

Iraq Claims Fall Of Big Oil Refinery City Near

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq claimed today the fall of Iran's burning oil refinery city of Abadan was imminent. The two Persian Gulf oil giants dueling with heavy artillery across their disputed border waterway on the fifth day of the war, setting off fires in oil installations on both sides. Iran reported "very heavy" civilian casualties in Abadan and Khorramshahr, two major ports on the Shatt al-Arab waterway. Tehran radio quoted Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr as denying Iraq's claim that it had captured Khorramshahr. It said he visited the front Thursday and went within four miles of Khorramshahr. The Iraqi military said earlier Iraqi forces had captured Khorramshahr and were closing in on Ahwaz, the capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzestan Province 70 miles to the north. The claim fueled speculation Iraq was trying to seize all of Iran's 24,000-square-mile oil heartland.

A spokesman in Paris for a French oil company said the Iraqi national oil company had told its customers it had halted "all oil exports." He declined to elaborate but the Iraqi decision was understood to mean it had stopped shipments through the pipelines to the Mediterranean as well as through the gulf.

Government sources in neighboring United Arab Emirates said more than 30 cargo ships carrying goods bound for Iraq and Iran were anchored just outside the Persian Gulf, apparently afraid to enter the war zone.

Baghdad radio broadcast a claim that Iraqi anti-aircraft brought down 11 Iranian planes that raided the cities of Mosul and Kirkuk and economic and military installations elsewhere. Informed sources said there was heavy damage to the small oil refinery in Kirkuk and to the larger refinery in the southern port of Basra, which Iranian jets pounded Thursday.

The Iraqi command said three of its planes were lost, but did not confirm any damage to its refineries.

A group of reporters who traveled to Basra from Kuwait drove to a small village on the banks of the Shatt opposite Abadan. The reporters said they could hear outgoing Iraqi artillery from both the Iraqi and Iranian sides of the waterway toward Iranian positions near Abadan.

"It looks like all of Abadan is on fire," said London Times correspondent Robert Fisk. "The column of smoke from Abadan refinery is billowing for miles into the air. Even the sound of incoming shells passing overhead was deafening."

The reporters said authorities in Basra told them of having counted 100 dead and 500 wounded in that Iraqi city since the border dispute escalated into an undeclared war.

Khorramshahr is Iran's biggest port 25 miles down the disputed waterway from Basra, Iraq's chief port.

The Japanese consul in Khorramshahr reported Iraqi forces had not entered the city Thursday night and there was fighting south of the city. Diplomats in Baghdad also said fighting for the city was continuing today.

But the Iraqi military command said its forces "liberated" Khorramshahr Thursday morning after a flanking movement by Iraqi troops to the north cut the railroad from Khorramshahr and neighboring Abadan to Ahwaz and Tehran, and "made the liberation of every yard of Arab land usurped by the Persians possible."

It said its troops were moving on Abadan, five miles to the east, and Ahwaz. The fall of Abadan, site of one of the world's biggest oil refineries, was imminent, Baghdad radio said. The oil refinery has been shut down since an air and artillery attack Tuesday set part of it afire.

Both sides acknowledged the bombing of Ahwaz on Thursday. Iraq said its bombers destroyed a radio station and a radar installation. Iran's official Pars news agency said Iraqi planes bombed residential areas in the city, killing "many people, most of them children, women and old men."

Westerners Flee Across Desert

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — About 100 Western refugees from the Iraq-Iran war, including women and children, drove more than 20 hours through the desert from Baghdad to the Jordanian capital today.

Iranian air raids on Baghdad were heavy on Thursday, especially at the airport in the Iraqi capital, said one of the refugees who arrived in a group of 53 Americans.

"Life in Baghdad in between the raids is normal," said Jan Stenfeldt, 23, and economist from Malmo, Sweden. "But people are short of food and supplies, sometimes owing to the rush on bread and other commodities."

Three or four U.S.-built Phantom fighter-attack jets struck an Iraqi military air field Tuesday morning, and Iraqi land-to-air rockets felled two of the Iranian planes, Stenfeldt said.

"Iraqi morale is high," said Frank Beck, a 36-year-old Norwegian. Officials of the American Embassy here whisked the American refugees into seclusion, barring them from meeting with reporters.

Reports reaching here say Iraqis are enforcing the rule that foreigners must obtain exit visas to leave that nation and that anxious evacuees are haggling with Iraqi officials to cross the Iraq-Jordan frontier without these documents. The rush to flee Baghdad offered no time to secure the visas, the reports indicated.

A small number of the Americans who arrived here this morning were able to cross the border without the exit documents, said Larry Taylor, public affairs officer at the U.S. Embassy here. He said they passed through three Iraqi checkpoints without much difficulty and had encountered no fighting along the way.

The Americans, including seven dependents of officials at the U.S. interest section in Baghdad, suffered no serious health problems despite the long drive across the desert, Taylor said. Some already had flown out of Jordan, he said, and most of the rest were expected to leave in the next day or two as flights became available.

About 12 officials were believed still at the interest section in the Belgian Embassy in Baghdad, but there was not yet an estimate of the number of American citizens remaining in Iraq, Taylor said.

A group of some 75 Americans already had left via Kuwait, driving across eastern Iraq, Taylor said.

The Americans arrived here after a 21-hour drive across the desert. The remainder of the refugees, ferried here in two buses, are Swedish, Danish, Finnish, British and German nationals.

United Way Drive Opens

The Pitt County United Way Campaign officially opened the 1980 campaign today at noon with the Annual United Way Day Banquet held at the Greenville Country Club. A goal of $390,000 was announced by Chairman Gene Taylor.

Around 200 persons, including local dignitaries, campaign workers and United Way officials participated in the program, which lasted about one hour. Master of ceremonies and Publicity Chairman Henry Hinton welcomed the group and introduced local Boy Scout Troop 826 for the opening flag ceremony.

All members of the campaign leadership were introduced, including Gene Taylor, campaign chairman;

Dr. Bill Laupus, vice chairman for professional employees, and Reid Hooper, vice chairman for pacesetters, industrial and commercial services.

The group then saw a film showing the various ways United Way Funds are spent in Pitt County. Afterwards, the leaders of these agencies were introduced and given an opportunity to tell how the money is spent in their areas.

Music was provided for the banquet by Mrs. Jackie Willis Carnes, who sang the "Rainbow Connection" to children from the Association for Retarded Citizens, a re-creation of one of the acts in their recent "Touch of Fantasy" production.

U.S. Seeks Talks On Oil Lifeline

TOKYO (AP) — The United States wants to meet with Japan, Britain, France, West Germany and Italy, the chief customers for Persian Gulf oil, to discuss keeping the oil lifeline open through the Hormuz Strait in light of the Iran-Iraq war, the Japanese government said today.

In Washington, an aide to President Carter, who asked not to be identified, said there had been discussions with these nations about maintaining navigation rights during the fighting but he said there is no likelihood of a formal conference.

In London, a spokesman for British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's said a message had arrived from Carter, but declined to reveal the contents. However, diplomatic sources said Carter wanted a conference held soon, presumably at summit level. The diplomats did not say what location Carter proposed.

A Japanese government spokesman said Japan has agreed in principle to attend a meeting in Washington. He said Japan is interested because 70 percent of its oil comes through the strait, at the mouth of the Persian Gulf.

An element in the Iran-Iraq war is control of the strategic strait.

Deputy Foreign Minister Kiyooki Kikuchi, already visiting Washington, is contacting U.S. officials to discuss the proposal, the Japanese spokesman said.

The spokesman said it was not clear with representatives from all six nations will meet at one time, or whether U.S. officials will hold separate talks with each of them.

Iraqis Exulting In War Fever; Enthused Over Films, News Reports

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraqis are tuning in their radios and televisions for news of the border war with Iran with all the enthusiasm that Americans follow the World Series.

Military communique No. 20, the latest report to be issued on the conflict, was received almost breathlessly by one cabbie in this flat old city that is just beginning to grow sky-scrapers.

"The war, it's good," Hussein Aly, 73, told a passenger. "For 25, 30 years there was no big problem between the two countries. Then this fascist regime comes in and all the (Iranian) people hate it — the Azerbaijanis, the people of Arabistan (Khuzestan), the Kurds, the Lurs, the Baluchis — so they (the Iranians) start trouble with us."

"I saw the first world war and the second, and I think this is the most important war for Iraq," he said.

Iraqi officials, whose status seems to be roughly defined by the size and quality of television sets in their offices, are no less preoccupied when the communiques are read on the tube.

They excuse themselves, turn up the volume and eagerly translate each bit of news for their guests: "Six planes down in Mosul, 10 in Kirkuk."

After the news, the programming resumes with patriotic poems and songs over films of the Iraqi army training and marching. It seems the officials always forget to turn the volume back down.

Apart from air attacks on Baghdad, a city of three million that sprawls for miles in the Tigris River plain, the war is being reported by communiques from the two capitals.

Several hundred correspondents from all over the world have been invited to Iraq by the government of President Saddam Hussein and are being housed in the city's best luxury hotel, the Spanish-managed Mansour-Melia, on the banks of the river.

The reporters watched and filmed Monday night's air raid on the Rashid military base southeast of the city from their balconies — a grand view of the fighters swooping over the city amid the and the pink anti-aircraft fire, surface-to-air missile and bomb explosions.

Wreck Injuries Are Fatal

Mrs. Ok Hee Song, 49 of 17A Courtney Sq., died in the Pitt Memorial Hospital emergency room of injuries received in a two-car collision at the intersection of N.C. 33 and secondary road 1523, east of Greenville about 9:40 p.m. Wednesday.

According to the North Carolina Highway Patrol, Mrs. Song was the driver of one of the cars involved. The driver of the second vehicle was identified as Edward L. Thigpen Jr. of Kinston.

Officers said the Song car apparently failed to stop at a stop sign and ran into the path of the Thigpen auto.

Several passengers in the Song car were reported injured, including Mrs. Ok Sum Park of Greenville who was reported in stable condition today. The other four passengers in the Song car were treated and released.

SANDBAG FEEDBACK

Raymond Jarvis of the Bridge Maintenance Division of the N. C. Department of Transportation says the nearest place to get bags for making one's own sandbags is the Wilder Bag Company, Old Mill Building, Pine Level, N. C. 27568.

Hotline called the company and learned that Pernell Wilder will sell bags in any quantity. His brother, Joseph, said that most people prefer polypropylene bags to burlap now for making sandbags. The polypropylene cost 20 cents apiece at the present time; the burlap, 23 cents.

Jarvis suggests a mixture of eight parts sand to one part cement for filling sandbags and said the secret is to very, very thoroughly mix the two elements.

Law Officers Honored At Appreciation Dinner

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
More than 100 law enforcement officers and representatives of area businesses and industries attended the fourth annual law enforcement appreciation dinner sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce here last night.

Ed Warren, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, Clarence Gray, a member of the Greenville City Council, and Lawton Nisbet, chairman of the chamber's law enforcement committee spoke briefly. The appreciation dinner, held at the Ramada Inn, was ended by songs from a barber shop quartet composed of Jim Bosburg, Bob Hanrahan, Norman Pierce and Billy Jones.

Warren praised the law enforcement officers for their service and said good law enforcement is a major concern of the Board of County Commissioners, which this year appropriated about three-quarters of a million dollars for Sheriff's Department operations.

Gray told the officers, "I certainly bring you greetings of appreciation from the City of Greenville. I view law enforcement officers of any community the strong arm of that community."

Gray noted that law enforcement agencies are "always short when it comes to staff," but emphasized the various agencies, "are still doing a great job. We appreciate and commend you highly for what you're doing."

Citizens, he continued, should, "recognize that law enforcement officers are our friends."

"We want to thank you, the law enforcement personnel in the county, for allowing us to honor you again tonight," Nisbet said.

Pointing out that enforcing the laws is, "sometimes a thankless job," Nisbet said, "we acknowledge your professionalism and dedication to duty."

Acknowledging that chaos and disorder are present in areas without good law enforcement agencies, Nisbet said, "we should, as a community, realize that strong, well paid, highly disciplined, law enforcement is, 'most important.'"

The purpose of the chamber's annual appreciation program is to honor and show appreciation for the various law enforcement officers and to provide an opportunity for chamber members to meet the officers on a one-to-one basis.

Musicians Vote Today On Symphony Proposals

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Striking musicians scheduled a vote today on a proposed three-year contract that, if approved, would end a week-long strike against the North Carolina Symphony.

The musicians struck last week in support of their call for higher salaries, more performers and a longer playing season.

Details of the agreement approved by negotiators Thursday were not announced. The musicians earlier had rejected a proposal by the Symphony management that offered a 35 percent increase in pay and benefits over a three-year period and agreed to extend the playing season by two weeks in 1983.

Musicians scheduled a closed meeting at 11 a.m. today, but said through a symphony spokesman that they did not expect to reach a decision and make an announcement until the afternoon.

Spokesmen for both sides in the dispute agreed, however, that the proposal being offered to the musicians today was a compromise.

"We all bent. That is the essential nature of negotiation — doing what you don't want to do. We both had to bend," said Charles B. Wade Jr., chairman of the board of the North Carolina Symphony Society.

"We regret we had to have a strike. We hope it will be over soon," Wade said.

David Lewis, spokesman for the striking orchestra members, declined to describe the chances for approval.

"It has taken a lot of work to reach a tentative agreement," he said. Members of the orchestra said they wanted to expand its size by adding four string players, extend the season from 40 to 46 weeks, and receive a 13 percent salary increase and improved health and life insurance benefits.

Symphony attorney Marvin Musselwhite, said agreement was reached on the proposal after more than 50 hours of negotiations.

Announcement of the agreement followed a special meeting of the symphony's trustees. Symphony spokeswoman Dixie O'Conner said the entire board did not vote to approve the agreement, but its executive committee was authorized to reach an agreement with negotiators for the musicians.

The current average salary for the musicians on a 40-week season is more than $15,000, Musselwhite has said.

The symphony receives $1.1 million a year from the state, nearly half of its $2.6 million operating budget.

By The Associated Press

There were smiles in city halls and frowns in Washington today as municipal and federal officials studied a court ruling that the 1980 census figures must be changed to count millions of Americans missed the first time around.

"We are elated," said Galen Brown of the New Orleans city attorney's office. "A terrific decision," said New York City Mayor Edward I. Koch, who contends the preliminary census count in his city is 1 million people off. "A victory for all the people," agreed Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson.

The Commerce Department, which oversees the census, said any decision on an appeal of the Thursday ruling in Detroit would have to wait until after consultations with the Justice Department. Several people-counting experts said it just wasn't practical to try to adjust the statistics.

Money and political power are at stake in the controversy. As much as $500 billion in government aid will be distributed across the nation, based on the 1980 census figures. Congressional representation also hinges on population.

The Detroit ruling was handed down by U.S. District Judge Horace Gilmore in a case brought by the city, which contended that the Census Bureau undercounted its population.

Gilmore said there was a serious undercount — particularly of minorities — nationwide. He gave the government 30 days to come up with a plan for adjusting the figures. Lawrence Mann, a law clerk who helped draft the decision, said the adjustment would have to add at least 5 million people to the preliminary count.

Suits similar to the Detroit case had been filed by New York, Philadelphia and Newark, N.J. Seven cities — Atlanta, Boston, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Paterson, N.J., Wilmington, Del., and San Juan, Puerto Rico — filed briefs supporting Detroit's case.

Buoyed by the Detroit ruling, Massachusetts plans to file suit, according to Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill 3rd. In Boston, where officials estimated the population at 644,000, the preliminary census count was 504,000.

Patrick McDonnell, the attorney who filed the brief on behalf of Milwaukee, said he was pleased with Gilmore's decision. "We have a larger percentage of minorities than the nation in general and the state in general, and the decision should help us and all other major urban areas," he said.

In Atlanta, Jackson, the chairman of a special census committee set up by the U.S.

Conference of Mayors, said the ruling was "a victory not just for the cities, but for all the people who went uncounted by the census bureau this year in both urban and rural areas."

The law requires the Census Bureau to submit state-by-state counts to the president by Dec. 31. Gilmore said he would extend the deadline, if necessary. He said congressional seats could not be reapportioned before the 1982 primaries and elections in any case. "There is no need to have accurate census figures for reapportionment until the latter part of 1981 or the early part of 1982," he said.

In Washington, Jacob S. Sigel of the census bureau said it would take well into 1981 to get a breakdown of the number of whites, blacks and Hispanics who were missed. He said it might be possible to get a single, overall undercount estimate by the end of this year, "but that would be meaningless... not distinguishing the more undercounted from the less undercounted states."

Bryant Robey of Ithaca, N.Y., the editor of American Demographics magazine, also questioned the value of an adjustment. "Once you start changing the standard and counting people that weren't counted, no matter who you leave it up to, it just opens the door to all kinds of tinkering with numbers," he said.

The Census Bureau has argued that the Constitution requires an actual count of the population — not an estimate or a projection. Local officials have argued that projections may be more accurate.

In New Orleans, Brown said he hoped "the recount will be a system in which the bureau makes an intensive study of a neighborhood and uses it to reflect an entire area — just as politicians use certain key precincts to forecast the outcome of an election."

Arrest Made By Police

William Dhu Tharin, 19 of 315 Aycock Dorm, has been arrested by Greenville police on charges of possession of marijuana. Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said Tharin was charged about 12:55 a.m. Thursday by officers who allegedly found a small amount of marijuana in his possession in a parking lot at the intersection of Reade and Cotanche Streets.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

St. John Missionary Baptist Church has the following activities scheduled for the week of September 28:

Sunday, Sunday school at 10 a.m., morning worship at 11 a.m. with the youth in charge; bible study and prayer service at 7 p.m. Tuesday; on Thursday the 115th session of the Old Eastern Missionary Baptist Association will be at 10 a.m. This four-day session will close October 5.

The Rev. Anton Wesley invites the public to these services.

Caswell Group Attends Fair

Despite the rain, 30 clients and staff members of Caswell Center, Kinston, enjoyed the Pitt County Fair last night as guests of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County.

About 50 members of the Association and volunteers from East Carolina University and Pitt Community College went along for the fun. Food was provided by the Greenville and Farmville Jaycees, Association Director Brenda Gray said.

HOME COMING

Homecoming will be observed at Boyd Memorial Presbyterian Church September 28. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Larry Pittman and there will be special music.

Dinner will be spread on the ground immediately following the morning worship service. All past members and friends of Boyd Memorial are invited to attend.

'Rock Riot' Over Prices

KINGSTON, Pa. (AP) — Disgruntled fans stormed a National Guard armory where the rock group Blue Oyster Cult was performing, setting off a rock-and-bottle throwing melee that took police two hours to quell, officials said.

Four security guards and scores of fans were treated for minor injuries during the disturbance Thursday night, police said.

At least 28 people were arrested, mostly on charges of disorderly conduct, according to police.

Bill Phillips, one of the private security guards injured in the fray, said the trouble started when a group of 50 fans, who had been milling outside the armory grumbling about ticket prices, attempted to enter without paying.

Security guards forced the group back, he said, then members of the crowd began hurling rocks and bottles in a second gate crashing attempt.

The performance was attended by about 2,500 paying fans.

Before the violence ended, state troopers and police from five other departments were sent to the scene, along with firefighters, officials said.

The police used tear gas and fire hoses to disperse the rowdy fans.

Gun-Seller Relates Cover-up Efforts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Benjamin Moss of Wilson testified Thursday that he and the owner of the B and B Gun Shop in Wilson spent a week fixing books to try to avoid detection by federal agents.

Moss, a former employee at the shop, said he and Howard B. Bruton Jr. took the action after they learned the shop was being investigated by agents from the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Bruton is on trial in U.S. District Court in Raleigh on charges of illegally selling guns to two New York men. Those two, George DeMeo and Robert Ferraro, are on trial for allegedly stockpiling the weapons and shipping them to Ireland.

"We were very scared," Moss said. "He (Bruton) told me not to worry about it. He'd take care of everything."

Moss said when he and Bruton fixed the books, they used the names of past customers to coverup illegal sales made to DeMeo.

Moss also testified that Binford Benton, co-owner of the gunshop with Bruton, was involved in illegal cigarette smuggling. Benton, who has testified for the government in return for immunity from prosecution.

is the key witness against the three men.

Defense attorneys sought testimony about Benton's other alleged illegal activities in an effort to discredit his testimony.

MR. AND MRS. HERBERT RANDOLPH

Anniversary Reception Held

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Randolph, of Rt. 6, Greenville, were honored at a 50th anniversary reception Sunday afternoon at the Mt. Pleasant Christian Church fellowship hall.

The reception was given by their children, Mrs. Albert Lanier Jr., Mrs. Harold Mills and Kenneth Randolph, all of Greenville. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph have 12 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen and cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of bronze and gold gladioli, mums, lily of the valley and greenery. Mrs. David Mayo served the three tiered cake and punch was poured by Mrs. O. J. Stancil. Mrs. Bob Hart and Mrs. Gene Wiles assisting in serving along with the couple's grandchildren.

Gifts were received and displayed by Mrs. Eleanor Jones and Mrs. Harold Boyd.

Guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Staton. Good-byes were said by Miss Margaret Register. Mrs. Pauline Ross presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Randolph was dressed in a formal gown of yellow and wore a corsage of gold roses.

The couple was married Sept. 26 in Greenville.

ESA Chapter Has Meeting

A program on "Party Platform" was given by Barbara Zicherman at the meeting of the Alpha Omega Chapter of ESA.

The theme for 1981 for the chapter is "I'm Proud To Be An American." Plans are being made for projects for the year including the state convention to be held here in May, 1981.

Members are now selling Merry Bells as a ways and means project. Plans were discussed for the craft sale which will be held at Carolina East Mall Oct. 11.

Carolyn Hatcher of Charlotte was welcomed as a new member. The meeting was conducted by President Linda Peele.

The meeting was held at the home of Margaret Roberts and Frances Faust will be meeting hostess in October.

UMW Meeting Scheduled For October

FAYETTEVILLE — The annual United Methodist Women's meeting will be held here at Methodist College Oct. 3-4.

Mrs. T. Marvin Vick Jr. of Cary, president, will be the presiding officer. The opening session Friday at 10 a.m. will feature the Rev. Warren Petteway and the Rev. Bill Lowdermilk giving the welcome. Bishop William R. Cannon of Raleigh will also be speaking.

Group sessions will be conducted during the afternoon starting at 2:30 and will feature several topics including Wesley Foundation — East Carolina University. Holy communion and the N. C. Conference UMW film will be included in the 8 p.m. session.

The candle burning service will be observed Saturday morning. New officers will be installed during the 2 p.m. session. Delivering the sermon at the final session will be the Rev. Robert T. Young.

The program committee was headed by Mrs. W. C. Hackler of Morehead City, vice president.

Initiation Service Held

The N. C. Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa held its meeting Tuesday evening at Three Steers. An initiation of pledges service was held.

Leading the service were President Barbara Luce and Elizabeth Taylor. Pledges of the chapter are Peggy Rowlett, Frances Johnson and Mona Moye.

Ms. Luce announced Alpha Delta Kappa Week will be Oct. 12-18. The Alpha Iota Chapter will have a crafts and bake sale Saturday, Oct. 11, at Carolina East Mall. Founder's Day will be celebrated Oct. 28 at the Elk's Club.

Meeting hostesses were Mickey West, Louise Godfrey, Joyce Worthington and Vivian Mills.

Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay W. Cannon celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary and were honored at a reception last Sunday at Roundtree Christian Church.

Hostessing the event with their sons were Dawn Cannon of Grifton and CW4 and Mrs. David H. Gaffney of Newport News, Va.

Mrs. Cannon wore a light blue dress and was given a corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Johnny Frizzelle presided at the guest book. Mrs. Jimmy Smith and Mrs. Tony Wilson poured punch. Miss Daisey Gaffney served the three tiered cake. The refreshment table was covered with an Army-Navy cloth and accented with a centerpiece of assorted roses flanked by silver candelabra holding pink candles.

The couple has three sons, Michael, Lamont and Paul.

Dr. Aldridge Is Speaker

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its meeting Wednesday at the Ramada Inn here. Dr. Henry Aldridge was guest speaker.

He spoke on the procedure for presenting a bill to the Legislature. He is a candidate for the N. C. House of Representatives.

Plans were made for next month's Fireman of the Year Award and items for the Oct. 11 bazaar were collected. The theme of the bazaar, to be held at Carolina East Mall, is "Greenville Sure Looks Good To Me."

Hostesses were Nancy White of Ahsokie and Frances Blanchard of Greenville. Table decorations included candles in glass holders and ivy wreaths.

Quick Exit For Your 'Ghost'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Charles and I met on a blind date, and we hit it off beautifully. I'm 36, divorced and not hard up for dates. Charles is 40, a lawyer with a terrific personality. He claimed he was a great cook, and invited me to his apartment for a gourmet dinner.

When I arrived at his tastefully furnished bachelor high-rise, he greeted me warmly and handed me a cocktail. Then his phone rang. I'm sure it was a woman. He went into another room to talk privately and, Abby, he left me alone for 30 minutes! When he returned he didn't even apologize! I did my best to hide my anger.

We resumed our conversation — then his buzzer rang. (Someone was calling from the lobby.) He said, "No, don't come up. I'll be right down." Then he said to me, "Excuse me, I'll only be a minute." After sitting alone for another 30 minutes, I decided I had had enough, so I left. When I reached the lobby, I saw my "host" engrossed in a very animated conversation with a young woman. I simply said, "Goodbye, Charles. I am leaving." He grabbed my arm and held me while he told the other woman to "go home, and please don't do anything foolish."

Then he asked me to please come upstairs with him so he could explain everything. I told him there was nothing to explain, his rudeness was inexcusable, and I never wanted to see him again. (His response was unprintable.) Abby, was I justified for leaving as I did? And how would you have handled it?

MANHATTAN

DEAR MANHATTAN: You hung around longer than I would have. I'd have left when my host became a "ghost" for 30 minutes, and then offered no apology.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a woman stay with a man who says he is not ready for marriage?

I'm 34, single, successful and sophisticated. Dave (not his real name) is 32, sweet and shy. We've dated steadily for seven months, and I would like to get married.

Dave is looking for "fireworks" — which our relationship lacks, but they may come later. If they don't, it wouldn't bother me because I think what we have is better and more lasting than fireworks.

We really do care for each other, but I'm terrified of wasting time.

What do you think? Should I set a time limit?
BIOLOGY IS DESTINY

DEAR BIOLOGY: If it's fireworks he wants, give it until the 4th of July.

DEAR ABBY: Five months ago my wife began studying karate at a women's martial arts center, and shortly thereafter she bought some weights to lift at home. At first I found it rather amusing, and when she would practice her karate on me, I could still easily pin her shoulders to the floor. Lately, however, her karate kicks and punches have begun to really hurt, and last week she finally was able to beat me up!

At first I thought it was just luck, but since then, she's succeeded in pinning me down five times in a row, each time with more ease and a lot more bruises for me.

Our sex life remains exciting, but do you think a marriage can last if the wife is physically stronger than her husband and can beat him up?

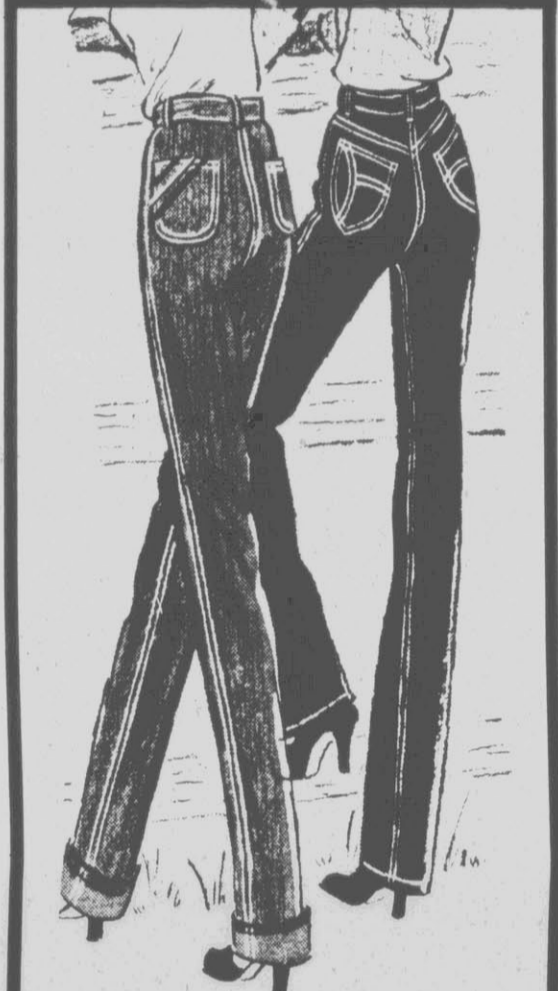

BRUISED HUSBAND

DEAR BRUISED: Why not? It would be a sad state of (marital) affairs if the durability of a marriage depended on the physical strength of either party. Make love, not war!

We Can't Win This One

The war which has broken out between Iran and Iraq could hardly be worse for the United States. Despite the fact that Iraq might bring down the dictatorship of Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran, there is not much prospect that the United States can gain much in the conflict. Immediately in peril are much of the world's oil supplies, much of it going to U.S. allies. If the supply is cut off we can expect shortages and higher prices. Even worse Iraq is not on good terms with the United States and if that country proves dominant in the Middle East, we can expect more troubles in dealing with that part of the world. At worst the conflict can spread, perhaps bringing in European nations who see their oil supplies cut off. Then surely it will involve the United States and the Soviet Union. An impulse would be to cheer that the evil Khomeini stands in danger of being toppled. The man has sanctioned the kidnapping of innocent Americans, shot down his own generals and generally brought a reign of terror to his country. Unfortunately the U.S. won't be any better off if Iraq is triumphant... and in the meantime the fact that the conflict is raging brings extreme danger to the entire world.

Both Sides Make Errors

Slips of the tongue are easy to make in a presidential campaign and President Carter is finding that Ronald Reagan is not the only one who can make them. The president left the implication the choice in the election was between peace and war, presumably meaning a vote for Carter was a vote for peace.

Reagan jumped on it with both feet calling the implication "indecent." Eventually the Carter camp said the president's remarks were an "overstatement." Now we can assume both candidates favor peace, and the campaign goes on.

MARCHING AHEAD WITH FLAGS FLYING!

BY ART BUCHWALD

Put Camp David To Use

WASHINGTON — "Why," a Republican friend admonished me the other day, "don't people take the Billy Carter affair as seriously as they did Watergate?" It was a fair question and I had to give it some thought. Then it occurred to me that the reason people can't get as upset about Billy Carter as they did about Watergate is that most of us seem to have a Billy Carter in our family. He could be a brother or a brother-in-law, a cousin, or even an uncle who has lost his moral compass. We empathize with President Carter because we know in our hearts there is nothing we can do about the Billy Carter in our family except keep a stiff upper lip and say we love him, which of course is a lie that we hope God will forgive us for. When you become president of the United States, having a Billy Carter in the family can become downright dangerous. You have to keep an eye on him all the time, and you can get all messed up with the FBI, the CIA and your own National Security Advisor just trying to keep him from doing something stupid that would embarrass the White House. There has to be a better solution for handling a black sheep in the family when you four corners manned by armed marines. The relatives would be given complete run of the compound, but they wouldn't be allowed to leave the premises while the president was in office. They would be permitted two telephone calls a week, provided they weren't made to a foreign embassy or an oil company. They could have visitors on Sunday, but they would have to be screened by the justice department to make sure they weren't related to Robert Vesco. So they won't get bored and go on hunger strikes, there would be vocational guidance instructors available to teach them a trade for use when they are released. As an added inducement, a literary agent in residence would arrange book deals for them with publishers so they could make some extra money, which they could spend in the commissary. Some people say it is unfair to put the relatives of the president of the United States under house arrest while he is in office. But the alternatives are much worse. You can't allow the Billy Carters of this world to walk around scot-free, with everyone dangling half a million dollar loans in front of them, without endangering the security of the country. It isn't as if they would have to remain in Camp David forever. They could all be released as soon as the president pays his debt to society.

take over the highest office in the land. There are too many sharks out there waiting to pounce on someone in the First Family who could be used to cash in on the White House Connection. One solution would be to make better use of Camp David. What the government could do is build a special compound at Camp David where the relatives of the president of the United States could take up residence for four years. The compound would be very pleasant, with cottages, a mess hall, tennis court and a bowling alley. It would be surrounded by a 10-foot-high electric wire fence with watchtowers at all

Looks To Refinery

RALEIGH — Commerce Secretary D.M. (Lauch) Faircloth is a blunt-spoken, self-made millionaire who seldom lets diplomacy stand in the way of making his point. He proved that the other day in a speech to the South Brunswick Islands Chamber of Commerce when he let it be known in no uncertain terms that he and his boss, Gov. Jim Hunt, stand foursquare behind an oil refinery in the way of making his point. In the process, Faircloth lowered the boom on naysayers and those whom he characterized as "those who have made theirs, and care little for those who haven't. Or, from those who have destroyed nature for their own indulgences and now insist upon its perfection." Arguing that state and federal rules and regulations are ample, and being amply enforced, to assure protection of the region, Faircloth drew a bead on rich boatowners and beach weekenders who are fighting the refinery.

because What If this might happen," Faircloth said. The refinery would add 350 jobs, plus another 200-plus jobs in retail and service areas as a result of the new plant. Under construction, there will be 1,800 jobs with a payroll of nearly $80 million. In operation, the refinery will purchase some $40 million a year locally, pay $2 million in taxes, and provide a payroll of $8 million, Faircloth explained. "Last year the tourism industry in Brunswick County generated $16 million in revenues compared to that $50 million," he noted, while commercial fishing produced just over $3 million. Spills But just comparing revenues of the refinery to tourism and fishing hints that the operation, somehow, would endanger those activities. Tourism, industry, and commercial fishing can co-exist, Faircloth argued, pointing to Louisiana, California, Alaska and the Puget Sound in Washington as prime examples. Even in Brunswick County, an average of 99,000 barrels of petroleum products come up the river daily — to storage and distribution centers serving the rest of the state. Spills are rare, but capture great press attention, Faircloth said. "But rarely is there a follow-up report on these spills," Faircloth commented, and recalled that Padre Island in Texas was on network television night after night when an oil spill hit. But now things are back to normal and, indeed, tourism in the first quarter of this year was up significantly. "From time to time we hear of an oil slick off the coast of Florida. Best I know, there's no shortage of tourists in Florida," he said.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor: On Sept. 9, 1980, in a press conference in Greenville, Leon White, co-chairperson of the newly formed North Carolina Black Political Forum alluded to the NAACP and other black organizations' accepting funds from political candidates to get out the vote on election day. Carolyn Q. Coleman, NAACP State Field Director, vehemently denied the allegation. Mrs. Coleman said the NAACP is, and always has been, a non-partisan organization conducting voter registration and get-out-the-vote campaigns, but not endorsing any candidate. Funds are allocated to local NAACP branches by the NAACP Special Contributions Fund, the tax-deductible arm of the organization to help defray the costs of conducting such campaigns. Mrs. Coleman called upon black people to turn out to vote in large numbers on election day. "We cannot afford to go fishing on election day unless we are fishing for black people to come out to the polls to vote," she said. "A voteless people is a hopeless people. Black people have not forgotten the ill-fated advice they received to go fishing in 1968. Some did, giving rise to the election of Richard M. Nixon, who stacked the U. S. Supreme Court with justices whose judicial philosophies were diametrically opposed to the views and aspirations of black people. The NAACP believes that black people can be the deciding factor in determining the political leadership of this state and nation for the next four years. Mrs. Willie Mae Carney Vice President, Pitt Co. Branch, NAACP

To the editor: My overall impression as to the recent presidential debate is that the focal point being centered up by the media is: "Who won the debate?" Initially, my reaction was that the people won, in that we were given the opportunity to observe and study the reactions of the speakers. However, when inquiries were made of the public on the local television stations as to their impressions of the debate, the responses were such as: "didn't think it important to listen"; "my mind already made up"; "didn't bother to watch the debate." Considering the current state of the nation and world conditions, I'd say it is a very important presidential campaign. The time is now, more than ever, for a responsible and non-apathetic attitude on the part of the public, lest the present situation go from bad to worse. At such a crucial period in history, there is no place for lack of interest and unconcern, for then we'll all be the losers. Helen Y. (Mrs. Malcolm S.) Trupp 1202 S. Overlook Drive Greenville

Most Yearn For Control

By GEORGE GALLUP PRINCETON, N.J. — In all the discussion about inflation in the presidential campaign since Labor Day, none of the candidates has suggested that we adopt a plan which is supported by a majority of Americans as a way to help stem inflation — the reimposition of mandatory wage and price controls. In the current survey, 52 percent say they would like to have the government bring back mandatory wage-price controls, while 39 percent are opposed. Although the latest figure represents a decline in support from a February survey when 57 percent expressed approval, the public has consistently been in favor of controls, particularly in periods of severe inflation. Americans favored controls when they were in effect. Just after President Nixon froze wages and prices in 1971, a Gallup Poll showed Americans supported the move by a margin of 6-to-1. Furthermore, surveys conducted at regular intervals during the three phases of Nixon's economic program consistently showed the public favored stricter controls as opposed to relaxing those then in force. Although President Jimmy Carter has repeatedly rejected wage-price controls, it was recently reported that the Carter administration plans to abandon the present voluntary wage and price program in the next few weeks. The voluntary program has been heavily criticized in certain quarters as being ineffective. Here is the question asked to determine attitudes toward reimposing wage and price controls: "Would you favor or oppose having the government bring back wage and price controls?"

Following are the latest results and the trend:

|            | Bring Back Wage/Price Controls? |        |            |

Democrats and Republicans both lean in favor of mandatory controls, while independents are closely divided in their views. Following are the current results by political affiliation:

|              | Bring Back Wage/Price Controls? |        |            |

Supporters of both President Carter and Rep. Anderson vote in favor of mandatory controls, while Reagan supporters are closely divided in their views, as indicated in the table below:

Strength For Today

WITNESSING The word "martyr" comes from a Greek word which means "witness." The martyrs were people who by their suffering witnessed to their faith. Some time ago a minister in this area had to submit progressively to the amputation of first one and then both legs. But his great handicap, instead of destroying him, spurred him on to new efforts. He got more work done, more enterprises started, than ever before. Everybody loved him. His activity was the bewilderment and inspiration of all his friends. This man was a martyr — a witness. We must all witness to something — good or bad. Happy the man who at the end of his life can be pretty confident that on the whole his life has been a witness to righteousness, faith and love. You can be sure that someone is watching you. Your life influences someone. You are — for better or worse — a witness. — Elisha Douglass

Attacking Federal Reserve Bd.

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — An important home mortgage group has intensified its attack on the Federal Reserve Board, saying the board's policies threaten the country with "a housing and economic disaster." The U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose members hold a major portion of home mortgages, claims the Fed has favored commercial banks over savings institutions and thwarted long-term financial planning. "I think it is a legitimate question to ask if the Federal Reserve does not have too much power," said William O'Connell, executive vice president, in an address to league members in California Tuesday. He said it represented "an extraordinary, unwarranted and dangerous grant of power to a few non-elected public officials who are not accountable to the electorate of a representative democracy." O'Connell's comments were the latest development in a campaign against Federal Reserve and regulatory actions which the League says endangers the general economy, and housing and home financing especially. The campaign, designed to relieve "chronic near-chaos in financial markets," includes speeches, lobbying, court action to reverse a regulatory decision, and an advertising campaign soon to get under way. Erratic Fed policies, he said, "have plunged this country into a financial malaise, with double digit inflation threatening to become hyper-inflation, with runaway interest rates and rising unemployment." O'Connell's blast at Fed officials and the Depository Institutions Deregulation Committee, which he said is Fed dominated, has been building for a year. But the roots of the difficulties run deeper. He said many of the financial problems of mortgage lenders originated with the triggering of inflation by the Vietnam war, and the subsequent worsening of it by oil price increases and federal budget deficits. Because of inflation, O'Connell said, Congress authorized removal of interest limitations on savings, hoping that higher returns on deposits might offset the decline in the dollar's purchasing power. Congress, he said, was "wise and prudent enough" to write into law that deregulation should develop in an orderly manner over a six-year period. But it erred, he said, in relinquishing power over the process. Authority over deregulation was granted to the DIDC, in which various financial regulatory agencies have a voice, but in which, O'Connell said, the Federal Reserve is "the flagship and dominant agency." Less than two months after its formation, DIDC virtually eliminated a regulation that permitted savings institutions to offer more attractive yields than commercial banks on 6-month money market certificates. As a result, the savings industry claims it has suddenly been thrown into competition with much larger and stronger commercial banks instead of being able to adjust and strengthen itself over a period of years. The effect, O'Connell said, has been to extend Federal Reserve control from the commercial bank area, which it has traditionally regulated, to include "life and death power over all financial institutions." The savings and loans associations claim that one consequence has been a slowdown of deposits at savings institutions, weakening their ability to provide home mortgage loans sufficient to meet demand. Almost simultaneous with the DIDC action, O'Connell said, the Federal Reserve has followed an erratic course that has made "our money costs swing wildly," and made planning by lenders "virtually impossible." He said it has failed to achieve its goal of less inflation. He said interest rates are as high as they were last year, inflation psychology is just as deep if not deeper, and prices are heading higher again. O'Connell said Fed policies have raised costs to savings and loan associations while weakening the flow of deposits, but said they were favorable to commercial banks and money market funds. The consequence, he said, has been to endanger saving institutions and the housing industry that depends on it for financing. He said a decision was expected this year on a suit to revoke the DIDC actions. "This (housing and home financing) is too great a tradition to be allowed to go down the drain simply because of the ill-advised actions of a small group of unelected officials," he concluded.

Still In the Race

When the green flag signals the start of the Canadian Grand Prix in Montreal this weekend, the heavy favorite among the local fans will be Gilles Villeneuve, a driver from Quebec. Villeneuve, who drives a Ferrari, finished second in the race for the world driving title last year. While mechanical problems have made the current season a disappointing one, Villeneuve is still hoping for a victory in at least one race, and he feels his chances are good in his native Canada. He has no plans to retire from racing. "It's only one bad year," Villeneuve says. "If it happens 10 years in a row, then I'll be fed up."

Inexperienced Parents Miss A 'Happy Medium'

By GAIL MICHAELS

A friend of mine says it never occurred to her that her two-year-old might like something more substantial than Junior Foods until she happened to see another toddler trip out of a fast food restaurant with his mouth crammed with cheeseburger.

That's the way it usually is with first children. In many cases we inexperienced parents expect far too little of them while, at other times, we expect far too much. We are so intent upon raising superior children that we can't seem to hit a happy medium.

In the interest of superior teeth, Meg didn't know how chocolate tasted until long after her second birthday. When she was younger, she was not supposed to get dirty, and if she did, she never stayed that way long.

A food stain on her shirt occasioned a complete change of clothes. A grass stain on the knee required an immediate bath.

I was so concerned about her appearance that my grandfather, a veteran of five children, once remarked admiringly that she was so clean she looked "skint."

After that comment, I gave my washing machine a break. But I still expect superior behavior. I want my child to have impeccable manners, and I actually expect her to listen when I speak.

Naturally, Meg, with her inborn expertise on children, knows that this is impossible. In the face of all my demands, she remains imperturbable. And if I get too strident, she simply says, "Jesus was perfect. I'm not."

This response is designed to drive me up a wall, and it usually does. The last time I yelled at her for eating cookies in the living room, she stood there with all the aplomb of Queen Elizabeth and announced, "You scared me."

"I meant to," I snapped. "You know better than this!"

"I forgot."

"That's no excuse."

"People do forget, Mommy."

"Well, you had better start remembering."

"You can't expect a little child to be perfect."

As usual, she left me speechless, but I suddenly had the brilliant idea of turning the tables on her to show her just how unacceptable her attitude was.

I soon had the opportunity. Because of my forgetfulness, the Styrofoam cup full of grass that she had planted in Vacation Bible School died from lack of water. She was furious.

"You killed it," she roared. "And I grew it all by myself!"

"Maybe you should have watered it yourself."

"It's your fault. You said you'd do it."

"I forgot."

She stamped her foot. "That's no excuse."

"You can't expect me to be perfect."

"No," she wailed, "but you don't even try."

Board Asks Judge Block East's Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Board of Elections asked a federal judge Thursday to block an effort by Republican senatorial candidate John East to take depositions from the state's two top election officials.

In documents filed in U.S. District Court, attorneys for the board asked Judge W. Earl Britt to dismiss a suit filed by East challenging the board's authority to determine the way candidates will be listed on election ballots.

East's attempt to win a court order directing a change in the ballot already has been denied by Britt and by the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Volume Heavy At Farmville

FARMVILLE — Volume continued to be heavy on the Farmville Tobacco Market Thursday consisting of mostly leaf grades. Non-descript grades have increased in volume each day this week. Top price paid for good, clean tobacco was $1.80 per pound and demand was strong by all companies.

Prices as a whole have remained steady the entire week. Stabilization receipts accounted for 2.16 percent of gross sales. The market sold 758,069 pounds yesterday for $1,226,931 and an average of $161.85 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 21,258,101 pounds for $3,781,157 and a season average of $149.50. The average yesterday was $16 per hundred pounds above last year on the same day. The season average is approximately $7 above last year's average.

Attorneys for the election board expressed surprise Thursday that East was continuing with his legal effort.

"We were a little bit surprised when the (deposition) notices went out," said James C. Wallace, an assistant attorney general representing the board.

"The courts have essentially denied everything they had asked for. We didn't think they intended to go with the suit."

East attorney Robert A. Valois of Raleigh said depositions were being sought from state Elections Director Alex Brock and Kenneth Babb of Winston-Salem, chairman of the state board, because attorneys "wanted to do some discovery in the case."

"It's kind of like the victors in a battle having the others come up and say, 'Hey, let's go back and fight this all over again,'" Brock said.

New President Is Installed

Mrs. Nancy Middleton was installed Thursday night as president of the Friends of the Library organization here for 1980.

Installation of the new president, who succeeds Mrs. Nelson Crisp, took place during the third annual Friends of the Library dinner meeting at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The evening's activities began with a reception at the home of Dr. Thomas Brewer, chancellor at East Carolina University, and continued with dinner and the annual meeting at the country club.

During the business session, the Rev. William Hadden was installed as president-elect and Sherry Bastion took office as secretary-treasurer for the coming year.

Ovid Pierce, author and professor emeritus of English at ECU and former writer in residence here, was the guest speaker for the session, addressing "The Writer's Response to Modern Mobility."

Pierce discussed the effects of modern mobility and mass communication on the novel and asserted that the effect is that the novel no longer includes background and description of an area but only focuses on specific occurrences without putting it in perspective. He said that without the sense of values that comes with having a sense of place, novelists no longer have the freedom to make judgements or criticize society. That is one of the functions of a novelist, Pierce contended.

Guests recognized last night were Mrs. Sue Lemish, Dr. and Mrs. Keats Sparrow, and Dr. Ruth Katz.

The purpose of the organization is to assist the total enrichment and development of the university library by providing resources to supplement its programs.

Correction

"The Daily Reflector," in a story about memorial services for the late Mrs. Lillian Jenkins, wife of East Carolina University Chancellor Emeritus Dr. Leo Jenkins, yesterday incorrectly identified the minister delivering the eulogy during the service.

The Rev. Roderick Randolph, former pastor of St. James United Methodist Church, delivered the eulogy, rather than St. James' present pastor, the Rev. Dewey Tyson, as was reported yesterday.

"The Daily Reflector" regrets the error.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $1,400 property damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers said $500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Roger Gary Broadway of Route 1, Cove City, and Marie Louise Murrell of Washington, D.C.

Ms. Murrell was charged with failing to stop for a stop light in connection with the mishap.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8:25 a.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, west of the Hooker Road intersection.

Investigators identified the drivers of the two cars as Arlene Dew Boykin of Route 2, Wilson, and Thomas Roderick Butts of 110 Wilkshire Dr.

HOME COMING

Faith Assembly of God is having its annual homecoming Sunday.

Following morning worship at 11 a.m., dinner will be served on the grounds. At 2 p.m. there will be gospel singing by the Sojourns and the former pastor, Steve Jones, will preach.

The church is located at the intersection of the Stantonburg and Allen roads, one mile west of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A company planning a $550 million aluminum smelter in southeastern North Carolina has issued a news release stating its top official served a federal prison sentence for mail fraud.

In a copyright story published today, The News and Observer of Raleigh reported the official has been barred permanently from engaging in stock transactions in New York state.

Coastal Aluminum Group of North Carolina, in its news release, identified the official as D.J. Hoffman. The newspaper reported that, before his conviction, he was known as Jerome D. Hoffman but more recently has called himself D.J. Hoffman Jr.

HOMEcomings

There will be quarterly meeting and homecoming September 28 at St. Peter Missionary Baptist Church on Rt. 5, Greenville. The guest speaker will be the Rev. James Harris and the congregation from Tabernacle Baptist Church. Dinner will be served at 2 p.m. The pastor, the Rev. Hugh Walston, invites the public to attend.

YOUTH SERVICES

Youth services will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. at Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church with Elder James Smith, the number two choir and ushers in charge.

The pastor, Bishop W. L. Phillips, invited the public to attend.

In an interview Thursday, the newspaper reported, the official said his real name was Jerome-Gerald Hoffman Jr., 47. In documents filed with the state of North Carolina, he is listed as D.J. Hoffman or D.J. Hoffman Jr. and is identified as president of the Coastal Aluminum Group of North Carolina Inc.

In the news release, Hoffman is identified by the company as general manager of Coastal Aluminum Group, whose parent company is Coastal & Offshore Plant Systems Inc. of Washington.

That news release, mailed Wednesday night, stated that "Coastal & Offshore Plant Systems Inc. ... today announced that its board of directors had given a unanimous vote of confidence to the company's general manager, D.J. Hoffman, following Hoffman's disclosure of a guilty plea to a federal felony charge arising from loan brokerage activities in 1966-68."

Hoffman stated that he had not previously disclosed his conviction to the company because he felt he had already paid a severe price for the incident, and that it was not relevant to the company's current project. Hoffman was aware the conviction would have to be disclosed to the lenders on the project, and he concluded the proper course of action was full disclosure to the company public," the company statement said.

The company said Hoffman's prison sentence stemmed from "loan brokerage activities on behalf of the Institutional Monetary Trust of New York," part of which were conducted through the mail.

The newspaper reported that Hoffman was paroled after serving about nine months of a two-year prison sentence.

Planned development of the smelter was announced about six months ago by Gov. Jim Hunt, who has welcomed it as a needed addition to the economy. The smelter is planned for Columbus County, which would be in line for a 1,000-job industry.

Hunt said Thursday he does not believe the announcement of Hoffman's prison record will affect development of the plant. The governor said he had not been aware of Hoffman's background.

"That's not the kind of thing I get into. I did not know anything about what his background is," Hunt said.

"The (state) Department of Commerce obviously has been ... (is) going to be sure that the company is financially sound and they have their money together and I think they are convinced they do have it together and are going to build the plant," Hunt said.

Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth said his department does not make routine inquiries into the background of industrial prospects, either corporations or individuals.

"We don't make a lot of inquiries," Faircloth said. "We don't make any great or determined effort to develop any financial statements on a company that comes to the state proposing to build a plant." Only when the company applies for revenue bonds does the state obtain data on the company's operations, finances and the backgrounds of its major investors and officers, Faircloth said.

'Moral Majority' Sees Conservatism Rapped

By DAVID ESPINO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For a new kid on the political block, the Moral Majority is coming in for some heavy-duty criticism.

For example, the 15-month-old evangelical movement that espouses hard-line conservative political causes is drawing fire from the top-ranking black in the Carter administration and black members of Congress.

The latest blast came Thursday from the 16-member Black Congressional Caucus, whose leader said the group displays a "mindset...totally in concert with other right-wing political organizations like the John Birch Society and the Ku Klux Klan."

"The distortion of religious principles which the Moral Majority perpetuates and the political posture which they maintain is reminiscent of the foundation which paved the way for the advent of the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran," said Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill.

In a tacit concession that evangelical groups may be a potent political force, two prominent black leaders, Del. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., and Coretta Scott King, said their increasing prominence makes it even more important that blacks register and vote in the fall.

"They have a favorite candidate for the presidency who runs on a platform endorsed by the Ku Klux Klan," Fauntroy said, referring to GOP nominee Ronald Reagan. Reagan has repudiated the Klan's endorsement of the GOP platform.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., said the caucus was considering holding hearings next year to see if there is a connection between the organization, run by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, and the "powerful corporate money interests."

Falwell says his organization raises its money through contributions that average $20. He claims a national following of 72,000 pastors and two million lay people, that his bi-monthly newsletter reaches more than 400,000 people and that his "Gospel Hour" television program reaches millions more.

A spokesman for the group could not be reached for comment on the blacks' charges.

But in a statement the day before that responded to an attack from Patricia Harris, the secretary of health and human services, Falwell labeled the Cabinet secretary a "bigot" who was trying to "force her amoral views down the throat of a moral American public."

"We represent what we believe is the mainstream of thought in America on moral issues," Falwell said. "We are pro-life, we oppose the pornographic explosion in the nation...We favor the traditional family form, which is the husband-wife relationship..."

It also favors victory for political candidates who share its views and works for the defeat of others, although to preserve its tax-exempt status it does not endorse any candidates.

Mrs. Harris, the top-ranking black in the Carter administration, compared politically active fundamentalist to the followers of the Ayatollah Khomeini in Iran.

Charging the fundamentalists with an "us against them" appeal that has appeared from time to time in America, she said, "At various times it has made victims of Catholics, immigrants, Jews, blacks, Indians and countless others who fail to fit into neat patterns of acceptability."

Reagan Refuses One-On-One Debate With Carter

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan has once again rejected a chance to debate President Carter, but this time he's turned down the League of Women Voters — the very organization whose sponsorship he embraced the first time around.

After repeatedly chiding Carter for ducking what then turned out to be a two-man contest between himself and independent John B. Anderson, Reagan declined Thursday night a league proposal for two more presidential debates, one pitting him solely against Carter and the last also to include Anderson.

Carter had quickly accepted the proposal, an apparent attempt by the league to compromise between Carter's insistence that he meet Reagan alone and Reagan's desire to bring Anderson onto any platform shared by the president.

The league specifically invited Reagan and Carter to meet one another the week of Oct. 12 in Portland, Ore., and then to wind up the series with a three-way debate to include Anderson in Cleveland during the week of Oct. 26.

But Reagan, who was himself in Portland Thursday night, declared he wouldn't agree to any proposal "for a series of presidential debates that would preclude John Anderson" from full participation.

A Reagan spokesman indicated also that the Republican nominee probably wouldn't allow his running mate, George Bush, to accept the league's companion proposal for a three-way debate among running mates in Louisville, Ky., next Thursday. Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Patrick Lucey, John B. Anderson's No. 2 man, agreed to that plan.

Reagan's press secretary, Lyn Nofziger, said he doubted that Bush would participate "unless there are presidential debates. I don't think that's satisfactory."

Carter, speaking at a White House reception in honor of the Congressional Black Caucus, called the head-on meeting with Reagan "essential."

"That's what I've wanted all along," Carter said. "I have already accepted the invitation and look forward to a good debate on the issues that are of concern to you."

But Reagan's debate negotiator, James Baker III, sent the league a letter late Thursday which accused the organization of "succumbing to White House pressure" by excluding Anderson from one of the two proposed sessions.

Further, Baker charged that "neither you nor we would have any assurance whatsoever that President Carter would show up for the three-way debate. His track record on debates is one of arrogance and broken promises."

Baker said that Reagan would debate Carter one-to-one only if Carter did the same with Anderson. And that, he said, was purely a matter of "basic fairness."

But Baker had used different language only a day earlier when discussing the prospect of future debates at a breakfast meeting with reporters. On that occasion, he cited Reagan's standing in the public opinion polls. "We still have the option of debating the president, but the numbers are such that we don't feel that way now," he said. "We'll keep an eye on the polls, and keep that tactical option open."

Baker said also at that time that Reagan has no intention of debating Anderson again.

But the Anderson camp echoed at least part of the Reagan theme in response to the league proposal, even as it was made clear that he and Lucey would take whatever opportunities they got. Spokesman Michael Rosenbaum said "We are disappointed that the league changed its position and that is trying to appease the White House."

Carter already had accepted invitations from three other groups to meet Reagan one-on-one. But Reagan refused those proposals, saying he would abide by the league's sponsorship and the standards they laid down as to whether Anderson should participate.

"We are especially pleased that the first of these debates (between Reagan and Carter) will provide the American people the opportunity for a direct comparison between the two major party nominees, one-on-one," said Carter campaign manager Robert Strauss.

"We are anxious for this comparison between the two persons, one of whom will be president for the next four years, to be as complete, specific and informative as possible," Strauss said.

Ruth J. Hinerfeld, president of the League, said the sponsoring organization dropped its original demand that Anderson be included in all debates for which he qualified because it was the only to get all three candidates before the public in a debate situation.

"What has always been most important to the League of Women Voters is affording to the public the opportunity to see the three invited candidates in a face-to-face situation," Mrs. Hinerfeld said.

Mrs. Hinerfeld said the two presidential debates were part of a package deal and there would be no two-man debate without a multi-candidate event to follow. However, she said the vice presidential debate was not tied to the other two.

The League originally said a candidate getting at least 15 percent in the popularity polls and meeting certain other tests would be invited to debate. Early polls indicate Anderson's ratings, which have hovered about the 15 percent mark for several months, went up after Sunday's debate with Reagan.

Carter strategists had complained all along that presenting Anderson on stage with the two major party nominees would lend undue prestige and credence to his independent campaign.

Centers Provide For Handicapped

Pitt County has five developmental centers which specialize in programming and education for the mentally handicapped. The work carried out by four of these centers are directed to assisting children with special needs — the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton Child Development Center at Grifton; the Farmville Child Developmental Center; United Cerebral Palsy Center, Greenville; and the Remedial Education Activity Program in Greenville.

A fifth center, the Adult Developmental Activities Program, concentrates on the needs of adults with mental handicaps.

All five of these programs are directly or indirectly operated under the auspices of the Pitt County Mental Health Center, Mental Retardation Services.

As a service to personnel of these centers, a quarterly in-service educational program has been planned.

The first of these was held Wednesday, September 24 and was co-sponsored by the Eastern Area Health Education Center, with staff members of the developmental centers attending.

Diane Kerr, Speech Pathologist at the Mental Health Center, presented a program on seizure disorders. Kathy Paige, a registered nurse with the Pitt County Health Department, which serves as coordinator of crippled children's clinics, explained first aid procedures for seizures. She also noted the importance of public education to increase understanding and assistance to individuals who have seizure disorders.

The staffs of the five centers and Ms. Kerr are initiating the formulation of a Pitt County Developmental Center Professional Association in order to promote continuing education and to share and coordinate professional information within the centers.

Class Observes Indian Week

Mrs. V. Teel's sixth-grade Title I Language Arts class of A.G. Cox Grammar School observed North Carolina Indian Heritage Week, September 22-26.

The class drew pictures of Indians and the pictures were displayed in the library. Also, the class read a story of a Cherokee Indian, Sequoyah, who wrote the first Cherokee alphabet. Another way the class observed the week was looking at filmstrips about Indians and an Indian legend was told to the class by the librarian, Mrs. S. Sundwall.

Arrest Made In Incident

Danny Wayne Puryear of 206 S. Eastern Street was arrested Wednesday night by Pitt County deputies and charged in connection with a breaking, entering and larceny incident at a mobile home park near Greenville.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Puryear, 19, was charged with breaking into the mobile home of Layton Barefoot at Azalea Gardens and taking a shotgun and digital clock radio. The items, which were later recovered, were valued at $300, he added.

Sheriff Tyson, who noted that the incident was reported on Sept. 22, said that Puryear has also been charged with failing to appear in court on a charge of communicating threats.

Total bond was set at $5,000, he added, with a hearing date set for Sept. 30 in District Court here.

Religious Relationship To Politics Re-Raised

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An old, often befogged question about the relationship of religion and politics surfaced sharply this week in the Reagan-Anderson debate, with more tussling about it considered likely as the presidential campaign rolls on.

Under discussion was whether religious institutions and their leaders should speak out in political contests about issues regarded as having religious-moral implications.

Historically, both mainline Judaism and Christianity have vigorously insisted on that role as a basic right and religious duty in the world, but generally without siding for-or-against particular candidates.

Often the churches have faced criticism as "meddling in politics" for trying to apply their principles to public issues, but have kept at it anyway, where possible. Under totalitarian regimes, past and present, such activity has been harshly repressed.

The matter came up in the debate between Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan and independent candidate John B. Anderson last Sunday over a specific instance in Boston cited by a questioner.

Although both candidates generally defended such activity, they differed markedly about it, and Anderson denounced certain aspects of it in the case in question, apparently blurring some of the particulars.

Reagan sidestepped ambiguities of the specific case, but offered an sweeping defense of churches seeking to inject their influence into political issues with moral ramifications.

Citing religious elements of American founding documents and saying religion-based moral standards have been much abandoned in the country, he said:

"Now I have thought for a long time that too many of our churches have been too reluctant to speak up in behalf of what they believe is proper in government. "And they have been too, too lax in interfering in recent years with government's invasion of the family, putting itself between parent and child."

Anderson said that "certainly the church has the right to take a position on moral issues," but he voiced some reservations about a specific case that had been mentioned.

It involved a statement issued Sept. 12 by Boston's Cardinal Humberto Medeiros, calling abortion an "offense against God and humanity" and saying legislators who support it and those who elect them "cannot separate themselves totally from guilt which accompanies this...deadly sin."

Evangelist Will Speak

George F. Brackman, pastor of Turkey Pentecostal F.W.B. Church, will be the evangelist speaking nightly at Black Jack Pentecostal F.W.B. Church. Services will begin Sept. 29 through Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m.

GEORGE BRACKMAN

Brackman is a history professor at Heritage Bible College, Dunn, and a graduate of the Doctor of Ministry Degree from Luther Rice Seminary. The choir will sing each night. Rev. Nathan F. Hanchey, pastor, invites all members and the public to attend.

He did not explicitly name any candidates, but the statement came shortly before a Democratic primary election in two congressional districts in which "pro-choice" candidates opposed anti-abortion candidates, both of whom were subsequently defeated.

Anderson, seeming to misspily that the cardinal had singled out candidates by name, said, "In that specific case, to try to tell the parishoners of any church, of any denomination, how they should vote, I think violates the principle of the separation of church and state."

It generally has been the policy of American churches, both Roman Catholic and Protestant, in taking stands on political issues of moral-religious concern, to avoid assessing individual candidates.

Technically, Medeiros adhered to this policy, despite the individual implications. The Boston Globe editorially criticized him for it, and later ran a full page of pro-and-con reader reaction.

In the Reagan-Anderson debate, the matter opened another issue with high-voltage religious connotations. Said Anderson:

"Now Gov. Reagan is running on a platform that calls for a constitutional amendment banning abortion (in most instances). I think that is a moral issue to be left to the freedom of conscience of the individual.

"And for the state to interfere with a constitutional amendment and tell a woman that she must carry that pregnancy to term, regardless of her personal belief, that I think violates freedom of conscience as much as anything else."

Said Reagan: "With regard to the freedom of the

It's a lesson man has been learning for ages — with God's own help. Learning to add some beauty as we make our way...to enrich the scene for those who labor with us.

Muskie Sees Nuke War Risks

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The spreading war between Iraq and Iran in an already tense Middle East carries a potential danger of nuclear conflict, says Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie.

But he told reporters after meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Thursday that he does not yet consider the danger tangible.

"I do not think this is going to happen based on my perceptions of U.S. attitudes, Soviet attitudes, the world community," Muskie said at a news conference in his hotel suite.

Still, his attitude seemed especially somber as he refirmed a U.S. commitment to a cease-fire and negotiations while acknowledging that Gromyko had offered him nothing more specific than Soviet neutrality in the conflict.

Muskie sat in an armchair and answered questions for 40 minutes. He held a glass of white wine, but took only a sip or two while discussing the situation in the Mideast.

"The whole world stands to lose in this area, which is such an unstable area, so potentially explosive," Muskie said. "When hostilities erupt which could escalate, and could even escalate to the point where the ultimate unthinkable hostilities may take place."

"We've discussed the Middle East in these terms since the invention of the nuclear weapon and we've always regarded the Middle East the most sensitive, the most unstable area, therefore the most dangerous.

"I doubt the Soviets have lost that perception. I'm sure we haven't."

Muskie's meeting with Gromyko at the Soviet mission was their first since May and the traditional annual review of superpower relations. It produced an agreement to open negotiations in Geneva the week of Oct. 13 on a mutual curtailment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

But on the troubled Persian Gulf, from where the non-Communist world gets about 40 per cent of its oil, Muskie said there was no commitment from Gromyko to support a U.N. cease-fire or any other specific action.

"He did not respond to, or reject, the Security Council or diplomatic offensive ideas," Muskie said.

Several times, in answering questions, Muskie referred to the strains in U.S.-Soviet relations that deepened after the Red Army's invasion last winter of Afghanistan.

Still, he said, superpowers

"sometimes follow parallel courses of action."

In Washington, meanwhile, an administration official who briefed reporters, on the condition he not be identified, said the Soviets appear to favor an early end of the conflict for an entirely different reason than that of the American government.

The Soviet press has suggested, he said, that a weakened Iran could lead to a restoration of American influence there.

But another official said the United States feels a prolonged Iranian-Iraqi conflict could play into the hands of the Soviet Union.

"There is just no interest of the United States that would be served by perpetuation of this conflict. Any further weakening of Iran would simply open the door to Soviet involvement in Iran," he said.

One source of encouragement to American officials is that after five days of heavy fighting, Iraq's objectives appear to be limited to regaining Iraqi sovereignty over disputed areas along the Iranian border.

On Capitol Hill Thursday, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said after briefing congressmen that the United States is consulting with its allies about what collective action might be required if the Strait of Hormuz, at the gateway to the Persian Gulf, is closed.

"I want to emphasize that at the present time, Iran has not attempted to close the strait," Christopher told reporters. "They've not attempted to blockade ships going through there."

Earlier, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the conflict represents no grave threat to the United States as long as the Strait of Hormuz remained open and the fighting is restricted to the Iran-Iraq border.

Church spoke with reporters after a hearing at which a high-level panel of diplomatic and military experts said U.S. energy supplies will not be affected over the short term as the result of the war.

However, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan, said the situation is confused enough to warrant Congress canceling its plans for an election recess.

He said Congress should remain in session "until the intentions of the belligerents becomes clearer and the ramifications on the rest of the world can be assessed."

Unmarried Father Sues To Win Son

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Airman First Class Jeff Claypool, 21, has only one blood relative in this world, his illegitimate, 13-month-old son, and he doesn't want to lose him.

"I could not see my son go out into this world not knowing his parents," said Claypool, an adopted child himself, who is stationed at Moody Air Force Base.

Claypool said he filed a paternity suit in an attempt to gain custody of his son, Michael, after he learned that the boy was about to be put for adoption.

"Everytime I go home on leave and see him I just can't help but cry ... because I think he knows who his father is," said Claypool. "And everytime I go see him it is just out of this world. It is just something that makes your whole body feel so good, knowing that there is somebody with your own blood out there in this world."

Claypool said he asked his 16-year-old girlfriend from Maryland to marry him when he learned in March 1979 that she was pregnant, but she refused. Since the suit was filed, Michael's mother has decided to withdraw her consent to the scheduled adoption and is fighting Claypool for custody of the child.

Claypool is asking the court to declare him the father of the boy, said Claypool's attorney, Morton Fowler of Washington, D.C.

"When I filed the action, the clerks were sort of scratching their heads. The didn't know whether they wanted to accept it," said Fowler. "They didn't know whether a father could sue to have a declaration of paternity."

A paternity action filed by a father is rare, if not unheard of, said Fowler.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled today in Superior Court in Anne Arundel County, Md.

Throat-Slashing Charged Spouse

SPRING HOPE, N.C. (AP) — Nash County authorities Thursday charged Braxton Lee Whitley, 44, with murder in the throat-slashing death of his estranged wife.

Sheriff's spokesmen said Jackie Webb Whitley, 34, of Bailey apparently was cut across the throat while she was riding in Whitley's car and was then driven around Nash County. Deputies said that at one point during the ride the woman's throat was cut the second time with a razor.

Her body was found, sprawled across the front seat of Whitley's car, when deputies stopped the car in Spring Hope. Police had notified the sheriff's department the car's driver appeared to be under the influence of an intoxicant.

Attorney Claims UNC Stands By Status Quo

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charlotte attorney Julius L. Chambers, a prominent civil rights attorney, said Thursday that North Carolina's university system had committed itself to the status quo and was unwilling to make its traditionally black campuses more comparable to mostly white institutions.

Chambers, who is president of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund Inc., testified at an administrative law hearing to determine if federal funding — amounting to about $90 million a year — will be cut off to the University of North Carolina.

Federal officials have accused UNC of failing to move adequately to desegregate and equalize its 16 campuses. Chambers served for five years as a member of the UNC Board of Governors, but resigned in 1977.

"I do not think the board was committed to eliminating the remaining vestiges of discrimination," Chambers testified Thursday.

He said the UNC board gave favored treatment to the mostly white campuses and only reluctantly approved new programs for the black campuses.

Chambers said that what he described as an unwillingness to desegregate began at the higher echelons of the UNC administration.

"The UNC general administration has not integrated its staff according to the availability of blacks in the job market," Chambers said.

Spending requests from white schools and black schools were treated in different fashion, he said, by the board of governors.

Chambers said there was a "major debate" about spending $125,000 each for new residences for chancellors at Fayetteville State University and North Carolina Central University. But, he said, there was no debate when North Carolina State University asked for $195,000 to renovate the existing home of that school's chancellor.

Chambers said he resigned from the board because he believed he could fight more effectively for equal opportunity of the board rather than on it.

Chambers, who did his undergraduate work at the predominantly black North Carolina Central and got his law degree from Chapel Hill in 1962, said he was prohibited from participating in some social and student government functions at Chapel Hill because of his race. That kind of problem still persists, he said.

CETA-Handling To Grand Jury

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury is expected to meet in Raleigh in late October to study the handling of contracts funded by the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The FBI has been conducting an investigation into the CETA programs since May at the request of U.S. Attorney James I. Blackburn.

Asked Thursday about the grand jury, Blackburn said "the matter is still under investigation. It would be inadvisable for me to comment at this time."

Organizing For Refinery Study

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A group of Carteret County citizens concerned about the proposed location of an oil refinery on the Newport River have formed a nonprofit organization to publicize the project.

The group, calling itself Carteret County Crossroads, sponsored a public forum on the refinery earlier this week.

Dr. John Costlow, director of the Duke Marine Lab in nearby Beaufort and a member of the group, said Carteret County Crossroads was formed to provide the public with both sides of the issue.

The group is an outgrowth of an organization that questioned plans for a propane gas storage facility at Radio Island, near the state port at Morehead City.

QUARTERLY MEETING GRIMESLAND — Quarterly meeting will be held Sunday at St. Monica Church. The morning service will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. A. J. White, Senior Choir and Ushers. The 2 p.m. service will include the Rev. J. H. Wilkes and Burney's Chapel FWB Church. The Rev. J. B. Crandall and Hayes Chapel Church will be present for the pastor's anniversary at 6 p.m. The public is invited.

Abandoned Baby Found

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A baby girl only a few hours old was found abandoned in a parked car near Moses Cone Hospital Thursday.

Police Sgt. C.L. Sitton said there was no identification on the child, which was wrapped in a white sheet and towel.

The hospital staff christened the 6-pound, 4 ounce child "Janie Doe." hospital spokesman Carolyn Beard said. Doctors who examined the infant said the child appeared to have been born after a full-term pregnancy and was in excellent health.

Ms. Beard said the only clue to the child's mother came in a call received at the hospital switchboard.

The caller "didn't identify herself but said, 'You have an abandoned baby in the parking lot.' Before the operator could ask her which parking lot, she hung up and that was the end of that," Ms. Beard said.

Ms. Beard said the girl would remain at the hospital until doctors say she is strong enough to be released to the Guilford County Department of Social Services, she said.

HIS BANNER OVER US IS LOVE... Bill Suttles was born in Durham, N.C. and grew up in Fayetteville, Rocky Mount, Raleigh with two years in Dunn. He graduated a National Honor Society student from Broughton High School and UNC in Chapel Hill. A Dean's List student for every semester.

Following graduation from college Bill spent brief periods in the Teachers Corps in New York City and in an Anti-Poverty program in Vermont. Searching for answers in his life, he enrolled in Church Divinity School of the Pacific (an Episcopal Seminary) in Berkeley, California and had been there one month when he was arrested for his pacifist beliefs and subsequent refusal to cooperate with the U.S. Selective Service. In March, 1967 Bill was convicted of two violations of the Selective Service Act and sentenced to 6 years in Federal Prison.

It was IN PRISON that Bill began to read the Bible and in June, 1971 he met Jesus as Savior. Three months later Jesus baptized him in the Holy Spirit in his prison cell, and for the next year taught him to walk day by day. Out of prison Bill worked as a counselor in the Nicky Cruz Boys Home in Fayetteville and has completed his Master of Divinity degree in Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary. In 1974 Bill met and married Carolyn Gaskins of Norfolk, Va. and they have two children, Rebecca and Joseph.

Bill is presently Vice-President and General Manager of WPHL, a Full-Time Christian Radio Station in Raleigh. He produces a daily devotion heard over eight radio stations in Va., N.C., S.C., and Fla.

We are looking forward to a mighty move of the Holy Spirit as Bill shares with us at this meeting. We encourage you to bring your friends, particularly those with needs. There is no admission charge.

OVER THE COUNTER
 Planters Bank 16 1/2-17 1/2
 Little Mint 8-11

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in selling attributed to rising interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 12 points at its mid-morning low, showed an 8.19 loss at 947.78 by noon.

Losers held a 6-1 lead over gainers in the mid-day tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After Thursday's close the Federal Reserve raised its discount rate — the charge it imposes on loans to its member commercial banks — from 10 to 11 percent.

This morning, many of the nation's largest banks raised their prime lending rates from 12 1/2 to 13 percent.

Analysts have begun to voice concern that rising interest rates will impede the progress of the hoped-for recovery from the recession.

Maneuvers Going Well

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Thousands of NATO troops headed back to barracks or prepared to return home today after more than two weeks of war games, military authorities said.

More than 63,000 British, U.S. and West German troops were dispersing after the largest mock battle, British-led "Spearpoint 80," ended in northern West Germany, according to statement from the British and U.S. commands.

About 17,000 U.S. Troops were flown to Europe for the maneuvers. They included members of the 2nd Armored Division from Fort Hood, Texas, the 4th Infantry Division of Fort Carson, Colo., and the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C.

"Overall, I consider the exercise has gone far better than I had expected," said Lt. Gen. Sir Peter Leng, commander of the 1st British Corps.

"Certain Rampart," a separate combined-arms exercise of U.S., Canadian, West German and Danish troops in central Bavaria, also ended today, authorities said.

The allied forces plan to continue their maneuvers, called "Autumn Forge," through mid-November, with troops, ships and planes exercising throughout the NATO area.

Scott Luce Guest On Show

Scott Luce will be guest Sunday at 1:06 p.m. on "Mental Health Matters" on WNCT radio.

In addition to talking about his services as geriatric specialist at the Mental Health Center, Luce will discuss community outreach endeavors in which he is involved.

Consulting with nursing homes, speaking to groups in the community, presenting information to group meetings at the center, and participating in activities of volunteer groups are aspects of his community services.

Luce and Nancy Middleton, coordinator of consultation, education and prevention at the Pitt County Mental Health Center, recently met with groups from Pre-Release and Aftercare and Career Development Center for Displaced Homemakers to tell them about services available at the Mental Health Center. Having groups come to the center to become acquainted with programs there is an outreach service offered by mental health professionals, in addition to direct services, Middleton said.

Farmers Mart Open Saturday

The Pitt County Farmers' Market will be open in full force on Saturday according to Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell. "A few things are beginning to come back into the Farmers Market," Uzzell explained. "Things like like squash, beans, cucumbers, and greens of different types are showing back up."

Uzzell feels the dry weather held down production for a while in September and decreased the number of folks selling. "Now we are cranking back up, though, as fall crops come in," he explained. The market will be open as usual on Saturday from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. at Pitt Plaza by the movie theatres. "We encourage people to come out and get some of these vegetables," said Uzzell. "We hope to be open and selling until the last part of October."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Partly cloudy Sunday with some scattered rain by Monday lingering into Tuesday. Highs generally in 70s and lows in lower 50s and lower 60s.

MASONIC NOTICE

The Winterville Masonic Lodge will sell fish plates at the Masonic Hall Saturday beginning at 11 a.m. Members of the Lydia Chapter of the Eastern Star are to bring sweet items. Plates will be $2 each.

Can 'Create' Tobacco Markets

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Inventors Jack Hice and Gerald Webb think they may have something — a machine that Webb says makes tough meat taste like tender steak and throw-away fish resemble the choicest shrimp.

The machine grinds up bits of meat, poultry or seafood into a paste, which is squeezed into molds where the temperature is raised to 230 degrees Fahrenheit and the pressure to 40,000 pounds per square inch.

Webb says that within 10 seconds, the meat fibers are fused together without loss of natural fluids.

"This is going to reduce food costs," Hice predicts, saying engineered shrimp could sell for 15 percent to 20 percent less than natural shrimp of the same size.

The formed shrimp are flat in shape but don't appear to have been made from pieces of smaller ground shrimp.

He says the first fish products will be in the institutional market by the end of the year and homemakers may find frozen meat products in their stores in a year or so.

The device is called the Hice-Webb C&S Food Processing System. One machine already has been leased by Seabrook International Foods Inc. of Tampa, Fla., a Springs Mills subsidiary.

Research Associates is marketing the machines.

Man Is Held On Charges

A Greenville man is in Pitt County Jail awaiting extradition to Washington, D.C. following his arrest here this week for the recent murder of a District of Columbia resident.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said that William Samuel Cox, 27, of 505 Darden Drive, was charged by Washington, D.C. authorities with the murder. Cox, he added, was staying in Washington at the time of the incident.

Cannon said that the victim, whose name was not listed on local reports, was allegedly shot with a .22 caliber rifle following an argument in Washington, D.C.

According to the chief, Cox was charged with murder after he turned himself in here at the jail, Washington, D.C. authorities had been in Greenville investigating the case with assistance from local police.

Cox, who is being held without privilege of bond, has waived his extradition rights, Cannon reported.

Pirates Seek To Rebound Vs. Eagles

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

They say that lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

Fullback Theodore Sutton

Science has disproved that fact, and the Pirates of East Carolina are hoping that can prove true in football also.

Back in the early 70's, the Pirates suffered a 57-8 drubbing at the hands of N.C. State, then had to go up against strong Southern Mississippi. The Eagles were heavy favorites, but the Pirates came off with a 13-0 victory.

Last Saturday night, Florida State drubbed the Pirates, 63-7, and this Saturday night, starting at 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium, the Pirates will be trying to bounce back again — against Southern Mississippi.

The situation is not a lot different. Southern Mississippi is a solid favorite in the game, and Coach Ed Emory of East Carolina calls the Eagles the best team ever to have played in Ficklen.

It could very well be that his statement is true. Southern Miss comes into the game with a 2-0 record, having beaten pre-season Top Twenty choice Tulane, 17-14, followed by a rout of Louisiana Tech, 38-11.

"Everyone who has asked for big time football in Ficklen Stadium has a chance to see one of these big time teams this Saturday night," Emory said.

The coach pointed out that for the past three years, the Eagle coaching staff has out-recruited both Mississippi and Mississippi State in their area. "They signed 28 people on the first day (for signing) last year. Football is very important to them down there."

Emory added that the Eagles had beaten both Ole Miss and Mississippi State last season also.

"Their offense is almost a carbon copy of Florida State's. They do a lot of the same things. They are a fine throwing team, and they run the sweep well. Florida State only beat them 17-14 last year, and I firmly believe that they should be ranked among the top 15 teams in the country."

In its two games thus far, the Eagles have rushed for an average of 213.5 yards a game, while allowing 120.5. They have added 115.5 yards through the air, giving up 127.5.

Also on the defensive side, they have picked off five interceptions, all by different players.

"Their quarterback (Reggie Collier) is a football David Thompson. He's a fine jumper, and can get out of a lot of jams that way. He's all over the field," Emory said.

Collier, on 23 carries, has rushed for 91 yards, including a long of 22 — best on the team thus far. He has connected on 16 of 31 passes for 207 yards and three touchdowns, with just one interception.

His top targets have been tight end Marvin Harvey, who has seven receptions for 97 yards, two catches for touchdowns, and flanker Mike Livings, with five catches for 77 yards. Five other players have caught two or less passes.

The top rusher on the team is tailback Sammy Winder, with 170 yards on 46 carries. He has scored two touchdowns.

Harvey is the leading scorer with 14 points, two TDs and one 2-point conversion pass reception. Winder has 12 points on his two touchdowns, and kicker Winston Walker has 11 points, booting five of six extra points and two of two field goals, for 24 and 36 yards.

Southern also has a potent return game. Larry Mason has returned four kickoffs for 80 yards, while Ricky Floyd, on 12 punt returns, has an 11.8 per return average. Their punter, Bruce Thompson, has a 39.1 average.

The Pirates, trying to break their two-game losing streak, will be somewhat hampered by injury and illness. A virus infection has run through a number of the team, interrupting practice this week.

"While we wanted to win them all, we really were hoping for a 2-2 record before our open date," Emory said. "We thought that was quite possible on paper. We still feel that we have a chance for that record, but it's going to take a good game from us."

"We are going to have to get some movement on the line, and be ready for anything from Southern Mississippi. We are anticipating that they will do some of the things that Florida State did, and we've worked on them, along with other things."

Following the game, the Pirates are off for a week before traveling to Richmond to meet their long-time rival, the Richmond Spiders, on October 11.

Crum: Terp-Heel Duel Is Not For Championship

By The Associated Press
Dick Crum says Saturday's matchup between his North Carolina Tar Heels and the Maryland Terps really shouldn't be viewed as any sort of a championship game in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

But others seemingly tend to disagree, noting that both football teams are in the nation's Top 20, both are on victory streaks, and both have been ACC front-runners in recent years.

Saturday's game at Chapel Hill is the conference opener for both teams. Maryland, ranked 19th, will carry a 3-0 record into the contest. North Carolina, 2-0, is rated 14th.

It could be considered a grudge match for the Tar Heels, who have lost their last two games to the Terps. UNC quarterback Rod Elkins has let it be known that North Carolina will be ready.

"We're going to be really high for the game," the sophomore quarterback said. "It's sort of a revenge thing. They stress their power. But we have power too. Their defense is big but we've got a big offense. We can match their strength."

The Terps have a lot to throw in the way of North Carolina's desire for revenge. One big force is tailback Charlie Wysocki, the nation's No. 4 rusher. Dating back to last year, Wysocki has gained more than 100 yards in five consecutive games. In those five games he has accumulated 894 yards.

For North Carolina, the offense will feature the like of tailbacks Amos Lawrence and Kelvin Bryant, plus fullback Billy Johnson. And, Elkins said, the Terps may see a little more passing from the Tar Heels.

WAKE FOREST AT N.C. STATE

The Deacons, coming off a good season last year, also have a revenge motive — even in that good year, they lost to the Wolfpack. Wake Forest would like to change that.

The Wolfpack surprised some ACC observers with its 27-13 victory over favored Virginia. The biggest surprise was quarterback Tol Avery, who leads the team in total offense.

While Wake Forest has to

Sutton Still Aiming At Crumpler's Record

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Just about every football player has team-oriented goals. Some of them are met and some of them are not.

East Carolina fullback Theodore Sutton has one individual goal he's striving for. And there is — at this point — some question as to whether or not he will make it.

Sutton opened the 1980 football season with 2,144 yards in career rushing at East Carolina. He ranked fourth among all-time rushers with that figure. He's already picked up 137 more to boost his total to 2,281, moving him ahead of Kenny Strayhorn's 2,155 yard total. Ahead lies number two, Butch Colson with 2,512.

And beyond him is the man Sutton is shooting for. The all-time rushing leader is Carlester Crumpler, who ran for 2,889 yards during his Pirate days.

"Catching him is one of my personal goals for the year," Sutton admitted. "But I've got to start getting more yards than I have been getting so far. We've really got to start getting more ground yardage as a team too."

A hard runner, whether up the middle or going to the outside, Sutton is working on improving his blocking too. "I'm trying to take more of a leadership role, too, as a senior."

Sutton's senior year almost didn't take place. Prior to the season, Sutton, a fifth-year senior, had his eligibility questioned by Duke University. It took a ruling by the NCAA to clear the way for his play this season.

"I knew that I was in the right," he said. "It was just a matter of logistics and getting it all okayed. It just seemed to keep lingering on."

"I tried not to think about it, not to worry, but it was in the back of my mind for quite a while. Even the team practiced as if I wouldn't be able to play. I was really glad when I found out that I could play."

How much yardage Sutton can pick up this year depends a lot on the men in front of him. In the past, he's been able to work behind a veteran line, but this year, the line is virtually all inexperienced. "Losing Wayne (Inman — out for the year with a knee injury) hurt us in our line play," Sutton noted. "We're improving in the line, and I think that they'll be able to do the job for us before it's all over."

Sutton, who has carried the ball to the outside only a few times this year, running mainly through the middle, is hopeful of getting to the outside more in the upcoming games. That's another way for him to improve his yardage.

Against Florida State, the Pirate back got few yards, and that hurt his chances. "They were definitely the best defensive team I've played against. They were real physical."

As to the upcoming foe, Southern Mississippi, "They are real quick," he said. "But their linebackers have a tendency to overrun the play, so I think the counter will go well against them."

At any rate, Sutton, who was a walk-on from Kingston when he came to East Carolina, will be looking ahead for Colson's yardage. Then, he'll be taking aim on the one man still left ahead of him — Carlester Crumpler.

Chowan Again Tops Baby Bucs

Quarterback Perry Agee directed Chowan Junior College to three second quarter touchdowns Thursday night as Chowan downed East Carolina's junior varsity for the second time this season, 31-0.

Two weeks ago, the Braves defeated the jayvees, 16-0. Halfback Donnie Chapman had touchdown runs of five and two yards in the second period and Agee tossed a 15-yard scoring pass to Leroy Zimmerman Reserve quarterback Fred Banks sprinted 17 yards on a keeper in the fourth period to cap the scoring. Place kicker Keith Myers booted a first quarter 23-yard field goal and four extra points.

The Braves out rushed East Carolina, 300 to 181, in the rain. The Pirates lost six of eight fumbles in the game, while the Braves lost but one of four.

Running backs Leon Lawson and Eric Redmond were bright spots for the Pirates, with the former rushing for 52 yards on 14 carries and the latter, 54 on seven. Jerry Hedrick had 53 yards on 13 carries and William Dalton had 57 yards on four carries to pace Chowan.

The Braves are now 4-0, while East Carolina is 0-2. The Baby Pirates next game will be against Fort Bragg in Ficklen Stadium on Nov. 6.

Rampant Cubs In Fourth Win

Rose High School's junior varsity football team rolled to its fourth straight victory of the year yesterday, downing Northern Nash 35-13. The game was the opener in Division I play for the Rampant Cubs.

Rose scored first, but had to struggle for a while after that. Kenny Kirkland broke away for a 35-yard run to score the first touchdown, giving Rose a 6-0 lead.

But before the first period was over, Northern had come back to score, on a 50-yard touchdown run. Their extra point kick was good, giving the Squires a 7-6 lead.

Rose came back with two second period scores to regain the lead for good. Rodney Smith scored on a three-yard run and Ronnie Worsley scored from 35 yards away. Donnell Lee, who had two fine punt returns of 35 and 45 yards, scored a two-point conversion for a 20-7 halftime lead.

In the third period, Northern scored again to return within striking distance, with a 42-yard run.

Rose scored twice more in the final period. After Lee's second fine punt return, Rodney Harrell scored from the four and Smith ran over the PAT. Worsley then got his second score of the day, from 12 away, and Kirkland kicked the PAT.

Now 4-0 overall and 1-0 in the league, the Rampants travel to Rocky Mount next Thursday.

STIHL

If you're looking for a saw that'll keep your woodpile stocked for years here's a strong piece of advice: more professional loggers use Stihl than any other saw in the world.

The opinion of some 20,000 serious handworking loggers doesn't convince you to use a Stihl, the 015L will. It's built to cut firewood. The 015L has a tough engineering and die cast magnesium housing so it won't wear out for a long time. And lightness and easy handling so it won't wear you out after a long time. On top of all that, it starts every time.

So when you need a saw to keep your own fires burning, take a little professional advice. Get the Stihl 015L.

Woody Peele

It must have been a very ho-hum week last time around. There couldn't have been much happening that wasn't supposed to be happening.

Our panel found that three people picked the same chart last time out, and all three of them, Joe Jenkins, Etha Allen, and this writer, all came up with 12-0 slates.

Rick Scoppe and Jim Kyle, our guest, each turned in 11-1 marks, while Tom Baines was 10-2. A pretty good week, all-in-all.

This week, the panel again reflects pretty much the same picks most of the way. Could it be that we're all getting afraid to go with the long-shots?

The current standings find Scoppe still in the lead with a 29-7 record, while the guests and this writer are next at 28-8. Jenkins and Baines are fourth with 27-9 marks, with Allen trailing at 26-10.

Our guest this week is Reginald Gray, the county manager. We wish him luck, for with Kyle's 11-1 record, he's going to be hard to beat.

Turning to our high school picks for a starter, we find a 3-2 record last week, bringing us to 20-5 for the season. It marked the first time that we have missed more than one pick in a week.

Maybe we can make up for it this week with a perfect slate. There are a few toughies, however.

In the county, there are three games. First Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central. The Rams are still looking for their first Eastern Carolina win, and the Chargers are looking for a win — period. This could be a chance for Ayden-Grifton, but we are forced to go with Greene Central to win it.

Farmville Central visits North Pitt in a key game for each. The Jaguars got on the winning path last week, while the Panthers need a win to snap their loss string. This should be a fine game, but we'll pick Farmville Central to come out on top.

Southern Nash visits Conley. The Vikings have found the luck bad for them so far this season, losing a close game last week, and having little to cheer about earlier. This is a chance for them against the Firebirds, who are co-leaders in the league. For the Vikes, it still will be no luck, and Southern is the choice.

Outside the county, Williamston travels to Roanoke Rapids for its first Northeastern Conference action. The Tigers are strong, but could the home field be enough of an advantage? We don't think so, and will stick with Williamston.

Roanoke visits Ahsokie in another top Northeastern game. Both are unbeaten, and the winner could take a giant early step toward a title. Ahsokie, however, appears to be awesome. We must go with them.

Finally, Jamesville travels to Bath. We've picked Jamesville to win for the past two weeks, and they've lost both of the games. Could this week be the lucky third time around. We've kind of got the feeling it could be, so we'll again go with the Bullets.

Turning to the two area games in our panel's picks, we find Rose traveling to Northern Nash for its first conference game. The Ramparts are unbeaten, and the Knights haven't won. Is this their chance? The panel thinks it is not — but it is not unanimous. The group gives Rose a 5-1 pick, with Allen going with the Knights.

East Carolina plays host to Southern Mississippi. The last time the Pirates were blown away they came back to beat Southern Miss the next week. Can they do it again? Again, there is no solid vote. The Eagles get a 4-2 nod, with Gray and Baines sticking with the Pirates.

Our other consensus picks find Virginia over Duke; North Carolina over Maryland; Florida State over Miami; Tennessee and Auburn, a toss-up; Florida over Mississippi State; Clemson over Western Carolina; Georgia Tech over Memphis State; N.C. State over Wake Forest; Nebraska over Penn State; and Furman over VMI.

Cards Enjoying Playing Spoiler After Beating Defending Champs

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

When you have nothing else in September, you can play the spoiler. It's not a role anybody relishes, particularly the St. Louis Cardinals, who had better things planned for the fall when they began playing baseball in the spring.

Jim Kaat has been in the majors since 1959. He's been to one World Series with Minnesota in 1965 and played on two division championship teams — Minnesota in 1970 and Philadelphia in 1976. At 41, he's had a lot of practice punching holes in other people's pennant hopes. But he says it's a small consolation.

"I've said all along we shouldn't take too much delight in being spoilers," said Katt Thursday night after he scattered 11 hits in pitching the Cardinals to a 10-2 victory over the fading world champion Pittsburgh Pirates. "If we were playing the kind of ball we are capable of, we'd be in contention."

The Cards' Ted Simmons, one of the most consistent hitters in baseball over the past decade, has never been to a playoff or World Series. After knocking in six runs on a solo homer, grand slam and a single Thursday night, he could only hope for a more significant forum one day.

"I'm looking forward to a September when I have a big game like this and it helps us win our division," he said. "Now we can only hurt Montreal."

"Coming into spring training I thought this was going to be our year."

Montreal fell out of first place in the National League East, slipping one-half game behind Philadelphia after the Phillies edged the New York Mets 2-1 and the Expos lost to the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

Philadelphia hosts Montreal for a three-game series beginning tonight.

The Pirates, meanwhile, are 4½-games back, and the fans seemed to have given up hope.

Only 6,805 came out Thursday night.

"We've got to win them all now," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, whose team has nine games left — all of them against sixth-place Chicago and the fifth-place New York Mets. "We had a chance to make up ground tonight and we just couldn't do it. Kaat and Simmons were the guys who did it to us tonight."

The Houston Astros broke a first-place tie with Los Angeles in the NL West. The Astros beat Atlanta 4-2 while the Dodgers fell to San Francisco 3-2 and dropped a game behind Houston. Meanwhile, Cincinnati, a 5-3 winner over San Diego in 10 innings, is just 2½-games back and starts a three-game series in Houston tonight.

Astros 4, Braves 2

Joe Morgan certainly has October experience after five championship series and three World Series with Cincinnati. He showed the way Thursday night with a two-run homer and an RBI-single.

"That just shows the character of the ball club, winning one you have to," Morgan said, explaining that losing the night before put the pressure on the team. "That's three times we've done that on this road trip when we had to, winning after a loss."

Nolan Ryan, 10-9, went five innings before leaving with a back spasm. He didn't expect to miss a turn.

Giants 3, Dodgers 2

San Francisco's Ed Whitson downed Los Angeles with his pitching then boosted them up with a prediction. "The Dodgers are still the class of the division. Houston doesn't have their hitting," he said.

Terry Whitfield and Darrell Evans slammed homers to back the pitching of Whitson and reliever Gary Lavelle. Whitson, 11-11, pitched 7½ innings before Lavelle came on to record his eighth save.

The Giants beat Burt Hooton, 13-8, for the first time in 11 decisions.

Reds 5, Padres 3
The Cincinnati Reds are glad Vic Correll isn't following doctor's orders. "The doctor told me I wouldn't play at all this season," said Correll, who was disabled with an injured left Achilles tendon.

Correll smacked a two-run double in the 10th inning to lift the Reds over the Padres. Since returning to the lineup, Correll has picked up eight hits in 16 at-bats. His previous hits were all singles.

The Reds erased a 3-1 deficit in the seventh on pinch hitter Harry Spilman's two-run single.

Phillies 2, Mets 1

Rookie Lonnie Smith replaced the slumping Greg Luzinski in the Philadelphia lineup and contributed the winning hit, an RBI-single in the fifth. Smith is hitting .336 to Luzinski's .232 but doesn't have the Bull's home run power.

"I wanted Bull to take one whole day and go swing the bat in the cage," said Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green. "I felt it would be better in the long run if he found one or two things wrong that would help him in the Montreal series."

Cubs 5, Expos 4

If the Expos can pick up tonight against Philadelphia where they left off against Chicago, they'll be happy. Down 5-1, the Expos rallied for three runs off Cubs ace reliever Bruce Sutter in the ninth. But Dick Tidrow came in with runners at first and third and retired Rodney Scott to end the game.

Girls' Volleyball Roundup

Conley 2, Southern Nash 0

STANHOPE — D.H. Conley swept a pair of volleyball matches from Southern Nash yesterday to remain unbeaten on the season.

The Valkyries won the first match in two straight games, 15-11, and 15-3. In the second match, Conley took a 15-7 and 15-10 sweep.

"It was a real team effort for us. We're coming along, but we still need some work when we play some tough opponents later in the season," coach Martha McCaskill said.

The victory left Conley with a 5-0 overall mark and a 4-0 Eastern Carolina Conference record. The Valkyries play host to Greene Central on Tuesday.

Ayden-Grifton 2, North Lenoir 0

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton swept a pair of volleyball matches from North Lenoir yesterday.

The Lady Chargers took the first match, 15-9 and 15-10, then came back in the second match with 15-6, 15-5 sweep.

In the first game, Evelyn Artis served up six straight points, while Debbie Hardison had five straight for the Lady Hawks. In the third game, Tracey Durant had five in a row for A-G, and in the fourth, Artis again had five straight.

The victory left Ayden-Grifton with a 3-1 league record, while North Lenoir is now 0-4.

Ayden-Grifton entertains Southwest Edgecombe on Tuesday.

Farmville C. 1, Greene C. 1

SNOW HILL — Farmville Central, after losing the opening match, rallied from an opening loss in the second match to take a split with Greene Central in Eastern Carolina Conference volleyball play.

The Rams, now 1-3, won the first match, 15-9, 15-1, and captured the first game of the second match, 15-10. But from there the Jaguars rallied. Farmville, now 3-1, edged the Rams, 17-15, in the second game and then claimed the third game, 14-5, to earn the split.

Top scorers for Farmville were Debbie Gowan with 10 points and Sandra Ellis with nine. Pam Shackelford had 10 points for Greene Central while Letha Taylor had eight.

The Jaguars play host to North Pitt Tuesday while the Rams travel to D.H. Conley.

Weldon 1, Rocky Mount 1

Indians Slow Yankee Pennant March

NEW YORK (AP) — Once again, Rick Waits seems bent on sticking his left arm into the middle of a pennant race.

On the final day of the 1978 regular season, the Cleveland southpaw defeated New York and forced the Yankees into that memorable one-game playoff with Boston for the American League East Division flag.

The Yankees have seen just about enough of Waits for the time being, but he will be heard from again. He is scheduled to start against them in Cleveland next Tuesday and against the Orioles in Baltimore the following Saturday.

"I pitch pretty good against Baltimore most of the time," Waits said. "But I have confidence in knowing that I can't lose against the Yankees. I just have a feeling I'm going to win against them."

It has been a frustrating season for Waits, except where the Yankees are concerned. He is 3-0 with a 1.03 earned run average against them, 9-14 and 5.17 against the rest of the league.

In Thursday's only other AL game, the Chicago White Sox beat the Oakland A's 6-4 and Seattle nipped Texas 7-6 in 11 innings.

The Yankees had Waits on the ropes in the first two innings. They loaded the bases with one out in the first but Rick Cerone bounced into a double play on the first pitch after Waits walked Eric Soderholm without throwing a strike.

"I threw four pitches to Soderholm with nothing on them," Waits said. "I was trying to relax too much and I lost my aggressiveness, so I really tried to pop the first pitch to Cerone. It was a fast ball that really sank at the last minute."

An inning later, Waits made Bobby Brown one of his six strikeout victims, again with the bases filled. He also survived Bob Watson's leadoff double in the third inning and a pair of walks in the fifth.

"We had our chances early and didn't get anything," said New York Manager Dick Howser. "We had him where we wanted him in the first inning and he got a double play when he needed it."

Despite his recent success against the Yankees, Waits doesn't see them blowing their lead in the final 10 days, perhaps because he only faces them once more.

"Man for man, Baltimore is just as good, but the bench is so much better here and the over-all pitching is better," he said. "I see the Yankees going on and winning it. Plus, we've got to play Baltimore six times and we'll beat them. The Yankees are a good club; I don't think they'll have any trouble winning."

The Indians quickly scored the only run Waits needed when Miguel Dilone opened the game with a triple and scored on a wild pitch by loser Gaylord Perry. Dilone also beat out a bunt to start the third and eventually scored on Mike Hargrove's sacrifice fly and Cleveland added three runs in the eighth.

"I don't think there's any secret at all," Waits said. "It's just a matter of throwing strikes. I just enjoy coming here and pitching in this park. I do get psyched against them, definitely a little more than against some other clubs. When you enter a game 11-14 and pitch a shutout against the best team in baseball, it makes you feel good."

White Sox 6, A's 4

Mike Squires hit a two-run single in the ninth inning to break a tie after Chicago had scored four runs in the second inning without a hit. The bizarre inning had three walks, three errors and a wild pitch. Mike Proly, 5-10, picked up the victory with two innings of relief and Brian Kingman suffered his 20th loss of the season. He has won seven.

Mariners 7, Rangers 6

Rookie Dave Edler's two-out, bases-loaded double in the 11th inning scored three runs and lifted Seattle over Texas. Trailing 6-4, Bruce Bochte and Tom Paciorek both singled. Jerry Narron walked to load the bases before Edler's decisive hit.

The win was the fifth in a row for the Mariners while Texas dropped its seventh straight.

Texas Manager Pat Corrales

protested the game in the ninth when Coach Frank Funk visited Dave Heaverlo on the mound. Corrales claimed the visit was illegal because Heaverlo had not finished facing the first batter.

Bump Wills of Texas and Seattle Manager Maury Wills made major-league history as the first father-and-son combination to face each other. The only other father-son combination on record was Connie Mack of the Philadelphia A's, who played his son Earle in five games, the final two in 1914.

Freedom Sails To Cup Victory

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Freedom skipper Dennis Conner had just completed a two-year mission to defend the America's Cup, and he was not ready to start talking about 1983.

"First, I'm going to have to decide if I'm ready to give up two years of my life or three years, because that's what it's coming to," said Conner, who brought a new level of dedication to the triennial yachting event.

"It'd be easy to get caught up in the euphoria of it right now and say I can't wait until 1983," he said. "But I can't do that."

Conner trounced the challenger Australia by three minutes, 38 seconds Thursday to take his fourth victory in the best-of-seven cup finals and turn back the 24th threat to the New York Yacht Club's hold on the top prize in sailing.

But Alan Bond, head of the Australian campaign, already is making plans for the 25th challenge. He said he will return in three years with two new 12-meters.

"We've had a very good lesson, and I can tell you not to take us lightly," said Bond. "We're a country and a people who keep on trying."

The 1980 campaign was the third mounted by Bond and the fifth straight by an Australian boat.

His resolve to invest in two yachts reflects the impact the Freedom effort has had on this elite sport. The U.S. defense campaign was actually carried by two yachts, Enterprise and the year-old Freedom.

Conner decided only in May to go with the newer boat after trying both off Newport and off his home in San Diego for the past year. It was an investment of time and money by the sponsoring Fort Schuyler Foundation unmatched in the cup's 129-year history.

Bond also said he will stay with the so-called "bendy mast" introduced to cup competition this summer by the British yacht Lionheart and copied by the Australians before the start of the finals.

He and Australia designer Ben Lexcen, who will draw the plans for the two new yachts, said every boat vying to defend or challenge for the cup in 1983 will sport such rigs, which have a flexible top that allows more sail to be exposed to the wind and still conform to the 12-meter design rules.

Australia skipper Jim Hardy, who scared the Americans by winning one race in the finals and leading in another only to have the time limit expire, said his three turns at the wheel of a challenging boat are enough.

America Most T.V.-Oriented

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are more television-oriented than the population of any other country and own twice as many TV sets as the second-ranking Soviets.

There were almost 156 million television sets in the United States in mid-1979, compared to 70 million in the Soviet Union, according to the new Television Factbook published annually by Television Digest, Inc. And all the Soviet sets are black-and-white, whereas color receivers exceed the number of U.S. black-and-white sets.

The United States also led the world in the number of full-service television stations in the middle of last year, with 1,007. And with the possible exception of Japan, no other country is thought to be close in matching America's percentage of total households with at least one TV set — 97 percent.

That last category is difficult to determine, editors of the Factbook explain, because few other nations have conducted TV household surveys.

The world total of TV sets rose last year to 465 million from 429 million in 1978, the Factbook says, with Japan, West Germany, the United Kingdom, France, Brazil, Italy, Canada and Mexico ranking behind the United States and the Soviet Union in the top 10.

At the bottom of the list is the Central African Republic, which had one television station and 100 black-and-white TV sets.

The 2,400-page reference work also includes U.S. market rankings based on the size of the TV audience.

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — When America landed two robots on Mars in 1976, reporters covering the Viking mission quickly learned to seek out a young astronomer from Cornell University when in need of color to enliven their stories.

While other mission scientists spoke in skeptical tones of finding even microbial life on Mars, Dr. Carl Sagan fancied giant Martians dancing and frolicking in front of the Viking cameras.

Not likely, he said, but possible.

Sagan has the rare knack, forged by a spectacular intelligence and a childlike curiosity, of revealing science as an adventure. Only Sagan could dream up a television series endeavoring to explore "all that is, or ever was, or ever will be."

Only Sagan could bring it off. His "Cosmos," a 13-part series on PBS beginning Sunday, is a triumph of imagination and technology. But mostly, it is a triumph of Sagan's uncanny ability to make the unknowable seem knowable.

The structure of the show is sometimes a little glib, as you might expect when PBS and a scientist make a TV show.

Sagan takes us aboard his "Spaceship of the Imagination" for a computer-animated tour of outer space. The cameras occasionally shoot to a close-up of Sagan's face, astonished by the wonder of it all, or through the glass bottom of the ship, which Sagan magically opens with a parting of his hands.

It's a bit "Captain Video," but the good stuff — Sagan's explanations and conjecture — prevails. The viewer is charmed by Sagan's intoxicating way with words.

A globular cluster that passes below the ship isn't just a cluster of old stars, it is "a swarm of bees bound by gravity, each bee a sun." Asteroids are "shattered and broken worldlets"; all that sky-stuff up there comprises "worlds of ice and stars of diamond..."

Sagan doesn't waste any time in getting to one of his favorite themes — extraterrestrial life.

"There are a hundred-billion galaxies and a billion-trillion stars," Sagan says as he maneuvers the spaceship back to Earth. "Why should this modest planet be the only inhabited world? To me, it seems far more likely that the cosmos is brimming with life and intelligence."

Sagan is an accomplished showman, but he is first a scientist, and as such, is subject to a peculiar trait all scientists seem to share: He appears more at ease when discussing matters outside his own field.

Back on Earth, Sagan is a compelling. He visits a 2,000-year-old lighthouse near Alexandria where Eratosthenes first measured the Earth, and contemplates the long-lost Alexandria library, repository of all the knowledge of the ancient world.

Finally, he introduces the Cosmic Calender, the best part of Sagan's act. It is the layman's cosmic Rosetta Stone, enabling a simple understanding of where our species stands in relation to all that is or ever was.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2NT Pass
3NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ace of ♠

Today's hand may be the bargain of the year, for it illustrates two themes without the need to purchase a second newspaper. It is an object lesson in defensive play and logic all wrapped up in one tidy bundle.

The auction was textbook. North had a minimum opening bid and South's jump to two no trump showed a balanced hand of 13-15 points. With a balanced minimum, North had no desire to rebid his five-card spade suit, so he correctly raised to the no trump game.

West's opening lead is the technical lesson. The lead of the ace against a no trump contract carries a very precise message to partner. It says: "Partner, please play your highest card to this trick." You hope partner will unblock an honor, but if he cannot, he is supposed to show the number of cards he has in the suit by echoing with an even number or by playing his lowest card with an odd number.

Since East could not contribute the queen, he followed with the eight to indicate a doubleton. West's lead to trick two then became crucial. He must find an entry to East's hand so that he can get a diamond return through declarer's marked queen. A glance at the diagram will convince anyone that, if West makes the wrong choice, declarer can run off nine fast tricks. Should West shift to a heart or a club?

Your first reaction might be that it is a pure guess. However, sober reflection suggests that a club is the sounder choice. Why?

First, would South have jumped to two no trump without a secure heart stopper? Unlikely. Thus, he almost surely has the king of hearts. And if he doesn't, will the club shift present declarer with his contract? Again, most unlikely. He may still need the heart or spade finesse for his ninth trick.

As the cards lie, a club shift results in a two-trick set, while a heart shift gives declarer his contract. Quite a difference!

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? # Voters Choose No Clear Winner In First Debate

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans say they couldn't pick a clear winner in the first presidential debate between John Anderson and Ronald Reagan, saying both men scored points in the nationally televised confrontation, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says. President Carter's refusal to take part in that first debate sponsored by the League of Women Voters on Sunday drew strong disapproval from many likely voters.

But Carter's refusal, the debate and the other events of the past month left the presidential candidates not much different from where they stood in mid-August. Reagan is up just a bit, while Carter and Anderson are essentially unchanged.

Approximately 1,500 likely voters across the nation were interviewed by telephone Monday through Wednesday for the latest AP-NBC News poll.

Each was asked whom they would vote for if the presidential election were held today.

Reagan was the choice of 42 percent and Carter of 33 percent. Anderson was named by 13 percent. One percent mentioned others and 11 percent said they were undecided.

In the AP-NBC News poll taken Aug. 15-16, Reagan was the choice of 39 percent; Carter, 32 percent; and Anderson, 13 percent.

Because these figures are based on error margins of either 3 or 4 percentage points, the changes in Reagan's and Carter's figures are not significant.

But these current standings say little about the outcome of the election on Nov. 4. Many voters may change their minds.

About three of five likely voters said they have now made up their minds whom to vote for in November, while about two of five said they had not firmly decided on a choice.

The current presidential preferences of those who have made up their minds show slightly greater commitment of Reagan and Carter voters than Anderson backers. Forty-eight percent of this group said they backed Reagan and 39 percent Carter. Only 11 percent named Anderson. The rest said they were undecided, even though they said earlier they had made up their minds.

Many of those who had not firmly decided on a candidate still expressed a preference for one candidate if they had to choose now. Reagan was the choice of 32 percent of this not-firmly-committed group and Carter mentioned by 25 percent. Anderson was named by 17 percent, 2 percent chose others and 24 percent were not sure.

The AP-NBC News poll asked likely voters if they had seen or heard the debate Sunday night between Anderson and Reagan. Fifty-eight percent of the likely voters said they had not seen the nationally televised debate. Forty-two percent said they had.

Asked who did the better job, the likely voters who saw the debate split — 38 percent said Anderson did, while 35 percent said Reagan. Twenty-three percent said they did equally well and 4 percent were not sure.

Asked specifically about how well each candidate presented his stands on the issues, Anderson outpointed Reagan by a 45-30 margin. But asked to judge how well the candidates did explaining the kind of president he would be Reagan got the nod, 44-28.

The debate had a similarly balanced effect among likely voters in terms of their estimate of the influence of the debate.

About three in five voters said the debate did not change their minds either about voting for Anderson or about voting for Reagan. And the remaining likely voters split almost evenly on whether the debate made them more likely or less likely to vote for either man.

President Carter refused to take part in the Sunday night debate, saying he wanted to debate Reagan one-on-one first. On Thursday, the League of Women Voters invited Carter and Reagan to a two-man debate. Carter immediately accepted, but Reagan turned it down.

More than half of the likely voters — 55 percent — said they disapproved of Carter's refusal to debate. Only 24 percent approved of his decision. Twenty-one percent were not sure or had not heard of his decision.

Although Carter's standing in the race has not changed since mid-August, his refusal to debate has the potential to hurt him Nov. 4. Thirty percent of those who knew of the controversy said his refusal to debate made them less likely to vote for Carter, while only 5 percent said it made them more likely to do so. Sixty-three percent said it made no difference and 2 percent were not sure. As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News poll can vary from the opinions of all Americans or all likely voters because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on 1,512 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked to all likely voters with telephones this week, there is only one chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of additional reasons: Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Black Social Workers Set Meet

The North Carolina State Association of Black Social Workers is sponsoring its sixth annual conference Friday and Saturday, Oct. 3 and 4, at the Holiday Inn, Raleigh.

The theme for this year's conference is "Black Interventions: Making A Difference."

The keynote speakers will be the Rev. Ben Chavis of the Commission for Racial Justice; Henry Frye, member of the N. C. General Assembly and legislature's Social Services Study Commission; H. M. Micheaux Jr., U. S. attorney; and Cenie Williams, executive director of the National Association of Black Social Workers.

Judge Karen Galloway will moderate a round table general session. Workshops will be held on blacks in the criminal justice system, black business, black education, black politicians, the role of the black human service provider; black health, the role of the black minister in the church and the black community, blacks in media, and black employment. There will be four or five participants from across the state conducting each workshop.

A registration fee will be charged. For more information, contact the N. C. State Association of Black Social Workers, P. O. Box 15474, Durham 27704 or call 756-8472.

Bring Countersuit To Discrimination Claim

RED SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — Public school officials in Red Springs filed a $2 million suit in federal court Thursday against a group of parents who had sued school boards in the city and Robeson County for alleged discrimination.

The counter-suit charges that the parents, through their legal action, caused the school system to stop construction of a $970,000 vocational education center.

Now, the schools' suit said, the Red Springs district doesn't have the money to pay for completed work on the building because the Robeson County Commissioners, also named in the parents' lawsuit, have halted the sale of school construction bonds. The latest suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Fayetteville, also states that the school district owes contractors about $294,000 for work already done on the half-completed center.

In its suit, the school system contends that the parents have "wrongfully, deliberately and unreasonably interfered with the contractual rights and obligations of the Red Springs City Board of Education."

The parents filed their discrimination suit in late May against the Red Springs School Board, Robeson County's four other school boards, the Robeson County Commissioners, and state and federal education officials.

The parents' suit charged all of the officials with perpetuating racial discrimination in the county's five school systems, and charged that poor quality education exists in the systems. All of the defendants, including Red Springs, have denied the charges.

In the Red Springs suit, the school officials allege that the parents have prevented completion of the new building, subjected the school board to possible civil actions because of nonpayment of bills, and caused the contract price of the project to "substantially increase because of delay and inflation."

Red Springs school officials also claim that the parents have deprived them of $877,000 due in unsold school bonds, injured their reputation in the construction industry, and caused existing construction on the building to deteriorate.

Volunteers To Visit For Drive

The fight against multiple sclerosis, said to be America's most prevalent neurological disease, begins Monday, Sept. 29 in Greenville when neighborhood volunteers will begin door-to-door visits to seek support for the Triangle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Founded in 1946, The National MS Society is the only voluntary health agency supporting worldwide research on the cause and cure of this disease of the central nervous system. MS and closely related disorders afflict a half million people in this country and millions worldwide. Diagnosis commonly occurs between the ages of 20 and 40. It is characterized by series of spontaneous attacks and remissions, often resulting in progressive disability.

The Triangle Chapter of the MS Society serves 36 Eastern North Carolina counties. Anyone interested in aiding the cause may contact the chapter office, 872-1706.

According to Wade Isaacs, chairman of the board of trustees of the Triangle Chapter, 60 percent of the money raised will stay in the chapter area to provide services to local MS patients and their families. Most of the remaining 40 percent is sent to the national headquarters to help provide funds for research into the cause of the disease and its eventual cure.

Sea Grant Site Visit Set

ATLANTIC BEACH — The University of North Carolina Sea Grant site visit will be held September 30 to October 2 at the Bogue Banks Marine Resources Center near here.

A nine-member review team will hear presentations of Sea Grant's proposed activities for the next two years.

Faculty members from East Carolina University, N.C. State University, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University, and N.C. A and T State University have submitted proposals in four research areas, including coastal studies, estuarine studies, food from the sea, and marine education.

Hopeful News in Medicine

One of the great and spectacular accomplishments of modern medicine is known as "amnio-centesis." This is a technique by which a small amount of amniotic fluid is removed from the sac that surrounds the unborn infant. This fluid is processed, in a highly technical way, and then studied for the detection of brain defects, errors in metabolism, biochemical abnormalities and chromosome disorders.

Before this extraordinary procedure was developed it was virtually impossible to detect abnormalities while the fetus was still in the developmental phase. Diseases such as Down's syndrome and Tay-Sachs were discovered only after the child was born. By then little or nothing could be done to reverse the disorders.

Geneticists estimate that there are more than 100 genetic defects that eventually will be recognized when newer, more refined tests of amniotic fluid are available. The procedure is made safer by the use of the "sonogram," an ultrasound device that can help in the extraction of fluid without injury to the unborn child. Amniocentesis is usually done about 16 to 18 weeks after the onset of pregnancy.

Since the congenital defect of the Down's disorder occurs more frequently in pregnant women past the age of 40, some hospitals perform amniocentesis in all women past the age of 35. If the study of the amniotic fluid reveals gross evidence of genetic defect, the recommendation is made that the pregnancy be interrupted.

Any citizen over 18 years of age, male or female, is eligible to join the League. This coffee meeting is open to anyone interested in learning more about the League, its program, how it works, and what members do. The League is a non-partisan organization concerned with studying issues of local, state, national and international concern before presenting information to the public.

Prospective members, recently joined members and long-time members are invited to attend. For further details, contact Membership Chairperson Jo Ball, 756-2281.

Textile Week Proclaimed

Mayor Don McGlohon proclaimed Sept. 29 through Oct. 5 as North Carolina Textile Week in Greenville and urged "all who live in our community" to "take advantage of this occasion to learn more about the textile industry through the many activities that will be offered during this period."

In his statement, McGlohon said that, "we recognize Fieldcrest Mills Inc. and the North Carolina textile industry as among the most beneficial commercial enterprises to our state and community."

He said that, "we recognize that Fieldcrest...and...textile industry employees share both a conscientious pride in their daily labors and an honest dedication of time and effort to their churches, schools, and civic and community activities."

The mayor added, "we recognize that Fieldcrest...and...textile industry are and will continue to be vital to the very fabric of our community and our state."

Local Man In College Play

BANNER ELK — Montrose Streeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Streeter of Greenville, is appearing in a production of the musical "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" being presented by the Performing Arts Department of Lees-McRae College, Banner Elk.

Streeter plays the role of Snoopy, the faithful companion to Charlie Brown.

Performances are being given tonight and Friday night in Hayes Auditorium on the college's campus.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show family members you have poise and avoid any arguments. A talent you have can be expressed at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Much care and caution has to be exercised in motion to avoid possible accident today. Put your talents to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young persons who can easily solve difficult problems, so be sure to send to schools where modern methods are taught in order to make the most of this ability. Teach good manners.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Town Planning Hostage Prayers

MILLINOCKET, Maine (AP) — This paper mill town of 8,000 people has set aside Oct. 3 as a day of interdenominational prayer for the 52 American hostages in Iran.

Two local clergymen — the Rev. David Hirtle, a Congregational minister, and the Rev. George Adams, a Roman Catholic priest — suggested the observance. Schoolchildren will take the day off and businesses will close at 3 p.m.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
Washington — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 11 through Sept. 17.

HOUSE
NERVE GAS — The House rejected, 125 for and 276 against, an amendment to delete nerve gas money from the fiscal 1981 defense appropriations bill. Defeat of the amendment left $19 million in the bill for use in preparing an Army facility at Pine Bluff, Ark., for the possible manufacture of binary nerve gas. Since 1969, the U.S. has not added to its stockpile of chemical weapons. The bill (HR 8105) was passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., a supporter of the amendment, said: "Chemical weapons are every bit as repulsive as nuclear. Their recent usage in Afghanistan and Southeast Asia, as well as their stockpiling in Europe on both sides of the Iron Curtain, pose a great if not greater threat to world order than that posed by nuclear warheads."

Opponent Jack Edwards, R-Ala., said nerve gas is a "horrible weapon" but that "we have to live in the real world, and we know that the Soviet Union continues to move forward with chemical gases."

Members voting "yea" wanted all nerve gas money cut from the bill.
Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "nay."

Members voting "yea" favored the targeting of defense procurement contracts to economically-depressed areas.
Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

FEDERAL CROP INSURANCE — By a vote of 255 for and 150 against, the House sent to the President for his signature legislation re-vamping the federal crop insurance program. The bill will replace the disaster payment program of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. (FCIC) with taxpayer subsidized insurance that eventually will cover most crops in virtually all counties of the country; the existing disaster program covers a few major crops in a limited number of counties.

Supporter Ed Jones, D-Tenn., said the bill "builds up established institutions by utilizing 40 years of FCIC experience and the great resources and talents of the private sector" and will benefit "farmers, the insurance industry, and the taxpayer."
Opponent Kent Hance, D-Tex., referred to recent revelations of wrongdoing at top levels of the FCIC, and said: "The top four people have been asked to step down because of a scandal. Now we are passing a bill that will give more power and more authority to that agency. I think it is a bad policy."

Iran-Iraq War Could Affect U.S. Interest

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At stake in the war between Iran and Iraq may be oil supplies for much of the Western world, the fate of American hostages in Iran and the balance of U.S.-Soviet influence in the Middle East.
Here are questions and answers about the impact on U.S. interests:

Q: What dangers for the United States are posed by the fighting between Iran and Iraq?
A: Iran and Iraq are both Persian Gulf oil powers. Any conflict which threatens oil shipments through the gulf would be a matter of grave concern to the United States and to the West as a whole.

If, for example, the conflict leads to the blockage of the Strait of Hormuz, a 26-mile channel at the gateway to the gulf, two-thirds of the Western world's imported oil could be cut off. This could cause panic on world oil markets.

President Carter has warned that the United States is prepared to use military force in the event that Persian Gulf oil flows are interrupted by any outside power.

Q: Does the United States have any leverage in the current situation?
A: American influence is minimal. The United States has no diplomatic relations with Iran and only low-level representation in Iraq.

In the present conflict, both Iraq and Iran have accused the United States of supporting the other side. The United States therefore is not in a position to offer itself as a mediator.

The official American position is non-involvement and strict neutrality.
Q: What is the impact of the conflict on the American hostages in Iran?
A: The conflict has sidetracked what appeared to have been promising signs of Iranian willingness to negotiate a settlement. Iranian authorities now say the hostage situation will remain "frozen" for the duration of the conflict.

It is conceivable that Iran, faced with military defeat, could decide to seek spare parts from the United States for its U.S. weaponry in return for releasing the hostages. But American officials doubt that will happen.

Q: In light of Iran's hostility toward the United States, shouldn't the Carter administration welcome an Iraqi victory?

A: Not necessarily.

Iraq has long been a military client of the Soviet Union, although there have been strains in their relations. An Iraqi victory could lead to enhanced Soviet influence in the Persian Gulf, which in turn could add to uncertainty about the reliability of gulf nations as oil supply sources.

Saudi Arabia is Iraq's southern neighbor and the world's largest oil producer. If Saudi Arabia's traditional pro-Western policies are neutralized because of fear of Iraqi military power, this would cause alarm throughout the West.

Q: What are Iraq's objectives in the fighting?
A: Iraq has aspired to become the leading military power in the Persian Gulf region as well as the dominant nation in the Arab world. A combination of events has made the present situation opportune for trying to achieve both objectives.

There was a relative balance between Iran and Iraq during the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's reign in Iran, but the Iranian military has disintegrated since the collapse of the monarchy.

In addition, Egypt, traditionally the most influential Arab nation, is now isolated within the Arab community because of its accommodation with Israel.

Q: If Iraq is so strategic, why doesn't the United States try to improve bilateral relations?
A: The Carter administration has said repeatedly it is interested in improved relations with Iraq but has been rebuffed because of its support for Israel and, more recently, its sponsorship of the Camp David accords for negotiating Middle East peace.

Registration Booth Is Planned

The Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters will supply a majority of the special voter registration commissioners next week at a booth provided at the main office of North Carolina National Bank, W. Second St., Monday through Friday of next week from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

A comprehensive voter registration drive is being conducted the week of Sept. 29-Oct. 3 under the joint sponsorship of the State Board of Registrars and NCNE.

"The League has long been interested in increasing registration of voters in Pitt County," Carolyn Bowyer, the League's Director of Voter Service, said. "Eleven of our members, all of whom have been trained as special registrars, will be providing this additional opportunity for citizens."

She reminded that the deadline to register to vote in the Nov. 4 general election is Oct. 6. The deadline for obtaining absentee ballot applications is Oct. 29 at 5 p. m. for any registered voter who is disabled and unable to go to the polls or who will be out of the county Nov. 4. An application may be obtained in person or by the nearest relative at the Pitt County Board of Elections office, 210 E. Second St. or by calling the office and requesting that it be mailed. The phone number is 758-4683.

Fall Festival At Bell Arthur

BELL ARTHUR — The Christian Women's Fellowship of Arthur Christian Church will sponsor its seventh annual fall festival Saturday at the Smith Fellowship Hall here.

The event will begin at 5 p.m. with an auction to begin at eight o'clock.

Ceramics, a variety of handmade crafts and baked items will be sold. Hot dogs, chicken pastry and snack items will be available in the country kitchen. Games will be played and the Bell Arthur Express and a dunking machine will be featured for children.
The public is invited.

REVIVAL

Revival services will be held at Timothy Christian Church, Gardnersville, beginning Sunday, September and continuing through Friday, October 24, with services nightly at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Rev. Leslie Wilkins of Goldsboro. There will be special music each night.

Following the revival, homecoming will be held Sunday, October 5. The public is invited to attend.
