Border War Escalates Between Iran And Iraq

By United Press International

Iranian and Iraqi forces clashed with tanks, planes and artillery Saturday in what both sides indicated was a sharp escalation of their border war. There was no further word on the American hostages following the demands for their release listed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

In Paris, a spokesman for former premier Shahpour Bakhtiar quickly denied a U.S. newspaper report that the exiled politician was joining forces with the late shah's son to stage a monarchist coup in Iran.

Bakhtiar, a prominent opposition figure who served as the shah's last premier, has already said his goal is the overthrow of Khomeini's turbaned dictatorship. But he has also opposed a restoration of the monarchy.

The Atlanta Constitution reported key anti-Khomeini exiles in the United States and Europe were forming a "common front" to restore a limited monarchy in Iran under Crown Prince Reza, whom the shah on his deathbed designated as the heir to his toppled throne.

A spokesman at Bakhtiar's Paris headquarters denied it, however, saying the former premier could not support the restoration of the monarchy.

The 52 American hostages were ending their 315th day of captivity on a note of hope.

On Friday, Khomeini broke his long silence on the captives' fate and listed four conditions for their release. The conditions appeared significant because they omitted a demand by other officials for a an apology from the United States for its past actions in Iran.

Khomeini, in an address to Moslem pilgrims, said the hostages could go free if the United States returns the shah's wealth, releases Iran's frozen assets, promises never to intervene in Iranian affairs and withdraws all claims against Iran.

This also appeared to take the hostages' fate out of the hands of the Iranian parliament, where political bickering has delayed a resolution of the crisis.

There was no immediate reaction from the militants holding the hostages and no further comment from Khomeini. U.S. officials, saying they have learned by bitter experience to be "cautious" about statements from Iran, said they would have to study Khomeini's remarks.

Meanwhile, reports from both Iran and Iraq indicated that the border conflict was heating up, with new fighting swirling on the frontier near the Iraqi city of Basra, the home of the legendary Sinbad the Sailor.

Iran claimed to have killed 100 Iraqis in the fighting and Tehran Radio, monitored in London by the BBC, said President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr personally toured the battlefronts.

Iraq charged that Iran launched the latest border attacks Friday and that fighting was continuing with planes, tanks and artillery.

An Iraqi military spokesman said eight Iraqis were killed and that "we retaliated heavily. They (the Iranians) had to use six ambulances and nine busses in taking their casualties," he said.

Moves Against Terrorists

By KARIN CHENOWETH

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — The new military regime seized the headquarters of Turkey's extreme right and moderate leftist political parties Saturday and moved to crush terrorism in a nationwide raids on leftist and rightist hideouts.

In a move to reassure Turkey's allies, the ruling National Security Council of Gen. Kenan Evren said the strategic NATO nation would honor all foreign liabilities and payments — debts amounting to a staggering $16 billion.

The second day of military rule in Turkey was one of the most peaceful in recent memory, with no reports of the terrorist attacks that have been claiming an average of 20 victims a day.

Curfew was relaxed until 8 p.m., tanks were thinned out from the capital and slum residents began whitewashing their walls of political graffiti.

U.S. Ambassador to Turkey James Spain spent the day denying charges that the United States was behind Friday's military coup or knew about it in advance — allegations that were fueled by the fact that Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Tahsin Shahankaha returned from a visit to the United States Thursday night, only hours before the coup that ousted Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel.

Evren, the armed forces chief-of-staff, said he staged Turkey's third coup in 20 years to stamp out terrorism, end political bickering and stem a rising tide of Islamic fundamentalism that he said was pushing Turkey to the brink of civil war.

On the second day of martial law, his troops raided targets of both the left and the right — including Moslem fundamentalists — and uncovered an undisclosed amount of machine guns, explosives and material used for making bombs, reports said.

Army troops seized control of the left-leaning Republican People's Party headquarters, whose leader, Bulent Ecevit, was reported sharing a prison island with Demirel, his long-time rival.

"You must leave," a soldier politely but firmly told one foreigner. "This is no headquarters, there is no (political) party."

Unconfirmed reports said as many as 120 parliamentary deputies as well as other politicians also were arrested.

But Alparslan Turkes, leader of the extreme right National Action Party blamed for much of the rightist terror, eluded capture. Turkish Radio broadcast an appeal to Turkes to surrender amid reports the rightist had fled to West Germany.

The Turkish news agency UBA said security forces raided the Istanbul offices of Turkes' NAP, arrested nine people and seized weapons and explosives.

Using paint supplied by soldiers, Anakara's slum dwellers whitewashed their walls to obliterate the political graffiti that had long divided neighborhoods into spheres of leftist or rightist control.

"The soldiers came and told me to paint out the slogans, and I was happy to do it," said one middle-aged worker. "I did it, and I liked doing it."

"Last night was the first night I wasn't afraid to sit next to the window," another resident said. "There were no guns being fired, no bombs exploding. It was very restful."

In the Ankara slum of Esertepe, an army commando dressed in camouflage fatigues and toting a submachine gun hopped on a skate board belonging to a local youngster and went careening down the street — gun and all.

Sabotage Probed In Chartered Plane Crash

By STEPHEN C. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Federal investigators were probing the possibility of sabotage Saturday after a chartered DC-3 carrying 34 people crashed just short of its Freeport, Bahamas, destination, said former astronaut Ed Mitchell, a spokesman for Florida Commuter Airlines.

The plane, which had 30 passengers and four crew members aboard, crashed during a raging storm Friday evening. Mitchell is a consultant for the airline which runs weekly flights to the gambling resort.

Rudy Kapustin, head of a National Transporation Safety Board investigation team, said he wasn't ready to speculate on the cause of the crash.

"Every time we have a crash like this, we get information about possible sabotage. We don't rule anything out," Kapustin said.

Coast Guard spokesman Paul Scotti said 16 bodies were recovered. He said there was no evidence of survivors.

Mitchell, who walked on the moon during the Apollo 14 flight, said investigators grounded the company's other two planes, a DC-3 and a Navajo, Saturday afternoon. Both were scheduled to fly Monday, he said.

"So far there's no explanation for this accident. Weather seemed to be a leading factor, but they (the investigators) were asking a lot of funny questions," Mitchell said.

"There has been an allegation of foul play. It was brought to our attention by the authorities. All allegations are taken seriously. It certainly cannot be ignored, and the reason is that we don't have any other theory," Mitchell told The Associated Press.

Meanwhile, a fisherman who was in the crash area told Federal Aviation Administration investigators that the plane was on fire, "like a flaming meteorite," The Miami Herald reported.

The FAA said the plane aborted its first takeoff attempt because of apparent minor engine trouble.

Sandy Thomas, airline chief of maintenance, said a wasps' nest had been found in the pilot's instrument panel, and the taxi run after the nest was removed showed the plane was running smoothly. He said the discovery of the wasps' nest was not unusual and said he checked the engines thoroughly Friday.

Wreckage from the plane and a life raft were spotted in the water late Friday about 50 miles east of West Palm Beach, according to Coast Guard Petty Officer 1st Class Carlos Martinez.

The dead were not immediately identified. The airline identified the chief pilot as Bill Selva of Palm Beach County, the co-pilot as Diana Leonard of Fort Lauderdale, and the flight attendants as Jennifer Kruger and Suzanne Payne of Palm Beach County. The passenger list indicated all were residents of Palm Beach County.

Freeport officials said regular "casino flights" arrive at the Grand Bahama Island resort each Friday evening, then return to Palm Beach about 1:30 a.m.

Anita Mitchell, wife of Ed Mitchell and executive vice-president of Kelly & Mitchell Associates, the airline's public relations agency, on Saturday said 34 people were aboard the plane, up one from the number previously reported. She said most of the passengers on the flight were from Palm Beach County, but they were not all necessarily gamblers.

"They go for all types of entertainment — the hotels, other things," she said.

Thomas said the plane was not equipped with radar to warn the pilot of a squall line, speculating the aircraft ran into severe storms as it descended and "got clobbered and blown right out of the sky."

Cmdr. Jim Sutherland of the Coast Guard's Miami air station said the DC-3 dropped into the ocean at 9:05 p.m. Friday.

"It was making an instrument approach, and the Freeport tower cleared, but the plane never showed up," he said.

The Coast Guard said the plane's pilot didn't indicate

$59.9 Million Increase For VEPCO

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. has won a $59.9 million rate increase that left the utility less than ecstatic, for it had sought $72.6 million.

The State Corporation Commissioners Preston C. Shannon and Junie L. Bradshaw on Friday approved the lesser amount recommended by hearing examiner Stewart E. Farrar.

Commissioner Thomas P. Harwood Jr., dissenting in part, thought the increase should be even less — $52.26 million..

The new rates will go into effect Oct. 1, and will raise the bill of a customer using 1,000 kilowat hours of electricity about $2.58 a month, or 3.9 percent, from $57.97 to $60.55.

Vepco spokesman Paul Edwards said, "The company certainly is not jubilant about it. The application was for $72.6 million and the rates requested reflect what the company feels is necessary to allow it to earn an adequate rate of return.

"It is obviously the feeling of the company the increase does not allow an adequate rate of return."

Edwards said the decision "will implement the second of three base rate increases expected this year. However, these increases will be more than offset by three fuel charge reductions.

"Two of these reductions took effect earlier this year and the third, which has already been approved by the SCC, is expected to take place before the end of the year when North Anna Unit 2 is expected to go into com-

East Headquarters Opened Saturday

By LEIGH COAKLEY
Reflector Staff Writer

"This election will be won or lost right here in eastern North Carolina," said Dr. John East, candidate for the U.S. Senatorial seat presently held by Democrat Robert Morgan.

"As a candidate, it is nice to know that people at home are interested," he said.

East was honored Saturday from 12 noon until 2 p.m. at the opening of the GOP Headquarters on South Cotanche Street. A gathering of approximately 50 East and Reagan supporters attended the opening.

Jim McIntrye, Pitt County Republican chairman, introduced Mrs. Eloise Howard, Chairman of Americans for Reagan in Pitt County, and outlined the schedule of events for the afternoon.

East gave a short speech to supporters and promised not to "talk a lot of politics," but did make several comments about the progress of the campaign and about the theme of "Country Above Party."

He said that political parties are not a part of our national heritage and that we need to "forget about party labels and focus on the issues. Keep your eyes on the balls, and the balls in this case are the issues. The pollsters say that this is a winable campaign," he said.

According to East, two efforts have been made to schedule a debate with his opponent, Robert Morgan, which he said "would be very healthy for the party. Senator Morgan turned us down both times".

East focused on the present situation of the economy, federal spending, and national defense created by the present administration.

East indicated that the State Board of Elections has "obscured the senatorial race" by placing it at the bottom of the ticket. "I am upset when the referees in a game are prejudiced."

Dr. East and other candidates running on the Republican ticket in November were introduced by Attorney Mack Howard. The candidates include Henry Aldridge for the N.C. House of Representatives, Herb Lee for the N.C. Senate, Jim McIntyre for N.C. Auditor, and Bob Browning for the N.C. Court of Appeals judge.

According to Mrs. Howard, the office is staffed totally with volunteer workers to help answer any questions that may arise. "There are only seven weeks left in the campaign," said Mrs. Howard. "The purpose of this headquarters is to help get Reagan and East elected. Let's go get em'."

N.C. Couple Indicted In Tax Fraud

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a North Carolina couple on charges they filed 978 fictitious income tax returns asking for refunds totaling $1,029,247.

Government officials described the case Friday as the largest "multiple filing" scheme ever handled by the Internal Revenue Service.

The indictment says Curtis and Denise Nall of Greensboro mailed returns to 10 IRS centers around the nation, each completed in the names of Robert A. and Mary C. Smith and each asking that a refund of $1,052 be sent to a post office box in Freeport, the Bahamas.

Attached to the returns were forms listing wages allegedly paid to Smith by phony employers, the indictment said.

IRS officials said they began an investigation when "scores" of the fraudulent forms began arriving at IRS offices.

No refunds were ever paid on the returns, the officials said.

If convicted, Nall and his wife each face up to 30 years in prison and a $51,000 fine.

Assistant U.S. Attorney W. Cecil Jones said the Nalls would be informed of the indictment by mail, adding that the governmnt would recommend that they be released on their own recognizance after they are formally charged.

The Nalls are charged in the indictment with one count of mail fraud and five counts of filing false claims against the United States government.

"IRS personnel quickly flagged the multiple filings because all were completed in the names of Robert A. and Mary C. Smith," the U.S. attorney's office said in a release. "The returns were identical except for names for dependents, name of employers and date of signing. All returns were postmarked Greensboro, North Carolina."

According to officials, all the couple's returns were sent here because the local IRS office is responsible for processing tax returns that have a foreign return address. The only exceptions are returns from government employees working abroad, the officials said.

KKK Rally Held In Connecticut

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer

SCOTLAND, Conn. (AP) — State police in riot gear formed a protective circle around about 45 Ku Klux Klansmen and 350 onlookers who chanted "white power" and burned an 18-foot-tall cross Saturday night.

The rally in this small eastern Connecticut town, which was preceded by an anti-Klan demonstration that called for "death to the Klan," marked the introduction of the Connecticut grand dragon. Troopers turned away about 300 anti-Klan marchers trying to reach the farm pasture where the KKK rally was held.

Six persons suffered minor injuries in scattered violence. Two men were accosted by anti-Klan protesters returning to the town green. Earlier in the afternoon about 450 anti-Klan demonstrators sang protest songs, carried signs and listened to speeches denouncing racism at the green.

Eight people were arrested, most on charges of interfering with a police officer.

"Connecticut has always been a liberal state and we're trying real hard to change that," Piscottano told hooded Klansmen.

Abscam Case Rested

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The prosecution in the Abscam conspiracy trial of two Philadelphia city councilmen rested its case Saturday after showing a videotape of one councilman accepting an envelope purportedly containing $10,000 from an FBI undercover agent.

A second agent testified that the councilman, Harry P. Jannotti, denied ever taking any money a week after the taping occurred.

The tape showed Michael Wald, an agent who used the name of "Michael Cohen" while claiming to represent an Arab sheik who planned to build a $36 million hotel in downtown Philadelphia.

"That amount is sufficient?" asked Wald.

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal court jury ruled Saturday that Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, caused 55 plaintiffs about $350 million in damages by participating in a corrugated container price fixing conspiracy.

An attorney for the plaintiffs, Steve Susman of Houston, said that under federal anti-trust law provisions his clients would be entitled to triple damages, or more than $1 billion.

The six jurors determined Mead Corp. and 19 other companies participated in a conspiracy to fix the prices on corrugated containers between 1964 and 1975.

The class action suit stemmed from 60 separate cases nationwide against 34 defendants. The first suits were filed in March 1977 and consolidated in Houston nine months later.

All of the original defendants but Mead Corp. settled out of court for amounts totaling more than $300 million.

"We are surprised and disappointed in the verdict," Mead Chairman James W. McSwiney said in a prepared statement released from Dayton.

"It's in about 1,800 feet of water and it would be extremely difficult and extremely expensive to recover the plane from there," the NTSB official said.

Coast Guard spokesman Greg Robinson said the search would continue "until we're absolutely satisifed there are no survivors. We're going to recover as many bodies as we can."

Lt. Cmdr. James Perry, a Coast Guard helicopter pilot who retrieved some of the bodies, said the crash site was about four miles southwest of the Freeport airport, and that seas of five to six feet were washing the bodies to the southeast.

Perry said another aircraft reported sighting sharks, but none were seen in the area where the bodies were found.

North Anna 2 is Vepco's fourth nuclear power unit. Nuclear plants produce power at much less cost than oil-and coal-fired generators. The more nuclear power generated, the lower the fuel charges, which are passed directly onto each customer.

Edwards added that even with the increase approved by the SCC Friday, "the net result of all the changes approved by the SCC this year will be a reduction in Vepco's total rates of about 7.2 percent from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1980.

Harwood said it was appropriate to recognize Vepco's diminished tax liability associated with a change in the company's interest expenses, "and I dissent from the majority's failure to make that adjustment in this case."

The last increase granted to Vepco by the commission was $18.1 million, approved April 1 on the basis of 1978 financial data submitted by the utility.

Harwood argued in his dissent from the majority award that an adjustment "should be made to reflect the income tax associated with Vepco's end-of-the-period debt cost."

"Put simply," he wrote, "when the increased cost of debt and interest are recognized, the increased income tax deduction should also be recognized.

"This adjustment would reduce the increase granted by $7,697,000 — to $52,266,000."

State School Board Met

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Board of Education met Saturday to begin planning ways of measuring the quality of public schools teachers.

Representatives of two private corporations and the state Department of Public Instruction briefed the board on means of evaluating employees and ways to avoid related emotional pitfalls.

In the 1980 legislation which gave teachers a 10 percent salary increase and other benefits, the General Assembly called for a study of employment practices no later than March 1, 1981.

E. Eugene Causby, former assistant state superintendent for personnel relations, told board members the legislators were responding to demands that tax money be used more wisely.

"The general concept the public has is that 'I am paying more and more for less and less,'" said Causby, who is now executive director of the N.C. School Boards Association.

"A number of (legislative) decision makers said in so many woerds that 'We're ready to invest (in quality teachers) but as we invest we want some assurances of competence on the part of those who will receive higher salaries.'"

Marian L. Stallings of the N.C. Association of Educators said teachers would back new standards if the direction is toward improving instruction in the state. But she said there could be problems if salaries were linked to evaluations.

Ms. Stallings' organization represents some 40,000 teachers.

State board Chairman H. David Bruton of Southern Pines said the main purpose of evaluations will be to help teachers improve, although "down the road" salaries may be considered in evaluations.

Long In Lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and a Louisiana political legend, jumped to a comfortable lead in the state's open primary Saturday as he bid for a seventh term.

In early returns, Long was collecting 62 percent of the vote — his lowest total since winning the seat 32 years ago in a special election.

With about 4 percent of the precincts reported, state Rep. Louis "Woody" Jenkins, a conservative Democrat, was collecting 34 percent of the vote — not enough to force Long in a November runoff.

Three other candidates — little-known Republicans Jerry Barderll and Robert Max Ross and Socialist Workers candidate Naomia Bracey shared about 4 percent of the vote.

Long, 61, hasn't gotten less than 68.5 percent of the vote in any election since he won his Senate seat by a 10,000-vote margin in 1948.

"I think I'm going to run strong in all parts of the state," said Long from his Baton Rouge campaign heaquarters soon after polls closed.

We Owe Guardsmen Of 1940

On September 10, 1940 the young men of Battery A, 113th Field Artillery, 30th Division were ordered the active duty by Gov. Clyde R. Hoey.

It is difficult to imagine it happening today, nor could the men who began what was to be one year's active duty imagine what was in store for them.

They went to Ft. Jackson, S. C. where the U. S. army was ill prepared to accept them.

In a little more than a year Pearl Harbor would be attacked by the Japanese and the United States would be at war with Japan and Germany. Most of the men would serve a full five years before they could return home as civilians. Some went on to make the military their careers.

The early months of the war went badly for the United States and if it hadn't been for National Guard and reserve units which were quickly mobilized, the war might have gone far worse.

World War II is but a bad memory now, but many of the National Guardsmen called up in 1940 still work and contribute in their home communities. Theirs was an experience that few have had and today they are being honored throughout the state with activities planned at the Farmville and Greenville armories.

We owe them a lot.

Good Times or Bad, We Have Problems

State Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks sees a drop in unemployment as signaling the end of recession in our state.

Brooks sees the recession as "bottoming out" in about a month.

The upsurge won't be without problems, however. Brooks expects a big increase in new home construction late in the winter. That will create a shortage of skilled workers and add to housing costs.

No doubt good times are better than bad times, but there are problems both ways.

Lawmen Ignoring 55Mph.

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It has happened enough times in recent weeks to demonstrate a pattern, not just an isolated incident or two.

North Carolina law enforcement officials, including both State Highway Patrolmen and local police, are setting the example for those who want to drive faster than 55 miles an hour on interstate highways.

Indeed, for the highway patrol, the speed limit appears to be 64 miles per hour. That is the speed which on five different occasions within the past month troopers were observed casually holding while cruising the interstate.

Slower traffic was routinely passed and left behind by the State Patrol cars and the long line of private motorists following securely in their wake. On one trip from Raleigh to Asheville, this occurred on three different occasions with three different patrol cars.

Higher

For local law officers the speed is even higher. This does not apply to those answering emergency calls, but to those transporting prisoners or mental patients, or attending meetings in their cruisers; for most often the officers are from counties or towns far away from the location where they were observed on the interstates.

Like the State patrol cruisers, the local cruisers pick up a string of followers who presume they are safe to keep pace; even though the speed more often than not is closer to 70 than to 55.

Strange, that when state officials keep insisting that the public must obey the speed limit, one of the first mandates in a new fuel conservation plan now being prepared is "enforcement of the 55 miles per hour limit", if another gasoline shortage pops up.

Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw has dismissed the interstate speed situation as resulting from concentration on enforcement on other roads, where wrecks are more likely to occur.

Still, it appears that law officers are setting the pace in some cases which only reinforces in the public mind a disregard for the limit.

Upward

True to earlier predictions, North Carolina has been unable to find a way to put a lid on spiraling Medicaid costs which experts inside and outside state government predict will bankrupt the treasury unless some relief is found.

There are now nearly half a million Medicaid eligibles in this state with a population of 5.5 million. The program is for those on welfare, the elderly, and other low-income people and is separate from Medicare which provides health services for the elderly.

During the past fiscal year, hospital, nursing home, and other medical bills totalling more than $391 million were paid; an increase of almost $50 million over the previous year, and enough to keep the program on track to a projected half-billion outlay next year.

Nursing homes and rest homes have now taken over first place in the Medicaid outlay, accounting for $120.3 million last year. Hospitals received $117.2 million. Physicians were paid $30.9 million and prescribed drugs cost $31 million. Dentists were maid more than $12 million.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Reagan, Staff At Odds

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's clear reaffirmation Tuesday night of Kemp-Roth tax reduction as the heart of his economic growth program only came after yet another effort by his staff to retreat under Democratic fire.

Reagan reflexively objected to a draft of the economic speech that would have stretched the three-year 30 percent tax cut to five years. Like much else foisted on him of late by his advisers, that stretch-out was politically mindless. It would have properly exposed him to charges that he was conceding the anti-tax cut positions of his critics.

The avalanche of economic advisers from the Ford administration had suffocated tax cut talk until Tuesday night's address in Chicago before the International Business Council. Most off his recent stump speeches have not even mentioned tax reduction. His new television spots soft-pedal the issue.

That is another example of the Reagan campaign deteriorating into a struggle between candidate and staff. While aides whisper comments to newsmen about the blundering candidate, the fact is that many of the campaign bloopers since the national conventions are more attributable to his staff than to Reagan.

This was pointed up Sept. 3 when Reagan and five outside economic advisers, he in a sport shirt and they coatless but wearing ties, met in the garden at Wexford, his rented Virginia estate. The draft — prepared by Dr. Martin Anderson, a senior domestic policy adviser, and veteran Republican speechwriter William Gavin — would have stretched Reagan-Kemp-Roth tax cuts over five years.

That set off alarm bells for the candidate. This must be changed back to three years, Reagan said. Rep. Jack Kemp, discussing issues face-to-face with Reagan for the first time in six months, naturally agreed. Less naturally, he was backed by Dr. Charls Walker, former deputy treasury secretary who once pressed for a stretch-out but has now joined forces with Kemp.

For political justification, Reagan passed around a new Gallup Poll commissioned by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce which shows a 54 percent to 30 percent nationwide margin in support of a 10 percent rate reduction in taxes this year — as proposed in the first year of Kemp-Roth. The same poll shows that only 24 percent of the voters think inflation would be increased by a 10 percent tax cut.

These figures should come as a surprise only to those politicians and journalists who seem to think that hard-pressed taxpayers really do not want relief. When we ask voters in our own door-to-door interviewing whether they favor an immediate tax cut, the response is usually positive — and frequently incredulous that anybody would have to ask.

But the Carter theme that tax reduction is inflationary poison being forced on desperately resisting taxpayers had been making headway within the Reagan camp. Indeed, on the day of the economic meeting at Wexford, an astute Democratic strategist told us the Carter team's attacks had succeeded in stifling Reagan's tax reduction talk.

Besides insisting on the three-year tax reduction span, Reagan also was displeased with the vagueness of the first draft. To make his point, he told his advisers he would rather deliver an accompanying fact sheet than the speech; as a result, figures from the fact sheet detailing massive tax increases under the present system were inserted in his speech.

This is not merely sloppy staff work that is commonplace in the Reagan campaign. One Reagan-for-president leaflet, listing only Ford administration officials as the candidate's economic team, calls for tax reduction providing people "with more money to spend, creating a demand for more goods and services."

Strength For Today

TO SEEK A KINGDOM

Jesus expressed his idea of the chief aim in life with these words: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33).

These words have come down to us in Greek, of course, and it is interesting to observe that the Greek word translated "seek" really means "to beat the bushes for birds". So the declaration of our Lord really means, put first in your life the kingdom of God and seek after it like a man beating the bushes for game.

So now we get the picture. We should seek the kingdom of God like a hunter after his quarry. Let enthusiasm never die down. No obstacle is too great to be surmounted, no sacrifice too agonizing to be endured. Indeed, such advice is practical, if nothing else. If the kingdom is the object of our life, certainly it deserves greater efforts on our part than searching after money, or fame, or pleasure. — Elisha Douglass

Sunday Morning Notes

Your columnist had a day off coming, so I took it on Tuesday of last week.

What to do with anything so precious?

Maybe a late summer trip to the Morehead City would be good, dining at a sea food restaurant. . . or perhaps a run up to Raleigh. Then there is the Wilmington area, Wrightsville Beach, Carolina Beach, or what have you.

It was a balmy day, the predecessor to fall weather.

Turned out it was a good sleeping morning. Since no alarms were set, I wound up sleeping until 10.

What then? Well who can plan a day off without breakfast and coffee. So I journeyed to the Crows Nest. With plenty of time a breakfast can last a long while. By then it was 11:30. So what do you do with half a day?

Well maybe a trip to Whichard's Beach.

Back home I began feeling guilty about all the chest and desk drawers which I had promised to clean out in the process of moving a few months back. I had gone through all the closets and other accumulations, but the drawers were left as they were. In fact, a few extra things were stuck in them for convenience of moving.

Well, maybe a little time on this chore. I started with my desk. It's incredible how many receipts one can accumulate over eight years. There were old phone bills, electric bills, trading stamps and some really valuable papers like the house insurance policy. Nothing to do

Other Editors Say It Took Gall

(The Raleigh Times)

For this month's Of All The Gall award, we'd like to nominate the 18 North Carolina prison inmates just indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of cheating the IRS — from prison.

These enterprising denizens of Central and Odom prisons are charged with having cooked up a fals-tax-return filing system, apparently fairly elaborate, for each other.

Predictably, all the suspect 1040 forms they sent in involved refunds. Internal Revenue says, for example, that two Central inmates filed false returns seeking to get back $301 and $405. At Odom, the stakes were higher — refund requests running up to $1,986.

If they thought they were entitled to such substantial refunds, the average outside income of inmates must be greater than we thought, since it's a cinch they don't get rich inside on wages of 40 cents to a dollar a day.

The scheme reportedly involved hand-printed fake W-2 forms. And the tax "specialists" who prepared the returns are said to have charged a small fee.

Since we've long advocated stiffer treatment for white-collar crimes like tax fraud and evasion, this affair really has us scratching our heads.

Maybe these fellows, and 13 other present and former N.C. inmates already convicted and sentenced on similar charges, just got bored. Maybe they figured what did they have to lose.

Or maybe they mis-read the news stories not long ago that announced, for all the world (and all the taxpapers) to know, that IRS has decided it won't bother trying to put in jail little-guy cheaters who ony take the government for relatively small amounts. It will get them in other ways, but not push for locking them up.

The Tar Heel inmates might have thought IRS was saying it would let the small-time cheaters OUT of jail.

Hazing Ritual Is Back

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Fraternity hazing, a rite of passage for generations of college pledges, is coming back into vogue after a brush with extinction during the student activist days of the early 1970s.

This fall's initiations do not approach the sometimes brutal rituals common 15 or 20 years ago, officials say, but hazing has become enough of a problem again for virtually all of the national fraternities to forbid it.

However, fraternity executives concede that the insults, browbeating, silly tasks, forced exercises and other lessons in humility will probably continue despite their efforts.

"If there is one single thing that is a black mark against fraternities, it is hazing," said Stephen Siders, executive director of Alpha Tau Omega. "The loss of life because of some stupid fraternity ritual is unforgivable."

But deaths occasionally do occur during hazing, the period of physical and mental intimidation that leads to full membership in a fraternity.

The latest was Aug. 31 at the University of Lowell in Massachusetts. Stephen Call, 19, a pledge at Delta Kappa Phi, collapsed during calisthenics and died of Does Inflation Help Anyone?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the 40-year mortgage an answer to high housing prices? Does it pay to save? Does inflation help anyone anymore?

After more than a decade of uninterrupted inflation these questions continue to be pondered by people who are close to their wit's end, and probably not very far from their financial end.

—Is the 40-year mortgage the answer? Probably not. After looking at the numbers you're likely to agree it might be more a problem than an answer. It could be an extraordinarily expensive undertaking.

A rather typical $40,000 mortgage at 12 percent for 20 years would involve 240 monthly payments of $440.44, for a total of $105,706. To extend payments to 40 years would reduce the monthly bill by just $37.40 to $403.40, and enlarge the total payment to $193,632.

Few people would argue that an addition of nearly $88,000 to the total bill is a very dear price to pay for a $37.40 monthly reduction. And yet the suggestion continues to come up, although not from lenders.

The fact is lenders don't like the idea either and can be relied on to resist efforts in that direction. With even the next month uncertain, they're horrified about commiting themselves to the year 2020.

Pegging mortgages to 20-year or 25-year limits seems to make sense, because beyond those periods the rate of loan reduction shrinks.

But now the counter-argument. A great many families who have 20-year mortgages will hold them only 7 or 8 years. That's what the statistics tell us. And for them, a 40-year amortization period might make sense.

In this way: They repay with the fewest dollars. A greater amount of their monthly payment is in interest and thus is deductible on income taxes. After 7 or 8 years they sell, and make large capital gains.

The answer, therefore, isn't clearcut.

—Does it pay to save? You can make a strong case that it doesn't. But don't follow the reasoning to its illogical conclusion.

Those who say it doesn't pay to save maintain that the effort is futile so long as inflation exceeds the interest earned on the savings. They point out also that savers are taxed on the "interest earned."

Borrowers, meanwhile, repay in cheaper dollars. And they earn two bonuses too: 1. all interest paid on borrowings is tax-deductible; 2. they have the immediate use of the money. A saver does not.

But there are some things that credit usually won't buy, such as a house with no money down. The confirmed debtor might never own a house. The confirmed saver, though he has lost money, might.

Therefore, and although it sounds contradictory, it sometimes pays to save even when to save means to lose money.

The person who manages to accumulate that down payment then can go into hock in a really big league way. Instead of settling for a few thousand dollars at a time he can take out a $25,000 home mortgage.

So, does it pay to save? It doesn't and it does.

—Does inflation help anyone these days?

It sure does. It helps the U.S. Treasury, for example, by raising the income tax take. It helps the administration by permitting it to go in for more spending projects. And, of course, it helps many borrowers.

But the truth is that inflation is now catching up to a lot of people who once appeared immune. The Treasury is endangered by the decline of the dollar. So is the White House. So is Congress.

So too are many municipalities that a decade ago found in debt the answer to their problems. They've been forced to cut services and employees. They have seen expenses rise as their credit ratings fell.

Those individuals who borrowed to invest in stocks have found that inflation has depressed investment returns. Those who borrowed to buy property have found oil and janitorial services rise faster than rents.

In its early stages inflation is often praised because it puts money in circulation, transfers financial power from the "idle" rich and puts it in the hands of those who "know how to use it," and so on.

But eventually it leaves few people unaffected. It is, after all, a disease — contagious, malignant and sometimes terminal.

Answers To Energy Flap

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The meaning of statistics — like beauty — is in the eye of the beholder. Perhaps nothing illustrates that better than the figures President Carter and Ronald Reagan have been tossing about for the past two days on the nation's energy situation.

Q: Reagan said Wednesday that the United States is more dependent on oil imports now than four years ago, but Carter said Reagan was wrong. Reagan was using the Energy Department's own statistics, so how can they disagree?

A: Using Energy Department figures, Reagan said U.S. crude oil imports were 6 percent higher in the first half of 1980 than in 1976. Actually, Reagan got it wrong, by comparing a first half with a whole year. If Reagan had looked up 1976 first-half figures, he would have found that crude oil imports in 1980 were really 17.4 percent higher.

Q: Then it's worse than he said?

A: Not exactly. You see, the nation imports refined petroleum products as well as crude oil. Total oil imports in the first half of 1980 were only 7 percent higher than in the first half of 1976.

Q: Well, Reagan was saying Carter misled the public by claiming he reversed the dependence on foreign oil. He was right then?

A: Not exactly. Total oil imports grew rapidly, both in number of barrels and as a percentage of total U.S. supply, all through the eight years of Republican Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford. During the first six months of 1977, when Carter had just taken office, oil imports reached a peak of 9.1 million barrels a day, or nearly 49 percent of U.S. demand.

During the rest of Carter's term, oil imports have dropped. In the first half of 1980, total oil imports averaged 7.2 million barrels a day, down more than 2 percent from first-half 1977, providing only 41.5 percent of U.S. needs.

Reagan can say truthfully that U.S. dependency on oil imports has not shrunk below the 1976 level; but Carter can say truthfully that it has decreased substantially since he took office.

Q: What about depending on Arab oil? Reagan said Arab oil imports are up 16 percent, including a 33 percent increase in

As I Recall It

The Unnecessary Chore In Homes Of The Past

By NOEL YANCEY

In the years immediately preceeding and during World War II, one of the most distasteful tasks in millions of American households was also completely unnecessary. It was that kneading into a pound of pristine white oleomargarine, the little packet of coloring matter which the manufacturer furnished to make the oleo look like what it really was: a low-cost substitute for expensive butter. In those days, it was against the law in North Carolina and in a host of other states to sell colored oleo. And even when the Legislature, heeding the outraged crys of the housewives, repealed the ban, there still remained a punitive federal tax of 10 cents per pound on colored oleomargarine.

It took years, with embattled dairymen resisting every inch of the way, to remove the last vestiges of the barriers they had persuaded the lawmakers to erect against the manufacture and sale of oleomargerine. For example, it was still illegal for restuarants to sell colored oleo. And the few that did were required to display prominently a sign proclaiming the shameful fact: "Oleomargerine Served Here." State law also imposed a 10-cent tax on the sale of oleomargarine containing copra — dried coconut meat — or any vegetable matter not grown in North Carolina.

In those days, it was customary for supermarkets to list two prices for oleomargarine in their weekly newspaper ads. On June 1, 1949, Raleigh housewives could buy uncolored oleo for 28 cents per pound. But to get the colored kind they had to fork out another dime — the amount of the federal tax.

A French chemist, Hippolyte Mege-Mouries, invented oleo — which he called margarine — to win a prize offered by Napoleon III. the French ruler offered the prize because the price of butter had soared to the point only the very wealthy could afford it. The process is simple: fats, either animal or vegetable, or a mixture, cooked with a mixture of milk and salt. Now, vegetable oils — corn, cotton seed or soybean oil is used mostly. It resulted in a product that is easy to digest, and has almost the same number of calories as butter, at a fraction of the cost. Worried dairymen fought from the first to keep it off the market. The restrictions they persuaded lawmakers to enact succeeded at first.

But the high cost of butter proved their undoing. When the price of butter soared past $1 a pound — an astronomical figure in those days, housewives turned to the substitute. They put up with the distasteful task of mixing coloring matter to make it look like butter, but they let the lawmakers know they were not happy.

In the end, the yellow color associated with butter became the big issue. When a bill to repeal all federal taxes on oleomargarine was before Congress in the spring of 1949, Rep. August H. Andresen, R-Minn.. proclaimed that he had no quarrel with oleo but he strongly objected to its being sold "as an imitation to butter."

"Yellow is the color we're fighting over in this issue," he declared. Rep. Anton Johnson, R-Ill., asserted that if the oleo tax were repealed, "millions of people are going to unwittingly pay butter prices for a cheap imitation," and Rep. Katherine St. George, R-N.Y., asserted oleo should be "virgin white."

"If it's so perfect," she asked, "why does it need another color?"

Before it passed the measure 260-106, the House wrangled for three hours over amendments to require that oleo be sold in triangular or round containers. Before the House rejected the amendments, another New York congressman hooted that next, "we'll have a law requiring eggs used on our tables to be triangular-shaped."

With the relaxation of the restrictive anti-oleo laws, consumers turned more and more to the substitute which held and even hyperthermia, overheating the body.

The state university ordered initiation rites stopped at its seven fraternities and named a committee to investigate the organizations.

Call's death was the 15th hazing fatality in the past 2½ years, according to Eileen Stevens.

Mrs. Stevens of Sayville, N.Y., has made the abolition of hazing a personal crusade — her own son died during an initiation prank in 1978.

"Very often they are called isolated incidents or unfortunate accidents," she said. "They are neither. Accidents are spontaneous, and these hazings are premeditated and planned and perpetuated in the name of tradition. It's happening far more often than people realize."

Leaders of national fraternities say the rebirth of hazing is an unfortunate byproduct of the organizations' returning popularity.

In 1971, the total active membership of the nation's fraternities had fallen to about 139,000, according to the National Interfraternity Conference. This year, it is expected to reach 245,000 members.

"I think there has been an increase in the number of incidents in the last couple of years," conceded Ken Tracey, executive director of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the nation's largest fraternity. "People wouldn't put up with it in the early '70s. The fraternities were worried about survival in those days, and they couldn't concern themselves with hazing."

Added Fred Yoder of Sigma Chi: "It's a problem that is more potentially prevalent now than it was 10 years ago. There is more competition to get into fraternities, and today's student tends not to be as questioning, as critical, as many were in the early '70s."

Most national fraternities punish local chapters that violate their anti-hazing rules. Last year, SAE suspended its chapters at the University of Arizona and Gettysburg (Pa.) College for hazing.

The job dragged on. Soon it was 1:30, then 2 then 2:30 and finally I reached a state of satisfaction. The job was finished . . . but it was 3 p.m., too late to go to Morehead, Raleigh, Wilmington or even Whichards Beach.

Neverthless, the pleasure of getting an onorous job done might be as rewarding as going to the beach.

Can't wait for another day off. . . there are two chest of drawers that need cleaning out, and several boxes in the attic. Where does all the junk come from?

A couple times a week I sort through papers, correspondence and envelopes in my office, but it's a losing battle. The stuff just accumulates.

Incredibly none of what I save is ever needed again . . . not, that is, until it is finally thrown away. Then comes a request for a picture which was sent in last January. Help!

Oh well, clothes which are saved come back in styie. Old furniture becomes antique and valuable. Maybe old papers will have some value some day.

Virda Shook Shares A Life Of 80-Plus Years

TOWNS COUNTY, Ga. — I first met Virda Shook in 1971. During that year, and those which followed, I discovered that the beauty of this rural north Georgia county of Towns is revealed not only in its waterfalls, mountains, and lakes, but also in its people — their spirit and their humor.

I owe a special debt to Virda Shook who, along with her family, warmly welcomed this stranger into their home. "Why, stay the night" or "You'd better eat something" were not just empty statements, but sincere hospitality.

Relatives and friends alike call Mrs. Shook "Maw" or "Granny." Well into her eighties now, this tiny humpbacked woman still commands great respect due to her strength and endurance. She raised her seven children alone, after the death of her husband, and had labored at a wide variety of jobs to keep the family going. Once she even worked hauling rocks, enough for a neighbor to build an entire house.

Virda Shook continues to share not only food and hospitality, but also her experiences from days gone by — lessons learned and never forgotten.

Oh Lordy, one time when I was ten or fifteen, Daddy says to me, "You quit snuff an I'll get you a dress."

I says, "Alright."

Well I quit for him, but I didn't behind his back, now understand. I went to the store one day and got a dime box of snuff. I never will forget it, but I got a whippin' for it.

At home I went over to my playhouse, and Daddy was sittin' on the porch. He watched me, but I didn't think about him watchin' me.

I took my snuff and scratched a hole in this tree stump, put the snuff down in the stump, then put a piece of bark over it. Then I put me a rock over the bark and raked dirt over the top. An he's awatchin' me.

Later, I got the snuff, turned the box up, an put the snuff in my mouth, An he's awatchin' me. I didn't know he seen me. So he called me to the house. I come to the house an he says, "Did I raise you to tell stories?"

I said, "No, Daddy, you didn't raise me to tell stories."

He said, "There's a knot on your tounge. Why, you told a story!" When I got your dress, you told me a story about the snuff. You know what you gonna do?"

I said, "No, what?"

"You gonna get a good whipping."

He went over there to be sure I had the snuff in the tree stump. He got the snuff out and said, "What do you call this, little story?"

I said, "Daddy, I'm sorry."

He says I know you are, tellin' a story. I'm gonna whip you just the same. God tells me to whip you and I'm gonna do it."

Well, he got him a hickory about like a broom straw and nettled me real good. I cried all ev'nin.

I says, "Daddy I do like my snuff."

He says, "Now you can use the snuff, an I'll take the dress."

I says, "What'll you do with the dress?"

He said, "I'll give it to some other little girl that won't tell stories."

He didn't give the dress away. I wore it to school.

And he didn't whip me for the snuff. He whipped me for tellin' a story. Boys, that broke me from tellin' stories. He sure did whip me for that. Nettled me real good.

Nine Years And 2 Kids Have Made Difference

Phillip and I may not look that much different than we did on our wedding day, but two kids and nine years of marriage have taken their toll. The downhill trend is nowhere more evident thar in the way we celebrate ou wedding anniversary.

On our first two anniversaries we dined by candlelight at a fancy restuarant. He gave me jewelry. I gave him recordings of classical music.

On our third and fourth anniversaries we went to the movies. He gave me sweaters. I gave him shirts.

On our fifth anniversary, he gave me a vacumn cleaner. I gave him hedge clippers.

On our sixth anniversary he gave me a television antenna. I gave him new curtains for the bedroom.

On our seventh and eight anniversaries, we gave each other cards.

This year we gave each other a high chair.

I even had trouble remembering the date of this anniversary. I woke up that morning, stared blankly at the wall for a few minutes, then stumbled toward the bathroom.

"Happy Anniversary!" Phillip sang out. "I love you!"

"You don't sound too enthusiastic."

"I haven't had my shower. I've got a card for you around here someplace."

He looked crestfallen. "I didn't get you one. I'm sorry."

"Pancakes."

"It's not that special. How about raisin bran?"

"Raisin bran it is."

Phillip gently removed my hand from the oven door. "Never mind. I've been thinking. We really ought to celebrate tonight. Let's get a babysitter and go out."

"Where?"

"I don't know. Where do you want to go?"

"And then there's our problem with babysitters."

"What's that?"

"We don't know any."

"Can't you call around? Surely, some of our friends go out occasionally."

"Yes, but this is a school night. We'd have to be home by 10:00."

Phillip sighed. "Maybe we should celebrate here."

So we did. He got the champagne. I got the TV Guide.

As he nuzzled my cheek during a comercial for chewing tobacco, he murmured, "You know, Gail, we're not getting better. We're getting older."

Re: MERGER OF CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM WITH THE COUNTY

This same situation came up approximately seven to eight years ago when I was living in Chesterfield County, which is in the suburbs of Richmond.

The citizens opposed this, and the case went to court. The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals declared it unconstitutional. In essence, it meant they could bus my children to Petersburg (20-25 miles). The gas waste, money spent, energy involved, not to mention the inconvenience this would cause is overwhelming to me.

It will be opposed here, also. Taxpayers are tired of being walked on, and I am glad to see they ae finally standing up and saying so.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Ott Alford, Superintendent of Pitt County Schools.

D-Q University Today In Its Best Shape Ever

By JENNIFER KERR
Associated Press Writer

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — A year ago, an Indian college created in discarded Army buildings and named for god-like figures with unpronounceable names seemed about to lose its nine-year struggle with the federal government.

But today, D-Q University is in its best shape ever.

The college is receiving $224,685 in long-delayed federal Indian college money. Its accreditation problems have improved. And when it begins classes in late September, D-Q will have its first full-time faculty and 200 students, 120 of them in a newly renovated dormitory with solar panels and a greenhouse.

"Compared to a year ago, things are really going well," says Steven Baldy, a Hoopa Indian and D-Q president.

"D-Q went through a tough year and a-half," says American Indian Movement founder Dennis Banks, a Chippewa and chancellor. "Now, we're turning the corner."

Obstacles remain, however. D-Q must reapply to renew the federal grant, and it must demonstrate to the Western Association of Schools and Colleges that it will have money, students, faculty and its land in the future.

D-Q, originally named Deganawidah-Quetzalcoatl in 1971 but later shortened because of the sacredness of the Iroquois and Aztec names, has been investigated over the years by numerous branches of the federal government.

"We have been audited by every audit possible. They even audit the auditors," says David Risling, a Hoopa Indian and D-Q board member.

The idea for the school dates to 1970 when Risling, who heads the Native American Studies department at the nearby University of California at Davis, wanted education that would work for California Indians.

Standard education, he says, was trying to "mainstream" Indians, to change them into white men.

In 1970, Risling and others searched for federal surplus land and found the Army Communications Center site 10 miles west of Davis. It had been closed since 1956.

The Indian group, joined by a Mexican-American group, received a 30-year lease from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to use the land for a college, but only after a lawsuit and occupation of the land.

The fledgling two-year college received grants from private foundations and in its early years also got federal money.

The Indian and Mexican-American sections split in 1978 because of the passage of a federal law that law required the college to have Indian board members and students. The Mexican-American board members resigned. The school is now almost all Indian.

D-Q was in its deepest trouble early in 1979, when the federal Office of Education froze more than $200,000 in student scholarships because of suspected misuse of previous funds. But after an audit, it released the funds last October.

Drug Ring Planned Death Of Youths

MIDDLEBURY, Conn. (AP) — A 22-year-old man says a former roommate lured him to a wooded area where he was kidnapped to New York, shot, wrapped in a rug and dumped in the East River. Authorities said the shooting and a similar one that ended in death are connected with the collapse of a drug ring that allegedly sold cocaine on college campuses in the Northeast.

Ten arrests were made in the abductions, and investigators said a woman hired as a killer was being sought.

Joseph Vilela told authorities that after he was dumped in the river he freed himself from his bonds and played dead while his assailants fired more gunshots into the water. He was picked up by a passing tugboat a half hour later.

Vilela was reported to be in protective custody Friday.

The body of the other man, wrapped in a rug and shot in the chest and left shoulder, was pulled from the East River a week ago. He was identified as John K. Senior, 20-year-old son of a former major stockholder in the Pillsbury Co. and a student at New England College in Henniker, N.H.

Authorities said the shootings of the men, who are both from wealthy Middlebury, Conn., families, were part of a complex case involving a cocaine trial in New Haven and the collapse of the drug ring.

Law enforcement sources in New York said the two victims were "fingered" out of fear they would be surprise witnesses in the trial of Dean Kachulis, 22. Kachulis pleaded guilty Monday in New Haven to narcotics charges.

Investigators said that after the drug ring collapsed, resulting in the trial of Kachulis and others, the killings of four young pushers were planned. Sources said the group allegedly sold cocaine on college campuses in the Northeast.

Vilela told authorities that on Labor Day he went to a Waterbury apartment shared by Kachulis, his former roommate, and 22-year-old Scott Douglas. Kachulis told him, Vilela said, that he wanted to introduce him to some friends who had met Senior earlier in the day.

Vilela told authorities he was taken to a wooded area near Waterbury, where several men and a woman drove up in a van and bound him before taking him to New York.

Bronx, N.Y., District Attorney Mario Merola quoted Vilela as saying he was taken to a warehouse there and was blindfolded, gagged, shot in the face, wrapped in a rug and bound before being dropped into the river.

On Wednesday, FBI agents arrested Kachulis, Douglas and John McCullough, 33, of the Bronx, charging them with murder and attempted murder. A day later, FBI agents in New York, acting on a kidnapping indictment, arrested David Taylor, 30, of Manhattan, and Charles Simmons, 31, of the Bronx.

UNC Board Met Friday

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — University of North Carolina officials are trying to find out "where we broke down in the education process," says UNC President William C. Friday.

Friday told the UNC Board of Governors on Friday that an analysis of why students at traditionally black state universities fared poorly this year on state bar and nursing examinations would be ready by the board's Oct. 10 meeting.

Law board scores released last month showed that of 31 graduates of N.C. Central University who took the bar exam for the first time, only 12 passed. The showing was the poorest of the system's law schools.

Of the school's nursing school graduates, only 18 percent taking the state nursing exam for the first time passed. Less than half of the nursing students from the state's predominantly black schools passed the exam.

"These results are a deep disappointment to all of us," Friday told the board.

"Our single concern has been and continues to be the students themselves, and for them this must have been a devastating experience," Friday said.

The low scores came despite sustained efforts made since 1972 by the university system to improve the exam performance of graduates of the 16-campus system's predominantly black schools, Friday said.

In other actions, the board awarded $3.1 million in revenue bonds for a new dining hall at North Carolina State University to Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. The 30-year bonds will be retired by food-service receipts.

It also approved a change in the method of financing a $3-million athletic facility at N.C. State. The board originally planned to pay for the project with revenue bonds, but it voted instead Friday to use a bank loan instead.

The loan will be retired over a period of five to 10 years, mainly from gifts and pledges.

oil from Libya.

A: Same story, except the statistics cover only the first five months of 1980, not six. Actually our imports of Arab oil are up 37 percent compared with the first five months of 1976, and Libyan oil is up 65 percent. But Arab oil is down 12 percent and Libyan oil down 16 percent compared with Carter's first months in office.

Q: Well, what about our own U.S. oil production? Reagan said that's down 11 percent.

A: In the "continental United States" was the phrase Reagan used. That leaves out oil production in Alaska. Including Alaskan oil, tooal U.S. oil production in the first half of 1980 was 6.4 percent higher than in 1976. Without Alaskan oil, production in the "Lower 48" was 11.7 percent lower than in 1976.

U.S. oil production outside Alaska has been decreasing steadily since about 1968, throughout the Nixon-Ford years as well as in Carter's term.

Total U.S. oil production moved up a notch with the arrival of Alaskan oil in mid-1977, continued its general downward slidge in 1978 and 1979, and has increased again this year, also due to higher Alaskan production.

A: He can try. Carrying out legislation passed during his term in office, Carter has been gradually lifting price controls from crude oil and most refined products. Carter claims this really does encourage domestic oil development and points to a steep rise in petroleum drilling this year, largely in the "Lower 48," a point Reagan didn't mention.

Q: All right, then, how about coal production? Carter said it's at an all-time high, but Reagan said 100 million tons of production capacity is idle. Who is right?

A: Both of them, apparently. The Energy Department figures do show coal production rising through the Carter administration — apart from 1978, when the United Mine Workers went on strike. Without disputing those figures, the National Coal Association, an industry group, claims that even more coal could be produced if there were more demand for it.

Q: Why isn't that additional coal being produced?

A: The association says coal demand is limited largely by the economic recession and a 20 percent drop in U.S. steel production.

Q: I'm starting to wonder, can I trust statistics at all?

A: You can usually trust the statistics. But you'd better keep a sharp eye on the people who quote them.

Freeway Extension Funds

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Transportation Friday freed $5.2 million in state funds to be used on construction of the Benson-to-Wilmington freeway extension of Interstate 40.

The funds will complement federal allocations for four construction contracts to be awarded later this year. Earlier this year, a total of $15.6 million in federal funds was released for the project.

Four of the projects, totaling 16.27 miles are in Pender County near the southern terminus of the proposed freeway.

Among contracts awarded Friday:

— Resurfacing 27.15 miles of primary and secondary roads in Camden, Dare, Hyde and Pasquotank counties. Dickerson Inc. of Monroe had a low bid of $728,277.

— Grading and paving at Ocracoke airport and Billy Mitchell airport at Frico. Dickerson had a low bid of $302,972.

— Resurfacing 24.6 miles of primary roads in Bladen and Cumberland counties. Dickerson had a low bid of $464,255.

The board also approved a joint contract award with the Virginia Department of Transportation for North Carolina's share of a project to upgrade N.C. 86 and Virginia 265 near Danville, Va. North Carolina's share of the $3.82 million contract is $1.09 million.

increased its price advantage. On a recent day, oleo was advertised in a Raleigh newspaper at about 40 cents a pound. None of the supermarkets that day advertised butter. But a supermarket official said it averaged about $1.89 while oleo averaged about 55 cents.

Naturally, oleo was the spread used mostly at our house, and our daughter, who grew up on it, preferred it to the butter we had sometimes on festive occasions.

One such occasion came when a well-liked — but very positive — brother-in-law was visiting. Because he had frequently — and loudly proclaimed — that "I can tell the difference. No one can fool me," we planned to humor him with real butter. Unfortunately, Frances, my wife, had placed quarter-pound pieces of butter and oleo on saucers and then forgot which was which."

"Here, Marshall," she said." you try them both and tell us which is butter and which is oleo."

Marshall attempted to do this, spreading first one then the other on his bread, and became increasingly irritated when he could not identify his favorite spread.

"Perchie," he said using a nickname. "You did this on purpose, just to aggravate me."

the tax cuts, as stated by Reagan in Chicago Tuesday night: "More than any single thing, high rates of taxation destroy incentive to earn, to save, to invest. They cripple productivity, lead to deficit financing and inflation and create unemployment."

Here is a doctrine that Ronald Reagan believes strikes a most responsive chord with ordinary Americans in these days of economic stress, even if his staffers and the economists inherited from President Ford do not. But it had been so long since Reagan talked that way that many close listeners, including pleased Democratic politicians, thought he had forgotten his own lessons. In this as in much else, the candidate's sins can be traced to his staff.

Klamath Indians To Get $81 Million For Land

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (AP) — About 600 Klamath Indians will collect $81 million on Monday for tribal land that the federal government condemned in the 1960s.

The Klamaths will collect checks distributed by the government through the U.S. National Bank of Oregon branch in Klamath Falls, said bank Manager Lyle Richards.

Indians are expected to line up early to get their payments, some as high as $170,000.

Richards said news reporters will be barred from the bank when the checks are released to avoid what he called a "circus-like atmosphere."

Similar payments in the 1960s generated much publicity because of the large amounts involved.

Some invested in property and established trust funds, but others lost their money to unscrupulous businessmen. Such abuses prompted Klamath leaders to set up a consulting service for Indians who wanted to invest their money wisely.

The Klamath reservation was created by the Treaty of 1864 between the United States and the Klamath, Modoc and Yahooskin Indian tribes.

At one time, the reservation comprised 1 million acres, but by the mid-1950s, nearly a quarter of the land had been sold.

Government payments to the Klamaths started after Congress passed the Klamath Termination Act in 1954. At that time, most of the more than 2,000 Klamaths voted to withdraw from the tribe and take their share of tribal assets with them.

Others refused to give up their land, which was then put in trust by federal officials.

In 1969, the trust was dissolved and the federal government bought the remaining land for $49 million, though Congress had assessed its value at $70 million.

Subsequent court action by the Indians to raise the selling price and several million dollars in interest resulted in the $81 million settlement.

Survived Ejection From 5-Mile Height

BOSSIER CITY, La. (AP) — An Air Force gunner — ejected from his B-52 while it was flying at 29,000 feet — limped down an Arkansas gravel road to get to the nearest town, officials said Saturday.

Staff Sgt. Charles J. Johnson, 26, landed in a heavily wooded area near a gravel road and, after walking all night, hitched a ride into Sheridan, Ark., with construction workers coming off an all-night shift, said Grant County Sheriff's Deputy Eddie Wilson.

"He appeared to be in good physical as well as mental shape as far as the ordeal that he went through," Wilson said.

He said Johnson flagged down a sheriff's deputy about 7:15 a.m. — almost exactly 11 hours after an Air Force spokesman said he was ejected.

The plane was at 29,000 feet — 5½ miles up — during a training flight near Little Rock, Ark., Air Force Base when Johnson was ejected, said Maj. Rod Duchesne, information officer at Barksdale Air Force Base in Bossier City. The accident occurred about an hour after the plane left Barksdale on a training flight, Duchesne said.

The plane returned to Barksdale with the other six crewmembers.

Wilson said Johnson's only obvious injury was the limp. Johnson, a native of Palestine, Ark., was taken for observation to the hospital at Little Rock AFB, said Duchesne.

He was back home Saturday night, asleep and refusing telephone calls, his wife said. She would not comment on the incident.

Each seat has ejection controls and a parachute, Duchesne said.

Military and state police units spent the night searching about 900 square miles of central Arkansas for Johnson. Wilson said Johnson flagged down a sheriff's deputy after the construction workers gave him a lift to Sheridan, a town of about 3,200 about 150 miles northeast of Bossier City and 30 miles south of Little Rock.

"We're just very much relieved to learn that he's been found alive after bailing out from the airplane at that altitude," Duchesne said.

Wilson said the airman had told him what happened, but Air Force officials had asked deputies to say nothing about it until they had had a chance to question Johnson.

He said he did not know exactly how far Johnson had walked.

6 Accounted For In Crash

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Helicopter crews braving turbulent winds and low clouds rescued two men and located the bodies of four others Saturday in the wreckage of a Navy helicopter that crashed in the North Cascade mountains with seven aboard.

The four victims and the one crew member missing were Navy men from Whidbey Island Naval Air Station. Their names were not released pending notification of relatives.

Rescue crews reached the crumpled copter Saturday in the rugged mountains of northern Washington, about 8 miles south of the Canadian border, after hikers stumbled across the wreckage.

"It was described as being a fiery crash," said Neil Clement, spokesman for the Whatcom County Emergency Services department.

The cause of the crash was unknown, Clement said, and there was no trace of the missing seventh crewman.

The helicopter was missing since it crashed Thurday evening while searching for an injured Canadian hiker. The hiker was later evacuated with a severely sprained ankle.

Two crash survivors were reported in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Bellingham. They were identified as Whatcom County sheriff's deputy Dustin Hurlbut, 30, of Bellingham, and Navy Lt. Richard A. Wall, 26, of Detroit, who was co-pilot of the large, twin-rotor helicopter.

Hurlbut suffered second- and third-degree burns on the arms and face and a cut on the right knee, Clement said, while Wall suffered second- and third-degree burns to the face and fractures of both arms.

Clay Kirkman Says

Fall is one of the busiest seasons for the gardener because it is the best time of the year to plant shrubbery, bulbs and grasses. Although, it is too early to plant the bulbs now, you should go ahead and purchase them while there is a good selection to pick from.

It is the time to plant your cool season grasses such as fescue and Italian rye. Remember that Italian rye grass is an annual and will die in June or July. Kentucky 31 Fescue is the best grass for our area since it will come closest to giving a year round green lawn.

Before you start to seed your lawn, you should take a soil sample test of your yard. Soil sample boxes are available at all Belk Tyler Garden Shops.

If lime is recommended, spread it evenly over the soil and work it in well. If it is a new lawn, disk or hand rake the lime in. Before planting, apply a complete fertilizer, such as 8 8 8 as recommended in the soil test.

If the soil was not tested, broadcast 75 lbs. of ground limestone per 1000 sq. ft. Use 25 lbs. of a complete fertilizer per 1000 sq. ft. If you are using Italian rye grass use half of the above rates.

Seed fescue at the rate of 5 to 7 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft. Seed Italian rye grass at the rate of 4 to 5 lbs. per 1000 sq. ft. Seeding is the fastest and most economical means of planting grass. It can either be planted by hand or with a spreader. Be sure to keep the seedlings moist until the grass is well established.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops now have everything you need to establish a beautiful lawn from the seed to the spreader. Be sure to come by and pick up several camellias since 1980 is the year of the camellia.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By LOUISE PERRY

Several famous children's authors have recently published new books for the middle graders. These are sure to be among the most popular books for fall reading.

Betsy Byars, Newberry-award winning author of "Summer of the Swans" and "Pinballs," has given us another novel of the problems facing today's youth. Retta, Johnny, and Roy are "The Night Swimmers," three children whose father, Shorty leaves them alone while performing as a country-western singer. Since their mother died, Retta has been in charge of her two younger brothers, feeding them (tomato soup and noodles is her favorite recipe for spaghetti), clothing them, and entertaining them. But the boys begin to grow up and have ideas of their own and Retta's struggle to keep the family together only makes them wiggle away faster.

"The Famous Stanley Kidnapping Case" is Zilpha Keatley Snyder's newest book and continues the adventures of the Stanley family, begun in the "The Headless Cupid". In this book Jeff Stanley, father of David, Janie, Blair, and Esther, has married Molly, mother of Amanda. The family takes off on a trip to Italy to claim an inheritance, but is devastated by the kidnapping of Amanda. Rather, Amanda was supposed to be the one kidnapped, but all the Stanley children get involved and the kidnappers find they have more to deal with than they ever dreamed. From Janie, who constantly gives the kidnappers advice as to how to conduct a better kidnapping, to Esther who gives advice as to nutrition and complains about the mess they are being kept in, the whole family finds maturing rewards in the experience. And in the process, the reader is provided with a timely, funny and marvelous story.

Jean Craighead George, winner of the 1973 Newberry Medal for "Julie of the Wolves," has written a new book for young readers, "The Cry of the Crow." This is the story of a girl and her pet crow, which she must keep secret because her father and and brothers shoot crows to protect their strawberry crop. Mandy learns the crow's cry of warning, and, in order to insure her dependance, continues to feed her long after the crow should be learning to fend for herself. The hilarious antics of the crow, who has learned to imitate human speech, and the problems of a girl who must learn to let go of her most treasured possession, make for a heart warming story.

"The Nancy Drew Cookbook" is a must for all Carolyn Keene fans. "Cooking is no mystery" says Nancy, and then proceeds to teach young readers how to add that special "secret ingredient" to make recipes taste great. Nancy's friend Bess, who loves rich desserts, and George who specializes in slimming menus, all lend their advice to the cookbook. The boys are the experts on barbecues, picnics, and beach parties. Some of the specialties are: "Brass Bound Trunk Candy," "Crumbling Wall Coffee Cake," and "Whistling Bagpipes Crunchies."

News Briefs

Access To Records More Difficult

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Newspaper reporters are finding it increasingly difficult to obtain access to public records at the local, state and federal levels, a group of editors and reporters was told Saturday.

Ed Book, editor of The Burlington Daily Times-News, said there appears to be a trend toward closing public records that in the past have been open for reporters and the public to inspect.

Book was moderator of a panel discussion on access to public records during the annual meeting of the North Carolina Associated Press News Council.

He advised editors and reporters to educate themselves on laws governing public access to records and to write stories about incidents in which public officials refuse to allow them to inspect records such as arrest reports, jail logs and salary schedules for public officials.

R.W. Ellis, a Greensboro attorney who handles public access cases, said North Carolina law dealing with access to official documents is extremely broad and "there isn't adequate definition" of what reporters should be allowed to see.

Big Demand For Economical Horse Meat

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Tacos and soda were a bargain at 15 cents this week at Steve Metje's butcher shop, and the fact that they were made of horse meat didn't appear to discourage anyone.

Metje says his customers also were taking advantage of his horseburger sale — 10 pounds for $7.90.

Plans for a sandwich shop — specializing in horseburgers and horse meat sandwiches — are in the works, he said.

"Horse meat is about 50 percent less expensive than corresponding beef cuts and grinds," said Metje, who sells 3,000 to 3,500 pounds of it each week.

"It has as much protein as beef, 50 percent fewer calories and about 14 percent less fat.

"I think it's time that people in this country overcome the cultural stigma related to horse meat and use our natural resources to the fullest."

The demand for horse meat isn't as great as it was during the beef shortage of 1972-73, when horse meat could be bought for about one-fourth the cost of beef. But the demand is still there, Metje says. And horse meat has become much more difficult for small retailers to get.

Brothel Owners To End Fortress Image

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP) — The new owners of the nation's most famous brothel said Friday they plan to make it more hospitable by taking down the gun towers that give it a fortress-like image as they expand the complex.

"My dear, it's going to be a high-class brothel," said purchaser Gina Wilson, after winning a temporary county license that will allow closing of the sale of the Mustang Ranch, east of Reno.

Ms. Wilson, who with 29-year-old Miami, Fla., attorney Wayne Drizin is buying the brothel from flamboyant Joe Conforte, is also madam of the Salt Wells Villa bordello.

Drizin said "substantial" changes are planned, including removal of the gun towers which, together with the barbed-wire fence around the brothel, gained it a "sex fortress" image in press accounts.

The new owners also said they plan to expand by rebuilding and reopening the old Mustang complex, a set of mobile homes near the newer facility.

Drizen said reports that the purchase price was about $19.8 million were "close."

The three-member Storey County Commission voted unanimously to grant a temporary operating license, which will allow the new owners to take over on Sept. 17.

They would then have to be permanently licensed by the commission.

The two chuckled at, but did not deny, reports that they plan to double the size of the operation so it can handle 150 prostitutes.

Drizen said he decided to purchase the bordello after he had tried to put the deal together for a client who backed out. He also will become a partner in the Salt Wells brothel.

The Mustang and Conforte have been centers of controversy in northern Nevada for years, and Conforte has been indicted in neighboring Washoe County on charges of trying to bribe the Lyon County district attorney.

Conforte says disputes with the Internal Revenue Service are forcing him to sell.

Venezuela Lures Immigrants

By EDUARDO GALLARDO

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — "If you can't make it to Miami, Venezuela is the place to go," said a woman from the Dominican Republic as she stood in a long line recently at the Immigration Department here, trying to get her papers in order to live and work in Venezuela.

The woman, 44-year-old Esperanza Arcangel, came here to work as a maid. And she is among hundreds of thousands of foreigners coming to Venezuela in search of a new life. A stable democracy and the prosperity brought in by the oil wealth — two rarities in South America in recent years — seem to play key roles in luring the immigrants to Venezuela.

Officials say Venezuela runs second only to the United States as the favorite choice of Latin American migrants, both legal and illegal.

As a result, Venezuela, a country which has traditionally had an open door for foreign immigration, has reached a point where it simply does not know how many foreigners are living in its territory. And it wants to find out. Some sources say that up to 20 percent of the nation's 13 million inhabitants may be foreigners.

The government has invited all illegal aliens living in the country to register in a National Census of Aliens which will last four months. Authorities have promised that nobody will be deported.

"You will be given a one-year residence permit which will allow you to legally work while you put your papers in order," says the message from the government to the illegal aliens read over and over on radio and television.

"There may be as many as 2 million 'indocumentados'," as illegal aliens are called here. "But no one really knows exactly," admitted Luis Alberto Guillen, head of the Immigration Department. Other sources say the figure may exceed 2.5 million. Authorities believe there are 1.5 million illegal aliens from neighboring Colombia alone.

The Colombians simply walk across the border and get poorly paying jobs in farms in remote areas. Others trek to the cities where their lot may be slightly better.

Political violence in some South American countries in recent years has brought many more thousands of legal and illegal aliens to democratic Venezuela.

Venezuela also has up to 800,000 European immigrants, mainly from Spain, Italy and Portugal. But the European immigration here, usually economically motivated, started well before the mass arrival of Latin Americans, and authorities say the problem of illegal aliens among Europeans is virtually non-existent.

Venezuelan president Luis Herrera Campins said in a recent speech that illegal aliens should not be afraid of registering in the census. The census will be good for them, he said, "because it will put an end to the merciless, inhuman exploitation" that many illegal aliens now suffer at the hands of Venezuelan employers who take advantage of their situation.

But many observers, including some newspapers here, still have doubts about the census. They say that illegal aliens simply will not register for fear of being deported.

Said Esperanza Arcangel, the Dominican woman at the Immigration Department, "If I can't get my papers before the census I'll simply remain illegal."

Ms. Arcangel said that she has two brothers and "lots of friends" who emigrated to the United States. But she thinks that language "would be an unsurmountable barrier for me," so she decided to come to Caracas instead.

To Discuss Refugees

The current refugee situation and the resulting issues the United States is facing will be presented by Dr. Hans Indorf at an open meeting of the League of Women Voters Monday at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church of Greenville, corner of Elm and 14th streets.

Dr. Indorf, a former professor of political science at East Carolina University, has been in Washington, D. C. the past three years, serving as director of legislative affairs for Sen. Robert Morgan. He received his Ph. D. at New York University, specializing in Southeast Asian affairs, and has traveled extensively and resided with his family in Malaysia.

He will examine the following points: How do we define who is a refugee? Do they have rights to our laws and what are the exceptions? Do we have a moral obligaton to accept refugees? What are the implications for the future? Is America willing to absorb them? What are the possible limitations of entry?

Ms. Elaine Schaal, international relations chairperson, urged the public to attend, saying, "We feel that Dr. Indorf feels the pulse of the present issues concerning refugees as they affect us locally, nationally and internationally.

Advisory Panel Will Meet

The Parent Advisory Council of Wellcome Middle School will have an organizational meeting Tuesday, Sept. 16 at 3:30 p.m. in Room B-9.

Bernard Haseltig, assistant superintendent in charge of Title I, will attend the session to answer questions, while Bobby Pettis, guidance counselor at Wellcome, will assist in the Title I organizational meeting.

Parents who are involved or interested in becoming involved with their child's educational process are urged to attend, a spokesman said.

Water Flushing Will Continue

The sixth phase of the city's water distribution system flushing program will get underway tonight and continue through Friday morning, according to Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville Utilities' Water and Sewer Department.

Lewis said that the area bordered on the north by Tenth Street, on the south and east by Greenville Boulevard, and on the west by Elm Street will be involved in the current phase.

The flushing is done between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. on Sunday nights through Friday mornings.

Inmate Celebrates 104th Birthday

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — John Davis added another year to his record as South Carolina's oldest prison inmate Friday, celebrating his 104th birthday and looking strong enough to make 105.

"All I need is a new body," he said as he hobbled slowly up the steps of the prison chapel to the birthday party a local beauty school holds for him each year.

Classes Being Offered

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will offer instruction in wrestling for boys 6 years to 12-years-old. The instructor will be Frank Schaede, assistant wrestling coach at Rose High School. Classes are held each Wednesday, 7 to 8 p.m. at Elm Street Center, beginning Sept. 17 for 10 weeks. Fee is $11. Preregister by calling 752-4137, or come to first class.

The Recreation and Parks department is also sponsoring a dog obedience class at Elm Street Gym Thursday nights at 7:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 18. Each dog must be at least four months old. Fee for ten weeks is $32. Preregister by calling 752-4137.

1980 Collard Festival Is A Delight

GOVERNOR HUNT ENJOYS THE PARADE...Governor Jim Hunt didn't settle for merely watching the 1980 Collard Festival Parade, he rode in it. Smiling and waving to the crowd, Hunt appeared at ease. The governor also spoke briefly to the Saturday morning crowd.

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — The 1980 Collard Festival brough fun and frolic to Ayden residents the entire wee of September 8-14. Foot races, wild west show and carnival rides kept all who attende occupied and wondering just how they woul have time to take in all the the activities.

Foot races and a softball tournament starte the week off on Sunday and Monday. O Wednesday, a disco dance was held and o Thursday Lisa Steen of Ayden was crowned Mis 1980 Collard Festival Queen. The talent show o Friday night provided a chance for folks to se just how much local talent is around.

The week climaxed on Saturday with th parade, collard cooking and collard eatin contests. D.A. Rogers, the 1979 Collard Eatin' Champ, won the title for another year by out-eating his fifteen opponents. Rogers ate over six pounds of collards.

"My timing is what kept me going," said Rogers. "I just ate steady and as much as I could hold." Rogers commented that he'd wait a few days before having collards again.

Today the 1980 festival will conclude with the golf and tennis mixed doubles tournaments, a gospel sing, and a horseshoe tournament. To all that were involved, what's left is to pack it up and begin planning for next year...

THE DEFENDING CHAMPION... The 1979 winner of the Collard Eating Contest, D.A. Rogers, starts on his fifth pound of collards as he defends his title in this year's contest. Rogers' bid for the championship was successful. He consumed over six pounds of collards in the thirty minutes, one pound over his nearest competition.

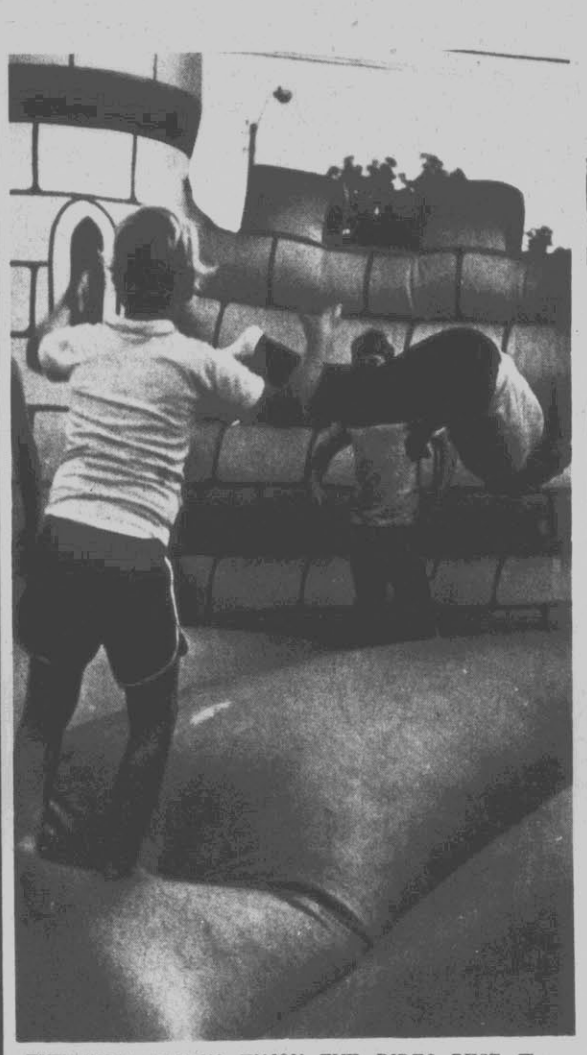
LISA STEEN CROWNED MISS COLLARD FESTIVAL QUEEN 1980...The 1980 Collard Queen, Lisa Steen, is congratulated by the runners-up and the 1979 queen at the conclusion of the beauty pageant Thursday night.



THE KIDS ALWAYS ENJOY THE RIDES BEST...The carnival rides and the fun houses were open all week long, providing youngsters with nightly chances to be jostled and bounced. The boy here is trying his luck with a double somersault.

THE WAY THE WEST WAS WON...The Wild West players put on shows almost daily during the past week, delighting their audiences with authentic shoot'em-ups and bank robberies. Does anyone know where Marshall Dillon is?

FACULTY RECITAL SEPTEMBER 21 . . . Dr. Otto Henry, shown here performing on a Moog Synthesizer, will present a concert of electronic music accompanied by slides and lighting at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, September 21, in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. There is no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend.

Otto Henry Recital Set For Sunday, Sept. 21

A recital of electronic music with slides and visuals will be presented by Otto Henry in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Building at 8:15 p.m., Sunday, September 21.

The concert will employ a mixed media approach, of electronic music accompanied by visual effects in the form of slides and lighting. Henry has composed the music, executed the visual materials, and will perform the music himself.

This concert offers the audience an opportunity to hear the live applications of the synthesizers as well as the results of their use in the Electronic Music Studio in the A. J. Fletcher Music Center.

The clarinet part of one composition, "Tombeau de Carol Lombard" will be performed by Deborah Chodacki, a member of the instrumental faculty of the School of Music.

One of Dr. Henry's recent achievements has been recording and editing, with Karen Helms of Wingate, a new recording of folk music from Monroe and Union Counties, entitled "Hand-Me-Down Music II" on Folkways Records. Previously, published recordings by Henry and Helms are "Between the Sound and the Sea" and "Hand-Me-Down Music I, Old Songs, Old Friends." Henry is also winner of a Hinda Honigman Gold Cup, a North Carolina award for original composition sponsored by the N. C. Federation of Music Clubs.

Henry's program September 21 will include "The Electric Indian (East is East)" for Moog Synthesizer; "Libera me," for Moog Synthesizer; "The Source," for Synthi AKS Synthesizer and painted slides; "Going Up;" "Tombeau de Carol Lombard" for Clarinet and Synthesizer," (Henry's most recent composition; and "Sports et divertissements," Erik Satie's 1914 composition reinterpreted by Henry for the Synthi AKS Synthesizer.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Christine Rusch Is A Playwright Finalist

GREENSBORO — Christine G. Rusch of Greenville is a finalist in the Grassroots Production Limited 1980 playwriting competition. Her entry is entitled "Retreat to Victory."

Mrs. Rusch is a member of the Greenville Writers Club and the Pitt Community College Creative Writing Club.

The wife of pharmaceutical chemist David Rusch, Mrs. Rusch is the mother of three children — Haila, 9, Lara, 4, and Franklin, 3.

She received her BS in chemistry from the University of Toledo, Ohio, and the MEd from Temple University, Philadelphia. She has worked as a cancer research technician and as a high school biology teacher. Currently, she is a homemaker who spends her spare time writing. She describes herself as an experienced theater-goer and a person who enjoys reading plays and related materials.

Also, Grassroots Productions Limited has announced top state winners in the competition.

Jan Davidson of Murphy will receive a grand prize cash award of $1,000 through joint sponsorship of the N. C. Society of Cincinnati, United Arts Council of Greensboro, the N. C. Arts Council and the Grassroots Arts Bill.

Davidson, 32, holds two degree in English from UNC-Chapel Hill and a masters degree in English and Scottish Literature from the University of Edinburgh. He was co-creator of "Diamond Studs," an off-Broadway play, and recently was a songwriter, singer and instrumentalist at the Spoleto Festival in Charleston, S. C. His writings have been published in the "Facing South" column.

In addition to the cash award, Grassroots Productions Limited will stage Davidson's play, "Rise and Fight Again." This will be given at the historic Carolina Theater in Greensboro.

Dean Merritt of Raleigh, a 21-year old auto service mechanics student at the Wake Technical Institute, is the recipient of the Nat Greene Kiwanis Club $300 prize for an undergraduate entry. His play entry is entitled "1781 Emotion."

Lora Elizabeth Phillips of Wilson is the winner of the $300 award for the best high school play, an award sponsored jointly by the Rachel Caldwell and Guilford Battleground Chapters of the DAR. Miss Phillips is a senior at Ralph L. Fike High School, and her play is entitled "The Quaker War."

In addition to Mrs. Rusch, three other finalists were named — Clive Dean of Winston-Salem, Frank John Edwards and J. Walter Forster, both of Greensboro. The four finalists will be presented Certificates of Merit.

A panel of 22 judges selected plays for the semi-finals category, and the responsibility for choosing the grand prize winner was shared by three judges — William E. Snider, editor of the "Greensboro Daily News And Record;" Mrs. Herbert Thorp of Fayetteville, director of the Little Theater of Fayetteville and of Paul Green's "The Highland Call;" and Michael Parrish, director of the drama department at Weaver Educational Center, Greensboro.

Preparation is underway for two weeks of performances of "Rise and Fall Again" in the spring of 1980. Auditions will be held in mid-October for the 36-member cast.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Square dancing is the focal point of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" being aired from noon until 1 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

(The special Saturday program scheduled for last week on antique cars was not aired due to the ball game preceding "Hospitality House" running overtime).

Guests appearing today in connection with observance of the forthcoming Square Dance Week in North Carolina, September 21-27, include Bea Seal, chairman of the round dance program in North Carolina and chaplain of the Folk and Square Dance Federation of North Carolina, and Jerry Powell of Greenville, a square dance caller.

Also, two representative square dance groups, "Sunday Morning" and "My Heart Skips A Beat" will perform typical dances. Details will be given on a charity folk ball to be held with benefits to go to the North Carolina Burn Center.

Another guest on Ms. Currie's program today is Carolyn Hodgkins, associate director of the Community Council for the Arts in Kinston. She will give information on the Bright Leaf Festival taking place in Kinston today, which will include dancing, watermelon eating contests, and a laughing contest.

Filmed segments of "Hospitality House" today will feature Richard Chamberlain, star of "Shogun," and two stars from the TV series "Hill Street Blues," Daniel J. Travanti and Veronica Hamel.

In the kitchen segment, Susan Hardy, of the N. C. Egg Marketing Association, prepares a shrimp dip and an Egg-n-Chicken Casserole.

Ms. Currie announces that for September 21 only, "Hospitality House" will air from 5 to 6 p.m.

Running, With Script

By JOE McGOWAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WALSENBURG, Colo. (AP) — Joe Curtin has the ball and is going for the really long yardage — more than 3,520,000 yards actually.

The 27-year-old actor and former collegiate football player from Marina del Ray, Calif., is running upwards of 2,000 miles from Ada, Ohio, to the Los Angeles Rams stadium in Anaheim. He hopes to persuade the movie industry to produce the script he has written.

It was about 90 degrees recently in the grassland country in southeast Colorado when a reporter chanced on Curtin, trotting all alone down a desolate state highway just east of this farm town.

He had sore feet and ankles, had worn out nine pairs of running shoes and had lost 22 pounds. He had run more than 1,300 miles.

"Boy, I can see Walsenburg up there. I haven't had a beer in five days," Curtin said, wiping the sweat from his head as he sat in the shade near a corral for an interview.

Curtin was running in full football regalia: helmet with face guard, shoulder and hip pads, and a football tucked under one arm in the classic gridiron grip.

The uniform, a water canteen and a small back pack holding a route map, vitamins, toothbrush, toothpaste, razor and a summary of his movie script make a burden of about 21 pounds, Curtin said.

Curtin had hoped to generate publicity, but before a reporter accidentally came upon him, his trip across the rural Midwest had gone altogether unnoticed by the news media.

He started his odyssey on June 10 at the Wilson Sporting Goods plant in Ada, Ohio, where he was given the football uniform, including a jersey with the numeral "2" on it.

"I picked number 2. I guess I'm trying harder," said Curtin, who has named his script about professional football "What Price the Best."

"At Walsenburg, I will have run 1,359 miles," he said. "I'm averaging 30.6 miles per day. I've had three ankle injuries and have been rained out three days.

"I started out without the water canteen, but when I got to western Kansas, there were too many miles between farms where I could get water," he said.

Curtin said he originally is from Taylorville, Ill., and played wide receiver and quarterback for Eastern Illinois University before earning a master's degree in political science.

He is making the arduous run without the benefit of a support team following along with food and drink.

A friend, Mark Jones of Tampa, Fla., is helping finance the trip "by providing $5 a day for food" Curtin said. Another friend sends mail and replacement running shoes to pre-arranged post offices. Curtin was expecting his 10th pair in Walsenburg.

He's making the cross-country jaunt on a "run-sit" schedule. "I run for 25 minutes and sit for five," he said.

Ahead of Curtin as he crosses southern Colorado are the rugged Sangre de Cristo and San Juan mountains, with La Veta Pass at 9,382 feet and Wolf Creek Pass at 10,850 feet. Beyond that lie Utah and the deserts of Nevada and eastern California.

ACC Opening Show Announced

WILSON — A one-woman exhibit of paintings by Catherine Dunn has opened the 1980-81 exhibition schedule at Atlantic Christian College's Case Art Gallery. The show will be on view through September 26.

Born in France, Ms. Dunn has been a faculty member at Alabama's University at Montevallo as instructor of painting and drawing since 1978. She has traveled extensively throughout Europe, Mexico and the United States and has received many grants to pursue her art career.

Many of her paintings are large — and the show at ACC contains only eight works. Commenting on why she paints such large canvasses, Ms. Dunn said: "I want viewers to feel as though they are in the subjects' environment and not merely looking at a painting. Also, a large painting attracts immediate attention

Gallery hours at Case are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, and 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. The public is invited to view the show free of charge.

FORT MILL, S. C. — Entries for the 22nd annual art competition sponsored by Spring Mills, Inc. will be received during the period October 3-12, Stephen R. McCrae, director of art services for Spring Mills, has announced.

Amateur and professional artists from the two Carolinas are eligible to enter the show, the largest non-juried exhibition in the southeast.

Works chosen for the show will be exhibited to the public from October 24 through November 17 in Lancaster, S. C., and will later go on tour in several cities of the Carolinas.

Artists wanting complete details on entries are to contact Sig Huitt, Executive Offices, Spring Mills, Inc., Fort Mill, S. C., 29715 or to phone 803-547-2901.

GRANT IS MADE

WILLIAMSBURG, VA. — The award of a $500,000 endowment grant by the William R. Kenan Jr. Charitable Trust to strengthen Colonial Williamsburg's educational offerings was announced this week.

Auditions Set For Youth Orchestra

Membership requirements and audition plans for the recently formed Eastern Youth Orchestra have been fourmulated.

All music students in Pitt County who play a string, woodwind, brass, or percussion instrument are eligible to audition for the orchestra. It is expected that the majority of those selected will be students in grades 9-12. However, the final selection will be based on ability, not age.

Interested students should be prepared to play — (1) two scales of their choice, (2) a solo piece of at least medium difficulty (Grade III or higher), or (3) an excerpt from an orchestra or band piece of at least medium difficulty.

A further requirement is that all students accepted into the Youth Orchestra must be members in good standing in their school instrumental organization or have a recommendation from their school band or orchestra director.

Two audition times have been scheduled: Saturday, September 20 at 9:30 a.m. and Monday, September 22 at 7:30 p.m. Students should plan to audition at one of these times in Room B105 of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center, East Carolina University.

Government Books Available

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The General Services Administration has announced the publication of two new self-help booklets of general interest to the public. These are:

— "You, the Law, and Retirement," price, $1.20, an Administration on Aging booklet offering legal advice, particularly on retirement; and — "Toys: Fun in the Making," price, $1.50, a how-to booklet on toymaking published by the Administration for Children, Youth and Families.

A copy of either booklet is available by sending check or money order to: Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado, 81009. For the retirement book direct orders to Dept. 164H, and for the toy book to Dept. 185H.

When Honore de Balzac was dying, he called out in delirium for Bianchon — the celebrated doctor in his "Comedie Humaine."

DOUBLE DEMON RUM CUP — in sterling silver, by metalsmith Richard Prillaman, is one of the works of art included in an exhibition of contempory metalsmithing and jewelry of the Southeastern U.S. The show will open at Gray Art Gallery on the ECU campus September 21 and will be on view through October 29. The exhibition is organized by the Mint Museum of Art, Charlotte, and includes work by John Satterfield of the ECU School of Art faculty.

Poetry Forum Meets Sep. 18

The first meeting of the 1980-81 school year of the ECU Poetry Forum will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday, September 18 in Room 204, Austin Building, on the East Carolina University campus.

Subsequent meetings will be held in the upstairs conference room in Mendenhall Student Center on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The forum is open to all who are interested in getting feedback on their poems. Those bringing poems to be read are asked to bring at least six copies of each poem.

Coffee will be served. There is no charge involved in attending the forum, and anyone interested in poetry reading and writing is invited to attend the twice monthly meetings held during the school year.

Weaving Show At Art Center

Weaving, one of the most ancient of art forms, is well, alive and thriving today, as can be attested to by the superb showing of woven art currently on view at the Greenville Art Center.

In many ancient societies, weaving was the baliwick of women, and judging from the make up of artists contributing to this "first shot" exhibit by members of the Coastal Carolina Fiber Guild — 14 women and one man — that precept still holds true.

The art of weaving is undoubtedly more exciting in our day than ever before. It is not only that modern communications and research have made possible the knowledge of many varied techniques, past and present, from all points of the earth, but in addition to time-honored natural fibers, weavers today have at their ready disposal a wide choice of artifical fibers.

The 15 weavers of "first shot" have utilized a wide choice of fibers, ranging from soft, silky ones to nubby heavy textured fibers that include silks, cottons, linens, plastic and metallic fibers. Colors range from the natural earth tans and off-whites of fibers to the warm colors of hand-dved fibers

The variety of items created by these artists is impressive — from the standpoint of utilitarian considerations as well as for the artistic beauty of the pieces. There's shawls, wall tapestries, yardage material, table runners, pillows, pillow covers, and mufflers and other articles of clothing and rugs — even a weed holder.

Some of the pieces rely on the basic appeal of patterns created in the weaving process, with detail added by the sparse use of colored threads contrasting with natural hues. Other weavings employ an entire field of color, in some cases with the accent provided by subite changes in varying hues of the basic color. And in some pieces, the artists have woven in decorative items found in nature — feathers, shells, bits of wood, mica.

The four outside Greenville are Trish Cobb, Farmville; Teresa Salt, Cover City; John Saunders, Lincolnton; and Anne Holton, Washington.

"first shot" is an excellent sampler of what is being done on the contemporary weaving scene today, both from the standpoint of intricate techniques and the beauty that can be achieved by the skill and long hours of work that go into the creation of fine things made by hand.

There's the added reassurance that many of these items are perfect for helping to keep one warm in the cool days ahead.

Membership Party Set For Art Center

An introduction reception to the East Carolina Art Society and the Greenville Art Center for prospective members will be held at the Center, 802 Evans Street, at 11 a.m. Tuesday, September 16.

Mrs. W. S. Corbitt, Jr., chairman of the membership committee of the East Carolina Art Society, has announced that more than 200 invitations have been mailed to prospective new members, inviting them to the event, which is being hosted by the committee. Activities will include a "sherry reception," a mini-lecture on the history of the society and center by Mary Anne Pennington, director of the Art Center, who will explain the advantages offered to those who are members of the society. There will also be a program of piano music.

In addition to prospective new members, current members are invited to attend and to assist members of the membership committee in hosting the event.

Committee members in the past few weeks have also mailed out about 475 invitations to renew membership in the society.

Those on the membership rolls by September 28, whether old or new members, Mrs. Corbitt reminds, will receive an invitation to attend the Fine Arts Ball, the annual society benefit gala, to be held in October.

In addition to Mrs. Corbitt, those on the membership committee are Mrs. James T. Cheatham, Mrs. W. S. Corbitt, III, Mrs. Larry Graham, Mrs. Charles Howard, Jr., Mrs. Don Lemish, Mrs. Jasper Lewis, Mrs. John McConney, Mrs. Mel Markowski, Mrs. T. Donald Taylor, and Mrs. Randolph Williams.

May Have Found Copy Of The Liberty Bell

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Historians believe a fire that destroyed one city landmark, the vacant Stetson Hat Co. building, may lead them to another treasure, a copy of the original Liberty Bell minus the crack.

The historic hat-making complex, which years ago turned out the 10-gallon "Boss of the Plains" cowboy hat of Western fame, was destroyed by arson the night of September 4.

Amid the rubble of the 106-year-old building's clock tower, firemen discovered a 1,000-pound bronze bell, which may have been cast in the same foundry as the Liberty Bell, according to Richard Tyler, director of the city Historical Commission.

Historians believe the bell, now precariously perched on the floor of the brick-and-wood tower — 50 feet above the base — may have come from London's Whitechapel Foundry, which cast the Liberty Bell.

The Liberty Bell, America's symbol of freedom, is enshrined on Independence Mall, just a few miles from the Stetson plant. According to legend, it cracked in ringing after its arrival from England. Recast here in 1753, the bell cracked again July 8, 1885, while being rung during the funeral of Chief Justice John Marshall.

"We're liable to have a duplicate (in the Stetson bell) of what the original Liberty Bell looked like, minus the crack," said Gary Christopher, director of the Atwater Kent Museum, adding that the bell could not be examined safely because of the weakened condition of the clock tower.

Christopher and Tyler are urging the city to hire a demolition contractor to salvage the bell and other historical artifacts from the wreckage.

The historians say they were tipped to the bell's possible significance by "old hands" in the Kensington neighborhood where the vacant John B. Stetson Hat Manufactury now sits.

The triangular building, closed in 1971 and turned over to the city in 1977, was on the eligibility list of the National Register of Historic Places. Its 30 acres of work space were used to turn animal pelts, furs and wool into hats that became world-famous.

"The Stetson mystique, the cowboy hat alone, made it eligible," according to Tyler.

Tyler described Stetson as the "epitome of paternalistic capitalism of the late 19th and early 20th centuries," and, like industrialist Andrew Carnegie, induced loyalty in his predominantly immigrant labor force.

The hat-making genius set up a company town of sorts for his "300 hands," providing them with a Sunday school, a gymnasium and a savings and loan association, according to city records.

Library Group To Give Tea

A tea, sponsored by the Friends of the East Carolina University Library, is being given at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Thomas Brewer from 4 to 6 p.m. on Tuesday, September 16. Mrs. Brewer is on the board of directors of the Friends of the Library.

The tea is being given for members of the several Book Clubs in Greenville.

During the tea, book club members will be informed of the plans and activities of the Friends of the Library.

Beverly Cotten Named PCC Visiting Artist

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

Beverly Cotten has been named the new visiting artist at Pitt Community College (PCC). Her talents include clogging, flat footing, buck dancing, banjo playing and singing.

Her work at PCC is "to present entertaining and educational North Carolina music and dance" to the schools, churches and civic groups in this county for the next nine months, she said.

Miss Cotten is originally from Morrisville, a small town outside Chapel Hill. She attended Cary High School and earned the B.A. and M.A. degrees in psychology at East Carolina University.

An additional plan she has is to get in touch with the older people in the area and find out about the old folk tales, ballads and dancing, and to document them. She would also like to get involved with the local clubs and do some square dance calling, and sing at churches.

Ms. Cotten is especially fond of old gospel songs. One could almost say that folk life is her way of life. "I fell in love with it, I feel it is a very important part of our heritage and history of the state," she said.

"My father used to buck dance and my granddad played the fiddle, but when I went to high school I thought it was 'un-cool'...but clogging with the Green Grass Cloggers rekindled my interest." The Green Grass Cloggers originated in the Greenvile area and has recently split into two parts, one of which is now in Asheville. She performed with them on the road for eight years and toured all over the United States and Canada.

In her clogging and banjo workshops she tries to show and tell people what traditional N.C. and Southern Appalachain heritages are all about. She said she feels that it is good to teach the children how to clog and something about traditional history. "Teach the children how to clog in school and they will in turn teach their families. That's how you keep a tradition going, keep it alive through the kids," she said.

She mastered a lot of her skills in the mountains where she worked as a school psychologist. Two people who have greatly influenced her style have been Willard Watson, a flat foot dancer and wood carver, and Tommy Jarrell, one of the old-time fiddlers. "The thing that was so impressive was the way they would let people come into their homes and they were willing to share what they knew with people," she said.

Ms. Cotten said one of her mottos is: "Folk music and folk dance are for everybody. It originated with people sharing and listening to each other; that's what it was for and what it still is ...the most important part is the sharing and keeping it going."

Currently, Ms. Cotten is adding a new dimension to her knowledge of folk ark — she is learning black-buck-dancing from Alga Mae Hinton of Zebulon. She says Ms. Hinton plays the blues guitar behind her head while she dances.

Dale Named To Drive Post

Timothy C. Dale of 107 Azalea Drive, Greenville, has been named as director of the Business Division of the Pitt County United Way Campaign. He is manager and city executive at Branch Banking and Trust's Greenville Office.

Dale is currently serving as treasurer of the Greenville Noon Rotary Club. He worked on the budget committee of United Way volunteers for the American Cancer Society and the Heart Fund. He also serves on the Business Seminar Task Force of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Dale graduated from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill in 1973 with a B.S. in business administration. He received his M.B.A. from East Carolina in 1975.

Little Named New Director

RALEIGH — Dr. John J. Little has been named the new director of the Archaeology and Historic Preservation Section of the Division of Archives and History, N. C. Department of Cultural Resources.

A native of Saginaw, Michigan, Dr. Little began work on August 18. His job includes supervision of millions of dollars in grants to preservation projects, coordination of archaeological digs, and selection of areas for architectural surveys.

DAR Heads Constitution Observances

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Wednesday, September 17 marks the beginning of week long observances of Constitution Week in America. In Greenville, members of the local Daughters of the American Revolution chapter are spearheading activities honoring the instrument which nearly two centuries ago laid the foundation for American life.

In 1823, Justice Johnson of the U.S. Supreme Court wrote that the American Consitution is 'the most wonderful instrument ever drawn by the hand of man.'

This year of 1980 marks the 193rd anniversary of the Constitution of the United States of America, the oldest constitution still in active use in the world today.

In a proclamation issued by Greenville Mayor Donald C. McGlohon, he notes: "It is of greatest consequence that the citizens of Greenville understand the provisions and principles contained in the Constitution of the United States of America in order to be able to support it properly as 'the greatest docment for human liberty in two thousand years of recorded history.'"

Mayor McGlohon further states that the time set aside for observing Constitution Week (September 17 through September 24) "should be celebrated by appropriate ceremonies and activities. . ." (on the part of all citizens).

The Susanna Coutanch Evans Chapter of the DAR, whose members are spearheading observances in Greenville, is only a little more than a year old. It was established in May 1979, and has Constitution Week observances as one of its primary projects.

The chapter is named in honor of Susanna Coutanch, wife of Richard Evans. It was Evans who deeded properties for the founding of a settlement on the Tar River that later became the town of Greenville. Evans died before the project could be carried to its completion, and his widow Susanna completed the transactions that her husband had begun.

Persons handling details for Constitution Week observances in Greenville are Mrs. Everette M. Ballengee, regent of the Greenville DAR chapter,and Mrs. Donald C. McLane, vice-regent.. Mrs. Ballengee was active in DAR work for years in New Jersey becoming coming to Greenville. Mrs. McLane emphsized that the chapter is not just for older ladies, but for those under 35 as well.

To date, activities planned include a window display with the Constitution theme at Blount-Harvey Department store, downtown; the presentation of a Braille flag to be made at Joyner Library on the East Carolina University camplus at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, September 17; and a talk by Dr. Lawrence E. Hough of the Political Science Department, ECU, on Thursday night in Winterville. (Those interested in details and reservations for the talk are to call Mrs. Ballengee at 756-7483 or Mrs. McLane at 756-1927.)

"We have also contacted churches and schools to have them be aware of and to do something to observe Constitution Week," Mrs. Ballengee observed.

Literature Conference At ECU On October 10

ECU News Bureau

North Carolina writers Guy Owen, Ovid Pierce and Sue Ellen Bridgers will be featured at an East Carolina University conference "North Carolina Literature Thoughts on a New Decade," Oct. 10.

The three writers, along with folklorist Leonidas Betts and scholar William G. Cherry, will discuss aspects of their own and others' writing at the all-day event.

Pierce, auther of The Plantation, The Devil's Halt, The Wedding Guest and Old Man's Gold and Other Stories, will speak on "Southern Writers Response to Modern Mobility."

Owen, whose writings include poetry and fiction The Ballad of the Flim-Flam Man, will share his thoughts on North Carolina poetry. He is the co-editor of Contemporary Southern Poetry: An Anthology.

Ms. Bridgers, author of novels Home Before Dark and All Together Now, has received several awards, including citation from the American Library Association "two Best Book for Young Adults awards", the New York Times Outstanding Book of the Year award and the Boston Globe-Horn Book honor award. She will speak on "Mood and Memory: Images in North Carolina Fiction."

"North Carolina Folklore: The Present and Future" will be discussed by Leonidas J. Betts, former president of the N.C. Folklore Society, editor of the North Carolina Folklore Journal and N.C. State University faculty member.

William G. Cherry, faculty member of the ECU Department of English and specialist in Southern fiction, will speak on North Carolin "connections" in the novels of Walker Percy.

Persons interested in attending the conference may receive further information from "Literature Conference," Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. telephone 757-6143.

Opera For Students

BETHEL — Faces filled with wonder and loud laughs of appreciation were the sights and sounds Friday at Bethel Elementary School as the National Opera Company presented the opera "Don Pasquale" by Gaetano Donizetti.

"A totally new experience for the children," was how occupations instructor Rachael Welborn described the company's visit. "They seemed to really enjoy it. I think their enthusiasm is unbelievable."

"Don Pascuale" has five characters. Dan Pasquale, an old bachelor (the bass part); Doctor Malatesta, Pasquale's friend (the baritone); Ernesto, Pasquale's nephew (the tenor); Norina, a young widow (the soprano); and Carlotto, Maletesta's cousin (bass).

The company's performance of "Don Pasquale" was hearty and humerous, touching the children with its vest and lightheartedness.

Braces For Forest Fires

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Firefighters from Texas to Virginia are preparing for a long and damaging forest fire season caused by dry weather, and work has already started in some states, according to the man in charge of coordinating the effort.

U.S. Forest Service firefighters have been working overtime in some southern states, and 20-man firefighting crews from western states have been brought in to assist them, said Wade Erwin, regional dispatcher for the forest service.

"It's almost going to take a hurricane to relieve the problem," Erwin said.

"Our normal fire season here in the Southeast starts somewhere in the neighborhood of the middle of October and runs through November," he said in a telephone interview Friday night. "We figure we're about two months ahead in some areas because of the drought. We're gearing up for that."

Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas appear to be the hardest hit, said James Montgomery, a spokesman for the Southern Forest Institute, the public relations arm of the forest industry.

Poles Win Demand For Broadcasts Of Catholic Mass

By RUTH E. GRUBER

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Meeting another demand of its workers, Poland said Saturday the state radio will begin broadcasting Roman Catholic mass nationwide on Sundays. Scattered strikes still persisted in some parts of the country.

Newspapers also continued what appeared to be the cautious rehabilitation of ousted Communist Party boss Edward Gierek by carrying reports of his improving health along side dispatches detailing the amount of Soviet aid Poland is getting to help pay for the crippling summer strikes.

Religious Affairs Minister Jerzy Kuberski announced that, if all goes as planned, the state radio will begin broadcasting mass to Poland's predominantly Catholic population a week from Sunday.

Broadcasting of Sunday masses was one of the demands made and won by the leaders of Poland's 300,000 striking workers last month. It has also been a long-standing demand of the Polish Roman Catholic Church.

"The technical and organizational preparations have been under way," Kuberski said in an interview. "We will be coming back to tradition," he said, noting that before World War II, Mass had been regularly broadcast from Warsaw.

Meanwhile, more scattered strikes were reported. Few details were available, although most of the strikes were small and short-lived, union sources said.

Polish newspapers gave prominent coverage to two stories — the latest bulletins on Gierek's health and the Soviet Union's pledge to provide Poland with 500,000 tons of wheat and other foodstuffs worth $150 million.

To Preserve Lake Tahoe

By BRENDAN RILEY
Associated Press Writer

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A bill to help preserve scenic Lake Tahoe, straddling the California-Nevada border, was signed Saturday by Gov. Bob List shortly after winning final Nevada legislative approval.

Last handed out pens and tiny bottles of Tahoe water to legislative leaders and others, then handed a pen used to sign the measure to his 7-year-old daughter, saying, "This bill is for you and your generation."

The measure, approved 39-1 in the Assembly and 16-2 in the Senate, ended Nevada's first special session in 12 years only a few hours after List opened it with a strong pitch for passage.

The governor, quoting Mark Twain, said the measure seeks to protect the area in the Sierra Nevada just west of here, which "must surely be the fairest picture the whole earth affords."

The measure already has won approval in California. Congress also must endorse the bistate compact.

SW Louisiana Torpedoes Pirates, 27-21

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

If generosity can be a fault, then East Carolina University's Pirates were generous to a fault Saturday night in their home opener in Ficklen Stadium.

During the third period, the Pirates coughed up the ball six times, losing five of them, and the result helped Southwestern Louisana to a 27-21 victory over the Bucs, stopping a home field winning streak for the second straight time.

Three years ago, the Pirates were riding an 11-game streak when the Ragin' Cajuns came to town, stopping that string, 9-7.

This time, ECU was moving along on a 10-game streak when the Cajuns did it again.

The Cajuns were led by the passing of Phillip Reynolds, who threw to three different recivers for scores. Catching passes for the touchdowns were Brent Anderson (12 yards), Barry Herbert (5 yards), and David Chatman (20 yards). Larry Trussell added two field goals to go with his three PAT kicks. His field goals covered 39 and 25 yards.

On paper, it wouldn't appear that the outcome was what it was. The Pirates outplayed their guests, gaining 367 yards in offense to 253 for the Louisana team. But in two departments, Southwestern did better, and they proved fateful.

One was the fumbles. The Pirates bobbled the ball on eight occasions, losing five of them. The Bucs also had eight penalties for 84 yards, and they seemed to come at inappropriate times.

In contrast the Cajuns didn't fumble the ball at all, and they had only five penalties for 25 yards. And two of those were delay penalties late in the contest when they were using the clock to their advantage.

Even so, they had to hold off a Pirate comeback in the final period, when the Bucs scored 14 points and came close to pulling it out.

Throughout the first half, the Pirates were in control of the game, but their own problems in moving the ball—mainly penalties—hurt them.

Both teams had slight penetrations early in the first period, but the Pirates got their first score after George Crump intercepted a Reynolds pass after Jeffrey Warren had tipped the ball. That turned it over on the SWL 13 after a 15 yard return by Crump.

It took just three plays after that to score. Collins picked up three and Hawkins got six to the four. Hawkins then followed a lead block by Theodore Sutton in to the enc zone to put the Pirates up 7-0 following Bill Lamm's kick iwth 6:38 left in the period.

East Carolina came back on its next possesion to go to the SWL 28 before losing it on an interception.

They got it back again as the quarter ended, moving to the 34 before a 51-yard field goal attempt by Lamm was short.

Southwestern then came up with its only score of the half, a 39-yard field goal by Trussell. Moving on 12 plays, from their own 35, the Ragin' Cajuns brought it to the Pirate 18 before being stopped. A 19-yard pass from Reynolds to Anderson was the key play in the drive, along with a 15-yard penalty against the Pirates that negated a 9-yard loss on third down, and would have brought about a kicking situation.

The Pirates again drove, from their own 35 to the SWL 32 before running out of gas.

The Cajuns came back and a penalty against the Pirates cost SWL points this time. They drove from their own 20 to the Pirate 27, with Reynolds hitting Doug Waddell for 24 yards and David Foret running to 13 on the key plays. On fourth and 10 at the 27, Trussell kicked a 44-yard field goal, but a roughing the kicker penalty saw the Cajuns elect to take a first down at the 14. But three plays later, James Freer in-

Tigers Spank Rice In Opener

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Winning Coach Danny Ford was dissatisfied but losing Coach Ray Alborn was optimistic after Clemson's 19-3 college football triumph over Rice Saturday.

Quarterback Homer Jordan ran for one touchdown and threw for another and Obed Ariri kicked two field goals for the Tigers in the season-opening intersectional game.

Jordan, a sophomore starting for the first time, teamed with flanker Perry Tuttle on a 59-yard touchdown pass play late in the second period to put Clemson ahead for good. He ran four yards for a TD in the third quarter.

Clemson was heavily favored over the Owls, who won just once last year. But the Tigers fumbled away several scoring opportunities and Ford said they were lucky to win.

Ford, beginning his second year at the Clemson helm, said, "We knew we were young and inexperienced ... but now we really know. I think we did everything wrong that we could in the game — fumbles, missed assignments, missed tackles, dropped passes and a whole mess of other stuff."

He added, "I'm just glad to end this losing streak." Clemson had lost its last two games of 1979, to South Carolina in the regular season and Baylor in the Peach Bowl.

Alborn said he was proud his team's effort against "a very good club. We just didn't take advantage of some opportunities we had to score early and that could have improved the situation.

"We were perhaps a little conservative in the early going, but it was the first game with a new offense, so it was a tendency to play it close to the vest," Alborn said.

Ariri's fourth quarter field goals of 33 and 28 yards were the Nigerian booter's 12th and 13th in a row. He added one extra point. Clemson failed to convert following Tuttle's TD when the snap was high and a desperation pass by holder Bo Blanton was incomplete.

Fumbles by Owl quarterback Randy Hurtel and Clemson tailback Chuck McSwain put an end to second period drives.

Clemson lined up in Rice territory only once in the first half. Following Hurtel's bobble, the Tigers drove from their six-yard line to the Rice 35, with Jordan keeping the ball four times for 34 yards.

Clemson boosted its lead to 13-3 in the third period when Jordan scored on a four-yard keeper, ending a 71-yard drive.

Clemson's defense, seventh best in the nation last year, held Rice to 112 yards on the ground and 119 passing. The Tigers nearly doubled Rice in total offense, 416 yards to 231.

It looked like Rice had gotten a big break early in the second half when the Owls, trailing 6-3, had a short punt by David Walters bounced off the leg of Clemson returner Willie Underwood. The Owls recovered at the Clemson 35.

Defense, Bryant's TD Leads UNC Past Raiders

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Tailback Kelvin Bryant put the winning points on the board with his 58-yard run with a pass in the fourth quarter, but North Carolina coach Dick Crum credited his defense for the Tarheels 9-3 victory over Texas Tech Saturday afternoon.

Tech's Red Raiders moved inside the North Carolina 25 on five different occasions in the regionally televised contest, but got only three points against the 15th-ranked Tar Heels.

"Our defense played with its back to the wall a lot of times and just did a great job," Crum sid, giving special praise to defensive tackle Donnell Thompson and lineback Lawrence Taylor.

"It's as great credit to our defense that we were able to hold them to only three points. Our defense was really getting stronger in the fourth quarter," Crum added.

Bryan's touchdown came early in the fourth quarter when quarterback Rod Elkins barely escaped a blitz by tossing the ball to Bryant in the right flat.

Tate Randle's interception and 22-yard return to the N. Carolina 18 gave the Red Raiders a chance to pull out a victory minutes later in the regionally televised game.

The Raiders got the ball to the two, but Tar Heels linebacker Lawrence Taylor forced a fumble and fell on the ball at the 12 to preserve the victory.

Tech's Red Raiders took a 3-0 lead on Jesse Garcia's 36-yard field goal on the game's opening series, and the margin held until Bryant's running set up Jeff Hayes' 22-yard field goal and a 3-3 tie mid-way through the third quarter.

Two fourth-quarter interceptions held off other Tech scoring threats.

Steve Streater intercepted in the end zone on the second play of the final period, and linebacker Darrell Nicholson picked off an errant pass at the N. Carolina 32 with two minutes to play.

"Famous" Amos Lawrence gained 29 yards the first time he touched the ball and finished the first half with 77 yards in 12 carries, but the Tech defense held him to nine yards the second half.

He was seeking his 19th game of more than 100 yards rushing.

Bryant, a sophomore who gained 105 yards in three touchdowns in a a backup role to Lawrence last week, finished with 61 yards in 17 carries against Tech.

Cavs Edge Army, 6-3

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Two Wayne Morrison field goals and an opportunistic defense gave Virginia's Cavaliers a 6-3 victory Saturday over Navy in the season opener for both teams.

Morrison kicked his game-winning 46-yard field goal late in the third period after the Cavaliers thwarted a Navy drive with a fumble recovery at the Virginia 42.

Morrison's first field goal, a 20-yarder, capped an 11-play drive that stalled on the Navy 4 when quarterback Todd Kirtley couldn't find an open receiver in the end zone. It came with just over two minutes left in the first half.

The Middies evened it in the third quarter when Steve Fahr kicked a 29-yard field goal.

Navy threatened to go ahead three times in the final period, but was stopped on downs, a lost fumble and a pass interception, the last by Virginia linebacker Bert Krupp at the Cavaliers' 30 with less than two minutes left in the game.

Fehr also missed a potential tying score early in the game when a 47-yard field goal attempt went awry.

Navy had threatened to score on its first series of downs until Virginia's Stuart Anderson hit Navy quarterback Fred Reitzel as he was about to throw from the Virginia 15, knocking the ball loose. It rolled out of bounds on the 31.

Pitt Nips Stubborn B.C.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "It certainly wasn't a very pretty win," said Pitt Coach Jackie Sherrill, "but a win is a win is a win."

And win was about all Pitt did offensively in Saturday's 14-6 victory over Boston College. The third-ranked Panthers tried their hardest to self-destruct, but their defense managed to withstand nine turnovers, and Dan Marino provided enough points with a pair of 8-yard touchdown passes to Benjie Pryor.

"They were playing a lot of man-to-man defense and I was able to beat the defensive end and safety for some passes," said Pryor. "They seemed more concerned with the wideouts. I just found cracks in the middle and Danny got me the ball."

The season opener for both teams produced a total of 16 turnovers, and it all boiled down to Pitt's defense rescuing a more-than-generous offense.

"The defense played an outstanding game," Sherrill said. "I was concerned early in the week about mistakes on offense really disrupting us, and they did. We didn't score many points, but that's a secondary concern. The big concern was we just weren't consistent all day.

"Maybe this type of game was good for us. It proved we can suffer a lot of adversity and still win the ball game. This game has to help us in the long run from a mental standpoint. We are going to have a lot of adversity thoughout the season, and now we have gained some experience to deal with it."

The heavily favored Panthers turned the ball over four times in the first 23 minutes before Marino, a sophomore quarterback who already ranks eighth on Pitt's all-time passing list, directed an 8-play, 60-yard drive.

Marino completed all four pass attempts on the march for 45 yards. He started it with a 14-yard toss to Pryor, hit Artrell Hawkins for 9 and Pryor for 14 more before the 6-foot-3, 225-pound senior tight end hauled in a scoring pass over defensive back Jerry Stabile with 2:10 left in the first half.

OSU, Down 21-3, Rallies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coach Earle Bruce suggested an extra workout might have been needed for his top-ranked Ohio State football team in the wake of their lackluster 31-21 opening victory Saturday over Syracuse.

"I was anxious to see us play, and I found out that we probably should have scrimmaged an hour before the game today," Bruce said after the Buckeyes rallied from a 21-3 deficit in the first half.

"Our game plan didn't call for coming from behind 21-3 and 14-0," said Bruce, who has won all 12 of his regular season games as Woody Hayes' successor.

Frank Maloney, Syracuse's coach, could explain the Orangemen's swift, unexpected start. "All of us were so sick of reading about Ohio State all summer, it was a challenge to us. We were determined to play hard," said Maloney.

Ohio State finally took the lead early in the second half on Ricky Johnson's touchdown and two-point pass reception. That gave Ohio State a 24-21 lead.

"It was an off-tackle play," said Johnson. "I saw the seam and scooted right in there. I just wanted to get in the end zone and pick up the team's morale."

Johnson, the Buckeyes' second-string tailback, burst 3 yards for the touchdown that brought Ohio State a 22-21 lead late in the third quarter in the season opener for both teams.

Johnson then caught his two-point conversion pass from quarterback Art Schlichter and the Buckeyes fought off the Orangemen in the last quarter.

Syracuse, a four-touchdown underdog, posted three touchdowns in less than 17 minutes. Quarterback Dave Warner passed for two of them and ran 1 yard for a third touchdown.

Warner threw 21 yards to tight end Tony Sidor with 10:47 left in the first quarter. Less than two minutes later, Warner passed 5 yards to another tight end, Chris Jilleba, for a 14-0 lead.

Ohio State, a 31-8 victor over Syracuse in the 1979 opener, managed only three first-half field goals of 35, 34 and 42 yards by Vlade Janakievski.

Late FG Gives USC Win

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Eric Hipp booted a 47-yard field goal as the final gun sounded to lead fifth-ranked Southern California to a 20-17 victory Saturday night over Tennessee.

With Tennessee behind 10-0, Alatorre, a junior college transfer from California, came off the bench replacing Jeff Olszewski in the third quarter to spark a rally and tie the game twice.

Southern Cal opened the scoring in the first quarter on a 45 yard field goal by Hipp and went into the dressing room at 10-0 after Marcus Allen, Heisman trophy-winner Charles White's replacement at tailback, scored on a 1-yard plunge with 44 seconds left in the first half. Allen finished the night with a game leading 132 yards on 39 carries.

Alan Duncan opened Tennessee's scoring with a 49-yard field goal with 4:06 left in the third quarter. The Vols' Avery Huff recovered a fumble by USC's Greg Brady on the following kickoff and James Berry raced over the goal from the one 55 seconds later to tie the score at 10-10.

Hancock's 67 Leads Hall Of Fame By 1

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Phil Hancock, a low-key guy who birdied three holes in a row on the way to a 67, was less than completely impressed by his one-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Tournament.

"A one-shot lead here certainly isn't much to toot your horn about," he said Saturday after posting his 54-hole total of 205, eight shots under par. "There's a lot of golf course out there and a lot of good players close. Anything can happen."

The other leaders agreed.

"It'll be a dogfight," said Bill Rogers, tied with Tom Kite at 206, a single shot back. Each had a second-round 67 and each performed some heroics to get it.

Rogers had a spectacular putting round, including one birdie from perhaps as much as 80 feet, while Kite holed out a 250-yard 3-wood shot for an eagle.

"It should be an exciting ay tomorrow," said Howard Twitty, one of three tied at 207, after a glance at the closely bunched group at the top of the field. "Everybody that's in there is a proven player."

"I'd rather be in there kind of lonely, but this is what the game is all about: being uner the gun."

Twitty, who had a third round 69 on the famed old Pinehurst No. 2 course, was tied with Andy Bean and Jerry Pate, each of whom shot a 67.

All but Hancock are former winners, and Kite and Rogers won foreign events last week. Hancock, 27, is seeking his first title in four years of PGA Tour activity.

"I've had a couple of chances to win, and I feel like I'm getting closer to it all the time," he said.

Ben Crenshaw, who held a 2-stroke lead when the day's play started, slipped to a 74 and was four strokes back at 209.

And Tom Watson, the pre-tournament favorite to win a third consecutive Hall of Fame title, improved to a 69 but it wasn't enough to put him in the chase. At 214 he was nine shots back of the leader and could only hope to improve enough to help his Vardon Trophy stroke average.

Watson, who has won the prestigious trophy for the low stroke average for the last three years, still trails Lee Trevino with the season drawing to a close. Watson now has a 69.99 average. Trevino, who is not playing here, leads at 69.91. Each is scheduled to play only one more time this year.

Hancock, a quiet, soft-spoken journalism graduate, has been troubled by health problems most of the season. At one time or another he has been sidelined by back trouble, food poisoning and flu.

"I'm just trying to stay healthy for a while," he said. "It hasn't been a good year at all, a bad year, in fact, up until the last couple of months. I've started to play a little better over that stretch."

The key to his round, he said, was the birdie burst that began with a 15-foot putt on the eighth hole.

He followed with a 7-iron shot to four feet and made the putt on the next hole and stroked a sand wedge to within six inches of the flag on the 10th.

He led the rest of the way.

Cale Breaks Pole Record At Dover

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, driving the Junior Johnson-Busch Chevrolet, broke the modern record for NASCAR Winston Cup poles Saturday by capturing his 12th of the season at Dover Downs International Speedway.

The old record of 11 in a season was shared by Bobby Allison in 1972 and David Pearson in 1974.

Yarborough turned a lap of 137.583 mph around the mile track. Darrell Waltrip, piloting the DiGard Gatorade Chevrolet, was a close second with a lap of 137.525 mph.

Yarborough also clinched the Pole Awards trophy sponsored by Busch Beer and a $25,000 jackpot. With only six poles left to be contested, Yarborough has a 12-5 edge over second-place Waltrip.

It marked the second time in three years since Busch started the program that Yarborough has won the most poles in a season. Buddy Baker won the award last year.

The all-time record for a season is 19, achieved when NASCAR ran as many as 62 races in a season. The schedule was cut to 31 races in 1972. That record is shared by Tim Flock and the late Bobby Isaac.

1. Cale Yarborough, 11, Chevy, 137.583, 26.166.

Sooners Squeeze 'Cats

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Senior quarterback J.C. Watts shook off a leg injury to direct fourth-ranked Oklahoma to three fourth-quarter touchdowns as the Sooners finally subdued Kentucky 29-7 in an intersectional football game Saturday.

Kentucky, of the Southeastern Conference, quieted Oklahoma partisans by taking a 7-0 lead after a mistake-riddled first half.

Watts was helped off the field after he was hit at the end of an 11-yard run midway through the third period. Reserve quarterback Darrell Shepard came in and directed Oklahoma the rest of the way on an 80-yard scoring drive with halfback Chet Winters bolting 13 yards for the score to tie the score.

Kentucky, 17-10 winner over Utah State last week, had the better of the field position in the first half and threw up a strong defense against the celebrated Sooner wishbone.

But the tide turned after intermission, largely because of the kicking of Mike Keeling, who had punts of 42 and 54 yards that pinned the Wildcats on their 2- and 4-yard lines.

Watts set up Oklahoma's go-ahead score when he scrambled out of trouble, then passed 21 yards to Steve Rhodes to the Kentucky 3. David Overstreet sprinted into the end zone on the next play. Keeling's extra point made it 14-7 with 13 minutes left.

Nebraska 55
Utah 9

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — I-back Jarvis Redwine scored three touchdowns and rushed for 179 yards as eighth-ranked Nebraska walloped Utah 55-9 Saturday in a nonconference college football game.

Redwine had 147 yards rushing by halftime. He raced 67 yards for his first tally in the opening quarter, and capped an 80-yard Nebraska drive with an 8-yard scoring run in the second period.

His third touchdown, and final carry of the game, came on a 6-yard run with 9:44 remaining in the third quarter.

Quarterback Jeff Quinn scored on a 4-yard run to climax a 67-yard drive on Nebraska's first possession.

Utah's only first-half score came on the Utes' next possession, as Gilbert Alvarez booted a 42-yard field goal against the wind.

The Utes, 0-2, simply were overmatched as the Huskers scored the first three times they had the ball to take a 21-3 halftime lead.

Army 28
Holy Cross 7

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Jerryl Bennett, making only his fifth start in three seasons as a quarterback at Army, threw a pair of touchdown passes to split end Mike Fahnestock and scored on a 1-yard run as the Cadets presented new Coach Ed Cavanaugh with a 28-7 victory over Holy Cross Saturday.

Cavanaugh succeeded Lou Saban, who quit in July after producing only a 2-8-1 record in his one year at the helm.

The victory over the Crusaders, 1-1, made Army 80-8-3 in season inaugurals.

Bennett had been relegated to a reserve role by Saban. Cavanaugh, however, selected him to start. Bennett tossed a 15-yard touchdown pass to Fahnestock with 1:19 remaining in the opening period and an 18-yarder to the senior receiver with 5:11 to go in the second.

Texas A&M 0

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — A sellout crowd of 60,150 had to wait awhile, but they got what they came to see — a long touchdown run by freshman sensation Herschel Walker.

Walker scored three touchdowns, one on a 76-yard jaunt in the third quarter, as 12th-ranked Georgia buried Texas A&M 42-0 Saturday.

"The line opened such a big hole I knew I'd better score or I couldn't face them," Walker said. "Only one person barely touched me on the run."

Walker said the key to his performance was that quarterback Buck Belue established the passing game early and "they couldn't key on me."

Belue fired two touchdown passes to Anthony Arnold as the Bulldogs built a 28-0 halftime lead.

"I've seen a lot of good running backs, but never one as good that young, obviously," said Aggie Couch Tom Wilson. "It's plain and simple, we just got our tails kicked."

Coach Vince Dooley of Georgia said, "I'm amazed at our defensive play and our offensive play. I think we came to play and played a complete game."

Dooley also said he was pleased again with Walker's performance.

"He got the tough yardage around the goal line," Dooley said. "That's the value of Herschel — he's big and strong and can get that extra foot or yard that is the difference in scoring."

Walker, who scored twice in his collegiate debut at Tennessee last week, also tallied twice on 1-yard plunges as he finished the day with 145 yards on 21 carries, sitting out the final 19 minutes of action.

Kansas 7
Oregon 7

The Jayhawks, playing their season-opener, decided not to go for a victory and a two-point conversion after the late score. Instead, freshman Bruce Kallmeyer booted the one-point conversion and Kansas settled for the tie.

Oregon, 0-1-1, held Kansas on downs in two late drives deep into Duck territory, but was unable to stop the Jayhawks on the final drive, which covered 65 yards in eight plays.

Young Atop LPGA After Record 66

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Donna Caponi Young fired a tournament-record 6-under-par 66 Saturday in a 72-hole $100,000 LPGA tour event and took a five-stroke lead at 203, the lowest 54-hole total on the tour this year.

The 35-year-old Young, No.3 on the LPGA money list, had six birdies in a 33-33 round over the 6,106-yard Elizabeth Manor Golf and Country Club course for a 13-under-par total.

Pat Bradley, playing head-to-head with the hot-putting Young, shot a 3-under-par 69, only to lose three strokes to the leader. Bradley wound up at 208 entering Sunday's final round.

Julie Stanger and Pat Meyers were tied for third at 212 — 10 strokes behind Young, who began the third round two shots ahead of Bradley. At 213 were Sandra Spuzich, Debbie Austin and H.B. Duntz, who had the second best score of the day, a 67.

Next were seven players tied at 215, including Beth Daniel, whose hopes for a fourth straight tournament victory were all but dashed with her 73 Saturday. Nancy Lopez-Melton, the LPGA's No.4 money-winner, had a 69 for 217.

Young's 66 broke the 2-year-old tournament's 18-hole record of 67 she and freshman pro Carolyn Hill set Friday. She hit all 18 greens in regulation and was 6-under par putting. She had six birdies and 12 pars.

Navy threatened again minutes later when Reitzel lateraled to Mike Sherlock, who passed 16 yards to Curt Gainer to reach Virginia's 22.

Vigorito, Virginia's leading rusher last season, set up Morrison's game-winning field goal with a 16-yard run to the Middie 36. Eddie Meyers led Middie rushers with 48 yards.

Kirtley completed 6 of 16 passes for 35 yards, and Reitzel threw for 104 yards, completing 9 of 19 in a losing cause.

Terps Win Easily; Wolves Edge Northwestern

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Mike Tice passed for two touchdowns, Charlie Wysocki scored once while rushing for 144 yards and Sam Johnson set up another Maryland touch down with a 97-kickoff return as the Terps trounced Vanderbilt 31-6 Saturday.

Tice, who passed for 111 yards on only five completions, tossed a 46-yard scoring pass to Mike Lewis in the first quarter and a 3-yarder Eric Sievers in the fourth period.

Wysocki gained 114 yards in the first half, which ended with Maryland ahead 21-6, scoring on a 7-yard run midway through the second quarter to give the Terps a 14-3 lead.

After Mike Woodard booted Vanderbilt's second field goal of the second quarter, a 22-yarder, Johnson took the ensuing kickoff and went 97 yards before being tackled by Keith Edwards at the Vanderbilt two.

Wayne Wingfield, who rushed for 56 yards as Wysocki's replacement at tailback, scored on the next play.

Maryland, 2-0, stiffened twice inside its own 10 in the first half before yielding the two field goals. The first, a 26-yarder by Woodard was set up when Johnson fumbled a Vanderbilt punt and the Commodores took over on the Maryland 15.

Vanderbilt launched only one sustained drive in its season opener, moving 75 yards to the Maryland five late in the second quarter. Two incomplete passes by Whit Taylor preceded Woodard's second field goal. Lucius High led Vanderbilt with 77 yards on 18 carries.

Wysocki, who gained 177 yards in Maryland's opening-game victory against Villanova, carried 13 times in the first quarter and accounted for Maryland's entire 114-yard net rushing total in the first half.

Taylor completed 13 of 23 passes, gaining 103 yards, for Vanderbilt. Three completions for 29 yards came on the drive preceding Woodard's field goal with 2:47 remaining in the first half.

Dale Castro, who set an NCAA single-season record with 16 consecutive field goals last season, booted a 37-yarder for Maryland early in the third quarter. A roughing-the-kicker penalty against Vanderbilt on a Castro punt, sustained Maryland's drive for the three points.

Northwestern 10

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Rich Hewlett threw a pair of touchdown passes to fleet wide receiver Anthony Carter to lead Michigan to a 17-10 Big Ten football victory over stubborn Northwestern Saturday.

Northwestern marched 41 yards in nine plays early in the fourth quarter and fullback Dave Mishler plunged 1 yard into the end zone to pull the underdog Wildcats into a 10-10 tie before a stunned crowd of 100,824 in Michigan Stadium.

Tulane 14

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — All-American Ken Margerum made his second touchdown catch of the game — and the 24th of his college football career — with 38 seconds remaining to give the 13th-ranked Stanford Caydinals a 19-14 victory over Tulane Saturday.

Quarterback John Elway's 24-yard touchdown pass to Margerum in the final minute completed a 78-yard scoring drive which began after the Green Wave went ahead 14-13 with 1:58 left to play. Tulane quarterback Nickie Hall hit wide receiver Robert Griffin on three passes for 80 yards on the drive which sent the Wave ahead, with Griffin grabbing a 17-yard scoring pass.

The final Stanford drive began with a 38-yard pass completion from Elway to Andre Tyler. The game-winning pass was a high lob which wide receiver Margerum caught about 2 yards from the back of the end zone.

California 13

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Untested quarterback Bob Hewko passed for two touchdowns and 146 yards to lead the Florida Gators to a 41-13 victory over California that gave second-year Coach Charley Pell his first Gator win in the college-football season opener for both teams.

The left-handed sophomore quarterback, making his first start after missing all last season with knee surgery, helped break the Gators' 13-game winless streak. Florida was 0-10-1 in Pell's first year, with the coach using several different quarterbacks.

Indiana 7

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Sophomore Jeff Brown rushed for 176 yards Saturday, including a 55-yard gallop that set up Iowa's clinching touchdown in the fourth quarter as the Hawkeyes beat Indiana 16-7 in the Big Ten football season opener.

The Hawkeyes scored twice in the final minute of the second quarter to lead 9-0 before the Hoosiers scored on a 7-yard touchdown pass from Tim Clifford to Nate Lundy early in the fourth quarter.

Iowa quarterback Phil Suess then hit Keith Chappelle on a 14-yard pass and Brown on a 10-yarder before the 5-foot-6, 156-pound running back broke loose to the Indiana three.

Florida St. 52
Louisville 0

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Rick Stockstill tossed four touchdown passes — three of them in the first half — and tailback Sam Platt rushed for 108 yards Saturday night to lead 10th ranked Florida State to a 52-0 college football victory over Louisville.

Stockstill, a junior from Fernandina Beach, completed nine of 12 passes for 115 yards and connected with Dennis McKinnon, Zeke Mowatt and Hardis Johnson for touchdowns as the Seminoles zoomed to a 24-0 halftime lead.

Phil Williams was on the receiving end of Stockstill's fourth scoring pass with 8:32 remaining in the third quarter. The play covered the final 19 yards in an 87-yard drive.

Louisville quarterback Pat Patterson was unable to get the Cardinals' offense going all night against the FSU defense, which played without All-America noseguard Ron Simmons.

The Seminoles, who shut out Louisiana State 16-0 in their season opener, held the Cardinals to minus 5 yards on the ground and 56 total yards. The FSU offense, meanwhile, rolled up 442 total yards.

Illinois 20
Michigan St. 17

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois place kicker Mike Bass booted a 38-yard field goal as time ran out Saturday to give the Illini a 20-17 victory over Michigan State.

The Spartans had tied the game a few minutes earlier on Morten Andersen's 35-yard field goal, but Illinois quarterback Dave Wilson guided his team into position for Bass' second field goal as the final seconds ticked off the clock.

New Mexico 16

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — James Wilder ran 51 yards for a touchdown and Terry Hill caught a 68-yard scoring pass before 17th-ranked Missouri pounced on New Mexico mistakes for three cheap fourth-quarter touchdowns, and swamped the Lobos 47-16 Saturday.

Missouri's offense was rendered almost helpless in the first half by a stunting, gambling New Mexico defense that enabled the Lobos to upset Brigham Young 25-21 in their season opener a week before.

Colorado 14

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Tom Ramsey and fullback Jairo Penaranda ran for two touchdowns apiece as UCLA scored four times in each of the first two quarters and went on to crush Colorado 56-14 in a one-sided college football season opener Saturday.

Ramsey scored on a 6-yard sweep and 1-yard sneak and passed 15 yards to Jojo Townsell for another score as UCLA took a 21-0 lead after only 9:19 of play. It was an indication of things to come, although the Bruins were held scoreless in the second half when they played reserves exclusively and didn't attempt a forward pass.

Iowa St. 42
NE Louisiana 7

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Dwayne Crutchfield, playing in his first major college football game, rushed for 121 yards and scored two touchdowns to spark Iowa State to a 42-7 season opening victory over Northeast Louisiana.

The 232-pound Crutchfield, who gained more than 1,800 yards at Garden City, Kan., Junior College last year, was one of several running backs Iowa State turned loose on the out-manned Indians.

With Crutchfield, Rocky Gillis and Jack Seabrooke leading the way, the Cyclones piled up a 35-0 lead before the No. 2 offense took over in the third quarter.

N.C. Central 35
Virginia St. 13

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Halfback Victor Hunter scored two touchdowns and quarterback Charles Yuille added a third as North Carolina Central whipped Virginia State 35-13 in a Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association football game Saturday afternoon.

The Eagles, now 2-0, spotted Virginia State an early touchdown early in the second quarter when 230-pound fullback Warren Felton scored from one yard out with 14:51 left in the half. A 17-yard pass interference call set up the score.

N.C. Central tied the score when Yuille and Hunter hooked up on a 7-yard pass play almost seven minutes after the Trojan score. Neither team mounted a serious threat after that, and the half ended in a 7-7 tie.

VMI 13
William & Mary 10

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Placekicker Lee Wimbish's field goals of 27 and 32 yards in the third quarter rallied Virginia Military's Keydets from a three-point deficit Saturday to a 13-10 football victory over William & Mary's Indians.

VMI tailback Floyd Allen, the nation's No. 10 rusher a year ago who ran for 150 yards against the winless Indians, 0-2, got 33 yards in a 69-yard drive that set up Wimbish's first field goal on the Keydets' first possession in the third period.

Wyoming 30
Oregon St. 10

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Sophomore running back Eddie Warren scampered 9 and 19 yards for touchdowns and Wyoming kicker Steve Tobin had three field goals Saturday as the Cowboys beat Oregon State 30-10 in a non-conference college football game.

Warren, from Long Beach, Calif., took the ball 9 yards over right guard with four minutes gone for Wyoming's first touchdown. His second score came just three minutes later and put Wyoming up 17-0.

Va. Tech 35
E. Tenn. St. 7

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Sophomore Cyrus Lawrence broke a career rushing record and scored a fourth-quarter touchdown to help lead Virginia Tech's Hokies to a 35-7 football victory Saturday over East Tennessee State's Buccaneers.

Minnesota 38
Ohio U. 14

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Freshman quarterback Tim Salem completed 13 straight passes and Garry White scored three touchdowns as Minnesota whipped Ohio University 38-14 Saturday in a nonconference football opener for both teams.

Salem, son of Coach Joe Salem, completed 13 of 16 passes for 162 yards and one touchdown in his college debut before 35,114 fans at Memorial Stadium.

The 18-year-old Salem had his first collegiate pass intercepted by John Gamble. That interception led to a 7-yard touchdown run by Ohio's Tony Carifa.

Villanova 7

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — A 5-yard run by Jim Short after a Villanova fumble lifted Richmond to a 21-7 college football win Saturday over the Wildcats, who had two touchdowns called back by penalties.

Villanova, 0-2, took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when quarterback Pat O'Brien completed a 40-yard pass to wide receiver Willie Sydnor deep in the Wildcat end zone.

But Wildcat errors in the second half paved the way for the Spiders, now 2-0, to score three touchdowns in 11 minutes and break a 19-game road losing streak.

Furman 28
Presbyterian 7

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Furman running back Mike Glenn ran 261 yards Saturday to set a Southern Conference rushing record and lead the Paladins to a 28-7 victory over Presbyterian.

Glenn wiped out the old Southern Conference mark of 257 yards set by Phil Mosser of William and Mary against Ohio Wesleyan in 1970.

tercepted Reynolds in the end zone to halt that drive.

The third quarter, however, turned into a field day for the Ragin' Cajuns as the Pirates gave them opportunity after opportunity.

And they cashed in on four of them to win the game.

Just two plays into the half, Sutton and Nelson had trouble connecting and SWL's Kent Head was there to fall on the ball at the ECU 35.

It took just six plays for SWL to put the ball into the end zone and take the lead, 10-7. Reynolds hit Kevin Sigue for 11 yards on first down, and from the 12, Reynolds hit Anderson on a square out pattern in the end zone for the touchdown with 11:23 left. Trussell's kick provided the three-point lead.

Three plays after the kickoff, the Pirates did it again, this time, as Nelson again fumbled, and Jeff Tanguis recovered at the 42.

This time it took only four plays to get the ball into the end zone. Reynolds hit Waddell on two passes of 17 yards each, then from the five, he hit Herbert on the same pattern as Anderson had run, and it was 17:7 with 8:46 to go in the quarter.

This time, however, SWL could not take advantage, failing to move the ball.

But again, two plays after the punt, the Pirates fumbled it, and SWL had it on the 20.

Even then, the Pirates weren't through, coughing it up one more time, to set up the final SWL score, a 25-yard field goal by Trussell.

The turnover came on a punt that Willie Holley saw go through his hands, and Jim Talkington recovered on the ECU 19. On fourth and goal from the eight, Trussell kicked, and with 14:09 left in the game, SWL held a 27-7 lead.

The Pirates then finally seemed to come to life. Nelson guided them from the six to the 47 of SWL before they ran out of gas. They got it back at the ECU 43, however, and this time, drove for a touchdown.

Nelson hit Will Saunders for 17 yards for one first down, then went to Larry O'Roark for 11 more for a first down at the 12. Two plays later, Collins took an option pitch from Nelson around the right side for the score. Lamm's kick was blocked, however, and SWL held a 27-13 lead with 6:00 left.

After getting it back, the Pirates drove again, taking only nine plays to go 68 yards. Nelson hit Hawkins for 11 yards, then went to Vern Davenport for 17 on the top plays of the drive. Finally, he kept the ball around the left side to dash into the end zone with 1:21 left. Nelson then passed to Collins for a two-point conversion, pulling the Pirates within striking distance, 27-21.

But Southwestern was able to pick up a first down following the kickoff, an attempt to put the ball between the up-men and the deep men. That first down did it.

A disappointed Ed Emory said he didn't understand how his Pirates could have lost the contest, playing the defense they did.

"I've never seen a football game play such hard defense and get 27 scored on them. I thought the defense played with great character, great stickability. We didn't do the things we said we were going to do: protect the football, win on defense, the kicking game and in the offensive line.

"We didn't control the line of scrimmage in the third period. We had a center-quarterback exchange problem. We did the things that looked like opening game jitters."

The loss dropped the Pirates to 1-1 on the year, while Southwestern climbs to 2-0.

Houston Nips Giants To Remain Tied For First

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Gary Woods and Luis Pujols had run-scoring hits in the fourth inning to power the Astros to a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants Saturday night.

The victory kept Houston tied with Los Angeles in the National League West. The Dodgers rallied in the ninth to defeat the Cincinnati Reds 3-2.

Houston gave starter Ken Forsch a 3-0 lead on Joe Morgan's ground rule double in the third and a double by Woods and Pujols' single in the fourth.

Forsch, 11-12, held San Francisco to only two baserunners through the first five innings until the Giants rallied in the sixth. Johnnie LeMaster and pinch-hitter Bill North led off with singles to start the rally.

Max Venable's RBI single and Darrell Evans' RBI grounder pulled the Giants to within 3-2.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Derrel Thomas tripled home pinch runner Gary Weiss with two out in the ninth inning, then followed him home on a balk by reliever Mario Soto, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers a 3-2 victory Saturday night over the Cincinnati Reds.

Soto, 9-6, walked Rick Monday with one out in the ninth. Weiss was sent in to run for Monday with two out and Thomas rammed a shot into the right field corner to tie the game.

Then, with Soto pitching to Rudy Law, Thomas faked a break for the plate and Soto committed the balk to force in the winning run.

The Reds had taken a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the eighth when Dave Collins doubled, took third on Ken Griffey's fly out and scored on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly off reliever Robert Castillo, 7-6.

The Reds tied it in the bottom of the third with an unearned run. Catcher Joe Nolan singled and second baseman Ron Oester doubled into the right field corner.

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner rapped out three hits, including his 32nd home run of the season, and drove in three runs to power the Atlanta Braves to a 5-3 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday night.

Chris Chambliss then reached on the first of three errors by the Padres in the inning. One out later, Bruce Benedict reached on a boot by Randy Bass. Luis Gomez singled for one run and, when center fielder Jerry Mumphrey let the ball bounce past him, Benedict also scored.

Horner added a run-scoring double in the fifth and an RBI-single in the seventh after Terry Harper had reached on an error, San Diego's fifth of the game.

The Padres got to within 4-3 in the top of the seventh on a run-scoring single by Tim Flannery after scoring single runs in the third and sixth innings. In the third, Gene Richards singled and scored on a triple by Luis Salazar and Mumphrey drilled a solo homer in the sixth off Rick Matula, 10-12.

MONTREAL (AP) — Mike Easler belted a solo homer and Don Robinson stopped Montreal on four hits as the Pittsburgh Pirates ended the Expos' four-game winning streak with a 4-0 victory on Saturday.

Easler, who started the game hitting .251 against the Expos, hammered a 3-2 pitch from Steve Rogers, 14-11, over the center field fence leading off the second inning for a 1-0 Pittsburgh lead.

The homer was the first off the Expos' pitching staff in 12 games, a club record.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two consecutive hit batsmen and a sacrifice fly by Mike Schmidt keyed a two-run sixth inning that enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 Saturday and reduce Montreal's National League East lead to one game.

Steve Carlton, 22-8, pitched an eight-hitter for the victory while Bob Forsch, 11-9, suffered the loss.

St. Louis led 1-0 when the Phillies came to bat in the sixth. Bob Boone led off with a double and went to third on a single by Carlton after the pitcher twice failed on sacrifice bunt attempts.

New York 4

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Ed Lynch, making his first major league start, combined with Roy Lee Jackson for a seven-hitter as New York defeated the Chicago Cubs 4-2 Saturday, snapping the Mets' 13-game losing string.

Lynch, 1-0, allowed six hits over the first six innings and both Chicago runs, one of them earned. Jackson pitched the final three innings to pick up his first save of the season.

New York broke a 1-1 tie, scoring three times in the fourth inning off Cubs starter Lynn McGlothen, 10-12, to gain its first victory since Aug. 30. The Mets had lost 25 of their previous 28 games.

Yankees, Orioles Win

After waiting one hour and 20 minutes for their game with the Blue Jays to get started due to rain, Weaver found his Orioles in another rain delay in the bottom of the fifth inning with Baltimore holding a 5-1 lead.

"I just came in here (clubhouse), put my feet up on the desk, closed my eyes and relaxed," Weaver said. "Whatever He wanted to happen would happen."

Two hours later, the rain stopped, a thick fog rolled in and the Orioles managed to hang on to the victory to remain 4 games behind the American League East-leading New York Yankees.

"It was a struggle right from the start," Weaver said. "The fog was the bad thing, but we were going to wait it out anyway."

Weaver said the fog was so bad for an inning and half after the second rain delay that the outfielders couldn't see the ball in the air.

Scott McGregor, 18-7, pitched six innings to register his ninth victory in his last 11 decisions.

"He got stiff during the delay," Weaver said. "He's a real competitor, that kid. After the sixth he said he felt fine, but he didn't have any stuff left."

Toronto led 1-0 lead in the second inning when Barry Bonnell doubled, advanced to third on a ground out and scored on a balk.

Baltimore came back with three runs in the fourth off Dave Stieb, 12-12. Ken Singleton walked with one out and moved to third on Murray's double. A walk to Terry Crowley loaded the bases. Graham's single scored two runs and a double by Doug DeCinces made it 3-1.

Boston 3

BOSTON (AP) — Shortstop Bucky Dent says the juice is "flowing" and veteran southpaw Tommy John adds that the New York Yankees are "putting the numbers on the board down the stretch."

Dent keyed a four-run fourth inning with a two-run single and John scattered nine hits for his 21st victory Saturday, as the Yankees continued their charge in the American League East race with a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"It seems like every time we play here we have to play well," Dent said. "But, when you're ahead by only three or four games, you have to play well no matter where you are. When you've got just 20 games left and you're in a pennant race, the juice gets flowing and you have to win every game."

"Right now we're starting to play good baseball again, like we did earlier in the year," said John. "We hit a little dry spell when we had some guys hurt, some guys limping around. Now we're putting the numbers on the board."

John said he had "great stuff because I only threw about six curve balls all day. I threw virtually all fastballs, and to do that in this ballpark, you've got to have good stuff. I felt good all day, but in the end I was a little tired."

John singled out the New York defense for making the big plays behind him. The biggest may have been by second baseman Willie Randolph, when, with the score 4-2, the Red Sox had runners on first and third and none out in the sixth.

Randolph scooped up a sharp shot by Dwight Evans on the short hop, raced to tag second for a force play and then fired a strike to catcher Rick Cerone, who tagged Jim Rice trying to score, completing a double play.

Dent and Rick Cerone had three hits apiece as the Yankees pushed their season record to 90-52 with their third victory in a row over the Red Sox and their 12th in their last 13 starts.

Detroit 7
Cleveland 4

CLEVELAND (AP) — Champ Summers scored the winning run on a throwing error by Cleveland second baseman Dave Rosello with two outs in the 13th inning as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Indians 7-4 Saturday.

Summers opened the 13th with a single off Mike Stanton, 1-2. Lance Parrish singled, moving Summers to second, and both runners advanced on Al Cowens' grounder. Tom Brookens then grounded second, but Rosello threw low into the dirt, allowing Summers to scamper home and Parrish to move to third.

Brookens then stole second and Lou Whitaker followed with a two-run single. Pat Underwood, 3-6, the third of four Detroit pitchers, got the victory.

Cleveland led 1-0 in the first inning as Miguel Dilone tripled and scored on a single by Alan Bannister.

Knights In Soccer Win

Bill Hurst and Phil Byrd each scored two goals to lead Greenville Christian Academy to a 4-1 win over Bethel Christian Saturday afternoon in a soccer match.

After a scoreless first half, Byrd put the Knights, now 1-1, ahead with a goal. Bethel tied the game moments later on Kevin Wilson's goal but Hurst then put in two goals later in the half and Byrd added his second score of the afternoon to give the Knights the victory.

"I think we had a little more talent then them," Knight coach Dale Thatcher said. "We worked hard in practice this week after the loss and our forwards were a little hungrier."

Sanchez Retains WBC Championship

"I was surprised at the beginning of the fight," said the muscular Mexico City fighter, who pounded out a controversial split decision over Ford to retain the title he took six months ago from Danny "Little Red" Lopez. "I was hurt in the fourth round with an uppercut. But I never was in fear of losing the fight."

Both fighters weighed in at 126 pounds, but Ford, at 5-foot-10, towered over Sanchez and boasted a 6½-inch reach advantage.

ut by the seventh round, Sanchez became the aggressor, moving inside Ford's reach, forcing the challenger against the ropes and pummeling him with flurries of body punches and uppercuts. One punch split Ford's lower lip in in the third round and another knocked the challenger's mouthpiece onto the canvass in the final round.

Judge Jose Escalante of Mexico scored the fight 148-139 for the Sanchez, judge A.D. Bynum of Dallas saw it 145-141 for the defending champion and judge Ramon Berumen of Mexico scored it even at 145-all.

However, the Ford camp charged "robbery" after the fight. They had filed an official protest before the bout that two of the judges were from Sanchez's native country and that Berumen had judged a previous Sanchez bout.

Net Notes

The top-seeded team of Ron Hignite and Wes Hankins, with a first-round bye, advanced to the finals of the Greenville Tennis Club's Men's 35 Doubles Tournament with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Rick Gilstrap and Bob Jennings Saturday afternoon.

In the other bracket, the team of Jim Bailey and Steve Creech advanced to the finals with wins over Bill Still and Paul Tardif (6-0, 6-1) and Tom Sayetta and Walter Jones (6-3, 6-2).

The finals will be held at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Next weekend, the GTC will sponsor a Men's 35 , Women's 35 and a Boys' and Girls' singles tournaments. Check the draw sheets at the Elm Street and River Birch Tennis Courts on Tuesday night for the times and location of the matches.

Pam Pack Catches Fire, Burns Vikings

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

HOLLYWOOD — For the first 9:30 of the ball game Friday night, D.H. Conley's Vikings had everything under control.

But the old cliche of the "game breaker play" got to them in those final minutes, and Washington's Pam Pack turned things around and rolled to a 27-6 victory over the Vikings.

Down 6-0 and able to pick up only ten yards in total offense over the first 9-plus minutes, the Pam Pack suddenly caught fire when Wayne Wooten broke around the right side of the line on an option play and raced 70 yards to tie the score only a minute and four seconds after Conley had taken the lead.

It not only took the wind out of the Viking sails, it breathed new life into, until that play, a sluggish Washington team.

For the Pack, it was the first victory in three outings, while Conley suffered its second loss in as many tries.

Wooten added the go-ahead score late in the half on a 27-yard option play after Conley had turned the ball over.

That turnover was only one of five for the Vikes during the course of the night, and those also proved another nail—or rather five more nails—in the coffin.

Washington quarterback Vann Parker scored the third Pack touchdown on a 23-yard keeper around the end—one of two places the Vikes proved vulnurable during the game. The other score came in the closing seconds of the game, on a 22-yard pass from reserve quarterback Seth Edwards to flanker Billy Cutler.

Throughout the night, Conley proved weak on the options around the end, as Washington was able to make valuable ground there. Later in the contest, they had good luck moving the ball over left tackle.

Conley, which moved the ball well at times, was hampered by the five turnovers, one of which cost them the ball in the shadow of the goal line when they might have had a chance to get back into the contest.

"I'm not sure if that touchdown (Washington's first, quick score) took that much out of us," Vike coach Jimbo Walker said afterwards. "We were trying to use two different kids in there at quarterback too, and that caused us some problems."

Walker said he was pleased with the effort of his team in the second half, when they could have folded up against the Pam Pack. "That fumble down there at the goal line killed us. That would have really helped us and given us a chance to get back into the game," he continued. "I thought Washington played well. They flew around a lot. They are a well-coached team."

The fatal fumble, according to Walker, came in the third period when Conley, after taking the ball away from Washington on a fumble at the Vike 39, drove downfield to the Washington seven before turning it back over. It was the best chance Conley had after its only score of the night.

Conley took the ball just over midfield on its first possession, then held Washington deep in a hole, getting it back at the Pam Pack 49 after a punt.

Steven King and Maye jammed the ball down the field after that, moving to the score in eight plays, chief among them a 21 and a 12-yarder by King. Maye finally went over from the one with 3:07 left, and the PAT kick try was wide.

After taking the kickoff at the 38, Washington gained a pair of yards on first down. Then, on second down, quarterback Parker started wide, then flipped to Wooten, who was uncovered on the outside. He raced down the sidelines for the 60-yard scoring run. Washington's kick try also failed, leaving it at 6-6 with 2:03 left in the period.

Early in the second period, Conley turned it over at midfield on a fumble. Washington drove to the 11 before turning it back on another fumble.

But Conley gave it right back on a third fumble on the first play, and Washington took advantage of that one.

On the first play, Washington again went to the option, with Parker again tossing back to Wooten, who went 27 yards to paydirt this time. On the PAT try, Parker picked up a bad snap and ran untouched into the end zone, running it to 14-6 with 3:59 left.

Two plays following the kickoff, Conley again turned it over, this time on an interception by Lonnie Harris at the Washington 39. Parker passed to Bobby Davis for 13 yards, then on second and nine from the Conley 47, threw to Harris. The receiver tipped the ball, which was then tipped again by a defender. Harris went around the receiver, tipped the ball twice more, then made a diving catch for a 20-yard reception down to the 27.

Two plays later, Parker used the option again, moving right, but this time kept it, cut back to the right and danced 23 yards into the end zone with 35 seconds left in the half. Mike Hooks kicked the PAT for a 21-6 lead.

In the second half, Washington moved from the 20 to the Conley 39 before a fumble ended its drive. Conley drove right back moving all the way to the seventh before turning it back on another fumble—its third fumble lost of the night.

Early in the final period, Conley penetrated Washington territory one last time, but was forced to punt.

Washington finally got it at the Pam Pack 40 following the second interception by the visitors. Five plays moved it to the Conley 39, from where Edwards hit Vance Moore for 20 yards to the 19. Washington fumbled on the next play, but managed to recover on the 22. That set the stage for Edwards pass to Cutler for the final score, which came with just 43 seconds left in the game.

Conley travels to North Lenoir on Friday, still looking for win number one as the Vikings open Eastern Carolina league play. Washington has an open date.

Southern Nash Tops Rams, 14-0

SNOW HILL — Southern Nash established itself as one of the favorites in the Eastern Carolina Conference football race Friday night, gaining a 14-0 victory over pre-season favorite Greene Central.

Both teams had turnover problems, each losing three possessions.

Greene Central held Southern scoreless in the first half, but found itself in similar straits. In the second half, however, the Firebirds scored once in each period.

The first touchdown came midway through the period when Jeff Lucas hit Terry Best on a 32-yard aerial for the score. McCullen Wiggins ran over the PAT to give the Firebirds an 8-0 lead. It was all they needed as the defense held the Rams scoreless.

The other score came late in the contest when Xavier Farmer picked up a loose ball at the two and carried it in for the clincher.

Southern Nash is now 1-1-1 overall and 1-0 in the conference. Greene Central falls to 1-2 overall and 0-1 in league play.

Aycock Brings Halt To Farmville Win Streak With 34-6 Victory

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock, holding Farmville Central to minus 11 yards on the ground, rolled to a 34-6 victory over the Jaguars Friday night. The loss snapped a 31-game winning streak in Eastern Carolina Conference play for the Farmville club, which had not lost since 1975, when Ayden-Grifton gained a 7-0 victory.

Farmville Central has won three straight ECC titles since then.

Part of the losses came from a poor snap on a punt that cost the team 20 yards on just one play. That also set up the third of the Aycock touchdowns, turning the ball over on the Jaguar 10.

Up to that point, the Jaguars still had a chance in the game, despite trailing 14-0.

Aycock grabbed the lead in the second period, scoring four times before the end of the quarter. The first score came on a 21-yard run by Ken Grantham, with Paul Thomas added the PAT for a 7-0 lead. A short time later, J.L. Gurley scored from five yards out, running it to 14-0.

That was when two Farmville mistakes allowed the Falcons to break the game wide open.

Back to punt, the Jaguars saw the ball sail over the kicker's head on the snap for a 20-yard loss, putting the ball in Falcon possession at the ten. Grantham scored seconds later from the one, and the Aycock eleven held a 21-0 lead.

Shortly after the kickoff, an interception put the ball on the 39 yard yard of the Jaguars for Aycock. On the first play, Thomas hit Grantham for his third touchdown, a 39-yard aerial. That raised it to 27-0 when the PAT try failed, and for all practical purposes, the game was over.

Both teams scored in the second half. Farmville's touchdown came in the third period, when James Newsome went over with a Jeff Cutler pass from 20 yards away. Aycock came back in the final period as Steve Hicks scored from seven yards out.

The victory left Aycock with a 2-0 record overall and a 1-0 mark in Eastern Carolina Conference play. Farmville Central is 0-2 overall and 0-1 in the loop. Farmville opens its home schedule next Friday, entertaining Greene Central, while Aycock travels to Ayden-Grifton.

THE GREENVILLE LITTLE LEAGUES

Fumble-Fingered North Pitt Falls, 13-12

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — The North Pitt defense built a stone wall that North Lenoir could not crack. The Hawks, however, didn't have to. North Pitt's offense saw to that.

The Panthers fumbled nine — yep, count 'em — nine times, losing five, and had two punts blocked, one for a touchdown, en route to a 13-12 loss to North Lenoir Friday night in the Eastern Carolina Conference opener for both schools.

"This is one of the toughest losses I've ever had here," North Pitt coach Pat Smith said afterward in his office. "I feel just awful. But I wouldn't change anything...the play calling...nothing.

"This just proves that the only thing that matters in a football game is the score," Smith said. "Our defense played just great — that's an understatement. The defense did everything you can expect from a defense to do on a football field."

And then some. The Panthers' swarming defense held the Hawks to three first downs and a meager 38 yards total offense. Three straight times in the first half the Hawks went for a first down on fourth down inside Panther territory. Not once did they make it.

Early in the second period the Panthers fumbled a pitch out at their 26. On four plays the Hawks lost four yards. Moments later, the Panthers again fumbled, this time at their 38. Again, the Panther defense held, shoving the Hawks back to the 44.

"It's hard to figure out a loss like this when we played like we did," Smith said. "It's extremely hard on the guys, too. Everyone was picking us to lose but we feel like we've got a good football team. But they've beaten us so many times like this, I just don't know.

"But we had our chances."

The Panthers' best opportunity to take the lead came in the fourth quarter, when they drove from their 39 and to the seven before fumbling.

The Panthers trailed, 14-13, as the fourth period began, but a fired up offense, which controlled the ball well in the second half when it wasn't fumbling, began to push the North Lenoir defense everywhere but out into the vacant lot adjacent to the field.

Then on second and 13 from the 30, quarterback Bob Hemingway, under heavy pressure, dumped a pass to Ronnie House for nine yards. Two plays later, on fourth down, Smith was caught in the backfield for a six-yard loss. However, a face mask penalty kept the march alive, giving the Panthers a first down on the 11.

The Panthers failed to take advantage of the break. From the seven one play later, Hemingway's errant pitch to Tony Pittman was recovered by North Lenoir's Michael White to end the threat with 6:45 left.

"How far down there were we? On the seven? We got to the seven and couldn't score," said Smith, shaking his head. "I don't know. We sure had our chances."

So did the Hawks, thanks to offensive errors by North Pitt.

Following a less-than-exciting first period in which North Lenoir gained 22 yards and North Pitt had minus 14, the Hawks took a blocked punt in for the first score of the evening.

After losing 18 yards — 15 coming on a clipping penalty — in three plays midway through the second quarter, the Panthers were forced to punt from their 25.

The Hawks' David Cratch broke through from the left to block the punt — his second of the night — and teammate Michael White picked the ball up at the 15 and ran it in for the score. With Guy Sanderson's PAT, the Hawks led, 7-0, with 4:02 left in the half.

North Pitt's offense finally began to move moments later, thanks to a fumble recovery by the defense on the North Lenoir 42.

Hemingway immediately hit Gordon Dunn for 13 yards — the Panthers' first first down of the game. After an incomplete, Hemingwway calmly lofted a pass to senior Keith Murphy at the 10. Murphy, who had broken free while running a post pattern, ran the remaining 10 yards untouched to narrow the Hawks' lead to 7-6 with 20 seconds left in the half.

On the extra point attempt the Hawks were penalized half the distance for offside. The Panthers, who had lined up as if they were going to kick the PAT the first time, returned to their normal offense but a fumbled pitchout left the Panthers still a point behind at intermission.

"We had a fake on the first extra point but they encroached," Smith said. "So we went to the run the second time but had a break down. Those points would have been enough to win the game."

North Pitt's offense wasted little time in establishing itself in the second half. The Panthers took the opening kickoff from their 28 and moved to the North Lenoir 36 thanks to a nine-yard run by Derrick Smith, a 12-yard pass from Hemingway to Murphy and a 15-yard face mask penalty agianst the Hawks.

"In the first half, they were shooting the gaps and that was causing us a lot of problems," Smith said. "We made some adjustments at halftime, we cut down on our splits, and it seemed to work."

Once again, however, the Panthers fumbled away their chance. Hemingway, scrambling deep in his backfield looking for a receiver, fumbled and the Hawks recovered at the Panther 37.

The defense held once more and four plays later the Hawks were forced to punt. But Michael Cox fumbled and North Lenoir recovered, at the Panthers' 11. North Lenoir's Robert Mumford bulled over from two-yards out four plays later. The kick missed but the Hawks led, 13-6, with 6:11 left in the third period.

Tony Pittman broke out for nine yards on first down and then on second and one from the 41 broke loose for another nine yard gain and a first down at midfield. Ronnie House then muscled ahead for 24 yards on two straight runs to put the ball at the North Lenoir 26.

Then, two plays later, Cox took a handoff from Hemingway on a reverse and swept around right end from 25 yards out to score. Dennis Bradley's PAT was off to the right but with 2:10 left in the third quarter the Panthers trailed, 13-12.

"We were saving that play. We used it last year on them and that was the how we scored our only points," said Smith, whose Panthers lost to North Lenoir, 25-9 last season.

This time, it proved to be the Panthers' final score. North Pitt did get inside North Lenoir territory twice more, moving to the North Lenoir seven, but the Panthers fumbled both times, their eighth and ninth of the game.

The loss evens the Panthers' season mark at 1-1 while North Lenoir is now 2-0. More importantly, it was a conference loss.

"I think this year we've got a fairly well-balanced league and I see quite a few games along these lines," Smith said. "I think toward the latter part of the season the teams with the most depth will probably stick up at the top.

"I feel like you can lose a game and win the conference," said Smith, whose Panthers travel to Southern Nash this Friday. "This was our first conference game and that pu us in a bad position. I may wrong, but I think you can lo a (league) game and still w the conference."

Fumble

Stopped
An unidentified North Pitt defender stops North Lenoir running back Robert Mumford (#41) for no gain. The Panther defense held the Hawks to just 38 yards total offense but still lost, 13-12, Friday night. Coming up to help on the play is the Panthers' Gordon Dunn (#85). Cards Help Expos With Sweep

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
AP Sports Writer

Inspiration boiled down to just one thought when Al Olmsted climbed onto the mound for his major league debut.

"I didn't want to embarrass myself," Olmsted said after pitching 91-3 scoreless innings to help the fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals sweep a doubleheader 7-4, 5-0 from second-place Philadelphia Friday night that saw the Phillies drop two games behind the Montreal Expos in the National League East.

In other NL games, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Cincinnati Reds 5-2; the Houston Astros downed the San Francisco Giants 5-3; the Montreal Expos shut out the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres 6-2; and the Chicago Cubs rolled over the New York Mets 10-5 in 14 innings.

Reliever John Littlefield was credited with the Cardinals' 5-0 nightcap win, but the 23-year-old Olmsted was the key figure, getting out of at least three jams against the hard-hitting Phillies.

"I give up a lot of hits, but I'm used to getting out of it," said Olmsted. "Luck was on my side. My screwball was my out pitch tonight."

Pete Vuckovich, who got credit for the 7-4 win in the opener, is 8-3 lifetime and 3-1 this year against Philadelphia.

"I don't appreciate being called a run of-the-mill everyday pitcher by (Phillies Manager) Dallas Green," said Vuckovich referring to a pre-game comment. "When I hear a manager come down hard and shoot off his mouth, I'm going to do my best to beat his team."

Dodgers 5, Reds 2

The Dodgers rode Jay Johnstone's two-run double to defeat Cincinnati and drop the Reds 3½-games behind themselves and Houston in the NL West. But the loss of shortstop Bill Russell was clearly their main concern.

"I'm thinking that was my last game tonight, unless a miracle happens," said Russell, whose right index finger was broken in the third inning when a pitch struck his hand.

"You7re getting down to the time of year when you can't afford to lose any of your starting players," Russell said. "You've got to bring up a kid from the minors into a pennant race. He's a good player, but you don't know how he'll react to the pressure."

Astros 5, Giants 3

Shortstop Craig Reynolds, batting just .219 going into the game, produced the game-winning hit in the fifth inning to keep the Astros tied for the NL West lead with Los Angeles.

Houston starter Joe Niekro, 16-11, surrendered three runs and 12 hits over 71-3 innings before giving way to reliever Dave Smith, who finished to earn his seventh save.

Expos 1, Pirates 0

There'll be no living on yesterday's laurels when Montreal goes into the second game of its series with Pittsburgh.

"We even have to forget what happened tonight and go out there and start fresh tomorrow," said Scott Sanderson, 15-8, after tossing a five-hitter for Montreal to became the sixth National League pitcher to win at least 15 games this season.

Braves 6, Padres 2

Veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro captured his sixth consecutive victory for Atlanta, scattering eight hits in 72-3 innings before needing relief help.

Chris Chambliss knocked in four runs, including a three-run, first inning home run, to help the 41-year-old pitcher even his record at 14-14.

The victory snapped a three-game Atlanta losing streak and also broke the Padres' seven-game winning string.

Roanoke Captures 3rd Win As Gaston Falls

ROBERSONVILLE — Angelo Spruill threw for two touchdowns and Robert Smith ran for two more to lead Roanoke to a 28-14 win over Gaston Friday night in a high school football game.

The win was the Redskins' third of the season without a defeat. Gaston is 1-2.

Roanoke scored quickly, putting up two touchdowns in the opening period. Spruill hit Maurice Chance with a 15-yard scoring pass and then later in the quarter hit Neal Cargile with a 32-yard touchdown toss.

Spruill now has thrown for six scores in three games. He is 12-of-30 for 337 yards. Both Chance and Cargile have now caught three touchdown passes.

Gaston rallied in the second period to tie the game. Ivan Clayton ripped off a 42-yard run early in the quarter before Calvin Moody plunged over from the one later in the period to knot the score at 14-14 at the half.

The Redskins took the lead for good in the third quarter on a one-yard run by Robert Smith and then extended their lead in the final period when Smith recovered a fumble and returned it 60 yards for the final score of the evening.

Roanoke has an open date this week and returns to action two weeks from now when the Redskins travel to Ahoskie for a key Northeastern Conference battle.

Williamston Eases Past Currituck By 8-2 Score

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School remained unbeaten Friday night, slipping past Currituck, 8-2, in a defensive struggle.

Currituck moved the ball better than Williamston, but found it hard to hang onto the ball, fumbling it away on three occasions. Williamston had one pass intercepted for its only turnover.

The lone Tiger touchdown came in the second period after Williamston had taken over following a short punt. Quarterback Jim Lilley set up the score with a 16-yard pass to Vicent Washington. Then, Harry Beach carried it in for the final 12 yards.

On the PAT try, the ball was badly snapped, and McKinley Williams, the holder, picked it up and ran it in for the 8-0 lead.

It stayed that way until late in the contest when Lilley, back to punt, had the ball snapped over his head. He recovered it in the end zone, but was downed there for a safety.

Williamston had several other chances, but failed to convert on them, finding it difficult to move the ball. Several times, the Tigers got good field position on turnovers, but failed to convert them, once having a field goal blocked. Currituck twice threatened, once failing at the Williamston two, and late in the game, losing it on downs at the Tiger seven.

Williamston takes the week on this coming Friday, then returns to action against Roanoke Rapids in its first Northeastern Conference game the next Friday.

Wheels To Open Year

The Steel Wheels, Greenville's entry in the Carolina's Wheel Chair Basketball League, open their 1980 season Oct. 11 (at 7 p.m.) at home against the Palmetto Spinners, league champions last season.

Season tickets for all home games are now on sale by the Jaycees. Season tickets covers the Steel Wheels' five home games — all of which are doubleheaders — and also includes the East Carolina Wheel Chair Tournament set for Nov. 8-9 at Minges Coliseum.

The season ticket sells for $5 and is a "family pass," meaning that the ticket will admit an entire family to all home games. All home games will be played at the Elm Street Gym.

Cougars Top Ayden-Grifton

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe held Ayden-Grifton to 29 yards on the ground to take a hard-fought 13-0 win over the Chargers Friday night in the opening Eastern Carolina Conference game for both teams.

The Cougars, who rushed for 202 yards and now in two games have rushed for over 650 yards, recovered an Ayden-Grifton fumble on the Charger 25 midway through the first period for their first score. Gene Blossom ran it from 12 yards out and with the kick the Cougars led, 7-0.

That was all Southwest got until the fourth period when Alton Jones ripped off a 15-yard run to cap a 70-yard drive and lift the Cougars to a 13-0 lead.

"That fumble let'em in early," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "It turned into a punting duel from there. We punted seven times and them six. It was back and forth until late in the game.

"They just beat us physically," said Sauls, whose Chargers did not get inside the Cougar 20 all night. "Their defensive line controlled the line of scrimmage and we had great difficulty in moving the ball on the ground. We didn't have a real drive all night."

Safety Brings Bullet Defeat

Friday night, however, a lack of communication — and 100 yards in penalties — led to a third-period safety that proved to be the difference as the Bullets dropped an 8-6 decision to Chocowinity in a Beaufort-Hyde-Martin battle.

With the score tied at 6-6 at the half, Chocowinity drove to Bullets' five where they fumbled. On their first play from scrimmage the Bullets ran a reverse which the Indians turned into a safety and the winning score.

It shouldn't have been. "I sent in a fake reverse," Godley said. "But they didn't hear the 'fake' and so they ran the reverse.

"It was a stupid play but we played stupid most of the night."

Especially in the first period, when Jamesville was penalized for 70 yards as the Indians took a 6-0 lead.

"We should have scored 30 points in the first quarter," Godley said. "The first three times they had the ball we knocked it out of their hands. But everytime we did anything we got a penalty. We had clipping on the line of scrimmage, we had illegal procedure and they (the officials) couldn't tell me who moved.

The Bullets did, however, manage to tie the game up in the second period when Ricky Bell scored from two yards out. Bell, who rushed for 88 yards on 18 carries, was stopped on the two-point PAT attempt.

The Bullets, now 1-2 overall and 1-1 in the league, play host to Belhaven this Friday.

Few Sleepers Among NFL's Starters

By The Associated Press

You've heard of computerized dating? Well, the National Football League's talent scouting, much of it computerized, has gotten the business of evaluating college players down to a science. Of the 34 first-year players who made starting lineups last weekend, 15 were first-round picks and six were second-round choices.

That means there were very few starting sleepers among the 210 first-year players who landed on the 28 NFL rosters for last week's opening pro football action.

No selections from the third, sixth and 12th rounds made an opening game lineup; only one rookie draftee from the fifth, ninth, 10th and 11th rounds started, and only two players started their first NFL games from the fourth, seventh and eighth rounds.

For all you Horatio Algers out there, three free agents did make it to the starting lineup without getting a call on draft day — kicker Nick Lowery and tackle Franky Smith, both of Kansas City, and linebacker Bruce Beekley of Green Bay.

Of course, the biggest rookie star starter was Billy Sims, who was the draft's No.1 pick. He had quite a debut with Detroit, sparking the Lions to a 41-20 upset of the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday. Sims rushed for three touchdowns and 153 yards in 22 carries.

This Sunday, Sims gets to rush against Green Bay when the Lions play host to the Packers. Last week, the Packers got untracked after a winless preseason with a 12-6 overtime victory over the Chicago Bears.

"If you think he's good now, wait until you see him in our eighth game," said Lions quarterback Gary Danielson.

Sims' rushing total was the fourth best debut by a rookie in NFL history, only topped by Alan Ameche of Baltimore with 194 yards in 1955, Ottis Anderson of St. Louis with 193 yards in 1979 and William Andrews of Atlanta with 167 yards in 1979.

Another rookie starter who made a big splash Sunday was the San Francisco 49ers' No.1 pick, fullback Earl Cooper, who rushed for 77 yards and caught passes for 71 for a total of 148 yards.

The other first-round picks who started last week were: cornerback Derrick Hatchett, Baltimore; tackle Anthony Munoz, Cincinnati; running back Charles White, Cleveland; cornerback Don McNeal, Miami; running back Vagas Ferguson, New England; safety Roland James, New England; wide receiver Lam Johes, New York Jets; defensive end Jacob Green, Seattle; safety Johnnie Johnson, Los Angeles; tackle Stan Brock, New Orleans; cornerback Mark Haynes, New York Giants; cornerback Roynell Young, Philadelphia, and defensive end Curtis Greer, St. Louis.

In other games Sunday, it will be Pittsburgh at Baltimore, Philadelphia at Minnesota, Oakland at San Diego, Seattle at Kansas City, Dallas at Denver, Washington at the Giants, Atlanta at New England, Cincinnati at Miami, the Jets at Buffalo, St.Louis at San Francisco and New Orleans at Chicago.

On Monday night, Houston plays at Cleveland.

Doug Williams' one-yard plunge with 53 seconds remaining gave Tampa Bay a 10-9 triumph over Los Angeles Thursday night. Tampa Bay is now 2-0 and Los Angeles is 0-2.

49ers Will Bug Quarterback

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers may bug their own quarterback when he takes the field against the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday.

Steve DeBerg has a severe case of laryngitis, and the team worried that his fellow players might not be able to hear him call signals.

It has obtained a specially built microphone to attach to DeBerg's helmet, which would be connected to a tiny amplifier in his shoulder pads, the team said.

Backup quarterback Joe Montana has practiced with the first string this week, but the spokesman said every effort would be made to start DeBerg.

Freedom Set To Defend America Cup

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — John Marshall knows what it's like to devote years of effort to a losing cause. Perhaps that is why he can appreciate what he and his teammates have accomplished aboard America's Cup defense selection Freedom over the past two years.

In 1974, Marshall was a crew member of Intrepid, which finally lost a summer-long battle with Courageous to defend the cup. It was one of the most intense defense campaigns in America's Cup history.

In 1977, Marshall was part-time helmsman and tactician aboard Enterprise, another failing effort. Courageous was selected again in '77 and Marshall was sidelined in September.

Next week, Freedom, with Marshall onboard as sail trimmer, begins a best-of-seven series with Australia in the 24th defense of the America's Cup since 1851.

"There are probably three things that set this effort apart from 1977," Marshall said Friday. "The first is the expanded time frame. We started this campaign a summer earlier than in 1977. We achieved an awful lot before we were subjected to the direct pressure of the selection races."

The Freedom effort, headed by skipper Dennis Conner, is approximately two years old. Along with trial horse Enterprise, Freedom has raced two full summers in California and here.

"The second thing is the two-boat effort," Marshall said. "Enterprise had Intrepid as a trial horse three years ago, but in a very informal sense. She was not owned by the syndicate.

"Enterprise is absolutely under the full control of Dennis," Marshall said. "She has just one function — to improve the overall performance of Freedom.

"The third thing that distinguishes this program from three years ago is our ability to build from '77," Marshall said. "We know what was good and what was0bad about 1977. For instance, in 1977, Enterprise was unable to tack quickly. We discovered it was because of the short foretriangle (jib sail). These are small things, individually, but they add up."

When the series begins Tuesday against Australia, Marshall says the Freedom crew will enter it with a sense of accomplishment.

"We have a sense now that we have accomplished what we set out to do," Marshall said. "We're still working hard, but there is no sense of urgency. We're polishing, trying to get that last bit of excellence."

There was a sense of urgency, meanwhile, in the Australian camp. The boat sat out of the water for the third straight day Friday while the crew made some last-minute changes in the boat's new, bendy mast.

Warren Jones, executive director of the Australian effort, said they were tuning and ,enforcing the tracks at the top of the mast.

The mast, more flexible to increase the sail area, was stepped earlier this week.

"We're extremely pleased with the mast and we will race with it," Jones said, while admitting the Australians felt they had to pull something out of a hat to beat the extremely quick Freedom.

"You might say that we won the challenge series and now we are crazily switching our rig," Jones said. "But we don't think the America's Cup will be won by anyone unless they are willing to be innovative. We have innovated, and we just hope it works."

Gobbler Guard Is Ineligible

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Guard Dexter Reid, a two-year basketball starter at Virginia Tech, has been ruled academically ineligible for the entire 1980-81 season.

Reid, a 6-foot-1 Norfolk native, led the Hokies in assists the past two seasons, helping Tech post records of 22-9 and 21-8. He averaged 8.2 points per game as a sophomore and 5.9 points per game last year. Tech made the NCAA tournament both seasons.

Yankees Gain Ground As Birds, Boston Are Eastern Victims

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Rick Langford starts something, he finishes it — even if it kills him.

And it almost did Friday night.

Langford hung in there despite 14 hits by Kansas City and managed to pitch his 22nd straight complete game as the Oakland A's beat the Royals 9-5.

"The other guys deserve the credit for this one," said Langford, who set an Oakland record with his 25th complete game of the year. "They did the work. I was just the guy out there trying to get batters out."

"It wasn't one of Langford's better games," said Martin, who showed his concern during the ninth inning when he had a long conversation on the mound with the pitcher.

"If Billy had taken me out at that point, he certainly would have had the right to do it," said Langford.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York defeated Boston 4-2; Toronto defeated Baltimore 7-5; Detroit beat Cleveland 6-3; Chicago turned back Minnesota 5-3; Milwaukee whipped Seattle 7-1 and California outscored Texas 8-4.

The A's won the game for Langford with a three-run seventh triggered by Mitchell Page's second home run of the game, a leadoff blast off reliever Craig Chamberlain, 0-1. The A's sewed it up with three runs in the eighth in a rally keyed by Wayne Gross's RBI-triple.

Page, who has 16 homers this season and four in his last two games, drove in three runs Friday night, one on a single in the third.

Langford, 16-11, has not been taken out of a game since May 18, and his streak of consecutive games is believed to be the longest in the big leagues in more than 50 years.

Yankees 4, Red Sox 2

Rudy May, 14-5, unbeaten since July 22, earned his seventh consecutive victory witx eighth-inning relief help from Rich Gossage, who gained his 27th save.

May gave up six hits, struck out seven and walked three in beating the Red Sox for the third time this season.

The victory was the Yankees' 11th in the last 12 games and 14th in the last 16, boosting their record to 89-52, tops in the major leagues.

"I haven't completed a game in a long time and the Goose has saved quite a few of them," said May said. "With him in the bullpen I can throw as hard as I want for as long as I can. I know that No.54 is going to come in with 100 mile-per-hour smoke and do the job."

Blue Jays 7, Orioles 5

John Mayberry and Lloyd Moseby each knocked in two runs to lead Toronto over Baltimore.

Joey McLaughlin, 6-8, pitched 71-3 innings before needing relief help from Mike Willis, who earned his second save after allowing solo home runs to Ken Singleton and John Lowenstein in the eighth.

Mike Flanagan, 14-12, took the loss for the Orioles, who dropped four games behind the Yankees in the AL East.

The victory was Toronto's 60th of the season, the most in the Blue Jays' five-year history.

Tigers 6, Indians 3

Aurelio Lopez pitched four innings of scoreless relief and Rick Peters scored the winning run in the eighth inning on a throwing error as Detroit defeated Cleveland.

Lopez, 12-5, yielded three hits in helping the Tigers snap a six-game losing streak.

White Sox 5, Twins 3

Glenn Borgmann knocked in four runs with two singles and a two-run homer as Chicago defeated Minnesota.

Rookie Britt Burns, 13-12, was the winner with eighth-inning relief help from Ed Farmer, who gained his 26th save. Jerry Koosman, 12-13, took the loss.

Borgmann had an RBI-single in the fourth, a two-run homer in the sixth and a run-scoring base hit in the eighth.

"I was due for a good one, and I don't have any special feeling because it was the Twins," said Borgmann, who had spent his entire major league career with Minnesota before being acquired by the White Sox last winter. "I was just happy to contribute, I hadn't been doing very well."

Brewers 7, Mariners 1

Thomas' 34th homer came in the seventh off Floyd Bannister, 8-11, and broke a 1-1 tie. Molitor then hit his seventh home run in the eighth inning and Yount capped a four-run ninth with a two-run blast, his 21st.

Haas, 16-12, pitched a perfect game for four innings, but Bruce Bochte ended the no-hitter and the shutout with his 11th home run leading off the fifth.

Angels 8, Rangers 4

Larry Harlow hit a three-run homer and John Harris had three hits to lead California over Texas.

Rookie Jim Dorsey staggered through five innings to pick up his first major league victory despite allowing 10 hits and four runs.

Harlow's homer capped a five-run Angels' first inning and sent Texas starter Doc Medich, 12-10, to an early shower.

Smokin' Joe's Boy Celebrates Birthday

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a happy birthday for Marvis Frazier, Smokin' Joe's son, who turned 20 with a victory in his first pro fight.

But the question that popped up at the Olympic Trials in June lingers on. Can the young heavyweight take a punch.

In June, in his final amateur bout, Frazier was knocked out in 21 seconds by James Broad with a right hand high on the head that whipped Frazier's head and caused a pinched nerve in his neck.

Friday night at the Felt Forum, after controlling the action for most of the first round, Frazier was hit with a left hook and a smashing right by Roger Troupe that sent him reeling to the ropes, obviously hurt. The bell rang before Troupe had a chance to follow up.

"I knew I was hurt," said Frazier at a new conference after he stopped Broad in the third round of a scheduled four-rounder. "But I knew I'd come back because of condition. I'm confident of my ability. I believe I can take a punch."

"I don't know what I would have done if I had gotten hit with a shot like that," said Frazier's father, the former heavyweight champion of the world.

Joe Frazier said his son's mistake in the first round was giving too much punching room to Troupe of Los Angeles, who said he once was a wide receiver for the Philadelphia Bell of the defunct World Football League. Troupe was listed at 6-foot-2, as was Frazier, but Troupe appeared taller and had a definite reach advantage.

Frazier, who weighed 198 pounds, stayed closed to Troupe, 207, in the second and third rounds. He knocked Troupe on to the ring apron with a left-right to the head in the second.

In the third, he knocked out Troupe's mouthpiece with a right hand and then knocked him into the ropes with a left-right to the head. Referee Johnny LoBianco jumped in to stop the fight at 2:08 of the round as Troupe, now 3-4-2, slumped to the canvas.

Frazier said he was disappointed with his performance, but his father said, "I think he did a fantastic job."

The new pro, who was 53-2 as an amateur, displayed a nice left hook, good power in both hands, solid body punching and poise in what had to be a nervous situation.

Chips and putts from area golf courses:

Ayden Golf and Country Club

The Ayden Golf and Country Club completed its club championship last weekend, with defending champion Dallas Jackson rallying to win for the fourth time.

Jackson finished the final round with a 220 total score to nip Paul Andrews, the leader going into the final round, by a stroke. Andrews had a double bogey on the 17th hole of the tournament, losing the lead to Jackson, and they matched scores on the final hole.

The fourth flight went to Sparky McCaskill, with Ed Murphrey second. Roy Jordan won the fifth flight beating out John Ham. The sixth flight was won by Gary Sumrell, while Tommy Langston won a playoff to take second.

Farmville Golf and Country Club

The Farmville Golf and Country Club will be held this coming weekend, September 20-21. Entries close for the event on Friday. The entry fee is $40 per team for the two-man best ball event.

The club recently completed its Father-Son Tournament. In the 8-10 age group, Donald Parker and his son Lance were first. In the 11-13 group, Donnie Langston and his son Robbie finished first. Dick Cutler and his son Jeff won the 14-17 age group.

The Junior Club Championship was also recently completed. For 8 and 9 year olds, Allen Lewis took first place, while Mark Williams won at 10-11. For the 12-13 group, Scott Lewis won, with Gary Hobgood winning the 14-17 age group.

A cookout and trophy presentation party was held Saturday for the winners and participatants in both tournaments.

Brook Valley Country Club

The Brook Valley Club Championship winds up this afternoon.

Several Brook Valley women were among winners in the Eastern Ladies Golf League meeting at Rocky Mount this week. Sue Hallow took second low gross in the championship flight, while Barbara Walker had low putts. In the first flight, Maxine Hawley won low gross. Evelyn Ward took low putts in the second flight, while Ellen Fleming had low net and Jane Kanetzke had low gross in the third flight. Mae Haverty had second low gross in the fourth flight.

Greenville Country Club

A Captain's Choice Tournament was held at the Greenville Country Club recently. First place went to the team of Will Hickman, Don McGlohon, Bonita Edwards and Betty Lou Howard. Second were Keila McGlohon, Frank Longino, Put Carter and Stan Teague. Third were Reg Akin, Tom Perry, Etsil Watson and Sue Hardy.

Fourth went to Herb Carter, K. Joe Davis, Harriette White and Susan Corbett. Fifth were Wilbur Castellow, Alex White, Janet McGlohon and Della Dayson. The team of Bob Dail, Ray Edwards, Joan Warren and Audrey Thiel were sixth. Seventh went to Sue Castellow, Skip Bright, John Wooten and Myrt Leslie.

Closest to the hole!on #3 was Put Carter. Closest to #10 was Mary Dail White Taylor.

The Popsicle Open is scheduled for today, starting at 3:15 p.m. This is for children ages 4-10. A pig-picking will follow play.

The W.S. Moye Tournament is set for September 27-28. This is a two-man, best ball, open to all. Further details are available at the pro shop.

The next Ladies Day, next Friday, will be "Tough Day."

B.G. Clark recently had a double eagle on #5. He made a two on the par 5, 477 yard hole, hitting a driver and a three-wood. He was playing with three of his fraternity brothers.

Lee Ball carded a 31 on the front nine recently.

The Ladies Match Play Tournament is now in progress.

Ladies Clinics are planned for Oct. 13, 14 and 16, for beginning ladies from 10-11 a.m. each day. Signups may be made by calling the pro shop. An advanced ladies clinc is set for Oct. 20 at 9-11 a.m. Electric carts will be provided free, along with refreshments, by the golf pro for all participants. This is open to members only.

The annual fishing championship will be held on Oct. 17 for members.

Terrorism: The Next Form Of Warfare?

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — International terrorism is likely to increase in the 1980s as governments turn to terrorism to carry out their political aims, an expert says.

"Terrorism is becoming institutionalized, and the public is accepting it," Brian M. Jenkins, director of the Rand Corporation's research program in security and subnational conflict, said Friday.

Rand sponsored a week-long 1980 International Conference on Terrorism and Low-Level Conflict here. Some 140 government and military officials, scholars and researchers from 13 nations attended.

"We have individual (terrorist) groups and individuals acting on behalf of military governments. Nations openly avow they will assassinate (their enemies) abroad. That's a change," Jenkins said. "That is one of the trends that caused some concern at this conference."

Jenkins spoke at a news briefing with Anthony C.E. Quainton, a State Department official, and George Weisz, director of the Department of Energy's office of safeguards and security and the DOE's emergency co-ordinator.

Quainton said so-called "Big Event" terrorist acts aimed at such occurrences as the Olympic Games were discussed during the conference as were the sabotage of oil supertankers, intentional oil spills, hijacking of liquid natural gas transports and other conceivable terrorist acts against energy supplies.

He said terrorist acts involving nuclear facilities were omitted from the conference agenda "because they are peculiar facilities with very peculiar safeguards."

Professor Paul Wilkinson of the University of Aberdeen in Great Britain said new ways to safeguard foreign diplomatic missions must be developed. Wilkinson, noting that there had been 38 attacks on foreign diplomatic premises since January 1979, said the problem can't be solved merely by increased security.

"Terrorist crimes are serious crimes. They must be punished," said Wilkinson. The world community needs "to make sure there is no easy way for a terrorist to escape to another country" after perpetrating a violent act, he said.

CONSOLING RECEPIENT — President Carter places his hand on the cane and hand of Anthony Casamento in the White House Rose Garden Friday as he consoles Casamento who moments before cried during a ceremony where he was presented with the Congressional Medal of Honor. Transferred PORT HUENEME, Calif. (AP) — Two women who a Navy board said had engaged in lesbian activities aboard the ship USS Norton Sound have been transferred off the vessel to other duties, the Navy says.

But two others who were acquitted and four who had charges against them dropped remain aboard the missile test ship at its home port here, said Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Mark Baker.

"Alicia Harris and Wendi Williams have been transferred from the Norton Sound," said Baker.

He said Ms. Harris was moved to the 32nd Street Naval Station at San Diego and Ms. Williams was ordered to the construction batallion at Port Hueneme, 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

The Norton Sound case surfaced last spring when the Navy revealed it was investigating possible lesbianism among 24 of 61 women assigned to the ship.

Breaks Long Silence

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A weekly military newspaper at Camp Lejeune has broken a 16-month silence on Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, now being court-martialed on charges that he deserted and conspired with the enemy in Vietnam.

"The Globe," an 18,000-circulation paper published by the Marine Corps' Public Affairs office at Camp Lejeune, carried a front-page article this week, detailing Garwood's background and a second story inside about the pre-trial phase of his court-martial.

Since Garwood arrived at Camp Lejeune in May 1979, the post newspaper has been silent on the case.

Maj. John Schmidt, public affairs officer at Camp Lejeune, said there had been no earlier coverage of the Garwood case for fear that potential military jurors might be prejudiced.

SchUidt said future coverage of the trial "will depend on our coordination with the judge. There most likely will be some, but I don't know what."

District Attorney William H. Andrews says he expects to delay Garwood's civilian trial until after the court-martial is concluded.

Andrews said Friday that if there is another delay in the military proceedings, he might seek an indictment earlier than planned.

"I would prefer not to proceed with our case until the proceedings at the base have been concluded," he said.

Garwood, 34, also faces a civilian trial on charges that he molested a 7-year-old girl.

VETERAN HONORED — William Jennings Putcamp, 83, of Fresno, Calif., left, receives the Good Conduct and Purple Heart medals from Sergeant Major Leland Crawford, Sergeant Major of the Marine Corps, at a ceremony Friday night in Washington after the evening parade at the United States Marine Barracks. Putcamp, a World War I veteran, had lost his medals in later years after the war. (AP Laserphoto)

Says Exiled Iranians Planning Coup D'Etat

ATLANTA (AP) — Iranian exile factions are planning to form an exile government with the shah's son, Crown Prince Reza Cyrus Pahlavi, as the figurehead monarch, the Atlanta Journal and Consitution reported in combined Saturday editions.

In a copyright story from Washington, the newspapers quoted unidentified sources in Paris, London and Washington as saying exiled Iranians have been meeting in Paris to plan a coup d'etat to be launched within a few months.

Pahlavi's father, Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, was ousted in January 1979 by Moslem revolutionaries led by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. The shah died in July in Egypt.

The newspapers said a "supreme council" consisting of the heads of the principal exiled Iranian military, social democratic and monarchist factions has been formed. Members of the council include former Iranian Prime Ministers Shapour Bakhtiar and Ali Amini, General Gholam Ali Oveissi, one-time oil minister Hassan Nazih and ex-parliamentarian Ahmad Bani-ahmad, the report said.

Bakhtiar, the last Iranian prime minister before the revolution, had announced last month the formation of a resistance movement to fight the Khomeini regime.

The newspapers said Iranian experts in Western nations believe that the chances for a pro-Western coup are feasible if the separate military, monarchist and republican factions could unite.

Difficulties which have separated Bakhtiar and Oveissi have been chiefly over whether a new government would be a Latin American-style military one, as Oveissi prefers, or a social democracy, as promoted by Bakhtiar, the newspapers said.

Sources were quoted as saying the two men have been pulled together by Amini, a prime minister in the early 1960s who led the shah's "White Revolution," a movement which upgraded the economic, social and educational standards of Iran.

The Pahlavi crown prince will become 20 on Oct. 31 and there are plans to crown him in Cairo sometime this fall, the newspapers said, quoting "a close friend and distant relative" in London.

Former Beach Bums Attend Myrtle Beach Reunion

By BOB THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NORTH MYRTLE EACH, S.C. (AP) — As unions go, the Society of tranders' inaugural get-gether this weekend is an nmitigated, hip-swaying, lbow-bending, back-apping success.

Bass Weejuns shined and nakis pressed, legions of rmer hard-muscled feguards and self-roclaimed "beach bums" eported to North Myrtle each Thursday for what ayor Joseph Saleeby hopes ll be an annual procession.

There they reunited with e once lissome waitresses nd clerks who were their eartthrobs back in the days, ree decades ago, when each music and shagging were as much a part of summer as the heat.

Organizers of the first "SOS O.D. Migration" were expecting between 2,000 and 5,000 beach music lovers to show up at various locations in the Ocean Drive Beach section of North Myrtle Beach.

Saleeby and other local officials had cause to hope the northern end of South Carolina's Grand Strand would become a Capistrano for beach music lovers. The conventioneers had bought untold kegs of beer, minibottles of liquor and off-season motel rooms.

But Gene Laughter, a former lifeguard who is now with a Richmond, Va., advertising firm, said he had an entirely different motive in mind when he organized the reunion. He wanted to see his "family" for the first time in nearly 30 years.

Laughter said unique and lasting friendships developed among the young people who summered at the beach during the '40s and '50s.

D.B. Evans of Greenville, who was at the beach from 1942 to 1949, said hard work and harder play was the way of life back in those simpler days.

"We worked long, hard hours in the day, but we played all night," said Evans, now with a Greenville development firm.

It was obvious at an ice-breaking pool party Thursday afternoon and a dance party that night that while members of the Society of Stranders may have gone their separate ways geographically and professionally, they still appreciate the mainstays of their beach culture — shagging, drinking and talking.

"The good thing about these people here," said Laughter, "is there isn't a normal person in the bunch. They're all crazy. ... They're the liveliest people in the world."

Laughter, a lanky, gray-haired 48-year-old who grew up in Albemarle, N.C., said people were having trouble recognizing each other after several decades. But he said once the names and faces were matched up, small talk was no problem.

"Nobody asks anybody what they're doing now or how many kids they've got or anything like that," said Laughter. "They just say, 'Let's get a beer and have some fun.'"

The nametags provided by a beer distributor helped to smooth the identification process. Many SOSers went by only their nicknames.

Everybody had a nickname at the beach, said Laughter. He couldn't recall how he got the moniker of "Swinky."

"Somebody said you looked like a 'swinky,'" offered Dennis Beam of Shelby, N.C. "They didn't know what it meant, though."

Nobody could remember when "Worry" Smith got his nickname — or what his first name is. Smith, whose long gray hair and beard give him the look of an aging beatnik, refused to help jog any memories.

The Key West, Fla., resident said his full name was Jones Smith. But after thinking a moment, he said, "No, make that Smith Jones."

Frankie McKenna of South Yarmouth, Mass., sipped a drink at the dance party as she watched her colleagues try to shake out the kinks. Russell "Boney" Moore gestured toward her.

"You think it's hard to recognize people?" said Moore, a bearded, paunchy Bennettsville native whose nickname belies his physique. "I went to school with her for 12 years and didn't even know who she was when I saw her."

Mrs. McKenna said her musician husband and "two very large sons" paid for her trip to the reunion. "They thought Mama should get a little vacation," she said.

She said she hadn't met anyone who had traveled any further than she had. But she added eagerly that the trip was "worth it."

"Quite many" of the friends she made at the beach had shown up at the reunion, she said. She met two women whom she had not seen since she was in their weddings.

Beach people, and the lives they led, have changed over the years, Mrs. McKenna said.

"The beach life was clean. You'd dance until the sun came up. There wasn't any dope or hard liquor. You didn't see much fooling around. I'm sure there was some going on, but you didn't see it," she said.

"Only rumors," the trim, attractive brunette modestly replied when told of the compliment.

Tom Lilly, one of Laughter's youthhood chums from Albemarle, gave away 200 T-shirts he bought for the occasion and had imprinted with "SOS O.D. Migration."

One man who asked Laughter how much the T-shirts cost was surprised to hear that they were free.

"Hell, this is family," Laughter said later. "Everybody here is a family. We all lived together. You don't sell anything to your family, do you?"

Business Notes

BANK CITED

Peoples Bank & Trust Co. has been recognized as 61st among the top 300 United States banks, ranked according to total agricultural loans outstanding.

The ranking was based on the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's Report of Condition as of September, 1979. The ranking, it was pointed out, also reflected that Peoples Bank had the highest percent of total deposits loaned to agriculture of all banks in the state.

The bank has 48 branches in 27 communities.

RETIRED FROM SERVICE

Jasper R. Pollard retired from the U.S. Postal Service in Greenville after 34 years of governmental service. Pollard worked as both a city carrier and rural carrier during his years with the postal service.

He and his wife, the former Lovie F. Skinner, have five children and seven grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Pollard will make their home at 975 Engel Avenue, Chattanooga, Tenn.

126TH YEAR

The local Wickes Lumber store, located on Greenville Boulevard, is joining the parent company, The Wickes Corp., in celebrating its 126th anniversary this month, the company reported.

Earlier this year, the Wickes Lumber Division was named "Retailer of the Year" in the $50 million or more sales catergory by Building Supply News, national trade journal in the building materials industry.

The firm got its start in 1854 when the Wickes brothers began manufacturing gang saws for the lumber industry in Saginaw, Mich. The concept of cash-and-carry discount lumber store or "supermarket" of lumber and building supplies evolved in 1952. The Lumber Division is still headquartered in Saginaw.

NEW SHOE STORE

The Shoe Room, featuring shoes for the family at discount prices, is open at 402 Evans Mall, according to William Parker Jr. and David Glen Parker, co-owners.

They reported that the grand opening for the new business is planned for Sept. 18-20. Operating hours for the store will be from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The co-owners are natives of Rocky Mount. William Parker also owns a janitorial service in Rocky Mount.

CHAPTER MEETING

The Eastern Chapter of American Production and Inventory Control Society will begin its 1980-81 year with a dinner meeting Wednesday, Sept. 17 at the Three Steers Restaurant. Persons interested in attending or becoming a member should contact Ken Kearney at 758-3436, Ext. 2395.

SAFETY BROCHURE

A new brochure containing electrical safety tips is being distributed by Virginia Electric and Power Co. to its 1.3 million customers in their bills during September.

The brochure, "Look Up! Live Wires Can Be Deadly," is being distributed by Vepco to help make its customers aware of the dangers of working or playing around electrical wires, according to Walter George, Vepco safety director.

COUNCIL FORMED

TRW Inc., diversified industrial manufacturer, has formed a company-wide transportation council to exchange ideas and technical information and to develop strategies to improve efficiency and reduce costs, the company reported.

A spinoff of the company's ten-year-old purchasing council, the new panel will hold its first meeting at TRW headquarters in Cleveland on Sept. 16-17.

Cotton Futures Price Buoyed

By KATHY OSOBA
AP Business Writer

Cotton futures rose the daily trading limit in most contract months Friday with speculators buoyed by a lower than expected crop production estimate.

The Agriculture Department's production estimate of 11.7 million bales released on Thursday was below the trade projections of a 11.8 million to 12 million bale crop, said Ernest Simon, cotton analyst for Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

He said drought in the primary growing areas and damage from the high winds and rains of Hurricane Allen that struck Texas in August reduced the crop size. "It was definitely a bullish figure," said Simon.

As a result, traders bought futures expecting that world demand would rise and take prices higher with it. Futures on te New York Cotton Exchange rose .65 cent to 2 cents, October 97.77 cents per pound.

Cattle futures closed mixed as traders evened up their positions before the 7-state cattle inventory report was released by the Agriculture Department after the close of trade Friday.

The report showed the number of animals placed on feedlots to be fattened for slaughter was up 20 percent in August compared with a year ago.

Market analysts said a high placement figure was expected, but that the 20 percent increase would probably depress values in the coming week.

"It's bearish on the deferred months of February and April," said Bob Kuhn, livestock analyst for Merrill Lynch, Pierce Fenner & Smith in Chicago. He noted that the animals placed on feedlots in August would be ready for slaughter in those later contract months, increasing supplies and thereby pressuring prices.

Kuhn added that feedlot operators increased their animal inventories in August because prices for fat cattle were rising then and operators wanted to increase their profit margins.

Meanwhile, drought conditions in the Southwest forced ranchers to take cattle off the range as grass burnt out and many of those animals were placed on feedlots.

The number of cattle actually slaughtered in August was 14 percent less than a year earlier. Art Paulsrud, livestock analyst for Cargill Investor Services in Chicago, noted that the drought and hot weather also had an impact on the slaughter levels.

On the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, cattle futures were .18 cent lower to .18 cent higher, with October ending at 68.35 cents per pound; feeder cattle were .20 cent lower to .35 cent higher.

East Federal Announces Conversion

East Federal Savings and Loan Association has received approval from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to convert from a federal mutual savings and loan association to a federal capital stock association, W. W. Whittington, president of the association, announced.

The plan of conversion is subject to final approval by the members of the association.

Whittington said the conversion would not affect saving balances maintained by account holders. The conversion also will not affect the rate of interest paid on savings accounts or the terms and conditions of any mortgages held by East Federal. The association will continue to be a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank system, and its savings accounts will continue to be insured up to the maximum limits.

It is the intention of East Federal, Whittington said, to aattract new capital in order to increase the amount of funds available for mortgage lending activities and to provide greater resources for the purpose of both expanded services and future branching.

Proxy statements are being mailed giving all eligible account holders the right to vote on the plan of conversion. Members will meet on Oct 16 to vote on the plan.

Upon approval, offering circulars are to be mailed to qualifying members for purchase of stock. Five preference categories have been established as follows: first to eligible account holders with East Federal on Oct. 31, 1978; second, to eligible acocunt holders with East Federal on June 30, 1980; third to account holders with East Federal at the present time; fourth to employees, officers, and directors of the association, and fifth, to the general public.

Purviances Care For Children, Write Books

The parents-in-law of a Farmville native are well-known Christian authors and founders of an organization to care for destitute children around the world.

The Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Purviance, who live in Asheville, write for Christian Books Unlimited, Inc. and they operate World's Children Inc., which now cares for more than 2,000 children in 57 Christian orphanages or hostels overseas. Their daughter, Evelyn, a teacher in the Smithfield-Selma High School, is the wife of Mitchell Cannon, a former East Carolina University football team captain who grew up in Farmville. The son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Cannon of Farmville and the brother of Raymond Cannon, also of Farmville, Mitchell is a Garner resident associated with New York Life Insurance Company.

The Purviances have co-authored four books: "Please, Lord, Take My Hand"; "I've Got To Have Peace of Mind, God!"; "There's A Worm in My Apple"; and "Miracle At Midnight."

"These are rack books, found in supermarkets, steakhouses, and some motels throughout the South," Rev. Purviance said. "They are available at Cannon's Department Store, 120 S. Main Street, Farmville, or may be ordered from us, 21 Glenview Road, Asheville, N. C. 28804. Also, World's Children Inc. information may be had by contacting us."

A Methodist minister, Purviance and his wife, Mable, served nine years in Alaska where they started the northernmost Methodist Church on the North American continent, in Fairbanks, 125 miles below the Arctic Circle.

In 1965 they established World's Children, which, in addition its present 2000, has cared for some 3000 children in the past 15 years. "Our children are in Catholic, Protestant and non-denominational orphanages throughout the world," Rev. Purviance said. "We feed our children with bread for spirit as well as body, give them love and an education, and then send them out into the world to establish their own Christian homes."

"World's Children is approved by the U. S. government so that gifts are tax-deductible," he explained. "We are chartered through the secretary of state of Florida. We have stringent by-laws and are governed by a duly-elected Board of Directors. Our books are audited annually. We keep our overhead very low. Between 85 and 86 percent of all money sent to us gets overseas for the children.

"The children are cared for by sponsors, a sponsor being a person, a couple, a family, a church or civic group — anyone with concern wishing to help a child. We try to foster splendid one-to-one relationships between each sponsor and his child. We send information on the child to his sponsor, including a picture and the child's address. The sponsor may write his child and send parcels if he wishes.

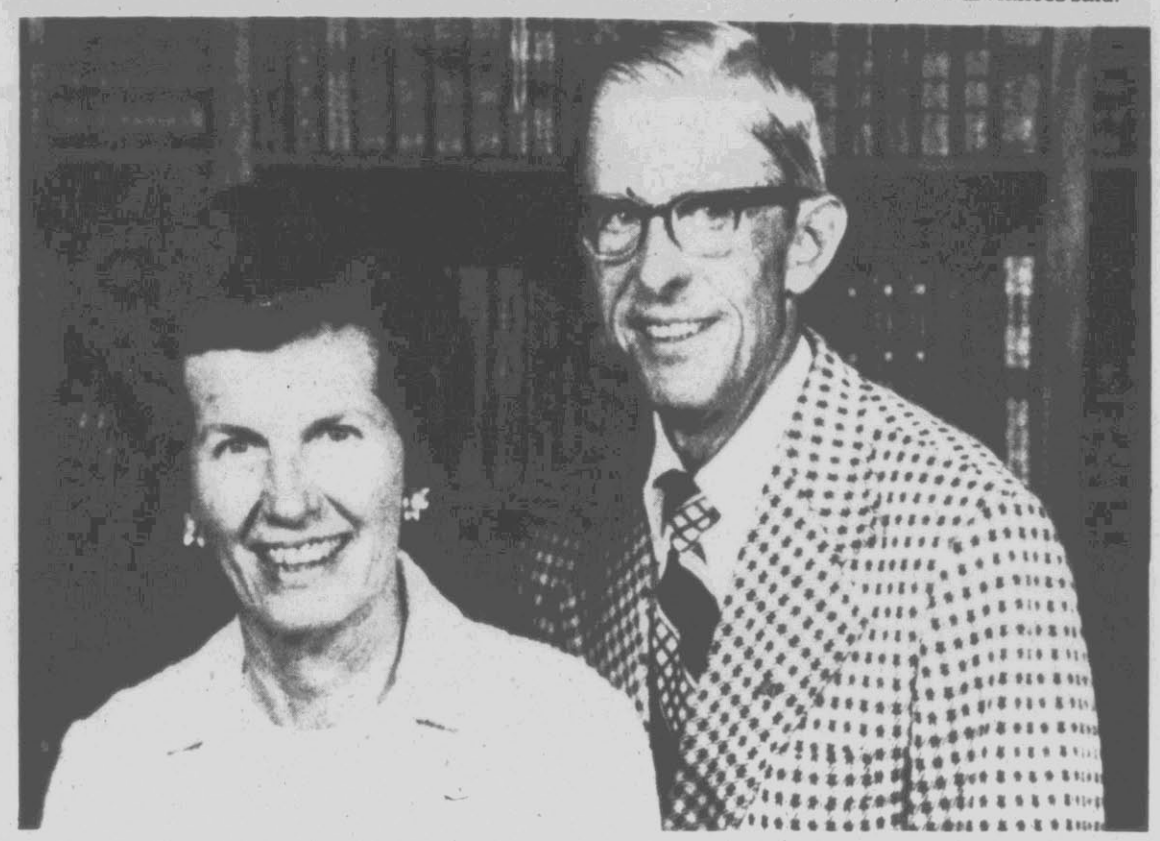
"The sponsorship fee is $13 per month and we always send receipts. No contracts are signed and a sponsor may terminate if he find he must do so."

The Purviances' office is located in the Philips Professional Building on Central Avenue in Winter Haven, Fla. Mrs. A. R. (Carol A.) Ivey is the office manager.

"My wife and I no longer do the bookkeeping, since we have made our home here in Asheville for the past four years," Rev. Purviance said. "This frees us to go out and speak in behalf of World's Children, write letters, and write our Christian books."

Their latest book is the story of a young man from India named John Jacob, the son of a Hindu priest, "chosen by God to take the message of salvation around the world." His near-death from stoning and his "experience at the Gate of Heaven" is the miracle at midnight which gives the books its title.

Prices of the books are $2.95 for "Miracle At Midnight"; $2.25 for "There's A Worm In My Apple"; $1.95 for "Please Lord, Take My Hand" and $1.95 for "I've Got To Have Peace of Mind, God!" A small amount of postage will be appreciated for mail orders, the Purviances said.



The Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Purviance

Caring For Pets Has Health Value

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pet a dog. Stroke a cat. Talk to a bird. Watch fish swim. You'll feel better for it, and a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist says he has proof.

Dr. Aaron Katcher says research indicates cardiac patients and those with high blood pressure live longer and live better when they have pets.

"It helps them survive," Katcher said during an interview in a cluttered third floor office which he uses as director of Penn's Division of Behavioral Sciences.

But Katcher cautioned that though limited studies show potential health value in having a pet, an animal "isn't a cure-all like chicken soup or penicillin."

"They can have a positive effect, a small effect," he said. "They are not a cure for heart disease, but they can help.

"People with heart disease are usually lonely. Pets, especially cats and dogs, are a very important source of companionship. As people get older they are needed less by their family and friends and frequently feel abandoned. This feeling of uselessness results in depression. A pet fills this void."

Besides companionship, Katcher cited other health-related benefits from pet ownership:

—Activity. "Busy people live longer. When you have a pet your day is active. You walk the pet, talk to the pet, go to the store to buy pet food ... A dog or cat gives you a need for exercise. You have to take the animal out for a walk."

—Touch. "Touch has a very calming effect. Pets give a person something to fondle, to show affection to. You communicate, not with words, but with touch."

—Safety. "The presence of an animal helps build a feeling of safety, and that's important in a city where people often are afraid to go out alone, or even live alone."

Katcher said experiments at Penn's School of Veterinary Medicine indicate that the presence of a dog tends to reduce blood pressure. It goes up when people are together.

"Pets are not substitutes for human contact, but offer a kind of relationship which other human beings do not provide.

"When people talk to people there is a rise in blood pressure, especially in those who talk fast and are energetic, enough to put them in the hypertensive range," Katcher said.

"When people talk to pets or touch them the pressure doesn't rise, and often goes down. They talk more quietly, slowly, the way they talk to a child. And they believe their animals understand them. This is calming.

"An animal doesn't care what happens to you during the day at work or while shopping. The animal doesn't talk back, doesn't disagree, doesn't criticize. It offers a unique companionship, a companionship without criticism."

Katcher said pets have been found useful in treating emotionally disturbed children, and also as aides in therapy in mental institutions.

The psychiatrist told about a study in a Lima, Ohio, prison where one cellblock with high-risk convicts was permitted to have birds and small animals like gerbils and hamsters in their cells.

"There was a great calming effect," he said. "A lot of affection is exchanged. You have to touch small pets very gently."

He mentioned other studies that found hospitalized cardiac patients with pets lived at least a year longer than those without them.

Katcher said a lot more research is necessary.

"Despite the great antiquity of pets, despite their enormous number in Western Europe and the United States, despite the billions spent yearly on their care, there have been almost no studies applying methodology to the ... dialogue between man and animal."

Katcher said choosing the right pet is important. It must be one that can be handled easily, not too aggressive, and suitable to the living conditions.

"Pets shouldn't be confined only to dogs or cats but also to caged birds," he said. "Even a tankful of fish can be helpful. Did you ever notice the calming effect when you look at a fish tank and watch the gentle motion of the water as the fish move about?"

On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

Auditions for new members of the Drama Club were held Sept. 10-12. Applicants could sing, dance, play a musical instrument or recite a monologue.

The club's annual Christmas play for this year will be "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder. Members also hope to enter several one-act play contests during the year.

Officers of the club plan to nominate some of their members for the National Honor Thespian Society, an organization which recognizes high school students who have done outstanding work in the theatre.

The Photography Club held an organizational meeting Tuesday after school. President Dominic Dorisio welcomed new members to the club which was formed last year. The main project of the club last year was establishing and equipping a darkroom for the school.

Spanish Club members decided Tuesday at their first meeting of the year to hold a yard sale Saturday, Sept. 27. Its purpose would be to raise money for workbooks for all Spanish classes. Plans for National Hispanic Heritage Week were also discussed. Members will help decorate the school for the event and will serve Spanish food at a teacher's meeting Wednesday. Other plans for the year include raising money for the Community Ambassador Program and holding a covered-dish supper at Christmastime.

Creative Arts Explained At Meet

The Welcome Wagon Club of Greenville held its luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Rotary Club. Mrs. Pat Reep spoke on the Greenville Chapter of The Embroidery Guild of America.

She told of its history, goals and activities. The local chapter was the first in North Carolina. Mrs. Reep was introduced by First Vice President Barbara Savage.

Hair styles created by designers Bob Slade and Nancy Howell of La Kosmetique were modeled by Beth Dean and Gail Williams. "Like any great work of art," Slade told the club, "hair must have a strong sense of design." Balanced and assymetrical and geometric designs will be the look of the 80's. Soft, subtle coloring to create mood and amplify line, waving, braiding and the use of accessories will be important, he said.

Phyllis Caruso, Sylvia Jones, Norma McLean, Jean Snyder, Mary Lynn Thompson, Eve Utterback and Mary Ann Ames were welcomed as guests. A new member was Mary Fisher.

Other new members are Dianne Aderholt, Susie Engelkemeyer, Rosamond Hillgartner, Beverly Rouse, Rosalie Ricci, Harriet Weisse, Heather Moyer, Carol Jones, Doris Grubbs, Lib Steig, Sue DeVoe and Ellen Hollis.

Mrs. Savage requested small items be made, priced and brought to the next luncheon for the club booth at Carolina East Mall's charity bazaar Oct. 11.

Dee Schaff announced plans for the Harvest Ball on Nov. 7 from 7 p.m. to 12:30 at the Greenville Country Club. A beef dinner will precede dancing to the music of Five Degrees South. Tickets are available from Ms. Schaff, 756-1665, Arlene Kraus, Theresa Jepson or Bev Spivey.

Chef John Ramirez, of The Gathering Place, will speak at the Oct. 8 meeting. Adele Moss will describe the hospital volunteer progam.

The Anchor Club held a meeting Tuesday night to discuss selection of new members. Initiation into the Anchor Club is based on academic achievement and leadership qualities.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Jones of Rt. 2, Ayden, announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Elaine, to Neil Curtis Mayo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Mayo of Washington. The wedding will take place Sept. 26.

Miss Jones, Mr. Kidd Marry

The Landmark Baptist Church here was the scene of the wedding ceremony Saturday afternoon at three o'clock of Rae Marie Jones and Ricky Wade Kidd. The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Furney K. James of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Thomas E. Kidd of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and the late Mrs. Jean Kidd.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fred Clifford. A program of piano music was rendered by Mrs. Ruth Meyer of Blounts Creek and Mrs. Karen Knowles of Windsor, soloist.

MRS. RICKY WADE KIDD

Gwen Tyson of Greenville was honor attendant and bridesmaids were Alexa Likis of Midfield, Ala., Angie Kidd of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Cathe James of Williamston, cousin of the bride.

Mark Kelley of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was best man and ushers included Keith James and Jeff Barber, both of Greenville, and Dewayne Burkhalter of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Honorary bridesmaids were Elaine Yancey of Raleigh, Camille Smith, Lois Phelps and Susan Knott, all of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white silk organza over white peau de soie. The open V-neckline featured chipped rosepoint chantilly lace centered with pearls and iridescent sequins. The fitted bodice was overlaid in the chantilly lace which extended down the fitted sleeves and modified empire waistline. The hemline was designed with a deep ruffle flounce of organza bordered in silk Venise lace which extended to an attached chapel length train.

Her double tiered walking length veil of bridal illusion was encircled with Venise lace and scattered lace appliques and was attached to a lace Camelot cap trimmed with seed pearls. The cap featured a blusher veil. She carried a silk cascade of white carnations, burgundy roses, white lily of the valley, baby's breath and pink forget me nots accented with rose netting, greenery and ribbon streamers.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of Nordic rose matte jersey. Each gown was designed with an open neckline, empire bodice with a crisscross overlay and a waist length cowl drape. A self-fabric rolled tie sash encircled the waistline from which fell the full skirt. They each carried a silk nosegay of pink carnations, burgundy roses and baby's breath accented with pink net, pink and white ribbons.

Grandparents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. David Robeson of Robersonville and Mrs. Mamie James of Williamston.

A rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. George James of Williamston, Mr. and Mrs. Tom James of Rocky Mount and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Griffin of Jamesville.

Engagement Announced

ELIZABETH MAE BRAXTON. . .is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Earl Braxton of Palm City, Fla., who announce her engagement to Stephen Bradley Pass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Thomas Jackson of Rt. 1, Macclesfield. A Feb. 21 wedding is planned.

Afternoon Ceremony Performed Saturday

St. Paul's Episcopal Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Susan Louise Lamb and Wayne Clay Lehman Saturday afternoon at 5:30. The double ring, candlelight ceremony was performed by the Rev. L. P. Houston.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Sharon Irwin of Greenville, organist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson Lamb of Lumberton and Mr. and Mrs. George Glenn Lehman of Grifton.

The bridal couple entered the church together. The bride wore a formal gown of white maracaine jersey and Venise lace. The gown was fashioned with a scooped neckline and empire waist outlined with sculptured Venise lace. An insert of Venise lace adorned the long bishop sleeves which had wide cuffs. The A-line skirt extended into a chapel length train. Her bridal hat was covered with appliques of Venise lace and featured a fingertip veil of silkened bridal illusion which flowed from the crown. The bride carried a bouquet of daisies, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath with yellow and white satin streamers.

MRS. WAYNE CLAY LEHMAN

The flower girl was Jamy Marie Lamb of St. Petersburg, Fla., niece of the bride, who wore a long white dress with a smocked bodice featuring puffed sleeves and a mandarin collar with a yellow satin ribbon sash. She carried a natural basket of yellow daisies and rose petals with yellow and white ribbon streamers.

A sit-down dinner and cake cutting was held after the ceremony given by parents of the bridal couple at The Gathering Place.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., and the N. C. coast, the couple will live in Washington.

The bride is employed by the Pitt County Department of Social Services. The bridegroom works at First Citizen Bank and Trust, Washington. The bride graduated from Pembroke State University and the bridegroom graduated from ECU.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

By the time I was 25, I had learned three important realities of life.

1. The same lawyer who represented me and promised to expose the opposition for the sham he was ... played golf with the opposition every Wednesday.

2. The politician who vowed the country would follow the politics of Genghis Khan under the leadership of his opponent ... joined hands with Genghis 48 hours following the primary.

3. The child who ran crying to his mother that his best friend shoved him into moving traffic and tried to set fire to his clothes ... begged to spend the night with his best friend two hours later.

The third reality came hard.

I had always been led to believe that no mother stands so tall as when she stoops to champion the cause of a child. During the formative years when my children began to have social interaction with other children, I made more trips across the back yard in the name of diplomacy than Henry Kissinger when he shuttled back and forth between Israel and Egypt.

I'm not suggesting that children lie. Let us just say they wrote the book on creativity.

See Mother run.

Mother looks funny when she runs.

Her face is red and when she is angry she spits when she talks. See the veins stand out in her neck.

It would behoove all mothers to study the language of children and realize that what the child is saying is not always translated into what you hear.

"Mom! Mark shoved me down in the dirt and punched me in the face and stole my bicycle!" (Mark refused to share his ice cream.)

"Tim's mother said if I had a home I oughta spend more time in it. Then she locked the door and wouldn't let me get a drink or use the bathroom." (Tim's mother just waxed the kitchen.)

"I don't know why Miss Wonka wants to see you. I was just on the playground minding my own business when she started shouting and said she was going to call my mother." (He was playing keepaway with Miss Wonka.)

This is not to say you cannot trust anyone under 30. It is to say make sure they're under oath.

Garden Club Has Meeting

The Lakewood Pines Garden Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Laney. Mrs. A. E. Dubber was co-hostess. Following refreshments, a business meeting was held and plans discussed on programs for the forthcoming year.

Dry your clothes in consecutive loads. The energy used to bring the dryer up to the desired temperature shouldn't be allowed to go to waste.

Cotton duck, a canvas-like material, has its named derived from the Danish word "doek," which means "summerwear for sailors."

CRYPTOQUIP 9-13

PDNPEF LNRYMOWNF GREMUG GQ GQL GUW ODQY

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — TWIN TOTS TWIST INTO TWO TUTUS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: R equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your column thoroughly. It's one part of the newspaper I rarely skip. It's because of the influence you exercise that I'm moved to write.

Recently, the Richmond Times-Dispatch ran in your column the letter from "M. in Passaic," the railroad worker's widow who wished to marry religiously but not legally. You replied that if there were a compassionate minister in Passaic willing to bless a union of that sort, you "hope he contacts" you.

This is the second time within the past year that you've made the assumption that the minister would be a man.

Abby, there are several thousand dedicated women clergy among us, and we still face enormous discrimination in church employment. Fulfilling our calls to preach and administer the sacraments involves an often lonely and uphill battle against deep-rooted prejudices in favor of male clergy.

Please don't make our struggle for recognition any more difficult than it is by assuming that all pastors are men.

Thank you for your consideration.

THE REV. ANITA J. BALY (PASTOR), ST. MATTHEW LUTHERAN CHURCH, RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR MS. BALY: Thanks for the reminder. From now on it will be "A-men and A-women"!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have just learned a very important fact of life.

Marriage is not for every man. I was married for 12 years to one of the loveliest and prettiest women on earth, but that didn't stop me from being attracted to other women. We are no longer married for that reason, and I realize now I never should have been married in the first place. Some men are simply incapable of being faithful.

No conceit intended, but I am a very attractice man, and it is impossible for me to be around an attractive woman without coming on to her. Now that I am a bachelor I can do as I please without worrying about hurting anyone, because I confine my attentions to unmarried women exclusively.

INCURABLE FLIRT

DEAR INCURABLE: Boys flirt. Mature men prefer more meaningful and lasting relationships. No one is incapable of being faithful. But many are unwilling.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Seeing as how I was new in town, I stopped a nice-looking man on the street and asked him for directions. He said it wasn't far, and since he was going that way he would walk me there. Before we parted he asked me if he could see me again and I said yes.

To make a long story short, Mike and I started going together and now, eight months later, we are very much in love and have even talked about marriage some time in the future.

Abby, Mike never talks about his parents, his life or anything to do with his past. He says he has no friends or living relatives, no parents, no sisters or brothers. He doesn't talk about his job, either. He just says he "sells" for a living.

I am 30 and have never been married. Mike says he is 33 and has never been married either. He has been to my flat but I have never been to his. (I don't even know where he lives.)

Is it possible that he has no friends or living relatives?

CHARLENE

DEAR CHARLENE: Possible, but not probable. Before you invest more time in this mysterious character, find out what it is he "sells" and for whom. It could be a line you don't need.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a traveling man, but I never worry about his going out with other women when he's on the road. Know why? Just before he leaves I give him so much loving he's lucky if he has enough strength to carry his sample cases to the car. Pass this on.

NO WORRIES IN WORCESTER

DEAR NO WORRIES: I don't want to worry you, lady, but a man can have the finest banquet in the world, and six hours later he's hungry again.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married, and I did not receive a gift from my godmother, who attended my wedding.

I'm afraid I might have lost the card. Should I call her and ask her if she sent a gift or not? I'm in the process of writing thank-you notes now and don't know what to do.

UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE: Don't ask her unless you have more presents than you have cards.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you think are the most important things parents can give their children?

CURIOUS IN HANFORD, CALIF.

DEAR CURIOUS: Love; time; understanding; discipline; independence.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: In response to the person complaining about mowing the lawn so early in the morning: Here in Washington County, Ore., we have to mow early while the dew is still on the grass to keep down the ash dust from Mt. St. Helens.

TODD IN CORNELIUS

DEAR TODD: Considering what you folks have had to contend with, a little lawn mower noise at any hour would sound like the "Moonlight Sonata."

Basic On A New Kitchen

MANSFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — If you are planning a new kitchen and don't know where to begin, start with basics.

Kitchen design experts for a major appliance manufacturer recommend:

— Look at your present space and design. Can anything be salvaged?

— If your family works as a team during meal preparation, consider an addition to the room if it isn't large enough.

A general rule of thumb calls for 100 to 160 square feet maximum of floor space. More than this usually makes for too many steps between dishwasher and refrigerator, for example.

— List activities that generally occur in the kitchen, such as meal planning, repotting plants or feeding Fido.

Good design uses a work triangle linking the three. Ideally, the total triangle should measure 13 to 22 feet and no single arm of the triangle should be less than 4½ feet.

— Plan for adequate storage along the way.

— Shop for new advances in major appliances, such as a convection range or oven or a countertop microwave oven or a built-in wall model.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.— I seem to recollect that, in a recent column, you discussed how to open and rebid when you hold a five-card spade suit and a five-card club suit. My bridge teacher recommends that we always open one club, but I think I remember that you suggested something else. —L. Wilson, Cincinnati, Ohio (This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I like to open most hands with one club, unless there is a very great disparity between the quality of the suits. For example, suppose that I held:

♠AKJxx ♡Kx ◇x ♣Jxxxx

In view of the poor quality of club suit, I would downgrade the suit to a four-carder and open one spade.

Briefly, I put my opening bids into three categories:

1) 13-16 points. With minimum hands, I almost always open one club and bid spades twice. If I am lucky, I will be able to complete the description of my hand and still be only at the two-level. A disadvantage is that you lose the preemptive value of a one spade opening bid—it is easier for the opponents to compete over one club than over one spade.

2) 17-18 points. This is an intermediate hand. I would open one spade. It is the sort of hand where, if my partner raises my one spade opening bid to two, I would gamble out four spades because of my distribution.

And the hand presents no rebid problems. If partner responds at the two-level, my hand is good enough for the "high reverse" of three clubs. Should partner respond one no trump, I can simply bid two clubs, secure in the knowledge that game is unlikely unless partner can bid again.

3) 19 and up. With strong hands I will again revert to a one club opening. That makes it much easier for partner to respond with a minimum hand. Now I can show my strength by jumping in spades at my next turn, and then complete the description of my hand by rebidding spades.

There are two other schools of thought. One bids clubs all the time on 5-5 hands. I do not strongly disagree with this approach. I simply think that my way works a bit better on intermediate hands because there is less likelihood of the bidding dying short of game on hands that produce ten tricks in spades because of the distribution.

The other opens one spade all the time. On weak hands, they simply give up on bidding their clubs at the second turn unless partner responds one no trump. This approach, in my opinion, is more valid at duplicate than at rubber bridge.

There you are—three answers to your query, all of which have been endorsed by renowned experts. It's your choice.

Q.— I've always thought that with A-K-J-10-x-x opposite x-x, the proper play was to lay down a high honor, and then finesse against the queen. Several friends have tried to convince me that the percentage play is to immediately finesse for the queen. Please explain. A. Eisensmith, Wahington, D.C.

A.—With only eight cards in the suit, it is, of course, proper to finesse for the queen. Your play gains only when your left hand opponent has a singleton queen. However, if the suit splits 4-1, it's far more likely that your right-hand opponent has Q-x-x-x than precisely x-x-x-x, so to pick up the suit without a loser, you must take two immediate finesses.

Don't berate yourself if you've been confused by this combination. In the finals of a major team championship in the '40s, declarer was faced with this trump holding—in a good slam. He went awry, lost the slam and, with it, the title.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can figure out every angle of difficult problems and come up with the rights answers most of the time. Give the best education you can afford and then this can become a most successful life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, SEPT. 15, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now able to accomplish much early in the day if your activities are well scheduled. Make plans to gain your most cherished aims. Maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get busy at handling duties early in the morning and later talk over business matters with associates. Make new plans tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Engage in creative work you have been concentrating upon and get good results. Avoid one who dwells on trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are thinking clearly now and can easily advance in career activities. Study a new venture that fascinates you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Good day to obtain the information that means much to you. Avoid one who likes to waste your time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Gain the confidence of a successful money expert and follow his instructions. Be more economical in the days ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Engage in activities that please you and feel happier. You are able communicate very well with others today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans far into the future that could bring you added success. You have creative ideas that need expression now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do favors for associates and gain their goodwill. Follow your intuition when dealing with others and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to important duties early in the day so you'll have more free time to engage in social activities later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to make valuable new contacts and then talk ideas over with experts. Be more thoughtful of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure to keep any promises pertaining to business matters. Show more interest in outside activities.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make sure your ideas are practical before putting them in operation. Try to cooperate more with associates.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will want to study for the future and follow through so that there can be much success in life. Give an education along artistic lines for best results. Don't force any sports on your serious-minded progeny.

Inflation -Fighter Volcker Charted The Hard Road

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Paul A. Volcker smokes 20-cent cigars, has been known to make a suit last 20 years, and once chided a colleague for shelling out $8 in Paris for a piece of mellon and a slice of ham.

These days Volcker, to combat inflation, practices his parsimony on the American people, pinching their wallets as well as his own pennies.

Volcker was sworn in a year ago as chairman of the Federal Reserve System. He is a little-known, powerful man in a little-understood, powerful job.

Since taking office, Volcker has put the economy through a ringer.

His handiwork sent interest rates, for a time, to levels they hadn't reached since Confederate troops threatened to march on Washington. With the Carter administration's encouragement, he helped make credit scarce and costly. The Federal Reserve, some economists say, turned an economic dip into a severe recession — and knew what it was doing when it did it.

And if America is still feeling the adverse effects in November, without seeing clear benefits, he may have put Jimmy Carter out of his job.

Paul Volcker wasn't Carter's first choice for chairman of the Fed. In January, 1977, Carter considered Volcker but chose instead G. William Miller, chairman of Textron.

Miller, like every chairman before him, viewed inflation as a corrupting public enemy and pledged to use the Federal Reserve to combat it.

But he felt that inflation is not well fought by creating recessions. He thought the Federal Reserve should tighten money slowly, over five to six years, squeezing out inflationary pressures while the rest of the government moved toward a balanced budget and the economy adjusted to new conditions.

It didn't work and inflation got worse.

Inflation was one of the problems Carter took to the hilltop last July when he went to Camp David, Md., for 11 days of soul-searching.

In the spirit of a new start, he asked for resignations from all members of his Cabinet and accepted five of them. He moved team player Miller from the Federal Reserve to the Treasury.

The world's financiers reacted with alarm. Miller was seen as incapable of halting inflation at the Federal Reserve and capable of making it more severe at the Treasury.

At his swearing in, Volcker hinted that the soft-on-inflation days would end.

"We are face to face with economic difficulties really unique in our experience," he said.

Although Volcker, 53, is nominally a Democrat, the undersecretary's post at the Treasury Department went to him in the Nixon Administration. That's where he made his reputation.

He is known as the only person in history who engineered two devaluations of the U.S. dollar. He arranged the first at an international currency conference in Washington in 1971.

In 1973, with the dollar again in deep trouble, he took a secret 31,000-mile trip to the capitals of Europe and Japan to negotiate the second U.S. devaluation and floating exchange rates.

Floating rates were to have ushered in a period of currency stability, but stability never came, largely because of the upheaval in the price of oil and American and worldwide inflation.

What Volcker achieved was technically stunning, but its long-term value remains a matter of debate.

At the time of his appointment, he was president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The Federal Reserve has exclusive authority to control the amount of money available to consumers and business.

Volcker seems to see the Federal Reserve as a catalyst of inflation.

He says: "Inflation can only persist over a long period of time with excessive monetary growth ... We must control the money supply and reduce its growth."

A few months after he took office, Volcker went to Europe to confer with his counterparts. He came home shaken.

The board increased the bank lending rate to a record high and ordered banks to set more of their deposits aside in cash reserves that cannot be lent out. Consumer credit controls, advocated by the White House and implemented by the Federal Reserve, followed.

In short, Volcker had decided to attack inflation by making money both expensive and scarce — and to do it as a recession was imminent.

The move guaranteed the recession, economist Otto Eckstein said, "but the truth is we need it."

The costs were quickly felt. While inflation rates declined slightly, unemployment rose sharply.

Liberal economist Kenneth Galbraith called the Volcker policy "incredibly dubious." Lane Kirkland, soon to become president of the AFL-CIO, called it the wrong move at the wrong time.

Volcker, the low-profile, smoked his 20-cent cigars and said nothing.

Buyer-Supplier Conference Set

WINSTON-SALEM — Purchasing agents from more than 30 major companies will be looking for supplies and services at a specialized metalworking buyer-supplier conference here September 17.

Sponsored by the N.C. Department of Commerce, the conference will be held at the Benton Convention Center from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1:30 p.m. until 3:30. Registration, including the 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. luncheon, is $10.

The confrence is designed to help buyers find local sources for metalworking services, provide sales opportunities for contract shops, and provide information and service which should result in increased investments and jobs in the state's metalworking industry.

Among companies represented by buyers will be General Electric, Great Lakes Carbon, Ingersoll-Rand, IBM, ITT, Clark Equipment, Eaton Corporation, Philip Morris, R. J. Reynolds, Square D, Cummins Engine and DuPont.

Persons may register for the conference by contacting the Department of Commerce, Suite 272, P. O. Box 25249, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

Strange New Breed Of 'Workers' For U.S. Plants

By FRED FERGUSON
United Press International

Shhhhhhhhhhhhhh... Pfff-fut... Shhhhhhhhhhh. Pfut pfut... Shhhhhhhhhh.

The 5-foot necks swing back and forth, up and down, pause and go.

In fact, they are — mechanical animals, the industrial robots of today.

No R2D2s these. If they resemble anything, it is a bird — perhaps an ostrich, or a crane.

The body is no more than a pedestal. There is the very long neck, a short head, a beak or gripper.

Reaching to the left, in a testing bay at a Danbury, Conn., plant, a Unimate, as these biggies are called, picks up in its grippers a chunk of iron, lifts it high, turns it up curiously as if inspecting it, places it down on the floor, picks it up again, holds it out, puts it on a box to the right.

It makes a few more gyrations of this sort, then puts the chunk back where it got it in the first place, and does it all again, and again, and again.

It is a "pick and place" routine, programmed in the robot's specialized computer, a very elemental machine as computers go. It is to pick and place a part, from one assembly line to another, or into and out of a curing furnace or any of several score other monotonous chores men don't like to do.

Nobody is actively running these machines. They go about their work on their own. Occasionally, a technician or an engineer comes by to watch. Occasionally, he decides to tell it to do something else. He picks up a "trainer" with buttons on all sides and moves the robot through a new routine, then punches a few more buttons on the computer a few feet away, recording the new job in its memory.

This steel collar worker goes back to work — dumbly, repeating its new assignment, a half dozen to a couple dozen motions, movements that accomplish work a man might do.

Fill holes, grout, weld — better than men can. It can weld, arch or spot, 24 hours a day if need be. No rest breaks. Always the same weld. Always in pretty much the same spots, with the same consistency — a whole line of spots, a series of rows of spot welds — on a car body, say.

Welding is what today's robots are used for more than anything else. There are fancier robot welders that can follow an edge or make preassigned curved welds. There are robots that can spray paint — poisonous work men also hate.

And there are robots that can do some pretty smart things — assemble a whole series of parts, bolting and screwing — a whole simple machine. More about them later.

All in all, only 50 robots, the big dumb ones, the smaller, slightly smarter ones, each month come out of the Danbury plants of Unimation, largest U.S. robot maker. The few other makers don't produce that many. Now, maybe, as they are defined in this country, there are about 7,000 real working industrial robots worldwide.

Among the 20 million U.S. industrial assembly line workers, hundreds of thousands go on doing dirty work robots might take over.

Unions would never let them, the robots, take over, you say.

Not necessarily so. Where robots have been put to work at such jobs, workers — and it follows, unions — have been glad to have them, so long as no jobs were lost. So far, where robots have been used, they have tended to boost production. Result: more jobs elsewhere in the plant. And the robots do the work men don't want to do.

All the auto makers are into robots although some will tell you they don't know what you're talking about when you mention the word.

"We call them universal transfer devices," says Paul F. Guy, Ford's director of manufacturing, engineering and systems. "We don't have anything that would be viewed by the public as a robot. All they are is a manipulator arm programmed with a mini computer to do a variety of chores, mostly pick and place."

But Ford does have robots under the definition of the Robot Institute of America: "A programmable, multifunction manipulator designed to move material, parts, tools or specialized devices through variable programmed motions for the performance of a variety of tasks."

Ford has Unimates, Cincinnatti Millicron's T3s, ASEAs from Sweden, Trallfas (which do spray painting) from Norway and, on order, the newer PUMAs which Unimation makes.

"Others call them industrial manipulators," says John Fulmer, Cincinnati Millicron's robot division manager and president of the Robot Institute. The word robot has "those connotations" he says, referring to R2D2 and C3P-0. "Star Wars comes along and everybody gets confused."

Guy is more circumspect. He and other industry users of robots interviewed are cautious in discussing these machines. They are wary of leaving the implication they will rapidly replace large numbers of workers.

Conversely, most report general acceptance of robots by unions wherever they've been used so long as workers are not laid off.

UAW officials, in fact, talk enthusiastically about their application to improve productivity and enable the automotive industry to compete more effectively with foreign imports. They also see robots as an answer to fluctuations in demand.

You turn off, rather than lay off, a robot. The operator who keeps track of a group of them can be kept on to run the others.

Surprisingly, Fulmer refers the reporter to his chief competitor, Joe Engelberger, president of Unimation, whom he readily calls the pioneer in getting industrial robots accepted in the United States.

"There are maybe 3,000 or 4,000 robots in the United States today. Production is probably less than 100 a month," says Engelberger. "With millions of workers, there's not much chance of their having any effect on the work force. Conversely, increased productivity makes for more jobs. Look at the computer industry. How many jobs has it created?"

Actually, Ford has the most robots of any of the U.S. automakers — 294 at present. Almost all are in automotive assembly, 243. And the great majority of them do welding, a hot, dirty job workers were glad to get rid of.

Ford's most exotic use is at a Wixom, Mich., plant. Four robots use gages to check the dimensions of auto bodies. Their arms reach into car bodies, place the gages at the proper point, automatically record the reading, signal if it's wrong, or go on to record another reading as instructed by their computer program.

Four inspectors formerly took four hours to manually check one auto body. With 50 bodies moving down the assembly line each hour, 200 could go through before some out of whack dimension was discovered.

Now the robots check an auto body in minutes — and more accurately because it is boring work and robots don't get bored.

Guy says Ford is considering expanding this use of robots although it plans to add robots at a rate of about 10 percent annually instead of the 30 percent rate of recent years.

And Ford is using seven robots in its new, heavily automated underbody assembly line to assemble the Escort-Lynx at Metuchen, N.J. These welding robots are geared to operate in a sort of buddy system. When one gets "sick," and doesn't work for mechanical reasons, it's buddy takes over the chores it would ordinarily do.

General Motors now uses 225 robots and is more en-

Violin-Maker Follows 300-Year Family Tradition

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer

OWATONNA, Minn. (AP) — Young Steven Meisel says he might decide to be a violin maker. He's thought some about being a policeman, but he figures that might require too much school.

If he takes up violin making, Steven will be carrying a 300-year tradition into its 10th generation.

VIOLIN MAKERS — Kurt Meisel, 76, of Owatonna, Minn., top photo, shows off the tools that have been in his family of violin makers for generations. At bottom, his son, Lothar Meisel, 51, who continues the line of father-son instrument makers, studies some of the parts he will use in crafting a violin.

But a vocational decision doesn't have to be made for a long time. Steven is only 9, a third-grader.

The youngster isn't the first of the Meisels to wonder about different work. Steve's father, Kurt Lothar Meisel, had thought as a boy that he'd like to be a forester. And Steve's grandfather, Kurt Oswald Meisel, now 76, had wanted to be an engineer.

But there's something about the luthier craft that gets into your blood, says Lothar, 51, who goes by his middle name. It's a labor of love, he says, for people of sensitivity and pride.

"When you make a violin, it's not like any other violin," he says. "It's almost like a child of yours. There's potential in a fine violin, but it takes proper care to bring it out to the fullest."

Most of his time is given to repair and restoration of stringed instruments. Meisel has to steal time from that work to make about four violins a year. In his career, he has made 150 violins, 17 violas, one cello and one bass. He didn't enjoy making the bass. It was "too big, too awkward." Meisel felt like a carpenter building a dog house.

Meisel's father, Kurt Oswald, was a government employee in Germany, a teacher of violin making. Because moonlighting wasn't permitted, Kurt made only about 40 violins. He made his last one 10 years ago and eye problems recently forced him to cut back on repair work.

The Meisels know of no other family with such a long father-son line of violin makers. The tradition began with Johann Meisel, who lived from 1659 to 1713.

Kurt learned the craft from his father, worked as an assistant violin maker in Holland and taught violin making in a technical school in Germany from 1927 until the mid-1940s.

Lothar began his apprenticeship under his father, was an assistant violin maker in Germany and moved to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1953 to work as a violin adjuster. A year later his parents joined him in the United States.

But Lothar wanted a business of his own where he could make violins. The family moved to Owatonna in 1957, choosing the community because it was a small city only 65 miles south of Minneapolis-St. Paul.

It is traditional for a violin maker to start out with a lifetime supply of wood for himself and his son. Lothar uses maple for the violin's back, side and neck, hazel-spruce for the top, ebony for the fingerboard. When Lothar's parents came from Germany, they brought Carpathian mountain maple cut from a tree in 1900.

Lothar also has some older wood which has been in the family for 100 years. Wood used in violins must combine strength, beauty and acoustical quality.

Tools are important, too. Because a "machine doesn't have feelings," the work is all done by hand. Some of Lothar's chisels, knives and scrapers have been used in the family for generations.

The arch of the violin is carved. The only wood that is bent is that used for the sides. Hot animal glue is used to join the components. Filler, transparent varnish and three coats of clear varnish are applied and rubbed down. For proper vibration, the varnish must "float" atop the wood and remain flexible.

"A good violin maker must know something about physics and chemistry," the husky, graying luthier says.

To keep wood colors true, the work is done under natural light in a shop in Lothar's home.

Finally, the violin is finished. The instrument is fitted with strings and then adjusted. The testing, the breaking-in of the instrument's "voice," is done by Lothar's wife, Pat, a violin and viola teacher.

Meisel hasn't calculated the hours that go into creating a violin, but guesses he could make one in about a month if he didn't do any repairing, renovating or paper work. He's never had that opportunity. Instead, a customer ordering a Meisel violin must wait at least a year for delivery.

He evades telling what his violins sell for, except that they're "reasonably priced" for quality instruments. They're made, he says, for professionals and serious players.

Some buyers were contacted and they said they paid $2,500 for an instrument five years ago and about $5,000 last year. One thought a Meisel may now cost as much as $6,000 to $7,000.

An Economical Feed Required

Corn and other cereal grains are the primary sources of energy in swine rations. Becuse of its abundance and readily available energy, corn is most commonly used and is the base cereal for comparing the nutritive value of other grains. Barley, wheat, oats rye, and grain sorghum or milo are effective corn substitutes. Grain sorghum, barley, and wheat can be used as the only grain, while oats or rye should be limited to one-third the grain portion of the ration.

Wheat is equal to corn in feeding value and is very palatable. Because of its use in human diets, it may be too expensive to use in swine rations.

Milo or grain sorghum is very similar in quality to corn. Its energy value is about 95 percent the value of corn except for some bird resistant varieties which may only be 80 to 90 percent of corn. Grinding is recommended since the grain is rather small and hard.

Barley contains more protein and fiber than corn but its relative feeding value is 85 to 95 percent of corn. It is less palatable than corn. Grinding and rolling barley and pelleting the ration will improve its utilization by 5 to 10 percent. Neither rye nor barley should be used in breeder rations or baby pig rations because of possible fungus contamination (ergot, scab).

Oats contain more protein than corn, but their value in swine rations is only 80 to 90 percent of corn because of high fiber content and low energy content. Oats are useful in lactation rations because of their bulk which produces a laxative effect.

Grains are high in carbohydrates but contain less protein, minerals, and vitamins than required in swine rations. Thus, rations must be supplemented with a source of protein such as soybean meal to meet nutrient requirements. Usually rations are balanced using corn and then the corn is replaced by a substitute grain.

With the hign production costs the pork producer faces today, it is necessary to use the most economical energy sources availible for swine rations.

Smart Chimp Is A Farm Worker

WELLMAN, Miss. (AP) — Linsber Brister's got a farmhand who's an ace at haying, feeding the livestock, mowing the lawn and mending fences. He never complains or asks for a raise.

Is he a chump to do all that? No, he's a chimp.

At 92 pounds, 4½ feet, Cedo the chimpanzee worked the farm a couple of years ago when Brister broke his arm and thought he might have to sell his cattle since he couldn't care for them.

"He's a lot stronger than I am, and he doesn't seem to mind doing what we think is work," said Brister on his Lincoln County farm. "So I let him do what I do. It takes him a little longer to figure things out, but he can get the job done."

An animal dealer from New Orleans recently offered $10,000 for Cedo, Brister said. The man saidthe chimp was the most intelligent ape he had ever seen.

"Lord knows we need the money, but you just don't sell one of your own family," Brister said.

Under Brister's supervision, Cedo plows with a tractor, cuts the lawn with a push or riding mower, builys fence and hays cattle. The chimp and Brister occasionally go fishing together, with Cedo baiting his own hook.

"We're used to seeing him do things like that all the time, but I'm afraid somebody driving by the house is going to run off in the pond one day when they see him cutting the lawn," says Brister's wife, Imogene.

"We don't let him smoke all that much," Brister said. "And two beers is his limit."

Cedo wears clothes when he's out of his cage, shares meals with the family ao the dining room table.

"He does not pick up the food with his hands. He uses a knife and fork or he doesn't sit at the table," Brister says.

When he's in the house, he's allowed to use the toilet.

Brister and the chimp will get nationwide publicity this fall when they appear on NBC's "Real People."

"I didn't get him to go into show businss or to make a lot of money," Brister said. "I let them (NBC) do the show here, but I told them I didn't want to go to Hollywood."

Cedo responds to commands slowly but surely.

"I know he understands what we are saying to him," Brister said. "Sometimes, he's a little slow doing what we tell him. But then, so is a kid."

Urges Prayers For Fall Synod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, declaring that the "God-given image of the family ... is often impoverished, obscured, and perhaps also profaned," has called on U.S. Catholics to pray for this fall's international Synod of Bishops.

Some 200 bishops will discuss marriage and family life and John Paul set Sunday, Oct. 12 as a principal day of prayer for the Synod, the U.S. Catholic Conference said.

A Battle Cry To Elderly: Exercise

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence Frankel is a mild-mannered man, but he can become militant when he discusses his "mission."

"I am trying to lead a geriatric revolution," firmly declares Frankel, whose rallying cry is "Exercise!"

"I want to alter the lifestyles of older Americans by convincing them that by committing themselves to the nobility of mobility they would be inhibiting the aging process, contributing to their happiness, reducing pain and suffering and saving the nation billions of dollars in reduced health costs."

His battle plan was conceived 10 years ago when he began to develop a program for physical fitness for the elderly, which was endorsed by the Select Committee on Aging of the U.S. House of Representatives. Started in his home state of West Virginia, where there are now more than 200 groups with 3,000 participants, it has spread to other states.

"The program is called 'Preventicare,' stressing that what you prevent needs no cure," the gray-haired Frankel said in an interview, his trim, youthful appearance at age 75 serving as a plug for the regimen aimed at the 60-and-up group.

He has recently expanded his fight for fitness by writing, with associate Betty Byrd Richard, "Be Alive as Long as You Live: The Older Person's Complete Guide to Exercise for Joyful Living." It outlines and illustrates more than 50 low-level exercise sequences, designed to be performed standing, sitting or even lying down.

The exercises can be done by an individual at home but, Frankel points out, when people get together it encourages conversation and socialization. He suggests forming a group in senior centers, churches, apartment houses or locating one through the state's commissioner of the aging.

LAWRENCE FRANKEL

As to equipment, "All you need is the body and a place to move it," he says, adding that an old piece of carpet or towel to lie on is useful, as well as a 22-inch piece of broomstick and a 6-pound medicine ball. He encourages exercising to music, which "enhances both mood and tolerance."

"Exercise should be prescribed, planned and supervised," he says. "Just as there are inherent dangers in taking medication not prescribed, there are inherent dangers in taking exercises not prescribed. But the book is a guide for safe administration of the program with the blessing and approval of the physician."

Frankel has conducted seminars all over the country for the elderly, nurses and agencies involved in working with the elderly. He discusses problems of the aged and demonstrates how to set up a Preventicare program for the ambulatory, chair-bound, home-bound and bedfast. It uses a peer group teacher, who is trained for leadership.

"The elderly don't exercise because they have been stereotyped as largely infirm, stooped, slow of mind and incapable of becoming involved in this type of program," Frankel explains, counting off the advantages of a supervised exercise program, conducted 30 to 45 minutes three times a week for optimal results:

"It enhances the circulation, reduces aches and pains, ameliorates the ravages of arthritic changes and inhibits and sometimes reverses osteoporosis. Its goal is to achieve a sense of well being, to avoid medication, to avoid becoming dependent. There is an interrelationship between physical, emotional and mental health.

"You're never too old to become fit or to continue learning," insists Frankel, who has worked with individuals as old as 104 and many in their 90s. He prefers to call the elderly "honorable older Americans," considering the term "senior citizen" demeaning because it suggests "unfortunate and untrue stereotypes."

Executive director of the non-profit Frankel Foundation in Charleston, W.Va., where he lives with his wife, he taught gymnastics at a YMCA there for 25 years and "drifted" into rehabilitative exercises. He has conducted programs of gymnastics for blind children and breathing techniques and physical conditioning for asthmatic children.

He himself practices "interval training," small bouts of exercise done several times a day to achieve cardiovascular fitness with a minimum of fatigue.

("Be Alive as Long as You Live" is published by Lippincott & Crowell.)

New Breed Of Worker . . .

thusiastic about their future applications. In Lordstown, Ohio, 32 weld sub-compact bodies, 22 do welding on Chevettes in Wilmington, Del.

These are the big dumb robots. "If a body panel isn't where it's supposed to be, the welding robot will happily weld thin air," says Donald E. Hart, head of GM Research Labs' computer science department.

In Bay City, Mich., GM has 6 robots unloading die casting machines, dipping them in and out of quench tanks, trimming the dies, then cleaning away the scrap. And 5 hefty robots load catalytic converters into steel containers in Milwaukee.

But GM and others are moving into smaller, brighter robots. Unimation designed its PUMA robot, which is very similar in appearance and not much bigger than a human arm, pretty much to GM specifications. Ninety percent of all parts in a passenger car are smaller than a breadbox and weigh less than 5 pounds. PUMAs are better geared to handle smaller parts.

They work conveyer assembly lines in conjunction with the jobs done by people. Thus they fit into the scheme of industrial plants today. The whole shop doesn't have to be reorganized to accommodate the robot.

Most important, their work assignments can be more complex and changed more easily. You can set a PUMA in the middle of a half dozen machines, program it to pick up a part from one conveyor or chute, feed it successively into each of these machines to be tooled, then place it on a conveyor to go to the next work station in the production line.

One of the more spectacular examples of what robots are doing now is at the Harrisburg, Pa., plant of Olivetti Corp. Anyone who's ever threaded a typewriter ribbon knows it takes a bit of technique. Three Sigma robots don't just thread the ribbon, they assemble a whole cartridge and add instructions so human typists will know how to use the cartridge. Two have nicknames — Fascination, because it is fascinating to watch, naturally — and Illusion because of the way it threads that ribbon.

A young mechanical engineer, Chet Wolfe, might be called for lack of a more formal title, the chief of robots. His work includes the maintenance of the three Sigmas which gets a bit tricky because they are made by Olivetti in Italy and not sold in this country.

He virtually bubbles with enthusiasm, confessing at the end of the interview that he likes what he's doing because "they're fascinating pieces of machinery, they can do almost anything.

"One time we rigged one to do an etch-a-sketch. We put a pencil in its gripper and it traced a pattern, an intricate pattern, of how to lace a ribbon."

One thing about these Sigmas. They give the impression they are happy at their work. Unlike the heaving, whooshing of the big Unimates and Cincinnati-Milicron T3s which do heavy duty work, or the hissing to the air compressors in the pneumatic PUMAs, the only sound the Sigmas make, Wolfe says, "is from their motor, a kind of whistling."

But there's more, these machines have been rigged with feeling — the kind you have in the fingers of your hands, but more elemental. They call it tactile sensing.

"If the parts are not correct, the Sigmas spit them out on the floor," says Wolfe. The sensors determine if the part is where it should be, if there are more. Like that.

"If the part is in the wrong place, the robot tries to refeed it and checks to see whether it is right. If that doesn't work, the sensors tell it to try one more time. If it doesn't work this time, the robot notifies the operator."

How?

"It waves at him. The arm goes to the point where the part should be but isn't. Then it waves up and down five or six times to attract the operator's attention."

They do something more important. Humans make mistakes. The sensors help the robots protect the humans from their mistakes.

"If an operator reaches into the assembly area, the sensors notice. That makes the machine go into an escape procedure to assure the operator is not pinched or caught.

A footnote to that: That brilliant science fiction writer and futurist, Isaac Asimov, wrote a little novel called "I Robot" back in 1950. He listed what he called the three basic laws of robotics, circa 2053. Strangely, in talks with robotics experts today, they often refer to that book. Asimov's first law:

"A robot may not injure a human being or through an action allow a human being to come to harm."

At Texas Instruments in Dallas, there is a robot on a production line with eyes — TV eyes. Roboticists, as they are called, prefer to call this a vision system and note it's television is nothing like your home screen. It takes a limited view geared to the limited thinking power or memory of today's computers.

This robot sees, in one dimensional black and white, a hand calculator as it comes down a conveyor belt. From what it sees, its computer figures out how to tell the robot arm to pick up the calculator, no matter what position it is in. And the robot turns that calculator into the proper position as it puts it into a testing machine which automatically pushes the calculator keys and reads the numbers that come up on its display.

The testing machine, by computer, figures out if the numbers are right. If they are, the robot takes the calculator out of the machine and puts it back on the conveyor belt. If they are wrong, it discards the defective calculator.

Max Post at TI headquarters in Dallas, says TI's robots, their own brand built for their own use, are testing microwave oven controls in Johnson City, Tenn., and doing somewhat similar pick and place assembly chores in Abilene, Kans., and Lubbock, Tex.

This is the world of industrial robots today. Amazing?

Not to robotics men. All view today's robots about the way Cincinnatti Millicron's Fulmer put it: "They're still pretty stupid. Even a dog is smarter."

But almost all say the time of the robots is close at hand. More big names are getting into the act. General Electric, Westinghouse, the biggies in the aerospace industry. Texas Instruments and IBM are reported going commercial with the feel and see inhouse robots they have developed.

"Robots have been deaf, dumb and blind," says Unimation's Engelberger. But his firm expects to apply its first robot "eyesight" later this year. Such changes he says, and other robotics experts agree, "are going to change the whole outlook."

SO THIS IS FISHING? — Young Brett Thomas tries his hand at surf fishing while on an outing at Topsail Island in Onslow County. The youngster, however, doesn't appear overjoyed by a lack of cooperation from the fish. But like a true fisherman he refused to leave until he caught a fish despite pleas of his parents. Entry To Goldmine Is Through The Bedroom

By BILL BEECHAM
Associated Press Writer

MURRAY, Idaho (AP) — Chris Christopherson opened the bedroom door, walked through a cluttered room, swung open another door, then climbed 32 feet down a wobbly wooden ladder to his subterranean ivory tower, a self-made — and producing — gold mine.

Down there, in the wet and chilly tunnels he's carved out of the earth, Chrisotpherson spends hours searching for gold. He doesn't always find it. But sometimes he does.

He calls it the Bedroom Gold Mine because it lies below the room he shared for nearly 30 years with his wife, Ceil. The room now is cluttered with the yellow rain suits and boots he wears in the damp tunnels, rusty old shovels, and buckets, and yards of rope and cable.

"But how much is something you'll have to ask her about," he says, nodding toward Ceil, 68, who is sitting at a table working on a crossword puzzle.

"Those kinds of questions I just don't answer," she replies, squinting toward a stranger sitting at the counter of their 97-year-old tavern. "Just know that we're comfortable."

"I worked 30 years underground and never been hurt," says Christopherson, a lean, tall man dressed in a green-and-blue plaid shirt, dirt-smeared work pants, old black boots and a red-peaked cap.

"I used to go at it solid for two or three weeks without much of a break, then go out and get good and drunk, then go back to work and do it all over again."

Active Year For The Social Security Office

If the first half of 1980 is a true barometer of activities, this first year of the 80s decade will turn out to be the most active ever for the Greenville office of the Social Security agency.

"The first six months of this year have been busy ones for us," said Fred Lilley, manager of the Social Security office in Greenville.

He revealed that computations of major work processed during that time covered the processing of 414 claims for retirement benefits, 674 claims for workers' dependent or survivors of deceased workers, 572 claims for disabled workers, 237 for their dependents, and 774 for Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

In addition, the Greenville office processed a total of 3,350 social security post-entitlement actions such as changes of address, work notices, appeals, continuing disability investigations, and cases of over or under payments.

Other types of administrative and processing work resulted in handling 2,946 actions on Supplemental Security Income, 1,026 actions on Medicare, the issuance of 14,170 social security cards, and about 500 miscellaneous action items.

Promptness Essential

"Prompt processing of post-entitlement actions is vital since it usually results in rerouting checks or changing the amounts paid," Lilley commented. He added that the change in amounts paid "is frequently upward."

Lilley explained that "Professional interviewers handle most of these actions in person. Sometimes its by telephone or through the mail."

Delineating the staff of the Greenville office of the Social Security Administration, assistant manager Gary Epling provided a breakdown of staff members and their principal duties. Currently, these are:

— 12 interviewers — highly trained personnel who receive on-going training for changes in procedures and law;

— 10 claims representative — personnel responsible for the claims workload;

— two full-time service representatives — with the task of handling most of the post-adjudicative workload;

— four development clerks — who control the timely and continuous flow of work and out of the office, and;

Field Representative

Most of the staff remain at the Social Security office at 301 Plaza Drive in achieving their assigned work. There is one employee, however, whose work makes her job one in which she is constantly on the move.

Madeline Smith fills the position of field representative for the Greenville Social Security office.

"My work takes me to hospitals and nursing homes or wherever people are unable to visit or call the office, and have no one who can do this for them," Mrs. Smith said. "I also visit Martin County one day a week in an effort to give better service to people there who are unable to visit the Greenville office." (Martin County is part of Greenville's service area).

In her work, Mrs. Smith also makes regular visits to the Martin County Register of Deeds and the Clerk of Court to certify documents.

Operations Analyst

Another of the staff who plays a key role in the Social Security workload is the Operations Analyst, Lilly Diggs.

Her job is somewhat akin to that of a watchdog — to analyze problem areas and heavy workload concentrations in the office to insure the expeditious processing of claims and post-adjudicative items. Ms. Diggs also reviews claims before they are mailed to payment centers for payment to be certain there are no mistakes or omissions which could delay payment of the claim.

Management Team

Within the framework of the office operations, three persons constitute a management team — manager Lilley, assistant manager Epling, and the operations supervisor, Nancy Davis.

This trio works together to handle all the administrative functions of the office as well as carry out supervision of emloyees.

Additionally, they review workload items and set up office policies and procedures. In this phase of the work, they are assisted by an administrative aide, Joan Shelley, who is responsible for the clerical duties for this team and the administration of the office.

Emphasis On Information

"Getting timely information out to the public is an important part of our work," Lilley emphasized. "There's many ways we do this. One is by regularly scheduled appearances at 7:35 a.m. each Wednesday morning, usually myself or Gary Epling, on the 'Carolina Today' television show. Our air time on this show dates back to 1955."

Other means of informing the public include that of providing speakers to civic clubs or other interested groups, talking to groups of high school students, and currently conducting pre-retirement series of discussions for employees at Burrough Wellcome. "We will welcome the opportunity to provide this pre-retirement service for any interested industry in the area," Epling remarked.

Continuing Goals

Lilley notes that all employees at the Social Security office have continuing goals in their job of serving the public.

Primary among these are efforts to process initial claims with all practical speed and payment of continuing benefits on time; providing objective, uniform and equal treatment to all people; operating under policies and procedures in a manner that is as little burdensome on the public as possible while at the same time offering adequate assurance that statutory provisions are being carried out; maintaining levels of service appropriate to an insurance program based on a concept of earned right and protecting the rights of participants in this program; and finally, to do all these things at the lowest administrative cost possible.

The Greenville office of the Social Security Administration is the active service center for Pitt and Martin Counties. It also serves as the district office of a 14 northeastern counties area, with branch offices in Washington and Elizabeth City.

Contemporary Art Is In The Outdoor Scene In America Today

Text By Sidney Lawrence, Smithsonian News Service

Americans can view good examples of modern art these days without ever visiting a gallery or museum. They need only look around outdoors.

Monumental sculptures now grace waterfronts, parks and plazas in cities as diverse as Baltimore, Grand Rapids and Los Angeles. And a wealth of mural art — also located outside — is transforming once-blank exterior walls into vivid fantasy images, expressions of ethnic pride and fool-the-eye architecture.

But such streetside "canvases," open air-sculptures like Claes Oldenburg's baseball "Batcolumnm" and the more well-known stabiles of Alexander Calder are only part of the picture.

New forms of public art are beginning to emerge. Earthworks, light sculpture and temporary art — a few of the developments that shook the art world not long ago — today are enlivening our everyday environment.

Last year in New York, for example, the facades of 12 lower-Manhattan skyscrapers were illuminated in geometric patterns for artist Jim Pelletier's work called "Night/Light," much to the delight of 5,000 spectators on the Brooklyn Palisades. Rockne Krebs has created laser-beam sculpture in the skies above Philadelphia and a neon/glass prism environment for a U.S. courthouse in Topeka, Kansas.

Christo, the artist responsible for the 1976 "Running Fence" in northern California, later "wrapped" the footpaths of a Kansas City, Missouri park in nylon cloth. And in San Francisco, Peter d'Agostino recently showed his video art to commuters in the city's BART subway.

Going Public?

Is contemporary art going public? Many observers think so.

"There's a strong public impulse among many artists working today," John Beardsley, a Washington, D. C., free-lance curator, says. Three years ago, when Beardsley's documentary exhibition of "land projects" began a nationwide tour at the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, such works were located mostly in remote areas of the American West. "There has been a shift of focus," Beardsley now observes. "More and more of these artists are seeking sites in populated areas or urban centers."

As an example of this, Beardsley cites "Earthworks: Land Reclamation as Sculplture," a new development in and around Seattle, Washington, where eight once-active open-pit mines, quarries and other sites needing redevelopment will receive large-scale earthworks. Artist Robert Morris has already completed one work, composed of a gentle sweep of terraces not unlike an earthern amphitheater; another, now being constructed by Richard Fleishner, eventually will cover 400 acres.

The project was spearheaded by the King County Arts Commission with seed funds from the National Endowment for the Arts. There also have been contributions from the city and state governments, the Seattle port authority, various private foundations and many individual groups and citizens to cover the initial $350,000 cost of securing sites, commissioning artists and completing various feasibility studies. The Fedeal Bureau of Mines contributed a tenth of this sum.

Recycling Mines

"Recycling depleted mines has always been a major concern of the bureau," Jerry Allen, visual arts coordination of the commission, says. "But the idea of converting land into art and opening it up for public use is something new." Currently, Allen notes, the bureau is working with a mining company and with artist Fleishner on the long-term plans for his site, which won't be completely mined for eight to ten years.

Cooperation like this is not uncommon in public art projects, according to Pat Fuller of the National Endowment for the Arts. Fuller, whose "Art in Public Places" program provides matching grants to about 30 such projects each year, says the base of initial support is widening, especially within the non-art community. "As progressive art reaches more people," she says, "more people want to participate in making it a reality."

Organizations as diverse as transit authorities, hospitals and senior citizen housing centers, as well as numerous neighborhood arts groups, have sought works for public spaces, Fuller note. Some projects are located in such unlikely spots as storefronts, converted factories, old schoolhouses and other "alternative spaces." By sponsoring street performances, studio open houses, on-site painting and sculpture projects and numerous other events, the organizations have taken bold steps toward making art everyone's business.

40-Foot Boots

Not long ago, for instance, pedestrians in the heart of the Washington, D. C., downtown shopping district were startled to see a pair of 40-foot high cowboy boots on a once-vacant corner. The work of Texas artist Robert Wade, they were there because the Washington Project for the Arts, a local art group, had worked long and hard to arouse community support. Having secured extended use of the lot from the D. C. city government, the WPA then convinced local businessmen to donate construction material and equipment. A nearby hotel and parking lot each gave free lodgings and car space to the artist and his crew. With the award of a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the boot project, the first in a series called "Washington Art Site," became a reality.

"Because so many people had participated, there was a tremendous sense of pride and accomplishment when the boots finally went up," Al Nodel, director of the WPA, says. "And for pedestrians, the boots were a real challenge. People who never go to galleries and museums were suddenly confronted with a self-proclaimed art work. For the first time, they were talking about issues of art."

Other Projects Planned

After the boots were removed for permanent location in a San Antonio, Texas, shopping center, WPA rounded up support for an architectural fantasy piece by New York artist Alice Aycock. Next to come is a 25-foot high redwood sculpture by Washington, D. C. artist Nade Haley.

WPA also plans a "neon corridor." Artists will work with neighborhood store owners to transform an entire block into a monumental light sculpture.

Examples Everywhere

Examples of public art were erected throughout the city — not just the familiar monumental sculptures which many city inhabitants have come to expect in plazas and parks but a "sound installation" covering several acres, an enormous reflective silver "sky sculpture" that wafted above the National Mall, and a sundial-like time-lapse piece, utilizing the shadow of the Washington Monument.

A glimpse of things to come? Perhaps. Contemporary art may not be everyone's concern, but one thing is certain: Its potential audience is wider today than ever before. Experimental forms of art, once the province of only a few, are taking their place alongside large-scale outdoor paintings and sculptures as an experience to be shared by all.

CAROLINA TURN OF THE CENTURY — There's not many left in eastern North Carolina of the early 20th century wooden stores that once served shoppers for their daily needs. Here and there in small villages and at rural crossroads, a few of the distinctive buildings still stand, most of them, like this one in downtown Vanceboro, is now closed. In their time, such places bustled with townspeople, farmers and their families, especially on Saturday afternoons, buying everything from lollipops to overalls, molasses to laces, perfumes and mule collars. NEW FORMS OF PUBLIC ART . . . are beginning to emerge around the nation, joining an alrady extensive scene of large-scale outdoor painting and sculpture. A recent example is Robert Wade's "The Biggest Cowboy Boots in the World," shown above in downtown Washington, D. C., before they were moved to a shopping center in San Antonio, Texas for permanent installation. (Photo Smithsonian News Service, courtesy Mark Gulezian)

The Parkchester

Tudor Styling Benefits Duplex Design

By Jerry Bishop

Small-paned windows, stucco, and half timbers fashion a charming facade for the Parkchester, a two family design. With over 2400 sq. ft. of living space and three bedrooms, each of the two units can accommodate the activities of an active family.

Despite the deceptively traditional exterior, the Parkchester offers a contemporary, even innovative, floor plan. Double entry doors lead into a shared foyer, but the sharing ends there. Hallways and cabinets act as buffers that minimize noise and protect privacy.

From the foyer, entry into each unit is a spacious hallway with coat closet and immediate access to the lower level. On that level, 1 34-ft. recreation room with plenty of natural light and an outside entry provides a play room for small children, a party room for teenagers, or unlimited possibilities for bedrooms or storage. Completing the lower level is a double garage and convenient utility/laundry half bath.

On the main level, a sizable family kitchen, complete with snack bar, broom closet, and dining area suggests informality, while the bordering living room promises quiet relaxation in front of the wood-burning fireplace. Both rooms merit sliding glass doors to a spacious deck.

Bedrooms are clustered to the front of the plan and provide three well-closeted bedrooms. The master bedroom, comfortably large, is favored with a private bath, and a second full bath is set close to the remaining bedrooms and living room. A linen closet and towel closet are shown.

Interior Designers Look For The Things To Come

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Get a group of interior designers together and ask them a provocative question about the future and maybe the answers will add up to a prescription for survival — decoratively speaking.

The chance to do that came up recently at the annual meeting of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) in New York. An extravaganza of an affair with thousands of designers packing the town, the meeting also provided an opportunity to honor designers for achievements in product design, building restoration and the creation of interiors of merit.

Collaring a number of the winners, we asked them to predict the most important changes in the home in the next 10 years. New designs in response to the need to save energy was the overwhelming answer although other factors such as the shrinking of space and the freeing of individual taste from the straitjacket of fashion also were mentioned. But let's listen to what the designers had to say.

The youngest award winner was Jan Anderson of Gresham, Ore., a senior at Syracuse University. Ms. Anderson won first prize in a contest sponsored by Flexalum Blinds for imaginative use of window blinds.

"Energy-conservation measures will affect all of the products, styles and textures in interior design," she said. And designers will play a growing role in advising people how to save energy.

Don Hekuis, an industrial designer from High Point, N.C., was cited for his design of a solar room in a contest sponsored by Barcalounger.

"Energy costs will influence design decisions," he predicted. "Even now, I try to steer clients away from wasteful design practices and towards smaller windows, fewer on the north side and more on the south, better insulation and smaller spaces. In the future, window treatments are going to have to change."

A sheer and tie-back drapery treatment may look good, but it doesn't control light or offer insulation. New products such as insulated window coverings and windows with mini-blinds already in place between two panes of insulated glass are examples of products now on the market which save energy. Such products are going to become more common in the future, he said.

Kay Frandsen, another winner of the Barcalounger contest, added that because of energy shortages people will be moving back into the city.

"They can't afford to build, so they are beginning to fix up slum-area homes all over the United States. Among families who move back to older homes, I see furnishings becoming more formal," added the Minneapolis designer.

Robin Black, a designer in San Antonio, Texas, seconded Ms. Frandsen's ideas. Ms. Black, who won an award for recycling an old building, noted that government funds are increasingly available to fix up old structures.

"New construction costs are astronomical, so I think we will see lots of restoration both in residential and commercial buildings," she said. "We may go back to gracious living after all those restorations are completed. And the result will be a return to the cities."

Ronald L. Bulpin, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., winner of a contest calling for creative use of mirrors, said that the high cost of money and building would force people to live in small spaces.

"Space will have to be more versatile," he said. "We will have multi-use rooms and will need innovative new products. I think we will have to get away from fad decoration to more durable, long-lasting styles. I would expect that fewer units of more expensive furniture and accessories would be sold."

"We have been paying lip service to the need to save energy for the past 10 years. In the next 10 years, we will really have to do it," said Bud Merle, a designer in Fort Lauderdale, whose residential work on a Florida home was cited by ASID. "I think building codes will be altered to require that builders use higher standards for insulation and smaller window openings. Rooms therefore will be darker and we will need lighter and brighter furnishings. Spaces will be smaller in the next decade so we will have to key design to the illusion of space where it does not exist."

The decade which is just starting will not be startlingly different from the present, agreed the designers. But problems which have surfaced during the 1970s will be attacked and creative ways of solving them will surface, they predicted.

You'll do better when working with a concrete mixture if you remember these tips:

The water in your mixture, whether you are starting from scratch or using a packaged premix, should be clean enough to drink.

The less water you add and still keep the mixture workable, the stronger the concrete.

A good rule of thumb when mixing your own ingredients is no more than six gallons of water per the standard 94-pound sack of cement.

Sand that is too wet or too dry affects the necessary quantity of water. Deduct one pint of water from the regular mix if the sand is too wet; add one pint if it's too dry.

If you squeeze a handful of sand, then drop it, the sand is too wet if this action leaves your hand wet. If this squeezing move causes the sand to fall apart rather than compact, the sand is too dry.

When using a packaged premix, pour out the entire contents of the bag and mix it yourself without adding water, since the ingredients may have separated since they were packaged. Return to the bag the amount you don't want at the moment and keep it dry for later use, then add water to what you need.

Although the terms are used interchangeably, cement and concrete are not the same. Portland cement, which is not a brand name, is the product that holds the ingredients together. Concrete is what you get after a mixture of sand, cement, water and aggregate has hardened.

Vital to the success of a concrete project is what is known as curing. If concrete hardens too quickly, it loses its strength and can suffer a variety of other ailments. The trick then is to prevent it from hardening immediately. This is done by keeping it damp for several days — at least six days if that is possible.

Of course, the concrete will appear to be completely hard within a day, but don't let that fool you. If it is in an area where it is exposed to the sun, it is especially important to keep it damp. That can be done in a variety of ways, among them covering the concrete with something, such as straw, plastic, burlap, etc., and then sprinkling that cover once or twice a day for about a week. When a cover cannot be used in a practical way, hose down the concrete or otherwise wet it during the same period.

When putting a new layer of concrete over an old, use a commercial bonding agent. There are other ways to do this, including acid-etching the old surface, but the use of a bonding agent is the easiest.

Remember that there are many ways that a concrete surface can be made nonslippery by the manner in which it is finished before the mixture has dried. One of the simplest is to run a broom over the wet surface.

Here's the Answer

Q. — Whenever it rains, there is an area in our front yard that does not drain well. If it is a very heavy rain, there may be a pond that stays there three or four days before it finally seeps into the ground. We have considered several solutions, but finally decided to regrade the entire yard. What I want to know is how much pitch should there be so that the surface water drains away from the house?

A. — A minimum grade of 1 foot in 100 feet is generally adequate. It would be a good idea to dig up the trouble section a little and put down a bed of gravel an inch or two thick, then cover with new permeable soil.

Q. — We recently bought an existing house, with the mortgage loan insured by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Someone from that government agency came over and inspected the house a few months ago. A short time later, we got word that our loan request had been approved. Now I have been told that the inspection really didn't mean a thing and that HUD does not warrant the house against defects. Is that correct?

A. — Half wrong, half correct. It is wrong that the inspection really didn't mean a thing. It sure did. It meant that HUD had appraised the property and determined that it could and would insure your mortgage loan for a certain amount. Without that inspection, your lender would not have given you a HUD-insured loan for the requested amount. The correct part is that the government agency does not warrant the house against any latent defects. However, if your house had just been built, HUD would have required the builder to warrant that it conformed substantially to the plans and specifications on which HUD based its appraisal.

Q. — The cellar floor in our house is dirt, the kind of dirt that is so hard it rarely even leaves a footprint. A musty odor has developed. How can we get rid of it?

A. — Sprinkle the floor with chlorinated lime, commonly called chloride of lime or bleaching powder. Let it stand until all mustiness has disappeared, then sweep it up. Incidentally, when an area develops a musty odor, the objectionable smell will usually go away when the section is heated and dried, but it's better to take steps to remove the odor at once to prevent mold growth.

Q. — In one of our rooms, the walls are made of fiberboard. They have never been painted. Can I use a latex paint on them?

A. — Yes. But since fiberboard is porous, put on a first coat of primer-sealer. Because you are using a latex paint, get a primer-sealer of the same type. Ask your hardware or paint dealer for assistance in making a selection.

(Types of paint, surface preparation, brushes, rollers and many helpful tips are included in Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint your House Inside and Out," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Q. How late in the fall can fescue be seeded? (J.C., Raleigh)

A. Mid-October is about the latest that I would seed tall fescue in the Piedmont. If we have a warm fall, fescue seeded through the end of October may do fine. But who can predict we'll have a warm fall? (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. I would like to plant some trees near a septic tank line. Please give me the names of some that would thrive in such a location. (M.S., Pineville)

A. Tree roots and septic lines are not too compatible. If planted far enough away willow oak, water oak, white oak, blackgum, green ash and bald cyprus would grow well in the moist environment. Avoid planting trees such as weeping willow and silver maples which have fibrous spreading and shallow roots. (Bill Stanton, extensilon forestry specialist)

Q. I have a small garden of mint for the first time this year, and I don't know if mint is an annual or perennial. (Mrs. L.W., Reidsville)

A. Mint (mentha species) is a perennial. This hardy, spreading plant that grows about two feet tall and has oval, smooth, fruitscented leaves, should come back next year. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Please give me some varieties of raspberriesto grow in the Charlotte area. (L.M., Charlott)

How to choose a broker to assist in buying or selling a house? Be sure that it is someone in whom you have complete trust. Important as well is to choose someone you like and feel comfortable with. In that way, there will be mutual understanding concerning your needs, resources and desires. Often, a good broker can be found through the recommendations of friends. As all brokers are licensed, visit a few. Get an idea of the personalities involved. Another suggestion might be the selection of homes in which a firm seems to specialize or have some success with. Whatever your choice, choose carefully.

In the Greenville area it makes sense to choose REALTY WORLD-CLARK BRANCH REALTORS, INC., 1902 S. Charles, 756-6336 to assist you whether you are buying or selling a house. Our experience, knowledge and desire to serve our clients provides you with all the ingredients you need to make a prudent and informed decision. "Our World Revolves Around You". Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8:30-5:30, Sat. 8:30-1, other times by appointment.

Rock-Climbing, For Upward Mobility

By DON HARRISON

CATAWBA, Va. (UPI) — Rock climbers are upward mobility people.

Thir world differ from that of most weekend sportsmen. When they perform, hawks and eagles are their likely audience, the wind their companion, adrenalin their fuel.

It's also a world of 150-foot blue, red, yellow, green or purple ropes, shiny D-shaped metal rings, inch-wide nylon webbing, hexagon-shaped chocks from the size of dimes to fists.

A climber's challenge is a 100-foot wall of gray granite with little more than tiny cracks, good to jam those chocks in as anchors, or cracker-thin flakes of rock, good for gripping with fingertips or clenching with booted tiptoes.

There's no official estimate available of the number of climbers, but nearly every weekend thousands of them are likely to be practicing at such places as Dragon's Tooth, Raven's Roost, Belle Corney, Seneca Rocks, Willis Mountain. These obscure places are unknown to most of the general public.

But climbers use these places to practice for assaults on the more familiar peaks that symbolize achievements in vertical adventure — Mt. Everest, Mt. Ranier, Mt. McKinley, the Eiger, the Grand Teton, el Capitan, Half Dome.

The idea is to learn and refine skills — and judgment — on the little rocks and mountains first, then go for the bigger ones.

For perspective, most people can walk a mile in about 20 minutes. Big climbs, however, can require days to advance 5,280 feet, or even one-tenth that. Most climbers never get to the big ones, or even the in-between ones. By choice.

"Most people who go through one-day courses climb for a while, then give it up," said Bob Smiley of nearby Salem, a veteran climber, instructor and professional outfitter.

"The majority aren't interested in taking it beyond the beginner level," said John Connelly, a Richmond outfitter. "Many people try it because they're looking for something different, exciting, some adventure. Some try it maybe to help their ego or macho feelings or whatever. But for many outdoor types, it's an extension of their skills," he said.

It takes time to acquire climbing skills. Beginners should read about the sport first, then find a local climber, outfitter, outdoors club or rescue group that might offer lessons.

Veterans emphasize two things, however, for potential climbers: The sport is obviously risky; and finding seasoned, patient, skilled instructors can be a problem.

"The problem is finding somebody who knows what they're doing. Stores often don't do it because of the insurance problems," said Bob Norris, a Washington-area climber and former instructor. He recently stopped an eight-year teaching career to start a business in another field.

"If you're taking tennis lessons and the teacher doesn't know what he's doing, it doesn't make much difference. All you've done is wasted time and money. Climbing is a different ball game. There's no criteria that I know of that a layman can use to evaluate whether somebody is teaching him the ultimate in climbing safety.

"There are ways that work, but there are ways that are much safer. I've seen it time and time again where you see somebody taught something, wrong, and there's no way you could get them to change.

"You know, a square knot on a rappel might work fine 50 times. Then it might not the 51st time, and then where are you?" Norris said.

Connelly and Smiley voiced similar comments, but Connelly suggested that climbing courses lasting from one afternoon to a week or more that are taught in national parks are fairly well supervised and use experienced, qualified climbers with good teaching abilities.

A good dose of common sense helps beginners as much as anything, climbers said. "The problem lies with people who take a course and then think they're ready for more than they are. Learn to teach yourself," said Connelly.

The most-often cited bits of advice are: Don't climb alone, try to work only with seasoned climbers, don't climb with square knots or slip knots of any kind, don't climb with anything but equipment made for the sport.

Smiley said it may cost up to $200 for basic climbing equipment — rope, several D-shaped carabiners, a handful of chocks, a figure-8 descender ring for rappels, and about 20 feet of one-inch nylon webbing for slings and anchors. "That may seem high, but the replacement costs are low," he said.

Climbing ropes are not the ordinary, out-of-the-hardware store variety. The standard rope is nylon, with 150-foot long strands woven into a diameter a fraction under half-an-inch thick.

The rope is a climber's single most expensive item of equipment, and costs more than $125. Such ropes can hold 5,500 pounds or more of stress and stretch up to 55 percent of their length. The stretch is important because it dissipates the energy-shock in a fall.

Going up is only half of climbing. The going-down half is rappelling. Most climbers agree rappelling is the most dangerous part.

"Rappelling is done only when you have to, when you can't downclimb. It's so dangerous because rappelling is the only part of climbing where you're totally dependent on your equipment. That's what scares me when I hear about people rappelling just to do it. They don't know that most climbers try to avoid it," said Smiley.

A rappell is not done the way movie and televison heroes do it, by taking great flying leaps down the rope. Rappelling is a walk backwards down a mountain.

The rope is secured to an anchor, preferably two or more, at the top of the cliff. The climber hooks the rope into a brake system, either mechanical or body, then begins walking backward and down. Friction often is so great at the top, rappellers must exert strong pressure to move downward. Near the bottom, the friction lessens considerably.

With all the risk, why do they climb?

"They're mostly adrenalin junkies. It's hard to prototype a climber. But it's a tremendous physical challenge. A mental challenge, too — learning to control my mind when I was scared out of it," said Smiley.

"It's like a lot of other things — you conceive of a problem or goal and it's a challenge to try to attain it," said Connelly. "The danger and uncertainty makes it all that more interesting and rewarding. It's the type of sport where you and another person, or a group of people, become so closely involved that your lives are literally in each other's hands."

Courses Are Offered At Pitt CC

Pitt Community College will co-sponsor the following courses with the Greenville Art Center beginning Tuesday, Sept. 16, 7-9:30 p.m.

BASIC DRAWING: Students will learn the fundamentals of drawing, both still and life scenic landscapes.

BASIC WEAVING: Students will learn the basics of Inkle loom, an ancient Scandinavian tradition of weaving in bands. They will also learn the basics of the rigid heddle loom. Both techniques are useful in making pieces to be used as wall hangings, clothing, etc.

Persons interested in taking either of the classes should come to the Art Center at 7 p.m., Tuesday. For further information, call Pitt Community College at 756-3130, or the art center, 758-1946.

PCC will offer the following courses on campus:

Monday, Sept. 15 - KNITTING. 7-10 p.m. Students will learn the basics of knitting and will be able to construct knitted clothing or afghans.

Monday, Sept. 15 - ASSORTED CRAFTS. 7-10 p.m. The course will include instructions in various crafts such as baskets, macrame, stitchery, etc.

Wednesday, Sept. 17 - CROCHET. 7-10 p.m. Students will learn the basics of crochet and will construct various household items as well as choice of clothing items.

Registration fee for each class will be $5. Classes will be 36 hours in length. For further information call PCC, at the number above.

A special workshop will be offered by PCC on WOOD-BURNING STOVES. The workshop will meet for three consecutive evenings beginning Tuesday, Sept. 16, on the campus of PCC from 7-10 p.m.

The course will cover information concerning necessary qualities needed for wood stoves to function successfully as energy efficient heating systems.

Registration for the course will be $5. For further information call PCC.

Hip Repair Is Mapped

The mapping technique was devised because 14 percent of patients with hip joint replacements experience pain within two years of surgery, the physicians say. The pain results from infection, bursitis, fractures, new bone formation and actual loosening of the replaced joint. Even a few millimeters of movement can cause pain.

Radiologist Dr. John C. Hunter, and his colleagues at the University of California in San Francisco, applied the aerial mapping method, known as stereophotogrammetry, as a reliable and precise way to discover the cause of pain without surgery.

During the replacement operation, surgeons implant special beads as reference points. A series of radiographs made in weight-bearing and non-weight-bearing positions are taken while the patient recovers from surgery.

If the patient later experiences pain, data from new radiographs are fed into a computer for a fast, precise picture of any joint movement. Patients whose pain stems from other causes are spared investigative surgery.

A Message In The 'Tickler'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A florist group has come up with an idea it says can be a help to men who have trouble getting across a message to the women in their lives.

It's the "tickler" bouquet, which F.T.D. florists will deliver in a little vase. In the center of the inexpensive bouquet is a "tickler", a steam of dried grass that looks a little like a soft cattail.

The flowers symbolize different messages: a daisy-carnation combination means "I'm innocent and I'm telling you the truth"; white clover means "Think of me"; french marigolds or yellow roses mean the man is jealous; red tulips are a declaration of love; a four-leaf clover means "Be mine"; and a little ivy stands for marriage.

Maine's Nuke Vote Could Rock The Energy Industry

By JON HALVORSEN
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The ballot boasts only one question, but the answer Maine voters give on Sept. 23 could rattle the entire U.S. nuclear power industry.

No one, however, is making any confident predictions about the outcome of Maine's controversial referendum — never before has a state considered banning nuclear power and closing its nuclear plant.

No one even knows for certain whether states have such legal authority.

Other states have voted to restrict development of future nuclear plants — a federal judge last year ruled one such California law invalid — but none has voted on closing an existing reactor.

Maine's question is short and straightforward: "Shall an act to prohibit the generation of electric power by means of nuclear fission become law?"

The possible answers are equally to the point: Yes and No.

The proposed law declares in its introduction that nuclear power "presents an inherent and unreasonable risk of economic, physical and mental harm" to the people of Maine.

But those people of Maine are not predicted to overwhelm the polling places, despite almost daily newspaper articles and letters to the editor and weeks of debate between pro- and anti-nuclear forces.

Deputy Secretary of State James Henderson estimates no more than one-third of the 700,000 registered voters will turn out.

A low turnout "usually benefits those who are more intensely committed to their position" — in this case, the anti-nuclear forces pushing for the "yes" vote, Henderson said.

If it passes, the referendum will close the Maine Yankee nuclear plant in Wiscasset, 45 miles up the coast from Portland, which went on line in 1972 and supplies roughly one-third of Maine's electricity.

Or will it? A study by Maine Attorney General Richard Cohen's staff concluded the proposed law "would probably be found to violate the United States Constitution" because the federal government has jurisdiction over the licensing and operation of nuclear plants.

Should the referendum pass, most observers believe it's virtually certain tgat Central Maine Power Co., the state's largest electric utility and principal owner of Maine Yankee, would challenge the law in court and seek to keep the plant open.

The legal battle would last "a minimum of three to five years," concedes Raymond Shadis, head of the Maine Nuclear Referendum Committee.

Shadis, a 38-year-old North Edgecomb artist and teacher whose century-old farmhouse is two miles from Maine Yankee, coordinated the effort that collected more than 55,000 signatures — only 37,200 were needed — to force the issue to referendum.

Shadis made safety the paramount issqe in his campaign, warning of the danger of a sudden meltdown at Maine Yankee or the gradual release of low-level radiation.

The nuclear industry "has been generating electricity for over 20 years without a single loss of life and (with) no serious radiation hazard to any worker in any of the plants," he says.

The accident at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania — which he claims was widely misinterpreted by the media — was "perhaps the only major serious accident in the history of the nuclear industry and yet resulted in no measurable damage to the public," Menario says.

Television ads from the Save Maine Yankee Committee have focused on the "economic chaos" it says Maine would suffer by closing the plant. Menario contends it would cost $160 million a year to replace the power generated by the plant, and taxes would skyrocket.

Shadis counters that the true replacement cost would be one-third as much — amounting to an added $3 a month for the average ratepayer — and is dwarfed by hidden costs inherent in nuclear power, such as the disposal of nuclear waste. Maine Yankee's power could be adequately replaced through conservation, new hydroelectric dams and other renewable energy sources, he says.

Save Maine Yankee has far outspent the anti-nuclear forces. By mid-August, it had already raised $501,000 in contributions, much of it from out-of-state, most of it from the nuclear industry, utilities and banks.

By the same date, seven anti-nuclear groups had spent a total of $70,800, about $9,000 more than they had raised. Singers Peter, Paul & Mary, Dan Fogelberg and other entertainers have given benefit concerts to aid the anti-nuclear cause.

Anti-nuclear people are trying to make an issue of the out-of-state money collected by the pro-nuclear forces, but Menario says the contributions come with no strings attached and that Mainers will make the decisions on how the funds are spent.

Menario and Shadis do agree on one thing — neither will predict how the vote will go.

Don't Smoke At Interview

NEW YORK (AP) — Going to a job interview? Don't smoke.

That's the advice of the heads of management-level personnel agencies across the United States and Canada who were surveyed on the question.

The survey was taken by National Personnel Associates, a network of 237 personnel agencies in 145 cities that cooperate in filling jobs at the $18,000-$75,000 level.

Asked, "Would you encourage applicants not to smoke during the interview with the employer?", 87 percent said yes, 11 percent said no and the remainder did not comment.

"If they smoke it is best to ask permission of the employer before lighting up," commented Betty Ormond of Betty Ormond Personnel, Decatur, Ill.

There are some not-so-obvious reasons for refraining from smoking during interviews, says Helen Browning at Mutual Personnel Service, Macon, Ga. "A nervous applicant might light the wrong end," she says. Conversely, smoking might make the applicant too relaxed. "A job interview is not a chat. The applicant has to be alert and respond quickly."

Ms. Browning also described a psychological test employers use. "An employer might offer a candidate a cigarette but not provide an ashtray. The employer then observes how cool the candidate is in that situation."

'Immediate' Risk Factor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teenagers can be persuaded to quit smoking if they be can convinced smoking does damage to their health immediately rather than at some vague time in the future, the New Hampshire Lung Association believes.

"The young just can't see far enough ahead to worry about something that may happen to them in their 60s — or even to imagine that they may someday be 60," according to an article in the September issue of Science Digest magazine.

Recognizing this fact, the article reports, the Association recently tried an experiment with teenage smokers. It used biomonitoring machines to measure carbon monoxide levels in exhaled breath and thus, the article says, to demonstrate physical changes that accompanied smoking.

"When a group of adolescents were confronted with the evidence of changes in their pulse rate and skin temperature and saw the measurements of tremors in their hands, many of them decided to quit," the article reported.

Concern about present physical fitness seem to weigh much more heavily with the teenagers, the report said, than either their parents' opinions or even peer influence.

Can Fading Memory Be Restored?

In recent months I've notice that I've had a sharp decline in memory. I'm 76 years old and I know that at my age memory changes occur. When I taught school I had a phenomenal memory. I'm trying to find out places where special studies are being done on this problem. — Mr. N.N., Wis.

Dear Mr. N.:

Memory disorders are not simple problems. They may result from any one of a number of conditions — some of which are relatively unimportant. Others are more complicated.

Undoubtedly, the most common cause of loss of memory is attributed to narrowing of the blood vessels to the brain due to arteriosclerosis. One of the characteristic aspects of this type of memory loss is that the patient has no trouble recalling the smallest event that may have occurred 50 years ago, yet something that occurred only a few weeks ago, a few hours ago, or even a few minutes ago, may be difficult to recall.

Such loss of memory is very distressing to the person involved, and can be upsetting to those who surround him. It sometimes becomes irritating when something that has been said only a few minutes ago must be repeated. Showing irritability rather than sympathetic understanding further adds to the distress.

There are a number of neurological conditions, all of which must be ruled out when, in addition to loss of memory, there are other symptoms.

Scientists all over the world are constantly at work trying to find ways to increase the blood supply to the brain in the hope that fading memory can be restored. Dr. Richard H. Schlessinger and his coworkers at the University of Rochester have been working on this problem.

A synthetic drug similar to a substance extracted from the periwinkle plant is being evaluated for its possible capacity to increase the memory. Because of some toxic side effects, the drug, vincamine, has not been released by the Food and Drug Administration.

With all the vigorous research that is going on it will not be long before memory loss due to oncoming age and arteriosclerotic changes will be controlled.

Is there any way to remove the stretch marks on the abdomen? I lost a lot of weight after my first child was born. I've noticed it since then. — Mrs. E.T, Del.

Dear Mrs. T.:

During pregnancy the expansion of the breasts and the abdominal wall can sometimes cause breaks in the underlying layers of the skin. Someone once said that these were the "hash marks" of a proud mother.

Plastic surgery is really the only way to handle some of these extreme cases. In most instances, surgery is not effective. Expensive hormone creams are a total waste.

Suggest Quartz As Transmitter

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The use of quartz for transmitting infrared heat is suggested by engineers of Scovill's Markel heating products division. They point out quartz, diamonds, rubies, and charcoal are the only known substances that produce pure radiant heat, and of these only quartz is useable in a practical manner.

The engineers suggest a coil of resistance wire be encased in a quartz glass tube mounted in front of an aluminum reflector. The effect is an intensified heat of about 2,000 degrees, some 500 degrees higher than produced by conventional heaters. The quartz reaches this temperature in one minute, emitting energy that passes through the air as far as 30 feet with very little heat loss, warming any solid object it strikes.

NURSING MANAGEMENT

Take A Leadership Role In A Newly Reorganized Nursing Department

PITT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL can utilize your nursing expertise and your desire to assume management responsibilities in its ultra-modern facilities in Greenville, N.C.

The recent reorganization of PITT COUNTY'S Nursing Department has created exceptional growth opportunities for the following individuals:

- HEAD NURSES
- SUPERVISORS
- ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATORS
- CLINICAL INSTRUCTORS

PCMH is Eastern North Carolina's regional medical center, currently housing 420 plus beds, with construction underway to expand accomodations to 600 plus beds. The challenge of continued growth coupled with excellent working conditions make the opportunities at PITT COUNTY outstanding.

Salary is fully commensurate with background and education, and benefits, including tuition reimbursement and relocation package, are comprehensive.

To find out more about the career possibilities at PITT COUNTY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL, send resume and salary history to: Helen Abbott, R.N., Director of Staffing and Recruitment.

For Many, Recession Is Chopped Beef, Not Steak

By SANDRA L. LATIMER
United Press International

Joel Singer of Skokie, Ill., can't remember the last time his wife fixed a filet mignon. He's become accustomed to chicken, ground beef, pizzas, macaroni and cheese and grilling hot dogs and hamburgers.

But, still, there is the occasional roast of beef. For Singer is a young executive with a good income. His family is pressed between the high cost of living and the shrinking dollar.

Gloria McIntosh of Haysville, Kan., buys a lot of her food on sale and fixes a lot of casseroles and one-dish meals for her family. North Texas State University student Javier Rodriguez figures he'll be eating a lot of pork chops this year.

"Needless to say, we haven't had steaks on the dinner table," said the woman in Hawaii who wished not to be identified. "It's a lot of hamburger and chickens. My husband is a good fisherman so we can count on having seafood for dinner, too."

These people are representative of a lot of American families who have had to change their way of life as the economy goes into a recession — a period of widespread unemployment and high prices.

Singer, 35, vice president of a sporting goods store in Skokie, says his wife, the bookkeeper at the store, will buy a small steak or cubed meat and shishkabob it and put it on the grill. "That's our version of steak," he said. "We're eating a lot more salad, casseroles and spaghetti."

There is much more pressure on Mrs. McIntosh. Laid off from her job at the Cessna Aircraft Co. in Wichita, Kan., she has been cutting down on the groceries she buys and "fixing a lot of casseroles and one-dish meals."

When she lost her job, her husband Arlan, was also laid off, so the family qualified for food stamps. However, those food stamps were lost when her husband was able to find a job.

Although Mrs. McIntosh continues to receive unemployment benefits, the family has used part of its savings. Their teenaged daughter, who babysits, loans her parents money.

People aren't eating out as much today as they had. Singer said his family used to go to restaurants three or four times a month, but now go about once or twice. They're staying closer to home. They go to less expensive restaurants. And they've begun to take advantage of those coupon books that provide two meals for the price of one.

The McIntoshes "flat do not eat out." Rodriguez, 22, of Donna, Texas, says "it's just a lot cheaper to fix your own food, even if you just eat one meal a day.

"I'll eat a lot of pork chops. I find them cheaper than other kinds of meat and I like then better than ground meat, which I got tired of."

He'll be working at a paid position on the student newspaper and working weekends in the library to help his parents out in paying for his education.

But in these days of unemployment, jobs are hard to find. And often, an unemployed person's skills are limited.

Such is the case of Elmer Slifka of Youngstown, Ohio, whose job of foreman with Youngstown Sheet and Tube was phased out in December of 1977.

"I applied for a few jobs elsewhere, but it's slow all over," he said. "My age is against me. I'm 58 and it's tough to get a job within the steel industry.

"I've thought about being a security guard, but all you get there is minimum wage," he said. "As a last resort, I may have to try it."

Tim Fullerton, a laid-off steelworker at Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp.'s Brackenridge, Pa., plant, hopes to be going back to work by the end of October or early November for a short time. But he expects after that to be off again until the first of the year.

"It's going to be slow for a while," said Fullerton, 28. "At what first seemed to be enough, the longer it goes on, it gets harder."

A total of 7,000 steelworkers in the Ohio-Pennsylvania area have lost their jobs with the closing of several plants and reduction of production by others, a situation caused by the influx of imported steel.

But Mrs. Felicia Donadio of Bedford, Mass., a housewife who entered the workforce was one of the fortunate persons finding a job.

She went to work when her children had grown, and started work with a newly formed company.

"As the responsibility of my position increases, so does the money," she said, "I'm learning more skills within the job."

What money people had saved has been used to pay everyday bills.

Carol Gneiding, 29, Washington, D.C., an employee in the personnel department of the Corps of Engineers, had to use much of her good-sized savings account to pay off some major expenses to be able to qualify for a mortgage.

She has been sharing rent with another single woman in a "group house" on Capitol Hill. There have been, at times, as many as four people living in that home.

Sharing the house in an area where housing is fairly expensive has cut down on her living expenses, but she sets her priorities and lives on a budget.

If she did not do so, she said, "I wouldn't be able to afford to live on The Hill."

She has applied for a mortgage to buy a condominum in the suburbs.

"If I was 30 years younger, it might be frustrating to us," said Lee Fretz, a retired U.S. Postal Service Worker. He and his wife Bertha are both in their 70s. They feel the squeeze of spiraling prices, but Fretz said, "we don't even want anymore the things we can't have."

The couple lives in a comfortable home in Phoenix, Ariz. Fretz gets a pension from the Postal Service and his wife from the State of Arizona for her job with the Highway Department. Both get Social Security benefits.

"Some people had seven or eight kids — we only had one," he said. "Some take a vacation every year and we rarely went. Those are little things that can add up.

To save a little money, which they are finding more and more difficult, Fullerton said he and his wife now do "jobs around the house that normally we would have hired someone to do."

"Eating, new clothes and extra spending on other things have also been curtailed. We're trying to hold on to extra money and trying to keep up with or ahead of bills."

There are other ways to cut back.

Mrs. Donadio says she has hung clothes up to dry instead of using the dryer. She uses the air conditioner only in the hot, humid conditions. He even discontinued the use of their freezer.

Mrs. McIntosh has found a lot of bargains in clothing by going to yard sales.

Mrs. Singer, who is working more hours to help the family's income, doesn't have time for sewing, something she did a lot of and enjoyed.

She's found that her money, which once went for her own needs, now is a necessity and goes into the family's regular savings account. They have put aside money for their children's education and don't want to touch it.

"I'll probably be wearing my 2-year-old blue jeans for a long time to come."

With his parents paying his tuition and books, he hopes to use his money from his two jobs this fall to begin repaying them in the spring.

"The money I'm making (this summer), I plan to use that for tuition if I can," he said.

A big concern of many families is the rising price of gasoline. Singer now rides a three-speed bike to work when the weather permits although he concedes one reason is the exercise it provides because he says, in his work, "I do a lot of desk sitting."

Slifka found it was too much to keep up insurance on two cars, so he dropped it on one when the premium came due. He and his wife don't do much driving anymore. Their three married daughters live close by and often bring the children and his one great-grandchild to visit.

They no longer take long vacations. His trips to the golf course, which had been up to four times a week, are now down to once a week.

"I don't have that much money," he said, "And if there is a 50 cent tax on gas, most (people) won't be able to go out to golf."

Public transportation has become a way of life for Miss Gneiding.

"I generally get where I need to go by public transportation," she said. "A car to me is a luxury — it's not a necessity."

But she adds that she and her roommate "are always getting on each other to hold down heating and cooling costs. We're very careful as to what our utility bills are."

"Without an air conditioner, it's so hot, so we prefer to spend the time outside," Mrs. McIntosh said.

They did some camping last year, she said, "but we haven't done that this year. We had planned to spend some time in Missouri with our families, but we've had to forego that."

The rising price of gasoline has prompted a lot of people to change their vacation habits. The Ohio State University Center of Business reports sales of gasoline in Ohio in July were 15 percent below the sales of one year ago.

And one place people aren't going to as much today as they did in the past is the Hawaiian Islands.

Hawaii, where the cost of living is extremely high because of shipping costs to get the goods to the islands in the middle of the Pacific Ocean, probably has more working couples than other places. Grandparents usually do the babysitting.

But the woman whose husband is laid off says there are beaches and parks to keep the kids occupied. She works as an office secretary and did not wish to be identified by name.

As for entertainment, she says movies are carefully picked.

"Have you checked those prices lately?" she asked. "They're getting quite expensive. We used to enjoy football and baseball, but the costs involved have gone up."

The Singers and some other couples have rented a house boat on the Mississippi River and vacationed for over a week.

"It cost a hell of a lot less than flying somewhere," Singer said, noting he and his wife are trying to do more things with the kids — a 7-year-old girl and a 4-½-year-old boy.

NBC's 'Shogun' Opens Fall Season

"It's a bloody miracle!"

That was James Clavell's first reaction on seeing the completed rough-cut of "Shogun," the five-part, 12-hour adaptation of his epic novel about feudal Japan.

"It's the best adaptation of a novel I've ever seen," he says. "The production values are beautifully mounted, and Richard Chamberlain is outstanding. I initially opposed the casting of Richard as Blackthorne because I didn't think he was right for the story. I had originally envisioned Albert Finney in the role of the Englishman. "But I quickly found out I was totally wrong to have opposed him."

The story, narrated by Orson Wells, centers around John Blackthorne, portrayed by Chamberlain, a shipwrecked English navigator who becomes a samurai (knight) in the mysterious — and often terrifying — world of Japan at the start of the 17th century.

This is also a classic romantic tragedy about Blackthorne's forbidden love affair with a beautiful lady samurai, as well as a complex tale of political intrigue in feudal Japan. The central theme — a dramatic clash of cultures — is seen through the eyes of a European Renaissance man 'civilized' by his exposure to the Japanese way of life.

Toshiro Mifune, often called "the John Wayne of Japan," co-stars. His character, Toranaga, is a powerful warlord plotting to become Shogun — supreme military dictator. Yoko Shimada, one of the brightest young stars of Japanese cinema, is Mariko, Blackthorne's interpreter and lover.

Clavell is not alone in his praise of the miniseries that launches NBC-TV's fall season. Everyone who has screened "Shogun," soundly seconds his statements referring to it as an Oriental "Gone With the Wind."

Regardless of how you, the viewer, feels about miniseries, adaptations or heavy drama, don't miss it! "Shogun," a fascinating blend of high adventure, romance, history, culture, religion, politics, and old-fashioned entertainment, has something for everybody. Furthermore, it was the most outstanding production we previewed for the new fall season.

"Shogun" will be broadcast over five consecutive nights, Sept. 15-19, Monday (8 to 11 p.m.), Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday (9 to 11 p.m.), concluding Friday (8 to 11 p.m.).

Introducing
SHOWTIME
TELEVISION WORTH PAYING FOR™

"10"

Bo Derek embodies the ultimate male fantasy and Dudley Moore is counting on making a perfect score in this year's most talked about movie. Julie Andrews co-stars in this temptingly tasteful comedy for adults who can count.

'EVERY WHICH WAY BUT LOOSE'

Clint Eastwood stars as an easy-going trucker who's got a special pal, Clyde — a 165 lb. orangutan, and a special talent for barroom brawling. It's light-hearted comedy but Clint Eastwood packs a punch that will turn you "Every Which Way But Loose."

'Animals' Begins A New Year

ABC-TV's "Animals Animals Animals," a unique and exciting concept in children's programming, began another season earlier this month.

Returning to his hosting duties is Hal Linden, who is teaming up once again with 'Animals' regulars, Lynn Kellogg and animal expert/environmentalist Roger Caras.

Each segment of the series focuses on a particular animal as seen through the eyes of man in such subjects as art, history, mythology, literature, humor, music and religion. It is designed to excite, inform, amuse and expand the young viewer's frame of reference. Segments are filmed at various locations across the country, and deal with the animal in its present-day environment.

"I accepted the role of host on 'Animals' because I'm a parent," says Linden.

"I owe it to my children and to youngsters everywhere to make them more familiar with our great natural heritage of wildlife — before it's too late."

Lynn Kellogg's career has been about as diverse as the animals she's sung about on 'Animals' for the last five years. A one-time University of Wisconsin student, Lynn went to New York and initially tried to break in as a model. At the same time she began her studies with acting and voice coaches. "I'm always studying," she says. "I can never learn enough."

It paid off when she was cast as Sheila in the original Broadway company of "Hair," co-starred with Elvis Presley in the film "Charro," then appeared on several television variety and dramatic programs.

Movie Has All-Star Cast

LEE REMICK knows she's come a long way — but still not far enough — as she prepares to teach a class, facing the world as herself — a woman and a teacher not a "girl" and nobody's baby — in "The Women's Room," a special world premiere on the Sunday Night Movie, Sept. 14 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV. (DUE TO MATURE SUBJECT MATTER, PARENTAL DISCRETION IS ADVISED!)

Lee Remick, Colleen Dewhurst and Patty Duke Astin head an all star cast featured in "The Women's Room," airing as a special ABC Theatre presentation Sunday, Sept. 14 (8 to 11 p.m.). The controversial drama about women's life choices is based on Marilyn French's explosive best-seller.

Others in key roles are Kathryn Harrold, Tovah Feldshuh, Tyne Daly, Lisa Pelikan, Heidi Caughn, Mare Winningham, Ted Danson and Gregory Harrison.

The teleplay, written by Carol Sovieski, explores how the wives of the fifties became the women of the seventies. The pivotal character is Mira (Remick), who evolves from girl-wife to an independent woman at age 38.

This powerful story emphasizes the peculiar constrictions society places on women. It also explores the bond they share with other women, their involvement with their children, and the added fulfillment available in their work.

Dewhurst portrays Val, a strong, independent feminist who guides Mira into her newfound adulthood. Astin plays Lily, whose history of emotional instability makes motherhood difficult.

Danson is cast as Norman, the man Mira married while she was still in school. Harrison is seen as Ben, who introduces her to a mature man/woman relationship.

Daly is cast as Adele, Harrold as Bliss and Vaughn as Samantha, all young wives and friends of Mira. Iso and Kyla, women Mira meets when she returns to college, are played by Feldshuh and Pelikan. Winningham is seen as Chris, Val's teenage daughter.

After Mira's marriage, along with the arrival of two sons to raise on Norm's limited income as a young doctor, she is soon mired in a stagnating domesticity.

Shattered when Norm tells her he wants a divorce so he can marry someone else, Mira attempts suicide, thereby losing custody of her children.

After a painful emotional recovery, she decides to return to college for graduate studies.

There she meets Val, Iso and Kyla, all intelligent, free-thinking women who give her a new insight into the options now open to women. There, too, she meets Ben, who arouses her own dormant sexuality.

Now In Planning

Several "Body Human" specials are now in the planning stages and will air on CBS-TV during the 1980-81 season.

One, scheduled for primetime, deals with the subject of test-tube babies. Two others, geared for younger viewers will be telecast during the day. Marlo Thomas will host the first one — "Facts of Life for Girls" — and Ken Howard's been signed to host "Facts of Life for Boys."

Also in production is "The Body Human II," scheduled for a November telecast. This series will focus on therapy sessions.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Is Mason Adams, now a 'regular' on "Lou Grant," the same person who played in one of the radio 'soaps' years ago? I believe it was "Pepper Young." B. FAIRCLOTH, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You're right! Adams was a radio soap-actor from 1946 to 1960, and his longest run was portraying the title character in "Pepper Young's Family." As far as daytime TV is concerned, he's best remembered for his continuing role as Dr. Prescott on "Another World." Adams has also had choice roles in two primetime dramas — "And Baby Makes Six" and "The Deadliest Season."

Q: Who's that handsome guy who played Adam on "Bonanza?" I'd like to know something about him. G. SPENCE, ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C.

A: He's Pernell Roberts, and you can now see him in another show — CBS-TV's "Trapper John, M.D." He became rather disillusioned with TV and dropped out of "Bonanza" in 1965 to concentrate on theater work. Pernell's balder these days, and a bit paunchier, but who cares? It's great to have him back on the small screen!

Q: Who plays Lesley Webber on "General Hospital," and where do I write to her? T. BURRELL, KENLY, N.C.

A: Denise Alexander has been playing Lesley since 1974. Prior to that, she was seen as the brattish Susan Martin on "Days of Our Lives." It's interesting to note that Denise pulled a 'first' in daytime TV when she 'jumped' shows. Up to that time, no one had ever left a series while the character was still 'alive' to join another show. Write to her c/o 'G.H.,' ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

What Super Chemistry!

Their backgrounds are as different as the Smoky Mountain foothills of Tennessee are from San Antonio, Texas, as the stage of the Grand Ole Opry is to the footlights of Broadway. Yet, there is something intangibly complimentary about the show business chemistry of Dolly Parton, the singer and composer, and San Antonio-born and Hollywood-raised Carol Burnett.

The two gifted women become attuned to the same musical wavelength during their one-hour entertainment special, "Dolly and Carol in Nashville," to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Sept. 17 (8 p.m.), on CBS-TV.

Carol describes Dolly as "wow" and Dolly says Carol is filled with "love." While it's obvious the two women are very fond of each other, how would one explain their artistic compatibility?

"Outside of our physical attributes (which are almost exactly the same), I think both of us seem to have a real enthusiasm for working and for making it as much fun as possible — and it certainly was," says Carol.

This rapport was first discovered when the two stars began their rehearsals in Nashville's famed Grand Ole Opry House. But the idea for the match had been in the back of Carol's mind for some time. She had already starred in three previous musical specials — two with Julie Andrews and one with opera star Beverly Sills.

"I always like to work with the best," Carol explains. "I've admired Dolly and her career for some time, and I thought she would be fun to work with — and she was!"

Dolly makes no bones about her admiration for her co-star. "Carol is my idol and has been ever since I first saw her on television," she says. "She's the most professional person I've ever worked with, and I have never seen anyone with so much stamina and energy. She has a wild sense of humor that I just loved. It made our week together seem like a big party."

Pearson Popular

David "Silver Fox" Pearson was named the Most Popular Driver of 1979 by NASCAR competitors and fans. The three-time Winston Cup Champion, who didn't compete for three months after splitting with longtime associates, the Wood Brothers, roared back as a substitute for injured Osterlund driver Dale Earnhardt with a second-place finish in the Talladega "500" and a Cinderella victory in Darlington's Southern "500".

BULOVA OCEANOGRAPHER

Whether you deep sea dive or just forget to take your watch off in the shower, Bulova has an Oceanographer for you.

Besides being pressure tested to 666 feet under water, these are probably the most rugged watches Bulova has ever made. All have ebony dials and magnified calendar windows. A screw-down crown permits no condensation or fogged-up crystals. And what makes them water-resistant makes them dust-resistant, too.

Bulova Watch Time at 666 feet below sea level.

Tested to 666 feet.

TED DANSON (c), Mary Louise Weller (l) and Eleanor Parker star in "Once Upon a Spy," a suspense thriller of dubious heroism airing as the Friday Night Movie, Sept. 19 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Lovable Twosome

One of television's most adorable child stars teams up with a stray mutt who is equally lovable when Adam Rich hosts "Benji At Work," Friday, Sept. 19 (8:30 to 9:00 p.m.), on ABC-TV.

During the telecast, you'll see what really happens behind the scenes when a four-footed critter becomes a star. On hand to join in the frolic are Omar Sharif, Chevy Chase and Jane Seymour.

The cute little canine's fame came in 1975 with the release of a full-length film, appropriately titled "Benji." Since then, the title star has toured the world, starred in another motion picture as well as a TV special and put the 'Wow!' in 'bow-wow.'

The plots of Benji's films are usually a flimsy piece of nonsense, but it doesn't matter. The stray mutt always comes up with a fantastic performance that's guaranteed to tug at your heart strings.

No matter what emotion he's called upon to deliver — love, contentment, rage, confusion, frustration or impishness — he does so in an effective way.

Role Was Challenge

For Yoko Shimada, co-starring in "Shogun," her first non-Japanese film, was the opportunity — and challenge — of her young career.

Named the best actress on Japanese television in 1975, Shimada began her career in show business almost by accident.

Back in high school, while she was preparing for her college entrance exams, Yoko was introduced by a friend to a TV producer looking for a fresh face to star in the sequel to "The Freezing Point," a popular melodrama. Although she had no acting experience, the producer was so impressed with her natural style and sensitivity, he gave her the part.

"I thought it was only a temporary job until I started college," she says. "Then I began to realize how much I enjoyed it, and the other actors in the cast encouraged me to continue. I was offered another part right away and I accepted. That was eight years ago, and I've been working steady in Japanese cinema and TV ever since."

If You're Lucky

When the Fonz arrives at the auto mechanic class he's teaching at Jefferson High this fall on "Happy Days," he may find that the equipment outshines his students.

To create the proper environment., 'Days' set decorator Andy Nealis enlisted the aid of the Department of Automotive Technology at Los Angeles Tech College. He was delighted by their marvelous cooperation.

"The dismantled engines, brakes and explanatory charts on the set are just what a trade or high school student would encounter in a well-equipped class room. But a teacher like the Fonz? Well...only if you're lucky!

Oilers Visit Cleveland

The Houston Oilers will pay a visit on the Cleveland Browns for an AFC Central intra-division contest as ABC's "Monday Night Football" enters its second week, Sept. 15 (9-11:45 p.m.).

Last season, the Oilers (11-5) proved that the 1978 season was no fluke, as they were again one of the few teams in the NFL that came close to keeping the talent-laden Pittsburgh Steelers out of the Super Bowl.

This year, Houston's biggest change is at quarterback, where former cause they are not the same type quarterback Pastorini was. Regardless of who's in there, our offense will come at you thinking 'first down' all the way down the field."

With Stabler, Houston now has the most accurate passer in NFL history (59.9 per-cent — 1,496 of 2,481), as well as a Roger Staubach-like master of the two-minute offense. Last year with the Raiders, Stabler had one of his best campaigns ever, completing 307 of 498 passes (62 percent) for 3,615 yards and 26 touchdowns. It will be very interesting to see how Stabler works with premier running back Earl Campbell in the backfield.

The Oilers were pleasantly surprising on defense last season, as they improved in nearly every department. Vernon Perry and J.C. Wilson came into their own in the secondary, while Jesse Baker came out of college to become Houston's designated pass rusher. The linebacking contingent of Robert Brazile and Ted Washington remains the quiet strength of the defensive corps.

Cleveland has been plagued with the distinct misfortune of residing in the same division with Pittsburgh and Houston, where getting above the .500 mark is usually a formidible task. Sam Rutigliano did an outstanding job in 1979, when the Browns went 9-7, and he was voted AFC Coach of the Year for his efforts.

Brian Sipe did an outstanding job of running the Cleveland attack last year, getting excellent performances out of running back Mike Pruitt, who picked up the slack for Greg Pruitt out of the backfield, as well as his receiving unit. The team has an underrated, but very solid, offensive line, which will help the Browns score a lot of points in 1980.

Sharpe, the No. 2 quarterback for the last two seasons, was listed as the 1980 starter prior to tearing a ligament in his left knee. He has since undergone surgery and will miss the entire season.

Elkins, the 1979 jayvee quarterback, got in just one varsity game last year, when he ran the final three plays of the game in a 41-3 victory at Army. "Rod doesn't have much experience," says Carolina coach Dick Crum, "but we have a lot of confidence in him. He has played very well this fall."

Better performances out of safety Thom Darden and defensive end Lyle Alzado should help matters, also. The linebacking unit is a question mark.

RCA 25" diagonal ColorTrak with ChanneLock Keyboard Control
•RCA's ChanneLock electronic tuning with all-channel Keyboard Control—so accurate, so automatic there's no need to fine tune—ever.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — It's true that many actors are spending a lot of time on the picket lines, but there are several who're staying busy in other areas:

CARROLL O'CONNOR took a break from the picket lines to host, along with wife NANCY, a Celebrity Tennis Tourney in L.A. Participating in the event were ED ASNER, MICHELE LEE and PATRICK DUFFY. Over $10,000 was raised, which is going to the Committee to Cure Cancer Through Immunization.

ARLENE DAHL was signed for a guest stint on "THE LOVE BOAT" just a few days before production was halted. Until the cameras begin to roll, she's spending most of her time designing 'failsafe clothes for the working woman' for a well-known pattern company.

The strike gave "DUKES OF HAZZARD" star TOM WOPAT a chance to fly to New York City where he guested on ABC's Sunday daytime show, "KIDS ARE PEOPLE TOO."

BURT REYNOLDS is another one who refuses to stay idle. He's at his playhouse in Jupiter, Fla., where the superstar is coaching young actors in an apprentice program, established by the state's college drama department.

Meanwhile, many actors are pounding their typewriters and coming up with fantastic scripts. A few months ago, the Writers Guild of America was receiving about 20 a day. Now they're pouring in at a 100-per-day clip!

It looks like trouble comes to JOAN PRATHER in double doses. A few days after she's been told that her on-camera marriage to GRANT GOODEVE in "EIGHT IS ENOUGH" would end, she and her off-camera hubby, THE REV. JAMES FICUCIA, decided to call it quits.

New Team Lumps

Rick Sund, director of player development for the expansion Dallas Mavericks of the National Basketball Association, says the new team might have to take a few lumps in its first year of existence. In the past, first-year expansion teams have averaged only 23 wins in their debut seasons.

OFFICIAL RULES
NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. 16 OR OLDER TO PLAY

1. HOW TO WIN — Your $2,500,000 Prize Celebration Insert contains four Game Tickets each Ticket with a Number concealed under a Silver Bar. Use a coin on a hard surface to gently rub off each Silver Bar to reveal the Number. Then each week for four weeks compare your weekly Number to the Winning Numbers officially posted at a participating McDonald's® Restaurant. If your Number matches exactly, you are a winner of the prize indicated on the official display. Additionally, if the words "Plus Instant Winner One Quick Silver® Flair® Pen" are revealed under the Silver Bar, you win the pen. Be sure to check your Game Ticket carefully for a Winning Number before redeeming your Pen Prize.

IMPORTANT: Each weekly Game Ticket has clearly printed the posting date of that week's Winning Numbers. Each week for four weeks you have a new chance to win.

PRIZES AVAILABLE —

25 — 1980 Volkswagen Rabbit "C" 4-Door Hatchbacks (with standard equipment) (approx. retail value, not including tax and license — $5,890)

25 — Quasar® 45" Projection TVs in fine furniture cabinets (approx. retail value — $3,800)

125 — Marantz Series 80 AM-FM Compact Stereo Systems (Model #CX-580) (approx. retail value — $520)

250 — Sets of His & Hers Ross® 10 Speed Gran Tour II™ Bicycles (approx. retail value — $373 per set)

2,500 — Touch Me™ Electronic Computerized Games by Atari® (approx. retail value — $19.95)

25,000 — MCA® Records (approx. retail value $8.98 and $9.98)

25,000 — $5.00 Books of McDonald's® Gift Certificates

2,500,000 — Quick Silver® Flair® Pens (approx. retail value — 98¢)

Approximately one-fourth of the prizes in each category will be available each week. Odds of winning a prize are based on distribution of approximately 30,000,000 Inserts. Winners will be supplied with further details as to prizes upon request.

HOW TO VERIFY AND REDEEM A WINNING GAME TICKET — If you hold a Winning Game Ticket for any prize (except for a Quick Silver® Flair® Pen or a $5.00 Book of McDonald's® Gift Certificates, discussed separately below), you should tear the Game Ticket out of the Insert and sign your full legal signature across the face of the Game Ticket. Then request from the manager of any participating McDonald's Restaurant a pre-addressed redemption envelope for you to complete and send containing the Winning Game Ticket, VIA REGISTERED MAIL and at your expense, for official verification and redemption. You are not a winner until your Number has been verified at the Redemption Center. You assume all risks for Registered Mail or other delivery, and should obtain insurance or a return receipt if you so desire.

THE $5.00 BOOK OF McDONALD'S® GIFT CERTIFICATES AND QUICK SILVER® FLAIR® PEN PRIZES — Present your Winning Game Ticket for a $5.00 Book of McDonald's® Gift Certificates or a Quick Silver® Flair® Pen to the manager of any participating McDonald's Restaurant for immediate verification and redemption. Winning Game Tickets presented after October 26, 1980 shall be null and void and ineligible for prizes.

2. TERMINATION OF ELIGIBILITY AND TIME FOR AWARD OF PRIZES — Winning Numbers requiring submission to the Redemption Center for verification must be received on or before October 26, 1980. All Game Tickets received after this date shall be null and void and ineligible for prizes. Prizes requiring submission of Numbers to the Redemption Center for verification will be awarded within 30 days from date of official verification with the possible exception of longer delivery schedules for automotive and other merchandise prizes. Persons authorized by court order or statute as legal representatives of winners must accept prizes. All prizes not claimed by January 31, 1981 will never be awarded.

3. SECOND CHANCE DRAWING — A Second Chance Drawing will be held on November 10, 1980, for all prizes in the following categories that have not been won by October 26, 1980:

1980 Volkswagen Rabbit "C" 4-Door Hatchbacks (with standard equipment)
Quasar® 45" Projection TVs in fine furniture cabinets
Sets of His & Hers Ross® 10 Speed Gran Tour II™ Bicycles

To enter, place in an envelope a 3 x 5 inch piece of paper containing your handwritten name, address, zip code, telephone number and signature and mail it to:

McDONALD'S® PRIZE CELEBRATION SECOND CHANCE DRAWING
POST OFFICE BOX 4021 · BEVERLY HILLS, CALIFORNIA 90213

Entries must be mailed separately and received no later than October 26, 1980 to be eligible. Limit one Second Chance Drawing prize per person, household, group or organization.

Winners in the Second Chance Drawing will be selected in a random drawing conducted by Simon Marketing, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. The odds of winning will be determined by the number of entries received and the number of prizes being offered. All prizes not claimed by January 31, 1981 will never be awarded.

4. GEOGRAPHICAL AREA — A total of 2,187 McDonald's Restaurants in specific areas in the states of AL, AZ, AR, CA, CO, GA, GU, HI, IL, IN, IA, KS, KY, LA, MD, MI, MN, MS, MO, MT, NB, NV, NM, NC, OH, OK, OR, SC, TN, TX, UT, VA, WV, WI, & WY will be participating in the Prize Celebration.

5. ELIGIBILITY — Participation open solely to persons 16 years of age or over. Employees and agents of McDonald's, employees and agents of service agencies and/or participating agencies of McDonald's, independent contractors working for McDonald's, and individuals engaged in the development, production or distribution of materials for McDonald's Prize Celebration and the immediate families of each person in these categories are not eligible to participate or win prizes.

6. CONDITIONS OF PARTICIPATING IN THE PRIZE CELEBRATION — Prize Celebration materials (including but not limited to Game Tickets) submitted become the property of McDonald's. Applicable taxes on prizes, including but not limited to sales and/or income tax, are the sole responsibility of prize winners. The submission of Winning Game Tickets is solely your responsibility. Prizes and Winning Game Tickets are non-transferable. No substitution of cash dollars will be made for any prize except at McDonald's discretion.

BY PARTICIPATING, THE WINNER RELEASES McDONALD'S CORPORATION, ITS WHOLLY-OWNED SUBSIDIARIES OR AFFILIATES, ITS AND THEIR OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES, AGENTS AND FRANCHISEES FROM ANY AND ALL LIABILITY WITH RESPECT TO ANY MERCHANDISE OR PRIZE OF ANY KIND AND ACKNOWLEDGES THAT SAID PARTIES HAVE NEITHER MADE NOR ARE IN ANY MANNER RESPONSIBLE OR LIABLE FOR ANY WARRANTY, REPRESENTATION OR GUARANTEE, EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED IN FACT OR IN LAW, RELATIVE TO ANY PRIZE, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO ITS QUALITY, MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR PURPOSE OR MECHANICAL CONDITION. By submitting a Winning Game Ticket, you agree to the use of your name and/or photo in advertising without compensation and grant to McDonald's any and all rights to said use.

7. VERIFICATION — All Prize Celebration materials are subject to verification. Prize Celebration materials are void and will be rejected if not obtained through authorized legitimate channels, or if they are from previous games, and may be rejected if any part is illegible, mutilated, smeared, altered, defaced, reproduced or otherwise duplicated, counterfeited, torn or tampered with in any way or if materials contain printing, typographical or mechanical errors or other errors. Promotion void in whole or in part where prohibited by law or where McDonald's would be liable for any tax.

IMPORTANT: ANY ATTEMPT TO FORGE PRIZE CELEBRATION MATERIALS OR DEFRAUD IN ANY WAY WILL BE PROSECUTED TO THE FULLEST EXTENT OF THE LAW.

You can also obtain a cumulative list of Winning Numbers or a McDonald's 25th Anniversary $2,500,000 Prize Celebration Insert (without coupons), while supplies last, by mailing a self-addressed, stamped envelope accompanied by a single handwritten request for one cumulative list of Winning Numbers and/or Insert to:

McDONALD'S 25th ANNIVERSARY $2,500,000 PRIZE CELEBRATION™

DEFIES ELEMENTS!

Premium Solid Vinyl Siding does not conduct heat or cold. This means it stays cool in summer and warm in winter. Vinyl does not retain moisture like wood. And, it will not "magnify" rain or hail sounds, or pop and crackle with temperature changes.

ADDS SOLID BEAUTY!

Premium Solid Vinyl Siding gives your home that always "freshly painted look" with the deep shadow lines of traditional wood design. Incredibly durable...it won't rust, rot, corrode, flake or scale... and termites won't touch it.

SAVE $$$

TERMS TO FIT YOUR BUDGET

Financing Available

NEVER NEEDS PAINT!

Premium Solid Vinyl Siding is solid all the way through. It is not laminated or painted, and is not a veneer so there's nothing to wear off or come apart. While scratches show on "coated" siding, they are not apparent on Vinyl siding because the color is clear through.

IS REMARKABLY TOUGH!

Premium Solid Vinyl Siding resists denting from the hail, rocks, baseballs, lawn mowers, and other objects that mar your home's appearance. It installs easily over any siding material with concealed nails.

40 Year Warranty

- SOLID COLOR CLEAR THROUGH
- NEVER NEEDS PAINT
- TERMITE PROOF
- HAIL RESISTANCE
- NO PAINT SURFACE TO SCRATCH
- CONCEALED NAILS
- WON'T CONDUCT ELECTRICITY
- SOLID MATERIAL ALL WAY THROUGH
- WILL NOT "POP" OR "CRACKLE"
- WILL NOT DENT

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask Them Yourself," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

No pennies from heaven?

FOR EVELYN T. DAVIDSON,
Superintendent, United States Mint, Denver, Colo.

Why is the nation running out of pennies? —B.R., Asbury Park, N.J.

● The supply is more than adequate for the nation's needs. Since 1959, the Mint has produced over 121 billion cent coins. Current production averages about 55 to 60 million cents daily. This is 40 percent over the average daily production output in 1979. However, studies show that only 30 billion are in use — about 90 billion are not circulating. The public accepts cents in change and then places them in piggy banks. Speculators may also have accounted for increased demand because copper prices peaked at $1.44 per pound in February. When copper prices reach $1.50 per pound, the copper content is equal to the face value of the cent.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is it true that Glenda Jackson turns in a better performance if she is at odds with her leading man? —R.B., Monterey, Calif.

● Glenda recently said, given the choice, she'd just as soon not like, or be pals with, her co-star. She says a little bit of dislike goes a long way toward making her more objective because it's an impersonal set-up and she doesn't have to worry about hurting anyone's feelings if an incident arises. Glenda — whose next two films are Health and Hopscotch — is an actress who says work is more important than romance and work comes before pleasure. "I think if I were put to the test and had to choose between a permanent relationship and a super role, I'd most likely opt for the latter." Glenda, 42, is divorced, and has a 10-year-old son, Daniel.

Romance for her has second billing.

FOR CHRISTOPHER ATKINS, co-star of The Blue Lagoon

Were you teased much about your nude scene in the film? —B.D., Essex Junction, Vt.

● When the film first came out, I was ribbed unmercifully. I put it down to jealousy because those guys would have given anything to have been in my place (with Brooke Shields). Then all the jibes subsided. Swimming in the all-together did not bother me one bit. All the nude scenes were under water, anyway.

FOR NANCY ALLEN, star of Dressed to Kill

If, as you say, you are the timid sort, what makes you take roles in such blood-curdling films? —P.S., Norwich, Ct.

● Timid is a masterpiece of understatement. Everything in this world scares me, from a little kid saying "Boo" in front of my face to seeing what I think is an insect on my shirt (it's actually a piece of lint) and almost swooning from shock as a result. What makes me take such roles? They're jobs — in this business if you're choosy you're out of business.

FOR BEBE WINKLER, interior decorator

What is the easiest and least expensive way to create that "decorator" look? —L.K., Eureka, Calif.

● Proper lighting — above all else. Most people are getting away from the conventional and unflattering ceiling fixtures and are using end table lamps. The alternatives are unlimited — flood-light bulbs directed upward; lights used behind plants for dramatic lighting on walls and ceiling; track lights, which gently wash the walls with light. Do experiment. You'll be delighted.

FOR DAYTON L. KLINGMAN, Weed Science Laboratory, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture

● Yes. Only a few of our crops are native. Some weeds were in the ballast of ships. When unloaded near the ports, some of the weeds germinated and spread throughout the countryside. Others, such as Japanese honeysuckle, had been introduced as conservation plants but in the new environment became weeds.

FOR ALFRED E. KAHN, Chairman, Council on Wage and Price Stability

Is there a chance of the price of anything coming down in the near future? —S.S., Tupelo, Miss.

● When we get inflation under control, we can expect as many prices to go down as go up. Unfortunately, it is going to take us several years to reach that happy state. The only ones likely to go down over the next five years will be the ones that reflect progress in exploiting new technologies — new drugs, micro-electronics, etc.

FOR BERNIE TAUPIN, songwriter

Why did you hate your school years so much? —S.B., Rock Island, Ill.

● Because it was tough. The school I went to in England was basically a holding tank. I majored in switchblade. I left school at 15 after seeing an ad in the paper from a song-publishing company looking for lyricists and composers. I got the job and was teamed with another novice, Elton John. You know the rest. When I was 17, Elton and I were a team.

PRO AND CON

Should All States Have a Death Penalty for Murder?

PRO Dr. Ernest van den Haag, author of Punishing Criminals.

The most important task of any government is to secure the lives of its citizens. This is not done by assuring murderers that what they did to innocent people will never be done to them. As they already do in many states, after a guilty verdict, juries should decide whether the death penalty is deserved in the light of the circumstances. However, age should not be a barrier to capital punishment. We should not promise immunity to young murderers, who are the worst offenders.

CON The Reverend Joseph B. Ingle, Director, Southern Coalition on Jails and Prisons

My opposition to the death penalty is rooted in the Judeo-Christian tradition, which clearly indicates we're not in a position to determine that someone should be executed. Our own imperfection does not allow us the righteousness to sanction the killing of people by the state. As for deterrence, that is a hollow argument. None of the many on death row I visit gave any thought to being executed when committing murder. And recent studies show no deterrent effect from the death penalty.

Children Under Stress: The Causes And Cures

By Jonathan E. Diamond

Each day your child faces stressful situations — that you may not even recognize. It's up to you to spot the signs of stress and help your child resolve it.

A great deal has been written lately about the adverse effects of stress, a word used to describe the way your body copes with difficult situations. When you're in a stress-producing situation — such as being called onto the carpet by your boss — there's a sudden spurt of adrenaline and your heart beats faster, your breathing increases. Prolonged, unrelieved stress can exert harmful wear and tear on the body.

Now, recent research is revealing that children are just as vulnerable to the effects of stress in their own lives. One of the pioneers of stress research, Dr. Hans Selye, says in his book, The Stress of Life (McGraw-Hill Book Co.), that when any human being, adult or child, is faced with a challenge, the autonomic nervous system prepares the body for action.

Like adults, children are not endangered by the initial stress itself. In fact, a certain amount of stress is necessary to keep us meeting the challenges of life. "If a child has the resources of coping with a stressful situation," says

Dr. Lee Salk, professor in pediatrics and psychiatry at Cornell University Medical College, "then there isn't any danger. But if he or she feels that there is no way out, there can be a number of hazardous consequences."

When a child cannot resolve unpleasant or challenging situations, his body remains in a state of stressful readiness. According to Dr. Salk, "The ill effects of that increased heart rate in a child can become manifest in adulthood." There is already some medical evidence, linking stress to high blood pressure — and possibly heart disease in children.

Stress may also make children more susceptible to other kinds of disease, by inhibiting the body's immuno-response, and it has been held responsible for a variety of gastrointestinal ailments. At its most intense level, stress has been known to stop children from growing: Called "deprivation dwarfism syndrome," this condition results when stress suppresses the growth hormones.

Some children are apparently more resistant to the effects of stress than others, but scientists aren't quite sure why. Tests on laboratory rats suggest that the protective influence of the mother may be a factor. At New York's Montefiore Hospital, Dr. Sigurd Ackerman separated newborn rats from their mothers just 10 days earlier than is customary. When subjected to stressful experience, these rats were significantly more prone to a number of disorders, including stomach ulcers.

To some extent, a child's resistance to stress may simply be innate ability. So concludes Dr. Fenton Earl, staff psychiatrist at Children's Medical School in Boston, who has been studying the effects of stress on a group of children. "We have been witnessing the extraordinary capacity of some children to withstand a tremendous amount of stress without any trauma," he says, "including a number of deaths in their families."

Yet more than being able to withstand stress, it is important for children to learn how to resolve the problem creating it. Here, according to psychologist Kaoru Yamamoto of Arizona State University, parents can be especially helpful. Says Yamamoto, who has interviewed more than 350 children about stress, "Typically, we do not teach our children how to prepare for stressful events or, when those events arrive, how to cope with them."

Very young children lack what is medically termed "a tolerance for ambiguity." Explains Yamamoto, "Any uncertainty about what is going on in their lives places children under severe stress. If a family is going to move, or a new baby is on the way, a young child should be told well in advance what to expect."

This is why, according to Yamamoto, routines are so important to children (such as, "first we eat, then we nap..." and so on), and why parents should carefully explain the reasons for any change. "Young children get terribly upset when they see a strange adult in the driver's seat of the family car. A parent may not understand the reasons for anxiety, but that stress is very real to the child."

To further inoculate their children against harmful effects of stress, Dr. Yamamoto suggests that parents put themselves at the child's disposal for a set period every day, even if it's just for 15 minutes. "The critical thing is to let them know that for this period of time, you are available. If a child wants to talk, you are there, and if he or she wants to sit alone and read without you, you are still there." But during this time, it is critical to let children, who are usually so dependent on adults, "call the shots." Giving young children this measure of independence seems to help them cope with stress as they get older. They have strong self-esteem.

Children who have poor self regard may tend to develop coping strategies that "do nothing to resolve the stress," says Dr. Gilbert Botvin, Director for Child Health Behavior Research at the American Health Foundation. He discovered that "these children who are not the 'masters of their own ships' are most easily influenced by the media and by their peers to begin drinking."

To help young people come to terms with stress in their lives, Dr. Botvin helped structure a "Life Skills Training Course," which thousands of high school students have taken in numerous cities. "At first," he says,

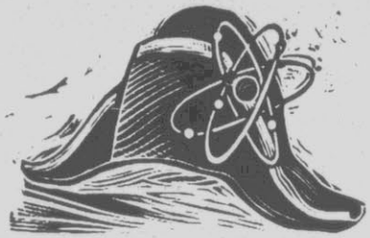
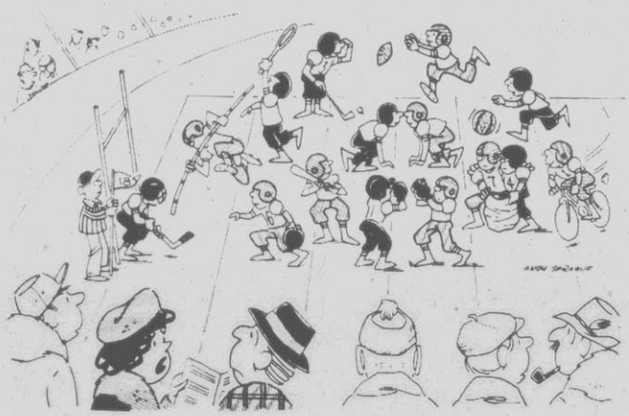
Observations



The French connection. In 1776, a dashing French nobleman named the Marquis de Lafayette offered his services to George Washington's Continental Army. "America's marquis" helped forge the shopkeepers, frontiersmen, and farmers into a force that won national independence. The French are again showing leadership that can help America, this time in the battle for more energy independence. Facing the realities better than America has so far, the French plan to generate up to 55 percent of their electricity through nuclear power by 1985. The French are also planning to increase five-fold the use of non-steelmaking industrial coal over the next decade.

Oui, we've got problems. In the U.S., by contrast, a maze of government red tape has inhibited the operation of new nuclear power plants. American coal supplies are the largest in the Western world...proven coal reserves are the equivalent of over one trillion barrels of oil. But excessive environmental, licensing, and permit regulations mean that far less than one percent of this huge resource is being used each year.



"It's football. Federal rules. Nobody wins."

Vive les nukes! The French government expects nuclear power to save the equivalent of around 300 million barrels of imported oil, or $9.6 billion, every year. Without cutting corners on safety. The French are using the latest technology to ensure that their nuclear plants are clean, reliable sources of energy. And they aren't panicked by protesters who don't know the facts. Even in the Three Mile Island accident, scientists say, neighbors of the plant were exposed to no more radiation than residents of Denver get annually from nature because of their city's mile-high altitude. Similarly, the President's Commission on Coal says that new coal-fired plants actually produce less pollution than most oil-fired plants.

Old king coal. Once upon a time, American coal was king. It made the Twenties roar. During those years, coal ran trains and factories... heated millions of homes...warmed the nightclubs that launched the "Jazz Age." In 1923, close to a million American workers were employed by the coal industry. America was one of the world's largest exporters of coal.

Bonbons for tomorrow. Coal can again be king in America if government gets off the industry's back and realistically encourages coal's development. The same goes for nuclear power. Breaking out of the regulatory maze the French way would really be something to cheer about. Because it could lead to more energy, homegrown in the U.S. And to that we can only say, magnifique!

Children Under Stress

"some of these kids cannot even identify when they are under stress, so teachers are instructed to announce a 'surprise quiz' at the start of class. Immediately, the students are thrown into a state of anxiety and we ask them to talk about those feelings." Adds Dr. Botvin, "Kids feel isolated when they are under stress, and they tend to suffer in silence. Our first goal is to help them conclude, 'Hey, it's really normal to feel this way.'"

The program suggests a number of ways for students to deal with stress. One involves mentally rehearsing a task that they are anxious about and imagining that they have done it successfully. Students also learn a technique called "systematic desensitization" which involves breaking down an activity into its stressful components and then overcoming the smaller amount of stress associated with each part. You can show your child how to do this.

In addition to helping your child learn coping strategies for stress, it also may be necessary for you to come to his rescue in some stressful situations that he can't handle all by himself. While one can easily spot the most dramatic symptoms of stress in small children — depression, crying spells, inability to concentrate or destructive behavior, sometimes the telltale signs are more subtle. According to Dr. Yamamoto, "Any changes in the regular pattern of behavior may be a signal. A child that won't stop hanging around, doesn't want to go to school or seems to have a few more nightmares than usual may be responding to stress in the unconscious."

Try to get your child to open up to you and articulate what's troubling him. It may be something he's afraid or embarrassed to tell you about, so be gentle and patient. Once you know what's at the heart of the matter, talk to your child about how to handle the problem, giving him a chance to respond to suggestions on your part and letting him offer suggestions, too. This shows him how to resolve stressful situations for himself in the future. FW

Child Stress Scale

How your child reacts to certain events depends on his coping abilities, but there are a number of circumstances that are universally stressful for children. Your child will need your support during them.

Dr. Kaoru Yamamato asked 367 children in the fourth through sixth grades to rate — from one to seven — the stressfulness of a number of events. From their collective reactions, he constructed this table. Dr. Yamamoto advises parents that a child's stresses frequently have their own logic. For example, a child may interpret needing eyeglasses as evidence that he or she is going blind (highly stressful); or a child may conclude that his or her mother is "lost" (highest stress rating), after being separated from her for five minutes in a supermarket.

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You can tell how happy a couple's marriage is a few minutes after they come into a room.

2. Even with relatively young married couples, the physical love relationship is frequently an on-off thing that may cease completely for weeks — or even months — at a time.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a University of Utah study, 51 newlywed couples, whose names had been obtained from a marriage-license bureau, and who had agreed to be interviewed, were videotaped for approximately 20 minutes in a studio setting provided by the university. The interview was based on topics that have been identified as major sources of marital disagreement. All videotaped interviews were rated for how far apart or how close together the couple sat from each other, how often they looked at each other during the joint interview (each was questioned alternately). They were also rated for self-touching, other-touching and amount of talking. Results: "Couples who reported the least disagreement, the least discord in their marriage sat closer together, looked at each other more frequently and for a longer period of time, touched each other more often and touched themselves less often. On the other hand, couples who reported the most discord tended to sit farther apart from each other, had least eye contact, talked a lot and indulged in more self-touching."

2. True. In a special study, directed by sociologists from the University of Nebraska and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, confidential in-depth interviews (of two-hour duration) were conducted on a stratified probability sample of 144 men and 221 women. The subjects were relatively young — 74 percent were 20 to 39 years old, and the length of time married ranged from one year to more than 20 years. Physicians who participated in the study and who had received extensive training in interview techniques asked subjects whether intercourse between the respondent and his/her spouse had ever stopped for any reason other than pregnancy — and if so, why this had happened. Report of the findings: One-third of the respondents (32 percent of the men and 36 percent of the women) reported that they had ceased having intercourse with their spouse for some definable period. The median length of cessation was eight weeks. The reason given most often for cessation was marital discord (e.g. angry at mate, spouse suspected of "playing around," spouse less loving and less responsive than he/she used to be). Other reasons given included depression and decreased sexual interest. ("I simply wasn't in the mood.") FW

Our Dancing Goodwill Troupe

Denny's Photorama

By Dorothy W. Martiny

Though international diplomacy must generally be handled delicately, there's nothing delicate about the approach of the Maycroft Square Tappers. But they're spreading good will around the globe.

The Square Tappers are a lively group of dancers — ages 3 to 17 — from Muskegon, Mich., whose steps are a combination of typical American square dance patterns and tap dancing. They've performed in Romania, U.S.S.R., Poland and France, and they've now been invited to tap some good will in China.

The troupe's first trip abroad, to Romania in 1977, was part of a special Bicentennial program. "We were there to know people," says Alice Maycroft, who with her husband, Gene, originated the idea of square tapping and started the group in 1959. "The American dancers were not there to get into government things."

Romanian peasants walked miles to see the dancers perform in town squares, small halls and parks. The Square Tappers and their parents — who always travel with their youngsters — were guests in native homes.

About 200 youngsters are active Square Tappers. They are members of the group for an average of 10 years. In the Maycrofts' unique method of teaching, the older dancers teach the younger. Four classes are run each Saturday, and kids progress at their own speed.

One tiny dancer is blind, one deaf, several are in special education programs. Most are average kids who just love to dance. Parents design and make all the costumes, and they're responsible for getting their own children to practice and appearances.

The glue that holds Square Tappers together is the love and concern that Alice and Gene Maycroft have for every single child. They started in their basement with eight children when their daughter, Debbie, was 5 years old. Now their 5-year-old granddaughter is a skilled dancer. When one of the original Square Tappers returned to Muskegon and put his tiny baby in Alice's arms, he said, "Grandma, here's your newest Square Tapper."

Though the Maycroft Square Tappers have loved the international traveling, there's plenty of dancing for them to do right in Muskegon. On a typical Sunday, some children might be entertaining folks in a nursing home with Alice Maycroft calling out the steps. Another group, with Gene at the microphone, might be performing some miles away at a company picnic.

The good fellowship experienced by these families as they travel from veterans hospitals to dance festivals is every bit as rewarding as the dancing itself. FW

The New Season

BEVERLY SILLS

Beverly Sills, since July 1979, the General Director of the New York City Opera, came to that post after one of the most dazzling singing careers in operatic history. A leading soprano of both the New York City Opera, and the Metropolitan Opera she appeared with such other prestigious companies as The San Francisco Opera; London's Covent Garden; the Vienna Staatsoper; La Scala in Milan; the Teatro San Carlo of Naples; La Fenice in Venice, the Deutsche Oper in West Berlin; and the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires, among many other companies.

Among her many recordings, for which she won Europe's Edison Award and America's Grammy Award, are 18 full-length operas.

On television, she has starred in eight full-length operas on PBS. Sills has starred in two CBS Specials — "Look-in At the Met" with Danny Kaye and "Sills and [Carol] Burnett at the Met." Again for CBS, she has been the hostess/commentator of the New York Philharmonic's televised "Young People's Concerts" since 1977.

One of the most beloved personalities in the history of opera, the approach of her 1975 Metropolitan Opera debut occasioned such a nationwide uproar that Martin Bernheimer, the music critic of the Los Angeles Times commented after it had taken place: "It was impossible, last week, to pick up any publication other than the telephone book and not read about Beverly Sills." A breezy autobiograpical memoir, Bubbles — A Self-Portrait, published in 1976 by Bobbs Merrill, immediately found itself on best-seller lists all over the country.

Crème Chocolat

Beverly Sills

1 cup (½ pt.) heavy cream
1 tablespoon sugar
2 eggs, separated
½ teaspoon sugar
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup (½ pt.) heavy cream, whipped

1. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler over very low heat.

2. When chocolate is thoroughly melted and smooth, remove from heat and slowly stir in 1 cup heavy cream and 1 tablespoon sugar smoothly.

3. With electric mixer or wire whisk, beat egg yolks with ½ teaspoon sugar in large bowl.

5. With clean beaters, beat egg whites until soft peaks form when beater is slowly raised. Fold beaten whites into chocolate mixture. Pour mixture into serving bowl. Chill. Serve with additional whipped cream.

Makes 8 servings

Note: Serve in modest quantities

PLACIDO DOMINGO

Placido Domingo, tenor, was born in Madrid but moved to Mexico when he was 7. Following study at the Mexico City Conservatory, he made his operatic debut in Monterrey as Alfredo in La Traviata and then spent two and a half years in Israel, where he sang 280 performances. Upon his return to America, he was engaged by the New York City Opera and created the title role in Ginastera's Don Rodrigo. He has sung at most of the world's major opera houses. Since his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1968 as Maurizid in Adriana Lecouvreur, he has sung more than 20 roles there.

Mr. Domingo's "Live from the Met" appearances include the Duke in Rigoletto, Turiddu in Cavalleria Rusticana, Canio in Pagliacci, Rodolfo in Luisa Miller and the title role of the Metropolitan's 1979-80 opening-night performance of Otello, as well as Des Grieux in last spring's live overseas telecast of Manon Lescaut.

Zarzuela de Mariscos

Placido Domingo

- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup finely chopped red or green peppers
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- ½ bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon ground saffron, optional
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup dry white wine
- 1 lb. tomatoes, peeled and chopped
- 2 cups water
- 1 lb. (3 or 4) rock lobster tails in shell, cut in thirds
- 1 lb. halibut filet, cut in large chunks
- ½ lb. mussels in shells, scrubbed
- 1 lb. clams, littlenecks in shell, scrubbed
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- ¼ cup brandy, warmed
- Croutons

1. In 4- to 6-quart Dutch oven or kettle, heat oil and butter until hot but not smoking. Add onion, red pepper, garlic and bay leaf. Sauté, stirring over medium heat for 5 to 7 minutes.

2. Stir in saffron, lemon juice, white wine, tomatoes and water.

3. Heat mixture to boiling; add lobster, halibut, mussels and clams. Cover, reduce heat and boil slowly about 5 to 7 minutes until lobster and fish are cooked through and clams and mussels open.

4. Add salt, pepper and parsley. Ignite warm brandy and pour flaming over mixture.

5. Serve with fried croutons made from slices of Italian or French bread cut in ½-inch slices and browned in mixture of olive oil and butter. Sprinkle with parsley.

6. Ladle Zarzuela into broad soup bowls and serve with soup spoon, knife and fork. Makes 6 servings

—RENATA SCOTTO—

Soprano Renata Scotto was born in Savova, Italy, and studied in Milan, where she made her operatic debut at the Teatro Nuovo as Violetta in La Traviata. Since her La Scala debut the same year in Catalini's La Wally, she has appeared in most of the world's major opera houses, including Covent Garden, the Vienna State Opera, the Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires, the Paris Opera, the Bolshoi Opera in Moscow, the Chicago Lyric Opera and the San Francisco Opera.

Miss Scotto made her Metropolitan Opera debut in 1965 as Cio-Cio-San in Madama Butterfly and has since been heard there as Lucia di Lammermoor, Adriana Lecouvreur, all three heroines in Puccini's Il Trittico.

Chicken With Zucchini

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

1 bay leaf
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 lb. small zucchini
½ cup finely chopped onion
1½ lbs. tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 eggs
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley

1. Trim chicken breasts of any fat. Place in shallow glass or porcelain dish with olive oil, lemon juice, pepper and bay leaf. Marinate 1 hour.

2. After marinating, sauté breasts in butter in skillet until golden. Do not overcook. Remove to 2-qt. shallow baking dish.

3. Wash zucchini, dry and slice into rounds about ¼-inch thick.

4. Add onion to skillet in which chicken was sautéed. Cook, stirring, until pale yellow; 5 minutes.

5. Add cut zucchini; save about 12 slices for garnish. Sauté zucchini with onion until they are al dente. Do not allow zucchini to become too soft; about 3 minutes.

6. In blender or food processor, puree chopped tomatoes.

7. Add puree to onion and zucchini mixture, along with salt and few twists freshly ground black pepper. Cook, uncovered, over low heat 10 minutes. Stir occasionally.

8. Pour zucchini-tomato sauce over chicken in baking dish. Sprinkle with half of grated Parmesan.

9. Beat eggs with remaining Parmesan cheese and pour the mixture over all in baking dish, covering completely.

10. Bake in preheated 375°F. oven for 15 to 20 minutes until cheese crust is golden brown, sauce is bubbly and chicken is cooked throughout.

11. Serve with a garnish of reserved zucchini slices and parsley.

ZUBIN MEHTA

Zubin Mehta's first season (1978-79) as music director of the New York Philharmonic was quickly judged a success by critics and audiences alike. The collaboration between him and the orchestra generated such a wave of excitement and enthusiasm that his original three-year contract was extended an additional five years, through the 1985-86 season.

Born in Bombay in 1936, the son of the Bombay Symphony founder, Mehta began studying violin and piano at age 7. At age 16, he went to Vienna to study.

He made his conducting debut there in 1958; he was just 22. Other conducting assignments followed, and while substituting for Fritz Reiner with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in 1961, he was named that orchestra's associate conductor. This proved to be merely a steppingstone, for during the 1961-62 season, the orchestra was left without a music director and Mehta was chosen to fill the vacancy. He stayed on for 16 years — until he joined the New York Philharmonic in 1978.

Tandoori-Style Kebabs

Zubin Mehta

1 leg lamb, 5 or 6 lbs.
1½ cups plain yogurt
½ cup pineapple juice
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
1 small eggplant, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 zucchini, sliced ½-inch thick
1 green pepper, seeded, cut in 1-inch cubes
1 cup cherry tomatoes
8 small onions

1. Trim "fell," the parchmentlike skin covering leg. Remove excess fat from lamb.

2. With thin sharp knife or boning knife, remove bone from lamb. Cut meat into 1½-inch pieces.

3. In large bowl, combine yogurt, pineapple juice, curry, salt, ginger and pepper sauce. Add meat cubes, tossing well in marinade to coat well.

4. Cover meat and refrigerate overnight, turning meat occasionally.

5. Arrange meat and vegetables on skewers. Cook over hot coals about 20 minutes. Turn skewers to cook evenly on all sides. Brush often with marinade during cooking. Serve with rice pilaf.

Are you an 8-hour-a-day working person? Do you have little or no savings in the bank? Are you in debt with mortgage, car payments and charge accounts? Do you have little experience at anything except the small specialty of your job?

If you've answered "yes"to all these questions, you are a prime candidate for a foolproof get rich system developed by a working man from Canton, Ohio. His name is Benjamin Swarez and he was in your exact same position not long ago. But, he changed all that by inventing a get rich quick system designed especially for the working man.

How did this system come about? You probably already know about Mr. Swarez and his system. Ads on his system and stories about Mr. Swarez have appeared in nearly every major newspaper and magazine in the country. Thousands of people across the nation have purchased the system and the stacks of letters from satisfied customers received by Mr. Swarez are overwhelming.

Mr. Swarez's first successful system netted him $80,000 clear. What's it like to get $80,000 almost overnight in one lump sum?

"It's almost impossible to verbalize. My wife and I just stared at the check for a long time. We had a two day celebration with a dinner and party. Then I went into work and told my smug boss, who thought he had me under his thumb, what he could do with his low paying, lousy job. Next we paid off all our bills including our house mortgage and had a burn-the-mortgage party.

The following day we went to an auto dealer's showroom and laid down cash for a new luxury car. I never had the experience of a new car even as a child.

Then my wife and I went on a shopping spree for clothes. We had been making do with old clothes for so long they had become worn out. She always had to shop for clothes with very little money. I always joked with her that 'If I gave you $5,000 to spend on clothes could you do it in one day?' She used to say, 'I could do it in a couple hours.' So that's what I did. I gave her $5,000 to go out and buy clothes. It ended up taking all day and she said she relished every minute.

Finally, we took a long trip. In New York I bought her a large diamond at Tiffany's—another thing we always dreamed about.

But I can tell you that the money was not the most important benefit in this. What money really does is give you precious time. Time to be with your wife and children before they grow up before you know it—and time to do things you really want to do. Another priceless thing you gain is your self respect. No more crawling and kneeling because you're dependent. The words of Frank Sinatra's song 'My Way' says it all."

How much money can you make and how fast can you make it? Mr. Swarez averages around $200,000 for each system he produces. He says doing a system to make $10,000 or $20,000 is literally duck soup. "I have these available to me all the time and don't even use them," he says.

Benjamin Swarez

How fast can you make money? Mr. Swarez stated. "You can actually make money within hours in some cases. You can compile a system in one afternoon one day and start having spendable money in your hands produced by the system the very next morning."

Who all can do it and how sure fire is it? Mr. Swarez says. "I've done it 14 times in a row now. I taught my younger brother and brother-in-law the system and they've already made over $500,000 each. All you need is the ability to follow simple directions, common sense, and the ability to see a job through to completion."

This system is also perfect for people who are confined to homes, such as housewives. Mr. Swarez named his system "7 Steps to Freedom". He has been selling his system to others for a year now. The reason? "Why not?" he says. "First I thought I'd have to keep it secret. But then I found out the system can't be saturated, so why not sell it and make money by selling the system on top of the other money I am making using it."

People from every state in the union have purchased Mr. Swarez's system. What do these people have to say? Here are just a few comments:

"...It it such an excellent product that anyone who can read and follow instructions can be a millionaire...."—William J. Bontrager, Peoria, IL

"...This is the first time I have purchased a 'get rich' product that I sincerely feel will work."—Earl J. Davis, Chicago, IL

"...Adjectives alone cannot describe its hidden wealth. After many years, much money and a bellyfull of frustration, I believe I have found an honest man, and yes I truly mean it."—John T. Vaughn, Norridgewock, ME

"I have just received your system and have taken it to college. It has really lifted some eyebrows especially the first and last parts..."
Mark Kimble, Rockhill, SC

A word to the doubting Thomases. Of course there will be those who will doubt that the system is for real. Mr. Swarez has featured this system in nearly every newspaper in the country and he has sold his system to thousands of people across the nation and in every state of the union. The story has been checked repeatedly by newspaper reporters and government authorities at literally every level. The story checks out. Every word he has stated about his system is true or he would've been out of business long ago.

For those who wish to purchase the N.P.G.S. System called "7 STEPS TO FREEDOM", it is being distributed by mail only for the present. Mr. Swarez has kept the price of the system low so those who most need it can afford it.

You can make $100,000 in a matter of weeks or days. In some cases money starts in hours. Here's how it works... .

1 You will receive Mr. Swarez's system in the mail which contains everything you need to complete one of your own systems. From anywhere, such as your kitchen table, you complete the preliminary steps. This involves filling out provided forms and following provided outlines.

2 The preliminary steps of the system are done only one time. After these preliminary steps, you can do the steps for each individual system anywhere, from your home, while you are traveling, (Mr. Swarez does his individual systems in his motorhome) or from a favorite vacation spot. Again, by following outlines and filling out forms, you complete your individual system (each of which is in two parts, Part A and Part B).

3 After completing Part A and Part B of the System, depending on the type of system you do, you may either phone in Parts A and B of your individual system, or you drop it in the mail. In the type of systems where you phone in Parts A and B, you can virtually complete a system one afternoon and have spendable money in your hands the very next morning.

4 In a matter of days or weeks, depending upon which system you do, you can receive $100,000 for each system you do. In some cases, over 80% of the money will be in your possession in less than a week. Your money will either be deposited in your bank account or brought to you by mail to your home or your vacation spot.

To order: (1) Get a blank piece of paper (2) At the top of the paper, print the words "7 Steps to Freedom" (3) Print your name and address (4) Mail this along with $20.00 in check or money order to Quality Consumer; Dept. G-192 ; 706 Twelfth St. N.W.; Canton, Ohio 44703.

Or, if you want us to start processing your order immediately, phone in your order as follows: (1) Dial this TOLL FREE number, 1-800-321-0888 (Ohio residents dial 1-800-362-0636) and ask for operator G-192 ; (2) Say the words "7 Steps to Freedom, N.P.G.S. System" (3) Give your name and address (4) Give the operator one of your following credit card numbers: Master Charge or Visa (also include your Interbank number). Or, if you don't want to use a credit card, tell the operator you want it mailed C.O.D. Operators are on duty right now and around the clock.

Direct any inquiries to (216) 452-0868. Please do not dial the toll free number for information. The operators are not permitted or qualified to answer questions.

Mr. Swarez's system carries a conditional guarantee. If it can be shown that his system does not meet each and every claim represented here, the customer will receive every penny of his money back.

MERRILL ASHLEY

Merrill Ashley joined the New York Ballet in 1967, and in the ensuing years she has appeared in corps and principal roles in almost all of the ballets in its vast repertory. In 1974 she was made soloist and began to dance principal roles, among them some of the most technically demanding.

Fresh Vegetable — Tuna Platter

Merrill Ashley

2 small artichokes, trimmed
1 lb. small, red potatoes
2 cups fresh broccoli flowerets
2 cups fresh cauliflowerets
1 bunch fresh asparagus spears
2 cups cut, fresh green beans
2 cups sliced, fresh carrots
1 large tomato, cut in wedges
2 cans (6½- or 7-oz size) tuna in oil, drained
Fresh Lemon Marinade

Vegetable	Steaming Time in Minutes
Artichokes	20 to 40
Potatoes	20 to 25
Broccoli Flowerets	8 to 10
Cauliflowerets	5 to 10
Asparagus Spears	8 to 10
Green Beans, cut	5
Carrots, sliced	3 to 5

Place steamer basket in a large sauce pot. Pour in 1 or 2 inches of water (water must not touch basket bottom).

Cover the sauce pot; bring water to a boil; reduce heat. Steam all vegetables except tomatoes, in basket, over simmering water, following cooking times specified.

*Fresh Lemon Marinade

¼ cup fresh lemon juice
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped chives
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon crushed cumin seed
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard

1. Place all ingredients in small bowl or jar and stir or shake to mix well.

Makes about 1⅓ cups

JAMES LEVINE

James Levine, now in his fifth year at the Metropolitan Opera's music director and the first American to hold that position, is conducting the new productions of Verdi's La Traviata and Mozart's Cosi fan tutte, as well as the revivals of Lulu, Manon Lescaut, Parcifal, Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny, Tosca and Tristan und Isolde during the 1980-81 season.

Mr. Levine made his Metropolitan Opera debut in 1971 conducting Puccini's Tosca and, in 1972, was named the Metropolitan's principal conductor. He has since conducted more than 30 works there.

Layered Fresh Fruit Salad

James Levine

2 cups diced fresh pineapple
1 pt. fresh strawberries, hulled, sliced
2 kiwi fruits, peeled and sliced
2 medium bananas, sliced
2 oranges, peeled and sectioned
1 cup red grapes
Citrus Sauce*

In serving bowl, preferably clear glass, arrange layers of pineapple, strawberries, kiwi, bananas, oranges and grapes.

Pour Citrus Sauce over all. Cover serving bowl. Chill.

3. Serve with a selection of cheeses and crackers and a favorite wine. Fruits are also attractive spooned over small, crisp lettuce leaves such as bibb or Boston on individual plates. Makes 10 to 12 servings

*Citrus Sauce

1 cup fresh orange juice (2 oranges)
1 cup fresh lemon juice (2 lemons)
1 cup packed brown sugar
1 cinnamon stick
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

1. In medium saucepan, combine orange juice, lemon juice, brown sugar, cinnamon stick, orange rind and lemon rind.

2. Heat mixture to boiling; reduce heat; simmer 5 minutes. Cool, then chill.

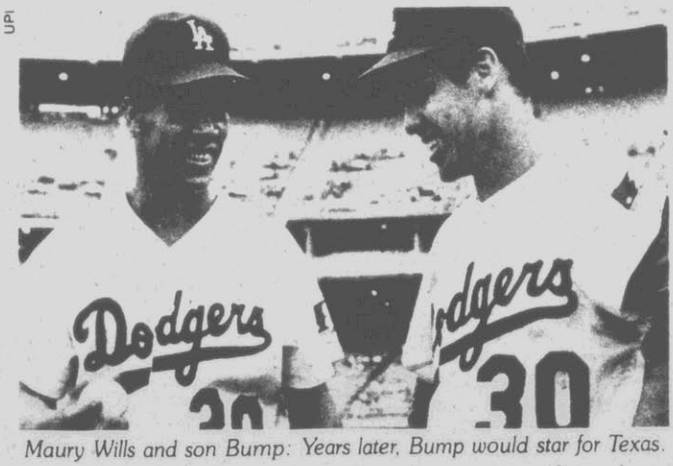
Big-League Sons Come of Age



UPI

Maury Wills and son Bump: Years later, Bump would star for Texas.

By Norm Miller

Several Yankees lolling around their locker stalls after a routine victory one Monday night looked up rather quizzically as coach Yogi Berra hustled out of the clubhouse like a man on a mission. For 34 years of his life, the clubhouse has been Yogi's beloved sanctuary. This night, though, it was obvious he had a compelling errand.

Yogi walked briskly down a subterranean corridor of Yankee Stadium for about 100 feet before turning into the "hospitality room." There he walked up to the bar, and waving off an offer of a drink, riveted his attention on the TV showing the late innings of ABC's Game of the Week.

The opponents that night were the Pirates and the Reds, and if any of the bar stragglers were mystified about Yogi's fascination with a National League game, the focus of his interest became immediately apparent. This was a rare opportunity for Berra to watch his youngest son — Dale, 23, the Pirates' third baseman — in action.

Dale Berra is not the only apple of a major-league father's eye these days. As a matter of fact, never in baseball history have so many successful offspring pleased so many major-league alumni. Dale Berra is just one of a dozen sons of major-league players currently in the big leagues.

Two of them play side by side in the infield of the Texas Rangers: second baseman Bump Wills, a swift base stealer like his father, Maury, currently the manager of the Seattle Mariners; and third baseman Buddy Bell, son of outfielder Gus Bell, who drove in 942 runs, mostly for the Reds and Pirates.

Roy Smalley 3rd of the Twins is a shortstop, like his father, who played for the Cubs. Steve Trout of the White Sox and Ross Grimsley Jr. of the Indians are pitchers, like their fathers, Dizzy of the Tigers, and Ross of the White Sox, respectively.

Others have made it at positions different from their fathers'. Bob Boone, the Phils' catcher, is the son of Ray Boone, an infielder for the Indians and Tigers, while Matt Keough, A's pitcher, was sired by Marty, the former Red Sox outfielder. Cardinals catcher Terry Kennedy plays the outfield occasionally, but his dad, Bob, now general manager of the Cubs, rotated between the infield and outfield.

Big-League Fathers and Sons

Milt May, Giants catcher, is the son of Pinky May, the former Phils third baseman. Del Unser, Phillie outfielder, is the offspring of catcher Al, while Vance Law, Pirates back-up shortstop, is the son of Vernon, formerly a star pitcher for that club.

Father-and-son lineages in baseball are nothing new, of course. The most famous perhaps were the Sislers. George Sisler, the Hall of Fame first baseman, had two major-league sons, Dick, an outfielder-first baseman, and Dave, a pitcher. The original Dixie Walker, who played in the early 1900's, also had two big-league sons, Dixie Jr. and Harry (The Hat).

It is only natural that sons try to emulate their famous fathers, but there are a few reasons to explain why there are suddenly so many second-generation players around now. The increase in the majors to 26 teams has certainly opened jobs. Also, to a great extent, colleges have replaced the minor leagues as the training ground for the majors. In college, a young man can develop his skills and test his major-league potential while still getting the education a father wants for his son.

When it comes to athletic prowess, "like father, like son" isn't necessarily the case. Joe DiMaggio's son never played organized baseball and Mickey Mantle's son had only a brief fling in an instructional league. Stan Musial's son was athletically inclined but went in for track at Notre Dame.

Yogi Berra, Gus Bell and Maury Wills insist they never behaved like stage fathers." For the most part, they insist, they were away from home so much as major leaguers that they rarely had time for the athletic development of their children during their formative years.

"My father helped me very little when I was young," Bump Wills said recently. "He was very aware of the perils of a son trying to follow the career of a famous father. Not until I was a sophomore at Arizona State and showed some potential to become a professional did he help me. I was 19 at the time. I came to him and said, 'Show me.' It was that simple."

It came in 1974 when Bump played in the Mexican Winter League for a team his father managed. At that time, Bump had the habit of throwing sidearm or even underhand. Maury warned him repeatedly to throw overhand to get more power behind his tosses. One day, while pivoting on a double play, Bump started to throw underhand, suddenly changed his mind and threw the ball into the stands.

"When I came back to the dugout, Dad called me down to his end," Bump remembers. "He grabbed me fiercely by the shirt and said to me angrily, 'I'm going to tell you this just one more time! Throw the ball overhand!' I don't think he'd have done it that way with any other player."

Buddy Bell said that most of the help his father, Gus, gave him was with the mental aspect of baseball. "After my junior year in high school [in Cincinnati], I went to a Reds tryout camp," Buddy, now a solid .300 hitter, relates. "They told me I'd never play in the majors, that I was too slow, that I couldn't throw, that I couldn't drive the ball hard enough. It was a crushing experience. That's when Dad helped me most."

Ray Boone and Bob: The father's lifetime batting average was .275; the son's is .269

Though the sons get advice and encouragement from their major-league dads, the experience may actually be more rewarding for the fathers themselves. As Yogi watched the Game of the Week that Monday night, son Dale promptly lined a single to left field — his third hit of the game. Yogi could not hide his exuberance. "That's three for four," he noted to the man at his elbow, holding up three stubby fingers for substantiation. "That's a pretty good night."

It was now approaching midnight with the Pirates leading 5-3 in the eighth and little chance that Dale might come up again. With a smile and a wave to the hangers-on, Yogi turned and headed for home. The 45-minute ride would be a lot more pleasant than usual. FW

Gus Bell and Buddy: Says the son, "When I came to a game, I sat in the stands with the other kids."

ROACH PRUFE NO.1 IN UNIVERSITY TESTS

In a report just released by the UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, eight commercial and test products that included a broad spectrum of insecticides were tested against a product called "ROACH PRUFE." The report concluded "Our experience under field conditions has shown that when properly applied, the ROACH PRUFE formula provides a degree of cockroach control that is usually superior to all other registered commercial or consumer products."

Alan Brite, who 30 years ago developed and lent his name to what is now a standard household cleaner, Copper Brite, stated: "Because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUFE as an insecticide, they do not try to avoid it by scattering to other parts of your residence as they do with the other insecticides. Plus the electrostatically charged powder sticks to their bodies, which they then carry back into the walls spreading among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in your walls."

Odorless, Easy To Apply

ROACH PRUFE is odorless, non-evaporating, non-staining and non-flammable. It is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and other hidden areas. It can be used in homes, schools, hospitals, restaurants, plus new construction.

Brite has a problem, however. He says most retailers apparently think it's unprofitable to stock ROACH PRUFE on their shelves when the same customers will come in again and again to buy the other insecticides. So until they do, he's decided to sell his product direct to consumers.

ROACH PRUFE costs $7.95 plus 95¢ for postage for a one-pound can, add 6% tax in California. One can covers up to a 9-room residence, plus one can for basement and garage. To obtain the product, send a check or money order to Copper Brite Inc., Dept. 93 at 5147 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90016. Copies of the University tests are available by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Copper Brite, Inc., Dept. A.

QUIPS & QUOTES

CONSUMED WITHOUT CURIOSITY

In TV commercials for dog foods,
The dog never sniffs, turns away,
But always starts chewing with gusto

Its tail it may wag to show pleasure
While crunching the dish full of food.
"What flavor!" it seems to be thinking
As it licks up some morsels bestrewed.

No doubt the dog's happy and grateful
To have such a bountiful spread.
There's only one thing that one wonders:
How long since the dog was last fed?

—Richard Armour

CAMPAIGN '80

President Truman said that all through his White House years he sought a one-armed economist, a guy who would never say, "On the other hand."

And about that sort of thing, I wish Government economists wouldn't keep saying they see the light at the end of the tunnel. It might just be a search party looking for survivors. —Robert Orben

FOLLOWING THE CROWD

Aging must be fashionable
(Though I'm not pursuing it),
For here's the clear-cut evidence:
Everybody's doing it. —Patricia Rutter

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Recently, my 3-year-old daughter had an X-ray taken. Wide-eyed, she peered at the technician who was examining the finished picture. She knows what pictures are, and she wanted to see it. "Amy," I said, "this is a picture of the inside of you." She stared at the X-ray for a few moments, and puzzlement consumed her. "But, Mommy," she protested, "what happened to the outside of me?" —Diane Spinks

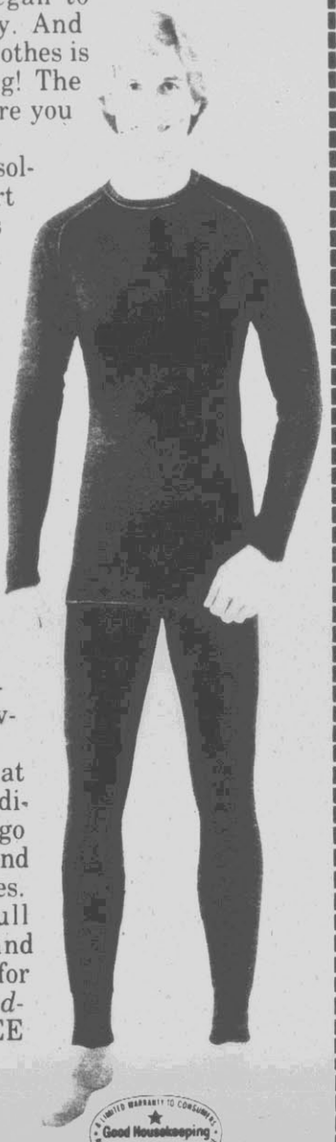
What's the 12 Letter Word for Warmth?

It's 10° outside . . . Even getting colder. So you bundle up in layers and layers of heavy clothes. First with long underwear . . . then bulky, restrictive thermalwear on top.

Oh, you were warm, all right. Like in a Turkish bath. Because you began to perspire from all your activity. And perspiring in that mountain of clothes is like perspiring in a plastic bag! The perspiration is locked in. So there you are. Wet and miserable.



But now, at last, Damart has solved the problem. Because Damart invented underwear that keeps you warm, dry and comfortable no matter how cold it is or how long you stay out. Underwear that's soft and light so you can move easily. Underwear knitted to let the perspiration evaporate through so you always stay warm and dry next to your skin.

Damart does this with a new miracle fabric—Thermolactyl. No other underwear does this! You can wear Damart indoors too, and turn your thermostat into the 60's. You'll feel perfectly comfortable and enjoy dramatic savings in home heating costs.

Damart is so comfortable that the Mt. Everest climbing expedition wears it. So does the Chicago Bears Football Club, New England Patriots and Philadelphia Eagles. Our free catalog tells the full Damart Thermolactyl·story and displays the whole Damart line for men, women and children, including tall sizes. Send for your FREE copy now!

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Only Myths

Popular opinion holds that only-children are somehow different from those people who grew up with siblings. They're often accused of being selfish, aggressive, lonely and self-centered; yet few studies of single children have ever been done. Recently, however, three sociology professors at Bowling Green University in Ohio completed a survey of 7,512 adults, of whom 845 were only-children, and found that there are simply no negative consequences to being an only-child.

"Only-children are often looked at in negative terms," says Dr. Jerry Wicks. The one difference Wicks and his two colleagues, H. Theodore Groat and Arthur Neal, found is that only-children reach slightly higher levels of educational attainment, probably because their parents can concentrate their savings on one child.

Spy Stories

A high-stakes game of top-level espionage is the subject of John le Carré's book Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy, and later this month, PBS will air a fast-paced, six-part series based on the novel. The upper echelon of British Intelligence has been penetrated by a "mole," a Soviet double agent who is reporting top secrets to his Russian employers, and to flush him out, George Smiley, played by Alec Guinness, is secretly called out of retirement to take the case.

The cat-and-mouse chase pits the Soviet and British Intelligence services against one another, and becomes, for Smiley, a personal quest as well. His search leads him into the secret lives of the four top members of the British Intelligence Service, some of whom have been his friends; now he is virtually certain that one of them is betraying his country. Check your local listings to join the search for the man who is committing high treason.

BBC

Shine On Harvest Moon

Farmers have long called the big ball of orange moon that rises in the September sky the "harvest moon." "The moon gets its name because it rises so soon after the sun sets, providing farmers with extra hours of light by which they can get their crops in," explains Frank Forrester, a former meteorologist now with the U.S. Geological Survey. "The redness of the moon has nothing to do with the name; the color comes from the fact that the light from the moon's surface is shining through the thick lower layer of the atmosphere, which absorbs the blue light rays in the spectrum so that the viewer only sees the yellow and red ones."

UPI

The harvest moon is traditionally the first full moon that falls closest to the autumnal equinox; this year it will begin shining on Sept. 24. "And," continues Forrester, "the next full moon after the harvest moon is called the 'hunter's moon.' After harvesting their crops and gathering a supply of meat, the farmers were ready for the winter."

Jazzy News

Billy Taylor has been on the jazz scene for nearly 30 years, and he's a man who wears many hats. He's a composer whose works are played by jazz artists the world over, and he tickles the ivories very proficiently himself. And, as host of National Public Radio's Jazz Alive series, Taylor is just beginning his fourth year as the man responsible for introducing jazz to an audience that ranges from high-school students to grandparents.

"Jazz is America's classical music," says Taylor. "It's a way of playing; in fact, you can apply the principles of jazz to any kind of music. But that style has much diversity, and one of its basic elements is its spontaneity, which is why it's so wonderful to hear jazz performed live. Jazz artists appreciate that playing in front of an audience is a moment in time, and they rise to the occasion, whether they're playing bebop or swing or the newer, more abstract forms of jazz. It's all part of the same tradition."

Lifestyles

Birth Control. Leaving an intrauterine device in place for longer than two years may increase a woman's chances of developing a pelvic infection that could render her infertile, says a Houston physician. Symptoms of the infection, called actinomycosis, include fever, abdominal pain and cervical discharge, but, notes Dr. Waldemar Schmidt, these vague symptoms, common to a variety of ailments, have probably caused a great many cases to go unrecognized or misdiagnosed. Dr. Schmidt feels that the disease can be avoided by regularly changing IUD's every two years, according to a report in Medical World News.

Marijuana. Two researchers have found that people who frequently use marijuana suffer from more frequent panic reactions, health problems and traffic violations than those people who use marijuana less frequently. In a five-year follow-up study of 97 chronic marijuana users, 9 percent reported these symptoms, notes Dr. James Halikas of the Medical College of Wisconsin and Ronald Weller of the University of Kansas Medical Center.

DAFFODILS

CROCUS
18 for $1.98

The plucky Crocus usually blooms first in spring, sometimes even right through the snow! When you see Crocus in bloom, spring is not far behind. Rainbow mix colors, each bulb averages 2¾" circ. Holland imported. Bloom year after year without replanting.

BEARDED IRIS
6 for $2.98

Regal and stately, the large flaring blooms are ruffled, bearded and exquisitely beautiful! Blooms in early summer on upright, swordlike stems, 2½-3 feet high. Makes ideal background planting. Gorgeous assortment of mixed colors.

CROWNVETCH
6 for $1.99

All-in-one ground cover quickly transforms banks, troublesome weedy areas into a dense mat of green, fern-like foliage smothered with delicate pink and white blooms. Coronilla variety, medium size crowns—hardy, maintenance free, drought resistant.

Giant Balls of Flaming Color!
CUSHION MUMS
10 for $1.98

Giant balls of flaming color to set your landscape ablaze! Hardy Michigan nursery grown root division perennials come to you in an assortment of vivid, mixed colors . . . red, yellow, pink, purple, bronze, etc. Normally develop to bushel basket size, each plant drenched with masses of colorful 1-2" blooms. Mail coupon today for fall delivery!

BRANCHING TULIPS
10 for $1.98

This is the tulip variety you see in many gardens in Holland, where lots are small because land is so valuable. From the stem of each bulb, you get 3, 4, even 5 offshoot blooms . . . a mass of vivid, vibrant blooms in a small space! No other tulip produces such dense color per square foot. All one color, a bright flaming red. Holland imported. (Praestans fuselier, 8 cm.). Bloom year after year without replanting.

DAYLILIES
3 for $2.98

Versatile garden plant (Hemerocallis), combines lovely color, fragrance, and rugged hardiness. Highly bug and disease resistant. As many as 50 blooms per stem, a continuing rainbow of sparkling color early June through August. Mixed colors of pink, yellow, orange, gold, red, etc.!

DUTCH HYACINTHS
3 for $1.95

Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: ON A CRISP SEPTEMBER MORNING, BRIAN GIVES PRINCE VALIANT A TOUR OF CASTLE CORNWALL'S DEFENSES. THE YOUNG COMMANDER PREENS IN HIS COSTLY PLUMAGE.

EVERYTHING SEEMS TO BE IN ORDER, ALTHOUGH IT DOES NOT ESCAPE VAL'S ATTENTION THAT BRIAN'S MEN SEEM MORE DEVOTED TO BACCHUS THAN TO MARS.

FIRST THE WOMEN HEAR ALL THE SOCIAL NEWS OF CAMELOT, THE FASHIONS, THE GOSSIP. ALETA HAS SOME "INNOCENT" QUESTIONS OF HER OWN. THE ANSWERS COME EASILY. LIKE A PICKPOCKET, SHE STOWS THEM AWAY.

WITH THE SHOWMANSHIP OF A LONDINIUM HUCKSTER, CHESTER FLAUNTS CORNWALL'S BOUNTIFUL HARVEST. YET THE SERFS ARE GAUNT AND SICKLY. "THE WHOLE PROVINCE SHINES AND SMELLS," VAL THINKS. "LIKE A DEAD FISH IN THE MOONLIGHT."
