Wholesale Inflation Rate Races Ahead At 1.7 Percent Increase

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level raced ahead 1.7 percent in July — the biggest jump in nearly six years — mainly as a result of a sharp, drought-influenced spurt in food prices, the government said today.

The huge increase dramatically halted months of an easing inflation trend. In June, wholesale, or producer, prices rose 0.8 percent.

Not since November 1974 have producer prices risen so fast, the Labor Department said. July's boost outpaced even the dizzying levels set earlier this year when inflation was so severe that credit controls were imposed.

If July's seasonally adjusted rate continues for an entire year, inflation at the wholesale level would exceed 22 percent annually, far more than the 10 percent yearly pace set in June.

However, this spurt was called "temporary" by Allen Sinai, vice president of Data Resources Inc., the Lexington, Mass., economic forecasting firm. "It should not set off a long-term increase in inflation."

"This is a shock due primarily to food. The overall backdrop for inflation, because consumer demand is down so, due to the recession, is favorable," he said.

The Labor Department reported that food was the major culprit at all three levels of the Producer Price Index: finished goods, intermediate items and raw products.

In sharp contrast, gasoline prices fell 1.2 percent in July, while home heating fuel remained the same.

"Up even through June, food was a very strong moderating influence on prices, while energy had been the major thrust for pumping up inflation," said John Early, a Labor Department economist. "Now, it's getting to a place where they are reversing roles."

The price of finished food products — ready for sale to consumers — rose 3.8 percent last month, far more than the 0.7 percent increase in June, the department said.

Processed poultry prices shot up 23.5 percent, as millions of chickens were killed by the scorching heat that has hit the nation's farm belt.

Prices for beef, meanwhile, jumped 7.4 percent, compared with 3.9 percent the month before, while pork prices increased 13.7 percent, far more than the 0.8 percent boost in June, the department said.

Compared with food, all other finished goods at the wholesale level rose 1.1 percent in July.

The sharp acceleration in food was particularly evident at the intermediate and crude stages — a signal that the worst may yet to come as these jumps are passed on through processing and sale to consumers in coming months, say private economists.

At the crude, or unprocessed stage, food prices shot up 9 percent in July, pushing the prices for all raw products at the wholesale level up 6.3 percent, the department said.

Grain prices shot up 13.7 percent in July, after falling in four of the first six months of 1980. Sharply higher corn prices resulting from the drought were primarily responsible for this turnaround.

Prices for live poultry and hogs increased more than 25 percent.

NEW YORK (AP) — With obvious relish, Jimmy Carter and Walter F. Mondale are plunging into their campaign against Ronald Reagan by portraying the Republican presidential nominee as "radical and irresponsible" and by raising the specter of "the final madness of a nuclear holocaust."

This rhetoric of attack brought cheers loud and long on the final night of the Democratic National Convention, but ironically not as deafening as those for Carter's defeated rival, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Carter renewed the theme today in remarks at a post-convention meeting of the Democratic National Committee. Carter said the 1980 election would present voters with "sharp, maybe unprecedented, differences."

He said the convention ended with "a climax of unity and achievement and purpose that guarantees that we have turned the corner ... that Democrats will be in the White House for the next four years."

The climax of unity Carter referred to was Kennedy's appearance on the podium after Carter and Mondale had delivered their acceptance speeches at Madison Square Garden on Thursday night as the party's 1980 ticket. Kennedy was subdued.

He was there for less than five minutes. He spoke not a word to the delegates who loudly cheered each time he waved with the understated clenched-fist gesture he used so often during his ill-starred presidential campaign.

Carter held his hand out. Kennedy grasped it. There was no embrace. No suggestion that this was a meeting between old friends. They looked rather like two generals who had fought a long war and were trying to bring about peace among their followers as well as between themselves.

It was an extraordinary end to a political convention at which the loudest cheers were for the defeated Democratic candidate.

The president began his campaign today by having breakfast with black convention delegates who seemingly overlooked their differences with Carter and greeted him warmly with chants of "We Want Jimmy! We Want Jimmy!"

A smiling Carter told them in response: "I have always been underestimated as a candidate. I have a secret weapon and that is the black people of this great country who know they have a friend in Jimmy Carter."

The president then took an hour-long tour of an exhibition of Pablo Picasso's works at the Museum of Modern Art before delivering a campaign pep talk at a post-convention meeting of the Democratic National Committee.

Former U.N. ambassador Andrew Young, a longtime Carter ally, told reporters he was not surprised by Kennedy's restraint at the convention podium Thursday night. "If it had been any more than that, it would have been phony," Young said. "You have to expect some strain for a while."

Early today, Carter said he and Kennedy would meet in Washington at some point. Carter planned to spend this weekend at his Camp David.

Playmate Murdered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playboy magazine's current Playmate of the Year was killed with a shotgun blast in the face, apparently by her estranged husband, who then shot himself to death, police said today.

Dorothy Stratten, 20, a native of Vancouver, British Columbia, was found at 12:30 a.m. sprawled across the bed in the two-story, West Los Angeles home she had shared until recently with her husband, Paul Snyder, 29.

Neither was dressed, and Snyder was found on the floor, on top of the shotgun, said police Lt. Glenn Ackerman. The lieutenant said friends came to the house and found the couple after no one had been able to reach Snyder since Thursday afternoon.

"The indications are that they died sometime yesterday afternoon," Ackerman said.

He said the couple had been married about two years, but for the last two months Ms. Stratten had been living elsewhere. Ackerman said the couple's relatives were out of the country.

New Storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Bonnie, the second storm to be named in the 1980 Atlantic hurricane season, was over the ocean 1,800 miles east of Puerto Rico today. Forecasters said it was a threat only to shipping.

At daybreak, the center of tropical storm Bonnie was estimated near latitude 18.0 north, longitude 38.0 west, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

The storm was expected to move north-northwest at 12 mph during the day, taking its 55 mph winds into the open North Atlantic, forecasters said.

Little change in Bonnie's strength was expected during the day. If the sustained wind builds to more than 74 mph, the storm would be a hurricane.

Council Action Ends Long Battle Over Rezoning Of Property

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council gave unanimous approval last night to a rezoning request involving property at the intersection of NC 11 and Club Pines Drive, ending months of effort on behalf of the tract owners to change the zoning from a residential designation.

Approval of the request by AJHM to rezone the 1.81 acres from R-9 to Office and Institutional-2 took place after a public hearing during which objections were voiced once again by Club Pines residents to the zoning change.

The Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting in May, voted three-to-one to recommend to the Council that the request be denied. Club Pines property owners also appeared at the planning board session to object to the rezoning of the AJHM property, which involves tracts on both sides of Club Pines Drive at the intersection.

Fred Mattox, attorney representing the petitioners, said that the situation involved an unusual piece of land not suitable for residential use. He asked that the owners be able to put the property to some use.

Jim Hannan, a resident of the subdivision, said his main concern regarding rezoning involves increased traffic potential as a result of O&I-2 development. He said that he was afraid that development of the AJHM tract would lead to removal of the traffic island at the intersection that has aided in cutting down on through traffic in Club Pines.

Councilman Louis Clark said he knew of no move under consideration to do away with the traffic island and City Manager Ed Wyatt noted that the state transportation people take a certain amount of pride in having arrived at a satisfactory arrangement in regard to the traffic island. Wyatt said that unless residents wanted the island removed, it would remain.

Mattox added that there was no effort on behalf of his clients to remove the traffic barrier, which prevents left turns onto Club Pines Drive from NC 11 and also prohibits traffic from the mall from going straight across the intersection and into Club Pines.

Phil Dixon, local attorney and resident of Club Pines, who said that he represented several residents of the neighborhood, also cited potential traffic problems if the AJHM request was approved and said that to rezone the property would be to eliminate the buffer zone between the highway and residential area. Dixon said that in the interest of long range planning, it would be unwise to change the zoning now.

Mike Archie of Crestline Boulevard also expressed opposition to the rezoning, saying that, "I don't see how the proposal can do anything but increase traffic." Archie said it was not fair to subject the residential area to industrial or commercial traffic.

Planning Director Bobby Roberson said that uses allowed in O&I-2 are basically 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. operations.

There was no word yet when or where he would formally open his fall campaign. Four years ago, Carter and Mondale launched their campaign with a rally in Warm Springs, Ga., the resort where Franklin Delano Roosevelt often vacationed and where he died.

Carter campaign aides already have said the president will concentrate on the industrial states of the Northeast and upper Midwest, areas where Reagan also intends to make his principal effort.

Reagan believes his conservative programs are becoming increasingly attractive to blue-collar workers who traditionally have voted Democratic. In addition, the Republican nominee also expects independent presidential candidate John Anderson to be far more damaging to Carter in states like New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Michigan and Illinois.

That Reagan strategy made it all the more crucial to Carter to gain the Massachusetts senator's active support in the states where he has a strong following.

With their internal party squabbles quieted by a truce, if not necessarily a lasting peace, Carter and Mondale lost no time jumping to the attack. Their acceptance speeches reflected a strategy that follows the 1964 Democratic campaign against

Barry Goldwater, in which the conservative senator from Arizona was successfully portrayed as trigger-happy and as a radical who would try to repeal progressive programs dating back to the New Deal.

Those themes were clear in Thursday night's speeches.

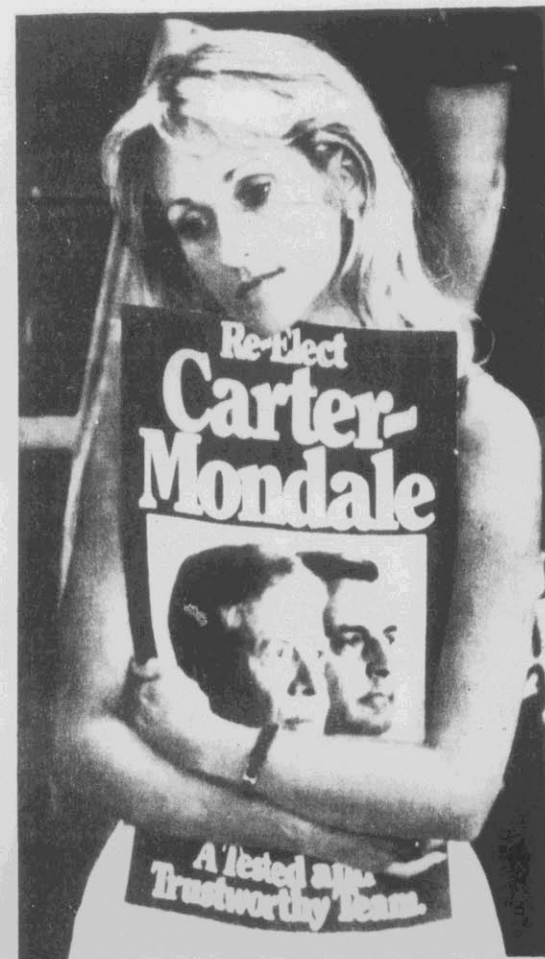

Carter referred to Reagan as talking about "a world of tinsel and make-believe."

He said the new leaders of the Republican Party "have now promised to launch an all-out nuclear arms race ... There can be no winners in such an arms race — and all the people on earth could be the losers."

"The Republican nominee advocates abandoning arms control policies which have been supported by every Democratic president since Truman and every Republican president since Dwight Eisenhower. This radical and irresponsible course would threaten our security — and could put the whole world in peril."

Mondale sounded a similar theme, saying, "If there is one thing that concerns me most about the world our children will inherit, it is the fear that somehow, for some reason that no one will remember, the world will resort to the final madness of a nuclear holocaust."

Turning to Reagan's domestic policies, the Democratic ticket concentrated its heaviest fire on his proposal for a 30 percent cut in tax rates phased in over three years.

Mayor Sets Plans For Advisory Committee For All City Services

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Mayor Don McGlohon last night announced plans to form a Mayor's Advisory Committee of local citizens to look at all services now being provided for Greenville residents.

The mayor reported that Dr. Wallace R. Woolees, dean of the Department of Pharmacology of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has agreed to serve as chairman of the advisory body.

Discussing the committee, McGlohon said that, "We are all very fortunate that our previous leadership has provided the resources which enable us to enjoy needed services at a level as good or better than most communities."

He added, "And we believe we receive these services at a cost which is certainly comparable to, if not substantially better, than what it costs for similar levels of service in other cities.

"However," McGlohon continued, "there is merit in our wishes to seek an objective assessment of these beliefs regarding services by calling upon a team of citizens from outside city government to assist us in properly studying, analyzing and assessing various aspects of the functions of Greenville city government."

The mayor told the gathering at the regular City Council session that, "In essence, we believe we need a fresh look from without, and we are confident this fresh perspective can best be provided through the eyes of a volunteer citizens committee."

McGlohon explained that the committee "must function as an umbrella advisory team whose activities will cross into areas which will encompass most all of our existing boards, commissions, agencies and city departments."

The advisory committee, he pointed out, will include a "blue ribbon executive committee" of from 12 to 14 citizens. He said that the members of the executive committee will be announced soon and then "we will subsequently appoint some 100 total committee members, each of whom will be assigned to one of our six subcommittees established for the purpose of focusing their attention on specific services or function areas."

McGlohon added, "We see the committee's final report and recommendations as a tool to help shape our city government's policies and programs for years to come." The council made several key appointments last night to area boards and commissions, including: Sgt. George Pleasant to the Human Relations Council, succeeding Robert White who has resigned (terms expires September of 1981); Rhea Markello to a three-year term on the Public Transportation Commission, succeeding Mrs. Liz Wilkerson who completed two terms; reappointment of Dr. Frank Fuller and Dr. W. S. Bost to the transportation board;

J. Reid Hooper to the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority for a four year term, succeeding J. T. Little Jr. who completed the maximum of two terms; and Joseph Condra to the Redevelopment Commission, succeeding Robert S. Griffin who has resigned (term expires October of 1983).

Security Upped Following Clash

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — City police clamped tight security on North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt and his state's delegation today following violent confrontations with Communist Workers Party members Thursday outside the Democratic National Convention.

Two CWP members from Greensboro also tried to disrupt President Carter's speech Thursday night, prompting New York police to send seven officers to stand guard at the North Carolina delegation. Nearly two dozen city policemen patrolled outside the delegation's hotel in Manhattan early today.

The precautions came in the wake of the disruption on the convention floor itself and a confrontation outside Madison Square Garden in which 13 policemen were injured in a clash with 200 to 300 radicals armed with clubs and mace.

Nineteen people were arrested, on charges ranging from disorderly conduct and resisting arrest to felonious assault.

Another CWP disturbance earlier led to the arrest of three other people and left six policemen injured.

Inside the convention center Thursday night, Dale Sampson shouted at President Carter as he addressed the convention. She said fireworks at the other side of the hall were ignited by party member Signe Waller.

Both Mrs. Sampson, 31, and Mrs. Waller, 41, are widows of men killed at a bloody confrontation between Communist Party Members and racist group members at Greensboro on Nov. 3.

Six men with Ku Klux Klan and Nazi ties are on trial in the slayings, and more face charges. Five CWP demonstrators were killed at the Greensboro rally.

CWP leaders contend state and local government officials, police and federal agents were responsible for the Nov. 3 violence and have attempted to cover up their involvement. They have presented no evidence to back up the charge and have indicated they will not cooperate with prosecutors in the trial now under way.

Mrs. Sampson, who carried a poster bearing the picture of her husband, was ushered out of the convention and released.

Later, she told reporters, "I was saying that Carter murdered my husband. President Carter's responsible for the murder of my husband."

"What I said up there was it's payback time for Greensboro, Miami..." she added.

Mrs. Sampson wore an "Honored Guest" pass to the convention and said both she and Mrs. Waller were given the credentials. She declined to say by whom.

"We're bringing the Klan and Nazi trial right here. This is where the real trial is," Mrs. Sampson said. "It was a planned out assassination."

Asked what the group was accomplishing, she said, it would "put them on notice ... it will not be business as usual in the United States."

The interruption came early in Carter's speech and caused only a momentary delay.

After the Waller-Sampson incident, seven New York City policemen joined two state officers in the North Carolina delegation. At one point, four plainclothes officers surrounded Hunt at the rear of the delegation — one officer in front, one on either side and another to the rear of Hunt.

Early today 20 uniformed city officers patrolled outside the delegation's Manhattan hotel. Some patrolled in squad cars or vans, while others were on foot or on horseback.

An officer at the hotel said there had been no direct threat on Hunt or the delegates, but he said authorities were concerned the CWP might attempt another disturbance.

The Communist Workers Party contends it will bring "socialist revolution" to the country. It is made up of mostly white and some Asian members, with headquarters in New York and a vocal — though no one knows how large — chapter in North Carolina.

Many of its members are highly educated. Waller was a physician who gave up practice to organize in textile mills, while Sampson was a medical school dropout who graduated from Harvard Divinity School.

The CWP has been blamed by police for several firebombings and vandalism in Brooklyn this week.

Thursday's biggest demonstration, which involved a sizeable portion of the 2,500 man police contingent assigned to the Garden at all times during the convention, ended with nine of the 13 injured policeman being taken to Bellevue Hospital.

A police spokesman said one officer required nine stitches for a cut on the head, another suffered a bad back injury, and the others suffered less serious injuries from being kicked by demonstrators.

Police at the scene said the incident was a "guerilla-type action" which started shortly before 10 p.m. and lasted only about five minutes, after which the demonstrators dispersed.

It was all over before the president came on the podium to accept his party's nomination and there was no indication that he ever found out about it.

Police said the demonstrators were equipped with "mace, shields, helmets, boots, axe handles, you name it."

Almost immediately after the melee, police sealed off all entrances to the Garden, leaving many disgruntled ticket holders, including delegates and newsmen, outside. Police said the reason was that the Garden was packed to capacity.

The earlier incident occurred about 1 p.m., about an hour before Carter was to enter the elegant Landmark Plaza Hotel to address a Democratic victory luncheon.

College Costs Rising Fast

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the most important concerns of college-bound students and their parents today is not how to get into college, but rather how to pay for it. The costs of college have gone up each year as fast as the skyrocketing inflation rate and have risen approximately 90 percent in the past decade.

According to the annual survey of more than 3,200 colleges conducted by the College Board's College Scholarship Service, total costs for resident students this fall will increase 10.3 percent at private four-year colleges and 8.1 percent at public four-year colleges. These increases will bring average total costs at these institutions to $6,082 and $5,383 a year respectively.

Students who attend public two-year colleges will have average expenses of $3,123 if they are resident students and $2,753 if they commute. These costs represent an increase of 16 to 20 percent over 1979.

It is important to know that these costs figures include all expenses — tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses. While these costs may seem steep, especially if they are multiplied by two or four years of college, parents who pay the bills should remember that what a college costs is not always what they will have to pay.

According to Joe Paul Case, director of program administration for CSS, students and their parents pay, on the average, 56 percent of the college bill. The other 44 percent is provided by federal, state, institutional, and private financial aid programs and by other sources such as Social Security and Veterans' Administration benefits.

Families don't have to be poor to qualify for these sources of financial aid, but they do have to prove they need it. Need is the difference between what it costs to attend a particular college and what the family can contribute toward meeting these costs.

While costs at different colleges vary, what the family can contribute doesn't change. For example, if it is determined that a family can contribute $900 toward the cost of college, that family's financial need at a college costing $3,000 would be $2,100, but at a college costing $6,000, it would be $5,100. If aid is awarded to cover the full need at both colleges, the family would pay $900 whether the student decided to go to the higher- or lower-cost college.

Grifton Has Tennis Courts

GRIFTON — Eight years of planning and work ended this week as the color finish was applied to two new tennis courts at the Grifton Civic Center complex.

Net tighteners are expected to arrive soon to hang the nets and ready the court for daylight play. Poles and lights will be installed next, and benches placed under the trees on their north side of the new courts.

The second priority in a list of Grifton Park Improvements planned and funded jointly by the town and the Federal Heritage and Conservation Service, the new courts have been under construction for nearly two years. The federal grant was awarded to the town in 1977 and expires this December.

Families should not rule out any college, even the more expensive and selective private colleges, because of cost. Colleges have different policies toward awarding aid and have varying amounts of money available. A prestigious institution like Duke University awards financial aid to about a third of its students, for example. And Bucknell University, while unable to meet the financial aid needs of all needy students last year, was able to award aid to virtually all who applied this year.

Parents of high school juniors — or younger students — can plan ahead and get an early estimate of their eligibility for aid by participating in the College Board's Early Financial Aid Planning Service. This new service analyzes a family's financial aid information, offers tips on sources of aid, and provides an estimate of financial aid eligibility.

To obtain a free application form send a stamped, self-addressed business envelope to Financial Aid Planning, Box 1175, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Seniors who are planning to apply for aid now for the fall of 1981 can pick up a copy of "Meeting College Costs" from their high school guidance office. This free booklet, prepared by the College Board, has worksheets to help students estimate their eligibility.

A new College Board publication, "The College Cost Book, 1980-81," lists costs for more than 3,200 institutions and describes financial aid programs and how to apply. To order, send a check for $7.50 to College Board Publication Orders, Department C-91, Box 2815, Princeton, N.J. 08541.

Life As It's Lived Sibling Rivalry Is As Sure As Sunrise

By GAIL MICHAELS

Sibling rivalry is as inextinguishable as a flood. It can't be avoided by logic because there is nothing reasonable about hate. It can, of course, be denied, by those parents who do so risk getting the same results as the English who insisted that the colonists would never jeopardize afternoon tea.

My three month tenure as a mother of two has convinced me that most parental claims to an absence of rivalry belong in an episode of "The Twilight Zone". As Meg's preschool teacher was fond of pointing out, to a young child a mother bringing home a new baby is like a husband bringing home a second wife while the first is still entrenched. Neither event is likely to arouse unqualified joy.

The only mothers more misguided than the ones who disclaim rivalry are the ones like me who try to mitigate the jealousy by empathizing with the older child. This is merely an exercise in self-induced guilt.

Then again, I was feeling guilty even before the rivalry began. Both grandmothers greeted the news of my second pregnancy with, "Poor little Meg. She's had so much attention that I wonder how she'll take having to share it." Variations on this theme were so numerous that by the time Zachary arrived, I had the distinct feeling that I was committing a criminal act against Planned Parenthood.

Meg was quick to pick up on this. While I was wearing myself out in my attempts to iron out sibling difficulties, she was taking fittings for my hairshirt. No matter how many books I read to her or how many games I played, the minute I sat down with Zachary (or for that matter sat down), she whined, "No one is paying any attention to me."

Two months passed before it occurred to me that if there were a contest for child neglect, she would not exactly rank at the top with Huckleberry Finn. This revelation was so comforting that I actually sought out a book on my own level and began to read.

Meg was beside me in an instant. "Won't you read me 'The Velveteen Rabbit'?" "No I am reading my own book right now."

Her bottom lip rolled down her chin. "Nobody ever plays with me."

"That's not true. I've been playing with you most of the day."

"But you're not playing with me now."

"I don't have to play with you all the time. I've spent as much time with you today as I ever have."

"Not as much as before Zachary."

"Oh yes I have. I've read four books to you. I've played two games with you. I even pretended I was your pet dragon for about an hour, didn't I?"

"Yes." "Now you think about it. That's even more time than I usually spent with you before Zachary was born, isn't it?"

"Yes." "Then why are you still frowning? What more could you want?"

"I want it all."

Don't Spoil Relationship

DEAR ABBY: I bought a car from my brother-in-law for $400. I gave him $250 down, then 30 days later the brakes went out and I had to lay out $350 to get them fixed.

I think in view of the fact that the repairs were so major, he should write off the $150 I owe him. We're all family, and he's a nice guy, so don't you think he should let me off the hook for the balance?

CULVER CITY CAR TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: A deal is a deal. If he's a "nice guy," don't spoil a friendly family relationship by expecting more of a relative than you would from a stranger.

DEAR ABBY: I am an adult woman with a family of my own. My problem is my mother. Last year Dad died. He and Mother were very close. Mother, being a strong and intelligent woman, adjusted to her loss very well, but her adjustment has taken an abnormal turn. Soon after Dad's death, Mother developed a very close friendship with a woman I'll call "Mary." Mary is uneducated, comes from a much lower socioeconomic group and has very little in common with Mother. Nevertheless they have become inseparable, eating together, sleeping together and spending every minute together when Mary is not working. The obvious affection they have for each other (touching, and words of endearment) has become an embarrassment.

I think Mother has transferred the feelings she had for Father to Mary. I want Mother to be happy, but I think her relationship with Mary is abnormal, and I don't want my mother to become a lesbian. She's given up all her old friends, and the whole thing looks sick to me. I'm afraid people will start talking.

This is something I can't discuss with Mother, but I think she needs help. How can I help her?

CONCERNED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If you really want your mother to be happy, don't sit in judgment of her friend or the relationship between them. Your mother has the right to spend her time with whomever she chooses, for whatever reasons. And by the way, lesbians are born, not made.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has always been turned off by fat women, so I have kept myself fairly slender and attractive for him. However, he has not returned the favor. Over the last three years he has become grossly overweight. He looks terrible in his clothes, and worse in nothing!

I have tried to tell him in a kind way that he needs to diet and exercise for his health as well as for his appearance, but he couldn't care less.

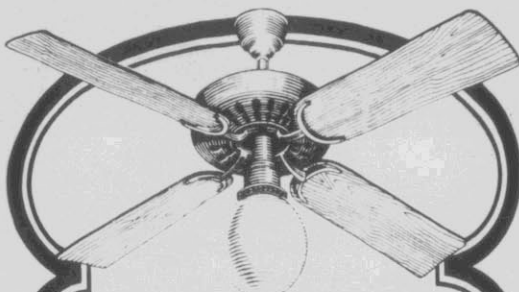

I love him very much and hate to see what he's doing to himself. He eats constantly — like a pig! He has also lost all his desire for sex, which is just as well, as I'm not exactly yearning for a 250-pound lover.

How do I let this otherwise wonderful man know how I feel without being a nag or hurting our marriage?

WIFE OF FLUBBER

DEAR WIFE: It appears that your husband has already hurt your marriage by neglecting his appearance and losing all desire for sex. You can help him by urging him to get professional help. He needs to find out what's eating him before he can stop eating like a pig.

To those who have ordered Abby's new teen booklet, please be patient. The demand again has been overwhelming.

Hunter: The Original Olde Tyme Ceiling Fan. $149.95 UP

Air movement, as well as temperature, determine your comfort level. So a room with a Hunter ceiling fan at 78 degrees has the cool comfort of a room at 70 degrees. Set your air conditioner thermostat up 8 degrees and save, because a Hunter runs on the power for one light bulb. In winter, a Hunter recirculates hot air that rises to the ceiling and cuts heating costs. But all ceiling fans aren't alike. Hunter is the original. Since 1886, Cast iron housing, Permanent oil reservoir, Real wood blades. No short cuts. No cheap substitutes. Choice of models and finishes makes Hunter fit any decor.

"Hunter, the oldest name in the business—what you get that your great grandfather didn't is a five year warranty and the assurance that comes with a reputation stretching back to 1886. Hunter is still the industry standard."

"Hunter confidently predicts a fan life of well over 40 years. Less expensive fans have large lightweight motor cases with small capacitor motors inside—the extra weight of solid cast pancake cases contributes to smooth operation, stability, and long life expectancy."

Sharks Return To Deep

Sharks? There are not normally a problem on North Carolina's coast but last week there was a shark alert along the shoreline from Morehead City to the South Carolina border.

Far from bringing about a panic, the shark brought sightseers to the beaches in hopes of seeing one of the monsters of the deep. There were reports of sightings, a bite being taken out of a surf board and one young girl being bitten on the leg, but there were no "Jaws" scenes on the North Carolina coast.

The experts theorized that warm waters had deprived the sharks of their usual deep water food supplies and they then moved toward shore.

Whatever the reason the sharks hung about through last weekend and, almost on signal, returned to their usual habitats. The swimming ban was lifted and life returned to normal on the beaches.

The sharks, of course, were never aware that they were the object of interest by those strange creatures which inhabited an alien world above the water. Or, if they were, they soon tired of the game and returned to the ocean where any sensible life form would be most comfortable.

Technology Changes Rapidly

Technology changes rapidly in the modern times.

Greenville Utilities has a functioning sewage disposal plant behind Greenwood Cemetery. The time has come for extensive changes, both to increase capacity and treat affluent to a higher degree.

Can the old plant be made usable? Not likely. Engineers say it will be cheaper to construct a new facility at an estimated cost of $12.31 million than to upgrade the old one. That would cost $13.49 million. To upgrade and expand would cost $14.11 million.

It's a fact of life faced not only by the Utilities, but by private industry that technology changes so fast it is often more economical to abandon old facilities and start over.

THIS AFTERNOON

A New Approach

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There are a lot of North Carolinians who never got a proper education. Statewide, statistics show the median school year completed is grade 10, and nearly 40 percent of the adult population never graduated from high school.

This low level of education is a contributing factor in the state's dismal performance in a lot of areas: health and nutrition problems; crime; poverty.

Equally important, given the rapidly exploding change in high technology production, a lot of Tar Heels are not equipped to handle the reading, writing and ciphering essential to getting good jobs in the modern factory.

Nationally, more than 25 million adults have less than an eighth grade education. With that many people in this state and across the nation needing special help to educate themselves, there is simply no way the public schools or community colleges can provide the resources to teach them.

Complicate that with the fact that conflicting work and family pressures make it difficult, if not impossible, for many to participate in traditional adult education programs.

with those adults who recognize the need for more education, and are willing to work for it.

A trial run is being conducted at Durham Technical Institute, with one class at the school itself, and two others located in the community. Having classes in familiar settings and easily accessible make them less intimidating.

Aside from overcoming the absence of teachers and programs sufficient to handle the adult illiteracy problem, the personalized instruction approach puts the adults in charge of their own progress, removing the stigma sometimes attached to "going to school" and encourages development of independence.

Essentially, the program provides a series of lessons, each of which must be mastered before moving on to the next. Working in small

BILL NOBLITT

Personalized

With that background in mind, specialists in adult education at the state's Research Triangle Institute are working to develop a new approach: "Personalized System of Instruction."

Actually the approach isn't all that new. For years, highly motivated college students have been encouraged to work on their own, at their own pace and following their own interests, in mastering a variety of subjects.

What is new is that Dr. Lamarr Cox and Carolee Lane at Research Triangle Institute think somewhat the same approach can work groups, those who have already learned a particular subject help their fellow students overcome difficulties. This peer participation both encourages students to master the material, and helps the slower ones.

Says Carolee Lane, a research psychologist: "The population...includes adults who function on the fourth to eighth grade level. They are students who have returned to school after discovering that they lack sufficient skills to meet the demands of life and work."

Motivated

The students know that the work will not be easy, but they also know how "desperately they need this material, so they tend to be highly motivated," Miss Lane said.

There are not grades in the program. The object is not to get an A; but to learn. If, on a test, a student gets 40 percent right, that doesn't mean failure. It means he has mastered 40 percent of the material, and must move right on to learning the remaining 60 percent.

Research Triangle Institute specialists do not expect the experiment at Durham Tech to produce enough information to prove whether the personalized system works, or doesn't work...but they do think it will "provide a starting point for developing what actually is a new use of this instructional system," Cox said.

He adds that, ideally, society should address educational problems by providing more complete education for children. "But there are still millions of adults for whom we need to do something," he adds.

Real Man In The Street

NEW YORK — The proverbial taxi driver was taking me to Madison Square Garden. I was counting on him for the proverbial column on what the New York man in the street was thinking about the Democratic National Convention. The name on his dashboard was Alfred Mancuso. I waited for Mr. Mancuso to start the conversation, but there was dead silence in the taxi.

Finally I lost my patience. "Cat got your tongue, Mr. Mancuso?"

"How's that?" he said, stopping for a red light.

"I've been in this taxi for three minutes and you've yet to tell me what's wrong with the country."

"Don't see nuthin' wrong with it as far as I'm concerned — everything is hunky-dory and A-OK."

"Surely you jest, sir," I said. "Are you happy with the choices for president this year?"

"Yep, I really am. When you think there are over 100 million people to choose from, and they managed to find three such outstanding candidates it seems a miracle."

I looked into the mirror to see if Mr. Mancuso was putting me on.

Finally I said, "At the same time you certainly must be looking for someone to find a solution to rampant inflation that cuts through your take-home pay like a knife."

"I'm not for inflation," Mr.

ART BUCHWALD

Mancuso said. "Or against it. I believe in freedom of choice. Some people may want inflation and others may not. It should be a matter of conscience."

We were only 10 blocks from Madison Square Garden and I felt my "man in the streets interview" falling through my fingers.

"If the economy doesn't bother you, Mr. Mancuso, then what does?"

"That's a tough one. When you drive a taxi, see, it's very hard to get upset about something. But I'll tell you one thing about this country that bugs me."

My pad and pen were poised.

He said, "I'm not sure everyone who says to you, 'Have a nice day' really means it. Some people, when they tell you to have a nice day, are sincere, but others just say it out of habit. You can't imagine how many people get out of my cab and

Congress Is Still Demo

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — At this point in the 1980 election contests the strong showing of Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan is not reflected in comparable support for Republican congressional candidates.

While the most recent Gallup Poll test election shows Reagan far ahead of President Jimmy Carter (as well as other Democrats tested) and independent candidate John Anderson, the Republican Party has not picked up any demonstrable strength in terms of the national vote for Congress since surveys conducted earlier this year.

While the situation could change in the months ahead, the current national vote for the House of Representatives, based on the choices of registered voters, shows the Democratic Party with a 57-43 percent advantage over the Republican Party.

The previous (mid-June) survey showed the Democratic Party with a similar 58-42 percent lead, the same figures recorded in a survey conducted in late February-early March.

By way of comparison, in the latest presidential trial heat Reagan is the choice of 45 percent of registered voters to 31 percent for Carter and 14 percent for Anderson.

Gallup pre-election findings have proved to be remarkably accurate estimates of the popular for Congress. For example, in the 1978 congressional elections, the final Gallup estimate of the national vote was 55 percent Democratic and 45 percent Republican while the actual division of the popular vote was virtually the same, 54.6 and 45.4 percent for each of the two parties, respectively.

Although the Gallup national vote for Congress cannot be translated directly into House seats, on the basis of the current survey evidence it is difficult to foresee any major changes in the present composition of the House — 275 Democrats and 159 Republicans.

The following questions are asked by the Gallup Poll to determine congressional strength:

"If the elections for Congress were being held TODAY, which party would you like to see win in this congressional district, the Democratic Party or the Republican Party?"

Those who named another party or who are undecided are asked:

"As of today, do you lean more to the Democratic Party or to the Republican Party?"

Here are the latest findings, based on the choices of registered voters:

Vote For Congress — Latest (Choices of registered voters)
Democratic	54%
Republican	40%
Other	1
Undecided	5
Splitting the other and undecided vote evenly between the major parties, the division of the vote is as follows:
Democratic	57%
Republican	43

Following are the results from the two surveys conducted earlier this year:

Strength For Today

Life After Death
The dead shall rise again. This is the continued assurance of the Word of God.

Here are some of these assurances. "These dead men shall live...and the earth shall cast out the dead." "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand in the latter day upon the earth, and although after worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." "God hath raised up the Lord, and will also raise up us by his own power." "The hour is coming in which all that are in the grave shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." "Whosoever liveth and believeth on me, shall never die."

Life after death, not being bound by time and space, is beyond human understanding, but it is not beyond human attainment. The Bible everywhere testifies to the reality and imminence of it. Jesus never argued the existence of life after death; he assumed it.

UNC-CH Eases Way For Blacks

By JACI HUGHES
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — With the University of North Carolina embroiled in a marathon fight over desegregation of its 16 campuses, the mostly white UNC campus at Chapel Hill is trying to ease the way for about 400 incoming black freshmen with a special orientation program.

Associate Dean Hayden Renwick said "Black Pre-orientation" is held each fall because UNC-Chapel Hill's regular orientation program doesn't meet the needs of black students.

"We try to ease some of the psychological burden of being thrust into a sea of 20,000 white faces," Renwick said.

Under the program blacks arrive on campus one day earlier than other freshmen and attend speeches and events specially geared to black students and black activities on campus. UNC-Chapel Hill is the only predominantly white school in the UNC system that conducts such a program.

"Black preorientation is designed for black freshmen to give them a head start," said Lorraine Satterwhite, a black student who works with the program through the Office of Student Affairs.

"Many of them are coming from small towns and although they went to integrated schools, they still went home to their black neighborhoods at night. Now they're having to deal with everybody all the time," she said.

Christopher Fordham, who became chancellor at Chapel Hill earlier this year, said he was not aware of the pre-orientation program but added, "I would be surprised if there were not a special orientation for special groups."

UNC President William Friday also said he was not aware of the program.

The UNC system is involved in federal hearings on the U.S. Department of Education's attempt to cut off $90 million a year in federal funds to the university. DOE has charged that the system's 11 predominantly white schools and five predominantly black schools have not been adequately desegregated.

Friday and other UNC officials maintain they have taken all reasonable steps toward integrating the student bodies and faculties at the 16 campuses.

The UNC student body president, Bob Saunders, said the preorientation program is a symptom of segregation rather than a cause.

"I think the root of the problem of voluntary segregation is the actual percentages of black and white students on campus. In any school where the percentage is that small (7 percent black), there is the need for specialized activities," he said.

"I think the university should be totally integrated, but it can't be a one-sided affair," said Renwick, who is black. "The university has to make up its mind that's what they want. The way to stop it (segregation) is not by getting black students to adhere to white doctrine."

Renwick said the pre-orientation program began in 1969 because black students were rebuffed when they tried to get involved in planning regular orientation activities.

"Black students need to actively participate on the ground floor of developing the whole concept of orientation. We have to get away from this whole concept that everything the white segment says should be done is what should be done," he said.

Saunders said the orientation, which is put together by students, is coordinated with the black program. "Coordination of the two programs can best be done by integrating the staffs of preorientation and orientation," he said.

Renwick said coordination and input aren't enough. "I want it to be equal participation (in planning orientation)," he said.

Harold G. Wallace, an assistant vice chancellor for student affairs, said pre-orientation serves purposes other than introducing students to black activities on campus.

"We focus not only on what Carolina means to them as black students, but the various support services within the university... such as counseling and academic resources," he said.

Wallace said black students get a special advantage by participating in preorientation: "They get a chance to become oriented in a small group rather than with 3,000 other students. We focus on activities to supplement regular orientation."

Preorientation activities include presentations by black culture groups such as the Opeyo Dancers and the Ebony Readers, political groups like the Black Student Movement, and an introduction to social groups such as black sororities and fraternities.

The students also meet with black professors and deans.

none of them remember a half-hour later whether they wished me a nice day or not." "And you feel that's the thing the man in the street worries about the most?" "I would think so. No one likes to be lied to."

We were getting terribly close to the convention hall. I made one more stab at Mr. Mancuso. "Do you have any objection to telling me whom you favor in the upcoming election?"

"Let's see. I like Reagan — always have, ever since I saw him on 'Death Valley Days.' He seems to care for the little people in spite of being a movie star. Carter's a good man, too. He goes to church every Sunday and he loves his brother. Anderson is also a fine person. I always trust a man with white hair. But I don't think it's the role of a taxi driver to tell people what he thinks. That isn't what he's paid for. We don't know any more than anybody else — maybe even less."

We arrived at our destination. "As spokesman for the man in the street, you're a dud," I told him.

Mr. Mancuso said, "You're the fourth reporter I took to Madison Square Garden today who said the same thing."

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — School teacher Frances Russ Lockamy says those mistakes over her name may be becoming a habit. Twice, she has been identified mistakenly as having been indicted.

The latest mistake came last month when a federal grand jury in Jacksonville, Fla., used her name in an indictment connected with a recording tape piracy operation.

The indictment should have listed Frances Moore Lockamy of Dallas, N.C., as the suspect, said Charlotte FBI spokesman Charles Richards.

"We just picked the wrong

Fallgatter said investigators check local records and telephone directories to get the names and addresses for people indicted.

"We didn't suspect there were two Frances Lockamys in town. I guess we grabbed the wrong one," he said.

Frances Russ Lockamy said she also was identified several years ago in a newspaper story as having been indicted. Again, it was a mistake.

Reagan: I'm Not The Issue

By BRIAN BLAND
Associated Press Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, breaking his week-long silence on the Democratic National Convention, says the charges hurled at him from Madison Square Garden do not change the issues.

"They went to a lot of trouble to talk about me for four days, but the issue is still the Carter record," he said.

Reagan has drawn considerable fire from President Carter and other Democrats this week. Troubled by internal division, the party has sought to generate a spirit of unity by focusing on the November battle against the Republicans.

Reagan said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's stirring Tuesday night speech was well prepared and well delivered.

But he said it was full of "demagoguery."

"Teddy Kennedy accused me of stealing Democratic lines (statements) on unemployment," Reagan said in his prepared statement. "But it wasn't (me) who made people unemployed."

Kennedy — who addressed the convention in a successful bid to generate support for his economics program, including a $12 billion jobs plan — criticized Reagan for quoting Franklin D. Roosevelt and otherwise trying to sound like a Democrat. Reagan aides accused Kennedy of using dated comments, taken out of context, against the former California governor.

Reagan also said he was unimpressed with Rep. Morris Udall's keynote speech.

The comments were the first from Reagan on this week's Democratic convention in New York. Press aides had said earlier that Reagan planned no statements from Rancho Del Cielo, his remote ranch in the southern California's Santa Ynez Mountains.

Meanwhile, Carter's campaign chairman, Robert Strauss, told reporters Thursday that Reagan had called the president late Wednesday to congratulate him on winning renomination.

"Ronald Reagan called the president ... and they had a very pleasant conversation," Strauss said.

Later, a Reagan press aide acknowledged the talk and said Carter had thanked Reagan for calling.

"They spoke briefly about the coming campaign," the aide said. "Both agreed they hoped it would be kept on a high level."

Reagan was scheduled to return from the ranch to his Los Angeles home today before seeing off his vice-presidential running mate, George Bush, on a nine-day trip to Japan and the People's Republic of China that begins Saturday. The two men planned a news conference before Bush's departure.

Reagan said he kept busy at the ranch this week riding horseback, picking up rocks to build a spillway for his lake, clearing trails and splitting firewood for the winter — the kind of activity he considers the best sort of relaxation.

Press aides said he also used the time to write speeches and read briefing papers from advisers.

Judge Stops Exhumation Try

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Lee Harvey Oswald's widow says she approves of an attempt to determine just who is in his grave, but the brother of the accused presidential assassin has won a court order halting the effort.

A state district judge on Thursday granted a temporary restraining order after Robert Oswald of Wichita Falls, Texas, filed suit calling the move a publicity stunt and contending he would suffer "severe mental pain and anguish" if the body were unearthed.

His sister-in-law, Marina Oswald Porter, says she signed an exhumation release although she's convinced the body in Rose Hill Cemetery here is that of her dead husband.

"I don't need the proof," she told The Associated Press from her Rockwall home. But she said an exhumation and autopsy would end speculation over the identity of the body in Oswald's grave.

The renewed effort to get authorities to dig up the grave comes from British author Michael Eddowes, who is trying to prove his arguments that the body in Oswald's grave is that of a Russian imposter.

He sought an exhumation order last year, and was turned down by the same judge who issued Thursday's order, Judge James Wright. That decision recently was upheld by a civil appeals court here and now is before the Texas Supreme Court.

Eddowes' attorney, Charles Pittman, said Thursday they had received "legal authority" to exhume the body, but did not disclose the source of the authority. Wright then granted a temporary restraining order and ordered a hearing on the matter Aug. 22. "We still have a good shot" at getting the body exhumed, Pittman said.

"I'm not worried about this," Eddowes said. "This is something for the American people to decide upon. I have given all the information I have and there is nothing else I can do."

The lawsuit filed by Oswald contended Mrs. Porter, Eddowes, Dallas County Medical Examiner Charles

Petty, Dallas County Judge Garry Weber and Rose Hill Cemetery "have conspired ... to disinter the body of Lee Harvey Oswald and remove it from its present place of burial."

The suit said Weber signed the exhumation order. The county judge could not be reached for comment Thursday night.

Eddowes' efforts to exhume the body are "continuing action ... for his own personal gain and to promote a book he has written," the suit claimed.

The suit also said Oswald would seek $100,000 from each defendant if the body were exhumed.

The Warren Commission named Lee Harvey Oswald as the man who assassinated President John F. Kennedy's in 1963, but conspiracy theories have abounded in the 17 years since the shooting.

In his book, "The Oswald File" and his civil suit filed in January 1979, Eddowes claimed the body measured in Dallas after Oswald's death was two inches shorter than the height recorded for Oswald during a 1958 Marine physical.

Appointments Made By GOP

Committees, chairmen and coordinators for the November election campaign were named at the meeting of the Pitt County Republican Party, held earlier this week.

The session was held at the Republican headquarters — the old University Book Exchange building — on Cotanche Street.

Republican officials said anyone interested in helping in the November campaign should call Mary Jack Hinant at 758-7494.

Pitt Board Will Meet On Monday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. in the new county office building on West Fifth St.

Included on the agenda are bid opening for equipment for the county print shop and an automobile for the Development Commission; the consideration of a request from the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center, Inc. for $100,000 for the center's new recreation and housing complex; a 10:30 a.m. meeting with Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon to discuss the possibility of joint services; and consideration of approval of the lease of the Humber home to the North Carolina Division of Archives.

Also on the agenda is a 2 p.m. public hearing on proposed multi-family dwelling, soil erosion and sedimentation control, and flood damage prevention ordinances; discussion of final tax values to be used in the tax revaluation set to become effective in 1981; and other items.

Investigate Four City Accidents

An estimated $2,335 damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:04 p.m. mishap on Line Avenue, 58 feet north of the Watauga Avenue intersection involving vehicles driven by Larry James Wooten of 1918A Kennedy Cir., and William Earl Vines of Farmville.

Damage from the mishap was set at $175 to the Wooten car and $575 to the vehicle driven by Vines.

Cars driven by Belinda Ann McLawhorn of 904 Imperial St., and Johnny Ray Jones of 1709B Hopkins St. collided about 4:45 p.m. on 14th Street, 40 feet east of the Dickinson Avenue intersection, resulting in an estimated $100 damage to the McLawhorn car and $500 damage to the Jones vehicle. A 5:05 p.m. mishap on Memorial Drive, north of the Club Pines Road intersection, involved vehicles operated by Lendel Daniels of Winterville, and Lester Franklin Johnson of 100 Rotary Ave.

Damage from the collision was set by investigators at $550 to the Daniels car and $25 to the Johnson auto.

Wanda Virginia Stewart of Ayden was charged with having improper brakes following investigation of a 7:04 p.m. collision at the intersection of Club Pines Road and Memorial Drive.

Police, who identified the driver of the second car involved as James Phillip Nichols of 1403 Willow Dr., estimated damage at $125 to the Stewart car and $285 to the Nichols auto.

Third Jet Hijacked To Cuba This Week

By LEW WHEATON
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The third jetliner hijacked from Florida to Cuba this week landed in San Juan early today after it was commandeered by two young men who made it back to their communist homeland by threatening to torch the plane with a little plastic bottle of gasoline, passengers said.

The 12 crew members of the National Airlines DC-10 refused to talk to reporters, but some of the 209 passengers who disembarked — many carrying shopping bags full of Cuban rum and cigars — said the hijackers identified themselves as Cubans who wanted to return to their families.

They said one of the hijackers had light skin and was tall and skinny, and the other was slightly shorter, a little bit heavier and darker, and had a black moustache. They said one carried what looked like a "pint mouthwash bottle" of gasoline and kept threatening to set it afire with a lighter.

Lt. Dirk Rodriguez of the U.S. Air Force, a native of Ponce, Puerto Rico, who was a passenger, said the hijackers were in the 12th row of the first tourist cabin of National Flight 872 bound from Miami to San Juan and made their move about 7:40 p.m. EDT Friday, roughly one hour after takeoff.

He said they pulled out the bottle and started making threats, then splashed gasoline around four seats, sending two passengers to the lavatory to wash up as the odor of the gasoline spread through the plane.

Rodriguez said one hijacker sat on the edge of one of the seats holding a lighter in one hand and the bottle in the other, and that when anyone approached him he would bring the lighter toward the mouth of the bottle and make threatening gestures.

Fatima Planco of San Juan, another passenger, said, "One of the hijackers said if they don't bring this plane to Cuba they would burn it up."

Leonidas Toledo, mayor of Cayey, Puerto Rico, who was returning from the Democratic National Convention in New York City, said he and his wife felt threatened.

He said the hijackers, although generally polite, were "very menacing." "The last 15 to 20 minutes before landing in Cuba, we felt very much in danger."

Mort Cohen of Washington, D.C., a vacationer aboard the flight, said the plane landed in Cuba about 9 p.m. EDT "at a completely darkened airport and stayed way out on runway until searchlights went on from a semicircle of vehicles that pulled up to the plane on one side."

Cohen's wife, Janet, said two uniformed Cubans came aboard and called for those who wanted to get off to come forward, that the hijackers did and were handcuffed by the Cubans and put in a waiting car that sped off with two other vehicles.

She said the hijackers had made their threat with "what looked like a pint mouthwash bottle filled with something yellow. It had no cap on it." She said when the Cuban authorities came aboard they took out the four seats doused with gasoline and removed them from plane, then ordered everybody off.

She and the others were then put on buses, taken to the main airline terminal at Jose Marti airport, given free food and beverages, allowed to shop for three to four hours, then bused back to the plane, which refueled and took off for San Juan, where it arrived at 3:30 a.m. EDT.

Seaman Provide Interesting Ministry

By PATRICK CONNOLLY
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) - Landlubbers who think seamen are "rowdies and roughnecks" don't know a batten from a bilge pump, says a Lutheran minister whose church is the waterfront.

"I'm dealing with some of the finest, most upright family men I've ever met," says the Rev. Norris Stoa, who talks with hundreds of seamen a month. "Many of them wouldn't be at sea if they could find jobs at home which would feed their families and educate their children." Stoa, 70, runs the Seattle Seaman's Center, a small building set among bustling sidestreets and warehouses near Seattle's waterfront. Every month, he clambers up the gangplanks of about 100 foreign ships, bringing "the message of Jesus Christ" to crews from around the globe.

Bible tracts in 20 languages are distributed. Families far away are prayed for. He admiringly views countless children's photographs, which crew members pull from their wallets. He eats lunch elbow-to-elbow with the seamen, trying not to kibitz at a card game.

Stoa's brown 12-passenger van is always ready on the dock to whisk seamen downtown for a tour, a movie, or to second-hand stores, where he says crews blow more money than at bars.

"The crews ask to go to Goodwill or the Salvation Army thrift store," says Stoa. But officers, who have more money, "want to go to Penney's or Sears."

He adds, "Crews from India always want to get broken typewriters to fix up. It gives them something to do day after day at sea and they can sell the machines at home at a profit."

The waterfront is a long way from the farm where Stoa was born near Buxton, N.D. He attended Saint Olaf and Concordia colleges in Minnesota and worked as a minister in Parshall, N.D., and Morris, Ill., before getting a church in downtown Seattle.

Six years ago, he was asked to take over the Seaman's Center. "I was excited," he says. "I looked on it as the chance of a lifetime to be kind to all these people and to share the love of God with them

"The Christian church sends missionaries all over the earth, but the Lord has sent Moslems, Hindus, Buddhists, Zoroastrians, atheists to me."

Stoa is part of the waterfront scene, whether he's wheeling his big van under a maze of viaducts or bolting up a gangplank with a briefcase full of Bible tracts. He's often at the head of a gang of confused but smiling sailors headed into second-hand stores.

If it weren't for Stoa's van, "I'd be back on the ship, sleeping, and that's no fun," said Irving Kao of Hong Kong, a seaman on the freighter Ogden Fraser from Japan. On Sundays, Stoa hauls seamen around to churches of their choice. Congregations turn in surprise as foreign worshippers slide, nodding and smiling, into pews.

Sunday nights, students from the Lutheran Bible School at Issaquah, Wash., help sailors sharpen their pool and table tennis at the Seaman's Center.

Stoa has trouble getting aboard Soviet ships because the U.S.S.R. is officially atheist. He stands on the dock, a bundle of Russian-language Bible readings under his arm, patiently explaining to a ship's officer, "I read what your master, Lenin, wrote. Now you read what my master, Jesus, wrote."

Sometimes that line works, but usually it doesn't. "Homesickness is the biggest illness among seamen," says Stoa. "Regardless of their religion, I deal with them in kindness, love and helpfulness. I'm their friend. That's what they need."

Libyan Leader Urges Arab Christians Convert

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy says the estimated 10 million Christians in the Arab world should convert to Islam because "an Arab can't be Christian."

"Christ was sent to the Israelis," Khadafy was quoted as saying in an interview published today in the pro-Libyan Lebanese newspaper As Safir. "The Israelis rejected him. So how can we Arabs accept him?"

Told by a Christian Arab interviewer that Christian Arabs were unquestionably loyal to their nationality, Khadafy replied:

"This is wrong. They should become Moslems. Otherwise they will be Israelis in spirit, because Christ was sent as a prophet to the sons of Israel whereas Islam is an Arab religion."

The mercurial Khadafy, a staunch Moslem fundamentalist himself, is one of the Arab world's most radical leaders. He has repeatedly demanded the Arab nations go to war to eradicate the Jewish state.

During the interview, which dealt mainly with Khadafy's views on religion, social reforms and government systems, he claimed half of the European continent has taken up Marxism as a religion, adding:

"Most of the new generation in Western Europe is heretic. ... Christianity will be no where to be found soon."

Khadafy's remarks were likely to strike a sensitive nerve since many Christians hold leading positions in several Arab countries as well as in the Palestinian guerrilla movement.

Among them are Arab nationalists such as Michael Aflak, a Syrian who founded the Arab Socialist Baath Party that now rules Syria and Iraq, and Dr. George Habash, chief of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, a Marxist guerrilla organization.

Khadafy said the real cause of the 1975-76 civil war in Lebanon was "religious duality rather than ideology."

Millie Ann Johnson will be the guest speaker. All women are asked to wear white and participate in the service, according to the pastor, the Rev. J. C. Chance.

Production Down 6th Straight Month

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Production from the nation's factories and mines declined in July for the sixth straight month but the rate of fall was slower than earlier this year, the Federal Reserve Board said today.

An upturn in production of automobiles helped slow the decline, a sign to many economists that the recession may be approaching bottom.

Industrial production dropped 1.6 percent in July, following newly revised estimated declines in April, May and June of 2.3, 2.6 and 2.3 percent, respectively.

The index in July was 9.0 percent under the January level and 9.2 percent below the July 1979 mark.

The government report said the July decrease showed "sharp curtailments in the production of most durable and nondurable goods materials and further cutbacks in the output of business equipment, home goods and consumer nondurable goods."

One of the bright spots in the report was a 1.7-percent increase in production by electric and gas utilities - but that was brought on by one of the worst heat waves of the century. Manufacturing production fell by 1.9 percent while the output from U.S. mines was off by 0.9 percent.

Production of consumer goods fell 1.1 percent in July - about the same as in June but a decline considerably below the levels of March and April, when the recession began taking hold in earnest.

Today your boy's world is a wonderful place of trees and blue sky, puppy dogs and best friends. Perhaps his greatest decision is which tree to climb and how high to go.

But it won't always be so. As he grows, his choices must grow in scope and seriousness also.

Just as you today can't choose for him which tree to climb and how high; so also, as he grows in wisdom and stature, you cannot choose for him the proper values and goals for his life. But you can guide and direct him in the ways you have found to be good and right.

Attend the church or synagogue of your choice and take your child with you.

East Files Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Elections Director Alex Brock said Thursday a suit filed by Republican senatorial candidate John East erred in contending that state law prescribes the order that names will appear on election ballots.

East, in a suit filed in U.S. District Court, asked the court to block printing and distribution of the general election ballot. The suit alleged that state law sets a specific order in which candidates for particular offices will be listed.

East charged that the board prepared the ballot in an unlawful and unconstitutional manner by arranging it so that the vote for the Senate seat being sought by East is combined with and comes after the vote for state offices.

Brock expressed surprise at the contention, denying that such a law existed.

"I was astounded they say there is a law that states there is an order," Brock said, adding that the only thing the board is prohibited from doing is placing federal offices in the middle of the state ballot or vice-versa.

Brock said there is no customary listing order except for state offices.

A hearing on East's suit was scheduled for next Thursday before U.S. District Judge Earl Britt in Fayetteville. Plaintiffs in the suit are state GOP chairman Jackson F. Lee, East campaign chairman Mary Jane Hollyday, John Howard (a registered Democrat) and the East for Senate Committee.

The state board already is under a court order barring distribution of the presidential ballot. That order came at the request of backers of independent presidential candidate John Anderson, who have filed a suit accusing the board of improperly barring the Illinois congressman from a position on the presidential ballot.

East's suit claims that state law mandates a listed order for posting of races on the ballot and the board has no discretion to alter the order.

It said election laws require that the presidential race be placed at the top of the ballot, followed by U.S. Senate, U.S. House, state offices and county offices. An allowance is made for combining the state and Senate ballot but the listed order is still mandatory, it said.

East argued that the Elections Board changed the arrangement of the ballot this year for the first time since 1964, putting the Senate race after the state races.

The suit argued that ballot position directly affects the number of votes cast for an office, and the number cast for the last office on a combined state-federal ballot is "substantially lower than those cast for offices on the ballot immediately following the presidential ballot."

It said that because the governor is for the first time eligible for re-election "the board arranged to structure the ballot in order to obtain maximum advantage and benefit for candidates on the Democratic ticket" by positioning the gubernatorial vote as the first item on the combined ballot. The suit stated that the positioning maximizes the chances of a voter voting a straight party ticket.

East said from his Greenville home this morning, "I think it (the suit) raises a very valid point." For the past 15 years, he explained, the Board of Elections has used separate ballots for the presidential race, separate ballots for the U.S. Senate and House races, and a separate State office ballot.

"It's pretty obvious what they want to do...sensing trouble, they changed the ballot to minimize the danger.

"It's a way to obscure our race when it comes to election day," a way to, "confuse and mislead the voters...make it more difficult to cast an intelligent ballot," East charged.

"We feel it's a very fair and legitimate question...it's serious...they ought to be called on it."

East said whether he wins the suit or not, "the public ought to know

Hypnois May Play Role In Klan Trial Witness

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hypnosis of prosecution witnesses may become a factor in the trial of six Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen charged with murder in the shooting deaths of five Communist Workers Party members.

A prosecution witness — Nelson Williamson — revealed under cross examination Thursday that he had undergone hypnosis with prosecutors present before the trial began.

Earlier in the week, prosecution witness Laura Blumenthal confirmed a report that she also was hypnotized before the trial began to sharpen her memory.

Williamson, a resident of the area of Greensboro where the shootings occurred and an eye witness to some aspects of the bloody clash, was the final witness in the second week of the trial.

Each of the six defendants is charged with five counts of murder and felonious rioting in connection with the shootings at a "Death to the Klan" rally last Nov. 3.

Superior Court Judge James M. Long gave the six men and six women of the jury and lawyers on both sides of the case a day off Friday, with the trial scheduled to resume with more prosecution witnesses at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

Williamson detailed his recollection of the events last Nov. 3 for the prosecution before the six defense lawyers began grilling him under cross examination.

After the court session Thursday, the defense lawyers said they had known nothing about Williamson's admission of a hypnosis session until he brought it up when asked about his prior contact with prosecutors.

"It was a complete surprise," said defense lawyer Robert Cahoon.

Defense lawyers questioned Williamson closely about his statements that he was taken to Fayetteville several months ago, where he voluntarily underwent a hypnosis session.

Russian Is Set To Die

MOSCOW (AP) — A senior official in the Georgian capital Tbilisi has been sentenced to death in a large-scale bribery scandal that drew a public outcry and local television coverage of his interrogation, according to reports reaching Moscow today.

According to the Tbilisi newspaper Zarya Vostoka and Georgian officials contacted by telephone from Moscow, the death sentence was pronounced July 29 on Yuda Kobakhidze, the chief municipal executive of one district of Tbilisi. The capital of the southern Soviet Republic of Georgia, Tbilisi has a population of one million.

Zarya Vostoka said the Kobakhidze case involved 23 bribes amounting to a total of 172,000 rubles, or about $270,000. According to a letter from an angry Tbilisi metalworker published by the newspaper, the bribes were collected from citizens seeking government-supplied apartments.

Apartment rents are low in the Soviet Union, but citizens often encounter difficulty obtaining the flats they want because of a housing shortage. Georgia has traditionally been plagued by corruption cases and a Communist Party meeting last year in Tbilisi called for stronger measures against embezzlement and bribery.

Zarya Vostoka said at least five persons besides Kobakhidze were prosecuted in the latest case and received jail sentences ranging from three to 10 years.

According to officials contacted by Western correspondents at Kobakhidze's former office in Tbilisi, parts of his interrogation were shown on Georgian television. Zarya Vostoka said the public outcry was substantial, and that its editors had received letters and phone calls from throughout Georgia condemning the bribery operation.

The officials said they had not yet been advised that the execution of Kobakhidze had been carried out. They indicated that legal appeals may still be open to him.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were slightly higher in fairly active trading today despite a government report showing a steep jump in wholesale and producer prices last month.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which had been up by more than 4 points, showed a 1.36 point gain at 963.99 as of midday.

Gaining issues outnumbered losers by a 85 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume was 23.03 million shares, up from 18.86 million in the previous session.

The market momentum which saw the Dow Jones industrial average spurt more than 13 points on Thursday continued to fuel modest gains in the first hour of trading but the gains then began to fade.

Prior to the market's open this morning, the Labor Department reported that producer prices jumped 1.7 percent in July, or at a compound annual rate of more than 22 percent. That was the biggest monthly rise since November, 1974.

Separately the government reported that the nation's industrial production declined 1.6 percent in July, a drop that was less severe than the previous two months.

Some domestic oil and gas development stocks continued to gain in active trading for the second consecutive session. Tesoro Petroleum rose 3/8 to 26 5/8 as the most actively traded NYSE stock as of midday.

Louisiana Land Exploration jumped 1 1/2 to 50; Union Oil of California was up 1/8 to 32 3/4; Inexco Oil rose 1/4 to 37 and Cities Service gained 3/8 to 37 1/2. Exxon was up 1/2 to 72 but Occidental Petroleum fell 1/8 to 26 1/2.

The NYSE composite index of all listed stocks rose 0.16 to 71.97.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 0.09 to 324.76.

said that traffic counts on Club Pines Drive indicated a very low amount compared to other residential roads. Dixon asserted that the residents of the area were being penalized because of the low traffic count resulting from the island at the intersection.

Councilman William Hadden, who offered the motion to rezone the property, said that he felt the uses in O&I-2 would represent very little in increased traffic. He said that while he understood the concern of the residents, he did not think the development of the property would be detrimental in terms of traffic.

In another matter, the council gave its approval to an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance, making outdoor advertising signs a permitted use in Shopping Center (CS) zoning classifications and a special use in Flood Plain (FP) zones. The amendment followed a request by representatives of Naegle Outdoor Advertising to add CS, FP and Downtown Commercial Fringe (CDF) zones to the areas where outdoor signs are allowed.

Mayor Don McGlohn said the issue involved the extent to which the city wanted to regulate outdoor advertising here. He said that the only regulation for the zoning advertising media is outdoor advertising.

Councilman Dick McKee addressed the timing of the matter, saying that the city is trying to put together a long range plan that will help guide zoning action in the area.

Dick Farris, chairman of the local concerns committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, read a prepared statement from the committee endorsing outdoor advertising. Farris said, "The key word in our presentation is need. Business needs outdoor advertising. Social services need outdoor advertising. The general public needs outdoor advertising."

Crisises Or Opportunities

They're Different And The Same For Emory

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

What once were crises have become opportunities for East Carolina first-year head football coach Ed Emory.

"This summer was one crisis after another," Emory said after Thursday's picture day for ECU. Then, after a quick pause, Emory edited his words. "But since I'm so happy here I'll change that to opportunity. I've had the opportunity to solve one crisis after another this summer."

However, the summer, which included the resignation of no less than three assistant coaches, is over. Practice begins today, giving Emory the opportunity to solve if not a crisis at least a problem: how to mold a group of over 150 athletes, including 68 freshman and walk-ons, into a smooth running football machine.

"We've got 29 practices before Duke," said Emory, as if reminding himself of how few days remain before the season opens.

Today is the first day of practice for the entire squad - the freshman and walk-ons have been here since Sunday. The real rigors of fall, however, get underway in earnest Saturday when the Pirates begin four-a-days, a little something special Emory brought with him from his days Georgia Tech.

"Coach (Pepper) Rogers used it in 1978 and we had our best year and went to the Peach Bowl that year," Emory said. The four-a-days will continue most of next week. "Look, the big thing we lack is experience and the only way we can get experience is to get out and practice and get in game-type situations."

Among those needing experience as practice begins is quarterback Carlton Nelson. A sophomore, Nelson got limited playing time last season behind Leander Green. If Nelson comes through many of Pirates problems - Emory's opportunities - could be solved.

"We're excited about his ability," Emory said. "He's got skinnier over the summer, though. He weighed 175 when he left and he's down to 155 now. I told him when he turn sideways it's going to be hard for those big defensive players to hit him."

Luckily for Emory the Pirates have a duo of running backs who will go a long way in helping Nelson find his way in the backfield.

Returning for their final season are halfback Anthony Collins and fullback Theodore Sutton, both of whom have shots at eclipsing Carlister Crumpler as the school's all-time rusher.

Collins, 5-11, 202 pounds, has run for 1,704 yards in his career, leaving him 1,186 yards shy of Crumpler's 2,889 yards.

Sutton is even closer to the mark. Sutton, who has rushed for 2,144 yards, needs only 745 yards to pass Crumpler.

Whether either gets a shot at the record may depend largely on the offensive line, where the graduation harvest left the Pirates ravaged. Only all-American Wayne Inman, a 6-3, 245-pound senior, returns from an offensive line that helped ECU lead the nation in rushing in 1979.

Gene are Matt Mullholland, Joe Godette, Mitchell Johnson and Jeff Hagans.

Emory inherited a club with many - opportunities - on the field and in the classroom.

"It was unbelievable when I first got here," Emory said. "There were 45 players who were having academic problems. But with their attitude and commitments we ended up losing only two. Some guys made up 40-to-50 quality points."

Part of the academic problems found root during Pat Dye's reign. Under Dye, the Pirates's curfew was 11 o'clock. Lights were out then and no later.

Emory, on the other hand, has pushed the curfew back to midnight and is more lenient about when lights should be out. "If they've got a test the next day we're not going to make them turn their light off. They can go ahead and study. Before, they had to have their lights off at 11."

"I played football for 16 years and I'm trying to treat them as I wanted to be treated as an athlete," Emory said. "We can't have a country club atmosphere and win ballgames. We want them to know what is expected of them and if they don't meet these expectations they'll have to answer for it."

O's Stone Hurls 19th Victory

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Steve Stone didn't have his curve ball Thursday night but the New York Yankees had even less.

Stone, who leads the majors with 19 victories, checked the punchless Yankees on two hits as the Baltimore Orioles roared to a 6-1 triumph in the opener of a five-game series and charged within 2½-games of the fading first-place New Yorkers in the American League East.

Stone said he used a lot of sliders in beating the Yankees 4-2 on a seven-hitter last Saturday. This time, he did it with smoke.

"When you face a team two times in six days, you've got to give them something different to look at," he said. "I showed them a lot of fastballs tonight."

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox downed the Detroit Tigers 3-1, the Milwaukee Brewers defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2, the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Texas Rangers

7-2, the Oakland A's nipped the Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 11 innings and the California Angels edged the Seattle Mariners 2-1. Chicago and Kansas City were idle.

Stone, who is having his finest season, received home run support from Gary Roenicke, Rich Dauer and Ken Singleton. Roenicke hit a two-run shot off Tom Underwood in the sixth while Dauer and Singleton connected on consecutive pitches from Ron Davis in the seventh.

Dauer also doubled home a first-inning run and scored on a single by Benny Ayala. The Yankees scored on Reggie Jackson's 32nd home run in the second inning. Their other hit was Bucky Dent's single in the fifth.

Manager Dick Howser beamed his team's continuing hitting woes. "I'd like to keep giving the pitchers credit," he said, "but I don't know if they are all that good or not. We're just not swinging the bats and I don't know what to do about it."

Although the Orioles have taken four in a row from New York in the last seven days, Stone discounted any psychological benefits.

"It's just a game off the lead," he said. "We'll come out tomorrow (Friday) and start all over. I look for it to be a wonderful race."

Red Sox 3, Tigers 1

Tony Perez slammed a three-run homer in the first inning and Steve Renko, Tom Burgmeier and Bob Stanley made it stand up with a combined five-hitter. Rick Burleson drew a leadoff walk from Dan Schatzeder, Fred Lynn singled and Perez belted his 20th homer of the season. The blast gave him a league-leading 87 RBI.

"That's why we got him," said Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "We wouldn't pay that kind of money for a guy that was going to knock in 50."

Brewers 4, Blue Jays 2

Moose Haas scattered nine hits - including a pair of homers by John Mayberry - for his fourth consecutive victory and 14th of the season. It was his 11th complete game. Cecil Cooper backed Haas with four hits and two runs batted in, boosting his average to .344.

"I guess I'm just picking the right days to pitch now. Next time maybe it will be somebody else's turn to get some runs," said Haas, who has allowed just five earned runs in his last 34 innings. The Brewers have managed only 10 runs in his nine defeats.

Cooper drove in the lead run with a third-inning double off Dave Stieb and scored on a single by Ben Oglivie. Cooper also singled a run across in the seventh.

Indians 7, Rangers 2

Len Barker scattered 10 hits in 81-3 innings and Jorge Orta rapped out a double and two singles to lead Cleveland. Barker, who won for the 13th time this season, boosted his record against his former team to 5-0. In the third inning, Orta singled, moved to third on Mike Hargrove's single and scored on a wild pitch. He doubled a run home in the sixth.

A's 2, Twins 1

Dave Revering's pinch hit home run with two out in the 11th inning off Doug Corbett enabled Mike Norris to record his 16th victory with a six-hitter. Norris struck out six and walked one en route to his 18th complete game and Minnesota's run was unearned.

Angels 2, Mariners 1

Grich doubled with one out in the eighth inning, moved to third on an error by Seattle third baseman Ted Cox and scored the winning run on a single by Bobby Clark. California's Freddie Martinez scattered six hits in 82-3 innings before Don Aase recorded the last two outs following Bruce Boche's one-out triple. Seattle's Rick Honeycutt lost for the 13th time in his last 15 decisions. Carney Lansford homered for California in the first inning.

Trio Tied For Lead In Westchester Classic

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) - Tommy Valentine, a career non-winner, is looking for golf's Holy Grail.

And that is, simply, winning. "I've been improving," said Valentine, 31, who once lost his playing rights for lack of performance and still is subject to the trauma of the Monday morning qualifying rounds to gain a place in PGA tournaments.

He showed that improvement Thursday with a strong performance, including a birdie-birdie finish for a 65 that gave him a share of the first-round lead with David Graham and George Burns in the $400,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

"I'm becoming more consistent, more steady," Valentine said. "Now I just have to learn to play four good rounds instead of three."

"I'm looking for a win. Look what it did for Jack Renner last year. You win and suddenly there is the Masters and the Tournament of Champions and the Holy Grail."

Burns reeled off a string of seven consecutive birdies, one short of the all-time tour record, in his erratic 6-under-par effort that came as a "total surprise," he said, and Graham had an extremely solid performance that could have been even better.

"I'm not dissatisfied with any part of my game," said Graham, a former PGA champion and a winner here four years ago.

"I'm playing well and there's a feeling of confidence when you're on a golf course you like, one on which you play well, where you have won before."

In addition to his 1976 victory, Graham also finished second last year on the hilly, 6,603-yard, par-71 Westchester Country Club course, a suburban New York layout that, as usual, provided some of the lowest scoring of the year.

In all, 77 players in the field of 156 shot par or better.

One stroke back of the leaders at 66 was Mike Reid, who birdied his last three holes.

The group at 67 included George Archer, Tom Kite, David Edwards, Phil Hancock, Bob Murphy, Bruce Lietzke and Rik Massengale.

Tom Watson, who won the British Open and five American tournaments earlier this year, managed a no-bogey 68. But he was less than completely happy with it.

"I didn't play particularly well," he said. "I didn't make that many really bad mistakes, but it wasn't all that good. I feel I left a lot of birdies out there on the golf course," he said.

Burns missed the cut in the last three tournaments and "didn't have a very good feeling about my game coming in here."

"It (the birdie streak) was more miraculous than skill. I got a lot of good breaks, a lot of good bounces."

He also got a lot of birdies, 10 of them in all. He also included two bogeys and a double bogey in his erratic effort.

Emory: Duke Much To Prove

From staff reports

Random comments by Emory at yesterday's picture day:

•On the Blue Devils, ECU's opening-game opponents: "Duke lost only four of 44 players and after last year they have a lot to prove."

•On the rest of the Pirates' schedule, one of the toughest in years: "It's a story of dollars. Many of the schools we play have been pouring money into their programs the past few years. Miami has had three straight great recruiting years and they just hired their third pro coach. Playboy's picking them to be 8-3 and others have them in the top 10. Southern Miss is supposed to have one of their best teams in years." The Pirates also must face Florida State, ranked in the top five most of last season, and ACC powers UNC and N.C. State. All but the Southern Miss game are on the road.

On freshman Donald and Ronald Reid, the former star linebacking pair from Farmville Central: "If they hit as hard in pads as they do in shorts they're going to be something. They hit harder in shorts (and shoulder pads) than many of the players hit in full pads."

•On having over 150 players out for the squad, 68 of whom are freshman and walk-ons: "We expected we might have 75 newcomers out. I believe in the value of giving everyone who wants a chance to play the opportunity."

Emory says he saves seven scholarships for nonscholarship athletes who might walk on and make the team. "That way they know they have a real chance," Emory said. "We do ask them to obligate a year. If they aren't gonna do that we don't want them out here. There isn't really a chance to evaluate them in the fall. They're all serving the varsity at that point, sacrificing for a chance to play later."

•What it will take for ECU to achieve what Emory wants the Pirates to accomplish: "The chemistry will have to fall into place. The players, the coaches will have to blend together and have to rally around each other."

"We're also going to have to stay away from injuries - we're just so thin depth-wise. Also, we're going to have to be damn lucky. We're going to have to get some guys playing over their heads."

Perhaps the most impressive physical specimen at yesterday's ECU picture day was Terry Long. Long is 5-11 and weighs 270 pounds. But get this: he runs the 40-yard dash in 4.6 seconds, has a vertical jump of 32 inches and has 26" biceps. Long, after playing high school football, joined the army where he played football for the 82nd Airborne in Fort Bragg.

Long, who is a freshman, will fight - figuratively - with sophomore David Niemeyer, a 6-3, 218 pound sophomore, for the middle guard slot. The departure of John Hallow and Doug Smith, both of whom started at middle guard last year for the Pirates, have left the position. Hallow has given up football to concentrate on baseball while Smith has been switched to defensive tackle.

Hogs, 'Horns, Cougars To Battle For SWC Title

DALLAS (AP) — The NCAA decade of the 1980s begins Sept. 1 in history's earliest Texas-Arkansas football game but the outcome won't automatically decide the Southwest Conference championship like it did in the glory days of Darrell Royal and Frank Broyles.

The winner still has to play the new SWC block bully, Houston, which has hosted three of the last four Cotton Bowls.

If the Cougars are vanquished, then there's vastly improved Texas A&M, Baylor, Southern Methodist and Texas Tech along the gauntlet.

Texas Coach Fred Akers and Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz came to the logical solution that an early showdown of the two blood rivals would at least avoid schedule problems later in the season.

The Longhorns would have had to play the Razorbacks after their annual meeting with Oklahoma.

Arkansas now dodges playing Texas and Houston back-to-back.

Another thought is that the loser will still have a chance to receive a lucrative bowl bid if it goes ahead and has a respectable season.

Also, both schools get to start practice a week earlier than other teams — a big boost because both recruited an excellent crop of schoolboy bluechippers.

Critics of the move argue that Arkansas sophomore quarterback Tom Jones will have to make his varsity starting debut in a pressure game before a large Monday night national television (ABC) audience.

Others counter that Texas' young secondary will never be greener than it will be in the first game of the season.

"I suspect," said Akers, "there will be a lot of fans of the loser saying the game shouldn't have been moved from its October date. But I think it's good for college football and good for the two universities."

Texas and Arkansas have moved their game to December twice, the most memorable clash being in 1969 when the Longhorns' 15-14 victory gave them the national championship.

The Longhorns have more experience at quarterback with senior Donnie Little and sophomore Rick McIvor, who gained plenty of valuable playing time last year.

Arkansas has a sound running game headed by explosive Gary Anderson and boasts perhaps the finest sophomore defensive tackle in the country in Billy Ray Smith. Free safety Kevin Evans heads a solid secondary.

Meanwhile, the University of Houston remains nonplussed by all the hoopla over the Arkansas-Texas game.

The Cougars tied Arkansas for the title last year and won it outright in 1978 and 1977 and are loaded again in 1980.

The offense is led by senior quarterback Terry Elston, who threw the winning touchdown pass with 12 seconds left in the Cotton Bowl to acrobatic Eric Herring in the 17-14 defeat of Nebraska.

Herring returns along with a solid offensive line and tough running backs Terald Clark, John Newhouse, and David Barrett.

The defense is anchored by awesome tackles Hosea Taylor and Leonard Mitchell.

Houston gets Arkansas in the Astrodome but must play Texas on the road.

The Texas Aggies could be troublesome if the defense matures quickly.

The Aggies will be dangerous offensively because of slippery running back Johnny Hector and the world's fastest quarterback, senior Mike Mosley, who can run 40 yards in 4.4 seconds.

Texas A&M has what one football publication rated as the second toughest overall schedule in the nation, meeting

Georgia, Mississippi and Penn State before taking on the league toughies.

Southern Methodist is counting on the return to form of junior quarterback Mike Ford, who missed the 1979 season after he tore a knee ligament in the Mustangs' second game.

Ford, the nation's passing leader in 1978, has looked sharp throwing the ball over the summer.

The Mustangs have two excellent running backs in sophomore Craig James and Eric Dickerson but the defense is suspect. Coach Ron Meyer must find a replacement for sensational sophomore linebacker Pete Collins, who was killed recently in an automobile accident.

Baylor could be even more troublesome than the Bears were last year when they posted an 8-4 record, including a 24-18 upset of Clemson in the Peach Bowl.

The defense worries Coach Grant Teaff although he can count on All-American middle linebacker Mike Singletary to anchor things.

Ryan Looks Like Million

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

So far, Nolan Ryan hasn't been the "money" pitcher the Houston Astros expected.

But he looked like a million dollars Thursday.

The high-priced, but inconsistent, right-hander came through with one of his best efforts of the season, a three-hitter that led the Astros to a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

It couldn't have come at a better time, either, for the Astros.

"We've got to turn this around quick or we're not going to make it," said Ryan, whose Astros had lost six of seven games prior to the opener of a four-game series in San Diego.

The victory, incidentally, moved the Astros within a half-game of the front-running Cincinnati Reds in the National League West.

"I don't think I'm the stopper," said Ryan, who walked only one and struck out seven in his latest effort while improving his record to a modest 7-8. "I just want to keep us in the ballgame."

The three-team NL West race goes into higher gear tonight when the Reds start a weekend series against the Los Angeles Dodgers, tied with Houston for second place. The Montreal Expos and Pittsburgh Pirates, tied for first in the East, also begin a vital weekend series with each other.

In other action Thursday, the Philadelphia Phillies stopped the New York Mets 8-1; the San Francisco Giants defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-1 and the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 10-9 in 10 innings.

Ryan allowed singles by Dave Winfield in the second inning, Ozzie Smith in the third and Willie Montanez in the ninth as he retired 19 of the last 21 batters.

Cesar Cedeño set up the winning run for the Astros when he led off the ninth inning with a single off Padres starter John Curtis, 4-8, stole second, took third on a grounder and came home on Jeff Leonard's sacrifice fly. Leonard also had an RBI single in the fourth.

The Padres got their run in the second on Barry Evans' sacrifice fly.

Phillies 8, Mets 1

Mike Schmidt homered and drove in four runs and Nino Espinosa pitched his first complete game of the season with a five-hitter to help Philadelphia beat New York.

Schmidt collected four hits and hit his 31st homer leading off the ninth inning off Ed Glynn, the third Mets pitcher. Earlier, he had a bases-loaded single and an RBI-double.

Espinosa, 3-3, walked two and struck out three in his eighth start of the season. Pat Zachry, 6-6, was the loser.

Giants 5, Braves 1

Jack Clark's third-inning grand-slam home run, the third of his career, led San Francisco over Atlanta.

With one out in the third, Larry McWilliams, 8-9, walked pitcher Al Hargesseimer and Jim Wohlford and Darrell Evans singled to load the bases, then Clark hit a 1-2 pitch over the left field fence at Candlestick Park for his 22nd homer of the season.

Bob Horner hit his 24th homer for the Braves in the second to account for Atlanta's run.

Hargesseimer, 3-2, gained the victory and Greg Minton notched his 13th save as the Giants halted the Braves' four-game winning streak.

"When I hit it, I thought it would be good for a sacrifice fly," Clark said of his homer and major league-leading 18th game-winning RBI. "Then I thought it would hit the fence. There was no way I thought that ball was ever going to go out."

Cardinals 10, Cubs 9

George Hendrick drove in the winning run with a one-out single in the 10th inning to lead St. Louis over Chicago despite three Cub home runs.

Dave Kingman belted a three-run homer, his first since June 4 for Chicago. Also homering for the Cubs were Bill Buckner, who belted a two-run smash, and Mike Tyson.

St. Louis squandered leads of 5-2 and 9-5, with Chicago rallying for four runs in the eighth inning to tie the game at 9-9.

In the St. Louis 10th, Tony Scott singled off George Riley, 0-3, to ignite the Cards' winning rally.

Pirates Face Expos In Crucial Series

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Mike Easler of the Pittsburgh Pirates, enjoying the best season of his major league career, brings boundless enthusiasm to the ballpark every night.

But he expects to feel an extra tingle tonight when Pittsburgh opens a four-game series with the Montreal Expos, tied with the Pirates atop the National League East.

"This is going to be a great series," bubbled the 29-year-old outfielder. "The stage is set, two first-place teams going at each other. You know everybody will be up."

Easler, a .242 lifetime hitter, is batting .356 this season with 15 home runs and 47 RBI.

He has platooned in leftfield with Lee Lacy, who is hitting .346, and he has also subbed in right field lately for injured Dave Parker.

"I just love it. The more I play, the better I feel. I'm getting stronger every day," said Easler.

He has equal optimism when it comes to the Pirates, even though the club could use a weekend at a health spa.

"We're known for rising to the occasion. When we have to win, we do," Easler said.

Dick Williams, manager of the Expos, said he expected it to be a grudge series as well as a crucial series.

"We had only one player in last month's All-Star game (for which Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner ch... the reserves), and we could... have had five," he said.

"We can talk about it all we want, but we have to go and play them and beat them. We had a day off and then it's head to head. No matter what the outcome of the series it's not the end of the world for either club."

A season ago, the Pirates were 24-9 in August and 20-10 in September. So far this August, they are 8-6, but they have won eight of their last 10 games.

Parker, first baseman Willie Stargell and shortstop Tim Foli were all sidelined during a Wednesday night loss to the New York Mets.

Parker's injury is the most serious. He has missed four straight starts with an ailing knee. Stargell has a less severe knee strain, and Foli has a sore back.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tumult had died, and Madison Square Garden had nearly emptied itself of its contentious tenants, finished at last with the noisy business of nominating their man for the White House. There was but one story left to report.

ABC turned its cameras away from its anchor men, Frank Reynolds and Ted Koppel, and aimed at the booth next door. The image of Walter Cronkite, CBS' anchorman, came into focus.

It was the ultimate tribute to the veteran newsmen working his last convention. "We are happy to have him on our screen," Reynolds said, "and we wish him good luck."

CBS, appropriately, was the last network to leave the air after Thursday night's closing of the 38th Democratic National Convention, and before the lights went out, Cronkite's colleagues gave him an on-air tribute. Charles Kuralt presented Cronkite with the microphone he used to report his first convention for CBS in 1952.

It was a self-conscious bit of television, perhaps, to conclude coverage of a news story with a tribute to a TV newsmen.

But the Democrats will be back in four years. Cronkite won't.

As for the rest of Thursday's show, it could have used some of the tingle of the Cronkite farewell. President Carter earned anew his reputation for lackluster oratory, and the crowd in the Garden was tepid.

So, the TV folks spent a lot of time remarking on the lack of enthusiasm and pondering the Carter-Kennedy enmity, which had sustained an army of story-hungry television reporters through 16 hours of prime time.

One of television's dearest questions through the week had been whether Senator Edward Kennedy would join Carter on the platform Thursday night for the traditional unity picture, a question answered affirmatively by Kennedy people earlier. But CBS' Susan Spencer reported that Kennedy wouldn't be in the hall for Carter's acceptance speech.

She reported that Kennedy was afraid the cameras would focus on him rather than on Carter. This is a television show, remember. Kennedy did arrive, but agonizing moments late, forcing Carter's people to kill time by inviting every Democrat they knew by name onto the podium.

Finally together, Carter and Kennedy seemed cool to one another.

"He didn't physically embrace the president," ABC's James Wooten observed.

"That was a fairly cold reception," said Cronkite.

"I'm bound to say," Reynolds noted, "it would have almost been better if Kennedy had not shown up."

CBS' Bob Schieffer put the whole Kennedy matter into much needed perspective, noting "how much the Democratic party seems to love Edward Kennedy when he's not running for president."

Finally it was over, and an embarrassed Walter Cronkite tried to gracefully endure his farewell tribute. It was appropriate that Charles Kuralt, whose job it is at CBS to take inventory of the nation's sundry parts, was the last CBS reporter to end a convention report with: "And now, back to you, Walter."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The actor who plays reporter Joe Rossi on the "Lou Grant" TV show got some first-hand experience this week at the Democratic National Convention.

Robert Walden wrote a first-person account of the obstacles faced by convention reporters for the San Francisco Examiner, which ran the story in Thursday's paper.

"I thought it was a good story," said Examiner city editor James Willse, who added the actor would write another story today.

Anderson Got Spotlight Share

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter had 25,000 shouting delegates and spectators in Madison Square Garden, continuous network television coverage and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy by his side.

John B. Anderson had a hotel room, meetings with some dissident Kennedy supporters and a few minutes with Walter Cronkite.

Anderson, the independent presidential candidate, came to New York in the midst of the Democratic National Convention on a politically risky trip which aides billed as an effort to enlist support from liberal Democrats.

Sources said the Republican congressman was reluctant to poach on Democratic territory, learing of looking like a vulture picking at Democratic disunity.

He came only on the urging of campaign strategist David Garth, a New York media consultant.

Anderson arrived Wednesday, the same day Carter won renomination. Outside his hotel, people who noticed the campaign motorcade and dozens of reporters asked if the president was staying there.

Anderson's two days here were an unabashed attempt to halt his continuing slide in public opinion polls. The results were mixed: no major endorsements but wide network television coverage.

From prominent politicians, Anderson's best response came from former Wisconsin Gov. Partick Lucey, a former deputy campaign director for Kennedy who had been courted for weeks by Anderson campaign aides. Lucey didn't endorse Anderson, but he said the Illinois congressman was worth looking at.

There was a discussion with Pete Flaherty, running for the U.S. Senate from Pennsylvania, who emerged to say he admired Anderson but would not back him over Carter.

There was a scheduled meeting with Rep. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut, who did not show up and said later that he, too, would support the president.

A few delegates said they would work for Anderson, and he met with 13 from New Jersey, including a city councilman from Newark.

On a slow convention day, more than 100 reporters showed up at a news conference where Anderson announced that Mary Crisp, former co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, would join his campaign in a senior position.

Rights Group Accuses Military

By VICENTE MORALES
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — El Salvador's Human Rights Commission has accused the armed forces of killing an unspecified number of persons arrested during a so far ineffective two-day-old general strike organized by a leftist coalition seeking to overthrow the government.

The commission, an independent organization that follows guidelines of international human rights groups, said Thursday that bodies of the detainees have been turning up around the capital city of San Salvador.

More than 5,000 persons have died so far this year in the spasms of political violence gripping this Central American nation.

Independent sources say the leftist strike has failed to halt commerce in the capital, where more than 80 percent of the businesses were opened on Thursday, the second day of the strike.

However, about half the city remains without water and electricity after saboteurs blew up a pumping station and three electrical towers.

Leftists guerrillas, seeking to force people to remain in their homes, destroyed about 20 city buses. But the city's transportation authority said bus service remained close to normal.

Many observers say the lack of wide popular support for the strike represents a serious blow to the leftist movement's avowed aim of overthrowing the military-civilian junta that has ruled the nation since the military ousted rightist President Carlos Humberto Romero last October.

Leftist guerrillas, apparently seeking to force compliance with the strike, have clashed repeatedly with government troops in San Salvador and other cities around this Massachusetts-sized nation. The government says at least 54 persons, most of them guerrillas, have died in the two days of fighting.

Col. Eugenio Vitas Casanova, the national guard chief, told reporters the guerrilla attacks and sabotage were "acts of desperation."

"The guerrillas are sacrificing their own people to oppose a greater force like ours," he said. The Democratic Revolutionary Front, the coalition of leftist students, professionals and peasants that organized the strike, claimed it was a success and "totally paralyzed the economy of the country."

A communique issued by the group in Mexico said there had been 146 guerrilla attacks against government troops during the day.

City School Opening Meets Set

Preparations are under way for the opening of Greenville City Schools for the 1980-81 school year, with two pre-school events announced for the coming week.

On Monday, August 18, teachers, aides, and other staff members will report to work for the first day of the school work year.

On the following day, Tuesday, August 19, a general meeting of the staff will be held at 8:30 at Greenville Middle School. Principal speaker for this meeting will be Dr. Craig Phillips, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Following Dr. Phillips' remarks, several business matters of interest to the staff will be dealt with, and selected in-service programs will be conducted. The general session will end at noon.

Collectors Club Had Meeting

The Greenville Collectors Club met Tuesday evening at the home of Grace Ross and completed plans for the ninth annual antique Flea Market to be held Sept. 20, on Evans Mall. The rain date is set for Oct. 4.

Discussion of historic homes in the area included the announcement that the Jones-Lee house on Evans Street has been accepted for nomination to the national Registry, and also the announcement that the Humber residence on Fifth St. will house the new Eastern branch of the State Archives.

The program was given by Mickey and Martha Elmore and Paul and Marjorie Little who displayed and demonstrated their collections of antique kitchen "appliances," including a hand-powered cake mixer and a toaster which automatically turns the toast. Other items were feather ware platters and a collection of old cookbooks.

The September meeting will be held at the Elmore's home and a Civil War artifacts program will be presented by Craig Young.

Fire Kills 59 In Iraq Movie

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A fire in a movie theater in a suburb of Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, killed 59 persons, most of them children, and injured 45 others, the Iraqi Interior Ministry announced today.

The official Iraqi news agency said most of the victims were killed in a stampede caused by the sudden outbreak of the blaze, which sent the panicked audience crowding through the exits.

The agency quoted a ministry spokesman as saying the fire was caused by an electrical short circuit in the Al Baida Cinema on Thursday, the third day of the feast marking the end of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan.

There was no mention of any politically motivated sabotage.

Iraqi cities have suffered from violent sabotage that involved several bombings in the last six months.

Authorities in Baghdad blamed the violence on supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolutionary regime in neighboring Iran.

Second Trip Into TMI Plant

By RICH KIRKPATRICK
 Associated Press Writer
 HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Technicians were bundling up in protective gear again today for their second foray into the damp and darkness of Three Mile Island's contaminated reactor containment building.

The four-man team was to spend 40 minutes inside the 200-foot-high concrete building, collecting samples from the radioactive interior and checking the crippled plant's equipment.

Their short journey was designed to provide them with their first look at the reactor since it was damaged in a March 1979 accident, the worst in commercial nuclear history.

From their vantage point, 40 feet above their entry level, members were to be able to see the outside steel surface and the control rod mechanisms of the crippled reactor.

Earlier, a remote-controlled television camera showed no evidence of damage to the control rods.

Engineers William H. Behrle III and Michael L. Benson were two of those who signed on for the venture. Their brief July 23 walk into the area just beyond the airlock door was the first into the building since the accident.

Accompanying them were Martin Cooper, the plant's shift foreman, and Sam Griffith, a health physicist employed by Nuclear Support Services Inc.

In preparation for the entry, TMI technicians vented another 61 curies of radioactive krypton gas from the containment building over a six-hour period Thursday. It was the third small-scale venting since 43,000 curies were removed over a two-week period that ended July 11.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the staff of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission said it may take five to seven years to clean up the radioactive material coating the building's interior. The plant operator, Metropolitan Edison Co., said last week that it expected to have a new reactor in place and operating by 1985.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 4♥ Pass
 Pass Pass
 Opening lead: King of ♠.

Some people are lucky and always guess right. Then there are those poor unfortunate souls who claim that everything they do turns out wrong. For our money, we will pick those who find a way of avoiding a guess!

South's opening bid of four hearts is not recommended practice in either first or second position. In third or fourth, however, there is little likelihood of missing a slam. And in third seat you cannot even be sure that it is your hand, so there is an advantage to preemption.

West led the king of diamonds and East followed with the queen. That play guaranteed possession of the jack (or a singleton queen—unlikely here), so West underled the ace of diamonds at trick two. Declarer ruffed East's ten, then cashed the ace and king of hearts. When the lady appeared on the second round, South was delighted to discover that he had no trump loser.

There was still the matter of limiting three potential black-suit losers to two—with no sure entry to dummy. Declarer tried a club to the ten. East won the jack and exited with a diamond. Declarer ruffed and led the queen of clubs. East held up, won the club continuation with the ace and again exited with a diamond. Marooned in his hand, declarer had to concede a trick to the king of spades for down one.

Declarer has no problem if, after drawing trumps, he leads the nine of clubs. This loses to the jack, but declarer has a second string to his bow. He trumps the diamond return and continues with a club to the ten. No matter what the defenders do, declarer will always have a club entry to dummy to take the spade finesse, and when that succeeds, the contract is home.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Carter Anxious To Start Fight

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
 Associated Press Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter, described as "dying to get out" on the political road, is plotting a busy, three-month campaign designed to meet Ronald Reagan head-on in the southern and industrial states both men covet.

Carter, known to relish the give-and-take of a good political fight, will try to make the Republican presidential nominee the central issue in the Democratic campaign. Reagan, on the other hand, will focus on Carter's White House record.

Key Carter staff members, and the president's own words in his speech Thursday night accepting the Democratic presidential nomination, make the focus of the coming campaign clear:

A vote for Reagan on Nov. 4, in Carter's view, is a vote for a "make-believe world ... of good guys and bad guys, where some politicians shoot first and ask questions later."

A senior White House aide, who asked not to be identified by name, said of Reagan: "He's such a good target."

Farmville Volume Is Heavy

Volume was heavy Thursday on the Farmville Tobacco Market. All firms had a full sale. Offerings consisted of more lugs and primings than any day this season. A few sheets of leaf grade appeared on the floors yesterday for the first time this season, with the percentage of nondescript grades continuing to decrease.

Top price paid this year by a company is $1.69 per pound. Quality of sales was about the same as Wednesday. Averages have continued to increase every day this week. Stabilization receipts accounted for only 4.16 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 782,691 pounds on Thursday. Money is $1,155,857 for an average of $147.68 per hundred pounds, which is approximately $8 more than on the same day last year. To date, the market has sold 6,900,691 pounds for $9,172,264. The season average is $132.92 per hundred pounds. Sales will begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday instead of 9 a.m.

One Carter campaign staff member already has read the transcripts of radio speeches Reagan delivered before beginning his campaign, the aide said.

"Smiling at the prospect of throwing some of Reagan's own language back at him, the aide said some of those speeches "are doozies, let me tell you."

Carter made Reagan the butt of a joke Thursday afternoon at a Democratic congressional campaign fund-raising lunch, reminding his audience that Reagan had had problems with the definition of agricultural parity — the system of government farm price supports — and with the identification of Valery Giscard d'Estaing, the president of France.

"If a catastrophe should befall our country and if the Democrats should lose in November, at the next economic summit conference people will have to walk around with labels on their chest saying, 'Hello, my name is Helmut Schmidt. I am from Germany,'" he said.

At that same luncheon, at New York's luxurious Plaza Hotel, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill highlighted another likely Carter theme. He complained that the president has not been given his due when his record is examined and his relations with Congress discussed.

When a House subcommittee temporarily stalls an item Carter favors — perhaps "one-hundredth of a piece of legislation the administration wants" — headlines might read "another defeat for Carter," O'Neill said.

"You never get the effects of the good this administration has done," he said.

The Carter campaign is likely to focus on the South, the industrial Northeast and big cities of the Midwest. Vice President Walter F. Mondale, whose support by liberals was a major factor in Carter's 1976 victory, is likely to be detailed to the Northeast, where he spent much of the last campaign, and to his home territory, the Midwest.

Reagan, in a shift from previous Republican strategy, will be going after the blue-collar vote that has traditionally belonged to Democratic candidates. He also is challenging Carter on the president's own turf, trying to undo the Georgian's hold on his native South.

"We've got to keep the South. It's his base," said one Carter aide, predicting "a tough struggle in places like Florida, South Carolina, and Mississippi."

Meanwhile, Carter campaign chairman Robert S. Strauss said he believed Reagan would be vulnerable in California, which twice elected him governor. He said he expected the president to campaign on the West Coast in September, as the race gets under way.

In an early-morning telephone call Wednesday, when Reagan called to congratulate Carter on his renomination, the two men agreed to focus on their respective sides of the issues during the campaign, Strauss said. That sidesteps the possibility that they will do so not by pointing up the merits of their own positions, but by harking on the weaknesses of their opponent's.

The support Carter will get from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, even though Kennedy endorsed the president's campaign Wednesday evening, remains a question.

House. Lengthy trips have not been ruled out, however, and aides stress that the campaign is far away from planning specific events.

But one aide said the president is likely to focus on such activities as "town meetings," in which he visits high school gymnasiums or other local halls, rolls up his sleeves, makes a short speech and then chats with townspeople about whatever is on their minds.

That, said the aide, "is where he can communicate with people. That's where he's at his best. I hope he'll do a lot of it. He's dying to get out."
