Early Clash In OPEC Over Oil-Pricing

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran tangled with Saudi Arabia today and threatened to block OPEC's first joint plan for raising oil prices and controlling production as the 13-nation cartel opened debate on the long-term proposal at its 20th anniversary meeting.

"If we do not have a short-term decision on production, then it's a joke to have a long-term strategy," said Iran's chief delegate, Ali Akbar Moinfar, who called for a Saudi production cut to drain off the current world oil glut and keep prices up.

Although no serious disagreement previously appeared looming over the joint strategy of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, Moinfar said when asked if he thought a long-term pricing plan would be worked out, "I don't think so."

Meanwhile, the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey reported Iran's oil minister sent the Saudi oil minister a cable containing "various accusations against Saudi Arabia couched in impolite language," and that the Saudis were reconsidering their decision to decrease oil production.

But with the oil market glutted again, several ministers predicted there would be no price increase before next year.

There had appeared to be general agreement among the oil, finance and foreign ministers on a long-term strategy plan with provisions for raising oil prices every three months to keep up with world inflation, currency fluctuations and economic growth in industrial countries.

They also had appeared ready to agree on automatic joint cuts in production when the market is oversupplied and joint increases when supplies are felt to be too low.

"Hopefully we will have a unanimous decision," Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister and a major backer of the plan, said over the weekend.

"In the long term, we want to gradually reach the cost of alternative sources of energy," said Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeh Abdul Karim.

"This will encourage the industrialized countries to shift their dependence to other forms of energy. Otherwise, there will be a disaster at the end of the 1980s."

"Even if the OPEC countries produce at their maximum capacity there will not be enough oil. We will also be protected against inflation and any fall in the dollar."

OPEC economists estimate that the cost of energy from other sources now averages the equivalent of $60 a barrel. OPEC's base price is $32 for a 42-gallon barrel of oil.

Since January 1979, market conditions, OPEC economic worries and world politics have driven oil prices up 132 percent. Some British economists predict the OPEC plan would raise oil prices 15 percent within a year. But some of the oil ministers on their arrival in Vienna said the current glut in the world's oil markets, largely attributed to high Saudi production, made any increase in the $32 base price unlikely before 1981.

Saudi Arabia was under pressure from more militant OPEC members to reduce its output of 9.5 million barrels a day and to raise its base price of $28 a barrel to the $32 level set by other OPEC members in June. But Yamani pointed out to reporters that the Saudi price is close to the prevailing market price of $29.50.

"I do not believe there will be any decision on oil prices for the rest of this year," said Venezuelan Mining Minister Humberto Calderon Berti.

"We will keep the benchmark," said Libyan Oil Minister Abdussalam Zagaar.

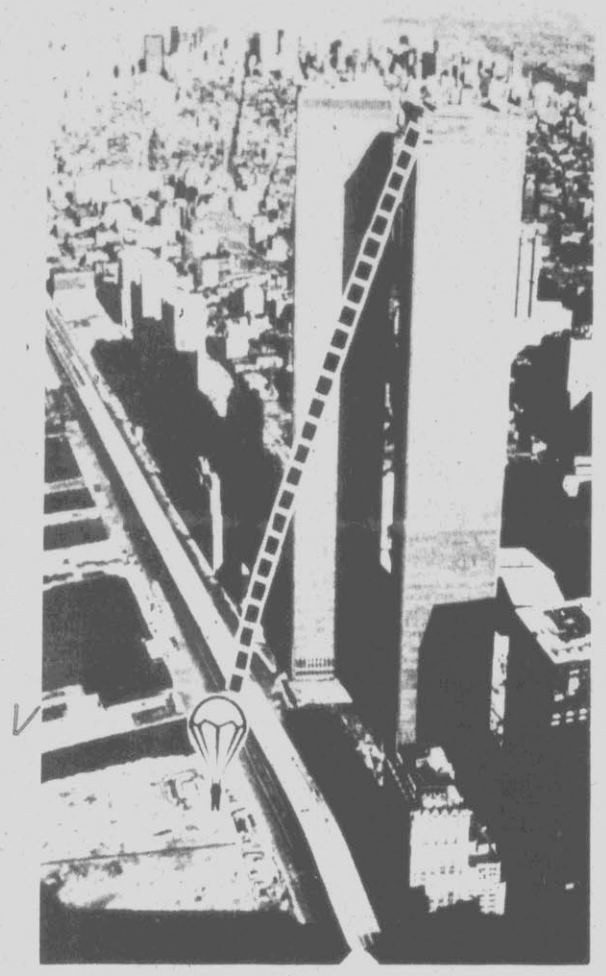

The meeting is the biggest gathering of the organization in its headquarters city since the 1975 terrorist attack on a meeting of oil ministers in Vienna. Pro-Palestinian guerrillas killed an Austrian policeman, an OPEC guard and a Libyan statistician, then took 11 of the oil ministers hostage and took them to North Africa.

After that, OPEC held its big meetings in various other cities under extraordinarily heavy security protection. The Iraqi oil minister defended the decision to meet again in Vienna, saying, "That attack might have occurred somewhere else as well."

The long-term strategy plan also calls for development of arrangements to protect underdeveloped countries without oil of their own that have been especially hard hit by rising energy prices.

Venezuela's mining minister said they "must find some basis for discussing transfer of resources from developed to undeveloped countries."

"Energy is not the only issue," he said. "The transfer of technology, the transfer of raw materials and the International Monetary Fund are also involved in this question."

Mystery Leaper Said Identified

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who casually parachuted from the 110-story World Trade Center to a getaway car below was a trained hang-glider pilot and parachutist testing a new piece of jumping gear, the Daily News said today.

The leaper, who escaped Port Authority of New York and New Jersey officials after the 1½-minute jump Saturday afternoon, was tracked down through witnesses' descriptions of the car, the News said.

The newspaper identified the man as Arthur Gingras of Farmingdale.

Port Authority officials, who worried the stunt could attract unskilled publicity seekers, said Sunday they had had had no luck identifying the parachutist.

Gingras said he was testing a new parachute harness designed by his brother-in-law, who accompanied him to the trade center and drove the getaway car.

To make the leap, the man climbed an electrified fence at the top of world's second tallest building, protected by a pair of thick rubber gloves, then stunned witnesses with his unexpected 1,350-foot jump from the observation deck of the trade center's south tower.

"All the people who saw him jump had their stomachs in their mouths," said Leon Maganza of Brooklyn, who watched.

Pitt Commissioners Get Proposals On Airport

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County commissioners this morning heard a report from the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, recommending that the Airport Authority and the fixed base operator re-negotiate the present contract in order to upgrade the level of existing services and suggested that fuel sales be a function of the fixed base operator.

Attorney Robert Browning, representing the chamber's Air Service Task Force told commissioners that the chamber study and recommendations resulted from a request by the Greenville City Council that the chamber look into fuel sales at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

Browning said the task force, "supports the continued growth," of the airport, "under the strong and effective leadership of the Airport Authority," and believes, "that a full service fixed base operator is a necessary and desirable adjunct to the continued growth of the airport."

The task force, according to Browning, "recommends that the Airport Authority and the fixed base operator re-negotiate the entire contract in order to upgrade the level of existing services, and that fuel sales should be the function of the fixed base operator."

However, Browning stressed that the task force suggested, "the fuel sales should not be given to the fixed base operator unless some method of compensation is agreed upon that would reimburse the Airport Authority for its loss in profits from fuel sales."

At present, the Airport Authority handles the sale of fuel at the airport. The present fixed base operator has urged for sometime that he be given the gas sales concession.

The task force report also noted, "it is essential that the same level of service now provided by the Airport Authority, including hours of service and quality of fuel be maintained by a fixed base operator. It is also essential that the level of service now provided by the FBO be up-graded to insure a competitive situation within the region through its flight school, maintenance, aircraft sales, advertising and marketing and other essential services."

Iranian Parliament To Begin Decision Debate On Hostages Tuesday

By The Associated Press

The speaker of the Iranian Parliament says debate on the U.S. hostages will begin Tuesday, the 318th day in captivity for the 52 Americans. But two influential Iranian religious leaders said today the regime has not dropped its demand for an apology from the U.S. government.

Iran's official Pars news agency said Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani also received a letter from the hostages' families saying they are "ready to do what you and your colleagues order."

It said the families said they wanted to meet with him "to solve our problem in a human atmosphere. We wish to be a bridge that the hostages cross to reach their homes ... we hope to find a solution to put an end to the current separation of the Iranian and American nations."

Pars said the letter was delivered by the Algerian ambassador in Tehran. It did not further identify the senders, and there was no immediate comment from anyone representing the hostages' relatives in the United States.

Tehran Radio said Rafsanjani told the Swiss charge d'affaires in Tehran Sunday:

"A decision was made in the Majlis (Parliament) today regarding a reply to the letter by the U.S. Congress, and substantial discussion on the hostages will begin on Tuesday and the Majlis will make a decision.

"Since the U.S. Congress letter was read out in the Majlis and was also covered by the press, we expect the U.S. government to publish the text of the Majlis letter of reply for the American public. If it fails to do this, it will have shown its lack of good will, and this will have an adverse effect on our talks."

The "U.S. Congress letter" was sent the Majlis in July by 187 congressmen who urged the release of the Americans taken hostage last Nov. 4 when young Islamic militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. The broadcast said the Swiss charge d'affaires delivered a "follow-up letter" from some of the U.S. congressmen on Sunday.

The Majlis Foreign Affairs Committee submitted a draft of a reply to the U.S. letter for the second time on Sunday. Its language was as vituperative as any used against the United States, saying:

"The world-devouring America, as the great Satan and a symbol of world tyranny, is the biggest enemy of our independence and greatness and a foe to the world's deprived peoples."

"Seizure of the spy-nest (the U.S. Embassy), that was in fact the main center for running Iran and a base for U.S. invasion in the region, should be considered in such a context."

Tehran Radio said the Majlis asked the Foreign Affairs Committee to revise the draft to insert some of the opinions voiced by the deputies.

On Friday, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, listed four conditions for the release of the hostages. They did not include the previous demand for an apology from the United States, a condition the Carter administration rejected, and U.S. observers interpreted this as a hopeful sign.

But Hojatoleslam Mousavi Khoeini, a member of the Majlis and the spiritual leader of the militants holding the hostages, told the English-language newspaper Tehran Times that a U.S. apology is a basic condition for the release of the Americans.

Steps Aside In Cocaine Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tim Kraft, who as President Carter's national campaign manager has run the day-to-day details of Carter's re-election effort, is taking a "leave of absence" amid an investigation into allegations he used cocaine in 1977.

Kraft said in a statement issued Sunday that he is "completely innocent of the charges," which reportedly are being investigated by a special prosecutor.

But, he added, "I have concluded that I can best serve the president and avoid political exploitation of the false charges against me by taking a leave of absence from the campaign."

"I have not worked hard for President Carter for the past six years just to become a subject of political controversy in the final six weeks of his re-election campaign," Kraft said.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said today he did not know whether Carter had spoken to his campaign manager about the allegation or Kraft's departure from the campaign. But he added, "It was Kraft's decision" to take a leave of absence while a special prosecutor investigates the charge.

Powell said it is hard to say what effect the news is likely to have on the campaign, and he declined to say who might replace Kraft as campaign manager, saying the Carter-Mondale committee is trying to work that out.

Kraft, 39, worked as a White House aide before joining the re-election effort and is the third high-level Carter aide to become involved in a drug controversy.

He worked directly under — and at one point shared a house with — Hamilton Jordan, who was accused of using cocaine at New York's Studio 54 discotheque.

A special prosecutor, Arthur Christy of New York, found there was not sufficient evidence to prosecute Jordan on cocaine charges, and Kraft mentioned in his statement that it was Christy's investigation which led to the allegations against him.

He said they grew out of an "investigation by a previous special prosecutor into allegations against Hamilton Jordan which after a protracted investigation were proven to be baseless."

TOKYO (AP) — The British freighter Derbyshire with 43 persons reported aboard has been missing off Okinawa since last Tuesday, Japan's Maritime Safeaty Agency said today.

Learn Nine Are 'Deportable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service is seeking nine Iranians — released from federal prisons after their participation in a violent July demonstration — who may be deportaboe.

One of those sought has been apprehended since the INS order for a nationwide search was issued Sept. 3, authorities said this weekend. The nine were among 191 supporters of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini who were arrested during a July 27 demonstration here. All the protesters were released Aug. 6 after federal officials said a visa check showed only two were in the United States illegally. But authorities say subsequent checks into the demonstrators' immigration status have revealed that seven others also were deportable.

Schmidt Plans November Visit

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt plans to meet with "the newly-elected or re-elected president" of the United States during a visit to America for the presentation of the Society of Man award Nov. 19-20, he announced in Newspaper for Sunday, published by his Social Democratic party.

Schmidt said he would press for a "deepening" of the Soviet-U.S. dialogue. "Only then will we be able to deal with the questions of arms control and rearmament," he said.

Schmidt himself faces a national election Oct. 5, but opinion polls indicate his party will defeat conservative Franz-Josef Strauss and his coalition of Christian Democrats and the Christian Social Union.

No Prospect Of Circumventing The High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A move to circumvent the Supreme Court and restore prayer in public schools doesn't have a prayer in Congress this year, aides say.

After a high-pressure drive, a House Judiciary subcommittee completed five days of hearings last week on a Senate-passed bill that would remove from Supreme Court jurisdiction state laws relating to voluntary prayers in public schools or public buildings.

But subcommittee members generally agree there won't be any legislation on the issue coming out of the House in the waning weeks of this session.

"We gave them (prayer proponents) their best shot at it," said one subcommittee aide, who asked not to be identified. "And they didn't convince anybody that I know of."

He said Republicans agreed with Democrats that Congress can't pass a law every time it doesn't like a Supreme Court decision.

Assistant Attorney General John M. Harmon testified at the hearings that the bill — originally sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and pushed in the House by Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill. — is unconstitutional. He said it "would undermine the Supreme Court's role in protecting the integrity and supremacy of federal law."

Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass., a Roman Catholic priest and legal scholar, also advised that the issue be left alone. "We are mistaken and misled if we believe that the public schools can somehow combine piety and learning in an eminently satisfactory way," he said.

Washington representatives of major Protestant denominations — Baptists, Methodists, Lutherans, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and others — have spoken out against the measure as undermining separation of church and state.

But the American Legion and many evangelical bodies, including those in the National Association of Evangelicals, have consistently pressed for restoration of school prayer.

The Helms bill has been bottled up in the House since passing the Senate in April 1979, and while it appears likely to stay there for now, Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., the subcommittee chairman, said school prayer "is not a dead issue."

If Republican Ronald Reagan is elected president in November, Kastenmeier said, "I assume there will be another major push."

In that event, judicial experts said there might be renewed emphasis on a compromise proposal that would allow pupils to participate voluntarily in a moment of private meditation.

The Republican Party platform endorsed the right of individuals to participate in voluntary, non-demoninational prayer in public schools, and several legislators are proposing compromises aimed at resolving the 18-year debate.

Rep. Stephen L. Neal, D-N.C., is offering a resolution supporting periods of silence for the purpose of private prayer, meditation or contemplation in the classroom. No pupil would be forced to participate. The resolution would only present the "sentiment" of Congress and would not carry the force of law.

Increasingly, states also are looking toward passing their own laws to try to return prayer to public schools. A Massachusetts law providing for voluntary prayer was struck down as unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court last March, however. And a challenge is expected to the Louisiana statute that enables public school pupils to voluntarily participate in moments of prayer or meditation.

WHAT KIND OF PEOPLE ENTER A COLLARD EATING CONTEST?

Hungry people, hopeful people, folks who like collards, and some say, crazy people. Each of the 15 contestants in the Ayden Collard Eating Contest Saturday had their own style. On the top left is a man who likes his collards hot ... very hot. Next is a young man who can eat them only with his eyes closed. The Champ, third from the left, stops for a moment to chew his fifth pound of collards. Finally, the man on the right prefers formal dress for the occasion, coming decked out in a tux. On the bottom left is the Champs' nearest competition, smiling at the thought of perhaps being the next winner. In the next photo one of the two young ladies in the contest takes a breather before finally quitting. Most of the contestants agreed that they would return to eat again next year... Farm Scene

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

According to reports of the N.C. Department of Agriculture Soil Testing Laboratory, 80 percent of samples from fields to be planted in soybeans in 1979 season showed a need for lime ph under 6.0. This soil aciding problem continues despite a lime campaign initiated by the Extension Service 12 years ago and lime use in the state of over a million tons per year.

This program is directed initially at soybean growers because soybeans are sensitive to low ph, widely grown and used in rotation with other crops.

This program will receive major emphasis this fall in 65 counties with major soybean acreage. Pitt County is included in this group.

Just how widespread is the need for lime on North Carolina soybeans?

Here's a good indication: more than four of every five soybean field soil samples tested by the N.C. Department of Agriculture over the last two years showed a need for lime.

Is it profitable to lime soybean land that I may be able to rent for only one year?

Yes, it can be profitable. In five tests scattered across the state, the first year's response averaged an extra 12 bushels of soybeans per acre, where about two tons of lime were applied per acre. Using a lime cost of $23 per ton applied and a soybean selling price of $6.50 per bushel. A limed acre produced soybeans valued at $34.30 more than an unlimed acre that's a first year return of $1.78 per $1 spent. The lime is still there and will continue to improve yields for 2 to 4 more years.

Is there any difference between wet and dry lime?

Yes. Wet lime is a by-product of elad and zinc mining. Dry lime is a primary product crushed and ground directly from lime stone rock. They are equal for correcting soil aciding on a dry weight basis.

What is the difference between dolomitic and calcitric?

Calcitric lime, which contains only calcium, will correct soil acidity. Dolomitric lime, which contains both calcium and magnesium, will correct soil acidity and supply the soil with magnesium. The soil tests will correct soil aciding and supply the soil with magnesium. The soil tests will help you to know if calcitric lime can be used on fields.

When is the best time to apply lime?

Lime can be applied anytime a field is accessible, but you should try to get lime out as far in advance of planting as possible, because lime is not quick-acting like fertilizer.

N.C. Counts 11 Highway Dead

By The Associated Press

Two deaths Sunday, including that of a small child struck by a hit-and-run vehicle, raised North Carolina's weekend highway toll to 11.

The Highway Patrol said North Carolina now has recorded 1,044 deaths for the year, compared with 1,057 for the same period last year.

Little Jason Neal Corns, 23 months old, of Route One, Lawsonfield, was killed Sunday night when he was struck by a car as he walked on N.C. 8 about 10 miles north of Danbury in Stokes County. The patrol said the vehicle did not stop.

David Bradish Stuart, 29, of Chapel Hill was killed Sunday evening in a head-on collision on a rural road two miles south of Carrboro in Orange County.

Earlier in the weekend, Ollin T. Ford, 72, of Lumberton was killed when the car in which he was riding ran off N.C. 41 near Fairmont.

Olga Trevino, 51, was the victim of a hit-and-run accident on N.C. 58 in Wilson County. A Person County horseback rider, John Stanley Wade, 27, of Roxboro was killed when his horse was struck by a car on a rural road seven miles north of Roxboro.

Kenneth Buchanan, 51, of Franklin, was killed when the car he was driving ran off N.C. 28 near Franklin. Christopher C. Williams, 23, of Charlotte, was killed when his car struck a tree in Charlotte.

A 36-year-old pedestrian, George William Obery, was struck by two cars on U.S. 1 two miles south of Henderson.

Willie B. Brown, 44, of Laurinburg was killed when his car ran off a rural road in Hoke County.

Andrea C. Scott, 35, of Langley, S.C., died when she was struck by a car while walking along Interstate 95 near Rowland.

Betty Jean Underdue, 19, of Seaboard was killed when her car ran off the road, hit a ditch and caught fire about seven miles east of Jackson.

Seeking An Answer To Youth Treatment Issue

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Faced with three court decisions pinpointing the lack of adequate state facilities, the state Department of Human Resources is seeking a definitive answer as to what does constitute proper programs for emotionally disturbed and aggressive children.

Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, secretary of the department, acknowledges that her agency has not been aggressive in seeking new state programs for such children.

"I think perhaps we have not informed the General Assembly adequately to our shortcomings," she said. "What we are trying to do is to search the best minds in the state to come up with some answers."

She said mental health professionals so far have failed to reach a concensus on how best to tackle the problems of aggressive youths.

Because of this, the department has not included any funding for such programs in its budget requests for 1981-83.

"You know, it is awfully hard to come up with a budget when you don't know how many people you are talking about and what kind of treatment you are talking about," she said.

Dr. Morrow said the department did request continued funding for a 24-bed adolescent unit at John Umstead Hospital in Butner, where disturbed children can be treated. The General Assembly approved $500,000 for the project last spring and the unit is scheduled to open sometime in October.

"I expect we will gain some experience between the time we open those beds and the time the Legislature comes to town (in January)" Dr. Morrow said.

Estimates of the number of children in the state needing special treatment range from 50 to 300. Officials say that in the past these children were sent to training schools after their violent behavior resulted in criminal charges.

Judges in three recent cases have ordered officials to come up with alternative treatments.

Sullivan-Mills Vows Exchanged On Sunday

MRS. THIERRY HENRI SULLIVAN

Miss Deana Mills and Thierry Henri Sullivan were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Nathan Hanchey officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Lee Mills of Rt. 3, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vance L. Sullivan of Ayden.

A program of nuptial wedding music was presented by Randy Buck, pianist. Eugene Joyner and his sister, Kathy Joyner, sang "We've Only Just Begun," "The Wedding Prayer" and "I Pledge My Love."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza. The high neckline was trimmed with Venise lace. The fitted bodice was trimmed with covered buttons and white cuffs edged with Venise lace and the skirt was enhanced with a wide flounce with Venise lace. The bride's headpiece of silk illusion and the chapel length veil were accented with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white daisies, yellow poms and baby's breath with greenery.

Robbie Lynn Riggs of Grimesland was maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of light yellow. The haltered style bodice with spaghetti straps was covered with a cape made of lace with tassels that came to a V-shape in the back and tied in the front. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow and white daisies and baby's breath with satin streamers.

The bridesmaids were Michele and Daniele Sullivan, sisters of the bridegroom, and Kathy Joyner of Greenville. They wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant and carried similar nosegays.

Karen Clark served as flower girl and wore a polyester organza full-lined gown. The woven acetate ruffled in the front and the back and was enhanced with capelet sleeves. She carried a white lace basket with white flowers. The ring bearer was Jamie Corbitt. He carried a heart-shaped pillow trimmed with lace.

The bridegroom's father was best man. The ushers were Ricky Sullivan, brother of the bridegroom, James Frizzelle of Grifton and Cary Adams of Grimesland.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of light blue qiana. The haltered-style bodice with spaghetti straps was covered with a chiffon cape pointed in front and back. The mother of the bridegroom chose a formal gown of mint organza over mint taffeta designed with an open V-neckline. Both mothers were given white carnations by the bridal couple.

The brides grandmother, Mrs. Ruby Edwards, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Sadie Sullivan, were also given white carnations.

An after-rehearsal party was given Saturday evening by the bridegroom's parents at the church fellowship hall. Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception held in the church fellowship hall. Monica Fornes presided at the guest register assisted by Melissa Bailey, who distributed the wedding programs.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Neil Atkins, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom, greeted guests and invited them to the refreshment table. The bridal table featured a silver epergne of yellow and white daisies with baby's breath. After the bridal couple cut the first slice of the wedding cake, cake was then served by Mrs. Calvin Mills. Punch was served by Mrs. Alton Gray Mills, Mrs. Jessie G. Mills, Mrs. Leaky Dixon, Mrs. Joe Fornes and Mrs. Calvin Smith.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and the bridegroom graduated from Ayden-Grifton High School. He is in the U.S. Army, stationed at Fort Hood, Tex.

After an unannounced wedding trip, the couple will reside in Texas.

Miss Singleton, Mr. Sumerlin Speak Vows

MRS. JOHN EDWARD SUMERLIN

WASHINGTON — Cynthia Carol Singleton and John Edward Sumerlin were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock at the Riverview Baptist Church here. The Rev. Gerald Harrelson performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Singleton Sr. of Washington and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Sumerlin of Greenville.

A program of nuptial wedding music was presented by Suzanne Wilson, pianist, and L. M. Odom, soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown with sheer beaded overlay enhanced by a panel of chantilly lace on the front of the gown and at the hemline. The long sheer sleeves were cuffed with lace. She wore a veil of illusion and lace which was attached to a Camelot cap. She carried a cascading nosegay of pom pons, daisies, pixies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Cecilia Singleton, sister-in-law of the bride of Washington, was honor attendant. Gay Singleton, sister of the bride, also of Washington, was maid of honor. They both wore plum formal gowns featuring capped sleeves with gathered bodices and full flared skirts. They carried long-stemmed white mums with streamers matching their dresses.

Bridesmaids were Melinda and Pat Sumerlin, sisters of the bridegroom, both of Greenville. They wore rose formal gowns similar to that of the honor attendants and carried long-stemmed white mums with rose streamers.

The bridegroom's father was best man. Ushers were Tom Sumerlin, brother of the bridegroom of Greenville, Jimmy Singleton, brother of the bride and Bryan Dixon, cousin of the bride, both of Washington.

The bride's parents hosted a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. After the bride and bridegroom participated in the traditional cake cutting and toasting, Mrs. Wanda Dixon and Mrs. Daphine Singleton, aunts of the bride, served cake and presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Lillie Tyer, Mrs. Linda Tyer, Mrs. Brenda Lee, Mrs. Ann Ayers, Mrs. Linda Singleton, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Jeanette James, aunt of the bridegroom, Mrs. Linda Campbell and Mrs. Sina Cutler assisted the guests.

The bridegroom's parents hosted an old-fashioned pig pickin' at the home of the bride on Saturday. Approximately 55 guests attended the event.

The bride and the bridegroom are both graduates of North Pitt High School. The bridegroom is employed by Pepsi Cola of Greenville and the bride is employed by Beaufort County Hospital in Washington.

After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will reside in Washington.

It is quite common for children to occasionally suffer from eyestrain. This is often due to prolonged and incessant studying, reading or watching television. In such cases, it is advisable for the child to break for some physical activity. Were it not for school, a child, like any young animal, would be almost in constant motion. Six hours of school per day is perfectly acceptable. However, the afternoon hours should be set aside for vigorous muscle exercise. In this way proper circulation can be attained by a well tuned young body. The break also helps the attention span for later work. Evenings can be set aside for homework and then television.

Attention to eye requirements is equally important in children. If your child requires prescription eyewear, there is good reason to come to CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1706 6th, Physicians Quadrangle Building A. Our staff will take the time and patience to deal with children of all ages. In addition, the prescription requirements will be professionally attended to while proper fitting and cosmetically complimenting frames will be available for you to choose. Tel. 752-1446.

OPTICAL TIP: Eyestrain saps the system of ninety percent of its nerve force. Glasses do not relieve tension but relaxation can.

The Art of Carpeting & Decor

by Larry C. Whitlow

When stitching bias tape, do not pull or stretch it. Rather handle it carefully and with ease so that the tape is relaxed as you stitch. This will present cupping and puckering.

Now and then one may wish for a large piece of sculpture to add interest to a corner of a living room. Perhaps a smaller piece will provide just the right "something" at the end of a cocktail table or sideboard. If the real thing is too expensive, however, sometimes a growing plant can be an attractive substitute at relatively little cost. It can be big and dominate a room or it can be small and delicate. It can be a single specimen or a mass display of color. A picture window is an ideal place for plants of different descriptions.

Let us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND, INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 758-2300 help to make your rooms interesting. We have an interior designer, Sandra Thomas to assist you, free of charge, when you make a purchase. Carpeting, and other types of flooring, wall coverings, and draperies are available from us. Hours: 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Mon. thru Fri. 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Sat.

DECORATING TIP: Area rugs in new fake fur styles are a different idea for casual scrambling of color and design.

How To Use Land?

More rapidly than anyone had envisioned the old city landfill behind Greenwood Cemetery has filled up and the county has moved its landfill oprations back to the county site west of Greenville.

The city landfill had been operated on the site near E. Fifth Street since the 1930s, first as an open dump and later as a land fill operation.

Many acres of land have been filled in with refuse and covered with dirt.

The operation would have lasted many more years, but when the county government took over landfill operations for the entire county the filling process moved far more rapidly.

Now the work is complete and the city has a tract of land which is considerably higher in elevation than it used to be.

The question is, What to do with it? It is not likely that it can be used for building in the forseeable future because of the settling problem.

There has been talk in the past of a municipal golf course on the property once the landfill operation was completed. The most obvious answer seems to be some sort of recreation use of the property. If not a golf course, perhaps the tract could be considered for parks and playground areas. It is joined by the sewage disposal plant which, too, is on its way out as Greenville Utilities plans a new plant north of the river.

It would be wise to carefully study possible uses of all the property that will be available in this area. The land is there and it should be put to the best use for all our citizens.

Vehicles Must Have Roads

Nobody loves a tax increase.

Yet we all know that unless something is done about the dragging highway fund, road construction is going to end, and even maintenance is going to be difficult.

It looks like a study commission's recommendation will call for a four percent sales tax at the wholesale level on gas, plus some other adjustments.

It is not a prospect that overjoys us, but this tax goes directly to purchase the roads and streets on which our vehicles travel, and our cars are not worth much without adequate thoroughfares.

Shaped By The Sea

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The story of North Carolina began with the sea.

And now, although population and economic growth has moved well inland, members of the state's Marine Science Council hold to the belief that "The very personality of North Carolina is shaped as much, if not more, by the Atlantic Ocean as by the Appalachian Mountains and the Piedmont."

This is the introductory comment in a slim volume just published by the study group chaired by State Senator Melvin R. Daniels, D-Pasquotank.

Titled "North Carolina and the Sea," the purpose of the project is to spell out what is currently happening, and to spell out some positive steps to make certain that benefical plans are carried out.

The theme throughout is that economic growth from industrial, recreational, agricultural, commercial, and seafood expansion is not only desireable and possible, but can be gained in a way which does not destroy the beauty and fragile ecology of the area.

Oil Rigs

Of special concern to the Marine Science Council is next year's off-shore exploration lease schedule which may find oil and gas under the outer continental shelf. "Impacts on the natural processes of the marine environment that result from oil and gas exploration and production...must be given serious attention....Pollution problems must be addressed in order to prevent the ultimate destruction of these resources." Of concern are the offshore explorations, nearshore drilling, dredging and filling in sound and river areas, and onshore transit and refining facilities.

This planning document is the beginning point for a long-range planning effort to include government, industry, academia and the public in laying out goals and objectives toward the year 2000.

BILL NOBLITT

Reviewed are the fisheries industry, energy, mineral, farming, education, industrial development, transportation, historic and natural preservation, recreation and tourism, water resources, waste disposal, and potential resources for the future.

Among the numerous subjects explored are these:

Aquaculture is the growing of various seafoods in controlled beds beneath coastal waters, but is seriously hampered by laws governing access to those waters; and complexities which would require knowledge of engineering, biology, law, and business management for an enterprise to succeed. Still, the council feels, farming coastal waters will become a reality as time goes by.

Energy sources such as peat and woodlands are already being worked on, and should be encouraged. But some attention is needed for the potential of a solar-generated coastal winds.

Access

The public's ability to use and get to the beaches which are the foundation of a growing tourist industry is "increasingly restricted" by transportation difficulties, lack of boating facilities, absence of package tours,

Strangle Schools

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

As of last Saturday, more than 40,000 teachers were on strike nationwide, thereby shutting down schools in nine states and forcing more than half a million students to stay home.

Obviously, the welfare of the students doesn't come first with the strikers. They have chosen the opening days of the nation's schools to bring about a situation that makes it difficult for education officials to refuse to give in to the demands of teacher unions.

In the nation's most extensive teachers' strike, negotiations were stalled in the week-old walkout by 11,000 Philadelphia teachers. The strike, focusing on pay and retention of laid-off workers, forced cancellation of classes for 220,000 students.

The average pay for the union teachers is now $23,000 annually.

Throughout Pennsylvania, 16 school districts have been paralyzed, affecting about 290,000 students. Two other strikes continued in Washington state. Teacher strikes in 22 Michigan districts continued, threatening to close school doors for nearly 100,000 students.

While agreement was reached in Carlinville, more than 1,500 teachers in nine other Illinois districts remained on strike affecting 25,000 students.

In Rhode Island 1,345 teachers in four communities have beeon on strike. Six schools in Sierra Vista, Ariz. have been struck since last Wednesday by 200 of the district's 300 teachers.

In Rochester, N.Y., 2,300 teachers continued their strike affecting 34,600 students.

In Columbus, Ohio, a strike by 1,500 non-teaching school employees has not closed schools for the district's 51,000 students. But statewide, strikes by 4,900 teachers kept 59,000 students home.

In one instance, teachers defied a court injunction against strike. How does this look to the youngsters who are watching?

Does it teach them that it is okay to defy the law? Obviously, it doesn't instill in them much respect for our system of law if teachers operily defy our system.

Teachers have problems, just as everyone else. But we believe they are doing society in general and their school districts — especially their own students — a grave disservice when they use the power of unionism to force communities to negotiate in this manner. Such unions already wield undue power and influence over the education system of this country. Their political activities and their propaganda have no place in education.

'And, Here's My Card'

WASHINGTON — It seems that every evening I come home I find my coat loaded down with business cards of people I don't know or ever hope to see again.

My problem is not that I accept the cards, but I refuse to throw them away. There is something in me that says someday I will want to get in touch with the vice president of the Timesure Disposable Watch Company, or "Thomas Furth, Birdbath Appraiser." The cards pile up on the dresser, and every once in a while, my wife asks if she can throw them away. "Are you crazy?" I yell. "Every card on that dresser is a potential friend, or a customer, or someone who can provide a service."

"Clarence, if you must know, sat next to me on the plane and happens to raise Arabian horses. If we ever go to Arabia, he could provide us with a horse."

ART BUCHWALD

There is a social pecking order to business cards that many people are not aware of. Very low on the scale are those who have everything printed about themselves on the cards. "Henry Gluestein, Fur Repairs, New Linings, Collar Renovations, 153 Main Street, Brooklyn, N.Y. Established 1923. Telephone: 333-5460. Open Mondays through Saturdays 9-6, and Thursday evenings until 8. We accept credit cards."

Next on the ladder are those who must still identify what they do for a living. "Nancy Gordon — Attorney at Law, Goodfriend, Goodfriend & Badfriend," with address and telephone included.

Finally, at the top, are the people who have cards with just their name on it, and no further identification, address or telephone number.

These people are so secure, they assume you'll know who they are and what they do — and if you don't, tough luck for you.

A few weeks ago, I found one on my dresser which just said "Ira Harris" on it. I stared at it for an hour, trying to remember who Ira Harris was and why he gave me his card. I turned it over, but there was no clue there. Then I held it up to the light, hoping against hope there would be an invisible watermark that might tip me off. Nothing.

Rather than forget about it, I started to devote every waking moment to "Ira Harris." If he had just put the city or state where he came from on the card I'm sure I would have recalled what he did. I wondered if he had a family, and whether he was having a nice summer. Did he play tennis, or was he a golfer? Did he own his own business, or did he work for a multinational? It drove me crazy until someone gave me a card which just said "Maude Urmston" on it — and nothing else. I immediately forgot Ira Harris and started fantasizing about Maude. Was she a "9," or was she a "10"? It was much more fun trying to recall Maude than it was Ira.

People deal with other people's business cards in different ways. I have a friend who keeps everyone else's business cards in his wallet. When a stranger gives him his card, my friend gives him one from the stockpile he carries with him. He feels he's doing a public service because he's keeping everyone's business cards in

Plundering Pentagon

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Ex-Marine Cpl. Anthony Casamento, a wounded veteran of Guadalcanal, finally got his congressional Medal of Honor on direct orders of Commander-in-Chief Jimmy Carter just in time to make a dramatic appearance before 2,500 voters at the National Italian-American Foundation dinner here on Sept. 13.

The decision to overrule 35 years of refusal by successive secretaries of the Navy to give Casamento the nation's highest award was forced on the Pentagon by pressure from Carter's White House. Pentagon officials close to Secretary of Defense Harold Brown say privately Brown was "furious" at being bypassed by the White House. They told us Brown was not personally informed until official papers recommending the award had been approved by the president.

This is the latest example of Carter's exploitation of the military for partisan political purposes, in this case wooing the Italian vote. With the presidential campaign still young, the case of Cpl. Casamento — whose heroism at Guadalcanal was known all these years but deemed not sufficient for the Medal of Honor — has cast a shadow of fear inside the Defense Department. It is a fear that President Carter is quite willing to plunder the Pentagon for his re-election.

A far more serious exploitation of the military by the commander in chief goes beyond medals to the heart of national security: his effort to rewrite Carter administration history to make himself invulnerable to Republican charges of incompetence or worse in his stewardship of defense, particularly for canceling the B-1 bomber. That reached a peak when, with suspected White House connivance, George Wilson, the Washington Post's highly-respected Pentagon correspondent, published a factual story on Aug. 14 about the Stealth aircraft based on a government leak.

Leaks to Wilson and other reporters led to Brown's much-criticized Aug. 22 press conference taking the super-secret wraps off Stealth. He said then that "this alters the military balance significantly," even though nine years of development lie ahead.

The decision to go public came over intense protests from serious military men, worried about Soviet countermeasures. Brown defended it on the curious ground that the leaked stories threatened the integrity of the program and required a public revelation including predictions of a new aircraft far superior to any B-1.

The dubious logic of Brown's explanation, given in the glare of television lights Brown normally excludes from his press conferences, was compounded by Carter himself in an erroneous remark to reporters at Perth Amboy, N.J., Sept. 9.

"The first time the Stealth program was ever revealed" was in early August, Carter said, trying to reinforce his claim that publicizing Stealth was forced on the administration by leaks. In fact, Aerospace Daily published the first leak on Stealth July 23, 1976. Since then, at least 10 articles on Stealth have appeared in various journals (it was headlined in a June, 1979 market research service by Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, the investment firm).

Carter defended Brown's revelation as "legitimate" to "tell the American people the truth." He also clearly saw legitimacy when he summoned the uniformed chiefs of staff to the White House at 2 p.m. Sept. 8 to witness his signing of a military pay bill that he had spent most of his administration trying to kill. That first official appearance of the chiefs in his presence since November, 1979 added glitter to the klieg-lit signing ceremony in the White House East Room.

Planning is going forward in the White House for more political exploitation and game-playing with defense in Carter's search for votes. On the same day he signed the pay bill with such fanfare, Carter quietly put his signature on the big defense authorization bill, but not with the joint chiefs present and not under klieg lights. Because the bill contains $5.9 billion more than Carter asked Congress for, it is an indictment by the Democratic Congress of his stewardship. But vetoing it at a time of rising public concern about defense was politically impossible.

Carter is now privately trying to persuade his congressional leaders not to send him the defense appropriation bill — containing the actual funds for next year's defense spending — until after the election. That would put off a possible veto until a safer time, when public sentiment will not be so important.

A president's use of incumbency to gain re-election is anything but surprising. But this president's use of the Pentagon to advance his political interest is something else, something that is casting a bitter pall over the whole defense establishment.

FEET OF CLAY

We read about gods who have feet of clay. This expression comes from a Biblical story of an image in Babylon which had a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, thighs of silver, legs of iron, and feet of clay.

The trouble with an image with clay feet is that it collapses very easily. If the clay were at the top and the iron at the bottom, that would be all right; but the heavy load at the top and clay beneath to support it — this spells ruin.

As it is with images and idols, so it is with ideals. Any ideals we may entertain which have in them some gold, iron, brass, but at bottom are clay, will eventually crumble. The purpose which is not entirely sincere, the assurance which is not entirely true, the relationship which can be broken by quick anger — here are situations and ideals with clay feet.

Ideals must have a firm foundation, and the strongest of these will be found only in the realm of the spiritual. — Elisha Douglass

A Local-Level Inflation Fight

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The federal government's chief consumer agency is urging people to join their neighbors for a local-level, do-it-yourself fight against inflation.

To get things started, the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs is distributing a 411-page book detailing successful community efforts and providing a list of specific steps on the road to organization.

Copies of the book, "People Power: What Communities Are Doing to Fight Inflation," are available, at no charge, from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 682H, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

"Something special is happening that makes our country's economic picture a good deal brighter," says Esther Peterson, director of the consumer affairs office. "There is a new movement — an exciting cooperative spirit — making itself felt everywhere from rural towns to city neighborhoods ... Consumers are taking concrete steps to beat inflation on the local level...

"The point of this book is to show that individuals working together can make a difference — a big difference — in the type, quality and price of the food, housing, health care and energy they receive."

Mrs. Peterson's office spent more than two years tracking down the almost 100 citizens' groups featured in "People Power." The distribution of the book is designed to help promote Consumer Education Week which is Oct. 5 to 11.

"People Power" includes advice on forming a neighborhood group — identifying community concerns, running a successful meeting, expanding and incorporating. It gives step-by-step directions for programs like community gardens and price surveys. It suggests ways to raise money and get publicity. And it lists the names, addresses and telephone numbers of hundreds of government and private organizations which can provide expert help and advice.

The main section of the book is divided in four parts — food, housing, energy and health.

The food section covers buying clubs, food co-ops, urban gardens and farmers' markets in areas as diverse as Davenport, Iowa, and New York City. One of the case histories explains how residents of Northampton, Mass., with home vegetable gardens banded together to open a community canning center. Money for staffing the cannery, Community Self-Reliance, Inc., came from the Department of Labor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act — CETA. Various state and local groups paid for the canning equipment and the Hampshire County commissioners provided the space. Residents are charged a small fee — an average of 12 cents per pint — and the organization soon expects to be self-supporting.

The housing section details neighborhood improvement and tenants' rights groups from San Antonio, Texas, to Chicago. Among the specific examples is Maintenance Central for Seniors, Inc., a Detroit program with the twin aims of providing low-cost home repairs for the elderly and employment for retired craftsmen who are still able to work. Maintenance Central was founded in 1975 and, by 1979, it was averaging 600 repair jobs a month.

The energy section includes information on conservation, recycling, solar heating and transportation alternatives, like the van-pooling program set up by Action Now, Inc. Action Now, a nonprofit group formed by business leaders in Louisville, Ky., organized vanpools involving 240 residents. One van driver whose passengers used to commute in eight separate cars estimated that his pool saved 5,600 gallons of gasoline in 1979.

The health section stresses such things as health maintenance organizations, programs of care for the elderly and consumer guides to medical services. Among the examples is the Cleveland Medical Directory published by the Cleveland Consumer Action Foundation. The guide lists nearly 700 doctors, 18 clinics, four health maintenance organizations and 32 hospitals. It includes information on prices, hours, specialties and prescription drugs.

Seeking To Ease Entry In Community Colleges

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — Two state educational boards agreed Sunday to consider making it easier for teen-agers to enroll at North Carolina's community colleges in an effort to reduce the high school dropout rate.

William J. DeBrule of Forest City, a member of the new State Board of Community Colleges, said the proposal was aimed at encouraging students interested in a vocation to remain in high school.

"I think students between the ages of 14 to 16 ought to be able to freely move between these schools if it is determined that their intrest lies in the vocational area," DeBrule said.

The community college board, which will take over responsibility for that system on Jan. 1, and the State Board of Education met jointly Sunday to complete a weekend planning session at Emerald Isle.

Members of the two boards also plan to meet several more times before the transfer of responsibility for the community colleges is implemented.

Existing policies blocked any effort by community colleges to form classes only for high school students. Those policies also prohibit enrollment of any one under 18 years of age as a full-time student at a community college.

John L. Tart of Smithfield, president of Johnston Technical Institute and a member of the board of education, urged the boards to make the community college system more appealing ... and more accessible ... to all young people.

"Vocational and technical training for too long has been for your children, but not for my children," Tart said. "I would hope that this new board would be able to bring about a new acceptance of these programs."

In line with the drive to head off dropouts, community college board member San L. Wiggins of Waynesville said guidance counsels should have more contact with potential droputs and adivse them of available vocational programs.

"I feel strongly that our guidance system spends 90 percent of the time with 10 percent of the students. I don't think were our students will be served is as important as how we reach them," Wiggins said.

Crystal Cathedral Has Overflow For 'Opening

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — While thousands of people packed in and peeked in, the $18 million, 12,000-pane Crystal Cathedral opened it doors, a see-through sanctuary proclaimed by evangelist Robert Schuller as a "star of hope to a hurting world."

"It's a glorious building," Schuller said as he stood in the glass edifice Sunday. "I salute the window washers of the world."

More than 6,000 people, from worshippers to oglers, attended two morning services as an overflow crowd sat in folding chairs in the parking lot adjacent to the spot where ground was broken for the church in December 1977.

Floor-to-ceiling side doors gave the outsiders a pulpit view of Schuller and an elaborate sound system brought the choir outside.

"Here, where walls and roof are transparent, may we be inspired to imagine that we can somehow see through the human barriers that separate persons from persons and nations from nations, and human beings from their Creator," the 52-year-old Schuller preached.

Schuller's Protestant followers make up what is believed to be the nation's largest Reformed Church.

"Everything is working," TV's "Hour of Power" preacher, who 25 years ago founded drive-in services at his 10,000-member Garden Grove Community Church next door, beamed after the first service. A troublesome echo evident during opera star Beverly Sills' benefit concert in May had been corrected by individual speakers on the back of each pew.

However, Schuller's 5-year dream has not escaped cynicism.

To skeptics who believe the $18 million might have been put to better use, Schuller responds that "I am not a good, dedicated, beautiful, sincere, generous socialist. I am a Christian capitalist."

Nonetheless, he pointed out, the cathedral's offertory will fund projects such as the "Good Samaritan Inn," an emergency medical relief center planned in Chiapas, Mexico.

The elaborate, 12-fountain church was dedicated debt-free, Schuller said, with the final $4.5 million brought in by the $1,500-a-ticket Sills concert. The old church building will be used for offices.

Arrests Made By Police

Greenville police arrested three persons in as many days on marijuana possession charges, Chief Glenn Cannon reported today.

According to Cannon, Gary Wayne Hicks, 17 of Aycock Dorm, was charged with possession of marijuana after officers allegedly found a small quantity in his possession about 10:55 p.m. Friday, in a parking lot at the intersection of Third and Cotanche Streets.

The chief noted that Hicks was also charged witrh resisting arrest after he attempted to run from the scene.

Kevin Bryan Riggs, 19 of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk., was charged with possession of marijuana after police allegedly found a small quantity of marijuana in his possession about 1 a.m. Saturday behind a night club at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets, Cannon reported.

The chief identified the third man arrested on possession of marijuana charges as Charles LeRoy Haithcox, 18 of Aycock Dorm.

Cannon said Haithcox was taken into custody about 12:15 a.m. Sunday in a bank parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Haithcox, according to Cannon, was also charged with possession of alcoholic beverages under the age of 21, and possession of alcoholic beverages in an area not authorized by law.

See Opposition To Jaycee 'Gift' Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Directors of the North Carolina Jaycees have called on individual members to help repay $153,129 owed to the organization's charitable foundation, but some local members don't agree with the decision.

"The comments that I've heard at state meetings were that a lot of chapters did feel we should make certain concessions, but that the state echelon was responsible and that the state should take responsibility," said Fred H. Garner Jr., president of the Sanford Jaycee chapter.

Garner also questioned whether the directors' call for a $10 contribution from each member would raise enough funds to repay the money to the Jaycee Foundation. He said such contributions would only raise about $90,000.

Other internal fundraising measures "are not going to generate tens of thousands of dollars," Garner said.

"Those projects are not going to raise $10,000 to $20,000 a year," Garner said. "I don't see any way" to raise the full amount in a year.

The money is part of $191,000 that was diverted from foundation funds to pay for general operating expenses, including national membership dues for phony members and chapters.

State directors met in Pinehurst during the weekend to map out plans for repaying the money.

and especially by the lack of major convention-meeting facilities. The council suggests an objective feasibility study to determine the need for such a facility, the potential cost, possible locations, and ways in which local and state officials could work together in arranging finances.

The study also urges more use of available educational facilities in the coastal region, efforts to better inform teachers of the importance of the coast to the state, more field trips by public school students to the area, and expanded planning for a major undersea research program designed by the Southeastern Consortium for Undersea Research to be based at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

I have another friend who is a practical joker. He'll take a stranger's business card — let's say a vice president of the Bank of America — and hold it until a pal checks into the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. Then he'll give the card to the room clerk and ask him to put it in the pal's box. On the back he'll write, "Waited for you for two hours. Will be back at 8:30 tomorrow morning. Please be in the lobby or the deal is off."

The importance of business cards in American life cannot be overestimated. They are to grown-ups what baseball cards are to youngsters. I treasure every one I ever got.

I've been offered $400 for my "Maude Urmston" card by a collector in Seattle. But I'm not selling until I find out who the hell she is.

While the debate goes on over an economic policy for the nation, BB&T offers a sound economic policy for your family.

At Branch Banking and Trust, we believe that saving money is sound economic policy.

We've maintained that simple philosophy even through times of high inflation—when the popular wisdom said spend, not save. And today, we believe saving makes more sense than ever.

Saving is the one way you can be sure of having the money you need for the things you want. And with some help from BB&T, you can protect your savings from inflation to a greater degree than you might have expected.

When it comes to saving money, not everyone's needs are equal.

For some people, saving money means a savings account—and that's always a very good way to save.

BB&T also offers a number of alternatives to regular savings accounts—alternatives that can earn you higher interest.

Consider, for example, our Certificates of Deposit*, which allow you to choose a maturity from 30 days to 8 years and a corresponding interest rate on deposits as low as $500. Or high-yield Money Market Certificates for deposits of $10,000 and more.

With these and other savings plans, BB&T can help you put together a comprehensive savings program that will give you the best rate of return on your money and the kind of flexibility you need.

Exercise your inalienable right to save for your own future.

We can't predict what the state of the national economy is going to be. And the debate in Washington over such matters will go on and on.

What we do know, however, are the ways in which saving regularly has improved the lives of BB&T customers through the years. We want you to share in the security and the good life many of them have known.

So while you're waiting to see where the economy is headed, take the future into your own hands.

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by the Village Gate Church for permission to conduct a sidewalk sale of barbecue and chicken dinners on Sept. 20 at King's parking lot in order to raise funds for the church.

Wyatt said the request was submitted by Elder William E. Carmon of Winterville.

Sen. Byrd Boosts Morgan Fund-Raiser

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — It wasn't your average song dedication, but the fiddle player said his next one was for a fellow "with common sense and guts like Harry Truman."

With that, the majority leader of the United States Senate tucked his fiddle under his chin and started into "Little Cabin on the Hill," an obscure bluegrass number he said was fitting for North Carolina Demoratic Sen. Robert Morgan.

It was the start of nearly three hours of bluegrass singing and playing Sunday night by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., at a fund-raiser for the freshman North Carolina senator.

Byrd's fiddle brought in dollars for Morgan's underfinanced campaign and his fiery, mountain political sermon brought cheers for Morgan's conservative voting record — a record that has been under virulent attack from his even-more conservative Republican opponent, John East.

"I'd love to take this show on the road, to any section of North Carolina," quipped Morgan campaign manager Sid Eagles as Byrd fiddled along with the five-piece string band before a crowd of 350 people at Bill Stanley's Barbeque and Bluegrass.

Byrd, who was born in Wilkes County, interrupted his inspired fiddling to give a rousing speech boosting Morgan's record on military spending and denouncing the campaign tactics of East.

"Thousands of North Carolinians are seeing literature that comes into their homes and distorts the votes of this man," Byrd said. "It's a sinister thing.

"We ought to campaign on the facts, on the record. But we're seeing this campaign of falsification, distortion, misrepresentaation and lies."

Referring to East's campaign, which is being run by the political organization of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., Byrd described its tactics as "vicious."

Byrd said he did not make the trip out of any concern that Morgan is in political trouble. But he was clearly familiar with East's assaults and went to lengths to stress that Morgan had voted for the B-1 bomber until it was canceled by President Carter — countering East's television advertising that accuses Morgan of opposing the bomber's development.

The fund-raiser kicked off Morgan's western re-election campaign and Morgan's campaign chairman in the mountains, Wallace Hyde, said $31,000 was collected.

Hyde said the campaign expected to receive another $9,000 later, when some late county chairmen like Zeno Ponder of Madison County, finish collecting their quotas for Morgan this week.

More money was brought in from record sales. Byrd spent most of his time — while he wasn't fiddling — autographing copies of his own albums for the lines of people who paid $10 a record with the proceeds going to Morgan's campaign.

The event also unveiled Morgan's television commercials which begin airing across the state today. While Byrd fiddled, the five commercials ran continuously on a six-foot screen in one corner of the room.

Accompanying Byrd was the Southern Appalachian Cloggers from Haywood County, who enticed him to join in the native mountain dance.

"Have you ever seen a political event like this?" Morgan said to a reporter. "I was a little bit worried at first if maybe Bob wouldn't fit in. And now I don't think we're going to get him out of here."

Byrd kept the crowd past closing time with favorites like "Turkey in the Straw," "Cripple Creek," and "Have You Lost All Your Love for Me."

His performance drew high marks from Bill Stanley, manager of the rustic downtown music hall, restaurant and bar.

"Senator Byrd could make a living at this," Stanley said. "I told him we'll sign him up right now if he'll stay."

Princess, Not Poetry, Starred

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The poetry reading was entitled "A Remembrance of Shakespeare," but most of the audience admitted they came to look, not listen. Princess Grace of Monaco was giving the reading.

"She's a jewel in the skies of Pennsylvania," said the Rev. Richard Wersing, an archivist at Duquesne University, who attended a weekend performance at the city's Carnegie Music Hall.

The former Grace Kelly of Philadelphia, wearing a flowing, pale green gown and her hair swept up in a simple bun, read from Shakespeare and poets Ben Jonson, Percy Bysshe Shelley, W.H. Auden, Dylan Thomas and others.

She was joined by British actors John Westbrook and Richard Denning in the program sponsored by the International Poetry Forum.

Rosalynn Could Not Name Five

NEW YORK (AP) — Pope John Paul II is at the top of Nancy Reagan's list of people she admires the most.

Then come Dr. Jonas Salk, opera singer Beverly Sills, actor James Cagney and ballet dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov, says the Republican presidential candidate's wife.

Meanwhile, first lady Rosalynn Carter said she "could never single out only five persons I admire from the many thousands I have personally met in the past few years."

Ladies Home Journal had asked both women, in separate interviews, to list the five people they most admired.

Mrs. Carter cited the family, education and equality, "making ends meet" and peace as the five issues of major concern to women.

Mrs. Reagan, in the Journal's October issue, cited crime, moral decline, unemployment, inflation and "foreign policy — will my son have to go to war?"

Cars Damaged In Collisions

An estimated $3,900 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police before dawn Sunday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:15 a.m. mishap on First Street, 125 feet east of the Library Street intersection, in which a car driven by Charles Edward Gupton of 315 West Fourth St. collided with a parked car owned by James Henry Glisson of Route 10, Greenville.

Police, who charged Gupton with driving under the influence, set damage to the Gupton car at $1,500 and damage to the Glisson car at $500. An estimated $100 damage resulted to a fence at 100 South Eastern St.

Branch Hines Jr. was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of a 12:50 a.m. collision on Greene Street, 400 feet north of the First Street intersection.

Investigators reported the Hines car collided with a vehicle driven by Ellis Clifton Haislip Jr. of Robersonville, resulting in $800 damage to the Hines car and $700 damage to the Haislip auto.

Cars driven by Debbie Lynn Bullock of Rocky Mount and Larry Darnell Foster of Route 3, Louisburg, collided about 3:40 a.m. at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Police, who charged both drivers with failing to see their intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage to each of the vehicles at $150.

Hispanic Heritage Week

This is National Hispanic Heritage Week, honoring the contributions Spanish-speaking people have made to American life. Today, Hispanics make up the fastest-growing ethnic group in the United States. The largest numbers of Hispanic-Americans live in California and the Southwest, a region of the country that once was a part of Mexico. Many Hispanics have come to the United States from Cuba, Mexico and other Latin American countries to look for jobs, or go to school, or because they disagreed with their country's governments. While their influence on American art, sports, language and government is growing, many Hispanic-Americans still face serious economic problems.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

High Tar Smokers Convert To Merit.

"Best tasting low tar I've tried," report MERIT smokers in latest survey.

Taste Quest Ends

Latest research provides solid evidence that MERIT is a satisfying long-term taste alternative to high tar cigarettes.

Smoker Tests Offer More Proof

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar.

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady on whole birds. Supply moderate. Demand good. Weights desirable. The North Carolina dock weighted average price this week is 48.17 cents per pound for small purchases of plant-grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today was 1,619,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices turned lower today as the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met in Vienna amid speculation Saudi Arabia would cut production to reduce the glut of oil that has caused some price cuts.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 4.61 to 931.91 in the first two hours of trading, as declines outnumbered advances by a 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Saudi Arabia's petroleum minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said his country had not decided whether to cut its oil production in the fourth quarter, and would make no decision until November. Iran called for such a cut and said it expected the Saudis to raise their oil price by $4 to $32 a 42-gallon barrel.

Venezuela's oil minister, Humberto Calderon Berti, said he thought the world oversupply of oil was about 2.5 million barrels a day.

In the United States, more banks joined in moving the prime lending rate to 12.25 percent. Morgan Guaranty and Bankers Trust Co. were among the banks making the move.

Texaco, which last week said it had overestimated its natural gas reserves, fell ¾ to 35⅝. Most other oils were generally down, but Quaker State rose 1⅛ to 19⅛.

Precious metals stocks fell as the price of gold weakened. ASA lost 2¼ to 74½, and Dome Mines dropped 7⅝ to 122.

Big Board volume totaled 19.34 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared to 21.72 million shares at the same point Friday. The NYSE's composite index fell 0.36 to 72.29.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.36 at 338.99.

Not So Sure If Reagan Welcome

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan's neighbors may want him in the White House, but when it comes to a Western White House, they're not so sure.

People in this elegant Republican coastal community are worrying whether a GOP victory would turn their exclusive hillside section of Los Angeles into a gaudy tourist attraction. After all, they say, that's what happened to Plains, Ga., after Jimmy Carter won in 1976.

So the Chamber of Commerce has set up a committee to investigate the effects of having a resident president. And it's already contacted San Clemente, where Richard Nixon had a retreat, for pointers.

But worry may be premature. The votes aren't in yet, and even if Reagan wins, his secluded "Rancho del Cielo" outside Santa Barbara, 100 miles to the north, in the Santa Ynez Mountains, may be his choice for a Western White House.

Gregory Walks Despite Pleas

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Despite his doctor's disapproval, activist Dick Gregory is carrying on a New York-to-Washington walk to protest world hunger and to encourage a resolution to the holding of American hostages in Iran.

Gregory has been fasting for 159 days and weighs 98 pounds.

'He's walking his skinny legs off," said a friend, Rock Newman. "He just keeps truckin' away, nothing seems to discourage him."

Doctors think "I'm too weak, but they just don't understand my special vitamin formula that keeps me going," the former comedian said Sunday from his New York hotel.

Gregory is followed by a van that takes him to New York after he's walked 30 miles.

Concluding, the report noted, "the recommendations of the committee should aid the fixed base operator in obtaining a more profitable operation by placing the general aviation customer in his place of business. In addition, it should also guarantee the continued growth and expansion of the airport facility by guaranteeing that the necessary revenues for operation are not reduced."

County attorney W. W. Speight, following Browning's report, noted that the Airport Authority, "has full authority for the operations of the airport. They make the decisions," indicating that neither the city council or board of county commissioners has direct control over the flight facility, although the two governing bodies appoint the members of the airport authority.

In other business concerning the airport, the board gave its approval to the acceptance of a $315,350 federal grant offer to make improvements at the airport, including the purchase of about 30 acres of land to provide clear zones at the end of runways at the airport.

The federal grant, plus $17,630 in state funds and a like amount in local contributions already held in reserve by the airport authority would provide the total project cost of $350,600.

In other business this morning, commissioners voted to "un-freeze" a number of positions frozen two weeks ago when the board voted to require any new employees to be approved by the board. The action was taken because of a decline in revenues from the levels projected when the 1980-1981 budget was approved in June.

Board chairman Ed Warren presented certificates of appreciation to a number of nominees from Pitt County for the Governor's Volunteer Award, as well as five recipients of the Governor's award.

The board appointed James Dallas 'Dap' Roberson and Alton G. Haddock as members of the planning board, heard a report on the status of plans for the Spring Arts Festival, and heard a report from Ray Bell of Greenville Cable TV Inc. on their plans to increase rates for their mini-service by 85 cents per month.

Under the franchise agreement with the county, the same rates apply in the county as are approved by the Greenville City Council for cable television service within the city.

Television Kills Lodge

PARADISE, Mo. (AP) — There are no Odd Fellows in Paradise. Apparently the allure of television and the big city was too much for them.

Founded 112 years ago, the Paradise chapter of the Odd Fellows Lodge closed its doors Saturday because of waning interest, blamed on what one member described as "television and too much money."

The lodge auctioned off everything from its worn leather chairs to the crumbling 91-year-old building in which it held its meetings.

The remaining 17 members of the Paradise social club, most over or nearing retirement age, plan to join the Odd Fellows Lodge in nearby Smithville. Both communities are just north of Kansas City.

"In the '20s, we had an up-and-goin' lodge," said Buster Summers, 60, a 35-year member. "But, with television the Odd Fellows began to go on the blink. And when roads improved they moved away from Paradise to the big towns."

Afghan Rebels Claim 2 Cabinet Members Slain

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Moslem rebels claimed Sunday that insurgents had killed two Afghan Cabinet ministers and three other officials at what was supposed to have been a truce meeting with unarmed tribesmen.

Most accounts said at least one, and possibly two Cabinet ministers were caught, bound and executed by the insurgents. There was no official confirmation of any deaths from the Marxist regime in Kabul.

Some reports said Border Affairs Minister Lt. Col. Faiz Mohammad, Public Works Minister Nazar Mohammad and the Paktia Province deputy governor, identified only as Habib, were slain. But one rebel group said only Faiz Mohammad was shot.

The men were reportedly part of a group of five officials invited to meet tribal elders at a traditional "jirga" or tribal council near Deraband, a village in Paktia Province near the Pakistan border. Earlier reports said the men were killed Wednesday in the rebel-held town of Zadran, about 40 miles west of the border and that the men arrived there apparently unaware the rebels controlled the town.

Omar Ahmedzai, an official of the Islamic Alliance for the Liberation of Afghanistan based in Peshwar, Pakistan, said the officials were gunned down by guerrillas under the command of Jalaluddin Kahakani.

Some Afghan rebel groups in northwestern Pakistan, reached by telephone, gave conflicting accounts of the incident. No other details were immediately known, and the report could not be independently confirmed.

It was the first report of rebels killing ministers in the pro-Soviet government of President Babrak Karmal, and indicated that much of the countryside remains out of touch with Kabul, the Afghan capital, if not firmly in rebel hands.

Ahmedzai said heavy fighting between Soviet troops and Afghan guerrillas continued in the strategic Panjshir Valley, northeast of Kabul.

The South Dakota-educated spokesman, a former university professor, said the insurgents were armed with anti-tank weapons and had destroyed at least four armored vehicles and three trucks, two carrying bridge-building materials and the other diesel fuel.

In the first 10 days of fighting, he claimed about 20 rebels had been killed, but said Soviet casualties were much higher.

There was no independent confirmation of the combat claim.

The fiercly anti-communist Afghan rebels have been fighting the Marxist Kabul government for more than two years. The Kremlin came to Karmal's aid last December pouring an estimated 80,000 troops into Afghanistan to help government forces in fighting the rebels.

Andrus has said previously he planned to resign as secretary after Carter's first term in office, and the president added in his Saturday announcement: "I have tried to change his mind, but he feels strongly that he should leave after four years." Poland Seeing Some Strikes

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist government announced registration procedures for the independent trade unions won by workers in recent strikes, and Roman Catholic church officials reported that the state radio will begin broadcasting Sunday Masses next week.

In Warsaw, dissident sources said today strikes were continuing at a ball-bearing plant in Kielce and at a paper factory in the same area and in various plants near Bielsko-Biala.

Poland's best-known dissident group, the Committee for Social Self Defense, issued a statement describing the independent trade union movement as a "breakthrough of importance in shaping the future of our country."

"We shall continue, as far as we can, to conduct an action aimed at safeguarding activists of the new trade unions from possible repression," it said.

Sources in Gdansk said independent trade union organizers from throughout the country would meet there Wednesday to discuss problems and review the statutory requirements for registering.

The government announced Sunday that the new unions would be able to register with the Warsaw district court instead of with the Central Council of Trade Unions, whose operations were criticized by the strikers.

Some organizers had been delaying final details of setting up their unions until the government announced procedures for registration.

The Gdansk sources also reported that members of the Seamens and Dockworkers Union would meet Tuesday in Gdynia to discuss withdrawing from the central council and operating independently. Last week, the union's presidium tentatively agreed to leave the state-controlled umbrella organization.

Voting was continuing today at the Ursus tractor factory near Warsaw in elections for the old, state-controlled union. Observers were awaiting the results as an indication of support for the new independent union.

Members of the new unions or those who planned to join them were expected to abstain in the Ursus elections.

Confirms Lame Duck Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will return for a "lame-duck" session after the November elections, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd has confirmed.

Several legislators — mostly Republicans — have criticized the plan, but Byrd, a West Virginia Democrat, says there just isn't time for Congress to complete its work otherwise. Congress will recess Oct. 4 to allow members time to campaign in their home states before the Nov. 4 general election. Byrd said the post-election session would begin Nov. 12. Congress' unfinished chores include the 1981 federal budget, tax-cut legislation and other thorny issues.

Inspired Eagles Wallop Vikings

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The game sticks in their hides like a festering sore that will not heal. It happened nine months ago, but the Philadelphia Eagles have long memories.

The Eagles were eliminated in last year's National Football Conference playoffs by Tampa Bay and that single loss has them playing like an inspired team now.

The Eagles destroyed Minnesota 42-7 Sunday, rolling up 529 yards in total offense and posting their second straight victory. Quarterback Ron Jaworski, who completed 20 of 26 passes for 234 yards explained the Eagles' drive this way:

"A lot of guys look back to our playoff loss against Tampa Bay last year with bitterness. We're not going to forget it; We're going to take it out on some people this year."

Tampa Bay had won its second straight last Thursday night, shading Los Angeles 10-9.

Houston plays at Cleveland tonight.

Eagles 42, Vikings 7

Besides Jaworski's 234 yards, the Eagles got 169 on the ground from workhorse running back Wilbert Montgomery, who scored two touchdowns. Leroy Harris also scored twice as Philadelphia administered the worst defeatIMnesota has suffered in 13 years.

Lions 29, Packers 7

No.1 draft choice Billy Sims rushed for 134 yards and hooked up on an 87-yard TD pass pyaywith Garx Danielson as Detroit poundedGrgen Bay. Ed Murray kicked five field goals and Sims ran his two-game NFL rushing total to 287 yards.

Danielson, playing despite the death Thursday of his nine-day old daughter, completed 11 of 17 passes for 246 yards.

Bills 20, Jets 10

Jeff Nixon returned an his fourth interception of the season 50 yards for a touchdown as Buffalo defeated New York.

Joe Ferguson hit on 18 of 29 passes for 207 yards and Nick Mike-Mayer kicked field goals of 47 and 38 yards for the Bills, who on their first two games of the season for the first time since 1975.

Chargers 30, Raiders 24

Dan Fouts completed 29 of 44 passes for 387 yards but his last one was the most important. That was a 24-yarder to wide receiver John Jefferson that carried San Diego past Oakland at 8:09 of overtime.

Oakland forced the extra period when reserve quarterback Jim Plunkett threw an 18-yard TD to Raymond Chester with 33 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Steelers 20, Colts 17

Terry Bradshaw's 24-yard TD pass to Jim Smith in the fourth quarter provided the winning points. But Pittsburgh's victory over Baltimore was not secure until safety Donnie Shell intercepted Bert Jones with 3½ minutes to play after the Colts had a first-and-goal from the three.

49ers 24, Cardinals 21

Ray Wersching's 33-yard field goal beat St. Louis in overtime. San Francisco tied the score in the final minute when Paul Hofer swept the right side 26 yards for a TD, caping an 80-yard drive.

Falcons 37, Patriots

Rookie tight end Junior Miller, shut out in his NFL debut a week ago, caught eight passes for 117 yards and two TDs from Steve Bartkowski as Atlanta surprised New England.

William Andrews ran for 124 yards for the Falcons and Bartkowski completed 19 of 39 attempts for 244 yards.

Bears 22, Saints 3

Walter Payton rushed for 183 yards in 18 carries including a personal record 69-yard TD run as Chicago battered New Orleans.

Before the TD, Payton spun off a 61-yard run but was caught when he slowed up for a block to develop.

Seahawks 17, Chiefs 16

Seattle scored all its points in the first half as Jim Zorn passed for a pair of TDs. Then the Seahawks held off a Kansas City rally that included three field goals by Nick Lowery, one of them a 57-yarder which set a Chiefs' club record.

Redskins 23, Giants 21

Mark Moseley's 45-yard field goal sank New York with 1:55 left. Earlier, Moseley had an extra point attempt blocked, ending a string of 69 consecutive conversions.

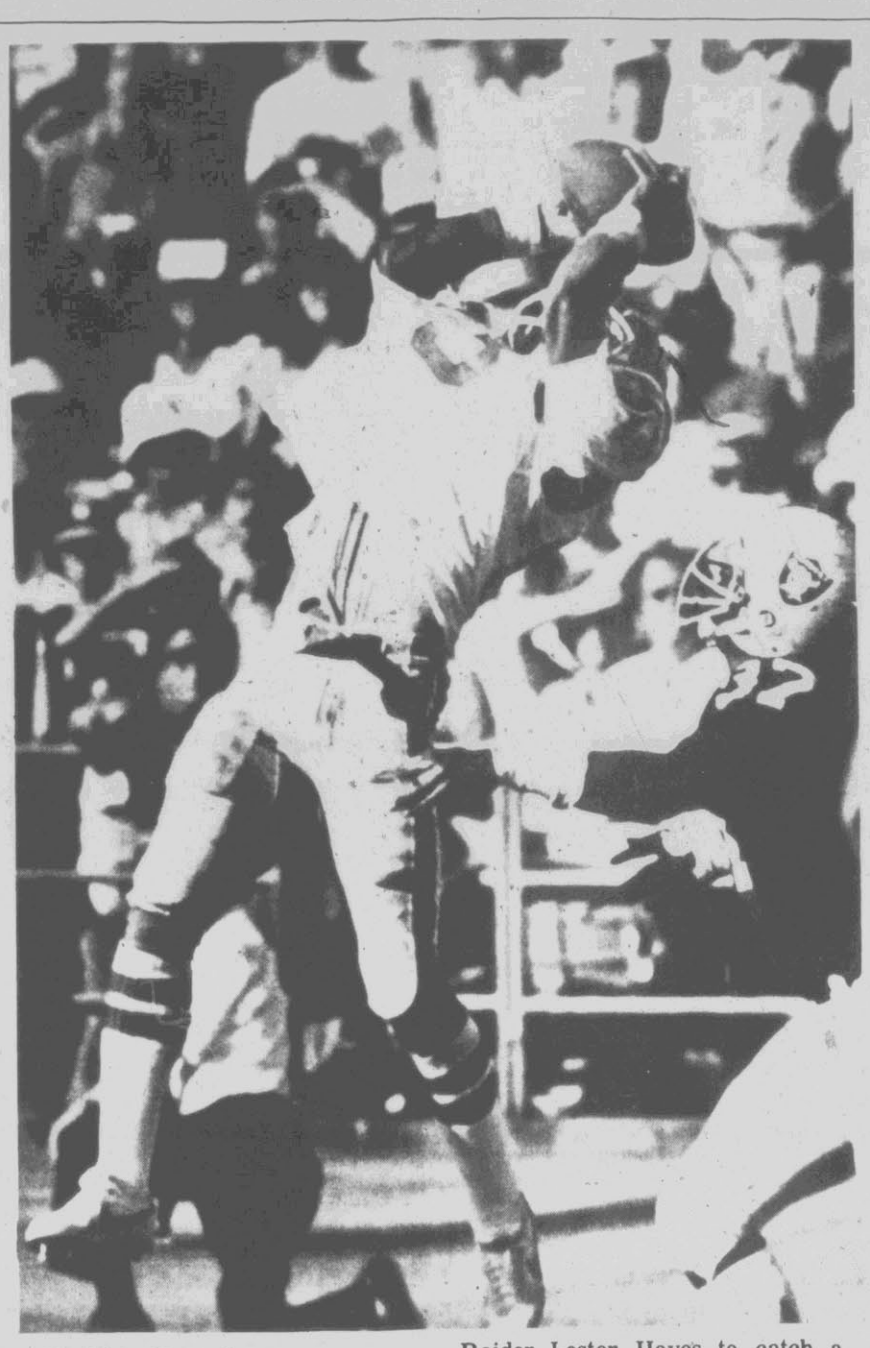

Phil Simms threw two TD passes for the Giants, the second giving New York the lead with just over five minutes to play.

Dolphins 17, Bengals 16

Uhe von Schamann kicked a 39-yard field goal with 1:55 to play, carrying Miami to its comeback victory over Cincinnati. Bill Barnett blocked a punt with 3:42 left, setting up the winning score for the Dolphins, who trailed 16-7 with just over five minutes to play.

Broncos 41, Cowboys 20

Safety Bill Thonmpson returned a fumble 32 yards for a TD and Denver's defense forced two other turnovers that gave the offense the ball at the Dallas 5-yard line, wearing down the Cowboys.

Hancock Hopes Second Victory Comes Sooner

(Scores, page 13)

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Phil Hancock had but one wish after scoring his first professional victory in the Hall of Fame golf tournament.

"Hopefully," Hancock said, "the second one won't take 3½ years. This was a long time coming.

"I always felt like I could win, but you can play a lot of good golf out here and not win. It seems like when it's your turn to win, it's your turn."

After a long struggle, much of it against physical problems, Hancock's first PGA Tour triumph came with relative ease Sunday.

He started the final round a single stroke in front, dropped a 60-foot birdie putt on the first hole and led the rest of the way with a solid, one-under-par 70.

"After that birdie, the guys had to come to me," said the low-key, soft-spoken Hancock. "I didn't feel like I had to keep pressing to make birdies. They had to come to me."

But the group of veterans who were the closest in pursuit failed to make a major challenge. He led by two shots or more until taking a meaningless bogey on the final hole at the famed old Pinehurst No.2 course, where he earned his playing rights in the PGA's qualifying school in 1977.

Hancock, 26, who joined the Tour with gaudy amateur credentials and a journalism degree from Florida, scored his first victory with a 275 total, nine shots under par.

Scott Simpson, playing about an hour in front of Hancock, vaulted over 13 players with a 7-under-par 64 and took second at 276.

Howard Twitty was third alone at 70-277. Lanny Wadkins, Tom Kite and Bill Rogers were another stroke back at 278. Wadkins had a closing 69, Rogers and Kite 72.

Fuzzy Zoeller, a former Masters champion, matched Simpson's 64 as the best round of the hot, sunny day and headed a group at 279. Also at that figure were Larry Nelson, Jay Haas, Ben Crenshaw and Jerry Pate. Haas had a 68.

Browns Host Oilers Tonight

Cleveland Worries Bum

CLEVELAND (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach Bum Phillips recalls what the Cleveland Browns did on television one Monday night last September.

More than 80,000 football fans watched in person as the Browns took no prisoners in a 26-7 thrashing of the Dallas Cowboys.

"Dallas went up there early last year for a Monday night game, and the Browns were sky high," Phillips said. "We have to prepare for that type of ball game."

Tonight's nationally televised contest between the Browns and American Conference Central Division rival Houston is again a sellout. It may give the Oilers an opportunity to play before the largest crowd in their history. The present record is the 80,020 fans who saw a Houston game at Buffalo in 1974.

Both the Oilers and the Browns lost their National Football League season openers last week.

Houston receivers had trouble hanging onto passes from new quarterback Ken Stabler. They dropped 11 of his throws en route to a 31-17 loss to the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

"We got behind and everybody wanted to make the big play to help us catch up," said Oilers receiver Rich Caster. "They were running away from the ball before they had it. There's no reason to expect it's going to happen, but sometimes it's contagious."

The maligned Cleveland defense surrendered 452 yards while the offense misfired in losing 34-17 to New England last week.

"We're capable of looking very good and we're capable of looking very bad," said Browns quarterback Brian Sipe. "We have to keep our opponents off balance. I don't have the kind of thing where I feel I can always throw to one guy or always hand the ball off to one guy. We seem to have to feel it."

The teams both will be missing key personnel because of injuries.

Houston receiver Ken Burrough is expected to be out for at least two more weeks with a knee injury, while linebacker Ted Thompson is questionable because of a bad knee.

Cleveland running back Greg Pruitt is still hobbling on a knee injured last year and is expected to see little, if any, action. Browns defensive lineman Jerry Sherk, who played only the first half of last week's contest, was unsure how his aching knee would affect him.

O's Fall, Now 5 Games Out

Yanks Continue To Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ron Davis doesn't get the publicity — but he does get the outs.

"I don't mind whether people know that I'm winning or losing games just so long as the team wins," says Davis.

While not getting as much notice as his more illustrious bullpen mate, Rich Gossage, the pencil-thin right-hander continues to pitch strong baseball — as he did Sunday with 4 1-3 innings of hitless relief against the Boston Red Sox.

That helped provide the Yankees with a 5-3 victory and greatly improved their chances of winning the American League East title. Coupled with Baltimore's 4-3 loss to Toronto in 13 innings, the Yankees improved their lead in the East to five games over the Orioles.

Elsewhere in the AL, Kansas beat Oakland 4-3, California trimmed Texas 3-1, Minnesota edged Chicago 3-2, Milwaukee defeated Seattle 3-2 and Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Detroit 5-4 in 13 innings and 3-0.

Davis checked the Red Sox after Boston had taken a 3-2 lead with a pair of runs in the fifth. Bucky Dent and Aurelio Rodriguez each lined two-run homers and Eric Soderholm smashed a solo shot as the hot Yankees came back to win their 13th game in 15.

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 3

Bob Bailor's single scored Lloyd Moseby from second base in the 13th inning to give Toronto its victory over Baltimore. The Toronto rally overshadowed a great day by Baltimore's Eddie Murray, who hit three homers for all the Oriole runs, including one in the ninth that sent the game into extra innings tied at 3-3.

Royals 4, A's 3

Pete LaCock hit a solo homer and Dan Quisenberry chalked up his 33rd save as Kansas City beat Oakland and closed in on the AL West title.

The victory dropped the Royals' "magic number" for clinching the AL West to two games. The Royals lead the second-place A's by 17 games.

Angels 3, Rangers 1

Bob Clark homered and Jason Thompson and Rick Miller each singled in a run to lead California over Texas.

Winner Frank Tanana, 9-10, got help from Mark Clear and Andy Hassler to pick up his 100th career victory.

Twins 3, White Sox 2

Mike Cubbage delivered a two-run pinch single with two out in the eighth inning to lead Minnesota over Chicago.

Ross Baumgarten, 2-11, who has not won since July 2, gave up a double in the eighth to Gary Ward and then walked John Castino before being replaced by Ed Farmer. Farmer struck out Roy Smalley and Glenn Adams but Cubbage, hitting for Ron Jackson, singled to score Ward and Castino.

Cecil Cooper doubled home two runs in the seventh inning, leading Milwaukee past Seattle.

Cooper's game-winning hit came off Mariner reliever Shane Rawley.

Indians 5-3, Tigers 4-0

Gary Gray, who had tied the game with a dramatic two-out home run in the ninth, delivered the winning run with a two-out single in the 13th to lead Cleveland over Detroit in the first game of their doubleheader.

Left-hander Bob Owchinko pitched his first American League shutout and his first victory since July 1, scattering four hits to pace the Indians' second-game victory.

Reds, Pittsburgh Falter

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

For the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates, it was a lost weekend.

The defending division champions in the National League both started the weekend in third place, but with high hopes of making two close pennant races even tighter. Instead, they fell even further behind and both now face difficult climbs to another championship.

The Reds dropped three games in a row to Los Angeles, including a 3-1 defeat Sunday, giving the Dodgers their first series sweep at Riverfront Stadium since it opened in 1970. Cincinnati now trails the Dodgers and the Houston Astros by 5½ games in the West.

At Montreal, the Pirates dropped two of three to the Expos, two of them shutouts, with Expos rookie Bill Gullickson hurling a 4-0 three-hitter in Sunday's finale. The Pirates now trail the Expos by 4½ and Philadelphia by 3½ in the East.

In other NL games, Houston defeated San Francisco 6-4, Philadelphia stayed close in the East by whipping St. Louis 8-4, the New York Mets outlasted the Chicago Cubs 10-7 and Atlanta edged San Diego 4-3.

Rick Monday drove in three runs with a homer and a single to pace the Dodgers attack, while Jerry Reuss stopped the Reds on five hits.

Reuss, 17-5 overall, is 11-1 this year against the five other contending teams from both divisions.

Gullickson, 9-4, struck out only three after whiffing 18 in his previous start for a rookie record, but he also allowed only three hits in his victory over the Pirates, his ninth triumph in 10 decisions.

Rodney Scott tripled and scored on a single by Andre Dawson, who later scored on an infield out to climax the Expos' three-run first inning.

Astros 6, Giants 4

Alan Ashby highlighted Houston's four-run second inning with a two-run single to help Houston win its fifth game in a row and 22nd out of the last 29.

Ashby's hit followed a single by Jose Cruz, a walk to Cesar Cedeno and a run-scoring single by Denny Walling.

Phillies 8, Cards 4

Philadelphia scored six runs in the third inning, three of them on Bake McBride's three-run homer, to stay only one game behind Montreal in the East.

Rookie Marty Bystrom shut out St. Louis for the first seven innings, allowing five hits, but he had to be relieved by new acquisition Sparky Lyle because of an aching foot.

Braves 4, Padres 3

Jerry Royster's fourth single of the game drove in pinch-runner Gary Cooper in the ninth inning to lift Atlanta over San Diego.

Chris Chambliss homered for the Braves.

Mets 10, Cub 7

Lee Mazzilli drove in five runs, including a single for the tying tally in the ninth, before Steve Henderson's three-run homer won the game for New York over Chicago.

Waltrip Outduels Gant At Dover 500

DOVER, Del. (AP) — It was a blown engine that neither Darrell Waltrip nor Harry Gant will ever forget and it didn't belong to either of them.

Gant, who never has won on the NASCAR Grand National circuit, appeared well on his way to a runaway victory Sunday in the $158,000 Dover 500.

Then Travis Tiller, running among the also-rans, began spewing smoke and oil in turn four.

The eighth and final yellow flag of the 500-mile race came out on lap 441 and all the leaders headed for quick pit stops.

When the restart came six laps later, Gant, who had held leads of up to 19 seconds before the yellow, found Waltrip and Buddy Baker breathing down his neck.

Within two laps both had passed him and Waltrip held the lead over the last 52 laps of the grueling race on Dover Downs International Speedway's one-mile banked oval.

"I had some problems with tires midway through the race and Harry and Buddy both got pretty far ahead of me," said Waltrip, who won his fifth race of the season, but his first since June 8. "My guys (in the pits) rounded up some good tires, we got a break on that yellow and the car hung together."

Waltrip and Gant staged a classic duel over the last 15 laps of the race that had the crowd of about 35,500 on its feet and screaming. Baker fell back to a somewhat distant third and Gant tried everything he knew to get around Waltrip's green and white Chevrolet.

He wound up finishing about two car lengths off the pace.

"I thought we had it won, but the caution did us in," said Gant, in only his second full season on the Grand National circuit. "That (yellow) really hurt because we were only three seconds away from lapping Waltrip.

"If we could have gotten a lap on him, we would have won because we could outrun Baker. I tried passing Waltrip high and low, but I didn't have the horsepower to get around him."

Yankee Clipper Recalls Own .400 Attempt

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

George Brett's quest to become the first major league baseball player in 39 years to bat .400 strikes a familiar chord in the memory of Joe DiMaggio, the fabled Yankee Clipper.

He underwent a similar experience but one with a discordant note.

"The year was 1939. We had the pennant practically clinched — 12 or 12½ games ahead — and only a couple or three weeks to play," the great centerfielder of the New York Yankees recalled when the matter was brought to his attention.

"I remember I was batting more than .400 — around .412, I think. Then I got this terrible allergy in my left eye — my batting eye — and I could hardly see out of it.

"But you know how it was in those days. Joe McCarthy (Yankee manager) didn't believe in cheese champions. So he made me play every day. Nobody would dare ask to sit out a game. So I went into a terrible slump.

"I'm not sure about the details exactly. Don't write it until you check. Be sure and look it up."

We did. Joe was pretty close to being right on all counts.

On Sept. 9, records show, DiMaggio was batting .409. The Yankees were so far ahead of the second place Boston Red Sox — 16 games on Sept. 12 — you couldn't recognize them without a telescope.

His left eye half closed and in severe pain, DiMag dutifully took his turns at bat, went 0 for 11 at one stage and saw his average plummet to the .380s.

Brett, the siege gun of the Kansas City Royals, boosted his average over .400 earlier this month, creating the exciting possibility that baseball may have the first hitter to reach that plateau since Ted Williams of the Red Sox in 1941. But Brett suffered an injury to his right hand and his average fell to .396.

Brett was promptly taken out of the lineup until the ailment could heal. DiMaggio experienced no such sympathetic treatment.

Pigeon Results

The Golden Leaf Racing Pigeon Club began its 1980 young bird season Sunday with two races from Lumberton, N.C.

In the first race, Virgil Thompson was first and Rayford Kennedy took second and third out of 96 birds.

In the second race, Kennedy took first while Frankie Beaman captured second and third out of 99 birds.

Wishful Thinking

Ben Crenshaw, who led after two rounds of the Hall of Fame Golf Tournament at Pinehurst, watches his drive on the fifth tee Saturday. Crenshaw found the fairway with this drive but ran into troubles later in the round and struggled in with a three-over par 74 to finish five strokes behind winner Phil Hancock. (Reflector Photo By Tom Baines)

Hancock...

Nelson 69, Crenshaw 70 and Pate 72.

Tom Watson, who won this title in 1978 and '79, finished with a 69 that left him well back at 283.

Hancock missed much of last season with back problems and failed to make the top 60 money-winners, the list which determines exemptions from qualifying.

"It was a big disappointment to me," he said. "I wanted to come back this year."

Saturday night, except for one 15 minute period — the third quarter — East Carolina University's Pirates were in just about total command of the football game against Southwestern Louisiana.

But, oh, that third period.

It was a nightmare. The Pirates fumbled the ball six times, losing five of them. And the alert Ragin' Cajuns took full advantage, turning three of the fumbles into touchdowns, and another into a field goal.

It all produced a 27-21 victory for Southwestern, and made Ed Emory's debut in Ficklen Stadium one that would sooner be forgotten than unforgettable.

The Pirates played well on defense, but having to stay on the field for so long in the third period contributed to the defensive letdowns that caused the scoring.

The offense, in the meantime, turned itself around in the final quarter, and came back to score 14 points. Had they started just a little earlier, or had made a few less turnovers in that fateful third period, the outcome could have been different.

Certainly, the Pirates showed a lot of character in their comeback. It would have been just as easy to head for the dressing rooms with the heads down, losing 27-7.

Because of all this, we believe that the Pirates really didn't deserve their fate. It became one of those things where a snowball heads down hill, gathering momemtum and more snow until it becomes an avalanche.

Thus it was in the third period when the fumbles started, they just grew.

Perhaps the Pirates were looking ahead. Perhaps they were looking back. Maybe it was just one of those things that happens when football is played. Certainly no team can expect to win just by going onto the field. Oklahoma and Ohio State were shown that Saturday in their games. They won, but they had to overcome opponent leads to do so.

In the Pirates' case, their rally came just too late.

• • •

This Saturday, the Pirates face a much tougher opponent. Florida State, in its two games, has scored 68 points, and has not allowed a single point.

That will put one East Carolina record in jeopardy. Against Southwestern Louisiana, the Pirates scored in their 100th consecutive game. They are in fourth place nationally in scoring string, and if nothing else, would like to keep this string alive.

It will not be easy, however. Certainly, East Carolina will have to play at its best against the powerful Seminoles. Mistakes like East Carolina made against SWL will be even more fatal. By far, FSU is probably the strongest team ever faced by the Pirates.

The scoring string started back in 1971, when Sonny Randle was coach. Toledo shut out the Pirates in the opening game, 45-0. And the 27 points scored by Southwestern was the most by an opponent in Ficklen since that same year, when Bowling Green scored 47 in the third home game of the season.

• • •

The five fumbles lost had some folks in the press box wondering what the NCAA record for most fumbles in a quarter is.

The record book doesn't say. But the record for the most fumbles in a game is 17, by Wichita State against Florida State in 1969. In that game, Wichita State lost ten, also an NCAA record, so the five coughed up in one quarter, could easily be a record.

A dubious honor, if anything.

Young Holds Off Melton's Charge

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Despite her four-shot victory in a $100,000 LPGA tour tournament that moved her into second place on the money list, Donna Caponi Young wasn't the only leading lady of the final round.

Nancy Lopez-Melton came out of the pack to shoot a tournament-record, 8-under-par 64 and grab second place, and tour sophomore Beth Daniel became the first female golf pro to go over the $200,000 mark in earnings in one year.

It all happened Sunday over the 6,106-yard Elizabeth Manor Golf and Country Club course, where Young had been in command since the second round of the 72-hole tournament.

A closing 74 gave Young an 11-under total of 277 and a check for $15,000 that boosted her earnings this year to $192,766.

But she still trails Daniel, whose 69 gave her a tie for fifth place at 284 with Sandra Spuzich and H.B. Duntz. The $3,566 Daniel won boosted her total earnings to $202,108 for 1980.

"At least I am over the $200,000 mark and now I can play relaxed again. This year has far surpassed any of my expectations," Daniel said.

Lopez-Melton, who said she "had eight birdie putts and two others hit the hole," finished at 281 and earned $9,800. Pat Bradley, five shots behind Young when the day began, had a 74 for a 282 total worth $7,000 and Sally Little earned $5,000 for her 68—283.

Despite only one birdie in the final round, Young had no challenge after Bradley went double bogey-bogey on the 10th and 11th holes

Duo Wins GTC Crown

Though it required three match points, Wes Hankins and Ron Hignite captured the Greenville Tennis Club Men's 35 doubles championship defeating Jim Bailey and Steve Creech 6-2, 6-3 Sunday afternoon at the River Birch Tennis Center.

After taking the first set easily, Hankins and Hignite did not take command of the second set until, at 3-3, they broke service and then held on for the victory.

The second set was highlighted by fine net play, with several points having all four players in rapid exchange of reflex volleys and chip shots.

The GTC will hold its junior and 35 age division singles championships next weekend. For more information, call Bob Turnage at 752-7813.

We can handle all the details — planning, rights-of-way, permits, construction, even landscaping. We'll make sure you get your building on-time and on-budget. And we'll do it using construction methods and building systems that can cut up to 40% off some conventional building timetables.

Southern Governors Ponder Prospects For Carter

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — The non-political Southern Governors Conference took off with informal political discussions on whether an ex-Southern governor could take this key region in his tough fight for re-election to the White House.

Of the five state governors who attended Sunday night's opening social reception, two predicted their states would go to President Carter after a close race, two said Carter would overtake current sentiment for Republican Ronald Reagan and one put his state directly in Reagan's camp.

Formal business opened today with a session on energy, but just as association chairman and host Virginia Gov. John Dalton predicted, election talk dominated the casual get-togethers.

"I'm certain all the governors will be talking about the campaign, but I doubt it will get out on the floor," said Dalton, head of the only one of two association member states to reject Carter four years ago. Oklahoma was the other.

Dalton gave odds on Texas, Florida and Tennessee joining Virginia in choosing Reagan.

A recent Associated Press analysis agreed with Dalton on Virginia and Texas but listed Tennessee as leaning toward Carter and called Florida a toss-up.

Gov. Richard W. Riley of South Carolina, another toss-up on The AP list, is calling a close race in his state but predicts a strong undercurrent of support for the president will show up by Nov. 4.

"The closer you get to the election date, the more sobering the consideration. I think that gravitates toward Carter's favor," said Riley, Carter's South Carolina campaign manager in 1976, when the state went to Carter early on election night.

"I think Carter has the momentum. Things are getting better," Riley said.

North Carolina will also see a close race, according to Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., but one that will eventually go to Carter.

The president is "trusted and respected. Our people identify with Carter," said Hunt, the only one of the Southern governors up for re-election who came to the conference. "The average working person thinks, 'He's one of us.'"

The Democratic governors of Mississippi and Oklahoma — two states leaning toward Reagan in The AP analysis — acknowledged the GOP leads at the moment but predicted Carter would overtake Reagan by November.

"The folks in our state are just beginning to get interested in the race and they like the simple solutions Carter proposes," said Gov. William Winter of Mississippi, who added:

"They want someone who knows the problems of the area and who they feel comfortable with. Reagan was the governor of a very rich state who just does not have a feeling for the South."

Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma said, "We have a pretty strong economy in Oklahoma, so Carter isn't taking the economic criticism he is in many other states. The people have a personal confidence in Carter and in the judgments he makes. They trust him and his integrity. That's the biggest thing he has going for him."

Only 12 chief executives of the 17 states, plus Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, who are members of the Southern Governors Association were expected to be on hand for the meetings in this restored colonial capital.

Dalton said the governors of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Louisiana and Missouri are either campaigning for re-election or busy with their state legislatures. Gov. William P. Clements Jr. of Texas is ill.

After today's session on energy, the governors will attend meetings on Southern growth, trade, education and the impact of immigration policies on the South.

The informal political discussions probably will continue at the social events, including an evening at an area amusement park and a black-tie dinner Tuesday night.

The board meets the third Wednesday of each month with meetings open to the public.

The Pitt County Committee for the Employment of the Handicapped will sponsor an awards banquet October 3, to honor those selected as outstanding in supporting the handicapped.

The session is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

A number of local citizens, organizations and businesses have been nominated for consideration by the State Awards Committee.

May Overhaul Mileage Data

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's fuel-economy figures for new cars, criticized for years by motorists who say they don't reflect reality, may be overhauled.

The Environmental Protection Agency is considering various formulas to adjust the laboratory test figures downward and better reflect what a driver can expect on the road. EPA officials say they have not decided how much the figures should be reduced, but they hope to issue notice of a proposed rule change in the next few weeks.

Critics say the effort is long overdue. An Energy Department study of the actual mileage drivers got showed the EPA ratings for 1978 model cars were 21 percent too high.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., issuing his own report on the ratings, said they were "more myth than reality."

"Some of the disparity can be blamed on the auto companies that exploit every loophole and in a few cases may be cheating outright, but much of the blame has to be laid at the doors of the EPA," Aspin said. "The public is being misled and the worst thing is that it's the federal government doing the misleading."

The tests are done in laboratories with cars running on treadmills rather than under actual driving conditions, a situation the EPA admits leads to inflated figures since rough roads, wind resistance and other weather factors aren't present to reduce mileage.

But the EPA maintains it is necessary to test the cars in the laboratory to get a uniformity of results.

Aspin's report also attacks the EPA tests because fuel consumption is not measured directly but by an indirect sampling of exhaust emissions. He said this analysis can exaggerate fuel economy by 4 percent.

But Gregg Dana, an EPA official who works in the fuel-test program, defended the exhaust method, which compares carbon levels in the fuel with levels in the exhaust to determine gasoline mileage.

He said the method gives an accurate reading and also provides the agency with information on emission levels, the principal reason the agency runs the tests.

But Dana said EPA was considering using various formulas to shrink the laboratory mileage number to one that would more accurately reflect road conditions.

If a proper procedure can be determined, the agency hopes to substitute that number when mileage figures for the 1982 models are released in September 1981.

Such a change would be certain to meet stiff opposition from the auto industry, which bases multimillion-dollar advertising campaigns on the mileage figures each year.

The EPA in 1979 stopped releasing both a city and highway mileage estimate in favor of just the city figure because it felt the lower number would better reflect what motorists could hope to achieve.

Also tied up in the whole debate is the law that automakers must meet company-wide mileage averages, based on the EPA estimates. The requirement this year is that a company's cars average 22 mpg. The figure goes up to 27.5 mpg for 1985 models.

The EPA estimates released last week on 1981 models showed domestic cars — the Chevrolet Chevette and the new Ford Escort — reaching the 30 mpg plateau for the first time. But for the third straight year, the cars getting the best mileage are all foreign-made.

'Nova' Field Getting Crowded

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Public television's long-running science series, "Nova," begins its seventh season Sept. 30 with the program's new producer, John Mansfield, well aware that the field is becoming a bit crowded.

"One thing that frightens me about 'Nova,'" says Mansfield, "is though we've been doing quite well for some time, now we've got to stay ahead of the competition."

CBS unveiled "Universe," a science magazine with Walter Cronkite as chief correspondent, a year ago, and ABC has something called 'Quest" in the works.

What's more, there's pressure from within the Public Broadcasting Service: A "National Geographic Special" called "The Invisible World," broadcast in March, was the highest-rated public TV show of the last season.

Mansfield's tactic is a simple one: "Give them a meal, not a heavy one, but a balanced diet. I think they will leave the other programs," he says, without elucidation, "slightly hungry."

Of course, Mansfield's job is not as clear-cut as that. He's got to attract viewers away from the commercial networks and to PBS with programs that are at least interesting and in many instances controversial.

"Quite a lot of people have never seen 'Nova,' and the man on the street is not going to come over without some reason," he says. "If everything else on the networks is rubbish, and he does flip to us, we have to hold on to him.

"If he turns us off, that's disaster. I'm not out to vulgarize 'Nova,' but I do want the program to become more and more popular."

The first three programs of the season are intriguing in concept.

"The Pinks and the Blues," to be fed to PBS stations Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. EDT, examines the subtle environmental conditioning that determines the way small boys and girls behave.

"The Cancer Detectives of Lin Xian," Oct. 7, looks at the pursuit by scientists in China of a virulent and elusive form of cancer common to a region called Lin Xian.

"The Sea Behind the Dunes," Oct. 14, studies the fragile tidal ecosystem on Pleasant Bay, a Cape Cod inlet on the coast of Massachusetts

Mansfield took charge as executive producer of "Nova" in April. A graduate of Cambridge University, he wrote, produced and directed more than 100 science documentaries for the British Broadcasting Corp.

"'Nova' is anything we want to make it," he maintains, "with the mild caveat that it intends to look at science and technology.

"And that is the most enormous brief for anything in television, certainly the most daunting.

"We can never be the definitive, academic work on any subject," he says. "What we can do is a little bit of teaching. We can be stimulating, and I consider that my job. If a viewer is stimulated to read a book on a subject we cover, then I've done my job."

Mansfield is convinced science can be entertaining, and that complex subjects often can be explained with a touch of humor.

"We've got Dudley Moore in a show in September," he says, "and I don't know of any other science show that's had him. That doesn't mean we have Bo Derek the next week, but I do believe we can be funny when it's appropriate.

"Occassionally, I've got to come up with an upopular show," Mansfield says, "something someone might not like, but that 'Nova' thinks is important.

"'Plague on our Children' was not popular," he says, "but it was important to do a program on the Love Canal controversy." That show, broadcast last season, cost "Nova" an underwriter.

"Nova" is produced by WGBH, the public TV station in Boston, with support from TRW, Inc., the National Science Foundation, and other PBS stations.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK872 ♡KQ83 ◇7 ♣K102
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	Pass	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Even though partner did not have enough to act freely at the two-level, we would not sell out to two diamonds. This is a fine hand, well suited to play in any of the other suits. For this reason we prefer a double to a bid of either two spades or two hearts. Since partner has not yet bid, this is for takeout. The double is more flexible than a suit bid because it presents partner with two additional alternatives—playing in clubs, or converting for penalties if he has length and strength in diamonds.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠9863 ♡7 ◇AJ652 ♣843
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble.	Pass	1 ◇
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—By first doubling and then bidding a suit of his own, North has shown a reasonably good hand and almost surely a five-card heart suit. However, that is no reason for you to strand him in an unsound contract. If partner doesn't have diamond support for you, he should have spades, so bid one spade. Indeed, we might have bid one spade at our first turn.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q1062 ♡6 ◇K872 ♣AQ92
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Normally, we are reluctant to let the opponents buy the contract at the one-level, but here they have come to rest in one of our better suits and they might well have a tremendous fit in hearts—if we give them the chance to locate it. At rubber bridge or in a team competition, we would let the opponents play in one spade. In a pair tournament, however, we would compete with one no trump.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q93 ♡Q982 ◇QJ10 ♣AK6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 ◇	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—There are two obvious choices—one no trump and two spades. Since we have a balanced, minimum opening bid, it is foolhardy to make a bid that might unduly encourage partner. Therefore, we would choose one no trump as our rebid—that accurately describes both the shape and strength of our hand.

Q.5—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠92 ♡Q76 ◇1097542 ♣84
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	2 ◇
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dble.
Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—With an expert partner, we would trust his decision. After all, East's three-suited auction announced extreme shortness in diamonds, and despite this, partner has gone for the jugular. With most of our partners, however—those who think that A-K-Q of diamond are three defensive tricks—we would take out insurance by bidding five diamonds. Letting the opponents complete the rubber with a doubled, vulnerable game is expensive.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A10954 ♡7 ◇Q8742 ♣Q3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—In terms of high cards, you have a minimum, but what a minimum! Partner has freely supported your five-card suit, your queen in his suit is a very valuable card, and any side values partner has should be in diamonds. In addition, you have a singleton in the opponents' suit. Anything less than four spades indicates that you do not fully appreciate the power of distribution.

San Francisco Opens Brand New Concert Hall

By RICK GLADSTONE
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The contrast is startling. On one side of the street is the Gothic, gray Opera House. On the other, towering windows and sheer white walls gleaming in the summer fog, is the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall.

The imposing structure, just a block from City Hall, will shelter its first public performance Tuesday night, with maestro Edo de Waart at the podium, pianist Rudolf Serkin among the performers and all 3,000 seats crowded with high society and high rollers, each of whom paid $250 to $1,000 to attend a moment in civic history.

The $2.5 million edifice is named in honor of 80-year-old Louise Davies, a symphony lover and widow of millionaire Ralph Davies.

"My husband left me a lot of money and I wanted to do something with it in one piece," she says of the $5 million she contributed to the project. A coalition of private foundations, corporate sponsors and wealthy donors raised the rest.

"It's like going from high school to college, from a Volkswagen to a Rolls-Royce," says de Waart, the 39-year-old Dutch-born conductor.

Opening night, which will be broacast nationally on public television, will feature the world premiere of Pulitzer Prize-winner David Del Tredici's "Happy Voices," Berlioz' Roman Carnival Overture, Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 and Beethoven's Symphony No. 5.

Some say the symphony's 200,000-square-foot new home, designed by Skidmore, Owings & Merrill of San Francisco and Pietro Belluschi of Protland, Ore., will make San Francisco the West's symphony showcase. But de Waart is simply grateful that he and his 100 musicians finally have a home of their own.

"We are the hall's main reason for being," he says. "We were a guest in another house until now. I'm not knocking the opera house. But opera sounds better in there. Don't ask me why."

Symphony musicians also are excited to finally have a hall of their own. They, too, complained that the opera house was not built for symphony concerts. Some say they could hardly hear themselves play in the cavernous opera house because of poor acoustics.

"It wasn't much inspiration to make beautiful music," says David Schneider, 62, a first violinist who has played with the symphony since 1936.

But experts who designed the hall say the acoustics should be among the finest in the world.

"People sitting in back will hear the same music as people up front," says Theodore Schultz, a Cambridge, Mass. acoustician who helped plan the hall.

But the real test won't come until the first notes begin to echo off the cream-colored walls and amongst the rose-red seats.

"It is wishful thinking to say it will sound great," de Waart says. "We will have to learn to play in it. It's like playing a new violin. It will take awhile to break it in."

The luxurious interior features bars on every level, with carpeted lounges, mirrored walls and glistening chrome and polished brass accents.

Other opening week events include a performance of Mahler's Symphony No. 8 on Wednesday and an appearance as both conductor and soloist by violinist Yehudi Menuhin on Saturday.

Small music groups criticized the hall at first, calling it a dream of the city's privileged elite. To counter that, a concerted effort has been mounted to sell inexpensive tickets — prices will range from $4 to $18 — to schedule children's concerts and to offer the hall to other musical efforts.

"I would welcome it if Davies became the heart of a lot of things," de Waart says. "I don't want it to become a temple."

'Airplane' Star In Another Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Robert Hays will star in "Utilities," a contemporary drama with comedic overtones to be filmed in Chicago.

He plays a social worker who leads a consumer revolt against ever-increasing utility bills. Hays, the star of "Airplane," is currently filming "Take This Job and Shove It" on location in Iowa.

Cain Novel To Become A Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stacy Keach and James Franciscus have been signed to star in "Butterfly," which will be filmed on location in Nevada.

The movie also stars Stuart Whitman, Lois Nettleton and singer Piz Zadora. Matt Climber will direct from a screenplay by John Goff and Climber. It was adapted from a novel by James Cain.

Refugees At Ft. Chaffee Hate Fence

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — Raul Garcia Moreno hates the fence that wraps around his home. He is not alone.

Moreno and other refugees at the Fort Chaffee relocation center blame the new fence on the refugees that soon will arrive from three other centers.

"It was like I was in prison for 21 years when I was in Cuba," Moreno said through an interpreter. "Now I am here in another prison. It's like a concentration camp."

The 10-foot chain link fence, topped with three feet of concertina wire, is part of a security plan formulated to deal with the refugees coming to Chaffee from bases in Florida, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania — as many as 8,000 new Cubans.

"I don't want them to come here because they are troublemakers," said Moreno, 25. "They will slow down the process."

"There is fear among the people," said barracks chief Jose Gonzalez. "They want the priority for the people already here. It is a big problem for the people here."

Despite the new precautions, some officials believe there may well be problems within the fence-ringed compound.

"Any trouble that we might have will be because we don't put enough emphasis on recreation, teaching, communication and being among the refugees," said Glen Wyman, program administrator for the State Department. "Unless we get more priority put on those things, we're going to have a problem.

"These people are tired of being pushed around," Wyman said. "We're not dealing with cattle or sacks of flour here, we're dealing with people."

The first group of refugees — more than 700 — will arrive from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., within 48 hours after Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton approves a security plan drawn up by base officials.

Wyman said the base is ready for those refugees, but preparations for others to come later this month and in October are shakier.

He said a group of officials from Eglin will accompany the refugees to Chaffee so that "familiar faces" will be on the scene.

He said the refugees will be assigned their barracks as quickly as possible and allowed to mix with the 3,000 refugees alreay at Chaffee. "We're going to try to get them to get together," he said.

Sections of the camp are also being fenced off to separate families, single men, minors and troublemakers. That action is aimed at preventing the kind of bullying that has occurred at other camps.

"We're trying to set this camp up to make it as welcome and ready for the new people as possible," Wyman said.

But he admits the arrival of the refugees from Fort McCoy, Wis., and Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., could be tumultuous if proper precautions aren't taken.

"They're supposed to remove the youths, remove the people that are mentally unbalanced and remove the troublemakers before they get to Chaffee," he said.

Despite the plan, Wyman said he is sure a number of refugees who should have been separated from the general population will arrive at Chaffee.

All the refugees arriving at Chaffee will get new identification badges, color-coded for the areas to which they will be confined. Known troublemakers assigned to the stockade area, for example, will be given brown badges; single males will have blue ones.

The refugees at Chaffee were issued the new badges last week.

The preparations for the arrival of the new refugees has slowed the already beleaguered process of matching Cubans with sponsors.

"We're gearing up again," said Tevera Triplet of World Church Services, a volunteer agency that is helping relocate the refugees.

5. The proposed operator of the proposed Facility has demonstrated the capability to operate such Facility.

6. The financing of the Facility by the Authority will not cause or result in the abandonment of an existing industrial or manufacturing facility of the proposed operator or an affiliate elsewhere within the State of North Carolina.
