Iran's Parliament To Debate Hostages

By The Associated Press

The Iranian Parliament voted today to select a special committee to deal with the U.S. hostage issue, and discussed the number, qualifications and scope of authority of panel members, Tehran Radio announced as the debate on the 52 Americans got under way 10 1/2 months after they were seized.

Hardline deputy Sayyed Fakhroddin Rahimi said "the spy-hostages must be tried and executed and the non-spy hostages released on conditions," but Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani told him the statement was out of order and that he and the others should stick to setting up procedures for considering the issue.

The speaker said discussions on the new committee will continue when Parliament resumes Thursday.

Rafsanjani and two key Iranian religious leaders said Monday the revolutionary regime has not dropped its demand that the U.S. government apologize for past actions in Iran, and the Islamic fundamentalist Tehran newspaper Ettelaat again demanded the hostages be tried as spies.

The demand for apologies has been rejected repeatedly by the United States, and when it was omitted from four conditions for the hostages' release spelled out Friday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, some U.S. officials in Washington were optimistic that a breakthrough might be developing.

However, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie told a news conference in Washington Monday there have been half a dozen statements by Iranian officials over the past month which could have been interpreted as positive but which did not pan out.

"I think it is very important to be cautious in our reaction to statements coming out of Iran," he said. "I think it would be a mistake to raise expectations."

A few hours earlier, President Carter told a meeting in Texas: "They're making statements in Iran that may very well lead to a resolution of this problem in the future." Muskie said the president was not suggesting either optimism or pessimism and that it would be inaccurate to portray Carter's statement as signaling a possible breakthrough.

Muskie said the conditions laid down by Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, might lead to progress, "but the reverse is also true." The conditions included the return to Iran of the fortune which it charges the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi transferred abroad, the unfreezing of Iranian assets in the United States, the withdrawal of all U.S. claims against Iran and a pledge not to interfere in Iranian affairs in the future.

Muskie said although the U.S. government has been working through various channels in recent months to open talks with the Iranians he couldn't point to any effort that has produced results. He said the Montreal newspaper La Presse was "incorrect" when it reported that secret negotiations have been under way between the State Department and former Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh in an effort to get the hostages released before the U.S. presidential election.

La Presse reported from Washington today that negotiations for the release of the hostages are now focused on return of the shah's wealth and a protocol on future relations between the United States and Iran. It quoted an intermediary who asked to remain anonymous that Muskie's recent letter to Iran's prime minister asking release of the hostages "was well received." The source added: "At whatever cost, the U.S. must show the utmost discretion in the next weeks."

Found Bones Of Big Bird Out Of School Due Walkouts

By WARREN E. LEARY AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was master of the air, casting a chilling shadow over the land below. It was the largest known bird ever to soar above the earth, and 5 million years later man looks upon it with awe.

At a rugged dig in Argentina, scientists have discovered the remains of a giant bird the size of a small airplane — a creature that stretched its wings a full 25 feet while in flight.

The discovery of fossilized bones, announced Monday by the National Geographic Society, has been confirmed by scientists at the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County, Calif.

The remains are of a bird that measured 11 feet from beak to tail, weighed between 160 and 170 pounds and, when standing, could have looked a 6-foot-tall man directly in the eye.

"This makes it the world's largest known flying bird," said Dr. Kenneth E. Campbell, curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles facility. "It's definitely a most spectacular creature."

Campbell said the biggest flying bird today is the Andean Condor, which has a 10-foot wingspan and can weigh about 35 pounds.

The largest previously known flying birds were extinct varieties with wingspans approaching 16 feet. But the biggest creatures known to take to the air were flying reptiles called pterosaurs, some of which had wingspans of up to 35 feet.

In the latest discovery, about a dozen bones from one giant bird were recovered at a site 100 miles west of Buenos Aires by Drs. Eduardo P. Tonni and Rosendo Pascual of Argentina's La Plata Museum.

School buses were rolling again today in Columbus, Ohio, after non-teaching employees ratified a new contract and ended a strike that began Sept. 4.

But bus drivers "drove right over" picket lines in San Jose, Calif., where administrators warned high school students who honor a teacher strike there they may not graduate or get the credits they'll need for college.

Teachers' picket lines across the nation, meanwhile, affected some 550,000 students in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Washington, California and Arizona.

The Columbus walkout by the 1,500-member union had crippled the 73,000-student district's transportation system, which was providing court-ordered busing for desegregation.

The contract approved Monday night gave the employees $400,000 that was part of a $1 million windfall in local tax revenues.

Elsewhere in Ohio, there were five teacher strikes affecting 90,650 students.

In California, as the strike by 1,600 San Jose teachers entered its second week, bus drivers on Monday refused to stage a wildcat walkout as teachers requested.

"This morning our bus drivers drove right over them," said Bill Callahan, spokesman for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, which represents the drivers.

Some hard feelings between the teachers union and AFSCME stems from 1968 when teachers refused to honor an AFSCME picket line, he said.

Assistant Superintendent Aaron Seandel told high school students they would lose credits for playing hooky during the strike. "The bell has rung. We can't wait any longer, and we have to (re-sume) classes come hell or high water," he said.

The district's 33,000 students have had substitute teachers during the strike, and officials have met with parents and students to bolster attendance.

San Jose teachers want a 12 percent raise, and the district has offered a 4.7 percent increase.

The 34,600 students in Rochester, N.Y., were back in class after their 2,300 teachers returned to work with a new contract. The teachers, who struck Sept. 2, won a 15 percent pay hike over two years, raising the average annual salary from $19,422 to $24,120.

Classrooms were closed Monday to 289,000 students in Pennsylvania today as teachers in two more school districts joined picket lines. In all, some 14,500 teachers in 15 school districts are on strike.

In Philadelphia, the state's largest school district with 220,000 pupils, no progress was reported in talks to end the 3-week strike by 11,000 teachers.

In Michigan, 19 strikes by 5,000 teachers shut school doors for nearly 100,000 students Monday, the Michigan Education Association reported.

Three Illinois school districts remained on strike, idling 11,000 students and 700 teachers. Teachers ended strikes in two districts, and 2,500 students returned to class in the East Richland School District, while 772 pupils were back at their desks in LaSalle.

Iran Splits With Saudis Over OPEC Pricing Plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran kept up its attack today on the proposal to set up a joint system of pricing and production controls for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, saying it ignored the needs of the oil nations.

Iran's opposition and the resulting split between it and Saudi Arabia was good news for the United States and other industrial countries. It meant that the Saudis would not increase their prices before the end of the year and would not reduce production. And that meant that the present glut on the oil market would continue, putting pressure on other OPEC producers to sell for less than the cartel's official base price of $32 for a 42-gallon barrel of crude oil.

Oil ministers and other representatives of the 13 OPEC nations opened a three-day meeting Monday called to agree on machinery to adjust crude oil prices upward every three months to keep up with world inflation, currency fluctuations and economic growth in industrial countries, and to reduce production whenever necessary to keep the price up. The goal is to raise the cost of oil eventually to the price of other sources of energy, which OPEC economists estimate is now the equivalent of $60 a barrel.

Amir Sepahban, Iran's representative on the commission named to work out pricing formulas, said the proposed long-range strategy was being urged as a system that would allow consumers to predict the prices they would have to pay.

"Why do we need predictability of prices?" he asked. "Nobody gives us any predictability of prices of the things we buy."

"When you look at the formulas, not one single formula has to do with the economics of OPEC countries. You can invent any kind of prices you want, but there's no guarantee it will stick in the market."

Iran shattered expectations of easy agreement on the plan with a demand at the start of the meeting that Saudi Arabia, OPEC's biggest producer, cut its production of 9.5 million barrels a day to help raise crude oil above the present prevailing market price of $29.50 a barrel.

SCHOOL BUS SOUNDOFF

I wonder how many parents take their children to school and pick them up each day (when a school bus passes each of their houses) because of fear. This past week a serious offense was committed against my grandchild on a county school bus. I've learned a lot since then. This is not the only time busses have had serious problems. They just are not reported for fear of harrassment to the students and their families. I resent victims of injustice being placed in this position. Parent, think — if you carry your children to school when a bus is available, you are being used. Our schools have a serious problem with student behavior, and one driver cannot be expected to pay attention to his or her driving and still keep order and prevent serious incidents from taking place. The schools find money for whatever else is needed and I think it's time that monitors be hired and given some authority, perhaps some counseling, too, about how to deal with children and their problems. Also, it's time that serious attention and counseling be given to the children that do misbehave, that they receive more than a slap on the hand, which proves to them that people in authority really don't have much authority or else won't use it.

'Old Look' For Elementary Grade Report Cards

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Report cards for students in the elementary grades this year will have a new look that is in fact a return to the old look — grades will be indicated by A (outstanding), B (above average), C (average), D (below average), and F (failing).

Report cards for students grade four and above will also spell out the numerical equivalents of the letter grades — A (93-100); B (85-92); C (77-84); D (70-76); and F (below 70). In addition, there will be a report card sent to parents for kindergarten students.

A full outline on the format and reporting schedules of the report cards was furnished by Charles Ross, director of secondary education, at the September action meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education Monday night.

The report on kindergarten children will go out three times during the year, in November, March, and June. This report will indicate only three levels of achievement — satisfactory, needs help, and unsatisfactory — in two areas, language arts and mathematics. For kindergartners, emphasis will be placed on having conferences with parents for students who may not achieve at a satisfactory level.

More detailed information on achievement for students in grades 1-7 will be given on inserts to the report cards. This will include the book level at which an individual student is working in at the time of the report.

Ross said the return to the five-letter indication format of achievement was a plan that work began on in September 1979 and that considerable study and input from teachers, staff and parents went into devising the adopted format for report cards. He noted that the majority of teachers and parents opted for this format instead of the less definitive reports of recent years in which students were graded satisfactory, needs help, or unsatisfactory.

A report by Superintendent Glenn Cox on student enrollment in the Greenville City Schools at the end of the first ten days of school shows that the enrollment figure stands at 4,965 students — down 65 from the 1979-80 school year enrollment. This figure means that based on state criteria, the city schools are qualified for state support for 52 1/2 teacher aide positions instead of 54. However, Cox noted that because the city schools has hired two additional teachers (which was approved by the board at last night's meeting), the state will continue to maintain the 54 teacher aide level.

October 19 has been set for the open house date for Rose High's Live Project, with sale of the project house at public auction to be held October 23 at the project site. Cox also reported that a $5,000 state grant for incorporating passive solar heat in the 1980-81 Live Project has been approved. The grant, he noted, will necessitate the location of a lot with the correct orientation to the sun in order for the passive solar heat system to be effective.

The board approved four budget amendments, all based on changes in format procedures.

A motion was approved to begin immediate preparation of long range plans as a preliminary step in providing updated estimates of needs to the State Department of Public Instruction for use in presenting a request for a state school bond issue to the N. C. Legislature. Initial

State Agrees Pay $450 Each Month For Schooling Of Boy

Responding to a federal court order, the state agreed Monday to pay $450 a month for an emotionally disturbed Pitt County boy to attend a private school in South Carolina.

In a similar case, Wake County Commissioners voted to appeal a state court order directing the county to send a disturbed child to a Texas school at a cost of $45,000 a year. County officials said they believed the boy's education should be the responsibility of the state.

Edwin M. Speas, an assistant state attorney general, said in Greenville that James Bradley Hines would attend the Episcopal Children's School in York, S.C. at state expense. Pitt County will pay only for any transportation to and from the school during visits home.

U.S. District Judge W. Earl Britt had ordered the state to have young Hines placed in one of three facilities by Monday. Britt had ruled that the state's proposed treatment for Hines, who suffers from what was diagnosed as an "isolated personality," was inadequate.

Hines has been enrolled at the York school since Aug. 18, and his mother had asked that he be allowed to remain there. She filed suit in an effort to force the state or county to pay for his expenses.

The Wake County order was issued last week by state District Court Judge George F. Bason, a frequent critic of the state for what he calls a lack of programs for troubled youths.

Although the state Department of Human Resources is responsible for treatment of handicapped children, state law allows judges to order only counties to pay for special treatment.

Bason acted under that law in ordering Wake County to pay the $45,000 tuition for the Texas school.

The child involved has a high IQ, but has had problems in school and has been in trouble with the law. Bason said North Carolina does not have a facility that offers treatment for the youth's problems.

One Wake County commissioner, Robert B. Heater, said Monday he believes Bason's order was aimed at calling attention to the problem.

"I think Judge Bason is trying to get some action, and he's taken any and every method he can to get it... I think he's just trying to stir us up in the hope that maybe we'll get somebody else stirred up," Bason said.

The ban went into effect at 3:30 p.m. for all counties east of and including Hertford, Bertie, Martin, Pitt, Lenoir, Duplin, Pender, Bladen and Columbus counties. All open burning is now prohibited and all burning permits issued by the Division of Forest Resources in the affected counties are automatically cancelled.

Most Costly Trial In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State court officials said Monday the trial of 10 associates of convicted drug smuggler Leslie "Ike" Atkinson in Goldsboro earlier this year was the most expensive in North Carolina's history.

The trial, also believed to be the longest in the state's history, cost the state $312,314, according to a report filed by the presiding judge, Donald L. Smith.

Smith said the total covered such costs as witnesses, jury fees, meals, transportation and attorneys' fees. It did not include day-to-day court costs such as salaries.

Jury selection began in February, and testimony started in June and ended in early August.

The largest single item in the trial was fees for court-appointed attorneys, who cost the state $247,054.

Officials of the North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts said the Goldsboro trial may be surpassed in cost, however, by the trials in Greensboro connected with the shooting deaths of five communist demonstrators last Nov. 3.

The first six defendants in that case are in court now in a trial that began more than 12 weeks ago. Twenty-two people have been indicted.

Bike Theft Is Reported

Investigation is continuing today into the theft of three bicycles from Green Mill Run Apartments, Chief Glenn Cannon said.

Cannon, who said the thefts were reported yesterday, said all three bicycles were chained and had the chains cut, and were removed from their third floor locations.

Owners of the bicycles were identified as Mary McGimsey of 432 Green Mill Run, Kenneth Wilson of 435, and Pamela Marie Demaree of 438.

Pat's Pointers

Knit and needlepoint your way into the 1980 fashion scene with stunning houndstooth check pattern stitches. Both are relatively easy to do, using techniques which allow you to work with only one color at a time.

Knit the classic V-neck cardigan with a machine-washable yarn in knitting worsted weight with a gauge of four stitches per inch. Directions are written for sizes 10 through 18.

The versatile matching tote bag is worked on easy-to-handle, seven-mesh plastic canvas with the same yarns. Make it with or without the monogram panel.

To obtain instructions for making houndstooth knitted jacket and needlepoint tote bag, send your request for Leaflet No. PT-378 with $1.00 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order kits for making either or both items by sending check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. Kit K-377 for the sweater is $15.00; Kit K-378 for the tote bag is $11.00; Kit K-378 contains materials for both for only $20.00. Please specify your choice of shamrock green, navy, brown, black or cranberry (white is the contrast with each color listed).

Multicolor knitting need not be a hassle. There are a couple of techniques which allow you to work with a single color on any given row while giving the appearance of having been worked with multiple color changes across the row.

One of these techniques is used in knitting the houndstooth jacket featured with today's column. To practice this pattern stitch, cast on an uneven number of stitches with a dark shade of yarn, referred to in the directions as contrast color. A lighter shade of yarn will be referred to as the main color.

On your practice piece, knit a couple of rows in garter stitch with the darker color, then work Row 1 as follows: (Knit one, knit one in row below.) Repeat steps between parentheses across row until one stitch remains on left needle. Knit that stitch. On the second row, still using contrast color, knit all stitches.

For Row 3: Using main color,

HOUNDSTOOTH... knitted jacket with matching tote bag.

knit two stitches, then (knit next stitch in row below, knit one from needle). Repeat steps within parentheses across row until one stitch remains; knit that stitch from needle. For the fourth row, knit all stitches with main color. Repeat these four rows over and over for desired length.

The instructions to "knit one in the row below" may baffle many of you, but it is easier than you might think. To do this, insert the tip of your righthand needle into the center of the stitch just below the first stitch on the lefthand needle. Wrap yarn around right needle tip and draw it through to front of your work. Now slip or pull the stitch above from the left needle tip. This may seem awkward at first, but with a little practice you should quickly become adept at it.

Still using the darker color, work the fourth row the same as the third row, except bring yarn to front of work before slipping a stitch and then take yarn to back before knitting a stitch. Repeat these four rows for desired length.

The other technique involves slip stitches. To "slip a stitch" you simply insert the righthand needle into the first stitch on lefthand needle as if you were going to purl it. Do not wrap yarn around needle tip, however, but simply pass stitch from left to right needle. There are literally dozens of slip stitch patterns but here is one simple enough even for the

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's been explained to me a thousand times and I still don't understand it.

Why is it that men embarking on a fun-filled, pleasure-seeking, leisure-paced vacation feel obliged to start at four in the morning?

I ask you, what good are breathtaking colors of the Smoky Mountains ... in the dark? How can I feel the pulse and excitement of New York City where David Hartman going to work and a passed-out wino are the only things on the street? What good is a vacation if you can't keep awake through lunch?

We were the first family ever to "See America First" by headlights. Every morning before hitting the road the alarm would go off in the middle of the night. Picking my way through the darkness, I'd guide arms and legs through clothes. It was like threading a needle with wet spaghetti. As the kids continued to sleep, I'd walk them to the car and arrange them in the back seat. I'd wait until the motor was running and we were ready to leave before I did my last dastardly deed on those still sleeping ... fush!

My children never awoke asking, "Where are we?" It was always, "What time is it?" They could never play games other children played, like "Count the Chevies" or "Out-of-State-License-Plate Rummy." There weren't any other cars on the road.

We'd sit there like zombies, listening to the hog and grain markets on the car radio, trying to figure out if we ate a candy bar what meal we would spoil.

Once as we stopped at a roadside park for a potty break and I hooked my sweater over the hood ornament to keep from falling, a station wagon pulled in with another family. They looked terrible. The kids stumbled along with blankets dragging on the ground, their hair uncombed, their eyes puffy and glazed. The woman and I didn't say anything at first. Our eyes met in that rare moment of understanding without words. Finally she said, "Would you have married him if you had known he was nocturnal?"

A few weeks ago on vacation the alarm went off at 3:30 as my husband whipped out of bed and began to dress.

"Why are you doing this?" I mumbled.

"I've told you before, the children travel better by night when they can sleep."

"We don't have children with us."

"There's no traffic on the road and I can make better time."

"We're flying."

"If we start early, we can stop early and be sure of getting a hotel room."

"We're going home."

"I'm basically sadistic."

Now that makes sense!

Create the Magic of a Williamsburg Christmas ... in Your House This Year.

Learn how to decorate with holly, ivy, boxwood and bay to capture an elusive 18th Century charm like the scent of apples and woodsmoke in the air.

Meet Claude Jones a florist from historic Williamsburg and an authority on 18th Century traditional arrangements. See him blend the past with the present in decorating for the holiday season.

In creating Christmas decorations, Jones takes advantage of varieties of fruit, berries and cones that would have been available to the colonists 200 years ago to fashion Della Robbia or free-designed wreaths. 18th Century prints, illustrations from books and architectural details serve as guides for Mr Jones.

A native Virginian, Jones attributes his love of Williamsburg and its traditions to his life long interest in "old houses and furniture." He reports that he has always considered Williamsburg as "a wonderful place to live."

Jones' keen interest in Williamsburg encourages him to share his talents of recreating the decorations of 200 years ago, thus bringing the hospitality and warmth of yesterday into today's homes at Christmas time.

Mr Jones will be conducting classes on how to make Williamsburg arrangements with both fresh and dried floral materials. There will be two classes held on Thursday, October 2 and Friday, October 3 in our Training Room.

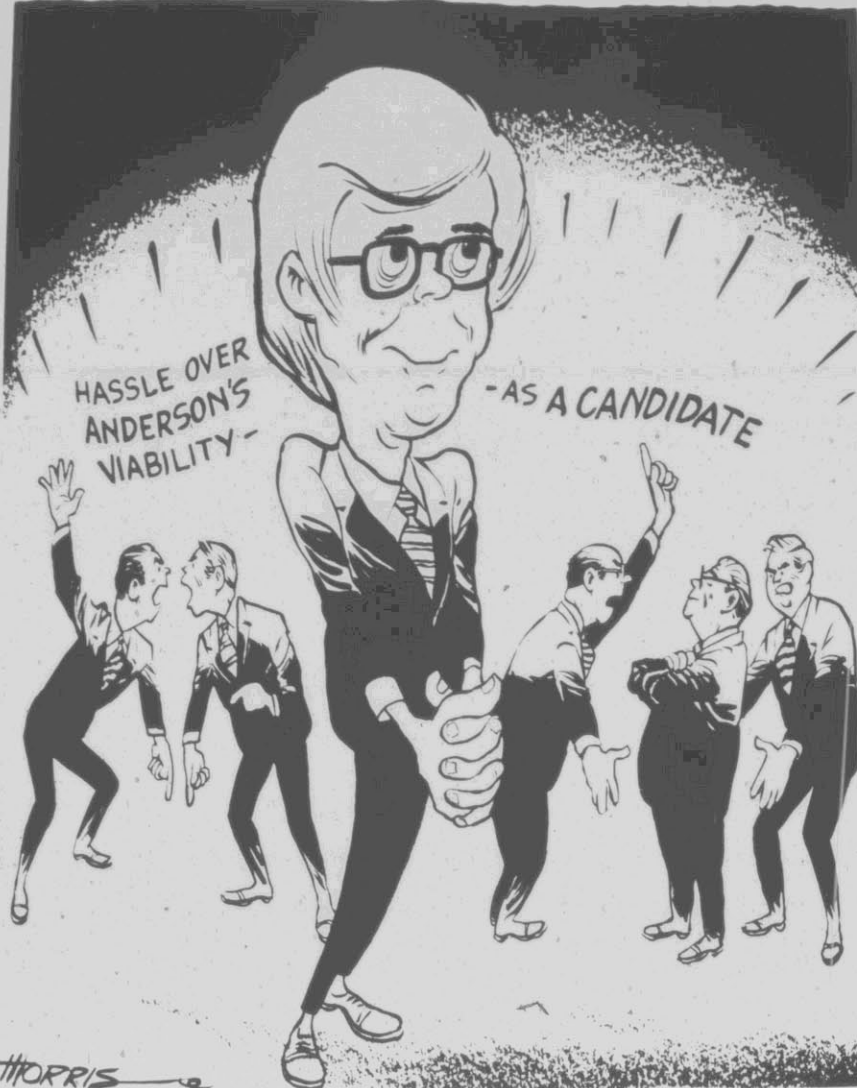

Because there will be no admission charge and seating is limited for these sessions, you are urged to make your individual reservations as soon as possible by calling 756-2355 and specifying in which class you wish to enroll. Tickets may be picked up a week before October 2 and must be presented at the door for admittance. Call now before these classes fill up.

Money Best Spent Here

It appears that none of the Pitt Community College trustees will be making the trip to Hawaii. C. W. Everett, Sr., chairman of the board, explained that while a conference for community college officials has been scheduled for Hawaii, no one from PCC has requested to go. He noted that the General Assembly had authorized $1,000 of each school's appropriation for convention purposes. If anyone had gone, it would have come from this fund. The trustees would rather "use the $1,000 for our program...keep the $1,000 for use in the regular community college program," Everett said. We consider that commendable. PCC has 500 to 700 more students than it did last year. There is no question as to the value of conferences and meetings for any institutions such as the community colleges. Nevertheless the same information can be obtained closer to home. Certainly in this case PCC's money will be better spend on internal programs.

SO MUCH BETTER THAN BEING IGNORED!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Reagan Hits His Stride

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK ERIE, PA. — The mark of Ronald Reagan's possible maturity as presidential candidate is found in the new contradiction between what he feels privately and what he says out loud, which up to now have been one and the same. In confidential chats with top staffers and close friends, Reagan insists that during those 17 days of blooperism he was more right than wrong; but in public, he now accepts admonitions such as this from one worried staffer: "Remember, governor, not a word about China."

Thus, Reagan curbed an instinctive reaction to rap President Carter for agreeing to the sale of high-technology to communist China. The trend toward self-discipline coincided with Carter's tribulations in the great debate over the debates, giving Reagan's tour of the crucial Great Lakes states last week the look of a much-needed turning point. "I think we've finally got the rhythm," a key staffer remarked to press secretary Lyn Nofziger in midweek. The rhythm is leisurely but tightly-controlled. Reagan's slow-paced tour from Cleveland to Buffalo to Erie, with a maximum two or three events a day, and on to a long quiet weekend at his rented Virginia farm in the Middleburg hunt country is a radical departure from the usually frenetic pace of presidential campaigning.

Out of it came what Reagan's political aides want: evening and morning network coverage showing Reagan chopping away at Carter's economic record. From Cleveland came an attack on the "misery" of the president's energy programs; from the empty Lake Erie port of Buffalo, where unemployment is 10 percent, a warning that U.S. ships now carry only 5 percent of America's ocean trade; from Erie, before a large, friendly crowd in the courthouse square, a challenge to Carter "to stop running away from his record" on the economy.

That rounded out a week starting with the Chicago speech reaffirming Reagan's support of Kemp-Roth tax cuts (a speech that brought an unexpected congratulatory telephone call from Dr. Arthur Burns, the skeptical economic eminence of the Republican Party). There is optimism in the Reagan camp that Carter has trapped himself in a non-win position on the presidential debates. More important than a debate windfall for Reagan, however, is whether his new-found discipline can be enforced. One Reagan staffer, pointing to Stuart Spencer sitting across the aisle from Reagan in the front compartment of his campaign jet, exuded confidence. "That's what Stu's for," he told us. Spencer is the political operative who handled Reagan's first campaign for governor in 1966 but signed on as Gerald Ford's chief tactician in the 1976 presidential campaign. His influence within the Reagan camp was peripheral — until the China blooper, the first of a series: burst on the political horizon Aug. 17 and Spencer was soon detailed as Reagan's watchdog. Spencer's qualifications for playing watchdog are three-fold: political experience, love of combat and boldness. "If Social Security comes up," a Reagan aide told us, "Stu will be there to tell Reagan, 'You're for it, governor.'"

There are, however, bounds beyond which Reagan should not be curbed: his sometimes instinctive sense for clever one-liners that get the crowd roaring. Now part of the standard litany is his description of the economic crisis: a recession is "when your neighbor loses his job," a depression "when you lose your job." Reagan added the third step, unrehearsed: "And recovery is when President Carter loses his job." Reagan's reaction to Carter's refusal to participate in the first three-way debate with Reagan and Rep. John Anderson hit the right note: gentle ridicule. Carter, he said, might have to learn about debates the hard way, as Reagan himself did when he refused to debate before the Iowa caucuses last

Expect Still Higher Oil Prices

The OPEC ministers are meeting again, and with the huge surplus of oil on the world markets, one would think the topic would be how to stimulate sales. Oil doesn't work that way these days, however. Instead the strategy will be to pump less oil and get a still higher price for it. It would be unrealistic to expect any real concern for the third world nations who suffer most from oil price increases. The price will go up until some acceptable alternative is found.

THIS AFTERNOON

The Housing Pinch

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — Obviously bedeviled by rapidly escalating housing costs, North Carolinians are looking for alternatives. Two recent developments clearly illustrate the enormity of the situation: — A dramatic increase in construction of multi-family units. — Continued soaring sales of mobile homes. State Labor Commissioner John Brooks says the average construction cost of a single-family home is climbing at the rate of better than 11 percent annually, now. That cost now stands well above $42,000, and by the time additional costs and required fees are included, the figure is closer to $50,000. And that, in these days of high prices, is for a home which many people consider minimal in size, location, and appearance. Most shoppers find that more desirable housing is routinely running in the $70,000 to $90,000 range. Brooks calls the apartment building situation a "dramatic increase", and points to recent figures showing an 84.8 percent increase in May of this year compared to May of last year.

multi-family units approved in May of this year compared to 330 in May of last year. Single-family housing starts were down from 589 to 361. Even apartment dwelling is putting considerable strain on the family purse these days. Recent rent surveys indicated that the monthly cost can run from around $200 for a small unit to $450 and up for larger, luxury apartments. Taking advantage of this upward march in housing prices is the mobile home industry which has recently undertaken a change of labels to convince the public that they are, indeed, manufactured houses as opposed to the "trailer park" image of years gone by. The North Carolina Manufactured Housing Association says factory-built homes now represent more than half all new single-family housing units occupied in this state each year. Climbing Last year a total of 12,900 manufactured homes were installed, up from 10,811 in 1978, and up from 9,844 in 1977. If the trend continues upward in mobile homes and downward in site-built housing, it is probable that manufactured housing will capture half the market in comparison to both apartments and single-family dwellings before too many years go by. Nationally, the mobile home industry is now a $4 billion business, and capitalizing on the economics of things bills itself as the maker of the "last affordable home". In the wings, however, is what promises to be a bitter fight in the U.S. Congress over a study of the industry by the Federal Trade Commission and resulting proposals for regulation. At issue are service and warranties to put into working condition the home and its contents. The FTC charges that makers, dealers, transporters, and installers often shift blame

Report From A Jungle

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted the other day in favor of an act "to prevent domestic violence." I would like to commit some. For a perfect, classic example of how our federal republic has drifted into the mess it is in, this bill provides textbook instruction. Heaven knows the bill is well intended. Bless its sponsors' bleeding hearts, the bill means to do good. Relatively speaking, not much money is involved. But it is a thoroughly pernicious piece of legislation all the same. When I first heard of the bill some months ago, I thought in my innocence that it had something to do with

Article IV of the Constitution. That is where the guarantee appears that the United States will protect each of the states against invasion, and on application of the legislature, "against domestic violence." I supposed the bill dealt with insurrection, race riots and terrorism. Not at all. This act to prevent domestic violence would create a new program of federal grants in aid to assist the states in dealing with household quarrels that wind up in physical assault. This is the problem of "the battered wife."

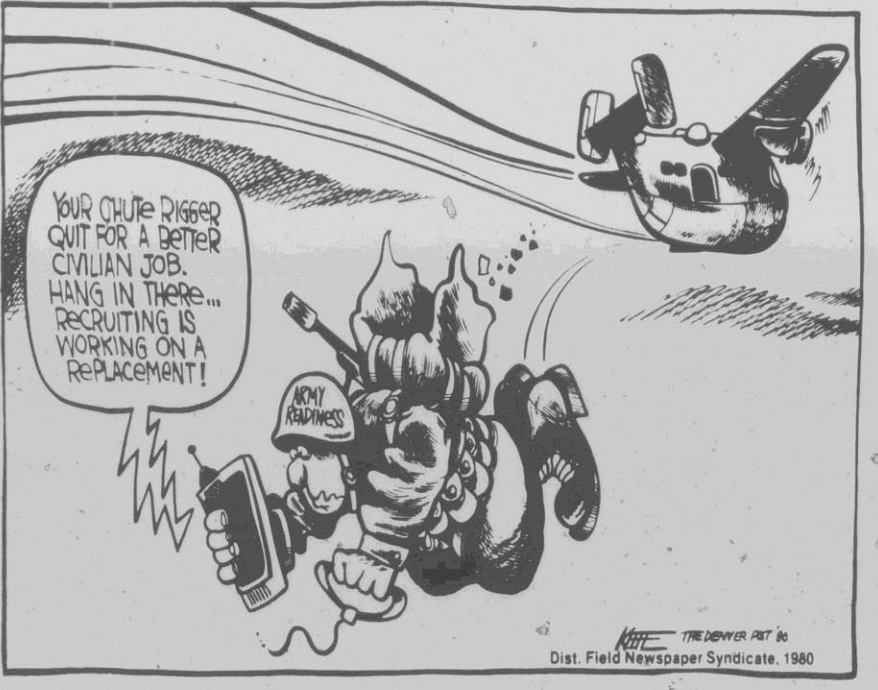

Let it be conceded that the problem exists. It is doubtless a serious problem. The Senate committee report that accompanied the bill fairly teems with appalling statistics on the number of women (and in perhaps 5 percent of the cases, the number of men) who are beaten by their spouses. Some of the statistics are suspect; when we are told that in Hackensack, N.J., 34 percent "of the women surveyed" reported having been beaten with some regularity, we are not told very much. And without some qualitative data on individual offenses, it is only mildly informative to learn that "in 1972, 4,900 wife assault complaints were filed in Detroit."

I don't mean to quibble with the evidence that poured forth in committee hearings. We can accept as fact that thousands of men — perhaps millions of men — beat up their wives or girlfriends, and that for largely economic reasons the women are helpless to escape the brutality. A man who would strike a woman is beneath contempt, but the world is full of contemptible people. Very well. Along comes this bill. Presented with the foregoing outline of the problem, any student of government could write the bill blindfolded. After a perfunctory finding of fact, the bill authorizes grants "to assist in supporting the establishment, maintenance and expansion of programs and projects to prevent incidents of domestic violence." Such grants are to be awarded by the secretary of Health and Human Services on applications in such form as the secretary may require. Reports are required. Forms are to be filled in. Studies must be made. Activities shall be coordinated. Allotments shall be distributed. A new bureau is to be created, the National Center of Domestic Violence, whose director is to make still more reports. And so on, and so on, ad infinitum. The appropriation is $15 million for the first year, doubling to $30 million in the third year. How on earth, under our written Constitution, did wife beating get to be the business

Other Editors Say Nursing Scores

(Greensboro Daily News) There is still time for the state's predominantly black universities to improve the performance of their nursing school graduates on the state licensing exam. But the hour of decision draws nearer, and the licensing exam scores for these schools have not improved. UNC President William Friday has called the latest low test results released last week "a deep disappointment to all of us", but an even greater disappointment to the failing students and their families. What kind of promise or fairness is there in devoting four years to schooling when only one in five graduates stands a chance of passing the state exam and entering her or his chosen profession? It is not simply a matter of personal disappointment for the candidates. In 1977 the UNC Board of Governors set up a program of improvement for all three nursing schools at predominantly black institutions. Under that timetable, two-thirds of the graduates of the nursing schools are expected to pass the state licensing exam by next year, and three-fourths of them by 1983, or the schools will be phased out. In addition, the N.C. Board of Nursing placed A&T's nursing school on its conditional accreditation list in 1978; North Carolina Central University's nursing school was placed in the same category this year. Only Winston-Salem State's School of Nursing remains fully accredited. So there is much work to be done in a relatively short time. A&T State has already moved to stiffen admissions requirements, improve faculty-student ratios and, with federal assistance, has opened a new learning assistance center for students who need remedial help. These improvements have not had time to have their full impact. Only students who have entered the program in the last year will have had the full benefit of these measures throughout their training period. Also, the university must be careful that these schools receive adequate funding to do the job. A past history of funding neglect is hardly irrelevant to these schools' performance. But time is not limitless. President Friday has ordered an immediate study of the high failure rates on both the 1980 state nursing exam and the state bar exam. Interestingly, relative scores have dropped for graduates of predominantly white as well as predominantly black institutions, but the scores are dramatically low for the latter. The study may provide some tips on how to proceed from here.

Announcement Had No Cheers

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — The deep but brief recession ended in July, said the Commerce Department's chief economist, but no cheering could be heard from those who have had an involuntary summer-long vacation. Nor were borrowers or investors or homemakers particularly excited about the news because, as their own economic indicators told them; the cleanup hadn't even begun and here we are with everything rising again. The things we had hoped would die with the recession — mainly interest rates and high prices, are rising again. What we had wanted to flourish, such as productivity, waned instead. The problems remain. Evidence of this is the apparent abandonment of congressional and presidential promises of fiscal discipline, indications of continued high unemployment, and the difficulty of companies to raise capital. The recovery is likely to go unnoticed by millions of Americans for the obvious reason that it won't mean a nickel of improvement in their finances, it won't help them get a job, it won't help buy a house. And if they dwell on the long-term ramifications of the economic mess it won't improve their confidence either, because very little has been done to avert the next fully predictable inflation-recession cycle. Even as they pronounce the end of a recession, most economists know they are playing games. They concede it privately, and some do so publicly, that the end of one recession is the base for another. They know the problems aren't being faced. They recognize that sound economics has been prostituted by politics. They know the futility of grasping after the straws of monthly statistical improvements.

Some speak out about the continued inflation, about the government's deficit spending that crowds the private sector out of the capital markets, about the deteriorated condition of plant and equipment. They warn about the attitude that people, whether through their local, state or federal governments or by themselves, can continue to consume while failing to replenish the reservoirs that feed consumption. Those that speak out, however, seem not to have much of an audience, and one of the reasons they don't is that their message seems tired and repetitive. The long-term worriers are easily drowned out by the short-term practitioners with their quick forecasts and monthly statistics. But the worry warts do have some experience in practical economics. One of them stated earlier this year that "what is happening to the United States in 1980 is similar to what happened to

New York City in 1975, namely a slide towards bankruptcy." Felix Rohatyn has a base from which to view the U.S. economy. He is a senior partner in the investment banking firm of Lazard Freres and Co. More important, he has been in charge of the Municipal Assistance Corp., which has the formidable job of trying to restore New York City. Another worry wart is Rogert Starr, who thinks the federal government and New York's financial woes have similarities. He knows the subject. He headed the N.Y. City Housing and Development Administration during the years when the city began its ascent into financial chaos. Neither has been heard cheering the announcement that the statistical recession has ended, and they can't be blamed for it. Why cheer when the recession came and went and didn't solve any long-range problems?

THE BIBLE AND FEAR
What does the Bible teach about fear?
About unwholesome fear it teaches precisely what modern psychology teaches. We are counseled not to be anxious about tomorrow — not to worry. From the beginning of the Old Testament until the end of the New, the emphasis is that God is man's sufficiency. We may cast ourselves on the mercy of God and be sure it will sustain us. But the Bible also teaches that the person who is not following the will of God has a great deal to worry about. If we sow to the flesh, then of the flesh we reap corruption. If we sin, we suffer. If we persist in our sin we die, not only physically, but spiritually; not only temporarily, but eternally. The Biblical doctrine of fear is that if we trust God we have nothing to fear, but that if we do not trust God enough to be willing to follow His righteous commandments, then we have everything to fear. — Elisha Douglass

Thousands Of Troops In N.C. Might Go To Egypt

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Defense Department spokesman said Monday that the United States is planning a military exercise this fall that could send thousands of troops from North Carolina to the deserts of Egypt.

The exercise, which would be the first test of the U.S.

rapid deployment force, is subject to successful completion of negotiations with the Egyptian government. President Sadat and other high-level Egyptian officials have indicated they will approve the plans, according to Lt. Col. Jerry Grohowski, a Defense Department spokesman. "President Sadat is on record as welcoming cooperation with the United States," Grohowski said. "We are working out the types of troops, timing and other details of the mission." The rapid deployment force was organized to improve the ability of the United States to deploy men and equipment to international trouble spots in a military crisis. If it does occur, the exercise probably would involve elements of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg and Marines from Camp Lejeune. Other troops from the newly formed 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif., and the Army's 101st

Air Mobile Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., could also be involved. A U.S. Air Force jet squadron is already in Egypt on a training mission with the Egyptian Air Force. Any test of the rapid deployment force would involve that squadron, plus thousands of other men, Grohowski said. Tentative planning has the maneuvers scheduled for November or December. The 82nd Airborne Division and 101st Air Mobile Division have a "support role" in the rapid deployment force, while the force's "primary mission responsibility" rests with the Marine Corps Brigade at Twenty-Nine Palms, Grohowski said. Since June, Camp Lejeune

Marines, deployed on cruises in the Mediterranean Sea, have been sent for brief periods of time through the Suez Canal and into the Indian Ocean and then back to the Mediterranean. Grohowski would not say whether Marines on cruises during November and December might participate in the exercise.

Those ships containing tons of jeeps, tanks, artillery, trucks and amphibious landing vehicles were loaded by Marines from Camp Lejeune. The equipment came from Marine Corps supply depots in Georgia and North Carolina.

Five ships under contract with the U.S. Navy sailed from Wilmington in July and August for the Indian Ocean as part of the "pre-positioning" of military equipment.

VEPCO Shuts Down Unit For About A Year

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Virginia Electric & Power Co. says it has shut down Unit 1 at its Surry Nuclear Power Station for about a year to replace its steam generators and perform maintenance and refueling. "The scheduled outage is not expected to cause any power supply problems," Jack H. Ferguson, Veeco's executive vice president for power, said Monday. He said the unit was taken off line Sunday. At the same time, Veeco began notifying its municipal and electric cooperative customers it will seek higher rates from them to help recover startup costs of Unit

2 at its North Anna Nuclear Station. North Anna 2 has been escalating to full power since it was granted a license last month by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. The company has two units in full service — Surry 2, which went on line last month after replacement of its generators, and North Anna 1. Ferguson said pipe stress analysis also will continue on Surry 1 during its outage. He estimated the total cost of the steam replacement project at $65 million. Performing scheduled maintenance and refueling at the same time as replacement of the steam generator will minimize the length of the Surry 1 outage, Ferguson said. Rates Veeco charges 21 municipalities and 18 electric cooperatives in Virginia and North Carolina are controlled by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. In a statement, Veeco said it will ask the FERC in mid-November for an increase of $5.9 million to the municipal customers. Veeco said that would be offset by an estimated $4-million fuel charge decrease. The FERC will be asked to order the cooperatives to pay a total of $8.8 million more, to be offset by a fuel charge reduction of about $7.8 million, the company said. Lower fuel charges, which are passed directly to customers, will result because nuclear power is cheaper than power produced by oil and coal-fired power plants, Veeco said. The startup costs of North Anna 2 are not allowed to be recovered through increased rates.

(Continued from page 4) of the United States Congress? If any problem is wholly the business of the states, surely the problem of mayhem in the bedroom is such a problem. These are local crimes, not federal cases. If there is truly a critical need for tax-funded shelters to which a battered wife may flee, cannot state and local legislators be persuaded to provide them? Why must we forever turn to Washington for relief? One answer is, "because that is where the money is." But this is nonsense. This is precisely where the money is not. The $15 million will simply have to be printed and added to the already mountainous deficit. And meanwhile the bureaucracy grows, the paperwork piles up, and the responsibilities of the states are further eroded. The Senate vote was 46-41 for the bill. All the liberals but Heinz of Pennsylvania voted for it; all the conservatives but Boschwitz of Minnesota voted against it. The House already has passed its version. After a conference, the bill will go to Mr. Carter to become law. Do you ever ask yourself how bureaucracy swells and the deficit grows? Consider this bill. This is now.

Tax Program Is Discussed

WINTERTVILLE — County Commissioner Burney Tucker, introduced Jimmy Hardee, who presented a program on the county tax re-evaluation program at the Ruritan Club's September meeting recently. Hardee explained that, by law, his department was required to establish a fair market value of all personal and real estate property every eight years. The fair market value established for the property will become effective January 1, 1981.

Nowell Lee, Ruritan Zone II governor from the Pactolus Club, visited the Winterville Ruritan Club and praised the club for its leadership in the county. The club will host the Zone II and Zone III Ruritan Club Officers Training School on November 8 at the Winterville Town Hall board room.

President Elwood Nobles appointed Milton Ray, Leck Keeter and Buck Weaver to the nominating committee and gave them the responsibility of bringing a slate of officers to the October meeting. Tony Moore gave a report on the birthday calendar

Race For The America's Cup

A sailing tradition more than 100 years old continues today off the coast of Rhode Island, as two of the world's fastest sailing boats compete for the America's Cup. The America's Cup was called the Hundred Guinea Cup back in 1851, when the schooner America won the trophy at a race in England. 23 times since then, American boats have successfully defended the cup in races against boats from other countries. America's Cup races have taken place every three years since 1964. The boats compete in a series of races over several days, and the first boat to win four races takes the trophy.

DO YOU KNOW — Which U.S. boat is defending the America's Cup this year?

Hoping To Return To Teaching Role

RANDLEMAN, N.C. (AP) — Cheryl Burrow wants to return to the classroom at Randleman High School where she has taught for the last 10 years.

She has the support of her fellow students and dozens of students, but the answer may not come easily for the Randolph County Board of Education.

Mrs. Burrow, 34, was sentenced to a maximum of five years on Aug. 20 for involuntary manslaughter in the shooting death of her husband.

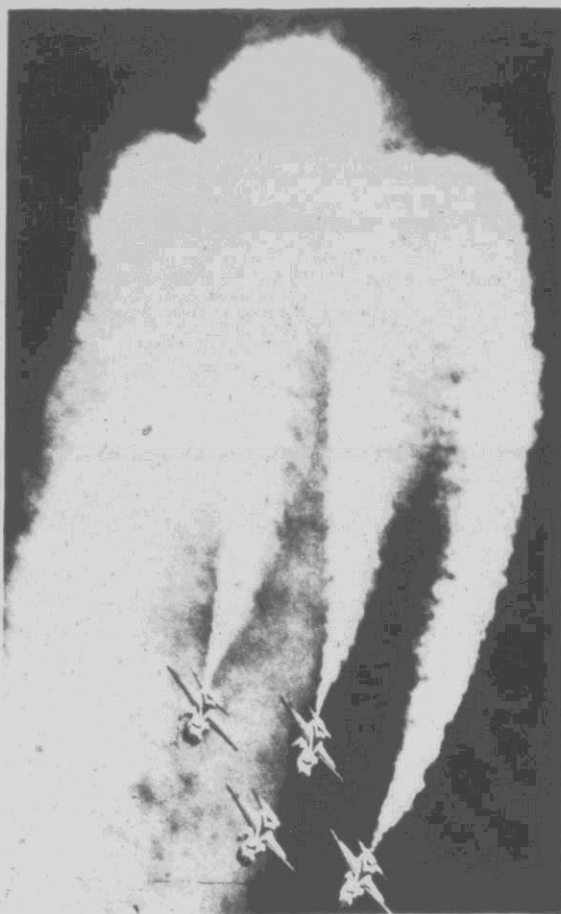

Prison officials agreed last Friday to let her participate in the prison system's work release program. That will allow her to work during the day and return to her cell at Women's Prison in Raleigh at night.

If the Randolph board allows her to return to the classroom, Mrs. Burrow would spend the nights at a halfway house in Winston-Salem.

An uncle now is providing transportation for Mrs. Burrow between Raleigh and the school every day to meet her work-release requirements.

Mrs. Burrow went to the high school Monday where she received a passionate display of affection by students and teachers. There were hugs and cries of "Welcome back Mrs. Burrow" amid yellow ribbons tied around old oak trees.

Home Break-Ins Investigated

Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that police are continuing their investigation into two break-ins and one attempted break-in in the Brookgreen area Saturday night and Sunday.

Cannon said an attempted break-in was reported at the home of Howard Hodges, 106 Garden Cir. Saturday night.

He said attempts to gain entrance to the home through several windows were unsuccessful.

A short time later, at 9:30 p.m., officers were called to the intersection of 14th Street and Airlee Drive, where a number of items of silver had been dropped beside the road and on 14th Street.

Cannon said a witness saw two men with several bags start to run, then drop several items of silver from one of the sacks as they crossed 14th Street.

Investigators, who found two bags containing other items of silver in a wooded area near 14th Street, discovered that the items had been taken from the Fred Webb home at 529 Longmeadow Rd, where the thieves gained entrance through a window.

Cannon said at least three of the "bags" used to carry the silver from the home were pillow cases from the dwelling.

He noted that one pillow case — apparently containing a punch bowl, candle stick and three-tier candleabra — has not been recovered.

The third incident — a break-in at the home of Mrs. Louise Griffith at 204 Longmeadow Rd. — was reported to police at 2:25 p.m. Sunday, the chief noted.

He explained that Mrs. Griffith returned home, found that several drawers in her bedroom had been ransacked, and called police.

Cannon said entrance to the home was gained through a window and noted that two costume jewelry rings contained in a plastic bag were recovered from the window facing. Nothing else was reported missing.

Outer Banks Group Protesting Refuge

CURRITUCK, N.C. (AP) — A delegation of Outer Banks residents went to Washington Monday with a bottle of sand for each congressman as a symbolic protest of a federal agency's plan to develop a wildlife refuge in Currituck County.

"We intend to visit as many members of Congress as possible," said Ann Andresen, one of the four Currituck County residents who made the trip.

"We intend to plead for the right of private property ownership," said Judy White, another member of the group. "There is too much land going to federal control."

A proposal by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service calls for between $84 million and $94 million to be spent for 15,880 acres on the narrow strip of barrier land, including all land between the Virginia-North Carolina line and Corolla, N.C.

Marshlands stretching along Currituck Sound from Corolla to the Dare County line are also sought.

Several Currituck property owners, including members of the Outer Banks Civic League, strongly oppose the refuge plan, an outline of which was released in an environmental impact statement Aug. 29.

"The impact statement is full of falsehoods, and we want the members of Congress to be aware of what's really going on," Ms. Andresen said.

Ms. Andresen said the group also would protest a 30-day deadline set by the wildlife service for comments on the environmental impact statement.

"We need at least another 60 days to study it," she said. "It took them a few years to write it, so another 60 days shouldn't hurt."

The Currituck County Commission, several North Carolina congressmen, North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt, and numerous ecology groups have voiced support for the proposed purchase.

Currituck residents Pat Crowder and Shirley Austin accompanied Ms. Andresen and Ms. White to Washington.

Three Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,200 property damage resulted from three traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Sixth Street, involving cars driven by Betsy Fornes Lilly of Route 1, Vanceboro and Gary Steven Strickland of Route 8, Greenville.

Investigators, who charged Ms. Lilly with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $400 to the Lilly car and $700 to the Strickland vehicle.

Cars driven by Janet Lee Arnold of Wilmington and Lisa Lenor Porter of Raleigh, collided about 5:45 p.m. on Meade Street, 236 feet north of the Fifth Street intersection, causing $450 damage to the Arnold car and $350 damage to the Porter car.

An estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 12:59 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 150 feet east of the Memorial Drive intersection.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 6.91 to 944.54 in the first two hours of trading, as advances outnumbered declines by a 5-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Federal Reserve Board reported the nation's industrial production rose 0.5 percent in August, ending a six-month decline. But the production rate was still 7.6 percent less than last year.

With the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting in its second day, there were reports that Saudi Arabia was demanding a reduction in prices charged by other oil exporters. A cut in Saudi production is being demanded by other OPEC members.

Rail stocks continued to plow ahead, with Chessie up 1/2 to 40 1/2 and Santa Fe rising 2 1/2 to 66 1/2. Sony rose 1/4 to 15 after reporting higher earnings.

Oil issues were generally ahead, with Standard of California rising 1/2 to 73 1/2 and Mobil up 1/2 to 68 1/2. Texaco, which last week cut its estimates of natural gas reserves, slipped 1/2 to 35.

American Motors was unchanged at 6 1/2 after management agreed to allow a United Auto Workers representative on the board of directors. The UAW did not authorize a strike as the contract expired, but there were scattered walkouts.

Big Board volume totaled 24.53 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared with 19.34 million at the same point Monday. The NYSE's composite index rose .45 to 73.20.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.06 to 341.52.

NAACP Holds Monthly Meeting

WINTERVILLE - The Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People held its monthly meeting at Good Hope Church here Sunday.

According to Pitt NAACP president D. D. Garrett, an intensive effort is being made to increase the membership of the branch by 300 new members before the end of the year. He noted that much of the promotion will be made through various churches and public solicitations.

Garrett noted that the Pitt branch, in conjunction with several social and civic organizations, is sponsoring a voter registration drive. He said the voters may register through October 4 for the November election.

In addition to the offices of the Pitt County Board of Elections, which is opened on weekdays, Garrett said registrars will be available to register voters at the Cornerstone Baptist Church in Greenville on September 21; the Farmville Senior Citizens Hut and Youth Recreation Center in Farmville from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on September 27 and at the Pleasure Peak Club from 7 p.m. until 12 midnight, September 27, and at the Masonic Hall in Winterville on the same date; and on October 4 at the Thomas Foreman Park in Greenville.

Garrett noted that the NAACP is concerned over what it feels "are discrepancies in the policies of both the Pitt County and the Greenville City Boards of Education towards poor and minority children and staff."

Garrett said that the Pitt NAACP Branch is opposed to the appointment of former Judge J. W. H. Roberts as the public defender for the Third Judicial District.

Roberts and two other Greenville attorneys, Tom Greer and Don Hicks, were nominated by the Pitt County Bar Association in August for consideration by Gov. Hunt, who will make the appointment.

The public defender, who will take office January 1, will have six assistants and a six-person support staff to serve the Pitt-Craven-Carteret-Pamlico County district.

It was also announced at the meeting that the Ministerial Fellowship Breakfast, a product of the NAACP's Month of Prayer program, will continue to meet at Shoney's on the Saturday before the second and fourth Sundays, at 8 a.m.

WASHINGTON (AP) - One worker in seven collects nothing more from Social Security than the $255 lump-sum death benefit, according to a General Accounting Office study.

The other six or their survivors get back more - in most cases, far more - than they paid in Social Security taxes, reports the GAO, Congress' investigative arm. Its study on the death benefit says Social Security has paid more than $6 billion in such benefits since 1940. Social Security spokesman Jim Brown noted that those who collect nothing but the death benefit also were insured against disability and toward retirement. "If a person doesn't collect, he doesn't need it," said Brown. "That's the whole idea of social insurance."

Cessna 210 Is Grounded
 WICHITA, Kan. (AP) - The Federal Aviation Administration has grounded all single-engine Cessna 210 Centurion airplanes and says they won't be allowed to fly until their engines are inspected.

The order, issued Monday, also extended a grounding order for another Cessna model, the twin-engine 340A, which has had tail-cracking problems.

The grounding of the 590 Centurions was prompted by an incident Aug. 29 in Colorado in which a Centurion suddenly lost engine compression and the pilot had to make an emergency landing, the FAA said. There were no injuries.

The FAA said a piston burned out during flight. The FAA said owners of the plane must have engine compression checked before flying again and must reset the engine's timing.

Barry Clement, chief of the FAA's engine and manufacturing district office in Wichita said the engines would be checked despite a contention by Cessna and Teledyne Continental, the engine's manufacturer, that there was no way to predict whether an engine would burn out.

The FAA also ordered immediate inspections of tail sections on the 1,200 twin-engine 340A's and their derivatives "before further flights," regardless of hours flown.

The previous order was for models flown at least 100 hours.

Cessna is based in Wichita.

Braves Win, Then Boost Dodger Hopes

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer
Atlanta had just whipped Los Angeles 9-0 when Braves Manager Bobby Cox predicted the Dodgers would win the National League West.

best pitching staff in the league. Hooton just didn't have his great stuff tonight." Despite Cox's confidence in the Dodgers, who stayed in a tie for first in the West because the last-place San Diego Padres beat the Houston Astros 6-3, the loss was Los Angeles' 10th in 15 games with the Braves this season.

Horner, playing with a 15-stitch cut on his ankle from a spike wound on Sunday, hit his two-run homer in the very first inning. He later got his third RBI with a ground ball, while Gary Matthews also knocked in three for the Braves. "I can't move very well, the ankle's real sore," Horner said. "Taking pain pills just doesn't get it. We need these games and it's very important that I play."

Dodgers, who have been blanked only two other times. He retired 17 of the first 18 batters he faced. "I think we're as good as any team in the National League, bar none," Boggs said of the Braves, who are 28-9 the last five weeks. "A lot of people say it's a fluke but it's not. If we don't win it this year, we'll be contending next year."

Seaver entered the ninth inning looking for his sixth career one-hitter, which would have established a modern NL mark. But Darrell Evans homered for San Francisco's second run and Rennie Stennett singled.

of at least a division title tie as Al Oliver's 2,000th career hit drove in the first run of the game in the sixth inning against Oakland. Jon Matlack, 10-7, allowed eight hits in 61-3 innings before having to leave with a leg cramp, with John Henry Johnson finishing the shutout to gain a save.

players with 2,000 hits and a career average of .300. Cards 5, Cubs 1
Andy Rincon pitched a five-hitter in his major-league debut and contributed a run-scoring single in St. Louis' four-run sixth inning that beat Chicago. Keith Hernandez and George Hendrick triggered the outburst with consecutive doubles that broke a 1-1 tie.

Tide Moves To Head Of Poll; Florida State Up To Ninth

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
The Crimson Tide of Alabama, striving to become the first team in college football history to capture three consecutive national championships, moved past Ohio State and into first place today in this week's Associated Press poll.

Last week, Ohio State led Alabama 33-22 in first-place ballots and 1,140-1,121 in points with 59 voters participating. Oklahoma and Southern California moved up one position each to third and fourth place, respectively, while Pittsburgh dropped from third to fifth.

points while idle Texas slipped from sixth to seventh with 949. Notre Dame, another idle team last weekend, fell from seventh to eighth with 790 points. Florida State hammered Louisville 52-0 — the Seminoles have outscored their first two opponents 68-0 — and went from 10th to ninth with 740 points. Houston, which had been ninth, skidded all the way to 18th after being upset 29-13 by Arizona State.

Georgia, Stanford, Penn State, North Carolina, Arkansas, Missouri, Auburn, Washington and Purdue. The Gamecocks of South Carolina are the only newcomer in the Top Twenty following a 73-0 rout of Wichita State. They replaced Purdue, which struggled past Wisconsin 12-6 after dropping its opener to Notre Dame.

Houston, Stabler Control Ball, Gain Easy 16-7 Win Over Browns

By CHUCK MELVIN
AP Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — On those rare occasions when the Cleveland Browns got their hands on the ball, the Houston Oilers defense made sure it didn't matter.

of those watching on prime time television — to sleep, connecting on 23 of 28 short and intermediate range passes for 187 yards to set up three Tony Fritsch field goals and a 2-yard touchdown run by Tim Wilson.

second quarter, Houston ran off 63 of the next 76 offensive plays. Houston running back Earl Campbell, held to seven yards in the first period, came alive in the second period and finished with 106.

an eight-minute drive leading to Fritsch's 29-yard field goal early in the fourth period. On that drive, Cleveland chose not to accept an interception by Thom Darden which would have given them the ball inside their own 5. Instead, they took a penalty that left the Oilers in a third-and-29 situation near midfield.

Brett Hopes Are Dimmed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett of the Kansas City Royals has developed tendonitis in his right hand and his chances of becoming the first man to bat .400 in 39 years now seem in jeopardy.

take is very unpredictable. It matters what tendon it is, and how severe the tendonitis is, but I'd hope sometime in the next four to six days."

Following the field goal, the Browns ran off their obligatory three plays, punted, and Stabler directed his second nine-minute drive. The Oilers settled for a 17-yard field goal when three Rob Carpenter plunges on first-and-goal from the 1 failed to pay off.

East Carolina Spikers Are In Rebuilding Year

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Two main problems presented themselves to East Carolina volleyball coach Alita Dillon during the past three weeks of preseason practice.

Dillon has decided on three starters: seniors Sharon Perry and Loretta Holden and sophomore Mitzi Davis. Perry and Davis are the Pirates' co-captains this season.

Other players on the squad are sophomores Stacey Wietzel and freshman Revardale LaVant. Sherry Stout and Lexanne Keeter, the latter playing volleyball at D.H. Conley.

Craft Is 1st Winner

John Craft of Rt. 1, Box 388R, Farmville, is the winner of the first weekly Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Craft correctly picked the winners in 27 of the 32 games appearing in the ads on last week's contest pages. He actually gained the victory, however, with his point total guess of 74 points, which came closest to the actual total of 68 scored in Mississippi's 61-7 victory over Memphis State.

Second place went to Kelvin Sellers of 308 Woodside Dr., Greenville, who also picked 27 correctly, but was further off the point total with a guess of 83 points.

The second of the ten weekly contests appears on the following pages.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 100 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

HUNTER ORIGINAL OLDE TYME CEILING FANS

This was the fan that went 'round the world. These Hunter ceiling fans, the 1903 originals, swirled away heat in the steamy jungles of Africa, in the deserts of Morocco, on the shores of India and in the plantation homes of the South. A lot of people who remember those days still refer to all ceiling fans as "Hunter Fans". Johnny-come-lately's can't fool them—they know Hunter is the original.

Numbers Running Out For O's

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
 AP Sports Writer
 NEW YORK (AP)—Having played the numbers game against the New York Yankees all season and come up short almost every time, the Baltimore Orioles are now hoping the numbers will turn their way in the final three weeks.
 Both teams have 19 games remaining. The Yankees, who begin a series against the Toronto Blue Jays tonight, own a five-game lead, their largest since Aug. 7, and their magic number to win the American League East for the fourth time in five years is 15.
 "I feel good about it," says Manager Dick Howser, "but I won't be real comfortable until, if and when, we do win it."
 From May 22, when they were in fifth place and trailed the Yankees by six games, until July 15, the Orioles won 28 games, lost 18 and moved up to fourth place...but dropped five games in the standings.

 Then they went on a 30-9 tear, including six of eight in the final head-to-head meetings of the season with the Yankees, and sliced New York's lead to a skimpy one-half game, but that was as close as they came. They have gone 11-5 since Aug. 31, but the Yankees are 13-1 in September.
 The latest blow was a 6-2 Baltimore road trip. During the same stretch, the Yankees went 6-1.
 "If we had said we would be 6-2, we might have sounded greedy," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver after the Orioles dropped two of four weekend games to the last-place Blue Jays. "But the Yankees ended up sweeping Boston, and in the end we needed more than six out of eight. I fully expected Boston to win at least two games from the Yankees, but they didn't win any and we play 750 and come home disappointed."

 The Orioles wasted two chances to move into first place. But on Aug. 25-26, while the Yankees were losing to Oakland, Baltimore dropped two games to Seattle.
 "It's been tough for us ever since we lost those two games in Seattle when we were only a half-game out," says pitcher Jim Palmer. "But there's still hope until we have exhausted every mathematical possibility. We have to keep going and hope something turns around in these last days. Stranger things have happened."
 If the Yankees win 15 of their remaining 19 games — and they are currently riding an 18-4 streak — there is nothing the Orioles can do. If the Yankees go 14-5, Baltimore would have to win all their 19 games just to tie.
 The hottest Yankee bats these days belong to shortstop Bucky Dent, catcher Rick Cerone, left fielder Lou Piniella and first baseman Bob Watson. Tommy John and Rudy May have provided strong starting pitching and relievers Goose Gosage, Ron Guidry and Ron Davis have been near-perfect. Guidry returns to the starting rotation tonight.

 What it amounts to is that the Orioles must put their faith in the time-honored words of Yankee coach Yogi Berra, who once observed about a pennant race, "You're not out of it until you're out of it."

 Or, as Dent puts it somewhat less philosophically, "We still have 19 more to play."

Actors In Big Benefit Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dozens of stars who have been striking film and television studios for more than eight weeks were heading to work tonight as ushers, emcees and entertainers at a benefit for the neediest of their union colleagues.

The gala Hollywood Bowl event, entitled "An Evening of Stars," was being held in the first week of a new television season in which few new shows have been broadcast. The strike by 67,000 actors has crippled production.

Among those scheduled to appear were singers Waylon Jennings and Melissa Manchester, actors Alan Alda, Lily Tomlin, Ed Asner and Larry Hagman and comedian Robin Williams.

Others, including George Carlin, Jack Klugman, Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams, were to usher guests in the 17,000-seat outdoor theater.

The unions hoped to raise $150,000 from the event. The proceeds will go to the emergency fund of the striking Screen Actors Guild, which had a balance of about $28,000 when the strike began.

Requests for assistance from out-of-work actors have been running at about $10,000 a week, said benefit chairman Charles Haid.

The benefit — being put on by SAG and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, which is also striking — came one day after the resumption of bargaining for the first time in 11 days.

The unions resumed talks with the Motion Picture and Television Producers Association at the request of a federal mediator.

Both sides have been reluctant to comment publicly on the bargaining and as the latest round of talks began neither side expressed much hope for progress.

Residual payments to actors for programs shown on pay TV and video cassettes remain the key issue in the dispute. The actors, who originally sought 12 percent of all gross receipts on sales to pay TV, have scaled down their demand to 5.4 percent of the gross receipts after a program has been exhibited nine days within a year.

The producers, who started out offering up to 3.6 percent of the gross after either 15 days of exhibition or two years, have since moved to 4.25 percent of the gross after 13 days of showings within a year.

Planning A Movie On Life Of Geo. Wallace

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala.
(AP) — A man who once offered $500 to anyone who could find a black who supported George Wallace is the first-choice candidate to write the script for a television movie about the former Alabama governor, the producer says.

Max Keller, producer for Inter Planetary Productions Corp., said Monday that no final decision had been made on a scriptwriter, but said William Bradford Huie is the company's first choice.

Wallace aide Elvin Stanton confirmed that Wallace has signed a contract for the movie of his life story, with production of the four-hour drama tentatively set to begin early next year.

There was no word on the financial figures in the contract between Wallace and the production company.

Stanton said Huie and Wallace met twice to discuss the movie, and he said Wallace "would not object" if Huie got the job as scriptwriter.

Wallace will have no part in the project other than in "telling information that has never been told," Stanton said, adding that the information would concern "his personal life and public actions."

Huie said his two meetings with Wallace were "cordial." But of the script, he added, "It is unlikely I will have anything to do with it."

Huie wrote a book on the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr., "He Slept The Dreamer," as well as other books on civil rights.

When Wallace was an independent candidate for president in 1968, Huie publicly offered a $500 reward to anyone who could find a registered black voter in Alabama supporting Wallace.

Wallace was crippled by a would-be assassin's bullet during his 1972 campaign for the presidency.

MTM Misses Marriage Role

NEW YORK — For years she was Laura, Dick Van Dyke's sometimes-zany wife. Then she was Mary Richards, Ed Asner's newsroom buddy and sturdy proof that a woman can make it without a fulltime man.

Today, Mary Tyler Moore, alone for the first time in 42 years wonders: "Do you ever stop feeling naked without a man you know you can rely on?"

Whether acting the part of homemaker or newswoman, Miss Moore says there's a part of herself the cameras could never see. "In work and in life — there's a part of me that wants to hit the damn ball into the damn net, to thumb my nose at the world." But she added: "I keep my demons to myself."

Liv Ullmann Today Refugee-Conscious

By VINCENT J. SCHODOLSKI
STOCKHOLM, Sweden
(UPI) — Liv Ullmann, whose autobiography "Changes" dealt with various metamorphoses in her life, says she is undergoing another change.

Miss Ullmann, known internationally for her roles in 12 films by Swedish director Ingmar Bergman, has become actively involved in the world problem of refugees. She says she finds this a more satisfying way of expressing herself.

"I don't have to act any more," the Norwegian actress said during a visit to Stockholm. "I've had what I wanted and a lot more than I ever expected."

Her involvement with the plight of Cambodian refugees led to her decision to work against the problem worldwide.

She and a group of fellow artists traveled to the Cambodian border with 22 truckloads of food, medicine and supplies. They were not allowed to enter the country, but the group spent time touring refugee camps near the border.

"Once I met these people they became faces to me and that was when it really started."

Since doing a Broadway benefit performance for Cambodian refugees, Miss Ullmann has traveled to six countries to help raise money for them. She has become a director of the International Rescue Committee, a non-political group created during World War II to help displaced persons.

She has been named the new spokesperson for UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund.

This change did not come about overnight.

"You don't suddenly wake up one morning and find out you are something else. I started to get bored with a lot of the acting I was doing. The words started to become meaningless to me."

"In reality this is not a change at all. You make steps during your life and what you decide to do is the sum of what has happened in your life up to that point."

"For once I am living my feelings."

Hailey, who entered Methodist Hospital for tests on Thursday, was operated on Monday. A Methodist Hospital spokesman said he was in stable condition.

The three-hour operation replaced clogged sections of artery with veins from Hailey's right leg.

James Stewart Is Back Home

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor James Stewart, hospitalized last week for severe leg pain, is back at home after his second hospital stay in a month.

The 72-year-old screen star went home Saturday. A spokesman at St. John's Hospital said Monday that doctors discovered the leg pain along the sciatic nerve, which runs from the pelvis to the back of the thigh.

Earlier, the star of such films as "Philadelphia Story" required treatment for an irregular pulse. Doctors said that problem was unrelated to his leg pain.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 17, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is not good for being blunt and outspoken, so try to use tact and diplomacy with others. Not good for starting new ventures or making any changes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although you may want to make new contacts and see new places, this is not the right day to do so. Use reason.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't try to renege where any promises you have made are concerned or you would later regret it. Maintain poise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Do your utmost to be of assistance to your associates, even if it means giving up personal activities. Be wise.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get much accomplished by attending to duties early in the day and reap in the benefits.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Show individuals you like that you are devoted to them, but don't permit some conniving person to impose on your good nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use good sense and you can have more accord at home with family members. Find an outlet that brings in added income.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use care in motion and in conversations today and save yourself much trouble that might otherwise ensue. Be alert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make plans to save more money and build a reserve for a possible rainy day. Take time to improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take extra care you don't make any costly errors through carelessness today. Plan wisely for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) There could be delays in handling regular routines early in the day, but be patient, conditions will improve later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid any arguments with good friends today and you save yourself from potential trouble. Strive for happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use tact in dealing with others today, especially at home with family members. Safeguard your reputation.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young persons who should be taught early in life not to be blunt with others and to think in a more kindly fashion. When lessons are learned this will be a successful chart.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠.

The Bath Coup is a form of holdup play which is used when declarer has A-J-x of a suit and his left-hand opponent has led an honor. The object of this play is not to gain a trick, but a tempo. That can be enough. However, on today's hand declarer executed a Bath Coup only to end up taking a bath!

With 8 points and a good five-card suit, North was full value for his game invitation. South had an absolute maximum no trump opening, so he was happy to accept.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer remembered the Bath Coup. He played a low heart from his hand, and West could not continue hearts unless he wanted to give declarer a second trick in the suit.

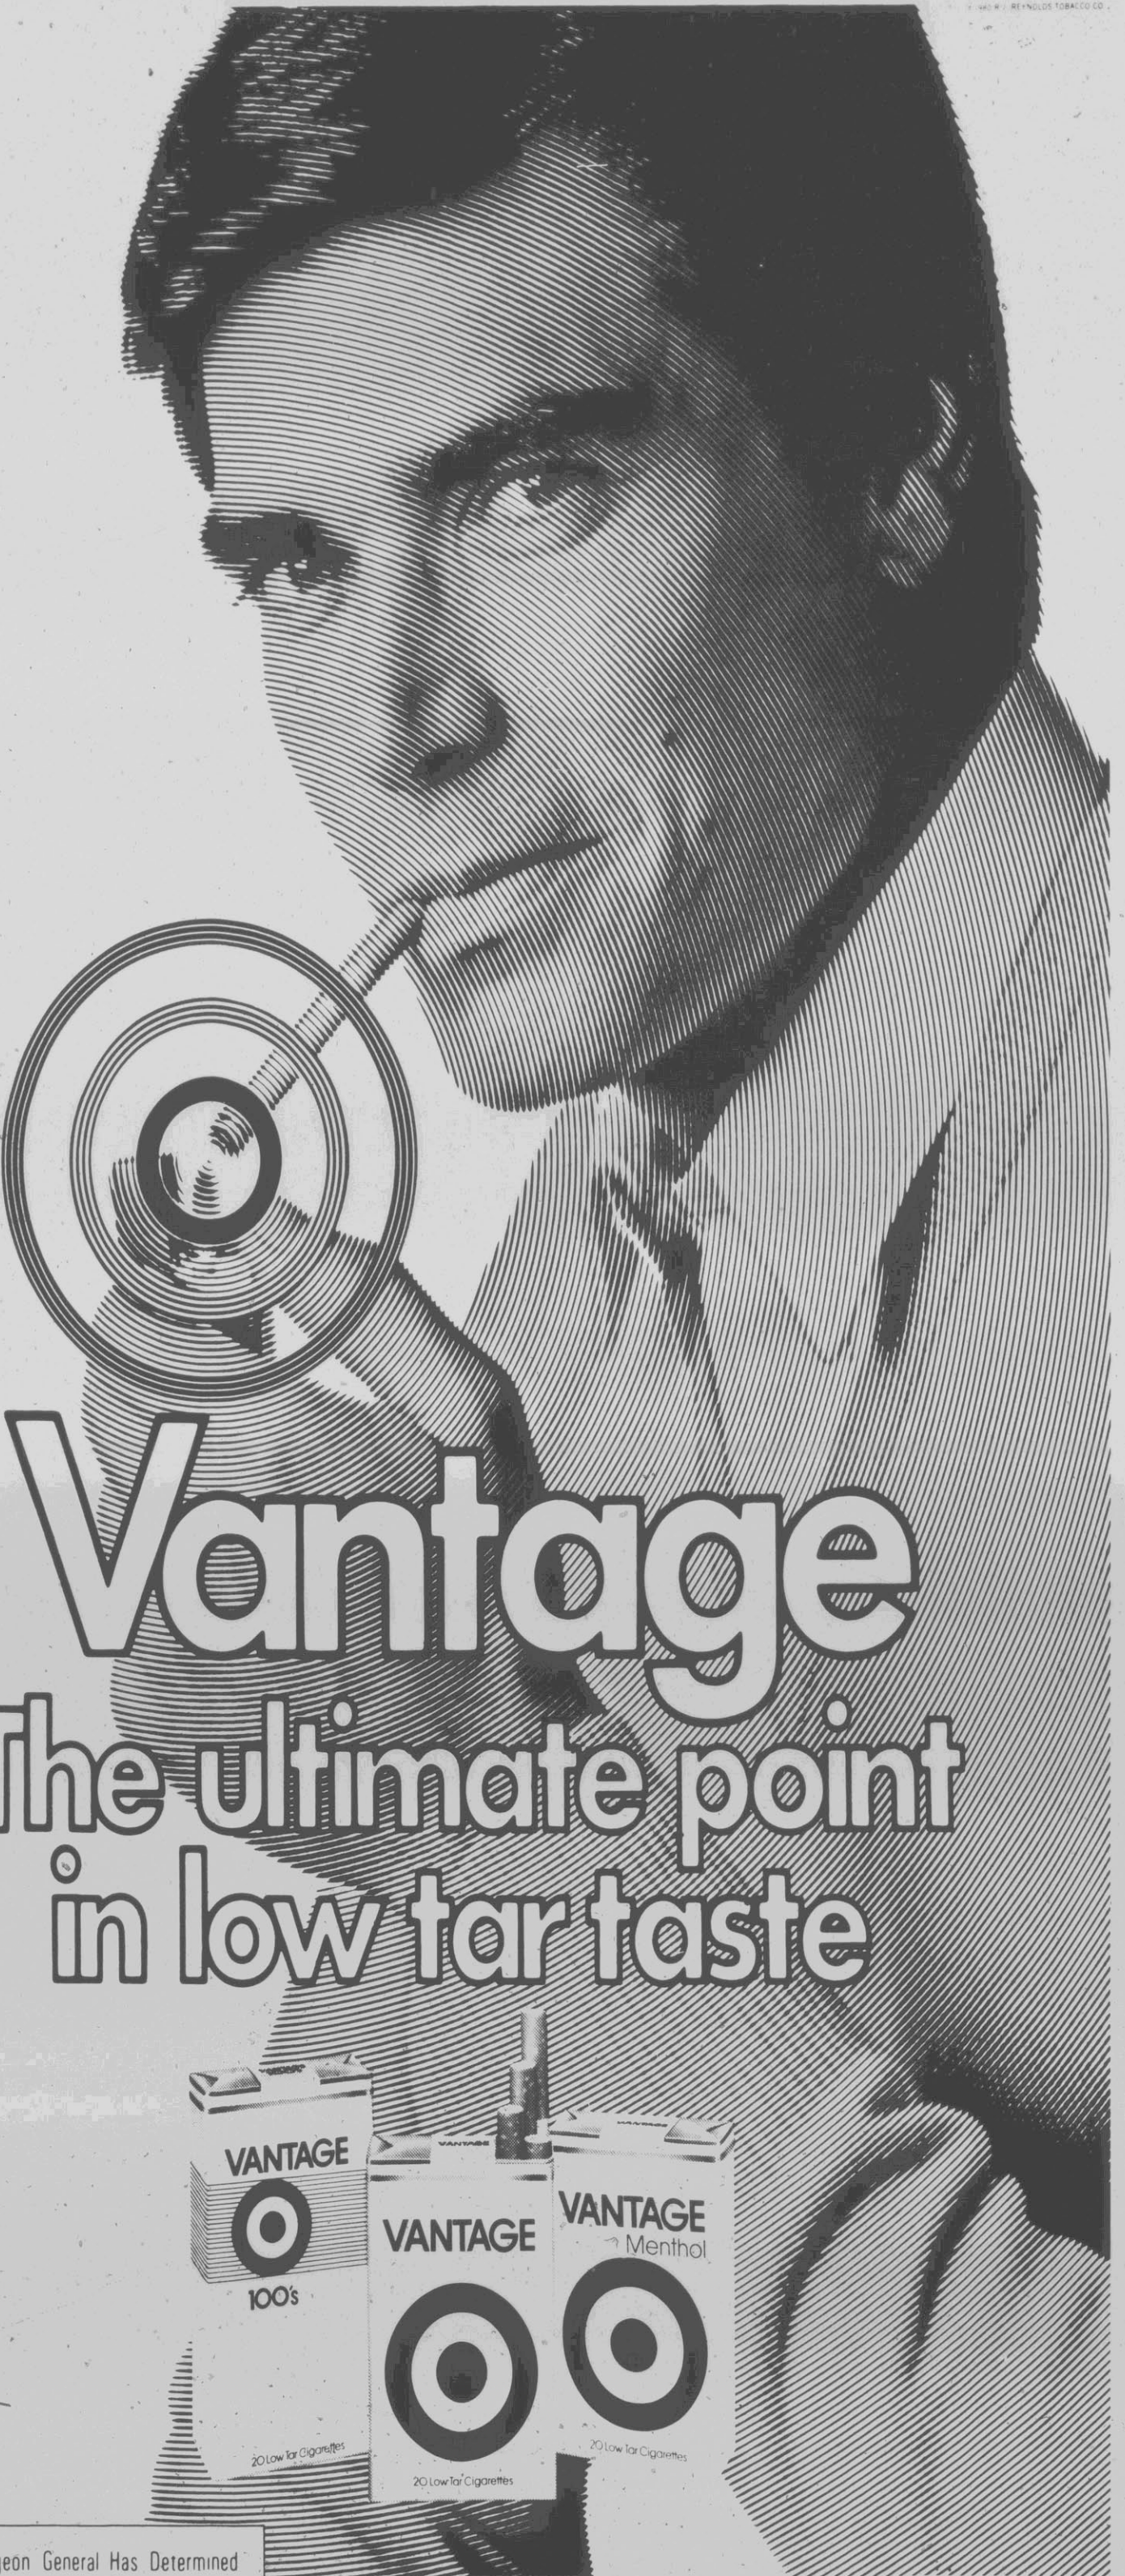

So West shifted to the ten of diamonds. East overtook with the jack and declarer had to hold up again. East reverted to a heart, and the jack lost to the queen. West cleared the hearts and, since declarer needed club tricks to make his game, he entered dummy with a spade and tried the finesse. West won and took two more heart tricks for down two.

South's play to the first trick was elegant but mistaken. His diamond weakness should have warned him that a holdup in hearts could be fatal. In addition, the holdup play was unnecessary, for declarer could afford to lose the club finesse to West. West would be unable to make a damaging return, and declarer would then have established enough tricks for the contract.

Therefore, declarer should win the ace of hearts at trick one. He enters dummy with the jack of spades and runs the queen of clubs. If East has the king of clubs, declarer must make at least three club tricks and his contract, regardless of the distribution. If West holds the king, declarer cannot be prevented from scoring an overtrick, for he is entitled to four tricks in the suit even against the actual 4-1 split. Assume West refuses the finesse. When East shows out on the second round, declarer simply rises with the ace and continues clubs to force out the king.
