School Merger Goal Put On Active List

BY JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Members of the Greenville City Board of Education voted unanimously at its action meeting Monday night on a motion made by Steven (Jack) Wall that will place the Pitt County-Greenville City Schools merger back on the active list of issues.

position be presented to the joint Pitt-Greenville Merger Committee as soon as possible. The proposal to move ahead with a merger plan does not imply a consensus of approval for merger on the part of city school board members - it does, however, indicate a unanimous agreement that the time has come to move along with study and consideration of a merger plan. The formation of a plan by the committee of the two boards is the next step following the receipt of a merger study made in Raleigh. The study, dated July 1980, has been prepared by the Division of School Planning, N. C. Department of Public Instruction. The study was conducted by Dr. Lacy M. Pressnell, Jr., director of the Division of School Planning, and was coordinated by Dr. Charles H. Weaver, educational consultant of that division. Some of the findings in the 31 page report cited by board members as having special significance include these factors listed in the concluding section of the state merger study: - "Despite the apparent fairness of funding by the county commissioners, the Greenville City System is in financial difficulty. This school system is faced with a need for additional funds. There are basically two reasons which effect this conclusion: - "A declining membership. - "A desire on the part of the Greenville Board of Education to maintain present program and service levels. - "Should there be no mitigation of these circumstances, it will be increasingly more expensive and less efficient to operate the Greenville City Schools. Whether or not the people of the City of Greenville are likely to accept a deterioration in their schools is a key question and one that must be carefully examined. It is apparent that a severe debilitation of the quality of the Greenville Schools, over a period of time, will affect all of Pitt County." Another factor cited by school board members is the decline in student membership in Greenville City Schools projected in the state's merger study, which states: "Unlike Pitt County, Greenville City will decline in membership by 1984-85. The current membership for the city schools (1979-80 school year) is 5,099 pupils. It is projected to decline to 4,724 by 1984-85. This is a significant decline of 375 pupils, or 7.58 percent, in approximately five years. "The city system cannot sustain its identity if such losses continue." Dr. Jon Tinglestad agreed in the prediction of the projected drop in student membership in the next few years. "It's obvious there will be growth in a Greenville metropolitan area but one that will occur outside the current Greenville City School district," Tinglestad commented. Polish Strikers Determined Threaten General Strike

By SUSANNE SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
GDANSK, Poland (AP) - Striking Polish workers, still adamant in their demands, resumed negotiations with the communist government today and raised the threat of a "catastrophic" nationwide general strike if they are not given free trade unions. The threat came just hours after the workers won yet another concession, forcing the government to restore telephone links between the strike area on the Baltic coast and the rest of Poland. Strike leaders said that concession might soften their position on some items, but they remained firm in demanding trade unions independent of government control.

listened as Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Jagielski sought to limit talks to economic issues, leaving out the political items. The talks were broadcast by loudspeaker. But strike leader Lech Walesa insisted that the discussion center on the demand for free unions, saying if that problem were solved, "then the others will not be so difficult" and some could be dropped. Walesa told the strikers who occupied the Gdansk shipyards Aug. 14: "We are not waiting for small achievements but for big ones. We stay here for five years if need be." In other developments, state-controlled Szczecin Radio reported the strike situation at that western port was "beginning to be worse," and residents were growing weary. It said street cleaners joined the strike. Sources in Gdansk said the strike had now closed 480 enterprises, up from about 400 on Monday. Some estimated the number of strikers doubled to 300,000. Up to 200,000 more workers may be idled because of the lack of public transportation. In Moscow, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman declared today that Soviet-Polish relations remained "good," and said the "events" taking place in Poland are an internal affair. Polish-born Pope John Paul II, in a message celebrating a Polish feast day, assured his fellow Poles he was near them "in spirit and prayer," the Vatican said. Without direct mention of the strikes, the pope said the church needed strength "particularly in the present moment... for the good of the entire nation and the strengthening of its life in peace and justice." Meanwhile, the government-controlled Central Council of Trade Unions began meeting in Warsaw, and informed sources said trade union boss Jan Szydlok, already fired from the Politburo, was certain to be stripped of his union job amid possible sweeping changes in the trade union structure. The sources, who requested anonymity, said they believed the 40-member presidium of the Trade Union Council would be sharply curtailed and include many new members considered more acceptable by the strikers. Negotiations in Gdansk recessed at mid-day today so both sides could further define what they meant by a "free trade union," and were set to resume later in the day. Talks resumed after the government, which at first refused to restore communications from Gdansk, bowed to pressure from the strikers. Calls were placed successfully to Warsaw shortly after the concession was granted. Sources suspect the strikers needed the telephones to coordinate with other strike committees in Szczecin, to the west on the East German border, and in Elblag, east of Gdansk near the Soviet Union. The strike began when meat prices rose after the government's decided to abandon subsidies July 1.

Officers Retained By ECU Trustees

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
East Carolina University's Board of Trustees yesterday voted to suspend their rules and re-elected the board's officers for a third term. Trustees voted to retain Troy Pate of Goldsboro, as chairman, Ashley Futrell of Washington, as vice-chairman, and Mrs. Mebane Burgwyn of Jackson, as secretary, after Dr. Andrew Best of Greenville, saying the university is, "near the end of a transition period... a milestone year," which will see the first class of the four-year School of Medicine graduate, moved to "waive the rules," and allow the officers to serve an additional year. Vice-chancellor Dr. Robert H. Maier reported that the school is, "headed for another all-time high enrollment," with 13,300 to 13,500 students expected to be enrolled at ECU this year. He told the board that, one of the reasons, is, "the institution is more attractive to students... retaining students." He added that 81 new faculty members are on the staff this year, including 26 more in the School of Medicine. Dr. William Laupus, dean of the medical school said with the admission of the fourth class of medical students, the school now has 150 candidates for the MD degree. He added that the teaching faculty includes 138 full time and seven part-time members, as well as 177 part-time clinical faculty members. Dr. Elmer Meyer, vice-chancellor for student life reported that this year, there are 5,582 permanent housing spaces on campus for students, as well as 147 temporary beds. In addition to the staff reports presented at the meeting, new members of the administration were introduced to the board. They included: Dean of the College of Arts and Science Angelo Volpe, Dean of the School of Education Richard Warner, Dean of the School of Home Economics Eugenia Zallen, Athletic Director Ken Karr, acting Dean of the School of Music Charles Stevens, chairman of the Department of Psychology Rosina Lao, and director of Computing and Informational Services Glenn Crow.

Anderson Enlists A Running-Mate

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
John B. Anderson, the unhappy Republican, has signed on an equally disenchanted Democrat as a running mate, but he still may be left a lonely bystander when it comes to the presidential debates of 1980. Anderson capped days of speculation by naming former Gov. Patrick J. Lucey of Wisconsin to the No. 2 spot on his independent ticket Monday. Lucey, once President Carter's ambassador to Mexico and then a campaign leader for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, declared that he remains a dedicated Democrat, but "Jimmy Carter has no chance at all" to win this fall. Kennedy, after meeting the president at the White House, saw things differently. He said Carter's odds are "increasingly better every day," and he publicly embraced the administration's economic policy, once the target of his severest criticism, as having been improved to the point that he views it as "a step forward."

In Los Angeles, Republican nominee Ronald Reagan and running mate George Bush took pains to clarify their policy toward China and Taiwan, insisting that the flap over their contradictory remarks in recent days resulted more from semantics than substance. Reagan, moreover, charged that Carter, not him, had been hypocritical on the issue. But Reagan and Carter appeared headed toward a meeting of minds on at least one score, namely that of restricting any White House debates to themselves. The president has made it clear all along he would prefer to meet Reagan alone, and Carter campaigners say they are eager for as many as six debates. Reagan said Monday he would prefer just two debates, one on foreign policy and the other on domestic issues. But, in any case, both sides confirmed they planned to discuss today the possibility of one-to-one confrontations, possibly outside the proposed format planned by the League of Women Voters. The league wants three debates, starting Sept. 18 in Baltimore.

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834. Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

NO. 63 FEEDBACK

The No. 63 jar lid item published last week created considerable interest. Use of these smaller-than-regular lids is a means to the recycling of many 63 millimeter (two and three-eighth inch) diameter-mouthed jars like peanut butter and coffee jars by using them for home canning.

Hotline has since learned that the Bernardin Company still makes the No. 63 lids. We talked to a representative of Beacon Food Brokers in Raleigh who said he has tried to sell the No. 63 Bernardin lids to wholesalers in this area, but has had little success. He said customers should request them, so the stores will request them from their suppliers.

Several readers called to say they have small supplies of Ball 63 lids on hand, too, so they may still be made by that company. One reader said she'd give the requester all the lids and rings she had on hand at the time.

However, the most directly helpful information came from Mrs. Rose Wallace. She sent a clipping from this month's "Carolina Country Magazine," published by the Tideland Electric Membership Corporation. Gardner's Kitchen of Farmington, Conn. sells 10 dozen No. 63 lids for $6, including handling; two dozen ring sets for $3.75 postpaid. The ordering address is Gardner's Kitchen, Dept. NC, Box 412, Farmington, Conn. 06032.

WITNESSES SOUGHT

Hotline has been asked to appeal to the man and several children who saw a wreck involving a jeep in front of the Buccaneer movie house Saturday about 9 p.m. The man is believed to be from the Farnville area. He is asked to call Billy C. Ellis at 756-3504, or Sgt. Cleary at the Greenville Police Department.

N.C. Revenue Topped July Of Last Year

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The state's net general fund collections for July totaled $209.1 million, up 10.95 percent over last July, state Revenue Secretary Mark G. Lynch said today. Last July's general fund collections amounted to $188.5 million. Figures released today by the Department of Revenue showed that net highway fund collections for July were down slightly, with $29.5 million collected this year compared to $29.6 million last July. Gasoline-tax receipts dropped 3.3 percent, from $26.1 million last July to $25.2 million this July. Lynch called the July figures "relatively meaningless." "This is the first month of the new fiscal year, and one month by itself... doesn't really reflect the situation relating to the economy," he said. Revenue figures showed that sales-tax collections dropped slightly, down to $58,118,178 million from last July's $58,122,675. Lynch blamed the sales-tax decrease on fewer sales of new cars and lumber and building materials. "Your new car sales are down 16.9 percent, and lumber and building materials are down 10 percent," he said. "If you could eliminate those two items, sales-tax collections would be up 5.6 percent." On another matter, Lynch said checks totaling $39,602,584.68, representing net collections of intangibles tax for fiscal 1980, had been mailed to 458 municipalities and all 100 counties in the state. Lynch said the amount was up 5 percent over last year. One county and one municipality received checks in excess of $2 million. Mecklenburg County received $2,618,690.87, while Charlotte got $2,043,393.40. Under the state's Intangible Personal Property Tax Law, money on deposits at banks, accounts receivable, notes, bonds and shares of stock are taxable. Net collections of intangibles tax are distributed annually to counties and municipalities which levy a property tax.

1,000 Rides On Roller Coaster

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) - Internal Revenue Service computer operator Carl Eichelman has only himself to blame for his recent ups and downs. Eichelman, 40, on Monday reached a goal he had set for himself earlier this year - to take 1,000 rides this summer on "The Beast" roller coaster at Kings Island Amusement Park. The Cincinnati resident says he now has taken 1,533 trips on the coaster since the ride opened to the public last year. Eichelman figures he's traveled 2,295 miles on "The Beast," about the distance from Cincinnati to Seattle. He also traveled some 5,000 miles this summer to ride 55 coasters in more than a score of amusement parks. His 1,000 rides on "The Beast," cost Eichelman $34.95 - the cost of a season's pass.

All Four On Line

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - For the first time in history, Virginia Electric & Power Co. has all four of its nuclear units in operation. Vepco said North Anna Unit 2, which received an operating license from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission last Thursday, began supplying electricity to the Vepco system at 5:47 a.m. Monday. "This is truly a milestone for Vepco and its customers. Without diligent efforts by our many employees, North Anna 2 could never have been the first nuclear unit licensed since Three Mile Island," said Jack H. Ferguson, Vepco executive vice president for power. Vepco said North Anna 2 will be tested at a gradual pace during the next two months as it escalates to full power. The testing period will include several brief shutdowns. The unit is expected to achieve consistent full power operation in November, Vepco said.

Bathers Ignore Beach Warning

KITTY HAWK, N.C. (AP) - Treacherous riptides sucked away along North Carolina's upper coastline again Monday as authorities pressed their effort to keep bathers away from the dangerous water. Similar tides Sunday were blamed for the confirmed deaths of three persons and the presumed death of another man. A fifth man, missing since Saturday, also was presumed dead. Nags Head Police Chief Charles Dail said the surf still was extremely dangerous Monday, although the wind - spawned by Hurricane Charley early in the weekend - had subsided slightly. School Board.....

Shank commented "I cannot see, after this report, how anyone could vote against merger."

The possibility of merger of the two systems is an issue that has long been discussed unofficially by members of both boards. It became an active topic in 1978, and on February 5, 1979, Pitt County commissioners decreed that the two school boards would appoint a committee to pursue the issue.

Board members Monday night concurred with Dr. Tingelstad's statement that "it is imperative that the merger study be shared with administrators, teachers and the public."

Superintendent Glenn Cox said that the study will be made available at all schools for interested persons to read.

On the matter of a letter dated August 8 from D. D. Garrett and Jesse Harris, charging that "The performance of the Greenville Schools in educating our children in most of the Greenville schools has been appalling." Cox told the board that he is setting up a session to talk with Garrett, Harris and others on this charge, and that he will share his response to the charge with the school board. (Garrett is president of the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP, and Harris is chairman of the Committee of Education for the branch).

Mrs. Terry Shank opted for having the response made to Garrett and Harris at an action meeting of the board.

Referring to the current suit in Asheville over payment of overtime parking fees to Asheville city instead of county schools, one to date upheld by the Court of Appeals which has ruled that constitutional provision requires money collected from this source be paid to the county school fund, Dr. Tingelstad made a motion that the school attorney look into the status of such funds in Greenville and Pitt County. The motion, approved unanimously by the board, stipulates that it be determined if parking penalty funds are indeed being paid to the Pitt County School fund, and if not, that the school board petition for such use of these funds.

In a summary prepared by Linda Tingle, supervisor of the Greenville City Schools Food Services, the Food Service division is beginning the new school year with a total of $107,784.68 in cash balance and inventory. The ending cash balance for the past school year amounts to $92,440.42, and the total inventory of goods on hand is $15,344.26.

Cox noted this is an encouraging picture, and reflects both a growing participation in the number of students eating meals at school and outstanding managing of the service by Ms. Tingle.

In a discussion of bus transportation problems noted on Monday, the opening day of school, Bob Stewart, director of Buildings and Grounds, noted that state law provides for standees up to 25 percent of students riding buses. Concern has been expressed by a number of parents that some riders have to stand. Stewart said that a certain confusion always exists on the first day, but that the situation improves once school is underway for a few days. Cox noted that bus routes are monitored and steps will be made to relieve any excessive overloading that might develop in the early days of school.

Chase Manhattan Raises Prime Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank today raised its prime rate by a quarter percentage point to 11.5 percent — one week after it led the rest of the banking industry in a jump to 11.25 percent.

Although Chase offered no comment on its move, analysts viewed the rate boost as an effort to offset its rising cost of funds. That higher cost was underscored Monday when Treasury bills rose to their highest levels since April.

The prime — the rate banks charge on short-term loans to their most creditworthy corporate borrowers — had stabilized at about 11 percent earlier this month. But when open-market interest rates swung upward, banks responded by boosting their lending charges.

Last Tuesday, Chase raised its prime by a quarter percentage point to 11.25 percent and three days later the rest of the banking industry followed.

Wall Street analysts had said they expected the prime to rise as high as 11.5 percent if open-market rates continued to climb.

On Monday the government reported that its auction of 26-week Treasury bills produced an average discount rate of 10.25 percent, up from 9.765 percent a week ago. That is the highest rate since April 28 when it hit 10.79 percent.

That rate is important to banks because it helps determine the rate they may pay on the popular six-month money-market certificates. The rates on those certificates, sold in minimum amounts of $10,000, will rise to 10.5 percent on Thursday.

The prime rate does not apply to consumer loans, but is considered a key barometer of trends in all kinds of interest rates. When the prime changes, other rates often follow in the same direction.

The prime peaked at 20 percent in early April before falling sharply.

Guilty Plea In Heroin Traffic

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Former Clemmons banker Odell Wilson pleaded guilty in U.S. Middle District Court on Monday to one of three charges that he and former Raleigh attorney

John D. McConnell Jr. transported money generated by heroin trafficking.

Wilson, 41, a former Northwestern Bank officer, and McConnell were charged in a three-count federal indictment June 23.

Under a plea bargaining agreement, Wilson pleaded guilty to a charge that he and McConnell traveled from New Jersey to Raleigh to Advance to distribute money raised from a heroin-smuggling ring run by Leslie T. "Ike" Atkinson. The other two charges were dropped.

Atkinson, a former Air Force sergeant, is now in federal prison.

The government agreed to recommend that, if Wilson is given an active sentence, it should be no more than one year. If Wilson's sentence is suspended and he is put on probation, the attorney's office says it will recommend a probation period of one year.

U.S. District Judge Hiram Ward will hear evidence in the case Sept. 5 and decide whether to accept the plea-bargaining arrangement. Government attorneys say that, on the same day, McConnell is expected to enter a plea on related charges.

McConnell's attorney filed a motion to dismiss charges against the disbarred lawyer in July, saying that McConnell already had been punished for the same crime twice. That motion probably will not be heard if McConnell pleads guilty under a plea-bargaining agreement similar to that of Wilson.

McConnell already has served two prison sentences for perjury in his testimony about Atkinson and for being an accessory after the fact in heroin possession.

In his motion for dismissal, McConnell claims that he was granted immunity from prosecution by a New York prosecutor in 1977. The U.S. district attorney's office said, however, that the immunity agreement was never binding on North Carolina prosecutors.

The charges against Wilson and McConnell carry sentences of five years in prison, $10,000 fine or both.

THE CAUSE OF PROBLEM — Greenville Fire-Rescue Department Capt. J. B. Meeks carries smoldering draperies from McMillan's Cafeteria at Pitt Plaza after fire units were called to the scene at 8:01 a.m. today when smoke was reported in the building. Department officers said drapes at the front of the cafeteria caught fire causing minor damage to the front of the business and light smoke damage. Firefighters used exhaust fans to clear the smoke from the cafeteria and from the adjacent Radio Shack, and deodorized the cafeteria so lunch could be served today. There was no structural damage to the building officials, who said the cause of the fire is under investigation, reported.

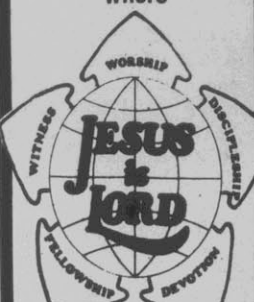

Mormon Leader Is Hospitalized

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — N. Eldon Tanner, an 82-year-old leader of the Mormon Church, has been hospitalized for treatment of weakness and dizziness.

Tanner, who has Parkinson's disease, was reported in good condition at an area hospital Monday. Church spokesman Jerry Cahill said it was not known whether Tanner's illness was related to the disease.

Tanner is first counselor in the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Courtesies Mark Best Neighbors

DEAR ABBY: Just a word to SLEEPY-TIME GAL, and all the others who complain about neighbors who mow their lawns in the early hours of the morning:

I mow mine from 6 a.m. to 8 a.m. — before the sun comes out. With the temperature 100 degrees during the day, I have no apologies for mowing my lawn during the coolest hours.

If SLEEPY-TIME GAL wants to mow my lawn for me when she gets up and the sun is scorching, I'll be happy to work out a deal.

HOT IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR HOT: If you can't work out a deal with your neighbor, read on for a suggestion from an Arlington, Va., reader:

DEAR ABBY: Poor SLEEPY-TIME GAL. She has our sympathy. We had the same problem a few years ago. However, it was solved when you mentioned it in a column titled, "Ten Nays for Neighbors." We clipped it and showed it to our neighbors, and I must say it did a lot for our good-neighbor relations.

We had to get it photostated because so many of our friends wanted copies, including a guard at the White House in Washington, D.C.!

I'm enclosing a copy with the request that you kindly print it again.

ARLINGTON READER

DEAR READER: Consider it done.

TEN NAYS FOR GOOD NEIGHBORS

- 1) Thou shalt love thy neighbor, but not his wife, nor shalt thou covet thy neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owneth.
- 2) Thou shalt keep thy dog, and thy stereo, and thy lawnmower quiet while thy neighbor sleepeth.
- 3) Thou shalt borrow from thy neighbor rarely, and when thou doest, returneth undamaged and without delay that which thou hast borrowed.
- 4) Thou shalt not alloweth thy pets nor thy children to run amok, despoiling thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.
- 5) Thou shalt keepeth thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway uncluttered even as ye shall also keep thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.
- 6) Thou shalt watcheth always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guard thy neighbor's home and his property even as thy own.
- 7) Thou shalt not useeth thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.
- 8) Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need, even as he does for thee.
- 9) Thou shalt not parketh thy camper, nor thy RV, nor thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createth a safety hazard to all.
- 10) Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that lasteth until wee hours unless thou shalt inviteth thy neighbor too.

COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY AUX., SPOKANE, WASH.

DEAR ROSEMARY: Your request is reasonable and could benefit many. Consider it done.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl who lost my virginity when I was 12. I have had a venereal disease three times. The last time it cost me my right to bear children because I had to have a hysterectomy.

The guys will tell you there is nothing wrong with them, then you find out too late there was. I suppose some guys don't even know they have a disease, but any guy who goes from girl to girl should know that he is taking a big chance.

I just wish I could tell every girl who goes to bed with a guy how foolish she is to take the chances I took. There would be a lot more virgins. I wish my mother would have listened to me when I started asking questions about sex. I was 10 years old and already interested in guys, but my mother said I should be ashamed of myself for even thinking about such things!

I sent for your booklet "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know," and gave it to my kid sister, who is 11. She read it and we discussed it, and she thanked me over and over again. If I had had something like that to read when I was her age, it would have changed my whole life.

Thanks for writing it, Abby, and keep up the good work.
LEARNED TOO LATE IN L.A.

DEAR LEARNED: I appreciate your letter. The response from those who have received my booklet has been gratifying. All parents want to protect their children from V.D. and unwanted pregnancy, but few know how to tell them what they need to know. That's why I wrote the booklet.

BUTCHER BLOCK

Butcher block wooden work surfaces can take a lot of rough treatment, but try to avoid saturating them with water which causes warping. To clean a butcher block, NCSU extension home economics specialists suggest wiping it clean quickly with lukewarm water or mild suds. Dry it. Reseason by pouring boiled linseed oil over wood surfaces and rubbing it with fine steel wool.

Freedom May Come

One never knows when a shot is being fired that will be heard around the world — and it is possible that shot has been fired in Poland.

There workers by the thousands have shut down industry and commerce, demanding better living conditions. Perhaps even more important they are demanding more freedoms — of press, independent labor unions, and political reforms.

Those who are participating are well aware of the dangers. Their own government can crack down cruelly; or Soviet troops can roll in, take over the country and Poland would have less freedom than ever.

Those things are possible, but consider that Russia is concerned about its image, particularly with third world peoples.

Even now Soviet troops are bogged down in a second rate war in Afganistan trying to crush a rebellion for freedom there. The Soviets can't afford too many fronts, nor can they stand the pressure of world opinion as they use military force against their neighboring countries. That is a sure way of scaring the nations of the Middle East, Africa, South America and the Orient to Western protection.

It would be unrealistic to assume that the Soviet empire is collapsing, although we firmly believe it will someday. Communism has given too many false hopes for it to be otherwise. It is possible that the spark has been struck that will bring freedom to eastern bloc nations. We cannot overemphasize the bravery of these Polish workers.

Democrats Are Making Up

Much was made of Sen. Ted Kennedy's brief appearance with President Carter on the platform at the conclusion of the Democratic National Convention. If there was any coolness then, Sen. Kennedy made it clear in Boston that he fully supported the president in his re-election bid.

Kennedy greeted Carter warmly in Boston last week and promised to put his "shoulder to the wheel" in the campaign effort.

Later in Detroit the senator offered a strong endorsement of Carter.

There is undoubtedly to be a spirited campaign between now and November, but it seems clear that the Democrats won't be fighting each other.

Unlamented Anniversary

WASHINGTON — A few days ago an unremarkable anniversary went widely unobserved: Two years have now passed since Congress sent out to the states the proposed "D.C. Amendment" to the Constitution. They have been two years of conspicuous ennui.

The amendment, to refresh your recollection, would treat the District of Columbia "as though it were a state" for certain purposes. Residents of Washington would be entitled to vote for two members of the United States Senate and one member of the House. When future constitutional amendments came along, the city would be treated "as though it were a state" for purposes of ratification.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, an opponent of the amendment, has summed up the arguments in its favor. Writing in the Fordham Urban Law Journal, he stated the proponents' case:

"It is a matter of fundamental justice to deny the right of representation in Congress to people who must pay the taxes imposed by Congress, abide by the laws promulgated by Congress, and fight the wars engaged in by Congress. Compounding this injustice is the fact that a high percentage of the District of Columbia residents are members of a racial minority that, for so many years, has been denied political and civil rights in other respects."

That is a fair sales pitch for the proposition. Almost no one has bought it. Three states ratified in 1978: New Jersey, Michigan and Ohio. Four more ratified in 1979: Massachusetts, Minnesota, Connecticut and Wisconsin. Two states have ratified this year: Hawaii and Maryland. That's the crop — nine states, far short of the 38 required to write this amendment into the Constitution.

That is only part of the story. In four states — Idaho, New Mexico, South Dakota and Nebraska — the legislatures have not merely voted the amendment down; they have pointedly adopted resolutions of positive disapproval. The California Senate three times has given it the brush-off. A dozen other states have let the proposition die in committee. Virginia is "studying" it. South Carolina has postponed action "indefinitely."

Proponents of the amendment, viewing the bleak prospects, have cried "racism." The charge is baseless. Objections to this regrettable proposition are in part political, which is nothing unusual, and in part constitutional.

Politically, the effect of the amendment would be to give the city of Washington two Democratic liberals in the U.S. Senate. That projection derives from such facts of record as the District's vote for McGovern in 1972, and from the seven-to-one registration of Democrats over Republicans. It is understandable that such a prospect scarcely gladdens the hearts of Republicans anywhere. In a closely divided chamber of 100 members, two votes carry disproportionate weight.

'Fail-Safe' For Reagan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The return of the high-flying Reagan campaign to reality was imposed less by the rapid change in the polls following saturation coverage of the Democratic National Convention than by Ronald Reagan's inexplicable turning back to the Vietnam War as "a noble cause."

What is stunning about that self-inflicted wound was the Republican nominee's insistence on rewriting those words back into his Veterans of Foreign Wars text. They had been excised by one key adviser, encouraged by others, who ran a red pencil neatly through an early speech draft hoping to stop this resurrection of one of the most emotional and controversial chapters in American history.

Who did clear the final draft of Reagan's Aug. 18 Chicago speech, headlined on page one of the Atlanta Constitution: "Vietnam was 'noble cause,' Reagan says?" The answer: Reagan himself.

"I was appalled," one Reagan operative told us. In Reagan's political headquarters in Alexandria the day after the speech another search was on to define and execute a "fail-safe" process that will lower future risk to an irreducible minimum. Reagan's irresistible urge, in the words of one intimate, "to tell it like he feels" was the major strategic problem on the desks of Bill Timmons, Reagan's national political director, and campaign consultant Stuart Spencer.

Clearly needed, as so often in the past, is a tough political strategist to say "no" to Reagan when his self-destructive urge gets out of hand. That could be Spencer — or it could be Jim Baker, a rising influence in the Reagan camp.

Reagan's intellectual honesty in decrying what he called the "feelings of guilt" over Vietnam is not in question. It is widely shared, and not only by Reagan's partisans. In the Southern states, where President Carter faces a stiff challenge from Reagan, there is particularly strong and patriotic support for his statement that the U.S. effort in Vietnam to turn back "aggressors bent on imperialistic conquests" was indeed a "noble cause."

But the great majority of those voters need no reminder of where he stands. They know. For many others, however, the reversion to Vietnam reopens old wounds beginning to heal. It was a sledge-hammer reminder of old anxieties about Ronald Reagan.

The "noble cause" sentiment that came from Reagan's soul illustrates a potentially-dangerous insensitivity on his part: inability to understand the automatic and highly-emotional reactions of these other voters. Without that sensitivity, his own political-alarm system failed to sound urgent warning bells.

Even if a "fail-safe" mechanism for Reagan is found by his advisers, it will be hard to plug in to Reagan's off-the-cuff comments and in the hurly-burly of press conferences where he lacks a written text. Press secretary Lyn Nofziger had that in mind when he told Republican state chairmen in St. Charles, Ill., Aug. 12: "Don't ask for press conferences when we come to your state, or set any up."

Nofziger, a tough-minded former newsman himself, laid it on the line: Press conferences are campaign weapons that should be sparingly scheduled not to please the press but to benefit the campaign; they are not for the press to ask questions "willy-nilly" but to move the campaign in the direction Reagan and his strategists want.

Controlling Reagan's weakness for self-inflicted wounds in off-the-cuff replies to press conference questions, in other words, is to be attempted by curtailing his meetings with the press, an old and hoary tactic in the campaign bag of many previous presidential candidates. It may or may not work. Newsmen will battle for more access.

What can and must be made to work for Reagan, however, is a "fail-safe" mechanism to take the boomerang out of prepared speeches.

Fuel Crisis Plans

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Tar Heel motorists would face a series of ever-tighter restrictions on travel in the event of a future shortage of gasoline in North Carolina.

A proposed emergency energy conservation plan is currently in the works which would, in certain instances, banish free parking and require employers to charge their workers; require schools and businesses to implement a shorter week; impose a ban on use of a vehicle one day each week for all citizens; and require large companies to restrict their employees from coming to work in individual vehicles.

"We've learned in recent years that gasoline supplies can be an up and down proposition. If those supplies should go back down, having this plan on the shelf will help the state better handle that situation," says Jim Gibson, director of the State Energy Division.

North Carolina is among the first in the nation to develop what it considers a comprehensive energy plan for use in emergency situations.

Maybe? But even this plan goes out of its way to point to currently stabilized fuel costs, over-production by oil companies, and the glut of gasoline on the market as signs that there is at least some breathing room from the threat of shortages. What is certain, the plan maintains, is that the situation is "highly uncertain", and even though the remainder of 1980 is "currently thought to be under control, plans to deal with shortages now may forestall the possibility of having to face an emergency in 1981 or later." A series of public hearings on the state plan will be held in September, with the public comments added and the plan submitted to the U.S. Department of Energy. "To

The plan calls for all current pre-emergency conservation measures to remain in effect; then outlines three stages of worsening shortage and appropriate responses.

Stage One is termed a mild shortage characterized by scattered local shortages and occasional lines at the gas pumps.

The immediate response would be increased enforcement of the statewide 55-miles-per-hour speed limit through more intensive police control and using State Patrol troopers on overtime.

Additional measures are suggested, but are left on a voluntary basis in that Stage One period: subsidized or free parking provided by employers and businesses

Other Editors Say The Low Road

(The Raleigh Times)
The prospect that this year's gubernatorial campaign will take the low road rather than the high is still strong although Governor Hunt has clamped the lid on the more sensitive portion of the "Lowdown on Lake" portfolio compiled by his campaign manager.

In a letter to Hunt workers, campaign chief Joseph W. Grimsley offered information his staff has compiled on I. Beverly Lake Jr.'s 1974 divorce, on his legislative and voting record and on racist statements made by his father when he ran for the Democratic nomination in 1960 against Terry Sanford and in 1964 against Dan Moore and Richardson Preyer.

Reacting to the news item carried in The News and Observer's Dome column, Hunt promptly said nothing would be released on Lake's domestic affairs. "This is a personal matter and not an issue in the campaign," Hunt said.

One would think that at this point in the campaign Hunt would indeed hesitate to resort to this sort of tactic. But there can be many a slip between now and November when the Hunt people might for some unaccountable reason find themselves with a barn-burner on their hands.

Undoubtedly Grimsley, knowing the reputation of Lake supporters for tough infighting in past campaigns was not above fighting fire with fire. As he said, "forewarned is forearmed". And he followed through with the proper political gesture by saying in out-of-character sanctimony, that although Hunt had read the Lake file, he is above the battle and will campaign only on the issues.

Now Governor Hunt says he had no knowledge whatsoever of the information gathered on Lake's divorce. And he has ordered that this information not be made available to anyone.

The public has to view this scenario with some skepticism. They know that most politicians do whatever is necessary — at least within the law — to win elections. Not many Tar Heel gubernatorial campaigns have been void of mud-slinging and name-calling. If history holds, the Lake people won't be throwing cream-puffs this fall.

It is hard to draw the line on what is and what is not fair play in politics. Divorce is a common occurrence these days. There may be nothing that would make Lake's exceptional. But if there is and it is the sort of thing that would affect the voters' faith in him, the public is entitled to know it.

Strength For Today

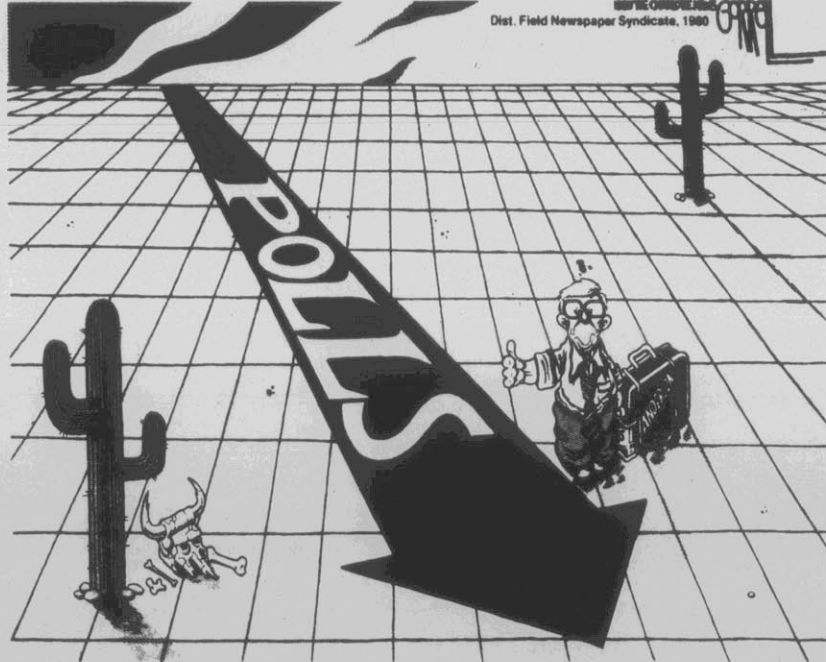

HEAVEN HAS ITS MEASURING RODS

The more you have the more you get. This is a principle of business strategy, but curiously enough it is also a Christian teaching. "For unto everyone that hath shall be given...but from him that hath not shall be taken away, even that which he hath."

But there is another quotation from the Bible which balances this teaching and completes it. This second teaching might be called the principle of gain by surrender. It declares that we never get anything without giving up something, and that we never get the deepest things in life until we are willing to give up life itself.

Get, and you will get more — effort is usually rewarded. But in our getting we should seek the highest things. These are not found within the circle of self but within the broader circle of society. The secret of such success is surrender to the will of God. God gauges our lives not by what we try to get but by what we are willing, in complete unselfishness, to surrender. — Elisha Douglass

Price Index 'Imperfect Guide'

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Early this year, when the consumer price index was showing inflation at a near-record annual rate of 18 percent, government officials complained that things weren't really that bad, that the figure was exaggerated by a distorted system.

Now, with the index showing no overall change in consumer prices in July despite sharply higher food costs, economists say things aren't really that good, that inflation is still rampant.

The recent behavior of the index underscores why it is an imperfect gauge of inflation, mainly because of the way it measures home-financing costs. The index exaggerated inflation in the January-through-April period when home mortgage interest rates were rising. A decline in mortgage rates led to exaggeration in the other direction in July, the first month in 13 years that the index was unchanged.

As long as the index continues to slow, demands by congressional Democrats for prompt revisions to make the system more accurate are likely to ease.

However, the imperfections are recognized as important and there is an on-going effort to resolve them in the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The CPI is a monthly survey of price changes for a fixed list of retail goods and services and has been the nation's official measurement of inflation for 60 years. But it is more than just another statistical report. Wages and benefits of more than 90 million Americans and the spending of billions of dollars by the federal government are linked to changes in the index. There are estimates that each 1 percent increase in the index translates to $1 billion to $2 billion more in government spending.

Specifically, the index is used to: —Calculate cost-of-living raises for 9 million union and non-union workers. —Trigger cost-of-living increases for 35.1 million

Social Security recipients and 3 million retired federal and military personnel.

—Adjust benefits for 16 million food stamp recipients and 28 million children and elderly recipients of meal subsidies.

There are two CPI categories. The most common one is the Index for All Urban Consumers, which tries to cover price changes of goods used by approximately 80 percent of the civilian population including food, clothing, shelter, fuels, transportation, doctors' and dentists' fees, and drugs.

It does not take into account income taxes, and thus is not considered a true measure of the cost of living. Price information is collected in 85 urban areas from 24,000 establishments, such as grocery and department stores, hospitals and service stations. Information also is obtained from about 18,000 tenants and 18,000 housing units.

Prices of food, fuels and a few other items are obtained monthly. Prices of some other commodities and services are collected every other month in some areas.

The information is adjusted to account for seasonal variations.

In calculating the index, price changes for various items are averaged together according to a formula that represents their importance to consumers. For example, food and beverage prices account for 18 percent of the index, while all housing costs account for 45 percent.

Price changes are measured against a reference year, 1967, beginning with an index number of 100. The July index number of 247.8 meant that goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $247.80 last month.

Periodic revisions are made in the index to account for changes in consumer buying habits and for new goods and services.

The current problem is in the measurement of home financing. It calculates the cost of home ownership as if the purchase price and all interest costs were paid entirely in the year the house was bought. Several options to try to improve on this are now under study by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Senators Get Briefing On Billy Carter, Libya

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigating senators say intelligence information indicates Libya tried to gain influence in the United States, but they refuse to say if it shows the radical Arab government tried to use President Carter's brother Billy for that purpose.

The senators said after a five-hour, closed briefing Monday that U.S. intelligence shows nothing about Billy Carter's interest in C-130 cargo planes for Libya, but they gave no other details on what they learned about the president's brother.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of the special Senate committee investigating Billy Carter's ties with Libya, said the briefing was given by the Senate Intelligence Committee staff on the basis of all relevant U.S. intelligence information.

Billy Carter told the Bayh panel last week that he did nothing to try to influence policy for Libya and took no special interest in the C-130 cargo planes. He said he asked for a White House briefing on the cargo planes because he had read stories about them in newspapers, but he insisted he did nothing with the information.

Libya has paid for the U.S. planes, but the Carter administration refuses to release them because of a law prohibiting U.S. arms sales to nations that support international terrorism.

"Billy's involvement with C-130s was not a subject of the intelligence information," Bayh said. "The intelligence dealt with the Libyan effort to try to gain influence in this country and steps that they took to try to accomplish that goal."

Both Bayh and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the committee's ranking Republican, said some of the intelligence dealt with Billy Carter.

But they refused to say what steps Libya has taken to try to gain U.S. influence and aside from the comment on the C-130s, they refused to specify what they learned about the Billy Carter connection.

Thurmond said he believed what the panel learned was "important to the investigation" and Bayh said it was "very relevant to what we're doing."

Although Bayh and Thurmond refused to specify, some things U.S. intelligence learned about the Billy Carter affair are already known.

Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti has said he saw a U.S. intelligence report that Libya intended to pay the president's brother.

The Justice Department forced Billy Carter to register as a foreign agent after concluding he was paid $220,000 for promoting the North African nation's image in the United States.

Billy Carter denied working for the Libyan government and said the money was a loan.

Seven Arrested In Philadelphia Melee

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Seven people were arrested and eight officers were injured as hundreds of people protesting a police officer's shooting of a black teen-ager pelted a police station and a fire truck with rocks and bottles, officials say.

The violence erupted late Monday as 500 people marched on the police station in protest of the death of 17-year-old William Green.

City Managing Director W. Wilson Goode, a black, tried to address the crowd but was driven into the station by flying rocks and bottles, police said. Many of the station's windows were broken during the disturbance, police said, and a number of police cars were damaged along with the fire truck.

Seven police officers and a firefighter were injured before the crowd dispersed three hours after the incident began, according to police spokesman Don Fair. He said seven people, including one juvenile, were arrested on charges of riot and simple and aggravated assault.

The demonstration was called to protest the Sunday shooting of Green by Officer John Ziegler, a 17-year veteran of the department.

Green was shot after a stolen car he was driving crashed into a tree during a police chase, officials said. Police have said Ziegler's gun went off accidentally as he used it to strike the youth. Ziegler has been assigned to a desk job pending the outcome of a police investigation of the shooting.

County Tax Notices Going Out

An estimated 47,500 tax notices will be mailed to Pitt County property owners Friday, according to tax collector Bill Smith.

Smith said the taxes are due September 1, and early payment is urged, although taxpayers will not face a penalty for late payment until December 31.

According to the tax official, who said the Tax Collector's office has moved from its former location in the Court House annex to the offices formerly occupied by the Sheriff's Department in the original Court House building, tax collectors this year will be using on-line computer terminals to credit payments.

In view of that fact, Smith urged that taxpayers bring or mail their tax notices with their payment to insure more efficient service and handling.

Mental Health Board Meets

The Pitt County Area Mental Health Board met Wednesday and heard an update on transitional services and on transportation for mental retardation and partial hospitalization clients.

Reports were given by Board Chairman Allen Hahn, Area Director Dr. Stephen Creech and Nancy Middleton, center coordinator of Consultation, Education and Prevention Services.

The Mental Health Board meets the third Wednesday of each month at 4 p. m. at the center. Meetings are open to the public.

Equality Day Is Proclaimed

Mayor Don McGlohn has proclaimed today as Women's Equality Day in Greenville.

The proclamation recognizes the 60th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment guaranteeing women the right to vote.

The Greenville Chapter of the National Organization for Women held a walk-a-thon Saturday to reconize Women's Equality Day and raise funds to support passage of the ERA.

The 16 walkers covered a nine-mile course through Greenville. Lil Simmons, NOW president, said the group expects to raise more than $500 when all pledges are received.

Local residents participating in the walk included Danielle Behler, Roberta Fountain, Liz Whalen, Rick Whalen, Sherry Hall, Ms. Simmons, Susan Jones, Frances Garrett, Carol Cox, Jimmie Snifin, Marjie Worthington, Edith Webber, Freddie Sommers, Nan Cheek, Georgette Hedrick and Mariam House.

Eagle Award Given Scout

Broughton Goodson of Greenville was honored Sunday at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church with the presentation of the Eagle Scout Award.

Goodson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Goodson, is a senior at Rose High School. He is a member of the Order of the Arrow and has received the God and Country Award, the Historic Trails Award, and the 50-miler canoeing award. He was a Boys' State delegate, a member for two years of the staff of Camp Bonner, and an attendee of the National Boy Scout Jamboree in 1977. His Eagle project was making flares.

tions transcend partisanship. As Senator Hatch observed, the amendment would create a "hybrid entity," unknown to our constitutional structure. The District of Columbia would not be a state; it would remain subject to the exclusive legislative authority of Congress "in all cases whatsoever." It would be a kind of quasi-state, with the city's 13-member City Council functioning as a kind of state legislature. The prospect undermines the bedrock principle of federalism entrenched in the 10th Amendment. The whole idea of treating a city "as though it were a state" is quite simply a bad idea.

Yes, the charge of injustice sticks. Residents of Washington are indeed denied a fundamental right of citizenship — the right of representation in Congress. But the solution lies not with this misguided amendment, but with an act of Congress ceding most of the District back to Maryland whence it came. Such an act would convert the disfranchised Washingtonians into citizens of Maryland, with all the civil rights pertaining thereto. Or Congress, by statute, could admit the District to the Union as a full-fledged state. But the D.C. Amendment, as two years have demonstrated, is never going to fly.

BIGFOOT — The legend of Bigfoot has baffled many people and now again, a footprint measuring 17 3/4 inches long and 7 1/2 inches wide was discovered Sunday at a residence in the Conemaugh Township area of Johnstown, Pa. A very well defined print was left behind (if indeed it was Bigfoot), plus a left print was found eight feet away in a more wooded area. Along with the footprints, reports of strange noises and a very unusual but strong odor went with the account of the episode. (AP Laserphoto)

Cannot Affirm Sasquatch Hoax

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Authorities here are wondering if Sasquatch has forsaken his home in the Pacific Northwest for a summer retreat in rural Pennsylvania.

"If someone did this to play a practical joke, they did one fine job. It's beyond my understanding," said Kenneth Williamson, chief of police in Conemaugh Township, after a large footprint and a partial print were found Sunday near the home of the James Young family.

Sasquatch, also known as Bigfoot, is said to be a shy, hairy humanoid that stands between 7- and 7 1/2-foot high and weighs some 300 pounds. Williamson said the print measured 17 3/4 inches long by 7 1/2 inches wide and left a 3/4-inch depression behind the Youngs' home.

Early Saturday and again Sunday, the family's four dogs began barking, and both times the family reported hearing strange sounds and smelling a foul odor, Williamson said.

Police made a plaster cast of the print. Ronald Pavic, a police officer from nearby East Conemaugh who had investigated a purported Bigfoot visit three years ago, said the print was similar to the previous one, Williamson said.

"What got us was that right behind the big toe on the ball of the foot appears to be a callus," Williamson added. "I'm not going to say this is a hoax, and I'm not going to say it's real. I have to be convinced."

Two Injured In Collision

Two persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car collision on the Stantonsburg Road, east of the Allen Road intersection, yesterday afternoon.

Highway Patrolman Wayne Taylor identified the drivers of the cars involved as Jessie Franklin Murphy of Route 2, Farmville and Joyce Tyson of Route 1, Greenville.

Trooper Taylor said the Murphy car ran into the rear of the Tyson car as it slowed to turn into a driveway.

Murphy was in serious condition in Pitt Memorial Hospital's intensive care unit this morning, while Ms. Tyson was treated for her injuries and released.

Damage to the vehicles was estimated by the officer at $4,000 to the Murphy car and $200 to the Tyson auto.

Farmville's Prices Stronger

FARMVILLE — Prices yesterday on the Farmville Tobacco Market were much stronger than on the previous sale day. Top price was $1.66 per pound. A few sheets of quality cutters and lugs sold for $1.69 per pound. Several sheets sold for as much as 50 cents above support price. Lugs and cutters accounted for most of the volume. Stabilization receipts were the smallest of the season, only 1.47 percent of the gross sale.

The market sold 802,508 pounds for $1,262,073 for an average of $157.27 per hundred, the highest average on record. To date, the market has sold 10,189,473 for $14,264,609 an average of $140 per hundred pounds. Yesterday's average was $9 per hundred pounds more than last years on the same sale date.

At this stage, too, those who operate vehicle inspection stations would begin telling their customers to get cars tuned, watch tire pressure, use better lubricants, and keep front wheels properly aligned in order to get better gas mileage.

Finally, the push would be on to take a variety of measures which state traffic engineers suggest would save a lot of gas, such as using yield signs rather than stop signs; remove mid-block pedestrian crossings; remove unneeded traffic signals; use flashing signals during times when traffic volume is low; and remove needless restrictions against right turns on red.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices climbed today as the spring-summer rally reasserted itself despite rising interest rates. Several banks raised their prime lending rates to 11.5 percent and rates on Treasury bills reached their highest levels in four months.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 4.69 to 960.92 in the first two hours of trading, with advances out-numbering declines by a 7-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

Major banks had been expected to push up the prime rate - the rate on loans to the most credit-worthy corporate borrowers - in the wake of rising interest rates in the bond market. On Monday, the Treasury auction produced a rate of 10.25 percent on 26-week Treasury bills, the highest rate since April.

After peaking at 20 percent earlier this year, the prime fell as low as 10.75 percent at a few banks in late July, but has since been moving up. Chase Manhattan Bank was the first bank to go from 11.25 percent to 11.5 percent, a rate that was matched by a number of other banks during the day.

Texasco rose 3/4 to 38 3/8 after announcing an oil find in the North Sea. Other oils were also strong, with Standard of California rising 1/4 to 77 and Getty up 1 to 82 3/4.

Afghans Say Thousands Of Communists Killed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Moslem rebel forces in Afghanistan claim to have killed more than 3,600 Afghan government supporters in the past two months.

A source from the Afghan capital of Kabul who has proved accurate in the past reported in New Delhi Monday that the rebels said they had been killing 30-35 Afghan Communist Party members a day in three provinces north of Kabul - Kunduz, Takhar and Baghlan - for a total of more than 1,800 in the two-month period.

More than 1,800 others had been killed elsewhere in Afghanistan over the same period, the source quoted the rebels as saying.

According to the source: - Political assassinations are continuing in Kabul at a rate of about 10 a night. The victims are members of both wings of the Afghan Communist Party, the dominant but small Parcham group led by President Babrak Karmal and the opposition Khalq faction.

- Soviet troops took anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons away from Afghan army forces, apparently because of the many defections.

- Defections by Afghan troops reduced the army's strength to about 30,000 men,

Specialist Says U.S. Military 'Too Weak'

WASHINGTON (AP) -

America's military strength is under fresh criticism, with a new report that says U.S. forces aren't strong enough to meet the nation's widespread commitments.

The author of the report sent to Congress on Monday was John M. Collins, a senior specialist in defense at the Library of Congress.

Collins' report was the latest in a series of criticisms of the U.S. military. Detractors have said U.S. strength vis-a-vis the Soviet Union has dropped in recent years and the Carter administration defense policies have been widely criticized by Republicans.

Collins noted that Carter's administration asked Congress not to spend money on new ships because it lacks people to staff the fleet it has. "That was a damning indictment of the all-volunteer force," Collins said.

There aren't enough U.S. troops to take care of even one "extensive contingency" without either reducing strength in the United States or uncovering commitments elsewhere, or both, Collins claimed.

His report puts total U.S. active military personnel at 2,067,000 in 1979, down 1,075,000 since 1970, and Soviet military personnel at 4,832,000, up 326,000 in the same period.

Collins also said U.S. weapons are losing ground. He predicted that "the technological balance will do a flip-flop if present trends persist, placing the Soviets as far in the lead as we are today."

"The American people and production base are exposed completely to ballistic missile attacks," according to the report. "Their ability to survive a full-scale nuclear assault by the Soviet Union is nearly nil."

American chemical and biological weapons, the report says, are "next to non-existent."

U.S. May Use Egypt Airfield

WASHINGTON (AP) - A remote Egyptian airfield may possibly be used as a staging area for American military forces in the event of a crisis in the volatile Persian Gulf area, say Pentagon sources.

The base at Ras Banas, on the Red Sea across from Saudi Arabia, would cost hundreds of millions of dollars to upgrade for U.S. use and is one of several sites being considered, the sources, who asked not to be identified, said Monday.

The United States has been increasing its military presence in the Gulf, gaining approval from Somalia, Oman and Kenya to use their facilities during a crisis. The island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean also is being turned into a warehouse for American forces.

The Washington Post reported today that the Ras Banas base would cost up to $400 million to be modernized and would be capable of handling U.S. war planes and a division of troops. The American presence would be minimal during peaceful times, but the base would be ready to handle American military units on short notice.

Royals Roll On; Yanks, O's Both Lose

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

George Brett is doing it all for the Kansas City Royals this year...well, almost everything. Currently sporting a major league-leading .398 average, Kansas City's fair-haired third baseman has been carrying a big stick since the All-Star break.

But he's only one of the reasons that the red-hot Royals are running away with the American League West pennant these days. Another is Clint Hurdle, hitting .302 after a 3-for-5 game helped the Royals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 9-3 Monday night.

"A lot of other guys on this club deserve more publicity than they're getting," said Hurdle, "and if you keep reading the papers, guys are going to get mad because George gets so much publicity.

"But we've got to be realistic," he added. "George is hitting close to .400 and he's the big story. Our attitude is that this is George's time. He deserves the publicity. Our time will come. We'll all get the recognition if we win the playoffs and the World Series."

Another reason for Kansas City's whopping 17½-game lead is Dan Quisenberry, the submarine-delivery specialist who leads the majors in saves with 30. He nailed down Monday night's victory.

"Quisenberry was unknown at the start of the year, but he may be the biggest single difference between this year and last year for us," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey.

Elsewhere in the AL, Seattle beat Baltimore 10-5; Oakland walloped New York 9-1; Cleveland edged Minnesota 4-3; Texas turned back Toronto 5-1 and Boston trimmed California 4-2 in 11 innings.

Hurdle blasted a two-run homer off loser Moose Haas, 14-11, in the second inning to send the Royals on their way. Kansas City winner Larry Gura, 18-5, gave up eight hits, struck out four and walked one in winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions. Quisenberry provided relief help in the eighth inning.

Brett, meanwhile, collected two singles in four official at-bats to bring his batting average up a point. Brett has hit safely in 42 of 45 games since the All-Star break.

Mariners 10, Orioles 5
Jim Anderson's two-run single capped a six-run first inning that sent Seattle past Baltimore and halted the Orioles' winning streak at eight games.

Winner Glenn Abbott, 9-9, gave up 10 hits before getting eighth-inning relief help from Shane Rawley, who earned his 12th save.

The Mariners jumped on Orioles starter Dennis Martinez, 3-3, for four straight hits in the first inning when they sent 11 men to the plate.

"They got the runs for me, and we needed them all," said Abbott. "I had trouble tonight because I was getting the ball up."

A's 9, Yankees 1
Mike Norris pitched a seven-hitter and Rickey Henderson collected four hits to lead Oakland over New York before the biggest regular-season crowd in the A's history.

Norris, 18-7, won for the eighth time in his last nine starts before the sellout crowd of 49,300 on half-price night at the Oakland Coliseum. He struck out seven, increasing his American League-leading total to 138, and reduced his earned run average to 2.21, also best in the league.

The Yankees remained a half-game ahead of the Orioles in the AL East.

Indians 4, Twins 3
Joe Charboneau hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning to pace Cleveland past Minnesota and spoil Johnny Goryl's debut as manager of the Twins. Goryl replaced Gene Mauch, who resigned Sunday after spending 5½ seasons at the Twins' helm.

Dan Spillner, 12-9, allowed eight hits and three runs in 52-3 innings to gain the victory. Sid Monge earned his 12th save with 31-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Fernando Arroyo, 4-6, took the loss.

"I didn't hit it real good," said Charboneau of his homer, "but I knew it was gone as soon as I hit it."

Rangers 5, Blue Jays 1
Ken Clay and John Henry Johnson combined on a four-hitter and John Grubb had three hits, including a home run, as Texas defeated Toronto.

Clay, 2-0, acquired in the trade that sent Gaylord Perry to the New York Yankees Aug. 13, gave up two hits in six innings before Johnson took over to gain his second save.

"My arm just stiffened up a little," said Clay of his premature departure. "I didn't feel I was throwing as hard as I was earlier in the game. I hated to come out, really, but I felt I'd lost about a foot on my fastball."

Texas Manager Pat Cor-

rales: "He pitched one heck of a ballgame. If he hadn't told me that his arm was a bit stiff, I would have kept him in the game."

Red Sox 4, Angels 2

Jim Rice doubled in two runs with two outs in the 11th inning and Bob Stanley hurled two scoreless innings in relief as Boston defeated California.

Rice doubled over the head of center fielder Rick Miller to score Rick Burleson and Fred Lynn. Mark Clear, 9-11, walked Burleson leading off the inning and Dave Stapleton sacrificed him to second. After Lynn was walked intentionally, Jim Dwyer flied out before Rice lined a 2-2 pitch for the game-winning hit.

Stanley, 9-6, improved his relief record to 3-0 and extended his scoreless-inning string to 222-3.

Rams Take Aim At Top Spot In Conference Race

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor
SNOW HILL — While Farmville Central has dominated the Eastern Carolina Conference over the past few years, the word around the league is that this year, someone else might take the championship.

And Greene Central's Rams are making noises as if they would love to be the one.

Coach Stewart Smith is a believer in the Ram chances. "I'm pleased with the way things have gone so far. We haven't made any big strides to get ahead of where we were last year, but I'm looking forward to our opening game (Friday against South Lenoir).

"As far as the conference is concerned, I think our chances are as good as anyone's," Smith added.

The Rams return 14 lettermen to the team, all but two of whom were starters, giving them a strong nucleus to build upon.

"Our brightest spot is the offensive line, where six of seven return," Smith said. "Defensively, however, we have only four regulars back, so we're going to have to do some filling in."

The Rams will attack their opponents from an I formation this year, and Smith expects to be primarily a running team.

Leading the squad will be quarterback David Braswell, who served as the backup last year. "He's a junior and we don't expect him to run the ball much, but to get the ball to the people who will be carrying it."

Those include a couple of small, but adequate backs, Smith feels. Ricky Moore is the fullback, while Melvin Hawkins is the halfback. Both are seniors, and both started last year. "Their speed is adequate," Smith added. Luby Jackson returns to the flanker position. The senior is listed as having good speed.

The line is where the battle will probably be won for the Rams—and it's where the veterans abound. The only inexperienced varsity players will likely be at center.

Jerry Edwards and Thomas Bullock, both seniors, return to hold down the two tight end spots, while Jeff and Thomas Jones, another senior duo, will be at the tackles for another year. Timmy Anderson and Ervin Rouse, another two seniors, return to the guard positions.

That leaves only the center spot unmanned by a returning veteran. Right now, Glenn Shingleton and Wally Stocks, both juniors, are battling out for the position.

"Our size is right good in the line," Smith said. "I'd say we average about six feet, about 190 pounds." Biggest on the team is Jeff Jones, 6-3, 260, whom Smith lists as a true college prospect. He also feels that Anderson and Rouse could be college prospects. The only other member of the team over 200 is Thomas Jones, who is 6-1, 220.

"Our people up front are going to have to do the job for us if we are to be successful," Smith said.

On defense, the Rams will use a six-man front. Jay Edwards and Stocks will be at the ends, while Jeff Jones, Thomas Jones and Rouse will alternate at the tackle spots. All five of them are relatively experienced.

The guards, however, and there are four of them, according to defensive coach Lewis Godwin, are less experienced. All four are juniors: Butch Brown, Robert Sheppard, Robert Anderson and Charlie Bryant. Godwin calls the two linebackers, both veterans, the key to the defense. They are Timmy Anderson and Olijoe Dancy.

"Our secondary will be totally rookie," Godwin said. They include Richard Evans, James Brown and Jackson, the latter of whom saw some action last year.

"We are kind of young on defense," Godwin said. "But we are stronger at the tackles than we've been in several years. We looked good in our scrimmage, especially in the secondary. So I feel that if we can get past the first three or four games to get experience, we'll be okay."

Smith said he is still unsure who is going to be handling the placement duties. Both Dancy and Rouse have been working here. Bullock will handle the punting. "I'd have to say our kicking game will be average. It's not as good as last year."

Smith puts Farmville Central as the team to beat in the conference race. "They've got to be up there, just on their record till someone beats them. Southern Nash is going to be tough, and we hope to be up there too. Aycock and Southwest (Edcombe) and Ayden-Grifton are all going to be improved."

Asked if he agreed with the statements other coaches have made about the overall balance in the league this year, Smith said he had to agree. "I think the league is more balanced this year that it has been in three or four years.

"For us to win, with only 30 on the team, we've got to stay free from injury. We are very thin—skin-deep. And we can't afford to make mental mistakes, either."

Greene Central finished in third place in the league last year with a 6-2 mark (7-3 overall). The Rams hope that this year, they'll be the ones making that post-season trip into the playoffs representing the Eastern Carolina Conference.

Schwarz New Faculty Rep

Dr. Ernest Schwarz, a member of the East Carolina University faculty for 15 years, has been named as Faculty Representative for athletics and relations with the NCAA, and as chairman of the University Athletic Committee. The announcement was made this morning by Dr. Thomas Brewer, chancellor of East Carolina, to be effective immediately.

"Dr. Schwarz has devoted many years of interest and support for East Carolina sports programs as a member of the committee on athletics," Dr. Brewer said. "Also, he gave superior leadership as interim director of athletics from May 1 to August 1 of this year. Dr. Schwarz made invaluable contributions as a member of the selection committee for a new director of athletics.

"His knowledge and skills will enable him to continue his outstanding service as faculty representative for relations with the NCAA and as chairman of the University Athletic Committee."

Dr. Schwarz came to East Carolina in 1966, following a four-year tenure at Methodist College in Fayetteville as an assistant professor, coach and athletic director.

Presently, Dr. Schwarz serves as a professor in the department of physical education and is director of that department's graduate studies.

A graduate of the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, Dr. Schwarz is originally from Philadelphia, Pa.

White Back At Punting Duties

By The Associated Press
Danny White is going back to punting for the Dallas Cowboys, but it's strictly a stop-gap measure.

White has for several seasons been one of the top punters in the league in addition to his role as Roger Staubach's understudy. But he inherited the starting job and gave up punting — or so he thought — when Staubach retired.

The decision to permit White to punt was necessitated when Dallas cut rookie free agent Jeff Gossett Monday.

Coach Tom Landry has repeatedly said he does not want to use White as a punter. Ironically, that's not because Landry is worried White could be hurt while punting. Instead, the coach worries that White could be injured playing quarterback, leaving the team without a punter.

But the club says White will use his strong right leg for that purpose in at least one game — Saturday's National Football League preseason finale against Pittsburgh.

In the meantime Landry and his coaching staff will be searching the cut lists and auditioning free agent punters in an effort to let White resume his elite status as only a quarterback.

The Cowboys cut four other players Monday to reach the NFL limit of 50 players one day ahead of schedule.

Youth Dominates Clemson's Offense, And It Worries Ford

By BILL WERONKA

Associated Press Writer
CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson football coach Danny Ford made no bones about it. He is worried about his offense this season.

He is justified. There is not one senior on the first or second offensive units.

"The offensive line is young," Ford told writers on the Atlantic Coast Conference's Operation football tour Monday. "Many of them are so young they don't even shave yet."

Ford made the statement with a smile, but with only six juniors on the first team and the second team consisting mostly of freshmen, he is worried.

"It is essential for our offense to do well early," he said. "If they don't, they may get their confidence shattered."

Ford even hinted that the Tigers may have to go to a quick kicking game and let the defense help out the offense.

Aside from a very young line, the Tigers have two sophomores at the running back spots and a big question mark at quarterback.

Last year's ACC Rookie-of-the-Year Chuck McSwain returns at tailback after gaining 443 yards last year. At fullback is sophomore Jeff McCall.

Quarterback is Ford's problem spot.

"The worst thing that can happen to a football team is to let the players start coaching," said Ford, now in his second year as head coach. "That can happen if you have too many quarterbacks. Players start choosing sides and which quarterback they would rather play with and you get in trouble."

Ford is ready to avoid that. He has four to choose from. Sophomore Homer Jordan is No. 1 now with sophomore Andy Headen, junior Mike Gasque and freshman Mike Eppley chasing.

"I really don't care which one we choose," Ford said. "But I don't want to go into the season without a No. 1 quarterback. And I won't."

Depth is another problem Ford has to contend with.

"We have to depend on a lot of freshmen who are not ready to play," he said.

The Tigers are the pre-season pick to finish third. But, Ford did not exude a great deal of confidence. Success, he said, will depend on the team's two strengths — the kicking game and the defense.

David Sims was of the nation's leading punters last season and is back. Plus there is place kicker Obed Ariri, who comes into the season having kicked 11 straight field goals. Ariri is backed up by Bob Pauling who is slightly ahead of Ariri now because the Nigeria native just got back from playing professional soccer in Chicago and has not practiced.

The Tiger defense was one of the ACC's best last season and the main reason the Tigers went 8-4 and ended up in the Peach Bowl.

Led by senior tackle Steve Durham, the defense should be as solid as last year, Ford said. He added that the team will probably depend on the defense as much or more than last season.

A plus for the offense is junior wide receiver Perry Tuttle, who has been delegated to the role of leader. After backing Clemson great Jerry Butler for a year and then pulling down 36 passes for 544 yards last year, Tuttle said he is ready.

"I feel like a leader," he said. "Last year the coach told me I had to be a leader and I kept saying, 'But I'm only a sophomore.' But this year I feel like a senior.

"And I feel because the team is so young we are going to be passing a lot more and my role as a leader will become important."

Tuttle said he learned a lot playing behind Butler. "I remember I couldn't even catch a cold," he said. "But Jerry kept saying, 'It'll come.' And it has. That's how I want to help the younger players now."

And Tuttle feels the selection of one quarterback is crucial. "I don't care who it is, as long as it is only one."

Meanwhile, Ford is not a happy man.

"We're just not a very good football team right now," he said. "We don't look the way we should. But, they will, I hope."

Dodgers Angry After Tug's Dust-Off

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Relief pitcher Tug McGraw's intentional walk to pinch hitter Joe Ferguson turned into a two-run single. His walk to Bill Russell turned into a free-for-all.

Los Angeles snapped a 44 tie in the ninth inning when Dusty Baker singled home a run and the Dodgers added three more to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-4.

After Baker's run-scoring hit, McGraw tried to intentionally walk Ferguson to load the bases and set up a potential double play.

On the second pitch, Ferguson leaned across the plate and drove the ball into right field, scoring two runs.

That brought shortstop Bill Russell to the plate.

McGraw's first three pitches to Russell were well inside and had Russell leaning over backward. The fourth one hit him.

Russell rushed the mound but never reached McGraw as both benches emptied. The umpires tossed Russell out of the game, which brought Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda screaming onto the field. Lasorda also was ejected.

McGraw, however, only drew a warning.

Davey Lopes, the veteran Dodgers' second baseman, was especially incensed.

"There will be a day when McGraw hits (bats) and he'll be dead, and you can put that in the newspapers," said Lopes. "That was bush. He's got his day coming I don't care if it's eight years from now."

"I thought he had a little more class. I guess he doesn't."

Lasorda charged that McGraw should have been ejected from the game.

"It was as plain as the nose on your face that McGraw was trying to hit him. He should have been thrown out and heavily fined."

"What gives him the right to throw four balls at a guy who had nothing to do with it (the pitch that Ferguson hit)," Lasorda said.

In other National League games Monday night, Montreal defeated San Francisco 3-1, Atlanta outlasted Pittsburgh 8-6, Cincinnati blanked Chicago 2-0 and St. Louis stopped Houston 3-1.

Ferguson said he wasn't surprised that he was able to hit the intentional-walk pitch.

"I had a hunch he wouldn't get the ball where he wanted to because he got close on the first pitch," Ferguson said. "Every time you go to the plate (in that situation), you have in mind that you might get a pitch you can drive. It doesn't happen very often."

Russell said: "It was obvious he was throwing at me. The third pitch was at my head. He was taking out on me what Ferguson did."

Umpire-in-chief John McSherry said that in his report to the league he would say that McGraw definitely tried to hit the batter on the fourth pitch.

McGraw tried to play down the incident.

"I don't want to sit and comment about the Monday night fights. There is nothing to be gained...let it rest," McGraw said.

Cardinals 3, Astros 1

A run-scoring double by Mike Phillips backed Don Hood's four-hitter as St. Louis snapped Houston's 10-game winning streak.

Phillips' hit scored Terry Kennedy and, one later, Ken Oberkell's grounder scored Ken Reitz with the eventual winning run.

"You'd like to win all the rest, but we didn't figure it would work out that way," Houston Manager Bill Virdon said after watching the victory string snapped.

"We'll just have to try to do better tomorrow," Virdon said. "A few more runs wouldn't hurt. We can't complain about our pitching."

Reds 2, Cubs 0

Tom Seaver and Mario Soto combined on a two-hitter as Cincinnati blanked Chicago 2-0, handing the Cubs their seventh straight loss.

Seaver, 5-7, surrendered just one hit over 61-3 innings in his strongest performance since coming off the disabled list Aug. 4. He struck out four and retired 14 in a row at one stretch.

Cesar Geronimo homered for the Reds, his second of the season.

Braves 8, Pirates 6

Dale Murphy drove in four runs with a double and a homer and Chris Chambliss smashed a two-run homer as Atlanta downed Pittsburgh.

Murphy drove in three runs with a first-inning, bases-loaded double and followed Chambliss' home run in the sixth inning with a solo shot.

The consecutive home runs erased a 4-3 Pirate lead.

Expos 3, Giants 1

A two-run double by Warren Cromartie sparked a three-run fourth inning to boost Steve Rogers to his first victory since July 16 and give Montreal its victory over San Francisco.

Rogers, 12-9, scattered nine hits while striking out two and walking none.

Montreal's Ron LeFlore stole two bases to raise his total to 83 for the season, tying him with Ty Cobb and Willie Wilson for sixth place on the single season stolen base list.

Wrestling On The Mound

Los Angeles Dodgers' coach Danny Ozark rushes to the mound as Phillies' catcher Bob Boone tries to separate Dodgers' Bill Russell, who tangles with Phillies' Pete Rose in the 9th inning of Monday night's game in Philadelphia. Rose grabbed Russell as Russell charged after Phillies' pitcher Tug McGraw, who hit Russell with a pitch. (AP Laserphoto)

NFC Central Is A Toss-Up Race

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach John McKay warns it was no fluke that his Tampa Bay Buccaneers won the Central Division title in the National Football Conference last season.

McKay is probably right but defending the championship could be a lot tougher than winning it. There is no super power in the division and, as a result, anyone of five teams could capture the crown with a little bit of luck.

The Chicago Bears won seven of their last eight games to tie Tampa Bay with a 10-6 record but the Buccaneers had a better record within the division. The title went to the Bucs, who fell one victory short of making the Super Bowl, while the Bears made the playoffs as a wild card team and were quickly eliminated.

Tampa Bay and Chicago appear to be the logical picks for the title this time but there's a cry throughout the division of "Watch out for Detroit."

A 2-14 team last year, but a serious contender this time around? Why not if Gary Danielson, who sat out all of last season, regains his quarterbacking form of 1978 and rookie running back Billy Sims lives up to expectations.

Minnesota dominated the division for years and finished with a losing record of 7-9 last season for the first time since 1967 and injuries absolutely decimated the Green Bay Packers.

Tampa Bay will be as good if not better than last year but so will all the other teams and the Bucs will not have the luxury of an easy schedule.

"I think anyone who feels the Buccaneers are just a one-year fluke is sadly mistaken," said McKay. "Our players are beginning to develop a winning attitude and, although we are still young, we now have more young veterans."

The Bucs were No. 1 in defense in the National Football League last season and an added year of experience will help. Remember, this is only the fifth year in existence for Tampa Bay.

Doug Williams remains the quarterback and Ricky Bell and Jerry Eckwood will handle the rushing chores. Jimmie Giles is a strong tight end. The team is lacking in quality wide receivers. The offensive line allowed only 12 sacks, fewest in the NFL.

Chicago came on strong last season when Mike Phipps took over the quarterbacking duties. The Bears started out 3-5 and their 7-1 finish was the best in the league once they decided the forward pass is here to stay.

Walter Payton remains one of the best, if not the best, running back in football. Payton is even more destructive when running alongside of Roland Harper who missed the 1979 season because of knee surgery. Harper is attempting a comeback.

Defensively, the Bears were third in the NFL behind Tampa Bay and San Diego in points allowed. Their first 22 players might not be as strong as some other teams but their strength hinges on depth.

"It takes 45 men to get through a season, not 22," said Vice President Jim Finks.

Detroit Coach Monte Clark first lost Danielson and a week later it was Joe Reed. Rookie Jeff Komlo became a starter and despite a strong defense, the Lions never did get going.

"I really don't feel our personnel is of the 2-14 variety," said Clark. "We have some outstanding talent in every area."

This time around the Lions have the easier schedule and if Danielson can pick up from where he left off in 1978 and Sims lives up to expectations, it could be an interesting season for Detroit fans.

The Lions lost eight games by eight points or less last season including four at home by three points or less.

The Minnesota Vikings went through a transition period last year but Coach Bud Grant doesn't believe that was the reason for a losing season.

Grant feels the Vikings had won the division so often that they took it for granted. "Winning the division is not going to be taken for granted," vowed Grant.

The Vikings will remain a passing team with Tommy Kramer pitching to such talented receivers as Ahmad Rashad, who led the NFL with 80 catches for 1,156 yards and nine touchdowns, and Sammy White. Chuck Foreman is gone so the rushing chores will fall upon Ted Brown and Rickey Young.

Defense was a problem last season and the Vikings again used their No. 1 draft pick to strengthen that department. They opted for tackle Doug Martin of Washington. Veteran Matt Blair anchors the linebackers. The defensive secondary could use a lot of overhauling.

Injuries ruined the Green Bay Packers last season and already the Packers have lost the services of quarterback David Whitehurst for at least half the season.

Whitehurst had started 34 consecutive games before Lynn Dickey came back from injuries to start the last four games.

Broadway Musical Opens Hours After Popular Director Died

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) — It started as a happy occasion, the celebrity-packed opening night of "42nd Street," the new Broadway musical based on the 1933 movie that old and young alike still love.

GOWER CHAMPION

Instead, the night ended in shock and sadness when, after the final curtain call Monday, producer David Merrick, his face somber, mounted the stage at the Winter Garden with shocking news.

He said that just hours before the show went on, its director and choreographer, Gower Champion, 61, a two-time Tony award winner, had died. The audience gasped and some in it screamed.

"I don't know how to say this, but this is a very tragic occasion for me," Merrick began. "But at 12 o'clock today, Gower Champion died."

He gave no details, but officials at Sloan-Kettering Hospital here said Champion had been suffering from a form of cancer in his lymphoid system. He had been in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Champion was said to have been in poor health for some time, but the gravity of his illness wasn't widely known. Word of his death was kept secret all Monday.

The only hint of anything unusual was Merrick's pre-show request that critics remain seated until after the last curtain call instead of dashing out to file reviews. Some didn't and missed his sad, dramatic announcement.

It wasn't clear how many in the cast knew of Champion's death until it was made public. But in the tradition of show business, the big, glossy musical called "42nd Street" went on without a hitch.

Sadly, from this reviewer's standpoint, the show — about the making of a Broadway-bound musical — wasn't up to par. It was uneven, with a slow, often witless, first act salvaged only by brisk ensemble tap-dancing, followed by a fairly sprightly Act Two.

The old movie plot — retooled for the stage by Tony-winners Michael Stewart and Mark Bramble of "Barnum" fame — is familiar enough.

A top director (played here by Jerry Orbach) has a show to put on. He hires a fading star (Tammy Grimes) not for her talent but because her beau, a loud Oklahoma millionaire, is backing the musical.

Enter a young star-struck kid from Allentown, Pa., (Wanda Richert), seeking to break in as a chorus girl. She accidentally stumbles into the star, the star breaks an ankle, the newcomer fills in.

"You're going out there a youngster, but you've got to come back a star," bellows Orbach shortly before opening night. You know what happens next.

Monday's audience loudly and affectionately laughed at Orbach's hoary "star" line. But it may prove prophetic for Miss Richert, who knocked 'em dead with her singing and tap-dancing.

Unfortunately, and even with the fine old "42nd Street" score of Harry Warren and Al Dubin — a score that includes "Lullaby of Broadway" — the show only fitfully caught fire.

Those moments mainly consisted of Miss Richert's turns, the ensemble tap-dancing and singing of the huge cast, and Miss Grimes' funny way of giving an odd vocal twist to her dialogue now and then.

But the lead characters were limited, one dimensional, and the book told you little about them, save for a few hopes and dreams. Alas, again, there were only feeble references to the usual backstage romances that are part and parcel of putting a show on.

Theoni V. Aldredge's costumes were extraordinarily colorful, the sets of Robin Wagner functional and fairly imaginative, and all the players, from star to chorus cutie, danced and sang their hearts out.

But "42nd Street," with all its flash and glitter, just doesn't have it. It's hard to say how much strain the cast was under on opening night, considering the fact of Champion's death.

Producer Merrick had postponed the show's scheduled Aug. 11 opening, then closed a preview performance a night later, blaming it on a snake "loose in the theater."

He got publicity, a few laughs, and great suspicion he was up to his old publicity tricks. Monday night's announcement wasn't for publicity, to be sure. But I think he could have postponed the show again, if only out of respect to Champion's memory.

That the cast tried so hard served as that respect.

Garner Says Penalty Fair

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — James Garner believes that a man convicted of attacking him after a traffic accident got what he deserved — 100 days in jail and a $500 fine, according to a prosecutor who talked with the actor.

Aubrey Leigh Williams, a free-lance photographer, was sentenced Monday and ordered to pay Garner's hospital bills.

Garner, 52, star of the defunct television show "The Rockford Files," was hospitalized for a week following the Jan. 16 attack.

During a three-day trial, Garner testified that Williams' car tried to pass him on the right on a twisting road.

When Garner pulled to the left to allow Williams to pass, the vehicles collided, the actor said. Garner said Williams walked over to his car and began beating and kicking him.

Williams maintained Garner had been driving erratically prior to the collision and had started the fight.

Williams, 35, of Tujunga, was convicted in June of felonious assault.

Deputy District Attorney Larry Longo said he talked to Garner after the sentencing, and "he felt that (the sentence) was about right."

"He felt that should teach the man a lesson, not to go and do things like that any more," Longo said.

Task Of Picking Jury For Garwood Is Begun

Monday and was scheduled to continue today when court resumed at 8:30 a.m.

A panel of at least five officers will judge Garwood. A group of 10 officers was brought into court Monday as the first batch of potential jurors.

Defense attorneys began their intensive questioning of the potential jurors with hour-long sessions delving into combat backgrounds, attitudes concerning prisoners' behavior and attitudes on what the military should expect of young men such as Garwood in enemy hands with no training for the situation.

"Every man has a breaking point — don't you think that's true?" defense attorney John Lowe asked Col. R.C. Hyatt, the first officer to undergo individual questioning.

"No, I don't," Hyatt replied.

His sentiments were echoed later when Col. K.P. Millice was asked a similar question.

"I think certain men have breaking points and I think others don't," Millice replied.

Defense attorneys were grilling each potential juror individually with other jurors out of the courtroom.

Hyatt and Millice were questioned Monday and it appeared likely that it would take at least through Wednesday to question the other eight potential jurors.

It will not until all 10 potential jurors are questioned that prosecutors and defense attorneys announce their decision on which ones will be seated on the jury.

Lowe said Monday that he would like to have opening arguments in the case on Sept. 10, with testimony following shortly thereafter.

The defense also said it had compiled a list of 130 potential witnesses and Lowe declared in court that the case "may be one of the longest and most complicated court-martials in American history."

Grouping Plan Will Be Used

Pitt County Schools will begin its new plan of grouping students this fall, and, according to Superintendent Ott Alford, the quality of education will be improved by the implementation of the plan.

The Office of Civil Rights ordered the board of education earlier this year to eliminate the grouping policies that had been in use and comply with the office's standards for stratifying students. The board came up with a compliance plan which should be accepted by OCR.

For grades 1, 2 and 3 the plans allows schools a choice of either random heterogeneous grouping, which would mean students are assigned to classes on an entirely random basis, or stratified heterogeneous grouping, which rank orders students and divides them into three groups (strata 1, 2, 3). In stratified heterogeneous grouping, students would be proportionately distributed to

Reporter Testifies In Klan-Nazi Trial

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Durham television reporter testified Monday that he heard members of a Klansman-Nazi motorcade trade verbal taunts with demonstrators before gunfire broke out at a Communist Workers Party rally last Nov. 3.

The testimony by reporter Matthew Sinclair of WTVD-TV set the stage for the prosecution to show the jury later week news film taken by the station's crew during the violence at the "Death to the Klan" rally.

WTVD-TV was one of several broadcast stations with film crews at the rally site when the violent outbreak occurred, leaving five demonstrators dead of gunshot wounds and nine other people injured.

Prosecutors said they expected to present testimony from a pathologist today that would outline the causes of death for the five demonstrators.

Six Klansmen and Nazis are on trial on charges of murder and felonious rioting that grew out of the Nov. 3 disturbance. In all, 22 people were indicted on charges related to the violence.

Sinclair testified that he had started filming the routine preparations for the CWP rally when he noticed

The baby died from a gunshot wound in the head from a small-caliber weapon fired into a car on Apache Street. Also in the car were the baby's mother, Angela Murphy, and a Greensboro man, Hurly Headen.

Ms. Harris also was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury, and shooting into an occupied vehicle. She is being held without bond in the Guilford County Jail.

trumps are 4-1, and East has the jack fourth. This line would have led to defeat but, fortunately, declarer realized that he could afford to lose a trump trick and still make the hand.

He cashed only the ace and queen of trumps, and his foresight was rewarded when East sluffed a high club on the second trump. Now declarer started to run the diamonds. West ruffed the third diamond and shifted to a club, but declarer was in control. He put up the queen and captured East's king with the ace. A trump to the king drew the last trump and declarer was in dummy to cash the two long diamonds, on which he discarded his club losers.

The defense was not particularly inspired. If East shifts to a low club at trick three, declarer is placed in the hot seat. He might decide to go up with the ace of clubs and rely on being able to draw the trumps, in which case he will go down. It is a sound principle of defensive play to put declarer to a guess before he finds out the bad news—in this case, the 4-1 trump split.

The correct way to handle a card combination might not be the best way to play the suit in the context of the whole hand. Here's a classic example.

The bidding was routine and the four heart contract that was reached was normal. Note that North felt compelled to do no more than show this heart support at his second turn, even though his hand revealed to a full opening bid. In view of the announced double fit, it was unthinkable that South would pass.

West led the jack of spades. East won the ace and king, then continued with a third spade. Declarer ruffed and started to draw trumps.

The normal way to play this combination is to first cash a high trump from the South hand, then cross to the king in dummy. Now trumps can be picked up whenever the suit breaks 3-2, or if
