Jetliner Fire Killed 265

TYPE OF PLANE IN DISASTER — In what may be the worst single plane disaster in aviation history a Saudi Arabian Airlines L-1011 TriStar

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Flames engulfed a Saudi Arabian jetliner after it made an emergency return to the Riyadh airport and all 265 persons aboard perished, the official Saudi press agency reported today. It was the fourth-largest death toll in aviation history.

The plane was on a flight from Karachi, Pakistan, to Riyadh, to Jidda, Saudi Arabia.

About 75 percent of the victims were Saudi Arabians who boarded the plane in Karachi, said Saudi airline officials in the Pakistani city. Earlier, officials in Karachi said most of the passengers were Pakistanis returning to work in Saudi Arabia after visits home for the Eid festival at the end of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan.

There were no immediate official reports that any Americans were aboard.

"As the tongues of flames shot out the windows of the plane, it became impossible to open the doors from outside or inside," said a statement from the Saudi Civil Aviation

Department. "The whole plane was engulfed in flames." The Saudi state radio said the TriStar caught fire Tuesday night a few minutes after taking off from Riyadh, the Saudi capital on the east side of the country, and headed for Jidda, the Red Sea port 500 miles west of Riyadh.

The plane turned back. As it approached for an emergency landing, the broadcast report said, fire brigades and ambulances were rushed to the runway and rescue helicopters took to the air. A "fierce glow of fire" could be seen.

The pilot told the control tower he was trying to rush his 249 passengers to safety through the emergency exits, the report continued, but radio contact was cut and the body of the plane became wrapped in flames.

"We are from Allah and unto him we return," said the Saudi government radio, quoting from the Koran, the holy book of Islam.

In addition to the passengers, the plane carried a crew of 16, the airline said.

Polish Govm't Refraining From Force In Challenge

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Polish strike wave rippled briefly across the country to the steel mills in the south, but workers there were reported back on the job today.

Both government officials and dissident sources said many of the 40,000 workers walked off the job Tuesday at Nowa Huta, the showcase steel center near Krakow, some 300 miles south of Gdansk.

But they said the first shift came to work today because some sort of agreement had been reached with the government. It was not known whether the workers made the same demands as their colleagues in the restive Baltic area.

The government was still not using force in the Baltic region to end the serious challenge to it, now in its seventh day, and a spokesman said police and troops would not occupy the strikebound plants. But the chief of state, Henryk Jablonski, warned that the "fate of the nation" was at stake.

The strike in the Gdansk-Gdynia-Sopot area of northern Poland's central Baltic coast spread to the major port of Szczecin, 180 miles to the west on the East German border, and to Elblag, 40 miles east of Gdansk, the official PAP news agency reported.

Dissident sources said there were at least 20,000 strikers in Szczecin, including shipyard workers and municipal bus drivers, and at least 10,000 at the Zamech turbine works in Elblag. More than 100,000 strikers have been reported in the Gdansk area.

Gdansk Radio reported residents of the tri-city area and Szczecin began hoarding food and other supplies. The radio quoted an official appeal asking residents to refrain from hoarding, saying it would only complicate the problem of already scarce supplies due to idled transport facilities.

In addition to millions of dollars in losses, the strike in the shipyards and elsewhere is expected to ruin production plans and delivery time-tables and scare away much-sought Western customers.

"People's free will is being curtailed," the Glos Wyrzeza newspaper commented. "People who want to leave idle plants are being forcibly stopped. Workers who want to carry out their normal duties are having their equipment and tools destroyed. Threats are being spread about putting out of commission installations essential for the citizens' life. There are attempts to frighten the personnel of commercial establishments."

The strike in Gdansk began Thursday at the giant V.I. Lenin Shipyard, the nation's biggest, to protest the government's withdrawal on July 1 of subsidies that had kept the price of meat down. But in addition to higher wages to compensate, the strikers for the first time are demanding such major political reforms as trade unions free of Communist Party control, access by religious groups to the mass media and an end to censorship.

Billy's Buddy Tells A 'Different' Story

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a direct conflict with White House statements, an associate of Billy Carter says he does not recall asking about C-130 cargo planes for Libya or getting political briefings on that country.

The associate, Henry "Randy" Coleman, told Senate investigators Tuesday that his and the president's brother's relations with Libya were primarily business and "nothing political."

Under oath, Coleman denied a report that he called White House aide Phillip Wise to ask the status of eight C-130 cargo planes President Carter's administration refuses to release to Libya because of that country's support of international terrorism. The planes were bought by Libya.

"I just feel certain I would not have called anyone in the White House to ask about that," Coleman told the special Senate judiciary subcommittee.

He also said he is sure the White House did not brief him and Billy before their first trip to Libya in 1978 because Billy was trying to keep the trip secret for fear the government would stop it.

But Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the investigating subcommittee, read Coleman a statement by National Security Council aide William B. Quandt which contradicted Coleman's testimony on both counts.

Quandt's statement said: "I was asked by someone in the White House — either Mr. Inderfurth (Carl F. Inderfurth, a former NSC official) or Mr. Wise, to the best of my recollection — to arrange a briefing on the status of the Libyan C-130s for Mr. Coleman."

Quandt also says in the statement that he called Coleman two or three times, urging him and Billy Carter to delay their September 1978 trip to Libya until after the Camp David summit talks because the Libyans might try to use him to embarrass summit leaders from Egypt and Israel.

During one conversation, Quandt said, Billy Carter came on the line and said "something like 'I know more Libyans than all of you people at the State Department put together.'"

Coleman said he could not remember any of those calls. He said he could not swear they were not made but said he is sure they were not made before the Libyan trip because Billy thought he had succeeded in keeping the trip secret from the government.

In addition to Quandt's statement, the report President Carter sent to Senate subcommittee Aug. 4 said Quandt had another NSC aide telephone Billy Carter in January 1979 to brief him on the C-130s. But it said Coleman answered the telephone so Coleman was briefed.

Bayh told reporters Quandt will be called before the subcommittee to testify under oath in an effort to resolve the conflict.

"It's difficult for me to understand how somebody could not remember three conversations and a briefing," Bayh said. "That would go, of course, to the veracity of Mr. Coleman on that one particular point."

Earlier, during a blistering exchange at the hearing, Bayh accused Coleman of overselling himself and Billy as country businessmen trying to draw trade with Libya with no interests in politics.

"I think we're rather naive," Bayh said, for a president's brother not to believe that dealing with "a terrorist regime can cause serious embarrassment not just on the brother (President Carter) but on our whole country."

Hospital Bd. OKs Pay Adjustments

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Hospital Board of Trustees approved last night salary adjustments, effective Oct. 1, 1980, for hospital administrators.

A new schedule was presented based on a directive from county commissioners made yesterday in a meeting between the commissioners and the executive committee of the hospital board. Commissioners told the trustees that the hospital's budget for the coming fiscal year would not be approved until percentages of increase in administrative salaries were brought into line with raises for other county employees.

The adjusted salaries are as follows: Jack W. Richardson, general director from $45,000 to $47,200, plus 4.9 percent; M. E. Gilstrap, executive director, from $31,500 to $35,000, plus 11.1 percent; Dave McRae, associate director for rehabilitation, from $29,160 to $31,850, plus 9.2 percent; Warren McRoy, finance officer, from $28,300 to $32,000, plus 13.1 percent; Robert I. Barnes, administrator for surgical services, from $25,324 to $28,100, plus 11 percent; T. B. Sitterson, administrator for fiscal affairs, from $24,800 to $27,000, plus 8.9 percent; Ralph Hall, director of physical plant, from $25,850 to $30,000, plus 16.1 percent; Craig Quick, personnel manager, from $21,300 to $23,000, plus 8 percent; and John Stallings, pharmacist, from $26,300 to $29,100, plus 10.6 percent. The percentages of increase averaged equal 10 percent.

Betty Trought, promoted to director of nursing, was raised from $25,000 to $30,000 a year, and Jean Owens, who stepped down from director of nursing to administrative assistant to executive director Rick Gilstrap took a cut from $26,600 to $18,000.

The Board enacted a resolution to prohibit any member of the Board of Trustees from undertaking or contracting to provide services, facilities or supplies to Pitt Memorial Hospital Inc. for profit or for his or her benefit while serving as trustee. This has been policy, it was pointed out, as indeed the North Carolina General Statutes provide that no public official in the state get profit from his or her position on a governing board through commerce. The Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospital suggested that the policy be put in resolution form.

The Board's contract with the Pitt Pathologists was amended to run till Oct. 1 so further consideration can be made of a new contract.

In the finance committee report, it was pointed out that the net income of the hospital last month was $112,971. The hospital is running $232,140 behind for the fiscal year so far.

Approval was given for the purchase of a MA2 ventilator for $8,845 and for an ECG Three Channel Recorder for $8,257. Both are budgeted items. Non-budgeted items also approved were an airway alarm for the anesthesia machine for $2,191.50 and $15,000 for filling a ditch and graveling the area for parking.

The board approved the Audit Committee's recommendation that the Farley, Prescott, Mizelle and Company CPA firm for auditing the hospital's books at the price not to exceed $15,300.

House Will Ask Safeguards On Alaskan Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservation-minded House leaders are telling the Senate its historic Alaska wilderness-preservation bill is good — but not good enough.

They served notice Tuesday that they'll try to make the bill tougher on potential developers, despite a warning from Sen. Henry Jackson that such action could put final passage in peril.

Like the House bill, the Senate legislation — passed 78-14 Tuesday — would designate national parks, wildlife refuges and other federal protection for a bit more than 100 million acres of Alaska.

That acreage — about the size of California — makes the bill the most sweeping conservation measure in congressional history. But environmental safeguards for some of the territory are not as strong as in the House bill.

"It's that or nothing," said Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee. Substantial House changes would risk new Senate filibusters by Alaska's senators and possibly lead to the same legislative death as the bill's predecessor in 1978, he said.

However, Rep. Morris Udall, chairman of the House Interior Committee, quickly contended the Senate bill — though improved over earlier versions — had "many serious deficiencies." And he said, "We have worked too long and too hard for the spirit of tough but reasonable compromise to desert us."

Mrs. Robert Morgan Campaigns In Pitt County

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

"When I come to Pitt County, I feel like I'm coming home," said Mrs. Robert Morgan of Lillington. Mrs. Morgan and daughter, Mary, were here yesterday afternoon attending a tea in their honor given by the Pitt County Democratic Women.

Her husband is the Democratic incumbent seeking reelection to the U. S. Senate in the November general election.

Mrs. Morgan graduated from East Carolina Teacher's College with a B.S. degree and from East Carolina College with a master's in supervision and administration. She also taught school for six years in Grimesland.

Mrs. Morgan is a vocational counselor with special education in Harnett County Schools. "My job with the schools is to help students with special needs to become more employable. When school starts Thursday, I will begin my 25th year working with the North Carolina Public School System," she said.

"I have had a leisurely summer which has been a change for me. I attended the Democratic Convention in New York City with Robert and our daughters, Mary and Margaret," she continued. Senator Morgan was a delegate to the convention. Mrs. Morgan and daughters attended the convention on two different nights. They saw two Broadway shows "Sugar Babies" and "Chorus Line." They attended a private showing of the Picasso exhibit and also at Cartiers and toured "Seventeen" and "Esquire" magazines.

"While having lunch at the 21 Club, we saw Walter Cronkite, Ethel Kennedy and J. R. Ewing (Larry Hagman) of 'Dallas,'" Mrs. Morgan added.

Couple Weds In Arkansas

JONESBORO, Ark. — Miss Sharon Kay Sparks of Jonesboro, Ark., and George Kevin Foley of Conway, Ark., formerly of Greenville, N. C., were married at four o'clock Saturday, Aug. 9, in the First United Methodist Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ben Hines, district superintendent, and the Rev. Charles Ramsey, pastor.

Mrs. George Kevin Foley

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Sparks Jr. of Jonesboro and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Foley of Conway, formerly of Greenville, N. C. The bridegroom is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Foley Sr. of Greenville.

Music was provided by Mrs. Eugene Wilson, organist, and Mrs. Fred Burnette and Tim Taylor, vocalists.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal designer gown of white organza and Venise lace featuring a Queen Anne neckline and long full bishop sleeves. Her full length veil was attached to a Juliet cap of lace and seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white rosebuds and stephanotis centered with an orchid.

Maid of honor was Teresa Sparks, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Pat Massey, Mrs. Bob Earwood, Mrs. Pat Parrott and Miss Marty Floyd.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen included Tim Taylor, Barry Harrison, Bill Schott and Michael Sparks, the bride's brother. Ushers were Steve Horton, brother of the bride, and Kenneth and Chris Foley, brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride chose a white linen suit with a pink blouse for her wedding trip. She wore the orchid lifted from her bouquet.

Following a trip to the Ozark Mountains, the couple will make their home in Kansas City, Mo., where the bridegroom is associated with St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Companies. The bride, an elementary school teacher, will continue working on her Master's degree in early childhood education.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Arkansas State University. She was a member of Chi Omega sorority and he was a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

A rehearsal dinner on Friday evening was given by the bridegroom's parents and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kinney of Raleigh.

Engagement Announced

JOYCE MARIE SMITH... is the daughter of Mr. Curt Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Whitehurst all of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Fentress Hughes Chappell Jr. of Winterville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Chappell. The wedding will take place Sept. 20.

Business Meet Held Thurs.

The Women of the Moose Chapter No. 1308 held its chapter night meeting Thursday evening at the Greenville Moose Lodge. Senior Regent Mary Beddard conducted the meeting.

Membership chapter night was presented by Chaplain

Margaret Speight. Ada Jones, past grand deputy, served refreshments.

The next business meeting will be held Aug. 28 at 8 p.m. at the Moose Lodge.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Jones, Chris and Lisa Jones, Jackie Conway and Wesley Hardee, all of Ayden, spent Saturday at King's Dominion near Richmond, Va.

Coupon Seminars Are Scheduled

ECU News Bureau
Who can buy groceries for a family of four for about $3 a week?

Champion refunder-couponer Cheryl Pevehouse of Columbia, S.C. can, and does it regularly, with the aid of money-back refund offers and cents-off grocery coupons. She'll share her secrets with others in two September seminars at East Carolina University.

Her program, "Cash from Trash, or How to Save Money on Groceries with Coupons and Refund Offers," will be presented twice, Thursday, Sept. 18, from 7 to 9 p.m. and Friday, Sept. 19, from 10 a.m. until noon.

"Cash from Trash" is a consumer education seminar for bargain hunters or anyone on a budget who would like to use savings strategies at the supermarket.

Most consumers throw away labels, boxtops and proofs of purchase that could mean considerable savings for them, Mrs. Pevehouse says. With a pair of scissors and a few cardboard boxes for filing these items, the average shopper can save hundreds of dollars each year.

A former nurse, Mrs. Pevehouse spends about five hours a week clipping and filing coupons and mailing money-back offers with the right "qualifiers" clipped from food packages. Her skill with handling manufacturer's advertising lures has made her well-known nationally through feature newspaper articles and TV interviews in various cities.

Further information about the "Cash from Trash" seminars is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., telephone 757-6143.

How To Organize And Hold A "Yard Sale"

With the tightening economy many people are putting a jingle in their pockets by holding a garage or yard sale. Others are eagerly snapping up useful items at these sales...usually at bargain prices.

According to Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, Home Economics Extension Agent, successful sale requires organization and planning. Nothing succeeds like success, so before you decide to have a sale visit other yard sales and get tips from the people in charge. Don't make a pest of yourself if the person running the sale is obviously busy or making a sale.

Whether your sale is held outdoors or in a garage, you will attract more people if the weather is warm and people aren't at work. The best times seem to be on a weekend between mid-spring and mid-fall.

Once you have committed yourself to having a sale, start rounding up everything you want to sell. Check attics, closets, and the back corner of the garage. After you have gathered your goods, clean them up for sale. Wash glassware and crockery. Furniture and pictures should be dusted. Linens and clothing should be clean. Remember that your goods will bring higher prices if they are clean and in good shape.

Make sure that benches and tables are sturdy. Put small items in front and larger items in back. Categorize your merchandise (i.e.) clothing separate from household goods. If you can, hang clothing. Save your paper bags; have a good supply of change and a cash box on hand. If more than one person is holding a sale together, it is advisable to have separate cash boxes.

Advertising is necessary to have a good sale. There are free sources of advertising as well as classified ads in newspapers or paid ads on the radio. If you choose to use paid advertising make sure your sale items would justify the cost. It is helpful to mention types of items available (i.e. baby furniture, books, etc.) Give the specific location of your sale. On the day of the sale post a large sign in front of your property.

Before your sale begins:

1. See that all your merchandise is tagged. The best method is self-sticking tags or masking tape. Use different color tags or pen for each family selling.
2. Have plenty of change—20 ones, a few 5's, at least one ten, and a couple of rolls of quarters, dimes, and pennies on hand.
3. Decide whether you will accept checks and/or extend credit. Post Your Policy.
4. Have plenty of bags and newspaper for wrapping merchandise.
5. Get plenty of sleep the night before the sale. You'll need it!! Happy sales to you!

VEPCO Is Hoping For Good News

RICHMOND (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. officials hoped to have good news on two fronts today, with the possible licensing of its North Anna Unit 2 nuclear reactor and the restart of the problem-plagued Surry Unit 2.

Seven hours after it started generating electricity for the first time in 18 months, Surry 2 went off line again Tuesday because of a malfunction.

As Vepco officials tried to determine the reason for the malfunction, one spokesman estimated that the cost of having the unit out of operation from February 1979 until Monday could approach $200 million.

Surry 2 apparently went off line Tuesday because of too much water in a steam generator, a temperamental cylinderlike device responsible for the unit's year and a half outage, a Vepco spokesman said.

That generator and two others in Unit 2 are brand-new replacements for predecessors that had to be removed because they leaked so much water.

Kerwin Fisher, a Vepco spokesman, estimated the cost of replacing them at $67 million, but added that the total cost, including unrelated tests and buying replacement power, could be about $200 million.

Fisher could not say when Surry 2 will return to service, but it was hoped it might go back on line late Tuesday.

The 775-megawatt reactor began generating electric power about 11:40 p.m. Monday and gradually increased its output until 7:18 a.m. when it shut itself off, Fisher said.

"It's been out of service for 18 months and we expected there to be a number of problems on the way up (to full power)," Fisher said.

Meanwhile, federal officials who had praised Saturday's nuclear-accident drill at Vepco's North Anna Unit 2 reactor, said it is likely that the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will approve an operating license for the unit today.

If the NRC gives its approval, the new license will be the first it has allowed since the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island. Vepco has long maintained that consumers' bills will be cut when unit 2 goes into service.

Surry Unit 2 is the only reactor in the country in which steam generators have had to be replaced, although the leakage problem has occurred at other reactors. Its sister reactor, Unit 1, is due to be shut down for one year in September for replacement of its steam generators because of the same problem.

Vepco won a $25-million settlement last year from Westinghouse Electric Corp. for inadequate design of the devices. They were supposed to last 40 years, but failed after seven.

Win Extension On School Fate

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina A&T University has been granted a one-year extension before the state Board of Nursing decides on the fate of the university's school of nursing.

The board placed the school on conditional accreditation in 1978. A final ruling on restoring the accreditation, or closing the school, had been expected at the board's meeting in Charlotte this week.

A board spokesman said the ruling was delayed until spring of 1981 at the request of Chancellor Lewis Dowdy.

"They have had curriculum consultants who've been working with them, and they're in the process of getting some of the things straightened out. We want to give them time to get their act together, so to speak," board consultant Rosemary Ritzman said.

ECU Benefits Our Area

The East Carolina University budget for 1980-81 is large by any standards at $52.8 million.

That is the amount that will finance all the activities which the institution will carry on during the present fiscal year.

It is nearly $3 million over the $49.91 million budget of 1979-80.

The 1980-81 budget includes $44.5 million appropriated by the state. The remainder of the budget, $8.3 million, comes from tuition and fees.

Included is $3.32 millin for the Division of Health Affairs and $12.97 million for the School of Medicine. It is based on a full-time student enrollment projected at 11,230 and it calls for 726.1 full time equivalent teaching positions.

The beneficial effects of programs carried on by ECU will be felt throughout the state and much of the nation. It is also important to us living in the eastern area what a tremendous economic impact the university has. Last year the amount for salaries and fringe benefits for employees amounted to $38.4 million. That will swell considerably this year with the ten percent pay hike approved from staff and faculty members.

East Carolina University is an economic, educational, cultural and service boon to our area. It's positive impact on Pitt County cannot be overemphasized.

Polish Strike Arouses Russia

Workers in Poland are engaging in something the western world takes for granted—a strike.

The situation in Poland, however, is far different than in the United States. The strike by Polish workers is viewed as an act against the state. It is very dangerous to a communist society. It is doubly dangerous in Poland because of the Soviet Union's determination to send troops into neighboring nations and crush anything it sees as an uprising that threatens Soviet dominance.

The things the workers are asking seem pretty commonplace by our standards, but if things like free trade unions and end of censorship were brought about it would mean the downfall of the communist society. Russia won't stand for that.

Incomes Up, Taxes, Too

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Americans are getting richer, but the federal government is taking a bigger and bigger bite of the wealth.

The Tax Foundation Inc., a non-profit research group with headquarters in Washington, D.C., compared population, income and taxes in 1973 and 1978. Here's what it found:

—Population — up 4 percent.

—Adjusted gross income — up 58 percent.

—Federal income tax collections — up 74 percent.

The amount of adjusted gross income which went to federal income taxes rose by more than 1½ percentage points during the five-year period — from 13.1 percent in 1973 to 14.5 percent in 1978.

According to the foundation's calculations, you were in the top 10 percent of all taxpayers in 1973 if you had an adjusted gross income of about $20,100. In 1978, you needed an income of about $29,400 to qualify for the top 10 percent.

One thing hasn't changed. The more you earn, the more you pay. The federal income tax is designed that way.

The Tax Foundation said that in 1978, taxpayers who had adjusted gross incomes of $29,414 or more — the top 10 percent — paid 49.7 percent of the federal income taxes.

Taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes between $19,860 and $29,414 — about 15 percent of the total — paid 24 percent of federal income taxes and the 25 percent who had adjusted gross incomes between $10,960 and $19,860 paid 19.7 percent of the taxes.

In all, the top 50 percent of taxpayers paid 93.5 percent of the taxes in 1978. The 50 percent of the taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes below the median level paid only 6.5 percent of the taxes.

The proportions have remained similar over the years. In 1973, the top 50 percent of the taxpayers paid 91.6 percent of the taxes and the bottom 50 percent of the taxpayers paid 8.4 percent of the taxes.

The burden on the richest group — or the people who qualify as rich according to the statistics — is getting a little heavier, however.

From 1973 to 1978, the average federal income tax for all taxpayers increased 57 percent. During the same period, the average tax for the people in the top 10 percent rose 64 percent. The increase in the average tax for the taxpayers in the bottom 50 percent was only 21 percent.

Note: All these figures are based on studies of tax returns. They do not take into account the people who, legally or illegally, do not file returns. They also do not take into account earnings which are not reported on tax returns. An Internal Revenue Service study, released last August, estimated that the government is losing billions of dollars each year because people fail to file returns or don't report all their income.

According to the IRS, unreported income from legal sources totaled $75 billion to $100 billion in 1976. There was an additional $25 billion to $35 billion of unreported income from illegal sources. The lost tax, the IRS said, was between $19 billion and $26 billion — 13 percent to 18 percent of the amount that was actually collected in 1976.

The figures also do not take into account state and local taxes which, in general, have been rising faster than federal taxes.

The Tax Foundation does have some good news along with the bad, however. It found that state and local property tax collections went up only 6.2 percent in 1978 — the smallest rise since the recession year of 1974.

When the foundation compared property taxes with personal income, it found that tax collections took $44 of every $1,000 in personal income in 1978 — the same amount they took in 1968.

On a per capita basis — total tax collections divided by total population — the average property tax in 1978 was $305. The states with the highest per capita property tax were: Alaska, $808; Massachusetts, $522; California, $494; New Jersey, $477; and New York, $471. (The figures do not reflect the full impact of Proposition 13, approved in California in 1978.)

Fewer Volunteers A Camp Waldorf Accord

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Developing cuts in government funds to help social programs, and changing times in which fewer people are available to perform volunteer services are pushing against a host of community action programs designed to help those in need.

Anne Moore, director of the Durham Volunteer Services Bureau, summed up the situation in few words in response to a survey by the Governor's Office of Citizens Affairs:

"So many factors are working against us: fewer women volunteering, inflation, lack of money, but we seem to be staying even, though the tide is trying to take us out. Keeping up is real progress."

The situation is causing considerable adjustment on the parts of public service agencies, private organizations, and those who volunteer to help. And while there is no clear pattern to that change, state officials are encouraged that numerous local groups are trying a variety of things which promise to relieve the pressure.

Too Busy

Overall, there seems to be a leveling off in volunteerism which is attributed by the experts to several social and economic forces: more women who must work to meet household expenses; more men holding additional part-time jobs or working overtime to make ends meet.

But in some sections of the state, service organizations are finding solutions such as use of college students and other younger people not yet employed fulltime; changes in agency procedures so that volunteer time available later in the evenings or on weekends can be better used; and cooperative arrangements with local business firms whereby employees can be given time away from the office to offer volunteer work.

Such volunteer efforts are becoming increasingly important to various social services programs feeling the sting of inflation and governmental fund cuts. So far, 71 of the state's 100 counties have designated local councils to help coordinate both public and private service efforts and to beefup volunteer programs.

Frank Wilson, director of social services in Guilford County, told state officials that combined public and private service efforts to meet human needs is becoming ever more critical. "We use our Information and Referral service to keep informed about existing resources. We don't start a county funded program if we know of an effort by a church or civic group to meet the same need."

"Instead, we help link existing programs to the people they want to serve," Wilson stated.

Encouraged

Gov. Jim Hunt is encouraging volunteerism in every state activity, and has issued an executive order calling for cooperation by state officials in using volunteers, and granting exemption from suits and claims which might result from actions by a volunteer.

Sarah Morrow, secretary of Hunt's Department of Human Resources, says this combined public-private effort is critical. "Public agencies can't do it all because the quality of volunteer efforts, the love, interest, and compassion that being a volunteer means cannot be purchased."

Secretary Morrow hopes to see churches, civic clubs, community groups, private and public agencies all pulling together in the face of economic hard times.

If this doesn't happen, says Charles Petty, executive director of the Governor's Office of Citizen Affairs, it will not be the government agencies which suffer, but rather the thousands of needy people.

BY ART BUCHWALD

NEW YORK — The story of how Teddy Kennedy agreed to appear on the podium with President Jimmy Carter last Thursday night is now leaking out in dribs and drabs.

It is a tale of all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity and sometimes bitter recrimination.

The negotiators met soon after Teddy's speech on Tuesday night, when the Carter people realized that if Kennedy did not appear on Thursday evening the Democratic Party would be torn asunder. Top aides from the Carter and Kennedy factions closeted themselves in a tent at Camp Waldorf on Park Avenue.

Teddy's people knew they were dealing from strength. His chief negotiator said, "Our boy is going back to Cape Cod unless he gets his $12 billion jobs program in the next budget."

Carter's top aide said, "He's got it. But he has to be in Madison Square Garden, out of sight, while the president makes his acceptance speech."

"No way," the Kennedy man said. "Teddy stays in his hotel suite until the speech is over."

"Okay, as long as he gets to the Garden before the applause for Carter starts. But we want Teddy when he arrives on the podium to embrace Carter just like Menachem Begin does all the time."

"Teddy never embraces anyone. We might let you have a handshake if Carter agrees to do away with tax shelters."

"We don't see any problem with that. But we have to have more assurance that there is party unity. We want Carter to be able to lift Teddy's arm in a victory gesture for the covers of Time and Newsweek magazines."

"It can't be done," the Kennedy negotiator said. "Teddy has tennis elbow and it hurts him to lift his arm over his head."

"He's been lifting his arm during the entire campaign."

"He only got the tennis elbow after he decided not to put his name in for nomination."

To the editor:

Can it be possible for a person to lose a battle and yet, win the war? Certainly, history indicates the reality of this rare circumstance. The Bible and other religious documents also exhibit this occurrence. Last week we Americans were privileged to recognize this feat on national television.

At the Democratic National Convention, Jimmy Carter received the nomination to be his party's choice for president in the 1980 campaign and election. Throughout the past months, it was inevitable that the president had enough delegate votes to obtain the nomination.

The president's chief rival, Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, continued to put forth a gallant attempt, though fruitless, to garner the Democratic nomination. For the past several weeks and even in New York last week, Kennedy and his aides worked tirelessly to change the rules of the convention and the minds of the delegates in order that Kennedy would have the opportunity to be the nominee for president.

Kennedy, as all America knows, lost the battle as the nominee of his party for president. Yet the reaction from the delegates in New York shows that Kennedy may have won the hearts of these delegates with his inspiring and sensitive speech of last Tuesday night.

Often with our daily responsibilities, we focus upon the immediate results of our decisions. We tend to become concerned with the expediency of the decision and sometimes neglect to consider the long-term consequences of our actions.

Last week's proceedings at the Democratic National Convention affords each of us with the opportunity to analyze whether we are interested with the battle won or with the victory earned.

Strength For Today

EROSION

Erosion has come to be an important word in modern parlance. Until recently people paid little attention to it, but now almost everyone is aware of how devastating its effects can be. Man's carelessness can destroy God's providential bounty in a few generations.

Physical erosion reminds us of how some people treat their souls. Spiritual erosion is fully as prevalent and vastly more serious than soil erosion. Some people's souls just, slough away, little by little. The neglect of the opportunities God gives everyone for worship, the cooling down of all moral enthusiasms, the cutting of corners here and there as regards scruples — all these things waste away the soul. In the end what is left is not a person but a hollow shell. The substance which differentiated this person from the lower creatures has been gradually dissipated. He has lost that fertility of soul out of which all happiness springs.

Erosion means crisis, both inward and outward. —

Small Business Outlook Mixed

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The mood of small business, that segment of industry that the country relies upon to innovate and create jobs, seems to have improved over the past couple of months, but seeming can be deceiving.

"The problems haven't gone away," said Professor William Dunkleberg after reviewing data from a survey for the National Association of Independent Business, which claims 610,000 companies as members.

The small business optimism index rose some in July, but that can be misleading, said Dunkleberg, a Purdue University economist, because it had plunged to an all-time low in the previous survey, in April.

He explained that with earnings having dropped to record low levels, lower even than those recorded in the 1974-1975 recession, it isn't surprising that some companies now expect some improvement.

But those expectations might be based more in wishes than events. The optimism didn't show up where it counts: It wasn't noticed in plans for rebuilding inventories, for hiring, for capital spending plans.

The survey shows that average employment continued to decline during the second quarter, and that the outlook for improvement "is not good," especially in view of the expense-cutting mood of business.

Because of uncertainties, small industry in recent years has been reluctant to commit funds to big spending projects, such as for labor-saving equipment. It sought instead to raise production by hiring new workers, young workers, women returning to the labor force.

With earnings down, these workers are expendable. And with companies expecting poor business to continue for a while, "only 12 percent of the firms plan to increase employment during the next three months."

There is perhaps more economic significance to this than is at first apparent. The United States has for years relied on smaller businesses — companies other than those in the top 1,000 firms — to create jobs.

In 1978 a house subcommittee found that "between 1969 and 1976, small business accounted for what can be considered virtually all the new private sector employment in this country." The largest 1,000 firms, it found, contributed less than 2 percent of the new job growth.

Even what appears to be good news, from the consumer point of view, has a taint to it. Nine percent of the companies said they had cut prices but, said Dunkleberg, don't count on those cuts to last long.

"The problems of business are not going away," he said. "For the next two quarters we might not have price inflation, but the underlying causes haven't been resolved. The longer term outlook isn't good."

Dunkleberg explained that in each recession since the 1960s prices have fallen back only part way to where they were before. Prices go up, but they come back only part way. "We keep ratcheting higher."

Will it happen again, he was asked. "Yes, it will happen again," he replied. "The average inflation rate will be even higher over the next two or three years. Higher than experienced in the previous recovery."

So, while optimism rebounded between April and the first of August, it doesn't really indicate that small business has turned the corner. In fact, the twisting road ahead seems to be filled with blind corners.

Grady-White Dealers Here

Over 140 boat dealers and their wives from as far away as British Columbia were on hand Sunday through Tuesday for Grady-White Boat's annual dealer meeting in Greenville and Bath.

The visiting dealers attended a reception on Sunday, a sales meeting and seminar on Monday morning, tests of the new Grady-White models in the afternoon at Bath, and tours of the 150,000 square foot Grady-White plant here on Tuesday.

Addressing the sales meeting at the Holiday Inn were Eddie Smith Jr., president of the company, Wiley Corbett, general manager, and Jim Stoneman, sales manager.

The sales session was ended with a talk by H. Worthington Hipple, an internationally known motivational speaker.

Busses took the G-W dealers to Bath for the unveiling of the company's new line of 1981 boat models in styles from 19 to 25 feet. The dealers tested G-W's new inboard/outboard 19-foot craft with dual console, two new 22-foot offshore fishing boats, and a 25-foot inboard. Dealers also tested the 25-foot "Sailfish" that approaches 50 miles per hour with twin outboard engines.

On Monday night, the dealers attended the annual G-W sales banquet and dance at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, where sales leaders from across the nation were recognized. Winner of the Golden Anchor Award for the highest dollar sales in the nation was John Slattery of Tri-State Marine in Deale, Md.

The annual gathering of G-W dealers ended Tuesday morning at the firm's manufacturing plant north of Greenville.

$80,000 In Old House

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The wealth of an elderly Akron woman whose home was condemned now is estimated at nearly $80,000 in savings account deposits and cash, say officials who have been searching the house for hidden money.

But it may be weeks before Helen Rennard's court-appointed guardian can sort out her financial affairs and determine how much of the money found in her home she can keep and how much must go to taxes or to cover other bills, officials say.

The money was found over the weekend by her court-appointed guardian when he visited the house to see what it contained.

Mrs. Rennard, 80, was cited in July for health code violations at her east Akron home and was given a choice between going to jail or to a hospital where she could be treated for a skin disease.

She opted for jail, but later was transferred to Akron

City Hospital. She recently was moved to a nursing home.

Mrs. Rennard was once a housekeeper for many of Akron's wealthier families. It is not known how long she was hoarding the money, but some bills found in the house are of a sort not printed since 1914.

Some items in the house will be sold, but guardian Scott Gordon said most of the contents were worthless.

The house will be demolished Friday.

"You got us up against the wall. Suppose we give Massachusetts a new naval base, three Air Force bases and a contract to build a strategic bomber."

"That's worth Teddy making a fist, but not a smile."

"So what's he going to do when he arrives on the platform?"

"He'll shake hands with Carter and Rosalynn and say hello to Amy and then wave to the crowd."

"But that will look terrible on television. We want to leave New York united. Surely Teddy can give us a little more than that. What if he kisses Amy on the cheek? That can't hurt him with his supporters."

"I'll check with him," the Kennedy man said.

The aide spoke to Teddy and hung up the phone. "Teddy says he doesn't kiss children."

"So all we've got so far," the Carter man said, "is Teddy showing up on the podium. Is that it?"

"Isn't that enough? If you don't like the terms, he can always fly out before Thursday night."

"I better check with the president." Carter's aide called up Jimmy and told him the terms. There was some back-and-forth talk and then the aide hung up. "The president said we'll agree to everything, as he feels Teddy's appearance is essential to his victory in November."

"Did you tell him Teddy wouldn't smile?"

"Yes, and Jimmy said he wasn't worried, because he'll be able to smile enough for both of them."

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,280 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported $1,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8:15 a.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Reade Circle.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were listed as Paul Earl Hunter of 1612B Hopkins Dr. and Cleveland Wilson of Route 2, Ayden.

Investigators reported an estimated $280 damage resulted to a truck and trailer operated by Bobby Teel Harris of Route 6, Greenville, when the vehicle ran into a roadside ditch and struck a culvert, about 9:50 a.m. on Tenth Street, 25 feet east of the Riverbluff Drive intersection.

'Something For Everybody' In Senate Committee's Tax Cut

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Finance Committee says tax legislation the panel is rushing to complete this week will contain something for everyone.

Just how much everyone would get under the proposal should become more clear today as the committee considers a plan to accelerate tax write-offs for business and an income tax reduction.

There was no objection heard Tuesday as Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, described a proposal to simplify and accelerate the rate at which businesses can write off the cost of buildings, equipment and vehicles.

Bentsen said his proposal would drop every existing depreciation rate by at least 40 percent. The committee staff estimated the cut would be about $11 billion in 1981.

The committee also is considering a combination of individual tax cuts which would amount to about $21.2 billion in 1981.

These cuts would be accomplished through a combination of measures, including a method to offset some of the Social Security tax increases that will occur in January and give some tax relief to lower-income taxpayers. The remainder of the cut would be utilized to make an across-the-board income tax rate cut.

Committee members also have shown they want to include incentives for savings and a change in the tax liability for unearned income—capital gains.

"Everybody's going to get something," said Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., the committee chairman.

The panel has publicly displayed a strong bipartisan spirit as it has shaped the tax package this week. When debate has turned to controversial topics, Long has turned the committee's attention back to issues on which the senators agree.

Long won agreement Tuesday from the committee members to vote by noon Friday on sending a tax cut bill to the Senate floor. The committee previously agreed on making the total cut $25 billion to $30 billion, saying it should be passed this year.

But final congressional passage of a tax cut this year is in doubt because House leaders are balking at taking quick action.

"I can't conceive of how we can get a tax cut out of the House before we go into recess Oct. 4," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., the No. 2 Democrat on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was more blunt.

"I don't believe we're going to be able to write a tax bill this year," Rostenkowski said.

He said he sees little sentiment in the Ways and Means Committee to rush into a tax cut. And he added, "I don't see that (Senate action) affecting what we're doing in Ways and Means."

The Ways and Means Committee is holding hearings on a tax cut, but has not yet begun work on a bill.

But Long said he hopes quick Senate action will force the House to follow.

"If they (the House) detect we're all pleased (with the tax package) ... they may decide they want to get with it," Long said.

"I know the intent of the (House) leadership is not to do anything," said Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., adding that swift Senate action may force House leaders "to be dragged screaming into the act."

Legislators are scheduled to break Oct. 4 for the fall general election, leaving little time for final action before the election. But a post-election "lame duck" session may be needed to give final approval to the fiscal 1981 federal budget, and action on a tax bill could come then.

Reagan On China Could Be Hot Campaign Issue

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Carter administration officials believe that Ronald Reagan could undo the steady progress in U.S.-Chinese relations if, as president, Reagan establishes an official liaison office on Taiwan.

Reagan's reported intentions, outlined at a news conference in Los Angeles Saturday night, drew a vehement reaction from Peking Tuesday and an expression of concern from senior Carter administration officials.

A U.S. move to establish a liaison office on Taiwan "would have very significant consequences throughout the region and, I think, would have an adverse effect on Sino-American relations," said Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke.

Holbrooke, one of the architects of the U.S. decision in 1978 to sever relations with Taiwan and establish diplomatic ties with Peking, commented in an interview with The Associated Press.

Holbrooke's remarks added a new dimension to the contention of Carter administration and re-election officials that Reagan cannot be trusted with the conduct of foreign policy.

He spoke several hours, after the official Chinese newspaper, the People's Daily, said Reagan was engaging in "utterly deceptive talk" in saying the United States can establish official relations with Taiwan while maintaining friendly relations with Peking.

The front-page editorial apparently was triggered by Reagan's statements Saturday night preceding the departure of his vice presidential running mate, George Bush, on a nine-day visit to China and Japan.

"They (Chinese) are really worried," Holbrooke said. "They don't know what to expect. To put an editorial like that on the front page of the People's Daily on the eve of George Bush's arrival is really a remarkable action."

The confusion appears to center on the question of whether the establishment of a liaison office on Taiwan constitutes re-recognition of Taiwan.

In 1973, the United States, as part of the process of normalizing relations with the mainland, set up a liaison office in Peking while maintaining full diplomatic ties with Taiwan.

Holbrooke said that in 1977, former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance visited Peking and proposed the downgrading of U.S.-Taiwanese ties to the liaison office level while establishing full diplomatic relations with the mainland.

Holbrooke recalled that the Chinese "rejected that proposal flatly at the time and rejected it publicly, calling it a step backward from the proposals of President Ford and Henry Kissinger."

A year later, the United States decided to shift diplomatic recognition from Taiwan to Peking. U.S. interests on Taiwan are handled by congressionally funded private foundation. Reagan has called U.S. treatment of Taiwan "a betrayal."

At a brief stopover Monday in Tokyo, Bush said the Chinese reaction to Reagan's statement was based on "headlines rather than the full story." As to whether Reagan advocates a two-China policy, Bush, who headed the U.S. liaison office in Peking in 1974-75, said, "No, that should have been laid to rest."

But in his remarks Saturday night, Reagan strongly implied that it is his intention, if elected, to re-establish official ties with Taiwan through the opening of a liaison office rather than through formal diplomatic recognition.

The People's Daily commentary suggested that even a limited official relationship between the United States and Taiwan "would essentially violate the basic principles for the normalization (of Sino-American) relations."

Reagan, campaigning in Cleveland last May, proposed the establishment of a liaison office in Taiwan but his top foreign policy adviser, Richard V. Allen, said last month that Reagan no longer adhered to that position. In his comments last Saturday, Reagan appears to have embraced that proposal once again.

"Gov. Reagan, Ambassador Bush and Richard Allen all appear to have said somewhat different things," Holbrooke said. "The Chinese are genuinely concerned about the issue and feel they must correct it and clarify it at this point."

Renovation Or Demolition Alternatives

W. H. "Bill" Clark said today that he purchased the old county hospital building on Johnston Street as an "investment," with two basic alternatives.

Pitt County commissioners Monday approved the sale of the property to Clark, of Clark and Branch Inc. realtors, for a high bid of $63,500. The property includes one acre of land and the old hospital building, completed in 1924, and used most recently as offices for the county's Department of Social Services.

Clark said the two alternatives include renovating the present structure to house, "some sort of living quarters," or, "tearing the building down and putting apartments or other residential rental property on the site."

Several months ago, commissioners rejected a $47,000 bid for the property.

Bill Twine Attends Meet

Bill Twine of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department attended the 1980 Special Olympics National Directors Conference recently at Smugglers Notch, Stowe, Vt.

Twine was selected to attend the conference to represent recreation officials from North Carolina.

Emphasis was placed during the session on a Special Olympics Training School with instruction in training Special Olympians in various sports and how to conduct training schools for others. As North Carolina's representative at the conference, Twine received his certification as an instructor and will be able to conduct training schools to certify other coaches and trainers.

Twine was recently appointed chairman of the North Carolina Special Olympics Training Committee. He has served as a local and area coordinator in the state, was the head chaperone for North Carolina at the 1979 International Summer Special Olympics Games, and served as program coordinator for Georgia Special Olympics.

Crash Tests Generally Favor American-Made Cars

By HOWARD BENEDICT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crash tests indicate that American-made small cars are generally structurally stronger and safer than most foreign compacts, the Transportation Department reports.

Ten of 11 foreign cars failed the most recent tests in which cars carrying dummies were crashed at 35 miles an hour into a fixed barrier. The only one which passed was an Italian-made Fiat Strada.

A Chevrolet Chevette, the only domestic car included in the latest tests, also passed. All were 1980 models.

In test results announced earlier this year, eight American small cars passed, while five American and three foreign autos failed. These were 1979 models.

A failure means that occupants would have sustained serious or fatal injuries.

Joan Claybrook, head of the department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, told a news conference Tuesday the tests show that U.S. compacts have a safety edge over most small imports and said a major reason is generally stronger structures.

She was especially critical of Japanese models, and particularly cited two Toyota cars, the Tercel and the Celica, which she said would have to be redesigned structurally in order to pass NHTSA's frontal crash test.

"The structure of the Japanese small cars are not as substantial as the American car," Ms. Claybrook said. "They have just not put their attention into that aspect."

Starting in 1982, many cars will have to pass 30 mph crash tests before they can be sold in this country. NHTSA said it is conducting early testing at 5 mph above that standard to give automakers an idea what they face and to alert consumers to the relative safety of various cars.

The agency said it is concentrating on compacts now because of the great upsurge in sales of these fuel-efficient vehicles. Sixty-four percent of all 1980 models sold in this country have been compacts, and they now represent 38 percent of all cars now on the road.

"These tests clearly illustrate the emerging safety problem faced by consumers who are shifting to smaller cars to conserve fuel," Ms. Claybrook said. "We know that the small cars currently being produced are less safe than large cars in collisions between these vehicles. But our tests also show that small cars are less safe themselves, even in single vehicle collisions and in collisions between small cars."

"Unless smaller cars are equipped with automatic protection, such as airbags or automatic belts, the highway death toll will increase beyond the already epidemic proportions," she said. Non-automatic belts would be effective, she stated, but studies show only one person in nine bothers to buckle up.

Mini-compacts which failed the latest test series were the Honda Civic, Toyota Tercel, Datsun 310, Subaru GLF, Honda Prelude and Toyota Corolla. Sub-compacts which failed were the Volkswagen Rabbit convertible, Audi 4000, Mazda 626 and Datsun 200 SX.

Mini-compacts weigh up to 2,150 pounds, and sub-compacts between 2,151 and 2,650 pounds.

In the 1979 model results announced earlier this year, all the successful U.S. cars were sub-compacts: Chevrolet Citation, Pontiac Phoenix, Oldsmobile Omega, Buick Skylark, Ford Mustang, Mercury Capri, Plymouth Horizon and Dodge Omni. Failed sub-compacts were Mercury Bobcat, Ford Pinto and Toyota Celica.

All five 1979 mini-compacts failed. They were the Datsun 210, Ford Fiesta, Plymouth Champ, Dodge Colt and Volkswagen Rabbit hardtop. The Fiesta is built in Germany, while the Champ and Colt are built in Japan.

Vehicles tested are purchased by NHTSA at dealer showrooms. Ms. Claybrook said other cars will be tested soon, and that the agency's ultimate goal is to complete such tests on new autos before they are available to consumers.

Bar A Nixon Deposition

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys for Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood were denied the opportunity Tuesday to obtain a deposition from former President Nixon about his administration's policies on prosecution returning prisoners of war from Vietnam.

Col. R.E. Switzer, presiding over pretrial hearings for Garwood, denied the defense request after Nixon's attorney, Fred Mortenson, said the former president has no recollection concerning amnesty for the POWs. Mortenson said Nixon could be of no help to Garwood, prosecutors reported.

Meanwhile, Switzer said he would rule Thursday on a defense motion to dismiss part of the charges against Garwood.

Garwood, who returned to the United States last year after 14 years in Vietnam, is charged with desertion and collaboration with the enemy. He is the first former POW in Vietnam to face prosecution for allegedly aiding the enemy, and the defense has argued the Nixon administration had a general policy of not prosecuting the returning prisoners.

Switzer also denied defense requests for additional rewording of the charges against Garwood to make them more specific. One of Garwood's lawyers especially has requested a formal listing of the names of people Garwood is alleged to have harmed.

"If the government can't put my client on notice of the charges he should defend himself against, then the government should in fundamental fairness dismiss the charges," the attorney, Capt. Lewis Olshin, argued.

However, prosecutor Capt. Werner Hellmer said the government has been specific enough in charges, including supplying the defense with tapes from the Naval Investigative Service, debriefing tapes of POWs who returned in 1973 and the government's witness list.

Talked Gunman Into Giving Up

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A domestic dispute escalated into a 2 1/2-hour hostage siege at a downtown Social Security office before police negotiators convinced the gunman to surrender, authorities say.

No injuries were reported Tuesday when Emmett Gremillion, 39, fought with his estranged wife at the office, fired two shots, and then took a 46-year-old Social Security employee hostage, officials said. A dozen other people were pulled to safety through a window.

Gremillion was taken into custody by FBI agents and faced charges of assaulting a federal officer, police said.

Bucket Lines As Water Failed

WHITEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Bucket lines and old fire department pumps were pressed into service Tuesday to supply water to the Columbus County Hospital.

The hospital, and much of Whiteville, was left without water when the town's two water pumps stopped working Monday.

A hospital spokesman said patients were in no danger although temperatures did climb. The hospital shut off its cooling system because of the water shortage.

Anderson Lawyers Seek Place On The N.C. Ballot

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for independent presidential candidate John Anderson sought a federal court order today that would put his name back on the ballot for North Carolina's general election in November.

Anderson, who had filed in the state's Republican presidential primary but later withdrew, originally was qualified as an independent by the State Board of Elections. That board, however, subsequently ruled on a Democratic challenge that Anderson could not run because of his prior entry in the GOP primary.

U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. scheduled arguments today on a bid by Anderson's attorney to have the state law cited by the board declared unconstitutional.

Dupree has issued an order blocking distribution of the state ballot until Anderson's suit is settled.

Meanwhile, the state attorney general's office said Tuesday another independent candidate, Percy L. Greaves of Dobbs Ferry, N.Y., amended a suit against the state board to delete objections to distribution of the ballot without his name. Greaves, who has no party affiliation, left intact his legal challenge of North Carolina laws governing access by a candidate to the ballot.

A third candidate, Republican senatorial nominee John East, also has challenged the ballot and is seeking an order barring distribution. A hearing on East's suit, challenging the placement of names on the ballot, will be held in Fayetteville Thursday.

Greaves' lawyer, Jerry Leonard of Raleigh, said his client agreed to change his suit after state attorneys decided to help seek a judicial determination on state law governing ballot access.

Greaves, 75, is a columnist and freelance writer who argues that state requirements for unaffiliated candidates to get on the ballot are more stringent than requirements for alternative parties.

Alternative parties must file petitions containing the names of 10,000 registered voters to get on the ballot, while unaffiliated candidates must gather signatures of 10 per cent of those who voted in the last gubernatorial election.

Leonard said Greaves dropped his motion because "he is more interested in reforming election laws through his candidacy for the presidency. And we are accomplishing that."

State elections officials have said adding another name to the ballot at this stage would require wholesale redesigning of the ballot and force reprogramming of voting machines. A space for the Independents for Anderson

Party — minus the name of the candidate — already is reserved on the ballot.

MacDonald Appeal Filed

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Government attorneys have asked the full U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals to review an appellate panel's decision reversing the conviction of former Green Beret Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald.

The petition, coming just before today's deadline for government action on the reversal, apparently will block any immediate release of MacDonald from prison unless a request for bond is granted.

A three-judge panel of the Circuit Court ruled three weeks ago that MacDonald had been denied his right to a speedy trial when he was convicted in Raleigh, N.C., last year of murdering his wife and their two daughters at Fort Bragg, N.C., in 1970.

The panel ordered the conviction reversed and MacDonald released from prison. MacDonald, serving three consecutive life terms, has been confined at the Terminal Island, Calif., federal prison.

The prison is near MacDonald's home in Huntington Beach, Calif., where he had been working as a hospital emergency room physician.

AMC Raising Its 1981 Car Prices

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. is raising the retail prices of its 1981 cars by an average of $188.

Tuesday's announcement of the 2.5 percent price increase — slightly more than the 1.9 percent increase over 1980 prices announced by General Motors Corp. — was mostly needed for a "partial recovery" of costs associated with meeting tightened federal pollution requirements, AMC spokesman Steve Harris said.

Prices on Jeep models will rise by an average of 0.4 percent, while the price of the Renault Le Car that is sold through AMC was not revealed.

Crashed Car To Escape Kidnaper

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A Gary man was held on preliminary kidnapping charges after two teen-agers he was allegedly holding captive in their car deliberately slammed the vehicle into a police car, authorities said.

Joe Henry Johnson, 43, was also being held on intoxication and possession of marijuana charges, officials said.

Police said Deborah J. Engdahl, 19, of South Bend, and Devitt Feeley, 16, of Gary, were abducted by a knife-wielding man Monday night. They escaped early Tuesday when they slammed their subcompact into a sheriff's car and jumped out yelling, "He's got a knife! He kidnapped us!"

Fight Importing Of Russian Cars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators from two leading auto-producing states are pressing for legislation that would prevent a New York company from selling Russian-made cars in the United States.

"We take strong exception to the prospect of opening the U.S. market to the Soviets at a time when our own auto industry is suffering its worst depression in history and with fully one-third of our autoworkers unemployed," Democrats Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and Birch Bayh of Indiana say.

Their concern is prompted by efforts of the Satra Corp. of New York to obtain certification of the Russian-made Lada from the Environmental Protection Agency for importation into the United States. The Lada, a compact car, is currently be sold in Canada, some European countries including England and some African countries.

Satra officials, who say the Lada would sell for about $4,600 if it were being marketed in America now, claim their plans have been caught up in the strain in relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

"It's not a matter of Russia invading the United States with cars," said company spokesman Carl Longley. "We're just a company that deals in East-West trade."

But Eagleton, whose state is the nation's second leading auto producer, and Bayh hope to convince a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on Thursday to include language in the EPA's new budget prohibiting use of any funds to test or certify cars made in the Soviet Union.

The sale is scheduled to be held at the courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, on September 16, 1980, at twelve o'clock noon unless the loan is paid in full prior to that date. If a postponement of the sale becomes necessary, it will be held as soon as possible after September 16, 1980, and you will be mailed notice of such later date, providing you keep the undersigned notified in writing of your mailing address.

You are further notified that if this notice is served on or before August 15, 1980, you may appear before the Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County at 10:00 a.m. or as soon thereafter as the matter can be reached, on August 15, 1980, to show cause, if any you have, as to why this foreclosure should not be allowed to be held. If this notice is not served on you until after August 15, 1980, then the hearing before the Clerk will be held on the first day not a Saturday, Sunday or legal holiday that is at least eleven (11) days after the date of service on you, at 10:00 a.m. or as soon thereafter as the matter can be reached. If you do not intend to contest S.O. WORTHINGTON's allegation of default and his right to foreclosure, you do not have to attend this hearing before the Clerk, and your failure to do so will not affect your right to pay the indebtedness in full at any time before the sale, or to attend and bid at the sale itself.

If the foreclosure is held, the purchaser at the sale will be entitled to possession of the property described in the deed of trust at time of delivery of his deed by the Trustee, and should you remain in possession at that time, you can be evicted from such possession.

If you will keep the undersigned Trustee notified in writing of your address, copies of any postponements of sale or resale will be mailed to you.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC FLUORIDE FOUND IN DRINKING WATER

Smith's Trailer Park reports that recent tests of the drinking water showed a higher level of Fluoride than is allowed by the State and Federal drinking water regulations. The concentration of Fluoride in the water is well below the level which would cause any serious health effects. Continued use of the water supply might cause mottling of teeth in children. Older people should have no ill effects from this problem.

Smith's Trailer Park is working with the Division of Health Services to determine the best solution to this problem. Alternatives being considered are possible new sources of water and installation of treatment equipment which would reduce the Fluoride level.

We will continue to notify you of the status of this problem quarterly until it is corrected.

Mencken Would Have Laughed At Birthday Party

By CHRISTOPHER CORBETT

Associated Press Writer BALTIMORE (AP) — H.L. Mencken's old friends and colleagues say the sage of Baltimore would have roared with laughter to see how his hometown is preparing to celebrate his 100th birthday. "He would have been very much amused. He would have laughed and had just a very good time," said Louis Cheslock, a retired music professor at the Peabody Conservatory of Music who knew Mencken for nearly 40 years.

The city where Mencken — wit, pungent critic, iconoclast and adept observer of the American scene — was born and spent nearly all his life is cranking up for a celebration timed to the 100th anniversary of his birth Sept. 12.

Henry Louis Mencken was master of the well-turned phrase, contributing one-liners such as, "The demagogue is one who preaches doctrines he knows to be untrue to men he knows to be idiots."

In a famous political jab, Mencken commented on the fact that out of millions of eligible American men, voters had elected Calvin Coolidge as president. "It is as if a hungry man set before a banquet prepared by master cooks and covering a table an acre in area should turn his back upon the feast and stay his stomach by catching and eating flies," he said.

Another quotation often attributed to Mencken is "No one ever went broke underestimating the taste of the American public," but scholars insist that Mencken did not say it.

A newspaperman who began as a reporter and went on to edit the old Baltimore Morning Herald, the Baltimore Evening Sun and Baltimore Sun, Mencken was an author of books and essays and a literary critic who championed Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis and Eugene O'Neill.

And there are surely things about the Mencken centenary that he might have found hard not to comment on.

— So many people want to go to a banquet in Mencken's honor to hear Alistair Cooke, editor of "The Vintage Mencken," a collection of his works, that now there will be two banquets.

— An actor will impersonate Mencken, doing a one-man show of some of Mencken's best known works.

— The U.S. Postal Service will issue a special cancellation in Mencken's honor.

— The Enoch Pratt Free Library, which owns many of Mencken's private papers and books and is sponsoring many of the birthday events, will open the Mencken Room, which normally welcomes visitors only on his birthday, for two days.

— And there will be an hour-long film, "Mencken's America," panel discussions on his works, and an autograph party in honor of a new book, "On Mencken," which comprises essays by a number of writers, including William Manchester, perhaps Mencken's best-known biographer.

Mencken might have found it a little much — this Menckenfest that one of his old friends says has become something of "a cottage industry."

"He would have made light of such a celebration," added Dr. William Muse, once a Mencken neighbor.

Although it has been a quarter of a century since his death, and a stroke left him incapacitated in his later years, Mencken is well remembered here and elsewhere.

His "Bath Tub Hoax," a satirical history of the bath tub that many took for fact, and his reports on the "Scopes Monkey Trial" in which he ridiculed William Jennings Bryan, are legendary — as is his opposition to Prohibition and barbed comments on political life.

Consider Mencken on government and politicians, for instance: "All government, of course, is against liberty" and "A good one (politician) is quite as unthinkable as an honest burglar."

Cheslock, last survivor of "The Saturday Night Club" a group of friends that met for nearly 50 years for music, food and drink, was with Mencken the night before his death in 1956.

"I sort of feel half foolish because he would have pooh-poohed it," the 81-year-old Cheslock said of the celebration. "He may have gone along with some of it in a sort of amused way. But the cheap, carnival aspects, I don't think he'd have liked that."

But Philip Wagner, a longtime Mencken friend and associate, disagreed, saying: "He'd have enjoyed it. He wouldn't have sneered at it."

Cheslock, Wagner and others say Mencken's image as a hard-drinking cynic is exaggerated.

"I don't think there was a malicious bone in the man," said Cheslock.

DISSATISFIED — An unidentified Cuban refugee rests on his cot in Miami's "tent city", which now houses over 600 refugees. Cubans who came here with lofty expectations feel let down by living conditions and joblessness in the United States. Five out of every six work-age Cuban refugees in Dade County are without a job. Mrs. Morgan...

Mrs. Morgan, Mary and Margaret have been traveling across North Carolina for the past three weeks campaigning for the Democratic Party attending coffees, teas and receptions. They were in Haw River Monday evening and were going on to Shelby Wednesday. They will continue campaigning throughout the state until the November election. "If necessary, I will take a leave of absence to campaign," she remarked.

Mary Morgan is a high school senior and is Youth Coordinator in North Carolina for the Carter-Mondale Committee. She is also president of the Harnett County Teen Dems. Margaret Morgan is a sophomore at Duke University and is interested in pre-law. They will be joining Mrs. Morgan in campaigning on weekends and at nights when their schedules allow them to.

tower has been completed and that stucco is being put on the exterior of the psych unit. He quoted Ralph Hall as saying that 39 percent of the money budgeted for the building projects has been spent and that 28 percent of the time has been used. Some 250 days have been spent, he said, with 468 left to go on the contract.

The Board expressed appreciation to the American Legion for the gift of an American flag for the hospital grounds.

Medical Staff Chief Dr. William Bost reported on revisions to bylaws of the staff. He also said that all that is possible is being done to schedule elective admissions to the best advantage of patients. "I know there are some disappointments and some major inconveniences," he said. "But we're doing the best we can as we eagerly await the opening of the new bed tower."

The Board honored Jean Owens for her 10 years of service as director of nursing. Miss Owens, who has spent 34 years as a nursing professional, will now serve in another administrative capacity at the hospital.

Dr. William Laupus, Dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, said the new medical students are here, that their parents were honored at a reception at the hospital last Saturday. The Med School is back to its main business, education, he said.

Board member Noel Lee Jr. praised the fine presentation made by Hospital Director of Community Relations and Development Herb Bailey before the Pactolus Ruritan Club recently. "He presented us quite a challenge to support the hospital's needs," Lee said, "and represented the hospital in an outstanding manner."

Director of the Physical Plant Ralph Hall reported on the ever-increasing parking problem at the hospital. Long-range plans are for a 1,000-car parking building, he said, but the cost, even now, for such a structure is $3,300 per car, so it will be a while in coming.

Executive Director Rick Gilstrap said the report on the Joint Committee on Accreditation of Hospitals visit was a very favorable one, with two-year accreditation received. He said there were 22 suggestions for changes, none of which have direct bearing on patient health and safety. One of these, the conflict of interest resolution passed earlier in the evening, was taken care of and the others will be as quickly as possible.

WEBB TO SPEAK

Eldress Helen Webb of Greenville will speak during a service to be held at Simpson Chapel Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Everyone is invited, says the sponsor, Eldress Gracie Bailey.

Iranian Student Held Deportable

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A 23-year old Iranian student who took a job without permission of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service was found deportable by an immigration judge.

After the ruling Tuesday by Judge Gordon Sacks, Farhang Obhbat, a math major at Norfolk State University, accepted an opportunity to leave the country at his own expense within 15 days.

But he told the judge that he plans to qualify for permanent resident status by marrying an American.

Had he not agreed to leave voluntarily, the government would have started deportation proceedings against him immediately.

Obhbat was accused by the government of working for one month at King Richard's, a restaurant in Newport News. An alien cannot take a job without first getting permission from the INS.

At the hearing, Obhbat said he was waiting for his future wife's divorce to become final, according to INS inspector Robert Woytych. He asked if he could stay in the country a few days past the 15-day period if there were a delay in his wedding.

Although he would immediately be subject to deportation if he failed to leave at that time, an INS official, who asked not to be identified, said it takes several weeks to process a deportation order once the deadline passes.

Obhbat also could prolong his stay by appeals.

Building a strong business is no accident.

So don't let an accident destroy it.

Your successful business could be wiped out in a single day. How? By losing a large lawsuit not covered by your basic business insurance.

Aetna's Commercial Umbrella Policy is the answer. It provides million dollar liability protection and more. And because Commercial Umbrella coverage applies only when your existing coverage is exhausted, the cost is surprisingly low.

You can't prevent every loss, but you can prevent the loss of your business. Give us a call. We'll recommend the Umbrella coverage that's right for you.

Four-Day Crusade Will Begin Here August 24

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Sunday, August 24 is the opening date of a four-day crusade, "It's Happening," featuring evangelist Albert Long, musicians Donna Stephenson and Randy Atcheson, and karate black belt holder Lester A. Matte, Jr.

The crusade will be centered at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, with separate appearances to be made at Rose High and Aycock Junior High Schools.

Long, who received the "Service to Mankind" Award in 1970, is the second and last athlete in the University of North Carolina's history to win collegiate letters in four major sports — football, basketball, baseball, and track. In 1973 he became a full time speaker for Christian work.

After graduating from UNC, Long became an insurance man in his hometown, Durham, and in 1967 was named Durham's "Man of the Year." He also spent three years in the Air Force. Currently, he travels nationally, conducting crusades in colleges, churches and public schools.

Long will be in Greenville for the entire four day period. Atcheson and Ms. Stephenson will be here Sunday through Tuesday, and Matte will join in the crusade on one day, Wednesday.

—Ms. Stephenson, a native of Benson, an operatic soprano, graduated several years ago from the School of Music, East Carolina University, with a degree in voice performance. While a student at ECU, she performed in student recitals and in several local appearances. She earned an opera degree at the N. C. School of the Arts, Winston-Salem.

In 1977 Ms. Stephenson made her opera debut in a production of Tchaikovsky's "Iolanthe," produced and directed by Rise Stevens. In March of this year she was one of five finalists in a competition of more than 100 singers who sang at the Metropolitan Opera Guild in New York City. She has also sung for a Billy Graham crusade. This summer, she is at Kent, Ohio, where she has roles in two operas in the Blossom Music Festival.

—Atcheson, a native of Clanton, Alabama, is a double major in piano and organ at the Juilliard School of Music in New York, will make his debut at Alice Tully Hall in Lincoln Center next March, where he will be the first performer to play the new pipe organ there. A music critic of "The New York Times" has called Atcheson "the best in the U.S. at the piano and organ." He has performed extensively, including a concert at Kennedy Center. His Greenville concert will be at Jarvis at 12:15 p.m. on Tuesday, August 26.

—The fourth member of the crusade, Durham native Lester A. Matte, Jr., attended Durham Technical Institute before joining the Army in 1968. While assigned to duty in Korea, Matte began training in Tae Kwon Do (a Korean form of karate). He earned the first degree black belt in one year and the second degree six months later. In 1970, he won the All Service Heavyweight Division Tae Kwon Do Championship.

Following his discharge from the Army in 1970, Matte returned to Durham and opened a karate school. Later, he added a weightlifting gym to the school. In 1973 he suffered a serious leg injury, but has recovered and is able to give karate demonstrations. One of his specialties is hand breaking with a three inch punch a piece of concrete 8 by 16 by one and one-half inches.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

The schedule of events for the Albert Long crusade is:

- Sunday, August 24, 7:30 p.m. — Jarvis Memorial
- Monday, August 25, 9:30 a.m. — J. H. Rose High School; and 7:30 p.m., Jarvis Memorial.
- Tuesday, August 26, (morning hours, exact time to be announced later), Aycock Junior High School; 12:15 p.m., Atcheson Concert, Jarvis Memorial; and 7:30 p.m., Jarvis Memorial.
- Wednesday, August 27, 7:30 p.m., Jarvis Memorial.

Brett's Streak Ends

Orioles' Stone Captures 20th

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Steve Stone is at 20 victories and counting but 30 meant the end of George Brett's hitting streak.

While Stone became the first 20-game winner this season as the Orioles downed the California Angels 5-2, Brett saw his 30-game hitting streak come to an end thanks to a fine fielding play by Texas first baseman Pat Putnam in the ninth inning of the Royals' 4-3 victory over the Rangers.

"I feel terrific," said Stone, 20-4, who flirted with a no-hitter until Bert Campaneris singled with one out in the eighth inning. "I've never even been close to 20 wins before. I brought this bottle of champagne with me from Baltimore and I didn't want to take it more than one city."

"I'm disappointed I was 0-for-3 but I'm relieved we won the ballgame," said Brett. "I would have liked to have gotten at least 32 straight (Minnesota's Ken Landreaux hit in 31 consecutive games earlier in the season) but I'm going to start another streak tomorrow."

Although he flew out, grounded out twice and walked, Brett is still batting .401 in his bid to become the first .400 hitter since Ted Williams in 1941.

While Stone was mowing the Angels down to boost his record to 20-4, Eddie Murray, Doug DeCinces and Dan Graham backed him with solo homers as the Orioles remained 2½ games behind the Yankees in the AL East.

"I've never even been close to 20 wins before," said Stone, a 33-year-old right-hander whose previous high was 15 victories and who started 1980 with an over-all 78-79 mark. "I never thought much about winning 20 games before. I didn't know if I'd ever get the chance. I was only with fourth-, fifth- and sixth-place clubs."

"You don't go 20-4 pitching overpowering games every time out. I've only got one shutout, so I get just enough runs to win. It's the ballclub. I saw that big zero in the hit column from the second inning on. I got a pitch out over the plate and Campy hit it good."

Stone went 7½ innings, allowing two runs — one unearned — on two hits. The victory made him the earliest 20-game winner in Baltimore history, surpassing Dave McNally, won his 20th game of 1970 on Aug. 25. His last outing was a two-hitter against the Yankees in which he finished with 4½ hitless innings, giving him 12 consecutive no-hit innings before Campaneris' single.

Royals 4, Rangers 3

Kansas City had only four hits off Jon Matlack and trailed 3-1 going into the ninth inning when U.L. Washington reached on an error by Texas shortstop Dave Roberts, bringing up Brett with his hitting streak on the line.

He hit a hard grounder but Putnam knocked it down with a dive and crawled on his hands and knees to beat Brett to the bag. However, Hal McRae's double made it 3-2 and Amos Otis greeted Danny Darwin with a single that tied the score. After John Wathan singled, John Henry Johnson relieved but Willie Aikens singled to score the winning run.

Yankees 3, Mariners 1

Tom Underwood and Rich Gossage combined on a five-hitter and Bob Watson and Reggie Jackson hit home runs. Underwood gave up four hits before Gossage came on with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh and struck out Dan

Bullets Open With Last Years's Playoff Foe

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

JAMESVILLE — Last November Jamesville's football season came to an end when Princeton defeated the Bullets, 28-6, in the opening round of the State I-A playoffs.

The player most responsible for Jamesville's first trip to the playoffs being a one-night stand was halfback Mike Atkinson. Running from the Bulldogs' single wing, Atkinson gained 280 yards on 46 carries and scored all four of Princeton's touchdowns.

Less than two weeks hence Jamesville opens the 1980 season against Princeton — and Atkinson — and Bullet head coach Jerry Godley wouldn't have it any other way.

"I like opening with Princeton," said Godley, voted coach of the year last season in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin conference. "Princeton had a good team last year and I believe they'll have a good team this year. And they have one of the finest running backs in the state in Atkinson.

"A game like this will give us an indication of how our people are going to do against a good team and a good athlete," he said. "Plus, they run from the single wing and that'll give us something different for our guys to look at."

Fourteen seniors who contributed to last season's 8-2 finish — the Bullets' best — will be missing when the Bullets lineup against the Bulldogs Aug. 29. Of those 14, five were all-conference: quarterback/kicker Trent Ange, linebacker/tight end Frankie Hardison, halfback/defensive end Alan Frazier, offensive linemen Mark Barber and Joey White and halfback Jimbo Silver.

"We're going to be inexperienced, there's no doubt about that," Godley said. "The problem is that we have a lot of players who have not played in the position we have them in this year. If they mature we should be O.K."

Graduation ravaged the Bullets in two main areas: in the backfield, where Godley must find four new starters, and in the offensive line, where only one starter returns.

At quarterback this season for the Bullets, replacing four-year starter Trent Ange, will be Tom Fortenberry (5-8, 145 pounds), a transfer from Virginia. Another four-year starter that must be replaced is Frazier. That task falls to senior Ricky Bell, who was moved from split end to halfback this season by Godley. "He's probably our fastest player," Godley said of the 4.7 sprinter.

Freshman are expected to fill the other two backfield slots. Onwood James (5-10, 175), who got off a 72-yard jaunt in an early scrimmage game this season, will man the other halfback while Carlton Rodgers (5-10, 195) will be at fullback. William Moore (5-5, 135) is back from last season and is expected to see action

Weaver Saying '82 Final Year

BALTIMORE (AP) — Earl Weaver says he figures he's good for one year after his silver anniversary with the Baltimore organization, so he signed a two-year extension of his contract to carry him through 1982 when he plans to retire if he can afford it.

"I'm happy to be able to finish out my career with the Orioles," Weaver said Tuesday night after the Orioles beat the California Angels in a 5-2 American League contest that made Steve Stone the first 20-game winner in the major leagues this season.

"This is my 25th year in the Baltimore organization, all as a manager, and I will call it quits after 26. Of course, you never know, but this should carry me up to retirement," Weaver said.

Weaver said he doubted if he would seek any employment after 1982, but he added, "Of course, if the stock market goes crazy or I have any financial problems, certainly things might change."

"I'm still going to grow my own vegetables and stuff my own sausages. I'm still going to look for chuck roast on sale and cut it up for soup meat and grind it up for hamburger meat," Weaver said.

Weaver wouldn't discuss the financial terms of his contract, but he explained deferred payments on the extension won't begin until 1990. "I don't start getting paid deferred money on my last three-year contract until next year and that runs through 1990," he said. "In fact, I'll be making more money in 1985 than I make next year."

Weaver said the signing was held up because he insisted on certain contract language. "My points were that I would still get paid even if I was fired and didn't seek any other employment, and even if I worked for another team as long as it wasn't as a manager."

"I felt that if Baltimore wanted to fire me after 24 years of service, I should have severance pay, and evidently, they felt that way, too," he said.

Weaver, skipper of the Orioles since July 10, 1968, started the season with the third best won-lost percentage among managers with at least five years experience.

The Orioles have won four American League pennants, six Eastern Division titles and one World Series championship under Weaver.

Three Pirates Injured

East Carolina University's footballers put on pads for the first time yesterday, and while Coach Ed Emory liked some of the things he saw, the medical list left him with a frown.

Three more Pirates were sidelined with injuries sustained during the drills. Marvin Cobb, a running back, suffered a badly sprained knee and possible ligament damage. The full extent of the injury is not yet known, and it is not known how long he will be out of action.

Willie Swinson, a defensive back, also suffered a knee injury, with ligament damage, and will be in a cast for six weeks.

Clifford Williams, a lineman, tore a cartilage in his ribs, and will be out an indefinite period.

Greg Stewart, the number two quarterback when practice opened, was injured earlier and will miss two to three weeks.

Otherwise, things seemed to go well for Emory and his charges during the first day of hard hitting. The coach expressed pleasure in the way Doug Smith and George Crump are handling the defensive tackle positions, and noted that Rocky Butler is looking good at defensive end.

His main concern, however, is for the offensive line.

Junior transfer Tony Hensley is holding down the center spot, and while Emory said that Hensley is smaller than he likes, he is doing well. Fee Griffin is developing well at one of the guard positions, the coach added. All-American Wayne Inman is at the other guard slot.

Tootie Robbins, coming off a knee injury, is looking strong at the right tackle spot, but the left position causes Emory some worries. Mark Ervin is currently holding down the position, but is getting pressure from several others, whom Emory did not name.

The coach also expressed some worry about the tight end slot, where no experience returns. Freshman Steve Hamilton, along with Will Saunders and Norwood Vann are currently vieing for the position.

Practice sessions continue today, and the Pirates will be on the downtown Evans Mall on Thursday from 11:30 until 1 p.m. for meetings with fans.

Kiffin Has Tough Job Ahead

First Of Series
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State football coach Monte Kiffin burst into the room Tuesday wearing a Lone Ranger hat and mask.

Writers were grouped in the room on the N.C. State campus to gather facts on the first stop of the Atlantic Coast Conference's Operation Football, a writer's tour of the eight ACC schools. Kiffin caught their attention. They laughed and then went back to work. It was unusual — not for Kiffin — because he's that kind of guy.

In his first season as head coach, Kiffin has a tough job, but one he tackles with enthusiasm and laughter because, as he and his players affirm, he's that kind of guy.

He replaces the late Bo Rein who led the Wolfpack to the conference title last season with a 5-1 record, 7-4 overall. But Kiffin has lost all but nine starters from that team, including All-America center Jim Ritcher and quarterback Scott Smith. And, his team is picked by most preseason polls to finish sixth in the league.

So with the gun to his head, what does Kiffin do? He jokes, he laughs and he works himself and his players hard.

"There's got to be some fun in the game," he said. "I work these kids hard and it helps.

"You've got to be yourself and that's who I am."

Kiffin is indeed enthusiastic but he is not about to pick the Wolfpack to win the ACC title. He is quick to remind anyone that no new head coach has won his first game since 1946.

"I think we should be pick eighth," Kiffin said, noting the preseason rankings. "We're light years from the title."

Kiffin was not negative but as he talked about his team and individual players, the key words "good potential" kept cropping up. Just about everyone had "good potential."

A lot of that "good potential" rests on the shoulders of sophomore quarterback Tol Avery.

"I like him; he's a competitor," Kiffin said of Avery.

"He's quiet and reserved but when he's in that huddle I see heads pop up."

Avery's teammates agree the team listens and has confidence in Avery. But Kiffin is just as quick to remind everyone that Avery has a lot of "good potential" but he has never taken a varsity snap from center.

Avery said he has the leadership necessary to run the team and the veer offense. He has the confidence and said he doesn't worry about the pressure.

Kiffin went on to bemoan his potentially good fate by saying the offensive line is young and inexperienced. He added that part of the team will make or break the passing game, which N.C. State may be going to more this year. Kiffin said he would like a 60 percent running and 40 percent passing team.

He hopes to achieve that to keep the other teams off balance.

"Tol can throw the ball but the question is whether we can put together an offensive line that protects him," Kiffin said.

Anchoring that line is junior right tackle Chris Koehn, who is aware of the problems.

"We'll miss Jimmy (Ritcher)," Koehn said. "We're young but we'll just have to be more aggressive — a lot more. We've got the talent, we just need time to gain the experience."

If Avery gets the needed time, he has receivers. Junior Mike Quick is one of the best in the conference with 30 catches for 524 yards last season. Plus ATLANTA (AP) — Defending national champion Alabama, North Carolina and Tennessee-Chattanooga carry the role of favorite into three of the South's Division I conference football races this fall, and Florida State again looms as the area's leading independent.

Alabama, seeking an unprecedented third consecutive national title under Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, must rebuild an offense depleted of nine 1979 starters, but the Tide defense is sturdy enough to produce a ninth Southeastern Conference title in 10 years and figure in the national championship race.

"It will take a miracle to win our third straight national championship, but miracles happen," said Bryant, now only 19 victories shy of erasing Amos Alonzo Stagg's record of 314 career coaching victories.

The Atlantic Coast Conference could enjoy one of its closest races ever, although North Carolina is the pre-season choice. Coach Dick Crum's Tar Heels, who beat Michigan in last year's Gator Bowl game, figure to have strong competition from perennially tough Maryland and Clemson.

Chattanooga, operating under new Coach Bill Oliver, has dominated the Southern Conference since entering the league, winning titles in each of its three seasons of membership. This year should make it four-for-four.

Florida State reeled off 11 straight regular season victories in 1979 before losing an Orange Bowl engagement with Oklahoma. Bobby Bowden's Seminoles appear to have no serious challenge among Southern independents, although South Carolina, Miami, Fla. and Tulane should field above average teams.

FSU lost its quarterback tandem of Wally Woodham and Jimmy Jordan, but returns one of the country's defensive stars in All-American middle guard Ron Simmons.

"Our expectations will be higher after last year's record," said Bowden, who saw his club ranked No. 8 in the final Associated Press poll. "There will be more pressure, but that's the way it's got to be. That's the way I want it. It's like growing old — it ain't so bad when you consider the alternative."

Alabama enters the season with the nation's longest winning streak — 21 games — and the longest string of conference victories in SEC history — 23. The Tide has an imposing 97-11 record for the last nine seasons and a 58-3 mark in conference competition.

Bryant, who has 296 victories in his chase of Stagg's record, can count on a solid defense led by end E.J. Junior, linebacker Thomas Boyd and tackle Byron Braggs. Running backs Major Ogilvie and Billy Jackson are the only returning offensive starters.

If Alabama is to be challenged in the SEC, it likely will come from Tennessee or Georgia. Johnny Majors has no proven quarterback, but the Vols appear to be solid at most other spots. Coach Vince Dooley has one of the league's top quarterbacks at Georgia in Buck Belue and the Bulldogs could offer the greatest challenge to the Tide since the two don't meet this year.

Bryant has his own ideas about the Tide's toughest challenger for SEC honors.

"I figure Auburn is the team to beat," Bryant said. "They may have the best team in the country."

Auburn, led by last year's SEC rushing leader James Brooks, should be strong, but the Tigers are on NCAA probation and are ineligible for the league championship.

There is a trio of exceptional pass receivers in the SEC — Cris Collinsworth of Florida, Mardye McDole of Mississippi State and Lindsay Scott of Georgia. Collinsworth could be one of the most versatile performers in the nation.

Final Trials For Cup Underway

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The final trials for America's Cup defenders are underway, and already it looks like summer reruns on Rhode Island Sound.

Freedom, the dominant yacht of the June and July sailing trials, did it again Tuesday, beating Russell Long's Clipper to open the final series of races leading to the selection of a U.S. defender.

It was the 31st win of the summer for Freedom and skipper Dennis Conner against only two losses. He was to try for 32 today against 1977 cup defender Ted Turner and Courageous.

Meanwhile, France 3, vying with three other yachts to capture the challenger's role, downed England's Lionheart by a large 9:40 margin Tuesday to raise its record to 3-1 in the best-of-seven foreign semifinals.

Lionheart, only a loss away from elimination, asked for a lay day today, leaving only Australia and Sverige to race as the foreign series continues.

Freedom trailed Clipper at the start of the U.S. match, but was in a better position to take advantage of a wind shift, pulled ahead on the first leg and had a 26-second lead at the finish.

Alabama, Tar Heels Favored

The SEC's top quarterback is John Fourcade, who threw for 1,521 yards and seven touchdowns last year. Fourcade is the key reason Mississippi is considered a darkhorse contender.

Jerry Stovall, a Heisman Trophy runnerup during his collegiate days at Louisiana State, is the only new coach in the SEC. He was hired by his alma mater shortly after Bo Rein, who replaced the ousted Charles McClendon, died in an airplane crash while on a recruiting trip.

The ACC also welcomed two new coaches — Bill Curry at Georgia Tech and Monte Kiffin at North Carolina State, which won the league title a year ago under Rein. Curry is a former Tech star, returning to his alma mater to replace the fired, colorful Pepper Rodgers.

Crum has 16 starters back at North Carolina, including Amos Lawrence, who has a chance to become the second college player in history to rush for 1,000 or more yards in four straight seasons. Tony Dorsett accomplished the feat at Pittsburgh.

The Tar Heels' biggest problem will be to replace steady quarterback Matt Kupec.

Maryland figures in the ACC title chase mainly because of Coach Jerry Claiborne, who has built a solid foundation for the Terps, and All-ACC runner Charlie Wysocki, who had 1,140 yards last year.

Danny Ford returns 14 starters at Clemson, which has been a consistent winner in recent seasons. Wake Forest caught everyone's imagination last year, but the Demon Deacons won't surprise anyone this time around as Mackovic welcomes back his all-conference pass-catch tandem of quarterback Jay Venuto and wide receiver Wayne Baumgardner.

Chattanooga will use its potent ground game in quest of another Southern Conference title. Gwain Durden and Mike Smith combined for 1,800 yards in 1979.

The Southern Conference also has a pair of outstanding receivers in Rick Beasley of Appalachian, last year's SC Player of the Year, who had 74 receptions for 1,205 yards, and Western Carolina's Gerald Harp, a 160-pounder who caught 57 for 1,009 yards.

also. On the offensive line only junior guard Keith Waters (5-10, 175) and senior tight end/defensive end Greg Sullivan (6-2, 185) returns. Others expected to start on the offensive line are junior Jeff Rogers (5-10, 190) and seniors Billy Daniels (5-9, 145), Steve Davis (6-3, 200) and Earl Lamb (6-3, 225).

Others expected to see action this season are sophomores Kenny Moore (6-2, 195) and Robert Davenport (6-4, 190).

Last season Jamesville won the conference crown, losing only to Manteo, 25-6, during the regular season. This season, however, Godley does not foresee a similar finish. Instead, he believes Belhaven, along with Manteo, will fight it out for league honors.

"I'd have to say Belhaven will be somewhere up among the top. Everybody played last year for them and they were sophomores and they're all back. They were tough last year and should be again this season," said Godley, whose Bullets defeated Belhaven, 25-0, last year.

"Last year we had our toughest schedule ever. We had experienced people back (from a 4-5-1 team) and were able to win it. This year depth is going to be a problem," Godley said. "We don't have the kind of depth we had last season. We've only got 25 guys out and many are going to be playing both offense and defense and it's hard right now to say how we'll do."

"I can't say what our strengths or weaknesses will be. We're inexperienced in a lot of places and it depends on how well the kids mature."

Atlanta's Niekro Comes Out Of Bullpen For Win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

At the age of 41, Phil Niekro has learned to expect just about anything when he comes to the ballpark.

So after Atlanta used four other pitchers, Niekro wasn't shocked when Braves Manager Bobby Cox waved him in from the bullpen in the 11th inning against the Chicago Cubs Tuesday night.

"I always come to the park ready to pitch," said Niekro, who set the Cubs down on one hit in the top of the 11th and then got the victory when Glenn Hubbard doubled home the winning run in the bottom half of the inning as the Braves beat the Cubs 5-4.

"I broke in as a relief pitcher, so it's nothing new to me," said Niekro, 10-14, who has appeared in 30 games this season and started 28 of them. But his two relief stints have been productive ones — the victory over the Cubs and a save earlier this season.

In other National League games, the Houston Astros beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres 7-4, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Montreal Expos 3-2, the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 and the San Francisco Giants nipped the New York Mets 5-4.

The win was Atlanta's ninth in the last 12 games, and it was the third time Hubbard has delivered the decisive hit.

"The other two times he did it with home runs," said Cox. "He's helped us tremendously, both with his bat and with his glove."

Astros 5, Pirates 2

Art Howe and Cesar Cedeño drove in two runs apiece as the Astros won their fifth in a row to remain one game ahead of Cincinnati and two ahead of Los Angeles in the N.L. West. Despite the loss, Pittsburgh remained two games in front of Montreal and 2½ ahead of Philadelphia in the East.

Astros starter Nolan Ryan struck out seven in 72-3 innings to even his record at 8-8. Joe Sambito finished up for his 12th save.

Ryan, who signed as a free agent for approximately $1 million a year last winter, has been under fire for not living up to his reputation, criticism he feels is unfair.

"I don't think I've pitched that badly," he said. "I've kept us in most of the games I've pitched. Tonight I had to rely somewhat on the fastball, but nobody pitches very long in the major leagues with just one pitch."

Phillies 7, Padres 4

Philadelphia won its sixth in a row and eighth in the last nine games to pull closer to Pittsburgh.

Manny Trillo tied the game 4-4 with a fifth-inning homer, then Garry Maddox and Larry Bowa produced the go-ahead run with consecutive doubles.

The Padres have now lost eight in a row, prompting Manager Jerry Coleman to say, "On a scale of one to 10, I feel minus 10."

Dodgers 3, Expos 2

Los Angeles got its winning run in the ninth inning when Steve Yeager led off with a single, moved to second on a single by Derrell Thomas and scored when Davey Lopes singled past the outstretched glove of shortstop Chris Speier.

"The pressure situation is already there," said Lopes. "You don't have to wait until September, because if you do, it may already be too late."

Reds 4, Cardinals 2

Cincinnati pitcher Mike LaCoss broke an 0-for-36 string at the plate with a run-scoring single in the fourth inning to break a 2-2 tie.

"I can't remember the last hit I had," said LaCoss. Then he added, "It doesn't matter. I'm not paid to hit."

LaCoss, 7-9, scattered seven hits over seven innings before giving way to Doug Bair. Dave Collins and Joe Nolan slammed solo homers for the Reds off Silvio Martinez, 4-7.

Giants 5, Mets 4

Darrell Evans hit his 200th career home run in the sixth inning and drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh as the Giants dealt the Mets their sixth straight loss.

Bob Knepper, 9-14, got the victory. Knepper is 2-10 on the road this season, with both wins coming at New York.

Chambers, MacAfee Cut

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

Wally Chambers and Ken MacAfee were glad the burden had been lifted. The same can't be said for the Detroit Lions, Washington Redskins, Los Angeles Rams and New England Patriots, who were forced to place their burdens somewhere else — the National Football League's reserve and special exemption lists.

Chambers and MacAfee were the most notable players to be cut as the NFL's 28 franchises reduced their rosters to the mandatory — but not always accurate — 60-man limit Tuesday.

You see, there are exceptions for some clubs. Or is that exemptions? You know, the ones that NFL teams can count on, but don't count.

The names are very impressive too. Defensive end Jack Youngblood, linebacker Jim Youngblood and defensive tackle Larry Brooks — all of the Rams — Redskins fullback John Riggins and Lions defensive tackle Bubba Baker, just to name a few.

MacAfee and Chambers are not in that category. They were among the countless players who were told they weren't good enough to play for their respective teams. But they weren't among the surprised ones.

Chambers, the wily defensive end who helped stabilize the line of Tampa Bay, was placed on waivers by the Bucs, who were upset over his tendency for missing practices.

"I have no grudges," said Chambers, who added he knew his days were numbered when he didn't play in the Bucs two preseason games. "I don't feel bad. I leave good friendships. Now I want an opportunity to play somewhere else."

So does MacAfee.

The All-American from Notre Dame, the seventh player taken in the 1978 NFL draft, was waived by the San Francisco 49ers.

"To be perfectly honest, I'm glad it's this early," MacAfee said, adding he will return to dental school at the University of Pennsylvania if he is not claimed.

"They don't have any interest in me anymore, so it's kind of saddening," the tight end added. "But that's something I'll live with. It's not like I'm going to go back and work in a coal mine."

A lot of NFL veterans like the Youngbloods, Riggins, Baker etc., are not going to the coal mines either. But they are also staying away from the NFL pits unless there's more gold, or dollars down there.

And that's something team owners have been avoiding, especially when it means renegotiating a contract.

tight end Al Chandler, who has not reported to camp, on the retired reserve list while the NFL office granted the Redskins a special exemption for Riggins, who left the Redskins camp in salary dispute.

Once a player is taken off the reserve or exemption list, another must be cut from the team's roster. But it does give teams more time to look at rookies and free agents while they settle contract disputes.

Orioles...

Meyer on three pitches. Watson, deprived of a home run in the first inning when his towering fly ball struck a speaker hanging from the roof of the Seattle Kingdome and fell for a double, homered in the fourth to put New York on top 2-1.

Tigers 6, Brewers 2

Richie Hebner's two-run triple sparked a four-run third inning as Detroit, which lost six in a row, snapped Milwaukee's seven-game winning streak. Dan Schatzeder scattered seven hits to break a personal four-game losing streak.

Red Sox 7, A's 5

Tony Perez began a Boston comeback with his 21st home run of the season in the seventh inning and later doubled and scored the tie-breaking run on Carl Yastrzemski's single in the ninth. Perez led off the ninth with his third hit of the game, a double off Craig Minetto. He went to third on a wild pitch as Carlton Fisk walked and Yastrzemski singled him home.

Indians 8, White Sox 5

Mike Hargrove collected four singles and Ron Hassey's two-run single highlighted a four-run first inning that triggered Cleveland over Chicago. Winner Ross Grimsley yielded eight hits in 82-3 innings before needing last-out help from Sid Monge.

Blue Jays 4, Twins 3

Steve Braun's pinch double in the top of the ninth inning gave Toronto the winning run and snapped the Blue Jays' five-game losing streak.

AFC East May Be Decided At Negotiating Table

One of a Series
MIAMI (AP) — This season's American Conference East race may be decided at the negotiating table.

In Miami, will top rusher Larry Csonka and star

Pro Tennis Roundup

ATLANTA (AP) — Second-seeded Eddie Dibbs beat South Africa's Byron Bertram 6-4, 5-7, 7-6 to advance to the second round of the $75,000 Atlanta Open tennis tournament.

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors disposed of Terry Walke 6-2, 6-2 in a $200,000 Association of Tennis Professionals tournament.

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Andrea Jaeger scored an upset and top-seeded Tracy Austin won as expected in the $100,000 Women's Tennis Cup.

Jaeger wore down sixth-seeded Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-4, 6-3, in a second-round match, while Austin scored a straight-set victory over Wendy White 6-2, 6-4.

linebacker Larry Gordon return to the fold in time for the Dolphins' championship defense? In New England, will leading rusher Sam Cunningham, All-Pro safety Mike Haynes and top reserves quarterback Tom Owen and tackle Richard Bishop be back to fill the few holes the Patriots have?

Only their agents know for sure.

And while they're talking about tax brackets and deferred payoffs, the New York Jets behind speedsters Wesley Walker and Lam Jones may sprint to the first championship involving the Jets since Joe Namath, who now plays Li'l Abner in an off Broadway theater, played giant-killer against Don Shula's 1969 Super Bowl Baltimore Colts.

Meanwhile, the young Buffalo Bills, using a shotgun formation on offense, may shoot down some of the contenders, and the Baltimore Colts, if Bert Jones' shoulder is finally healthy, could again become a factor in the race.

This may be a fateful season for Shula, who joined the Dolphins in 1970. His Dolphins contract runs out next spring, and it seems likely he will have several NFL and college jobs to tempt him away from Miami.

If this is to be Shula's last year here, it goes without saying he will want to finish on a winning note. And if there has been one given in this division of variables, it's that Shula always seems to get a little more out of his players than anyone else.

But this Dolphins team has more than his share of question marks. Csonka's bitter contract dispute with owner Joseph Robbie seems irreconcilable, leaving two second-year fullbacks who didn't gain 100 yards between them last season.

Barring a late trade, the Dolphins running game will hinge around Delvin Williams. Williams gained 1,000 yards in his first 10 games as a Dolphin in 1978, but injuries have slowed him since.

He's healthy this year, and Shula says, "We're looking forward to him giving us the kind of year he gave in 1978."

Backing Williams are second-year player Tony Nathan and veteran reserve Gary Davis.

Shula is also undecided about his quarterbacks. Bob Griese, 35, seemed to be past his peak last year, but came back strong in the final three games to lead Miami to the division title.

Don Strock, Griese's backup for seven years, promising third-year pro Guy Benjamin and rookie sensation David Woodley give Shula a surplus quarterback who could be used as trade bait.

The offensive line situation looked bleak after the retirements of center Jim Langer, guards Larry Little and Bob Kuechenberg and tackle Mike Current and injury to tackle Jon Giesler, but Little and Kuechenberg have returned and the Dolphins Tuesday lured former Dallas Cowboy guard Burton Lawless out of retirement.

Their defensive secondary seemed solid until an embarrassing showing in last year's playoff loss to Pittsburgh.

The secondary is also a major problem for the Patriots, nosed out in the final two weeks by Miami last year.

Of the "Slusher Four" represented by agent Howard Slusher, Haynes is the key player. His holdout opened a major hole in the Patriots' secondary.

"We've got to solve our problem in the secondary," said Coach Ron Erhardt. "I look at this as a big play division. Every team has a lot of fast wide receivers."

The Patriots have speedy receivers in Stanley Morgan and Herb Jackson, but their backfield seems unsettled. Cunningham was the leading rusher last year with 563 yards and halfback Horace Ivory, who gained 522 yards, will miss the beginning of the season with a twisted left knee.

Chuck Foreman, the Patriots leading rusher and pass receiver in their first two exhibitions, and rookie Vagas Ferguson will be counted on heavily behind running backs Don Calhoun and Andy Johnson.

Third year pro Matt Cavanaugh has looked good so far this year, but the No. 1 quarterback job still belongs to the inconsistent Steve Grogan.

With passing offenses becoming increasingly potent in the NFL, the Jets lineup of Walker, Jones and Derrick Gaffney at receiver makes them the division dark horse. The running game led the AFC and a consistent season from quarterback Richard Todd could put the Jets over the top.

"I'm not in the prediction business, but we'll have a bonafide better team this season," said Coach Walt Michaels.

"The Jets are coming on like gangbusters," said Shula, whose team has lost the last four meetings with New York.

The Bills, in their third season under Chuck Knox, will still be relegated to a spoiler role because of a lack of depth.

Quarterback Joe Ferguson, who had one of his best seasons last year, will direct a new shotgun formation offense. But the Bills still need help with their running game, which is a far cry from the O.J. Simpson days.

The Colts are counting on rookie Curtis Dickey to add punch to a running game, since new Coach Mike McCormack knows he can't rely on a healthy Jones. The Colts have been 5-11 with Jones on the sidelines most of the last two years.

"I think that almost any team has a built in dependency on its quarterback, and I hope to minimize that by trying to maintain some balance," McCormack said.

Analysts In Failure Find The Roots

By NAOMI KAUFMAN
Associated Press Writer
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Champagne corks pop off with gay abandon — at the wrong time. Ann-Margret falls off a stage swing in Las Vegas and is seriously injured. Ford Motor Co. is charged with reckless homicide in the fiery crash of a Pinto.

Enter Failure Analysis Associates, a company that thrives on misfortune, analyzing why and how and if products fail.

"When there's failure, there's always human error," said Charles Rau Jr., the company's 38-year-old general manager. "No one's going to intentionally make a part that's going to fail."

In the case of Ann-Margret's swing, "It turned out to be an engineering problem. It turned out not to be adequate for holding up pretty ladies."

On the Pinto, Failure Analysis compared the car to others of its size. "The Ford Pinto was no worse than most of the subcompacts. There were some considerably better, but there were many that were worse. Why single them out?" Rau said.

A jury in Indiana acquitted Ford in March. One reason was Ford's argument, based on Failure Analysis work, that the Pinto that burned was like other subcompacts of its day.

The champagne cork matter is still under wraps, but Rau said engineers believe it's also a design problem.

Failure Analysis has been in operation since the early 1960s, first as a consortium of Stanford University professors and later as a company with a staff of 80.

Much of the expansion stems from an explosion in the products liability business. When companies have product problems, they often are targets of lawsuits seeking large awards.

"What they come to us for are specific problems or when they need an independent view," Rau said. "More often than not, we're providing a skill that doesn't exist in the company, even Fortune 500 companies."

"I think we're a pretty practical group of guys, problem solvers, technical sleuths. One man from England called us the pathologists of things inanimate."

Rau, a Stanford Ph.D. in metallurgy, joined the company in 1974 when it had 12 employees and grossed $250,000. Last year, revenues topped $4 million. Rau declined to give the company's profits or how much it charges per case.

"In 1974, we changed from a pick-up team to a more professional full-time organization," Rau said. "It's a high-technology business that we're in."

Although the company started by analyzing failures, its mission has expanded. Companies are becoming more and more concerned about preventing failure, and are bringing in consultants to study their products.

"We started off doing all the post mortems. But as the cost (of failure) goes up and up, companies are spending more and more before accidents occur on failure prevention work," Rau said.

Now, Failure Analysis is working on a computerized system for inspecting railroad tracks. The company has already done extensive studies of derailments.

Company officers are reluctant to talk about specific cases.

"If we find something wrong, we make our client aware of that immediately....We have gone so far as to terminate our involvement with a client if we feel he's not proceeding in good conscience to address any serious problems, something that's a serious risk to people," said Rau.

"We're not going to be a party to allowing a really unacceptable risk to continue," he said, adding such incidents have been rare.

Rau said few companies provide the services of Failure Analysis, although there is some competition, from the Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, in metallurgy, and from the Highway Safety Research Institute in Chapel Hill, N.C., on cars.

Viet Gangs Appear In California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the six young Vietnamese men ate and left without paying, the restaurant owner — also from Vietnam — decided to keep quiet.

But the six returned with clubs and knives, taking $400 from the cash register and hitting a worker over the head with a hammer.

The owner told police he feared gang retaliation, but enough was enough. With his help, four adults and two juveniles were arrested, said Sgt. Bruce Beauchamp of Garden Grove, the suburb where the incident occurred.

"We have not had that many reports of gang activity," he said. "Whether it's because the people in the community are hesitant to talk with us, we're not positive."

Garden Grove is in Orange County, which has an Indo-Chinese population officially estimated at 18,000 and unofficially put at 35,000. Its neighbor to the north, Los Angeles County, has an estimated 110,000 Indo-Chinese residents.

In both counties, police and Vietnamese community members — other Indo-Chinese minorities apparently aren't involved — report gang activity but differ on how serious the problem is.

Although no one claims to know how many gangs there are, all agree on the groups' characteristics: They are composed of single men, 19 to 25 years old, many with training as Vietnamese soldiers.

The gangs wear no uniforms and are loosely organized around older, more sophisticated leaders. They tend more to extorting "protection" money from businesses than gang wars. And rather than claiming a "turf," a gang may draw members from both counties.

The gangs operate where Indo-Chinese-Americans live, chiefly central Orange County from Westminster to Anaheim. In Los Angeles, the gangs frequent Chinatown, where Vietnamese of ethnic Chinese descent sometimes fight with Chinese gangs.

The gangs dislike publicity and have threatened those who talk to reporters about them. But several Vietnamese who asked not to be quoted by name said they feared losing effectiveness with gang members rather than retaliation.

The gangs' names are descriptive, including the Luns, "short" in Vietnamese, made up of members who are short in stature; and the Frogmen, whose members are reputedly former Vietnamese Army underwater demolition experts.

"They are not well-organized," said Joe Marcel of the Indochina Social Service Project in Los Angeles. "They have been dumped in a different culture suddenly."

"Those who are used to living with violence in the war, they feel depressed, they think 'It's too difficult for me, I don't want to adjust.'"

Marcel, a Vietnamese who adopted a French name while living in Paris, said gang members are motivated by loneliness and depression. He noted traditional Vietnamese girls don't date, and finding other women can be difficult because the Vietnamese are short, often have language problems and lack status because they are refugees.

He and police agree the Vietnamese gangs cause trouble only for fellow refugees, not others who couldn't understand their limited English and who would likely call police.

Gang members rarely become as violent as in the restaurant incident, except for an occasional "demonstration" to show they mean business, Marcel said.

But Detective Joe Bryan of Anaheim said he has heard of retaliatory beatings. And on one occasion, he said, violence was averted only because police were sent to a party after they learned rival gangs would attend.

Bryan said some gangs reportedly take thousands of dollars from families anxious to bring relatives from Southeast Asia. The gangs later report their efforts failed, although they spent the money; in reality, they never made any effort at all.

'Great American Duck Race' Closed To Russians

By PAUL STEVENS
Associated Press Writer
DEMING, N.M. (AP) — President Carter is invited, but Russian ducks are banned. Realtor Steve Marlowe calls himself the Chief Quacker. And a 69-year-old woman has her sights set on becoming Duck Queen, where the contestant's waddle is as important as her looks.

Residents of Deming have gone quackers over the Great American Duck Race, to be held in the Courthouse Park — renamed Duck Downs for the event — Aug. 23-24.

And their daffiness is contagious, evidenced by interest from New York to Los Angeles and from Boston to Mexico.

"I think people are grabbing at the first diversion that comes along." But there will be excitement as well as novelty, said Marlowe, whose tongue has been planted firmly in cheek since announcement of the "World's Richest Duck Race" was made several weeks ago.

"We expect a world record to be set," he said, noting that the present mark for racing ducks is 2.7 seconds over a 16-foot course.

Whether it's the uniqueness or excitement of the event, or whether the 100-degree weather has gotten to the heads of residents of this community of 12,000 in southwestern New Mexico, there is one thing for certain. Deming has lined up behind its duck races.

Fifty-five sponsors, mostly businesses, have each paid $100 in sponsor fees to cash in on the mania. A woman from Albuquerque even sponsored

A beautician's shop is offering a free duck tail haircut to any race committee member who will wear it on racing day. The city's newspaper, the Deming Headlight, has run front-page stories on the event, with such headlines as "Duck Dash 'Billed' Richest." And radio station KOTS proclaimed Deming home of the world's richest duck race.

Contestants already are lined up for the Duck Queen contest, to be held the night before the racing championship, and for such awards as Best Dressed Duck.

The interest spread quickly when news of the race was carried nationwide by newspapers and broadcast stations.

A Los Angeles-area radio station sponsored a "Name Our Racing Duck" contest and said it would send a feathered entrant to Deming. A yacht club in San Carlos, Mexico, will send a duck contingent — if it can clear customs.

Marlowe explained to listeners on an all-night talk show in Boston about how to train ducks, how to run a duck race and where exactly Deming, New Mexico, is.

"We had someone call us from Port Arthur, Texas, saying they were having trouble training their ducks," Marlowe said. "They said, 'Every time we try to put a saddle on them, it just squashes them.'"

Part of the fun is taking a jab at neighbors in Ruidoso, where the All American Futurity — billed the world's richest horse race with a total purse of $1.28 million — is run each Labor Day.

Noting that the Great American Duck Race's inaugural purse of $1,000 falls short of Ruidoso's, Harold Cousland, editor of the Deming Headlight, said: "We'll catch up next year."

An appointments secretary to President Carter wrote to say he was certain Carter would be busy that weekend even though, Marlowe noted, Russian ducks have been banned from the competition unless Soviet troops had been pulled out of Afghanistan by Aug. 18, the deadline for registration.

Police Uncovered Few Clues In Case Of Missing Heiress

By SANDRA BALMER
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) —
Expensive racehorses that never earned their keep and some poorly forged checks are among the clues perplexing investigators assigned to solve the $21 million puzzle of why heiress Helen Vorhees Brach vanished.

Mrs. Brach's attorney, John Menk, says the three-year-old trail is "as cold as yesterday's pancakes," but her brother believes there's still hope of finding out what happened and wants a judge to hire a private investigator to look for her.

Unless the mystery is CLAIM PROVOCATIONS BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Vietnam News Agency claims that Thai aircraft, boats and armed bandits have launched a "series of provocations" against Laos.

solved, her estate, estimated at $21 million, will remain in limbo for four more years. Under state law, missing people are not declared legally dead until seven years after their disappearances and their estates cannot be distributed until then.

Mrs. Brach, who is 62 if she is still alive, was a Miami Beach club hostess when she married Frank Brach of the Brach Candy Co. He died in 1970 at the age of 80, and she lived quietly afterward on a seven-acre estate in Glenview, north of Chicago.

On Feb. 17, 1977, Mrs. Brach left the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where she had a routine check-up and bought a few trifles at a specialty shop. A clerk at the store is the last person who remembers seeing her, other than her long-time houseman, John Matlick.

Matlick said she caught a flight back to Chicago that day and he picked her up at the airport. He said she stayed at home for the next four days and then he drove her to the airport for a trip to Florida. He said that was the last time he saw her.

Police said Mrs. Brach had no reservation on a Florida-bound plane that day and never boarded one.

Matlick cashed seven checks worth $15,000 written on Mrs. Brach's account on Feb. 17 and 18. He said they were compensation for household expenses. Police said the checks were forged and the signature didn't even resemble Mrs. Brach's. No charges were filed.

Matlick later cited his Fifth Amendment right not to incriminate himself in refusing to answer questions about the incident.

Police investigators said they also examined ties between Mrs. Brach and two horsemen, Richard Bailey and his brother, Paul Bailey. Mrs. Brach dated Richard, and Paul sold her $300,000 worth of racehorses that lost about $120,000 in their first year of running.

Investigators found that a strange investment for Mrs. Brach, who, they said, lived conservatively except for a penchant for riding in a lavender Rolls-Royce or a pink Cadillac.

Richard Bailey also invoked the Fifth Amendment in questioning and Paul Bailey dropped out of sight and has never been questioned although efforts to find him have continued, police said last week.

Mrs. Brach's brother, Charles Vorhees, of Hopedale, Ohio, petitioned Circuit Court last week to renew efforts to find his sister. He wants the court to take money from the estate to hire a private investigator and to offer a $250,000 reward for information.

Police remain perplexed. To one detective assigned to the case, it is as if Mrs. Brach "disappeared off the face of the earth."

Some players are so enchanted with falsecarding that they constantly try to deceive the enemy. They should learn that an ill-conceived lie can be more revealing than the truth.

When this hand was played recently at a duplicate tournament, three no trump by South was the popular contract. Note North's decision to jump to game at his second turn. He was not interested in slam and saw no reason why the hand should be played in diamonds, so he did not waste his time with a jump to three diamonds—that might serve only to lead partner astray.

At one table where we watched, declarer exhibited fine technique. He won the opening lead of the queen of hearts with the king, crossed to dummy with the ace of diamonds and led a low club from the table. Had East carelessly played low, declarer would have scooted for home with nine tricks. But East was aware that declarer was trying to steal a trick, so he rose with the ace of clubs. Now, he had to decide whether to continue hearts—obviously the correct thing to do if partner's suit were headed by the ace-queen-jack—or shift to spades. With nothing to guide him, he elected to continue hearts and declarer was home with three overtricks.

We watched this hand at another table, where declarer attempted a bit of skulduggery, fooling no one by winning the opening lead with the ace of hearts, and then slyly running the eight of clubs.

East won the ace and he could now count nine tricks for declarer—South had to have the king of hearts, for East would not have led the queen from a sequence headed by the king. Thus, the only hope to defeat the contract was to try for four spade tricks. At trick three East brilliantly shifted to the jack of spades! Whether declarer covered or ducked, the defenders were bound to score four spade tricks to defeat the game.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUG. 21, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning hours are ideal for accomplishing much in career matters. Maintain a cheerful manner and be more thoughtful of others. A good opportunity now to express your skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Getting an early start is the best way to make the most of this day since good influences are now operating.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Obtain the data you need that will help you keep promises you have made. The evening can be a very happy one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come to a better understanding with an associate and make the future brighter for both of you. Avoid extravagance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans to have greater income in the days ahead. Cooperate more with co-workers and improve relations.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use your intuition in handling a financial matter and get excellent results. This can be a particularly fine day for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve conditions at home and have more harmony there. The planets are most favorable for getting ahead now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy communicating with others and get excellent results. Strive to be more efficient in your work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have to be especially careful in the handling of finances today to avoid losses. Take no chances with your reputation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to plan wisely so that you can realize your personal aims. Handle problems in a practical way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make confidential plans to gain a cherished aim, be it personal or in business. Strive to be more prosperous.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Seek the company of friends who can do the most for you now and in the future. Handle business matters wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take extra time to put your business affairs in better order. Adopt a more logical outlook on life and be more practical.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be born with a love of life, freedom and justice, but must be taught early that this can only be achieved through obeying rules and regulations that are wise, so give a good education and success is bound to follow.

Sutherland To Be Featured

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Donald Sutherland has signed to star in "Passage," a Canadian motion picture due to go into production in September.

Richard Pearce will direct from a script by James Salter. Sutherland will play a man caught in the moral and emotional questions involving heart surgery and artificial organs.

'Airplane' New Box Office Hit

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the fourth consecutive week, Paramount's summer box office smash "Airplane" was the nation's No. 1 film, according to Daily Variety.

The low-budget farce grossed $46.2 million in its first 47 days of domestic release and is showing signs of similar success overseas.

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fall TV season will arrive on time, after all. You'll just have to switch channels to find it. The Public Broadcasting Service, its programs unaffected by the actors' strike, will march forward with its 1980-81 season according to plan.

It is clear that the three major commercial networks won't be able to begin their season until October, and only then if the strike is settled this week. But at PBS, fall programs are already in the can.

Anyway, because public TV gets its shows from small independent producers and through overseas acquisitions, PBS isn't affected by the Screen Actors Guild-AFTRA troubles that have shut down the big studios and snarled the plans of ABC, CBS and NBC.

Public TV, an increasingly popular alternative to network television in normal years, should grow fat this season. Well, not fat. Healthier.

PBS picked up more viewers again last year, the first year of the plan under which most PBS stations agreed to carry network prime time programs from Sunday to Wednesday. This enhanced national advertising and promotion efforts, and, presumably, accounts for some of the increase in viewership.

Also, public TV continues to broaden its appeal. "Mystery" was a popular addition last season, and PBS has what figures to be the best television offering of the new season on any network, the dramatization of John LeCarre spy novel, "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy."

While ABC, CBS and NBC are broadcasting reruns and freak shows, PBS will offer this fall schedule:

SUNDAYS: beginning Sept. 28 "Cosmos," Carl Sagan's window on the universe. Sagan, the Cornell astronomer, author "Dragons of Eden" and "Tonight Show" favorite, hosts 13 hour-long episodes of this new series.

And on Mondays, "Great Performances" begins its new seasons with "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy," a miniseries the commercial

Ellen Burstyn Film Is Ready

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ellen Burstyn plays a woman who receives a gift for natural healing after an accident in "Resurrection."

Daniel Petrie directed the movie, which will have its premiere at the 5th annual Festival of Festivals in Toronto, Sept. 4-13.

networks would love to have. Sir Alec Guinness stars. "Life on the Mississippi" follows "Tinker" on "Great Performances."

On Nov. 10, in a special presentation of "The Shakespeare Plays," Derek Jacoby plays "Hamlet" in a 3½-hour presentation.

TUESDAYS: "Nova" returns, followed by a 13-week series called "Body in Question," hosted by Jonathon Miller, who will explore the mysteries and evolution of the human body.

WEDNESDAYS: Specials night this season with a Charles Schulz special and something called "Nuclear Nightmare," hosted by Peter Ustinov, among the programs scheduled.

THURSDAYS: New programming here. "Up and Coming" sounds like a sort of public TV version of "The Jeffersons." It's about a black family with teenagers trying to adjust to their upwardly mobile existence. "From Jump Street," a music series, follows, and then the Chicago-based movie criticism show, "Sneak Previews."

FRIDAYS: On Sept. 12 Bill Moyers checks in with his "Campaign Journal," a nine-part series that figures to provide the most insightful analyses of the election you'll find on the tube this fall.

SATURDAYS: "The Vikings," chronicling the voyages of the Norsemen in 10 half-hour episodes: "Numero Uno," another new series, about top athletes from various sports and places; and "Matinees at the Bijou," a 16 week series featuring cliffhanger serials that played in the movie theaters in the '40s.

The non-prime time PBS standards will be back, including "Cavett," "Wall Street Week," "Over Easy" and the kids' stuff, "Sesame Street," "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood" and the rest.

So, there will be a new TV season after all. If viewers can make that giant leap over old habit, and actually try some of the public TV fare, the delayed start of the commercial networks, season might be easier to endure.

It might not be missed at all.

Visiting Lecturer Is Appointed

Mary Jean Eckerle has been appointed visiting lecturer at the School of Music, East Carolina University for the 1980-81 academic year. An active performer, she has presented solo and ensemble recitals throughout the Midwest. Ms. Eckerle has been teaching at the University of Michigan for the past five years.

Mary Jean Eckerle
At ECU, she will be an instructor of piano and in charge of the piano pedagogy program.
Ms. Eckerle earned the bachelor of music degree at Butler University, Indianapolis, and the masters degree at Northwestern University. In 1975 she was elected to Pi Kappa Lambda, national scholastic and music honorary society.
Her responsibilities at ECU will include specialized course offerings in teaching approaches, technique analysis, and review of beginning, intermediate and advanced literature. A major part of her work will be curriculum for a supervised teacher-training program.
Junior and senior pedagogy majors at ECU will have an opportunity for on-the-job experience under the program headed by Ms. Eckerle. Also, student teachers will work with children from the local area of ages 8-11 who have had no prior training in piano. Following an initial interview with Ms. Eckerle, these young students will be given one private and one class lesson per week.
Ms. Eckerle will be conducting auditions for this program on August 26 and 27 at the School of Music. She will meet with both parent and child. Interested persons should phone 756-1209 or 757-6851 to arrange for an interview time.

Loan To Boost Mineral Output

WASHINGTON (AP) — The World Bank has loaned Mexico $40 million to increase its mineral industry.
Mexico is already the world's largest producer of silver, fluorspar and graphite, and exports considerable quantities of lead, zinc, mercury and sulphur. However, much of the country has not been prospected and many areas potentially rich in minerals remain to be developed.

MAULTSBY REUNION

The descendants of the late Rev. T.S. and Mrs. Clementine Maultsby will hold a reunion this weekend. There will be a cook-out Saturday at 3 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Laura Humphrey, 102 Davis St. Sunday at 11 a.m. the family will attend worship service at York Memorial AME Zion Church. After the service there will be a program and dinner at the Ramada Inn at 2 p.m.
Hosting the reunion will be Mrs. Maggie Woodard, Mrs. Laura Humphrey, Vernon Dawson, Mrs. Martha J. Dawson.

Blind Piano Technician Cares For 160 Keyboards

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

If doing what you love and loving what you do is any measure of success, Donald Wigent has truly succeeded.

He's East Carolina University's highly skilled piano technician, responsible for the care and maintenance of 160 keyboards. He tunes, regulates and repairs the instruments, and has even completely rebuilt one concert grand.

There are only two fulltime piano technicians employed by the state (the other is at the School of the Arts in Winston-Salem), so Don Wigent is something of a rarity. He's also one of a small number of piano technicians in the nation who is blind.

Visual impairment does not hinder Wigent in his work; he moves easily through the halls of ECU's A.J. Fletcher Music Center locating the 75 grand pianos, numerous studio pianos and the harpsichord he cares for.

He can quickly lay hands on the right key, tuning wrench or screwdriver in his large workshop, and under a piano's lid, he's efficient, painstaking and completely in control.

"I began studying piano technology at the Michigan School for the blind at the age of 13. After two years I knew I never wanted to do anything else," he says. "I still love it."

Wigent came to ECU in 1978 from his native Detroit, leaving behind a thriving business as an independent piano technician.

"I came here to change my location and lifestyle. I was really tired of riding buses three or four hours every working day."

"Detroit has a high crime rate, but I was never personally bothered on the street," he recalls. "I'm sure I talked to muggers and street walkers while asking for directions, but there was never any problem."

"In fact, I found that people in poor neighborhoods were usually more polite and gave me more consideration than passerby in wealthy Grosse Pointe districts."

Unhelpful people he encountered in prosperous neighborhoods were probably "busy or preoccupied" rather than malicious, he adds. He did learn early that "material possessions" and comfortable surroundings "do not automatically make a better person," a fact to which many sighted persons are blind.

"Blind people want others to communicate openly, with spoken words. Most sighted people rely a good deal on gestures and body language to get their meaning across. All that is lost on us. To break the ice with a blind person, speak up!

"We also have to ask others to overlook any unkempt appearance in our dress or hair," he chuckled.

"People here on campus are very nice; in fact, at first they were almost TOO nice. Everything was all sweetness and sugar when I began this job, and it took the most part of a year to get others to treat me as an ordinary co-worker on an equal basis."

"You know you're accepted on your own merits when you finally get the negative feedback as well as the positive."

Wigent works closely with the nine-member keyboard faculty who instruct ECU's approximately 400 music students.

I'm pleased with the musicians I work with. They tell me what's wrong with an instrument and I take care of it. They don't tell me how to do it. I would say that 99 percent of the time they're satisfied with my work; they respect me and I appreciate that respect."

Wigent's career has included close ties with performing artists. In Detroit, he was sometimes employed to tune pianos used in Detroit Symphony concerts, and he has worked with visiting pianists at ECU — Ruth Slenczynska, Claude

Piano Technician....

Frank, Vistor Borge and others. Preparing a piano concert can take hours of exacting, detailed adjustments.

"Artists are generally very nice to work with; the sensitive ego or high-strung temperament does not come into their relationship with the piano technician. After all, a performer recognizes that my role is important to the performance."

"Some noted pianists are difficult to please, but I try to meet their standards. Like the performer, I also am interested in the final result—the sound."

Wigent emphasizes that two qualities are essential for success in finely tuning a piano: careful training of the ear "to distinguish individual notes in intervals and harmonics," and an acute natural sense of hearing. Wigent himself can hear the ticking of a wristwatch several feet away.

"Perfect pitch" is an interesting talent, but not really necessary," he says.

Besides his duties at ECU, Wigent is often called upon to work on pianos in schools, churches and private homes.

"There are a good many people tuning pianos, but I would say that there are only a half dozen within a 50-mile radius of Greenville who are really competent," he says. "Here and in Detroit, I have come across pianos that have not been properly tuned in 30 years."

"Sometimes people will tell me on the phone that their old piano needs work, but that it's probably no good. A lot of times it is. Other times it turns out that the piano really is a wreck—the sounding board is cracked, the pin block is split or separating, the action is thoroughly worn from top to bottom—in these cases it's not economically feasible to repair it.

"Only a professional can really evaluate the situation accurately; guesswork by the customer is almost always wrong."

Working in a background of constant musical sound coming from ECU's many studios and rehearsal halls is no hardship for Wigent; it was an early enthusiasm for music as well as technical ability that drew him to the field of piano technology. For relaxation, he sits at a newly-tuned piano and plays mellow arrangements of such popular songs as "Tenderly" and "Michele."

Wigent and his wife Carol are the parents of three sons, who like their father combine musical talent with interest in technical fields—an 11-year-old who plays clarinet and wants to design planes, and eight-year-old drummer who wants to be a naturalist and a seven-year-old violinist who is "interested in guns."

Greenville has been a pleasant place to live and rear children, Wigent believes, and ECU has been a good place to work.

His positive feelings about his work are shared by his colleagues. "We consider ourselves fortunate to have our own piano technician here," says Dr. Charles Stevens, a pianist and acting dean of the ECU School of Music. "We're especially fortunate to have someone as skilled in this work as Don."

FIRST CHARGED—Police escort two of eight Thais on trial in Kuala Treagganu, Malaysia on charges of having robbed Vietnamese refugees in the South China Sea last April. U.N. officials said this is the first case where people are being charged for such offenses although thousands of such incidents had taken place since the refugee outflow began in 1975. Jack Ford Joins Building-Buyers

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After two years as a weekly newspaper publisher, Jack Ford has joined a group buying a downtown San Diego building for $300,000.

The two-story building will be renovated in a tourist-oriented Gaslamp District. Ford's partners include George J. Gorton, with whom he owned the Del Mar News Press

SMART MONEY COUPONS

Save 60¢ on Pampers new 90-diaper Convenience Pack for newborns.

We put Pampers® Newborns in a new Convenience Pack of 90. Because no mother wants to run short of Pampers. Only Pampers is quilted. And that quilted lining helps keep wetness away from your baby's skin.

So, buy Pampers Newborns in the Convenience Pack with this coupon. That way you can keep some dryness close at hand for your baby and keep 60¢ for yourself.

If your baby is too big for Pampers Newborns, you can get Pampers Toddlers or Extra Absorbent Daytimes in the Convenience Pack with this coupon.
