Seeking A Gas Cutoff

GAS LEAK CONTAINED — Greenville fire department and utility workers study maps trying to determine a location for a gas cutoff last night when a plumbing pipe apparently broke away from the rear of Beddingfield's Pharmacy, beside the Sanitary Barber Shop and struck an electrical wire. The pipe apparently caused a gas leak to be ignited, indicated by the arrow. Firemen were called to the building about 12:20 when sparks were reported coming from the roof of the barber shop located behind the building. Workers were on the scene about an hour before shutting off the gas. A utility spokesman on the scene speculated, the street cutoff, which could not be located, was apparently covered by a street widening project in the past. The gas was finally shut by disconnecting the meter. No damage resulted during the fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Recreation, Parks Dept. Fees, Charges Adopted

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
Members of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at their September meeting Wednesday night approved a "Fees and Charges Policy" prepared by Director Boyd Lee and his staff. The approved paper will now go to the City Council for the Council's endorsement.

Throughout the presentation of the comprehensive eight page document, Lee emphasized that the basic purpose of looking to the possibility of receiving more revenues from fees for programs was to help maintain the needed level of revenues — but that such revenue would not be a replacement for revenues currently received from the city, the federal government and from various grants.

The commission expressed appreciation for the comprehensive coverage the policy provides as a guideline for the intricacies of establishing and offering

Agents Seize Cigarettes

FARMVILLE — Federal agents raided a structure on Loop Road 1143 near here yesterday and seized about 1,000 cartons of cigarettes and wrapping equipment.

David D. Lazar, special agent for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said the building has been used as a place to store and pack cigarettes for shipping to high-tax states. He said from 5,000 to 9,000 cartons per week have been being mailed from the Walstonburg Post Office to individuals in Massachusetts, Florida, Minnesota and probably other states. Search warrants have been used to obtain mailings from this operation to the three states mentioned, he said.

The raid began at 11:45 a. m. yesterday and was participated in by the Pitt County Sheriff Department and U. S. Postal Authorities as well as the ATF agents.

"Based on the cigarettes going out, it is believed that net profits ranged from a minimum of $250,000 to $500,000 a year," Lazar said.

No arrests were made Wednesday. Evidence will be turned over to a federal Grand Jury and 12 indictments will be sought, he said.

TANK REMOVED

We had a fire in our home over a year ago involving our gas furnace. At that time we replaced the furnace with a heat pump and informed our gas supplier, Surburban Propane, that we wanted them to take the gas we had left and the underground tank back. I feel it's dangerous and I don't like my child playing near it. They said okay, but it's been a year. Mrs. B. T.

Hotline contacted James Jester at Surburban Propane. He agreed that there had been a long delay in dealing with the matter of the tank removal. He said it's considerable trouble to remove underground tanks and that his company no longer installs them unless they are bought and paid for by the customer. He asked if it would be satisfactory with you for him to simply remove the above-ground part of the tank and fill it with water and leave it. You said this had never been suggested to you, but that you would like it because there would be less damage to your yard and no need to bother your neighbor for access to the tank through his yard. You even wrote a letter to the company, at Hotline's suggestion, giving written permission for the matter to be handled this way.

Once the removal was looked into further, though, it was found that there was still considerable gas in the tank and that a vapor valve was stuck, constituting some risk in removing the above ground parts only. The tank did have to be dug out of the ground. The job's now complete, however, and you report that you're satisfied and appreciative of the company's efforts.

Officials Named For United Way

Reid Hooper and Dr. William Laupus will serve as vice-chairmen in the United Way Campaign according to Gene Taylor, general chairman. In making the announcement Taylor said "I am delighted that these outstanding men have agreed to serve. Both are knowledgeable about the community and the human needs met by the United Way agencies."

Hooper will be vice-chairman in charge of Pacesetter, Industrial Division, Commercial Division, and Service Division.

He is a native of Durham and is currently living at 1708 Knollwood Dr., Greenville. His wife, Joan, is also from Durham. They have a daughter, Lora Valerie Eggleston, who lives in Eden. Hooper has been the president of the Pitt County Association for the Blind, treasurer for the March of Dimes, treasurer for Pitt County Revenue Building Authority and a member of the following boards: Greenville Country Club, Greenville Chamber of Commerce, Pitt County United Way, Coastal Plains Chapter March of Dimes, and president of the Greenville Lions Club.

He attended UNC-Chapel Hill, where he received a B.S. in business administration and attended the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. Hooper also served in the military for three years as a sergeant.

Dr. Laupus will be vice-chairman in charge of Professional Division, Public and Academic Employees Division, business Division, County and Special Gifts.

He is presently the dean of ECU's School of Medicine and a professor of pediatrics. He has also served as ECU's department of pediatrics chairman. Prior to his appointments at ECU, Laupus was a professor and chairman of the department of pediatrics at the Medical College of Virginia.

He is currently a delegate from the American Board of Pediatrics on the American Board of Medical Specialties, a member of the Joint Committee on Recertification of American Academy of Pediatrics and American Board of Pediatrics and the coordinating editor of Practical Reviews of Pediatrics.

Would Abolish Use Of Ether

BOSTON (AP) — A Harvard study recommends that the use of ether, for a century one of the nation's most common anesthetics, be abolished because it is too explosive and expensive to administer.

The report also said hospitals should discontinue using other flammable anesthetics, including cyclopropane, ethylene and fluorocene. Such a prohibition would save hospitals $9.4 million annually, the report said.

The study, published in Thursday's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, was directed at the Harvard School of Public Health by Dr. Harvey V. Fineberg.

Hunt Itemizes Next Goals In Education

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt outlined today what he described as his education program for a second term, including a reduction in middle-grade class size and a strengthening of vocational training.

Citing the primary grades reading program and annual and minimum competency testing programs begun under his administration, Hunt said he wants to focus on improving basic skills and reversing the high school dropout rate if he is re-elected.

"I am not satisfied when I know that today approximately one out of every three students in the ninth grade will drop out of school before graduation," he said.

"Poor basic skills and irrelevant curriculum are frequently cited by students as reasons for dropping out of school. I propose that my next effort in education will be to reduce school dropouts."

Hunt, a Democrat, made the comment in an eight-page position paper released today by his campaign. He faces Republican state Sen.

I. Beverly Lake Jr. of Raleigh in the Nov. 4 election.

Hunt said he would back reduction in the class size in grades four through six to 26, and to 25 in the basic skills classes — English and math — above the seventh grade. The size is now 30 students per class.

On the dropout problem, Hunt recommended more remedial instruction for low achievers and an in-school suspension program for serious discipline problems. The in-school suspension would keep disruptive students in a special program of study rather than turning them away from school as punishment.

He said alternate vocational programs and improved counseling would be provided for students likely to dropout.

On vocational education, Hunt called for making job placement from school courses a "major focus" of the schools and for increasing training agreements between high schools and local community and technical colleges.

Jenrette Defense: FBI 'Baited' A Bribery Trap

By MARGARET GENTRY

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Drawing on the prosecution's own tape recordings, Rep. John Jenrette's attorney is trying to convince a jury that Abscam undercover investigators baited a bribery trap for the congressman.

Defending the South Carolina Democrat against federal bribery and conspiracy charges, lawyer Kenneth Robinson has introduced tapes showing that it often was undercover informant Melvin Weinberg, rather than Jenrette's friend and co-defendant, John Stowe, who initiated discussions about Jenrette.

After Wednesday's session, the trial was recessed for Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, and will resume Friday.

The government charges that Jenrette and Stowe conspired to take bribe money from undercover FBI agents posing as representatives of a fictitious Arab sheik. In return, Jenrette agreed in late 199 to help the "sheik" with immigration problems, the government alleges.

During Wednesday's session, Robinson introduced three tapes of telephone conversations between Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, and Weinberg, the convicted swindler who acted as a middleman and introduced FBI undercover agents to subjects of the investigation.

In several of those conversations, during which a possible land deal came up, Weinberg pressed Stowe for a contact with the congressman. In three discussions in April 199, Weinberg reminded Stowe to contact Jenrette.

The tape of an April 25, 199, conversation included this exchange:

Weinberg: I'd like to meet with the congressman up in, ah, his property's in Myrtle Beach.

Stowe: Yeah, but I won't do that, Mel, until we, one thing at a time. That guy is a very close personal friend of mine and, ah, I don't know whether I want him to get involved in this or not.

Weinberg: Well, if he wants it fine, it's up to you.

Later, Weinberg said of Jenrette, "I can give him any kind of deal he wants."

Replied Stowe, "Well, I know that and I know there's going to be a, you know, you're going to want a favor in return and I don't know whether I want to put him on the hook or not."

But Stowe agreed to contact Jenrette and on May 2, Stowe told Weinberg that "I talked to my congressman" about the possibility that Weinberg might buy Jenrette's interest in North Myrtle Beach property which Stowe described as "waterway lots."

"He'd like to get out of it," Stowe said as he gave Weinberg the congressman's office telephone number and suggested that Weinberg contact Jenrette.

Cross-examining chief Abscam undercover agent Anthony Amoroso, Robinson asked whether Weinberg made the call. When Amoroso said Weinberg did not, Robinson asked whether that was because Amoroso instructed him not to do so because of "legal problems" that might result from alleged entrapment.

"I did not tell him not to make direct contact," the agent testified.

Robinson queried further, "Did you have any training at all in what the do's and don't's were (in conducting such an operation)?"

Amoroso said no.

Another tape introduced by the defense recorded a conversation Oct. 1, 198, in which Stowe told Weinberg he could bring a congressman into a smuggling scheme involving phony certificates of deposit. Amoroso testified that he did not then know who Stowe was talking about and did not learn until the following April when Stowe revealed that it was Jenrette.

In the Oct. 1 tape, Stowe said, "I've had a lot of dealings with my congressman, who I trust." He added, chuckling, "He's as big a crook as I am."

Registration Of Billy Carter As Agent Said Due President's Urging

By W. DALE NELSON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Despite Justice Department pressure, Billy Carter might never have registered as a Libyan agent had his brother, the president, not urged him to do so, White House counsel Lloyd N. Cutler says.

Cutler told a special Senate subcommittee Wednesday he monitored the case through repeated contacts with Billy Carter's attorneys "to protect the president and the presidency," not to influence the investigation.

Had the younger Carter refused to register and civil or criminal proceedings been pursued against him, it "would not have been in the institutional interest of the presidency," Cutler said.

Cutler disclosed for the first time a July 2 telephone call in which Billy Carter's attorneys, Steven Pollak and Henry Ruth, told him that their client had authorized them to negotiate the registration statement the department wanted.

One day earlier, according to a statement Cutler gave the subcommittee last month, he suggested that the president call his brother, who had until then resisted Justice Department prodding to register, and urge him to file the required statement.

The president made the call the same day and, according to Cutler, indicated it "may have done some good."

If he had not been talking to Pollak and Ruth, Cutler said, he would not have known that Billy Carter was refusing to register and could not have told the president.

"If I had not maintained that contact — if the president had remained totally isolated — he might never have made that call and perhaps Billy Carter might never have registered," Cutler said.

"It would not have been in the institutional interest of the presidency if Billy Carter had refused to register and an adversary proceeding of a civil or criminal nature had been started against him."

The president's brother filed the registration statement under protest July 14 to avoid prosecution after the Justice Department filed a civil suit against him.

Cutler rejected suggestions by some members of the subcommittee that his talks with the lawyers were a "back-door" approach to obtain inside information from the Justice Department.

Alford Declares Board Did 'All It Could' For Boy

According to Superintendent of Pitt County Schools Ott Alford, the county school system did all it could to provide Brad Hines, the youth who was ordered by the courts yesterday to be enrolled in a private school, with what Alford termed "an appropriate education."

"We served Brad in a special class for disturbed children," explained Alford, "with a specially trained teacher. We even placed an aide in the classroom to deal with the youth." When his mother took him out of school, the county provided Brad with a homebound teacher, added the superintendent.

"We have served Brad to the best of our abilities with the services we had available," Alford commented. "The key to the situation is in the word 'appropriate.' We are required by the state to give each student an appropriate education. Brad could receive an appropriate education in the public facilities or he could receive the very best education at Devereux."

Alford added that the county has around 2,400 special need youngsters in the school system. "These range from the hard of hearing to those in wheelchairs to the emotionally disturbed to the gifted and talented. Does this mean that we are liable to send all of these to receive the very best education possible or to offer them a basically excellent, appropriate education in our schools?" queried the superintendent.

The court order which was handed down yesterday reads, "In defense of local officials, it appears they have done everything they believe to be within their power to meet Brad's needs."

"The confusion and misunderstanding of the state facilities' obviously emanated from the state level."

The court denied the Hines' $100,000 in damages they sought from the County Board of Education and denied the family's plea that the state or board be responsible for their attorney fees.

Engagement Announced

SHEILA DIANE COX... is the daughter of Mrs. Ann Bridgen of Rt. 1, Farmville, who announces her engagement to Bobby Lynn Daniels, son of Mrs. Rosa B. Daniels of Farmville, and the late Mr. George Lanier Daniels. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Mr. Simon Woodrow Cox. The wedding will take place Oct. 5.

Summer Reports Are Given

Committee reports of summer activities were given at the first fall meeting of the Greenville Service League Monday. Mrs. Robert VanVeld, president, welcomed members.

Mrs. Frank Steinbeck Jr. reported that 51 volunteers worked 219½ hours and collected 213 pints of blood during visits to ECU and the American Legion. She said the next Bloodmobile visits will be at Rose High School Sept. 29 and at ECU Oct. 7-8.

Mrs. J. Bryan Brown, Laughinghouse Hospital Fund chairman, reported receiving 13 calls. Mrs. Lawton Nisbet, lending chest, answered 10 calls for equipment during the summer.

Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr. announced tray favors and an arrangement were made for July 4 for Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Wayne Kendrick, finance chairman, named Mrs. Raymond MacKenzie as chairman for the 1981 Charity Ball to be held Feb. 27.

The group will purchase a new flag for Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Sidewalk Arts, Crafts Show Set

NEW BERN—A Sidewalk Arts and Crafts Show will be held here Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the 200 block of Pollock St.

Artists and craftsmen will be in yards, parking lots, on the sidewalks and on porches throughout the block demonstrating their work. Art to be displayed includes oil, watercolor, acrylic and charcoal.

Crochet, chair caning, bread dough, satined glass, eggery, wood carving, pottery, leather, baskets, dolls, dried flowers, quilts, cloths, lapidary and country carving are among crafts to be seen.

Other activities will include characters from The Wizard of Oz, musician and visiting artist at Craven Community College performing. Dare Stewart of Greensboro will be serving prepared foods from recipes from the Greensboro Junior League cookbook. Irene Davis of Jacksonville will be doing charcoal sketches and Jo Ko, an artist of Ocracoke, will also be present.

The Swiss Bear Antique Auto Show will also be held.

Dear Abby

Sister's Request Is Ridiculous

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband's sister, a twice-married, twice-divorced 47-year-old grandmother, is the problem. She's been living with her 36-year-old "boyfriend," whom she plans to marry as soon as his divorce is final.

Abby, this prospective "bride" wants her brother (my husband) to give her away when she gets married for the third time. And that's not all — she wants my husband to foot the bill for a big church wedding and reception! She says it is his "duty" to do this for her because their father is dead.

I thought at first she was kidding, but it turns out that she is dead serious, so my husband asked me to write to you and find out if he is obligated to do this.

For years this wacky sister has used my husband to get her out of the crazy messes she's gotten herself into, and now this ridiculous request.

Does he have to give her away and pay for her wedding? I hope you say he doesn't.

BURNED UP IN BOSTON

DEAR BURNED: He doesn't.

DEAR ABBY: REPULSED IN COLORADO SPRINGS was appalled at the surprise party her sister-in-law had planned for her father-in-law's 50th birthday. It was to be a fake "wake," to symbolize the death of his youth. She had rented a coffin, and the house was to be transformed into a "funeral parlor." REPULSED failed to see the humor of it, and you agreed with her.

Well, here's one 54-year-old crazy lady who is having the time of her life renting out real caskets to fun-loving folks who want to give unusual parties. Our caskets come in buttercup yellow, passionate pink and luscious lavender — and we deliver them in a powder blue Cadillac hearse, which we also rent out. (On Halloween, our phone rings off the hook!)

I am also an ordained minister, and as such I married a couple in a double-casket ceremony. How's that for burying their single-blessedness?

It's a shame so many folks have morbid hangups about death and dying. Once they've been to a casket party and have had a few beers while actually sitting in a casket, their fears are greatly diminished.

In case you think I'm putting you on, you can easily check this out. I've been written up in the local press, appeared on local talk shows, and I've also been on "Real People." I'm a minor celebrity around Alamitos, Calif. They call me...

CASSANDRA, THE CASKET QUEEN

DEAR CASSANDRA: Well, now I've heard everything! And if you think this is the kookiest career I've ever encountered, you're dead right.

SOCIETY MEETS

Mrs. Elizabeth Savage, president of the Pitt County Humane Society, has called a meeting of the society Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the Woman's Club Building on Heath Street.

Everyone interested in the welfare of animals is invited, according to Mrs. Savage, who said she is especially interested in letting teenagers and other young people know that their services are wanted and needed by the Society.

GOP Meeting Preservationists Was Held Hold Meeting

Eloise Howard, chairman of the Americans for Regan committee, told Republicans at the party's monthly meeting Monday that the campaign headquarters grand opening will be held Saturday from 12 noon until 2 p.m.

She also reported that at 4 p.m. Saturday, a pig picking in honor of John East, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Democrat Robert Morgan, will be held.

Persons interested in attending the pig picking, Mrs. Howard said, should contact Republican headquarters.

Republican candidates running for office in the November election, including Henry Aldridge for the N.C. House of Representatives, Herb Lee for the N.C. Senate, Jim McIntyre for N.C. Auditor, and Bob Browning for the N.C. Court of Appeals judge, were present at the session and were introduced.

Secretaries' Meeting Held

Secretaries from the Greenville area are meeting yesterday through Friday with those from 33 eastern N. C. counties for the Third Annual Eastern Regional Secretarial Forum in Wilmington.

About 250 secretaries from mental health centers, departments of social services and health departments are attending.

Speakers include Jerry Lotterhos of the East Carolina University School of Allied Health.

The forum is coordinated by Dixie Southern of the Eastern Regional Personnel Office, Department of Human Resources, Greenville.

About 70 aspiring preservationists met at the Greenville Recreation and Parks Building on Cedar Lane last night to expand the new Greenville Area Preservation Association.

Acting President Robbie Tugwell reviewed developments since a May 8 meeting, at which the idea for a preservation group was first discussed. He noted the work of a subgroup which labored during the summer to incorporate GAPA and make application for tax-exempt status. The meeting was chaired by Acting Vice Pres. Bob Swinson.

Swinson introduced Dr. Larry E. Tise, director of the North Carolina Division of Archives and History, who spoke on the history of preservation movements in the U. S. He outlined the economic and aesthetic benefits of preservation and emphasized the importance of the knowledge of history in preparing for the future. He urged those attending to identify remaining structures and places of historical significance and educate the public to the need for preserving them for the future enjoyment of Greenville residents.

Ben Shiver, Greenville's Community Development director, discussed the city's position on three houses of particular interest. He pointed out that the Jones Lee House, which has been nominated to the National Register of Historic Places, is located in a federally funded urban renewal area and, therefore, needs to be moved. He stressed the city's willingness to cooperate with any group or individual in preserving the house on another site — perhaps by selling the house to the interested party for a token sum.

Shiver informed the group that the Winstead-Fleming house at the corner of Greene and Third streets will be studied by the Mayor's Blue Ribbon Committee. No determination of its future use will be made.

The Robert Lee Humber house on W. Fifth Street, Shiver pointed out, will be used by the N. C. Division of Archives and History as its eastern branch.

Shiver fielded questions from persons concerned with what they termed the city's past neglect of historic structures. Of particular concern seemed to be the city's intention to widen 14th Street and thus remove many handsome trees.

East Carolina University faculty member, James L. Rees, gave a slide presentation he titled, "Memories of Tenth and Cotanche Streets." His slides show the destruction of the Forbes House, which was located on the northeast corner of Tenth and Cotanche and the subsequent construction of the McDonald's fast food restaurant there. "Don't let it happen again," he pleaded.

Attorney Charles Vincent struck a positive note by describing his law firm's purchase and restoration of the Long house on the southeast corner of Fourth and Cotanche streets. He urged continued preservation effort.

Individual membership are $10 a year; couple's memberships, $15. Inquiries may be mailed to the Greenville Area Preservation Association, Box 673, Greenville. Current plans call for another meeting Nov. 5 at the Greenville Arts Center.

Farmville Mart A Little Weaker

FARMVILLE — Prices on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday were somewhat weaker than at any day this week, according to Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade Sales Supervisor Louis Williams.

The marketing of less desirable grades was responsible for a dropping average. Top practical price continues at $1.66 a pound, with some grades of quality leaf and cutters sellings for as much as $1.75. Demand for quality grades continues good. Stabilization receipts accounted for 4.07 percent of gross sales. The market sold 370,484 pounds for $569,274, for an average of $153.66. To date the market has sold 15,698,885 pounds for $22,908,874 for a season's average of $145.93, Williams said.

Drug Charge Arrest Made

Greenville police yesterday arrested Linda Jean Miller, 27 of Route 2, Winterville, on multiple drug charges after she allegedly attempted to have a forged prescription filled at Rite Aid Pharmacy at West End Circle shortly before 4 p.m., Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

Cannon said Miss Miller was charged with attempting to obtain controlled substances with a forged prescription, possession of schedule III drugs, and two counts of possession of schedule IV drugs.

The drug possession charges, the chief said, came after investigators found small quantities of Valium, Librium, Phenaphen and Thorazine in her possession.

Bond for Miss Miller was set at $1,000.

Population Changes

The district office of the U. S. Census Bureau has closed here and its mass of information gathered for the 1980 census has been sent to the processing center at New Orleans.

Preliminary figures were released, but it will be months before the information is processed and final results are made known.

It was interesting, though that a long term trend was reversed and most counties in the district showed population increases. Even populous counties like Pitt had been showing declines for some time while its municipalities were showing growth.

One reason may be that the great migration of farm workers from rural areas may have at last reached an end. Over several decades many farm workers were displaced by machinery. There was nothing for them to do but pack up and leave. Now that might be over.

But also it is easier for people who work in industrial and business jobs in the municipalities to maintain their homes in non-incorporated areas. Thus area growth may now be better measured by county population than by the municipalities of the county.

No doubt a clearer picture of population changes for eastern North Carolina counties will be seen when final figures are available.

Recycled Paper Is Feasible

If hauling your old newspapers off to collection points seems a chore, you might find some satisfaction from editions of this newspaper you have been reading this week.

Some of them have been printed on recycled paper. The newspaper will use some 240 tons of recycled newsprint next year, or about 20 percent of its needs.

Paper is produced from renewable resources — trees — but the paper recycling will mean fewer trees will be cut, and also getting rid of the old newspapers becomes less of a burden on refuse collection systems.

The time may come when reusable items will be carefully separated and much of what we used will be recycled to make the same products again.

For now, it has been shown that news print can be processed and recycled competitively.

So, What's In A Name?

EAST DURHAM, N.Y. (AP) — Late summer musings from a porch swing already strewn with falling leaves:

Election bet hunch players will be gratified to know that a panel of polling experts has reached the scientific conclusion that the name of the next president will positively include the letters "A" "E" and "R".

This is heartening news for Jimmy Carter. Ronald Reagan and John Anderson.

Those who make their presidential choice the way my wife picks horses at a race track — because the name sounds nice — might be interested in knowing that Jimmy as in Carter is short for James, which is derived from the Hebrew Jacobus, meaning "supplanter" — one who takes the place of another, as in taking over the lease at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue from Gerald Ford. Shakespeare's Iago is a variant of Jimmy.

Carter, according to the Oxford English Dictionary, originally meant charioteer. In Tudor England, around the turn of the 16th century, the word designated one who drove a cart but was also synonymous with boor.

Ronald is of Scandinavian origin. It is a combination of two words meaning advice and rule, which is not a bad combination for a presidential candidate.

Reagan is of Irish descent, perhaps from the Gaelic "reachtair" meaning administrator or legislator. The closest word in the Oxford English Dictionary is "reagent," which is a chemical substance or force used to create a reaction, hence, a reactionary force.

John in both its Greek and Hebrew origins meant "God is gracious." In English usage it has had a wide range of connotations: footman, butler, waiter, outdoor privy, a contemptuous designation for a priest, and in the N.Y. argot of Mayor Ed Koch, one who patronizes houses of ill repute.

Anderson probably is the Anglicization of the San-

All Eggs In Byrd Basket

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, though increasingly unfriendly to President Carter in recent months, is relied on by the White House to prevent the Senate from passing its big tax cut before the election.

Presidential aides, in private, do not deny putting all their eggs in the Byrd basket. If the tax reduction reaches the Senate floor, it will assuredly pass — an embarrassment for the president, who has vowed to veto it. Democratic senators are tired of voting against the Republican Kemp-Roth tax cut and are more than willing to vote for the Senate Finance Committee's version crafted by Chairman Russell B. Long.

Long has promised he will bring the bill to the Senate floor before the election. The White House hopes his interest in tax reduction will cool after his Sept. 13 Senate election in Louisiana. If that guess is wrong and Long is serious, not even Byrd's efforts may save Carter from this re-election setback.

of the Reagan campaign; second, there is no sign Rumsfeld is willing to give up the megabucks he is earning as chief executive officer of G.D. Searle in Chicago.

Actually, it is entirely possible that Casey will survive the campaign. Although Reagan supporters in Congress predict Casey's imminent fall, his critics inside the campaign are pessimistic that they can get Reagan to wield the axe against Casey as he did against John Sears Feb. 26.

Carter's My Friend
The probability that the New York Liberal Party on Sept. 13 will give its nomination to Rep. John Anderson instead of President Carter proves again that whatever danger Gov. Hugh Carey poses as an enemy, he is often more lethal as a friend.

After months of sniping at the president, Carey recently embraced him and promised to deliver the Liberal endorsement. Since then he has been privately saying that he could guarantee delivering the Liberal Party for the president. That braggadocio might well have tipped the balance for Anderson among the Liberals.

It could decide the presidential election. If he were running on both the Democratic and Liberal lines, Carter would be nearly sure of carrying New York. If Anderson has the Liberal line, Carter can still win but faces a much tougher battle for a state whose electoral votes he must have.

Campaign Diplomacy

The beating that diplomacy takes on the campaign trail was shown again at President Carter's Independence, Mo., "town meeting" when he ignored the State Department's careful formulations and instead called for "complete democracy" in South Korea.

Official policy bans the use of the word "democratic" in dealing with President Chun Doo Hwan's new regime, seeking precise and attainable goals in Korea rather than dealing in sweeping absolutes. But when a questioner at Independence asked about Chun's authoritarian regime, Carter replied: "They should move more rapidly toward complete democracy in their form of government than the Koreans so far have been able to do."

Korean diplomats have been dealing with the Americans too long to get upset, however. They know that what a candidate — even if he is an incumbent president — says in September of an election year should not be taken too seriously.

Rumsfeld Again?
Complaints about William Casey as Ronald Reagan's campaign manager have generated talk about calling for a rescue operation by abrasive but competent Donald Rumsfeld to bring order out of chaos in the Reagan campaign just as he did at the White House following Richard Nixon's resignation in 1974.

That scenario has two glaring defects, however: First, Rumsfeld's critics as White House chief of staff and later secretary of defense earned him a legion of enemies who will fight hard to keep him out

Carolina Upset?
The Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee has quietly designated Professor John East of East Carolina University, the long shot conservative Republican candidate, as a late-blooming threat to Sen. Robert Morgan's re-election effort in North Carolina.

Morgan, a one-term Democratic moderate, has been secretly added to the Democratic list of potential losers in the face of a strong drive by East, a polio victim who campaigns from his wheelchair. North Carolina Republicans, smelling a possible upset, have earmarked nearly $200,000 in a mass media campaign to gain name recognition for East.

Inching Into Films

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Things have gotten slowly into gear for movie making to become a big activity in North Carolina. State officials are now hoping a major studio will locate here.

Starting from behind while some other Southern states, notably Georgia and Florida, who were moving full steam ahead, North Carolina in just the past year has established a fulltime representative in state government to promote the business.

Medicine Show Game" featuring Red Skelton and a host of comedy and vaudeville stars will be shot at Bailey in Nash County, capturing the smalltown flavor needed for this Smithsonian Institution production to be shown on public television; and "A Horse Called Rainbow" filmed in the Tryon area.

industries, but Arnold says it is just a beginning. "In time we hope to see many feature productions filmed in North Carolina — big movies with big budgets as well as smaller ones. We think there's a great potential for significant new income from this industry."

And while the films don't win Oscars, they make money.

The other five productions include the comedy "The Private Eyes" featuring Tim Conway and Don Knotts filmed at Biltmore House in Asheville; "The Matting Season" with Luci Arnaz and Larry Luckinbill done at Highlands for CBS-TV; "The Bill Arnold, formerly head of the state's travel and tourism promotion program, now runs the film-making office. He says two other feature films by major Hollywood studios are ready to roll.

While this activity is interesting and draws favorable attention to the state, what does it mean in economic terms? Arnold estimates the 10 productions this year placed between $6 million and $7 million into circulation in the communities involved.

That isn't much in comparison to the state's big

To the editor:

As a professional geologist who has spent the past 18 years studying coastal systems (the past 14 working specifically with the North Carolina barrier islands), I strongly support the National Park Service proposal for the management and public use of Cape Lookout National Seashore.

In the numerous articles and books resulting from extensive studies of coastal systems by myself, my colleagues, and my students, we have demonstrated that our barrier islands are extremely dynamic geologic systems which are continuously changing and evolving in response to a multitude of geologic and biologic processes. The development and utilization of these barriers by man MUST be done in harmony with this high energy natural system. The proposed N. P. S. plan maximizes man's benefits while at the same time minimizes both the impacts upon the health of the barrier system and the exponential utilization of public funds required to protect, maintain and replace "permanent" structures associated with any increased level of development. The proposed management and utilization plan demonstrates a keen understanding of and sensitivity to the complexity of the coastal system and incorporates the foresight to recognize the natural limits of these dynamic barrier islands. At the same time the plans presents a realistic approach for the utilization by all public factions except off-road vehicles (ORV's). However, the very great negative geological and biological impacts of ORV's upon the barrier island system justifies their exclusion. The proposed public transportation system will provide a more energy-efficient and environmentally sound means of on-island transport.

The proposed management plan is a reasonable compromise between the two totally unacceptable extremes of total wilderness and total development. It is a workable plan that is designed WITH the natural system and its dynamic processes in mind, allowing reasonable and adequate access and utilization. I would like to commend the National Park Service for doing an excellent job with this new park system.

In conclusion, I strongly support the proposed plan and urge all of my fellow North Carolinians to do likewise.

Rent Control A Growing Issue

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The disputes between Republicans and Democrats, big as they seem to be at election time, may not have a small percentage of the emotional content of issues that separate landlords and tenants.

And the biggest of these issues — growing bigger by the day because of inflation, oil prices, politics, a housing shortage and a changing concept of who has rights to what — is rent control.

Militant tenants, claiming their rights to homes supersede the rights of owners to raise rents, have formed resistance groups throughout the country, and earlier this year a National Tenants Union was formed.

Owners, claiming they no longer can operate buildings profitably, especially where heating bills are highest, have sought huge rent increases and, when stymied, have hurried to convert to cooperatives.

The two groups, already scrapping in a thousand and one skirmishes, seem headed for a massive showdown that could, say representatives of both sides, result in a redefinition of private property rights.

Hopes of averting the showdown are limited by the hard realities, one of which is the growing shortage of housing units. Frustrated by tight money, small builders have almost ceased activities in some areas. And apartment house builders claim mortgage rates prohibit construction.

Even if housing starts rose sharply, various housing officials say, millions of potential homebuyers, making a median income of close to $20,000, would be unable to afford the $60,000 to $70,000 price tags.

Demographics add to the problem. Close to 40 million Americans will reach age 30, a typical homebuying age, in the decade of the 1980s. A shortage is likely even if housing starts double to 2 million a year.

As the situation becomes critical, the issues have become politicized, especially in regard to rent control. Aware of a large and growing constituency, candidates and officeholders have stirred up activity.

Once restricted to urban areas, rent control legislation now has invaded even small communities, and it seems destined to spread from multifamily apartment houses to buildings of only a few rental units.

Ironically, because of these fears, some large investors now list the political climate as the No. 1 investment issue, more important even than the availability or the price of construction funds.

In San Mateo, Calif., for example, the Robert E. McNeil Corp., one of the nation's most active real estate syndicators, controlling about $800 million of property, has detailed political files of major cities.

The files contain not only information on whether rent control exists, but whether it is likely to spread in the future. Just the threat, says Allen Cymrot, president, is enough to cancel a potential purchase.

And in New York, where "temporary" or "emergency" rent controls have existed since 1943, some large builders avoid the city as a disease, and landlords have abandoned thousands of buildings.

The result of abandonment and minimal construction, of course, is to exacerbate an already serious shortage of housing.

Worse, the situation seems to have hardened the opposite viewpoints of tenants and landlord, and set them on a confrontation course.

Forced to rent when they would prefer to own, if they could afford to and if units were available, many young Americans feel they have been denied a birthright. Perhaps as a result, they seem inclined to call an apartment "mine," despite the landlord's legal ownership.

Outraged, landlords in many areas have sought to sell, and when unable to do so have hurried to convert buildings to coops and condominiums — just a step ahead of laws that would prevent them from doing so.

Noting the growth of tenant groups and the advocacy of rent controls even in small communities, they formed the Rental Housing Industry Coalition in 1979 to demonstrate that controls are a "non-solution."

For one thing, they would like to prove that a major reason for the housing shortage is the very presence of rent controls.

But, with millions of young Americans frustrated by their inability to find suitable housing at what they consider an affordable price, the constituency for rent controls seems to be growing.

And so does the notion that while a person is a renter rather than an owner, he has more claim on his apartment than the limited rights that are detailed in his lease.

Strength For Today

THOSE WHO WILL NOT FORGIVE

A reader has inquired, "what advice can you give to a person who has wronged someone, apologized, but can get no forgiveness from the person wronged?"

The first consideration, in a case like this, is for the person who did the wrong to convince himself, and God, that he is actually sorry for what he has done. Repentance means something more than just a feeling of sorrow. This emotion must be backed up by a course of action which shows plainly that one has repudiated his former desires and acts.

If a person has really repented, then his must leave the issue of events in the hands of God. Under the circumstances the person injured has a duty to forgive, but if he will not accept this responsibility, the matter is out of our hands. But we must be very sure that we have really repented. Sometimes we are sorry not for our sins but for ourselves. Without any real change of heart we might inflict the same injury all over again.

foreign service officer, and ending with Willis Merle, an educator, and including Jimmy (James Earl Jr.) and Rosalynn of the Plains, Ga., Carters. There is a Bryum, a Hodding and a Ronald among the who's who Carters, but no Billy.

There are 13 pages of Anderson — 283 in all, including "John Bayard, congressman, B. Rockford, Ill., Feb. 15, 1922..."

The Carter biography in Who's Who takes up 24 lines. Anderson rates 18 lines, and Reagan 9, two fewer than Robert Redford.

For those who can predict the nation's future according to the way the sun, moon and planets stood at the time of each candidate's birth, it must be kept in mind that both Reagan (Feb. 6) and Anderson (Feb. 15) were born under the sign of Aquarius, the water bearer, whose appearance in ancient times meant the Nile was about to overflow. Carter was born under the sign of Libra (Oct. 1), the balance or scales which weighs day and night as equal in the autumn sky. Libras, according to whether you have consulted a Democratic or Republican astrologer, tend to be either well balanced, judicious people or hedgy equivocators.

American voters seem to prefer presidents with short last names. There have been nearly twice as many (20) two syllable as three syllable names (11) presidents. Six presidents, beginning with James Polk, had only a single syllable to their name. Only Dwight Eisenhower went beyond three.

Three Presidents had last names began with "A", three with "C" and two with "R." There have been six James, the most popular first name for a president, four Johns and, so far, no Ronalds.

But then Reagan's middle name is Wilson, so the hunch players might find something there.

My last experience at Royal Ascot might prove helpful here. The odds-on favorite in the Queen Anne Cup was an American horse named Hawaiian Sound. But the queen had a filly that was undefeated and hence became the sentimental favorite since the royal stable has not done well in recent years. I was torn between betting the flag and sticking with the crown on the queen's home track. My wife, who teaches catechism to youngster making their first Communion, chose a long shot called Baptism. The flag and the crown ran out of the money. The cross (Baptism) came rolling home at 80-1.

What's in a name? There is a moral here someplace.

Jas. Stewart Is Said Improving

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor James Stewart has shown "some improvement" in his treatment for sciatica and will be released from St. John's Hospital "in the near future," a hospital spokeswoman said.

Hospital spokeswoman Sandy Gimpleson said Wednesday doctors declined to release any further information on the 72-year-old actor.

Stewart has been hospitalized for several days with a mild case of sciatica.

Tobacco Theft Recreation, Parks..

Is Reported

GRIFTON — Two men were arrested early today by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with the theft of nearly $2,000 worth of tobacco Wednesday night from a rural structure east of here.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Christopher Tripp, 19, of 646 Wildwood Drive, Ayden, and Thomas Renshaw, 30, of Rt. 3, Ayden, were charged with breaking, entering and larceny at a packhouse owned by J. B. Stokes on rural paved road 1907 near Grifton.

The sheriff said that the owner reported the theft of six sheets of tobacco, valued at $1,920, from the packhouse. Sheriff Tyson said that the tobacco was recovered.

Bond for Renshaw was set at $800, according to the sheriff, and $400 for Tripp. First appearance hearings were scheduled for today in District Court.

The incident was reported at 9:38 p.m. Wednesday night.

Charges Made In Break-In

Robert Joseph Lucas, 26 of 138 East Longmeadow Rd. was arrested by Greenville police about 3:30 p.m. on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a break-in at 600 South Elm St. on June 15.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Lucas was charged with entering the Elm Street dwelling through a bedroom window and taking several thousand dollars worth of silver, as well as other items, including a radio and television.

Cannon said Lucas was also charged yesterday with two counts of damage to personal property.

The damage charges, the chief said, stemmed from damage caused to property owned by H. Dall Laughinghouse and Van Ellis on September 8.

various programs, some which will necessitate fees to be paid by participants, others which need to be free to the public in order to maintain the basic services to the public that have been central to the department.

A resume of the adopted "Fees and Charges Policy" shows:

— I. Statement Of Need — "The Department of Recreation and Parks has always offered diversified recreational services to its citizens, recognizing governments' responsibility to provide public open space and leisure opportunities. But because of the increasing heavy demands for new and expanded services, and due to the rapid increase in operating costs and capital expenditures, and because of limited tax revenue, it has become increasingly difficult to maintain existing levels of service, much less provide new services.

Consequently, it has become necessary for the Department to develop a sound and consistent policy that will serve as a tool for evaluating and establishing fees and charges... (to) make possible an expanded recreation and parks program and is justified by the fact that such programs would not otherwise be possible.

— II. Statement of Philosophy — The underlying principle of a public recreation and park fiscal program must remain to efficiently offer the most diversified recreational services possible... fees and charges for recreation and park services should provide only one source of finance for the Department.

A system of fees and charges must supplement these other resources... not replace them... therefore, fees and charges must be viewed as a method to continue or expand the ability to provide basic services... (and) the general benefit of services made possible through fees and charges must exceed any detriment imposed by the fees, and collections must be practical and economical.

— III. Guidelines for Program Service Goals

a. Basic Services — In general, fundamental or basic recreation and park services should be free. Such fundamental services are those which tend to preserve and promote physical and mental well being, provide patron safety, instruction in basic recreation skills, ... (and) Therefore, public funds should be used for acquisition of lands, improvement of property, management, children's activities, and basic services.

A second section to the basic services paragraph outlines general guides to the types of programs that warrant fees in varied degrees dependent on the nature and cost of the programs.

Among those for which it is felt fees are appropriate because of circumstances applicable are:

— Those where the cost per user hour of the service or facility is high (i.e., the swimming pool);

— Where services use consumable materials (i.e., arts and crafts);

— The service requires special preparation or clean-up (i.e. the use of Guy Smith Stadium for a non-Recreation Dept. sponsored activity);

— Where the service requires special instruction at extra cost (such as dance and music classes, dog obedience classes, etc.).

Other sections of the policy outlines basic applicable rules for fees to be charged (as well as for insurance coverage and damage deposit amounts) in cases where:

— Use of the service or facility tends to be limited to a relatively few individuals or special interest groups of a private character... those who benefit to the exclusion of others should pay something extra for the privileges enjoyed.

— (Where) public property is used for private economic gain... the fees charged for use of... facilities shall be comparable to commercial rates.

The "Fees and Charges Policy" provides guidelines to every imaginable use of Recreation and Parks land and facilities — covering special considerations for the handicapped and senior citizens; the possibility of the department receiving a percentage of profits realized from non-department activities where a charge is made for the activity... under the concept that "where public resources are used to make a profit, the public should share in that profit." At the same time, the guideline stipulates discouragement of regular usage of public facilities for profit purposes as "inconsistent with the Department's basic philosophy" and stresses that no usage will be permitted that would in any way conflict with use of facilities for regularly scheduled public programs.

Also covered is the basic policy guide to a non-resident usage fee, and the division of responsibility for payment for services such as sports officials, league attendants, instructors for special interest areas, purchase of equipment, purchase of awards and trophies, providing transportation, and other costs relating to the entire spectrum of Recreation and Parks activities.

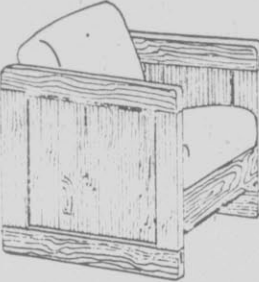

Another matter discussed by Lee was that of the Recreation and Parks Department's participation in the Mayor's Goals and Objectives Program. Lee provided the commission with a number of suggestions he has outlined to present to the city which he feels will help in making the department more productive and the operations more economical.

Cross Woodis Is Possibly 'Oldest'

By DR. H.G. JONES
For The Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Who was the oldest person ever to live in North Carolina? We may never know, but one candidate for the distinction was Cross Woodis who complained before his death about 1880 that liquor had shortened his years.

He had done pretty well, though, for according to his biographer, Woodis was 130 years old when he died.

If we base his age on the census of 1860 when he was listed as 100, he would have been only 120 at the time of his death. But what difference would 10 years make at that age?

Sometime after he was a century old, Cross Woodis gave up hard drink, but he still enjoyed chewing tobacco, smoking his pipe, and playing his fiddle. Most of all, he enjoyed telling tall tales.

We perhaps would know nothing of Cross Woodis except for a tiny sketch published in 1905 by Alfred Nixon, a former teacher, county surveyor, sheriff and school superintendent, who served as Lincoln County's Clerk of Superior Court from 1898 until his death in 1924. Nixon, who as a youngster knew Woodis well, based his information on the old man's own account.

A mulatto born free but bound to a white man named Curtis until he was 21, Cross Woodis, according to the census records, was born in Mecklenburg County long before the Revolution. He spent many years in Cabarrus County but lived in Lincoln County in his advanced years. He had a cabin on the farm of William King near Catawba Springs.

As a young man, Woodis married a free black woman who, when the Southern states began restricting the rights of free Negroes, insisted that the couple move to the free state of Ohio. Woodis told her to go ahead with her relatives and he would follow. He never did, except for a visit.

After years of separation from his first wife, he married another free black woman in North Carolina.

Apparently, Cross Woodis was primarily a farmer, but he worked at various jobs — fisherman, hunter, horse racer, well digger and water-witch. With a forked peach-tree sprout, he was almost unerring in locating water for his clients.

The censustaker of 1860 reported that Woodis was the only farmer in Lincoln County growing rice — perhaps a natural outgrowth of his ability to produce water from the ground.

Woodis was remembered as shriveled and stooped but retaining a remarkable degree of his senses, particularly his memory and wit. He claimed to have killed a British soldier while guarding a cache of guns during the Revolution, a claim that Nixon accepted as true. In later years, neighbors sought out "Uncle Cross" to hear his stories, many of which he exaggerated.

In Cabarrus County, Woodis said, he dug a well so deep that when he hit water he could hear roosters crowing in China. Always on the lookout for bee colonies, he said he once found a tree filled with honey along the Catawba River, but that when he tried to get to the honey, the tree toppled into the water, sweetening the river "five miles up, and I don't know how far down, sir."

Nixon once asked Woodis what was the biggest lie he ever told.

Indignantly, the old man replied, "By de gods, sir, Mr. Nixon, I never told a lie in my life." Then, with a slowly developing grin, he admitted that he had just told his biggest lie.

Throughout the area the ultimate characterization of a prevaricator was to be accused of being "as big a liar as Old Cross."

But, it was all in fun. The centenarian was loved by both whites and blacks, and Nixon wrote, "I never heard anything dishonorable charged to his account."

Cross Woodis died at the home of a daughter in Mecklenburg County about 1880 and was buried at a Presbyterian Church for blacks at Caldwell, a few miles from Cowan's Ford.

VETERINARIAN Howard Rand smiles at his patient's reaction during acupuncture treatment. Viewed as a form of quackery by some, Rand is using the Chinese treatment to prolong careers of valuable race and jumping horses. (UPI Photo)

Acupuncture In Animals Applied

By WALT SMITH
MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) — Viewed as a form of quackery by some, acupuncture is being used by a Georgia veterinarian to prolong the careers of valuable race and jumping horses and show dogs.

Howard Rand, a veterinarian who doesn't like to admit defeat, says the ancient Chinese medical treatment gives him another effective tool in his fight to help animals.

"You tell people about acupuncture and they're very skeptical," said Rand. "They think of voodoo — that I should wear a cape and carry a magic wand."

"There are a lot of skeptics," he continued. "I can understand that. I am still skeptical. I still shake my head and can't understand why it works. But it works. As long as I get results, that's what counts."

Rand, who combines acupuncture with traditional veterinary medicine, has treated race horses, Olympic-caliber Grand Prix horses (jumpers) and show dogs. His referrals have come from as far away as New York and he has been flown to Kentucky to treat thoroughbreds.

"I have had horses in here that were given up, couldn't race, that went back and won stakes races," said Rand. "I have one racing in England now."

"I had a dog come in paralyzed and walk out after one treatment."

While many of his patients are valuable animals, he also uses acupuncture on backyard and household pets. But he believes many people probably pass up acupuncture treatment for their animals because they mistakenly think the cost will be prohibitive.

Rand set up his practice just north of Atlanta after graduating from Auburn University in 1965. He got interested in acupuncture when a friend involved with horse racing asked him about the ancient Chinese practice that uses needles and electricity to stimulate certain points on the body.

He attended a six-month course sponsored by the International Veterinary Acupuncture Society and taught by Dr. Ed Wong, a Chinese physician who now lives in Denver, and is one of only 250 members of the society worldwide.

When acupuncture is used on an animal, it usually takes six treatments. The animal is tranquilized and each treatment lasts about 20 minutes.

Rand says there is proof that stimulation of acupuncture points causes the body to produce a neural hormone called "enkephalins."

"This is a pain-killer hormone that is naturally produced in the body," he said.

"Everyday I use acupuncture," said Rand. "Say we've got an animal with a kidney infection. I will take the antibiotic and put it in the kidney (acupuncture) point instead of just taking the antibiotic and sticking it in the neck as most people do."

"That is why I feel like I'm getting better results."

There are several reasons acupuncture has gotten a "bad name," Rand says.

"One problem with acupuncture is that, for some reason or another, people have gotten the idea it is a panacea — a cure-all," he said. "It's not a panacea. It's not a cure-all. My results are only about 85 percent. But you don't get 100 percent on penicillin either."

"I have a lot of referrals," he said. "Usually everything in the world has already been done to them and I am the last step before the grave."

Rand says another thing that has given acupuncture a bad name is that some practitioners will never admit failure, making it appear to be cureall.

Brooks Hails End Of Recession In N.C.

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks says a recent drop in unemployment claims heralds the end of recession in North Carolina.

Brooks, reflecting on the state Employment Security Commission's report that unemployment insurance claims dropped sharply at mid-August from the mid-July level, said the recession likely will "bottom out" in about a month.

David A. Garrison, assistant director of ESC's Research Division, said unemployment insurance claims totaled 69,404 the week ending Aug. 16 compared with 106,457 for the week ending July 19.

For this reason, Garrison said he expects the state's unemployment figure for August to be "considerably below" the July figure of 8.1 percent which topped the 7.9 percent figure for the nation as a whole. He said the state's August unemployment figure should drop below the national average again.

Garrison's figures showed that unemployment in textiles, the nation's largest industry, had dropped from 10.7 percent in July to 6.3 in August and that joblessness in the furniture industry had declined from 28.2 percent to 9.4 percent.

"That's still high, but it's lot better than 28 percent," said Garrison, noting that "the furniture industry has been in the doldrums because of the drop in home construction."

Brooks pointed out that the 8.1 percent July unemployment figure was actually 10.1 percent because the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program is providing temporary employment to about 2 percent of the work force.

So "our economic health figure is really worse" than in previous recessions when there was no CETA program. He said about 42 percent of black teenagers are jobless.

Brooks said earlier he had expected the recession, which saw one of every five workers unemployed in Caldwell and Person counties and one of every 10 out of work in 19 other counties, to hit bottom about five months sooner than now appears likely.

He predicted a big surge in new home construction late this winter and an acute shortage of skilled construction workers will bring another sharp increase in their wages causing "a continuing increase in housing costs."

Brooks also said he expects a retooling of the textile industry which has been underway for 20 years to continue at full tilt.

"Unlike the steel and auto industries, textiles is one industry that's ahead in retooling and is in a competitive position worldwide," he said.

However, the labor commissioner said North Carolina is behind other states in the number of workers employed in service industries.

"That's one reason we are seeing this burgeoning construction of shopping centers," he said. "We haven't yet caught up. I expect to see this part of our economy grow faster."

He said that employment among skilled workers has stood at 100 percent for years, that "we've got nearly 100 percent employment in semi-skilled trades," and that most of the unemployment has been among the state's unskilled workers.

He said the state's community college system has done a fine job in training workers for semi-skilled jobs should now embark on a program of training people for skilled occupations.

"If we can do that — training highly skilled people — we've got a tremendous opportunity," he said.

Dr. Gottula New Center Director

Dr. Roderic D. Gottula, assistant professor of family practice, has been named acting director of the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

He replaces Dr. A.H. Woodworth, who has become director of the Center's Geriatric Program.

As director, Dr. Gottula will manage activities of the center, the primary ambulatory training facility for ECU's 31 family practice residents. These physicians and 37 support personnel provide care for 13,000 patients in the Pitt County area.

Gottula received his undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of Nebraska and complete postgraduate training at Iowa Lutheran Hospital, Des Moines. He held faculty appointments at the University of Iowa College of Medicine and at Iowa Lutheran Hospital before joining the ECU family practice department in February, 1980.

Appreciate The Hand-Me-Downs

BERRYVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Carroll County Sheriff's Department has received 100 new police shirts, compliments of the officers in Lynchburg, Va.

The shirts aren't exactly new, but at $24 for the bunch, the price is right.

They were worn by Lynchburg's officers, who have since bought new shirts.

"We sure did appreciate it," Carroll County Sheriff Bill Lovett said Wednesday. "Our shirts are just completely worn out, and we're running on a tight budget. Something like this shows this is a small, small world after all."

Lovett said the gift has saved the county at least $1,200. He said he was offered the shirts in a telephone call from Lynchburg Police Capt. Sam Trent. Trent somehow had seen a Eureka Springs, Ark., newspaper item about the sheriff's department needing shirts.

Somebody Stole Their Horns

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Police Youth Club Drum and Bugle Corps is a talented group, but it's going to be hard for the youngsters to toot their own horns for a while.

Someone stole 26 of them. The theft of $7,000-$8,000 worth of musical instruments from the club's headquarters occurred after the corps had marched in the "I Am An American Day" parade here Sunday, authorities said.

"How could anyone steal our instruments?" said Henry Beaudet, a ex-police officer who helped organize the award-winning corps of 11- to 9-year olds from poor neighborhoods.

Fly Fishing A 'Way Of Life'

By STEVEN A. CAPPS
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Fly fishing is more than sport to Dave Inks. It's a way of life, a philosophy. It's his work and his love — and he even gets paid for it.

Maybe he realized it was more than just a hobby one of those crisp Oregon mornings when he and his father got up early and strolled down to the Crooked River, letting their hand-tied flies drift over the deep, emerald pools.

Or maybe it was when, as a boy of 10, he lived on a small ranch in Montana and had only to walk into his front yard to catch native trout from a spring-fed pond.

But if he wasn't sure about it then, he certainly was four years ago on the banks of Nelson Spring Creek near Livingston, Mont., when, "I had a little conversation with a trout."

"I never caught that fish," he said. "I was standing on the edge of that creek and I saw him feeding. I could see the insects floating by — once and a while he'd just grab one. I had plenty of time. I selected the right fly and let it drift past his head."

"This went on for about a half-hour, but he just wouldn't take my fly. I started talking to him, whispering."

"Finally, the fish swam up within two feet of my toes, scooped up a mouthful of mud and spit it at me. It was a fish that showed me I didn't have it all together."

"To catch a fish like that, you've got to be smarter than he is. And he's got a PhD."

Inks, 44, is now a San Jose, Calif., resident and working as a consultant to Orvis-San Francisco, which manufactures custom angling and sporting equipment.

As a consultant, his work includes research and development, mostly in the production of fishing flies. But during his life, he has invented many of the tools used to tie flies, including the flair tube bobbin, hackle plyers, scissor plyers and hair stackers.

He also teaches fly fishing for both beginners and experts. "The biggest mistake beginners make is in the equipment they buy," he said. "They come to the school and say, 'I've got my own equipment.' You look at it and say, 'Gee, none of this is right.'"

"It's like playing a round of golf with just one club. You can do it but you can't win."

A beginner must expect to spend about $200 as an initial investment, he said, and more later as he becomes more adept.

"It's not a cheap sport," he said. "I usually tell a customer to buy the best equipment he can afford."

Inks also is coordinator of a bird breeding program for Orvis. Special birds, mostly roosters, are raised not for their meat but for their feathers.

"Feathers for flies must be mature, and chicken is eaten today before the feathers are mature," he said.

FLY FISHING is more than a sport to Dave Inks, of San Jose, Calif. It's his work and his love — and he gets paid for it. (UPI Photo)

Thorpe's Daughter Still Seeks Medals

By PATRICIA WALSH
PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — When Jim Thorpe paid a visit to the Haskell Indian School at Lawrence, Kan., a half-century ago, a girl named Charlotte had to fight off other students to get close to the famous athlete.

But then, she had more right to get close to the tall, strong figure, who despite being stripped of his medals from the 1912 Olympics remained a hero to Indian children.

He was her father. "I had to fight for my right as a daughter to get close to him," Ms. Thorpe recalled.

Now she is fighting to have the Olympic honors restored for her father, who died of a heart attack at age 64 in 1953.

Thorpe, a Sac and Fox Indian from Oklahoma, was called the world's greatest athlete by King Gustav V of Sweden at the time of the Olympics. Thorpe won both the Pentathlon and Decathlon.

Six months later, charges were filed against Thorpe because he played semipro baseball during the summers of 1909 and 1910. And in 1913, the International Olympic Committee ruled he had not maintained amateur status.

They took away his medals and removed his name from Olympic records.

Ms. Thorpe claims existing rules required that any charges were supposed to have been filed within 30 days of the games. Those against Thorpe weren't filed until the next year.

Thorpe was a student at the Carlisle, Pa., Indian School where the policy was to farm out athletes during the summer. He earned $60 a month plus room and board during those two summers. Thorpe's claim he was unaware of amateur rules had no effect.

He didn't struggle to regain his honors, though Ms. Thorpe said. "He was very disappointed. He kept face with the world, but inside he really hurt."

He married Iva Miller in 1913 and less than 3 years later, his first son, James Jr., died during a flu epidemic.

He helped found the football association that later became the National Football League, and played on several professional teams including the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants.

But after 1926, it was a mixed bag.

"He dug ditches in California during the depression. And he wasn't ashamed to say so," Ms. Thorpe said.

There were lectures and football exhibitions. There were bit parts in movies and two additional marriages. There was alcohol.

"Because of the traumatic suffering, he hit the bottle a little bit — with his Indian friends," Ms. Thorpe said. "He'd be gone for two or three weeks at a time, then come back and be fine for awhile."

In 1975, 22 years after her father died, the Amateur Athletic Union restored Thorpe's amateur status and the USOC asked that Thorpe be reinstated. But after reviewing the case during the 1976 Montreal Olympics, the IOC refused.

"The IOC says the case is closed. Charlotte Thorpe says the case is not closed. Not until the day I die," she said.

Last September, Congress passed a resolution calling for reinstatement of Thorpe to the Olympic records and that duplicate sets of medals be awarded the seven surviving heirs. But Olympic officials have not acted on the recommendation.

Ms. Thorpe said after she went on disability status from Motorola in Phoenix in December, 1978, she began devoting her fulltime to having her father's honors restored.

Filtering through papers and scrap books, Ms. Thorpe showed a visitor a letter from Monique Berlioux, executive director of the International Olympic Committee. The letter said two Olympic trophies awarded to Thorpe have been in crates in the Olympic Museum in Lausanne, Switzerland, since Thorpe returned them.

The director said "the trophies will, in due course, be displayed."

Ms. Thorpe. Stuart Eizenstat, presidential aide, wrote, "in our conversations with the United States Olympic Committee, we would raise the issue of honoring the memory of Jim Thorpe... for the 1984 Olympiad in Los Angeles."

"I'm determined to have this injustice corrected and I won't rest until I do," she said. "I have to do for my father what he could not do while he was alive."

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose in moderate trading today extending gains of earlier this week.

There was little in today's economic news to provide a strong direction to the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 2.73 points to 941.21 as of midday. Big Board volume came to 19.72 million shares by noon, down from active trading of 23.43 million in the previous session.

There were more than twice as many gaining issues as losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Sony Corp. jumped 1 to 14 1/2 in its second consecutive day of very active trading on the NYSE. A spokesman for the company said there were no new corporate developments to account for the activity.

Coca Cola, also actively traded, dropped 1 1/2 to 32 1/2. Officials earlier this week said earnings may be below those forecast for the year because of disappointing foreign sales.

Retail and auto stocks were generally higher. Sears Roebuck gained 1/2 to 17 1/2 as the second most active NYSE issue. K mart rose 1/2 to 22 1/2. Federated Department Stores added 1/2 to 34 1/2. J.C. Penney was unchanged at 25 1/2.

Among auto stocks, Chrysler gained 1/2 to 10 1/2 in active trading. In less active trading, Ford rose 1/2 to 30 1/2; General Motors added 1/2 to 54 1/2; American Motors rose 1/2 to 6 1/2.

The NYSE composite index gained 0.26 to 72.38. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 2.51 to 338.64.

Farmville, Greene C. Rebuild Net Programs

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor
Tennis in the Eastern Carolina Conference, at least for girls, has been tinuous at Farmville Central and Greene Central the past two years. Last season, Farmville had only six players, and this year, Greene Central is operating with a similar number.

However, coaches at both schools are optimistic that the sport will survive and improve at the schools.

Farmville Central

Farmville's Don Dempsey had two more girls out this season than last year, a total of eight. The Lady Jaguars lost two seniors off last year's team, and they were the number one and two players.

For this reason, he is not all that optimistic about the upcoming season. "We have four girls who played last year back, but they didn't win that much. I'm hopeful that they will be improved this year."

As far as the Eastern Carolina Conference race is concerned, Dempsey feels that the race will lie with Charles B. Aycock. "We couldn't beat them last year. I don't know what they have back this year, but they'll probably be the team to beat. Southern Nash and Greene Central both had problems even fielding a team this year, so we should be able to handle them since we do have some experience. But whether we can beat Aycock remains to be seen. That will probably decide the conference title."

Only one senior returns to this year's team, current number one seed Pat Cutler. Joining her on the ladder are Karen Liverman, a junior, at number two.

All of the remaining players are sophomores or freshmen. The two veteran sophomores are Karen Dunn and Melissa Owens, who will probably be playing three and four, although Dempsey isn't sure who will be where.

Then, there are two newcomers who are sophomores along with two freshmen. The sophomores are Julia Smith and Angela Cash, while the freshmen are Angela Liverman and Michelle Allen. "We haven't set up our doubles teams yet," Dempsey added, "and I'm still not sure who will be five and six in the singles."

The coach is optimistic about the future. "If we can keep these people interested and out

D.H. Conley

While most ECC teams are opening their conference schedule this week, D.H. Conley, coming off an open date last week, plays host to nonleague foe Washington.

Unless they tie, as they did last year, 6-6, one of the clubs will leave with its first win of the season. Conley is 0-1, having lost for the first time ever to West Craven, 14-9, two weeks ago. Washington is 0-2 after lopsided losses to West Carteret and Greenville Rose.

However, D.H. Conley isn't taking the Pam Pack for granted. "We never have a game in the bag," Viking coach Jimbo Walker said.

"Washington played two good ball teams. And they had to scrimmage Bertie earlier, so I look for them to have improved. They should be a better team now after going through that."

As for the Vikings, the off-date provided Walker with a chance to return to the basics.

"After the loss it was hard to get the kids motivated," he said. "But we worked hard, on the kicking game, our execution and blocking and tackling. We tried to work on it all, but we worked on blocking and tackling every day."

North Pitt

Last year after beating Enfield 27-0 in the opening game of the season, North Pitt promptly lost to North Lenoir, 25-9. Panther coach Pat Smith hopes the same thing doesn't happen this year.

"They seem to always play well against us," said Smith, whose Panthers opened the season last Friday with a 34-0 win over Enfield. "They've beaten us the last two or three years."

Greene Central

At Snow Hill, Brenda Dail nearly saw tennis disappear this year. At one time, Greene Central considered dropping the sport for lack of interest. Finally, however, six girls came out for the team, including just one out from the past team.

"I've been working since early August to get people interested, but no one else has come out," Dail said. "I really don't think we'll get any late comers."

There were several other girls beside the lone returnee, sophomore Sherri Odom, who were eligible to return, but they chose either not to play, or to become involved in something else.

"This will be a tough year for us," the coach said. "But the girls seem willing to learn and hopefully, if they stick with it, we can have some success in the future. We also have a youth tennis program underway in the county, and that should provide future interest too. I don't think the sport will die here."

Joining Odom, who was the number six seed last year, are juniors Jane Carraway and Gina Carraway, and sophomores Denise Taylor, Sharon Brann and Sharon Sullivan.

"We're just really getting started now, and we haven't given any attention to where people are going to be seeded. We'll decide that before our first match."

That comes up next Wednesday against Farmville Central.

"This is going to be a bigger test than Enfield. They've got an exceptional team with some outstanding athletes."

The Panthers held Enfield to one yard passing and 23 yards rushing. Smith doubts the Panthers can do the same thing to the Hawks.

"We thought we had a good defensive game considering the capability of the opposition," Smith said. "But we know North Lenoir is a lot better than Enfield."

"They've got a great big running back named Michael White (6-2, 180) who gained 180 yards in only nine carries last week and also recovered a fumble and returned it for 73 yards," Smith said. "They've got Kevin Battle, who's a good athlete, at quarterback, and they've also got two gigantic tackles, 225 and 195 pounds, who are both seniors."

"I'd say they're the dark horse in the conference. They have enough individual talent to compete with anyone."

Smith, however, feels the Panthers are ready, perhaps too ready.

"I think the team realizes that this is a big game," Smith said. "I think, though, some of the guys may be too worried about the game, they're a little too uptight. But if we can play them tough, or handle them, we can be competitive with anyone."

FC's Ronnie Locust

Ayden-G'nton

Big plays continue to plague the Chargers. Of the five touchdowns scored on Ayden-G'nton so far this year one was a 75-yard run, and three others were passes of 51-, 35- and 18-yards. All big plays.

The Chargers, on the other hand, have scored only eight points, none of which have come on big plays. "We need to make a big play," Ayden-G'nton coach Dixon Sauls said. "We need to hit a long pass, break a long run. We need to score. Once we do that I think we'll be all right."

The situation hasn't been helped by the Chargers' inability to hang on to the football. In two games, A-G receivers have dropped nine passes.

"That's hurting us for sure," Sauls said. "We work on pass receiving every day, it's just a question of it taking time. A lot of it, I think, is a lack of mental concentration. "We've got a ways to go yet, we have to refine this offense and continue to work at it."

NP's Ronnie House

We're still not positive enough on the offensive line, which we feel is the most difficult position, assignment-wise. How they progress is one of the keys to our offense," Sauls said.

While the offense continues to sputter, the Charger defense appears to be improving.

After giving up 261 yards on the ground to Williamston two weeks ago, the Chargers held the Redskins to just 35 yards rushing in their 14-2 loss. This week A-G's defense may have its toughest test yet as the Chargers travel to Southwest Edgecombe, a team that ran up over 450 yards rushing last week in beating North Edgecombe, 65-0.

"This is a new season," said Sauls of his team's league opener. "We're 0-2 but we're still undefeated in the conference. We still think we can

Guilford Tops Pirate Kickers

East Carolina University's soccer team lost its third straight match yesterday, bowing to Guilford College, 2-1.

East Carolina's lone goal came on an unassisted play by Scott Mosher with 2:05 left in the first period, tying the score at 1-1.

The Quakers had scored earlier on an unassisted goal by David Hood with 29:25 left in the half. The other goal came in the second half at the 5:30 mark when Paul Gursam scored with an assist from Hood.

East Carolina goalie Brian Winchell had seven saves, while Quaker goalkeeper John Opaleski recorded only two.

"Two defensive letdowns caused the goals," Coach Brad Smith said afterwards. "Our offense looked horrible. If we ever can get everyone playing together, we can be a good team."

The loss left the Pirates with a 0-3 record, while Guilford is now 1-0.

East Carolina returns to action Saturday in Chapel Hill against North Carolina at 1 p.m. in the first round of the Mayor's Cup Tournament. N.C. State and Duke meet at 3 p.m. The finals and consolations will be held Sunday.

Women In First Win

Greenville's Eastern Carolina Tennis Association women's team opened the season yesterday with an 8-1 victory over Rocky Mount.

The lone defeat came in the number three singles event.

Summary:
Frances Cain (G) defeated Bonnie Bennett, 6-0, 6-2.
Nancy Powell (G) defeated Mary Shannon, 6-1, 6-3.
Anne Sayetta (G) defeated Willie Clark, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.
Myra Hill (G) defeated Sally Roof, 6-2, 6-1.
Mary Lee (G) defeated Peggy Holden, 6-1, 6-4.
Sydney Womack (G) defeated Emily Henderson, 6-2, 6-1.
Cain-Powell (G) defeated Bennett-Shannon, 6-4, 6-0.
Sayetta-Cathy Mumford (G) defeated Clark-Roof, 6-3, 6-6, 1.
Henderson-Holden (RM) defeated Lee-Womack, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Going back to the game, he noted that the Pirates were patient with their offense, not trying to do things too quickly. "That shows how important execution is. I really thought that we'd have to throw more than we did. I was expecting to throw 15 or 20 times, and we only threw eight times (completing seven). Both of our quarterbacks did an outstanding job. In fact the unsung hero of the game was Stewart. We planned to use him, but not as much as we had to after Nelson went down with heat exhaustion in the second quarter. He (Stewart) played like a veteran, and his play on Anthony Collins' second touchdown was just like a veteran. It was beautifully executed." Stewart made the pitch to Collins for the score as he was going down.

"I think Collins ran well for not having practice as much as he did. He's got to work on his blocking some though."

Emory noted that Duke had called after the game and asked if they were keying off the pass, since the Pirates got such a good rush on the Blue Devils. "I told them that the biggest tipoff was when they hired (Steve) Spurrier (offensive coordinator) and put

Gullickson Just Misses Strikeout Mark

John Q. Fan came down from his hill yesterday and the first person he sought out was yours truly.

An acquaintance of mine, John Q. Fan comes out of hiding each year around the early part of August, just in time to peruse the college football previews and stock up on beer and chips.

This season, however, he overslept. So, in an attempt to catch up on what he missed, John Q. turned to me. I told him what I had to offer wasn't the gospel, but he insisted on talking to me.

First off, he wanted to know who won this past weekend. I told him. When we got to the East Carolina-Duke score he stopped me.

"WHAT?" he bellowed. "I thought Red meant 'GO'. I thought it was a whole new ballgame at Duke. Wasn't ECU suppose to be in a rebuilding year? Didn't Pat Dye resign?"

"Yep," I told him. "But it seems the Pirates made a few people look foolish, including the Duke football team."

"I thought they had quit playing each other," he said.

"No — not yet. There are mild indications, however, that Duke, and the ACC in general, is becoming disenchanting with playing ECU. They don't have an Ee-Cee-Tee-Cee to kick around anymore."

"Well, the ACC has only the NCAA to blame for that," John Q. said.

"How's that?"

"If it hadn't been for the NCAA imposing the 30-95 scholarship rule on colleges and universities none of this would have happened. The ACC and other schools would have been able to stockpile athletes, leaving only slim pickins for the Pirates."

"But if it hadn't been for that rule the ACC would have never reached the point it is at now."

He seemed to ignore that point, and, instead, wanted to know more about future ACC-ECU clashes. "There won't be many," I said.

"Why do you say that?" At this point I wasn't sure if he was being truly sincere.

"Everyone who cares knows how the ACC teams have been stumbling over each other to find ways of excusing themselves from playing the Pirates. It's like excusing yourself from your date during a football game to go to the restroom and not coming back, the initial attraction having worn off. It doesn't help that she shows she knows more about the game than you."

Of course with athletic departments trying to justify their dropping of ECU, John Q. might have become confused. So I set out to explain the situation.

"Well, first off, Wake Forest has decided not to honor its agreement with the Pirates..."

"Hum, and from a Baptist school. But you know the old saying, 'Do unto others before they do unto you.'"

"...And then there's UNC. Carolina's contract with ECU ends next year and the Tar Heels show no signs of wishing to extend it. The Heels want to quit playing any team within North Carolina except ACC foes. They say too many teams in the state want to play them and they just can't satisfy them all. Ergo, if you can't play them all don't play any of them, even the best."

"That doesn't make sense," John Q. said.

"Where's the old college try. They don't win one for the Gipper anymore, now its win one for the ole' budget."

And then we came to Duke.

"It seems it takes coaches a year or two for the ACC indoctrination process to take hold," I told John Q. "This is Red (Means Go, Going...) Wilson's second year at Duke and he's finally catching on to how things are done in the ACC."

"Why do you say that?"

"Well, decide for yourself. Here's what he said after losing to ECU: 'We have nothing to gain by playing East Carolina. Nothing. East Carolina has everything to gain, nothing to lose. East Carolina would rather beat an ACC team than drink chocolate milk and eat ice cream. I said it once last year, I'd rather play Notre Dame than East Carolina.'"

"Yeah, but I doubt Notre Dame wants to play them. What does Dan Devine have to gain by playing Duke. But, heck, Wilson's probably right. They don't have anything to win. ECU's always pointing toward the ACC teams."

"Not according to Ed Emory. He said no one even mentioned the ACC during practice."

"I don't believe that."

"Neither do I," I said. "But after all, what does it matter if the 'Big Four' has decided to shove ECU off their schedule and, more often than not, erase a loss."

"You forgot N.C. State."

"You're right. I don't understand it. The Wolfpack seems bent on continuing their series with the Pirates. None of the Wolfpack coaches seem to belong to that less-than-exclusive 'I-don't-want-to-play-ECU' club. N.C. State must not have received the message."

"Yeah, but from what I remember it's been a good rivalry, for both teams," John Q. said.

"They're exciting, fun games, for both the athletes and the fans."

"Not for the Duke fans. And, obviously, not for Duke's athletic department. After all, Duke needs at least one breather a year, especially since they play the patsy for so many other teams."

"Good point."

"And," John Q. Fan added, "if you were Duke wouldn't you be worried about becoming ECU's patsy?"

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

Bill Gullickson may turn out to be a master of understatement as well as strikeouts.

"I'm actually more excited about getting the win than I am the strikeouts. It was an important victory for us," said the rookie right-hander, who came within one of the major league strikeout mark for nine innings Wednesday night when he fanned 18 Chicago Cubs to pace the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 victory.

"I had good control of the fastball, both inside and out, and I was staying ahead of the hitters," said Gullickson, who has struck out 68 batters in his last 65 innings.

Expos catcher Gary Carter said the performance put Gullickson "up there with the Koufaxes and the Drysdals, and any other strikeout pitcher...He's just a rookie. Look how many years he has ahead of him." Montreal Manager Dick Williams said it was "the best pitching performance I've seen this year."

The key to success was "good control of the fastball, both inside and out. And I was staying ahead of the hitters," said Gullickson. The victory maintained the Expos' half-game lead over Philadelphia Phillies in first place in the East Division. Bill Buckner was the only Cub able to solve Gullickson. He collected three of Chicago's four hits and drove in both runs.

Reds 3, Braves 0

Tom Seaver wondered if his injured arm would mean a maimed career. But Seaver, who leads active National League pitchers with 53 career shutouts, was back on track with his first shutout of the season. "It was the first time in 14 years I ever had a sore arm. I didn't know what it would do to my career," said Seaver, 8-7, who suffered the arm miseries early in the season. "My overall pitching philosophy is to try to go at least seven innings and hold the other team to three runs or less. But, sure, I do go for the shutout," said Seaver.

Astros 6, Dodgers 5

Houston left fielder Jose Cruz clubbed a solo home run over the right field fence in the 12th inning to send the Astros into a first-place tie with the Dodgers in the National League West. The victory gave the Astros a sweep of the two-game series. "I'd like to go to L.A. (for the season-ending three-game series) with a four-game lead," Cruz said after he hit his 10th homer of the season.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 6

Manager Chuck Tanner was brimming with optimism after the Pittsburgh Pirates snapped their losing streak at five games. "We're going to win it, because we're playing each other in the division," Tanner said of the chase in the National League East.

Padres 4, Giants 2

Dave Winfield drove in three runs with a solo homer and a two-run single to power the Padres over the Giants. Negotiations have been strained all year between Winfield's agent, San Diego owner Ray Kroc and President Ballard Smith as Winfield completes his option year and heads for the free agent market.

Phillies 5, Mets 0

Marty Bystrom, making his first major league start, scattered five hits and fired a shutout as Philadelphia defeated the Mets to stay within one-half game of the first-place Montreal in the NL East.

have a winning football team," he added. "We just need to be more positive in our approach."

Farmville Central

The last time the Jaguars lost a conference game was in mid-1975, to Ayden-Grifton, 7-0.

Since then, Farmville has won 31 straight ECC games. Friday night, the Jaguars put that unbeaten streak on the line against Charles B. Aycock, one of three teams picked during the preseason to unseat Farmville as the league champion.

"It's never very nice to start off your conference schedule after having played only one game," Farmville coach Gene Brewer said. "And coming off a game like we had at Clinton makes it that much worse."

Last week the Jaguars opened the season with a 41-7 loss to the Dark Horses. The Jaguars trailed by only a touchdown at the half, 14-7, but mistakes in the second half gave the game to Clinton.

"We had not played that bad in the first half but in the second half, especially the third quarter, we didn't make a mistake that they didn't take advantage of," said Brewer, whose team fumbled seven times, losing four of them, and had one pass intercepted.

"The big thing was that our inexperience caught up with us," he continued. "Primarily, a lot of people hadn't been in a game situation before and that hurt us. We just made mistakes you don't make, particularly against a good team."

"The biggest disappointment, though, was our tackling. They out-executed us a couple times but our inability to make an open field tackle was really disappointing."

Still, Brewer remains optimistic about his team's chances this year. "Overall, considering the inexperience we have, we're not far behind where we'd ideally expect to be at this point. They're so young that we were bound to make mistakes," he said.

"But we didn't make any mistakes Friday night that we can't correct."

The Jaguars get their chance tomorrow against the Falcons.

Kelly's Grand Slam Powers Oriole Win

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer
Baltimore's Pat Kelly firmly believes there's no substitute for experience. The veteran pinch hit a grand slam homer and walked with the bases loaded Wednesday night to help the Orioles beat the Detroit Tigers 8-4.

The triumph also kept his team within three games of the New York Yankees in the American League East. The Yankees came from behind to beat Toronto 7-6 and, in other AL action, California beat Kansas City 8-3; Oakland stopped Texas 3-1; Cleveland dumped Boston 7-4; Milwaukee socked Minnesota 3-1, and Chicago slipped past Seattle 4-3.

"I'm no power hitter, but I'm no rookie any more, and I think my experience has been a big help for me," said Kelly, an 11-year veteran who led all AL pinch hitters a year ago with 12 runs batted in. "You've got to make contact. If you don't make contact, you're in trouble."

Kelly's grand slam was the fourth of his career and his third since coming to the Orioles in 1977.

"It's 25 guys that work together," Kelly said. "It's not just the nine guys that start."

I'd like to start, but we've got to be big. I'm very happy with myself and I've accepted my role with this club." Terry Crowley added a three-run homer for the Orioles, who handed Detroit its sixth straight loss.

The Yankees got the benefit of some exceptional relief pitching from Ron Davis and Rich "Goose" Gossage. The pair shut the Blue Jays down on two hits over the final 6-13 innings and, coupled with a five-run rally in the seventh, the Yankees managed to overcome a 6-2 deficit.

Davis, 6-3, retired 12 of the 13 batters he faced, while Gossage retired the first six batters he went after, making it 28 hitters in a row he'd sent back to the dugout over a seven-game stretch. The string was snapped when he issued a two-out walk to Bob Bailor in the ninth.

"I didn't have my good fastball tonight," said Gossage. "But I have enough experience to make a pitch here and there. Even when I don't pop one, I know I have a good fastball. Sometimes when it isn't as fast it has more movement and sinks down and away and is just as effective."

After giving up the walk and a single to Willie Upshaw with two out in the ninth, Gossage ended the game and picked up his 26th save by striking out

Roy Howell. "I love this situation, knowing that this could be the game," he said. "I reached back on my fastball for Howell, but I figured this is it."

The Yankees sent 11 batters to the plate in the seventh, taking the lead on a single by Aurelio Rodriguez.

Angels 8, Royals 3

California scored three runs in the seventh and four in the eighth to hand the slumping Royals their seventh loss in nine games. The seventh-inning rally started with a routine fly to center field that Amos Otis, the AL's top percentage outfielder the last two seasons, allowed to bounce out of his glove for an error. Bobby Grich's two-run single was the key blow in the eighth.

The Royals still saw their magic number in the AL West cut to six over Texas and Oakland, who were tied for second after the A's victory over the Rangers Wednesday.

George Brett, still chasing the elusive .400 mark, sat out his fourth straight game with a sore right hand, which was to be re-examined today.

A's 3, Rangers 1

Tony Armas drove in all three Oakland runs with a homer, his 31st, and a two-run single, and Mike Norris, 19-8, pitched a five-hitter and turned in his 20th complete game of the season. Norris struck out five and walked four in lowering his earned run average to 2.27.

Indians 7, Red Sox 4

Rick Waits scattered nine hits and Bo Diaz and Dave Rosello each drove in a pair of runs to pace the Indians. Waits, 11-13, struck out eight and walked five as he threw his seventh complete game of the season. The victory boosted the Indians past the Tigers into fifth place in the AL East.

Brewers 3, Twins 1

Ben Oglivie whacked his 34th homer of the season, a two-run shot, and also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly to provide all the Milwaukee scoring. The victory was the first for interim Manager Buck Rogers, who took over Sunday for George Bamberger, who retired. It was also a big night for Cecil Cooper, who rapped out a double and two singles, to raise his season average of .362.

White Sox 4, Mariners 3

Marv Foley drove in Harold Baines with the winning run with an eighth-inning sacrifice fly that completed a Chicago comeback. The White Sox trailed 3-1, but Baines cracked a two-run double to tie the game and Foley followed with his long fly ball to give Lamarr Hoyt, 8-2, the victory. Ed Farmer pitched a scoreless ninth and picked up his 25th save.

Tennessee Picked To Upset Southern Cal

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It's a good thing our football coaches don't become generals. We'd never win a battle, much less a war.

Take Johnny Majors of Tennessee, who built that No. 1 powerhouse at Pittsburgh four years ago. Put three stars on his epaulets and give him charge of storming an enemy bastion and his exhortation to his troops would go like this:

"Listen, fellows, we haven't got a chance. When you pour out of the trenches you're going to run into more cannonfire than you've ever seen in your life. Ninety percent of you won't make it."

On the game in Knoxville Saturday night with high-ranked Southern Cal, Johnny — in typical head coach fashion — is drowning in his own tears. "We're just average physically," he laments. "Three of our four linebackers are hurt. We've lost two tight ends and a couple of front line tackles and we're meeting a team that for years consistently has had the best material in the country. We'll be lucky to survive."

Week's best bet: Underdog Tennessee to upset awesome Southern Cal.

Tennessee 18, Southern Cal 15: The Trojans don't have Charlie White and Paul McDonald. This is the fourth year of Majors' rebuilding program with the once mighty Vols. Don't sell him short.

Ohio St. 40, Syracuse 14: Ask Coach Earle Bruce of the Buckeyes why he's always smiling. "I've got Art Schlichter two more years," he says.

Pittsburgh 43, Boston College 7: Chuck Tanner's faltering Pirates could use a little of Pitt's muscle power.

Nebraska 47, Utah 10: Quarterback Jeff Quinn has the softest job in college football — hand off to his runners and watch 'em scoot.

Houston 35, Arizona St. 7: It's a long climb back for the boys from the troubled campus at Tempe.

Florida St. 30, Louisville 14: Euphoria is the name for the Seminoles, riding the momentum of their 11-0 1979 season.

Georgia 14, Texas A&M 10: The team that opened with a victory over Tennessee should survive this Texas invasion.

Stanford 27, Tulane 20: Rookie Coach Paul

Wiggin gives the Cardinals a pro look but Southerners play well above the Mason-Dixon line.

Auburn 26, Texas Christian 18: The Plainsmen plug the holes in their sieve defense.

North Carolina 25, Texas Tech 14: Famous Amos, they call him in Tar Heel Country. Last name: Lawrence. Goal: 5,000 yards.

Army 18, Holy Cross 10: Imagine an Army team without a quarterback. What kind of lieutenants are we turning out at West Point?

Clemson 27, Rice 13: Clemson has a place kicker named Obed Iriri from Nigeria. The ball slithers through the posts on oil.

California 26, Florida 14: One of the day's best games. An edge to Cal's 6-foot-5, 220-pound quarterback, Rich Campbell.

UCLA 30, Colorado 17: Coach Terry Donahue's freshman class of '77 has reached the senior prom. Let's see if they can dance.

Rams, Bucs Clash In NFC Wars

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams — hoping their considerable problems of the young season are behind them — meet the Tampa Bay Buccaneers tonight in a nationally televised rematch of last season's National Football Conference title game.

The Rams won the conference crown last January in a tough defensive battle that saw the Bucs blanked 9-0 and sent Los Angeles to the Super Bowl.

Los Angeles has been in a revolving door situation with injured and unhappy players since training camp began. On Monday, quarterback Vince Ferragamo became the seventh dissident to leave the team.

He came back Tuesday after a one-day boycott over wages, and by then all veterans were back and accounted for. Coach Ray Malavasi saw the toll it took in last week's season opener, a 41-20 loss to Detroit.

"It did hurt us," he said, referring to late holdouts by Jack Youngblood, a defensive end, linebacker Jim Youngblood and defensive tackle Larry Brooks.

"I didn't feel we could waste the time and let them go without playing another game. I felt the sooner we got our veteran players in the ball game the better off we would be for the whole season. They had to get in there and start playing."

But when they came back, the Rams had to make room for them. Halfback Elvis Peacock said that hurt.

"It affected us by the guys coming in the week before the game. We had to cut some people who were good to make room for those guys. Those things hurt us. If we get those things behind us, then we'll be all right," Peacock said.

Besides the dissatisfaction, the morale situation and the cuts, there's also the problem of the top veterans getting back their timing.

Malavasi is keeping his fingers crossed that his veterans will fall in quickly. "I hope they make a bigger contribution against the Bucs than they made last week. We had just gotten them back, and it's very hard to get their timing."

"We have only two full days of practice this week. How much better they'll be is hard to say. You don't just come in and do it overnight."

He's not concerned that Ferragamo's brief walkout will fuel the situation. "I really don't think he intended to stay out," the coach said. "I think he just wanted to make a point for that one day. He's not that type of guy. He knows this is his opportunity to show what he can do."

Ferragamo, filling in for injured starter Pat Haden, guided the Rams to the victory over the Buccaneers in the NFC playoff game last year and led Los Angeles to the Super Bowl, where they lost to Pittsburgh.

Haden took his place in the starting lineup against the Lions last week but went out with a broken finger. Ferragamo finished the game.

It will be Ferragamo leading the Rams against the Bucs, led by third-year quarterback Doug Williams.

Tonight's game is the fourth meeting of the two clubs and the first time Tampa Bay will play a nationally televised night game. The Bucs, under Williams, beat the Rams 21-6 early last season.

In 1978, Williams' rookie year, he was sidelined during the Rams' clash with a roken jaw.

Despite the shellacking by Detroit, Bucs Coach John McKay is certain the Rams will be ready as Tampa Bay takes on its second opponent of the season following Sunday's 17-12 win over Cincinnati.

"It's living proof you can't come in on Saturday and play on Sunday," says McKay. "But LA will be a 100 percent improved team now that they've got all their players back. Detroit ran well on them, and nobody, as a rule, runs well on the Rams."

Resentment Is Lingering On

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

National League umpires Fred Brocklander and Harry Wendelstedt obviously know the difference between a stolen base and a balk, but their reluctance to talk about it could underscore a current of resentment that carries over from last year's umpire strike.

The confusion occurred in the third inning of the St. Louis Cardinals' 6-4 victory over Chicago Tuesday night when Lenny Randle of the Cubs apparently stole home. Randle was on third with a 2-2 count on the batter when he took off for home. Cards pitcher Silvio Martinez stepped off the mound and fired to catcher Steve Swisher.

There was a cloud of dust and Brocklander, the home plate umpire, called Randle safe.

Or did he? Wendelstedt, umpiring at third, detected a balk, entitling Randle to advance and score the run without stealing. It negated the apparent steal of home.

However, nobody told Randle — or the crowd of almost 8,000 — of Wendelstedt's decision. For that matter, it wasn't until 30 minutes after the play that the pressbox was informed of the balk ruling. Randle found out 30 minutes after the game that his steal of home wasn't a stolen base after all.

There was added confusion on the play because Swisher was injured. The game was delayed while first aid was administered and when action was resumed, the scoreboard still showed a 2-2 count, indicating the previous pitch was negated by the balk. It was then that Brocklander and Wendelstedt discussed the call and got their signals straight.

But the pressbox confusion lingered for another inning before the call was explained. There was some speculation that the mixup was another example of strained feeling between veteran umpires who went on strike for seven weeks last season and their replacements, some of whom were retained on the major league level when the strike ended. Wendelstedt is a veteran and Brocklander is one of the new

s. Richie Phillips, attorney for the Major League Umpires Association, said relations between the umpires on the field have been good. "On the field, they treat the new umpires the same as they treat anybody else," Phillips said. "That's what they're compelled to do and it would be in bad taste to do otherwise."

Blake Cullen, administrator of umpires for the NL, said the on-the-field relations between the umpires has improved since the post-strike period. "It's much better," Cullen said. "As far as we're concerned, it's satisfactory. Off the field, I'd like it to be better, but you get some umps who've worked together for 20 years, and don't socialize off the field."

Watson Has Attitude

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Although normally reluctant to voice predictions and extremely cautious in doing so, Tom Watson did have a positive approach to the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Tournament.

"It's one of my very favorite courses," Watson said of the famed old Pinehurst No. 2 course in the North Carolina sandhill country.

"I'm always excited about coming here, playing Pinehurst."

"And, usually, when I'm playing on a course I like I do pretty well," Watson said before teeing off in the first round today.

His record supports that statement. He has a history of scoring multiple victories in key events on courses he favors.

Of his 22 career American triumphs, 14 have come in only six tournaments. He has won the Byron Nelson four times. He has won twice in the Western, the Crosby, San Diego and the Tournament of Champions.

From Owens-Corning... a Fiberglas™ roofing shingle so tough that it's guaranteed into the 21st century.

When the warranty on most ordinary shingles has expired, the warranty on Owens-Corning's Fiberglas shingles still has years to run.

The reason? They're Fiberglas shingles. They won't absorb moisture. So they won't curl. Won't blister. Won't buckle.

And they've got 20 percent more weatherproofing material.

That's why they'll still be keeping your house dry, even when the 21st century has arrived. It says so right in Owens-Corning's remarkable limited warranty, which is prorated for the original owner on the basis of age and replacement cost. It also comes with a U.L. Class A rating—the very highest rating in the industry.

It's your house. It's your money. So speak up and ask for the shingle that lasts. And lasts. And then lasts some more.

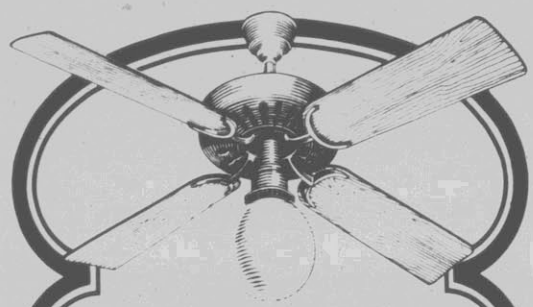

Owens-Corning's Fiberglas™ shingle is available today. Here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Texans are pushing for retired Dallas Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach to take the qualities he showed on the football field and use them in a race for the Senate.

"I think Roger has proven in his career that he has the capacity and the ability," said Republican Mark Tapscott, an organizer of the campaign to persuade Staubach to run against Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, in 1982. "He has demonstrated the kind of determination, the kind of ability to think under very intense pressure and the ability to lead," Tapscott said.

In a telephone interview Wednesday from Dallas, Staubach spokesman Roz Cole emphatically denied any interest in the campaign. "He's not having anything to do with it. He doesn't have any intention of running," she said.

Tapscott said he and fellow Texan Albert Forrester, the originators of the campaign, are not discouraged by Staubach's response. "Roger has not made an absolutely inviolable 'no' and he hasn't said yes," Tapscott said.

"Frankly, we wouldn't expect any statement from him for some time."

He said the idea of drafting Staubach came up after the popular former quarterback retired at the end of the last football season. "Draft Staubach" committees will be formed in major Texas cities soon, Tapscott said, and a benchmark poll is planned in January to test support.

"I think our job at this point is to demonstrate that there is a broad base of support for him across Texas, not just in one party or the other," he said.

Tapscott, now working for the Republicans' fall campaign, said he hoped Staubach would run as a Republican because his beliefs would be compatible. Staubach is supporting Republican candidate Ronald Reagan for president this year.

"We know his beliefs; we know what he stands for and we know about his character," Tapscott said. "It's very obvious that Roger is very much a family man and he believes in the values that have made America great."

Staubach, 38, joined the Navy that followed his Cowboys in 1969 after spending a four-year tour of duty in the Heisman Trophy-winning stint at the U.S. Naval Academy.

Few Collecting On North Carolina Reward Offers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Since 1976, North Carolina has offered more than $300,000 in reward money seeking the conviction of criminals. There hasn't been a mad rush to collect, but a state spokesman says the program is "a sound investment."

Jack Cozort, legal counsel to Gov. Jim Hunt, only $42,000 has been claimed. The money represented convictions in 15 cases.

"It's a sound investment. That's 15 cases that might not have gotten solved without the testimony procured through the rewards," Cozort said in a recent interview.

Hunt's office can post rewards of up to $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of specific crimes. In 90 percent of the cases, the crime is murder, and the current going reward rate is $5,000.

Informants in such cases may be someone involved in the crime or a person who lives in the gray area between the legal and illegal.

"I remember one informant we paid who was in Central Prison," said Burley Mitchell, state secretary of crime control and public safety. "When he was in a local jail, another prisoner in the next cell told him about a murder he was involved in. He tipped off the sheriff, and eventually got the reward money."

Rewards also may be offered by those victimized by crimes — banks, insurance companies, savings and loans, families, and businesses — but approval must be granted before the reward is posted. In such cases, the State Bureau of Investigation reviews the request and comes up with a recommendation on whether a reward would help.

Various private organizations also offer rewards for apprehension of robbers or assailants, including the state Bankers Association and the Savings and Loan League which has standing rewards of up to $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons involved in the robbery of their member businesses.

Al Fuqua of the bankers' group said it pays 25 to 30 rewards a year. He said the offer of the rewards was followed at first by a dramatic drop in bank robberies in North Carolina, although the number has now gone back up.

He said there was no way of knowing "exactly how helpful the rewards are, but we know we've gotten a lot of tips that have led to the capture of the robbers."

A fund set up by insurance companies for information about arson has resulted in the payment of three $500 rewards since first offered last December.

Up to 10 percent of any delinquent taxes the government collects from an individual convicted of evasion is paid to the informant who reports the evasion to the IRS.

Glen Jones, IRS public affairs officer, says he doesn't recall when such a bounty has been paid in North Carolina.

"Only a person of the worst possible sort" would furnish information just to collect a reward, said J. Randolph Riley, district attorney in Wake County. "But when you're trying the devil, you don't expect to have angels as witnesses."

Actors Back To Bargaining Table

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Amid pressure from the powerful movie technicians' union, the chief negotiator for the striking Screen Actors Guild has announced that talks with producers will resume "in the next few days."

Contract talks broke down last Thursday over actors' demands for a share of the lucrative home video market.

Word of the new talks came as major studios were reported considering drastic cost-cutting moves because of the 7½-week strike against movie and television producers and directors.

Chief SAG negotiator Chester L. Migden announced the actors had decided to return to the bargaining table after a closed-door meeting between SAG President William Schallert and Walter F. Diehl, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Members of IATSE — cameramen, soundmen and technicians — are not on strike, but have been put out of work by the actors' walkout.

An IATSE spokesman said after the meeting that Diehl recommended to Schallert "negotiations be resumed at the earliest possible time and ... continue until there is a resolution of the problem."

Meantime, financial retrenchment plans were being considered at most studios.

FOCUS

Not On the Ballot

When voters in Patrick Lucey's home state go to the polls in November, they will find John Anderson listed on the ballot as a candidate for president. They will not find the name of Patrick Lucey, Anderson's vice-presidential running mate. Before he picked Lucey as his running mate, Anderson registered to get on the ballot in several states, using various stand-in candidates for vice president. In at least five of those states, the names of the stand-in candidates cannot be removed from the ballot, once the candidates officially register. Ballots in Lucey's state will list Gerald L. Larson, a dentist, as Anderson's choice for vice president.

DO YOU KNOW — What is Patrick Lucey's home state?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — The majority of Poland's people are Roman Catholics.

Draft Registration Center Visit Is Convincing

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Skepticism about what government agencies say is common in Washington, particularly among reporters, but a visit to the Selective Service System's draft registration processing center might make a believer out of you.

At least that was the purpose of an invitation to The Associated Press to tour the offices where the registration forms of men born in 1960 and 1961 are being counted, checked and cataloged.

Anti-draft groups have challenged initial reports of 93 percent compliance with registration.

Secret Service Director Bernard Rostker has proposed that an independent agency double-check the procedures and sample the forms received to verify the count. Selective Service officials were meeting today with the General Accounting Office, the investigative agency of Congress, to discuss a possible audit.

The AP visit disclosed masses of registration forms, data processing equipment, tight security and endless checks and double-checks.

The location of the processing center in Washington's suburbs is secret because officials don't want protesters to disrupt the work.

It's in a modern building much like many others around the nation's capital, and inside it's pretty much like any other government office.

Several dozen people open and sort mail, others check forms for errors or missing information, keypunchers put the information on computer tapes and folks on the telephone try to track down information left off the cards.

Selective Service claims it has received approximately 3,605,000 registration forms so far, with more late registrations arriving daily.

The forms are packed in bundles of 100 and stored 1,300 to a box.

In addition there are boxes holding more than 200,000 forms from individual post offices listing the number of registrants on any particular day.

Pick ZIP Code 13021 at random, for example, and a form is produced from the Auburn, N.Y., post office showing 56 people signed up in that batch of cards.

A check of the Thousand Oaks, Calif., reports disclosed a problem that Rostker said might have led newspapers and others monitoring compliance to underestimate the number of men signing up.

In that community four different post offices sent in cards under one ZIP Code. That meant a check of any single office would disclose only a small percentage of the registrants.

Rostker also noted that youths could register anywhere, not just in their hometown. That produced such distortions as enough cards from Rehoboth Beach, Del., a resort, to account for half that community's fulltime population.

Editing the cards has disclosed an error rate of 4.6 percent, Rostker said, but most of those are easily corrected.

For example, 2.38 percent of them were where the registration date was written in the space intended for date of birth. Form letters asking for a correct birthdate are being mailed and 16,000 of the 18,000 sent so far already have been filled out and returned.

The next most common error is simply not checking either box in the question about sex. If the name on the card is obviously male, Selective Service just assumes that the registrant is a man. If there is any question, a letter is sent asking for the information.

Form letters acknowledging receipt of completed forms are scheduled to begin going out this week, and those letters also can be used as change-of-address forms or to correct any errors in the information already collected.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — WE DON'T FORGET TO FORGE NEW DEFENSES.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals E
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Magic Lingers In Ex-Actress

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Nearly 25 years ago, an American actress gave up her career as the leading lady of movies to become the princess of one of the world's last remaining monarchies.
Wednesday night, she demonstrated that the movie magic she created lingers on. Princess Grace of Monaco received wild applause on the Duke University campus, where she gave a dramatic reading of poetry and prose.
Though she has not appeared on screen since she married Prince Rainier in 1956, the 51-year-old princess proved she hasn't lost the touch of an actress.
With accents that ranged from Southern drawl to Scottish brogue, she showed her humor with a reading from Rubens' "La Petite Pelisse": "Her wardrobe is so bare, she hasn't even underwear. Evidently, artists' wives do lead interesting lives."
The reading was part of a tour that includes Nashville and Baltimore.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 12, 1980

YOUR DAILY

Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to observe the progress you have made, and to make plans for even greater advancement in the future. Show that you are one who seeks harmony with others.
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to understand an associate's position better and improve the relationship. Safeguard your reputation tonight.
TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to the views of others carefully before you team up with them in some enterprise. Be wary of outsiders.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make certain you don't spend too much money for pleasure, as you could easily be tempted to do at this time.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to save more money instead of spending it like there's no tomorrow. Show others you have wisdom.
LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Discuss the future with associates and come to a fine agreement with them. Find a better method to avoid costly mistakes.
VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study every angle of your monetary needs and make plans to have increased income in the days ahead. Use common sense.
LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to handle personal affairs since the planets are favorable for such now. Handle business affairs wisely.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Morning is best for handling private affairs. Complete week's work with added enthusiasm and analyze your progress.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day to deepen relationships with friends. Use extreme caution in motion today and avoid possible accident.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Seriously delve into new interests that can pave the way to a more prosperous future. Take needed health treatments.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Gain the backing of the influential for whatever responsibilities you may have to discharge. Sidestep a troublemaker.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Forget antiquated ways and engage in modern methods and gain added income in the future. Adopt a positive manner.
IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can carry through with specific plans in a most precise way, so direct the education along scientific lines for best results. A most unusual profession could emerge here. A lover of music in this chart.

'Campaign Report' Is For Undecided Voters

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Moyers left the candidates briefly the other day to talk about his new pre-election series on presidential politics, "Bill Moyers Journal: Campaign Report."
"The assumption running through this series," he said, "is that I haven't made up my mind how to vote, and that's for sure."
Moyers said voters this year are left with four choices — President Carter; Ronald Reagan, the Republican nominee; a third-party candidate like former Rep. John Anderson, or no vote at all. "I really have an open mind about this, as I think most Americans do," he said.
At the foundation of "Campaign Report," which premieres Friday, Sept. 12 at 9 p.m. EDT on many Public Broadcasting Service stations, is Moyers' desire to provide prospective voters with information on the candidates "that commercial television has neither the time nor the opportunity to present."

The first hour-long program, for instance, will include a 30-40-minute report on Reagan's most recent campaign swing.
"What you saw on the evening news," Moyers said, illustrating his approach to "Campaign Report," "was one Reagan gaffe after another. While that was a good story, it wasn't the whole story."
"What he did, and I didn't see it on television, was attack, attack, attack. You saw very little of Reagan's unrelenting assault on Carter's record."
"Campaign Report" will continue on a weekly basis until the election Nov. 4. As with most PBS programs, air date and time may vary.
Moyers, whose "Journal" premiered on public TV Nov. 14, 1972, is one of the country's most respected journalists.

A former press secretary to President Lyndon B. Johnson and publisher of Newsday, the Long Island newspaper, Moyers spent 2½ years as chief correspondent for "CBS Reports" before reviving his "Journal" in February 1979.
He is a man quite clearly torn between the freedom of time offered by public television and the unlimited resources proffered by the commercial networks.

He assisted CBS News in its coverage this summer of the Republican and Democratic nominating conventions, and there are unmistakable signs that CBS would like to enlist his services full time once more.
Nonetheless, in discussing the extension of his "Journal" to the campaign, he spoke in a positive tone. Each show will be produced for about $50,000, he said, and that is a relatively small sum compared with the standard for a network news documentary of the same length.

Rising ECU Research Interest

By MARC BARNES
ECU News Bureau

Finding ways to improve life for North Carolinians has heightened interest in research by East Carolina University professors.

ECU counted a significant 25 percent increase in requests for outside funds by faculty members, individually or in teams during the past year. Requests to foundations and other sources of funding increased from 157 to 209, and dollar amounts sought rose from $7 million to nearly $11 million, according to Robert H. Franke, ECU's acting director of Sponsored Programs.

Franke noted a trend toward research intended to help find practical solutions to everyday problems. He said that such public service projects did not profit ECU directly, but that they came from a desire to "render service to our constituents, the tax payers of the state of North Carolina."

"We're pretty well balanced in research, training and public service," he said. "It's not all the so-called hard academic research."

Currently, ECU researchers are working on fisheries marketing and management, health care, wastewater processing, and locating new deposits of phosphorus.

Specific public service projects include:

- Free advice from marketing students, who have helped local businesses which were in financial difficulty;
- Research on the effects of alcohol during pregnancy;
- A research station on the Pamlico River near Aurora, which helps monitor water quality;
- Finding ways to process peat to use as a liquid fuel;
- A project which would use a statewide system of swimming pools to treat arthritis victims;
- The design of a computer which will allow blind students to take part in chemistry lab experiments;
- Studies on the use of a new drug to treat hypertension;
- A project to teach fishermen how to catch eels and sell them to a lucrative foreign market.

Professors are motivated in many ways when they apply for a grant, Frankie said. "It comes from inside," he said. "You want to expand your own knowledge or you see a need for a particular course, or you are asked by someone else for a service, for example. We are the regional repository for expertise in many fields."

A part of the funds go to researchers who work under contract, usually to another state agency, Frankie said. One example of this is the research on peat, which was contracted for through the N.C. Energy Institute, a division of the state Department of Commerce.

Another factor influencing the increase has been the growth of the ECU medical school. "The substantial increase in the size of the medical school faculty has played a significant role in the increase of research funds awarded to the university," Frankie said.

Faculty awareness of the need to develop expertise through research and development is also a reason for increased research activity, Frankie said. "The university administration is very supportive to research, training and public service and that attitude is reflected in the numbers."

"ECU is taking a more active role in providing leadership and expertise in the region," he said.

Ayden Native Is Named To Position

MOUNT OLIVE — An Ayden native has been appointed director of News Services and Publications at Mount Olive College. Darlene Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, will be organizing a new department for the college.

In her position Smith will represent the college in various ways through the media. Her responsibilities will include the publication and broadcast of college-related events, as well as the co-ordination of all printed matter issued by the institution.

A 1974 graduate of Ayden-Gritton High School, she earned a B.A. degree in English and history from Meredith College in 1977. She has done post-graduate work in English at North Carolina State University. In addition, Smith holds membership with various professional organizations in conjunction with her work in journalism, including the North Carolina Press Association.

The new director, who began work August 29, will make her home in Mount Olive.

Return Voyage

DETROIT (AP) — The Dal, a 29-foot sailing sloop which made a historic voyage to America from Gdynia, Poland, in 1933, docked here recently prior to a voyage that would take it back to Poland.

The sloop had resided 26 years in a Chicago museum before Rene Gieblewicz, a Polish immigrant, obtained the vessel and restored it to seaworthy condition.

Gieblewicz, a 44-year-old carpenter and woodworker who lives in Spring Grove, Ill., plans to sail the ship himself, with the aid of a crew of three.
