

President's Account Does Not End Case

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's extraordinary defense of his handling of brother Billy's Libyan connection doesn't close the case that has rocked his presidency and his party in the final days of his race for nomination to a second term.

The president's own account Monday night to the public and to the Senate subcommittee investigating the affair acknowledged that it is "not definitive or final." Members of the panel indicated they would withhold judgment until their probe is complete.

And in the highly charged atmosphere of an election campaign, Carter's opponents could hardly be expected to let the matter rest.

But in his 99-page report and the hour-long nationally broadcast news conference that followed, the president insisted that although he may have made some mistakes in getting information about the case out in the open, none of his actions in dealing with Billy and the Libyans was illegal or improper.

The president said — and excerpts from his personal diary confirm — that he tried repeatedly, if unsuccessfully, to dissuade his headstrong brother from making a return trip to Libya last year.

"I'm not trying to make excuses," the older brother said. "But anyone who knows Billy knows that no one can push him around."

The president defended using Billy to get to the Libyan government in the early days of the Iranian hostage crisis and said the mission was at least partly successful in obtaining the support of the radical Islamic regime for U.S. efforts to free the American captives. He conceded, however, that "it may have been bad judgment" to have "enhanced Billy's stature in the minds of the Libyans."

In his statement, Carter reiterated: "I can state categorically that my brother Billy has had no influence on my decisions or on any U.S. government policy or action concerning Libya. I can also state that Billy has never asked me to take any step that would affect any of these actions or policies."

The president also made these sweeping points:

— He never tried to influence the Justice Department investigation of Billy Carter.

— He did not learn until it was made public last month that the Libyan government had paid his brother $220,000.

— He never received any of Billy Carter's Libyan money.

Initial reaction to Carter's explanation was cautious.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the special Senate subcommittee, declined comment, but his vice chairman, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "We have heard the president's side of the matter; now we will hear the witnesses and maybe hear the other side."

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., a panel member, said the president did well but cautioned: "I think the judgment won't be made absolutely this evening, because it is up to the committee to sift the facts."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., perhaps the president's sharpest critic on the committee, said there still is "a lot to explore." He expressed particular interest in a conversation between Carter and Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti in which Civiletti told the president that Billy Carter would not be prosecuted if he registered as a Libyan agent.

Carter acknowledged he made a "highly technical" mistake when Civiletti and the White House denied the two men had discussed the Billy Carter matter before a thorough record search revealed they had. But the president insisted nothing in the brief conversation was improper or could be considered an attempt to influence the Justice Department investigation.

Included in the report was the note Carter wrote after the June 17 meeting recounting that Civiletti had told him "Billy ought to acknowledge" that he was an agent for Libya and "there would be no punishment for him."

Billy himself, who watched the televised news conference at an Americus, Ga., motel, said his brother told the truth.

"I won't go so far as to say I enjoyed it," Billy Carter said. "But it was a good news conference."

Non-Fatal Mishap

TRAIN COLLIDES WITH CAR — Members of the Winterville Rescue Squad give first-aid to the driver of a car that collided with a train in Winterville Monday shortly before noon. According to investigating trooper H. L. Cox, a car driven by Dorothy Smith Gardner, 528 Mills St., was headed east on W. Cooper St. when it pulled into the path of a northbound Seaboard Coastline engine and caboose. Cox said the engine's left front struck the right front of the Gardner vehicle causing minor damage to the engine and heavy damage to the auto. The engineer of the train was identified as W. R. Hodges, of Elm City. Trooper Cox said Mrs. Gardner was charged with failure to yield the right of way for a train. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Longer Kindergarten Day Rejected By School Bd.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A recommendation by Superintendent Glenn Cox to lengthen the kindergarten day in Greenville City Schools from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., with an option for parents who so desired to pick up their children at 1:30, was defeated at the information meeting of the Greenville City School Board Monday night. (This and other items had been publicly listed for action at the information meeting.)

The recommendation had been tabled from the July action meeting to give board members more time to consider the recommendation, and to give an opportunity for the public to express their opinions.

Chairman Mrs. Nancy Middleton cast the decisive tie break vote. Members voting in favor of the recommendation were Mrs. Lena Brown, Donovan Phillips, and Ernest Brown. Members voting against the recommendation, in addition to Mrs. Middleton, were Jerry Smith, Jack Wall and Dr. Jon Tingelstad. Two members, Mrs. Terry Shank and Mrs. Sue Zadeits, were absent.

In a lengthy discussion by board members and by interested persons at the meeting, principal expressions for and against the recommendation were:

— For — The extra hour would give kindergarten teachers an opportunity to schedule additional programs, particularly in remedial work for some students; the extra hour would cut down on the time students had to spend at home not supervised in the case of poorer families where both parents worked; and making the school day for kindergarten students the same length as that of elementary grades would result in a considerable savings in transportation costs.

— Against — The attention span of children of this age is short, and it is felt that the 1:30 ending hour constitutes a school day adequate to provide a good educational experience; the extra hour would in principal amount to a baby sitting service; there would be concern about a program in which some students received an additional hour of schooling that those taken out early would miss; the longer day could create a feeling of dislike for school for children of kindergarten age; and the amount saved in transportation costs is insignificant in comparison with the needs of students.

Two principals, Dr. Gene Piner and Clarence Gray, speaking in support of the extended day, noted that in the past buses to transport children home from kindergarten have been habitually late — from 15 to 30 minutes in many instances — and that the added hour should help eliminate this problem. Also, Cox commented that kindergarten teachers are paid from taxpayer's money by the day and that they are paid a full day whatever the ending hour might be.

In response to a question on the length of kindergarten hours for most schools in the state, Cox said he had no exact figures, but that probably half of the schools in the state observed a short kindergarten day, and the other half a longer day — the decision is made by school boards for each school system.

Commissioners To Meet With Hospital Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday agreed to meet with members of the board of trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital before giving approval to the medical facility's budget for the coming year.

A story in yesterday's edition of "The Daily Reflector" reported the commissioners gave approval to the proposed $38 million budget. The news article should have said the board failed to give approval to the hospital budget.

Hospital director Jack Richardson, in outlining the proposed budget, said 52.7 percent of the facility's proposed operating budget for the coming year — some $20.4 million — would go toward salaries, while $1.9 million in capital improvement funds proposed for the fiscal year would be used primarily for enlarging laboratory, medical records and cafeteria facilities.

The meeting with hospital officials was scheduled for August 18.

In other business yesterday, commissioners named Alice Keene as chairman of the Pitt County Governor's Involvement Council, replacing Chet Emerson, who resigned the chairmanship post, but will continue as a member of the council.

The board also added seven persons to the Pitt County Juvenile Task Force.

The new appointees include: David Leech, Eunice Clemmons, Mrs. John Ball, Ken Hammond, J. R. Payton, Mrs. Carrie G. Oakley, and Redding B. Elks.

Ann Harrison is chairman of the task force.

Says Tenants Moving In University Towers

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

University Towers, the new 60-unit mid-rise complex for the elderly here, is now "in management," according to Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority.

Laney reported at Monday night's meeting that tenants have begun occupying the new units, located off E. Third Street, and as of yesterday, 30 of the 60 apartments in the complex had been leased. He said that 21 white tenants and nine black residents have been accepted so far for occupancy.

The executive director noted that the Greenville Jaycees have offered to help move elderly citizens to University Towers who have no way of moving or are without funds to pay for moving expenses.

Landscaping work continues at the mid-rise, he reported, and an open house will be planned later. Laney told the commissioners that the Authority has a "good start-up budget" for University Towers and everything appears to be in "good shape."

Construction loan papers were closed Friday, he said, ending several weeks of hectic activity involving inspections, finishing final construction touches and paperwork.

University Towers, designed and built for senior citizens of low and moderate income, was built under the

Bids Opened On Swift Creek Restoration Job

Bids for phase III A of the restoration of Swift Creek were opened today at 11 a.m. The contract will be awarded at a later date to the low bidder.

The watershed project is being sponsored by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Pitt County Drainage Districts No. Three and Seven, and Pitt-Beaufort-Craven Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Pitt Drainage District No. Three is the local contracting organization.

The project will restore Clayroot from the Craven County line to road 1755, and Indian Wells from the intersection of Clayroot to road 1700. Work will include clearing, snagging, and a dipout. The creek will be restored as nearly as possible to its 1930 dimensions.

The creek, when restored, will provide improved main drainage for the communities of Gardnersville, Stokestown, Calico and Shelmerdine, and all surrounding farm areas. The project, according to District Soil Conservationist Albert Coffey, has two main purposes, flood prevention and agricultural water management.

The entire project has four phases, the first of which was restoration of Swift Creek and Fork Swamp Main. This phase was completed last fall.

At A Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here, at a glance, are highlights from President Carter's news conference Monday night at which the major topic was the relationship between his brother Billy and the Libyan government.

White House Probe

"We have made as thorough an investigation as possible, and the facts are available for the committees of Congress and for the public to examine. They will show that neither I nor any member of my administration has violated any law or committed any impropriety," Carter said.

U.S. Policy Toward Libya

"There are few governments in the world with which we have more sharp and frequent policy disagreements ... On the other hand we have substantial trade with Libya. Libya is one of our major oil suppliers ... so for many years, our policies and actions toward Libya have (been) mixed firmly with caution."

Billy's Personality

"Billy has a colorful personality. We are personally close. I love him and he loves me. Billy is extremely independent ... When I was elected president, Billy was thrust into the public limelight. Media attention made him an instant celebrity." (Please turn to Page 8)

WINDOW SHADE IMPASSE

I ordered some custom window shades from Carpets By George and had Mrs. Powell measure my windows. I paid half the price, $48.40 in advance. When the shades came, I accepted them and paid the other $48.40. My nephew tried to hang them for me and they did not seem to fit. So Mrs. Powell came out and hung them again. They still did not fit. You could see daylight on either side. I told Mrs. Powell I could not accept them and wanted my money back. She wrote me a refund check, but stopped payment the next morning. I feel her measurements were incorrect and she should give me the refund. Mrs. S. C.

Hotline talked to Lynn Powell who said that she did, indeed, stop payment on the check, since she learned on going back to the store that she should not have given you the refund, that the policy of the store, "no refunds on custom orders," is stated during every custom order transaction. She says that she went on her own time to hang your shades for you, not charging for this service, since you and your nephew had not been able to hang them satisfactorily yourselves. She says that, in her opinion, the shades did fit perfectly. On shades hung inside the window frame as these were, there has to be some space between window frame and shade to allow for the ends to fit into the bracket and for the shade to go up and down without friction.

SWIFT CREEK RESTORATION . . . Bids for the restoration of Swift Creek, phase III A were opened today at 11 a.m. The creek will be cleared, snagged and dipped out and restored as nearly as possible to its 1930 dimensions. Log jams such as the one above have contributed most heavily to the problems with the creek, according to District Soil Conservationist Albert Coffey. The restoration project will remove these logs and improve drainage in the communities of Gardnersville, Stokestown, Calico and Shelmerdine. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Debris Of 1861?

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The salvage expert who wrote "Raise the Titanic" says a large cluster of underwater junk he found in the Elizabeth River must contain remnants of the Confederate ironclad Merrimack.

Clive Cussler also said Monday there's a "90 percent chance" the wooden wreck his divers found in the James River off Newport News is the Florida, the Southern scourge of Union merchant ships.

The Merrimack, renamed the Virginia when the Confederates won the ship from the Union, was run aground in 1861 and scuttled when Northern troops took over the naval shipyard.

A German diver raised the Merrimack's hull in 1876, Cussler said, but there should be plenty of debris left.

Cussler, whose eyes light up at the mention of any major wrecked ship yet unfound, take on a special glow about the Merrimack. Because "the North wrote the history books," Cussler said, the Merrimack's most famous Union foe, the Monitor, has gotten most of the attention.

"The Merrimack sank three ships. The Monitor never sank a thing," the Denver resident said.

Sylvia Won't Trade On Irving's Fame On the Go

By CAROL DEEGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — Sylvia Wallace, the wife of well-known author Irving Wallace, is attaining her own success as a novelist but, she says, "there's no competition and I don't aspire to his recognition, I aspire to my own."

SYLVIA WALLACE

Irving Wallace is the author of more than 20 fiction and nonfiction books. He has an estimated worldwide readership of more than 600 million and has sold more than 120 million copies of his books.

Sylvia Wallace, who has worked as a journalist since the age of 19, recently completed her second novel, "Empress." It is the story of how a young American film star, through marriage and circumstance, becomes the powerful empress of an Arabian nation. Her first novel, "The Fountains," was published in 1976.

After years of working as her husband's research aide and editor, Mrs. Wallace, a petite blonde in her 50s, is happy that she has been able to establish her own identity as a novelist.

"What's happened to me since I stepped out on my own is that I feel a lot better about myself," she said.

However, comparisons between herself and her husband are almost inevitable.

"I am still the wife of a famous author," she said. "I had a review that said I was their daughter, Amy, in 1955, however, she found it too difficult to work full time outside the home. So she quit her job and went to work as her husband's research aide and editor.

The entire Wallace family, all writers, works in offices in one wing of a 17-room, country-style house in the Brentwood section of Los Angeles.

David is the author of several books, including the best-selling, "What Really Happened to the Class of '65." Amy collaborated with her father on a biography of Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, titled "The Two." The Wallace family has also put together "The People's Almanac," "The People's Almanac No. 2," "The Book of Lists" and "The Book of Lists No. 2."

Sylvia and Irving have separate agents. Irving does not read Sylvia's work while it is in progress.

"With my late debut as a novelist, I wanted to show that I could do everything myself," she said. "So, no, he has not criticized my work. He's not even been privileged to see it because I won't lean on anyone, which is foolish, but I feel that way very strongly because he's so successful."

And how does it feel to be a successful author herself?

"It feels a lot better than being an unsuccessful author," she said with a smile.

If your family enjoys turkey cooked on an outdoor grill, try these suggestions to give the turkey some added distinction. For a hickory-smoked flavor, sprinkle a half cup of dampened hickory chips over the coals during the last half hour of cooking. Or, for a bit of flair, brush the turkey with a favorite barbecue sauce the last half hour of cooking. This will give the turkey added flavor and gloss.

trying to match Irving scene for scene and that was offensive because you can't be anything but yourself. Whatever you set out to be, you're going to be yourself, and there's no use trying to imitate anyone else."

When her son went off to college and her daughter went to boarding school, Mrs. Wallace found herself in a dilemma about what to do with her life.

"I'd always been awed by books," she said. "They seemed like impossible undertakings. But suddenly there was so much to say about women's changing roles, and I wanted to say it in a novel."

A year and half after it was begun, Sylvia Wallace's first novel, "The Fountains," was completed. It has been translated into 12 languages and the movie rights have been acquired by Warner Brothers. The first printing of her second novel, "Empress," was 50,000, and the book was picked as a Doubleday Book Club Alternate Selection.

How does it feel to launch another career in mid-life? "It's great and I hope everyone knows that you don't have to pull the pillows over your head and say, 'Heh, you're finished, the kids are raised,' and then work your way into a sanitarium," she said.

The Wallaces were married in 1941. They met when Sylvia arrived in Hollywood to work as an editor for Dell Publishing Co. Their son, David Wallechinsky, was born in 1948. Mrs. Wallace did freelance writing, then returned to full-time editorial work at "Photoplay" magazine in 1954. After the birth of

79-Year-Old Reader Scolds Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am 79 years young, and as an avid reader of your column I was sadly disappointed in your response to the gentleman from Minneapolis who requested your definition of "old age." You replied: "To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder. But I would say that you reached it when:

- "You need your glasses to find your glasses."
- "You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for."
- "People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking."
- "You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart."
- "You think today's policemen look like kids."
- Your characterization of older people as sightless, absent-minded, ugly and sexless is unworthy of the usual thoughtful insights your readers expect of you.
- President Eisenhower once said, "I'm saving that rocker for the day I feel as old as I really am."
- I know that he would consider the following more apropos of old age than your reply: "There is only one thing that old age can give you, and that is wisdom." — S.I. Hayakawa
- "Old age is ready to undertake tasks that youth shirks because they would take too long." — Somerset Maugham
- "As soon as a man acquires fairly good sense, it is said that he is an old fogey." — Ed Howe
- I'm told that President Eisenhower never used that rocking chair. With kindest regards,

CLAUDE PEPPER, FLORIDA, CHAIRMAN, U.S. HOUSE COMMITTEE ON AGING

DEAR REP. PEPPER: I beg your forgiveness, and the forgiveness of all others whom I may have offended.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a girl, just turned 15. I am allowed to date guys who drive regular cars, but my father won't let me go out with a guy who drives a van. I think that's dumb, but as long as I am living under his roof I have to do what he says and keep my mouth shut, right?

My next question is this: When a guy calls up and asks me to go out with him, is it OK if I ask him what I should wear, or isn't that considered cool?

In response to your first question: Right.
And when a guy asks you for a date, it's not only "cool," it's smart to ask him what he has in mind. You wouldn't dress the same for a movie date as you would for a basketball game.

DEAR ABBY: I am a pushover for young people. Four young employees who work with me have borrowed money from me for "personal emergencies." The smallest amount was $300. Not one of those who owes me has ever mentioned the debt, or made any effort to repay even a part of it. One debt is three years old. (By the way, I didn't ask for any interest on my money, nor did I ask anyone to sign a note.)

All four co-workers are very friendly to me, and none seems embarrassed about his non-payment. I am far from wealthy and could use the cash myself, as I shall be retiring soon. How shall I handle this?

TIMID

DEAR TIMID: Try this: "Look, my young friend, you have owed me $_____ for _____ months. I've said nothing, hoping you would recognize the importance of keeping your credit good. You will hurt yourself in the future more than you hurt me now if you don't face up to the responsibility of paying your honest debts, so how about it? (P.S. By Erma Bombeck

"We should spend more time with the children," I told my husband the other day. "In a few years they'll be gone and we'll rattle around in this empty house wishing we had taken the time to sit down and find out how they felt about things ... their hopes ... their ambitions ... what are you smiling about?"

"I'm still back at the part on rattling around in the house. Do you know I shaved the other morning without steam on the mirror and nearly scared myself to death?"

"Children need the companionship of an adult," I continued. "That very special relationship in the formative years where you listen to one another, advise, assess, mold values, exchange ideas and points of view. We don't even know how they feel about life."

"Get on with it. What are you suggesting?"

"You should take your son fishing and I'll have the weekend here alone with our daughter. That way it's a one-on-one situation where we really get into the meaningful stuff."

Last week, as I watched father and son load up all the gear into the four-wheel drive, a lump came into my throat.

When they left the driveway, I called to my daughter. "Whatya want? I'm on the phone."

She was on the phone for more than five hours.

As she was showering, I fell to my knees and yelled under the door, "Do you want to talk about anything?"

"Yes," she yelled back. "Do you have a clean pair of panties?"

Later, as she tore out the front door, I tugged at her sleeve and asked, "You want to tell me how you feel about life?"

"I'm for it," she said simply, pecking me on the cheek.

The next morning, she slept until noon and at lunch she wore a pair of headphones and a blank expression to the table. I was relieved when my husband and son pulled into the driveway. "How did you make out?" I asked.

He smiled triumphantly. "If I do say so myself, it was one of my better performances. I talked about values in this life and how sometimes it was hard not to become tainted by what is going on in the world around us, but we are a family and if we stick together, there isn't anything we can't do. I talked about aims and goals in life and how you had to be patient and sometimes compromise and you know ... all the brilliant things a kid will remember his father saying for the rest of his life."

"What did he say?" I asked excitedly.

"Nothing. He slept all the way up and back."

Pat's Pointers

'Tis the time of year when needlecrafters' thoughts turn to making Christmas ornaments, decorations and gifts. These last lazy days of summer are ideal for increasing your needlepoint skills by making these "Learn-a-Stitch" ornaments, designed to be made on 10-mesh plastic canvas which needs no blocking and does not pull out of shape.

Even one of the ornaments will be an eye-catcher on your tree while a dozen or more will make a spectacular display. Or send them instead of cards for a special "I'm thinking of you" Christmas message.

To obtain directions for making all twelve ornaments, send your request for Leaflet No. MC-827 with $1.00 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order the Christmas Ornament Kit No. K-827, containing instructions, plastic canvas, red, white and green Persian yarn and needle by sending check or money order for $14.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Materials are sufficient for making 12 ornaments and shipping charges are included in the kit price. All designs are worked from charts.

DEAR PAT: I recently overheard two women discussing needlepoint yarns and one said that she never used anything but Persian yarn while the other said she preferred tapestry yarn.

I am a self-taught needlepointer and have just worked two kits. After hearing this conversation, I am now wondering which type of yarn I used and what is best. Can you devote a column to this subject? — NAN W., Lincoln, Neb.

DEAR NAN: Many expert needlepointers use a wide variety of yarns and threads, varying them to get the desired textures. Generally speaking, however, the two types you mentioned are the most widely used.

Tapestry wool usually has four plies of yarn tightly twisted together. Persian yarn usually has three plies very loosely twisted. The big advantage to Persian-type yarn is that you can easily use any number of plies (or strands) in any given situation.

As you probably know, needlepoint canvas comes in many sizes identified by the number of meshes to the inch. A mesh is the intersection of one vertical and one horizontal thread over which a single stitch is taken. On a ten-mesh canvas then, you will take ten stitches to the inch.

Tapestry yarn may work beautifully with tent stitches on 12 or 14 mesh canvas, but might be too thick for 16 mesh and too thin for ten mesh.

If you are using Persian yarn, you can separate the strands and use one or two strands for the finer canvas and four or more for the coarser canvas.

The type of stitch you use can also determine the number of strands used. Straight Bargello or Gobelin stitches usually require more strands for good coverage than are needed for the small slanting tent stitches. Some raised stitches such as Smyrna Stitch take fewer strands for good texture.

It is always a good idea to take a few practice stitches in the margin of your canvas to see that the coverage is good and that the effect is what you desire. The yarn should be thin enough so that the stitches lay smoothly side by side without being crowded and so that the yarn passes easily through the holes in the canvas. It should be thick enough, however, to cover the canvas completely.

There are a couple of pointers I should give you about working with Persian yarns. Even if you will be using all three strands, you should first separate them and then place them together again. This is known as "stripping" the yarn. If you do not strip it, the yarn will twist too much, causing uneven stitches.

Your needle should be gauged to the canvas and yarn you are using, also. Select the smallest size needle which can easily be threaded with the yarn you are using. A needle which is too large for the canvas can cause you to force the needle through the canvas, resulting in jerky motions which destroy an even tension.

French Soups Of Peasant Origin

By TOM HOGE

AP Wine and Food Writer
The great dishes of most nations are of peasant origin, and French restaurateur Jean Paul Picot tells me this is true of the soups of his homeland.

"I remember as a child seeing a huge pot of soup bubbling on the back of the stove in French farmhouses," Picot recalled as we sat in his cozy New York bistro, la bonne soupe. "After each meal they'd toss leftover vegetables into the pot and add some water."

This was doubtless the origin of that French classic, soupe au pistou, a provincial vegetable soup which has been elevated to gourmet status.

"The French farmer pours a little wine into his bowl of soup just before eating," added Picot. "It does wonders for the flavor. This is called chabro and is especially popular in the vineyard country of southern France."

French country folk usually eat soup and little else for supper since the main meal is at noon. An exception is that garlicky cornucopia of Mediterranean fish called bouillabaisse which is really a stew and a meal in itself.

Not all French soups come from peasant homes. Lobster bisque is certainly a rarity in cottage kitchens, but I recall hearing that vichyssoise, which is regarded as epicurean in America, is derived from the humble leek and potato soup so popular in rural France.

Picot serves full-course meals at his place but he has always leaned strongly to soups and likes to point out the difference between those of France and the United States. "One key difference," he said, "is the fact that the French go in more for purees like cream of watercress, sorrell or spinach."

It's also a fact that soups of France's provinces are based more on vegetables than on meats or even meat stocks, like America's. An exception is French onion soup.

Picot likes most American soups.

"That's probably because of their broad European background," he said. "Most of the notable American soups came from France, Italy, Germany and Russia."

"My favorite soup is actually Russian borscht, but a close second is French onion soup, and here's my recipe," Picot said.

- 3 cups white wine
- 2 quarts beef bouillon
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 bay leaf
- Salt
- Pepper
- 2 cups croutons
- 1 cup Gruyere cheese, grated

Saute onions in fat till brown and add wine, simmering till most of the liquid has evaporated. Add beef bouillon, garlic and bay leaf, plus salt and pepper to taste. Cook about 1 hour over low heat. Pour soup into crocks, put croutons on top and cover with grated Gruyere. Place under broiler till cheese melts. Serves 6-8. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Travel Along with

To protect their own manufacturers and industries, governments sometimes place duties on competitive goods imported from other countries. However, in some instances, usually to stimulate the tourist business, these duties are lifted and local taxes are suspended. Prices of highly desirable goods then drop sharply, so that a camera, for example, costing $300 in New York might be available in "free" Shannon, Ireland, for $150 or less. Of course, the very best bargains are on duty free goods in the country where they are made. Irish lace and glassware, for example, are much less expensive in Shannon. Proper Hand Washing Urged

NEW YORK (AP) — Many infections originate in the home, Texas nurse epidemiologist Charlene S. Hardy told the Second World Congress on Antisepsis.

Speaking at the conference on infection and infection control, she said that a number of family illnesses are transmitted by food eaten without proper cleaning and adequate cooking, or by contaminated food or water.

She described research conducted at the University of Massachusetts, where the presence of high counts of gram negative organisms on the hands of food handlers was demonstrated after they had contact with raw hamburger, meat and poultry.

Ms. Hardy said that ordinary soaps do not destroy bacteria and recommended that an antibacterial skin cleanser be used instead. She also advised disinfection of external surfaces in food preparation areas, such as the cutting board and counter tops.

Ms. Hardy is nurse epidemiologist at Audie L. Murphy Memorial Hospital in San Antonio, Texas.

A Long, Tough Climb

A staggering $1.5 billion loss by major U.S. auto makers during the second quarter not only set a record for the industry, it suggests the kind of vulnerability even the nation's largest companies have to sharp slides in the economy.

No one is suggesting that General Motors or Ford or American Motors is on the verge of collapse. Chrysler, with its $536.1 loss for the quarter, is another matter notwithstanding assertions to the contrary by company and government officials. But the second quarter figures for this major segment of the nation's economy give an indication of the toll being taken in the early stages of the current recession.

There are signs, government officials say, that the recession already is bottoming out much sooner than they expected even a month ago. But there is little to indicate that the automotive industry will come roaring back in the remaining two quarters of the year to overcome the first half losses with second half profits. Even with the model change that normally stimulates second half sales, there are few even in the industry who are predicting sales figures equal to or above those of a year ago. And they were far from what many had hoped.

The auto industry in this nation is geared to high volume sales. Presently it is structured to the manufacture of vehicles considerably larger than those in greatest demand today even in the American market. Moreover, the pay rate for workers in the U.S. auto industry is roughly twice that of the average industrial worker in the United States. The cost of engineering and re-tooling to produce a different kind of vehicle consumes inordinate amounts of both time and money. On top of those factors there are increasing layers of government regulations which must be contended with.

It is hardly realistic to expect the nation's auto industry to bounce out of its present slump nearly as quickly as it slipped into it. At best it will be a long, tough climb.

Truman Had Fantasies, Too

Old "Give-em-hell" Harry Truman was not a man to stand still in a crisis, and it is not difficult to imagine him drafting plans for an ultimatum to the Soviet Union and China during the Korean conflict.

The plans, of course, never saw the light until now, and apparently weren't even discussed with the late president's closest advisors.

Truman's personal notes suggested an ultimatum with a 10-day expiration limit. It would call for a blockade of the China coast and the destruction of all military bases in Manchuria. It suggested the ultimate destruction of major Soviet and Chinese cities.

Nothing like that was ever done, of course, or even suggested to any of the president's closest advisors, and we can only suppose we are looking in on the fantasies of the man who bore presidential burdens during a frustrating war.

THIS AFTERNOON

Our Toxic Wastes

By BILL NOBLITT
(First of Two Articles)
RALEIGH — Until now, about all state officials could say about hazardous wastes in North Carolina is that there is, indeed, a toxic nightmare out there just waiting to become a living disaster.

Best estimates are that the state is generating more than 120 million gallons of hazardous wastes each year; enough to form good-sized streams across the landscape. What kind, where, and how much have been questions answered with frowns.

Beginning now, the first critical step in eventually gaining control over the potential terror is being taken. Under federal law, a "cradle to the grave" tracking system is being put into operation which, for the first time, will provide specialists with the basic information they need before a workable system can be designed to dispose of the stuff.

Burning the best hope now in sight is incineration, and North Carolina is at least a step ahead of others on that approach, with the state government and Research Triangle Institute already working cooperatively on a viable way to burn both hazardous chemicals and other industrial or research waste, and low-level radioactive nuclear materials.

But numerous questions remain: how much of what kinds of waste are in the state, and what incinerating method would be most serviceable? Where is most of the various waste located so that systems can be devised for hauling it and burning it?

BILL NOBLITT

What about final disposal of wastes which can't be burned, and of the ashes?

The inventory of hazardous wastes which will soon be in hand will provide the foundation for what Gov. Jim Hunt considers "one of this administration's most important initiatives...developing a comprehensive plan for safely managing and disposing of hazardous and low-level radioactive wastes generated in North Carolina."

Hunt considers waste disposal "One of the big issues of our lifetime...one which affects the future — one which determines if we have a future on this planet," and essential to "continued economie well-being, and to protect the health and safety of ourselves, our children, and our children's children."

Some might say that is overblown rhetoric until they realize that North Carolina is the nation's 11th largest generator of hazardous wastes in the nation; and one of the biggest in the Southeast. Waste from nuclear power plants is only a small part of this byproduct of industry and research.

To the editor:

Kay and Thomas Parrish's letter (July 25) in the Public Forum assumes a great deal. First, it assumes that senators who, for whatever reason, chose not to vote on a bill which would require draft registration of 19- and 20-year-old women are ultra-liberal. They put that label on Senator Morgan for his abstaining from that vote. I don't know for sure how I would have voted. In a tv interview on July 24, one of Mr. Reagan's daughters indicated that she favors registration of women. Does that make her ultra-liberal?

Some folks think, perhaps, that the woman's place in the home, pregnant, barefoot and rocking a cradle. That may be the place for some women. Some others are in West Point, etc., by their own choice. If "women's lib" means that women should be free and should be treated equally, that sounds acceptable to me. For certain, there are many jobs which women had better be willing and trained to fill if we ever engage in all-out war.

If we're serious about a potent defense status, we had better overcome any squeamishness as to whose blood gets spilled filling a role in the military services.

To the editor:

On Aug. 6, rules relating to the management of hazardous waste will be considered by adoption by the Commission for Health Services of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources. The proposed rules were discussed at a public hearing in Greenville on July 10. North Carolina proposes to follow federal guidelines established in 1976.

Under the proposed rules, hazardous wastes are defined and placed in one of three categories: ignitable, corrosive or reactive. Standards for treatment, storage and disposal facilities are provided. The responsibilities of individuals, industries or other entities which produce, use, transport or dispose of hazardous wastes are established.

Perhaps of most immediate value to the public at present and in the future is the proposed establishment of a Manifest System, which will provide for an accounting of hazardous wastes from source to disposal. While encouraging resource recovery and recycling as a long-range goal, the natural resources position of the League of Women Voters supports efforts of this kind for the management of hazardous wastes.

Others who are concerned about preventing future Love Canal and PCB events should communicate their support for the rules to: O. W. Strickland, Solid and Hazardous Waste Management Branch, North Carolina Department of Human Resources, Raleigh, N. C. 27602 (telephone—919-733-2178).

Two Sides To 55-MPH

WASHINGTON — In their platform plank on rural transportation, the Republicans at Detroit recently called for an end to the national speed limit of 55 miles per hour. The recommendation set off a Pavlovian response among my brethren of the editorial page. Didn't these benighted Republicans understand that they were advocating a waste of gasoline and new carnage on the highways?

Well, most stories have two sides, and this is one of them. Since the 55-mile limit was imposed in January 1974, the government has spoon-fed us with one side only. We have been regaled with press releases telling us that both gasoline consumption and highway deaths have gone down. Various estimates place fuel savings attributable to the lower limit at 100,000 to 135,000 barrels of oil a day. The Department of Transportation says that 4,500 to 6,000 lives have been saved every year as a result.

Writing in the current issue of Road Track, John Tomerlin provides a sorely needed second opinion. He writes with a bell-like ring of authority. His conclusion, abundantly documented, is incisive: "The experiment with Speed Prohibition is a failure. The greatest obstacle to further gains in highway safety has become the 55-mph speed limit itself."

Has the 55-mph limit saved significant quantities of fuel that would not have been saved otherwise? The answer is plainly, no. The government's estimates of fuel economies may be traced back to a series of tests in October 1973. By calculating fuel consumption at 50 mph, 60 mph and 70 mph in 13 American-made cars, the Department of Transportation (DOT) was able to document impressive losses in miles per gallon as speed increased.

But the tests, as Tomerlin points out, were not under real-world conditions; they were conducted under road-way conditions "not likely to occur in normal operation," as the researchers themselves conceded. The theoretical (but not actual) fuel economies were touted to make them look much larger than they actually were.

Says Tomerlin: "Only about one-third of the total vehicle mileage traveled in this country is on roads where 55 mph or more is possible, and only about half of that mileage actually is driven at or above the limit. This means only one-sixth of all vehicle miles are subject to any fuel savings from the 55-mile limit."

The precise fuel savings at 55 mph, compared to higher speeds, will average around 12 percent, depending upon such factors as car weight, engine efficiency and the excess speed. Assuming total compliance with the law, we get maximum savings of 33.3 percent x 50 percent x 12 percent — or a little less than 2 percent of oil consumption. The petroleum used in highway transportation represents about one-quarter of our energy needs. Thus, "the greatest possible savings amount to less than one-half of one percent of total energy requirements."

Especially in sparsely populated Western states, that is a vast deal of lost time to save barely measurable barrels of fuel.

What of safety? In 1974, the first year of the lower limit, 45,196 persons died in highway accidents; this reflected a rate of 3.52 per 100 million vehicle miles. Last year 50,745 persons died; the rate was 3.33. The lower rate cannot be attributed to the 55-mile limit alone. Other factors have played a major role — increased use of radial tires, better safety belts, less night and weekend driving, and a perceptible improvement in driver attitudes.

Tomerlin makes this point also — that speeding, as such, is not the principal cause of highway accidents. A California study found that 70 percent of fatalities resulted from other causes. If the national limit were abandoned, most drivers would continue to drive sensibly. There is no evidence to suggest that the death rate would significantly increase.

In their platform the Republicans said: "We believe the federal 55 mph speed limit is counterproductive and contributes to higher costs of goods and services to all communities, particularly in rural America. The most effective, no-cost federal assistance program available would be for each state to set its own speed limit."

Is the plank irresponsibly loony? It makes sense to me.

Two Choices In Caribbean

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Two convoys of ships carrying Soviet arms from Cuba have been secretly unloaded in Marxist Nicaragua to help build a growing weapons cache there for use in the coming battle for neighboring El Salvador, a development that may force beleaguered President Carter to reconsider his courtship of the left in Central America.

This secret supply undercuts the administration's policy of aiding Nicaragua's Sandinista regime in hopes of preventing its total embrace of Moscow and Havana. Similarly, the administration has adopted the leftist cause in El Salvador, while giving a cold shoulder to anti-communist elements.

Thus, the revelation of Marxist Nicaragua turning into a staging area for subverting El Salvador puts a hard Caribbean choice to Carter. Should he try to rally national support for himself on this issue, he would have to sacrifice his own policy. Yet, senators in close touch with the worsening Caribbean crisis, such as Democratic Sen. Richard Stone of Florida, may demand exactly that.

Officials here believe the arms sent to Nicaragua are earmarked for use by Marxist factions in the battle for El Salvador. That is the next intended victim of Soviet-backed insurgency in what used to be Uncle Sam's backyard.

Exactly what equipment was delivered is not yet known to U.S. intelligence officials, who described the unopened crates as containing "heavy equipment." What these sources do know is that arms already delivered to Nicaragua include Soviet tanks and long-range artillery pieces. Like the arms in the newly disclosed two convoys, all came from Cuba.

For Jimmy Carter, this continuing evidence of Soviet-Cuban intentions to dominate the Caribbean comes at a precarious political moment in an area of critical sensitivity. If detente is dead elsewhere, Carter's men have worked hard to insulate Central America from the Cold War.

There has been a pattern to Carter decisions in the beleaguered Caribbean since he courted Cuba's Fidel Castro by canceling a U.S. naval exercise at Guantanamo Bay in January 1977. Time and again, Jimmy Carter has either looked away or explained away each provocation: the sinister Nicaraguan mission to Moscow early this year; the appearance in Cuban waters last year of two Soviet submarines; the late 1978 discovery that Moscow was arming Cuba with late-model MiG 23s potentially capable of nuclear delivery.

U.S. diplomats in Central America — especially Nicaragua and El Salvador — have operated on orders that amount to this: A warm embrace for the left, a cold shoulder to the right. Those who did not go along were removed. In successfully pressing for aid to Nicaragua, the administration unsuccessfully tried to get it on an unconditional basis with no democratic procedures required.

Carter may decide that the new Soviet arms challenge should not be dismissed with wordy assurances that all is well in the Caribbean. With opposition to his renomination rising and his standing in the polls sinking to record lows, Carter may react sharply to this new challenge from the Moscow-Havana axis.

After Carter backed out of his demand last September that the Soviet brigade be withdrawn from Cuba, the Iran and Afghanistan crises revived his political fortunes just in time for the primary season. Could Central America do the same now even if it means standing his present policy on its head?

But the case for action transcends election-year politics. "The Russians and the Cubans are testing, testing," one high-level official told us. If Carter allows this newest test to pass unchallenged, he added, no Caribbean country up to and including Mexico can fail to get the message: "It's up for grabs and they're doing the grabbing."

One Democratic senator who backs Carter's reelection will put this demand to Carter: Make a complete disclosure to the American people; cut off the $65 million in U.S. aid now available to the Sandinista regime (and block an additional $70

Strength For Today

THE GLORIOUS NARROW MINDEDNESS

Most of us like to be broad-minded about the economic, social and political issues which confront us today, and we tend to be sharply critical of those people who are narrow-minded in these matters.

But there is one respect in which our views about narrow and broad-mindedness should be reversed. Jesus said, "Straight is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few are they that find it." In the same passage Jesus declares "Broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many are they that enter in."

The narrow-mindedness which Jesus was talking about is the single-minded determination to do the right thing no matter what it costs. The broad-minded, in this sense, are those who go along with the crowd. The higher life always depends on our ability to discipline our impulses and passions — to say no to ourselves.

Christians will always cultivate narrow-mindedness of this type and avoid the broad-mindedness "that leadeth to destruction." — Elisha Douglass

Far-Seeing Seers Are Hopeful

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — While it still might turn out to be the second worst recession since the Great Depression of the 1930s, the current downturn is already being written off by some allegedly far-seeing seers.

This, of course, is an ancient behavioral trait of so-called economic observers. They love to anticipate. They spent two years telling us a recession was coming; now they are telling us an upturn is on the way.

There is prestige in calling the turns, and money too. It pays to go out on a limb, because if you happen to be right you can forever after advertise the fact. And if you are wrong, you can help people forget.

One well-known economic forecaster helps that process along by means of his own poor memory. If events trip him up he merely adjusts the record and advises his clients: "As I told you six months ago..."

There is another class of seer who forecasts not for money but for politics, and we are seeing plenty of that ilk in the past few weeks. They are an indomitable sort, always trying to offset misery with hope.

Are we in a recession? Well, it's hard to deny it, but you can try. Isn't it really more civilized to say, as did G. William Miller treasury secretary, that "we're forming the basis for a recovery?"

So much has been made of the distant recovery, and so little of the immediate recession, that some of the less publicized but perhaps more educated and profound economists are reacting with warnings.

"There is an uncomfortable level of euphoria floating through the hot summer atmosphere," says Richard Nenneman of Girard Trust. He calls "simplistic" the notion that the recession is already on the wane.

Chase Manhattan Bank economists are telling customers this week that claims of the recession's end are unfounded. While the worst may have passed, they say, the economy will weaken throughout the year.

Claims that the worst has passed are often based on a slight rise in June retail sales, a rise in housing starts, and an increase in the index of leading economic indicators.

But, says Chase, "these are tender reeds on which to base the claim that a recovery is under way." For one thing, these indicators could continue rising for months before the economy reached where it was.

As a matter of fact, some of them say, the popular measures of economic strength declined so fast during late spring and early summer that they couldn't continue in that direction without a total collapse.

Public perception too might be playing a role in the euphoria. When, for example, a level-headed economist says that, yes, he can see some light ahead, he doesn't always mean to discount the immediate problems.

As interpreted, however, the fact that he sees light is viewed as an optimistic statement. In some instances, what he really meant was that, no, this recession isn't the end of the world, but it's real bad.

Nenneman also points out, as do many others, that the light at the end of the tunnel really isn't that bright. The recovery, which most agree might begin next year, shows little promise of being robust.

Whatever, the whole euphoric notion of discounting the recession might be correlated with the advice radioed to a truck driver whose rig was roaring brakeless down a San Francisco hillside.

"Take heart," he was told, "the worst is behind you."

Browning To Seek Court Post

Greenville attorney Robert R. "Bob" Browning, has been nominated by the North Carolina Republican Party Central Committee as a candidate for a vacancy on the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

A Greenville native, Browning, 44, was a member of the state Board of Transportation and a highway commissioner before being appointed a Special Superior Court judge by former Gov. Jim Holshouser in 1973. Although he was replaced on the superior court bench by a Democrat by Gov. Jim Hunt, the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research last year rated Browning the jurist with the greatest amount of objectivity in the State.

ROBERT BROWNING

According to Republican State Chairman Jackson F. Lee, Browning was selected as a candidate to fill a vacancy on the State Court of Appeals created by the retirement of Judge Frank M. Parker of Asheville. He will oppose former State Senator Willis Whichard (D-Durham) of Durham, recently appointed to the position by Gov. Hunt.

A graduate of Duke University and the University of North Carolina Law School, Browning was a naval aviator and flew cargo missions into Vietnam.

Browning, whose father was dean of the East Carolina University School of Business for a number of years, is married to the former Mary Ann Williams of Virginia Beach, Va., and they have two children.

He is a member of the Greenville Rotary Club and a deacon in the Baptist Church, and is a graduate of the U.S. Bar Association's National Judges College.

There will be strong public resistance to the various parts of the plan which will be produced for managing hazardous wastes, as there has already been public alarm at various actions in the past. "Dealing with hazardous wastes is going to be one of the most difficult and important issues we are going to face in the coming years," Hunt believes.

What is the alternative? More of the Love Canal afflictions, the Memphis dilemma, the poisoning of Kernersville's water supply and almost instant death of a young man inadvertently splattered when a barrel burst? "Failure to make adequate plans... can, as we have seen, have tragic consequences," Hunt predicts. (Tomorrow: A Plan)

School Food Service Fund to the Capital Outlay Fund to provide money for the purchase of food service equipment was approved. The transfer constitutes an administrative funding action.

The board approved acceptance of two teacher resignations for teachers who are moving from the area. The election of 22 teachers who were employed part-time or on an interim basis in school year 1979-80 was also approved. On a third group, that of six new teachers recommended for employment, the board approved the election of four and tabled for a special meeting the election of two others until there is an opportunity to review the qualifications of these two.

Member Ernest Brown made a motion that material to be acted on and not discussed at previous meetings, especially the election of personnel, be provided in advance of meetings. Jack Wall commented that due to the time element involved in hiring replacements for last minute resignations, speed was sometimes essential.

Donovan Phillips offered the suggestion that although Cox was thorough in his evaluations, there could exist a situation where a school board member might know something about a particular prospective employee that Cox might not be aware of. Dr. Jon Tingelstad expressed a preference for more emphasis on the practice of board members coming in half an hour early to study the files of last minute nominations as the best solution. Ernest Brown's motion was defeated by a 3-2 vote, with Mrs. Lena Brown abstaining.

A report given by Cox on teacher reductions for the coming school year due to budget reductions shows that the loss amounts to a total of 15 teachers in all levels of the school system. The breakdown is:

— Grades K-6 — eight losses — four classroom teachers in K-3; two classroom teachers grades 4-6; one art teacher; and one-half position each in physical education and music. In grades K-3 projections show there will be 144 fewer students in the coming school year than last year; and the number of classrooms in 4-6 have dropped from 39 to 37.

— Grades 8-9 — four losses — two positions in language arts and social studies, and one-half position each in math, science, art and career guidance.

— Grades 10-12 — A total of three losses, brought back up to two losses with additions in other areas equating to a gain of one position. The losses are one position each in social studies and driver education, and one-half position in English and physical education.

— Agnes Fullilove, the loss of one position in home economics. There are no changes in teacher personnel numbers at the Middle School.

Errors in two previous actions and corrective action taken were reported by Cox. In the school calendar, the final day of school was originally listed as June 18 and has been corrected to June 17. The error did not affect the school calendar for students. The other error was in the top limit previously reported applicable for the student insurance program with the National Federation Student Protection Trust. Instead of $75,000, the limit of the policy is $10,000 for the $5 annual premium ($25 for those taking the 24-hour coverage). Cox said the earlier reported $75,000 is applicable only with an additional fee and with a stipulation that all students taking the insurance opt for the additional coverage. These facts, Cox said, were not known until he contacted an agent to formulate the policy and that the previously stated $75,000 coverage report was the result of a misinterpretation of the provisions of the policy.

Board members agreed to rescheduling the action meeting for August to August 25, one week later than the regular third Monday meeting, in order to give board members an opportunity to meet with Dr. Craig Phillips on his visit to Greenville that day and evening. The board also agreed to cancel the September information meeting, as the first Monday this year falls on Monday, September 1, which is Labor Day.

Asked about the status of the merger report, Cox said the state committee had finished its work study, had turned it over to printers, and that board members of Greenville and Pitt County Schools should have a copy on hand within four to six weeks.

The schedule for the coming school year, Cox noted, might possibly have the Middle School hours changed from the current 8:15 a.m. to 3 p.m. schedule to 8:45 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., which is the same as that for junior and senior high students. This would, Cox said, make easier the planning of bus routes since the seventh grade, like grades 8-12, covered student attendance for the entire school district. The schedule for other grades will be 8:15 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. for kindergarten; and 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for grades 1-6.

The program's director was Miss Addie Gore, home economics extension agent.

Volume Is Heavy At Farmville

FARMVILLE — Volume of sales was heavy on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Volume consisted of mostly primings and nondescript grades, Williams said. Quality was better than that of last Thursday's sale. Volume of lugs showed a slight increase. Grade-for-grade, prices continue steady. Top price for some grades of quality lugs was $1.65 a pound and were company purchases. Stabilization receipts accounted for 11.22 percent of gross sales. The market sold 846,403 pounds for $1,050,451, for an average of $124.11. To date the market has sold 2,503,476 pounds for $3,041,059, for a season's average of $121.47 per hundred pounds.

Surrenders In Shooting Of 2

ALBERMARLE, N.C. (AP) — An Albermarle man has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill his wife and son at a bus station Monday morning.

Police said James Edward Foster surrendered himself after the 9:30 a.m. shooting at the Albermarle bus station. He is charged in connection with the shooting of his wife, Bessie Davis Foster, 33, and his son, five-year-old James Edward Foster Jr.

Mrs. Foster was in critical condition at the Charlotte Memorial Hospital. The child's condition was not known.

Police Chief Don Frey says the mother and boy were in the bus station buying tickets when Foster came in, exchanged words with them and then allegedly shot the two with a small caliber automatic gun.

Two Vehicles In Collision

An estimated $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 11:53 a.m. collision here yesterday, on Tenth Street, 50 feet East of the Cedar Lane intersection.

Greenville police, who charged Joyce Allen Warren of Route 1, Stokes, with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, identified the driver of the second car involved as Ricky Harrell Garris of Route 2, Grifton.

Seize Passport In Tax Evasion

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A federal judge has seized Joe Conforte's passport amid allegations that the 54-year-old brothel owner is shifting his assets overseas while appealing a conviction for income tax evasion.

U.S. District Judge Edward C. Reed on Monday rejected a defense for a two-week extension of his earlier order requiring Conforte to surrender his passport.

Hurricane Moving Across Caribbean

CASTRIES, St. Lucia (AP) — Hurricane Allen lumbered westward across the Caribbean with winds up to 170 miles an hour today, threatening Jamaica and the island of Hispaniola, after leaving at least eight dead, hundreds homeless and much of the important banana crop in St. Lucia devastated.

Forecasters said the hurricane could hit the United States, but not before early next week. The latest position placed it about 820 miles southeast of Miami, Fla.

St. Lucia's officials said they were in the midst of a "national disaster" and that they feared the death toll would rise. The storm left the island's main hospital powerless and minus part of its roof.

The U.S. National Weather Service labeled Allen "the most intense and dangerous hurricane in the Caribbean during this century," as its winds built to a maximum of 170 mph near the center. The storm, moving toward the west-northwest at 20 mph, was expected to remain on this course today, the forecasters said.

The weather service said at 9 a.m. EDT the center of the hurricane was near 16.0 north latitude and 71.0 west longitude, or about 185 miles south-southwest of Santo Domingo, the capital of Dominican Republic, and 400 miles east-southeast of Kingston, Jamaica.

A hurricane watch was in effect for Jamaica and the southwest peninsula of Haiti. Gale warnings were in effect for the southern sections of the Dominican Republic and Haiti.

Small craft were warned to stay in port in the Leeward Islands, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, the southern sections of the Dominican Republic, the southern sections of Haiti and Jamaica.

Allen was so intense it brought winds gusts of up to 70 miles an hour and rain squalls to Puerto Rico, some 250 miles away, on Monday.

Dozens of families were reported evacuated there, and some damage was reported in the sparsely populated northern half of St. Vincent, near St. Lucia on the eastern edge of the Caribbean.

said they would have to wait for official requests before offering aid. Through much of Monday, the U.S. Embassy was relying on a ham radio operator to keep touch with St. Lucia.

Several large estates in St. Lucia's interior were laid waste, and much of the island's banana crop — an important source of foreign exchange — was ruined.

The howling winds tore away part of the roof over Victoria Hospital in Castries, the island's main health facility. An aid official at the U.S. Embassy in Barbados said there were reports of heavy damage to port facilities in Castries.

Planning Minister Michael Pilgrim called the situation a

"a national disaster," and said the worst damage appeared to be at Vieux Fort on the southern tip of the island. He said his own home had been ripped apart by the winds.

In Barbados, a clean-up operation began, led off by a tour of the island by Prime Minister Tom Adams to survey damage. Army crews and government communications workers set out to clear roads blocked by fallen trees, debris and mud.

Officials on Barbados said there was no loss of life or serious injury, however. One report circulated by the U.S. National Weather Service Monday afternoon said two people on Barbados were dead, but Barbados officials did not confirm that.

PCC Is Enrolling Class For Hospital Ward Clerks

LEARNING HOW IT'S DONE...Angela Buck (left, standing) instructor in nursing at PCC and Judith Kuykendall (right, standing) chairman of the nursing department of PCC, observe Jan Thomas (seated) ward clerk at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Pitt Community College is presently enrolling a class for hospital ward clerks with classes beginning in September.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital has employed many of these graduates in the past and plans to expand their ward clerk service in the future.

Mrs. E.A. Trought, administrator for nursing at the hospital commented, "Pitt County Memorial Hospital has committed itself to expanding our ward clerk service. We are working with Pitt Community College to improve the educational preparation of ward clerks. We are also working on continuing education programs to keep our currently employed ward clerks updated in their field. We presently have ward clerk positions available and will increase the total number of positions in the fall. The ward clerk role is the newly emerging health team job which should provide talented people with a challenging career opportunity."

In the past, the clerical and receptionist duties of running a nursing unit have been assigned to the professional nurse. The hospital ward clerk has done much to relieve the nurse of these clerical duties, so that he or she can devote more time to the direct care of patients.

A hospital ward clerk has many diversified activities and contacts within the hospital which require formal education. Pitt Community College has such a program. The 330 hour course is offered both fall and winter quarters with the clinical education taking place at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

The hospital ward clerk course introduces the student to medical terminology, medications and their classifications, laboratory tests, and various x-ray procedures. An understanding of these concepts is necessary in order to be able to transcribe doctor's orders.

Clinical experience includes working on a medical-surgical unit, labor and delivery units, newborn nursery, intensive care units, rehabilitation and psychiatric units, the operating room and emergency room, and rotation throughout all auxiliary departments.

Some of the duties and responsibilities include inter-departmental communication, with the hospital ward clerk learning how to professionally communicate with all hospital departments and personnel. Other responsibilities include maintaining legal documents (the most important being the patient's chart); requesting special diagnostic tests which may be necessary to facilitate proper patient care and treatment; meeting emergencies; admitting, transferring, and discharging patients. Other duties include direct contact with all physicians in making appointments and consultations. A close liaison must be developed between the nursing personnel and the ward clerk in the recording and documentation of patient care.

The hospital ward clerk must have a good understanding of medical records in the matters of legality. The responsibility of ordering supplies, stocking the nursing unit, and maintaining a serene professional atmosphere rest with the hospital ward clerk as well.

Judith Kuykendall,

chairman of nursing education at PCC, explained, "The hospital ward clerk is one of the most important people on a hospital unit. Even though the ward clerk does not give direct care to the patients, he or she gives indirect care by assuring that everything needed for direct patient care is available for the professional staff and that all communications with other departments (lab, x-ray, dietary, etc.) are efficiently handled. The hospital ward clerk many times gives the public the lasting impression of a particular hospital unit because he/she is the one who answers many of their questions and assists them in locating the patient they are visiting or directing them to other areas of the hospital."

She added, "An efficient, concerned, and conscientious ward clerk really makes a difference in the overall functioning of a hospital unit."

According to Angela Buck, hospital ward clerk instructor at PCC, "If you are one of those people who always wanted to work in a health care facility, but were uncertain about your response to pain and suffering, now you can help the sick and injured indirectly if you enroll in the hospital ward clerk course and graduate. If you are employed as a ward clerk you will be able to assist in the initiation of all patient care treatment ordered by the physician."

Ms. Buck continued, "Job opportunities in this field are unlimited. Ninety-five percent of all past graduates from the Pitt Community College ward secretary program were employed shortly after graduation... most of them by Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Others were employed in different areas such as clinics, doctor's offices, and nursing homes."

Jan Thomas, a PCC ward clerk graduate, is now employed at Pitt County Memorial Hospital in the labor and delivery unit. She described her working day and the importance of her instruction at PCC.

She explained, "I took my training under the instruction of Angela Buck, who taught me all about hospital surroundings. I learned basic anatomy, how to maintain a patient's hospital chart and the many other duties to be mastered as a hospital ward clerk. There are many legalities involved in a patient's care, so as ward clerks we must be sure that everything is in order. I am responsible for admitting, requesting laboratory work for the patient, plus putting the chart together for each expectant mother. I also document all births in the record book which shows the position of delivery and complications, if any. I answer the telephone, help visitors, and inventory our supplies."

Jan explains that her work is rewarding and exciting especially when one assists the doctors and the nurses in bringing new life into the world.

Those interested in enrolling in the hospital ward clerk program this fall or winter may call Pitt Community College (756-3130) and ask for an admissions counselor.

Senator Charges Niece With Extortion Plan

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A niece of Sen. Thomas Eagleton was arrested along with her lawyer after allegedly trying to extort $220,000 by threatening to release purportedly damaging information against the Missouri Democrat, Eagleton said.

"There is no such harmful information," the senator said Monday.

Libby Eagleton Weigand and attorney Stephen E. Poludniak were arrested Sunday and released pending further investigation, according to the U.S. attorney's office. Evidence in the case will be turned over to a grand jury, said a spokesman for the U.S. attorney.

A complaint filed by the U.S. Attorney's office with U.S. Magistrate David Noce was dismissed pending presentation of evidence to a grand jury.

Eagleton said Mrs. Weigand, 23, threatened to make public damaging information about him unless the Eagleton family business bought her minority interest in the company. She had asked for $220,000 for her stock in Missouri Pipe Fittings Co., he said.

Eagleton said the FBI was called in after "an extortionist demand for money" was made to William E. Buckley, a former law partner of Eagleton's and treasurer of his re-election campaign.

An FBI statement filed in federal magistrate court by Agent Richard Van Matre alleged Mrs. Weigand and Poludniak told the senator's personal attorney last week the material would be released before today's primary election unless the holdings were purchased. The statement alleged the release of more information before the November general election also was threatened.

Eagleton said he denied Mrs. Weigand's request to sell the stock because "we felt the proceeds would have been given to the Church of Scientology," of which she is a member.

Alexis White, riding Just My Luck, received reserve champion earning one first and one fourth.

"My opinion is it would have been squandered," Eagleton said. "At the time this matter began to evolve, my feeling was one of stunned dismay. The whole episode is a source of sadness to me personally."

He called on the FBI to make public information found in a confiscated briefcase. But the U.S. attorney said nothing would be made public until the investigation was complete.

Mrs. Weigand refused comment Monday.

The Rev. Larry Worstell of the Church of Scientology said Mrs. Weigand and Poludniak were suspended from the church while it carried out its own investigation.

"If the charges are true, this would be totally against church policy," Worstell said.

Poludniak denied the alleged extortion attempt. "This thing was not any type of extortion or anything of that nature," he said.

Poludniak said Mrs. Weigand wanted to sell the stock to liquidate her investment, adding that "over half" of the $220,000 was in the form of dividends. Under company rules, dividends are automatically reinvested in the company and cannot be collected by Mrs. Weigand, he said.

Reagan Urges Minorities Re-Study His Proposals

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Conceding his conservative politics are "perceived" as anti-black, Republican presidential nominee urged minorities today to "look beyond labels" to his proposed economic programs.

Reagan outlined his plan to "reindustrialize the cities" in remarks prepared for delivery before the National Urban League convention.

In his address, Reagan conceded there are "perceived barriers between my political beliefs and the aspirations of black Americans."

But he told the civil rights group that he believed those barriers are false, and he urged his audience to "look beyond labels" and consider what his conservative Republican approach offers blacks.

"To too many people, 'conservative' has come to mean 'anti-poor, anti-black and anti-disadvantaged,'" Reagan said. "Perhaps some of you question whether a conservative really feels sympathy and compassion for the victims of social and economic misfortune and of racial discrimination. "If you think of me as the caricatured conservative ... you may be surprised by our broad areas of agreement," he added.

The main thrust of Reagan's speech was that blacks as well as whites would be better off if the nation adopted his economic philosophy of less government regulation plus tax cuts to stimulate job development and ease the tax burden on individual wage-earners.

"I believe the policies of the Democratic Party leadership during these past four years have produced the single most dangerous threat to black progress today — an economy in recession," Reagan said, citing a 14.2-percent black unemployment rate.

"Inflation has become a disaster for low- and middle-income persons, especially blacks who have just started climbing the economic ladder. Towering interest rates and skyrocketing housing prices have forced countless black families to abandon the dream of owning their own home," he said.

Reagan's speech included his most specific description to date of his package for America's cities.

His major proposals call for creation of what Reagan described as "enterprise zones" in depressed urban areas and an "urban home-steading program" to turn abandoned government-owned housing over to persons who would rehabilitate it for their own homes.

"Within the (enterprise) zones, various regulations would be relaxed," Reagan said. "Property taxes would be stabilized or modified. And depreciation and tax rules would be changed for businesses locating in and hiring workers from the zones."

"Enterprise zones would remove many of the barriers to investment and job creation, thus entrepreneurs would be encouraged to start new enterprises and put people in the zone to work," he said.

Under his urban home-steading proposal, houses which have been vacant due to foreclosure on government-subsidized mortgages could be sold as-is to new buyers instead of being rehabilitated first — a process putting their costs out of reach of many buyers.

"In many cases, these homes have remained boarded up for years," Reagan said. "Bringing such government-owned houses back onto the tax rolls as decent housing is one way for low- and middle-income Americans to acquire a home."

Other parts of Reagan's urban program include a pledge to support at least temporary continuation of federal revenue-sharing, greater discretion for cities to spend federal grants as they choose, reduced federal regulation over cities and unspecified assistance for neighborhood self-help programs.

Reagan repeated his proposal to transfer federal welfare and education programs back to state and local governments — "along with the tax sources to pay for them" — and he tied his support for continued federal revenue-sharing to that transfer.

"We should maintain general revenue-sharing, at least until the transfer program is completed," he said.

Ground Broken For New Complex

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Ground breaking ceremonies were held this morning for a $4.87 million housing and recreation complex for the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center. The project, part of a pilot program for comprehensive training and recreation for the handicapped, will include a gymnasium, swimming pool, weight training and gymnastics area, bowling alley and arts and crafts and game room areas, as well as a housing unit containing 40 semi-private rooms with bath, and four apartments. Funds for the new facility include $3.9 million in federal grant money, $225,000 in state funds, and $85,000 from Pitt and Martin counties. Vocational center director Howard Dawkins, who said additional funds will be requested from the state and Pitt and Martin County commissioners, said a public fund raising project will be launched to raise the additional funds needed to fund the complex. He noted that his family is the first contributors to the fund raising drive with a gift of $5,000. A number of federal, state and local officials attended the 11 o'clock program this morning. First District Congressman Walter Jones, who guided the appropriations bills through Congress that provided the federal money for the project said, "This wasn't easy." Some $2.19 million was made available by Congress in 1977. An additional $1.5 million was appropriated in June. Jones said efforts to have the latest appropriation included in the federal budget met opposition in the House of Representatives. He said he then asked Sen. Robert Morgan to have the funds included in the Senate supplemental appropriations bill, which was done June 28. The congressman emphasized, however, "It took work and interest on behalf of Pres. Carter and his White House staff," to finally, "get this thing through." J. H. Hudson is the general contractor for the 89,000 square foot facility, which should take 12 to 14 months to complete.

Iran's Parliament Wants Trials Now

By The Associated Press
Iran's Parliament put off the hostage debate and urged trials for the 52 Americans to retaliate for the detention of nearly 200 Iranian demonstrators in New York jails. Iran's president said the United States has created a "new problem to keep the original problem of the hostages insoluble." "I have said many times that America itself is preventing the problem of the hostages from being solved," President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said in a message sent Monday to the Iranian Islamic Society in America and Canada. His statement, broadcast on Tehran radio, also contained a call to the Iranian detainees imprisoned on suspicion of violating U.S. immigration laws that they "Try not to surrender..." "If they (U.S. officials) are going to deport you, resist as far as possible, so that they have to drag you into the planes," Bani-Sadr said. The speaker of the Majlis, or Iranian Parliament, told the assembly that the debate on the hostages' fate was being postponed because of the detentions. "In this respect, the Majlis has suggested a plan that the Supreme Judicial Council should be asked to prepare the grounds for the trial of the hostages," Hashemi Rafsanjani said according to the state radio. Rafsanjani made no mention of any date for the beginning of a trial, which the United States has said would constitute a grave violation of international law.

Washington during clashes with police and opponents of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader. Originally, the Iranians were charged with disorderly conduct. The charges were dropped Friday and the Iranians were transferred to the custody of Immigration and Naturalization Service officials for possible deportation hearings. State Department spokesman John Trattner said the United States welcomed a demand by Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh that U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim investigate the detentions. "We would welcome a United Nations inquiry, as we would a similar investigation of the treatment of our hostages in Iran," Trattner told reporters. Last March, a U.N. commission of inquiry to Iran was barred from visiting the hostages, who began their 276th day of captivity today.

Billy's Trip to Libya
"When I heard about it I was deeply concerned that there might be some serious or unpleasant incident while he was there. Shortly after he returned from Libya in October 1978, I saw a message from our charge in Tripoli reporting on the positive nature of the visit. I was greatly relieved and I sent a copy of that message to Billy. This message contained no sensitive information..."

Discouraging A Second Trip
"He discussed with me the possibility of another trip to Libya and I urged him not to go, partly because of his health and partly because of the adverse effect it could have on our Middle East negotiations, which were at a critical stage at that time.... Despite my advice he made his second trip."

Billy's Efforts in the Hostage Crisis
"It occurred to us that Billy might be able to get Libyans to help to induce the Iranians to release the American hostages... the leader of Libya, Col. Khadafy, also made the direct private appeal to Ayatollah Khomeini that we requested. At least in this respect the approach to the Libyans was successful. Whether it would have been successful if Billy had not participated is a question no one can answer with certainty. I made this decision in good faith... Billy merely responded to our request."

Billy's Influence
"I can state categorically that my brother Billy had no influence or effect on my decisions or on any U.S. government policy or action concerning Libya. Billy has never asked me to take any step that would affect any of these actions or policies and... Billy has not made any such effort with anybody in my administration."

On Registering as a Foreign Agent
"He personally did not think he needed to file a registration statement. On July 1, just a few days later, I called Billy again to urge him to... make a full disclosure. He did so on July 14. It was not until July 15 that I knew of the two large payments or loans of money from Libya to my brother."

Disposition of the Money
"I don't know where the money went or where it might go."
On Billy's Profiting From Their Relationship
"I don't have authority to order Billy to do something. It's not illegal for him to make a trip to Libya.... I'm not trying to make excuses. Anyone who knows Billy knows that no one can push him around."

An "Aura of Incompetence?"
"I think the historic record of this administration, in years looking back, will be that it was a competent administration.... I don't believe that this is a comedy of errors or that we have made many errors. A few? Yes."

The Democratic Convention
Carter said he does not plan to release delegates committed to him at next week's Democratic convention. "I ran in all the primaries, all the caucuses. In that intense political competition I won about 60 percent of the commitments of the delegates.... "These are not my delegates, they're the voters' delegates."

Class Of 1950 Has Reunion

The Winterville High School Class of 1950 held its 30th reunion at the Greenville Country Club Saturday night. Amy Mills greeted the guests and directed them to the guest register and memento table.

After the social hour, Jonnie Briley welcomed the group and Amy Mills called the roll. Don McGlohon gave the invocation.

Following the dinner, Virginia Shivers read the class history, Ruby Wingate gave the class prophecy; and Mildred Harris read the last will and testament. Each class member gave a resume of the past 30 years.

The class members voted to have another reunion in five years, and following the singing of "Blest be the Tie" Elbert Briley gave the benediction.

Steve Creech, director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, to make application for a grant for a detoxification program.

At the request of Pitt County School Superintendent Ott Alford, commissioners endorsed a concept which would join education, business and industry in a program designed to expand the available work force in the county.

Major goals of the program, one of three pilot projects in the state to be funded by a grant from the Department of Administration, would be working with school age youth, adults and older citizens to provide a smooth transition between school and the workforce.

Alford said the program would be presented to the county board of education for its consideration at the board's next meeting.

Commissioners yesterday also approved a petition requesting that Hartwood Drive in Heartwood Acres Subdivision be added to the state highway system.

Seattle Ship Sinks Into West Basement

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

"I wish we could have won, but the ship's not going to sink tonight," Maury Wills said Monday night after his unsuccessful debut as a major league manager.

But if Wills had consulted the standings, he would have seen that the ship — alias the Seattle Mariners — did indeed sink ... into last place in the American League West.

The defending champion California Angels rallied in the late innings to hand the Mariners their 10th consecutive setback 8-3 — Seattle has lost 21 of 25 games since the All-Star break — and climb out of last place for the first time since June 6.

"Before the game, I thought I would be shaking like a leaf when I took out the lineup card, but I wasn't," said Wills, who became the third black manager in major league history shortly after the Mariners fired Darrell Johnson. "I felt elated, maybe I shouldn't have."

Jason Thompson doubled twice to drive in three runs for California. His two-run double broke a 3-3 tie with two out in the bottom of the seventh. A one-out infield hit by Larry Harlow chased Seattle starter Glenn Abbott in favor of Shane Rawley, who walked Rod Carew and allowed a game-tying RBI-single to Don Baylor before Thompson's blow.

Seattle, which trailed 2-0 after six innings, had taken a 3-2 lead in the seventh on a two-run double by Bill Stein and an RBI-double by Bruce Bochte.

Indians 11, Blue Jays 5

Joe Charboneau, Jorge Orta, Bo Diaz and Rick Manning all homered to pace Cleveland to its 10th victory in the last 12 games. Charboneau connected off Paul Mirabella in the second inning while Orta, Diaz and Manning all homered off Tom Buskey. Orta homered in the sixth, Diaz and Manning an inning later. Two batters later, Buskey threw three high-inside pitches to Miguel Dilone, who had a pair of RBI-doubles earlier. Plate umpire Bill Haller warned Buskey after the first one and ejected him after the third.

"The worst rule in baseball is the designated hitter," said Haller, who also thumbed Texas' Bob Babcock and California's Bruce Kison this season for the same reason. "That's what you get (brushbacks) because the pitcher doesn't bat any more. I just didn't want it to get started, or for anyone to get hurt."

"We as a club have certain ways to pitch certain hitters and that may be our situation with him (pitching Dilone inside)," said Buskey. "What did you see? That's what happened, three balls inside. That's all I want to say. That was the umpire's discretion."

Yankees 10, Rangers 4

Reggie Jackson slammed his 30th home run of the season and 399th of his career and Eric Soderholm and Bobby Brown also homered in New York's 14-hit attack. Winner Tom Underwood went six innings, giving up two hits and one run, while loser Gaylord Perry lasted only 3 1-3 innings in which he was tagged for six runs on nine hits. Al Oliver and Buddy Bell homered for Texas. Jackson's homer off Dave Rajsch in the fifth inning tied him with Al Kaline for 19th place on the all-time list.

"I hope to hit No. 400 in front of my father, Martinez Jackson, who will be here from now on until I hit it," said Jackson. "I feel that 400 home runs means recognition as a good ballplayer. Perhaps 500 home runs means the Hall of Fame automatically. But 400 homers, 1,500 RBI and 2,500 hits — and maybe 250 wins if you are a pitcher — puts you in the super star class."

"When I was young and in the league five or six years, people got excited and said I was a super star, but I think it takes the test of time, like Ted Williams, Willie Mays, Henry Aaron."

Royals 6, Tigers 5

Frank White drilled a tie-breaking solo homer off Dan Schatzeder with two out in the ninth inning as Kansas City snapped Detroit's winning streak at five games. White also squeezed home a run in the second inning after Willie Aikens' two-run single.

Darrell Porter's solo homer gave the Royals a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning but the Tigers tied it on Alan Trammell's RBI-double and took a 5-4 lead in the seventh on Lance Parrish's home run but KC's George Brett evened it with a homer in the eighth, extending his hitting streak to 17 games.

A's 11, Twins 2

Rickey Henderson singled, stole his 54th base of the season and hit a two-run homer in an eight-run first-inning bombardment, Oakland's biggest inning in four years. The A's won their 54th game of the season, matching their total of last year when they finished 54-108 and last in the American League West. They are now second with a 54-53 record under new Manager Billy Martin. Jeff Newman also homered while Steve McCatty scattered nine hits in a route-going performance and Dave McKay and Jeff Cox contributed two-run hits in the big first inning.

Red Sox 7, Brewers 2

Rookie Glenn Hoffman hit his third major league homer and second in as many nights, a two-run shot in the third inning that ignited Boston's victory while Steve Renko and Bob Stanley checked the Brewers on five hits. Hoffman also doubled to chase Milwaukee starter starter Reggie Cleveland and touch off a three-run seventh. Hoffman's homer gave him seven hits in his last eight at-bats.

Pitt Out Of Field

BUTLER, Ala. — Pitt County's 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth League team was ousted from the Southeastern Regionals yesterday in Butler, Ala.

The Pitt team bowed to Western North Carolina in the losers' bracket of the tournament, 5-3, for its second defeat of the tournament.

Western North Carolina then lost to Florida, a winner over Alabama in an earlier contest.

The field is now down to three teams. Florida and Virginia play tonight for the right to meet unbeaten Tennessee in the finals.

Details of the Pitt game were not made available to "The Daily Reflector," as the Pitt team left Butler for Greenville following its loss.

Twitty Not Worried About Being Left Out

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Tom Watson, Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Gary Player, Andy Bean, Jack Nicklaus, and for the sake of sentiment, Arnold Palmer.

Those are the names of the players mentioned as favorites in the 1980 Professional Golfers Association Championship which gets under way Thursday on the par-70, 6,964-yard Oak Hill Country Club east course.

Does omission from the contenders bother Howard Twitty? Not in the least.

"If that's the worst thing that ever happens to me, I'll be happy," said the sixth-year pro, who posted his second tour victory two weeks ago and recorded a scintillating opening-round 64 last week before faltering in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

"You have to be realistic. Last year, I was 15th on the money list and to improve on that would be difficult. There are some awfully fine players who would have something to say about it."

Trevino, second this year in earnings with just under $300,000, blitzed the tree-shaded course in 275 strokes to win the 1968 U.S. Open. Four new holes have been added, but Twitty — at 6-foot-5, a physical opposite of Trevino — said he doubted the new layout would favor any particular style.

"I've always felt that it doesn't matter what kind of course you're on — if you're playing well, you'll do well," he said. "If I had to pick out a strong point for myself, it might be putting, but I don't believe in strong points. Your game has to be pretty well together to do very well."

Twitty, 31, who has shot in the 60s in 12 of his last 16 rounds, had not won on the tour until a tournament at Endicott, N.Y., late last season. But he has made steady progress, jumping from 139th on the money list in 1975 to 51st the next year, then 49th, 25th and 15th last season with winnings of $179,619.

However, he refuses to predict a continuation of the upward curve or a victory here which could set the golf world on its ear.

"Winning and playing well are two different things," he philosophized. "Sometimes the difference between winning and losing is the difference between a good bounce or a good break and a bad one. I refuse to have my life determined by a good or a bad bounce."

"You have the best field in the world here, and if you manage to finish among the top four or five, you've played awfully well."

Twitty said he was unimpressed by the four so-called "major" tournaments — a frame of mind sharply different from that of Palmer, who aches to end a seven-year drought in victories with the PGA title he needs to complete his slam of the Big Four. He has won the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters at least once.

The 50-year-old superstar said he had been running up to nine miles a day to trim 20 pounds and get in shape for the tournament.

"The thing with getting older is keeping your concentration for four days. You have to keep everything moving right in a tournament," he said.

Watson, 30, who goes into this event with five tour victories and $387,725 in earnings this year, planned to arrive today, leaving himself two days to limber up in pursuit of his fifth major title.

Nicklaus, whose 17 major crowns and $3.5 million in career earnings are golfing history, also was scheduled to chase a record-tying fifth PGA title and his first since 1975. The only golfer ever to win five was Rochester native Walter Hagen, who did it in 1921, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927.

Seaver Returns To Duty With Florish

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

"The biggest thing I did," Tom Seaver said, "was to tell myself not to get excited." But he is gonna tell that to the rest of the Cincinnati Reds?

The Reds, without their pitching ace for more than a month, managed to stay right in the thick of the National League West pennant race. And on Monday night, Seaver returned with a flourish.

He pitched six innings, striking out five batters and limiting San Diego to four hits and one unearned run as Cincinnati, riding home runs by George Foster and Johnny Bench, snapped the Padres' eight-game winning streak with a 7-1 victory in the opener of a two-night doubleheader. The Reds then ran roughshod over the Padres 11-2 in the second game.

Elsewhere in the NL, Houston defeated San Francisco 4-2, Los Angeles beat Atlanta 5-3 and, in another two-night twinbill, Montreal beat New York 4-3 in the 10-inning opener, then the Mets won the second game 4-3.

"I'm totally happy. We did just what we wanted to do. I threw 87 pitches," Seaver, 4-5, said after his first appearance since going on the disabled list last July 1 with a sore right shoulder.

"My God, yes, I'm happy!" he exclaimed. "I'm very happy, particularly because I went out throwing hard ... I wasn't going to rush. I was able to throw every pitch I had.

"I will take my place in the starting rotation Saturday against the Dodgers." Los Angeles, with its victory, is second in the division, one-half game behind Houston. The Reds, who were 6½-games back in third place when Seaver went on the disabled list, are still third — but only 3½-games off the pace.

Seaver, who underwent cortisone and anti-inflammation injections, hot-and-cold treatments and a muscle-stretching program during his layoff, recalled that a year ago at this time he was bothered by stomach-muscle problems.

"Last year I pitched my way through it, but this year I decided I wasn't going to do it," he said. "You don't know what's going to happen. It's no fun going out there and getting your socks knocked off."

In the first game, Dan Driessen hit a two-run triple off Randy Jones in the first inning. Ken Griffey walked before Foster hit his 16th homer in the third, then Foster was aboard on an error in the sixth when Bench hit his 16th.

In the second game, Ray Knight had a pair of run-scoring singles, the second one when Cincinnati erupted for eight runs in the seventh inning, five off Padres relief ace Rollie Fingers. Joe Nolan had a two-run single in the outburst.

Astros 4, Giants 2
"With J.R. Richard out, I have to win some ballgames," said Houston's Nolan Ryan, winning for the first time since June 19th. He did so thanks in part to Enos Cabell's triple in a two-run first inning and Craig Reynolds' decisive single in the second.

Ryan struck out seven, walked five and allowed four hits in seven rough innings before Joe Sambito registered his 11th save.

"Our team being in first place is a reflection of our bullpen," Ryan said. "I struggled the whole game."

But Houston Manager Bill Virdon observed: "I thought Nolan did a better job than usual. He kept us in the ballgame and that's all you can ask of a pitcher. That's the kind of pitching we need to stay in contention now that Richard is unavailable."

Dodgers 5, Braves 3

Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker homered and Steve Yeager broke a tie with a sixth-inning double that carried the Dodgers past Atlanta for their fifth victory in six games and the Braves' sixth consecutive loss.

Garvey hit his 20th homer of the season in the second inning and singled before Baker hit his 20th in the fourth. Pedro Guerrero singled and went to second on Tommy Boggs' wild pitch before Yeager doubled to put LA ahead to stay.

Expos 4-3, Mets 3-4

Andre Dawson's 10th-inning single won the first game and extended his hitting streak to 19 games, the longest in the league this year. It also matched Montreal's club record. But in the second game, with the chance to provide more heroics in the ninth inning, he struck out and his streak ended.

The first-game single scored Ron LeFlore, who had walked and stolen second. In the eighth inning, the Expos scored three unearned runs to halt Pat Zachry's scoreless-inning streak at 27. The third run was scored by LeFlore, who stole home. In the nightcap, Lee Mazzilli and Jerry Morales homered for the Mets. Mark Bombardier took a two-hit shut-out into the eighth inning, then surrendered homers to Larry Parrish and Rowland Office.

Mariners Place Wills At Helm, Seek Direction

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) —

The pathetic Seattle Mariners, losers of 10 consecutive games and 21 of 25 contests since the All-Star break, have taken what President Dan O'Brien called a "new direction," with former base-stealing star Maury Wills at the helm.

The Mariners announced Monday afternoon that Darrell Johnson, the only manager the American League team had ever known, was being dismissed and Wills, a star shortstop mostly with the Los Angeles Dodgers during his playing days, was his replacement.

Wills made his debut as a major league skipper Monday night, but it made no difference as the Mariners lost their 10th straight, an 8-3 setback at the hands of the California Angels.

The loss dropped the Mariners into last place in the AL West, one game behind the Angels.

Since his retirement as a player in 1972, Wills has made it clear that he wanted to be a big league manager. He becomes the third black to hold such a position, following Frank Robinson, who managed the Cleveland Indians from 1975-77, and Larry Doby, who guided the Chicago White Sox for part of one season after that.

As far as being baseball's third black manager is concerned, Wills said: "I hadn't thought of it. But many times I wondered why I didn't get an offer to manage in the major leagues. I did a lot of soul-searching. I didn't come up with anything feasible."

Johnson, who managed the Boston Red Sox to an AL pennant in 1975, lasted 3½ seasons with the Mariners, who were formed as an expansion team in 1977.

Johnson, 52, guided his teams to records of 64-98, 56-104, 67-95 and 39-65 this season.

Bullpen Coach Don Bryant was also dismissed by the Mariners.

"We appreciate everything Darrell has done," O'Brien said during a news conference at Anaheim Stadium. "But we want to take a new direction and we think we have the man to do it."

"I think he (Wills) was the best baseball man available. I hope he manages the way he played, aggressive and effective."

Wills, 47, has been hired to manage the Mariners through the 1982 season.

Wills began his major league career as a player for the Dodgers in 1959 and in 1962, he stole 104 bases to break the long-standing record of 96 established by Ty Cobb. Lou Brock stole 118 bases in 1974 to break Wills' mark.

Wills played with the Dodgers until 1966, when he was traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates. He went to the Montreal Expos after the 1968 season and was traded back to Los Angeles during the 1969 campaign.

He had a lifetime batting average of .281 in 14 big league seasons and finished his career with 586 stolen bases.

Wills managed four seasons of winter baseball in Mexico — at Hermosillo in 1970 and 1973 and at Mazatlan in 1978-79. His clubs made the playoffs all four years.

Ex-Pirates Are Cut

Two former members of the East Carolina University football team found themselves on the sideline yesterday when the National Football League made cuts in its rosters.

Mike Brewington of the Kansas City Chiefs was placed on waivers by that club, while Billy Ray Washington was cut by the Denver Broncos.

Brewington was a linebacker, while Washington was a wide receiver.

The cuts left three former Pirates, one off this past year's team, on the NFL rosters. Sam Harrell, who completed his eligibility this past fall, remains with the Minnesota Vikings, while Eddie Hicks (New York Giants) and Zack Valentine (Pittsburgh Steelers), remain with the teams they played with last season.

Rose Practice Is For All

Greenville Rose's football practice, which began yesterday, will include all 10th, 11th and 12th graders, as just 11th and 12th graders are reported in Sunday's "Daily Reflector."

Catching Up On Billy & George After Weeks In The Soviet Union

NEW YORK (AP) — After three weeks of virtual isolation from the outside world at the Moscow Olympics it's time to catch up on what you've missed on the sports pages.

What's the first headline that meets your eyes? "Billy Martin Says His Office Was Bugged by Ex-Boss George Steinbrenner."

"Steinbrenner Calls Martin Book 'Sensationalism' and 'Garbage,' Seeks Ban on Publication." Getting up to date, and checking the standings you see Steinbrenner's Yankees, rallying from their 1979 collapse, leading the American League East by a comfortable margin. Next door, there are Billy Martin's Oakland A's, the late doormats of the circuit, holding down second place in the AL West, a modern miracle.

Reggie Jackson, Billy the Kid's onetime chief antagonist, is on a hitting binge that has the Yankees rolling. Billy is off the kippapoo juice — by his own admission — and is proving, as he has so often done before, that as a field tactician he has few, if any, peers. Steinbrenner, at peace with himself and his pet sports enterprise, has been maintaining a low profile.

So why open this old can of worms?

Greed, that's why. A publisher's agent approaches Billy: Bare your soul, haul some skeletons out of the closet, throw the spotlight on some of the raunchy stuff that takes place behind closed doors in the players' lockers and you can be a millionaire.

No sweat. Just talk into this little machine. You don't even have to compose. Somebody else will do the writing. Tell it like it was. Don't hold back anything. If you have to gild the facts a little, what the heck, people will love it. The juicier the merrier.

Heavy stuff. It's enough to tempt stronger men. The question is: Is it worth it?

Truth of the matter is that the Martin-Steinbrenner-Jackson Follies got a trifle boring on their first airing — live and in living color. The taped reruns are as soporific as a Joe Frazier hook.

New President Seeks Harmony

MOSCOW (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch has taken over the presidency of the International Olympic Committee bent on "restoring harmony" to the Olympic movement.

"We must restore everything that was destroyed in the last few months," the new IOC president from Spain said after taking over the chair from Lord Killanin. "We must create harmony in the Olympic movement, so that the youth of the world may meet in an atmosphere of friendship and joy the next time."

Samaranch's reference, of course, was to the recent 36-nation boycott of the Moscow Olympics spearheaded by the United States.

At his first news conference as president, Samaranch was a distinct contrast to Killanin. The Spanish diplomat was very serious in front of his microphone, listening to questions with a worried frown. Meanwhile, the 66-year-old Killanin bowed out with his usual jokes.

"I am now an old age pensioner," Killanin told newsmen. "One of the things I shall be able to do when I get home to Dublin is to apply for a free pass on the buses."

Doctors Reluctant To Say If Richard Will Resume His Career

HOUSTON (AP) — Controversy and anger hovered outside his hospital room but inside, Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard — recovering from a stroke that could have been fatal — had other matters on his mind.

"One of the messages he wrote to me was 'one quart of black walnut ice cream.' We got him the ice cream, and I fed it to him," mused Tom Reich, Richard's agent and friend.

Reich said Monday he had visited Richard six times since Wednesday, when the National League strikeout artist underwent surgery to remove a blood clot that formed in an artery on the right side of his neck.

The weakness Richard suffered in his left arm and leg prevents him from gripping objects or from standing, Reich said. His speech is improving, Reich said, but he still communicates by notes.

And although he has no grip in his left hand, Richard's love for ice cream is as strong as ever.

"We were in the other night as the nurse was feeding him more ice cream," Reich said. "J.R. finally took the spoon in his right hand and started taking J.R.-sized bites."

Reich's description of Richard came after Dr. Charles McCollum, the surgeon who removed the blood clot, and Dr. Harold Brelsford, the team physician for the Astros, were reluctant to say specifically if Richard might be able to pitch again this season.

"I think it is very possible he will not be back this year," McCollum said. Asked about Richard's future, McCollum added:

"We have seen people with major strokes return to almost-normal activities, and J.R.'s youth and tremendous physical conditioning should be in his favor."

Reich was more to the point. "In my own layman medical terms, 'No way!'" Reich said when asked if Richard could play again this season. "But that's not worrying me now. All I care about is J.R. recovering."

Richard was placed on Houston's 21-day disabled list July 16 after repeatedly complaining of arm fatigue.

Prior to being put on the list, the pitcher was examined by Brelsford and Dr. Frank Jobe, team physician for the Los Angeles Dodgers, and neither could find any major physical problems.

Richard underwent tests during a three-day hospital stay and doctors found blockage in the artery in Richard's neck.

The doctors ruled out immediate surgery, McCollum said, hoping the problem would be alleviated by Richard's development of collateral circulation through other arteries.

Brelsford reacted strongly when asked if doctors would alter any part of Richard's treatment, given the opportunity.

NFL Teams Shuffle Names

By The Associated Press
Randy Dean grew up in Wisconsin around the colorful-sounding towns of Whitefish Bay and Lox Landing.

The Green Bay Packers were only a stone's throw away.

"I was a Packer fan all my life," Dean confesses.

Now Dean will get the chance to realize a lifelong dream — to play for his favorite National Football League team. The quarterback was sent by the New York Giants to the Packers Monday for a "solid middle round draft choice."

It was a desperate move by the Packers, who lost David Whitehurst and Lynn Dickey during Saturday's exhibition game with the San Diego Chargers.

"I can only look at this in a positive way," said Dean. "I have something to prove to myself. I can't say this was a big surprise with Phil Simms No.1 and Scott Brunner looking so good along with Dave Rader. I knew a decision had to be made. They went with the players who best fit into their plans."

Meanwhile, other NFL teams continued to make cuts during their pre-season training camps.

The Dallas Cowboys cut six free agent rookies and seventh-round draft pick Lester Brown, a running back from Clemson who was shifted to cornerback. Also, free safety Randy Hughes and wide receiver Drew Pearson headed for the sidelines with injuries that are expected to keep them out of action for a few weeks and reserve offensive guard Burton Lawless decided to retire.

The Kansas City Chiefs waived six players, including tackle Rob Martinovich, a 10th-round draft pick from Notre Dame, and linebacker Mike Brewington, a 12th-round pick from East Carolina.

Seven rookies were cut by the Atlanta Falcons, including Mike Babby, a defensive back from Oklahoma who was the team's 11th-round draft choice. The Denver Broncos placed seventh-round choice John Havekost, a guard from Nebraska, on the injured reserve list and waived six rookies.

Running back Mark Loftus from Syracuse was among 10 players cut from the roster of the New England Patriots.

In other developments, Miami Dolphins tackle Jon Giesler was expected to be sidelined six to eight weeks with a shoulder injury. The second-year veteran underwent surgery Sunday for a shoulder separation suffered in a scrimmage with the New Orleans Saints Saturday.

The Seattle Seahawks lost backup quarterback Steve Myer for three to four weeks due to a severe bruise in his back. He was injured Saturday in the Seahawks' intra-squad scrimmage.

Sister Susie Knows The Way

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Susie Jaeger, three years older than Wimbledon quarterfinalist Andrea Jaeger, may know something other women in pro tennis would like to learn.

Susie, an amateur who advanced to today's second round of the U.S. Open Clay Court tennis championships, holds a 9-0 advantage over her sister in head-to-head matches.

"I've played with her so much I know everything she's likely to try," said Susie, 18, who will be a freshman at Stanford this fall.

However, she hasn't played against her sister in more than a year and most of the competition came when Andrea was younger.

"I don't consider that I play in her shadow," said Susie about her sister after advancing with a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Australian Bettyann Dent.

"We're just very different individuals with different goals. I've always wanted to play tennis to get an education.

"That's what I've done. Andrea has her goals and we're each excited about each other. There's no sibling rivalry. We get along very well," she said.

The sisters from Lincolnshire, Ill., who are coached by their father, Roland, both have a long way to go to meet for the 10th time in this tournament. They're in opposite brackets of the 56-player women's field and would not meet until Saturday afternoon's nationally televised (CBS) championship match.

Andrea, seeded fourth, was scheduled to make her first appearance in the $350,000 tournament today against Ann Henricksson.

The women's tournament, which is a Colgate Series event, lost one of its seeded players when No.7 Mima Jausovec had to withdraw due to an arm injury that has bothered her since the French Open.

The other seeded women all were scheduled to make their debut in the tournament today, along with the top 10 seeded men.

There was one major upset in men's play with John Hayes, who was so obscure that tournament officials said he was from Australia instead of Cos Cob, Conn.

Hayes, ranked No.146 in the current men's computer listings, ousted Raul Ramirez of Mexico, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4. Ramirez, seeded No.11, is ranked No.27.

"It's the biggest win in my life," said Hayes, who had to win three qualifying matches during weekend play to make the 64-player bracket.

Hayes, a 25-year-old who graduated from Princeton University in 1977, has been playing in satellite tournaments for most of the year.

"I've earned about $7,000 after playing 20 straight weeks," he said. "It isn't easy, you can't afford to eat well and stay in the best places."

Australians Phil Dent, the No.12 seed, and No.13 Kim Warwick both advanced along with No.16 Terry Moor.

The only other seeded man eliminated was No.15 Colin Dibley of Australia, who fell to Paul Kronk, 6-3, 7-6.

The list of women's winners also included Dana Gilbert, who won here as an amateur in 1978. Gilbert defeated Elizabeth Little of Australia, 6-0, 4-6, 6-2. She was to have played Jausovec today, but instead will be going against Michele Weiss, who got into the tournament when Jausovec withdrew.

Shook Denies A Jaycee 'Loan'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wilson, now state board chairman for the Jaycees, was the state president during Mrs. Lacey's reign. Mrs. Lacey, who was recently married, lives in Newland.
 In an interview Monday, she said she received a $2,500 loan by check from the Jaycees to pay her expenses as the state titleholder. She said her business manager also obtained a second loan of $500 to cover due bills, but she denied ever receiving a cash loan from Wilson.

East was allowed to win the diamond, he would be forced to yield a ruff and sluff. And if West won the diamond, he would have to lead away from the king of diamonds into declarer's combined ace-queen tenace. In either case, declarer would lose only two club tricks and one diamond.

Have you spotted what the two lines have in common? In both cases declarer realized that he had no play for his contract if West started with only five diamonds. (In view of the overall, it was illogical to hope that East held a doubleton king.) So both declarers planned their play on the basis that West held a six-card diamond suit for his vulnerable overall.

Cable TV Award To Ted Turner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ted Turner, owner of the Cable News Network, has received the first Tammy Award given by the Cable Television and Marketing Association.

The Atlanta television tycoon and sportsman was honored Monday for being the person "who made the most significant contributions during the past year to the growth of the cable television industry."

Turner owns Atlanta's WTBS-TV, which was the first independent television station made available for cable viewing nationwide via satellite. He also owns the Atlanta Braves and Hawks and was two-time captain of winning America's Cup yachts.

He started the 24-hour news network in June.

"CNN gives America a new way to look at news," said Gregory Liptak, chairman of the cable association, which is holding its annual convention this week in San Francisco.

PBS Vietnam Saga Is Withering On The Vine

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Public television's stout line of corporate benefactors, so generously supportive of the arts on PBS, has withered in the face of a project not as easy to get behind as "Live From Lincoln Center."

As a result, PBS' 13-hour Vietnam saga, tracing the 1975 American evacuation, has gone begging for funds. The ambitious and worthy series may still be made, if help arrives, but it will likely emerge an abridged version of the original vision.

The project, produced by station WGBH in Boston, intended to dissect that American nightmare, displaying its many parts before a public that — now safely distanced — is seemingly eager to comprehend the whole.

PBS funding is always a precarious art, but the foundation of this project's deal seems especially complex and fragile. WGBH has a deal with three European TV networks — including ATV in England, which co-produced the controversial "Death of a Princess" with WGBH last year — to produce seven of the proposed 13 episodes.

To get the project going, and to keep those European partners involved, WGBH had counted on a $1 million grant from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (a total of $4 million is needed). CPB Program Fund Director Lewis Freedman turned down the request last week, contending that CPB should fund programs of more contemporary subject matters, such as the Equal Rights Amendment.

Now there is the chance that the European partners, unable to wait indefinitely for WGBH to raise money, may drop out.

But the really interesting aspect of WGBH's problems is the disinclination of PBS corporate patrons — such as Exxon, IBM, Xerox and Arco — to help out.

"We all knew this would be a tough one for corporate America," says WGBH's manager for news and public affairs, Peter McGhee. "We knew it would be the last part of the poity wanting to talk about Vietnam. But we did think there was a small group who had enough faith in the system to examine it."

WGBH thought it had found its corporate hero in the Exxon Corporation. Exxon usually prefers to fund in the area of the arts, "Great Performances," and such. But to the surprise of WGBH, Exxon "said they wanted to do it," according to one close to the project.

"They believed in the project. They knew there were few companies who had the guts to do it. They saw themselves as one who would."

The producers were excited about Exxon's interest, because among public TV's friends in big business, Exxon has the reputation for "respecting the creative process," as one PBS producer put it. Exxon usually leaves its beneficiaries alone.

But suddenly, Exxon said no. "The chief operating officer (Howard Kaufman) of the company nixed it," according to a source connected to the proposed series.

"I don't know why he said no, but apparently there's an apprehension that a program about Vietnam would be as divisive as the war itself."

Kaufman was not available for comment, but an Exxon spokesman said, "I can't believe a decision like this, on one program, would go to that high a level (Kaufman)." The official reason Exxon gives for not going in on the project is that the company is doubling its support of PBS fine news series, "The MacNeil-Lehrer Report," to $1 million annually next year, "precluding our support of other public interest programming this year."

Still, WGBH has hope. "I think there may still be a few stout hearts in America," says McGhee. "We haven't stopped looking. If we do succeed, it will probably be through some accidental intersection of interests. I don't know, maybe we'll find some board chairman who lost a son in the war..."

Rather Raps Tass Charge

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet-controlled media charges, and Dan Rather emphatically denies, that the CBS News correspondent took part in the killing of three workers while he was filming Moslem rebels in Afghanistan.

The Soviet news agency Tass on Monday quoted the Afghan newspaper Hagigate Enqelabe Sowt as saying two members of a rebel gang who recently surrendered to government authorities recounted that toward the end of March American newsmen making a film joined the gang.

It said the gang seized three workers in the village of Fatehabad in southern Afghanistan, and "one of the U.S. newsmen took charge, ordering the bandits first to stone the captives and then to cut off their heads. The whole of the bloody sequence was photographed and filmed by the Americans."

No New Talks Set In Actors' Strike

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Striking actors planned to parade in front of 20th Century-Fox studios today after the latest negotiating session with industry executives ended without bringing the 15-day walkout closer to resolution.

Kim Fellner, spokeswoman for the Screen Actors Guild, said members of SAG and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists would stage the parade as a repeat of the demonstration last month by some 1,000 actors at the Burbank Studios, home of Warner Brothers and Columbia.

The first talks in 12 days between the two unions and producers recessed Monday after three hours. Phyllis Cayse, commissioner for the local Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said there had been no progress, and no further talks had been scheduled.

The lingering contract stalemate affects some 67,000 actors.

"Management set resolution of the pay TV issue as precondition to further talks," Ms. Fellner said Monday. "They refused to discuss any of the other contract issues."

Only Your Paper Carrier Loses When You Do Not Pay Promptly.

"Hi. My name is Cary and I represent your Daily Reflector newspaper carrier. And if you have a few minutes I'd like to explain something about my job.

"All paper carriers for The Daily Reflector are independent contractors. What this means is that I pay the newspaper a wholesale rate for the papers on my route. What I charge you is the retail rate. The difference in the two rates is my profit.

"The Daily Reflector doesn't lose any money when you don't pay me on time. I lose some of my profit.

A tip from Cary to help you pay your Daily Reflector newspaper carrier on time:

Put the money, or check, for your carrier in the same convenient place each collection period. Make sure household members know where the payment is so that anyone can pay the carrier at collection time.

Speaking of Your Health... Lester L. Coleman, M.D. Kick the Sleeping Pill Habit. For the past 20 years my husband has been taking some kind of sleeping pill. Name it and he has taken it. As soon as someone mentions a new one he's off and running to get it. He's only 46 years old. I'm afraid that eventually he'll be in a lot of trouble. Is there any way of getting him to break the habit? — Mrs. K.W., Tenn. Dear Mrs. W.: The abuse and overuse of sleeping pills and tranquilizing drugs have resulted in an uncontrolled epidemic. Drugs that once were available only by prescription can now be purchased on the black market. Consequently, there can be no control over the amount that any individual takes. Drug dependence and drug addiction has been the inevitable result. Accidental deaths attributed to these drugs have reached a level that has aroused great concern among physicians and public health officials. It is estimated that almost 10 billion sleeping pills are consumed each year in America alone. It is also estimated that more than 25 percent of all poisonings that require hospitalization are caused by overdoses of sleeping pills, tranquilizers and, particularly, barbiturates. It is obvious that none of these drugs is the answer to the anxieties that exist in this frenetic world. There are many who believe that they are the total answer to anxiety, fears, stress and emotional tension. They are not.

$7,500 Rule On Tax Cheaters

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Law Journal says the Internal Revenue Service has decided not to prosecute most tax evaders who cheat for less than $7,500 over three years — but the IRS is advising taxpayers not to press their luck.

"The jails are full of people who thought they knew what they could get away with," said an IRS spokesman, Leon Levine. He refused, however, to confirm or deny the report.

According to a copyright story in the Aug. 11 issue of the Journal, the IRS has told its agents not to pursue criminal prosecution of most tax cheaters unless underpayments average at least $2,500 a year for three straight years.

The policy, reportedly contained in a classified directive issued last month, provided the first written indication of dollar limits for tax prosecutions, according to the weekly publication for the legal profession.

Previously, there was only an unwritten policy that cases involving less than $1,000 in unpaid taxes would not be prosecuted, it said.

According to an unidentified source quoted by the Journal, the new policy allows for exceptions in the case of flagrant violators or celebrities whose cases might draw enough publicity to serve as a deterrent to ordinary taxpayers contemplating cheating.

"If they're going to look at a doctor, they'll want one who just wrote a popular diet book," the source said. "If they're going to look at an attorney, they'll want someone well-known, particularly a tax lawyer."

The guidelines do not cover most cases of tax underpayments, uncovered in routine audits, which are handled as civil matters. The new policy is only for criminal matters.

The Journal said that in civil cases, the IRS can impose a penalty of 50 percent of the tax owed. But in criminal cases, convicted taxpayers face a maximum penalty of up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine for each year of evasion.

Unidentified tax experts quoted by the Journal said that the new guidelines could mean that a married taxpayer with two children earning $20,000 a year and not itemizing deductions could file no return at all and not risk a felony prosecution. The experts said the tax due and civil penalties involved would amount to only $2,265, less than the limit.

The article said the guidelines, issued July 15 by Thomas J. Clancy, director of the IRS Criminal Investigation Division, were expected to drastically reduce the number of on-going tax prosecutions and force agents to concentrate on major cases of tax fraud.

In fiscal 1979, the division examined 9,780 cases, of which 1,820 resulted in indictments, the Journal said. Of those 1,611 resulted in convictions.

As reported by the Journal, which did not say how it obtained the IRS document, the guidelines are:

—Not to recommend felony prosecution in easily proven tax fraud cases unless they involve underpayments averaging at least $2,500 a year in each of three successive years.

—Not to recommend felony prosecution in complex tax evasion schemes requiring difficult methods of proof unless the total amount of unpaid taxes is at least $10,000, including at least $3,000 for any single year.

—Not to recommend misdemeanor prosecution for delivery or disclosure of false returns or documents unless the unpaid tax involved is more than $500.

Military Court Nears Actual Garwood Trial

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A military court which has considered more than 60 defense motions in the case of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood today had only a handful of proposals still to be decided before the case could go to trial.

Pretrial proceedings were resuming today at Camp Lejeune as Col. R. E. Switzer, the judge, considered a motion seeking dismissal of the charges against Garwood.

The Marine Corps is court-martialing Garwood on charges that he deserted and collaborated with the enemy in Vietnam. Garwood, now 34, was a 19-year-old jeep driver when he disappeared near Da Nang in 1965. Garwood returned to the United States last year.

If convicted of the charges, he could be sentenced to life in prison.

Pretrial proceedings in the case began in December, when the Marine Corps officially announced that it would prosecute. A hearing to determine whether there was enough evidence for court-martial took nearly two months.

Garwood changed lawyers twice this year, forcing delays while his new attorneys familiarized themselves with his case.

In recent weeks, courtroom time has been filled with arguments on defense motions ranging from arguments for dismissal to an unsuccessful request for a larger courtroom.

But as Garwood headed into today's session, only a few motions remained.

His team of lawyers argued last week that charges against him should be dropped because, the defense said, the Nixon administration had a policy of not prosecuting allegations of misconduct against POWs returning from Vietnam.

Also pending was a motion seeking psychiatric evaluations of former POWs who will testify for the prosecution. The defense hoped to use those evaluations to question the credibility of those witnesses.

Prices Mixed On Leaf Marts

Prices were mixed on the three North Carolina flue-cured tobacco markets Monday, with the quality of offerings up from last week.

Incomplete figures from the Federal-State Market News Service showed that sales on the Old and Middle Belt totaled 1,495,191 pounds of tobacco for an average price of $116.38 per hundred pounds, down $4.22 from last Thursday's sales. Season totals for the belt are 4,002,223 pounds sold for an average of $120.14 per hundredweight.

On the Eastern Belt, sales totaled 7,214,311 pounds at an average of $123.12, up $4.69 per hundredweight over last Thursday. That brings the total for the season to 27,064,390 pounds at an average of $119.39.

At the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt markets, a total of 6,457,238 pounds were sold for an average price per hundredweight of $127.61, up $5.45 from Thursday's sales. The season's total is 21,990,130 pounds sold at an average of $124.55 per hundred pounds.

In South Carolina, incomplete totals showed Monday sales of 3,734,873 pounds for $4,748,575, an average price per hundredweight of $127.14. The price was up $3.80 over Thursday, the last day tobacco was sold on the 10 Palmetto State markets.

For the season 12,038,609 pounds of leaf had been sold in South Carolina for $14,824,545, or a hundredweight average price of $123.14.

Dies Of Injuries In South Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — An American soldier died of severe head injuries today in a U.S. Army hospital hours after he was found lying unconscious on the side of a road in Uijongbu, six miles north of here, a U.S. Army spokesman said.

The soldier was identified as Kenneth R. Weldon, 20, from Vancouver, Wash., a helicopter mechanic with the 128th aviation company stationed at Camp Red Cloud.

Weldon was found unconscious by a Korean taxi driver and immediately taken to the 121st evacuation hospital in Seoul, the spokesman said.

Toyota Hiking Retail Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Toyota has increased the suggested base retail prices of its cars and trucks, the leading import sellers, an average of $284, pushing the price of its least expensive model past $4,000.

The increases, which average 4.7 percent, were needed because of "continued cost pressures, including currency exchange," Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A. said Monday.

Toyota's chief competitor among importers, Nissan, also cited unfavorable exchange rates in raising prices last month an average 4.5 percent on its Datsun vehicles.

Toyota increased the price for options an average 2.5 percent. A spokesman said he did not know by how much the two increases would raise the price of an average Toyota car.

A $200 or 4.1 percent increase on the Corolla two-door sedan raised its list price to $5,088, while a 4.9 percent or $450 increase raised the price of Toyota's most expensive car, the Cressida, to $9,649.

The price of Corolla Tercel, Toyota's least expensive car, was boosted $250 or 6.3 percent to $4,198.

The only cars now listing under $4,000 are Honda's Civic 1300, which lists for $3,949, and Mazda's GLC, which carries a $3,945 sticker in most states. Taxes, registration and transportation to the dealer bring the actual cost to above $4,000 for all.

It was Toyota's fourth and largest increase of the model year. The first 1980 models cost an average 2.5 percent more than final 1979 models. Prices were raised again by 2.7 percent in March and 2.8 percent in June on selected models.

Arrest 3 In Cocaine Bust

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Three men have been arrested on charges of trafficking in cocaine in what law enforcement authorities say may be the largest cocaine bust in the state.

"To my knowledge, this is the largest amount of cocaine ever seized by law enforcement officers in North Carolina," said C.L. Windham, assistant director of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Federal and state authorities seized a plane and confiscated about 10 pounds of cocaine shortly before 1 a.m. Monday at the Hickory Airport.

Windham said the cocaine apparently was flown into the United States from another country, but he declined to say which country or give details of the bust.

The cocaine was estimated at between $400,000 and $1 million, depending on whether it is pure.

Authorities identified the three men as Durrell Wayne Johnson, 31, of Mavis-Bale, Va., Lawrence Ozella, 28, of Milford, Mass., and Douglas McDonald, 37, of Van Nuys, Calif.

DaVanzo Appointed Bd. Vice-Chairman

Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has named Dr. John P. DaVanzo, an East Carolina University pharmacologist, to serve as vice chairman of the N.C. Board of Science and Technology.

Hunt is chairman of the 15-member board, established in 1963 to accelerate the state's economic growth by effectively using available scientific and technological resources.

DaVanzo, professor of pharmacology at the ECU School of Medicine, has served as a member of the board since September, 1979. He has considerable experience organizing academic and industrial research groups.

Prior to joining the medical school faculty in 1976, DaVanzo was vice president of research and development for a major international pharmaceutical company.

He currently heads a team of medical school investigators who are working to develop a drug to reduce high blood pressure. The project is funded by a private pharmaceutical company.

The N.C. Board of Science and Technology is responsible for identifying research needs in public and private agencies. It will allocate $450,000 this year to support and expand research projects conducted by North Carolina scientists.

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — A 15-foot construction ditch collapsed Monday, trapping a 9-year-old Kannapolis boy who had been playing in the bottom of the excavation.

Authorities said Brian E. Carter was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident, which occurred in a subdivision where the youth's father had been working.

A rescue squad worked for more than two hours to free the youngster's body.

Imelda Seeking Loans In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Imelda Romualdez Marcos, first lady of the Philippines, is in this country to secure two large loans for her country, according to a published report.

The 51-year-old wife of President Ferdinand Marcos flew to Washington on Monday to sign for two loans totaling $83 million from the World Bank, the New York Daily News reported.

A bank spokesman was quoted as saying the loans would be used for watershed management and a livestock and fisheries project.

Mrs. Marcos, who arrived in New York last week, dined with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and his wife, Nancy, before undertaking the banking trip.
