40th Anniversary Of The National Guard September 1940 Call-Up

—Greenville and Pitt County men, members of Battery A, 113th Field Artillery, at Fort Jackson, S.C., November 1940 —

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

It was on September 10, 1940 that Clyde R. Hoey, Governor and Commander-In-Chief of the North Carolina National Guard issued Executive Order No. 1, ordering members of all active elements of the 30th Division (less one company) and the 252nd Coast Artillery into active service for duty with the Army of the United States.

For the approximately 80 men in Greenville who were National Guard reservists as members of Battery A, 113th Field Artillery, 30th Division in 1940, Governor Hoey's orders — based on Executive Office No. 8862 promulgated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt — the orders meant an end to the casual pace of once monthly training sessions and a 15 day summer camp, and the beginning of what today would be called "the real thing." The orders also meant that the Battery would soon have another 50 men added to its rolls.

Two of the original members of Greenville's Battery A — J. F. (Jimmy) Davenport of Greenville and Ernest Spain of Winterville — provided information and reminiscences of those events 40 years ago and furnished a brief resume of the Battery's history as the World War II years progressed.

"I want it understood that I'm simply one of men of the outfit who's giving you information about those days," Davenport prefaced his recollections. "I just want to make certain it doesn't appear I'm telling my own story. I'm speaking for all the men, not just for myself."

Davenport, at that time the Battery's First Sergeant, was already a veteran member of the outfit. He had first joined in 1933.

"Our commanding officer at the time was Captain Worth Wicker, and our Executive Offer was J. Howard Moye. There were two other officers, both lieutenants, J. Ed Waldrop and Dr. Dan Wright." Wicker and Dr. Wright are now deceased."

In 1940, an old brick building near the Pitt County Courthouse housed the National Guard unit. The unit's equipment consisted of 155 mm howitzers and a number of vehicles.

Recruiting Began For New Members

"Immediately after the call-up orders came," Davenport said, "the unit undertook a recruiting campaign to raise the Battery's strength to 132, it's authorized complement." This was soon accomplished, he related, and added that a majority of the men were in the 18 and 19-year-old age group. "And except for a couple of men, all were single."

Davenport remarked that recruiting the additional 52 members was not difficult."It was done mostly by word of mouth that there were vacancies that needed to be filled.

"Most young men knew or felt convinced anyway that the draft was coming, and this was a chance for them to go in along with friends and neighbors."

Off To South Carolina For Training

By the end of September, Battery A's authorized full strength had been achieved, and on September 28 the unit received orders to be in readiness to move out to Fort Jackson, South Carolina for training.

"We left Greenville at five o'clock on the morning of October 1, 1940," Davenport recalled. "Before we got underway, the Mess Sergeant, Ernest Ellis of Grimesland, fixed us a good meal. We carried our equipment with us and managed to get all 132 into our vehicles for the trip."

When the Pitt County men arrived late that day at Fort Jackson (near Columbia), they were directed to a wooded area, an old golf course. "We pitched our tents, dug latrines, and set up the field mess, using a World War I field range," Davenport said.

For the entire wooded area, which housed not only Battery A's 132 men, but also accommodated more than 700 others from different units. Davenport remembers that "only one water spigot was available. So we made trips into Columbia and put water in ten-gallons cans to take back. We also had one water wagon."

Training And A Wait For Quarters

All the men in the area were immediately assigned to two activities — the first stages of basic training, and clearing out a space for an artillery range.

"It was about three months, near the end of the year, before we went into framed screened types of tents with latrine facilities and mess halls," Davenport recalled. "Until then we didn't have hot water, and many of us made trips into Columbia where we could get a hot shower for a quarter."

Refugee Boat Capsized

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A 45-foot sailboat crammed with more than 100 starving, thirsty Haitian refugees capsized Saturday as the frantic voyagers rushed to one side of the vessel to see a Coast Guard cutter approaching to rescue them.

The cutter Point Nowell rescued 108 refugees from the Atlantic and recovered at least three bodies. Authorities said those victims were apparently dead from starvation or dehydration before the accident.

They had apparently crowded the disabled vessel without food or water for days.

A sea and air search for other possible survivors was called, but officials said they believed all aboard the boat were accounted for.

Coast Guard seaman Carol Feldman said the three victims were already dead when the accident occurred, "presumably from lack of food and water."

The Coast Guard said the sailboat capsized when the Haitians spotted their rescuers at mid-afternoon and rushed to the side of the vessel, flipping it over. The accident occurred between the Cay Sal Bank and the Bahama Bank, about 120 miles southeast of Key West.

A U.S. Navy helicopter carried a medical team to the cutter to treat survivors for dehydration, exposure and malnutrition. Ms. Feldman said some of the Haitians were sickened from drinking sea water.

Navy and Coast Guard helicopters from Key West and a Coast Guard plane from Miami flew back and forth over the area, searching for any other survivors.

Tropical Earl

MIAMI (AP) — As wet remnants of Tropical Storm Danielle moved inland over Texas Saturday, Tropical Storm Earl was forming in the western Atlantic and a depression was nearing tropical storm strength off Cape Hatteras, N.C., busy forecasters said.

Neither of the two new storms posed an immediate threat to any land, said the forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Iranian Parliament To Debate Hostages' Fate

By United Press International

A committee of the Iranian parliament met Saturday to make preparations for the long-awaited debate on the fate of the 52 American hostages, now entering their 45th week in captivity.

The meeting of parliament's foreign relations commission was the first sign that the assembly was getting ready to begin its hostage debate since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini charged it eight months ago with deciding the outcome of the now 308-day-old crisis.

Tehran Radio said only that the commission met to discuss "the problems of the hostages and preparations for a debate on the issue in an open session of Parliament." No details were disclosed and no date for the debate was mentioned.

But there were other indications the debate may finally be close to getting under way. The Islamic hardliners who control the parliament had maintained they could not begin to consider the hostages' fate until after Iran's "pressing" internal business had been attended to. That included the choice of a prime minister — now completed — and the formation of his cabinet, which Tehran Radio reported was close to completion.

The radio said Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai has selected 15 cabinet members who were approved by President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and who will now be submitted to the parliament for swearing-in.

The new cabinet members included Hossein Moussavi Khameneie, 39, editor of the fundamentalist Islamic Republic newspaper, who has been chosen to replace Sadegh Ghotbzadeh as foreign minister.

Once parliament approves the cabinet, the way will be clear for the hostage debate to begin. Most of the deputies, clerics and other hardliners who belong to the powerful Islamic Republican Party controlled by Bani-Sadr's rivals, have said they favor putting the hostages on trial as spies.

But whether the so-called trial would be for show or would result in some or all of the hostages being punished was still unclear.

Both Bani-Sadr and Ghotbzadeh have said repeatedly that the hostages should be freed. However, Bani-Sadr has only limited influence and Ghotbzadeh has virtually none.

Both men, moderates by the standards of the Iranian revolution, have criticised Rajai, a former high-school teacher who was the hardliners' choice for prime minister, as a total incompetent who has no idea how to run a government.

Ghotbzdeh, in an interview broadcast Friday, repeated those charges and said the hostage crisis must be settled quickly.

"What is extremely important is to end the confrontation with the United States. We have to resolve this problem, get rid of this problem, in order to have Europeans and Third World countries on our side. As long as we have this problem of the hostages they are not on our side — they are not even indifferent or neutral," Ghotbzadeh said.

Interest In Preserving House May Lead To Saving Others

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Interest in the preservation of the Jones-Lee House on Evans Street across from the Art Center may have been the beginning of an effort to save the few historic structures left in Greenville.

Some individuals who felt and expressed reluctance to see the English tudor pre--turn-of-the-century house demolished have become the nucleus of the Greenville Area Preservation Association now being formed.

The house was completed some time between 1890 and 1898, according to an interview with Mrs. Walter Lee, who resided in the house from 1926 till this year. The house first appeared on a Greenville town map in 1898. The builder appears to have been C. T. Munford, who bought the land on which the house stands, from Edward T. Clark on Mar. 24, 1890.

The Jones-Lee house had a twin next door on the north side, the W. E. Warren house. It was torn down several years ago. Munford rented the house to J. A. Stokes and others for some years before selling the house and lot to Sheppard Andrews, who maintained it as a residence for his family, including his daughters, Mary and Ruth. Mary married John D. McKeithan, a salesman,and Ruth married Walter L. Whichard, assistant general manager of "The Daily Reflector." The two couples were residing in the house in 1926, with Mary McKeithan listed as the owner. Her husband took a job in California and the house was put on the market, with the Whichards moving to another part of Greenville. Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, a dentist, and his family rented and occupied it briefly until it was sold to Minnie Tunstall Jones on Aug. 24, 1926.

Mrs. Jones, her husband, John Arthur Jones, and their daughter, Louise moved in and enclosed the breezeway that connected the kitchen with the main part of the house. Jones worked as a bookkeeper for a tobacco firm.

Louise Jones married Walter Lee in 1959 and the couple made their home with Mrs. Jones until Lee's death in 1963, after which Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Lee continued to live there. Mrs. Lee worked with the Board of Education until 1976. She sold the house to the City of Greenville in October, 1979.

The city will have the house razed and sell the land for commercial development unless a concerted effort is made to save it. It may have to be moved to another site.

According to Maury York of the local preservation association, it has been approved for the National Registry of Historic Places.

The formation of the preservation group took place in May. York said the group sees its function as East Carolina University has an official record enrollment for the fall semester with 13,161 students attending classes, J. Gilbert Moore, Registrar, has announced.

Moore said his count does not include registration for the University (evening) college.

The East Carolina University School of Medicine has a total of 145 students enrolled, Moore said.

Orders Turn Over Of Tapes Charging Billy's Involvement With Vesco

DENVER (UPI) — A federal judge has ordered prosecutors to hand over tape recordings in which a New York convict charges that Billy Carter was involved in one of Robert Vesco's schemes to get U.S. planes for Libya.

James Feeney, a New York man convicted last month in Denver in an offshore-banking scheme, made the tapes while working as a government informant in a case involving Vesco, a fugitive living in Nassau.

U.S. District Judge Fred Winner Friday granted Feeney and his Denver attorney, Daniel Sears, access to the them. The tapes already have been turned over to the Senate panel investigating Billy Carter.

Feeney and Sears want portions of the tapes to use as evidence in Feeney's sentencing hearing and for an appeal to a higher court.

In his order, Winner gave the government 10 days to either turn over the tapes or dismiss Feeney's conviction on grounds the federal investigation must be protected.

The Libyan government bought C-130 military planes from the United States in the early 1970s, but the aircraft were not delivered because of the government's opposition to Libya's support of terrorists.

Feeney said the tapes show Vesco tried to bribe U.S. government officials to release the planes. He said Billy Carter, through his relationship with Libya, was linked to the transaction.

Vesco lives in Nassau to avoid federal charges on a multi-million dollar mutual fund swindle. Feeney was convicted last month on more than 20 counts of mail and wire fraud, transportation of false documents and for selling worthless cashiers checks from a bogus bank.

Parole May Be Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal parole officials have told former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel and two co-defendants that they might have to serve their full three-year prison terms for political corruption, the Washington Post reported Saturday.

Quoting unidentified sources, the Post said U.S. Parole Commission hearing examiners recommended that Mandel, W. Dale Hess and Harry W. Rodgers III serve their terms "to the expiration."

Mandel, Hess and Rodgers were told of the recommendation after rehearings on their parole requests before members of the commission's Atlanta regional office last week.

The recommendation is unusually severe and can be appealed to the full commission. But one source told the paper that it appeared the recommendation "came down from the top."

No recommendation was given on a parole request by co-defendant Irvin Kovens, who remains hospitalized following at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida after suffering chest pains almost two weeks ago.

Mandel, Rodgers and Kovens began serving their terms at the Florida prison May 14 and had applied for parole in mid-June. Hess began his sentence at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama at the same time.

Mandel was convicted in August 1977 of attempting to use the influence of his office on legislation beneficial to a Prince Georges County race track owned secretly by some of the co-defendants.

Doesn't Want Federal Aid

By GIL BROYLES
Associated Press Writer

LOTSEE, Okla. (AP) — This tiny town in northeastern Oklahoma just got its annual letter from the Office of Revenue Sharing warning that "unless you take prompt action, your government will lose revenue sharing funds."

Well, Lotsee's government consists of the Campbell family — the town's sole residents — and they're not much concerned with federal aid since their town has no income, no budget and no debt.

In fact, all the town has is 60 acres of ranch land, 125 polled Hereford cattle (without horns) and some horses.

George Campbell, 74, founded Lotsee by incorporating his family ranch west of Sand Springs in 1965 to avoid being swallowed up by nearby municipalities.

Manntord, Sapulpa and Sand Springs, and Tulsa about 15 miles to the east were in an annexing mood about that time, Campbell says.

Three Dead In Train Wreck

HEMPHILL, W.Va. (UPI) — A freight train carrying a cargo of radioactive materials and liquid fertilizer slammed head-on into an empty coal train Saturday, killing three railroad workers.

The Norfolk and Western trains collided at 8:15 a.m. near this southern West Virginia town with a "grinding" noise, followed by an explosion that "sounded like the world was coming to an end," one resident said.

Cars at the front of the eastbound freight derailed near a trestle, and several were partially submerged in the nearby Tug River.

Flames and smoke shot hundreds of feet into the air as firefighters fought blazes fed by diesel fuel, which spilled from all six locomotives involved in the collision.

The canisters of radioactive materials and the fertilizer were far enough to the rear of the 66-car train that they were not affected, authorities said.

All three victims, whose identities were not released, were aboard the freight train, which apparently hit the empty coal train as it was backing onto a siding, state police said.

Two other crew members on a car at the end of the freight train escaped without serious injury. No one aboard the coal train was injured.

Fire Chief Jerry Rotenberry from nearby Welch said "it looked like the whole world was on fire" when he arrived at the scene.

He said a total of eight canisters of a radioactive substance he identified as uranium hexaflouride were being shipped on flatbed cars halfway back on the train and that the fertilizer was in the 18th car.

Garwood Charged With Offenses Against Child

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — Marine Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, facing court-martial as the only U.S. soldier accused of collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam, has been charged with sex offenses against a 7-year-old girl he was taking home from church.

Garwood, 34, was arrested at 6:30 p.m. Friday on two felony warrants charging him with attempting "to commit a sex offense with a 7-year-old female" and with commiting a "lewd and lacivious act upon the body of the child, who is a 7-year-old girl."

Garwood, who is undergoing psychiatric treatment, was accompanied by a civilian lawyer when he surrendered to police, and denied both of the allegations.

His court-martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy is to begin Sept. 17.

Garwood was released on a $10,000 bond signed by Donna Long, 37, a mother of two young boys and a local POW-MIA activist, who has been Garwood's regular companion since his return from Hanoi in March 1979.

Sources said the alleged offenses took place after Garwood had received permission to take the child home from an Aug. 7 church function. They said the unidentified child is the daughter of a friend of a retired Major with whom Garwood lives outside Jacksonville.

The allegations were made weeks after the alleged offenses occurred.

Terrorist Bomb Rocks Guatemala City, 8 Dead

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Presumed leftist guerrillas detonated a powerful bomb outside President Romeo Lucas Garcia's offices in the center of Guatemala City, killing eight people and injuring 80 others, authorities said.

Lucas Garcia was not in his office when the bomb exploded Friday morning in front of the National Palace, shattering windows and scattering debris as far as 16 city blocks away from the downtown Guatemala City building.

Authorities said the blast killed eight people, one of them a child, and injured another 80, including 25 government workers. Police spokesmen denied earlier reports that two foreign diplomats were killed in the blast.

Most of the injured were sent home after treatment in nearby hospitals.

The bomb also destroyed at least 30 cars and damaged 50 others, officials said. The damages to property were estimated at more than $1 million.

An estimated 2,000 people have died in the past two years of increasing political violence in Guatemala, torn by a fight between leftist guerrillas, government troops and ultra-rightist gunmen.

Interior Minister Donaldo Alvarez Ruiz, himself the target of an unsuccessful assassination attempt earlier this year, said the bomb apparently was made of at least 40 sticks of dynamite. It was planted either in a sewer or a car parked outside the building and was set off with a timer, police said.

Security forces, backed by a police helicopter, began a massive search for those responsible for planting the bomb.

Leftists could have set the bomb to frighten the general public from attending a rightist-sponsored rally scheduled for Sunday to show support for the military-supported Romeo Lucas and the army, authorities said.

A government statement condemning the terrorist blast said it could have been the work of "non-Guatemalans."

Danielle Brings Floods To Southeastern Texas

By The Associated Press

Tropical depression Danielle brought torrential rain to the coastal plain of Texas and parts of Louisiana on Saturday, while showers sprinkled the Great Lakes and parts of the midwest.

Southeastern Texas bore the brunt of Danielle's rains, with the Beaumont-Port Arthur area receiving 17.11 inches in a 24 hour period. Heavy flooding was reported in the area, but there were no big evacuations.

Tornadoes also touched down near Houston and Galveston, but no injuries were reported.

Widely scattered showers dotted the Gulf and Atlantic coasts, the Pacific Northwest and New Mexico. Thunderstorms hit sections of Iowa, some with damaging winds of more than 50 mph in the north and central parts of the state. Clouds covered portions of the upper Ohio Valley. There were also some scattered areas of cloudiness over the Rockies. Much of the rest of the nation had sunshine.

The National Weather Service forecast for Sunday called for showers and thundershowers from eastern Texas through the gulf coast region, and also over the Great Lakes. Widely scattered showers were forecast from the southern Plateau to the northern Rockies. Temperatures were expected to be in the 80s for most of the country, with 70s in the Pacific Northwest.

March Ends At Funeral Home

By JACK ELLIOTT

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — About 125 demonstrators, most of them black, marched five abreast to a funeral home Saturday to pray for a pregnant black woman who was shot and killed by a white police officer.

The march, protesting police handling of the shooting of Dorothy Brown, stepped off from city hall with an escort of six black policemen shortly before 2 p.m. EDT. The marchers made their way through the downtown area chanting "Freedom, Freedom," and singing "We Shall Overcome.

The chanting and singing continued until the marchers neared People's Funeral Home where services were held for Mrs. Brown. The marchers fell silent, walked to the front of the funeral home and were led in prayer by the Rev. S.W. James.

There were no incidents during the march, which was joined by several whites. Blacks came out of bars, pool halls and other business establishments along predominantly black Farrish Street to watch the protestors pass. Some of the marchers carried containers of ice water to quench their thirst in the 90-degree-plus temperatures.

In 1975, a London subway train crashed into a tunnel wall, killing 41 persons.

Wants Pay Raise

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina State Employees Association called for a "just and adequate" salary increase Saturday from the 1981 General Assembly.

The association, holding its 34th annual convention, unanimously approved a resolution saying that inflation has devastated salaries of state government employees in the last seven years.

The association turned its focus to 1981 salaries just two months after winning a large — greater than 12 percent — package of pay increases from the General Assembly for the year beginning July 1.

The association pointed to figures that show an inflation rate of 72 percent since 1974 while state salaries have increased 44 percent over the same period.

The 500 NCSEA delegates said a substantial pay increase in 1981 is necessary to keep salaries of state employees competitive with the private sector.

Other resolutions approved called for a dental insurance plan and for increased steps in the merit pay structure. Another resolution asked for an increased formula for computing benefeits in the retirement system.

Emmett Burden, executive director of the 24,000 membver group, told the delegates that the association will have to play a more active political role in the future in order to secure new and expanded fringe benefits.

Fierce Power Struggle Preceded Kania's Selection As Party Chief

By BOGDAN TUREK

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — A fierce power struggle preceded Stanislaw Kania's selection as Communist Party chief Saturday to replace Edward Gierk, who was ousted for the economic policies that put Poland's workers on a collision course with the state, diplomatic sources said.

Kania, 53, was elected unanimously by the 116-member Central Committee in a midnight pleanry session, an official announcement said.

But diplomatic sources and observers said there were strong indications that the change was not smooth and that it was preceded by fierce infighting.

Gierek, 69, at first held tenaciously to his position as the recent wave of strikes rippled across Poland, sparked by demands for labor and political reform. But his grip began to slip when he lost his power base in the southern coal fields, where miners joined the strikes.

His authority was further eroded by revelations that his best friend and relative, the former head of Poland's state television, was embroiled in a multi-million dollar embezzlement scandal.

Experts noted that new party leaders usually address the nation to disclose their programs as soon as they are chosen. But Kania has made no such statement and a speech he made at the Central Committee meeting has been kept secret.

Even Moscow, in a puzzling delay, was silent at first, waiting for 16 hours before sending Kania a congratulatory telegram signed by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

According to official accounts, Gierek was removed from office after suffering a heart attack early Friday.

But diplomats and observers said they believed Gierek's supposed illness was "political" — a face-saving way of removing him from office.

They noted the statement describing Gierek's condition was nearly identical to the one that ushered in the downfall of his predecessor, Wladyslaw Gomulka, following similar but less widespread labor strife 10 years ago. Gomulka is still alive at 75.

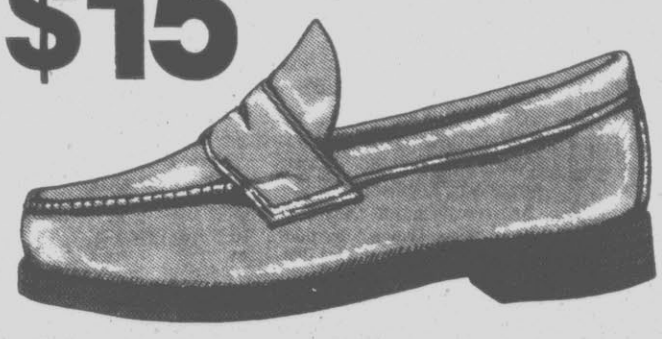

The usually slow-moving Central Committee hurriedly called an overnight session to name Kania as Gierek's replacement.

Hiring Freeze Is In Order

Recessions have a way of being remote from our area. We are far more concerned with the condition of the tobacco crop or the enrollment of ECU insofar as area prosperity is concerned.

A falling national economy does have its effects, however, and it can be seen in the Pitt county commissioners decision to place a freeze on hiring.

The freeze was done to bring expenditures in line with revenues — and revenues are being affected by the recession.

County Manager Reginald Gray noted that last year's sales tax revenues were based on $1.85 million and $1.95 million was actually received. It was projected for the current fiscal year that $2.13 would be received. However, the first quearter revenues were only $447,891, some $40,000 less than the same quarter last year, and $84,699 less than projected. If that trend continues sales tax revenues could be less than last year's.

Property tax collections are also down and intangible tax collections are down from the previous year.

Gray said it was the first time in 28 years he had had to make such a report, and he recommended a hiring freeze as the best approach to the problem.

At the same time he said that unless something drastic occurs, the county should be able to weather the storm.

We can hope that the last half of the year will be brighter. The current figures reflect business some months back. There are already signs of recovery according the the government economic barometers.

Pitt County can't base its spending on hoping, however, and the hiring freeze certainly seems to us to be in order.

Shooting From Hip Causes Problems

Similarly shooting first and asking questions later can get one into a whole passle of trouble.

It didn't set well with a lot of southerners, gave candidate Carter a strategic opening a mile wide and finally forced an apology from Reagan.

One slip won't necessarily ruin the Reagan campaign, but it does put in him the position of having to prove to many voters that he is sharp enough to be president.

Property Tax Tide Rising

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The tide is strongly upward for local property taxes, judging from a recent survey of North Carolina's 100 counties conducted by the Association of County Commissioners.

Exactly half of the counties have increased the rates in budget actions recently completed. Thirty-five counties were holding the line with the same tax rates; and 15 counties reduced them. But those reductions will not produce tax savings for citizens in most cases. Twelve of the 15 counties which cut taxes had just completed their eight-year revaluations of property which produces a high valuation on which to levy the tax which invariably means the rate can be cut while producing even more dollars.

Last year 49 counties increased their tax rates while 31 had no change; six reported a cut, and 14 had revaluations.

The year before, 37 increased taxes; 45 remained unchanged; nine cut taxes, and nine had revaluations.

Cheating

In the first six months of the present federal fiscal year, county welfare officials in North Carolina investigated 677 cases of suspected fraud involving nearly a half-million dollars.

Those results come from increased efforts to detect fraud and abuse, say social service officials.

Most cases were resolved by recovering the overpayments from recipients, but 259 cases involved larger amounts of money or refusal to pay it back were sent to the courts.

Bob Ward, director of the social services division of the Department of Human Resources says this is a lot of money and worth checking for; but "the number detected cheating is less than one percent of the total families" receiving some $73 million in payments to 74,805 families.

Drunk Drivers

If current trends continue, drunk driving arrests in North Carolina will set new records this year. In the first six months, arrests are up by more than 2,000 over last year's record of 45,962.

If the pace continues, the year-end total will top 50,000.

Tighter

Gov. Jim Hunt thinks North Carolina needs tighter reins over shipment of radioactive materials in the state. "It's essential our people know ... it sounds like we have very insufficient information," the governor feels.

Many officials had believed that state law required that the state be informed in most instances.

It turns out that the state law requires filing information with the State Highway Patrol only for "spent nuclear fuel" being transported. Thousands of other shipments are never recorded, although some records are kept by agents of the Thefts and Weights division of the Department of Transportation which operates truck weighing stations.

Those stations, however, are not open all the time and the records are incomplete. A third state agency — in the Department of Human Resources — spot checks the records kept by licensed handlers of radioactive materials used in medical research or practice.

None of these, even with federal supervision, can provide a community with complete information on just how much nuclear material is being transported in a given area.

Tracking shipments is viewed as important from two concerns: a safeguard against accidental public exposure to harmful radiation; and to protect the material from wouldbe terrorists.

Players Deciding Rules

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the players get to make the rules, the game is likely to be postponed while they argue for advantage. That's what is happening now in the hassle over presidential campaign debates.

Who debates, and when, have become part of the rival campaign strategies of President Carter and Ronald Reagan. Rep. John B. Anderson, the independent candidate, is ready to debate either or both, any time.

For a longshot like Anderson, any appearance with major party candidates is a plus. That's not necessarily so for Democratic and Republican presidential nominees.

Carter wants to begin any debate series with Reagan alone. Reagan wants Anderson in from the start.

Carter, still playing catch-up campaigner, wants to start debating as soon as possible. Reagan would just as soon wait a while.

Carter wants multiple debates. Reagan would be satisfied with two.

Such bickering over terms is almost inevitable so long as the debate process has to be re-invented every four years. And that will be the case until someone figures out a way to institutionalize presidential campaign debates.

That would take sponsors with clout. It might take government action. The government is, after all, financing the major party candidates to the tune of $29 million apiece; it could require future nominees to debate as the price of that campaign support.

The League of Women Voters, which sponsored the 1976 debates, tried to institutionalize the process, and its own role, this year — but wound up in the middle of the debate argument.

The Carter people, who don't like the prospect of a three-way debate, passed word that they would just as soon debate under new sponsorship. They talked of snubbing the league series, and began accepting invitations to two-way debates with Reagan.

SUFFERING WITH SOMEONE

Compassion. Our Lord loved this word. It is derived from two Latin words which mean "suffering with". The modern German word for compassion, "Mitgefuel", means literally to feel with. We are told that when Jesus looked on great crowds of miserable people, many of them lame, blind, or insane, he had compassion on them and suffered with them. He never turned away with a sigh declaring that it was too bad that such conditions existed.

Almost anyone is capable of noting great wrongs in the world and protesting against them, but only a few people had the gift of compassion. The truly great reformers have always been people who, when they looked upon the pain and suffering of others, felt it keenly in their own flesh. Reformers who have looked upon people as abstractions or statistics have never been very effective. People who can feel compassion are fortunate because it gives them a sense of being needed and useful in a world which they feel they can change for the better. — Elisha Douglass

Sunday Morning Notes

The area lurches to life with the opening of East Carolina University, city and county and private schools and Pitt Community College

Students, at one level or ...er in the educational process, are everywhere as fall terms begin and summer is put behind us. The scene is always dom inated, of course, by the presence of ECU students since they come in such overwhelming numbers. Over 13,000 were expected this year.

For those of us who are here during the summer the change in pace is overwhelming. Suddenly there are many more cars on the streets and many more pedestrians. Restaurants which were easy to visit during the summer months become crowded quickly. The spirits of merchants who depend on student business for their survival are lifted.

With the students come some interesting sights. There was, for instance, the young man who was riding a bicycle with his girl. Riding his accurate. He was perched on the seat. The girl was pedaling.

"You reckon this is going to be enough?" one asked.

"It's going to be a long weekend," the other replied. They went back for another six pack.

The first weekend after ECU opened was Labor Day weekend, which meant a holiday for the students on Monday. It was apparently also a time for one more trip to the beach for most of them. Most of the cars were Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

The letter of Mr. Jeffrey Krantz in the September 1 edition of "The Daily Reflector" shows the writer to be well read in matters that took place in Spain many centuries ago. But his "worry" that present day "Conservative Christian Evangelists," by becoming politically active, are heading toward another "Spanish Inquisition," seems rather farfetched.

If Mr. Krantz thinks it dangerous for those of like mind to band together to vote their convictions, as well as seek to influence others to do likewise, he must have had his head in the sand for the past 30 years. Surely he realizes that what he accuses "Conservative Christian Evangelists" of doing has been going on for several decades with larger groups, and to a greater extent.

Not normally a letter writer myself, and never having been accused of being a "Conservative Christian Evangelist," I nevertheless take sharp exception to his parallel of the group he criticizes to the likes of the Spanish Inquistiion general, Hitler, McCarthy, and Khomeini.

Mr. Krantz's inclusion of McCarthy (Senator Joe, I presume) in this notorious group of murderers may serve as a clue to his true political leaning.

His assumption that the conservative Christian group hopes to make an offense against the church a punishable offense against the state is too ridiculous for sensible rebuttal.

I fall far short of the kind of Christianity exhibited by the likes of Jerry Falwell, Oral Roberts, etc., and quite frankly, do not plan to support some of the candidates espoused by the fundamentalist Christians. But I do not feel threatened by their actions, and I would not deny them their right to use whatever legitimate means at their disposal to gain support for the office seekers of their choice.

That practice is about as American as apple pie and socialism.

To the editor:

Who speaks for the people? Is it Governor Hunt? Is it "The Daily Reflector"? Or must it be our state legislators? Someone must speak because it is obvious that the people have become so complacent they accept anything imposed upon them.

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph has imperiously decided to raise rates from 23.6 to 34.7 percent. How many of you have recorded your objections? Everyone complains vocally about inflation, but no one voices their objections where it counts. No wonder politicians and corporations wantonly take more and more of your wages. Speak out! Let these people know you refuse to pay this unjustified increase.

Tavern Will Be Victim

By DEBORAH BAKER

BORDERLAND, W.Va. (UPI) — Charlie Blevins and the Red Robin Inn are victims of progress.

The roadside tavern where the only unruliness is "flat-footin', clod-hoppin' and the regular ol' hillbilly stomp" will be torn down some year soon to make way for a four-lane highway.

"I hate to think about it," sighs the pipe-smoking proprietor in bib overalls who has been dispensing beer between banjo tunes for the past 25 years. "I laid every block and drove every nail in it."

The wall behind the front room bar is laden with memorabilia — musical instruments, license plates, old tools, lanterns, a picture of the area's most famous patriarch, "Devil" Anse Hatfield.

On a quiet afternoon, only the sound of the passing coal trains along the Tug Fork River interrupts the buzz of conversation.

But catch Charlie in the right mood, and suddenly the place is filled with music. He grabs a dulcimer, fiddle, or banjo from the wall and plays tunes to make you "dance with the devil."

"The music from these mountains is my heritage," he says.

Charlie is one of about 120 people along a few-mile stretch near U.S. 52 who will be moved as Appalachian Corridor G slowly makes its way from Charleston, W.Va. to Pikeville, Ky.

To Some, Borrowing In Style

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Although it might seem so at times, the financial decisions of people aren't always governed by what Washington says or what well-known money men advise or what the stock market is doing.

Some of the most widespread advise being offered today, for example, is to balance your finances in order to ride out the latest recession, and millions seem to follow that advice. Consumer credit is down.

But to the publisher of the Financial Freedom Report, a publication "designed for the highly motivated individual who is seeking to establish his own financial freedom," borrowing is in vogue.

In a "bulletin" in the latest issue, publisher Mark O. Haroldsen, who founded the magazine in Salt Lake City several years ago, advises "You should be borrowing money now from your local bank."

The suggestion is consistent with Haroldsen's philosophy of continued inflation, using other people's money and paying as little income tax as you can. Borrowed money, he says repeatedly, is yours tax-free. And during chronic inflation, he points out, you repay in cheaper dollars.

How widely this advice is followed is hard to say, but Haroldsen and others like him have mailing lists in the thousands, which is evidence that the practices of many people are contrary to conventional wisdom.

Conventional wisdom also promotes the notion that there isn't much you can do to lower your income taxes other than to hope, pray and cajole Congress into granting a tax reduction. Many people don't believe that.

The evidence comes from the popularity of tax avoidance seminars, in which attendees are taught how to take every possible deduction and how to set up businesses in which assets can be quickly depreciated.

Tax avoidance seminars now seem to be sweeping the country. In Mill Valley, Calif., Bill Greene uses his front lawn to tell people how it's done. He says his privately printed book, "Welcome to The Tax Revolt," is selling well, even though most sales are by mail order.

Tax avoidance, of course, is not tax evasion, but it really isn't tax avoidance either. More accurately it is tax deferment because, at least in theory, the taxes eventually are going to come due and collectible.

However, that day can be postponed a long time. To illustrate, an income property can be depreciated, giving an annual tax deduction for 10, 20 or probably 30 years. Then, in theory, taxes are due.

However, if proceeds from that sale are immediately put in trust until reinvested in a similar, costlier income-producing property, the tax man might allow deferal until the new property is fully depreciated.

There's little new about the concept; the Treasury Department grants tax deferrals to owners of U.S. Savings Bonds and to investors in various promotions, including cattle feeding and oil drilling. What is new perhaps is the popular packaging and promotion of avoidance.

Even the elderly are doing their own thing. Have you heard of "desaving?" Perhaps not, but you probably have heard of the reverse mortgage, and the two terms mean roughly the same thing.

The reverse mortgage, in which the elderly would mortgage their fully paid home, receiving monthly payments on an annuity basis related to their expected lifespan, have the endorsement even of regulators.

Still, they seem to be ensnarled in red tape and stalled by the current money difficulties that most savings banks are experiencing. But desaving, a less formal arrangement, may be catching on.

Struggling With Rebels

By VISETSAK SANGUANPONG
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai government appears to have made major inroads recently in its fight against an internal Communist rebellion, even though its chief concern has been with Communist Indochinese forces outside its borders.

The Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia at the end of 1978 took that country out of the Chinese orbit, thus depriving the Chinese-backed Communist Party of Thailand of its main sanctuary. Until the invasion, the Communists had staged 40 percent of their attacks along the border area.

On the other hand, the Vietnamese forces in neighboring Cambodia now pose a threat to the Thai border areas where thousands of Vietnamese and Cambodians are in refugee camps.

Laos also has made a decisively pro-Vietnamese, anti-Chinese turn and late last year asked the Thai rebels on its territory either to return to Thailand or move to China.

In addition, Thailand has taken an effective new political approach to battling the insurgents under the guidance of Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda, one of the few national leaders who has had field experience in fighting anti-government forces.

A senior Thai military source said that with its operating bases gone the Communist Party of Thailand appears to be in disarray — although serious incidents continue — and is fraught with internal divisions.

Some of these divisions stem from the party's emphasis on armed actions. Some members reportedly disagree with its emphasis on gaining control of rural areas. A pro-Soviet faction is said to have been formed, but has not made its influence strongly felt.

But despite the rift, the military source said, Communist Party members are unified in their aim of weakening Thailand's social structure. So long as the Thai economy remains in the grip of a handful of rich families, he claimed, social conflicts are sure to intensify.

The military officer said the party's problems are a welcome sign for the government, because the guerrillas — with 15,000 to 20,000 sympathizers throughout the country — had made considerable headway in recent years.

Although the Communists have never established a foothold in Thailand's key central plains, they have infiltrated 11 previously rebel-free provinces since 1976, thus establishing a presence in 46 of the country's 72 provinces.

A right-wing coup in October, 1976, sent several thousand students and intellectuals into Communist ranks, and many today remain in mountain hideouts.

Thailand is taking advantage of the insurgents' present weakness to set up village militias with special training, and to take some of the anti-insurgency work from the police, whose strong methods are believed to have driven villagers from their homes into rebel camps.

In addition, the military source said, the previous policy of fighting force only with force was "a mistake."

"Now we apply politics as our main tactic, followed by military operations," he added.

Calling the rebels' current disarray "a golden opportunity," the officer said, "The government is trying to understand the real situation of the insurgents, rather than trying to suppress them by force. It recognizes that its major task is to solve Thailand's poverty and shortages, to insure the well-being and security of its people and to strengthen and stabilize the democratic system."

Prime Minister Prem has set up an amnesty program for insurgents, and a propaganda program has been stepped up in rural areas.

"Thailand is the property of all Thais," Prem has said. "We must love and protect it for our own common interest."

One Communist Party defector, a former university student who declined to be named, said he was irked that the insurgents are controlled by China and cut off from the international Communist movement. He felt that he and other members were being tricked by party leaders.

The overall trend of the Thai Communists, however, has been one of growth over the years, and as one officer said, "We cannot relax our guard."

According to the Internal Security Operation Command, the insurgents had only several hundred members when they declared their "people's war" in 1956. That year 87 government soldiers and civilians were killed, compared to 544 last year. About 250 people were killed in insurgent raids in the first half of this year.

Last year, according to the Command, government forces killed 393 insurgents and arrested 191. An additional 1,246 turned themselves in. In the first half of this year, it said, about 180 were killed and 150 arrested. Close to 1,000 surrendered.

Government forces scored victories over the rebels this year with the seizure of a huge arsenal in the north and the capture of a big stronghold in the south.

This month, a two-week-long pitched battle in the south resulted in 60 reported rebel deaths and the capture of several strongholds.

The insurgents have also been active. The deputy education minister narrowly escaped death when his convoy was ambushed by 50 rebels this summer as he was returning from a school opening ceremony.

finding places to relocate in this rural area, it will be several years before the construction starts, officials say.

Charlie is troubled by the notion of transplanting people — especially old folks who've been in the same spot all their lives.

"It takes their initiative away from them," he says. "They're never satisfied when they've tore 'em up or run 'em out."

Initiative is something the 54-year-old former coal miner never lacked.

When he was 12, he traded a laying hen for his first banjo — and picked a gallon of blackberries in return for the strings to go with it.

Today, his collection of musical instruments includes a fretless 110-year-old banjo, and a dulcimer he figures dates back to the 1860s.

When the highway comes through, says Charlie, who began building the tavern in his spare time in 1953, "If I ain't too old, I'm gonna get some property in Kentucky and build a museum."

The beach season was soon to be over, however. With the university in session it doesn't take long for a young man's fancy to turn to . . . football, and ECU fans didn't have long to wait. The first game was with Duke in Durham last night, and there were plans for getting up there in any way possible.

Even as this is written before the game we can be sure there will be a steady stream of cars from the ECU campus to Duke.

Maybe it takes a little longer for we regulars around Greenville to drive across town; perhaps we have to be a little more cautious on Tenth and Fifth where students constantly cross; and certainly we have to wait a little longer to get into the restaurants. All that, however, is the exciting part of living in a large university town. Believe us, we look forward to seeing the students back.

Wolfe's Home Town Seethed Over His Novel

By NOEL YANCEY

When eager Asheville readers went to Pack Memorial Library in the early 30s to get Thomas Wolfe's best-selling "Look Homeward, Angel," they came away disappointed. The public library had banned this master-piece of the city's most famous native son.

In those days, both Wolfe and his novel were fighting words in Asheville. The young author had written about his home town and had peopled it with folks he knew. Some of the portraits were not flattering, and neither were some family skeletons he revealed.

The novel "was so vividly true and factual that people recognized themselves and their neighbors; description of the townspeople were so clear that a reader either discovered real sins he did not know about or believed as fact fictitious sins that his neighbors had not committed. The latter, of course, caused more bitterness," wrote scholar Floyd C. Watkins many years later in his book "Thomas Wolfe's Characters."

In reviewing "Angel" for the Asheville Times, Walter S. Adams predicted some townsfolk would be "shocked" and "severely annoyed" while others would "snicker and laugh" because Wolfe had "dragged forth into the light" scandals that previously had "enjoyed only a subterranean circulation." But, he said the work possessed "unquestioned literary merit."

In the Raleigh News and Observer, Jonathon Daniels, a friend and classmate of Wolfe at the University of North Carolina, called the book "a reign of terror of his talent...against the Victorian morality and Burbon aristocracy of the South." Both North Carolina and the South "are spat upon," Daniels concluded.

Several days after the book's publication in October of 1929, the Times concluded the reaction of the town had been "sensational and tremendous."

Although Wolfe had anticipated some furor would be aroused, he was not prepared for the storm of fury that burst about him. In a note to the reader in his book, Wolfe had asserted the belief that "all serious work in fiction is autobiographical," but he insisted "this book is a fiction, and...he meditated no man's portrait here."

Wolfe himself described the reaction of his home town in an article published six years later in the Saturday Review of Literature. "For months," he wrote, "the town seethed with a fury of resentment I

It Wasn't The Dreams, But The Life He Shared

CHILDERSBURG, Alabama — The Childersburg Cemetery was not a perpetual care facility. The inscription on his gravestone read: JOHN C. JINKS, Born April 8, 1892, Died Sept. 22, 1948. Ironically, the only thing resembling an epitaph was that the briars and weeds, in death as in life, still threatened his little spot under the sun.

I Leveled the monument and replaced some of the brick around the plot; I dug out the grass and covered the surface with polyethylene; what material to use in filling the enclosure posed a problem, so I decided to use marble waste — the crushed stone itself would have had too much sheen for a modest man like him.

Our little farm, east of Four-Mile Creek in Talladega County, Alabama, had been worn out from over-planting cotton; but he was a dreamer and did not always respond to logic. The cotton always grew up about "so high"; the watermelons ran to "knots" and the worms got most of the cantaloupes. Daddy alone kept thinking things would change.

He had a special place for prayer, below the barn in a stand of pines. I heard him pray many times, for his family, and neighbors, for relief from hard times. One prayer, one of his longer ones, I didn't understand: It enumerated his blessings. It angered me. He had never asked for very much in life, and had gotten practically nothing at all. Yet, God was benevolent and kind.

I was part of his problem — an unwilling participant in the operation of the farm. I was ready to move out on my own. I wanted to have my way about everything — which brings me to the incident of the gee-whiz.

Most gee-whizes were sidewinders, requiring a round to the row. But this one straddled the row. True, it required a team to pull it, but it was a real time-saver. Naturally, I laid claim to the plow.

I was getting ready to use it that Saturday morning, to knock out the little field Daddy had assigned me in short order and be gone from there. But Uncle Kelley changed all that

I knew as soon as I saw him leading his team up the hill that my plans were in jeopardy, so I hurried my team over to the gee-whiz to begin hooking up.

"Uncle Kelley's usin' the big plow this mornin'," Daddy said firmly.

"But I had already planned on using it," I protested.

Uncle Kelley, who sharecropped with us, was alongside now, grinning as he watched the confrontation. I had heard him goading Daddy, telling him I was too big for my britches. Now he was complacent and it galled me.

Stewing, I watched Daddy help Uncle Kelley hitch his team to the plow. Something in Daddy's manner, some high resolve, bade me keep quiet. Only when Uncle Kelley was gone did he speak.

He came up and put his hand on my arm. "I'm sorry, son," he said, "but there's only one of Uncle Kelley. There's two of us. If we work hard, we can do as much work as he can." And he turned and gave me his broad back to wonder at as he went off toward the barn to fetch more plows.

A mile west of our house was the village. Here, in the summer, Daddy peddled his wares — tomatoes, okra, peas and cantaloupes, and the red, red, watermelon.

I'll never forget the day Mrs. Snead waddled out to our wagon and thumped one of the melons. "These good uns, Uncle John?" Everybody called him "Uncle John".

"They cut real fine, Mrs. Snead."

"I'll take a yellow-meated un."

Daddy told her we didn't have yellow melons, that Mr. Matson had them, that he'd be along directly; and he clucked to the team and drove off.

Down the street, I took him to task. "For the love of Mama and us children, go back there and sell her a red melon."

His face looked pained. "I can't do that," he said simply. "She's Mr. Matson's customer, anyway; I feel bad enough about it as it is, living closer to the village and beatin' him here every day like I do."

The day he died, I sped homeward, bitter and defiant that God had struck him down in his prime before he had made his mark in the world. But now as I stood before his grave some thirty-odd years later, time, the great equalizer, had dimmed some of my aspirations also — hopes that, at the time, seemed much more readily attainable than his bumper harvests. It was not what we were running after, but what we did and the way we lived while we were struggling that made the difference. Suddenly his splotched monument, which a short time ago had seemed so heavy, was floating in a sea of mist before my eyes. A failure? Not "Uncle John". — J.C.JINKS, JR., free lance, Childersburg, Ala.

A GUY WE SHOULD PUT ON EARLY RETIREMENT

By Gail Michaels

The 99-Cent Photo Deal Leads Marketing Field

If I had to pick the greatest marketing technique ever devised, I'd have to say the 99 cents photo special. Even Cheryl Tiegs couldn't lure as many customers as these specials do. And once a parent succumbs, she's hooked.

I'm a prime example. Not once was I able to refuse the $20 package, and I had pictures of Meg taken every week. For two years the only presents anyone in our family received were photos of our charming baby.

No pose was too unappealing. I even bought a package of photographs taken at age four months, in which she looked like a wino on her sixth bottle of Ripple. Her eyes were bleary, her tounge was hanging out, and drool was running down her chin. I thought she was gorgeous.

Of course, these specials work better with first babies than they do with second or third babies. By the time Zachary came along, I was too camera weary to make much of an effort to capture all his expressions and outfits for posterity. Last week was the first time I managed to take advantage of one of these specials with him, and that's because my mother refused to wait until he graduates from high school to fill the space she's been saving on her wall.

So I packed five outfits in the diaper bag and headed for the department store. During the first half of our wait Zachary wet two and spit up on two more. I spent the last hour in line holding his head over my open pocketbook.

Unfortunately, these lines are like labor: you soon forget what they're like. My memory had lapsed to such an extent that I actually wore sandals. Just when I thought that my toes were numb from the steady tramp of frenzied patent leather shoes, a kid whose baby brother's picture was being taken raced over my feet with a shopping cart.

By the time I reached the front ot the line, I was feeling pretty sorry for myself. But my misery was nothing compared to that of the mother in front of me. Her five-year-old daughter was gracing the photographer with a scowl better suited for a grade B horror film.

The scowl deepened.

The little girl obligingly bared her teeth.

"Say, 'Mama kissed a chicken,'" said the photographer.

The little girl grinned with all the enthusiasm of a woman who finds half a caterpiller in her green bean casserole.

Finally, the photographer shot a few pictures and lifted the child from her seat. A dazzling smile flashed across her face.

Her mother stiffened. "I think I'm going to scream. This is the tenth time this year I've had her picture taken, and every time it's the same."

"Well look at it this way," I said. "At least you'e not tempted to buy the package."

Lifting The Cover On Our Presidential Customs

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — This is turning into quite a season for political books, but one in particular cries out to be read — "Breaking Cover," by Bill Gulley. He tells us more about out recent presidents than some of us would really like to know.

Gulley spent 11 years in the White House as administrator and later as director of the White House Military Office. For much of this time he had effective control over a secret discretionary fund that could be diverted to virtually any presidential purpose. Gulley had responsibility for White House communications and for scheduling Air Force One. He was the ultimate insider's insider. Until this book appeared, I myself had never heard of him, and I doubt that other senior correspondents knew much about Gulley, his office or his fund.

Now he has let it all hang out in a memoir that paints our presidents as Cromwell wanted his own portrait painted, warts and all. Much of the broad picture is familiar — the profane Johnson, the secretive Nixon, the ingenuous Gerald Ford. Some details also are familiar; various investigators have revealed the extravagance of tax-funded "improvements" at the LBJ ranch and at Nixon's summer and winter palaces.

What emerges from Gulley's book is a sense of the insidious ways in which power corrupts. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. was right on target when he wrote seven years ago of presidential power "spacious and peremptory." The constitutional presidency, he said, "has become the imperial presidency." Schlesinger, I suspect, didn't know the half of it.

Unknown to all but a handful of White House insiders, tax funds constantly have been channeled into outlays that never on earth could have survived scrutiny by Congress or by the press. Nixon's swimming pool at Camp David, to cite one example only, was financed from the secret fund to the tune of $550,000 — largely because Nixon wanted the pool built on a site that happened to be squarely atop the camp's bomb shelter.

Probably Nixon could have been talked into a less costly location, but the very nature of imperialism is not to question the imperial power. Nixon had said, "Put the pool there," so there it was placed. In the fashion of a pathologist exploring a purulent wound, Gulley repeatedly makes his point that power corrupts not merely presidents, or even mainly presidents: Power tends to corrupt the underlings around a president, until their perquisites and their status symbols and their high-handed authority become pervasive. They are courtiers to a king, reveling in the pleasures of our Fontainebleau on Pennsylvania Avenue.

Yet, curiously, the imperial finger that can dispatch Air Force planes on luxurious house-party missions seems unable to command the kind of security a monarch might be expected to have around him. The most startling passages in Gulley's book deal with an incredible laxity — as he perceived it — not only in protecting a president but in protecting the nation also.

Gulley makes the self-evident point that we live in a world of increasing terrorism. In such a world he finds an American president pathetically vulnerable. Back in 1970, he discloses, an Air Force counterintelligence officer was assigned to see if he could penetrate "the very places it was assumed the president was most safe." The officer succeeded so brilliantly that dummy explosives were planted at Camp David, in Air Force One and on the yacht Sequoia.

Even more chilling are Gulley's disclosures about the vital "football." This is the black briefcase containing every day's coded directions for response to a nuclear attack. The football is supposed never to be more than 30 seconds from a president's hand, but at least early in the Carter administration the aide and the football were staying "at a hotel in Americus, Georgia, 10 miles from Plains."

I tried to check that out with the current director of the Military Office, Marvin L. Beaman Jr., but got no timely callback. If the imperial power is still working in this recklessly dangerous fashion, Gulley's eye-opening book will have served a most useful purpose.

had not believed possible. The book was denounced from the pulpit by the ministers of the leading churches. Men collected on street corners to denounce it. For weeks the women's clubs, bridge parties, teas, receptions, book clubs, the whole complex fabric of a small town's social life was absorbed by an outraged clamor..."

"It was my experience to be assured by young people from my native town not only that they remembered incidents and characters in my first book, which may have had some basis in actuality, but also that they remembered incidents which so far as I know had no historical basis whatever."

Three living persons who still vividly recall those days agreed in recent interviews that Wolfe's description of the Asheville reaction was a bit exaggerated.

"That's a little bit exaggerated, but there was a resentment," said James S. Howell, an 86-year-old attorney who still practices law in Asheville. Although Howell was characterized in "Angel," he was not unhappy about it because "he was always very fair to me."

"That was a little bit strong," said James M. "Nemo" Coleman. "...I don't recall anyone talking about it in a pulpit. Asheville was enraged about it though."

Coleman, an authentic UNC football hero who captained the 1919 team, is proud that he is immortalized in a portion of Wolfe's book which tells of a train journey Eugene Gant (Wolfe) took from Asheville to Chapel Hill. Wolfe gave Coleman the name Zeno Cochran and described him as "a tall lad of twenty, slender and powerful, with the grace of a running horse. He had punted against the wind for 80 yards in the Yale Bowl. He was a handsome fellow, soft-spoken and kindly, with the fearless gentleness of the athlete."

"He spoke well of me in there, and I appreciate it," said Coleman, a retired prep school football coach. He said two other youths "were riding him (Wolfe) awfully hard, and I made them stop. He seemed to appreciate it." He described the young Wolfe as "a tall ugly boy who could do nothing in athletics, but he just liked to watch us play."

Dix Sarsfield, now retired at Black Mountain after a journalistic career, recalls meeting Wolfe one night shortly before "Angel" was published when the young writer visited the offices of the Asheville Citizen.

"I asked him if his book was autobiographical," Sarfield recalled. "He sort of stammered and said, 'It is and it isn't.' I think he was trying to say that you absorb information as you live and that when you write about people you can't help putting in some of that information which is in your brain."

Howell and Sarsfield recalled what apparently was a popular pastime in Asheville. People would read "Angel" and would "write on the margin the names of people they thought he described." Sarsfield says he still has one of these books.

After the furor that his book created, Wolfe waited eight years before returning to Asheville. He told of his plans to go home in an interview with the "News and Observer" in Raleigh early in 1937.

I'm not afraid of being tarred and feathered and run out of town anymore," he told reporter Clifton Daniel. He said if his homefolks had suffered as a result of his book, their resentment had caused him anguish.

quite said no to the league, which has scheduled its first debate in Baltimore on Sept. 21. League President Ruth J. Hinerfeld said that debate would go on even if Carter refused to participate, assuming that Anderson qualified to debate and Reagan agreed to confront him alone.

"Traditionally, the league has gone on with its candidate events if there are two or more candidates who agree to appear together — even if somebody chooses not to participate," she said.

But if the somebody happens to be the president of the United States, the show loses much of its impact.

The league is to decide Sept. 10 whether to invite Anderson to debate. One of its criteria is that he get at least 15 percent support in the national public opinion polls. But Carter aides say they suspect the league will figure out a way to invite Anderson even if his ranking is lower than that.

And they don't want him on hand for the first debate, likely to be the most important in any series. The Carter campaign reasoning: Anderson pries votes from their candidate, not from Reagan. Besides, they say Carter versus Reagan and Anderson would be two against one incumbent.

"I don't think he would advance his own cause in a debate so much as he would give Reagan a breather," said Tim Kraft, deputy campaign manager for Carter. "It would be a double sally against Carter."

Reagan has taken to campaigning on the debate issue. "I look forward to meeting Mr. Carter in debate, confronting him with the whole sorry record of his administration," the Republican nominee told a rally the other day. "If he ever finally agrees to the kind of first debate the American people want — which I'm beginning to doubt — he'll answer to them and to me."

In Detroit, Reagan added that he considers Anderson a hazard to Carter. "And I think this is why Carter is fighting against including him in the debate," Reagan said. "There ought to be a debate and Anderson ought to be in it."

Clay Kirkman Says . . .

Now that fall is almost here, it is time to start planning those garden chores. This season is the best time for planting and fertilizing your cool season grasses such as rye and fescue. Planting shrubs and bulbs in the fall allows time for the plants to develop their root systems and become established before the hot days of spring and summer arrive.

The first thing you should do in planning is to take soil sample test. Come by Belk Tyler Garden Shops and pick up a North Carolina Department of Agriculture's soil sample box and information sheet at no cost. Then dig up several inches of your soil in various locations around the yard. Mix the soil specimen in a clean, plastic bucket and put it in the soil sample box. This way you will have a good representation of what your whole yard is like, not just one area. Now send the soil sample along with the information sheet to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. The results you receive will tell you how much lime and fertilizer is needed for your yard.

Don't forget that spring bulbs such as tulips and daffodills will soon be arriving. Even though it is too early to plant them, it would be the best time to get a good selection. It is also a good idea to keep them in the vegetable crisper of your refrigerator for 6 to 8 weeks before you plant them.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops have all your garden needs for this fall. Don't forget to come by and pick up your soil sample box today!

National Guard . . .

The men trained with the 155 mm howitzer, their basic item of equipment, and later received training in other artillery pieces.

The following spring, in May 1941, they went on maneuvers for 30 days in the hills of Tennessee — at Camp Forrest near Murfreesboro. "By this time, the men were toughened by training and cutting trees for the artillery range," Davenport commented, "but our boys, being from flat land, felt pretty nervous about riding in trucks that were blacked-out at nights on those mountain roads."

Then, after more training at Fort Jackson, they joined in the big, sustained maneuvers held at Fort Bragg involving military men of all branches of service who were stationed in the two Carolinas.

After 15 Months, Given Furloughs

"We returned to Fort Jackson on December 5, just two days before the attack on Pearl Harbor," Davenport said."One of our main concerns was getting furloughs to visit families, friends and sweethearts back in Pitt County over the Christmas holidays.

"We did get them, for a period of ten days, not as long as we had expected, but we were glad of that much time." (The military then, as now, provides members with 30 days annual leave time).

Davenport added that during the 15 months between going to Jackson in October 1940 and Christmas 1941, most of the men managed an occasional week-end trip back to Greenville, pooling their cars for the trips.

Breakup In Unit's Identity Begins

After Pearl Harbor, men in Battery A, like those from all fully trained units, began to lose their home-town identity. "As the Army began expanding," Davenport said, "men with experience were pulled out to furnish cadre personnel for new units being formed. Also, a number of men left the unit to go to Officer Candidate Schools." (Davenport was one of the latter. He attended OCS at the Field Artillery School in Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and was commissioned a second lieutenant).

One Who Remained With Battery B

A number of the original Pitt County contingent, however, remained assigned to Battery A of the 113th Field Artillery for the World War II years.

One of these was Ernest Spain, who now lives in Winterville, and curerntly is employed with the Free Will Baptist Press in Ayden.

At the end of World War II, Spain was a sergeant assigned as chief of a gun section.

He related that in August 1942, the 30th Division, to which Battery A, 113th Field Artillery remained assigned, was ordered for duty to Camp Blanding, Florida.

From then until the fall of 1943 the 30th remained at Blanding, then transferred to Camp Atterbury, Indiana. Soon after Christmas 1943, in early January 1944, the men were shipped out to a staging camp and from there sailed on transport ships in convoy across the Atlantic for England.

Into Combat At Omaha Beach, France

After landing in Liverpool, the men spent five intensive months of artillery training in preparation for active combat on the European continent. In the spring of 1944, they drew a new supply of personal gear and were assigned new equipment.

Then, the big moment arrived. On D-Day plus 9 (June 15, 1944), Battery A veterans, along with thousands of others, crossed the English Channel and landed at Omaha Beach in France.

From this initiation to the fire of combat until VE Day in May, 1945, Battery A men took part in the parade of battles across France and into Germany, including the Battle of the Ardennes Bulge.

When the memorable day in May, 1945 that marked the end of the war in Europe arrived, the men had reached a point 20 miles from Berlin.

For Spain and others with long periods of service, the process of transferring out of the war zones back to the states began. Most were back home by October 1945.

Battery A Was A Fortunate Unit

All in all, Davenport agreed, the men who started out with Battery A in Greenville in the autumn of 1940 were fortunate.

"Of the 132 who began active service with the Battery," Davenport said, "only one was killed in action. That was PFC William Earl Vincent of Winterville. Several of the men were wounded, but Vincent's was the only death."

He noted too that all the men originally with Battery A in 1940 did not serve in the European Theater of Operations. Some saw duty in the Pacific.

Davenport said that a sizeable number of the men who started out with Battery A stayed on in military service after the war and made a career in one or another branch of the military. There's several in the local area who became career men and have now retired."

According to a tabulation made by Davenport, of the 132 original members, 36 are now deceased, and there's 24 whose present whereabouts are unknown. "But we know where 72 of the men are," he said. "And the majority of this number still live in the Greenville and Pitt County area."

Statewide Tribute On September 14

All across North Carolina, in dozens of towns where men were called to active duty with the 30th Infantry Division and the 252nd Coast Artillery in September 1940, tributes are to be given on Sunday, September 14 to these veterans of World War II.

In Greenville, the current National Guard units stationed here are scheduling activities to honor these now middle-aged men who served their country as young men 40 years ago. (A list of activities and times will be publicized later this week).

In Farmville, the National Guard unit there is holding an open house from 1 to 3 p.m. to honor former members of the 30th Division and the 252nd Coast Artillery.

"I hope that all the men who were with these units will attend the tribute on Sunday," Davenport said. "Also, their friends and families are encouraged to attend. If there's anyone who knows the whereabouts of any of the 24 members whose present address is unknown, we'd liked to be informed."

Bloody Brawl

NILES, Ill. (UPI) — A "drunk, unruly crowd" was to blame for a fistfight that mushroomed into a bloody, parking-lot encore to a Hank Williams Jr. country music concert at a suburban Chicago theater, authorities said Saturday.

"It was just a bloody mess," said police Lt. Frank Stankowicz. "Everybody was screaming and kicking and jumping up and down, including policemen trying to stop it."

Stankowicz blamed the fracas on a "drunk unruly crowd who were bringing their own whisky and beer and wine... redneck people who like drinking and country music."

Six persons were taken to hospitals after the melee that erupted in the Mill Run Theater parking lot shortly before midnight Friday as some 1,800 people left the concert.

Two Niles police officers also suffered minor injuries in the disturbance, the worst in the suburb in nine years, said police Sgt. William Reid. He said a number of other people suffered cuts and bruises but declined medical treatment. One man was arrested.

Witnesses told police two men who quarreled inside the theater carried the argument to the parking lot after the concert and began a fistfight which escalated into a brawl.

To Discuss Detroit Police Layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Top officials of Wayne County, the third most populous in the nation, plan to meet with court representatives Monday to discuss layoffs as part of an effort to eliminate a projected $20 million budget deficit.

Wayne County Board of Commissioners Chairman Samuel Turner, who has been meeting with elected officials, wants to talk to court representatives who fought money-saving cuts in the ranks of their own employees last year. Several county departments also received court orders in the past to protect the jobs of their personnel. Altogether, the county wants to cut 775 jobs.

Wayne county narrowly averted payless paydays for its employees twice during August and could not meet the payroll on time on two occasions late last year. Budget Director Constantine Stathos has said cash flow problems cause the county to go "hand-to-mouth" in meeting its debts, including payroll.

To resolve that difficulty, the county wants to borrow $20 million from the state through tax anticipation loans.

However, Turner told county officials Friday that the Municipal Finance Commission has made its feelings clear: If any money is lent, the county must take action to eliminate its deficit. That would include layoffs.

Turner called the elected officials together to discuss his plans for budget cuts. But reaction to the proposals ranged from skepticism to hostility.

Morgan Denies Report On Blocking Helms Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., denied reports Saturday that he will try to block a bill backed by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that would open potential wilderness areas in the North Carolina mountains to timber and mining.

Helms has already steered his bill out of the Senate Agriculture Committee and toward a Senate vote.

The Winston-Salem Journal, quoting unnamed sources, reported Saturday that Morgan plans next week to ask Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, the Senate Democratic leader, to help block the Helms measure. Morgan had been silent on the issue.

Contacted Saturday, Morgan said, "I have no plans for either blocking or promoting the bill."

The U.S. Forest Service has proposed that 66,478 acres of remote and scenic land in North Carolina's national forests be set aside as permanent wilderness protected from development, mining and timber industry. Most of that land is in the mountains.

But Helms, at the urging of the timber industry and other business interests, is trying to head off the Forest Service proposal with a wilderness bill of his own. It would set aside a smaller amount of land, 16,749 acres, as protected wilderness. And none of the protected land under the Helms bill is in the mountains.

Reports that Morgan planned to seek to block the Helms bill upset aides in Helms's office Friday.

"They want wilderness? I am astounded," said George Dunlop, Helms' aide on the Agriculture Committee.

State officials have backed the Forst Service recommendation after holding years of hearings and study.

Morgan wants the state's position reflected in any wilderness bill that passes the Senate, said Tom Blanton, a Morgan aide.

"Sen. Morgan has said in the past that if a genuine wilderness bill is considered, then the folks in Raleigh would have to be considered," Blanton said.

East Loses Appeal On Ballot Order

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Republican Senate candidate John East has lost his appeal seeking to change the order of names on the state's fall ballot, and the state Board of Elections is going ahead with the printing of ballots.

The U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond upheld an earlier ruling by federal District Court Judge Earl Britt to dismiss East's suit.

The ruling was made Wednesday but word of the decision did not reach Republican officials in Raleigh until Friday.

"What they did was shoot us out of the saddle," said state GOP Chairman Jack Lee.

Lee said East's lawyers were looking into a possible appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

But state elections board Director Alex Brock said 1.5 million paper ballots have been printed according to the decision and would be shipped to counties beginning Monday.

East wanted the courts to overturn the state Board of Elections, which established that the U.S. Senate race and congressional races will be placed at the bottom of the state ballot, below races for governor, lieutenant governor and council of state offices.

Winterville Held Hearing

WINTERVILLE — The Board of Aldermen met Wednesday night to conduct a public hearing on the annexation of Ragland Acres.

Mayor Dail read the petition for annexation, which was signed by 42 residents. Ragland Acres is a development consisting of 29.79 acres. Ten persons voted for annexation of this tract, with nine opposing.

Town services that would be provided to the development include in-town water and sewer rates, maintenence of streets, twice per week garbage pickup, street lights and a voice in town government.

No decision was made by the board on annexation.

Winterville Board To Meet

WINTERVILLE — The Board of Aldermen will hold their monthly meeting Monday night at the town hall at 7 p.m. On the agenda are reports from the fire, rescue, aldermen and mayor committees.

The Weathington Heights-Robinson Heights ditch project report will be presented by Alderman Bobby Crawford. The board will also consider additions to the rules and regulations of the fire department. The date for a public hearing for revising a planning and zoning ordinance will be set and three persons will be appointed to a three-year term on the board of adjustment.

Three Cuban Nationals Arrested

MIAMI (AP) — An FBI investigation "targeted at Cuban intelligence" led to the arrests of three Cuban nationals at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport, an FBI official said. The three men, who arrived in Fort Lauderdale Monday aboard a Nicaraguan-registered Lear jet, were taken into custody Friday. They carried Nicaraguan passports and were charged with providing false information to obtain U.S. visas.

The aircraft, valued at $3.3 million, was impounded by the Treasury Department under the Foreign Asset Control Act. Authorities were seeking to determine whether it was the property of the Cuban government. "The arrests are an outgrowth of our intelligence investigation targeted to Cuban intelligence," said Arthur F. Nehrbass, special agent in charge of the Miami FBI office.

He declined to say whether authorities thought the men were agents of Cuban President Fidel Castro's communist government.

Document Claims Casino Corruption

NEW YORK (AP) — Camden, N.J., Mayor Angelo Errichetti promised kickbacks to undercover FBI agents in the Abscam investigation if they invested money in the Penthouse casino-hotel project in Atlantic City, N.J., according to an affidavit unsealed Friday.

The eight-page affidavit, unsealed in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, alleged that Errichetti had brought in an associate, Tony Tocassio of Las Vegas, to manage the casino and that Tocassio would be able to "skim one-third off the top" of Penthouse's profits.

The court document, made available by Thomas Puccio, a prosecutor in the Abscam investigation, said Errichetti "offered a package of a hotel and casino with Penthouse and its president, Robert Guccione."

It said, "Errichetti was behind Guccione and had represented that he could secure a casino license for him."

Errichetti, Tocassio and Penthouse, whose casino is currently under construction in Atlantic City, could not immediately be reached for comment.

The affidavit was sealed in June of 1979 because U.S. District Judge Jacob Mishler feared its disclosure would tip persons named in the Abscam investigation of the undercover investigation.

To Research Remains Of Five Babies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A noted anthropologist who researched the age of Ramses III centuries after the pharaoh's death has been asked to help determine what killed five babies whose remains were found stuffed in an attic trunk as long as 50 years after their deaths.

The infant remains were discovered this week in the southwestern Pennsylvania town of Gallitzin after a two-page letter was released following the death of 76-year-old spinster Stella Williamson. Miss Williamson lived in the house where the trunk was discovered.

Dr. Wilton M. Krogman, who once worked for crime fighter Elliott Ness, is among a handful of anthropologists who analyze bones and other human remains for police detectives, and will assist Dr. Halbert E. Fillinger, Philadelphia's medical examiner, in his latest assignment.

ECU GRADUATE IS MISS VIRGINIA — Holly Jereme of Daleville, Virginia, a 1979 fall semester graduate of East Carolina University, is representing her home state of Virginia in the 1980 Miss America Beauty Pageant which ended last night. While a student in the Department of Speech and Drama at ECU, she became well known for her performances in several Playhouse productions, including "Bye, Bye Birdie," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "A Cry of Players" and others. She also danced in ECU dance revues. In recent summers she worked in the Broadway Music Hall revue at Busch Gardens, Williamsburg and as a member of the cast of "I Hear America Singing" at Opryland, USA, Nashville. Ms. Jereme was the 1979 recipient of the Amanda Loessin Award, a scholarship for students studying acting. (ECU News Bureau Photo by Marianne Baines.)

35,000 Teachers Strike

By ANDREW TULLY III
United Press International

The three-day teachers' strike in Newark, N.J., was over Saturday, but negotiations to end teachers' walkouts in Philadelphia and Rochester, N.Y., were stalled. In all, some 35,000 teachers in nine states and Puerto Rico were striking schools with enrolments of 600,000 students.

Virtually all the strikes involved teachers' demands for highers wages, job security or working conditions, but more than 400 teachers in eight Puerto Rican communities with 6,000 pupils were seeking reinstatement of 10 fired teachers. No progress had been reported by Saturday.

In Newark, round-the-clock negotiations ended the nation's second-largest strike late Friday with a new two-year tentative contract to be ratified Sunday by the city's 5,500 teachers and by the School Board on Monday. Classes for the city's 62,000 students will resume Monday.

About 100 teachers in Carlinville, Ill., also settled a two-week strike late Friday so classes could resume Monday for the town's 1,700 students, but a new strike began in the Chicago suburb of Thornton, and the number of teachers' strikes in the state held at seven, affecting about 100,000 students.

Negotiations to end the strike by Philadelphia's 23,000 teachers and other workers, the nation's largest school strike, broke off Friday and no new talks were scheduled. The strikers are seeking higher pay and job security.

School Superintendent Michael Marcase said classes would open Monday for the city's 220,000 students, but the students may have to be sent home early if not enough non-striking teachers and supervisory personnel show up.

Elsewhwere in Pennsylvania, about 3,500 teachers were striking 17 school districts with a total enrollment of 51,000.

Negotiators in Rochester, N.Y., worked through the night until early Saturday in an effort to end a strike by 2,300 teachers also seeking higher pay. The talks, supervised by a state mediator, resumed after a break for food and sleep and were expected to continue non-stop for the second straight day.

The strike began Tuesday and 38 of the city's 55 schools stayed open, but the schools were ordered closed as of Monday until the strike can be settled. All public employee strikes in New York state are illegal and the teachers could be fined two days' pay for each day they are off the job.

In Rhode Island, the opening of the fall term was delayed for 21,300 students in four communities. Teachers themselves called three strikes, and in North Providence they refused to cross picket lines set up by 183 striking custodial workers.

Debutante Ball Held Friday Evening

RALEIGH — The fall season in North Carolina is highlighted yearly by the traditional Debutante Ball held usually in early September. The formal presentation of 254 young ladies from across the state was held in the Civic Center here Friday evening.

Miss Margery Scott Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson Jr., led the debutantes in forming the cartwheel figure. She was escorted by J. Lanse Houston, chairman of the ball.

Wally Hinkamp and his orchestra provided music for the presentation. Just prior to the presentation of debutantes, members of the Terpsichorean Club and their ladies formed their figure on the floor of the Civic Center.

The debutantes, their families and marshals arrived here Thursday for registration followed by a rehearsal and a cocktail party honoring the young ladies and their parents at the Carolina Country Club. Mothers of the girls were given a brunch by the Honorary Chairman Mrs. Charles Lee Smith Jr., also at the club, Friday at noon while debutantes and their chief marshals were given a champagne brunch at the Angus Barn. A dance at the Carolina Country Club followed the activities at the Civic Center.

A morning dance Saturday at the Carolina Country Club was attended by the debutantes and their escorts and a parents' party was held during early evening at the Capital City Club. The Civic Center was the scene for the dance later during the evening for the debutantes and marshals.

Four groups, Janis, Fat Amons, Chairman of the Board and the Catalinas, provided music for dancing Saturday morning. Fat Amons and Cymbol Eight teamed up for the entertainment at the final party Saturday evening.

Debutantes from Greene, Martin and Pitt Counties being presented included: Julia Claire Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hiss and Doskey will be assisted by faculty musicians David Hawkins, oboe, James Parnell, horn, Selma Cokcen, violoncello; and also by Terri Svec, oboe, Matthew Morris and Ardis Harrar, bassoons; and baritones Alan Jones and Jeffrey Krantz.

Selections for the program are two bass arias by Johann Sebastian Bach from his "B-minor Mass;" three songs from "Des Knaben Wunderhorn" by Gustav Mahler; a selection of Bach's "Art of the Round" songs written for three baritone voices and bass accompaniment (to be sung in Engish); four songs by Maurice Ravel originally written to be sung by the Russian basso Feodor Chaliapin in a Don Quixote film (but never so used); and six "Village Songs" by Francis Poulenc, written in the early 1940's, touching on topics of springtime, a silly girl, guys going to the fair, a beggar, the return of a sergeant, and a "Song for Sifting."

To Form A Local Sweet Adelines Group

Local women interested in learning to sing barbershop harmony are invited to attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, September 8 in Memorial Baptist Church, 264 by-pass near 14th Street.

Mrs. Mary Koonce is conducting the meeting of those interested in forming a chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc.

Mrs. Koonce notes the Monday meeting will be a get acquainted affair, with temporary officers elected and discussion held on a permanent meeting place.

She explains that musical knowledge is not necessary to sing with the prospective group. "If you like to sing and want to contribute a few hours each month, you'll enjoy Sweet Adelines," she says.

Women of all ages are invited to attend. Twenty or more members are needed to form a chapter.

Sweet Adelines, Inc. is an international four-part harmony organization for women interested in singing barbershop music. It is a civic service-hobby organization, and once formed and in operation, will be available to sing at various civic functions and to entertain charitable groups.

Persons wanting more information are to call Mrs. Koonce at 756-7305.

Stewart Theater To Present St. Mark

RALEIGH — "St Mark's Gospel," to be performed by Michael Tolaydo on Sunday, September 14 at 7 p.m. in Stewart Theater, N. C. State University, is the dramatic presentation of the life of Jesus as told by his most immediate biographer, Saint Mark.

The event, one that is both religious and theatrical, is co-sponsored by the Combined Campus Ministry and Stewart Theater. Tickets will be available at the door.

Staging "St. Mark's Gospel" was the original idea of English actor Alec McCowen. "Time" magazine said "the simple audacity of the enterprise is breathtaking."

The performance is carried out on a stage furnished only with a table and three chairs. The actor, dressed in a sports coat and open-necked shirt, comes on stage, recites from memory the entire Gospel according to St. Mark, then leaves the stage. "Time" added "It is compelling theater that is at the same time non-theatrical."

Actor-storyteller Tolaydo was personally selected by McCowen out of more than 200 who auditioned for the role.

Tickets are priced at $5.50. For more information and reservations call 737-3105.

Picasso's Art: A Vision To Remember

By LINDA UNDERWOOD

This year the Museum of Modern Art in New York City celebrates its 50th anniversary . . . one year before the 100th anniversary of the death of Pablo Picasso. To mark the two events, the museum has chosen to devote its entire gallery space to a mammoth retrospective of Picasso's work dating from 1889-1969.

Over 900 of Picasso's paintings, sculptures, drawings, ceramics, costumes, and collages fill the three floors of the museum. Many of these works are on loan from museums in France, England, Russia, and Spain and from private collections all over the world.

The collection is impressive for the volume of works alone. More importantly, it is now possible — since so many of his works are housed together under one roof for the first time — to acquire a sense of Picasso's growth and development as an artist and to understand his well deserved reputation as one of the most dynamic, innovative artists of the 20th century.

The exhibit begins in gallery one on the first floor with Picasso's earliest known work, "Picador," painted at age eight, and moves from his early academic paintings to the blue and rose periods to early Cubism to analytic Cubism and finally builds to a gripping crescendo with "Guernica" at the entrance to the third floor.

The presentation of the wall-sized "Guernica" as one rounds the corner of the third floor gallery is just one example of the museum's carefully planned arrangement of Picasso's work. Another sensitive grouping takes place on the first floor gallery. As one leaves the room of Picasso's blue and rose period paintings, one crosses an architectural ramp, and is suddenly plunged into early Cubism and confronted by the famous "Les Demoiselles d'Avignon." This physical separation of styles commands a fresh evaluation by the viewer of the shock engendered by Cubism in the early 20th century.

Although some well-known works are absent from the exhibit (e.g., "The Old Guitarist," "The Family of Saltimbanques"), no phase of Picasso's career has been neglected. Ten-foot tall costumes and set designs for the ballet "Parade" fill one room on the second floor while, throughout the rest of the museum, whimsical ceramic owls, a sheet metal and wire guitar, a sculptured baboon with a toy car head, and tender portraits of the artist's son, Paulo, tests one's imaginative powers at each turn.

One room is devoted to Picasso's paraphrases of the old masters . . . Le Nain's "The Peasant's Repose," Manet's "Luncheon on the Grass," and many other classic paintings are reinterpreted by Picasso in his own style.

Just viewing all of the works of art in this retrospective is a sheer physical accomplishment. Yet, it is a show to be slowly savored. As one nears the end of the exhibit after hours of inching along through galleries crowded with viewers, one again remembers that this is all the work of one man. Even more astounding is the variety of styles, techniques, and materials used by this lone artist.

Picasso's unique vision of the 20th century through art is on view at the Museum of Modern Art through September 30. For me, his vision is one worth remembering.

(Editor's Note: Ms. Underwood, a native of Florida, is a graduate student in the English Department, East Carolina University. Her undergraduate studies werein art. She notes that anyone who may be planning to see the show in its last days may be disappointed, as the tremendous demand for tickets almost certainly precludes success in getting tickets at this late date).

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By LINDA M. STANCILL

Do you ever wonder about the everyday things around you? Things so often taken for granted may have originated with interesting, little known facts.

"Stories Behind Everyday Things" by Reader's Digest present strange and fascinating facts about what's all around us. It covers things, tangible or intangible that figure in our daily lives and includes subjects as diverse as apples and automobiles, doctors and dolls, scandals and shipping.

Ordinary things of today may have been exotic, frightening or forbidden in past years, for even buttons had to be smuggled into England in the reign of Charles II.

The modern latest dance craze may actually be ancient history, as the can-can which shocked Nikita Khrushchev in Paris had been performed in Egypt 4,000 years earlier. There have been obscure versions of what is now commonplace as in ancient Greece coin-operated machines dispensed holy water. Interesting facts about the bicycle reveal it to be responsible for the disappearance of thousands of horses from city streets and that cyclists' demands were responsible for better roads, signs, maps, hotels and taverns.

In addition to little-known facts behind ordinary things there are unique ways of looking at them, as a mechanic sees an engine through different eyes from an adverstising man. Entertaining as well as informative, "Stories Behind Everyday Things" gives you a different perspective of the things around you.

— The origin of everyday words and phrases is explored by Thad Stem, Jr. in "Ransacking Words and Customs From A To Izzard." In a leisurely, fun-filled stroll through countless fascinating by-paths and bridle paths of open-handed history, Stem reveals the origin and original purpose of countless words you speak everyday. He explains scores of customs, words and phrases such as "O.K.," "cocktail," "Mason and Dixie Line," "Dixie" (the region), "bring home the bacon," "wine," "barbecue," "two bits," "kissing cousin," "the real McCoy," "smart as a Philadelphia lawyer," etc.

Scholarship, vignettes of history and fascinating explanations of the origin of words and customs are all combined in "Ransacking Words and Customs From A to Izzard" to make it interesting and informative.

A half hour film, "The Islander," will be shown daily during the exhibition. It was produced by Mississippi Educational Television, and was shown over PBS.

Losing The Ball

Pirates Pound Devils Behind Collins' 3 Scores

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

DURHAM — East Carolina University turned a Duke fumble into a touchdown in the late stages of the first half for a 14-7 lead, then completely dominated play in the second half on the way to a 35-10 victory Saturday afternoon in Wallace Wade Stadium.

Running back Anthony Collins, who had missed 11 practice days prior to the game, scored three of the Pirate touchdowns, while Mike Hawkins and Theodore Sutton each scored once.

For Sutton, it was a sweet score, and the Pirates knew it, calling his number five straight times in the shadow of the goal line on their final touchdown drive. Sutton, whose eligibility had been questioned by Duke, finally scored from the one.

Collins went in from the 1, the 14 and the 2. Hawkins broke away for a 41-yard scoring ramble, and Bill Lamm added five extra points.

Duke's lone touchdown came on a 6-yard pass from freshman quarterback Ben Bennett to Cedric Jones, and Scott McKinney added a third-period field goal from 39 yards out.

But by then, the 27,400 opening-day fans knew who was in charge.

"This is one of the happiest moments of my life," Ed Emory, who is now 1-0 in his collegiate career as a head coach. "I just wish that some special people could have been here: my dad, (the late) Clint Prewitt, who hired me, and Ginger Parker (wife of defensive coordinator Norm Parker), who was seriously injured last spring in an automobile accident."

The team dedicated the game to the Parkers, and presented the game ball to the defensive coach.

"Duke is going to be a fine football team," Emory said. "They will surprise some people. But it takes time to develop a passing game. If the people will stick with 'em and have patience, Duke has a chance to have a heck of a team in the future."

Emory then turned philosophical. "Did Bear Bryant win his first game? I bet nobody here knows. It's not how you start, but how you finish."

How they finished was the whole thing in the game Saturday. The Pirates didn't start out all that strong, but they finished very strong.

Neither team scored in the first period, and both had the chance. East Carolina drove to the Duke 42 before running out of gas on its first drive, and later, Duke, helped along by a 15-yard penalty against ECU, moved past the midfield stripe to the 48. Late in the quarter, the Pirates failed to move the ball after starting a series at the Duke 45, failing to pick up a first down.

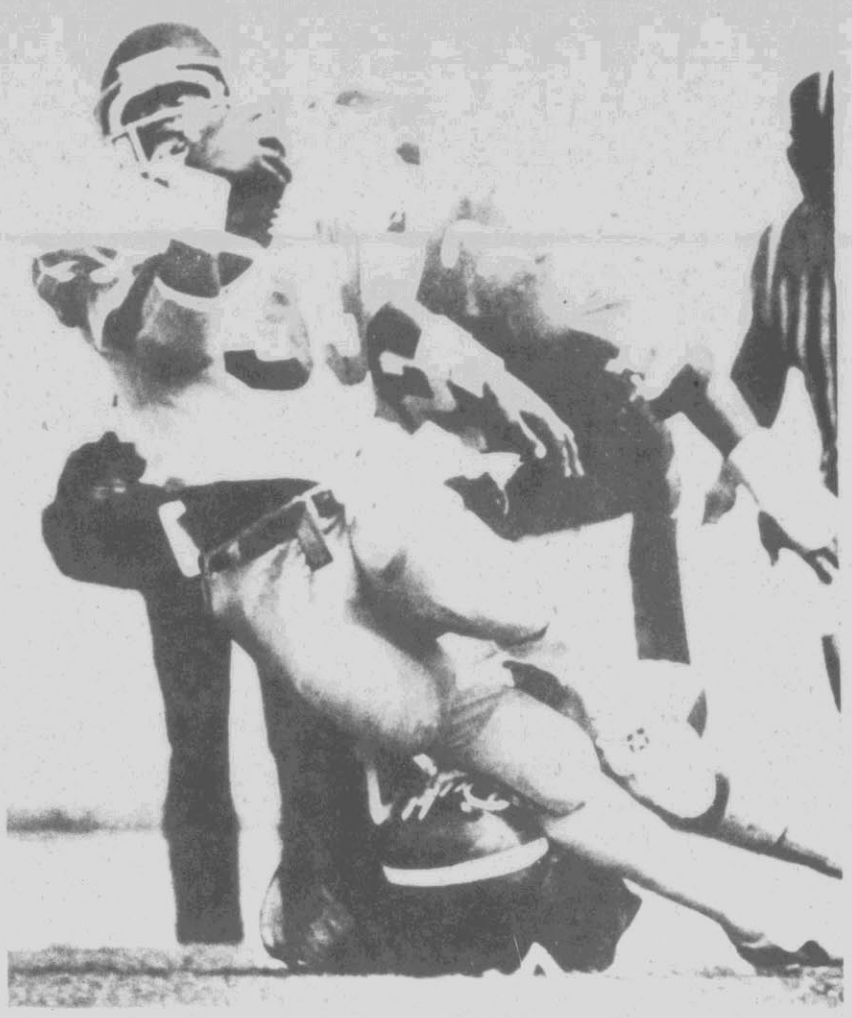

But early in the second period, the Pirates drove for their first score. Taking over at the Duke 44 after a punt, the Pirates scored in nine plays. Sophomore quarterback Carlton Nelson, making his first start, picked up 9 yards on first down, then added 2 more on second down. Sutton and Collins carried it from there, with Collins picking up 20 yards to the one on an option flip from Nelson. After Sutton failed to make it over the line on the next play, Nelson faked a handoff to the fullback, then tossed it back to Collins who went around the right end behind a block by Larry O'Roark for the score. With 11:34 left in the period, it was 7-0.

Duke came right back, moving to the 42 before an attempt to draw the Pirates offsides on fourth and two failed, and the Blue Devils drew a 5-yard penalty.

The Blue Devils got it back at the 27, however, and drove for their only touchdown of the game. "I thought that we played good defense against the pass in the first quarter, but we let down in the second quarter (when Duke scored). We talked to them about this in the locker room, and I think we got back to it in the second half," Emory said.

Bennett, at any rate, found the going tough. The young quarterback, who showed a lot of poise despite the problems he had, completed 11 of 23, and was sacked on seven occasions,

Lloyd Wins Fifth Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd wore down 18-year-old Hana Mandlikova with her steady baseline strokes and captured her fifth U.S. Open tennis championship with an emotion-charged 5-7, 6-1, 6-1 victory Saturday.

"This has been the toughest Open of all for me and the most emotional," said Lloyd, who earned a first prize of $46,000 from the total purse of $654,082. "For two years I kept reading about how I was no longer No. 1. It was discouraging. I lost a little faith in myself."

Now that faith has been restored, and Chris Evert Lloyd, the former queen of tennis, is back on her throne.

The king of tennis, five-time Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, kept his hopes alive for his first Open crown by rallying from a two-set deficit and winning his semifinal match against unseeded Johan Kriek of South Africa 4-6, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1.

Borg, the top seed who has now won the last 13 five-set matches he's played, will face defending champion John McEnroe in Sunday's men's singles final.

The second-seeded McEnroe gained the final by outslugging third-seeded Jimmy Connors 6-4, 5-7, 0-6, 6-3, 7-6 in a brilliant exhibition of power tennis that lasted 4 hours 15 minutes, starting out under bright sunshine and ending under the lights.

McEnroe won the dramatic fifth-set tiebreaker 7-3, closing it out with a service winner.

Lloyd, who won the Open from 1975 through 1978 before being dethroned Tracy Austin in 1979, appeared drained after her victory. "I'm thrilled," she said simply, when asked her feelings. "I really wanted to win this tournament."

Lloyd's victory, a popular one with the capacity crowd of 18,586 at the National Tennis Center, capped her remarkable climb back to the top of women's tennis. She dominated the sport in the mid and late 1970s before losing the fiery competitive drive that was so much a key to her success.

"The last two years I haven't been No. 1 and a lot of the press was very discouraging," she said. "It was all about Tracy and Martina (Navratilova), and how Chris was no longer No. 1 and never would be again.

"Maybe I wanted to prove, not only to myself but to everyone else, that when I play well I can come out on top."

She began her comeback in March, after taking three months away from the sport. "For six weeks I didn't pick up a racket," she recalled. "Then one day I went out and hit some balls with John (husband John Lloyd, a British pro). It was fun for me. That was when I knew I was ready to come back."

And come back she has, winning six of seven tournaments since rejoining the tour and compiling a stunning 42-1 match record — losing only to Evonne Goolagong in the Wimbledon final.

In Friday's semifinals Lloyd beat defending champion Tracy Austin, the No. 1 player in both the seedings and the computer rankings and the only one she had not previously beaten since her return to action.

Heels Rip Furman Behind Lawrence

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — One would expect North Carolina head football coach Dick Crum to wax eloquent following Saturday's 35-13 thumping of Furman. But Crum kept his comments on the 14th ranked Tar Heels simple.

"I thought our first offense and defense played a very solid ballgame," Crum said. At best, solid is an understatement.

Led by senior tailback Amos Lawrence, the Tar Heels amassed 445 yards in offense. Lawrence gained 119 of them in 16 carries. He also scored two touchdowns on a 4-yard run and a 13-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Rod Elkins.

Another sophomore, tailback Kelvin Bryant, added 105 yards on 17 carries. He scored three touchdowns including a 1-yard plunge with no time on the clock at the half.

Elkins was thrust into the starting role when junior Chuck Sharp suffered a knee injury in a preseason scrimmage. But in his debut before a Kenan Stadium crowd of more than 50,000, Elkins completed six of nine passes for 57 yards and the scoring play to Lawrence.

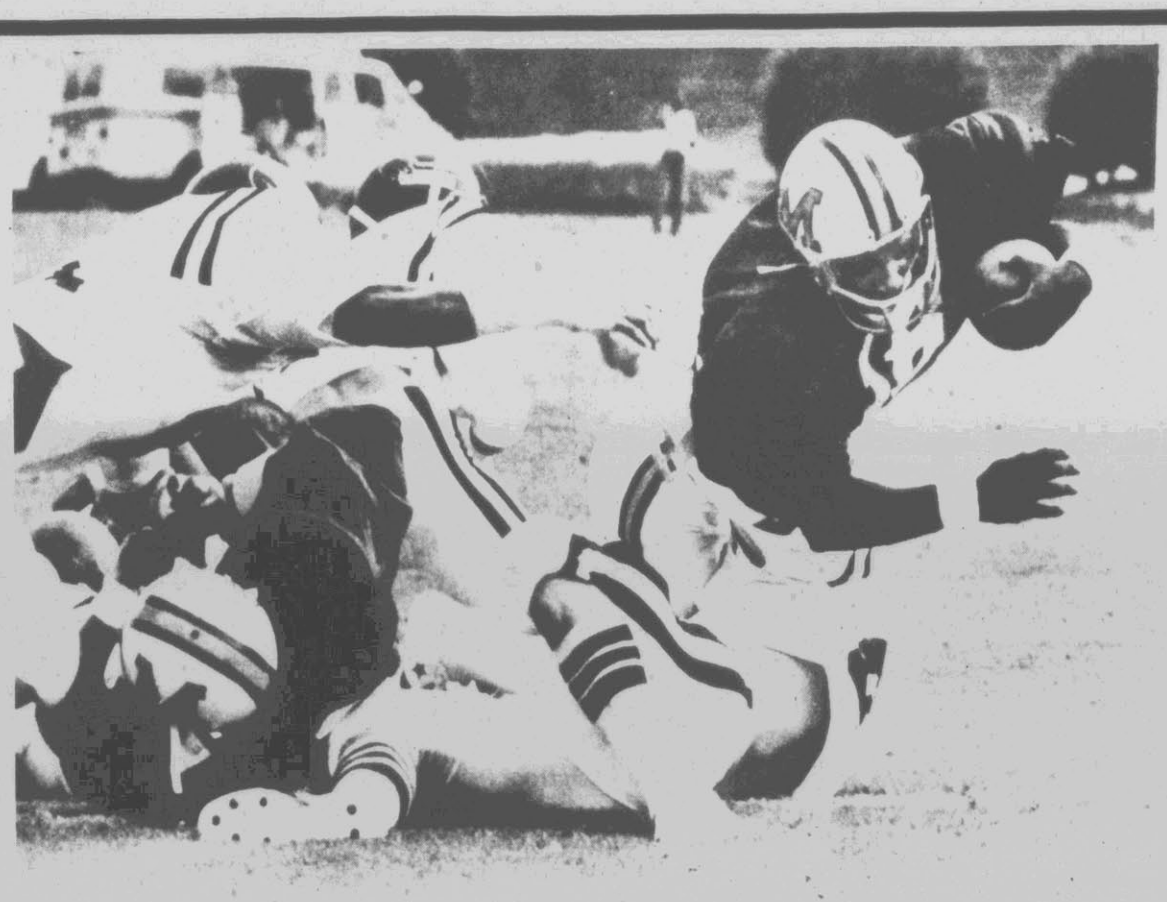

"We did not throw the ball nearly as much as we will later in the season," Crum said. "We just wanted to get him (Elkins) settled in."

Furman mustered 193 yards against a Tar Heel defense which refused to break down. Their only scores came on two field goals by Tim Tanguay and a 94-yard return of a fumble by Kevin Quinlin late in the fourth quarter.

Following Furman's first possession, the Tar Heels marched down the field and scored on a 4-yard run by Lawrence with 9:59 remaining in the first quarter. Lawrence gained 36 of the 48 yards covered in the drive.

Furman reached the Tar Heel 42 on its second possession

Terps Squeeze By Villanova, 7-3

Even after a pregame warning from Coach Jerry Claiborne, the Terps had to turn in a superb defensive effort to hold off the Wildcats, 7-3, Saturday.

"I told them before the game that it's a different ballgame now because of the new scholarship rule," Claiborne said. "I told them they're coming down here planning to win and that we couldn't afford to make mistakes."

Maryland lost three fumbles, however, and managed to win on a one-yard touchdown run by Charlie Wysocki after Villanova fumbled away the opening kickoff.

It was the eighth consecutive victory over Villanova since Claiborne came to Maryland in 1972. But whereas, the first four decisions were by a combined 150-10 margin, the last four have been decided by a total of 28 points.

"The defense made some big plays, especially when they got the ball back after we had given it up," Claiborne said.

Maryland, a 14-point favorite, intercepted two passes and recovered three fumbles. In addition to setting up Maryland's only score, the turnovers stopped the Wildcats at the Maryland 16, 24, 32 and 17.

"We weren't setting the woods on fire throwing the ball," said Claiborne of a five-for-15 passing attack. "We had receivers open and they dropped some. We've got to have more consistency to get a balanced attack."

On the ground, Maryland rushed for 224 yards, including 177 by Wysocki on 36 carries.

"I'm very disappointed," said Villanova Coach Dick

..C.State Gallops Past Outmanned W&M, 42-0

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State made a believer out of William & Mary coach Jimmye Laycock with its 42-0 rout of the Tribe Saturday night.

"As the season goes on I think everyone is going to see just how good N.C. State is," Laycock said. "They dominated the line of scrimmage. We were too young and not deep enough."

Fullback Eddie Jackson and halfback Wayne McLean scored two touchdowns each and the N.C. State defense held William & Mary to only 3 yards rushing in the season opener for both teams and the inaugural game for Wolfpack coach Monte Kiffin.

"I believed we could win, and I thought we were well prepared. But you never really know," Kiffin said.

Kiffin said he was impressed with the performance of freshman quarterback Tol Avery. He said he believed that "he's going to be a good one."

Jackson scored on runs of 1 and 5 yards and McLean's touchdowns came on runs of 21 and 7 yards as the Wolfpack tallied almost at will on the hot, muggy night.

Avery guided the Wolfpack attack with the poise of a veteran, running nine times for 63 yards, completing seven of 10 passes for 84 yards and scoring the game's opening touchdown on a 3-yard run.

He retired to the bench midway of the third quarter with leg cramps.

Irish Rout Purdue, 31-10

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Mike Courey, Notre Dame's "mystery-man" quarterback, threw for one touchdown and ran for another Saturday and Phil Carter rushed for 142 yards to lead the 11th-ranked Irish to a 31-10 victory over Purdue.

The Irish had the advantage before the game started as Mark Herrmann, Purdue's passing great, was unable to play because of a sprained thumb suffered in practice earlier in the week.

Herrmann was replaced by freshman Scott Campbell, who gave a good account of himself and in one stretch competed 10 passes to lift the ninth-ranked Boilermakers from a 17-0 deficit to within 17-10 in the first half.

Courey opened the second half with a 57-yard pass to Tony Hunter, and seven plays later, hit Hunter with a 9-yard touchdown pass and the Boilermakers never recovered.

Late in the fourth quarter, Courey scampered 14 yards around left end for a touchdown which clinched the outcome.

Carter scored one of Notre Dame's touchdowns on a 1-yard plunge and carried 29 times for his 142 yards, while Coury completed 10 of 13 passes for 151 yards. He also gained 59 yards rushing.

Campbell completed 17 of 26 passes for 178 yards. His 10 completions in a row came on his last attempts in the first half, when the Boilermakers put together all of their scoring on a 26-yard field goal by Rick Anderson and a 4-yard touchdown run by Wally Jones.

Opening-game tension was evident in the early going, and neither team was able to do much with its first possession. The second time the Irish gained control, they managed the game's initial first down on a 15-yard run by Carter to the Purdue 24.

Carter carried two more times before the Irish settled for a 36-yard field goal by Harry Oliver.

Before Purdue was able to make a first down, Notre Dame ran up a 7-0 lead as the Irish scored touchdowns on their next two possessions.

Coureythen went 18 yards on a broken pass play and hit Pete Holohan with an 18-yard pass to set up a two-yard touchdown run by Rob McGarry to cap a 43-yard drive.

Moments later, Greg Hayes shanked a punt that traveled just 23 yards before going out of bounds at the Purdue 46. Courey hit Dean Masztak with a 28-yard pass and completed another for 9 yards to John Sweeney to set up a 1-yard touchdown plunge by Carter.

Trailing 17-0, Purdue finally managed a first down on a 12-yard pass from Campbell to Steve Bryant. The Boilermakers then drove all the way to the Irish 9-yard line before Anderson kicked his 26-yard field goal.

The Boilermakers then drove 68 yards in eight plays, with Campbell completing four pases, including one for 41 yards to Dave Young before Jones battled across from the 4-yard line for a touchdown to cut the lead to 17-10 with 34 seconds left in the half.

From the Furman 13, Elkins scrambled to his right before passing to a wide-open Lawrence for a 14-0 lead with 4:28 left in the opening period.

From the Furman 13, Elkins scrambled to his right before passing to a wide-open Lawrence for a 14-0 lead with 4:28 left in the opening period.

The Paladins mounted another drive, this time to the North Carolina 12. But two delay-of-game penalties and an incomplete pass forced Furman to settle for a 39-yard field goal by Tangway, a sophomore.

Johnson fumbled three plays after the kickoff and Chris Buono recovered for Furman at the 24. But Furman's offense stalled again and Tangway booted a 40-yard field goal to close the margin to 14-6 with 10:56 left in the half.

Minutes later, Lawrence coughed up the football at the Tar Heel 29 and the Paladins had another opportunity to close the margin and possibly tie the game. Furman moved to the North Carolina 1, but Lawrence Taylor recovered a fumbled snap on third and goal to end the drive.

North Carolina took a comfortable lead as the first half came to a close. Elkins completed three passes, a pass interference call moved the ball to the Furman 41 and Bryant carried twice to the 19. Elkins then connected with Bryant on an 18-yard strike to the one-yard line and Bryant leaped into the end zone as the clock ran out.

Yanks Win, Lead By 3½

American League

NEW YORK (AP) — Oscar Gamble slammed a two-run homer and also threw out a runner at home plate, leading the New York Yankees to a 7-4 victory over the California Angels Saturday night.

The triumph was the Yankees' sixth straight and ninth in their last 10 games. Coupled with Baltimore's 3-2 loss to Oakland, it gave New York a 3½-game lead over the Orioles in the American League East.

Gamble, playing in left field, saved a run in the second inning when he raced in for Rick Miller's bloop single and threw out Bob Clark with a no-bounce throw to home plate.

Brian Doyle led off the Yankees' third with a single. Two outs later, Gamble hit his 12th homer of the year and his seventh in his last 35 at-bats, off Dave Frost, 4-8, for a Yankee 3-0 lead.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jeff Newman hit his 14th home run of the season and Dave Revering drove in two runs to lead the Oakland A's to a 3-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Saturday night.

Rick Langford, 15-11, pitching his 21st consecutive complete game and his 24th in 27 starts this season, limited the Orioles to eight hits while walking four and striking out one.

Jim Palmer, 15-10, gave up nine hits while striking out five and walking one in 81-3 innings. Tim Stoddard retired the last two batters for Baltimore in the ninth.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Charboneau, Jorge Orta and Toby Harrah clouted home runs to back the solid pitching of Len Barker as the Cleveland Indians downed the Kansas City Royals 8-3 Saturday night.

The three homers paced a 11-hit attack behind Barker, 18-8, who surrendered six hits and struck out nine in 71-3 innings. He leads the American League with 159 strikeouts this season.

Loser Renie Martin, 8-8, gave up Cleveland's first four runs.

Amos Otis singled and later scored on Darrell Porter's sacrifice fly to put the Royals on the scoreboard in the second. But Alan Bannister doubled and Rick Manning singled him home to give the Indians a 3-1 edge.

DETROIT (AP) — Jerry Koosman and Doug Corbettt combined on a three-hitter as the Minnesota Twins beat the Detroit Tigers 4-0 Saturday.

Koosman, 12-12, gave up all three Detroit hits, walked five and struck out three before needing ninth-inning relief from Corbett, who gained his 16th save. The loser was Jack Morris, 13-13.

The Twins opened the scoring in the second on a walk to Mike Cubbage, a groundout and Rick Sofield's single. Detroit third baseman Tom Brookens, who tied an American League record with four errors, made two miscues on Ken Landreaux' third-inning grounder that allowed Rob Wilfong to score from second.

Braves Win 6th Straight

National League

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro had just won the 231st game of his major league career, a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, but expects to enjoy the next three games even more.

"The day I pitch I go to work," he said. "But I'll enjoy the next three days more. Just sitting on the bench. Watching the best team in baseball is fun to me," said the veteran knuckleballer after besting Bert Blyleven on a three-run sixth inning highlighted by Bob Horner's 29th home run, with Rafael Ramirez aboard.

The 41-year-old Niekro, 13-14, aggravated a groin pull in starting a double play in the sixth inning and needed help from Gene Garber to nail down the combined two-hitter for the torrid Braves sixth consecutive triumph and 23rd in their last 29 games. But for seven innings the only base runner the contending Pirates managed was John Milner, who belted his seventh home run in the second.

"I'm not pitching any different today than I was two months ago. Bobby (Manager Cox) lifted me (in the eighth) because I couldn't open up my hips and it made me throw outside a lot. Garber was fantastic," said Niekro.

A double by Jerry Royster, Ramirez's RBI single and Horner's home run provided the Braves with three runs in the sixth.

The victory was Atlanta's 16th in the past 19 games and marked their 10th triumph in 11 meetings against Pittsburgh this season.

The Pirates' only runner through the first five innings was John Milner, who slammed his seventh home run in the second for a 1-0 Pittsburgh lead.

Jerry Royster got Atlanta started in the sixth with a double and advanced to third on right fielder Dave Parker's throwing error. Rafael Ramirez singled home Royster for a 1-1 tie. After Gary Matthews fanned, Horner homered to left for a 3-1 Atlanta advantage.

Bert Blyleven, 7-11, pitched seven innings for the Pirates, giving up only five hits.

The Pirates scored their second run of the game in the eighth when Mike Easler came home from third on an error by Ramirez at short.

Montreal 9

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Montreal Expos capitalized on a record-setting three errors by center fielder Larry Herndon for five unearned runs in the fourth inning and coasted to a 9-0 victory over the sinking San Francisco Giants Saturday.

Scott Sanderson, 14-8, who pitched the first seven innings, and Bill Lee combined on a seven-hitter for Montreal. The Giants, losing their fifth straight game, were shut out for a third straight time by the Expos.

The Expos scored three runs off Ed Whitson, 9-10, in the third inning. Sanderson led off with a walk, took third on Ron LeFlore's double and scored on Rodney Scott's grounder.

Rowland Office followed with an RBI single. After a two-out single by Gary Carter, the Expos scored their final run on an error by Whitson.

Warren Cromartie belted a two-run single and Scott and Andre Dawson each had run-scoring in the fourth. Herndon's three errors in the inning established a new National League record for an outfielder.

The major league record is four, last done by Herschel Bennett of the St. Louis Browns in 1925.

Another major league mark was tied when Expos rookie Tim Wallach hit a homer in the eighth on his first official major league at-bat. Wallach, who hit 36 home runs for Denver of the American Association this season, walked on his first appearance in the fifth inning.

HOUSTON (AP) — Art Howe's two-run single fueled a seven-run third inning Saturday to lead the Houston Astros to a 9-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of a twinight doubleheader.

Houston started the third with singles by Joe Morgan and Enos Cabell. A walk to Jose Cruz loaded the bases.

The first run scored on a wild pitch by St. Louis starter Bob Sykes, 6-10. Other runs scored on a fielder's-choice grounder by Luis Pujols, an error by shortstop Mike Phillips, a double by Joe Niekro and Morgan's second single of the inning.

Houston took a 2-0 lead in the second on a two-run single by Gary Woods.

Niekro, 15-11, lost his shutout in the sixth when the Cards scored four runs on six hits.

FSU Blanks LSU, 16-0; 'Bama Rolls Past Wreck

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Bill Capece kicked three field goals, and Sam Platt ran for a short touchdown Saturday night as 13th-ranked Florida State blanked Louisiana State 16-0 in a non-conference college football opener for both teams.

The Seminoles' 16th straight regular season victory spoiled the coaching debut of former LSU great Jerry Stovall, who was thrust into the Tigers' head job last January when Bo Rein died in a mysterious airplane accident.

Three LSU fumbles and an interception led to all of Florida State's scores, and a roughing the kicker penalty kept the Seminoles' only touchdown drive alive.

On the first play play of the game, LSU's Hokie Gajan fumbled at the Tigers 24 and Bobby Butler recovered. Four plays later, Capece kicked a 34-yard field goal.

On LSU's next possession, All-America noseguard Ron Simmons recovered an Alan Risher fumble at the Tigers 36 and Capece followed with another 34-yard field goal six plays later.

Capece added a 45-yard field goal early in the third quarter, and Florida State drove 57 yards for its only touchdown later that same period. Platt scored from the 3 as the Seminoles covered 57 yards in 11 plays.

Monk Bonasorte's pass interception at the LSU 15 started the touchdown drive. It was kept alive by a roughing the kicker penalty at the Tigers 19 after another 34-yard field goal attempt by Capece was wide.

Georgia 16
Tennessee 15

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Celebrated freshman recruit Herschel Walker bolted for two second-half touchdowns after Georgia scored a safety and the 16th ranked Bulldogs edged Tennessee 16-15 in a Southeastern Conference football opener Saturday night.

The Vols, playing before the largest crowd ever to watch a football game in the South, 95,288, reached the Georgia 1 in the closing minutes where Glen Ford's fumble was recovered by the Bulldogs Pat McShea.

The Vols had bult a 15-0 lead on a safety of their own, and a pair of touchdowns produced by unheralded quarteback Jeff Olszewski, before Georgia staged its second-half rally.

It began in the final four minutes in the third quarter when Bill Bates fumbled a punt at the Tennessee 27 when he was hit by Joe Happe. A wild scramble for the ball developed and it eventually squirted out of the end zone with neither team gaining possession, giving Georgia its safety.

Walker capped a 50-yard drive with only 1:03 left in the quarter when he ran over two defenders on a 16-yard scoring gallop.

Rex Robinson then stretched his SEC record streak to 67 straight extra points, providing the victory margin.

It was the season opener for both teams and thrust Georgia into the role as the leading challenger to defending national champion Alabama in the SEC race. Georgia and Alabama do not meet this year.

South Carolina 37
U. of Pacific 0

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — George Rogers, South Carolina's all-American running back, scored on 44 and 72-yard runs and quarterback Garry Harper added two short plunges for touchdowns to lead the Gamecocks to a 37-0 college football opening victory over University of Pacific Saturday night.

Rogers, who was the nation's second leading rusher last year, gained 153 yards despite carrying the ball just twice in the second half. His 72-yard jaunt was on the second play of the third period and Coach Jim Carlen let him rest the remainder of the game.

The larger Gamecocks dominated the line of scrimmage, forcing trhe Tigers of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association to throw the ball 40 times. They completed 21 for 320 yards but were limited to minus 14 yards on the ground.

S. Mississippi 17
Tulane 14

Held scoreless through the first 30 minutes of play, Southern Mississippi notched all its points in the second half.

After Tulane built up a 14-0 lead, Collier took Southern Mississippi on a touchdown drive in the third quarter, capped by a 13-yard scoring sprint by tailback Ricky Floyd. The kick for the point after failed.

But with just over 5 minutes remaining in the game, Collier again marched Southern Mississippi to a touchdown, capping the time-consuming drive with a 10-yard scoring pass to tight end Marvin Harvey.

Collier then hit Harvey with another pass over the middle for the 2-point conversion that tied it.

Tulane's scores came on a 26-yard field goal by Vince Manalla in the first quarter, a 37-yarder in the second quarter and a 1-yard rollout by quarterback Nickie Hall in the third quarter. Hall hit wide receiver Marcus Anderson for the 2-point conversion.

Alabama 26
Ga. Tech 3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The game went about the way it was supposed to.

Alabama's rugged defense surrendered 166 yards through the air, but kept Georgia Tech bottled up on the ground, allowing only 84 yards on 41 rushes. Meanwhile, the Crimson Tide's offense, though far from overwhelming, reeled off 308 yards on 54 rushes and added 57 more on just two pass completions, one of them for a touchdown.

It all amounted to a 26-3 victory Saturday as Alabama opened defense of its national championship and extended the nation's longest major college winning streak to 22 games.

"I'm proud of the defense for not letting them score a touchdown, and I'm proud of the offense for scoring a couple," Coach Bear Bryant said. "But we never did look like an Alabama team is supposed to on offense. I can't be critical because it was awfully hot out there."

Billy Jackson ran 13 and 5 yards for touchdowns on his first two carries of the season, and world-class sprinter James Mallard caught a 39-yard scoring pass in his first crack at organized football, helping Alabama spoil the head coaching debut of Georgia Tech's Bill Curry9

"We gave them two easy touchdowns," said Curry, "the first after a dropped attempted punt and their third when we blew a coverage. Ironically, our mistakes were made by upperclassmen, not our freshmen and sophomores.

"You give Alabama 14 points and you're dead. Alabama is a great team, the best I've ever seen in college. They're particularly great on defense. I've never seen linebackers and linemen like that."

Alabama took advantage of a fumbled snap by Tech punter Jeff Pierce to set up Jackson's first touchdown just 3:41 into the season and tacked on a pair of second-period scores.

Jackson's 5-yard run at 5:07 capped a 50-yard drive. Mallard, who has run the fastest 200 meters in the world in each of the last two years, got behind defensive back Ken Taylor in the end zone and grabbed Don Jacobs' 39-yard yard heave for a 19-0 lead with 32 seconds left in the half.

Mallard, a 6-foot-2, 185-pound senior from Tampa, Fla., came out for football a year ago, but bowed out because of a foot injury and his training schedule for a trip to the 1980 Olympics. He came out again this fall and is listed as a fourth-string split end.

Alabama, ranked second entering the 1980 season and attempting to become the first team to win three consecutive national championships, gave Bear Bryant his 297th coaching triumph against 77 defeats and 16 ties.

With the temperature in the 90s, Alabama began using its reserves as early as the 9½-minute mark of the opening period. Georgia Tech was never able to mount a rushing attack and Johnny Smith missed field goal attempts of 41 and 25 yards in the first and fourth quarters.

Texas A&M 23
Mississippi 20

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback Mike Mosley sprinted for two touchdowns Saturday night as Texas A&M combined his lightning slashes and fine passing to overpower the Mississippi Rebels 23-20.

Mosley ran 43 yards in the first quarter and 40 in the second to keep the Aggies ahead in the season-opening battle of high-powered quarterbacks.

Mosley accounted for 116 yards on 16 rushes, and 128 yards on 11 pass completions as Texas A&M kept just ahead of the eager Rebels.

Ole Miss quarterback John Fourcade made his team a constant threat with his passing and his scrambling runs. He threw touchdown passes of eight and 49 yards to split end Ken Toler and dashed 25 yards for the Rebels' other touchdown.

Fourcade completed 16 of 33 passes for 219 yards, and added 44 more yards running. But he also threw four interceptions, one of them to Aggie defensive back Dan Davis who sprinted 11 yards for the other A&M touchdown.

David Hardy added a 43-yard field goal to provide the Aggie victory margin.

Western Carolina . . 16
VMI 14

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP) — Freshman Dean Biasucci kicked a 27-yard field goal with 14 seconds remaining to give Western Carolina a heart-stopping 16-14 season-opening Southern Conference victory over Virginia Military Institute Saturday night.

Western Carolina took a 13-0 lead in the third quarter, but went cold as VMI's Keydets put on touchdown drives of 65 and 85 yards to take a 14-13 lead with 3:02 to play.

The Catamounts then took the ball down to the VMI 11 yard line in 12 plays and Biassuci, in his first college game, hit his third field goal of the night.

Western scored first in the second quarter on a 20-yard field goal by Biasucci, capping a 65-yard drive.

The Catamounts made it 10-0 less than two minutes later when VMI quarterback Dan Fritz fumbled, and the ball squirted through a mad scramble before Catamount tackle John Strong pounced on it at the Keydet 1.

Tailback Anthony James scored two plays later.

The Catamounts made it 13-0 when VMI fumbled at their own 24 as Biasucci again connected with a 26-yard field goal just five plays later.

Appalachian St. . . . 34

HARRISONBURG, Va. (AP) — Appalachian State's Steve Brown threw for 257 yards and two touchdowns and split end Rick Beasley caught nine passes for 231 yards and two scores Saturday night as the Mountaineers romped to a season-opening 34-6 football victory over James Madison's Dukes.

Brown, third in the nation in total offense last season as a junior, hit 15 of 28 passes despite sitting out most of the second half.

Stanford 35
Oregon 25

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Quarterback John Elway riddled the Oregon defense for 250 yards passing Saturday to lead 15th-ranked Stanford to a 35-25 victory over the Ducks in the football season opener for the two Pacific 10 Conference schools.

The Cardinals, one of five Pac-10 teams eligible for the Rose Bowl this season, scored three times in a nine-minute span in the second quarter to blow open a 21-0 lead.

N.C. Central 40
Livingstone 6

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Charles Yuille threw two touchdown passes and Michael Worthy ran for a pair of scores as North Carolina Central whipped Livingstone 40-6 Saturday in a Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association football game.

Central's Eagles recovered 10 of 11 Livingstone fumbles and held the Blue Bears to minus nine yards rushing.

Bowling Green 17

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Krainock sneaked over from the 1 with 1:13 left Saturday as Richmond's Spiders broke an 11-game losing streak with a 20-17 victory over Bowling Green's Falcons in a football season opener for both teams.

Krainock, a junior transfer from Palomar Junior College, Calif., where he led the nation's junior college passers last year, engineered a 16-play, 70-yard drive that began with 8:12 remaining.

Krainock, who finished with 17 completions in 23 attempts for 186 yards, hit six of seven for 54 yards in the decisive seven-minute march.

Citadel 21
Presbyterian 14

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Senior tailbacks Danny Miller and Stump Mitchell combined for three touchdowns Saturday to pace the Citadel Bulldogs to a 21-14 victory over intra-state rival Presbyterian.

Miller scored on runs of 21 and 11 yards in the second half. Mitchell got the Bulldogs their first touchdown of the season in the opening quarter on a 1-yard dive. He also added two points on a conversion run after Miller's second touchdown.

Trailing 13-0, Presbyterian, behind senior quarterback Jimmy Spence, scored on the first play of the fourth quarter to cut the Bulldogs' lead.

Wolfpack Gallops...

rolled up 300 yards rushing and 90 yards through the air, the Wolfpack defense held the Tribe in check throughout the night and allowed only three yards rushing.

William & Mary's most serious threat came late in the second quarter on a drive that reached the 29 before a field goal attempt by Laszlo Mike-Mayer fell short.

After holding a 28-0 lead at the half, N.C. State scored on its first two possessions of the third quarter on McLean's 7-yard run around rightend and Jackson's five-yard blast over right tackle.

The Wolfpack rolled up a 28-0 lead in the first half, scoring twice in each quarter.

On its next possession, the Wolfpack marched 62 yards, with Avery passing 12 yards to split end Mike Quick and keeping around right end for 13 yards before a pass interference call moved the ball to the 1.

Then Jackson blasted through the middle of the line for the touchdown to give N.C. State a 14-0 lead with 4:15 left in the first period.

N.C. State covered 46 yards in only five plays early in the second quarter as Avery passed 16 yards to Len Dawson and ran twice for 20 yards. McLean scampered 21 yards around right end for the score.

Five plays later, Wolfpack safety Hillery Honeycutt intercepted a pass by Tribe quarterback Chris Garrity and returned it 11 yards to midfield. Avery passed 14 yards to quick and Brown scooted up the middle for 36 yards on the final score of the half.

Morgan Vaults Into Classic Lead By 2

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Dr. Gil Morgan, the veteran golf-playing optometrist from Oklahoma, overtook young John Cook on the 49th hole and charged to a 2-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Jimmy Fund Classic.

Morgan, playing just in front of Cook, fired a sizzling 33-34—67 for his third consecutive subpar round and a 54-hole score of 203 — 10 under regulation — at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Cook, leader by 3 strokes at the halfway mark of the 72-hole test, slipped to a 1-over-par 72, which dropped him into a second-place tie with Bobby Cole and Jack Renner at 205.

Jim Nelford and Mike Reid were another stroke back at 206.

"Saturday's a day you can make a good move as some people have a tendency to relax," Morgan said. "I looked at this as a day that if I shoot a good round I could pull to the top of the field, maybe a little ahead of everybody. I thought it was a chance to slip up there real quick."

Trailing by 3 strokes, Morgan carded five birdies and one bogey, going out in 3-under 33 and coming back in 1-under 34.

He moved to within 1 stroke of the lead with a birdie 3 on the 12th green and then sank a six-foot putt for another birdie 3 on the 13th hole, the tournament's 49th hole. That was all Morgan needed as Cook took a double bogey 6 in following Morgan to the 13th tee. Cook pushed a 6-iron shot down a hill and then caught the rough with a clip shot.

Both Morgan and Cook took bogeys on the par 3 16th hole and Cook followed with another bogey on the 17th. The former Ohio State All-American and U.S. Amateur champion finished with a birdie 4 on the 18th green.

Gobbler Receiver Juggles Wake Forest, 16-7

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Virginia Tech receiver Sydney Snell showed off his juggling skills in pulling down two touchdown passes in the second half to lead the Gobblers over Wake Forest, 16-7, Saturday in a college football game in Groves Stadium.

Snell pulled down eight passes for 138 yards as the Gobblers beat the Deacons at their own game — passing. And they did it with two quarterbacks.

Starting quarterback Steve Casey "had his bell rung" in the third quarter, as his coach Bill Dooley said. But backup Jeff Bolton filled the gap, throwing the second touchdown pass to Snell, who must have thought he was in the circus as he juggled the ball around before finally holding on for the score.

"Jeff Bolton showed a lot of poise coming into the game in that situation," Dooley said. "On his touchdown pass to Sydney Snell, he could have rushed it and thrown a bad pass. But he just waited and waited and threw the ball perfectly after Sydney had broken loose."

Losing coach John Mackovic said, "I'd say we got out played for the most part."

On Snell's role in the victory, Mackovic added "he made a couple of great catches and runs that really hurt us. But I think their backup quarterback (Bolton) did a good job of coming in when Casey came out. I'd give him more credit than anyone."

Wake Forest took a 7-3 halftime lead, but Virginia Tech completely dominated the second half. Following the opening kickoff, Tech drove 78 yards to a touchdown. It came on a 28-yard pass from Casey to Snell with 11:27 left in the third quarter.

VPI missed the point after but had a two point lead, all it needed as it turned out.

Snell's other juggling act came in the fourth quarter, a 24-yard pass from Bolton bounced off his hands three times before he finally held on in the endzone with 9:44 left to play.

Wake Forest tried to come back behind the passing of quarterback Jay Venuto. He passed the Deacons to the VPI 21-yard line, but after being sacked for the sixth time in the game, his pass on fourth down and 26 yards to go missed in the endzone.

Venuto only completed 12 of 30 passes for 124 yards while the duo of Casey and Bolton completed 13 of 24 passes for 205 yards.

Neither offense seemed able to get much going early in the first half. But Wake Forest finally managed to grab a 7-3 halftime lead.

Virginia Tech scored on its first possession but was held to a 35-yard field goal by Dennis Laury after driving 58 yards in 13 plays.

The Deacons could get nothing going until late in the second quarter. Before that, their running game was ineffective and Venuto's passes were falling off the fingertips of his receivers. At least three scoring drives died that way.

But finally the pass began to work for Wake Forest. The Deacons took possession with 7:13 left in the half and Venuto threw on eight consecutive plays.

Young In Series Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Donna Caponi Young fired a 3-under-par 69 Saturday and grabbed a 1-stroke lead in the $150,000 World Series of Women's Golf.

Young, the only player in the 12-woman field to break par all three rounds, had a 54-hole total of 210, 6-under par for the tournament at The Country Club.

Beth Daniel carded a 68 and moved into second place with a total of 211, moving past Nancy Lopez-Melton, the leader after the first and second days. Lopez-Melton, who ran into her first bogey in 54 holes, matched par of 72 and fell back to a third-place tie with South African Sally Little and Amy Alcott.

Alcott had 69 and tied Lopez-Melton and Little at 212.

They were 4-under par for the tournament.

Half of the field of 12 was within 3 shots of the lead going into the final round Sunday for the first prize of $50,000, the largest payoff ever for women's professional golf.

Young took the lead from Lopez-Melton on the fifth hole. She tapped in a one-foot birdie putt while Lopez-Melton was catching her first bogey.

She missed the green and two-putted from 30 feet.

"I'm mad," said Lopez-Melton, the 1978 and 1979 LPGA Player of the Year. "I had that stupid bogey. It really bugged me."

Young had four birdies and three-putted from 50 feet for her low bogey on the 13th hole.

Taylor Scores Twice As Rose Whips Pam Pack

Hangoff
Reserve Rampant quarterback Tom Buie (11) turns to handoff to runningback Alonza Taylor during a rainy Rose victory Friday night over Washington. Taylor scored twice as the Rampants won their second game in as many starts, 25-6. (Reflector photo by Macon Dail)

WASHINGTON — A heavy downpour of rain did something that the Washington Pam Pack wasn't able to do most of the time Friday night. It stopped the Rose High School offense and crumbled it defense.

Nevertheless, the Rampants came away with their second straight victory of the young season with a 25-6 victory.

Neither team scored in the final quarter of the contest, although both had the chance as the weather generally caused ball-handling problems and took some of the morale out of the Rose players.

A fired-up Pam Pack, coming off a 39-0 beating at the hands of West Carteret last week, proved a much scrappier team this week, especially on defense, as it cut off the option play much of the evening for Rose.

Even so, Washington was able to get only one good scoring drive off the Rampants, and ended up with just 122 yards in total offense.

The Rampants got just 291 yards, but most of the time really didn't need much. In the first half, when the Rampants scored three of their four touchdowns, only three plays were run from the Rose side of the 50.

Alonza Taylor paced the Rampant scoring, getting into the end zone twice, on runs of 14 and 5 yards. Quarterback Kenny Barnes scored on a one-yard plunge, and Roger Williams raced in from 20 yards out. Mike Thurber kicked one lone extra point.

Washington's only touchdown came on an 11-yard run by Wayne Wooden just minutes after rain began to pepper the field.

"The rain really took a lot out of us," a thoroughly-soaked coach Dave Bumgarner said afterwards. "We had the game well in control before that, but I think the rain just kind of messed up our minds. We didn't really play well after it started (midway through the third quarter).

"I don't believe we played quite as well as we did last week. We had some penalties at bad times this week, and we didn't do that in the first game. Washington played a lot better, too. They were a scrappy ball club."

Rose, however, dominated the play in the first half of the game, when Washington got only three first downs.

It took Rose only four plays after it got the ball to put it into the end zone. After kicking off to the Pam Pack, Rose got the ball back after Washington fumbled at its own 42—its deepest penetration of the half—on the fifth play of the game. James Carter recovered it on the 34.

After two plays netted six yards, Taylor took a quick-pitch around the left side for 14 yards, down to the 14. On the next play, Barnes took off around the right side, then flipped the ball back to Taylor on the option, and the speedy back raced into the end zone with 8:13 left for a 6-0 lead. Thurber added the only extra point Rose managed in the game to make it 7-0.

Washington was stalled by a penalty on its next drive and after a short punt gave Rose the ball at the Pack 44, the Rampants also were halted by a penalty which pushed them back from the 28 to the 47.

After another short punt, to the Washington 32 early in the second period, Rose again moved for a score. Three plays gave Rose a first down, although a fumble nearly cost them the ball on third down. The Pack got a five-yard penalty, and Rose moved to the one in two plays. Barnes went over from there for the score, running it to 13-0 with 8:44 left.

For the second straight week in a row, Chris McLawhorn lost a chance for a long punt return touchdown run. This time, he pulled in the ball on the Rose 33, and raced 67 yards down the left sideline for an apparent touchdown.

But for the second straight time, one of his teammates threw a clip—again behind the play—and it wiped out the score.

Rose, thus, had to begin its drive from its own 33. Williams picked up seven yards on first down, and Barnes hit McLawhorn on an 18-yard pass on second. Four plays later, Rose faced a fourth and three and Barnes again hit McLawhorn, this time for 11 to the Washington 25. Pushed back by a five-yard penalty on third down, Rose faced a third and 17 situation, but Barnes scrambled for 15 of that. On fourth down, Taylor took an option toss to the left for 12 yards to the five, then scored his second touchdown of the game from there on another option, this time to the right.

With 2:22 left, it was 19-0.

On its first possesion of the second half, Rose was forced to punt after an ineligible receiver penalty put the Rampants in a hole. But on the kick, the receiver fumbled and Jeff Ferrell recovered on the Pam Pack 40.

Rose again had to convert a fourth and three, as Taylor got 13 yards to the 20. On the first play after that, Williams went up the middle and broke away for the final 20 yards, running the score to 25-0 with 7:52 left.

Minutes later, it started to rain, and the waters washed away some of the Rose gusto.

Washington got the ball back at its own 29 after a short Rose punt late in the third period. Don Sawyer broke away for 14 yards, and Wooden swept down to the Rose 47. After two plays netted three yards, Vann Parker hit Vance Moore for 13 yards. Wooden added four more and Parker kept for 16 to the 11. Wooden went around the right side for the final yardage, and a two-point try failed, leaving it at 25-6 with 1:22 left in the third frame.

A fumble gave Washington the ball in good field position at the Rose 27, but they couln't move it and a field goal attempt was washed out by a bobbled snap.

Both teams exchanged fumbles with Rose regaining the ball at its own 10. From there, the Rampants ran out the clock, moving down to the Washington 14 before the game ended. They were helped along by a 15-yard penalty against the Pack, and a 30-yard run by McLawhorn on the end-around, the latter coming on a fourth and 15 at the midfield stripe.

The Rampants are now 2-0 on the year, while Washington falls to 0-2. Rose has an open date this Friday, returning to action the next weekend, as Raleigh Enloe visits Ficklen Stadium in Greenville.

Clinton Rips Jags, 41-7

CLINTON — It was anything but a pleasant opening-night for Farmville Central. The Jaguars, Eastern Carolina Conference champs the past four years, saw Clinton rush for 276 yards as the Dark Horses ripped Farmville, 41-7, Friday night in a nonconference high school football game.

Clinton led 7-0 at the end of the first period on a 37-yard pass from Joe Coleman to Dwayne Parker. Farmville, however, tied it up on the first play of the second quarter.

The Jaguars capped an eight minute drive on the first snap of the second quarter when Roger Joyner scored from two yards out to tie the game. Clinton answered that moments later when Parker, who had 110 yards in nine carries, broke away for a 68-yard run, giving the Dark Horses a 14-7 halftime lead.

It was downhill from there for the Jaguars as Clinton scored four times in the third period to seal the victory.

Ransom Newkirk, who rushed for 125 yards in 10 carries, scored twice, on runs of 49 and 15 yards. Later in the quarter Pete Spaulding picked up a fumble and rumbled 47 yards for a score before John Richardson capped the scoring for Clinton with a two-yard run just before the end of the period.

Farmville, now 0-1, opens its 1980 ECC schedule this week when the Jaguars travel to Charles B. Aycock.

North Pitt Rolls Past Enfield

ENFIELD — North Pitt got its season off to a winning if soggy start Friday night with an easy 34-0 win over Enfield in a rain-shorten high school football game.

Halfback Ronnie House led the Panther attack with 71 yards rushing and two scores. Quarterback Bob Hemingway added two more scores on a run and a pass and halfback Tony Pittman scored the Panthers other touchdown on a 52-yard run in a game called midway through the third quarter because of heavy rains.

North Pitt scored on its first possession when Pittman broke free at the 9:38 mark for his long run. Hemingway then increased the North Pitt advantage when he scored from nine yards out with just over four minutes to go in the period, giving the Panthers a 14-0 lead.

House then took over the scoring in the second quarter. The stocky North Pitt halfback scored from 30 yards out with 2:40 left and then with but one second on the clock he drove over from four yards away, giving North Pitt a 27-0 halftime lead.

The Panthers' final score came only minutes before the game was called when Hemingway hit Gordon Dunn with a 36-yard pass at 10:06.

North Pitt opens its Eastern Carolina Conference schedule Friday when the Panthers play host to North Lenoir.

NASL Tabs Hinton Coach-Of-The-Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Alan Hinton of the Seattle Sounders has been named Coach of the Year for 1980 in the North American Soccer League in balloting by NASL coaches and general managers, the league announced today.

Hinton guided the Sounders to a 25-7 mark — the most regular-season victories in league history — and the title in the National Conference Western Division this year after the Sounders finished out of the playoffs in 1979 with a 13-17 record.

Hinton, 37, a native of Wednesbury, England, came to the Sounders from Tulsa and immediately headed a drive that brought three of his former Roughnecks to Seattle — striker Roger Davies, goalkeeper Jack Brand and defender David Nash.

Brand gave up the fewest goals in the NASL this season, 31, and set a record with 15 shutouts. The team scored 74 goals, third-highest in the league.

Hinton played on two chapionship teams at Derby of the English First Division. He played in the NASL with Dallas in 1977 and Vancouver in 1978, setting a NASL record with 30 assists.

"I thank my fellow coaches and the general managers who voted me this honor — and especially my players, who made it possible," Hinton said. "It is an award that should be shared by the entire Seattle Sounders organization."

Bruins Rap Rams, 28-7

SNOW HILL — Randy Emory scored twice and John Bynum returned a punt 55 yards for another score to lead Beddingfield past Greene Central, 28-7, Friday night in a nonconference football game.

After a scoreless first period, the 4-A Bruins took the lead with 14 points in the second period. Bynum's punt return put Beddingfield up, 7-0, with 11:16 left and then with less than two minutes to go Emory broke away for a 16-yard score.

Beddingfield added to its lead midway through the third period on Emory's second touchdown, this a one-yard run, 21-0.

The Rams, now 1-1 on the season, finally got on the scoreboard late in the period when Thomas Bullock passed six yards to Olijoel Dancy.

The Bruins final score came with 10:21 left in the fourth period on a 21-yard pass from Al Wilson to Kenny Barnes.

Tigers Win Again, 12-6

GASTON — Williamston High School nipped Gaston, 12-6, in a game shortened by lightning and heavy rains Friday night.

The contest was halted in the third period with 4:55 showing on the clock. After about a 45 minute wait, official decided that since it was a non-conference game, field conditions did not warrant continuation of the contest.

Williamston's first threat was halted by Gaston when a fourth and goal touchdown try was halted at the one in the first period.

In the second quarter, however, Williamston made good. Following a Gaston punt that was blocked by Mike Peele, the Tigers got the ball on the host team's 29. Harry Beach carried it the final ten yards, but the conversion kick failed.

Gaston came back after the kickoff to drive 67 yards, scoring on a 19-yard pass from Tyrone Hargrove to June Turner on the final play of the half. Gaston's attempt for a two-point play failed, leaving it tied at 6-6 at intermission.

The Gaston team was penalized for delay of game at the start of the second half, and Williamston returned the kickoff to the 42 yard line. On the first play, Vance Allen broke away and dashed all the way for the go-ahead touchdown.

It stayed that way until the rains halted the game about seven minutes later.

The victory left Williamston with a 2-0 record. The Tigers play host to Currituck on Friday. Gaston is now 1-1, and visits Roanoke on Friday.

Beth Heiden Is Retiring

NEW YORK (AP) — Beth Heiden, who was in the competitive shadow of her brother, Eric, in speed skating, is giving up that sport to devote more time to her education and international cycling.

"I've enjoyed skating a lot. I would like to skate some more, but it's a fulltime job," said the 20-year-old Heiden Saturday during a taping of "ABC's Wide World of Sports." "It limits your other opportunitiies. I really want to study."

Eric Heiden's world records and five gold medals in speed skating at the Winter Olympic Games at Lake Placid last February put extra burdens on Beth's own Olympic endeavors. Expected by some to keep pace with Eric's accomplishments, Beth won a bronze medal in the 3,000-meter race.

'Skins Nip Chargers

LITTLEFIELD — Roanoke's Angelo Spruill threw two touchdowns, both coming in the second period, to lead the Redskins to a 14-2 win over Ayden-Grifton Friday night in a 3-A nonconference football game.

After a scoreless first period, the Redskins, now 2-0, took the lead on the first play of the second quarter. Capping a seven minute drive, Spruill hit Neal Cargile from 18 yards out to put the Redskins up 7-0.

Moments later the Chargers got their only points of the game. After driving to the Roanoke 24, Ayden-Grifton quarterback Bernard Riccarelli had his pass interecepted in the end zone by Cargile, who returned it to the nine.

However, the officials spotted a clip in the end zone and awarded the Chargers a safety, making it 7-2 with 5:28 to go.

Roanoke countered that score less than three minutes later. On the Redskins' first play from scrimmage following a fourth down sack of Riccarelli Spruill hit Maurice Chance for a 51-yard scoring pass to put the Redskins up, 14-2, at the half.

That's the way the game ended, as Roanoke did not penetrate farther than the Charger 20 in the second half and Ayden-Grifton did not get inside the 20 until less than a minute remained.

Rose Wins Invitational

BUIES CREEK — Greenville Rose's Harry Williams, competing against some of the best cross country runners in the state, finished first in #1 bracket in a new course record to help the Rampants win the Campbell Invitational Saturday afternoon.

The Invitational drew 22 teams from across the state, including last year's state champion Chapel Hill and powerful New Bern. The meet was split into six brackets with the fastest runners from each team ran against each other in the #1 race and the second fastest faced each other in the #2 race and so on.

The champion was determined by throwing out the slowest of the six times and then adding the remaining times. Rose's first-place time of 53:06 was a minute and a half faster than second place New Bern's.

Last year Rose finished fourth in the meet but Williams helped pace the Rampants, who won four firsts, to the victory with a time of 9:50, four seconds better than the old course record.

In the #2 race, Rose's Kenny Williams was first with a time of 10:23 while in the #3 race John Ormond finished on top with a time of 10:39. John Bird of Rose won the #4 race with a 10:57 clocking while Chip Little was third in the #5 race with a time of 11:16. The #6 race had David Steffensen in fourth at 11:45.

The Rampants also had their junior varsity team running in the meet. Their results were:

#1 race: 20. Steve Bynum, 14:28; #2 race: 17. Tim Harris, 13:04; #3 race: Joel Mauger, 12:35; #4 race: 18. Robert Stancill, 13:15; #5 race: 11. Larry Talbert, 12:26; #6 race: 11. Max Parker, 12:33

Dick Fosbury of the United States won the gold medal in the high jump in the 1968 Olympics at Mexico City using the "Fosbury Flop", which saw him go over the bar backwards.

'Buck' Rodgers Set To Replace Brewer Coach

MILWAUKEE (AP) — George Bamberger is stepping down as manager, but his legions of fans will be happy to know he will still be a part of the Milwaukee Brewers.

One of the most popular local sports figures in history, Bamberger said Friday he will turn over the managerial reins to third-base coach Bob "Buck" Rodgers after Sunday's game with the Texas Rangers.

Bamberger, 55, frequently spoke of retiring during his three seasons as the club's most successful manager. He had coronary bypass surgery March 26, and he said less than two weeks later he probably would retire at the end of the season.

He insisted Friday he is not changing his job status because of health or because his team has slumped to fifth place in the American League's East Division.

He said he will remain with Milwaukee as a special assistant to general manager Harry Dalton.

He is to be based at his Florida home, working for the Brewers in various capacities, including scouting, player instruction and special assignments.

Rodgers, 42, Brewers acting manager from the time of Bamberger's heart attack in March until Bamberger's return June 6, has been named manager for the balance of the season and for the 1981 season.

Rodgers, under whom the Brewers had a 26-21 record, said Dalton told him of his promotion Aug. 27.

"It was just time I step out," Bamberger told a news conference. "I had pretty well made up my mind a while back, and if I don't step out now, maybe I never will.

"But I'm glad I am staying with the organization," he said.

"I'm not retiring because of my health," he said. "If there ever was a time to keep working, it would be now, because I am as healthy as I ever was.

"I had signed to manage this year," he said, "and I thought the club could do a lot better than it has, to be honest with you.

"But I am walking away from the game because George Bamberger wants to walk away," he said.

Bamberger, highly successful pitching coach for the Baltimore Orioles for 10 years, was named Brewers manager in January 1978.

The Brewers, never having won more than 76 games in a season, emerged as baseball's best-hitting team in 1978 when they had a 93-69 record and finished third in the division. They were 95-66 and finished second last year.

Bamberger communicates easily with players. His outgoing, back-slapping style gave the Brewers a spirit of unity and harmony which they had lacked under many of his predecessors.

"George just never pressured anybody," shortstop Robin Yount said. "He kept the attitude of the team fairly well relaxed. He just is a very easy man to get along with and play for."

Bamberger said he planned to leave Monday to tend to personal business in Florida and Maryland, then join the Brewers' winter instructional camp in Arizona in mid-September.

He said his new duties virtually will be full-time.

"I will be active in baseball as an instructor and a professional scout, whatever they want," he said. "I really like the job of instructing with kids. I just like kids. I like that job better than anything because you see kids progress.

Report Says Kuhn, MacPhail Nix White Sox Sale

CHICAGO (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the president of the American League have told Edward J. Debartolo Sr. that his proposed $20 million purchase of the Chicago White Sox will not be approved, the Chicago Tribune reported Saturday.

The newspaper, in a copyrighted story, said Kuhn and AL President Lee MacPhail told the Youngstown, Ohio multimillionaire that organized baseball would not approve the sale, which was announced Aug. 22.

The Tribune said the White Sox board of directors would be informed of the decision at a meeting Sunday.

The newspaper did not cite any sources for its report. Attempts to reach Kuhn and DeBartolo by telephone Saturday night proved unsuccessful.

White Sox President Bill Veeck, reached by telephone in his Chicago hospital room, declined comment. Veeck has been undergoing inhalation therapy since Aug. 24 and remains in good condition.

MacPhail informed the elder DeBartolo that a poll of the league's 14 owners indicated that the five negative votes necessary to veto the purchase would be cast, the Tribune said.

According to the newspaper, Kuhn talked with DeBartolo after the meeting with MacPhail and told him the league's owners are wary of absentee owners.

DeBartolo, 71, is head of DeBartolo Corp., which develops shopping malls. DeBartolo interests own two professional sports franchises, the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, operated by Eddie DeBartolo Jr., and the Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League, run by DeBartolo spokesman Vincent J. Bartimo.

Bartimo has said the White Sox are the third team DeBartolo has attempted to buy, after negotiations to purchase the Boston Red Sox and the Oakland A's failed. DeBartolo had considered moving the A's to New Orleans.

The Tribune reported that some White Sox investors have voiced concern that the elder DeBartolo would shift the White Sox0to New Orleans, but added that he was also prepared to post a bond of "several million dollars" to ease such fears.

The Tribune also reported that DeBartolo will counter arguments of "absentee ownership" by detailing plans for improvement of the club's Comiskey Park, in addition to revamping the baseball team.

Debartolo interests also own three race tracks, Louisiana Downs in Bossier City, La., Thistledown in Cleveland and Balmoral in Crete, a suburb south of Chicago.

With DeBartolo's status in doubt, the board of directors also is expected Sunday to re-evaluate a similar bid from a Chicago-area group headed by financier William Farley and Jerry Reinsdorf.

Eddie DeBartolo Jr. cannot participate in controlling interest of any other professional team sports because of NFL rules now being tested in court. DeBartolo's daughter, Marie-Denise York, 28, was to have been listed on the contract as part-owner of the team, Bartimo said.

East Carolina Pounds Duke...

for 55 yards. His first play was a sack, and only an alert Duke lineman prevented the loss of the football when Bennett fumbled.

Bennett finally began to hit in the second period, hitting passes for 8, 20, and 24 yards. East Carolina was hit with a penalty to the six, and after two incompletions, Bennett hit Jones in the end zone. Bennett had rolled left, then passed back to Jones, who had gotten all alone for the scoring reception. That tied it at 7-7 with 2:32 left.

After holding the Pirates, Duke had a fateful fumble on its first play with 30 seconds left, turning it over as Mike Davis recovered on the Blue Devil 25.

The Pirates were pushed back to the 30 by a penalty, then Greg Stewart hit Collins for 16 yards to the 14. With 13 seconds left, Stewart, subbing for Nelson who was temporarily sidelined by the 90-degree-plus heat, pitched to Collins at the last moment before going down, and the back raced down the sidelines to score with 14 seconds left in the half. Lamm's kick made it 14-7 at the half.

"That score was really great. We were just hoping to get into position for a field goal when we got it. Greg Stewart did a good job in their for us, and he's going to be a great quarterback, too," Emory said.

In the second half it was almost all ECU. The Pirates fumbled away the ball on their first play of the half, after Nelson hit Collins for a 30-yard gain to the Duke 36.

But on its next possession, from the Pirate 26, ECU drove in seven plays for the clincher. The big play on the drive, prior to the score, was an 11-yard rip by Nelson to the Duke 49. Two plays later, Hawkins took the ball over left tackle behind a fine Wayne Inman block, and outraced the Duke secondary to the end zone. Lamm's kick made it 21-7 with 8:12 showing in the third period.

Duke came back with its final score. Moving from its own 37, the Blue Devils got good gains from Bennett's passing and the running of Bobby Brower. But the Pirate defense finally held at the 23, where two passes fell incomplete and a run got only a yard. McKinney's field goal cut it to 21-10 with 5:44 left.

To show it's supremacy, the Pirates then used 20 plays to grind out the next touchdown and control the clock. From the 20, the Bucs steally moved it, with a 9-yard run by Harold Blue as the longest of the drive. It clearned nearly ten minutes off the clock, with Collins scoring with 10:46 left. That upped it to 28-10.

East Carolina got it back at midfield after Willie Holley, who, like Sutton, had had his eligibility questioned by Duke before getting full clearance from the NCAA, pulled in an interception.

This time, the drive consumed 13 plays, as the Pirates had to fight off their own mistakes three times, overcoming penalties. An 18-yard pass from Stewart to Roy Wiley was one of the keys, and the longest of the drive. Sutton then got the call on each of five plays from the 13 yard line in before he scored from the one with 40 seconds left.

"The touchdown at the half gave us the momentum to stay aggressive in the second half," Emory pointed out. "We said before that we wanted to win in three places, the defense, the kicking game, and the offensive line. I think we did it in all three."

Emory also paid tribute to his predecessor, Pat Dye. "I didn't teach them all this aggressiveness. And they have good work habits. A lot of this is Pat's training and philiosphy, which are so like mine."

But it was Emory who took the bows as he walked off the field and into the stadium tunnel under the thunderous applause of the ECU fans Saturday afternoon.

East Carolina ended the day with 396 yards in total offense, while Duke had just 165, including only two on the ground. Jeffrey Warren paced the Pirate defense, credited with 13 tackles.

East Carolina returns to Greenville Saturday to open its home season against Southwestern Louisiana in a 7 p.m. contest.

Maryland Wins...

Bedesem. "We had some good opportunities and you hope you'd capitalize. But Maryland is an outstanding defensive team, it always has been under Claiborne. We moved the ball at times until things got tight."

Villanova's long gainer was a 39-yard run up the middle by quarterback Pat O'Brien, giving the Wildcats a first down at the Maryland 17 late in the second quarter.

After two runs by Greg Bedesem gained four yards and an O'Brien fumble was recovered by teammate Steve Sugden, Chuck Bushbeck booted a 36-yard field goal.

"I thought we matched them in every phase after the opening kickoff," Bedesem said. "When you give them seven points and it's the only scoore, it's tough."

Claiborne disclosed that Maryland kicker Dale Castro aggrevated a pulled groin muscle during pregame warmups and theorized that he missed field goal attempts of 43 and 42 yards by compensating for the injury.

Oakland Opens Doors And Orioles Fly Through

By The Associated Press

The Oakland A's opened the door for the Baltimore Orioles – and that was a mistake.

Given the opportunity, the Orioles barged right through and ran past the A's 8-7 Friday night.

"We definitely needed this one," said Baltimore third baseman Doug DeCinces. "Things weren't going well."

The Orioles trailed Oakland 7-5 in the ninth when the A's fumbled away their apparent victory, allowing three runs to score. A throwing error by second baseman Mike Edwards on a grounder by Al Bumbry was the key. That let the first run in before Rich Dauer contributed a sacrifice fly for the tying run and Ken Singleton a double for the game-winner.

"The door was open and all we had to do was walk through," added DeCinces.

The error, incidentally, was Oakland's fifth of the night. Another A's error led to another Baltimore run in the fourth.

The sloppy performance caused some problems in the Oakland clubhouse. It was temporarily ruled off limits to members of the media and when the door was finally opened, there was evidence of a tantrum. Next to an upturned table were mounds of potato chips, beans, and sliced fruit, and broken condiment bottles.

The victory helped the Orioles keep pace with the New York Yankees in the American League East race. The front-running Yankees also won a comeback decision, 6-5 over the California Angels in 10 innings.

Yankees 6, Angels 5

Willie Randolph's infield single with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th inning gave New York its victory over California.

Rick Cerone tripled with one out to start the Yankee rally. Andy Hassler, 4-1, intentionally loaded the bases to set up a force play at every base. He struck out Bobby Brown, but Randolph topped a 2-2 pitch to the right side of the infield and the ball bounced off the glove of second baseman Bobby Grich as Cerone scored the winning run.

Rich Gossage, 6-1, gained the victory with two perfects innings of relief.

The Yankees had tied the game at 5-5 with three unearned runs in the seventh.

"When you make that kind of a comeback it really helps," said Randolph, whose Yankees trailed 5-2 at one point. "When the situation arises again, you believe you can do it.

"I was just looking to make good contact and put the ball in play. When I hit it, I was afraid he (second baseman Bobby Grich) was going to make the play."

Royals 2, Indians 1

Frank White tripled home the tying run and then scored the winning run and Paul Splittorff pitched a four-hitter as Kansas City edged Cleveland.

White's triple scored Jose Cardenal, who had singled with one out in the fifth off Rick Waits, 10-13. Willie Wilson then singled home White to give Kansas City a 2-1 lead which Splittorff, 11-9, protected the rest of the way.

Mariners 4, Red Sox 2

Leon Roberts' run-scoring triple keyed a four-run second inning that carried Seattle and Floyd Bannister over Boston.

Bannister, 8-10, scattered nine hits before needing relief help in the ninth from Shane Rawley, who gained his 13th save. John Tudor, 6-3, took the loss as the Red Sox dropped their third straight game.

Rangers 6, Brewers 5

Jim Sundberg knocked in three runs with a homer and a two-run single to lead Texas over Milwaukee. Sundberg hit his ninth homer in the second inning to put the Rangers ahead 1-0 and the Texas slugger later knocked in two more runs in the seventh to provide the Rangers with a 6-1 lead and their eventual winning run.

Jon Matlack, 9-6, was the winner while Moose Haas, 15-12, took the loss.

Tigers 1, Twins 0

Champ Summers' grounder in the first inning drove in the only run of the game and Dan Schatzeder hurled a five-hitter as Detroit nipped Minnesota.

Schatzeder, 9-10, went the distance for his sixth complete game of the season. The left-hander, obtained in the trade that sent outfielder Ron LeFlore to Montreal last winter, struck out four and walked three.

White Sox 3, Blue Jays 0

Lamarr Hoyt tossed a two-hitter and Chicago took advantage of Toronto errors for two unearned fifth-inning runs en route to victory over the Blue Jays.

Hoyt, 7-2, struck out three and walked three in pitching his third complete game in eight starts. With the help of three double plays, Hoyt pitched to only 29 batters.

Cale One Pole Short Of Record

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — With the aid of a clock foulup, a friendly cloud and a fast car, Cale Yarborough is just one short of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing record for Grand National pole starts in one year.

The veteran Chevrolet driver from Timmonsville, S.C., earned his 11th pole position of the year Friday with a clocking of 93.466 mph on the half-mile Fairgrounds Raceway track for Sunday's Capital City 400 stock car race.

His speed broke the Capital City 400 qualifying record of 92.460 mph set in 1976 by Benny Parsons and moved him to within one of the 12 pole positions won in 1972 by Bobby Allison.

But it took Yarborough three laps to do it, and the victim was Allison, who took the outside pole in a Ford at 93.034 mph.

On Yarborough's first run, there was a malfunction of the timing clock and only one of his laps was scored. Chevrolet driver Darrell Waltrip appeared to take the pole with a fast lap of 92.839 mph, but Allison came right behind him with his faster clocking.

NASCAR officials sent Yarborough out to run another lap against the clock. By the time he got out, a big cloud had moved over the track and cooled it off, making the surface somewhat quicker.

Yarborough then came through with his fast lap, dropping Allison to second and Waltrip to third. Chevrolet drivers Bennie Parsons, 92.588 mph, and Dale Earnhardt, 92.255 mph, were fourth and fifth.

"We got a little bit of luck. Somebody's looking out for us," Yarborough added.

Allison was far from happy.

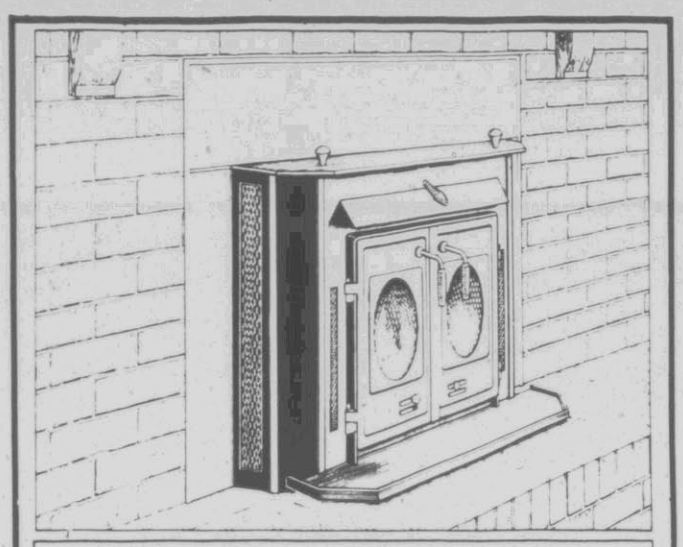

"It seems that the NASCAR foulup always involve that car. All I can say is it looks fishy. If NASCAR wants them to win the pole, there's nothing we can do about it," Allison said.

He said the Junior Johnson crew, which was working for him in 1972, worked on Yarborough's car before he made his second qualifying run and it shouldn't have been allowed.

"They may not have changed anything, but they may have changed everything. There's no way to tell," Allison said.

Tommy Ellis of Richmond won the pole position for today's Harvest 150 Late Model Sportsman race with a speed of 97.142 mph, edging Butch Lindley, 96.147 mph.

The first 20 drivers qualified Friday and the last 10 were to be decided today for the Capital City 400, which starts at 1 p.m., EDT, Sunday.

Public duck hunting will again be permitted on a portion of the Swanquarter National Wildlife Refuge, Refuge Manager Steven Frick announced this past week.

The area to be open will include Marsh Island, Great Island and refuge lands east of Juniper Bay. This area, which will be designated by signs, is comprised of 6,305 acre.

Frick said due to the presence of the closing order prohibiting the taking of migratory birds on the waters surrounding these areas a 100-yard zone adjacent to the hunting area will be used for retrieving downed ducks.

The Refuge will be open during the regular three-part North Carolina duck hunting season, Oct. 2-4, Nov. 27-29 and Dec. 8-Jan. 20. As with state laws, hunting will not be permitted on Sundays.

Also in accordance with state law, hunters are required to have a valid state hunting license and federal duck stamp with them while hunting. No refuge permit will be required this year.

Bag limits will be restricted to those ducks and coots which comply with state and federal waterfowl hunting regulations.

All hunters are must use steel shot. No lead or other toxic shells are peritted in the Refuge hunt area. No permanent or seasonal structures will be permitted. Temporary blinds, carried in and our daily, or made of native vegetation, are permitted.

The use of dogs as retrievers is permitted but must be under "firm control" at all times.

For further information and a map of the area, write: Refuge Manager, Mattamuskeet National Wildlife Refuge, Rt. 1 Box N-2, Swanquarter, N.C. 27885; or phone, (919) 926-4021.

The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission will present several proposed regulations designed to protect populations of striped bass in inland rivers at a series of public hearings between Sept. 15-18. The only area meeting will be held Sept. 18 in the Williamston Courthouse at 7:30 p.m.

Expos Breathing More Than Hot Air

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies have the Montreal Expos breathing down their necks — and they could find that it's more than hot air.

"We needed to break out against somebody. We need my bat and maybe this means I've got it going," Warren Cromartie said after his 12th homer of the season — one of his four hits on the night — helped the Montreal Expos move to within less than one percentage point of first place in the National League East with an 8-0 win over the Giants Friday night.

The Expos received some excellent pitching from Steve Rogers, a hard-luck loser of late. The big right-hander tossed a two-hit shutout and faced only 28 batters, one over the minimum.

"Five quick runs is a luxury with this team. But after we got the five runs, we got two more. We didn't let up. It was a good indication all the way around," said Rogers, who disposed of the Giants on 86 pitches.

Rogers, 13-10, struck out five and walked none in registering his third shutout of the season. Montreal collected 15 hits, including six in the five-run second inning.

Cromartie's homer came after Gary Carter led off the second inning with a bunt single off Giants' starter and loser John Montefusco, 4-7. Rowland Office had a two-run single later in the inning.

Dodgers 1, Phillies 0

The Phillies, meanwhile, were losing to Los Angeles as Dodger right-hander Don Sutton struck out 10 batters and allowed only three hits over eight innings.

Don Stanhouse pitched the final inning to preserve the shutout, the Dodgers' 18th of the season. Meanwhile, Steve Carlton suffered only his eighth loss of the year against 21 wins.

"Sutton used his stuff like a master. He's a veteran, he knows how to work our lineup," said Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green.

The victory, the Dodgers' eighth in their last nine games, improved their lead over Houston in the National League West to 1½-games.

Braves 7, Pirates 4

Relief hitter Jeff Burroughs wasn't complaining after his 13th home run of the year propelled the Atlanta Braves to their fifth straight victory.

Burroughs' shot went deep into the left-center field stands off Pittsburgh reliever Grant Jackson in the eighth inning with two runners aboard to snap a 4-4 tie. Rick Camp, 5-4, was the winner in relief.

Reds 5, Cubs 3

Johnny Bench batted in a pair of runs with a sacrifice fly and his 22nd homer of the season to lead Cincinnati over the Cubs.

Tom Seaver, 7-7, struck out a season-high 10 batters, and the veteran right-hander yielded eight hits and walked two before getting ninth-inning relief help from Mario Soto, who picked up his third save.

Cardinals 7, Astros 5

St. Louis pinch-hitter Mike Ramsey picked up his first game-winning hit of the year when he stroked a two-run double off reliever Joe Sambito in the ninth inning to score George Hendrick and Tito Landrum with the winning runs.

"It was probably the biggest hit of my careeer," Ramsey said. "Anytime you come off the bench and have to produce it's tough. You just try to be ready to do your job when the time comes."

Padres 4, Mets 2

Gene Tenace drove in two runs and Barry Evans tripled in another and rookie Gary Lucas earned his first major league save as the Padres downed New York.

Thirst & Hunger Linger For Shula

MIAMI (AP) — The desire has been satisfied twice, but the "thirst and hunger" for another Super Bowl title linger within Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins.

"I intend to work hard to get the product on the field that will get us to the big game again," Shula said Friday after signing a three-year contract extension which binds him to the Dolphins through the 1983 season. "I've enjoyed the successes we've had, but now I feel the same thirst and hunger I did before our first Super Bowl game."

The announcement that Shula had signed the extension ended speculation that the 50-year-old coach, who at times has been at odds with team owner Joseph Robbie, would leave Miami when his current contract expired in February 1981.

Rumors in the past year have reported that other NFL clubs and-or colleges, including Notre Dame, were prepared to offer Shula multi-million dollar inducements to leave the Dolphins. But the coach said that there was no real basis for the speculation.

"This should put to bed all of the rumors. I think the latest one had me going to the Texas College of Mines," Shula said. "I don't know if they have a football team, but the coaching job is reportedly open."

Robbie, too, had heard all the rumors, but said he never had any intentions of letting Shula, who produced eight AFC East division titles in the 1970s, slip away.

"I've said time and time again that he was the coach of the 1970s. And as much as those reflections satisfy us, we've got to think of the 1980s," the owner said.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but Robbie was quick to point out that, "Don was already the best paid coach in football, and now he's better paid than that."

Shula enters the 1980 season as the second winningest active coach in the NFL with a 185-70-5 record for 17 years. In 1970, his first season in Miami, he inherited a team which had gone 3-10-1 the year before and produced a 10-4 contender.

Duck Tailback Plays Despite Court Trial

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon tailback Dwight Robertson, facing a trial on sex charges, received permission to play for the Ducks Saturday in a football season opener against Stanford.

Robertson, 20, a junior from Covington, La., pleaded innocent on Friday to charges of sodomy and coercion in an incident involving an 18-year-old woman in a dormitory nearly two years ago.

Three former Duck players — receiver Ricky Ward, quarterback Andrew Page and running back Reggie Young — were indicted on the same charges.

Ward was arrested in Boulder, Colo., and Young was apprehended in Sacramento, Calif. Page, who transferred to the University of Hawaii after being declared ineligible along with Ward, had not been arrested by Friday night.

Oregon Coach Rich Brooks said he thinks Robertson is innocent and he says "it would be a crime" to suspend the tailback.

Robertson, brother of professional football lineman Isiah Robertson and the Ducks' leading scorer last season, was given permission by acting Oregon President Paul Olum to play against Stanford.

"The charges have no direct bearing, only a public relations one, on the activity of football," Olum said in a statement. "To suspend him could appear then to be determination of guilt whereas the whole American ethic of justice is based on a refusal to make a prejudgment of guilt until a decision has been rendered in law."

Robertson's lawyer, Ken Morrow of Eugene, filed a legal challenge to the coercion charge, which involved alleged threats against the girl.

Circuit Judge Douglas Spencer scheduled a Sept. 15 hearing on the challenge.

Lane County District Attorney J. Pat Horton said he has been criticized for pursuing the investigation two years after the incident occurred.

New Strength In Silver Market

By KATHY OSOBA
AP Business Writer

Silver futures rose Friday as much as the daily limit for the second consecutive trading day in a performance that has signaled renewed interest in a market largely dormant since early April.

The strength in silver, which out-performed gold in the opinion of several analysts, resulted primarily from economic statistics that encouraged thoughts that industrial demand for the metal might increase.

Jack Boyd, director of commodities research for Drexel, Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York said several developments during the past 10 days supported the view that industrial demand could grow.

The first sign occurred last week, when the leading economic indicators rose, indicating renewed strength in the economy. Leading indicators were followed by an increase in factory orders in August, another sign that the country was coming out of recession. And Friday, the nation's unemployment figure for August fell slightly, another signal that economic production is picking up.

"In light of that, silver could come alive," said Boyd. Some of the strength in silver also resulted from spillover demand for gold, he added. The absence of new investigations into the silver market to explore the market's collapse in late March also enticed speculators back into the market, analysts said.

Silver futures in Chicago and New York rose by the daily allowable limit, with the spot price on New York's Commodity Exchange Inc. up 29 cents to close at $17.34 per ounce.

Early strength in gold futures dissipated when three of the nation's major banks announced they would increase the prime rate ½ percent to 12 percent.

Higher interest rates mean a greater expense in holding futures contracts and a lessened possibility of inflationary fac-tors in the market. The concern among gold traders about interest rates heightened when the Federal Reserve Board drained excess reserves from the banking system after the federal funds rate hit 10⅛ percent.

Gold futures on the Comex closed down 60 cents to $3 per ounce, with the September contract quoted at $649.30.

Meanwhile, interest rate futures prices fell when the gov-ernment drained bank reserves. Mark Laney, a commodities trader who owns his own brokerage firm, said the market was surprised by the Fed's intervention. Treasury bonds traded on the Chicago Board of Trade declined 8 to 14 ticks and Ginnie Maes fell 8 to 16 ticks.

Copper futures declined slightly, with nervousness about the possibility of a miners strike in Zambia. The U.S. copper workers strike remains unsettled, as well, and nervous traders sold off based on the belief that weekend developments could erode their market positions. Futures were .15 cent to .70 cent lower, September 89.50 cents per pound.

Slowdown At N.Y. Times

NEW YORK (AP) — Deliverers at The New York Times staged a work slowdown, forcing the cancellation of Saturday's early morning "bulldog" edition, a Times spokesman said.

An impartial arbitrator was negotiating with members of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union and Times management early Saturday in an attempt to resolve the dispute, said spokesman Leonard R. Harris.

He predicted that about 10,000 copies of the paper might be canceled by the walkout.

Harris disputed reports from police that drivers were complaining about unsafe conditions in trucks. He termed the slowdown part "of a floating malaise affecting all papers around the city."

Police said a three-man detail at the scene found the drivers "milling around" complaining of safety conditions on the trucks.

"It's hardly to our advantage not to maintain the trucks," Harris said.

On Thursday night, about 5,000 copies of Friday's early edition were canceled when drivers argued with management over who was responsible for cleaning windshields on trucks, according to Harris.

Saturday's action began when a driver was suspended after refusing to move his loaded truck, Harris said.

Chamber Plans Seminar

"Increasing Individual and Organizational Effectiveness" using the personal Profile System is the topic of a seminar which will be held Sept. 11 from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Willis Building.

The seminar, sponsored by the Industrial Relations Committee of the Greeenville Area Chamber of Commerce, is an introduction to the personal profile system of self-analysis.

According to Brayom Anderson, district manager of the Conklin Company, speaker for the seminar, a guide for understanding individual styles of interacting with people will be presented.

"By understanding your strengths and weaknesses, you can develop a specific plan of action which will help you to obtain maximum performance from yourself - on the job, at home, alone, or within any group," said Anderson.

Participants of the seminar will examine the following questions: "What is my individual style of interacting with people? How do I go about getting things done? In what type of situation do I tend to lead most effectively?"

Registration for the seminar is $12 per person for GACC members, their families and employees, and $15 per person for non-members. The registration should be mailed to the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 894, Greenville, N.C. 27834, by Sept. 11. For further information call the chamber office at 752-4101.

Mayo Allen Relates Landfill's History

Mayo Allen, director of the city's Public Works Department, related that the landfill here, which was closed by the county on Friday, "takes with it a lot of history."

Allen observed, "I have been told by some of the senior citizens of Greenville that this landfill started its operation in 1934. Garbage at that time was picked up by mule and cart. Garbage, trash, and other debris in those days was burned daily."

The Public Works spokesman continued, "In fact, this landfill was known as a burning dump until 1972." During 1972 and 1973, he pointed out, the dump was converted to a sanitary landfill.

Saying there were many improvements made with respect to appearance and eliminating fires and odors, Allen noted that "the person deserving the most credit in making this a sanitary landfill is Mr. Tom Fornes, who lived near the site.

"I recall in early 1972, the state threatened to close the landfill because they had disapproved any burning dump," he said. "Through the leadership of Mr. Fornes, we received the following two years, two letters of commendation from the State Board of Health for operating one of the finest landfills in the state.

"I remember one day we were digging with the dragline, and some old newspapers were uncovered," Allen recalled. "The print was still readable, and they were dated prior to World War II. We have dug up many soft drink bottles with brands I have never heard of. Also, we uncovered the frame of a Model T Ford."

Allen said that "working with the landfill was an experience to me because of the history that was being packed away along with the garbage. It was also amazing what folks had to throw away."

He related that "the landfill may be closed, but will be remembered by many of us as a target range. This was the location we all went to practice our marksmanship by killing the many rats that had infested the area. From the late 1930's to 1970's, it was nothing unusual to go out at night with a flashlight and weapon just to see how many rats you could kill."

Allen also reported that local citizens in the early years of the landfill spotted bobtail cats and other wild animals at the site. He noted that the "landfill was a fine restaurant for rats and wild animals. Once the site became a sanitary landfill, there were no more rats, wild animals, or odor."

The spokesman expressed hope that "the city can find a suitable use for the site and not let it grow up as a wilderness."

He added that once the closed landfill is approved by the State Board of Health, the city can start making plans to use the land in the best interest of the city.

Med School Has 40 New Students

ECU News Bureau

The school now has full enrollment in each of the four years of the medical education program.

ECU has accepted a class of medical students each year since opening in August, 1977, as a four-year medical school. The school accepted 28 students in 1977, 36 in 1978 and 40 in 1979.

The medical school received 1,086 applications for this year's freshman class, more than 25 applications for each of the 40 available positions.

ECU will graduate its charter class of physicians in May, 1981. Three months ago the school honored the first four family practice residents to complete their postgraduate training here. Local area students accepted are: Clay Matthew Burnett of Greenville and Emily Lanier Taylor of Robersonville.

China Defends Freedoms Abolishment

PEKING (UPI) — Chinese lawmakers, seeking to explain why less is more, claimed the constitutional guarantees of "four big freedoms" undermined rather than strengthened democracy in China and so must be abolished.

The official Xinshua news agency said Friday that delegates to the country's rubber stamp parliament, the National People's Congress, had "voiced vigorous support" for deleting the "four big freedoms, which became 'tools of supression' in hands of the "Gang of Four."

The parliament began the process Tuesday to ban the four freedoms — the right to speak out freely, air views freely, hold great debates, and write protest posters.

The new Chinese leaders consider the rights relics of the now-discredited Cultural Revolution.

Also, the government maintains that freedom of speech, press and assembly are already guaranteed in other provisions in the constitution.

200 GREENVILLE BLVD. MALCOLM C. WILLIAMS JR., VICE PRES.

A PROLIFIC PRODUCER OF AUTUMN GOLD . . . this common roadside, field and pasture wildflower deserves a better name than "sneezeweed." In August, September and on into October, the plant bears numerous flower heads with a distinctive compact, globose center. Often, stands of the hardy flower will densely carpet roadsides and pastures.

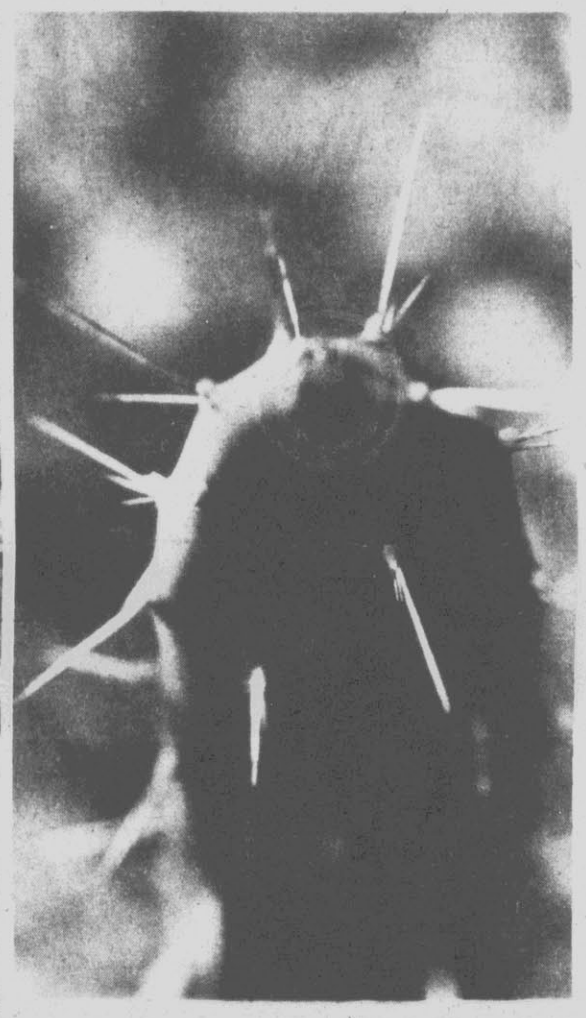

SWEEPS OF SAND . . . a reminder of the coastal origin of the Greenville area, support luxurious stands of the partridge pea, a multi-branched annual legume that produces butter gold flowers inset with crimson stamens on a stem set with delicate, almost fern-like green leaves.

September Roaming In Fallow Lands In The Greenville Area

A PUFFBALL . . . curled and dried, has an amusing appearance, somewhat like a smiling frog balancing a peanut on its skull.

THE SPIKED PAD . . . of a cactus, with its sharp spines, is occasionally found in dry, sandy fields of eastern North Carolina, and is a plant to avoid close contact with.

Text And Photographs

By Jerry Raynor

September roaming over sun drenched fallow farm lands in the outlaying areas surrounding Greenville offers a rewarding pasttime on the tag end of summer days.

While forest walks are cooler, and beach trips are more exciting, there are few activities more relaxing than ambling over land that once was cultivated, and now is being reclaimed by nature.

A former cultivated field at the half-way point of becoming forest again is a place where trees are young with plenty of growing room, not yet crowded by nature's inevitable competition for space. As a result, these early comers in reforestration are beautiful, fully formed specimens with an all-around spread of sweeping branches.

Hardier varieties of wildflowers, at this time of year mostly those with golden flowers . . . colonies of partridge peas and sneeze weed, thrive in open spaces, splashing the landscape with the concentrated gold of their flowers.

Less hardy species — the fragile butterfly pea, an occasional goats rue plant, here and there a cluster of dotted horse mint with its spectacular small orchid-like flowers and pungent mint fragrance, and stands of rabbit tobacco in full silvery flower and twisted brown leaves, add touches of other colors to the predominant September gold.

When the process of nature's reclamation gets underway, tufts of broomstraw take hold and send forth their tall, graceful stems that later in the season will blaze across the landscape in a swath of bronze.

Insects too seem to know that fallow land is fertile territory. Ants, including the inch long red with black stripes ones commonly known as "cow killers", beetles and other ground based species restlessly patrol the surface of the earth. Butterflies furnish airborne movement and color to the serene atmosphere.

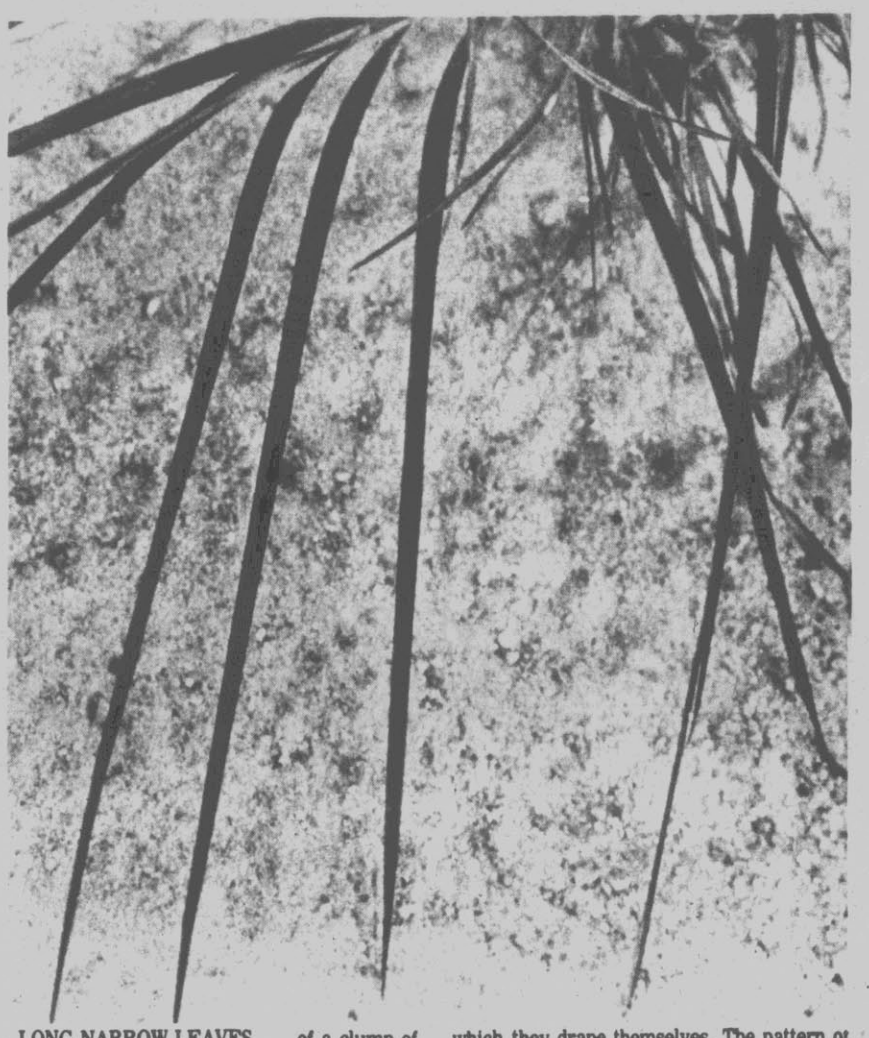

All these things are part of the fascinating facets of nature that are common to areas in the transitory stage between cultivated land and restoration to forest.

AN EARLY AUTUMN JEWEL . . . While most of nature's foliage remains green in September, early examples of multi-colored jeweled leaves begin to display their vivid coloring.

SILVER AND GREEN . . . A stand of broomstraw, now silvery-green marked with burgandy, will soon turn to bronze. The graceful stand of this grass, at one time a favorite of housewives for making brooms for home use, contrasts markedly against the emerald green of small oaks in the background.

VENETIAN COURT COLORS
Venice today. Festive. Inspired. Resplendent with palaces lighted by centuries of refined beauty. Bells chime. Excitement vibrates the air. It's 1980. And Estée Lauder transforms these romantic feelings, sounds, visions of Venice into a grand palette of colors to wear this fall. Rich, enduring colors. Blended by time. From softly glowing stones of Venetian buildings — sunwarmed tiles, rosy bricks and cool marbles. From its courtyards — shadowy greens and full, nightmisted plums. Burnished bronzes and rich brocades smoulder in a quiet blaze of color. Masterworked reds and plush rose velvets as gloriously ripe and romantic as Venice. Extravagant as Marco Polo treasures. Elegant as fashion now. Sleek, sophisticated fashion. Touched by the fantasy of courtly clothes. Dark velvets with pale silks, misted suedes and loose-cut leathers. Suits and wonderfully unmatched. Tailored. Dramatic. And the newest decorative knits move in asymmetrical lines. This is the luxury Estée Lauder brings to her Venetian Court Colors. See them. Blend them now. It's a painter's mix of 34 shades for fall, 1980. VENETIAN COURT COLORS: For Lips — Re-Nutriv Rich Rich Lipstick. Polished Performance Lipstick. Perfect Line Lip Pencil. On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

For the first time in several years the Greenville Community Ambassador Program has sponsored two high school seniors in a foreign country this summer. Dorothy Wang and Robert Bright spent seven weeks in France traveling and living with a host family.

Wang and Bright first spent a few days in North Adams, Mass., with other students from across the nation. The participants had a chance to talk about their fears and expectations and to become more familiar with the program. Wang then flew to Thorigne, France, where she stayed three weeks with her host family followed by travels to Brittany, the Loire Valley and Paris. Bright lived in Nimes, France, and toured the southern part of the country.

During the school year both students will speak to various clubs about their experiences this summer.

The junior varsity cheerleaders captured first place overall at a cheerleading camp held July 3-Aug. 2 in Chapel Hill. The UNC cheerleaders, instructors at the camp, taught participating squads new cheers, chants, students and dance routines. In addition to the first place trophy Rose's junior varsity won a blue ribbon for being one of the most spirited squads at the camp.

The varisty cheerleaders also attended a camp this summer at Duke University July 28-31. The camp was sponsored by the Dynamic Cheerleaders Association with 31 squads attending from all over the Southeast. Rose's varsity placed third in overall competition.

Scott Johnson, a senior, attended the Key Club International 37th annual convention in San Diego June 29-July 2. Johnson, who is currently serving as lieutenant governor, Division 11 of the Carolinas District, was sponsored in his trip by the University City Kiwanis Club. Key clubbers from the U. S., Mexico and Canada attended the convention. Following the convention, members of the Carolinas District traveled in California and to Tijuana, Mexico.

The Spanish students at Rose are busy with preparations for National Hispanic Heritage Week Sept. 14-20. Some of the activities for the week include dressing in costumes native to Spanish speaking countries, forming a mariachi band which will serenade classes throughout the week and serving Mexican food for lunch on Friday. The school will also be decorated with banners, bulletin boards, posters and display cases reflecting all aspects of Hispanic culture.

Refugee Flood Straining West German Resources

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Thousands of refugees from Third World poverty have flooded affluent West Germany in recent years, straining its budgets and social services.

The influx has presented cruel dilemmas to a nation whose postwar constitution, drafted in part by German politicians who had fled Nazi oppression, guarantees all political refugees the right of asylum.

Thousands of Czechoslovaks, Hungarians, Soviet citizens and others fleeing political oppression have taken advantage of the liberal asylum law to settle here.

But since the mid-1970s, thousands of Turks, Pakistanis, Eritreans and others have come in search of jobs and a higher living standard. Many of these arrive at the frontiers or in Frankfurt's international airport without funds, job skills or knowledge of the language.

Many of them are herded from one government-run transit camp to another in a manner grimly reminiscent of wartime deportations.

"Disgrace!" shrieked one newspaper headline. "It's inhuman how these foreigners are pushed around," another newspaper said.

Since 1973, the stream of asylum seekers has exploded from 5,289 to an expected 150,000 in 1980. More than 70 percent of the applicants in recent years were from Turkey.

According to government spokesman Armin Gruenewald, "only eight to nine percent of the applicants actually have political grounds for fleeing their country."

Blocked from removing the constitutional asylum guarantee, the government has proposed drastic cuts in welfare benefits automatically granted to asylum seekers and now requires visas for visitors from Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Afghanistan, India and Ethiopia. Turks may soon have to obtain visas, too.

"We do not have any intention of cutting back on the right to apply asylum," said Gruenewald. "We just want to make sure that it is not abused."

Officials say they realize West Germany's economic boom days are heading for a slump and unemployment is rising. Suddenly, 4.1 million foreign workers in the country appear to be enough.

The Third World influx also introduces race as an issue. A conservative member of parliament, Peter Diethei, maintains that "Germany is inching towards becoming a multiracial state."

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's governing Social Democrats criticize the opposition for attempting to use the issue to seek votes in an election year and rejected opposition candidate Franz Josef Strauss' suggestion that the fate of the asylum applicants be decided upon arrival by special judges.

Since the war, most asylum seekers have been ethnic German refugees from the Soviet-dominated countries of East Gemany, Poland and Romania or the Soviet Union itself.

The Europeans assimilated well when West Germany was a blossoming industrial power that siphoned up workers. Social benefits such as work permits, child-support payments and money for clothing, food and housing were easily granted.

Applicants from Communist-governed nations, many of whom were educated and speak German, usually had little trouble seeking asylum.

Until recently, an applicant received permits to work, plus the equivalent of about $160 to $180 a month in aid, about $20 a day for hotel fees and in some cases money for children, clothing or food while the application was pending. If the request was refused, the applicant simply returned home without having to refund any money.

Officials in Frankfurt complained that this year alone asylum cases cost the city $6 million; in West Berlin the cost was put at more than $10 million.

The matter came to a head in July when the mayor of Frankfurt, Walter Wallman, refused to accept 184 Eritreans and Afghans who arrived at nearby Rhine-Main international airport.

He sent them by train to a national processing camp in Bavaria where they were kept in tents in cold, wet weather before being accepted.

In desperation, embarrassed public officials have scurried to make peace and weave compromises between the over-burdened cities, where most of the asylum seekers have congregated, and the state government, which the national government contends has responsibility in the matter.

The Bundestag, West Germany's parliament, has passed measures by which work permits will not be granted for the first year, nor will child support payments be paid, officials said. Applicants will still receive money for food and housing.

In addition, more transit camps are going to be built near Frankfurt and Wiesbaden to house applicants while they wait for their applications to be processed.

Processing will be speeded up and requirements for proving poltitical repression will be sharpened with the goal of settling claims within a year, officials said.

Dear Abby

Grieving Friends Need Your Presence

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a professional counselor, I encounter many people who don't know how to handle grief or the loss of a loved one. They are grieving alone because their friends are afraid to visit them. Why do friends stay away? Because they don't know what to say.

I have learned more from dying and grieving people than I have from books. Perhaps these tips on how to give support to those who are terminally ill or are struggling to cope with a tragedy or loss will be useful to your readers. Please feel free to edit as you see fit and use in your column.

PHYLLIS W. HENDERSON, STAUNTON, VA.

1. When there's a terminally ill person in the family, everyone asks the family, "How is he?" Those who must live with that person need to hear, "How are you?" The family is hurting, yet they're treated as if they were invisible.

2. Don't worry about what to say. Speak from the heart. Or say nothing. Sometimes just hugging or holding someone can convey more than words.

3. Don't worry about what to bring someone who is very ill. Bring yourself. And give of yourself. Don't be like the person who runs in and says, "I've come to cheer you up . . . I'm double-parked. Gotta run. Bye!"

4. Be there later. Chances are, their numbness will wear off long after the crisis or the funeral, but by then, everyone's gone home. Anniversaries, birthdays and holidays are hard times to be alone.

5. Don't shut the children out. If there are children in the family, listen to them, and don't hide your tears. You should teach them that tears are healing. (They are.) Ask each child if he/she wants to attend the funeral, and accept each answer as right for that child.

6. Don't stay away. Go even if you have a knot in your stomach. Go even if you're afraid you might say all the wrong things. Chances are they won't remember your words, but they'll feel your touch and remember that you came when they needed someone.

DEAR ABBY: What is the difference between a mule and a donkey? What exactly is an ass? Is an ass the same as a jackass? And have you ever heard of a hinny? And which of these is sterile?

STUPID CITY KID (AGE 36)

DEAR CITY KID: A mule is the offspring of a male ass and a female horse (mare). A mule is almost always sterile.

An ass is a donkey. And a jackass is specifically a male donkey.

A hinny is the offspring of a she-ass and a stallion. A hinny is also usually sterile. (Class adjourned.)

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for publishing my 1971 letter urging people who are hard of hearing to wear hearing aids.

The good news is that through the advances in medical research and surgical techniques, my hearing has been completely restored!

Although I have never had nerve deafness, there are wonderful advances being made to help those with a nerve loss.

The Ear Research Institute in Los Angeles has a research program where it has implanted 100 totally deaf people and brought them into a world of sound. This research program must be kept going because we hope that one day in the not too distant future, help will be available to all who suffer the devastating handicap of deafness.

Bless you for being such a sweet, funny, caring person.

NANETTE FABRAY

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that men never make passes at girls who wear glasses?

NEARSIGHTED

DEAR NEAR: It depends on their frames.

DEAR ABBY: Our 4-year-old son has been calling my husband and me by our first names ever since he started talking. It has never bothered us, so we've never made an issue of it. The child is polite, respectful and loving.

Our problem is my mother-in-law, who thinks it "sounds" terrible. She says it shows a lack of respect, and we should teach our son to call us Mom and Dad, the way other children address their parents. I repeat, we don't see anything wrong with it, but my mother-in-law keeps harping on it.

What do you think?

SATISFIED MOTHER

DEAR SATISFIED: There is no need to change your way of doing anything you're comfortable with. If your mother-in-law isn't happy with it — that's her problem.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of relatives you never hear from unless they're drunk?

D. IN DELAWARE

DEAR D.: Don't complain. You could have relatives you never hear from unless they're broke.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. How can nematodes be controlled in home vegetable gardens?

A. The three most practical methods for most home gardeners are sanitation, rotation and early fall clean-up. Sanitation means keeping weeds out of the garden. Rotation means moving vegetables that are susceptible to nematodes to different locations in the garden each year. Early fall clean-up means destroying the old crop as soon as the harvest is complete. Exposing old roots to sun, wind and cold is a particularly good practice. Granular nematicides are available but are not labeled for use on several vegetables. However, liquid nematicides are expensive, normally available only in large containers, require a waiting period, and must placed at a depth of six to eight inches. For these reasons, most home gardeners do not like to use them. (Harry Duncan, extension plant pathologist)

Q. Kentucky fescue seems to have such a short life span. Is there any other grass that will grow in my area and not have to be constantly resowed? (R.F., Vass)

A. Try Bermudagrass and zoysiagrass. They are better adapted to the dry, hot conditions associated with deep, sandy soils. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. When can I count on azaleas, which were rooted this year, to bloom? (H.S., Pinehurst)

A. In the spring of 1982, if you care for them properly. Grow your newly rooted azaleas in individual containers or well protected beds for the next year. Then transplant them to the landscape. Your new plants are almost like a new baby. They will need a lot to survive. Put them in a mixture of soil, bark and sand or a similar medium. Place them in filtered light, such as pines provide. Keep them watered and protected from hard freezes. Some people cover beds of young plants with plastic. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Dental Detective 'Tracks' Indians

By ROBERT C. RADCLIFFE
Nat'l Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — A man who judges people by their teeth believes he knows how Americans got where they are today.

By Americans, Dr. Christy G. Turner II means the Indians and Eskimos of the New World who already had been on hand for thousands of years when the first Europeans arrived.

Dr. Turner, whose investigations have been supported extensively by the National Geographic Society, also believes:

That he is on the track of finding out where these earliest Americans came from — roughly somewhere in central Siberia and north China;

That they moved from Asia to Alaska across the Bering Land Bridge by following the animals they hunted, the Eskimos with harpoons seeking whales, seals, and other marine mammals along the shore, and the Indians with spears tracking mammoth, bison, and horses inland;

That a third group of immigrants, armed with bows and arrows, also crossed the bridge just before the Ice Age glaciers melted enough to drown the bridge beneath rising oceans about 10,000 to 12,000 years ago.

Toothmarks as History

And all of this he surmises from teeth, by painstakingly examining thousands of ancient and modern teeth from the New World and Asia.

Dr. Turner is a professor at Arizona State University at Tempe and, in the small fraternity of dental anthropologists, is one of the world's foremost explorers of this kind of history.

Dr. Turner says teeth provide about 250 clues of independent characteristics that have been passed through the generations by genes. He has concentrated on 28 major characteristics to watch for as he examines and categorizes the teeth of prehistoric and modern men alike.

Among his 28 clues are:

Shovel teeth – Insides of the front teeth or incisors are markedly scooped out or "shoveled" in the mouths of Indians and moderately so with Eskimos. Europeans' teeth never are.

"This clearly shows that all the people of the New World had to come from north Asia, where shoveled teeth are also characteristic," Dr. Turner says. "It rules out south Asia entirely and Europe entirely."

Tracing Roots

— Peg teeth – a large percentage of people from the Amur River area in northern Asia and, on the other side of the Bering Sea, Eskimos in Alaska and arctic America have third upper molars that are peg-shaped. Nobody else has teeth like this.

— Five cusps – Asians and American Indians always have five cusps (the little bumps or knobs on back of grinding teeth) on their lower second molars. Most Europeans and people from southeast Asia have only four cusps.

TELLTALE TEETH — Dr. Christy G. Turner II hunts evidence of the early Americans who came over the Bering Strait Bridge. (National Geographic, 1980, Copyright)

Dr. Turner says he doesn't know of any adaptive value or purpose of these teeth differences or what tgriggered these gene mutations.

He is convinced these traits are "quite stable evolutionarily." As an example, he cites another trait: a tendency for some people — typical of northern Asians, but unknown among people of European background — to have lower first molars with three roots, instead of two.

His extensive research shows that 5 percent of all Indians also have this trait, those living today as well as those buried many thousands of years ago.

The three-root clue shows the Indians' ancestors came from Asia, he says, adding that he'll know where more specifically when he finds people somewhere in Asia with the same trait at the same 5 percent frequency.

In the same way, he hopes to find the original Asian homeland of Eskimos, who have 40 percent frequency of this trait.

Migration Theory

Dr. Turner has just finished examining thousands of skulls and teeth of early Americans in collections at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and museums in Mexico City. Within the next year he plans to visit the Soviet Union to make comparisons with collections and data anthropologists have gathered in Siberia.

On the basis of what is known so far, Dr. Turner has come up with the following ideas of how the earliest Americans found their way to Alaska:

With the top of the world still gripped by the Ice Age, a large ice-free corridor existed, running northeast from the Lake Baykal region of Siberia along the Lena River basin and eventually to the grass-covered Bering Land Bridge.

Dr. Turner speculates that asian ancestors of the Indians wandered through this natural corridor hunting the large grass-grazing animals like bison, horses and mammoths that were their natural prey, crossing the center of the bridge, which was many hundreds of miles wide.

Palm Springs: Popular California Desert Oasis

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

An oasis, according to my Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary, is "an area in a waste or desert made fertile by ground water or by surface irrigation."

That definition certainly fits Palm Springs, the long popular spa and resort in the Colorado desert in Southern California, some 100 miles southeast of San Diego.

The millions of gallons of water needed to supply the requirements of the 44-square-mile community comes from melting snows in nearby mountains and from wells deep beneath the desert sands. And that includes about 7,000 swimming pools (one for every five residents, according to the local convention bureau), keeping 39 golf courses green and flushing down more than 250 private and public tennis courts.

Palm Springs was little more than a cluster of dusty adobe huts and wooden shacks when discovered in the 1930s by movie stars looking for a hideaway from the glamor and glitter of Hollywood.

Today, it can boast of about 200 hotels and inns, nearly 2 million visitors annually and a permanent population of nearly 34,000, including such celebrities as former President Ford, Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Lucille Ball, among others.

Accommodations range from budget-priced small inns and hotels to costly resort complexes of up to 500 rooms complete with private golf courses, tennis courts and other recreational facilities and amenities.

When the temperature goes up, the prices go down. Some hotels cut rates as much as 60 percent during the summer months, to as low as around $20 per person per day in smaller inns like Claremont Hotel, El Morro Villa, Golden Gate Inn, Palm Highlands Hacienda, Sunbeam Inn, Tiki Palms Hotel, Warm Sands Villa and Westward Ho Hotel.

Big spenders, however, can lay out up to $600 a day at Ken Irwin's La Mancha, a private club resort which has opened some of its luxury villas to non-members on a hotel basis.

The $600 is what Irwin gets for a three-bedroom, three-bathroom villa complete with private pool, Jacuzzi, a projector tv with a library of 60 films, and a private tournament-sized tennis court. There also are a big living room with a pushbutton (gas) fireplace and a fully equipped kitchen. Daily maid service and a newspaper also are included in the tab.

One, two and other three-bedroom villas go for about $70 to $270 daily during the summer months (through Oct. 15). Eight villas have private swimming pools where guests can skinny dip or tan in the buff inside walled patios. Scattered about the grounds are a large pool, three tennis courts, two paddle courts, a nine-hole putting green, hot whirlpool, ice plunge, and a central clubhouse with a sauna, gymnasium, bar, game tables and dining room.

Irwin, who answers the telephone with — what else — "Man from La Mancha" says his resort is the "possible dream" for even budget-minded vacationists. He pointed out that the $600-a-day actually "amounts to only $100 per day per person when shared by three couples."

La Mancha is listed among the convention bureau's "Small Discoveries," hotels with up to 50 rooms. For higher-bracket privacy seekers there also are Sundance Villas, 19 units with 35 pools and Jacuzzis; La Siesta Villas with 18 villas with walled patios; and Ingleside Inn with 26 rooms, each with in-room steam baths.

Not included is the famed Palm Springs Hotel and Spa, built over the natural mineral springs which gave this oasis its name, where summer rates begin around $30 per person double daily, with children 12 and under free in the same room as their parents.

The Spa bath house is open to the public — there's a charge for "taking the waters."

Incidentally, the springs — and much of the land in Palm Springs — is still owned by the Agua Caliente Indians and was a place of pilgrimage for ailing redmen for centuries.

In addition to golf, tennis and swimming, the Palm Springs area also offers jogging, bicycle, horseback and hiking trails, camping and picnicking, and winter sports atop 8,516-foot Mt. San Jacinto, a 15-minute ride on the Palm Springs Aerial Tramway — a must for visitors. (There is a charge.)

Sightseeing tours include the homes and estates of prominent citizens — Liberace's home is easily identifiable by the lamp post in the shape of a big candelabra.

Shopping also can be fun. The summer is bargain sale time for the numerous exclusive shops and boutiques. Don't miss The Lemon Tree on S. Palm Canyon Dr., a gift shop which looked like a zoo with its brass, papier mache, and concrete sculptures of animals and birds, including (during our visit) a near life-sized zebra.

Palm Springs, a short distance off Interstate 10, is about two hours by road from Los Angeles and San Diego. It is served by American Airlines, Air California, Western Airlines, Hughes Air West and TWA.

Headache Cure Is Still Cheap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite soaring medical costs, the average American consumer can still get rid of a headache for a nickel or less. The average cost of a non-prescription headache remedy still is only three to five cents per treatment, says The Proprietary Association, a trade group representing United States manufacturers of non-prescription drugs. The two main over-the-counter headache remedies are aspirin and acetaminophen.

Guatemala Scene Of Almost Daily Assassinations

By JOE FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — "They come here armed to the teeth, but we have only pencils," said a San Carlos University official. "It's the same each time, maybe 10 of them with pistols and machine guns. When they're done, they give a shot in the head to make sure."

Rightist assassination squads, who kill people almost daily in Guatemala in response to an increase in leftist attacks and violence, are striking especially hard at San Carlos, the national university here. Rightists claim the campus is a spawning ground for leftist activity, a charge that is denied by university officials.

The campaign at the university increased two years ago, and since then at least 65 students, professors and administrators, some with political ties and some without, have been slain, university and police records show. At least that many more have been wounded and others have vanished. Hundreds have fled the country.

"The students say they're organizing a self-defense force," said the San Carlos official. He asked not to be named, "because you can get killed for saying the wrong thing sometimes."

In June two men failed in an attempt to shoot a student on the campus and were caught by other students. The students killed one of the two men with his own pistol and burned the other alive on a trash pile. The students later produced a government identification card they claimed they took from one of the bodies.

"We assume it was the self-defense forces," said the source. "They (the students) wore masks."

In addition to the killings, he said, at least 400 students, teachers and administrators, including the rector, Saul Osorio Paz, have fled to Costa Rica, Mexico or Venezuela. "San Carlos has seen an exodus of terror," he said.

Rightly or wrongly, San Carlos is seen by rightists as a wellspring of increased leftist and terrorist activity in this country, which is run by a conservative military government.

"Guatemala is at war with Communist Russia," said a wealthy sugar grower and exporter who also asked not to be named. "The problems are caused by the unions and by San Carlos University. And by the (Roman Catholic) Church."

Most of the victims appear to have been pre-selected, killed as they left their homes, as they waited in cars for a traffic light to change, or as they walked through the trees and modern buildings that make up this campus on the outskirts of town.

But on July 14, a day after a National Police colonel, his driver and two bodyguards were killed by unidentified gunmen, men in cars opened fire with submachine guns on students getting off of buses and standing near the administration building, killing eight and wounding more in an apparently random slaughter.

The San Carlos official said the attacks appear to have come "from ultra-right forces within the government. But we have no concrete proof of that."

San Carlos and many other national universities in Latin America have an autonomous status, and government forces are not allowed to enter.

The attacks escalated when Rector Osorio Paz took office and reoriented some of the school's programs, bringing them into closer touch with social problems of the country.

Questions were asked in classrooms and discussion on how or if Guatemala was benefiting from its heavy reliance on foreign capital, especially U.S. investment, and from the multinational companies clustered here.

"Of course there are leftists here," said the San Carlos source. "There are leftists at every university. But they are not dominant. They were defeated in the last student election."

The government is required by the constitution to give financial support to San Carlos. Since 1976, enrollment has doubled to about 38,000, but the level of the support has remained the same.

Downtown, at the National Palace, the 3 percent of the national income set aside for the school is not one of the more popular expenditures.

"The government fulfills its role to San Carlos as the constitution requires," said Maj. Rolando Archila Marroquin, spokesman for Gen. Fernando Romero Lucas Garcia, Guatemala's president.

As for university complaints about punitive short funding, he said: "It is lamentable that they are wasting their money using it for a noisy press campaign instead of using it to educate students. They are setting a bad example."

Violent deaths are by no means unique to the university community. Labor leaders, opposition politicians and suspected leftists also are killed with abandon, sometimes at the rate of a dozen or more a day.

On the surface it seems a tranquil country, heavily populated in the countryside by colorful, gentle Indians.

This capital of 1 million people is a modern, bustling place where Indian garb and business suits mix on wide, tree-lined streets, where buildings are built close to the ground because of earthquakes.

"If you just went to work each day and never read the papers, you would never know there are problems here," said the wife of an American soft drink executive.

But the left is getting bolder, and rightists are responding with increasing brutality. The left, too, attacks police and army patrols and kidnaps wealthy businessmen. It is difficult to know which crimes are common murders, which are political and which may have some other motive.

A review of one day's newspapers showed a peasant shot to death, two bodies found with the hands cut off, five people found shot or clubbed to death in two pick-up trucks, two Interpol agents killed and a third wounded, a man shot 16 times and found alongside a roadway, a man shot to death in front of his house, a young police officer shot to death and an unidentified man found tortured and killed near the downtown section.

In the interior near the El Salvador border, two young men and two young women were found tortured and burned.

Flamboyant BBC Boss

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — Once a year when the $85 bill for the annual television license drops through the mail slot, thousands of Britons are apt to think fondly of the great oasis of free TV that is the United States.

George Howard, the colorful new chairman of the British Broadcasting Corporation, says the cure for those TV license blues might be a day spent watching average American programs.

Although he suggested that might be "sadism," there was a softening smile. The BBC is aware of the merits of American television, though it tends to regard its own mix of two TV networks, four national and 20 local radio stations — with never a commercial interruption — as the best of its kind in the world.

Howard, 60, is a large man who often accentuates his size with pink suits and other sartorial flamboyancies. For an interview in his office in Broadcasting House he wore a shirt of electric green.

He says he was surprised when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher chose him for the "part-time" four-day-a-week, $43,000-a-year post. Others in broadcasting were less astonished.

This is a time of crisis for the BBC. It needs a chairman who can convince politicians that raising the license fee will not cost them votes. It also needs a man who can boost the morale of 26,000 employees in the face of higher wages paid by the competing commercial network, ITV, and preserve the integrity of the service while pruning $325 million from the budget in the next two years.

The license fee supports only the BBC. The commercial network is prosperously financed by advertising. BBC1, BBC2 and ITV are the only three networks available to British viewers who cannot pickup continental stations.

In 1699 another ancestor, the Earl of Carlisle, commissioned the building of a house so vast and magnificent it now draws 150,000 paying visitors a year.

The Howards filled it with art treasures and, incredibly, the actual altar of the Oracle of Delphi, from which the Pythian priestess spoke her prophecies to Ancient Greece. It was acquired by Sir William Hamilton, husband of Lady Hamilton, and brought to Castle Howard by the other member of that famous triangle, Admiral Lord Nelson.

Howard inherited the house and its 10,000 rich Yorkshire acres when his two brothers were killed in action in World War II. After the war, in which he was himself wounded, he made a reputation in public service and became a governor of the BBC in 1972.

The BBC's license fee provides 95 percent of its $1.3 billion annual income and Howard is looking to that source for additional funds.

He says government failure to increase the fee could mean the shutting down of one of the TV networks, BBC2, and other services.

"We might have to cut one or two of the radio networks. It's got as serious as that."

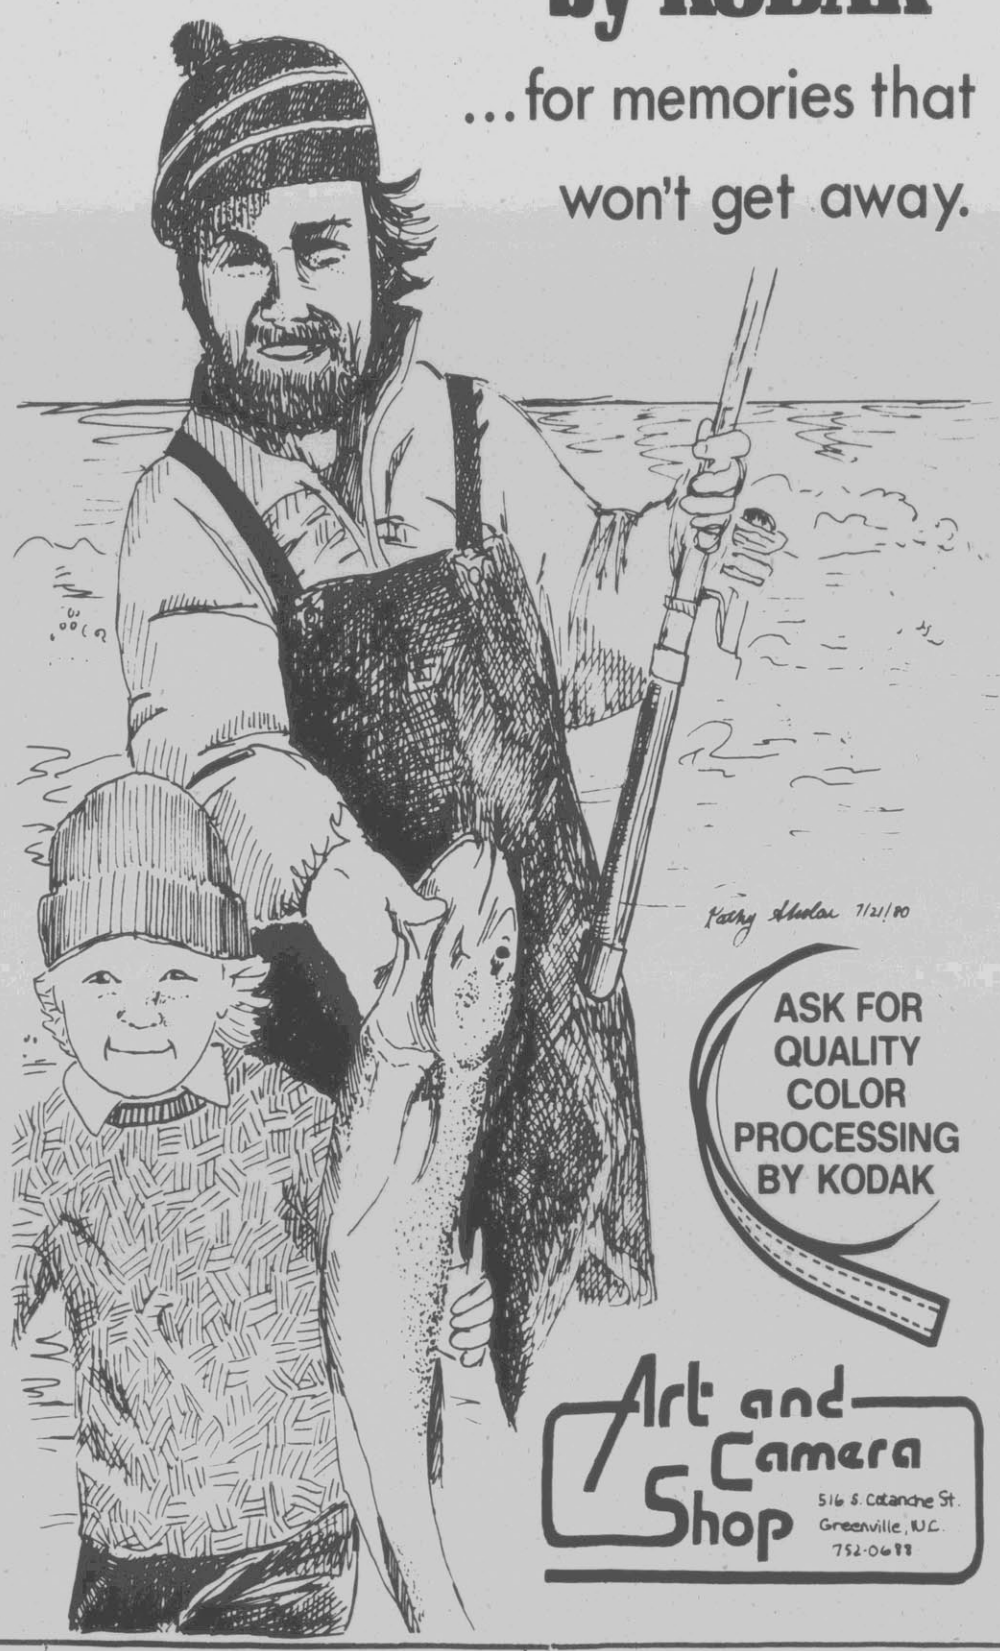

One ploy might be to collect the fee on a weekly or monthly basis. "We've got to think of new ways of paying it by installments."

Looking ahead, Howard said, "I don't think there are going to be any dramatic new departures. We will stay in the forefront of broadcasting provided we get the money. And we may well stay ahead in programing." The BBC earns millions from the sales of its programs in the United States and elsewhere.

Howard said he did not think cable TV would mean a great deal in Britain, where viewers get a clear and crisp picture off the air.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Raleigh

Two Story Design Suits Large Family

By Jerry Bishop

Four ample bedrooms, a large laundry, an abundance of closets, even a library for a moment of quiet make the Raleigh, a two level traditional design, ideal for a large or growing family.

To preserve the traditional exterior, the double garage is tucked behind the home and given a side entry. Small-paned windows and a colonial-inspired front door add interest.

The floor plan, however, is a delightful mixture of old and new. An up-to-date traffic pattern melds with antique features such as the large library and the not-new but quite convenient first floor bedroom.

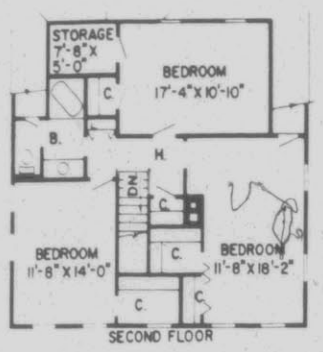

Guests are ushered into the gracious foyer with coat closet and living room at right and library at left. The library, a comfortable 14 ft. in length, can be closed off from the living areas with the door and also merits direct access to the powder room. This area can adapt to use as a family room as well as library.

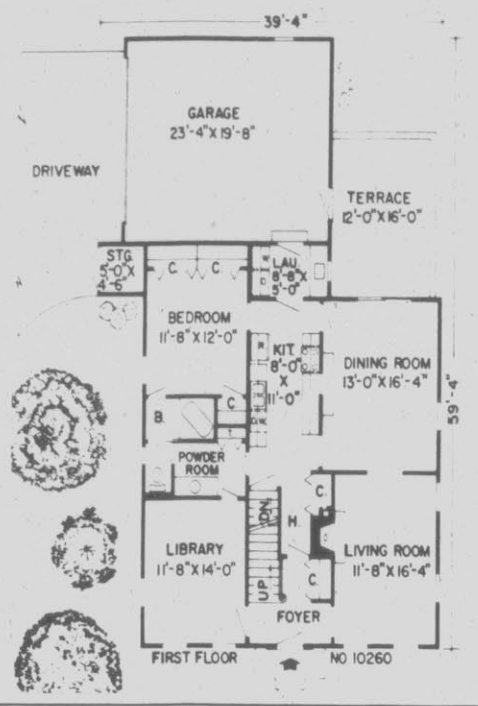

Formal in approach and intent, the 16-ft. living room features a wood-burning fireplace and abounds with windows. Neighboring dining room is visually enlarged via sliding glass doors to the terrace.

Corridor kitchen, handy to the dining room, is set opposite the efficient laundry, where a garage access suggests double duty as a mud room. Completing the first level is the well-closeted bedroom with access to the combination bath and powder room.

On the second level, three large bedrooms are lavished with space and closets. Besides the storage room on this floor, the design calls for a storage room off the garage and a basement.

Glitter Means Glamour For Interiors Of Today

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

On the decorating front, mirrored surfaces have been cropping up a lot lately. So have foil wall coverings, shiny lacquered walls, upholstery fabrics with a sheen, satin sheets, chandeliers, cut crystal stemware and brass and chrome accessories.

Shine, it seems, is in as a decorative ploy. And in large cities all over the United States, mirror-bright decorating schemes are becoming the height of fashion. The reason for the growth of interest in shiny interiors is in the times, according to one decorator.

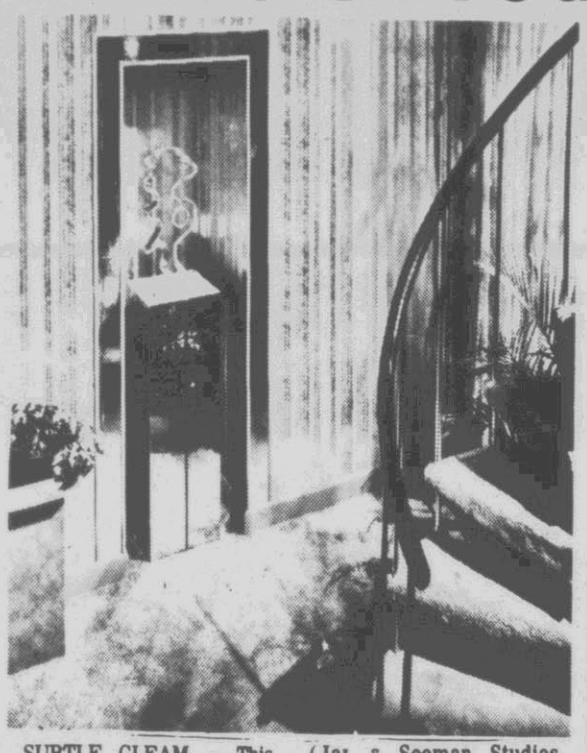

"You can read the psychology of an age from its home furnishings," said Mary Knackstedt, a designer with offices in New York and Harrisburg, Pa. "Style supports us in troubled times. And glittery rooms are are a little bit of self indulgence. The high anxietys which are common today, especially in cities, can be uplifted with glittery interiors, and that is why they are growing in popularity."

They mean glamour and excitement and they bring some pizzazz to life."

Shiny wall coverings have been strong sellers for at least five years, except in New England where they don't go over at all, said one manufactirer. They are specially in demand in California, Texas and New York, added Charles Dorvetti, design director for James Seeman Studios, a wall coverings producer. It's the understated styles that sell best, he added, not the blindly bright ones.

Ms. Winkler agrees with the use of only a touch of glitter. "I like to use reflective surfaces, low-level glitter, for the air of glamour and sparkle they bring to a room," she said.

There are many ways to bring a touch of glamour into a room without turning it into the great white way. Glass and chrome tables, plexiglass furniture, brass accessories, shiny lacquered furniture, high gloss paint on the walls and even polished cotton can be used effectively to provide some reflective surfaces against which light can bounce and sparkle.

Glittery rooms are not hard to do, but lighting plays a more important role in a shiny room than in an ordinary room.

"It's very important to have several separate sources of illumination and to have dimming controls so that if the room develops too much of a glare, the lights can be toned down," said Ms. Winkler.

"It's a question of using mirrors, the play of color, marvelous lighting," said Ms. Knackstedt.

When you are seeking to create a glamorous setting, you can forget about lamps, she advised. Have your light coming from strange places and hidden so that only the effects are visible.

An excess of brilliant surfaces in a room can be too much of a good thing, added Ms. Knackstedt. A sparkling decorating scheme is fun in a foyer or small downstairs bathroom, places we are in and out of quickly.

But a glittery room is not usually a place where you want to spend a lot of time, she warned.

"Glittery rooms don't seem appropriate for country settings. But they are wonderful in big cities where people tend to use their homes mainly in the evening and to entertain quite a bit," added Ms. Winkler.

Today's shiny rooms owe a great deal to the art deco period. The style popular in the 1920s and 1930s reached its most flamboyant form in the extravagant Hollywood film sets of the 1930s and 1940s.

"There is a 30- or 40- year gap in what people consider nostalgic," noted Lionel Libson, an executive with General Tire's wall covering division. In the '50s it was the Charleston and the Roaring Twenties; in the '20s it was the Gay Nineties.

"Today we are attracted to the shine of art deco and art nouveau and I would expect to see more wall coverings designs and other home furnishings products based on these styles in the near future."

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — In an ordinary asphalt shingle, what is the function of the mineral granules? I have been told by one person that they protect the shingles from the rays of the sun, by another that they make the shingle waterproof. Which is correct?

A. — The granules are a protection against the sun's heat on the shingles, which otherwise would become too dry too quickly. It is the asphalt that provides the waterproofing qualities.

Q. — We are having our kitchen remodeled. The contractor wants to make the kitchen U-shaped, which he says saves steps. I had wanted the kitchen to be somewhat different in shape, but he says that it would require too much work and be too expensive. Is he correct about the efficiency of a U-shaped kitchen?

A. — Definetly. A U-shaped kitchen is efficient and generally out of traffic flow. Incidentally, a contractor who is trying to save you money is worth keeping. The number of possible arrangements in a kitchen is limited by the dimensions of the room and the location of windows, and doors to adjacent rooms or the exterior. There are some conflicting viewpoints about which type of kitchen layout is best, but no one disputes the fact that the absence of traffic flow across the working area is vital to complete effciency.

Q. — How big should wooden posts be to support a patio roof, one made of fiberglass panels? I assume the rafters should be 2 X 4s.

A. — The supporting posts should be 4 x 4s. Yes, the rafters should be 2 x 4s, running from the house to the front end of the framework. Select the panels first, since the width of the panels will determine how far apart the 2 x 4s will be. Space the rafters so the panels will overlap on them. Mastic and aluminum nails equipped with attached leakproof washers are used to attach thepanels to the wood. If you are very careful, you may get by without predrilling holes for the nails, but you can eliminate the possibilty of chipping the panels by drilling the holes a fraction of an inch smaller than the diameter of the nails.

Q. — I used a combination of boiled linseed oil and turpentine to finish a child's desk. At first, I didn't like the looks of it, but after considerable rubbing I am satisfied with it. How often must this finish be renewed?

A. — To keep the finish at its best, go through the rubbing routine every few months or so without adding anymore of the mixture. This will make the finish even more satiny than it already is. Perhaps in a year or two, you may see a need to put on more finishing material.

(The technique of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelopeto Kow-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

She Hires Out As House-Sitter

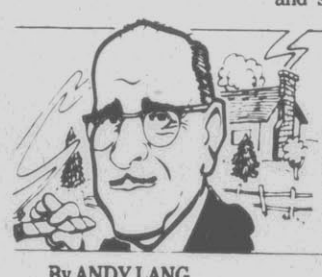

PUEBLO, Colo. (AP) — It's 3:45 a.m. The woman hired by the owners to look after their home while they're on vacation is alone in the house. Suddenly, the burglar alarm sounds and she reaches for the phone.

It's all part of being a "house-sitter" for Sister Mary Clare Peterson, who was later told by police responding to her call that the burglar alarm was faulty.

She got her first house-sitting job five years ago. She accepts whatever the owners want to offer her.

Sister Clare says she does it as a kindness for people in the neighborhood surrounding the Shrine of St. Therese Church, to which she is assigned.

Sometimes Sister Suzanne Schmelzle and Sister Mary Hugh Peterson, Sister Clare's blood sister, also serve as house-sitters.

Old-Time Medicine Shows Documentary Subject

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

BAILEY, N.C. (AP) — They have come from all over the country with their old guitars, fiddles and banjos to do what they've been doing for more than 50 years — entertain the folks and make the hard-sell go down easier at a traveling medicine show.

The state Department of Cultural Resources, in cooperation with the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, is bringing back the old-time medicine show, complete with a handful of musicians and comedians who grew up on the medicine-show circuit.

The Cultural Resources Department, with a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts, is filming the show for a documentary to be shown on the Public Broadcasting Service later this year.

Steve Zeitlin, a folklorist for the Smithsonian who is co-directing the film, said the entertainers in the show are "the last survivors from the old shows of the 1930s and '40s."

"We're hoping that this film will preserve the tradition of the medicine show going from ethnic community to ethnic community, like they did 50 years ago," Zeitlin said. "That's the beauty of these shows, the entertainers adjusted their jokes to fit all ethnic groups and they pleased everybody. And they really enjoyed their music, their way of life."

"I wanted to come because that's where I cut my teeth in the entertainment world," said Acuff. "The memories are coming back, the jokes we pulled, the things we did.

"This is one of the most memorable things I've done in a long, long time."

A handful of old-time performers, not as well-known as Acuff but just as skilled in medicine-show entertainment, said they started playing and singing in medicine shows when they were children.

"I couldn't have been much more than eight years old," said 70-year-old "Greasy" Medlin of Columbia, S.C. "I'll tell you what drove me to the medicine show — hunger. Back then we didn't have food stamps, and when you were eight years old, you were expected to go to work, to bring in some money.

"But I'll tell you, I've tried to retire several times, but I just can't quit. I enjoy it all too much," said Medlin, who plays a guitar.

"Yeah, in this business you don't retire, you just ugly away," threw in Medlin's medicine-show partner of more than 40 years, "Snuffy" Jenkins, also of Columbia. "We just love these shows, and we can't give 'em up."

For the recreation of the medicine show this weekend, Fred Bloodgood of Michigan, a "doctor" who had his own medicine show in the 1930s, will be touting his cure-all formula. He said there may even be souvenir bottles for those who buy his elixir.

The stage for the show has been set up in a vacant lot in the middle of downtown Bailey, a community of about 800 people.

Producers of the show have made an effort to keep the setting authentic, right down to the wooden stage with hand-lettered signs reading "Free Show Tonite." Attached to the stage is a 1930s vintage car with a wooden sleeping area built onto it, like the one where medicine-show travelers spent their nights on the road.

Residents of the town donated most of the materials to build the stage and benches for the show, Zeitlin said.

"When we chose Bailey, we were looking for the kind of town where medicine shows thrived years ago," Zeitlin said. "The people here understand the medicine-show kind of entertainment, and they've been great while we've been here. We felt that this town was perfect for this show."

Mae Noell of Tarpon Springs, Fla., who will do comedy routines in the show with her husband, Bob, said Bailey was the right setting for the show because it was a popular medicine-show town years ago.

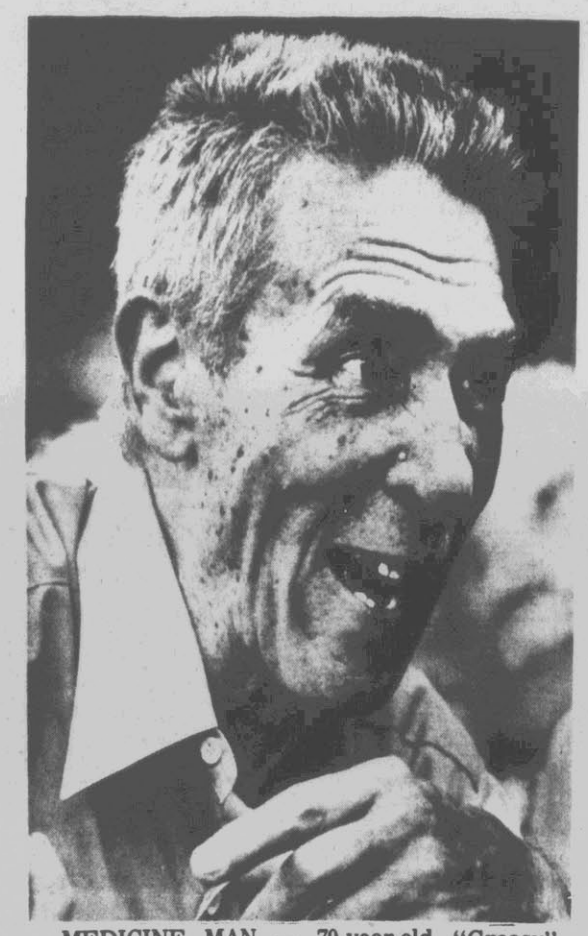

"Just the other night I was sitting and watching some rehearsals, and this man tapped me on the back and said, 'Didn't you bring a wrestling ape show here back in the early '50s.'

"Well, he was right. My husband and I had dropped our medicine show we had had for years, and we traveled around the country with a wrestling chimp show. And that man remembered that we played Bailey all those years ago. He was just a child at the time.

"When people remember you from that many years ago, you just know it's a good medicine-show town," she added.

Ormond Is Named To Board

North Carolina National Bank announced that H. Lyman Ormond Jr. has been elected to the bank's Greenville Board of Directors.

LYMAN ORMOND JR.

The new director is president of Ormond Wholesale Inc. here and is past president of the North Carolina Wholesalers Association and current member of the NCWA board. He is also a member of the National American Wholesale Grocers Association.

Ormond is a director of the Greenville Rotary Club and serves as chairman of the Salvation Army Advisory Board. He is also chairman of the Greenville P¼lanning and Zoning Commission.

School 'Not Negotiable'

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — School is a child's work and, as such, is not negotiable.

That's the philsophy of the staff of the School Phobia Unit of Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center, which treats youngster who develop headaches and-or stomachaches at the start of the school term.

If a child's symptoms persist or (s)he stays home or is unable to stay in the classroom, Dr. Lawrence Sheff says the unit arranges counseling sessions for parents and the child.

Sheff said the phobia unit usually sees children after a pediatrician has found no evidence of physical problems.

"Usually the boys and girls we treat ... are not 'problem' children," Sheff says. "They may resist going to school, but they do not have behavior problems. In fact, most of the time they are worried about missing school and they are good students."

Counselors try to determine the cause of the youngsters' fears and relieve their anxieties. Only occasionally will medication be prescribed to see a child over the acute phase.

Stamps Have Musical Theme

NEW YORK (AP) — The Philatelic Music Circle of Great Britain will award a new trophy for the best musical theme designed for a stamp, set of stamps or miniature sheet, Alan de Cadenet, consultant to the British Post Office said on a recent visit here.

The Robert Stolz Trophy for Music Philately is named for the late English composer, one of whose operettas, "Two Hearts in Three Quarter Time" was commemorated on an Austrian stamp in 1970.

Stamps with a musical theme will be automatically entered in the contest and entries will be judged by an international panel of music philatelists, De Cadenet said.

The first award will be made this year in conjunction with the centenary of Stolz's birth.

Stars' Strike Affects Emmy Awards

A bitter twist of irony could turn this year's Emmy Awards telecast into a colossal 'no-show' event, as far as the nominees and presenters are concerned.

As the AFTRA/SAG strike continues, some performers are urging their contemporaries to boycott all television programs — including those not affected by the strike. One of these is the 32nd annual Emmy Awards telecast, scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 7 (9 to 11 p.m. on NBC).

The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences is appealing to members of AFTRA and SAG, asking them to support as well as participate in the Emmy ceremony.

"Basically, the Academy is you! It is the peer group organization of each of the arts and crafts which are active in and vital to our industry. On behalf of other members of the Academy, we urge you to support and participate in the Emmy Awards show."

On the brighter side, three well-known thespians will be hosting the Emmy telecast — Michael Landon, Bob Newhart and Lee Remick.

— Mariette Hartley (Outstanding Lead Actress in a Drama Series, 1979): "It's kept on the first shelf of my bookcase in my living room right smack after you walk in the door. I just stare at it I don't believe it."

— Ed Asner (He's won a total of six Emmys, dating back to 1971): "Actors need all the reassurance they can get. I've found my Emmys most comforting..."

— Ricardo Montalban (Outstanding Single Performance by a Supporting Actor, 1978): "I didn't expect to win...As I said at the time, it should have been shaped with a four-leaf clover to symbolize how lucky I was."

Susan Saint James (Outstanding Continued Performance by an Actress in a Supporting Role in a Series, 1969): "I still tell people about my Emmy because it was the first award I ever won and still is the most important to me. Any award voted by your peers is important."

Indeed it is important! Let's hope those in the picket lines don't forget just how important an Emmy really is.

HOSTS OF EMMY AWARDS EVENT — Bob Newhart (l), Michael Landon (star of NBC-TV's "Little House on the Prairie") and Lee Remick are the hosts for "The 32nd Annual Emmy Awards," to be presented live on Sunday, Sept. 7 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Mickey's Adventures Showcased

Four of Mickey Mouse's most popular cartoons have been brought together in an hour-long special, "Mickey's Greatest Adventures," airing Sunday Sept. 7 (7 to 8 p.m. on NBC-TV).

The first one is "Squatter's Rights," a 1946 cartoon. It begins with Mickey and Pluto arriving at their mountain cabin for a winter vacation, unaware that they have two uninvited houseguests — those rascally chipmunks Chip 'n' Dale.

Another one is "Mickey's Trailer," which finds Mickey vacationing in a trailer with Donald Duck and Goofy. Even though it was created in 1938, the cartoon still generates plenty of laughter when Goofy decides to leave his post at the driver's seat to join his pals for breakfast.

The 1947 cartoon, "Mickey and the Beanstalk," is a whimsical adaptation of the classic fairy tale. Mickey portrays a peasant who trades his cow for a magic bean. The bean sprouts a towering beanstalk which carries Mickey, along with pals Donald and Goofy, to the giant's enchanted domain.

"Alpine Climbers," which dates back to 1936, depicts the misadventures of Mickey, Donald and Pluto when they scale an Alpine peak. An overprotective mother eagle and some mischievous billy goats are among the unexpected antagonists.

BURT REYNOLDS stars as an ex-football player who could resist anything but temptation, a weakness that has put him on a gridiron behind prison walls, in "The Longest Yard," encoring on the Sunday Night Movie, Sept. 7 (8:30-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

'240' Revived

In an almost unprecedented move, ABC-TV has breathed life into "240-Robert" a series it had previously cancelled by ordering additional episodes.

The network pulled the show from its schedule in January, then brought it back during the summer for a limited-run. It scored well in the ratings and consistently showed up among the top 20 shows.

"240-Robert" producers, Salvatore Iannucci and Rick Rosner, credit the time slot (Saturdays, 8 p.m.) it was placed in this summer with the 'turnaround.'

Two of the series' stars, John Bennett Perry and Joanna Barnes, are expected to return. Another topliner, Mark Harmon, has already been cast in another series, however "Flamingo Road." He will be replaced and plans call for the addition of another female character.

Reynolds Stars

Burt Reynolds stars as a jailed ex-superstar quarterback who mobilizes his fellow convicts for gridiron battle against their oppressive prison guards in "The Longest Yard." The film will be rebroadcast as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Sept. 7 (8:30 to 11 p.m.).

Also starring are Eddie Albert as a sly and sinister prison warden, and Ed Lauter as a mean guard captain. Michael Conrad portrays a fellow inmate and veteran footballer assisting Reynolds with his team. Jim Hampton is cast as a lovable con whose resourceful good nature proves to be his tragic downfall.

Several ex-NFL stars form the supporting cast of prisoner and guard team members. They include Ray Nitschke, Joe Kapp, Mike Henry, Pervis Atkins, Dino Washington and Ernie Wheelright.

Paul Crewe (Reynolds) is a former pro-football hero forced to retire from the sport following a point-shaving scandal. He winds up in Florida's Citrus State Prison, convicted of resisting arrest for auto theft. After Crewe receives a taste of prison life through punishment detail and solitary confinement, he accepts an offer from Warden Hazen (Albert): a speedy parole in return for organizing a prisoners' football team which will play the guards' semi-pro squad in a public scrimmage four weeks away. The Guardsmen, vying for the U.S. inter-prison championship under the coaching of hostile guard captain Knauer (Lauter), must win the game. But the convict team should appear to be a formidable rival.

ANGIE DICKINSON, Dennis Weaver, Robert Wanger and Lesley Ann Warren (1 to r) star in "Pearl" a three-part drama airing as a special movie Tuesday, Sept. 9, Wednesday, Sept. 10 and Friday, Sept. 12 on ABC-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Is Michael Adams, who starred in "Son-Rise: A Miracle of Love," an autistic child? He was superb. L. LEWIS, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Michael and Casey Adams, twin great-grandsons of famed motion picture director King Vidor, took turns portraying the little boy. They were 3 1/2 years old at the time, and not autistic, thank goodness! Twins are frequently sought when the character is very young because they can spell one another in front of the cameras.

Q: I would like some information about Geraldo Rivera, who does such a terrific job reporting stories on "20/20." J. ATKINS, SANFORD, N.C.

A: He is terrific! In fact, among the many awards he's received is one from AP praising him as a "special kind of individualist in a medium which too often breeds the plastic news man." Prior to branching out into the field of journalism, Geraldo — a graduate of the University of Arizona and Brooklyn Law School — practiced law, representing poor people on New York's lower East Side. Incidentally, his wife, Sheri, is a television field producer.

Q: May I have the names of the girls who play on "The Facts of Life." Where do I write to them? E. SCHOFFLER, PEMBROKE, N.C.

Q: What was the name of the series that James Earl Jones starred in? Is he the voice of Darth Vader on "The Empire Strikes Back"? E. DEANES, GREENVILLE, N.C.

A: Jones' series was "Paris," and it was an excellent show. Unfortunately, not enough people agreed with me. Jones' name is listed among the credits for 'Empire' as Vader's voice. David Prowse portrays the 'baddie' however.

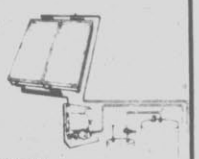

Q: What happened to Dick York, who played Darren on "Bewitched"? M. GIBSON, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: After-effects of a movie-incurred accident forced York's retirement from acting in the 1960s, while the "Bewitched" series was still in production. I'm happy to tell you that he's improved to the point now that he's talking about attempting a 'comeback'!

Manilow Honored

The Superstar was honored for his contributions to the entertainment industry as one of its leading composers and performers in the fields of music, recording, TV and the concert stage.

A Matter Of Gratitude

"It's about mutual gratitude, but that doesn't sound exciting, does it? So we call it a love affair," says blonde, beautiful and exciting Susan Flannery.

She's talking about the new television feature "Anatomy of a Seduction," to be rebroadcast on the CBS Tuesday Night Movies, Sept. 9 (9 to 11 p.m.). Jameson Parker and Rita Moreno also star.

Flannery plays a divorced woman, a successful architect who arranges a summer job in her office for the college student son (Parker) of her best friend (Moreno). The two thrown together by their work and mutual interests — have a passionate love affair.

"The script has my character's ex-husband (played by Ed Nelson) react the way most people would when they hear of a relationship with the woman as the older partner. "He says, 'It's unusual, it's unconventional, it's...embarrassing.'" Flannery explained.

"The older man looking for younger girls is one side of the coin, and that seems to be more acceptable in our culture than the older woman in love with a younger man."

Fish Bump Star!

Michael Landon, star and executive producer of "Little House on the Prairie," is back in town following a quick vacation trip to Hawaii.

"I went scuba diving for the first time in my life and it was weird," said Landon. "I was all alone under the water, when, in a fraction of a second, I was suddenly surrounded by thousands of tiny, bright, yellow fish. They bumped me around for a few seconds, trying to figure out what I was. Then, in a flash, they were all gone and I was alone again. It was scary as hell!"

Show Joins Late Night

The Emmy and Peabody Award-winning dramatic series, "Lou Grant," is the latest addition to the list of top shows now featured on The CBS Late Movie, seen week nights from 11:30 p.m. to 12:40 a.m.

Episodes of "Quincy, M.E." "The Saint," "The Jeffersons," "McMillan & Wife," "Columbo," "The New Avengers" and "McCloud" are already being rebroadcast.

Also new to the late night time slot is an hour-long contemporary comedy titled "No Holds Barred."

"Lou Grant" earned Emmys for Ed Asner, as city editor of the Los Angeles Tribune, as well as for Nancy Marchand, who portrays the newspaper's aristocratic publisher. The cast also includes Robert Walden and Linda Kelsey as two of the paper's reporters. Mason Adams as the managing editor, Jack Bannon, featured as the assistant city editor, and Daryl Anderson as Animal, a staff photographer.

Changes For 'Facts'

If there is any single word to describe the second season of NBC-TV's comedy series, "The Facts of Life" (Fridays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.), it would be 'change.'

A NEW GARRETT — Charlotte Rae's role as house-mother Edna Garrett will undergo some strong changes this Fall when NBC-TV's comedy series "The Facts of Life," bows for its second season on Fridays (8:30-9 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

To the star of the series — Charlotte Rae — these changes will afford a new opportunity for her to emerge as a stronger and more defined character. "Someday I may even run the Eastland School," remarked Rae, who — during the first season — played the school's housemother. When new segments begin airing this Fall, it will be Rae who comes to the girl's rescue when they get in trouble and are nearly expelled.

Three girls from the original seven are returning as series regulars — Lisa Whelchel (who plays Blair), Kim Fields (Tootie) and Minday Cohn (Natalie). Nancy McKeon has been cast as the fourth girl, rounding out the teenage quartet. Nancy, sister of Philip McKeon, who portrays Tommy in "Alice," is playing a street-smart, feisty young newcomer to the Eastland School, where she will wield lots of influence on the other kids. The talented young actress' credits include such shows as "Secret Storm," "Another World," "Starsky and Hutch" and "Fantasy Island II."

"I'll be more of a boss this time around," says Rae. "I'll be more in charge of things." Rae will put herself on the line when she steps forward to help straighten out the four girls, who are all given a special kind of punishment to work off their mischievousness.

Rae continues to be a firm believer that all of life's problems can be ironed out with old fashioned common sense — both in and out of the classroom. She also feels that life's challenges can be met with a rational attitude, humor and loving care.

Monday Football Begins

The Dallas Cowboys versus the Washington Redskins, one of the hottest rivalries in the National Football League, opens the second decade of ABC's "Monday Night Football" in the nation's capital on Sept. 8 (9 p.m. to conclusion) The broadcast marks the season premier of 16 Monday nights of professional football on the network.

ABC Sports also announced that a series of four prime-time football specials would air this fall on nights other than Monday — three on Thursdays and one on a Sunday. The opening special, on Thursday, Sept. 11, features a rematch of last year's NFC championship game between the Los Angeles Rams and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers at Tampa — two teams that furnished pleasant surprises last season. The Rams reached Super Bowl XIV before bowing to Pittsburgh in a rousing battle; and Tampa Bay, in only its fourth year of existence, won the championship of the NFC Central division.

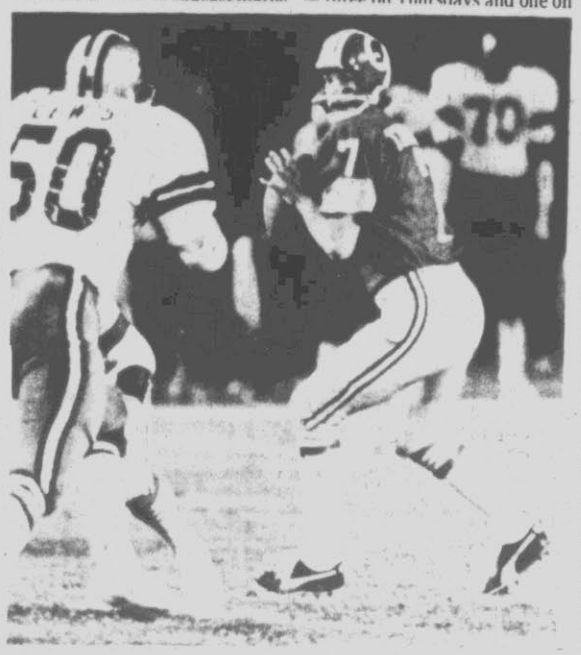

The other special-telecast games will pit the high-scoring San Diego Chargers against Dallas at Texas Stadium, Sunday Oct. 26; San Diego at Miami on Thursday, Nov. 20; and the Super Bowl Champion Pittsburgh Steelers at Houston for a rematch of their 1979 AFC championship game on Thursday, Dec. 4.

Nineteen of the 20 prime-time games to air on ABC will spotlight NFL playoff teams of a year ago. In seven of those games, playoff teams will be in head-to-head competition, and five of those confrontations will feature 1979 conference champions — Los Angeles at Tampa Bay, San Diego at Miami, Dallas at Los Angeles, and Pittsburgh at San Diego for the season closer.

Seven teams that made the playoffs last season will be on the prime-time schedule three times — Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, San Diego, Miami and Denver. Also scheduled for three appearances are the Oakland Raiders, who missed out in last year's post-season picture despite an outstanding winning tradition; and the New England Patriots, inconsistent a year ago but respected as one of the NFL's powerhouses.

The Washington Redskins, Cleveland Browns, Chicago Bears and Tampa Bay Buccaneers are slated for two appearances each on the ABC schedule, with the Bucs making their debut on the series.

The Dallas-Washington opener rates as one of the key matchups of the season. Last year, on the final Sunday of the regular season, the Cowboys ousted the Redskins from the playoffs in a 35-34 thriller.

QUARTERBACK JOE THEISMANN (7) will be commandeering the Washington Redskin offense as the team takes on their arch-rivals, the Dallas Cowboys, Monday, Sept. 8 (9 p.m.) on ABC-TV. The Cowboys' D.D. Lewis leads the pass rush in the picture.

Is Still On Top

The plan is working and it's really very simple. Dale Earnhardt, a former Rookie of the Year, is currently on top in the Winston Cup Grand National Championship. "Our plan was to be competitive," said Earnhardt. "We're simply out to win races everywhere we go. My team has worked hard, but the key to putting it all together is our positive mental attitude. There's really no big secret, just everyone is doing the best he can for raceday."

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — The news of GOLDIE HAWN'S break-up with hubby BILL HUDSON, one of the HUDSON BROTHERS trio, comes as a shock — even to their closest friends. Goldie does say, however, that the divorce will be a "very friendly" one.

Another 'shocker' is the rumor that aging TONY CURTIS, one of Tinseltown's most trouble plagued stars of yesteryear, is dating JACLYN SMITH, the 'ANGEL' who's finally calling it 'quits' with DENNIS COLE.

The long-running romance between DOROTHY HAMILL and DEAN PAUL MARTIN has cooled considerably too. The queen of the ice rink dumped Martin for ANDY GIBB, then gave him the 'heave-ho' for fellow skater RANDY GARDNER. Andy's not one to give up, tho, and he's still phoning daily.

Another woosome twosome who've bitten the dust are LINDSAY WAGNER and JACK HALEY, JR. A few days before TV's bionic gal winged her way to Mexico to begin filming "BIG BUCKS," both were seen dating other people.

While they've been idled by the strike, several TV stars have taken a second look in the mirror and decided to shed pounds. "QUINCY'S" title star, JACK KLUGMAN, lost 25 pounds via a crash diet and strenuous exercise plan. Not to be outdone by the outspoken actor is BARBARA RUSH. Another viewing of the pilot of her new series, "FLAMINGO ROAD," resulted in the star's loss of 15 unwanted pounds.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask" Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave. New York, N.Y. 10022
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Wide World

She looks to science for truth.

FOR MADALYN MURRAY O'HAIR, President, American Atheists

I am curious to know, just how do you and other atheists view the creation theory? —J. Marshall Porter, Cumberland, Md.

● Atheists realize that the great "mysteries" of today and tomorrow will be answered by the same persons who answered the great "mysteries" of yesteryear. We know now that sickness is not caused by the wrath of God as once was believed. The answer of where, when and why in respect to the "universe," or even a definition of what is meant by "the universe" will come from science: from microbiology at one end, from astronomy and astrophysics at the other end. Only through the application of the scientific method and through more gathering of information will we ever understand.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is Tiny Tim back with his former wife, Miss Vicki, and has he quit show business? — Z.A., Selma, Ala.

● They do see each other occasionally — on the stage — if they happen to be performing on the same bill. Tiny (who refuses to "recognize the divorce Miss Vicki got in 1977 because marriage is forever") said he is not embarrassed when they meet at the theater. He gets distressed when Tulip (the 9-year-old daughter of Tiny and Vicki) hides behind her mother and stepfather when he's around: "She's scared to death to talk to me. Her mother must be filling her head with tales. I hope that when she gets old enough to know her own mind, she'll realize what a good daddy I am." Tiny, who insists his dates with the opposite sex are platonic, now works with Roy Radin's Vaudeville '80 troupe.

Tiny Tim: Daughter Tulip tiptoes out.

FOR EDWARD KOCH, Mayor, New York City

We know of the big problems in New York. What about "little" ones? — S.K., Weston, Pa.

● As I stand in line at movies and restaurants, people come up and tell me their problems or give me suggestions for running the city. I learn a lot that way. For example, that's how I heard that the new volleyball courts in Central Park had net poles that are one foot shorter than the regulation height. So I sent a note about it to the Parks Commissioner. That sort of problem.

FOR POLLY HOLLIDAY, star of TV's Flo

Since your father was a coal miner, did you grow up in poverty, like Loretta Lynn? — J.S., Pueblo, Colo.

● We were poor but, unlike Loretta, we did not starve. I always had a doll and the standard equipment: my father, though, had only one white shirt, which he saved for Sunday and kept it all his life. When WWII came along, our lifestyle improved. My father got out of the mines and went to work in a factory. He thought he was the luckiest man in the world.

FOR RUTH LAREDO, classical pianist

How do men react when you tell them what you do for a living? — P.K., Minot, N.D.

● Most of the time men assume I'm a gal who tinkles the keys in a cocktail lounge, and they ask, "Do you sing and play at the same time?" One gentleman asked me with a big, patronizing smile if I'd ever been to Carnegie Hall. When I told him I had played there many times, he was dumbfounded. The conversation died an instant death, right there.

FOR STEPHEN KING, author of The Shining

What has been your most horrifying experience? — D.F. Redondo, Calif.

● It was a January day buried in fresh-fallen snow. I found my 18-month-old son, Joe, lying face down in it, and as I picked him up, I saw his face was a bloody mass. He had fallen upon the sharp edge of a snow shovel, barely missing his eye. I thought he was fatally wounded, and horror gripped me. But happily he recovered, as most 18-month-old explorers do.

FOR DEMOND WILSON, co-star of the 1970's TV series Sanford and Son

Do you get on so well with Redd Foxx because he reminds you of your own father? — D.G., Little Rock, Ark.

● Redd bears no resemblance whatsoever to my own dad, who is sweet and subdued. I have a mother who is a father and a father who is a mother. When I wanted softness, I went to Dad. My mom saw my feet were firmly planted on terra firma. She was the one who kept saying, "Stand straight. You're going to be a star."

FOR HERBERT LOM, featured star in The Man With Bogart's Face

You refer to yourself as an "anonymous performer." What does that mean? — B.G., Reno, Nev.

● Because nine out of 10 people couldn't come up with my name if you put a shotgun to their heads. But they more or less know my face because I've appeared in almost 100 films. Every time I think about being "anonymous," I console myself with the fact that I own three homes and have a few million bucks in the bank.

PRO AND CON

Are Airport Safety Standards Keeping Up with Today's Air Traffic Volume?

PRO Langhorne Bond, Administrator, Federal Aviation Administration

The best evidence that airport safety standards are equal to the demands of today's traffic is that flying continues to be the safest mode of transportation. And of those airline accidents that have occurred recently, none has been attributed to deficiencies in airport safety standards. As for recent failures of air traffic control computers, the fact is that we have safe back-up systems. Let me cite what happened last June 24 in Chicago when the computer was out all day. The controllers, nevertheless, handled a record of 2,963 take-offs and landings without any safety problems.

CON Capt. J.J. O'Donnell, President, Air Line Pilots Association

No. Many airports are being deprived of basic safety and navigational facilities, such as radar, control towers, precision landing systems and approach lights. Furthermore, the next decade will see a more than 50-percent increase in aircraft in the air traffic system. Meanwhile, there is nearly $4 billion of uncommitted Aviation Trust Fund money collected from aviation taxes specifically to pay for such safety needs. Rather than spending this money to install the safety equipment, as Congress mandated, the Office of Management and Budget is using these funds, instead, to reduce the Federal deficit

Tampa's John McKay: Behind Football's Biggest Turnaround

Few Floridians were amused when John McKay lost his first 26 games as a pro coach. But now that his Tampa Bay Bucs are Super Bowl threats, it's McKay who has the last laugh.

By Mark Goodman

I keep a picture of O.J. Simpson at my side at all times to remind me of the day when I knew how to coach.
—John McKay

Don't laugh. There was a long time there, during John McKay's first three years as head coach of the fledgling Tampa Bay Buccaneers, when his phlegmatic flair for one-liners was all that kept his head about him, while his team was losing — and losing, and losing and losing.

Starting in 1976 as the National Football League's newest expansion team (along with the Seattle Seahawks), Tampa Bay set a doleful league record by losing its first 26 games. Through the irreversible agony of defeat, McKay kept up the patter. Asked the difference between coaching college football at the University of Southern California and his pro job at Tampa Bay, he replied, "Three hours." Asked when he thought the Bucs might finally win their first game, he conceded, "Only God knows, and I'm not too close to God now." Told that his austere presence made a rookie place-kicker nervous, McKay answered, "Tell him I plan to attend all the games."

But behind the dark glasses, floppy sun hat and sardonic wit, McKay was hurting. After all, in 16 years at U.S.C. (including four coaching his son, wide receiver J.K.), McKay had won four national championships, nine conference titles, four Rose Bowls and 75 percent of his games. Only his pal, Paul ("Bear") Bryant of Alabama, has won more national championships. Now here was McKay, abandoning what many had thought was a lifetime spot at U.S.C., way out on a palm-adorned limb in Tampa Bay.

So the wry humor became somewhat weaker. "Will you hold those things back, please," he snapped, when reporters thrust microphones in his face after yet another loss. "This isn't the sinking of the Titanic, you know."

It was a special kind of agony, all right, and McKay summed up his serious feelings on the matter before the 1979 season. "A lot of people think I'm a gag man, the man with the one-liners," he said. "That's not me at all. I'm a football coach, and all I'm trying to do is build a winning football team. A lot of people think this game is a matter of life and death. It is not a matter of life and death. It is a game and business and nothing more."

Well, it's quite obvious now that McKay and his employees are very much in business. Last season, their fourth in the NFL, Tampa Bay made the sporting world take notice by winning its first three games. McKay showed his pleasure by announcing, "The Bucs are going to make history. On Sunday we're going to start the same guys for the fourth week in a row, unless someone gets hurt between now and then licking an ice-cream cone." No one did, and the Bucs routed the Los Angeles Rams, the eventual Super Bowl participants, 21-6.

A lot of people cried, "Fluke!" and pointed to the fact that the Bucs were in what was generally considered the weakest division in the league, the N.F.C. Central. McKay didn't help the division's image by cracking, "Anyone can win the Central division — even someone who isn't in it." But in a burst of bravado, players began wearing their Buc T-shirts in public.

Wide World

Said end Lee Roy Selmon, later named the N.F.L.'s 1979 Defensive Player of the year, "I don't have to go to the drive-in window at McDonald's anymore. Now I feel safe walking right into the restaurant."

The Bucs, of course, went on to win the division title, then whipped the Philadelphia Eagles in the first round of the N.F.L. playoffs. Unfortunately, they fell 10 points shy of a trip to the Super Bowl — the 10 points their offense couldn't muster against the same Rams, whom the Buccaneer defense (the best in football last year) held to only three field goals. Final score: Los Angeles 9, Tampa Bay 0.

Offense has long been the Bucs' trouble spot, and McKay is looking to correct that this season. He began last season building a sound offensive line for his young quarterback, Doug Williams (the first full-fledged black starter at that position in pro history) and his prime runner, former U.S.C. great Ricky Bell. He also drafted guard Greg Roberts of Oklahoma and switched Charlie Hannah, a defensive standout (and brother of John, the all-pro guard for the New England Patriots) to offensive tackle.

This year McKay also chose an offensive guard, Ray Snell of Wisconsin, on the first round of the draft, and he followed by selecting Kevin House, a wide receiver from Southern Illinois, to give the Bucs something they've badly needed — a speed burner to run under Williams's long-range bombs.

Surveying the 1980 season from the Tampa Bay training camp, McKay says: "I can see reasons why defending our championship will be difficult, but there are also things that give me optimism. It's true that our schedule has some teams on it like Pittsburgh, Houston and Dallas. But last season our team didn't seem to know who was hard to beat and who was easy to beat. We played our best against the teams with better records, so maybe we should be glad we have more of them on our schedule."

He is also aware that the days of the underdog's advantage are over. "We shouldn't be able to sneak up on anybody anymore," he says. "I'm sure everyone in the league now realizes that they are in for a tough game with the Buccaneers. And I think anyone who still feels that the Bucs are just a one-year fluke is sadly mistaken."

McKay, at 57, the dean of the N.F.L. coaches, comes by his cryptic shell and iron spine the hard way. A native of Everettsville, W. Va., young John helped support his family after the death of his coal-miner father. Even so, he managed to win all-state honors as a running back at Shinnston High School. He served in the Army Air Corps during World War II, then enrolled at Purdue.

McKay transferred to Oregon after his freshman year and teamed with future Hall of Fame quarterback Norm Van Brocklin to carry the Ducks to a 9-1 season in 1948 and a trip to the Cotton Bowl. He turned down pro offers after graduation to become an assistant at Oregon. In 1959 he moved to U.S.C., did a one-year residency as an assistant, then took over the head-coaching job and proceeded to make collegiate history.

Why leave then and have to make chicken salad out of something less in Tampa Bay? McKay, typically, has no straight answer for what has become the most tiresome question of his adult life. The money didn't hurt. He was making $52,000 a year at U.S.C., but his present contract runs to around $2 million for five years — and McKay has signed on for another five, after which he will become the Bucs' chief executive officer.

Oddly enough, the demands on a college mentor had something to do with his decision. As McKay once put it, "Bear Bryant can charm people. He doesn't have to coach as much anymore. That's great for him. I could never do it. To make enough to live the way my wife, Corky, deserves to live after all these years of putting up with me, I had to be on the road all the time — recruiting, making clinics, speaking at banquets. We wound up every year with two weeks in July to call our own."

The McKays own a three-bedroom home on Tampa Bay, and it's just the two of them now since the kids have fled the nest. Son J.K., who played for his father for three years at Tampa Bay before injuries sidelined him last season and forced him to retire, is now in law school; daughter Michele lives in California, Terri resides in Tampa Bay and son Richie is a junior at Princeton. And there are three grandchildren to enjoy what one assistant coach described as "a healthy, affectionate fear" of the enigmatic John McKay.

Nonetheless, a sharp difference exists between family trials and the burdens of coaching. Says McKay: "It's only natural for players who aren't starting to be unhappy. Everybody is unhappy at times, even my wife — only she doesn't get interviewed about it." FW

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

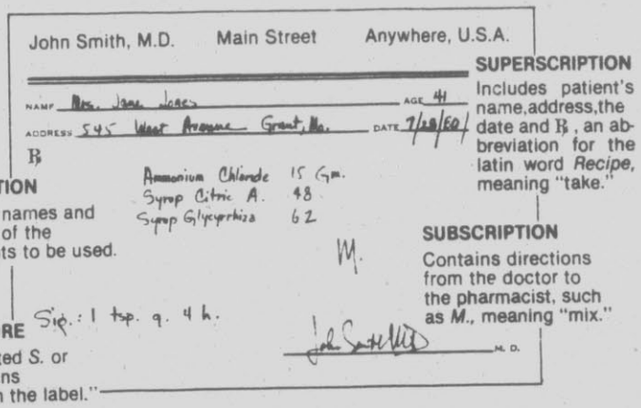

How to Decipher Your Doctor's ℞

By Lois Rich-McCoy

You receive a prescription from your doctor. You have it filled and begin taking it as directed. But that's not all you need to know about your medicine. It's important to understand your doctor's prescription for several reasons.

medicine supposed to do: relieve the pain or attack its cause? Stop the itch or cause the rash to disappear?

Some parts of your prescription will be in medical (often Latin) "hieroglyphics," but they may not be as difficult to interpret as they seem. Here are some common notations and their meanings.

You should double-check on the pharmacist's accuracy in filling it (yes, they do occasionally make mistakes). And knowing what you've been prescribed enables you to obtain the best medical care for your dollar.

Your participation should begin when your physician says, while reaching for the prescription pad, "I'm going to give you a prescription." This is the time to ask if the order is to be written for the generic (which means the common chemical name of the drug — such as penicillin) or for a particular brand name of the drug (a copyrighted name owned by a drug manufacturer — for instance, Pentids and V-cillin K are brand names for the penicillin manufactured by two major companies). Usually, the generic drug is less expensive.

You should also tell the doctor — even if he or she neglects to ask — if you have ever taken the drug before and if you are currently taking other medications. And don't forget birth-control pills, barbiturates and aspirin; all cross-react with other drugs. Have you ever had an allergic reaction to a medication? Mention it, right away.

When you are handed the prescription slip, look at it, ask questions and write down the answers. If directed to take a syrup every six hours, does this mean around the clock or only when you are awake? Should tablets be taken until they are gone, or until symptoms disappear? Do you take the medication with, during or after meals? And what exactly is the

Now that you're armed with your prescription, you can comparison shop, checking out the price at several drugstores. Some states require druggists to quote prices over the phone, and about a dozen states insist that a price list be displayed. Also, in some states, even though a doctor may have written the prescription for a particular brand name, the pharmacist is allowed to substitute a less expensive generic — with your permission.

Be sure to keep a drug record for each family member if you deal with a discount druggist, and show it to the pharmacist whenever ordering a new prescription. Your neighborhood pharmacist probably performs this important service to check for drug incompatibilities; the discount pharmacy usually does not. FW

While the Government attempts to eliminate abuses in adoption procedures, baby "brokers" have found a new way to get around the law...

The Mexican Adoption Connection

By Lynne McTaggart

On a day not long ago, Jim and Sally Davidson stood outside a hospital, eagerly awaiting their first meeting with the baby boy they were to adopt. Finally their attorney, Stanley Michelman, approached with a blanketed bundle under his arm.

After baby Luke had been with the Davidsons a week, Jim — following Michelman's instructions — flew to El Paso, Texas. The following morning he was met at his hotel by a Mexican attorney, who drove him across the Mexican border to a court of law in the city of Juarez. After a court procedure that lasted several minutes, Jim took the next plane back home.

Eight months later, the Davidsons received a packet in the mail containing a Mexican adoption decree for their adopted American baby, plus a birth certificate naming them as Luke's biological parents. They would never have to worry about interviews with social workers or sluggish American court procedures. And there would be no pointed questions about the $10,000 they'd paid.

For the arrival of the papers meant that the adoption of Luke Davidson had been "laundered."

Adoption in America today is a lucrative industry, operating on greed and exploitation. White babies are its precious commodity with prices determined by desperation. The reason for this set of circumstances is the severe baby shortage in this country, due in large part to the repeal of the abortion laws in 1973. And while there is an unprecedented number of pregnancies among unmarried teen-agers (one million each year, according to the Department of Health and Human Services), with increasingly more liberal attitudes toward illegitimacy, most unwed mothers are deciding to keep their babies.

But of those young women who are unwilling or unable to have an abortion or keep their infants, an estimated 5,000 to 10,000 each year unwittingly arrange for the adoptions of their babies through high-priced "brokers" — attorneys and physicians, primarily. (These figures represent 25 percent of all nonrelative adoptions and 50 percent of all private nonrelative adoptions.)

As in any other business, these middlemen have been able to corner the supply and turn a healthy profit through the shrewd exercising of sophisticated merchandising principles, the most fundamental of which is that limited supply and increased demand boost the going rates. They have set up national and international importing networks. There are warehousing, bidding, bargaining and price tags of $10,000 or more.

Now, as individual state courts and laws attempt to crack down on abuses in the private-adoption market (adoption in which no agency acts as intermediary), these baby brokers have found that American babies can be adopted by American couples through a perfunctory Mexican court procedure which is generally recognized in the U.S. It is also a procedure that allows the brokers to conceal possibly illegal transactions, avoid U.S. law-enforcement examination and churn through adoptions that might not make it through courts in the States. The availability of this method could stifle proposed state and Federal attempts to clamp down on what has been termed the interstate "trafficking" of adoptable infants.

There are a number of reasons why this procedure is appealing for adoptive parents. In the U.S. adoptions may take up to a year or two; in Mexico adoptions take a half-hour. There is no examination of the suitability of the adoptive parents, no social workers, no red tape, no scrutiny of attorney's or intermediary's fees or of money paid on behalf of the biological mother (who does not need to appear), no questions asked.

While several Juarez attorneys are involved in the business, the most active of all is Vicente Gonzalez Santillan. Like so many Juarez attorneys, the mainstay of Gonzalez's business was a booming divorce practice during the 1950's and 1960's, until a 1971 campaign by the Federal Government shut down Mexico's divorce mills. Gonzalez then discovered the adoption service he could render norteamericanos.

Gonzalez demurs when referred to as the "expert" in Mexican adoptions, but he can produce a stack of stationery from some of the U.S. attorneys who have sent him more than 200 adoptions in the past several years.

Miami attorney Theodore M. Trushin says he would send older adopting couples to Gonzalez for instance, or any others who might be "asking for trouble" by petitioning American courts. Stanley Michelman claims to have used Mexico only for clients who lived in Connecticut, where private adoption is illegal, or in New York counties where the legal machinery was, to his mind, "turgid."

Gonzalez and other U.S. attorneys emphasize that the Mexican adoption decree is recognized as legal in the U.S. Once the Juarez court issues a decree — usually two to three weeks after the court procedure — it is sent to the U.S. attorney, who arranges to have an "amended" birth certificate made up by the department of health in the state where the child was born. The new birth certificate lists the adoptive couple as the child's biological parents, a practice in all adoptions in order to conceal what is usually the child's illegitimacy. "The old birth certificate is sealed and forever hidden," says Gonzalez. He smiles. "And there's no evidence of any adoption."

There are four judges sitting in the Juarez civil courts who act on American adoptions of American infants. Although no adoption appears to have been denied by the Juarez courts in the last few years, Manuel Tabuenca, magistrate of the third civil court, has decided not to accept any more such cases.

Several states have taken action on the laundered adoptions, including New York, where the state Department of Health, upheld by a 1976 court case, refuses to issue amended birth certificates for New York-born infants adopted through Mexico. The court decision, which held that the Mexican court was not of "competent jurisdiction," raises the issue of whether the adopted child would retain his legal rights in such instances as an estate dispute or a custody dispute involving the biological mother.

Nevertheless, any adoption attorney in states like New York could simply send the biological mother to give birth in a state that recognizes Mexican adoptions. Or have his clients adopt through Mexico and then not apply for an amended birth certificate. The circumstances of the adoption would not surface until the child was first enrolled in school and the couple had to present the original birth certificate. At that point, if a law-enforcement agency learned of the adoption and wanted to challenge it, it is likely that a court, in determining the "best interests" of the child, would rule that the child remain with the parents he has had for five years.

New York State Senator Joseph Pisani, a local champion of adoption reform, believes that outlawing private adoption will only make the problem worse. "The attorneys would go to Mexico; they'd go somewhere else; they'd find a way."

The New York Legislature is considering passage of a bill that would not recognize foreign adoptions unless the child is born in that foreign jurisdiction. But Michelman, for one, believes no court would ever learn of a Mexican adoption unless the biological mother initiated a custody action.

One way to put the Mexican adoption laundry out of business is for couples, though desperate, to adopt through avenues other than high-priced brokers. One couple turned down a baby offered by an attorney, once he described the furtive arrangements through Mexico. A year later, with a bit of perseverance, they located a Texas adoption agency with available children, and a few months after that, had a baby girl in their home.

"We tell couples who come to us to write to deans of college campuses, army bases, to foreign orphanages, to get in touch with adoptive parents organizations and tell everybody they know that they're looking to adopt," says the president of an adoptive parent's group and the mother of two adopted children. "If you're persistent and you don't get discouraged, eventually, you will have a baby." FW

Clothes For the Sporting Life

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Today's explosion in active sports finds clothes designed for the sporting life following close behind.

When active sportswear designer-consultant Susan Vogt started nine years ago "to create clothes that look as great in action as they do in front of the mirror," the industry was fledgling. Now it's become bigger than life.

An active sports enthusiast herself, Vogt has designed lines of clothing for tennis, jogging, skiing, swimming, bicycling and even disco roller-skating. And she believes in "getting out there" to learn what active wear works. For example: "If you get caught in the rain while backpacking, you find out fast that polyester dries quicker than a down-filled jacket."

In designing running clothes, Vogt reports that "You need fabrics that 'wick'" (pull through or dissipate perspiration rapidly). To insure this she recommends suits of nylon (with mesh or ventilated inserts) or cotton-polyester blends. Vogt says that correct fit is imperative in a running suit. If elasticized leg bands shift around, for instance, they become a cutting edge, which may cause severe irritation. Underarms should be checked, too, for harsh threads or excess material that could rub the skin.

"And for safety reasons," she adds, "bright color is just as important as fit." Many people run in the early morning or at dusk, when high visibility to passing motorists is essential. Those who run along roads in the evening should sew on reflective tape or appliqués, sold at variety or pro shops.

If your uniform for active sports is a T-shirt and shorts, she suggests that you get the top one size larger, which will avoid its riding up or twisting around your middle. Shorts should be loose-fitting with the leg slightly flared or with side slits. Some shorts come with built-in cotton panties.

Most women prefer wearing a bra for active sports but sometimes find it a hindrance. "Look into the new sports bras that are proliferating in the market," says Rowan. "They're generally soft, supportive and have straps that stay put on shoulders." Avoid underwire bras, she cautions.

Rowan fervently believes that active wear or exercising clothes should be designed to go on to other activities without needing to be changed. One of Rowan's suggestions for active-wear separates that can work off the playing fields as well as on: a stretch shirt or blouse worn with a culotte skirt — ideally with elasticized waist — and a fashionable backpack or lightweight "mailman's pouch" instead of a heavy handbag. Fall In Virginia. It's Always Warm Enough For Oceans Of Fun.

Up and down the golden coast of Virginia, the ocean beaches are now warming up for your fall vacation. The sun is shining, the seafood is scrumptious, and the water is great for swimming till well into October. In the majestic southwest mountains, Jefferson National Forest has never been lovelier. Sometimes it seems that half the world is crimson and gold.

Too Busy Earning a Living To Make Any Money?

Well, I remember when a bank turned me down for a $200 loan. Now I lend money to the bank — Certificates of Deposit at $100,000 a crack.

I remember the day a car dealer got a little nervous because I was a couple of months behind in my payments — and repossessed my car. Now I own a Rolls Royce. I paid $43,000 for it — cash.

I remember the day my wife phoned me, crying, because the landlord had shown up at the house, demanding his rent — and we didn't have the money to pay it.

Now we own five homes. Two are on the oceanfront in California (I use one as my office). One is a lakefront "cabin" in Washington, (that's where we spend the whole summer — loafing, fishing, swimming, and sailing.) One is a condominium on a sunny beach in Mexico. And one is snuggled right on the best beach of the best island in Hawaii — Maui.

Right now I could sell all this property, pay off the mortgages, — and — without touching any of my other investments — walk away with over $750,000 in cash. But I don't want to sell, because I don't think of my homes as "investments." I've got other real estate — and stocks, bonds, and cash in the bank — for that.

I remember when I lost my job. Because I was head over heels in debt, my lawyer told me the only thing I could do was declare bankruptcy. He was wrong. I paid off every dime.

Now, I have a million dollar line of credit; but I still don't have a job. Instead, I get up every weekday morning and decide whether I want to go to work or not. Sometimes I do — for 5 or 6 hours. But about half the time, I decide to read, go for a walk, sail my boat, swim, or ride my bike.

I know what it's like to be broke. And I know what it's like to have everything you want. And I know that you — like me — can decide which one it's going to be. It's really as easy as that. That's why I call it "The Lazy Man's Way to Riches."

So I'm going to ask you to send me something I don't need: money. Ten dollars to be exact. Why? Because I want you to pay attention. And I figure that if you've got $10 invested, you'll look over what I send you and decide whether to send it back...or keep it. And I don't want you to keep it unless you agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested.

Is the material "worth" $10? No — if you think of it as paper and ink. But that's not what I'm selling. What I am selling is information. More information than I give when I'm paid $1000 as a guest speaker. More information than I give in a one-hour consultation for $300.

But you're really not risking anything. Because I won't cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material. That's the deal. Return it in 31 days — and I'll send back your check or money order — uncashed.

How do you know I'll do it? Well, if you really want to be on the safe side, post-date your check for a month from today — plus 2 additional weeks. That'll give you plenty of time to receive it, look it over, try it out.

I know what you're thinking: "He got rich telling people how to get rich." The truth is — and this is very important — the year before I shared "The Lazy Man's Way to Riches," my net income was $216,646. And what I'll send you tells just how I made that kind of money...working a few hours a day...about 8 months out of the year.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." Remember I was up to my neck in debt when I started.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share. But I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better. I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that — nothing more, nothing less — the results will be hard to believe. Remember — I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again — I guarantee it.

I know you're skeptical. Well, here are some comments from other people. (Initials have been used to protect the writer's privacy. The originals are in my files.) I'm sure that, like you, these people didn't believe me either when they clipped the coupon. Guess they figured that, since I wasn't going to deposit their check for at least 31 days, they had nothing to lose.

They were right.

From $50 to $565 per week

"...when I sent for your (Lazy Man's Way to Riches), I was delivering the L.A. Times for $50 per week...Now...I earn an average of $565 per week, have $7,000 in the bank and a condominium worth $85,000..."

J.N. Culver City, CA

Takes in $587,000 in 2 years

"Everything you say is true. I'm a lawyer. I ordered your material two years ago. I received it within a few days and put your method to work immediately. Since then I have taken in $587,000 by following your system. Needless to say, I have given up my law practice — it just wasn't worth working anymore."

C.F.A. Provo, UT

'Wow, it does work!'

"Oddly enough, I purchased Lazy Man's Way to Riches some six months ago, or so, read it..and really did nothing about it. Then, about three weeks ago, when I was really getting desperate about my financial situation, I remembered it, re-read it, studied it, and this time, put it to work and WOW, it does work! Doesn't take much time, either...I guess some of us just have to be at a severe point of desperation before we overcome the ultimate laziness, procrastination."

Mr. J.K., Anaheim, CA

'Made $50,000 just fooling around'

"In February 1974 you sent me (for ten bucks) your Lazy Man's Way to Riches. Since then I have made approximately 50 grand ($50,000) just fooling around on the basis of your advice. You see, I really am lazy — otherwise I could have made 50 million! Thank you!"

Mr. R. McK., Atlanta, GA

"...received $24,000.00 in the mail the last 45 days.

"Thanks again."

Mr. E.G.N., Matewan, W.VA

Made $70,000

"A $70,000 thanks to you for writing The Lazy Man's Way to Riches. That's how much I've made...

"I use this extra income for all of the good things in life, exotic vacations, classic automobiles, etc. Soon I hope to make enough to quit my regular job and devote full time to making money the easy way..."

Mr. D.R., Newport Beach, CA

Made enough to retire at 41

"Now, thanks to you and the 'Lazy Man's' program, I have made enough money (at age 41) to retire in style. Let me assure you that I have not 'come into' any money by inheritance or marriage or by any other means except through the practicing of your program..."

R.A., Huntington Beach, Calif.

$260,000 in eleven months

"Two years ago, I mailed you ten dollars in sheer desperation for a better life...One year ago, just out of the blue sky, a man called and offered me a partnership...I grossed over $260,000 cash business in eleven months. You are a God sent miracle to me."

B.F., Pascagoula, Miss.

'There's no stopping me'

"Since I've got your (Lazy Man's Way to Riches) in July, I've started 4 companies...there's no stopping me and I'm so high I need chains to keep me on the ground."

M.T. Portland, OR

$7,000 in five days

"Last Monday I used what I learned on page 83 to make $7,000. It took me all week to do it, but that's not bad for five day's work."

M.D., Topeka, Kansas

What I'm saying is probably contrary to what you've heard from your friends, your family, your teachers, and maybe everyone else you know.

I can only ask you one question.

How many of them are millionaires?

So it's up to you.

A month from today, you can be nothing more than 30 days older — or you can be on your way to getting rich. You decide.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and a postage stamp. But what if I'm right?

SORRY — NO COD'S

Family Report By Norman Lobsenz

The Case of the Missing Wedding Ring

The symbol of marriage can also be a symbol of trouble between partners, according to psychiatrist Dr. Barry Berkey. Accidentally "losing" a wedding ring, "forgetting" to wear it, getting a rash on the ring finger so one is "forced" to stop wearing it or losing or gaining weight so the ring no longer fits are examples of what Berkey calls "wedding ring syndrome."

What happens to a wedding ring is an indication of what may be happening to the marriage, the psychiatrist believes: "Usually, removal of a wedding ring for a prolonged period represents marital disharmony even if both husband and wife deny it consciously." Finding an excuse to stop wearing a ring can often be one partner's subconscious way of saying something is wrong with the marriage, or even that he or she wants a divorce, Berkey explains. Yet, if one partner accuses the other of deliberately removing a wedding ring as a sign of unhappiness with the marital relationship, the accused spouse will almost always deny that motive.

There are, of course, valid reasons for taking off a wedding ring — perhaps for safety reasons on a job or due to illness such as arthritis. In such cases, however, the ring is replaced as soon as possible.

Fact Over Fancy

Legend has it that more babies are born when the moon is full than at any other time of the month. Two UCLA scientists decided to test the myth against hard statistics. Astronomer Dr. George Abell and hospital radiologist Dr. Bennett Greenspan correlated nearly 12,000 births over a four-year span with the moon's phases during the same period. The result: no sign of a "childbirth peak" during the full moon.

How Sex Attitudes Are Changing

The attitudes of older and younger adults toward sexual permissiveness, once at opposite ends of the spectrum, seem to be meeting in the middle. In a study by sociologists Mary Laner and Steve Housker, two groups (one largely 35 years of age or younger, the other largely 35 or older) were asked for their views on specific sexual behavior, such as living together before marriage, premarital sex and marital infidelity.

Older adults were inclined to be more tolerant of premarital sex and less tolerant of extramarital adventures than they once were. Younger adults showed a tendency to be less permissive of both than they used to be. This trend in attitudes, say the researchers, coupled with findings of overall decreased sexual permissiveness in both age groups, suggests that the most likely explanation is that of "backlash" against such notions as open marriage and "swinging" sexuality. The researchers conclude: The considerable public attention focused on the purported decline of marriage and family life in recent years may have led to more conservative attitudes in younger and older adults alike.

College Knowledge

College students whose family backgrounds and home environments encouraged them to develop the habit of serious study have always been more likely to achieve academic success. Now an educational psychologist at the University of California suggests that it is not so much how long a student devotes to classwork but how hard he or she works that really counts. A recent survey revealed that those who put in only 30 hours a week hitting the books — but who expended high-quality efforts — did as well academically as those who put in 50 hours of poorer quality studying.

Another University of California survey, made in collaboration with the American Council on Education, shows that college freshmen's three major goals today are: 1) being well-off financially; 2) obtaining recognition from colleagues and peers; and 3) having administrative responsibility for the work of others. According to survey director Prof. Alexander W. Astin, "Increasing materialism has been accompanied by increased interest in the symbols of status and power." The changes in student values were coupled with changes in career plans: One of every five freshmen is aiming at a career in business. FW

The Comic Genius of Zany Madeline Kahn

The variety of Madeline Kahn's movie roles is as dizzying as some of her performances. Here we ask the real Ms. Kahn to please stand up.

By Jane Hershey

People think that they know Madeline Kahn. She's the crazy lady in the outrageous wigs. The one who rolls her eyes and unpuckers her bee-stung lips to sing love ballads to Mel Brooks, Harvey Korman and Gene Wilder.

For more than 10 years, this petite, pretty and zany strawberry blond has kept America smiling and giggling in such films as What's Up, Doc?, Paper Moon, Blazing Saddles, Young Frankenstein, High Anxiety, and The Cheap Detective. In 1978 Madeline made Broadway come alive in On The Twentieth Century. And then, for nearly two years — almost nothing!

But now, Madeline's back in full force. And, this time around, there's more depth to her comic genius and not so many fright wigs. "Maybe people can't see me as a normal woman. You know, when I went to Hollywood to film What's Up, Doc? I had no idea that they were going to make me look so dumpy and weird. I mean, I had heard all those legends about how Hollywood made you look storybook perfect. I was in total shock when I saw my wardrobe!"

Most of Madeline's 60's and 70's roles had her in bizarre costumes, as well as using bizarre voices to get her laughs across. Did her sudden hiatus from show business have anything to do with a fear of becoming stereotyped? "That doesn't worry me at all," Madeline shrugs. "Most of my parts are comedic. Only now, I'm trying to choose more of them that have many levels of laughter."

Her most recent releases include Happy Birthday, Gemini, with Rita Moreno; Simon with Alan Arkin; and Wholly Moses with Dudley Moore. These roles, she says, have signified a real growth for her.

This December, Madeline will be seen in Warner Brothers' The First Family. She plays a fictional First Lady who wears cloth coats, little hats and repressed expressions. In case anyone's worried that this is going to be another post-Watergate tragedy, Madeline's daughter in the film is portrayed by Gilda Radner.

And, right now, she is going into production on Mel Brooks's next epic, entitled The History of the World, Part I.

In some of her films Madeline has had the chance to pitch her operatic pipes. She actually spent her college years training for a career at the Metropolitan Opera in New York. And she made it. But along the way, she became exposed to other kinds of entertainment, and after college, she landed right on Broadway in a short-lived musical. Then, just before stepping into a road company of Candide, Madeline's agent suggested that she try out for a role in Peter Bogdanovich's Paper Moon. It earned her an Academy Award nomination.

A large part of her career has involved a close association with funnyman Mel Brooks: "I met him in the Warner Brothers canteen. He wanted an actress who could do Dietrich imitations. He's wonderful to work for, and I've met so many great people, like Gene Wilder, through him."

The admiration is mutual. Says Brooks, "Madeline can do anything. She's a self-starter, and, like all thoroughbreds, is a highy tuned instrument. Give her a little guidance and she'll win every race."

Gene Wilder, who directed her in Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother, agrees: "She's one of the three best actresses in the world. She is not restricted to being brilliant in comedy, although that's the way she's cast most of the time. But she could do Lady Macbeth — it might have a little humor in it, but she could do Lady Macbeth. I can't think of anything better than working with her, and she is — of all my experiences of working with actors — one of the few who has inspired me the most."

There have been reports that Madeline is temperamental to work with. Mel Brooks says of that, "Of course, once in a while this Jewish Scarlett O'Hara comes out and flashes her eyes a bit too hard. But that temper is part of Madeline's complexity." And Rita Moreno says, "No one has seen the real Madeline Kahn yet. Yes, Madeline is always thought of as kooky. But kooky just means different. She has a gorgeous spontaneity. I think that Madeline is one of the most creatively responsible people in entertainment today."

For Madeline, such entertainment is a top priority: "My career is really uppermost in my mind. I have many close friends, so even though I'm well into my 30's, I no longer feel the compulsion to get married, and anyway, my mother always told me that above all, get a career together, so that no matter what happens, you'll land on your feet. She was so right.

"Emotionally, I don't want to give up all that work to get married. Of course, if that one exceptional man did come along...But I don't need him to feel fulfilled about myself."

Madeline admits that sometimes the laughs can start to affect her personal life. "It's kind of scary. In comedy you do all the wrong things with your hair and makeup. You look weird and silly to everyone around you. At the end of the day, it's hard to shrug off your part and return to normal. That's why I like looking pretty sometimes upon the screen."

What makes Madeline Kahn extra special as both a person and performer is her sense of humor, which, combined with her other talents, allows her to wander at will through different eras to create some of the funniest and most unforgettable female characters on the screen today. "Perhaps I once lived in another time," she quips.

What a time that must have been! FW

A Report Card on Sesame Street

By Jack Wehrner

It was 11 years ago this fall that an $8 million, 26-week experiment was begun to show that TV didn't have to be the bad guy when it came to the education of children. That experiment was called Sesame Street.

Today, nine out of 10 children entering first grade are, according to the Nielsen ratings, graduates of Sesame Street, a daily, hour-long show, produced by Children's Television Workshop (CTW), which uses entertainment techniques to try to teach preschoolers. It is the most popular show on all television with children under 6.

When the program first aired, the initial response was overwhelmingly favorable, often ecstatic. Has the show done all that people hoped it would do?

Research has shown that Big Bird and friends have helped children to learn from TV. Sesame Street has received more than 100 awards (including 13 Emmys and a Peabody prize). Yet despite all this, detractors have found problems with the show as an educational vehicle.

Some of the criticism has centered around the show's format, which was unashamedly inspired by one of children's favorite television components: commercials. "By the time a child enters first grade," says Joan Ganz Cooney, president of CTW and the creator of Sesame Street, "he will have spent some 4,000 hours watching television." Studies indicate children frequently enjoy the fast action and little stories of commercials more than the programs. When incorporated into Sesame Street, this formula attempts to "sell" education.

Dr. Michael Rothenberg, a child psychiatrist at the University of Washington, worries that once kids get used to being taught by television "they have a real problem when the real live teacher can't fly across the classroom while teaching the letter A like they can on TV."

Dr. Edith Dowley, recently retired director of the Stanford School of Education's Department of Nursery School Education, is similarly concerned. Although she believes the show has been a bold and creative attack on illiteracy, she worries about the long-term implications of such electronic learning: "One result of such easy learning is a tendency for many children to give up on learning if it doesn't come easily."

Children's Television Workshop

Big Bird and fans: 9 out of 10 first-graders are graduates of Sesame Street.

Psychologist and TV consultant Roger Fransecky goes a step further saying today's "tube-fed" generation is coming to school confused: "TV has made no demand on them. They step into class and the teacher starts demanding they listen, talk, respond on cue and even occasionally think. It's a shock — and at that point the kids either respond or withdraw."

Such criticism leaves the show's supporters undaunted. Dr. Gerald Lesser, Harvard professor of education and developmental psychology, has chaired a board of advisers for all CTW shows since planning began on Sesame Street. He states, "Research shows Sesame Street has helped prepare maybe a full generation of children aged 3, 4 and 5 to enter the early grades of school more comfortably and rapidly than they otherwise would."

There has been criticism that gains by Sesame Street viewers are lost when their non-viewing classmates catch up with them by about the second grade, and also that the show isn't helping the underprivileged inner-city kids who are theoretically an important target.

However, reports from the International Reading Association and the National Assessment of Educational Progress suggests the Sesame Street generation has acquired improved reading skills which are holding beyond the second grade. And Dr. Lesser states, "Both the lower- and middle-class kids have benefited equally. Every study I have seen indicates both groups learn at the same rate from the show."

What parents can do to make sure that their children get the maximum out of educational programming is participate in the viewing with them when possible. And they shouldn't neglect other ways of learning at home — such as reading books, playing with educational toys. FW

TOMATOES GALORE!

By Marilyn Hansen

Perhaps the most widely cultivated vegetable in America (botanically, we know tomatoes are a fruit, but in popular mind they are eaten and enjoyed as a vegetable), tomatoes, fresh, stewed, pickled or preserved, add their characteristic zest and color to countless dishes. Now at harvest time, we present a peck of tomato-wise recipes for you to try.

GARDEN TOMATO RELISH

2 lbs. firm, ripe tomatoes
1 green pepper
1 cucumber
¼ cup vegetable oil
⅓ cup wine vinegar
½ teaspoon Tabasco
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon crushed fresh mint, optional
½ teaspoon dried basil leaves
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon dry mustard

1. Core and cut tomatoes and pepper into small wedges. Pare and cut cucumber into thin slices.

2. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over vegetables in salad bowl. Toss lightly; cover and chill at least 1 hour before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings

BEAUTIFUL BEEFSTEAK TOMATO AND ONION SALAD

1 head lettuce, bronze-leaf or garden lettuce, washed and chilled
3 large beefsteak tomatoes, peeled and thickly sliced
1 large sweet Spanish onion, sliced
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
6 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
1 or 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh herbs (chives, thyme, basil or oregano)
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Arrange beds of lettuce on 6 attractive salad plates. Top with slices of tomato randomly, alternating with onion slices. Refrigerate, covered, with plastic film if not serving immediately.

2. In small bowl, combine remaining ingredients, stir to mix. Or blend about 10 seconds in blender.

3. Just before serving, drizzle dressing over salad. Makes 6 servings

SPICY APPLE-TOMATO BUTTER

8 cups unpeeled sliced apples
1 cup water
3 cups chopped, seeded, peeled tomatoes
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup cider vinegar
1 cup packed dark brown sugar
2 cinnamon sticks
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Tabasco

1. In large saucepan, combine apples and water. Cover and simmer over medium heat until apples are soft and mushy.

2. Force through a food mill. Return apples to saucepan; add remaining ingredients. Simmer, uncovered, over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 50 minutes, or until thick.

3. Ladle hot mixture immediately into hot jelly or canning jars to within ⅛-inch of rim. Screw on lids.

4. Place jars on rack in a large kettle, add hot water to cover jars by 1 inch. Bring to a boil and boil 10 minutes. Remove jars from water and cool. Store in a cool place.

6. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until bubbly. Makes 6 portions

Coma: Trapped Between Life and Death

By Katherine Barrett

It wasn't hard for Dr. Robin Cook to come up with the title for his first medical thriller, Coma. The very connotation of the word, coma, fascinates and terrifies people. "It's the ultimate loss of control, and that's frightening," remarks the author, a Boston ophthalmologist.

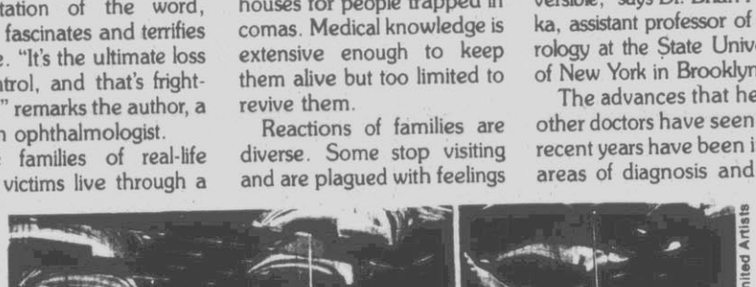

The families of real-life coma victims live through a quiet terror day after day. "I think it's one of the hardest things for people to deal with," says Joan Hemenway, a chaplain at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York. "You're caught between holding on and letting go — in limbo."

A surprising number of families go through this tragedy. Strokes, head injuries, alcoholism, epilepsy, diabetes, drug overdoses and many other diseases can push a patient into a coma, the complete loss of consciousness (from the Greek word meaning deep sleep)

A coma may be caused by lack of oxygen to the brain or the presence of a toxin like carbon monoxide. While it does not necessarily cause brain damage, the two often go hand in hand. Because comas are a symptom rather than a disease itself, they are poorly tracked statistically, but it's estimated that about 3 percent of emergency admissions in big-city hospitals are comatose.

Recovery from a coma is most likely in the first hours and days after losing consciousness. As time drags on, hopes gradually dim. Intensive-care facilities and nursing homes become warehouses for people trapped in comas. Medical knowledge is extensive enough to keep them alive but too limited to revive them.

Reactions of families are diverse. Some stop visiting and are plagued with feelings of guilt or powerlessness. Others cling to the fleeting hope for a recovery. "We're not going to give up," says one Massachusetts mother, whose 17-year-old daughter went into a coma after a car accident 18 months ago. "We believe very strongly that miracles can happen."

Miracles that do happen fuel these hopes. Not long ago, a couple in New Hampshire were looking for a nursing home in which to place their comatose son, Max, when the 10-year-old shocked everyone by awakening. Although his recovery seemed to surprise his doctors, Max had several things going for him. He had only been in a coma for a month, and his young age made him a likely candidate for survival. There have been reports of adults awakening after years in a comatose or semicomatose state, but such cases are rare.

The tragedy of coma victims is that the uncertainty can drag on and on. One Florida woman died last year after 37 years in a coma, which may be a record.

For the individual who is severely brain-damaged, modern medicine holds little hope. "There's no modern drug that can reverse the irreversible," says Dr. Brian Anziska, assistant professor of neurology at the State University of New York in Brooklyn.

The advances that he and other doctors have seen over recent years have been in the areas of diagnosis and prevention. The CAT Scan, a device which allows doctors to safely photograph the brain, detects problems that might cause coma and helps doctors to make accurate diagnoses. Meanwhile, increasingly sophisticated intensive-care treatment reduces the chance of brain damage from oxygen loss or toxic poisoning.

With mysteries still shadowing the subject, doctors emphasize the vital role of prevention. As in so many medical problems, the real tragedy is that many comatose victims could have avoided their predicament. For instance, drug and alcohol overdoses are common causes that are preventable.

Comas are sometimes delayed or proceeded by confusion or drowsiness. It is important not to ignore these warning signs after a head injury, yet some people do. Says Dr. Anziska, "If there is any kind of change in consciousness, medical care should be sought as soon as possible because time is against you. There's no way to reverse brain damage, but you can prevent it." FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Bubbles In The Air

Kids have been blowing pink bubbles with their gum ever since a young man named Walter Diemer invented bubble gum in 1928. But now bubble-blowing has reached a new level; in 1978 the Guinness Book of World Records added the sport to its list of achievements when Brett Nichols blew a 17-inch bubble at a contest held near his home in Marietta, Ga. He is now trying to regain his world title — a young woman from California popped Brett's bubble with a 19¼-inch one of her own.

"I've been chewing bubble gum since I was about 5," says 16-year-old Brett. "A neighbor persuaded me to enter that first contest, and I just happened to set the record. But since then, I've really perfected my technique. I use three pieces of gum, which take five minutes to get to the right stage for bubble-blowing. I always blow with my head down so if the bubble pops, it doesn't stick to my face and hair, and I blow with short, slow, gentle breaths to lessen the chance of the bubble bursting."

Bubble Yum

Nichols: Bubble trouble.

Earthly Delights

Betty Llewellyn has a passion she shares with some of the world's royalty; she collects gems and minerals. But the stones that Mrs. Llewellyn collects don't just sit alone; she recently gave the Carnegie Museum of Natural History in Pittsburgh a necklace featuring aquamarines surrounded by flowers made of zircons, gold and diamonds, which she'd christened "The Garden." "I also gave another piece called 'The Pomegranate' to the Smithsonian," adds Mrs. Llewellyn. "I like knowing that future generations will be able to enjoy these pieces of art. It's incredible that nature gave us these minerals and incredible what artists are able to create with them."

Mrs. Llewellyn first became interested in gems and minerals 35 years ago when her son returned from a Boy Scout trip with an unusual piece of quartz he'd collected. "Since then, I've visited countries all over the world, going to tourmaline mines in Brazil and visiting China to collect jade," she says.

New England Farm Center

Sheeps In The Meadow

Dogs are America's favorite pet, but dogs are also used for work on farms in many European countries, particularly for guarding and herding sheep. At the New England Farm Center at Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., researchers are breeding sheep-guarding dogs for farmers in the U.S.

"Over 1.5 million sheep are lost each year because of predators; and fences, trapping and poisons are not very effective or environmentally sound," explains Susan Goldhor, the Center's director. "Using dogs is an inexpensive and effective way to guard sheep, and we're experimenting with a number of breeds, all brought back from Europe."

The Center leases dogs to sheep farmers across the country; in return, the farmers provide the researchers with data about the dog's behavior. "A good sheep dog weighs between 70 and 100 pounds and knows that his job is to stay with the sheep and not harm them," explains Goldhor. "The dogs protect the sheep by aggressively placing themselves between predators and the flock, and so far, they've been very good at their jobs; several farmers reported their predator problem cleared up almost immediately."

Sensible Eating

The teen-age years are trying ones, both emotionally and physically. And because their bodies are changing so rapidly, teen-agers have special nutritional needs that many aren't filling. "A child's body is turning into an adult's, and the rapid growth requires more energy and proportionally more vitamins and minerals," explains Johanna Dwyer, director of the Frances Stern Nutritional Center in Boston. "During these years, children really need the nutrients they get from a balanced diet."

Since about one-quarter of the calories teen-agers consume are from "junk food," obesity is a problem for many adolescents, and Dr. Dwyer feels that a teen-ager's diet must also take into consideration his wants and desires. "However, I'm not in favor of stringent dieting," declares Dwyer. "If a teen-ager is slightly plump, I'd prefer he increase his physical activity and learn to eat moderately."

Lifestyles

Housing. Making sure that household expenditures don't exceed one-fourth of monthly, before-tax income is one financial guideline that home buyers have traditionally followed. However, according to a U.S. League of Savings Association report, 46 percent of 14,000 buyers surveyed are now exceeding that limit for house payments, utilities, real-estate taxes and insurance. According to Dr. Edward Metzen of the University of Missouri (Columbia) College of Home Economics, high interest rates, the greater population pressure on available housing and upswings in construction costs are all factors that have pushed housing prices up.

Medicine. Studies at two medical centers suggest that patients with arthritis may find relief from swollen joints by taking oral doses of gold, notes Medical World News. Reports from the University of Miami and the Cleveland VA Hospital indicate that the treatment did produce gastrointestinal side effects in some patients, but the researchers plan to submit their data to the FDA within 16 months.

Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: KING ARTHUR'S PERSONAL WARSHIP TRANSPORTS PRINCE VALIANT AND ALETA TO IMPREGNABLE CASTLE CORNWALL, A STRATEGIC OUTPOST ON CAMELOT'S SOUTHWEST COAST. FOR PUBLIC RECORD, THEIRS IS A SOCIAL VISIT TO THE COURT OF DUKE CUTHBERT, AN AGING KNIGHT OF THE ROUND TABLE. HOWEVER, REPORTS OF GRAVE UNREST MUST BE INVESTIGATED FOR KING ARTHUR.

NO SOONER HAS VAL'S SHIP DOCKED AT THE QUAY THAN A SOMBER TROUPE DRAWS NIGH. THE DELEGATION BRINGS TRAGIC NEWS: THE DUKE IS DEAD.

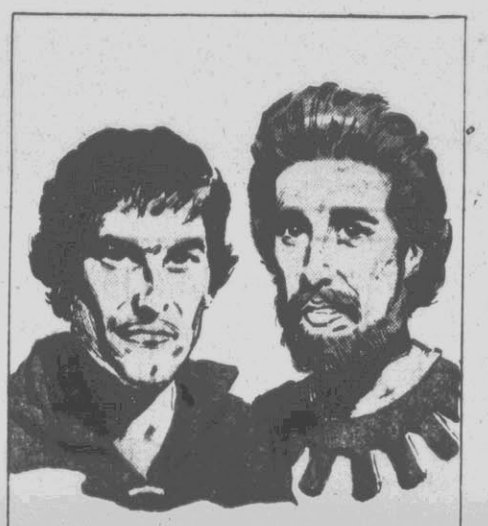

AS VALIANT PAYS HIS LAST RESPECTS, A MONK RECOUNTS THE DETAILS OF THE FATAL HUNTING ACCIDENT. "HE WAS DEAD WHEN THE GAMEKEEPER FOUND HIM," THE HOLY MAN EXPLAINS. "ALREADY FIVE POACHERS HAVE BEEN HANGED FOR THE CRIME."

THE WOEFUL DRONE OF THE MOURNERS RECEDES AS VAL AND ALETA LEAVE TO MEET THE DUKE'S SURVIVORS, BUT THE SCENT OF WAX AND INCENSE CLINGS TO THEIR CLOTHING.

© 1980 King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved

VAL OFFERS HIS CONDOLENCES. HIS FIRST IMPRESSION OF BRIAN AND LAMBERT, TWO OF THE DUKE'S SONS, IS UNFAVORABLE: THEY SEEM ALTOGETHER TOO CHEERFUL.
