Annual Market Hog Show To Be One Of Pitt Fair's Highlights

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
The Second Annual Pitt County Market Hog Show will be one of the highlights of the Pitt County Agricultural Fair this week, and one of the highlights of the livestock show will be the competition between two of Pitt County's youngest hog producers, Jason Stewart, 11, and Robert Burt, 9.

Jason and Robert are the only competitors in the Junior Pork Production Contest, which is new this year. Both boys weighed their hogs in at the beginning of July, according to the rules, and the pigs will be weighed again on Tuesday, the night of the show.

Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agent Mike Regans explained that the pig who has the highest average daily weight gain will be the winner of the contest. "He will receive a trophy and a $30 prize," said Regans. "Second place winner will receive $20."

The Pitt County Market Hog Show will be held September 23 at 7 p.m. at the Livestock Arena on the Pitt County Fairgrounds and will be one of the numerous attractions at the 1980 fair which runs Monday through Saturday (September 22-27.)

Official Avows No Danger Of Warhead Being Ignited

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer
DAMASCUS, Ark. (AP) — Air Force rescue workers had to search through debris-strewn pastures for a nuclear warhead after a Titan II missile exploded in Arkansas, according to a local sheriff and others who monitored military radio transmissions.

rescue workers were searching for the injured indicate the warhead was clearly lost for a time. At one point came this exchange: "Air Force to Command One. Anybody that goes along that area now, have them look around to see if they can pinpoint the warhead."

Leavitt said the Air Force does not know which of several possibilities caused the explosion, but said an investigation board has been empaneled and has begun its probe.

TEAMSTERS STRIKE — Ubaldo Mendez of Bud Antle Inc., the nation's largest lettuce grower, stares at line of lettuce harvesters left idle Friday in fields near Salinas, California when more than 2,500 farmworkers went on strike for the first time in Antle's 33-year history. Teamsters Local 890 led the strike that yanks 35,000 cartons of lettuce off the market daily and sparked immediate price-hikes in lettuce. Workers reportedly are striking for fringe benefits and not wages, as Antle is offering $5.85 an hour. (AP Laserphoto)

Somoza Entombed In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—Slain Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza was entombed Saturday after an emotional funeral parade during which hundreds of his weeping followers marched through the streets of Miami chanting "Viva Somoza" and "Reagan Si, Carter No."

One of those in the funeral march, which wended its way through Miami's Little Havana section, carried a sign saying "President Carter This Is Your Fault."

The 54-year-old Somoza, toppled from power last year by Sandinista rebels, was slain by terrorists in Paraguay last week.

Many of his followers blamed the Carter administration for failing to support the Somoza regime and the chants in the funeral march were apparently intended as a warning they would vote their displeasure in the fall elections when Carter will be opposed by former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

A rosary service was held before an overflow crowd Friday night at St. Raymond Catholic Church, and an estimated 1,000 persons turned out for the rites Saturday.

It required nearly an hour and a half for the funeral entourage to reach Woolawn Cemetery, only 15 blocks away from the mortuary. Somoza was entombed with a crucifix on his chest and holding Rosary beads in his hand. A Nicaraguan flag was draped over the silver coffin.

Fatigue-clad members of the 2506 Brigade, Cuban exile veterans of the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, were designated as pallbearers, but when the hearse reached the cemetery, scores of Nicaraguans, none of them dignitaries, pressed forward. About a dozen of them bore the coffin to the mausoleum site for the final rites with others pressing around them in an attempt to get a hand on the coffin.

Somoza's entire family attended the interment, including the former dictator's mother, 88-year-old Salvadora DeBayle de Somoza, who arrived from her Washington home early Saturday. A family spokesman said she was "overcome with emotion" when she arrived.

Funeral home employees said among the estimated 1,500 who viewed the body after it was flown to Miami from Paraguay was C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, Miami area financier and confidante and friend to former President Nixon. Also viewing the body was U.S. Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., a long-time friend of Somoza's.

Plainclothes police stood inside and uniformed officers patrolled outside, among a crowd of mourners and the curious — and push-cart vendors selling snow-cones and snacks. "My father was a good friend to this country," Anastasio Somoza Jr. said.

Explosion Kills Six

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — Six persons died and two were critically injured Saturday when an explosion ripped through a home in a quiet residential neighborhood of Olathe, police said.

Authorities said the cause of the blast, which rocked houses as far as a mile away, was not immediately known. But natural gas was being ruled out as a cause.

State and local authorities and officials from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were trying to determine whether an explosive device caused the blast.

and Susan Post, 18 or 19; and his sons, Richard, 21; and James, 10.

Injured in the blast, which occurred about 9:30 a.m., were Randy Crump, Diane Crump's 4-month-old son, and Craig Weber, 10 or 12, who was visiting. They were listed in critical condition, Patterson said.

A ninth person in the home escaped serious injury, police said.

Post was head of a popular children's softball organization in Johnson County.

Patterson said five of the victims were dead at the scene and three others were rushed to an Olathe hospital, where one died in surgery.

"I've been here five years and it's the worst thing I'm aware of," Patterson said. "This has certainly stung the community."

Residents in the quiet north side of the Kansas City suburb, used rakes and snow shovels to clear debris from the explosion, which leveled the two-story frame house. Only the chimney and a portion of the living room were left standing.

Douglas Strieby, who lives just north of house, said the torso of a body was blown into his back yard. Strieby said he was the first one at the scene and saw parts of bodies scattered throughout the rubble.

Shortly after the explosion, a police officer sifting through the debris uncovered the family's cocker spaniel, which was still alive and apparently not seriously injured.

Atlanta's New Air Terminal Opens Today

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta's new $600 million airport terminal will open its doors to the traveling public today, ready to handle up to 55 million passengers a year.

The terminal, a futuristic complex large enough to cover 11 football fields, is the world's largest airport terminal and serves as the hub of the world's second busiest airport, Hartsfield International.

Contractors putting the finishing touches to the complex, even worked through Thursday night's black-tie dedication ceremony.

But officials said the work would be finished in time for the first scheduled airline flight, Eastern's 845, arriving this morning from Denver.

The airport was christened last week when President Carter — visiting Atlanta on a two-day campaign swing Tuesday — toured the terminal before taking off on Air Force One.

Nearly 10,000 invited guests and friends attended the official dedication

Thursday night, munching caviar and strawberries and trying out the new underground rail system and people mover.

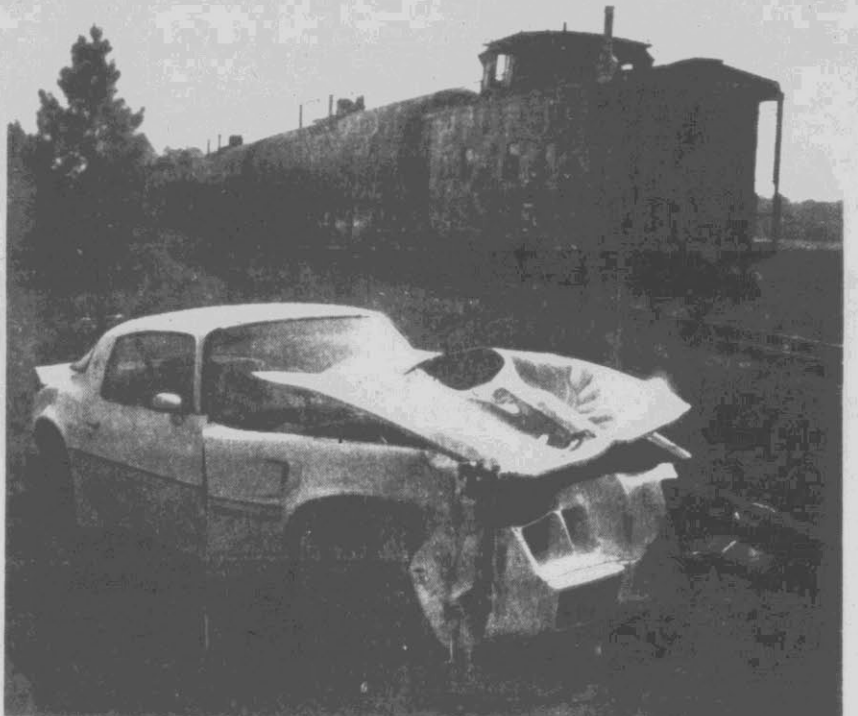

The terminal — with its modern silent trains, automatic parking areas and computerized information centers — is designed to get passengers in and out as quickly as possible.

The concourses are 1,000 feet apart, but the trip from the terminal to the farthest concourse takes only five minutes by train.

The old terminal was designed in 1961 to handle 18 million passengers a year, but its passenger load had grown to 41 million. The new complex, with 138 aircraft gates, will be able to handle 55 million passengers a year.

"No other airport terminal can handle as many aircraft and passengers at one time," said Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

The facility can accommodate 120 takeoffs and landings per hour, up from 105 at the old terminal.

ESCAPED WITH ONLY MINOR INJURIES - Only minor injuries occurred Saturday afternoon when a train and car collided outside Winterville. According to Trooper John Brinkley, a car driven by Cecil W. Duke, Jr., of Kinston was headed west on rural paved road 1708 when he collided with a southbound

Seaboard Coastline train. The train car was enroute to the DuPont plant near Kinston. The engineer of the train was listed as James Earl Robertson, Jr., of Rocky Mount. The accident occurred about 3:15 p.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Returning Turtles To The Ocean

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Marine scientists plan to return 200 baby sea turtles to the ocean at Fort Fisher today.

Marine Resources Center director Dr. Gordon Murdock said Friday that the turtles are of the endangered loggerhead species and that only about 200,000 remain in the world.

The turtle eggs were found where mother turtles had laid them and were taken to the North Carolina Institute of Marine Science to be incubated, Murdock said.

The turtles will be "about the size of silver dollars when we release them," Murdock said, "a good mouthful for a medium-sized fish."

But they already have a head start on their brethren hatched naturally, he said. Turtles eggs laid and hatched in the wild have about a 98 percent mortality rate, falling prey to humans, racoons and sea gulls.

Once in the ocean, if they survive the oil slicks, human hunters, sea gulls and fish that made them an endangered species, the turtles may grow as large as five feet long and 640 pounds, Schwartz said.

Lottery Scandal Not Detering Players

By JILL LAWRENCE Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Subpoenaed telephone records and experiments by the designer of a jet action "bingo" machine were keys to a grand jury's findings that six people fixed the Pennsylvania state lottery last April 24.

The jury announced Friday that it had concluded that liquid was injected into most of the pingpong balls that carry the winning lottery numbers so that only the lighter balls numbered "4" and "6" had a chance of popping out of the machine.

The winning number that day was "666" and the jury said people in on the scam had bought up more than $1 million worth of winning tickets.

The six people named by jury will be charged by the state Justice Department "in due course," but not until "a voluminous record" of evidence is reviewed, acting state Attorney General Harvey Bartle said.

Meanwhile, word of the scandal did not appear to discourage would-be winners. Sales for Friday amounted to $1,107,026 — up $16,077 from a week earlier, according to lottery spokesman Mike Keyser. Friday's winning number, 8-5-1, paid $621,000, about 56 percent of the day's take.

"There's no such thing as bad publicity," said Ted Sargent, manager of a Pottstown tobacco store, as customers streamed in to buy Daily Number lottery tickets.

Attends School In Plastic Box

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Raul Espino, like many first graders, fidgets in class, drinks Coke from a Star Wars glass and wants to be a policeman when he grows up.

But the 7-year-old is different from other children at Egly Elementary School.

During class, he sits in an air-conditioned Plexiglas box. The box, and the cool environment it provides, is necessary to protect him from overheating. An automobile accident paralyzed him and left his body unable to control its temperature.

None of the elementary or junior high classrooms in the Brownsville Independent School District are air conditioned. That would take money that the school district in a poor area cannot afford, officials say.

When Raul's teachers at a special education school decided he was ready for a regular classroom, the box was built.

It abuts one wall of the classroom. The air conditioner is located in the wall. Raul guides his wheelchair into the box and closes the door behind him. His schoolroom becomes a box 3-feet wide, 4-feet deep and 7-feet high.

Raul's parents, Anna and Raul Espino Sr., say the box makes it impossible for their son to fully participate in classroom activities and they want the entire room air conditioned.

"They're isolating him from the other children. He's in a restricted environment," says his mother.

"I don't like that cage," adds the father. "But we don't want him to be out of school."

Celebrates 101st

CINCINNATI (AP) — The founder of the Big Brother organization celebrated his 101st birthday on Friday saying he was pleased with his accomplishments.

"Personally, I can say I have lived my life as near as I could for the rectitude of man," said Irvin Westheimer, who began Big Brother on Independence Day, 1903. "I have sunshine and children in my heart."

At last count, he added, there were 168,000 boys and girls in the Big Brothers-Big Sisters Association, which aims to help boys and girls needing adult companionship. "We have a large one in Canada and we're in seven or eight foreign countries," Westheimer said.

Differences Can Be Resolved

Some 400 county school teachers appeared at a county board of education meeting last week to protest a system of self evaluation of their work.

One speaker put it, the teachers were expected to "furnish the bullets" to be denied merit raises or possibly for dismissal.

Concerns were raised about how the evaluations would be used, and who was to see them. Some of the concerns were valid. Certainly the teachers should be re-assured as to the confidentiality of the evaluations. It should be clear who among their superiors will evaluate the teachers and who will make use of the files.

At the same time it appears that an adequate evaluation system is needed and necessary. The education system's first responsibility is not to protect the job of an incompetent teacher - which we believe are few - but to provide the best education possible for the young people who attend the schools.

If evaluation is to be done, who should do it? As professionals, the teachers might be the best ones to provide an assessment of their own work. It is not a task to be savored but it has to do anyone some good to occasionally look at his own work.

If the self-evaluation plan is to be implemented it should be done with a positive attitude on the part of both the administration and the teachers. We hope the county school administration will do all it can to resolve the objections the teachers have to the plan. At the same time the teachers should work to make the plan a constructive one.

The evaluation plan is not perfect, but the county school administration is on the right track.

Sunday Morning Notes

The City Council was considering a speed limit change on E. Fourth Street at a recent meeting. The description of the zone carried it to Cemetery Road. "You mean to the dead end?" Councilman Louis Clark asked. That brought the sleepy council to alertness. Clark chuckled, "I just wanted to see if anybody was awake."

Landmarks around Greenville steadily disappear. The most recent one to go is the city landfill off East Fifth Street behind Greenwood Cemetery. The land fill, originally known as the city dump, was completed after the county government took over the operation and refuse from throughout the county was brought in. Now the operation has been transferred to the county landfill east of Greenville.

Can one get nostalgic about the city dump? You can if you were a boy who grew in Greenville while the thing was operational.

It was anything but a pretty sight. Trash was hauled in by open dump trucks. The loads were deposited in low areas on piles

Happy River Revival

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

The sun was setting as the Schuylkill River flowed past the Waterworks Cafe, a restaurant tucked behind the Philadelphia Museum of Art. Couples sitting out beneath the columns on the cafe's terrace enjoyed the warm breeze and the lights of Boathouse Row.

As they tried to choose between veal marsala and baked flounder romano, a few children with fishing poles squatted near the river on the opposite riverbank, near the railroad tracks.

"They're probably fishing for their dinner," observed a woman on the terrace.

Ten years ago, few people ate near or from the river, so badly was it polluted by municipalities, industries and mines.

But pollution laws were enforced and treatment plants built, and today both man and fish are returning to the Schuylkill.

So it goes on rivers across the nation.

A typical river renaissance city is Springfield, Mass. After turning its back on the Connecticut more than 50 years ago - even the boating club left town - Springfield has a five-year, $80 million public and private development plan to become a river city once again.

Riverfront revitalization became possible only after more than $500 million was sunk into sewage treatment plants on the Connecticut. Today, more than three-fourths of the river is clean enough for swimming, compared to half in 1965.

Then, the old tidal river was dying, its water a soup of pollutants. In summer, dissolved oxygen - vital to plant and fish life - was near zero below industrial Holyoke, Mass.

By the '60s, people figured pollution and progress went together like love and marriage. But few wanted anything to do with the river.

and piles of other rubbish. To keep down the bulk and stench the accumulated garbage was allowed to burn sending great clouds of black smoke over the area.

There was no heavy equipment on hand to do much about the debris and it just stayed there until it deteriorated. What could be more attractive to local kids? They would poke through the stuff during the day in hopes of finding some treasure.

It was a different story at night. No one would dare venture down in the debris after dark because rats, grown huge from feasting on the garbage, roamed around.

Mayo Allen, director of public works, pointed out the night time sport was to spot rats with flash lights and shoot them.

It was not Greenville's first dump. There was one north of the Tar River previously. And when the Town Common was being constructed on the south side of the river a few years back, the remnants of a town dump of many years past was uncovered alongside Greene Street. Bottle collectors had a field

Discouraged By Reaction

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Discouraged by strong opposition from physicians, and negative reactions from some members of the General Assembly, a commission on prepaid group health plans has backed away partially from its intention to seek funds from the General Assembly.

Early solutions to the money problem entailed asking the Legislature to set up a loan fund totalling nearly $10 million over a four-year period.

After it became clear that this approach would create strong opposition, the commission reworded the proposal - still spelling out the need for the money, and asking the General Assembly to help make it available, but not seeking a direct appropriation.

Instead, the study group suggested a variety of alternatives such as issuing bonds or underwriting loans from other sources by guaranteeing payment by the state in event of default.

Knowledgeable sources say that such exotic manipulation of state funding powers is not likely, and if the health plan is to get money, it will have to come in a straightforward manner.

Essential

The state loan fund is seen as essential to launching prepaid group health plans all across the state because otherwise the money is simply not available despite the interest in establishing such programs. Most would have to operate from two to four years before breaking even, and finance specialists reject offhand the possibility that any financial institution would agree to lend money for such an unproven purpose.

Local corporations would be formed, under the study group plan, to set up and operate programs in which members would pay a monthly fee for which they would get total health care from services such as physicians and others under contract with the group.

Robot Airports

A two-part system using sophisticated computer techniques and radar has been developed by Research Triangle Institute and is currently being tested in Virginia.

Designed for small airports where manned control towers are not in use, the Automated Pilot Advisory System uses a "talking computer" which broadcasts on commonly used radio frequencies.

The talking is actually pre-recorded words and phrases suitable to the purpose which are stored in the computer and called upon as needed. Standard weather information is fed into the computer from monitoring equipment at the airport: wind direction and speed, temperature, barometric pressure, humidity, dew point, etc.

Even more exotic, a radar monitor translates flight activity in the area into a broadcast message.

Designed to help smallcraft pilots know where they are in relation to other planes in the area, the system sends out information such as: "Traffic Advisory - one aircraft on final, two aircraft on downwind, one aircraft 1.5 miles southeast heading south."

James Haidt, project chief, says tests show that pilots can identify themselves from the radar-computer broadcast, and find out where to look for other traffic to avoid risk of collision.

Computer specialist Christina Davis did most of the work in developing a system of a message-creating computer. The words are not on a tape; that would take too long to find the right one and put it on the air. Instead, sounds are translated into a digital form that can be stored in computer memory for instant retrieval and broadcast as traffic or weather conditions change.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Restraint In Korea's Rule

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SEOUL, South Korea — President Chun Doo Hwan, South Korea's new strongman trying to show the West a less repressive face, did not rule out to us the possibility he might commute a death sentence against dissident Kim Dae Jung amidst indications that government lawyers are about to study his options.

In his first interview since moving two weeks earlier from behind-the-throne power to the presidential throne itself, Chun stressed that Kim is not a political prisoner but is on trial for his life on strictly criminal charges. But while asserting "this is a matter for the courts and not the responsibility of the president to mete out justice," Chun did not close the door to clemency.

That typified the restrained tone by the 49-year-old career army officer who seized power last December during the turbulence following President Park Chung Hee's assassination. In a 90-minute interview at the Blue House, Chun welcomed President Carter's call for "complete democracy" here, proposed a quick end to martial law and predicted a more democratic South Korea than Park's 18-year regime.

But Chun also emphasized the danger of North Korean aggression, making this peninsula a potential world flashpoint and keeping 39,000 U.S. troops here. If last May's riots in the town of Kwangju, he said, "had been allowed to spread to two other cities," North Korean ruler Kim Il Sung would have sent down 100,000 infiltrators. "That is why social unrest, disorder and riots cannot be tolerated," Chun added.

On balance, Chun hardly seemed the barracks room primitive portrayed in the international press. While chain-smoking throughout the interview, he was relaxed and self-assured. His sophistication belied the fact that scarcely two years ago he was an unknown infantry division commander.

The contrast between the smiling, athletic-looking Chun and the austere, frail

Park is more than physical. Park told us in the same room five years ago that communist North Korea's military menace precluded relaxation of security here, Chun held out considerably more hope even though his regime so far is measurably harsher than Park's final years. Chun called the U.S. his country's "great benefactor" and studiously avoided provocative language about the U.S. often used by Park.

That was true of his cautious language in responding to Western criticism of the trial of former presidential candidate Kim Dae Jung, today the most serious dispute between Washington and Seoul. "I am a little concerned about the tendency in the United States and Japan to link that case to me," he said.

But Chun did not lash out at U.S. interference. He simply said he had not yet con-

Strength For Today

A SECRET GARDEN AMID SQUALOR

Some time ago a man read a very beautiful paper on European gardens to a club made up of garden enthusiasts. Was it written by a man who had a large and imposing garden of his own, who lived his life among beautiful things? Not at all. It was written by a minister who for almost fifty years had lived in one of the most blighted areas of London in order the better to serve the poor, lost and hopeless people there. There was not a blade of grass within blocks of his house, and not a tree in that section of the city.

Under these circumstances how could this minister write so eloquently about gardens? He could do so because there was another part of him which lived far away from the squalor of the city - in beautiful gardens behind high walls. In the midst of the city streets and slums this man who went from house to house armed with the grace of God and a word of good cheer, carried the vision of gardens with him and imparted it to others. - Elisha Douglass

Few Smiles About 'Good News'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Here we are on the road to recovery, according to the statistics, and some of the people who should be happy about it all are gloomily, sourly, sometimes angrily saying it doesn't mean a thing.

There is nothing to cheer about, housing officials say, even though housing starts rose in August for the third month in a row. "It's a disaster," growled an executive of a mortgage lending association.

Detroit seems likely to improve sales in light of the new, economy cars that are finally off the drawing board and into production. "No conclusions; just wait and see," said a grumpy sales executive.

Factories operated at 74.5 percent of capacity last month, the first rise in 10 months, the government said. "Don't make a lot out of it; it rose only one-tenth of one percent," said another government man.

The stock market again has risen above 900 points on the Dow Jones industrial average. "Nothing to cheer about," said a mail-order purveyor of gloom. "Based on the 1970 dollar it's only half that."

Does anyone have confidence in the "recovery?" Does anyone, aside from those whose political fortunes are involved, believe it is for real?

Sure, you can find some who believe, lots perhaps, but when you strip the veneer of optimism you often find them full of doubts and tensions. Even Chrysler's Lee Iacocca might be susceptible to those failings.

The housing people, for example, are depressed about rising interest rates and low savings, a combination some of them say is almost certain to pull the rug from under their market. The damage is already felt.

Millions, of course, were happy to see the jobless rate fall to 7.6 percent in August from 7.8 percent in July. But they have seen this sort of thing before; they fear the worst numbers have not yet appeared.

It takes time, the statisticians say, for industry to gear up and begin rehiring. And if the recession is over, why is Congress talking about extended jobless benefits and an anti-recession program?

Those who study the level of factory operations know that the tiny improvement can be a statistical error and that even if it is not, it can be revised out of existence as new data continue to come in.

Yes, there are doubts, and plenty of fuel for them. Immediately after Courtenay Slater, chief Commerce Department economist, stated that the recession probably ended in August, several economists challenged her.

That sort of thing always happens at turning points because, simply, economists are forever doubting themselves, their discipline and their colleagues, and because nobody knows when a recession ends until after it has been over many months and the numbers have been processed.

Whatever, throughout the width and breadth of the land, in assessing the content of casual conversations, political statements, consumer surveys and ubiquitous statistics, a sense of conviction is missing.

George Katona, one of the founders of what is called behavioral economics - economics that places a high value on studies of consumer attitudes - probably came close to identifying the missing ingredient.

Writing earlier this year, Katona stated that "what is necessary is that new policies catch the public imagination and create an atmosphere of confidence that they will succeed."

"Only then can they be seen as representing a new start, terminating the era of the 1970s."

The suggestion that arises from the current lack of conviction is that the nation is simply relying on the old, dated, weary, discredited formulas of the 1970s, when many of the traditional hopes were smashed.

GOP Plank Not Popular

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — GOP challenger Ronald Reagan will have a hard time winning votes on at least one of the planks in the Republican platform — that which calls for abolishing the 55-mile-per-hour maximum speed limit as a national law. Public support for retaining the 55 mph speed limit is, in fact, at an all-time high. In the latest survey, an overwhelming eight in 10 (80 percent) of adults vote in favor of this law. Even among Reagan's own supporters, 77 percent say the law should remain on the books. Heavy majorities of Republicans (76 percent) as well as Democrats (85 percent) and independents (78 percent) express approval of the present law, which was imposed in 1974 primarily because of the energy shortage.

Solid majorities in each geographical region, including the West, where sharpest criticism of the present law is heard, vote in favor of retaining the 55-mph limit.

It is also interesting to note that young adults, 18 to 29, are just as likely to favor this national law as are persons over 30.

Proponents favor retaining the present speed limit for three reasons: (1) there has been a substantial reduction in auto fatalities since the law was enacted; (2) savings in petroleum are effected (it has been estimated that consumption would increase by a quarter-million barrels a day if the speed limit were removed) and (3) it costs drivers less money to run cars at lower than at higher speeds.

Following is the question asked since 1974: "Do you favor or oppose keeping the present 55-mile-per-hour speed limit on the highways of the nation?"

As the trend below shows, support for retaining the law increased slightly between 1974 and 1977, fell off between 1977 and 1979 but has since climbed to the present 80 percent.

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,367 adults, 18 and older, conducted in scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period Sept. 12-14.

For results based on the total sample, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

As I Recall It Blow To Wake Forest When College Moved

By NOEL YANCEY

On an October day in 1971, the Wake Forest University band wended its way through the town of Wake Forest, blaring the university fight song. The band and some 600 students from the Winston-Salem campus were on a sentimental journey back to the sleepy Wake County town that had been the college's home for 122 years.

For Janet Johnson of Shelby, a pretty WFU sophomore, it was her first visit to the old campus, and that was likely the case with most of the 600. After she had strolled through the magnolia-shaded grounds and surveyed the stately old buildings that now house the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, she commented, "I love it. I don't see how they could have left."

Many of the 1,500 students and 100-plus faculty members who made the move to the new campus in 1956 doubtless felt the same way.

And so did many of the Wake Forest townfolk as they contemplated the loss of the institution around which the town had developed.

"This is the saddest time I have ever known except for personal bereavements," said one townsman. "This is a kind of bereavement for the whole town."

Fortunately, both the faculty people, some of whom had been connected with the college for nearly half a century, and some of the town people who had lived alongside it all their lives, had had 10 years to get used to the idea and make ready for the move.

But some of the town people had feared their pleasant little community was destined to wither and die when they first heard the news in a radio newscast at 11:02 p.m. on Monday, March 25, 1946. The excited announcer related that the fabulously wealthy Reynolds family had offered million to foster the development of Wake Forest College — provided it move to Winston-Salem. For the general public, the offer came like a bolt from the blue. There had been no advance warning through rumors or whispered confidences.

Old Gold and Black, the student newspaper, compared the effect of the news flash to the atomic bomb that hit Hiroshima at the end of World War II. It said that "an atomic bomb could not have been more sudden, more unexpected, more stunning than the announcement of the Reynolds offer."

In Wake Forest, it was taken for granted from the outset that the offer would not, could not be refused. The first reports, which exaggerated the size of the offer, contributed to this feeling. Some accounts said the amount was more than $40 million.

Even as they rejoiced at the college's good fortune and the

Facing South Primus King Challenged The Customs In Georgia

COLUMBUS, Ga. — "I want the rights and the privilege to vote for my people." When Primus E. King, retired barber and minister, spoke these words nearly 34 years ago, it was a bold plea uncommon for blacks. It could have cost him his life.

His story begins in 1944. Not only could blacks not vote in primary elections in Georgia and many other Southern states at that time, but they could not eat in most white-owned restaurants, they had to yield bus seats to whites and they attended undermanned, under equipped and dilapidated schools. These conditions had prompted a group of frustrated Columbus residents to form what they called a Citizens Committee to challenge the practices of the Democratic Party and to test the party's 1944 primary. To "test" the primary meant that someone would have to be courageous enough to go to the polls to vote on election day. A life-time of discrimination and an "everyday" incident determined that King would be one.

One day in 1944, King left his 17th Street barber shop to eat lunch in a local cafeteria. Upon approaching the dining room he was told to go to a side window and get a sandwich. When he asked why he couldn't go inside, the worker snapped, "We don't allow no niggers in here." The event angered King so much he suddenly had nothing to lose by his actions, whatever they might entail. He had felt for some time that he ought to join the Citizens Committee and try to do something about local conditions. The one way to make a change in the city, he knew, was to take part in the electoral process. So he went to the courthouse. He went to vote.

"There were two cars and about four men in the car I was in. They got out and stood on the outside and I was the guinea pig. When I got to the courthouse there were two deputies standing there. As I started in to vote they grabbed me — they grabbed me and the other fellows jumped into their cars and fled away from there. They knew that those mean deputies then would kill you for nothing. In those days they'd kill you just for nothing."

"But I thought quick and said to myself, 'A hot head can do cool thinking.' I said to one of the deputies, 'You've got a nice looking suit. What's your name sir?' He told me and I said, 'I'll see you later.'"

King left the court house without voting and went straight to the nearest lawyer's office. The lawyer was incredulous at his request. "Primus, do you really want to sue the Democratic Party, the white Democratic Party?" But King insisted. The lawyer then warned King he might get killed if he went through with the plan. Nevertheless, he helped King sue the party for $5,000 for denying the privilege to vote because of race.

The first trial in the case of King vs. Chatman was held at the federal court in Macon, Georgia. To King's dismay, blacks in Macon were so afraid that during the entire proceedings they wouldn't come near the courthouse. His only supporters were a few people from Columbus. However, the judge ruled in his favor and King went home with a new and precious right. But the battle had only begun.

Soon after King's initial victory, the case was appealed and sent to the U.S. Court of Appeals in New Orleans. The only reception King received there came from an entourage of white photographers. Blacks in New Orleans, as in Macon, were afraid to show their support.

The defense and prosecution lawyers argued for hours. Today, King still remembers exactly the conversation which then took place.

"After they argued a while the judge asked me a question. He said, 'Primus, do you want the right and privilege to vote or do you want $5,000?'"

I don't know what made me cry at that particular time — nothing but the Lord working for black men through me." King knew that if he accepted the money it would be like accepting a bribe, when the future of the whole black community was at stake. He stood up and said, "Your Honor, I want the right and the privilege to vote for my people."

The judge saw King crying; something was happening — his face turned red. He told Primus that within 30 days he would read the decision.

At the end of this period, the decision of the lower court was upheld and attempts to take the case to the U.S. Supreme Court failed. Primus E. King had led one of the most important voting crusades in American history.

Now, at the ripe age of 78, King is still fighting. He feels frustration when he sees that blacks in Georgia are not capitalizing upon the power of the ballot. Many still do not vote today. A large percentage are not even registered to vote.

"That's what makes me feel sad, to see young men walking around and saying, 'Yeah, I don't care nothing about that voting. White folks gonna run this town anyhow.' They'll run it if you let them run it. You have got to get up and do something for yourself. The man with the ballot is the boss of the man without it."

Question Of Survival Is Mainly For Parents

Raising children puts too much strain on the heart. From the moment a parent discovers that he can't keep his children under 24-hour protective custody if they are to mature properly, he begins to experience growing pains so intense they make angina seem like a minor case of acid indigestion.

The first year of parenthood is the worst. With Meg I stayed on the verge of nervous collapse. Her first high fever was sheer torment. And on the morning when we were out strolling and her nose suddenly started to bleed, the pediatrician had to spend 20 minutes convincing me that she was not hemorrhaging before I could control my shaking.

When she began to walk, I was sure I would take up residence in Butner before the month was out. I didn't see her first solo steps on concrete. I was too busy praying. I soon found that closing one's eyes for any reason whatsoever is not a good policy when it comes to toddlers. Even momentary inattentiveness can result in an 11-month-old poised on top of a 20-foot slide with the mother a playground length away.

Meg performed this feat a mere two weeks before she dined on the toadstools that she discovered while I was sweeping the walk and thus precipitated our first visit to the emergency room.

The most difficult thing about situations such as these is the semblance of outward calm a mother must retain while all the cells of her body are rushing at the speed of light toward her center of gravity. With enough practice, however, the mother automatically shifts to Numb, erasing all traces of panic except the elevator in her chest.

It was this mental state which enabled me to drive Meg to the dentist's office without wrecking the car after she fell off the three chairs she had stacked in her bedroom and knocked out her front teeth.

I even remained calm last week when she fell out of a tree at suppertime and required seven stitches in her chin. I quieted her, then called the doctor, while Phillip got a washcloth to put on her chin and started the car. I sat in the back and cuddled her while he drove and teased her about trying too hard to find something interesting for Show and Tell.

It was only after the ordeal was over that the facade wore thin. When Meg bounded out the back door shouting, "I promise I won't climb a tree again for a week," Phillip turned pale.

"I can't believe how brave she was. She held that head just as still..." I started to cry. "You shouldn't get upset," he said. "She's a tough little trooper. She'll survive anything." I wiped my eyes. "The question is, will we?"

To the editor:

The endangered species is not the snail darter, but us and our freedoms.

Gov. Hunt has worked diligently to change our state to a total bureaucratic socialistic state.

1. Hunt's New Generation Act the Child Health Plan will eventually destroy the family. All types of child care and development are family obligations, not for government takeover. The majority of people are not against sex education, but object to the material, methods used by the state and failure to stress morals. It is extremely difficult to understand why Greenville ministers do not fight the destruction of the family. Why don't the ministers initiate positive programs of sex education and church day care centers? To my knowledge, only two ministers are truly fighting this bureaucratic takeover.

2. CETA smells more and more. State auditors questioned millions. Hunt and Lee say, "No problem, we are correcting." But it has been a year with no corrections. CETA contracted millions with union president Hobby without competitive bids. Was this a payoff? Why hasn't Lee been fired?

3. CETA hired two daughters of prominent contributors to Hunt. Concern for the less fortunate?

4. Gov. Hunt's one-man spy ring — checking up on the sheriffs, but Hunt said he never knew about it. His spy was transferred, not fired.

5. We have had the PCB waste problem over two years and Hunt says they are working on it. Talking and wishing never solved a problem.

6. Since Gov. Hunt took office, the state's spending has increased 47 percent and taxes have increased 49 percent.

Gov. Hunt and Pres. Carter are two of a kind; the voting box could end up a Pandora's Box. A very serious national situation facing us is what Pres. Carter and Russia will individually or collectively create to assure Carter's re-election.

To the editor:

I have read many most alarming news and non-news articles in our local paper lately. Tonight I was shocked by the small article entitled, "Tickets Factor in Trooper Pay."

North Carolina has become a very progressive state with a good, safe highway system on which our highway laws have been enforced fairly and with compassion. To this end, we citizens have grown to respect the grey/black, patrol cars, not just as a "Smokey Bear" out to nab speeders, but as our representatives of safety and concern for our highway laws. These men are being put into a "quota" system or they will lose pay raises.

Burley Mitchell, State Crime Control Director, must think we citizens are stupid when he states that this new trooper evaluation system will measure "the relative productivity" of our troopers and will not be a citation quota system. This is no way to protect our citizens from highway harassment, our visitors from abuse and our patrolmen from ridiculous pressures which will cause them to have to lower the high standards of truth and fairness we citizens demand and deserve from these excellent public servants.

Constitutional Change Worthy Of Discussion

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Suppose, to be supposing, that on Election Day we were required to vote for tickets, not for individuals. Further suppose that the Constitution were amended to provide six-year terms for everybody in national office. A good idea or a bad idea?

It is certainly a radical idea, but it came forth the other day from a most responsible source — Lloyd Cutler, White House counsel to the president. Writing in Foreign Affairs magazine, he suggested dramatic changes that would move our existing constitutional system closer to the British parliamentary system. He seeks party responsibility, which is no easy task. Nobody in our town has seen much of party responsibility lately.

Without recommending the Cutler plan specifically, it surely is possible to urge greater public discussion of the problem he grapples with. Put briefly, the problem is simply that our vaunted two-party system has lost all the characteristics of a system. It is a fraud, a myth, a sham. The "system" is as hollow as Saturday night's jug on Sunday morning. The substance has drained away, leaving only form behind. We continue to honor the old rituals, but the old rituals have no meaning. Every four years the major parties adopt platforms, but as instruments to bind party candidates, the platforms are fetters of straw. We have majority and minority leaders on the Hill, but they are incapable of leading. A president proposes, but as Democrat Jimmy Carter has ruefully discovered, a Democratic Congress disposes. Now that fund-raising has become chiefly a function of independent political action committees, the parties have no party functions left.

Consider a few incidents in recent weeks. On August 22, Mr. Carter vetoed a bill having to do with bonuses for doctors and dentists in the Veterans Administration. On August 26, both chambers voted overwhelmingly to override. In the whole of the House and Senate, only five Democrats — five! — supported a president of their own party.

On September 3, the House rejected a move to prohibit the use of tax funds for abortions in the District of Columbia. On that vote, 42

Republicans and 150 Democrats voted no, while 96 Republicans and 86 Democrats voted aye. Let us compare the recent party platforms on the abortion issue, and let us raise a feeble cheer for party commitments.

On August 19, the House was debating an amendment to the Treasury appropriations bill. The chair ruled the amendment out of order. An appeal was taken from the ruling. Even though the House was then sitting as a committee of the whole, the presiding officer was in effect acting for the speaker. It is virtually unheard of for party members to desert their speaker on such a vote, but 44 Democrats went over the Hill.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, expressing his "extreme disappointment," wrote the 44 defectors a reproachful letter. It is elementary to procedural control of the House, he said, that the chair be supported by members of his party. In other countries, he added, governments might fall on such an issue.

The speaker's rebuke came after Mr. Cutler had prepared his article for Foreign Affairs, but it directly ties in. Under the Cutler plan, parties would truly be parties. The president, vice president, and all members of the House and Senate would be elected simultaneously for six-year terms. Voters would vote by ticket.

For example, down in Winston-Salem, in the Fifth District of North Carolina, voters would have this package choice on one hand: Jimmy Carter, Walter Mondale, Robert Morgan and Stephen Neal for the Democrats; or on the other hand: Ronald Reagan, George Bush, John East and Anne Bagnal for the Republicans. Ticket splitting would be a thing of the past. Like the House of Commons, our Congress would have a government party and an opposition party.

Once during his term, under Mr. Cutler's proposal, a president could dissolve the Congress and order new elections. Congress, for its part, could demand a simultaneous new election for president for the remainder of the six-year term. The proposition, taken as a whole, would take a lot of getting used to, but if we want to breathe life into a moribund system it's worth some sober thought.

prospect that its development was assured, some townfolk feared they would be left with a ghost community with nothing to occupy the campus and buildings. That worry was assuaged a couple of years later when the Southern Baptists bought the campus for a seminary. In fact, college and seminary shared the campus for five years before the college moved to Winston-Salem.

The offer of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of up to $350,000 a year in perpetuity was overwhelmingly accepted at a special session of the Baptist State Convention in July 1946. It also accepted an offer by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Babcock of more than 300 acres of their Reynolda estate just outside Winston-Salem.

Although no one could recall moving a college the size of Wake Forest to a new campus 110 miles away, it looked simple on paper. But in the decade before the move was made all manner of problems were encountered. Early estimates that a new campus for 2,000 students could be built for $6 million proved ridiculously low. Within two years, the price tag was put at $12.6 million. By moving time it was $19 million. But fund-raising campaigns, authorization to borrow up to $6 million and the decision of the Reynolds Foundation to boost its annual stipend to $500,000 apparently solved those money problems.

The decision of architect Jens. F. Larsen of New York City to build the new campus in a modified Georgian style brought howls of protests from some architects and others who felt it would be tragic to build a new campus in anything but modern style. In fact, a North Carolina architect told Larsen, "You have put us back 20 years... You had the most wonderful opportunity and messed it up."

But Larsen held firm, saying the simple, classical architecture would reflect "the tradition that is Wake Forest College." President Harry S. Truman came to Winston-Salem in 1951 to officially break ground for the new campus. Four weeks later, summer school classes began on the new campus.

Wake Forest Mayor James O. Perry Jr., who was only eight years old when the college move was made, said recently its effect on the community was comparable to what Raleigh would suffer if it lost N.C. State University. Some of its restaurants, some clothing stores and its two movie theaters closed down after the move.

But, he said, "we survived." Large new industries like Scovill Manufacturing, Athey Products and Huyck Corpp. have located plants in the area and Hewlett-Packard had announced plans for a big plant. Perry estimates the town's population has doubled, and enrollment at the seminary has reached 1,400.

At the time of the move back in 1946, Chief of Police Floyd Whitman pointed out that 80 percent of the seminary students were married with an average of two children per family. He said they would provide a more stable economic base with their purchases of groceries and home appliances.

So, even though the loss of the college was a blow, Whitman said it had its good points — "no more panty raids."

sidered a presidential pardon, while not commenting on the prospect. We received the impression that his lawyers will soon research the presidential powers for clemency, though commutation of a death sentence is opposed by Chun's key advisers.

As for Carter's recent call for "complete democracy" in South Korea, Chun told us: "I think it is very good that he should say that. I certainly do not resent it at all. Democracy has to be complete. Incomplete democracy is undesirable under any circumstances." But he quickly added that "each country has its own historical, cultural and geopolitical circumstances."

Those "circumstances" include linking the threat from the north to preventing disorder in the south, but Chun said, "Martial law ought to be lifted at the earliest practical moment." He called it "advisable to observe the situation for a few months. But my feeling is that (martial law) will not last a long time."

"Those in the United States who call the policies here oppressive," he said, "obviously are talking about what happened in the past. I am not in a position to talk about that, because I was not politically responsible." Having thus disclaimed responsibility for the Park era, Chun said that the new constitution will be more like the American Constitution than Park's in providing contested presidential elections and a limited presidency (one seven-year term).

Chun saw no North Korean interest in serious negotiations that would diminish tensions: "Where you and I sit at this very moment is within the effective field artillery range of North Korean forces, and if they decide to pull the trigger, the shells would explode right here in our midst. This is something that a great, rich and secure country like the United States finds it difficult to imagine."

It is also something that has required a generation of Americans and Koreans to overlook what they perceive as the other's shortcomings in the interest of each nation's security. The Kim Dae Jung case will drag on for months with the worst yet to come. But Chun Doo Hwan clearly wants some mutual overlooking as South Korea pursues perhaps its last chance for stability, a quest whose life and death implications transcend this small nation.

Former Senator To Speak Here

Former U. S. Senator Harold E. Hughes will be here Thursday to promote the nationwide Prison Fellowship organization, according to the Rev. Tom Metts, state coordinator for Prison Fellowship.

Hughes will speak at 7:30 p. m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, 510 S. Washington St. He will speak, also, in Raleigh and Greensboro.

Hughes is former chairman of the board of directors of Prison Fellowship, a post from which he retired this spring. His first public office was as Iowa's commerce commissioner. He said he won that office after his conversion to Christianity and a battle with alcoholism while he was a truck driver. A Democrat, he later ran for and won the Iowa governorship which had been considered a Republican stronghold.

In 1972 he was considered a strong candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, but withdrew shortly before the convention "for personal reasons," he said.

Charles Colson, senior aide to Richard Nixon, and eventual founder of Prison Fellowship, began attending a Bible study that Hughes and a number of other Washington residents regularly held in the Capitol. Colson wrote in his book that he and Hughes were at odds at first, mainly because Colson was a Republican and involved in Watergate.

Eventually, however, Hughes became Colson's spiritual advisor and he was the first person Colson called after he decided to begin the Prison Fellowship.

Hughes teaches Prison Fellowship seminars in Washington, D. C. He lives on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, where he ministers to alcoholics.

But even in those days the battle for clean water had started.

Between 1955 and 1965, 75 plants were built on the Connecticut, most without federal aid. With the Clean Water Act of 1965, the federal government swung its power and money behind the movement.

Although no one is yet likely to confuse the Connecticut's water with Perrier, the northern two-thirds of the river is fit for swimming and fishing — exactly what Congress demanded.

"It's unlikely we'll have swimming and fishing in all our rivers by 1983, but there has been significant improvement," says Peter Acely of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Virtually all industrial polluters are covered by a permit system that controls what may be dumped and how much of it. The high cost of treatment is absorbed by the private sector, and thus passed along to the consumer, because, as Acely says, "Congress made it clear the polluter must pay."

The EPA says it has no comprehensive data to indicate how the war on dirty water is going. But there are some notable successes, such as the Cuyahoga River in Ohio, which established a notorious benchmark for pollution when its oil, grease and debris caught fire and burned for several days in 1969.

"It looked like hell," recalls Robert Wysenski, a state environmental scientist. The river still has a long way to go, but it now looks much better.

Clean water has not come as quickly as environmentalists would like, and some fault government enforcement. Acely admits that "for all the power we (EPA) supposedly have, we don't

Wreck Of Luxury Ship Found

HOUGHTON, Mich. (AP) — Divers aboard Jacques Cousteau's research ship Calypso have discovered and will film the 69-year-old wreck of a luxury ship "in perfect condition" at the bottom of Lake Superior, a crew member on the Calypso said Saturday. "The ship, the Gunilda, is in perfect condition," crewman Christian Goues said in a marine telephone interview. "There is gold paint on the bow and on the stern where the name is written.

"The masts are still up and the rigging is still in not perfect but good condition because of the cold water. If it's not the most beautiful ship we've seen under water, it is one of the most beautiful." The Gunilda, which went down in 1911, was found last week on the MacGarvey Shoal near Roscoff, Ontario. Goues said the luxury ship was "owned by a rich oil man" and sank in very clear water about 260 feet deep.

Chairman Of Independents For Anderson Is Named

Eugene D. "Rocky" Fallon of Greenville has recently been named chairman of Independents for Anderson in Pitt County.

State Coordinator for Independents for Anderson Party of North Carolina, Brenda Hayes, said that Fallon will coordinate efforts of Congressman Anderson in Greenville and Pitt County in the 1980 Presidential race.

According to Ms. Hayes, Fallon is acting as chairman on a request by Mitchell Rogovin, Mr. Anderson's attorney.

John B. Anderson, Republican congressman from Illinois is running as an independent against incumbent Democratic president, Jimmy Carter and former Republican governor of California, Ronald Reagan. Patrick Lucey, former governor of Wisconsin and former U.S. ambassador to Mexico, will vie for the vice presidency as Anderson's running mate.

After studying political science at East Carolina University, Fallon returned to his home, Washington, D.C., and worked for the law firm Arnold and Porter. He returned to Greenville in 1971 tions Council of which he has been an active member. He is also a member of the ECU Pirate Club.

Independents for Anderson may be contacted at their booth located in the old Student Union on the ECU campus; by phone at 758-7187; or by mail at P.O. Box 7361, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

N.C. Banks Raise Rates

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The prime interest rate was raised to 12½ percent Friday by four North Carolina banks Friday. The move came in the wake of rate hikes by large New York banks.

The North Carolina banks are First Union National Bank, North Carolina National Bank, Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. and First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. Citibank, Manufacturers Hanover and Chemical Bank raised their rates Friday and Chase Manhattan raised its rates Thursday to 12½ percent.

The prime rate is the interest rate a bank charges its most creditworthy customers.

"Interest rates in general are up as the economy is rising," said Bud Carrier, director of First Union's investment division. "Demands for credit are up and the last three months indicate a revival."

Jaycettes Hold 'Pageant'

The Greenville Jaycettes held Girls' Night Out recently.

A womanless beauty pageant was held and Miss Lemon Queen of 1981 was crowned. The beauties were Chips Smith, Jack Fley, Don Fleming, Doug Bonds, Gene Stack and Mike Joyner.

Guests were Jaycee wives who are not members. This yearly event offers Jaycee wives the opportunity to meet the Jaycettes and learn more about the organization.

Clay Kirkman
Belk Tyler Horticulturalist

Clay Kirkman Says . . .

The Helleri Holly, also known as Ilex crenata 'Helleri', is one of the most useful hollies for home landscaping. This holly is a dwarf shrub that rarely exceeds 3 feet in height with a 3 to 4-foot spread at maturity. It has a deep green foliage and a somewhat oval shape. The Helleri Holly, unlike most, does not have the spiny leaves or berries.

Because the Helleri Holly is small in size and has a bright green color it makes an excellent ground cover. It is good for areas where neither lawn or seasonal color is desired. The Helleri Holly makes a great foundation planting, especially for homes which are low to the ground, because its dwarf growing habit will prevent it from overgrowing the windows.

Helleri Holly is an easy shrub to grow. It prefers full sun, but will live in shade as well. It is not very drought resistant and will die back if it doesn't receive adequate moisture. Be sure to include plenty of organic matter such as peat moss in the planting bed. Always dig the planting hole wider and deeper than the container size and use a backfill of peat and top soil. Fertilize lightly in March, May and July with a complete fertilizer like 8-8-8. Water the plants thoroughly after fertilizing.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops now have a good selection of healthy Helleri Hollies and fall is the best planting time for all shrubs so come by soon. Don't forget to get your fall bulbs while there is a good selection.

GACOC Seeking New Members

Twenty-one business and professional persons will be seeking new members for the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce during the one day Fall Membership Blitz Campaign to be held Tuesday, September 23 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

According to Bubba Rawl, Chairman of the Membership Committee, the membership campaign is held to recruit new members to support the chamber's total community development program.

"The chamber is the only organization in Greenville which is devoted to working full time for the total community development of our area. The chamber cannot expand its program of action for area betterment unless more people invest more time and money. We must keep up with the needs and problems of our community," Rawl said. "Our goal is to recruit 200 new members before December," he added.

The 21 membership committee volunteers will visit potential members and accompany them to the Chamber of Commerce office where they can meet the staff, tour the facilities and be interviewed by WOOW reporters.

Bubba Rawl

representing a cross section of Greenville businesses, banks and agencies will be working during the campaign to seek new members.

News Briefs

Mary Pickford Mansion Sold

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Pickfair, the 22-room mansion of silent screen star Mary Pickford, has been sold to sports czar Jerry Buss, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers and Kings.

Buss's bid of $5,362,500 for the stately Beverly Hills mansion and its 2.7 acres of walled grounds was accepted Friday at a five-minute Superior Court hearing.

Buss, who also owns the Forum in Inglewood where his teams play, is putting $1,025,000 down on his new home and is taking out a 20-year, 9 3/4-percent loan for the remainder. His monthly mortgage payments work out to $37,261.77.

Under Miss Pickford's will, the proceeds of the sale go to charity through the Mary Pickford Foundation.

Youth Wins Canada's Highest Award

PORT COQUITLAM, British Columbia (AP) — Terry Fox, the one-legged cancer victim whose attempted cross-Canada run endeared him to Canadians, has won his country's highest civilian honor, becoming the youngest companion in the Order of Canada.

Governor-General Ed Schreyer on Friday presented a medal to the 22-year-old in the council chambers of this Vancouver suburb.

At the end of the short ceremony, Schreyer quoted a poem, comparing Fox to a brave soul who took a long, painful road to help create a dream that could not fail.

Mosquito Swarms Kill Cows

BRAZORIA, Texas (AP) — Thick swarms of mosquitoes attacked a herd of cattle on Stephen Perry's farm one steamy afternoon and sucked the life blood from his animals, "just like the Bible, you know, with the locusts and all."

"It's the worst thing that ever happened to this coastal country," Perry said Friday. "They came in about four o'clock one evening and the cattle were dead the next morning."

There are some disbelievers in this town of 1,800 about 45 miles south of Houston, but veterinarian L.G. Gayle at Texas A&M's Medical Diagnostic Laboratory says swarming mosquitoes capable of killing livestock is "a very strong probability."

ACTOR ACCUSED — Erik Estrada, star of NBC-TV's "Chips" series, is accused by his estranged wife of forcing her to take part in homosexual acts and illicit drug use. (AP Laserphoto)

Military Men Pose For Playgirl

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "A-ten-hut! Prepare for inspection," begins Playgirl's October feature on the "Men of the Military," an eight-page spread that uncovers two Navy men, two Coast Guard crewmen and one Marine sergeant who now finds himself facing discharge.

The Marine Corps has "taken action to discharge" Sgt. Robert Jordan for his appearance in and out of uniform in Playgirl. Similar beefcake poses got the two Navy men into hot water, but the Coast Guard apparently isn't so fussy.

When Marine Sgt. Bambi Lee Finney posed nude for Playboy in a counterpart article on women in uniform, she won national headlines, but the Marine Corps decided if she wanted to appear out of uniform, she should be out of uniform for good.

The Navy slapped a "non-judicial punishment" on Chief Petty Officer William Wellington in San Diego and Petty Officer 3rd Class Billy Jack Tibbett, stationed at Travis Air Force Base, for their shots in the buff. That was the same punishment accorded the Navy women who appeared in Playboy.

And a Coast Guard spokesman who asked not to be identified said: "The Coast Guard has taken no action because enlisted men are free to do whatever they want on their own time. If the photos do nothing to discredit the Coast Guard then they won't be reprimanded."

Two other men who appear in the military section of the issue are no longer in the service.

Regarding the action against Jordan, Lt. Col. C.A. Fleming of the 4th Marine Division in New Orleans said: "Our policy sets very high standards for Marines and when a Marine poses with his uniform on in a magazine like that then he has not met those high standards."

Protests Closure Of New York Hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Demonstrators who have been occupying a Harlem hospital for a week to keep the city from closing it clashed with police Saturday in a melee that resulted in 26 injuries and two arrests, authorities said.

Police spokesman Sgt. Leroy Barr said the incident occurred after police refused to remove barriers around Sydenham Hospital and were pelted with rocks and bottles thrown from the hospital roof.

Cenie Williams, president of the Association of Black Social Workers, and a member of a community committee which has occupied the facility since Monday, said the disturbance occurred when Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., arrived at the facility to address the demonstrators.

Williams said a police captain had authorized policemen to remove barriers from between the hospital building and a crowd gathered outside to hear Rangel. But police refused the order, pushing the barriers against the crowd and provoking the incident, Williams said.

Films showed persons dismantling the barriers and swinging them at police. Officers responded with nightsticks to subdue those who were disorderly.

A spokesman for the Emergency Medical Service said it treated 10 persons on the scene and transported 16 persons to Harlem Hospital, including a policeman. Most of the injuries involved cuts and bruises and none was believed to be serious.

Fire Burns Jewish Temple

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — A general alarm blaze, the second fire in two days, interrupted Yom Kippur services at a Jewish temple Saturday and forced the evacuation of at least four nearby buildings in the city's Highlands district, police said.

At least 200 people attending services at Temple Avahim Achim were on an intermission when the fire was discovered in a second floor storage room, according to fire officials at the scene.

No one was reported injured in the blaze, which began about 3:48 p.m., according to fire dispatcher Ernest Kalman.

On Friday, temple members discovered an American flag afire in another storage room, and some said gas jets were found on in the temple of the Orthodox Judaism congregation.

Fire officials said the Middlesex County Arson Task Force was investigating the blaze. It was declared under control about 5:30 p.m.

"I've got the whole department down there — about 50 or 60 men," said Kalman, adding the blaze immediately was declared a general alarm fire when officials arrived at the temple on Richmond Avenue.

The fire caused smoke damage to the four evacuated adjacent buildings, said police.

The incident also interrupted services at a nearby Conservative Judaism temple.

Services for Yom Kippur, the most solemn of the Jewish holy days, had been halted for a 30-minute break when the Saturday fire was discovered by several elderly women, police said.

The Friday night fire may have been started by a cigarette, said police Detective George Church. But congregation members said because they strictly observe Jewish law, no smoking is permitted inside the temple.

Bulge Grows On Mount St. Helens

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A small bulge has developed on Mount St. Helens, and the volcano is releasing less gas, but scientists say speculation about an impending eruption would be premature.

Don Peterson, chief volcano-watch scientist of the U.S. Geological Survey, said Friday he could not rule out the possibility of more outbursts from the mountain, but thinks another explosion as violent as the May 18 eruption is "extremely unlikely."

Instead, he said, future eruptions are more likely to be more like the ash spewings of May 25, June 12, July 22 and Aug. 7.

The last activity from the mountain was on Aug. 15, when there was a minor ash spurt and a harmonic tremor, indicating subterranean movement of magma, or molten rock. In recent days, scientists have reported little but occasional rockfalls inside the crater.

Marshall Reed, another USGS scientist, said magma had pushed out the north flank of the crater about 10 inches in the past two weeks. Currently, the bulge is growing at about half an inch a day, he said.

The May 18 eruption, which killed 31 people and left 32 others missing and presumed dead, followed a large avalanche from a bulge that had been growing by about five feet a day on the upper reaches of the north slope.

The explosive force of the magma comes largely from sulfur dioxide and other gases dissolved in the molten rock.

As the thick, viscous magma rises to the surface as lava and pressure is relieved, the gases are released, much the way beer foams when the cap is removed from the bottle.

"The gases seem to be decreasing over the long term, but we're not sure what this means," Reed said.

USGS scientists said they believe a lava dome in the inner crater has cooled and become more solid, acting as a cork and causing the underlying magma to push northward.

The deformation is measured with a laser device at Harry's Ridge, about five miles north of the peak, which receives signals from three reflectors, two inside the crater and one atop the north flank.

Settlement Hopeful In Teacher's Strike

By BRUCE OLSON

United Press International
Twenty-six hours of marathon talks aimed at ending the nation's largest teachers' strike failed to produce a settlement in Philadelphia Saturday, but negotiators emerged in a hopeful mood. The strike is one of a nationwide series of disputes that disrupted schools in nine states, affecting more than 400,000 students.

The Philadelphia strike was in its 20th day, stalled over issues of job security and wages. Teachers' union strike coordinator Mitch Rubin said, "There has been some progress, but there are three of four major areas to be resolved."

Thirteen other strikes also plagued Pennsylvania schools and the State Education Association said there were 73 districts with unsettled contracts.

Teachers' strikes also disrupted schools in Michigan, California, Washington, Ohio, New Jersey, Arizona, Rhode Island and Illinois.

Michigan had the second highest number of disputes, with 12 strikes involving 2,760 teachers and 56,800 students.

In the 2-week-old San Jose, Calif., strike, Brian McKenna, executive director of the San Jose Teachers' Association, said, "The mood of the association's bargaining team is somber. There is no cause for optimism."

The dispute affects 33,000 schoolchildren in San Jose. Non-union substitutes are teaching classes, but attendance has fallen sharply due to the strike.

A strike continued for about 18,500 students in Bellevue, Wash., a suburb of Seattle.

Black Leaders Are Meeting In Raleigh

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina black leaders gathered in Raleigh this weekend to discuss what one national civil rights leader told them was the tool needed to combat their problems — political clout.

"We can make a litany of where we're hurting because we're hurting all over," said Charles E. Cobb, executive director of the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice in New York.

"But we have failed to come up with ways to deal with our hurt," he told more than 100 participants Friday.

The two-day meeting was sponsored by the North Carolina Black Political Forum and the Commission for Racial Justice. It was designed to teach blacks how to use the state's political system in dealing with unemployment, poor housing, hunger and other problems.

Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Reginald Hawkins were scheduled to speak to the group Saturday night.

Cobb referred to recent articles in the national press and noted that many white religious leaders are getting involved in politics.

"Ninety-nine percent of everything we do in our daily lives is determined by some political decision that has been made somewhere," Cobb said.

"So there's no need for anyone to entertain the notion that the church need not be involved in politics. Those evangelical white folks are starting to understand that. And I don't need to tell you where most of those white evangelical folks are — they are right of right," he said.

Five Plays For The Playhouse Season

A quintet of plays, encompassing musical comedy, French farce and drama, have been announced for the 1980-81 season of the East Carolina Playhouse.

This year's presentation of the productions will be unusual in that with one exception, each production will be given in a different facility on the East Carolina University campus. Because of ongoing renovations in McGinnis Auditorium, the Playhouse is mounting its productions in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall in the Music Department and in Mendenhall Student Center. Hopefully, the Playhouse will move into the all-new McGinnis Auditorium for the 1981-82 season.

The 1980-81 bill of fare includes the 1930's musical, "Dames at Sea," Moliere's well known mad-cap French farce, "The Doctor in Spite of Himself," David Rabe's drama of Army paratroopers, "Streamers," another drama, one about a young woman's fight for life, "Getting Out," and one of Shakespeare's classic dramas on Roman intrigue, "Julius Caesar."

Dates and places of performance for the five plays are:

— October 9-15 — "Dames At Sea," A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall. Performances at 8:15 p.m. nightly. The musical deals with a nostalgic look back at the era of the Hollywood musical, when tap dancing, singing and laughter were primary ingredients in entertainment.

— October 30 - November 1 — "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" will be performed in Mendenhall Student Center. The familiar play centers on ways in which a shrewish wife tames her husband. This will be a full dinner theater performance beginning at 6:30 p.m. on the three nights it is billed.

— November 17-22 and 24-25 — "Streamers." Named for Army paratroopers who streak to their death trailing unopened parachutes, "Streamers" has an all-male cast. The Drama Department's Studio Theater will be the site for this drama which will play nightly at 8:15 p.m.

— February 18-21 and 23-28 — "Getting Out" probes into the past and present of a young woman fighting for her life against incredible odds. This play, a major off-Broadway success, is fast becoming a hit play all across the nation. At Mendenhall Student Center, nightly at 8:15 p.m.

— April 7-8 and 9-11 — "Julius Caesar." One of Shakespeare's most powerful plays, "Julius Caesar" takes on a new timeliness in light of today's widespread and often bloody political intrigues. It will be performed in Hendrix Theater in Mendenhall Student Union. Evening performances at 8:15 p.m. on April 7 and 9-11, and a matinee performance at 1 p.m. on April 8. Edgar Loessin, chairman of the East Carolina Drama Department, will direct two of the plays, "Dames at Sea" and "Julius Caesar." Travis Lockhart, a member of the directing faculty of the ECU Drama Department will direct "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" and the two contemporary dramas, "Streamers" and "Getting Out," will be directed by Cedric Winchell, also a member of the Drama Department's directing faculty.

Season tickets for four of the five productions (all except "The Doctor in Spite of Himself") are available for $10. These tickets can be purchased from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Playhouse Box Office or by calling 757-6390. Details on ticket prices for the dinner theater production of "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" will be announced at a later date.

Acting Classes Being Offered

ECU News Bureau
An evening class in acting will be offered by East Carolina University on Thursdays, beginning October 2 and ending October 30. Interested adults, including those with no acting experience as well as those with some background in amateur theater, are eligible to enroll.

Stephen Finnan, an actor and teacher, will direct the class.

Also being offered is a more advanced level course, "Acting II: Scene Study," on Tuesday evenings.

For full details about these classes, contact the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education — telephone 757-6143.

auspices of Pitt Community College and will continue in the next semester if sufficient interest is shown.

Classes scheduled to begin next week include three starting on Wednesday and one on Friday. They are:

Wednesday
— Handbuilt Ceramics, 3-4 p.m. — Students age six and older. Creating original works from raw clay.

— Drawing, 3:30-4:30 p.m. — Students age six and older. Introduction to techniques and subject matter.

— Painting, 4-5 p.m. — Students age eight to 15. Instruction in water and oil-based media.

Friday
— Puppetry, 3:30-4:30 p.m. — Students ages seven to 12. Instruction in creating hand puppets, writing a script, and producing a show.

Each of the above four classes are scheduled for eight consecutive sessions. The fee for each class is $10. In addition to the Sep-

Robersonville Day Set

ROBERSONVILLE — Activities for young and old have been scheduled for the observance of "Robersonville Day" on Saturday, October 4 in Martin County's second largest town.

"Robersonville Day" is sponsored by the Robersonville Chamber of Commerce. Events begin at nine in the morning and continue on until late afternoon.

The schedule of events is:
— 9 a.m. — Ping Pong Drop, with balls dropped from a plane. Some will be numbered for prizes.

— 9:45 a.m. — Official opening ceremony.
— 10 a.m. — An address by Sam Bundy of Farmville.
— 10:30 a.m. — The Sweetie Pie Pageant.
— 11:30 a.m. — The Parade downtown — with a military music band expected to be on hand.
— 12:00 noon — Bluegrass band and cloggers.
— 1 p.m. — Parachute jumping.
— 1:45 p.m. — Martin Community Band.
— 2:30 p.m. — The Ramblers, featuring Mike Kilpatrick.
— 3 p.m. — Service League

Auction (in the post office area).
— 3:30 p.m. — The Light Bearers Gospel Quartet.
— 4:15 p.m. — Johnnie C at the keyboard.
— 5 p.m. — The J. R. Robinson Singers.

In addition to these activities, a number of on-going events and displays will take place during the day.

These include a cooking contest sponsored by Carolina Peanuts and Central Soya, with entries to be submitted by noon at the Fire Station (winners to be announced at 2:30 p.m.); numerous displays and booths; displays of arts and crafts by local area craftsmen; a magic show; and recreational activities at two sites beginning at noon — at the Community Park and in the downtown area.

FILM TO BE SHOWN
"Sheffey," a feature-length film depicting the life of Robert Sayers Sheffey, a 19th-century circuit-riding preacher who ministered to the mountain folk of the Virginias, Carolina and parts of Tennessee and Kentucky, is scheduled to be shown at Grace F.W.B. Church on October 12 at 6 p.m.

The film was produced by Bob Jones University and was directed by Katherine Stenholm. The Rev. Randall Riggs invites the public to attend. For more information call 752-5031.

Annual Boat Show

BEAUFORT — The sixth annual Traditional Wooden Boat Show will be held on Beaufort's waterfront on two days, Saturday and Sunday, September 27 and 28.

The show, the southeast's largest gathering of traditional wood small craft, is sponsored by Hampton Mariners Museum of Beaufort.

Any wooden boat of either amateur or professional construction is eligible for entry in the show — and it may be powered by sailing, rowing, paddling or any other propulsion.

Boats entered will be on display on the Beaufort waterfront — both in the water and on the shore — on Saturday and Sunday. A regatta for wooden sailing craft, beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, will wind up the two day affair.

One area of display will be that of some of the boats constructed by students in the "Friends of the Museum" Boat Building Training Program conducted by Master Boat Builder Geoffrey Scofield.

Also, programs and speakers will provide entertainment and informative opportunities for show participants and interested viewers. Plans for this year's show include a "Bosun's Locker Hardware Swap" and a "Nautical Flea Market."

$30,000 Grant To N.C. Museum

BEAUFORT — The Hampton Mariners Museum in Beaufort has been awarded a $30,000 federal grant from the Institute of Museum Services, according to Curator Charles R. McNeill.

The Museum was one of 405 museums selected from more than 1,500 applicants submitting proposals to the Institute.

McNeill said the one-year grant will be used primarily to research small traditional wooden watercraft historically important to North Carolina.

Goldstein Recital Scheduled At Recital Hall Sept. 28

At 8:15 p.m. Sunday, September 28, pianist Louis Goldstein will perform in a recital in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus.

A faculty member of the School of Music, Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, Dr. Goldstein will play John Cage's "Sonatas and Interludes," composed during the years 1946-1948. This work is an attempt to express in music the "permanent emotions" of Indian tradition — the heroic, the erotic, the wondrous, the mirthful, and the sorrow, fear, anger and a common tendency toward tranquility.

A native of Kenosha, Wisconsin, Goldstein attended Oberlin College Conservatory of Music and the California Institute of the Arts. He earned the Performer's Certificate and the Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the Eastman School of Music.

From 1972 to 1976, Goldstein was co-founder and co-director of the California New Music Ensemble, a chamber group which gave numerous concerts and workshops on the West Coast. He has also been a member of the Los Angeles Group for Contemporary Music and of NEWBAND, a group in New York City specializing in contemporary music.

In solo recitals, he has performed in the Hollywood Bowl, the Orchestra Hall in Chicago, in Carnegie Recital Hall, New York, and also in Canada and Israel.

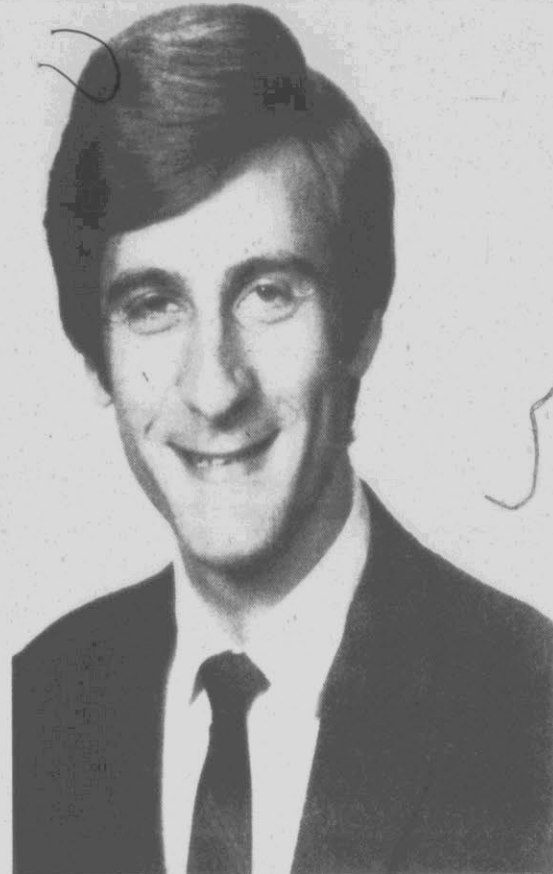

Brett Work In Design Book

"See Saw," a fiber work by Greenville artist George Brett is to be included in the "FIBERARTS Design Book," a study of contemporary fiber works being published by the editors of "FIBERARTS" magazine.

Judges for the 12,000 entries submitted for inclusion in the book included Rob Pulleyn, founder-publisher and Jane Luddecke, editor, both of "FIBERARTS" magazine, and three others prominent in the field of fiber art.

"See Saw" was exhibited in October 1979 at Old Dominion University, Virginia, in Brett's one-man show following his workshop there on fiber art and knitted sculpture.

Brett recently accepted the position of educational media coordinator with the Audio-Visual Services Center of the ECU School of Medicine.

LOUIS GOLDSTEIN... pianist and faculty member of the School of Music, Wake Forest University, will perform John Cage's "Sonatas and Interludes" in a recital to be given at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, September 28 in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the ECU campus. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Dr. Bath Recital Sept. 24

Dr. Charles Bath, pianist, will present a faculty recital at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Recital Hall of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center. There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

For his program, Dr. Bath has chosen Beethoven's "Andante in F," a single movement work; Cesar Franck's "Prelude," "Chorale" and "Fugue," and for the concluding work, he will play the "Sonata in minor" by Robert Schumann. The sonata is in four movements and is one of three such works composed by Schumann.

Dr. Bath has performed in numerous solo as well as chamber music recitals. He has frequently performed with his wife, violinist Joanne Bath. Dr. Bath is chairman of the keyboard faculty of the ECU School of Music.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — For this week's broadcast, Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" will be aired from 5 to 6 p.m. this afternoon instead of the regular noon to 1 p.m. Sunday hour.

"The Energy Game," focusing on how the public can understand and solve some of the problems of the energy crisis, features guest Diane Drehoff, an energy consultant from the Westinghouse Corporation, Philadelphia.

An historic house in eastern North Carolina, Somerset Plantation on Lake Phelps near Creswell, has guest Bill Edwards, site manager, talking about the house and grounds.

Music is a third topic on today's "Hospitality House," and the guest is Franklin DeGroot, visiting artist at Beaufort County Community College. DeGroot is a lutenist and classical guitarist.

Highlighting the forthcoming eighth annual Eastern North Carolina Ceramics Show to be held at the National Guard Armory in Morehead City September 27 and 28 is Mart Sheehy, president of the Eastern North Carolina Ceramics Association, Havelock. Sheehy discusses new techniques in ceramics.

Exhibit Of North Carolina Indian Art Opening Today At NCMA

RALEIGH — An exhibit of more than 30 artifacts from the 12th to the early 20th centuries, representing Indian cultures from the Appalachian, Piedmont and coastal regions of North Carolina is opening today at the North Carolina Museum of Art, 107 East Morgan Street, Raleigh.

The special exhibit, entitled "Selections of Traditional North Carolina Indian Crafts," is being held in conjunction with the designation of Indian Heritage Week by Governor James B. Hunt, Jr.

The Indian works being displayed illustrate technical skills in the use of a variety of raw materials and a highly developed interest in artistic embellishment of everyday items. An example is a clay burial urn decorated with the filot cross design, which the N. C. Art Society adopted and stylized for use as its logo.

Other functional items include pots with pointed bases to rest stably in coals, woven cane baskets and the earliest water bottle found in North Carolina. Decorated pipes and vases, shell jewelry and ceremonial masks and axes are also on display.

The pieces are on loan from Dr. and Mrs. George Waynick, Winston-Salem; the Wachovia Historical Society, Winston-Salem; and the Archaeological Research Laboratory of UNC-Chapel Hill.

The Indian exhibit will be on view through November 23 on the third floor of the Museum. Museum hours are 10-5 Tuesdays through Saturdays, 2-6 Sundays and closed Monday. Admission is free.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Willie Mae Gibbs

Several of the new books at the library address various aspects of parental concerns.

Ruth Formanek and Anita Gurian, both psychologists and specialists in the way children's minds develop, have written a book for parents called "Why? Children's Questions: What They Mean and How to Answer Them." Too often parents flood their children with information they don't want and can't absorb, or they protect them with fanciful answers, evading the primary parental responsibility of preparing children to face realities. Often parents do not understand the "hidden agenda" in a child's question, and therefore do not even know what the child is really asking. Frequently the questions children ask do not require a thoughtful answer, or even any answer at all. But they often ask tough questions that touch on a parent's deepest values, fears and loves. They ask questions about adoption, sex, God, death, divorce, morality, and money. Parents need help in dealing with these questions — the kind of help, both general and specific, that the authors provide in this book.

In "Helping Your Teen-Age Student," Dr. Marvin Cohn offers assurance to parents that there is something they can do to help the child who has reached his teens without being able to read or study properly. He begins by helping parents see the truth behind some all-too-familiar alibis used by students to justify or excuse poor academic performance. He then describes a variety of diagnostic tests parents can use to determine what the student's problems are. Corrective exercises are given to eliminate each problem identified. Throughout the book Dr. Cohn shows a keen awareness of the psychological stumbling blocks that may affect the parent's ability to help or the student's willingness to be helped. This book offers parents the tools they need to cope more successfully with the stiffening academic demands of today's junior and senior high schools.

Dr. Richard Bush, a child and family therapist, has provided another valuable resource for parents. His book, "A Parents' Guide to Child Therapy," tells exactly what one needs to know in order to determine if his child needs help and what kind of help is available. It discusses the various conditions that stem from mental, emotional, or physical factors, and tells how to determine when a child's behavior is a normal part of child development or signals a deeper problem that requires professional help. Recognizing the bewilderment parents face when they become aware that their child needs help, Dr. Bush offers a step-by-step guide to lead them through the process of finding the right help for their child's specific need. He tells what questions to ask, what will have to be invested in time and money, and finally how to evaluate the treatment that is chosen. Though addressed primarily to parents, this book will be of immense value to other professionals who advise parents.

Rowan Shows

SALISBURY — Two exhibitions are now on view at the Rowan Art Gallery. In Gallery I, a traveling exhibition, "Sewn in the South: Southern Quilts from Southern Collections," features a selection of ten 19th century quilts known to have been made in the South.

In Gallery II, two area artists are showing their work. Salisbury resident Mary Welch Austin, a designer of upholstery fabric, is showing paintings in the Impressionistic manner. Jo Ann B. Mercer of Gastonia is showing a selection of her pottery.

American Indians Workshop Slated

GASTONIA — Two American Indians, Red Dawn and his adopted son, Blue Eagle, will be featured at the six-day Native American Workshop, "Legend Into History," being held Tuesday, September 23 through Sunday, September 28 at the Schiele Museum of Natural History and Planetarium, 1500 E. Garrison Boulevard, Gastonia.

The workshop is being sponsored by the Museum and Gaston College Office of Adult and Continuing Education. Tuition is $5, and non-credit participants will pay $1 per session. All sessions will be conducted in the museum's auditorium.

Sessions Tuesday through Friday will be from 7 to 9 p.m., with the sessions on Saturday and Sunday to begin at 3:30 p.m.

Topics to be presented each of the six days are:

— September 23 — "Flying Feathers and Dancing Bells," with a dance demonstration by Blue Eagle, an Indian interpretive dance artist.

'Southeastern Contemporary Metalsmiths' Show Opening Today

SUN DIAL WATCH . . . by Don Foree of Chapel Hill, is made of sterling silver, 14k and 24k gold, carnelian and pearls. The instruments for the watch were made by Texas Instruments LED works. Foree is one of 26 metalsmith artists whose work was chosen for the "Southeastern Contemporary Metalsmiths" exhibition opening tonight at the Gray Gallery on the ECU campus. Reception hours are from 7 to 9 p.m.

The name of the exhibition going on view tonight at the Gray Gallery on the ECU campus — "Southeastern Contemporary Metalsmiths" — might possibly belie the fact that this is foremost a show of small works of art executed primarily in precious metals, with jewelry constituting many of the pieces being shown.

A reception to open the show is being held from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight, with the public invited to attend. The exhibition will remain on view through October 19.

Organized by Charlotte's Mint Museum and circulated by the Southern Arts Federation headquartered in Atlanta, the exhibition features the work of 26 metal artists from eight Southeastern states — including one local artist, John Satterfield of the ECU School of Art faculty.

Larry Shreve and Laura Jackson have provided a handsome setting for these works, vertical showcases inset into dove gray walls — a real bonus in viewing over the traditional look-down-into type of showcases often used for small pieces. (The two give credit for assistance in arranging the show to Jane Kessler, an ECU art graduate now at the Mint Museum and Bill Shinsky of the Southern Arts Federation, Atlanta.)

Decorative and utilitarian objects are both part of this collection. There's rings, bracelets, necklaces, pins, goblets, small boxes, candlesticks, perfume bottles, a coffee service set — and also a funeral urn and one large piece, Jim Wallace's four foot long racing sled.

The inherent beauty expected in objects made of precious metals is evident in every item being exhibited, whatever the stylistic approach to design. Some pieces are executed with reference to traditional classic designs, others owe a nod of inspiration to Art Nouveau, and some have the simplicity associated with contemporary design.

What is truly astonishing is the superb craftsmanship manifest in these works. It is obvious the artists have a thorough knowledge of a variety of skills and techniques — and it's evident that many hours of dedicated labor have gone into the execution of these pieces.

Gold, silver, bronze, steel, copper — as well as lapis, cloisonne enamel and gemstones are some of the basic materials used by the metalsmiths. In some instances, several of these materials are used in creating a single work.

"Southeastern Contemporary Metalsmiths" is a rare opportunity to see at one time a broad representation of the art that men and women today are creating in metal. What they are achieving is a tribute to them as artists and as skilled technicians whose work can compare favorably on many levels with the finest work in this field in times past.

Viewing hours at the Gray

Gallery are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1-4 p.m. on Sunday (except today because of the evening reception hours). Due to the hospitalization of the gallery's director, however, visitors to the gallery might find it locked during these hours. In that event, check with the administration of the gallery to have someone unlock the gallery.

Oregon Inlet Plan Will Require An Act By Congress

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Interior Department says it will need an act of Congress before it gives the Army Corps of Engineers permission to build stabilizing jetties at North Carolina's Oregon Inlet.

Assistant Interior Secretary Robert Herbst said neither the National Parks Service nor the Fish and Wildlife Service has authority under the 1937 act creating the Cape Hatteras National Seashore to issue the necessary permits to work on interior land bordering the inlet.

The project will cost about $79.1 million.

Herbst sent the letter to Assistant Secretary of the Army Michael Blumenfeld last week. The Army and the Corps have not had a chance to respond.

"This is disturbing to have all this flak fly up," said Don Dillon, Blumenfeld's deputy for policy, planning and legislative affairs.

The letter adds a new dimension in the feud between the Army and Interior over construction of the jetty system. Previously, Interior objected to the project strictly on environmental grounds, saying the 21,500 feet of jetties would cause erosion and damage wildlife.

By introducing legal questions, Interior could prompt a lengthy court fight or force the Army to seek special legislation.

The Corps needs temporary access to 167 acres of Park Service and Fish and Wildlife Service land bordering on the inlet during the three-year construction period.

More than 23 acres of Park Service land would be needed permanently to anchor the jetties to shore. The Corps would need permits from both agencies.

The jetties are designed to keep the southward drifting inlet in place and provide a safe channel for boats.

"Under the law, the land cannot be used for the Corps' purpose," said Ron Way, a special assistant to Herbst.

"Legally we cannot offer the permit for the project."

Herbst said the act authorizing the national seashore conflicts with the 1970 act authorizing the jetties.

The project authorization does not include language specifically repealing Interior's right to manage the land under its 1937 mandate and subsequent acts of Congress reaffirming the department's role, he said.

Although Herbst recommended the Corps seek reauthorization of the project to include repeal of Interior's authority, he said the department probably would oppose the project.

Herbst said he agrees the inlet should be kept open to navigation and that the department could support dredging that did not interfere with the north-south movement of sand along the Outer Banks.

The Corps had planned to award the first contracts on the jetty construction in January.

"I am sure that the projected schedule of the project will not be followed," said Ed Welch, an aide to Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., who has led the fight for the project in Congress. "They've sort of been telegraphing hints that this is going to be their position."

Special use permits are not unusual in the Cape Hatteras National Park Seashore.

The Park Service has issued nearly 60 permits to other government agencies, utilities and individuals for periods of up to 20 years.

DOUGLAS IS MALE LEAD RALEIGH — Mark Douglas, son of W. Gordon Douglas of Greenville, has been cast in the leading male role in "Pajama Tops," being produced at Thompson Theater, N. C. State University. Douglas is a senior in Accounting and Business Management.

The play will be presented September 26-27, and September 29 through October 4.

Norfolk Considering A Cousteau Center

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A consultant's study says a Jacques Cousteau marine science center here would be a money-maker. Where to get the money to build it is still in the uncharted depths.

"When we know we have the operating revenues to service the debt, the question is where to get the debt," said Doyle Hull, president of the Greater Norfolk Corp., a private business group instrumental in attracting the Cousteau Society here.

The $118,000 study paid for by the Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority, released Friday, puts construction costs at $9.6 million for the first phase, rising to $17.4 million by the end of the second.

Federal grants and corporate contributions would probably have to be behind a good part of that money, based on a construction start in 1982.

Whether Norfolk should decide to include the center in its financial plans for waterfront development will be one of the questions before an advisory committee to be formed from public and private sectors.

A two-year, $125,000 appropriation from the Virginia General Assembly will help fund the committee's activities.

Norfolk has spent public monies before on downtown renewal programs, and the center is seen as a prime part of the city's waterfront projects.

The study, done by an Annapolis, Md., firm, recommends placing the center on a city-owned pier smack in the middle of that riverfront property.

According to the study, what the city would have is a facility costing $1.9 million to run and earning $3.9 million in its first year, attracting 400,000 to 800,000 people and generating tax and visitor revenues of some $554,000.

And, of course, it would have the image of housing a society connected with the well-known name of Jacques

Cousteau and the leverage that would give the city in attracting other developers.

Norfolk Mayor Vincent Thomas said the center would help Norfolk's visibility by making it "a center of ocean-related research and development."

The study suggests building the center in phases — 50,000 square feet in the first stage, broken down into 30,000 square feet and 20,000 square feet depending on funding, and doubling that to 100,000 square feet in the second stage.

Jean-Michel Cousteau, son of the famed underwater explorer, repeated Friday the society will not ask its members to pay directly for the center, although he noted its contributions would be in the form of exhibits materials.

The study said populating the center with exhibits would cost $7.5 million to $25 million, depending on size and development.

They would include displays on ocean environment and life, sea agriculture and underwater exploration and equipment. Cousteau's research ship Calypso would dock at the center when it was in port.

Down From Mountain

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Back trouble has forced sculptor Korczak Ziolkowski to come down from the South Dakota mountain where he's worked more than 30 years on a statue of the famed Indian Chief Crazy Horse.

The bearded Ziolkowski, 72, was scheduled to undergo surgery for a slipped disk today at Hartford Hospital, having traveled 2,000 miles from his home at the foot of 6,000-foot Crazy Horse Mountain.

A hospital spokesman said Ziolkowski has had five previous back operations in Hartford.

The hospital spokesman said Ziolkowski has been in pain since he was injured when a 300-pound cable snapped while he was lugging equipment up the side of the mountain. He was driven to Hartford from his 61-room mansion at the base of the mountain in Crazy Horse, S.D.

He began the figure of Crazy Horse sitting atop a horse as a memorial to an Indian friend. The statue measures 563 feet high with the horse's head alone 26 stories tall.

Two Classes Being Offered

Pitt Community College, Pitt Community Schools, and North Pitt High School will co-sponsor an after-school macrame class at North Pitt.

Class is open to any high school student 16 years or older and who has permission from the appropriate school official. Adults from the community are also welcome.

Class will be held on Mondays and Thursdays from 3:30-6 p.m. for six weeks in room 42.

PCC will also offer an oil painting class beginning Wednesday, Sept. 24. Class will be held at the Greenville Square Mall, and will be taught by Dan Morgan. He is a well-known professional artist in the Greenville area. Class will last for 12 weeks and will meet from 10-1.

For further information concerning these classes, contact the Continuing Education Division at Pitt Community College at 756-3130, Ext. 238 or 266. The registration fees are $5 and are free to senior citizens 64 or older. Students are responsible for their own supplies.

Pamlico Auditions Scheduled

WASHINGTON — The Pamlico Players of Washington have announced the scheduled of auditions for its forthcoming production, "You Can't Take It With You."

Auditions will be held at 7 p.m. on three dates — Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 22, 23 and 24. These will be at the Beaufort County Arts Council, the old depot building, corner of Gladden and Main Streets.

There are about 15 roles open, ones for both men and women.

Art Lectures

RALEIGH — Two lectures, both free and open to the public, will be given under the auspices of the N. C. Museum of Art, 107 E. Morgan Street, this week.

At 2:15 p.m. today, Dida Turner will present a gallery talk at the museum entitled "Only the Shadow Knows: Effects of Light in Painting," using paintings in the museum to highlight the lecture.

At 8 p.m. Thursday, September 25, Thomas Armstrong III, director of the Whitney Museum of American Art, will speak on the topic "20th Century American Art: Reflections and Projections." His talk will be given in the old House Chamber of the Capitol Building with a reception to follow. Armstrong's lecture is sponsored by the museum with assistance from Burroughs Wellcome Company.

Show At EEii's Opening Today

BELHAVEN — New Bern artist Marian Louise Brazee is having an exhibition of acrylic paintings encompassing seascapes, landscapes and still lifes opening today at EEii's little KORNERS of the world, with a reception for the artist from one to five this afternoon. The public is invited to attend.

A native of Barre, Vermont, Mrs. Brazee and her husband have lived in New Bern for several years. She has exhibited in many North Carolina shows, most recently in Kinston.

Her paintings depict the marshy shores, oceans and beaches, fishing villages and boats of eastern North Carolina, as well as of her native New England.

Ninth-Ranked Florida State Smothers East Carolina, 63-7

Airborne Seminole

Florida State's running back Mike Whiting (27) is caught in the air by East Carolina's Marvin Elliot as he digs for first down yardage. The action came during the early action in the Saturday night encounter between the two Southern independents. (AP Laserphoto)

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
TALAHASSEE — All week long, East Carolina University Coach Ed Emory spoke of the "great opportunity and challenge" presented by Florida State.

Saturday night, the Seminoles, ranked ninth in the nation by AP, squashed any and all East Carolina opportunities, as FSU demolished the Pirates, 63-7, before 50,547, the second largest crowd ever at Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

The Seminoles, despite playing without All-America noseguard Ron Simmons, completely controlled the ECU wishbone, limiting the Pirates to 91 yards rushing and only 98 yards total offense.

ECU's only score — the first against FSU this season — came early in the second period when Anthony Collins returned a kickoff 100 yards to make the score 14-7 at the time.

The Pirates could get no closer as the Seminole offense took charge, despite 26 tackles by senior linebacker Jeffrey Warren. FSU ground out 36 first downs en route to 560 yards total offense — 336 yards rushing and 224 passing to up its record to 3-0. ECU is 1-2.

"There were just too many things going for us tonight — the heat, the troops," FSU coach Bobby Bowden said. "I woulda hated to play ECU up there. It would have been a different ball game."

"We tried to play a lot of people and run, run, run." Emory was duly impressed.

"They are ranked with justification. The score does not indicate the type of program we have at East Carolina," Emory said. "I promise you on damn thing, we have just begun to fight."

"I hope he (Bowden) will have compassion and line up and play us again sometime in the future. I'd line up and play them again next week if they wanted to."

"I've been here when (football) wasn't so important to them," he said. "I didn't think they could run the sweep like they did."

The Pirates started out as if they were playing anybody but the ninth-ranked team in the nation.

On the second play from scrimmage Anthony Collins bolted ahead for 15 yards to the ECU 36. The Pirates managed to drive to the FSU 42 before being forced to punt.

ECU did little else the rest of the half. Of the Pirates' 50 yards total offense in the first half, 38 came in their opening drive.

FSU, meanwhile, ran left, ran right and ran up the middle on the Pirates. FSU scored on four of their five possessions in the first half, rushing for 243 yards and 19 first downs in the first half as the Seminoles completely dominated the smaller Pirates.

Taking the ball at their 13 on their initial series, the Seminoles held the ball for nearly seven minutes before Sam Platt scored from nine yards out on the 16th play of the drive. Platt spearheaded the march, gaining 57 of his 92 first-half yards on the drive.

The Seminoles, after forcing ECU to punt, scored again. This time FSU put together an 11-play drive that was capped by Mike Whiting's one-yard plunge to give FSU a 14-0 lead with only three seconds gone in the second quarter.

Sixteen seconds later, the Pirates had narrowed the gap to 14-7. That's how long it took Collins to return the ensuing kickoff 100 yards, breaking the old ECU mark of 96 yards set in 1962.

Taking the ball on the goaline, Collins cut left, raced up the sideline and then cut diagonally to the right at the 30 to race untouched into the end zone.

The score, the first of the season against the Seminoles, seemed barely to bother them as they came back to score their next two possessions.

FSU took the ball at the 21 and moved methodically down field to the 10 before a holding penalty set them back to the 25.

Two plays later, ECU defensive back Smokey Norris, playing for the injured Freddie Jones, was called for pass interference, giving the Seminoles the ball on the one. Whiting scored on the next play to give FSU a 21-7 lead with 7:55 left in the half.

Five minutes later, the Seminoles increased their lead to 28-7. From the 30, FSU, sparked by a 27-yard run by Whiting, marched in for its fourth TD of the half, this time on a two-yard burst by Ken Burnett.

After being stopped on their first possession of the second half, the Seminoles drove 60 yards in eight plays for their fifth TD of the game, a four yard run by Whiting. The big play of the drive was Stockstill's 46-yard pass to Whiting.

The Seminoles poured it on in the final period, scoring four times.

Larry Harris capped a 12-yard drive with a one-yard dive at the 11:26 mark to give FSU a 42-7 advantage.

The Seminoles second score came following a punt return and 15-yard penalty that gave FSU the ball on the ECU 34. Seven plays later, reserve quarterback Blair Williams hit Phil Williams from 10-yards out for the TD, putting the Seminoles up, 49-7.

FSU had its third score of the quarter less than three minutes later when Williams hit Dennis McKinnon with a 10-yard scoring pass.

The Seminoles final TD came with just 34 seconds remaining when Harris ran it in from seven yards out. The score was set up when Greg Stewart fumbled the ball at the ECU 23 and FSU's James Gilbert recovered.

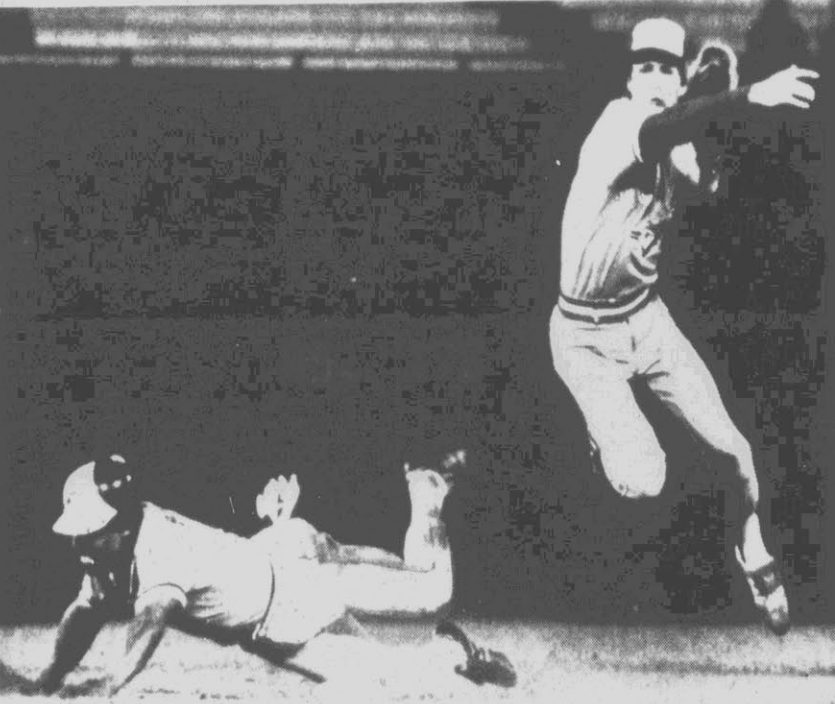

"Our plan was to wear them down," Bowden said. "On that last drive you could tell they couldn't even stand up."

FSU's plan worked — to ECU's chagrine.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Tol Avery passed and ran North Carolina State's Wolfpack to a 27-13 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over the Virginia Cavaliers Saturday.

Avery threw 29 yards for one touchdown, scored on a 23-yard sprint and set up a third touchdown with his pinpoint passes as he directed scoring drives of 74, 80 and 69 yards.

The Wolfpack also got a pair of field goals from Nathan Ritter.

N.C. State boosted its record to 2-0, and Virginia fell to 1-1.

Avery hit on 12 of 20 passes for 120 yards and carried 12 times for 88 yards.

N.C. State spotted Virginia an early 7-0 lead, but the took control, building a 27-7 advantage midway the final period.

Tom Vigorito accounted for both Virginia touchdowns, scoring on a 7-yard run and on a 36-yard pass from Todd Kirtley with 5:52 remaining in the game.

Virginia scored first, going 25 yards after Todd Austin dropped the snap on a fourth down punt attempt and the Cavaliers recovered. The score came with 4:59 left in the first period.

But less than four minutes later Avery passed 29 yards to wide receiver Mike Quick to even the score.

Ritter followed that with a 33-yard field goal set up by Terry Williams' pass interception and 45-yard return to the Cavalier 20 early in the second quarter.

Dwight Sullivan scored from the 1 after Avery completed successive passes of 15 and 18 yards to Quick.

The third period was scoreless but Avery picked up the tempo in the fourth, capping a 69-yard drive with his 23-yard sprint. Ritter kicked a 32-yard field goal to wrao up the

Auburn Stalls Duke's Rally, Wins 35-28

By KENDAL WEAVER
Associated Press Writer
AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Senior speedster James Brooks ran for two touchdowns, one on a 94-yard kickoff return, as No. 19 Auburn held off a furious final-quarter Duke rally Saturday to defeat the Blue Devils 35-28.

Auburn, now 2-0, jumped to a 21-0 halftime lead and, guided by the quarterbacking tandem of Charlie Thomas and Joe Sullivan, piled up a 35-7 margin early in the fourth quarter.

It was just enough to hold off Duke, now 0-2.

The Blue Devils' hectic 21-point fourth quarter comeback bid was led by the passing of Brent Clinkscale and the receiving of Sedrick Jones, who had three touchdowns on the day.

Duke tried an onside with the score 35-28 but, in the pileup, failed to come up with the ball and Auburn ran out the clock.

Auburn, scoring on three straight possessions midway in the first half, seemed on the verge of a rout against the Atlantic Coast Conference Blue Devils on a hot, muggy afternoon.

Duke made it across midfield only four days all day—but it got touchdowns each time.

Auburn saw its victory margin drop dramatically in the final quarter, on a 54-yard scoring pass from Clinkscale to Jones that made it 35-21 and another 15-yard scoring pass to Clinkscale to Jones following Dennis Tabron's 65-yard punt return.

But Auburn capitalized on early Duke mistakes—including a key interception by the Tigers' Clifford Poney, who had two for the day—and it had the manpower to hold on for the victory.

Poney's first steal came near the end of a scoreless see-saw first period. But it quickly ignited Auburn to three scores on three possessions, with Sullivan throwing 23 yards to Byron Franklin for the first score.

A fumble recovery put Auburn in business at the Duke 21 moments later, and Thomas, Auburn's somewhat ailing first-string quarterback, led the short drive and got the points himself on a six yard keeper.

Brooks, who was used sparingly most of the day, claimed Auburn's third touchdown on a four-yard run that capped a 73-yard drive. Al Del Greco made good on all his extra points attempts as did Duke's Scott McKinney.

Duke posted its first score on a halfback pass from Ron Frederick to Jones, making it 21-7. But Brooks immediately burned the Blue Devils with a 94-yard sprint up the right side of the field with the ensuing kickoff.

Later Thomas Coffee got Auburn's final score on a one-yard plunge that ended a 63-yard Sullivan-led drive. With Duke's final dramatics, that turned into the key Auburn score.

Young, Hamlin Tie For First

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — Veteran Donna Caponi Young battled treacherous winds to fire a 2-under-par 71 Saturday and move into a third round tie with Shelley Hamlin for the lead in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Young began the day 4 strokes behind Hamlin and Barbara Moxness, but overcame three-putt bogies on two of the first four holes by dropping birdies on the fifth, sixth, ninth and 14th holes.

That sent Young into Sunday's final round with a three-day total of 214, 5-under-par and good enough to match Hamlin, who struggled through another round of erratic putting to post a 75.

Moxness, plagued by a double bogey on No. 8 and four bogies, faltered to a 78 and finished the round three strokes off the pace at 217.

Young, the second-leading money winner on the 1980 LPGA tour, was one of just six players under par Saturday as wind gusts to 35 miles per hour on the par-73, 6,273-yard Brookridge Golf and Country Club Course.

"I would have been glad when we teed off just to have par," said Young, who has won four tournaments this season. "The way the wind was blowing, if I could have dialed in a score before we began ... I would have dialed in par."

Hamlin had a double bogey on the first hole and two bogies on the back nine before rallying for the second straight day with a birdie on the 18th hole to grab a share of the lead.

"I'd say the wind was affecting the putting, especially if you were putting downwind. It was tough," said Hamlin, who finished with three birdies but lost several others with bad putts.

The worst round of the three belonged to Moxness, whose only birdie came on No. 5 and who needed a strong chip shot for double bogies on No. 8 after hitting a three.

"I really didn't feel I played that badly," she said. "I hit a couple of bad shots and got a couple of bad breaks but with the wind, it wasn't that bad."

Trailing the top three but still within striking distance were Dot Germain, Pat Bradley and Amelia Rorer at even par 219, followed by four other players at 220.

"It's still anybody's game," Young said. "If the wind keeps up tomorrow (Sunday), it could be a four-five person game."

The tournament, which has a $15,000 first prize, is sponsored by ERA Real Estate.

Zoeller Emerges From Pack With Stroke Lead

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer
SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller broke out of the pack with a 20-foot birdie on the last hole of play and took a 1-stroke lead over Terry Diehl after the third round of the $250,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament Saturday.

Zoeller shot a 66 Saturday to lead at 12-under-par 198 entering Sunday's fourth and deciding round, while Bill Rogers, who led most of the day, posted a double bogey on the 18th green and fell four strokes behind the leader at 202.

Bob Murphy, Lee Trevino and Mark McCumber hovered in a tie for third place at 10-under-par 200. Dave Edwards stood at 201. Also poised at 202 with Rogers were Curtis Strange, Lon Hinkle, George Burns and Ed Snead.

Burns, who barely made the cut at even par on Friday, trimmed all eight of his strokes off par Saturday, firing a course record-tying 62 and moving into contention.

Zoeller put together rounds of 64-68-66 and predicted a tough battle Sunday for the $45,000 first prize.

"Ten to 20 names are in there. Anything can happen," the smiling leader said. "It's good for your back (to lead). It's fun. I enjoy it."

Zoeller, whose play has been hampered this season by back problems, said he intended to play aggressively in the final round, rather than try to protect his narrow lead.

"I let it out all time," said the 1979 Masters winner. "I go full bore. I'm not a lay-back player. I'm an aggressive player."

Diehl, the 1974 Texas Open champion, had been at 12-under midway through Saturday's play, along with Rogers, but said he still was satisfied with his position going into the final round.

"I'd like to get things rolling tomorrow, get a little bit of luck and see what happens," he said.

"You've got a dog fight," added Burns. "I'd look for a good tournament tomorrow."

Florida Buries Georgia Tech

Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Hewko accounted for three touchdowns. Ivory Curry returned a punt 71 yards for another, and Tim Golden scored on a 10-yard interception return as the Florida Gators buried Georgia Tech 45-12 in college football Saturday.

The Gators, equalling in two games their production of 11 touchdowns in the entire 1979 season, struck for all their points following a 22-minute delay during a severe thunderstorm in the second quarter.

The Gators, 2-0, had another touchdown set up on a Tim Groves pass interception, and the recovery by Lawrence Patrick of a fumbled punt set up a field goal.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia's defensive back Scott Woerner returned a punt 67 yards for a touchdown and made a leaping end zone interception and raced 98 yards to set up another score to lead the punchless 10th-ranked Georgia Bulldogs to a 20-16 college football victory over the Clemson Tigers Saturday.

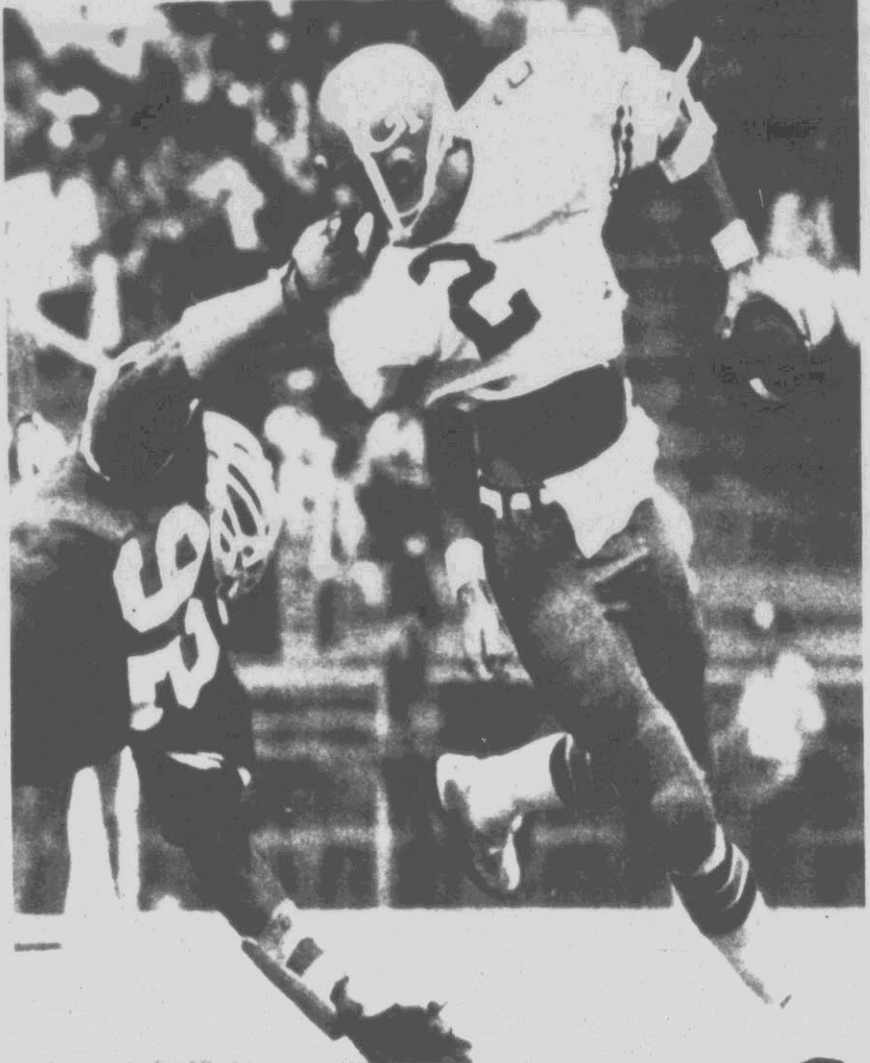

Georgia, 3-0, failed to pick up a first down in the opening half as Clemson, 1-1, dominated the opening 30 minutes by out-gaining the Bulldogs 239 yards to 33 and picking up 16 first downs. The Bulldogs only had the ball for 4:50 seconds in that span.

Clemson, trailing 14-0 after the contest in the closing minutes when Woerner almost turned into the goal by picking up a pass interference penalty on the Bulldogs' 10 with only 2:42 remaining. But 42 seconds later a batted pass by Clemson quarterback Mike Gasque was intercepted at the 1-yard line by Jeff Hipp to seal the victory.

Clemson, trailing 14-0 after two passes remaining on a 1-yard pass from Mountaineer quarterback Oliver Luck to reserve wide receiver Billy Evans. Luck then threw to tight end Dave Johnson for the two-point conversion that trimmed the Terps' victory margin to three points.

The touchdown was the first scored against the Maryland defense this season. The Terps, 3-0, had previously limited Villanova (7-3) and Vanderbilt (31-6) to only three fields goals between them.

Maryland has limited its last nine opponents to one touchdown or less, dating back to last season.

Buckeyes Roll Past Minnesota

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Vlade Janakievski tied a school record with four field goals and second-ranked Ohio State forced Minnesota into six first-half errors, crushing the Gophers 47-0 in a Big Ten Conference football opener.

The Buckeyes' 72nd consecutive sellout crowd of more than 87,000 fans and millions more on national television watched Ohio State turn the six Gopher errors into 23 points. The Buckeyes were ahead 33-0 at halftime.

Janakievski, the nation's leading percentage field goal kicker last season, has hit all seven of his attempts in the Buckeyes' two victories this fall.

The little senior connected from 22 yards and three times from 27 yards to tie the school record set by Tom Klaban against Michigan in 1974.

Minnesota, 1-1, turned the football over the first five times it had possession. The Gophers lost three of five fumbles and pitched three interceptions in the first 30 minutes.

Quarterback Art Schlichter, playing less than three quarters, ran 1 and 15 yards for Ohio State touchdowns.

His replacement, Bob Atha, also scored from 14 yards. Fullback Tim Spencer darted 28 yards and No. 3 tailback Jimmy Gayle ran 1 yard for the other touchdowns for the Buckeyes, who were 24-point favorites.

The veteran Ohio State defense gave Minnesota freshman quarterback Tim Spencer a rude introduction to Big Ten football. After the son of Minnesota Coach Joe Salem completed nine passes to start the game, the Buckeyes picked off two of his throws, helping set up two of Janakievski's field goals. Tailback Marion Barber threw one of the interceptions.

Wyoming 35, Richmond 14

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Wyoming quarterback Phil Davis and a herd of Cowboy running backs galloped through the Richmond Spiders at will Saturday as Wyoming won a non-conference college football game 35-14.

Davis scored on a 38-yard scramble and a 16-yard sprint and engineered three other touchdowns with the Cowboys' new wishbone offense.

But a tenacious Cowboy defense had to stand off the passing of Spider quarterback Steve Krainock to keep Richmond' offense from getting into the end zone in the second half.

The game was tied 14-14 at halftime, but Wyoming rushed for two touchdowns in the third quarter and added an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter, while Cowboy defend-

Goldsboro Tops GCA

GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro Christian Academy edged past Greenville Christian Academy, 4-3, in a soccer match Friday.

At the half, Goldsboro held a 1-0 lead as Frank Martin scored an unassisted goal. In the second half, Martin picked up a goal on a penalty kick to up it to 2-0. Then, Phil Bird scored the first goal for the Knights, followed by a Chris Harris goal about 30 seconds later, tying the score at 2-2.

Kevin Ruhman put Goldsboro back into the lead, but Byrd tied it again for the Knights. Finally, however, Martin got the deciding goal to give Goldsboro the win.

Goldsboro is now 2-0. Assists were handed out to Ken Bean of Goldsboro on Ruhman's goal, while GCA listed assists to Troy Stox and Jim Laney.

The Knights return to action on Saturday, October 4, at Bethel Christian.

ers intercepted two passes and forced a Spider fumble on the Cowboy one yard line.

N.C. Central 42, W-S State 21

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Fullback Roscoe Burnette rushed for a career-high 156 yards and scored two touchdowns Saturday as North Carolina Central whipped Winston-Salem State, 42-21, in a CIAA football game.

Burnette scored a game-tying touchdown at 12:06 in the third quarter on a 3-yard run, knotting the game at 21-21.

Senior quarterback Charles Yuille, who completed just 7 of 19 passes for 162 yards, broke the tie when he tossed a 3-yard strike to Victor Hunter late in the quarter to give the Eagles, 3-0, a 28-21 lead.

Hunter caught four passes for 108 yards and scored the game's first touchdown on a 51-yard pass from Yuille. Yuille also sneaked over from the one in the second quarter to tie the game at 14.

Rams' fullback Keith Ferguson scored Winston-Salem's first two touchdowns and rushed for 109 yards on 16 carries. Carlton Watson scored the other touchdown on a 3-yard run with 1:56 left before halftime, giving the Rams a 21-14 lead.

Tennessee 35, Wash. State 23

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tailback James Berry scored two touchdowns before leaving the game with a foot injury at the half to lead Tennessee to a 35-23 non-conference college football victory Saturday over Washington State.

The visiting Cougars rallied with 20 points in the second half on a pair of touchdowns by fullback Tom Ramberg and a third by Robert Williams but could not catch the previously winless Vols.

Tennessee tailback Glenn Ford put the game out of reach with 24 seconds remaining with a 4-yard touchdown run over the right side, climaxing a 90-yard drive.

After giving up crucial fumbles in losses to Georgia and Southern California the past two weeks, Ford also scored a 1-yard touchdown to send Tennessee to the dressing room at the half with a 28-3 lead.

Berry opened the game's scoring with a 1-yard touchdown in the first quarter and followed in the second period with a 9-yard touchdown on a pass by backup Vol quarterback Jeff Olszewski. Steve Alatorre, in his first start as Tennessee's signal-caller, also scored a 1-yard touchdown.

Washington State's only score in the first half was a 30-yard field goal by Mike DeSanto. But the Cougars, now 0-2, pulled to within five at 28-23 on touchdown runs of 2 and 9 yards by Ramberg, sandwiched around Williams' 18-yard scoring run.

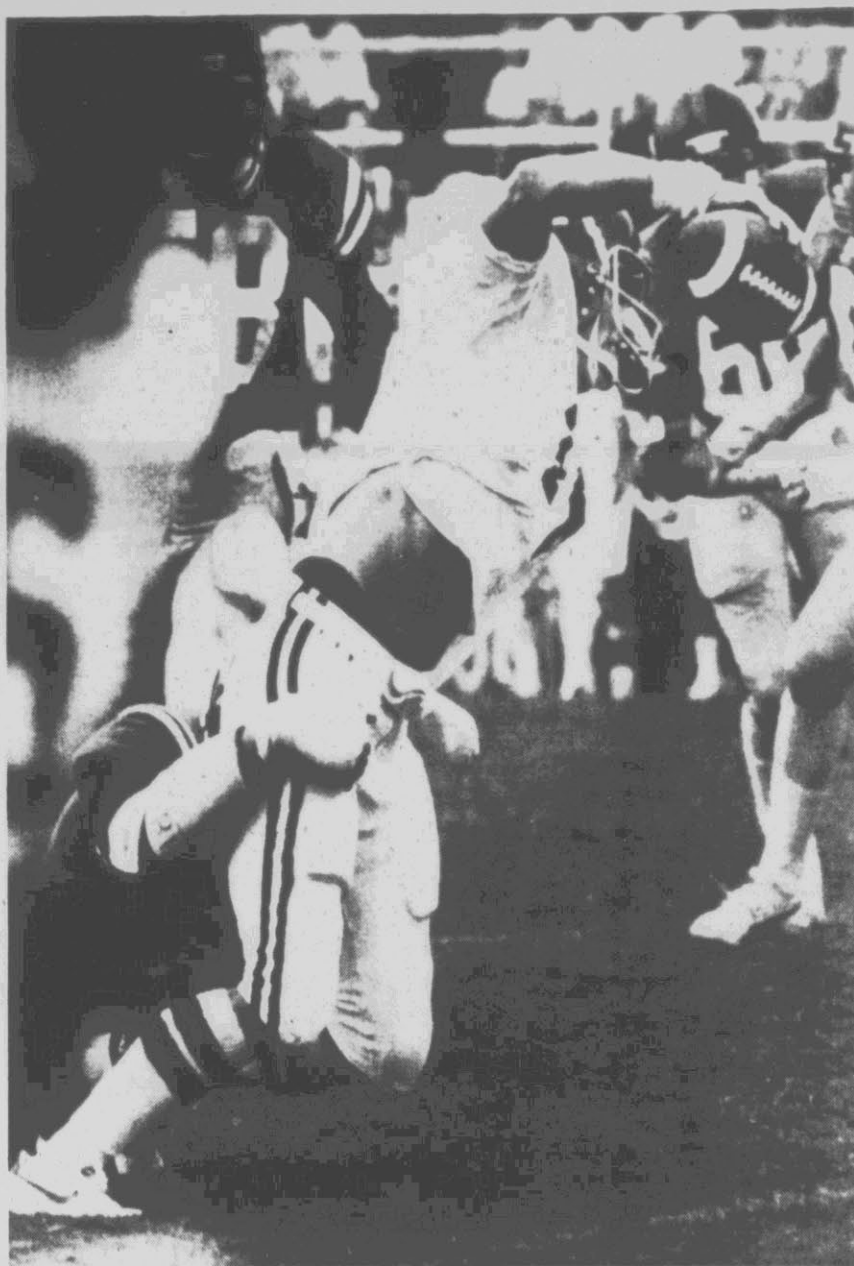

Lady Apps Defeat ECU

BOONE — East Carolina University's volleyball team fell to Appalachian State University yesterday, falling in three straight games. It was the second straight loss for the Lady Pirates on the young season.

The Lady Mountaineers won the first game by a 15-9 score, then took the second, 15-11. They wrapped it up with a 15-12 win in the third game.

Lynn Davidson, assistant coach, said, "We didn't play well and struggled to maintain our rhythm, but we just couldn't do it."

The next outing will be at the N.C. State Invitational Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

Top-Ranked Alabama Rolls By Ole Miss

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Running backs Billy Jackson and Linnie Patrick rushed for more than 100 yards apiece and led the top-ranked Alabama Crimson Tide to a 59-35 football romp over the Mississippi Rebels for its 23rd straight victory Saturday.

Defensive halfbacks Ricky Tucker and Jeremiah Castille set up two touchdowns with interceptions, one a back-breaker opening the second half in support of a bevy of Alabama backs who shared the scoring.

The Tide, 2-0 this season, handed Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his 298th career coaching victory and kept the nation's longest unbeaten streak intact.

The Alabama triumph overshadowed a big passing day for Mississippi quarterback John Fourcade, who had four touchdown completions against the usually bruising Tide defense. Fourcade hit 21 of 43 passes for 296 yards.

Jackson wound up with 108 yards on 10 rushes, scoring on a 6-yard run and Patrick had 111 yards on nine carries, scoring on a 24-yard sprint.

Major Ogilvie contributed two touchdowns on runs of 36 and 4 yards.

The Tide threatened to make a first-half rout of it, taking a 21-0 lead with only nine plays in the opening period. But the Rebels battled back to 28-14 at halftime on two Fourcade touchdown passes — a 26-yarder to Breck Tyler and a 35-yarder to Ken Toler.

Alabama chilled Mississippi, 1-2, with Tucker's interception and 35-yard return to the 6 on the first play of the third quarter. Tucker snared the ball as Fourcade, handing to a running back and then taking a pitch while standing in the end zone, tried to bomb the Tide defense.

Army 26, California 19

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Jerry Bennett stole the thunder from Rich Campbell, who set an NCAA record in a season-opening loss to Florida last week, by throwing two touchdown passes Saturday, leading Army to a 26-19 upset victory over California.

Bennett, a junior from Beaumont, Texas, tossed both scoring passes to Larry Pruitt, a sophomore flanker. The first was a 7-yarder at 10:37 of the second period, putting Army ahead 16-13.

The second, a 13-yarder at 3:28 of the final quarter, put Army in front for good 22-19. It climaxed a 76-yard, 15-play drive.

Campbell struck at 1:54 of the first period with a 57-yard touchdown pass to Holden Smith, capping a 67-yard, four-play march, but for the rest of the game, the Golden Bears were sloppy and were lucky to gain a 16-16 tie at

Last Play Field Goal Boosts Irish To Victory

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Harry Oliver's 51-yard field goal on the final play of the game Saturday lifted eighth-ranked and undefeated Notre Dame to a 29-27 victory over No. 14 Michigan in a see-saw battle of Midwest football powers.

Only 41 seconds earlier, the Wolverines had scored on a 1-yard pass from quarterback John Wampler that was deflected by Butch Woolfolk into the arms of Craig Dunnaway for a touchdown that seemingly had given Michigan a come-from-behind victory.

Oliver's successful kick touched off one the largest and loudest celebrations in Notre Dame Stadium history as most of the 59,075 fans roared their approval in unison.

Phil Carter's 4-yard touchdown run with 3:03 remaining gave the Irish a 26-21 lead, but Michigan roared back with a 79-yard touchdown drive highlighted by the running of Woolfolk. His 37-yard run to the Irish 4-yard line set up the Wolverines' final score.

Notre Dame's attack in the second half was stymied, but the Irish turned a pass interception and a fumble into touchdowns to stay in the contest.

John Krimm intercepted a Wampler pass late in the third quarter and returned it 49 yards for a touchdown, but Oliver's point-after kick was wide and Michigan held a 21-14 lead.

Midway in the fourth quarter, Woolfolk fumbled and Dave Duerson recovered for the Irish on the Notre Dame 26. The Irish then marched 74 yards in nine plays with Carter banging over from the four to put Notre Dame back in the lead.

Michigan fell behind 14-0 in the first half, but the Wolverines packed two quick touchdowns in the final 1:50 to pull into a halftime tie.

Michigan's Anthony Carter took the second half kickoff and returned 67 yards to the Notre Dame 32 to set up the Wolverines go-ahead touchdown.

Wampler, who threw two TD passes in the first half, connected with Stan Edwards for 11 yards, which put the ball on the Notre Dame 7. Larry Ricks then went for 5 yards and Edwards banged across from the 2-yard line to give the Wolverines their 21-14 lead early in the third quarter. Notre Dame did not manage a first down in the second half until split end Tony Hunter, on an end-around, hit Pete Holohan with a 31 yard pass in the scoring drive following Duerson's recovery of a Woolfolk fumble.

Missouri 57, Illinois 7

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Seniors Phil Bradley and James Wilder each ran for two touchdowns and No. 15 Missouri capitalized on an early epidemic of Illinois errors en route to a 57-7 triumph Saturday over the Big Ten school in non-conference football action.

The alert Tigers converted two fumble recoveries into touchdowns during a 57-second stand in the opening period. Twenty-six seconds later, Wilder spun out of a tackler's grasp and roared 41 yards to the end zone establishing a 21-0 Missouri advantage with the game less than seven minutes old.

Nebraska 57, Iowa 0

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Quarterback Jeff Quinn passed for three touchdowns and Jarvis Redwine ran for 153 yards to lead sixth-ranked Nebraska to a 57-0 victory over Iowa in non-conference football action Saturday.

Redwine scored the first time he touched the ball, racing 69 yards on the third play of the game. The senior I-back gained 100 yards on just seven first-half carries.

Quinn hooked up with Todd Brown for the first of his three scoring passes, a 15-yarder on a 15-play, 73-yard drive near the end of the first quarter. A Jimmy Williams' fumble recovery set up the drive.

Iowa fumbled the ensuing kick off and Nebraska recovered at the Hawkeye 17. Five plays later, Quinn hit Tim McCrary on a 6-yard scoring pass.

Third-string I-back Roger Craig went over from 5 yards out just over two minutes later to cap a 51-yard Nebraska drive in seven plays.

With 2:45 left in the half, Quinn again found Brown, who made a juggling catch for a 13-yard touchdown and a 35-0 halftime lead.

Iowa penetrated Nebraska territory only once in the first half, driving to the Husker 42 where running back Jeff Brown fumbled after a 14-yard run and Williams recovered.

In the first half, Nebraska turned two Hawkeye fumbles into touchdowns and scored after two punt returns deep into Iowa territory by Dave Liegl.

Craig added his second touchdown early in the third quarter on a 2-yard run. A 30-yard run by Redwine and a 20-yard pass from Quinn to Brown helped set up that score.

Reserve quarterbacks Mark Mauer and Bruce Mathison added fourth-quarter touchdowns on runs of 5 and 11 yards respectively.

The Huskers added two points on a safety when Hawkeye quarterback Pete Gales was tackled in the end zone by reserve Jack Lenowski.

Lafayette 27, Davidson 20

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — Lafayette exploded for 14 third-quarter points within a minute and a half behind the rushing of halfback Ed Rogusky as the Leopards came back to beat Davidson 27-20 Saturday in college football.

After Davidson took a 12-7 halftime lead, Rogusky capped an 89-yard drive over nine plays with an 11-yard scoring run.

Davidson then fumbled the ball away on its first ensuing play and Lafayette took possession on the Davidson 21. Three plays later, Roger Curylo took in a 17-yard scoring pass from senior quarterback Hal Hocking for what proved to be the winning score.

Boston Tops Yankees, 4-1

Stone Wins 24th As O's Top Jays

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Chico Walker drove in two runs while boosting his average to

.667 as the Boston Red Sox snapped an eight-game losing streak against New York by defeating the Yankees 4-1 Saturday behind Dennis

Eckersley's seven-hit pitching. The Red Sox jumped on longtime nemesis Gaylord Perry, 9-12, for two runs in the first inning and chased the 42-year-old right-hander, who had beaten them 18 times in 22 previous career decisions with two more in the second inning.

The Yankees have scored only four runs while losing two of their last three starts but it was only their third setback in 19 games this month.

They lead Baltimore by 4½ games in the AL East pending the outcome of the Orioles' night game against Toronto: Boston's Rick Burleson opened the game with a single and went to third when Dave Stapleton's hit-and-run grounder glanced off shortstop's Bucky Dent's glove into short left field for a double. Burleson scored on Walker's sacrifice fly and Jim

Rice doubled Stapleton across. With one out in the second, Dave Rader and Glenn Hoffman singled and Burleson made it 3-0 with a sacrifice fly. Hoffman took third on a single by Stapleton and scored when Walker greeted reliever Doug Bird with a line drive single off the glove of first baseman Jim

Schmidt, Maddox Lead Phillies To 7-3 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Schmidt crashed a three-run homer and Garry Maddox added a solo shot, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

The Phillies got another run off Cub starter Lynn McGlothen, 10-13, in the second when Manny Trillo doubled and scored on a double by Ramon Aviles.

The Cubs got two runs back in the fourth when Bill Buckner led off with a single and Dave Kingman homered, his 18th of the year.

The win moved Philadelphia to within one game of the lead in the National League East. The division-leading Montreal Expos played St. Louis Saturday.

Maddox' homer, his 10th, came in the sixth and made the score 5-2. The Cubs picked up another run in the bottom of the sixth on singles by Jim Tracy, Tim Blackwell and Steve Dillard, but Kevin Saucier came on in relief of Marty Bystrom, 3-0, and got pinch-hitter Larry Bittner to ground into an inning-ending double play.

Late Rally Helps Expos Slip Past Cardinals, 5-4

By CRAIG HORST

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Warren Cromartie singled to right in the ninth inning and gave the Montreal Expos a 5-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday.

choice. Gary Carter moved Office to second with a single off loser John Littlefield, 5-5, and Cromartie delivered his hit.

Bill Lee, 4-6, pitched four scoreless innings of relief to gain the win, his first victory since June 6 when he beat St. Louis 10-3.

The victory allowed Montreal to maintain a game and a half lead over Philadelphia in the National League East. The Phillies kept pace by defeating Chicago 7-3 Saturday.

The Cardinals scored three runs in the fifth to take a 4-2 lead. With one out, Tony Scott singled and raced to third when Tommy Herr singled on a hit and run. Scott then scored on Durham's hit. Two more runs came in on Terry Kennedy's two-out double.

Montreal came right back to tie it in the sixth when Carter, Larry Parrish and Chris Speier all singled to load the bases before pinch-hitter John Tamargo lined another single to score two runs.

Eatman, Hignite In Net Finals

John Eatman, top seeded in the Greenville Tennis Club's Mens' 35 Singles Tournament, will face the number two seed, Ron Hignite, in the finals today.

Hignite currently holds a 2-1 record over Eatman in tournaments this year, having beaten him in the Greenville Heart Fund and Strohs' Tournament finals. However, in their latest meeting, in the Kingston Open, Eatman downed Hignite.

In the consolation round, Al King will meet Ray Gruber in the finals. All of the finals will be played at the River Birch Tennis Center. Consolation finals get underway at 2 p.m., with the main fight at 3:30.

Summary:

Astros Score Late, Top S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pinch batter Jeff Leonard's run-scoring double with one out in the ninth inning Saturday snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Luis Pujols led off the ninth with an infield single and was replaced by pinch runner Scott Loucks. Rafael Landestoy sacrificed and Leonard delivered his game-winning blow off reliever Gary Lavelle, 6-7.

Reliever Dave Smith, 7-5, got the victory with Joe Sambito picking up his 17th save. Houston opened the scoring in the fifth. Dennis Walling doubled, went to third on Alan Ashby's single and scored on Craig Reynolds' single.

Pitcher Ed Whitson singled in the, went to third on Larry Herndon's single and scored on Darrell Evans' single. With two outs, Terry Whitfield beat out a slow roller to third base, loading the bases. Rookie Rich Murray then walked, forcing in the go-ahead run.

Whitson was lifted after Cesar Cedeno singled in the sixth and Walling walked. Re-

Watson Wins Big Money
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tom Watson, who has won more than $500,000 on the professional golf tour this year, boosted his winnings by $2.50 Saturday night.

The Kansas City native, a devoted fan of the Kansas City Royals, was in the press box to watch his team take on the Oakland A's.

At the urging of writers, he entered the nightly attendance pool and guessed 37,838. That turned out to be 313 shy of the actual attendance, giving Watson the $2.50 pool.

Rose Easily Disposes Of Eagles, 28-0

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Four different players scored touchdowns as Rose High School romped to a 28-0 victory over winless Raleigh Enloe High School Friday night.

The Rampants, ranked third in the state on the AP poll, had little trouble in recording their third win against no losses.

Roger Williams, Kenny Barnes, Alonza Taylor and Donald Johnson each scored for the Rampants, while the defense swarmed over the Eagles, not allowing them within sight of the goal line all night.

Williams scored in the first period on a 19-yard run, while Barnes plunged over from the one on a quarterback sneak in the second quarter. Taylor's TD also came in the second on a brilliant 53-yard dash.

The other score, by Johnson in the third quarter, came on a 22-yard interception return.

Scott Taylor, who just missed on a 32-yard field goal and was short on a 40-yarder, kicked all four extra points, his first of the season.

The Rampants, coming off an off-week in the schedule, appeared somewhat unstable at the start, but quickly caught fire, and rolled up the yardage in the second period.

However, the Rampants were bothered by fumbles all night long. They committed eight fumbles and lost five of them, several times halting drives toward the goal line.

"That really bothers me," coach Dave Bumgarner said afterwards. "We just left the ball on the ground too many times. We can't continue to fumble like that and hope to be successful. We're going to be working a lot on that this week."

Bumgarner said that most of the fumbles came on quarterback to back option tosses. "They weren't all that bad of pitches," he pointed out. "But most of the problem stems from the fact that our backs are already looking upfield rather than at the ball."

The coach admitted that the Rampants looked somewhat sluggish in the first period, but blamed that on the off-week. "We were a little apprehensive after being off for a week."

He did praise the offensive line for its blocking. "On Taylor's touchdown run, Johnny Jackson and Donald Johnson both threw fine blocks that let Alonza go all the way."

The coach also felt satisfied with the kicking game for the first time. "Scott did a good job with the extra points, and he just missed on the (32-yard) field goal. It was just off to the side, but had the distance."

Perhaps the most satisfying thing, however, was the pass rush placed on Enloe's quarterback. "We really got to them. We were always right there when they were throwing, and got a great deal of pressure on them."

It resulted in four sacks and three interceptions, as Enloe connected on just two of 10 passes for 19 yards. The second completion came on the final play of the game, and only through that did the Eagles have plus yardage through the air. Their previous completion was for minus five yards.

Rose did get a little sloppy in the second half, when most of the fumbles came, and in the final period, with mostly reserves playing, especially on offense, the offense ground mostly to a halt. Rose picked up only 28 yards in offense in the period, as compared to 233 the other three periods.

Rose pushed the ball into the end zone in just three plays in the first period. Taking over after a punt at the Enloe 21 after having held the Eagles in a deep hole, Rose scored in three plays.

Two plays netted just two yards. Then, on third down, Barnes kept the ball down the line to the left, then tossed to Williams just as the quarterback was hit. Williams went the final 19 yards almost untouched for the score. Taylor's kick made it 7-0 with 8:01 left.

Enloe came back to move to the Rose 45 but Rose halted the Eagles, only to give it back four plays later at the Rampant 41 on the first fumble. But Enloe got nowhere, losing back to the 42.

The Rampants drove from their own 10 to the Enloe 22, helped along by a 50-yard Barnes to Chris McLawhorn pass, before giving it away for the second time on another fumble.

Two plays later, however, Enloe coughed it back up, and Rose had it at the Eagle 19.

Seven plays later, the Rampants were on the scoreboard again. The biggest play was a ten-yard run by Robert Brown, moving it to the four. Barnes finally went over on fourth down, sneaking across from the one. Taylor then made it 14-0 with 5:52 left in the half.

Barry Smith got the ball back for Rose two plays after the kickoff, intercepting an Eagle pass at the Rose 47. After a Barnes pass fell incomplete, the quarterback optioned off to Taylor, who took the ball around the right side,

Rose High School fullback Jeff Porter (center) plunges into the line after taking a handoff from quarterback Kenny Barnes (7) during second quarter action Friday. Porter failed to make it into the end zone, and Barnes went over from the one on the next play, scoring the second Rampant touchdown of the evening. Rose eventually won, 28-0 over Raleigh's Enloe High School. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Jaguar Rally Carries Past Greene Central

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central, down 15-14 in the final period, engineered a 98-yard drive in the final seven minutes to pull out a 20-15 victory over Greene Central Friday night.

The victory was the first for the Jaguars in three starts this year, and left them with a 1-1 Eastern Carolina Conference record.

For Greene Central, one of the preseason favorites in the conference, it was the second straight ECC loss, and left the Rams 1-3 overall.

Greene Central took the lead in the first period of the game, scoring on a 59-yard drive for a 7-0 lead. The drive took only four plays, with Luby Jackson ripping off the final 46 yards on one lug. James Artis added the PAT kick.

Farmville came back in the second quarter to score twice, gaining the lead. First, Roger Joyner capped off a 66-yard drive with a one-yard plunge late in the period. Arthur Wooten kicked the PAT, knotting it at 7-7.

Two plays after the kickoff, Greene Central fumbled at its own 33, and the Jaguars recovered. In just three plays, the Jaguars pushed it in with Wesley Carmon scoring on a 22 yard scamper. Wooten's kick made it 14-7.

In the third period, Greene Central closed the gap to 14-13. Jackson again scored, this time on a 28-yard run. The drive covered 64 yards, and took just three plays. On the second play in the series, quarterback David Braswell scrambled 37 yards to set up the score.

Then, near the midpoint of the final period, the Rams got a break when Joyner picked up a punt just outside the goal line, and was tackled in the end zone, trying to circle for running room. The safety allowed Greene Central to take a 15-14 lead.

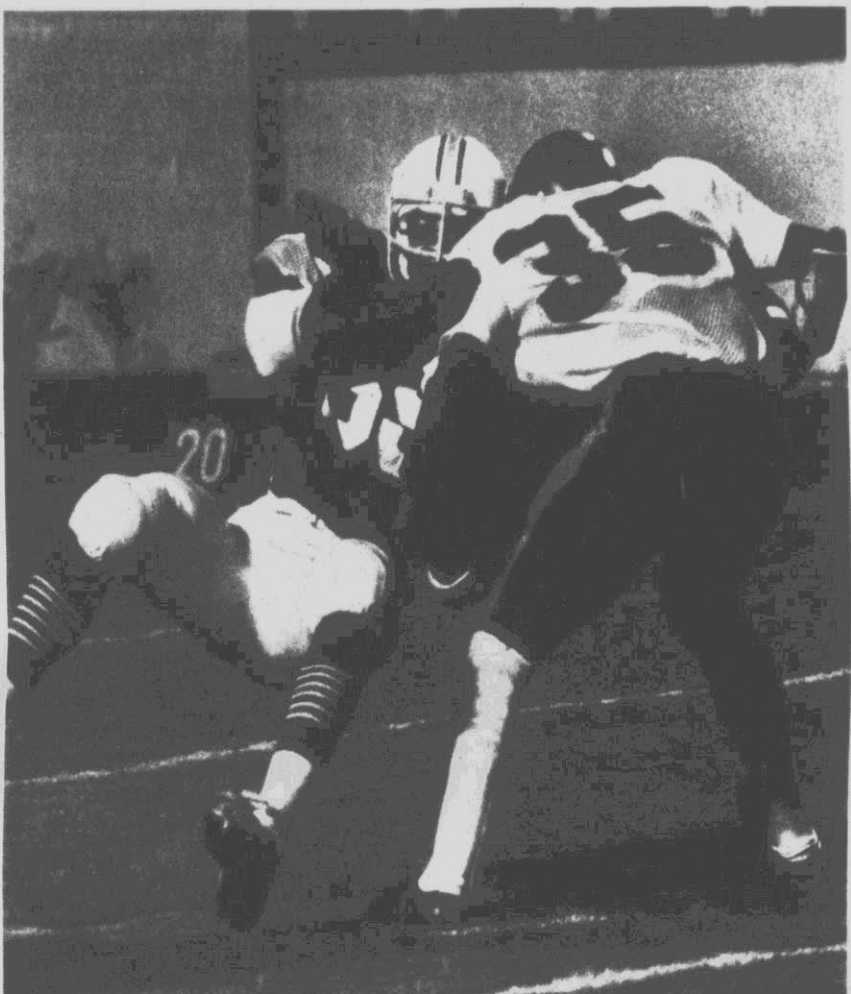

But Farmville came back after that. They held the Rams after the free kick, forcing a punt. Taking over at their own two, the Jaguars drove. Facing a third and eight from the four, Joyner broke away for 11 yards and a first down. Then, from the 28, Jeff Cutler hit Andrew Edwards across the middle on a tipped pass that went for 43 yards, down to the Ram 29. After a three-yard loss, Willie Davis broke away for 29 yards to the three, and on third and goal, Joyner cracked over from the one, giving Farmville the lead again, 20-15 with 1:36 left.

Greene Central still tried to fight back, driving to the Farmville 36 before time finally ran out, preserving the Jaguar lead.

Crumel Paces Firebirds Past North Pitt, 42-14

STANHOPE — Southern Nash's Anthony Crumel pushed the ball over the goal line on four occasions as he led the Firebirds to a 42-14 victory over North Pitt Friday night.

The victory kept Southern Nash unbeaten in Eastern Carolina Conference play with a 2-0 record. They are 2-1-1 overall. North Pitt slumped to 0-2 in the league, and are 1-2 overall.

Crumel, who raced for 204 yards on 26 carries, paced the Firebird attack, as Southern raced out to a 21-0 lead before allowing a North Pitt score.

McCullen Wiggins, the Firebird quarterback, got the first score on a one-yard run, staking the 'Birds to a 6-0 lead.

In the second period, Crumel scored twice. The first time, he went over from two yards out, then came back with a five-yard scoring run later in the period. Wiggins ran over one PAT, and George Harrison kicked the other. That made it 21-0.

North Pitt came up with its lone score of the half in the late stages as Ronnie House went in on a 16-yard tear. House, who also had runs of 28 and 48 yards, led the North Pitt rushing with 124 yards in just six carries. Dennis Bradley kicked the PAT to cut it to 21-14 at halftime.

In the third period, Southern scored twice more. Crumel went over from a yard out, and later Wiggins hit Jerry Wellons with a 28-yard pass. Wiggins ran over the PAT after the second TD.

Both teams scored single touchdowns in the final quarter. Crumel scored from the two, with Harrison kicking, for Southern Nash. North Pitt's score closed out the game, with Derrick Smith scoring on a ten-yard run, and Bradley added the PAT.

Ken Whitehurst and Gordon Dunn led the Panther defense.

North Pitt plays host to Farmville Central on Friday, while Southern Nash visits D.H. Conley.

Robinson Doesn't Like Oriole Chances

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
The Baltimore Orioles are out of it.

So states one of Baltimore's all-time greats, future Hall of Famer Brooks Robinson, the golden glove of third base in days past.

Robinson, one of the top fielders ever in the American League, was visiting in Greenville Friday at Brown & Wood Pontiac, part of a promotional visit to the eastern part of the state for several automobile dealers.

"It's just about all over for the Orioles," he said. "There's not a whole lot of time left for them to do anything now. It would take a miracle for them to catch New York."

Robinson said that while the Orioles made a fine run at the Yankees earlier in the summer, winning six of eight games against the front-runners, the Yankees had gotten hot in the past few weeks. "They've won something like 19 of their last 22. It would take a total collapse of the Yankees to let Baltimore catch up."

Robinson, who for 16 straight seasons was a golden glove winner at third base for the Orioles, said that great timing was the key to his success. Never an outstanding hitter, he always seemed to be able to get that jump on the ball on defense that it took to become a super-star at the hot corner.

"I've always been blessed with good timing," he said. "When I was in high school, I was a good rebounder. I seemed to be able to know just when to jump to be able to get the ball. The same thing carried over to baseball. I always was able to time it just right."

"It's just a God-given talent, you either have it or you don't," he continued. "Since I have only average speed and an average arm, that made the difference for me."

If Robinson were picking today's third basemen, he'd likely go with Kansas City's George Brett, he said. "I think Texas' Buddy Bell is probably the best of the third basemen in the American League right now, but Brett has everything going for him. He has enthusiasm, and he has the bat. If I were picking a third baseman to play for me, I'd have to pick him."

However, Robinson doesn't feel that the Kansas City star will snap the nearly 40-year old lapse since the last 400 hitter in baseball. "I'd like to see him do it," he said, "but it would take a lot of effort. He's going to have to have a lot of two for five nights from here on in. A one for three won't do it for him."

"He is hitting in a good park for it, though. The Astro-Turf adds to the hits. But I wouldn't put anything on him to do it. It will be awfully tough."

Robinson, too, doesn't think much of Kansas City's chances in the American League Hustle and desire will take you just as far if you are not that super-star type."

For a man who's been there, with a Guidry and a John, and what have you got? Kansas City has lost to them three times in the playoffs already, and with what they've got going for them, I can't see the Yankees losing this year, either."

Success in baseball, especially for those who hope to become major leaguers, is not easy to come by, but it is attainable, Robinson said.

"There are not all that many super-stars in the major leagues now," he said. "To be a super-star, you have to be able to do a lot of things well. There are not that many there. In the American League just as far if you are not that super-star type."

For a man who's been there, with a Guidry and a John, and

Granthams Pace Aycock Past Chargers, 54-6

LITTLEFIELD — Ken Grantham scored four times and Vernell Grantham added three touchdowns as Charles B. Aycock romped to a 54-6 victory over hapless Ayden-Grifton Friday night.

The victory kept the Falcons in a share of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference with a 2-0 league mark. They are 3-0 overall.

Ayden-Grifton dipped to 0-2 in the league and 0-4 overall.

Ken Grantham started the scoring in the first period, pushing over both of the Falcon touchdowns. He scored on runs of two and three yards, while quarterback Paul Thomas booted both extra points for a 14-0 lead at the end of the first period.

Two more Falcon touchdowns came in the second quarter, both scored by Vernell Grantham. He went over from the six, then added an eight-yard scamper. Thomas again booted the PAT's for a 28-0 halftime lead.

Thomas broke up the Grantham act in the third period, hitting a 37-yard pass to J.L. Gurley. Thomas' kick then upped it to 35-0. Vernell Grantham came back to score the second touchdown of the period, on another pass from Thomas, this from seven yards out.

Ken Grantham finished off the Aycock scoring, getting into the end zone two more times around the lone Ayden-Grifton touchdown. Grantham scored on runs of 17 and four yards.

The lone A-G score came on a three-yard run by Greg Jackson.

Rudolph Reid led the A-G rushing with 69 yards on nine carries, while Jackson had 62 yards on 16 carries.

"I guess they had a grudge to pay off," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "They didn't pull out their regulars. I guess we must have beaten them bad sometime before I came here."

Sauls said that while Aycock has a fine team, his own team suffered several breakdowns that cost the Chargers. "We have a lack of senior leadership and a lack of discipline. Sixteen penalties don't help you much, and two early fumble gave them good field position and that got the ball rolling. Our kicking game (19-yard punting average) didn't help us either."

Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central on Friday, while Aycock takes on Southwest Edgecombe in a home date.

Signing Autographs

Former Baltimore Oriole third baseman Brooks Robinson signs autographs during a visit to Greenville Friday. The ex-Golden got two outstanding blocks, and was off on a 53-yard touchdown sprint with no one even close. Taylor's kick made it 21-0 with 4:26 still to go in the period.

Rose got it back later in the period after a punt, and reserve quarterback Tom Buie guided the Rampants to the 27 where on fourth down, a 40-yard field goal try by Taylor was short. That ended the half.

Rose drove from its own 36 to the Enloe 12 early in the second half, as McLawhorn picked up 30 yards on the first play of the period on an end-around. But two penalties, a delay call and a clip, halted the drive, and a 32-yard field goal try by Taylor was just off to the side.

Two plays after that, Johnson stepped in front of an Enloe receiver and pulled in an interception at the 22, racing to the sidelines, then down them for the final score of the game.

That came with 7:28 left in the third period, making it 28-0.

From there on out, it was a comedy of errors. In the remaining quarter-plus, the Rampants lost it three times on fumbles, while Enloe turned it back twice on fumbles and once on an interception.

Enloe's deepest threat of the game came on the final play of the game on a pass completion to the Rose 27. The previous best thrust was to the Rose 30, and it marked the first time the Eagles had passed the 40.

By halftime, Enloe had managed only minus three yards in rushing and minus eight yards in total offense. They ended up with just 19 passing and 26 rushing, a total of 45 yards altogether.

The Rampants begin their Division I play on Friday, traveling to face Northern Nash as they begin their quest to return to the State 4-A Playoffs.

"At Last—A High Performance" Fireplace Stove That Looks Good Enough For Your Home.

Warmth And Savings With Style

Why should you have to put up with large brand names and "rustic" decorations emblazoned across the doors of your woodstove? Why does the blower have to be an ugly box on your hearth? Away from the stove as though it were an afterthought? Unfortunately, most woodstoves on the market today are built with no regard for appearance.

Fortunately, Blackjacker is building an attractive stove with clean, functional lines that look good in traditional as well as contemporary surroundings. If you thought you had to live in a log cabin to enjoy wood heat take a look at the Blackjacker. Beauty That's More Than Skin Deep.

Behind the good looks we've engineered some performance features that will interest you.

Blackjacker stoves have a larger firebox than almost every other brand on the market. Fewer clean-outs. Fewer wood loadings.

The Blackjacker has a 2 1/2" threshold at the bottom of the doors so you don't have to worry about messy ashes falling on your hearth or carpet when you open the doors.

Two high-quality electric motors deliver a powerful yet quiet heating capacity.

You'll appreciate Blackjacker's safety thermostat too. If your firebox becomes too hot, the thermostat overrides the fan setting and blows at full speed. When the temperature lowers to an acceptable range the fans automatically return to your original setting.

For 7-8 year olds (5 holes) low was Teague Tripp with a 25. Five and six year olds played (4 holes) Brooks Honeycutt was low with a 16.

Dr. Jay Smith shot a 31 from the blue tees on the front nine, for his best nine hole round.

Conley Errors Help North Lenoir Ease Past Vikings For 21-18 Win

WHEAT SWAMP — D.H. Conley's Vikings provided their own worst enemy Friday night as North Lenoir slipped past them, 21-19.

The Vikings, who were turned back on four occasions inside the North Lenoir ten yard line, fumbled the ball away four times, helping to set up two of the Hawk scores.

The win boosted North Lenoir's Eastern Carolina Conference record to 2-0, while it was the first league game for the Vikes. Conley is now 0-3 overall, while North Lenoir is 3-0.

Scoring:
NL—Cratch, 51 fumble return (Sanderson kick).
C—Maye, 5 run (Long kick).
NL—Braxton, 56 pass from Battle (kick failed).
NL—Cratch, 1 run (Washington pass from Sanderson).
C—Tucker, 68 pass from Cox (kick failed).
C—King, 1 run (run failed).

North Lenoir took advantage of one of the early Conley mistakes to jump into the lead. James Cratch snatched up a Viking fumble, and raced 51 yards to put the Hawks into the lead. Guy Sanderson added the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

Conley came right back, tying the game when Jesse Maye pushed over from the five. Michael Long kicked the PAT to tie it up.
It stayed that way until late in the half, when North Lenoir found a lapse in the Viking defense and tossed the bomb. Kevin Battle hit Jeff Braxton on a 56-yard scoring pass that allowed the Hawks to lead 13-7 with just 13 seconds left on the scoreboard.
In the third period, neither team could score, but North Lenoir got the clincher when Conley fumbled it away on its own five yard line. Cratch went over from the one, and Tony Washington pulled in a conversion pass from Sanderson to make it 21-7.

Conley then launched a furious comeback, nearly pulling it off. Sammy Tucker scored on a 68-yard pass from Leon Cox. The PAT try failed, however, leaving it at 21-13.

The Vikes struck back once more, with Steve King scoring on a one-yard plunge. This time, a two-point try that would have tied the score was halted by the Hawks, preserving their victory by two points.

Conley plays host to Southern Nash on Friday, while North Lenoir goes outside the league to visit West Craven.

Australians Turn America's Cup Finals Into Real Race

By LARRY LAUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The Australians suddenly have turned the America's Cup finals — for 129 years the most predictable of sporting events — into a real boat race.

The U.S. defender, Freedom, was outslaid Friday by the challenging yacht Australia, a turn of events not seen in the best-of-seven series since 1970.

"It's been an awful long time coming," said Australian challenge head Alan Bond, who is in the midst of his third bid to wrest sailing's top prize from the New York Yacht Club.
The 28-second victory engineered by Australia skipper Jim Hardy evens the series at 1-1. Freedom asked for a day off Saturday, which means the third match between the two yachts will not take place until today.

"I feel like a young boy again," said Hardy, 47. "It was 10 years ago when we won a race from Americans."

Tanner Likes Berra's Old Saying

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

It would not be difficult to imagine the zany National League pennant races going down to the end, the bitter end. Should that occur some- one, somewhere is likely to say something not soon to be forgotten.

And barring a last-minute entry, Pittsburgh Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner will go along with Yogi Berra's oft-repeated "You're not out of it 'till you're out of it," explanation.

That at least would describe the plight of the Pirates, who picked up a full game Friday in the NL East when both Montreal and Philadelphia blew ninth-inning leads. "Yogi said it all," Tanner explained when asked for his reaction after the Pirates beat the New York Mets 4-3 while the pace-setting Montreal Expos fell to St. Louis 9-8 after the Philadelphia Phillies bowed to the Cubs 3-2. The victory left Pittsburgh 2½-games behind Philadelphia and four behind Montreal.

While the East leaders were blowing leads, the West leaders fell far behind early, made valiant bids to catch up, but never got there. First-place Los Angeles lost to Cincinnati 10-7 while Houston remained one game behind after a 4-3 loss to San Francisco. In a final NL game, San Diego stopped Atlanta 7-4.

The Pirates came up with two runs to go ahead after two were out and the bases were empty in the fifth inning. John Milner ripped a two-run double off loser Ed Lynch, 1-1, to make a winner of Rick Rhoden.

Cardinals 9, Expos 8
Tanner certainly was satisfied with his team's clutch performance, but Montreal Manager Dick Williams was anything but ... and understandably so. His Expos threw away a 7-2 lead in the seventh inning, reclaimed it 8-7 in the ninth and watched it go down the drain in the final St. Louis at-bat.

"I know we're on top, but that's not enough," an irritated Williams said afterward. "It's not as good as being 2½-games ahead."

He can thank among others George Hendrick, who blasted a one-out, two-run double off Elias Sosa, 9-6, to decide the issue and make a winner of Jim Kaat, 7-7.

"We gave it away, they gave it back and then George put the hammer on them," said Hendrick's teammate Dane Iorg.

Montreal wasted Gary Carter's 26th home run of the season, a seventh-inning grand slam.

Cubs 4, Phillies 3
The Philadelphia bullpen was unable to hold the Cubs in check in the ninth inning. Chicago gave up a lead runner when Steve Dillard's sacrifice attempt failed against loser Warren Brusstar, 2-1, but pinch hitter Cliff Johnson walked and Ivan DeJesus singled to tie the game. Then Jerry Martin greeted Tug McGraw with a game-winning single.

The Phillies took a first-inning lead on a run-scoring triple by Mike Schmidt. Dillard's second-inning homer tied it, but a home run by Ramon Aviles in the fifth and a single and stolen base by Aviles ahead of Pete Rose's single made it 3-1 in the seventh.

Chicago narrowed the lead to 3-2 when Lenny Randle singled, stole second and rode home on a single by DeJesus in the seventh. Lee Smith, 2-0, got the victory in relief.

Reds 10, Dodgers 7
"What do you expect?" said Johnny Bench whose grand slam set the tone for the Reds' rout of Dodger starter Jerry Reuss, 17-6. "He has already beaten us four times this year, and he's not going to be pitching the same way all the time, otherwise he's be pitching in some higher league."

Bench's clout, his 24th homer, highlighted a seven-run second inning that enabled the Reds to build an 8-0 lead. But the Dodgers had some firepower of their own in the form of Ron Cey, who hit his 26th homer, and Steve Garvey, who belted his 24th.

The Dodgers closed the gap to 8-6, but Tom Hume came out of the bullpen to rescue long man Mike LaCoss, 9-11, and earn his 23rd save.

Giants 4, Astros 3
The Giants nailed Houston's Joaquin Andujar, 3-6, for four first-inning runs and made them stand up for Tom Griffin.

Lady Pirates Open Field Hockey Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's field hockey team opens its season on Tuesday at Wake Forest, and Coach Laurie Arrants is looking for some scoring punch.

"I lost my number one assist and number one scorer from last year's team," Arrants pointed out, "and so far I haven't found anyone to replace them with the same type of aggressiveness and ability."

The entire defense returns, however, and this gives Arrants some hopes of a good year. "We are adding a real good freshman in Beth Christian also, who will probably break into the starting lineup."

The key losses are Kathy Zwigard, who was the number one player in assists for the past three years, and Sue Jones, who was the top scorer last year.

Eight starters return, but one of them has been sidelined by a newcomer.

Last year, the Lady Pirates were 2-6 going into the state tournament, and pulled off an upset there, beating top seeded High Point.

This year, however, the schedule has been cut to only five matches—all conference meets. "Our budget was not increased this year," Arrants said, "so we've cut back on scheduling because of that."

East Carolina has only two home games, against Catawba and Davidson, and both will be held the same day, October 11. "This gives us a chance to see what tournament play will be like, plus it also is less expensive as far as officials. It costs more to get them here than it does to have them call the game."

Arrants looks for High Point and Pfeiffer to be the teams to beat in the state's Division II race. She is hopeful that the Lady Pirates will be somewhere in the middle of the pack.

"Defense will be our strong point, but I feel like we may have trouble scoring. We haven't been able to replace Jones and Zwigard with people who were as aggressive as those two were, plus they will be inexperienced."

The team is young, with only two seniors, and four juniors. There are seven sophomores and six freshmen.

Field hockey has been one of the sports that has been on the line at East Carolina. Due to the financial picture, there has been talk of cutting back in the athletic program, and Arrants admits that the sport is "most likely" to be one of those cut, if it comes to that.

She isn't happy about it however. "We don't have a chance to have spring practice, since I'm tied up with track. I don't get a chance to recruit, so we have to do with whoever comes in. And, too, field hockey is not a sport that is native to this area, so most people either haven't played or seen it before."

Aarants does feel that East Carolina can continue to sponsor the 17 sports it currently fields. "I'm just not going to worry about it until it happens," she says of any possible decision to cut back.

Tanner...

4-1, who made a rare start. Griffin got excellent relief from Al Holland, who fanned four Houston batters in 22-3 innings to claim his sixth save.

Only one of the San Francisco runs was earned thanks to errors by shortstop Craig Reynolds and first baseman Dennis Walling. Jose Cruz drove in two of Houston's three third-inning runs with a triple.

Padres 7, Braves 4

A pair of doubles by Luis Salazar keyed San Diego's victory over Atlanta. Salazar's double in the fourth inning helped stake winner Steve Mura to a 4-1 lead, and his second of the night in the sixth inning, during which loser Doyle Alexander, 13-9, departed, ignited a two-run rally to make it 6-2.

Broncos Put Home Streak On The Line

By TOM CANAVAN
Associated Press Writer

The Denver Broncos have always known there is no other place like home — especially when they're playing the San Diego Chargers. The Oakland Raiders, on the other hand, may be a little apprehensive about their familiar surroundings this weekend.

The Broncos have not lost to San Diego at home since 1968, but they will hard pressed to continue that streak Sunday when they meet the National Football League's top passing team.

In two games this season, Charger quarterback Dan Fouts has completed 30 of 75 passes for seven touchdowns.

Fifteen of those passes, including four TDs, have found wide receiver John Jefferson.

"We put a little more emphasis on the running game in training camp, but we're still basically a throwing team," said Fouts.

And that's the way San Diego Coach Don Coryell wants it.

"You get good receivers, linemen who can block, a good quarterback and leave 'em alone," said Coryell.

Denver, one of the NFL's leading defenses, certainly won't be that easy going, and Coryell knows it.

"We have made lots of yards against them (the Broncos), but not many points," Coryell said.

Coach Red Miller wants it.

"They (San Diego) may look out of control at times, but actually they are very disciplined in their passing attack," said Miller. "I don't see any particular weakness in them. As with Dallas, we'll have to play hard to win."

Winning used to be the last thing Raider fans had to worry about, especially with Kenny Stabler at quarterback and the vaunted Oakland teams of the past.

But all that's changed this season. There is no Kenny Stabler, anymore. He plays for Houston. And next season there may be no Oakland team. Oakland owner wants to move them to Los Angeles.

Instead, Dan Pastorini will be at quarterback when the Raiders meet the Washington Redskins. Whether the boisterous Raider crowds of the past return is questionable.

"I'd love to see them all here Sunday," said offensive tackle Art Shell, "but that's between management and the fans."

Raider officials say a crowd of about 48,000 would be considered good. It would also be the first time since 1974 that less than 50,000 fans attended an Oakland game.

Sunday's other games are San Francisco at the New York Jets, Miami at Atlanta, Tampa Bay at Dallas, Baltimore at Houston, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, Minnesota at Chicago, Kansas City at Cleveland, Buffalo at New Orleans, Green Bay at Los Angeles, New England at Seattle and St. Louis at Detroit.

On Monday night, the New York Giants will be at Philadelphia.

St. Louis, having scored 56 points in its first two games this season, still is looking for its first victory of the season heading into Detroit against the equally explosive Lions.

The Lions have scored a league-high 70 points, thanks for the most part to rookie Billy Sims' running and Gary Danielson's leadership.

Sims won the Heisman

Trophy as the best college player in 1978 and was the NFL's No. 1 draft pick after the 1979 season. He leads the league in rushing with 287 yards and has scored five touchdowns.

The Cardinals have have their own exceptional runner — Ottis Anderson, the 1979 Offensive Rookie of the Year when he gained 1,605 yards. This season he has 144 yards — but he was so battered he had to sit out the latter part of the overtime loss to the 49ers.

Two other "surprise" teams of 1980 are San Francisco and the Jets. Like Detroit, the 49ers were 2-14 last year. And like Detroit, they are 2-0 this year behind the running and receiving of Paul Hofer.

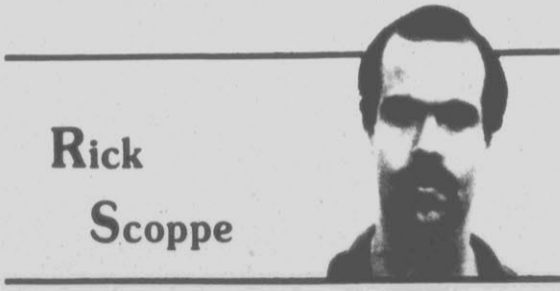

Conversely, the Jets are 0-2. Only one team, Green Bay, has scored fewer points than New York's 24.

Miami is switching starting quarterbacks Sunday, with strong-armed Don Strock replacing Bob Griese.

Winning Catch

Charles Moss of Winterville and his sister, Delores Moss of Morehead City, show off this 30 pound, 14 ounce king mackerel that won third place in the Harker's Island King Mackerel Tournament recently. Delores boated the fish after a 40-minute battle while on board Clifton's boat Dixie. She received a trophy and $1,000 in cash for the catch.

Rick Scoppe

For the first time ever North Carolina hunters will have a tri-split waterfowl season — a change that the Wildlife Resources Commission hopes will offer the most opportunity to the greatest number of hunters to get into the field when waterfowl are most abundant.

The duck season will be held Oct. 24, Nov. 27-29 and Dec. 8 through Jan. 20, 1981. The short October season will permit waterfowl hunting when the local and early migrant populations of wood ducks and teal are abundant. The November season will allow sportsmen to hunt ducks and geese over the Thanksgiving holiday.

The daily bag limit will be five ducks with 10 in possession. West of U.S. 1, one canvasback may be taken in the daily bag. The canvasback season is closed east of U.S. 1 due, in part, to poor nesting conditions this spring and summer.

For the first time in recent years, two redheads may be included in the daily bag limit of five ducks.

The wood duck is treated as a regular bird in the bag in October. However, for the rest of the season, only two wood ducks may be taken daily with four in possession. One black duck may be included in the daily bag limit with two in possession.

A special bonus bag limit on blue-winged and green-winged teal will be allowed Oct. 24, Nov. 27-29 and Dec. 8-10. Hunters may take two teal of either or both species in addition to the regular bag limit of five ducks.

A special bonus on two scaup daily with four in possession may also be taken in addition to the regular limits in waters east of U.S. 17 except for Currituck Sound north of U.S. 158. This special bonus is offered on this broad scale for the first time; previously, the scaup bonus as limited to Pamlico Sound.

A special sea duck season on scoters, eider and old squaw will run from Oct. 6 through Jan. 20. The daily bag limit is seven with 14 in possession. The season, however, is open only in the Atlantic Ocean and south of U.S. 64 in coastal waters separated by at least 800 yards of open water from any shore, island or marsh. Sea ducks may be taken statewide during the regular duck season.

The season for coots will be Oct. 14, Nov. 27-29 and Dec. 8 through Jan. 20. The bag limit is 15 daily with 30 in possession. The same seasons will apply for mergansers, with a daily bag limit of five and 10 in possession. These limits may include only one hooded merganser daily with two in possession.

Steel shot must be used in all gauges of shotguns when hunting in certain areas. These areas include all waters and within 150 yards of such waters in Currituck, Dare and Pamlico counties on and within 150 yards of the Cape Fear River and its tributaries in New Hanover and Brunswick counties.

Shooting hours for all waterfowl species begin one-half hour before sunrise and continue until sunset.

Orioles And Brett Haven't Quit Yet

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

Some people thought the Baltimore Orioles' chase for the American League East flag was over when they fell six games behind the New York Yankees this week. Others thought George Brett's chase for the first 400 average in 39 years was over when he hurt his hand.

Maybe they were right. But lines like "The opera ain't over 'til the fat lady sings" still get repeated over and over in the final weeks of sports seasons.

The old sayings had a ring of truth Friday night as the Orioles stayed within five games of the Yankees with a 12-inning 8-6 victory over Toronto on a two-run homer by Doug DeCinces, who was criticized earlier for saying Baltimore was out of the chase.

And Brett had two hits in four at-bats, making him 6-for-12 since coming back from the hand injury, raising his average to .400 as AL West champion Kansas City (it's over) beat Oakland 13-3.

In other AL games, the Yankees beat Boston 2-1, Detroit edged Cleveland 4-3, Milwaukee blanked Seattle 4-0, California whipped Texas 6-2 and Minnesota defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-3.

Early in the week, after the Orioles had tumbled six games behind, DeCinces said, "It's time to call in the dogs, put out the fires, the hunt is over."

That prompted Orioles Manager Earl Weaver to say it was the first time in 33 years a player had given up on him.

But after the game-winning homer, Weaver said of DeCinces' statement: "That's the best way to say that you didn't mean it and to show people we're still in it."

DeCinces refused to comment about the earlier quote except to say, "It was a total misunderstanding to begin with."

Before the homer DeCinces fouled off a screwball from losing pitcher Mike Willis, 1-1, who had not allowed a run in his previous 12 appearances. Then he lined a curveball to right field or the game-winner.

"I thought I hit the first one better," he said. "I knew the second one had a chance of going out if it was high enough."

Toronto took a 6-5 lead in the 10th on Steve Braun's first home run of the season after the Blue Jays' Paul Hodgson's first major league homer tied the score 5-5 in the sixth. In the bottom of the 10th, a pinch-hit double by Lee May tied it again.

Brett said that runaway victories like Friday night's "aren't going to help" his pursuit of a 400 average.

"If the score had been tied 1-1, I might not have struck out in that last at bat," he said. "In games like this you can lose your concentration."

Brett had a sacrifice fly in the first inning, singled in the third and fifth, flew out to center in the sixth and took a called third strike in his last at bat in the seventh.

Brett was asked if the Royals' early clinching of the West flag would take away the competitive edge he needs to hit.

"I've got to hit 400 regardless," he said. "I've wondered myself if having it clinched will affect me, but I really don't know the answer."

"I can't let my concentration lapse because if I don't do it (hit 400) I'm going to feel like I've let a lot of people down. Not just myself, but a lot of people."

The 2-for-4 performance left his average at .395, which evens out at 400.

"I need to get some leeway, some breathing space there," he said. "I'd like to get it up to .406 or .408. I go 2-for-4 tonight and barely raise it two points."

Hal McRae, Amos Otis and John Wathan all tripled to fuel a 16-hit Kansas City attack and

Paul Spittorff pitched a nine-hit complete game.

Yankees 2, Red Sox 1

New York lowered its "magic number" to 11 as Bobby Brown, hitless in his last 14 at-bats, including some wicked line drives that were caught, homered to break a 1-1 tie in the seventh.

"I've been trying to do too much," Brown said. "If you're hitting the ball good but right at people, you try to hit it somewhere else."

Brown's 12th homer helped Luis Tiant, 7-9, snap a personal six-game losing streak stretching back to June 20. He allowed five hits in seven innings before giving way to Rich Gossage, who collected his 29th save and extended his scoreless inning streak to 262-3 innings over 17 games.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Al Cowens broke a 3-3 tie with a run-producing double in the fifth inning, and the arm of left fielder Steve Kemp saved Detroit in the ninth. Aurelio Lopez relieved Dan Schatzeder, 10-11, with one out and one on in the ninth and gave up a double to Ron Hassey to put runners on second and third, but Kemp caught Dave Rosello's fly ball for the second out and threw out Toby Harrah at the plate to end the game.

Angels 6, Rangers 2

Frank Tanana scattered seven hits and evened his record at 10-10 and Brian Downing and Dan Ford both hit two-run singles to carry California over Texas.

Brewers 4, Mariners 0

Bob McClure, who had made 212 relief appearances in his four-year major league career before making his first start on Sept. 1, won his third game in four appearances since becoming a starter, pitching a five-hitter. Ben Oglivie drove in two runs with a single and a double and Paul Molitor rapped three hits and scored twice.

Twins 6, White Sox 3

Minnesota overcame a 3-2 deficit with four runs in the eighth on run-scoring singles by Butch Wynegar and John Castino and three walks. Al Williams, 4-2, worked eight innings for the Twins for the victory, and Doug Corbett pitched the ninth for his 20th save.

BB&T Open House

Branch Banking and Trust Co. will hold an open house for its new bank at Willow Oak Shopping Centre in Mocksville. John Johnstone, vice president and city executive, said a pig pickin' will be held September 22 from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. to provide an opportunity for everyone to visit the new full service facility — the third BB&T office in Mocksville. He said persons wishing to attend the supper should pick up a ticket at the bank sometime during the day.

First Citizens Dividend

The Board of Directors of First Citizens Bank declared a quarterly dividend on common stock of $1.90 per share at the bank's September board meeting in Raleigh. This is an increase of 15 cents per share from the previous dividend. The dividend is payable January 2, to shareholders of record December 5.

New Cargo Aircraft

CHAPEL HILL — E. S. Eskridge Jr., president of The Aviation Group Inc. here has announced the completion of contractual negotiations for its first Gulfstream Cargo I freight aircraft with Purolator Courier Corp. Through its wholly-owned operations subsidiary, Orion Air, Inc., The Aviation Group will provide Cargo I, full crews, maintenance, parts, and flight following communications to the Sky Courier division of Purolator for the overnight delivery of small packages. Lift services for Purolator are scheduled to commence in late September.

New Wholesale Outlet

State Wholesale Supply Inc. of Rocky Mount, a distributor of plumbing, heating and air conditioning equipment and related supplies, has opened a subsidiary in Greenville. The Greenville office is located at 410 St. Andrews St., and will distribute similar products. R. C. Owens Jr. has been named president and general manager of the Greenville operation. Prior to his promotion to president of the Greenville subsidiary, Owens served as vice president of the parent operation. Owens said the move to Greenville was made to better serve the firm's growing number of customers in the Greenville, New Bern, Washington, Snow Hill and Morehead City areas.

Insurance Meeting

N.C. ESC Officials Believe That Domestics Are Underpaid

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mary Blakeney worked as a maid for the family of William and Gertrude Walton of Salisbury for more than 30 years.

Her pay ranged up to $20 a week — a salary that a federal judge later ruled was less than the federal minimum. But the state Employment Security Commission believes Mrs. Blakeney is not alone. The ESC estimates that North Carolina has about 77,000 domestic workers.

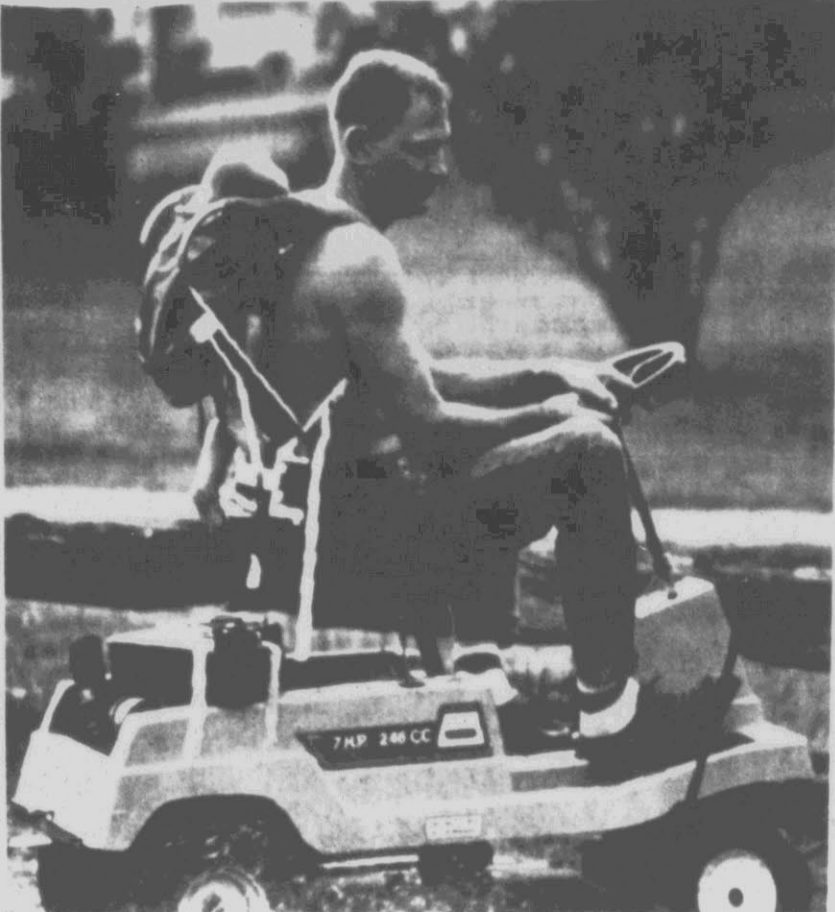

Many of them, wage and hour officials believe, may be working for less than the federal minimum wage of $3.10 an hour. Next year, the minimum rises to $3.35.

After the judge ordered Mrs. Blakeney be repaid, Mrs. Walton's attorney, former state Sen. McNeil Smith asked for a new trial or an $800 reduction in the award.

The department said the additional income the minimum wage law provides for domestic workers would have a direct bearing on commerce because it "would be going to persons at the very bottom level of our economy, who would be expected to spend it quickly, thereby stimulating interstate commerce.

SOUND ASLEEP — Seven-month-old Jason Hopkins of Jacksonville, N.C., doesn't like to be rocked to sleep in the normal way. Young Jason prefers to be lulled to sleep by the sound of the lawn mower and the ride. J. B. Hopkins.

Jason's father, says that it only takes about three trips around the yard to put the lad to sleep. The question arises — what will the parents do when the grass doesn't need cutting anymore? (AP Laserphoto)

In Mrs. Blakeney's case, she was awarded $3,864 in back pay and $2,500 in attorney's fees last month after four years of litigation, including an unsuccessful constitutional challenge to the federal wage and hour law.

The award is one of the largest court awards ever to a domestic worker under the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, which Congress amended in 1974 to extend the federal minimum wage to domestic workers.

In the largest award, a federal court in Brooklyn, N.Y., awarded an Indian immigrant $64,660 last spring. The man had worked 17 hours a day, seven days a week, for nearly four years as a domestic worker and pistachio roaster in a New York state resident's nut business.

"It was almost a slavery situation," one wage and hour official said.

Officials say the Blakeney case is significant because it involves a typical domestic work situation, it shows that a domestic worker can go to federal court and successfully sue for back pay and it draws attention to the minimum-wage requirement.

1903 Rural School Moved To Pitt Farmstead Museum

A prime example of a turn of the century rural one-room school, the Eagles Primary-Grammar School of the Saratoga Community of Wilson County has been moved to The Connor Eagles Farmstead and Museum at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. Mrs. Mattie Lee Eagles Newman, with the full support and agreement of her brothers and sister, donated the building which in the early years of this century was "school" to boys and girls six to 18 or 19 years old, in a school where one young teacher taught 40 or more students.

Text and Photographs By Jerry Raynor

The Move

AT THE ORIGINAL SITE . . . This photograph of the Eagles Primary-Grammar School west of Falkland in the Saratoga Community of Wilson County was taken shortly before it was moved to the Pitt County Fairgrounds. The school, built in 1903, was on a spacious rural site with old oak trees that were young trees when the school was built. The tin roof of the building was a replacement, made five years ago, for the original tin roof. Note the absence of the original front porch and the excellent condition of the overlapping shingles of the building.

When the Pitt County Fair opens tomorrow, there will be an added attraction for those visiting the growing spread of The Connor Eagles Farmstead and Museum located on the fairgrounds—an authentic early 20th century one room wood school building.

Early this past summer, Mrs. Mattie Lee Eagles Newman, who grew up in the Saratoga Community west of Falkland and is now a resident of Bumpas, Virginia, decided to donate the Eagles School Building to the complex of historic buildings and artifacts located at the fairgrounds.

Her brothers and a sister agreed to making a gift of the building. (They are Horace Eagles and his wife, Etta, of Louisville, Kentucky; Dr. William Eagles and his wife, Doris, of Richmond, Virginia; and Mrs. Margaret Copeland of Durham.)

They are all children of the late John R. Eagles. "Mattie Lee is the youngest of these first cousins of mine," Connor Eagles of Greenville, founder of the farmstead and museum said. "When she mentioned the idea to her brothers and sister, they were all interested and pleased. They all wholeheartedly supported Mattie Lee in giving the building. They told me they would be happy to see it preserved and taken care of for future generations to be able to see what a community school of the early part of this century looked like."

Built In 1903

The spacious, functional one-story wood building measures 24-by-36 feet and was constructed in 1903. Its location was west of Fountain in Saratoga Township, just over the county line in Wilson County.

"This building replaced a smaller school house on the same site," Connor Eagles explained. "There'd been a school there for a long time, I don't know the exact date, but possibly before the Civil War."

"The original school was fostered by my grandfather, T. R. Eagles. All his life he was active in the operation of the school. In turn, his sons John and Dow, his nephews Bill Bass and Walter Owens, and his niece's husband, Ben Gardner, were all involved in the operation of the school. "Back in those days," Eagles added, "schools like the Eagles School were operated by school committeemen, and all these men I mentioned served as school committeemen."

Seven Grades, One Teacher
When Connor Eagles started school at Eagles School in the year 1906, it was a primary-grammar school serving neighborhood children from the first through the seventh grade.

"Our teacher was a lovely young woman, Miss Mary Pittman from Leggetts, not much older than some of her students. At that time she had about 40 or maybe a few more students from as young as six years old to a few older boys who were 18 or 19."

Eagles noted that later on, after he'd moved from the community into Edgecombe County, the school committee partitioned the building, making two rooms and hiring another teacher to help Miss Pittman.

Then, "about 1916 or 1917, the school system was consolidated. The Eagles School was closed, and students who'd gone there were transferred to the Saratoga School."

$400 Construction Cost

Seventy-seven years ago, when the Eagles School was constructed, the total cost was $400. That price included the use of choice lumber, lathing and plastering, the installation of the large windows, "everything," Eagles said. "It was a turn key job, nothing left unfinished." He added he verified the figures from the old volume of minutes of the school's committeemen's meetings.

That it was built to last can be verified that after more than a dozen years of sturdy use by active students, and far in excess of half a century being unoccupied except for storage, the building needed only a minimum of restoration after it was moved to its new Pitt County location.

"Mattie Lee had a new tin roof put on about five years ago," Eagles said. "That's really the only major thing that has been done to it in all these years."

The small original front porch disappeared over the years, but there was no difficulty in authenticating the shape and size of the original—from old photographs and also from the faint outline of the porch that could still be easily seen on the wood surrounding the front door.

Fellow Students

A number of former students of the Eagles Primary-Grammar School of the Saratoga Community are still well and alive. "This includes two who are older than me, among others that I know about," Eagles commented.

The two he mentioned are Herman Owens. "I understand he lives in Beaufort County and I've heard that his daughter is the head nurse at Pitt County Hospital. And there's Pauline Gardner, now Mrs. J. G. Perry. She lives on a large farm near Edenton." Eagles added "of course, many of those who went to school there in my time and later are now gone. I hope that all of those who are still living will hear about their old school being preserved and will have a chance to see it at its new location."

Moved This Summer

The Eagles School was moved from its rural wooded location in Wilson County to the homestead-museum site at the Pitt County Fairgrounds several weeks ago, in the middle of the summer. The building was taken apart to facilitate the long move of more than 45 miles.

"The directors of the Pitt County Agriculture Fair, which is owned by the American Legion, paid for the cost of moving it," Eagles said. "Some people think that I paid for having it moved, but that is by no means the case." He noted too that the fair directors were the ones who insisted the site be named The Connor Eagles Farmstead and Museum. "I'd as soon it had not borne my name, but they insisted," he explained.

A decision was made to place the school next to the small log church that was moved in and restored a couple of years ago.

Honey Of A Problem

Only one major problem, one referred to by Eagles as "a honey of a problem," developed in the various stages involved in getting the building moved.

"We discovered a tremendous hive of bees in one corner of the building," he said. "They had found an opening into the wood and had established a huge hive, no telling how many years it had been there." The presence of the bees necessitated hiring a person knowledgeable in living bees to go there and remove the swarm. "The man who did it got four hives from that corner, and even at that there enough bees left over to fill a fifth hive."

Fortunately, with all those bees being disturbed, only a couple of people were stung by the literally thousands of bees who obviously resented having their established residence invaded. Eagles chuckled when he noted that the bee removal "cost a little over $200, half as much as the original cost of the building."

Future Plans

At this time, the Eagles School has been painted, and a new porch added. Work on the interior is not completed, because a decision was made to remove the original plaster and to replaster the inside walls. "It will be another few weeks before that can be finished," Eagles said. "But people can get a good outside view, and later come back to see what it's like inside."

"Now that we have the building here on the fairgrounds, we hope to put it to good use. We're having lights installed. The size of the building will make it ideal as a place for boards and other groups to hold meetings here where it's quiet, away from noise and traffic.

"The Pitt County Historical Society has plans to hold a meeting here on October 22. I think it's appropriate that the first official use of the building will be for that meeting."

Eagles said the one thing that pleases him above all is "that we have this building here where it's convenient for young people to see something of the kind of place where their forebears went to to get their education. I feel they will be impressed that getting an education then was far simpler in many ways than it is today."

THOSE WHO MADE IT POSSIBLE . . . Mrs. Mattie Lee Eagles Newman (at right) offered the Eagles School building to Connor Eagles for his farmstead-museum in Greenville and was enthusiastically supported in her offer by two brothers and a sister. They are (left to right) Dr. William Eagles (and his wife Etta), Mrs. Margaret Copeland, and Horace Eagles.

REFLECTIONS OF THE SUMMER...This abandoned boathouse at Lake Waccamaw, filled with muck instead of water, casts curved reflections in the shallow water around it. The abandoned ambience of the spot is one signal that the end of summer and the beginning of autumn is at hand. According to the calendars, the fall season officially begins tomorrow. Soon, cool nights will lower the temperature of summer waters, sending swimmers to the shore. Later, in December and January, these reflections will be covered by high water and the old boards will be weathering another winter. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

AT ITS NEW LOCATION . . . Now moved to The Connor Eagles Farmstead and Museum on the Pitt County Fairgrounds, the Eagles School has been painted and a front porch, based on old photographs added. The interior is still incomplete, undergoing replastering. The school has been placed within the complex next to the log church that was moved here and restored a couple of years ago.

Couple Speaks Vows In Evening Ceremony

Miss Annis Beaman Paschal and John Rodney Westmoreland of Atlanta were married Saturday evening at eight o'clock in a candlelight ceremony at The Memorial Baptist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Richard Paschal Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Reed Westmoreland of Tupelo, Miss.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. T. Vinson, pastor of the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of imported chantilly lace. The gown, styled along princess lines, was worn over white bridal satin. The moulded lace bodice featured a rounded neckline edged in lace flower petals with a high yoke of sheer illusion. The full skirt was designed with lace side panels gathered at the hipline, bordered in a lace frill and extended into a full length cathedral train. She wore a cathedral length veil of embroidered Brussels lace and carried a bouquet of white roses accented with baby's breath and foliage with touches of Boston fern.

Patricia Ann Paschal, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Myrla Cox of Atlanta, Ga., Brigid Eaton of Alexandria, Va., Catherine Joyner of Greenville, Mrs. Nancy Deyton Nelson of Carrboro, Nancy Newcomb of Plainsboro, N. J. and Mrs. Sandy Tarleton of Winston-Salem.

They wore formal gowns of mauve chiffon over taffeta with each designed with a portrait neckline edged in piping and a blouson bodice with short split sleeves. A rolled tie sash encircled the waistline from which fell the modified A-line skirt topped with a gathered peplum. They carried cascades of rubrum lilies accented with baby's breath, foliage and satin ribbon.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Lynn Laughinghouse Hodges of Greenville and Ann Robinson of New York City. Each carried a long-stemmed red rose accented with greenery.

The father of the bride groom was best man. Groomsmen were Thomas Milton of Stone Mountain, Ga., Lt. Keith Nostrant, USN, of Virginia Beach, Va., Herbert R. Paschal III of Greenville, brother of the bride, Craig Sellner, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Irvin Silver, both of Atlanta, Ga., and Lt. Cmdr. Larry Diddlemeyer, USN, of Virginia Beach, Va.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of slate blue with a bodice of Nottingham lace. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal green chiffon gown inlaid with lace. The maternal grandmother, Mrs. John Jacob Stauffer Sr. of Greenville, wore a formal gown of dusty rose silesta. All wore phalaenopsis orchids.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Joe Goodwin, Barry Shank, trumpeter, and Christy Frerking of St. Louis, Mo., who sang "Ave Venum" and "The Wedding Prayer."

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall and guests were greeted by Dr.

and Mrs. Wilkins B. Winn. Presiding at the guest register were Mrs. Eva Jorgenson Kendrick. Punch was poured by Mrs. Bob Deyton, Mrs. Max Joyner, Mrs. Riley Cox and Mrs. Joseph Murad. Cake was served by Mrs. Douglas Jones and Mrs. Howard Wilson. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Pair and Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens.

The bridegroom's parents gave a rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Ramada Inn followed by a dance given by friends of the bridal couple. The bride was also honored at a bridesmaids luncheon. A wedding brunch was given by friends of the bridal couple Saturday morning.

The bride is a graduate of Wake Forest University and is now a para-legal with the law firm of Arnall, Golden and Gregory, Atlanta. The bridegroom graduated from Georgia Tech and is a stockbroker with Merrill Lynch, Atlanta, where the couple will live after a wedding trip to San Francisco and the West Indian island of Barbados.

MRS. JOHN RODNEY WESTMORELAND

Moye-Cherry Vows Said

CHAPEL HILL — Mitzi Davis Cherry and Lawrence Anderson Moye III were united in marriage at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at University United Methodist Church here.

The single ring ceremony was performed by William D. Strickland of Maryville, Tenn., formerly of Chapel Hill.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Cherry, reside in Chapel Hill and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Anderson Moye Jr. are residents of Maury.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a formal gown of white silk organza. The fitted bodice was styled with a scooped neckline with a Venise lace bertha collar. The A-line skirt featured a chapel train. Her full length veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a Venise lace Camelot hat. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. Matron of honor was Pamela Cherry Little of Fayetteville, sister of the bride, and maid of honor was Elizabeth Morrison Moye of Maury, sister of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids included Jane Tavernor Battle of Ivy, Va., Mary Gibbs Chadwick and Elizabeth Chadwick Cherry of Wilmington, Jaclynn Kay Dabagian of Raleigh, Felisa Harrison of La Grange and Valerie Tullai Williams of Chapel Hill.

The bride's attendants wore formal dresses of rose colored qiana, with accented pleated skirts and waistline accented by a sash gathered at the side. Each girl carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers included William Robert Cherry Jr. of Wilmington and John Dewey Cherry of Chapel Hill, brothers of the bride, James Morrison of Richmond, Va., Frederick Morrison of Winston-Salem, Steve Cella of New Bern, Bill Bryan of Raleigh, David James Little of Fayetteville, Richard Parker of Goldsboro and Chuck Stokes of Maury.

The ring bearer was David James Little Jr. of Fayetteville, nephew of the bride.

A reception was held after the ceremony in the Old Well Room of the Carolina Inn. The bridegroom's parents entertained at a rehearsal dinner held at The Governor's Inn in Research Triangle Park. Following the dinner, a dance featured The Fantastic Shakers.

On the morning of the wedding, a wedding breakfast was held in the Carolina Inn, hosted by the bride's aunts and uncles.

The bride received her B.A. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta. She is a candidate for her M.A. in physical education and adult education.

The bridegroom received his BSBA from UNC-Chapel

Hill, where he served as president of Chi Phi. He is now with L. A. Moye Farms.

Following a wedding trip Bermuda, the couple will live in Maury.

Vows Solemnized In Saturday Ceremony

Sarah Anne Bailey Lassiter and John Paul Smith were united in marriage Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. R. M. Stewart of Dunn officiated at the formal candlelight, double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Cassie M. Bailey of Rt. 3, Greenville, and the late Mr. John C. Bailey. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Smith of Winston-Salem.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Grady Bailey, organist, Johnna Mizell and Dale Bailey sang "Let It Be Me" and "I Pledge My Love." Mrs. R. M. Stewart sang "The Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

Given in marriage by her family and escorted by her brother, Grady C. Bailey, the bride wore a formal Victorian style gown of candlelight chiffon over silk taffeta with panels of scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace edged in Venise daisy pattern lace. Lace panels trimmed the full A-line skirt and a border of lace around the hemline extended into a cathedral train. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a headpiece of re-embroidered alencon lace petals encrusted with pearls. She carried a colonial nosegay of white button pom poms, miniature carnations, pink roses centered with cymbidium orchids tied with lace streamers.

Melissa Anne Bailey served her aunt as maid of honor and wore a formal gown of sky blue matte jersey designed with an open neckline, empire bodice styled with a gathered overlay. She carried long-stemmed pink roses interspersed with baby's breath and tips of eucalyptus tied with eggshell and emerald streamers.

Bridesmaids, Murldene Bailey, sister-in-law of the bride, Ginger Bailey, niece of the bride, Mary Kitrell, cousin of the bride, Debra Strickland of Farmville, Sylvia Revels of Williamston and Cathy Stokes of Greenville, wore gowns styled identical to that of the honor attendant in periwinkle blue and carried pink roses.

Alecia Page, flower girl, was dressed in a candlelight gown trimmed in blue and carried a basket of rose petals. Jason Congleton, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Jamey and Jeffrey Smith, sons of the bridegroom, Coleman Bailey, nephew of the bride, Mark and William Smith of Raleigh, Robert Smith of Winston-Salem, brothers of the bridegroom, John Louis Bailey, brother of the bride, Dale Bailey, nephew of the bride, and Dr. Warren Anderson of High Point.

The bride's mother wore a formal gown of emerald magic knit styled with a sheer attached cape. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of aqua knit fashioned with a matching jacket edged in Venise lace. Both wore corsages of mixed fall flowers.

Mrs. Sarah D. Mills, namesake of the bride, was remembered with a corsage.

Helen Broadus presided at the bridal registry and Kim Trobaugh presented wedding programs. Rice bags were distributed by Michelle Kitrell.

After the ceremony the bride's family entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Connie Dixon, who invited them to the refreshment table. After the bridal couple cut the first slice of wedding cake, it was served by Mrs. Inettie Hudson and Mrs. Edna Mills. Mrs. Jean Farmer and Mrs. Shirley Lovette, sisters of the bridegroom, poured punch. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Don Mills who presented guests scrolls.

Miss Susan Barnhill, Mrs. Charlotte Frisby and Miss Debbie Strickland entertained at an after-rehearsal party Friday night in the church fellowship hall.

Miss Reeves, Mr. Critcher Marry Saturday

CHARLOTTE — St. John's Episcopal Church here was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding of Lenora Ann Reeves and Bradford Stuart Critcher.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Robert L. Hayden Jr. at 7:30. A program of organ music was presented by John Asbury.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moore Reeves Jr. of Charlotte, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Stuart Critcher of Raleigh.

The maid of honor was Terri Reeves, sister of the bride, while bridesmaids included Kim Ingram of Dunn, Kathy Stultz of Charlotte and Nancy Barbrey of Raleigh, sister of the bridegroom. Honorary bridesmaids were Andrea Kilpatrick of Raleigh and Dolcie Williams of Cary.

The best man was Dan Robbins of Raleigh and ushers were Randy Reeves, brother of the bride, and Bobbie Barbrey, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Raleigh and Phil Howard of Washington.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza styled with an empire waistline, Queen Anne neckline and long bishop sleeves. Appliques of Venise lace and seed pearls accented the bodice of the gown and the full A-line skirt extended into a chapel length mantilla attached to a Camelot cap with lily of the valley attached to the side of the cap with the same appliques of Venise lace and seed pearl. She carried a cascading bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids interspersed with lily of the valley, stephanotis and ivy.

Each attendant wore a formal length chiffon gown of lilac. The bodice had spaghetti straps with a natural waistline. A flared chiffon tier accented the gown. A chiffon capelet covered the shoulders. They carried silk nosegays of lavender and pink interspersed with baby's breath and cascading satin streamers.

The couple will live in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Paradise Island, Bahamas.

The bride is a graduate of ECU and was a member of Alpha Phi Sorority. The bridegroom graduated from NCSU.

A reception was held at the Sharonview Country Club following the ceremony. Music was provided by the Just Us Band.

A rehearsal dinner, held Friday night at the Peddler

Steak House, Charlotte, was given by parents of the bridegroom.

Claude Jones

Mr. Jones, an authority on 18th Century Traditional Arrangements, will be here for two days only to give classes on this almost forgotten art.

The sights, the sounds, the smells of days gone by will come alive when Jones demonstrates how to work with holly, ivy, boxwood and bay to create these colonial decorations.

Come and hear about the hospitality of a Middle Plantation Thanksgiving and learn how to really 'deck the halls' this Christmas as Jones fashions wreaths from fruit, berries and cones that would have been available to the colonists 200 years ago.

There is no admission charge so seating will be limited and available only to those who have made reservations. So call 756-2355 now and specify which class you wish to attend. Tickets may be picked up at the credit office beginning Thursday, September 25.

something exciting is happening this week at Belk Tyler.

Create the Magic of a Williamsburg Christmas . . . in Your House This Year.

Learn how to decorate with holly, ivy, boxwood and bay to capture an elusive 18th Century charm . . . like the scent of apples and woodsmoke in the air.

Meet Claude Jones a florist from historic Williamsburg and an authority on 18th Century traditional arrangements. See him blend the past with the present in decorating for the holiday season.

In creating Christmas decorations, Jones takes advantage of varieties of fruit, berries and cones that would have been available to the colonists 200 years ago to fashion Della Robbia or free-designed wreaths. 18th Century prints, illustrations from books and architectural details serve as guides for Mr. Jones.

A native Virginian, Jones attributes his love of Williamsburg and its traditions to his life long interest in 'old houses and furniture'. He reports that he has always considered Williamsburg as 'a wonderful place to live'.

Jones' keen interest in Williamsburg encourages him to share his talents of recreating the decorations of 200 years ago, thus bringing the hospitality and warmth of yesterday into today's homes at Christmas time.

Mr. Jones will be conducting classes on how to make Williamsburg arrangements with both fresh and dried floral materials. There will be two classes held on Thursday, October 2 and Friday, October 3 in our Training Room.

Because there will be no admission charge and seating is limited for these sessions, you are urged to make your individual reservations as soon as possible by calling 756-2355 and specifying in which class you wish to enroll. Tickets may be picked up a week before October 2 and must be presented at the door for admittance. Call now before these classes fill up.

Double Ring Vows Spoken

NEW BERN — Marilyn Kay Etheridge and Edward Porter Armstrong III were united in marriage Saturday at two o'clock at Trinity United Methodist Church here. Officiating the ceremony was the Rev. Edward Porter Armstrong Jr., father of the bridegroom.

Nuptial music was presented by Mrs. George Zaytoun and soloist William P. Speight, uncle of the bride. "The Wedding Song," "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love" were sung. Given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Etheridge of Rt. 10, Statesville, and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk floral Venise lace beaded with pearls. Matching beaded lace extended over the empire bodice and the waistline which featured a Dior organza bow at center back. The sheer bishop sleeves had cuffs trimmed in floral silk lace. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by a ruffled flounce at the hemline with a Southern Belle lace flounce pick-up overskirt that extended to an attached chapel length train. She wore a walking veil of illusion with a fingertip layer, both edged in silk daisy lace, held in place by a Camelot caplet overlaid in floral silk lace. The bride carried a bouquet of orchids and baby's breath encircled with ferns.

Debbie Holt of Roanoke was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Susan Armstrong, sister of the bridegroom, Martha Moore of Point Harbour, Nancy Taylor of New Bern, Philis Brice of Wilson, Lisa Walkup of Chadds Ford, Pa., and Tina Longnecker of Greenville. They wore formal gowns of tangerine qiana. Each gown was designed with a bare neckline draped with a chiffon overlay. The empire waistline skirt was enhanced by accordin pleats. They carried a bouquet of tangerine tiger lilies and baby's breath encircled with ferns.

Rusty Garner of New Bern was best man and ushers included John Armstrong, brother of the bridegroom, Brian Etheridge, brother of the bride, Charles Jarman, Brian Fisher, both of New Bern, Gordon Jamieson of New Brunswick, N. J., and Gray Warren of Roanoke Rapids.

The bride's mother selected a formal gown of pink qiana with a draped chiffon overlay accented by seed pearls and rhinestones. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of green qiana with a bare neckline draped with a chiffon overlay. The mothers and grandmothers were given white rosebud corsages.

A reception given by the bride's parents followed the ceremony in the fellowship hall of the church. Serving were Mrs. Josephine Unglesbee, Mrs. Merle Etheridge and Mrs. Shirley Speight, Sandy Cutler and Kathy Boger presided at the guest book.

After a wedding trip to New York City the couple will live in Greenville.

MRS. ALAN CLARK FORREST

Candlelight Wedding Held

VANCEBORO — Barbara Ann Lewis and Alan Clark Forrest exchanged vows Saturday evening at seven o'clock in a formal candlelight ceremony held at Oak Grove F.W.B. Church here. The Rev. Buddy Sasser of Vanceboro, pastor of the bride, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Debra G. Lewis of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ruby C. Forrest of Vanceboro.

A program of classical selections was presented by Ms. Vickie Powell, pianist, of New Bern. Ms. Sue Cox of Vanceboro sang "More," "The Wedding Prayer," "If" and "You Light Up My Life."

Escorted by her uncle, John H. Wilson of Vanceboro and presented for marriage by her mother, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over white peau de soie. The gown was designed with a high neckline encircled with white silk floral Venise lace that extended into the sheer yoke of the empire bodice which was enhanced by pleated organza bordered in lace and featured appliques of sculptured silk floral lace.

The full A-line skirt and attached chapel length train was styled in a Southern Belle design. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion, scalloped and pencil edged, scattered with motifs of silk Venise lace and held in place by a caplet overlaid in silk floral Venise lace. She carried a formal silk bouquet of white sweetheart roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and sprays of greenery tied with bridal white satin.

Mrs. Henry Wilborne directed the wedding.

Mrs. Mitchell Nicholson of Gritton attended as honor attendant. She wore a formal gown of royal blue silesta. The gown was designed with an open neckline and featured a gathered criss-cross bodice in front with a cowl drape in back. The waistline was encircled with a rolled tie sash, from which fell an accordion pleated skirt. A matching imported braid garden hat was worn. She carried an arm bouquet of long-stemmed white silk roses with gypsophilia and greenery.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ricky Forrest of Ayden and Mrs. James Blanchard of Greenville. Their gowns and hats were identical to the honor attendant. They carried arm bouquets of long-stemmed white silk roses with gypsophilia and greenery.

Junior bridesmaids were Dana and Diane Ippock of Vanceboro. The twins wore formal gowns of royal blue silesta designed with an open neckline edged in blouson ruffle. They carried arm bouquets identical to the bridesmaids.

The flower girl was Miss Kristy Malan of Vanceboro. She wore a formal gown of blue organza over blue taffeta designed with a Peter Pan collar edged in white chantilly lace. She carried a wicker basket of blue and white petals decorated with blue ribbons.

Ricky Forrest, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Glenn Loftin and Chris Stencil of Ayden, Dennis and Donnie Stox of Vanceboro. The ring bearer was Jason Sasser.

The mother of the bride was attired in an aqua magic knit gown fashioned with a V-neckline. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue and white floral knit gown fashioned with a high rounded neckline. Both wore corsages of white silk roses. The grandmother of the bride wore a white silk georgianna orchid.

Mrs. Steve Sutton presided at the guest register. Mrs. Henry Wilborne was director of ceremonies.

The bride is a Magna Cum Laude graduate of ECU and is employed as a first grade teacher in the Greenville City Schools. The bridegroom is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute. He is employed at Brown Wood here.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's mother entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall. Cake was served by Mrs. George Ewell and Mrs. Harold Carawon. Punch was poured by Mrs. Junior Stox. Rice bags were given to guests by the junior bridesmaids. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Admas.

On Friday, the bridegroom's mother and brother entertained the wedding party and family friends at an after-rehearsal dinner held at the home of the bridegroom's mother.

A miscellaneous shower was given Thursday night at Oak Grove F.W.B. Church by the Ladies Auxiliary.

After a wedding trip to the mountains, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Network: WOMEN Program Planned

Plans for "Network: WOMEN" scheduled for Tuesday night, Sept. 23, highlighted the meeting of the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women held Wednesday.

Beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the new Pitt County Office auditorium, the program will include an explanation of "networking" by Jimmie Sniffen and Judy Kornegay. Smaller group sessions will follow and will be led by Jane Little, Jean Darden and Susan Nobles.

Others to appear on the program are Helem Simpson of Robersonville, who will tell of the purposes of the North Carolina on the Status of Women and Edward Warren, who is chairman of Pitt County Commissioners.

Letters were mailed to women leaders throughout Pitt County last week along with a survey to get ideas of the needs and interests of women. Those receiving the letters were asked to return a registration form and the survey.

Council Chairman Jean Darden said the meeting next Tuesday to open without a charge to any woman in the county.

Susan Nobles, a council member, appeared on WNCT-TV Thursday morning further telling about the Networking meeting.

Sylvia Wheelless announced open house at the new County Office has been set for Sunday, Nov. 2, from 3-5 p.m. Congressman Walter Jones will be keynote speaker for the event. Several council members will be assisting during the afternoon.

Several announcements were made by Mrs. Nobles and Mrs. Darden.

The meeting for October will be held at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office and will start at 5 p.m.

TV Garbage: A Parents' Turnoff

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We recently got cable television, and our 12-year-old daughter has been watching R-rated movies even though we would prefer that she not do so.

She said there is nothing wrong with it because she knows what is going on in the world. We're afraid that she'll soon think that the behavior portrayed in these movies is the norm.

Are we square in believing that a 12-year-old really doesn't need to watch a constant stream of sex and violence?

What do you think? And what should we tell her? She is a very level-headed girl.

IN A BIND IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR IN: Responsible parents would not permit their children to eat garbage, so why tempt them with intellectual garbage by making it so handy and accessible? If you believe you are exposing your daughter to "a constant stream of sex and violence" with cable TV, you shouldn't have it in your home.

Do I think you're "square?" No. However, I do think you're unrealistic to have R-rated movies available on TV at home, while telling your 12-year-old you prefer she didn't watch them.

DEAR ABBY: I am sending you a copy of a guide for self-help. I am not the author and I don't know who originated it, but I hope you will find it worth sharing with your readers. I think it's excellent.

JIM SCHMITT, SACRAMENTO

DEAR JIM: I agree. But it's much too long to be published in its entirety. I hope the author will come forth to accept the credit, and forgive me for editing the piece to suit my purpose.

SCENARIO FOR A WINNER

A winner says, "Let's find out"; a loser says, "Nobody knows."

A winner makes commitments. A loser makes promises.

A winner says, "I'm good, but not as good as I ought to be"; a loser says, "I'm not as bad as a lot of other people."

A winner credits his "good luck" for winning — even though it wasn't his good luck; a loser blames his "bad luck" for losing — even though it wasn't his bad luck.

A winner listens; a loser just waits until it's his turn to talk.

A winner respects those who are superior to him and tries to learn from them; a loser resents the superiority of others and tries to find chinks in their armor.

A winner does more than his job; a loser says, "I only work here."

A winner says, "I fell"; a loser says, "Somebody pushed me."

Q.—I cannot understand your objections to playing a lot of conventions. My partner and I are duplicate addicts, and our convention card is crowded with the gadgets we play. Not only have these conventions given us great enjoyment, but they have improved our game! Comments, please?—J. Gibson, Montreal

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)
A.—Congratulations. I am delighted that you employ a myriad of gimmicks and that you feel your methods are the reason that your game has improved. But have you ever considered that your game might be improving because you are gaining experience, and the fact that you play a lot of artificial conventions might actually be holding you back? I am not against conventions per se, but to simply put some new-fangled ideas into a hat, draw out a few and opt to play them regardless of whether they suit your style or are compatible with the rest of your methods is sheer folly.

There are other disadvantages to playing a host of conventions. It imposes a tremendous strain on your memory, and, as a result, your energy reserves are depleted—to the detriment of other aspects of the game. I know that you will never admit that you and your partner could ever forget a conventional call, or misunderstand a systemic bid—but the weight of conventions do cause memory lapses. I have seen this happen many times at the highest levels of bridge.

In a national championship a few years ago, one of the country's best pairs ended up playing one diamond doubled, vulnerable with a singleton facing a doubleton. That contract did not prove to be a resounding success—it cost 1100 points. And in the finals of a major Australian team championship only a few months ago, this hand occurred:

West	East
♠ A7632	♠ Void
♥ A874	♥ KJ9532
♦ Void	♦ KQ8432
♣ KJ103	♣ 8

With both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	1NT	2♣
Pass	3♣	Pass	4♣
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

As you can see, six hearts is an excellent contract. East's bid of two spades showed an unspecified two-suited hand, and West's three spades asked which two suits. Apparently, the correct response to show diamonds and hearts was four diamonds, but East either forgot or wanted to confirm a six-card heart suit (it is not quite clear which). West's pass is hard to understand, no matter which two suits his partner held, but he had been confused by the auction.

Virtually every expert partnership has experienced a mishap of this sort, so how can I possibly recommend complicated gadgets to average players?

Major Change Not In Store

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Sheriff Willie Rogers said Friday that there have been no major changes in the operations of the Sheriff's Department since he took office September 1.

"The only thing," Rogers noted, "is that we've started marking the cars." He explained that the Sheriff's Department vehicles will be tan, with "stars on the door." Rogers added that "we're in the process" of installing blue lights on the tops of the vehicle, too.

One major change Rogers said he would like to make is for the department to "operate on shifts," by assigning deputies to work 24 hours a day. However, Rogers suggested that the present lack of manpower hampers such an organization.

According to Rogers, the department now operates with 10 people to serve the 26,000 people in Martin. He indicated that he would ask the Board of County Commissioners for additional manpower for the next fiscal year.

Rogers, who is filling the unexpired term of former Sheriff Raymond Rawl, was chief of the 16-man Williamston Police Department prior to his appointment to the county post. He served as a sergeant in the North Carolina Highway Patrol before becoming head of the Williamston Police Department.

City School Lunch Menus

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at the Greenville elementary schools have been announced as follows:

Monday — Breakfast, assorted cereal, milk, orange juice. Lunch, "disappearing dog" and chili, potato salad, green beans, fresh banana, milk.

Tuesday — Breakfast, cheese toast, orange juice, milk. Lunch, chicken and pastry, broccoli, pineapple bits, garden peas, roll, milk.

Wednesday — Breakfast, sausage biscuit, fresh fruit, milk. Lunch, Sloppy Joe on bun, fresh salad, corn on cob, chilled fruit, milk.

Thursday — Breakfast, pancakes & syrup, orange juice, milk. Lunch, cubed steak, creamed potatoes & gravy, steamed cabbage, lemon pudding, roll, milk.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When you think about it, the relationship between parents and children breaks down into three little words: a poker game.

Take the case of a teenager who wants to borrow the car.

He opens with a pair of promises: "I'll go to the store for your eggs and pick up the cleaning on the way home."

Mother: "I'll raise you taking your sister to the orthodontist."

Teenager: "Okay, I'll raise you a full tank of gas and be home by 10... no later."

Mother: "What have you got in mind?"

Teenager: "Look, either raise me or call."

Mother: "Okay, here are the keys... whatya got?"

Teenager: "Just what I opened with... a couple of promises and a date I'm picking up in half an hour."

I've seen it happen a thousand times. The give and take... the emotions when the stakes are high... the breathless anticipation as parent and child get down to their last card.

I thought I was the world's greatest player in the game until God sent me the natural enemy of poker players everywhere — a kid that could not be bluff.

Even when I was 36 inches taller, 26 years older, 114 pounds heavier and played by my own rules, I couldn't beat him. I'd say, "Do you know what I'm going to do if you don't turn off that hose right now? I'm going to call off our vacation and put you in your bedroom without food or television and Mommy is going to sit here in the kitchen and cry until she gets sick!"

Without so much as a flinch or a moment's hesitation,

The Spanish classes at Rose, under the direction of Betty Beacham and Laura Shivar, saluted the Hispanic nations of the world during National Hispanic Heritage Week Sept. 14-21.

Each morning announcements concerning the day's activities were made in Spanish. All students and faculty were encouraged to participate in the various activities throughout the week.

On Monday, teachers and students wore name tags. On Tuesday, Senora Fernandez and Senora Hill, Spanish professors at ECU, were available for questions dealing with their native countries.

Senor Barwick of Guatemala and Senor Mora of Costa Rica also visited the school Wednesday. Stephen Donald, Rose art teacher, held a craft class in the library. Participants made "god's eyes," a traditional Mexican craft. After school Wednesday the Spanish Club members served refreshments at a faculty meeting. Spanish students serenaded other classes with Hispanic songs include "Fray Felipe," "Que Sera" and "La Cucaracha" Thursday. Friday was dress-up day with everyone in school invited to don costumes native to Spanish-speaking countries.

Selected by a random drawing, new members of the Anchor Club are Margaret Cherry, Alice Dawkins, Hih Song Kim, Barbara Little, Janet Mizelle, Martha Richardson, Suzanne Wille, Amy Yongue and Elizabeth Longino.

Anne Richards, president of the Anchor Club, plans to attend Freedom Foundation Oct. 16-19 in Valley Forge, Pa. Anchors from across the country will be in attendance and she is sponsored by the Pilot Club of Greenville.

Led by President Marjorie Crane, the Juniorettes will sponsor the Bloodmobile in the school gym Monday, Sept. 29. Other officers of the club are Jackie Brown, vice president, Sheila Collier, secretary, Janet Banks, treasurer, Melanie West, chaplain, and Lisa Priestly, historian.

Key Club members will sell buttons before all home football games in order to raise money for the club and to promote school spirit. Officers are Tom Brown, president, Van Warren, vice president and Chuck Coggins, secretary-treasurer.

he'd look me in the eye and turn on the spigot full force. The rest is too humiliating to dwell upon... the I mean it, the I'm going to tell you one more time, this is absolutely your last chance, I'm not kidding, and finally, I am going to leave the room and when I get back I want to see that water off.

In retrospect, there were many hands I'd have played differently. I would never have drawn on sympathy to fill an inside straight. I would never have paired my wild card with something insignificant. I would never have counted my winnings until the game was played.

But mostly, that first day when he turned the hose on, I'd have called off our vacation, put him in the bedroom without food or television and sat in the kitchen and cried until I got sick!

Recycling Rebel Now Runs Big Recycling Program

By JENNIFER KERR
Associated Press Writer
DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Richard Gertman, once a Ph.D. candidate in geology, now wears the blue uniform of the Davis garbage pickup service.

The evolution of the bearded 36-year-old Gertman from a recycling rebel a decade ago mirrors the recent history of Davis, transformed from a conventional rural town with a small agricultural college to a sort of utopia bursting with optimism about its own solar-powered energy-saving future.

Gertman started collecting newspapers for recycling during the 1970 Earth Day fervor. He kept on when others faltered and now runs the recycling program for Davis Waste Removal, a private garbage firm. Similarly, Davis' 3,000 townspeople took to all the modern fancies like bicycles and solar energy in a serious way. They made their city policy and found Davis being praised from coast-to-coast as a model energy-saving city.

The transformation began in 1966, when the main issue in the city council election was whether to set up a system of bike lanes. The pro-lane people won. Davis now has more than 25 miles of lanes snaking around town.

Davis' downtown resembles few other downtowns. It has no tall buildings, no vacant lots, few stoplights, no parking meters. Dozens of bicycles are parked in front of all the stores, many of them old houses restored and surrounded by shade trees.

At a market, Ada Drake packed her groceries in the flowered box on the rear of her three-wheeled cycle. Mrs. Drake, 68, has been riding two to five miles a day since she moved to Davis about 10 years ago.

"I didn't want to walk and I don't drive," she said. "I don't like to ride in a car when I can ride a bike. It's cheaper. I can sit and look around. It's beautiful."

She thinks other cities will have to become more like Davis, where she said "people are more considerate" of bike riders.

The 1972 council election was the first after the voting age was lowered from 21 to 18. Three candidates who campaigned on slow-growth, recycling and public transit issues defeated business-oriented incumbents.

Growth was the first issue tackled. The city had been growing at an 11 percent annual rate and the existing city plan predicted a 1990 population of 90,000.

The new plan sets a 1990 limit of 50,000 people and limits the number of new houses and condominiums that can be built each year.

In 1973, caught up like everyone else with the problems of heating homes and fueling cars, council members turned their attention to energy.

One result was an ordinance establishing energy standards for new homes. It requires attic, floor and wall insulation, light-colored roofs and walls and landscaped shading of most windows.

The newest ordinance, which took effect Jan. 1, requires any homeowner who sells a house to have outfitted it with low-flow showerheads, weatherstripping, insulation and thermal blankets on water heaters.

While the ordinances do not require solar devices, many Davis developers have built big subdivisions and apartment complexes using the sun to heat water or the houses themselves.

The city council also got involved in waste disposal and recycling.

By 1972, Gertman's Resource Awareness Committee had a full-time recycling center on the University of California campus where people could bring newspapers, cans and bottles. But Davis Waste Removal still had the contract to haul garbage.

Two years later, when the council passed an ordinance requiring residents to separate garbage and newspapers, DWR decided it was too expensive to pick up the papers along curbs and turned the job over to Gertman's group.

"The volume went way up," Gertman recalled. "We were doing very well. The decision was made that it was economical for DWR to take the program over. RAC gladly gave the program up."

DWR built a recycling center next to its plant on the town's outskirts with a concrete pit so the cans, bottles and newspapers can easily be dropped into huge boxes and hauled away.

Last year, Gertman came full-cycle — he joined Davis Waste. Now DWR also picks up cardboard, and residents can bring in used motor oil for disposal.

Gertman thinks the firm recycles about 70 percent of the newspaper used in Davis and about half the glass. It gets 120 tons of newspaper a month and about four tons of aluminum.

One of his future projects is turning brush and lawn clippings into compost for the Davis Community Gardens. For now, the branches, brush and grass trimmings picked up at curbside are dumped at a landfill.

Davis' energy projects are so organized there is even a standard tour a visitor can take by following a brochure. First lady Rosalynn Carter took the tour in March 1979; a few months later the president lauded Davis as a city that "has done a tremendous job."

RECYCLING CENTER CHIEF — Richard Gertman of the Davis (Calif.) Waste Removal Co., Inc. stands between crates of aluminum cans. Gertman says the center gets about 24 tons of aluminum a year. (AP Laserphoto)

Mount Rushmore Man Overcame Height Fears

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
MOUNT RUSHMORE, S.D. (AP) — A man with a fear of heights has no business dangling from a cable over Mount Rushmore, but Bob Crisman would not trade that duty with anyone.

"I've come to have very strong feelings about that sculpture," he was saying the other day, safe on the ground under the gaze of those four presidential faces.

"It's hard to put into words, but once you've been out there, touching it, moving over every square inch of it, you develop a certain attachment to it, a pride such as the men who actually carved it must have felt.

"It's a personal matter. I asked for the job, they let me have it, and I don't want anyone else to do it but me."

The National Park Service titles Bob Crisman's job "sculpture maintenance," an accurate but juiceless description of what he actually does.

What he does is strap himself in a bosun's chair and allow himself to be lowered over the face of the mountain, or rather the faces, by two trustworthy friends above operating a hand winch that was left for that purpose when the carvings were finished in 1941. Same old winch, same old cable.

From below, he looks like a tiny puppet on a string. Thus deployed, 300 feet above "impact level," as he puts it, he goes about filling hairline cracks in the granite so that water won't get in them, freeze, and possibly break off somebody's nose, or lip, or eyebrow.

"Don't worry," he said. "These are not cracks that have developed. They were always there. The rock is crazed, sort of like an old plate, with cracks from the size of a hair to the size of a pencil lead.

"When the sculptor, Gutzon Borglum, finished it, he filled all those cracks with a mixture of granite dust, white lead and linseed oil. I use the same thing. The cracks I fill are in the fillings. I have never seen any new cracks."

Bob Crisman's affection for the monument is apparent — he has read every word he can find about it — and also ironic.

He was born and raised on a ranch 13 miles from here and never troubled to go look at the sculpture, except a few times from a distance. When he got out of high school and then the Air Force, seven years ago, he took a job with the Park Service at age 24.

That was when he got his first close-up look at Mount Rushmore. "Once I saw it," he said, "I was really awed."

"When the sculpture maintenance job opened up three years ago, I applied. One reason was because I wanted to overcome my fear of heights. It didn't work. I still can't go near the edge of anything.

"The first time I was lowered my hands went wet. I shook all over and my heart raced like crazy. But I learned to control it. I guess it's in realizing that, strapped in like I am, I'm safe. Now it's like walking out the door.

"Now I know how the men who carved it felt. I've tried to locate as many of those men as I can, and talk to them.

"One of them, George Rumble, told me something I've never seen in any book. He told me they cut out a piece of weak feldspar and replaced it with a block of granite.

"I told him I had never seen a patch, and I never would have found it if he hadn't told me where to look.

"It's perfect job. It's a piece about 30 inches long and 14 inches wide, just to the right of Jefferson's nose and down into his lip line. I took a picture of it." A picture?

"Oh, yes. I never go out to Mount Rushmore without my camera."

Arab Oil Money Helps Rebuild Shattered Lebanon

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Recent injections of $133 million in Arab oil money has given new life to Lebanon's efforts to rebuild an economy ravaged by the 1975-76 civil war.

"There is barely a single project that is not moving ahead," said Mohammed Attallah, head of the Council of Development and Reconstruction in an interview in his ultra-modern office at the Baabda Presidential Palace. But some observers maintain that some of the more important projects are not moving fast enough.

Arab states, at a summit conference in Tunisia in November 1979, pledged $2 billion over the next five years. Unlike previous such promises, Attallah said, the commitments are being met.

So far this year, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Iraq, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar have sent checks while Libya and Algeria continued to hold back, he said.

The Arab money will be added to nearly a half billion dollars in loans negotiated since the end of the war, but even so it is far short of the $9 billion Attallah said is needed to put Lebanon back on its feet.

Nineteen months of war between Moslem leftists and Maronite Christians in this nation of 3 million destroyed $2.2 billion in property and resulted in $2.5 billion in lost income, the government has estimated.

About 15,000 homes were demolished or damaged, in addition to roads, water systems, electrical plants, schools and hospitals, officials say.

Beirut's commercial district, which earned the nation a reputation as the Switzerland of the Middle East, remains a ghost town where grass grows in the streets and snipers roam at will.

Attallah concedes the security situation in Lebanon remains "terrible" and rivalries of political groups hamper government efforts to launch reconstruction projects.

"If a road is built on the Christian side, then one has to be started on the Moslem side," said one Western banker involved in financing reconstruction projects.

Projects such as resurfacing highways and expanding electrical service have top priority along with a project to expand Beirut's port—the only place where Christians and Moslems work side by side.

"The big construction projects, the ones that will offset the losses of the war, are not being tackled," said one Western diplomat, citing the downtown area as an example.

A report on the nation's economy prepared by a group of Western embassies, virtually the only such effort since the Lebanese statistics bureau was ransacked in the war, lays at least part of the blame for the slow start in rebuilding on the government itself.

"The role of the state seems to be limited to verbal activity," says the report which is yet to be officially released. "The difficult security situation cannot fully justify the inactivity of the state. Massive foreign loans have been lying dormant for years."

Attallah, however, contends that except for new housing the program is moving ahead as fast as it can and that the central problem is the exodus of more than 200,000 Lebanese, including many of its skilled carpenters, electricians, engineers and other technicians.

"When the Lebanese living abroad see a decisive turn for the better in events here, they will take a discount on what they are earning abroad and come home," he predicted.

In the meantime, Attallah said, the reconstruction program is picking up. He said more than $300 million in contracts had been let for a variety of projects in the last two months.

Half of the Tunisia summit money was allocated for the rebuilding of southern Lebanon, a task rendered virtually impossible by the almost daily clashes between Palestinian commandos and Israeli-backed Christian militiamen or the Israelis themselves.

Part of the hesitancy of donor nations in pledging funds, Western analysts say, is the fear that any reconstruction will be destroyed by continued fighting.

"We think these Israeli activities prompt us to do more in the South because the nature of the expenditure there is not purely reconstruction. It is things like artesian wells, shelters, clinics and even schools—increasing the capacity of the southerners to stay put," Attallah said. More than 120,000 southern Lebanese have fled the area in five years of fighting. The United States has given a $30 million housing loan guarantee, of which the Reconstruction Council has spent half already. But Attallah said he is "a little bit disappointed" in the level of U.S. aid.

More Projects From UNICEF

NEW YORK (AP) - Projects to assist mothers and children in more than 50 developing countries at a cost of some $244 million were recently approved by the U.N. Children's Fund.

Among the new projects was a four-year program to help the government of China improve health, education, and nutrition services in remote areas of the country.

The initial financial commitment is $7 million. This is the first time that UNICEF has cooperated with China since the late 1940s and early 1950s when the agency was providing aid for health and child-feeding programs.

Two Chosen To Receive ECU Honor

ECU News Bureau
Two faculty members at East Carolina University have been selected as 1980 recipients of ECU Alumni Association Outstanding Teacher Awards.

They were Mary M. Fowler, associate professor in the School of Education's Department of Counselor Education, and Edward Markowski, associate professor of child development and family relations in the ECU School of Home Economics.

Each award included an engraved plaque and a cash prize of $500. The recipients were selected on the basis of a campus-wide random survey of students.

Dr. Fowler, who joined the ECU faculty in 1972, is a native of Syracuse, N.Y. She is an alumna of the State University of New York with advanced degrees from Western Reserve University and the University of North Carolina.

Before coming to ECU, she taught in public schools of Auburn, N.Y., Quincy, Mass. and the Indian Reservation at Southampton, N.Y. She has also worked as an educational researcher or consultant with the Greater Cleveland (Ohio) Research Council, the Educational Research Association and Pitman Publishing Co.

Dr. Markowski, a member of the ECU faculty since 1973, has degrees from LaSalle College, St. Stephen's College, East Tennessee State University and Florida State University. He is a Philadelphia, Pa. native.

Before coming to ECU he was a psychologist for the South Carolina Department of Mental Health.

His professional activities include numerous addresses at professional meetings and publications in professional journals. An active member of several organizations, Markowski is a past president of the N.C. Family Life Council and a delegate to the 1980 White House Conference on Families.

One Landlord Puts His Tenants First

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Carmen Porco is not exactly popular among his fellow landlords. He's a nice enough guy, but he's got some dangerous ideas.

For example: "We talk about the resident as a client." And, "Tenants should participate in the management decisions." Porco runs a 280-unit low-income public housing development here with a flair that has dropped the vacancy rate from 47 percent to 1 percent, the delinquency rate on rent payments from 22 percent to zero and the annual turnover rate from 31 percent to 6 percent. Porco, thinking he was on to a good thing, opened a consulting business to help other landlords and real estate managers reap the benefits of his "client-centered housing management."

So far he has had no takers. "The attitudes of the typical investor or landlord give priority to property rights versus human rights," Porco said. "For some, their motives are one-sided, primarily or solely to turn a profit. No wonder there is such distrust of landlords."

Porco took over management of the federally subsidized housing project, owned by a nonprofit arm of the American Baptist Church, during a bitter tenant strike in 1974.

His management system begins before a lease is signed. The whole tenant family undergoes several hours of "orientation" in which the lease and management policies are explained in detail — not only the usual "tenant obligations," but the tenant's rights and the landlord's obligations, too.

Porco and his 10-person administrative and maintenance staff also explain how and when they work, how complaints are handled and how they can be avoided. They even tell residents what local agencies and tenant rights groups can resolve a dispute with management.

Porco said that explaining everything to tenants, without relying on the "stonewall" and fear tactics he ascribes to other landlords, makes them more likely to keep the buildings and grounds in good condition, and to do much of the cleanup and fixup tasks themselves.

For instance, he said, maintenance complaints have dropped from 190 to 60 a month, and once-costly vandalism is rare now.

The average length of stay has increased from 11 months to 26 months, and 10 percent of the 600 residents regularly pay their rent before it is due, Porco said. "Things are so much better now," said Fran Smith, a resident for 12 years. "They're trying to improve the property and make life better for the tenants. And they're doing a marvelous job. I'd never move."

Another of Porco's secrets is regular meetings with residents, both individual tenants and members of the tenants' organization for the apartment complex.

"It allows management to do more creative things than try to collect the rent and evict people," he said.

He said he often finds government grants and subsidies that are available for various improvement projects, and helps the tenants' group apply for them.

Thus far, he said, those efforts have brought extensive landscaping and new play areas to the grounds, and new roofs, new windows, insulated siding and other energy conserving renovations to the buildings.

Porco said he eventually hopes a multipurpose service center can be built on the complex grounds to bring adult education and health and recreation programs to the entire neighborhood.

Garfield Stock, a University of Wisconsin-Extension business professor and consultant, said his study of Porco's complex showed he has kept costs down to the point where the rents are lower than many similar subsidized housing projects. "The tenants trust and respect the whole management team, and they're willing to work with them," Stock said.

He said other professional realty managers operate as "dictators," but even well-meaning landlords who try to be "benevolent dictators" unwittingly set up an "us-against-them" situation as opposed to Porco's "we're-all-in-this-together." "It doesn't work, even a benevolent dictatorship," Stock said. "People don't respond."

Pete Giordano, a federal housing management supervisor at the regional Housing and Urban Development office in Milwaukee, said Porco's success is due to his rapport with the tenants' organization.

"This program is unique," Giordano said. "Most landlords say here are the rules, abide by them. For Porco, an important part is constant involvement with the tenants. He wants to continually maintain an open relationship with his tenants."

A Place Of Solace

SPIRITUAL REFUGE . . . In a land long torn by strife, man still found his religion a solace. On a quiet tree shaded street in Saigon, during the years when American forces served in Viet-Nam, the Xa Loi Buddhist temple drew thousands of faithful who worshipped in this handsome, profusely decorated structure richly adorned in scarlet, blue and gold.

HAPPY VENDOR . . . One of the memories many Americans took home from Viet-Nam was that of the women in the marketplaces who patiently spread their wares for sale. This smiling woman, seated on a small wooden box, offered cucumbers, eggplants, and asparagus, as well as vegetables not common to the American food market.

Viet-Nam Remembered

Text and Photos
By Jerry Raynor

As years pass by for those who have known war in Viet-Nam (or war at any time or place) as part of their lives, time mellows, and eventually, almost obscures the inescapable haunting remembrance of brutality, horror and fear that are brought back home with departure from the scene of battle.

Nightmarish recollections of the battered bodies of innocent, helpless women and children being pulled from the debris of buildings destroyed without warning by a cunning, uncaring enemy; the anger and bewilderment felt in watching a buddy struggle to survive wounds and make it back to the States; and the numbing fear at times when personal danger was suddenly and urgently real — all recede little-by-little into the background as the stream of days, months and years play their healing role.

Then, there's the other side of the coin in remembrance. . . the warmth, and in many instances the adoration that the average Vietnamese felt for their American comrades-in-arms; the customs, traditions, closeness of family ties and respect for ancient religions that are integrally woven into the lives of the Vietnamese; and along with these human qualities, the magnificent physical setting in which the people of Viet-Nam live.

Viet-Nam (at least the south) was then a land of vibrant color, of rich tropical foliage, of water-covered fields of rice paddies, and lovingly tended gardens that provided a bounty of fruits and vegetables — many exotic to the G.I.'s fare. In the years when American troops fought and traveled in the narrow, elongated land that is Viet-Nam, they got to know something of the small statured people, the teeming streets of overcrowded Saigon, the dry and rainy seasons, the splendor and pageantry of festive holidays, and everywhere, the vast network of waterways that criss-cross the land.

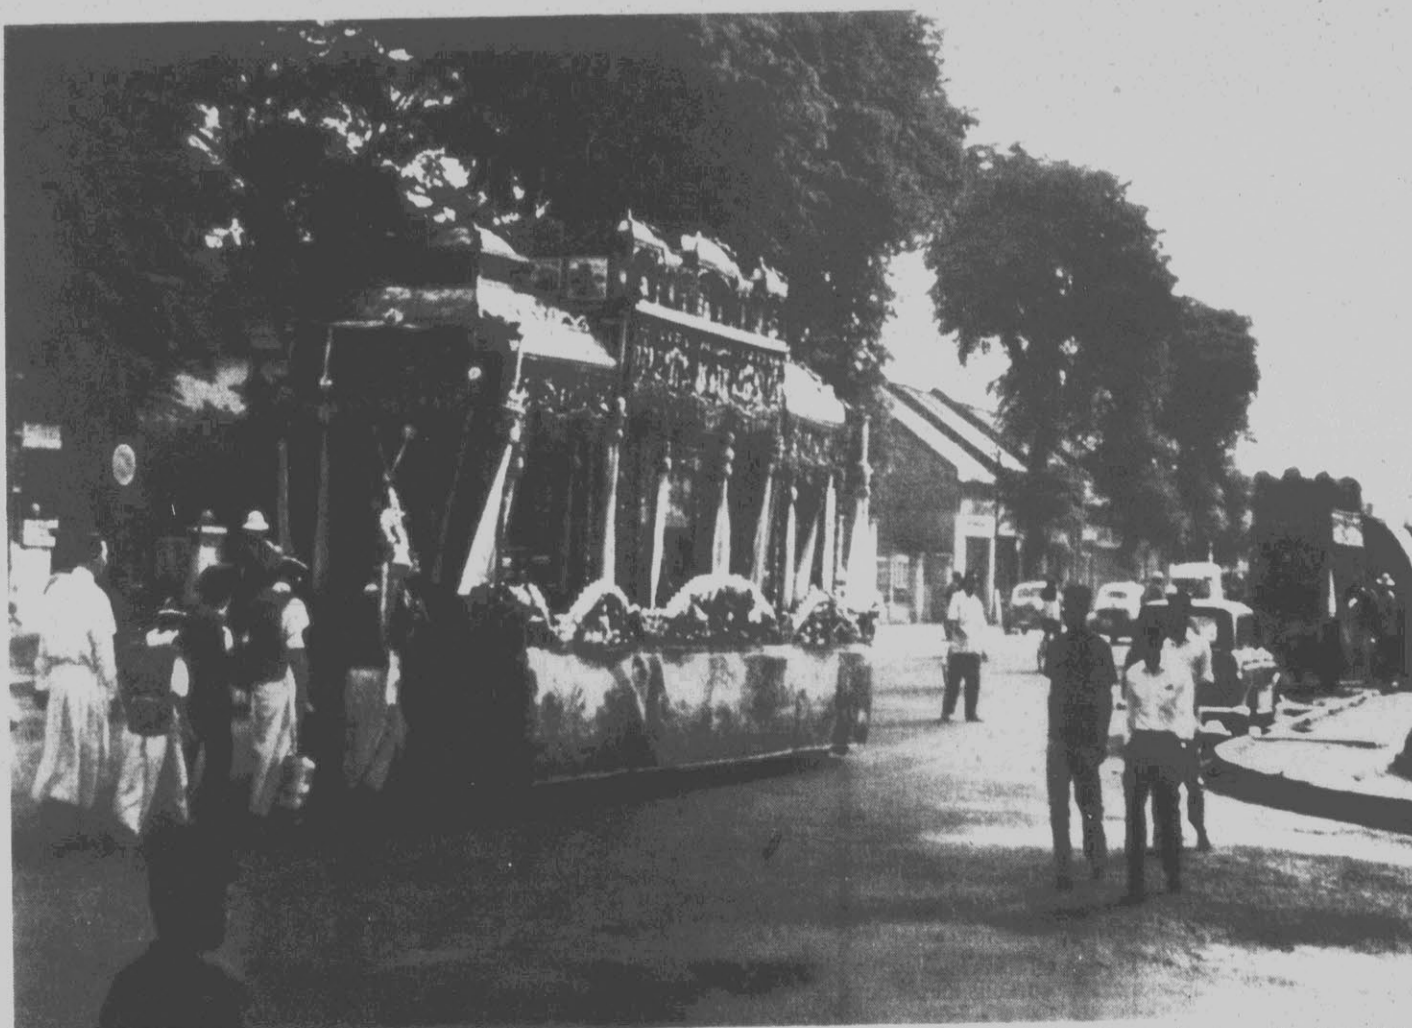

Today, little is known about what is really taking place in Viet-Nam. News reports that do trickle out indicate that all is not well in this land that could be one of the Edens of earth. The vast numbers of natives willing and eager to leave their homeland as refugees, however, give credence to accounts of a new phase of suffering to be endured as the struggle for survival and personal freedom goes on.

Whatever the fate of Viet-Nam may be in the future, for most Americans for whom this Asian country was home for a year or longer, there will always be lingering memories — ones that more mercifully are to be forgotten, and on the other hand, memories that are pleasant to look back on.

A CHRONIC HOUSING SHORTAGE . . . was evident in Viet-Nam, as in most Southeastern Asian nations. Here, small thatched dwellings overhang a river bank area adjacent to factories at a point where a steel foot bridge crosses the stream. Many of these miniature homes were constructed partially of American packing crates. Often one or two rooms would house a family of several people.

Welcoming A New Year

FESTIVE OCCASIONS . . . Despite the presence of war, there were times when people put aside the realities of day-to-day danger to indulge in traditional time-honored festivities. One such occasion was the appearance of this elaborate float being followed by attendants on the way to a Lunar New Year (Tet) celebration in Cho'lon, the Chinese section of Saigon, in early 1966.

A QUIET TAXI-RIDE . . . American servicemen who got to know the village people of Viet-Nam will likely recall as one of their impressions of the country the great number of waterways lacing the countryside. Frequently, getting across meant hiring the river taxi-man who ferried passengers in small flat-bottomed boats.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Tenango

By Jerry Bishop

Adaptable to the needs of the individual family, the Tenango, a two level traditional, provides a basic floor plan with attached apartment and an alternate first level plan for one-family living.

The basic plan divides the first floor into a family living area with living room, family room, kitchen, dining nook, and half bath, and a self-sufficient apartment with kitchen, living room, bedroom, full bath, and outside entry.

Design Offers Alternate First Level

In the alternate design, the family living area is enlarged, with dining room and den added, and the apartment eliminated.

A softly stated exterior is fashioned from brick, wrought iron, and arched windows. Inside, the aim is contemporary livability.

Entry to the basic plan is through double doors to a foyer with living room at left and door to apartment at right. The 21-ft. living room joins the 19-ft. family room through an immense party area that boasts wood-burning fireplace and sliding glass doors to the ground level terrace.

Bordering the living areas, the kitchen complex combines dining nook and laundry niche with corridor kitchen and adds sliding glass doors to the terrace. The apartment, which fills the right wing of the home, calls for a kitchen with pantry, and a 15-ft. living room. The alternate plan offers a formal dining room and handy den-office off the foyer.

Upstairs, the two plans are identical and feature the expansive master bedroom, lavished with closet space, a private bath, dressing room, and sliding glass doors to its own deck. Two smaller bedrooms share another full bath.

Honored Designer Likes Home To Be Comfortable

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

"One of these days, the public is going to rebel and reject the skeletal and ugly designs being foisted on them by some home furnishings manufacturers," says Everett Brown.

This is not a unique opinion, of course. But, coming from a designer and opinion leader in the home-furnishings industry, the words have more substance than might otherwise be the case.

Brown, whose contributions to interior design have spanned nearly half a century, is in the forefront of the design profession. He was recently named designer of the year by the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) at its national convention in New York. But he is not necessarily in favor of some of the newest developments in the design field.

"I'm not a booster of high tech or of living rooms that look like factories," he says. "I don't think that's pretty or comfortable. And I am getting tired of eye-popping fabric patterns, too."

In place of the industrial look, he prefers traditional styles in a home that is serene, calm and free from stress.

As a conservative and a beauty lover, Brown says he operates on the principle that "a rose is prettier than the Eiffel Tower."

Furthermore, most clients he has known are members of the comfort-first school, too. "They want to be comfortable. They want practicality. They do not wish to be offended by the objects in their own homes," he noted.

Brown has had a varied career in home furnishings. Beginning in the furniture department of Marshall Field in Chicago in 1934, he spent a number of years working with retail customers before eventually opening his own design studio in New York.

He has designed home-furnishings products such as rugs, furniture and domestics. He has created room settings for mass-market advertising campaigns. And he has designed model rooms and office, home, hotel and restaurant interiors throughout the United States.

This variety has helped show him that interior design is not for the elite alone.

When Brown first entered the home-furnishings field, however, the concept of interior design was not widely accepted.

"In the 1930s and 1940s, most Americans did not seek decorating advice," he says. "There were no design schools. And the only decorators were paper hangers and wall painters."

Of course, there was also little need for decorators, since there were not many choices of furniture available.

After World War II ended, however, the American home-furnishings industry began to grow. The resulting abundance of choice helped create the need for decorating advice. It was abundance plus promotion of the value of decorating help that produced today's demand for interior designers, added the designer.

All in all, Brown finds the American home in much better shape today than it was 40 years ago when he started out.

"People are learning about scale and they are figuring out how to mix things they like from different periods," he says. "Technical improvements with synthetic yarns and fibers have led to better home-furnishings products. Consumers are more aware of good design today than they were in the past, and color choices have markedly improved."

Today's colors are brighter and more appealing than they used to be. And, where once there was no coordination of color among home-furnishings producers, today there is a high degree of cooperation among manufacturers. This cooperative effort has led to the availability of related products in related colors, Brown added.

Here's the Answer

Q — I have some outdoor furniture which I would like to protect from the elements. I am not sure what kind of wood it is, but it seems to be redwood or something similar. Someone has advised me to use a wood preservative, but doesn't that make the wood darker? I like the color of the wood as it is now and don't want to change it.

A — No matter what kind of preservative you use, it will darken the wood slightly. The chances are you will like the way it looks, but test it first on an underside of one of the furniture pieces. If you simply can't stand the new appearance of the wood, you'll have to live with it. Some outdoor woods — redwood is one of them — last a long time without putting anything on the wood, but the preservative lengthens its life as well as improves its appearance.

Q — One of the ceilings in our house has calcimine paint on it. I am going to repaint it with a latex paint. Must the calcimine be removed?

A — When latex paint is used over calcimine, it tends to soften the old finish, although sometimes this does not occur. You should not risk making a mess. Wash the calcimine, scraping and sanding where necessary. Apply a sealer, then paint.

Q — We have moved into a house with a fireplace that has what seems to be a marble mantelpiece. It is stained and dirty. How do I clean it?

A — Use an ordinary detergent. If this does not take off all the dirt, you will have to go to a marble dealer and ask for the necessary cleaning materials.

Q — We are getting ready to refinish the floor in one of our rooms. It had a glossy finish on it for years, but that is now all scratched, since my husband has a habit of walking on it right after he comes in from the backyard. He has agreed to refinish the floor. Is there something we can put on it that won't scratch as much as the old finish, which we believe is varnish?

A — Most new varnishes have more resistance to scratches than the old types, but they can still be scratched under certain circumstances. Probably the best finish for your purpose is a penetrating sealer, which does not have a gloss-like varnish, but is less susceptible to scratches that very reason. Presumably your husband knows the old finish must be removed before putting on the sealer.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, bleach, stain, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 50 cents AND a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. I would like to transplant a wild dogwood from my front yard to my backyard. Please give me some instructions. (R.L., Durham)

A. Wait until later this fall when the plant is dormant. Lift as much soil with the roots as possible when you do the transplanting. Water well and mulch with three to four inches of organic matter. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Does the age of grass seed affect its germination rate? (C.L., Goldsboro)

A. Yes. Ordinarily grass seed will retain their level of viability or germination for a year following harvest. After that, the rate of germination falls rapidly if the seed are stored under normal atmospheric conditions of fluctuating temperatures and humidity. Stored under controlled atmospheric conditions, the seed will remain viable for years. (Carl Blake, extension agronomist)

Q. What herbicides can I use to control weeds in my strawberries? Bermudagrass is especially bad. (R.A., Granite Falls)

A. When a strawberry patch is heavily infested with bermudagrass, it is usually best to tear it out completely and fumigate with methyl bromide. This will eradicate the bermudagrass. Apply Casoron during the winter. Mulch over the Casoron and pull the escaping bermudagrass. (Barclay Poling, extension horticulturist)

Q. Please give me some information on growing and caring for the Carolina jasmine. (M.H., Apex)

A. Carolina jasmine (Gelsemium sempervirens) grows well across North Carolina. Flower production is best in full sun. It is a natural climber, so give it a place on a fence or trellis. Flowering occurs from late February to early April. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Even experts are sometimes fooled by a piece of furniture that is supposed to be an antique but really isn't.

How can you tell the difference between an antique and a fake? You can't always do so, but you can follow certain guidelines that will help you to make a wise selection.

While there are some not-so-old furniture pieces that are as valuable as antiques, U.S. government standards specify that an antique must be at least 100 years old. An expert on the restoration of antiques, Homer Formby, has several tried-and-true methods for checking the authenticity of antique furniture.

"For starters," he says, "if the piece has drawers, pull out one and look at the dove-tailing where the wood joints at right angles. If the dove-tailing is irregular, but fits accurately, that means it was done by hand, and that the piece probably is over 100 years old. Craftsmen in those days had to use a chisel and a hammer to make joints. Sometimes you can see the chisel marks on the inside or underneath the piece. By

Demolition Is In Seconds

DALLAS (AP) — It took 11½ seconds to demolish an 18-story hotel, two 10-story office buildings and a three-story building downtown here in one of the largest demolitions ever.

Some 1,400 pounds of explosives were placed in 1,200 spots.

The job cost $1 million, but saved $500,000 and a year's work compared with wrecking-ball demolition, said a spokesman for the telephone company, which will occupy a new building on the site.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — CANDID FANS FROWN AFTER FORWARD PASS IS INTERCEPTED.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Lingered To Get Jackpot

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Angie Prather begged her husband to let her play just one more roll of nickels in the slot machine before leaving Harold's Club casino for the night.

The machine whirred, four little-men symbols lined up in the windows and Mrs. Prather became the winner of what the club said was the world's largest nickel jackpot — $17,126.35. The previous record for a nickel slot, $13,266, was paid at Harold's Club in June 1975, club officials said.

"I saw three men in the barrel line up and looked down to see what I'd won," she said after hitting the jackpot Wednesday night. "When I looked back, the fourth had dropped down."

Mrs. Prather, 51, of Magalia, Calif., and her husband, J.H. Prather, plan to invest their winnings in real estate. Mrs. Prather said she had never won much before playing slot machines, but she figured she's ahead after years of "donating to the slots."

Sentenced To Potholes

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — In a touch of poetic justice, Pulaski County's chief administrator was sentenced to four hours filling potholes in the Batesville Pike.

The administrator, William E. Beaumont, landed the penalty at his own request after pleading no contest to a misdemeanor charge that he had retaliated against a county employee for testifying before a grand jury.

The grand jury criticized Beaumont in March for having road crews work on private property. He was accused of ordering Roger Watson, 47, to fill potholes on Batesville Pike without a flagman.

"I couldn't think of a better punishment," said Chancellor John Lineberger, a special circuit judge in the case.

"I consider it an appropriate way to settle this — that it started on Batesville Pike and it ended on Batesville Pike," Beaumont said Thursday. "Now we can settle down to serious business of the county."

The charge carried a maximum punishment of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

'Good Ole Boy' Goes Home Again!

Before Hollywood, he called Georgia home. He and his divorced mother moved there when he was 14. (Before that, they lived in Mount Kisco, N.Y., where his father was a car upholsterer.) He still thinks of Georgia as home, which suits the folks in the Peach State just fine. The lad is John Schneider, otherwise known as Bo Duke, one of the boys in "The Dukes of Hazzard." He's also one of the hottest actors in television today.

You get an idea of just how hot when he steps onstage at Six Flags Over Georgia, a sprawling amusement park just outside Atlanta. He's there to tape a concert segment for his special, "John Schneider — Back Home," airing on CBS-TV Wednesday, Sept. 24 (8 to 9 p.m.). As you'd expect, the place is packed to capacity. The fans are mostly young, mostly female, and nary a body will stray as Schneider treats his audience to something like 20 songs.

This good ole boy is back home — and the crowd is just plain wild over Bo.

But then people have been taking to John Schneider ever since he was an 8-year-old kid making like a magician back there in Mount Kisco. "It's like when you're a little kid and you give something you've just made to your mother or father, and it makes you feel very good," he says.

John's mother, though, hasn't always been crazy about his enthusiasm regarding performing. She recalls the day when her budding Houdini plopped into the deep end of the family pool — his body encased in chains!

Schneider has always wanted to perform. On at least one occasion it even helped him make a difficult transition. This was just after the move to Atlanta, and John remembers: "Mom was worried about my losing friends, and I was unhappy for about two weeks," he says. "But then it worked out. I got to Atlanta just in time to start high school. I had played Tevye in 'Fiddler on the Roof' at school in Mount Kisco, and they happened to be doing 'Fiddler' in Atlanta. I got the part again, and that made me feel better."

By this time, Schneider had fixed his sights on acting. Indeed, he was so gung-ho about becoming a professional that he'd garnered all his graduation credits before his 17th birthday. In fact, he couldn't even attend his own graduation, due to his appearance in a local musical revue.

JOHN SCHNEIDER — BACK HOME: A special musical tribute to the Peach State of Georgia, will air Wednesday, Sept. 24 (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Redskins Are Very Troubled

The Washington Redskins won 10 games last year, which should have been good enough for a playoff berth, but their final-game loss to the Dallas Cowboys coupled with the loss St. Louis took against Chicago put the league tie-breaking procedure to work and the 'Skins' came up on the short end.

When Washington dropped the 35-34 decision to Dallas after leading 34-21 in the fourth quarter, fans from the nation's capital were screaming "rematch." But when at long last the two teams did suit up to face off on ABC's first "Monday Night Football" broadcast of the 1980 season, disappointment prevailed in Washington.

Before the game got underway, many had picked the Redskins to not only knock off the Cowboys — who were for the first time in years without the services of Roger Staubach — but also to represent the NFC East in the post-season. But after Dallas snubbed the Redskins 17-3, using a stingy defense and the surprisingly efficient performance of quarterback Danny White, the oddsmakers were probably wondering where they'd gone wrong.

Not only was the Redskin offensive front virtually ineffective, but the absence of running back John Riggins was sorely missed. Riggins decided to "retire" prior to the season after a contract dispute with the Washington front office could not be settled. Riggins is the owner of three 1,000-yard seasons during his nine years with the NFL.

Looks All Wrong

Alabama quarterback Don Jacobs says it's a great honor to be at the helm of the traditionally-powerful Crimson Tide and he always tries to present the image properly. He remembers one big slip he made early on with the team, though, when he made the mistake of reporting to a team meeting with a short beard and relatively long hair. Jacob's coach, Paul "Bear" Bryant, told him that "Alabama quarterbacks don't look like that."

Meet A 'Real' Cinderella

Not every collegiate gymnastics champion gets to star in a television special. Then again, not every collegiate gymnastics champion can perform with only one arm.

The true-life Cinderella story of one-armed gymnast Carol Johnston is presented in "Lefty," launching the 27th season of Disney's Wonderful World, Sunday, Sept. 21 (7 p.m. on NBC-TV).

Producers James Thompson and Gina Rester first conceived the idea for a film about Carol two years ago when they saw her in a sports program on NBC. They were impressed by an interview in which Carol was asked if there was anything she couldn't do. "No," she answered, "but if I ever find anything, I'll just work at it until I can do it."

"Lefty" was filmed intermittently during a six-month period that ended last March. Carol admitted she had a difficult time getting accustomed to the cameras.

"It's not easy to act normal when a film crew is all around you," she said. "Lights, cameras and microphones followed me everywhere: into the gym, around school, even on dates — my boyfriend just loved that! One day the crew stood around my bathtub while I brushed my teeth. The director kept saying 'Just pretend we're not here.'"

Carol is often asked how she learned to do the complex gymnastics routines. "I watch how other gymnasts do the trick with two arms and then I figure out how to do it with one," she explains. "It takes me a lot longer, but I just work on it until I get it right."

While covering an important competition, the film crew witnessed a tragedy. Carol fell from the uneven bars during a difficult dismount and tore two ligaments in her knee.

Even during the tears, the disappointment and the shock of her injury, Carol allowed the filming to continue. "It was hard to go through all that in front of a camera," Carol recalls. "But I guess it's important for people to know the failures as well as the successes."

Carol never dreamed she'd be starring in a movie, but the producers of "Lefty" say she's a "natural." "Actually, I've had a lot of practice," Carol says with a twinkle in her eyes. "Being a gymnast is a lot like being an actress. You concentrate on giving your audience your very best performance!"

 9 All Night Movie: "Elmer" Phil-

Michele Will Tell

Q: Please tell me something about Richard Dean Anderson, who plays Dr. Jeff Webber on "General Hospital." He's a fox! C. MCCREERY, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Tell me about it! In fact, Rick's considered to be a notorious ladies man around L.A. He's a firm believer in playing the field, but doesn't rule out marriage — eventually! When he's ready to pursue another favorite pastime he indulges in motorcycling, playing the guitar and piano, building furniture or scuba diving.

Q: I'd like to know something about Anthony Zerbe. Please give me his address, too. M. PATTERSON, CAMERON, N.C.

A: Zerbe — one of Hollywood's most diversified villains — is very good at being bad. "One season my character died — or was responsible for — 119 deaths," he says. "I was bumped off so many times, I celebrated the first time I survived to the end!" He finally joined the 'good guys' when he played Lt. Tench on "Harry O," a series that brought him the recognition he should have received years before. Off-camera, Zerbe is active in many resident theaters across the country. Write to him c/o Blake Agency, Ltd., 409 N. Camden Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210.

Q: What is the marital status of Nick Benedict, who plays Michael on "The Young and the Restless"? D. ALLGOOD, BACH, N.C.

A: Nick's single, but not for long. He'd planned to marry Jennifer Lind in June, but "personal matters" interfered. "Hopefully, we'll be able to work these out and take the 'giant step' soon," he says.

Q: What was the name of the TV series that Robert Stack played in when he alternated with two other actors? P. HILL, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: It was "The Name of the Game," really three series under one title, that aired on NBC for three seasons (1968-71). Stack, Gene Barry and Tony Franciosa shared star billing and each was featured in his own self-contained episodes. Their characters were all involved with Howard Publications, a giant publishing empire in Los Angeles.

Howard 'Comes Of Age'

Nothing makes former "Happy Days" star Ron Howard happier than the chance to shed his "Squeaky Clean Teen" image for the first time on television.

"As an actor, I'm finally going to come of age and paint with all the colors," says the carrot-topped 26-year-old, who stars in "Act of Love," airing Wednesday, Sept. 24, on NBC-TV (9 to 11 p.m.). In his TV adult dramatic debut, Howard plays a young man indicted for the mercy killing of his brother.

The factual drama, based on Paige Mitchell's book explores the meaning of life for an American family and an attorney, Andrew Rose (Robert Foxworth), committed to defending a self-confessed killer. "I suppose people don't expect to see me in something this serious. They think of me as the all-American Ritchie Cunningham or as little Opie from the old 'Andy Griffith Show.' But hopefully my performance in 'Act of Love' will change that."

The experience was both exhilarating and thought-provoking for the producer-director-writer-actor, who is president of his own Major H Productions. It's a family run company — Ron's father, Rance, is vice president; brother Clint is secretary and wife Cheryl manages the money. Having signed an exclusive, long-term agreement with NBC-TV last July to develop series and movies through Major H. Ron will direct and act in some of the programs as well.

While Ron's imagination was stimulated by the issue of mercy killing, he hasn't resolved this in his own mind yet. "In the film I don't think we're trying to give an answer to whether such a thing is justified but simply to evoke the question. Leon Cybulkowski's love overpowered his reason. Having a brother, I could very much identify with my character's emotional reaction to his paralyzed brother's suffering. But in honoring Joseph's request, Leon didn't stop long enough to question his act, and I believe I would."

Wednesday Evening

TRIED FOR MURDER — With "Happy Days" in the past, Ron Howard stars as young Leon Cybulkowski, who shoots his paralyzed brother out of mercy and stands trial for murder, in "Act of Love," airing Wednesday, Sept. 24 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Has Been Cast

Robert Conrad has been cast in the title role of "The Coach," an NBC World Premiere movie and series pilot. This is the first project to be produced by the popular actor's A. Shane Company.

Conrad plays a former pro football receiver who was severely injured during combat in Vietnam and returned home a wheelchair-bound paraplegic. Rebuffed in his attempts to become an active coach with the Chicago Bears, he reluctantly agrees to coach a rag-tag group of embittered teen-age misfits at a boys correctional facility where his nephew is in custody.

JEFF CONAWAY and Deborah Raffin star in the madcap comedy "For The Love Of It," airing as the Friday Night Movie, Sept. 26 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

The 'Flintstones' Return To TV

After a 14-year absence, "The Flintstones" returns to primetime television Friday, Sept. 26 (8 p.m. on NBC), with a brand new version of the animated Stone Age Series.

This revival coincides with the 20th anniversary of the medium's most popular animated series.

The lovable Flintstone characters were created in 1960 by Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera.

"We researched into prehistoric times — the animals peculiar to that period, the natural elements and surroundings," Barbera says. "All those things helped us in the creation of the characters and 'The Flintstones' series."

Hanna and Barbera devised the prehistoric suburb of Bedrock, population 2,500, people with average Stone Age cave clans living 250 feet below sea level. The town has its butcher, baker and pizza-pie maker along with a theatre, gasoline station, drive-in restaurant and a daily newspaper, the Bedrock Bugle, printed on stone slab.

Only Took Four Years

It took University of Virginia head football coach Dick Bestwick only four seasons to accomplish what some thought would take a lifetime. Bestwick made the Cavaliers a winner in 1979 and the chances appear bright for a repeat in 1980. The team returns 39 lettermen from the 1979 squad that notched six victories in 11 games and came within one win of a bid to the Tangerine Bowl. With 16 starters among the returning lettermen, Bestwick will have the unaccustomed luxury of experience at nearly every position. For the first time since his arrival in 1976, the Cavs concentrated on developing depth during the spring. A total of 18 freshmen were signed to football grants by Bestwick and his staff. Of particular importance was the signing of an extremely talented group of first-year wide receivers, a critical area for the Cavaliers' football future since five of the top six receivers from last year's team graduated last spring. All five of the departed Wahoos went on to sign contracts in the NFL as free agents: Tim Moon, tight end, Detroit; Ted Marchbroda, wide receiver, Philadelphia; Gary Gomolak, TE, Pittsburgh; Andre Gner, WR, Cleveland; and Mike Newhall, TE, New England.

There should be considerable competition at the quarterback position, points out Bestwick. Todd Kirtley is the returning veteran and whoever wins the job will have to beat him out. Among the candidates for the slot, besides Kirtley, are Rich Riccardi, Bob Leone, Gordie Whitehead, and Lindsey Delany. A transfer from Pittsburgh, who appears to be giving Kirtley the most pressure.

WIDE RECEIVER Harold Carmichael, a 10-year veteran in the NFL, is making things happen again this year for the Philadelphia Eagles. Philly is slated to meet the New York Giants in an intra-division NFC East game to air Monday, Sept. 22, 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Was Fruit Eater

Frank Robinson, a coach for the Baltimore Orioles, recently shed 22 pounds via a diet consisting of grapefruits, but the plan to lose weight had its setbacks. After four days you're hallucinating, and after a week you want to go out and find a grapefruit farmer and blow his head off," says Robinson.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — When the new television season finally gets underway, you'll see major changes in several of your faves: "HAPPY DAYS" is moving from the swinging 1950s to the problem-plagued 1960s, complete with music by the Beatles, hippies and the Vietnam War. Even Arnold is changing...he'll be serving beer!

ROBIN WILLIAMS, still smarting over the beating "MORK AND MINDY" took last year, is taking Mork back to the lovable, innocent alien he was originally. Mindy's dad and grandmother will be returning, too.

Joining those rip-roaring "DUKES OF HAZZARD" is RICK HURST. He's a replacement for SONNY SCHROYER, whose character moves to his own show, "ENOS."

With MacKENZIE PHILLIPS definitely out of "ONE DAY AT A TIME," the role of VALERIE BERTINELLI is being expanded. Look for something exciting to happen to BONNIE FRANKLIN, also — she's going to fall in love with a guy who has a teenage son.

"BUCK ROGERS" will be cruising among the planets in a shiny new spaceship, accompanied by a host of new characters. Distinguished British actor WILFRID HYDE-WHITE comes aboard as Dr. Goodfellow, and THOM CHRISTOPHER is playing Hawk, a unique being with strange powers.

The big change as far as "CHIPS" is concerned won't be seen by viewers, but comes as a welcome relief to the cast and crew: ERIK ESTRADA and LARRY WILCOX have decided to 'bury the hatchet' and are speaking again.

Texas Connection

Morgan Fairchild's role in "Flamingo Road" was played in the original 1949 movie by Martha Hyer. Like Morgan, Martha not only comes from the Dallas-Fort Worth area of Texas, but also attended Southern Methodist University.

I urge you to read this booklet message from National Home Life

Dear Friend:

This special booklet for the National Home Health Plan contains your Temporary Card . . . a card that can help take the worry out of hospital stays within a few short days from now.

Like most Americans, you must be deeply concerned about how runaway costs affect you. The President recently shocked us with some astounding facts: "Health-care costs are rising $1 million an hour, 24 hours a day - doubling every five years."

That's why our benefits can be extremely important to you when you have the National Home Health Plan . . . even if you already have a "basic" plan such as a company group plan, or Medicare. Because as good as these plans are, they may not cover all the expenses of hospitalization.

And now you can enjoy the added convenience of charging your premiums on your Visa or MasterCard. It's an automatic record of your payment.

I urge you to read this booklet carefully, discover all the benefits of the National Home Health Plan, sign and keep your Temporary Card and use the enclosed application to get your Hospital Protection Policy.

Sincerely,

Vance L. Clayton, Agent

Latest figures from the American Hospital Assoc. report over 37 million Americans landing in the hospital in just one year. And you can be one of them. For many people from North Carolina hospitalization will come suddenly and without warning.

That's when your National Home card can be so important.

If you're hospitalized before you have received your policy, simply call the toll-free "800" number printed on your card. A National Home Service Representative will verify your coverage and help you initiate fast claims action.

Not Proof of Coverage

• Pays You Benefits

Our checks are made out direct to you (or anyone you wish). YOU CONTROL this money. How and when you spend it is up to you.

• Pays You Benefits

For any covered hospitalization from the very first day for covered accidents and after the third day for covered illnesses.

• Pays You Benefits

Regardless of any other company's insurance you may carry.

• Pays You Benefits

FOR LIFE, if necessary, for any covered accident or illness.

Under 65

$1,500.00 a month

$50.00 a day

You collect from the very first day of hospitalization for accidents and after the third day for illness and for each day thereafter—for life if necessary.

$6,000.00 a month

$200.00 a day

We pay $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) for you—and $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) for your spouse—when any covered accident hospitalizes insured husband and wife at the same time. Yes, you collect $6,000.00 a month ($200.00 a day) in all while both are in the hospital—even for life.

$2,500.00 or $5,000.00

Accidental Loss Benefits

We pay you lump sum cash benefits for complete accidental loss of limbs or eyesight. If you suffer complete loss of a hand or foot or the sight of an eye within 90 days of any covered accident, you collect $2,500.00. Or, you collect $5,000.00 for the loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

Everyone Collects

$750.00 a month

$25.00 a day In Addition to Medicare

Upon reaching age 65, you collect $750.00 a month ($25.00 a day) from the very first day of hospitalization for covered accidents and after the third day for covered illnesses. Then, when you have collected $1,500.00 for 60 days of continuous hospitalization, National Home's payments to you will double to $1,500.00 a month ($50.00 a day)! And they continue at this rate for the rest of your hospital stay—for life if necessary.

$3,000.00 a month

$100.00 a day

You collect $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) while both insured husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time for a covered accident.

$600.00 a month

$20.00 a day Nurse at Home Benefits

You collect for a registered, licensed practical or vocational nurse for an 8-hour shift at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a covered hospital confinement. Benefits continue for as long as your hospital stay—up to one full year.

All North Carolinians 16-63

H PLAN

K - $50.00 A DAY

Optional Benefits

$900.00 a month

$30.00 a day Children's Benefits

You collect these benefits when your child is hospitalized for any covered accident or illness, when you have Coverage for Children—no matter how long the confinement may be. Coverage begins the very first day for accidents and after the third day for illnesses.

$50.00 a day

Maternity Benefits

Daily hospital benefits are paid for maternity care in the hospital when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. The woman must be covered for the entire pregnancy. Regardless, complications of pregnancy are covered like any other sickness.

Important:

All cash benefits are not taxable, according to Internal Revenue Service rulings.

And Now You Can Charge It!

By charging your monthly premiums, your protection will always be paid by Visa or MasterCard on time—automatically! You won't have to worry about missing a premium due date, and your monthly charge statement will be a permanent record of your protection. Of course, you can still pay directly to the company, by check or money order if you prefer.

The choice is yours. Either way, you'll enjoy the additional security of the Hospital Plan that pays cash direct to you!

You Are Not Covered For:

Loss due to act of war, mental disease or disorder, or use of narcotics. Pregnancy, unless Optional Maternity Benefits are chosen. Certain confinements or care in facilities (such as nursing or convalescent), as defined in your policy. The first three days of hospitalization due to illness.

Pre-existing Conditions Are Not Covered For The First Year.

The Deductible Feature that saves you money—up to 26%!

Almost everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a short hospital stay. Hospital coverage for those first few days is very expensive. It can raise your rates as much as 26%. Many of us don't need it and shouldn't have to pay for it.

The National Home Health Plan deductible feature pays you cash benefits from the very first day for accidents and after the third day for illness.

You get the solid protection you need against the big bills of a long hospital stay. Plus, the "3-day deductible period" lets you save on your rates over first day coverage—from 13% to 26% depending on your age and the plan you choose.

Get the most for your premium dollar . . . get the National Home Health Plan with the deductible feature that saves you money.

Note . . . go to the application. Mail it with a quarter in the envelope provided.

That quarter lets you and your entire family try the plan for a full month. If you decide to continue, you may do so at the reasonable rates shown below. But there's no obligation. If you should decide to return your policy within 30 days of receiving it, we'll even refund your quarter.

And now you can pay future premiums by using your Visa or MasterCard. Charge them by supplying your card number below the application. You'll have the opportunity of joining the thousands of National Home policyowners who are already enjoying the convenience of paying for their cash protection through credit cards.

As you can see, this is a no-risk offer. You can't lose. But remember, once you're hospitalized, it's too late to get this protection for that confinement at any price. So mail in your application today.

25¢ covers your entire family the first month.

Headquartered in the historic Valley Forge area of Pennsylvania, National Liberty is a publicly-owned corporation and is listed on the New York Stock Exchange. National Home is a member of the National Liberty family of companies.

A Company You Can Rely On!

- NATIONAL HOME protects people in all 50 states and the District of Columbia
- NATIONAL HOME has over $6,000,000,000 (six billion dollars) of life insurance in force and is currently paying out over $82 million a year in cash benefits under various health insurance plans. We're proud to serve America's growing insurance needs.
- NATIONAL HOME is the nation's leader in making a wide range of life and health insurance products available directly to the consumer.
- NATIONAL HOME has earned an A (Excellent) rating from the A.M. Best Company. A.M. Best is the recognized authority in rating insurance companies solely on financial stability and operating performance.

Before buying, the value-minded consumer should ask...

What if I make a lot of claims?
Will you cancel my protection?

Absolutely not, National Home's protection is guaranteed renewable as long as you pay your premiums. We will not cancel your protection because of how many claims you make. We cannot cancel your protection no matter how old you become. Your protection is guaranteed renewable for a lifetime. Only you can cancel.

Suppose I take out coverage at age 49.
Will my rate go up the next year when I turn 50?

No! Your rate does not increase with advancing age. If you take out coverage at age 49, you will always pay as if you were 49 no matter how old you become. (As you can see, it's in your interest to apply as soon as possible.) And we can't single you out for a rate increase because of too many claims, either. Your rate can only change if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of your class in your entire state.

Are you prompt about paying?

You bet! There's no fuss, no unnecessary delay. Our written claims philosophy emphasizes the importance of prompt and equitable settlement of all claims.

And, of course, cash payments are mailed directly to you, unless you prefer to assign your benefits to the doctor or the hospital. All the money is yours to spend as you see fit.

Is there any way I can save on my premiums?

Yes! You can save 5% to 16% if you choose to pay quarterly, semi-annually or annually.

Do I really need this additional cash protection?

Americans now face "health care costs that are rising one million dollars an hour, 24 hours a day!"* Each hour the gap widens between total medical costs and what any one insurance plan can possibly pay. So if you already have basic hospital insurance, keep it! But these days, you need a lot more.

When you're hospitalized, you'll be hit with a whole list of bills that your basic plan may not pay. Bills for things like doctor fees, ambulance, lab tests, blood transfusions...the list is endless. You must pay these extra bills out of your own pocket unless you act now to protect yourself.

That's where the National Home Health Plan comes in. It's additional cash protection that works with your present coverage to support it...not replace it.

So think of your basic hospital insurance and the National Home Health Plan as your "Health Protection Partners". Together they will help you close the gap between what your basic plan pays and the surging cost of today's quality health care.

* President Carter, 1979 State of the Union address

Here are some of our policyowners who are glad they acted in time!

Your service was excellent and your claims staff should be recognized for their superb work. The continuing increases in hospital costs are unreal. Your financial help is greatly appreciated.

Mr. Anthony Larios
Belleville, NJ

I cannot say enough good things...in a matter of weeks...I was notified that a check had been sent. Tears of joy welled up in my eyes. $1200.00 paid toward my enormous hospital bill for 24 days! I thank God everyday for this insurance.

Reta J. Lacy
Austell, Georgia

Your service was excellent and prompt which I appreciated very much since my major insurance didn't cover all the costs. Thank you.

Home sweet home: no mom, pop, jr.

FOR GEORGE MASNICK, Harvard School of Public Health

In your report, The Nation's Families, you said the number of single-person homes will be as numerous as those of the husband-wife-children homes by 1990. Who is included in this "single person" type of family? What effect will this have on our way of life? — T.E., Santa Fe, N.M.

● By "single-person households" we mean people who have never been married, people who are divorced or separated and people who have been widowed. By 1990, this group will amount to 30 percent of households. By comparison, married couples with children under age 15 living at home will comprise 27 percent of households. With so many different kinds of people living outside "traditional" family-support systems, we will see more independence in lifestyle.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Why did Bjorn Borg's bride give up her tennis career when they got married? — L.P., Waco, Texas

● Mariana Simionescu didn't stop playing when she became Mrs. Borg. She stopped not too long after she met him. She tried to keep up the game but found it would not work ("to succeed at tennis a woman must devote eight months a year to it and give up all thoughts of family life"). But she still plays just for pleasure. The Borgs have a rule: Never talk shop. Said Mariana, "When I was playing, I couldn't bear being told what to do before a match and then being quizzed as to why I didn't do it after the match. Since Bjorn spends so much time answering questions from the press, I give him a break by not asking any when he gets home at night."

Newlywed game: doubles in paradise

FOR CAROL BURNETT, star of The Four Seasons

Was there a time when the wind was taken out of your sails, and you felt deflated? — R.I., Savannah, Ga.

● Oh yes! In one of my sketches I had to dream up a name. I used "Adrian Lenore Weingart," with whom I went to grammar school. The morning after Adrian's name was aired, she called my office, saying she was surprised at hearing herself mentioned. When my secretary explained, my old school mate said, "Carol Burnett? I don't remember her."

FOR DONNY OSMOND, recording star

You glow about being a father, but is there any drawback? — R.C., Fort Smith, Ark.

● I love my sleep. When I get in at 3 a.m., after a long recording session and am bone tired and have only one thought — sleep, that's usually the night when our little guy decides he wants to stay up and keep me company. Which means he's crying most of the night. And, needless to say, the next morning is one when I must be up early. That's the only drawback.

FOR FREDERICK R. SCROGGIN, M.D., president, National Wildlife Federation

Are there any creatures around now that date back to prehistoric times, with the exception perhaps of the yeti (Abominable Snowman)? — A.S., Albany, N.Y.

● If there is a yeti, I doubt that he goes back to prehistoric times. But there are many creatures that have been around for many millenia. Among them, the duck-billed platypus (100 million years), the opossum (60 million) and the dolphin (15 million).

FOR PHYLLIS TRUELUCK, "Sea Maid" at Sea World's Shark Encounter, Orlando, Fla.

Is it true that sharks, like dolphins, are trainable? — J.K., Green Bay, Wis.

● Not quite, but I do think that the movie Jaws gave sharks a bum rap. Since I spend my working hours surrounded by over 50 different shark species, I can safely say that the shark is not the killer of the sea (barracudas or piranhas are worse). Sharks prey on other fish and attack only when provoked.

FOR KAREN ANDERS, actress

You say you've lost your shirt many times at gambling. Are you doing anything to cure your addiction? — K.S., Danbury, Ct.

● No, because what's a few lost shirts to all the fun I get in return? I find gambling — whether it's at Las Vegas (where I often go to visit my money), at a friend's home or around the poker table — very relaxing. I don't think of anything else when I'm playing; it's a good pastime and pure, sheer fun.

FOR JOE BOATNER, The Ink Spots group

Have you stopped making records? If so, why? — B.Z., Parkersburg, W.Va.

● We have stopped, and it's not through choice. We haven't been asked! I guess we are no longer considered commercial propositions. We came along with the juke boxes in 1938, and the tunes we recorded then were played by millions. Why don't we change our style? I'd find singing rock difficult. But we are still around — on the concert circuit and supper clubs.

PRO Arthur I. Goldberg, M.D., F.A.C.P., medical oncologist

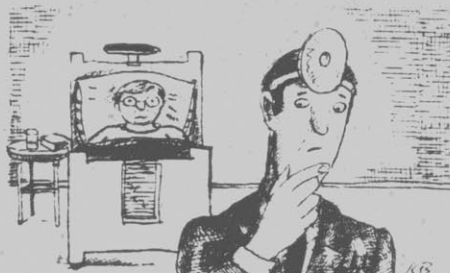

Patients with serious medical problems face emotional crises as well. Ironically, as disease takes the upper hand, the patient may become isolated from both his doctor and his family. Doctors who sidestep the patient's difficult questions risk compromising the medical treatments and reducing the psychological support that the patient requires. Open discussion need not lead to abandonment of hope and may actually allay fears not previously recognized. Deceiving the patient serves only to weaken the doctor-patient and family-patient relationships, further isolating patients with serious medical problems.

PRO AND CON

Should a Doctor Fully Disclose A Patient's Condition To Him When There's A Life-Threatening Illness?

CON Richard B. Nolan, M.D., past president of the Medical Society of the County of N.Y.

I'm opposed to full disclosure. This concept must be dealt with on an individual basis, as there is considerable variation in the individual's ability to cope with such devastating information. The patient's age and family relationships are important. The availability of a closely knit family offering support to the patient is vital. The sense of despair and hopelessness resulting from complete disclosure may often be avoided by careful tailoring of the facts to the emotional stability of the patient. These facts must include elements of hope to support a patient when the need for that support is critical.

Soap's Katherine Helmond, husband David Christopher, married 10 years.

Age cannot wither her: Gloria Swanson, 81, with husband/writer William Dufty, 64.

By Suzy Kalter

She was older, mature and experienced. He was younger, fumbling and nervous. But they loved each other deeply and decided to share a lifetime.

If this sounds like the plot for a dime novel or grade-B movie of yesteryear, it is. But it's also, in a more refined manner, one of the latest lifestyle trends. Gloria Swanson, 81, is married to a man who is 64; Ali MacGraw, 41, is dating actor Peter Weller, who gives his age as late 20's/early 30's; and Katherine Helmond — the departing star of Soap — is 10 years the senior of her husband.

In fact, the older woman/younger

December/May Romances In Praise of Older Women

There's still a stigma attached, but older woman/younger man relationships are on the increase. Some couples wouldn't have it any other way.

man story has been the theme for several recent made-for-television movies and feature films. And while novels have long been written on this subject, now how-to-guides are appearing in the bookstores explaining how a younger man and older woman can make a successful match.

Older woman/younger man relationships are nothing new: William Shakespeare was seven years younger than his wife, Anne Hathaway; Napoleon was six years younger than Josephine.

There has been a recent increase in these relationships, however, and it's very much a reflection of today's changing sex roles. "The increase of older woman/younger man relationships can be viewed as a reaction against past repressions," says Jane Seskin, co-author of Older Women-Younger Men. Previously, women were expected to marry older men. There was a distinct double standard for aging: As a man grew older, he grew — in society's eyes — more attractive and more desirable; as a woman grew older, she became less attractive and desirable. Men, it was believed, not only got better-looking as they got older but grew better with age — like fine whiskey or wine.

Lynne Fontanne, 90-ish, now admits that when her husband, Alfred Lunt, died in 1977, he thought she was a year younger than he, even though she was actually five years older. She had lied in the beginning, "because I was afraid he wouldn't like me."

Well, no one seems to be lying these days — or acting the least bit embarrassed. John Travolta and Diana Hyland were the darlings of the tabloids before her tragic death from cancer two years ago. "There was an age difference there," recalls Taxi's Jeff Conaway, a personal friend of Travolta's, "and everyone tried to make a big thing about it. But when you saw them together it was so inconsequential. They were a magic couple."

Conaway, by the way, is 29 and has been married to Olivia Newton-John's sister Rona, who is 35, for the last few months.

Though much of the attention has been focused on celebrities, there's also a definite increase in such relationships among everyday "real" people. "I'm in a long-term relationship with a much younger man and really recommend it," says Liz, 35, a department store buyer. "Men seem to turn fuddy-duddy faster than women and become less fun — that's probably because they haven't been brought up to "please" the way women have. Another good reason for having a relationship with a younger man — men peak sexually earlier than women."

Psychologists have long debated the real reasons people are drawn to such relationships. Is the man looking for a mother figure? Is the woman searching for someone to baby?

Dr. Michael Carrera, chairman of the board of the Sex Information and Education Council, believes that the younger man often finds the older woman more supportive of his particular needs and wants. She may make him feel more of a star in his own right. He knows she isn't going to compete with him. And she's with him because she believes him to be special.

Regardless of the reasons behind such romances, there can be plenty of pitfalls. For one, people around the couple can respond with moderate outrage. Erica Jong, six years older than her husband, Jonathan Fast, knows what that's like: "You can imagine the reaction everyone had to our romance. It was as if I were going with a man of 30. The hypocrisy of it! If a woman is six years younger than a man, no one bats an eyelash."

"Social pressures will be more prevalent in any type of unconventional relationship," Sam Julry, author of Male Sexual Performance, reminds us. "But the biggest hurdle for the older woman/younger man couple is in dealing with the reactions of the children from a previous, more "conventional," marriage."

When a man was involved with an older woman in years past, people assumed it was for sexual experience or money (he hung around because she paid his bills). There's still thinking along these lines.

"Many people believe Craig is hanging on for my money," says Georgia Holt, 52, of her 32-year-old live-in lover, Craig Spencer. "They think that because I'm Cher's mother. I've got a lot of money and that's why Craig is around. My daughter does have a lot of money, but I don't. When we first got together everyone was looking for some kind of reason why someone my age would end up with Craig."

"I had never been out with an older woman, but I didn't have much respect for younger women," says Craig. "Georgia was so mature — it made me feel so worldly." It took him a week to work up the nerve to express his interest, and they've been together ever since (six years).

Can a younger man/older woman relationship overcome the hurdles? Psychiatrist William Appelon says a couple can handle most of the problems by knowing what they are doing in the relationship in the first place and having a strong sense of self and well-being. If the relationship is important for itself, then it has a chance to survive like any relationship, but if it's a symptom of a larger, "possibly pathological need," then Dr. Appelon warns of trouble.

There is a casualty list of such relationships, though, including actress Kate Jackson, 31, and her actor husband, Andrew Stevens, 25 (friends said the age difference was a factor); CHiPs' Erik Estrada, 31, and his wife, Joyce Miller, 40, after only seven months; and actress Louise Fletcher, 44, and Morgan Mason, 25. But this isn't deterring other couples from giving the relationships their best shot.

Ben Franklin was a firm believer in younger/older liaisons. Back in 1745, he wrote up eight reasons to marry an older woman and titled it Advice to a Young Man. He reminds young men that older women have more knowledge of the world; are the most tender; are more discreet; and "are so grateful."

A Preview of TV's Fall Season

The new season promises to be a series of spin-offs—mostly from hit movies and highly rated TV shows. The clones of Dallas will try to prove that daytime soaps can live happily in prime time.

By Mark Goodman

On an evening last April, that shot echoed on television screens, and John Ross (J.R.) Ewing, the oily villain of Dallas, slumped silently to the floor of his skyscraper office. It literally was a shot heard round the world; in London they made book on who the assassin was. Viewers were obsessed with the question: "Who shot J.R.?"

But in July an even more pressing question emerged to vex viewers: "When, oh when, will we find out who dun it?" A strike against the networks by members of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists and the Screen Actors' Guild delayed the opening of the fall season. But fear not. There will be a new season. J.R.'s assailant will be unmasked (in the third episode). And the dictum that whatever is worth doing is worth doing again has never been truer: Prime time will draw with clones of Dallas.

CBS' own Dallas spin-off, Knots Landing, has landed J.R.'s alcoholic brother Gary (Ted Shackelford) four-square in a southern California suburb to combat the albatrosses of drink and the Ewing name. Introduced last spring (with Larry Hagman, of course, getting the ball rolling with J.R.ish deeds), the show is already well established, thanks largely to polished professional performances by Joan Van Ark as Gary's sweet hick of a wife and veterans Don Murray and Michele Lee as the worthy couple next door.

Indeed, CBS will whip up more prime-time suds this season, this time in Secrets of Midland Heights. The principal pastime in Midland Heights, a mythic heartland town, occurs in the Granary Motel. At one point in the pilot, a teen-age girl selects this hot spot for the loss of her virginity but stalks out in a huff when she discovers that her mother and her bewildered swain's father are in the adjoining room.

Woven into the sexual subterfuge is the slob vs. snobs confrontation theme popularized in Animal House and Breaking Away. The local high-school hero is played by Lorenzo Lamas, the strapping, patent-leather handsome son of Fernando and Arlene Dahl.

And then there's NBC's Harper Valley PTA, starring Barbara Eden as an attractive widow who moves with her daughter to the American version of Sodom and Gomorrah. The show's a spin-off of the same name which was a spin-off of the 1968 song by Jeannie C. Riley.

Perhaps the most jarring false note in this new series is television's persistent misrepresentation of the American rich, a throwback to the 1930's screwball comedies, when the wealthy were always depicted as preening, feckless fools. At least in Dallas, Larry Hagman, a native Texan, sounds like a Texas oil baron. In Secrets of Midland Heights, we have a snippety Midwestern scion who goes around talking like Ronald Colman.

Even less successful is ABC's Breaking Away, an adaptation of the fresh and poignant film that won screenwriter Steve Tesich an Oscar. Tesich also wrote this series, but all the snap is gone here. For example, the young cyclist with delusions of Roman grandeur (played acceptably by Shaun Cassidy) enters the big bike race for the prize money because he thinks his parents are so short on cash they can't put enough food on the table. The joke (shades of Life of Riley): Pop is on a diet.

Sultry Morgan Fairchild of Flamingo Road: Will she become the female version of J.R. Ewing?

Two-wheel spin-off: Shaun Cassidy as the dreamy bike racer, Vincent Gardenia and Barbara Barrie as his parents in Breaking Away.

less to say) promise to offer more hours of speeding cars than a weekend at Le Mans. Enos gives us Sonny Shroyer in the title role as the happy-go-lucky sheriff he made famous in the Dukes of Hazzard. Transplanted to Los Angeles, Enos creates tension — and hopefully some laughs — when his hillbilly nature conflicts with his streetwise officer-partner, Turk Adams (played by Samuel E. Wright). Meanwhile, Freebie and the Bean, cloned from the 1975 movie, is a comedy-adventure about a pair of, yup, improbable but lovable plain-clothes cops, played by Tom Mason as the Irish Freebie and Hector Elizondo as the Hispanic Bean.

On the situation comedy front, ABC has paired up Diana Canova and Danny Thomas as a divorced daughter and father in something called I'm a Big Girl Now (proper title: Make Room for Granddaddy). And, Mary Tyler Moore's own simpering newscaster, Ted Knight, is back in ABC's Too Close for Comfort. Incredibly enough, his family — a wife and two daughters — is intact.

The show has Ted illustrating comic books and managing the San Francisco apartment building wherein he and the missus worry over the daughter-roommates downstairs. It's funnier than it sounds, especially when Knight does his Ted Baxtersh worst, such as smoothing his hair under a transvestite tenant's bathroom ceiling mirror or worrying that, at 51, "I'm older than Donald Duck."

Vincent Gardenia, otherwise a fine actor, is hopelessly miscast as a bigoted Indiana father. When an actor named Gardenia, with that florid Mediterranean face of his, has to grouse about food with "inis" and "olis" in it, one wonders about the sanity of TV casting directors.

A more interesting reprise comes from NBC. It is Flamingo Road, a remake of the 1950's Sidney Greenstreet Southern potboiler, with grand old-timer Howard Duff as the conniving sheriff who keeps the town pot at a boil. Kevin McCarthy is on hand to provide his one-note sneer as the town's leading citizen, and Barbara Rush is her eternally fetching self as his wife.

But the star of the future to watch for is Morgan Fairchild, whose sharp-edged beauty and beguiling witchery are reminiscent of the young Barbara Stanwyck. Given enough room — and the right lines — she could become the feminist J.R.

Two CBS shows (spin-offs, need-

Otherwise, traditional roles are now as passé as Father Knows Best. CBS has Ladies' Man, starring the excellent Lawrence Pressman as a bachelor-father and writer who lands a job as the only male on a Cosmopolitan-type magazine. His first assignment? You bet: an article on "Sexual Harassment and Working Women."

The show suffers from possibly terminal cutes, but Pressman and Louise Sorel as his Dragon Lady editor may save it. ABC has what sounds like a tired number in It's a Living, with a gaggle of naive/known/wisecracking gals working as cocktail waitresses. But it comes from the team of Paul Junger Witt and Tony Thomas (Soap and Benson), which surely accounts for the show's sharp perspective and crisp dialogue. (Example: On being informed of her colleague's virginity, one waitress snaps: "Sure. That makes 47 of us. You, me and the Osmond family.")

But the preseason pick as the hoot of the year has to go to ABC's Bosom Buddies, starring two newcomers (Peter Scolari and Tom Hanks). The show takes up in the 1980's where the 50's film Some Like It Hot left off. Henry and Kip work for a Chicago ad agency. When their apartment building is condemned, they wind up dressed as females in the Susan B. Anthony Hotel for Young Women.

In the pilot, at least, the repartee is the wittiest and most sophisticated this side of the incomparable *M*A*S*H*. "I'm getting out of this ensemble," Kip snarls. "I'm getting a terrible urge to read Sylvia Plath." The pilot also features the fabulous Edie Adams as the gum-chewing housemother with a Mace can filled with cheese spread.

Sitcoms are our escape mechanism. Yet prime-time television has also made a bold new discovery in the past year: reality. NBC's Real People prompted ABC to jump in last season with That's Incredible!, which also soared in the Nielsen ratings. Since there are only so many authentic human beings to go around these days, ABC has created Those Amazing Animals, moderated by the curious trio of Burgess Meredith, Jim Stafford and Priscilla Presley, who gives a remarkably good account of herself. The show runs the bestial gamut from insect-breeding to elephant burial grounds and should bear out the show-business adage that you don't even try to top animal acts. And NBC's Games People Play will feature typical Americans in athletic pursuits such as a bathtub race, a donkey derby and a bar-room bouncer contest.

Unaffected by the broadcast strike, PBS gets its fall season off the ground — literally — this month with Cosmos, a 13-part series devoted to astronomy and space exploration and hosted by renowned scientist Dr. Carl Sagan. Dr. Jonathan Miller, a Renaissance man if ever there was one, hosts another 13-part series, The Body in Question. With stethoscope and satire, the show explores the complexity of the human body — how it works — and occasionally how it doesn't. And in the most inspired bit of casting since George Burns was chosen to play

God, Sir Alec Guinness tackles the role of the brilliantly shabby super spy, George Smiley, in a six-part BBC dramatization of John le Carré's best-selling thriller Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy.

Even as James Garner fans mourn the painful passing of NBC's Rockford Files, the action genre is still, just barely, alive and punching. CBS couldn't simply leave all that Hawaii Five-O crime-fighting equipment to rust, so the network has run in with Magnum, P.I. Tom Selleck (the long-limbed fellow who seems to be in every third television commercial) stars as a former Naval officer Hector Elizondo, left, and Tom Mason try a new ethnic two-step in the police story, Freebie and the Bean.

Magnum lives on the estate of an absentee author along with another former military man, British type, played by a grand veteran film actor, John Hillerman. Selleck shows a nice touch at down-playing the toughness and up-playing the whimsy, and may be just the engaging sort of gumshoe/adventurer to fill the boots left by James Garner.

Finally, be prepared for something altogether different in the way of police action when you tune into NBC's savage new series Hill Street Blues. It has a ring of searing authenticity that makes Kojak look puckish by reflective comparison.

It's a typical day in the life of a New York ghetto police station: The cops are asked to turn in unauthorized weapons, and switch blades and shotguns clatter onto the table; two 14-year-olds heist a liquor store and hold the owner and several patrons hostage; the police captain must then deal weapons and ammunition to a young gang leader in return for his help in getting the hostages out of the store, and two officers are gunned down in a heroin shooting gallery while looking for a telephone.

Best among an unknown cast are Michael Warren as a black cop who does a memorable turn breaking up a vicious domestic quarrel and Bruce Weitz as an undercover cop, an obsessed avenger in a knit cap and grimy fatigue jacket. It's powerful stuff, and it proves that the networks can do it when they really try.

IT BUGS ME

I wonder if insects
In corners and rugs
Like being called insects,
Hate being called bugs.

If insects were in
And outsets were out,
Such words would be better.
There isn't a doubt.

But that isn't true,
So I guess I'll just stay
With bugs, which is shorter
And quicker to say.

I hope they don't mind it,
And even agree,
Though sometimes I wonder
Just what they call me.

JUMPING THE GUN

"If I were to die," a wife asked her husband plaintively. "would you marry again?"

"Wouldn't you want me to?" the husband replied with caution.

"Would you give her everything of mine — my clothes, my jewelry, my car, my golf clubs?"

"No, not your golf clubs," the husband protested. "She's left-handed."

Clearing Up 6 Weather Myths

By Lesly Berger

Everyone seems to have a pet proverb or formula for predicting tomorrow's — or even next year's — weather. According to Dr. Murray Mitchell, senior research climatologist at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Rockville, Md., while some so-called "myths" about the weather are definitely nonsense, many happen to be true. Following are six popular weather myths, and Dr. Mitchell's evaluation of their accuracy.

1. When the moon has a halo around it, there's a good chance of rain.

True — but not infallible. Storms are generally preceded by high cirrus clouds, which are made up of ice crystals. When light from the moon (or the sun) shines through the ice crystals, the light produces a halo effect around the moon.

2. When caterpillar fur appears thicker than usual, a cold winter is ahead.

False. Many people believe that caterpillars, the woolly bear variety in particular, are reliable weather predictors. Studies done at Brown University, however, comparing the physical aspects of many woolly bear caterpillars to various weather conditions, failed to find any correlation.

3. Red sky at night, sailors delight. Red sky at morning, sailors take warning.

True, and not just for seafarers. When we look toward the west at the setting sun, we see the sun through air that will reach us the following day, since atmospheric patterns move from west to east. If the setting sun shines through dry air, the sky is reddest. If it shines through the moist air that normally precedes bad weather, the sky will appear gray or yellow.

At sunrise, on the other hand, we see the horizon to our east and are watching weather that has already passed us by. If the sky is red at dawn, the dry air has moved on, and it is likely that humidity, and the chance of rain, will increase.

4. Wind from the west, weather is best.

True, except for the Pacific and Florida Gulf coasts. In most of the United States, winds from the west have traveled across land surfaces and are thus usually dry. This dry air generally indicates good weather.

5. Onion skins very thin, mild winter coming in. Onion skins very tough, winter will be very rough.

False. Similar predictive qualities are also attributed to apple skins and corn husks. But according to Dr. Mitchell, nature reacts to what the weather has already been, rather than to what it will be. Thus, the thickness of fruit and vegetable skins is not a useful weather prophet.

6. Cows sit down when it's going to rain.

False. Dr. Mitchell points out that most weather myths involving animals have little basis in fact.

According to Tom Gallagher of the

New York State Cooperative Extension Program, cows don't actually sit down, they lie down. Cows stand to eat, but, other than that, lie down most of the time. Gallagher says that a very bad storm would cause cows to lie down, simply because that's a more comfortable position for them than standing and being buffeted by the wind. FW

HEALTH Facts & Fallacies

By Dr. Frederick J. Stare and
Dr. Elizabeth M. Whelan

FALLACY: Vitamin E Cures and Prevents a Variety of Diseases

FACT: In recent years, vitamin E has been hailed as a miracle vitamin. There have been claims that it can promote physical endurance and sexual potency, protect against pollution and prevent heart attacks, muscular dystrophy, ulcers, cirrhosis of the liver and cancer. These claims have one thing in common: They are all scientifically undocumented.

When vitamin E deficiencies were induced in laboratory animals, certain disorders did develop. Particularly noteworthy was that the sexual potency of male rats appeared to wane. Health enthusiasts immediately drew an analogy to humans.

Their arguments, however, were faulty in two ways: First, scientists have established that vitamin E is so widely distributed in the foods we eat (whole grains, vegetable oils, soybeans, eggs) that it is almost impossible to develop a deficiency. Second, there is no validity to the notion that because a deficiency of something causes a problem, an excess of the same substance will have any benefit beyond correcting the deficiency.

Research documents that vitamin E supplementation is helpful only in the treatment of certain rare conditions, and use should be medically supervised.

FALLACY: Vitamin C Prevents Colds

FACT: It's been recognized for many years that vitamin C plays an important role in health. What isn't known is the exact effect vitamin C has on the common cold.

The controversy about the relationship of vitamin C to a possible cure for the common cold arose a few years ago when two-time Nobel Prize winner Linus Pauling presented his theory that massive doses of vitamin C would both prevent and cure common colds. There was a great flurry of interest in his ideas and a great deal of professional criticism of his claims.

Since publication of Dr. Pauling's book, Vitamin C and the Common Cold, dozens of attempts have been made to confirm or deny this theory. The results are inconclusive: Some studies show a slight decrease in incidence of colds with vitamin C therapy; others show no preventive or curative effects at all. While huge doses of this vitamin might offer some relief for a cold's symptoms, a small dose of an antihistamine would have the same effect.

FALLACY: Megavitamin Therapy Keeps You Healthy

FACT: The theory that if a little bit of a vitamin is good, then a great deal of it must be better, simply is not valid. Unfortunately, according to a recent national survey, 75 percent of the adult population wrongfully believe that extra vitamins promote extra pep and lead to better health.

Large doses of some vitamins can actually be harmful. Megadoses of vitamin A have been shown to produce increased cranial pressure, loss of hair, liver damage and other defects, while large doses of vitamin D can produce loss of appetite, high blood pressure, kidney failure and calcifying tissues. FW

By David Grunwald

For 15 years, American Larry Collins and Frenchman Dominique Lapiere had combined the research procedures of the historian with the investigative techniques of the journalist to write a series of vivid best sellers on great 20th-century events. Is Paris Burning? was an account of the liberation of Paris, O Jerusalem!, the story of the birth of the state of Israel.

They had just completed their fourth book, Freedom At Midnight, about the granting of independence to the Indian sub-continent, when they decided it was time to do something different.

Instead of writing about the past, they thought, why not apply those same techniques to the present and write about issues which will be considered significant 25 years from now. In effect, as Collins puts it, "become historians of the present instead of historians of the past."

The topic that intrigued them the most was terrorism, the ability of a small group to force its will on society by attacking a nation's weaknesses and using a kind of technological jujitsu to create havoc and fear. What would be the ultimate act of terrorism? they asked themselves.

Suppose, they thought, you escalate it upward, have a small nation instead of a group utilize the same technology, and by holding a city hostage, force its political will on a larger nation. A small nation like, say, Libya, which is rich with oil and ruled by the militant Muammar al Qadhafi, staunch supporter of the Palestinians, ruthless enough to use nuclear blackmail to get his way. He could threaten to destroy New York in 36 hours unless the United States forced Israel to withdraw from the West Bank and East Jerusalem.

Voilà! A plot, a theme, a scenario, a novel.

That was four years ago. Last month, their first novel, The Fifth Horseman (Simon and Schuster), was published. Already a best seller in nine countries, including France and Mexico, it is racing up the best-seller lists here. Paramount has purchased the movie rights for $200,000 and Avon the paperback rights for $1,500,000.

The reviews have been ecstatic. Time stated, "Collins and Lapiere have so convincingly interwoven fact and fiction that the details of the U.S. vulnerability to a nuclear blackmail attempt appear totally realistic." And John Chancellor of NBC-TV remarked, "The Fifth Horseman is absolutely splendid. Well told, suspenseful and as full of menace and relevance as today's newscasts." Unlike the vast bulk of thrillers based primarily on a writer's overwrought imagination and ability to throw around names and places with carefree abandon, this novel is based on two years of exhaustive research. Lapiere, for instance, journeyed to an Israeli jail to interview Japanese Red Army terrorist Okomoto, the man responsible for slaying over a score of tourists at Tel Aviv's airport five years ago.

The Fifth Horseman authors Collins and Lapiere imagine intrigue, war and nuclear blackmail while in their French villas.

8,000,000 People Held Hostage in This Year's Hottest Thriller

The warden who took him to Okomoto's cell whispered in his ear to be careful, as the terrorist knew a karate chop that could kill instantly. He then casually left Lapiere alone with Okomoto for 10 minutes while fetching three coffees. "I sat next to this guy for 10 minutes and I literally kept my eye on his hand, wondering what time this hand was going to fly through the air to kill me," recalls Lapiere. "I tell you it was the 10 longest minutes I ever lived."

Even more disturbing for the authors, though, was learning that real life had raced beyond their plot. While in Washington, Collins discovered that, in 1974, there had been a threat against Boston. "It was really our plot to a certain degree," says Collins. "An extremist element inside the Palestinian movement sent a design [of a nuclear device] and said we're going to blow this up if you don't release a certain number of our people now being held in Israeli jails. The design was judged valid, the prisoners existed, it was an identifiable faction. They really sweat bullets down there in the White House on that one."

Collins, 50, and Lapiere, 49, plan to be back at work on their next book, by the end of the year, though they don't know yet whether it will be another nonfiction account or a novel. The writing team first met in 1955 when both were stationed at NATO headquarters outside Paris. Years later they met up again, this time as journalists: Collins was with Newsweek, Lapiere with Paris-Match. They soon got to talking about collaborating on a book, a book that became Is Paris Burning? and freed them from the wearying grind of magazine journalism.

Collins now lives with his Egyptian-born wife, Nadia, and two sons, Michael, 11, and Laurence, 13, in London. Lapiere, who recently married Dominique Conchon, has one daughter, Alexandra, 24, by his first wife, and lives in Paris. When the research is over and it's time to write, Collins and Lapiere retreat to the south of France where they have villas side-by-side.

The Fifth Horseman races along like the wind, carrying the reader effortlessly because it is so heavily grounded in reality and based on probability. Already, the authors say, there have been 50 nuclear terrorist threats made against American cities. Luckily, so far they've all proved to be bluffs or hoaxes with no actual nuclear devices involved.

But there's always a first time. Last year, notes Collins, there was an incident in Wilmington, Del., "in which for the first time the extortioner actually had in his possession nuclear material." The man had smuggled radioactive wastes out of a plant he had worked in and "was threatening to wrap them around a dynamite stick and set them off, which would be a very, very nasty thing to do."

"But the F.B.I. got him. It took them a week but they got him."

Roly-Poly Dom DeLuise Savors the Succulence of Success

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Neither Dom DeLuise nor Burt Reynolds has forgotten the night they met more than eight years ago. Burt was substituting for host Johnny Carson on The Tonight Show. Dom, a new guest, walked on stage, put his face close to Burt's and demanded of the audience, "Don't you see the resemblance?"

The next day he got a hand-delivered letter from Burt: DEAR DOM: PLEASE LEAVE ME ALONE! LOVE, BURT. That was the beginning of a friendship and working relationship that has made the two almost inseparable. Says Dom, "The chemistry between us is good. I don't know why. It just works."

Dom and Burt worked together in Mel Brooks's Silent Movie and The End, which Burt directed. In turn, Dom directed Burt and Carol Burnett in Same Time, Next Year at Burt's dinner theater in Florida. They recently teamed in Smokey and the Bandit II and with Farrah Fawcett in Cannonball Run. Dom's next movie is Mel Brooks' History of the World Part I.

Though Dom received critical praise for his dramatic performance in The End, he is best known for his outlandish characters in such films as Blazing Saddles, The Adventure of Sherlock Holmes' Smarter Brother, The World's Greatest Lover, The Cheap Detective, The Muppet Movie and Fatso. Says Burt, "Other than Red Skelton, Dom is probably the only true clown left."

Unlike his friend Burt, Dom is very much the family man: "I've been married for 15 years, and those were the best 10 years of my life."

His wife is actress Carol Arthur, whom he met while both were doing summer stock. "I enjoy responsibility," insists Dom, 47. "My wife, my children, they mean everything to me. We've had some wonderful fights, but even while we are fighting, I am aware that I don't want to break up this relationship."

Carol and Dom live in a rambling house with their three sons, Peter, Michael and David. Now that the boys are older, Carol has been doing some occasional acting again.

Dom has always had strong family act!" That was the end of his stage-managing career but the beginning of his acting.

He got his start in TV in 1963 on The Gary Moore Show. He has hosted The Dom DeLuise Variety Show, played Stanley in his own series, Lotsa Luck, and has appeared as a regular on several other shows.

Dom made his directorial debut with Hot Stuff in 1979, in which he co-starred with Suzanne Pleshette (it grossed $10 million) — and he loved it. "It's like someone says to you, 'We've got chicken heads and chicken feet and one rotten tomato, can you make a dinner?' Yes, I can! I can make a soup out of that stuff and you'll love it."

Speaking of food, there is one problem Dom hasn't been able to overcome: Eating. He says he's fighting his compulsive eating, but part of the problem is that he loves to cook. ("I can make a ginger chicken that will make you cry with joy.")

Until he sheds some of his 200-plus pounds, he'll remain everyone's favorite fatso. "So I keep playing guys who are insecure," says Dom. "But still, it's not so bad to be vulnerable." FW ties. His parents were born in a little town in Italy, and after World War I, they bought land in California to raise peaches. "We were so poor, I didn't know that meat went into a stew until I grew up," Dom recalls. "On the other hand, we were very rich: We had each other."

After college, Dom got a job at the Cleveland Playhouse as a stage manager: "We were doing Night Must Fall, and I had to take a pillow onstage to be used to suffocate the woman in the wheelchair. I was on the wrong side of the stage when the curtain went up. All I could do was hide under the table for the entire

By M.S. Goodman

Two seasons ago, long before he was the prime candidate for football's Heisman Trophy, Ohio State's Art Schlichter was, if not a reluctant debutant, at least America's unhappiest one. At the tender age of 18, the strapping (6 feet 2 inches, 200 pounds) young quarterback was thrown by his new coach, the fabled Woody Hayes, into the teeth of Penn State's voracious Nittany Lions. He hadn't even attended his first freshman class yet.

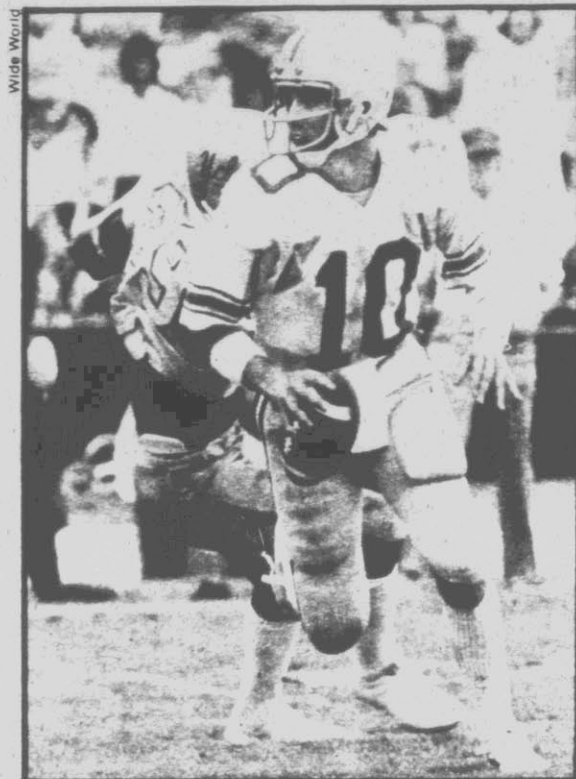

The spotlight was definitely on young Schlichter (pronounced "Schleester") because Hayes, in landing the most sought-after schoolboy in the country (40 colleges had sent lavish pleas to the Schlichter farm down near Washington Court House, Ohio), had pledged that he might alter his three-yards-and-a-cloud-of-boredom offense to accommodate the young hurler's talents.

Sure enough, Schlichter came out throwing — and five times retired to he set the school's single-season record for total offense (1,840 yards: 590 rushing, 1,250 passing), and got a sound schooling in big-time football in the bargain.

"It was an experience," he recalls. "But sometimes you have to go through some bad to get to some good. I think it helped me tremendously last year. I'm more aware of what's going on."

Indeed, a lot went on in that first year. In the Orange Bowl against Clemson, Schlichter released the most famous interception he is likely ever to throw. With Ohio State down 17-15 in the final minutes, Schlichter, who had already completed 16 of 20 passes for 205 yards and would be named the game's Most Valuable Player, was intercepted near the sideline by Clemson defender Charlie Bauman. Coach Hayes, in outrage, delivered the most celebrated general-to-foot-soldier punch since his hero, George Patton. The incident, captured on national television, led to Hayes's dismissal after 34 turbulent place besides the hot seat. That's what football is all about — to perform when it counts."

It really counted in the last game of the regular season against archrival Michigan. Not only had the Buckeyes not defeated the Wolverines since 1975, they hadn't even scored a touchdown against them. Before an Ann Arbor crowd of 106,255 — the largest ever to witness a college football game — Schlichter completed 12 of 22 passes for 196 yards to lead the Buckeyes to a wild 18-15 victory. And although Ohio State lost to USC 17-16 in the Rose Bowl, Schlichter and rival running back Charlie White (1979's eventual Heisman Trophy winner) put on quite a show.

Art has always been the kid who could do everything, playing three sports since his earliest days. He grew up on a farm in the rich corn-and-soybean belt some 40 miles south of Columbus, the youngest of Max and Mila Schlichter's three children. Art's older brother, John, caught many of his brother's passes during Art's first two years at Miami Trace High but left Otterbein College after one year to return to the farm. (Sister Dawn teaches music in a town near Dayton, Ohio.)

Art Schlichter Guns for The Heisman

Ohio State fans have reaped the benefits ever since this local farm boy began quarterbacking the Buckeyes. And now Schlichter's a prime choice for college football's top prize.

Art and coach Earl Bruce: After Woody Hayes said, "Goodbye, Columbus" they turned things around.

the sidelines when his bombs were interrupted in mid-flight by Nittany Lion defenders. The interceptions led to a 19-0 Penn State victory — Schlichter's first gridiron loss since the fifth grade. Almost unnoticed in the debacle, of course, were the 12 passes caught by his own teammates.

But at least young Schlichter showed a touch of humor about the whole grisly affair. "I'd have had a heckuva percentage," he ruefully reflected afterward, "if they had just counted all the balls I threw that were caught by someone."

Still, as his proud father, Max, later noted, "Arthur isn't fooling when he says he likes pressure situations." Art proved that when he overcame his disastrous start — as well as the resentment, particularly among veteran black players, when he replaced two-year starter Rod Gerald as quarterback — to guide the 1978 Buckeyes to an Orange Bowl bid. In doing so, years at Ohio State.

Schlichter remained loyal to Hayes in the disagreeable aftermath. "I have a tremendous amount of respect for Coach Hayes," he later said. "He gave me a great opportunity to play at Ohio State... It's something I'll never forget. I just hated to see Coach Hayes go out like that because he didn't deserve that."

The young athlete didn't have much time to ponder his mentor's inglorious downfall. He stepped from the Orange Bowl right onto the Buckeye basketball court and earned a letter even though he was months behind. Then there was the 1979 season to worry about. His new coach, Earl Bruce, was on as hot a spot as any new collegiate coach could dare imagine. Schlichter and his teammates took Bruce off that spot and into an undefeated regular season, a Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl.

It was then that Art got the chance to show the full range of his talents, not the least of them coolness and daring under fire.

Last September, for instance, down 17-13 to Minnesota in the fourth quarter, the Buckeyes found themselves in a third-down-and-10 situation on what was likely to be their last series of downs. Schlichter calmly fired a 13-yard completion, then ran 32 yards for a touchdown. He followed that with a two-point conversion toss. Final score: Ohio State 21, Minnesota 17.

Two weeks later, on national television, U.C.L.A. held a 13-10 lead with 2 minutes:21 seconds left to play and the Buckeyes buried on their own 20. Schlichter commenced a two-minute drill that would do even Terry Bradshaw proud. He hit five different receivers for a total of 65 yards on the drive, climaxed by a two-yard TD throw on an option sweep. Ohio State 17, U.C.L.A. 13.

"I never enjoy those situations because we're behind," he said. "But I like challenge, and that was a challenge. I wouldn't want to be any other off-season, Art keeps warm by throwing 500 passes a day — standing (85-90 yards), kneeling and sitting (50 yards). During his freshman season, he often returned home on Sundays to relax by helping on the farm. (In turn, the Schlichter family travels to Columbus for all of Art's games.)

Still, the pressures on the young quarterback are so great these days that there is no time left over for farming (or, for the matter, basketball). Schlichter opted last winter to pass up the Buckeye court to help recruit for football. But it's worth it: This year he stands an excellent chance to join the select circle of collegiate football players who have won the Heisman Trophy in their junior year.

After that? The pros, of course, are already licking their chops. But Art keeps it all in down-home perspective. "If football didn't lead me beyond college, I'd want to get into some type of broadcasting," he says. "But I could always go back to the farm and be happy there."

CARS DIRECT DRIVE

Introducing the red, white and blue Yankee Doodle ★ 2.2 ★ Trans 4 ★ Direct Drive Power System. The first American-built power system engineered exclusively for 6 passenger front-wheel-drive. The system that makes the most of mileage and space.

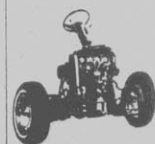

The Yankee Doodle ★ 2.2 ★ Trans 4 ★ Direct Drive Power System

K car's all-new Direct Drive Power System was designed and built from scratch to link its power directly to the front wheels. The Trans 4 engine was built to be mounted crosswise. (The standard engine on GM X cars was derived from an engine originally used in rear-wheel-drive cars.) The K car standard 2.2 engine even thinks for itself. Seven sensors keep tabs on engine performance. A computer keeps tabs on the sensors, continually adjusting timing and air/fuel mix. (Yankee ingenuity is still alive at Chrysler.) Also available is the optional 2.6-litre OHC Silent Shaft MCA-Jet Mitsubishi-made "hemi-head" engine.

CARS FRONT-WHEEL-DRIVE THE K WAY

This is the short, sweet story of how Chrysler engineers recreated front-wheel-drive...the K way.
And turned it into Chrysler's most advanced front-wheel-drive system.

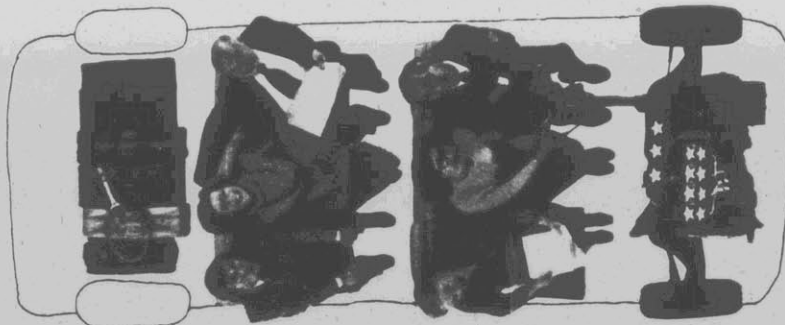

Old way

First...we said goodbye to rear-wheel-drive. And got rid of the rear driveshaft and differential.
That made more room for people, and reduced the weight. Less weight means higher mileage.

The K way

Then we created an all-new, fuel-efficient power system for front-wheel-drive...the red, white and blue 2.2 Trans 4/Direct Drive Power System. And tucked it all away, not in back, but way up front.

The weight we dropped...made the mileage high. The new power system we built was powerful... but compact. All the room we saved we used for 6 people and luggage. (K cars give you 15 cubic feet of trunk space for luggage. That's more than GM 1980 X cars.)

That's front-wheel-drive...the K way

All-new 2.2.
High mileage.

"Load" your K car as much as you like with optional extras: air conditioning, power disc brakes, power seats and steering, tinted glass, digital clock, stereo, radio, vinyl or sun roof, deluxe wheels, and much more.

K wagons give you 34 cubic feet for luggage.

K QUALITY LASTS

Quality comes from advanced production technology. Chrysler's car plants feature the most advanced automation and the most sophisticated equipment in the U.S. car-building industry.

Quality comes from computers, automation, robots, and Chrysler's specially-trained K car people.

Quality ensures strong K bodies, precision-welded automatically by robots.

30-Day/1000 Mile Satisfaction Money-Back Guarantee

Buy a new 1981 Dodge, Plymouth or Chrysler from a participating dealer for personal use. Drive it up to 30 days or 1,000 miles, whichever comes first. Then, if you're not happy with it, just bring it back in good condition and with no metal damage. When the dealer gets clear title, you get your money back, excluding finance and insurance charges. That's guaranteed satisfaction. You don't get that from any other company.

Ask participating dealer for details. Refund value of trade-in may differ from trade-in allowance on retail sales contract.

K cars...bulk and backed to guarantee your satisfaction.

K Quality makes sure all K body electrical systems are electronically tested for dependability.

K Quality means all K suspension system bolts are tightened to exact torque with precision-controlled instruments.

K Quality builds snug fit into K car doors, hoods, and trunk lids.

K Quality is carefully built into every K car. It's remarkably high. It gives Chrysler the confidence to guarantee your satisfaction.

CARS MAINTENANCE SIMPLE & SELDOM

Simple because the new 2.2 power system is easy to get at and work on.

What little maintenance your K car needs is a breeze for your dealer. In fact, K car maintenance is so easy you can do a lot of it yourself.

Seldom because K cars are built to go a long, long way between scheduled maintenance stops.

The oil filter can go for 15,000 miles or 12 months (whichever comes first) between changes. The air cleaner: 60,000 miles. The coolant: 52,000 miles or 36 months. (Those are the recommended intervals.) And some parts hardly ever need maintenance. The clutch, for instance, is self-adjusting.

K car maintenance: simple, seldom & saves you money.

The Bionic Woman and Man Come of Age

Replacing body parts is no longer science fiction; it's reality. Artificial hands, jaws, arteries, larynxes are allowing people to live normal lives once again.

By Gloria Hochman

Last November, Ernest Maino had his right hand amputated after an accident. It was replaced with a mechanical marvel, a myoelectric hand that obeys commands from his shoulder and upper arm muscles.

Paul L. Ayers, a former school administrator in Lancaster, Pa., wears an artificial jaw that replaces the part of his face that was removed to halt the spread of bone cancer.

Once thought to be the stuff of which science fiction was made, "replaceable" body parts, known as prostheses, have become a reality. The ingenious blending of medicine, electronics, engineering and chemistry has resulted in a growing catalog of body parts that can replace those injured or destroyed through disease, trauma or surgery.

Fueled by space age technology, this new dimension of medical science is giving hope to thousands of Americans and permitting them to return to a life of independence and productivity that they thought was lost to them forever.

Viola Johnson, for example, was not able to swallow or to speak after surgery in which most of the roof of her mouth was removed. Her weight dropped from 105 to 70 pounds, and she refused to leave her home because she could not communicate and had to be fed through a tube in her nose which spiraled into her stomach.

"It had never occurred to me that I wouldn't be able to eat or talk after the operation," remembers Ms. Johnson, a former secretary. "I walked around the house with my pencil and pad and learned how to write fast."

Then Ms. Johnson heard of Dr. Gerald J. O'Keefe Jr., a Philadelphia dentist who specializes in maxillofacial surgery and pleaded with him to help her. Dr. O'Keefe began working on an artificial palate for her at seven o'clock one morning. By late afternoon, he was ready to fit her. That evening, for the first time in seven months, Viola Johnson was able to eat solid food. Today she lives a normal life, speaks clearly and is ready to work again.

Among other body parts that are being replaced are ears (Dr. Thomas Cronin, professor at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, makes ears out of silicone-rubber); hips, knees, wrists and ankles, often for persons whose joints have deteriorated because of arthritis; breasts, for women who have undergone mastectomies; arteries, for persons with arteriosclerosis or aneurysms; larynxes, for those who have had laryngectomies because of cancer; and finger and toe joints, replacing those lost in accidents or rendered useless because of arthritis, and which often restore up to 75 percent of normal functioning.

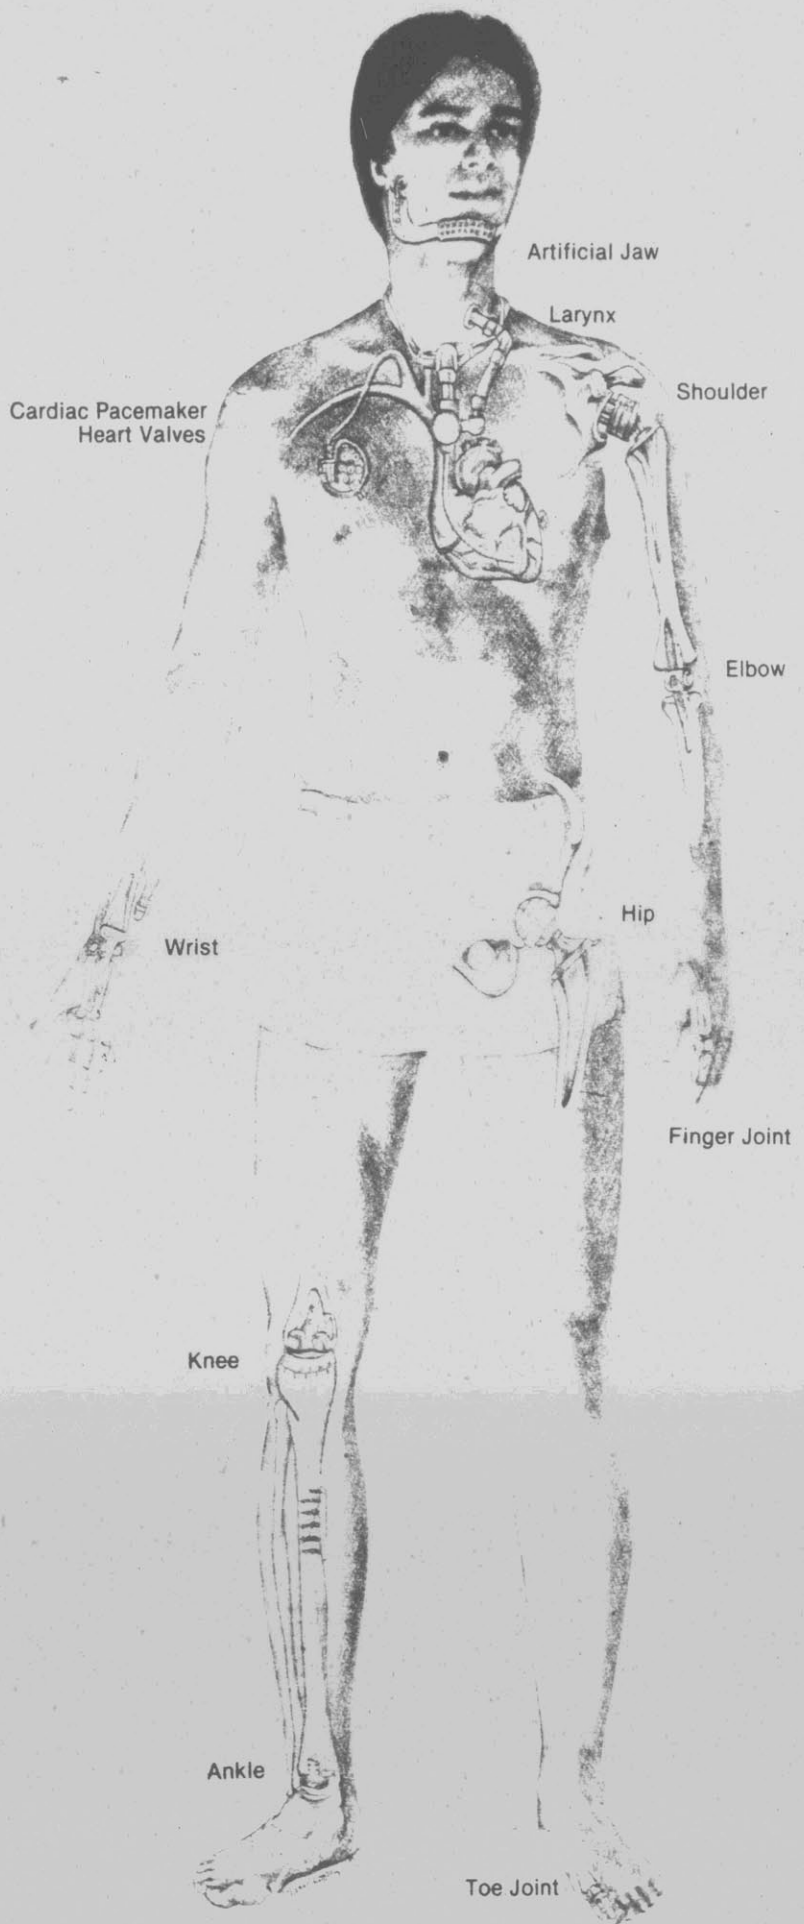

A limited number of skilled technicians in the country craft noses, jaws, ears, tongues, chins, lips and parts of the face for people who have lost these features because of surgery or injury. The facial prosthesis is painted to match skin color and is usually attached with a medical adhesive. It is removed at night and may need to be replaced in about two years.

Even artificial hearts and pancreases are no longer remote possibilities. While progress on artificial hearts has been slow and often discouraging (the lone human artificial transplant failed back in 1969), enormous sums of money are being poured into research. Artificial hearts have been successful in calves whose heart needs parallel those of human adults.

Dr. William Chick of the Joslin Diabetes Foundation in Boston has already designed a pancreas that has a man-made shell filled with rat cells that produce insulin. This "pancreas" works in rats, and Dr. Chick hopes it will eventually be ready to test on humans.

Substances used to make the artificial organs and prostheses vary. Ms. Johnson's palate is composed of silicone, which Dr. O'Keefe likes because it is soft and flexible. Maino's hand is constructed of plastic and steel and is covered with a flesh-colored glove made of polyethylene. Synthetic arteries are often fashioned from special weaves and knits of

Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

Introducing IKE BERGER
Olympic Champion

Olympic Gold medal winner (U.S. team weightlifting) • World Champion (three times) • Pan American Games Champion (twice) • National Champion (12 times) • Elected to Hall of Fame.

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the amazing SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISOMETRIC + ISOTONIC)... the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab with proper caloric reduction... to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS™... the new EASY speed method for figure beauty

What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is... a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now... build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS—the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER?

Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery. • No doorknobs needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age • Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.) fits anywhere!

"I'm over 50 and I thought my fat and flab was with me for life... SYNOMETRICS "burned" it off in only 7 days. In fact results came so fast I had to cut my daily 7 minute workout to 5 minutes to slow down the slimming process. It's the most amazing method I've ever tried... and I've tried just about every gadget and gimmick I've seen in magazines and TV."

Prostheses — the medical term for spare body parts — range from dentures to pacemakers. Here is a look at just a few that are now available. For more information, contact a university-affiliated hospital in your area.

An artificial arm is made of hard plastic and is designed to replace one lost through accident, cancer or birth defects. Cost: depends on how much of arm needs replacing and how technically advanced the prosthesis: $500-$5,000.

An artificial leg of hard plastic can replace one lost through vascular disease, cancer or accident. Cost: from $1,200 for below-knee prosthesis to $2,700 for above-knee with a hydraulic knee component, plus physical therapy (no surgery necessary).

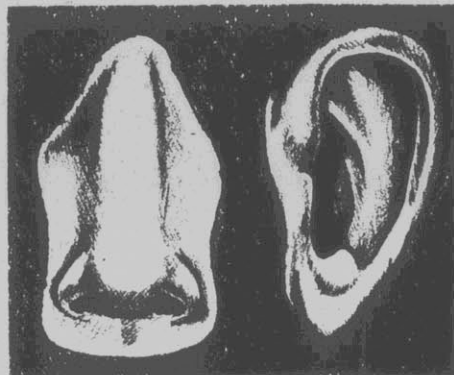

Hand joints replace those damaged by arthritis. They are generally made of silicone. The operation, including a joint for the thumb, costs $2,700. Without thumb, $2,500. Only a brief hospital stay is required: about 3 days.

Hand Joints

An artificial nose made of soft plastic can replace one lost through an accident or cancer. It is really a sculpture — made with molds taken of the patient's face and then painted to match skin tone — and is therefore quite expensive: around $3,000. But renewals (a prosthesis doesn't heal like skin and must be renewed) are much less costly because the plastic surgeon has the original mold — about $295.

Illustrations by Mary Lopez

An artificial ear made of soft plastic replaces one lost through cancer or trauma. Like noses, they are sculptures designed to look as lifelike as possible. Cost — depending on how much of an ear needs replacing — ranges from $225 to $2,700. (Attached with adhesive).

Patients who are recipients of this "bionic age" technology testify to the improved quality of their lives. James A., who lives in a Chicago suburb, used to undergo expensive dialysis but now uses an eight-pound battery-operated portable artificial kidney, which, together with a plastic tank that contains a blood-cleaning solution, enables him to perform his own dialysis.

"I feel so liberated," says James, "because I am no longer tied down to my home where I used to have to undergo kidney dialysis several times a week. I can take this wherever I go."

Ernest Maino, the man with the myoelectric hand, admits that his ordeal was traumatic. But he is grateful to be able to perform simple chores such as feeding himself, dressing, lifting light objects and fishing.

Dr. James Hunter, who heads the hand rehabilitation center at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, says that the myoelectric hand is not suitable for everyone. (There are only about 65 persons in the country who have received them, mainly at the Emory University Medical Center in Atlanta.) For one thing, there must be enough muscle remaining in the arm to set the device in motion. And there must be three inches of arm below the elbow and three inches above the wrist to accommodate the prosthesis, to which the hand is attached.

"The person's intelligence and emotional state are important, too," explains Dr. Hunter, "to permit him to isolate the muscle that can command his hand to do what he wants it to." Maino, for instance, was trained by Loretta Maiorano, the center's chief occupational therapist, to command his hand to open by signaling the muscle that bends the wrist.

"There are limitations," says Maino. "I can open and close my hand, but I can't span it. And the batteries [which drive a tiny motor that Maino can switch on and off] have to be recharged every night. But I'm not feeling sorry for myself. What I have isn't as good as the real thing. But it is a lot better than a stump. And, cosmetically, I am quite satisfied."

Perhaps the patients who are most grateful for their cosmetic improvement are those who have received facial prostheses. "Most of the people work with are cancer victims," says Dr. O'Keefe. "If cancer is discovered early in the oral or facial region, there is a high cure rate. But even though these people may be free of disease, they are far from rehabilitated. Many of them look like freaks and stay at home for fear of public ridicule.

"What we can do for them changes their lives around. With a prosthesis, I'm not saying that, if you look very closely, you might not know that there was something there, but no one is going to stare at you when you walk down the street."

Paul Ayers, the Lancaster school administrator, had his share of stares. After eight operations, months of chemotherapy and radiation treatments, a sizable portion of his face was destroyed.

"A lot of people in my position never leave their homes," says Ayers. "But with this new jaw [which he acknowledges is 'not as good as what I was born with'], I can go out to restaurants and movies and feel comfortable."

The cost of a prosthesis varies, of course, and is often covered by health insurance. An artificial knee at one hospital costs roughly $750, plus surgery ($1,400). An artificial larynx averages about $950, plus surgery. And an artificial kidney now being developed commercially will cost about $7,500.

It usually takes a brief course of instruction to teach patients how to apply and care for their prostheses. And, for the first week or two, it may be advisable to stay close to home to see how long the appliance will remain adhered before loosening.

A person who wishes information on artificial body parts should contact a university-affiliated hospital in a city nearby, asking for a specific department. For information on artificial limbs, contact the National Office of Orthotics and Prosthetics (1444 N. Street NW, Washington, D.C. 20005).

Dr. O'Keefe gets most of his referrals from oral surgeons or from otolaryngologists (ears, nose, throat doctors), such as Dr. Joseph P. Atkins Jr., chief of the otorhinolaryngology department at Philadelphia's Pennsylvania Hospital. Often Dr. Atkins will call Dr. O'Keefe in on a case before any surgery is performed so the patient can be reassured about what can be done for him or her cosmetically.

"Working with these people is a tremendous boost for me," says Dr. O'Keefe. "Even with their tremendous afflictions, they are the happiest, most appreciative, most cooperative people you want to meet."

"I look around me and I see people so much worse off than I am," says Steve, a 29-year-old salesman who lost his nose to cancer about seven months ago and wears a prosthesis. "Sure, I've had a problem. But I'm lucky. I'm cured of my disease. I have a nose again. I can breathe. I look O.K. And I'm getting married in December. I don't think that's too bad..."

BREADWINNERS!

Presenting the Sandwich Idea Contest Winners

Here they are, the inventive, delicious sandwiches that won in the Breadwinners Sandwich Idea Contest. We announced the contest in FAMILY WEEKLY in April, as you will remember. There were four contest categories: Breakfast Specials, Notable Tottables, Hot Ideas, Party-Goers; now let's go on to the results.

Grand Prize Winner

Lois Dowling

Mrs. Lois Dowling of Tacoma, Wash., invented the St. Helens Sunnyside Special especially for the sandwich contest. Lois was inspired by the Mount St. Helens' dramatic eruption; she wanted to make something light, fluffy and cloudlike, and

- ½ English muffin, lightly toasted
- 1 tablespoon melted butter
- 1 slice cooked Canadian bacon
- 1 canned pineapple ring
- 1 teaspoon orange marmalade
- 1 egg, separated
- 1 tablespoon grated cheddar cheese

1. Preheat oven or toaster oven to 375°F.

so she compiled practically a complete breakfast on an English muffin. Just try it.

When her children were growing up, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches were gobbled up quickly with big glasses of milk. Lois's sandwich favorite today is a hearty corned beef sandwich or a Reuben.

I asked Lois what makes a good sandwich? Lois promptly replied, "I think it's bread, good bread; you can put a great filling between two slices of dry bread or in a stale roll, and the result is worthless."

Lois confessed that she loves entering contests and was a finalist in three Pillsbury Bake-Offs: Houston-1972, San Francisco-1975, and Boston-1976.

ST. HELENS SUNNYSIDE SPECIAL (Breakfast Specials)

2. Brush melted butter generously on both sides of toasted muffin. Place bacon on muffin. Top with pineapple ring.

- 3. Spoon marmalade into pineapple hole. Beat egg white until stiff; spread over top and sides of muffin sandwich. Set on baking sheet.
- 4. Sprinkle on cheese. Make indentation on top. Slip in egg yolk. Bake 12 to 17 minutes until lightly browned. Serve immediately.

Denise Blackstone

Mrs. Denise Blackstone of Bricktown, N.J., is a vivacious woman who originated Peanut Colada Blintzes for the Breadwinners contest.

Denise says that she serves the sand-

- 2 slices enriched white bread, crusts removed
- 1 3-oz. package cream cheese (softened)
- ¼ cup crushed pineapple, drained
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon rum
- ¼ cup melted butter
- ½ cup sweetened coconut
- ¼ cup finely chopped peanuts

wich with tea in the afternoon, as a dessert or as a party hors d'oeuvre.

As a child, Denise loved simple cream cheese and jelly sandwiches, and now her favorite is grilled cheese on a bagel.

The Blackstones enjoy a variety of breads, including natural whole wheat,

PEANUT COLADA BLINTZES (Party Goers)

- 1. Flatten bread slices with rolling pin.
- 2. Mix together softened cream cheese, pineapple, sugar and rum.
- 3. Divide mixture and spread on 2 slices honey wheat and oatmeal breads.

Denise reads FAMILY WEEKLY in the Asbury Park Press. From time to time, Denise enjoys entering recipe contests and was a finalist in the local Asbury Park Press recipe contest and in the Bertolli Olive Oil contest.

bread. Roll up, jelly roll-fashion.

- 4. Dip in melted butter, then in mixed coconut and peanuts. Cut each roll in half, place on baking sheets.
- 5. Bake at 375°F. about 8 minutes, until golden brown.

Barbara Dankert

Barbara Dankert of Ann Arbor, Mich., found herself one morning busily making lunch to take to work when she opened her refrigerator and found the remains of an antipasto platter left over from a party.

This looks good to me, thought Barbara, I'll use it to make a sandwich. And

- 1 artichoke heart (canned), quartered
- ½ boiled egg, sliced
- 1 anchovy, chopped fine
- 2 cherry tomatoes, quartered
- 1 ripe olive, sliced
- 1 cauliflowerette, chopped
- 1 broccoli flowerette, chopped
- 1 slice salami, chopped
- 1 fresh mushroom, sliced
- 1 oz. shredded mozzarella cheese

so, the Gondola sandwich was born. Aptly named after its boatlike shape and its Italian style filling.

Peanut butter was Barbara's favorite sandwich as a child, and now her preference is for bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches. Her daughter loves plain bread and butter sandwiches, perhaps taking after her dad, who will sit down and

GONDOLA (Notable Tottables)

M. LaHoma Reid

Mrs. M. LaHoma Reid, who originated the Tobyburger, says that her sandwich entry "kind of evolved over a period of time, adding a little here and there to improve the flavor and the looks." The last thing she did was to name it.

LaHoma serves the Tobyburger frequently on Saturday evenings for an informal supper for herself and husband Roy. "It's pretty filling," LaHoma tells me. Whole coarse grain hamburger buns are available in Port Richey, Fla., where the Reids live, and LaHoma likes them immensely.

Earlier on, LaHoma's sister-in-law had sent her the official Breadwinners entry blank from FAMILY WEEKLY in the Blade-Tribune, Ocean-side, Calif. LaHoma has been a recipe contest finalist before. In 1977 she was in Honolulu, at the National Pineapple Cooking Classic, with her Lady Godiva Pie.

TOBYBURGER (Hot Ideas)

- 2 ozs. twice-ground sirloin steak
- 1/2 teaspoon dill seeds
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 tablespoon slightly beaten egg
- 3 saltine crackers, crushed
- 1 tablespoon chopped sauerkraut
- 1/2 tablespoon Irish whiskey
- 1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 teaspoon mayonnaise
- 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 slice Bermuda onion, 1/2-inch thick
- 2 slices large tomato, 1/2-inch thick
- 1 slice American cheese
- 1 pimento-stuffed olive, sliced crosswise in quarters
- 1 whole grain hamburger bun

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. In fact, it's a problem that millions of American women face. And all the vitamins in the world can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take GERITOL, America's #1 iron and vitamin supplement. GERITOL is so rich in iron, just one tablet each day gives you more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins that are essential to good health.

GERITOL will actually build iron poor blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. While oven is heating, prepare meat.
2. Sprinkle dill seeds and curry powder over meat; add egg, and mix. Add crackers, sauerkraut; mix and shape into one patty. Place 3 inches under broiler and broil 7 minutes. Sprinkle patty with 1/2 teaspoon - salt and turn over; broil about 3 to 5 minutes longer.

3. On cut side of top half of bun place the onion and tomato slice, and top with cheese slice. Broil just until cheese melts.
4. Spread 1 teaspoon mayonnaise and 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard on bottom half of hamburger bun. Place cooked patty

- on this half and top with onion-tomato-cheese half, cheese-side up.
5. Remove the rim from the other tomato slice. Cut rim into arcs. Place 2 tomato arcs on cheese for a smiling mouth, 2 olive slices for eyes and 1 olive end piece for a nose, if desired. Makes 1 serving

Runners-Up

NUTTY BUT NICE Notable Totables

- 2 tablespoons creamy peanut butter
- 1 tablespoon chutney
- 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
- 1 tablespoon butter

- 2 slices raisin-nut bread
- 1/2 medium banana
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh uncooked bean sprouts

1. Blend peanut butter and chutney; cut chutney into smaller bits if they are very large. Add the chopped nuts and mix well.

2. Butter one side of each slice of the bread. Spread peanut butter mixture on bread slice.

3. Slice the banana, lengthwise, into three sections. Sprinkle lemon juice on banana and place on one slice bread.

4. Chop the bean sprouts and sprinkle on top of the banana slices. Top with the other slice of bread. Cut on the diagonal.

SHRIMP CURRY RAREBIT (Hot Ideas)

- 1/2 lb. processed cheese spread
- 1/2 teaspoon butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup small, boiled shrimp (or 1/2 can shrimp pieces)
- 1 small tomato, chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- Salt and pepper (to taste)
- 1 tablespoon sherry
- 1 slice toasted white enriched bread

1. Melt butter and cheese in saucepan. When melted, stir in shrimp, tomato, curry, garlic powder, dry mustard, salt and pepper.

2. Simmer for about 3 minutes; add sherry, stir and serve hot over slice of toasted white bread. Makes 1 serving

BROWN BAGGERS' BUDGET BLUE CHEESE TOTE (Notable Totables)

- 1/2 cup mashed tofu
- 2 teaspoons blue cheese salad dressing mix
- 1 enriched Kaiser roll, split
- 12 canned mushroom caps
- 1 thin slice red onion
- 6 washed and trimmed spinach leaves

1. In small bowl, combine tofu and salad dressing mix. Spread 1/4 cup mixture on bottom half of roll.

2. Press mushroom caps into tofu mixture. Top with onion slices and spinach leaves.

3. Spread remaining tofu mixture on roll top. Close sandwich with roll top. If desired, garnish with red delicious apple slices.

Rub your headache away!

Discover this amazing natural healing method—and many, many others—in a free, special report now available with your trial subscription.

No more aspirin? No more agony?

That's the promise of natural healing to thousands of headache sufferers.

Even for people tortured by migraines, a simple self-massage technique applied to specific areas of the body lets them enjoy life once again.

And now it's explained in a fascinating, 72-page booklet called "Healing With Nature"—along with a host of other gentle, effective methods to help you cope with a wide, wide range of health problems:

- Overweight—Many doctors aren't yet aware of the new diet plan that reduces weight, blood fats, and diabetic complications... simultaneously!

- Depression—Learn about a new natural weapon as useful as drugs, with none of the drug side effects

- Menopause Difficulties—2,000 women report that a single vitamin gave relief of hot flashes, low energy, leg cramps, or other symptoms

- Protein Deficiency—What it can do to you, and how to avoid its sometimes tragic effects

- Heart Attacks—Recent evidence suggests a drugless way to defuse stroke-producing blood clots

- And much, much more

All this "feel better, stay better" information is now available in the remarkably interesting "Healing With Nature" booklet—without charge—exclusively to new subscribers of Prevention.*

It seems to work for so many.

Prevention's goal is simple and sincere: To put America back in touch with some of the sources of better health: the wholesome foods, the vitamins and minerals, the exercises, and the mental attitudes that may be essential to being stronger, healthier, and happier.

Prevention wants to help you stay healthier—

And when you aren't, we aim to help you get better. With less dependence on drugs and medication which—as you know from reading the papers—sometimes may do more harm than good.

Is Prevention really helping people like you?

If it weren't, we don't believe it would be America's most widely-read health magazine—serving over 2,250,000 paid subscribers.

So, try Prevention yourself on this "can't-lose" basis: We'll send you the current issue to examine— together with your personal copy of "Healing With Nature." If you don't think it's for you, just write "cancel" on your first subscription invoice... return it... and owe nothing. Otherwise, take advantage of the low new-subscriber rate of $7.97 for twelve monthly issues. Either way, the free report on "Healing With Nature"—plus the first issue of Prevention—are yours to keep.

Fall Forecast: Real Clothes for a Real World

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

What distinguishes the fashion scene for fall 1980? Not just the wide choice of styles but the practical thinking that has gone into many designers' collections. In this tight economy, they are wisely showing clothes with lots of fashion mileage.

Fall clothes, though rooted in reality, are nevertheless imaginative, emphasizing elegant simplicity.

Making a big comeback are knits—hand-knitted pullovers, sweater sets, sweater jackets, sweater dresses and knitted coats. They range from the practical to artistic and are knit in many different yarns, from fluffy mohair or angora to smooth rayon and cashmere. Many have open work or three-dimensional stitches.

Pants will continue to be strong in a variety of lengths, from the knee to the ankle. All the American classics are resurfacing this season (under the name "preppie" look) in blazers, pleated skirts, tattersall-check shirts and penny loafers.

Coats will have terrific diversity and style this year. The newest are three-quarter-length with capelike fullness, a good proportion for this season's fuller knee-length skirts. Basic shapes are diversified with such old favorites as the reefer and the princess-line bidding for fashion prominence.

Evening looks range from the casual to the formal, from satin separates, demure lace skirts and bare-shoulder sweaters to lamé or sequins for major galas.

What if you can just afford to buy one outfit this fall? FAMILY WEEKLY asked several top designers what their choice would be.

- Bill Blass believes that a new dress will make the most important statement in your wardrobe this season. A dress is particularly useful for the woman who doesn't want to bother with coordinating separates. Blass says that his tent-dress silhouette is "not designed for hiding the figure but to enhance its shape."

- Donna Karan of Anne Klein describes her fall collection as simple, soft, elegant sportswear. She believes that if you can buy only one item, it should be a sweater set. The cardigan with padded shoulders could be jersey or hand-knitted, to the hip. The shell underneath should be crew-necked. The great advantage is that the sweaters can be worn together or separately for a multitude of occasions.

- Oscar de la Renta suggests a suit with a shorter fitted jacket and some shoulder emphasis. This can be interchanged with different skirts. He particularly likes the look of wearing a jacket and skirt in the same color but in different textures—such as a tweed or suede jacket with a velveteen skirt. The suit colors he has unveiled this season are in brilliant shades of ruby red and sapphire blue. He believes the jacket and skirt, when accessorized properly, can take you from day into evening.

How to Be Fashion-Right

1. Before you buy new clothes this season, check the fashion magazines and your newspaper's style pages to get a feel for the latest designs.
2. Take the time to shop the stores and "try on." When you do, try moving instead of standing still, while looking into the mirror. It's the way others see you and will give you a better idea of how you really look in a style.
3. Don't be too conservative. Fashion is always offering something new. Choose a flattering silhouette, but then experiment with different colors and textures.
4. To avoid mistakes, it's a good idea not to shop for clothes when you desperately need an outfit for some big event.

"Lost 15 lbs in just 72 hours on the Cambridge Diet!"*

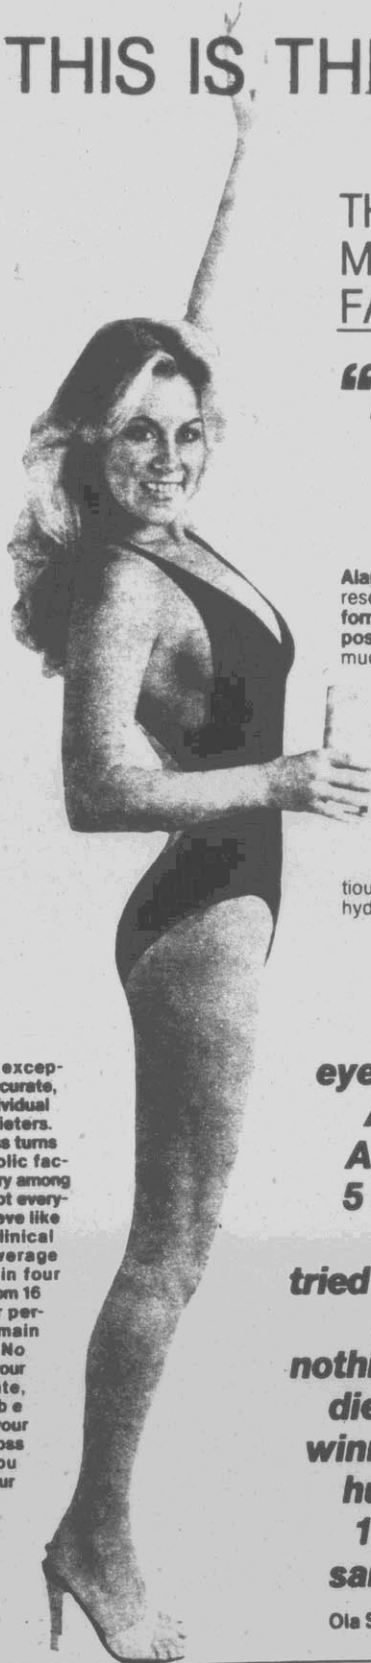

Amma Clark, Minden, Nevada

THIS IS THE INCREDIBLE 'SUPER DIET'
...the remarkable weight-loss breakthrough that is sweeping the country...

THE CAMBRIDGE ULTIMATE WEIGHT-LOSS FORMULA™ THAT REDUCES BODY FAT VIRTUALLY AS FAST AS FASTING OR COMPLETE STARVATION!

"Reduced 21 lbs in 5 days on fantastic Cambridge Diet!"*

Barbara Andrews, Eugene, Oregon

*These are exceptional, and accurate, results of individual Cambridge dieters. As weight-loss turns upon metabolic factors, which vary among individuals, not everyone will achieve like results. In clinical tests, the average weight loss in four weeks was from 16 to 20 lbs. for persons who remain on the diet. No matter what your metabolic rate, you must be thrilled with your own weight-loss results, or you can return your Cambridge Diet for a complete refund.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. Between April 17 and April 21—just 5 days—I lost 24 lbs. I've tried everything and there's nothing like this diet. It's a real winner! P.S. My husband lost 17 lbs. in the same time."*

Ola Spears, Gary, Indiana

Alan N. Howard, Ph.D., of Cambridge, England, headed a team of British scientists who have, after 8 years of research and clinical testing, perfected this ultimate diet. "Here at last," says Dr. Howard, "we have created a formula that causes the body to burn up the maximum amount of its own excess fatty tissue in the shortest possible time. Medically supervised case histories show users safely losing as much as 15 lbs. in one week, as much as 35 lbs. in 4 weeks with an average weight loss of 16 to 20 lbs. in four weeks, for subjects remaining on the diet." And now this remarkable 'Super Diet' is available in America.

Dr. Howard

Dr. Howard: "Here finally is the diet food for the person who has been disappointed and frustrated by every other diet. No matter what your starting weight, I'm sure you will find the Cambridge Diet formula an incredibly effective weight loss—fat loss—food: a fat burning phenomenon that contains 100% of the adult U. S. RDA of vitamins and minerals. This is the diet program that provides the individual dieter with dramatic and rewarding weight loss results. It is a 'hallmark' achievement in reducing—the finest weight-loss food that 8 years of dedicated scientific research could produce—totally delicious, nutritious, with a calorically minimized 'breakthrough' balancing of food elements—protein (75% U. S. RDA) carbohydrate and fat—that will reduce body fat virtually as fast as fasting or complete starvation!"

FOOD BARGAIN OF A LIFETIME... AS LITTLE AS 50¢ PER MEAL!

If you order the 30 meal pack, your entire food bill averages less than 65¢ per meal. If you order the 120 meal pack your entire food bill averages less than 50¢ per meal. The Cambridge Diet is a complete meal substitute.

There is nothing else to buy. Three times a day you eat a delicious mix-in-a-minute meal and lose the weight you need to lose. The Cambridge Diet contains no drugs or stimulants. There are no calories to count, no pills to take, no food lists to consult. The Cambridge Diet is just the simplest, easiest, most pleasant diet to follow—and many users emphasize, "I never feel hungry on this incredible diet!"

Order today. There is no waiting for results on the Cambridge Diet—you start losing pounds and inches from the very first day!

Almost Like Growing "INSTANT SHADE"...
Once Established, Amazing
Super-Soaring Hybrid

ZOOMS ROOF HIGH IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

—and keeps on skyrocketing 30—40—50—EVEN UP TO 60 FEET HIGH, OR MORE, in less time than most trees nudge themselves a few feet off the ground.

Actually Soars Up To A Tower Of ROOF-HIGH Beauty IN JUST ONE YEAR!

Yes! Based on amazing average weekly and yearly growth rates reported by plant scientists—it grows SO FAST... arches out SO WIDE... you can actually take a ruler and measure the incredible difference in height every 2 to 3 days! OR, to really leave your neighbors gasping in awe and wonder, give them a yardstick and let them measure the difference IN FEET, every 2 to 3 weeks!

GROWS MORE IN JUST ONE MONTH THAN MOST TREES GROW IN AN ENTIRE YEAR!

Because according to plant experts, Gov't. scientists and Botanical Gardens who researched this wonder-hybrid... once established, you merely water it once-a-week, and be absolutely floored as it GROWS up to A FULL 1/2 FOOT WEEKLY—AFTER EVERY TIME YOU WATER IT!

That's right! Grows higher than even a full-grown Flowering Dogwood IN JUST ONE SINGLE SEASON! Grows higher than even a full-grown Star Magnolia IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR! Yes, thrusts itself so high, so fast that it actually towers over even a Japanese Red Maple, Cherry Tree or even the most graceful silky Willow, in such a ridiculously short time you will simply refuse to believe your eyes!

PLANT NOW—REACH OUT AND TOUCH ITS LUSH, THICK BRANCHES FROM YOUR SECOND STORY BEDROOM WINDOW BY NEXT SUMMER!

No doubt about it. There's just not another "Instant" Shade Tree like it on this planet! Because—NOW, thanks to this miracle of plant science, instead of spending a small fortune on a tree and then waiting half a lifetime for it to grow... this season get set for the garden-wonder of your life as this super-soaring hybrid rockets forth from a sapling to a tower of roof-high beauty IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR!

GROWS IN VIRTUALLY ANY SOIL—REQUIRES NO SPECIAL CARE—SOARS INTO A MASTERPIECE OF BEAUTY IN JUST A MATTER OF MONTHS!

Best of all, unlike most trees that demand constant care, constant pampering... the only thing you do when you plant this super-growing wonder-hybrid is water it and enjoy it! That's why leading botanical gardens... landscape artists... garden editors... can't stop raving about its indescribable beauty... it's trouble-free care... it's surging towering growth.

Small wonder that leading experts and the U.S. Dept. of Agric. hail it in the most glowing terms... recommend it again and again for homeowners who want a stunning display of both beauty and shade... and with practically no more work than a thorough watering each week!

VITAL STATISTICS FROM LEADING EXPERTS

MATURE GROWTH SIZE: as much as 65 feet.
MATURE GROWTH SPREAD: as much as 35 feet.
ZONE OF HARDINESS: Hardy from deepest South to as far North as Vermont, Quebec, British Columbia.

Winter hardy in areas where temp. drops to as low as 50 degrees below zero!

LIGHT NEEDS: Grows in full sun or partial shade.
DECORATIVE MERITS: Highly recommended by landscape architects as beautiful, decorative specimens for homes, parks, highways etc., where exceptional fast growth and beauty are required. Perfect for fast screening and privacy.

RAPID RATE OF GROWTH: Experts report growth rates of up to 8 FEET THE VERY FIRST YEAR ALONE on specimen trees. That's more than most shade trees grow in 3... 4... 5... even 7 years. Once established, will grow ranch-house roof high IN JUST ONE SINGLE YEAR. Experts also report, soars an amazing 5 to 8 feet EACH YEAR thereafter.

CARE: No special care required. Water Fully once weekly. No spraying, no dusting, no special feeding. Naturally resistant to most every disease, pest or insect.
Remember: All claims are based on optimum growing conditions. Results will naturally vary with each locality. Takes but 10 minutes to plant, and will reward you with a lifetime of growth and beauty starting this very year.

WE HAVE AT THIS MOMENT ONLY A LIMITED SUPPLY AVAILABLE FOR RELEASE TO THE PUBLIC—FULL SUPPLY WON'T BE READY UNTIL 1981. SO ACT NOW!

Now the price of this super growing shade tree is not $20 or $30 you might expect, but a mere $3.95.

Who Gets Ahead?

The Secrets to Success in America

Doug Jamieson

By Mary Long

The rich are different from you and me.

—Scott Fitzgerald

Yes, they have more money.

—Ernest Hemingway

No two people agree about what it means to get ahead in life. For some it means winning a promotion at work. For others it means publishing a novel or being asked to the right parties or breaking 80 on the golf course. But when surveys ask Americans to explain what they mean by success, people mention money more often than anything else.

From 1973 to 1978, Christopher Jencks, a Harvard sociology professor, and 11 of his colleagues, conducted research in an attempt to identify the factors that enable some people to earn more than others. Their findings were reported last year in Who Gets Ahead: The Determinants of Economic Success in America (Basic Books).

After rigorous study based on a variety of in-depth statistical sources, the Jencks team identified four basic factors that are critical when it comes to determining a person's future economic success. They are: 1) family background; 2) formal education (the number of years of school completed); 3) academic ability, as reflected in scores on I.Q. and aptitude tests in primary and secondary school; and 4) personality traits and behavior.

Let's consider family background first. Disheartening as it may be, the portrait drawn by the team of researchers is of an America in which being born into the "right" family still looms large. If a child comes from a family that, measured by income and occupational status, is in the top one-fifth in the country, his earnings are likely to be 150 to 186 percent of the national average. If he comes from a family in the bottom one-fifth, his earnings are likely to be only 56 to 67 percent of the national average.

Jencks stresses that it's not just having rich parents that makes the difference for a child. A child's eventual success is influenced by a whole cluster of family-background variables. The father's occupation is the most important of these, but father's and mother's education, family size, geographic location and many "intangibles" also are significant. Says Jencks, "There are many 'advantaged' families that are not rich."

Other findings concerning the effect of family background included:

- Children from small families do appreciably better than those from large families, even when the families' overall incomes and the fathers' occupations are identical. Within families of any given size, however, elder children do not do significantly better than their younger siblings.

- Despite a decade of affirmative action, black families still cannot expect their children to earn as much as they would if they were white.

- Differences in income among white ethnic groups are relatively modest, however.

The next-most important factor accounting for the wide variation in people's incomes is educational attainment — the number of years of schooling completed. One of the book's most interesting findings is that what counts (as far as making more money is concerned) is finishing college and getting credentials, rather than what one might learn in that last year, or any year.

Completing high school raised expected earnings for whites by only 4 to 6 percent (the figure is smaller for blacks.) But completing college gives whites a whopping 49-percent advantage over those who do not — and the percentage of earnings advantage is even larger for blacks. This income advantage derives primarily from the fact that those who finish college have won the credential needed for entering higher-status occupations.

Who Gets Ahead?

"The classic argument used to be that if a kid was smart, he should go to college, and if he wasn't so smart, he shouldn't," Jencks says. "... If I were a counselor and were talking to somebody with low scores or grades but high ambition, I'd tell them the same thing I'd tell somebody with high scores and high ambition — namely, if you want to end up in a high-status occupation and make more money than most people, your chances are good if you get a college degree."

Turning from education to the thorny question of intelligence, the authors found that the standard belief that those who are the best, the brightest, the most naturally talented or intellectually gifted are the ones who get ahead — turns out to be largely unfounded. Scores from I.Q.

• A positive effect in terms of a paycheck and high-status job was related to affiliations with church groups, social clubs and school clubs, such as debating or drama, the school newspaper, the YMCA, B'nai B'rith.

Dr. Daniel Yankelovich, president of one of the most widely known social-research firms in the country and professor of psychology at New York University, cautions against literal interpretations of the averages and the analysis of Who Gets Ahead — he says that these may be misleading and that their meaning for any given individual calls for careful qualification. "It would be tragic, for example," he says, "if Jencks's findings were interpreted to mean that... people who don't finish college should assume they cannot achieve the kind of success they seek, that lack of leadership ability in school tests, aptitude and achievement tests (presumably an indication of technical competence and gifts) are poor predictors of economic success.

If your academic test scores are high (15 or more points above average), you will be more likely than most to get ahead in life, not because you are smart but for the simple reason that you are more likely to be encouraged to go to college. If you have high academic test scores but decide to forgo college, the data say that the chances are your superior intelligence will not do you much good economically, unless it somehow enables you to capitalize shrewdly on an unexpected opportunity.

Personality traits also appear to play a significant role in determining a person's eventual earnings. What counts most is leadership. Other findings:

• Participation in sports has no statistically significant effect on later success.

• Bookworms do get better grades in school. But they do not seem to make more money later in life. Intellectuals may sacrifice money for intellectual or personal challenge, thinks Peter Mueser, one of the members of the Jencks team.

• What about students who work during the school year? Certainly that indicates hustle. But it has no correlation with future success, says Mueser.

• Young men and women who lead an active social life tend not to close the door to future economic success...

Jencks himself cautions casual readers. For he says that while family background, academic ability, personality traits and formal education all affect earnings through a person's lifetime, none of these traits stands out as the "key" to success. And people who have none of these advantages often earn quite a lot.

The study indicated that there are a number of things parents can do if they want their child to be financially successful. When the authors discovered that student leadership was the trait that best forecast big earnings later in life, they also learned that the aspect of leadership most crucial to a prosperous future was the ability to get along with other people. And parents, Peter Mueser points out, can do a lot toward nurturing and encouraging that skill.

Another important thing parents can do is instill in their child the belief that a personally satisfying successful life is something worth pursuing. The best example is the parents' own lives. "How much money you have is quite unimportant," Mueser says. "Many wealthy parents raise equally successful children not so much because they have money but because they effectively teach their children that there is a lot out there worth doing. But you can certainly have those feelings and instill them in your child without being rich. You can do it even if you have no money at all." fw

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Why Will You Vote The Way You Will?

What do you think is the most significant issue in the Presidential campaign?

- Inflation
- Unemployment
- Energy
- Military preparedness
- Growing tension with the Soviet Union
- Unrest in the Persian Gulf area
- Relations between Israel and the Arab nations

On what will you base your vote for President?

- Party affiliation
- Candidate's personality
- Candidate's position on the issues

MILITARY PREPAREDNESS

The next several years promise to be a crucial time in our nation's history; America must deal with a variety of issues both at home and abroad. As we approach the November Presidential election, FAMILY WEEKLY wants to hear your views on the issues facing America. So please take a minute to answer the questions above.

Please check one box only for each question. Answers must be postmarked no later than September 26 and sent to FAMILY WEEKLY, P.O. Box 5120, New York, N.Y. 10150. Results of the poll will appear in FAMILY WEEKLY the weekend before the November 4 election.

Man's Work Is Never Done

Now that 50 percent of American women work, men have had to begin pitching in with the housework, albeit, in many cases, reluctantly. According to a recent survey by the advertising firm of Cunningham and Walsh, 70 percent of husbands cook, 56 percent go grocery shopping; 47 percent vacuum and 41 percent wash the dishes. Chores that husbands enjoy the least include dusting, cleaning the bathroom, sorting the laundry and cleaning the oven. And, by the way, 80 percent of husbands really do take out the garbage.

Don't Get Burned

Monday marks the official end of summer, and many people will no doubt try to preserve their hard-earned tans at the roughly 1,000 indoor tanning booths around the country. However, doctors warn, the ultraviolet light used in these tanning booths may cause your skin to wrinkle prematurely and could cause skin cancer 10 to 20 years hence. Moreover, certain prescription drugs, such as some antibiotics and birth control pills, don't mix well with the ultraviolet rays, and a severe sunburn can result.

"The ultraviolet rays given off in the booth are identical in nature to sunlight," explains Bill Rados of the Food and Drug Administration. "However, the intensity of the radiation is far greater. One minute in the booth is equal to anywhere from 20 minutes to an hour in the sun."

Taylor-Made Success

It has become all too apparent lately how the success of one brother can adversely affect the other. But singer Livingston Taylor, 29, considers his brother James's fame a blessing. "I haven't been taken as seriously as I would have had I not been James Livingston Taylor: No family album.

Taylor's little brother," says Liv, whose new album, his fifth, is called Man's Best Friend. "But how exciting to be discounted; it keeps you from making foolish mistakes."

Liv's younger sister, Kate, and eldest brother, Alex, are also singer-songwriters, and although James and Kate, for instance, have appeared on each other's albums, Livingston isn't following their lead. "James and I are close as brothers and as friends," he says. "But I want there to be no confusion that Livingston Taylor walks his own direction, always has, always will."

Campus Sex

Almost half of all male college undergraduates have sex more than once or twice a month, according to a recent survey by Glamour magazine of 1,000 men and women at colleges around the country. Only 31 percent of women college students have sex that often, and 35 percent of the women report that they never have sex. Of those surveyed, 54 percent of men said they were satisfied with their sex lives, compared to 80 percent of the women.

Gas-Tax Bonus

Eighty percent of all Americans would benefit economically from a 50-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax rebated to the public, a survey by the Institute for Socioeconomic Studies reports.

In its analysis, the Institute took the total amount collected from the tax and divided it equally among all American families, with each family receiving roughly $700. Since wealthier families usually spend more on gasoline, a family making between $7,900 and $26,000 will get back anywhere from $372 more to $4 more than it paid in, depending on how much gas it bought during the year. Only those families making over $40,000 would lose money on the plan.

The Hour Before Midnight by Velda Johnston. Judy Dunne suddenly discovers who killed her cousin Cecily a year ago—when she is trapped by him herself! (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

The Last Sherlock Holmes Story by Michael Dibdin. The greatest detective of them all tracks Jack the Ripper through the gas lit streets of London's East End. (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

Police Chief by John Ball. After years as a cop in a crime-ridden big city, Jack Tallon becomes police chief of a quiet small town. Then a series of vicious rape-murders erupts. (Publ. Ed. $6.95)

Lew Archer, Private Investigator by Ross Macdonald. First time in book form—complete short stories of the most famous private eye since Sam Spade. (Publ. Ed. $10.00)

Catch Me: Kill Me by Wm. H. Hallahan. "Best mystery of the year" award winner! A famed Russian poet defects, Soviet agents abduct him. Can our side set him free...and in time? (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

Maigret's Pipe by Georges Simenon. Vintage Maigret, in translation for the first time. 14 stories of classic sleuthing in Paris and the provinces. (Publ. Ed. $8.95)

Aftershock by Lillian O'Donnell. Ms. Mici Anhalt, social worker, interviews the pregnant wife of a slain society hairdresser...and a "routine" case turns into a nightmare. (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

The Judas Goat by Robert B. Parker. Spencer and Hawk pursue terrorist bombers through London, Amsterdam and Copenhagen to a violent finale at the Montreal Olympic Games. (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

Death of an Expert Witness by P.D. James. Adam Dalgliesh of Scotland Yard is back...and on the track of a killer who works for the police! (Publ. Ed. $8.95)

The Man with the President's Mind by Ted Allbeury. KGB agents seek possession of the President's mind in the most daring intelligence mission ever to come out of the Kremlin. (Publ. Ed. $8.95)

Wait for What Will Come by Barbara Michaels. In an ancient mansion on the cliffs of Cornwall, a young American heiress confronts an unsolved mystery—200 years old. (Publ. Ed. $8.95)

The Japanese Corpse by Jarwillem van de Wetering. The Amsterdam police pitted against the Japanese mafia to expose an international conspiracy of stolen art and smuggled heroin. (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

Last Will and Testament by E.X. Ferrars. A legacy in art is stolen and mysteriously returned. Then, one by one, somebody starts murdering the heirs. (Publ. Ed. $7.95)

Nine O'Clock Tide by Mignon G. Eberhart. Wealthy Sam Havlock falls to his death. Was he pushed? If so, by whom? His young wife, her ex-lover, or—? (Publ. Ed. $6.95)

Take these 15 best-selling thrillers for only $1.00. These books cost $123.30 in the original publishers' editions—but to introduce you to The Detective Book Club, we'll send you all of these superb mysteries in five handsome hardbound triple volumes (shown in the coupon) for only $1.00.

As a member, there is no minimum number of books you must buy. You may reject any volume before or after receiving it. And you may cancel your membership at any time, without penalty or hurt feelings.

Save about $5.00 or more on every mystery you read.

When you accept a club selection, you get three full length detective novels in one hard cover triple volume for only $6.39. That's about $5 (and sometimes $6 or $7) less than just one mystery costs in the publisher's original edition.

The club's editors select the best from among 400 whodunits, romantic mysteries, espionage, capers, and police procedurals. Selections for the entire family's reading enjoyment include new thrillers by the authors of your first 15 books plus Len Deighton, Sara Woods, Arthur Maling, and many more.

Mail the coupon now to get your fifteen best-selling mysteries for $1. The Detective Book Club, Roslyn, New York 11576.

Please enroll me as a member and send me at once my five triple-volumes shown here, containing fifteen mysteries. I enclose no money now. I may examine my books for one week, then will either accept all five volumes for the special new member price of only $1 plus shipping, or return them and owe nothing.

As a member, I will receive free the club's monthly Preview which describes my next selections but I am not obliged to accept them. I will always have at least ten days to reject any volume by returning the form provided. I may return any book at the club's expense for full credit. For each monthly triple-volume I keep, I will send you only $6.39, plus shipping. I understand I may cancel my membership at any time.

I THINK WE SHOULD PRACTICE SOMETHING DIFFERENT THIS TIME...

NOT TOO DIFFERENT, SIR...

THIS IS THE PLAY, MARCIE... YOU GO STRAIGHT OUT, CUT LEFT, CUT BACK, GO STRAIGHT, CUT BACK, GO RIGHT AND THEN OUT...

HAVE YOU GOT THAT?

NO, MARCIE, THAT'S ALL WRONG! YOU GO STRAIGHT OUT, CUT LEFT, CUT BACK, GO STRAIGHT, CUT BACK, GO RIGHT AND THEN OUT!

I CAN'T STAND IT...

Our Story: RISING EARLY, VAL AND ALETA RIDE OUT AMONG THE PEOPLE OF CORNWALL. EVERYWHERE THERE IS MISERY. THEY SOON CROSS PATHS WITH LAMBERT.

AS USUAL, HIS ATTIRE RIVALS THE AUTUMN FOLIAGE. "MY LORD AND LADY, I ADVISE YOU TO RETURN TO CASTLE CORNWALL. THE HIGHWAYS ARE DANGEROUS."

THE CHIEF DANGER SEEMS TO BE LAMBERT HIMSELF. BUT WITH A CHEERY NOD OF THANKS FOR THE WARNING, VAL AND ALETA TURN THEIR MOUNTS HOMEWARD.

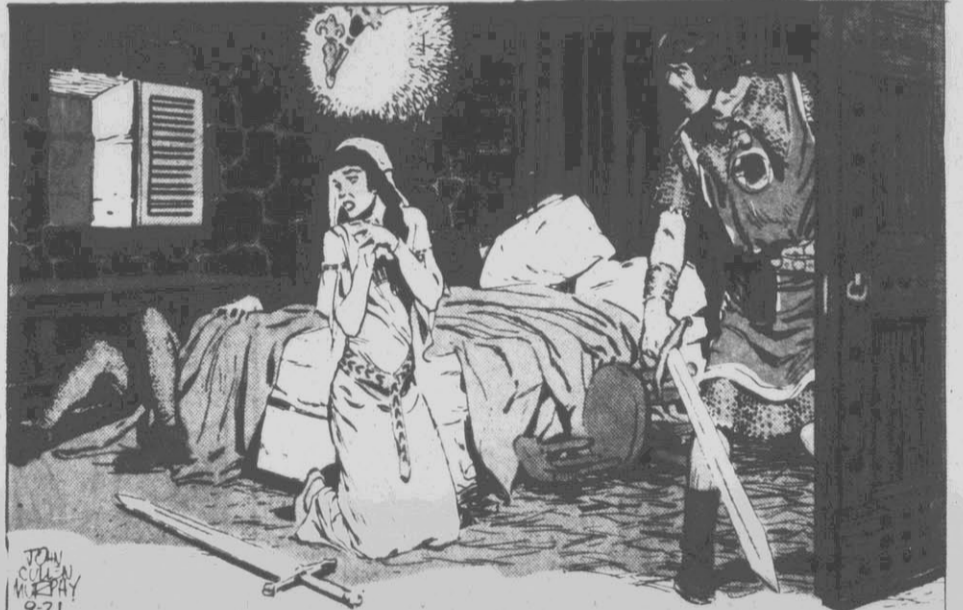

GWYNN, ARTHUR'S EYES AND EARS IN CORNWALL, IS FRANTIC. "IT'S THE TALK OF THE CASTLE. LAMBERT HAS ABDUCTED ANOTHER VILLAGE MAIDEN. SHE'S DOOMED, LIKE THE OTHERS BEFORE HER. YOU MUST SAVE THE GIRL."

AT DINNER, LAMBERT INTRODUCES "LADY" JOAN WITH GREAT CEREMONY. THE LASS APPEARS TO BE IN SHOCK. ALETA FEELS VAL'S MUSCLES TENSING IN RAGE. WHEN LAMBERT LEAVES THE HALL WITH HIS TREMBLING CAPTIVE, VAL FOLLOWS.

HE QUICKLY DONS HIS ARMOR AND STRIDES TO LAMBERT'S CHAMBERS. THE GUARD DECIDES TO LIVE AND FIGHT ANOTHER DAY.

AS HE BREAKS OPEN THE DOOR, VAL HEARS A FLURRY OF SWORDPLAY. A MAN GROANS, AND NOW A WOMAN'S SHRILL SCREAM ECHOES OFF THE DANK, STONE WALLS.

WHAT A SILLY QUESTION ...

OF COURSE I LOVE YOU, DONALD!

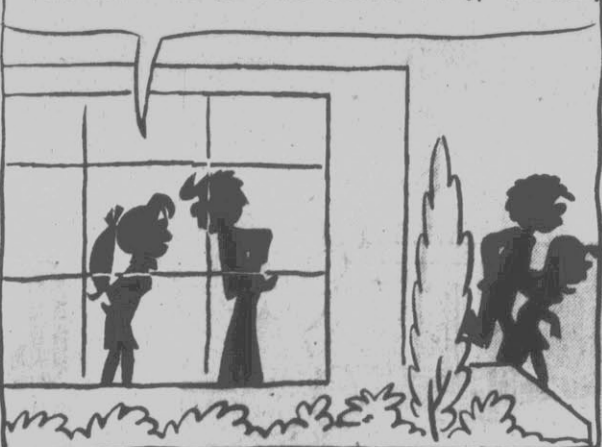

WHY ELSE WOULD I DRIVE AROUND IN YOUR BEAT-UP OLD CAR?!

WHICH YOU NEVER PAY BACK

WHY ELSE WOULD I SIT AROUND THE HOUSE WAITING FOR YOU TO CALL ME?...

AND HALF THE TIME YOU DON'T!

COME TO THINK OF IT, DONALD...

WHY AM I WASTING MY TIME ON A TURKEY LIKE YOU?!

BETTER BE CAREFUL WITH THAT STUFF, JUG! IF YOUR HANDS GET STUCK TO THE BOARD, THEY WON'T COME OFF!

AND YOU'LL HAVE TO WEAR NOTHING BUT CUSTOM-MADE SHIRTS!
YEAH-- AND IT'D BE THE PITS TRYING TO DIAL THE PIZZA SHOP!

WHERE'S THE SURFBOARD, JUGHEAD?
I PROPPED IT UP IN THE BACK SEAT OF YOUR CAR TO DRY!

OH, NO! YOU'VE GOTTEN IT STUCK TO THE CAR AND I CAN'T GET IT OUT!

ARCHIE, WHERE ARE YOU? YOU WERE SUPPOSED TO PICK UP RONNIE BUT I HAD TO DETOUR A LOT!
