton. The first phase of registration will continue over the next two weeks.

Leaf Prices Said Higher

VALDOSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Although prices were higher on the opening day of sales on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco market than last year, growers say they'll have to go even higher to offset rising costs.

"It looks pretty bad," said Anthony Crump, a Blackshear grower. "The price has got to go up, or else we can't stay in business."

Buyers, however, said the crops looked good. "It's hard to make generalizations," said a spokesman for the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., "but so far it looks like a better crop everywhere."

The Federal-State Market News Service said the overall quality of the tobacco, Georgia's fourth largest crop, was better with 12 percent of the sales graded cutters and 24 percent lugs, up from last year, and with less lower quality primings which totaled 54 percent of the sales.

Grade prices were mainly 4 to 14 per hundred pounds higher for lugs and better quality primings compared with the first day of 1979 sales. Volume of sales was heavy.

The nondescript grade and primings showed losses of 12 to 33 per hundredweight from last year. Those grades were also the ones that carried no price support under the 1980 government loan program.

Deliveries to the Stabilization Corporation under the price support setup appeared to be very light.

Sales grossed 2,954,414 pounds and averaged 123.14 per hundred on opening day last season. Stabilization receipts amounted to 1.4 percent.

Auction bid averages per 100 pounds on several U.S. grades and comparisons with opening day 1979 year included: X4F 154, up 14; P3L 136, up 10; P4L 115, up 6; P4F 116, up 4; P5F 88, down 19; N1L 71, down 25.

A Reminder

THE FIRST WEEK IN MARCH, 1980 — Remember? Snow was everywhere, the roads and streets through much of eastern North Carolina were iced and blanketed in snow, a cold nose and cold toes were commonplace. It was, for a brief time, an occasion for mumbled pledges of no complaints when summer brought its own brand of discomfort. After days of a mid-summer heat wave, a cooling thought is in order...THINK SNOW. (Reflector File Photo)

Bani-Sadr Sworn; Will Soon Appoint A Premier

By The Associated Press
To shouts of "God is great!" Iran's President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr took a formal oath of office before the new Iranian Parliament today. He is expected to nominate a prime minister Wednesday, after which the Parliament could take up the question of what to do with Iran's 52 American hostages.

Today was their 262nd day in captivity. The U.S. State Department said Monday the Iranian prosecutor-general's office claimed it has no record showing the revolutionary government was holding a 53rd American, free-lance journalist Cynthia Dwyer of Buffalo, N.Y. But officials in Washington said the department still believes she is held in Iran and has asked urgently for clarification.

Mrs. Dwyer was arrested May 5, and the Iranian Foreign Ministry confirmed four days later that she had been detained. State Department officials said it was possible she was being held by one of the vigilante-style Islamic courts that mushroomed after the overthrow of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

"It's distressing, but we have to hope she'll turn up," said Mrs. Dwyer's husband, John, an English professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo. The couple have three children.

Bani-Sadr was elected president last Jan. 25, and was sworn into office by revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini 10 days later. But the new Iranian constitution requires that he take the oath before the Parliament, or Majlis, which did not become fully functional until Sunday, with the election of militant Moslem cleric Hojjatoleslam Ali Akbar Rafsanjani as speaker.

The president vowed to defend Iran's Islamic republican system and "to devote myself to serve the people and promote the country," said a report by the official Iranian news agency Pars.

At the end of the brief ceremony, Majlis deputies shouted, "Allahu Akbar!" — "God is great."

Bani-Sadr has not revealed his choice for prime minister. The nominee must be approved by the Majlis. (Please turn to Page 8)

Cyclist Dies In Monday Wreck

A Greenville man was killed Monday afternoon when his motorcycle collided with a farm tractor on highway 33 west of Greenville.

Ronnie Wayne Benson, 25, of Lot 39, Shady Knoll Trailer Park, died from injuries sustained in the accident.

According to the North Carolina Highway Patrol, Benson was traveling west on highway 33 when a farm tractor driven by Isaac Dancy of Rt. 4, Greenville, allegedly made a left turn in front of Benson's 1979 Honda. The vehicles collided head-on.

The Highway Patrol said Dancy was charged with failure to yield right of way and death by vehicle.

The accident occurred at 5:45 p.m., 1.2 miles west of Greenville.

Enter Pleas For Terrorist Gang

CHICAGO (AP) — Innocent pleas to weapons and conspiracy charges have been entered on behalf of eight alleged members of F.A.L.N., a Puerto Rican terrorist group.

Circuit Court Judge Francis Mahon entered the pleas Monday and scheduled the trial to start next Monday. The defendants — arrested in April in Evanston — have refused to answer the judge's questions on whether they want court-appointed attorneys.

Open Hearings On A Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is asking Congress to resist the appeal of an election-year tax cut despite new forecasts of rising unemployment.

The House Ways and Means Committee arranged to hear from Treasury Secretary G. William Miller as it opened hearings today on the need for a tax reduction that would take effect early next year.

The hearings were scheduled after Republicans and their presidential nominee, Ronald Reagan, called for passage this summer of a $36 billion tax cut which would reduce individual income tax rates an average of 10 percent starting Jan. 1.

President Carter and his advisers say any action to reduce taxes should be delayed until next year, when they predict the current recession will have reached bottom and a recovery will have started.

The president met with congressional leaders today but there were differing reports on whether a consensus was reached on a 1981 tax cut.

Sen. Russell Long, who favors a tax cut beginning Jan. 1, told reporters after the meeting that "we are not at war or at odds — perhaps we will coalesce."

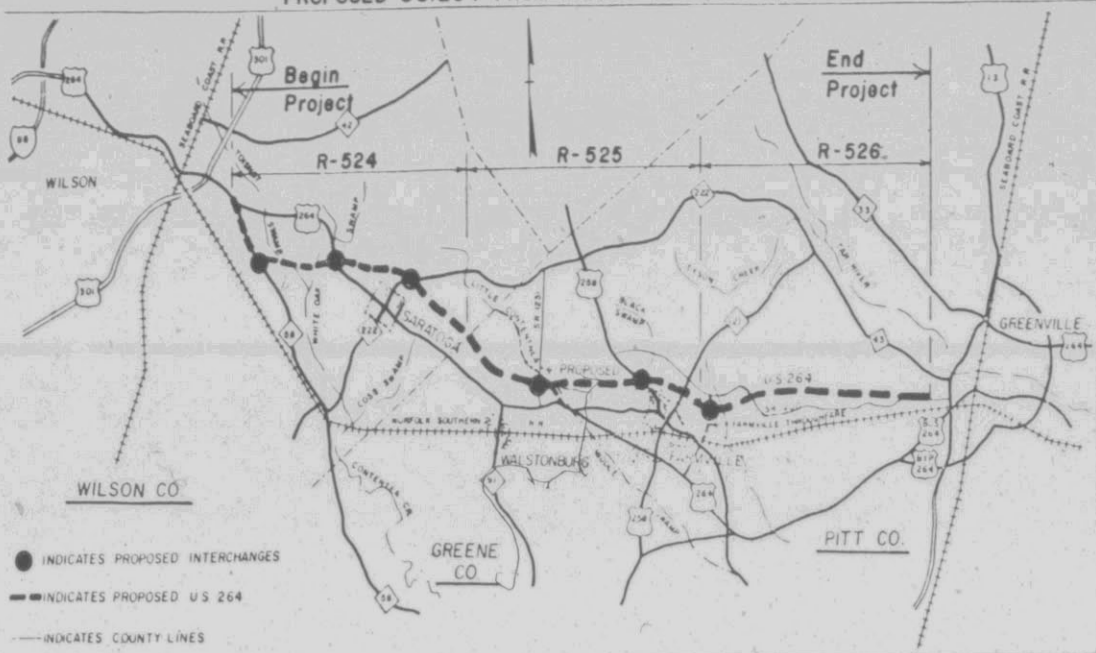

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., said in a separate interview that "the basic consensus of the group" was that there would be no stampede "into any political tax cut."

"So a political tax cut is basically out," Ford reported.

Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he believed a tax withholding reduction should begin Jan. 1 "and that we ought to do something about depreciation and that ought to apply to orders that are being placed now." He would not say how large a tax cut he favors.

He described the sentiments at the meeting by saying, "We weren't in total agreement, but we weren't in total disagreement either."

Dilemma In France On Terrorists' Activities

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) - Growing Mideast terror on Paris streets has put President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's government in a painful dilemma.

A glance at the headlines in the Paris press reflected the problem and the indignation the French have felt since Friday's abortive attempt to gun down former Iranian Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar and Monday's assassination of exiled Syrian opposition leader Salah Eddin al-Bitar.

"Police enraged," headlined France-Soir. "Crisis Between Paris and Tehran," headlined Le Matin. Under the banner "Blackmail Against France," Le Figaro reported threats by the "Guardians of the Revolution" to attack French interests in the Middle East unless five alleged would-be assassins of Bakhtiar are released.

In a front-page editorial headlined "The New Enemy," Le Monde noted with irony how fast the attitudes of Iran's new leaders have turned. Some 17 months ago, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini was paying tribute to France for allowing him to organize the final push of his crusade against Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from a Paris suburb.

The assassination of Bitar, former premier of Syria and a leading theoretician of Arab nationalism, appeared certain to increase French anger.

A gunman with a silencer-equipped pistol assassinated the 68-year-old Bitar at the Paris office from which he edited a political journal called Arab Renaissance.

Arab sources speculated the killing meant to cripple opposition among Syrian exiles to the government of President Hafez Assad. The sources said Bitar was considered the most likely person to head a new drive to unify all the various movements opposed to the Damascus regime.

Bitar's killing came amid reports Assad has sent out teams of killers to liquidate opponents abroad.

Bitar was foreign minister in Syria in 1957, served as vice premier of the short-lived 1958-62 merger between Egypt and Syria, known as the United Arab Republic, and was prime minister of Syria from 1963 to 1966.

It was not immediately known how his killing will affect the political future of Giscard d'Estaing, who has been considered likely to be elected to a second seven-year term in elections next spring.

The French president has been a leading proponent of Palestinian "self-determination" and has been pressing his European partners to support a role for the Palestine Liberation Organization in new Middle East peace negotiations that would replace the Camp David accords.

His critics here claim that his Mideast policy, along with France's decision to supply Iraq with highly sophisticated nuclear technology and weapons-grade uranium fuel, are dictated less by ideology than by France's near-total dependence on foreign oil.

Terrorists Kill Officer

LOGRONO, Spain (AP) - Terrorists, believed to be Basque separatists, set off bombs under a bridge today blasting a bus carrying federal policemen to target practice. Authorities said one officer was killed and 20 others were injured.

About 35 other policemen in two other buses in the police convoy escaped injury, apparently because five of the eight terrorist bombs failed to explode, authorities said.

The bombs went off as the buses slowed for a stop in the town of Villamediana near Logrono, not far from the firing range. All the victims were on the last bus in line, which was virtually destroyed by the bombs. Investigators said the bombers had planted nearly 100 pounds of explosives.

It was the bloodiest attack on the federal police force since last Feb. 1, when separatist guerrillas ambushed a police convoy and killed six officers in a hail of gunfire and grenades near the Basque provincial capital of Bilbao.

Today's bombing came only hours after another terrorist squad, also believed to be Basque separatists, fired on but missed a police patrol car in Bilbao.

Afghan Rebels Report An Attack On Airport

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - Afghan rebels sniping and ambushing Soviet soldiers occupying their land today claimed they wrecked three helicopters and six tanks in an attack on an airport in mountainous eastern Afghanistan.

The rebels, under the name Islamic Front, issued a statement saying they killed six Soviet troops and two Afghan government soldiers during the battle Sunday night.

The rebels are Moslem tribesmen fighting a guerrilla war against some 85,000 Soviet troops garrisoned around this nation located east of Iran, west of Pakistan and immediately south of Russia.

Moscow's army tried to take control of Afghanistan after the Soviets last December installed Babrak Karmal as the Afghan president. They have ever since been trying to erase seattered but fierce resistance from the Moslem guerrillas, who according to reports, annoy the Soviets in the countryside as well as in the capital, Kabul.

The rebels claimed the airport attack took place at Alabad, capital of the eastern province of Nangarhar.

There was no way independently to confirm the report because Karmal bans Western reporters from his country.

The insurgents claimed also they killed a number of Russian soldiers and smashed tanks, oil trucks and armored vehicles in an attack on a town in the same province. They said they also attacked a nearby dairy farm.

Soviet forces protected by tanks rolled into two Nangarhar towns and dashed from house to house in search of rebel nests and arsenals, the guerrillas' statement said.

The statement reported the insurgents fought the Soviets at one of the towns, killing 11 Afghan government troops who accompanied the Russians.

Also, anti-Soviet Afghans surrounded and pinned down government and Soviet soldiers in the Helmund Valley of the Kandhar Province, the rebels said.

"As a result of one week's fighting, the rebels killed 50 troops, while several tanks and military trucks were destroyed," they said in regard to the Helmund Valley operation.

Because reporters cannot enter Afghanistan, reports on country's unrest usually surface in Peshawar, a city west of here on the Pakistani-Afghan border where the rebels staff make-shift command posts.

The latest guerrilla communiqué was issued there.

Christen New Jet Fighter

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (AP) - The Air Force's newest jet fighter has been christened the Fighting Falcon.

The F-16, designed as a multi-role fighter for both air-to-air and air-to-surface combat, was given the name "to reflect its power, strength, ability and versatility," said Lt. Gen. William Nelson at Monday's ceremonies. Nelson is commander of the 12th Air Force.

Conservationists Lose In Vote Against Whaling

By LEONARD KIRSCHEN
Associated Press Writer
BRIGHTON, England (AP) - Conservationists seeking a worldwide ban on whaling failed today to secure enough votes at the International Whaling Commission conference here to halt the slaughter of the endangered mammals.

Thirteen of the IWC's 24 member nations voted for a moratorium, with nine voting against and two abstaining. But the conservationists needed at least 17 votes, or a three-quarters majority of votes cast, to win.

The United States and Britain voted for the ban, along with Argentina, Australia, Denmark, France, Mexico, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, Oman and the Seychelles.

The Soviet Union and Japan, the world's major whaling nations who bitterly oppose any moves to curb their whaling fleets, voted against with Canada, Chile, Iceland, South Korea, Peru, Spain and South Africa.

Brazil and Norway abstained.

A Swedish amendment to vote for a ban but postpone putting it into operation for two years also failed to get the required vote. Voting on this was identical to that on the main proposal.

The IWC's technical committee reported to the conference earlier that a 14-9 majority recommended a global moratorium on all commercial whaling.

The Soviets and Japanese, who have major whaling industries, vowed Monday to fight "the tyranny of the majority" seeking a moratorium to save the whales from extinction.

The IWC, which began its week-long conference in this resort town on England's south coast Monday, also failed to reach agreement on how many bowhead whales, the most endangered species of large whale, should be caught in the Berring Sea by Alaskan Eskimos for food.

The committee's recommendation for a zero quota failed with 7 votes in favor, eight against and nine abstentions, including Britain.

But that vote was not considered final as the United States and other nations plan to bring the issue up again before the end of the conference.

A Seychelles proposal to allow the Eskimos to kill eight bowheads next year was also defeated and the Commission decided to postpone discussion on this until later this week.

The United States and Britain support, with some reservations, allowing the Eskimos to continue hunting the bowhead.

Richard Frank, leader of the U.S. delegation, argued that the Eskimos should be allowed to catch 18 a year, the same number as last year's IWC quota, until 1982 when the quota would be scaled down.

Frank stressed that the issue must be taken up later this week and laid if it is not settled Washington will allow the Eskimos to go on hunting bowheads under domestic U.S. regulations.

The IWC also voted to ban all hunting of the hump-backed whale, but allowed Eskimos in Greenland to kill 10 of the mammals provided they are smaller than 35 feet and not taken by ships larger than 50 tons.

Utility Bills Big To Poor

WASHINGTON (AP) - Poor people are spending four times as much money as middle-class families on utility bills and their problem is becoming "increasingly desperate" as they try to meet increasing energy costs that mean higher rates for home heating and cooling, a federal committee says.

The Department of Energy's Fuel Oil Marketing Advisory Committee recommended that federal programs to help poor persons pay utility bills be sharply increased.

The report, obtained by The Associated Press, said low-income families spent 21 percent of their income in utility bills, compared to 5.1 percent for middle-class families.

Congress is considering increasing energy aid to the poor this winter from $1.6 billion to $1.8 billion. The 36-member committee proposed spending at least $3.5 billion.

The panel's report, which updated a report issued last year, said the poor have lost $14 billion in purchasing power to higher energy prices since 1978, including $6 billion last year alone.

"These are losses in purchasing power over and above the rate of inflation in non-fuel items," said the report, which termed it "a crushing loss of income that threatens their very survival."

'Near Miss' In Tunneling

ROME (AP) - Thieves burrowing through tunnels built by the ancient Romans came within six feet of the city treasury atop the Capitoline Hill, police said today.

A police dog uncovered the plot - just a few days before the vault was to be filled with at least $2.5 million to pay municipal wages.

Other than a new tunnel stopping just short of the vault below the Campidoglio Square, police found no trace of the gang, but investigators were certain the gang was set to strike this week, the eve of the monthly pay day for city employees. Only a few more hours of digging were needed to reach the vault and cut through with a blow torch - a technique used in a series of recent strikes against banks in Italy.

An intricate network of tunnels runs under the Capitoline Hill, which housed the Temple of Jupiter and was considered by the Romans the most important of Rome's seven hills. Some tunnels connect the hill with the Tiber and the Colosseum.

Investigators said the gang reached the network through a manhole on the Capitoline Hill, then dug about a dozen yards to near the treasury.

Rizzo Disclaims Razing Order

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Former Mayor Frank Rizzo has testified he didn't order the August 1978 destruction of a house occupied by members of the radical group MOVE.

The house was leveled within hours after MOVE members and police engaged in a shootout that left a police officer dead.

Rizzo's testimony came Monday in a pretrial hearing for MOVE member Consuela Dotson. As he left the witness stand, the defendant stood and shouted obscenities. Miss Dotson is one of 11 MOVE members charged in the police officer's death.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Bargello diamonds sparkle on a boutique-size tissue box cover, made with acrylic yarns and easy-to-handle plastic tenmesh canvas. One of the easiest of the many needlepoint stitches, Bargello consists of long, straight stitches, each covering several canvas holes at once.

This is another of Pat's "Learn-a-Stitch" leaflets with charts for four Bargello stitches included. Pick your favorite — or make each side of the box with a different pattern. Construction details (all quite simple with plastic canvas) are given for a variety of gift, bazaar and prize items.

To obtain instructions for making the Bargello Diamonds tissue cover, send your request for Leaflet No. N-8720 with $1.00 and a long, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. K-8720 by sending check or money order for $12.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains the instruction leaflet, three shades of acrylic yarn and enough plastic ten-mesh canvas to make as many as four tissue box covers or a larger number of smaller items. Please specify your choice of any three of the following colors: light blue, medium blue, baby pink, soft yellow, jade green, light gold, brown, rust, eggshell, off white.

Bargello — also known as Florentine embroidery — is thought by many to be a relatively new type of needlepoint. In reality, it is centuries old.

One of the most often-repeated legends on the origins of this type of stitchery credits inmates of the 14th-century Bargello prison in Florence, Italy, with originating it.

While it is true that the Bargello, now a museum in Florence, was once a prison, it is not too likely that political prisoners condemned to die in dark dungeon cells were spending their last hours with embroidery.

Whatever the true story, many fine examples of Florentine or Bargello stitchery can be found in palaces and museums all over Europe.

While the basic stitch is simply one long, straight stitch over several canvas meshes, there are literally hundreds of designs which can be developed with this simple technique.

It is most often a repeating pattern with softly blended shades or boldly contrasting colors. The effect of the pattern can change dramatically with a change in choice of colors.

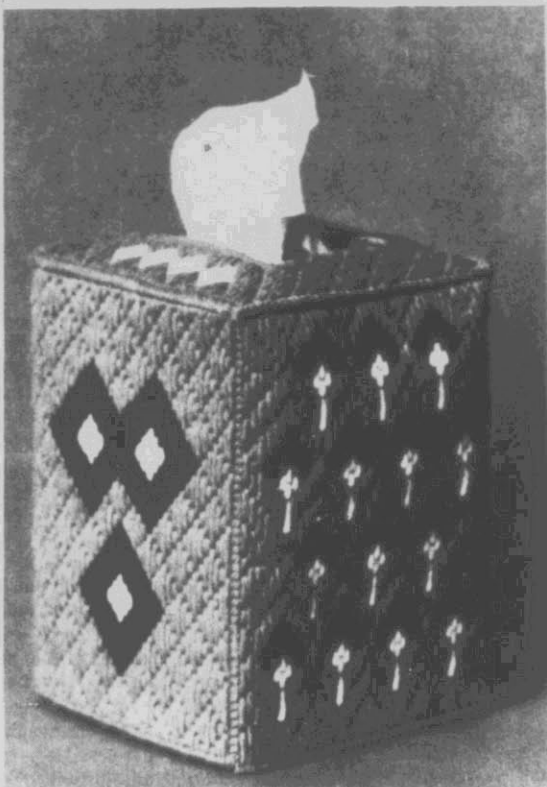

Once a pattern has been established on the canvas — usually with just a row or two of stitches — it is very simple, even for the beginner, to follow the pattern line. But there is always a new stitch or design to challenge the experienced stitcher!

Because this type of stitchery goes very quickly, it has great appeal to today's busy needlecrafter. And it has the same marvelous tranquilizing effect of more detailed canvas work. Perhaps this is why there has been such a resurgence of interest in Bargello.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

Barking Dogs Disturb Readers

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your advice to the Richmond man who asked what could be done about barking dogs: Calling the police won't work. A barking dog was driving me crazy, night and day, so I called the police. An officer came to my house and told me there was nothing I could do about it. He then suggested I simply trap or shoot it!

Personally, I don't think it's very sporting to hunt domesticated animals, so what's my next move?
PERPLEXED IN PLAINVILLE
(P.S. Abby, Plainville, Kan., has a population of about 3,000, and there's an ordinance here against discharging firearms inside the city limits, where I live.)

DEAR ABBY: If you want peace and quiet, away from the noise of barking dogs, don't move to Bel Air, Calif! They will investigate your complaint by coming out to see if the dog is being neglected or abused in any way. And if it is, they will help the dog and fine the owner!

NO DOG LOVER

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to the Richmond, Va., man whose peace was disturbed by barking dogs wasn't worth much.

"Call the police," you say. Really now, Abby, I don't know where you live, but here in Santa Rosa, the police will do nothing. Believe me, I know.

We've been forced to move twice because of barking dogs — once in San Francisco and once in Hayward. I've called the police, the Humane Society, Animal Control and the SPCA, and learned that dogs have more rights than people.
CALIF. DOG HATER

DEAR ABBY: You are naive when it comes to trying to get relief from barking dogs by calling your police department. We had that problem. I called the police and they refused to come out.

I called my lawyer and even my county prosecutor. I was informed by both that there is no law about barking dogs. If a person disturbs the peace or creates a nuisance, the police will come out, but they won't come out for a complaint against a dog unless it has bitten someone.

At first I talked nicely to the dog owner. That didn't work, so I talked nastily to him. He vandalized my property and has trained his dog to bark whenever he sees me.
HELL IN ERIE, OHIO

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to stick in my 2 cents' worth concerning one of the most frustrating of all frustrations — barking dogs.

At Wit's End

By Ermo Bombeck

I come from a family of pioneers. My mother invented guilt in 1936.

My dad dedicated his life to trying to get nail holes in the wall to heal themselves.

And according to my children, I introduced the word "No" to the Western world. (Before that time parents used "We'll see.") Their theory is that at first I only used the word to get attention. Then I started to enjoy it and today it's such a habit I say "No" before they even ask the question.

It's a distinction I don't deserve. I am not the first mother in North America to use the word "No." In fact, there is no doubt in my mind that when historians decipher cave markings of prehistoric cave dwellers and discover etched in a rock a plaintive, "Mom! Can I eat the leftover bear?" her response chiseled below will translate into, "No! I'm saving it for lunch!"

The word "No" is finally gaining the respectability among child psychologists it has so long deserved. Some of them are at last spreading the word that "No" means love and character building.

When I told my kids this, they said they already had more character than Mt. Rushmore.

They never understood me. They always thought I got some kind of a cheap thrill out of saying, "No, you can't drift down the Ohio River in a plastic dishpan," and watching them fall around over furniture staring at me with the contempt usually reserved for a mother who picks her children up by the ears.

I don't expect anyone to ever fully appreciate that a mother makes more decisions in one morning than the Supreme Court makes in three years.

"Can I borrow your camera to take to a beach party?"
"You want chaperone our three-day-two-night prom?"
"Can I pierce the dog's ears?"

"Will you tell me where you hid the book that condenses every novel ever written so I won't have to read this whole book tonight for my report?"

"Can I wear what I've got on?"

"Can't I stay here for a week by myself?"

"Do you want me to grow up hating you?"

I went shopping with my daughter the other day and as I pulled on a bathing suit I turned around and said, "What do you think? Should I buy it?" She shook her head and said, "No."

"Why not?" I demanded. "Because your entire body looks like it needs pressing in it. I'm saying no because I love you and it will build your character."

Somehow, it sounded better when I said it.

Reminder Is In Order

Last March Pitt County and much of Eastern North Carolina was pretty well tied up in chilly knots for several days.

Concern then was about keeping people warm, the availability of transportation for emergencies and basic needs.

Area snowfall ranged from 16 to 20 inches, depending on where one was located and it was cold. Really cold. Ice and snow made streets and roads hazardous for drivers and pedestrians. "Fender-benders" were commonplace; automobiles and trucks were often stuck. For awhile it was impossible for many families to even move their cars out of driveways, carports and garages.

Remember? On venturing out of doors one bundled up, but cold toes and a cold nose were commonplace. Only the youngsters loved it.

There were adults who promised themselves they would never again complain over the heat of summer; but that was a long time ago. These days, it's another thing.

Today's preoccupation is to keep just moderately cool, avoid heat stroke and sun stroke. We read of something over a thousand deaths attributable to the heat wave, and wonder if winter weather was really as bad as remembered. A picture from The Daily Reflector files confirms that memory.

Resurrecting the memory of our snow-and-cold season is timely today. Perhaps the memory will help cool the displeasures and discomfort of July.

Employment Will Improve

North Carolina weathers recession better than many areas, but the economic downturns have their effect.

That was indicated last week by the Employment Security Commission report that unemployment claims for June were 155 percent over June of last year. The increase was from 14,775 to 37,731. Claims were also up 19.6 percent in June over May.

There's no big surprise in the figures. There are a few signs that things might be improving nationally. As things pick up we can expect unemployment claims to decline.

THIS AFTERNOON

Best Way To Go

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is general public and professional agreement in North Carolina that community treatment in group homes for the mentally handicapped is the best way to go.

But when it comes to locating such a facility, the local attitude more often than not is, "Yeah, but not in my neighborhood."

In community after community, local zoning ordinances; fire, safety or health regulations; citizen pressure on governing boards — or combinations of these techniques — have stymied efforts to establish group homes.

Twice, in the North Carolina General Assembly, efforts to smooth the way for such group homes, overriding those local objections, have been defeated.

So far, says an Institute of Government expert in mental health law, neither the state governments, local governments, nor special interest groups committed to mental health progress, have been able to effectively tackle the problem of where to put group homes.

Here To Stay

"The group home movement is here to stay in North Carolina," reports H. Rutherford Turnbull III, who has researched the matter and written a major booklet published by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill.

"That is not to say, however, that it has been dealt with effectively or thoughtfully enough."

The resolution of the conflict also suffers from the absence of sensitive data collected in North Carolina "that dispel or confirm the fears that mentally handicapped people have criminal propensities (especially those who live in group homes and other community-based programs) or that a group home will adversely affect the value of neighboring property," Turnbull concludes.

It is here that Turnbull cuts to the heart of the matter. In an article published recently in "Popular Government" magazine, Turnbull addressed what he labels "Myths, Community Reactions, and Realities."

Group homes, despite progress made, "still face formidable obstacles," both legal and from public attitudes.

Resistance typically is on three points:

—Residents of group homes, whether adult or children, are thought to be inherently dangerous to others;

—Property owners fear that a group home will depress the value of neighboring property;

—Nonhandicapped people prefer not to associate with mentally disabled people, or at least not with those who do not already live in the community as members of "normal" families.

Myths

Turnbull methodically shoots down these objections

PUTTING HIMSELF ON A SPOT!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The Incredible Offer

WASHINGTON — The incredible negotiations between Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford began last Tuesday afternoon with an incredible offer from the Reagan camp: Ford would have not only the vice presidency, but also the post of secretary of defense.

The offer was made seriously. It originated with some of Reagan's people who have had little or no experience in Washington, which meant that the offer also was made naively. Nevertheless, in the frenetic atmosphere of a national political convention, the mind-boggling proposition got the attention of Ford's people. If Reagan were this eager to have Ford as his running mate, perhaps some workable arrangement might be found.

Under combustible conditions, the whole idea caught fire. On the highest authority, from an unimpeachable source, I can add a few details to the extensive accounts that already have been printed.

The idea of having a vice president serve also as secretary of defense did not last long. Superficially, it had great attraction to Ford's advisers. Such a dual role would give the former president an unequalled power base in Washington — a budget of $150 billion, a tremendous bureaucracy, a highly influential voice in the making of foreign policy.

On closer examination, flaws at once appeared. How could a secretary of defense simultaneously preside over the Senate? The arrangement smacked of British parliamentary government.

The Pentagon's budget would become a political hostage. It all seemed a little too bold.

But in the chess game that followed, the Reagan gambit provided an irresistible opening move. Late Tuesday afternoon, the Reagan people — not the Ford people — asked Henry Kissinger to bring his negotiating skills to the table. The former secretary of state was altogether agreeable. Kissinger at once discarded the idea of Ford as "Mr. Vice President" and also "Mr. Secretary," but he went to work.

Kissinger had but one motivation — the defeat of Jimmy Carter in November. In his address to the Republican convention, Kissinger had soberly emphasized his conviction that four more years of Carter would mean pure disaster in foreign affairs. If he had doubts about the workability of a Reagan-Ford administration, he suppressed them. The ticket, he believed, would be politically unbeatable. Time enough to worry about details once victory had been won in November. By midday Wednesday, shuttle diplomacy began in earnest.

At this point, wisdom deserted everyone involved. Ford wanted the vice presidency — and he didn't want it. He wouldn't say yes, and he wouldn't say no. There was the problem of Mrs. Ford. "Betty's not too happy about the idea," he remarked. Suppose they returned to Washington and she relapsed into the physical and emotional problems that had afflicted her in the White House years. "Could I live with myself?" Ford asked.

Kissinger brought Bryce Harlow by long distance into the talks. Harlow, senior White House counselor to Eisenhower, ranks as the most respected of all senior Republican advisers. He and Kissinger were constantly on the telephone between Detroit and Washington as talks continued. One problem was that the talks were never continuous. The principals never sat down in the same room to discuss the difficulties face to face. Lapses of two and three hours occurred.

The negotiators sought to define a new vice presidency, somewhere north of a ceremonial position and somewhere south of a co-presidency. Ford himself, through his representatives, raised the question of staff. He recalled the incessant problems that had arisen bet-

Other Editors Say A Dirty Business

(High Point Enterprise)

The future of a dirty business now hangs before the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. Whatever the court decides, High Point-area people have already made up their minds about the drug paraphernalia trade: they don't want any part of it.

That disdain is spreading throughout the area. Drug paraphernalia are items that aid marijuana or other illegal drug use. They are usually sold in "head shops." They are produced and packaged to appeal to kids. It isn't hard to imagine that they encourage drug use.

But what to do about them? Alone, the devices are harmless.

Last month the High Point City Council took a decisive step, outlawing the possession and sale of such devices. Davidson County is now talking about doing the same thing. The basis for local action is a model law developed by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration.

That law has been challenged as unconstitutional and now sits before a U.S. Court of Appeals. The impending decision is seen as make or break for the law and the paraphernalia industry, which is worth somewhere between $500 million and $3 billion a year in this country.

If the law is upheld, it may quickly spread throughout the country, wiping out a distasteful business. A citizens' group here forced a local business to get out of the paraphernalia business before the law here was enacted. The group's weapon was public pressure. It's a powerful one.

The problem is best handled legally, however. We hope the courts uphold the DEA law and its local offshoots, like the one here. With or without them, drug paraphernalia, like illegal drugs themselves, will be sold.

But strong and well-enforced laws discourage and reduce the use of both. And beyond that, there is something distinctly vulgar about grown men — businessmen — getting rich by selling such items to children. It's the exploitation of a national problem.

Parents can't sidestep their responsibility to deal with the problem either. Many in High Point, Thomasville and other area communities have shown they have no intention of doing so. They deserve all the legal support they can get.

Strength For Today

WORKING OUT SALVATION

The Bible teaches that it is impossible for us to achieve the salvation of our souls by our own efforts. Salvation is a gift of God. This doctrine is basic to all sound religious thought.

But once having received the gift of salvation, we have to work out that salvation to a successful end. This precious thing committed to our care has possibility for infinite growth and variation. St. Paul urged his followers to work out their salvation with fear and trembling. He did not urge them to work for salvation; this would be impossible. But having been given salvation by the mercy of God, he urged them to work it out day by day.

What does this mean? It means living a life so full of gratitude to God for what He has done for us that we attempt joyfully to obey His moral law, to reflect the loving spirit of Christ in the world, and to throw ourselves with abandon into every project designed to extend the kingdom of God among men. —Elisha Douglass

The Worst Really Behind Us?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the very same people whose policies brought us an unexpectedly severe recession, one they were loath to forecast, are now trying to convince us that the worst is over.

Citing a partial recovery of a huge loss in housing starts — one that still leaves that industry in a depression — President Carter said he is looking forward to economic recovery.

And simultaneously with news that the gross national product shrank at an almost unprecedented annual rate of 9.1 percent in the April-June quarter, the president's chief economic adviser forecast a turnaround.

Charles L. Schultze, who holds the position of chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in the midst of the bad news that "I think the recession will slow down shortly and will turn around."

these subjective views is that the worst of the country's economic troubles are behind it when, in fact, the worst may still be ahead.

In unemployment, for example, Courtenay Slater, chief economist of the Commerce Department, expects that joblessness could rise to as much as 8.5 percent to 9 percent from recent levels of just under 8 percent.

And in inflation. One of the most discouraging aspects of the latest quarterly report is that during the second-quarter economic collapse, the rate of price increases rose instead of declining, as expected.

The truth is that no turning point has been reached, no matter how often or how effective are attempts to sweeten the bitter facts.

The Carter administration isn't the only one that has sought to cover the evidence in a pile of hope.

Fresh in the memory, for example, is the performance of Herbert Stein, Schultze's

Ford Asked 'Too Much'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
DETROIT

Leading up to the moment of cold truth just before midnight Wednesday when Ronald Reagan finally decided something was very wrong, agents of Gerald R. Ford were engaged in an exercise they called "segmenting" the presidency that looked much like a backdoor road to power.

What Reagan refused to accept was the ultimate in a "Fordization" of the presidency that had been well underway for several weeks with senior officials in the Ford administration joining the Reagan team. In the frantic talks Wednesday night, they were trying to institutionalize that power in a future Reagan administration.

Unanswerable questions of constitutional propriety pulled Reagan back from the brink. But the exercise demeaned the prestige of the Republican Party's two dominating figures. Reagan, emerged looking disorganized and careless of the prerogatives of the office he seeks. Ford came over as relentlessly insensitive and perhaps vindictive about the man whose 1976 challenge he blames for losing him the presidency.

Two key figures in Ford's apparatus — Henry A. Kissinger and economist Alan Greenspan — asked for what was constitutionally impossible to give: operational control by Ford of "the national security portfolio," the domestic budget and the White House chief of staff. Although some Ford advisers felt Reagan had accepted this package, he never quite did.

"They offered Ford the right to name the secretary of defense," one Ford insider told us, "but that wasn't enough." That it wasn't enough was perhaps less the judgment of Ford himself than of his close aide from White House days, Jack Marsh. It was Marsh, the lawyer inexorably pounding out an agreement, who talked about "segmenting" the presidency.

But even if Ford was not aware of the letter of his negotiators' demands, they would not have squeezed the Reagan agents so remorselessly without encouragement and approval from the former president.

Ford, who could hardly utter a favorable word about Reagan in his well-received speech to the convention Monday night, has harbored four years of resentment about him, spiced with general low regard. That could not be wiped out in four hours of pressure-cooker talk.

The operation culminated a process that has concerned Reagan's conservative supporters, who fear Ford Republicans want to undercut Reagan's tax-cutting and national defense policies.

Bereft of experienced political talent since the sacking of John Sears as campaign manager on Feb. 26, Reagan has been taking aboard experienced and respected old Ford hands such as William Timmons and Stuart Spencer as key political operatives. There is no sign that Timmons was intimately involved in the Wednesday negotiations, and Spencer purposely kept himself out of these talks. But the role of Dr. Greenspan, representing Ford's interests after being named as Reagan's budget policy adviser, was ambiguous.

The prominent inclusion of Dr. Kissinger inflamed these conservative fears. Although there is no substantiation to reports that Ford wanted him back at the State Department in a Reagan-Ford administration. But for the man regarded by the right as a symbol of what was wrong with the Ford administration to be negotiating a delegation of Reagan's presidential powers was of questionable political wisdom.

Even if none of this represented a Ford putsch, the idea of restructuring the presidency in a few hours of superheated convention climate was dubious. One Ford insider with business ties commented: "If General Steel thought of any such reorganization, they would do a two-year study by Booz Allen and Hamilton (management consultant firm) before deciding anything."

Talk of Reagan as board chairman and Ford as chief operating officer reflected a desire by Ford to win the fruits of victory he dared not seek on the bloody battlefields of primary elections. But it also shows carelessness by Reagan about the august office. Indeed, amidst the euphoria sweeping the convention floor when the aborted deal was first reported, some instinctively knew it was wrong.

"If this is so good," asked Mississippi's National Committeeman Clarke Reed, who defied his state's Republican opinion by backing Ford over Reagan in 1976, "why don't I feel better about it?" John Buckley, the veteran Massachusetts liberal Republican, told us: "This is terrible, very damaging for Reagan."

Ultimately Ronald Reagan thought so, too. His supporters Thursday were rejoicing that he had the good sense not to enter so hasty a

Bank Opening Branch Friday

Branch Banking & Trust Co. will have an open house on Friday, July 25 at its new Medical Village office here, located on Stantonsburg Road near Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Tim Dale, manager of the bank's Greenville offices, said that the public is invited to visit the new facility from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. He said the office is the second that BB&T has opened here this year and will offer full service banking.

According to Dale, the Medical Village facility will replace the drive-in office on Memorial Drive.

Highlights of the day, he said, include appearances by Ed Emory, new head football coach at East Carolina University, and Myra Sexauer, well known weaver from Greenville. Emory will greet the public from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, while Mrs. Sexauer will exhibit some of her work and demonstrate the art of weaving on two looms from 2-4 p.m.

"We are pleased to offer even better service to our customers," Dale commented. "The tremendous reception we have enjoyed from the residents of Greenville has necessitated our expansion and we invite the public to visit with us on July 25 and to meet our guests and professional staff of bankers."

The Greenville SCORE office is located in the Chamber of Commerce building and can be reached by calling the chamber at 752-4101 or 752-4983. The assistance provided by

SCORE members is free to those desiring to start a new business or who are already in business but need management assistance.

A small business workshop to be held in the early fall in Greenville is now being planned. Announcements will provide the specific date and location.

Health Maintenance Plans Are Cheaper, Affirms AMA

By KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - Health maintenance organizations, those paid-in-advance medical plans, apparently deliver health care at lower cost than traditional health insurance, a report by an American Medical Association council says.

The AMA's Council on Medical Service reviewed 115 studies of HMOs, as the medical organizations are called, and visited 15 around the country.

About 9 million people, or 4 percent of the U.S. population, are enrolled in the nation's 233 HMOs.

The council said HMOs "are able to provide health care services to their members at a cost, including premium and out-of-pocket expenses, that is lower than that for care provided under the traditional third-party reimbursement system."

Dr. Robert T. Kelly of Grand Rapids, Minn., council chairman, said in an interview Monday that the savings do not appear to result simply from the fact that HMO members are on average younger and hence healthier than other people.

Instead, he said, HMO members get more of their care as outpatients, rather than in a hospital, than people under other health plans.

The report said it was hard to measure the quality of HMO care, but all indications were it was pretty good.

Dr. Paul Ellwood Jr. of Excelsior, Minn., an early proponent of HMOs, hailed the report as "the most thorough, objective and positive statement the AMA has ever made on any alternative health care system."

But Kelly said he is worried whether HMOs will break down the traditional doctor-patient relationship and encourage doctors to skimp on care to increase their profit. "We agree that HMOs cost less. But we don't really know why and we don't know what may be happening to the patient as a result," he said.

Kelly's council is recommending that the House of Delegates, the policy-making body of the 214,000-member AMA, adopt resolutions that recognize the savings of HMOs but call for more study of their weaknesses. The House is holding its five-day annual meeting here through Thursday.

Meanwhile, the chief doctors of two state prison systems, Dr. Armond H. Start of Oklahoma and Dr.

Jay K. Harness of Michigan, said requiring doctors to supervise or administer the lethal injection in an state execution would undermine medical ethics and make it more difficult for physicians to treat inmates.

"Ethically we are sworn to do no harm. How in the world can I be involved in an execution and not violate my own ethics?" asked Start, medical director of the Oklahoma Department of Corrections.

Proponents say the new law offers a more humane death than traditional methods.

Oklahoma became the first state to pass such a law in 1977. Texas, Idaho and New Mexico have followed suit, although no prisoner has been put to death by injection.

Stamped To See Princess

PRINCE ALBERT, Saskatchewan (AP) - They didn't man the barricades when Princess Margaret came to Saskatchewan, they destroyed them.

A small fence collapsed under the crush of hundreds of admirers who lined the streets to welcome the princess to the city of Prince Albert.

There were no injuries in the rush to get a glimpse of Monday's visit by the princess to the oldest permanent settlement in Saskatchewan. The tour also included a luncheon, park opening and a stop at an Indian reserve.

The sister of Queen Elizabeth II is touring Alberta and Saskatchewan this week during the two provinces' 75th anniversary celebrations.

Monday's visit was the Margaret's second to the city named after Queen Victoria's husband. She was here in 1958.

when his staff and the staff of Vice President Rockefeller. From Harlow came a suggestion: Could the two staffs be merged into one? The Ford people, fearing they might still be submerged, reacted negatively. They might yet be ostracized.

The day slipped by. Questions of particular individuals arose. What about Kissinger? He is anathema to the far right wing of the Republican Party. Kissinger tried to dispel apprehensions. He told William Casey, Reagan's chief of staff, that he would accept no official role in a Reagan administration.

Then came the now legendary interview between Walter Cronkite and former President Ford. Reagan's people, watching the colloquy on television, were stunned by what suddenly struck them as impossible demands. Cronkite's suggestion of a "co-presidency" had an ice-water effect. Kissinger struggled to revive the cause, but in vain. At 9 o'clock, when things were rapidly getting out of control, Kissinger urged Ford to sleep on the whole proposition. Kissinger was certain that an arrangement could be found that would be acceptable to both sides. If things could wait until morning, he was sure, Ford would accept. Ford needed plausible excuses he could give to Mrs. Ford. These could be found.

The big trouble, all along, was that Ford "just didn't feel right about it." In a steeplechase metaphor, he would approach a ditch and refuse to jump it. Reagan's people had a "talking paper" outlining various areas of authority that might be shared between the two men - the National Security Council, the Office of Management and Budget. Ford was tempted, but doubtful. He kept recalling his own promises to Rockefeller. In actual practice, they were promises that couldn't be kept. Finally, it all petered out. Ford gave a reluctant but final no, and Reagan turned to George Bush. That was that.

In retrospect, it is clear to most Washington observers that the bizarre marriage never could have worked. The dream ticket would have turned swiftly into nightmare. On the campaign trail, Ford never could have subjected himself to the secondary role of a vice presidential nominee; he could not have cleared his speeches and his travel schedule with the Reagan staff. His pride would never have permitted it. The two staffs would have been at each other's throats like Montagues and Capulets. The whole idea was grotesque.

But the principals and their negotiators perhaps may be forgiven their fantasies. They were living in two unreal worlds at once - the worlds of television and the convention. Reason rarely dwells in these temples. The significant fact, transcending the threatened mistake, is that in the end common sense did prevail. The affair hurt Reagan's image as a man of calm decision; it relegated Bush to the used car lot; and it gave the Democrats some ammunition. Years hence, those incredible hours will provide no more than a paragraph or two in a history text. Si transit gloria Tuesday. But it was magnificent folly while it lasted.

ues are adversely affected by group homes. There is evidence that both reasons for objecting have been largely dispelled in those communities where group homes have been established despite resistance.

But the third reason - one based on attitudes or prejudice - "cannot be dispelled by trotting out evidence that proves the attitude or prejudice to be groundless; attitudes and prejudgements of course can be changed by facts showing that their fundamental assumptions are wrong, but opposition to group homes grounded on associational preferences is not itself answerable by contrary evidence," Turnbull concluded.

marriage which he might regret at leisure, and they admired his courage in coming to Joe Louis Arena to inform the delegates. About the rest of the affair, not much good could be said.

Now He'll Grade The Reporters

NEW YORK (AP) - Hiding Carter III, who used to meet with reporters regularly as spokesman for the State Department, will soon be grading their performance.

Carter, 45, will be the anchorman of a public television series aimed at assessing news organizations.

He will also be the chief correspondent of the program, says Ned Schnurman, its creator.

Carter, who stepped down as assistant secretary of state for public affairs three weeks ago, is the former editor and associate publisher of the Delta Democrat-Times in Greenville, Miss., and author of a book, "The South Strikes Back."

Carter said the program, tentatively entitled "Inside Story," will report and comment on the way television, radio, newspapers and magazines cover the news.

"The press is an institution virtually all Americans depend on and it should be a subject for public scrutiny, as other institutions are," he said Monday.

AP Radio Service Turns To Signals Via Satellite

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press Radio network reduced its traditional dependence on AT&T land facilities today.

APR affiliates — radio broadcasters who receive an audio signal from the news service — were fed voice signals from a new network configuration using the Westar III satellite.

The new configuration uses both satellite and land links to connect some 600 cities to APR headquarters in Washington. The primary voice signal is turned over to Western Union in New York, which sends it up to Westar III. Westar III is the newest of Western Union's three satellites which broadcast video, data and audio signals to hundreds of earth stations across the United States.

Associated Press has erected 33 small (10-foot diameter antenna) receive-only earth stations in 33 cities so far in a program planned to reach 900 in 18 months.

Today, more than a dozen of these earth stations became relay points, capturing the APR signal from the satellite and feeding it into smaller sections of the telephone company land facilities to reach the balance of the 600 cities.

The cut over had been planned for 18 cities, but AT&T failed to complete the necessary work in several sections. The cut over process will continue constantly in coming months until all APR affiliates have direct access to the satellite signal.

The type of land lines that AP traditionally has leased from the telephone company provide a band of 3kHz. The satellite transmission is a rich 8kHz.

Roy Steinfort, an AP Vice President and its director of Broadcast Services, said, "AP has long understood that radio, especially FM stations, want and need that quality. Getting it to our affiliates was from the beginning a primary goal for our satellite delivery program."

Sometime this fall, AP will begin transmitting certain high-speed data services to newspapers over the satellite. The RKO Radio Network and Dow Jones' audio service are sharing the satellite distribution system.

David Bowen, AP's vice president and director of Communications, said an additional 25 cities were expected to be added to the satellite transmission system in August. Beginning in September, AP has plans to expand at about 50 cities each month.

AP has contracted with California Microwave of Sunnyvale, Calif., to furnish the receiving stations and related electronic equipment.

In each satellite relay city, an AP member broadcast station or newspaper acts as host to the receiving dish and provides a prepared site for it. Other members in and near that city use land lines from the receiving station to their locations. Members have the option of asking local telephone companies to provide 5 or 8kHz feeder lines from the earth station to their studios instead of standard 3kHz lines.

Bowen said that using satellite would cut AP's leased land lines bill from AT&T by $1 million annually for APR service alone. He said that the savings would be invested in the satellite program to purchase receiving dishes and pay for transponder space.

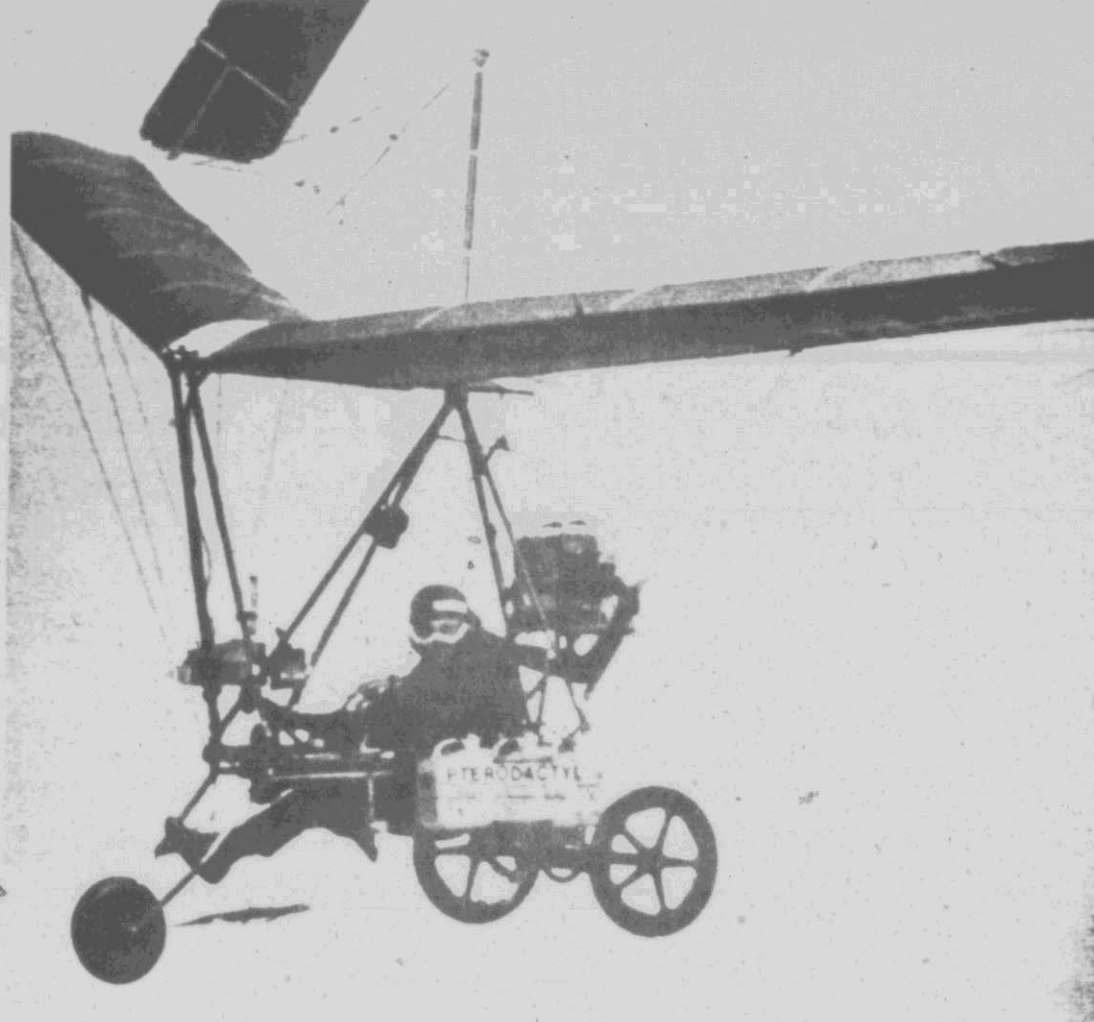

Earlier this year, the Federal Communications Commission granted temporary operating authority to use a power level from Westar III strong enough to drive both 10 and 15-foot receiving dishes.

The cut away today was planned for Albany, N.Y.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Boston; Cincinnati; Columbus, Ohio; Dallas; Detroit; Hartford, Conn.; Kansas City, Mo.; Las Vegas, Nev.; Milwaukee; Minneapolis; Orlando, Fla.; Richmond, Va.; Salt Lake City; San Antonio, Texas; Seattle; and Tampa, Fla.

Earth station installations scheduled for later this month include Birmingham, Ala.; Tulsa, Okla.; Denver; Fort Worth, Texas; Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Houston; Buffalo, N.Y.; and Rochester, N.Y.

Other cities currently receiving satellite delivery and also scheduled for cut away in early August include Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles; San Diego, Calif.; Miami; Baltimore, Md.; Fresno, Calif.; Washington, D.C.; Atlanta; St. Louis; Sacramento, Calif.; Dayton, Ohio; Philadelphia; El Paso, Texas; New Haven, Conn.; Indianapolis; and Louisville.

In addition to its more than 1,100 APR affiliates, AP provides services to more than 5,600 broadcast stations in all 50 states.

Motorized Hang Glider Pilot Caught In Maze Of Red Tape

BAIE COMEAU, Quebec (AP) — Eagle Sarmont and his motorized hang glider were reported snarled in Canadian red tape today, with a chance the bureaucracy might strangle his dreamed-of transatlantic flight to Paris.

Canadian Mounties talked to the 28-year-old adventurer from Santa Cruz, Calif., for three hours after he climbed out of his "Spirit of California" at 7:30 p.m. EDT Monday in this community 210 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Impending darkness forced Sarmont to land 60 miles short of the day's destination, Sept.-Iles, Quebec. He had taken off from Montmagny, 235 miles from Baie ComEAU.

Neither Sarmont nor the Mounties were available for comment, but Canadian radio reporter Daniel Tremblay said the Mounties were investigating a technicality when the question of the hang glider's classification arose.

"They were investigating something to do with...registration with customs in Montmagny," Tremblay said.

"Now they're detaining him because there is some problem with the legality of his machine. If the federal Department of Transport determines it can be classified as a glider, he's O.K. But if they determine it's a plane, he'll have to go back."

Tremblay, who noted Sarmont looked drawn and tired, said the Transport Department is expected to render its decision today. Should it give Sarmont the green light, he will still have to face the most difficult part of his trip — over the northern Atlantic to Greenland, Scotland and on to France.

Sarmont's craft has a 34-foot wingspan and is powered by a converted snowmobile engine that spins a propeller. It has a cruising speed of 35 miles an hour, a top speed of 55 miles an hour and a top altitude of 9,000 feet.

"The pilot sits in a sling-like seat surrounded by radio and navigational gear, and can turn off the engine and glide when the winds and air currents are favorable."

Sarmont left Farmingdale, N.Y., on Friday, spent Saturday night at the Basin Harbor Club on Lake Champlain in Vermont, and flew into Montmagny on Sunday. His departure Monday was delayed until a blacksmith made new metal braces for his machine's exhaust pipe.

Sarmont's goal is Paris by Aug. 28, his 29th birthday. Sarmont, born Joseph Carter Whitmore, has been gliding since 1972 and has flown private planes since the age of 14.

He said he changed his name to Eagle after friends told him he resembled an eagle in flight. Sarmont is the name of a mountain in a science fiction story.

Pretrial Proceedings In Garwood Case Rest

By MONTE PLOTT, Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Pretrial proceedings in the case of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood have recessed for a week to give Garwood's lawyers time to build an argument seeking dismissal of the charges against him.

The 34-year-old Indiana native faces charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during his nearly 14 years in Vietnam.

The defense on Monday told the military judge hearing the case that Garwood may be a victim of selective prosecution because he is the only former POW to stand trial. Garwood's lawyers argued that in 1973, when most POWs were released during Operation Homecoming, the Nixon Administration had a policy of not prosecuting POWs. That policy amounted to amnesty for POWs and it would prevent prosecution of Garwood, the defense said.

"My client here is the only person... being prosecuted after Operation Homecoming," said defense attorney Capt. Lewis Olshin.

The defense wants testimony from several former officials, including former President Richard Nixon. John Lowe, another defense attorney, said Nixon and other officials such as former Secretaries of Defense Elliot Richardson and Melvin Laird, talked about the policy of no prosecution but it may never have actually been written down.

Col. R.E. Switzer made no ruling on the defense's request for testimony from Nixon and the others, saying he wanted to hear arguments when the proceedings resume July 30 on whether statements from officials could be taken as a policy of amnesty.

The defense has said sworn statements from Nixon may be sufficient, but other witnesses would be called to testify at Camp Lejeune.

A key witness sought by the defense is former Air Force Col. Theodore Guy, a former POW who sought unsuccessfully to prosecute 11 prisoners released in 1973 for allegations of collaboration.

According to Lowe, Guy spoke with Nixon personally in 1973 and was told that there would be no prosecution.

According to Lowe, Nixon told Guy it would not be good "for the nation to go into allegations of misconduct in prison camps, particularly at the time of the wind-down of the Vietnam War and because of the Watergate problem."

Green Turtle Found Nesting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A 400-pound nesting green turtle — the first in North Carolina — was found Monday by U.S. Marine Corps security officers at a Camp Lejeune beach.

The turtle is one of several sea turtles on the federal endangered species list.

Although green turtles occasionally are found in the state's coastal waters, no known nests have been found in the state. Nesting normally occurs from Georgia south.

Dr. Frank Schwartz, professor at the University of North Carolina's Marine Science Institute in Morehead City, said the female turtle was photographed by the Marines as she nested beneath a barracks at the isolated Onslow County beach.

The Marines have cooperated with the institute to protect nesting turtles.

"This really has us excited," Schwartz said. "It's a real feather in their cap (the Marines). We got miles and miles of photographs of her, so we know for sure this one is a green."

Previously, only loggerhead turtles have been known to nest along the state's beaches. Loggerheads also are on the federal endangered list.

To protect the rare eggs from storms and predators, the 166 eggs found in the nest have been placed in an incubator at the marine institute. The turtles will be hatched and most will be released, Schwartz said.

A few of the turtles will be raised at the institute. A similar program, designed to give young turtles a better chance of survival, has been under way for loggerhead turtles.

Sea turtles are being threatened because they nest at isolated beaches, which are becoming more scarce because of development. They also are killed for food in some countries.

Deputies Burn A Pot Crop

LILLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Harnett County sheriff's deputies destroyed an estimated $1.8 million worth of marijuana Monday after they found the plants growing in a state park near Lillington.

County drug officer Jerry Lamm said 1,891 mature, 7-foot-tall plants were soaked in gasoline and burned in the county landfill.

He estimated the street value of the plants at $1,815,000. Lamm said the plants were found growing in clusters in a wooded area in Raven Rock State Park, about 15 miles northwest of Lillington.

Deputies kept the area under surveillance for a week before the plants were dug up, but Lamm said no arrests were made. He said there were suspects.

The find was not the largest in the state this year.

Minor Damage From Collision

An estimated $500 damage resulted from a 2:48 p.m. collision yesterday on Memorial Drive, 200 feet South of the Dickinson Avenue intersection, according to Greenville Police.

Officers identified the drivers involved as George Hopping Monteith of Fayetteville and Sheryl Denise Taylor of 403 Bradley St.

Damage was estimated at $200 to the Monteith truck and $300 to the Taylor car.

Senate Panel Weighs Probe Billy's Dealings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee will decide Wednesday whether to investigate the links between Billy Carter and the Libyan government.

The panel will decide whether to heed the call of Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., to look into "the role of the White House" in a Justice Department decision not to prosecute President Carter's brother.

Dole's request came in a letter Monday to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the chairman of the panel. Kennedy, who is Carter's challenger for the Democratic presidential nomination, will turn Dole's request over to the committee at Wednesday's scheduled meeting.

On July 14, Billy Carter registered under protest as an agent of the Libyan government at the insistence of the Justice Department. Billy Carter also has signed a consent agreement admitting his arrangements with the north African nation violated the Foreign Agents Registration Act and promising not to commit further violations.

Billy Carter said he had received $220,000 from Libya, which he said were installments on a $500,000 loan. The Justice Department says Carter worked for Libya in a public relations capacity; Carter and Libyan officials contend he did not serve as Libya's agent.

The New York Times reported today that the Justice Department has not actively pursued allegations it received last fall that Billy Carter's ties to Libya involved the president's brother in a bribery plot to gain influence for the Libyan government inside the White House, according to sources close to the matter.

According to government officials who talked to the paper, the Times said a federal grand jury investigation of the bribery case has not followed up on charges about Billy Carter's involvement. The paper Billy Carter denied in a telephone interview Monday that he was involved in the bribery scheme or that he had met any of the people allegedly involved.

In his letter to Kennedy, Dole claimed the Justice Department "did not prosecute Mr. Carter... despite available incriminating information" under an act providing fines of up to $10,000 and a possible five-year prison sentence for failing to register promptly as a foreign agent.

Dole asked that hearings should be held either by the full committee or the appropriate subcommittee.

Dole wrote another letter to Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, requesting documents about Billy Carter's activities. Justice Department spokesman John Russell said Dole's letter to Civiletti hadn't reached the attorney general.

Weighs Changes For Symphony

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

The new president of the North Carolina Symphony says he is considering extending the orchestra's playing season and blending "pop" music with the classics to get more people interested in the symphony.

He also says scheduling concerts at the state's major universities each year would generate more public support for the symphony.

Dr. R. Max Abbott, who was named the first paid president of the symphony in April, admits he has his work cut out for him with inflation taking a large bite out of the symphony's funds.

"The symphony may not be facing the brightest future right now," Abbott said. "We may even have to cut back, I don't know. But we are going ahead and hoping that we won't have to go backwards."

"I feel that getting people to like the music the symphony plays is an educational process," he added. "It just takes time for people to acquire a taste for classical music."

Abbott, 54, is well-qualified to "teach" the public about the symphony's work. Before heading up the symphony, he served as a school administrator for 28 years. He left the Fayetteville City School system, where he was its superintendent, to take the symphony post.

"I see my job as working to promote the symphony whenever I can and working to unify the relations between management and the orchestra members," he said. "And I'm trying to surround myself with people who can advise me and who can make decisions that will be good for the symphony."

Abbott's long-range plans for the 73-member symphony call for more work with young people, concerts on university campuses and more concerts in public areas — such as shopping malls. He said the players want to extend the current 10-month season to a year-round schedule.

"Right now, the season runs through the last of August to May," Abbott said. "We need to look at some other types of programs that could possibly lead to a longer season."

"Besides, we need new programs," he said. "It's not like we have a compulsory-attendance law. You need something to attract the people."

Abbott said mixing pop music with the traditional symphony fare may broaden the symphony's appeal. "We have to be realistic. This may appeal to more people. There may be an outcry from purists who want to keep the music traditional, but we have to appeal to a large group of people if we want to stay in business."

One of the main expenses currently eating away at the symphony's funds is transportation.

"When you talk about taking 73 members of an orchestra across the state — and North Carolina is a big state — you're talking about a lot of money," Abbott said. "And I'm just talking about the price of gasoline, not to mention the cost of rooms, meals and all the other things that go along with traveling."

The symphony is funded in part by the state, who allocated $2.5 million to the symphony this past year — about half the symphony's budget. The symphony generates the rest of its money through ticket sales.

Abbott said the symphony needs another $500,000 to add more members to the orchestra, to meet increased expenses and to upgrade its programs. "We like to think that there is support out there for the symphony and its work," he said. "And we plan more advertising to get the word out — that the symphony needs the support of the people. And when you think that the North Carolina symphony provides the only link some people ever have with classical music, it seems that support is very worthwhile."

Interviewed 2,013 For GOP Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Interviews with 2,013 adults on Friday and Saturday were the basis for The Associated Press-NBC News poll on the Republican national ticket.

Telephone numbers were chosen at random in such a manner that every American household had a roughly equal chance of being selected. The sample was drawn to reflect accurately the makeup of the nation by region and by city size. A procedure was used to assure the proper balance by sex and age, and the results were weighted to assure proper partisan balance. The number of weighted interviews was 1,847.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls based on about 2,000 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have talked to all Americans with telephones last weekend, there's only one chance in 20 that the results would vary from the findings of this poll by more than three percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of other reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, the timing of interviews and how the interviews were conducted could also cause variations.

Here are some of the questions asked by the AP-NBC News poll, and responses to them:

1. Do you happen to know who is the Republican vice-presidential nominee running with Ronald Reagan?

Named Bush — 84 percent.
Named someone else, didn't know — 13 percent.
Not sure — 3 percent.

2. Does Reagan's selection of Bush as his running mate make you more likely to vote for Reagan for president in November, less likely to vote for Reagan, or does it not make any difference?

(Of those who identified Bush as nominee.)
More likely — 25 percent.
Less likely — 13 percent.
No difference — 58 percent.

3. Would you have been more likely to vote for Reagan in November if Gerald Ford were his running mate, less likely to vote for Reagan or would it not have made any difference?

More likely — 23 percent.
Less likely — 19 percent.
No difference — 54 percent.
Not sure — 4 percent.

Diaper Service Strike Staged

MIAMI (AP) — Plant and delivery workers have walked off their jobs at the last diaper service in South Florida, leaving many of its customers high and wet.

The strike began Monday at Southern Comfort Diaper Service in a dispute over union representation, said Alan Cole, company vice president and general manager.

United Food and Commercial Workers claimed a month ago it represented the workers. When the company asked for an election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, the employees opted for a walkout.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Person of Farmville attended the Baptist World Congress in Toronto, Canada. The trip was sponsored by The General Baptist State Convention of North Carolina. Dr. C. C. Craig is executive secretary.

Why more people borrow from us than any other bank in the neighborhood.

WITH ALL THE PLACES TO CHOOSE FROM, IN OVER 170 NORTH CAROLINA NEIGHBORHOODS, MORE PEOPLE PICK US FOR LOANS.

From all you read and hear, you may have gotten the idea that every place in the neighborhood has stopped lending money, and that it's really not a very good idea to borrow anyway.

Well, that's just not true at NCNB. When you need money for something that makes sense, we can help.

Borrowing That Makes Sense.

Maybe you're thinking about home improvements. Or taking advantage of special prices on automobiles. Or you have a college education coming up.

Whatever it is, let's talk it over. After all, with all the places to choose from, more people come to us when they borrow. For some very good reasons.

A COLLEGE DIPLOMA MAY BE THE BIGGEST INVESTMENT PARENTS CAN MAKE. IF YOU NEED HELP PAYING FOR IT, COME SEE US.

Fast, Direct Answers.

When you need a loan, we know you don't like waiting for an answer. So, we don't give you a runaround. When you ask us for a loan, we'll give you an answer fast.

Usually in just one hour. Sometimes less.

Different Ways To Borrow.

We'll work with you to find the way that works best in your particular financial situation.

Maybe you want to get the money you need through a personal loan. Or maybe it's a "credit-cushion" built into your NCNB Checking Account, through Cash Reserve.

Maybe you'd like longer terms through lower monthly payments.

Whatever makes sense, we'll work things out.

"People Talk," Not "Bank Talk."

All our loan agreements are written in plain English, not "bank talk" and mumbo-jumbo.

So, when you sign on the dotted line, you'll know just what we expect from you, and, more importantly, what you can expect from us.

Why We Do All This.

The easier we can make things for you when you're borrowing money, the more likely you are to do all your other banking business with us.

And the more likely we are to become the best bank in the neighborhood.

☞ We want to be the best bank in the neighborhood.

Expect Slow Recovery From Recession

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation faces a painfully slow recovery from recession, with unemployment stuck at 8.5 percent through 1981 and pocketbooks continually hit by double-digit inflation, the Carter administration says.

An even gloomier picture of the economy is painted by the Congressional Budget Office, which is expected to predict about a 9 percent unemployment rate when its forecast is released Wednesday, sources said Monday.

The Carter administration released its revised economic outlook Monday, and it was drastically different than the original estimates in March, casting out any hope of a balanced budget for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

Consumer prices will rise 12 percent between 1979's fourth quarter and 1980's last three months - slightly better than the 12.8 percent pace predicted in March - and a 10 percent jump next year, a little worse than the earlier expectations.

That view was sharply disputed by two private economists, who said the faster a tax cut is enacted, the better.

The economy also will suffer because the labor force is expected to increase by about 1.7 million eligible workers next year, Eckstein said.

which is controlled by the clergy-dominated Islamic Republican Party. The IRP, led by Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, has been engaged in a power struggle with Bani-Sadr and his followers.

Apparently no one was hurt, witnesses said. The attack followed a strong anti-communist address by Hojatoleslam Hadi Ghafari, a member of Iran's new Parliament who supports Khomeini's campaign to purge Iranian life of Marxist influences and build a society along strictly Islamic lines.

The number of executions Sunday and Monday rose to at least 16 as the official Pars news agency reported six "counter-revolutionaries" were put to death in Dezfoul, south of Tehran, for importing arms, unauthorized crossing into Iraq, armed resistance, maintaining links with subversive groups and bombing railway crossings and oil pipelines.

Despite the dismal forecast, administration officials said there will be no proposal for a tax cut to stimulate the economy at this time.

Chimerine and Eckstein said the sluggishness is due to a combination of factors. Despite the recession, inflation will remain at historically high levels, and the government will try to keep spending down as much as possible, they said.

Cox noted that any material needed that cost in excess of $10 would be picked up by the school.

Iranian leaders have said the Majlis will take up the hostage issue after the selection of ministers. But some anti-American militants have suggested putting off the debate until the fall.

Pars also reported an anti-Khomeini terrorist was executed in Tehran for bombing a school, and three drug smugglers were shot by a firing squad in Urumiyeh, in northwestern Iran. Tehran Radio said a man charged with drug trafficking, robbery and sodomy was executed in Hamedan.

Earlier this month five ships on lease to the Navy left Wilmington with military supplies for the new U.S. rapid deployment force in the Indian Ocean.

A proposal to extend school hours for kindergarten pupils to 2:30 p.m., an hour longer than the current 1:30 p.m. let out time, in order to save the cost of additional transportation, was tabled until the Aug. 4 information meeting.

'Boomer' Is Wed At Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) - With the mayor of Niagara Falls presiding, Boomer, the canine star of the NBC-TV series "Here's Boomer," gave a resounding "woof!" and was married to Cynthia, a part-poodle from the pound.

Boomer, who also trained the flock of ravens for Alfred Hitchcock's 1963 film "The Birds," guesses that Cynthia is mostly poodle. She weighs 20 pounds, about 10 pounds less than Boomer, and is a half-inch taller, at 18 1/2 inches.

The TV series, produced by A.C. Lyles, is entering its second season.

The reason Ray and I wanted to do the series was (to show) people who want to have dogs that the best dogs are at the pound," Lyles said Monday, adding that two of his three dogs came from dog pounds.

Boomer, about 4 1/2, and his bride, just over 1, arrived here over the weekend, jetting in from Los Angeles. Informed sources said the ceremony culminated a classic Tinzel Town courtship: a whirlwind affair that started three weeks ago, when Cynthia was rescued from the city dog pound.

He said he had been receiving 150-200 letters a day from owners of would-be mates for Boomer, since word got out that they were looking for a "spouse."

After narrowing the candidates down to 10, Boomer made the final choice himself, according to NBC.

Cynthia was calm throughout the ceremony, and afterward licked at a dog biscuit-studded bridal cake for photographers.

A veterinarian has pronounced her able to have puppies, an event to be featured in an upcoming show, Lyles said.

Following the ceremony, the honeymooners were scheduled for a ride on the Maid of the Mist tour boat under Niagara Falls, then on to New York City where they will ride a hansom cab through Central Park, an NBC spokeswoman said.

"It was unbelievable," said Rene Maas, a 24-year-old dockworker, who said the stern of the ship, the Energy Concentration, began sinking before the bow popped out of the water.

"Then they're going to do the talk show circuit," she added.

The bow stayed up in the air for four or five minutes... and there was a big, slow vibration that rattled your ears," Maas said.

The vessel's 43 crew members, from Hong Kong and China, escaped unharmed, said a spokesman for the port authority.

He said about 2,600 gallons of crude oil spilled into the harbor from the ruptured tanker and an estimated 32 million gallons were trapped in its submerged holds. Authorities closed part of the world's largest port while they planned a way to remove the oil.

The church was celebrating its 13th anniversary. Special recognition was given to Mrs. Williams in honor of the progress and growth of the church while her husband served as pastor at New Greenleaf before coming to Greenville.

The wreck lay "hump-backed" at the pier, with its bow and stern resting on the bottom, but still visible in 70 feet of water, the spokesman said.

Earnings Up For Schlitz

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - Although its sales continued to decline, the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. reports its earnings were up during the second quarter of 1980, partly as the result of the sale of a brewery in Syracuse, N.Y.

The company, which operates a brewery in Winston-Salem, said it earned $10.1 million, or 34 cents a share, in the second quarter. That compares with a loss of $1.2 million, or 4 cents a share, in the second quarter last year.

Schlitz sales slipped to $289.7 million for the quarter, down from $305.1 million in the same period last year. Shipments totaled 4.3 million barrels, compared with 5 million in the second quarter last year.

In the first six months of 1980, Schlitz said, earnings were $18.1 million, or 62 cents a share. This compared with a loss of $2.7 million, or 9 cents a share, in the first half of 1979. First-half sales totaled $531.1 million on shipments of 7.8 million barrels, compared with $547.8 million in sales on 9.1 million barrels during the first half last year.

Pirates Fall To UNC-W, Title On Line Today

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

East Carolina coach Gary Overton is looking for a few good arms — pitching arms, that is.

ECU used three pitchers Monday night but still came out on the short end of a 5-4 loss to UNC-Wilmington in a N.C. Summer Collegiate League battle. The loss drops ECU into a first-place tie with Louisiana State today for a doubleheader that could decide the league championship.

If either club sweeps the pair they win the league crown and the right to host the final three days of the tournament, the first round of which starts Wednesday. If ECU loses both games the Pirates will end up third in the league, behind the Hurricanes and UNC-W, which is now 18-12, and would open play in the league tournament Wednesday at home.

"I don't know who we're going to go with (Tuesday) night," Overton said. "We're all out of pitching. You know, Louisiana State isn't going to lay down for us. They have a chance to win the title outright."

Overton's pitching problem started when ECU ace Bill Wilder, who is 8-1 this summer after a 10-2 regular season, told him he would not be able to pitch Monday night. "He would have started, but his arm just wasn't responding. We gave him six days rest and it just wasn't coming around," Overton said. Wilder is out for the season.

Without Wilder, Overton decided to pitch Brian Felton, who had given up 15 hits in Pirates' 8-5 loss to UNC-W

Friday night. The ECU right-hander, 2-2 this summer, lasted three innings Monday night.

"He had been hit hard against Wilmington Friday and they hit a few shots off him tonight," Overton said. "He pitched three innings, which is about what we were hoping for."

Overton then called on leftfielder John Hallow to pitch. Hallow's only other mound appearance this season was late in a game already lost. "John did a great job. I didn't plan on leaving him in as long as I did, but he was pitching so well that I had to," Overton said.

Ironically, it was Kirk Parsons, with the second best record on the Pirate pitching staff, who got tagged with the loss after replacing Hallow in the eighth.

Trailing 4-2 going into the eighth, the Seahawks sent eight men to the plate and ripped out five hits to score three runs and take the lead for good.

Tim Whitehead started the inning off ripping a Hallow pitch over the centerfield fence, for a 400-foot home run. When Doc Lawing followed with a double Overton replaced Hallow with Parsons, who was 7-1 before Monday's loss.

Parsons, who pitched nine innings Sunday against UNC in ECU's 10-5 win over the Tar Heels, got one batter out before Clyde Holley singled — his fourth hit of the night — to score Lawing. John Milovits followed with a double to score Holley and UNC-W led 5-4.

It could have been worse. With two gone in the inning and Milovits at second and Tommy Phillips on first with a walk, Sorrell saved another run from scoring. Ranging far to his right from his second base position, Sorrell dove on a grounder up the middle. With no one covering second, Sorrell alertly threw to third, where Milovits had taken too wide a turn. Milovits was subsequently out in a rundown.

With two gone in the bottom of the eighth, Jay Carraway singled and Robert Wells walked to give the Pirates runners on first and second. Mike Sorrell then singled up the middle but Bob Hall, running for Carraway, stumbled going around third and was subsequently out in a rundown.

The Pirates loaded the bases in the ninth with two outs on two errors and a walk but Mark Wakai lined out to Holley at first to end the game.

"We made too many mental mistakes," said an obviously disappointed Overton. "That baserunning mistake in the eighth was crucial. In the ninth all we could do was try and get the ball into play."

UNC-Wilmington opened the scoring in the second on Holley's leadoff home run. Holley plagued ECU all night, going four-for-four with two RBIs.

ECU, however, took the lead in the bottom of the inning. Mike Sage and Charlie Smith walked and moved up a base on Mark Wakai's sacrifice bunt. Sage then scored on Carraway's sacrifice fly before Robert Wells doubled down the third baseline to score Smith.

The Pirates added a third run in the fifth. With one gone, Sorrell, who is playing with a pinched nerve in his neck, walked and moved to second on a wild pitch. An error by shortstop Paul Murr, the first of three miscues, allowed Sorrell to score. ECU then loaded the bases on another error and a walk but left the inning without scoring again.

The Seahawks got one run back in the sixth. With one out, Tom Jones and Holley laced back-to-back singles. Jones raced to third on Holley's single and rightfielder Smith threw wide to third, instead of going to second. Jones scored.

ECU got that run back in the seventh. Sorrell singled, moved to second on an error and went to third when Robinette bunted a 1-2 pitch for a sacrifice. He scored on an error moments later, giving the Pirates a 4-2 lead. It was a lead short-lived, however, as the Seahawks came up with three in the eighth to win.

Comaneci A Perfect 10

MOSCOW (AP) — For an athlete whose sheer perfection has given so much joy to the world, Nadia Comaneci sure doesn't seem to be having any fun.

There she was again Monday, being told that nobody could do it better because how do you top perfection? And what did Nadia do? She didn't crack a smile after her flawless trip over the balance beam. She remained expressionless after the perfect 10.0 was flashed on the scoreboard.

It wasn't until her Romanian coaches crowded around her, offering congratulations, that she allowed a smile — short and sweet — and then it was back to the business at hand.

The business Monday was compulsory maneuvers on the balance beam, vault, uneven parallel bars and the floor exercises — the first half of the two-day team competition that also serves as qualifying for the individual all-around title later this week at the 1980 Summer Olympics.

Watching Comaneci perform, one is struck by the intensity of her concentration. There is no room for emotion when all that inner strength is directed toward the perfect performance. It's been said that other special athletes, Ted Williams and Ben Hogan, had that same icy demeanor — and that same quest for perfection.

One slip of that steely determination, and her last four years of practice and sacrifice will seem unfulfilled. One little mistake, and there's always someone waiting to take your place at the top of the sport. There's always somebody.

Comaneci knows. She's been there. Four years ago at the Montreal Olympics, when she was 14, she replaced Olga Korbut of the Soviet Union as the sport's superstar. Now, maybe it's Natalia Shaposhnikova as her apparent. Comaneci did her little miss perfect act on the balance beam, chipped in with 9.95s on the other three apparatus — and she still couldn't shake Shaposhnikova.

The 19-year-old Soviet star, who like Comaneci was injured for the 1979 world championships, also was perfect. She picked up a 10.0 in the vault, added 9.95s on the other pieces of equipment and tied Comaneci with 39.85 out of a possible 40.0.

"Such high marks are unheard of in international competition," said a Soviet gymnastics expert. "It has happened in national meets but never at the Olympics or world championships."

Nelli Kim of the Eurasian from the Soviet Union who was supposed to be Comaneci's main rival here, slipped to fourth in the compulsories behind Maxi Gnauck of East Germany. But the depth of the Soviets was evident as they totalled 197.75 points. East Germany was second at 196.80 and Romania one-tenth of a point further behind.

The women's free exercises deciding the team medals will be held Wednesday.

The men returned to gymnastics competition today, bidding for medals with the second half of the team competition. The Soviets, with a commanding lead, were expected to win the gold on the strength of performances from all-around champion Alexander Dityatin and Nikolai Andrianov, a quadruple gold medal four years ago who seems to have recovered from last year's chest injury.

So far, the best Soviets have been having the most fun at their Olympic party with six gold and 11 total medals. East Germany actually has one more medal overall but three less gold after two days of competition at the first Games in modern history without an American team.

These two East European sports powers were expected to pick up more medals as swimming finals in the men's 1,500 freestyle, women's 400 freestyle and men's 100 breaststroke were to be contested today.

The U.S. absence, due to its boycott in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, has been felt the most at the swimming pool. At Montreal, American men won 12 of the 13 events, and the U.S. women have held their own against the East Germans in the past two years.

Except for one Swedish interloper, the East Germans and Soviets have taken all the gold medals in swimming and diving.

Barbara Krause, who set a world record in the 100-meter freestyle Sunday, lowered the mark again to 54.79 seconds in winning the event Monday.

"Yes, I am sure I am the fastest female freestyler in the world today," she said.

Teammate Ines Geissler won the women's 200-meter butterfly in Olympic record time of 2:10.44.

Sergei Kopliakov of the Soviet Union won the 200-meter freestyle in an Olympic record 1:49.81 and countrywoman Irina Kalinina took the gold medal in the springboard diving.

The biggest swimming surprise came from Bengt Baron of Sweden, who confounded the experts as well as himself in winning the 100-meter backstroke in 56.53 — more than one second faster than his lifetime best.

"I would never have thought I could win an Olympic gold medal, at least not here and today," Baron said.

Krause's world record was was one of three that fell Monday, the other two coming in weightlifting. Daniel Munez of Cuba won the 56 kilo class with a world record total lift of 275 kilos. Yurik Sarkisian of the Soviet Union won the silver but set a world record of 157.5 kilos in the jerk portion of the event.

Karoly Varga of Hungary and Helfried Heilfort of East Germany tied the world record with 599 points in the prone position of the small-bore rifle event, but Heilfort was placed second on a technicality.

Meanwhile, the buildup toward the expected duels in the 800- and 1,500-meter races between British runners Steve Ovett and Sebastian Coe continued with Ovett due to arrive here today.

Coe had his time with newsmen Monday, confirming he would run in both the 800, in which he holds the world record of 1:42.4, and the 1,500, in which he shares the world mark of 3:32.1 with Ovett.

Carter's Slam Lifts Montreal

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Beanball? A menace to baseball? Don't talk nonsense. It's just a brushback pitch — and it has its purpose. So says Dick Williams. And his Montreal Expos and the Atlanta Braves offered a pretty convincing case Monday night.

In that launching pad called Atlanta Stadium, Gary Carter crashed a grand-slam home run in a six-run first inning and a two-run homer in the seventh while the Braves unloaded five home runs in their 8-6 loss.

"Now do you see why it's good to use the brushback pitch a little?" Williams, the Expos' manager, offered after the fireworks had ended. "There are no more now than there have been in the last 105 years. The beanball isn't the term. It's brushback pitch."

And, with a laugh, he added, "Evidently they didn't establish that tonight."

"It was probably one of the best nights I've had in the major leagues," Carter said. "But more than anything else, I'm pleased we won the game. I remember the last time we were in here, Larry Parrish hit three home runs and drove in seven runs, and the final score was Atlanta 8, Parrish 7."

Williams, too, admitted he had to hold his breath a bit. "A few rockets out there tonight. Quite a few... It's a good thing we had a six-run lead. I felt pretty safe — except it didn't work out that way."

His counterpart, Braves Manager Bobby Cox, added: "Six runs down, especially in the first inning I wasn't too worried because we had 27 outs left to score, and the way we've been hitting the ball lately, I figured we had a chance."

Rick Matula gave up Carter's grand slam and Gene Garber allowed what proved to be his winning homer, enabling the Expos to edge two percentage points ahead of idle Pittsburgh in the East Division.

Astros 3, Mets 2

Some guys would be nervous, standing at the plate with the bases-loaded, two outs and the score tied in the bottom of the ninth. But not Terry Puhl. He calmly stroked the single up the middle that gave the Astros their victory and widened their NL West lead over the Dodgers to 1 1/2 games.

"Pressure? I felt no pressure," Puhl said. "It was a rather calm task."

Frank LaCorte, 6-0, got the victory with two perfect innings, his first since being sidelined last week by a case of strep throat.

Cardinals 5, Dodgers 2

A few good words of advice from St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog woke up Dane Iorg's bat after 83 homerless games as his three-run blast in the sixth inning carried the Cardinals past Los Angeles.

"It was obvious by the way I wasn't hitting that something was wrong," said Iorg.

Reds 5, Phillies 4

Ken Griffey and Johnny Bench doubled to break a seventh-inning tie and, after a rain delay of nearly an hour, Dan Driessen singled Bench home with what proved to be Cincinnati's winning run that handed the Phils fourth consecutive loss and seventh in their last 10 games.

G'ville Prep Stars Rally; In Title Tilt

NEW BERN — The Greenville Prep League All-Stars never gave up.

Behind 6-0 going into the top of the sixth inning, and facing death in the double-elimination Prep League State Championship, the local unit tallied four runs in the sixth and added three more in the seventh to register a 7-6 victory over Wayne County.

The win moved the Greenville All-Stars into tonight's championship game against undefeated South Granville. The Greenville unit must win two games from South Granville in order to take the state title. Greenville suffered its first loss of the tournament Sunday afternoon.

After tallying four runs in the top of the sixth, Greenville tied the game with a pair of runs in the seventh before crossing the plate with the game winner on a pitcher's balk in the same frame.

Greenville advanced to the semi-finals last night on the strength of solid pitching and timely hitting.

Bill Michel pitched a two-hitter Saturday and got plenty of help from his teammates as Greenville's Prep League All-Stars routed Albemarle, 16-0, in State Tournament action. Greenville suffered its only defeat of the State Tournament Sunday.

While Michel was providing the locals with all the pitching they needed, Greenville provided two runs in the first, one in the second, eight in the third and five in the fourth to win easily.

In the first, Doyle Kirkland walked to lead off and moved to second after one was gone on Pat Rand's walk. With two gone, Tony Taylor tripled to score both runners.

In the second, Traye Fugua singled to lead off and then scored moments later, following a walk to Kirkland, on Tyrone Barrett's single, giving Greenville a 3-0 lead.

With Steve Wall and Dwight Smith on in the third, Fugua tripled to score his teammates to spark an eight-run outburst.

In the fourth, Michel helped his own cause by doubling home two runs to begin a five-run inning.

O's Stone Wins — Again

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

The perfect pitching staff in the American League these days would have Steve Stone starting and Dan Quisenberry finishing.

Stone, who has become the ace of the Baltimore staff ahead of a couple of Cy Young winners, posted his 13th consecutive triumph Monday night as the Orioles defeated the Minnesota Twins 12-5 in the nightcap of a doubleheader after dropping the opener 8-7 in 11 innings.

Meanwhile, Kansas City's Quisenberry took over the league lead with his 20th save as the Royals edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Brewers trimmed the New York Yankees 7-4, the Detroit Tigers clobbered the California Angels 14-3, the Texas Rangers downed the Boston Red Sox 5-3, the Toronto Blue Jays nipped the Oakland A's 1-0 and the Seattle Mariners blanked the Cleveland Indians 7-0.

Stone blanked the Twins until the eighth inning, when they scored five times, three on a double by Ron Jackson. By that time the Orioles had a 12-0 lead as Dan Graham drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a single and Eddie Murray, who hit a solo homer in the opener, added a three-run shot.

"It's tough to be a star in a rotation that includes a three-time Cy Young winner in Jim Palmer and Mike Flanagan, who was last year's Cy Young winner," said Stone, who hasn't lost since May 5. "At the start of the season I was ticketed to be the fifth starter. This is absolutely the best I've ever pitched."

The Twins won the opener when John Castno, Butch Wynegar and Pete Mackanin singled off Tippy Martinez in the 11th inning while John Verhoeven scattered seven hits over 82-3 innings of relief for his first major league victory. The Orioles blew a 5-1 lead on Minnesota home runs by Ken Landreaux, Roy Smalley and Hosken Powell.

Brewers 7, Yankees 4

Ben Oglivie had three hits and drove in three runs and Cecil Cooper added four hits and an RBI to help second-place Milwaukee reduce the Yankees' lead in the AL East to 7 1/2 games. Mike Caldwell beat the Yankees for the eighth time in nine career decisions but lasted only five innings before giving way to Bob McClure. Milwaukee took a 3-0 first-inning lead when Paul Molitor, Robin Yount and Cooper, the first three batters, all singled, with Cooper's hit scoring Molitor. Oglivie scored Yount with a sacrifice fly and Sixto Lezcano tripled Cooper home.

Tigers 14, Angels 3

Steve Kemp hit two homers and drove in four runs, Richie Hebner hit a three-run blast to cap a seven-run sixth inning and Champ Summers hit a solo homer in the ninth as the Tigers routed California. Kemp homered in the fourth inning and delivered again with two runners on base to wrap up a four-run fifth inning. Hebner connected off Dave Lemanczyk, who was charged with six of the seven runs in the sixth inning, all of which were unearned as a result of a two-out error by shortstop Fred Patek.

Rangers 5, Red Sox 3

Jon Matlack and Danny Darwin combined for a seven-hitter as the Rangers rode a 14-hit attack and posted a three-game winning streak for the first time since mid-April. Matlack blanked Boston on two singles for six innings before losing his shutout bid on Carlton Fisk's 12th homer in the seventh. Darwin was tagged for a two-run homer by Dwight Evans in the ninth.

Blue Jays 1, A's 0

Toronto's Dave Stieb pitched his second consecutive shutout, a seven-hitter, and Al Woods hit a fifth-inning home run. Stieb struck out four in pitching his seventh consecutive complete game and his fourth shutout.

Mariners 7, Indians 0

Tom Paciorek and Bruce Bochte each drove in three runs to back the five-hit pitching of Glenn Abbott. Bochte laced a run-scoring single in Seattle's three-run first inning and added a two-run double in the fifth. He also doubled in the third. Paciorek contributed an RBI single in the first and belted his 12th homer, a two-run shot in the fifth.

C.P. South Wins; In State Finals

Jeff Cox lined a 12th inning two-out single, knocking home the winning run, as Coastal Plains South set down Eastern Wayne in the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament, 5-4, last night.

Bill Kittrell sandwiched a double between a pair of outs before Cox delivered his game-winning single, slapping the ball into left centerfield, allowing Kittrell to score.

The victory enabled Coastal Plains South to move into the finals of the loser's bracket tonight against Central Carolina at 7:00. A second game would immediately follow if Coastal Plains is able to avenge an earlier, 14-2, whipping at the hands of the Central Carolina squad.

Eastern Wayne scored first with a pair of runs in the second inning, taking advantage of a costly throwing error.

Coastal Plains answered with a run in the first half of the third when Crowell Pope singled, stole second and scored on Scott Galloway's double.

Wayne County added its third run in the fourth to take a 3-1 lead.

Coastal Plains took the lead for the first time in the game with a three-run spurt in the top of the fifth. After two outs, Greg Hardison singled and Galloway and Kittrell walked to load the bases. Paul McMillan then responded with a three-run double, giving his team a short-lived 4-3 cushion.

Eastern Wayne tied the game with what turned out to be its final run of the game with a score in the bottom of the fifth, knotting the score at 4-4 until the game-deciding 12th.

Kittrell, MacMillan, Cox and Mitch Brann, the last four batters in the Coastal Plains line-up, each picked up a pair of hits in the extra-inning victory.

What "it" is, is win, and Central Carolina North defeated both Coastal Plains North, 11-7, and Central Carolina, 11-5, to earn the rights to battle undefeated and favored New Bern tonight in the double-elimination tournament.

In the first game at Guy Smith Stadium last night, the Central Carolina North unit used a six-run fourth to comeback from a 6-4 deficit to take control of the seven-inning contest.

Coastal Plains North tallied a single run in the first, added four in the second, pushed across another in the third and added its last in the fourth. Central Carolina crossed the plate twice in the initial frame and twice more in the third before the six-run fourth. It added the last run in the top of the seventh.

In the second game, a five-run fifth again brought the winners from behind and led them to the 11-5 win.

Behind by a run heading into the fifth, Central Carolina used back-to-back homers by Don Scott and Mark Watson to take the lead. Scott blasted a two-run shot, following Mickey Glasscock's lead-off single, and Watson followed with a solo shot to propel the Central unit.

U.S., Soviets DO Share One Thing: Spartacus

MOSCOW (AP) — One of the priceless bits of trivia one picks up from mingling with the masses is that the Soviet Union and America share a legendary hero.

It isn't George Washington or Daniel Boone. It isn't Karl Marx or Vladimir Lenin. It isn't Bruce Jenner or Vasily Alekseev.

It's a guy who lived 2,000 years ago and whose favorite sports were wrestling lions in the Roman Coliseum and tossing javelins through the hearts of Caesar's legions.

His name: Spartacus.

Everybody who went through the sixth grade in the United States a generation or two ago is familiar with the name. Sixth-graders were forced in elocution classes to recite the stirring oration of "Spartacus to the Gladiators."

After that, their interest waned.

Not in the USSR. The dauntless gladiator who freed the slaves and waged virtual bare-handed war against Rome's might in the century before Christ is held here as a model of the Soviet revolutionary spirit.

"He was a very strong and courageous," explained Tanyan Petrova, a student at Moscow State University. "He symbolized the downtrodden who rose up against their oppressors."

The Spartacus theme is woven through the USSR's competitive and cultural life. Practically any school kid in this vast land of 262 million people can relate Spartacus' life story without a single hitch.

One of Moscow's strongest sports clubs is named Spartak. "They are very good in football (soccer) and hockey," said Vladimir Ivanov, another student. "They are known to be very furious and devoted — like the Italians."

"Hot-headed?" someone suggested.

"That's it. Much fire and temper."

When the Soviets decided to stage a pre-Olympic rehearsal in 1979 they named the carnival "Spartakiade," again honoring their ancient gladiator hero.

One of the country's most revered ballets is "Spartacus," which has been made into a film featuring Vladimir Vasilev in the title role and Natalie Bessmertnova as his wife, Frigia. The American movie version, starring Kirk Douglas, has filled theaters throughout the USSR.

A book on Spartacus, written by the Italian Dzavanioli, has been translated into Russian and can be bought at the corner book store.

Guidry Having Off Season?

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Guidry led the league in ERA in 1979 in addition to posting an 18-8 record. Observers called it an off-year.

Imagine what they're saying now.

"Louisiana Lightning" still has a more than respectable 10-6 record, but his ERA is a very unGuidry-like 3.89 and rising. In his last two starts, the New York Yankees' slender lefty has allowed 20 hits and 12 runs in nine innings, and Sunday he was rocked for seven runs in less than two innings against Kansas City, the earliest "kay" of his career.

"I think I know what the problem is," said Guidry, who thought he solved his problems when he went to a no-windup delivery right before the All-Star break. In his last 11 starts, he's 5-6 with a 4.92 ERA.

Guidry declined to reveal the problem that's apparently turned him from a 25-3 pitcher with a 1.74 ERA and 248 strikeouts in 1978 to little more than a batting practice pitcher in his recent outings.

If New York Manager Dick Howser is concerned, he's not letting on. But it's obvious Guidry is not the pitcher he was two years ago, or even earlier this season. He's basically a two-pitch pitcher — hard fastball and a nasty slider, his out pitch. Neither is working at the moment.

"If it was something major," Howser said, "we'd already have done something about it. His stuff is too good to be getting hit the way he is. Stan [pitching coach Williams] and I intend to sit down and talk with him, but he has to go out and do it himself."

Howser, who saw Guidry at his best as a Yankee coach two years ago, added, "I keep saying it's the location of his pitches, but I think he is throwing the stuff out of the ball."

Guidry will next start Friday night in Kansas City. The Yankees have a comfortable lead in the American League East but need an effective Guidry to win the division and then do some business in the playoffs.

Spectators were astounded to note that Coe didn't walk over and offer his congratulations.

Sebastian apologized later, saying he was warming up at the time. Coe's father explained.

At the formal dinner that evening, Overt was seated at the head table. When Coe arrived late, Overt got up and left.

The only time the two have met in a race is the 800 in the European Championships in Prague in 1978 — East German's Olaf Beyer ran right past them both.

An athletics coach, a friend of Overt, was asked who he thought would win when Coe and Overt meet in the 800 and 1,500 in Moscow.

"Neither," he said bluntly. "I pick the Russian, Vladimir Malozemlin, to whip them both."

Edwards' HR Leads Locals

Sterling Edward's two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth broke a 1-1 tie and led Greenville's Tar Heel League All-Stars to a 3-2 win Monday night over Roanoke Rapids in the first round of the Area II Little League playoffs.

With the score tied 1-1 going into the sixth, Ricky Outlaw singled with one out. Edwards, who had singled an inning earlier, then unleashed his homer to give the locals a 3-1 lead.

Todd Arthur brought the visitors within one with a home run in the top of the sixth but Roanoke Rapids could get no closer.

The win moves Greenville into tonight's (5 p.m.) semifinal battle with Tarboro, which had a first-round bye.

After two scoreless innings, Roanoke Rapids took the lead in the third on a home run by Bill Munson. Greenville tied the game in the fourth when Edwards scored on Monty Atkinson's sacrifice fly. Edwards had singled earlier in the inning.

Pete Rademacher won the boxing gold medal in the heavyweight division at the 1956 Olympics and nine months later, in his first pro fight, he was knocked out by Floyd Patterson in six rounds in a title bout.

Putt Putt Roundup

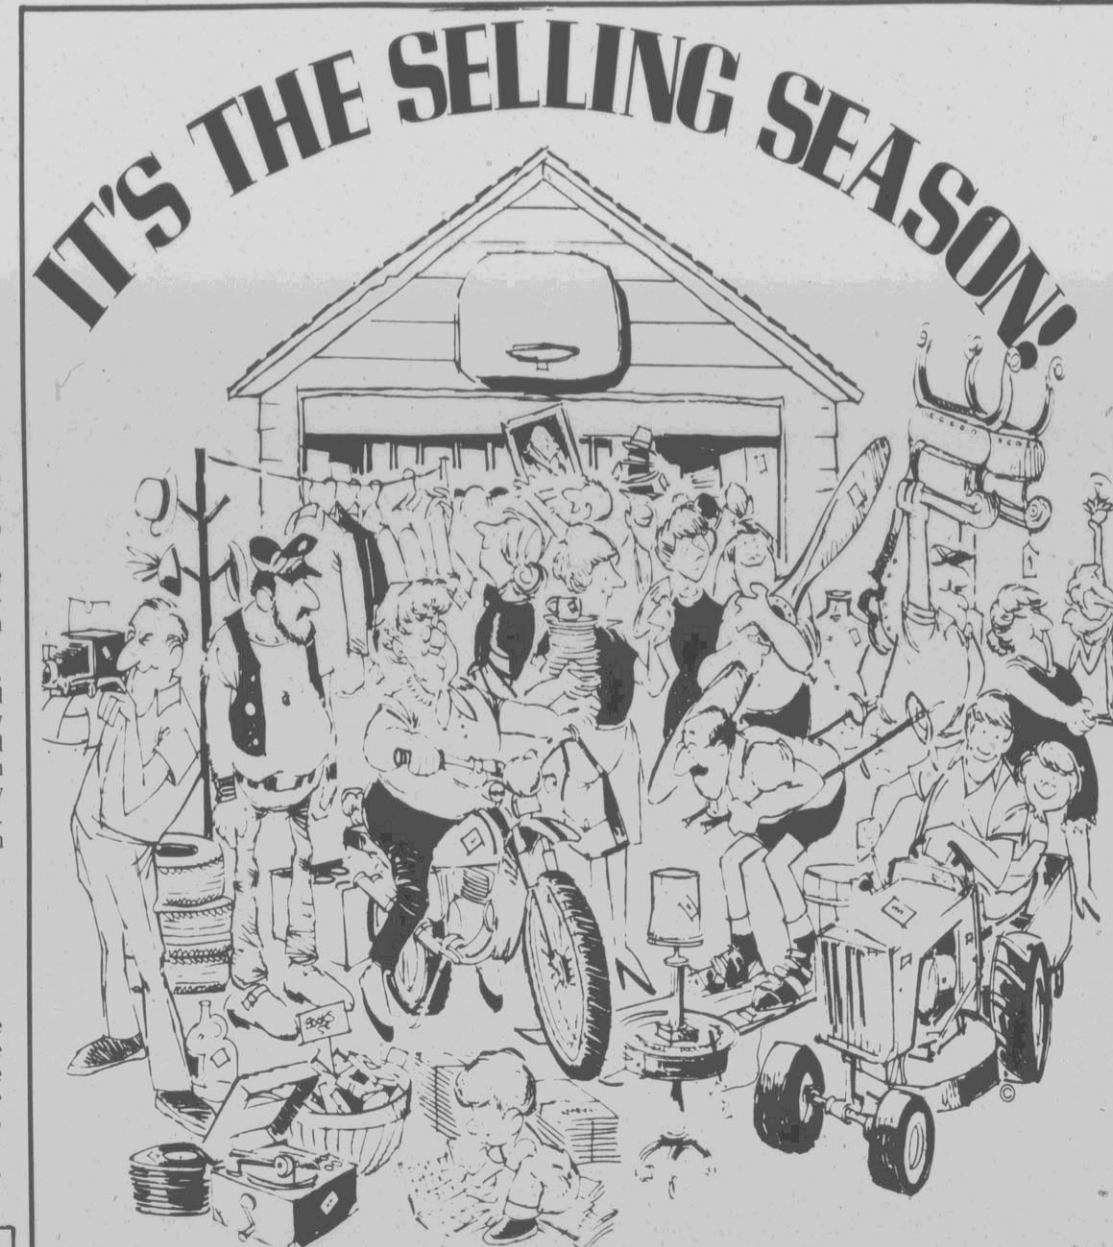

Mike Brown and Henry Beacham came from one shot down after 14 holes in an 18-hole playoff to win by two strokes over Jimmy Allen and Gene Allen in the Monday Nite Bestball Tournament at the Greenville Putt Putt Golf Course.

The two teams tied after 54 holes at 85, 23-under-par, with Jimmy Allen sinking a hole-in-one to send the tournament into the playoffs.

LaVern Mayo and Carl White took third with an 86. Mayo and White went into the last round with a three stroke lead over Brown and Beacham and a four-stroke lead over the two Allen brothers but shot a 33 for the final 86.

TV Actors Join Pay Walkout

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Prime-time television actors joined the Screen Actors Guild strike today, and floodlights were doused on film stages from New York to Los Angeles to "Dallas."

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, which represents most of the nation's prime-time TV actors, joined the SAG walkout at 12:01 a.m., assuring a shutdown of film and TV production in this country and on American movie locations around the world.

If it lasts long enough, the walkout could send film and TV executives scurrying for a substitute product — and could prevent Americans from finding out as scheduled just who shot dastardly J.R. Ewing.

AFTRA members voted to strike at meetings in Los Angeles in New York Monday.

Even after the strike began today, talks continued between the unions and the Association of Motion Picture and TV Producers. Negotiations recessed at 12:30 a.m. PDT, but were to resume later today.

"As long as we're making progress we'll continue to meet," said Alan Davis, director of AFTRA's western section. "The issues that were on the table when the strike went into effect last night are still on the table. As to how long the strike will be, that's anybody's guess."

Monday's SAG strike alone was enough to turn studio back lots eerily quiet and cancel on-location filming.

Burt Reynolds reportedly left a New York movie set as the strike began, while stars Candice Bergen and Jacqueline Bisset, on location in New York, were told to "go back to bed." Among those television actors not working today were Polly Holiday of "Flo" and Ricardo Montalban of "Fantasy Island."

AFTRA's strike could seriously hurt producers in the midst of shooting for the new fall TV season. Unaffected are game shows, soap operas and network newscasts, whose AFTRA personnel are covered by different contracts.

"We're shut down," said Lee Rich, whose Lorimar

Productions produces the wildly popular "Dallas" nighttime soap opera. The show is expected to open its fall season by telling fans who shot the character J.R. Ewing at the end of the last season.

"We've shot parts of a lot of episodes of 'Dallas,' but have nothing completed," said Rich.

"If it (the strike) is a short-run thing, it will have virtually no impact," said a CBS spokesman Monday. "If it's protracted, it will have a very serious impact. Anything further on than a week would be progressively worse."

An NBC spokesman said there had been "no interruption in NBC's programming." He added that the network had a big backlog of shows with which to try to ride out a prolonged strike.

One source speculated that if the strike lasts more than 30 days, the TV networks would be forced to make earlier-than-planned forays into their stock of first-run theatrical films and to go shopping for foreign-produced TV shows.

"NBC, CBS, ABC have a large amount of theatrical films which they haven't shown yet," said Lee Isgur, entertainment analyst at Mitchell Hutchins in New York.

As for potential advertiser revenue loss to the networks, Isgur said: "They (the advertisers) don't have too many places to go."

At issue are SAG-AFTRA's joint negotiations for a new three-year contract with the major film studios, the three major TV networks and independent producers.

Negotiations for a new contract began May 19 but broke off June 30, the day the old pact expired. The contract was extended indefinitely, but on July 16, a strike was authorized by a 91 percent vote. Talks did not resume until Thursday.

SAG and AFTRA are seeking a 40 percent increase in minimum scales, which are now $225 a day and $785 a week, and 12 percent of the gross revenues from such things as pay TV, video recorders and video discs. The unions say the cost of living has risen 35 percent since the last pact. In 1979, the unions say, almost 90 percent of their members earned less than $10,000.

The unions also want improved fringe benefits, including the creation of dental and optical plans.

Producers have offered an 8.4 percent scale increase in the first year of the contract, but want actors working on original pay TV and other "supplemental market" productions to be paid 80 percent of scale. The producers are willing to pay actors a share of their gross receipts for sales of the supplemental markets, but have balked at the 12 percent sought by the unions.

SAG members in TV commercials struck for six weeks in 1978-79. The last film strike was in 1960, led by SAG President Ronald Reagan, now the Republican presidential nominee.

Among the sayings of the wise handed down to us from the days of whist is one to which we would like to take strong exception. It is: "Lead through strength." To attack the enemy at his strongest point seems equally unsound whether it takes place on battlegrounds, on football fields, or at the table. The simplest and, it would seem, the most effective strategy is to pick off tricks before declarer gets his big guns into action. Today's hand is a typical example.

The bidding was short and to the point. South had a normal one spade opening bid and West had an equally sound two heart overall. With such a fine fit for his partner's major, North felt there was no point in introducing his club suit and, since he was not prepared to play below game, he made a

Marlene's Own Backgammon

NEW YORK (AP) — Backgammon may never be the same.
Film idol Marlene Dietrich insisted she needed something out of the ordinary in a backgammon board. So artist Neal Orfaley went to work. The New York Daily News reported today.

forcing jump raise. South could do no more than continue on to game.

The opening lead was the king of hearts. East followed with the ten and South contributed the nine. The defense stands or falls on West's lead at trick two.

There is a strong temptation to continue with the ace of hearts. Partner's ten might be the start of a high-low signal, or it could be a singleton, or from ten and a higher honor. In any case, it should be obvious to West that it would be dangerous to continue with the ace of hearts for fear of setting up declarer's queen for a diamond discard, or of giving declarer time to utilize dummy's long suit. Observing the club strength in dummy, West lazily shifted to that suit. East won the king, and reverted to a heart, but that was all the defenders could get.

If partner has the king of clubs, there is no hurry to collect it. A moment's reflection should make it clear that, unless the defense can take a diamond trick, there is not much chance of defeating the contract. West must hope that his partner has the king of clubs and queen of diamonds, and shift to a low diamond at trick two. Now the defenders can get a diamond trick as well.

Sponsoring An Essay Contest

CHICAGO (AP) — The Bulletin of Atomic Scientists is sponsoring an essay contest on preventing nuclear war for people too young to remember the bombing of Hiroshima.
"The $5,000 contest by the scientific and public affairs journal will only consider essays by people born after Aug. 6, 1945 — the day an American B-29 dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima, Japan.
"We want to create an awareness in the younger generation," said Tom Hazinski, the journal's circulation manager, said. "It's not in the memory in most people under 35. The older generation has had this first hand experience."

TALL IN THE SADDLE — Some motorists tend to lose sight of bicyclists, especially in rush-hour traffic. Such situations are enough to frighten most bikers, but Roy White of Jacksonville (N.C.) no longer has to worry. His latest mobile contraption — which he says was the cure for Saturday afternoon boredom — is a double-decker bike that puts his head and shoulders above most vehicles. White was riding in the Court Street area when he was spotted by Daily News photographer Randy Davey. The bicycle is made of parts of two bikes welded together. (AP Laserphoto)

Justice Dept. Aids Reporter

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department is asking a federal appeals court to reverse a contempt citation against a reporter who refused to name the sources of information for her stories on the FBI's Abscam investigation.

Department attorneys maintain the contempt citation given Philadelphia Inquirer reporter Jan Schaffer was improper, according to papers filed Monday with the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The contempt order was issued July 7 during pretrial hearings on defense motions to dismiss charges against three city councilmen and an attorney stemming from the FBI's undercover investigation.

had talked to Vaira on Feb. 2, the day the Abscam story was first reported in the media.

Following her contempt order, Ms. Schaffer was placed in the custody of an inquirer attorney pending the outcome of her appeal.

Abscam is the FBI code word for the "sting" operation called Abdul Enterprises Inc., in which government agents posed as Middle East businessmen and sought various political favors for

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Indicate Water On Red Planet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two scientists say analyses of radar data from Mars seem to reveal patches of water just below the surface of the red planet, the Los Angeles Times reported in its Tuesday editions.

The radar information was taken in 1971 and 1973 from the 210-diameter Goldstone facility in the Mojave Desert in California. It only recently was analyzed to indicate the existence of the water, the newspaper said.

The tentative findings were made by Stanley Zisk, a radar specialist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Haystack Observatory at Westford, Mass., and Peter Mougins-Mark, a Brown University geologist in Providence, R.I.

The echoes that bounced off a region of Mars known as Solis Lacus, or Lake of the Sun, were characteristic of a surface that is both highly reflective and smooth. Zisk said in an interview Monday from his Belmont, Mass., home.

He called the interpretations of the radar echo patterns speculative, but added, "We also haven't been able to come up with alternative ideas that would explain the reflectivity and the smoothness."

The reflectivity seemed to grow greater as the Goldstone antenna continued to bounce radar pulses off the planet throughout the late spring and summer of 1971 and 1973, he said, indicating a pattern one would expect to see from water.

Solis Lacus is a region in the southern hemisphere of Mars that is approximately 600 by 300 miles in size. If there is water there, it doesn't exist as a surface body of water, but may be anywhere from 20 to 40 inches below the reddish-brown surface in the form of damp soil or pools of subsurface water, Zisk said.

Two Viking Orbiter spacecraft, placed in orbit around Mars by the United States four years ago, found evidence that some liquid — most likely water — once coursed down the slopes of Mars, cutting channels and flowing out across low-lying plains.

George Downs, a member of the technical staff at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory near Pasadena where the Viking missions were directed, said it was unfortunate that Zisk's and Mougins-Mark's analysis had not been completed before the 1976 arrival of the two Viking landing crafts.

"It probably would not have influenced the decision of the site for the first lander," Downs said, "but it might have (affected) the choice of a site for the second."

Merit Blitz!

Low tar/good taste combination scores impressive
3-to-1 victory over leading high tar brands.

There's a low tar cigarette that's challenging high tar smoking—and winning.

The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Suffer Setback

Nationwide smoker research documents that smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.
