Crops Damaged In Friday Storm

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A severe thunderstorm struck the Pitt County area Friday night, wreaking havoc with power lines and damaging crops with large hail and strong winds.

After a day with a high temperature of 101 degrees Farenheit (measured at the Greenville Utilities Water Plant), the 1.11 inches of rain the storm dumped on the area brought a welcome respite from the heat. The sharp lightning, wind and hail that accompanied the storm was not so welcome, especially to farmers whose corn and tobacco were damaged or destroyed by the weather. On the farm of Marvin Langley of Fountain, hail the size of golf balls damaged 38 acres of tobacco.

"There's 25 acres I don't think we'll harvest any more from," commented Langley. "Then there's nine acres that approximately 30 percent of it is damaged, and five acres that approximately 75 to 80 percent of it is damaged."

The hail, said the farmer, lasted about five minutes. "It was more like ice cubes than hail," he added. "It was rectangular very unusual."

Langley estimates he lost around 45,000-50,000 pounds of tobacco, mostly upper stalk. "If you figure that amount at the average stabilization price of $1.41 per pound, then that gives you an idea of the financial loss," he said. The farmer hopes federal crop insurance and hail insurance will pay for the loss. "I am just hoping to break even this year. We were fortunate, too, that the corn was not blown down and no one was hurt."

According to Langley, around 200 acres of crops in his area, mostly tobacco, was damaged, with one hundred of those acres sustaining extensive damage.

"There's no help for tobacco damaged by hail," said Pitt County Agricultural Extension Chairman Leroy James, "but those farmers whose tobacco was blown over can begin setting it back up and continung harvesting." James added that the rain will help crops, but that it is too late to help the early corn. "It will help the medium and late corn," said the agricultural chairman.

"There's not much you can do for corn that's blown down," he continued. "It's too early to harvest it, so in many cases it was a total loss. What farmers can do is wait until it about 25 percent of the moisture drys out, then take it in and dry it out until the moisture content is 15 percent or less."

James noted severe damage in the areas of Fountain, Black Jack and Winterville.

According to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, most of the calls received Friday night were about electricity or trees down on roads, including an estimated 1,000 calls from Winterville about electricity. There were eight fires in the county, three of which were tobacco barn fires caused by lightning.

Greenville Utilities experienced problems from the storm through Saturday night. Supervisor Haywood Outland described the damage as "widespread" and reported most of it was wind and lightning related.

At Crowded Bologna, Italy Train Station

Explosion Death Toll High

By CLARA HEMPHILL
Associated Press Writer

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP) — A thunderous explosion tore through the crowded waiting rooms and restaurant of Bologna's main railway station Saturday, killing at least 76 people, police reported. Authorities were investigating the possibility that it was a terrorist bombing.

The blast injured an additional 180 people — many in critical condition with second-and third-degree burns. Rescue workers feared others were still trapped under tons of brick and twisted steel. A large section of the building was leveled.

City government spokeswoman Miriam Ridolfi gave the death toll as at least 72.

"So many children. Small children," said a weary doctor as he leaned on a counter at San Orsala Hospital, one of the five where the victims were taken. Nearby, a couple wept as another doctor told them their child would probably die of burns.

If it was a bombing, it would be the bloodiest terror attack in post-war Italy.

Two Americans, brothers from Provo, Utah, were among the injured. Jeff Davis, 19, suffered leg wounds and William S. Davis, 22, received a kidney wound. Hospital officials said they were in stable condition.

"All of a sudden I heard a blast," William Davis said in an interview with The Associated Press. "It knocked me down to my knees. I tried to help my brother. His leg was hurt pretty bad.

"I took off my shirt and wrapped it around his leg. I don't know if it helped much. We were really lucky. If we had been ten feet closer, we would have been killed."

Two anonymous callers to newspapers claimed responsibility for the blast in the names of right-wing and left-wing terrorist groups. Police dismissed the leftist claim, but Interior Minister Virginio Rognoni told a news conference authorities were investigating whether extreme right-wingers planted a bomb.

A man speaking in the name of the neo-fascist Armed Revolutionary Nuclei told a newspaper the explosion was connected with a Bologna judge's decision announced earlier Saturday morning to put eight persons on trial for the Aug. 4, 1974, bombing of a passenger train inside a tunnel between Bologna and Florence. Twelve persons were killed and 35 injured in that bombing, one of Italy's bloodiest terrorist strikes.

But another caller claiming to represent the rightist group denied that the organization was responsible, according to the Turin office of the Italian news agency Italia which received the call.

Firemen said they believed the blast originated in the station's second-class waiting room, where a hole about eight inches deep and four feet across was found in the gray-tiled floor to the left of the entrance. Investigators said that strengthened the theory that an explosive device had been placed in the room, but they still had no firm evidence.

Authorities ruled out one initial theory — that the station's boiler had exploded. But the exact cause was not expected to be known for several days, when the rubble has been cleared and specialists examine the evidence.

Some witnesses said they had smelled gas, others explosive powder.

Hours after the late-morning explosion, soldiers and police were still digging

Groundbreaking Tuesday For Eastern Vocational Center

Groundbreaking ceremonies for an 89,000 square foot recreation and housing complex for the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center — a $4.87 million project — will be held here Tuesday at 11 a.m.

The project, part of a U.S. Department of Vocational Rehabilitation pilot program for conprehensive training and recreation for the handicapped, will include a gymnasium, swimming pool, weight training and gymnastics area, bowling alley and arts and crafts and game room areas — all especially built for use by the handicapped and senior citizens.

The new facilities will also include a central kitchen and dining area, library, music therapy area, adult basic education department, personal-social adjustment department, administrative offices, a small infirmary and a television room.

The housing unit, to be used by participants in the vocational center's training program, will include 40 semi-private rooms with bath and four apartments — all barrier free.

Funds for the complex include a $3.69 million federal grant, $225,000 in State money, and $85,000 from Pitt and Martin Counties.

To complete the funding, ECVC director Howard Dawkins said the state will be asked for an additional $150,000, while Pitt County Commissioners will be requested to contribute another $100,000. Martin County commissioners, Dawkins said, will be asked for another $50,000.

Dawkins noted that the remaining $570,280, "will have to be secured in our community."

"Through . . . contributions," according to Dawkins, "you would be helping . . . achieve one of the great humanitarian

Pay Hikes Trailing Inflation

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pay increases lagged behind the rate of inflation in 31 states and the District of Columbia in the first quarter of the year, the Commerce Department reported Saturday.

Total personal income in the United States rose by 2.6 percent during the quarter while prices of consumer goods were climbing 3 percent, according to a report by the department's Bureau of Economic Analysis.

Because of declining farm income, total personal income actually fell in North Dakota (by 0.5 percent) and South Dakota (by 0.3 percent) from the fourth quarter of 1979 to the first quarter of 1980.

Since inflation moderated substantially from the first quarter of this year to the second — falling from an annual rate of 18.1 percent to 11.6 percent — real spendable income for the nation as a whole probably also improved in the April-May-June period.

The Commerce Department prefers to use nonfarm income, rather than total personal income, to measure economic developments, due to the erratic nature of farm prices and income. On that basis, personal income during the period increased nationally by 2.9 percent, gaining in every state and the District of Columbia — but still trailing the inflation rate.

Using nonfarm income as a guide, 24 states gained slightly against inflation, four states only kept pace with inflation, and 22 states and the District of Columbia trailed the inflation rate.

Among the eight regions of the United States, changes in nonfarm income ranged from a 3.5-percent increase in New England — due in part to a robust construction industry — to a 2.5-percent rise in the Great Lakes and Middle East regions, heart of the depressed steel and auto industries.

Income increased by 2.9 percent in the Plains states; 3.1 percent in the Southeast and Far West; 3.2 percent in the Southwest and 3.4 percent in the Rocky Mountain states, where mining and construction payrolls posted increases.

Commerce Department statisticians also provided a more-detailed breakdown for their nonfarm-income figures, indicating the economic peculiarities of individual states.

New Hampshire, for example, led the nation in payroll increases in the private service industries, which include retailing, banking, insurance and transportation. The District of Columbia, where the main business is government, posted declines in federal and local government.

Pennsylvania, whose economy is tied to iron and steel, showed a smaller payroll increase in the manufacture of durable goods than all but three states. Michigan, of course, was shattered by the plunge in auto production.

In contrast, Illinois posted a large payroll increase in the manufacture of durable goods, thanks to the settling of a strike against farm-equipment manufacturers.

The strength of Louisiana's oil and petrochemical industries was evident in a hefty increase in payrolls by producers of nondurable goods (those with an expected life of less than three years).

Manufacturing and mining payrolls in Oklahoma increased considerably more than the national average during the quarter. Oregon showed big gains in contruction and federal-government payrolls.

1. Wyoming, 4.9 percent; 2. New Hampshire, 4.8; 3. Vermont, 4.3; 4. Nevada, 3.9; 4. Louisiana, 3.9; 6. Colorado, Georgia and Rhode Island, all 3.8; 9. Maine and Tennesee, 3.6;

11. Arizona, Massachusetts, North Dakota and Washington, 3.4; 15. South Carolina, Minnesota, Connecticut and Hawaii, 3.3; 19. New Mexico and Texas, 3.2.

21. North Carolina, Iowa, New Jersey and Utah, 3.1; 25. Florida, Arkansas, California and Oklahoma, 3.0; 29. Illinois, Wisconsin, Alabama and Oregon, 2.9.

33. New York and Mississippi, 2.8; 35. Delaware, South Dakota and Idaho, 2.7; 38. Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia, 2.6.

41. Nebraska, Kansas and Kentucky, 2.5; 44. Ohio and Indiana, 2.3; 46. Michigan and Montana, 2.2; 48. Alaska, 2.1; 49. Maryland, 2.0; 50. Pennsylvania, 1.8; 51. District of Columbia, 1.7.

171 Iranians Await Word On Deportation

By BEN WALKER
Associated Press Writer

OTISVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Shackled in irons and chains, 171 Iranians arrived Saturday at a federal prison to await word on whether they will be deported. Meanwhile, sympathizers continued a hunger strike in Washington, and Tehran radio reported talks were under way for the detainees' "unconditional release."

The Iranian men, supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, were among 193 people apprehended last Sunday outside the White House during a celebration of the death of the deposed shah. They have refused to identify themselves, and many will not eat.

Twenty women taken into custody in Washington are being held in New York City, and four men are hospitalized.

David Crosland, acting commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said in Washington that any of the detained Iranians could be released this weekend or possibly Monday if they identified themselves and their visa status was found to be valid.

He told reporters those who want to return to Iran would be allowed to, without identifying themselves, and that the United States "will fly them back."

Crosland said immigration regulations require aliens wishing to stay in this country to provide information on their identity. For those who fail to do so — as have the Iranians — deportation proceedings will begin Monday, with the first hearing a week later, he said.

Once an Iranian identifies himself, he said, the INS will check his status to determine whether he is violating the conditions under which he was allowed into the United States. Most of the demonstrators are believed to be in this country on student visas.

One by one, immigration and prison officials here escorted the 171 men from five chartered green and white buses that brought them from a Newburgh, N.Y., airfield.

"They're not giving the staff any problems," said J. Michael Quinlan, warden of the Federal Correctional Institution. "They all look very tired."

In Washington, State Department spokesman George Havens said the Algerian Embassy has been in contact with U.S. officials on behalf of the detainees. He refused to elaborate, and the Algerian Embassy, which protects Iranian interests in Washington, declined comment.

But Iran's official Tehran radio, in a broadcast reported at the State Department, said talks were in progress for the "unconditional release of our student brothers and sisters as soon as possible."

The United States broke diplomatic relations with Iran after militants stormed the U.S. Embassy in Tehran last November, taking Americans hostages. Fifty-two Americans were in their 273rd day of captivity Saturday.

Crosland denied that any of the Iranians had been mishandled by federal officials and said medical attention and food as well as access to legal counsel was available to them.

Some of the Iranians have refused to eat since their detention and Crosland said two of them have been force-fed intravenously.

In front of the White House on Saturday, about 40 Iranians continued a sitdown protest against the detention of their countrymen. A rope put up by police separated demonstrators from passers-by. Protesters said they had gone without food for six days, but appeared in good condition.

The 171 Iranians, wearing leg irons, waist chains and handcuffs, had to be carried from the transport planes to buses. They quietly entered the prison under their own power at dawn, and the security devices were removed after they were put in individual cells.

One man who was unconscious on arrival was taken to Horton Memorial Hospital in Middletown, N.Y. A hospital spokesman said the man was in fair condition, suffering from dehydration and convulsions — both perhaps linked to not eating.

Two others were hospitalized in Middletown on Saturday with apparent symptoms of dehydration.

Completes Draft On Billy

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter gathered a team of legal advisers at his Camp David mountain retreat Saturday to complete the final draft of the report he will send to a Senate committee probing Billy Carter's Libyan ties.

Press secretary Jody Powell said the report, to be made public Monday, will be accompanied by some previously unpublished "supporting" documents. But he sidestepped a question on whether it will include any major revelations.

Carter expects to hold a nationally televised news conference Monday evening to answer questions about it.

The special Senate panel asked Carter July 29 to provide a report on Billy Carter's relationship with the Libyan government and on any influence the president's brother may have had on U.S. policy toward Libya, among other things. It also asked for a wide variety of documents.

Powell, White House counsel Lloyd Cutler and Alfred Moses, Washington lawyer and adviser on Jewish affairs, flew to Camp David Saturday afternoon to join the president for an overnight stay. Also attending the sessions at the rustic hideaway was Atlanta attorney Charles Kirbo, Carter's close friend and mentor.

Powell said the report has been completed, but "some small, minor areas" were likely still being reviewed to determine "if there's anything more that can be said about them.

"What we have been dealing with here is a tremendous quantity of material and paperwork and people's recollections, and the White House counsel's office has had to talk to a lot of people," he noted.

"They've had to have a lot of people — combing back through records, notes, that sort of thing. And even if that is done perfectly — and there are very few things that are both mortal and perfect — there is always a possibility that there is something that does not show up there."

In a sidenote, Powell disclosed that Carter worked on his "acceptance speech" when he was at Camp David last weekend — reflecting his confidence that he will win renomination as the presidential candidate.

Documents On Billy Released

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTOPN (UPI) — The White House released documents Saturday indicating Billy Carter lingered in Libya during a 1979 visit in hopes of meeting with strongman Muammar Khadafy — but the U.S. Embassy felt he could be of little use.

Press secretary Jody Powell showed reporters a cable dated Aug. 31, 1979 and two letters dealing with Billy's visit to Libya about that time.

In one letter, William Eagleton, who headed the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli, wrote that Billy "has stayed on in Tripoli mainly because of a suggestion that Khadafy will receive him."

Eagleton said he invited Billy to the embassy for a swim and "I went over some impressions that he might usefully convey to Khadafy if they do meet. He is quite apolitical and would not be useful as a conduit to Khadafy on specific substance."

A White House aide said Billy Carter never did meet with Khadafy.

Eagleton also said Billy Carter attended a dinner where Vanessa Redgrave, the English actress who has been active in Palestinian causes, was present.

Eagleton sent the letter and cables to Alan Roy, chief of the Libyan desk at the State Department.

Powell said release of the documents Saturday meant "essentially all of the communications" on Billy Carter's controversial Libyan trips now have been made public. "The only reason for making it public is to satisfy your curiosity," he told reporters.

Billy Carter registered as a foreign agent for Libya last month after receiving 220,000 from Khadafy's government. Congress is investigating his Libyan connections and trying to determine if he influenced the president on U.S. policy toward the radical Arab nation.

The matter has grown so controversial that some Democrats fear President Carter will suffer from it politically this fall, even if he wins renomination.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Saturday the case demonstrated "an example of bad judgment and some rather amateurish handling of foreign policy." The president should not engage in "family diplomacy," he said.

Billy Carter discussed the 220,000 in Libyan money with reporters in Americus, Ga., Saturday, saying that while it a loan, there were no formal papers drawn up. He said he informally offered his home as collateral, even though there was a tax claim against it.

He declined to say if he has repaid any of the money.

The White House anowledged for the first time Friday night that the president had sent his brother copies of a State Department cable after Billy's 1978 visit to Libya — and told him he had done a "good job."

Burroughs Wellcome Handles Emergency Drug Shipments

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"It's one of the services that, when you're in this kind of business, you do," James Goes, pharmaceutical production director at Burroughs Wellcome Co., said last week while discussing the emergency shipment of life-saving drugs from BW's Greenville and Research Triangle Park facilities.

Arthur Dickerman, BW's traffic manager agreed. "It's become such a standard thing, we don't keep any records. We do these things, then forget about them." But, Dickerman added, BW may handle, "20 to 25," emergency calls per month, "during the normal working day."

It's not usually the normal working day emergency that creates the problems. Emergency calls seem "easy during normal business hours." It's the night calls and weekend emergencies — when everything slows down — that pose the challenge, Dickerman explained.

He should know. It's Dickerman, according to Goes, who usually makes the travel arrangements for emergency shipments while Tom Martin, head of stock and shipping, is packaging the order.

"Speed is important," Dickerman said. "We line up some sort of route," to deliver the drug where it is needed as soon as possible.

BW employees may drive from Greenville to the Raleigh-Durham airport to deliver the package to Airborne Freight Corporation (an air-express service which BW has used for 25 years), or a regularly scheduled airline (which may hold a flight until the emergency shipment arrives. Or, packages may leave or be delivered by private plane, a chartered flight, a highway patrol car, aircraft from the Marine Corps, the U.S. Navy, or the Air National Guard, a taxicab, or any combination needed to do the job.

Another problem that confronts emergency shipments, according to Dickerman, is that they seem never to go to big cities. "It's always 300 miles away."

Goes explained, "certain drugs are considered life-saving," but may not be used as often as others, and may not be immediately available. Or a medical facility's stock may be low. Such a situation might result in an emergency call.

According to Dickerman, a child was poisoned in Ohio. A chartered plane flew a package of atropine — to block stimulations going to the heart — from Pitt-Greenville to Raleigh-Durham, where the package was transferred to another flight for Cincinnati. The child was treated and lived.

A Massachusetts child survived because the North Carolina Highway Patrol relayed a drug to Raleigh-Durham to connect with an airline flight to New York that had been held for 45 minutes for the package. A New York taxi-cab driver picked the package up at the airport and delivered it to the Springfield, Mass. hospital nine hours after the call for help went out.

Airborne left Raleigh-Durham after receiving a package from Greenville, by way of the Highway Patrol, and in spite of bad weather, closed airports and snow storms, delivered the drug to Washington, D. C. Twelve hours after it was requested, the drug was delivered by the Virginia highway patrol - in time to save the patient.

A drug, needed by a close friend of an official of a South American country, was delivered to the official's personal pilot in a motel room. He flew the small package home in his coat pocket.

Imuran, used in transplant surgery to prevent the rejection mechanism of the body from throwing off the transplanted organ or limb, Anectine, a short acting muscle relaxer, clinical trial materials — new drugs not available in the marketplace — and drugs used in the treatment of cancer and sight-threatening eye infections, are among the most common emergency shipments.

Some things are now stored in Raleigh, Dickerman explained, because transportation is more readily available.

But whatever it takes to have an emergency shipment delivered, Goes emphasized, "there's no extra charge . . . even if we have to hire a plane."

"How can you put a price on something like that," Dickerman asked.

"Once people know there is a problem . . . everyone cooperates," according to Goes. "When the chips are down, people make an effort . . . use their ingenuity."

Off Hours For Doctor's Office

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — A doctor who has campaigned for more efficient health care systems has restructured his office hours so he can be visited at nights and on weekends 365 days a year.

"This office change is a practical application of my belief that the health care delivery system must meet the needs of the consumer," Dr. Sajj Dharnidharka, 35, an internist, said Friday.

He said his office will be open from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to midnight Saturday and Sunday. He said another physician will assist him.

Dharnidharka, who received his medical training in his native India and in the United States, has practiced medicine in Stockton the past five years.

He is also the founder of the consumer action group Taxpayers for Efficient Health Care, which stresses preventive medicine.

No Meal Will Be Served

American Legion Bldg.

Tom Metts was born in Bennettsville, S.C. in 1946. He received his education at Baptist College in Charleston, S.C., Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest, N.C., and had clinical training at Dorothea Dix Mental Hospital in Raleigh. While in college, he was on the track and soccer team, sports editor of the college newspaper, editor of yearbook, marshall, and listed in Who's Who. Tom received the Lord his senior year in college and received the Holy Spirit the first year in the seminary. He has served as pastor of several Baptist churches and is presently pastor of the New Covenant Church in Raleigh, N.C. He has ministered in England, Scotland, Austria, and Switzerland. In 1977 he was awarded the Outstanding Young Man of America. He is presently the N.C. State Director of Prison Fellowship.

The FGBMFI is not a church or denomination. We are a fellowship of business and lay people who hold the Lord Jesus Christ first in all phases of life. We are a service arm of the Body of Christ seeking first to bring people to a realistic, saving knowledge of Jesus Christ and second, to help Christians experience a deeper, more personal relationship with Jesus Christ. We believe that God, through Jesus Christ, is interested in every area of our life, mind, body and soul. With his wisdom and guidance, we are willing to minister to you His love, peace and joy.

Development Of Peat Can Help

It was recently reported that Texasgulf and East Carolina University have received a contract for a combined study of peat as an additive fuel for oil burning furnances used by industries.

A photo showed Texasgulf and ECU officials demnstrating the burning capability of peat.

There is a large quantity of peat in Eastern North Carolina. It is an ancient fuel whose use gave way to coal, oil and other modern energy sources.

It is not likely that North Carolina's peat will solve all the nation's energy problems. There is not enough for that. It is, however, an important potential fuel source which should be looked at along with all the other alternatives to imported oil.

We think the answer to our energy needs over the next century will not be found in one sensational development. Rather it will require the development of many energy sources . . . coal, wood, alcohol and perhaps peat among other things. Solar energy will play a part and learning to use our energy sources far more efficiently than we do will be most important.

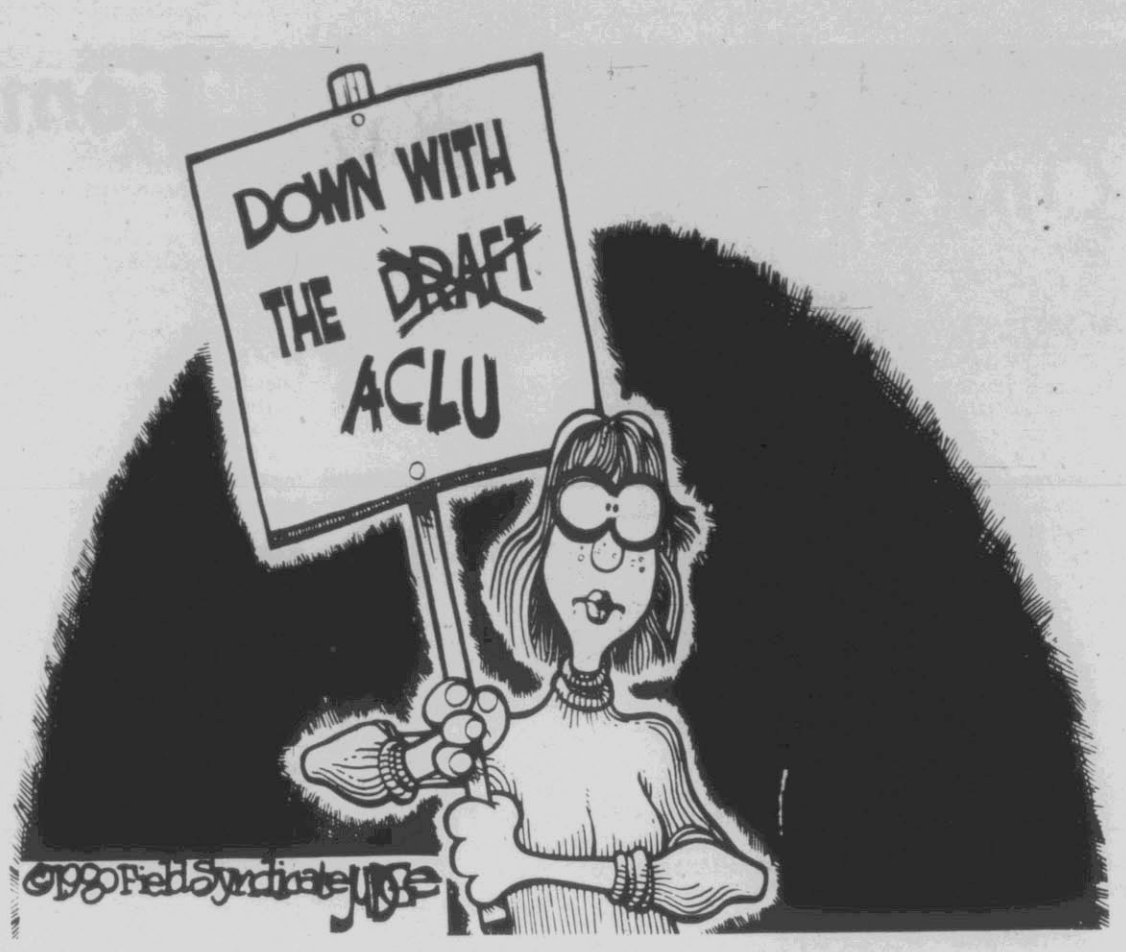
Peat will be only a part of it, but the energy source is there and we are on the right track to begin studies of how this can be efficiently used.

Rising Economic Indicator Offers Hope

There isn't much in government economic figures to comfort the man who has been laid off from his job, but if we can beleive the latest figures there might be better financial days ahead.

The Commerce Department's index of future economic trends, for the first time this year took a sharp increase for June. Since this falling barometer forecast the current recession we can assume its rise foretells an improving economy.

Since forcasting the economy has never been an exact science, there is no guarantee of that, but nevertheless the indicator does give hope that the recession will soon end.



SUNDAY MORNING

Foul-Up In Census Effort

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Amidst growing concern in numerous North Carolina communities that mistakes in the 1980 Census process will deprive them of state and federal revenues, and a loss of prestige because growth is less than anticipated, comes an even more distressing report.

U.S. Census Bureau spokesmen admit that some of the miscount can be attributed to cheating by the censustakers.

Scores of people were hired to do follow-up work in the field when forms which were supposed to have been mailed in never showed up. Those workers were put on "piece goods" pay scales: $4.50 for a completed long-form questionaire; $2.40 for a short form; $1.75 for each house listed as vacant; and nothing but a return trip to try again if the house is reported unoccupied at the particular time.

So, some enumerators figured out that if they reported the house vacant they would get paid something, and save a return visit. Enough of those, and you could make the money without doing the work.

Response

The way in which some government agencies respond to such attitudes by some employees is also revealing. From time to time it is learned that meter readers are "reading in the shade". That is, they sit beneath a shade tree and average out the meter readings for two or three months instead of actually doing the hard job of checking the instrument at each house.

Then, periodically, the meters are actually checked to produce an accurate figure which quite often results in the bill taking a sudden jump.

Some local governments have decided to fight this practice by the simple expedient of making reading in the shade accepted procedure; billing citizens monthly, but only checking the figures on the meters periodically.

More Waste

Another revealing commentary on governmental bureaucracy came the other day from a pair of veteran employees at Stonewall Jackson School at Concord. Mr. and Mrs. Malcom Cheek have completed nearly 30 years at the training school for juveniles.

There used to be a "family" atmosphere in the cottages, and the youngsters went to school, worked on the farm, held outside jobs, and complied with cottage discipline. The farm and dairy and most of the vocational education is gone "leaving practically nothing for the boys to do after their classes at school", Mrs. Cheek said.

The state bureaucracy "has grown so large and unwieldy it is almost powerless to implement any kind of a program. When we went on the job there were four people in the central office in Raleigh. Now there are 70.

"We had 51 staff members and 350 boys when I went to work. Now there are 130 staff members and 135 boys and girls," Mrs. Cheek told the "Concord Tribune".

BILL NOBLITT

And so, with the population at the schools cut nearly in half by removal of status offenders who had not committed criminal acts, and two of the schools closed, Mrs. Cheek reports there are many fine and dedicated staff people in the field, trying, but "so often their hands are tied by people in the bureaucracy who have no experience in operating an institution and no idea how it should be done."

Sunday Morning Notes

Vacation. Is there a word any more exciting?

Vacation time for your columnist came a couple of weeks ago and after a year crowded with learning a new news computer system and moving into a new home, the break was welcome.

For us vacation meant a few days at Myrtle Beach, which is now one of the real major resort areas of the east coast. The Grand Strand is noted, not only for its wide beaches, sunny days and golf courses, but also for its night life which equals that of the largest cities.

Your columnist stayed at the Holiday Inn Downtown and the featured attraction there was Chubby Checker who gained fame some years ago with the "Twist". The dance was the rage for a time and is still seen occasionally, although it is given way to many other dances since. Chubby, however, is still going strong and he packed the fans in at the Holiday Inn.

He was also very accessible to fans around the hotel, venturing over to a smaller lounge after his show was over, where he willingly signed autographs and agreeably talked to people who came up.

He also spent some time on

It was obvious that fame hadn't turned the head of Chubby Checker as he engaged in conversation with various people who approached him during the day.

A rock band headed by a talented entertainer plays each afternoon at the Holiday Inn at poolside for a couple of hours. The concert is free to hotel guests and, of course, anyone can wander up off the beach to listen.

One afternoon, the entertainer who headed the band persuaded the irrespressible Chubby Checker to mount the small stage and perform a number.

The word spread like wildfire and within minutes a huge crowd had gathered to hear free the famed singer whose concerts at night cost $10 per person.

It struck us as remarkable that a well-known entertainer who can draw the paying crowds at night would perform for nothing during the afternoon.

But the best entertainers love what they are doing and they know that without the fans they would be nothing

Agency With Woes

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — To much of the world, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service is the government of the United States, and what it stands for.

In a typical year, the INS deals with more than a quarter of a billion people at America's gateways. With a nod of the head, an INS functionary can decide whether someone will return to a life of poverty or be admitted to the United States with its promise of reward, liberty and sometimes simple survival.

But because of the press of business, the shortage of staff and the inadequacy of automated record-keeping methods, it's a decision that often has to be made in seconds.

INS needs a leader. Leonel J. Castillo resigned as commissioner last August and Matt Garcia, a Texas state representative, was nominated last month by President Carter. He will take over an agency plagued by problems.

Its former No. 2 man and 51 other employees have been investigated on charges of corruption.

It can't keep up with its paperwork; it can't find 50,000 of the two million records on file in its New York City office.

Its chief job is to guard the borders and to admit aliens — or keep them out. But it doesn't know whether there are two million in this country illegally, as some authorities estimate, or 10 million, as others say.

Each year it apprehends well over a million who sneak in illegally. But it knows that it misses far more than it catches, a

Other Editors Say
Foreign Aid Flaws

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Official foreign aid programs as currently operated should be radically reformed if not abolished completely, according to Professor Peter Bauer of the London School of Economics.

Speaking in Washington recently, Bauer said the adverse repercussions of foreign aid programs are felt by both aid-giving and aid-receiving countries.

For the Western industrial nations giving foreign aid, official "wealth transfers" act as a drain on the resources they need to devote to domestic economic problems.

Never was this more true than for the United States at the present time.

Bauer refutes the claim of some proponents of foreign aid that the benefits of international wealth transfers are reciprocal. "It is economic sophistry to assert that those who give away their wealth must necessarily be better off and so be able to have more trade with them", he said.

"A shopkeeper does not flourish by giving his cash to people who may later spend some of it in his shop." That makes sense, yet advocates of foreign aid — all going in one direction — claim to see great and noble advantages in such a silly practice.

Nor are there significant political benefits to Western nations who participate in international wealth transfers. The Soviet bloc is represented in the major international agencies and can therefore influence the allocation of multilateral transfers even though its own financial contribution is small.

About a third of all Western aid is now channeled through international agencies that don't take into account the political interests of the donor.

The less developed countries who receive this aid suffer ill effects under the present system. Such aid accelerates and aggravates the disastrous politicization of life in the Third World and intensifies the struggle for political power.

Such aid increases the money, patronage and power of the recipient governments and thereby their grip over the rest of society. Certainly the masses don't benefit through such foreign aid.

The blunt fact is that foreign aid is promoting totalitarian systems in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Reform Era Saves Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — In whispered conversations on the Senate floor and in the cloakroom, Democratic senators agree there is only one way to get rid of Jimmy Carter in 1980: Send a delegation of senior Democrats to the White House to convince him to step down in favor of Ed Muskie.

That such a step is even considered testifies to intense fears of an unbearable Carter drag in the 1980 election, fanned less by the Billy Carter affair than last weekend's Lou Harris poll warning of a Republican takeover of Congress. Yet, the Senate talks and worried huddles on the House side agree that, barring new sensations, there is no way to deprive President Carter of renomination if he fights back.

These members of Congress realize what much of the public and many politicians do not: The decade of "reform" has so radically changed the nominating process that the threatening anti-Carter talk the last few days is largely irrelevant. The Democratic National Convention is almost totally removed from the influence of the party's elected officeholders.

Officeholders, many seeking November re-election, are panic-stricken by polls and headlines. A few even fear a Ronald Reagan landslide and a seminal election on the lines of 1932, rearranging party balances.

What's more, they are in remarkable agreement about what to do: Replace Carter but not with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy. Far and away the overwhelming choice is Secretary of State Muskie. If he were paired with a Southerner (say Sen. Sam Nunn from Carter's Georgia) the odds favoring Reagan would become less formidable and officeholders seeking reelection would breathe easier.

As late as 1968, such force of opinion would have threatened the end of Carter. But a dozen years of reform have thinned the ranks of officeholders among the 3,331 delegates.

Nevertheless, anti-Carter forces propose an "upstairs-downstairs" strategy to open up the convention in the Aug. 11 rules fight, leading to the nomination of Muskie (or perhaps Vice President Walter F. Mondale). Members of Congress "upstairs" will call for rebellion by the delegates "downstairs" which will result in a Carter rules fight defeat. But just who these "upstairs" rebel leaders will be is another matter.

Word was quietly spread, for instance, that Sen J. James Exon of Nebraska might lead the way to open the convention. While a freshman senator and scarcely a national power, former Gov. Exon is a moderate Democrat well respected in the Senate. But aside from telling us that Carter ought to "show a little strength" by foregoing the proposed rule binding delegates, Exon avoided taking sides. In fact, he is not attending the convention.

That is true of a surprisingly high number of his colleagues in both Houses of Congress who see many reasons not to be in New York in August. Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, the House majority whip wished for by stop-Carter forces as a leading player in the drama, will be nowhere near Madison Square Garden.

But even if Exon, Brademas and others braved summer in New York, their impact on Carter's 1,990 delegates would be minimal. they were picked for loyalty to the president, know few of the endangered office seekers and lose little sleep over the Strength For Today

A MODERN IDOL

A little more than 100 years ago Karl Marx called upon men to drag God off the throne of their thinking and crown in His stead a usurper whom Marx called "dialectical materialism". For years before publication of his discovery he lingered long in the library of the British Museum combing the pages of history and interpreting everything he found there in terms of economic determinism. He ascribed no independent reality at all to spiritual influences.

Some people think that the worst aspect of Marx's labors was providing the stimulus for the erection of the monolithic communist states which oppress their people and deprive them of their heritage of natural and civil rights. But perhaps a more disadvantageous effect of Marx's works was creating a philosophy of materialism which has penetrated every corner of the civilized world. The millions of people who are overly or tacitly materialists will find that their great god will give them no peace — merely anxiety and cupidity. — Elisha Douglass

The Inflidletax Index Needed

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The trouble with the misery index — that's a combination of the inflation and jobless rates — is that it doesn't tell just how miserable things really are. It doesn't measure taxes.

An improvement, it seems, would be the inflidletax index, a simple combination of inflation, idleneness and the rate of tax increases.

President Carter might not like that, but he is the one who started the whole business when, as a candidate in 1976, he devised his misery index to show how poorly Gerald Ford was handling the economy.

Back then the index stood at about 12 percent. Under Carter it soared to as much as 24 percent and even now stands at 19.7 percent, enough for him to wish he had never been so clever in the first place.

But, clever as it was, the misery index failed to take into account those tax increases, which in recent years have been a growing cause of discomfort, regardless of all that political talk about tax cuts.

In the period from 1976 to the fall of 1979, for example, it appears that federal income and Social Security taxes, to say nothing of other taxes, rose faster for most families than did prices as a whole.

In many cases, however, this knowledge was hidden from the public because there has been no easily understood measure of tax pain, as there is for the discomfort of unemployment and inflation.

Instead, you might recall, we blamed our vague distress on the middleman or unions or corporate greed or unfair foreign competition or a malaise of the spirit or a dozen other scapegoats.

Finally, however, an easily understood measure of tax increases has been developed by economists at the Tax Foundation, thus filling in the important missing ingreadient in the old misery index.

You may, therefore, add to the 12 percent inflation rate (as measured by the consumer price index), and the 7.7 percent jobless rate, a 13 percent taxflation rate, for an inflidletax index of 32.7.

For the time being, it is probably best to round those numbers off, for a couple of reasons. First, inflation and joblessness are fluctuating. Second, that 13 percent is really the rate for 1979.

However, the rounding won't change the picture. It is unlikely that inflation or idleness will improve much over the next couple of months, and it is unlikely also that 1980 tax increases are less than in 1979.

Later this year it will be possible to use a more precise figure for taxes, because the Tax Foundation promises to compute its index on a quarterly basis in order to allow more up-to-date comparisons.

As of the end of 1979, the foundation's index of federal, state and local taxes stood at 336.4, a jump of 39 index points or 13 percent over 1978. The base year of 1967 was given an index of 100.

From 1975 through 1979, it reports, the upward sweep of taxes has been enormous. "The tax index jumped 65 percent, more than twice the 30 percent rise in prices, and over three times the 21 percent rise in the real output of the private business sector," it statess.

But the trend, though not so pronounced, has been evident for many more years. In 1960, the tax index stood at only 61.9. By 1967, of course, it was 100, doubling to just over 200 by 1975. By the end of 1981, if trends continue, it appears likely to double again.

Although state and local taxes put the greatest upward pressure on the tax index during the late 1960s and early 1970s, federal taxes have been the culprit in the past few years. From 1975 through 1979 they rose 74 percent, while state and local taxes rose a bit more than 50.

Those figures certainly obsolete the old misery index and demand to be included in any new measure of discomfort.

Better Show On Key Issue

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — The Republican Party makes its best showing since the 1972 presidential election campaign on the Gallup Poll issue barometer, a key predictor of the outcome of national elections.

For nearly 35 years the Gallup Poll has asked Americans what they consider to be the most important problem facing the nation and which political party they think can better deal with that problem.

In the current survey, 52 percent of those who choose between the parties think the Republicans are better able to deal with the problems they consider to be most important while 48 percent name the Democratic Party.

In all previous surveys going back to October 1972, when the GOP was the choice of 57 percent of the public, the Democratic Party has led on this sensitive barometer of voter intentions. The Democratic margin has been as wide as 28 percentage points, in the spring of 1975.

In 60 Gallup Poll measurements dating to 1945, when the question series was begun, the GOP has been named more often than the Democratic Party only 10 times as being better able to deal with the national problem considered most important at the time.

INFLATION STILL SEEN AS NO. 1 PROBLEM

The problem cited most often in the current survey is the high cost of living (named by 56 percent), followed by unemployment (15 percent), international problems (12 percent) and dissatisfaction with government (8 percent).

These findings represent little change from the previous (June) study. In that survey 59 percent named the high cost of living as the No. 1 problem facing the nation, followed by 16 percent citing international problems, 14 percent unemployment and 5 percent dissatisfaction with government.

Following is the question asked to identify the key concerns of the American people:

"What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?"

MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEM FACING NATION

High cost of living	56%
Unemployment	15
International problems	12
Dissatisfaction with government	8
Energy problems	6
Moral decline	5
All others	14
No opinion	3
Total	119%

*Total adds to more than 100 percent because of multiple responses.

All persons who named a problem were then asked this question:

"Which political party do you think can do a better job of handling the problem you have just mentioned — the Republican Party or the Democratic Party?"

PARTY BETTER ABLE TO HANDLE MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEM

Republican	30%
Democratic	27
No difference	30
No opinion	13

Dividing those who say there is no difference or do not express an opinion equally between the two parties, this division between the parties is obtained:

Republican	52%

INFLATION TOP CONCERN WITH ALL GROUPS

Despite rising unemployment in recent months — and widespread concern about joblessness in the months ahead — all groups in the populace name the high cost of living as the No. 1 problem facing the nation, including persons in those segments of the population hardest hit by unemployment — unskilled workers, persons from lower-income families and non-whites.

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,548 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period July 11-14.

health of the Democratic Party. As Mondale's political aide, Richard Moe, has said, the delegates of 1980 are merely agents of the candidate to whom they are pledged.

Most worried Democrats on Capitol Hill understand this new order. Their only hope is that Carter, following Lyndon B. Johnson's 1968 example under radically different circumstances, will withdraw. But since Carter will not, talk has turned to sending a congressional delegation down Pennsylvania Avenue to ask the president to step aside for the good of the nation (and the party).

In the Senate, talk has centered on a three-senator delegation: Robert Byrd of West Virginia, the Senate majority leader; Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, retiring with honor after 18 years; and Carter's esteemed fellow Georgian, Sam Nunn. All have deep reservations about the president, and none has supported Kennedy.

It would take worse news and gloomier polls to dispatch any such delegation down the Avenue before Aug. 11. But even so, would Carter weep and submit as President Nixon did when three Republican elders traced a similar route in August 1974..

Nixon was on the brink of impeachment; Carter is nowhere near it. The former governor of Georgia who emerged from obscurity to become president against the party establishment's wishes and then overcame the odds again to whip a certain part of Teddy Kennedy's anatomy is not about to heed any plea from Senate elders. Jimmy intends to keep those Carterite. robots disguised as delegates, whatever frightened Democrats in Congress want.

And what would a vacation be without the threat of rain? It was there, at Myrtle Beach. Each day the forecast was for 40 to 50 percent chance of rain. There were some showers but, lo and behold, the sun shined generally the days we were there. . . all except the final day as check-out time approached. Heavy, dark clouds rolled in and a tremendous downpour developed.

Somehow we had to feel a little smug about our choice of days as we watched the glum faces of those checking into $70 per night rooms.

Needing it is hard.

Turkey Creek Tragedy Stirred Safety Action

By NOEL YANCEY

On an October day in 1940, a crowded school bus and an ice truck traveling a country road in Nash County, approached each other on a blind curve. The two vehicles met on a narrow wooden bridge over Turkey Creek where the bus sideswiped the truck. A nine-foot section of steel sheathing was ripped from the bus body, and seven school children were killed.

A coroner's jury blamed neither Charles Bryant, the 18-year-old driver of the bus whose younger brother and sister were killed in the wreck, nor Milton "Pete" Bryant, 22 — no relation — who was driving the truck. It said there was no evidence either was speeding or was driving recklessly.

Instead, it blamed the state Highway Commission, saying it was guilty of criminal negligence for not clearing brush from the road right-of-way. It also blamed the Nash County Board of Education, saying it was guilty of negligence in loading 72 children aboard a bus built for 42.

That wreck has gone down in history as the worst school bus mishap since school bus transportation began in the state back in 1913-14. It was also the last school bus accident in which more than one child was killed while riding a school bus in North Carolina. In fact, it has been nearly a decade since a child was fatally injured while abroad a North Carolina school bus. There were instances in 1975-76 and in 1978-79 when children fell from moving buses and were killed.

In 1978-79, however, in addition to the one child killed when he fell from a bus, seven others were killed in bus accidents mostly when they were run over by school buses either as they were preparing to board a bus or immediately after they got off.

That rash of deaths brought a public outcry for greater school bus saftey. There were demands that the high school youths who drive three-fourths of the buses be replaced by adult drivers or at least that 16-year-olds, who are involved in more wrecks percentagewise, be eliminated. Others wanted monitors to ride the buses to help the young drivers keep order. Some parents took their children off the buses and started driving them to school in the family car.

Because of the clamor, the state House of Representatives named a subcommittee to investigate the school bus saftey issue and to make recommendations on how buses could be made safer. The subcommittee, headed by Rep. George Miller of Durham, conducted several public hearings.

An early witness was W.F. Tillett, director of transportation for the State Board of Education. He told the legislators his office and the board had already taken steps to improve saftey. He pointed out that the state had purchased 8,200 gadgets known as walk control arm devices to be installed on all buses carrying children to elementary schools. The gadgets include an arm several feet long which unfolds when a bus stops. The arm forces tiny tots to walk several feet in front of the bus so that the driver can see them. Tillet also testified that buses to be purchased in the future will be equipped with tachographs which will keep a record of a buses' operations — its speed and the stops it makes. He also pointed out that the Board of Education had decreed an end to standees on

Putting An Angry Bull In Corral Can Be Rough

On our tobacco farm in eastern North Carolina, we run as a sideline a small herd of 75 Black angus cattle. Over the years I was often called upon to help drive them — until one unforgettable day when I gained a healthy respect for Black Angus and grew considerably older and wiser in the process.

The huge bull grazed peacefully with his harem, occasionally snorting jealously at some younger bull which would some day challenge him. He looked up as my husband, William, and son, Bill, and I rode up in the truck, then lowered his head and continued cropping the tender clover. The herd was accustomed to the truck; in fact, when they were hungry they ran to meet it, for from it came bales of sweet Bermuda hay and luscious ears of corn.

This day was different; we had come to separate the bull from the cows, to drive him into the corral. I did not expect any trouble, for we had done this any number of times before.

William expertly cut the bull from the herd and motioned for Bill and me to get out and flank him on each side, I picked up a tobacco stick and moved into position. We started closing in, waving the sticks while William, in the truck, blew the horn.

Instead of turning and moving toward the corral, the huge animal stood still and stared at me. He had always been docile; I felt no fear and moved in closer, brandishing my stick. Suddenly he started pawing the ground with his front feet and bellowed shrilly. William, realizing the danger, yelled at me to run. I saw the danger too, but I stood rooted to the spot. paralyzed, unable to move.

He came at me, his massive head lowered, while I watched in a detatched sort of way. I did not even feel the blow when he hit me with his powerful head and, unable to check his speed, ran over me. He turned and came back rolling me over with his head. Fortunately he did not have horns. I opened my eyes and stared directly into his, so close that I could see the red veins and feel the hot breath from his nostrils. I could see the thick ring of foam around his mouth. I closed my eyes again and lay motionless.

After a time that seemed endless, William and Bill were there beside me. They grabbed the bull around the neck. Willaim shouted, "Get up and run!"

Feeling was returning to my body now, and the pain in my chest made my breath come in short gasps. "I can't get up; I'm hurt," I moaned.

"You have to get up," he said desperately. "We can't hold him," and his voice was oddly gentle.

In spite of my broken ribs and bruises, I pulled myself up by William's pants leg and ran. I could hear the rapid steps of the men behind me and the thunder of the bull's hooves. All three of us made a flying leap into the truck and slammed the door shut just as the bull hit it with his lowered head. "Get down where he can't see you," William whispered.

The bull weighed two thousand pounds, and he was completely berserk now. Pawing and bellowing in a high, shrill voice, he was circling the truck. There was the sound of splintering glass as he broke the headlight; the truck rocked as he pushed his immense weight against it. Crouching silently in the foot, we waited for his anger to abate. After a time he stood still, panting with loud, rasping breaths, and we cautiously peeked at him. His eyes looked like red coals, and foam poured from his mouth, but he made no futher move to attack.

"How are we going to get the bastard now?" William asked disgustedly.

"I'll get out and run toward the corral," Bill said. "You drive along side and when he gets too close, I'll jump in the truck."

I was appalled at this suggestion and tried to protest, but no words came.

They repeated this maneuver until Bill finally ran into the corral with the bull in hot pursuit. Bill went over the fence and closed the gate."We got him!" they exulted.

The enraged animal trotted around the enclosure, realizing that he was trapped. He stopped, shook his massive head furiously, and gathering his huge muscles, charged the fence. The strong tightly woven steel fence buckled and gave way. The bull stared at us, gave one last shrill, defiant bellow and trotted back across the pasture to rejoin his harem.

HIS SHIP THAT NEVER CAME IN!

Prospect Of Moving Is Fresh Basis For Panic

By GAIL MICHAELS

When Phillip announced that he had been offered a job in Smithfield, N.C., my immediate response was, "But I still haven't learned my way around Durham."

I spent the entire afternoon of my first day in Durham trying to get off the downtown loop. And it took me six months just to find an entrance to the Duke campus.

I've been told that this is understandable, considering that Durham's original traffic engineers used an illustration of the minotaur's labyrinth as a model.

Unfortunately, my abysmal sense of direction is not confined to Durham. Phillip claims that I lived in Greenville for three years before I learned that all roads didn't lead to Belk's.

Naturally then, I did not break into song at the thought of learning to navigate in a town I had always thought was in Virginia. And I was even less enthusiastic about having to drive there from Durham for the first time by myself. Phillip's explanation that Smithfield was southeast of Raleigh merely let me know that it was somewhere between Richmond and Atlanta.

Helpful friends were eager to supply me with more information. "You won't have any trouble finding it," one volunteered. "There's this sign right outside of town that says, 'Welcome to Klan Country.'"

"So much for local color. Have you considered welfare as an alternative?" I asked Phillip that afternoon.

"Calm down. The sign has been removed."

"Well, at least it would have told me where I was."

"I promise you. You won't have any problem."

"You'd probably say that to a lemming."

"Gail, you stay on 70 on all the way here. You can't get lost."

"Remember, I'm the woman who had to sit in the Lost and Found for three hours at Six Flags Over Georgia."

"Don't worry. And when you get there, I'll give you the same tour of the local landmarks that I got today."

"What did you see?"

"Yeah, it's got a drugstore, a grocery store, and an applicance store."

"It doesn't sound as if I could get lost if I wanted to...Will I want to?"

"You'll love it there. The people are great. Now what I want you to do when you get there is to take a right at the second stoplight, then turn left at the third light..."

"Wait a minute. Smithfield has more than one light?"

"Yes."

I'm in trouble already.

Real Oratory Lost Art At Recent Convention

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Permit me one more discursive reflection, if you will, upon the Republican convention recently concluded in Detroit: The speeches, as speeches, were almost uniformly dreadful.

Something awful has happened to the forensic art in America. Once upon a time we had orators who could move men by the sheer power of spoken words — P atrick Henry, George Mason, John Randolph of Roanoke, Daniel Webster, Abraham Lincoln, In this century, the names of William Jennings Bryan, John W. Davis, Franklin Roosevelt and Martin Luther King leap to mind.

Where are such golden voices now? For four days in Detroit, Republican spokesmen assaulted our eardrums with hammer and awl. With three exceptions, none of the speakers held the crowd. Congressman Jack Kemp of New York was the best of the three, possibly because he also was the briefest. Keynoter Guy Vander Jagt gave us elocution in the old school. Nominee Ronald Reagan held the hall in his hands.

What of the rest? Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas had it exactly right. "The introducers spoke longer than the speakers," he said, "and the speakers spoke too long."

The arrangers of the convention had attempted to fix time limits on the several orators, but these limits were almost wholly ignored. Only George Bush stuck to the rules. He was on and off in seven minutes, thus assuring himself a permanent place in the hearts of the suffering delegates. Almost all the others lost their terminal facilities. They got to a proper ending, and could not quit.

I could not suggest the perfect length for a speech. It is something like a perfect hemline — short enough to get attention, long enough to cover what needs to be covered. Lincoln's Gettysburg Address took two minutes. Edward Everett, speaking on the same occasion, took two hours. The two minutes were perfect. As a newsman, I myself must have heard 10,000 speeches. The greatest speech I ever heard was delivered in Williamsburg, Va., on June ll, 1960, by Charles Malik, former ambassador to the U.N. from Lebanon. Malik spoke without notes for 57 minutes by the clock; he held a tough audience absolutely spellbound.

A few minutes ago I reread the transcribed text of Malik's address, and felt the old tingle of hair on the back of the head. What made it so memorable? The speech bad a beginning, a middle and an end. Malik employed the brilliant orator's most effective devices — cadence, repetition, the rhetorical question. He aimed just over the heads of his audience, commanding their respect and attention. . . Not a single sentence "talked down." There wasn't a cliche, a banality, a shopword phrase. He had something serious to say about communist expansion and the West's response to it, and he said it magnificently.

Well. "Let us open this convention with a solemn warning," said one of the Republican orators. "The hour is late. The crisis is near. Only with a united effort can we pull ourselves back from the brink." This same orator told us the piper had come to be paid. Our economic ship of state, he said, had encountered some rough seas, but now we were sailing into smoother waters. Our hopes are not idle. Our people need only to be reawakened to reclaim our greatness as a nation. Et cetera, et cetera, et cetera.

The black orators at Detroit were as forgettable as the white. Benjamin Hooks of the NAACP, given an opportunity to speak, held the crowd for five minutes and lost them for the next 15. Constance Newman began with problems "threatening the very fabric of our democracy," and concluded with the need "for us all to pull together." On the whole, the female of the species was more appalling than the male — except for Barbara Jordan, a Democrat, no woman ever should be permitted to address a nationa convention again--but the males brought enough bombast to give all orators a sorry name.

In his delightful new book, "Playing to Win," political analyst Jeff Greenfield laments the decline of the spoken word. "The speech," he remarks, "is the centerpiece of political life...The great speech is as powerful a weapon now as it ever has been." At Detroit, no such weapons were in evidence. We saw mostly popguns and wooden swords. And the certain prospect, sad to say, is that two weeks hence in New York, Democratic orators will return the Republicans' paper cannonade with their own cap pistols of balderdash and sham.

In a recent interview, Tillet noted that some of the subcommittee's recommendations already have been implemented. Under a new law enacted by the legislature, no one will qualify for a certificate to drive a school bus until he or she has had an auto driver's license for six months. This could eliminate some of the problem with 16-year-old-drivers. In addition, beginning this fall, the pay of school bus drivers will be boosted to $3.30 per hour — still short of the $4 recommended by the subcommittee.

In their report, the legislators said they were concerned at the number of school bus wrecks, but "statistical analyses indicate . . . a student is safer traveling to school in a school bus than he is in the family car." In fact, the figures show he is several times safer.

Last school year, only one child was killed in a school bus-related aceident. The child was struck by a car while running to catch a bus.

When you consider that 12,000 buses were in operation carrying 750,000 children to and from school each day, chalking up 100 million miles a year, "it seems like someone is doing something right," said Dallas Whitford, Tillett's assistant.

advancements for Eastern North Carolina."

The director emphasized, "it will take liberal giving by interested citizens and industries to provide this valuable asset to our community."

Construction of the new facilities should take 12 to 14 months. The recreation and housing complex will be located on a site adjacent to the present vocational center facilities on Staton Road in the industrial park north of the city.

Congress, in 1977, allocated $2.19 million toward the project, and recently appropriated another $1.5 million.

Low bidder for the general contract was J. H. Hudson, Inc., while the low bidder for the electrical contract was Stuart Shinn. Kinston Plumbing and Heating Co. was the low bidder for the plumbing, heating and air conditioning work.

Low bidder for the pool construction was Carolina Pools, while I. G. Green Services, was the low bidder for the food service equipment.

Dawkins noted that First District Congressman Walter Jones, and Senators Robert Morgan and Jesse Helms played key roles in securing the federal grant funds.

He noted that Jones, Morgan, Helms and other officials have been invited to attend the groundbreaking program, which is open to the public.

School Board Meets Monday

The monthly information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education will be held at Elmhurst Elementary School at 8 p.m. Monday, August 4.

Several items on the agenda will also be up for action by the school board at this meeting, including personal matters — acceptance of resignations and election of staff members, and proposed budget amendments.

Another item on which action will be taken is that of a decision on whether or not to change the length of the school day for kindergarten students. Public input on this topic before a decision is reached will be welcome from any interested parent.

AUTHORITY MEETS

The Greenville Housing Authority will hold its regular meeting on Monday, Aug. 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the Authority's 1103 Broad Street central offices.

Commissioners will consider routine reports concerning finance and occupancy, and status reports on the various projects in development.

situation dramatized by the deaths last month in the Arizona desert of 13 Mexicans and El Savadorans. And the country is divided over how vigorously to go after aliens, whose chief offense is to want to work.

So numerous are INS' troubles that various government agencies were conducting 43 audits of it this summer.

Consider:

—About a week after Iranian militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979, Carter ordered the INS to deport Iranian students illegally in this country. The INS admitted it didn't know how many were here; two months later it reported it hadn't been able to find about 9,000 of them. By some estimates, there may be 50,000 Iranians here that the INS has lost track of.

—Norberto Gautier, 42, of Lodi, N.J., an American citizen with a birth certificate to prove it, was seized in San Juan by the INS. He was erroneously deported with a group of illegal aliens and jailed in Guatemala City. It took two weeks for relatives to get him freed.

—The Texas Advisory Committee of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission says there is convincing evidence that the INS has physically and psychologically abused aliens at the U.S.-Mexican Border.

—Several sources familiar with an FBI undercover operation known as "Brilab" tell of dealings between Mario T. Noto, recently retired No. 2 man at INS, and Carlos Marcello, a New Orleans underworld figure. The sources say that in exchange for a promise of a job, Noto agreed to lift travel restrictions on Marcello.

—Transcripts of undercover FBI tape recordings made last spring paint a picture of almost daily payoffs to INS employees for cards, permits and authorization stamps.

All over Washington, the word used to describe the immigration service is "stepchild." Its parent is the Justice Department, but Justice has other things to worry about. Catching illegal aliens washing dishes in a New Orleans restaurant is low on its priority list.

Sunday School Attendance Up

SPRINGFIELD, MO. (UPI) — Average weekly Sunday School attendance at the 9,562 congregations of the Assemblies of God passed the one million mark in 1979 for the first time in the denomination's 65 year history, church officials have reported.

Officials of the nation's largest Pentacostal denomination also reported a membership increase of 26,053 and 152 new churches in the religious body.

Baby Sitting Class Is Offered

Free one-day baby sitting classes will be offered at the Pitt County Extension Office Tuesday and Thursday, August 5 and 7, for anyone between the ages of 11 and 15.

The extension office is located on the second floor of the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 W. Fifth St. The course will begin at 9:30 a.m. and should be completed by 3:30 p.m. Participants should bring a bag lunch with a drink. Refrigeration is available.

The course will cover such topics as characteristics and responsibilities of a good baby sitter, responsibilities of the sitter's parents and the parent-employer, personal saftey measures, minor first aid, emotional and physical development and care of children, and play activities. A booklet and certificate will be given to those attending.

Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Home Economics Extension Agent, will teach the course in cooperation with the Greenville police, fire, and rescue departments. This is a 4-H sponsored event.

Class size is limited. Preregister by calling the 4-H office at 758-1196, Extension 362. Classes will also be held in Farmville Tuesday, August 12, and in Ayden Thursday, August 14. Call the 4-H office for more details.

Clay Kirkman Says...

The Schefflera is a familiar houseplant that will live for years. It is fast growing and adds a tropical look to any room. The Schefflera is sometimes called the Australian umbrella tree because its leaflets form umbrella shaped rosettes often two feet across. They are native to the Province of Queensland, Australia, where they may grow as tall as 40 feet. Indoors it may reach a height of six feet or more.

Scheffleras do best in four or more hours of direct sunlight, but they will also do well in bright indirect light. They will do best with night temperatures in the high 60's and days in the upper 70's. Allow the soil to dry out somewhat between waterings. Fertilize them about every six months. They may be repotted at any time of the year using a good commercial potting soil.

The Dwarf Schefflera is much smaller than the regular Schefflera. It resembles the regular Schefflera except it is in miniature. It can best be used as a specimen plant on a low table, or as an accent plant.

The Dwarf Schefflera has been found to be low light tolerant. This makes it a good plant for that corner in your home that doesn't receive much light. It will lean toward the light from a window, so it is best to keep the plant rotated.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops have these and many other beautiful houseplants. We also have the pots and potting soil to plant them in, so think of us for your plant needs.

Death Toll...

grimly through the rubble, forming a chain and passing bricks down the line from hand to hand in sweltering 86-degree heat. A crane was brought in to lift the collapsed wooden beams of the restaurant.

The station was crowded because early August is a peak travel period for Europeans and Italians headed to the beaches. Rognoni said most of the victims were Italians, but a 20-year-old Japanese tourist and the child of a West German couple were among the dead.

The station clock stopped at 10:25 a.m. when the blast ripped through the first- and second-class waiting rooms of the busy station in this medieval city of 500,000 people, some 200 miles north of Rome on the main line to Milan.

It leveled the waiting room section and collapsed the platform roofing onto three cars of a train bound from the east coast city of Ancona to Basel, Switzerland, as it was moving out of the station. The body of one person was found in the toilet of a first-class car.

Signs of the blast remained hours after the tragedy: Scattered shoes, shreds of clothing, bloodstains on the station platform.

"It was a tremendous explosion," said a Bologna journalist, Lamberto Sapori, who was at the station when the blast occurred. "I saw a huge yellow-red flame and immediately after a mushroom-shaped cloud."

It shattered windows in shops 200 yards from the station. A restaurant chair was thrown across eight tracks.

If it was a bomb, said one investigator, it would have been about 200 pounds of TNT, judging by the damage.

"There was one blast; that was all, then absolute panic," a soldier on the scene said. "Some people were crying, not just those who were wounded but those who saw the others wounded."

Dazed tourists wandered around behind police cordons, and tearful people searched for relatives and friends.

A priest in long white robes administered last rites.

"I tried to help to do what I could. There were many young people, travelers, they didn't have any families to come find them," he said.

Many of the injured were taken to outlying areas when Bologna's hard-pressed hospitals could not handle the overflow.

A left-wing political rally that had been scheduled in the afternoon at the city's main square turned into an anti-terrorist demonstration by 10,000 frightened and angry people.

Summer tour

ATHENS (UPI) — The American Symphony Orchestra will give 16 concerts in 10 Greek cities in its first overseas concert tour, Aug. 25-Sept. 10. The concerts, all under Greek conductor Stavros Xarhakos, mostly will be given in outdoor stadiums holding up to 30,000.

Winner In Bible Drill

Regina Moore

ANAHEIM, Ca. — Regina Kimberly Moore was the second place winner in Bible Sword Drill competition at the National Youth Convention during the Forty-Second Annual National Association of Free Will Baptists held last week at the Anaheim Convention Center.

The winner is 12 years old and active in all youth work at Belvoir FWB Church. She attends Calvary Christian School in Greenville and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Moore of Bethel.

New Pastor Is Elected

The Rev. Anton T. Wesley, a native of Newport News, Va., has been elected to the pastorate of the Saint John Missionary Baptist Church of Falkland.

Billy Responds

By JON BIXBY
Associated Press Writer

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter promised Saturday to provide reporters with a description this week of debts secured by his property in Marion and Sumter counties — including a $220,000 loan from the Libyan government.

After being questioned at length Saturday morning about his pledging of collateral for various loans, the president's brother told reporters he would have his accountant brief them on his personal finances sometime this week.

Carter did say that no formal agreement was signed with the Libyans for the $220,000 loan, which he received in two installments in December and April.

"It was a formal agreement but it was not formalized," said Carter. He said he pledged his home and surrounding property near Buena Vista in Marion County for the loan, which is being investigated by a Senate subcommittee.

At issue is whether the $220,000 represents a "business loan," as Billy Carter has characterized it, or a payment for services. Carter has denied interceding with the administration on behalf of the Libyans and only registered as a foreign agent for the North African government under protest after the Justice Department confirmed he had received the money.

As for his disagreement with the Justice Department over the nature of the transaction, Billy said, "The Justice Department and I disagree on a lot of things. I guess it will all come out in court."

The Marion County property also has been placed in security with the Internal Revenue Service for tax payments the IRS says it is owed by the president's brother.

In an interview outside a motel here, Carter said he has not talked with the president or anyone else at the White House since July 1 and has "no plans to talk with anyone" there in the foreseeable future.

Iranians Hold Rally

By The Associated Press

Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran rallied with other Iranians Saturday outside the occupied American compound to protest alleged mistreatment of 193 Iranian demonstrators under detention in the United States, reports from Tehran said.

Iranian officials have said the arrests could affect the fate of the 52 American hostages held by militants in Tehran.

The official Iranian media reported, meanwhile, that at least nine people had been executed across the country late Friday and Saturday, including three Kurdish rebels.

Tehran Radio said six other rebels in Kurdistan, where guerrillas have been fighting for greater autonomy from the central regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, had also been condemned to death and would be executed Sunday or Monday. All were convicted of "armed uprising against Islam and the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran" and other charges, according to the broadcast.

The station said the other Iranians executed were three alleged drug traffickers in the southern town of Bandar Abbas, a convicted murderer in Bandar Abbas, a man in the northern town of Karaj convicted of murder and drug trafficking, and a man in the central city of Isfahan convicted of drug trafficking, arms dealing and cigarette smuggling.

The pro-Khomeini Iranians in detention in the United States — 171 men at a federal prison in Otisville, N.Y., 20 women held in New York City, and two hospitalized men — were taken into custody after clashes in Washington last Sunday involving pro- and anti-Khomeini Iranian demonstrators and police.

At the urging of the State Department, disorderly conduct charges against the 193 were dropped, but federal authorities were continuing to hold them for possible deportation.

Youth Attended YCC Camp

CULLOWHEE — James Ray Holton of Greenville was among 80 young people from North Carolina who attended Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) Camp at Western Carolina University.

The six-week camp is part of a national Youth Conservation Corps (YCC) program administered jointly by the U.S. Dept. of Labor and the Dept. of Agriculture. The program offers employment during the summer, accomplishment of needed work on federal lands and an increase in the enrollees' awareness of the environment.

Hitchhiker Kills Three

HOLMES BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two boys died Saturday of gunshot wounds fired by a hitchhiker who also killed the boys' father, wounded a family friend and was suspected in the slaying of another man, officials said.

A statewide alert was issued for the suspect, described by police as in his late 20s, 6 feet tall, 160 pounds, and wearing white shorts and a short-sleeve shirt.

Thomas L. Shanafelt, police chief in this Gulfside island community, identified the dead as Dr. Juan Dumois, 47, a Tampa pediatrician; his sons Eric, 13, and Mark, 9; and retired Air Force Lt. Col. Robert Matzke, 58, of Holmes Beach.

Mark Dumois died at 4 a.m. Saturday and his older brother about six hours later, officials said. Their father and Matzke died Friday.

Raymond Barrows, 52, of Miami, a Dumois family friend, was wounded and appeared to be recovering at a Bradenton hospital, the police chief said.

Investigators said the first shootings occurred in a station wagon in which Dumois, his sons and Barrows were returning from a fishing trip on Anna Maria Sound, between Anna Maria Island and the Florida mainland.

The station wagon was towing a boat and had just pulled away from a launching ramp when a man on a bicycle stopped them and asked Dumois for a ride, Shanafelt said, quoting Barrows.

Barrows told police Dumois agreed and the hitchhiker's bike was put in the boat. The hitchhiker was then seated in the back seat with the two boys.

"Once the suspect was seated in the back seat, almost immediately the shootings took place," said Shanafelt.

Police were not sure where the man fled after Dumois' car and boat veered off the road and jackknifed around a utility pole in front of a condominium complex.

"The individual just more or less seemed to vanish," said Shanafelt. "Most of the witnesses when that car went off the road were more concerned with the accident and whoever might be hurt inside the car. They weren't paying much attention to who was coming or going.

"My officer down there found all four individuals suffered gunshot wounds to the head. My officer, not much more than five minutes later, received a second call."

That call reported the shooting of Matzke in his small sports car, about a quarter of a mile down the road in a supermarket parking lot.

"A witness at the Foodway Market indicated to us that there was a white male talking to Matzke, but they didn't seem to be arguing," Shanafelt said. "Matzke put his car in gear and attempted to pull away, at which point the man pulled a handgun and shot Matzke."

A police spokesman said it was possible Matzke saw the shootings in the station wagon, then chased the suspect, only to become a victim. "That's an assumption, and we think it's a valid one," the spokesman said, asking not to be identified.

Said Shanafelt: "The incidents appear related, but we just don't know."

Matzke's wife, Mary, said: "He did see this accident happen on Manatee Avenue and he ran back to me at the apartment and told me to call the police. As I went out the door, I heard a shot and another car accident.

"He evidently saw the man who created the first accident run or use a vehicle to get away, and Bob got in his little sports car and pursued him," she added.

Mrs. Matzke said she didn't know her husband was shot until his boss came by to take her to the hospital.

After the shooting, Matzke's sports car careened around the lot, finally slamming into another vehicle.

"I was in the store and I heard the commotion and then I saw this car had knocked mine out of place," said the owner of the vehicle, who didn't want her name used.

"I stood there and watched the man die," she said. "It was like out of a movie. I couldn't believe what was happening. It was awful."

The shootings rocked this beach community of 4,600. One unidentified woman was overheard Saturday telling her teen-age son: "Lock your doors and don't pick up any hitchhikers."

Egypt Seeks Delay On Autonomy Talks

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt responded Saturday to Israel's new claim to all of Jerusalem by telling the Jewish state to delay sending an advance delegation to the next round of Palestinian autonomy talks and by then announcing it had U.S. backing for its position on the Holy City.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat did not reveal his official reaction to the latest turn in the Jerusalem drama, but top aides said he was sending messages outlining his position to Tel Aviv and to Washington.

Sadat is expected to criticize severely a just-adopted Israeli law making Jerusalem, including the old Arab quarter, the Jewish state's undivided capital.

The Egyptian leader already has assailed the law as violating the "spirit and wording of Camp David" — the accord which is the basis for the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty signed in Washington last year.

Cairo's Middle East News Agency reported Saturday night that "diplomatic circles in Cairo" viewed the Israeli measure as presenting "great obstacles that could lead to the cessation of the negotiations." The agency did not name the sources for the story.

Two Cairo newspapers, in their Sunday editions, spoke of a tough stand by Egypt.

Al Ahram said Sadat's messages to Israel and the United States called the autonomy talks "meaningless" after the Israeli action on Jerusalem. It reported the messages said Egypt "would be ready to resume the negotiations when Israel becomes ready to negotiate from a position other than imposing a fait accompli."

The newspaper Al Gomhouria said Sadat held Israel responsible for "obstructing" the talks and Egypt would resume negotiations when Israel was ready to discuss all points of disagreement, including Jerusalem and Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories.

The autonomy talks, born of the Camp David pact, aim at creating some form of self-rule for the 1.2 million Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Israel seized the Arab territories, including East Jerusalem, in the 1967 Six-Day War. The Israeli parliament, the Knesset, overwhelmingly voted its controversial Jerusalem bill into law last Wednesday.

Autonomy talks were scheduled to start in Egypt's Mediterranean port city of Alexandria on Monday. Officially, they are still on the calendar, but chances are they could be delayed for at least a day, if not more.

Ossama el-Baz, Egypt's undersecretary for foreign affairs, told reporters Saturday no decision had been made on whether to suspend the talks indefinitely.

The official added that Sadat had decided against recalling his ambassador to Tel Aviv to protest the Jerusalem vote.

Local Accidents

An estimated $4,000 property damage resulted from four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday and Saturday.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a Saturday 2:00 p.m. collision on Washington Street when Jeffrey Walter Miles of P.O. Box 615, Bell Arthur collided with a street light and pole causing an estimated $1600 damage to his car and $350 damage to the street pole. No violations were determined.

At 1:15 p.m. Friday, an accident on Dickinson Avenue, 100 feet east of the Truman Street intersection, involved cars driven by Brenda Smith Dickerson of Route 8, Greenville, and Noah David Sutton of Route 4, Greenville.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $800 to the Dickerson car and $200 to the Sutton auto.

Cars driven by Vanessa Francene Sanders of 1706 Battle St. and Maggie Mercer Carney of Falkland, collided about 4:40 p.m. Friday on Fifth Street, 51 feet west of the Sheppard Street intersection, officers reported, causing $500 damage to the Sanders car and $250 damage to the Carney car.

A Friday 5:52 p.m. mishap on Ford Street, 50 feet south of the Fifth Street intersection, involved a car driven by Curtis Guilford of Washington.

Police reported Guilford, backing from a driveway, backed across Ford Street and into a driveway at 414 Ford Street, colliding with a parked car owned by William Haywood Foust of 414 Ford St., and forcing the Foust car into Foust's front porch.

Damage was set at $100 to each of the two cars and $100 to the porch.

"We experienced power losses in almost all areas of the county and city," he said, "and most of this was from trees down on lines and lines down." Repair work in Winterville continued into Saturday and at 8 p.m. Saturday a crew was still working to replace a transformer struck by lightning at Wellcome Middle School.

"We had about 22 men working all Friday night," he added. "Most of the damage was in the county. We did have some lines down on Tenth Street in Greenville, as well as having quite a bit of trouble on N. Overlook." Outland reported a number of trees down in the area of Chicod and Calico also.

Public Works Director Mayo Allen said problems for his department were small. "What damage was done was taken care of quickly. There was debris here and there but nothing like I expected," commented the director.

500 Stage Anti-Gay March

By JERRY GRAY
Associated Press Writer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A Baptist preacher carrying a sign reading "God Hates Sodomites" led 500 followers in a demonstration Saturday outside a hotel where homosexuals are holding a convention.

Except for protestors breaking ranks occasionally to pass out religious pamphlets to the gays or to debate the Bible, the two sides kept their distance as police stood by.

The Rev. Charles Britt, pastor of Thrifthaven Baptist Church of Memphis and president of the Fellowship of Mid-South Fundamentlists, led his hymn-singing, placard-carrying followers outside the Holiday Inn-Rivermont for an hour in 93-degree heat.

Standing beneath the hotel's entrance canopy, about 200 homosexuals retorted with hymns of their own and shouts of "gay pride."

An unidentified male held a sign above his head which said, "Don't Hide Us From Your Children Because We are Your Children." Another counter-protester beside him held a sign which said, "Baptist Gay and Proud."

The Fifth Annual Southeastern Conference of Lesbians and Gay Men, sponsored by the Tennessee Gay Coalition for Human Rights, opened Friday at the Rivermont, a luxury hotel overlooking the Mississippi River.

The conference, which ends Sunday, included workshops on such issues as peer counseling, consciousness raising, lesbian sexuality and religion. By Saturday, more than 500 persons had registered for the conference, sponsors said.

At one point Saturday, Leonard Matlovich of San Francisco, the ex-Air Force officer whose acknowledged homosexuality caused him to be discharged from the service in 1975, debated with a young marcher about Biblical interpretation of homosexuality.

Earlier, the two sides held separate gatherings. The homosexuals met in the hotel to hear Matlovich tell of his problems with the military. To cheers and applause, he criticized those who condemn homosexuality as a sin.

"No matter what they tell you, you are good, you are moral, you have a right to be here," he said.

A short time later, Britt and his followers gathered at Martyrs Park near the hotel. The demonstrators — many clutching Bibles, carrying small American flags or holding scripture-quoting placards condemning sodomy — listened attentively as Britt preached against the "sodomite conference."

His sermon done, Britt picked up the sign proclaiming, "God Hates Sodomites — Genesis" and headed toward the Rivermont. Three teen-agers carried a sign saying, "God Created Adam and Eve; Not Adam and Steve."

First Storm Brewing

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Allen, the first named storm of the 1980 Atlantic hurricane season, gathered energy Saturday and appeared to be building toward full hurricane strength, forecasters said.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Allen was in the central Atlantic, centered at latitute 12.5 north and longitude 50.0 west, or about 600 miles east of Barbados in the Windward Islands, on the eastern fringe of the Caribbean Sea.

Forecaster John Hope at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said the storm had maximum sustained winds of 70 mph and was moving toward the west at about 20 mph. He said it was expected to turn toward the west-northwest late Saturday or early Sunday.

"Conditions appear favorable for the storm to increase to full hurricane strength within the next 24 hours," Hope said.

Allen started out as a weak tropical depression in the eastern Atlantic. The storm system's sustained winds topped 39 mph — the tropical-storm threshhold — late Friday and it received a name.

Tropical storms become hurricanes if their sustained winds reach 74 mph.

Deaths Mar Opening

OSHKOSH, Wis. (AP) — Three aircraft enthusiasts have died as the 28th annual International Experimental Aircraft Association Convention opened Saturday, the county coroner said.

Winnebago County Coroner Michael Stelter said Elwood Hitts, 58, of Chesaning, Mich., was killed and Milton Marble, 38, Chesaning, was critically injured when their custom-built Sky Hopper 20 crashed while trying to land a few hours after the convention opened.

Stelter also said Earl A. Freeman, 47, of Loveland, Colo., and Murray C. Clarke, 39, of New Zealand died Friday when their home-built, single-engine plane crashed near a home, possibly having run out of fuel as it arrived for the convention.

The week-long convention turns Oshkosh's Wittman Field into world's busiest airport, with more takeoffs and landings than at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

On schedule for this year's convention is a flight scheduled for Monday by Bryan Allen in his Gossamer Albatross, the pedal-powered machine that Allen flew across the English Channel in June 1979.

James "Jimmy" Doolittle, an aviation pioneer remembered for his bombing raid over Tokyo in 1942 with B-25 Mitchell bombers, is host Thursday for a ceremony honoring historical aviation personalities.

Water System Is To Be Flushed

A system wide flushing of the city's water distribution network will be conducted in sections over a 12 week period, with the initial phase beginning tonight at 10 p.m., according to Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville Utilities' Water and Sewer Department.

Lewis said that the 1980 "Operation Flush" program will be conducted between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. during the period, on Sunday nights through Friday mornings.

According to Lewis, a flushing program was conducted in the fall of 1976 with the objective of eliminating undesirable deposits of iron, aluminum and minerals which accumulate in the system over a long period of time.

The initial "Operation Flush" was followed by a continuing program of spot flushing in areas which exhibited the most deposits, he pointed out. The spot program is no longer adequate, he said, primarily because the program could not be designed to continuously rid the entire system of all deposits and because all flushing had to be terminated for the past six months in order to conduct a water flow and leak survey on the entire system.

The first section of the city's approximately 215 miles of water mains to be flushed will be the area bordered on the north by the Tar River, on the south by NC 43 west and Fifth Street, on the east by Evans Street and on the west to the system end. Flushing in the area will begin at 10 p.m. tonight and conclude on or before 6 a.m. on Friday, he said.

Weekly notices defining the areas to be flushed for subsequent weeks will be published in "The Daily Reflector" and area businesses which are usually open during the hours of intended flushing will be contacted directly, Lewis added.

Student Named To Society

Karen F. Winbon of Greenville has been named to the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Winbon, she was selected to represent her church, Jarvis Memorial United Methodist, and E. B. Aycock Junior High School in the society.

Students who have demonstrated academic excellence and have displayed leadership in extracurricular, civic and church activities are chosen to receive this honor.

Miss Winborn's membership will be announced in the 1980 edition of "The Society of Distinguished American High School Students," which will include her high school biography. Her sponsor for the nomination was the Rev. Carol W. Goehring.

She is currently serving as president of the Junior High School MYF and is a member of the administrative board at Jarvis Memorial. Miss Winbon will be a member of the annual staff at J. H. Rose High School, where she is a rising sophomore.

This week, she is representing Jarvis Memorial at Senior High Workshop at Louisburg College. The workshop involves other young people in the N. C. United Methodist Conference.

Appearing In "Vanities," Opening Tomorrow On Campus

Actresses Comment On Roles

By LEIGH COAKLEY
Reflector Staff Writer

Beth Grant, Kathi Diamant, and Judy Townsend, members of the cast of "Vanities", which opens at A.J. Fletcher Hall on the ECU campus August 4, spoke briefly about their acting careers and the play itself Monday during a small press conference held in one of the offices of the ECU Drama Department.

According to the cast members, "Vanities" is a story about three young women in 1963 in high school who are cheerleaders. Staged in Texas, the girls are very much alike at the beginning of the play. They act alike, speak alike, dress alike, and have all same friends and the same dreams.

After high school, they go off to college, become sorority girls, and their friendships begin to weaken. They become more independent and don't really need each other anymore. In 1974, they unite in New York.

"Every woman in the audience will be able to identify with these three characters," said Grant. "It's a very sexy play — a very adult play."

Townsend, a 1974 graduate of the ECU Drama Department, knew Edward Loessin, producer, from her acting days in the early 70's and has done "Vanities" before. She said that she wasn't satisfied with the way the play came off the first time and wanted the opportunity to see it "the way it should be done." "Even though it's a play about women, I think that men will enjoy it too."

Townsend has been in New York for four years and has been involved in such plays as "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Christmas Carol." She has also held parts in film, television, summer stocks, dinner theatres, and soap operas.

"TV is not as easy as some people think," said Townsend. "But it's nothing like performing in front of a live audience. On stage you only get one big chance, so it better be good."

Grant and Diamant were actually cheerleaders in high school and indicated that they are able to identify with the characters they are portraying a great deal. Grant graduated from ECU in 1972 and has been on Real People, Speak Up America, B.J. and the Bear, and is writing a play about southeastern North Carolina. "I've always wanted to be an actress," she said.

Diamant has been acting since she was eight years old. Born and raised in New York, she comes from an acting family — both of her parents are in the theatre. With a B.F.A. in theatre, she has had roles in "Our Town" and "Dracula," to name a few, and has traveled Europe extensively. She is presently employed by Channel 9 as a newscaster.

The actresses spoke briefly about the experiences in "the big bad world of drama," but seem to love every minute of it.

The play will run August 4-9 beginning at 8:15 nightly. A matinee performance will be held August 6 at 2:15. For reservations call 757-6390.

Como, Atkins To Perform In Greensboro

GREENSBORO — Tuesday, September 2 is the date for a gala performance to benefit the Duke Children's Hospital.

At 8 p.m. on that date, singer Perry Como and guitarist Chet Atkins will head a cast to be in concert for a single performance.

Como, a strong supporter of pediatric health care research at Duke Medical Center and holder of an honorary degree from Duke, has been honorary chairman of the Duke Children's Classic for the past seven years.

Como has long been a friend of Duke pediatrician Dr. J. Arena, and is doing the concert both to raise funds for the children's center and to honor Dr. Arena.

Como will be bringing his entire cast to the Greensboro concert, including young comic Jay Leno, the Good Stuff Singers, and composer/musical director Nick Perito. Atkins, a friend of Como's, agreed to join in the benefit show.

Mail orders are now being accepted for the concert. Tickets are priced at $9, $7.50, and $6. For mail orders, send a certified check or money order made payable to Perry Como to: Perry Como Show, Greensboro Coliseum, 1921 West Lee Street, Greensboro, N. C., 27403. Mail orders are to include 50 cents for handling and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Wine and food, all in the French mode, constitute the offering on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" airing from noon until 1 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

In taped segments made earlier this year at the National Convention of Women in Radio and Television in San Antonio, Texas, Ms. Currie interviewed a Frenchwoman and two Frenchmen. The first is Princess Marie-Blanche de Broglie of the province of Normandy. She is a cordon-bleu chef with her own cooking school in a Norman chateau and also discusses French cheeses and apple brandy.

The second of the trio is Jean-Michael Lafond, director of the Tourist Bureau of Dijon, France's city in the heart of the burgandy wine country; and the third is Laurent Milliot, vice-president of one of the world's largest department stores, the Galleries Lafayette.

On the local scene, Greenville's Charlie Harrison talks about French wines and displays a fine rare wine he acquired when he recently auctioned the Reynolda collection of wines in Winston-Salem. Harrison is a member of the prestigious Wine Academy of Bordeaux.

Student Prince Opens Aug. 29

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new production of Sigmund Romberg's "The Student Prince" will open the New York City Opera's Aug. 29-Nov. 9 fall season at the New York State Theater. This is the third straight year that an operetta has opened the season. The season also will see the world premieres of three American one-act operas and two other new productions. The American one-acters, under the umbrella title "An American Trilogy," are Thomas Pasatieri's "Before Breakfast" based on a Eugene O'Neill play, Stanley Silverman's "Madam Adare," and a third to be announced later. The new productions will be Bizet's "The Pearl Fishers" and Nicolai's "The Merry Wives of Windsor." There also will be revivals of Handel's "Julius Caesar" and Donizetti's "Anna Bolena."

New Museum For Los Angeles

NEW YORK — The Community Redevelopment Agency of Los Angeles has anounced that Bunker Hill Associates will be the developer of approximately 11 acres of land in downtown Los Angeles, site of a planned Museum of Contemporary Art.

Trustees of the museum plan to seek the support and participation of the community to assemble the museum's initial collection and the raise the balance of the targeted $10 million endowment. To date $20 million has been committed to the building and endowment, just $6 million short of the museum's goal and well ahead of schedule.

The Problems Of Celebrityism

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Shaun Cassidy is unlikely to fall into the trap that ensnared his half-brother David — instant idol to instant ex-star all in the span of five years.

Brother David became a superstar in "The Partridge Family" TV series with stepmother Shirley Jones. He sold 20 million records and filled concert halls across the country.

David's overnight celebrity made him a millionaire. In 1974 he withdrew voluntarily from the limelight to work his horse ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif., and to relax on his estate in Hawaii.

A couple of years ago David, 29, starred in a "Police Story" segment which held promise for a spinoff into another series. It didn't work out. Not a great deal has been heard of David since.

But brother Shaun, 21, who starred the past two years in "The Hardy Boys" series, embarks on a new TV show this fall, a video version of last year's hit movie "Breaking Away."

Shaun has enjoyed nearly the same idolatry that showered wealth and fame on David. Like David, the younger Cassidy has pulled back from concerts to escape the overwhelming pressures and demands that stardom makes on the young.

He will not, however, cease making albums or working in films and TV.

Thus far he has sold 10 million copies of his five albums. The first, "Shaun Cassidy," sold 3 million.

But his three years in the limelight have taken their toll.

Shaun, although he looks to be about 15, is mature beyond his years. He is thoughtful, serious minded and recently married. Shaun, his wife Ann, and their daughter live in the San Fernando Valley.

As the son of the late Jack Cassidy and Shirley Jones, not to mention being David's brother, Shaun has long been accustomed to the pros and cons of fame.

Suffering manfully after having four impacted wisdom teeth extracted, Shaun managed a lopsided grin and said, "When I first started singing, I was compared with David. Luckily, that stopped.

"Until I was able to prove myself on my own merits I was always identified as someone's son or brother.

"I've already experienced the celebrity-ism of the business. It was fun and I don't need to go through it again. I'm totally secure about myself and my family. I think I'm fairly well adjusted.

"But for a while I overdid things. When I was doing 'The Hardy Boys', I'd cut records at night and on Fridays I'd fly to a Saturday night concert in one city and a Sunday matinee in another.

"I quit my concert tours after last summer. I didn't like being away from home. I suppose I should hit the road this summer to promote my new album, 'WASP,' but to me it's unhealthy, an unrealistic environment.

"You sit in an inn somewhere as 30,000 people file into a basketball arena to watch you perform while you look at re-runs of 'I Love Lucy.' You sit with the members of the band doing nothing for 23 hours except wait for that exciting 60 minutes on stage. It's boring."

Shaun will spend the next six months in Athens, Ga., where "Breaking Away" will be filmed. His wife and daughter will join him for the duration.

Young Cassidy is taking a longshot gamble with the new series. Television has rarely been able to convert a hit movie into a hit series.

One exception is "M-A-S-H," which many believe was a big improvement on Robert Altman's film. But such others as "Paper Chase," "The Bad News Bears," "Paper Moon" and "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" failed.

Shaun appreciates the long odds against the series and for that reason purposely avoided seeing the movie until he'd completed his role in the pilot film earlier this year.

"I was afraid I'd be influenced by Dennis Christopher's performance," Shaun said. "I wanted to come to the part of Dave Stohler as fresh as possible.

"I'd read the script of the film before it was made and thought it was a wonderful story and a good part. But I was on the concert trail at the time and nothing ever came of the possibility of my playing the film part.

"When I finally did see the picture, I was impressed by Dennis' interpretation. I don't think I'll be patterning my concept of the character after the way Dennis played it.

"Our first episode has some parallels with the movie — the bike race, the Italian things and the parental problems. Barbara Barrie and Jackie Earle Hailey, who were in the picture are also in the series.

Mike Tesich wrote the original screenplay and wrote our pilot script.

"Mike is one of the reasons I decided to go ahead so quickly with another series. He will be executive story consultant. I didn't want to be in a cheap TV cash-in of a nice movie.

"I wasn't looking for another series. But now that I'm involved, I'm doing my best to contribute what I can to make it a quality show."

Grant To Arts School

WINSTON-SALEM — A challenge grant of $500,000 toward construction of the Roger L. Stevens Center for the Performing Arts in Winston-Salem has been given to the North Carolina School of the Arts by the Kresge Foundation of Troy, Michigan. The grant was announced by Dr. Robert Suderburg, chancellor of the School of Arts.

He said the grant brings the total raised in the school's three-year, $16 million Vision in Motion campaign to more than $7 million.

Dr. Juanita Kreps, national committee chairman of the Vision in Motion campaign, called the grant endorsement of the school as a national resource in the performing arts and of the Stevens Center as a means of revitalizing downtown Winston-Salem.

The grant is the third largest The Kresge Foundation has ever given in North Carolina. (The largest were construction grants to Duke University in Durham and Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem.) The foundation received 1,349 qualified proposals this year and the Art School's was one of 208 it agreed to fund for a total of $37.36 million in 38 states, the District of Columbia, and Canada.

With the Kresge grant, funds for the Stevens Center will total nearly $600,000 from individuals, $500,000 from corporations, over $1.5 million from foundations, and $3.8 million from government agencies, including $3.2 million from the Economic Development Administration of the Department of Commerce.

The Kresge Foundation was created soley by the personal gifts of the late Sebstian S. Kresge. Since 1924, the foundation has given over $383 million to institutions in the areas of higher education, health services, the arts, social welfare and conservation. The foundation grants are primarily for construction and major renovations of buildings.

Reynolds Grant To Orchestra

RALEIGH — Because of a $200,000 gift from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, and increased support from North Carolina's corporate community, the N. C. Symphony will meet a 1979 National Endowment for the Arts challenge grant of $200,000 — and meet it ahead of schedule.

To receive these funds, the symphony is required to match the NEA grant three for one with $600,000 in gifts from new contributors by June, 1981. The Reynolds gift, as well as those from corportions around the state, will enable the symphony to reach its goal prior to that deadline, according to the symphony's controller, Donald R. Wall.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Joe R. Stines

New to the Children's Library are a number of exciting and colorful picture books. "The Ox-Cart Man" by Donald Hall (Viking Press, 1980) is a lyrical journey through the days and weeks, the months, and the changing seasons in the life of one New Englander and his family. This gentle story illustrated by Barbara Cooney was awarded the 1980 Caldecott Award. Cooney is one of the few illustrators who has received the award twice. Her first Caldecott Award came in 1959 for "Chanticleer and the Fox."

The oxcart man packs his goods — the wool from his sheep, the shawl his wife made, the birch brooms his son carved, and even a bag of goose feathers from the barnyard geese. He travels over hills, through valleys, by streams, past farms and villages. At Portsmouth Market he sells his goods, one by one — even his beloved ox. Then, with his pockets full of coins, he wanders through the market, buying provisions for the family, and returns to his home. And the cycle begins again.

Donald Hall has captured a simple story from the oral tradition. Using a special method which resembles the early Americn technique of painting on wood, Barbara Cooney depicts the sense of peace of early nineteenth century New England and the bustle of Portsmouth Market.

— From Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Books comes Rodney Peppe's "Three Little Pigs" (1980). This is a sparkling new picture book presentation of the three little pigs who are sent out to seek their fortunes. Simple dialogue and bold black lines containing brightly colored figures will certainly make this book a success with preschoolers.

— Harlow Rockwell, whose earlier works — "My Nursery School" and "My Dentist" have been well received by preschoolers, has a new book, "My Kitchen," (Greenwillow, 1980). Full of familiar details and comfortable, everyday objects that all children will recognize, this reassuring book will enable the youngest listener to read along. Clear, simple pictures with no clutter and plenty of white space illustrate the activity of preparing lunch in the kitchen. The informative text could easily be designed for the deaf preschooler.

Art Show Opens Today

Nearly two dozen Greenville artists will be taking part in The First Annual Greenville BIZ-z-ARE opening at the Greenville Art Center this afternoon.

From 3 to 5 p.m. a combination reception-happening will take place, with a majority of the artists having something stationary on view inside the center — and two or three of the group conducting some "surprise" events outside which will make use of gases and strings.

James Gordan, coordinator-conductor of the show, says, "There will also be some type of auidence participation event where those attending can become involved in creating something." Noting that the show's opening is "one of a general bizzare nature, something that used to be called avant gard," he added that the outdoor events will take place today only, "with possibly a residue of the events rescued and placed in the inside show after the opening."

Jordan, a Pennsylvania native, is a recent graduate of the School of Art, East Carolina University, majoring in painting and with a minor in wood design.

A majority of the participating artists — who will be providing a wide range of media for art work to be exhibited — are ECU art graduates or currently studying there.

The artists who will be represented in The First Annual Greenville BIZ-z-ARE are, in addition to Jordan — Jaime Bernstein, Jim Whalen, John Behr, Ed Midgett, George Brett, Edwin Utermohlen, Gladice Hughes, Hal Daniel, Rita Early, Eric Thiele, Maggie Noss, Larry Shreve, Eric Baldwin, Biff Bream, Dale Farley, Betsy Kurzinger, Joe Dudasik, and a few anonymous artists.

One of the facets of the show being stressed, Jordan said, "is that of having for the public something a little different from viewing alone. This show will give people a chance both to see and to take part. We hope to have a show of this nature each year."

The Greenville Art Center is located at 802 Evans Street. There is no admission charged and the public is invited. Refreshments will be served.

FAMILY PIECE — an intaglio by Donald Sexauer of the School of Art, East Carolina University, is one of six art works purchased for the Southeastern Center for Contemporry Art (SECCA) for its collection of Contemporary Art. The work is in SECCA's Southeastern Competition for Drawing, Photography and Printmaking. In addition to the six SECCA purchases, R. J. Reynolds purchased eight pieces. The show went on view yesterday at SECCA's galleries in Winston-Salem. The exhibition will be on view through September 28.

Statewide Events

Seeking Nominations

RALEIGH — For the third consecutive year, nominations are being sought from the public for candidates for the Governor's Business Council on the Arts and Humanities. The award is tendered to companies in North Carolina demonstrating significant support for cultural activities in their communities.

Deadline for the nomination is September 30. The competition is open to all business firms in North Carolina as well as to foundations which are supported primarily by corporate funds for the purpose of philanthropy. Nominations may be submitted by anyone in the state. Previous winners are eligible in the return awards category. The number of awards to be given each year is left to the discrection of the judges.

For complete details on guidelines, write to: Michael Lowder, Governor's Buksiness Council on the Arts and Humanities, Dept. of Cultural Resources, Raleigh, N. C., 27611, or telephone 733-4870.

Named Poetry President

BLACK MOUNTAIN — Ruby Shackleford of Wilson was installed as president of the North Carolina Poetry Society at the August 2 meeting of the society in Black Mountain. A former member of the English faculty at Atlantic Christian College, she is the author of six books of poetry, the most recent being "Bamboo Harp," a collection of haiku verse.

Membership in the North Carolina Poetry Society is offered to North Carolina writers whose poetry meets the standards set by the society. Information is availlable from: Virginia Rudder, Rt. 2, Box 54, Hurdle Mills, N. C., 27541. Those writing are asked to supply a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Spoon River Production

KENANSVILLE — "Spoon River Anthology," Charles Aidman's adaptation of Edgar Lee Master' work, will be performed on two days, August 5 and 6, as a "Second Stage" production of "The Liberty Cart" outdoor drama.

Performances will be in the William Rand Kenan, Jr. Memorial Amphitheater.

David Thomas, native of Beulaville and a senior at Appalachian State University is directing the production, which has a cast of over 60.

Information and reservations can be had by calling 296-0721.

Art Center Classes Set

The final series of summer classes in arts and crafts at the Greenville Art Center will begin Monday, August 11 and continue until August 27. Tuition fees will range from $12 to $15 per class, which covers supplies for most classes. To pre-register, stop at the Art Center, 802 Evans Street, or telephone 758-1946.

Classes scheduled are:

— Pottery — Ages 6 and up, 9 to 10 a.m., Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, for six sessions.

— Painting and Drawing — Ages 6-10 will meet from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, for eight sessions. Classes for ages 10 and up will meet from noon to 1 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, for eight sessions.

— Jewelry-making and wire sculpure — Ages 8 and up, 1-2 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday, for six sessions.

HGO silver season

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Grand Opera's Silver Anniversary season will open Oct. 10 with a new production of Verdi's "Il Trovatore." The season, running through May 1, will feature the world premiere of Cwrlyle Floyd's "Willie Stark," Mozart's "The Magic Flute" in a new English translation, a new English version of Bizet's "Carmen," Cilia's "Andrea Lecouvreur" and Verdi's "Un Ballo In Maschera."

Ida Wooten Tripp Author Of Facing South Article

An incident that graphically illustrates why "Farm Wives Age Fast" is the subject of the "Facing South" column in today's paper. The author, Ida Wooten Tripp, a Pitt County farmwife living between Greenville and Pactolus, brings comedy and suspense into her account of a Black Angus bull that one day unexpectedly decided to challenge his human masters when they went out to make what had until this particular time been a routine separation of the bull from his harem of cows.

Mrs. Tripp, who in the past couple of years has actively pursued writing, is a member of the creative writing class at Pitt Community College. She is also a regular of the Greenville Writers Club — and all the members of the club agree she has an exceptional talent for capturing the essence of the people and customs of the region, whether in a comic or serious vein.

Liberty Cart Attendance Good

KENANSVILLE — According to a survey conducted by North Carolina Theater Arts, attendance at "The Liberty Cart" outdoor drama has increased by 30 percent compared to the 1979 season.

During the opening weekend of the Duplin County historical drama, over 1,400 people attended performances of "The Liberty Cart."

The drama is presented every Thursday through Sunday evening through August 24. For information and reservations, interested persons can call 296-0721 or write: The Liberty Cart, P. O. Box 470, Kenansville, N.C., 28349.

Half-Mile Long, 30-Stories High Rock Home In The Desert

By BOB KUESTERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MOAB, Utah (AP) — In the desert south of here stands Hatch Rock, a half-mile long, 30 stories high, far from phones, power lines and mail boxes — but home for Bob Foster and his family.

From a distance it looks like any of the red sandstone rocks and cliffs that make southeastern Utah a tourist attraction. Then the visitor sees the garden, goats and dogs, the American flag outside a double-glazed, glassed cave opening.

"If everything goes to hell, this will all be self-sustaining. If everything holds together, we'll make it a retirement center and a guest ranch," said 55-year-old Foster.

It is, says the lanky former teacher, the realization of a "life-long dream to build a small but beautiful community geared to being as self-sustaining as possible."

Since February, he and part of his family of three wives and 15 children have lived in "Castle One," blasted into rock leased from the state.

Supported by partners and investors, Foster created a cavern 30 feet wide and 80 feet deep, with other areas for the library, bedrooms, kitchen, bath, laundry and garage.

A layer of clay in the rock provided a natural roof, the floor is concrete, the walls are rock and the temperature is always 58. The home is spacious but sparsely furnished.

A well has been drilled, but the pump is on order and water must be trucked in. A 1,000-gallon propane tank fuels the stove and an electrical generator for tools, lights and a stereo. A fireplace supplies the only heat, and Foster eventually plans an expanded heating system — a low priority to family members comfortable in sweaters and long-sleeve shirts.

Wind generators are for the future, and a sewage system is being built.

"You can build places like this, with 4,500 square feet, for approximately $20,000," said Foster, who has mined uranium, felled timber, taught in Mormon seminaries, built luxury homes and was an Air Force aircraft mechanic in World War II.

To the west, he has begun blasting another home in the rock, this one planned at two stories with a total of 5,000 square feet of floor space. Other homes are planned for permanent residents and vacationers.

"The only thing that holds you back is your imagination," he said.

Foster said he and his partners have spent about $30,000, most on explosives and fuel.

The rock is on 200 acres leased from the state for $5 an acre yearly, with a 50-year renewable lease. Such property normally leases for grazing at 10 cents an acre a year.

"The Hatch Rock location was an Easter egg hunt. I spent approximately two years searching it out in my spare moments. It needed to be a monolith with a southern exposure, moderately isolated and on state land," Foster said.

There are six partners and three other investors, so far, in Rockland Corp. Another couple hopes to take a rock apartment after selling a home in Ogden, Utah, and mining property, Foster said.

Foster, alone of the partners, is one of several thousand Mormons excommunicated for advocating plural marriage. He is firm in his beliefs, but says they are not binding on others in the project and prefers not to discuss them.

Visitors are invited on a climb to the top of the rock Foster calls "Rockland Manor — the largest home in Utah." For the novice climber, it can be a somewhat unnerving and strenuous ascent, with narrow ledges and chipped hand and foot holes.

Foster is always ready to lend a hand, and he breathes easily during the climb, talking of his fears and hopes.

"I'm half-way afraid we may see anarchy in the not too distant future — it's happened a lot of times when the economy has gone out of control," he said. "We'd like to take care of some people. It's not a question of turning anyone away. We want to be able to help people."

Climbers startle nesting eagles that have remained despite the blastings, and swallows soar in the thermals. "We've found four rattlesnakes and have taken them away," said Foster. "We don't want to kill them."

From the highest level, 400 feet, the desert can be seen abloom in rare multitudes of flowers after two years of above-normal moisture. It is a setting apart from the mundane, and Foster talks of Martin Luther, Sir Thomas More and miracles.

He and his partners have mined, worked construction, made money where they could. When money was needed, more was raised. When equipment failed, replacements turned up.

"We see it as a miracle," he said.

Foster owes money for propane, and more funds will be needed. He may work in construction or find another job.

But he's cheerful, saying: "We are in the hands of the Lord."

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, FLA. — Brochures and entry blanks announcing the fifth annual juried art festival, "Images '81 — A Festival of the Arts" have been prepared and are ready for mailing to about 9,000 artists and craftsmen in the U.S., Canada, and Mexico, seeking their participation in the event.

The festival is scheduled for the weekend of Feb. 28 and March 1, 1981 in Riverside Park, downtown New Smyrna Beach.

This year "Images '81" will offer about $8,000 in prize monies and will include a purchase award of $1,000; five awards of distinction of $500 each; six awards of commendation at $250 each; and 30 awards of merit at $100 each.

Deadline for entry in the show is October 26. A screening committee will select 215 exhibitors from the thousands who are expected to submit slides of their work. Artists desiring information on fees and requirements and entry forms are to write to: Images '81, P. O. Box 767, New Smyrna Beach, Florida, 32069.

Fayetteville Art Show Scheduled

FAYETTEVILE — Four artist members of the North Carolina Zoological Park, Asheboro, currently members of the zoo design staff there, and one former member, will have their art featured in an exhibition, "Offtime Productions Present: Zoo Artists" at the Fayetteville Museum of Art.

The exhibition will open on Sunday, August 10 with a reception for the artists from 1 to 5 p.m.

The four current staff members are Bill Donnan, Roger Halligan, Mike Harney, and John Paul Harris. The fifth artist and former staff member is Terry Craig. As individuals, the private art of the artists varies widely. All have graduate degrees in studio art, and work in distinctly individual styles. Craig, Donnan and Halligan work with non-figurative sculpture in metal, clay and wood, and also in non-figurative drawing. Harney and Harris produce figurative work. . . Harney as a painter, Harris as a sculptor.

During the August 10 reception, the five will discuss their attitude toward their work at the zoo, as well as their productions in individual styles.

The exhibition will be on view through September 7. The Fayetteville Museum of Art is open to the public Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m., closed Monday.

Americans Pay $23 Million A Day For Libyan Oil

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For nearly two decades, despite strained relations and anti-American outbursts from Libyan ruler Col. Moammar Khadafy, a steady stream of crude oil has linked the United States and Libya.

Even while controversy rages over the relationship between President Carter's brother Billy and the Libyan government, Americans are sending Libya $23 million every day in exchange for about 4 percent of this country's oil supply.

Libya began exporting oil to the United States in late 1961. Its oil sales to the United States and other countries since have enabled Libya to build up a cash and gold reserve estimated at nearly $10 billion to help finance development at home and military ventures abroad.

The United States obtains 630,000 to 640,000 barrels of oil a day from Libya — more than one-third of the 1.7 million 42-gallon barrels Libya produces daily, the Energy Department says.

At about $37 a barrel, up from $15 in January 1979, Libyan crude is among the highest-priced in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Such familiar companies as Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp. and Occidental Petroleum Corp. — and several lesser-known ones — long have operated in the North African country, whose high-quality petroleum is ideally suited for refining into gasoline and heating oil.

With production of 630,000 barrels a day, the largest petroleum company operating in Libya is Oasis Oil, in which the Libyan state oil company has a controlling interest and the U.S. companies Amerada Hess Corp., Marathon Oil Co. and Conoco Inc. have lesser interests.

The independent refiner Charter Co. says it held talks with Billy Carter last summer in hopes of increasing its supplies of oil from the country by as much as 100,000 barrels a day.

According to Charter, the President's brother, who recently registered as a Libyan agent, would have received a finder's fee of 5 cents a barrel or a maximum of 5 percent of the value of oil he obtained. But "contact with Billy Carter simply faded away" after the talks failed to produce additional shipments, Charter says.

Today Charter, based in Jacksonville, Fla., receives 60,000 barrels of Libyan oil daily, down from about 120,000 a day last year, the result of a general cutback in shipments to Western oil companies.

Oil comprises virtually all Libya's exports to the United States, which the International Monetary Fund says were valued at $7.02 billion in 1979 and the first quarter of 1980.

U.S. exports to Libya were valued by the IMF at $617 million in the period. Food, chemicals, building supplies and transportation equipment have made up much of the American exports to Libya in recent years.

The State Department has refused to let Libya take delivery of eight U.S.-built C-130 military transport planes it purchased for $36 million in 1973 for fear that they would be used to aid terrorists.

Much of the U.S. dissatisfaction with Libya stems from the sacking and burning by a Libyan mob of the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli last December.

The government also has been unhappy with President Khadafy's anti-Israel stance, his charges of U.S. "imperialism," and his sizable Soviet arms cache — estimated in some reports as worth $12 billion.

Since Khadafy seized power from King Idris in a 1969 coup, Libya has used oil money to build housing, schools and factories. It also has been "spending heavily on developing agriculture, which has somewhat amazed the outside world because it's a desert nation," says Jack Morris, spokesman for Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. in New York.

But the oil exports also have financed such foreign ventures as the arming of rebels in Morocco, Ethiopia and the Philippines.

Bolivia Expels Journalist

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Harold Olmos, The Associated Press correspondent in La Paz, was expelled Saturday by Bolivia's new military regime, which gave unspecified "political reasons" for its action.

Olmos, 35, a Bolivian citizen and veteran AP reporter, apparently had been sought by paramilitary agents since a July 17 coup toppled President Lidia Gueiler.

Armed men, who wore civilian clothes and drove unlicensed jeeps, repeatedly visited The Associated Press bureau in the Bolivian capital and asked for him.

Olmos surrendered his passport to Information Minister Fernando Palacios Thursday and applied for an exit visa.

The minister assured Olmos the government had nothing against him, but the passport was returned on Friday with a warning that he must leave the country within 24 hours.

Predictable Olympics Come To An End

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The Moscow Games had a fairly predictable two-week run. The home team won everything in sight, and the boycotting American athletes won only the condolences their athletic comrades wishing they were here.

The Soviet athletes erected a monument of medals that is not likely ever to be toppled in a single Olympics, provided both major sports powers show up in the future. With only Sunday's equestrian events remaining, the Soviets had 80 gold medals, obliterating their previous mark of 50 at Munich in 1972, and 196 total medals, wiping out their record of 125 set at Montreal four years ago.

President Carter's boycott didn't stop this competition from being, by and large, first rate, with 35 world records set — just one fewer than the number of world marks established at Montreal. The boycott, however, did serve as a reminder that the Olympics now exist at the whim of politicians.

The boycott kept 36 nations at home. The Americans were missed the most, both for their competition on the field and their spirit off it.

"These Olympics seem pretty dull without the Yanks around," said Australian swimmer Mark Kerry. "There were always packs of them, laughing, kidding and hamming it up. They added a lot of spark. I think all of us miss them."

Depending on your perspective, the missing athletes were either the Games' biggest winners in the moral sense, or the biggest losers in the sense of unfulfilled sweat and sacrifice.

But there were some 6,000 athletes who did show up. From that field, there is an ample selection to determine the winners and losers at the 1980 Summer Olympics.

In gymnastics, the biggest winner, of course, was Aleksandr Dityatin who set an Olympic mark by winning eight medals, including gold medals in the individual all-around, the team title and one apparatus.

Even with this brilliance, Dityatin — who scored the first perfect 10 by a man in Olympic history — suffered the fate reserved for all gymnasts of his sex. It is the women gymnasts, the Nadia Comanecis of the world, who get the most attention.

Nadia got plenty of that — some good, some bad — as she managed to win two gold medals in individual apparatus after battling singlehandedly against a swarm of Soviet gymnasts who matched her move for move.

She lost the all-around crown she won at Montreal to Yelena Davydova of the Soviet Union and was eclipsed in some areas by other Soviet gymnasts and 15-year-old Maxi Gnauck of East Germany.

Comaneci got involved in a messy ruckus about judging, which was not of her making. A Romanian judge refused to post a Comaneci score she felt unjustifiably low, then another time the computer didn't accept a Comaneci mark. When the computer finally did get the result, it turned out that Comaneci had not lost to Nelli Kim of the Soviet Union but tied her for the gold medal.

The track and field competition was one of the most spectacular in years. Scrawny Miruts Yifter, at 35, 37 or maybe 40 (His age is listed several ways), kept outrunning Father Time and all of his competiton to win the 5,000 and 10,000 gold medals.

Age was not as kind to Lasse Viren of Finland. Charges of blood doping followed him when he won the 5,000 and 10,000 at Munich and then again at Montreal. Here nobody was asking about tired blood after he had lost to Yifter in the 10,000 and ducked him in the 5,000, instead entering the marathon and dropping out before the finish.

The same marathoner who led the pack at Montreal topped this field, minus American Bill Rodgers. Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany ran through Moscow in 2:11:03 and never once was asked for his identification by the Soviets' ubiquitous security forces.

Then there were world records in the high jump by an East German (Gerd Wessig — 7-8¾) and glittering performances by Britons Daley Thompson in the decathlon and Allan Wells, gold medalist in the 100 and silver medalist in the 200.

Wells was beaten in the 200 by Italy's Pietro Mennea, the world record holder, who symbolized the dilemma faced by some Western athletes: to boycott or not.

"The responsibility of being the heavy favorite after the American boycott, and the bitterness for having to compete in a crippled event have just cracked my nerves," Mennea said.

The most celebrated competition between Britons Sebastian Coe and Steve Ovett ended in a draw. Each won the event the other was supposed to win. Coe took the 1,500 after gettting into a "silly mess" in the 800. Ovett, after taking the 800 with a strong kick, didn't have his usual big finish in the 1,500.

"I'm not some kind of rebel without a cause. I'm no James Dean," Ovett said in a rare interview with a British television network.

The American absence hovered over the basketball competition as it became a consolation tournament to determine the second best team in the world. Yugoslavia beat Italy 86-77 to win the tag "best without the West," but few doubted that America could whip the Yugoslavs.

"I think they would have given the Americans a good game this year, but the U.S. definitely would have won," said Italy's Mike Sylvester, a Cincinnati native. "Without a doubt, the Yugoslavs are the best basketball players in the world behind the Americans."

Somewhere further back were the pre-tourney favorites, the Soviets, who lost to both Italy and Yugoslavia and drew the wrath of the hometown crowds. Soviet fans whistled and jeered their former heroes in their bronze medal victory over Spain and then gave the Soviets some more catcalls at the medal ceremony.

The Soviet crowds were a continuing story here, loudly whistling against many Soviet opponents, including athletes from other communist countries. As a contrast, the highly partisan American crowds at Lake Placid, during the height of tension over the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, never gave the Soviet athletes a hard time.

The Soviet fans, perhaps spoiled by the awesome power of its athletes, refused to pay proper respect to a former treasure who had the bad taste to grow old. Weightlifter Vasily Alexeev, the world's strongest man at Montreal, missed three times trying to lift 396 pounds. The crowd didn't applaud the effort of its former hero; instead it sat in total silence. The 38-year-old Alexeev then announced his retirement.

World records were set in swimming, but the Americans competing in Irvine, Calif., set records, too. In their absence, East German women won 11 of 13 events. Rica Reinisch was the best of the flying frauleins with three gold medals and world-record performances in each of them.

Rose To Open Drills

Rose High School's 1980 football team will open practice Monday, Coach Dave Bumgarner announced today.

All juniors and seniors are to report at this time, the coach said. All those participating must have had a physical, either those sponsored by the school at the close of the last academic year, or from their own physican this summer.

The Rampants open the season on August 29, playing host to Kinston.

Post's Eagle Ties Young

By ALAN ROBINSON
AP Sports Writer

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Sandra Post sank a six-foot eagle putt on the par-5 18th hole to deadlock opening round leader Donna Caponi Young for the second round lead Saturday in the $100,000 West Virginia LPGA Classic.

Post and Young, playing together in a windy and rain-delayed round, both will take 6-under-par scores of 138 into Sunday's final round. Young, who fired a first round 68 on the par-72, 6,100-yard Speidel golf course, followed that with a 2-under 70, while Post shot a 3-under-par 69 Saturday.

Three shots off the lead was seventh-year pro Patty Hayes, who shot an even par 72 Saturday for a two-day total of 141. At 142 is Vivian Brownlee, who shot her second straight 71, while five golfers—including veteran Joyce Kazmierski— were at 1-under 143.

Kazmierski, a stroke off the pace entering Saturday's round, was tied with Young at 6-under-par after the seventh hole before experiencing trouble on two of the hilly Speidel golf course's par-5 holes. She took a seven on the 495-yard eighth hole, then took an eight on the 14th hole when she hooked a ball into a water hazard.

Deadlocked with Kazmierski at 143 were third-year pro Janet Alex, who shot a 5-under 67 Saturday, defending champion Debbie Massey, Marlene Floyd and Cathy Reynolds.

Game Time Switched

BUTLER, Ala. — Pitt County's game against Butler, Ala., in the losers' bracket of the 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth League's Southeastern Regional had a game time switch Saturday, and results were not available in time for this edition of "The Daily Reflector."

The game was originally scheduled for 4 p.m. CDT Saturday, but Butler exercised its option as the home team to play the final game of the day. Normally, that would have put the game starting at 8 p.m. CDT, but the field was already behind schedule at that time.

Reports of that game, and any others played by the Pitt County team will appear in Monday's edition. (See other game story on page B-3.)

Twitty Blows Up As Conner Gets Lead In Philadelphia Tourney

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Frank Conner, hardly a household name on the pro golf tour, took a one-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by firing a 5-under par 66 in Saturday's third round for an 11 under par 202 total.

Howard Twitty, who led for the first two rounds, had his game fall apart in the third round, posting seven bogeys. He shot a 77 in the round and virtually dropped out of contention with a 207 total.

Twitty had previous rounds of 64 and 66 in this tournament and for the past 3½ weeks had been the hottest player in golf. He won last Sunday at Hartford, and had played in the 60s 13 of 14 rounds, was 57 under par for his previous 158 holes, and hadn't lost a stroke to par in 36 holes.

Conner, 34, a self-styled golf hustler in the mold of his friend and tutor, Lee Trevino, with his rounds of 70-66-66, had a one-stroke lead over defending champion Lou Graham, and Tom Kite and John Cook.

Graham, playing for the first time since June 22 because of a bad back, had his second consecutive 69 Saturday; Kite, the one-time University of Texas phenom, fired a 65; and Cook, the only rookie in contention, shot a 66, for their 203s.

Another stroke back are Ben Crenshaw, who has been second seven times in the last 12 months; David Graham, the transplanted Australian; and Jack Renner, a one-time tour winner from San Diego. Crenshaw shot a 69 Saturday, and Renner a 71.

Conner, who was born in Vienna, Austria, where his father was an Army man, actually started his athletic career as a tennis pro but turned to golf because he felt there was more money to be won.

His best since qualifying for the tour in 1974 was a second at New Orleans last year, sharpened his skills in Asian events and mini tournaments in this country.

Conner, who admitted that he loved playing golf, even practice rounds, as long as there was a dollar at stake, came on Saturday with four straight birdies starting at the sixth hole. He canned putts of an inch, 15 feet twice and four feet.

On the back nine, Connor matched par until 14, when he rolled in a three-footer after a sand wedge and holed a four-footer at 16.

His most eventful moment, however, was at the fifth where he lost an early stroke to par. He hit under a tree, and there was a hole behind his ball in which there was a bee hive.

He was instructed to play the ball, because the bees were of the non-stinging variety.

The only sting at Whitemarsh Saturday was the emergence of a virtual unknown by the name of Conner.

Others still in the chase for the $45,000 first prize at the 6,687-yard Whitemarsh Country Club course, included Mark Hayes whose 73 Saturday put him at 205, with Fuzzy Zoeller, who had a 72 in the third round, and Doug Tewell, who fired a 65.

Jerry Pate, one of the top 10 money-winners, headed a group of four at 206. Andy Bean, the tour's third top money winner, was at one-under 212, and John Mahaffey, ninth on the money winning list, withdrew because of illness.

Cook said it was the closest he's ever been since turning professional in January.

"Usually I'm right in the middle of the pack at this point," said the youngster from Ohio State. "I give myself a good chance tomorrow (Sunday.) I'm the only rookie and nobody will be looking at me. I just hope to sneak in there."

Lou Graham, fresh from the manipulations of a chiropractor on a tilted pelvis, said he played decently, but hit into rough problems.

"I didn't have a chance for a real good score because I was struggling in the rough too much. If I win it will be a big surprise to me."

Lightning Forces San Diego, Green Bay To Pack It Up At 0-0

By GEORGE STRODE
AP Sports Writer

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — San Diego Coach Don Coryell says officials made the right decision Saturday in calling the Pro Football Hall of Fame game with less than six minutes to play.

"It was the wise and safe thing to do. Lightning kills people. We never would have practiced in conditions like that," Coryell said of the game, which ended in a 0-0 tie with the Green Bay Packers.

The Chargers had the ball on the Packers' 25-yard line when Don Weiss, executive director of the National Football League, ordered the contest terminated.

"We had called time out and were getting the field goal team ready," Coryell said of a fourth-down situation the Chargers faced during thunder, lightning and heavy rain whipped by high winds.

Bart Starr, Green Bay's coach, had little to say about the decision. It was the first time a preseason game had been called early since 1975, when similar weather forced an early end to a 24-0 Pitsburgh Steelers triumph over the College All-Stars in Chicago.

"It's not really my position to comment on the cancellation," said Starr. "I didn't suggest anything to the officials."

The Chargers' Rolf Benirschke and Tim Birney of the Packers had missed second half field goals before the termination.

Weiss called a halt to play at 6:13 p.m. EDT and called off the game seven minutes after the Chargers and Packers had gone to their dressing rooms.

Birney, a second-year pro from Michigan State, muffed his opportunity from 40 yards out. His attempt sailed wide to the left with 11:41 remaining in the game.

The Packers had driven to the Chargers' 3-yard line before San Diego cornerback Hal Stringert sacked Packers quarterback Bill Troup for a 9-yard loss at the 13.

Earlier in the day, Bob Lilly, Jim Otto, Herb Adderley and David "Deacon" Jones were inducted into the Hall of Fame, bringing its membership to 106.

With rookie Ed Luther quarterbacking, San Diego threatened to pull the game out amid lightning, heavy rain and winds. Luther, from San Jose State, directed the Chargers from their own 44 to the Packers' 25.

San Diego was set to try a field goal attempt when game officials suspended play. A Fawcett Stadium capacity crowd of 19,972, the second largest in the history of the game that traditionally opens the NFL preseason, booed lustily.

San Diego Coach Don Coryelll used first-string quarterback Dan Fouts for only the first series of plays. Mike Kirkland and Luther went the rest of the way for the defending AFC West champions.

Green Bay Coach Bart Starr used his regular quarterback, Lynn Dickey, for most of the first half before calling on second-stringer David Whitehurst and Troup.

Men, Women Cagers Each Play In Two Tourneys; Slates Given

East Carolina University's men's basketball team will play in two tournaments and travel from Maine to the Mexican border during the 1980-81 season, according to the schedule released this weekend.

Meanwhile, the women's cage team also has two tournaments on its schedule, and includes such teams as national champion Old Dominion and Southern California on its home slate for the winter.

The male Pirates will be playing in the Iron Duke Classic in Durham, and in the New Haven Classic in Connecticut, bracketing Christmas. The women take part in the Carolina Christmas Classic at Chapel Hill before the holiday, then participate in the Queens College Tournament in New York City just afterwards.

The home schedule for the men includes an exhibition with Marathon Oil to open the year, on November 24, while others include Texas Wesleyan, Berry College, Campbell, UNC—Asheville, Pan American, Richmond, Atlantic Christian, Baptist, Samford, Delaware State, UNC-Wilmington, and another exhibition with the Athletes in Action.

Road games include Ohio, Maine, Penn State, UNC-Wilmington, UNC-Charlotte, N.C. State, Old Dominion, Campbell, Pan American, Richmond and Illinois State.

The Lady Pirates will be bringing in Virginia Tech in the season opener on November 23. Other home dates include Old Dominion, Campbell, William & Mary, Duke, West Virginia, N.C. State, Southern California, Appalachian State, North Carolina and Wake Forest. Road games will send the women against Queens, Wagner, Florida, Stetson, Florida State, North Carolina, James Madison, Virginia, East Tennessee, Appalachian State, UNC—Wilmington and N.C. State.

The complete schedules:

Bench Helps Giants Ease Past Cubs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Injuries continue to take their toll on the San Francisco Giants, but the club's thin bench still manages to come through.

In Saturday's game with the Chicago Cubs, utility infielder Joe Pettini and late-inning outfield replacement Terry Whitfield totaled six hits and powered the Giants to an 8-5 victory.

Pettini, filling in for injured shortstop Johnnie LeMaster, collected four hits in five trips, including a two-run double that capped the decisive four-run seventh-inning rally.

"I know I'm not going to play a lot with the talent Johnnie has, but I'm happy to be here and I'm ready when they need me," said the diminutive Pettini, who is listed at 5-foot-10 but admits to being "about 5-8½."

"If you go out and hustle, you can make up for size," added Pettini, who lifted his average from .240 to .291.

Whitfield, who has lost the left field job to Larry Herndon, entered the game in the sixth inning and promptly made his presence felt. He doubled and scored in the two-run sixth and delivered the game-winning RBI with a seventh-inning single.

"You can never be fully satisfied if you're not a regular," Whitfield said, "but I'm glad I could make a contribution. I was warming up in the clubhouse so I was mentally ready when I came in."

Run-scoring singles by Rennie Stennett and Whitfield and a two-run double by Pettini sparked a four-run seventh-inning rally that lifted the Giants to victory.

Trailing 5-2, the Giants started their comeback with two runs in the sixth on a two-out single by Mike Sadek, Whitfield's ground-rule double and a two-run single by Billy North.

A one-out walk by pinch-hitter Roger Metzger off loser Dick Tidrow, 3-2, started the Giants' winning rally in the seventh. Metzger took third on Mike Ivie's single and scored on Stennett's base hit to produce a 5-5 tie and the Giants went ahead on Whitfield's two-out single.

North was walked intentionally to load the bases and Pettini, who had four hits, grounded a two-run double to left off the glove of third baseman Lenny Randle.

LaRoche Hurls California Angels To 5-4 Victory Over Blue Jays

TORONTO (AP) — The California Angels got only their second complete-game pitching performance since the All-Star break — but pitcher Dave LaRoche had to go back years before remembering the last time he finished a game he started.

"Well, since I was 18, since high school at least," said LaRoche, 2-2, after registering the first complete game of his 11-year major league career, a 5-4 come-from-behind victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Until Saturday, the longest LaRoche had gone in a starting effort was 5 2-3 innings for the Chicago Cubs against the New York Mets in 1974.

"I'll probably really notice it tomorrow when I can't get out of bed," said LaRoche.

Primarily a reliever — it was just his ninth career start and fourth this year — LaRoche checked the Blue Jays on five hits, striking out nine and walking three.

The 32-year-old left-hander allowed just two baserunners in the last five innings — walks in the fifth and ninth. After a ground ball put pinch runner Lloyd Moseby on second with the tying run in the ninth, LaRoche combined with second baseman Bobby Grich to pick the runner off and then got a ground ball to end the game.

"Bobby's good at that," LaRoche said. "It's like he walks on air coming in."

Overcome By Emotion

Vladimir Salnikov of the Soviet Union was the star of the men's events, winning three gold medals and setting the lone world record for the men, pushing the 1,500 meters time below 15 minutes to 14:58.27.

But the memory that the American men won 12 of 13 events four years ago gave the impression that the Soviets were bullies kicking sand in the faces of weakling teams — something that wouldn't have happened had the U.S. lifeguards been around.

Falk Hoffman was both a winner and a loser in the diving. The East German lost the springboard then complained that the winner, Aleksandr Portnov of the Soviet Union, had been given favored treatment.

After winning the platform diving, Hoffman recanted his earlier complaints. "These things happen," he said. "And a good sportsmen should take them into account."

The memory of five American boxers winning gold medals at Montreal cast a shadow over the boxing tournament, in which Soviets and Cubans won titles. The biggest champion, as he's been in the previous two Olympics, was Cuban heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson who is undefeated in 11 fights stretching over three Games and won his third consecutive Olympic heavyweight gold medal with a lackluster fight on Saturday. His Cuban team ended up with six boxing golds.

One winner that didn't receive its due was the Zimbabwe women's field hockey team. Less than six weeks ago, Zimbabwe, formerly Rhodesia, wasn't even recognized by the Olympic hierarchy. The international field hockey federation paid all the team's expenses, and the all-white Zimbabwe side won the gold medal — its first medal ever — to the cheers of "Zimbabwe! Zimbabwe!" from a racially mixed group of national fans.

Amid the Soviet gold and the American boycott, this Zimbabwe story can get lost. But it's significant because it probably was the Olympic movement's best victory at the Games.

Saints Nip Dolphins

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Steve Ensminger passed for one touchdown and ran for another to lead the New Orleans Saints to a 24-21 victory over the Miami Dolphins in a full-roster, two-field controlled scrimmage of National Football League teams Saturday.

Kicker Russell Erxleben booted a 24-yard field goal to provide the margin of victory for the Saints, and rookie Jimmy Rogers of Oklahoma scored on a 5-yard run for New Orleans.

Miami's scores came on a 28-yard pass from quarterback Don Strock to wide receiver Duriel Harris, and two touchdowns engineered by Ensminger, LSU teammate quarterback David Woodley.

Woodley hit wide receiver Elmer Bailey with a 2-yard pass for one touchdown and handed the ball off for a 2-yard touchdown run by Nick Giaquinto.

Rained Out

CLEVELAND (AP) — The threat of severe weather forced the cancellation of Saturday night's Cleveland Indians-Oakland A's American League baseball game.

The game was rescheduled as a doubleheader for 1:05 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Doubles Event Finals Today

The top seeded team of Wes Hankins and Ron Hignite stormed into the Men's Open Double finals of the City of Greenville Tennis Tournament Saturday with wins of 6-1, 6-3 over Steve Creech and J. Ritzer, and 6-0, 6-1 over Al and Ted King.

Hankins and Hignite will meet Billy Helton and Don Ball at 3 p.m. today in the finals at the River Birch Tennis Center at Evans Park.

Helton and Ball advanced to the finals with wins over Graylin Johnson and Stanford Tyson, 6-1, 6-0; and over Robert and Leon Johnson, 6-3, 6-1.

In the women's open, top-seeded Carlie Wille and Nancy Powell dropped Vicky Loose and Helen Talbert, 6-2, 6-1, to reach the finals, while unseeded Frances Cain and Barbara Close downed Myra Hill and Melody Merrill, 6-0, 6-0, then upset number two seeded Margaret McGlohon and Gwen Deyton, 6-2, 7-5.

Wille and Powell meet Cain and Close at 4:30 p.m. today in River Birch for the title.

The doubles tournament, which is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and the Greenville's People for Tennis Foundation, is the last adult event in the city-wide championship.

Junior Net Tourney Set

The University City Kiwanis Club and the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department are sponsoring the City of Greenville Junior Tennis Championships. The tournament will run August 11-15.

Players may register for up to three of the following events in singles and doubles: Girls 18's, 16's, 14's, 12's, and 10's; Boys 18's, 16's, 14's, 12's, and 10's. Ages are as of September 1, 1980.

The cost is $1 per person for the entire tournament, but must be paid in person at the River Birch Tennis Center at Evans Park, or may be mailed in to Don Ball, P.O. Box 222, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

The entry deadline is 12 noon Saturday, August 9. For further information, call the tennis center at 756-9343.

Melvin Back From Europe

Former East Carolina sprinter Otis Melvin returned to Greenville recently from a month-long tour with the Muhammad Ali Track Club in Europe, and the rigors of the sweep had him ready for a long overdue break.

"I went to Europe immediately after the Olympic trials. I finished the Olympic trials on Wednesday. Thursday, I was on a flight to Los Angeles. Thursday night, I was on my way to London," the slender sprinter recalled. "I got to London at about noon and had to run at 9 o'clock that night. Everything was kind of pushy and I never got a chance to recuperate. I didn't even have time to think about it.

"But, I ran in that meet and did well. I finished third behind Don Quarry, the 1967 Olympic champion, and one of his teammates."

Otis, who holds the East Carolina 200 meter record at 20.41, recorded three second place finished in the seven-meet tour through Norway, Italy, France, England and a few other western European countries. His chief opposition was James Butler, the Auburn freshman who won the NCAA 100-meter dash in June.

"Most everyone I ran against was getting ready for the Olympics in Moscow," Melvin said. "Don Quarry and Alan Wells, the British sprinter, are going to be hot in the Olympics. Everybody was up everytime you stepped onto the track."

The American attitude was different from the native competition's because of the Olympic boycott, Melvin thought.

"We had been running all year and gone through the nationals and the trials. The Europeans were just getting underway. We were on our downward trend just while they were beginning to peak."

Melvin has a job in California, gained through the track club, where he will train for an August return to Europe.

His future as a sprinter?

"At one point, I had lost interest in track and field. But now, I am enjoying it more than ever. I hope I can stay interested at least until 1984 so I can have a shot at the Olympics."

Fan's Catch May Have Cost Chisox Win

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

If Kansas City speedster Willie Wilson can't catch up to a fly ball, nobody can, right?

Wrong! An unidentified Chicago fan sitting in the left field stands at Comiskey Park made a sparkling grab of a ball hit over Wilson's head Friday night and it may have cost the White Sox a game.

Trailing 4-2 in the eighth inning, Chicago's Ron Pruitt singled. Two outs later, pinch-hitter Kevin Bell walked and Greg Pryor lined a pitch from Larry Gura toward the seats.

It would not have been a home run but Wilson couldn't reach it. However, a fan in the first row did. Leaning over the wall and wielding a glove, he stabbed the drive, prompting second base umpire Steve Palermo to rule it a ground-rule double. Pruitt scored but Bell, who was running with the crack of the bat and likely would have scored, was stopped at third. The White Sox never did get the tying run home and lost 4-3.

"It's one of those things. I've got to say there was some luck involved," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey.

The victory kept the runaway Royals 12 games ahead of Oakland — the A's nipped the Cleveland Indians 2-1, and 12½ in front of Texas: the Rangers downed the Boston Red Sox 7-5 — in the American League West.

Elsewhere, the New York Yankees trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 9-4, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Minnesota Twins 3-2, the Detroit Tigers swept a doubleheader from the Seattle Mariners 1-0 and 5-2 and the Toronto Blue Jays shaded the California Angels 9-8.

Gura, 15-4, won his fifth consecutive decision. He had considerable help from U.L. Washington, who collected four hits and drove in two runs, and third baseman George Brett, who singled a run home in the first inning to establish a club record of at least one RBI in nine consecutive games.

Brett also starred in the field. He stole hits from Chet Lemon and Lamar Johnson with brilliant backhand stops and turned a one-hop smash by Bruce Kimm in the fifth into a rally-killing double play.

After Pryor's near-homer, Dan Quisenberry relieved Gura. He hit Jim Morrison to load the bases and Johnson followed with a line drive that somehow found its way into Quisenberry's glove, ending the threat. Quisenberry went on to post his 21st save, tops in the AL.

A's 2, Indians 1

Brian Kingman and three relievers combined on a four-hitter as Oakland ran its winning streak to five games and ended Cleveland's eight-game winning string. Kingman allowed three hits in six innings, including Ron Hassey's home run, while Jim Essian scored the A's first run on a fourth-inning grounder and drove in the deciding run with a ground ball in the fifth.

Rangers 7, Red Sox 5

Buddy Bell continued his career-long assault on Boston pitching. He had his first five-hit day in the majors, rapping out five singles in as many at-bats, driving in two runs and scoring twice. Bell singled home a run in the first inning, scored after singling in both the third and seventh and singled home another run in the eighth.

This season, Bell it tatooing Red Sox pitching at a .489 clip, with 23 hits in 47 at-bats. A .277 lifetime hitter, his career average against the Red Sox is .337 with 17 homers and 69 RBIs.

"He's worn us out all seven years I've been here," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "He killed us when he was at Cleveland, and he's still doing it."

Yankees 9, Brewers 4

Rick Cerone and Bobby Brown drove in two runs apiece in a seven-run New York first inning, enabling Ron Guidry to coast to his 12th victory although he allowed two homers to Gorman Thomas and one to Don Money.

Singles by Willie Randolph, Bob Watson and Reggie Jackson scored the Yankees' first run against Bill Travers. After a single by Eric Soderholm loaded the bases, Cerone doubled home two more. Reliever John Flinn intentionally walked Ruppert Jones to load the bases and fanned Bucky Dent for the second out. But Brown doubled two runs across and Jones and Brown both scored on an infield hit by Randolph.

Orioles 3, Twins 2

Tigers 1-5, Mariners 0-2

Champ Summers' leadoff double and Rick Peters' RBI triple keyed a five-run second inning as the Tigers completed a sweep of a twi-night doubleheader. Al Cowens' bases-loaded single with one out in the bottom of the ninth drove in pinch-runner Peters with the only run as the Tigers won the opener behind the six-hit pitching of Jack Morris. The Mariners have dropped seven games in a row.

Blue Jays 9, Angels 8

Bob Davis' double in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Lloyd Moseby, who drew a two-out walk off Mark Clear. Toronto fought back from a 6-0 deficit and tied the game in the eighth when Damaso Garcia tripled and scored on Roy Howell's sacrifice fly. The Blue Jays began their comeback in the fourth on Al Woods' two-run homer and Barry Bonnell's solo shot.

Two Sign With ECU

The North Carolina 195-pound wrestling champion and Virginia 118-pound champ will be wrestling for East Carolina University this winter, and Pirate mentor Ed Steers couldn't be happier.

Jim Stepp, who led Trinity High school to a state title in 1980, rolled up a 93-6-2 record as a prepster, including a 32-0-0 mark as a senior. Steers feels that Stepp can step in for immediate help at 190 where Jay Dever was lost to graduation.

"Jim is our number one upper weight recruit," Steers said. "He is one we went after at 190 pounds and we are very fortunate to get him. He is strong, aggressive and willing to learn. I am equally impressed with his ability as well as his desire."

Wesley Farley capped a 68-10-0 high school career with the Virginia 118-pound crown after finishing in the runner-up spot for two years. The Deep Creek (Chesapeake, Va.) High School product could be of immediate help also.

"I feel that we have a real good one in Wesley. We were extremely weak at 118 last year and that is why I worked so hard to get Wesley," Steers said. "He should make 118 a strong weight for us. His presence should have a strong effect on our whole team. He will wrestle in the first weight and start the momentum rolling our way."

New Coach At N. Pitt

BETHEL — Lynn Kearney Rogerson has been named to the staff of North Pitt High School, replacing Gail Stanfield.

Rogerson, a native of Lexington, has been teaching at Bethel Elementary for the past six years, where she has coached on the junior high school level. At North Pitt, she will be coaching on a high school varsity level for the first time.

While in high school, Rogerson played basketball. At Appalachian State University, where she completed his bachelor's degree, she played field hockey, basketball and volleyball. She was named to All-Star teams in both basketball and field hockey during her career.

She holds a masters' degree from East Carolina University.

At North Pitt, she will be in charge of the volleyball and softball programs, according to principal Josh Potter. No assignment of the girls' basketball coaching duties, also handled in the past by Stanfield, has been made at this time, Potter said.

Alabama Nips Pitt County, 6-5, In Opening Senior Ruth Contest

BUTLER, Ala. — Pitt County's 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth League All-Star team, representing Eastern North Carolina, lost its opening game in the Southeastern Regional Tournament Friday night, bowing to Alabama, 6-5, in a nine-inning extra frame game.

The Pitt team, scheduled to play Georgia, found itself shifted after it arrived in Butler, when the opponent did not show up. With a nine-team field scheduled to compete, the withdrawal of Georgia left eight, and a preliminary game scheduled to open the tournament was shifted into the full bracket, with Pitt moving into the hole left.

Pitt jumped off to an early lead, pushing over a run in the first, and adding single runs in the second and fourth, with two scoring in the third inning.

But at that point, the Pitt engines ran out of fuel and they were unable to score again.

Trailing 5-0, Alambama got on track in the sixth inning, scoring five times to tie it up. The first three scored on a home run, and an error helped along the other two.

It remained at 5-5 until the ninth, when Alabama pushed over the winning run. That came on a hit, a walk, and out and an error.

Scott Galloway opened the hurling for Pitt, but was replaced in the eighth by Donnie Daughtry, who took the loss. Mitchell Brann led the Pitt hitting with three forthe game.

Pitt falls into the losers' bracket of the double elimination tournament, and was to meet the loser of the Butler-Virginia game, which closed out the first night's play sometime after midnight Saturday morning. The Pitt game was scheduled for 4 p.m. CDT Saturday.

Meanwhile, Tennessee and Western North Carolina were to meet in one winners' bracket game with Alabama meeting the Butler-Virginia winner. The other losers' bracket game sent Mississippi against Florida.

The winner of the tournament will represent the region in the nationals.

Petty Is Sore, But Will Start

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) - Richard Petty says he will start Sunday's Talladega 500 Grand National stock car race even though his injury in last week's Pocano 500 has left him feeling like a truck hit him.

Petty, wearing a brace to support his injured neck, took several practice laps around the track Friday, after which he spoke with reporters.

The seven-time NASCAR champion said he will start the $249,000 race even though he admitted he may not finish it.

"I feel like I've been run over by a truck," Petty said, "But it ain't all that big a deal. I've been in a lot worse wrecks that I had Sunday."

Petty was injured last Sunday in the Pocano 500 race. He was hospitalized for two days before returning to his home in Randleman, N.C., to recuperate.

Petty's Oldsmobile qualified for the Talladega race in Thursday's time trials with family friend Joe Millikan at the wheel. His performance gives Petty fifth position Sunday.

"Right now I feel like I'll probably drive until the first caution flag, but I might wind up driving longer," Petty said. "It all depends on how sore I am Sunday. I'm really sore now and if the race was today I'd start and then turn things over to Joe (Millikan)."

Petty's reason for wanting to start the race is that he is currently running second in championship points behind Dale Earnhardt.

Coe Tops Ovett In 1,500-Meter Event

By ENRICO JACOMINI
AP Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Sebastian Coe beat fellow Briton Steve Ovett in their first 1,500-meter matchup, and after weeks of buildup and thousands of printed words about their supposed enmity, the two arch-rivals laughed together and shook hands.

Coe won the gold medal in the Olympic 1,500 Friday, squaring their Moscow rivalry at 1-to-1. Ovett had won their 800-meter clash earlier in the week after Coe ran a dismal race.

"You've seen an athlete literally come back from the grave," said Peter Coe, the gold medalist's father and coach.

And on the final day of the Olympic track and field competition, unheralded Gerd Wessig of East Germany broke the men's high jump world record, providing a dramatic finale.

That left the boxing finals Saturday as the major event remaining in an Olympics that probably will be remembered most for its no-shows. The United States and 35 other countries did not send their athletes because of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Heavyweight Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba was bidding for an unprecedented third gold medal, fighting Pyotr Zaev of the Soviet Union.

Coe emerged from the final bend with a strong kick and won the race in 3 minutes, 38.4 seconds with no real challenge from Ovett, who was beaten out of second place by Gunther Straub of East Germany.

Straub set the pace early in the race and held on for the silver medal in 3:38.8 with Ovett a disappointing third in 3:39.0.

Coe said that only after watching a videotape did he realize that Ovett was so far back at the finish.

British Olympians chose to flout the American-led boycott, but the British Olympic Association agreed not to allow the British flag to be flown in ceremonies here.

British fans were here in force for Coe and Ovett, though, and they waved Union Jacks and bellowed out the words and tune of "God Save the Queen" as the Olympic hymn was played at the medals presentation.

Wessig won the high jump by clearing 7 feet, 8¾ inches, bettering the old mark by one-quarter inch, and the East German quartet won the women's 400 meters relay in 41.60 seconds, despite two poor passes, for the two world marks.

Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia became the only track competitor to win two individual golds by dominating the final of the 5,000 meters in 13:21.0 minutes.

Waldemar Cierpinski of East Germany came from behind to win the marathon in 2 hours 11.3 minutes, Evelyn Jahl of East Germany won the women's discus with an Olympic record of 229-6 and world record holder Tatyana Kazankina of the Soviet Union dominated the women's 1,500 meters in 3:56.6, all retaining their Montreal Olympics titles.

The Soviet Union, which has reaped a record harvest of medals — 76 golds and 180 total — in the face of the boycott, emerged as the No.1 team in track with 41 medals — 15 golds, 14 silvers and 12 bronzes.

East Germany had 11-8-10 in track. Other track gold medal winners were Britain 4, Italy 3, Poland and Ethiopia 2, Cuba 1.

Mura, Walk Struggle And Win; Forsch Does Well But Is Loser

By The Associated Press

San Diego's Steve Mura struggled and won against Jim Bibby, the pitcher with the National League's best record. Philadelphia's Bob Walk struggled and won against the Cincinnati Reds. And Bob Forsch of St. Louis pitched well and lost because of two mistakes.

Mura, who said, "I think I threw one curve ball for a strike all night long," got a sixth-inning run from Gene Richards and ninth-inning relief help from Bob Shirley and Rollie Fingers to beat Bibby and the Pirates 1-0 in Pittsburgh Friday night.

Walk, who threw 90 pitches in the first four innings and 167 for the game, ended up on the happy end of a 3-1 decision against the Reds.

Then there was Forsch, who was two outs away from a 1-0 triumph over the Dodgers when Jay Johnstone hit his first National League home run since 1977 in the ninth inning to tie the game and Joe Ferguson won it with a 10th-inning blast to give Los Angeles a 2-1 victory.

"He just made a mistake," Ferguson said after his game-winning drive. "I had two strikes on me. I'd have to be an idiot to think home run in that situation. He just made a bad pitch."

That's all Walk seemed to be doing in the first four innings against Cincinnati. He walked four over the first four innings and had Reds runners in scoring position in each of the first three, but stranded 10 runners over the first six innings and gave up only one run.

"He seems to make the 3-1, 3-2 pitches when he has to," said Phillies Manager Dallas Green. "It's a quality you can't teach. He has it within him, and I'm darn glad."

Walk, 8-1, was glad Mike Schmidt drove in Lonnie Smith with a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the sixth. Philadelphia got insurance in the eighth when Smith doubled and scored on a single by Bake McBride.

The Padres got their run on only one hit in winning their sixth straight and snapping the eight-game winning streak of Bibby, 13-2. Over eight innings, Bibby surrendered just three hits; but one of them was to Richards leading off the sixth.

Richards moved to second on a sacrifice by Ozzie Smith, then stole third. He scored when the throw by catcher Ed Ott eluded Pittsburgh third baseman Bill Madlock.

Mura and the two relievers made that run stand up, handing Bibby his second loss of the season and his first since May 18, when the Pirates dropped another shutout — a 2-0 decision in Los Angeles.

Mets 5, Astros 4

New York recovered from Houston's four-run first inning, got a run in the sixth, tied it on Steve Henderson's three-run pinch homer in the seventh, then won it in the eighth on the fourth hit of the game by Frank Taveras.

Taveras delivered catcher Alex Trevino from third with an infield hit to cap the Mets' comeback.

The Astros unloaded on John Pacella in the first on a home run by Tery Puhl, an RBI infield single by Alan Ashby, a wild pitch that let another run score, and an RBI single by Craig Reynolds.

But Mike Jorgensen's single scored a sixth-inning run for New York and Henderson unloaded in the seventh. Then came the eighth, when singles by Trevino, Doug Flynn and Taveras salvaged the triumph.

Expos 4, Braves 1

Warren Cromartie's two-run homer highlighted a three-run first and combined with the three-hit, 10-strikeout pitching of Scott Sanderson to carry Montreal over Atlanta.

The Braves ruined Sanderson's shutout bid in the sixth, thanks to two Montreal errors. Jerry Royster reached on an error by third baseman Larry Parrish, took third on Gary Matthews' single, then scored when first baseman Cromartie threw what appeared to be a perfect double-play ball into left field.

Cubs 5, Giants 3

Jerry Martin snapped an 0-for-15 slump with a two-run homer in the second inning, starting the Cubs to their victory in San Francisco.

Tim Shadle Has Hole-In-One

AYDEN—Tim Shadle picked up a hole-in-one at the Ayden Golf and Country Club this past week.

The ace came on the 175-yard third hole, where Shadle hit a six-iron into the hole. He was playing with Robbie Jones, Alan Daughtry and Randy Taylor when he made the shot.

American Tourists Find Some Hostility Because Of Boycott

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
AP Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — In the Siberian fishing village of Listvyanka, the cows aren't interested in moving off the town's only paved road when a vehicle approaches.

Townspeople eye strangers with curiosity along the rocky paths that wind past closely-knit rows of tiny, rustic wooden houses. Children splash happily in a wide spot of the stream that disects the village.

"American?" asked an old man at the village food store. When the visitors nodded yes, the man angrily replied, "Carter" — and spit for emphasis.

Such expressions of hostility were rarely seen by 46 American tourists who arrived in the Soviet Union two weeks before the Summer Olympics.

The Soviet guide from the government Intourist agency used the phrase "the situation" when referring to the fact that only about 3,000 of the original 18,500 American tourists came to the Soviet Union after the U.S. decided to boycott the Olympics.

The day before the Olympics, however, he told group members it would be inappropriate for them to display the U.S. flag during the Opening Ceremonies "because of the boycott." One American on another tour did fly a flag at the ceremony.

As the guide said goodbye to the Americans at a Moscow airport, he remarked, "I am sad that your compatriots did not come. But they say time heals all wounds, and I hope I will see you again."

Some Soviet adults — perhaps wary following published warnings to watch out for foreign agents posing as sports enthusiasts — steered clear of the Americans. But children gathered to ask tourists for chewing gum in Listvyanka and Irkutsk, a Siberian industrial city.

In Irkutsk and Listvyanka, a tourist who paused to look at the scenery was told by a resident to go away. Asked about the incidents, a local guide replied, "Some people are just crazy."

Concrete pre-fab buildings in Irkutsk stand next to quaint old wooden houses and colorful billboards that proclaim such communist slogans as, "The nation and party are one."

Local teen-agers, including girls with bows on their pigtails, wore uniforms and carried machine guns as they solemnly guarded a World War II memorial.

In a nearby neighborhood, two priests in long vestments stood in the entrance of an old Orthodox church, a rare sight in a country where most churches are now museums.

"On Sunday morning in Moscow, we had to search for a church. The cab driver didn't know where to find one. I think they're really missing something in that respect," said Fred Miller of Flagstaff, Ariz.

"In France, they have a monument showing their victory over Russia. Here, we have a monument showing our victory over France," an Intourist guide quipped.

A fisherman made an obscene gesture in Leningrad as Americans floated past on a canal tour. One member of the group, who had saved for years to go on the trip, tried unsuccessfully to convince a young man who worked on the boat that not all American tourists are rich.

But American politics were of interest to an Intourist agent in Tbilisi, Georgia, who reported that Ronald Reagan had won the Republican presidential nomination. On a quiet residential street in Tbilisi, where houses and "inactive" churches dot the mountainside, the sound of American ragtime piano music drifted from an apartment window.

In Georgia, American tourists were treated to a driver who unabashedly sang folk songs over the bus public address system, and a local guide who read Georgian and American quotes about travel and friendship.

People of all ages sat on roadside benches in rural Georgia and some waved as the busload of Americans rolled past.

In the Central Asian city of Samarkand, men in turbans sat next to westerners in a hotel lobby, while children swarmed around Americans who produced chewing gum in the open-air marketplace.

"Every time I've been here I've found that the people are fond of Americans," said Dr. Robert Neilson of Bluefield, W. Va., on his fifth visit to the Soviet Union.

"I told one Intourist guide she looked like Laura in Dr. Zhivago. She was sorry that she'd never seen the movie — they'd never brought it here," said Neilson. "I told her, 'I don't understand the situation and you don't, but we both wish there were no boycott.'"

Watson Chasing PGA; Facing Nicklaus

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Tom Watson, easily the man to beat, takes on the revised Oak Hill Country Club this week in an effort to capture the 62nd PGA Championship, a title he has yet to win.

Watson, two-time Player of the Year and leading money winner on the tour this year with $387,725, set his sights on the Professional Golfers' Association Championship immediately after he won his third British Open two weeks ago, his first major title in four years.

"My two big goals for the year were to win the United States Open and the PGA," said Watson at Muirfield, Scotland.

Watson failed to reach the other of his goals, winning the U.S. Open, earlier this year. The reason he was unsuccessful: Jack Nicklaus.

Watson will run into Nicklaus again in the PGA along with Lee Trevino, second in tour winnings this year with nearly $300,000 and a U.S. Open winner here 12 years ago, Masters champion Seve Ballesteros and defending champion David Graham who won last year in a playoff against Ben Crenshaw at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich.

Those to be reckoned with also include big Andy Bean, third-leading money winner and victor in Hawaii; Craig Stadler, winner at the Bob Hope Desert Classic and in Greensboro; young Mike Reid, leader in driving accuracy and second in reaching greens in regulation, and Jerry Pate, a top-five finisher in the last five PGA Championships.

A field of 150 will compete over the par 70, 6,964-yard Oak Hills east course in pursuit of the $375,000 prize money, of which $60,000 goes tothe winner.

In recent previews of the PGA, there has been much discussion of the changes made at Oak Hill, which is described as offering fast, small greens, well-protected by shallow sand bunkers, effective fairway bunkering and a creek which meanders through nine holes.

Although there have been minor adjustments, there are four new holes — actually one new one and three drastically changed — since Trevino won the U.S. Open here in 1968 with a 275, breaking 70 on each of the four days.

The changed holes are the 175-yard, par 3 No. 6, a completely new hole; the 419-yard, par 4 No. 6, the old No. 5, the 178-yard, par 3 No. 15 and the 452-yard, par 4 No. 18.

The 1956 U.S.Open here was won by Dr. Cary Middlecoff, with Ben Hogan and Julius Boros tied for second. The 1949 U.S.Amateur was won by Charlie Coe. And in three tour events a Oak Hill in the 1930s, the winners were Leo Diegel, Sam Snead and Ben Hogan.

The PGA Championship will be televised by ABC-TV from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. EDT next Saturday and from 3:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. EDT Sunday. There also will be a half-hour program beginning at 11:30 p.m. EDT Friday.

Watson, 30, is considered by most the best player of his era with Trevino calling him "the greatest player in the world right now."

For the past three years, he has topped the money-winning list, won the Vardon Trophy for the low-stroke average on the tour and been named Player of the Year. He once again leads the money-winners, heads the low-stroke average and is a top contender for Player of the Year.

No one else ever swept all three honors for two consecutive seasons, and he likely will score another sweep.

This season he has fife tour victoriec, winning the Glen Campbell San Diego, Andy Williams Los Angeles, Tournament of Champions, New Orleans and Byron Nelson in Dallas, in addition to the British Open.

The 40-year-old Nicklaus, on the other hand, ranks among the best plaiers of all time with his unrivaled collection of 16 major pro titles.

There was recent talk that Nicklaus was through and was about to retire because he hadn't won in two years.

He ended all that talk with his record-setting victory in the U.S.Open at Baltusrol and reinstated him as a mjaor factor in any tournament he enters.

Rec Softball Rained Out

All recreation softball activity was rained out Friday night.

A Parks and Recreation Department spokesman said that the games scheduled for Friday would be played on Monday at the same times and places. All schedules would move back accordingly because of the rainout.

Rare Mussel Rescue Mission Is Underway

The rescue mission is costing $20,000, and so far it's turned up exactly one female Lampsilis Higgins. And only five have been found near the bridge during three government-funded searches in three years.

But the search goes on for the endangered species of mussel because "the Congress said we won't lose any species of critter if we can at all save it," explained Jody Gustitus, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist.

Any Higgins Eyes that are plucked from the river bed are being moved to safety beneath another bridge.

Three divers from Hazleton Environmental Science Corp. of Northbrook, Ill., have turned up 7,000 mussels from the river bed in two weeks, only one of them the rare 5-inch species.

"It's like trying to harvest an acre of strawberries in complete darkness," said Tom Freitag, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineer biologist.

The federal government ordered the searches after one Higgins Eye was found during a 1977 environmental survey prior to construction of a new bridge. To make way for the new span, the old bridge will be dropped into the river — onto the home of the mussels — and then removed piece by piece.

Always a rare mussel, the Higgins Eye is known to be found only in the upper Mississippi River and two tributaries.

Biologists don't know why the mussel is so scarce, but pollution is blamed for reducing its population, Freitag said.

Another reason is its reproductive habits. Most mussels attach their larvae to any of several types of fish, but the Higgins Eye will use only a sauger, which is similar to a walleye.

The Higgins Eye, with a 10- to 15-year lifespan, has been classified as an endangered species since June 1976, Freitag said.

After the first Higgins Eye was found at the Arsenal Bridge, the government in 1978 hired a company to search for more before constructing supports for the new bridge. Divers moved some 7,000 mussels but found only three male Higgins Eyes, Freitag said. They were relocated to a marked area near another bridge.

Divers will continue searching for more another week. Meanwhile, the one Higgins Eye that has been found is being held while resarchers decide what to do with it.

Trying To Alleviate Food Price Concerns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department is trying to alleviate concerns about the impact of this summer's drought, telling consumers that retail food prices will be affected only slightly.

Howard Hjort, the department's chief economist, said Friday farmers in the driest areas will be hurt, but "from a national perspective the overall impact as of the fourth week in July has been relatively modest on producers as well as consumers."

Hjort said food prices would have risen without a drought. Poultry and hog producers are cutting back production to put an end to their financial losses caused by overproduction.

He said the heat wave caused the death of 8 million chickens. But the loss in poultry will be more than offset by an increase in beef production because the drought has encouraged producers to send cattle to slaughter.

"The effects of those changes in retail prices should be cancel each other out," Hjort said.

Retail food prices are expected to increase 8 percent to 9 percent this year, Hjort said.

In an "interim assessment" of the drought, Hjort said that even if the drought worsens in August, large stocks of grain from the farmer-owned reserve will be made available to meet domestic and foreign demand.

Much of the grain was left over from last year's bumper crops.

This year, most crop yields will be down, but the wheat crop is expected to be a record.

Recent rain and cooler temperature brought relief to much of the area that supplies the bulk of the nation's spring-planted crops, Hjort said.

Exceptions are cotton in Texas, sorghum in Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and Arkansas and all crops in the Northern Great Plains.

Farmers whose crops are not hurt badly will benefit from higher prices. Those whose crops are damaged are eligible for emergency federal programs, Hjort said.

He promised updated assessments as conditions change.

Bitten By A Krait, Survives

MONROE, La. (AP) — A 24-year-old man bitten by a krait — a snake far more poisonous than the deadly cobra — has been saved by a blood transfusion from a man who says he has survived more than 100 poisonous snake bites, officials say.

James Lee, 24, an amateur in herpetology, the study of snakes, was in serious condition Saturday at St. Francis Medical Center. He was bitten on the finger Wednesday while feeding one of the six kraits in his collection of 30 snakes.

"He still cannot move his eyes. He cannot lift his eyelids more than about halfway. But he is alert. He is conscious. He never lost consciousness through the whole thing," said Dr. Ernie Rutherford, who is treating Lee at St. Francis.

The blood transfusion came from Bill Haast, operator of the Miami Serpentarium Laboratory.

"It turned out to be very fortunate for him that we both have the same blood type — A-Positive," said Haast, who flew to Monroe Wednesday night with his assistant, Nancy Harrell.

Ms. Harrell said Lee was also lucky that only one fang punctured him — the other fang hit a fingernail on his right hand. She said Lee was lucky, also, to have been bitten by a young krait.

"A krait is many more times deadlier than a cobra," said Ms. Harrell. Kraits are native to China and Formosa.

Ms. Harrell said krait venom, like cobra venom, attacks the central nervous system. She said krait venom is 240 times deadlier than rattlesnake venom and said victims of krait bites usually die within an hour.

After being bitten, Lee was taken immediately to St. Francis, where doctors frantically telephoned other hospitals for anti-venin while using a respirator to keep Lee alive.

But even had doctors found anti-venin, they learned later, using it would have been risky.

North Dakota Village Becoming A Boomtown

By JEFF BAENEN
Associated Press Writer

BEULAH, N.D. (AP) — Coal, electricity, and natural gas are changing this sleepy prairie city — creating a boomtown where the population doubled and now doubles again, bringing jobs and new workers, higher crime and children to crowd the schools.

Bulldozers began clearing land near here Monday on the nation's first commercial coal gasification plant — a major synthetic fuels project that is part of the nation's drive for energy independence.

Major construction is nothing new in this remote western North Dakota city — where two coal-fired power plants are also being built — and residents say they are unshaken by the prospects of another giant new neighbor.

The Great Plains Coal Gasification Project, a $1.4 billion plant to convert lignite, a low grade coal, into high-energy synthetic natural gas, is due for completion in 1984, and will produce 125 million cubic feet of gas daily — the equivalent of 20,000 barrels of oil.

The project has already made itself felt in Beulah, a one-story city nestled on the rolling plains west of the Missouri River that was chosen for the plant because of its proximity to lignite and water.

The network of gasifiers, boilers and water cooling towers of the gasification plant will sprawl over 1,000 acres seven miles northwest of the farming city — a new sight on the prairie already broken by the boxy power plants, one with a boiler towering a record 347 feet.

The new project is expected to employ 3,000 workers — equal to Beulah's current population — when construction peaks in 1982. About 500 workers will stay on when construction ends.

"I think it's a great idea. It pays for the jobs," says Donna Gilbert, who works at the Sonshine Ice Cream Parlor on Main Street.

Miss Gilbert, 26, moved to Beulah two years ago and has no qualms about the influx of project workers and their families.

"There's a lot of strangers. It's nice, though. You can see the town growing. Before, it was like a little ghost town," she said.

Bernard Teske, railroad station operator since 1969, foresees some crowding because of Beulah's rapid growth. The population has doubled since 1975, and is expected to reach 6,000 by 1982.

"People in general get out of hand when they get in large groups. They don't respect people's rights," said Teske.

Mayor Darold Benz said his native city has been a lignite mining center since the turn of the century. "We have never been without coal miners. It's nothing new to the community."

The city has annexed land to accommodate housing for 3,000 more workers, the mayor said, adding he welcomes the renewed boom.

Once, Benz said, the community's only grocery store was in danger of going under. Now there are two — both in new buildings.

"I can remember when we were losing population, like many rural towns in North Dakota," he said. "It's nice to see the town grow. We have survived. We have been able to offer everyone more of a town."

Beulah needs $3 million in expanded water facilities and $2 million for other municipal services to cope with its growing population, estimated City Planner John Rogers. He said state and federal agencies had been unwilling to fund projects because of uncertainty over the gasification plant.

The gasification project, backed by a consortium of five energy companies, has been on the drawing boards since 1972. After delays over finances, President Carter committed $250 million in federal loan guarantees for the first year's construction.

Rogers said Beulah has applied for a federal grant to increase water treatment capacity to serve 6,000 people. "What we've lost is lead time," he said, predicting the area will suffer temporary water shortages next summer.

The sewage plant was expanded for a population of 6,000, but streets were designed to serve 1,500 people, and the municipal airport needs a 500-foot runway extension, Rogers said.

Taxpayers have approved three school bond issues in seven years, said. "My concern is if we propose more bond issues, permanent taxpayers are going to say, 'Enough is enough.'"

School Superintendent Dale Gilje said he was helped by delay in construction, predicting, "We are going to be able to handle burdens connected with this project."

But the school district, which expects a $139,000 budget deficit for 1980-1981, needs help with operating costs. "The revenues that are generated by the plant come several years after they're needed," Gilje said, estimating the enrollment of 700 will reach 1,000 by 1982.

Bolivian Regime Said "Abusing The Church"

By JOHN REICHERTZ

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Army troops of the new military dictatorship raided a mining town, beat up two men guarding a church and took two American Catholic missionaries hostage, diplomatic sources said.

Archbishop Jorge Manrique said Friday he was informed Monsignor David Ratterman of St. Louis, Mo., and the American nun, Mary Elka of Virginia, with no home available, were brought to La Paz on army orders along with a Bolivian nun also seized.

The raid at Matildi, 100 miles north of La Paz, took place Thursday but was not disclosed until Friday.

It apparently was part of a widespread campaign against the Bolivian Catholic Church by the new regime, which took power in a coup July 17 that ousted a civilian government.

Archbishop Manrique said the military regime is "abusing the church," refusing to let a church commission visit more than 2,000 political prisoners arrested in the last two weeks despite a previous agreement to that effect.

In a related development, the Catholic newspaper Presencia reported its managing editor, Mario Maldonado, and reporter Miguel Longo have been detained by the military regime.

Diplomatic sources said the troops raided Matildi in an attempt to indoctrinate the peasants on the evils of communism.

"Prior to picking the two missionaries up, they tore the hell out of the church and beat two villagers who were guarding it," one source said of the raid at Matildi near Carabuco, 100 miles north of La Paz.

"For some reason after beating the villagers, they shaved their heads," the source said.

The soldiers took custody of the American priest and nun, along with a Bolivian nun, the sources said. They were part of a mission that includes two other nuns.

"His mission is pastoral," the archbishop said of Ratterman who he said has worked in Bolivia for 15 years. "It has nothing to do with politics."

Since Gen. Luis Garcia Meza on July 17 ousted President Lidia Gueiler from power, the government has repeatedly attacked the Catholic church.

Before Thursday's raid, at least other eight priests had been detained, and security forces had raided several churches and religious institutions. A church radio station was destroyed when security forces raided it, spraying machine-gun fire throughout the equipment.

On Friday, the military regime published a decree empowering the armed forces to recruit citizens at any time to perform "patriotic services" or face sanctions to be determined by the military junta.

Town Is Gone, Band Plays On

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT
Associated Press Writer

DANIELS, Md. (AP) — No one lives here anymore, but on a quiet summer evening the strains of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" drift out of the Methodist church and across the empty streets.

The church is just about the only thing left in the once-bustling mill town. Over the years, the company-owned town began to deteriorate as the cotton industry shifted to the South. The houses were eventually torn down, and in 1972 Tropical Storm Agnes finished off what remained.

But the members of the Daniels Community Band, some of whom are not much younger than the 101-year-old band itself, faithfully troop in from their new homes to practice in the Gary Memorial United Methodist Church.

William Webb, who plays trumpet and baritone horn, says he keeps the band going partly because it reminds him of his now-deserted hometown. "To me, it's a labor of love...The town is gone, but the band plays on," he said.

"I think we have a real good country band," says Russell Rudacille, who used to work in the mill and joined the band in 1915 when the group was known as The Alberton Cornet Band.

Rudacille won't say how old he is, except "I wasn't born in this century." He plays the tuba.

"I'm the oldest and the worst musician in the band," said Rudacille, laughing. "I can't see the music too good and that's a big handicap."

But what he lacks in musical talent he makes up for in spirit.

"I love to play 'God Bless America,'" he said.

"Over the years," recalled Webb, "the Rudacilles have been the backbone of the band. Of course there were four brothers."

Brother Lester, now in his 70s, still plays the clarinet. Roy and Bernard are dead. But Russell's son, Earl, and Roy's son, Gary, are in the band, carrying on the family tradition.

The number of band members has fluctuated over the years. There are now between 20 and 25.

The band mostly plays for free, at nursing homes and Fourth of July picnics, and for the local American Legion on Memorial Day.

The band does not have uniforms any more and does not march. It is "a strictly seated band," said Webb, a balding, gray-haired, wiry man. It is a band that plays "for our own amazement," he added.

Its repertoire strongly favors the marches of John Philip Sousa and "old favorites," like "Waiting For The Robert E. Lee" and "Over The Waves."

"We don't play 'The Stars and Stripes Forever' too often, it's fairly difficult," Webb added.

PCP May Be Dumped In Gulf

By ED McHALE
Associated Press Writer

SHELL BEACH, La. (AP) — Once the remains of 12½ tons of deadly PCP are vacuumed from a muddy shipping channel floor here, the Coast Guard plans to dump the chemical back into the ocean, far out in the Gulf of Mexico, state officials say.

Scientists say that when the chemical is spread over a wide area of the ocean, it should pose little danger to marine life.

But in the rich fishing areas near the chemical spill in the Mississippi River-Gulf Outlet, PCP contamination has shown up in oysters and killed 200 shrimp. The areas have been closed to fishermen since 500 bags of pentachlorophenal went overboard July 22 when two ships collided.

The PCP, mixed with small concentrations of deadly dioxin, can build up in the bodies of fish and be passed along the food chain. Mildly contaminated seafood, however, eventually can cleanse itself of the chemical.

Marine biologist K. Rango Rao said he was encouraged because there has been no major fish kill. The PCP appeared to be confined to a small area and was slowly dissolving. "Right now, there is no reason to have an alarm situation" said the University of West Florida biologist.

But he said it would be unwise to eat anything from nearby waters "at least for the next few months." It would take time to learn the long-term effects of the spill on oysters, shrimp, crabs and other seafood, he said.

It took a week after the collision of the ore carrier Sea Daniel and container ship Testbank to find the missing steel container and deteriorating PCP bags it had held.

Pumping equipment installed Thursday was ready to go into action, officials said. Once vacuuming begins "if all goes well, we might have removed all of the PCP that was found down there within 24 hours," said Capt. Ralph Hill of the Coast Guard's "regional response team."

The equipment was to suck a mixture of 70 percent water and 30 percent PCP into barges where the water would be filtered and returned to the channel. The remaining gooey muck of PCP and mud would be disposed of.

"The thinking is we would do it far out in the Gulf, far beyond the Louisiana limits, probably 100 miles or more," said Joseph Colson, secretary of the state Department of Wildlife and Fisheries.

Colson was meeting with federal and state officials about getting disaster aid for area fishermen who have suffered extensive commercial losses because of the spill. Lawsuits seeking at least $30.5 million in damages have been filed against the two ships.

Fishing and sports have been banned on much of nearby Lake Borgne because of polluted oysters, and increasing levels of PCP were being reported in waterways elsewhere.

Near the coastal town of Yscloskey, officials reported that PCP had killed 200 shrimp in a bait tank.

Rao said the long-term effects of the poisoning may be determined after the canal bottom has been cleaned and tests show if PCP has dissolved in the sediment of surrounding bodies of water.

Dickens Of A Hoax Played

LONDON (AP) — Charles Dickens may have written smashing novels, but can he really replace William Shakespeare as the bard of the English stage?

The mysterious hoaxer who went after the Royal Shakespeare Company seems to think so.

The hoax began when posters went up around London last week proclaiming that the famed Shakespeare troupe was changing its name to the Royal Dickens Theater in the wake of the huge success of its theatrical adaptation of Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby."

Then actors throughout Britain began receiving offers to appear in the new company's future productions of Dickens' works.

The invitations were written on authentic-looking stationery whose letterhead, "Royal Dickens Theater," was in the same style as that used by the Royal Shakespeare Company. Even the mailing address was the same: Stratford-upon-Avon.

Trevor Nunn, the Royal Shakespeare Company's artistic director, got wind of the hoax when he began receiving letters from actors inquiring about parts in forthcoming Dickens' productions.

The identity of the hoaxer and his motives were not known.

A Different Religious Story

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's the wildest, loudest, friskiest portrayal ever of the passion story — Jesus, his execution and resurrection — but somehow it mostly comes off as rambunctiously reverent.

"He rules!" the chorus blasts it out. "...Didn't I tell you?... There'll never be a man like him!... When the power comes ... the Jesus power!"

And the audience is swept up into the compulsive sound and dancing fervor, clapping, whistling shrilly, stomping, standing and swaying and then shouting out its affirmation:

"Yeah! Yeah!"

That's after the robust resurrection scene in the current Broadway hit, "Your Arms Too Short to Box with God," a flashy, bouncing musical rendition of the Jesus story in song and dance.

It begins on a gentle note, a choir softly singing the Beatitudes, "Blessed are the meek ... the merciful ... the poor ... the persecuted ... the peacemakers..." But it quickly turns tempestuous as the preacher exhorts the audience:

"Hey Lord! We're gonna have a good time!" He gets the audience clapping cadence and rooting for it. "Don't be afraid to raise your voice. The Lord said make a joyful noise... Yeah, Lord, we're gonna have a good time. Say yeah!"

"YEAH!"

That's the sort of tent-revival enthusiasm built up repeatedly between audience and performers, a kind of high-powered reflection of the black-church style, done by a black cast.

It's "earthy, joyous, gutsy Gospel," says Vinnette Carroll, artistic director of the Urban Arts Corps and author-director of the show, originally commissioned by the Italian government and first performed at the Spoletto Festival.

It opened on Broadway in May after a year-long tour of 66 U.S. cities to wide critical acclaim.

"It's theater that stimulates, that pushes, pulls and sometimes almost pummels its audience into a catharsis of emotion," says Ms. Carroll, award-winning actress and writer-director whose works often contain strong religious elements.

"There's a stranger in town," the talk goes. "He looks like no one you've ever seen before... He's called a troublemmaker because he disturbs the status quo."

Back home in Nazareth, his mother Mary, does a troubled dance while big-voiced Jennifer-Yvette Holliday, sings, "Something is wrong in Jerusalem... I can't dismiss that nagging feeling... Be careful, darling, who you walk with ... those who betray your trust."

She goes there, and the tumultuous scenes unfold in that special romping, singing, zestful fashion, the arrest, the flogging the trial and condemmnation, with the betrayer Judas doing a tormented, suicidal dance after the priests laugh off his efforts to return the bribe.

One interlude, the mockery of Jesus on the cross (Gill's arms outstretched at the lighted top of a dark mound) gets a little raucous, drawing some spectators into seemingly identifying, if strained, laughter with the mockers.

"Come on down!" they hoot and sing. "Some Son of God ... turning water into booze... Why don't you tell your pappy, huh?... Don't you trust your old man? Where's your big daddy?"

But then the whole theater seems to shake with kettledrum thunder, booming brass, bells, a swishing sound like wind, and the mockers cringe. "God, can't you take a joke?"

The resurrection scene comes with frenzied dancing and joyous singing, "Can't no grave hold my body down!" They put a gold-embroidered royal robe on the shoulders of the loincloth-clad Jesus.

"I love you Jesus," they sing. The second-act epilogue beats and whirls with rousing salutes to Gospel greats of the past, a panoramic crescendo building up to a rollicking finale, "The Saints Come Marching In!"

JESUS STORY IN SONG AND DANCE . . . Elijah Gill as Jesus and Quincella Swiningan as Mary dance a pas de deux in Vinnette Carroll's "Your Arms Too Short To Box With God." After a year-long tour of U.S. Cities, the rambunctious portrayal of the execution and resurrection of Jesus is playing on Broadway. (AP Laserphoto)

Stone Veneer, Balcony Enhance Exterior

By Jerry Bishop

A 23-foot balcony fronts two bedrooms, each with large closet and sharing a full bath. The master bedroom, toward the rear of the home, has its own full bath and walk-in closet. The sleeping area is confined to the top level of the home, providing necessary privacy for comfortable family living.

Down a few steps is the kitchen, dining and living room, which opens from a large foyer. A back stairs from the kitchen to the sleeping area allows private latenight snacking, even though other members of the family may be entertaining visitors in the living room.

The living room is decorated with a bow window and wood-burning fireplace, and the dining room opens to the terrace via sliding glass doors. The kitchen is designed with refrigerator, range and sink in an L-shape for efficient cooking. Eating space is also included here, as well as in the more formal dining room.

The lowest level includes a double garage, storage space and a laundry area. Vertical siding at the balcony area combines with French doors and a stone veneer to create an unusual exterior for the "Chartrand."

Collection Of Household Cleaning Tips Available

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

House cleaning may be the world's most ordinary and irritating task. But one way to make it less annoying is by doing it more quickly and efficiently.

Coming just at the time when some families need it most (with more husbands and wives both holding down full-time jobs outside the home), is a compendium of household cleaning hints by Virginia Habeeb, a home economist.

Ms. Habeeb says a recent study by Cornell University found that some situations increase housework. These include inadequate storage space, inefficient room arrangement, extra dirt from outside — if, for example, there is construction in the neighborhood or bad weather — and involvement with a party.

Householders can reduce some cleaning problems by rearranging their homes with more efficient storage space, using door mats to trap some of the dirt from outside and by cleaning entrances frequently.

To prevent disorganized possessions from slowing you down, sort your things into those items used regularly, seasonal items, and things used only once in a while. Then put the things you use often in accessible spots. You may be able to find storage space where you think none exists by putting up shelves or a closet under the stairs, using basement joists for lumber storage or other bulky items, installing foldaway desks, putting up pegboard and rearranging the closets with double tiers of hanging rods and additional shelves.

"Don't budget more time than necessary for doing routine cleaning jobs," says Ms. Habeeb. For example, a child's room is ordinarily cleanable in 15 to 30 minutes, a kitchen takes about 45 minutes, and a bathroom about 30 minutes. If you are spending a lot more time than this, something may be wrong with your work pattern.

To find out, make a small-scale time and motion study by clocking your steps for an entire cleaning job. You may be jumping from one task to another, wasting steps, or even daydreaming the time away.

Household tasks usually fall into daily, weekly, monthly or seasonal categories, according to Ms. Habeeb, a home economist who has written widely on many aspects of home care.

Daily tasks usually include emptying ashtrays and waste buckets, straightening up, throwing out trash, dry mopping and dusting, making the beds, putting away clothes, cleaning the bathroom sink and tub and, in the kitchen, putting away food and washing the dishes and keeping the range, counter and sink clean. These tasks can be accomplished each day in a minimum amount of time.

Once a week, clear out clutter, wipe smudges off walls, vacuum and dust thoroughly, take care of house plants, change bed linens and clean the entire bathroom with disinfectant. Clean out the refrigerator and wipe off kitchen appliances, mop and wax the kitchen floor, if necessary, and clean the garbage can. The laundry completes the week's housework tasks.

Monthly, or occasionally, a householder should plan to clean windows inside and out, polish furniture and metallic items, move the furniture to sweep beneath it and clean out closets on a rotating basis. Occasionally, turn the mattresses, wash the bathroom rug, clean out the medicine closet and defrost the refrigerator.

Once or twice a year, plan to remove books from the shelves and dust the books and the shelves thoroughly, clean pictures, rugs and carpets and lighting fixtures, dryclean or wash blankets and spreads and clean the shower curtain, the dirty-clothes hamper and the household blinds, shades or draperies.

Putting housework on a schedule such as this will eventually result in a more orderly house that is easier to clean, thus freeing household cleaners (increasingly both husband and wife) for more pleasurable activities.

Consider the gutters and downspouts around your house as the drainage system of the roof.

When this system is not working properly, water runs down the exterior walls and produces ugly streaks or, worse yet, it moves to the inside through gaps where caulking is no longer effective. The downspouts should carry water away from the house rather than deposit it next to the foundation, where it can exert enough pressure to cause leaks and other kinds of damage.

Like so much other equipment in and around the house, the roof drainage system must be kept in good working order or major problems will develop later. It is wise, therefore, to inspect the gutters and downspouts periodically to be certain they are performing as they should. The next time there is a rainstorm, put on the right protective gear, go outside and see what's happening.

Especially observe whether water is flowing over the sides of the gutters and whether, as water emits from the downspouts, it is quickly flowing away. Overflowing is generally caused by an accumulation of leaves and other debris in the gutter channels. In cleaning out this unwanted material, get it out of the gutter. Don't push it into the downspouts, where it may get stuck and cause further trouble.

If water is flowing out of the downspouts and staying there, use splash blocks to take it away. And if splash blocks are not sufficient, consider the use of dry wells, situated about 20 feet from the house. Underground pipes should run from the spouts to the wells, sloped to allow the water to flow properly.

Sometimes the drainage system is not operating well because one of the gutters is sagging at some point along its length. With wooden gutters, a bit of carpentry is called for, since such gutters are attached to the house in a variety of different ways, depending on the skill of the person who made the installation. All that can be done is to inspect the length of the gutter to determine how it is attached and how it can be repaired. Occasionally, it is necessary to replace the gutter entirely. With metal gutters, the attachment is via brackets or similar supports. Either add one or more extra supports, or see whether an old one merely has become loose and can be reattached.

Should there be a leak in the metal, patch it with one of the special patching kits available in hardware stores, lumber yards and building-supply centers. Another method, in use ever since the first metal gutter sprang a leak, is to spread asphalt cement over the area of the leak, not on the outside of the gutter but on the inside. Take a piece of aluminium foil and press it down into the cement, then cover it with another layer of the cement. When set, the patch will be leakproof.

Here's the Answer

Q. — I am having my roof reshingled soon. The roofer tells me that the heavier the shingle, the longer it will last. If that is so, why is it that the manufacturer doesn't print the shingle weight on the bundles the way he used to do?

A. — Generally, it is true that the heavier the shingle, the longer its life expectancy. Manufacturers rarely print shingle weight on their bundles these days because normal variations in shingle manufacture could make the print weight inaccurate, although some catalogs still mention the approximate weights. As for the life expectancy, while it is true that the heavier the shingle, the longer it is likely to last, there is an exception to this. Asphalt shingles with a fiber-glass base mat are comparatively lighter than those with an organic base mat of equivalent life expectancy. Customers should consider "design life" when comparing roofing materials. With asphalt shingles, the usual life expectancy range is 15 to 25 years.

Q. — I put up "good faith" money — $100 — on a house my husband and I liked and intended to buy, but we have changed our minds. Are we entitled to get the money back?

A. — That's a question for your lawyer, since the circumstances determine each individual case. One factor is what caused you to change your minds.

Q. — Our house has wooden shingles that have never been finished. I wanted to have them stained, but my husband wants to paint them. I am afraid he has won out. The next thing to decide is whether a sealer must be put on the wood before applying latex paint. Can you help us?

A. — It usually is wise to use a latex undercoating on raw wood if the final coat is to be latex. When you purchase the paint, read the label carefully and follow the manufacturer's recommendation as to the type of undercoater.

Q. — An old bedroom vanity that was given to us apparently has several coats of varnish on it. We cleaned it thoroughly, but finally decided to paint it to match the decor in the room where it will be placed. Can we paint right over the varnish or must it be removed?

A. — If the varnish is in good condition, it is not necessary to remove it. Paint can be applied right over it. But if there is any gloss on the varnish, it must be dulled with steel wool or sandpaper, using the finest grade you can get. As with all refinishing when one coat is applied over another, the top coat will stay intact only as long as the bottom one does.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, bleach, stain, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 50 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. I have heard that spinach contains oxalic acid and should not be eaten raw. Is this correct? (C.J., Fayetteville)

A. No. Spinach contains oxalic acid, but the quantity is too small to injure humans. For your information, the leaves of rhubarb do contain enough oxalic acid to cause fatal poisoning to those who eat them. (Larry Bass, extension horticulturist)

Q. Should a celestial fig tree be watered frequently or infrequently, I have heard both recommendations. (A.S., Candor)

A. Newly set plants will need a good soaking once a week, either from rain or a hose. Normal rainfall will usually suffice for a mature tree. If there is a dry period, apply one inch of water once a week. Do not water every day. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. The "cow itch" vine is taking over my vegtables and strawberries. How can I control it? (E.T., Durham)

A. You will have to use a hoe or pull it out by hand. Any herbicide (chemical) that would control "cowitch" vine would also harm your vegtables and strawberries. Incidentally, some people know "cowitch" vine by the name of trumpetcreeper or trumpetvine.)W.M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

Q. When do you apply lime to a blue hydrangea to make it bloom pink? (W.E., Wilmington)

A. In late summer. Apply one tablespoon of hydrated lime per plant. Work the lime into the soil around the root system. Hydrangeas will grow and bloom with a pink color at a pH of 6.5 to 8.0. Here's another tip on growing hydrangeas. Prune them immediately after bloom. They form flower buds in the fall, and pruning them in the fall or spring will reduce blooms. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Durable Roof Is A Selling Point

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — By using a little foresight, a homeowner might find that a long-lasting roof will help him get the price he wants when it's time to sell his house.

When the time comes to reshingle the house, the owner should first decide approximately how long he plans to live in it, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a shingle manufacturer.

Then buy a shingle that will last twice as long. The owner stands a better chance of getting the price he wants for the house if the roof is in good condition, since people who buy a house don't want to buy a new roof, too.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Connally Branch

When thinking about real estate, you may be thinking of buying, selling and leasing property for living or business. Essentially, that is what real estate is all about. However, if thought of on a larger scale, it is one of the most significant societal concepts that people have ever had and are still dealing with. In a way, it is at the base of all political and economic systems. Real estate is all about private property. That in turn leads to the central question. Who really has the right to own property?

Dependable professional service in all phases of real estate is offered at REALTY WORLD-CLARK-BRANCH REALTORS, INC., 1902 S. Charles, 756-6336. Our friendly staff gives personalized service to buyers and sellers alike. If you are looking for property in this area, visit our office and check our selected listings of choice homes in all price ranges. Many times we are able to assist you in obtaining financing. If you are selling be sure to list with us for quick, profitable results. Open: Mon.-Fri. 8:30-5:30, Sat. 8:30-1, other times by appt.

Education Purge In So. Korea

By M.H. AHN
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Education Ministry Friday purged 611 teachers and officials, raising to 8,634 the number of officials and employees of government firms fired since the martial law command began its "social purification" campaign last month.

The campaign is run by the military-dominated Special Committee for National Security which says corrupt, disloyal and inefficient employees are being weeded out.

Those purged previously included 4,992 government officials, 1,819 executives and officials of government banks and corporations, and 1,212 officials of agricultural and fishery cooperatives.

On Thursday, the martial-law regime shut down 172 weekly and monthly publications which is said printed material that was "obscene, vulgar, instigated social confusion or created a mood of class consciousness." This was 12 percent of the 1,434 weekly and monthly periodicals.

The martial-law command also announced the indictment of Kim Dae-jung, the nation's foremost foe of military rule, and 23 of his followers, setting the stage for their court-martial. They were charged with conspiring to overthrow the government and could get the death penalty if convicted.

The military prosecutor's office said Kim, who ran a close second to the late President Park Chung-hee in the 1971 presidential election, was also charged with violating the national security and foreign exchange control laws and martial-law decrees.

The announcement did not say when the trial would start, but the Hapdong News Agency said it would begin early this month.

Among those indicted was National Assemblyman Ye Chun-ho.

Kim was arrested May 17 when martial law was expanded to cover the entire country following riots in Seoul and other cities protesting military rule. The disturbances were capped by a bloody nine-day rebellion in the provincial capital of Kwangju in which the martial-law command said 189 persons were killed. Kim is from the Kwangju area, and his arrest was one of the causes of the uprising there.

Until his arrest, Kim was one of the leading prospective candidates for the presidential election that was promised for next year. He was imprisoned from 1975 until late 1978 for signing a manifesto opposing Park's authoritarian rule. Park was assassinated on Oct. 26 by the chief of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency, who later was executed.

Indian Food Supply Better

WASHINGTON (AP) — The widespread belief that millions of Indians are starving is inaccurate and actually the nation is doing well in producing food, a published report says.

The confidential report by the World Bank says the outlook for India is "substantially more optimistic than many past projections," it was reported today in the Washington Post. "Food grain self-sufficiency or surplus, if it comes about, will be an impressive achievement of a long-standing goal of Indian economic development."

The World Bank report noted that the apparent level of grain consumpton in 1978-79 was 170 kilograms per capita, or "approximately equal to a caloric-sufficient quantity, on the average, for the Indian population. It said this level of average consumption was well above what was projected earlier for 1978-79, but "with unequal distribution of this consumptiun, this means undernutrition for lower-income groups."

Corn, Tobacco Damaged In Late Friday Afternoon Storm In Pitt County

WIND BLOWN TOBACCO...Strong gusts of wind and hail accompanying Friday night's thunderstorm beat several fields of tobacco in Pitt County to the ground. This field, near Winterville, sustained wind damage but no hail damage. According to county Agricultural Extension Chairman Leroy James, farmers can set the tobacco back up and continue harvesting. "There is, however, no help for tobacco extensively damaged by hail," he said. Many barns and storage buildings were also damaged by winds, lightning and falling trees. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken.)

THE END FOR CORN...Strong winds from Friday's storm brought the end for what remained of the county's early corn crop. The 1.11 inches of rain will help the medium and late corn crops, though, according to county Agricultural Extension Chairman Leroy James, as well as the tobacco the storm didn't level. "We still need more rain, but this was a help," he commented. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Viking Ship On Lake Superior

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

HAWLEY, Minn. (AP) — The Coast Guard has been alerted. If someone sees a Viking dragon ship cruising around on Lake Superior this week, stay calm. That will be Bob Asp.

"We will soon know," Asp was saying as he surveyed his marvelous handiwork, now moored in this tiny prairie village surrounded by sunflower fields, "whether it floats right side up."

If Asp had any doubt that his ship would float right side up, or that he will sail it across the sea to Norway in a gesture of gratitude, he would not have made it the passion of his life.

"Some dreams seem so remote even the dreamer knows they will never become reality," he said.

"Mine might have appeared as that sort of dream, but it never was, not in my mind. When I first got the idea, and said to myself, 'Why not?' I knew I could do it, and would."

So he did. He cut oak trees, 150 of them, from all over the state. He sawed them into lumber. He turned an abandoned potato warehouse into a shipyard and put up a sign: Shipyard. He cut, planed, riveted and caulked. For nearly 10 years, he labored like a man obsessed.

What emerged a fortnight ago from its warehouse womb — by knocking out the front wall — was a full-fledged Viking ship, a precise copy of the Gokstad Viking ship in the Oslo museum, the one in all the history books, an oaken colossus 76½ feet long, 17½ feet wide.

Asp christened his ship "Hjemkomst," in the tongue of his Norwegian forebears, "Homecoming."

"I want my trip to represent all those Scandanavian immigrants who came here and settled so thickly in this part of America. They never forgot their native land, never lost their love for it, but could never return, many of them, not even for a visit."

If his plans stay on schedule, Asp will truck his ship clear across the state to Duluth, arriving Wednesday, launch it Thursday and practice sailing it on Lake Superior the rest of the summer.

He aims to sail down the St. Lawrence to the East Coast next spring, and the following spring, the spring of 1982, pick a crew of 12 hearty adventurers and cast off for Norway.

"I have no serious doubt that the ship will be found seaworthy and that we will have a safe voyage," he said.

Asp's own people were among the group he wants his trip to represent. His father was a Swede, born in mid-Atlantic — an omen? — aboard a Norwegian sailing vessel. His mother was Norwegian.

They went homesteading when the land was young and wound up in Thief River Falls, where Bob was born in 1923.

Bob grew up in a land where the only waves are the amber waves of grain rolling across the Great Plains. He became a schoolteacher and is today a counselor at a junior high in nearby Moorhead. The ship was a project for late nights, weekends, summer vacations.

"I got the idea from my brother, Bjarne. He was doing a college paper on Viking history and Viking ships and said to me, jokingly, 'Let's build one.'

"As it happened, the next day I had a bad accident, a fall, and was laid up for two months. Bjarne brought me his research material, stacks of books, to keep me occupied.

"I read them all and a dream was born. That was in the summer of 1971. The next spring I was cutting trees."

Does it bother Asp that he has no sailing experience?

"Not in the least. When I started, I didn't know anything about shipbuilding, either."

Houses Collapse After Rains

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 17 deaths were reported Saturday in northern India and in Pakistan's Punjab Province when houses collapsed under torrential rains, the heaviest to hit some areas in 25 years.

Twelve people died and eight others were injured Saturday in the partial collapse of a 175-year-old mansion in Lucknow, northern India, the United News of India reported.

The victims included 11 members of one family, UNI said.

It was the second house collapse this week in the city, 270 miles southeast of New Delhi. Eight people died in the previous incident.

A reporter who visited the scene of Saturday's collapse said police had cordoned off the area and continued to search through the wreckage, but a dozen families remained in what was left of the mansion.

The owner of the building, a former Prince Nawab Syed Mohammed Haji, maintained he recently had warned both the authorities and his tenants that the "condition of the building was pretty bad and it could collapse at any time."

Fights At Festival

MOLE LAKE, Wis. (AP) — Fights broke out early Saturday among some 300 motorcycle club members and others attending a rock music festival, and state officials said other law enforcement officers were sent to aid local deputies.

William Krause, communications coordinator for Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus, said in Madison that state officials were told "basically a bunch of motorcyclists tearing up the place" at the northern Wisconsin festival, which drew upwards of 43,000 people.

There were unconfirmed reports of some injuries, but a spokesman for the Forest County sheriff's office said only that its 12 deputies were busy and could not provide details immediately.

Business Notes

QUARTERLY DIVIDENDS

The board of directors of Eaton Corp. declared regular quarterly dividends on the company's three classes of shares.

The dividends include: 43 cents per common share; 29.6875 cents per four and three-quarter percent cumulative convertible preferred share; and 57 and one-half cents per serial preferred share, series A.

All dividends, it was reported, will be payable on Aug. 25 to shareholders of record Aug. 8.

NEW BERN OFFICE

Branch Banking & Trust Co. announced that it will have an open house on Friday, Aug. 8 from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. for its new office in New Bern on Glenburnie Road. The office is the bank's fourth in New Bern.

John B. Green, senior vice president and New Bern city executive, said that Jim Stocks, assistant vice president, will be manager in charge of the new office.

INCREASE SOUGHT

Carolina Telephone announced that it notified the N.C. Utilities Commission that it will file a request for increased rates and charges within "the next few weeks."

T. P. Williamson, vice president-administration with Carolina Telephone, said the amount of the increase has not been determined.

According to Williamson, the Tarboro-based company informed the commission that it had tried to avoid a rate request, but found it necessary because of inflation, the increasing cost of capital needed in its business, and increasing costs of operation.

The spokesman said that basic local service rates have been adjusted only twice since 1957, once upward and once downward. Hearings on the rate request will be scheduled by the commission following the planned application.

ASSISTANT NAMED

George D. Henson has been named administrative assistant to Weyerhaeuser Company's senior vice president of operations Harry E. Morgan Jr. at corporate headquarters in Tacoma, Wash., the company announced.

Prior to the promotion, Henson was production scheduling manager for the company's Plymouth mill complex. In 1972, he was named region log allocation analyst for the company's North Carolina region, based at region headquarters in New Bern.

SALES DOWN

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. reported a two percent second quarter downturn in sales of $123,127,000 from $125,512,000 last year.

William C. Battle, president and chief executive officer, said the decrease in sales and other factors decreased Fieldcrest' second quarter earnings to $3,054,000 from $5,629,000 a year earlier. Both sales and earnings marks in 1979 were record highs, Battle added.

OAKWOOD DIVIDENDS

Directors of Oakwood Homes Corp. announced the declaration of a ten percent stock dividend, payable Sept. 8 to shareholders of record on Aug. 15.

The company also announced the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of three cents per share, payable on Aug. 20 to shareholders of record on Aug. 7.

FINANCIAL RESULTS

Eaton Corp. announced sales of $1.67 billion in the first half of 1980 and net income of $78.4 million. The results compared with $1.74 billion in sales and $91 million in net income during the same period in 1979.

Sales for the second quarter of 1980 were $824 million, down from $873 million in 1979, while net income amounted to $29.4 million, down from $46.2 million during the same period in 1979.

Eaton manufactures advanced technology products serving worldwide transportation and industrial markets. The company employs 53,000 persons in 165 plants on six continents and operates a facility in Greenville.

NEW COMPANY

Rowland E. Myers, formerly general manager of National Spinning Co. in Washington, announced the opening of Char-Tex Inc., a textile sales and consulting firm, in Charlotte.

Myers, who was technical consultant with Gee Mac Textiles in Charlotte prior to founding Char-Tex, said that the company handles domestic and foreign yarns, concentrating on service to southeastern textile companies.

SALE REPORTED

Billy Ipock, president of Happy Stores of North Carolina, announced the sale of the Happy Store located at Pactolus Highway and Rams Horn Road to Wilson Kemp of Rocky Mount.

Ipock said the new trade name is Kwick Wilson's.

A Pawnshop Boom

By THOMAS RIZZO
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The woman standing beneath a red neon pawnbroker's sign proclaiming "Credit To All" appeared nervous as she waited for the appraisal of her engagement ring.

Squinting to hold his jeweler's eye loupe in place, Dave Levison studied the ring and then asked the woman how much money she expected to get.

"I was hoping to get a hundred," she said.

"No way," he answered before offering her $40 with the ring as collateral.

Trading jewelry and other possessions for quick cash has become increasingly popular as rising unemployment and inflation leaves more and more people short of money, Levison and other pawnbrokers in the state said.

He said his shop, its aisles lined with stereo equipment, musical instruments, luggage, television sets and secondhand clothing and shoes, has "probably seen as high as a 25 percent increase in loans this year over the same period last year."

Said Leon Levine, owner of Barr's Loan Office in Cincinnati, "We're so tired of writing loans we just want to go home.

"The middle-class American worker, who never knew what a pawn shop was, calls you all day long," Levine said. "They are hurting, they need money, so you got a new element of customers."

And, Levison said, "the people are not redeeming their loans like they usually do when they're working steady."

Most items brought to pawnshops in return for cash are ticketed and stored for 90 days. Jewelry is put away for six months.

Alice Mancini

She's Chosen Pitt County As Her Home

Alice Mancini is a North Carolinian and a Pitt Countian by choice.

"I passed through this state on a trip many years ago," the 74-year-old native of Long Island, N. Y. said, "and I thought it was beautiful. I held the place in reverence in my mind all those years, never dreaming this would one day be my home."

Two years ago Mrs. Mancini received a call from her long-time friend, Mildred Dawson Laromer. "Come on down," Mildred said, "there's an acre lot next to us vacant. This is where you ought to be."

Mrs. Laromer, a Pitt County native, had spent most of her adult life on Long Island, but had chosen to come back to Pitt County to retire. She and her husband had settled in a rural subdivision of acre lots at Shady Acres near Winterville.

Mrs. Mancini came for a visit and she said it was love at first sight. "Pitt County," she said, "is lovely to me. Its wide open spaces and flourishing farmland remind me of the Long Island of my childhood. Now one town on Long Island runs into the next, but it wasn't that way always. Pitt County should take heed and not let it happen here."

Before the visit was over, she had put a deposit on the lot next to Mrs. Laromer and on a mobile home. She then returned to Lake Ronkonkoma, Long Island, to sell her house.

"Just when I thought it was sold," she said, "the deal fell through and my contract with the realtor ran out. I knew by then that it was God's will that I move, but I figured I must have misjudged His timing. I told all the realtors who called I wasn't interested in listing again. I just unpacked and went about my daily life. I knew when the right person came along and the time was right that my house would sell. The right person did come along. I sold my house for $2,000 more than I had originally hoped for, and within a few weeks, by Sept. 15, 1978, I was down here having my mobile home set up."

My neighbors here, then and ever since, have been wonderful to me," she said. "The adjustment here has been made much, much easier because of them."

Mrs. Mancini is gradually transforming her acre into a gardener's paradise. She's up and out in the yard by 6 o'clock most mornings and works "until it gets too hot" spreading sand and topsoil, creating and maintaining flower and vegetable beds, planting trees, sprigging grass, making brick walkways, doing whatever is needed to beautify her surroundings.

"Some mornings I have an ache or two when I start," she said, "but I say to myself, 'With God, all things are possible' and I soon forget them. It's long been my philosophy that God wants us to be creative partners with Him, to take whatever He gives us and use and improve on it and share it with others insofar as we are able. That's the way we maintain the flow of good into our lives. We must be channels."

Mrs. Mancini is the mother of five, the grandmother of 12 and the great grandmother of 10. Two of her children live on Long Island, two in Florida and one in Washington State. "I'm about equidistant between the two on Long Island and the two in Florida," she said, "so this is a good place to be."

How does she go to see her children and why doesn't she choose to live close to some of them? She flies to Washington State, but to visit the ones on the East Coast she hops in her car and drives alone, usually making the trip to Florida and the trip to Long Island in one day.

In answer to the second part of the question, she said, "I deliberated long and hard as to whether to leave familiar surroundings, beloved friends and relatives, my church and senior citizens club, on Long Island and move here. But I felt it was the right thing to do. There I was supporting a house, finding it very difficult just to pay the taxes. I knew, with inflation, it wouldn't get easier. I strongly believe that each person must, with God's help, supply his or her own needs as long as he or she is able. I've been blessed with continuing ability to work, both mentally and physically. I wanted more than anything else in the world to continue to enjoy my children but not to be dependent on any of them, emotionally or financially. By selling my house at a profit, I was able to set myself up here in very sufficient surroundings. My day-to-day living expenses are much less than before and I'm able to live as I want to, completely dependent on myself.

Mrs. Mancini works part-time as a bookkeeper for a Winterville chiropractor. She hopes, in the fall, to find another part-time bookkeeping job. "I can use the money to finance all the further improvements I want to make to my yard," she said, "and, besides, I love bookkeeping. I take great delight in having everything come out to the penny at the end of the month. It's really a pleasure."

Almost all her belongings are handmade by her or by family members or friends. She makes practically all her own clothes, hooks rugs according to her own patterns, does various kinds of needlework, cooks "more than I should," grows and cans much of her own food, enjoys ballroom and square dancing, bowls, and maintains a large library of books and tape recordings. "I gave away most of my books before I left," she said, "but I kept the ones on Truth and the how-to ones on cooking and gardening and building."

Mrs. Mancini's life has not always been so idyllic. "I've learned," she said, "that life is what you make it. I didn't learn that overnight, though. It took years. It would have been easier if I'd known it in my younger years, but it's okay — I got a lot of growth out of the adversity.

"I was very idealistic as a child and was interested in everything. During high school, I took five major and four minor subjects, working very hard with the intention of studying medicine. My father, a ferryboat captain, found out, though, and laid down the law that I would do no such thing. Back then what father said went. I was so disappointed, I ran away and married at 17. My married years were not happy ones. I had to work at anything I could find, from waiting tables to sewing gloves in a factory, just to keep food on the table for my children. I wouldn't have made it through the Depression years without the help of my mother."

"I worked hard at many jobs, and always enjoyed excelling at whichever one I had at the time. Even after the children were grown I worked, sometimes as a bus driver, sometimes as an aircraft factory worker. But I never found my niche until, at age 52, I took a bookkeeping course in Vocational School. I enjoyed it so much that I covered a year and a half's worth of material in two months, and this is the way I've earned my living ever since."

Mrs. Mancini says she discovered the teachings of the Unity School of Practical Christianity about 40 years ago. "The teachings were helpful to me from the beginning," she said, "but it was only after a Unity study group and then a church was formed in Huntington, N. Y. that I really learned how to apply the teachings to better my life in every way."

Mrs. Mancini tithes through the Huntington church and receives tapes of every Sunday service there. "I hope we can get a Unity group started here," she said. "I miss the fellowship. When the time is right, it will happen. I know it will."

Tanya is a part-terrier who adopted Mrs. Mancini and is now her mistress's shadow at home. Mrs. Mancini is wearing a dress she made herself and the afghan covering the chair back behind her was handmade by her.

Text & Photographs By Carol Tyer

"My Books Are My Friends," Mrs. Mancini says. She has a smaller library than she used to because of limited storage space. Most of her titles now are Truth and how-to ones she says.

Gardening is the way Mrs. Mancini begins almost every day. "I'm blessed to be able to do any physical work I wish," she said. "I just never have stopped."

MRS. HUBERT CLINTON SHEARIN JR.

Shearin-Flye Vows Spoken

Miss Patricia Ann Flye and Hubert Clinton Shearin Jr. were united in marriage Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. The private ceremony was held in the home of the bride's parents.

Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. James Clayton Rittenhouse of Virginia Beach, Va., uncle of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ira Flye of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Clinton Shearin of Rocky Mount.

Attending as honored guests were Mrs. E. Leslie Briley, grandmother of the bride, Paul L. Flye, grandfather of the bride, both of Greenville, and Mrs. Estelle Shearin of Rocky Mount, grandmother of the bridegroom.

Follwoing the ceremony, a reception was held. White daisies were used as the centerpiece for the reception table with greenery used throughout the home.

The bride is employed by Planters National Bank, Rocky Mount. The bridegroom is associated with his father at Comer Oil Co., Rocky Mount, where the couple will live.

The couple was entertained at a cookout given by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Worlsey Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Ange of Rocky Mount.

Couple Weds In Lawn Ceremony

LAKE WYLIE, S. C. — Marianne McGlohon of Charlotte and Thomas L. Gelder of Lake Wylie were married in a ceremony performed on the lawn at the home of the bridegroom Saturday evening at 6:30.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Ted Hoffman of Charlotte. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jospeh Dixon McGlohon Jr. of Greenville, N. C. The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Ann H. Gelder of Fayetteville, N. C., and Mr. C. W. Gelder of Raleigh, N. C.

Matrons of honor were sisters of the bride Millie McGlohon Ward of Kill Devil Hills, N. C., and Jane McGlohon Cloyes of Oakton, Va. The honorary bridesmaid was Laura C. Cloyes, niece of the bride.

William Fletcher of Marietta, Ga., was best man and ushers included Tim D. Johnson and Tom J. Stockton, both of Charlotte.

The bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza and re-embroidered lace flowers. The illusion neckline and butterfly sleeves, empire, waist and yoke were embroidered lace. The insedt train was outlined with lace. Her triple tiered veil of illusion was bordered with seed pearls and lace. Her colonial bouquet was fashioned of white starburst pom pons, baby's breath and ivy.

The honor attendants each wore a formal length gown of ivory qiana with a pastel floral print. The different styled gowns had sundress style bodices with full skirts. They each carried silk bouquets of roses, azaleas and ivy in complementing colors.

The mothers of the bridal couple each wore a pastel voile street length and the grandmother of the bride also wore a street length dress.

Guests were greeted by Mrs. Harold Allred, who presided at the guest registgry on the deck beside the house leading to the setting of the lawn wedding beside the lake.

The reception was held after the ceremony. The refreshment tables, placed on the terrace, were decorated with flowers in yellow and white. The tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. B. Vernon Cox and punch was poured by Mrs. W. Riley Cox, both aunts of the bride.

The couple will be living at Rt. 5, Clover, S. C., after a Caribbean cruise to Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas.

The bride, a graduate of Campbell University, Buies Creek, teaches in the York County Schools, York, S. C. The bridegroom graduated from UNC-CH and is manager of Charlotte Concrete Co.

After the rehearsal Friday evening, members of the wedding party and families were honored at an informal cookout at Lake Wylie.

A tea was given by friends at the home of Mrs. Norman Wilkerson, Greenville, honoring the bride-elect and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Joe McGlohon III.

MRS. THOMAS L. GELDER

Engagement Announced

FRANKIE LYNN ROUNTREE. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Frank Rountree of Corapeake, who announce her engagement to Ernest Lawrence Massei III, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Massei Jr. of Fayetteville. A Sept. 20 wedding is planned.

If you are planning to remodel your kitchen, install the refrigerator in the coldest part of the room — it will need less energy to operate.

Couple Marries In Apex Church Saturday

MRS. JAMES MARK OGLESBY

APEX — The Apex United Methodist Church here was the scene of the Saturday wedding of Pamela Jean Bridgers of Apex and James Mark Oglesby of Raleigh.

The Rev. W. W. Newman officiated at the double ring ceremony performed at two o'clock. Wedding music was provided by Jessie Ruth Cunningham, organist, and Rose Gooch and Phil Austin, soloists, all of Apex.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Bridgers Jr. of Apex and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll D. Oglesby Sr. of Farmville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of silk organza and Venise lace featuring an empire bodice, high neckline and capped sleeves, accented with imported silk Venise lace and scattered seed pearls. Matching pearled lace motifs enhanced the waistline. The gown was complemented by a matching fingertip veil of English net which was bordered by silk Venise lace in a flower pattern and worn over a Camelotlace cap accented with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Twyla Hilliard of Atlanta, Ga., served as maid of honor and bridesmaids included Robin Bridgers of Kentucky, sister-in-law of the bride, Tina Savage of Florida, Missy Dollar of Morehead City, Marlou Smith of Texas, Mrs. Waverly Oglesby of South Carolina, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Susan Trent of Chapel Hill. They wore formal gowns of yellow silesta knit fashioned with a sheered scoop neckline and spaghetti straps. Capped sleeves draped off the shoulder and the blouson bodice was accented at the natural waist with gathers. The silhouette skirt was panelled in a petal design. The honor attendant carried a colonial bouquet of yellow and white daisies and the bridesmaids carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Waverly Oglesby of South Carolina and Dean Oglesby of Raleigh, brothers of the bridegroom, Robin Bridgers of Kentucky, brother of the bride, David Smith of Greensboro, Paul Jones of Chapel Hill and Eddie Pate of Farmville.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of pink chiffon with an empire waistline. The mother of the bridegroom wore a peach chiffon long dress designed with a triple tier skirt hemline. Their corsages were georgiana orchids.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jerrie Murray of Apex.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception held at MacGregor Downs Country Club. Greeting guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mills Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. J. Talmadge Mills said good-byes. Assisting were Mrs. LindaB. Johnson, Mrs. Ruby B. Hudgins, Nancy Johnson, Mrs. Peggy B. Regan and Suzi Blankenship.

The bride-elect was honored at a brunch recemtly at the Ramada Inn, Apex. Mrs. Sarah Pearson, Mrs. Hortense Raynor and Mrs. Colleen Newman were hostesses.

Friday, a bridesmaids' luncheon was given at the home of Mrs. Martha Smith. Hostesses were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Bernie Savage, Mrs. Ruth Hilliard and Mrs. Cathy Smith.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a buffet dinner at the Ramada Inn, Apex, following the rehearsal Friday.

Following their honeymoon to St. Thomas Island in the Virgin Islands, the couple will make their home in Raleigh. The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with a B.A. degree in elementary education. The bridegroom graduated from UNC-CH also, with a degree in business administration. He is employed with Carolina Builders Corp. Raleigh.

Noon Ceremony Held Saturday

MRS. ROBERT JOSEPH ROMANELLO

EMERALD ISLE — Miss Jacqueline Warren Allen and Robert Joseph Romanello were united in marriage Saturday at high noon in a double ring ceremony at the Chapel By The Sea. The Rev. E. Leslie Thomas officiated at the ceremony.

Wedding music was presented by Mrs. Perry Bryant of Rocky Mount and Mrs. Leslie Thomas of Emerald Isle. Soloist was Mrs. Russell Norris Jr. of New Bern.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Wayne Truill of Rocky Mount. Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Warren, aunt and uncle of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Jenkins Allen Sr. of Rocky Mount and granddaughter of Mrs. James Allen of Greenville. She is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and is employed by Baptist Hospital, Winston-Salem.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Joseph Romanello of Fort Pierce, Fla. He is a graduate of the University of Miami Coral Gables, did post graduate work at Florida State and Iowa State and is self-employed in Winston-Salem.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. Maid of honor was Miss Ann Frazier of Raleigh. Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Leigh Bovinet of Clifton, N. J., Mrs. William Scott Lucas Jr. of Raleigh, and Mrs. Ralpy Eddy of Chapel Hill. For the ceremony, the bride carried a linen handkerchief that belonged to her late great grandmother, Mrs. Jospeh Jonathan Jenkins of Greenville.

Don Romanello served his brother as best man. Ushers were Jonathan Gray and Jerome Willis Allen, brothers of the bride, Duane and Brian Romanello, nephews of the bridegroom of Jacksonville, Fla.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was held at the Allen's summer home, Low Tide. Assisting in serving were aunts of the bride, Mrs. W. L. Green, Mrs. James Sidney Allen Jr., Mrs. Alexander H. Flax, Miss Lizzie Warren and Miss Virginia Warren.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Winston-Salem.

The Woodrow Warren family of Louisburg entertained with a luau at a their home Friday evening. Guests included members of the bridal party, family and friends of the couple.

On Friday morning, Miss Allen was honored at a brunch at the Henderson House by her grandmother, Mrs. James Allen and her great aunt, Mrs. Fenner All, both of Greenville. Also assisted were aunts of the bride, Mrs. Jams Sidney Allen, Mrs. A. H. Flax, Mrs. William Green, Mrs. Julian Green, Miss Lizzie Mae Warren, Mrs. Willard Warren and Miss Virginia Warren.

Cooking Is Fun

MAIN-DISH
SPINACH-CHEESE PIE
Cornmeal Pastry, recipe follows
15½-ounce carton ricotta cheese
3 large eggs
1-3rd cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
2 tablespoons unbleached all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups (6 ounces) shredded mozzarella cheese
Two 10-ounce packages frozen chopped spinach (thawed, drained and squeezed dry)

Make up Cornmeal Pastry. Beat together the ricotta and 2 of the eggs until blended; add the Parmesan, onion, flour, salt, pepper, mozzarella and spinach; stir well. On a lightly floured surface roll out larger ball of Cornmeal Pastry to form a 13-inch round; fit loosely into a 9-inch pie plate; trim. Add cheese-spinach mixture. Roll out remaining Cornmeal Pastry to form a 10-inch round; place over filling. Fold top edge under; with fork tines press to seal and prick top about a dozen times; if you like, decorate with leaf shapes cut from leftover pastry scraps. Slightly beat remaining egg; brush over top. Bake on the rack below center in a preheated 425-degree oven 15 minutes; reduce temperature to 350 degrees and continue baking until golden brown — 35 to 40 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. Makes 6 main-dish servings. The slightly crunchy pastry for this pie is hearty rather than rich.

CORNMEAL PASTRY
2 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
½ cup enriched white cornmeal
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
6 to 8 tablespoons cold water

Stir together the flour, cornmeal, Parmesan and salt; cut in the butter until particles are pea size. Stir enough water, by tablespoonfuls, into flour mixture to have dough hold together. Divide into 2 balls, making one slightly larger than the other; cover with saran; chill until firm enough to handle.

Personal

Mrs. Jeannette Worthington Davis of Charlotte, the Rev. Milton Worthington of Royal Oak, Mich., and Dr. Melvin Worthington of Nasnville, Tenn., and their families will arrive Saturday to spend their vacations with their parents and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Worthington, Peaceful Acres, Rt. 2, Ayden.

Vows Solemnized Saturday

SANFORD — Sylvia Ann Yarborough of Sanford and Ricky Lynn Stokes of Rt. 4, Greenville, were married Saturday afternoon at three o'clock at the Grace Chapel Church here.

The Rev. Robert Yandle and the Rev. Jack Phillips officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Linda Spivey, organist, and Tony Denton, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Yarborough of Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Stokes of Rt. 4, Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white chantilly lace over peau de soie fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, fitted bodice with a natural waistline and long bishop sleeves forming points over her hands. The full skirt featured five tiers of chantilly lace which flowed into a chapel train. Her veil of illusion was fastened to a Juliet cap adorned with pearls, iridescents and chantilly lace. She carried a cascade of summer flowers and yellow sweetheart roses.

Cynthia L. Yarborough of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Christie Deen Yarborough of Greenville, S. C. and Dalle Cox Yarborough of Winston-Salem, both sister-in-laws of the bride, Irma Jayne Thomas of Durham and Michelle Brinson Gladson of Greenville. They wore a maize nylon dotted swiss dress designed with a ruffled scoop neckline. The full skirt fell from a gathered waistline accented with ribbon to a deep flounce. They carried a white wicker basket of daisies and summer flowers. The honor attendant wore two daisies in her hair while the bridesmaids wore a single daisy.

Jennifer Leigh Thomas of Greenville and Danielle Yarborough of Sanford, cousin of the bride, were flower girls. They wore dresses identical to those of the bridesmaids but in a white shade with yellow ribbons at the waist. They wore a single daisy in their hair and carried wicker baskets with silk petals.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Franklin Stokes of Durham and Clifton E. Stokes of High Point, brothers of the bridegroom, and Mike Yarborough of Greenville, S. C. and Randy Yarborough of Winston-Salem, brothers of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal apricot gown of polyester designed with a natural waistline which featured a gathered chiffon belt, long A-line skirt and sheer chiffon sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of mint green polyester with a chiffon cape which formed capped sleeves.

MRS. RICKY LYNN STOKES

Immediately following the ceremony, the reception was given in the fellowship hall by the parents of the bride. Cake was served by Mrs. Mary Lou Clark and punch was served by Mrs. Betty Mashburn.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Palomino Restaurant, Sanford Friday night.

A wedding breakfast was given for the wedding party and out-of-town guests Saturday by the bridegroom's aunt, Marlene Goodall, and the bridegroom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Clark.

Following a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Rt. 4, Greenville. The bride is a senior at ECU where she is majoring in housing and management. The bridegroom is a junior at ECU where he is majoring in business managment. He is co-owner and manager of the 64 Seafood and Steak Barn in Conetoe.

Miss McBryde Is Married

SANFORD — Sarah Elizabeth McBryde and Bruce Farrell Spital were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock during a double ring ceremony at the home of the bride's parents here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marion McBryde of Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spital of Greensboro.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white angel skin organza over taffeta with the bodice designed with an empire waistline, Queen Anne neckline and long sleeves accented with Venetian lace. The full bias cut skirt featured a watteau train. She wore a fingertip veil of imported silk illusion edged with Venetian lace and attached to a Venise lace cap of seed pearls. Her flowers were a cascade of yellow and white silk roses, eucalyptus, and stephanotis, interspersed with greenery.

Hollie Moree Boger of Sanford served as maid of honor. She wore a long gown of yellow jersey fashioned with a camisole bodice, spaghetti straps and an accordian pleated skirt with a chiffon capelet. She carried a rattan fan accented with yellow lilies, apricot azaleas, English ivy and eucalyptus with ribbons. Her headpiece consisted of baby's breath and apricot azaleas.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at Trace Country Club given by the bride's parents.

A rehearsal dinner was given Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Meredith Moore Sr. of Sanford. Other hosts were Mr. and Mrs. John Moore Jr. and their children, Jack and Jenny.

Following a wedding trip to New York City, the couple will live in Greenville. The bride is a graduate of UNC at Greensboro in interior design and is presently employed as a draftsman at Rivers and Associates Consulting Engineers here. The bridegroom is a graduate of UNC-G also, and is a graduate student at ECU.

MRS. BRUCE FARRELL SPITAL

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My mother calmly announced to a group of us the other night that every time she turned on her organ to play "Alley Cat" she heard voices.

I immediately made some smart remark about piped-in music lovers registering a formal complaint. When no one laughed, I hit 'em with the line about the author of "Alley Cat" trying to get his music back. Still no laughs.

Finally, my husband said, "Hearing voices isn't too unusual. I used to hear conversations coming out of my electric drill all the time. For a long while, until it became popular, I didn't tell anyone about it."

"There was a guy down the street," said my dad, "who had one of those remote controls for his television set and every time a plane went over his house, the channel would change. Sometimes, during a peak evening, he could follow as many as three shows at a time."

A neighbor piped in, "I gucss you all heard about the guy who lived near a highway with an electric garage door? Every time a CBer would go by, his garage door would zip up and down. No one thought anything of it after awhile."

I couldn't believe what I was hearing.

"The vacuum sweepers are the worst," said my mother.

"A lot of people hear voices from their sweepers."

"What do they say?" I asked hesitantly.

"It's not nice to eavesdrop," said Mother. "After all, if someone wanted to talk with you, they wouldn't call you on your vacuum sweeper, they'd call you on the phone."

"That's true," I said.

"The one I felt sorry for was the woman who was on some kind of a wave length with a transistor and heard music from the fillings in her teeth."

"Oh, c'mon," I said, "you're all putting me on."

They looked at me like they were seeing me for the first time. "Are you telling me you've never heard voices from your toaster or your electric toothbrush?" asked my husband. "No," I said, trying to grin.

"That's really weird," said my dad. "You haven't told anyone about the 'no voices,' have you?"

I shook my head numbly. "Doesn't anyone else not hear them?" I asked.

"Of course we don't," said my husband. "And it'll be our little secret."

When no one else was around I turned on the organ and picked out "Alley Cat."

I heard voices. Five of 'em in the kitchen laughing themselves sick!

Pilot Club Has Picnic

The Pilot Club of Greenville held its meeting and annual picnic Monday evening at Green Springs Park.

The picnic was coordinated by Pilot Marvene Weigand. Entertainment was presented by George Weigand and Richard Hartness.

It was reported President Elizabeth Dupree attended the Pilot Club International Convention in Bal Harbour, Fla., last month. During the 59th session, it was announced the 1980-81 theme will be "Around The World–Pilot Is Lending of Talent." Special emphasis will be given in 1981 to the International Yerar of Disabled Persons as proclaimed by the United Nations.

During the meeting, members were encouraged to continue using the Exercise Trail facility at the park, which was a project of the club.

MRS. BILLY BALANCE FORBES JR.

Candlelight Wedding Held

WILSON — The wedding vows of Deborah Burke Birtch of Wilson and Billy Balance Forbes Jr. of Greenville were solemnized Saturday at 8 p.m. during a candlelight service at the Westview Christian Church.

The Rev. Paul J. Allen III performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Barbara Allen was the organist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin E. Birtch of Nashville, Tenn. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy B. Forbes of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Carolyn Cobb of Wilson was matron of honor and bridesmaids included Janis Ritchie of Greenville, Suzanne Cottrell of Middlesex and Mary Forbes of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. They wore silesta chiffon floral gowns on ivory background highlighted with pastel shades of melon, blue and green. The sleeveless bodice featured a yoke neckline and T-straps with a natural waist and a flared full length skirt which flowed from a belted waist. A sleeveless jacket of the same material as the dress was also worn. They each carried a basket of silk flowers matching the colors in the dress.

The bride's dress of organza and chantilly lace featured a bodice designed with a deep ruffle of chantilly lace at the neckline forming capped sleeves worn off the shoulder. The bell-shaped skirt was three-tiered of deep chantilly lace ruffles and her headpiece was of Venise lace accented with seed pearls. Her silk flowers in the same pastel shades as the flowers of her attendants were carried in a wicker basket with white ribbon streamers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included David Mayo of Greenville, Dick Cobb of Wilson and Ralph Forbes of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom.

A champagne reception followed the ceremony.

The couple went on a wedding trip to The Isle of Palms and Charleston, S.C. The bride is a graduate of ECU and is employed as a teacher with the Wilson County Board of Education. The bridegroom is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College, Wilson, and is employed as a sales representative for Nabisco.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee Boyd of Rt. 1, Pinetown, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessica Bea, to Oscar Maurice Clark, son of Mrs. Maeola D. Clark of Rt. 4, Washington, and Mr. Eddie O. Clark of Rt. 1, Grimesland. The wedding will take place Aug. 23.

Miss Debra Cowan Weds

NEW BERN — Debra Jo Cowan and Dan Lee Maxhimer Jr. were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Highland Park Christian Church here. The Rev. Preston D. Parsons, pastor, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse A. Cowan of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lee Maxhimer Sr. of New Bern.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of white bridal satin designed with an empire waistline trimmed with Venise lace and a flared skirt extending into a chapel length train. The full bishop sleeves of chiffon were gathered to a long satin cuff, accented with oval pearl closures. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion held in place by a coronet headpiece trimmed with Venise lace. Her flowers were a bouquet of pink and white daisies and baby's breath.

Sherry Dawson of New Bern was maid of honor and the bridemaids were Celia Darden of New Bern, Azita Bagheri and Kim Hardee, both of Greenville. They wore floor length gowns of blue bridal crepe with a ruffled collar of floral blue chiffon, forming capped sleeves. They carried bouquets of white daisies.

Theresa Dawn Maxhimer, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of blue chiffon and carried a basket of white daisy petals.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Billy Bowen, Joe Jenkins and Kenneth M. Tyndall, all of New Bern. Chad Thomas Wilcox, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of apricot silesta. The mother of the bridegroom wore a floor length gown of blue qiana with a chiffon capelet. Both wore a corsage of yellow mums with baby's breath. Grandmothers of the couple were given corsages of yellow mums accented with baby's breath.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Mrs. James E. Wilcox of Greenville directed the wedding. Serving were Mrs. Jack Blackmon, Mrs. Wilbur Tippett, Mrs. Fred Tippett Jr. and Mrs. Eddie Dixon.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in New Bern.

The Elite Repeat

Linda Tripp hopes the name of her resale shop on Highway 33 east of Greenville conveys the quality and the nature of the merchandise she stocks.

She calls the shop, located in a neat beige gray-trimmed farmhouse about two and one-half miles east of Rivergate Shopping Center, "The Elite Repeat."

"Most things here are previously owned and sold on consignment," she said, "but we turn down everything that doesn't meet our standards. And, as we grow, we're going to be more and more selective."

The resale shop is owned by Linda and her husband, Randolph Tripp, and is managed by Elsie Johnston. The hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays.

Linda said she conceived the name for the shop several years ago while browsing in resale shops in other cities. "I'd like to have a place like this," she mused, "but mine would be neater and it wouldn't smell musty. And I'd try to think of a name that would connote quality at low prices." Soon the name appeared in her mind—"The Elite Repeat." She kept it there for several years till her dream became reality.

"We expect everything brought to our shop to be clean and fresh smelling," she said. "We want it to be undamaged. Names brands are nice."

"We want this to be a place where people who have bought quality items can get some profit out of them when they get tired of them or when their circumstances change. When you change your decor or your dress size, we hope it'll be nice to know we're here."

"Everything is sold on consignment. We encourage our consignors to keep their prices low. We pay consignors at the end of each month."

"Things that don't sell in a reasonable time are returned to the owners."

"Our customers can come here expecting to pay less then brand-new prices, yet more than they'd pay at a yard sale. Here they have the benefit of a fitting room and are encouraged to return to us anything that doesn't make them happy, regardless of the reason. This, we believe, is something that not even some of the best retail stores offer."

"The Elite Repeat" is located in a house that the Tripps repaired and repainted and renovated themselves. It's divided into areas designated by clever names of Linda's own coining—The Wee Boutique, the Gift Gallery, Yesterday's World, The Clothes Closet, and The Kitchen Cupboard.

Merchandise varies from new items of brass, pewter, rattan and glassware at reduced rates to used small appliances, toys, furniture, household accessories, and clothing of all types and sizes—men's, women's and children's.

We expect to be constantly improving our shop and upgrading our merchandise. And we hope to add new customers and consignors all the time.

Dear Abby

"Living Will" Depends On Where You Live

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My beloved wife of 42 years recently died after a long and painful terminal illness. I feel that she was kept alive much too long after it became obvious that there was no hope for her recovery. If you had ever watched a beautiful 130-pound woman reduced to a 79-pound skeleton, you would understand my feelings. She begged for months to die, and we who loved her suffered with her. Her hospital bill alone was over $28,000. Thank God we could afford it, but what do poor people do?

How I wish my dear wife had signed the Living Will you mentioned in your column. When I told my doctor I wanted to obtain a Living Will instructing all those who loved me that they were not to keep me alive should I fall victim to a terminal illness and there was no reasonable hope for my recovery, he said, "You don't need one because California is one of the 10 states that have the Natural Death Act."

Is this true?

PLANNING AHEAD IN MODESTO

DEAR PLANNING: No. You need a document specifically prepared for the state in which you live because the law in each state differs slightly.

The 10 states that have the Natural Death Act are: Arkansas, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

The Society for the Right to Die, 250 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, has prepared forms and guidelines specifically designed for each of the above states. It will send you the proper form on request. There is no charge for the document, but the society is a non-profit organization, so please send a few dollars to cover the cost of the document and mailing.

If you live in one of the other 40 states (many of which now have bills pending), you will be sent a Living Will declaration to sign as evidence of your wishes. Meanwhile your name will be recorded and the society will send you a proper form if and when the law is enacted in your state.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column, and it's a tough one. For the last two years my fiance and I have lived together, so it is assumed by everyone who knows us that we will be married. (We probably will, although no date has been set.)

The problem is his kid sister. More than once she has said, "When are you two getting married? I can't wait to be a bridesmaid."

Abby, how do I let her know that I am not planning to ask her to be in my wedding party? I hate to come right out and tell her because I don't want to hurt her feelings.

Thanks for a snappy comeback.

J. IN TORONTO

DEAR J.: More than a "snappy" comeback, you need a gentle and diplomatic way of letting the "kid sister" down. It's unfair to let her assume that she'll be in the wedding party if she's not going to be.

The next time she mentions it, tell her the truth. The longer you put it off, the more disappointed she'll be.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 and very much in love for the first time in my life. Michael is 21, and a more honest and decent guy I've never met. He doesn't drink or smoke and he's working to put himself through college.

So what's the problem? My father doesn't like Michael. And why doesn't he like him? Because Michael doesn't look you straight in the eye when he talks to you.

Abby, Michael is shy and it's hard for him to look people in the eye, but that doesn't mean he doesn't have good character.

Don't you think my father is wrong for holding this against Michael?

LOVES MICHAEL

DEAR LOVES: Yes! The world is full of charming crooks who can look you in the eye and lie through their teeth if there's something to be gained by it.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, AUG. 3, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A whole new viewpoint for you can develop today where your practical affairs are concerned and this could lead to greater abundance in the days ahead. Be alert at all times.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look over your environment and make plans for needed changes. Talk monetary affairs over with influential persons.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans to go after your most cherished aims and push aside stumbling blocks in your path of progress.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You could feel restricted in some way, but this can be overcome by taking on a more positive attitude. Be logical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can now gain personal aims that have been hard to come by in the past. Strive for increased happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Work on creative ideas that could lead to greater success. You need to apply yourself more to gain your goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to study facts and figures that could help you get ahead in your line of endeavor. Plan for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A new plan you have needs more study before you put it in operation. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be tactful with close ties and increase harmony at home. Good day to visit friends and relatives for mutual enjoyment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to please good friends today instead of going off to private pursuits. Make this a worthwhile day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to study new interests that could be profitable in the future. Make plans to improve your social life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to improve conditions in your life that could give more abundance in the future. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Contact close ties and discuss mutual plans for the future. Show more consideration for the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will do well in any practical field of endeavor and can be most successful, provided you give the best education you can afford. Teach ethics and morality early in life and don't neglect spiritual training.

Appointment Is 2 Years Late

HINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Hingham selectmen erred when they appointed a woman to the Council on Aging — the woman had died two years before.

"I guess there was a mistake somewhere," said Selectman Eugene Bickford. "You read about something like this in the newspaper and you think it could never happen here. This time it did."

Bickford said appointments were made from lists submitted by various boards.

The deceased woman had been instructed through a selectmen's letter to appear before the town clerk and be sworn in.

Mormons Set Up Aid To Rerugees

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) has set up a refugee relief fund to help refugees of any religion throughout the world.

Since 1975 the church has aided its members and their families who became refugees from Southeast Asia, but says that with the overall refugee situation worsening is extending that service to others, regardles of religious affiliation.

That is the approach of most other church sponsorships and aid to refugees.

The problem has become "one of worldwide scope," says Richard Linford, director of staff services for the LDS Welfare Services committee, which will administer the inclusive refugee relief fund.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.—We are going to put you on the spot. In a game the other evening, this hand almost led to the breakup of our marriage. I won't tell you who was who, but with one game in, South picked up:

♠ J 5 4 2
♡ 10 2
◇ K 6
♣ J 10 9 5 4

The auction:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Dble.	Pass	1 ♠
Dble.	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What would you do now?—L. Johnson, Seattle, Wash.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—So far, South has been absolutely perfect. There was no reason to run to two clubs after his partner's opening bid of one heart was doubled. Since North's double of one spade was for takeout (South had not yet bid), South's decision to bid two clubs would be upheld by any court in the land.

Now let's consider what North could hold. He not only opened the bidding and made a takeout double in the immediate seat, but he then jump rebid his own suit. All this despite the fact that, as far as he was concerned, his partner might not have a single card that would be of any value, for South has done nothing but make a forced response.

At this vulnerability, North must surely have pretty close to nine tricks in his own hand. South brings him one sure trick in the king of diamonds and a probable trick in trumps—either via a diamond ruff or by solidifying the trump suit. It would be a dereliction of duty if South did not raise to four hearts.

Despite all this, I hope I do not break up your marriage. There is just enough male chauvinist in me, however, to say that I am sure your husband was right!

Q.—I have a tendency to "take charge" of the auction, and the results are often expensive. Is there a simple way to determine the "captain" of a hand?—R. Gonzales, N.Y.C.

A.—A comprehensive answer to this question would require a small book, but here are some of the main points to keep in mind.

The captain of the hand keeps changing. Whenever a conventional situation is imposed, such as Blackwood, the player who asks for information becomes the captain and his decision is final. Whenever a player makes a limit bid that describes his holding exactly, his partner becomes the captain of the hand. However, he can pass the captaincy back to the limit bidder by making an invitational bid that asks the limit bidder to define his holding more closely.

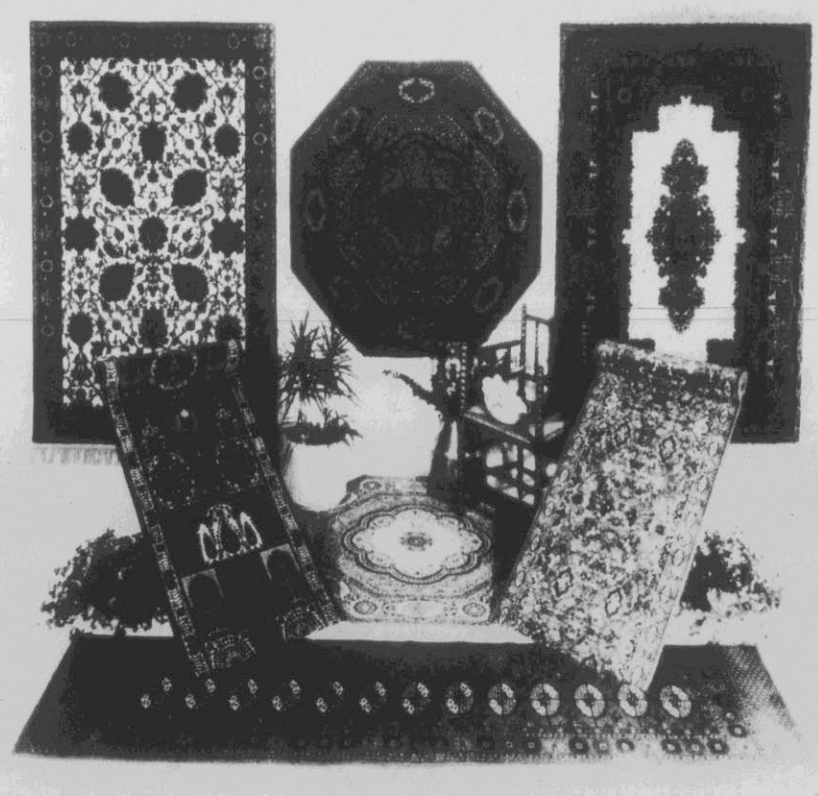
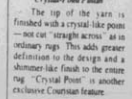
America's most extensive and best-selling collection of Oriental Design Rugs from Couristan



NOT ALL RUGS ARE BORN EQUAL . . .
Read why Couristan's Oriental Design Rugs are the finest available today.

Locked-In-Weave
Each yarn is securely anchored and woven clear through to the back. This means that the thousands of tufts in every square yard of a Couristan are looped "under and over" the cross-threads and pulled tight so the face of the rug stands erect and firm. The process is exclusive and patented by Couristan.

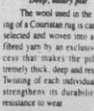


Crystal-Point Finish
The tip of the yarn is finished with a crystal-like point — not cut "straight across" as in ordinary rugs. This adds greater definition to the design and a shimmer-like finish to the entire rug. "Crystal Point" is another exclusive Couristan feature.

Hand-Knotted Fringe
The crowning touch in the making of many Couristans is the fringe trim. Each strand of the fringe is individually hand-knotted. Ordinary rugs may be finished with sewn on strips of machine-made fringe. Hand insertion of each strand into the edge of the rug and hand-knotting one fringe at a time achieves a distinctive touch of elegance.

Delineated Designs
Another feature of Couristan oriental design rugs is the unique manner in which the outline of each flower, figure or abstract design is clearly delineated. The accentuation enriches the rug-coloration.

Deep, luxury pile
The wool used in the looming of a Couristan rug is carefully selected and woven into a long-fibred yarn by an exclusive process that makes the pile extremely thick, deep and resilient. Twisting of each individual yarn strengthens its durability and resistance to wear.



100% Worsted Wool
The famous Woolmark is sewn in back of Couristan all-wool rugs, certifying that the quality and weight of the wool conforms to rigid quality standards. Wool wears better — is "lively" and resilient, holds color brilliance, cleans easily, and has greater fire-resistance.

SEMI-ANNUAL SALE

For a limited time only...Couristan's largest collection of Oriental design rugs are specially priced. Choose from the greatest selection of sizes, patterns and styles available, including the shapes of today. All are re-created of 100% pure worsted wool for extraordinary durability and luxury. Power-loomed in Belgium with Couristan's patented weaving techniques, Kashimar is intricately detailed with rich "come-alive" colorations. Fringes knotted entirely by hand add that final touch of elegance to each Kashimar Oriental Design Rug, a jewel to be cherished for years to come.

Heart-To-Heart: A Lifestyle Changes

EDITOR'S NOTE — Like many other Americans, Rex Thomas scoffed at the doctor's diagnosis of a heart condition. He could beat it, he thought. Then came the heart attack. Thomas, who retired last year after 35 years as Associated Press correspondent in Montgomery, has a new lifestyle now — one which saved his life and can save thousands of others.

By REX THOMAS
For The Associated Press

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — People don't like to be told they have heart trouble. Some get angry. Others grow despondent. But most patients, doctors say, learn to accept the truth and try to take care of themselves.

There's another rebellious category whose numbers, the American Heart Association says, are far too great and whose chances of survival are noticeably less than those who at least try to fight back.

The extremists, and I was one, go to ridiculous lengths to prove there's nothing seriously wrong, that they've still got the old macho.

Even after the doctor told me I had angina, one of the major forms of heart disease, I tried to kid myself that my ticker was in perfect condition.

I began having chest pains long before the diagnosis but convinced myself they were coming from an old hiatal hernia, which can produce similar symptoms. The pains became more frequent and more severe, but I persisted in blaming the hernia — even after the problem had been thoroughly and scientifically diagnosed as a heart condition.

Even though it could be corrected or at least relieved by surgery, as it has been in thousands of other cases, I wanted none of that. So I went on with the old habits ... eating too much, especially sweets and fatty foods and smoking nearly three packs of cigarettes a day. At 5-foot-7, I weighed more than 190 pounds. Exercise? I avoided it like the plague.

The Heart Association lists nine major "risk factors," living conditions or characteristics likely to increase the chance of heart attack. I had seven of the nine.

The risk factors are cigarette smoking, high blood pressure; high levels of cholesterol or other fatty substances in the blood; stresses and tensions; lack of exercise; high intake of animal fat; overweight; heredity and diabetes.

Because I was too stubborn or proud, or for whatever other reason, I disobeyed the doctor's instructions to let him know immediately if the chest pains became worse or more frequent. They got more painful. I didn't even tell my family.

On Dec. 1, it caught up with me, and because of the massive heart attack which resulted, I'll never be able to do some of the things I always enjoyed.

Instead, I have other chores, like walking two miles a day. Walking because you enjoy it may be one thing; hiking two miles because you have to do it can get monotonous.

I haven't smoked a cigarette since Dec. 1. My weight is down to 150 and my blood presure is just what the doctor wants it to be.

If I keep on that way and don't let petty problems grow into major stresses, which some heart attack victims do, I look ahead to living a good while. I have gradually, very gradually, become more active.

But what's the point of all this? I had a heart attack and survived. So what? Millions of others have, too.

The idea is that I tried to prove the doctor was wrong. I rejected any suggestion of heart trouble and refused to take the precautionary measures I should have.

That's my story and by itself it doesn't really prove anything.

But tragically, the Heart Association says, it's also the same defiant attitude adopted by far too many heart attack patients. And like me, they wind up with heart attacks which might have been prevented.

They turn away from any thought of preventive surgery. They scoff at warnings about heavy smoking. They think it's amusing when people poke fun at their fat bellies.

For myself, no amount of money could persuade me to try a cigarette now or go back to the other old habits. There's one reason — fear. I know what happened before.

To put it bluntly: I played Russian roulette for years and, miraculously, lived through it. The next time I might not be so lucky.

A World Soil Map Is Prepared

ROME (AP) — A world soil map has been prepared by the U.N. Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization and the Food and Agriculture Organization.

The result of 17 years' work, the map consists of 18 color map sheets and a legend sheet accompanied by a series of 10 explanatory volumes.

Each volume covers a major region and contains a description of soil resources and their distribution with particular emphasis on the use currently being made of the land and its suitability for the application of modern methods of agriculture.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — CURIOUS PHILATELIST DECODES A DIFFICULT CIPHER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals I

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Clovis, Calif. Schools Bask In Wide Approval

By TOM MURPHY
Associated Press Writer

CLOVIS, Calif. (AP) — While many California school officials face economic woes, militant teachers, angry parents and sagging student achievement scores, administrators here bask in the glow of success.

A recent district survey shows 98 percent of the parents in Clovis Unified School District are pleased with the education their children receive, an education that includes a dress code, strict discipline and occasional use of corporal punishment.

The district, in the San Joaquin Valley near Fresno, is among a handful in the state where teachers voted to end their union affiliation when collective bargaining was authorized in 1977.

The teachers now negotiate salary and benefits directly with administrators, who have granted the teachers such freedoms as the ability to design their own curricula.

And students, who are drilled in the merits of competition and success, have improved achievement test scores from the 40-50 national percentile in 1970 to the 80-90 percentile in the school year just completed.

Floyd Buchanan, the only superintendent this 20-year-old district has ever had, gives credit for the district's success to "an administrative system of behavior modification."

The district stresses the concept of being the best. It also teaches the importance of second efforts for those who don't succeed immediately.

There are many misconceptions about why the Clovis schools do so well. Some think the district is very wealthy. But officials say it is about average in dollars received and spent for each student.

Before the state decreased revenue differences between rich and poor districts, Clovis was among the poorest districts in the state, ranking 238 out of 251 unified districts.

The district has a minority enrollment of 22 percent, including a high number of transient and non-English-speaking students.

Classroom programs vary so widely that Buchanan says he is not familiar with them all. One program, he says, might rely heavily on the 3-R's while the teacher in the adjoining room employs an unstructured program.

In all cases, teachers are directly responsible for their successes — and their failures.

"If a teacher falls on his or her face, they can't say 'Well, that's your program,' because it's their program," explains Pete Mehas, associate superintendent for instruction.

Conversely, Mehas says, teachers become more involved in their work because they feel "they truly have a part of the action."

The district keeps operational costs down by handling many jobs itself. Instead of standard texts being bought from major publishing houses, a district printing plant provides teachers with an instant source of custom-made materials.

While many districts watch the number of students drop, Clovis is expanding rapidly. Its current student body is 13,700 — a 30 percent increase over the past five years.

The growth is at least partially due to the district's reputation, which real-estate agents rely upon to help sell homes in the area.

Buchanan explains the district buys the best supplies it can afford with its $30 million budget, frequently spending 10 percent more than other districts for similar items. He says the better equipment lasts twice as long and generates high morale among students and teachers.

Perhaps the most visible difference between Clovis and other moderate-size districts is the dress code which requires girls to wear bras and boys to keep their hair above their ears. Shorts are taboo for all.

SHE LOST IT... and this time she wasn't miserable
by Susan Kelly

NANCY NEYER

Nancy Neyer was like many: extremely overweight her entire life and had exhausted all hope of losing weight. She had failed with weight control groups, quick weight loss diets and diet pills. She would always gain all the weight back and usually some additional pounds. But Mrs. Neyer, who is a computer operator, was more than 100 pounds overweight last June when she heard about a hypnotist in Greensboro who had had some success in helping people break the habit of overeating.

She had 4 appointments with Therapeutic Hypnosis of America in Greensboro and has lost 105 pounds so far, without hunger or any unpleasant side effects and without giving up any food she likes.

In contrast to all other weight reduction methods she had tried the hypnotic technique was easy, she said. "This was no trouble. If we were having fried food, I'd eat fried food". She didn't count calories, or carbohydrates, or weigh portions, or restrict herself to any particular foods. She ate whatever she cooked for her children or whatever was served to her away from home, but took small portions.

The weight loss has been steady, and she continues to lose at about the rate of a pound a week. She hopes to lose about 10 more pounds. Mrs. Neyer said she has not been hungry and even in the first months when she was losing about 5 pounds a week, she felt healthy and increasingly energetic. She didn't plan a formal exercise regime to go along with her reduced food intake, but as the pounds dropped off she found that she wanted to exercise more, and she runs, or walks almost every day.

"I would tell anyone that there is still hope," she said. "One year ago I would have never believed this could happen to me. Eating properly is now part of my life and I've learned how easy it is to use my mind." Nancy Neyer: "I would tell anyone that there is still hope."

The preceding information was taken from an interview with Nancy Neyer by Susan Kelly in May, 1980. The information appears courtesy of Therapeutic Hypnosis of America to better inform you of the successful uses of hypnosis in weight control, stop smoking, nail biting, concentration on sports and public speaking, nervousness and confidence. "I can say anything ugly or pretty I want to them and they won't talk back," said Sumrell about his hogs. "That's what I like best about this business,"

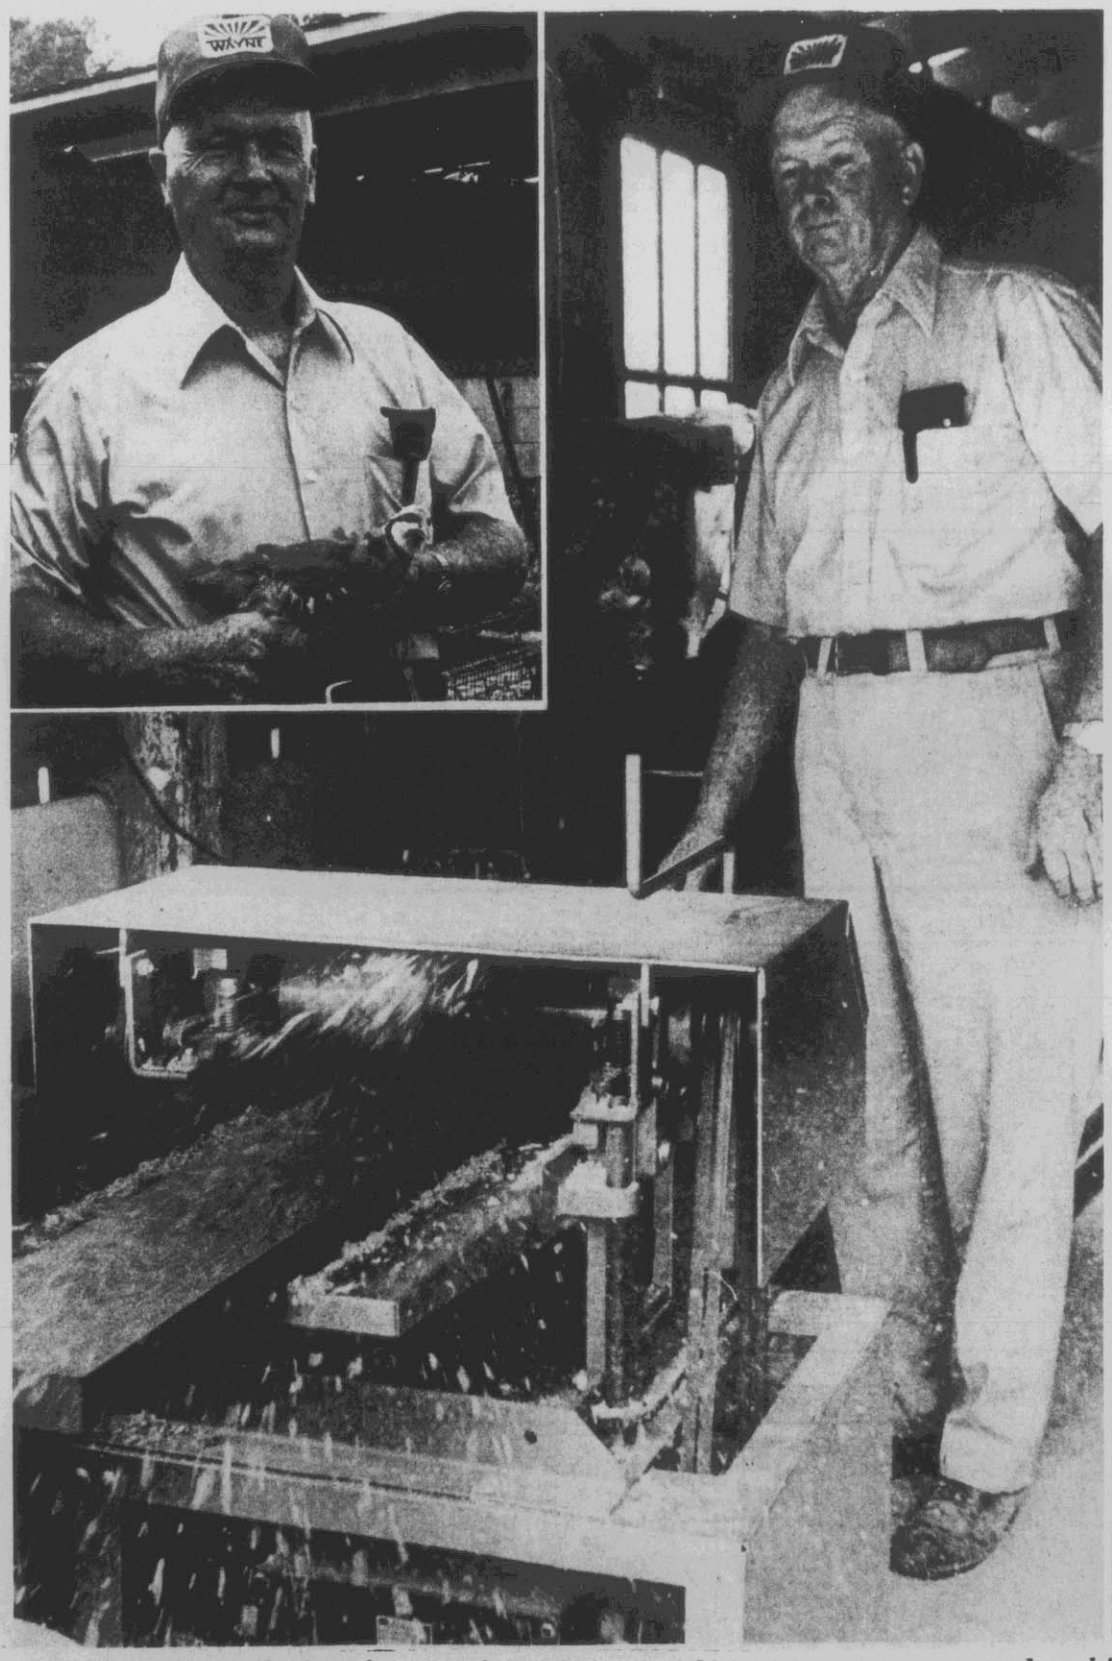
For Him, Time Spent Was Money Earned

Text and Photos By Mary Schulken



Rhoderick Sumrell likes his hogs. He like his geese, his guineas, his chuka partridges, his cows and his homemade wine. But most of all, this hog producer of 12 years likes the way he lives his life.

"I love the hog business," he explained, "and I've made a good living off it. That's not to say it's been easy. It's hard work, but it's rewarding."

A merchant of 25 years before he began his livestock operation, Sumrell bought his first load of sows in 1968 from Tarboro, and brought them home on a school bus. "I stopped at several stores on the way home and people just couldn't believe it," he said. In 12 years his operation has grown from 18 to 187 sows, mostly Yorkshires, Durocs, and Hampshires. " I'll take a York all the way though," he added. Sumrell has always finished pigs, never selling feeder porkers.

"When I retired from running McClees' Store in Ayden I asked my brother Dalton could I make a living in the hog business. He told me yes, I could. Later I told him, 'I thought you said I could make a living in the hog business' and he said 'I did, but you have to work hard to do it,"' commented Sumrell. "Well, I worked hard and I did it."

The producer now has about 80 acres tied up with his hog operation. "When I started, this whole place was like those woods over there," said the farmer, pointing to a thick growth of trees and underbrush. "I cleared it and built the buildings myself. Before I got into the business, my brothers just had pens and shelters.

"Dr. Stanislow of the extension service also hepled me get into the business and helped keep me in it," said the farmer. "I think he felt bad that he talked me into it and then prices dropped down so low," he added with a smile.

The first hog Sumrell sold brought 18 cents per pound. Prices dropped even more, though, soon after that. "I remember a load of sows around ten years ago that I got 15, ten and nine cents per pound for," he said. "The highest I ever got was 67 cents per pound around two years ago.

"When I sold them for 18 cents a pound I paid $1.60 a bushel for corn," he added.

The worst experience Sumrell recalls was with TGE, Transmissible Gastroenteritis, a deadly disease caused by a virus, with a high mortality rate in pigs less than three weeks of age. TGE attacks the villi of the intestines, keeping the pigs from absorbing nutrients. The producer lost over 500 pigs in a short time during an outbreak of the disease. "If it don't kill your big hogs, it'll make them sick," he said. "We came down here and did everything in the book and a few things that weren't to try and save the young ones. I've never seen anything like it in my life. They just died like flys. In many cases there was no helping them."

Sumrell lists confinement as the biggest change he's seen in the past 12 years. "The trend is to get them out of the mud and up onto concrete," he explained. "Putting hogs on concrete has its disadvantages but the advantages outweigh them.

"There's a trend now towards raising a more lean type of hog than was being raised when I started." he added.

The producer views the future of hog producing optimistically. "There is a tremendous future in it for anyone who's willing to work," said Sumrell. "My advice to anyone starting is to be prepared. Take your time. When you jump into it, you're in. Build up slowly and cautiously, and don't be afraid of hard work. You've got to spend time with your hogs also. Being around a lot has helped me.

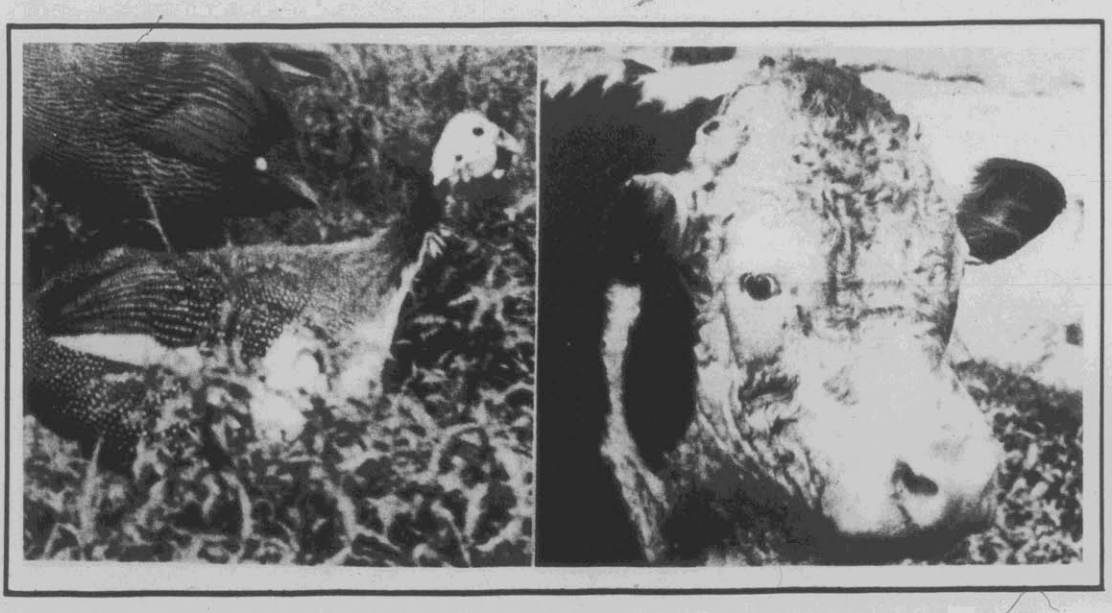
"Most of the time I'm down here with the hogs," he continued. "If I'm not I'm close by. If you're not willing to work, don't get into the hog business," he reiterated.

Sumrell is retiring in the near future. He's selling out his sows slowly, the same way he built his business up. But even retirement won't take him away from his farm and his other animals. Sumrell raises guineas, chuka partridges and geese, as well as having a few cows around. He also has a woodworking shop fixed up, something he's always wanted to do but has never had time for. "There's no money in birds," he said with a smile, "but I enjoy messing with them. It's things like that that make life worthwhile."

And the hog business, to Sumrell, has been worthwhile. "I've enjoyed it," he explained. "You get dirty sometimes, but then you can clean up and look and see how pretty everything looks.

"I can say anything ugly or pretty I want to the hogs and they won't talk back," continued the producer. "That's what I like best about it."

Sumrell also likes the independence his business has afforded him. "What I have comes from these two hands," he said, "and sometimes that's mighty slow."



After he retires, the hog farmer intends to spend his time with his woodworking machines, his chuka partridges and his geese. "You can't make money off birds, but it's something I really love doing. That's what counts," he said.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-A-Pets of the Week are these two five-month-old kittens found abandoned in an apartment here. They are housebroken, very friendly and not afraid of dogs. Call 758-0556.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

— a one-year-old declawed black male cat. 756-6730.

— eight two-month-old kittens — one black, one white, three black and white and three gray tabby. Used to people. Need good homes soon. De De Jackson, 752-2627 home or 758-1372 work.

— a white spayed female cat named Maggie. Her owner is moving and must give her away. She was two years old May 30, likes people and is declawed in front. Call 758-7514 or 758-0556.

— a three-month-old gray tabby kitten. 758-3372.

To place animals in Adopt-a-Pet, call Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867; Charlotte Price, 752-3290; Heather Chaney, 758-0556; or Carol Tyer, 752-6166, Ext. 286.

Employees Buy Failing Plant

By EARL BOHN
Associated Press Writer

JEANNETTE, Pa. (AP) — When ASG Industries operated Jeannette's 74-year-old sheet glass factory, Bucky Herman processed a steady stream of grievances as president of the plant union.

As the new industrial relations manager, he's still responsible for handling grievances, but the employees don't complain much any more. They own the company.

"The men are working harder. They're producing more. They work straight time when they should be getting overtime," Herman says from his red brick office near the time clock.

ASG's corporate parent, Fourco Co. of West Virginia, ordered the plant closed in November 1978, looking for higher profits elsewhere.

Faced with losing a leading employer in a community proud to be called "Glass City," the workers arranged for government backing on $2.8 million of their $5.4 million loan package and bought the plant.

The deal changed more than the company name.

"The men have given in quite a bit," Herman says. "We've had two grievances in the last nine months. We used to get 10 in here a day. It was always something."

Trying to nurture their $2,000-per-person investments in the rechristened Jeannette Sheet Glass Co., the 330 owner-employees now work without union protection. They've also frozen wages at the rate ASG paid.

"The men understand now. The money's coming out of their own pockets," says production superintendent Larry German. "They're working for themselves now."

Not all ventures in employee-ownership have flourished. But like Jeannette's glass workers, steel workers in nearby McKeesport, machine makers in South Bend, Ind., wire workers in Ramsey, N.J., and rubber workers in Youngstown, Ohio, are showing that the workshop can be a better place when the owners punch timecards.

"When you walk through the shop it's like walking through a stockholders' meeting. Somebody will say, 'Hey, when's that piece of equipment going to arrive?' " notes J. Richard Boulis, president and chairman of South Bend Lathe.

In 1975, workers at the Indiana machine tool manufacturer were among the first nationally to use a federally backed loan to buy their floundering company.

Amsted Inc., a Chicago conglomerate, was preparing to liquidate the $9.5 million holding because of shallow profits, Boulis says.

"If we hadn't bought the company, we'd have about 500 people on the street," he says. "But instead, the company has paid almost $5 million in taxes, the people have paid nearly $6 million and we've bought nearly $30 million in supplies in the South Bend area."

Average wages last year were 60 percent higher than they were under Amsted, and South Bend Lathe has paid cash bonuses equal to 12 weeks' pay, Boulis says.

"There have been no sacrifices here," he says, crediting "a damn good work force, a good product and good management.

"If all three elements aren't present, I don't think anyone else can be as successful as we are," he says.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to work out a better financial arrangement early in the day. Later you become more interested in the social side of life. Make sure your activities are well organized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Tackle every angle of a difficult problem in the morning and get excellent results. Cut down on expenses wherever you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive way. Show more interest in outside events.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get together with associates and make plans to be more productive in the future. Improve your appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need a more worldly viewpoint if you wish to expand in career activities at this time. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact good friends who can assist to gain your most cherished wishes. Be wise and careful in spending your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best for widening your vistas and gaining your aims. Later confer with influential person for support you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business affairs early in the day so you'll have time to study new projects later. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better understanding with associates and cooperate more with them. Keep commitments you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at work ahead of you and gain benefits. You are able to make rapid progress at this time. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talks with associates can produce excellent results at this time. Exercise more patience in handling a civic matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't neglect to look into new interests that are appealing to you. Show more affection for family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have those talks with allies and plan how to become more successful in the days ahead. Make this a most productive day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can easily gain the right perspective in business matters, so send to the right schools and this can become a successful and happy life. Teach early in life to be more understanding of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Fruit's Flavor Aids Dispersal

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — To people, strawberries are tasty toppings for shortcakes, raspberries make tangy jams and jellies and blueberries add zing to muffins, pancakes and tarts.

To many wild plants, such fruits are animal lures that insure dispersal of the plants' seeds, says Dr. Edmund Stiles, a Rutgers University zoology professor, who for about five years has studied ways plants have evolved to attract animals.

Dandelions are among plants whose seeds are carried by the wind, but many other plants accomplish the same thing with fruit.

Stiles theorizes that a fruit's size, shape, taste, color, smell, ripening time and seed size and placement are ecologically linked to the migratory and other biological needs of animals.

Migratory and territorial birds, small mammals and even large mammals such as bears eat the available fruits and spit out or excrete the seeds.

SALES OPPORTUNITY

Fancy Resumes Not Necessary

We Hire Salespeople--Not Paper

If we have captured your interest so far, you may well be the person we are looking for!

Mantek is the fastest growing division of a $260 million NYSE company in the specialty maintenance products industry. Our professional sales representatives can earn in excess of $22,000 their first year with a potential of over $40,000 in three years in their "local" territories. They also participate in a magnificent fringe benefit program. Most importantly, you are treated as a respected member of our people-oriented team and know that we have a vested interest in your success.

We are looking for a special individual who can turn sales prospects into friends, has a proven history of accomplishment and is willing to make initial sacrifices for a lifetime opportunity. Even if you aren't really "looking around" for something else, send us a letter or resume. It may be the best thing you ever did!

Hepburn Speaks Her Own 'Lines'

Katharine Hepburn is, all by herself, a catalogue of great moments in the movies. She's been a great actress for so long that it hardly seems worthwhile to hash over her credits. And the fact that she's the only actress to win three Oscars speaks for itself.

On Wednesday, August 6 (9-11 p.m.), Hepburn, under the direction of George Cukor for the tenth time, stars in "The Corn Is Green," to be rebroadcast as a special presentation on CBS-TV. Hepburn was nominated for an Emmy Award for her performance in the drama.

Now 71 and proud of it, Hepburn is still as attractively skinny as she was in the 30's, and as agile. She has; of late, played so many burned out, embittered women that it's a joy to see she's as enthusiastic as an 18-year-old; the magnificently chisled cheekbones ruddy with health, her movements precise and graceful. She still smarts at human indignities with a piercing mind ready, as always, to throw a cold towel on pretentiousness and always with plenty of her own philosophy.

"You have to work to get anything worthwhile," she says. "That's true in sports, the arts and anything else. It doesn't come easy. But a tiny, itzy-bitzy talent is flattered today. People are encouraged to go into a field for which they have no talent at all. You know they're not going to get anywhere. And getting nowhere is a bore."

Tough, courageous, savagely candid, belligerently independent, she is also tender, kind and perishable. When someone she knows isn't feeling well, she makes chicken soup. Down and out? She's always been there with the bucks. This is not to say she lets anyone makes excuses around her.

"...Groveling around in the dirt is not how the world progresses. Oh-How-Sad and Oh-How-Hopeless is a disease, I think. That's how I get off all this phony philosophy stuff, you see. I've been so lucky myself that I think everyone should be. I've been most fortunate. There are so many people who never have their dreams come true. We can all do four times as much as we do. We waste such time, precious time."

KATHARINE HEPBURN, under the direction of George Cukor for the tenth time in her career, stars as Miss Moffat in "The Corn is Green," a dramatic special to rebroadcast Wednesday, August 6 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Special Effects

Director Robert Clouse, no stranger to directing action films, feels that "The Omega Connection" was his most pleasurable movie to date. "Every stunt, every special effects shot went off without a hitch," he says. Now the movie's returning to the small screen on Disney's Wonderful World, Sunday, August 3 (7 p.m. on NBC).

One stunt seemed so authentic that even the public was fooled. "We were shooting a chase sequence with thick smoke billowing from a van when two fire engines appeared. Apparently someone saw the smoke and sent out the alarm. Ironically', laughed Clouse, "minutes after the fire brigade left, the van actually did alight when the smoke device by the exhaust caught fire. But it was no problem. We put it out immediately."

To avoid any more false alarms, the special effects crew put lavender scent into the smoke canisters. "It was psychological," said Clouse. "It smelled nice and we didn't have anymore problems."

Heisman Winner

Running back Charles White of the University of Southern California was the overwhelming favorite in the voting for the 1979 Heisman Trophy, and he became the third USC tailback (after Mike Garrett and O.J. Simpson) to win th award. White topped his closest competitor, Oklahoma's Billy Sims, by nearly 1,000 votes.

'Ice' Filming

Kate Jackson, Lillian Gish and Gerard Prendergast are starring in "Thin Ice," a motion picture-for-television now being filmed in and around Charleston, S.C.

'Ice' is the story of a popular high school teacher (Jackson) who falls in love with one of her students, and the community controversy that erupts when their relationship is revealed. Prendergast portrays Paul McCormick, the student who becomes involved.

Prendergast was a regular last year on the short-lived show, "Makin' It." Prior to that he guested in another series. "The Paper Chase." He's appeared in two television movies "Zuma Beach" with Suzanne Somers and "Valentine" with Mary Martin and Jack Albertson. Feature film credits include "Futureworld" and "Good Luck, Miss Wyckoff."

'Rockin' Renewed

In case you're wondering what you'll see on television next New Year's Eve, there's no need to worry. Dick Clark's "New Year's Rockin' Eve" has been renewed for the eighth consecutive year.

'Eternity' Returns

If you were among those viewers disappointed by NBC's decision to cancel "From Here to Eternity" a few months ago, relax! It's returning this week. And a two-parter entitled "Island and Homecoming" will be telecast as the network's Sunday Night Big Event, August 3 (9 to 11 p.m.).

In the segment, prostitute Lorene Rogers tips off Jeff Prewitt that a man from Army Intelligence is posing as a soldier in his unit to gather evidence about his alleged black market activities.

Later, realizing that Emily Austin is about to be legally implicated in his unlawful actions, Jeff confesses to his superiors. And his only way to avoid imprisonment is to turn informer.

Meanwhile, Sgt. Warden learns the truth behind the heavy losses suffered by Company G under Major Holmes' command as the survivors return from the war's first successful — but costly — battle.

After seeing the condition of his men, Warden becomes even more determined to get a combat assignment and seeks medical help, incognito, from a civilian doctor to prevent the military from learning of his heart condition.

Playing the hard-bitten Milt Warden was a piece of cake for actor Bill Devane. "It's the closest character to me that I've been able to play," he declares.

"Warden was a wonderful part for Billy Devane," he says. "It's a character I haven't played very much. By this I mean I didn't have to work at the part because I really identified with it. In fact, I reached the point where I felt I was actually playing myself." Devane, who claims he got into acting because of all the beautiful women in drama classes, is a native of Albany, N.Y. He joined a neighborhood little theater while still in his teens and discovered a natural bent for acting. He finished a year in college before winning a scholarship to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts.

In 1971, after nine years of actively working in plays off-Broadway and on Broadway, he decided to move to Hollywood.

"It was an absolute necessity," he states. "A young actor can build a career to a certain point in New York, but when the really good stuff comes around, no one will gamble on a New York actor. They bring in a TV star."

Three years later, Devane was picked to star as John F. Kennedy in "Missiles of October." Next came a powerful role in "Fear on Trial," and he's been in constant demand ever since.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Please tell me something about Bea Benadret, who starred in "Petticoat Junction." M. CATE, BOILING SPRING LAKES, N.C.

A: Bea died twelve years ago, shortly after her 62nd birthday. Now her son, Jack Bannon, is in episodic television — he's seen weekly as Art Donovan, the unruffled assistant city editor on "Lou Grant."

Q: I'd like to know more about the actress who plays Lesley Webber on "General Hospital." Where is she from? Is she married, and where does she live? P. COOK, CAMERON, N.C.

A: She's Denise Alexander, who's frequently called the 'queen of daytime shows.' She was on several radio serials — "I Remember Mama," "Perry Mason," "Hilltop House" and "Martin Kane, Private Eye" — before the advent of 'soaps' on television. For several years, Denise has dated Richard Colla, a film director. She admits they're in love, but still has mixed feelings about getting married. "I treasure my freedom and Richard understands." The native New Yorker loves animals, enjoys photography and skiing and lives alone in her own Beverly Hills house.

Q: Who plays Kim Drummond on "Diff'rent Strokes"? What other shows has she been in? J. KNOX, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Fifteen-year-old Dana Plato plays Kim, and prior appearances on TV include guest stints on "The Six Million Dollar Man" and "Family," along with small parts in three movies — "The Heretic," "California Suite" and "Beyond the Bermuda Triangle." Dana's beginning to tire of being Gary Coleman's 'straight man' and her days with 'Strokes' may possibly be numbered.

Q: Will "Galactica 1980" continue this fall, or has ABC cancelled the series? B.RANSOM, HICKORY, N.C.

A: ABC did cancel the series, but now they're having 'second thoughts' about it. This means, of course, that there's a strong possibility the show will continue to air. Let's hope so!

Will Guest Star

Tom Smothers and Helen Reddy are scheduled to guest star in an episode of "Love Boat" entitled "Out Of This World." The segment was written by Jill Baer and Christopher Vane.

Foster Returns

Film star Jodie Foster will return to television after an absence of several years to star in "The Best [illegible] Girl in the World" a new motion picture to air on ABC. The actress, who will be 18 years old in November, is planning to enter Yale University this fall.

"The Best Little Girl in the World" is a drama focusing on anorexia nervosa, a psychosomatic illness characterized by a compulsion to lose weight to the point of actual starvation. It is most prevalent among female teenagers.

Is Strong Believer

Billie Jean King is a strong believer in the second serve in tennis. "You've heard the expression, 'You're only as good as your second serve,' haven't you?" she says. "My belief in that piece of tennis wisdom has helped carry me through many tough matches through the years."

Rise To Stardom Told

LeVar Burton stars in "One in a Million: The Ron LeFlore Story," a television movie about the incredible rise of Detroit Tiger centerfielder Ron LeFlore from prison to the major leagues, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," August 5, (9 to 11 p.m.)

Also starring in the film, which is based on the autobiography "Breakout" by LeFlore with Jim Hawkins, are Madge Sinclair, Paul Benjamin, James Luisi, Billy Martin (as himself), Zakes Mokae and Larry B. Scott. Former Tiger stars Al Kline, Norm Cash, Jim Northrup and Bill Freehan also appear as themselves.

In the story, LeFlore, a 19-year-old hoodlum hanging out on the streets of Detroit, is sent to prison for armed robbery. Far from a model prisoner, he winds up in solitary confinement, again and again. He begins to mature when he learns that his younger brother, Gerald (Scott), is being drawn into the same street life of drugs and crime.

He is befriended by another inmate, Jimmy Karalla (Luisi), who encourages him to take up baseball. He is a natural, and soon becomes the star of the team. Karalla, through his friendship with James Butsicaris, a restaurant owner on the outside who knows Detroit Tigers manager Billy Martin, arranges for a tryout for LeFlore, who impresses Martin with his tremendous raw talent.

Aames Is Showcased

Teen idol Willie Aames is showcased in "My Son, the Prom Queen," a segment of "Eight is Enough" to be rebroadcast Wednesday, August 6 (8 to 9 p.m. on ABC-TV). Willie plays Tommy Bradford in the hit series.

In the episode, Tommy and his friends find their male egos bruised when their band loses to an all-girl group during auditions for the senior prom. Then the situation worsens when the girlfriend of one of the band members decides to try out for the boys' basketball team. In retaliation, the guys place Tommy's name on the ballot for prom queen, much to the chagrin of the Bradford clan.

Meanwhile, a famous Broadway director comes to Sacramento and Joannie auditions for his production, only to be told that she has no talent. But when the director is interviewed on television by Joannie, he changes his tune.

Also, Janet and Abby, both of whom married into the Bradfords, decide they need some time away from the family and try everything from jogging to meeting at the library.

'Eight' seems to have catapulted 19-year-old Willie Aames into the lot as the latest contender for Leif Garrett's teen throb title. He receives more mail than any other members of the cast, and his band, named Paradise, recently released its first single — "You're the Only One I Ever Needed."

"We revamped our music a little bit so we can appeal for the 10-to-16 crowd," Willie says. "After all, that's where my audience is. But I hope we'll get back into the hard stuff sometime during the next year."

Willie launched his acting career in the fourth grade, thanks to the efforts of his teacher and her boyfriend, who believed that the youth should be brought to the attention of Hollywood's commerical agents. He backed up their belief with talents that led to his participation in dozens of commericals and eight TV pilots. Then came parts in three series — "We'll Get By," "Swiss Family Robinson" and "Wait 'Til Your Father Gets Home."

A Real Expert

To make sure scenes in "The Hostage Heart" CBS' Late Movie, Wednesday, August 6 (12:30 a.m.) were realistic, producer Andrew J. Fenady called in an expert. Chris Hutson, a registered nurse and medical advisor has worked on several other TV series such as "Ben Casey" and "Medical Center" in the same capacity.

The movie centers around an open-heart operation during which the patient is being held hostage, for $10 million ransom, by terroists. "While on the set," Miss Hutson explained, "my duties include advising the actors, the producer and director on how to use the various medical equipment and about proper medical and surgical procedures and the preparation of the patient."

To ready herself for these duties, Miss Hutson spent two weeks at Long Beach Memorial Hospital for intensive briefings on the latest cardiac procedures and equipment. Her partner is Los Angeles physician Walter Dishell who works with the writers while she is on the set.

Director Bernard McEveety commented, "Chris is one of the most essential members of our production team, and to make sure we would have full advantage of her expertise at all times, we asked her to portray the chief surgical nurse in the film.

So, during the heart operation, the audience can rest assured that Bradford Dillman, as cardiologist Dr. Eric Lake, is being assisted by a real expert.

BULOVA OCEANOGRAPHER

Whether you deep sea dive or just forget to take your watch off in the shower. Bulova has an Oceanographer for you.

Besides being pressure tested to 666 feet under water, these are probably the most rugged watches Bulova has ever made. All have ebony dials and magnified calendar windows. A screw-down crown permits no condensation or fogged-up crystals. And what makes them water-resistant makes them dust-resistant, too.

Lange Awarded

Ted Lange, who portrays Isaac Washington in "The Love Boat" recently received the Marcus Foster Distinguished Alumni Award from the Oakland School District in San Francisco where Lange grew up. It was really a surprise and honor for Lange who said he was only a "C-plus student" and who received the award along with such other eminent persons as a scientist, an educator, a superintent of schools and a Congressman.

Sings For Supper

Actor Robert Guillaume may be singing for his supper for a while if he loses a law suit filed against him by Witt-Thomas-Harris Production Company. Aside from requesting $1.000.000 monetary damages for not showing up on the set as scheduled for next season's filming of "Benson," they are also asking the court to restrain the star from signing with any other production company as an actor.

Poor, Poor Barney!

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers," Neil Simon's comedy hit starring Alan Arkin, Sally Kellerman, Paula Prentiss and Renee Taylor, comes to television as ABC's Friday Night Movie, August 8 (9 to 11 p.m.).

Arkin portrays Barney Cashman. He's a shy, bald and 45-year-old guy who's begun to ask himself what he can do about these 'afflictions.' Two of, the three problems are insoluble. But he does have hopes of overcoming his shyness long enough to solve yet another problem — terminal boredom.

Barney wants an affair. Not necessarily a meaningful relationship, but definitely more than dinner and a movie. And so — although they don't know it yet — the virtue of every lady in New York is in danger. Barney Cashman is on the prowl.

And he doesn't have to prowl far. First he meets Elaine (Kellerman), who is not only available but aggressive. In fact, she's so aggressive that Barney feels balder and more middle-aged than ever. Her virtue may be questionable, but his remains sadly unsullied.

Next there is Bobbi (Prentiss), who's not aggressive and barely functioning at all. You see...Bobbi's stoned! Which means Barney's stymied. No fooling around.

But, then, there is always Jeanette (Renee Taylor). Convenient Jeanette. Next-door neighbor Jeanette. Also married, but very mad, eager to get even with her fool-around husband. And who better to do that with than Barney Cashman? Who, indeed?

Alas! Poor Barney. All too soon he finds that even the course of true double adultery doesn't necessarily run smooth.

Angels Filming

Production has commenced for the fifth season of "Charlie's Angels" on ABC. The most recent episode now before the cameras, "Angel in Hiding," will be presented as the premiere episode this fall and will be three hours in length — marking it as the longest in the series' history. The episode also introduces Tanya Roberts as the new angel. The first two hours of the episode will be filmed in Hollywood with the concluding hour being filmed on location in Hawaii. An additional five episodes will be set in the Hawaiian Islands.

Is Not Satisfied

Jayne Kennedy's manager Rudy Tellez of Telco Prods., is not satisfied with CBS Sports reasons for letting Jayne go from the "NFL Today" staff. Executives of the show feel there would be a conflict in schedules, but Tellez feels that would not be a problem and maintains that Kennedy's contract with CBS Sports does not bar her from working for other networks as long as her assignment does not relate to sports.

MacRae Signed

Meredith MacRae will be starring in "The First International Guinness Book of World Records" an ABC-TV special scheduled to air this fall. The host of the primetime show will be Mike Connors.

STANDING BESIDE HER special "Going Places" van is 20-year-old Laura Lippman, one of two young journalists who will report on their travels through the country on the CBS News half-hour special, "Going Places," Saturday, August 9 at 1:30 p.m.

Redskins, Colts On Tap

Despite an unrelenting heat wave, the National Footall League clubs around the country managed to open their early training camps on schedule in July, beginning the annual quest for professional football supremacy.

Two teams with nearly opposite records last season — Washington (10-6) and Baltimore (5-11) — are slated to battle it out in a pre-season game, Saturday, August 9 (8 p.m.).

The Redskins' Jack Pardee probably did the finest coaching job in the pro ranks last year, as he took a team, forecast by many to end up last in the NFC East, and led it to within a last-second Roger Staubach touchdown pass of making the playoffs.

Pardee seemed to borrow a page out of former coach George Allen's book by building the most opportunistic defensive contingent in the league. He received excellent defensive performances from end Coy Bacon, cornerbacks Lemar Parrish and Joe Lavender, and safety Kenny Houston. The rest of the defense — which includes Pete Wysocki, Brad Dusek, Dave Butz and Mat Mendenhall — is fairly underpublicized.

Washington's turnaround can be seen clearly in some key statistics: only 25 turnovers (lowest in NFL), 26 interceptions and 47 sacks in 16 games.

Offensively, the Redskins were equally surprising last season, as the team ranked 18th in total offense, including a No. 12 ranking in the rushing department and a 22nd finish in passing.

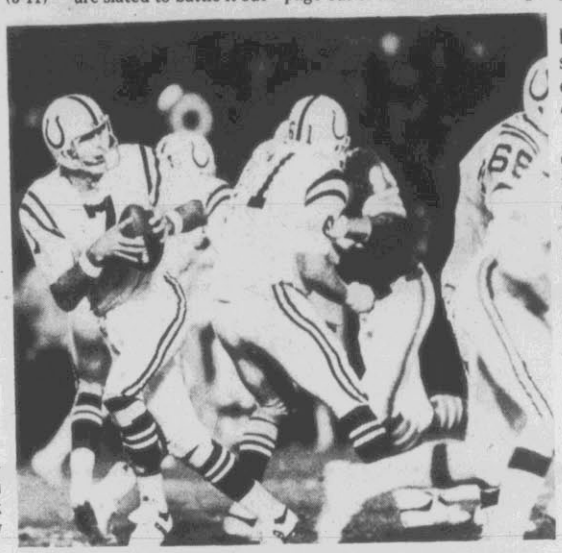
Quarterback Joe Theisman was without the shadow of Billy Kilmer for the first time and he obviously relished his new status as the starting signal caller. He hit on 233 of 395 passes for 2,797 yards and 20 touchdowns, while letting go of only 13 interceptions.

Washington's running attack was also improved with fullback John Riggins rushing for 1,153 yards and nine TD's, and Benny Malone adding 472 yards. Clarence Harmon gave the backfield depth.

The Redskins' receiving unit struggled some last year, so Washington drafted Art Monk, out of Syracuse, with their first initial round pick in what seems like light years.

In Baltimore, quarterback Bert Jones believes the Colts are ready to return as title contenders in the AFC East. In fact, Jones, who has been sidelined for much of the last two seasons with shoulder injuries, is so optimistic about the prospects of success that he reported to Baltimore's training camp three days ahead of schedule.

"I don't remember ever looking forward to a season as much as I'm looking forward to this one," said Jones, an eight-year veteran. "You know I'm eager. I have to be to come to camp three or four days before I had to report, as I am doing this year."



BALTIMORE'S BERT JONES (7), blessed with one of the great arms in football, will take aim against the Washington Redskins when the Colts face their neighboring rivals in a pre-season contest on Saturday, August 9 at 8 p.m.

Running Game

San Diego Padres Manager Jerry Coleman promised fans an exciting running game in 1980 and he has certainly been true to his word. Through 89 games, the Padres had stolen 115 bases, or the equivalent of 209 over the full 162-game schedule. The Padre club record is 152 and in 1979 the team stole only 100 bases.

Sold Out Again

As the 1980 collegiate football season rapidly approaches, Penn State University is nearing a sold-out status for season tickets to watch the Nittany Lions under coach Joe Paterno, in his 15th year with the team. More than 50,000 tickets have already been sold, setting a new season mark, and the sale of the remaining 1,000 would assure Penn State of its sixth consecutive sell-out year, and 12th in its last 13 seasons.

A New Pryor

Friends of comedian Richard Pryor are saying a change has come over the star since his near fatal accident in which he was burned on over fifty percent of his body. One result of this transformation is a foundation to be started for underprivileged burn victims. Sammy Davis Jr. and Redd Foxx have consented to provide their talents on a 12-hour fund-raising telethon to be shown in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Hartford, Conn., on cable TV.

He's also been doing his part to cheer up other patients in the burn center. Actor Jim Brown, one of few people that have been allowed free acess to Pryor's hospital room since the incident stated."...He's motivating the other patients, talking to them and making them laugh." Nona Egan, Pryor's press agent commented, "Richard's ordeal has given him the chance to start anew and I think he feels that he has to look inward to find his happiness."

Money—special marking for the blind.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE FORTNEY H. STARK JR. (D.-Calif.)

You have proposed legislation to print money in a manner to enable the blind to determine the denomination. What alteration in the paper money do you suggest? —Elmer Whittaker, Berkley, Mass.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

What will the world's population number in the year 2000? Where will the population centers be located? —R.S., Trenton, N.J.

● According to Rafael M. Salas, executive director of the United Nations Fund for Population Activities, it is expected to increase from 4.3 billion in 1980 to 6.2 billion by 2000. In 1960 there were 115 cities in the world with populations of over one million, taking in a total of 295 million people (10 percent of the world's population). By the year 2000, it is estimated that there will be 440 such cities, accounting for 1.354 billion people, or 22 percent of the world's population. The five largest cities in the year 2000 are expected to be the Mexico City metropolitan area, 32 million; Tokyo-Yokohama, 26 million; Sao Paulo, 26 million; New York-northeast New Jersey, 22 million; Calcutta, 20 million.

Coming! supercities, 6-billion folks.

FOR MARION ROSS of ABC-TV's Happy Days

What was your least favorite role? —B.B., Evansdale, Iowa

● A movie of the week, Survival of Dana, which I did last year. The displeasure, though, was personal, not professional. It centered around the worst things that can happen to teen-agers in a suburban school, and it's set in the very same neighborhood where my own 17-year-old daughter lives and attends high school. It was just too close for comfort.

FOR OTTO PREMINGER, producer-director of The Human Factor

As a moviemaker, what annoys you? —J.T., Joplin, Mo.

● Two things. If the actors are late and if they don't remember their lines. Either one causes me to lose my temper. If performers try, I am especially patient. When I made The Man With the Golden Arm with Frank Sinatra and Kim Novak, she was not experienced. We had to do one scene 40 times. But neither Frank nor I was annoyed — because she was really trying.

FOR GREGORY HARRISON of CBS-TV's Trapper John, M.D.

What did you mean by saying that actors won't be successful unless they're vain? —S.J., Little Rock, Ark.

● Performers must pamper themselves. For instance, there are many times when I just don't feel like going to the gym. I'd much rather stay home and laze around. But I must work out. If I don't like what I see in the mirror, how can I expect those who watch me on TV or on the stage to do so?

FOR MEG BUSSERT, actress

You said that a new sport is doing wonders for your marriage. What is it? —H.J., San Antonio, Texas

● Since my husband and I are both in the theater, we spend most of our time between four walls, not in the open air. We wanted to find something to do outdoors that we would both enjoy and finally came up with sailing. We both took sailing lessons. We love it. We bought a 19-foot boat, and learning how to handle it is bringing us closer together, in more ways than one.

FOR LOIS WYSE, author of Blonde Beautiful Blonde

Do you think that gentlemen really prefer blondes, and is there such a thing as a blond mystique? —H.L. Koscik, Framingham, Mass.

● I can't say that gentlemen prefer blondes, but I can say that men do. There really is a blond mystique; it means the promise of good things to men. Chief among these seems to be the anticipation of romance. The blond mystique promises favorable things for women, too — good times, the right job and the right man.

FOR COL. JOSEPH J. LOUDER, U.S. Marine Corps

How did the term leatherneck originate? And do you feel that the term is derogatory? —P.T., Suffolk, Va.

● The term leatherneck is derived from the black leather stock or collar that was part of the Marine uniform during the 18th and 19th centuries. The collar was worn to protect Marines from sword and saber wounds to the neck. I don't consider the term leatherneck to be derogatory. It is rooted in a proud and longstanding tradition.

PRO AND CON

Should There Be More Federal Laws to Protect the Confidentiality of Information Collected About Citizens?

PRO Representative John J. Cavanaugh (D.-Neb.)

The invention of the computer has led to the insatiable thirst of business and government to collect, store and transfer information about individuals. Technological advances will continue to pose a significant threat to the expectation of privacy in our personal affairs. New Federal legislation is necessary to protect the unwarranted disclosure and use of financial, medical, insurance and employment records. Congress is now considering several bills, but final approval will require the recognition that privacy is directly related to the maintenance of the principles of individual liberty.

CON Alexander B. Trowbridge, President, National Association of Manufacturers (N.A.M.)

Laws already on the books — freedom of information, fair credit reporting and privacy acts — coupled with voluntary efforts to keep records confidential, should be sufficient to protect citizens from unwarranted snooping by government and business. N.A.M., for instance, continually urges members to review record-keeping practices to get rid of unnecessary information collection and to let employees correct faulty records. A new set of Federal regulations and red tape, however, could do more harm than good and cost citizens heavily as consumers and taxpayers.

Jimmy Carter's Race For Re-election

Four years ago, "Jimmy Who" won the Presidency largely on the basis of his 660 campaign promises. How well Americans feel he kept those promises will determine whether Jimmy Carter will be elected to a second term.

By Phil Gailey

Last spring, four days before the final round of Presidential primaries on June 3, President Carter finally took his re-election campaign out of the Rose Garden and onto the road.

Having declared the nation's problems — including the Iranian hostage crisis — "manageable enough" for him to end his self-imposed exile in the White House, Carter boarded Air Force One and made his first official campaign outing of the year: a one-day swing through Ohio that revealed what promises to be a basic theme in his fall campaign against Republican Ronald Reagan.

At an outdoor rally in downtown Columbus, only four blocks from where Reagan was holding a simultaneous affair on the steps of the state capitol, Carter shed his coat in the noontime heat and delivered this earnest defense of his first term in office:

"I'm not here to say that all my decisions have been right or popular. I know that they have certainly not been easy ones. But I will say this: In the past 3½ years we have tackled long-term problems that have been with us and overlooked or deliberately ignored for years. We've made tough decisions, and we've taken the heat when we made those decisions. But we've done what was right, and we've always told the truth."

What Ohioans heard that sunny day in May is the essence of Carter's case for re-election in 1980. It comes down to this: There are no easy answers to the nation's problems, and Jimmy Carter is promising none. He is a good and honest man who is working hard, sometimes failing, sometimes succeeding, but never running from tough decisions.

Four years ago, as a relatively obscure former Georgia governor, Carter sought the Presidency as the cure the nation needed after Vietnam and Watergate. His catch phrase was "you can depend on it."

Carter constantly told voters that as President he would provide "bold and competent leadership," would work with the Congress "for a change" and would never tell a lie, make a misleading statement or betray a trust.

He would also balance the Federal budget; bring the inflation rate down to 4 percent without increasing unemployment; slash the number of Federal agencies and commissions from 1,900 to "no more than 200"; reform the tax and welfare systems; fight for strong handgun-control legislation; cut a "bloated" defense budget; and halt nuclear proliferation.

Two days after his election in 1976, the President-elect asked his chief domestic aide, Stuart E. Eizenstat, to compile a list of every promise he had made during his two-year political odyssey across America. The final tally — 660 promises — surprised even Carter.

Carter not only made more campaign promises than any Presidential candidate since World War II, but he repeatedly invited the public to judge his performance by his ability to keep his pledges.

That three-volume laundry list of Carter promises is now in the hands of the Republicans — who figure he has kept only 20 percent of them — and Jimmy Carter is about to be judged by the high standards he set for himself four years ago.

In a recent interview, Carter conceded that his record is at best a "mixed bag" and then came as close as he ever has to admitting that he may have been somewhat naive in promising so much.

UPI

"The problems are so difficult and intransigent that it is impossible completely to study them, to initiate a resolution of them and then to accomplish the goals that you establish in a four-year period," the President stated.

Still, Carter is proud of his record. Under his leadership, he says, the nation is "turning the tide" in meeting its energy, economic and foreign problems.

Some of the accomplishments in foreign affairs he is most proud of include the strengthening of NATO, the recognition of the People's Republic of China and the Mideast peace negotiations begun at Camp David. (He stated recently: "We are making progress on the Mideast peace, if you look at it in a long-term perspective. Two years ago, no one would have thought that Israel and Egypt...would be engaged in negotiation to resolve the differences between them.")

UPI

Family man: The President returns to Washington after a weekend at Camp David with grandson Jason, daughter Amy and wife Rosalynn.

On the domestic level, Carter says he has restored public confidence in Government and added a "new sense of vitality" to Washington's relations with state and local governments. He initiated the remodeling of the Civil Service System and created a cabinet-ranking Department of Education.

Carter is also pleased with his accomplishments in regard to minorities (he opened Government to record numbers of blacks and other minorities), the elderly (he initiated Age Discrimination Act reform, which raised mandatory retirement age from 65 to 70) and women ("We simply must break down the present barriers that prevent women, on an equal basis, from getting the training and the education and the employment opportunities that they deserve").

While those accomplishments are noteworthy, they are not likely to figure significantly in the voters' decision in November. If the public opinion polls are any indication, a majority of Americans do not share

Seducing you with a devastating array of amenities, from fully reclining contoured buckets to full instrumentation including tachometer and quartz clock.

SURPRISE!

What you might not have expected is that this awesome machine could be one of the soundest automotive investments today. Fact is, the Datsun 280-ZX is the most popular sports car in the world; and Z-cars traditionally hold onto their value with a steel grip.

CHOOSE YOUR PASSION.

The "Z" of your dreams is waiting to whisk you away! From pure sports car models all the way to grand luxury editions that let you indulge your wildest driving fantasies with • optional T-bar roof • optional genuine leather seats • 4-speaker stereo • cruise control • computer sensor system and total power! Z-cars for two, or two-plus-two.

Manual 5-speed or fully automatic. The many faces of AWESOME are at your Datsun dealer now.

MORE FUEL FOR THOUGHT.

A lot of performance cars are extremely fuel hungry. But the Z-car understands the value of a gallon. Sporting an EPA estimate of 21 MPG,* and an estimated range of 443* miles on a single tank, the Datsun 280-ZX lets you take the mileage and run.

443 MILES Est. Driving Range	654 MILES Est. Hwy. Range
21 EPA Est. MPG	31 Hwy. Est. MPG

*Projected 280-ZX ranges are based on EPA estimated MPG and highway MPG with five-speed transmission. Use estimated MPG for comparison. Your mileage and range may differ depending on speed, trip length and weather. Highway mileage will probably be lower than EPA highway MPG. California range and mileage lower.

Your heart's in it... now do your head a favor – test price a Datsun 280-ZX at your Datsun dealer today. There has never been a better time to buy or lease the car of your dreams.

Carter

the President's "turning the tide" assessment of the nation's affairs. The country's problems, if anything, seem even greater and more intractable than when Jimmy Carter succeeded Gerald Ford in the White House, promising to do better.

As the voters consider Carter for another term in the White House, they will have to reconcile his unkept promises, flip-flops on issues and policy vacillations with his overall leadership record. They will have to decide if he has betrayed their trust or misled them — something he said he would never do.

In some areas, the record will not be kind to the 55-year-old President. Four years ago, Carter promised to cut inflation down to 4 percent from the 5 percent that existed when Ford left office — and not at the expense of jobs. Today Carter's inflation rate has been in the double-digit category so far this year, at one point soaring to 18 percent, and his Administration has launched an anti-inflation program that has brought on a deep recession and a sharply rising unemployment rate.

And though in 1976 Carter attacked the Republicans for favoring high energy prices, as President he reversed a campaign promise and began phasing out price controls on domestic oil in an attempt to boost production. After adopting policies that increased the price of oil and gas, Carter is now boasting of reductions in energy consumption and trumpeting Congressional approval of his energy program, which bears little resemblance to the one he originally sent to Capitol Hill.

In his speeches, Carter claims that Americans have enjoyed "major tax reductions" under his leadership. But he doesn't tell them that his Administration has shattered the record for peacetime tax increases, primarily as the result of inflation and new Social Security taxes.

The voters have yet to render a true verdict on Carter's performance. Since stepping out onto the campaign trail, Carter has tried to make Reagan himself the central issue in the general election campaign.

According to Carter strategists, it won't be Reagan's moral character that comes under attack but his ability and competence. So will Reagan's age (69), his lack of experience, his verbal gaffes and his hawkish military posture. Carter is telling audiences that among the questions to be decided in November is which candidate "will be responsible for peace or war."

If the substance of Carter's Presidency has changed since he strolled down Pennsylvania Avenue on Inauguration Day, so has the style. The President no longer carries his own bag and proudly marches to "Hail to the Chief" — a tune he all but banished in the early days of his Administration. Gone, too, are the fireside chats, the radio call-in shows from the Oval Office and other symbols of his early desire to be a commoner-in-chief.

Carter is thinner now than when he took office, primarily due to a strict regimen of tennis and jogging. The lines and blotches on his face show even through the make-up he wears for most of his television appearances.

For relaxation, the President retires to the rustic seclusion of the Presidential retreat at Camp David most weekends. In Washington, where he has few close friends, he and wife Rosalynn occasionally slip out of the White House for dinner at the home of one of his Georgia aides.

The President has always held that his family life is extremely important to him. He tries to take daughter Amy on trips with him, and he believes that the kind of President he is reflects the kind of family man he is. In a campaign commercial during the 1980 primaries, he stated, "I don't think there's any way you can separate the responsibilities of a husband or a father or a basic human being from that of being a good President."

If Carter wins a second term in the White House, former Attorney General Griffin Bell predicts, "He'll be a 50- to 100-percent better President, just you watch. He'll have so much more time to devote to being President, to finding the national interest, instead of having to spend so much of his time and energy dealing with political-interest groups."

That will be one of Carter's main arguments as he faces the voters in November. FW

Where Carter Stands On the Issues

Economy: Blames high inflation rate mostly on OPEC price increases; originally opposed a tax cut but is now seriously considering one for early 1981; favors voluntary wage and price controls; would continue attempt to reduce Federal budget deficit.

Energy: Advocated a 10-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax, but the plan was vetoed by Congress; says nuclear energy — with increased safety regulations — is a necessary part of our short-term energy future; pushed through windfall profits tax; decontrolled oil and gas industries.

Foreign Policy: Called for Olympic boycott and grain embargo after Soviet invasion of Afghanistan; says Israeli West Bank settlements are an obstacle to peace process.

Defense: Supports SALT II; favors a 5 percent increase (after inflation) in defense spending; shelved B-1 bomber; approved MX missile; says peacetime draft is now unnecessary.

Social Issues: Favors death penalty under limited circumstances; opposes Constitutional amendment to ban abortion — but would severely restrict public funding for it; supports E.R.A.

Coming Home: When Grown Kids Return to the Nest

By Susan Lapinski

An increasing number of young adults are realizing that there's no place like home—at least temporarily.

Bill Ronalds

Billy Kabatsky thought he had it made. After finishing school, he'd left his parents' Long Island home and found both a good job as a mechanic and the girl of his dreams. Life was perfect.

Then everything fell apart. Billy lost his job, lost his girl — and started phoning his parents back home.

"We told him, 'If it's not working out for you, there's always a place for you here,'" recalls Billy's father, Len Kabatsky, a magazine art director.

So Billy came home, just as an increasing number of grown children like him are doing — after their parents thought they'd flown the coop for good. Some, like Billy, return after a sudden reversal, such as losing a job or getting a divorce. Others come back right after college, before they've gotten their careers rolling. And some drift homeward after they've married and have discovered that they can't afford housing elsewhere. Whatever the circumstances, a motivating force is usually money.

"Runaway inflation is putting young people in the position of asking, What have I done wrong?" says Prof. Fred Allvine, an economist at the Georgia Institute of Technology and author of The New State of the Economy: The Challenging Prospect. "Despite getting an education and playing by the rules, they still can't afford the two prerequisites for entering the economic mainstream — cars and houses. So, some come home, and others aren't leaving as readily."

Emotional need is another motivation for the return home. "Children come back to the nest to let their wings dry out," says Dr. Harold Feldman, professor of human development and family studies at Cornell University. "They need a place where they can lick their wounds and build their self-images."

Just how beneficial the trend is for parents and children alike is debatable, however. While Dr. Feldman speaks optimistically of stronger family ties, other observers warn of problems if a grown child's stay at home is lengthy. "The average house," says Prof. Clifford Swensen, a Purdue University psychologist, "can't be big enough to contain that many different lifestyles." At its worst, Swensen believes that returning home can stunt young people's emotional growth by prolonging their dependence on their parents, possibly even for life. "In many cases," he says, "the daughter or son who does this will end up a lonely old woman or man."

These days it may be easier for the generations to live together — at least temporarily. During the last decade, many young people have begun to share their parents' views that jobs and security are important. At the same time, parents' outlooks have become less traditional. "Today, when a 20-year-old daughter returns home after a divorce, there's a good chance that her 40-year-old mother is divorced, too," says Prof. Amitai Etzioni, a Columbia University sociologist. But even with the generations sharing more values, it is common for them to have second thoughts about sharing a home.

"It used to be that when a child finished college, his parents could consider their duties finished. They could travel, enjoy themselves," says Etzioni. "Today, parenthood has become an unending task."

While parents may resent the fact that their "empty nests" are suddenly full again, their children have doubts about the arrangement also. After carving out their own identities in college or in another city, they sometimes approach coming home with trepidation, not knowing what their new roles and responsibilities in the family will be.

"I've never heard anyone say he willingly came back home to live," says Sally Dwyer, "but I hear of it happening a lot these days." Sally, a secretary at Boston University, and her husband, Bill, a banker, are an example of a married couple who came home for financial reasons.

After eight years of renting a place, Sally and Bill were told they had to leave by the owner, who wanted their apartment for her own grown son. At about the same time, Bill's parents were having difficulty paying their mortgage and the utility and tax bills on their home in the same suburb.

Before agreeing to share a home, Sally and Bill looked into buying a house but found they couldn't afford one. Yet Bill and Sally wanted to stay in the same area because they liked its schools and convenient location. Finally, they reached an agreement to buy Bill's parents' home and share it with them. Such arrangements are becoming common in the suburbs, according to realtors, who use the term "mother-daughter houses" to describe private houses in which second dwelling units have been created for family use.

But unlike the days when several generations of a family would share meals, secrets and spare time under one roof, Bill and Sally say they maintain a largely separate household. Their 13-year-old son, Ian, often stops by his grandmother's kitchen for after-school snacks, but Bill and Sally rarely join the senior Dwyers for meals. And Sally says she is raising her infant son, Alec, with little influence from her in-laws. "It's nice to have family to talk to," she says, "but not to tell you their way is the best way — or the only way."

The idea that their parents might not treat them as adults who are capable of making their own decisions is a major concern for grown children who come back home to live, notes family psychotherapist Phoebe Prosky. "Particularly for the young adult, autonomy is so important, accommodation so difficult," she says. "A young person thinks his own needs are being squashed when he must accommodate himself to the requirements of his parents' house."

For parents, worries can center on how much autonomy their grown children should be granted once they're home again. Should they be allowed to come and go as they please and to bring friends home at all hours? Some parents also feel a financial squeeze and must decide whether to charge their offspring for room and board. And, in most cases, minor adjustments in everybody's lifestyles must be made.

Phoebe Prosky feels that both generations' problems can be alleviated by setting up some ground rules in advance. "Parents should be clear from the outset about their expectations," she advises. "A good way to begin is to make a list of all the things they would expect of a boarder, or a guest."

As for the child, Prosky says, "It won't go well unless he accepts that he's in somebody else's home." Dr. Feldman agrees. "They must pull their own weight — do work around the house, help pay for expenses if needed and also pay emotionally," he asserts. "By that, I mean they should tell their parents that they appreciate the chance to come home and the help they're being given."

When things get rocky, parents can remind themselves that most two-generational living arrangements are only temporary and often change with the child's economic fortunes. While Billy Kabatsky lived with his parents, he was able to rethink his career plans. Now he's a jeweler and rents his own home on Long Island.

But while grown children are living at home, there can be benefits for both generations. Prosky feels that the time presents an opportunity for grown children to solve family problems that might not have been worked out earlier. "Anything that can resolve old business is tremendously good for a person's development," she points out.

Feldman feels that for parents going through the trials of a mid-life crisis, a returning child can be a reaffirmation that they are needed. "And sometimes," he adds, "young people discover that their parents aren't so bad after all." FW

Observations

Beware! Beware! Is there anything harmless left in the world? Probably not, according to Vance Muse's Don't Buy A Car Made On Monday (Pocket Books). In a kind of paranoiac's primer, Muse warns against almost everything. Christmas is dangerous because "Families and friends tend to cluster at Christmastime." Families and friends are risky because "About 30 percent of murderers and their victims are (were) related to one another, and more than half are at least acquainted." Weekends are trouble because "All hell breaks loose on weekends." Sleep is dangerous because "Sleep and dreaming, far from being relaxing, can wrack mind and body." Nor is the medical profession any help: "Doctors overexpose patients to x-rays."

Birthday partings. Muse also suggests you avoid celebrations. Why? "You will die within a year of your last birthday"*—whenever that may be. Other Musings: Burned toast narrows your arteries, girdles cramp your circulation, and jogging injures your spleen. Even walking may be evil—if God really wanted people to stand erect, He would have given them two limbs, not four.

A little chicken. Muse's volume recalls Chicken Little's cry that "The sky is falling!" But it's a timely book, because the country seems to be afflicted with the Chicken Little Syndrome. Hardly a day passes without news of some fresh perils—dangerous microwaves... harmful rain... cancerous sunshine—and demands for new government regulations to alleviate them. The problem with demands for a risk-free society is that they may in fact bring the sky down—in a rain of red tape that smothers growth. The point is, nothing is absolutely safe, and everything people do every day involves a slight measure of risk.

Charging ahead. What the British magazine The Economist calls the NICs, or Newly Industrializing Countries, are already displacing some of the older, slowpoke centers of commerce—because they're willing to move without pondering every element of danger. One result is that NICs like South Korea and Yugoslavia are making inroads with well-made but inexpensive clothing and footwear, and Taiwan is moving into electronics and shipbuilding.

Wrong route. Change is risky. Of the several hundred thousand businesses started each year in the U.S., over half failed within five years. The point is that these businessmen tried. The other route—to dig in, avoid risk, fight change—may appear safe for the short term. But for the long pull, it's a way to certain stagnation.

It's a fact: With over 23,000 wells drilled offshore U.S.A., there have been no more than a handful of major spills—none with any measurable long-term environmental effect.

Sherbets: Easy and Elegant Summer Refreshment

By Marilyn Hansen

The lazy days of summer seem perfect for combining a few simple ingredients with a ripe fresh fruit or two and producing a light welcome dessert. Sherbets are fun to make and serve. Try a new flavor every week.

FROSTY FRUIT SHERBETS

Cantaloupe Sherbet

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup milk
3 cups cubed cantaloupe
1 cup light corn syrup

1. In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over milk. Stir over low heat until dissolved.
2. Place hot mixture in blender container with cantaloupe and corn syrup; cover. Blend on high speed 30 seconds. Pour into 9 × 9 × 2-inch baking pan. Cover; freeze overnight.
3. Soften slightly at room temperature, about 10 to 15 minutes. Spoon into large bowl; with mixer at low speed, beat until smooth, but not melted.
4. Pour into 4-cup mold or freezer container. Cover; freeze about 4 hours or until firm. Unmold or soften at room temperature for easier scooping.

Makes about 4 cups

Sherbet Variations

Blueberry Sherbet: Follow basic recipe. Use 3 cups whole blueberries; omit cantaloupe. Makes about 3½ cups

Peach Sherbet: Follow basic recipe. Use 3 cups cubed peaches and 1 tablespoon lemon juice; omit cantaloupe.

Makes about 4 cups

Strawberry Sherbet: Follow basic recipe. Use 3 cups whole strawberries; omit cantaloupe. Makes about 3½ cups

Papaya Sherbet: Follow basic recipe. Use 3 cups cubed papaya and 1 tablespoon lemon juice; omit cantaloupe.

Makes about 4 cups

FRESH FRUIT SHERBET TROPICALE

1 medium-size, ripe banana, peeled
½ cup fresh orange juice
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 egg white
⅛ teaspoon salt

1. Combine first 4 ingredients in blender container; process until mixture is smooth. Turn mixture into large bowl; stir in sugar and corn syrup.
2. Pour into shallow pan; freeze until almost firm.
3. Transfer mixture to chilled bowl; beat with electric mixer or rotary beater until light and fluffy. In small bowl, beat egg white with salt until stiff; fold into fruit mixture.
4. Pour into refrigerator tray, loaf pan or 4-cup mold. Freeze until firm, 3 or 4 hours. Makes about 3½ cups sherbet

FRESH NECTARINE BUTTERMILK ICE

2 cups crushed peeled nectarines (6 nectarines)
1½ cups buttermilk
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 unbeaten egg white

1. Mix crushed nectarines, buttermilk, sugar and vanilla in bowl. Freeze until firm. Break up into bowl.
2. Add egg white and beat with electric mixer until smooth. Turn into freezer trays and freeze.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

WATERMELON SHERBET

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
½ cup sugar
½ cup nonfat dry milk powder
1 cup milk
1 cup fresh watermelon puree
2 egg whites

1. Mix gelatin, sugar and nonfat dry milk powder in saucepan. Stir in milk. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, 5 to 8 minutes.
2. Remove from heat; cool. Stir in watermelon puree. Pour into shallow pan and freeze until firm.
3. Turn into chilled bowl and add egg whites. Beat at high speed of electric mixer 10 minutes, until smooth and fluffy. Return to pan; freeze.

Makes 3½ cups

ORANGE YOGURT SHERBET

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 cups orange juice
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
2 containers (8 ozs. each) plain yogurt

1. In medium saucepan, sprinkle gelatin over ½ cup orange juice. Place over low heat and stir constantly until gelatin dissolves, about 3 minutes.
2. Stir in sugar and salt. Remove from heat; stir in remaining 1½ cups orange juice and orange rind. Cool slightly. Stir in plain yogurt.
3. Turn into can of 2- or 4-quart ice-cream maker. Insert dasher, cover and freeze according to manufacturer's direction. Turn into container, cover and ripen about 2 hours in freezer.

Makes about 1½ quarts

The premier figure in "The Belles of the Ball,"
an outstanding new collection of hand-painted costume figures in fine porcelain.

Available for a limited time only.

Reservation valid only if mailed by September 30, 1980.

The figure of an 18th-century woman—beautiful and full of grace. Pausing in mid-step as she dances the favorite dance of the time: the minuet. Clad in a ravishing ball gown of the early 1770s, the kind every woman would love to wear —all flounces and frills, ribbons and ruches, garlands and lace. Her curled and powdered hair is adorned with a swaying plume of ostrich feathers and a wreath of rosebuds, while her hands and arms are smoothly clad in elbow-length white gloves.

The figure? A remarkable work of art in fine porcelain. Elegantly sculptured. Hand-painted in exquisite colors, and glazed with a rich sheen that seems almost to give it a life of its own. Extraordinarily detailed—even down to the fan and tiny pendant earrings picked out in pure 24 karat gold.

This is Marianne—"The Minuet." Commissioned by the internationally renowned Museum of Costume in Bath, England, from the distinguished costume artist Steven Gregory. In addition to creating the original designs, Mr. Gregory has worked with the Museum's own experts and the porcelain makers to achieve a degree of historical accuracy which puts this hand-painted figure in a class of its own.

For at each stage in the crafting of this intricate figure, care will be taken to ensure that every ruffle, every feather, every pattern and shade—every fine detail—closely follows the actual costumes of the period. Even the movement of the dance has been perfectly captured in this enchanting work of art, which will be produced for the Museum by Franklin Porcelain in Japan—home of some of the world's most gifted and experienced porcelain craftsmen.

In keeping with established collecting tradition, Marianne will be available during the issue year of 1980 only. Affording the exclusivity of a limited edition—at a price designed to place the figure within reach of all who love beauty... art... and the romance of the past. Just $90, payable in three monthly installments. When all valid orders have been filled, the original molds and designs will be destroyed, so the work may never be issued again.

Marianne is the first in a new series, "The Belles of the Ball." Owners will be notified of future issues in the series—and may acquire them if they wish. There is no obligation.

Each figure will be crafted to order. To take advantage of this exceptional opportunity, return the reservation form at right to Franklin Porcelain, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19091, no later than September 30, 1980.

Nancy Drew, at 50, Is Still the Top Bubble Gumshoe

Christopher Little

Nancy Drew writer, Harriet Adams

By Brie Quinby

Of all the literary heroines that young girls have longed to emulate, Nancy Drew, girl detective, is one of the most continuously popular. For 50 years, Nancy and her two cohorts, Bess and George, have reigned as favorites among the preteen set, solving 58 mysteries to date with no signs of exhaustion. Nancy can ride a horse, fly a plane, ski like a champ and speak Spanish fluently, and her particular brand of detective work has won her admirers all over the world. Nancy Drew mysteries are read by children in 21 countries, and 70 million copies are now in circulation.

Nancy Drew is, in fact, very much like her creator, Harriet Adams, who writes the series under the name Carolyn Keene. Adams, now 87 years old, admits that "Nancy is autobiographical in a way. My own experiences are often a source of inspiration."

Nancy Drew was a legacy that Harriet Adams inherited from her father, Edward Stratemeyer. Around the turn of the century, Stratemeyer had formed the Stratemeyer Syndicate, a company dedicated to producing children's books. Under various pseudonyms, and with the help of a group of writers whom he furnished with precise outlines, Stratemeyer began turning out such famous series as The Bobbsey Twins, The Hardy Boys and Tom Swift. "My father also wrote the first three Nancy Drew mysteries," explains Adams. "And he thought of the name Carolyn Keene."

But Edward Stratemeyer died before any of the Nancy Drew mysteries were published, and Harriet found herself the head of a booming business. Married to Russell V. Adams, an investment banker, Harriet was already the mother of three young children when she stepped into her father's shoes. She took to the job immediately, and Nancy Drew became a pet project.

During the 50 years that she's been writing Nancy Drew mysteries, Adams has had to make a few changes in her trio of girl detectives. "In the earliest books, the girls never wore pants, and now, of course, they wear jeans," says the woman who knows them best. "And Nancy is now 18, two years older than she was originally, so that she can drive in all 50 states."

But there are certain things about Nancy that will never change. Despite a half-century of going steady with Ned Nickerson, her football-star boyfriend, Nancy will never marry him. "Ned can't corner Nancy long enough to propose to her, and I don't intend to give him the chance," remarks Adams with a twinkle in her eye.

All in all, Harriet Adams considers Nancy to be almost like a daughter, and one who communicates an important set of values to her young readers. "I think Nancy is the best of the All-American girls," says Adams.

Nancy Drew then and now: Her clothes have changed but Nancy herself hasn't.

"She's alert and kind and she never acts superior. She's polite and nice to older people, and she always manages to get the truth out of the villain. Nancy is always helping people, yet she never asks for help herself."

These are the values Adams taught her own children when they were growing up. Now her family has expanded to include 10 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, and Adams spends many of her nonworking hours keeping in touch with them all. And when the author isn't attending to business or family, she is likely to be occupied by her other passion: collecting dolls. "I've been collecting dolls from the places I've traveled for nearly 50 years," she says proudly. "I haven't counted them lately, but I probably have 250 dolls in all and I'm still collecting."

So Harriet Adams and her most famous character do have quite a bit in common. Neither is willing to retire and rest on her laurels; after all, tomorrow might just bring a call to another exciting challenge. FW

If you're an honorably discharged veteran or widow(er) of the United States Armed Forces, then you're eligible for up to $40.00 a day, for each covered stay in a hospital plus . . .

- ☑ GUARANTEED ACCEPTANCE, NO MAXIMUM AGE LIMIT
- ☑ GROUP RATES
- ☑ CASH BENEFITS PAID DIRECT TO YOU
- ☑ TAX FREE CASH (ACCORDING TO IRS RULING)
- ☑ NO DEDUCTIBLES OR WAITING PERIODS
- ☑ FAMILY COVERAGE AVAILABLE
- ☑ FREE NCOA VET'S DIVISION MEMBERSHIP

John S. D. Eisenhower

Chairman of the Board
Academy Life Insurance Company
Brig. General USAR (Ret'd.)

Fellow Veteran,

Having spent most of my adult years in the Armed Forces, I've developed a deep concern for how our government and businesses treat the Veteran. That's why I'm proud to recommend the Veteran's Health Insurance Plan for Veterans and their families.

Hospital costs have skyrocketed; in fact they've more than doubled in the last seven years. And every year about half of all the families in America have at least one member hospitalized.

The Veteran's Health Insurance Plan can help. It was developed by the Academy Life Insurance Company and comes through the NCOA Veteran's Division. It pays you $40.00 every day from the very first day you or any covered adult member of your family is hospitalized. And it's cash direct to you regardless of other insurance benefits you may receive.

I urge you to take advantage of this opportunity now. Simply call our toll free telephone number or mail the coupon below to Academy Life. We'll rush to you a Free Fact Kit telling you more about this insurance coverage and how easy it is to enroll. Read it in the privacy of your own home and see for yourself why we encourage all Veterans to consider this protection for their families.

John Eisenhower

John S. D. Eisenhower
Brigadier General USAR (Ret'd.)

Only Honorably Discharged Veterans And Their Families are Eligible

The Veteran's Health Insurance Plan is a group hospital plan created exclusively for all Honorably Discharged Veterans regardless of rank, grade, length or branch of service. It comes from the Veteran's Division of the Non-Commissioned Officer's Association and is underwritten by the Academy Life Insurance Company of Valley Forge, Pennsylvania.

Additional Cash Benefits

Cash benefits will be paid to you in addition to any benefits you may receive from your company or union plan, Medicare, V.A. or even government plans. You're even paid for confinement in a V.A. or Government hospital.

Affordable Group Rates

The NCOA Vet's Divison, a non-profit organization, asked Academy Life to make available, exclusively to Veterans, economical group rates. This is a group insurance plan, so we can offer these rates because we enroll thousands of Vets at a time; and the savings are passed on to you. That's mighty nice in these inflationary times.

No Deductibles or Waiting Periods

Unlike some insurance plans, there's no deductible or waiting period. You're paid cash from the very first day of covered hospital confinement, up to 365 days per illness or injury. Your Free Fact Kit will explain more about your benefits as well as the pre-existing health limitations and exclusions.

Guaranteed Acceptance, No Age Limit

Because this is group coverage, you cannot be turned down, no matter how old you are, what your health is like or what your medical history is. There's not a single health or occupation question to answer now or ever. Limit one certificate per person. Benefits for folks over 65 are reduced 50% for the first three months while Medicare is covering most of the expenses.

Cash Benefits Paid Direct To You

All claim checks are made out in your name and sent to your address unless you tell us otherwise. And if you do have a claim, just call our toll free number. Our Veteran's Service Representatives will help you with your claim immediately.

QUIPS & QUOTES

ADULT CHILDREN

We speak of our children, and yet
They're children no longer now.
Our children have children themselves—
It's time that to time we bow.

Our children write now and then,
More often, it seems, it's then,
Or they phone when the rate is low,
Or we do, nine times out of ten.

Our children (not children) live
Not too close or too far away.
We visit them once in two months,
And that's about right, I'd say.
—Richard Armour

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Our 3-year-old son, Justus, was eating altogether too many pickled beets at dinner recently. I told him that if he kept on eating that many he would turn into a beet pickle. Justus stopped eating and was lost for a moment in contemplation of the pickles. "Dad," he asked uncertainly, pointing at the pickle dish, "were they all little boys, too."

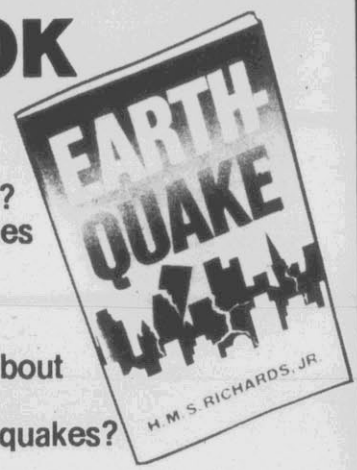
EARTH QUAKE!

FREE BOOK



- When will the next "killer" earthquake strike?
- What causes earthquakes?
- Where do most earthquakes happen?
- Can earthquakes be prevented?
- What does the Bible say about earthquakes?
- Can animals predict earthquakes?

In Earthquake H.M.S. Richards, Jr., discusses several of the world's most famous earthquakes and relates the latest scientific explanation for them. He also presents what the Bible has to say about earthquakes.

What are earthquakes anyway? Why does God allow such fearful convulsions to rack the earth? Is He punishing us for our wicked ways?

Did you know that Scripture predicts a coming earthquake that will make all the great earthquakes of the past seem tame by comparison? Author Richards explains when this earthquake will take place and what its results will be.

PLUS: This fascinating new book tells about...

- Volcanoes—Fountains of Fire!
- Tidal Waves—Killers from the Sea!
- How Continents were formed.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Respite Care

Older people and young children often rely tremendously on their families for care and companionship, and if a relative is ill or mentally retarded, the dependency on family becomes even stronger. The routine of providing health care while managing other commitments can put a real strain on family relationships; now, however, a number of health organizations are offering "respite care" programs to relieve family members from their continuous duties.

"Respite care's primary goal is to offer families relief from the strain of constantly caring for an invalid," says Bertine Loop, project director at the University of Nebraska's Center for the Development of Community Alternative Service. "Programs are designed to offer temporary, short-term care in or out of the home on a planned, as well as a crisis, basis. Families who are thinking about a vacation or simply want to get involved in outside activities can do so knowing that a trained person will be available to provide health care. We're finding that respite care is sometimes the factor that helps decide whether a child or elderly person gets institutionalized or not."

On The Fast Track

Bicycle-racing has been popular in Europe for years, but only recently has the sport attracted an audience in this country. Now a number of American competitors are leading their foreign counterparts on a chase through some of the most prestigious and grueling races around the globe — and coming out winners. In fact, the current Junior World Champion, Greg LeMond, hails from Reno, Nev.

LeMond, who's been a racing enthusiast since he first reached the pedals, is a member of the U.S. national team and is also one of the eight riders on the Olympic team. "Although we didn't compete in the summer games, we will be racing in European events throughout the summer," explains the 18-year-old cyclist. "Racing is the most competitive thing I can think of. I train seven days a week, riding about 500 miles, and I love it; the competition is super-exciting."

1979 M. Chritton

First over the finish line.

Weight Control

Approximately 40 percent of all Americans are overweight, and treating obesity is often a complex process. "People learn to eat in response to different cues in their environment, and each case requires individual handling," notes Dona Reese, a counselor at the Georgetown University Diet Management Clinic in Washington, D.C.

At the University's clinic, body image plays an important role in the treatment of obesity. "Many people overeat because eating is a pleasurable sensation that reduces anxiety, and fat helps a person avoid certain social situations," explains Reese. "Fat people often find that their size protects them from sexual stereotyping. For instance, a career woman may gain weight because unconsciously she knows she then won't be treated as a sex symbol. We have to help these people realize that they can be strong or weak, sexy or not without the protection that fat offers."

Wanted: Wastepaper

We all use paper in our daily lives, but few people know that nearly a quarter of the paper fiber used by the U.S. paper industry is made from recycled wastepaper. Now a number of businesses are making a profit by setting up office paper recycling programs to fill the demand for wastepaper. At the World Trade Center in New York City, the cost of setting up the program was more than offset by the money made from selling the paper and the savings on trash bills.

"Before an office sets up a recycling program, the amount of paper used, the number of employees and the quality of the paper should all be considered," recommends Sheila Millendorf, director of the Office Paper Recycling Service for the Council on the Environment of New York City. "But recycling is environmentally sound and often financially rewarding; many businesses will find it worth their while to look into it."

For more information about paper recycling, write for two free booklets put out by the Paper Recycling Committee of the American Paper Institute. Its address is Dept. FW, 260 Madison Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10016.

Lifestyles

Expectations. Nearly 75 percent of the college seniors in this country expect to achieve recognition in their chosen fields, according to a survey of the graduating class of 1979 by The Graduate magazine. And 58.7 percent of those questioned think they will be wealthy at some point in their lives.

Military. With women entering the armed forces in increasing numbers, officials are finding that the uniforms that have traditionally been issued aren't filling the needs of some new soldiers. In response to a growing demand, the Army Chief of Staff has finally approved a maternity uniform for pregnant soldiers; the Air Force already has one. As soon as an enlisted soldier has documented proof of her pregnancy, she can obtain two maternity uniforms free; officers will be required to purchase their uniforms, reports Exchange & Commissary News, a military publication.

Transportation. An American Automobile Association study has found that the driver of an intermediate-sized car spent an average of 21.44 cents per mile to own and operate it during the first quarter of 1980.

TIME LIFE BOOKS

The Old West

...brought to roaring life in a richly-bound, lavishly illustrated library that belongs in every American home.

Now, an extraordinary series from TIME-LIFE BOOKS brings to roaring life the adventures and struggles of all those dauntless men and women who opened and settled the West. In The Gunfighters—your introductory volume to THE OLD WEST—you'll experience what it was like to live within the range of the gunsights of the West's most dangerous gunslingers: outlaws like the James gang, who vacationed in Indian Territory between holdups ... the Daltons ... the Youngers ... Butch Cassidy—robbing, terrorizing and killing at will.

You'll feel the nasty thrill of meeting lawman Ben Thompson, one of the West's most ruthless gunmen, admired by Sheriff Bat Masterson as the best gunfighter of them all. You'll be charmed by some less celebrated gunslingers such as Dynamite Sam, Dark Alley Jim, Three-Fingered Dave and Six-Toed Pete ... as well as that notorious Bandit Queen of the Indian Territory, Belle Starr—organizer and fence for rustlers, horse thieves and bootleggers. You'll be there from ominous start to bloody finish at the O.K. Corral's classic shootout ... and watch in amazement the most unsuccessful double bank robbery ever staged: the Dalton Gang's debacle, ending in death and defeat.

After the exciting adventures on every page of The Gunfighters, you'll be looking forward to the rest of the books in the series. In The Cowboys, The Indians, The Soldiers, The Trailblazers, The Railroaders, The Expressmen, The Forty-Niners, The Pioneers, The Townsmen, The Texans, The Great Chiefs and other volumes, the superbly told story of THE OLD WEST continues—alive with paintings, early photographs, maps, newspaper clippings and posters, letters, diaries, journals.

Examine your introductory volume THE GUNFIGHTERS free for 10 days.

Read this important message from National Home

Dear Friend,

Your decision to purchase the additional protection of the National Home Health Plan could be the most critical one you make this weekend.

Like most Americans, you must be deeply concerned about how runaway costs affect you. The President has stated a startling fact, "Health-care costs are rising at $1 million an hour, 24 hours a day—doubling every five years."

Incredible? Yes. But the National Home Health Plan can help you cope with today's soaring costs of hospital care. It gives you extra protection when you need it most—plus the extra peace of mind of the Triple Guarantee.

Everyone is Guaranteed Acceptance (ages 16-63) and is eligible for hospital protection. Benefits for covered hospital stays that are mailed direct to you to help cover hospital bills, doctor fees, drugs, lab tests, etc.

Everyone is Guaranteed Lifetime Benefits. National Home will continue to pay you no matter how much you collect, how long you stay, how old you become or for any reason whatsoever.

Everyone is Guaranteed Rate Protection. Rates can only be raised on a classwide, statewide basis, not individually because of age, health, or the number of claims made.

I urge you to read this booklet and join over 2,000,000 Americans who have the security of National Home protection. It's a good feeling.

Sincerely,

Vance L. Clayton

Vance L. Clayton
Agent National Home Life Assurance Company
Charlotte, N.C.

P.S. After you've detached and mailed the application form, keep your booklet. It's an easy-to-read summary of your National Home Protection.

Safeguard yourself and your family with this valued protection:

- Cash payments mailed direct to you or anyone you choose. We do not send payments to your doctor or hospital unless you tell us to. This way, you and you alone decide how and when to spend your money.
- Payments under this plan are guaranteed. As soon as your application for this plan is recorded, you are immediately eligible to collect valuable payments for covered hospital stays.
- Payments regardless of any other plan you have. You collect payments in addition to any other company's plan, now or in the future. This includes Medicare and Workmen's Compensation.
- Payments when you need them most. The National Home Health Plan provides additional benefits to help pay for those extra expenses that often come when you're hospitalized: outside specialists, transfusions, special nurses, a private room, and more.

PLUS NATIONAL HOME'S TRIPLE GUARANTEE

1 Guaranteed Acceptance
2 Guaranteed Lifetime Benefits
3 Guaranteed Rate Protection

THE NATIONAL HOME HEALTH PLAN

PLAN A

You collect guaranteed cash benefits . . . up to

$1,500.00 A MONTH

PLAN A

$50.00 A DAY

From the very first day for any covered accident and after the third day for any covered illness—for as long as you stay!

LIFETIME PROTECTION

Guaranteed Benefits to Everyone Under 65
$1,500.00 A Month
$50.00 A Day

Benefits Direct to You

You collect $1,500.00 a month, $50.00 a day, when hospitalized. There are no time limits or maximum amounts that you can collect. These benefits will be paid to you for life, if necessary.

And you collect double benefits, $6,000.00 a month, $200.00 a day, while both insured husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time for an accident—starting the very first day.

Guaranteed Benefits When You Reach Age 65
$750.00 A Month
$25.00 A Day

Upon reaching age 65, you collect $750.00 a month $25.00 a day when you're hospitalized. After you've collected $1,500.00 for the first 60 days of continuous hospitalization, your National Home payments double to $1,500.00 a month $50.00 a day. And they continue for the rest of your hospital stay—for life if necessary.

Double benefits $3,000.00 a month, $100.00 a day while both insured husband and wife are 65 or over and hospitalized at the same time for an accident—starting from the very first day.

Guaranteed Additional Benefits for Everyone
$5,000.00 OR $2,500.00

Accidental Loss Benefits

You collect an additional $5,000.00 if you suffer complete loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes within 90 days of a covered accident—$2,500.00 for loss of one limb or the sight of one eye.

$600.00 A Month
$20.00 A Day

Nurse-at-Home Benefits

You collect $20.00 a day for every day a registered, licensed practical, or vocational nurse spends an eight-hour shift in your home. Nursing must be ordered by your doctor within five days of any covered hospitalization. These daily benefits begin the very first day and continue for as long as you collected hospital benefits—up to one full year!

Optional Benefits
$900.00 A Month
$30.00 A Day

Children's Benefits

You collect $30.00 a day if your child is hospitalized for an accident or illness when you add Coverage for Children. These benefits never run out—no matter how long your child is confined. One low premium protects all your children.

$50.00 A Day

Maternity Benefits

You collect $50.00 a day for maternity care in the hospital when Coverage for Children and Maternity benefits have been added to the basic plan. The mother must be insured for the entire pregnancy. Regardless, complications of pregnancy are covered like any other sickness.

You Are Not Covered For:

Losses due to any act of war, any mental disease or disorder, or the use of narcotics. Pregnancy, unless Optional Maternity Benefits are chosen. Certain confinements or care in facilities (such as nursing or convalescent) as defined in your policy. The first 3 days of hospitalization due to illnesses.

Pre-existing Conditions Are Not Covered For the First Year.

You may then continue your coverage at the monthly rates listed below.

But first, see which plan is best for you. The perfect plan is the one that best fits your needs—and your budget. That's important. So there are two plans for you to choose from.

Plan A pays you up to $50.00 a day ($1,500.00 a month) when you're hospitalized.

Plan B costs you less and pays you 60% of the benefits you receive in Plan A expect Nurse at Home and Accidental Dismemberment. These two benefits stay the same as Plan A.

Both plans, naturally, pay directly to you or anyone you choose for as long as you remain hospitalized. Even for life. After you've decided which plan best suits you and your family's needs, you might consider the two valuable Optional Benefits that National Home offers—Children's Coverage and Maternity.

We pay you 60% of the adult benefit when your child (0-18) is hospitalized. And just one premium covers all your children.

We pay you $50.00 a day for maternity care when you have added both Maternity and Children's Coverage to your choice of basic plans.

WHEN YOU REACH AGE 65 you collect 50% of the Daily Hospital Benefit in both plans for the first 60 days of hospitalization—100% thereafter.

Take a moment now and select the protection that's best for you, your family, and your budget.

See how little it costs!

It's so easy to be covered by our Triple Guarantee.

1. Select the plan that best suits your needs.
2. Fill out the form and return with 25¢ in the postage-free envelope.
3. If you would like to charge future premiums, see below.

National Home—the company that guarantees Lifetime Coverage.

As long as you pay your premiums, we guarantee not to cancel your protection or raise your rates individually no matter how many claims you make or how old you become. Your rates can only be changed if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of this series (NH38-376B) in your state. You may have coverage under only one National Home Policy of this type.

And Now You Can Charge It!

By charging your monthly premiums, your protection will always be paid by Visa or MasterCard on time—automatically! You won't have to worry about missing a premium due date, and your monthly charge statement will be a permanent record of your protection. Of course, you can still pay directly to the company, by check or money order if you prefer.

The choice is yours. Either way, you'll enjoy the additional security of the Hospital Plan that pays benefits direct to you!

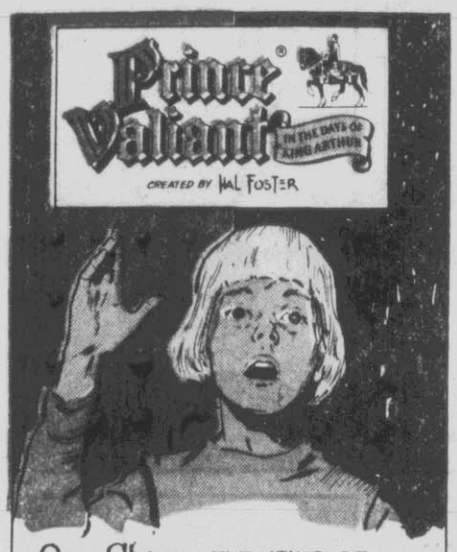
CREATED BY HAL FOSTER



Our Story: THE NEWS OF KING ARTHUR'S DEATH WILL BE THE SIGNAL FOR MORDRED AND HIS HENCHMEN TO BEGIN THEIR SLAUGHTER. A PAGE THROWS OPEN THE DOOR.

"THE KING!" HE SHOUTS IN FRIGHT AS MORDRED'S NOBLE THUGS GRIP THEIR HILTS. "THE KING IS GONE BERSERK." MORDRED RELAXES. "THE THINGS THESE POISONS DO," HE SMILES. "HOW PLEASANT. THE DEATH SCENE SHOULD BE QUITE CONVINCING."

BUT NOW HE PRICKS HIS EARS. "OUT OF MY WAY," RUMBLES A FAMILIAR VOICE. "IT IS MY CROWN. I MAY GIVE IT TO WHOM I PLEASE." ARTHUR STRIDES INTO THE HALL, EVERY INCH A MADMAN. HE TURNS HIS GAZE ON MORDRED.

"MY LORD IS NOT WELL," MORDRED MUMBLES NERVOUSLY. "FIT AS A FIDDLE," ARTHUR LEERS. "BUT YOU LOOK A LITTLE PALE, BROTHER. HERE, MY MEDICINE WILL DO YOU GOOD. DRINK IT, AND MY CROWN IS YOURS."

THE KING KNOWS! HE DID NOT TAKE THE POISON AFTER ALL. MORDRED'S FACE TWITCHES IN FEAR. "SIRE, HAVE MERCY..."

GOOD NIGHT, MR. DITHERS

GOOD NIGHT, DAGWOOD... HAVE A NICE WEEKEND

I'M HUNGRY TONIGHT.. WONDER WHAT BLONDIE'S HAVING FOR DINNER?

I'M SO MAD AT DAGWOOD.. HE'S NOT HOME YET AND THE DINNER WILL BE RUINED

OVER TWO HOURS.. CHEE!

YOU'D THINK HE'D AT LEAST PHONE

NOT A WORD FROM HIM! BELIEVE ME, HE'S GOING TO HEAR ABOUT THIS!

WE'RE SORRY, MR. BUMSTEAD

I SUPPOSE YOU'LL HAVE SOME WILD STORY LIKE BEING STUCK IN AN ELEVATOR
