Missile Silo Explodes In Mighty Blast

By TERRI COLBY
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Ark. (AP) — A fiery explosion that lit the night sky "like daylight" rocked an underground Titan II missile silo today, injuring at least 22 maintenance workers, the Air Force said. Pentagon sources said a nuclear warhead was atop the missile, but said there was no evidence the weapon was damaged or that any radiation leaked.

Authorities evacuated the area within a five-mile radius, routing about 1,000 people mostly in the tiny towns of Damascus, Bee Branch and Gravesvillibout. A team from the Department of Energy and the state health department were sent to the scene about 50 miles north of Little Rock to check radiation levels.

Tom Mahr, a public information officer at the headquarters of the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb., said 22 people were injured, 18 of them seriously enough to be hospitalized, in the accident that began when a three-pound wrench socket fell 70 feet and punctured the missile's first stage fuel tank.

Gov. Bill Clinton said Air Force officials told him that no nuclear explosion had occurred and that none could have occurred in the silo housing the 103-foot-long intercontinental ballistic missile which is capable of delivering this nation's largest hydrogen bomb to a target 6,300 miles away.

Maj. Lew Lambert at SAC headquarters said the explosion scattered debris around the surrounding area and that Arkansas officials reported some foliage caught fire. By midmorning, he said, the fire had subsided.

It was not immediately known whether the missile itself or only fuel exploded. The silo, covered by concrete doors, was "just a big rubble inside" after the blast, Clinton said.

The explosion occurred as a maintenance crew tried to neutralize a fuel leak in the first-stage of the missile, said SAC spokesman Col. Richard Kline.

Air Force Secretary Hans Mark in Washington said the missile had been undergoing maintenance Thursday night when a three-pound wrench socket fell 70 feet, bounced off a thrust mount, and struck the missile, puncturing the first stage fuel tank holding about 10,000 gallons of fuel. About 24 minutes later, the maintenance crew reported indications of a fire, Mark said, and flooded the silo with water. Civilian authorities were advised to evacuate the area.

It was the second accident this week involving sophisticated Air Force weaponry. On Monday, a B-52 bomber caught fire at Grand Forks Air Force Base in North Dakota. State disaster officials said an intercepted Air Force message indicated the plane may have been carrying nuclear weapons, but SAC refused to confirm that was so.

The explosion shook the ground and the area "lit up like daylight," said Tommy Graham, an official of the state Office of Emergency Services, who lives in the area.

"There was a big flash of light, then it was followed by a shock wave a few seconds later," said Tom Scott, a reporter for the Log Cabin Democrat in Conway. He said there was an acrid odor in the air after the blast and a "large billowing cloud of reddish-orange smoke and flame that lasted about 10 seconds." Small pebbles fell to the ground, he added.

The explosion occurred about 3 a.m., hours after Air Force officials discovered the fuel leak and spotted "smoke" billowing from the silo, an Air Force spokesman said.

The four-member silo crew had been evacuated by helicopter Thursday night and taken to the Little Rock Air Force Base, about 40 miles away, Mahr said.

The maintenance crew had suited up to enter the silo only 30 minutes before the blast. It was not immediately known whether they were inside the silo at the time of the explosion.

The leaking fuel, identified as Aerozine 50, was not as volatile as the oxidizer that must be mixed with it to form propellant for the missile, Kline said.

The silo is located between the tiny towns of Damascus and Bee Branch. Traffic in the area was blocked.

Evacuation centers were set up at a high school gymnasium and a church in nearby Clinton, and "almost everybody in the area" left their homes, said Jackie Griffin of the Office of Emergency Services.

Air Force officials contacted state emergency officials at 6:47 p.m. Thursday with news of a "possible fire and leak" and advised the evacuation.

A fuel leak in 1978 resulted in hospitalization of several people after exposure to toxic nitrogen tetroxide fumes. Nitrogen tetroxide is a component of the fuel for the Titan II missile.

After that incident, local residents demanded additional security measures. Concerns about the safety of the missile silos recently have led Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., and other congressmen to seek legislation establishing an early warning system for people living near the silos.

There are 54 such facilities in the United States, 18 of which are in Arkansas. The other silos are in Arizona and Kansas.

Networks Concerned Over Carter 'Using' News

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's nationally broadcast news conference raised not only some expected ire from his Republican opponent — whose aides called the performance a "political commercial" — but also some surprising concern by television network executives.

Carter, who has refused to take part in a televised debate Sunday between presidential candidates Ronald Reagan and John Anderson, held sway before the TV cameras Thursday for about 30 minutes, four of them devoted to an opening statement in which he gave a "good news" report on his administration.

He talked about the administration's efforts on Mideast negotiations, the economy, normalization with China, the hostages in Iran, auto imports, energy, and nuclear arms talks with the Soviets.

When it got down to questions, the preamble was mostly dropped and the president was asked repeatedly about recent campaign statements in which he linked Republican nominee Reagan's pronouncements on states' rights and the Ku Klux Klan with racism and hatred.

Four out of 12 questions dealt with that, prompting Carter to say he does not consider Reagan a racist and to reject any assertion that he is running a mean campaign.

"I think my campaign is very moderate in its tone," he said.

But what concerned the Reagan camp was the opening statement. Reagan's campaign director, William Casey, called it "an obvious partisan announcement" and asked that the Republican be given equal time under the Federal Communications Act.

Network news executives seemed concerned, too. CBS News President William Leonard said the statement was "pretty obviously self-serving. I was a little bit shaken, frankly."

And David Burke, vice president of ABC News, said it "did not distinguish the press conference in the traditional sense. And we will keep that in mind when requests are made in the future."

The equal-time law specifies that broadcasters who permit candidates to "use" their stations must give an equal opportunity to other candidates for the same office. An exception is coverage of "bona fide news events."

Despite the opening statement, the president's 59th news conference since taking office was dominated by Carter's campaign conduct.

In Atlanta on Tuesday — two weeks after Reagan had mentioned the Klan — Carter told a partisan audience of black southerners that the campaign has seen "the stirrings of hate and the rebirth of code words like 'states rights' and the Klan."

"Hatred has no place in this country," Carter added. "Racism has no place in this country."

But when pressed on the matter Thursday, the president said he did not believe Reagan was "running a campaign of racism or hatred and I think my campaign is very moderate in its tone."

Somoza Death Suspect Dies In A Shootout

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP) — Police shot and killed a leftist guerrilla sought in the assassination of Anastasio Somoza and arrested another. The remains of the ousted Nicaraguan dictator were flown early today back to the United States, the country he felt abandoned him in his hour of need.

Police identified the slain man as Hugo Alfredo Irurzun, and said he was killed in a shootout Thursday night in the Asuncion suburb of Lambare after he opened fire on security forces coming to search the house in which he was hiding. Police said they were tipped off to Irurzun's presence by a businessman who recognized him from a photograph shown on television.

Police reported the arrest of another guerrilla suspected of taking part in the assassination. He was not identified. They also said one of Irurzun's cohorts escaped during the exchange, and that the suburb, about nine miles south of the capital, was sealed off.

Authorities said Irurzun was a member of the Argentine People's Revolutionary Army. The government had distributed photographs of him and a female member of the same group shortly after Wednesday's bazooka and machine-gun assassination of Somoza, his chauffeur and a financial adviser.

Security forces have thrown a dragnet over this entire California-sized country in an effort to capture the four to six members of the assassination squad still at large. Paraguay's borders with Argentina, Brazil, and Bolivia were sealed Wednesday, opened for five hours Thursday, then closed again. Police detained more than 100 people for questioning, and the right-wing government of President Alfredo Stroessner has offered a $40,000 reward for information leading to the capture of the assassins.

Somoza's five children — Anastasio, Jorge, Roberto, Carolina and Carla who arrived in Asuncion Thursday — left with their father's body aboard a Miami-bound charter flight early today.

Sirhan Free In 1984?

SOLEDA, Calif. (AP) — A parole board has given Sirhan Sirhan, the convicted assassin of Robert F. Kennedy, two months off his prison sentence for good behavior, even though he refused to attend the board's meeting.

Sirhan's failure to appear at the Thursday meeting at Soledad Prison was not held against him, but it was considered unusual, officials said.

"Most inmates want their day in court, or their day in the board room," said prison spokesman Dan Byrd.

Sirhan, 35, who is serving a life sentence, is now eligible for release on Sept. 1, 1984. If he continues to get sentence reductions for good behavior, he could be released as early as February 1984.

Under California law, inmates who have been behaving well are usually released on parole, but the parole board could hold him if it chose.

Sirhan, a native of Jordan, was originally sentenced to the gas chamber for shooting Kennedy June 5, 1968, at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. The sentence was commuted to life when the U.S. Supreme Court overturned the death penalty in 1972.

Exhuming Oswald Barred By Judge

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A judge today rejected an attempt by a British author to open the grave of Lee Harvey Oswald to determine whether the body buried there is that of the accused presidential assassin.

State District Court Judge James Wright said there "no necessity or compelling reason for the threatened exhumation or autopsy are shown in this record.

"In short," he added, "rumors, speculative theory, conjecture, and public curiosity will not suffice."

Lawyers for British author Michael Eddowes, who tried to have the body dug up, said they were studying the ruling and would decide later if they would appeal.

Eddowes had filed suit to have the body removed and an autopsy held because he believes the person buried there is not Oswald, but a Russian spy who was allegedly sent to murder President John F. Kennedy.

The Warren Commission said Oswald shot Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, and was himself shot to death by nightclub owner Jack Ruby two days later.

Meanwhile on Thursday, the Justice Department denied reports attributed to an unidentified source connected with the hearing that the FBI wants its agents to be on hand should the body be exhumed.

"The deputy attorney in the Justice Department has asked the FBI to simply keep the department informed of any public record matters that occurred in that matter," said Dean St. Dennis with the Justice Department in Washington.

Soviet Mission Arrives In Iran

By The Associated Press

A Soviet economic delegation has arrived in Tehran to negotiate on the purchase of Iranian oil and discuss expansion of economic relations between the two countries, Tehran Radio said today.

The radio also reported that Fakhrud-Din Hajazi, a member of the Iranian Parliament, said that Iran "will never surrender to imperialism in the case of the hostages and that it will remain steadfast in the field of battle." He was speaking at Friday prayers at Tehran University, the radio said.

The radio quoted a Soviet Embassy official as saying the six-member Soviet delegation included three government trade officials and was led by an undersecretary of the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Trade.

Relations between Tehran and Moscow have been strained recently because of Soviet supply of arms to Iraq which is engaged in a border war with Tehran. Last month Iran threatened to recall its ambassador in Moscow if Soviet military assistance to Iraq continued.

Tehran Radio quoted the unnamed Soviet Embassy official as saying the Soviet Union "had previously asked to buy some oil from Iran and, as this is a very important issue, we will be discussing it further during this trip."

In other developments, President Carter told a Washington news conference Thursday that the United States would not apologize to Iran in order to gain release of 52 American hostages in their 321st day of captivity.

Scientist Avers 'Shroud Of Turin' Is A Fake

LONDON (AP) — An American scientist said today the Holy Shroud of Turin, venerated by some Christians as the burial sheet of Jesus Christ, is a medieval fake.

Dr. Walter C. McCrone of Chicago, a microscopist, said he has found on the sheet traces of iron-ore pigment like that used by artists in the paint called red ochre. On the cloth is the shadowy image of a bearded man bearing wounds like those Christ suffered, according to the Bible.

Over the years, some people have believed the image was caused by Christ's blood stains or a kind of chemical reaction from his body and burial unguents.

McCrone said a Carbon 14 dating test probably would give a date around 1436, or 14 centuries after the Crucifixion of Christ. Italian church authorities have refused to grant permission to cut the sheet to get a sample of cloth to test.

The shroud has been the subject of thorough scientific study recently and some researchers say the cloth could very well be authentic. A team of American scientists said their preliminary findings tended to validate it.

"It is entirely possible that an artist could have done it much earlier than 1436, but it was very fashionable to make fakes at that time," McCrone was quoted in today's Catholic Herald as saying in closed-door lectures in Britain last week. He has since returned home.

In a telephone interview with McCrone in Chicago today, the British Broadcasting Corp. asked the scientist if he thought he might be wrong.

"I don't think there's any possibility that I could be wrong," he replied.

"The particles of iron oxide that I find convince me that pigments would have had to have been applied in the way that an artist would have put it on."

Reputedly brought back from the Holy Land by Crusaders in the Middle, Ages, the sheet is kept in Turin Cathedral. An international panel of scientists was allowed to examine the relic in 1978 and McCrone said he worked on sample tapes taken at that time.

"I believe that the shroud is a fake, but I cannot prove it," McCrone was said to have told closed-door meetings, one of scientists and the other of members of the British Society for the Turin Shroud.

It was McCrone who exposed the Vinland Map as a forgery. The map, purporting to display medieval knowledge of North America before Christopher Columbus, was shown by McCrone to have been drawn with ink containing a pigment that was not marketed before 1917.

Peter Jennings, a British writer who has written a book on the Holy Shroud, believes it is genuine but cannot be proved.

Jennings said today that nobody else had said there was any paint or pigment on the shroud.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

AID APPRECIATED

The Rev. Richard A. Miller says you see the world from a new and different perspective when you're lying helplessly in the middle of the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche streets. His motorcycle hit an oil slick there Tuesday about noon. He has asked Hotline to appeal to the two men who came to his aid to call him at 758-4038 so he can thank them properly. He also praised the efficient and caring service of the Greenville Fire-Rescue personnel who carried him to the hospital.

In response to the Hotline item a couple of weeks ago about where to carry old newspaper for recycling, the Rose High Band Boosters suggest the Rose High band room. The band is collecting paper to sell for recycling to finance a trip to a competition in Florida in the spring. Paper may be given to any band member.

New Technique Available

By
GEORGETTE F. HEDRICK
ECU Medical Writer

A new technique for diagnosing and treating a variety of uterine disorders now is available at the East Carolina University of Medicine.

A slender piece of equipment known as a hysteroscope permits surgeons to see inside the uterus and more accurately determine the cause of unusual bleeding, infertility and other abnormalities.

Dr. Lynn G. Borchert, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology, is a specialist in the use of the hysteroscope, which is primarily used by reproductive endocrinologists and infertility experts in treating patients.

The hysteroscope is a small telescope with a light conductor system that shines light into the uterus and enables the surgeon to visualize the uterine cavity and the openings of the fallopian tubes into the cavity.

According to Borchert, the procedure — called a hysteroscopy — most often is performed in medical centers. "The procedure is not very common, and it has limited applications," Borchert says. "But when you need it, the hysteroscope is invaluable."

For example, the instrument is useful in treating Asherman's Syndrome, a cause of infertility in which bands of scar tissue connect the walls of the uterus and block fertilization. A portal in the sheath surrounding the hysteroscope allows the insertion of an instrument which can cut the scar tissue, Borchert explained.

Other flexible instruments, which are manipulated by remote control, permit the surgeon to biopsy and cauterize tissue as well as remove abnormal tissue or foreign objects, such as intrauterine contraceptive devices.

The hysteroscope also is valuable in diagnosing abnormal bleeding, which may be caused by fibroid tumors, cancer or polyps (small growths in the uterine cavity). The openings of the fallopian tubes may be examined for obstructions that would cause infertility.

According to Borchert, a clear liquid usually is injected into the uterus to expand the walls so that all surfaces are visible and operative procedures can take place.

Borchert, who is the only physician in the area trained to use the hysteroscope, says most procedures are performed on an outpatient basis, and patients usually return to work within two days.

Beta Sigma Phi Meets

The Eta Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held its first annual meeting for this year Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Linda McGeehee.

Members discussed plans and projects for the year. Miss Vivian Strickland of Belk Tyler was the speaker for the evening. She spoke on furniture refinishing and distributed pamphlets on the subject.

A beginning day social was held Saturday by the group at the home of Mrs. Joyce Sawyer.

If Your Freezer Stops

Have you thought about what you would do if your home freezer stopped running? If you haven't you should. If your freezer stops operating due to a lack of electrical power, you may or may not have advanced warning. If your freezer stops running because it is need of repair, chances are you will have no advanced warning. So your best motto is "be prepared."

In advance you should find out about the nearest locker plant and try to locate a source of dry ice in the community. This information will be helpful in case you need services.

If you know in advance that power will be off in your house, set the freezer control at its coldest setting. Lower temperatures of the freezer and food will delay thawing when the power actually goes off.

Try to find out how long it will be before the freezer will be operating again. This will determine exactly what you must do to save frozen food.

Here are some steps you can take to prevent food from spoiling:

1. Do not open the freezer door or lid while the freezer is not operating, except as a part of food-saving procedure.

2. If the freezer will not be operating for several days, move the food to a locker plant or another freezer.

3. If dry ice is put in the freezer soon after it goes off, 50 pounds should keep the temperature of food in a 20-cubic foot freezer below freezing for 4 days. If the freezer is only one-half or less full, it will remain below freezing for only 2 or 3 days. Care must be taken in handling dry ice. Use gloves to prevent burn. Do not place directly on packages. Place on cardboard on top of the packages or on shelves.

4. If absolutely necessary, the food can be canned.

How Long Will Food Keep?
Try to estimate how long food will stay frozen. With the freezer closed, food will usually stay frozen in a fully loaded cabinet 2 days, and in a cabinet with less than half a load, not more than a day.

How long the food in your freezer will stay frozen depends on:

1. The amount of food in the freezer. A full freezer will stay cold many hours longer than a freezer only a quarter full.

2. The kind of food. A freezer full of meat will not warm up so fast as a freezer full of baked food.

3. The temperature of the food. The colder the food, the longer it will stay frozen.

4. The freezer itself. A well-insulated freezer will keep food frozen much longer than one with little insulation.

5. Size of freezer. The larger the freezer the longer the food will stay frozen (depending, of course, on the four factors listed above).

What To Do With Food If It Thaws

Sometimes, frozen foods are partially or completely thawed before you discover that the freezer is not operating. Partial thawing and refreezing does reduce the quality of foods particularly fruits, vegetables and prepared foods. Red meats are affected less than many other foods. Thawed ground meats, poultry and fish that have any off-color or off-odor should not be refrozen. You may safely refreeze foods that have thawed if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still cold (about 40° F.) and have been held at this temperature no longer than 1 or 2 days after thawing. Foods warmed to 40° F. or higher are not safe for refreezing.

Use care in preparing, packing and freezing food. The more sanitary you are in preparing food for the freezer, the better it will be able to withstand a stoppage of the freezer. Sanitary preparation means fewer bacteria to cause spoilage. Frozen bacteria are not dead bacteria; when they warm up they become active.

Paying Parents Call The Tune

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I hope and pray that you will print this letter, as this problem has plagued my friends and me for many years.

I'm a 19-year-old girl, living with my parents and attending a very strict Baptist college. My parents are paying for my education.

Abby, I've been listening to rock music for over eight years without my parents' knowledge. They found the tapes and were crushed. They say they can no longer trust me. I apologized for having kept it from them, but explained that I didn't tell them because I knew rock music is against their beliefs. They say that rock music destroys young people and that I cannot keep the tapes in the house. I told them that I have developed my own convictions, and as long as I don't disturb anyone with my music I should be allowed to keep the tapes and listen to them.

Who is right? Must I get rid of the tapes and turn my radio dial to the religious station? Or should I be allowed to make my own choice of music as long as I don't bother anybody?

ME IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR ME: As long as you live in your parents' home and they are paying for your education, you must follow their rules. Once you are on your own, you may do as you please.

DEAR ABBY: I live in Pearl City, Hawaii, and I'm shocked and appalled at the ignorance of some of our fellow Americans who still think Hawaii is a "foreign country." When I travel to the mainland, I am amazed at the number of people who say, "I'd love to go to Hawaii someday; I've never been out of the United States." I'm also asked, "Is this your first trip to America?"

I've even been asked, "Do you have running water, being that you're so isolated from everything? And how does life in America compare to Hawaii?" The list goes on and on. Will you please inform people that Hawaii is now one of the 50 states of the union? Also, we no longer live in little grass shacks. Thank you!

ALIVE AND WELL IN AMERICA

DEAR ALIVE: You can bet your ukulele. Let it be known that on Aug. 21, 1959, Hawaii became the 50th state to join the union, and has been a part of America ever since!

DEAR ABBY: With the changing times (and less emphasis on the more formal aspects of a wedding), my wife and I are often faced with an embarrassing dilemma. We are both pastors who officiate at many weddings. We are seldom invited in advance to the rehearsal dinner or the wedding reception, but when we start to leave, the bride says, "Please stay. We thought you knew you were invited."

We never presume that we are invited unless we have received an invitation beforehand. Abby, we have small children and must make arrangements for having them looked after, just as all the other invited guests who have been officially invited.

Please remind your readers that if the officiating pastor(s) is expected to stay for the rehearsal dinner and reception, an invitation should be sent.

Life As It's Lived

Language Variations In Our Very Own English

By GAIL MICHAELS

People who have never lived in the South tend to think that all Southerners talk alike. To a certain extent this is true. For instance, all Southerners follow their own rules regarding contractions.

Most Southern contractions with the exception of "didn't" are pronounced with a "d" in the middle, as in "Sally didn't like liver so she din't eat with us tonight." There's also our super contraction, I'mo, as in "I'mo come even if Sally idn't."

But for the most part Southern speech patterns vary as widely as those of Boston and the Bronx. Take, for example, the way we use the letter "r." Most of us don't pay much attention to it. It's either pronounced at the end of a word or it idn't.

We have little in common with those Southerners who think the letter is an example of foreign influence and must be undermined at every opportunity. From this group we might hear that 'Mizriz Southren didn't want ter leave Sally alone at the fahm ternight so she idn't comin either."

In North Carolina the speech patterns vary so significantly from region to region that during my first move from the Piedmont to the east, I required an interpreter. I couldn't get anyone to give me four quarters for a dollar; I had to get korders. The first time Phillip told me that the jack was in the boot of the car, I wondered why he had put it in a shoe when the trunk would have been so much more convenient.

I'm afraid that even our years of living in Greenville and our recent move to Smithfield have not inured me completely to the eastern North Carolina idiom. I still fight with Phillip over the way he makes the word "pecan" rhyme with bedpan.

We also fight over Meg's pronunciation of certain words. It's hard enough to teach a child to speak properly. According to Meg, at the end of a typical day we've brang in the groceries, we've taken out the trash, and we've writed her aunt. These mistakes are understandable. But when she told me the other morning that "surup on pancakes is gooder than honey," my hair bristled.

"Syrup, si'rup," I snapped. "The syrup is better."

"Daddy says, 'surup.'"

"Daddy's wrong."

"There's nothing wrong with the way I say 'surup,'" Phillip said.

"Of course not. As far as you're concerned, there are 'surveral' different ways to pronounce it."

"There are."

"Come on, Phillip, how do you expect the poor child to learn how to spell?"

"The same way I did."

"I rest my case. From now on, Meg, you will please say 'syrup' and 'several,' okay?"

"Okay."

Several days later her preschool teacher introduced a new classmate from India and asked if more than one language was spoken in any of the other children's homes.

Meg raised her hand.

"What languages do you speak?" the teacher asked.

"Well, my mommy and I speak English, but my daddy speaks Bethel."

Complex Given 'Top Priority'

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Trustees of UNC-Greensboro agreed Thursday to make construction of an $18 million physical activity complex their top priority in seeking funds from the Legislature for the next two years.

Trustee chairman Louis Stephens said the new building would replace two outdated, small gymnasiums. The new building would include three gyms, one of which would seat 3,000 people.

Stephens was re-elected to a fifth term as chairman of the trustee board.

Urges Schools Stir Patriotism

BOSTON (AP) — Retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland says Americans must reawaken their sense of patriotism and the way to begin is in the schools.

"That spark of patriotism that has faded must be rekindled," the former Army chief of staff said in an interview Thursday before a session of the Fourth Annual Great American Achievements Program.

The program, sponsored by the Bicentennial Council of the Thirteen Original States Fund Inc., features scholarly papers and discussions at its two-day meetings. Study kits focusing on the U.S. Constitution are later made available to interested schools or individuals.

There Is No Way Out

One more meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has ended without agreement between the nations which control much of the world's oil supplies.

At issue was a plan to gradually raise oil prices on a regular basis, but also hanging over the meeting was a world oil glut which caused the hawkish members of the cartel to call for reduction in oil production. There was also discussion of a plan to assist third world nations, with no agreement. Further discussions are to be held at October meetings.

Given the price fixing powers of the organization the disagreement would appear to be good news for the oil consuming world. Alas, it is not. Prospects are that the current oil glut will quickly disappear as the current recession comes to an end. Whether it does or not, some big oil producers can curtail production on their own and have an effect.

As for pricing there is no outlook except for ever higher costs for oil. In a competitive situation the price of the product would be expected to be down considerably at this point. It isn't to any degree. It will go higher, no matter how much the OPEC ministers argue.

There is simply no way out of the current energy costs squeeze except to find alternate sources.

Debate Is A Campaign Issue

Sunday night there will be a presidential candidate debate, but it won't include the president of the United States.

GOP candidate Ronald Reagan and independent candidate John Anderson will face each other in the League of Women Voters sponsored debate. Almost certainly President Carter will not be there.

The president's advisors decided to pass up the debate when Anderson was included. It was considered better campaign strategy not to participate.

Now the debate itself becomes a campaign issue.

SEQUELS ARE OFTEN SO DISAPPOINTING!

The Sermon Is Politics

BY WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
ATLANTA (AP) — Outside the Ebenezer Baptist Church, President Carter paused to say that anyone who injected the obnoxious spirit of the Ku Klux Klan into the presidential campaign was making a serious mistake.

Then he went inside to preach politics — and to renew his own discussion of the Klan as an issue against Ronald Reagan.

He did it adroitly and indirectly, saying it was the Republican nominee who raised the Klan issue in the first place. Actually, it was a Democrat, campaigning for Carter.

It was vintage Carter: renounce an issue, deny an inference and then make sure no one within hearing forgets about it.

In Cleveland, for example, Carter accused Reagan of risking a new arms race that would heighten the peril of nuclear war. "I don't want to be misunderstood," he added, "I'm not insinuating that my opponent is for war and against peace."

In this case, the issue was Reagan and race, the audience a gathering of southern black leaders, come to the church where Martin Luther King Jr. preached to talk about the campaign and plan a get-out-the-vote effort.

The turnout of black voters across the South could be critical to Carter as he seeks to fend off the conservative Reagan and hovey his home territory on Nov. 4.

"We are no longer divided, whites from blacks," Carter said, as he set about trying to draw blacks from Reagan. In fact, the Republican presidential nominee is not likely to gain much support among black voters; the Democrats' concern is that many of them will stay at home instead of voting at all.

The president told them that whatever their dissatisfaction with him, if Reagan wins they won't even be able to get a telephone call answered at the White House.

"You've seen in this campaign the stirrings of hate and the rebirth of code words like 'states' rights' in a speech in Mississippi, in a campaign reference to the Ku Klux Klan relating to the South."

"That is a message that creates a cloud on the political horizon," Carter said. "Hatred has no place in this country. Racism has no place in this country."

Reagan indeed used the phrase "states' rights," once a synonym for opposition to civil rights legislation, in an Aug. 3 speech in Philadelphia, Miss. He said he was for turning some federal programs back to the states.

On Labor Day, he criticized Carter for opening his campaign in Tusculum, Ala., erroneously calling it "the city that gave birth to and is the parent body of the Ku Klux Klan." He issued an apology, of sorts, for what the Democrats called a slur against the South.

The Klan did endorse Reagan and the Republican platform. Reagan renounced the endorsement on Aug. 6, saying he had just learned of it and resented the use of his name.

So the topic was there, ripe for the campaign picking. It was a Democrat, Secretary of Health and Human

Alternative Plan

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A $9.7 million loan fund set up by the North Carolina General Assembly is seen as the only way to establish a statewide system of prepaid health group programs proposed by the Commission on Prepaid Health Plans.

Such plans would be expensive to establish and would need to operate many months — in some cases two years or more — before there would be enough members to put them into the black.

The commission report stresses that the money would be for loans, and would be repaid with interest, if the programs succeed. The question is guaranteed from legislators who will be asked to fund the plan, and from physicians and other health specialists opposed to the revolutionary program: what happens to the money if the plan fails?

The answer is obvious. The commission is chaired by Glenn Wilson, head of the social and administrative medicine program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. It was set up two years ago to probe prospects of a prepaid health group program for government employees in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill area.

That action by the General Assembly was a direct outgrowth of another commission which studied medical cost containment.

Rising Cost
Legislative concern grows out of two critical conditions: public unrest over rapidly rising health care costs, and the bills for Medicaid service to the poor and elderly which are causing severe strains on the budgets of both state and county governments.

The latest commission quickly determined that some form of group plan would work, and not just in the Triangle area, but in various forms, statewide.

BILL NOBLITT

And, that providing competition to the existing system would help bring health care costs under control. But it also found that present state law was so confused and the Medicaid program so complex and the money needed to get a new program off the ground so much and sources so limited, that another, fresh approach was required.

That study, complete with elaborate findings, data, and recommendations is now being put in final form for presentation to the 1981 General Assembly.

Running through this study is the warning that health care and the way it is paid for is going to change. Regulation from Washington will be a more bitter pill to swallow than one prescribed in North Carolina with professionals from the health care system directly involved in planning and running the system.

A "private, competitive alternative system" is suggested as the answer, with a quasi-public corporation consisting of health practitioners, employers, consumers, and legislators is seen as the answer.

The commission mimes no words in warning that if "North Carolina does not commit itself to some effort to improve access and constrain cost, further intrusion of regulation by government is...the only alternative."

Specifics
Here, in much simplified form, is how the program would work:

Existing or newly created corporations in various locales would organize groups whose members would pay a monthly fee for which they would get total health care. The money would come from government which pays health insurance premiums at this time, from employers, or from private individuals. The local corporation would contract with individual physicians who wish to

The New Polish Jokes

WASHINGTON — In the last few months everyone is taking a new look at Polish jokes.

Here are some of the latest Polish jokes going around:

"How many Poles does it take to make a government fall in Warsaw?"

"A few hundred in Gdansk, providing they stick to their demands."

"How many Poles does it take to drive the Kremlin up the wall?"

"One, if he's asking for secret union elections."

"How do you know when a Polish coal miner is mad?"

"When, despite all his perks, he tells the Communist Party to go to hell."

"When was the last time a Polish worker ate meat?"

"Two weeks before he went out on strike and closed down the shipyards."

"What does a Pole say to a deputy premier when the premier tells him he has to work longer hours for less pay?"

"You're fired!"

"What does a Pole carry in his lunch pail?"

"Secret pamphlets telling his work comrades what is really going on in the country."

"How does a Pole keep the Russians from invading the country?"

"By not taking any money from the CIA."

"How long does it take a Pole to make an omelet?"

"Twenty minutes to make it, and four hours to stand in line to buy the eggs."

"What does a Polish worker do to show he believes in the Communist system?"

"He goes to Mass every day."

"How many Poles does it take to screw in a light bulb?"

"None, if their strike leaders tell them to shut off the electricity."

"What does the Party manager of a Polish factory do when his workers decide to sit in?"

"He gets out of the place as fast as he can."

"What does a Pole say to his wife at night?"

"If I'm not home by tomorrow evening, you'll know the strike is over."

"What does a Pole say to her husband at night?"

"It's about time you can throw your dirty clothes over the fence."

"How many Poles does it take to repair a motorcycle?"

"None, because they can get the spare parts to repair anything."

"What does a Polish government official say when a Soviet official says he is not happy with what is going on in Poland?"

"Sue me!"

"How do you get a Pole to work?"

"By granting amnesty to all strikers who agree to be rested, grant approval of freedom in the press, giving him a pay raise and promising to get off his back."

"What does an East German worker say to a Pole when he meets him at night?"

"The folks around here tell us how you beat it."

I know, these new laws aren't better, but at least they're even less than the people who use them put in jokes in the Soviet Union."

Other Editors Say Pearl Of Our Coast

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The town of Beaufort has become the pearl of the North Carolina coast.

Those who have not visited there in recent years will find the transition almost unbelievable. Old homes have been restored and preserved. Old business buildings have been creatively renovated to preserve a sense of the past and still meet the needs of tasteful modern merchandising.

The waterfront is lovely and relaxing and, with all the sailboats at dockside and in Taylor's Creek, lends itself to picture-taking.

An atmosphere of refreshing cleanliness pervades the area, along with a disarming friendliness and warmth.

A must for the visitor is Hampton Mariners' Museum. Interest sparked by the museum undoubtedly has contributed greatly not only to the redevelopment of Beaufort but also to the direction that progress has taken.

North Carolinians should treat themselves to a visit to the town.

Only then can they fully appreciate what the people of Beaufort are providing for all of us and for those who come from far beyond our borders.

And rest assured that in the years ahead, this town will be on the "must visit" list of millions who will come by boat, by private car and by charter bus.

It is scenic. It is pleasant. It is historical. It has class. It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

It is, truly the pearl of our coast.

Reader's Digest Gives Birth

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In her 59th year, The Reader's Digest, self-described as "that worldly lady with the common touch," has given birth. Her first, it's a test-tube creation, conceived after long deliberation.

The new publication, named Families and carrying a Sept. 23 date, is probably the most carefully marketed product to reach the newsstands in years, having been pretested, tested, retested. It is, itself, a test.

In some markets, for example, it will cost $1.25, in others the price will be $1.95, and in still others it will cost $2.49 and contain 48 additional editorial pages. Sales to price-size ratios will be studied.

Some markets will be supported by newspaper advertisements, others by television, and some by radio. In certain markets no advertising at all is planned. Sales-ad ratios will be scrutinized for promotion guidance.

Readers are expected to help. In every 150 copies of the 400,000 print run, a questionnaire will be mailed. Responses will be analyzed, and changes in magazine content, cover design, and recommendations will be made.

In fact, the new Families magazine is being tested as if it will be a success. They will ponder and digest that information for many months.

Though the new publication is destined to be published monthly, the first issue will be until April, and the monthly schedule will begin until October of next year.

Maybe a million people

but this magazine, maybe

McLoughlin said, "We don't really know until we put it out."

He said, "We have an idea of hope."

In spite of the reliance on hard marketing science, Families is a product also of human feelings and convictions.

"We had considered many ideas in the past but it wasn't until now that we had one that produced a feeling in the gut," McLoughlin said.

Probably five or six ideas were aborted in the past six years, he said, because "no body had a feeling in their belly about them."

Families note the plural "we" many Digest people feel. "The family is disappearing," said McLoughlin, father of five, who is a non-union family man.

backpacking, the value of the dollar, communicating, custody, dating, school marks, college, careers, emotional disturbance. Almost endless.

To find its stories the Digest will read everything available in newspapers, magazines and books, and probably will search through the contents of speeches and seminar discussions. Then it will condense.

Advertisers seem to approve the concept, and McLoughlin claims the 67 ad pages set a mark for the premier issue of new magazines, exceeding Time Inc.'s Discovery (60) and Penthouse's Omni (58).

At $4,500 for a four-color full page (a roughly 8 by 11 inches) and $3,725 for a black and white page, the revenue adds up quickly.

The early ad success, the vast variety of articles available, and the promised flood of marketing data seem to dispel McLoughlin's doubts. Net profits, he concedes, should add millions a year to Digest coffers.

Arrests Made After Break-In

Three persons were arrested early this morning by Greenville police following a 1:15 a.m. report of a break-in at Steinbeck's Men's Shop at Pitt Plaza Shopping Center, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with the incident were Mark Lynn Purvis, 25, of Washington, D. C., and two local women, Denise Tatum Gardner, 19, of 405 Darden Dr. and Gwendolyn Vines, 18, of 308 Conley St., Chief Cannon said.

The chief said newspaper deliverymen heard glass breaking, and shortly thereafter saw people carrying clothes down the center walkway of the shopping center. One of the deliverymen, former Greenville policeman C. J. Warren, telephoned the police department, then began a foot pursuit of the clothes-carriers.

Responding officers, who found that a window at Steinbeck's had been broken and a quantity of clothing removed, cordoned off an area between Arlington Boulevard and Kirkland Drive and began a search for the law-breakers. Using a North Carolina Department of Corrections bloodhound from the Greenville unit, under handler Bobby Simmons, officers found two piles of clothes abandoned in a field between Pitt Plaza and Kroger Sav-on, then located Purvis hiding in bushes at the rear of King's Discount Department Store, between Commerce Street and Kirkland Drive.

Cannon said Ms. Gardner and Ms. Vines were taken into custody as they drove along Arlington Boulevard in a car that had been seen parked earlier at Pitt Plaza.

A third pile of clothes was found later between Steinbeck's and the J. C. Penney Auto Center.

Cannon said Steinbeck's officials estimated that between $4,000 and $5,000 worth of merchandise was taken from the store. He added that the value of the three piles of merchandise recovered was set at $3,128.

The chief said investigation into the break-in is continuing and added that other arrests are expected in connection with the case.

Resources Patricia Roberts Harris, who made the Klan a direct campaign issue. On Aug. 5, she told the Black Congress on Health and Law that as Reagan speaks, "many will see the spectre of a white sheet behind him." A day later, in Los Angeles, she said the Republicans would have to explain why the KKK found their candidate and their platform compatible with its philosophy.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., took up the theme at the Atlanta church, saying he'd wait until Carter had left before denouncing Reagan as "a man who has embraced a platform that the Klan has said couldn't be better if they had written it themselves."

Carter, smiling, said he wished he could stay; "there are some things that are going to be said that I would really like to hear."

He also said in an undelivered text that a nation bent on xvz^{1/2}zwxzzw z^{1/2}zwxzzoy^{1/4}o—10 leadership to Reagan, "someone who thought the Civil Rights Act of 1964 was a bad bill." Reagan acknowledged he once opposed the bill, with its landmark provision banning discrimination in public accommodations, but now is satisfied that it has worked well.

Carter's own position on that bill at the time it was passed is not recorded. He was a Georgia state senator at the time. The White House press secretary, Jody Powell, said no one has been able to produce evidence that Carter was against it.

participate; with groups of physicians associated for the purpose of participating; with clinics, hospitals, and other services; or establish medical care centers. Membership by providers and clients would be voluntary. Cost to members would be roughly the same as group insurance.

Competition, financial incentives to participants to hold down costs, and the encouragement to members and providers to exercise preventive health steps rather than crisis response are seen by supporters as positive ways to bring rising costs under control.

Specifically, the commission recommends that a prepaid group medical practice — probably with medical centers located in Raleigh, Durham and Chapel Hill — be started in the Triangle area; and study be undertaken for one also in Charlotte.

In less urban areas and where concentrations of government employees do not provide as strong a nucleus for group clinics, a phased-in program of prepaid groups contracting with independent physicians or professional associations be undertaken.

Birthday In Beantown

Last May, a parade of tall sailing ships, surrounded by thousands of smaller boats, gathered in Boston Harbor. They were there to help kick off a summer-long birthday party honoring one of America's oldest cities. Boston actually was founded on September 21, 1630, 350 years ago this Sunday. The Puritans, who first settled in Boston, gave the city one of its most famous nicknames. Because they considered it a sin to cook on Sunday, the Puritans often baked beans on Saturday, so they would have something to eat the next day. Baked beans became a well known Boston tradition, and earned the city the nickname "Beantown."

DO YOU KNOW — Of what state is Boston the capital?

Some Federal Help For Refugee Glut Promised

By KATHY MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — The Carter administration, spurred by angry charges from local officials that refugees are boosting crime rates and bleeding public coffers, has announced it is moving refugee resettlement operations to another state.

The site of the new center for Cuban and Haitian refugees will be chosen in a week, White House Chief of Staff Jack Watson said at a news conference here Thursday.

The announcement came one day after five south Florida mayors threatened to sue the federal government, claiming the refugee influx has pushed police calls up by as much as 75 percent in one Miami neighborhood and pulled a public hospital $2 million into debt.

Florida Gov. Bob Graham said in Tampa that the United States should consider airlifting unhappy refugees to the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, rather than risk another commercial jet hijacking by homesick Cubans.

"If we have to have a confrontation with (Cuban President Fidel) Castro, there's no better place than the gates of our own military base," Graham said.

Federal authorities on Thursday went to Havana to get two Cubans who are charged with pulling off the 10th hijacking in five weeks.

Watson told reporters the only hope for a long term solution to the Cuban refugee problem lies in negotiations with the Castro government.

"We are exhausting every conceivable avenue for resolution of this problem between this nation and Cuba," he said. "We are giving it a full-court press."

Watson said a tent city here housing some 800 Cuban refugees under a Miami expressway would be closed by the end of the month. And two other Miami refugee centers, one holding another 800 Cubans and the other 1,100 Haitians, would be shut down in 30 days, he added.

New arrivals and un-sponsored refugees in the Miami area will be transferred to the new center and resettled in other states, Watson said.

"There is no way we can extricate ourselves from what is intrinsically a very difficult problem without other people sharing the burden," he said.

Watson scoffed at the suggestion that arriving boatloads of refugees be turned back.

"We're not dealing with stick figures here — we're dealing with people," he said. "For us to turn them back to an open sea to a government that won't accept them would be to condemn them."

JOY NIGHT

Joy Night will be held at Haddock Chapel FWB Church Sunday at 7:30 p. m.

Eldress Louise Phillips and her choir will be in charge of the service. The public is invited, according to the pastor, Bishop Stephen Jones.

Trudeau Plans Unilateral Steps

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's federal and provincial governments are heading for a stormy debate following Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's decision to recall Parliament ahead of schedule and unilaterally work out a new constitution.

Yvon Pinard, leader of the governing Liberal Party in the House of Commons, said after a Cabinet meeting Thursday that Parliament will be recalled earlier than the planned opening Oct. 15 to start the process of devising the constitution.

Sources said the Cabinet agreed the package will include a bill of rights but split over whether the charter should apply in provincial jurisdictions.

Pushing ahead with a rights charter is certain to provoke a fight from the seven premiers who opposed it at last week's first ministers' conference as well as from the Progressive Conservative opposition.

Conservative Leader Joe Clark said again Thursday it would be dangerous and unwise for the government to attempt to work out the constitution without support from the provinces.

Whether language guarantees should be made to apply in every province — including the right to English and French language education where numbers warrant — also is unresolved.

Trudeau will think over the options this weekend before taking off on a week-long trip to the Northwest Territories.

A date for the recall of Parliament has not been decided and the Trudeau trip means the legislature probably could not return before Oct. 1.

"This cabinet meeting was an attempt to find an easy consensus," said one source. "There wasn't one, so Trudeau will have to mull it over and bring it back to the Cabinet again."

Canada's current constitution is the British North America Act of 1867. Both the federal and provincial governments are in agreement that the charter should revert to Canadian control, but they are split as to how power should be divided between Ottawa and the provinces.

REVIVAL

Revival services will be held Sunday, Sept. 21, through Saturday, Sept. 27, at 7:45 p.m. at Pleasant Hill Free Will Baptist Church.

The Rev. C. F. Bowen of Kinston, church minister, will be the speaker. The services will also feature special singing and fellowship.

The services will be climaxed with annual homecoming scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 28. The public is invited to attend.

The church is located on the New Bern Highway.

Water Flushing To Continue

The eighth phase of the city's water distribution system flushing program will get underway Sunday night and continue through Friday morning, according to Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville Utilities' Water and Sewer Department.

Lewis said that the area bordered on the north by U.S. 264 and Arlington Boulevard, on the east by Evans Street, and on the south by 264 Bypass and Greenville Boulevard will be involved in the current phase.

The flushing is done between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. on Sunday nights through Friday mornings.

Lt. Gov. Green Is At Opening

Campaign Chairman Is Named

Mrs. Gay H. Blocker has been named campaign chairman of the National Hemophilia Foundation in Pitt County, according to Gordon Edwards, president of Pitt County Hemophilia. She is assistant professor of physical education at East Carolina University and an Ayden resident. A graduate of UNC-Chapel Hill with A. B. and M. Ed. degrees, she is a member of Alpha Phi Sorority, is a Junior Girl Scout Troop leader and is president of United Methodist Women of Ayden. She and her husband, James M. S. Blocker have a son, James, and a daughter, Elizabeth.

MRS. GAY BLOCKER

Mrs. Blocker has been active in volunteer work for the Easter Seal Society, the American Arthritis Association and the American Cancer Society. Hemophilia, known as bleeder's disease, is an inherited blood disorder which affects males primarily. The average medical costs for a hemophilia patient range from $10,000 to $25,000. The Hemophilia Foundation is the national voluntary health agency which devotes itself to supporting proper care and treatment for hemophilia patients. Information about hemophilia may be obtained from Mrs. Blocker or from the North Carolina Chapter office, P. O. Box 2838, Chapel Hill, N. C. 27514.

Graduation Is Held At Center

Twenty-nine inmates graduated from a four-week training period provided by the Greenville Pre-Release and Aftercare Center. The ceremony was held at noon Wednesday at the Baptist Student Center, East 10th Street. Guest speaker for the occasion was Hermon Gus Moeller, a faculty member with the Social Work and Correctional Services Program, ECU. Moeller commented on the growth that has occurred and the changing attitudes in society that have led to progressive programs such as the Pre-Release and Aftercare. Three of the inmate graduates gave short speeches. The three were elected by their fellow inmates to represent them as speakers. Ms. Nan Deans, a graduate student at ECU who has been doing volunteer work with the program, sang a musical selection to conclude the program. Wednesday's Pre-Release and Aftercare graduation was hosted by ECU students under the leadership of Rev. Bob Clyde, Baptist chaplain, at the student center.

Gadgetry Circumvents A Rule

By JOEL EPSTEIN
 Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli scientists have developed a special switch, incorporating a complex electronic circuit, which is to be used only one day a week in cases of dire need.

Church Has New Pastor

The Rev. Ariel S. Yorkman has come to the Greenville area from Portland, Me. to assume the pastorate of the Greenville Church of God.

Rev. Yorkman has previously served as an evangelist and has pastored churches in West Virginia, Georgia, Ohio and Maryland. For the past nine years he has served his denomination as superintendent and state overseer in Canada and the northern New England states — Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

Revival services will begin

REV. ARIEL YORKMAN
 Sunday with Pastor York as evangelist. The Sunday evening service will begin at 7 o'clock and the weekly services will start at 7:30 p.m. Special singing will be featured at each service. The pastor and the congregation invite the public.

turns on a food warmer. The Sabbath switch is one of dozens of inventions by the Institute for Science and Halacha, which seeks technological gimmicks to help orthodox Jews live normal lives while abiding by 2,000-year-old religious law, called Halacha in Hebrew.

By a bizarre marriage of Talmudic reasoning and electronic wizardry, the switch and other gadgets in a recent exhibition by the institute circumvent Biblical proscriptions against work on the Sabbath and other arcane regulations.

"For us, technology is a double-edged sword," said Chaim Friedberg, one of the institute's technical experts. "It causes problems, but it also provides the solutions for problems."

The exhibition displays everything from hospital nurse-call systems and telephones that are permissible to use on the Sabbath, to attachments to industrial cooking systems which solve problems posed by Judaism's strict prohibitions against mixing milk and meat.

An example of the kind of problems orthodox Jews face is the Biblical prohibition against lighting or extinguishing a fire on Saturday.

Bible Study Is Planned

A 52-week Bible study course has been planned at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The course begins Thursday, Sept. 25, according to the Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial and teacher of the weekly classes.

"As the biggest study of the year for Jarvis Memorial and really wanted in Greenville, according to early pre-registration response, the program is designed to bring the Bible alive," said the Rev. Bailey. Requirements for the course are a Bible, pen and notepad. There is no fee for the study.

The study will be held Thursday evenings from 7:30-8:30 in the Jarvis Chapel. The classes are open to Greenville and area residents.

Registration will be held Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. and early registration is continuing by calling the church office, 752-3101.

CHOIR REHEARSAL
 The Pitt-Greene Interdenominational Choir will rehearse Saturday at 5 p.m. at Selvia Chapel F.W.B. Church. All members are asked to be present.

Rabbis interpret the rule as forbidding electric lights, automobiles, glowing heating coils and other appliances. So how does one run a hospital or army during the Sabbath?

The institute found the solution, Friedberg said, in a little-known rule in the Talmud, a 5th-century religious law book.

It says that if a breeze from an open window threatens to blow out the ritual Sabbath candles, it is permitted to shut the window, even though that will make the candles burn more brightly. The scientists and rabbis of the institute put their heads together, and came up with the "gramma switch."

"The name comes from the ancient Hebrew word meaning 'causation,'" explained Friedberg. "It applies the principle of preventing a preventive action."

Here is how it works: A light blinks every seven seconds, and its beam falls on a photoelectric cell, generating a pulse of electricity. The pulse releases the built-up charge in a capacitor, a device which gives off electricity only after it has been charged to a certain voltage.

The capacitor is attached to the appliance, so that when it builds up the necessary charge it turns the light on.

When you push the switch, a little black flag blocks the light beam from falling on the photoelectric cell. That prevents the electric pulse from discharging the capacitor, which in turn allows the capacitor to reach full charge in about five seconds and turn on the appliance.

Get it? Don't worry if you don't, because the switch looks and works pretty much like an ordinary light switch, but it gets around the Biblical rule against lighting a fire on the Sabbath. The switch can be incorporated into essential hospital equipment, like food warmers, a security fence, or for that matter, says Friedberg, a Saturn space rocket. It costs $30.

"The switch still doesn't solve all the religious legal problems," said Friedberg. "You should still check with a rabbi about its use, and it should only be used in cases of dire need."

Prime Minister Menachem Begin, for his 67th birthday in July, received a Sabbath telephone from the institute which works on the same principle.

A LONG WAY

They've come a long way. They were married in this same church fifty years ago, when she was just twenty and he was twenty-two. Youth seemed eternal. Life promised a succession of sunny days.

But it wasn't to go on that way forever. Their first child died at birth. Then financial troubles, a business failure, the loss of a home when they couldn't meet the mortgage payments. Sometimes it seemed as if the clouds outweighed the sunshine.

But there were good times, too. Times of joy and laughter, success, wonderful children, wonderful grandchildren. Through it all, their faith and love for each other never faltered.

Throughout our own life, can we all say as much?

Juvenile Is Charged In Break-Ins

FARMVILLE — Farmville police arrested a juvenile last night on a number of breaking and entering and larceny charges.

Arrested following a breaking and entering at Jack's Auto Sales here was a juvenile who had been convicted in juvenile court less than two months ago of two other breakings and enterings and placed on probation. Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper said.

The young man was also charged with breaking and entering and larceny of S & H Clenaers, breaking and entering and larceny of the work site office of the Farmville housing project, larceny of an AM-FM radio from Carl Massey, larceny of watches from Farmville Discount Drugs, larceny of watches from Belk-Tyler Company, attempted breaking and entering of Heath's Fish Market, and larceny of checks from Planter's Warehouse.

Police charged Larry Pitt, 19, of 107 Godwin Drive, Farmville, with receiving stolen goods from the juvenile — checks from Planters Warehouse. They also served a warrant for a Greene County forgery charge on Pitt.

Officers who made the arrests were Capt. W. G. Barber, Sgt. Raymond Stokes and Officer Byron Highland, Cooper said.

Warrant Served For 1979 Wreck

FARMVILLE — A warrant was served by Farmville police last night for the arrest of Linwood Joyner, 25, of 128 Godwin Drive on death by motor vehicle charges.

Joyner, who has been out of the area for some time, according to Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper, was charged in connection with the death of Calvin A. Hines, 37, a Greene County public schools teacher who was killed in a wreck the afternoon of Thursday, Dec. 13, 1979.

The wreck occurred in Middle Swamp on Highway 258 between Farmville and Snow Hill. Hines' sister, Minnie Hines, 49, was a passenger in the small car driven by Hines. Trooper R. G. Pierce reported that Joyner's vehicle allegedly crossed the center line and hit the Hines' car, forcing it down an embankment and causing Hines' death.

Low Quality Shows Decline

FARMVILLE — Top quality grades continued to sell for record prices Thursday on the Farmville Tobacco Market. Several grades have been lower quality tips and showed a sharp decline yesterday.

Top prices ran from $1.70 to $1.80 per pound. Stabilization receipts accounted for 6.78 percent to gross sales. The market sold 349,467 pounds for $533,578 to average $152.68 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 18,549,702 pounds for $27,384,391 and a season average of $147.63 per hundred pounds.

Dissatisfied Over Report On Slaying

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP) — An SBI report clearing officers of any wrongdoing in the shooting death of a former mental patient has prompted complaints by some residents in Washington and Tyrrell counties.

District Attorney William C. Griffin said Thursday the study by the State Bureau of Investigation exonerated officers in the death of James Spencer, 39, who was killed Aug. 18 in an exchange of gunfire involving more than a dozen law enforcement officers from the two counties.

Griffin said the case was closed after the SBI report was received. "If this is his (Griffin's) conclusion, then this was not a thorough investigation," said Lewis W. Evans, an attorney for the complaining citizens.

Betsy Davenport, one of Evans' clients, said she did not "think the way the whole thing has been handled is right. They could have handled it in a matter so that the boy's life wasn't taken."

Mrs. Davenport has led a petition drive that netted 614 signatures from residents who think the incident was mishandled.

Death Due 'Allergic Reaction'

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The death of Larry Wayne Wallace, 30, on Sept. 4, appears to have been caused by an allergic reaction to self-injected heroin, according to Medical Examiner Dr. Stan Harris.

Wallace, a La Grange resident, was brought to Pitt County Memorial Hospital by companions who left without identifying themselves. He was pronounced dead in the emergency area of the hospital.

Dr. Harris said chemical analysis of Wallace's blood showed signs of additional drugs in his system, including cocaine and Valium.

"There was street talk," Dr. Harris said, "of this death's having been homicide, a 'hot shot' — a super-strength dose of heroin given or sold to Wallace."

"I find no evidence that it was. Heroin is unpredictable and can kill at any time, regardless of the dosage or how often it's been used in the past."

Dr. Harris said his investigation showed that Wallace had a criminal record for the sale of cocaine. He added that indications are that Wallace had not been using heroin for more than a month.

The medical examiner emphasized the death was due to an allergic response, rather than an overdose of heroin.

Dr. Harris said persons who use heroin are, "playing a game of Russian roulette," because of the possibility of an allergic reaction, even if the amount of drug taken is small.

dog in a yard near his home. Mrs. Davenport said Spencer had complained to officers several times that dogs attacked him as he walked or rode his bicycle through the community, but nothing was done about it.

Jenrette Lawyers Try Show FBI 'Trickery'

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With a courtroom call to his office, Rep. John W. Jenrette's attorney hopes to prove undercover FBI agents manipulated telephone recordings that the defense says would show the congressman was tricked into a bribery discussion.

Defense attorney Kenneth M. Robinson told the U.S. District Court jury Thursday that the FBI could have recorded, but didn't, two calls arranging a meeting between the South Carolina Democrat and Abscam agent Anthony Amoroso.

Robinson contends that recordings of the Nov. 15 calls, from FBI informant Melvin Weinberg to Jenrette co-defendant John Stowe, would have shown that Jenrette was lured into a bribery discussion he had never intended to hold.

Jenrette, who is charged with bribery and conspiracy, is basing his defense on entrapment, which occurs when a person is tricked into committing a crime he had not planned to commit.

In his courtroom demonstration, Robinson held a tape recorder to the phone receiver as he called his office. Weinberg had the same type of expensive recorder but didn't use it, Robinson said.

Weinberg has testified that the Nov. 15 conversations, made from an Atlantic City, N.J., hotel, were not recorded because he did not have a device that attached the recorder to a telephone.

Robinson showed jurors the hookup was not needed. He called to the witness stand an FBI recording expert, who put on earphones and agreed he could hear both ends of the conversation.

Robinson also questioned Weinberg about a taped Abscam conversation in which Weinberg, told by a middleman that Rep. Frank Thompson, D.N.J., was an alcoholic, said the congressman should be given another drink. Thompson has been indicted in a separate Abscam case.

Jenrette claims he is an alcoholic who was purposely given drinks as he met with Amoroso, who posed as a representative of two Arab sheiks offering money in return for special immigration legislation to let them enter and stay in the United States.

The government contends Jenrette and Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, accepted a $50,000 bribe from the agent, and that Jenrette tried to get another $175,000. Stowe is charged with conspiracy and aiding and abetting bribery.

"Would you suggest that an alcoholic be given liquor to convince him to commit a crime?" Robinson asked Weinberg.

Weinberg said that when he made the comment regarding Thompson's drinking, "I was being sarcastic." Weinberg said he didn't know whether Thompson was an alcoholic.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices moved up today as major banks again boosted their prime lending rates. Volume was lower than during the previous two sessions. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues rose 6.06 to 962.54 in the first two hours of trading as advances outnumbered declines by an 8-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues. Citibank led the way in boosting the key lending rate to 12.5 percent from 12.25 percent, and was quickly joined at the higher rate by a number of other banks, including Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., Chemical Bank and Continental Illinois Trust Co. Banking stocks were mixed, with Citicorp off 1/4 to 22 1/2 and J.P. Morgan up 1/4 to 45. Oil issues rose, with Standard of California up 1 1/2 to 75 3/4. Precious metals stocks were strong. ASA rose 2 1/2 to 78 1/4, Dome Mines was up 2 1/2 to 119 1/2 and Homestake Mining added 1 7/8 to 96. Eastman Kodak gained 1 3/4 to 66 1/2. Procter & Gamble, whose Rely tampon was criticized by government health officials, dropped 1 7/8.

Arrest Made In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Frank Moots, 21, of Bell Arthur was arrested about 2 o'clock this morning at the Zip Mart here on charges stemming from an incident which allegedly occurred in the parking lot of the same store about a year ago. Moots, who Chief Ron Cooper said has been out of the area for some time, was served a warrant for failure to appear in court on charges of assault with a deadly weapon (a motor vehicle), careless and reckless driving and speeding to elude arrest. The incident allegedly involved Moots and a Farmville police officer.

Bucs Challenge Ranking Of Seminoles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

This past Saturday, East Carolina's Pirates were highly favored to win over Southwestern Louisiana, but the Ragin' Cajuns stopped the Picklen Stadium winning streak of the Bucs at ten games.

This Saturday night in Tallahassee, Florida State is highly favored over the Pirates — and the Seminoles are putting a home game win streak on the line too. Ironically, it is also ten games.

Can the Pirates pull it off? The charges of Ed Emory think so. "We're certainly not going down there with the idea of losing," the coach said.

But, he admits, it won't be an easy task, and the Pirates certainly cannot expect Florida State to provide the same breaks the Bucs presented to Cajuns. Florida State comes into the game ranked #9 on the Associated Press poll, and #10 on the UPI list. Emory pointed out also that CBS's NFL Today ranked the Seminoles first in the country.

"As far as we're concerned, they are first. They are the highest ranked team that an East Carolina team has ever faced. By far, it is the greatest challenge for any East Carolina team."

The powerful Seminoles come into the game ranked first in the country in scoring defense, having not given up a point in two games so far. They beat Louisiana State, 16-0, in the Tigers' Den, then trounced Louisville in the FSU home opener last weekend, 52-0.

"Shutting out LSU was no mean trick," Emory pointed out. "That certainly is going to make it difficult for our offense."

Florida State can also score, as evidenced by the fact that they are ranked 18th in scoring offense by the NCAA. East Carolina is ranked 13 in total defense and 16th in rushing defense.

Emory feels that while the Pirates have a good offense, the Seminoles have a great one also. "They threw the ball only 11 times against LSU, winning on defense and the kicking game. But they cranked up the passing game for Louisville, so we know they can do it all."

Florida State's rushing game is led by tailback Sam Platt, who has picked up 186 yards in 41 carries, and scored one touchdown — oddly enough, the only touchdown by rushing the Seminoles have scored. Fullback Mike Whiting has rushed for 104 yards, an average of 3.7 per lug.

Quarterback Rick Stockstill had hit on 15 of 23 passes for 150 yards and four touchdowns. He's had one picked off. His top receiver has been Dennis McKinnon, with seven for 120 yards and two scores. No other receiver has more than two receptions.

In addition, specialist Bill Capece has kicked four of five field goals, including one 45 yarder. The other three were from 31 to 34 yards.

Overall, the Seminole offense has rushed for an average of 214.5 yards, while holding opponents to just 45.0 per outing.

They have passed for 122.5 per game, limiting foes to 102.5.

"I think we will be all right if we can avoid giving up the big play," Emory said. "On offense we want to protect the ball, control it, keep it close and use up the clock. I do think we are at a disadvantage by having only 56 players, making some of our regulars have to go on the specialty teams."

East Carolina, in its two games, has rushed for 284.5 yards a game, while allowing just 64.0. Through the air, the Pirates have averaged 98.0 yards, while giving up 145.0.

Individually, the Pirate are led by Mike Hawkins with 130 yards, while Carlton Nelson has 121, Anthony Collins has 111, and Theodore Sutton had 101. Nelson has hit on 16 of 25 passes for 159 yards, without an interception.

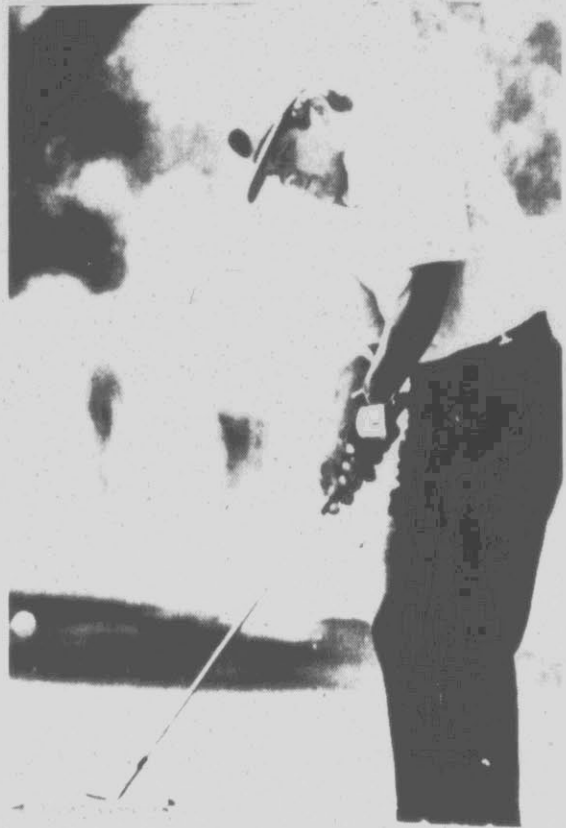

Collins leads the scoring with four touchdowns and a total of 30 points.

Several Pirates will be missing from the lineup, including All-America guard Wayne Inman, out for the season with a knee injury sustained Tuesday in practice. Also missing for the season will be free safety Freddie Jones, while defensive tackle Cliff Williams, and nose guard Wally Myers will definitely miss the game. Tackle Tim Swords is also questionable.

"Florida State has an outstanding defensive team, so it's going to be hard to move the ball on them. They return eight men from last year's team that was one of the best in the country," Emory said.

"We are not awed by Florida State, but we do respect them," Emory said. "And we're going down there planning to win."

Pirates In First Win

East Carolina University forward Chip Baker scored two goals and added an assist Thursday as the Pirates broke a five-game losing streak in soccer by beating Catawba College, 4-0.

Baker scored a goal and handed out an assist within a one-minute span with ten minutes gone in the second half to break open a 1-0 game. Baker's penalty kick goal was the only score in the first half.

Keith Johnston scored on the assist by Baker and later Eric Airola scored on an assist from Walter Scheroder.

"Chip had a good game for us, and he didn't even play in the last 20 minutes," coach Brad Smith said.

The Pirates had 39 shots on the goal, while Catawba had five. Goalie Steve Brown made only two saves on the day.

The win put the Pirates at 1-5 on the season and dropped Catawba to 1-6.

East Carolina travels to Elon on Sunday for a 2 p.m. match.

Ex-Deacon Is Among Leaders

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The Texas Open, a golf tournament conducted late in the PGA tour and bypassed by many of the big-name players, has a reputation as a place where a rookie has a good chance of winning.

Through the years, the Texas Open has been a place where young golfers fight to hold onto their tour cards and veterans attempt to improve their standings on the earnings list.

Ben Crenshaw started his professional career here in 1973 by winning the first tournament he entered. Terry Diehl, thinking of quitting golf, took the 1974 title. Ron Streck won in 1978, collecting the biggest paycheck of his career.

This year's "rabbit" to watch is Gary Hallberg, the 1979 NCAA champion from Wake Forest University, who is fighting for a place on the professional circuit.

Hallberg, 22, of Barrington, Ill., fired a 6-under-par 64 Thursday to tie the veterans Fuzzy Zoeller and Bill Rogers for the first-round lead. After a weekend of rest, Hallberg carded a 65 in Monday's qualifying round to earn a berth, along with 33 other golfers, in the $250,000 tournament being played over the 6,525-yard, par-70 Oak Hills Country Club Course.

"I've been playing very well," Hallberg said. "But since Hartford I've been very impatient. I've had trouble pacing myself on the golf course."

"I played every week since Hartford and last week I was exhausted. Friday until Monday I didn't touch a club, got a lot of rest. I think I've regained my strength," he said.

Entering today's second round, the trio of leaders held a 1-stroke lead over Forrest Fezler, Diehl and Jeff Mitchell who fired 5-under-par 65s in the opening round.

Lee Trevino, one of the tournament favorites, finished in a five-way tie with J.C. Snead, Jack Ferez, Doug Tewell and Hale Irwin at 66 entering today's round which will trim the field of 156 golfers in half for the final 36 holes.

Cubs Take Third Win

RALEIGH — Rose High School's junior varsity football team won its third straight game of the year last night, bombing Raleigh Enloe, 32-0.

Donnell Lee, who led the rushing in the game, scored two of the Rampant Cub touchdowns. His first, on a 35-yard run, came in the first period, putting Rose on the board for the first time. His second score led off the second half, coming on a 50-yard punt return. Kenny Kirkland added a two-point conversion after the second score, the only conversion of the night.

Ronnie Worsley scored from five yards out in the first period to give Rose a 12-0 lead before the first period was over.

Following a scoreless second period, Lee boosted the lead to 19-0, and Rodney Smith boosted that to 26-0 with a 45-yard run. Rodney Harrell closed out the scoring in the fourth period with a five-yard run.

Rose, now 3-0, opens its conference slate next Thursday, hosting Northern Nash.

Quarterback Nelson Isn't Awed By Strong Florida State Eleven

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Coming off a heart-breaking 27-21 loss at the hands of Southwestern Louisiana isn't an easy thing to do, but when you are practicing for an opponent that is probably the toughest ever faced, it gets a little rough when you lose your best lineman.

East Carolina's Pirates are in that condition, learning Tuesday evening that Wayne Inman, their All-American offensive guard, will be sidelined for the remainder of the year with a knee injury.

"It might affect our running game," quarterback Carlton Nelson said. The sophomore explained that so far this year, the Pirates had tried to run behind Inman's blocking whenever possible.

"When it happened, everyone got down right away," Nelson added. "But we picked back up pretty quick. I don't know, it might affect us in the game, but I think Bud (LaCock) can do a good job. It's not going to hurt us as bad as a lot of people think."

Instead, Nelson feels, Inman's loss could hurt in other ways. "Take for instance Saturday night. With all those fumbles, we were getting pretty shook up in the huddle. But Wayne was cool and told us to take it easy. He said the game wasn't over yet and that we could still win.

"And we almost did."

Some of the fumbles came at the hands of Nelson, who is in his first year of fulltime quarterbacking for the Pirates. Last year, he was listed number three in the depth chart, and didn't play all that much.

"One of the problems is that I was trying to back up too quickly," he said. "Then, too, I have a bad habit of moving my hands apart to take the snap, and that can cause the ball to pop through I've been working on correcting that."

Two of the fumbles came that way, while the other two were misconnections between Nelson and fullback Theodore Sutton. "The first time, I was trying to get the ball back and Theo was trying to keep it. The second time, I just put it in his hip and not in the pocket. I think we've got that worked out now."

And how does he feel about going up against nationally ranked (#9 on the AP, #10 on UPI) Florida State?

"After watching the films, I don't think that they are as tough on defense as the scores of their games show. I feel we can score against them. I know we're going to score against them. As to how many times, I don't know."

Nelson feels that the Pirates must hold onto the football against the tough Seminoles. "We've got to execute our offense and hope that the defense continues to play well."

The sophomore admits that he felt a lot of pressure at the start of the season. "I really didn't get nervous in the Duke game, however. And I don't think that we had quite the same mental outlook for Southwestern as we had for Duke. Maybe it was a lack of concentration that caused us problems. I just know we should have played better and we should have won."

It appears that the 1981 panel race is off to the same start as last year, with sports writer Rick Scoppe taking the early lead. Last year, he was unable to hold onto it. This year, we'll have to wait and see.

At any rate, after two weeks of pickings, Scoppe holds down first by a slim one game over our guests and news writer Tom Baines. Scoppe had an 18-6 mark, while Baines and the guests are 17-7.

Next comes this writer at 16-8, followed by ad salesman Joe Jenkins at 15-9, and our distaff panelist Etha Allen at 14-10.

Last week's guest, Dr. Ken Karr, the new athletic director at East Carolina, managed only a 7-5 record, so Rick Gilstrap of Pitt Memorial Hospital at 10-2 remains as the top guest picker so far this year.

This week, we have invited back a former panelist, Jim Kyle, our former assistant, now with the Fayetteville paper. Jim hopes to improve on some of his picks of the past, and we wish him luck.

Turning first to our high school picks, we find that again, we missed out on a perfect week by just one game. Last week we were 7-1, missing only on Jamesville and Chocowinity. That gives a 17-3 mark on the year.

With Roanoke and Williamston rated as heavy favorites over open date this week, we find only five other games to pick.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to Charles B. Aycock. The Falcons are off to a flying start, while the Chargers have nothing to kick about at this time. It doesn't look like things will get any better for Ayden-Grifton this week either. Aycock is the choice here.

North Pitt visits Southern Nash. This is a chance for the Panthers to show that they are of championship caliber. Southern Nash looks like a prime contender for the championship. Could be the home field will be the difference. We'll pick Southern Nash.

Conley travels to North Lenoir looking for its first win of the year. This could produce an upset, but the Hawks after winning over North Pitt last week, will be fired up. We go with North Lenoir.

Greene Central visits Farmville Central in the battle of yesterday's champs. Farmville lost its 31 game conference winning streak last week and would like to start another. Greene Central, one of the preseason favorites, has lost twice in a row, including one conference game. If either is to get back into the race, they must win here. We feel that the Rams will come out on top.

Finally, Belhaven visits Jamesville. The Bullets, losers because of a safety last week, would like to bounce back and keep their playoff chances alive. Belhaven, winners in just one of three tries also, wants the same. This is a toughie, but we'll again go with Jamesville because of the home field.

Turning to our panel, we find two area games. And there is not one bit of disagreement on them.

First Rose plays host to Raleigh's Enloe High School. The Rampants are 2-0, while Enloe is just the reverse, going 0-2 so far. Things should not change. The panel goes down the line with the Rampants, 6-0.

East Carolina, after being stunned by its own bad play against Southwestern Louisiana, tries to turn the tables on Florida State this Saturday night. Oh, would that they could. But there is not a vote in the house. Too many Indians on the warpath down in Tallahassee, and a 6-0 vote for the Seminoles in Greenville.

Our other concensus picks find Auburn over Duke; Maryland over West Virginia; Wake Forest over The Citadel; Southern California over South Carolina; UCLA and Purdue, a toss-up; Georgia over Clemson; Florida over Georgia Tech; N.C. State over Virginia; Wyoming over Richmond; and Oregon over Michigan State.

Dodgers, Holding Game Lead, Open Fateful Series With Reds

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers, who lead the National League West by one game over Houston, would appear to have a distinct advantage tonight when they open a three-game series with the still-hopeful Cincinnati Reds.

Jerry Reuss, who has beaten the Reds four times this season and has won 11 of 12 decisions against the contending clubs in the NL, will start on the mound for Los Angeles, against Cincinnati's Paul Moskau.

The Dodgers retained their one-game edge by defeating San Diego 7-3 Thursday night, with their biggest offense in two weeks.

Los Angeles clubbed three Padre pitchers for 13 hits, three of them homers. Most productive were Steve Garvey and Dusty Baker, who combined for only eight hits in 55 at-bats on Los Angeles' recent trip to Houston, Cincinnati and Atlanta.

But since being switched in the lineup — Garvey is now hitting third, Baker fourth — they have combined for eight hits in 14 at-bats.

Garvey doubled, singled twice and drove in his 97th run of the season in Thursday night's victory, and Baker slugged his 29th homer, a two-run shot, and has 93 RBI for the year.

Ron Cey and Mickey Hatcher hit consecutive homers in the eighth inning off the Padres' Mike Armstrong.

The Dodgers had a 5-1 lead and starter Bob Welch had restricted San Diego to four hits over seven innings. But in the eighth, the Padres filled the bases with only one out and Bobby Castillo took over. He gave up a bloop single to Dave Winfield that scored two runs, but retired Broderick Perkins on a dribbler back to the mound and struck out Luis Salazar to get out of the inning.

Astros 10, Reds 2

A two-run homer by Joe Morgan off loser Frank Pastore, 11-7, was the big blow in the Astros' rout of the Reds. Morgan's seventh-inning clout, scoring Dave Bergman, who had tied the game with a run-scoring single, made a winner out of Houston starter Ken Forsch, 12-12.

The Astros trailed 2-1 when Alan Ashby doubled and Bergman delivered as a pinch hitter for Forsch. Joe Sambito came on in relief to notch his 16th save of the season, made easier by an eighth-inning run and five more in the ninth. Jose Cruz capped that rally with a two-run homer.

Braves 2, Giants 1

The Braves won for the sixth time in their last seven games thanks to a two-run homer by Chris Chambliss and clutch relief pitching by Rick Camp. Bob Horner singled with two out in the fourth off loser Al Hargreaves, 4-5, and Chambliss followed with his 16th home run to account for all the Atlanta scoring and give the victory to Rick Matula, 11-12.

Matula pitched shutout ball through seven innings but was lifted when pinch hitter Chris Bourjos started the eighth with a double and eventually scored on Milt May's sacrifice fly. Camp, who picked up his 18th save, loaded the bases with none out in the ninth, but induced Jack Clark to hit into a forceout at the plate and ended the game by getting Max Venable on a double play ball.

Rampants Take Fifth In Row

Rose High School upped its record to 5-0 on the cross-country season, and 16-0 over the past two years in regular season, as the Rampants downed Jacksonville yesterday, 17-49.

Rose swept the first three places in the meet to get a big jump on the Cardinals.

Kenny Smith and Harry Williams, for the second time this season, crossed the finish line together, timed at 15:42. Third place went to John Ormond with a time of 16:43.

Fourth place went to Jacksonville's Mike Johnson in 16:59, while John Byrd of Rose was fifth in 17:22.

The second five across included Robert Stencil of Rose, 17:53; David Steffensen of Rose, 18:10; Larry Talbert of Rose, 18:22; Aaron Baker of Jacksonville, 18:27; and Max Parker of Rose in 18:33.

Other Rose runners included Joel Mauger, 12th in 19:00;

Tim Harris, 14th in 19:10; Bobby Nichols, 15th in 19:23; Will Hester, 19th in 20:49; Irving Bennett, 20th in 20:57; and James Midgette, 23rd in 23:56.

"Everyone showed improvement on their times in the meet," Coach Ron Hochmuth said. "We're getting ready for our bigger meets now."

Rose returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Fike and Northern Nash.

Amy Porter-Taylor (P) defeated Robin Knox-Robin Hebbard, 8-0.

Lady Jags Down Rose

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central High School opened its volleyball season with a 2-0 victory over Rose High School yesterday. The match was the second for the Rampette team, which is beginning the sport this year.

Farmville won the first game, 15-12, then took the second 15-5 for the sweep. Rose Lang served up six straight points for the Lady Jaguars during the afternoon, while Lisa Wilson added five. Rose was led by Azita Bagheri, who dished up seven straight points in the first game.

Farmville opens its regular season on Tuesday, hosting Southern Nash. Rose, now 0-2, travels to Rocky Mount next Thursday.

Rampettes Top Juniors

Rose High School's girls defeated the Greenville Junior High School team, 6-2, in a scrimmage match at the River Birch Tennis Center yesterday. The junior team opens its regular season next Wednesday.

Summary:
Lou Taft (R) defeated Anne-Lynne Davis, 8-0.
Bernestine Haselrig (R) defeated Hayes Warren, 8-2.
Martha West (R) defeated Jessica Perry, 8-3.

Dallas Tries To Erase Memory Of Loss In Opening Home Game

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They are familiar faces in unfamiliar places. They belong to Danny White, Ken Stabler and Dan Pastorini, and they'd love to be able to show the homefolks a thing or two.

White, Roger Staubach's successor as quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys, makes his regular-season home debut Sunday in Texas Stadium —

Aycock In First Win

E.B. Aycock Junior High School opened its season with a 19-0 victory over Rocky Mount yesterday.

Cyrus Blackwell scored twice for the Jaguars, both in the second period. He raced 72 yards for one of the scores, then got away for 35 yards on the second touchdown run.

The first period touchdown was scored by Reggie Smith from three yards out. Jay Wynne kicked the extra point after the third score.

Now 1-0, Aycock travels to Goldsboro next Thursday. Rocky Mount 0 0 0 0-0 Aycock 6 13 0 0-19 and if he'd had the chance the odds are he couldn't have come up with a tougher National Conference team against which to do it.

Tampa Bay, the NFC's premier defensive team in 1979, ranks third overall in 1980, behind only Chicago and Philadelphia — but that includes the best pass defense in the league. On offense, though, the Bucs are dead last in the league.

Despite this, they're 2-0, coming off their emotional 10-9 victory over Los Angeles on Sept. 11 while the Cowboys, having won an equally emotional game 17-3 in Washington under White's low-key quarterbacking, are trying to shut aside the memories of last Sunday's 41-20 debacle in Denver.

"I think we will know more about our team after Sunday's game," said Coach Tom Landry. "We're somewhere in between the Washington win and the Denver loss."

Stabler, traded by Oakland to Houston in a straight-up swap for Pastorini, has been hot and cold in his first two games with the Oilers. In the opener, in Pittsburgh, he was intercepted five times in a 31-17 loss. But last Monday night in Cleveland he was surgeon-precise as his passing and ball-control signal-calling beat the Browns 16-7. On Sunday against visiting Baltimore he has a chance to personally show the Oilers' fans what he's got.

Pastorini, too, has had an inconsistent start with his new team. After throwing for 317 yards and two touchdowns in the Raiders' season-opening 27-14 victory in Kansas City, he was intercepted three times in San Diego last week and had to leave the game with a bruised knee in the final minute of regulation play. It took a TD pass by his replacement, Jim Plunkett, to force overtime, then Pastorini returned and the Raiders lost 30-24 in the extra period. Now they take on the visiting Redskins.

Sunday's other games are Miami at Atlanta, Green Bay at Los Angeles, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, San Francisco at the New York Jets, St. Louis at Detroit, Minnesota at Chicago, Kansas City at Cleveland, Buffalo at New Orleans, New England at Seattle and San Diego at Denver. On Monday night it's the New York Giants at Philadelphia.

Don Strock will be making his first start of the season at quarterback for Miami, replacing Bob Griese. Coach Don Shula, looking for a way to get the Dolphins' offense moving (it ranks 12th overall and 13th in passing in the American Conference), has benched his 14-year veteran in favor of the strong-armed Strock, who has spent most of his seven years in the NFL riding the bench.

Strock started several games last season but when Miami stalled and needed some big victories to clinch the AFC East title, it was Griese who came off the bench.

Toronto Wins Once, But Blows Real Chance To Be Spoiler

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Toronto Blue Jays are playing the role of "spoilers" these days — but the only thing they spoiled Thursday night was Manager Bobby Mattick's appetite.

"All he had to do was get three outs," Mattick said of Dave Stieb, who was trying to protect a four-run lead in the 10th inning over the New York Yankees, "but sometimes that's hard to do."

It was not only hard for Stieb, it was impossible. He let the never-say-die Yankees catch up with four runs. Then, New York's finest went on to beat the Blue Jays 8-7 in 13 innings.

The dramatic Yankee comeback came in the completion of a game that was suspended by rain Wednesday night and preceded a 2-1 loss to the Blue Jays in the regularly-scheduled game.

The split left the American League East leaders with a five-game lead over Baltimore after the Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers 7-3.

Elsewhere in the AL, Boston beat Cleveland 8-3; Kansas City downed California 5-2; Texas outscored Oakland 10-6; Milwaukee beat Minnesota twice, 9-8 and 5-0, and Chicago edged Seattle 5-4.

Willie Randolph's three-run triple capped New York's four-run rally in the 10th against Stieb. Then the Yankees won the game two innings later when Bucky Dent doubled home Johnny Oates from first base with two out.

The game had been halted by rain the night before after Toronto scored two runs in the top of the 10th off Ron Davis on a third-strike passed ball by catcher Rick Cerone, Ernie Whitt's single and a three-base error on the play by right fielder Reggie Jackson.

When play resumed Thursday night, the Blue Jays added two more runs on Roy Howell's two-run, inside-the-park homer.

The Blue Jays won the regularly-scheduled game behind the two-hit pitching of rookie Luis Leal, who was a last-minute replacement for Stieb. Mattick had originally counted on Stieb to start the regular game, but changed his plans after the pitcher was roughed up by the Yankees.

"After the first game, they told me to start the second game," said the 23-year-old pitcher. "I said, 'What!' Then I said, 'Give me the ball, I'm ready.'"

The loss was only the second for the Yankees in 17 games this month.

Orioles 7, Tigers 3
Dan Graham pulled Baltimore into a tie with a leadoff home run in the seventh inning and then Ken Singleton's two-run single put the Orioles ahead of Detroit for good.

Scott McGregor, 19-7, allowed 11 hits but won his fifth game in a row with 11-3 innings of relief help from Tim Stoddard. Stoddard notched his 23rd save after fanning pinch hitter Champ Summers with two runners aboard in the eighth.

Red Sox 8, Indians 3
Jim Rice drove in four runs with a double and a single and Gary Hancock belted a two-run homer, powering Boston over Cleveland.

Right-hander Steve Crawford, just called up from the minors, pitched a complete game for the Red Sox in his first major league start. Crawford, who was rewarded with a starting berth after two fine relief performances, allowed 12 hits but bailed out of one-out, bases-loaded jams without allowing a run in the first and the sixth.

Royals 5, Angels 2
Willie Wilson set an AL record for consecutive stolen bases and George Brett rapped two hits to raise his average to .398 as Kansas City beat California.

Wilson followed his run-scoring single in the second inning by stealing second and third base to run his consecutive stolen-base string to 28 and erase the old mark of 27 set by Ron LeFlore in 1978 with Detroit. Wilson, who finished the game with two singles, has 70 stolen bases for the season.

Rangers 10, A's 6
Mickey Rivers went 4-for-6,

"It was no 'yawner,'" said McGregor after beating the Tigers for the ninth time in 10 career decisions. "I was struggling most of the game, and I was tired when I came out in the eighth."

"I had to adjust tonight. They were sitting on the off-speed stuff early, so I had to go to fastballs. Later on, they started to hit the fastball, and I went back to the slow stuff."

Brewers 9-5, Twins 8-0
Gorman Thomas lined a two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning to rally Milwaukee over Minnesota in the first game of their doubleheader.

Ben Oglivie hit a two-run homer and Larry Sorensen scattered six hits to lead Milwaukee's second-game victory.

White Sox 5, Mariners 4
Chet Lemon scored the winning run in the ninth on a grounder by Harold Baines as Chicago edged Seattle.

Lemon walked with one out and was doubled to third by pinch hitter Rusty Kuntz. Baines then hit a bouncer to second baseman Julio Cruz, but his throw to the plate wasn't in time to get Lemon.

Mike Proly, 4-9, was the winner with relief help from Guy Hoffman.

Clemson, Georgia Meet In Top Battle; Cavs, 'Pack In Key Fight

By The Associated Press

Clemson and No. 10 Georgia spent a heated spring battling for the services of high school star Herschel Walker. The Bulldogs won that battle, but the Tigers have a chance this Saturday to show Walker he made the wrong choice.

The teams meet in Athens on an Atlantic Coast Conference weekend in which only two league teams, North Carolina State and Virginia, meet head-on.

Wake Forest hosts The Citadel, Maryland travels to West Virginia, Duke heads south to meet No. 19 Auburn and Georgia Tech entertains a surprising Florida team in Atlanta.

Thirteenth-ranked North Carolina, 9-3 winner over Texas Tech last week, has the weekend off.

Walker gained 145 yards and scored three touchdowns in the Bulldogs' 42-0 romp over Texas A&M last week. The Tigers took a 19-3 victory over Rice but they fumbled the ball away four times.

N.C. STATE at VIRGINIA
Virginia managed only two field goals against Navy in its season-opener in Charlottesville. But the six points held up against only one field goal by the Midshipmen.

Along with Wayne Morison's kicking heroics, tailback Tom Vigorito gained 122 yards in 33 carries in the Cavaliers' new I-formation.

For N.C. State, sophomore quarterback Tol Avery was the key in a 42-0 whipping of William & Mary two weeks ago as he rushed for 63 yards and a touchdown.

DUKE at AUBURN
Duke coach Red Wilson has said he will rotate his offensive and defensive units to keep fresh players in action against the Tigers. He made need more than fresh players to keep up with the experienced Auburn squad.

Auburn will start third-string quarterback Joe Sullivan, the brother of former Heisman Trophy winner Pat Sullivan. The Tigers escaped with a 10-7 victory over Texas Christian last weekend as the first two Auburn quarterbacks went out with injuries.

FLORIDA at GEORGIA TECH
Both the Yellow Jackets and the Gators were suprising in their opening contests, although Georgia Tech lost to Alabama.

Florida capitalized on California mistakes and cruised to a 41-13 victory, its first win since 1978. Tech stayed close before dropping a 26-3 decision to No. 1 Alabama.

MARYLAND at WEST VIRGINIA

The key in the Terrapin-Mountaineer contest may be defense. West Virginia racked up a 52-24 triumph over Colorado State last Saturday, as quarterback Oliver Luck fired three touchdown passes and Robert Alexander and Walter Easley accounted for three more scores on the ground.

For Maryland, junior tailback Charlie Wysocki is currently second in the ACC in rushing, including a 144-yard game against Vanderbilt.

THE CITADEL at WAKE FOREST

Wake Forest would like to get back on the winning track this Saturday as it hosts The Citadel in Groves Stadium. The Demon Deacons had last Saturday off after a season-opening 16-7 loss to Virginia Tech.

The Citadel is also looking for a win after a 17-14 conference loss to Appalachian State. The Bulldogs won the season-opener by 21-14 over Presbyterian.

Swim Club Will Meet

The annual meeting of the Greenville Swim Club will be held at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the Pirate Club building behind Ficklen Stadium, across from Elmhurst School.

The agenda includes the introduction of the new head coach, Rick Kobe, who also will be serving as the first full-time assistant for East Carolina University. Election of officers for 1980-81 will also be held, and other activities for the expanded 1980-81 season discussed.

Persons interested in joining this competitive swim club are invited to attend the meeting.

CHEAP TO KEEP

THE TOYOTA COROLLA SPORT COUPE

It may not look it, but the Toyota Corolla may be one of the most inexpensive automobiles you'll ever own. Because it's built on the concept of total economy of operation. That means:

It's Inexpensive To Maintain
According to a recent study of 52 new 1979 competitive models, Toyota Corolla owners had the fewest problems. That means they didn't spend a lot of extra money on service.

It's Dependable
By having the fewest problems and saving extra money on servicing, we think Toyota Corolla is one of the most dependable cars in its class.

It's Economical
Even though it comes with a larger 1.8 liter, 4-cylinder engine, the 1980 Toyota Corolla is more fuel efficient than ever. 41 EPA Est. Hwy. MPG. 27 EPA Est. MPG.*

So Far, Klan-Nazi Trial Has Cost North Carolina $170,000

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has spent $170,000 so far on the arrests and trial of four Klansmen and two Nazis charged with murdering five communist demonstrators last fall.

Most of that money — nearly $125,000 — has been spent on behalf of the Klansmen and Nazis for defense attorneys and their trial expenses.

Those figures represent only the expenses borne by the state. The FBI said its investigation of the Nov. 3 confrontation between the Klan-Nazi group and the Communist Workers Party has run into a "six-figure number." Agents have spent thousands of man-hours investigating and analyzing evidence, officials said.

The expense represents the cost only from the arrest through presentation of the state's case against the six defendants. Still to come are the rebuttal evidence, final arguments, judge's instructions and jury deliberation — plus the trials for 16 other people charged as a result of the violence last November.

Five CWP members and followers were killed in gunfire that broke out during a confrontation between CWP demonstrators and members of a Klan-Nazi motorcycle

Defense money in this trial has gone mostly for attorney fees and other expenses. Each defendant has been found innocent and the state is paying for court-appointed attorneys at the rate of $40 an hour for in-court time and $30 an hour for other time spent on the case.

Pay vouchers submitted so far show the six attorneys were paid $124,938 through the end of August, each earning between $19,000 and $23,000 since they were assigned to the case. Those figures include expenses incurred by the lawyers, such as long distance telephone calls, travel and copying expenses.

For August, each lawyer was paid about $10,000 for salary and expenses.

Jurors' pay constitutes the second-largest portion of the $170,000 spent so far: $19,000, according to clerk's office records.

Jurors earn $8 per day for the first five days and $9 per day after that. Further juror expenses have come through parking costs and mailing costs to summon jurors.

The state also had to pay for a videotape player and six television sets to show tapes made of the Nov. 3 demonstration and submitted as evidence. The equipment costs $400 per month.

District Attorney Michael Schlosser said his office has spent about $1,000 in miscellaneous expenses, such as a three-day trip to Washington for him and two assistants.

They visited FBI laboratories to inspect evidence.

The most expensive trial in North Carolina history was held earlier this year in Goldsboro. That trial, involving 10 people accused of drug smuggling, cost the state $312,314 — again, with most of the cost going for defense of the defendants.

Opposed To Delay Advice Musicians Picket As Actors' Pact Shapes Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt expressed strong opposition Thursday to a recommended delay in implementing the second phase of an administration-backed speedy trials law.

Hunt said he was "strongly opposed" to any delay in the progression scheduled by the law.

Under the speedy trials act passed by the Legislature at Hunt's urging, accused persons now are required to be brought to trial within 120 days of their indictment. By law, the time limit is to be reduced to 90 days in October 1981.

"I'm prepared to oppose any delay and provide the personnel required to move forward," Hunt said.

His comments came in response to an announcement that the Governor's Crime Commission has recommended a two-year delay in the step up, which would move it back to 1983.

The recommendation on the speedy trials law was one of many in a 232-page report issued by the commission for consideration by Hunt in drawing up a package of criminal justice proposals for the 1981 Legislature, if he is re-elected this fall.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Striking studio musicians, who waited in the wings while the spotlight was on the actors' walkout, say their picket lines may stay up after the other strike is settled.

About 300 members of the American Federation of Musicians picketed Universal Studios on Thursday, a day after a breakthrough in the 60-day actors' strike stirred hope for settlement.

The musicians said they're upset with the producers' refusal to negotiate with them until the actors are back at work.

It wasn't clear whether the musicians' strike would keep actors from their sets, a spokeswoman for the striking Screen Actors Guild said.

"It would be up to the individual actors," said SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner.

"The union itself, because the contract has a no-strike clause, will not be in a position of ordering its members not to cross picket lines. However, because of the unity built up during the strike, I would think a number of actors would not cross the picket lines."

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists is also striking and together the unions cover about 67,000 workers.

Actors and producers reached a tentative settlement Wednesday on residual payments to actors for programs shown on pay TV, videodisc and videocassette programs, a key issue in that strike. The proposed settlement gives actors just under 5 percent of the producers' gross receipts for a show once it has played for 10 days in a year on pay TV, or has sold more than 100,000 videodiscs or videocassettes.

But 20 other contract issues remained unsettled, including base salaries and residuals for commercial TV.

The musicians, who perform on TV shows struck July 31 when their contract expired. They have supported demonstrations by the actors.

The actors' unions are striking the same products, but the demands by the 1,000 members of the musicians union are different.

"What our negotiators broke down over was not the same thing as the actors," said an AFM spokesman. "What the musicians are seeking are residuals of re-use money when TV run shows are rerun on television. The actors, directors and writers all get this already."

Sharing Solar Home Project

CONCERT
Mrs. Molly Small will be presented in concert Sunday, Sept. 21 at 7 p.m. at York Memorial A.M.E. Zion Church. Mrs. Small is a music teacher with Pitt County Schools, director of Eastern District Choir, pianist and director of her church choir, Mt. Mariah, Farmville. She has performed throughout Pitt County and surrounding areas.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A two-story, three-bedroom passive solar home will be built next to McKimmon Center at N.C. State University to demonstrate solar energy building techniques.

The cost of the $131,400 home will be shared by the building industry, the state, the U.S. Department of Energy, Carolina Power & Light Co. and the Southern Solar Energy Research Institute in Atlanta.

The house will be administered by the N.C. State School of Engineering.

Grant Awarded To Orchestra

The A. J. Fletcher Opera and Educational Foundation has awarded a substantial grant to the newly formed Eastern Carolina Youth Orchestra. The orchestra is a part of the Eastern Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Association.

It is the intent of the association to eventually sponsor two youth orchestras as well as many other related activities.

Auditions for the first orchestra are being held Saturday, September 20 from 9:30 a.m. and on Monday, September 22 from 7:30 p.m., both in Room B105 of the ECU School of Music. All orchestral instrument players are invited to audition.

Cars Collide At Intersection

James Madison O'Donnell of 335 Glenn Ct. was charged with failing to stop at a stop sign following investigation of a 9:44 a.m. collision yesterday at the intersection of Fourth and Meade Streets.

Police reported the O'Donnell car collided with a vehicle driven by Nick Pan-teogotes Panfildis of 41 Pierce, Fla., causing $2,000 damage to the Panfildis car and $300 damage to the O'Donnell vehicle.

FRIDAY MEET
The W. L. Philips Traveling Choir will meet at the church tonight at eight o'clock for a business meeting. The announcement was made by President Blanche Hopkins.

Sentencing Is Postponed

Superior Court Judge Elbert Peele yesterday postponed sentencing of former Greenville Police Department patrolman Jackey Daniels, until September 30.

Tuesday, Daniels pled guilty to breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a July 15 incident at the Foodland supermarket at West End Circle, in which three cases of chickens, valued at $12.50, and several crates of empty soft drink bottles were taken.

The judge set sentencing for 2 p.m. in Superior Court yesterday, then postponed sentencing until September 30 at 2 p.m.

Kiss Your Baby Week Is Set

Mayor Donald C. McGlothin has proclaimed Sept. 21-27 as Kiss Your Baby Week in Greenville.

He urged citizens to join him and the Pitt Co. Association of Insurance Women in learning the signs of cystic fibrosis, a genetic killer and debilitating of children. The child with the disease has a salty taste on his skin which can be detected by kissing, the mayor said he has learned.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to consider how you can place yourself more in tune with up-to-date methods that could help you advance in career matters. Take positive steps to gain your aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look over your environment and make plans for improvement. Make contacts that will improve your social life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be sure not to disturb anyone who has power over your affairs or you could regret it later. Safeguard your reputation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure you first investigate thoroughly any new project you want to engage in. Spend your money wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Some family members may not agree with your views now, so try to understand theirs better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to look over your business records and make sure everything is in proper order. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take added steps to improve your environment. Show more interest in civic affairs and gain added respect.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make long-range plans that could give you added income in the days ahead. Plan how to gain your most cherished aims.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show appreciation to those who have done you favors in the past. Be sure to keep promises made to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are filled with new ideas but you have to study them better before you put them in operation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day for serious talks with allies, since they are busy with other things. Be more willing to cooperate with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't try to force your ideas on others and avoid getting unexpected rebuffs. Express happiness with congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make plans to have more favorable conditions around you in the days ahead. The evening is fine for social activities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can understand both sides of a problem and intuitively will know how best to solve it. The field of law is particularly good in this chart. Give spiritual and ethical training early in life.

Turner's Network Struggling

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)—An update on Ted Turner's Cable News Network, the boom-or-bust all-news television enterprise known in some quarters as Turner's Folly, as it rolls into its fourth month:

—When Turner launched CNN last June, he had hoped for 3 million charter subscribers. He got 2 million. After more than three months in operation, CNN reaches just more than 2.6 million cable subscribers.

—Disharmony in CNN's Washington bureau recently resulted in the departure of Managing Editor George Watson, who reportedly left because of CNN's alleged partiality to "soft" news.

—In each month of operation, Turner's 24-hour-a-day TV news network has lost about $1.75 million.

Yes, Turner's Folly is rolling happily along, "more happily than we had any right to expect," says CNN President Reese Schonfeld.

"We're absolutely on target," Turner says.

History's great follies, remember, must be reckoned on separate ledgers. And while CNN hasn't kept pace with the grand (some would say wild) expectations of its indomitable founder, Turner, the world's first all-news television network does seem to be establishing a solid foundation.

Disappointment with the size of CNN's present audience hasn't tempered Turner's optimism — he expects to have 3 million subscribers by the end of this month, which would make his prediction of 5 million by the end of the year seem attainable. He boldly predicts 7½ million subscribers on CNN's first anniversary, June 1, 1981.

Indeed, CNN just signed a deal with Warner Amex Communications, the nation's fourth largest cable system, which has a subscriber delivery potential of 250,000.

Although there is no reliable audience measuring system as yet, CNN has been able to verify on a small scale one of its underlying premises: That over-the-air network and local television news do not adequately meet the needs of their audiences.

In Columbus, Ohio, where CNN is delivered over Warner Cable's two-way QUBE system, CNN has been able to measure its viewership and has found that it increased significantly on big news days — during the fury of Hurricane Allen, or the day the former Iranian shah died, for example. "That's when we hoped people would discover us, and that's what's happening," Schonfeld says.

And while the $1.75 monthly loss is significant, it's actually less than Turner had predicted when operations began. Turner said he was expected the network to lose $2 million a month for 18 months before turning the ledger around.

CNN's biggest boost, somewhat unexpectedly, has come from advertisers, who have already doubled their projected expenditure.

Bristol-Meyers was one of the earliest big companies to jump on the low-cost, high-future CNN bandwagon with a 10-year, $25 million deal. General Motors, General Foods, Procter & Gamble, Merrill Lynch, Hilton, Holiday Inns and, recently, Atlantic Richfield have clamored aboard.

Usually timid advertisers are lured by the bargain prices — $100 to $700 for a 30-second spot — and by the prospect of getting in on the ground floor of what figures to become a mother lode for advertisers, cable TV.

It's not yet safe to say that Cable News Network has established a bright New Age of TV journalism. But Turner's Folly is still on track and seems to be accelerating. And right now, it is heading toward boom, rather than bust.

FCC Talking VHF Growth

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Communications Commission is proposing to allow more than 100 new VHF television stations around the country, many of them in major cities.

If approved, the move "could lead to the creation of a fourth commercial network," said FCC Chairman Charles D. Ferris.

A final vote may not come until next year.

Thursday the commission split 4-3 in proposing that the present mandatory 170-mile separation between stations on the same channel be eased.

That could mean as many as 140 new stations in the nation's top 100 markets, including Chicago, San Francisco, Washington, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

A special staff inquiry earlier this year suggested that there are only three commercial networks because not enough VHF stations exist to support a fourth. The networks have historically preferred VHF to UHF stations in markets with both.

Thursday's vote brought strong dissents from commission members who have encouraged UHF broadcasting and from broadcasters themselves.

Commissioner Robert E. Lee said he feared the FCC was impeding the development of the UHF band (channels 14-83), which has inherent transmission problems making it more difficult to receive than stations on the VHF band (channels 2-13).

Atkins' Guitar At Smithsonian

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—In honor of Chet Atkins' fame on the Grand Ole Opry stage, his guitar is doing a solo in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington.

The guitar, made for Atkins by a Kentucky man, was being handed over for posterity today in a brief ceremony at the Smithsonian's National Museum of History and Technology, according to Miriam Longino, a spokeswoman for RCA Records here.

The guitar will be displayed in the museum's Musical Instruments Hall. Atkins, a member of the Grand Ole Opry since 1950, has appeared with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra and at the Newport Jazz Festival.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - THOSE HIGH CATHEDRAL CEILINGS ARE ARCHED IN STONE.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals W

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
North East South West
1♦ 1♥ 4♦ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Six of ♠.

Maintaining lines of communication is essential in battle and at bridge. As a corollary, severing those communications can be equally decisive at either.

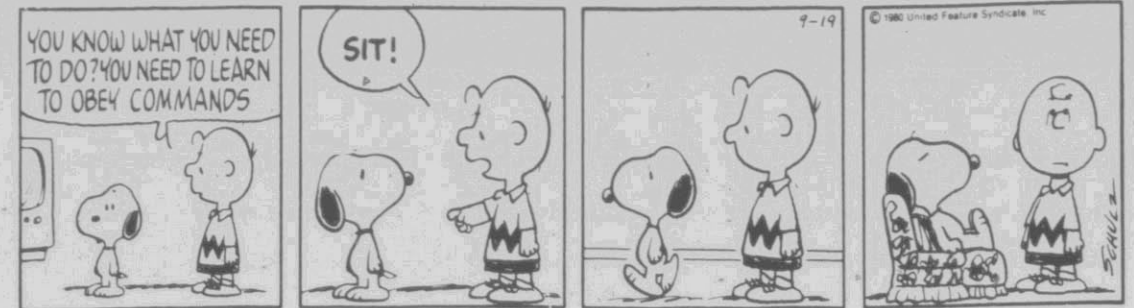

There is little to the auction. After North opened the bidding and East interposed a heart overall, South simply bid what he expected to make.

West led a club, and it was obvious to all that it was a singleton. In an effort to prevent an enemy ruff, which could sabotage his contract, declarer won the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of spades and crossed to his hand with a diamond ruff to lead another trump.

West won the king of spades and led a heart. East rose with the ace, cashed the king of clubs and gave his partner a ruff for down one. Everyone thought that this was a normal result. Do you agree?
