Iraqi Troops Claim Capture Of Ahwaz

By ALVIN B. WEBB
 BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — Advancing under cover of relentless air and artillery bombardments, Iraqi tanks and troops claimed the capture Saturday of Ahwaz, 50 miles inside Iran, capital of oil-rich Khuzestan province.

Iran rejected a Moslem peace mission as "meaningless" and flew two air strikes against Baghdad and the oil facilities of Kirkuk, halting Iraq's flow of oil to the West. Terrorists sympathizing with Iran blew up the last functioning Iraqi pipeline just inside the Turkish border, cutting off the final trickle of oil from the second largest OPEC producer after Saudi Arabia.

The sixth day of all-out war was highlighted by a new advance eastward by Iraqi forces already controlling a 10-mile deep strip of Iranian territory. A Baghdad communique from the Iraqi News Agency said, "Ahwaz, the capital of the Arabistan (Khuzestan) province, fell to the advancing Iraqi forces today."

There was no immediate reaction from Tehran.

Ahwaz lies 100 miles north of the still burning Iranian oil port of Abadan and 375 miles south of Tehran.

Iraq said its armor also had reached the gates of Dezful, 80 miles north of Ahwaz, the site of an important oil-pumping station for a pipeline carrying gasoline and aviation fuel to Tehran. Industry sources said a halt in the aviation fuel supplies could seriously limit the effectiveness of the Iranian air force within a matter of days.

Although Iraq apparently had the upper hand, the state-owned Iraq National Oil Company notified customers that "due to extensive damage and complete loss of production" it was suspending all of its 3.5 million barrel-a-day oil exports, industry sources in Japan said.

rived in Tehran to attempt to mediate a ceasefire.

Before leaving Islamabad, Zia, who will travel to Baghdad today, said, "My mission is purely exploratory in nature."

Hopes for success were not high. Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr said "mediation was meaningless" and Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai declared that Iran was waging a "Holy War" against Iraq and would never accept "mediation, nor reconciliation, nor discussion."

"Our dispute with Iraq is not a border dispute... it is between Islam and blasphemy," he said. "We must continue our effort."

The warplanes of both nations criss-crossed the skies — Iraqi MiGs streaking from the east to bomb Abadan, the vital Kharg oil terminal and points further west and Iranian Phantoms roaring west to pound Baghdad, Kirkuk and other targets.

Air raid sirens wailed over Baghdad twice. Drivers abandoned their cars in the streets and joined panicked pedestrians racing for cover as U.S.-made Phantoms appeared in the skies, swooping low over Baghdad airport, which they bombed twice.

Reporting the Ahwaz-Dezful drive, Iraq said its troops were "chasing the retreating remnants of the racist Persian Army." Ahwaz Radio broadcast urgent appeals for blood.

Radios interrupted their programming in Shiraz, Iran's "city of wine and roses" about 300 miles southeast of Ahwaz, to announce that the city was under air attack. "Attention, attention," the announcer snapped. "The enemy is attacking Shiraz from the air. We announce a red alert."

With its once mighty imperial army under pressure, Iran relied on its American-supplied air force to counter-attack, hoping to destroy Iraq's oil fields and airbases.

The command of the Iranian air force told Tehran Radio, "We will continue the war with the utmost ferocity until Iraq is annihilated."

The Iranian received a boost when Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid declared his support for Iran and offered Algeria's "help" in a telephone conversation with Bani-Sadr, Tehran Radio said.

Saudi Arabia, in the war that has split the Moslem world and, for the first time raised the specter of a cutoff of the oil flow to the West.

According to figures published in the London Financial Times, worst affecting by an Iraqi oil cutoff would be Brazil, which imports 500,000 barrels of Iraqi oil a day, or 47.1 percent of its imports. Next is India, which gets 26.7 percent of its oil needs from Iraq, or 120,000 barrels a day.

Also badly affected would be France, which gets 536,000 barrels a day or 22.4 percent.

In Turkey, officials said the pipeline was blown up near the southeastern city of Silopi in Mardin Province. The blast touched off a fire that raged for some seven hours.

Huge Reserve Of World Petroleum

By JAMES J. DOYLE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — World petroleum stocks are so large at this time that the total interruption of Iraq-Iran exports would hardly make a dent, the noted industry newsletter, The Lundberg Letter, said Saturday.

Even if the world were deprived entirely of the 4 million barrels a day exports from the two warring nations, the world probably has more than 25 months of supplies above the amount considered adequate prior to 1979, the letter said.

In an interview, publisher Dan Lundberg noted how various factors impact supplies, however. He said if the commercial, agricultural and industrial users top off their tanks it could draw down gasoline supplies, as occurred prior to the last gasoline crunch in 1979.

"It is unlikely that topping off by CAI could impact the supply sufficiently to cause a shortage in any city," Lundberg told UPI, "but it could have the effect of drawing down the gas surplus, and both refiners and retailers would once again start to recover margins they have been sacrificing."

On the world scale, however, even if the Persian Gulf's entire 17 million barrel per day export were closed down, newsletter editor-in-chief Mark Emond wrote, there would probably be a six-month cushion.

"If world stocks are six billion barrels, as OPEC says, there's an excess of three billion barrels above what actual stocks were from 1976 through 1978," he said.

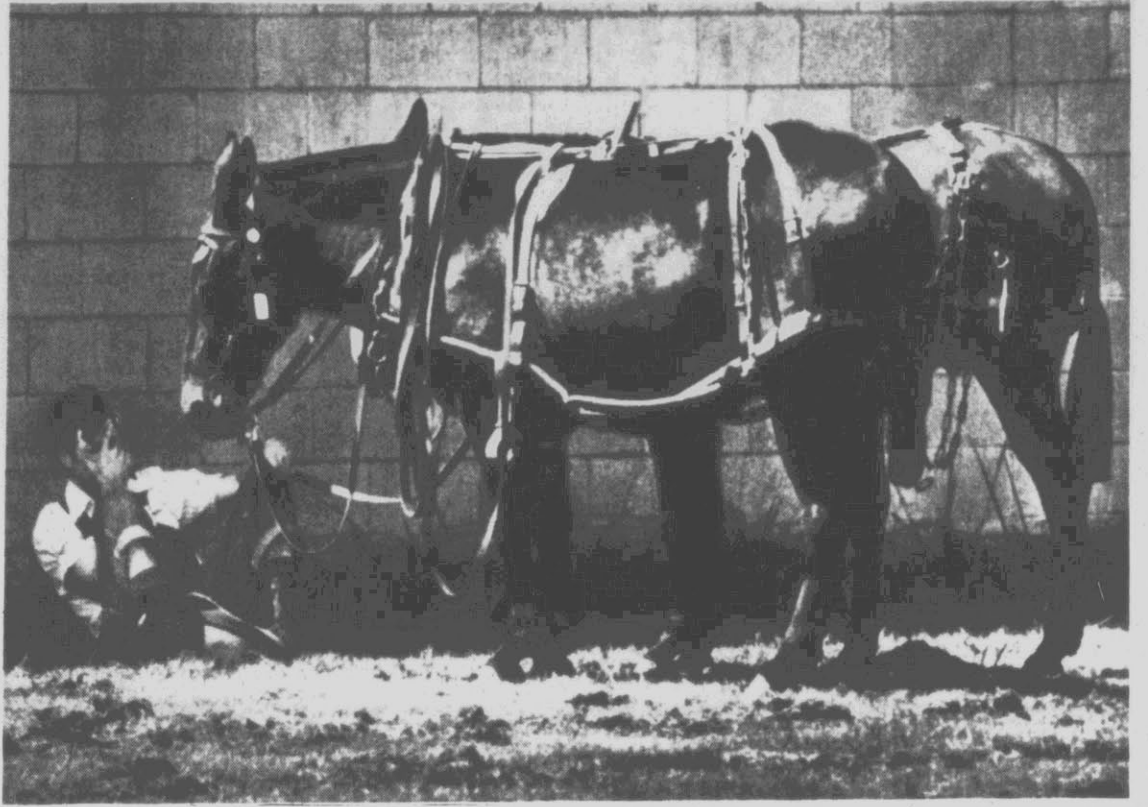

After the outbreak of the Iraq-Iran war, German Chacin, editor of another Lundberg publication, Energy Detente, sought an OPEC update on world stocks from Jose Manuel Tineo, Venezuela's director of petroleum planning and OPEC's chairman of the board of governors.

Tineo told Chacin that world supplies are now about six billion barrels because of the addition of storage by some major and independent companies and also the increasing use of tankers at sea.

Tineo explained that tanker slowdowns — taking 30 days for a 15-day trip — have the effect of storing oil at sea.

The U.S. "Strategic Petroleum Reserve" of 91 million barrels is of practically no consequence, Emond wrote. It is only two-thirds, or 80 days, of the 120-days of supply general to the rest of the world.

"Whatever the U.S. stock position may signify," he said, "the U.S. cannot be accused of hoarding petroleum."

In Southern Pacific Railroad Strike

Engineers End Picketing

By JACK SCHREIBMAN

Associated Press Writer
 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Southern Pacific Railroad service was halted by a surprise strike in seven western states Saturday, but less than 24 hours later, the union complied with a court order and called a halt to the walkout over mandatory intoxication tests.

"We're busy getting the men back to work after being served with a temporary restraining order," said Amy Foster, a spokeswoman for the 2,300-member Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

Southern Pacific spokesman Henry Ortiz said: "It appears the picket lines are coming down. I don't know whether that means the men are going back to work or just stopping picketing."

Ortiz also said although no talks were scheduled on the intoxication test issue, "we will be talking to the union on the issues as soon as we can get the people together."

Shortly after the strike began Friday night, Southern Pacific spokesman Jim Loveland said the line was "effectively shut down west of El Paso, Texas."

The walkout affected 20,000 employees and 6,500 miles of track in Texas, Utah, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada and Oregon. Operations in eight other states SP services were not affected.

The engineers were ordered back to work Saturday by U.S. District Judge William Ingram.

Ms. Foster said union representatives in the affected area were telephoned by union general chairman Leonard Foster and were told "to pull down the picket lines. I would assume they have already ceased" picketing, she said.

Loveland characterized the surprise walkout Friday night as an "illegal wildcat strike" because of an SP "experiment" employing an "electronic gadget" to ferret out any engineers coming to work under the influence of alcohol.

"No one who has taken the test has failed," Loveland said.

"We think if we can get together we can settle this. We consider it a minor issue," Loveland said.

Ms. Foster said the alcohol test constituted a change in SP work rules and a strike sanction.

She said no talks were scheduled on the dispute. Ms. Foster denied that management had been attempting to contact the union.

The strike by 1,500 engineers and 800 firemen, also called assistant engineers, stalled 700 to 800 daily freight trains, all Amtrak passenger trains, and the daily commuter runs for 11,000 riders on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Loveland said commuter operations are light on Saturdays, but the disruption could cause serious problems on work days. Highways 101 and 280 are the only two freeway arteries connecting San Francisco with its 40-mile-long peninsula.

Amtrak trains shut down included the famous Coast Starlight from Seattle to Los Angeles, and the Oakland-Chicago and the Los Angeles-New Orleans runs. The trains have been going at peak capacity since Pacific Southwest Airlines pilots went on strike last week. The strike started in El Paso shortly after 9 p.m. Friday and spread westward.

Picket lines went up at several Southern Pacific sites affected by the strike.

Loveland said the railroad decided on spot checks with an electronic alcohol-detection device called an "Intoxilyzer" because of "instances where engineers have shown up and been intoxicated."

Recalls Diplomats From Venezuela

By DAN SEWELL

Associated Press Writer
 MIAMI (AP) — Cuban President Fidel Castro, angered by a Venezuelan court's decision to acquit four men accused in a 1976 bombing that killed 73 people aboard a Cuban airliner, announced Saturday he has recalled his government's diplomats from Venezuela.

Castro, current head of the Nonaligned Nations Movement, also called on Iraq and Iran to consider the possible "catastrophic consequences" of their week-old war holds for other Third World nations.

Castro's harshest words in the speech, broadcast by Havana radio and monitored in Miami, were reserved for the Venezuelan leaders, who he denounced as "hypocritical Pharisees."

He bitterly attacked the Venezuelan acquittal of four suspects, including Dr. Orlando Bosch, self-proclaimed "mastermind" of anti-Castro terrorism, in the explosion of a Cuban airliner over Barbados.

If ratified by a higher military court, the decision will free Bosch from the Caracas jail where he's been held since Oct. 8, 1976.

Castro's speech at a mass rally on the 20th anniversary of the Committee for the Defense of the Revolution — a neighborhood-level organization of pro-Castro informants and organizers — was broadcast over Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

Castro called for a "fair and political solution" to the escalating undeclared war between Iraq and Iran.

"It is a war between two oil-rich countries that divides the forces that confront imperialism, that confront violent aggression... to the unaligned nations."

African Refugees Enrolled In ECU Program

By GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
 ECU News Bureau

Eight African refugees who fled their homelands in Uganda and Ethiopia to escape political turmoil and strife are enrolled at East Carolina University in a special two-year program that is providing them with paramedical skills.

With scholarships from the Phelps Stokes Fund, an organization which provides educational assistance to Africans, American minorities and the poor, the students are taking courses in the Department of Environmental Health in the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Upon completion of a two-year program, which does not award a degree, the eight will have had extensive course work in the field of environmental health along with biology, micro-biology and health education. They will be able to return to Africa or to refugee camps and work as environmental health technicians in improving water supplies, food hygiene, insect and rodent control and waste disposal.

"This is the first time that we have dealt with international students from this organization," says Dr. Oris Blackwell, an ECU professor of environmental health.

"We were contacted by the Phelps Stokes Fund during the summer and they inquired if we could accept these people into our program. We told them that we could if they met our admission requirements," Blackwell said.

At that time, the students, six men and two women, were living in refugee camps in Kenya and Somalia. Some of them had lived in the camps for a long as three years.

One of the students, Maurice Otim-nono fled his village in Uganda over a year and a half ago. He remembers "wanton killings and streets lined with dead bodies" as rebels and invading troops from Tanzania overthrew the dictatorship regime of Field Marshal Idi Amin Dada.

Amin took control of the country in 1971 and was appointed president for life in 1976. As many as 300,000 of his opponents were reported killed in subsequent years.

Despite the troubles there, Otim-nono intends to return to Uganda and to his family when his education here is completed. He is the grandson of a tribal chieftain.

The other Ugandan student, Cewdweh Abede and Belete Alena (two at left) are from Ethiopia, and James Nabitawo and Maurice Otim-nono from Uganda are among the eight African refugees enrolled in a special two-year environmental health

33 Years In A Wheelchair

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Mrs. Kathleen Allegood Phillips, 15 years a resident of Greenville Villa Nursing Center here, is celebrating a birthday Monday, but she won't tell which one.

"Age doesn't mean anything anyway," she said.

She will say, though, that this is the 23rd birthday she's spent in a nursing home and the 33rd in a wheelchair. She's been a resident of Greenville Villa longer than anyone else, having gone there the same year the facility opened.

"I had a stroke in 1947 which paralyzed my right side," she said. "Since 1957 I've lived first in one nursing home, then in another. All of them have been all right, but I like this one the best. It's a nice home, a very attractive one, and some of the nicest people in the United States are right here."

Mrs. Phillips, dark-haired with bright beautiful brown eyes, loves conversation and her favorite topic is current events. "My pastor, Victor Wilson, says he doesn't have to read the newspaper himself. All he has to do to catch up on world affairs is come visit me," she said.

"I do enjoy reading the newspaper and watching the news. I've always loved politics. My mother was a school teacher in her young days and she loved politics and she instilled that love in me."

Mrs. Phillips is an ardent admirer of Pres. and Mrs. Carter. "Reagan is a good actor and he probably made a good governor of California," she said, "but I think Mr. Carter will make a better president and I'm praying for him to be re-elected. He reminds me of John Kennedy and I thought he was a wonderful president."

"I'll keep my wife," she quoted her husband as saying, "so we never had any. I love children and have doted on my nieces and nephews and tried not to dwell on not having any of my own."

Mrs. Phillips was an organizer of Sunday School and church services at the nursing home shortly after it opened. "I never was a worldly person," she said, "— never had on a bathing suit or even a pair of slacks in my life — but I didn't have my salvation until about four years ago. It was about that time that I went through a terrible period of depression. For seven months I sat here and did nothing. I'd lost interest in everything and felt miserable. Then I started coming out of it and I was sitting here singing 'He Touched Me,' when the assurance came to me that I was saved and going to heaven. I've been happy ever since. I love the folks around and I love God and His Son, Jesus Christ."

During the past year, Mrs. Phillips received a greeting from Pres. and Mrs. Carter. "Some of my friends knew how foolishly fond of him I am," she said, "so they sent my name in to the White House. The card pleased me so much, I've asked one of my nephews to have it framed for me."

Mrs. Phillips is the sole surviving member of her immediate family. Born and reared in Ayden, she was the daughter of Robert Edward and Emma Frances Allegood. Her one sister and four brothers are all deceased, as is her husband, Leslie J. Phillips, an Ayden area farmer.

I have a wonderful sister-in-law, Addie Allegood, and nice nieces and nephews who see to my needs," she said. "I come from a good family, an educated Christian family and I've very proud of it."

Mrs. Phillips said she and her husband were advised by doctors when she was a young woman that, because of her ill health and frequent surgery, giving birth to a child could endanger her life.

Though she's wheelchair-bound, Mrs. Phillips takes care of her personal belongings and keeps them in apple pie order. "I'm an old maid at heart when it comes to wanting a place for everything and everything in its place," she said. "And, look, I've already got up a couple of Christmas decorations. I just love everything about Christmas. I'm rushing the season and I don't care who knows it."

For now, though, it's birthday celebration time. Friends and relatives honored her with a party Friday afternoon and she expects birthday visitors today and tomorrow. "I love birthdays, too," she said. "Who wouldn't, with all the attention everyone's giving me?"

CLASSES TODAY
Soul-Saving Station will hold Sunday School classes today beginning at 1 p. m. Inetta Fleming, the pastor and teacher, invites the public.

MRS. KATHLEEN PHILLIPS... will be celebrating another birthday Monday. For 15 years a resident of the Greenville Villa Nursing Center, she has spent the last 33 years confined to a wheelchair.

Rightists Claim Credit For Oktoberfest Bombing

EMPTY TENTS — Waitresses, normally busy carrying the beersteins to the thirsty customers, read the Munich, Germany papers in an empty beer tent Saturday morning with the reports on the bombing blast that took 12 lives and injured 141 near the grounds of the "Oktoberfest" beer festival Friday night. (AP Laserphoto)

By LARRY GERBER
Associated Press Writer
MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A woman claiming to speak for right-wing extremists said Saturday they were responsible for the Oktoberfest bomb blast that tore through a crowd of beer festival revelers here, killing 12 and wounding 144, authorities said.

The Munich-based weekly magazine Quick reported Saturday that among the dead, police found the mutilated body of Gundolf Koehler, 21, a known member of a banned neo-Nazi group.

Munich newspapers reported police had evidence a member of another banned right-wing organization, the "Hoffmann Defense Group," was among the suspects and that several members of the neo-Nazi group were arrested as they tried cross the border into Austria.

There were unconfirmed reports police searched the lavish, castle-like Nuernberg home of Karl Heinz Hoffmann, a painter who reportedly affects Nazi-type uniforms on occasion. Police refused comment on the reports, and the federal prosecutor's office in Karlsruhe ordered a news ban.

The 146-year-old Oktoberfest celebration has its roots in ancient harvest rituals, but is usually held in September. Tens of thousands of people, undaunted by Friday's incident, shouldered their way onto the Oktoberfest grounds Saturday to sample carnival rides, sausages and liters of beer.

Police said they assumed Friday night's explosion at the fairgrounds was a terrorist attack but expressed some doubts about the woman's claim, which also indicated the group was behind last month's Bologna, Italy, train station massacre. "We don't have any firm lead," a police spokesman said.

The woman, speaking with a heavy French accent, called two newspapers in Munich and said "this is the Right of Bologna, we have struck again," according to Bavarian state police.

Authorities felt the claim "doesn't mean all that much," a police spokesman said, but he noted the Bologna railroad station explosion and the Oktoberfest bombing appeared aimed at the public instead of a single prominent public figure as in most organized terrorism. A total of 83 people were killed in the Bologna blast.

Friday's explosion came only hours after Rolf Clemens Wagner, one of West Germany's most wanted terrorists, was sentenced to life imprisonment by a Swiss court for a murder committed during a 1979 Zurich bank robbery. It was not known if there was any link between the sentencing and the blast.

Police said the dead in Friday's bombing included two Austrians, one Swiss, one Briton and that the others were Germans. "We have no indication that any of the victims were Americans," a spokesman said. The wounded were being treated at five local hospitals.

Thousands of tourists and local residents crowded the Theresien Meadow despite the attack the night before, and authorities announced the festival would continue as scheduled through Oct. 5 because so many advance tourism commitments had been made. Munich's mayor announced a memorial service for the dead would be held Tuesday and said festivities would be canceled that day.

From fragments found at the blood-smeared site near the main gate of the fairgrounds, police deduced the bomb was a piece of half-inch-thick iron pipe filled with at least two pounds of highly potent explosives. Bavarian State Interior Minister Gerold Tandler said the device, hidden in a trash can attached to a traffic sign, was triggered by electric means and blasted in all directions. Police estimated 1,000 people were in the immediate vicinity at the time of the explosion.

"I saw a bright flash, then I appeared to be out for a few seconds and when I came to my senses again, I saw this awful mess around me," a witness said immediately after the blast.

The crowd near the explosion was just a fraction of an estimated 200,000 people who that night visited what is generally billed as the world's biggest beer party. Most were on their way home.

Police in Goepfingen, just east of Stuttgart, said Friday they recently recovered from a nearby Charlottensee Lake several unfinished bombs of the kind Tandler described. Police said they suspect right-wing terrorists disposed of the bomb casings in the lake.

Airlift Of Cubans To Fort Chaffee Continues

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer
FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — An airlift to transfer 6,600 more Cuban refugees to Fort Chaffee continued Saturday with some potential troublemakers aboard one flight from Fort McCoy, Wis.

Federal officials are moving all the remaining refugees without sponsors to this Arkansas base and plan to close down other relocation centers in Florida, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania.

Not ticketed for Fort Chaffee were 244 refugees in prison at the McNeil Island federal prison in Washington state where about 40 dissidents were on a hunger strike to protest the slow pace of resettlement. They were among refugees — many of whom have prison records — weeded out during the early stages of the this year's exodus from Cuba.

On Saturday, three planes, carrying nearly 400 refugees from Fort McCoy, landed at Fort Smith Airport. Among the first to arrive Saturday were nine Cubans designated by officials as "Level 2." The designation is for Cubans who are suspected troublemakers, but who have not been charged with a crime. They are kept segregated from the other refugees.

State Department

spokeswoman Sylvia Spencer said they are not "hardcore troublemakers."

In the security plan approved by Gov. Bill Clinton, federal officials agreed that hardcore troublemakers would not be brought to Fort Chaffee.

The rest of the McCoy refugees were to arrive by the end of the week. Another 643 refugees were transferred from Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., last week.

After a one-week break, the refugees from Fort Indiantown Gap, Pa., will be flown to Fort Chaffee. The consolidation is expected to be completed by mid-October, increasing the refugee population here to about 9,500.

State Department spokesman Van Rush announced Friday that during the weekend, Immigration and Naturalization Service officials would deputize all of the Park Police so they can assist the U.S. Border Patrol in arresting any refugee who tried to flee Fort Chaffee.

Paul Michel, deputy associate attorney general in the Justice Department at Washington, said Friday that all Cuban refugees at Chaffee and other federal refugee camps are in the custody of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Sworn Statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Carolina Appeals Judge Richard Erwin, a nominee for a federal judgeship, has signed a sworn statement that he had nothing to do with a newspaper column criticizing Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

The move Friday was Erwin's latest attempt to resolve Helms' misgivings about his judicial nomination. The Senate Judiciary Committee recently sent Erwin's nomination to the full Senate for approval.

Andrew Young, former United States ambassador to the United Nations, said in a recent column that Helms had asked Erwin to admit publicly that he made a mistake by supporting a pro-labor bill while Erwin was a state legislator from Forsyth County.

"There isn't any question at all that they're in custody, and they are not free to leave," Michel said.

Ms. Spencer said the camp's Spanish-language newspaper recently carried an article about the McCoy refugees being afraid of coming to Fort Chaffee.

"We tried to show them that they are just alike," she said. "We tried to take steps to prevent any problems."

She said one step was eliminating a hierarchy of Cuban leadership that had been established at the camps to prevent a power struggle. Another step, she said, was carefully integrating the new refugees into the housing areas already occupied by Chaffee veterans.

But Ms. Spencer conceded that the only way to really prevent problems in the camp is to match the refugees with sponsors as quickly as possible and get them out of Fort Chaffee.

"I think sponsorship is going to pick up again," she said. "For the last month, we have been preoccupied with security. The other camps have been preoccupied with movement of the refugees, and with closing down the camps."

Radiation Leak

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A "very insignificant" amount of radioactivity released in an underground nuclear test has been detected in a small town bordering the Nevada Test Site, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency said Saturday.

Don Eisman said evidence of low levels of xenon 133 were discovered in Lathrop Wells, a town just west of the test site and about 90 miles northwest of here.

Eisman stressed the levels were so minute that they pose no health hazard and only amount to about as much radiation as a person would get every three minutes in everyday life.

"It is not a significant amount," he said. "There are no known health effects and no detectable levels other than at Lathrop Wells."

Meanwhile, radiation monitoring teams and two EPA airplanes continued to watch for further signs of radioactivity from the accidental release of small amounts of radioactive gas from a nuclear test on Thursday.

Eisman said the EPA airplane detected low levels of xenon 133 directly over ground zero where the blast was detonated. The xenon 133 has a half-life of two days, meaning that half the radioactivity released Thursday had dissipated by Saturday.

The leak was detected Thursday evening nearly 12 hours after the morning "Riola" test, one of two fired Thursday.

The "Riola" blast was detonated 1,390 feet beneath Yucca Flat, situated near the center of the sprawling nuclear testing range. Each of the weapons-related tests Thursday had a yield equivalent of between 20,000 and 150,000 tons of high explosive.

The "Riola" blast was the 13th of the year announced at the test site, although the Department of Energy often conducts unannounced tests. Some 530 nuclear tests have been held at the Nevada Test Site.

Tax Rate Governing Factor

Pitt County people are going to be staggered by the new values which appraisers will put on their homes, farms and other properties. Some uniform values were set by county commissioners last week. Tobacco will carry a $2 per pound differential which is added to the raw land value for tobacco allotment. Previously a 50 cents per pound differential had been set for peanuts. The county is now required by law to set property at the true market value, or value in money. The value for residential property is figured up or down from a base of $26 per square foot. Many property owners are going to find their property valued higher than ever in the past, both because true values are being used and also due to the inflated cost of housing. That won't however, mean that the property owner will pay a huge increase in property taxes. What controls that is the tax rate. If the total tax base increases dramatically, the city and county tax rate could be dropped accordingly. Certainly the local governments should take no more in taxes than is required to operate efficiently.

Nuclear Power Disliked, But Necessary

Maine voters have decided in a referendum that nuclear power for electric generation should be allowed. It wasn't seen as a ringing endorsement of nuclear power, but rather a recognition by the voters that the nuclear power plant currently in operation is absolutely essential to maintaining needed power reserves in that state.

To close down the plant would have meant hardship. There would have been a shortage of electricity and then much higher costs as utilities' turned to fossil fuels. And that is the situation the nation finds itself in. Nuclear power might not be the ideal solution to the energy crisis, but at this point we simply can't do without it.

Sunday Morning Notes

Two ladies were discussing the television epic "Shogun" which was on for five consecutive nights. "I quit watching," said one. "There was simply too much violence." "Oh, I watched every night," said the other. "I just love violence. It's so much better than those situation comedies." Well, violence lovers who liked "Shogun" must have loved the Florida State-ECU game. We were all prepared to do a story on a bow and arrow hunter who spotted a moose advancing toward him. Since bow and arrow hunters can't carry guns, the hunter simply shot the snake five times with arrows. That seemed incredible to us, but the hunter says it happens all the time. "Every hunter runs into snakes," he says. So be it.

Florida Facing Big Bill

Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — Two-thirds of the 123,000 Cubans who've landed on U.S. shores this year are still in South Florida. Residents have put up with the resultant headaches — increasing crime, social tensions, housing shortages — but want someone else to foot the bill. The "someone else" they suggest is the federal government.

Miami and Dade County officials make near-weekly trips to Washington to lobby for federal help, and the refugee costs are becoming an issue in the presidential campaign.

Republican nominee Ronald Reagan drew enthusiastic praise here Monday night by saying, "The federal government must share the financial burden (the Cubans) have brought." "This is the No. 1 issue in the state of Florida," said Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Miami, author of a $100 million appropriation bill for reimbursement of state and local government costs.

Frank Moss, controller for the State Department's Cuban-Haitian Task Force, says Washington is already committed to spending $370 million for costs incurred by the Coast Guard and Navy, whose continuing patrols of the Cuban "Freedom Flotilla" cost more than $700,000 a week; the Army and Air Force, which run refugee holding camps in four states; immigration agencies processing the aliens, and other federal groups. Fascell's $100 million bill is still pending in Congress. "That will only be a start," said David Metro Mayor (Continued on Page A-5)

Other Editors Say Share The Waste

(Greensboro Daily News)

Good interstate waste disposal site agreements make good neighbors. That was the message South Carolina sent to Gov. Jim Hunt's Task Force on Waste Management last week. The task force is pondering ways to safely dispose of all kinds of industrial waste, and at last week's meeting it concentrated on the radioactive kind, "hot garbage", about which the people of South Carolina know a thing or two. Barnwell, S.C. has one of the nation's six landfill sites receiving radioactive waste. To a degree, this is fitting, since South Carolina is one of the biggest producers of several kinds of radioactive waste. On the other hand, so is North Carolina, which has no such disposal facility. South Carolina officials think it's time the burden got shared. Hence their visit to our toxic waste task force. Their proposal makes sense: a consortium agreement among southern states to jointly handle the disposal of radioactive wastes. The benefits are obvious. Costs would dwindle for each state individually. No state would shoulder a disproportionate share of the burden. And states not within the consortium would have to take their waste somewhere else.

This last point is perhaps the most important. As things stand now, thanks to the meager number of approved disposal sites, northern states with a lot of nuclear garbage send it to South Carolina. They pay for this privilege, of course, but they do not run any of the potential risk that such dumps always create. That is South Carolina's burden alone. North Carolina is as guilty as any state in this regard. We produce about seven percent of the total amount of nuclear waste in this country. Although the state has but one active nuclear power plant, its industries and institutions, such as universities and hospitals, generate several thousand cubic meters of industrial waste. Despite Gov. Hunt's promises to rectify this dilemma, we are skeptical of North Carolina's ability to solve the problem independently. With that in mind, South Carolina's regional compact suggestion makes sense.

The first day of autumn came on Sept. 22 of last week. The problem was it was just like summer. The temperatures were in the nineties and, fall or not, it was strictly shirt sleeve weather. One citizen strolling on the mall downtown complained about the heat so late in the season. "Boy," he commented. "Am I ready for some cooler weather." Then a shapely coed in gym shorts passed by. "But then again . . ." the guy said.

One long time citizens commented that he recalled autumn's coming in the years when he was growing up by the fact that he usually needed a coat or sweater to attend the Pitt County Agricultural Fair in the evenings. The fair's arrival generally signaled the first cool evenings of the new season. Not so this year, not at midweek at any rate. A (Continued on page A-5)

A Police School Network

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Better training for rookie police officers, especially those from smaller cities and rural areas, might result from a network of regional training centers located strategically around the state, some law enforcement specialists believe. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten is polling county sheriffs and police chiefs on what they think of such an idea. "I will promote the system only if it is what North Carolina's law enforcement community wants," Edmisten says. At this point, the system would involve the Criminal Justice Standards Commission, the Department of Community Colleges, and a regional advisory board made up of law enforcement leaders from each region. A basic training course for police recruits would then be set up in 10 locations around the state, with the advisory committees handling location and scheduling to best serve those within a region. Most larger cities provide their own rookie training, but this means those from smaller locations either miss out on specialized training, or have to travel elsewhere. Sick Prisoners A "correctional geriatric program" which can handle up to 115 elderly prisoners has been established at the state's Durham County Prison unit. Some moving through the program have been paroled, and others have been given therapy and relocated back to other field units. The prison headcount shows some 165 individuals over 60 years of age in North Carolina prisons. Before, they were assigned to any of the prison camps depending upon their sentences and residency. The Durham geriatrics unit has nurses, a doctor, and a program director. Health clinics, exercise classes, arts and crafts work for therapy and recreational programs are on the daily routine. Road Fund Some figures on just how much proposed changes in the taxes going into the state's highway fund have been worked up by fiscal researchers on the General Assembly staff. A four percent tax on the wholesale price of gasoline would produce $156 million the first year and $208 million by 1985. Moving the Highway Patrol to the General Fund budget would net the highway fund some $50 million. Removal of the 120 ceiling on sales taxes levied against motor vehicles would produce about $31 million. Tentative plans of the Blue Ribbon Commission on Transportation are to use the sales tax money to partially offset General Fund cost of the Highway Patrol. All of which must first get approval of the full committee chaired by former Gov. Dan Moore; the blessing of Gov. Jim Hunt; and approval from the General Assembly in 1981. The actual committee report and recommendations will be delivered after the elections in November for consideration by Gov. Hunt and legislators. Wood Damage Did you ever worry about the damage termites can do to your house? Dr. Michael Levi, extension forestry specialist at N.C. State University, says wood can last for centuries, properly installed and handled. Moisture, however, is the biggest concern. "Termites can be prevented with good construction practices and chemical soil treatment," says Levi. But a fungus which thrives on moist wood damages more homes in North Carolina than do termites.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Javits Stirs N.Y. Panic

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEW YORK — One discreet White House job-feeler to Sen. Jacob K. Javits got nowhere, but President Carter is being urged to keep trying in view of what is at stake: the presidential election itself. The fear in the Carter camp is that Javits, old and ailing, could in the twilight of a distinguished political career prove the instrument of Carter's defeat. Javits, though upset for Republican renomination in the Sept. 9 primary, is running on the Liberal ticket. That could strengthen the Liberal Party's presidential nominee, Rep. John Anderson, sufficiently to let Ronald Reagan defeat Carter in New York. Contrary to the bravado displayed by Carter campaign manager Hamilton Jordan on his most recent political mission here, the president simply cannot be re-elected without New York's 41 electoral votes. Although Jordan told New Yorkers his chief concern without their troublesome state, the hard reality is that Ronald Reagan will have been elected president without anybody staying up for late returns if New York goes Republican. Secret poll results from New York consequently make unpleasant reading at the White House. Carter and Reagan are in a virtual dead heat, with two unpleasant details from the president's standpoint: First, although Reagan has yet to win over the state's normal Republican vote, he may well do so; second, the big, habitually Democratic Jewish vote is simply not coming around to Carter. Under these circumstances, New York's Liberal Party — which had been lingering through a slow death of attrition until it became a shelter for the non-collaborating Anderson and Javits — could do in Carter. "I'm afraid Javits and Anderson on the same ticket could bring support to each other without endorsing each other," a Carter strategist told us. Jack English, the New York Kennedy Democrat who since the national convention has been Carter's deputy national campaign chairman, had this in mind on the evening of Sept. 9 when he heard the shocking news that the state's increasingly conservative Republican electorate had rejected Javits. English urged the president to place a condolence telephone call to the liberal Republican. Carter did so. Nothing so crude as a job offer was made in return for Javits bowing out of the race. But the promise of a high-level diplomatic post was conveyed from an authoritative Carter operative to a Javits confidante. It aroused no interest, and Javits is now on the state ballot to stay. The establishment Republicans who have been Javits' closest supporters told him that it would be "ignominious" to close out his political career by quitting the Senate race in return for an ambassadorial post. It is indeed ignominious for Javits, at age 76 in his 24th year in the Senate, to finish as a pawn in presidential politics. It is also demeaning for Javits, once considered New York's premier vote-getter, to find himself running third to two unknowns, ultra-liberal Democratic Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman and Javits' Republican conqueror, ultra-conservative township supervisor Alfonse D'Amato of Hempstead, Long Island. Carter strategists hope that Javits might end his campaign if convinced he would split the Liberal vote and thereby elect D'Amato, a man whose style and philosophy offends him. But two separate polls show Holtzman, her fantastic op-

Simply Pay People To Invest

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Would you consider it a good deal to invest $10,000 in a company that conceivably could double in price some day, and for doing so be reimbursed $1,000 by Uncle Sam? That dream proposition might yet become reality. The instrument of the metamorphosis is already being considered in the House and Senate. And lest you think they've lost their financial anchor altogether, consider some of the background. U.S. industrial society isn't what it used to be; it needs capital to modernize and become more efficient. Small businesses, which create jobs and promote competition, complain that they are unable to raise funds. Meanwhile, there you sit squirming in your financial straitjacket, frantically looking for a way to get ahead. You watch inflation eat your assets like acid eats metal or termites eat the front porch. Something has to be done, and that's where the Individual Investors Incentive Act would step into the picture. The IIA would allow you to subtract from your income taxes 10 percent of whatever new money, up to $10,000 a year, you invest in corporate stocks. To explain: A company can finance itself by raising equity, as in the stock market, or by borrowing, as in the bond market. Interest is charged on borrowed money, and that interest is tax-deductible. Over the next 18 months, Nicholson observes, U.S. companies may have to raise $125 billion. Since it is now more favorable for a firm to borrow rather than to raise equity, he says, they are likely to do so. Borrowing of that size, of course, can raise loan costs, not just for you and me but for Uncle Sam, who already is over his head in debt. And atop that, he'd lose revenue from interest deductions on tax returns.

Additionally, he observes, earlier proposals have resulted in benefits disproportionately favoring the very wealthy. They were regressive, he says; he insists the IIA would be "antiregressive." He feels also it would reduce alienation. It would, he believes, give many more Americans a sense of being participants in, rather than observers of, the hoped-for revitalization of industry in the 1980s. O'Hara and his associates have worked hard to promote the concept, along with the Committee of Publicly Owned Companies, a group of corporations that believe capital-raising efforts must be boosted. They believe support is strengthening, judged by a growing number of supportive letters and by steady additions of lawmakers as cosponsors of the legislation, numbered 3071 in the Senate, 6300 in the House. IIA isn't in the clear yet, of course, because there are details to be worked out and disagreements to be resolved. And there is likely to be opposition, as from savings banks and savings and loan associations. But what do you think? Does it make as much sense as some of the other proposals you've heard about?

Strength For Today

BEHIND IRON DOORS
John Bunyan, author of Pilgrim's Progress and a rebel against the established English church of his day, was imprisoned because of his unauthorized preaching. As he was led into his cell he was calm and serene because, as he wrote later, he knew that he carried the peace of God with him and therefore "went away to prison with God's comfort on my poor soul." Those jail doors behind which Bunyan was locked for twelve years have been preserved, and people looking upon them have been impressed by the fact that no prison doors, no matter how strong they are, can imprison a free soul. While in his cell Bunyan wrote several books which have brought spiritual inspiration to millions of people, in addition to being models of English style. There are people who have lain for years on invalids' beds yet who have revealed by their calm demeanor that they carried the peace of God beyond the prison doors of pain. Their souls, like Bunyan's, are truly free. — Elisha Douglass

Talent As A Great Guest

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — At this stage in life — the awkward age: too old to be a whiz kid, too young to be revered as a senior authority on anything — I have come to a satisfying realization.

I do make a splendid guest. I no longer have the patience or attention to detail that once made me a passable host. However, with each passing year I have honed and husbanded those rare qualities that make me a prime candidate for anyone's hospitality.

Cheerful. Attentive. Tidy. Available. I have it all: the perfect guest. I even make my own bed or stow my hammock, depending on the facilities.

Anyhow, cocktails, dinner at eight, a weekend in the mountains or at the shore, a few days aboard your yacht, up at your ski chalet, at that hideaway in the hills or condo on the beach — you name it, I'll be there.

I'm not much of a skier, Alpine or cross country, but I'm great at the apres. A new recipe for glug wine? Chestnuts roasted round an open fire, French style? Smoking Bishop? Ale mulled with a red hot poker? I'm your man. On slightest provocation, I can also recite without mishap "The Cremation of Sam McGee," always a fireside favorite.

On yawl, sloop or ketch, I am nimble enough in a moderate swell to go below and carve the sandwiches, keep out of the way when the lines are being flemished or the marlin spiked and reach for the slop bucket in times of abdominal crisis. Nautically speaking, however, I prefer ships of the Upstairs-Downstairs variety — rigged so that you go upstairs to Bingo and downstairs to dinner, with a three piece combo playing in the forward bar.

At the seashore, I don't trot sand onto the screened-in porch, hang a wet bathing suit from the shower nozzle, leave my rubber duck in the bathtub or say, "Wow, I'll bet it's scorching in the city" every time a breeze rises.

Having traveled about this ball a bit in my time, I am capable of a two-minute shtik on almost any topic of conversation. Afghanistan. Nudist colonies on the Riviera. Old Ronald Reagan movies. Saigon before the fall. What's the booze like on Air Force One? The feud between Truman Capote and Gore Vidal. What kind of food is served inside a papal conclave?

The secret of good conversation is to keep changing the subject once you have exhausted your knowledge of the one under discussion. It's a little like tapdancing. You got to be fast on your feet, mingling bursts of brilliance with subtly changing patterns of unobtrusive mediocrity.

"Speaking of Billy Carter," you interject at the appropriate lull in a conversation.

There are several open dates, by the way, on my fall calendar. "Let's be red with mirth," as the Prince of Bohemia exclaims when the guests approach in "The Winter's Tale."

Speaking or sShakespeare, did you know Notre Dame once had a great back named Bill Shakespeare? Or was it Army? I'll know by the time I get to your house.

versation about the president's brother, "he throws a mean curve ball pitching for the press softball team in those games at Plains, Ga. Did you know a chap named Arthur "Candy" Cummings invented the curve ball in the late 1860s? It's a fact. He pitched for the Lynn, Massachusetts, Live Oaks in the old International Association, of which he later became president."

You are now launched on a two-minute shtik about minor league baseball or old time greats, a subject you know something about. Something. It doesn't have to be much, as long as you have packed a few other topic-changing facts into your weekend guest bag.

"And don't forget," you execute a neat buck and wing to change directions in the conversational dance, "old Casey Stengel was smart enough to become a bank vice president. We could sure use his brains now. Have you seen what's happened to mortgage rates lately? All the banks are going for a floating mortgage, like they had when I lived in England. What a fiscal disaster that was, etc. etc."

Like Gilbert & Sullivan's modern major general, I have many cheerful facts about the square of the hypothesis.

But above all, I am a good listener, which every hostess will appreciate. Laugh at all the right times, seldom yawn without covering up with a quick cough, never argumentative pugnacious, vulgar or skeptical of another's facts, suffering bores stoically as long as the ice holds up.

I can eat most anything, (cuts eyes excepted, which goats down my demand among hostesses in the Persian Gulf) sleep soundly anywhere, mix and mingle nicely with anything from a motorcycle gang to a diplomatic reception. I have a medium loud laugh, available on cue to support the witticisms of others, and although I am too cowardly to flirt, women seem to find me interesting, especially those with a strong maternal instinct who tell you at great length about the conversations they have with their dogs and cats. And goldfish, sometimes.

"Fish and guests in three days are stale," wrote John Lyly in 1579.

The line or a variant of it is attributed to Benjamin Franklin, who spent most of his honored life as a guest.

On the ambiance trail, Franklin is my idol and model, which is why I never pack more than two changes of socks, shirts, whatever, while not forgetting a gift for the host and hostess.

Like Horace, I can say: "Quo me cumque rapit tempestas deferor hospes."

But since most hosts prefer guests who are dumber than they are (or why would they invite me in the first place?), I usually render it in English: "Wherever the storm carries me, I go a willing guest."

There are several open dates, by the way, on my fall calendar.

Let's be red with mirth," as the Prince of Bohemia exclaims when the guests approach in "The Winter's Tale."

Still unpaid are millions of dollars for food stamps, medical care and housing for the refugees, as well as education costs for the 20,000 refugee children enrolled in South Florida schools.
Bills are also piling up in other affected areas. In Arkansas, for example, Gov. Bill Clinton wants the federal government to pay the $213,000 state and local costs of the riots at Fort Chaffee; the Fort Smith airport wants $500,000 for runway damage officials say was caused by the heavy planes carrying refugees.
State and local officials put costs in Wisconsin at about $100,000, including expenses for churning refugees who run away from Fort McCoy and vandalize local residences. Pennsylvania officials expect the bills from Fort Indiantown Gap to run into the thousands, too.
In tiny Key West, the docking point for the boatlift, officials want federal disaster relief to offset a tourism decline blamed on news about the refugee arrivals. "The economic impact has been devastating," said Mayor Charles McCoy.

A Conservative View Shop Talk: How NCEW Changed Our Pages

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — There was a time, 30-odd years ago, when the typical American editorial page was a mass of solid type, gray as an old sweat shirt, its stuffiness relieved, if at all, by a small syndicated cartoon depicting Harry Truman taking Congress to the woodshed. Then days, as they say, are gone forever.

Or almost gone. Members of the National Conference of Editorial Writers will acknowledge ruefully that some American editorial pages are still that way. But the improvement over the past three decades in style, content and appearance has been phenomenal — and for much of this improvement the redoubtable little NCEW is largely responsible.

Members of the National Conference of Editorial Writers have been meeting here for their annual sessions of hairshirt and peptalk. I can't say for sure, but I suspect the gathering is one of the few national conventions ever held in Huntington, W.Va., but that is characteristic of this crowd: Like all good people in the news business, they are insatiably curious. You would have to be insatiably curious to meet in Huntington, W.Va.

As usual, the editorial writers have spent some painful hours attacking one another's work. These are the critique sessions in which members dissect specimens of their own anonymous art: Weak lead, pal...Clumsy sentence, friend...Couldn't you buttress your conclusion with better facts?...The sessions have some of the aspects of rugby, that game for cutthroats played by gentlemen. When the day is done they all go out and drink beer together.

Over the years the NCEW's combination of criticism and encouragement has served to brighten editorial pages on papers both large and small. I can remember when most editorials were mere rumblings of the stomach. The custom was to view with alarm in one breath, and to point with pride in the next. We were absolutely against drunk driving, litter on the highway and crime in the streets. We were fervently in support of economy in government, honesty in public office and Toys for Tots at Christmas time.

In the days I speak of, syndicated columns typically pointed all in one direction. I remember being socratically examined, as a very young editor, by our general manager. He inquired if the function of our editorial page was to guide readers toward politics we believed to be sound. Yes, Mr. Wise. We had faith in our own opinions, did we not? Yes, Mr. Wise. We would not willingly mislead our readers by publishing opinions we thought to be wrong? No, Mr. Wise.

"Well, then," he pursued, "perhaps you can explain to me why you persist in running the column of Walter Lippmann, whose policies we regard as misguided and whose opinions we believe to be wrong?"
That was the end of Walter Lippmann on that editorial page. For some years thereafter we stuck to David Lawrence, George Sokolsky and Holmes Alexander, all of them certified conservatives. We never led anyone astray. These days, most editors abide by the NCEW's principle that "voice should be given to diverse opinions, edited faithfully to reflect stated views." With few exceptions, editors open their letters column to thumping attacks on their editorials. More and more, we observe the Miltonian concept: "Let Truth and Falsehood grapple! Who ever knew truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"

At their best, editorials can clarify a murky issue — for example, the editorials of the Wall Street Journal on Mr. Carter's tax and budget proposals. Well-reasoned pieces can indeed shape public decisions on such local concerns as a bond issue, a new airport or the need for a school levy. I like editorials that glow with partisan fires, with prose that snaps and sizzles.

There's something to be said for cool elucidation also. The worst editorials, apart from the perfunctory pieces in support of safe driving, are those that simply rehash the day's news and serve up a profound conclusion at the end: "Will Mr. Carter's political fortunes suffer from his refusal to debate? It remains to be seen."
No member of the NCEW, unless he wants to be whipped out of the fraternity with hoots and jeers and ribald cries ever would write such lines as those. Not, at least, until he gets back home and forgets what he has learned in Huntington, W.Va.

ANY MOMENTARY FEELING OF OPTIMISM ABOUT THE HOSTAGES

By Gail Michaels

Learning To Play Dumb Starts Early In School

Meg is nothing if not ambitious. Anyone who asks her what she wants to be when she grows up had better prepare for a recitation equal in length to the Gettysburg Address.
"I want to be an astronaut, a trapeze artist, a pacifier maker, a builder, a television maker, a farmer, a writer, and a Tootsie Roll salesman," she tells Phillip and me frequently.
Her reason for looking forward to such a busy life would warm the cockles of any capitalist's heart. "If I do all these things, I'll make a lot of money. And when I make a lot of money, I can take us all to the mountains for a vacation and buy the Snoopy Sno-Cone Machine that Mommy won't get me."
The only obstacle in her path is the requirement that she go to school to learn these trades. She considers this an enormous waste of time. If she didn't have to sit in a classroom for all those years, she could be a wealthy woman by the age of seven.

At the very least, I should allow her to skip kindergarten and go straight to college. "I know how to read," she asserts. "I can read most of the words in 'Go Dog Go'. So I don't need to go to elementary school."

Never mind that I've met college freshmen who would envy her reading skills. I tell her that all those years of schooling will teach her to read whole sentences at a time and, perhaps, to solve complicated problems, too, like how to tell if the corners of the houses she builds are at 90 degree angles or if the man at the gas station is overcharging for rocket fuel.

So far, however, her school experience has not supported my argument. Meg expected to walk out of her new preschool class the first day with the ability to read "The Complete Works of Lewis Carroll" in one sitting. Instead, she learned her primary colors.

"Red, yellow, blue," she said with a world-weary sigh. "I already knew those didn't I?"

"Yes, dear."
"I told the teacher, but she didn't listen."

"Well, don't worry. You'll probably learn something new tomorrow."
"Triangles, squares, rectangles," she snorted the next day. "Any baby knows that stuff."

"You have to be patient. Meg. Maybe some of the other children don't know these things, and they have to catch up."

"That's what the teacher said. I think she was a little angry. She told me not to interrupt."

I groaned. Meg's obnoxious streak was obviously becoming a feature of each lesson.

The next day they learned to count to 10. "I wanted to count to 200, but the teacher wouldn't let me."

"I think you had better stop telling the teacher what you know and just listen. You'll learn something new eventually."

Meg rolled her eyes. But I ascertained from her comments during the rest of the week that she had refrained from flaunting her vast store of knowledge.

That weekend her grandmother called to hear about her first week in school. "Are you learning anything?"
"Yes," Meg said. "How to be dumb."

Facing South Few Equivalents Today Of The Old Drug Store

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. — Drug stores do not look at all the way they used to forty years ago, and they no longer have that distinctive smell, that was so pleasant and that you could recognize at once with your eyes closed. Years ago, most drug stores in small southern towns were privately owned and in every one of them there had to be a pharmacist, who, in most cases, was affectionately called "Doc." New acquaintances might address him as "Doctor So-and-so" but this did not last long. He was not only a pharmacist, but someone whom you could phone for advice when no doctor was available, a counselor, an accommodating friend, and a source of news.

There was one "doc" who was dear and well known to me and about whom I feel knowledgeable enough to write, but the things that he experienced were familiar in the lives of most pharmacists in his time.

On weekday mornings, a large group of women came in for "morning cokes and their daily discussions of clubs and parties, recipes, servants and children. At noon school children thronged the place to get milkshakes and sandwiches. The older girls were not above a bit of flirting with the soda clerk, which sometimes resulted in their receiving and extra scoop of ice cream or an extra dash of chocolate syrup.

Between three and four o'clock, businessmen drifted in for an afternoon break. A headache remedy invented by a local doctor contained a small amount of alcohol and was quite a picker-upper. Headaches were prevalent at that time of day and many customers asked to have the medicine added to their cokes. One, in particular, usually needed three doses to get any real relief. By seven thirty in the evening, a group of townsmen began to congregate, having finished dinner, and not yet having experienced television. In warm months they discussed the local baseball or softball teams, and in cold weather, football and basketball, but politics were of interest the year round. On election nights, candidates and active campaigners gathered around Doc's cluttered desk in a secluded spot at the back of the store to celebrate, with a discreet nip, the accepted finish of a hard fight.

Doc knew a lot about human nature, but it always puzzled him why a person would go to a clinic, sit a long time in a crowded waiting room to see a doctor, pay a fee, then bring the doctor's prescription to the store and say, "I don't know whether to have this filled or not. Do you think it will do me any good? I got the high blood." When he was reassured the medicine was indeed efficacious, he went on his way, if not happier, at least, hopeful.

People just took it for granted that Doc would do certain favors for them, if they asked. Doctor's wives would not dream of being seen entering the local A.B.C. store, so when alcoholic ingredients were needed for egg nog, Doc either went to the store for them or sent the porter. If ice cream in molds were needed for a wedding reception, or even just a bridge party, Doc ordered them from Raleigh, soothing a distraught hostess if her refreshments were late in arriving, making long distance calls to hasten the delivery, or as happened on one occasion, driving forty miles to rescue the order of a broken-down truck.

If one needed a package wrapped for mailing, a few stamps, an extra quart of milk on Sunday or a suddenly depleted baby formula replenished, one called Doc. He coped with many an emergency.

There are no longer many equivalents of the druggists one used to know. The big chain stores are modern, clean and friendly, but the pharmacist, as a rule, confines himself to the prescription department. This is usually on a level a few feet above the main floor, so that you reach up to him for your filled prescription, and somehow he seems at a distance not conducive to your telling him how sick your child is, or any of the other troubles that used to be confined to the druggist of other days. Nor can you tell him that, although you cannot pay now, in sixty days he will get his money, or some of it. Doc was used to waiting. He drove a vintage Ford while people who owed him often rode in Chryslers and Buicks, but that was life.

To those who remember the five cent coke and the big ceiling fan, Doc is still a memory too, and I believe that he would feel that such remembrance was reward enough.

Southpaws Have Something Going For Them

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer

It seems that, except for baseball players and the like, the right hand is right and the left hand is ... well, the English word started out as "lyft," which means weak or broken. Or consider the word "sinister." It means wicked, dishonest, ominous — and left.

Throughout most of history, the left side — and the 10 or 15 percent of humans who are left-handed — has had a decidedly bad image. Said a 1930s psychologist of southpaws: "Awkward in the house and clumsy in their games, they are fumbling and bunglers at whatever they do."

On the other hand, southpaws like to boast of their kinship to such legendary lefties as Leonardo Da Vinci, Michelangelo and Pablo Picasso. And they may have a point.

Some recent research suggests that artists are more likely than nonartists to be left-handed, says neurophysiologist Jeannine Herron. But, she adds, other studies find a higher than normal percentage of lefties among the mentally frustrated.

researcher at the University of California-San Francisco's Langley Porter Institute.

Ms. Herron, who has studied left-handers for five years, says a recent burst of research into the wiring and workings of the brain is generating a new scientific fascination with the subject.

A few generations back, children who showed signs of left-handedness might find the offending hand tied down or slapped whenever it reached for a salt shaker or fork. Most authorities say things are much better now, but some subtle digs survive.

"I don't think we're ever going to get over our image of being clumsy or backward," says lefty Karen B. Carlisle, who blames the bad press on a world full of right-handed gadgets. "Almost everything that's made is made for right handers and it goes the wrong way," Mrs. Carlisle says. "We always look clumsy because we have to do everything backwards."

So she became one of a handful of left-handed entrepreneurs who have opened shops exclusively for this largely ignored minority. Her Left Hand World in San Francisco sells everything from scissors and butter knives to billfolds and playing cards, all designed for lefties.

"People don't realize how many things are right-handed until they see things that are made for left-handers," she says. "Because of the way hands are designed, whichever hand you use, you want to turn it away from your body." So nut and bolts, lightbulbs, can-openers and wind-up toys all turn the wrong way for southpaws.

Despite the obstacles, "most left-handers adapt fairly well without thinking a whole lot about it," says Ms. Herron.

But life is rarely without its problems. "The biggest offender is probably the desks at school," she says. "The arm rests are on the right side and that can be very frustrating."

Another pitfall is the inverted writing posture used by many lefties who curl their hands over the top of the paper and point the pen toward the bottom. Ms. Herron still remembers the frustration of contentedly smearing the ink of just-written words.

Ms. Herron says southpaws are being sought by brain researchers "because they are a population where that variation in brain organization is highly concentrated." Certain still confusing differences produce a specific result — left-handedness.

"All the heavy duty, large-population studies that have been done find no difference in intelligence, in spatial ability or verbal ability between right- and left-handers," she says.

The apparent increased incidence of left-handed artists remains a puzzle. Until scientists have a much better understanding of brain patterns, Ms. Herron says, they won't be able to specify that this pattern is supergood for artists or for music or whatever.

Boards Of Actors Unions Approve Tentative Agreement

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
HOLLWOOD (AP) — The West Coast boards of two actors unions, which have been on strike for 69 days, on Saturday gave overwhelming approval to a tentative agreement for a new three-year contract with producers.

The boards said some actors might begin work on some shows prior to completion of the ratification vote. The vote by the boards of the Screen Actors Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists came during a five-hour meeting at the SAG headquarters. SAG voted 25-5 in favor; AFTRA voted 25-2 for the proposal. The dissenters were concerned primarily with the home video provisions of the contract which slowed negotiations in weeks of off-and-on bargaining. Tentative agreement was reached early Thursday.

But some actors say they will vote against the pact because of its home video clause.

"Both boards have voted to recommend ratification to their respective memberships," SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner said Saturday night. "In addition, both boards voted not to send their memberships back to work prior to completion of the ratification process except where the executive secretaries find it necessary to send people back to work in specific instances."

AFTRA national executive secretary Bud Wolff explained the provision to allow actors to return to work concerns taped shows that are not being struck by members of the American Federation of Musicians.

Wolff said he would try to meet with musicians union officials this week to determine if actors can return to some shows, such as half-hour taped comedies.

He noted that dissenting board members on Saturday were worried that negotiators had compromised too much when they settled for 4.5 percent of the sales of pay TV shows after they have played 10 days during a year.

The contract also would raise minimum salaries, currently $235 a day and $785 a week, by 32 percent, and provide increases in overtime allowances and higher residuals for movies shown on television and TV reruns.

The contract now must be approved by SAG-AFTRA Eastern board meeting in New York on Monday. Wolff said it was likely those boards would follow the Western boards' lead and recommend to ratify.

SAG will then send out ballots "as quickly as possible" to its 48,000 members.

probably by the end of this week. AFTRA members will vote at regional meetings in Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, Washington, D.C., and San Francisco. The first of those meetings are set for Oct. 6 in Los Angeles and San Francisco, Wolff said.

The ratification process is expected to take two to three weeks.

Will Resume Talks On MIAs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Rep. Lester L. Wolff said Saturday that the United States and Vietnam will resume talks on the question of American soldiers still listed as missing in action in the Vietnam War.

Wolff, a New York Democrat, told the Civil Air Patrol National Board meeting here that there has been a "significant breakthrough" in efforts to resolve the cases of 2,500 Americans unaccounted for in the fighting in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. All but about 50 of those are presumed dead.

However, Sondra McCarty, a State Department spokeswoman in Washington, asked about Wolff's comments, said, "We have absolutely nothing to support that report."

Wolff told the CAP that: "After long and arduous negotiations, intermittently interrupted by challenges on both sides, and with the support of the defense and intelligence agencies, I take this time to announce a resumption of talks, which had broken down, between the Vietnamese authorities and our people."

Wolff, chairman of a House subcommittee on the Vietnam missing in action, said the talks are designed to "resolve specific cases of those remaining unaccounted for by the Vietnamese."

"This should be heartening news for the families who have waited so long for news of their dear ones," Wolff said. "I have on numerous occasions said that my committee will not cease in its efforts until all of our missing in Vietnam are accounted for."

Questioned about his comments, Wolff told a reporter, "All I can say is we've opened the lines of communication once again." He did not mention a date for resumption of talks, but said they would begin "immediately."

Wolff was one of seven members of Congress who in January visited Vietnam, where he said the subject of the missing American servicemen was discussed. Wolff said the visit provided a chance to present new information gathered from Vietnamese refugees about MIAs, but declined to discuss details, saying the discussions were delicate.

Policeman Slain

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As Patrolman Gary Farrell lay bleeding in the police van from a gunshot wound, his brothers were near. Officer Michael Farrell was at the wheel and Officer William Farrell was at his side.

His wife, officer Stephanie Farrell, made it to the hospital just before he died.

Gary Farrell and his partner, Bill Mock, were on patrol early Friday afternoon when a crowd on a Germantown street corner frantically flagged them down. An old woman had been beaten and mugged, they said.

Farrell leaped from the police wagon and spotted a fleeing man. He followed him across a vacant lot and into some woods, police said.

Mock was following in the van when he heard shots.

"I'm shot, I'm shot," Farrell cried. Mock ran into the woods and an exchange of gunfire erupted, police said. Mock and Chester Tann, a 33-year-old man with a history of eight criminal arrests, both fell wounded.

Michael and William Farrell, like their brother both assigned to the 14th police district, responded to Mock's call for assistance. They found their brother lying among the trees, bleeding from a chest wound, police said.

Stephanie Farrell, 26, also on duty in the district, sped to the scene, then to Germantown Hospital where her husband had been taken.

Shortly after 4 p.m., Police Commissioner Morton Solomon, accompanied by Mayor William Green, had an announcement for a group of reporters and police officers huddled outside the hospital.

"Officer Farrell passed away on the operating table," Solomon said.

Dead, Homeless In Mexican Floods

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The heavy rains that flooded rivers throughout Mexico since Wednesday diminished Saturday, but not before tens of thousands were left homeless and at least six people were killed, police and Red Cross sources said.

Hardest hit by the rains from tropical storm Hermine were the states of Veracruz on the Gulf of Mexico, Chiapas and Oaxaca in the south and Guerrero in the West.

It was in Acapulco, Guerrero, that three persons were reported crushed by a rock-slide and three drowned, authorities said. In Veracruz, five persons were reported missing.

Many of the homeless were in Oaxaca and Chiapas, where great loss of life was averted by early evacuation, local officials said.

Rains continued across Mexico on Saturday, but they were sporadic and light, permitting government troops to move unimpeded through flooded areas, bringing food, water and medical supplies. Rescue officials working in the south said many people would be able to return to their homes starting Sunday if the rains abated as expected.

Government officials had no estimate of the number of homeless.

Levee Breaks

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Water poured through a 300-foot break in a San Joaquin River Delta levee Saturday, inundating thousands of acres of cropland and threatening the major water supply for 30 communities.

More than 200 people were evacuated after the break appeared in the levee around the Lower Jones Tract shortly after 6 p.m. Friday. No injuries were reported.

The water, 15 feet deep in places, was rising toward the base of a barrier holding the main east-west line of the Santa Fe Railroad, which divides Lower from Upper Jones Tract.

On the other side of the barrier, which was reported seeping some water, are three aqueducts which carry about 95 percent of the water for 1.1 million residents in the greater Oakland area.

"They're endangered in the sense that the only thing that's between them right now and the flooding on Lower Jones Tract is the railroad right of way," said Brian McRae, a spokesman for the utility district.

position to all defense spending bills either unknown to or uninteresting to New Yorkers, nearly 20 percentage points ahead of D'Amato and Javits. The Javits candidacy, therefore, is more of a threat to Carter than Holtzman.

Javits' old friends in organized labor, panicky at the idea of Ronald Reagan in the White House, want Javits to erase that threat by deactivating his campaign. AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland is particularly anxious that some arrangement be found for Javits to conclude his days as a senior diplomat in return for quietly helping keep labor's enemy from being elected president.

Javits, nominally at least still supports Reagan instead of fellow Liberal Anderson. He may feel no debt to Labo leaders, who (with the notable exception of teacher union chief Al Shanker quickly abandoned Javits once he had lost the Republican primary.

That confronts Jimmy Carter with a peculiar task in the state his campaign manager two weeks ago dismissed as non-essential. His worried advisers here want him to go on bended knee to ask lifelong Republican Jack Javits, entering his final political hours, to help him keep a Republican out of the White House.

Clay Kirkman Says...

The cool days of fall will soon be upon us so now is the best time to begin moving your houseplants back indoors. The plants will do better and suffer less shock if you do not wait until it turns too cool. To allow the plants a period of adjustment from the outside to indoors you should start moving them in at night. Then return them to the outside the next morning.

Be sure to check all the plants for signs of disease and insects. If you find either, you need to spray the plants in order to keep the problem from spreading after they are brought indoors. It is also a good time to do any pruning needed. Many of your plants may need repotting after a summer of good growing conditions. When repotting be sure to use clean pots. Either scrub the old pots or buy new ones. New clay pots will need to be soaked first, so they will not absorb the water when watering the plant. If the roots of the plants are wrapped around the inside of the pot, you will need to straighten some of them or they will continue to grow in that direction after repotting.

After the plants are indoors, try to place them where they will receive about the same amount of light as they did outside. The plants will not need to be watered as much as they did when they were outside.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops have all your fall gardening needs such as pots, potting soil, bulbs and shrubbery. Remember that fall is the best time to landscape your yard.

Disaster Drill Saturday

A Pitt County disaster drill which took place on Saturday was based on the following theoretical sequence of events:

"A commercial commuter twin-engine light aircraft with eight passengers and two crew members on board is departing from Runway 3 at Pitt-Greenville Airport. At the same time, a military C-141 is inbound for an approach for touch-and-go maneuvers from Pope AFB, Ft. Bragg. The departing commercial aircraft is directed to turn to 210 degrees to clear the inbound military plane, but fails to receive this message due to other radio traffic.

The aircraft approach head-on and a mid-air collision is observed by radar departure control 6 miles northeast of the airfield boundary. The two aircraft are locked together and crash into North Pitt High School. Approximately 50-55 high school students are injured. There are no survivors from either aircraft.

Primary alerting is made by the Control Tower with both military and civilian fire and security forces being notified.

At the crash site, buildings are destroyed, fuel has ignited, and a large number of casualties are in the area.

All medical resources of the Greenville and Pitt County area will be required to treat the victims. Immediate triage and transportation to hospitals is urgent to limit loss of life.

Fire containment and rescue of the victims will be required. Military assistance will be requested to support civilian resources."

The rescue drill was successfully conducted Saturday morning with the full assistance of Pitt County area rescue facilities and the staff of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Finally Claims Share

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The long lost cousin finally came home, closing the last chapter in the story of the abandoned wealth of William T. "Watertight" Smith, a customs inspector who lived frugally and died without leaving a will.

"A couple of lawyers wanted to charge him $50 to make a will and W.T. said that was too high," recalled Smith's brother-in-law, P. Weaver Johnson, 88, of Selma.

It was typical of the thrifty Smith, a retired U.S. Customs inspector who died in 1968, at the age of 74. Smith got the nickname "Watertight" because of his penny-pinching habits during his 40 years of government service. On the waterfront, nothing is tighter than watertight.

A bachelor, Smith had amassed a small fortune totaling about $700,000, mainly in the stock market. At retirement, he probably was earning only about $12,000 a year. He often declared that he intended to leave his money to his employer, the U.S. Government.

Two Received Civitan Awards

Harold A. Jones

Sam Bundy

Rep. Sam Bundy of Farmville was the recipient of the Good Citizenship Award and Harold A. Jones of Greenville was named Civitan of the Year at the club's Installation Banquet and Ladies Night held Thursday.

Rep. Bundy is a former principal in the Pitt County Schools system and a member of the N.C. State Legislature since 1971. He was praised by the Civitans for his contributions to the county and to the state and also for his success as one of North Carolina's most popular after dinner speakers.

A member of the Farmville Christian Church, Rep. Bundy serves on the Board of Trustees for Mount Olive College and is a Mason. In the General Assembly, he has served on the Advisory Budget Commission and the State Board of Awards and on the committees of Education, State Personnel Appropriation, Finance, Constitutional Amendments and Election Laws. Jones, the recipient of the Civitan of the Year Award, is on the faculty of the East Carolina University School of Music. He served as the club's president in 1979-80.

Under his leadership, the Civitans participated in fund raising projects including: a Skate-A-Thon, a golf hole-in-one contest and the sale of fruitcake. Money collected is contributed to programs for the mentally retarded, the physically handicapped and to other community service projects.

The presentation of awards was made by Hugh Wease, awards chairman.

In addition to awards, new officers for 1980-81 were installed. They are: William Troutman, president; Julian Rawls, president-elect; Doug Caldwell, vice president; Phil Garner, secretary; and Bill Underwood, treasurer.

Hank Dressel of Greensboro, Governor of N.C. District East, inducted the new officers.

Rely Tampons Production Halted

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — Procter & Gamble Co. will lay off about 115 employees here because of a halt in production of Rely tampons, company officials say.

P&G suspended production of Rely this week after federal officials said that toxic shock syndrome, which is associated with tampon use, was more prevalent among women who used Rely than those who used other brands.

The Food and Drug Administration said Thursday that women shouldn't use Rely tampons and should use other tampons only intermittently, if at all. The risk of contracting the sometimes-fatal disease could be minimized by foregoing tampon use, the agency said.

Toxic shock is characterized by high blood pressure leading to shock, and high fever, skin rashes and nausea.

New Campaign Organizer

Lee Walton of Greenville has been named to the position of field organizer for the Carter-Mondale N.C. Re-Election Campaign, working in the First Congressional District. He will also be responsible for Wilson, Edgecombe, and Nash counties.

A member of the N.C. Young Democrats, Walton currently serves as president of the Pitt County Young Democrats. He is also chairperson of the Pitt County Democratic Party Get-Out-the-Vote effort, a position he also held in 1976.

Tension Still High In New Mexico Prison

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Tension has built up in the cellblocks at the New Mexico State Penitentiary, according to many inmates, but most say conditions aren't bad enough to touch off another riot.

"If you could measure tension on a scale of 1 to 10, I'd say it's about 6 in the joint now," said one long-term inmate, "but the normal level is about 5 at any time."

A two-day February riot resulted in the deaths of 33 prisoners and severe damage to much of the prison. There have been numerous reports in the last two weeks that tensions are on the rise and the prison may be on the verge of another riot.

Acting state Corrections Secretary Bill Giron asked two Santa Fe reporters to tour the prison Friday and try to assess the prevailing mood there. The journalists talked with inmates throughout the penitentiary, except for those in Cellblock 3, the maximum-security unit.

"Right now the inmates are hoping and waiting," said a convict housed on Cellblock 6, who, like most others interviewed, didn't want his name used. "If something doesn't happen to improve things, it's going to get real bad."

Olympic Village Becomes Federal Prison

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — The pinball room is now a chapel. The discotheque will feature card tables and lounge chairs, and the new occupants of the Olympic Village of the 1980 Winter Games will be drug offenders and young convicts.

Turning the village into a federal prison "is just about as good an after-use (as) you can find," says Harry Fregoe, a local insurance man who was the unofficial mayor at the Village during the Games.

The Village officially became Ray Brook Federal Correctional Institution on Friday in a ribbon-cutting ceremony attended by federal corrections officials and local dignitaries. The first inmates are expected to arrive next month at the 500-bed prison, which is to house men mostly between the ages 18 and 26.

The $27 million prison, located in Ray Brook, about six miles from Lake Placid, had been part of the Olympic planning all along. It will bring this economically depressed area some 100 to 130 new jobs and a $5 million annual payroll.

Ordered To Stop "Saving" By Abduction

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Deprogrammer Ted Patrick has been sentenced to a year in jail and ordered to stop abducting people in his efforts to "save" them from religious cults.

Patrick, 50, was sentenced Friday by Superior Court Judge Norbert Ehrenfreund for his conviction on kidnapping and conspiracy charges in the March abduction of Roberta McElfish, 25, of Tucson, Ariz.

The judge told Patrick he could serve the time in a San Diego County jail rather than a state prison and also put him on five years probation and fined him $5,000. Patrick was freed on $20,000 bail pending an appeal.

A condition of the probation was that Patrick refrain from deprogramming "as we know it," a reference to Patrick's practice of abducting people in religious cults as a prelude to his $7,500 deprogramming sessions.

The judge said Patrick might be able to hold deprogramming sessions in the future if they are properly supervised, but there must be no more abductions.

Says Exams Could Lead To Suicide Risk

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Defense attorneys have told a military judge that Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood could become a suicide risk if subjected to any more psychiatric examinations.

Garwood's lawyers were responding to a request by Marine Corps prosecutors that their client be examined by a panel of psychiatrists chosen by the government.

The prosecution request raises the possibility that the conclusions of a panel of military psychiatrists, ordered by military judge Col. R.E. Switzer to evaluate Garwood months ago, may be favorable to an insanity defense against charges that Garwood deserted and collaborated with the enemy in Vietnam.

The results of that Article 121 Board examination of Garwood, conducted by Navy physicians at the Naval hospital in Portsmouth, Va., several months ago were not revealed during a pre-trial hearing Thursday.

But prosecution requests for an independent examination by its own panel of psychiatrists suggests that the prosecution may fear the results will be unfavorable to their case against Garwood.

Sentenced For Forcible Sex Offense

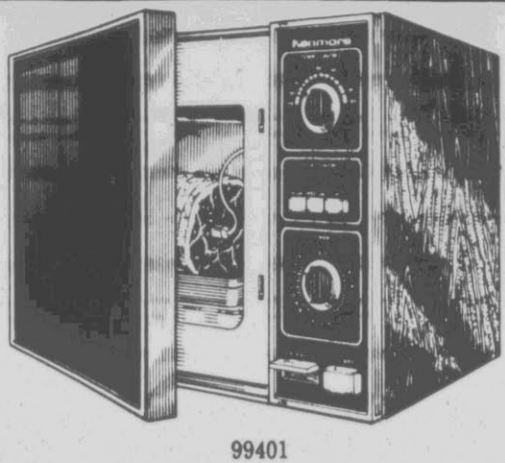

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 29-year-old Marine corporal was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for committing first-degree forcible sexual offense against a fellow Marine.

A jury on Wednesday found Cpl. Jerry Francisco Boohar guilty of facing Sgt. Timothy Moore to submit to oral sex. The crime carries a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment.

During the trial, Moore testified that the incident took place on the night of July 16. He told the court that Boohar picked up a knife from a coffee table and forced Boohar to participate in oral sex. Moore said he called the police afterward. Boohar was arrested at Moore's home.

Assistant District Attorney Walter Batchelor said Boohar is eligible for immediate parole. However, a spokesman for the parole commission said Friday the agency usually waits 10 years before considering parole on a life sentence. Court officials believe the conviction may be the first under the state's forcible sex-offense act.

Ayden Church To Be Moved

ST. JAMES CHURCH, AYDEN. Built just before the turn of the century, in 1898, the church building will soon be moved to a new location in Cherry Oaks Subdivision, Greenville. Once moved and restored, the sanctuary will be home to the

A lovely wood church, built two years before the turn of the century, is to be moved from its 82-year location in Ayden to a new site in Greenville in the near future.

The church, St. James Episcopal Church on West First Street in Ayden, will, after being moved and restored, begin a new role as St. Timothy's Church in the Cherry Oaks Subdivision.

For the past 15 years, St. James has been used only intermittently. The move, according to Mrs. Helen Rountree, publicity coordinator for the project, "has the enthusiastic support of former parishioners of St. James, who have grieved to see their beloved church abandoned and falling into disrepair."

Mrs. Rountree added that there is an "interesting long-range plan incorporating the St. James sanctuary which has been designed for St. Timothy's by a Raleigh architectural firm, MTMA Design Group."

Present plans call for actual moving and rebuilding of St. James sometime around the first of 1981.

St. Timothy's Church was organized in January 1978 as a mission of St. Paul's in Greenville, when, according to Mrs. Rountree, "it became apparent that the rapidly growing city of Greenville could support a second Episcopal church." The congregation now meets at the Seventh Day Adventist Church building on East Tenth Street for Sunday services. Rev. John R. Price is minister for St. Timothy.

In conjunction with fund-raising activities to finance the building program for St. Timothy, the congregation is again planning to conduct an annual Lobster Fair.

This Third Annual Lobster Fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, October 4, on the grounds of St. Paul's Episcopal Church on East Fourth Street. All tickets for the lobster dinner are sold, however, the fair will feature a bazaar of crafts and home baked items that will be sold to raise funds for the church project. In addition, there will be live entertainment, performances by local clowns, and games for children. The public is invited to attend the fair.

— Two kittens 10 weeks old. One yellow and one gray and white. 758-7038.

— An adult female medium-sized brindle short-haired dog. Probably part bull. Good-natured but timid. Needs love and patience. Found as stray attempting to nurse 10 puppies. Homes desperately needed for her and each of her four-week-old just weaned puppies. 756-4867.

County Misses Payroll Again

DETROIT (AP) — For the third time in September, financially strapped Wayne County has not been able to distribute paychecks on time.

About 2,400 workers failed to get their checks Friday when the nation's third most-populous county could not meet its payroll, county officials said.

The county had to delay paychecks on two other occasions in September. It also missed two payrolls in August 1979. Officials said they expect to pay the 2,400 workers sometime next week when cash becomes available.

Wayne County officials have said the county faces an anticipated $17.4 million deficit for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30.

Registration Deadline Near

Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt Board of Elections, reminded county residents that the deadline for registration or address changes in order to vote in the Nov. 4 general election is Monday, Oct. 6 at 5 p.m.

Miss Register said that extended registration hours will be observed at the elections office here on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2 and 3, from 8:30 a.m. until 7 p.m., and on Saturday, Oct. 4 from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

She urged area citizens who have not registered to get their names on the books prior to the deadline.

ECU Publications Workshop Held

About 250 staff members and advisers of publications in eastern North Carolina attended the Sixth Annual ECU Publications Workshop held on the East Carolina University campus on Saturday. This was a record attendance figure for the workshop, designed to give assistance to all phases of the preparation of high school and collegiate publications.

The workshop was sponsored jointly by the ECU Division of Continuing Education, the Society for Collegiate Journalists (SCJ), and the Journalism Program. ECU Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer welcomed those attending, and in his remarks indicated that a degree in mass communications is being planned for ECU.

Keynote speaker at the workshop was Don L. Lemish, vice-chancellor for Institutional Advancement and Planning at ECU.

Ira L. Baker, who retired as a journalism professor from ECU in July after long years of service, was honored with a plaque "for his years of service and dedication to journalism." The presentation was made by Terry Gray, local SJS president and managing editor of the "East Carolinian." Phil Martin of the ECU Continuing Education Division presided over the workshop.

Newspaper, television, radio and publications journalists who led various sessions were: Roy Hardee, news director, WITN-TV; Joyce Evans, reporter, "Fayetteville Observer;" Angela Herring and Bill Woolard, both of "The News and Observer," Raleigh; Ann Bartholomew, advisor, Vance Sr. High School, Henderson; Mike Kohler, editor, "The Kinston Daily Free Press;" Monika Southerland, Enfield Academy; and Ken Tyndall, news director, WKIX Radio, Raleigh.

ECU personnel of "The East Carolinian" taking part were: Susan Donaldson, advisor, Richard Green, general manager, Terry Herndon, advertising director, and Anita Lancaster, production manager. "The Buccaneer" of ECU was represented by editor Barrie Byland.

Other participants were John Warren, professor of journalism, English Department, ECU, and Dr. Ralph C. Worthington, director, Non-Credit Programs, ECU.

13 Weeks Woodwright Special Begins Airing October 2

HOW IT'S DONE... Using simple hand tools, master craftsman Roy Underhill shows viewers how to make chairs, pitchforks and dough bowls, dovetail joints and even how to build entire buildings on "The Woodwright's Shop," the UNC Center's new series about 19th century woodworking. The 13 series program begins airing at 9:30 p.m. Thursday, October 2 and continues through December 25.

CHAPEL HILL — Thursday, October 2 at 9:30 p.m. marks the inaugural showing of a 13-part series on "The Woodwright's Shop," an UNC Center for Public Television special with woodwright Roy Underhill hosting the show. (Note: Effective today the UNC-Television designation has been changed to the UNC Center for Public Television.)

Underhill, a Washington, D. C. native, has had a life-long interest in science, outdoor life and woodcrafting. A rocket-powered skateboard he constructed at the age of 14 blew up, but Underhill survived. At UNC-Chapel Hill, he majored in drama, spending much of his time creating props and special lighting effects. He never lost interest in the "back to the land" movement, however, and for a couple of years lived in a rural house with wood heat.

After graduating from UNC-CH, Underhill went to Colorado where he joined a theater company. When the company folded, he moved to a mountain commune near El Rito, New Mexico and built a house on a mountain top using an axe and a case of dynamite. He also re-stored windmills and built a solar hot water system.

Later, he headed back to North Carolina and began studying early American technology at Duke University's Forestry Program. After getting his graduate degree, he raised his woodwright's shop in a secluded location along the Eno River. From his shop, he has lectured and held formal workshops on early American technology and restoration, using the tools of the period for museums, professionals and interested hobbyists around North Carolina.

Some of his presentations have included: "Gleanings in the Art and Mystery of Early American Woodcraft" at Clayville Rural Life Center and other N. C. historical sites; "How Furniture was Made" at the N. C. Museum of History; and "Log Restoration" at the Horace Williams House in Chapel Hill.

When not working in his Eno River woodwright's shop, Underhill lives in Williamsburg, Virginia with his wife and daughter. Currently, he is the Master Housewright at Colonial Williamsburg.

Great Book Subject Of Broadcast

CHAPEL HILL — Masterpiece Theater opens its 10th anniversary today with the first of a four-part presentation of Dostoevsky's masterpiece, "Crime and Punishment." Showtime is at 9 p.m. over Channel 25, Greenville.

One of the great all time psychological thrillers, "Crime and Punishment" is a masterful confrontation between an astute detective and a criminal's mind.

John Hurt, who played Caligula in "I, Claudius" and also performed in the film "Midnight Express," has the role of Raskolnikov, the tormented young student who commits murder in the belief that the act will end his frustration. He believes that his "superman" status will exempt him from punishment for his crime, but eventually he is defeated by the guilt he thought he was immune to, and confesses.

Others in the cast are Timothy West as Porfiry, the patient detective who plays the waiting game until the murderer's own failed rationalization finally betrays him. Sian Phillips plays Katrina Ivanova and Jack Pulman has created the adaptation.

THURSDAY OPENING — James Goldman's historical play, "The Lion In Winter," about the tug-of-war between King Henry II and his wife Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine, over which son will succeed their father to the throne, is the play opening the 1980-81 season of the Ayden Theater Workshop. The play opens Thursday night, with a performance also on Saturday night (8 p.m. both nights), and a Sunday matinee at 3 p.m. Shown here as Joey Pollock as Henry II, and Elizabeth Phillips as Eleanor. All performances will be in the Ayden-Grifton School Auditorium. Single tickets are $2, and a season ticket for all eight plays to be given this season are priced at $10. (Photo by Scott Daugherty).

Moratoc Show Opens Oct. 5

WILLIAMSTON — Drawings by Michael T. Tyler and the doll collection of Mrs. Elizabeth Weston Brantley, both of Williamston, will be featured in an exhibit to go on view Sunday, October 5 at the Moratoc Arts and Craft Shop, Moratoc Park on the Roanoke.

from 2 to 5 p.m. with the public invited to attend and to meet the two exhibitors. There is no admission charged.

A reception will be held

First Octubafest Event Set For Friday

The East Carolina Octubafest, presented annually by the School of Music, will be highlighted on two separate dates this year — on Friday, October 3 and again on Wednesday, October 22. Both events will be presented in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. Admission is free, and the public is invited to attend on a first-come, first-seated basis.

The Octubafest has its origin in the well known German celebration of the United States since their introduction ten years ago by Harvey Phillips, Professor of tuba at Indiana University. The Octubafests, as the name implies, are October festive events spotlighting the tuba as a solo instrument — one capable of artistic expression as well as an ensemble voice for deep beauty and projection.

Octoberfest, with its traditional autumn entertainment of beer drinking and music-making. The ECU Octubafest is being coordinated by Bruce Mosier, graduate teaching assistant. Faculty advisor for the event is George Broussard.

Suite") by Alec Wilder — Joe Alexander, tuba and Val Parks, piano.
 — "Introduction and Dance," J. Ed. Berat — Tim Burgess, euphonium.
 — Three Renaissance duets arranged by Kenneth Singleton — William White's "Fantasia;" Jacob Obrecht's "Canon;" and "Duo," a 16th century anonymous piece — Norman Simmons and Tim Burgess, both euphonium.
 — "Air and Bourée" by Bach, arranged by Bell — Steve Wilson, tuba.
 — Mozart's "O Isis and Osiris" from "The Magic Flute" — Sherwood Kressley, tuba.

— "None But the Lonely Heart," Tchaikowsky — Greg Woods, tuba.
 — Reicha's "Six Trios, Opus 82" for three horns — Bruce Mosier, John Jones and Bill Chamberlain, all tuba; and — Robert Muczynski's "Impromptus, Opus 32" for solo tuba (performers not listed.)

Six Grants Made To Local Area Counties

RALEIGH — Sara W. Hodgkins, secretary of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources, has announced the award of six grants to aid planning and interpretive development of the state's northeastern historic attractions.

The grants, to be administered through the Northeastern Historic Places Office (NEHPO), established early last year in Edenton, were made possible through legislation sponsored by Rep. Vernon James and Sen. Melvin Daniels, and passed by the 1977 General Assembly.

The six grants are:
 — The Historic Albemarle Tour, Inc. — $1,400 — to enhance promotional programs for bringing visitors to 11 historic attractions in the northeastern counties.
 — The Edenton Historical Commission — $1,500 — to reprint promotional literature (the grant to be matched by local funds).
 — The City of Washington — $1,000 — for developing an interpretive guide to the city's Historic District (also to be matched by local funds).
 — Murfreesboro Historical Association — $1,000 — to continue design and installation of exhibits for the Rea Store Museum.
 — Halifax State Historic Site — $125 — a small matching grant to print color posters to advertise the attractions of the 18th century town, and — Pasquotank Preservation Association — $1,475 — for considering the Grice-Fearing House as a potential point for introducing tourists to the Albemarle.

Student Recitals

Three student recitals will be given in the coming week at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. There is no admission charge and the public is invited.

— Monday, September 29, 7:30 p.m. — Joint recital, seniors Kathy Memory, clarinet, and Bill Keith, trumpet.

— Tuesday, September 30, 7:30 p.m. Rhem Bell, senior piano recital. New Bern native Bell will perform "Prelude" Opus 23, No. 4 by Rachmaninoff; Beethoven's "Sonata in D Major;" Poulenc's "Mouvements Perpetuels;" and "Sonata in F Minor" by Prokofieff.

of "The Lost Colony," and Griffith is a stage and television star long associated in various capacities with the outdoor drama. Price has been with "The Lost Colony" for 14 years. Plans for "The New Carolinians" already include an engagement at the N. C. State Fair and accepting invitations to sing in Europe. (Photo by Vera Evans)

'Joni' Film To Be Shown

Joni Eareckson stars as herself in the movie "Joni," which will open October 3 at Plaza Cinema, to be shown through October 8, with screenings daily at 3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.

This true-life film tells the story of Joni Eareckson, voted the "most athletic" girl in her graduating class at Woodlawn Senior High School, Maryland. One month after graduating, Joni was a quadriplegic as the result of a tragic diving accident in the waters of Chesapeake Bay.

The accident transformed her life from that of an active young woman who loved to take part in sports to a person whose life seemingly was at an end.

"Joni," distributed by World Wide Pictures, is the story of her struggle to build a useful life after her dreams had all been shattered.

Tickets for "Joni" will be priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children, age 11 and younger. Since the Plaza Cinema is being leased for the showing of the film, there will be no discount for matinee screenings. Advance discount ticket books are available, and these may be purchased by phoning 752-2768 or by visiting the committee ticket office, Suite 200, Minges Building Monday-Friday between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m.

A total of 21 Protestant churches in Greenville, Farmville, Williamston, Simpson and in the Pitt County countryside are sponsoring the screening of this film in Greenville.

JONI EARECKSON PORTRAYS HERSELF . . . in "Joni," an inspirational true-life movie about a young woman struck by tragedy and of her struggle to rebuild her life. The movie will be shown at Pitt Plaza Cinema beginning October 3 and continuing through October 8.

SEEING TRIPLE — Triplets who were adopted at birth 19 years ago by three separate families in the New York metropolitan area are seen together for the first time on NBC-TV's "Today Show" Friday in New York. Earlier this week, David Kellman (center) recognized his own face in a news picture of reunited 19-year twins and said, "They've got to be my brothers." A call to Eddy Gelland, right, and Robert Shafran, left, led to the trio's reunion. (AP Laserphoto)

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MARGARET CLARK

These biographies about people who had led interesting lives are guaranteed to satisfy all comers.

INGRID BERGMAN, MY STORY is the autobiography of one of the world's finest stage and screen actresses. Much of the book is Ingrid herself remembering — in a nicely no-nonsense, often witty voice. Allen Burgess, her co-author, supplies some filler, especially about her anguished relationship with Roberto Rossellini. Her story begins in 1948 but flashes back to her Swedish girlhood, drama school, early films, marriage at 21 to dentist Peter Lindstrom, and her successful Hollywood career. But the affair with Italian director Rossellini, which led to love/misery and a global scandal, dominates the book. She became box office poison and was even condemned by the Senate. It was 16 years before Ingrid saw Hollywood again. In between there were legal wrangles, bad films, comebacks on stage and screen, another marriage, and untearful battles with breast cancer. It's quite a story, one that's sure to be the celebrity memoir of the year.

Combining biography and autobiography, Ann Buchwald interweaves in SEEMS LIKE YESTERDAY the story of her personal and professional life with that of her humorist husband, Art Buchwald. Her tale is of an American girl who went to Paris to seek fame, fortune and happiness. Instead she fell in love with an itinerant columnist and gave up a promising career to save him from a life of sin, pleasure and lonely bachelorhood. (Her version: I know in his heart he wanted to get married.) (His version: All I wanted to do was live with Ann until I could start the Great American Novel.) The result was three children and a crazy madcap life that could only have happened in Paris in the forties and fifties.

In BESS & HARRY, Jhan Robbins tells the uniquely American story of Harry and Bess Truman. The gruff president was paired well with the tactful First Lady. Bess was the woman behind Harry's success, quietly steering him in the right direction, quietly softening his famous irascibility. She was always at his side, offering him unflinching good advice. "Meet the boss," was Harry Truman's way of introducing his beloved wife. Their story is surely one of love and devotion. It is also a portrait of one of the most influential first ladies in history.

In MERV, Merv Griffin, the affable host of his nationally syndicated "Merv Griffin Show," takes us behind the scenes of a remarkable career. From an overweight San Mateo teenager, he became a local celebrity as a choirleader, party pianist, songwriter, and radio entertainer. As a vocalist, Griffin hit the big time with Freddy Martin, branching out as a recording artist and stage screen actor. Griffin, the talk show host, recalls his on and off stage meetings with stars, and provides a backstage tour of how a talk show is produced.

A Review

Another Fine Film About American Youth

Not a great deal has been said about what seems to be the emergence of a new trend in American film making—the realistic depiction of the lives of American youth of high school age as a major cinematic theme.

"My Bodyguard," now in its second week of screening at The Buccaneer follows on the heels of "Breaking Through" and "Fame." It is closely akin to "Breaking Through" in many respects—actors who are indeed believable as people of the teen age years they portray, and youth capable of an intelligent range of emotions and reactions to their cultural environment. The script (by Bill and Alan Ormsby) is refreshing and convincing as a vehicle of the ways in which youth today express themselves.

Fortunately, unlike the running stream of profanity that marred "Fame," there is little of that in "My Bodyguard." The violence in the film is a valid element used with intelligent perspective.

The basic story line of "My Bodyguard" is deceptively simple. Clifford, a boy new to a sophomore class in a Chicago city school, (Chris Makepeace) who previously went to school at a private academy, is subjected from the first day of school in a public school to extortion threats by the bullies of the class headed by gang leader Moody (Matt Dillon). Unexpectedly, the slightly built lad does not altogether buckle under to demands for protection pay-off—much to the despair of his even smaller friend, Carson, delightfully played by the freckled, red-haired young Paul Quandt.

Determined not to burden his family with the harassment he encounters at the new school, Clifford hits on the idea of hiring a strange, silent, strong youth, Linderman (Adam Baldwin) as his bodyguard, to pay him rather than give money to the bullies.

Actor Baldwin is superlative as a troubled youth who manages to register volumes with his eyes, the telling use of his hands, and few words. He fights accepting or giving friendship, yet the tenacity of the smaller classmate eventually wins out. The give and take of the two as they grope their way to friendship is a memorable cinematic achievement.

What could be an overdose of schoolground drama is offset by the secondary theme of Clifford's family life. While this segment deals with family problems, it mercifully avoids degenerating into a soap opera situation.

Veteran actress Ruth Gordon is predictably outstanding as Clifford's wispy grandmother who cannot resist strong spirits and is prone to making attempts to seduce older men. Martin Mull is fine as Clifford's father, harassed by all the things that can go wrong in managing a large city hotel, and John Houseman adds a nice brief touch as the elderly hotel executive charmed by the tipsy grandmother. The manner in which the classroom teacher, Ms. Jump (Kathryn Grody) prefaces the introduction of "Romeo and Juliet" alone is worth the effort to see the movie.

"My Bodyguard" is an unpretentious film with many rich rewards. It has substance, charm, and a cast, young and old, that shows what the art of acting can do to transform good material into an outstanding experience in film.

One Million Paid For Painting

NEW YORK (AP) — The Whitney Museum of American Art has purchased Jasper Johns' "Three Flags" for $1 million, thought to be a record price for the work of a living artist.

The 1958 painting, depicting a superimposed, triple image of the American flag, was sold Friday by Pace Gallery of New York for Mr. and Mrs. Burton Tremaine of Meriden, Conn. The couple purchased the painting in 1959 for $900 from the Leo Castelli Gallery here.

Tom Armstrong, director of the Whitney, called the painting "without doubt a monument of 20th-century art, a unique statement emerging from the dominance of Abstract Expressionism."

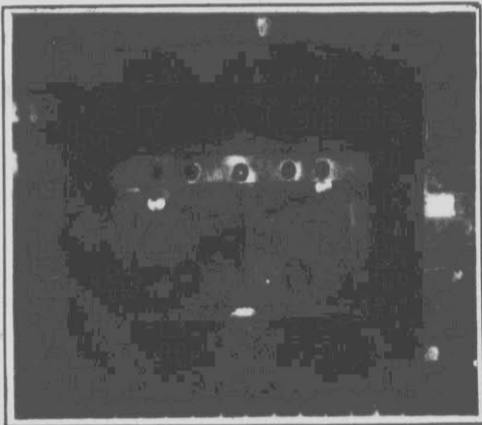

An important precursor of the Pop Art movement and one of a series of flag images painted by Johns, the painting "has had an influence on the course of art history," he said.

The museum had been trying for five years to buy the painting, exhibited in a Jasper Johns retrospective there in 1977-78.

Opportunity Day Held At Rose High Friday

The Post-Secondary Opportunities Day for Rose High students, held Friday, had about 800 students contacting the approximately 85 representatives on hand providing opportunities for students to think about after graduation.

Of the 85 participants with representatives on hand to talk to students, about 60 were from colleges or universities, four were military, and some 20 were from business, trade, industry and government agencies.

Brian Sweeney, Vocational Placement staff member at Rose High, said the purpose of the Post-Secondary Opportunities Day is to "offer all our our juniors and seniors a chance to talk with representatives of institutions with which the student might have an interest."

"This day," Sweeney added, "replaces what used to be a college day and a career day, which previously had been offered independently.

"Many of the business and college representatives liked the combined effect, suggesting, and I agree, that it lends credibility to each, as each supports the other in a true career orientation."

Representatives of the military included ROTC counselors and recruiting personnel for the Air Force, Army, Marines and Navy. The large number of educational institutions with representative on hand covered all areas of the state for universities, junior and senior colleges, technical institutes and community colleges. In the local area, representation included businesses, real-estate agencies, and administrative agencies.

Two out of state representatives attended — one from the Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina, and one from Newport News Shipbuilding, Newport News, Virginia.

Eagles Bomb ECU

Winder Runs For 136 Yards, 3 TDs

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Southern Mississippi, called by East Carolina coach Ed Emory the best to play in Ficklen Stadium, rode the hard running of tailback Sammy Winder to a 35-7 victory over the Pirates last night.

For East Carolina, it was the third straight loss after its opening win over Duke University. Southern Mississippi was recording its third straight win of the year against no losses.

Winder ripped off 136 yards on 25 carries, and scored three of the Eagle touchdowns. His scores came on runs of 19, 3 and 24 yards. Quarterback Reggie Collier passed two yards to Marvin Harvey for another score, while Robert Phillips picked up a blocked punt and returned it 33 yards for the other. Placekicker Winston Walker had a perfect five for five night in PAT's.

East Carolina's lone score came on a freak play, when Anthony Collins fumbled and Mike Hawkins picked it up ahead of the secondary and raced 43 yards with it. Bill Lamm added the PAT.

Southern Miss's much quicker and more experienced line easily handed the Pirate's young offensive line, limiting the Pirates to less than 200 yards overall. The Bucs rushed for 167 and passed for 30. In contrast, the Eagles got 255 on the ground and 79 through the air.

Hawkins ended up as the leading rusher with 84 yards. Next best was Collins with 34.

For Emory, the loss was a disappointing one. "I think our defense showed a lot of character in coming back from last week," he said. "Our offense just put the defense in the hole. But we had the same situation here last year and came back." Emory referred to three straight losses early in the season.

Emory noted that two more players were lost for long periods of time in the game. Adam Madtlocks (corner back) went out for the season and George Crump (defensive tackle) will be lost for at least five weeks with a knee injury.

"We are young and need our injured players back. We are not discouraged, but disappointed. I felt our kids were ready mentally, and I would be talking to you as a winner, but it didn't happen."

Southern Miss jumped ahead in the early going, scoring on its first possession. Taking over on their own 34, the Eagles drove in on just five plays. After an incomplete pass and a no-gain rush, Collins hit Don Horn on a 41-yard gainer. Ricky Floyd picked up six to the 19, and Winder took a quick pitch around the right side from there for the score. That made it 7-0 with 11:35 left in the first period.

East Carolina came back to drive downfield from its own 21 to the SM 18 before a fumble cost the ball.

Southern came back to drive down to the ECU five, where they picked up a first-and-goal, only to see the Pirate defense rise up and stop them on the two, as Hal Stevens made the final fourth and goal stop there.

But the Eagles held the Pirates in the hole and got the ball back early in the second quarter on the ECU 33 after a short punt. It took only seven plays before they put it into the end zone again. Collins picked up 12 on a keeper, and Winder got 11 on a shot up the middle before Collier hit Harvey with the two-yard scoring toss. With 11:10 left, it was 14-0.

Southern had another shot later in the period, moving from its 30 to the ECU 20 before a 37-yard Walker field goal fell short.

The Pirates defense came out fired up in the second half and stopped the Eagles without a first down until late in the period. They forced a punt that the Pirates returned to their own 43.

On the first play, Collins darted up the middle, lost the ball, and saw it bounce downfield. Hawkins, who had gotten into the secondary to block, picked up the loose ball and raced in from the 43, giving the Pirates their only score of the evening.

It marked the 102nd game in a row the Pirates have scored in.

But that was to be it for the Bucs. Trailing 14-7, they were never able to mount another drive.

Late in the period, Collins fumbled and Rhett Whitley recovered on the Pirate 14, setting up the third Eagle touchdown.

"I thought we were playing pretty good until then," Emory said. "Seventy-five per cent of the teams you play will score from there. We lost some of our enthusiasm or toughness then."

It took only three plays for the Eagles to go those 14 yards.

Deacon Defense Leads Wake Past Wolfpack

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. — Wake Forest football coach John Mackovic cited pressure from his defense as the key factor in the Demon Deacons' 27-7 victory over a potent North Carolina State team.

"Our defensive game plan and our defensive play was the best I've seen at Wake Forest," Mackovic said.

The Deacons applied pressure on sophomore quarterback Tol Avery all afternoon, limiting him to 33 yards rushing and 140 yards passing.

Mackovic said that keeping N.C. State's receivers in check was another important contribution to the Deacons' win.

"We felt we had to stop Mike Quick from catching passes and secondly, we had to pressure Avery as much as possible," he said.

Quick, who had caught nine passes before Saturday's game, hauled in four catches for 81 yards, but the Demon Deacons' secondary did not allow him to score.

Meanwhile, Wake Forest's offense compiled nearly 400 yards with quarterback Jay Venuto firing three touchdown passes and completing 19 of 36 throws for 255 yards.

quarterback was apparent in Saturday's game.

"I take the responsibility for the loss," Kiffin said. "We didn't move the ball today. Tol is a sophomore. It showed today. But I believe in him. He'll come back."

Venuto completed touchdown passes of 16 and 21 yards to Wayne Baumgardner and lofted a 7-yard scoring pass to Kenny Duckett.

North Carolina State, which had entered the contest as one of the conference's top ground gainers, was virtually shut down by the Demon Deacon defense. The team's only score came on a 1-yard plunge in the third quarter by sophomore quarterback Tol Avery.

Baumgardner's second touchdown catch came after a Wolfpack turnover, one of five during the game. Cornerback Derek Crocker returned the stolen pass 21 yards.

Avery's touchdown followed a bizarre series of events. After he completed a pass to Chris Brown, the Deacons were assessed 5 yards for delay of game. When the Wake Forest bench argued the call, referees tacked on 15 more yards for unsportsmanlike conduct.

With the ball at the 14, Avery called his own number three successive times, scoring with three seconds left before the end of the third quarter and closing the halftime gap to 13-7.

Cards Stun Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback John Elway fired three touchdown passes and burned fourth-ranked Oklahoma with some timely running as he led Stanford to a 31-14 upset Saturday.

Elway hit on 14 of 25 passes for 187 yards as the Cardinals jumped to a 17-0 halftime advantage on the rain-slicked artificial turf of Owen Field.

Stanford stretched the lead to 31-0 before Oklahoma finally scored.

Elway, a 6-foot-4, 202-pounder, threw two of his scoring passes to split end Andre Tyler, and scored once as the Cardinals rebounded from an upset loss last week to Boston College and pushed their record to 3-1.

The defeat snapped a 20-game home winning streak for the Sooners, 1-1, after a 29-7 victory over Kentucky two weeks ago. Oklahoma had not lost since it played Texas at Dallas last year.

Stanford's feat was accomplished without the services of its star running back Darrin Nelson, who sat out the game with a bruised hip.

The first quarter was scoreless, but Stanford controlled the football with Elway's passing magic out of the shotgun formation, keeping it for more than 11 minutes. Only penalties kept the Cardinals out of the end zone.

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Backs Edgar Pickett and Brendon Crite ran for 34 and 38 yards respectively on a game-winning touchdown drive that boosted Clemson to a 17-10 football defeat of Western Carolina Saturday.

The 99-yard touchdown series came early in the fourth quarter and preserved the Tigers' victory over stubborn Western Carolina in a non-conference clash.

Clemson, now 2-1, scored the decisive touchdown on a 1-yard plunge by Chuck McSwain, that gave the Tigers a 17-7 lead with 11:03 to go in the game.

Western Carolina, which had failed to penetrate Clemson territory in the first half, put pressure on Clemson with a 14-yard touchdown pass from David Mashburn to Gerald Harp in the third quarter, cutting the Tigers' 10-0 half time lead to 10-7.

Tar Heels Stall Maryland, 17-3

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina tailback Amos Lawrence ran for 103 yards, but it was the Tar Heel defense that did the job as 14th-ranked UNC stopped Maryland 17-3 Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference opener for both teams.

Lawrence grabbed a touchdown pass from quarterback Rod Elkins in the second quarter to give UNC a 10-0 halftime lead. But it was the Tar Heel defense that forced five Maryland fumbles and held the Terps' offense to 211 total yards, which came mostly in the air and mostly in the fourth quarter.

Three of the fumbles came from Charlie Wysocki, the Terp tailback who had gained more than 100 yards in each of his last five games. His 17-yard rushing total was the lowest of his career. And two of his fumbles led to Tar Heel scores in the first half.

It was the 15th straight game in which the North Carolina defense has not allowed an opposing runner to gain 100 yards rushing.

"This was a good, tough, physical football game," UNC coach Dick Crum said. "The important thing to me was we didn't turn the ball over. We wanted to keep the ball away from them and simply hang on to it."

Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne was not quite as happy. "You can't lay the ball down five times against a team as quick as they are and expect to win," he said. "We have no excuses. But our defense played real good. They (UNC) only had 10 points in the first half, and they had every opportunity in the world."

North Carolina put the final touches on their victory in the fourth quarter, following Tice's fumble. It was recovered by Lawrence Taylor on the Maryland 30.

North Carolina tailback Kelvin Bryant took it in from 6 yards out five plays later with 13:09 remaining. Maryland, 3-1, could do nothing on offense as the Tar Heels stymied the Terps before 51,400 fans, the largest crowd in North Carolina history.

Maryland was held to 32 yards rushing, while North Carolina piled up 241 yards rushing. It was the first time more than one touchdown has been scored on Maryland this year, and the first time in six games. The last team to score more than one touchdown on the Terps

Trappers End Convention With Displays

The North Carolina Trappers Association winds up its annual convention in Greenville on Sunday at the National Guard Armory, displaying a number of old-time trapping and hunting gear.

Saturday's business session saw the election of new officers and a minor change in the bylaws. That change reflects the incorporation of the organization, and changes the constitution to provide for a president and vice-president instead of a president and three regional vice-presidents, according to Ronnie Davis of Climax, the current president.

"This is our annual gettogether," Davis said. "It's largely a social affair, along with talks and displays about things our group is interested in. We talk about rules and regulation for trapping and animal population and problems that we run into."

A number of speakers appeared before the group on Saturday, including Ray Johnson of the Division of Enforcement of the North Carolina Wildlife Commission; Randy Wilson and Dennis Bumgardner of the commission's Game Division, and Chuck Grube of the Woodstream Corporation, a manufacturer of traps and other outdoor equipment.

Scheduled to appear today are Vernon Bevell, executive director of the North Carolina Wildlife Commission, and Doy Hoyt, president of the National Trappers Association.

Other activities include hunting, trapping and conservation displays, trap setting demonstrations, movies, fur fashions, a fast draw display, a bobcat contest, archery competition, trap setting contests, along with displays of old time equipment.

"This is really a reminder of the old-time mountain rendezvous that the trappers and hunters held long ago," Davis said.

"We have a number of people in gear like those men wore, and a display of the traps they used then."

Davis emphasized that traps used today are not like those of yesteryear which large toothed jaws. "Our traps today have no teeth whatsoever, but a smooth surface. I'm not afraid to put my fingers into them," Davis said.

Gamecocks Stun Wolves

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — George Rogers is the biggest noise to come out of South Carolina since the South fired on Fort Sumter in 1861. In fact, if the Confederacy had possessed a battering ram like Rogers, it might not have needed cannon to open the

Charleston Harbor. Rogers, the 6-foot-2, 220-pound South Carolina tailback who is a leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy, rushed for 142 yards on 36 carries against a defense that was stacked to stop him as the Gamecocks came from behind for a 17-14 nonconference football victory over Michigan Saturday.

"He's the best player in college football today," South Carolina Coach Jim Carlen said in the jubilant Gamecocks' dressing room. "He's the best I ever saw."

Quarterback Art Schlichter set a school record with three touchdown passes Saturday, propelling second-ranked Ohio State to a 38-21 romp over Arizona State in a matchup of college football unbeatens.

"I thought George Rogers was better than Billy Sims was for Oklahoma last year and he's an important player for our team."

South Carolina fullback Johnnie Wright, who scored the game's go-ahead touchdown on a 1-yard plunge, was the Gamecocks' second-leading rusher with only 33 yards on 12 carries.

"I'm proud of the way our players performed and it was a great victory for us," Carlen said. "Beating Texas when I was a coach at Texas Tech, beating Pitt when I was at West Virginia were big wins in my career, but this one ranks up near the top."

Schlichter, a junior, now has 21 touchdown passes in his career. That breaks the Ohio State record of 19, shared previously by Schlichter, John Borton and Rex Kern.

Schlichter threw six completions to flanker Doug Donley, two of them for touchdowns of 23 and 10 yards. He also found split end Gary Williams for a 13-yard score.

Schlichter accounted for 310 total yards. He completed 14 of 19 passes for 271 yards and ran 15 times for 39 additional yards.

Schlichter's best performance of the season lifted the Buckeyes to their third straight victory before 88,097 fans.

EC Volleyball Team Falls To Clemson

RALEIGH — Clemson rallied from one game down to edge East Carolina, 2-1, in the championship bracket of the N.C. State Invitational Saturday afternoon.

The Pirates won the first game in the championship bracket, 15-10, but then fell to the Tigers, 15-7 and 15-12. It was ECU's fifth loss in seven matches this season.

ECU advanced to the Saturday's match Friday by winning two of four matches. ECU lost to the College of Charleston, S.C., 15-6, 15-6, and then dropped two straight to George Washington, 15-1, 15-6.

But the Pirates then took their next two matches, whipping Virginia Commonwealth, 15-11, 15-9, and Miami (Dade) 15-6, 8-15, 15-11.

Assistant coach Lynn Davidson cited Sharon Perry and Loretta Holden for their net play and freshman Revardada Lavant for her serving game.

The Pirates open their home schedule this Wednesday when they face Duke.

Miami Upsets Seminoles

MIAMI (AP) — Miami's defense ranked first in the nation against the rush heading into Saturday's game against Florida State. But Coach Howard Schnellenberger felt his Hurricanes could upset the ninth-ranked Seminoles if they forced them to throw.

"We felt like if we made them throw we would win," Schnellenberger said after his young, unbeaten team snapped Florida State's 18-game regular-season winning streak with a 10-9 victory.

"But it almost didn't work out that way," Schnellenberger added.

The Miami defense limited the Seminoles to only 25 yards on the ground in 35 carries, but when Florida State quarterback Rick Stockstill went to the air in the final four minutes, the Hurricanes nearly folded.

Stockstill completed a 10-play, 55-yard drive with an 11-yard scoring pass to tight end Sam Childers to carry FSU within a point of a tie.

Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden elected to go for a two-point conversion, which would have won the game, but Stockstill's pass, intended for Phil Williams, was deflected by Miami middle guard Jim Burt.

"The outcome came down to one play," said Bowden. "If it wasn't for that blocked pass, we might have won."

Miami fashioned a 10-3 lead on quarterback Jim Kelly's 1-yard touchdown run and Dan Miller's 22-yard field goal.

Kelly's touchdown and Miller's conversion kick gave Miami a 7-0 lead with 41 seconds left in the first half. The scoring drive covered 76 yards in six plays.

The key play in the march was a 48-yard pass interference penalty which gave the Hurricanes a first-and-goal at the Florida State 1-yard line. Kelly scored on the next play.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Marcus Allen rushed for 216 yards and two fourth-quarter touchdowns and Gordon Adams passed 29 yards to Kevin Williams as No. 5-ranked Southern Cal turned back stubborn Minnesota 24-7 Saturday.

The Trojans, who are unbeaten in 23 straight games dating back to 1978, only led 7-0 at halftime against the aroused Gophers, who were humiliated 48-14 by USC a year ago in the Coliseum.

USC, 3-0, had trouble getting untracked until Allen, a junior tailback, began taking advantage of the gaping holes created by the Trojans' huge offensive line.

Minnesota, 1-2, had cut a 10-0 lead to 10-7 on Marion Barber's 16-yard TD run midway through the fourth quarter. But Allen, the latest in a long line of great USC tailbacks, raced 20 yards for a touchdown with just 3:30 remaining. He also scored on a 37-yard jaunt with 1:02 left to silence the near-capacity crowd of 55,115 at Memorial Stadium.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Buck Belue fired two touchdown passes, kicker Rex Robinson became the school's all-time leading scorer and a swarming defense set up two quick fourth quarter touchdowns as 10th-ranked Georgia buried Texas Christian 34-3 in college football Saturday.

The Bulldogs, struggling offensively early in the game, finally assumed command on their sixth possession when freshman tailback Herschel Walker bolted 41 yards to the 8, setting up Belue's 4-yard rushing pass to Ronnie Stewart.

Walker, suffering a slightly sprained ankle on the play, was used briefly as a decoy in the second quarter, but never carried again the rest of the day and finished with 69 yards on nine carries. Officials said the injury wasn't serious, but that they were not taking no chances.

Belue's other touchdown pass was a 28-yarder to Chuck Jones just before halftime, giving the Bulldogs, 4-0, a 20-3 advantage.

Pittsburgh 36

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino threw three touchdown passes in the first half before leaving the game with a slight knee sprain to lead the sixth-ranked University of Pittsburgh to a 36-2 college football victory over winless Temple Saturday.

Marino, a 6-foot-4, 215-pound sophomore, hit nine of 15 passes for 150 yards before he injured his knee on a scramble early in the second quarter. A team spokesman said the injury was not believed serious and that Marino could have played in the second half.

Temple, which fell to 0-3 as Pitt climbed to 3-0, got a break in the opening moments. Pitt punter Dave Hepler was tackled in the end zone for a safety after a snap from center sailed over his head. However, Pitt marched 73 yards on its Southern came back to score again on its next possession. Takover on the Pirate 43 after a partially blocked kick, the Eagles took over on the ECU 43. It took only four plays this time, with Winder getting the call again, this time from 24 yards out on a quick pitch around the left side.

The final Southern Mississippi touchdown came on a defensive play. With the Pirates kicking from their own 47, Whitley raced in and blocked the kick. Phillips scooped it up on the 33 and returned it to the end zone untouched to put the icing on the cake for the Eagles. That ran it to 35-7.

A series later, Marino led Pitt on another 46-yard touchdown drive, lobbing a 22-yard touchdown pass to freshman running back Joe McCall with 11:58 elapsed in the opening quarter.

The Pirates now find a welcomed week off as they have an open date next Saturday. They return to action on October 11 against surprising Richmond in a game in the Virginia capital city.

Texas Blasts Oregon St.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Donnie Little tossed a 26-yard touchdown pass to Maurice McCloney and dashed 15 yards to score and A.J. "Jam" Jones had his third consecutive 100-yard game as No. 7 Texas bombed Oregon State 35-0 Saturday night. Jones, the nation's fifth-leading rusher, finished with 127 yards on 21 carries and two touchdowns but also lost two fumbles — one at the Oregon State 6-yard line in a rain that lasted the entire second half. Texas, of the Southwest Conference, raised its season record to 3-0 in its first game ever with the Pac-10 Beavers. Oregon State fell to 0-3, with all three losses coming on the road.

Texas grabbed a 21-0 halftime lead that would have been larger except for Kellan Young's end zone interception of a Little pass and 86 yards in penalties against Texas. Young's interception came after an illegal motion penalty had wiped out a 3-yard scoring run by Jones. The 204-pound junior scored Texas' first touchdown on an 8-yard run and tallied on a 3-yard run in second half.

Penalties were much more damaging to the Texas offense than was the Oregon State defense. Another motion penalty wiped out an 18-yard pass that carried to the Oregon State 16 and clipping penalties rubbed out punt returns of 43 yards and 29 yards by Herkie Walls.

On both returns, Walls raced inside the Oregon State 15, only to have the ball brought back to near midfield.

Vanderbilt 0

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — "We came back into the office this week," defensive end E. J. Junior said after leading No. 1 Alabama to its first shutout of the season, a 41-0 Southeastern Conference football victory over Vanderbilt Saturday. "Our defensive team had a good day at the office," said Junior, who led that team with 11 tackles, including five for a total of 19 yards in losses. It was the 50th consecutive victory for the Crimson Tide on its home field and the 299th win for coach Bear Bryant, who needs 16 more to set an all-time record of 315.

Defensive back Jeremiah Castille blocked a Vanderbilt punt, caught it on the bounce without breaking stride and scored as the Tide defense, smarting over giving up five touchdowns in Alabama's 59-35 victory over Mississippi last week, bore down on Vanderbilt when it counted.

"They just left it open and I wasn't blocked at all," Castille said.

Bryant said his team "showed improvement over last week."

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Washington State quarterbacks Samoa Samoa, Clete Casper and Ricky Turner moved the ball with relative ease Saturday and the Cougar defense remained sound long enough to defeat Army 31-18.

Washington State, 1-2, rushed for more than 300 yards, intercepted three passes and recovered one fumble while holding the Cadets, who entered the game 2-0, at bay.

On Washington State's first possession of the game the Cougars drove 78 yards in 13 plays. Sophomore running back Robert Williams took the ball in from the 4 after rushing for gains of 8, 14 and 2 yards during the drive.

Washington State held Army scoreless in the first quarter. Then Samoa heaved a 45-yard pass to flanker Jim Whatley and, on the next play, scrambled 21 yards for the score.

In the second quarter, Casper engineered a 48-yard touchdown drive that included a 48-yard run by senior split end Mike Wilson. Running back Mike Washington carried the ball the final 2 yards.

Junior quarterback Jerry Bennett got Army on the board with an 80-yard drive midway through the second quarter. Senior split end Mike Fahnestock nabbed a 23-yard toss from Bennett early in the drive, then finished it with a 15-yard reception in the end zone.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — John Quinn threw a touchdown pass to Jim Knuth and Alex Giffords kicked a 49-yard field goal for the winning points to lift unbeaten Iowa State to a 10-7 victory over Iowa in a non-conference college football game Saturday.

Iowa State's defense preserved the victory in the final minute. Iowa drove to the Iowa State nine yard line but Cyclone linebacker George Jensen batted down a Pete Gales pass on fourth down with 50 seconds left in the game.

VMI 16

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Stanford Jennings scored on a 34-yard pass play from quarterback Tim Sorrells with 45 seconds remaining to lift Furman to a 21-16 victory over Virginia Military Institute in a Southern Conference football game Saturday.

Furman overcame a 13-0 halftime deficit in improving its overall record to 3-1 and remaining undefeated and untied in two league games. VMI's Kevdets fell to 2-2 overall and 1-2 in the conference.

Neither team scored in the opening period but VMI tallied in the second period on a 46-yard touchdown pass play from quarterback Dan Fritz to Jeff White and two Lee Wimbish field goals, of 33 and 38 yards.

Furman narrowed the gap to 13-7 in the third period on a 12-yard touchdown pass from Sorrells to Billy Risher and the first of three successful extra point kicks by Tim Tanguay.

With 8:11 remaining in the game Jennings ran for a 10-yard touchdown to give Furman its first lead at 14-13. But with 2:41 left Wimbish kicked his third field goal from 35 yards out to put VMI back on top 16-14.

Mississippi 24

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Vince Manalla kicked a 29-yard field goal as time ran out Saturday, lifting the Tulane Green Wave to a 26-24 football victory over the fumble-plagued Mississippi Rebels, who had seemed to have locked up victory only moments earlier.

Quarterback Nickie Hall, who fired three touchdown passes for the day, gave Manalla his chance with a last-gasp drive from the Tulane 29 featuring a 40-yard pass-run play by tight end Rodney Holman.

Mississippi had gone ahead 24-23 with 1:19 left when quarterback John Fourcade fired a 40-yard pass to flanker Breck Tyler to the 5, setting up Fourcade's touchdown run on the next play.

Moments earlier, Tulane had throttled the Rebels on fourth and 1 at the Green Wave 3 following a pass interception by Ole Miss' Bob Thomas.

West Virginia 31

Richmond 28

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Fullback Walter Easley dove into the end zone from 1 yard out on a fourth down play with 19 seconds left Saturday to cap a desperation West Virginia rally that gave the Mountaineers a 31-28 football victory over upset-minded Richmond.

Junior quarterback Oliver Luck directed an 82-yard West Virginia drive that lasted exactly two minutes and boosted the Mountaineers to their third victory in four games.

The game featured seven lead exchanges and two long kickoff returns by the Spiders' Jesse Williams.

Richmond's record fell to 2-2. During the final drive, Luck completed five passes for 45 yards. The big play in the series was a 25-yard pass to wide receiver Darrell Miller.

Rice Upsets LSU, 17-7

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice quarterback Robert Hoffmann hit Frank Wilson with a 15-yard touchdown pass with 3:36 to play Saturday night to break an 11-game losing streak and lead the Owls to a 17-7 upset over Louisiana State.

LSU had taken a 7-3 lead into the closing minutes on a 57-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Alan Risher to split end Tracy Porter in the first quarter.

But the Owls, who had not won a game since they upset Tulane a year ago, fought back in the fourth quarter, driving 67 yards for the winning touchdown aided by a fake punt play at midfield.

quarter on a 12-yard run by Ricky Brummitt. Virginia came back on a 77-yard scoring drive with Vigorito going over from the Duke 1. Shortly before the half, Wayne Morrison kicked a 23-yard field goal and Virginia trailed 17-10.

In the third quarter, Morrison booted another field goal, this one for 29 yards. Then in the fourth period, Chester took the Duke punt and weaved through the team on a brilliant 70-yard run.

Virginia, 2-1 overall for the season, couldn't get its offense going until late in the second period.

The Cavaliers rolled from their 23 to the Duke 1 mainly on the passing of Kirtley. Vigorito banged over for the final yard.

In the third quarter, Duke appeared headed for a touchdown, moving from its 46 to the Virginia 2. But on the next play, Bobby Brower fumbled.

Early in the second quarter, Duke ran its margin to 10-0 on a 12 yard runback by Brummitt.

The Blue Devils had driven from the Virginia 46 to the 12. On fourth down McKinney came in for what appeared would be a field goal attempt.

Brummitt, who holds the ball on the attempts, took the snap and raced around the end to score.

Virginia's Bryan Shumock intercepted two Duke passes in the final period, one on the Virginia 20 and another on the Duke 21.

Vigorito was the workhorse for Virginia, carrying 33 times for 95 yards.

Brower was Duke's leader with 58 yards in 15 carries.

was North Carolina in last year's 17-14 Terp victory. North Carolina took a 10-0 halftime lead. The Tar Heel defense allowed the Terrapins only one first down and 35 total yards in the half.

The Tar Heels opened the game with a long drive, but quarterback Rod Elkins had a pass intercepted and Maryland took over. Then on the first play, Wysocki fumbled.

The ensuing UNC drive stalled and the Tar Heels were forced to kick. Again on Maryland's first play, Wysocki fumbled and Steve Streeter recovered the ball on the Maryland 22. The Terps held, but UNC's Jeff Hayes kicked a 37-yard field goal with 4:37 left in the first quarter.

UNC drove deep in Maryland territory early in the second quarter. Hayes made a 38-yard field goal but the Tar Heels did not take it because of a Maryland penalty that gave them a first down on the Maryland 16.

punt ruled dead at the Tiger 1-yard line. Clemson quickly moved into Western Carolina territory on runs of 34 yards by Pickett and 38 yards by Crite. The drive took 14 plays to complete and used up more than five minutes on the clock.

Western Carolina, now 1-3, drove deep into Clemson territory late in the fourth quarter but settled for a 40-yard field goal by Dean Viasucci to complete the game's scoring.

Clemson built its 10-0 halftime lead on a 24-yard Obed Ariri field goal and a 1-yard run by Pickett. The field goal was set up by a Western Carolina fumble on its own 25-yard line and the touchdown followed a blocked punt at the 29.

With Crite rushing for 88 yards and Pickett for 84, Clemson got 278 of 375 total yards on the ground. The Tigers drove to within field goal range on four occasions, but Ariri missed attempts of 53, 48 and 51 yards.

Expos 1/2 Game Back Of Phils

J.R. Richard Back In Dome

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher J.R. Richard, recovering from a stroke suffered July 30, presented the lineups at home plate Saturday prior to the game between the Houston Astros and Cincinnati Reds.

Richard, in his first public appearance since suffering the stroke, walked steadily to the plate to a standing ovation and talked briefly to the Reds coach Russ Nixon and the four umpires.

"I'm glad to be here," Richard said addressing the crowd briefly. "I'd like to thank my wife and Enos Cabell. I'd also like to thank all you people for the cards and I'll be back here for the World Series."

Richard then left the field where he signed a fan's souvenir, which was inscribed "We Love You J.R."

Richard compiled a 10-4 record and a 1.89 earned run average before he was placed on the disabled list July 16. Richards collapsed in the Astrodome during a workout on July 30 and underwent surgery hours later to remove a blood clot from an artery in his neck.

Richard was dismissed from the hospital Sept. 12 and still is undergoing physical therapy on an out-patient basis.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Larry Bowa, standing on third base with the potential tying run in the bottom of the ninth, gave Montreal's Woodie Fryman a classic greeting as the reliever walked in from the bullpen.

"You old goat," said Bowa, of the Philadelphia Phillies, to the 40-year-old relief pitcher.

But the old goat got the job done. He struck out pinch-hitter Lonnie Smith for the final out and the Expos held on to beat the Phillies 4-3 Saturday.

The Montreal triumph evened this crucial three-game series at one game apiece, and moved the Expos within a half-game of front-running Philadelphia in the National League East.

The Expos' victory almost assured a deciding confrontation next weekend between the two East contenders in a season-concluding three-game series at Montreal.

Fryman, who said he struck out Smith with a slider that broke on the outside of the plate, told the "old goat" story on himself.

"After Larry, who is a friend and was just needing, said that, I said to myself, 'Well, old goat, you have to win this one.'"

Fryman noted, "I'm the oldest guy on this club, and a lot depends on me."

Fryman, a veteran of 16 major league seasons, described the victory as a "must game. It gives us a little momentum going into tomorrow (Sunday) and I hope we come out hitting."

As for his battle with Smith, Fryman commented, "I wanted to keep the ball in the park. I wanted to make sure he didn't hit a gapper that would send us home a loser."

Phillies Manager Dallas Green put it quite simply: "We had them on the ropes, but we lost them. We couldn't put the coup de grace on them."

Green started his 23-game winner, Steve Carlton, and the manager said, "It wasn't one of Lefty's finest hours. He struggled all day. He didn't have the real good slider, which is his bread and butter."

Jerry White's two-out seventh-inning double scored the lead run for Montreal. Chris Speier, who had three hits, opened the seventh with a double off Phillies ace Steve Carlton, 2-0. Bob Pate sacrificed Speier to third and after pinch-hitter Ken Macha struck out, White delivered his double CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Randy Martz pitched two-hit ball before leaving with a twisted right ankle Saturday, but reliever Dick Tidrow earned the save as the Chicago Cubs defeated Pittsburgh 2-0 Saturday.

Martz, called up to the majors Sept. 1, was credited with his first major league victory. He gave up singles in the second and fourth innings.

Pirate veteran Jim Bibby gave up just three hits, including rookie Jim Tracy's third home run in the fifth. He suffered his sixth loss against 18 victories.

Bibby, who pitched no-hit ball for the first three innings, had his first pitch in the fifth hit out of the park by Tracy.

Catcher Mike O'Berry followed with a single to center and moved to third when Omar Moreno misplayed the ball in center. Mick Kelleher then hit a sacrifice fly to score O'Berry.

Tidrow replaced Martz in the sixth inning and picked up his sixth save.

The Pirates now have lost 21 of their last 31 games.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees' Mike Little won his first major league start, allowing just two runs on four hits, as the Cardinals defeated the Mets 4-2 Saturday.

Little fanned eight, striking out the side in the first inning, and walked four in seven innings of work. George Frazier picked up his third save of the year with 1-2-3 innings of hitless relief.

The Cardinals took the lead with three runs in the third inning, getting five straight singles off starter and loser Mark Bombardier.

Little aided his own cause with his first major-league hit and scored the first Cardinal run on a two-out infield single by Garry Templeton. Keith Hernandez's base hit scored Ken Oberkell, who had singled, and Leon Durham drove in Templeton with the Cardinals' final run of the inning.

Ramblin' Wreck Whips Memphis State, 17-8

ATLANTA (AP) — Sophomore linebacker Steve Mooney caused one fumble and recovered another to set up a pair of first quarter Georgia Tech touchdowns within a two minute span and the Yellow Jackets held on Saturday for a 17-8 college football victory over winless Memphis State.

The triumph was also the first for new Yellow Jacket Coach Bill Curry after two losses.

The only bright spot for the Tigers, 0-3, was the running of sophomore tailback Richard Williams, who raced 189 yards on 16 carries, including a 76-yard touchdown run early in the final period.

The ball was recovered by Lynwood Volley on the Tigers' 27.

Only 2:08 later, quarterback Mike Kelley hit Leon Chadwick on a 15-yard scoring strike for a 14-0 Tech lead after Mooney, who also had a fourth quarter interception, recovered another Locke fumble, this one on the Tigers' 18-yard line.

The contest was marred by 11 turnovers, seven by the hapless Tigers, who have allowed 124 points in their three losses.

Tech's final points came on a 28-yard field goal by Johnny Smith early in the final period after another Memphis State turnover, this one a fumbled punt by Anthony Parker at his own 31-yard line.

Rose Snaps Back, Crushes Nash, 42-21

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
RED OAK — Plagued by fumbles in the first quarter, Rose High School's Rampants found themselves trailing, 21-6, before finally putting it together to rally for a 42-21 win over Northern Nash Friday night.

It was the first Division I game of the year for the third-ranked Rampants, who had to struggle to keep their unbeaten streak alive. They are now 4-0 on the year and 1-0 in the conference. Northern Nash fell to 0-3-1 overall and 0-1 in the league.

Roger Williams and Aloha Taylor each scored two touchdowns for the Rampants, who completely dominated play in the second half of the contest. Taylor scored on runs of three and six yards, while Williams went over on 14 and two yard runs. Donald Johnson scored on a freak pass from Kenny Barnes from 28 yards out on the final play of the first half, and Chris McLawhorn pulled in a 32-yard pass from Tom Buie late in the game for the final score.

Northern, which did all of its damage in the first period, got two touchdowns from George Battle, on runs of six and two yards, and added a 47-yard bomb from quarterback Steve Smith to flanker Kevin Haywood.

A delighted Rampant coach

Dave Bumgarner regaled in the win. "This win belongs to the defense," he said. "And I can't say enough about the character of our kids. It would have been easy for them to have given up when they were 21-6 down and everything seemed to be going against them."

"But they hung in there and came back." The defense certainly deserved all the praise Bumgarner could give them. Led by Curtis Spell's terrorizing of the backfield, the Rampants overran and overwhelmed the Knights in the second half.

Not once in the final 24 minutes did the Knights pick up a first down, and they ended up with a minus 30 yards rushing for the two final quarters. Coupled with their passing, they had minus 11 yards for the half.

"We knew we were good enough to come back," Bumgarner emphasized. "We could have rolled over, but we didn't."

Rose fumbled seven times in the game, losing five of them — just as they did a week ago against Raleigh Enloe. They were also hurt by penalties in the early going, once losing the ball on a punt because of a foul. That eventually led to one of the Northern scores.

"Even with all the bad things we did, we still had a lot of good things. Barnes played an outstanding game, and all of our backs ran well. But it was the defense in the second half that really made the difference. They put tremendous pressure on the quarterback, and that kept them from doing what they wanted to do. We forced them to do what they didn't want to do," Bumgarner said.

He noted that Spell started the game playing poorly in the defensive line, but later found the inspiration to lead the defensive effort against the Knights.

Rose got an early break and turned it into a touchdown just minutes into the game, and it appeared then that it might be an easy win.

Two plays into the contest, Northern, which had received the kickoff, fumbled and James Brewington recovered for Rose on the Knight 25.

It took only five plays to put the ball in the end zone. Barnes licked off 11 yards on the first play, putting it at the 14. Finally, on second and goal from the three, Taylor went over right tackle for the score. Scott Taylor's kick was wide, however, leaving Rose with a 6-0 lead with 9:14 left in the period.

Northern came right back to march to a score, helped along by a Rose penalty. Northern got off to a good start by a razzle-dazzle play on the kickoff. Smith fielded the ball at the 15, took a couple of steps upfield, then lateraled to Willie Harrison, who raced down the sidelines to the 44.

Rose appeared to hold the Knights at the 48, forcing a punt. But on the play, Rose was called for a personal foul, giving the Knights a first down at the Rose 37.

On first down, Smith hit Kevin Payne for 31 yards to the six, and Battle went over right tackle for the final six yards to tie it up. Johnnie Richardson added the PAT for a 7-6 lead with 6:59 left.

That was just the beginning of the Rampant troubles.

On the first play after the kickoff, Taylor fumbled it away at the Rose 19. Three plays put it on the four yard line, with Battle picking up nine in one carry. The next three downs, however, all drew yellow flags, and resulted in the ball moving back and forth and finally ending up on the four again with a first down. Two plays later, Battle went the final two yards, and Richardson again kicked for 14-6 lead with 4:19 left.

Rose again fumbled it away, with Taylor again getting the hit at the midfield stripe after five plays.

After a three-yard gain on first down, the Knights went to the air, and Haywood got behind the Rose defense to make the 47-yard touchdown reception that moved the Northern lead out to 21-6 with 1:22 left in the period.

Rose then fumbled the kickoff, and Northern again recovered at the Rampant 33, but was finally halted by the defense at the 25. The Rampants took over and drove all the way down to the two, where on fourth and goal, Taylor slipped making his cut into the end zone, and fell short of the line, turning it over.

That seemed to make the lowest ebb of the Rose fortunes.

But from there on, things looked up. Rose held on defense and a 15-yard punt return by McLawhorn put the ball at the Knight 19. Barnes kept for five to the 14, then on second down, optioned to Williams who streaked through the line for the second Rose touchdown. A two-point try fell short, leaving it at 21-12 with 3:56 left.

Rose then recovered an on-side kick, but failed to pick up a first down after being penalized on first-down for offensive pass interference.

With just seconds left in the half, Rose got it back on a punt at the Northern 49, and pulled out a miracle score.

Barnes hit Williams on a down and out pass at the 28 for one big gainer, then on the final play, he launched the ball up for grabs in the end zone.

It was just over the head of Johnson, and tapped, once, twice, and a third time by Northern defenders, all attempting to pull in the ball. Johnson, circling around, finally got behind them all, in the end zone, and the ball floated down into his hands.

Taylor added the PAT and had cut the lead to 21-19.

It seemed the Rampant offense still had trouble getting on track in the second half. The first two times they had the ball they lost it on fumbles, once at the Northern 44, and again at the Rose 33.

On the final play of the third period, the Rampants forced a punt and took over on the Knight 42. Barnes then hit McLawhorn down the sidelines for 37 yards to the five. After a yard loss, Taylor took an option pitch from Barnes, bobbed it, but held on this time and dashed into the end zone from the six for the go-ahead score. Williams ran over a two-point conversion for a 27-21 lead with 11:12 left.

Rose came back to score on its next two possessions. Taking over at the Rampant 43 after a punt, Rose drove in ten plays for the clincher. Key among them was a 16-yard reverse by McLawhorn. A 12-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against the Knights also helped. Williams capped the drive with a two-yard run, and Barnes picked up a two-point conversion to make it 35-21 with 5:17 showing.

The Rampants ended up with 380 yards in total offense, while Northern was held to just 155, 136 of that coming in the first period.

Jazz Sign Griffith

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — All-America guard Darrell Griffith, who led Louisville to the NCAA basketball championship last March, signed a contract Saturday with the National Basketball Association's Utah Jazz.

Griffith signed a multi-year contract at noon news conference.

Griffith was the second player taken in last spring's NBA draft, behind only Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll. There had been speculation that Griffith might choose to play in Europe if he couldn't reach contract terms with the Jazz.

"It's a very fair contract," said Phillip Marantz, an attorney for the Jazz. "Hopefully, it's the product of these kinds of negotiations."

Griffith was represented by Boston attorney Bob Woolf. Also at the signing ceremony was Jazz general manager

Frank Layden.

According to Marantz, negotiations between the two parties picked up last Tuesday in Santa Barbara, Calif., where the Jazz had played an exhibition game.

"We began intensive around the clock negotiations Tuesday morning," said Marantz. "We concluded the deal Friday night and terms were agreed. The contracts were prepared and signed this morning."

Griffith's signing came in time for him to play in an exhibition game before his hometown fans Saturday. The Jazz met the Indiana Pacers here.

"That wasn't the catalyst to reaching terms," said Marantz. "What made the deal was that we came to terms."

Walton Is Hurt Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Walton's fragile left foot, which cost the San Diego Clippers the use of their famous center for all but 14 games last season, was hurt again Friday night during the Clippers' 109-101 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers.

Walton, who played only about five minutes of the National Basketball Association exhibition game, injured his foot again while rebounding against Laker center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. He remained in Los Angeles Saturday for medical tests.

Farmville Squeezes Past Panthers, 7-0

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — Walking off the field following Farmville Central's 7-0 victory over North Pitt Friday night, Jaguar coach Gene Brewer succinctly summed his and many of the fans' feelings about the game. "Pretty, wasn't it?" Brewer said. Not really. A classic it wasn't.

"I don't want to take anything away from North Pitt, they've got a good football team, but if you check the stats you wouldn't have thought we'd end up with only one touchdown," Brewer said.

Indeed. Led by the slashing, running of Roger Joyner, who Neither team fared well in the air. The Panthers threw for 48 yards while the Jaguars gained 45 yards — all in one play, a play that proved to be the difference in the game.

With Farmville on its 49 late in the third period, Jaguar quarterback Jeff Cutler dropped back to pass. As wide receiver Andrew Edwards cut to the sideline to begin what would be a "down-out-and-up," Cutler pumped once.

Instead of continuing his route to the sideline, Edwards abruptly cut upfield, gaining a step on the defensive back, who had committed himself on Cutler's pump. Still in the pocket, Cutler, a 5-11 junior, lofted the ball to Edwards along the left sideline. Edwards ran it to the three before being caught by North Pitt's Jerry Simpson.

Two plays later Joyner bulled up the middle for the TD and with Arthur Wooten's kick the Jaguars led, 7-0, with 1:47 left in the period. It was the only score, but not before the Jaguars repelled two fourth-quarter charges by the Panthers.

Following Joyner's run, Panther quarterback Bob Hemingway engineered a drive from his own 30 to inside the Farmville one before being stopped on downs.

With first and 10 from the 40, Hemingway hit Tony Pittman, who wrestled the ball from a Farmville defender for a six-yard gain. Three plays later from midfield Hemingway waited for Gordon Dunn to come open over the middle and hit the senior tight end for a 25-yard gain.

and they're down there right on the play. If we had of just blocked and blown them out and scored it wouldn't have made any difference.

"And even after that, we had one more chance. And what did we do? We fumbled."

Coming out in the second half, Smith elected to kickoff so the Panthers could get the wind in the fourth quarter. After stopping the Jaguars, Smith's strategy worked as Farmville got off a 14-yard punt to give the Panthers the ball on the Jaguar 20 with just over five minutes to go. But on North Pitt's second play Pittman fumbled a pitchout and Farmville recovered. Four minutes later the Jaguars had won their second conference game in three outings.

"They've got a good football club," Brewer said. "Any team that can come back from a game like they had last week (North Pitt lost, 42-14 to Southern Nash) you know is a good team.

"We didn't play that well offensively but defensively we didn't give up the big play and I'm pretty pleased with their play. Offensively, it takes so long for a team to yell. In the first half I saw signs of that, but then we'd make some mistakes and that hurt us."

well in the opening period. The Jaguars, who had 135 yards in total offense in the first half compared to the Panthers' nine yards, put together the only serious threat of the first 30 minutes late in the second quarter.

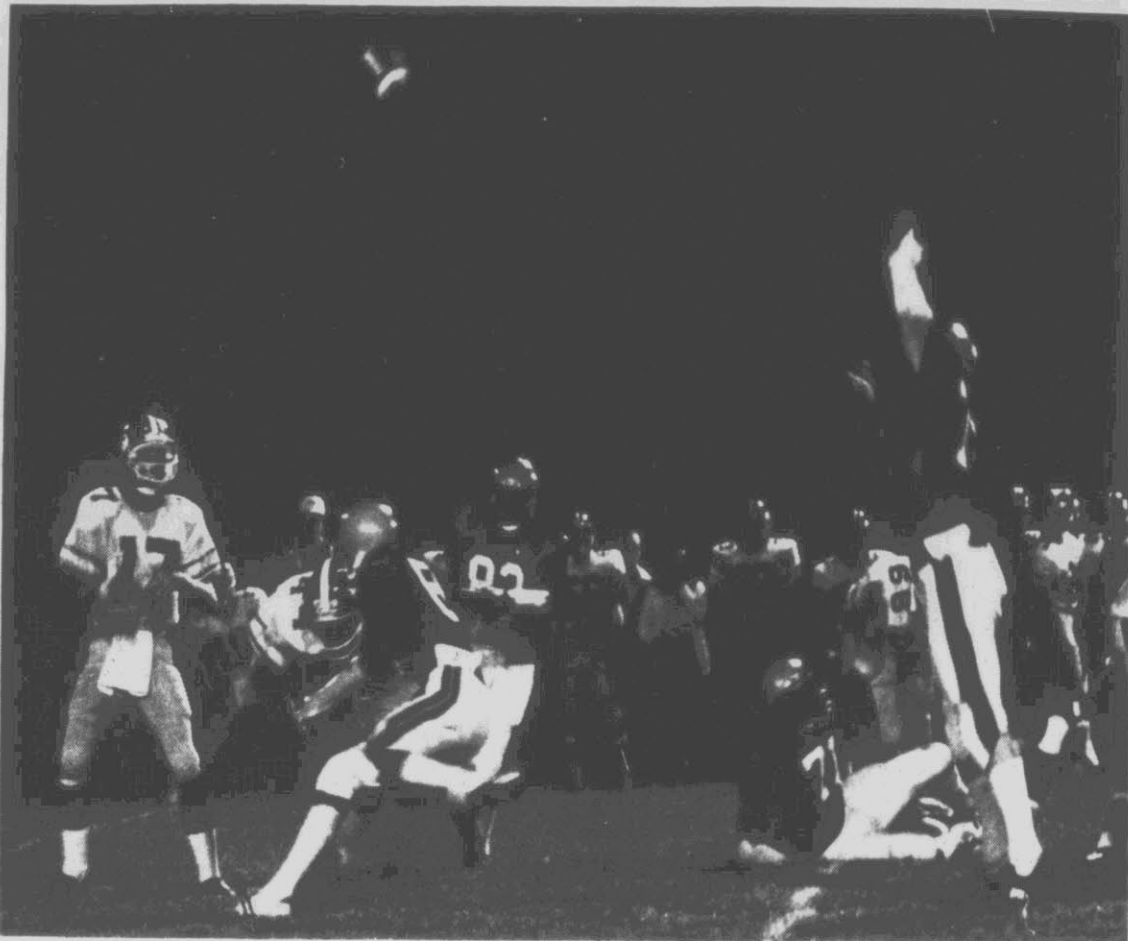

From their 47, the Jaguars marched to the North Pitt seven before being stopped on downs.

Coming out in the second half, Joyner fumbled on the Jaguars' first play, giving North Pitt the ball on the 23. Hemingway immediately scampered around right end for 17 yards but two plays later from the six Pittman fumbled and the Jaguars recovered.

"That fumble on third down really hurt us," Smith said. "If he didn't fumble we were going to try a field goal. I don't know how you explain things like that. It just happens. But I'm proud of our guys. They wanted the game. I just don't know what to say."

Littler Leads Seniors Golf

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gene Littler shot a 3-under-par 69 Saturday to take a one-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the World Seniors Invitational Golf Tournament.

Art Wall and Charlotte native Charlie Sifford are deadlocked in second with two-round totals of 142 at Quail Hollow Country Club's 6,528-yard course.

Don January stands alone in third at 143 after a second-round 73. Meanwhile Arnold Palmer faded after playing a strong front nine and gaining as much as a 2-stroke lead on the field after 11 holes.

Palmer, who fell to a 74 after an opening-round 70, is tied with first-day leader Dow Finsterwald at 75 and Billy Maxwell at even-par, 3 strokes off the lead.

Littler, playing in just his second senior's event, carded three birdies and one bogey Saturday, with birdies coming at 14, 7 and 9. It was a birdy on the ninth hole that gave him sole possession of the lead.

"I hit most of the greens, but it wasn't ever really that close," Littler said. "I hit a lot of good putts today that looked like they were going in that didn't go in. Unless the weather is rough, I think I'll have to shoot 69 to win Sunday."

Of the leaders, Wall had perhaps the day's most interesting round. For Wall, a two-time Masters champion, the round quickly got off to a bad start. He buried his tee shot on the par-4 fourth hole, far to the left of the fairway.

The turning point came on the next two holes when Wall ran in a 30-foot birdey putt on the fourth and came right back with a 15-footer on the par-5 fifth to get back to even par.

For Palmer a promising start ended on a dim note. He played the front nine in one-under-par 35 and quickly added another birdie on the par-4 11th which put him at 4-under for the tournament.

Palmer later bogeyed the 12th and then hit a series of bad shots that led to a double bogey 7 at the 15th hole.

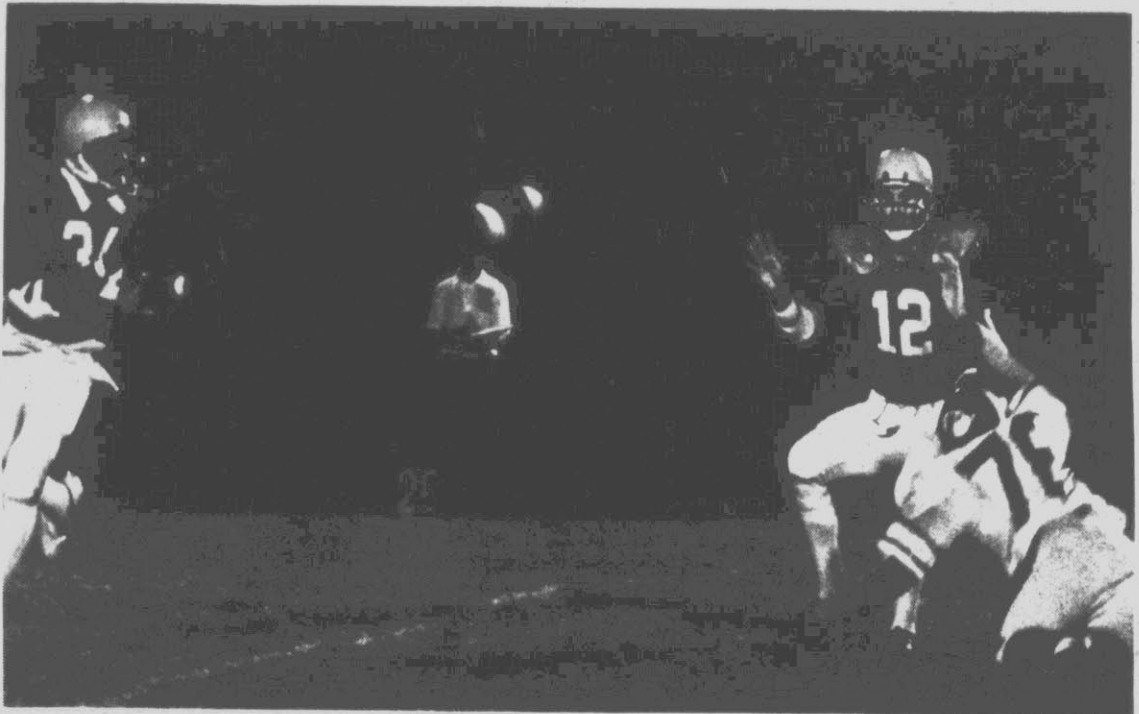

Crenshaw Up By 7 At Napa

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw built a 7-stroke lead before taking his first bogey in two days and finished the third round of Napa's $300,000 golf tournament with a 5-stroke edge after a 4-under-par 68 Saturday.

It was the third consecutive round under 70 for the 28-year-old Texan, who hasn't won a tournament since January, 1979 but has finished second seven times since then.

Crenshaw's 54-hole total after Saturday's round on the 6,870-yard Silverado Country Club North Course was a 15-under 201. Jack Renner surged into second place at 206 by birdying the final three holes and finishing with a 5-under 67.

"I don't imagine Ben is too scared," said Renner, the who has had a rough year on the pro tour.

Yankees Two Steps Closer To Pennant

By The Associated Press
Eric Soderholm had a long distance chat with his hypnotist and Dan Spillner cast his spell over the Baltimore Orioles, events that helped move the New York Yankees two steps closer to their fourth American League East division title in five years.

After talking to his hypnotist for an hour, Soderholm went out and put the Tigers to sleep, rapping two singles and a grand slam.

"When I'm feeling good like I do now at the plate, I can hit some shots," Soderholm said. "I've hit this club (the Tigers) well since I've been in the big leagues. I think I hit five home runs here last year."

Soderholm smacked a grand slam homer to back the combined five-hit pitching of Ron Guidry and Ron Davis as the Yankees beat the Detroit Tigers 7-3 Friday night.

Meanwhile, Spillner needed last-out relief help in pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 5-4 triumph over the Orioles, who are running out of games in their pursuit of the Yankees.

The Yankee win and the Oriole loss reduced New York's magic number to four. Any combination of Yankee wins and Oriole losses totaling four puts New York against Kansas City for the fourth time in five years for the American League championship.

The Yankees, who are 5½-games ahead of Baltimore, have eight games left. The Orioles have nine; if they win them all, New York merely has to go 4-4 to take the division.

Soderholm was in Yankee owner George Steinbrenner's doghouse for a while because he wasn't knocking in runs in August. But he's found his hitting stroke just in time.

"It's a great time to get hot," Soderholm said. "I was good for four months, then I was bad for six weeks. Mechanically, I'm just seeing the ball good. My approach is good."

Guidry, who is building his stamina after several weeks in the bullpen, gave up four hits in six innings but he issued six walks. The Tigers touched Davis for a two-run single in the seventh to close to 6-5, but he blanked them the rest of the way, picking up four strikeouts and his seventh save.

Willie Randolph had a solo homer for the Yanks in the ninth.

Spillner, a free agent at the end of the season, has never won more than nine games. His victory over the Orioles raised his record to 16-11. "I am so overwhelmed with the way I've been pitching this year," he said. "I need to improve lots of things but to win 16 you have to do some things right."

Bo Diaz' two-run single and Del Alton's RBI-single in the eighth gave Cleveland a 5-2 lead. Spillner struck out eight and scattered nine hits but left with two out in the ninth. Reliever Victor Cruz yielded a pair of RBI-singles before Sid Monge came in to retire Benny Ayala and record his 13th save.

Red Sox 3, Blue Jays 1
John Mayberry's 29th homer was the only hit off Eckersley, preventing him from posting his second career no-hitter.

"It was a fastball, it was in on him and he hit it on the label," said Eckersley. "I knew it was gone as soon as he hit it."

Eckersley struck out nine, tying his season high, and walked one in raising his record to 12-13.

"He's got to be one of the best right-handed pitchers in baseball," said Mayberry.

Twins 3, Royals 0
Which team clinched the AL West anyway?

Heading into the playoffs, the Royals have lost six straight. The Twins won their seventh straight on Zahn's six-hitter and Hosken Powell's two-run homer.

Before the game, interim Manager Johnny Goryl was signed to lead the club in 1981. Since taking over from Gene Mauch on Aug. 24, Goryl has led the Twins to an 18-11 record.

"We'll get things straightened out," said Kansas

George Brett went 1-for-4 and his average dropped to .387.

Mariners 7, Rangers 2
Ferguson Jenkins was a loser in his first game back since an arbitrator reinstated him following his suspension by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for refusing to answer questions relating to a drug investigation. Jenkins had been charged by Canadian authorities with drug possession. A trial is set for December.

"I worked out at home, but I wasn't facing live batters and that makes a difference," said Jenkins.

Jerry Narron hit a three-run homer and Danny Meyer had a two-run shot for the Mariners. The Rangers have lost eight in a row.

Brewers 10, A's 7
Ben Oglivie slammed an inside-the-park, grand slam homer to key a five-run, ninth inning rally that carried Milwaukee past Oakland and Oglivie ahead of Reggie Jackson in the AL home run derby. Oglivie's homer, his 38th, erased a 7-5 deficit. Gorman Thomas followed with his 37th homer, tying Jackson in that department.

Cecil Cooper went 4-for-5 with his 25th homer, raising his batting average to .359.

Oakland's Mike Norris, 21-9, allowed 17 hits in going the distance for the 23rd time this season. Norris, who came into the game with a league-leading 2.26 ERA, saw it slip to 2.52. He struck out nine while walking one.

White Sox 5, Angels 4
Dewey Robinson pitched 41-3 innings of two-hit relief to gain his first major league victory and move Chicago into a fifth-place tie with California. Ed Farmer pitched the ninth and gained his 29th save.

Ayden-Grifton Gains 1st Win As Rams Fall, 22-12

SNOW HILL — Greene Central continued to have its problems Friday night, as previously winless Ayden-Grifton rose up and gained a 22-12 victory over the Rams.

Picked as one of the pre-season favorites in the Eastern Carolina Conference, the Rams are now 0-3 in the conference and only 1-4 overall. Ayden-Grifton goes to 1-2 in the league and are 1-4 overall also.

The Chargers proved opportunistic in the game, striking on two long plays and turning a fumble into a score.

Ayden-Grifton never trailed in the game, scoring first and holding the lead the rest of the night. After recovering a Ram fumble at the Greene Central 30, the Chargers pushed it in, with Greg Jackson scoring from nine yards out. Quarterback Paul Ricciarelli then passed to Rudolph Reid for a two-point conversion,

Greene Central came back during the quarter to score, but missed on a two-point try of its own to trail, 8-6. The score came on a 49-yard tear by Luby Jackson.

Neither team scored during the second quarter.

In the third, however, both again scored. Late in the period, Ricciarelli hit Timmy Edwards on a short pass, but the Charger back broke away to race a total of 76 yards for the clincher, making it 14-6. The score came with just 13 seconds left in the quarter.

The Rams quickly got back into it, however, as Richard Evans raced back 80 yards with the kickoff for the second Greene Central score. Again, the Rams failed to convert, and trailed, 14-12.

The Chargers got the clincher in the fourth period on another long play. This time, Edwards again was the scorer, racing 70 yards on the play. Jackson ran over the PAT to give the Chargers their final 22-12 lead.

The Rams had a couple of other threats in the game, but failed to make them pay off.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to North Pitt on Friday, while Greene Central goes to Southwest Edgecombe.

Williamston Takes 10-7 Win Over Yellow Jackets

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Williamston's Victor Thomas kicked a 25-yard field goal in the late stages of the game to allow the Tigers to remain unbeaten, 10-7, Friday night as they downed Roanoke Rapids.

Thomas' kick broke a 7-7 deadlock after Roanoke Rapids had rallied in the period to tie the Tigers, who had scored their only touchdown in the first quarter.

Williamston had two early scoring opportunities in the first quarter, coming after Yellow Jacket fumbles. After failing to make good on the first try, the Tigers made a score out of the second misplay by the Jackets.

The Tigers took over on the RR 32 after the second fumble, but suffered a five yard penalty. Harry Beach picked up 11 yards on the next play and Jim Lilley raced for 25 on the second, down to the one. Beach pushed over from there for the lead and Thomas added the PAT for a 7-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the final quarter, when Roanoke Rapids drove 95 yards to score the tying touchdown. They were helped along by two off-sides penalties on the Tigers, who jumped across the line on delay counts. The score came on a 19-yard pass from Chubby Butler to Jeff Maness. Chuck Ward added the PAT, tying it up.

Williamston then came back with its winning field goal, helped along by a penalty against the Jackets.

Forced to punt, Williamston got new life on a roughing the kicker penalty, giving them a first down. Beach then reeled off two 11-yard runs, and with 3:25 left, Thomas booted the 25-yarder.

Roanoke Rapids came back to reach midfield before an interception sealed the victory for the Tigers.

Now 4-0 overall and 1-0 in the league, Williamston plays host to Washington on Friday. Roanoke Rapids is now 2-1-1 overall and 0-1 in Northeastern Conference play.

Firebirds Rally Past Vikings

Woody Peele

By PAUL COLLINS
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — Overcoming a slow start, Southern Nash scored four second-half touchdowns and rolled to a 28-13 victory over D.H. Conley Friday night.

Halfback Anthony Crumel scored two touchdowns and led the Nash ground attack that gained 288 yards on the evening.

On its first possession Conley drove from its own 45 to the Firebird 28 before Stephen King fumbled, turning the ball over to Nash.

Neither team could mount a threat until Conley took over on its own 19 and drove 81 yards in 11 plays. Conley scored on a spectacular 36-yard pass play from Leon Cox to Sammy Tucker on which Tucker beat the Nash defense down the right sideline.

Mike Stancil's extra point made it 7-0 Conley with 59 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

On the ensuing kickoff Jeffrey Lucas shook off five would-be tacklers and returned the ball 50 yards to the Conley

30. A clipping penalty erased the gain however and Nash was moved back to its own 46.

On the next play quarterback McCullen Wiggins tried right end and was thrown for a five-yard loss. Facing second down and fifteen, Nash went to its workhorse Crumel on four straight plays, including a 20-yard rip up the middle.

Nash killed its own drive with penalties on three of its next six plays, and Conley took over on downs at its own 32.

With King and James Boyd alternating carries, the Vikings drove to their second touchdown as Boyd carried it over from the five.

Stancil's conversion try was no good as it hit the crossbar and fell to the ground. Conley's lead remained at 13-0.

The Vikings' Jeff Manning ended any threat of a Nash first-half score by intercepting a Wiggins pass as time ran out.

Nash wasted no time getting itself on track in the second half. The Firebirds took the opening kickoff and drove 56 yards in ten plays to make the score 13-7. Crumel, who carried six times in the drive, took the ball over from the five.

From here Nash rolled. Holding Conley to three yards on its next possession, the Firebirds forced a Viking punt.

Taking over own its own 37, Nash gave the ball to Crumel three straight times and he responded by moving the ball to the Viking 41.

On third and one Conley tackled Stanley Bobbitt for no gain. But Crumel came through on fourth down, ripping up the middle for eight yards.

Five plays later Wiggins faked to Crumel and scampered over from the ten to tie the score at 13. After an offside penalty against Conley, Crumel gave Nash a 15-13 lead on a two-point conversion.

The teams exchanged punts to open the fourth quarter. After a 26-yard punt by Troy Perkins, Nash had the ball on the Conley 46.

On second down and nine, Elvis Perry sprinted around left end, outran the Viking defenders and scored a 45-yard touchdown to increase the Nash lead to 21-13 at 5:52 of the fourth quarter.

Five plays later Charles Pope recovered a fumble for the Firebirds at the Conley 36. A clipping penalty moved the ball to back to the 48, and on the subsequent play Manning gathered in his second interception to momentarily pull the Vikings out of trouble.

Conley soon returned the favor however, as Wiggins intercepted an errant Viking pass and returned the ball to the 25. The return was nullified by a clipping call, and the ball was moved back to the 48.

Nash was not deterred though, and it gave the ball to Crumel again and again until he produced the game's final touchdown on a four-yard run. The point after touchdown made the score 28-13 with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

Conley got one last shot at the ball, but Wiggins intercepted a Cox pass as time ran out.

Conley head coach Jimbo Walker said he was proud of the way his team played. "That Crumel kid is a horse, and when Nash got cranked up there was no stopping them," he said.

Nash raised its record to 2-0 in the conference and 3-1-1 overall, while Conley fell to 0-2 and 0-4.

McBride Helps Phillies Get Off To Good Start With 2-1 Victory

By The Associated Press
Bake McBride gave it his best shot — and then gave it his best trot.

"It was the first time I was as excited as I was to win a ballgame," said McBride after his leadoff home run in the ninth inning led the Philadelphia Phillies to a dramatic 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos in the start of their big weekend series Friday night.

After McBride trotted happily around the bases, he was mobbed by teammates as he crossed home plate. Later, he brandished the home run ball, courtesy of catcher Ozzie Virgil, who picked it up in the Phillies' bullpen.

"I really didn't go up looking for a certain pitch," said McBride. "I went up to start the inning with a base hit. But I got a breaking ball, the third one he (Dave Palmer) threw me all night and I just hit it out of the park."

Palmer also gave up a homer earlier to Garry Maddox and started the ninth with a four-hitter and a 1-1 tie.

"It was a curve ball, down in the strike zone a little bit," said Palmer. "I wanted to start him off with a breaking ball for a strike. It wasn't a real good pitch."

The victory improved the Phillies' lead over Montreal to 1 1/2 games in the National League East, their biggest advantage of the season.

Cubs 9, Pirates 8
 Steve Dillard doubled in the eighth inning for his third hit and scored two outs later on Ivan DeJesus' infield single to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh.

Dillard's double came off

Kent Tekulve, 8-12, one of the heroes of last season's World Champion Pirate team, who has lost seven straight games.

The Pirates, who lost their 20th game in the last 30, just about dropped out of the East race, falling 5 1/2 games behind the Phillies.

"We can't afford to lose again and we have to pray," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner.

Astros 2, Reds 0
 Vern Ruhle pitched a four-hitter to lead Houston over Cincinnati as the Astros improved their lead in the NL West to two games over Los Angeles. Ruhle, 11-4, who pitched 72-3 no-hit innings in his last start, yielded a game-opening single to Dave Collins and then retired 11 batters in a row prior to Dave Concepcion's fourth-inning double. Ruhle yielded no walks and struck out two.

The loss stopped a six-game winning streak by Tom Seaver, 10-8.

"It's the best I've seen him pitch all year," said Cincinnati Manager John McNamara of Ruhle. "He pitched one heck of a game."

Padres 3, Dodgers 2
 Dave Winfield doubled and scored on a double by Luis Salazar to snap a tie in the eighth inning and lead San Diego over Los Angeles.

Dodger starter Dave Goltz, 7-9, surrendered three runs on nine hits and was chased by Salazar's two-out double in the eighth.

Rookie reliever Tom Tellmann, 2-0, shut out the Dodgers for 11-3 innings to earn the victory with relief help from Rollie Fingers.

Giants 5, Braves 3
 Chris Chambliss homered and knocked in three runs to lead Atlanta past San Francisco behind Tommy Boggs and relief ace Rick Camp.

The Braves jumped on loser Vida Blue, 14-10, for a pair of first-inning runs, including Chambliss' RBI-groundout. The Atlanta first baseman also doubled home a run in the third and blasted his 17th homer in the eighth.

"I have all my statistics up where they are respectable now, even my RBIs. I'm pretty well satisfied with my first year in the National League," said Chambliss, who is batting .278 with 81 runs scored and 70 runs batted in. "I was unhappy about my RBI-output early in the season. But now it is decent so I'm satisfied."

Cardinals 5, Mets 1
 Tom Herr and Keith Hernandez both delivered two-run, bases-loaded singles in the ninth inning to lift St. Louis over New York.

Rookie right-hander Andy Rincon, 3-0, scattered eight hits over eight innings while striking out eight before getting relief help from Tim Seaman in the ninth.

The Cardinals' game-winning rally came at the expense of Neil Allen, 7-10, the second of three New York pitchers.

intercepted an errant Viking pass and returned the ball to the 25. The return was nullified by a clipping call, and the ball was moved back to the 48.

Nash was not deterred though, and it gave the ball to Crumel again and again until he produced the game's final touchdown on a four-yard run. The point after touchdown made the score 28-13 with 30 seconds remaining in the game.

Conley got one last shot at the ball, but Wiggins intercepted a Cox pass as time ran out.

Conley head coach Jimbo Walker said he was proud of the way his team played. "That Crumel kid is a horse, and when Nash got cranked up there was no stopping them," he said.

Cale In Field But Run Fails

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Cale Yarborough didn't fit too well in Harry Gant's car, so Gant still is without a spot in the 30-car field for today's $136,300 Old Dominion 500 Grand National stock car race at Martinsville Speedway.

"I had to put a pillow behind my back to reach the gas pedal, but my leg was still stretched all the way out," Yarborough said Friday after his speed of 84.854 mph in Gant's Chevrolet wasn't fast enough to earn one of the 18 qualifying spots at stake.

Yarborough was trying to return a favor.

When Yarborough tried to fly his own plane here Thursday, he ran into fog and arrived too late to make the qualifying runs.

Gant took over Yarborough's Oldsmobile and earned the outside pole with a speed of 88.502 mph, beaten only by the Old Dominion 500 record qualifying speed of 88.593 mph posted by Chevrolet driver Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., winner of the race last year.

"I didn't strain anything. The car was loose, so I took it easy. But I tried to qualify it for them, and I appreciate Harry qualifying for me," Yarborough said.

Yarborough, who will start in his own car Sunday, planned to make another effort today to get Gant's car into the race when the last 10 spots in the 12:30 p.m., EDT, race were up for grabs.

Ford driver Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., had the fastest speed of 88.279 mph Friday on the .525-mile track to lead the day's qualifiers and earn the No. 3 spot behind Baker and Gant.

The No. 4 spot went to Neil Bonnett of Hueytown, making his second short-track start of the season in a Mercury. His speed was 88.151 mph.

Others in the top 10 were Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn.; Donnie Allison of Hueytown; Dale Earnhardt of Kannapolis, N.C.; Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C.; Lennie Pond of Chester, Va.; and Dave Marcis of Wausau, Wis.

Among the others who earned spots in the top 20 were 15-time Martinsville winner Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., 12th, and Indianapolis 500 rookie of the year Tim Richmond of Ashland, Ohio, 20th.

AMC Strengthens Partnership Many Commodities Declined

DETROIT (UPI)—American Motors Corp., juggling its corporate structure to improve its position as an international company, has hired one of its French parent's top officers to help direct financial affairs.

The corporate staff realignment, disclosed Friday by AMC Chairman Gerald C. Meyers and President W. Paul Tippett Jr., came two days after the automaker reported a strengthening of its Renault partnership.

Under the plan, Tippett and all corporate staffs will report to Meyers, AMC's chief executive officer, the company said. All line operations will report to Tippett, the chief operating officer.

"The new structure improves our ability to function as an international company and strengthens our management capacity," Meyers said.

AMC also announced the election of Jean-Marc Lepeu as vice president for financial affairs. Lepeu has been Renault's corporate treasurer since 1974.

Lepeu and J.P. Tierney,

AMC vice president and treasurer, will be in charge of banking and cash management, AMC said.

Wilson W. Sick Jr., formerly AMC's group vice president for finance and administration, was reassigned in the staff reorganization to vice president for special projects.

Lepeu, 39, was not being hired to replace Sick, whose group vice president position was not being filled, an AMC spokesman said.

Lepeu, an official of the Banque Francaise du Commerce Extérieur from 1966 to 1974, "will be an AMC employee" in his new post, the spokesman said.

"He is not a Renault employee on special assignment."

AMC joined forces with Renault last year in a partnership that gave the French automaker greater access to the U.S. car market and provided AMC with the technical and financial resources to keep pace with its U.S. competitors.

The financial deal announced Wednesday will provide AMC with $300 million in new capital to finance an ambitious future product program and give the French automaker 46 percent of AMC common stock by late this year.

An AMC spokesman said Renault intends to limit its holdings in AMC to 49.9 percent, leaving the No. 4 automaker with majority ownership and operating control of the corporation.

Rejects Stay On Suits Against Iran

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge has rejected a government request to stay 96 lawsuits that seek billions of dollars in alleged losses from Iran's nationalization of industries and refusal to pay foreign debts.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Devin Duffy also upheld individual court orders that tie up some Iranian assets in the United States pending further litigation, even if the Carter administration decides to unfreeze them.

The government's request for an indefinite stay was based on fears that the litigation to attach Iranian assets might harm negotiations for release of the Americans held hostage in Iran.

Duffy noted that the plaintiffs "must still demonstrate that the individual claims upon which they rely have merit."

Each claim must be examined case-by-case before individual judges will make future final determinations, he added.

NEW RATE APPROVED

Virginia Electric and Power Co. reported that it has received approval for a new residential rate in North Carolina which will reduce bills for its retail customers with homes that meet certain energy conservation standards.

Veeco, pointing out that the N.C. Utilities Commission approved the rate Sept. 9 and made it retroactive to Sept. 1, explained that a customer on the new rate who uses 1,500 kilowatt-hours a month will save $3.87 a month, or $46.44 a year.

Jerry Causey, Veeco's Southern Division marketing manager, said the rate provides an incentive for the installation of maximum conservation measures in new and existing homes.

CHANGED LOCATIONS

Richard W. Briley, owner and manager of East Coast Coffee Distributors and Automatic Products Enterprises, announced that the two businesses have moved to a new location at 1514 N. Greene Street.

By KATHY OSOBA AP Business Writer

Rising U.S. interest rates, the prospects of an end to fighting in the Persian Gulf and a weaker dollar caused nervous speculators to liquidate their futures contracts in nearly every market Friday, causing prices to plunge.

Commodities which declined as much as daily trading limits allow included soybeans, oats, gold, silver, copper, platinum, pork bellies, cotton, sugar, cocoa, potatoes, heating oil and wood products.

Market analysts said the Federal Reserve Board's decision to raise the discount rate from 10 to 11 percent in an attempt to curb the swelling money supply was a key factor in all markets. The discount rate is the interest the Fed charges member banks and the hike is a signal of its intention to keep up its fight against inflation.

Meanwhile, many of the nation's banks raised the prime rate 1/2 percent to 13 percent in an effort to cool credit demand.

Commodities prices had been rising in part based on thinking that the government was not doing enough to control inflation, analysts said.

Another bearish development for prices was a report that Islamic nations had persuaded Iran and Iraq to agree in principle to a goodwill meeting to talk about their problems.

"That's what did it," said Jack Boyd, director of commodities research for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York.

Futures markets rose sharply early in the week when reports of an all out war between the two Persian Gulf nations were circulated. Traders reasoned that a disruption of the oil flow from the Persian Gulf could lead to a new round of price hikes and spur inflation still higher.

News specific to the gold market was a report on a foreign news service that Iran might have to sell some of the 17.69 metric tons of gold it recently imported from Switzerland to pay for its war effort.

Gold prices plunged the $25 daily trading limit on New York's Commodity Exchange and spot gold dropped $28.50 to close at $669.50 per ounce.

Silver futures on the Comex tumbled 75 cents and the restricted October contract fell $2 an ounce to close at $20.75 per ounce.

Copper futures came under additional pressure because of a pending agreement between striking copper workers and the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. Members of the United Steelworkers of America were scheduled to vote on the pact that would end a 12-week strike at Consolidated Copper. Copper is a war metal and the prospect that fighting in the Middle East would not escalate also weakened futures.

Copper futures on the Comex fell 5 cents in deferred contracts and the spot contract was down 4.75 cents to close at 92.15 cents per pound.

Grain and soybean prices plunged under heavy liquidation pressure from speculators on the Chicago Board of Trade. Heavy exporter pricing failed to balance the overwhelming selling.

Ferralls Adjusting To Life In N.C.

By SUE FERNALD
Reflector Staff Writer

Cubans have been coming into this country for the past several months for many reasons. Pedro Ferrall and his family came to the United States because "in Cuba there is no freedom of the press, no freedom of expression. Nothing. But here there is such freedom," he said through a translator.

The Ferralls, Pedro, Ada and their two children, Pedro and Carlos, arrived in Miami on a shrimp boat from Havana, Cuba, May 27, where they stayed at the home of Ada's cousins. They were brought to Greenville with the aid of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church who worked through the United Methodist Committee on Relief. The church agency located a number of families before selecting the Ferralls. "As a church we felt we had to respond to that immediate need," said Rev. David Goehring, associate minister of Jarvis, commenting on the churches' decision to accept a Vietnamese or Cuban family.

The Ferralls flew into Kinston July 21 and were met by Rev. Carol Goehring, also an associate minister of Jarvis, and Dr. Jose Baro, who has served as a translator since the time the family came to Greenville. Baro is an associate professor with the ECU Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures, and a Cuban refugee from the period of transition from the Batista to Castro regime. They were taken to their new home at 308 Elizabeth Street, which had been painted by the youth of the church and furnished by odds and ends from church members' homes.

Rev. D. Goehring proceeded to find Pedro and Ada work. "I found out what they could do and called around. A lot of people I could have called, or did call, would have had a lot of hesitancy to hire anyone at this particular time." Jobs were eventually found for them in the fields they had worked in while living in Cuba.

Dr. Malene Irons, chairperson of the Social Concerns Committee with the church, was instrumental in finding Ada a job at Prepserv, where she works as a seamstress. Ada broke a record the first day by making 300 shirts, when a new employee usually makes 50 to 60. "She made her place by being so good at what she does," said Dr. Irons.

Pedro is working for Stuart Shinn Electrical Co. Inc., and says he is having no major difficulties. One problem, however, according to Rev. D. Goehring, is teaching Pedro how to drive, which is essential for his job as a plumber and electrician. Apparently they have had some hair raising experiences, because of confusion over traffic signs. Patrick Gordon is his supervisor and is being very helpful as is his sister-in-law who is encouraging Pedro with notes written in Spanish, commented David. "He has a real good attitude and is trying very hard to learn our language, and I believe he is very lonely because he has no one to talk to," said Gordon.

The Ferralls spoke of various reasons why they came to America including relatives in the U.S. and economic problems in Cuba, but most important, the wish that their children have the opportunity for a good education and be able to grow up in a Democratic society. "I will do anything in my power to help them," Pedro said.

The two boys, Pedro, 13 and Carlos, 7, are enrolled in Greenville Middle School and Third Street Elementary School in the seventh and first grades. They were held back a year because of language difficulties. Pedro says he likes school very much and is having no trouble making friends. When asked how he liked school Carlos gave an emphatic "NO".

The difference between the schools in Cuba and the United States is "here they are getting more quality," said their father. The educational system in Cuba is organized quite differently from the American system and is oriented more towards the work role. For example, before going to high school the child has to work 45 days in the fields. Another difference is that the children live at the school for five days and nights a week and are allowed to go home only on weekends.

The travelling of the Cuban family is also restricted, according to Ada and Pedro. "To go from one province to another one has to ask permission from the Committee of Defense, and there is one of these practically every block."

One of the major difficulties the Ferralls are facing is learning English. Mrs. Esther Newman, a church member, is currently helping the family with this endeavor and says, "If I were not favorably im-

THE FERRALLS . . . Pedro, Carlos, Pedro Jr. and Ada in their home on Elizabeth Street. Pedro is watching television, which has become one of his favorite pastime. He says even though he can't understand what is being said he can get the gist of what's going on.

pressed with the Ferralls I would not be doing this. The family is a joy, they want to learn and are very considerate. This indicates to me they are not here for a free ride." Mrs. Newman is an ardent admirer of the English language and grammar and says "one cannot just go in and teach, pronunciation is not that easy a task." She has obtained books on plumbing from the library to help Pedro with his work vocabulary. Mrs. Newman is very pleased with the fact that the family members voluntarily look in the dictionary in an attempt to communicate.

Some of the funnier aspects of learning English were pointed out by Ada, who related it to our attempts to master French, Spanish or any other foreign language. She says, "In English you write everything backwards." She commented that "it is sort of like one is deaf; you manage to get an understanding of what is being said and, like the deaf, you develop an extra sense."

The members of the church and Revs. Goehring feel a great sense of responsibility for the family. "I see now one of our churches responsibilities is to give them Christian instruction. We must be very careful and precise in bringing about a Christian understanding of the need for being in a caring and supportive fellowship," said David.

The family has had to make many adjustments since moving here and feel that it has brought them closer together. "We have never felt better than here and are very grateful to the Goehring's, all the church members, and everyone who has helped us," Pedro said.

"Our church brought them here and it is our responsibility to see that they become good and worthwhile citizens," said Mrs. Newman.

According to Rev. David Goehring the family should be moving towards self-sufficiency in a couple of months. They are now buying their own food and clothes.

AID IN MAKING ADJUSTMENTS . . . Dr. Malene Irons, chairperson of the churches' Social Concerns Committee, Dr. Jose Baro, acting translator for the family and newspaper interview, and Esther Newman, a church member, have all been very helpful in assisting the Ferralls in making adjustments to Greenville life.

MINISTERIAL ASSISTANCE . . . Revs. Carol and David Goehring, associate ministers of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, are excited about the Ferrall family and are committed to providing a healthy Christian atmosphere for the new residents.

President Carter Can't Be Sure Of Feminist Support

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

United Press International
Iris F. Mitgang, chair (her official title) of the National Women's Political Caucus, wants President Carter and Vice President Mondale to know feminists are watching them.

Ms. Mitgang, attorney from Orinda, Calif., and mother of three, said feminists want to see some action from the Democratic candidates in regard to support of the feminist cause planks in the Democratic party platform.

She refers to two planks, adopted by delegates in spite of the fact that Carter and his staff fought them until it was evident the feminists in the delegate body — half women for the first time in history — would win.

The planks, controversial since they are at odds with the anti-ERA and Right-to-Life movements, call for:

—Medicaid funding of abortion on demand for poor women.

—Keeping Democratic party money from candidates who do not support the Equal Rights Amendment.

Adoption of the planks as the result of a massive effort by women's groups, including the NWPC, was considered a victory for feminists.

"That happened even though not all of the 1,600 female delegates to the convention were card-carrying feminists," Ms. Mitgang said.

So what happens now, especially with regard to action from the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates?

"The campaigns have begun and I do not hear support from the Democratic candidates for the two minority planks that were passed so resoundingly," she said.

"Unless Mr. Carter indicates he is with the feminists, that he is going to support our issues, I am not sure he has any great appeal to feminists. In that case, he can't be sure of feminist support.

"I have not seen any kind of outreach or any tangible evidence that he is seeing to it that the party is implementing the planks.

"It would be our hope that Mr. Carter would assign legislative staff to see that when Congress reconvenes that all legislation that comes out of congress is free of any Hyde amendments or any impairments of poor women's rights."

The Hyde amendment, upheld recently by the Supreme Court, barred Medicaid funds for abortions on demand by poor women.

If the feminists won't support the Democratic candidates, where will they put their votes — to Ronald Reagan, who says women don't need the ERA to have equal rights and whose platform balks at abortion? Or John Anderson?

"We may sit this one out," Ms. Mitgang said. "Because alternatives are not good it does not necessarily require for our future that we participate fully in the presidential election. This may be the year that sufficient numbers of women are running for congress and state legislatures. Those places may be most effective for us to direct our political effort."

Ms. Mitgang said 45 to 50 women are running for Congress and that perhaps half that number will make it. (There are 535 seats in the Senate and House of Representatives.)

That would put more women in Congress than were there during the peak year, 1961. The count then: 20.

The NWPC, founded in 1971 and billed as a multi-partisan, non-profit organization, claims 45,000 members. It encourages the participation of women at all levels of public life.

The NWPC is based in Washington, D.C. Its letterhead lists the following, among others, on the advisory board:

Bella Abzug, former congresswoman from New York; Liz Carpenter, now in charge of public affairs in the new U.S. Department of Education and former press secretary for then First Lady Lady Bird Johnson.

Also: Peggy Charren, a founder and head of Action for Children's Television; Lola Redford, wife of actor Robert Redford and an environmental activist; Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., running for re-election; Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., seeking the Democratic nomination for a U.S. Senate seat from New York. And: Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr.; Esther Peterson, Carter's adviser on consumer affairs; Gloria Steinem, feminist and editor of Ms. magazine; Diane Von Furstenburg, whose name appears on cosmetics and designer jeans.

Mitgang said the Caucus aims to give women the political clout they deserve by:

—Encouraging qualified women to run for office.

—Lobbying for the appointment of women to policy-making positions in government.

—Pressing major parties to give equal representation to women in party offices and committees.

—Working for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment."

A NWPC pamphlet quotes some women now in government as follows:

—Margaret McKenna, Deputy Counsel to Carter: "I have come to regard the Caucus as a valuable resource in bringing the most talented people into the Administration."

—Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md.: "The National Women's Political Caucus gave me fund-raising assistance, advice on strategy, issue papers, access to a national network of other politically sophisticated women, and most importantly, emotional support at a critical time in my campaign."

—Sue Wagner, Rep., Member of State Legislature, Nevada: "As a state legislator I know what NWPC has done to encourage women's participation in the political process. That is why I helped establish a Caucus chapter in Nevada. In our legislative effort to ratify the ERA in Nevada, I've seen the Caucus demonstrate political skill and knowledge as effective lobbyists."

Mitgang counts as one major Caucus victory a drive to get more women on the bench. In 1977 there were only five female judges in the Federal Court System. Now there are 42. However, those 42 out of 660 judges comprise only 6.4 percent of the entire federal judiciary.

Among its major victories, the Caucus counts its support of the drive to insist that 50 percent of the delegates to the 1980 Democratic convention be female.

"We are pushing for more female delegates in the Republican party's next convention, too," Mitgang said. The NWPC also provides staff support for the Coalition for Women's Appointments, a group formed during the 1976 Presidential election campaign.

This group encompasses about 500 organizations representing more than one million women. Its charter directs it to take joint action to increase the number of women in governmental policy-making positions and evaluate all appointments for their impact on issues affecting women.

Mitgang said representatives of the coalition meet with each new Cabinet Secretary after their appointment and with other federal departmental officials as necessary.

These meetings are held to examine the position of women in the department, explore ways of improving, suggesting names when pertinent.

Accomplishments to date? Over the past four years the number of women in government has increased both in the mid-level career positions and in the top appointed posts. At latest count, women were 3.9 percent of all employees in executive job levels at the federal level.

Figures also show that of the 2,110 top appointments made by the Carter Administration as of December 1979, 22 percent are women. That includes women appointed to non-paying boards and commission appointments.

"We're on the way but we have a long way to go," Ms. Mitgang said.

"I believe in the collective power of women. And women are the majority constituency in the country."

"We are not tokens any more and neither are the women running for office. There are real chances of winning. This is a fertile time to move ahead."

"Women and men need to know that we do not believe women are better than men. We believe women bring a different and valuable perspective.

"We believe that this has been excluded from places where important decisions are made about society, about war and peace, about the care of children, about the work force.

"The women's perspective has been missing."

Wedding Vows Said Saturday Afternoon

The wedding ceremony of Sharon Kay Porter and James Ray Warren was solemnized Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Paul's Pentecostal Holiness Church. The Rev. Maurice Phelps performed the double ring ceremony.

Daughter of Mrs. Joseph Smith Porter of Rt. 2, Greenville, and the late Mr. Porter, the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Joseph Steven Porter. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mary Warren of Greenville and the late Mr. Norman Warren.

The bride wore an organza and chantilly lace gown trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. The gown was designed with a high neckline and chantilly lace sleeves. The scalloped hemline swept into an attached chapel train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was trimmed in encircling lace attached to a Juliet cap of chantilly lace with seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of silk daisies and roses in baby's breath accented with mauve and burgandy starflowers tied with lace ribbon.

Trudie Vann, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and the maid of honor was Lorri Jennette, both of Greenville. Bridesmaids were Annie Porter, sister-in-law of the bride, Sandy Williams, niece of the bridegroom, and Kathy Harrington, all of Greenville.

The honor attendants wore formal gowns of burgandy tinaseta with each designed with an open neckline, gathered empire bodice featuring miniature rolled shoulder straps and a full accordin pleated skirt. The sleeveless gown was complemented by a sheer chiffon drape accented with tie bows at the shoulders.

Bridesmaids wore identically styled gowns in contrasting daphne rose. Each attendant carried a nosegay of silk burgandy and mauve starflowers accented with velvet bows.

Terry Warren, son of the

bridegroom, was best man and ushers included Joe Warren, brother of the bridegroom, Chuckie Jones, nephew of the bridegroom, Freddie Vann, brother-in-law of the bride, and Billy Cannon, all of Greenville.

Mrs. Eloise Jackson rendered organ music for the ceremony and Tom Mercer sang "The Wedding Song" and "Because."

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride is employed at Wachovia Operations Center. The bridegroom is owner and general manager of Jim Warren Builders.

The wedding was directed by Karen Mills and Carla Jones presided at the register.

For Breakfast Or Brunch Try Pancakes Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

If you want to help your children feel healthy and happy enough to whistle a song on their way to school, try giving them a good breakfast along with your friendly company as they eat it. During summer vacation, eager for outdoor play, they may have skipped out of the house in the morning nibbling only a piece of toast. When they did get hungry, they could always run into the kitchen for a snack.

But in the fall playtime grows shorter and worktime longer. Children fare better at school, both physically and emotionally, when they start the day with a nutritious breakfast. It should supply about a quarter of the nutrients needed each day.

We have rarely met a boy or girl who didn't enjoy breakfast-time pancakes. With this in mind we tested a recipe made especially nutritious by the addition of bran cereal. Yes, that's the cereal that offers a goodly amount of the fiber we all need. Best of all, these pancakes have enticing gingerbread flavor contributed by the addition of molasses (instead of sugar) plus ginger and cinnamon.

GINGERBRAN

GINGERBRAN PANCAKES — For a weekend brunch, they're especially delicious served with bacon and fried apples.

An after-rehearsal reception, given by the bridegroom's mother, was held in the church fellowship hall.

If the underarm sleeve seams and crotch seams always seem to rip out of your children's clothes, reinforce these seams with a second row of machine stitching placed one-eighth inch inside the seam allowance. Use 12 to 24 stitches per inch. Narrow and crooked seams can also benefit from this same treatment. Preventive treatments for pockets are also easy to do. Just machine stitch a double row of stitches at the top and sides of each patch pocket.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I watched four hours of television commercials the other night and didn't see a single face—just fannies.

Hour after hour, jeans-covered rumps marched across my 21-inch screen. They swayed from side to side, twirled around, karated, bent, stretched, rode horseback, discoed, kicked and breathed. They all had two things in common: all the fannies were signed and the pants fit tighter than the skin of a clenched fist.

Frankly, I cannot believe my luck. For years, I've killed myself working at being "just another pretty face" and now no one cares. All the emphasis is on the part that leaves the room last.

Not only have the back of my knees never been my "best side," I have yet to find a pair of jeans that fit like the ones worn by the models on TV.

Those four hours of fashion shock have prompted me to write an open letter to Gloria Vanderbilt.

Dear Gloria: I hope you do not feel that out of all the jeans designers, I am singling you out. The truth is, I like you. I bought four of your one-size-fits-all wine glasses and they fit wonderfully.

When you came out with jeans designed for the full-figured woman, there were tears in my eyes as I called my friends and said, "Rejoice, sisters! Gloria has just discovered a cure for the overblouse."

Gloria, the woman who went with me to the fitting room the day I tried on your corduroys . . . went temporarily blind.

Maybe I could shed some light on what constitutes a "problem figure." Imagine, if you will, that women are not built long and narrow like the state of California, but rather like the state of Texas. Envision our head as Amarillo and our bust like Lubbock. The boundaries for our waist, hips and thighs are the same—spanning the Mexican border on the west to the Louisiana border on the east. The legs extend from Laredo to the Gulf of Mexico.

You can see that we are talking about an ample area.

Now, look at your jeans and try to thread San Antonio through Corpus Christi. Trust me, Gloria, there isn't a zipper in this world strong enough to hold all of that in.

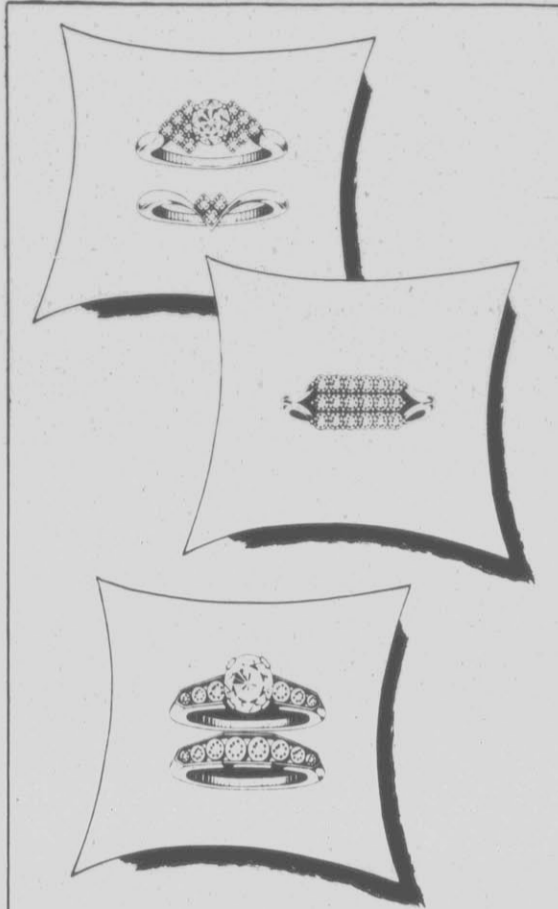

I know you are sincere about wanting to bring fashion jeans to the wide screen, but know the hazards. Never sell corduroy jeans to a full-figured woman. When she walks, she could start forest fires. Never assume because waists are "in" that everyone has one. Jeans made to "hug" hips often get carried away and cut off blood supply to the kidneys.

Under separate cover I am sending you a topology of a full-figured anatomy. Do not become discouraged.

Two-Career Couples Face Problems If Relocating

NEW YORK (AP) — "To relocate or not to relocate. That is the question!" That's not exactly what William Shakespeare wrote, but if he and Anne Hathaway were alive today — she with a career of her own — this might well have come straight from the playwright's pen.

Anne's career could have hindered William's future as a writer. Or jeopardized their marriage, if a promotion for her meant she would have to relocate away from Stratford-upon-Avon.

Today, as more couples have two careers, the question of relocation can become agonizing, says an official of a worldwide executive recruiting firm.

Paul and Linda Thompson (not their real names), both with jobs in San Francisco, faced this problem. And like many two-career couples they needed guidance, says John Bricker, executive vice president of MSL International Consultants Ltd.

"In their case they were luckier than most," he says. "They had not yet started a family, and Paul's skills as a technical engineer were in demand."

"When Linda was offered a post in New York as executive producer for a network, Paul wasn't receptive at first," Bricker explains. "He was in a quandary. He knew that this was a good opportunity for Linda and he didn't want to hold her back in her career. On the other hand, he was doing well in his job, and hadn't expected to leave for some time."

What was Bricker's advice to Paul and Linda?

"Not to discount relocation if they wanted to advance rapidly in their careers. Also, of equal importance, to realize that very often employers think ahead when they relocate people for jobs. Relocations can lead to excellent career opportunities."

"Paul finally came around. Although his skills were in great demand, he took his time to search out the right job. Within six months, he secured a good position with a promising future in nearby New Jersey. There was, however, one small setback — the lengthy commutation. But he didn't have to compromise his career," said Bricker.

What would Paul have done if he couldn't find a job to his satisfaction? "Paul was sure they would have had to adjust to a different lifestyle, by resorting to a 'commuter marriage,'" said Bricker.

"When Paul and Linda decided to marry, they discussed the importance of their careers. It was understood that if an exceptional position presented itself through a relocation, the other partner would cooperate. It's crucial for couples to discuss this issue at the onset."

Bricker offers the following checklist when relocation is imminent for the dual-career couple:

—Are you sure you're not missing a worthwhile opportunity within your present position by relocating?

—Have you investigated job possibilities within your company for your spouse? If the firm cannot find a position for your spouse, they may have contacts in other companies. If this isn't feasible, ask for an extension so that your partner can research job opportunities in the new locale.

—Has your potential or present employer mentioned drawing up an employment contract? Today, an employment contract is vital, especially in a job relocation. Negotiate all your benefits. Be sure that relocation costs, length of job contract, opportunity for advancing, perks, and anything else that you deem essential to the continued advancement of your career, is in the contract.

—Can you afford a new home in the relocation city? With today's soaring housing costs, a trend within many companies has been to subsidize mortgage interest rate payments on new homes. Investigate possibilities of your firm's subsidizing your mortgage, and be sure this is included in your employment contract.

—If you do decide to relocate for a job, investigate

Dear Abby

Vacation Plans Cause Reservations

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman, married 15 years and have two children. I have a dream. I want very much to go on a vacation with no husband, no children — just me alone! I want a week of doing whatever I want to do, with no pressure from anyone, without worrying if everyone else is happy and content. I would dearly love freedom from all home responsibilities — to sleep as late as I wished, eat when I want, go to sleep when I like, and not have to explain why. A place at the beach would be my idea of heaven!

My husband thinks my "dream" of a one-week vacation all alone is "unnatural." He thinks a happily married woman who has this kind of dream is crazy.

Well, do I see a psychiatrist, or go to the beach?

NEEDS A BREAK

DEAR NEEDS: Assuming your children will be properly looked after, I see nothing unnatural about your dream. And surely, there is nothing "wrong" with anyone (male or female) who wants freedom from all responsibility for a week. Go to the beach, and send your husband to a psychiatrist if he thinks you're crazy.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 26, female, black, single, ready, willing and able. There is a new teller at the bank where I deposit the company checks. He's black, too, about the right age for me and totally dreamy. I observed that he doesn't wear a wedding ring, which may or may not mean anything. After I made the deposit this morning, he touched my hand when he handed me the receipt. Then I looked up and saw that beautiful smile, and my heart melted.

One of the girls who work at the bank told me that he asked her if I was married or going with anybody, so he must be interested in me, too.

How can I let him know that I would like to know him better without appearing too forward?

LILLIAN

DEAR LILLIAN: Just keep making those deposits, and watch the interest grow!

DEAR ABBY: My grandma came to me for advice. She's 75 and has been married for 58 years.

I'm 21, and I've been married less than a year. Grandma says Grandpa (he's 76) is impotent, and he blames her. He says if she were "more of a woman," he would be more of a man. He told Grandma that if she didn't cooperate more he was going to find himself another woman. (They live in a senior citizens' complex and he wouldn't have to look far.)

Poor Grandma is so upset I feel sorry for her. What advice can I give her? (P.S. I am serious.)

CONCERNED IN EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR CONCERNED: Tell Grandma that the University of Oregon Medical School in Eugene has an excellent human sexuality program. She and Grandpa should look into it. It could save their marriage. (P.S. I am serious, too.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANYONE FOR WHOM IT IS NOT YET TOO LATE: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one hour to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies.

Couple Marries In Ceremony Saturday

WINTERVILLE — Ella Louise Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Fleming of Winterville, and Norman Lee Hardy Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lee Hardy Sr. of Rt. 5, Greenville, were married Saturday at 3 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by the Rev. David Hammond. A program of music was presented by organist Johnny Wooten and Mrs. Molly Small, vocalist.

The bride's sister, Velma Harper of Winterville, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Carolyn Brown, sister of the bridegroom, and Connie Barrett, both of Greenville, and Annie Loftin of Norfolk, Va.

The best man was Jesse Hardy of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom while ushers included Carlton Hardy and Jimmy Hardy, cousins of the bridegroom, and James Fleming, brother of the bride, all of Greenville.

Aleta Harper of Winterville, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Eric Fleming of Winterville, son of the bride, was ring bearer.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown by Alessandro of California of French Nottingham lace over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with lace accented with Venise lace motifs beaded with pearls. Similar lace was featured on the empire bodice with inserts of crystal pleated organza. Matching lace encircled the waistline, trimmed the cuffs which had crystal pleated edging and the skirt front. The skirt extended into an attached all lace chapel length train. A Dior bow centered the waistline back.

She wore a waltz length veil of illusion accentuated with cluny lace trim attached to a Juliet cap overlaid in lace beaded with pearls.

The honor attendant was dressed in a dress of berry qiana with a wrap front. She carried a bouquet of white mums and greenery tied with white ribbon. Bridesmaids wore qiana dress of teal blue styled with butterfly sleeves. They carried yellow mums tied with bronze ribbon and greenery.

The flower girl was dressed in a dress of pink and white with green flowers. She carried a white wicker basket filled with fall flower petals.

On The Young Side

Nine Rose seniors have become National Merit Scholarship semifinalists based on their scores on the PSAT/NMSQT which the students took last fall. Semifinalists are the highest scorers in the state and represent less than half of one percent of the state's seniors.

These students will compete for finalist standing in order to be considered for approximately 4,300 Merit Scholarships awarded in the spring. Semifinalists from Rose include Robert Bright, David Clark, Sarah Hester, Alison Keel, Joel Mauger, Daniel Scharf, Sheppard Vars, Jeri Walter and Dorothy Wang.

Post Secondary Opportunity Day was held Friday morning at Elm Street Gym. This event provides an opportunity for high school juniors and seniors to talk with representatives from colleges across the state or from businesses in the community. Students can therefore learn about the variety of work or study opportunities open to them after graduation from high school.

An unusually high number of students from Rose have been nominated to compete for the John Motley Morehead Scholarships to be used at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Dominic Dirisio, Emmett Walsh, Scott Taylor, Sarah Hester, Mark Douglas, directed the wedding.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride graduated from North Pitt High School and now works at Shoney's. The bridegroom graduated from D. H. Conley High School and works at TRW.

A reception was held in the W. H. Robinson School cafeteria.

The bride's table was centered with a fall flower arrangement and wedding cake which was served by Ms. Helen Hardy, Mrs. Vivian Green poured punch.

Martha Little presided at the guest register and rice bags were given guests by Sherri Harper, niece of the bride.

An after-rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridal couple. A miscellaneous shower was given by Velma Harper, Connie Barrett and Connie Andrews.

If planning to store leather and suede coats and purses away, store them in a fabric garment bag. This porous bag will follow the leather to breathe, whereas a plastic bag could let the leather dry out. Place the bag in a cool, dry and well ventilated area to prevent mildew which is often caused by dampness.

Teresa Little, Alison Keel, Elizabeth Ito, Sarah Houston and Michael Tucker will compete with other students from Pitt County. Two students from the county will be chosen to go on to regional competition. The final selection of scholarship recipients will be made in Chapel Hill in the spring. Nominees are chosen on the basis of scholastic ability, extracurricular achievements, participation in competitive athletics and leadership qualities. Morehead Scholarships provide full payment of tuition and additional study/work opportunities.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
1985 by Chicago Tribune

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I thought that all jump raises of responder's suit show strong hands. Last night, the following sequence occurred:

North	South
1NT	2♣
3♦

Expecting to find a considerable number of high cards with my partner, I pressed on to slam. Much to my surprise, partner put down a near minimum—14 points, to be exact. What goes on here? — R. James, Oak Park, Ill.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—The value of a hand keeps changing. It gets better or worse, depending on whether a fit has been found, or whether high cards are working or not. However, no matter how strongly partner bids at any one point, the strength of his hand is limited by the previous bids he has made.

Take the simplest case, where partner has dealt and passed. You open the bidding and suddenly he comes to life with a jump shift, followed by a jump raise of your suit. He sounds very strong, but nothing changes the fact that he did not open the bidding. You should never play him for more than about 12 high-card points, except that his hand has been improved by the fit with your suit.

The auction you cite is another case. By rebidding one no trump, partner has limited his hand to 13-15 points. No matter what he does thereafter, you cannot expect him to have more than 15 points. If he suddenly starts bidding strongly, he is simply saying that something has happened to improve his hand. In all likelihood, he has a fit for both your suits and, now that you have announced a five-card spade suit, he is prepared to play in game if you have 10-11 points.

Here are two hands that partner might have for his one diamond opening bid and one no trump rebid over your one spade response:

- a) ♦ xxx ♥ K10x ♦ AQJx
- ♣ QJx
- b) ♦ KJx ♥ KJ10 ♠ Axxx
- ♣ Qxx

In terms of point count, hand b) is only a jack better than a). However, with hand a) partner should take a simple preference to your first bid suit. Even though his hearts are better, he knows that you have five spades, and you probably have only four hearts. He does not know whether his secondary honors in the minor suits will be of much use to you, so he should bid only two spades.

In terms of playing strength, hand b) is much stronger. The reason is that now most of the high cards are working. The honors in partner's suits should all be upgraded, and the only card that might not be pulling its weight is the queen of clubs.

There are many situations where this logic applies. To give just one more example: Suppose that partner has responded to your one diamond opening bid with one no trump. No matter what transpires in the rest of the auction, do not expect more than 9-10 points from him. He limited his hand to that maximum with his initial response.

She Describes Farmers' Story

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Sue Palmore mends fences for American farmers. Figuratively speaking. Her formal title is communications director for consumer concerns for the American Farm Bureau Federation, a trade association based in the Chicago suburb of Park Ridge, Ill.

Her job was created about 18 months ago, Mrs. Palmore said, because the people who raise crops, cattle and other food animals "don't want the consumer to be our adversary."

"There was no one representing their perspective in the urban setting," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Palmore said farmers are eager to maintain open communication lines with the rest of us because, as food costs go up, people may think farmers are profiteering.

Recent food industry surveys have indicated that is not the case.

Still, she said, "The rural population that produces food represents only 3 1/2 to 4 percent of the nation's population. Nearly all the rest are in towns and cities of moderate size — 10,000 population and above."

"I think the adversary attitude will prevail as long as farmers are in the minority," she said.

"We try to help them (farmers and farmers' wives) be better at public relations."

If, say, someone wants to convert 320 acres of the best farmland in an area into a housing development, the federation staff teaches those whose land is threatened how to defeat the zoning attempt and how to get their views on this and other issues presented in newspapers and on radio and television.

The federation also helps state farm bureaus plan promotions such as the kickoff for dairy month in an upstate New York community. The state bureau set up a display in a shopping mall near the capital of Albany with live cows, calves, pigs and chickens, photographs of farms and free tastes of cheese and milk drinks.

The Iowa poultry industry plans supermarket promotions for its products during the industry's state convention.

The Young Farmer and Rancher Committee of the Kansas Farm Bureau runs a similar project. They send representatives into fast food establishments, downtown shopping centers and suburban shopping malls to offer consumers tastes of products and nutrition information pamphlets.

This year's project also gave farmers a chance to ask shoppers whom they thought was responsible for high food prices and if their choices of food were based on price or nutrition concerns and why they chose to patronize particular fast food outlets.

The cost of such projects usually is borne by the state farm bureau or commodity group involved, Mrs. Palmore said.

In a similar store promotion about a year ago, the women's committee of the Indiana Farm Bureau found consumers as a whole did not blame farmers for tremendous increases in food prices.

"Usually, they blamed the middleman," Mrs. Palmore said. That, and the failure of a beef boycott to take place last year are evidence to Mrs. Palmore that agriculture in general is doing a better job of reaching consumers.

She said the New Jersey Farm Bureau has an annual one-day program that invites city folk to visit farms.

"It's one of the ideas I've promoted because it's especially good for (urban) families to see a family farm," said Mrs. Palmore, who was born on a farm herself, near Frankfort, Ind.

"Last year we took two busloads of kids from the inner city of Washington (D.C.) to a Maryland farm that raised cattle and hogs," she said.

Found Fame In Hammock

By JONATHAN N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
PAWLEYS ISLAND, S.C.
(AP) — Connoisseurs of leisure nationwide snooze away spare hours in rope hammocks designed by a turn-of-the-century South Carolina barge captain who got tired of sleeping on a straw mattress below decks.
The captain, Joshua John Ward, made a few of the knotless hammocks for friends when they discovered how nice it felt to swing in his invention.

Today, makers of the "Original Pawleys Island Rope Hammock" can turn out 40,000 to 60,000 handmade rope hammocks a year, says plant manager Lewis Middleton.

The company sells the hammocks to people in the United States, Canada, Europe, Hawaii and the South Sea islands, Middleton says. The outlets include gift shops, department stores, hardware stores, swimming pool shops and, yes, nautical outfitters.

"We sell a good many right here at Pawleys," says Middleton, estimating that 10 to 15 percent of the company's production is retailed locally.

The hammocks are sold in a 10-building gift shop complex off U.S. 17 south of the sprawling Grand Strand resort area.

The business is a family affair — Middleton's great uncle invented the hammock and relatives have run it ever since. "I've worked here every summer that I can remember," the 33-year-old manager says.

It all started with Capt. Ward. "He ferried supplies to the rice plantations in the 1900s and barged rice to Georgetown for sale all over the world," says Middleton. But the captain wasn't wild about his sleeping arrangements. "He just got tired of sleeping on the straw mattresses below deck," where it was hot, Middleton recounts.

So, Ward began experimenting with different hammock designs. He tried a fishnet hammock, but the knots proved uncomfortable. Finally, Ward invented the Pawleys Island hammock, which is woven and has no knots.

Ward made the hammocks for friends who asked for them after they tried his, but he never went into mass-production.

However, a brother-in-law became interested and began making the hammocks at his beach house. In 1937, he and his wife opened a small gift shop off U.S. 17, Middleton says.

The business expanded over the years and today employs 40 to 75 people, depending on how busy things are. The business, understandably, is seasonal, since most people don't feel the need for a hammock in the fall or winter.

The hammocks are woven in an air-conditioned building. The ends are plaited to metal rings by machine, then hung on a rack. Men and women swiftly pass hand shuttles in and out to make the hammocks.

Their skilled hands can produce a hammock in 45 minutes, sometimes faster, Middleton says.

The staves are fashioned from specially-selected mountain oaks. "We boil our stretchers in water and bend them to give a graceful look," he says.

A Pawleys Island hammock usually lasts three to five years, sometimes 10 if cared for. If it's not handled properly, it can last only six months, Middleton says.

"Kids like to treat it like a trampoline. It's designed for gentle, easy swinging," he says.

Middleton says hammocks should be kept out of the weather and dried thoroughly if they get wet, to prevent mildew. Off-season, they should be stored in a dry, moisture-free place.

Some hammocks last longer. One of the last made by Capt. Ward hangs in a demonstration shed at the gift shop complex.

Refugee Ratio Is One-In-Five

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The U. N. High Commissioner for Refugees reports that in the East African country of Somalia about one of every five inhabitants is a refugee.

Ethiopians have been fleeing across the border of their country into Somalia in increasing numbers in the past 12 months to escape famine and civil strife.

According to the U.N. figures, there are nearly 750,000 refugees living in camps in Somalia while nearly a half million others are sheltered outside the camps.

Inflation Hikes Salary Demands

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher mortgage rates are causing some prospective job candidates to insist on larger salaries before they'll consider relocating.

According to Bill Cantor, president of the Cantor Concern, a New York executive recruitment firm, the same job hunters who would have taken a 15 percent increase to relocate six months ago, are now asking 25 percent before they'll move.

What's In A Pronoun? 'Vous' Isn't Like 'Tu'

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — O Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou Romeo?

When Juliet called her lover thou, she was using a grammatical form that has become extinct in modern English, but still makes a world of difference to Europeans.

To know the difference between thee and you is to understand how Europeans, by a flick of the pronoun, can express contempt or respect, friendship or indifference.

From Iberia to Siberia, the distinction is still carefully observed, even when so many other quaint relics of the Old World are crumbling under the leveling onslaught of television, hamburger stands and the welfare state.

As many an American or English visitor to the Continent has discovered, shifting from you to thou is about as smooth and easy as sailing around Cape Horn on a stormy day.

A premature "tu," "du," "ty" or "jij" can sour a budding friendship — like using a person's first name too soon. Employed intentionally, it is a deadly insult. On the other hand, failure to shift gears away from a formal "vous," "sie," "vy" or "u" at the right moment can be read as indifference and stuffiness.

The rule of thumb is to "thee" only your friends, relatives, pets and people you have decided to be rude to.

The problem lies in deciding when friendship is ripe for a switch to thee.

"There is no straight answer," says a long-time student of European manners. "It's when you feel the time is right" — when, as the French say, "something passes between us."

Until recently there were fears that "tu" might be following thee into semantic obscurity. Thus it was with some relief that the newsweekly L'Express recently reported: "Just as the country seemed ripe for the all-embracing neutrality of the English you, it's suddenly coming back to us, that funny little pronoun that says everything 'vous' doesn't."

But Marie-Louise Audiberti, writing in the respected daily Le Monde, believes Le Nouveau Tu "has nothing to do with the 'tu' of familiarity, or the 'tu' of contempt. It symbolizes a solidarity of class — the class of youth."

As a graffiti artist wrote on a wall during the 1968 student uprising: "either tu are with me or vous are against me."

"Tu" is not a word to be trifled with. Recently a French businessman was fined $200 for addressing a policeman as "tu." The court felt that he was doing it to be rude.

Originally, the distinctions between thee and you designated class. Poor folk were thee, and had to call the upper crust you. The French Revolution tried to stamp out "vous" on the grounds that it encouraged "haughtiness, which serves as a pretext for inequality."

Struggling to preserve his crumbling monarchy, Russia's czar in 1905 ordered landowners to stop "theeing" the peasants. Mussolini tried to make Italians switch from "lei" to "voi." Tito's communists tried to abolish the formal "per si" in Yugoslavia.

The end of the Franco dictatorship in Spain has triggered a rapid decline of the formal "usted" among young people, and sociologists predict it will have vanished in 25-30 years.

Italians, on the other hand, still express respect through the third person singular, "lei," so that "would you have lunch with me?" comes out sort of sideways: "would he have lunch with me?"

John East Waging An Uphill Campaign For Senate

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John P. East says he's always been independent-minded, even something of a lonely figure as a conservative professor in a more liberal academic world.

And East dismisses his critics' suggestion that if elected a U.S. senator, he would be a carbon copy of his senior colleague from North Carolina.

But ever since he took an incumbent Democratic senator, East has been counting on two others — Ronald Reagan and Jesse Helms — for help in fashioning a Republican sweep that would take him to Washington.

Helms, North Carolina's GOP senator, has already lent

East the support of his well-financed and sophisticated political organization. East has been using it to raise money all year, and his campaign is relying heavily on the television advertising it has produced.

Now East and his supporters are hoping Reagan, the Republican presidential nominee, can provide a boost, too. East is airing commercials asking for votes for Reagan as well as for himself, as Republicans look to Reagan to lure the independents and conservative Democrats they must have to win in North Carolina.

"Any campaign ultimately has to stand on its own merit," says East, discounting the idea that he cannot win unless Republicans do well nationally.

But, he notes: "To the extent Reagan runs strong, there is some asset. To the extent he doesn't run well, it presents a bit of a problem.

"The point is," he adds, "if you want to see important change in Washington, you have to change the Congress as well as the White House. That's the real crux of the point we're making."

East, 49, is opposing first-term Sen. Robert Morgan in the Nov. 4 election. His is admittedly an uphill battle, but he has been successful enough at raising money to wage a serious campaign that he hopes will spend $1.2 million. And East has been accustomed to adversity.

He was crippled by polio in 1955, after contracting the disease following discharge from the Marines at Camp Lejeune. Although he can walk short distances with leg braces and crutches, he is generally confined to a wheelchair.

"I enjoy excellent health aside from this," East said in a recent series of interviews. "I have the same physical problem Franklin Roosevelt had, and obviously he managed to accomplish a great deal politically in spite of it."

East has been a political science professor at East Carolina University in Greenville since 1964. A native of Illinois, he settled in North Carolina after earning a law degree and graduate degrees in political science at the University of Florida.

He has run for political office three times before, losing badly each time. He twice lost bids for Congress in the 1st District in the mid-1960's, and he was the GOP's sacrificial opponent to Secretary of State Thad Eure in 1968.

East projects a scholarly, articulate image, yet appears to move easily between the different worlds of political science and real-life politics.

He is the author of a book considered by his colleagues to be the definitive work on the originator of the city council-city manager form of government. His philosophy and world view, he acknowledges, however, set him apart from many in his field.

In an article lamenting the "liberal dominance" of college campuses, East described himself as "one of those rare creatures in academe, a 'conservative' political science professor."

East's specialty is political theory, from the ancients of Plato and Cicero to Edmund Burke and modern thinkers.

But he has also written contemporary political comment, such as in a 1973 newspaper column when he dismissed the Senate Watergate hearings as "left-wing McCarthyism," and Watergate itself as an effort by Democrats and the press "to win that which they lost last November at the ballot box."

East has been a more aggressive Senate candidate than many Democrats expected. He has attacked Morgan as having a record weak on defense spending, for supporting the Panama Canal treaties and for being generally indecisive.

"I just never ever find a case where Senator Morgan has shown the kind of leadership that one might expect from a U.S. Senator," he said. "I remember when he announced (for re-election) down in Lillington, he said he'd been an unspectacular senator."

"Now I think what he's saying is that he hasn't shown much leadership. He hasn't had much impact. He's been a follower."

East has described Morgan in campaign mailings as "my ultra-liberal opponent." And his pamphlets have accused Morgan of voting, among other things, to "rig election laws in favor of unions."

They also show his picture alongside senators like Edward Kennedy and George McGovern and charge "the Morgan-Kennedy-McGovern liberals have systematically and unilaterally disarmed the United States."

He agrees with Reagan on many issues, including his controversial comment on the Vietnam War. "The goal to restrain and stem further communist expansion was, yes, a noble one," he said. But, he adds, "Our conduct of the war was incredibly inept."

The U.S., East says, should have escalated bombing of the North and mined its ports. Now, he says, the country has fallen behind the Soviets in building the military, creating a defense gap.

"Our failure is to support our allies in critical areas of the world and to back their use of conventional forces," he said.

"We're not talking about warmongering. We're not talking about mindless saber rattling," he said on another occasion. "What we are talking about is to restore our defense capability, our defense muscle."

Morgan has blasted East for what he calls distortions of his record. On some of the votes, such as against a defense budget increase cited by East, Morgan notes he was joined by such conservatives as Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

And East's attack is complicated by the fact that Morgan was rated the most conservative Democrat in the Senate earlier this year by the American Conservative Union — a point East says is diminished by Morgan's description of himself as a moderate.

East says he has only pointed out the record, and

Child Abuse Tool Applied

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A new computerized system for reporting child abuse has been put into practice here, reports a management information publication.

MIS Week says the program, operating on the Illinois Department of Child and Family Services computer configuration, solves a big problem by centralizing records from more than 70 field offices. The system makes it possible to update cases quickly and establish common denominators. And, if a child is in imminent danger of a repeat attack an alert can be out on that case to prevent further abuse.

A key function of the new system is to match names and clues to turn up possible leads in cases where the offender remains undetected, such cases as those where the abuser takes the child for injury treatment to different doctors to avoid revealing a pattern.

The telephone hotline system operates 24 hours daily and can handle 18 calls simultaneously. Officials expect 10,000 calls per month this year. Information from all incoming calls is added to the data-base of cases going back 15 years.

SUPPORT GROUP
A support group for newly separated or divorced persons will begin meeting on Monday, September 27 at the Methodist Student Center. The group will be led by Dan Earnhardt and Bonnie Ratcliffe.

Persons desiring more information can call the ECU Campus Ministry office, 758-2030. The group will be limited to 12 people, so it will be necessary to sign up before 2:30 p.m. Monday.

Sen. Morgan Cites A Reliable Record, Hard Work

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Robert B. Morgan went back to his hometown of Lillington to announce his re-election campaign this year, and he surprised some in the crowd by saying he has not built a "spectacular" record.

What Morgan says he meant was that he has not been flashy in his freshman term, hasn't been a headline grabber or creator of any Senate spectacles.

"I mean that I think I'm a good, solid, hardworking senator, and I think my record will bear that out," he said recently. "Now if I wanted to be a spectacular senator, I'd pick me out two or three issues and I'd be charging and countercharging and holding public hearings. But that's not what the people of North Carolina want.

"They want a senator up there that they know is reliable, that considers issues as they come and who isn't going charging off on some special things to the neglect of others."

That is precisely the image that Democrat Morgan, 55, is trying to put forward as he finds himself in a more spirited re-election battle than he had imagined a year ago.

He faces a challenge from John P. East, a tough-talking, 49-year-old Republican underdog who has significant financial backing from the state's other senator, Republican Jesse Helms.

Morgan and his campaign staff don't want their race to become another referendum on Helms or his sophisticated political organization, and they are trying to avoid raising Helms' name. But if they can make their point that Morgan has been a quiet, shoulder-to-the-wheel senator, they don't mind if voters find him a comfortable balance to the attention-getting, national new-right figure Helms has become.

With a budget of $1.2 million — more than twice what Morgan expects to spend — East has mounted an aggressive television campaign. He has accused

Morgan, who describes himself as a moderate-conservative, of voting to weaken national defense, to appease foreign foes and to support organized labor.

Morgan has responded with his own television campaign, but he sometimes appears a bit uneasy campaigning in person.

Campaign manager Sidney
S. Eagles Jr., brought on in September to give direction to Morgan's drifting campaign, said Morgan wasn't anxious at first to ask past contributors for money. "The senator was reluctant to hassle his friends," he said.

At an Asheville fundraiser, where $40,000 was recently gathered for his re-election campaign, Morgan had to be coaxed onto the stage as veteran Democrat Wallace Hyde went through a mountain political custom — calling on supporters to publicly announce and hand over the contributions from his or her county.

"You're the first politician I've seen that didn't want to count the money," chided Hyde.

Any bashfulness, however, has been pushed aside by the seriousness of the challenge.
Morgan has called on Senate friends, like Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., to help him raise money.

East's ads, along with mass mailings and pamphlets, include strongly worded attacks on Morgan's record. "In my 30 years in campaigns, I've never seen one like this," Morgan said of them.

He has labeled some of the charges scurrilous and published a lengthy paper to rebut them.

"I'll tell you where it all comes from is Tom Ellis," said Morgan, referring to the Raleigh lawyer who heads

Helms' political organization.

"It's hard for me to believe that Helms knows all the stuff that's in these letters," he said.

Some observers suggest that by taking the time to answer the charges, Morgan has allowed his opponent to set the tenor and dialogue of the campaign. Some of Morgan's own television ads seem to be partly designed to rebut the charges on defense spending, for example.

And at a recent appearance at his local campaign office in High Point, Morgan got so worked up during his speech that he left the building and led his audience to a nearby GOP headquarters, where he asked for information distributed about him.

Morgan came away with a stack of pamphlets saying he had voted to "rig election laws in favor of unions" and another bearing an endorsement of East by Helms.

Morgan is a veteran of North Carolina politics, coming to the Senate in 1975 after winning the seat of retiring Sen. Sam Ervin. He won the Democratic nomination without a runoff in 1974, easily beat a weak
GOP opponent and this year faced no opposition in the Democratic primary.

Morgan got his first real taste of statewide politics in 1960 when, as a legislator, he managed the losing gubernatorial campaign of I. Beverly Lake Sr., a segregationist and his former law professor. Morgan has been frank in acknowledging that role and says he has changed since then.

"I grew up like everyone else in North Carolina with separate but equal facilities, and it was difficult for all of us to accept a complete change of our way of life. But as far as ever practicing discrimination or ever knowingly possessing discriminatory habits or thoughts, I never have,"
Morgan said in an interview.

Morgan said the senior Lake, father of the GOP candidate for governor this year, was more conservative than he. "I think his views were more unbending and unyielding than the average North Carolinian, and I think that was reflected in that election," he said.

In 1968, after 10 years in the state Senate, Morgan unseated Democratic attorney general Wade Bruton, whom he called the "rocking chair attorney general." In six years in the job, he gained a reputation as a consumer activist.

In the Senate, critics concede he is a hard worker but say he is sometimes politically insensitive. Early in his term, Morgan temporarily held up legislation that ultimately protected the scenic New River from destruction by damming — an unpopular position at home. He said he wanted to study the matter further, and then left on a 12-day foreign trip.

More recently, Morgan saw his friend and former campaign manager Charles Winberry, whom he pushed for a federal judgeship, become the first nominee in history to be rejected on merits by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

His greatest accomplishments, Morgan says, have been in pushing for rural housing initiatives and in heading the unglamorous Armed Services subcommittee on procurement — making policies to protect the government in buying military hardware when competitive bidding cannot be used.

He also has served on the Senate Ethics Committee and on the Select Committee on Intelligence, which looked into alleged CIA and FBI abuses.

Morgan said the intelligence panel strengthened both agencies. But it was also on that panel that he quickly saw what type of senator he did not want to be.

"I think the unfortunate part about it," he said, "was when Frank Church, D-Idaho, waved that dart gun around. There's no question about it; he sensationalized it. I don't want to be that flashy kind of a senator."

Blighted City Was Once Prosperous Factory Town

By BRIAN TUCKER
Associated Press Writer
BENTON HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Benton Harbor is rotting.

The downtown area of the once-prosperous factory town nestled on the shore of Lake Michigan is a crumbling shell of boarded-up windows and empty parking lots. Only three stores are open on Main Street.

Security guards roam corridors in city schools, which are under a federal court order to desegregate.

Unemployment claims nearly 26 percent of the town's workers. Plants stand empty and silent. Whirlpool Corp. is the only major employer left in town.

In less than a year, Benton Harbor has staggered through five "payless paydays," postponing payrolls until state-approved loans came through or willing merchants paid their taxes early.

The town's plight can be traced back through two decades of "white flight" and civic mismanagement.

Benton Harbor's 15,000 population is 80 or 90 percent black, a reflection of what happened when the town, in an unfortunate coincidence, began an urban renewal project just as racial violence ripped through America's cities.

The project took over a large area which had been home to most of the city's black population. The displaced scattered, and Benton Harbor's white residents fled.

Left behind were the blacks who couldn't move away, more and more of them out of work as the factories closed and the national economy suffered. Benton Harbor's woes only worsened through the years because of fiscal mismanagement. That problem, in turn, was heightened by political infighting on the nine-member city commission.

"They (the commissioners) would approve a budget, which was a completely useless document, and then do what they wanted with city funds," said Paul McCauley, the city's fourth manager in the past five years.

McCauley, 45, came to Benton Harbor in March, several months after the city took its first step toward reorganization by hiring a new financial director, Bryce Weeks.

"What I found here was unbelievable," said Weeks, 50, a retired Army finance officer who took the Benton Harbor job after holding a similar post in suburban Denver.

"There was no cash, no investments and a $400,000 overdraft," Weeks said. "You couldn't find this bad a financial example in a college textbook. Nothing was routine, everything was a crisis."

McCauley said his predecessors paid the salaries of an inflated workforce with federal revenue-sharing funds intended for physical improvements. No money was budgeted for capital improvements and nepotism was commonplace in city hiring, he added. Weeks agreed.

"Shortly after I got here, I looked out of my office one day and I saw two feet sticking out from under the copying machine," Weeks said. "It was the (former) city manager, Mel Farmer, changing the toner in the machine. This is the man responsible for running the city."

McCauley and Weeks have made some changes, cutting travel by city commissioners, increasing water rates and traffic ticket fines. They have laid off 110 of the city's 250 employees and hope to reorganize the town's seven departments into three. Voters recently approved a tax increase of six mills.

"I'm impressed with McCauley," said Leon Gideon, 78, president of Barentsen Candy Co. and a past mayor and city commissioner. "If the commissioners leave him alone, he could do a good job."

Gideon blames many of Benton Harbor's problems on Michigan's welfare laws, which dole out checks to new residents shortly after they arrive in the state. Benton Harbor is in extreme southwestern Michigan, near both the Indiana and Illinois borders.

"We got the bottom of the barrel, the people that couldn't make it somewhere else," Gideon said. "But I don't blame them. I'd go somewhere else, too, if I knew I'd get more money."

Another problem is the makeup of the city commission, says Terry Kelly, editor of The Citizen, a weekly newspaper geared to black readers.

"You have a city that's 80 to 90 percent black with 50 percent on welfare and a city commission that's 60 percent white and 100 percent middle class," she said.

Developer John Dickey, who moved from Chicago and bought several downtown buildings here, says he's optimistic about the town's future. He points to a recent order by Gov. William Milliken that all state offices must relocate downtown, and the conversion of an eight-story hotel on Main Street to a federal Job Corps training center.

"I've been to cities and seen the rehabilitation. I know what can happen," Dickey said. "All we need to do is get the people back down here — and they're coming."

Communication Is A Good Vocabulary

NEW YORK (AP) — "Want to add something meaningful to your life? Read the dictionary," says bookseller Tom Paynter, "and you will be rewarded in your business, school and professional life."

"With businesses crying for communicators," adds Paynter, Waldenbooks' Director of Reader Services, "it's a wonder people aren't reading the dictionary as if it were a best-selling novel. Name a career, and I'll bet my bottom dollar one of the ways to get recognition is by being able to communicate."

There are approximately 600,000 words in the English language, Paynter says, yet the average American adult's speaking vocabulary is only 10,000 oft-repeated words.

To choose a dictionary, he recommends visiting the nearest bookstore and checking several on specific words. He says to compare the number of entries, the depth and clarity of definitions, usage notes, pronunciation symbols and etymology — the origin and historical development of a word.

A readable typeface, sturdy binding and thumb indexing are also important for long and satisfactory use, says Paynter.

"Many people don't realize that dictionaries are mini-encyclopedias," says

Paynter. "Most desk dictionaries include sections on punctuation, italicization, capitalization, forms of address and salutation, measures and weights and metric equivalents, geographical place-names and locations, biographical names, rhymes and proper pronunciation of foreign words."

"In addition to a dictionary," says Paynter, "a thesaurus is a handy book to have around. Thesaurus means 'storehouse of words' in Greek, and it is a book of synonyms, much loved by anyone who needs to communicate in writing, and seeks alternative words with the same or similar meanings."

Dr. Peter Roget was the man who put together the first thesaurus in 1805, and his name is most often connected with the book, as in Roget's Thesaurus, just as the name Webster is connected with dictionaries.

"It's never too early to help children develop word power and self reliance," says Paynter. "There are many good children's dictionaries, even some for the beginning reader. And if your children are studying a foreign language, by all means pick up a foreign language dictionary for home use."

SHE LOST IT...

and this time she wasn't miserable
by Susan Kelly

Nancy Neyer was like many: extremely overweight her entire life and had exhausted all hope of losing weight. She had failed with weight control groups, quick weight loss diets and diet pills. She would always gain all the weight back and usually some additional pounds. But Mrs. Neyer, who is a computer operator, was more than 100 pounds overweight last June when she heard about a hypnotist in Greensboro who had had some success in helping people break the habit of overeating.

She had 4 appointments with Therapeutic Hypnosis of America in Greensboro and has lost 105 pounds so far, without hunger or any unpleasant side effects and without giving up any food she likes.

In contrast to all other weight reduction methods she had tried, the hypnotic technique was easy, she said. "This was no trouble. If we were having fried food, I'd eat fried food". She didn't count calories, or carbohydrates, or weigh portions, or restrict herself to any particular foods. She ate whatever she cooked for her children or whatever was served to her away from home, but took small portions.

The weight loss has been steady, and she continues to lose at about the rate of a pound a week. She hopes to lose about 10 more pounds. Mrs. Neyer said she has not been hungry and even in the first months when she was losing about 5 pounds a week, she felt healthy and increasingly energetic. She didn't plan a formal exercise regime to go along with her reduced food intake, but as the pounds dropped off she found that she wanted to exercise more, and she runs, or walks almost every day.

"I would tell anyone that there is still hope," she said. "One year ago I would have never believed this could happen to me. Eating properly is now part of my life and I've learned how easy it is to use my mind." Nancy Neyer: "I would tell anyone that there is still hope."

For Bill Clark, The Show Must Go On Every Day...

Text and Photos By Mary Schulken

Bill Clark sings all day. He starts early in the morning and walks and sings all day long. His songs flood tobacco warehouses and fill the ears of his congregation. And when it's time to pass the plate, he makes sure his congregation gets a fair shake.

"I love being a tobacco auctioneer," said Clark, who sells at Raynor, Clark and Forbes Warehouse in Greenville. "Otherwise I couldn't do it. Anybody that does it has to love it because it requires so much from you."

Clark likens his chant, that seemingly nonsensical mumbo-jumbo he utters all day, to a song. "I have my chant, and it has become my song, my basic bread and butter."

The veteran auctioneer is known on the flue-cured and burley markets as one of the best in the business. The name "Clark" is often heard in the same breath with the names of the legendary Tom Burton of Wilson, Charlie Baker of Kinston, Ray Oglesby of Greenville, and John Anderson of Rocky Mount.

"I learned my trade in Senior Auctioneer Otis G. Rucker's school in the spring of 1938," said Clark. "It was a six week's course. After that, eight or ten of us auditioned for a relief auctioneer's job for the summer of 1938 on the flue-cured market, and I got it. As an apprentice, I worked hard and practiced, practiced, practiced!" Clark has sold tobacco on the markets of North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Georgia for the past 42 years.

Talent, desire to be an auctioneer, and luck, according to Clark, are the three major ingredients to success in his business. "First of all, you have to have the desire, the will, to be an auctioneer," he explained. "It's rough, it's tough out there. You have hard days when you don't think you'll be able to make it.

"It's bad on you walking up and down those aisles sideways. I can't even walk straight anymore. I always wear my left shoe out before my right one. There are some days I don't think my voice will hold out," he added. "I use up half my bottle of 'cough medicine' (his special blend) going down one row."

Clark keeps a lemon handy to suck on and a towel to mop his often drenched face. "It's tough because you're fighting the elements, also. It gets hot in those warehouses and the dust can kill you."

Next comes the talent. "In the beginning I practiced every moment I could and I still do," the auctioneer commented. "I practice in my car, in the woods, and in empty warehouses. When I was an apprentice I would go into a friend's tobacco field and go down the row and sell the whole field."

Practice is the only way Clark can shake off the nervousness that plagues him not only at the beginning of each season, but at the beginning of each day. "It's the hardest thing in the world to start a season. I begin each one in worse shape than last year. I just have to go off by myself and sing," Clark prepares in June for the beginning of the selling season.

"It takes more than just practice, though," said the auctioneer. "It takes a certain amount of talent to begin with. You have to have the inclination, the special qualities, to be a really good auctioneer."

Clark said it took him eight years to develop his chant and get it where he wanted it. "It took me a long time and sometimes now I still don't have it exactly right."

a role in a play, the central role. "A tobacco auction is the greatest show on earth, yes sir-ree. And the auctioneer is the ringleader, the man in the center. He keeps it going and he keeps both sides satisfied."

The auctioneer admits he likes the limelight his job provides. "I'm a performer and I like being one. There are things that are tough, though, like protecting my throat. I hate missing ballgames in the fall, but the night air ruins my throat," he explained. "And if my throat can't work, the show can't go on."

"I only wish," he added. "That more people would come out and watch us. It's a show that's fast-moving, that's fascinating, and above all, that's free. We encourage school children, women, everybody to come and watch."

The auctioneer believes strongly in the bargain system for goods. "It's the only fair way to sell anything. I wish everything was sold like this, corn, peanuts, everything!"

"The farmers and the families are what makes this job worthwhile," he said. "I really love those families I see out here. I've sold tobacco for fathers, sons, and now their sons. That's what it's all about."

he said with a smile.

Clark also feels luck plays an important part in success. "I know it did in mine," he explained. "I was lucky that the relief auctioneer's job came up when it did. I was lucky I got the job, and I have been very lucky to have worked for the people I did. I've also been very fortunate that I've been happy with my work and loved it as much as I do."

Clark thinks his job is like

Smilin' Bill Clark... spends his day singing and selling tobacco. Clark's hand gestures are an important part of his work as an auctioneer. In addition to his own chant and gestures, an auctioneer must recognize the nearly imperceptible bids of the buyers, often only a nod or a mumble.

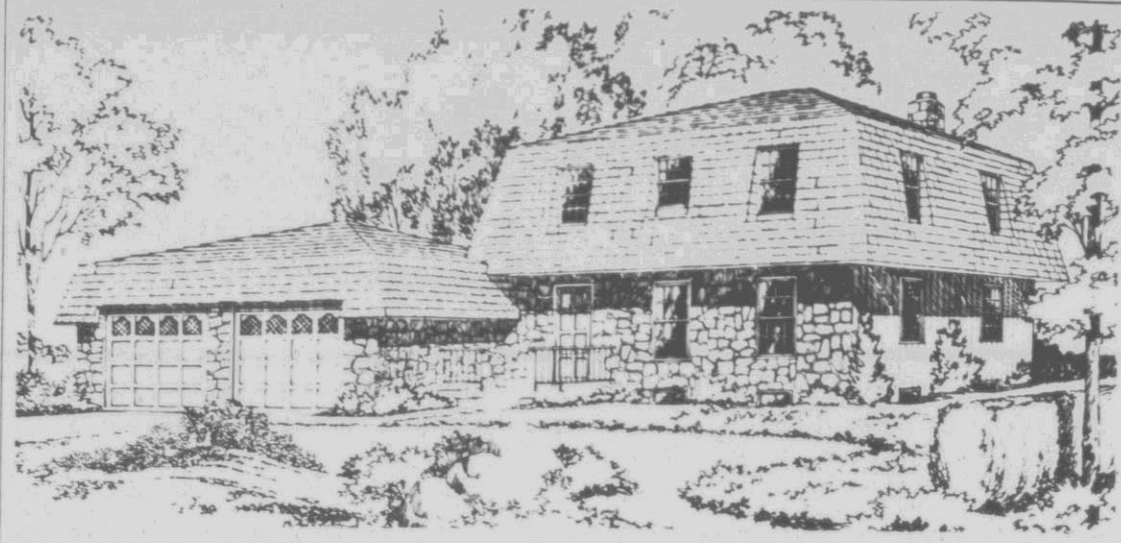

FATHER AND SON SELL TOGETHER...Bill Clark Jr., left, auctioneer, and Bill Clark III, right, his son, go up and down the endless rows of gold leaf together. Bill III leads the sale. "I think my son would make a competent auctioneer, but if he does that I want it to be his decision," said his father.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Roycroft

By Jerry Bishop
Beyond its stone-layered facade, the Roycroft, a three bedroom design, encompasses well over 2000 sq. ft. of open, livable space.

Living areas already generously proportioned, seem even larger because of their unrestricted union to each other in the combination of family room, kitchen and dining room/living room. At the same time, the floor plan calls for formal as well as informal space and eliminates any need for cross-traffic.

Shake-shingled mansard roof, rustic stone siding, and traditional dormered windows create a fresh, attractive exterior that promises plentiful space inside. The floor plan, highly contemporary, shows a two level arrangement with attached garage and large basement.

Entry is into a gracious foyer with coat closet and access to the upper level. The two-car garage can be reached from the foyer, a bonus in inclement weather.

To the right of the foyer, the formal areas of the home are ready for guests. The living room joins the dining room to result in an expansive area windowed on three sides.

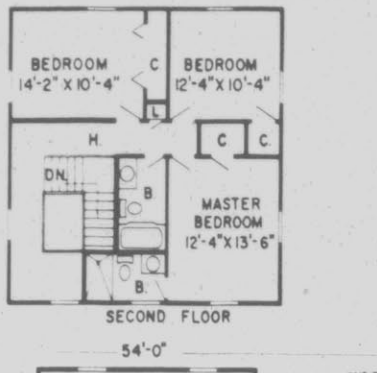

Back the hallway from the foyer, the kitchen and family room fill informal activity needs. The family room stretches more than 23 feet and merits a wood-burning fireplace, while the kitchen shows ample space for family meals and opens to the patio through sliding glass doors. Placed behind the garage, the patio is guaranteed privacy and is ideally suited for cook-outs.

The upper level calls for three bedrooms and two full baths, with the front-facing master bedroom enjoying a private bath and large closet.

A basement adds another 840 sq. ft. of space for storage or recreation room.

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q—Our attic has a partial rough floor. I will soon be finishing the entire attic. In order to save some work and money, I am considering leaving the floor open in the space that will be behind the walls and just putting down floor boards where the new room will be. Is this practical?

A—No. Do the entire floor. If you don't, the area behind the walls will always be dusty and so, eventually, will the newly finished room. Besides, you will risk dropping some storage articles between the joists and perhaps damaging the ceiling below.

Q—I have read about the orientation of solar-energy houses and the necessity of having the solar collecting plates facing south. Is that all there is to it regardless of which section of the country the house is in?

A—Solar orientation refers to the placement of the house on the property so that its glass areas are properly related to the position of the sun and the direction of the prevailing wind. Generally, this means that such glass areas should face south, but it would be a mistake to assume that the matter of orientation is that simple.

The complexities are many, since each of the climatic regions in the United States and all the Western Hemisphere has different orientation considerations. Telescoping the determinants, with heating the principal objective, we find that in temperate regions, maximum exposure of the house and the solar collectors is vital during the spring, fall and winter months.

In hot-humid regions where the heating requirements are small, solar collectors for heating-only systems need maximum exposure to the sun primarily during the winter, while during the rest of the year, air movement in and through the site and shading are the most important considerations. In the cool regions, maximum exposure of the solar collectors and the house to the sun is the primary objective of site planning.

But for solar cooling or domestic water heating, year-round solar collector exposure is required. And in hot-dry regions, the objectives are to maximize duration of solar radiation exposures on the collectors and to provide shade for outdoor areas in late morning or afternoon.

Even this limited description of solar orientation problems makes it clear how important it is that the architect or builder have a knowledge of the considerations for the particular area where the work is to be done rather than just a general knowledge of the subject.

Q—I had a white roof put on several years ago. It is made of asphalt shingles. The roof seems to be in good condition except for the fact that the shingles are stained or discolored in some places. A chemical has been recommended to bring back the white. My son is having a house built soon and also would like to have white asphalt shingles. How can he avoid the discoloring?

A—By having the contractor install asphalt shingles with fungus-and-alga-resistant white granules. If he doesn't have them in stock, he should be able to order them quickly.

GARDEN CLINIC

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q—Would a thornless locust be a fast-growing hardwood for the Buies Creek area? (G.B., Buies Creek)

A—Yes. Occasionally fast new growth on young trees causes them to look "weepy". If this happens, about one-half of the new growth should be cut in midsummer. New branches will develop and the tree will be stronger and have a better shape. (Bill Stanton, extension forestry specialist)

Q—When is the best time to prune a hemlock hedge? (P.H., Lenoir)

A—Early summer. Hemlock grows well all across North Carolina either as a specimen landscape plant or as a hedge. Pruning a hemlock hedge promotes dense, new foliage. Specimen trees should be allowed to grow naturally with little or no pruning to get graceful, drooping branches. Incidentally, Carolina hemlock (Tsuga caroliniana) is slightly more tolerant of urban conditions than Canada hemlock (Tsuga canadensis). Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist.

Q—I have been putting wood ashes in an area in my landscape. Will my azaleas grow there? (E.E., Cary)

A—You may have problems. Wood ashes will eventually create a high pH or alkaline condition, while azaleas like a low pH (4.5 to 5.5) or acid soil. Have a soil test made to determine the pH. You might need to add sulphur to lower the pH. Also, mix in plenty of rotted sawdust before planting azaleas and mulch heavily. And don't apply any more ashes. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q—I have wisteria on an acre lot. What will kill it and what time of year should I treat? (C.H., Hickory)

A—The easiest way to kill wisteria may be to cut the vine and then put a herbicide on the cut stump. Three herbicides that can be used this way are Ammate, Roundup and Kleenup. Ammate can also be used as a foliar spray, but this may not be practical if the wisteria is growing up trees. Treat anytime the wisteria is actively growing, which means between now and frost. (W.M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

An Eclectic Room Shows Diversity

By BARBARA MAYER AP Newsfeatures
The reasons for the popularity of the eclectic style of decorating today are not hard to find.

Eclectic rooms have a lot going for them. They are lively, accurate reflections of the diversity of the American way of life.

Furthermore, they are relatively easy to bring off. Add to these excellent reasons the fact that eclectic decorating allows one to use all the bits and pieces acquired over the years, and it becomes clear why many home decorators opt for this cozy, mix-and-match style.

An example of eclectic decorating at its best may be seen in a room designed by Allen Scruggs and Douglas Myers.

It combines the elements many consumers are likely to have on hand and pulls the look together with smashing accessories, plants, ethnic pieces and an interesting diagonal arrangement.

Textural interest is provided with an interesting combination of a floral wall covering for the walls and a coordinating striped covering on the ceiling.

A rounded chaise and soft side chairs lend a modern tone, while an Indian dhurrie rug and a Chinese painting over the fireplace lend traditional warmth.

The window treatments are high style. They consist of unbleached gauze dyed in a washing machine and wrapped — spiral fashion — around a simple wooden pole with the fabric ends hanging to the floor.

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

There is no doubt the quality of the paint plays an important part in the kind of result you get when you paint the outside of your house, but it's just as certain that the preparation of the surface is equally vital, perhaps more so under certain conditions.

You can use a high-quality paint, follow all the rules in the manner of application and work in ideal weather, only to find your seemingly excellent result begins to peel, blister and flake after a few months. This can be due to a number of reasons — among them excessive moisture, unusual dryness and chemically polluted air — but the most likely reason is the failure to prepare the surface properly.

Loose dirt and dust must be brushed away. Cracked and blistered paint must be scraped off and sanded. Areas of bare wood have to be primed. Nails must be countersunk, primed and covered with putty.

Flush nails must receive a coat of metal primer.

Caulking has to be replaced at butt joints and around doors, windows, utility inlets and exhaust pipes. Loose and crumbly putty around windows must be replaced. Steel wooling and sanding are necessary where there is loose rust. Glossy sections have to be dulled. Mildew must be removed.

Sound like a lot of work? It is. But it won't throw you if you start out with the idea that it's the most important part of the job of painting a house.

Once you get that out of the way, the mere act of painting, whether you are using a roller or a brush or both, is relatively simple. What especially irks us about surface preparation is that it is delaying what we started out to do: that is, painting the outside of the house.

But when you try to save time and work by using paint to cover defects, you are preparing to waste even more time and expend even more energy in a fairly short time. No coat of paint is any better than what is underneath it.

A fairly common question is how to remove paint from exterior walls of wooden shakes or shingles. Aside from having it done professionally at high rates, there is no easy way. It can be done, but it's a long, messy job that, somewhere along the line, you'll wish you had never started. The lesson to be learned from this is to paint shakes or shingles only if you are absolutely certain you won't decide at some later time that you might like a stain or wood preservative instead of the paint. If, on the other hand, you stain first and decide later you want to paint, it can be accomplished with a lot less trouble than the other way around.

On any kind of wood siding, remember you must use an oil primer under an oil paint, a latex primer under a latex paint. The latexes are preferred by most do-it-yourselfers because everything can be cleaned more easily, drying time is faster, the humidity factor is less important and some types "breathe" as a preventative against blistering and peeling. When the outside of a house is in moderately poor condition, the chances are you will spend twice as much time preparing the surface as actually painting it, with three or four times as much chance of getting a good result.

(The techniques of painting are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents AND a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

The Part-Time Worker First To Be Fired

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Part-time workers now number in the tens of millions.

According to figures released by the International Labor Organization, a great majority of such workers are married women, but young people in their early 20s and men in their mid-50s are increasingly joining their ranks.

Their wages are generally low and career prospects, if any, are dim. They are the first to be fired in an economic squeeze.

According to the ILO, there are over 11 million part-time workers in the non-agricultural sector of the United States economy. In Sweden, 25 percent of the total working force is made up of such workers. The situation in Eastern Europe is much the same. Some 30 percent of the total female employment in the German Democratic Republic is part time.

The jobs are generally low-skilled, requiring little or no experience or training. Most of them are in the services sector.

Eliminates Guesswork

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A new weighing system that eliminates the guesswork usually associated with measuring "loose" or "blown" attic insulation has been introduced by a California company.

Called the R-Value Weigh, the system electronically meters the amount of insulation a contractor installs on a state-certified scale, and prints a precise measurement on a verification card following installation.

"Prior to the R-Value Weigh," says Robert Breniff, Pneumatic Applications company president, "neither contractors nor consumers had any way of measuring precisely the level of loose insulation being installed."

"The R-Value Weigh eliminates the guesswork and provides consumers with a measurement accurate to within a 10th of a percent."

BIG PRODUCERS WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers make up only 3.5 percent of the work force of Belgium, yet they grow 85 percent of that nation's food supply, according to National Geographic magazine.

Local downtown areas, long on the downswing, are now picking up in many areas. Urban renewal is taking place in many areas. Restoration of historic areas, renovations of older housing and the opening of new stores and restaurants are all contributing factors. Perhaps the most significant factor, however, has been the rise in gasoline prices. If an area has facilities for living, shopping and entertainment that requires little driving, there is a good chance it will increase in popularity in the next several years. Perhaps you can benefit as well.

It will certainly be to your benefit to rely on the services of REALTY WORLD-CLARK BRANCH REALTORS INC., 1902 S. TVA Has Become Buyer Of Power

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority, long a bastion of public power supply, has signed a contract to purchase power from an outside contractor, according to an energy-industry publication.

Energy User News says that under recent agreements the TVA will purchase the power from a Sparta, Tenn., producer of rough wood parts for furniture.

The producer will create the power by burning wood waste from its plant operations. This will produce steam which will be routed through generating equipment to make electric power. The engine's exhaust steam powers wood-drying kilns in the plant.

The power will be delivered in the spring of 1981 and will be delivered to TVA by an area electric cooperative.

Ogaden Conflict Is Risky For Both U.S., Soviet

By RICHARD TOMKINS
Associated Press Writer

DEGAHABUR, Ethiopia (AP) — With intricate trench networks, troop concentrations and airlifts of food and ammunition, Ethiopia maintains a tenuous grip on its southeastern Ogaden region. But the semi-arid countryside that became a major battlefield between Ethiopia and Somalia in 1977-1978 remains a flash-point.

In isolated towns and cities, an estimated 60,000 soldiers, serving three-year stints and carefully mustered from other parts of Ethiopia, guard water wells, erect observation towers, dig trenches, scrutinize nomadic tribesmen and administer the few civilians under their control.

In the countryside of acacia trees and scrub, however, it is guerrillas of the Western Somali Liberation Front, with help from neighboring Somalia, who hold sway. They ambush government convoys and patrols, mine the region's dirt roads and spring ground assaults.

It is a continuation of the hostilities and animosities that have characterized the Horn of Africa for nearly 500 years.

The Horn of Africa, piece of land that juts into the Red Sea and Indian Ocean, is now highly strategic because it is close to oil shipping lanes to Europe from Middle Eastern and Persian Gulf countries.

Ethiopians and Somalis live in the area. They have been traditional rivals since the 16th century, when Ahmed Gurey — Ahmed the Lethanded — and his Somali followers swept into the Ethiopian highlands in a holy war between Moslems and Christians. Somalia today is predominately Moslem. The northern provinces of Ethiopia are predominantly Coptic Christian while southern and eastern provinces are Moslem. The rebellious province of Eritrea in the north and the province of Wollo in the northeast are half Christian and half Moslem.

Today, the Ogaden is a focal point that could erupt into a major crisis between the United States and the Soviet Union, both vying for influence in the region.

The Ogaden was given to Ethiopia at the turn of the century by European colonial powers and its ethnic Somali tribesmen regard the central government in Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, as a colonial oppressor. They demand either independence or union with Somalia.

Somalia, which regards the Ogaden as part of the national homeland, demands that the tribesmen be granted self-determination and has enshrined that principle in its constitution. Ethiopia maintains that the disputed region — nearly one-third its national territory and as big as California — is rightfully Ethiopian.

In 1965, the two countries fought a brief and inconclusive war over the Ogaden, a foretaste of the major war in 1977-1978 that lasted 10 months.

Ethiopia, with an estimated 17,000 Cuban combat troops and more than $1 billion in Soviet military aid, won the conflict. But continued fighting in the Ogaden has turned that victory into an expensive illusion that drains manpower and money from vital development projects.

For both the Soviet Union and the United States, warfare in the Ogaden brings difficulties and dangers.

The Soviet Union, once allied with Somalia, now is aligned with Ethiopia's Marxist military government in the hope of enhancing the Soviet position along the West's vital oil lifelines.

The United States has agreed to supply the Somali government of President Mohammed Siad Barre with military equipment and credits in exchange for facilities at its Soviet-built port of Berbera.

In August, Ethiopian troops invaded northwestern Somalia briefly, destroying base and supply camps of the Western Somali Liberation Front. Diplomatic sources in Mogadishu, the Somali capital, and Addis Ababa, believe the attack was also intended to serve as a message to the United States over the Berbera agreement, which Ethiopia vehemently opposes.

"Ethiopia sees the Berbera accord as moral and political support for Somali irredentism," a Western envoy said in Addis Ababa, referring to Somalia's demand for self-determination for the Ogaden. "They say the Somalis are there (in the Ogaden), they are threatening Ethiopian centers and the U.S. alliance may encourage them further.

"In effect, what they are saying is, 'What if we have to teach the Somalis a lesson, chase them all the way to Berbera, and you (the Americans) are there?'"

Diplomatic sources in the Ethiopian capital said recently both Ethiopia and Somalia are building up forces along the border.

In Degahabur, about 70 miles from the Somali border, hundreds of Ethiopian soldiers apparently are there to await for the next round of fighting.

An observation tower, several stories high, stands on the edge of this sprawling collection of mud and brick huts, Ethiopian soldiers use it to scan the flat countryside. A series of trenches also have been built around the city, which houses a major armored force.

Western newsmen visiting Degahabur during a recent government-organized trip were not allowed to inspect the military garrison in the city. Government officials indicated they control the immediate surrounding areas. On a visit to this area from the Somali side last May, this reporter saw Liberation Front positions as close to Degahabur as 5 to 10 miles.

At Werder, a town farther south, reporters on the recent trip saw a number of destroyed Somali army tanks used in attacks on the town in June and July, as well as captured Somali army equipment — French rockets, Arab hand grenades and several bags of American dried milk donated to Somalia by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Although clearly in control of Werder, the Ethiopians deploy skirmish lines and armored escorts when going beyond the town's confines.

"Sometimes they (rebels) come very close to the town's perimeter," confided one Ethiopian official.

Many observers contend that neither the Ethiopians nor the rebels can completely control the wasteland. Rebels hold the countryside but are unable to break the Ethiopian hold over the towns, which are supplied by air and are provided air cover against attack.

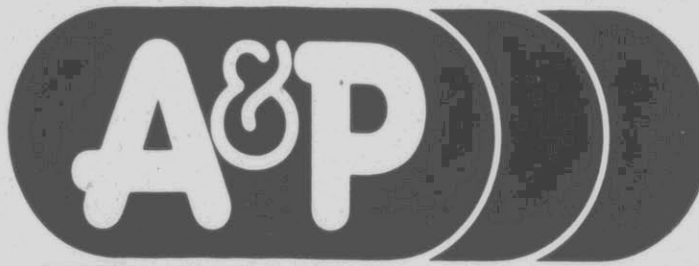

Ethiopia does not have the troops to enforce its presence in the vast stretches of desert between towns.

"It is a no-win situation for both sides," commented a Western diplomat in Addis Ababa. "The Ethiopians can't give it up because to do so would set a precedent for other regions of the country where ethnic groups are demanding independence," such as the Eritreans in the north.

"The Somalis won't give it up," the diplomat added. "To reclaim traditional homelands is a driving force among the Somalis and any leader who renounced it wouldn't last in power very long."

"This has been going on for 500 years. It certainly isn't going to end tomorrow or in the foreseeable future."

late-16th-century Benin bronze; head said to represent the usurper Lajuwé, 12th- to 15th-century Ibe terracotta; roped pot on a stand, 9th- to 10th-century Igbo-Ukwu bronze.

Nigerian Art Treasures On Display In New York

By JOAN BRUNSKILL
NEW YORK (AP) — "Treasures of Ancient Nigeria," the exhibition now at the Metropolitan Museum of Art here, is rich fare for both eye and mind. The collection is simply stunning to look at, while its background is an intriguing part of art history.

There are about 100 objects in the exhibition, representing seven cultures spanning more than 2,000 years. They are carried out in terracotta, bronzes of various copper alloys, ivory and stone, in distinctive styles, displaying highly refined workmanship.

The cumulative effect is of delightfully surprising variety. There are straightforward representational works, as well as more abstract designs, with one single theme outstanding: the treatments of the human head or bust, in lively, elegant interpretations rendered with sophisticated techniques.

The novelty of the collection lies in several factors. It has been rare for this regional African art, in these materials and of such antiquity, to be recovered and collected, let alone exhibited far away from its home ground. Wooden sculptures not much more than a century old have often represented for Westerners the major strength of African art.

These Nigerian works from ancient traditions have in most cases been excavated only in the past 40 years or so. They all come from African museums — this is the first time the Nigerian government has made available a major loan of some of its greatest art treasures, and it is immediately evident that the concepts and skills on display compare with those of accepted masterpieces from other cultures and times long revered in the West.

The earliest pieces in the exhibition are the Nok terracotta, dating from about 500 B.C. to A.D. 200. They are mostly heads and small figures. The warmth of tone and the rough, glinting textures of the terracotta are a rich complement to the strength of the designs and their expressiveness.

To move from this group to the Igbo-Ukwu bronzes of the 9th-10th centuries is an exhilarating leap. These are vessels and ornaments, encrusted with patina, profusely and delicately decorated with complex repeating patterns, often of abstract design although also incorporating animal forms.

The Ibe section contains a remarkable series of noble heads from the 12th to the 15th centuries, with outstanding poise and grace in every line, from every angle. Some are in smooth, burnished zinc brass or copper, some in well-preserved terracotta, all finely worked with sensitive molding.

The group of 15th-century Owo terracottas consists of more heads, of engaging individuality, and fragments of sculptures incorporating animal and plant motifs, probably of religious significance.

Benin bronzes are among the few Nigerian works of art to have won earlier appreciation outside Africa. A selection here is of strong quality and impressive variety — heads, plaques, vessels, and perhaps the most eye-catching works in the show: a large pair of magnificent bronze leopards, marvelously detailed, originally altar water vessels.

The Benin group, from the 15th-17th centuries, includes an intricate ivory cuff and a lidded bowl of ivory and brass, both finely carved.

On display also are some legendary Tsoede bronzes from the 14th century, a pair of enigmatic Esie soapstone sculptures dating from some time before 1850, and a large stone Ikrom monolith of undetermined date and mysterious significance.

Theories about their origins, and interpretations of these Nigerian art works are often still tentative because so many of them have only recently come to light, and archeologists and art historians are pursuing research in almost unknown areas.

As the guest curator of the exhibition, Dr. Ekpo Eyo, director of the Nigerian National Museum, says, "Our field is still very young and there are many gray areas that only more work can throw light upon." So it is of special interest to have available this sampling of rare and beautiful objects, and to share the speculation about their still obscure provenance and meaning.

Involvement Said The Key

Bob Pettis, Guidance Counselor at Wellcome Middle School, indicated that "the biggest problem with young people today is the feeling of non-acceptance," when interviewed by three students from Monty Frizzell's Special Activities class at Wellcome.

"Like adults, children want to feel significant, to fit in, to belong and count for something. They want to have a place in the life and feelings of others, especially those people that are significant to them. (parents, brothers, sisters, teachers and peers)," Pettis said.

He continued, "Finding this place is not difficult for all children, but some become discouraged when their contributions are not appreciated. If students cannot find a place through acceptable behaviors, they will try unacceptable behavior."

One way to counteract this type of problem is with preventative counseling. "The whole concept of preventative counseling is to reach-out to youngsters at a very early age and help them to develop good, healthy self-concepts, so they won't have to use socially unacceptable behavior to get the attention they need," said Pettis.

He pointed out that, the key word is involvement, and through group counseling, individual counseling, dramatic play, discussion groups, class meetings, club activities, interest centers and hobbies the students can be directed towards a better self concept, as well as aided in developing coping skills that will enable students to live a happy and rewarding life.

Pettis stated "the happiest moments of my day are those moments spent helping some youngster flip some switch in his or her life that will make their world a better place to grow and become the best person possible."

Marilyn Monroe's Life Dramatized

Ever since her death was announced to a shocked world in August, 1962, people have been fascinated by the life and legend of Marilyn Monroe. Biographers have written thousands of words about her, friends and associates have penned 'confidential' remembrances, and thinly veiled films portraying the life of a tragic sex goddess have been produced.

Lawrence Schiller was a young photographer whose work became world famous when he photographed Monroe's famous nude swim in the ill-fated and uncompleted "Something's Got to Give," just months before her death. He was fascinated by her, became a close friend, and is believed to be one of the last people to see her alive. His interest in Marilyn has never waned, and he is the producer of "Marilyn: The Untold Story." This three-hour dramatization, adapted from Norman Mailer's best-seller, will be telecast as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Sept. 28 (8 p.m.).

Catherine Hicks stars in the title role of the three-hour drama that traces Monroe's life from her early days. The cast also includes Richard Basehart, Frank Converse, John Ireland, Viveca Lindfors, Jason Miller and Sheree North.

Portraying a personality as well known and dynamic as Monroe isn't the easiest assignment, but Hicks feels she's well qualified to do so. She first became interested in the legendary actress when she won the part of Maggie in a college production of Arthur Miller's play, "After the Fall."

"The character of Maggie was Miller's way of writing about his life as Marilyn's husband," Hicks says. "When I was given the part, I set out to try to find everything that was known about Marilyn so that I could understand my character. Then, when the opportunity came to test for this film, I knew Marilyn inside and out."

Hicks has "no misgivings" about the role. "It's not an exploitative picture," she adds. "It's a tragedy in a classic sense, and lots of questions are raised. It isn't bigger than life — it's less than life."

Schiller and Hicks are hopeful that Marilyn's numerous fans around the world will be satisfied with the film.

SHE WAS THE STUFF of dreams...the laugh that never dies away...the eyes that promise secrets too bold to be told. She was Marilyn Monroe, Hollywood's greatest sex symbol, and her memory lives again when Catherine Hicks stars in "Marilyn: The Untold Story," a world premiere airing on the Sunday Night Movie," sept. 28 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Sunday Daytime

IN "THE YEAR OF THE GENTLE TIGER," George Harris (c) portrays a judo coach whose two star pupils are social misfits. Keni (Keenan Shimizu, r) is the victim of racial prejudice, while Angelo (Tony Candell Jr.) is a rebel. The drama airs on "The CBS Afternoon Playhouse," on Sunday, Sept. 28 (5-6 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Harris Gets First Licks At Acting

"As a boxer, I always tried to get the first lick in. But after I started in judo, I didn't need to prove anything. I developed an inner confidence. I knew how good I was, and I didn't need to prove it to anyone else. Now, if someone wants to fight, I either walk away from it or talk my way out of it."

The speaker was George Harris, a sixth-degree black-belt champion judo player. But one situation which Harris was unable to talk himself out of occurred when he was asked to make his acting debut in "The Year of the Gentle Tiger," to be

Was It An Accident?

On a clear spring day, an airplane crashes into a vacation cottage in Ireland, killing the wife and two small children of an Irish-American insurance executive stationed in Dublin. A tragic accident? Sabotage and murder? That's what the executive, Steve Donegan, wants desperately to find out, in "Cry of the Innocent," the NBC Late Night at the Movie airing Sunday, Sept. 28 at 12 a.m.).

The movie, filmed on location in Ireland, is the first original story written for television by acclaimed mystery writer Frederick Forsyth. Rod Taylor stars as Donegan, Joanna Pettet, in dual roles, plays his wife, Cynthia, and financial reporter Candia Leighton.

Laurence Olivier Stars In Thriller

NBC-TV's Sunday Big Event is a modern day thriller starring Laurence Olivier, Gregory Peck, James Mason and Lillie Palmer. Olivier portrays a Nazi head hunter who wages a desperate search for an insane German physician (Peck) who is nurturing 94 young boys, cloned from the physical remains of Adolf Hitler. The youths have been placed in foster homes where the environment closely resembles that of Hitler during his formative years. This was done in the belief that history would repeat itself with the emergence of another 'leader.' The doctor also plans to murder the foster fathers. The story stretches across Europe, into the steaming jungles of Argentina and eventually winds up in the United States. Olivier's character plays a clever cat-and-mouse game with the doctor — one trailing the other's activities and vice versa. The cast delivers super performances — as would be expected from such a stellar lineup of top-notch actors. Also, the ever-changing locales — from sunny South America to snowy Switzerland — is a definite 'plus' for the film, which was a 1979 Twentieth Century-Fox release.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Is Slim Whitman blind? When he sings he always looks up — never at the audience. My friends and I have our 'pros and cons' about this. E. YAW, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: He's definitely not blind! Maybe the lights are too bright. Or maybe all those good looking gals out there are too distracting! Q: Please tell me something about Powers Boothe, who won an Emmy for his role as Jim Jones in "Guyana Tragedy." L. THOMPSON, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: A little over a year ago, the Texas native was an unknown actor trying to establish himself on the New York stage. Then came a role in a TV film, "The Plutonium Incident," followed by a guest-stint on the short-lived "Skag" series. Now his excellent portrayal of the religious fanatic has catapulted Boothe to stardom. Q: I would like some information about a program called "Prisoner: Cell Block H." Will it be expanded to an hour? P. DONEVAN, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: "Prisoner" is an Australian-made series that's evidently taking this country by storm. It's also syndicated, which means any channel can pick it up. The show is available in a 60-minute format, so why don't you contact the station airing it in your area? Q: Does Gil Gerard, the star of "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century," have any children? If so, how many? K. MARLON, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Gil and his wife, actress Connie Selleca, have no children yet — they've been married less than a year — but hope to start a family soon. Q: Is it true that the actor who played Hogan on "Hogan's Heroes" was killed? S. LIGON, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

A: Yes. Crane was murdered a few years ago, and his killer has never been apprehended. Q: Is Roz Kelly, who plays Pinky Tuscedero on "Happy Days," any relation to Gene Kelly? L. STEELE, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: None whatsoever. Roz was born and raised in New York. She's also quite an accomplished photographer and her photos have appeared in several of our top publications — Harper's, Mademoiselle, Rolling Stone and New West, to name a few. Mixed Blessings

Anne Lockhart was born Anne Kathleen Maloney — but opted to adopt her mother June's maiden and professional name to capitalize on ties with her theatrical family. Today, however, the fourth generation performing Lockhart regards the name as a mixed blessing.

"It helps one break into show business, which is no easy matter," Anne says. "But after that, if you can't prove your talent, forget it. Also, there are a lot of people who are all too willing to say, 'Here comes another Hollywood kid.' They're just itching for you to fall on your face."

Oscar Established

The Academy of Motion Pictures Arts & Sciences has established a new honorary Oscar to recognize individual accomplishments in film science and technology. It is being called the Gordon E. Sawyer Award, in honor of the late sound director.

Sawyer who died last May, was an Academy governor for 17 years and a member of the scientific committee for 43 years. He was also in charge of sound and acoustical design for the Academy's Samuel Goldwyn Theatre.

As with other honorary Oscars, the Sawyer Award will be given only in those years when a worthy candidate is proposed by the Scientific or Technical Awards Committees.

Teenager Embarks On Journey For Stolen Car

Mark Hamill stars as a high school student who embarks upon a journey in search of the stolen Corvette he and his friends lovingly customized, in "Corvette Summer," making its network TV premiere this week on CBS. The film will be presented in two parts, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 1-2 (8 to 9 p.m. each night).

Kenneth W. Dantley (Hamill) and his friends, with the help of their shop teacher, Mr. McGrath (Eugene Roche), rescue a junked Corvette. With the lavish attention and obsessive behaviour of car-crazed youths, they rebuild and redesign the car into the auto of their dreams. Suddenly the car disappears. When Kenneth hears their unique creation has been seen in Las Vegas he takes off, determined to recover the treasure.

Vanessa (Annie Potts), a young woman travelling alone in her van, picks up the hitchhiking Kenneth. What starts as an uneasy alliance between the two eventually blossoms into the first real romance of the teenager's life.

The film's plot is unusually strong, yet strikes an excellent balance with the character.

Perhaps most amazing is the ease with which Hamill makes the hayseed he plays so believable—a difficult task in these cynical times.

But Hamill doesn't carry the movie alone. It's been skillfully cast and features with a gallery of fully-developed characters several quick studies of characters who appear and disappear from the movie.

Roche gives a sensitive performance as the shop teacher with special interest in Kenny. Kim Milford is in smooth control as a slick, natty dealer in hot cars.

Baker Stars In 'Mitchell'

An incorruptible detective's attempts to stem the criminal activities of two powerful, corrupt businessmen nearly costs him his life in "Mitchell," the CBS Late Movie airing Wednesday, Oct. 1 (12-midnight). Joe Don Baker stars in the title role. Martin Balsam and John Saxon co-star.

When Mitchell first investigates a shooting at the home of Walter Deaney (Saxon), a top union lawyer, it appears to be an open-shut self-defense case. But Mitchell suspects that Deaney is guilty of murder. He tries to investigate further, but the F.B.I. stops him. Agents say they are building a case against Deaney on other charges and want no outside interference.

Mitchell is reassigned. This time he's told to observe community leader and businessman James Arthur Cummins (Balsam) who's suspected of heading a multi-million-dollar narcotics ring. When Mitchell confronts Cummins at his home with the accusations, he's politely escorted out the door.

Neither Cummins nor Deaney appreciates the attentions Mitchell is lavishing on them. Then both men try to take matters into their own hands by removing the detective from the scene via bribery—maybe even murder!

Dreyfuss On TV?

After steadfastly rejecting television roles for years, film star Richard Dreyfuss ("Jaws" and "The Goodbye Girl") is now seriously considering signing for a telefilm in which he will portray Civil War General Ulysses S. Grant.

Debra Winger, who co-starred with John Travolta in "Urban Cowboy," says she's seen the movie at least 30 times.

"I always thought I'd probably be like Marlon Brando, who never bothers to see his own films," she says.

"But I'm just the opposite. In fact, I can hardly wait to get into the theater and watch the audience reaction!"

Magic Saw Changes

"Two things really bother the young kids today," says Magic Johnson, "and that's jobs and school. There are other problems, sure, but these two are what I heard about the most when I went around the country."

Earvin 'Magic' Johnson is a semi-regular on NBC-TV's "Speak Up America," seen Fridays (9-10 p.m.). He's also a superstar with the champion Los Angeles Lakers basketball team.

The 21-year-old athlete spent most of the summer traveling and wherever he went, he spoke with the young of this country, both for 'Speak Up' as well as for himself.

"In my home state of Michigan, the car industry isn't as good as it was," says Magic. "Now a lot of guys are thinking about going to college instead of wanting to work in factories. They want to learn a trade. The younger kids — the ones in grade school — talk a lot about sports and what's the best way to get into one," he reveals.

"With the girls, it's the equal rights thing. A lot of them feel they are mistreated in sports, not given a chance. All they want is the opportunity to compete on the same level," Magic continues.

"In Los Angeles, the military draft is big, and registration and a lot of kids don't know which way to go. They seem to be opposed to it."

Magic noticed something else during his travels regarding little kids. "There seem to be more of them playing ball — all kinds. In the big cities of the east, kids play in the streets and alleys. In the west, you see a lot of parks and areas set aside for sports."

Magic ended his travels about two weeks ago when he reported to Palm Springs, Calif., to begin working out for the 1980-81 NBA season.

MAGIC TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE — Earvin "Magic" Johnson is not only a superstar for the champion Los Angeles basketball team but he is becoming a big man with the young people in America. He is a semi regular on "Speak Up America" airing Fridays (9-10 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Love Story Returns

Few motion pictures have ever had a stronger impact on the American public than "The Way We Were," returning to television as NBC's Friday Night Movie, Oct. 3 (8:30 p.m.).

One reason for the endless string of plaudits it garnered is the fact that this is an excellent depiction of the way movies once were. Remember those high-powered, big-star 'weepies' of the 1940s?

The bitter sweet love story is set against the uneasy times of the 1950s, when political suspicions and accusations turned friends into betrayers and creative careers were smashed overnight.

Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford topline the cast as two people who drift into marriage and out of love without ever really understanding why. The cast also includes Bradford Dillman, Lois Chiles, Patrick O'Neal, Viveca Lindfors, Allyn Ann McLerie and Murray Hamilton.

Katie (Streisand) is a socially-involved young radical who actually marries her Prince Charming — Hubbell (Redford). He's a handsome, conservative young writer with a yearning for success in Hollywood and no particular convictions to be courageous about.

When charges of 'Communist infiltration' begin to fly fast and very loose, Katie goes to Washington to protest. Hubbell only bends with the wind, and their marriage, once so strong, breaks in the process.

VAGAS FERGUSON, Notre Dame's all-time career rushing leader, was the top draft choice for the New England Patriots in 1980. He should be in the heat of the action as the Patriots take on the Denver Broncos on "Monday Night Football," Sept. 29 (9 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Denver Broncos Visit Patriots

The Denver Broncos and New England Patriots, two NFL teams that split their first two regular-season games of 1980, will face off at the Pats' Shaefer Stadium as ABC Sports presents "Monday Night Football," Sept. 29 (9 p.m. to conclusion).

When New England's second first-round draft choice came up on the first day of the NFL draft back in April, coach Ron Erhardt was elated to have as his choice a proven running back Vagas Ferguson of Notre Dame was tabbed by the Pats, and he joined former teammate, linebacker Bob Golic, who was selected in the second round of the 1979 draft.

"Vagas has been a real work-horse and a very durable player," commented Erhardt. "He's a winner and will give us some durability at the running back position where we have had some durability problems the last few years."

Erhardt refers to the offensive backfield that he coached for six years before becoming head coach in April of last year. Last season alone, starting running back Andy Johnson was lost for the season after five games with a knee injury and his primary backup, Horace Ivory, missed five games after falling to a knee and ankle injury in the season opener against Pittsburgh. Fullback Sam Cunningham also had some problems with injuries, fighting shoulder, knee and ankle problems while missing four full games and large portions of two others in the second half of the season.

As Notre Dame's all-time career rushing leader, Ferguson holds several school rushing records. New England was able to nab him after acquiring the selection from Houston in a trade for

The Broncos also have a new running back at their disposal this season — Lawrence McCutcheon. McCutcheon was the third-round draft pick of Los Angeles in 1972 and spent eight years with the Rams.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — Speculation regarding FRED SILVERMAN becoming one of the 'unemployed' ended with the announcement that NBC-TV's extended his contract.

DAVID SOUL and his longtime best gal, PATTI SHERMAN, are set to tie the knot and say that Oct. 12th will be their 'big day.'

CHERYL TIEGS, whose All-American image has been badly tarnished by her blatant affair with photographer PETER BAIRD, is doing a good bit of fencemending with estranged hubby STAN DRAGOTTI, who masterminded her career from the very beginning. They've been seen cuddling in several Gotham night spots over the past few weeks.

Is the end in sight for WARREN BEATTY's reign as Tinseltown's most elusive lover? He's just won DIANE KEATON back from the arms of another smooth-talker, JACK NICHOLSON, and it's rumored they're now altar-bound.

Who says servants don't make much money? ROBERT GUILLAUME, the sarcastic butler on "BENSON," demanded $25,000 per episode, then got another $100,000 just for signing on the dotted line! By the time he's completed filming this season's shows, Bob will have banked a staggering amount — $650,000, to be exact.

MICHELLE TOBIN is probably choking on every bite of the fish she caught on a recent outing. While the young actress was out of town, "HAPPY DAYS" producers decided to cast her as Joanie Cunningham's best friend. But when told she'd gone fishing, they pegged 19-year-old CATHY SILVERS for the part. It seems that with the production deadline just hours away, they couldn't wait for Michelle to return home.

Incidentally, there's good news for fans of Cathy's dad, PHIL SILVERS. A full check-up at Cedars-Sinai hospital revealed nothing more than a low-grade viral infection. He's now home recuperating and improving daily.

Mustering out the G.I. look.

ROWLAND G. FREEMAN, III, Administrator, General Services Administration

What happened to the excess of uniforms supplied for the services in World War II? —S.W., Oshkosh, Wis.

● Many veterans retained their uniforms as a patriotic memento upon being discharged from service. Uniforms declared surplus were stripped of all distinctive markings and sold to the public by competitive bid by the War Assets Administration. Since 1949, the Dept. of Defense (DoD) has made available all excess military property to the General Services Administration. If GSA determines the property to be surplus to any Federal need, we offer to donate it to state governments. If no state has use for it, the property is disposed of by DoD. It may be donated to veterans groups for ceremonies.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Was Peter Sellers stingy or extravagant, and how much money did he leave? —L.P., Palm Springs, Calif.

● The late actor did not deserve or live up to his reputation as a big spender. Compared to his peers, his bills showed a lot of restraint. He did not gamble or throw lavish parties, but that doesn't mean he was miserly. He much preferred to channel his money into the latest in electronics (stereo and such) than to deck out his wives in furs and jewels. He loved cars and boasted that he had gone through 80 of them in a few years. Sellers, a shrewd businessman, owed much of his wealth to the way he handled the percentage deals for his movies. The precise amount of his estate isn't known yet, but it's said he had around $12,000,000 in cash assets in Switzerland, plus homes in Beverly Hill and Gstaad.

An estate of memories and great wealth.

FOR JANIS IAN, recording star

Would you like to be still singing 10 years from now? —H.K., Salina, Kan.

● No. I want to be retired. No more work; nothing to do except relax. The lazy life is for me — the chance to move around without anyone bothering me. I love to write songs and to sing them. I don't want to be a has-been in 10 years, so I would like my music to be remembered, and while people are remembering, I would be off, taking it easy and having fun.

FOR ROBERT WALDEN, co-star of TV's Lou Grant

Did you base your Joe Rossi character on anyone you know? —J.S., Joliet, Ill.

● My portrayal is a composite of a lot of different people I've seen in news rooms. The first person I followed around at great length was a reporter on a West Coast newspaper who was disliked by all. I asked him how he could function that way. He told me he'd rather be loved than hated, but rather than be ignored, he'd opt for dislike.

FOR WINK MARTINDALE, host of TV's Tic-Tac-Dough

What has been the most valuable lesson for you since being on the show? —R.B., Burlington, Vt.

● In interviewing contestants continually, I have learned to listen. Being a good listener can make a so-so interviewer like me a better interviewer. I have also learned to do my homework. After being embarrassed several times when mispronunciations, I go over and over potentially troubling questions or difficult names and places until I feel pretty comfortable with them.

FOR ANNE MEARA of TV's Archie Bunker's Place

In your long career, what role or scene gave you the most trouble? —J.M., Bay City, Mich.

● In the late 50's, I was in a soap — The Greatest Gift — playing an unwed mother who had to give up her baby. I had to go to the crib for a last look and gaze at the infant with a heartbroken expression and sob. "Dennis." When I looked into it, what I saw was a string of obscenities that a stagehand wrote all over the doll ("Dennis"). I kept breaking up.

FOR JANCY CAMPBELL, Executive Director, Left-handers International

Are left-handed people increasing or decreasing? And are there more left-handed men than women? —L.S., Terre Haute, Ind.

● Definite statistics are hard to come by; sorry about that, but it's generally agreed that 10 to 15 percent of the population is left-handed. Surprisingly, there are slightly more left-handed men than women. Among children, the percentage of lefties is also higher.

FOR JOYCE A. BOCKAR, M.D., author of The Last Best Diet Book

Are there records showing the time and place of the world's first dieters? —A.G., Huron, S.D.

● I searched but could not find the answer. It must be remembered that fatness was valued as a show of wealth and status in many early cultures. The first dieters thus had to value thinness or fitness above the status of fatness. I think good candidates for the first dieters would be the warrior Spartans.

PRO Ben J. Wattenberg, co-editor, Public Opinion, senior fellow, American Enterprise Institute

You could vote for the party rather than the person — if you know what the party stands for. But these days, party and ideological labels are confused. Liberals used to be for "vigorous economic growth." Politicians approvingly spoke of "belching smoke stacks." If you're for that today, some liberals will say you're "anti-environmental" and, therefore, "conservative." If Democrats are the more liberal party — what do they stand for? How about the Republicans? This time, listen to the man. Check his record, then vote.

PRO AND CON

In the U.S. Presidential Election Is It Better to Vote for the Person?

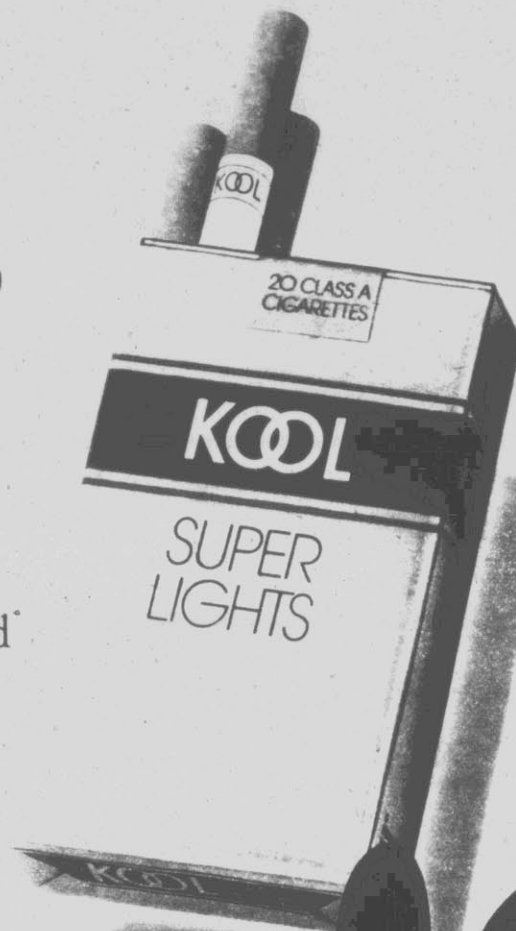

CON Peter D. Hart, public-opinion analyst

The most illuminating insight about what kind of President a person will be comes from his political party. Basically, the Democratic Party sees government as an instrument to solve problems and help people, while the Republican Party sees it as an instrument that hinders problem-solving. These two contrasting philosophies reveal how the candidates will approach the major issues of the day and the type of people they will appoint to office and about building coalitions of like-minded people, which is the way government usually accomplishes its work.

The 20-Year Overnight Success Of Martin Sheen

Once, Martin Sheen supported himself by being the voice of a station wagon in a car commercial. Now his career is purring along in overdrive, but to his wife and four kids, he's the ultimate family man.

By Rena Dictor LeBlanc

When Ramon Estevez arrived in Hollywood 20 years ago, the ultimate fantasy of all struggling young actors was to have a good choice of roles, earn lots of money and live a glamorous life. Today, Estevez is known as Martin Sheen, and his hard work and talent have earned him solid, lucrative parts. But he's still Ramon at heart, and he prefers a close-knit family life and keeping in touch with old friends to climbing the film capital's social ladder.

The sudden surge in demand for him following his gripping performance in Apocalypse Now has brought about many changes in the life of the boyishly good-looking 40-year-old actor. "Since the picture opened, there have been some extraordinary movie offers," says Sheen. "All this is going to change my career, certainly. But it's not going to affect me."

One of the bonuses of his new post-Apocalypse status is that he can be more choosy about the roles he plays. His latest movie, released last month, is The Final Countdown, the story of a U.S. warship caught in a time warp. His next, Loophole, which also features Albert Finney and Susannah York, was filmed in London and will be released early in 1981.

Sheen, whom George C. Scott once called "one of the best young actors alive," has had no formal acting training. He was born in Dayton, Ohio, the seventh son of a family of 10 children. His father was Spanish and his mother Irish.

Since his days in grammar school, Ramon Estevez has wanted to be an actor. In high school he performed in nearly 14 plays and went on to win a statewide acting contest which sent him to New York for a CBS screen test. Though his test wasn't successful and he soon returned to Dayton, Sheen was convinced New York was the place to begin his career as a professional actor. With the money he saved selling Christmas trees and a loan from a priest, the 19-year-old Sheen returned to New York with a few hundred dollars and a lot of ambition.

For his first acting job he was paid $5 a week, and, to support himself, he worked as a janitor alongside another acting hopeful, Al Pacino. It was in New York that he met his wife, Janet, an art student; they were married a year and a half after a mutual friend introduced them.

Sheen's first trip to Hollywood was not a stylish one. The bus on which he was a passenger broke down outside of Albuquerque, N.M., so he and five fellow passengers had to push it down the highway in a snowstorm until it started. That was the first of some 12 cross-country trips the young actor made, but they paid off; Sheen began to appear in television films and commercials. (He was the voice of a station wagon in a 1967 car commercial.)

At this point, Ramon Estevez changed his name because he found he was continually being typecast in ethnic roles. "I look Irish," he points out, "so I thought of Bishop Sheen and used the name Martin because it went with Sheen."

As Martin Sheen, he has been a guest star on virtually every major television series and has been nominated for an Emmy three times for his roles in the TV movies The Execution of Private Slovik, That Certain Summer and Taxi. Among his feature films are The Subject Was Roses, Catch-22 and Badlands, and his stage work has included Hamlet and Death of a Salesman. A turning point in Sheen's career occurred when he was cast as Army Captain Benjamin Willard in Apocalypse Now, Francis Ford Coppola's film on the horrors of the Vietnam War. Just as the movie greatly affected the actor's career, it had a profound effect on his personal life. In 1978, after working on the movie for more than a year in the grueling jungle heat of the Philippines, Sheen suffered a heart attack that shook him to the core.

In Apocalypse Now, the most important film of his career, Sheen confronts bald, Buddha-like Marlon Brando on the waterfront.

"Working on that movie was the roughest thing I ever did in my life both physically and emotionally," he admits. "I always had some illness or other, and until the last six weeks of shooting, we never knew when we were going to finish the film. One night, in my cabin in the mountains, I was up and down continually with a burning sensation in my chest," he continues. "I was having a heart attack, and I ended up in the hospital. But the experience changed my life."

"After the heart attack, as I lay in the hospital, I said to myself, You're sick because you're not taking care of yourself. This is a warning. I resolved to take better care of myself, and I prayed," he adds.

One of Sheen's happier experiences while working on the film was meeting Marlon Brando for the first time. And some of Brando obviously rubbed off on Sheen; the younger actor doesn't want to be considered for any acting awards. Like Brando, Sheen feels that competition among actors for Oscars and Emmy's is absurd.

Sheen is now enjoying the fruits of his labors. He and his wife of 18 years and their four children live a quiet life in Malibu, Calif., and Sheen is the ultimate family man. His three sons and one daughter range in age from 12 to 18, and when they're not traveling to film locations, the family lives in a large, ranch-style home with an acre of backyard — complete with a trampoline.

In a profession where an easy-come, easy-go attitude about marriage and divorce often seems to prevail, it is refreshing to hear Sheen talk about his wife. "She is the best person to ever come into my life," he admits, but then adds with a laugh, "and we have never agreed on a thing, never once, and we probably never will. And, for that reason, we always have a lot to say and fight about."

Sheen enjoys spending a lot of time with his children. Sometimes old friend Al Pacino will join them to play baseball in Sheen's backyard. Often, his big living room is a gathering place for friends and relatives.

Perhaps the greatest testimonial to Sheen's success as a father was spoken by a friend, who said, "If I ever have a chance to come back in another life, I want to come back as a Sheen kid."

The Shadow Government

Washington's Faceless Power Elite

Each year, an estimated $2 billion to $3 billion is paid by the Federal Government to consultants—for work that critics say should be done by the Government itself.

By Michael D'Antonio

Without an act of Congress, without an election or a Constitutional convention, a fourth branch of Government has joined the powers that be in Washington. To the lawmakers, the judges, the President and the bureaucrats, civics textbook authors should now add: the consultants.

Unseen, and some say uncontrolled, this shadow government, this invisible bureaucracy, is gobbling up the power and responsibilities most Americans think belong in the hands of public servants.

Technical or scientific consultants have haunted Washington almost as long as there has been a Federal Government. They've been needed for advice on highly sophisticated projects or to provide assistance in areas of limited government expertise.

In the past decade, however, the use of consultants has skyrocketed. Today, estimates Arkansas Senator David Pryor, $2 billion to $3 billion is paid to consultants every year. And that,

Government for the lion's share of their work. Rand, for example, "was established with the sole purpose of doing research for the Air Force," says Pryor. "Ninety-one percent of its $34.5 million in revenue in 1977 came from the Federal Government."

But the "invisible bureaucracy" includes a lot of little guys, too. Consulting is one sure-fire way for a Federal worker to increase his paycheck beyond what Government regulations allow, and many consultants come from the ranks of Federal agencies. In fact, a Senate subcommittee investigating consultants under Pryor's direction, has isolated a "revolving door" situation: Many Government workers shuttle from the rolls of Government servants, to consultant, and back again.

Though in certain instances, outside expertise is definitely needed, Federal agencies sometimes hire consultants for simple clerical work that could easily be done "in-house," or for work that, to critics, seems just plain unnecessary. Pryor is fond of releasing lists of questionable consulting contracts to illustrate what he calls a growing problem.

A recent prime target for Pryor has been the Department of Energy. DOE's consultants have been hired for jobs such as providing a list of Federal permits required to build a power plant (consulting fee — $9,800) and teaching employees how to organize files (consulting fee — $150,000).

Other consultant contracts that have been brought to light in the past year include a Defense Department contract that had consultants compare two kinds of foxholes, and a four-day/$350 per day Department of Housing and Urban Development contract requiring a consultant to stuff HUD forms into grant applications. The money, of course, eventually comes out of the taxpayers' pockets.

The most widely known consulting abuse that has turned up involved a $184,000 Health, Education and Welfare study of waste in the nation's welfare system. Even the consultants who did the work, Mariscal and Co. of Washington, say the study was meaningless. Company officials have admitted to billing the Government for three months of work when no work was done. And when the funds for what Mariscal officials called a "meaningless" exercise ran out, an extra $23,000 was hastily authorized to continue the nonwork.

On the Senate side, Pryor may be a leading critic of the shadow government, but he isn't the only one. Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D.-Wash.) and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, (D.-Mo.) have also been looking into consulting contracts. Eagleton points out that consulting contracts are used by agencies "to do an end run" around hiring limits imposed by the President.

On the House side of Congress, critics of consulting contracts include Representative Herbert E. Harris II (D.-Va.). Harris is chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Services Subcommittee, and he has been investigating contracting practices for more than a year.

Pryor and Harris recently requested the General Accounting Office — a watchdog organization charged with reviewing Federal programs and agencies — to prepare a report on consulting contractors. It sampled 11 contracts awarded by six agencies and valued at nearly $20 million.

The investigators found that former Federal employees are given preference when contracts are awarded; that consultants' work is often shelved and not used by agencies; and that Federal agencies frequently go on year-end spending binges, awarding scores of consulting jobs on the last two days of the Federal budget year.

Though many consulting contracts are bid on, Carl Black, a retired Marine aviator, told a Senate hearing this year how he and his fellow consultants can stay in business with the Government without competing for contracts. The best way to consulting's easy street, says Black, is a simple Government purchase order. "Much easier and faster than contracts," he says. Purchase orders for up to $10,000 can be approved by lower-level bureaucrats. A purchase order can be issued without competition for the job and without public notification. So a mid-management type in Government can easily shuttle work to a consultant who might also hap-adds the freshman Democrat, is a very conservative estimate.

But the dollars don't bother Pryor as much as the apparent transfer of power from public servants and accountable, elected officials to unaccountable, faceless corporations. "This invisible bureaucracy is pervading our Governmental system," Pryor says, "and in some cases is literally taking over the decision-making."

The firms Pryor is talking about include "think tanks" such as Arthur D. Little, TRW, Price Waterhouse & Co. and the Rand Corporation. Many of these firms depend on the Federal Executives of Price Waterhouse & Co.: Organizations like this do research, and, some say, help form policy for the Federal Government.

Price Waterhouse & Co.

Rep. Herbert Harris (D.-Va.)

Better than purchase orders, however, are "sole source justifications," reports Black. If a bureaucrat or other official can prove that there's only one firm capable of handling a specific consulting job, he can award the work — and often millions in fees — to that one company without giving others a second look.

Black says he testified because he believes "consultants are a legitimate way for the Government to do business, but like most other things, the system is neither pure nor perfect." He says that honest consultants would prefer a uniform Government-wide contract system.

Pryor's subcommittee, there is actually evidence of consultants dreaming up areas ripe for study, isolating the proper agency, convincing members of Congress to request the study and then offering their services.

Joseph N. Pate, a contracting officer for the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, explains how his agency hired a consulting firm to review grant applications and set up an entire office to help the company do its job. "It was basically a project to enlist private enterprise to help the agency evaluate grant applications," Pate says. LEAA's primary function is awarding law-enforcement grants to state and local governments. "What the Government is doing," he says, "is contracting out for a service that the Government should be performing itself." Pate says that 60 to 65 percent of LEAA's annual budget is paid to contractors who perform what he believes is the Government's business.

Critics of the consulting boom are particularly concerned about a consultant's motives. Private business is, after all, there to make money. And many of the consultants for Federal regulatory agencies are the same companies that are used by the industry the agency is trying to regulate.

For instance, the Department of Energy awarded a $600,000 consulting job to Booz-Allen and Hamilton to study electric utility finance. BA&H also happens to serve 27 of America's 50-largest utilities. Washington attorney Daniel Guttman, who has thoroughly studied DOE's contracting, wonders, "Should private energy interests be given the key to the inner sanctums of DOE policy-making?"

Exactly how many Government consultants there are is a question beyond the abilities of Federal computers. Officials can say, however, that consulting is a very lucrative business. Some consultants take home salaries in six figures, nearly all of it from Federal consulting contracts.

There is great Government interest in examining the consultants, the shadow government, and revising Federal use of outside help. More than three years ago, the President called for reform of consulting practices and his Office of Federal Procurement Policy has been working on that reform ever since.

Herman Shipley, deputy associate administrator, says new Federal management regulations should tighten up consulting contracts, requiring more stamps of approval and proof of need before a consultant is hired. But the Federal bureaucracy "is a massive organization," he admits, and the shadow government is a nimble target.

Castig light on the shadow government is a forbidding challenge, said Pryor in a speech on the Senate floor. But "even though I often feel that I am fighting a grizzly bear with a switch," he added with Arkansas wisdom, "persistence shall prevail before the bear eats us alive." FW

Observations

Most happy gala. We're celebrating, and you get the presents. The happy occasion? "Masterpiece Theatre's" 10th anniversary season. And to cap a decade of hits—from The First Churchills, through favorites like Elizabeth R, Tom Brown's Schooldays, I, Claudius, and, of course, Upstairs, Downstairs—we've got some special treats for you this season. On Public Broadcasting Service stations as always.

Detectives' "godfather." Leading off tonight, Sept. 28, is Crime and Punishment, Dostoevsky's classic model for countless thrillers that pit the dedicated detective's intelligence against the criminal mind. For four weeks you'll follow the tortured Raskolnikov, whose "superman" delusion leads him to "right" the wrongs of his world by murder... until he's led to confess by the cunning magistrate, Porfiry. You'll recognize Raskolnikov as John Hurt, the mad Caligula of I, Claudius, and Porfiry as Timothy West, who played the title role in Edward the King on the "Mobil Showcase Network." Sound good? It's been hailed as "a triumphant landmark in television drama."

Matchmaking mother. Starting Sunday, Oct. 26, a change of pace: Pride and Prejudice, an exquisite satire, a lighthearted, deft comedy of manners from one of the greatest English novelists, Jane Austen. You'll meet Elizabeth Bennet, an early—and delightful—feminist rebel against her Regency English society's obsessions with money, social status... and the marriage mart where Elizabeth's mother is determined that her five daughters succeed. And for them, what a batch of bachelors!—the arrogant, the absurd, the handsome, the wicked... and "the man Elizabeth loves to hate," Mr. Darcy.

Wars and passion. Later in the season comes Testament of Youth, the real-life story of Vera Brittain—Oxford student, battlefield nurse in World War I, pacifist, feminist, journalist—that critics called a "poignant dramatization," "a sustained triumph," "a plush, terrible fable." Then on to World War II with Danger UXB ("DANGER: UNEXPLODED BOMB"), an authentic adventure series about a British "mission: possible" squad struggling with tricky fuses, "butterfly bombs," booby traps... and love interests just as explosive. Deadly passion also fills the next production—Thérèse Raquin, novelist Emile Zola's dark masterpiece of adultery and murder. Truly, the whole season is something to celebrate. Check your local listings for broadcast schedules.

It's a fact: "Masterpiece Theatre" its people and programs have been honored with 43 Emmy award nominations over the years—including three for last season. It's captured the winning trophy 20 times so far.

Stirring Around With Cereal

By Marilyn Hansen

We all know how quick and easy a bowl of cereal and milk can be on a busy morning; whether hot or cold it's just about America's favorite breakfast. Many cooks don't realize, however, how versatile cereal can be as a readily available, nutritious cooking ingredient. Take a look at our recipes and see for yourself.

PIZZERIA CHICKEN BREAST

- 1/2 cup finely crushed breakfast flakes (about 1 1/2 cups cereal)
- 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 whole chicken breasts, halved
- 1 egg, beaten
- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can or jar (15 oz.) pizza sauce
- 2 tablespoons water or white wine
- 1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese

1. Combine cereal, flour, salt and pepper, mixing well. Dip chicken into egg coat with cereal mixture.
2. Fry in hot oil and butter in large skillet until lightly browned on both sides. Arrange in shallow baking pan.
3. Combine pizza sauce and water, mixing well; pour over chicken. Sprinkle cheese over chicken.
4. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven about 30 to 40 minutes or until cheese is melted and chicken is tender.

Makes 2 to 4 servings

SPICE 'N RICE CRUNCHY COOKIES

- 1 1/4 cups finely crushed bite-size rice or corn biscuits cereal (about 3 1/2 cups cereal)

- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 3/8 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 pkg. (6 ozs.) semi-sweet chocolate bits

1. Heat oven to 375°F. Combine 1/4 cup of the cereal crumbs, flour, baking powder and spices; mix well.
2. Beat together butter and sugar until light and fluffy; blend in egg. Add combined dry ingredients and chocolate bits; mix well.
3. Shape level measuring tablespoons of dough to form balls; roll in remaining cereal crumbs. Place about 2 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet; bake for 13 to 15 minutes. Immediately remove from cookie sheet; cool on wire cooling rack.

Makes about 2 dozen

PEANUT BLONDIES

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 1 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups quick-cooking oats
- 2 cups (12-oz. package) peanut butter baking chips

1. With electric mixer or food processor mixing blade, cream together butter and sugars until fluffy; blend in eggs and orange juice.
2. Mix together flour, soda and salt; add with oats and 1 cup chips to creamed mixture. Spread batter over bottom of greased 9 x 13-inch baking pan. Sprinkle remaining 1 cup chips on top.

Sound Advice on Common Ear Problems

By Paula Dranov

Considering that some 16 million Americans suffer from some degree of hearing loss and that most of them — about 12 million — aren't being treated, it's evident that many of us are just plain neglecting our ears. Here's a rundown on some of the most common ear problems.

Wax. Wax in the ear protects the eardrum by trapping stray particles that get into the ear canal. But some people's glands secrete excessive wax (it has nothing to do with hygiene), and this can be a nuisance — it can even cause hearing loss.

Never remove wax yourself by poking or probing. Let a doctor flush it out.

Swimmer's Ear. The medical name for this usually mild condition is external otitis. It is an inflammation caused most often by swimming in crowded or over-chlorinated pools or by failing to dry the ears thoroughly. Milder cases may disappear on their own, but severe cases may require antibiotics — so it's best to see a doctor.

Perforated Eardrum. The eardrum is a membrane at the base of the ear canal that transmits sound waves into the middle ear. It is a lot closer to the ear opening than most people think, and it can be perforated by sticking things into the ear, by a blow on the side of the head or as a result of infection. Small perforations usually heal themselves, but large ones may require surgery. A perforation can cause a loss of hearing as well as dizziness, nausea and vomiting.

Ear Infections. Children are particularly susceptible to infections of the middle ear — known medically as otitis media. It's estimated that 50 percent of American children contract an infection before the age of 2. These conditions can be chronic or acute and usually follow an infection of the nose or throat or occur as a complication of other illnesses such as mumps, measles or flu. The principal symptom of acute otitis media is a severe earache sometimes accompanied by fever. It is usually treated with antibiotics.

Chronic otitis media can result in hearing loss. Treatment involves draining the ear and antibiotics.

Otosclerosis. This is a hereditary disease characterized by the growth of a bone in the framework of the middle ear. Hearing is affected when the new bone limits the movement of the stapes — one of three tiny bones in the middle ear that helps transmit sound. At this stage, otosclerosis usually can be treated surgically. However, when it spreads to the inner ear, nerve function may be impaired. At that point, little can be done.

Otosclerosis is more common in women than men and usually develops between the ages of 16 and 40. The first symptom is a slight hearing loss, and then tinnitus (ringing in the ears).

Tinnitus. A very common condition, tinnitus usually is described as a ringing in the ears, although the sound may resemble a whin-trum, clear up when the wax is removed.

More severe cases can occur as a result of problems in the middle ear — perforation of the eardrum or the accumulation of fluid behind the drum. Infections and otosclerosis may bring on the noises, as can allergies, arthritis, low blood pressure, anemia, diabetes, thyroid malfunction and injuries to the middle ear. Treatment involves locating the exact cause and eliminating it.

Tinnitus is most serious when the cause is in the inner ear. Because this area can't be examined, diagnosis is difficult. The trouble may stem from a disorder in the cochlea or hearing center, or from an increase of the inner ear fluid caused by allergy, infection or circulatory disturbances, or as a result of a tumor pressing on a nerve leading from the cochlea to the brain.

Ménière's Disease. A disease of later life. Ménière's disease affects equilibrium and is caused by a disturbance in the inner ear due to allergy, infections, certain diseases, a variety of drugs or stress. The first sign is usually mild deafness in one ear. But the syndrome is characterized by abrupt attacks of vertigo (loss of balance) often accompanied by nausea and vomiting. Ménière's disease is usually treatable with drugs, a restricted diet or, in severe cases, surgery.

Sam Levenson Goes To a Wedding

By Sam Levenson

Photography has become an essential part of today's wedding rites. The wedding-package deal now includes the wedding-picture album, in addition to the minister, the groom, the caterer, the photographer, the honeymoon trip.

Perhaps one day we will even have ordained photographers who can perform the entire ceremony.

It is not hard to spot the photographer when you first arrive at a wedding. He — or she — is wrapped in coils and is usually peering from behind the flower arrangements. Suddenly he will come leaping out of the brush, ambushing innocent civilians and blinding them with flashbulbs.

There are cases on record of photographers' helpers getting caught up in the marriage ritual and even getting married by mistake.

As the bride comes down the aisle, she is often preceded by a photographer walking backward and directing the action: "Hold it. That's it. Two more feet. Hold it. That's it. Keep moving! Stop! Hold it! Hold it." To the father: "Would you get out of the way, please!"

During the reception the photographer goes for the tables. "You people here, stand over there behind the other people; the men here behind the women there. You'll swallow later, Mac. Ready everybody?" Shoot! Flash! The atrocity pictures. The mass executions. The courageous, forced smiles; a piece of a cocktail hot dog still protruding from one guest's lips.

The stage directions from the photographer continue. "Kiss the bride, kiss your aunt, kiss your uncle, kiss the groom. Dry off your face. Fix your lipstick. Fix your hair. Kiss your kid sister. Hey, kid sister, throw the flowers at your older sister. Catch it. Try again. The bulb didn't work. Cut the cake. Dance with the groom. Wave hello, wave goodbye. Pull up your dress. Show your garter. Carry her over the threshold. Carry him over the threshold."

The faces of the two sides of the family are as different as the classic images of comedy and tragedy. The groom's side: long somber faces, no smiles — the losers. The bride's side: all smiles — the winners.

But there's a bright side to wedding pictures. The photo album will later serve as a check-off list for the mother of the bride. "What do you mean, Mr. Caterer, there were three hundred people? There were only two hundred and ninety-four and I have the pictures to prove it." The album also makes an excellent check-off list for presents already received and outstanding.

Don't Wait for Tomorrow — Prepare Your Will Now

by Kate Kelly

If you're like many Americans, you probably don't have a will. And if you don't, you should. Though planning for one's own death is certainly not a pleasant prospect, there are several pressing reasons why drawing up a will should become a current priority.

If you die without leaving a will, you have given up your right to decide how your property should be divided," says Andrea Hyde, an attorney in private practice in Mineola, N.Y. "Without a will your property will have to be disposed of in accord-with a state formula which may not suit your needs. A child, a married couple might assume the estate of each would be left to the other, but in New York State, for example, that is not the case. According to statutory formula, a portion of the estate would be left to any surviving parents."

lawyer should have a clear idea of your financial situation. That way, he or she can help to develop a plan to best provide for your survivors' needs while still taking advantage of possible tax savings," explains Hyde. Next, try to come up with a general idea of how you would like your property disposed of. It may be as simple as leaving your entire estate to your spouse, or you may wish to make some specific bequests to people or organizations you'd like to remember. (List names and addresses of anyone to be specified in your will.)

you have children, then prepare a will that stipulates how they are to be provided for is a prime parental responsibility. Finally, a will may also save both time and money (in taxes and legal and administrative expenses) for your survivors.

Drafting an Attorney
Preparation of a valid will requires specific knowledge, and for that reason, you should hire a lawyer rather than try to do it yourself. Personal recommendation is, of course, the best method for locating an attorney, or a local bar association will be able to provide referrals.

The cost is likely to run $50-$100 an hour. In general, the more money involved in the estate, the more complex the will, and therefore, the higher the legal fee. It is perfectly appropriate to get a more specific price estimate from the attorney you plan to use.

What to Consider
To plan for your first meeting with an attorney, locate all relevant materials: titles to property, any divorce, separation or prenuptial agreements, life insurance information and a list of assets (for example, bank accounts, bonds, brokerage accounts) and liabilities.

In order to advise you properly, a will should remain current for a good period of time. Some reasons for updating it would be the death of a beneficiary or a change in marital status. Otherwise, review your will at least once every five years to see that it still accomplishes exactly what you intend.

You'll also want to consider whom to name as executor — the person who will manage your property immediately after death and see to its disposal. Your spouse may be capable of that, or if you have a complex estate, you may prefer to appoint someone with business expertise.

If you have minor children, you will need to appoint a guardian. You'll want someone to be responsible for the children themselves as well as any property you leave them. You may even want to name two individuals — a guardian to look after the children and a trustee to manage the money. These are two very different abilities, and even with a small estate, it may be in the best interests of your children to separate the two duties.

Where to Keep Your Will

Once you have a will, it will be useless if the original is lost or damaged. So consider carefully where you keep it. Some lawyers will retain the original for you; banks with trust departments sometimes store wills as a free service to customers; your executor's safe deposit box is another good possibility. (Since your own safe-deposit box will be sealed at the time of death, this is generally a poor place to keep your own will.) Then for easy reference, photocopies of your will (with a note giving the location of the original) may be kept with more accessible important papers.

In all probability, your will should remain current for a good period of time. Some reasons for updating it would be the death of a beneficiary or a change in marital status. Otherwise, review your will at least once every five years to see that it still accomplishes exactly what you intend.

Pete Gogolak Gets His Kicks a New Way

by Dennis Lyons

In 1956 a family of four fled the violent Hungarian revolt and settled in the small Upstate New York town of Ogdensburg.

That was the only time Pete Gogolak and revolution went in opposite directions.

In the early 1960's, Gogolak became the first soccer-style place-kicker in football history, initially with Cornell University and later with the A.F.L. Buffalo Bills. Then in 1966, after playing two seasons with Buffalo, Gogolak signed with the New York Giants, becoming the first player to jump to the archrival N.F.L.

And now, Gogolak, 38, is involved in the grass-roots level in one of the biggest revolutions in American sports history — the growth of soccer as a participant and spectator sport.

"Soccer took off in the pros when Pelé got here," says Gogolak. "But nobody really got a hold of the game until its roots. I felt the time was right."

out for his high-school team at the urging of friends. At 6 feet 2 inches, they wagered, he'd be an asset even if he was a novice.

He quickly took to the game, and before retiring in 1974, his kicking approach from the side instead of straight-on drastically changed place-kicking in football. It opened the sport to other "sidewinders," including his younger brother, Charlie, a former place-kicker for the Redskins, and Johnny, who kicked for Dartmouth College.

"I have nothing against football. After all, I played it and made a lot of money doing so," Pete notes. "But kids at that age shouldn't be wearing all that equipment and hitting so hard. I think soccer is much better for them. Everyone plays. Everyone touches the ball, and if you make a mistake, so what. The game moves so fast hardly anybody notices. That's great for their confidence."

"I love working with the boys and girls [girls make up about 20 percent

On one foot, Gogolak in his glory days with the New York Giants.

...and on the other, Showing the way at his soccer camp.

Thomas A. Silvestri

Two years ago, Gogolak, the Giants' all-time leading scorer, joined forces with Dick Packer, a member of the 1956 United States Olympic team. The two formed the Packer-Gogolak soccer day camp for boys and girls between the ages of 6 and 14. Says Gogolak: "The only way the game was ever going to really catch on was to get the kids playing it."

At its start, the camp consisted of only 75 children and 10 coaches getting together for three weeks in New Canaan, Conn. But now there are a total of four camps — the other locations are in Philadelphia, Rye, N.Y., and Morristown, N.J., — with an average of 150 campers attending each week. The cost is about $100 per week, including full soccer uniforms and a coach for every eight players.

In Hungary, boys and girls play soccer as naturally as American kids play baseball. When Gogolak came to America at age 14, he'd never heard of American football and only tried of each camp roster] and introducing them to my game," Gogolak says. "Dick and I always try to be on hand to give of our experience directly. And I'll tell you what. There's really a difference in the basic knowledge of the game these kids have now than they did three years ago."

Married, with two sons, aged 8 and 3, Gogolak says that even though he played football and loves soccer, he has no intention of forcing either game on his children. "They get out and play soccer, especially the older one, but I'm not pushing," he said. "Strange thing is, it looks like they might wind up liking baseball best of all."

To beautify your home today . . . and cherish as a unique possession tomorrow.

A Limited Edition.

Available only from The Franklin Mint.

Advance subscription deadline:
October 31, 1980.

Royal Copenhagen . . . Wedgwood . . .
Lladró . . . Ginori . . . Spode . . . Okura . . . Royal Worcester . . . Haviland . . . Franciscan . . .
Royal Doulton . . . the 25 greatest porcelain houses of the world, each represented by an original collector's thimble created by that house solely for this series.

For the first time ever, the greatest porcelain houses of the world are participating in the creation of a collection that is unprecedented in history. A collection so intriguing—and so unique—that it is certain to be admired today and highly prized in years to come.

The most renowned porcelain makers in every part of the world are represented in this collection. And assembling it has been a formidable challenge, requiring three years of planning by The Franklin Mint. During that time, representatives of the mint have traveled all over the world, contacting the leading porcelain houses and persuading each of them to be a part of this historic international issue.

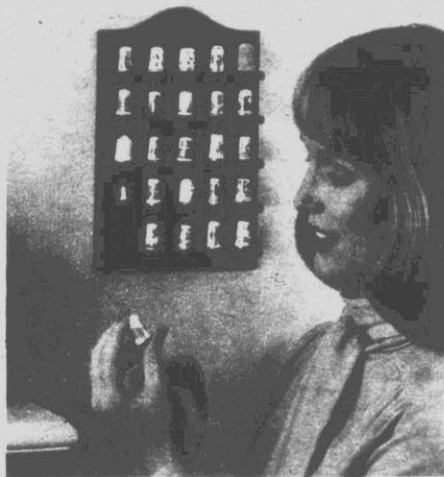

An original thimble from each porcelain maker

Each of the participating porcelain houses has created a special thimble exclusively for this collection. A thimble of original design, by its master artists, portraying in an imaginative way the theme or style of that particular house. In addition to the intriguing design, each thimble will bear the name and identifying mark of the house that created it.

Individually the thimbles will be fascinating. For each one is entirely different and many vary in size and shape as well. And each one tells another story . . .

The Royal Copenhagen thimble is elegantly simple. The regal crown of Denmark—in pure 22kt gold—appears above the famed symbol of Royal Copenhagen. And along the rim is the name "Royal Copenhagen" in delicate script. The color is unusual: pale blue at the top gradually shading to a rich royal blue at the bottom.

The Haviland thimble is in glazed Limoges porcelain, decorated with pink flowers and green leaves—all in soft focus—evoking a sense of romance for which the French are well-known.

This handsome, hardwood display shelf will be provided for display of all 25 distinctive thimbles.

The design of the Ginori thimble features a colorful variety of luscious fruits—strawberries, cherries and blueberries. And the thimble is enhanced by a scalloped border of deepest blue.

The Royal Tara thimble evokes the pure, clean feeling of a sunny field of Irish shamrocks. And inside, the emblem of Royal Tara: the famous Tara Hall in Galway.

The Adams thimble depicts a peaceful English country scene, and this lovely design of trees and meadows surrounds the thimble.

And the Royal Doulton thimble portrays tea roses and bluebonnets, with a graceful leaf border at the top and a rim of 22kt gold around the bottom.

The 25 thimbles that make up the collection have such variety that when you show them to friends, they may think you acquired the thimbles on a trip around the world! Yet the complete set will form a most harmonious collection—unified by the tradition of owning fine collector's thimbles. A distinctive acquisition that will be cherished by your family in years to come.

A beautiful way to display your thimbles
Because this collection is so unusual, subscribers will want to display it prominently in their homes and show it to friends and relatives. So that you may do so in the most attractive way possible, a beautiful hardwood shelf to hold all 25 thimbles will be provided. Part of the fun will be looking forward each month to receiving another unique thimble from a famed porcelain maker . . . and adding it to your growing collection.

You will also receive a specially-written folder along with each thimble, describing its design and giving you facts and sidelights about the porcelain house that created it.

Available for a limited time only

These unique collector's thimbles are available only for a limited time and only from The Franklin Mint. They will not be sold in any retail stores. October 31st is the advance deadline for entering a subscription to the Thimbles of the World's Greatest Porcelain Houses. After a final announcement in June 1981, the collection will be permanently closed.

The thimbles will be sent at the rate of one per month, and the issue price for each thimble is just $14.50. Even though these works must be purchased by us in different foreign currencies over the next two years, The Franklin Mint will guarantee this favorable price to every subscriber for each thimble in the collection. In view of persistent inflation, this is a very significant guarantee.

Since it will take time for each porcelain house to craft its thimble for subscribers, it is necessary that your application be mailed to The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania, by October 31st.

CRAFTS

Make an Animal Menagerie

Create these fancy felines with yarn and cardboard.

Kittens and cats, puppies and poodles, a lion, a bear and even a cute gray mouse. They're all easy to make, and, once started, you may find yourself going on to create a menagerie.

With small pieces of cardboard, a pair of scissors and less than two skeins of yarn you can make a fluffy, cuddly animal. By using smaller cardboard pieces and less yarn you can make even smaller ones. A little gray mouse takes almost no time at all.

To create a fancy feline who lounges on bed or sofa, you use yarn and cardboard, but the technique is different if you wish to make the finished cat flexible enough to drape itself over your shoulder.

Or create an entire zoo full of animals — with a crochet hook, plastic eggs and bits of leftover yarn. The basic head and body patterns are the same, but the differences are in the ears, the tails and the colors.

Whether it's for a child's toy, a decoration for a bedroom or something to dress up a party table, you'll find complete directions and illustrations in booklet #336, Animal Fair.

Yarn and a coat hanger create an adorable poodle.

Crochet a zooful of animals using one basic pattern and plastic eggs.

WHAT IS THE WORLD

Cat Calls

Talk about specialization. Not only does New York veterinarian Louis Camuti treat exclusively cats, he treats them in their own homes. Camuti, 87 and going strong, admits such personal service is rare. "When I had a heart attack nine years ago," he notes, "my doctor told me to come down to the hospital."

Camuti, who operates out of a hospital but hasn't had an office for 17 years, insists that a cat functions best in its own environment: "He really loves his home first, the people second. Plus, in the home you can understand how the cat is treated; the owner's completely disarmed."

Camuti, whose new book is All My

The feline physician and his Cat-illac.

Patients Are Under the Bed, makes house calls three nights a week from 4:00 to midnight and usually has his wife of 60 years, Alexandra, double-park the car and wait as he makes his rounds. His only complaint — he's allergic to cats. That's right. No catastrophe, though; antihistamines help him make it through the night.

Di-Vorce Of Experience

Divorced persons looking for management jobs may have an advantage over married persons. However, persons in the process of divorce face obstacles to being hired. Or so concluded a recent survey of U.S. and Canadian management personnel agencies.

"Divorced persons are hot employment candidates because they are independent of family. Employers feel they devote more to the job and career than married or single people," Phil Orlesky of Fort Gerry Personnel Services Ltd., Winnipeg, Canada, notes. "Unfortunately, people going through a divorce are considered somewhat unstable or unpredictable."

From the book Life-Spans, Or How Long Things Last, by Frank Kendig and Richard Hutton

The Dawning Of Yawning

Legend has it that after a long day of discovering fire and inventing the wheel, Stan the caveman went home,

Today, millions of years later, doctors still can't really explain why we yawn or why it's so contagious. According to Dr. Daniel Wagner, clinical coordinator of Montefiore Hospital's Sleep/Wake Disorders Center, there are several theories on why we yawn. The best states that yawning causes us to exhale and our lungs to expand, releasing some carbon dioxide, which is slightly sedating, and allowing more oxygen in.

"Basically, yawning is an attempt by your brain to alert you to wake up," explains Wagner. "It's a reflex action with multiple uses — including social ones. If somebody's yawning in a lecture or in church, the speaker knows that he's not being very interesting. Or if you're at somebody's house and he begins yawning, the message is, 'Oh, I'm staying too late.'"

As to why yawning is infectious, Wagner adds, "Maybe on a psychological level, it's sending the message that 'I'm bored, too,' or 'I'm tired, too.' But we really have no idea."

"If you drink, don't drive. Don't even putt." — Dean Martin

"My movies were the kind they show in prisons and airplanes, because nobody can leave." — Burt Reynolds

From The Book of Quotes by Barbara Rowes

Prenatal Nasal Drops

An infertility treatment utilizing nose drops has been used successfully at the Medical University of South Carolina. The method was tested on eight women suffering from anovulation — the inability to ovulate — which causes 30 to 40 percent of infertility in women. Of the eight, five ovulated following treatment and, of those, two later delivered healthy babies.

The nose-drop method combines a common fertility drug, clomiphene, and a synthetic variety of an ovulation-inducing hormone. The nose drops can be administered by the woman herself at home.

Dr. Shaila Phanseey notes that her method is being tried only on non-ovulating women who do not respond to conventional fertility drugs.

BACK IN THE ROOM, VALIANT TRIES TO CALM THE HYSTERICAL MAIDEN. "I SAW NOTHING," SHE CRIES. "IT HAPPENED SO QUICKLY." LAMBERT IS DEAD, AND VAL ASSURES THE LASS THAT SHE IS SAFE. SUDDENLY, LAMBERT'S BROTHER, BRIAN, BURSTS INTO THE ROOM.
