KENNEDY WITHDRAWS — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy stands with his wife Joan, as he announces Monday night in New York that he is withdrawing from the 1980 Democratic presidential race. After losing the party rules fight earlier in the evening he said "my name will not be placed in nomination." (AP Laserphoto)

The Quest Is Over: Kennedy Withdraws

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — On a wall in Edward Kennedy's home is a 1977 birthday gift from his sister Eunice, a photograph of sailboats and sailors with a handwritten inscription: "The last shall be first and you is the last, boy."

For more than a decade it seemed the last of the Kennedy brothers would run for the White House. When he finally did, the legend of Camelot fell apart with stunning swiftness.

He fought on through primary defeat after defeat, on to the Democratic National Convention.

He lost there, too, on a crucial rules fight Monday night that clinched the nomination for President Carter.

And when it came time to face the inevitable, Kennedy did that, too.

"I am a realist...The effort on the nomination is over," said the man who got into the race a 30-point favorite in the polls.

"My name will not be placed in nomination," he said to the stunned gasps of his supporters. "But the effort for Democratic principles must and will continue."

His aides said that until the very end, he never discussed quitting, not even with them. "He decided after the balloting," one aide said later.

"He considered it. He decided and that was it."

He called Carter, a man he once had ridiculed as a "clone" of Ronald Reagan, congratulated him — and that was it.

It was the end of what was supposed to be an easy path to the White House. Easy it wasn't.

But it will be said that Kennedy stood and fought to the end, marshaling resources that no other American politician could find under similar circumstances.

Lagging 700 delegates behind Carter in the weeks before the convention, he commanded valuable, nationwide news coverage wherever he went.

Chronically in need of money, Kennedy sold more than a 1,000 tickets at $10 apiece to a rock and roll concert at Hickory Hill, the home where Robert F. Kennedy once lived.

Could Carter invite his delegates to the White House? Kennedy entertained at Hyannis, Mass. And he invited them to his home in Virginia, where Kennedy family moments were everywhere.

He drew crowds everywhere. He visited with editors at Time Inc. in New York, weeks after the primaries ended, and several hundred people stood in the street to cheer him when he left.

But for all that, Kennedy went to the convention without the votes to win.

It was a familiar feeling, one he'd endured from the day the voters of Iowa rendered the first verdict of the election year.

He lost the Iowa caucuses, on Jan. 21, by a 2-to-1 margin.

"We could have done a little better," he joked then. But it got worse.

He lost 24 of 34 primaries, many by embarrassing margins of 20 or 30 percentage points.

Half his victories came the final day of the primary season, when all but the most diehard Kennedy backers believed Carter had clinched his nomination.

For the most part, Kennedy was able to claim victories only in states where he endured long, ragged days of campaigning that overcame the better-financed, smoother effort mounted by a president whose very unpopularity helped entice Kennedy into the race.

While Carter stayed in the White House, dispatching federal aid and campaign surrogates around the country, Kennedy, a myth no longer, survived endless interviews with local television stations, endless rides on small, bumpy airplanes, endless questions about why he kept running and when he was going to quit.

Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., introduced him to a crowd at a shopping mall one April day as the man "who may be the next president of the United States." Kennedy, beyond embarrassment now, stepped to the microphone and thanked Kostmayer, "who may be re-elected your congressman."

Carter, Future Clear, Is Courting Kennedy

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, his path to renomination cleared in a convention floor battle, is playing ardent suitor to his vanquished rival, Edward M. Kennedy, in hopes of achieving a reconciliation that could energize his re-election campaign.

Carter and Kennedy aides met early today to discuss procedures for negotiations that White House press secretary Jody Powell said would be held today to try to resolve remaining platform issues.

But even while professing optimism about an eventual reconciliation, two top Carter aides reiterated that there were still serious differences between the two sides.

Hamilton Jordan, the president's campaign manager, said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" show he is confident that "with hard work in the next few days," the party will come out of the convention unified. But he said of Carter:

"Both he and Sen. Kennedy realize that some of the real differences between them cannot be lightly glossed over."

And Jack Watson, who succeeded Jordan as Carter's chief of staff, said the administration was still adamant about rejecting Kennedy-backed minority platform planks calling for a $12 billion job program and wage and price controls.

However, former United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young hinted in a CBS-TV interview that the Carter forces might be willing to go ahead with a compromise that generally supported a massive jobs program but without specifying Kennedy's $12 billion price tag.

Kennedy, meanwhile, made it clear in ending his presidential bid that he would continue fighting to put his mark on the platform and was going ahead with plans to address the Democratic National Convention tonight during the debate on the economic planks.

Today's convention session, starting at 11 a.m. EDT, was being devoted almost entirely to debating the platform.

Kennedy's long-shot hope to take the nomination from Carter ended Monday night when the convention supported a rule binding delegates to abide by the results of state primaries and conventions.

"The effort on the nomination is over," Kennedy told a news conference at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel shortly after that vote.

"I have called President Carter and congratulated him," said Kennedy. "My name will not be placed in nomination."

Powell said the telephone conversation was "a very positive and very productive conversation... They agreed the task now is to get this party together and to deal with the threat that the new Republican leadership poses."

Even before the telephone call, White House staff chief Jack Watson told reporters, "I will say to you unequivocally that the Carter-Mondale people at this convention want to unite the party. We want the senator's support. We need the senator's support."

The key to getting Kennedy's support was the platform.

"I continue to care deeply about where this party stands," Kennedy said in his withdrawal statement. "And I hope the delegates will stand with me for a truly democratic platform."

"I will speak to the convention about the economic (Please Turn To Page 6)

Several Qualify As Bidders For Redevelopment Sites

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Stephen F. Horne II and Phillip R. Dixon, partners in a Greenville law firm, were approved by the Redevelopment Commission last night as bidders on a disposal parcel on Evans Street across from Sheppard Memorial Library.

In qualifying to submit a bid on the parcel, located north of the Home Savings and Loan Association property, Horne informed the commissioners that the attorneys planned to build an office structure to house the law firm.

Horne said that he and Dixon propose an initial structure of 2,000 to 2,300 square feet, with an additional 2,000 square feet projected as a future expansion. Ample parking is indicated in the preliminary plans for the lot, which is zoned for Office and Institutional usage.

Joe Laney, commission executive director, noted that the parcel is currently being used by the Parking Authority for temporary parking facilities.

Reynolds May and Tipton Builders qualified as bidders on disposal parcel I-5, located at the corner of Pitt and Wyatt Streets in the Southside area, both indicating plans to construct single family homes on the 34,720 square foot tract.

The parcel was initially approved for sale to Joe Bowen, who was the apparent successful bidder earlier this summer. However, Bowen notified the Redevelopment Commission that he was withdrawing his bid and the City Council determined that the parcel should be readvertised for bids.

In a third item regarding a disposal parcel, Jonah Reese qualified as a bidder on a tract located behind Reese Furniture Co., containing 37,268 square feet. It was pointed out that plans call for the construction of a storage facility on the parcel, located between 14th and 15th Streets east of the railroad. The tract will also provide parking area for the business.

In other business, Faye Brewington, Southside project manager and staff real estate officer, reported that four acquisitions took place since the July meeting, involving three parcels in the South Evans area and one in West Meadowbrook.

Mrs. Brewington said that three relocations were handled during the period, involving two in South Evans and one in the Central Business District at 805 Evans Street. No demolition or parcel disposition activity took place, she reported.

Laney said that four rehabilitation projects, all located in the West Greenville area, were closed since the last meeting. He said that the work involved two loans, a grant, and one loan/grant combination.

The director brought the commissioners up to date on the status of downtown rehabilitation, noting that out of 93 structures designated for some type of work, 89 have been brought up to standards and certified by the city. Two of the structures were demolished, he said, and the remaining two have been turned over to the city for action.

Laney said that the project amounted to over $1 million in rehabilitation work, all involving private investment.

He added that the Lee house at 805 Evans Street in the CBD area has been nominated by the state for inclusion on the national register of historical sites. Laney said that the house is no longer occupied.

According to Laney, the commission is in "good shape" regarding the close out of the CBD project in the near future.

Commissioners approved the pay plan for the agency for the new fiscal year. The plan, which is comparable with the city's pay schedule, provides for a seven percent cost of living increase and for employees who are not on the first step of the plan, a one step or five percent merit increase is included to put those employees on the pay schedule.

EXTENDED AREA SERVICE?

It seems to me it's been well over a year since the Pitt County commissioners had Carolina Telephone people at their meeting to talk about Extended Area Service that would tie the whole county together by no-toll telephone. Since that time I've heard no public discussion of the project, which I think is one that would greatly benefit the citizens of the county if it were carried through to completion. Fountain and Grifton telephone subscribers are still cut off completely from the rest of the county and certain other areas tied in with Greenville aren't linked to each other, for instance, Farmville and Bethel. What's happening? F. C.

According to County Manager Reginald Gray, consideration of the project was turned over to the Pitt County Development Commission during or shortly after the meeting you mentioned.

Development Commission Director Reese Hart said a committee made up of some municipality mayors, the chairman of the county commissioners, a representative of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, a phone company representative, a Sheriff Department representative and others is studying the matter, "analyzing telephone patterns." He said he could not say when the outcome of the study will be told to the public.

'Blessed' Texans Glad Allen Did No More Damage Than He Did

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Two people died, hundreds of thousands were forced from their homes and the damage will probably exceed $200 million. But Gov. Bill Clements says Texas is "truly blessed" that Hurricane Allen did not obliterate the Gulf Coast.

"We all feel very fortunate... that we didn't have more of a catastrophe than we did," Clements said Monday after making an aerial survey of the flood-ravaged lower Gulf Coast.

However, in the Caribbean, where Allen raged last week with winds of up to 170 mph, evidence was uncovered that the death toll may have been more than 240, instead of about 100, as officials had been saying.

Tibor Nagy, a U.S. embassy official in Haiti, said reports from rescue teams indicated it was possible that Allen had killed more than 200 people in that country, where authorities had been putting the toll at 56.

President Carter declared six south Texas counties disaster areas on Monday, making residents eligible for a variety of state and federal aid programs.

Allen, downgraded from a hurricane to a tropical depression when its winds weakened over Texas on Sunday, meandered over northern Mexico and left up to 16 additional inches of rain Monday in central and southwest Texas. The rains flooded roads and towns with up to four feet of water and forced thousands of people back to emergency shelters they had left only hours before.

More than 5,000 Texans fled the floodwaters. About 200,000 people had evacuated Saturday in anticipation of devastating damage from Allen.

Later in the day, coastal residents from Corpus Christi north began returning home and police reported floodwaters were dropping in most areas Monday night.

In Corpus Christi, police reported finding two people drowned, the first known U.S. victims of the hurricane. One of the victims was identified as Ruby Bohler, 73. The identity of the other victim, a man, was not released.

Two people died from heart attacks when Allen hit on Saturday, but the deaths were not directly attributed to the storm.

In Edinburg, Texas, 13 additional inches of rain fell, putting parts of the city under four feet of water. About 850 people had to leave their homes.

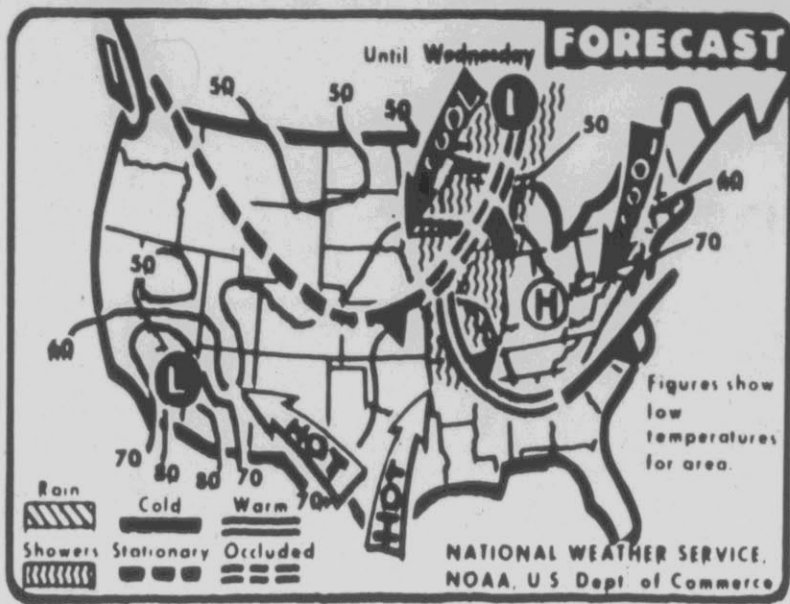

"This is the worst flood we've ever had," said Mayor Ronald Case.

In the small town of Linn, about 30 miles north of the Rio Grande, residents had to break into a shelter that was closed when refugees left it the night before.

Ten employees of the Federal Emergency Management Agency arrived in Corpus Christi — the largest city in the region with 230,000 residents — to help speed government relief efforts.

Mayors said it would be days before they could assess the damage from the storm, which had been the second-

The rains Monday flooded roads and town with up to 4 feet of water, forcing thousands of people back to emergency shelters just hours after they had left them to return home.

Meanwhile, showers and thunderstorms spread from the Ohio Valley across the lower Great Lakes, the Appalachians and parts of southern and central New England.

Thunderstorms moved across western Kentucky and Indiana. Rain and thunderstorms spread from parts of Arizona across New Mexico into Texas. Showers and thunderstorms also spread across the northern and central Rockies, the south Atlantic Coast and from eastern North Dakota into northwest Minnesota.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 52 degrees in Hibernia, Minn., and Arcata, Calif., to 98 degrees in Blythe, Calif.

Promise To Disrupt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of the Communist Workers Party said Monday they plan disruptive tactics during the Democratic National Convention in New York.

"We will be in New York," said CWP spokeswoman Lucy Lewis of Durham.

"We are indicting both the Democratic and Republican parties — the Carters, Kennedys, Reagans and Andersons," said a CWP statement handed out during a news conference Monday. "The overthrow of the monopoly capitalist class and establishment of workers rule is the only way to insure a bright future."

Ms. Lewis claimed responsibility on behalf of the CWP for vandalism at the campaign headquarters of Gov. Jim Hunt Sunday night, when 16 blue, orange and white posters were glued to plate glass windows and communist slogans were painted on the building.

The CWP has attracted attention recently by incidents in New York.

Winterville Okays Contracts

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Aldermen Monday night awarded contracts to Barrus Construction for a total of $38,446 for paving and to Westinghouse for new power transformers in the amount of $13,932.

Streets to be paved are Gaylord, Liberty, parts of Bethanna Court, S. Railroad from Cooper to Blount, Blount Street from S. Railroad to Mills, widening S. Railroad from Main to Cooper, and Hammond from Mills to Grimes.

New power transformers to be purchased will be used in the new Pinewood Village apartment complex being constructed north of Winterville.

Mayor Walter Dail reported Greenville Cable TV delivered a check to the town for the amount of $279 which is 3 percent of the total revenue, $9,313, from cable TV subscriptions from the period of December, 1979 through May, 1980. Mayor Dail noted this is part of the franchise agreement with the Cable TV firm and the town.

Mayor Dail also told the board that the Knox Street location had been approved by the property owners and work should begin soon.

Terms of office for William Elbert, four years, and Clyde Hines, two years, were approved by the board for the Planning and Zoning board. The board also approved the terms of remaining members Clifford Brock, Willard Finch, Thomas Forrest, Robert Briley, Jr., James Little, Floyd Avery, Raymond Cox, and Pitman Hines.

Alderman Bobby Crawford reported on a committee appointed by the mayor to study the possible solutions to placing tile in a ditch between the Robinson Heights subdivision and Weathington Heights subdivision.

Crawford said it was an agreement of the committee that the ditch should be left for drainage and the larger, deeper portion of the ditch should be tiled. He added it was possible the residents might agree to leave the remaining portion, which was a shallower part, untiled.

Crawford also noted that when work resumed on the ditch, it was recommended the type of equipment to dig out the ditch be changed for a proper channel to be dug. The equipment now being used, cut away the top edge of the ditch, making it bigger than necessary.

After some discussion of the ditch problem, Mayor Dail appointed Alderman Leland Tucker to work with the committee and Crawford, and see how much tile would be needed and what the cost would be to the town.

In further business, the board authorized the town treasurer to deposit all town monies in a pass book savings account daily. It was noted the town is now receiving tax revenues.

Fire Chief Carlton Branch reported members of the fire department responded to a total of nine calls for the month of July.

Mayor Dail reported to the board, the Winterville Rescue Squad responded to a total of 32 calls for the past month.

Financial Firm Opens Branch

Wheat, First Securities Inc., regional financial services firm, has opened its 40th office, a facility at 200 W. Third Street here, according to F. Carlyle Tiller, president and chief executive officer.

Tiller said that Paul Rendine will be in charge of the office, with Mrs. Karen Shannon as administrative assistant and Miss Lisa Wooten as secretary.

The firm, which has 13 other offices in North Carolina, has been operating in the state since 1961 when it opened its Rocky Mount office. Wheat was begun in 1934 as J. C. Wheat & Co., was incorporated in 1967 as Wheat & Co. Inc., and in 1971 merged with First Securities

Corp. of North Carolina to form the present entity.

Wheat, First Securities, one of the largest investment and financial services firms in the Southeast, has over 700 employees in five states. Headquarters are in Richmond, Va., with other offices throughout Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland, Washington, D.C., and in New York City.

The firm is a member of the New York Stock Exchange, the American, Philadelphia-Baltimore-Washington and Midwest Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board of Trade, and the Chicago Board Options Exchange.

Rendine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Rendine of Kitty Hawk, has been in the investment business for over six years, according to Tiller. He is a graduate of Salisbury State College and previously was employed with the Rysson Corp. of Riverdale, Md.

Area Storm Caused Damage

RALEIGH — A destructive hail and related wind storm that ripped through North Carolina August 1 has caused millions of dollars worth of damage to crops and property.

Insurance adjusters say it caused more claims than any other storm of its type to hit the state in over 30 years.

The total losses to farmers are still being tabulated, but knowledgeable people are estimating $6 to $12 million crop damage alone. Most of the damage affected tobacco.

J.D. Thorne, manager of the Crop Hail Adjustment Bureau, Raleigh, said his bureau received nearly 1,200 loss claims from 175 insurance agents from more than one-third of the state's counties.

"There is no way to know for certain yet," said Thorne, "but crop losses alone could be above $10 million."

Nominations Are Solicited

DEAR PAT: Quite a long time ago, you had directions in your column for "Mile-a-Minute" crocheted edging. I have used it to put a pretty finish on many items and loved making it. However, during a move, the directions were lost. Would you please reprint them? — Carol J., Mentor, Ohio.

This is an always-popular edging, Carol, which probably dates back many centuries. I first found it in a book on Victorian crochet. Then it was worked with very fine, silk threads. In today's busy world, however, we use heavier threads and larger hooks. Try it in various weights of yarn or threads, using suitable size hooks.

You will need a foundation row of single crochet to start. Either work the row of single crochet around the item to be trimmed or, if you are going to sew the edging onto an item, make a chain slightly longer than the edge to be trimmed and work a single crochet in each chain stitch.

To start the edging, at the end of the row of single crochet, chain seven, work a double crochet in the fourth chain from the hook and then double crochet in the same stitch where the chain-seven began.

CIRCULAR YOKED...sweater is made in fluffy Brunswick Eleganza yarn.

Now, work as follows: (Skip three single crochets, make a double crochet in the next stitch, chain four, make a double crochet in the fourth chain from hook, then make a double crochet in the same single crochet stitch where you started this group of stitches). Repeat the steps between the parentheses all across the row. End with a double crochet in the last stitch of the row.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. Charles Mitchell and Mrs. C. F. Galloway were first place winners Wednesday morning with a .604 percent game in the duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank.

Others placing were: Mrs. C. D. Elks and Mrs. Walter Harbin, second; Mrs. Robert Bright and Mrs. Herbie Carson, third; Mrs. Mary Crosthwaite and Mrs. Clara Shackell, fourth; Mrs. Sybil Basart and Mrs. J. N. LeConte, fifth.

Wednesday afternoon winners included North-South: Mrs. William Parvin and Claude Goodman, first with a .596 percent game; Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. George Martin, second; Mrs. Mavis Smith and George Martin, third.

East-West: Mrs. W. R. Harris and Dave Proctor, first with a .613 percent game; Mrs. Harold Forbes and Mrs. Effie Williams and Mrs. Bertha Jones and Mrs. Mary Sorensen, tied for second.

Saturday afternoon winners in the game played at Planters Bank were: Mrs. Barry Powers and George Martin, first with a .625 percent game; Mrs. W. R. Harris and Mrs. J. M. Horton, second; Mrs. William Hiltgartner and Mrs. John Tayloe, third; Mrs. Mavis Smith and Lewis Newsome, fourth.

A Grand National Pairs contest will be held Saturday, Aug. 16. Winners in this event will qualify to play in the Unit Level of competition.

double crochet in the next stitch, chain four, make a double crochet in the fourth chain from hook, then make a double crochet in the same single crochet stitch where you started this group of stitches). Repeat the steps between the parentheses all across the row. End with a double crochet in the last stitch of the row.

Here's another simple edging you might like to try. Work a foundation row of single crochet as before. Chain four and make a slip stitch in the same single crochet where the chain four began.

Then (slip stitch in each of the next two stitches, chain four and make a slip stitch in the stitch where the chain-four began). Repeat the steps between parentheses across the row and you will have a picot edging.

A rippled edging is created by simply crocheting backwards! Normally, in crocheting rows, you are always working from right to left. To work the backward crochet edging, do not turn your work at the end of

DEAR ABBY: Please don't tell me I have a crazy husband. I already know that. What I need is some advice on what to do about it.

About two years ago George got on this "cleanliness kick," and now he absolutely refuses to eat anywhere but home! His reason: He doesn't know how clean the kitchens, pots, pans, utensils, silverware, etc., are in other homes. Neither is he convinced that the food was prepared by one with clean hands.

A restaurant? Forget it. George says that even the best of them have roaches and rats! Naturally we do a lot of entertaining at home, but our friends aren't able to reciprocate. I have quit making up excuses. When we're invited to someone's home, I simply say, "I have a crazy husband who won't eat anywhere but home, but we'll be glad to come after dinner."

In case you think my husband is a total nut, Abby, he owns his own business and his annual income has been in six figures for the last 10 years. He's the only millionaire I know who carries his lunch. What's wrong with him? LONG ISLANDER

DEAR LONG: Your husband is a mysophobiac — one who has a morbid fear of filth or contamination. It won't kill him, but it's unfair to you. Invite a psychiatrist to dinner.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a pest I'll call Cindy. We have nothing in common except that our husbands are best buddies, and now we are neighbors.

Cindy makes a habit of coming over here uninvited when her husband works late. She has two whiny, cranky kids, ages 2 and 3, who are still in diapers and on the bottle. I have no children by choice and do secretarial work at home, so it's not as though I'm a lady of leisure.

Everybody loves a bargain and a charter can be such a bargain. It costs less than practically any other form of air transportation. But the traveler gets the same amount of comfort and attention as in any other category of flight, people on the charter simply pay less per seat because the seats are bought all in one block. Bulk purchase of many things is less expensive and charter seats are no exception. Then, too, charters conform to the law of supply and demand. When enough people want to go somewhere, a charter flight can be born. Scheduled flights, on the other hand, have to leave on schedule regardless of how many of how few people are booked.

The silence of the journey is interrupted by our son's voice: "Dad! Why don't you stop and get someone?"

Dad says, "If the map says there's a church here then there ought to be!"

There is a cramp in my right leg and I must stop to massage it. I am in the bus loading zone. It is a blessing I only eat Danish and do not understand it.

One child suggests we go to an amusement park and say we tried.

Dad is clearly three blocks ahead of us like he is racing the Italians in "Breaking Away." I hate him when he gets in that mood.

He yells and says he's found the church. One son reminds him that once in Hawaii he said he found a restaurant we were looking for and it was a funeral home.

Another son says it looks like it is closed. It is not a good neighborhood.

I say someone will steal our bicycles. Two sons volunteer to stay and watch them.

My husband says, "We are all going to Mass and pray together for love and forgiveness if I have to break some heads to do it."

The church is definitely not Catholic. We told him so. There is no holy water, no statues of Mary and no confessionals. I say excuse me to the man on the pew. He is a wino who has passed out. The minister/priest/rabbi (select one) turns to give the sermon. It is in Danish. He is dressed in black with a ruffle around his neck.

I tell my husband if he hadn't been so stubborn and asked someone, we might have found the church. He nudges our oldest and tells him to sit up, pay attention and show a little respect. I send the other kid to check on the bicycles. The minister walks toward us and I suspect he is going to ask us to keep it down.

He takes the wino's pulse and seems pleased. We thank him for his sermon.

Outside, a man weaves over to my husband and offers him a drink of his beer. For a moment, I thought he was going to take it.

The family that prays together... gets on each other's nerves.

Catching Up Needed

East Carolina University has submitted a request for $50 million in capital improvements to the main campus for the fiscal year 1981-83.

The request was sent to the University of North Carolina administration which will review it, along with requests from the other university campuses, and make recommendations to the Advisory Budget Commission, which, in turn, will make budget recommendations to the State Legislature.

The ECU request is large, exceeded only by the requests of UNC-CH and N. C. State. It is only realistic to assume that none of the campuses will get all that they want.

The things that East Carolina has requested are certainly not lavish, however, and they have to be looked at in the light that capital improvements on the main campus have been minimal in recent years. There is a request for an $18.59 million classroom building, for instance. There can be no question that the building is needed. Classroom space is being used to the maximum on the campus and additional space is needed just to carry on present programs. Thus the classroom building project received top priority.

Some $971,000 was requested for renovation of Wright building, a project which would make this large building more usable for university activities.

Some $620,000 would go for roof repairs and replacement, something that is essential if present buildings are to continue to be used.

There is a request for $1.63 million for energy conservation study and implementation.

The administration requested $15.92 million for additional physical education facilities, $3.2 million for renovations to Memorial gym, $4.89 for a new administration building, $1.43 for renovation of Graham and $1.2 million for renovation of a section of the biology building.

There are a number of other projects included, and there will also be a separate request for a radiation therapy lab for the medical school.

We hope that the ECU capital improvement needs will be looked at favorably for the 1981-83 biennium. Main campus physical facilities have been falling behind for several years. There is some catching up to do.

A Dime's Difference

NEW YORK — George Wallace used to campaign as a presidential independent by scoffing at the two major parties: "There's not a dime's worth of difference between them." The Alabama governor had a point. If we look at what the two parties do, as distinguished from what the two parties say, the two-party system is a joke.

But at least once every four years, it is mildly interesting to compare what the two parties officially say. No one in public or private life takes party platforms seriously; these windy statements fade like the foam on beer. Even so, the platform the Democrats are adopting here in New York, like the platform recently adopted by Republicans in Detroit, is intended to be a formal, written embodiment of what the party stands for.

George Wallace, in this regard, couldn't have been more mistaken. The difference between the Democratic platform and the Republican platform is the difference between night and day, cats and dogs, wets and dries, Cubs and Yankees. A dime's worth of difference? A difference of $500 billion is more like it.

Some of the differences are specific. The Democrats, for example, pledge their party to support the pending constitutional amendment on equal rights for women. The Democrats are so hipped on the ERA, indeed, that they urge a boycott by all national associations against holding their conventions in the 13 states that have refused to approve it. The Republicans are opposed to ERA.

On the other hand, the Democrats oppose a constitutional amendment to ensure a balanced federal budget, and they oppose an amendment to prohibit abortions. The Republican platform favors both propositions.

For another example: "The Republican Party reaffirms its long-standing support for the right of states to enact 'Right-to-Work' laws under Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act." By contrast, the Democratic platform says: "Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act should be repealed."

But the differences are more than the sum of their parts. The Republican platform is bound together by two underlying themes — less government, and more freedom. The Democratic platform provides antithesis — more government, less freedom. The Republicans place their greatest emphasis upon the private sector; the Democrats invoke the mechanisms of the state at every point. As a general proposition, the Republicans pledge to get the government out of our lives; the Democrats pledge with equal fervor to get the government in.

Thus the Democrats pledge vastly expanded subsidies up and down the line. Nothing under moon or sun can be neglected. "We need more legislation," the platform cries at one point. The Republicans were for cutting back the bureaucracy — specifically, for abolishing the two new departments created under President Carter. The Democrats stand four-square for more bureaucracy — a new Consumer Protection Agency, for example, and new bureaus to aid minorities and women.

The Democrats want to spend more money on the young, the old, the handicapped, city dwellers and rural Americans. The Democrats want programs for alcoholics, drug addicts, prisoners, graduate students, teachers, artists, musicians, veterans, auto workers, consumers, merchant seamen, fishermen, foresters, railwaymen, Indians, Aleuts, coal miners and runaway youths. The Democrats are for funding libraries, black colleges, day-care centers, urban development, rural development and a "comprehensive, universal national health insurance plan." While disavowing federal control of education, they urge the funding of teacher training centers for development of "non-sexist curricula."

As platforms go, the Democratic platform goes wild, man, wild. Every night would be Saturday night, and there'd be Christmas 10 times a year. The sober-sided Republicans warn on every page of their platform of the need for fiscal restraint, but fiscal restraint is the least of the Democrats' worries. It's a good thing, on reflection, that most Democrats demonstrably pay no attention to this hokum. If the ruling Democrats in Congress once began to take their platform seriously, it would be time to flee to the hills.

Tip Leads To Tapes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Acting on a tip by accused swindler Robert Vesco, the Senate Judiciary Committee has received 57 hours of federal undercover tape recordings that investigators say reflect a Libyan conspiracy to undermine U.S. government policy.

The tape recordings were subpoenaed by the Judiciary Committee from U.S. District Court in Denver where they were evidence in a recently concluded conspiracy trial. According to Senate investigators, they include clandestinely-recorded conversations obtained from "wired" undercover agents. Vesco's voice is included on several of the tapes, the investigators said.

"Astounding," said one Senate investigator who listened to the tapes received Thursday after U.S. District Judge Fred Winner in Denver complied with the subpoena. Another investigator said the conversations "reveal a conspiracy by the Libyan government to undermine the American government."

That revelation would mark the first fruits of the Judiciary Committee's preliminary Vesco investigation conducted by Sen. Dennis DeConcini (D-Ariz.) and Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah). Investigators stressed, however, that there was no evidence yet that the alleged Libyan conspiracy had succeeded, only that it had been attempted.

The DeConcini-Hatch investigation is based on long-standing contentions by Vesco, a fugitive from U.S. justice, that he participated in an attempted conspiracy to fix his legal problems. In conversations with the two senators at his Nassau, Bahamas, retreat, Vesco linked several prominent Carter administration cases with this attempted conspiracy, all by hearsay.

In the course of these conversations, Vesco suggested that the Judiciary Committee might be interested in tapes used in the Denver case. After the committee determined that they were relevant to their investigation, the subpoenas were issued.

The apparent wealth of material in the Denver evidence is a plus for Vesco's highly-dubious credibility. He has made no secret of his desire to barter information for some escape from his legal difficulties.

Just where the Denver tape recordings will take the Senate investigation is not clear. So far, the committee has issued only one witness subpoena: to Ralph Ulmer, foreman of the federal grand jury that investigated the attempted Vesco fix but returned no indictments.

Hatch has been eager to subpoena the alleged fixers named by Vesco in the Nassau conversations. DeConcini, a former district attorney in Tucson, wants to wait until the case is more carefully prepared. Although the two senators have been operating as a bipartisan team, differences over subpoenaing witnesses are potentially divisive.

In an election year, the Vesco probe is potentially explosive. DeConcini told us that when the investigation was first authorized several weeks ago, Justice Department officials cautioned him against exploring Vesco's allegations on grounds that they contained nothing new. Since then, DeConcini said, nobody from the administration has asked him to hold back.

Swift Creek Project To Start

Bids were taken for phase III of the Swift Creek project last week and contracts were awarded.

The water shed project is billed as a restoration and involves clearing, snagging and dipout to restore the creek to its 1930 dimensions.

Watershed projects are carefully planned now for protection of the environment, particularly since the conclusion of the landmark Chicod Creek case.

Photos of Swift Creek choked with fallen trees clearly indicate that some work is in order if the stream is to carry out its age-old duty of providing adequate drainage for the area.

Coastal Law

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When North Carolina first proposed the Coastal Area Management Act, it became one of the hottest political issues of the time. Finally enacted in the 1974 session of the General Assembly, the law was the result of several years of study, debate and compromise.

Six years later, say state officials, regulation of land use and development in the 20 coastal counties is having a beneficial effect, and, best of all, is not causing landowners to lose money or the use of their property.

"Both the Coastal Area Management Act and dredge and fill are protecting our fragile coastal resources without causing coastal property owners economic hardship," says Howard Lee, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

Some Change

Construction standards and development have been substantially altered by the laws. But nothing has been imposed on landowners which would not have been dictated by nature, or federal regulations, in any event.

Lee asked the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill to take a close look at permit applications for dredge and fill over a period of time. The conclusion: In ocean-front properties the only significant rule is the one requiring that buildings be constructed behind a setback line from the dunes. On some lots there is not enough room for a building.

About 500 lots were thought to be too narrow, and in many of those instances the beach was already eroding or otherwise naturally unsuitable for development so that property value was already affected.

There has been some discussion that the state should establish a fund to compensate landowners who are restricted from building by that law, but the study concludes that conditions vary so widely that the courts should determine each individual case.

Meanwhile, Milton Heath, a faculty member at the Institute of Government who specializes in environmental law and who was one of the principal architects of the Coastal Area Management Act, has taken a reflective look at the law six years later.

Here is what he found in general:

—The Coastal Resources Commission has worked well following a "balanced middle-ground philosophy of coastal land management—neither delighting its friends nor distressing its foes."

Local

—Local-state cooperation has been strengthened, vindicating those who saw the political wisdom of local involvement in administering the law.

—The law's objective of encouraging local land-use planning has been achieved.

—The courts have upheld the law in major tests, and political attacks have fallen off. There is evidence, says Heath, it "has even begun to pick up legislative support for needed amendments."

—One goal was to consolidate the numerous federal and state permits for coastal development into one. That has not been possible, but the process has been streamlined and some permits consolidated.

—A major shortcoming is that the Coastal Area Management Act has not been accepted as a model for land-use management in other regions of the state or as a model for statewide land policy which its authors had hoped.

To the editor:

The 65 member families of the Tar River Neighborhood Association applaud the plans of the Greenville City planners, as announced recently in The Daily Reflector, to review zoning and to establish a pattern of growth.

We live in a transition neighborhood, one with a fine history and a possibility for an equally fine future — if we can enlist the cooperation of the city and county governments and the various absentee landlords for housing in this area (Tar River to Fifth Street, Summit to Warren Streets). We provide the tax base for much of the city and we have the highest voter turnout record of any precinct in the city — and we are not content to merely complain about our problems any more. We definitely want action from those people whose salaries we help pay and whom we have elected to office.

As individuals, we have complained in the past of houses with constantly noisy tenants, houses that have fallen into disrepair, houses that crowd tenants into spaces designed for one family and that allow those tenants to park on sidewalks and yards — houses that lower our property values and destroy the unity of our neighborhood. We believe that absentee landlords and tenants have obligations to the neighborhood, just as property owners do and just as the Board of Adjustments and the building inspectors.

As an organization, we are also very aware of the impending auction of the old hospital on Johnston Street by the county. The possibility of another apartment complex or boarding house, with its inevitable traffic, noise and parking problem, is a source of great concern to us.

Our neighborhood is now organized and we no longer have to rely on individual effort to seek redress for neighborhood problems. The landlords who have rented without concern for neighbors, the officials who have granted variances without thought for property values, the developers hungry for dollars, and the tenants who treat our streets and homes like public places must become aware of our determination to fight to preserve our unique neighborhood.

Bargain Basement For Purgatory

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

AP Special Correspondent RIDGFIELD, Conn. (AP) — If the poet Dante were around today, I like to believe he would add a bargain basement to the seven-story Purgatory he envisioned for the lesser sinners of this world in his "The Divine Comedy."

To it could be consigned all the nerds, noodniks and nincompoops who by their indolence and incompetence add unnecessary aggravation to our everyday lives.

The great Florentine moralist would have no difficulty finding appropriate punishments for dry cleaners who tear up your suit pockets with staples; hotel managers who put 25-watt bulbs in bedside reading lamps; the inventors of thumb-lacerating pop-up beer cans; designers of government forms that allow a nine-inch line for your age and half-an-inch for your address; TV producers who split the screen at the precise moment Jack Nicklaus is canning a key putt to show you a funny hat in the gallery; supermarket checkout clerks who put the soggy wet chicken legs at the bottom of an already too fragile paper bag and many such similar minor malefactors in our midst.

On each level of the mountain, the sinners expiate their sins with punishments made to fit the crime. The envious have their eyelids sewn together with iron thread, a fate that might be appropriate for the fingers of dry cleaners who run amok with their stapling machines.

The slothful — the lazy and lethargic — in Dante's out of this world reformatory spend their days running at full speed, while the angry and wrathful stumble about in a cloud of stinging smoke resembling tear gas, which might be a fitting penance for my neighbor down the road who burns old rubber tires in his backyard barbecue and wafts the fumes my way.

The proud are bowed down in humility by the weight of the huge rocks they are sentenced to tote about on Dante's penal island. In the new bargain basement addition, name droppers and

Latest Import Manhole Covers

By STEPHEN FOX

AP Business Writer LODI, Calif. (AP) — Imported cars may be bleeding Detroit, but in this small central California town, what's bothering Jim Pinkerton is manhole covers from India.

"It's sickening what's happening to the manhole cover industry in this country," says the 56-year-old owner of the Pinkerton Foundry, which has turned out covers and other construction castings here for nearly 40 years. "Imports from India are killing us."

Pinkerton, who took over the foundry from his father, had 70 full-time employees when India began exporting manhole covers to the United States in 1977. Today, he has 37 employees working four days every other week. The foundry's sales have fallen from $2.5 million in 1976 to less than $1 million this year, Pinkerton says, while Indian exports of covers and castings have quadrupled.

"India is flooding this country with cheap manhole covers," he said. "We understand the Indian workers are getting $1.50 for a 10-hour day, plus of course they have no Social Security, no health plan, no vacation and so on. Our cost factor for these things is another 40 percent on top of the base pay."

As a result, says Pinkerton, "Where a typical manhole ring and cover made in this country will sell for $20, the same manhole ring and cover coming from India is selling for $73 to $80."

Pinkerton filed a petition with the U.S. Department of Commerce earlier this year, charging that India was subsidizing its manhole cover makers. The agency made a preliminary finding in his favor, ordering a 21.7 percent tariff on manhole covers coming from India.

India has appealed to overturn the tariff and a final ruling from the Commerce Department is due later this month. Pinkerton says leaving the tariff on will keep American foundries from going down the drain.

"Even with the 21.7 percent duty the imported manhole covers will still sell for less than the U.S.-produced cover, but the tariff will give American companies a chance to produce a competitive product."

Pinkerton says foundries like his, which cast heavy metal products ranging from tank turrets to highway drainage gates, are foundering all over the country because of regulatory costs imposed by government.

"My contention is that American industry should be protected by tariff against costs mandated by our own government," he said. "We spent $500,000 in the last year for non-productive equipment to satisfy various regulations. That's why we can't compete. I'm not opposed to free trade, but I want fair trade."

Forgiving Ourselves

It is hard to forgive an injury and hard to forgive the person who has injured us. But often, in situations of emotional stress, it is harder to forgive ourselves. A bitter form of hatred is self-hatred. It is the cause of many suicides. Usually we do not realize that hatred of self is just as wicked as hatred of one's neighbor. When we hate ourselves, we hate someone whom God loves. Furthermore, self-hatred ravages the soul just as completely as hatred of an enemy.

St. Paul urged the Ephesians to forgive one another even as God in Christ Jesus had forgiven them. Self-hatred should always be distinguished from repentance. It is a form of cruelty inflicted upon one's self in which, psychiatrists assure us, the people affected by it take morbid delight. It is utterly wrong, utterly childish and utterly unprofitable.

Forgive one another—and that includes ourselves.

Volcano Gas Puzzling

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A sudden drop in the amount of sulfur dioxide gas emitted by Mount St. Helens has left scientists puzzled over the volcano's next move.

The gas emissions from the mountain, which vented lazy clouds of steam Monday, dropped dramatically over the weekend and the lava dome in the volcano's throat stopped growing, officials said.

The meaning of the changes was unclear. "We'll have to wait and see," said Tim Hait, a U.S. Geological Survey geologist. Sulfur dioxide emissions measured about 800 tons per day last Wednesday, the day before the peak's fifth eruption in three months. There were no readings taken on the day of the eruption, said Federal Emergency Management Agency spokesman Bob Gabriel.

Scientists have said a decrease in the amount of sulfur dioxide emitted from the mountain may indicate pressure is building toward another eruption.

That's a possibility, however, only if the pocket of molten rock beneath the volcano remains unchanged, and that can't be counted on, said Gabriel.

"It's still an inexact area of research," he said.

On Friday, readings were up to 900 tons per day. On Saturday, several readings were taken, ranging from 1,500 to 5,000 tons, and averaging about 2,000 tons. On Sunday, the reading went down to 500 tons, he said.

Since Saturday, dome growth has stopped and there has been virtually no seismic activity, said Joyce Routson, a public information officer for the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Steam clouds rose to 13,500 feet Monday and drifted slightly to the north.

Ayden Board Okays Tax Levy

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — Approval was given to the 1980 tax levy, a redistricting study for the town and a concession permit ordinance for the Collard Festival last night when the town board held its monthly meeting.

Mayor Ross Persinger also declared August 13 as Take Pride In Ayden Day in cooperation with the Ayden Committee Working For Beautification.

The board approved the 1980 tax levy, as well as approving several releases and additions. The total tax levy amounts to $226,459.30. Tax listings amounting to around $300 were deleted from the billing because the citizens lived out of the town limits. Two persons who did not list were added, increasing the tax figure by around $40.

A motion calling for a study for redistricting the town was carried by the board. Annexation of the Pines subdivision made a single district twice as large as others, and this motion provides for a study to realign the districts in accordance with the population.

An ordinance was passed requiring persons who wish to set up concessions in the area of the Collard Festival during the festival to come before the board of commissioners and have the permit approved. Permits must be approved in this manner for the area from Third Street to First Street, including the municipal parking lot, the railroad property and the parking lot next to Tripp's Tire Service. Non-profit groups willing to give one-half their profits to the Collard Festival committee can apply for a permit within 15 days, and reply will be made in 10 days.

Mayor Ross Persinger signed a proclamation declaring August 13 as Take Pride In Ayden Day. An effort to improve the looks of the town has been organized by the Ayden Committee Working For Beautification. All citizens who wish to participate are asked to meet at the playground on the morning of August 13 to clean up.

A plaque was presented to retiring police officer Lt. Edward F. Hudson, a 20-year veteran of the Ayden police force. The plaque expressed the board's and the town's appreciation for his service to the community through his work. All board members commended Hudson for his work. An amendment was made to the alley parking ordinance passed two years ago. This original ordinance stated that it is unlawful to park, stand or sit in alleys. Section three allows vehicles using authorized drive-in window service to remain in the alley no longer than 15 minutes. The driver must stay in the car during this period.

A question was raised by a resident of Fairmont Village as to why cablevision had not been installed in the apartment complex. Director of Utilities Mike Finney said he had talked with representatives of cablevision previously and they reported that the service would be provided in the complex within 45 days.

Finney also asked for $7,000-$10,000 dollars to be removed from contingencies in the budget to pay for hot spot tree trimming available presently at a good price. Finney reported that a tree trimmer, bucket, chipper, etc. was available to the town for $32 per hour, $8 cheaper than it was two years. He suggested that hot spot trimming be done around transformers in the worst spots, these being from Third Street to Snow Hill Street and the First and Second Street area. The board delayed action on this until a later meeting.

School Faculty Is Announced

The Carolina Country Day School faculty has been announced by board of trustees Chairman Bill Blount.

Teaching kindergarten will be Mary Ann Brannon; teaching first grade, Joan Wade; second grade, Jennifer Elmore, third grade, Vivian Mills; fourth grade, Jo Beth Jernigan; fifth grade, Valeria Hoffman; sixth grade, Jane Fleming; art, Betsy Clayton; music, Elizabeth Wilkerson; physical education, to be announced later.

Midge Ologge, a certified teacher's aide, is secretary to Headmistress Bettie Forrest.

"We have an outstanding staff," Mrs. Forrest said. "All of us are enthusiastic and we're looking forward to an exciting year."

Open house will be held at the school, located south of Greenville off State Road 1708, Thursday from 4 to 8 p. m. Registration will be held Aug. 14, 15 and 18.

Man Dead Of Gunshot Wound

FARMVILLE — Macon Waller, 42, of Farmville is dead the result of a 12-gauge shotgun wound to the abdomen, according to a report from the Pitt County Sheriff Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Wiley Frank Mitchell, 32, of 1210 Pitt Street, Farmville, went to the Farmville Police Department immediately after the alleged shooting and told authorities he had shot Waller after being attacked by him with a knife. The Farmville Rescue Squad took Waller to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, where he died at 11:55 p. m.

The Sheriff Department said the shooting occurred about 10:45 p. m. in front of the home of James Earl Hines on Highway 121 north of Farmville. Investigation is continuing.

place droppers might be condemned to carry around stacks of "Who's Who" and bulky atlases and gazeteers on an endless round of cocktail parties. Conceited parents who torment house guests with film slides, picture albums and home movies of the children's birthday parties and graduations would spend a lengthy interim before eternity watching old Army training films and Russian documentaries on a circular screen imprisoning them like a cell.

The gluttonous in Dante's Purgatorio went about the nether world exceedingly emaciated, as if doomed to decades of the Scarsdale diet. But the reverse of every sin was also punished in an appropriate manner, so perhaps the boring local weight watcher and the boastful body conscious exercise freak might be compelled to partake of innumerable official Chinese banquets in the Great Hall of the People, with appropriate toasts to friendship, peace and mutual understanding, before entering the Pearly Gates.

There would be room in this new and expanded purgatory for the compulsive all weather jogger, the service station pump jockey who always leaves the cap off your gas tank, the nitwit who bellows "have a nice day" as you trudge out into the blizzard and any rock band whose amplifiers are taller than the lead guitarist.

Also the duffer who leaves his or her electric golf cart parked in front of the green while hunting for a ball in the woods, the up-with-the-birds suburbanite who uses his power mower before noon on Saturdays when my hangover is usually at its most crucial stage and the airline pilot who interrupts the in-flight movie with historic tidbits about Racine, Wis.

Also the passenger on line in front of me at the airline counter who is booking a flight to Rawipindi by way of Lisbon, Lausanne, Belgrade and Tabriz, the secretary who puts you on "hold" and goes out to lunch, the dentist who books a 10 a.m. appointment for you and nine other patients, hotel laundresses who specialize in returning single socks and shirts starched to the consistency of medieval armor, people who shout "room check" through the chain crack of motel doors already posted with "Do Not Disturb" signs and motorcyclists who rev up their engines within 15 miles of any inhabited building.

Also whoever is responsible for life's leaky faucets, shower fixtures that can't mix hot and cold water, those rungless plastic coat hangers that buckle under the weight of an ordinary dress shirt, garbage bags that burst at the slightest provocation and plastic cracker containers that couldn't be opened by a locksmith.

In the newly renovated next world, hovering men's store salesmen will swarm like killer bees, loudly abuzz with lines like "this is what they're all wearing this year" and "here's something suitable for your type build." Things will definitely be picking up for whoever litters our road with beer cans, and those fond of putting gum under movie seats will surely achieve purgatorial stick-to-itiveness in the interim hereafter, glued to TV sets programmed only with commercials and paid political broadcasts.

And, oh yes, before I forget, the proprietor of the hotel with the 25-watt bulbs in the bedside lamps will purge the last "P" from his forehead by reading the total accumulation of "Mulligan's Stew" columns at the time of his demise or mine, whichever comes sooner, by the flame of a cigarette lighter.

As a minister recently addressed the deceased before pushing the button at a cremation service: "Have a nice eternity."

Basic Skills Funding Is Approved

The State Board of Education, in its June meeting, approved funding for the North Carolina Basic Skills Improvement Projects, which provides services to nine local education agencies, including Pitt County, for strengthening programs in reading, mathematics, oral and written communications, reasoning and thinking.

State education officials in the Department of Public Instruction have projected a four-year period (1979-1983) for the Basic Skills Improvement Projects that will concentrate in grades 4-8. The foundation of public kindergarten, primary reading in grades 1-3, annual testing in grades 1-12 was the basis upon which the Basic Skills program was directed. Although basic skills concentrates in grades 4-8, it provides a sequential and complete order of attention to all grades K-12.

The nine LEA's will participate in a Basic Skills Orientation Session on August 28 at the Plantation Inn in Raleigh.

NEW YORK (AP)
 The stock market held fairly steady today following four sessions of strong gains. Blue chip issues slipped from their highest level in three years but other sectors advanced slightly.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined .60 to 963.48 as of midday. But gaining issues outnumbered losers by a slight 6-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average had traded at its highest levels since March 1977 in the past two sessions. The blue chip index has climbed about 200 points since April.

Some analysts had predicted a pullback in today's trading following four consecutive advances including Monday's 9-point jump in the Dow Jones industrial average. But the pullback this morning was mild.

Big Board volume continued fairly active. Trading came to 22.53 million shares against 17.60 million in the previous session.

Sony Corp. jumped 1 1/4 to 11 1/4 as the most actively traded NYSE issue. Trading included several blocks of 100,000 shares or more.

Warner Lambert also continued high on the active list for the second consecutive day. It rose 1/4 to 20 1/2.

J. Ray McDermott dropped 1 1/2 to 31 1/2. The company said it was extending until Aug. 13 an offer to acquire Pullman shares.

Pullman, which declined to comment on the extension, gained 3/4 to 34 1/2. The $28 a share offer was to have expired at midnight Monday.

The NYSE composite index rose .08 to 71.53. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .10 to 322.35.

time as a presidential candidate and not as a celebrity." A front-runner, he designed a campaign for one. He sought to make a referendum of Carter's "leadership and incompetence," one top adviser said, and was deliberately light on the issues.

But just as Kennedy was entering the race, militants invaded the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, seizing American hostages. The nation rallied around the president, and supported him, for months, through the critical early electoral tests.

At the end of a long, grueling campaign day early in December, Kennedy spoke out sharply against the exiled shah of Iran. His statement that the shah had run "one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind" drew a crescendo of criticism.

"The single biggest problem on that was it tended to reinforce people's judgment that Kennedy had bad judgment," one aide said. The questions about judgment stemmed from Chappaquiddick.

Chappaquiddick, an accident that has haunted Kennedy since 1969, was a bigger political liability than most people around him expected. A plan to confront what became known as the "character issue" early in the campaign with a 30-minute television advertisement was shelved. But as the campaign unfolded, voters who agreed with Kennedy on the issues voted for Carter. They said they had fears about Kennedy's character and trustworthiness.

The public also questioned Kennedy's relationship with his wife, Joan, who was struggling against alcoholism and living alone. She campaigned for him extensively, but at his birthday party she got his age wrong.

The question among Kennedy and his advisers was not whether to run, but whether he should wait for 1984. His colleagues in the Senate urged him on, fearing that a politically crippled president at the head of the Democratic ticket would jeopardize their own futures.

Finally, early last fall, he was so far ahead in the polls — a 2-to-1 margin over Carter — that the urge became irresistible.

In the end, only three of his 57 Democratic colleagues endorsed him. And he trailed far behind Carter in the polls by the end of the year.

Several aides said the campaign was hurt by a disastrous beginning in media advertising. "They were never willing to hire anyone and give him authority and so it was done piecemeal," said one adviser.

Kennedy had plenty of money to start with, but he spent it in ways that aides later shook their heads at. He hired a huge staff, paid some of them more than $40,000 a year. He chartered a campaign jet in the manner of a party presidential nominee and had it reconfigured with a flying office and other luxuries at a cost of $40,000.

When he spent more than a week in Florida at year end, the plane sat idle — at a cost of $5,000 a day.

And at the end of the campaign, out of money, he was left wondering whether he would have defeated Carter in Ohio on the final day of the primary season if he only had an extra $60,000 or so.

Most candidates, running in relative obscurity, would do anything for the massive media coverage Kennedy had from the beginning. The concerns that he needed — obscurity to polish his act. He said "fam family" so often in Iowa that he stopped in mid-speech once, turned to the reporters who traveled with him and said, "Must be something in the air out here."

His aides began complaining that his every utterance was being compared with John F. Kennedy at his most eloquent. He improved consistently, but his speaking style no longer was news.

All this, before his candidacy was two months old, and the defeats followed swiftly.

In Iowa, the first big test, Kennedy drew big, friendly crowds. But a survey the first week in December produced stunning results: a full 40 percent of the state's Democrats said they couldn't support Kennedy.

He went to Florida at Christmas to prepare for a debate with Carter, knowing then he was in trouble. But the Russians invaded Afghanistan a short while later, Carter withdrew from the debate, and Kennedy was buried under a presidential landslide in Iowa.

Already, some of his circle wanted Kennedy to pull out. A withdrawal statement was prepared, saying he accepted the verdict of the voters of Iowa.

He apparently never saw it. In any event, he vowed to go on, giving a speech at Georgetown University a few days later that for the first time sharply etched his differences with the president on issues.

He called for a wage-price freeze and mandatory economic controls to stem inflation. He demanded mandatory gasoline rationing. Carter opposed all of them.

He blamed Carter for the Iranian crisis. He disapproved of Carter's handling of Afghanistan. He opposed draft registration.

And Kennedy began to insist that Carter debate him.

Just the same, he and everyone around him understood how desperate the situation was. "We didn't have any more money," one recalled.

Maine, the next stop after Iowa, looked like a loss. It was, narrowly.

Carter...

concerns that he needed — obscurity to polish his act. He said "fam family" so often in Iowa that he stopped in mid-speech once, turned to the reporters who traveled with him and said, "Must be something in the air out here."

His aides began complaining that his every utterance was being compared with John F. Kennedy at his most eloquent. He improved consistently, but his speaking style no longer was news.

All this, before his candidacy was two months old, and the defeats followed swiftly.

In Iowa, the first big test, Kennedy drew big, friendly crowds. But a survey the first week in December produced stunning results: a full 40 percent of the state's Democrats said they couldn't support Kennedy.

He went to Florida at Christmas to prepare for a debate with Carter, knowing then he was in trouble. But the Russians invaded Afghanistan a short while later, Carter withdrew from the debate, and Kennedy was buried under a presidential landslide in Iowa.

Already, some of his circle wanted Kennedy to pull out. A withdrawal statement was prepared, saying he accepted the verdict of the voters of Iowa.

He apparently never saw it. In any event, he vowed to go on, giving a speech at Georgetown University a few days later that for the first time sharply etched his differences with the president on issues.

He called for a wage-price freeze and mandatory economic controls to stem inflation. He demanded mandatory gasoline rationing. Carter opposed all of them.

He blamed Carter for the Iranian crisis. He disapproved of Carter's handling of Afghanistan. He opposed draft registration.

And Kennedy began to insist that Carter debate him.

Just the same, he and everyone around him understood how desperate the situation was. "We didn't have any more money," one recalled.

Maine, the next stop after Iowa, looked like a loss. It was, narrowly.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The presidents and chancellors of Pacific-10 conference schools have tackled the issue of widespread transcript and academic credit scandals in the conference — in effect creating a Pac-5.

At a meeting Monday in Denver, the panel of chief executives cut in half the number of schools eligible for the 1980 Pac-10 football crown and for postseason football competition. The panel dealt out a variety of penalties to the universities whose athletic programs have been cited with academic violations. Oregon was the hardest hit, receiving two years' probation.

The panel's unanimous ruling eliminated five schools — Southern California, UCLA, Arizona State, Oregon State and Oregon — from contention for any bowl berth, including the Rose Bowl. The panel decided, however, that all conference games played during the 1980 season will count in the standings.

Reaction from the affected schools ranged from bitter melancholia to apologetic acquiescence, but one voice said it didn't matter too much.

"We're sorry the five colleges have been ruled ineligible," said Bill Nicholas, chairman of the Tournament of Roses in Pasadena, "but those things happen. People will still come to the Rose Bowl game."

Elsewhere, however, comments were less sanguine. Southern Cal football Coach John Robinson: "We're very disappointed about the decision."

Pac 10 Becomes Pac 5 Southern Cal, Four Others, Ruled Ineligible

UCLA Coach Terry Donahue: "The incident for which we are being penalized occurred three years ago. I am embarrassed that the academic integrity of UCLA has been subject to question, and I feel very sorry for our players and coaches."

Arizona State Coach Darryl Rogers (whose school already has forfeited its 1979 victories after investigation found that eight players were ineligible because they had received credit for coursework they never did): "...We've already been penalized more than any other school. Things that have happened to ASU have already done damage."

Oregon State Coach Joe Avezzano: "We're just going to have to sacrifice for past mistakes...I'm not sure we weren't on a runaway car ready to self-destruct, and I think that having someone come in and help clean up your house makes you more aware of the situation and puts everything maybe back in the proper perspective."

Oregon athletic director John Caine: "The conference has acted thoroughly and promptly. Obviously, the penalties are hard to accept because they mean that we will not be able to participate in a bowl game this season. However, we are pleased that there is only a one-year penalty involved."

The five universities were penalized for "violations of conference rules and standards in the areas of unearned credits, falsified transcripts and the unwarranted intrusion of athletic department interests into the academic processes of the respective universities," the panel's report said.

No other action is contemplated, said Pac-10 spokesman Jim Muldoon. He said any penalties for non-academic violations would come from the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Washington State University's Dr. Glenn Terrell, who chairs the presidents and chancellors group, defended the penalties.

"We feel these actions were necessary to preserve the academic integrity of the conference, our institutions and our athletic programs," he said.

The chief executives' panel also meted out a variety of other sanctions against member schools:

—Southern Cal: ineligible for the track and field conference championship in 1981 and for participation in the 1981 Pac-10 or NCAA track and field championships; adjustment of all dual meet and conference championship meet results for the 1978 season to eliminate points won by ineligible athletes, resulting in Southern Cal vacating the 1978 Pac-10 track and field title.

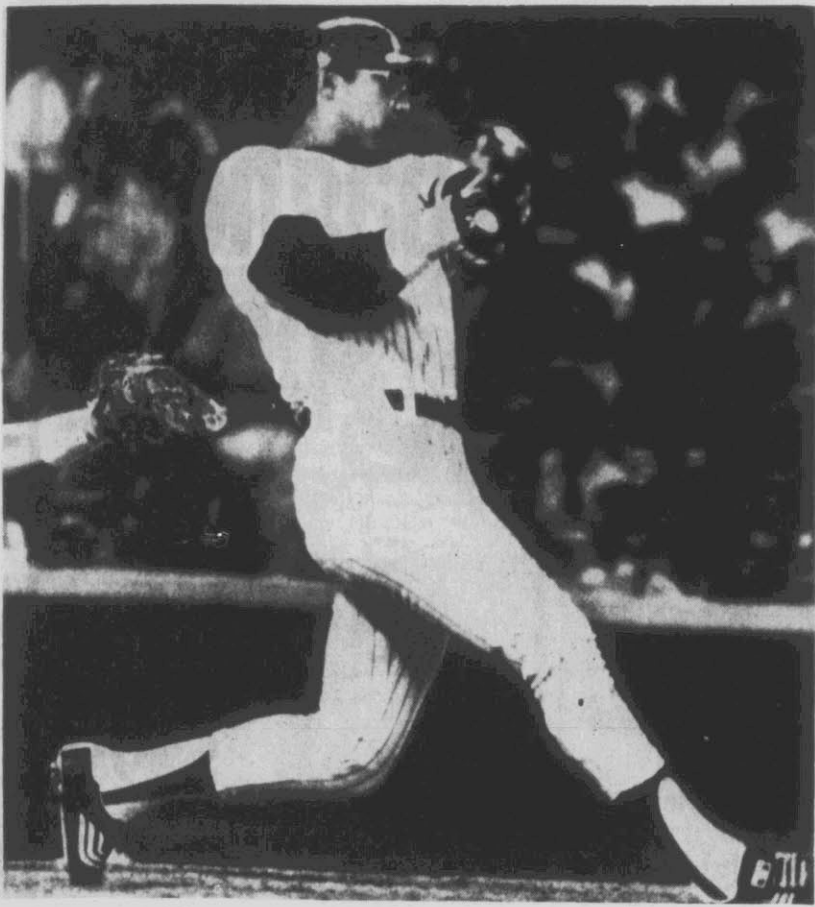

That penalty came on the heels of revelations earlier this year that former NCAA 400-meter dash champ Billy Mullins was accepted into Southern Cal with a transcript that included 28 credits allegedly received from four different junior colleges, widely separated geographically, during the semester before he entered Southern Cal in 1978.

•UCLA: forfeit all of its 1977 football games in which any ineligible athlete played.

•Arizona State, previously declared ineligible for the 1980 football championship: declared ineligible for any postseason football competition.

•Oregon State: forfeit all its 1977 and 1979 games in which any ineligible athlete participated.

•Oregon: forfeit all its 1977, 1978 and 1979 games in which any ineligible athlete participated; reduce its initial grants-in-aid in football to three less than they would otherwise be entitled for the 1981-82 academic year; placed on probation for two years; and in swimming, forced to adjust its team scores and won-lost record for any meets during the 1980 season in which ineligible athletes participated.

Jackson Hits 400th; Yanks Win

O's Nip Royals But Brett Extends Streak To 24

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

When in trouble, go to the veterans.

That's what the New York Yankees did Monday night after dropping three straight games to the Baltimore Orioles over the weekend. With their American League West lead shrinking to 2½ games, the Yanks needed a boost. They got three of them — from Reggie Jackson, Aurelio Rodriguez and Rudy May, who total nearly 40 years of major league experience among them.

Jackson slammed his 400th career home run, Rodriguez contributed a dramatic two-run blast in the bottom of the ninth and May threw a four-hitter as New York edged Chicago 3-1.

Meanwhile, the Orioles sneaked past Kansas City 2-1 and Detroit nipped Boston 8-7 in an abbreviated AL schedule.

"That's going to be a classic, winning the game that Reggie hit No.400," said May, 10-5. "Tonight was no time to lose after the Baltimore series.

"I've been around awhile and you learn. Last year, I learned to pitch out of the bullpen (with Montreal) and I have confidence now whether starting or relieving."

May has become a regular in the Yankee rotation after doing a standout job as the team's long relief man.

"What I have to do to help this club win the pennant, I'm going to do it."

Jackson has been doing everything possible to keep the Yankees on top of the AL East. The homer came in the fourth off rookie Britt Burns, 10-11, and was Jackson's 31st, tops in the majors. He now has 84 RBI, tying him with Boston's Tony Perez for the major league lead.

"I hope that takes the pressure off the team," said Jackson. "I know it takes the pressure off me. I hit a homer a week for 30 weeks but it seemed to get harder for this one."

Rodriguez was elated with his contribution and even happier when management presented him with a bottle of champagne.

"I feel great," he said. "I hit one home run here last year against the Yankees' Don Hood. The fans didn't like that one so much."

"I know a lot of people do not expect me to hit home runs but I'm glad. In this race, every game you win means a lot."

Then, looking at some champagne, he said with a smile, "That's a very nice welcome."

Orioles 2, Royals 1

An eight-hitter by Dennis Martinez and Eddie Murray's sixth-inning solo homer were the keys for Baltimore, which won its 10th straight.

"I wasn't happy at first about it (being in the bullpen)," said the right-hander, 3-1, who has been plagued by a sore right shoulder this season and rarely has started, "but I decided that's the way it was and to help the team the best I could."

George Brett singled in the first inning to extend his hitting streak to 24 games.

Tigers 8, Red Sox 7

An eighth-inning throwing error by Rick Burleson led to two unearned runs and Detroit also got a three-run homer from pinch-hitter Richie Hebner and a two-run shot by Tim Lincecum. Tony Perez and Fred Lynn homered for Boston.

Reds' Leibrandt Blanks Padres

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Charles Leibbrandt has shown he can win in the major leagues — especially if he pitches against the San Diego Padres.

The rookie left-hander of the Cincinnati Reds has a 10-7 record in his first full season in the National League, nicely padded by three victories over his personal patsy — the Padres.

Leibbrandt, who has only given up four earned runs in 29 innings against San Diego this season, continued to torment the Padres with a 1-0 victory Monday night as Tom Hume provided late relief help.

"I've been struggling a lot lately, but I felt pretty good tonight," said Leibbrandt. "This was probably my best effort since I shut out the Padres 1-0 earlier this year. Hume did a heck of a job in relief."

The right-handed reliever gained his 20th save after replacing Leibbrandt with one out in the seventh and runners at first and third. He got Ozzie Smith on a fly ball to right, and Rollie Fingers, the runner on third, was cut down at the plate trying to score.

Braves 3, Dodgers 2

Rick Matula and Rick Camp combined on a five-hitter and Chris Chambliss smashed a two-run double as Atlanta beat Los Angeles.

Matula, 7-10, struck out four and walked four, including two in the ninth, before needing Camp's relief help.

Giants 5, Astros 4

Vida Blue, with relief help from Al Holland and Greg Minton, won his first game in two months as San Francisco defeated Houston.

Blue, 10-6, allowed six hits and three runs over five innings in his third appearance since coming off the disabled list. Holland worked three innings and Minton came on in the ninth to record his 12th save.

Pirates 2, Mets 1

Lee Lacy's sacrifice fly and Ed Ott's RBI-grounder produced the winning runs in the second inning as Pittsburgh beat New York in a game called after 5½ innings due to rain. It was the eighth victory in row for the streaking Pirates, who moved into sole possession of first place in the National League East over Montreal.

Cardinals 16, Expos 0

Tony Scott and Ted Simmons combined for seven hits and six RBI and Leon Durham belted a two-run homer as St. Louis scored eight runs in the first inning and went on to rout Montreal behind Bob Sykes' four-hitter.

Sykes, 6-8, also drove in two of the Cardinals' runs with a single in the first and a sacrifice fly in the third.

Phillies 5, Cubs 5

The Phillies and Cubs were suspended after 10 innings because of darkness with the teams locked in a 5-5 tie. They will resume the game prior to today's regularly-scheduled afternoon contest.

The Cubs tied the game 5-5 in the ninth on an RBI-double by Bill Buckner and run-scoring grounder by Barry Foote.

NFL Hellos, Goodbye, Given

By TOM CANAVAN
 Associated Press Writer

While Houston said hello to Ken Stabler and Anaheim greeted the Rams, Doug English said goodbye to Detroit, and that really hurt the Lions.

Stabler, making his first appearance with the Oilers since he was acquired from the Oakland Raiders in an off-season trade for Dan Pastorini, completed 9-of-15 passes for 58 yards. The left-handed quarterback played most of the first half in the Oilers' 21-7 National Football League loss to the Tampa Bay Bucs, leading them to their one touchdown.

Stabler, who led Oakland to the Super Bowl title in 1977, said he welcomed the challenge of playing with the new club.

"People have a lot of expectations about me," said Stabler. "But I welcome the challenge. I want to deliver what they want."

"I need to know the system a little better, but it'll come. I'm getting more comfortable all the time."

But so was Tampa Bay Monday night as Jerry Eckwood connected on a 61-yard scoring play with halfback Isaac Hagins and second-year quarterback Chuck Fusina hit Gordon Jones with a 13-yard TD in the exhibition opener for both teams.

Earl Campbell scored the Houston touchdown with a 13-yard run.

Touchdowns were the name of the game in Anaheim, where 62,356 fans watched the New England Patriots outlast Los Angeles 35-31 as the Rams played their first game at Anaheim Stadium. The Super Bowl runnerups left their longtime home in the Los Angeles Coliseum following last season.

And the debut was quite a show, especially the performances by New England's Matt Cavanaugh and Los Angeles' Vince Ferragamo, both throwing four touchdowns.

Cavanaugh's final scoring strike, a 39-yard pass to Carlos Pennywell with 1:10 remaining, was the difference in the exhibition opener for both teams. The former University of Pittsburgh player, who will back up Steve Grogan this year, completed 20-of-34 passes for 350 yards.

"The game was important in a way," said Cavanaugh, "my playing time is going to be limited so I want to make a good impression when I do get a chance to play. Steve Grogan is the No. 1 quarterback and until the coach decides differently, that's the way it's going to be."

Not in the case of Ferragamo, who is battling Pat Haden for the Rams' No. 1 job. The former University of Nebraska star, who helped the Rams get to the Super Bowl last season, hit on 9-of-11 passes including scoring tosses of 36 yards to Terry Nelson; 42 to Jeff Moore; 40 to Drew Hill and 13 to Victor Hicks.

"The quarterback situation is going to be competitive all year," said Ferragamo. "I don't want a knockout, I'll settle for a decision."

If there was a knockout it came in the second half when the two teams combined to put 56 points on the board.

Monday's other knockout came in Detroit where English, the backbone of the Lions front wall, quit the team, saying he no longer had time to pursue his business interests across the Atlantic Ocean.

English, who had not been in contact with the team, wrote them a letter from Britain to announce his retirement.

"I read Doug's decision with considerable regret," said Lions Coach Monte Clark. "No one will fill his shoes."

In other NFL news, the Denver Broncos cut six players including two draft picks, No. 8 pick Don Coleman and No. 10 Virgil Seay.

'The Bird' Back—Again

DETROIT (AP) — Forget about the stiff shoulder, the cortisone shots, the stiff back, the heat treatment, the injured knee, the rehabilitations, the tendonitis, the demotions to the minor leagues and the hypnosis.

For better or worse, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych is back—again.

The popular Detroit Tigers right-hander will attempt his fourth comeback in four years tonight when he takes the mound against the Boston Red Sox in a sold-out Tiger Stadium.

The irrepressible Fidrych, the American League's 1976 Rookie of the Year, was back in Tiger Stadium on Monday night, clowning around in the outfield and joking with teammates, reporters and friends before Detroit's 8-7 victory over Boston.

He vowed he would be the Bird of old, talking to the baseball, manhandling the pitcher's mound on his hands and knees, giving teammates handshakes and pats on the back with his boyish, contagious enthusiasm.

But will he be able to pitch like the Fidrych who went 19-9 in 1976, with a league-leading 2.34 ERA? Or will he resemble the sore-armed shadow of himself who has struggled to bounce back from a series of frustrating ailments?

"Can I do it? That's the question," says Fidrych, who has not started a big league game since May 22, 1979, and who has not won a start since April 12, 1978.

"I'm satisfied that I'm ready because I've been in the minors and I've worked my way back. I threw 117 innings in Evansville (Detroit's Triple A farm club) this year. It's not like my other comebacks, when I came off the disabled list and never faced any hitters until batting practice."

Fidrych compiled a 6-7 record in Evansville with a 3.92 ERA before he was called up last week. The numbers are hardly impressive, but pitching Coach Roger Craig and other Tiger brass say Fidrych has rebounded from a horrendous early-season and is ready to return.

"He proved he's ready to pitch. But I hope people don't expect miracles from him because he may never be like he was in 1976," said Craig.

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson also had some words of warning for those expecting the Bird to soar on his first flight.

"He could be ready tonight, but when you look at the Boston lineup his chances could still be about zero, just as they would be for any of our other pitchers," Anderson said. "I only care about how he throws. I'm not going to place a heckuva lot of stock in whether he gets them out."

Anderson says he will let Fidrych throw up to 100 pitches and then "start counting" since his limit at Evansville was around 120.

With 19 points in high cards, a five-card suit and two tens to give his hand body, North wasted no time in the auction. Since his hand was balanced even though he held a good five-card major, he simply raised partner's one no trump response to three.

High Drama Ends Very Early

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS' Dan Rather promised "an entertaining brawl." ABC's Frank Reynolds predicted "a political war." NBC's David Brinkley said "it will be a cat fight."

Swedish King To Avoid Fuss

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Sweden's King Carl Gustaf XVI will try to avoid a royal fuss during his visit to Newport Wednesday to promote the Sverige, Sweden's entry in the America's Cup race.

"Nobody's going to be bowing down and playing trumpets for him or anything," said Russell Edwards, one of the organizers of the race. The king, who will be accompanied by his wife, Queen Sylvia, will spend most of their five-day visit watching the races and getting some sun, according to Elisabeth Tarras-Wahlberg, the king's press secretary. Mrs. Tarras-Wahlberg had some advice for racing enthusiasts who happen to bump into the king.

But Harry Reasoner, wise old Harry of CBS, came closest to the mark in forecasting the first episode of the Democrats' prime time show. "The Democrats talk a lot," Reasoner said, "but there probably won't be any great surprises."

Indeed, the entertaining "brawl" proved to be tame stuff: a lot of talk, culminating in a fairly orderly rules vote in which President Carter's forces prevailed over Sen. Kennedy's forces. The delegates were bound to their pledged votes, locking the nomination for Carter.

The high drama of the Democrats' miniseries was over after a scant four hours when Kennedy conceded the nomination.

Television, consequently, was left to inflate other balloons. Would Kennedy support Carter? Would Carter heed the platform demands of a lame duck candidate? Would Kennedy appear on the podium with Carter Thursday with a unity stance?

This last question especially intrigued network correspondents who posed it repeatedly throughout the evening to almost any Democrat that could be collared. The answer, almost always, was "Gee, I don't know," or a variation thereof.

In an attempt to lessen the dramatic letdown, CBS and NBC took turns interviewing Colorado Governor Richard Lamm, a Kennedy supporter who could be counted on to predict disharmony. "President Carter is going to have to spread some political oil on the water," Lamm kept saying. Nobody asked him what that phrase meant.

CBS anchor Walter Cronkite, in his last political convention, had a nice chat at evening's end with former anchorman, Eric Sevareid. They both confessed to being political junkies.

NBC, as in the GOP convention last month, seemed to provide the steadiest, most thorough coverage. The longest, anyway — David Brinkley and John Chancellor went on the air at 4 p.m. (EDT) for the convention opening and, except for a 30-minute local news break, stayed on until the very end.

CBS and ABC went to other programming after covering the opening, returning for the rules "fight."

ABC, less dedicated to gavel-to-gavel coverage of these gatherings, cut to its "20-20" show in the midst of the convention.

In a display of bad judgment, ABC chose as one of its "20-20" segments a piece about secret service agents, which included graphic film showing the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy.

A viewer switching from CBS or NBC to ABC left the emotional scene of Sen. Ted Kennedy's defeat for the shocking sight of President Kennedy's head being shattered by a bullet. One needn't have been a Kennedy admirer to wince at the scene. And then switch channels.

In all, the Democrats' opening night would be considered a good show to fans of the political process, dull to those who are not. Most viewers apparently fall into that last category and would probably agree with NBC's Tom Brokaw, who mused at night's end:

"As a story, it's a kind of Hindenberg — it crashed and burned a couple of hours ago."

New High For Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — Due to increase in volume of lugs and cutters, the average on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday was the highest of the season, according to Louis Williams, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Several grades of lugs and some primings showed a sharp increase in price. Top price for company purchases continues at $1.65 per pounds. Yesterday's average was approximately $12 per hundred pounds more than on Thursday of last week and $4 above last year, Williams said. Volume was heavy with primings accounting for most of sales. Stabilization receipts accounted for 7.21 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 798,301 pounds for $1,145,612 for an average of $143.51 per hundred. To date, the market has sold 4,958,304 pounds for $6,323,409, for a season average of $127.53 per hundred pounds.

Sit-In Ends; But High School Takeover Continues

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — While 45 people occupied a west side high school for a fourth day today to protest its planned closing, 20 others ended a brief sit-in in the Board of Education building after school officials promised a meeting to explain their decision.

The protesters occupying the board building, with several dozen more outside, had said they would not leave until board Superintendent Robert R. Wheeler and board President Edward Scaggs met with them.

Both had said they would not meet with the protesters. However, following a nearly hour-long meeting among Gene Boesch, legal counsel for Gov. Joseph Teasdale, City Councilman Robert Hernandez, and spokesmen for the protesters, Charles Lona and Don Pecina, a meeting was announced for 7 tonight.

The demonstrators, most of them youths, left the school board building about 4 a.m.

"I'm sorry this happened," Scaggs had said late Monday night, shortly after demonstrators entered the board building. "This makes for the kind of feeling that makes it difficult for people to negotiate in good faith."

Police Night Watch Supervisor Stephanie Green said about 30 protesters were let into the school board building by a night janitor. Several left shortly after going to the tenth floor, where Wheeler's office is located, she said, and there were no injuries or reports of violence.

The occupation followed a mile-long march to the building from the high school, known as the West Business-Management Center, where about 200 people had attended a rally to protest the school's closing.

The board originally had planned to conduct a public hearing Monday night at the school to try to ease dissent over the closing, but the plan was scrapped Monday afternoon. The board said it did not want to assume responsibility for people gathering on property not controlled by the board.

Don Pecina, leader of the neighborhood group of about 45 which has occupied the school building since Friday, said the decision "doesn't deter us, and we will continue to occupy this building."

The Kansas City School Board recently announced the closing of the school in an economy move. The board said closing the school could save $900,000.

Scaggs said the school has a high dropout rate and low attendance. Protesters said feelings on the closing are deep-seated in the Hispanic community.

"I went to school here, my folks went to school here and we want the generation coming up to go to school here," said Julian Florez.

BUNDY WILL SPEAK

Sam D. Bundy of Farmville will speak during a luncheon meeting of the Sanitation Division of the North Carolina chapter of the American Public Works Association here Thursday at noon.

This weekend he, Mrs. Bundy and Charles Ledbetter, president-elect of the Farmville Kiwanis Club, will attend the Carolina Kiwanis District Convention in Charleston, S.C.
