More Air Strikes Against Oil Fields

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The battle for Khurramshahr, Iran's vital Persian Gulf port, intensified Saturday with Iran claiming its troops and civilians were fighting "hand-to-hand and trench-to-trench" to break a 13-day-old Iraqi siege.

Both sides claimed victories in fighting farther north and each took aim again at the other's vital oil installations, sending waves of planes on air strikes deep into enemy territory.

Iranian President Abolassan Bani-Sadr said Iran's counter-attacking forces had broken through Iraqi lines 80 miles north of Khurramshahr and driven to the border and the towns of Mehran and Susangerd.

Iran also denounced the United States for sending four radar and communications planes — U.S.-crewed AWACs — to bolster Saudi Arabia's defenses.

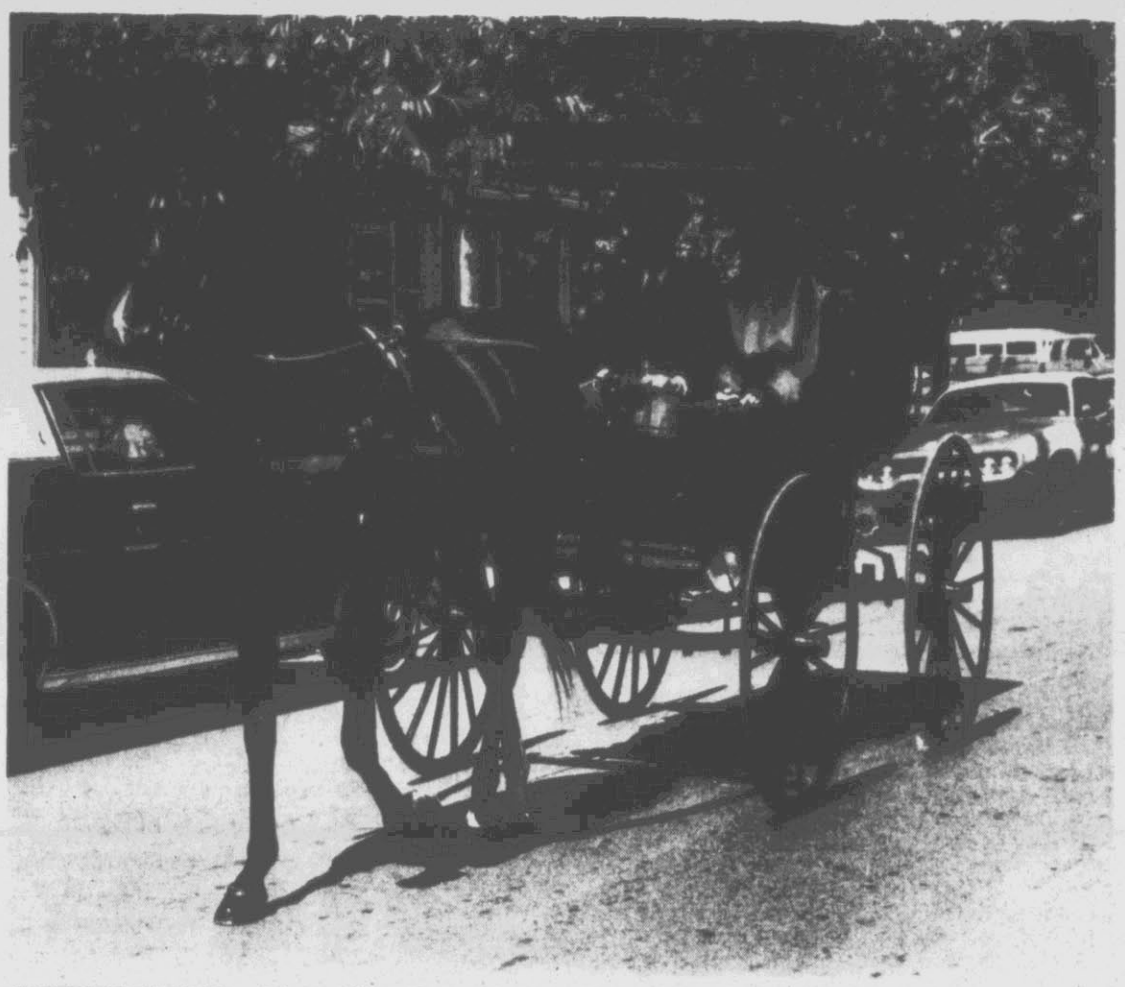
Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, in a statement broadcast by Tehran Radio, said the presence of the planes escalated the "tension and the arms race between foreign powers in the region." But he stopped short of describing the U.S. aid as intervention in the war — something Iranian officials have warned might harm the 52 American hostages now in their 336th day of captivity.

The 13th day of the war between the two OPEC giants was distinguished by more claims and counter-claims on how the battle was raging along a ragged 100-mile front stretching from Khurramshahr near the Persian Gulf to the cities of Ahvaz and Dizful in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province. The only thing the communiques agreed on was that fighting was heavy, casualties high.

Iran sent its jets on a pre-dawn raid against Baghdad and the Kirkuk and Suleimaniyeh oil producing areas 160 miles northeast of the Iraqi capital. Iraq said it downed another nine Iranian jets but Iran admitted to losing only two.

Iraqi MiGs struck back by bombing Iranian oil installations near Behbehan, 125 miles east of the main fighting on the ground — the battle for Khurramshahar on the Iranian of the Shatt-al-Arab outlet to the Persian Gulf.

Tehran Radio, quoting Ali Rajai and reports from the front, said Iranian troops and civilians were "fighting the enemy hand to hand and from trench to trench" through Khurramshahr.



ROBERSONVILLE DAY — Robersonville residents celebrate the town's 110th anniversary with a street fair, a parade, and entertainment for young and old. A horse and buggy was one of the features of the parade. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Swain of Plymouth brought their horses to participate in the event, which included floats, bands, brownies, cub and girl scout troops and antique cars. Accusations

By JULIUS B. HUMI UPI Senior Vice-President

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin has accused European governments of interfering with the U.S.-initiated Camp David peace process because they fear it will prevent them from buying Arab oil cheaply and selling weapons at high prices.

Begin also said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has miscalculated Iran's military strength and the Iraqis "seem to be bogged down in the desert."

The 67-year-old prime minister made his comments Friday during a wide-ranging exclusive interview, his first with an international news agency in his more than three years in power.

Begin appeared bitter about what he viewed as a European attempt to undermine the two-year-old Camp David peace process. Luxembourg's foreign minister, Gaston Thorn, met with Begin Sept. 29 on a Common Market fact-finding mission to the Middle East.

"I would like to say something about this European initiative," Begin said. "It is very unfortunate, unhappy and sometimes a humiliating initiative for the Europeans. They interfere with the peace-making process."

"They don't say a word of praise for that peace treaty. Why should they not be ashamed of themselves, the Europeans?"

Passengers From Burning Ship Awaiting Rescue In Cold Seas

By JEAN KIZER
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A luxury liner on a 30-day cruise to the Orient caught fire Saturday in the Gulf of Alaska, and nearly 510 people — many of them elderly Americans — bounded in lifeboats in chilly seas for more than 13 hours, waiting to be picked up by helicopters, the Coast Guard said.

An undetermined number of passengers were in four lifeboats as darkness began to fall, the Coast Guard said. The lifeboats had been located, but worsening weather and refueling of helicopters stalled rescue operations.

Coast Guard spokesman Ray Massey said searchers were ready to continue after dark, using giant spotlights aboard aircraft to illuminate the scene.

Earlier in the day, hundreds of the passengers and crew, including a 41-member firefighting squad, had been taken to a tanker or a Coast Guard cutter after the order to abandon ship was issued around dawn.

The Holland America Cruises liner Prinsendam was burning rapidly. Coast Guard Cmdr. Rich Schoel, chief of the Coast Guard's search and rescue branch in Juneau, said flames from the fire, which began in the engine room, were shooting through the deck of the ship by Saturday evening.

Schoel said the ship was equipped with adequate fire-fighting systems, and expressed surprise that it wasn't able to contain the fire when it broke out in the engine room.

Deterriorating weather conditions hampered the rescue effort. Clouds and fog lowered visibility, waves surged up to 12 to 15 feet, water temperature held at 47 degrees, the air temperature was in the low 50s during the day and winds whipped up to 25 to 30 knots with higher gusts, said Coast Guard spokesmen Lt. Phil Johnson and Chief Ray Massey.

All of the rescued passengers were taken to the 1,000-foot oil tanker Williamsburgh, the first rescue ship to arrive at the scene. The tanker has a helicopter landing pad.

Massey said doctors, nurses and bedding were taken to the tanker to accommodate the rescued passengers.

Coast Guard said that once all the passengers were taken from the lifeboats, the tanker would begin an estimated 20-hour voyage to Valdez, the only port in Alaska equipped to handle the ship.

In Valdez, a Coast Guard spokesman said, state troopers established an emergency command post to handle the passengers, and several Boeing 727s were standing by to take the passengers out of Valdez.

Bloodmobile To Visit ECU

A Red Cross blood drive will be conducted Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 7-8, at East Carolina University under the sponsorship of the university's Air Force ROTC detachment.

Donors will be assisted in contributing to the drive in special facilities to be set up in ECU's Wright Auditorium. Donations will be collected from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. on both days by personnel of the Tidewater Regional Red Cross.

Nickie Cowell is the overall chairman for the campus collection effort, which will be open to the general public.

During the past decade, the ECU detachment's blood collection campaigns have totaled nearly 7,000 pints of blood. Since the unit's first blood drive in 1951, almost 25,000 pints have been collected in annual AFROTC-Red Cross campaigns, it was reported.

P & G Campaign Warns On Rely Tampons Use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Procter — Gamble is beginning a four-week television, radio and newspaper advertising campaign urging women not use Rely tampons because of their link to toxic shock syndrome, a sometimes fatal disease.

The Food and Drug Administration, which approved the campaign Friday, said the effort will include 45-second television commercials to run on network television 12 times, 60-second radio commercials to air in 203 markets and half-page newspaper ads to run twice in each of 1,200 newspapers.

Wayne Pines, associate FDA commissioner for public affairs, said an advertising campaign of this dimension associated with a product recall is unprecedented.

Public Defender System To Become Effective Jan. 1

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

A public defender system is scheduled to become active in Pitt and the three other counties in the Third Judician District on January 1.

The public defender's office, designed to be the co-equal counterpart of the district attorny's office, was approved by the 1979 General Assembly.

Under the system, the public defender will represent indigent defendants in criminal court cases, just as the district attorney's office represents the state in prosecuting cases in criminal court.

At present, there are four public defender offices in operation in the state — in Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro and Buncombe County. The public defender's office in the Third Judicial District — Pitt, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico Counties — will be the fifth office in the state and the first such office serving a multi-county district.

Three Greenville attorneys — Tom Greer, Don Hicks and J. W. H. Roberts — have been nominated by the Third Judicial District Bar for consideration by Gov. Jim Hunt for appointment as the public defender.

The appointed defender will, in turn, assemble a staff of six assistant public defenders, two investigators and four secretaries.

The appointment of the public defender is expected to be made after the November 4 election.

The public defender system is designed to replace much of the present practice of having attorneys, appointed by the court and paid by state funds, represent persons in criminal cases.

However, in some cases, court appointed attorneys will supplement the public defender program.

Chancellor's Society Holds A Charter Dinner

ECU News Bureau

One hundred and seven guests attended the charter dinner of the Order of Wright circle - Chancellor's Society of East Carolina University at the Greenville Golf and Country Club on Saturday evening.

The guests in attendance at the gala, black tie occasion included 42 of the 77 charter members of the Chancellor's Society which is made up of major donors to the university.

ECU Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer expressed appreciation to the guests for their outstanding support of the university which collectively totals in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Private and coporate financial support of ECU provides much support for both merit and need scholarships, for departmental enhancement and for research, Brewer said.

Handsome wall clocks bearing the ECU seal were presented to each honoree as a feature part of the evening's program which also included entertainment provided by Stan Benton; Selma Gokcen, cellist; and Paul Tardif, pianist, in a dinner program of music by Ravel and de Falla.

The dinner was the first to honor and recognize the university's major contributors since inception of the Order of Wright Circle and its recognition societies.

It Seems To Me I've Seen That Young Man Somewhere Before

A MIRROR IMAGE — Philip and David Broome often create confusion in the Joyner Library at East Carolina University. Students, other librarians and some of their friends have trouble telling them apart. Philip's on the left and David's on the right. The two biology graduate students are preparing for careers in dentistry and medicine, respectively. (ECU News Bureau)

By MARC BARNES
ECU News Bureau

It happens not infrequently these days that someone in J.Y. Joyner Library at East Carolina University says to himself, "I've seen that young man before," and thinks hard.

Then he remembers. Why, that young man was working in the reference department just a few minutes ago and now here he is in serials, on another floor and the other side of the library. And he thinks, "He must be a very busy young man, or he has a twin."

It's true. He has a twin, and both Philip and David Broome, graduate students from Wilson, work as student assistants in ECU's main library.

"We do get some funny looks," says Philip. "Especially if we are in different sections than where we normally work.

"Somebody might come down from serials and say, "Weren't you just down there (in reference)?' Some of the librarians can tell us apart, but not all of them."

Philip and David are identical twins, 24 years old, and are doing graduate work in biology at ECU. David has applied to the ECU School of Medicine and to the UNC School of Medicine at Chapel Hill. Philip plans a professional career in dentistry.

They are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Broome of Wilson.

As might be expected, the twins share many interests and are alike — both are quiet and reserved — in ways other than physical appearance.

"I don't think we look that much alike," says Philip.

"Most people can usually tell us apart, as far as I know, once they get to know us," says David. "At first, it's difficult, though."

In public schools, teachers usually placed the brothers apart in seating arrangements and that helped in identification. They insist that they have never used their resemblance to play practical jokes on anyone.

Nevertheless, people continually come up to them and address one by the other's name.

"If someone says, 'Hi David,' I just say 'Hi,' David said.

Or was it Philip?

Benson-Wilmington Road Approved

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal officials have authorized another $2.6 million for construction of the proposed Benson-to-Wilmington freeway, according to state transportation officials.

Transportation Secretary Thomas W. Bradshaw Jr. said the funds would be used for grading, drainage, bridges and other structures along 4.9 miles of the proposed Interstate 40 extension in Pender County.

The latest allocation by the U.S. Highway Administration is in addition to $1.6 million released in August.

Bradshaw said bids for the project would be taken later this month.

The project is being funded under the Surface Transportation Act of 1978 as one of seven projects in the country eligible to share $125 million a year. States provide 25 percent in matching funds.

In 1979, the state was allocated $20.25 million and was authorized another $14 million last January.

The initial funding was used for right-of-way purchases and preliminay engineering.

Bradshaw said the first construction contracts, for 16.2 miles in Duplin and Pender counties, would be awarded Friday when the board meets in Oxford.

Arrests Made In Bombing Of Synagogue In Paris

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Police armed with extraordinary search and seizure powers arrested 13 right-wing extremists Saturday for questioning about a bomb blast at a synagogue that killed three persons and injured 12.

The arrests came while thousands of French Jews and their supporters demonstrated against a wave of anti-Semitic violence that culminated in Friday night's explosion.

Police acting on orders from President Valery Giscard d'Estaing deployed all available manpower in an exceptionally intensive hunt for the killers. But the investigators had few clues. Some witnesses reported seeing two men place a package on the roof of a car parked outside the synagogue and then flee on a motor scooter.

Police questioned witnesses, including the injured, and fanned out through the city and suburbs to ask members of neo-Nazi groups to state their whereabouts at the time of Friday night's blast. Blanket warrants allowed them to search for arms, explosives and other evidence in the private homes of all suspects.

The 13 arrested rightists were not immediately identified.

At a ceremony in the damaged Union Liberale Israelite synagogue, Alain de Rotschild, president of the Committee of French Jewish Organizations, read a message to Giscard d'Estaing. It criticized the "passivity of the authorities, the indifference of our leaders and the inexplicable impotence of the police" in the face of rising anti-Semitic violence.

Friday's bombing was the sixth attack against Jewish sites in Paris in a week. No one was hurt in the other attcks, in which Jewish institutions or memorials were sprayed with machine-gun fire.

Rotschild said it was urgent for Giscard d'Estaing to announce emergency measures against the neo-Nazi upsurge.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli television quoted "government circles" as saying the French government's handling of the earlier attacks had led to Friday's bombing. The broadcast said the Israeli Cabinet would discuss the bombing Sunday, and may issue a communique condemning French "anti-Israel and anti-Zionist" policies.

There was no official government statement.

More than 3,000 demonstrators gathered Saturday in front of the Interior Ministry not far from Giscard d'Estaing's presidential palace on the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore. They called for the resignation of Interior Minister Christian Bonnet, a general strike during the victims' funerals and the creation of a parliamentary committee to investigate the police. Bonnet met with two representatives of the demonstrators.

Police brought in reinforcements and cordoned off the streets, but there were no incidents.

The country's two big labor movements, the General Confederation of Labor and the French Confederation of Democratic Labor, said there would be a mass demonstration Tuesday to protest the attack. They urged a two-hour general strike so workers could attend.

Jewish groups claim the Interior Ministry has been ineffective in dealing with at least a dozen attacks on synagogues, Jewish schools and cultural centers during the past 18 months.

Hotels Bombed In Manila

By RUBEN G. ALABASTRO
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Urban guerrillas bombed four hotels Saturday night, injuring a dozen people in the latest phase of a terrorist campaign to topple the eight-year-old martial law ruler, President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The "April 6 Liberation Movement" claimed responsibility for the attacks and warned tourists to avoid the Philippines. The explosions injured two U.S. servicemen and an Australian tourist, authorities said.

The bombs went off as Manila was preparing to host a world tourism congress meeting next month that is expected to attrack several hundred delegates from more than 100 nations.

They also coincided with renewed violence in the southern Philippines that left five people dead and dozens injured in two separate grenade attacks, police said, adding that they had arrested four suspects.

The government is fighting a Moslem rebellion for self-rule in the south.

The Manila bombings, caused by small charges, damaged restrooms in the seaside Philippine Plaza Hotel, the Century Park Sheraton and the Manila Peninsula.

The fourth hotel bombed was the Marlim Mansion outside Clark Air Force Base in Angeles City, 50 miles northwest of here. Military sources said a bar near the air force base also was hit, but Angeles police could not confirm the report.

Police identified the wounded Americans as Navy Petty Officers 2nd Class Daniel Pierce, 24, of Texas, and Jeffrey Gullidge, 21, of Washington state. Neither their conditions nor their hometowns were available.

The April 6 Movement has vowed to carry out guerrilla war in the cities until it has brought down Marcos' regime.

The government claims the guerrillas are financed by U.S.-based Filipino dissidents led by Marcos' chief political foe, former Sen. Benigno S. Aquino, who now lives in the United States.

A communique left in a telephone booth near the American Embassy here said the bomb targets were luxury hotels "owned by known Marcos cronies ... which are 'watering' holes of the members of the Marcos oligarchy."

It said the bombings were to show Marcos "he can no longer control the people's anger" and to warn all foreign tourists, "especially the organizers of and delegates" to the tourism convention "not to come to the Philippines in these times of crisis and turmoil."

It was the fourth time the guerrillas struck the capital in less than seven weeks.

Wants Israel Ousted

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Saudi Arabia, America's biggest supplier of foreign petroleum, put itself on a collision course with Washington by calling for the ouster of Israel from the U.N. General Assembly.

Addressing the General Assembly Friday, Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Saud al-Faisal also urged a "holy war" by Moslems and Christians to free Jerusalem from Israeli control.

In the harshest denunciation against Israel ever issued by a Saudi official, Saud blasted the Jewish state for annexing the holy city and building new settlements "on the usurped Palestinian and Arab territories."

Saud said Israel has ignored the U.N. Security Council's last two resolutions, which declared Israel's decision to make Jerusalem its capital null and void and asked all nations to withdraw their diplomatic missions from that city.

"On the basis of these two resolutions, my government objects to the participation of the Israeli delegation in the deliberations of this current session and the future sessions of the General Assembly," Saud said.

"Israel does not enjoy a privileged status allowing it to ignore and challenge the United Nations' resolutions."

Saudi Arabia, which supplies 24 percent of all U.S. imported oil — more than any other supplier — also has been Washington's best friend among the Arab oil exporters.

But in New York this week, President Carter suggested if the United Nations expels Israel from the assembly, Washington may also leave, which would effectively kill that world body.

A similar demand was raised Tuesday by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Kaddam, who called for sanctions against the Jewish state. But no formal motion or proposal has been made so far, with Western diplomacy going all-out to prevent it.

The Arab plan involves only expulsion from the General Assembly.

Expulsion from the United Nations itself requires a decision by the Security Council, where the United States has veto power.

Saud also called for "spiritual, cultural, physical and military" cooperation between "hundreds of millions of Christians ... and hundreds of millions of Moslems" to rescue Jerusalem from Israeli control.

Jerusalem is considered a holy city by all three religions.

"The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia ... has no other recourse but to call for al-jihad (holy war) for the sake of establishing the supremacy of righteousness and justice and eliminating falsehoods and injustice," Saud said.

Ousted Leader Into Exile

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Lidia Gueiler, ousted from the Bolivian presidency in a July coup, arrived at Lima International Airport Saturday night on her way to exile in Europe.

Mrs. Gueiler was overthrown in a military coup that prevented a leftist president-elect from replacing her caretaker government. She was given permission by the junta to leave Bolivia and the residence of the papal nuncio in the capital of La Paz, where she had lived since the coup.

Mrs. Gueiler arrived on a Lufthansa flight stopping here on its way to Frankfurt, West Germany. Reporters were barred from boarding the plane during its hour-long stopover here.

Police did allow several Peruvian officials to board the plane with greetings from President Fernando Belaunde.

Mrs. Gueiler was wearing a black dress and dark glasses, and carring a pet dog, officials said.

From Frankfurt she intends to travel to Paris to be reunited with her daughter, Teresa Perez Gueiler. It was not known if she had decided to settle in Europe.

Passengers Awaiting Rescue . . .

the Dutch vessel, 40 of its 190 crew members and one Coast Guardsman stayed aboard to fight the blaze. About nine hours later, they gave up, and were taken safely aboard the Coast Guard cutter Boutwell, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

The destination of the cutter and its passengers was not immediately clear.

At first, one injury was reported, but later in the day, Johnson said: "Everyone has been accounted for and there are no reported injuries."

He said "getting the passengers from the ship into lifeboats was described to us as a very orderly drill that went very smoothly."

Coast Guard Lt. Bruce Melnick, one of the pilots of the helicopters which took the passengers from the lifeboats to the tanker said many of them were waiting for the helicopters in pajamas and no shoes. He said that during the 10 hours he was on duty, his helicopter airlifted 109 persons to the tanker.

Thirteen passengers, suffering from mild hypothermia, were flown by helicopter to Yakutat, Alaska, about 120 miles north of the burning ship, Massey said.

Later, the 10 passengers and three crew members were taken to a motel in Sitka.

A desk clerk, who declined to be identified, said: "They're upset and tired. They're in good condition except for being tired and worried. And they don't know where their mates are."

The first SOS, referring to fire in the ship's engine room, was received about 2:30 a.m. PDT, Massey said. The cause of the fire was not known.

Later radio messages said the flames were brought under control by a fire control system but added that crew and passengers were standing by on deck to abandon ship if necessary.

Shortly after 5 a.m. PDT, a message from the ship said "the fire has spread from the engine room to the dining room," Massey said.

At 6:15 a.m. the call was sounded to abandon ship, and more than 400 people were lowered into lifeboats, about 120 miles west of Glacier Bay National Monument, Massey said.

Clay Kirkman Says . . .

Fall is the season for planting spring flowering bulbs such as crocus, daffodils and tulips and by shopping early, you will have a good selection to choose from. It is a good idea to place the bulbs bought now in a paper bag and put them in the vegetable compartment of the refrigerator for 4 to 6 weeks. This is done because our winters do not always provide the necessary cooling period needed for the bulbs.

When planting bulbs, plant in a loose soil with good drainage. Be sure to add plenty of peat moss along with an all-purpose fertilizer or bonemeal to the soil in order to provide the best growing conditions.

Single stem bulbs, such as the tulip, need to be planted about 6" apart to create the appearance of a mass of blooms. The multiflowering bulbs, such as the narcissus, may need to be spaced 12 to 16" apart. Arrange the bulbs according to color and height, because grouping the bulbs all in one color will give a sharper appearance. Also, the taller bulbs should be placed behind the shorter ones to give a smoother look.

Belk Tyler Garden Shops now have a good selection of bulbs for fall planting. Don't forget that now is also the best time to plant your fall shrubbery.

Remember that 1980 has been claimed the Year of the Camellia!

Outlook For Area Seen Bright

Ten community leaders presented their comments on the health of the area economy at a meeting sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce last week, and all of them saw positive developments.

County Commissioners Chairman Ed Warren saw the outlook for farm land investment as bright, even though some crops, such as corn, had a disastrous year.

J. C. Penney's manager Don Yeager, said local retail sales increases have exceeded most major cities in the state.

Realtor Connally Branch said housing starts were down this year but there has been $15 million in new business starts.

Reese Hart of the Pitt Development Commission said interest in industries has been "phenomenal" for the past six weeks.

Dick Flye of Carolina Telephone spoke of new services which the company will be offering.

Jack Richardson, director of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, saw only growth and development ahead for the medical complex.

ECU Chancellor Thomas Brewer noted the all-time high enrollment on campus. The university employs some 2,000 persons and students spend an estimated $30 million annually.

Former Mayor Percy Cox saw the need for dual laning U. S. 264 and improvements on Evans Street.

Greenville Utilities Director Charles Horne noted that some 150 new services are being installed each month. Construction is about to begin on a new water treatment plant.

Gene Taylor discussed changes in the banking field.

There is real reason to believe that Greenville and Pitt County have weathered the recession better than most areas. We can also expect that growth will continue in our area.

Millions Will Not Vote In November

In 1960 some 63.8 percent of eligible Americans voted in the presidential election.

In 1976 the figure was 54.4 percent. In 1976 70 million eligible Americans did not vote. Of the 75 million who have reached voting age since 1960, some 50 million are still not registered.

Area residents have until Monday at 5 p.m. to register to vote in the upcoming election.

Will you be one who does not vote?

Formal Schooling Missed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — North Carolina is building some strong economic ties with Japan. The state now has a fulltime office there, and the governor has led a trade delegation to Japan, and hosted a major seminar here for Japanese political and business leaders.

The activity is paying off, and the result can be seen in the numbers of Japanese citizens who are becoming residents of various Tar Heel communities if only temporarily, while on assignment from their employers.

This is creating a problem for some. It is not that they don't find living in North Carolina a happy experience, but they worry about their youngsters.

The state's public schools are excellent, Japanese contacts report; and the children are having little difficulty adapting; even learning the English language.

But most have no intention of remaining here. They will return to Japan, and like parents anywhere they hope to see the youngsters enroll in the finest universities possible.

"But to do that, to be accepted at Tokyo University, the student must have outstanding command of the Japanese language. Our children continue to learn Japanese at home, and they master English at school. But the formal, academic language and the basic foundation in Japan's history and culture are missing," one parent complains.

State officials are wrestling with the situation, and have committed to help. Top officials in the Department of Commerce are exploring some ideas such as establishing special school programs as extracurricular programs in some locations; and where there are sufficient numbers of Japanese children, pushing for Japanese programs in the public schools.

Help Wanted

North Carolina is Mecca to numerous retired individuals, with concentrations found in some coastal sections, in the Sandhills, and in the Southwest mountains.

Among this group are any number of people with not only time, but considerable expertise in fields which would be helpful to the entire state in a lot of ways.

But how do you make contact? That is the problem which faced Gov. Jim Hunt recently when, during a conversation with reporters, he decided to try to tap this reservoir of knowledge and experience so that the state and local communities could make contact with individuals.

Leo Jenkins, retired chancellor at East Carolina University, has agreed to spearhead a campaign to locate and catalog the people and their specialties.

Fresh Milk

A set of initials likely to become well known in coming months is "UHT". That stands for Ultra-high Temperature, and the state's supermarkets and dairy stores will soon be featuring milk and other products packaged using this revolutionary technique researched at N.C. State University.

Perishability of fluid milk has long been a big problem. G.A. Benson of the university Agricultural Extension Service says there is optimistic news for the state's dairy farmers in the fact that "new developments in fluid milk processing and packaging are on the verge of commercial application."

Milk treated at Ultra-high Temperature and packaged in germ-free containers can be stored for six months or longer without refrigeration, and taste-tests have demonstrated the produce is acceptable.

The big questionmark: commercial success depends on production costs and consumer acceptance, Benson adds.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Frail Western Position

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Mounting evidence that President Carter and the U.S. lack the power and the will to arrest crumbling of the Western position in the Persian Gulf is converting the Iraqi-Iranian war from an asset to a potentially crippling liability for Carter's re-election.

A week ago, shortly after the war broke out, a senior Carter political aide privately remarked that the crisis "is worth five points in the polls" in Carter's nip-and-tuck presidential race with Ronald Reagan. That analysis fits the history and tradition of presidential campaigns; in time of danger abroad, voters tend to rally around their president rather than risk changing horses in midstream.

Political tradition may still hold as Carter enters the October stretch drive. But politicians on both sides are less certain than 10 days ago. A major reason is Carter's apparent inability to bring decisive American influence to bear on the low-grade war or, more importantly, its high-grade implications.

The first of these is the suddenly degraded prospect of the hostages returning before the election. Before the war, that prospect was far higher than admitted here; today it nears the vanishing point.

Other implications of the crisis are staggering. Senior Carter administration officials do not rule out an Arab-backed move against three little islands in the Strait of Hormuz, the choke point in the Persian Gulf, which were seized by the U.S.-backed shah when Iran ruled the gulf. American strategists believe that would trigger random attacks by Iran's badly-depleted air force on Arab Oman, the Arab gulf emirates and possibly Saudi Arabia.

That would convert the war into an Arab-Iranian conflagration, poisoned by centuries of hostility between the Arabs and ancient Persia. It would force on Carter a more dangerous choice than any he has yet faced: Either oppose Arab seizure of the strategic islands, turning the entire Arab world including Egypt against the U.S.; or support the Arabs, inviting Soviet intervention on the side of Iran. Such a Hobson's choice would publicize American weakness and imperil Carter's political standing.

Sadat's appeal to Carter last week to encourage the overthrow of Ayatollah Khomeini's radical Islamic regime signalled the depth of feeling in the Arab world against Iran. Without tipping his hand ahead of time to the U.S., Sadat stunned Carter and the State Department with a proposal that the U.S. should exploit Iran's military defeat by pressing for an Iranian uprising against the ayatollah.

Given the intimate U.S.-Egyptian connection, Sadat's public plea was seen in Tehran as new evidence of U.S. complicity with the Arabs in the Iraqi invasion of Iran. But in point of fact, after nearly four years in office, Carter's power to influence public statements even by so trusted a friend as Anwar Sadat is negligible. Within hours of Sadat's statement to Hearst editor John Wallach, the U.S. Embassy in Cairo was privately beseeching him to say no more.

REAL SECURITY

"Fear not; I am the first and the last..." (Rev. 1:17).

Here is a most significant statement concerning the nature of fear and the way to cure it. What we fear above everything else is uncertainty. The modern term for this is "insecurity". We are afraid that we may contract an incurable disease, or that we will lose our job, or that our income will cease. We are afraid of losing face with our associates. We are afraid that something will happen to our loved ones.

The only cure for fear is the religious cure — specifically the living Christ, who is the first and the last, the Alpha and Omega, the one who was dead, and behold, is alive for evermore, and has the keys of death and Hades. Establish yourself within the circle of that life, thrust the protection which it wraps around you, and no matter what the beginning or the end of anything will be, Christ is in it and controls it all. — Elisha Douglass

Sunday Morning Notes

A fire place is part of the equipment in your columnist's new home, and I expect to use it when the weather warrants it.

There is something cheery and modern about a crackling fire in a fire place, even if the things have been around for who-knows-how-many years. They would seem modern if it hadn't been one of my chores to bring in several armloads of wood each afternoon during my youth. We heated with a wood stove, something else that is the rage these days. Since my father owned some woodsland, there was wood to burn, literally, for only the cost of getting it out of the forest.

Of course getting the split wood to the house and then carrying it inside was only part of the battle. As possessors of wood stoves today are finding out, someone has to be around most of the time to keep the fire going. There's no automatic feed on a wood stove or fireplace, and if wood is not continually fed to the fire it goes out. With back up heating systems that is not a great problem, but then there was no back-up system. If the wood fire died there just wasn't any heat on a cold winter night.

All-in-all my memories of wood stove heat are not all that fond. In fact, it was a spectacular day when an oil space heater was brought into the home and began its job of furnishing constant heat with little human attention.

Regardless, wood can furnish adequate heat at a reasonable price, so your columnist plans to lay in a store of wood pretty soon. Eventually the fire place will be put to use and, like when I was a kid, I'll be bringing in arm loads of wood.

The more things change the more they are the same.

There were other childhood chores. Drying the dishes with a dish towel after my mother washed them was one. Now, or so it seems, nobody dries dishes with a towel anymore. They are allowed to drain and dry from the air.

Makes me wonder if all those dishes I dried wasn't a useless chore.

Interestingly I was never called on to wash dishes. That was considered a female job. I only had to dry them, which was more masculine. Please . . no calls from feminists debating the difference. Automatic dishwashers have settled all that.

Other Editors Say Went On Record

(Richmond News Leader)

For the first time the House of Representatives has taken a stand on rent control, and those who seek to wipe out the profit margin in private rental housing will not like it.

By a 239-162 vote, the House agreed to deny funds for a special rent subsidy program to some 200 communities that impose rent controls. (It is a pity that the House did not go a step further and strike the entire program. It will subsidize apartments for families earning up to 150 percent of the local median income. In some communities, families earning $30,000 or more could be eligible for the subsidies.)

Nonetheless, rent control is an insidious encroachment upon the free market, and it usually results in a decrease in available rental property. When a municipal agency decides what rent a landlord may charge, it often keeps rent increases well below the level needed to sustain a reasonable rate of return on a landlord's investment.

When profits vanish, landlords convert apartments to other uses — condominiums, for instance — or abandon their property altogether.

In New York City, a stringent rent control law did not insulate renters from the ravages of inflation as much as it reduced the supply of housing available to them.

Entire blocks of former apartments now stand empty, abandoned to squatters and to the tax collector. When rents no longer covered costs or turned even modest profits, landlords just walked away from their properties.

Certainly rent control has contributed substantially to housing shortages for renters in many communities. These shortages in turn create new pressures on Congress to "do something" to encourage new apartment construction.

Congress responds with generous subsidies for rents and apartment construction, and the real problem of rent controls continues to fester.

So the House's exasperation with this vicious cycle finally erupted in a vote to penalize communities with rent controls. The penalty probably will not survive House-Senate conference on the measure, but at least the House went on record against a major deterrent to the expansion of rental opportunities in many areas. That can be considered a real plus for the private sector.

Smiles Hiding A Hurt

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

UPPER MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP) — From the time she was a girl, Midge Donovan had a fantasy that she shared with no one because no one else would understand.

In her secret heart, she always wanted to be a clown.

"It was a defense mechanism, I guess," she said. "When things get heavy, you smile to hide the hurt."

Midge's mother died when she was 12. The family was not well off. She went to work at 17, married at 19. Heavy.

"When things were tough I smiled a lot on the outside," she said, "and I always had my clown fantasy to cling to. I never even told my husband about it. I never told my best friend. I never told a soul. But just thinking about clowns made me all tingly."

The hardest times were yet to come. Three years ago, Midge's husband, Bill, became totally disabled with emphysema.

"Well, I was 45 years old and I had to go to work. With a friend, who was a recent widow, I opened a dress shop. It was a success, but it was a struggle, and I was a wreck.

"With the shop taking up all my time, and the situation at home needing my time, my life was a real mess, all downhill. I became a compulsive eater, gained about 40 pounds.

"As always, I hid my grief behind a laugh. Good old happy Midge, ever the cut-up. But I had never gone through worse times. Then, last year, I saw this ad in the paper that changed my life."

The ad said: Clown School.

"I didn't hesitate. I sent an application. I didn't know what would come of it. I expected to be told that you had to be 20 and had to go off with a circus or something. Here I was, 48 years old.

Economic Mood Is Uncertain

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Businss Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the 1930s the nation was depressed. In the years of the Big War it was determined, in the early postwar years uncertain, in the 1960s enthusiastic, in the 1970s increasingly sober and cautious.

What will be the economic mood of the 1980s?

Fear might be considered in your assessment. It seems to be everywhere — at the breakfast table, in the bars, in the factories, the offices, the bookstores, the private clubs, the campuses, the executive suites.

The fears are pervasive. A feeling exists that interest rates, prices, jobs, the housing market and more fail to respond to the commands they are given. A fear exists that economic leaders cannot get results.

"It seems that the legacy of the 1930s — fear of protracted hard times — has been displaced in the 1980s by fear of hard times with ever-rising prices," says Citibank in its Monthly Economic Letter.

The surveys say something of the same sort. Although some analysts see some improvement, consumer optimism remains low. Business confidence is depressed by high ad rising interest rates. Investor confidence, at times bullish, seems to be easily shaken by the least bad news.

The most glaring evidence is found among the better selling business books, many of them written by "financial evangelists" who warn of the coming collapse of economic society. Prepare now, they say.

First on at least one popular best-seller list is a volume called "Crisis Investing," by Douglas Casey. Ashley Bladen's 'How to Cope With The Developing Financial Crisis," is prominent. 'The Coming Currency Collapse," by Jerome Smith recently appeared in bookstores.

The nature of popular market letters reveals the same fears. Howard Ruff's "Ruff Times" is one of the more successful letters of all time. A half-dozen others carry the same message: economic collapse.

Seminars roam the country preaching the same sermon, and people sometimes pay hundreds of dollars to hear the message.

You don't have to look hard to find the same types on Wall Street. While they have always been there — there seems to be a market for advice of almost any sort — no longer are they on the fringe.

Fears also are revealed in the gold and silver markets, which have been rising almost solely on fears that economies will collapse or, short of it, that inflation will destroy the value of paper.

It doesn't require an economist or a psychologist to explain the phenomenon. Anyone who understands the contents of his or her wallet or pocketbook is aware that things aren't as they should be.

To read a newspaper or to turn on the radio or television news is know things aren't right. Not when the nation's leaders repeatedly dedicate themselves to restraining inflation — while inflation rages unchecked.

The sense that economic events are beyond control of elected officials and their economic aides, seems to induce widespread fears and a determination by people to take their own private defensive measures.

It may be true that relatively few (so far as can be determined) are buying dehydrated foods, as Howard Ruff suggests, but they are buying gold and silver and art and real estate and other tangibles that might hold their value no matter how debased and diluted is the currency.

And they are buying books too, books that warn of the "coming debacle," the economic judgment day, and what they can do to save their financial assets.

It might be delayed. It might not come. It might be only a neurotic fear. But having seen so many fiscal and monetary policies fail, and so many promises forgotten, people seem unwilling to trust very much.

New Delight In Academe

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The Frisbees that soar in the fall — tra la, go Illini, go — have much to do with the thing called higher education in America, tra la.

They show the free spirits of academe are now floating on a higher spiritual plane. No one this early in the semester is locking the president in his office or burning down the Air Force recruiting headquarters. Here at lovely, spacious University of Illinois campus, the Navy ROTC students move peacefully about, unwarred on by the pacifists.

The only belligerent sign I saw during a weekend sojourn in this rarified intellectual air was in a window above a campus dining hall: "NUKE THE SALAD BAR."

One of the fraternity houses was festooned with streamers suspiciously akin to toilet tissue, but I was told this was not a manifestation of ridicule by a rival organization but some hymeneal rite having to do with wooing co-eds, who are no longer called that, to an autumnal disco hop.

There were certainly some splendid prospects about for that sort of recruitment.

One of the nicest things about the advances made by the women's movement in providing equal recreational facilities for all sexes is how much their efforts have improved the girl watching situation.

Golden prairie daughters playing touch football or chasing a Frisbee on the greensward of old alma mater cut a more pleasing figure in those slit leg track shorts than in the dreary faded denims of yesteryear.

It's a delight to walk across the playing fields of a modern university and watch these healthy specimens glowingly exercising their equal rights. Beats a suffragette parade any day.

A modern university, of course, is a place where the legislature and the administration go to the limit of their resources in providing computerized labs and lecture halls with all the latest audio and visual aids so the trendy, with-it modern instructor can lead his students out of doors and hold his seminar on a large rock, provided free by nature or included in the original land grant that began the college.

That's called a diversified tutorial psychometric experience, and it works best when the mosquitos aren't around.

Other things had changed besides scholastic feminine attire since last I wandered at large in the groves of academe in the seething 60s and surly 70s.

Bicycles now outnumbered sports cars, motorcycles and pickup trucks, and maybe even book bags. Guitars were still in abundance, but I didn't see anyone humping a sitar or leaning into a flageolet or a four finger fipple flute. A number of students had brought their horses to school, which may be traditional on a campus like this where the cornfields back up to the tennis courts, or may be another ramification of the energy crisis. Anyhow, a well rounded equestrienne presents a more pulchritudinous rearward prospect when viewed from the dock, croup and gaskin of some elegant steed than when gripping the midriff of some helmeted handlebar freak from the buddy seat of a Honda.

Several members of the journalism faculty told me that student concentration this year was at an all time high in their experience. I guess it would have to be, judging from the brain-damaging amplified hard rock pouring forth in a cataclysm of concussive fury from almost every dorm window. I saw a number of scholars go by wearing earphones, but I couldn't determine whether they were tuning in or tuning out. The earlaps resembled those noise attenuators we correspondents in Vietnam had to wear on the decks of aircraft carriers when they were launching flight operations and the jets went screaming off the exploding catafalque.

I had a chance to witness student concentration first hand on Saturday night, when my research took me to something called the Zodiac Club, an off campus laboratory for anatomy majors and life class art students that also draws some patronage from the architecture and engineering schools.

The pneumatic star turn, as a matter of fact, did seem to contradict some basic principles of stress and cantilever design when she reduced her wardrobe to the legal limits. Clinically speaking, her pectoral profile was much wondered at and admired by the undergraduate seekers after mammatocumulus datum, although a dissident element in the lecture hall kept calling out for someone called "Sunshine Granola," who never did show up.

Budding behavioral psychologists no doubt profited from this vulgar display of rampant rhinestone sexism on a strobe-lit runway.

Anyhow, to give this fine university its intellectual due, the lines at the cash register in the textbook basement of the student book store far outstretched anything the porn movie house or the local pool hall could attract. The handsome underground, undergrad library could have hung up an S.R.O. sign.

School spirit seemed to be back in fashion, too, especially among the female scholars. Everywhere you went on campus, the word Illinois was spelled out across a pleasing promontory of T-shirt. And great anxiety was reflected in cafeteria conversation and in the headlines of the Illini, the campus daily newspaper, over the eligibility of the new hot shot quarterback under Big Ten rules.

I was told that the chap, a B-plus student, had suborned the system in some way by playing hockey from the lockerroom for a year and actually going to class or some such athletic effrontery. This shows how intellectual ferment has accelerated on campi around the land since pedagogues first pioneered extension credit courses in jogging, fly casting and wok pot distilling for ocks under contract.

Surveying The Scene
The Carter Winning Issue: Complexity Pitch

By RICHARD REEVES

LOS ANGELES — Traveling the country for a week and watching Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan shake their hands and make their pitches, I came away with the impression, at this point, that Reagan should win this election, but that Carter will.

The president seems to have the issue: interdependence. Or to use another word: complexity. The president presents the world as a complex place where Americans and everyone else depend on one another in their relationship to confusing events; the challenger presents or represents a country, America, that can do what it wants because its people are decent and determined. My guess is that more Americans, with sadness in their souls, will see things Carter's muddled way.

What could be the determining issue of the 1980 campaign was best expressed for me by a Carter supporter, Neil Hartigan, the former lieutenant governor of Illinois. "If people were really going to vote their pocketbooks, they would be settling in on Reagan and you wouldn't have these wild swings in polls," said Hartigan, who is now senior vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago. "But they apparently think things like inflation and unemployment are more complicated than Reagan does. It took about eight years to figure out, but I think people now see that the domestic economy is linked to energy and to foreign policy."

The issue, most Americans seem to have concluded reluctantly, is triangular: the economy, energy and foreign policy. I'm not sure Reagan can convince them of much by saying, as he did in San Antonio, Texas: "I say we can curb inflation, we can bring down interest rates, we can keep more money in the pockets of workers, we can put millions of Americans back to work."

Can we? Can we do that by ourselves? Or are we linked to Japan? To Saudi Arabia? To West Germany? To Russia? To China? If my reading is right, Reagan's biggest campaign blunder was sending signals that somehow he was going to reverse American initiatives toward mainland China. We need China, a lot of people think, as an ally and as a market. We need many places and things to do what Reagan seems to think we can do by ourselves.

Carter, on the other hand, doesn't seem to think we can do anything. The following is an excerpt from a "pool" report — the briefing given to the press by two reporters chosen on a rotating basis to stay close to the president when he travels — written up as Carter landed in Los Angeles last week:

"'Reports are that Iraq has made several attacks on Iran, by air primarily...We are not taking a position in support of either Iran or Iraq'...Your president said, turning away from the mikes, something about using 'the U.N.' and 'other avenues.'"

Our president's mumblings somehow seemed more appropriate to a complex situation than Reagan's "We can do it, America."

Reagan's own people have picked up some of that uneasiness about what Carter likes to call "simplistic notions." After sampling early results of Republican canvassing in Chicago suburbs, Don Totten, Reagan's Midwestern manager, flew to Washington to recommend that the candidate announce the names of men and women who would be in his Cabinet. The idea would be to reassure voters that a Reagan administration would be broad-based and sophisticated enough to deal with a complex world.

There is, of course, a long way to go in this campaign, and Reagan is an attractive and likable candidate — "likable" is not a word often heard around the president — and the Republican still appears to be ahead where it counts. If the election were held today, I would guess that the Republicans would win California, Texas, Illinois and, perhaps, New York. But the election won't come until Nov. 4, and events between now and then are likely to be very complex indeed.

Jailbird Gourmet Just A Victim Of His Habit

NORFOLK, Va. — Monsieur le Mooch was in the slammer again. Six months this time.

A short, stocky man, he sat with his hands clasped on the small jail table, the nicely manicured nails glistening at the tips of his fingers like tiny half moons.

He sought to explain his latest caper.

He recalled that last Monday night he had walked into the Norfolk Steak & Eggs Kitchen on Colley Avenue. He ordered the following:

A large steak
Hash browns
Three Danish pastries
10 cups of coffee.

"When the waitress asked me to pay, I told her I didn't have any money. Then I waited fro the police like I always do," he explained.

His name is Dennis Philip Santos.

Mr. Santos concedes that he has eaten about 60 meals in Tidewater restaurants since 1969 without paying for them.

His method is the same in all instances. He dresses neatly, walks into the restaurant of his choice, orders the most expensive item on the menu followed by no less than two pots of coffee if he can get away with it.

"I never wear a tie. I always dress neatly. I am polite, but then I'm polite naturally. When the meal is over, I tell the person at the cash register that I don't have any money."

And as the manager of the restaurant calls the police, he waits until the officers arrive. Always.

"I am the kind of person who believes that you have to pay for your mistakes. So I go to jail," he explained.

Mr. Santos' conversation is polite and there is a distracted air about him, as though he were pondering important matters.

"I am always clean. I like restaurants that are clean, too," he said. He is a busboy-dishwasher by profession.

Santos' most expensive meal to date was eaten at That Steak Place on Atlantic Avenue in Virginia Beach.

He recalled the meal fondly: "Three New York steaks, a few slices of cheese cake, an appetizer, salad, and, oh yes, iced tea with lemon." The bill was $30.44.

Santos told the cashier: "I have no money. What shall I do?"

The judge told him to do three months.

Santos contends that Kitchin's Kitchin on Atlantic Avenue is the finest restaurant he has visited locally. "It is in a class apart from all the others," he said. "Not just the food. I admire the hospitality, style and cleanliness of the place."

He lists other area restaurants in order of desirability:

Sizziln' Steak House on Laskin Road, the Lighthouse Restaurant on Atlantic Avenue, and so on. Number nine on the list (one suspects in deference to his present host) is the Norfolk Jail.

His selections often seem based more on atmosphere or shall we say ambience, than grub. "Wonderful view there," he said of one selection. Or, "They have very nice chandeliers at the Sheraton. Did you know they even have a chandelier in the kitchen?"

Wherever he goes he makes certain that he finishes every bite of food. Even the crumbs are spooned into his mouth with care. The plate glistens before the waitress approaches with her check.

"It shows appreciation for the food," he explained.

"But do you dream of food? Is it a compulsion you can't overcome?" I wondered.

"No," he replied. "I dream of dishes and hot water and soap. That's what I do when I'm out of jail and working. Wash dishes and carry dishes. Sometimes I think I'm going to turn into a bar of soap."

He has never volunteered to wash dishes in payment for his meals. And the restaurant management hasn't suggested it. "They just run me in."

Sometimes the restaurant manager does not prosecute. Rogers Arghyris, owner of Roger's Galley in Chesapeake, didn't.

"He was exceptionally polite — a real nice guy," Arghyris recalled.

Santos said a psychiatrist had once examined him, seeking the motive for his conduct. "He didn't get anywhere."

I had to know. "Why, why do you do it?!" I demanded.

He shifted in his chair, brow furrowed in concentration. Then suddenly he leaned forward, gripping the table with cupped palms, eyes glistening.

"I think it's a habit," he said.

applying for clown school. Absurd.

"From the first day, it was just wonderful.

"There were 10 in the class. The youngest was 12 and the oldest was over 60. Most were in their 20s. I went for two hours every Friday night for 13 weeks. All week long, I looked forward to Friday night.

"Then came the test, sort of the final exam — go out to the shopping mall and be a clown.

"I took as a character a woman all dolled up in satin who was really funny looking but thought of herself as gorgeous.

"Well, it didn't work. I went out in the shopping mall and nearly suffocated. I couldn't do it. Here I was, a lifelong extrovert trying to portray an introvert. Nobody laughed.

"I was crushed. As a clown, I was an absolute failure. So much for the dream of a lifetime.

"A few weeks later, I was at home listening to country-western music and suddenly it hit me. I would be a clown cowgirl, an outlandish extrovert — myself, but someone different.

"In 24 hours I had my costume made. As soon as I started putting on my make-up I knew it would work. By the time I put on my purple wig I was no longer Midge Donovan. I was Maggie D. Clown. I went to the shopping mall and had a ball. Everybody laughed, including me.

"Now I clown every chance I get. It feels so great. I've knocked off 25 pounds. The world is not threatening. I've never been happier.

"I don't know where it will lead, but it's the biggest thing in my life. Maybe I could be a full-time clown, you know, like Ronald MacDonald or something. We'll just have to wait and see.

"The worst thing that can happen is that nothing will come of it, but I'll still have a great time doing it.

"Think of it. A clown saved my life, and the clown is me."

Carter's lack of influence with states potentially involved in the Persian Gulf and the surrounding Mideast came from Israel, angering policy-makers here. The deputy Israeli defense minister told the respected Israeli newspaper Maariv that Israel could send "substantial aid" to Iran to help it "continue its war against Iraq" if Khomeini were deposed.

Israel has long been regarded as the closest U.S. Mideast ally. Such a pronouncement from a high Israeli official automatically translates in the Arab world as an order from Washington, raising the immediate — but ridiculous — prospect that the U.S. eyes Israel as an anti-Arab instrument in the Persian Gulf.

"We're close to helpless in this situation," one medium-level American official told us with only mild exaggeration. What seemed late last week to be shaping up as a self-contained mini-war between confident Iraq, bidding for Persian Gulf hegemony.

One Big Deterrent To The Joys Of Shopping

I can think of any number of things I would rather do than go shopping with Meg.

I would much prefer picking straight pins out of shag carpet, cleaning the oven with a vegetable brush, pulling poison ivy out of the azalea bed with my bare hands, scrubbing dirty diapers on a rock in the middle of a crocodile-infested river, or doing solitary battle with a tribe of starving cannibals on their annual feast day.

At the very least I could feel that after performing these feats I had accomplished something. When I take Meg shopping, I accomplish nothing. On a normal shopping excursion with her, I average two purchases, by far the most exciting being dental floss on sale at half price. Shopping for birthday or Christmas presents even vaguely suited for the recipients falls within the realm of impossible.

I was once told by a well-meaning friend that these excursions would be far more profitable if I could just relax and give Meg some rope. What my friend didn't know is that to Meg relaxing and serious shopping are mutually exclusive.

Relaxing means hitting every toy store and sweets shop within walking distance. Meg knows the location of each ice cream shop, candy shop, toy store, and bakery in every mall between Durham and Morehead City. An ice cream cone merely whets her appetite for a book, a book merely whets her appetite for a toy, a toy merely whets her appetite for a Pepsi, a Pepsi merely whets an urgent need for bathroom facilities the moment we are out of running range.

What's more, giving Meg rope is only an invitation to hang me. If I don't grip her hand at all times, she races through the mall and disappears in the vicinity of an antique show. Of course, on occasion she has been known to walk sedately through a store, usually when she's running her hand along a Waterford display shelf.

I must have masochistic tendencies because these incidents have a nightmarish quality about them which seems so unreal that within two or three months time, I am willing to try again. Our last trip was a marathon Christmas shopping expedition. I was so proud of myself that morning for being organized enough to start my shopping in September that I felt nothing could daunt me.

Six hours later I had purchased a 1980 calendar for my mother and a year's supply of Comet for my sister. I had almost found myself with the $150 dress in which Meg had wrapped herself after she decided that her chocolate ice cream had made her too cold. I had spent most of my day pulling Meg out from under clothesracks. The bottle of Tylenol in my diaper bag had been empty for three hours.

"Looks like you had a rough day," Phillip said.

Meg sighed. "Yes, it was certainly not very pleasant."

"And why was that?" I snapped.

She looked at her daddy. "Poor Mommy. She just can't seem to learn that she can't always have her own way."

Little Really Known About Iran-Iraq Conflict

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Despite government claims of hand-to-hand combat, tank battles and bombing raids, little is known about the scale of fighting and how much damage is being inflicted in the war between Iran and Iraq, diplomats here say.

Analysts have had to rely on communiques and radio broadcasts of both sides as well as refugee reports to assess the conflict. Many are skeptical about the claims from both Tehran and Baghdad.

"Knock off the zeroes and you probably have a better idea of the actual damage," said one Western diplomat, referring to Iraqi claims of downing 180 U.S.-made Iranian Phantom jets and Iranian claims of felling more than 100 Soviet-made Iraqi MiGs.

The London-based Institute of Strategic Studies estimates Iraq has 222,000 soldiers, 339 combat aircraft and 2,800 tanks and that Iran has roughly the same number of soldiers, 447 combat planes and 1,900 tanks.

Arab radios have claimed the Iraqis committed three divisions of 15,000 men each to battle compared to two divisions of unspecified size for the Iranians. But the reports have not been confirmed independently.

One reason is that reporters in both Iraq and Iran have not had free access to the fighting front, which stretches from the border town of Qasr-E-Shirin in western Iran south to the oil center of Abadan — a distance of nearly 300 miles.

In Iraq, some Western reporters have been given escorted tours to within about 3½ miles of the Iranian city of Ahvaz and across the Shatt el-Arab near Khorramshahr. Others have watched smoke billowing from the refineries at Abadan and the Iraqi port city of Basra.

Even so, one diplomat said, they have not been able to confirm the "fall of a single city claimed by the Iraqis" even though it is obvious that fighting is taking place on the Iranian side of the border.

Independent reports from the Iranian side have been even more limited because most Western news organizations were expelled last year. Correspondents who remain appear restricted to Tehran where they also have to rely on official news sources rather than eyewitness accounts.

Satellite reconnaisance undoubtedly indicates what forces have been deployed, but military analysts say that the use of large amounts of ammunition and maneuvering of men and equipment does not necessarily mean great damage is being done.

"Oil refineries and pipelines have been the targets of raids but how badly have they been hit?" asked one diplomat, noting that the air raids did not appear to be systematic.

A top Middle East oil analyst said that as far as the Western consuming nations are concerned the impact of the war outside Iraq and Iran would depend largely on how severely oil pumping stations, gathering plants and loading terminals are damaged.

But no independent observers have been allowed to see those facilities up close nor have government officials on either side outlined the dimensions of the destruction or say how long it would take to repair.

"We know really very little about the damage to either oil industry," the analyst said.

Despite the lack of information, diplomats stress they are taking the war seriously.

"It is serious because so much is at stake for both the combatants and the rest of the world," one said.

The loss of oil imports from the two Persian Gulf nations — which had a combined sale of four million barrels of oil a day before the war — could lead to higher heating oil prices this winter or even a shortage.

A broadening of the conflict, which shows no signs of abating, could also spread into the Persian Gulf itself — paralyzing other oil ports and disrupting the economies of the oil states there, including Saudi Arabia. Those nations depend on oil revenues to feed their people and finance ambitious development schemes.

Closure of the Straits of Hormuz could trigger U.S. naval action to keep the tanker lanes open and a possible confrontation with the Soviets. But so far, the consequences of the war seem more theoretical than actual.

Moslems, PLO Want Soviets Out Of Afghanistan

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Islamic representatives from 38 countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization on Saturday moved to have the current U.N. General Assembly to call for a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Agha Shahi, who presided over a private meeting of Islamic officials and PLO observers, read reporters a communique announcing creation of an open-ended committee to draft a resolution on Afghanistan for submission to the assembly.

The PLO, which cannot vote in the assembly, is a full member of the Islamic group.

Shahi said the committee was "instructed to bear in mind the principles set forth in the previous resolution of the Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers."

That resolution, adopted at meetings in Islamabad, Pakistan, last May, demanded "the immediate, total and unconditional withdrawal of all Soviet troops stationed on the territory of Afghanistan."

The Soviets have poured an estimated 85,000 troops into Afganistan since last December to help the Marxist regime in the capital of Kabul fight anti-communist Moslem insurgents.

The U.N. General Assembly shied away from mentioning the nationality of the interlopers when it voted 104-18 with 18 abstentions last Jan. 14 to call for "the immediate, total and unconditional withdrawal of all the foreign troops from Afghanistan."

That resolution was adopted at the assembly's sixth emergency session, arranged after the Soviet Union vetoed a somewhat similar resolution in the Security Council.

Now in its three-month 35th regular session, the assembly has agreed to debate Afghanistan again Nov. 3-5.

Named to be the nucleus of the newly created Islamic drafting committee were 10 countries — Algeria, Bangladesh, Guinea, Indonesia, Iran, Kuwait, Morocco, Pakistan, Senegal and Tunisia — plus the Islamic conference Secretary-General, Habib Chatti, a Tunisian.

All those countries voted for the emergency session's resolution but Algeria and Guinea, which abstained.

227 Million

WASHINTON (AP) — When the Census Bureau finishes its 1980 head count, it expects to calculate the nation's population at about 227 million, according to preliminary estimates disclosed Friday.

"Almost invariably, we are obtaining larger counts than one would expect on the basis of the estimates," said Census Director Vincent P. Barabba.

The actual count now appears likely to total 223,889,000, Barabba said, and he estimated that 3,111,000 people could have been overlooked.

The official estimate of the nation's population as of Census Day — April 1 — was 221,672,000.

Mormon Leader Says Families Imperiled

By VERN ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball, opening a conference marking the 150th anniversary of the church, warned on Saturday that an erosion of family life will cause society to disintegrate "into nothingness."

Meanwhile, in an afternoon general session three Mormon women supporters of the federal Equal Rights Amendment yelled "No! ERA policy! No!" in the Tabernacle on Temple Square when church leaders were being sustained by a raise of hands. The twice-a-year votes are nearly always unanimous.

"We know that when things go wrong in the family, things go wrong in every other institution in society," Kimball told the two-day Semiannual General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"Society without basic family life is without foundation and will disintegrate into nothingness," he said.

Another church official, meanwhile, warned that the church's welfare system was being taxed at an "alarming" rate by recession-plagued members. Church leaders appealed to members to continue giving 10 percent of their incomes to the church, as required for temple entry.

The prosperous and rapidly growing 4.6 million member church was founded by Joseph Smith Jr., who said he was instructed by God and Jesus Christ to establish "the only true and living church on the face of the earth."

Kimball, like the church's 11 previous presidents since 1830, is considered by members a prophet who receives revelations from God. He journeyed to upstate New York last April 6 during the church's Annual World Conference to commemorate the exact time and place Smith founded the church, which began with six members.

"Total chastity before marriage and total fidelity after are still the standard from which there can be no deviation without sin, misery and unhappiness," the 85-year-old Kimball said.

Marches

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Blacks protesting the shooting of a pregnant woman and Ku Klux Klan members supporting gun sales held separate demonstrations on Saturday.

Three blacks were arrested and charged with carrying concealed weapons, but they apparently were not part of either march, said police Sgt. Perry Martin.

Twenty robed Klansmen, some of them wearing hoods, marched peacefully in the Klan march, which was organized as a show of "white solidarity" for the Jackson Police Department. Jackson police have come under heavy criticism from blacks after a white officer shot to death an armed, pregnant black woman on Aug. 29.

Reagan Rejects Fundamentalist Prayer Concept

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan rejected on Friday the notion that God only hears Christian prayers.

Arriving at Lynchburg airport to address a meeting of religious broadcasters at Liberty Baptist College, Reagan was asked if he agrees with a statement by the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who said: "We've traditionally as Christians for 2,000 years believed that we pray through Jesus' name. That doesn't mean we're anti-Semitic."

"No," Reagan replied. "Since both the Christians and Judaic religions are based on the same God, the God of Moses, I'm quite sure those prayers are heard. I guess everyone can make his own interpretation of the Bible.

"Many individuals have been making differing interpretations for a long time," the former California governor added.

After a short drive to the college campus, Reagan emerged from his limousine, went up to reporters, and said, "Dr. Falwell never made that statement attributed in that question. He never said that. It was someone else who said that."

However, inside the auditorium, Falwell, while saying his words were distorted, acknowledged he believes in the thrust of the statement. He added that while he and a Jewish rabbi might disagree on theological matters, "We don't cease our friendships."

As for Reagan's remark, Falwell said, "I would fight for his right to believe that. I appreciate his stand ...."

In his speech to the National Religious Broadcasters Association, Reagan said, "I know how much you respect, and strongly support — as I do — the separation of church and state. This is one of our most important traditions and it must continue to be protected in the future."

He urged the broadcasters to "share the responsibility to work for peace ... the peace of the spirit that comes only through religious values. It is the bedrock of true peace."

During a brief question and answer period, Reagan stated his support for voluntary, non-sectarian school prayers, and said that as president he would base his decisions on what he believes was morally right or wrong.

Reagan also said he believes government should get out of involvement in family life.

He drew loud applause when he said that government "doesn't know more than parents about raising children."

The religious broadcasters are scheduled to have a similar question and answer session next week with President Carter.

Falwell is a founder of the Moral Majority, a church-oriented group that encourages fundamentalist Christians to become active in politics. While fundamentalist leaders are more in agreement with Reagan than Carter on such issues as abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment, many opinion polls say the president retains strong support among their followers.

Carter, a Southern Baptist, ran very strongly in Bible-belt states in the 1976 presidential election.

Reagan's last stop of the day was in Norfolk, Va., where he criticized Carter for blaming high interest rates on the Federal Reserve Board.

"The Carter-dominated Federal Reserve Board has now become Jimmy Carter's whipping boy for at least trying, in its own way, to remedy the damage to the economy caused by the highest budget deficit in the history of the country — Jimmy Carter's budget deficit," the Republican candidate said.

He added that "traditionally, presidents have respected the political vulnerability of the Fed by refraining from commenting on its actions," an assertion a top Reagan issues adviser conceded was something of an exaggeration. Presidents often have clashed with Federal Reserve Board chairmen.

Reagan was returning to his rented Middleburg, Va., estate after the campaign appearances in the only Southern state Carter failed to carry in 1976.

Reagan and running-mate George Bush will receive a briefing on Saturday on the war between Iraq and Iran. CIA officials will go to Middleburg to brief the Republican ticket.

Reagan accepted an offer from White House national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski to be briefed on the Middle East fighting.

Reagan has limited his reaction to the outbreak of hostilities between Iran and Iraq, saying he was awaiting the briefing in order to have a better understanding of the situation.

However, he has said that he does not believe the warfare would have erupted or that the American hostages would have been taken in Iran if the United States had given stronger support to the shah of Iran when he was being overthrown.

Reagan had rejected earlier offers for general foreign policy intelligence briefings. He had said he felt such briefings would restrict his freedom to criticize Carter's conduct of foreign policy.

Reagan's campaign swing began two weeks ago in Baltimore, where he debated independent presidential candidate John Anderson. From there the Republican candidate traveled through the South and to the West Coast.

This week, Reagan has campaigned intensively in major industrial states in the Northeast and Midwest, states where he hopes to win votes from traditionally Democratic labor and ethnic groups.

Poll Shows Dual U.S. Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans strongly support Israel, but most of them also support creation of a Palestinian state, a new poll shows.

The Louis Harris poll released Friday also gave President Carter a high grade for his determination to find peace in that volatile area of the world, but low marks for his handling of the Middle East.

The survey found:

— Support for Israel is at 81 percent, up from 74 percent four years ago.

— Support for sending U.S. arms to Israel has risen 10 percent from 1976, to 75 percent.

— More than half — 54 percent — of the American public has a lot of confidence in Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. He scores exactly the same with American Jews.

— 38 percent of the public, and 61 percent of the Jews, have a lot of confidence in Menachem Begin, prime minister of Israel.

No Suspects On Slayer Of Wilson County Man

FAYETTEVILLE (AP) — Cumberland County officials say they have no suspects in the slaying of a Wilson businessman who figured prominently in the confirmation hearings on Charles Winberry's nomination for a federal judgeship.

J. Gordon Dildy Jr., 27, was found Thursday on an isolated road near Interstate 95 south of Fayetteville. He had suffered multiple bullet wounds in his head.

County authorities have said they believe Dildy was slain by drug associates. A detective said Saturday an autopsy report had not been completed.

The man's body was discovered by a young woman who was out for a drive with her two children.

Dildy was scheduled to be tried Monday on a charge of peddling cocaine to a State Bureau of Investigation agent.

Police said he was last seen in Wilson last weekend. Authorities said that sometime during the weekend, Dildy apparently drove his mother's van to Fayetteville.

A waitress at a Fayetteville pancake house saw a man she believed to be Dildy get out of a van and into another car, authorities said.

Dildy was released on $100,000 bond in August on the cocaine charge and Police Chief Robert Key said Dildy had been active in running a local disco and a family-owned restaurant since then.

During congressional hearings on Winberry's nomination last February, Winberry testified that he suspected "Gordon Dildy was the man behind" a large cigarette smuggling operation.

Winberry was the attorney for Dildy's associate, David Windham, on the cigarette charges.

Winberry's opponents charged he withheld information during the court proceedings in the case and, although no evidence was offered to support that charge, Winberry's nomination to the federal judgeship was rejected by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Morgan Delays Wilderness Bill Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., has delayed action on a bill by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to limit the amount of North Carolina land set aside as wilderness areas.

Congress recessed Thursday for the November election and the soonest the bill could be discussed would be the post-election, lame-duck session.

An aide to Morgan said the senator asked Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., not to move the bill without consulting him, effectively putting the Helms' bill on the Senate's back burner.

"The senator was not going to be here during part of the week," the aide said. "He was just afraid something might happen on it. It was on the calendar and someone could have called it up."

The bill, which would designate 17,000 acres in Eastern North Carolina as wilderness, has been opposed by Morgan. The Democrat contends Helms did not consult state officials about the bill.

Helms' bill would open timber areas in Western North Carolina to lumber and mining industries.

Neither Helms nor Morgan could be reached for comment.

David Kennedy Arrested For DUI

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — David Kennedy, the 25-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, has been fined $380 — the standard penalty for first offenders — after pleading guilty to drunken driving.

Municipal Court Judge Lorenzo Patino decided not to place Kennedy on probation.

Gas and oil burners waste up to 55% of your fuel dollar

Homeowners will be surprised to learn that they could be wasting as much as $50 out of every $100 they pay for oil or gas. With home heating costing as much as it does, that could amount to well over $1,000 a year.

The average gas or oil burner is, in fact often no more than 45% to 55% efficient in delivering heat. Much of the waste in these burners occurs because heat has to travel lengthy distances through ducts and pipes. Gas and oil burners also have built-in chimney which further decrease

Yale Sending Manuscript To Jerusalem

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — Yale University will ship a rare 500-year-old Jewish manuscript recently determined to have been stolen by the Nazis during World War II to a new home in Jerusalem this fall.

The 15th-century illustrated Haggadah or Passover prayer book, kept in a Yale University basement for more than 30 years, was taken by the Nazis from a wealthy French baron James A. deRothschild, said Walter Cahn, chairman of Yale's art history department.

Cahn estimated the manuscript's value at $150,000 and described the find Friday as a "very great honor." The book, he said, offers a rare illustrated history of the Jews.

He said the manuscript was known as "Murphy's Haggadah" because it was bequeathed to Yale in 1948 on the death of 1897 graduate Fred Towley Murphy.

N. C. Camels Being Made In China

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Camel Filters cigarettes are being made in China — the first time a foreign brand cigarette has been produced in that country since the communists assumed power more than 30 years ago.

R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International Inc. announced dedication of the plant in the coastal city of Amoy Friday. The factory was built by the Chinese and houses cigarette making and packing equipment supplied by Reynolds Tobacco International.

The plant is producing Camel Filters for sale in foreign currency outlets in China. It will later produce a brand for general sale in China.

A number of American and British cigarette brands are sold in China but Camel Filters is the first international brand to be manufactured in China since 1949.

Utah Town Skunked By Striped Stinkers

MANTI, Utah (AP) — There's a nip in the air in Manti, and it isn't from autumn weather. Skunks are overrunning the town, skulking in after dark to dig up lawns and snitch eggs from turkey farms. So far, nothing has discouraged the striped stinkers, and one policeman has suggested a "skunk-out" to get rid of them.

"There is skunk after skunk after skunk. Everywhere you go there are skunks," Carl Poulsen, a trapper for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services in Manti, said Friday.

"Residents are complaining about them digging under their houses and in their lawns at night and you can see dead skunks all over the highways."

After dark, skunks take to the streets — even Main Street — bushes and lawns, where they dig for earthworms.

Asked To Approve Stock Purchase

WILKESBORO (UPI) — Shareholders of the Northwestern Financial Corp. are being asked to approve a proposal to pay $7 million for stock controlled by Edwin Duncan Jr., the company's former president who is serving time for violating banking laws.

The company's board of directors approved the purchase Thursday.

Duncan was convicted of misapplying bank funds and conspiring to wiretap federal agents investigating the bank for tax fraud. He was fired by the bank's board in August 1977.

He is scheduled to be released later this month from a federal prison in Maxwell, Ala.

Ben T. Craig, Northwestern's chairman, said the purchase will "eliminate various differences and uncertainties that have existed between the corporation and the Duncan family and the difficulties caused thereby."

Vonnegut — "First Amendment Tragic"

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Kurt Vonnegut says the First Amendment is "tragic because it makes people feel they can't defend themselves against something that offends them."

The 57-year-old writer's comments were sparked by an appeals court ruling Thursday ordering a trial in a suit challenging the ban of nine books from a Long Island school district. Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five" is one of the books.

The Island Trees school district banned the book three years ago, considering it "anti-Christian and sacrilegious."

"All ideas must be circulated to everyone," he said.

The novelist said that children and others must learn to defend themselves against ideas they do not wish to accept.

"I certainly learned that as a child," he said.

"Slaughterhouse Five" is the story of Billy Pilgrim, a World War II U.S. Army private who as a prisoner of war survives the Allied firebombing of Dresden, Germany.

High School Band Day At ECU On October 11

WAITING TO PERFORM . . . This photo of the ECU Marching Pirates shows members waiting on the sidelines in readiness to perform. The group will give an exhibiton performance at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, October 11 at Ficklen Stadium in conjunction with the annual high school band competition which begins at 2 p.m. on that date. The public is invited, and a $1 fee will be charged.

On Saturday, October 11, 21 high school bands from North Carolina and Virginia will be taking part in the annual high school band competition held at East Carolina University. The event is sponsored jointly by the School of Music Marching Pirates and the Athletic Department at ECU.

Tom Goolsby, faculty member of the School of Music and director of the ECU Marching Pirates, is coordinator for the competition.

The event begins at 2 p.m. and continues without break until 7:30 p. At that hour, the ECU Marching Pirates will present an exhibition for the visiting bands. This will take place at Ficklen Stadium.

Now in its 11th year, the annual high school band competition is designed to offer students in high school bands an opportunity for friendly competition and to give them the experience of seeing and hearing other bands perform.

Five judges will evaluate the total performance of each band, with additional judges to evaluate the performances of various sectors of the bands -- the percusion section, color guard, auxiliary units, and drum majors.

The four out-of-state bands competing, all from Virginia, and their directors are: Cox High School, Virginia Beach, Deborah Muhlemann; Great Bridge High School, David Starkey; Deep Creek High School, Chesapeake, David Drogus; and Tucker High School, Richmond, Tom Shook.

The seventeen high school bands from North Carolina to take part in the competition and band directors are:

— Princeton, Gary Alsop.
— Northern Nash, Mike Lopez.
— Tarboro, David Arnold.
— Camp Lejeune, Rick Walthall.
— Havelock, Mike Fussell.
— West Craven, Joe Sizemore.
— Roanoke, Robersonville, Frank Dew.
— Williamston, Mike Stephans.
— Washington, Tom Secor.
— Orange County, Bob Haas.
— Rose, Greenville, Jim Rodgers.
— Lumberton, Paul Pitman and Pat Bennison.
— Jacksonville, Gene Lloyd.
— Southern Nash, Roland Shaw.
— Smithfield-Selma, John Windley.
— Rocky Mount, J. C. Sykes and Charles Woods.
— Casy, Cary, Don Stubblefield.

Judges for the total band performances are: John Mote, Director of Bands, Marietta High School, Marietta, Georgia; Clyde Barr, president Pennsylvania Music Educators Association; Dave Doolittle, representative for McFayden's Music; Joel Schultz, assistant director, ECU Marching Pirates; and Mickey Driver, Director of Bands, Kannapolis.

Others judging performances in various areas are: David Rose, faculty member, Berklee School of Music, percussion; Carol Mote, color guard; David Rockefeller, ECU Drum Major, drum major; and Kathy Dreyer, ECU twirler, auxiliary units.

The public is invited to attend. An admission fee of $1 will be charged to help defray expenses of the competition.

'Joni,' A Film Marked By Warmth, Integrity

"Joni," the life story of a young woman who has courageously overcome the limitations of being severely physically handicapped and who eventually finds a new purpose, a new meaning to life, opened to a packed theater at Plaza Cinema Friday night.

Over the years, I have developed a certain skepticism about inspirational movies — so many of them have been self-serving, sacrificing the dramatic possibilities inherent in a story or theme or plot to the goal of getting a desired point across, often in terms of smugness coupled with overwhelming sentimentality.

This charge, fortunately, cannot be leveled at "Joni." It is a film with a powerful message of inspiration, but it is also a splendid, honest film worthy of the life-story of a remarkable young woman.

Either through the book of the same name, or from seeing Joni Eareckson in television appearances, her life story is familiar to most of us — the tragedy of being completely paralyzed due to a diving accident while still a teen-ager.

Following the initial struggle simply to survive, Ms. Eareckson then faces the demanding task of fighting despair and bitterness. The inner transformation in her life from resentment to acceptance of what cannot be changed, on to the strength of embracing the highest form of faith — that which can sustain a person no matter what may betide — is unfolded with uncomprimising honesty.

The intensity of self-doubt, the all too human cry of "why me, God" the shattering of dreams and too-high hopes, are all here in unadorned reality.

A secondary theme — and one that is as fully realized as Joni's struggle against physical adversity — is that of the rejection by others of a person who cannot be a totally physical person. Joni's childhood sweetheart, Dick Filbert (portrayed by Cooper Huckabee), vows he'll never leave her, yet when she gives him an out, he accepts it.

A few year later, when Joni has learned to lead a fairly active life from her wheelchair, an effusive, physically powerful young man, Don Bertolli (Michael Mancini), confuses his dedication for helping unfortunates with being in love with Joni. His ultimate realization that he does not have the strength to share a celibate future with Joni is another in a string of shattering personal experiences.

Then, in a brief encounter with a handsome young Marine Lieutenant who has lost an eye and a hand in Viet Nam (Stephen Parr), Joni's attempt to reach out in friendship is rebuffed. He cannot accept her awareness of the joy of simply being alive.

It is another young man, younger than herself, who proves to be crucial in the crystallization of Joni's faith. Steve Estes (Richard Lineback), son of a minister, a would be wrestler, and a fervent Bible reader, who works for a time as a laborer on her father's farm, is the person instrumental in opening Joni's mind to the acceptance of a faith that is deeper than understanding. His reading aloud of passages from the "Book of Isaiah" during walks through Maryland countryside in autumn is a profoundly moving scene, rich in the poetry of great literature and the beauty of nature.

The drama of Joni Eareckson's life and the faith she has discovered is convincingly told in this warm, honest and rewarding film. The cast — those portraying her parents, sister, roommates in a rehibilitation center, the men in her life — all give superb performances.

At the film's end, we know that there are and will always be terrible voids of loneliness, the ache of dreams and hopes unfulfilled in Joni Eareckson's life — but we know too that she will survive, and survive with peace and even joy in her heart because of her unshakeable faith in herself and in her God.

Sought Norwegians, Found Indians

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Archaeologists have ended a two-year search for a Norwegian settlement on the Maine coast without finding any evidence of one.

But the team from the Maine State Museum said Friday it did find traces of a "summer" Indian community 1,000 to 1,500 years old.

The dig was started in 1978 after a single coin found in the area was identified as a Norwegian artifact dating back to the 11th century, raising the possibility that Norse explorers had landed in North America nearly 500 years before Columbus sailed from Spain to the New World in 1492.

But Stephen Cox, who headed the expedition, said archaeologists failed to find any further evidence of a permanent Norse settlement at the excavation site in Brooklin on Penobscot Bay. He said the team concluded the coin was probably traded to Indians in the area by tribes from Newfoundland where Norsemen are known to have landed.

Phil having weight loss checked by Andi Reidl, RN, and Robin Lindler, LPN

"I have tried many diets and many ways of losing weight. When Professional Diet Control came to Hickory and moved across the street from Phil's Pharmacy, I decided to try their diet program. When I started I weighed 220 pounds and was 41 inches in the waist. After six weeks, only 42 days, my weight was 179 pounds and I was 35 inches in the waist. Professional Diet Control program was the easiest diet to follow and one that did not affect my energy nor did I feel hungry. I highly recommend this program to anyone who is overweight."
PHIL SWANN

This is just one more testimonial from one of our satisfied customers. Professional Diet Control has been in North Carolina two years and we are seeing approximately 1,000 people a day. If you're serious about losing weight, this is a safe, fast and effective way to do it. Come in to Professional Diet Control today. Help us celebrate our 2nd Anniversary with a special savings. You can reach your weight goal quickly, safely, and at a price you can afford.

Armand Hammer Collection At The Corcoran

NOW AT THE CORCORAN . . . "The Armand Hammer Collection: Five Centuries of Masterpieces," containing over 100 major works of art, went on view at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C. on October 4. Two of the works in the show are John Singer Sargent's "Dr. Pozzi at Home," left, and "Caller Herrin'," right by Sir John Everett. The exhibition will be at the Corcoran, 17th and New York Avenue, through November 30. There is no admission charged for the exhibition. (Photo Courtesy The Armand Hammer Foundation)

WASHINGTON, D. C. — More than 100 works of art collected by Dr. Armand Hammer over the past decade is now being shown at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. The exhibit — "The Armand Hammer Collection: Five Centuries of Masterpieces," opened Saturday, October 4 and will remain on view through November 30. Admission is free.

David Lloyd Kreeger, president of the Corcoran, notes that "Most of this collection has never been seen before in the nation's capital. Because of Dr. Hammer's commitment to sharing, there is no other private collection that has been seen by so many people in different parts of the world. We are delighted that Washington is being included in the tour."

Among works in the collection are three Rembrandt paintings including "Juno," a portrait of a mythological queen, and "Portrait of a Man Holding a Black Hat". Rubens is also represented by three paintings — "Adoration of the Shepherds," "The Israelites Gathering Manna in the Desert," and "Young Woman with Curly Hair."

Dr. Hammer is exhibiting four recent acquisitions, two oil paintings, one by Frederic Remington, titled "Cowpuncher's Lullaby;" and another by C. M. Russell, "The War Party." Two drawings by Mary Cassatt are being shown, "Margot Leaning Against REine's Knee," and "Smiling Margot Seated in a Ruffled Bonnet." Both are studies for a pastel, " Reine Lefebvre and Margot," also in the collection.

One of the earliest works in the exhibition is a small gouache on vellum painting by Albrecht Durer, dated 1526, "Tuft of Cowslips." The painting is a study of a flower more commonly known in this country as English primrose.

The 18th century is represented by artists like Boucher, Fragonard and Goya. The Goya is from a series of oil paintings done as cartoons for tapestries. Titled "El Pelele," it shows four young girls tossing a straw man in a blanket. The finished tapestry based on the cartoon is now in the Palace of El Prado, outside Madrid.

Many examples of 19th and 20th century art are included in the collection. A Parisian surgeon in a brilliant red dressing gown is by John Singer Sargent. John Walker, director emeritus of the National Gallery of Art, has called the painting, "Dr. Pozzi at Home," — "a masterpiece of salon painting."

Eight works by Vincent van Gogh are included — four oil paintings and four drawings. One of the paintings, "Garden of the Rectory at Nuenen," is among the last of his Duth pictures. Another is a view of the asylum park with flamelike brushwork that heralded the style for which he has become best known.

Gericault, Corot, Boudin, Caillebotte, Sisley, Monet, Renoir, Morisot, Cezanne, Fantin-Latour, Eakins, Degas, Toulouse-Lautrec, Moreau, Gauguin and Millais are all represented.

Millais' painting, "Caller Herrin'," is the first representation of the English School in the Hammer Collection.

Among more recent masters, there are works by Bernard, Bonnard, Vuillard, Derain, Modigliani, Soutine, Rouault, Vlaminck, Laurencin, Chagall, Picasso, Prendergast — just to mention a few.

The exhibition, made possible by the Armand Hammer Foundation, occupies the skylit upper atrium galleries in the Corcoran, located at 17th and New York Avenue, N.W. The special installation was designed by Alex and Carrie Castro. Acoustiguide recorded tours are available, narrated by Corcoran director Peter Marzio with comments by Dr. Hammer.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. every day except Monday, when the museum is closed. On Thursday evenings, the Corcoran remains open until 9 p.m.

In April 1979, The Armand Hammer Foundation pledged over a million dollars to make free admission to the Corcoran possible, and to fund renovation in the building. Also, to complement the exhibition, a special series of gallery talks will be held between October 8 and November 12. Full details are available on these by calling Corcoran — (202) 638-3211.

To date, The Armand Hammer Collection has been exhibited in more than 30 cities in the U.S. and abroad, including London, Caracas, Tokyo, Mexico City, Edinburgh, Stockholm, New York, Memphis, Atlanta and Houston. After its Corcoran showing, the collection next goes on view at the Norton Gallery and School of Art, West Palm Beach, Florida. In the spring the exhibit will be in Cincinnati, Ohio, as one of the highlights of that city's centennial year.

Permanent Collection Going On View At The Art Center

A large selection from the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center is to go on view at the center beginning Thursday, October 9. The works will be shown in both the North and South Galleries.

Twentieth century paintings, drawings, prints, sculpture and ceramics from the collection will be shown. Local, regional, state, national and international artists are represented in the center's collection.

Among artists whose works are in the collection are Joan Miro, Francis and Sarah Speight, Louise Nevelson, Arthur Dove, Ellsworth Kelly, Salvador Dali, Donald Sexauer, Walter Thrift, Phillip Moose and Claude Howell. Also, Robert and Sara Edmiston, Emily Farnham, Robert Pittman, Paul Hartley, Wes Crawley, Ray Ellmore, Tran and Marilyn Gordley, Roxanne Reep, and others.

Japanese woodblock prints, a Steuben glass vase designed by Giorgio De Chirico and a polished black juster traditional pueblo pottery by Maria Martinez are typical examples of the variety the collection offers to the viewing public.

Mary Anne Pennington, executive director of the center, will give two lectures on the exhibition — one at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, October 14 and another at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, October 22.

The public is invited to see the collection and to attend the gallery talks. The Greenville Art Center is located at 802 Evans Street.

Grant Awarded

DURHAM — The North Carolina Museum of Life and Science has been awarded a $35,000 federal grant from the Institute of Museum Services (IMS). Dr. William M. Sudduth, the museum's executive director, announced the award.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JULIE HICKS

For almost 30 years, Mary Stuart, as Joanne Tate Vincent of "Search For Tomorrow," has been a familiar face across the country. Now she has written an autobiography in which she admits: "From the beginning, Joanne and I have lived strangely parallel lives." Both she and the character she created learned to assert themselves, respect themselves, and handle marriages, mothering, careers and finally life alone. "Both Of Me" is a moving story of a public and private life filled with joys, sadnesses, accomplishments, and failures. In addition to the account of her own double life, Mary/Joanne discloses some fascinating details about the show that has made television history at a time when daytime serials are growing in sophistication. Amusing anecdotes about the goofs and mishaps of live television are included along with numerous photographs. Millions of people consider Mary Stuart/Joanne Vincent to be the queen of soap operas.

In "The Making Of A Woman Surgeon," Elizabeth Morgan shows us the surgeons' world from her own unique perspective. Hers is a candid and vivid account of her 11-year struggle through medical school and general and plastic surgery. The witty and colorful odyssey is a tribute to the many doctors-in-training who persevere and succeed. Although Morgan had to make her mark in a specialized field (a male-dominated world) she managed to maintain her individuality. This interesting and compulsively readable biography is the success story of a woman who made it.

"The Women Who Made The West" is a compilation of 18 vignettes of little-known but noteworthy frontierswomen. Each story gives a vivid picture of the position of women in the 19th century. Women from all walks of life are included: Journalists, doctors, ranchers, hotel owners, etc. This book is a tribute to some unsung heroines whose strength and courage helped carve out the American West while making a place for themselves.

DOLL COUNTRY — All kinds of dolls are lined up in doll formation on shelves at the Williamston Arts and Crafts Center in Moratoc Park. In calico and ruffles, laces and bonnets, they range in storybook type from golden haired little princesses to snaggle-toothed women with stringy hair. A couple of clowns and even a haughty lady poodle are included in the selection. The center at Moratoc Park is Martin County's bid in the initial stage of an establishing an art center for Martin County. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Three Fellowships To ECU Students

ECU News Bureau

Three graduate students at East Carolina University have received $1,500 graduate fellowships in ECU's Marine Education Leadership Training Program.

They are Billie Weston of Greenville, Wells Barker of Milton and James Luxton of Morehead City.

The program, sponsored by the ECU Department of Science Education, is supported by the North Carolina Sea Grant Program and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

According to Dr. Carolyn Hampton of the ECU science education faculty, program director, the students are engaged in internships at the state's Marine Resources Center in Manteo, working with Dare County teachers who are developing and field-testing marine education curriculum materials under a Title IV-C grant.

The materials, ultimately to be made available to schools throughout the state, will enable teachers to integrate marine education into existing classroom instruction.

Each student will receive support for 12 months of study leading to the master's degree in secondary education with a concentration in science education.

Billie Weston, a 1976 ECU alumna, is a Greenville native. She has been employed for the past four years as a seventh grade teacher at Brevard Middle School in Transylvania County.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.F. Weston of Greenville.

Wells Barker, a 1973 science education graduate of N.C. State University, has been employed as a teacher with the Person County School System. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker of Milton.

James Luxton is an ECU alumnus, who received the BS degree in biology in 1980. He is a resident of Morehead City.

Senior Show

ECU News Bureau

Paintings, drawings and graphics by Waitsel B. Smith, Jr. of Lenoir, a senior student in the School of Art, ECU, are currently on display in ECU's Kate Lewis Gallery. The exhibit will be up through October 10.

The show, installed in Whichard Building, features watercolors, acrylic and oil paintings, as well as graphics executed with pen and ink, brush and ink, pencil, charcoal and intaglio printing.

Since most of his paintings are large, and filled with human figures, Smith has entitled the show, "Physical."

Sexauer Print Awarded Prize

ECU News Bureau

A color lithograph print by Donald Sexauer, faculty member of the School of Art, East Carolina University, has received a major award in a national art exhibition in New York.

The print, "L. C.'s Gift," received the Rising Paper Company Award in the 58th National Print Exhibition of the Society of American Graphic Artists.

The exhibition opened September 16 at the galleries of the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York and will be on view through October 18.

Art Society Drive

RALEIGH — A goal of 1,000 new members has been announced by the statewide membership organization serving the N. C. Museum of Art.

N. C. Art Society Membership chairman Mazie Forelich of High Point and co-chairman Bren Cheatham of Greenville will head the team of 53 captains in 42 locations throughout North Carolina.

In Greenville, membership chairman is Mrs. William H. Taft, Jr.

The theme of this year's campaign is the opening events of the new $17 million N. C. Museum of Art facility scheduled for dedication in the spring of 1981. The society and its members have been instrumental in the successful private campaign to raise $5 million for the Education Wing.

Memberships in the society are available at $10 for student, professional artist and senior citizen categories; individual memberships — $15 state except Triangle area, which is $20; family $25, $35 for Triangle area; contributing $100; and sustaining, $500

Marceau Performs

GREENSBORO — The Greensboro Coliseum and UNC-Greensboro are jointly sponsoring an evening with Marcel Marceau, at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, October 7 in the Greensboro Auditorium. Marceau is noted as the greatest living interpreter of pantomime — the art of silence.

Jones-Lee House Nominated

RALEIGH — The Jones-Lee House in Greenville has been nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places by Larry E. Tise, state historic preservation officer. The register is a national list of distinctive properties worthy of preservation because of their historical or other cultural value.

The Jones-Lee House is the only residential building left in an urban renewal area, and is the only late 19th century house remaining on Evans Street south of Greenville's business district. It is a two-story Queen Anne style structure built by a local contractor between 1890 and 1898.

Approval of the nomination by the Department of the Interior usually takes about six months and will be announced through the state's congressional delegation.

Chrysanthemum Day

NEW BERN — Sunday, October 12 is another of the free visit days for the public at the Tryon Palace Gardens. The largest collection of chrysanthemums in eastern North Carolina is expected to be in peak bloom at that time.

"Over 5,000 chrysanthemums will be included in the seven display gardens which will produce in excess of 100,000 blossoms," Herb Rea, horticulturist at the complex said. "This fall we have 16 varieties of chrysanthemums including the White and Pink Grandchild, the purple Tinkerbell, the light bronze Pancho, the pink Stardom and yellow Starlet."

Plants will be flowering in the Latham, Kellenberger, Parterre, Stevenson, Jones, Stanly, and Commission House gardens. Others will be scattered throughout the 13 acre historical complex. Several varieties of potted mums will be on sale at the Garden Shop.

Gates to the gardens will be opened from 1 to 5 p.m. (Free entry applies only to the garden areas. The usual charge applies for tours of the palace and the Stanly and Stevenson Houses.)

A highlight of the day will be a concert in the Latham Garden by Pro Musica, a group of 16 singers under the direction of Lorraine Robinson. The group will perform a program of period music at 2, 3, and 4 p.m.

Regular hours of the palace complex are: 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays; and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Sundays. The complex is open on national holidays on Mondays (including Columbus Day, October 13). Closed other Mondays and on Thanksgiving Day and also closed Dec. 24-26 and Jan. 1.

FOUL WEATHER FRIENDS — It's nearly impossible to steer a bike and hold an umbrella at the same time, but Perry Lee had a holder nearby. Tim Porter held the umbrella while Perry handled the bike. Tim had been riding behind Perry when the pair left Westside High School in Anderson, S. C. at the end of classes on a wet day, but jumped off to walk for a short distance when the way became rough. The umbrella was necessitated by a spell of wet weather that has swept the South for the past few days. (AP Laserphoto)

'Dames At Sea' Opening On October 9

"Dames at Sea," the award winning New York musical comedy, will be presented by the ECU Playhouse beginning Thursday, October 9 through Wednesday, October 15.

Performances, to be given in the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the campus, will begin nightly at 8:15 p.m. Because of the limited seating and the previous record of sell-outs, early reservations are suggested. Tickets are on sale at the playhouse box office or can be reserved by calling 757-6390 between 9-4 daily weekdays.

"Dames at Sea" is a '30s musical with tap dancing and is highly suitable for all ages. When the play opened in New York it received the coveted Outer Circle Critics Award as Best Musical of the Year. The New York production had a long run.

Based on campy nostalgia of the Hollywood musicals of the 1930s, the scene is Big-Time New York with a sweet young lady from a faraway hometown who has come to make it big on Broadway. There she meets hometown boy — now a sailor — who has ambitions to succeed as a songwriter.

The hometown girl begins her career in the chorus, and trouble in loveland raises its unwelcome head when the show's star makes goo-goo eyes at the sailor, thus rocking the boat of true love.

But in true Hollywood fashion (of past days), the songwriter sailor saves the faltering show with a smash tune, and the hometown girls achieves stardom by singing it on the deck of the battleship which just happens to be passing by.

Director Edgar Loessin and choreographer Paula Johnson have assembled a cast of 14 actor/singer/dancers who have been hard at work on the 16 musical numbers and the lavish tap dancing routines.

Playhouse manager stressed that "Dames at Sea" is clean musical comedy, suitable for the entire family — and that there's music and dancing to please any audience.

Youth Orchestra Still Needs Some Players

At the board meeting of the East Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Association held recently, Dr. Charles Moore, temporary chairman, stated that the two audition sessions held for the East Carolina Youth Orchestra were successful, with several young musicians joining the orchestra. "There are still, however, a few positions open in strings, woodwinds, brass and percussion for others interested in auditioning," Moore stated.

Rehearsals for the youth orchestra are now being held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Monday evening.

Robert Hause, director of the orchestras, told about plans for the first concert to be given in early December. The Youth Orchestra will also be an invited performer in the Spring Arts Festival sponsored by the Greenville Arts Council.

It was announced that an Intermediate Orchestra, under the direction of Mamie Dixon, will be activated as soon as funds are available. The primary source of such funds will be derived from individual, family and organizational memberships in the orchestra association.

A minimum of $10 annual dues, payable to Eastern Carolina Orchestra and Chamber Music Ass'n may be sent to: Joanne Bath, 1304 Oakview Drive. The organization is a non-profit one, and membership fees are tax deductible.

For further information, contact: Charles Moore 756-0562 or Robert Hause, 756-5793.

'Sheffey' To Screen At Grace FWB Church

A feature film production, "Sheffey," produced by Unusual Films, is to be shown beginning at 6 p.m. on Sunday, October 12 at Grace Free Will Baptist Church, 400 Watauga Avenue. There is no admission being charged and the public is invited to attend.

Directed by Katherine Stenholm, "Sheffey" is the story of the life of Eliza Sheffey, and of the message of faith in Jesus Christ which consumes him from the day he accepts Christ as Saviour until he reaches the end of his life as a seasoned veteran of many spiritual battles.

Tim Rogers wrote the screenplay and also served as chief editor of the film. The events and characters in this feature film are based on real persons.

Director Stenholm, a graduate of Bob Jones University, with a masters degree from Northwestern University, also studied filmmaking at the University of Southern California. She has been in a leadership capacity at Unusual Films since the studio opened in 1950. In addition to her work with the studio, she teaches several cinema courses each year and works closely with her students in their film projects.

"Sheffey" won high honors at the International Film and Television Festival of New York, where it competed with 3,000 other entries and was awarded one of only four silver medallions.

Fossil Club Fair At Aurora

AURORA — The North Carolina Fossil Club, in cooperation with Texasgulf and the Smithsonian Institution, is sponsoring a Fossil Fair near Aurora on Saturday, October 18.

All persons interested in attending are invited and are encourged to bring their own fossils — bones, teeth, shells, anything — or just to come and look.

A team of experts from the Smithsonian Institution and from East Carolina University will be on hand to talk to interested persons about their finds.

Persons wanting more information on the event are to write to: Judy Raynor, N. C. State Museum, Paleontology Dept., P. O. Box 27647, Raleigh, N. C., 27611. A self-addressed stamped envelope is suggested.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Kay Currie's "Hospitality House," the personality interview show aired Sundays over WITN-TV, Channel 7, will be broadcast in a 30 minutes spot from 4:30 to 5 p.m. today.

The first guest today is Carol Cutler, well known cookbook author and former food columnist for "The Washington Post." She has been called by "Newsweek" one of the top food writers in America. In her spot on "Hospitality House," Ms. Cutler will discuss low calorie desserts.

Another guest is Dr. Max Abbott, new president of the North Carolina Symphony. He talks about the recent musicians strike and the new look for the orchestra, one of 31 in the U.S. which has been accorded a major orchestra status.

Ms. Currie's third guest today is Diane Whitford, job developer and counselor at Wayne Community College, Goldsboro. Ms. Whitford gives details on the three day symposium scheduled for October 6-8 to be held in Herman Park on the subject "Employment Opportunities in the 1980s." This is the first symposium of this type in the state.

Personalities Of Mules Vividly Related In A New Mule Book

With Their Ears Pricked Forward: Tales of Mules I've Known. By Joshua A. Lee. Winston-Salem. John F. Blair, Publisher, 138 pages, $8.95.

Take note, Taylor Koonce, you've got competition in penning tales about mules.

In remembering mules that were his favorites, along with mules who rate only a passing nod, Professor of Crop Science at N. C. State University Joshua Lee has fashioned a fascinating collection of biographies of mules and their masters.

The Georgia born author lets nostalgia guide but does not permit it to dominate his recollections. The fond memories of mules in the days of his farm boy youth are recalled within the framework of the struggle in the South to keep chins above water during the Great Depression.

What is particularly appealing in these stories is that neither mule nor man stand alone. For every ornery, stubborn, conniving mule there lurks somewhere nearby the mule's human equivalent of an "original" character.

And the names of mules and men ring authentically with a talent for color that seems to be another dying art of the old South: the mules — Old Ellabelle, Cracker, Rox, Zelda, Black Gal, Pender Jane; and the men — Fent Newsome, bootlegger; Old Cap'n Tolbert, the author's grandfather and grand judge of good mule flesh; storeowner Fate Evans. Then there's the likes of Josh Wiggins, Silas West, Mutt Lange, Tooky Calhoun and Coot Mixon.

The range of tales in this collection is so richly varied that it's difficult to select a typical example or two to cite. Some are touched with tragedy, as in the case of Mr. Clyde and Miss Nettie Tilley and their mule Old Bill. It was Mr. Clyde's habit to drink a mite too much in town on Saturday nights. After each bout, is friends dutifully laid him out in his wagon, turned the mule's head in the direction of Mr. Clyde's home, knowing Miss Nettie would hear the mule come up and that she'd go out and drag her erring mate into the house. One night, his friends, forgetting Mr. Clyde had moved, sent him as usual on his way. The faithful mule plodded home — but to the old familiar home place, not to Mr. Clyde's new dwelling. Unfortunately, it was the coldest night of the year, and "the night in the open wagon brought on double pneumonia, and that, along with the ravages of poverty, age and rotgut likker, proved to be too much for the old man. Mr. Clyde Tilley died two days later."

Most of the tales are far happier. One of the best deals with the community's ancient Negro handyman, Uncle Alec Ziegler and his mule Jayrack. Jayrack was noted far and wide for his tendency to sit down and not budge, no matter what, when the spirit to do so hit him. Once, the urge hit him right in the middle of the town square. The town's mayor, exasperated, brought charges and held a trial, much to the consternation of everyone. It just so happened that a real lawyer was visiting town, and took Uncle Alec's case. With his knowledge of law and the proper proceedings for a trial, the city lawyer from Savannah made a hilarious shambles of the case. As a result, Jayrack's became a mule hero. At his death he was given a proper funeral, complete with a minister preaching a sermon on the possibility of a mule heaven.

"With Their Ears Pricked Forward" provides just about all the general knowledge of mules anyone will ever need to know. They are classified according to size, appearance, characteristics — plugs and outlaws, bluenose and hump back, matched pairs and pack leaders. Diseases common to mules include windbreak, bellows, glanders and swinny. And their curious antics are succinctly outlined. Some harbored unreasonable fear of mud puddles. Others were terrified of snakes or a knothole in the plank of a wooden bridge, while some were peaceable creatures who unaccountably became raging monsters at the sight of a goat or a cow.

Rural life in the South in pre-World War II days is vividly depicted in these pages. Those were the days when folks congregated in town on Saturdays, either at Fails' Cafe, where premium moonshine was available, or at Fate Evans's store, the more genteel social center. Mules and crops, the weather and the efforts of worthy deacons to bridle the exuberance of menfolk were favorite topics of conversation. The monotony of life was sweetened by the joys of creek fishing and the excitement of gypsies coming through.

Throughout Lee's book, the underlying interplay of the lives of mules and men is told with a sincere affection for the special relationship that existed between a farmer and his faithful work partner.

One minor puzzle is the total absence of any reference to the undeniable bucolic fragrance of mule stables and barnyards. But with all its other rewards, this oversight can easily be overlooked. "With Their Ears Pricked Forward: Tales of Mules I've Known" is a picture of the South that will please both city and country readers.

FAA Computer Fails Again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the second time in 10 days, a malfunction knocked out the sophisticated computer system at the regional air traffic center in Palmdale, Calif., which is used to track and separate aircraft over Southern California, Nevada, Arizona and the Pacific Ocean, officials said.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale, on his way to Northern California, took off from Los Angeles International Airport nine minutes before the computer went back into service, observers at the airport said.

As in the outage Sept. 23, the problems Friday were complicated by a simultaneous failure in a key part of the backup mechanism used when the computers break down.

The situation posed no danger to any planes, said Al Garvis, public affairs spokesman for the western regional office of the Federal Aviation Administration. He said the only airport where takeoffs may have been delayed because of the problems was Las Vegas, Nev.

An air traffic controller at McCarran International Airport in Las Vegas confirmed there were several delayed takeoffs due to the computer outage and heavy air traffic.

Judge Orders Cut In Prison Population

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Alarmed by an "intolerable" level of prison violence including four inmate murders in five months, a judge has ordered the population of the Florida State Prison here cut by a third in 10 days.

The transfers may create hardship for the state's prison system, but the situation at Starke was an "emergency," Circuit Judge R.A. Green said Friday.

"The violence still continues. The present situation is intolerable," said Green. He ordered that 372 of the 1,122 inmates at the maximum-security prison be moved, and limited the prison population to 750 inmates. He said he was particularly alarmed by the slayings of four inmates at the prison since June.

No transfer plans have been made and the deadline "doesn't give us much time," said Prison Superintendent C.G. Strickland.

The report said there were not enough guards to keep the inmates under control, which was a major factor in the violence.

It also said fights generally were caused by disputes over homosexual partners.

Violence, the report said, "occurs routinely and predictably at meal times," when the staff shortage is at its worst.

Trying To Decide What To Keep, To Sell

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Navy pilot who won history's biggest television game show payoff — worth $312,700 — says he's having a fine time deciding what to keep or sell.

"We've bought the house we wanted and we're investing a whole bunch in oil," Lt. Thom McKee said Friday. "Oh, we won a jet ski and we're keeping that along with some cameras and luggage. We gave away a sailboat to friends and we've given an organ to a little church nearby that we attended a couple of times."

Tar Heels Dominate Ramblin' Wreck

THE DAILY REFLECTOR
Sports
SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 5, 1980

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina "just dominated us," Georgia Tech coach Bill Curry said after his team was overpowered by 10th-ranked Tar Heels 33-0 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Quarterback Rod Elkins passed for three touchdowns as the Tar Heels posted their fourth consecutive victory.

"North Carolina is a very physical team — they are definitely a Top 10 team," Curry said.

"There is nothing I can say to describe what you saw out there today. North Carolina is a fine team," Curry added.

North Carolina coach Dick Crum said, "Our defense played very well today. I thought our offense played well at times, but we had some errors there. We just weren't as consistent as I would like.

But while Curry said he and his team were awed by the Tar Heels, now 4-0, Crum said the Yellow Jackets put up a good fight.

"Give Georgia Tech credit. They hung in there well. Bill Curry is going to do a good job," Crum added.

A crowd of 49,750 saw North Carolina unleash a strong running game and play tight defense that yielded only one first down in the first half and six for the game, one on a penalty.

Georgia Tech was able to move into North Carolina territory only twice, their farthest penetration to the opposing 46.

Jeff Hayes kicked a 46-yard field goal late in the first quarter to put the Tar Heels ahead 3-0. North Carolina had driven 69 yards earlier to the Georgia Tech 2 where an Elkins pass was intercepted by mark Cheffield.

The Tar Heels, who have won four games without losing this season, scored twice in the second quarter. Tailback Kelvin Bryant went over from the one to cap a 43-yard drive. Later Elkins fired a 17-yard pass to Amos Lawrence who made a diving catch in the end zone.

Elkins hit end Victor Harrison on an 8-yard touchdown pass in the third period. Later in that same quarter he connected on another touchdown pass, this one 15 yards to John Richardson.

The Tar Heels added two points in the third period when Lawrence Taylor tackled quarterback Ted Peeples in the end zone for a safety.

Hayes ran up his record of consecutive point after touchdown kicks to 52, surpassing the previous ACC mark of 51 held by Jay Sherrill of North Carolina State.

Bryant and Lawrence led North Carolina's running game, combining for 214 yards. Bryant carried 12 times for 112 yards and Lawrence has 102 yards in 27 carries.

In the second quarter, Bryant broke loose on a 35-yard run to Georgia Tech's 33. Four plays later, Hayes attempted a 44-yard field goal that was wide.

Shortly before the half, Bryant took a screen pass from Elkins and raced 49 yards to the Tech 12. After a five-yard penalty, Elkins passed to Lawrence in the end zone for 17 yards.

Georgia Tech, now 1-3 for the season, was unable to make a first down until late in the second quarter when Mike Kelley completed a 19-yard pass to end Kris Kentera.

Leading 17-0 at the half, North Carolina rolled 65 yards for a touchdown, the final eight yards coming on a pass from Elkins to Harrison.

Indiana Grounds Blue Devils Down

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Tim Clifford passed for one touchdown and ran 15 yards for another, and tailback Lonnie Johnson keyed a revitalized Indiana ground game Saturday as the Hoosiers turned back stubborn Duke 31-21 in a non-conference college football game.

"I really love to run the football," said Johnson, who rushed for a school record-tying 211 yards and scored the clinching touchdown in the third quarter on a one-yard run. Johnson missed Indiana's 49-7 victory at Colorado a week earlier with a bruised thigh.

This week, it was Clifford who was forced to the bench after a second-quarter injury, but the Hoosier runners responded with an impressive record.

"We prepared to run the football," said Johnson. "We had to get a balanced attack going in order to mix the defense up. When Clifford went out, the coach told us running backs we had to get going."

Johnson's 211 yards tied the Indiana single-game record set five years ago by Courtney Snyder.

"I didn't know about the record," Johnson said. "I just wish I could have gotten one more yard."

Indiana coach Lee Corso said Johnson played "a physically hard game. It was a tremendous performance for him. He had to earn every yard he made, but we don't pay attention to records. We just want to win the game."

It was the tenth straight loss over two seasons for Duke.

The Blue Devils, trailing 17-0 in the second quarter, twice came within three points of Indiana on second-half touchdowns by Greg Boone and Joel Blunk. Duke's final threat ended with two minutes to go when Marlin Evans made his second pass interception of the game and Indiana scored the final touchdown on a 5-yard run by Mike Harkrader with 15 seconds to go.

Clifford, who passed for 345 yards and five touchdowns a week earlier, left the game late in the second quarter with a knee injury.

Barnes Paces Rampants Past Gryphs, 36-22

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rocky Mount threatened to shotgun down Rose High School's unbeaten record last night, but the Rampants responded with a little fancy aerial work of their own and pulled off a 36-22 victory over the Gryphons.

The win kept the Rampants unblemished on the year, boosting their record to 5-0 overall and 2-0 in Division I play. Rocky Mount, which had been picked as a pre-season co-favorite with Rose, dropped to 1-1 in the league and 3-2 overall.

Kenny Barnes passed for two Rampant touchdowns and ran for another as he guided the offense to an outstanding performance. He hit Don Johnson on a 45-yard TD strike, and went to Chris McLawhorn for a 43-yarder. Barnes also scored on a six yard run.

McLawhorn scored on a 55-yard end around for his second touchdown of the night, and Larry Batts raced 24 yards with an interception for the remaining Rose touchdown. Scott Taylor added three of five PATs, and a 25-yard field goal.

Barnes' performance of three of seven passes for two TDs and 134 yards was somewhat overshadowed by that of Rocky Mount's Scott Cooper. Cooper kept the ball in the air almost all night, passing 46 times, hitting on 20 of them for 285 yards and two touchdowns. He had four intercepted.

Because of the high number of passes, Rocky Mount was charged with only 15 rushing plays, including just three in the second half, all in the fourth period. Six of those plays were for negative yardage, as the Rampant defense held Rocky Mount to minus 18 yards on the ground.

The game left Rose coach Dave Bumgarner almost speachless afterwards. "What a game!" he said. "You've got to give Rocky Mount credit. That kid (Cooper) can throw the ball. He did an outstanding job, and they have outstanding receivers. They have a very good passing attack. When you throw that many times, you're going to catch some and they did."

Rose seemed to have trouble in the secondary, as the Gryphon receivers constantly got open, but on many occasions were overthrown. The fake pump by Cooper kept Rose's secondary off balance.

"I think we had the better overall offense," Bumgarner said. "And I don't think we played that bad a defense. We controlled the ball and that's what you've got to do to win."

Rocky Mount came out in the I formation, but after quickly falling behind in the first period, 17-0, switched to the shotgun and remained in it virtually the rest of the game. "We didn't expect the shotgun, but it didn't surprise me either," Bumgarner said. "I figured that they'd do something because I believe that they knew they couldn't run against us."

Cooper's chief target was Denny Lawrence, who caught nine of the passes for 183 yards and one touchdown. The TD came on a 40-yard aerial and was the first of three Gryphon scores. Ken Weaver caught the other TD pass, for 10 yards, while Cooper ran one yard for the other score. Chuck Mills kicked two PATs and Cooper passed to Lawrence for a two-point conversion.

Rose opened up strong, jumping out to a 17-0 lead in the first period. On the first series, the Rampants scored on just four plays. Taking over on their 42, the Rampants picked up a first down in three plays at the Gryphon 45. Barnes then faded back and hit Johnson well beyond the Rocky Mount secondary for the first Rose score. Taylor's kick made it 7-0 with 8:33 left.

Late in the quarter, Rose got it back on the Rocky Mount 36 when Jeff Ferrell recovered a fumble. Rose moved in just three plays to the seven for a first down. Roger Williams got nine yards and Jeff Porter added nine more before Barnes picked up 11. But the drive stalled and Taylor came on to kick a 25-yard field goal, upping it to 10-0 with 1:43 left.

Just two plays after the kickoff, Rose was on the scoreboard again. This time, it was the defense that did it. Batts pulled in a Cooper pass at the 24 and waltzed into the end zone untouched with 49 seconds left. Taylor's kick made it 17-0.

Rocky Mount came right back to drive for its first score. Rose held them, but gave up the first of five penalty first downs by holding on the punt. That gave Rocky Mount new life at the Rose 41. Two plays netted a yard, but Lawrence then got behind the Rampant defense to pull in a 40-yarder from Cooper for the score. The kick cut it to 17-7 with 10:11 left in the period.

Rose struck right back with its fourth score. Driving 77 yards in seven plays, the Rampants raised the lead to 24-7. The first five plays moved it from the 23 to the 37, and Porter then broke away for 12 to the Gryphon 43. From there, Barnes hit McLawhorn all alone behind Rocky Mount defense for the score with 7:14 showing.

Late in the period, Rocky Mount struck again. They got the ball after a short punt at their own 42. Three plays moved it to the Rose 43, and a 15-yard pass interference call there moved it to the 28. After an 18-yard gain to the ten, Rose broke through for an eight-yard sack, and then the Gryphons were called for illegial proceedure and pushed back to the 23. But Cooper hit Lawrence for 13 back to the ten, and on third down, found Weaver alone in the end zone for the score. The kick cut it to 24-14 with 1:18 left.

The Rampants pushed in their first possession of the second half to get a little more breathing room. From the 22, Rose moved to the 45 in seven plays. There, McLawhorn got the ball on the end around, almost found himself trapped, but cut inside a block and raced through the secondary to go 55 yards for the touchdown. That ran it to 30-14 with 8:26 left in the period.

Gamecocks Roll By N.C. State

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — George Rogers proved he was "All-World" to South Carolina Coach Jim Carlen Saturday night as the tailback led the 18th-ranked Gamecocks to a 30-10 victory over North Carolina State.

"I have never seen a running back like Rogers," said Carlen. "If he's not the best player in America, I'd like to see who is. George Rogers is All-World."

N.C. State Coach Monte Kiffin concurred. "You know who Rogers reminds me of? My last year at Arkansas I saw Earl Campbell. They're very similar. Both run high and hard. Rogers really is a great back."

Rogers rolled up 193 yards on the ground in 26 carries and scored all but one of South Carolina's touchdowns. His longest run of the night was a 55-yard dash midway in the second period that put him over the 100-yard mark long before the game was over.

For the senior tailback it was the fifth consecutive 100-yard-plus game this season and his 15th straight over the past year and a half.

It wasn't easy, though. The Wolfpack defense was out to stop him and held Rogers to 37 yards in the first period.

But Rogers was not to be denied and he bulled his way for 103 yards in the second quarter.

All in all, it wasn't a bad night's work against a defense that was ranked sixth in the nation before the game, having given up just 68 yards per game on the ground.

The Duluth, Ga., resident also cracked the 4,000-yard barrier for his college career early in the third quarter.

Rogers had plenty of help from his friends throughout the game as quarterback Garry Harper opened up the N.C. State defense with 12 completed passes in 18 attempts.

Harper also showed the Wolfpack a play that was not in the game book. It came on the first USC scoring drive.

From the 9-yard line Harper carried left but fumbled into the end zone, where the ball was recovered by his tight end, Willie Scott.

Phils Nip Expos, Clinch East Title

MONTREAL (AP) — Mike Schmidt's two-run, 11th-inning homer gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday and the National League East Division championship.

Pete Rose opened the Philadelphia 11th with his third single of the game, and after Bake McBride fouled out, Schmidt lined his home run over the left-field fence to snap a 4-4 tie.

It was the 48th of the season for the major league home run leader and boosted his National League RBI lead to 121.

The victory sends Philadelphia against the winner of the West Division, either Houston or Los Angeles, in the best-of-five series, starting in Philadelphia Tuesday night.

Tug McGraw, 5-4, stopped the Expos cold Friday night and came on in the ninth and did it again Saturday. In the two games in which he appeared, McGraw allowed only one hit while facing 16 batters.

Stan Bahnsen, 7-6, took the loss in relief.

The Phillies tied the game 4-4 in the top of the ninth on Bob Boone's RBI single off reliever Woodie Fryman. The single sent home Bake McBride, who had reached first on a forceout grounder and taken second on a slow roller by Mike Schmidt.

The Expos had gone ahead 4-3 with a two-run rally in the seventh helped along by a pair of Philadelphia errors. Chris Speier hit a routine pop fly with one out that second baseman Manny Trillo dropped for an error. Ron LeFlore, who has been sidelined with a broken wrist, ran for Speier and stole his 95th base, continuing onto third when catcher Keith Moreland threw the ball into center field.

Nettles Returns

NEW YORK (AP) — Graig Nettles, sidelined for more than two months with infectious hepatitis, returned to the New York Yankees lineup in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader against Detroit.

Nettles, appearing for the first time since July 23, started at third base and singled on his first trip to the plate.

Yanks Win East Behind 'Mr. October'

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson is living up to his reputation as "Mr. October."

Jackson crashed his third home run in as many games this month, a mammoth tie-breaking three-run shot in the fifth inning, and powered the New York Yankees to the American League East Division title with a 5-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

"Reggie did it. He turned the game around. That's all you can say," said Manager Dick Howser after the first game of the doubleheader.

Howser led the Yankees to their fourth division crown in five years in his rookie season as a major league manager.

Jackson's 41st homer of the season and 410th of his career capped a four-run rally that wiped out a 2-1 Detroit lead and eliminated the second-place Baltimore Orioles.

"I got a really good ball to hit," Jackson said, "and I looked up in the sky and said, 'Thanks for letting me hit it.'

"He (loser Roger Weaver) threw me breaking balls early, but they were all in and I kept fouling them off.

"This time, I was really thinking base hit. I told myself P.R.M. — pace, relax, hit the ball up the middle. The first pitch was a fastball up high. The next one was a curveball right over the middle of the plate."

"I could have hit it out," said Weaver, 3-4.

The ball soared into Yankee Stadium's third deck in right field, an estimated 75-80 feet above the 353-foot sign.

"I just knew it made the score 5-2 and gave us a three-run lead and Rudy May would only have to pitch two more innings before Gossage would come in," Jackson said.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gary Roenikce broke a 1-for-33 slump with a two-out home run in the bottom of the 13th inning, giving the Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the opener of Saturday's twi-night doubleheader.

Roenicke's 10th homer came off Sid Monge, 3-5, after he had retired five straight batters in relief of Bob Owchinko. Sammy Stewart, 7-7, pitched the final two innings to pick up the victory.

Irish Nip MSU, 26-21

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Junior Harry Oliver booted four field goals and tailback Phil Carter ran for the go-ahead score Saturday as seventh-ranked Notre Dame rallied to beat Michigan State 26-21 in college football.

Carter sparked an Irish ground attack that wore down the Spartans in the second half. The sophomore piled up 254 yards rushing, his third straight game over 100 yards, and one yard shy of the Notre Dame record held by Vagas Ferguson.

He raced 53 yards to set up reserve tailback Jim Stone's 1-yard scoring plunge late in the game after Michigan State came within a point of tying the score.

Trailing 9-6 at halftime, the Irish marched 51 yards in eight plays in the second half, with Carter rushing 12 yards for the key score.

Oliver then added his third field goal, but the underdog Spartans charged back, striking 69 yards in only four plays. Halfback Steve Smith went 34 yards and quarterback John Leister hit Ted Jones for 21 yards. Tony Ellis broke 13 yards for the score. A two-point conversion attempt failed, leaving Michigan State down 16-15. On the next series, Carter broke his big gainer to set up Stone's score.

Michigan State came back again. Leister hit Smith for a 42-yard scoring strike with 6:35 left to play — but another two-point conversion failed and Oliver added his final points as the clock ran down.

Notre Dame now is 3-0, with all its victories against Big Ten Conference teams.

'Bear' Wins 300th Game

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Paul (Bear) Bryant of top-ranked Alabama became the third coach in history to win 300 games Saturday when his Crimson Tide buried Kentucky 45-0 in a Southeastern Conference football game.

"I was surprised and delighted that they gave me the game ball," Bryant said. "I'll proudly add it to the trophy room where 50 years from now when one of their children sees it, he can say, 'Daddy played in that game.'"

Bryant said he was getting tired of hearing all the talk about numbers and "from now on I'm not talking any numbers game. I'm only worried about No. 78."

That will be the next number on the losing side of his ledger as his 36-season total now stands at 300-77-16.

"It's no different from the 100th victory," Bryant added. "I don't feel any different than I did 20 years ago. Am I supposed to?"

The Tide started sluggishly but errupted for three quick fourt-quarter touchdowns that turned the game into a rout, getting a boost from star freshman Linnie Patrick, who set up two second-half scores on runs of 60 and 38 yards.

The 300th victory left Bryant only 14 shy of the all-time record held by Amos Alonzo Stagg. The only other member of the 300 victory club is Glen (Pop) Warner, with 313.

Coach Fran Curci of Kentucky extended congratulations to Bryant for the milestone victory.

"That guy's a phenom just to be able to survive this long," Curci said. "Alabama is just a super team. All of Bear's teams play hard.

"Clearly he has more talent than most people," Curci added. "If anything, he tried to hold the score down."

Bryant said he did not think his players were interested in 300 victories — "They are interested in winning."

Several players, however, talked about participating in their coach's milestone victory.

"I am glad to be a part of it and it is a very special feeling," said defensive tackle Byron Braggs. "He's the greatest coach in America and I don't know how anyone could doubt that."

"I think it's great because Coach is very deserving of it," said running back Major Ogilvie. "I feel very fortunate to play in this game and to be a part of it."

Alabama, 4-0 and 2-0 in the Southeastern Conference, squandered several scoring opportunities in the first half while struggling to a 14-0 lead.

Patrick, who had 121 yards on nine carries, dashed 60 yards to the 3 late in the third quarter and scored two plays later on a 1-yard plunge.

The freshman's 38-yard run to the 14 triggered Alabama's three quick touchdowns in the fourth quarter, the first coming on Mitch Ferguson's 2-yard run.

It was just over two minutes later when Jeff Fagan raced 41 yards for a touchdown, dashing out of the grasp of a defender at the Kentucky 14.

UCLA 17
Ohio State 0

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Tom Ramsey engineerd 11th-ranked UCLA on two third-quarter scoring drives Saturday, leading the Bruins to a 17-0 upset of second-rated Ohio State in a non-conference college football game.

The Bruins handed Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce his first loss in 15 regular-season games as Woody Hayes' replacement. A regional television audience and 88,084 fans, Ohio Stadium's 74th straight sellout crowd, looked on.

Art Schlichter, Ohio State's heralded junior quarterback, suffered a concussion midway through the fourth quarter and was replaced by Bob Atha. The Bruins made life miserable for Schlichter, permitting him only five completions in 12 attempts for 59 yards and holding him to no yards in 13 rushes.

UCLA also lost its defensive star, All-American safety Ken Easley, in the closing minutes. Easley was ejected for throwing a punch.

UCLA, boosting its record to 4-0, rolled 56 yards in nine plays and 65 yards in 11 plays to clinch the victory and hand the Buckeyes their first loss in five games this season.

Ramsey passed 11 yards to Jojo Townsell for the first touchdown. Tailback Freeman McNeil darted 1 yard for the other UCLA touchdown.

Norm Johnson booted a 27-yard field goal with 50 seconds left in the first quarter. The Bruins made that stand up through halftime before they broke loose in the third period. Ohio State, suffering its first shutout in 28 games, threatened only once in the first half.

The Bruins stopped that drive when strong safety Tom Sullivan intercepted a Schlichter pass in the UCLA end zone.

The Buckeyes had driven from their own 22 to the Bruins' 9-yard line after Johnson's field goal.

While UCLA's offense was controlling the ball in the third quarter, the Bruins defense was shutting down Ohio State's usually potent attack. The Buckeyes punted all three times they had the ball in the quarter, running only 10 plays from scrimmage.

Once the Buckeyes fell 17 points behind, Bruce had Schlichter go to the shotgun formation with little success. Before he was hurt, Schlichter either was sacked or threw incompletions on four straight plays.

UCLA defensive tackle Mike Barbee sacked him at the Buckeyes' 27, forcing Schlichter from the game. However, his five completions established an Ohio State passing mark.

Seminoles Stun 'Huskers

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Coach Tom Osborne wanted his Nebraska football team to show continued improvement through the first four games of the season, just to match the improved competition.

Saturday, his third-ranked Cornhuskers didn't measure up to the needed improvement and dropped an 18-14 non-conference football game to No. 16 Florida State.

"We played a very good football team today, maybe the best team we will play all year," Osborne said. "When you play a good football team, you have to play well. We did, to some extent, but we gave them too much."

The Huskers gave up two of four fumbles and saw two Jeff Quinn passes intercepted.

"In a close game, turnovers are often the key," Osborne said. "Florida State had just the one (turnover) and we had four, and that was the difference."

Three Nebraska turnovers resulted in Florida State scores, as Bill Capece booted field goals of 32, 27, 40 and 41 yards.

Seminole tackle Garry Futch recovered a fumble by Nebraska quarterback Jeff Quinn at the Florida State 10-yard-line with 10 seconds remaining in the game to seal the Cornhuskers' fate.

The Seminoles scored on their first three possessions of the second half. Each tally followed a turnover by the error-plagued Cornhusker squad.

Florida State's Bobby Butler fell on a bad punt snap at Nebraska's 17 to set up Capece's second field goal, a 27-yarder, early in the third quarter. The Seminoles trailed 14-6.

Keith Jones then intercepted a Jeff Quinn pass at Nebraska's 47. Sam Platt scored from the 6 to cut Nebraska's lead to 14-12. A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Capece kicked his third field goal of the game, a 40-yarder, with 1:16 left in the third stanza following a fumble recovery by Florida State's Alfonso Carreker at the Nebraska 34.

An upset seemed imminent when Capece booted his fourth field goal with 2:37 left in the game from 41 yards out, giving the Seminoles the 18-14 margin of victory.

Following Capece's field goal, Nebraska marched 77 yards to the Seminole 3. That's when Quinn rolled out to pass, was hit, and gave up the fumble that Futch recovered.

Penn State 29
Missouri 21

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Paul Lankford intercepted two passes to set up two Herb Menhardt field goals in the third period and quarterback Todd Blackledge romped 43 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown to give 17-ranked Penn State a come-from-behind 29-21 victory Saturday over ninth-ranked Missouri.

The previously unbeaten Tigers, with Phil Bradley throwing touchdown passes of 31 and 53 yards, led at halftime 21-16 but fell flat after intermission.

Lankford returned his first interception 33 yards to the Missouri 33 yard line and Menhardt followed with a 27-yard field goal to cut Missouri's lead to 21-19.

Seconds later, a Bradley pass popped out of the arms of Ron Fellows and Lankford took possession on the Tiger 47. Menhardt's 35-yard field goal with 15 seconds left in the quarter gave Penn State a 22-21 lead.

Blackledge kept Penn State's final touchdown drive alive by hitting Kenny Jackson with a 22-yard pass on third and 10 from the Nittany Lion 14. Jackson stiff-armed cornerback Eric Wright, then outran him to score with 4½ minutes left.

With 37 second left, safety Pete Harris broke up a desperation fourth-down pass from Bradley to Fellows at the Penn State five.

Bradley scored on a three-yard run in the first period, then Penn State took the lead on a 24-yard scoring pass by Blackledge, a safety and Blackledge's one-yard touchdown run.

Michigan 38
California 13

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sophmore tailback Lawrence Ricks and senior fullback Stanley Edwards each ran for two touchdowns and Michigan exploded for 21 points in the fourth quarter to defeat winless California 38-13 in non-conference football Saturday.

Ricks, a 5-foot-10 191-pounder from Barberton, Ohio, scored on a 6-yard burst in the first quarter and spun into the end zone for a 2-yard score in the fourth quarter to give the Wolverines breathing room after California had narrowed the score to 17-13.

LSU 24
Florida 7

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Alan Risher came off the bench Saturday to pass for one touchdown and halfback Jesse Myles ran two others in as fumble-prone Lousisiana State knocked off 19th-ranked Florida 24-7 in a Southeastern Conferece football game.

LSU's starting signalcaller, Robbie Mahfouz, was taken out after fumbling twice in the first series. In all, LSU fumbled 12 times and lost five of them.

Florida lost its starting qurterback as well as the game, which left it 3-1, 1-1 in the SEC. Quarterback Bob Hewko, hit hard in the first quarter, left the game with an injured right knee.

LSU, now 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the SEC, scored first with a 30-yard field goal by David Johnston.

Panthers Bomb Maryland, 38-9

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino threw three touchdown passes, including a pair of bombs to freshman Dwight Collins, sparking sixth-ranked Pittsburgh to a 38-9 college football victory over Maryland Saturday.

Marino, showing no ill effects from a slight knee sprain sustained last week, completed 16 of 34 passes for 282 yards.

Pitt, 4-0, yielded only 39 net rushing yards on 43 attempts by Maryland. That included seven quarterback sacks for minus 46 yards.

Pitt took a 7-0 lead in the first quarter when Marino and Collins, a wide receiver, combined on a 51-yard scoring pass.

On the next Maryland series, Pitt linebacker Sal Sunseri intercepted a pass by Mike Tice at the Terps' 25-yard line, and Marino followed with a 17-yard touchdown pass to split end Willie Collier.

Early in the second quarter, Randy McMillan's 2-yard touchdown dive capped a Pitt drive of 70 yards and gave the Panthers a 21-0 lead.

Maryland, 3-2, scored midway through the second quarter on a 38-yard field goal by Dale Castro. Pitt's Dave Trout countered with a 40-yard field goal early in the third quarter.

Maryland scored its only touchdown late in the third quarter after Pitt freshman Tom Flynn lost a fumble on a punt return at the Panthers' 21-yard line. Three plays later, Tice threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Chris Havener, cutting Pitt's lead to 24-9.

With 8:59 left in the final period, Marino arched a 35-yard scoring pass down the sideline to Collins. Pitt added a touchdown eight seconds later when Maryland botched a trick play on the kickoff return.

Maryland kick returner Jan Carinci, attempting a lateral pass near his goaline, lost a fumble and Pitt's Pat McQuaide fell on the ball in the end zone.

In the closing minutes of the final period, Pitt backup quarterback Danny Daniels threw a pass that was intercepted by linebacker Mike Muller and returned 44 yards to the Panthers' 1-yard line. But Maryland failed to score.

Clemson Holds Off VPI

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — The Clemson defense played a big role in Saturday's 13-10 homecoming victory over Virginia Tech, but Gobbler Coach Bill Dooley thinks the officials helped Clemson a little bit, too.

"The officiating certainly left something to be desired," Dooley said. "That's just not football – that call that went against us on the goal. I've had that happen to me before down here and it's just not right."

Dooley was referring to a fourth quarter goal line stand by Clemson, which resulted in a 23-yard field goal by Dennis Laury. He thought Virginia Tech was cheated out of a chance to score a touchdown and take a 14-13 lead.

With a little more than 10 minutes in the game, Virginia Tech had a second down and goal on the Clemson 1-yard line. A quarterback sneak by Steve Casey went nowhere, and Clemson fans roared for their defense to hold again on third down.

Because of the crowd noise, Casey repeatedly stepped away from his center before trying another quarterback sneak for no gain.

The noise was deafening as Virginia Tech elected to go for a touchdown on fourth down. It was so noisy that one Gobbler lineman stood up, expecting the officials to call time out. Instead, Virginia Tech was penalized for illegal procedure and moved back to the 5. The Gobblers had to settle for the field goal.

Clemson Coach Danny Ford agreed with the illegal procedure call.

"I think they (Virginia Tech) took advantage of the crowd noise," he said, referring to Casey's repeated pleas for quiet.

Clemson, now 3-1, maintained its winning margin in the fourth quarter by stopping Virginia Tech three times inside their own 10-yard line. The Gobblers, 4-1, passed up a possible game tying field goal with 2:21 remaining and were stopped at the 8 by an incomplete pass.

Ariri's winning 26-yard field goal capped a 60-yard Clemson drive during which quarterback Mike Gasque completed three of four passes for 45 yards.

Ariri also kicked a 34-yard first quarter field goal that was set up by a 55-yard halfback pass from Ike Williams to Perry Tuttle on the second play of the game.

Clemson made it 10-0 at halftime as starting quarterback Homer Jordan engineered a 70-yard touchdown drive late in the second period. Brendon Crite ran three yards for the score following a 19-yard pass from Jordan to Tuttle.

Virginia Tech closed to within 10-7 in the third period on a 7-yard touchdown pass from Steve Casey to Rob Purdham. That touchdown was set up when Clemson roughed kicker Dennis Laury on an unsuccessful 30-yard field goal attempt.

After Ariri had given Clemson a 13-7 lead with his second field goal, Laury kicked a 23-yarder on the opening play of the fourth quarter for the final points of the game.

Deacons Adjust, Down W&M

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — William & Mary's Indians, making what Wake Forest football Coach John Mackovic termed "big plays" in the first half, held their own against the heavily favored Deacons for 30 minutes Saturday.

But the Deacons adjusted their offense during intermission and went home with a 27-7 victory.

"We felt like we had to run on them and sprinkle in the pass where we could," said Mackovic, Atlantic Coast Conference coach of the year in 1979.

"We made some adjustments at halftime that were very important for us. We decided that we had to pass the ball to our backs in the second half because their defense was so spread out."

Mackovic saiid "we did the things we had to do and did a good job of coming back."

A big contributor to the rally was tailback Wayne McMillan, who ran for a pair of touchdowns.

"We felt it was important that we rush the ball well and Wayne did a good job for us," Mackovic noted.

The homecoming loss was understandably disappointing for W&M Coach Jimmye Laycock, who said, "We played well most of the game.

"Our kids gave a hell of an effort and I feel that the game was a lot closer than the score might indicate. Our offense was just inches away from busting it open — a couple of dropped pass, a block, an overthrow."

"We really did play a very good Wake Forest team even up most of the game," Laycock added. "I saw progress and that means a lot for this young squad."

Wake Forest broke loose at the outset of the second half behind McMillan and quarterback Jay Venuto.

The underdog Indians, capitalizing on a pass interception, shocked Wake by scoring on Chris Garrity's 8-yard pass to Kurt Wrigley only 2:12 into the game.

But Venuto, who suffered his first three interceptions of the season, pulled the Deacons even with a 6-yard toss to Mike Mullen with 1:54 remaining in the first quarter.

The Salem, N.J., senior then directed the Deacons to touchdowns on their first two possessions of the second half.

McMillan, who rushed for 134 yards, scored from the 1 two plays after grabbing a crucial fourth-down 28-yard pass from Venuto. Just 1:46 later, after Wake recovered a fumble at the W&M 27, Venuto threw 6 yards to wide receiver Kenny Duckett.

Wake's final score came on a 4-yard plunge by McMillan with 9:29 remaining in the game. McMillan had set up the score with a 29-yard burst to the 14.

The victory lifted Wake Forest's record to 3-1. William & Mary, suffering through its worst start since 1975 when it lost its first eight games, now stands 0-5.

The Indians got close to the Wake Forest goal line only once after posting their earlier score.

A 46-yard bomb from Garrity to Ed Schiefelbein carried to the three as time ran out in the first half.

After intermission, William & Mary crossed midfield only once, driving to the Wake 32 before stalling.

Turnovers, six in all, prevented the Deacons from breaking the game open earlier.

Except for the running of McMillan, a sophomore who had the best day of his career, the game developed into an aerial duel between Venito and Garrity.

Venito completed 17 of 29 for 183 yards and upped his season TD pass total to 8. Garrity produced 137 yards by completing 14 of 36.

Wake had a clear advantage in the final statistics, collecting 25 first downs on 461 total yards. W&M finished with only 11 first downs and 236 total yards.

Kansas 23
Syracuse 8

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Smith threw to David Verser for two touchdowns and Kerwin Bell ran for 143 yards and another touchdown as Kansas won its first football game of the season Saturday, a 23-8 romp over Syracuse University.

Smith completed 12 of his 14 passes for 166 yards, including scoring passes to his senior wide receiver Verser on plays covering 5 and 66 yards.

The Jayhawks, from the Big 8 Conference, built up a 23-0 lead early in the third period after Smith's scoring passes to Verser and a 16-yard zigzagging run by Bell.

Syracuse played without its star running back, Joe Morris, who averaged 164 yards a game before bruising his shoulder last Saturday.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Tailback Sammy Winder scoreded three touchdowns and the unbeaten Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles survived late adversity to whip the Mississippi Rebels 28-22 Saturday in their bitter football rivalry.

Winder scored twice on 1-yard leaps and swept 11 yards for another touchdown as the Eagles overcame an early 14-0 Rebel lead to run their record to 4-0 dropping Mississippi to 1-4.

Trailing 28-14, Mississippi battled back in the final minutes, scoring on Chester Thornton's 4-yard run with 4:11 left and then setting up at the Southern Mississippi 12 for a last bid for victory after defensive back Johnny Burrow's fumble recovery with 3:20 left.

But the Golden Eagles harried Mississippi quarterback John Fourcade into two big losses, with defensive end George Tillman sacking Fourcade for a 21-yard loss to the 48 on fourth down, killing the threat.

Barnes...

on a short kick later and drove to the 24 before four passes fell incomplete.

Rose came back to push downfield again, for the final Rampant touchdown. It took only seven plays, the key of which was a 46-yard Barnes to Johnson pass.

That put the ball on the six, and Barnes kept it, cutting into the left side of the line, leaving his jersey in the hands of several defenders at the line of scrimmage as he fell into the end zone with 2:24 left.

Rose led then, 36-14.

Early in the final period, Rocky Mount's Melvin Williams got through after a high snap to block a Rose punt, and the Gryphons recovered at the Rampant 30. Rose again was penalized, 15 yards to the 15, and Rocky Mount got in from there.

Cooper hit Steve Barnes for 11, and the Gryphons ran their only rushes of the second half at that point, picking up three and then the final yard into the end zone on a quarterback sneak by Cooper. He then passed to Lawrence for the two-pointer that pulled them back to 14 points down. The clock showed 9:27.

While an on-side kick was expected by some, Rocky Mount kicked away, and Rose moved it from its own 44 after a 15-yard penalty was tacked on the runback for spearing. The Rampants got to the 21, but a suffle between two players there turned into a brawl, and it was five minutes before play finally resumed after the teams were parted and sent to their benches.

Rose was given a 15-yard penalty, and two plays later, fumbled it away.

Rocky Mount drove back to the Rose eight on Cooper passes before Johnson intercepted in the end zone. Later, after another punt, Rocky Mount drove back to the Rose eight before Freddie Cherry picked off a Cooper pass to put an end to the Gryphon comeback hopes. Even so, Rocky Mount got it back with just seconds remaining and saw time run out on them after two plays at the Rose ten.

While Rocky Mount passing kept Rose jumping, penalties also played their role. The Rampants suffered the most, amassing 12 penalties for 152 yards.

Rose returns to action on Friday, traveling to Wilson Beddingfield, seeking to up its mark to 6-0 overall and 3-0 in the league.

Sooners Smash Records, Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Senior halfback David Overstreet rushed for 258 yards and freshman George "Buster" Rhymes scored four touchdowns as 12th-ranked Oklahoma smashed a series of offensive records in crushing Colorado 82-42 Saturday in the Big Eight football opener for both teams.

The 124 combined points made it the highest scoring game in NCAA history.

The Sooners generated 875 total yards to establish an all-time NCAA record, and also bettered the previous rushing standard with 758 yards on the ground.

Overstreet, who had been held to a disappointing 90 yards rushing after two games, exploded against the Buffaloes, setting up two touchdowns with runs of 84 and 53 yards and scoring himself on a 37-yard pass from J.C Watts.

Junior quarterback Darrell Shepard scored two touchdowns and sophomore halfback Chet Winters two more as the Sooners boosted their season record to 2-1. Colorado dropped to 0-4.

Oklahoma threatened to make it a runaway by picking up 20 first downs and 389 total yards in the first half. But Colorado stayed close, getting a 100-yard kickoff return from freshman Walter Stanley.

Jaguars Roll Past D.H. Conley, 26-9

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central rolled to a 26-9 Eastern Carolina Conference football victory over D.H. Conley last night.

Led by Roger Joyner's three touchdowns, the Jaguars recorded their third win against one loss in the league. They are 3-2 overall.

Joyner, who had a field night, rushed 26 times for 258 yards. Wesley Carmon added nine rushes for 78 yards.

Joyner's first touchdown put Farmville ahead for good. That came on a one-yard plunge, with Arthur Wooten adding the extra point.

Conley came back to get on the board in the first period also, as Mike Stancil kicked a 20-yard field goal.

Farmville added one more score in the second quarter for a 13-3 halftime lead. That came on a five-yard pass from Jeff Cutler to Andrew Edwards.

In the third period, Farmville got its other two scores, both on long runs by Joyner. He went in on the first with a 56 yard run, then came back later with a 79-yard scamper.

Conley's other score came in the final period as Leon Cox hit Sammy Tucker for 59 yards on a touchdown pass.

Conley falls to 0-5 overall and 0-3 in Eastern Carolina League play.

The Vikings travel to Ayden-Grifton, while Farmville visits North Lenoir on Friday.

Bethel Beats Knights, 5-4

BETHEL — Trailing 2-0 early in the second half, Bethel Christian rallied to defeat Greenville Christian, 5-4, Saturday in a soccer match.

Bill Hurst, who had three goals, posted the Knights to a 1-0 halftime lead with an unassisted goal midway throught the first half. Hurst put in his second goal in the second half to give the Knights a 2-0 lead.

Then, however, Scott Wilson slammed home two goals to tie the match and send it into a shootout. Hurst and Mike Bragg shot home goals for the Knights but it was a goal by Bethel's Allan Potter that gave the home team its first win in five outings. Greenville Christian is 3-3.

The Knights travel to Raleigh Tuesday to face Wake Christian.

Arizona St. 21

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Gordon Adams threw for 226 yards and a touchdown and Eric Hipp kicked three field goals Saturday as fourth-ranked Southern Cal held off upset-minded Arizona State 23-21 in a Pacific-10 Conference football game.

Adams completed 20 of 29 passes and Marcus Allen gained 133 yards on 36 carries and scored a touchdown for the victorious Trojans, who avenged a 1978 loss to the Sun Devils that was the last defeat for Southern Cal.

The Trojans currently are on a 24-game unbeaten streak.

Southern Cal, favored by two touchdowns, was ahead most of the contest, but just barely.

Arizona State trailed 23-14 with less than five minutes to go, but narrowed the margin to two points on a 14-yard scoring pass from quarterback Mike Pagel to tight end Ron Wetzel. The touchdown came on a fourth-and-2 play.

Southern Cal, 4-0, opened the scoring in the first period on a 2-yard burst by Allen to cap an 82-yard drive. Arizona State came back to tie it in the second period on a 3-yard scoring pass from Pagel to wide receiver John Mistler.

But the Trojans rallied for 13 points before intermission, with Hipp hitting a 33-yard field goal, Adams connecting on a 15-yard scoring strike to wide receiver Jeff Simmons, then Hipp drilling a 43-yarder as time ran out in the opening half.

A spectacular 59-yard jaunt by the Sun Devils' Willie Gittens cut the difference to 20-14, but Hipp connected again, this time on a 27-yarder.

Golfers In 14th Place

LAUREL FORT, Va. — East Carolina's golfers, led by Don Sweeting's 73, shot the third lowest score of the day Saturday but could move up only three places in the James Madison University Invitational held at the Groundhog Country Club.

The Pirates, in 17th place after the first day of competition Friday, moved to 14th with a two-day total of 638, 22 strokes behind leader Roanoke College's 606. James Madison is in second with a 609 while Guilford College is third with a 617.

Sweeting and Mike Moye, who shot a 79 Saturday, are the top two Pirate golfers going into Sunday's final round. Both have two round totals of 158. Elon's David Graham leads the tournament with a 145, followed by Roanoke's Chip Hitt with a 147.

Marcis Rides Caution To Win Charlotte 300

HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — Dave Marcis took the checkered flag under caution Saturday to win the $140,000 Charlotte 300 U.S. Sportman Championship Race at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

The finish was anticlimactic as Marcis, Dale Earnhardt and David Pearson were riding on each others bumpers for most of the final 100 laps. They were within a few feet of each other going into the 193rd lap when the race was decided.

Marcis led Earnhardt and Pearson going into turn No. 2 on the 1.5 mile speedway. It was then that Gene Glover blew the engine in his Pontiac, went sideways and hit the wall.

Glover's car then slid backwards, down the bank turn and was hit by a Chevrolet driven by Dale Jarrett. Glover's car then flipped over five or six times before coming to rest in turn No. 3.

Both drivers were taken to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital in Concord with undetermined injuries.

But the race was over as Marcis beat his competitors to the starting line and took the next six laps and the lead under the caution.

Marcis collected $20,750 for his first place finish in a Pontiac.

Earnhardt was second and Pearson 3rd.

Ray Hendrick, who led part of the race, was in a four-car scramble with the leaders until he finally lost ground near the end. He finished fourth.

The average speed of the race was reduced to 119.893 mph because of eight cautions covering 50 laps.

"Our car went super all day," Marcis said. "I know Dale was there waiting for us; so was David. I knew they were there. I know it could have been a good race. I really wish it could have finished under the green."

The race was a preview of Sunday's 21st annual National 500 with the grand national veterans in the lead most of the race.

The U.S. Sportman circuit may be considered NASCAR's junior circuit, but you could never convince the fans who watched the veterans compete fiercely for two hours and 36 minutes.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Here is the unofficial order of finish in Saturday's Charlotte 300 at the Charlotte Motor Speedway. The list includes drivers, cars and the laps completed, along with the winner's average speed.

1. Dave Marcis, Ventura, 200 laps, 119.960 mph.
2. Dale Earnhardt, Ventura, 200.
3. David Pearson, Ventura, 200.
4. Ray Hendrick, Pontiac, 200.
5. Jody Ridley, Ventua, 200.
6. Morgan Shepherd, Lemans, 200.
7. Tommy Ellis, Ventura, 199.
8. Tommy Houston, Grand Am, 197.

Sullivan Leads Open By Five

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Mike Sullivan, enjoying the best year of his career but still searching for a victory, shot a 69 Saturday for a total of 200, 10-under-par, to boost his lead to five strokes after the third round of the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament.

The 25-year-old Sullivan, who has earned $94,000, more than he made in his previous four years on the tour, held a two-stroke lead after the second round.

With the exception of a birdie on the ninth hole, the former University of Florida standout played par golf the rest of the way and watched as his contenders faltered over the hilly, par-70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Johnny Miller, who put together a string of five birdies for a 65, surged into a three-way tie for second place with two-time winner here Jerry Pate and Jim Thorpe. Each was at 205. Pate and Thorpe had 67s.

Hale Irwin was alone at 206 after a 68.

George Burns, who started the day only two shots off Sullivan's pace, ran into trouble on the back nine and bogeyed four holes to fall seven shots off the pace with a 74 and 207 total.

Arnold Palmer was also at 207 after a scrambling round of 72 which included a double-bogey, four bogeys and four birdies.

Palmer, who shot a 66 to gain the first round lead and resurrect "Arnie's Army," nearly shot himself out of contention when the 51-year-old shot double-bogey, bogey on the 10th and 11th holes.

But Palmer, who has 61 tour victories but has not won since 1973 on the tour, had the packed gallery reviving memories of old when he dropped in birdies on three of his next four holes.

Also at 207 were Dave Eichelberger, Rex Caldwell, Rick Massengale and rookie Harry Taylor. Eichelberger had a 66, Caldwell and Massengale had 69 and Taylor a 72.

Arnold Palmer was at 208 after a scrambling round of 73 which included a double-bogey, five bogeys and four birdies.

Pedroza Retains Title On Split Vote

McAFEE, N.J. (AP) — Controversy erupted immediately after Eusebio Pedroza successfully defended his World Boxing Association featherweight crown with a split decision over Rocky Lockridge Saturday.

Promoter Bob Arum and others began checking into woat type of substance Pedroza apparently placed into his mouth during the fight. Video tapes, replayed immediately after the fight, showed the Panamanian chewing on something that had been placed in his mouth by a cornerman.

"There were pills. I saw them," said Arum, president of Top Rank Inc., the fight's promoter. "The rules say you can only take water between rounds. It may be something serious if it is shown that it was a prohibited substance.

Arum said a doctor was performing a urine analysis.

Pedroza, however, insisted he took nothing but ice and water throughout the bout.

"I'm not that kind of a sportsman. I have faith in God that I never took any strang substance," said Pedroza in his dressing room shortly after the match.

"The only thing I always ask for is a piece of ice between rounds and water is water," the champion said.

"Whatever has been alleged, it is very unjust," Pedroza said.

Co-promoter Dan Duva of Main Event said a urine analysis was not routine after fights in New Jersey, "but because of the tape, we requested it."

The tape was made by New Jersey Public Television, which had been recording the event as part of a documentary on Lockridge.

Pedroza had just been awarded a split decision over Lockridge at the Great Gorge resort.

Lockridge, who, at 5-foot-5, had to overcome a four-inch height disadvantage against the champion, sparred relentlessly until the 10th round when he began to tire and his punches began missing their mark. He came back strong in the 11th, but Pedroza started the 12th round with a series of strong body punches and uppersuts0that w . . ru down the challenger.

Judge Harold Lederman of the United States gave the fight to Lockridge 144-142. But Panamian Judge Rudolfo Hill scored the fight 147-141 in favor of Pedroza and referee Stanley Christodoulou, of South Africa, had it 149-139 Pedroza.

Neither Lockridge, 124, nor Pedroza, 126, was knocked down in the nationally televised fight at Great Gorge.

Pedroza was making his ninth defense of the title he won in 1978. Lockridge, formerly of Tacoma, Wash., was taking his first shot at the WBA featherweight crown.

GTC Doubles Title On Line

Frances Cain and Barbara Close will play Karen Jeffreys and Gwen Deyton in the Greenville women's doubles championship today at 2 p.m. at the River Birch Tennis Center.

Cain-Close advanced to the finals with a 6-2, 6-0 win over the team of Lib Proctor-Anne Sayetta. Deyton-Jeffreys advanced with a 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Mary Lee and Nancy Powell.

In the men's doubles championship at 3:30 today, Cecil Martin and Don Rutledge will play Herb and Jim Bailey.

Martin-Rutledge advanced to the finals with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Wes Hankins and Tom Sayetta. The Baileys got into the finals following a 6-2, 6-4 win over John Eatman and Billy Helton.

Aurora Outlasts Bullets, 30-24

JAMESVILLE — Aurora outlasted Jamesville Friday night, gaining a 30-24 quadruple overtime victory in a Tobacco Belt Conference football game.

Jamesvillehad scored first in the first overtime, but couldn't hold Aurora, who tied it up. After two more overtimes, both scoreless, Aurora pushed over a score, then held off Jamesville, who saw a fourth down pass fall incomplete in the end zone.

Barry Tripp put Aurora ahead in the first period, scoring on a five-yard run. Jamesville came back with a 55-yard rip by Ricky Bell, tieing the score. But Aurora rallied for a second first quarter score as Craig Moore went over from a yard out for a 12-6 lead at the first horn.

Jamesville then tied it up in the third period, as Onwood James scored on a one-yard plunge.

Aurora went back ahead in the third quarter, with Tripp getting his second score, this time from five yards out. Bell came back with a 20-yard run in the fourth quarter to tie it up once more, 18-18, and force the overtime.

In the first extra period, Bell took Jamesville over from eight yards out, but then allowed Tripp to reach the end zone for a third time, from five yards away.

After two more periods ended without a score, Aurora got the winner from Tripp on a one-yard dive.

The loss dropped Jamesville to 1-5 overall and 1-4 against Tobacco Belt opposition. The Bullets have now lost four in a row. Aurora climbed to 2-2 in the league and 2-3 overall.

Jamesville travels to Mattamuskeet on Friday.

Jackson Paces Chargers Past Panthers

By PAUL COLLINS
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — "I felt like the playing conditions favored our team," coach Dixon Sauls said of his Ayden-Grifton Chargers who managed to slide by North Pitt 14-0 Friday night.

Despite fumbling five times, the Chargers were able to dominate the Panthers on the rain-soaked field. Ayden-Grifton turned the ball over three times, twice on fumbles and once on an interceptions, but was nevertheless able to move the ball well on the ground.

The Charges rushed 58 times for 294, with Gregory Jackson leading the way. Jackson was a one-man scoring show for Ayden-Grifton. He scored two touchdowns on runs of one and five yards and added a two-point conversion and rushed for 138 yards on 28 carries.

North Pitt on the other hand could never get its running game in gear and was forced to play catch-up through much of the second half.

"The conditions definitely hampered their option game," Sauls said. "Our big backs were able to run inside."

In winning for the second week in a row, Ayden-Grifton evened its conference record at 2-2. The Chargers overall record is now 2-4. North Pitt remained winless in four conference games and is 1-4 for the season.

North Pitt, which gained only 14 yards on the ground all night, was unable to move the ball on its first possesion and Ken Whitehurst was forced to punt to the Chargers.

Taking over on its own 43, Ayden-Grifton moved quickly downfield to the Panther seven yard line. With his team facing a fourth down and six from here, Sauls elected to go for it. Jackson's run fell short, but the pattern was set for the rest of the half.

North Pitt, pinned deep in its own territory, was unable to move the ball and punted to the Chargers once again.

The Chargers capitalized on their favorable field position and drove 40 yards in 11 plays for its first touchdown. After scoring the touchdown, Jackson bulled his way up the middle to give Ayden-Grifton an 8-0 lead at 7:23 of the second quarter.

The final minutes of the half resulted in a flurry of mistakes. In a two-minute span the Chargers fumbled three times, losing the ball once. After recovering the fumble, North Pitt added to the confusion by throwing an interception on the next play.

Southwest Edgecombe Escapes Ambush With Late Touchdown

SNOW HILL — The Greene Central coaching staff may be scratching their heads to try and figure out just what they doing wrong.

Is it getting up on the wrong side of the bed? Is is all just a bad dream? Will they wake up before next week?

At any rate, the nightmare for one of the pre-season favorites continued as Southwest Edgecombe rallied to down the Rams, 15-12, Friday night on a fourth and 25 pass play that two Ram defenders covered.

Greene Central took the lead in the game, grabbing a 6-0 margin in the midstages of the second period. Quarterback David Braswell hit Jerry Edwards with a seven yard pass to complete the scoring drive, but the kick failed on the PAT try leaving it at 6-0.

On the ensuing kickoff, Southwest ran the ball all the way back to the Ram nine yard line. It took only one play for the Cougars to move ahead, with Jeff Battle scoring from the nine. Melton Graham kicked the PAT to give the Cougars a 7-6 margin.

That held until late in the game, when the Rams finally came up with another score for a 12-7 lead. Melvin Hawkins bulled in from the one, but a two-point try failed, and the Rams held only a five-point cushion.

It was then that fate stepped in for the Cougars.

The Rams, who had held Southwest without a first down during the first three periods of the game, again held, forcing a punt. But they suffered their only pass interception of the night just a few plays later, returning it to the Cougars.

Southwest picked up one first down, then, found itself facing a second and 15 situation. On a pass attempt, the ball hit one of the Ram linebackers in the chest, but he couldn't hang on to it. On third down, the Rams got through to hit the Cougar quarterback for a loss and sent him to the sidelines with an injury. The second string quarterback, Linwood Lewis, on fourth and 20, brought on a delay penalty, then, on fourth and 25 from the Ram 48, he lofted a ball toward the end zone, where two Ram defenders both went for the ball but failed to come up with it. Instead, it settled into the hands of Alton Jones for the score. Lewis then capped it by running in the conversion for a three-point Cougar win that lasted for the final 1:05.

The Rams were hurt during the game as they suffered seven fumbles, losing five of them to the Cougars. Southwest, in return, fumbled only once, losing it.

The loss left Greene Central with an 0-4 Eastern Carolina Conference record. They are 1-5 overall. Southwest is now 2-1 in the conference, and 3-2 overall.

Greene Central plays host to C.B. Aycock on Friday, while Southwest travels to North Pitt.

The Ayden Golf and Country Club held its Member-Member Tourament recently.

First place went to Al Piland and Gary Sumrell with a 15-under-par 57.

Tigers Slip Past Pack

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School clung to its unbeaten status Friday night, inching past Washington, 6-3, in a Northeastern Conference football game.

The Tigers, now 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the league, were scoreless in the first half as Washington rode a second quarter field goal to a 3-0 halftime lead.

Slowed by the wet field, neither team was able to get much offense going. Both, too, were bothered by fumbles. Both left the ball on the ground six times, turning it over four times each.

Washington, now 1-4 overall and 0-2 in Northeastern play, gained the lead in the second quarter, after recovering a fumble at the Tiger 49. After driving 26 yards, they were stalled and Mike Hooks came on to boot a 40-yard field goal to stake the Pam Pack to a 3-0 lead.

In the third quarter, Williamston came back to drive 95 yards to score its only touchdown of the game — and all it needed. The drive took only nine plays, with Clint Sherrod dashing the final 67 yards on one play. A two point try failed.

Sherrod led the Williamston attack, gaining 110 yards on eight carries.

Williamston travels to Tarboro next Friday night, while Washington plays host to Roanoke.

They Don't Have To Be Cute

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

They don't do many fancy things — but when you're as well grounded in the basics as the Pittsburgh Steelers, you don't have to be cute.

"The Steelers don't do a lot offensively, but what they do they do very well," says Minnesota linebacker Scott Studwell, who has the unenviable task — along with the rest of the Vikings — of trying to throw a monkey wrench into the powerful Pittsburgh machine Sunday.

In other National Football League games it's Detroit at Atlanta, Buffalo at San Diego, Baltimore at Miami, Cincinnati at Green Bay, Denver at Cleveland, the New York Giants at Dallas, New England at the New York Jets, Pittsburgh at Minnesota, St. Louis at New Orleans, Seattle at Houston, Washington at Philadelphia, Kansas City at Oakland and San Francisco at Los Angeles. Monday night's game Tampa Bay at Chicago.

"There is no doubt but that Pittsburgh is a powerful football team," says But Grant, Minnesota's coach, "but we've showed that we can play the game, too."

Not last Sunday. While the Steelers were demolishing Chicago 39-3, the Vikings were absorbing a 27-7 pasting by Detroit. Walter Payton of the Bears was held to 60 yards rushing by Pittsburgh, but even that looked good compared to Minnesota's showing against the Lions. The Vikings' entire ground game amounted to 59 yards.

"We'll be the underdog again, as we have been for three straight games," said Grant, "but there is so much competitive balance in this league that very few games are 'automatic' victories for the favorite."

And, in this case, maybe the Steelers really have something to worry about. They've lost four of seven games to the Vikings and have never come close to beating them in three tries in Minnesota. The Vikes' victory margins have been 30-10 in 1964, 52-14 in 1969 and 17-6 in 1976, the last time the two teams met.

The Lions' victory over Minnesota kept them unbeaten and kept Billy Sims comfortably ahead of the pack among NFL rushing leaders. His 157 yards against the Vikings (the third time in four games he has passed 100 yards) gave him 539 for the season. That's 139 ahead of Wilbert Montgomery of Philadelphia.

The Eagles may have problems with Washington because of a pack of injuries, starting with Montgomery. He hasn't missed a game in two years, but he's got bad hip, bruised last week in the 24-14 loss to St. Louis.

Montgomery's backup, Louis Giammona, has a sore knee. So do backs Perry Harrington, Leroy Harris and Zach Dixon, and Billy Campfield, who sat out the game against the Cardinals, has a pulled hamstring. "I'm very thin at running back," said Coach Dick Vermeil. "I don't have one who's 100 percent healthy."

Sauter Tops Final Runs

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jim Sauter of Wisconsin turned in a speed of 161.219-mph lap Friday to lead the final time trials for Sunday's National 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Sauter's Chevrolet, fielded by fellow driver Dave Marcis, earned him the 31st starting position in the $320,050 NASCAR Winston Cup race. His speed is 17th fastest overall.

"This is my first race here at Charlotte and I've just taken my time getting accustomed to the track," said Sauter, 37.

The starting field was expanded to 41 cars by NASCAR officials Friday to accommodate veteran Grand National regular J.D. McDuffie, who failed to qualify among the 40 fastest. The sanctioning body has that option under a special rule.

Among those who didn't make it was James Hylton, a veteran driver who had hoped to earn at least $14,000 Sunday to reach the $1 million plateau in purses. Ronnie Thomas, 1978 Grand National rookie of the year, also was too slow.

The slowest qualifier turned in a 159.170-mph lap, with 161.144 the average speed of the top 40. The interval between 40th qualifier Slick Johnson and Buddy Baker, who won the pole Wednesday at 165.635, is 7.689 mph.

Langer Leads Dunlop

CHEPSTOW, Wales (AP) — Bernhard Langer, aiming to become the first German to win a major professional golf tournament, opened a three-stroke lead Saturday after three rounds of the $144,000 Dunlop Masters event.

The hot-putting Langer, the 23-year-old son of a bricklayer from Augsburg, West Germany, carded a four-under-par 67 for a 54-hole total of 202.

Brian Barnes of Britain was second at 205 after a third-round 68.

Bob Hemingway pass and returned the ball to the North Pitt 25 but a clipping penalty moved it back to the 32.

Jerry Simpson ended the theatrics and Ayden-Grifton's scoring threat four plays later when he intercepted Bernard Ricciarelli's pass with 11 seconds remaining before halftime.

Ayden-Grifton produced its most spectacular fumble during its first possesion of the second half. As Cleveland Coley and Jackson collided with one another the ball popped up in the air, and Pitt recovered at the Charger 45.

The Panthers' best field position of the night went for naught though as the Ayden-Grifton defense rose to the task. On successive plays the Chargers sacked Hemingway and then caused him to fumble. Jackson, proving he could play defense as well as offense, recovered at the Pitt 46.

Carrying the ball on five of 10 plays, Jackson led his team to its second touchdown with 3:56 remaining in the third quarter. The conversion run by Rudolph Reid failed, and Ayden-Grifton led 14-0.

Forced to play catch-up, the Panthers went to the air. On second and three from the Pitt 37 Hemingway threw over the middle to a wide-open Keith Murphy for a 41 yard gain. Another completion moved the ball to the Charger 15. North Pitt's best drive of the night bogged down here though, and the Panthers turned the ball over on downs.

With a 14-point lead, Ayden-Grifton began to work on the clock. The Chargers moved the ball from their own 15 to the Panther 21 on 12 running plays. The drive, which lasted five minutes, was highlighted by Coley's 15 yard run. Surronded by tacklers in the backfield, Coley managed to shake loose and sprint around left end for the gain that gave the Chargers a first down at the Pitt 30.

The drive ended three plays later though when the ball was knocked from Joey Kennedy's grasp, and Pitt picked it up at its own 24. A quarterback sack and two incomplete passes forced North Pitt to punt from the 21, but a personal foul against the Chargers on the play gave the Panthers a first down at the 35.

Three completions by Hemingway moved the ball to Ayden-Grifton's 45, but the next play was a disaster for Pitt. The Panthers tried an end around, but Chuck Smithwick tackled Gordon Dunn for a 12-yard loss that moved the ball back into the Pitt half of the field.

On fourth and 14 a Hemingway pass intended for Keith Murphy was batted down by Timmy Edwards to end the threat.

Ayden-Grifton moved the ball to Pitt's 15 and fumbled the ball away again. Not to be outdone, the hapless Panthers fumbled the ball right back to their opponents on the next play. The Chargers managed to hold onto the ball and run the clock out.

"I'm real proud of my boys the way they've come back and won two in a row," Sauls said. "I think they've showed a lot of character."

The Chargers travel to D.H. Conley next week, while North Pitt plays host to Southwest Edgecombe.

Redskins Rip Plymouth By 20-7 Margin

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School got back on the winning track, downing hapless Plymouth, 20-7, Friday night.

The victory raised the Roanoke record to 4-1 on the year, 1-1 against Northeastern Conference opponents. Plymouth dipped to 0-2 in the league and 0-5 overall.

Roanoke put up scores in each of the first three periods to wrap up the win, but not before Plymouth threw a minor scare into the Redskins in the third quarter.

- Calvin Andrews, who led the Redskin rushing with 81 yards on 20 carries, put Roanoke ahead in the first quarter with a two-yard run. Neil Cargile added the extra point.

Roanoke picked up its second score in the second quarter. That came on a one-yard run by Jesse Everett, with Cargile again adding the extra point. That allowed the Redskins to take a 14-0 lead into intermission.

In the third period, Plymouth finally got on the scoreboard, pulling to within 14-7. The score came on a 30 yard run by Mike Lucas, with Mike Wesner adding the PAT.

Roanoke came back with Everett scoring his second touchdown of the night on a three-yard run, however, to put the game out of reach.

The wet conditions of the field hurt both teams, as Plymouth lost three of four fumbles and Roanoke gave away two of four.

Roanoke returns to action Friday at Washington, while Plymouth plays host to Ahoskie.

Plymouth		Roanoke
4	First Downs	12
23-86	Rushing	52-172
0	Passing Yards	45
55	Return Yards	33
6-0-1	Passes	10-5-1
5-27.0	Punting	5-32.0
4-3	Fumbles-Lost	4-2
10-80	Penalties	12-110

Plymouth	0	0	7	0	— 7
Roanoke	7	7	6	0	—20

Scoring:
R — Andrews, 2 run (Cargile kick).
R — Everett, 1 run (Cargile kick).
P — Lucas, 30 run (Wesner kick).
R — Everett, 3 run (kick failed).

ECU Bows In Tourney

COLUMBIA, S.C. — East Carolina's Lady Pirates celebrated the birth of a new volleyballer Friday night, but didn't have much to celebrate on the court, losing four straight matches in the South Carolina Invitational Tournament.

ECU volleyball coach Alita Dillon (Mrs. Herb), gave birth to a 7 pound, 8½ ounce daughter, Rita Nichole, Thursday night in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Friday, however, the Lady Pirates, without their coach to cheer them on from the bench, dropped matched to North Carolina, Charleston, South Carolina and Tennessee.

In the opening round of their pool play, the Pirates were beaten in straight sets, 15-7, 15-2, by North Carolina. They came back to force a three-game set from College of Charleston, but still lost, 15-10, 11-15, 15-6.

In the third match, the Pirates bowed to the hosting Lady Gamecocks, 15-11, 15-10, and Tennessee, seeded first in the pool, sent them home, 15-8, 15-7.

The Lady Pirates slump to 2-10 with the tournament action. They return to action on Wednesday as they host N.C. State in a match in Minges Coliseum.

Golfers Open In 17th Place

LAUREL FORK, Va. — East Carolina's golf team was 17th out of 24 teams after the opening day of play in the James Madison University Invitational Tournament held at the Groundhog Mountain Country Club.

The Pirates came in after opening play Friday with a first-round score of 318, led by Mike Moye's 78, Jerry Lee's 79 and Bill Malloy's 80.

The University of North Carolina at Charlotte leads the three-day tournament after play Friday with a score of 301, followed by Virginia Tech at 302 and Guilford College at 303.

Astro Error Keeps Dodger Hopes Alive; Phillies Move By Expos

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

You really have to hand it to the Los Angeles Dodgers—the Houston Astros did Friday night.

Two outs away from the National League West title, the Astros kicked away their chances with an error by second baseman Rafael Landestoy. That set up Ron Cey's game-tying single in the ninth inning—and the Dodgers eventually went on to win 3-2 on Joe Ferguson's leadoff home run in the 10th.

"I knew it was going out as soon as I hit it," said Ferguson after creaming the first pitch of the inning by Ken Forsch. "I think it was a fastball high, but who can remember now?"

The victory moved the Dodgers within two games of Houston in the West and left them with a mathematical chance of catching the Astros. The teams finish up the regular season with two more games at Los Angeles.

"That was the most emotional game I've ever played in," said Ferguson. "I could tell the pitcher was getting a little tired—he knows what I'm capable of doing."

Said Cey, who had missed the last two games because of a pulled hamstring: "I didn't feel real comfortable when I started the game. But I wasn't thinking about the injury at all when I got the hit in the ninth."

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Phillies took a one-game lead over Montreal in the East with a 2-1 decision over the Expos in the start of their big three-game series.

But Rick Monday started the Dodger ninth with a one-out single and then Landestoy, a defensive replacement for Joe Morgan, booted Dusty Baker's roller. Steve Garvey flied to center for the second out, but then Cey singled through the middle, scoring pinch-runner Rudy Law to tie the game.

Fernando Valenzuela, who pitched two scoreless innings and has yet to give up an earned run in eight major league appearances, earned his second victory in as many decisions. Valenzuela relieved Don Sutton, who pitched the first eight innings.

Phillies 2, Expos 1

Mike Schmidt drove in both runs with a first-inning sacrifice fly and a homer in the sixth as Philadelphia beat Montreal.

Schmidt's 16th game-winning RBI of the season gave Philadelphia the jump in the weekend series between the Phillies and the Expos, who started the series tied for first.

Pirates 3, Cubs 1

Jesse Jefferson, making his first NL appearance, pitched a three-hitter for 62-3 innings to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago.

Jefferson, 30, acquired on waivers from Toronto on Sept. 11, raised his overall season record to 5-13 with relief from Kent Tekulve and John Candelaria. Loser Rick Reuschel fell to 11-13.

Mike Easler and Dale Berra each singled home Pirate runs in the fourth inning. Omar Moreno added a sacrifice fly in the seventh.

Braves 4, Reds 1

Terry Harper knocked in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the eighth inning, leading Atlanta past Cincinnati.

Tom Boggs, 12-9, scattered five hits over seven innings as the Braves beat the Reds for only the second time in 16 games this season.

The Braves broke a 1-1 tie with their three-run rally in the eighth off Mario Soto, 10-8.

Cardinals 6, Mets 4

Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly broke a tie in the sixth as St. Louis beat New York after squandering a 4-0 lead.

Padres 12, Giants 0

Steve Mura pitched a four-hitter for his first major league shutout and Luis Salazar hit his first major league home run and drove in four runs, leading San Diego over San Francisco.

The score would have been worse had it not been for San Francisco fielding which produced a triple play and three double plays.

Even The Rain Seems To Fall Lightly On New York's Yankees

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have had many heroes on the way to their probable championship in the American League East this year — Reggie Jackson, Rich Gossage, Willie Randolph, Rick Cerone and Tommy John, to name a few. Add Mr. Raincloud to the list.

The Yanks already have clinched at least a tie for the title and need only one victory in their last three games—or a loss from Baltimore—to win it outright.

At one time Friday night, with the Orioles already rained out against Cleveland, it looked like the Yankees would lose one of their three opportunities to lock up the race since they trailed Detroit 4-0 in the fifth inning, just five outs from becoming official.

But the rain, which started as a drizzle early in the game, was pouring at that point and, after 50 minutes, crew chief Bill Haller called off the game, forcing a doubleheader today.

"It's kind of funny that in a game as important as this one they wouldn't wait longer," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson. "I've seen them wait 2½ hours, three hours. I saw them wait until 11:30 to start a game one night."

The consensus among other Tigers was, as Steve Kemp put it, that "if the Yankees were winning 4-0 we'd have played 4½ innings, and if they were losing and the game was official they'd have waited a long time."

But Manager Dick Howser of the Yankees said, "Umpires are the only people who get second-guessed more than managers."

Haller explained that "in a situation like this, I lose. We did our best to get it in, but the forecast was bad."

"If we had the lead," Howser conceded, "we'd be screaming like stuck pigs. But they (the umpires) were fair. They did their best to get the game in. I don't like playing in these kind of conditions.

"But it all evens out. That's the thing about the 162-game schedule. I said it would come down to the last series. I wish I hadn't been so accurate. But I like our situation, three up with three outs to go.

"Haller can't be intimidated. He's a veteran umpire and he has good judgment. We got on him a little bit but he gave Detroit a chance to get five innings in. He was in a no-win situation."

Twins 5, Royals 3

Minnesota won its 12th straight game, longest in the majors this season, pounding Kansas City's Larry Gura for 14 hits. Gary Ward, who is 19-for-38 with 10 RBI in 11 games since being called up from the minors, and Jose Morales collected four hits apiece and John Castino stroked a two-run homer for the Twins.

Gura, 18-10, who is scheduled to pitch the opener of the AL playoffs for the Royals Wednesday, hasn't won since Aug. 25.

George Brett went 1-for-3 to drop his average to .389, but he had a sacrifice fly for his 118th RBI in only 116 games.

Rangers 6, Mariners 2

Al Oliver, in a spirited battle with Mickey Rivers for the Texas club record for hits in a season, hit a homer, a double and a single to lead the Rangers over Seattle.

The three-hit night gave Oliver 208 for the season, two behind Rivers, who set a team record Thursday night. Oliver's 43rd double was a club record and his 116th RBI is two short of the team mark of 118 by Jeff Burroughs in 1974.

Doc Medich, 14-11, and Danny Darwin combined on a six-hitter and Jim Sundberg hit a solo homer for the Rangers.

White Sox 4, Angels 1

Rookie Britt Burns won his 15th game in 28 decisions by allowing four hits in six innings to California in chilly Chicago.

Timely hitting by Harold Baines, Jim Morrison and Todd Cruz provided the offense for Burns, whose pitching arm stiffened before he could finish the game in 38-degree temperatures.

Jimmy Sends Best Wishes To TSU Coach

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — President Carter telephoned Tennessee State Coach John Merritt from aboard Air Force One, wishing the 28-year coach luck as Merritt nears his 200th college football career victory.

The president, heading toward Washington Friday night after visiting his ailing mother in Georgia, also said he wouldn't mind any help the coach could offer in Carter's quest for a second four-year term in the White House.

Merritt's Tennessee State Tigers take on Long Beach State in Nashville tonight. Merritt's career coaching record stands at 199-60-9.

"I want you to know that I've been aware through the years of the great football program at Tennessee State," Carter told Merritt Friday night.

"I realize you've got a fight on your hands tomorrow night and I've got a tough fight on my hands Nov. 4 and I'd appreciate any help you could give me in that one."

The call was preceded by one of Carter's aides, who made sure Merritt was at home about 7:30 p.m. CDT Friday to take the call.

"This has to be one of the highlights of my career," Merritt said. "A call from the president. Well, my goodness, that's flattering."

Long Beach State Coach Dave Curry apparently wasn't particularly impressed.

"Let's see, I got a phone call from my wife and that meant just as much to me as a call from the president," Curry said.

Triple the Difference!

GUARANTEE

If you can do better. . . We'll Triple the Difference!

Kroger Sav-on promises to pay you triple the difference in cash if you can do your normal weekly shopping for less at any other supermarket in Greenville. Kroger Sav-on can make this commitment because we have low Cost Cutter grocery prices . . . plus thousands of discounts on non-food items in department after department. See for yourself: after you've shopped Kroger Sav-on, compare the same items with any other Greenville store. If the total amount for the same items is less at the other store, we'll refund triple the difference in cash. Just purchase at least 25 different items totalling $20 or more (excluding meat products). Only one of each item purchased may be included in the comparison. If you can find any other store in town with the same items for less, bring your Kroger Sav-on register tape . . . plus the other store's prices . . . to your one-stop food and drug store. We'll pay you triple the difference in cash! Kroger Sav-on knows what's important to you . . . that's why we're making this exciting triple the difference promise. In one easy stop, cut your costs at Kroger Sav-on!

Fire Prevention Week Proclaimed

Mayor Don McGlohon proclaimed Oct. 5-11 as "Fire Prevention Week" in Greenville and urged "each individual and family...to participate in the programs to help all citizens realize the true values of fire prevention."

According to the mayor, "A recent Bureau of Census survey of households fires indicates that annually one in every 16 households has a fire which could have disastrous results."

McGlohon said that "most of these fires are avoidable, caused by needless and careless acts. Our goal is to achieve an annual reduction in fire deaths, injuries, and property losses and everyone can and must help to prevent these fires."

He asserted that the "business community has a special responsibility to provide fire-safe products. Builders, architects, and engineers have a responsibility to provide fire-safe places in which to work and live," he noted.

McGlohon added, "Fire/rescue personnel have important responsibilities in providing strong fire prevention programs in our community, as well as to fight fires and save lives."

—Adopt-a-Pet—

The adopt-a-pets for this week include an adult female calico cat and two kittens. One kitten is a yellow tabby and one is a gray and white tabby. Both are litter-trained. The number to call is 752-9922.

Anyone wishing to place an animal in the adopt-a-pet column may call Mrs. Elizabeth Savage at 756-4867; Charlotte Price at 752-3290; Heather Chaney at 758-0556; or Carol Tyer at 752-6166, ext. 286.

Workshop Set For Community Schools

A new year of activities for the Greenville City Schools Community Schools Advisory Council will get underway with an orientation workshop to be held at the Greenville Middle School on Wednesday, October 8.

Carolyn Ferebee, Community Schools director, notes the workshop is to provide members and others an opportunity to better understand the concept of the program and to get an overview of major involvements of the council for its 1980-81 goals.

A slide presentation of programs sponsored jointly by the Community Schools programs and other local agencies are to be part of the workshop.

The workshop begins at 7:30 p.m. in Middle School's media center. It is open to all interested citizens and groups wanting to know more about Greenville's Community Schools program.

Shriners Plan Dinner

GRIFTON — The Grifton Shriners are having a chicken fry this year for the annual crusade to help crippled and burned children.

Included in the dinner will be three pieces of fried chicken, slaw and boiled potatoes. Plates are $2.50 and will be served from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 8. Take home dinners will be avalible.

Shriners will be serving in both Ayden and Grifton. In Grifton locations will be on the town lot on the corner of Queen and Pitt streets and in front of the downtown water tower. In Ayden the location will be the railroad lot across from the town hall.

All profits will benefit the 20 Shriners Crippled and Burned Children's Hospitals throughout the United States, the closest being in Greenville, S.C.

Guild Sets Workshops

The North Carolina Chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America, Inc. (NCCEGA) will have its first meeting of the year Monday, Oct. 6 at the Greenville Community Building on the corner of Fourth and Greene Streets.

The meeting will be held from 9 a.m. until after the covered dish luncheon for all members and guests. Three workshops will be presented at the meeting: Bargello Christmas Ball, by Marguerite Cameron of Morehead City; Christmas Towel on Huck, by Carloe Bowman of The Scotch Bonnet; Coaster or Paperweight, by Gina Figurella and Kay Dorman of Mine and Yours in New Bern. Anyone interested in attending call NCCEGA President Pat Reep at 756-1098.

Water Flushing To Continue

The tenth phase of the city's water distribution system flushing program will get underway tonight and continue through Friday morning, according to Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville Utilities' Water and Sewer Department.

Lewis said that the area bordered on the north by Greenville Boulevard, on the east by 14th Street extended, on the west by Tar Road, and on the south to the end of the system will be involved in the current phase.

The flushing is done between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. on Sunday nights through Friday mornings.

Classes Given At Pitt CC

Pitt Community College will offer the following adult classes:

SEASONAL DECORATIONS — eight weeks, starts Oct. 6, and will meet on Mondays from 7-10 p.m. at the Farmville Recreation Department.

CAKE DECORATING — eight weeks, starts Oct. 6, and will meet on Mondays from 7-10 p.m. at Wellcome Middle School.

TAXES — six weeks, starts Oct. 14, and will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7-10 p.m. on the PCC campus, Room 58, White building.

Swim Course Will Begin

An adult beginners swimming course will begin Wednesday, Oct. 8 from 7-8 p.m. at Memorial Gymnasium on the East Carolina University campus with Mike Johnson and Cindy Harden serving as instructors.

Following the initial session, the course will meet each Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. Participants should be prepared to swim the first night.

A small pool use fee will be shared by participants, it was pointed out.

Persons seeking more information should contact the Red Cross office here at 752-4222.

Slide Show By Jose Fumero

A slide show on weaving and weaving design will be presented by Jose Fumero, weaver-designer, at 8 p.m. Wednesday, October 8 in the auditorium of the Jenkins Fine Arts Center on campus. The slide-show lecture is in conjunction with a two-day workshop being held by Craftsmen East.

The public is invited to Fumero's slide show, and there is no admission charged.

ENDS SEASON

Carowinds theme park will end its 1980 operating season on Sunday, October 12. A spokesman said Carowinds will reopen for weekend operation in late March 1981.

Awards Made At Banquet

Four awards were given Friday night by the Pitt County Commissioners' Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped.

Steve Ward, former teacher at D. H. Conley High School and currently a student at Wake Forest University Law School, was the recipient of the Employee of the Year award. He also was the featured speaker.

Dr. Donald Weir, medical director of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Regional Rehabilitation Center was honored as Physician of the Year.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital was the recipient of the Employer Over 200 Award for its employment of handicapped individuals.

State Senator Vernon White was honored as Humanitarian of the Year.

Committee Chairperson Melvin McLawhorn of Eaton Corporation said, "This banquet honored several local citizens for their work in employing the handicapped. The awards are presented based on outstanding contribution in a defined area impacting the handicapped. This year's recipients are fine examples of work done in Pitt County in this endeavor.

According to committee member, Maxine Brown, the banquet was well attended by representatives of business, industry, governmental agencies and interested individuals. It was held to kick off statewide "Employment of the Handicapped Awareness Week" which begins today.

ALUMNI TO MEET

The Pitt County Chapter of the A.&T. Alumni Associaton will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Payton, 1500 S. Lee St., Ayden, October 8 at 7:30 p.m. Plans for the fund-raising activities will be discussed. R.B. Johnson, president, invites all Aggies of the Pitt County area to be present.

HERB SAYS: North Carolinians should have a means of enacting laws by popular ballot, as they do in California. I favor adoption of the Initiative and Referendum in our state. We could use a Proposition 13.

7 REASONS TO SELL TO COIN & RING MAN.

In the past few months Greenville has seen several new gold & silver dealers come & go. But Coin & Ring Man is still here because we stand apart from some of those other dealers. Why?

1. Because we're a permanent part of your community.
2. Because we do not sell anything, we only buy, and our business puts money into the local economy.
3. Because WE ARE INTERESTED IN THE WELFARE OF THE CONSUMER and we encorage regulations & business practices that will protect & aid the seller as well as the buyer.
4. Because our buyers are courteous professionals who must pass a rigid training program before they are prepared to serve you.
5. Because we are not interested in buying stolen goods & we cooperate fully with all law enforcement agencies in catching thieves & recovering stolen merchandise.
6. Because we weigh your merchandise on official scales & quote you a price based on:
   - weight
   - daily market price (according to quotations received direct from N.Y. & Chicago at least 3-4 times daily)
   - degree of purity
   - condition and type of item
7. Because our REPUTATION FOR HONESTY, SERVICE, INTEGRITY and fair prices has made us one of the largest gold & silver dealers in N.C.

Corbett-Williams Vows Exchanged Saturday

MRS. ALLEN D. CORBETT

FOUNTAIN — Miss Karen K. Williams and Allen D. Corbett were united in marriage Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Aspen Grove Free Will Baptist Church here in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. Hubert Burress, pastor of the church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Lee Corbett of Rt. 1, Fountain.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Williams of Rt. 2, Farmville, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length gown with a chapel train of chiffon and Venise lace. The fitted bodice featured a Victorian neckline with an illusion yoke of point d'esprit appliqued with Venise lace motifs and full length bishop sleeves. Venise lace etched with seed pearls adorned the bodice and sleeves. The bride chose a waltz length mantilla of bridal illusion edged with Venise lace and appliqued with lace motifs for her headpiece. She carried a nosegay of white French mums accented with bronze and gold.

Cindy Louise Williams, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore an apricot silesta floor length A-line gown. The T-strap crystal pleated blouson bodice was topped with a stole. The belted waist was accented with a peplum. She carried a nosegay of mixed fall flowers.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Wade Corbett, brother of the bridegroom, Durwood Corbett of Fountain, cousin of the bridegroom, Tony Eason of Farmville and Henry Phillips of Pinetops.

Organ selections of wedding music were rendered by Danny Wooten of Greenville. Miss Susan Humphry of Bath, cousin of the bride, presided at the register.

Mothers and grandmothers of the bridal and bridegroom were presented French mum corsages.

Mrs. Charles Van Meter Jr. of King, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

The bridal couple, graduates of Farmville Central High School, will reside at Rt. 1, Fountain.

Fire/Rescue Award To Be Presented

The late Lt. Jerry Steve Mills has been named Fire/Rescue Person of the Year. The award is given yearly by the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women.

The plaque will be presented to his family at this month's meeting of the Insurance Women. The honored person is selected by fellow employees as the Fire/Rescue Person of the Year.

A graduate of D. H. Conley High School, Lt. Mills became a member of the Greenville Fire Department in 1971. He completed his basic training in 1972 and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1979. He graduated from fire college in Rocky Mount in 1980.

The award will be received by his wife, Brenda, their daugher, Nicole, and his mother, Mrs. Grace Mills. He was named Fireman of the Year in 1976.

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Ruth S. McClure of Gastonia announces the engagement of her daughter, Pamela Kay, to Donald Carroll Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Williams of Harrellsville. A Jan. 3 wedding is planned.

Wedding Vows Spoken In Evening Ceremony

Terrie Lynn Godley and James Herbert Whichard were united in marriage Friday at 7 p.m. in the Greenville Church of God. The Rev. Ariel S. Yorkman officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Issac Godley Sr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Whichard also of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by organist Obie Godley, cousin of the bride, and solists Dee and Christy Emory. "If" and "You Light Up My Life" were the selections presented.

Given im marriage by her parents and escorted by her brother, Paul I. Godley Jr., the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie, designed with an open neckline featring a stand-up Queen Anne collar outlined in scalloped chantilly lace with pearl clusters. The empire bodice was overlaid with imported French chantilly lace with sheer organza shepherdess sleeves trimmed in scalloped chantilly lace. The A-line skirt was enhanced with a panel of knife pleated organza from which the reddingcote design flowed to an attached chapel length train of imported French chantilly lace edged and trimmed at the hemline with scalloped lace. The bride wore a tiered illusion veil held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid with chantilly lace beaded with miniature pearls. The bride carried a colonial nosegay of white daisies and baby's breath with white bridal satin bow and streamers.

Geraldine Harris of Greenville, sister of the bride, served as the matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of dark orange overlaid with floral chiffon and a white hat with sonia ribbons. She carried a hand bouquet of white and sonia cushion poms with sonia bow and streamers.

Both mothers wore white cushion poms corsages. The bridegroom's grandmother was also remembered with a white cushion pom corsage.

The bridegroom's father served as best man and ushers included Tim Dail of Greenville, cousin of the bridegroom, and E. W. Godley Sr., brother of the bride of Winterville.

A reception followed the cemerony in the church fellowship hall. After the traditional cake cutting by the bride and bridegroom, Lola Godley, sister-in-law of the bride, served cake while Sherrie Heath, niece of the bride, poured punch. Attending the register was Kathy Stanley, sister of the bridegroom.

The church was decorated with a brass 15 branch candelabra, flanked by arrangements of white gladioli and yellow and white cushion poms. The couple knelt on a white prie-dieu.

Rice bags were given out by Chad Godley, nephew of the bride. The wedding was directed by Judy Godley, sister-in-law of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and is employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom received his G.E.D. from Pitt Community College and is employed by Hastings Ford.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points the couple will live at Rt. 2, Greenville.

Bride-Elect Entertained

WINTERVILLE — Miss Libby Roberson, bride-elect, was honored Saturday at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Herald Hines Jr. here.

Guests were received by the hostess.

The dining table, covered with an imported lace cloth, was centered with a crystal basket filled with yellow mixed flowers. Individual miniature brass bells tied with lily of the valley and ribbon marked each guests' place.

Miss Roberson was given a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums. She presented gifts to her attendants.

Mrs. Lester Branch assisted in serving the three-course meal.

Mrs. Sidney Roberson, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Lloyd Williams, mother of the bridegroom-elect, were introduced.

The honoree received a gift from the hostess.

Couple Marries On Saturday

The Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church was the setting of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Brenda Jean Clark and James Robert Waters. The Rev. Bobby Taylor officiated at the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jennis Alvin Clark of Tarboro and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Eugene Waters of Tarboro.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. W. E. Allen of Greenville, organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, was attired in a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with an open V-neckline outlined in floral Venise lace that extended over the empire bodice with miniature lace encircling the waistline and edging the cuffs of the full bishop sleeves. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel train were enhanced by rows of floral Venise lace at the hemline. She wore a waltz length mantilla pencil edged and scattered with appliques and motifs of Venise lace. She carried a colonial nosegay of white daisies, baby's breath and greenery.

Mrs. Darlene Bradley of Greenville, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and wore a formal gown of yellow magic knit featuring a halter styled empire bodice with spaghetti straps covered by a sheer cape. She carried a long-stemmed yellow rose.

Miss Sherry Ann Bell, niece of the bride, and Miss Lisa Rae Waters, cousin of the bridegroom, were flower girls.

The father of the bridegroom was best man.

Mrs. Rita C. Bell, sister of the bride, presided at the guest register.

The mother of the bride wore a formal dress of emerald green magic knit designed with a scoop neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal dress of deep rose magic knit featuring a V-neckline.

The bride's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Claude D. Clark of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nelson of Winterville. The bridegroom's grandparents are Mrs. Alice Waters of Yeatesville and the late Mr. Bryan Waters and Daniel Riley of Warrenton and Mrs. Lillie Wright of Grafton, Va.

A reception, given by the bride's parents, followed the ceremony and was held in the church fellowship hall.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of yellow gladioli and baby's breath with greenery.

After the bridal couple cut the first slice of the tiered wedding cake, it was served by Mrs. Jane C. Anderson, aunt of the bride, Punch was poured by Mrs. Rae Waters, aunt of the bridegroom.

The couple will live at Rt. 3, Tarboro.

On The Young Side

By Elizabeth Ito

The Juniorettes of Rose High School sponsored a spirit chain during school Friday.

Any student who bought a 10 cents lollipop would add a link to their class's chain. Seniors constructed a blue chain, juniors, green, and sophomores, white. At the end of the day, the class with the longest chain received all the money collected.

Another project of the Juniorettes was working with the Bloodmobile in its annual high school blood drive. The Bloodmobile visited the school Monday and 194 pints were collected. Each year, the five area high schools compete in the percentage of actual blood donors out of all the school's eligible donors. A student must be 17 or older in order to be eligible.

Spanish Club members held a yard sale last Saturday to raise money for upcoming activities. Officers of the club for this year are Lori Dickens, president, Dawn Berkey, vice president, and Dawn Morgan, secretary-treasurer.

Greenville Teen Dems attended a Democratic Youth Unity Rally in Raleigh Sept. 20. The Embers provided a free concert for participants and the featured speaker for the event was Senator Robert Morgan.

Preparations are being made for Homecoming Week Oct. 20-24. The student body voted between "The Circus," "Greek Mythology" and "Salute to America" as themes for the week. "Salute to America" was chosen as this year's theme.

Benefit Bridge Party Planned

The Arts Department of the Greenville Woman's Club will sponsor a benefit bridge party at the club building Friday, Oct. 10, at 2 p.m.

The cost will be $2.00 per player. Proceeds will be used for the Fine Arts Festival.

For reservations call Mrs. George Clapp, 756-2516, or Mrs. Dink James, 752-2753.

COMPUTERIZED COSMETICS

NEW YORK (AP) — A cosmetic company has applied a micro-processor to the concept of computerized beauty to guide consumers in the selection and application of cosmetics, according to a management information system journal.

A consultation of about five minutes is conducted with the woman seeking advice, during which she answers multiple-choice questions that appear on a television-like screen, the publication MIS Week reports.

Dear Abby

Talk About A Christmas Ring

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago I met a lovely gentleman while traveling with a tour group through Europe. He is 65 and I am 63. I've been a widow for a number of years, and he lost his wife a year ago.

All our waking hours were spent together, so consequently we came to know each other very well during those months. We discovered that we had just about everything in common and loved being together.

Neither of us believes in a "spend-the-night" relationship, yet the chemistry between us is unmistakably electric. So what do I do with a man who says he loves me, but prefaces every remark about marriage with a "maybe, someday, when and if"?

Abby, I care deeply for this man and he says he loves me, yet here we are, two lonely people with so much to give each other, while I'm in my house, and he's in his.

His concern with the calendar and making sure a proper length of time elapses before he remarries astonishes me. How many years does he need? And how much time do we have left?

Sometimes I think I'm wasting my time on this "someday" man, and I should try to make a new life for myself while I'm still attractive enough to find someone who could fill this lonely void in my life. What do you suggest?

LIVING ON PROMISES

DEAR LIVING: Come Thanksgiving, talk turkey and let him know that all you want for Christmas is a little gold ring. And if this man who says he "loves" you isn't ready to make a commitment, tell him it was nice knowing him — then book another tour.

DEAR ABBY: A young couple, who became my neighbors last year, have asked me to be the godmother of the child they expect in three months. (I am a childless widow, in slightly better than moderate circumstances.) At first I was flattered, then I asked them exactly what a godmother was expected to do.

I was told that she usually starts a bank account for the godchild and keeps adding to it until the child is ready for college. Also, she remembers the godchild with gifts on his birthday, confirmation, Christmas, Easter and all gift-giving occasions. All the emphasis was placed on money and gifts, but what irked me was a reminder to remember my godchild in my will!

I may have done this on my own, but to be told that it was "expected" didn't set too well with me.

I have already been more than generous with gifts and favors for the young couple and would probably have done so for the child, but I feel as though I was chosen for this "honor" for mercenary reasons.

Now that I have agreed but have changed my mind, how do I graciously get out of it without causing hard feelings?

RECONSIDERED

DEAR RECONSIDERED: I can't guarantee that there will be no "hard feelings," but the best way to get out of it is to tell them that you have reconsidered, and think they should "honor" someone they have known longer.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Potatoes should be stored in a cool, dry, dark place because exposure to light will cause them to turn green.

Couple Weds In Evening Ceremony

Peggy Willis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wallace Sr., and W. Gordon Douglas were married Saturday evening at six o'clock at the Brook Valley Country Club.

The double ring ceremony was performed by A. E. Forrest.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bride wore an ivory gown trimmed with lace and pearls. The gown was designed with a high neckline, lace sleeves and an attached sweep train. She carried a nosegay of red roses in baby's breath accented with lace ribbon.

Honor attendants were Michelle Willis, daughter of the bride, and Bridget Douglas, daughter of the bridegroom. Miss Willis wore a formal gown of pink trimmed with white lace and carried a nosegay of miniature red roses accented with baby's breath and ribbon streamers. Miss Douglas wore a formal gown of burgandy with ivory lace and carried a nosegay of pink carnations and baby's breath.

Billy Stinson, guitarist, sang "I'll Never Love This Way Again," "Once, Twice, Three Times a Lady" and "I Love You Just The Way You Are."

Edward Gibrall of Richmond, Va., was best man. Ushers included Mark and Michael Douglas, sons of the bridegroom, and Willie Wallace, brother of the bride.

After a trip to Bermuda, the couple will live in Greenville.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held on the patio at the country club. Nadean Forbes and Linda Wallace presided at the register and said good-byes.

An afterrehearsal dinner was held Friday night at the Pipeline for out-of-town guests and friends of the bride and bridegroom.

59th Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. H. HASSELL. . .of Rt. 4, Greenville, will celebrate their 59th wedding anniversary Sunday, Oct. 26. Hassell celebrated his 85th birthday Saturday. He was honored at a dinner held at the couple's home yesterday.

Benefit Show

RALEIGH — A benefit fashion show, with proceeds going to the North Carolina Art Society for support of the N. C. Museum of Art, will be held at the State Capitol.

Designer Bill Blass will sneak preview his spring collection Friday evening, Oct. 24, at seven o'clock. Sharing top billing will be menswear designer Alexander Julian. Both are Coty Award winners and will be bringing New York models with them. Other models will be provided locally.

Julian, recent winner of the Cutty Sark Award, will be turning over the funds in the form of a scholarship to a University of North Carolina graduate student as the Alexander Julian/Cutty Sark Award.

Sponsors for the event are the North Carolina Art Society, membership, volunteer and support group for the museum and Montaldo's of Raleigh.

A champagne supper will follow in the Rotunda where works by modern American artists will be on loan from the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Cooks who enjoy serving a summer dessert made with fresh fruit — for both its flavor and nutrients — may be interested in this updated version of Bavarian Cream. Old-time Bavarian is made with an egg-yolk custard, gelatin, egg whites, cream and flavoring.

The following recipe omits the egg-yolk custard but uses the gelatin, egg whites and cream — plus fresh sweet red cherries for the flavoring. It unmolds and stands up well on a warm day because it calls for 2 envelopes of gelatin. If you like a gelatin dessert that is less stiff, use 1½ envelopes of the gelatin and ladle the dessert into sherbet cups, parfait glasses or small glass bowls to chill, set and serve without unmolding.

CHERRY CREAM

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¾ cup cold water
2 cups pitted, diced fresh sweet red cherries
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 egg whites
1 cup heavy cream
¼ teaspoon almond extract
Garnish: whole fresh sweet red cherries

In a medium bowl sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water and let soften — 5 minutes or so. In a saucepan over moderate heat stir together the cherries, sugar and lemon juice until sugar dissolves and mixture boils; pour over gelatin; stir until gelatin dissolves; chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until stiff. Without washing beaters, beat cream until stiff. Into the cherry mixture fold the egg whites, then the whipped cream and almond extract. Turn into a 6-cup mold; chill to set. At serving time, unmold. Garnish with the whole cherries. Makes 6 servings.

BRUNCH FARE

Fresh Fruit Cup
Eggs Benedict Coffee
Bourbon Loaf

BOURBON LOAF

The alcohol in the bourbon evaporates during the baking.

1¼ cups fork-stirred whole wheat (graham) flour
1¼ teaspoons baking powder
1 cup raisins, chopped medium-fine
½ cup (¼-pound stick) butter
1 cup sugar
4 eggs whites, from large eggs
½ cup 86-proof bourbon
1 cup walnuts, chopped medium fine

On wax paper stir together 1 cup of the flour and the baking powder. In a sm all bowl coat raisins with remaining ¼ cup flour. Cream butter and sugar; add egg whites in 4 additions, beating at medium speed with an electric beater for 30 seconds after each addition. Add half the flour-baking powder mixture and the bourbon; at lowest speed, beat just until blended; add the remaining flour-baking powder mixture and, again at lowest speed, beat just until blended. With a spoon fold in the flour-raisin mixture and nuts. Turn into a well-greased and floured 8½ by 4½ by 2⅝-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the crack in the center comes out clean — 1¼ hours. Loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; turn right side up. Cool completely. Wrap tightly in saran and store overnight to soften crust before slicing.

CLINIQUE

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I placed only one ad for a baby-sitter in my life. The occasion was the birth of my third child, and I needed someone to sit with the other two.

It was a simple ad, really: "WANTED: Strong woman to sit with two active children. Write your own ticket. Orphan preferred."

The ad ran for 14 days. After that it became clear I couldn't even pay anyone to do what I did for two dresses, an occasional dinner, a movie a month and a bottle of bath salts for Mother's Day.

Either times have changed or unemployment is higher than I thought. I just saw an ad the other day that read: "Child Mentor: To oversee the health, recreation and general well-being of three children. Stress personal and character-building habits. Arrange outings, picnics, parties and other recreational endeavors. Plan and serve proper meals, determine behavior problems (if any) and try to solve them. Stimulate academic interest and prepare lesson plans for the children while they attend school. Free room and board plus $130 a week."

For $2.95 an hour, they're going to be lucky to have a sitter who makes sure the kids bleed on the Scotchgarded sofa!

I've always been intrigued with the stereotype sitter depicted on television. She's usually a woman in her 50s with a B.S. degree in dental hygiene and a major in cavity fighting. She has a piece of chalk in her handbag which she dips into a liquid dye to demonstrate the wonders of fluoride. Come to think of it, she'd be perfect for the ad for Child Mentor.

My sitters have run the emotional gamut from Apprehension to Unspeakable Terror. They were never bored. I used to issue them a mimeographed sheet to alleviate their fears.

1. The lamb's blood on the front door is someone's idea of a joke.
2. Bruce often drinks from an Old-Fashioned glass.
3. There is a lock on the bathroom door. Use it if you have to.
4. Cheer up. You can go home tonight.

I hate to depress the woman who placed the ad for Child Mentor, but remember Julie Andrews as Mary Poppins? Well, the other night I saw her in "10" and I think the kids got through to her.

Volunteer Progam To Be Discussed

The Welcome Wagon Club of Greenville will hold its luncheon meeting Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. at the Rotary Club. Ms. Adele Moss will describe the volunteer program at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

New club directories will be distributed at the meeting.

Members are asked to bring small, priced handmade items for the charity bazaar at Carolina East Mall. Priced baked goods should be delivered to the club booth the morning of Oct. 11.

Harvest Ball tickets will be available for $19 each and can be purchased from Dee Schaff, 756-1665, Arlene Kraus, Teresa Jepson or Bev Spivey anytime prior to Nov. 1.

The ball will be held Nov. 8 at the Greenville Country Club beginning at 7 p.m. Entertainment will be provided by Five Degrees South following cocktails and a seated prime-rib dinner. Non-members may be invited and tables reserved.

Operation Santa Claus gifts for Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, and Caswell Hospital, Kinston, will be collected by Penny Smith during the next two months. The gifts should be suitable for patients of all ages.

A babysitting co-op has been formed at First Presbyterian Church for use during club meetings. Lynn Sprecher, 756-9937, can be contacted for further information. Individual reservations may still be made at Jarvis Methodist Church.

Bev Spivey, 756-8815, will accept luncheon reservations or cancellations until 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Engagement Party Held

Miss Elizabeth Holton Huff, daughter of Mrs. Patricia Shipp Huff of New Bern, and Jeffrey Jay Edwards, son of Maj. (USAF Ret.) and Mrs. Harold Jay Edwards of Simpson, were honored Saturday evening at an engagement party.

The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jones, aunt and uncle of the bride, New Bern.

Mrs. Fred Shipp, grandmother of the bride, was co-hostess.

The house was decorated throughout with fall floral arrangements.

Approximately 65 guests were present.

The wedding will take place in New Bern Dec. 20 at St. Paul's Catholic Church.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your relationship with friends and know where they fit best in your future plans. Catch up on your rest today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Seek the company of influential persons who can be helpful in furthering your career. Devote evening to loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to advance through the auspices of important and clever individuals you know. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to make plans that could give you more abundance in the days ahead. Don't be taken in by doubtful persons.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to gain more benefits from relationships you how have. Forget that easy chair and be more active and happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to come to a better understanding with family members. Plan how to show gratitude and increase harmony.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Arrange to be with friends you truly like for the recreation you desire. Plan the week ahead so that it becomes more productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans to improve your status in your line of endeavor. Take mate out to charming places in the evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Good day to study whatever is spiritual and educational. Visit friends and relatives and express happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study new methods and ideas that can bring you greater income in the future. Make needed repairs to property.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make the right arrangements for gaining personal aims. The evening is best for being with persons you really enjoy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one endowed with artistic talents that could lead to much success in life. Teach to be appreciative of any favors from others and to do something in return to please them. A very fine sport in this chart.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, OCT. 6, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to start the new week with renewed interest in home and family life and whatever else is of prime importance to you. Take steps toward having greater abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You now know how to improve existing conditions at your home and get excellent results. Stay within your budget.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Attend to important routines early in the day and accomplish a great deal. Show more understanding for associates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find out what your true financial status is, and then do what is necessary to bring greater abundance. Perseverance pays off now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get an early start on important business matters so you'll have time for recreation later. Pay vital bills.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study personal aspects of your life and figure out the proper way to improve them. Strive for increased happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Gain the cooperation of good friends for a personal interest you have in mind. Obtain data you need from the right sources.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Look to a higher-up for support you need in order to further your career. Take no risks where your personal health is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Figure out a practical way that could give you added income in the future. Follow the advice of a financial expert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to keep promises made as the new week starts. Sidestep one who may have an eye on your assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) An associate who is upset may try to pressure you into something that is not to your liking. Put your foot down and resist.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to important duties early and show your efficiency in handling them. Show increased loyalty to the one you love.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Investigating a new outlet now could be profitable to you in the future. Contact higher-ups and gain the backing you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can handle a difficult situation in a positive manner. Direct education along business lines for best results. There can be much happiness in this chart. Give good spiritual training early in life.

Take Dim View Of Deregulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mainline Protestant and Roman Catholic spokesmen have criticized proposals by the Federal Communications Commission to deregulate commercial radio.

The action would mean "the near death by neglect of the concept of public service radio," the Rev. Donald C. Matthews of the U.S. Catholic Conference told an FCC hearing. He added:

"We see the present proceeding as another attempt to promote the dominance of purely commercial interests in broadcasting to the detriment of the public interest."

Ralph M. Jennings of the United Church of Christ communications office, said the proposal stemmed from a desire of broadcasters "to have free and permanent monopoly of their frequencies and to be relieved of responsibility to serve the public."

Manifestation Stir Lawsuits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lawsuits against religious manifestations on public property show up regularly these days in many places.

In Los Angeles, the American Civil Liberties Union filed a suit demanding that the County of Los Angeles give up maintenance and lighting of a 50-foot cross in the Hollywood hills.

In Richmond, Va., a prayer for motorists printed on official state highway maps of North Carolina has been ruled unconsitutional by a federal appeals court.

In Albuquerque, N.M., the ACLU threatened to sue Bernalillo County unless its official seal, emblazoned with a religious cross, is removed from doors of the county's more than 200 vehicles.

FROM OIL TO CAVIAR

TORONTO (AP) — The Iranian government is advertising caviar for sale in Canada, and a federal trade official says it may be an attempt by Iran to regain its once-lucrative market for the delicacy in the United States.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — OUR EAGER ANGLER CORNERS SLACK LAKE TROUT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: L equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
© 1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.—We have several serious bridge students in our group, and recently we had a lengthy discussion about sound opening bids vs. light opening bids. I know that the European style is to open hands on what most American experts call a "heap of garbage," yet it seems to me that super-sound openers do not achieve the best results. Would you care to comment?—R. Phillips, Trenton, N.J.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—Except possibly with adherents of the Acol system, featherweight opening bids have fallen into disfavor. By and large, most players today use what I like to call the "Goren" standard for opening the bidding—all hands with 14 points are opened, and hands with fewer than 14 points are opened only if they have compensating features, such as a long suit or sound defensive values.

I, myself, fall somewhere in between the two schools. On one-suited hands, I don't mind opening light if my suit is really good. For example, suppose I pick up:

♠AKQxxx ♡Qxx ◇xxx ♣x.

I would always open this hand with one spade. I can convince partner that I'm weak by rebidding spades at every opportunity. By the time I have bid spades for the third time, partner should get the general picture of my hand. Besides, I have nothing to be ashamed of. My hand should produce six tricks at either spades or no trump, which makes it a far better hand than many 15-pointers I've held during my bridge-playing days.

When it comes to two-suited hands, I get a bit more conservative. For example, consider this holding:

♠Kx ♡Axxxx ◇KJxx ♣xx.

The problem with this hand is aural. If you open one heart and rebid two diamonds over partner's response, it sounds strong! Now you might have a problem curbing partner's ardor. In addition, if you take into account that your defensive values are a little suspect, it might be better to pass this hand and plan to enter the auction later.

Light opening bids generate a lot of action in pair tournaments. The theory is that you can create a great deal of confusion by getting in and out of the auction quickly. There is no doubt about the success of these methods. Certainly the world's leading master point holder, TV director Barry Crane, who espouses this approach, is the case in point.

In team events, however, such tactics are a bit more doubtful. You can stand one major calamity much better in a pair event than you can in a team match. And there is another consideration. Your teammates are not going to be delighted with you if you bring back a score of —500 or more when the opponents have no better than a part score.

Finally, if you use such tactics in rubber bridge, you'd better have a fat wallet. I know several players who make a good living off doubling light opening bidders, especially if they play a trick "light" as well!

Surprised Over No-Fourth-Term

NEW YORK (AP) — Numerous U.S. Lutheran leaders have voiced surprise at last week's announcement by the Rev. J.A.O. Preus that he won't seek a fourth four-year term as president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Preus, 60, head of the 2.7 million-member denomination since 1969 and considered virtually sure for re-election in 1981, led a conservative swing in the church against what were regarded as doctrinal laxity and unsound ecumenical relationships.

Actions against moderates led to a flight of some faculty and students from the church's Concordia ' Seminary, resulting in a separate seminary, and also a split in the church. About 265 congregations of 100,000 members formed a separate body.

Preus recently has said that the denomination was recovering from those "tempestuous years," with a mellower mood prevailing. The St. Louis-based denomination is one of three major Lutheran bodies.

Organ-Builder Knows His Intrument Will Endure

By PETE JACOBS
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When Lawrence Schoenstein signs a piece of his work, he knows it will be making a lot of noise for a long time.

"It's most satisfying to know I'm working on something that will endure beyond my lifetime," says Schoenstein, 65-year-old master builder for Felix F. Schoenstein & Co., makers of the "Rolls Royce" of pipe organs.

The 102-year-old company is the third-oldest organ-builder and one of 50 in the United States. It also is the oldest company of its kind west of the Mississippi.

When the Great Earthquake of 1906 devastated the organs of San Francisco, it was the Schoensteins who rebuilt them.

The small factory on two floors of an old brick building smells of wood and glue. In a white shirt, sleeves rolled up, Schoenstein meticulously designs and builds his organs by hand with a craftsmanship, passed on by three generations, originating in the Black Forest of Germany with great grandfather, Leo.

It takes an average of 18 months to build an organ, and three months to install one. In his lifetime, Schoenstein has presided over the creation of about 70.

"What makes it special is the creativeness of it, taking inanimate material and giving it musical tone," says Schoenstein. "It's very rewarding. All of a sudden it springs to life.

"There are so many pipes to an organ, and each one is an individual with its own eccentricities.

"My responsibility is to bring them all together to a family of tones. Sometimes I let instinct guide me. It's a combination of science and art, and a very happy marriage that is."

Schoenstein, who may retire soon to part-time work, has passed his skills on to a fifth generation, his 39-year-old son, Terrence. After serving as an apprentice from the age of 13, Lawrence worked 20 years for another company that later went out of business, and he returned to Schoenstein & Co.

Organs have their individual traits, says Jack Bethards, who bought the company in 1977. There is the strong German, the romantic French and the noble English organ. Schoenstein's American organ may be a blend of all of these, he says.

Some say an organ is really a symphony. There's hardly a sound it won't suggest, from the brassy horns to the throaty woodwinds.

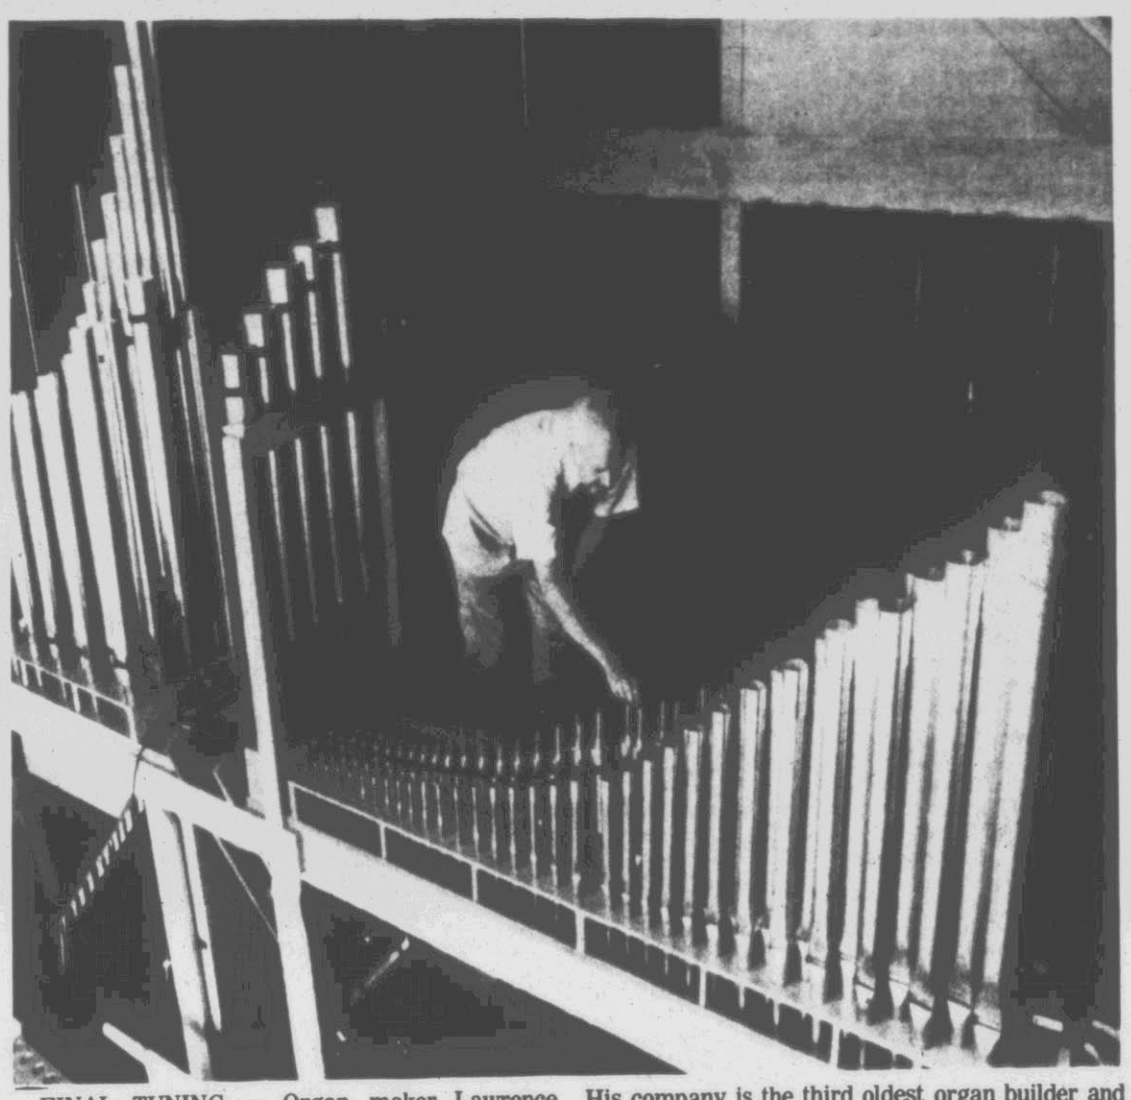
It may be two years before the thousands of pipes and stops have been made and fitted into place by the shop's 12 employees, then disassembled, carefully crated and trucked away to a church.

Schoenstein will be waiting to unseal the truck, to reassemble the organ in the unique cavern for which it was designed. No two organs are alike, and no organ sounds the same in another place, he says.

Every nook and cranny alters its tone, and the very warmth of a human hand on a metal pipe will foil the builder's most delicate work. For as many as three months, Schoenstein will live near the church while he gives the pipes their final "voicing" — the elaborate tuning process. He spent nine months installing the Central Union Church organ in Honolulu.

When it's done, when the last key is regulated and the last pipe tuned, he packs his case of tuning forks and voicing hooks. Felix F. Schoenstein & Co. will maintain the organ for its life.

Although an organ may cost $150,000, Bethards says the Schoenstein business always has been recession-proof, partly because of its reputation. "And," he says, "There's nothing quite like an organ."



FINAL TUNING — Organ maker Lawrence Schoenstein makes some final adjustments on a completed pipe organ in his San Francisco shop. His company is the third oldest organ builder and one of only 50 in the United States. (AP Laserphoto)

If A-Bomb Was Given To Soviet

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The hypothesis is bizarre: What if President Franklin Delano Roosevelt had decided during World War II to share the secret of the atomic bomb with the Soviet Union?

This question posed as the theme of a new book is doubly astonishing when the author is none other than Roosevelt's son, James.

He insists his novel, "A Family Matter," is the purest fiction, but concedes that some don't believe him.

"A lot of reviewers have intimated this was my way of telling a story that was true," says Roosevelt. "There is no way of stopping that speculation. But you just have to take my word for it — the story itself is fiction."

Roosevelt, 72, a former six-term California congressman who now lives in this seaside suburb of Los Angeles, collaborated on the book with a professional writer, Sam Toperoff.

"I had written two other books about my family," Roosevelt says, "and one day my agent said, 'Why don't we do something that would make some money? Novels make money.'"

Roosevelt suggested a fictional story based on real-life characters — a story which would rewrite the history of the Manhattan Project.

Indeed, he casts himself as the main character in this re-written history — Maj. James Roosevelt of the U.S. Marine Corps — summonded by his father to head the secret mission code-named "Family Matter," the mission to transfer bomb secrets to the Russians in the interest of maintaining world peace.

"What stuck in my mind was when I came back for the fourth inauguration," Roosevelt recalls of the period in late World War II when he was on active duty with the Marines.

"I came from the Philippines and went to see my father. I said we were preparing for a landing in Japan," he recalls.

"He sort of looked out the window and said, 'I don't think you'll have to make a landing in Japan.' That impressed me."

And, although he stresses that he knew of no plan by his father to spill the bomb secret, other portions of his narrative concerning the scientists who worked on the bomb are based on reality and possiblity.

"Certainly, some of the scientists tried to back out of helping it (the bomb project) reach its conclusion," he says.

"Let me put it this way. It's not a preposterous story. It could have happened."

He is asked how he felt when his father's successor, President Harry Truman, ordered the bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

"I guess I had somewhat mixed emotions," he says. "I was glad from our point of view it worked. It saved a lot of lives. But I've had a nagging curiosity about whether my father would have found a way to test it that would have convinced the Japanese of its power and not endangered so many.

"I have a nagging feeling something different might have been arrived at toward achieving the same goal."

These days, Roosevelt maintains an office and does consulting for various business enterprises. He lives with his fourth wife and their 9-year-old daughter, the youngest of his seven children, and keeps up with politics.

"I try to keep interested but not active," he says, and adds he is undecided on whom he will support for president in November.

"I wish there was a line on the ballot that said, 'None of the above.'"

JAMES ROOSEVELT has written a novel which he insists is fiction, about his father, President Roosevelt, sharing the secret of the atom bomb with the Soviet Union during World War II. (AP Laserphoto)

Irish Govm't Cracking Down On IRA

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

MONAGHAN, Ireland (AP) — A 40-man task force of Irish police has moved into the Monaghan border country to hunt down IRA guerrillas responsible for mounting violence and an unprecedented wave of armed robberies along the border with Northern Ireland.

The undercover force of the Special Branch, some trained by West Germany's GSG-9 anti-terrorist unit, is part of a growing security buildup against the guerrillas by the Irish Republic's government.

The "Monaghan salient," a hilly wedge of the republic that thrusts into the British-governed Northern Ireland counties of Fermanagh and Armagh, is now the hottest sector of the long-disputed 300-mile border.

Scores of people have been killed or wounded along the border in recent months as the guerrillas, stifled by security in urban areas of the North, have stepped up their frontier raids.

The Irish Republican Army's "Provisional" wing and the smaller Irish National Liberation Army are fighting to end British rule in the predominantly Protestant North and unite it with the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic republic in the south.

The "Provos" regularly ambush British patrols and assassinate Protestants on the Northern side of the border. They kidnapped and killed two police reservists in September.

In the south, they have frequently clashed with the police, and security chiefs blame them for a 3-year-old wave of bank, payroll and post office holdups within the republic to fund their campaigns. Two policemen were killed in a bank raid recently.

Four battalions of Irish soldiers with French-built armored cars and helicopters now back up 3,000 police officers, one-third of the republic's national force, patrolling the poorly defined border.

Justice Minister Gerry Collins announced in September a $238 million anti-terrorist program that includes forming a force of helicopter-borne Special Branch commandos and rapidly expanding Dublin's computerized intelligence systems.

But the Dublin drive, launched by Prime Minister Charles Haughey, falls far short of an all-out offensive to smash the guerrillas. That could be political risky in the nationalist-minded republic, where the IRA has some sympathy. The Provos claim to be the political successors to the rebels who won independence from Britain in 1921.

But the buildup is putting pressure on the guerrillas in their traditional sanctuaries at a time when they are being squeezed in the North, where sectarian feuding now is 11 years old.

The republic's police have seized more than six tons of explosives, hundreds of bombs, rockets, mortars, U.S.-made Armalite rifles and thousands of rounds of ammunition in recent sweeps.

"They've got more stuff in the last few months than they've got in the last 10 years," said a senior officer of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, Northern Ireland's police force.

But the guerrillas still appear to have considerable support in much of Monaghan, where they hide out and keep their "forward" weapons dumps. There have been no significant arrests.

When Paedar McElvanna, 24, a known Provo, was shot dead by British troops in a frontier gunbattle recently, black flags were hung out in Monaghan town and nearby Castleblaney.

Unlike British troops in the North, Ireland's army is not allowed to shoot or arrest. It has so far not fired a shot in anger on the troubled border. Most of the police are unarmed.

Commandant Michael O'Dwyer, a company commander with the 27th Infantry Battalion, stressed, however: "We're also here to guard the sovereignty of our national territory. The British soldiers often take a very cavalier attitude towards our border."

Britain has long complained that Ireland has dragged its feet over getting tough with the outlawed IRA. The Irish deny that.

Haughey recently overrode protests in the Dublin Parliament over a still largely secret border-security deal with the British.

Official sources said the arrangement includes pooling intelligence data on guerrillas and giving British army helicopters limited "hot pursuit" rights.

Divisional police commanders from both forces now meet regularly in cross-border cooperation, almost non-existent a few years ago.

A Quicksilverness In The Way Words Go Together

Thirteen years ago when Ardis Kimzey attended the first meeting of a Writer's Workshop in Raleigh, she was like a closet with a locked door.

Her instructor was Sam Ragan, well known in state literary and journalistic circles. His words unlocked the door.

"I sat there that first night, and all of a sudden a room that I had been living in all my life opened up and became a house," Mrs. Kimzey remembers.

Her thoughts took the form of a poem. "When you are at that stage of your writing, you don't question what you should do, you write what comes out," she said during a recent interview.

Within a year she had sold her verse to "American Weave" and went on to be published in 16 other magazines, anthologies and newspapers throughout the country.

A collection of her poems, entitled "The Illusion of Water," appeared in 1978.

Most of them trace their inspiration to Rest Haven, her family's summer vacation retreat on the Pamlico River near Bath.

A native of Washington, N.C., a town that has produced other contemporary writers, she is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Messick. When she suffered her "terrible earaches" as a girl, her father entertained her with episodic stories. Her mother was an inveterate reader who also made sure her daughter was well supplied with books, both poetry and prose, even through college.

While this backgroud contributed to her love of words and she wrote verse as a youngster, Mrs. Kimzey never considered writing as a serious pursuit. When she attended Duke University, she earned a degree in sociology.

Today, in addition to being one of North Carolina's foremost contemporary poets, Mrs. Kimzey is special assistant in arts education for the N.C. Department of cultural Resources and is an instructor for N.C. State University's Writer's Workshop. For two years she was state coordinator for the Poetry in the Schools Program and has written book reviews for "The New York Times."

Asked why she channels her creative energies into poetry rather than prose fiction, she says, "I like to do a lot of thinking, mulling things through, talking about them...even dreaming...and I like to write these things down the easiest, quickest way, and that is poetry."

She wrote her early verses in longhand, then asked a friend to type them so that she could see how each poem looked. "The friend was typing these things 20 times," she recalls, smiling.

Because the appearance of a poem on the printed page — the visual form it takes — is complementary to its meaning, she decided she needed to master typing and taught herself. Seeing a poem typed "was the next best thing to seeing it in print."

She reads poetry as well as writes it "because I can get a quicker insight into something from a poem than I can from a whole book."

Poems have "a quicksilverness in the way words go together, the way insight suddenly comes upon you, the sudden realization that this has been said in such a way you wish you had written it," she says.

She now teaches the same workshop at N.C. State that opened up her career and conducts writing courses elsewhere, such as at the Washington public library this summer. Teaching writing is "one of my favorite, most uplifting things that I do," she says.

As far as she is concerned, all of her students are writers of some kind, whether they produce letters, technical information, or other material. "I see myself in them. People are either writers or they are not writers. The degree of success becomes a subdistinction. The main distinction is between the writer and the non writer."

But Mrs. Kimzey is also a realist. "I make it clear in my class how extremely difficult it is to be a good writer — how difficult it is to achieve success."

By her definition, modern poetry is "whatever anybody puts in front of me and says is a poem. You can tell by the form that it is a poem." Most of it does not rhyme and if it does, it may not rhyme all the time "and if it does, there is a reason." For example, humorous poems are often enhanced by rhyme.

"There are no objective criteria today," she adds.

Asked why the form has undergone such a transformation, she reflected that "The country is diverse; so is poetry. Our literature is going to be as diverse as our people. All will be under constant change."

But more than the form has changed. There are more poets, more poems, more styles and more magazines publishing them. "Poetry has become an inflated item in the past ten years," she says.

"I think the importance of poetry is that it exists as kind of a minor pricking of a conscience — first of all, that people can offer insight and wisdom in that few words." Futhermore, verse "is a tradition in every civilized country."

During the years that she was submitting poems for publication, Mrs. Kimzey never had a rejection.

She stopped devoting all her energies to writing it at the very time when her career was blooming.

That was two and a half years ago when she received an offer she couldn't refuse — her current position with the Cultural Resources Department.

She saw that job as an opportunity to work toward a goal that had previously been a dream. "The most important thing in the world to me was to get arts education to children any way that I could."

During the time that she was associated with the Poetry in the Schools program, which was administered by the State Department of Public Instruction, she had a glimpse of what exposure to the cultural arts could mean to a youngster who previously had been without it.

"Children respond to being creative so well and so enthusiastically that even in the week we were in a school, we could see it change their entire viewpoint," she says. She came away with a commitment to nurture the "whole child" thorugh the cultural arts as well as with the basics of education.

Because the nature of her public service work, most of Mrs. Kimzey's recent writing has been in the area of arts education. Her nonfiction book, "To Defend a Form" was based on her experiences with the Poetry in the Schools program. Now she is collecting material related to last spring's statewide "Arts and the Child" conference.

"I feel that what I am doing is important to the children of this state. I decided early on not to even worry about my personal writing career," she says.

The mother of three sons and wife of Raleigh attorney James M. Kimzey, she enters into her job the same way she writes poetry.

"When I am in something, I am totally immersed in it; I don't do anything else."

So, for the time being, the poet who wrote "Illusions of Water" is on the back burner. At her summer home on the Pamlico River, she reflected that the site there was 99 percent instrumental in her early writing. "I said that in the preface to my book. Growing up here and being here is important. A lot of my poems came from down here, but a lot of my poems from here seem to be over..."

Lately, her life has been centered more around people than about place.

LAND, OCRACOKE STYLE

All that spring the water slit a fine line across the road making things tedious as hell.
The Army engineers came, cavalry rescue for a dubious clientele, studied the problem so well it was spring again before they acted, built their bridge.

Come summer, the water dried up under the bridge, land shifted to make them all out damn fools even when they dredged out the sand to put water under the bridge again.

REFLECTION

I cried when we read Pooh.
My child understood,
And tonight sleeps with a long forsaken bear.

This boy — alien creature of dirt and rocks —
Understood.

My heart turns to see
The part of him that is me.

LEAVING

Fields where furrows lay straight in June black snakes in the sun are green now with vines and grass, waiting.
The corn is dry and rattling in sudden north wind that cuts through the drifting nights.
Tobacco is cut toward the smokey sky
one row at a time.
The morning fog lifts slower and water swells high, rocking the pier all the way to the end where I sit, beginning to feel the chill.

N.C. Gold, Old Paper Money In Museum Of History Exhibit

Text By Peggy Howe

North Carolina Department Of Cultural Resources

NORTH CAROLINA'S FIRST COIN . . . Actually a copper token issued in 1694 by the Lord Proprietors as a promotional device to lure settlers to the colonies, the token, though not legal money, was accepted in value as one-half penny. The same elephant design was used also on tokens issued by the Royal African Company and the British East India Company.

Gold! The cry still brings all kinds of excitement just as it did a century and a half ago when North Carolina was the scene of the first gold rush.

During the firt half of the 19th century, our own Tar Heel state was dubbed "the golden state" after young Conrad Reed found a 17-pound nugget while fishing in a creekbed on his father's Cabarrus County farm.

A new exhibity at the North Carolina Museum of History which opened September 26 tells the story of gold and the 300-year old history of money in North Carolina.

After the 1799 discovery of gold, farmers turned part-time prospectors scratched and dug their way across the farms of Piedmont North Carolina. Miners and engineers eventually arrived from around the world and gold became a major industry in the state — second only to agriculture. By 1830, 56 mines held charters to operate in the state.

Artisan Bechtler

About this time a German artisan named Christopher Bechtler and his family arrived in Rutherford County and began minting coins in the money-starved area. The wary miners, too often cheated by the numerous dishonest assayers and reluctant to take their precious gold to the nearest mint in Philadelphia — a long and dangerous journey away — welcomed the honest and talented Bechtlers

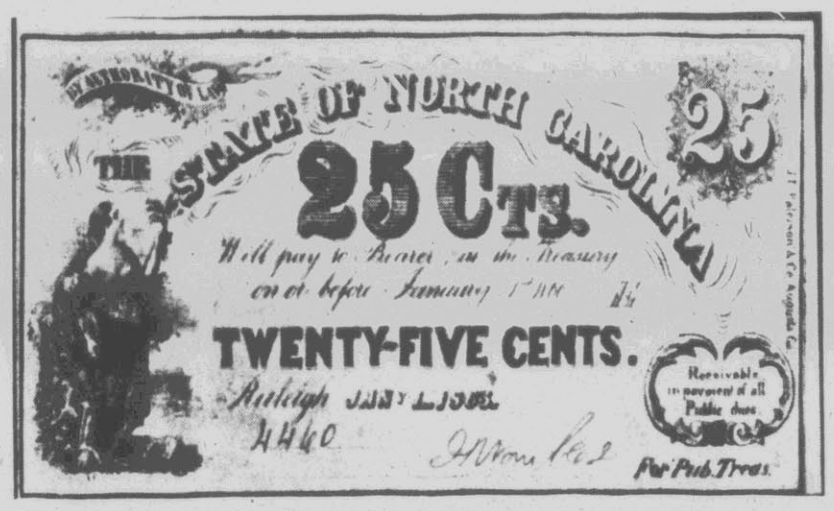
The Betchler mint became immediately successful as miners flocked to the mint to have the gold dust, ore and nuggets transformed into accurate and convenient gold pieces. Before its closing, the Bechtler Mint struck $3½ million in gold — at times surpassing the national mint's production of Carolina gold.

First U.S. Gold Dollar

Christopher Bechtler minted the first gold dollar struck in the United States, which took its place alongside the Bechtler $2½ and $5 gold pieces already in use. Examples of each are on display in the new exhibit in the Museum of History.

The simply designed Bechtler coins, bearing only denomination, content and maker's name, were less attractive than the more elaborate issues that arrived later from private and government sources, but everywhere Bechtler coins were prized more for their purity than for their beauty.

On exhibit are several examples of Bechtler coins and dies, part of the Museum of History collection. The exhibit's artifacts, photographs and graphics tell the unfolding story of gold in North Carolina, including the six-step coining process probably followed by the Bechtlers.



TWO EXAMPLES OF TAR HEEL PAPER MONEY . . . At top is a five dollar banknote of the Bank of Clarendon (Fayetteville) issued in 1854. The complexity of details of the fine engraving discouraged many would-be counterfeiters. The 25 cents paper coin shown below, issued in 1863, is reputed to have been part of the last Confederate payroll of the North Carolina Railroad. The payroll arrived in Raleigh just days before General Sherman occupied the capital on April 13, 1865.

WILLOWS IN THE MUD — A stand of native willows in rural Bertie County is endangered by lack of drainage that creates a consistent muddy ground surface. The disastrous effect can be seen in the already dead trees that have fallen, and in other trees still standing, but which have rotted from the excess of moisture. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Also Made Firearms

In 1842, at the death of Christopher Bechtler, Sr., leadership of the family's coining business passed to Augustus, his younger son. Augustus died a short time later, and Christopher Jr., a nephew, assumed control. He remained in Rutherford County until 1857, when he moved to South Carolina.

The exhibit contains examples of tools and items made by the Bechtlers, who often identified themselves in newspaper advertisements as "jewelers and watchmakers." They were also skilled makers of rifles and pistols noted for their accuracy and unusual designs. Few of their firearms survive.

With the California gold rush in 1849, gold mining in North Carolina began to decline, and by the turn of the century, mining gold was no longer profitable. Interested visitors, however, may still return to the golden days and pan for gold at Reed Gold Mine State Historic Site near Concord, scene of the 12-year old Conrad Reed's discovery in 1799.

N. C. Currency

Along with the exhibit of Bechtler coins, the 300-year history of money in North Carolina is traced in the exhibit "North Carolina Currency." Beginning with the elephant token issued by the Lord Proprietors in 1694, currency in North Carolina presents a varied history.

War with the Tuscorora prompted the first issue of paper money in 1712 — all handwritten, since there was no printer in the colony. In the years just prior to the Revolution, overissue and other abuses led to British legislation that forbade the colonies from issuing money. Both before and during the war, counterfeiting was rampant despite severe penalties. During the Revolutionary War widely fluctuating values gave use to the well-known slogan "not worth a continental."

Visitors to the exhibit may see genuine bills compared to counterfeits that circulated in the state during this period.

Recycled Money

Prior to the Civil War, banks, and sometimes towns, businesses and even schools issued money. Then, as now, recycling was patriotic as the wartime paper scarcity resulted in much of North Carolina's money being printed on old banknotes, bonds and on the backs of canceled state issues. Some of these are on display.

In addition to the examples of monies, artifacts and graphics used in North Carolina through the more than 300 years of money history, the new exhibit calls attention to the romance of paper money, including the portrayal of women as goddesses representing purity, liberty, and plenty, and slaves as blissful workers and parents.

In addition an outline of the growth of the Federal Reserve system details for museum visitors the structure of today's banking system, and the vast network of various forms of exchange at work in the 1980s economy.

"N. C. Curreny" will be on display through May, 1981. The N. C. Museum of History is located at 109 East Jones Street in Raleigh, and is open from 9 to 5 Tuesdays through Saturdays, and from 1 to 6 on Sundays. Admission is free.

PLAN YOUR HOME

The Mardale

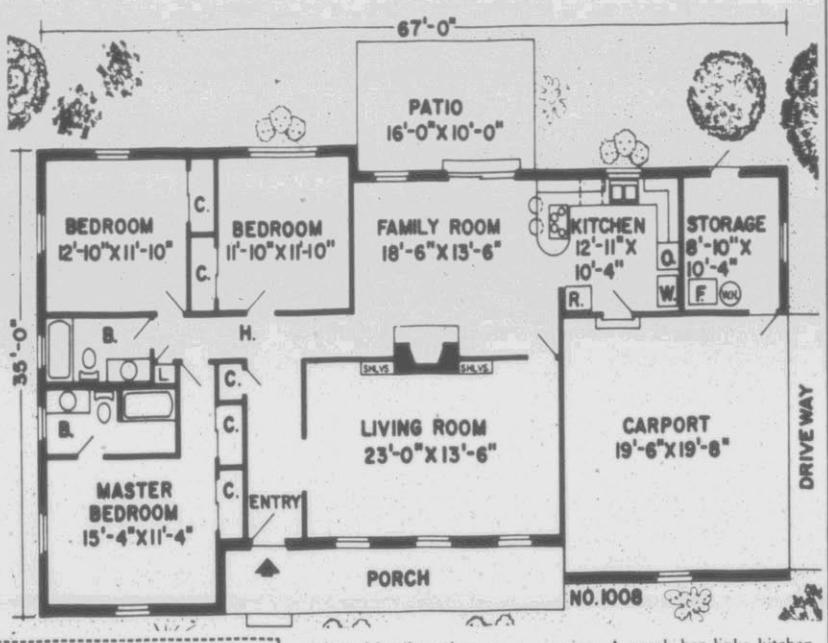
Ranch Plan Accommodating, Accessible

By Jerry Bishop

To achieve a free flow of space without chaotic crosstraffic requires careful design considerations, and this three bedroom ranch plan uses foyer, hallway, and well-located living areas to that end.

The Mardale maximizes efficiency to tuck three comfortable bedrooms, two baths, family room, and copious closet space into its moderate area of 1510 square feet. At the same time, it succeeds as a cost-cutting design and opts for carport and storage area instead of garage and basement.

On the exterior, the plan chooses low-maintenance materials and a traditional motif. Brick siding, shuttered windows and a columned porch merge with gable roof for an inviting effect. Inside, the no-nonsense floor plan shows little wasted space and an arrangement that caters to the comfort of family and guests.



The foyer is edged by coat closet a left and formal living room at right. To increase livability, the living room is not completely isolated from the rest of the plan and shows access to the family-kitchen area for easy entertaining.

At the end of the entry hall is the spacious family room. Sliding glass doors join family room and patio and guarantee natural light, and the fireplace at the opposite end of the room assure a cozy atmosphere for evening gatherings.

Open to the family room is the kitchen, perhaps the most effectively planned room in this design. A snack bar links kitchen and family room, and a doorway leads directly to the carport for easy access to car and groceries.

The foyer refuses to save space by shaving bedroom dimensions, and as a result, none of the three bedrooms measures less than 11 by 11. The master bedroom enjoys a full bath and double closets, and a second bath serves the remaining bedrooms.

Area Rugs Are Available In A Variety Of Choices

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

One of the strengths of the American home-furnishings market is its ability to support a variety of choices in each product category.

Nowhere is this variety more evident than in area rugs. The types, patterns and textures of area rugs are quite numerous nowadays, encompassing all the traditional rug forms and enlarging on them with many contemporary designs.

The modern design revolution which emphasizes accessories in decorating schemes is one reason for the growth of choice. Another reason is that area rugs solve so many decorating problems. They are excellent for a large room that needs breaking up, a boring room that wants perking up or a room with good wood floors.

Even if there is wall-to-wall carpeting, an area rug may still be useful in bringing vitality to a room. Designers often use area rugs to define parts of a large room and to serve as traffic directors, such as when the dining area is in part of the living room. An area rug can visually correct a room's proportions. Two area rugs, for example, can appear to shorten a room that is too long.

Area rugs can provide splashes of color on a neutral floor. If more than one such rug in a room is used, it is not necessary to use the same pattern. Different kinds of rugs that relate to one another in color and feeling can be used together without clashing.

The kind of area rug to choose is largely a matter of personal preference and budget. Among the basic varieties to be seen in floor-covering departments and specialty stores are Orientals, dhurries and kilims, needlepoint rugs, contemporary rugs, folk-art rugs and fur rugs.

Orientals are said to be the most popular type of area rug. They come in hundreds of patterns, styles and colors and fit well into modern and period as well as formal and informal rooms. An added advantage is that Orientals tend to appreciate in value. This is especially true of fine-quality, imported rugs, but even domestic versions of the great patterns have been known to increase in value over the years. Imported Oriental area rugs are coming to the United States from China, India, Pakistan, Iran and other Far Eastern countries as well as from Belgium and England.

Dhurrie rugs were handmade in India, while kilims originated in Asia Minor. But, today, these flat weave rugs can come from other places as well. Both types come in a variety of patterns and colors and work well in both contemporary and country-style rooms.

Needlepoint rugs originated in Portugal but come from Japan and Hong Kong also. An advantage to needlepoint rugs is that they are usually handmade and, therefore, can be made to order with almost any motif.

Folk rugs are examples of folk art extended to rugs. Countries of origin for folk-art rugs found in the United States include Poland, Romania, Mexico, Peru, Finland, Norway and Denmark. American Indian rugs also are part of the folk art tradition.

Fur rugs were all the rage about 10 years ago. Then their popularity diminished. However, according to rug retailers, there are signs fur rugs may be making a comeback. Prices are high, roughly similar to what the fur might cost in a coat made with the same quantity of fur.

Contemporary rugs run the gamut from expensive, custom-made works of art to inexpensive, bright, abstract prints in synthetic fibers. Among various contemporary rugs that are popular are berbers, flokati rugs, and rya rugs. Berber is really a type of heavy, natural wool which, when made into a rug, is usually ridged and in a neutral tone. Berbers are used mainly in modern interiors, sometimes as an area rug and sometimes as wall-to-wall carpeting. Berbers are expensive, since they are wool, but the berber look is now being imitated in synthetic, usually acrylic, fiber.

Rya rugs from Scandinavia are bright and colorful, usually in abstract designs. And flokati rugs from Greece are made of shaggy sheep wool in neutral colors like white, gray and black.

All these types of rugs are available in a wide range of prices. Shop before buying at a variety of floor-covering outlets to get an idea of prices, tastes and availability.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have read several times about taking out white spots on furniture, but never about black spots. One of them is in the center of our living room coffee table and I cannot seem to get it out no matter what I use. Unfortunately, I do not know what caused the spot, which is the question a hardware man asked me when I sought his advice. Anyway, what he sold me did not work. Any ideas?

A. — Only that it seems you will have to remove the entire finish. If the blackness still remains, use a commercial bleach, the kind you buy in hardware and paint stores. Apply the bleach over the entire table top so that whatever refinishing material you use will "take" uniformly. Read the remover container's label carefully to be sure that you rinse the surface in the recommended manner after the bleaching is completed.

Q. — Somehow one of the wire strainers on a gutter outlet became dislodged. Now the rain does not go into the downspout and spills over the gutter down the side of the house. I tried flushing the downspout with a hose, but no water comes through. Can you suggest a solution?

A. — Try using an auger or plumber's snake of the kind used for clearing out obstructions in drains. If you don't have one long enough and don't wish to buy it for a single job, attach something like auto-tire chains to a long rope and dangle it up and down in the downspout. Once the leaves or other debris have been loosened, use a hose, turning on the water full force.

Q. — You told somebody about the graduated-payment mortgage, but did not give enough details. I understood the part about mortgage payments rising gradually for a set period of years and then leveling off, but how fast is the increase and how long before the payments level off?

A. — There are five basic graduated-payment mortgages which vary the rate of monthly payment increases (from 2 to 7½ percent) and the number of years over which the payments increase (5 or 10 years). The greater the rate of increase or the longer the period of increase, the lower the mortgage payments in the early years. After a period of 5 or 10 years, depending on which plan is selected, the payments level off and stay at that level for the remainder of the loan. Remember that graduated-mortgage payments increase every year, not every month.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A frequently asked question is whether remodeling a house will prove to be a good investment.

The answer is: "Yes, most of the time."

If, however, the primary purpose of remodeling is to make money, then you are on the wrong track unless you are in the business of remodeling old houses and selling them at once at a profit.

A house should be remodeled so it looks better or provides more comfort, either or both of which improve the quality of life. When the appearance of something is pleasing to the eye, it furnishes the onlooker with an emotional lift. When it is larger and works better, it fulfills a need.

Sure, we all want to get back all or a part of the money we spent for a home improvement. Whether we do or not depends on what the improvement is, what the housing market is at the time we sell and, very important, whether we have overimproved the house for the type of neighborhood.

A remodeled kitchen not only adds to the value of a house, but is a great asset at selling time. An improvement that adds habitable space or working ease returns more of its original cost than one which adds only eye appeal. If houses aren't selling when you put your residence on the market, you are not likely to get additional money because of the improvement, although you might sell it a bit faster.

As for the overimprovement issue, it works this way. If the market value of most of the houses in your neighborhood is between $50,000 and $75,000, you are not likely to get $100,000 for your home because you added some features the other houses did not have. That's because people who decide on a $100,000 house will usually look in a neighborhood where there are dwellings in that price area, so they are not likely to see your house in the first place. Many house seekers will pay more for less house in a neighborhood they feel is right for them, whereas they will generally not pay more for an extra good house in an area where the price level is lower.

The feeling is that there is more prestige in living in a good neighborhood than living in a good house. It's the reason why companies will sometimes pay a high rental for business quarters with a prestigious address even though they could have obtained more space at the same rental somewhere else.

When your house is to be remodeled, consider what contribution it will make to your day-to-day living standards, rather than what return it may bring at some later, undefined date.

Whatever your project, consider the addition of extra insulation and other materials and equipment that will cut heating and cooling costs. Such installations are sometimes cheaper if done while the remodeling is in progress.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find more valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Early Notice Is Advisable

NEW YORK (UPI) — It is important to notify your home insurance carrier promptly in the event of a fire in your home, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

The Institute reminds that delay in reporting will only cause delay in settling your claim and you also may be given valuable advice on how to minimize further damage and receive help in finding temporary living quarters, if necessary.

Other steps to be taken by homeowners: protect your property from further damage by arranging for reasonable and necessary repairs; keep an accurate record of repair expenditures, including such items as a patch on the roof, boarding up windows, and electrical or plumbing services; check your loss against your inventory, which should be on file with your insurance representative or in a safe deposit box.

You must submit, within 60 days of being requested to do so, a signed, sworn statement of loss.

One Seawall Survived Storm

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Hundreds of feet of beach were eroded, streets washed away and beachfront houses were damaged when Hurricane David struck here last year, but one seawall, protecting a condominium development, remained in excellent condition after the 15-foot waves.

"The base of the barrier hardly shifted, which is the key to a strong seawall," said Robert Waldron, the condominium builder.

The 300-foot-long, 12-foot-high seawall was constructed of riprap, irregularly-sized granite stones, reinforced by a water-permeable fabric which was used to cover the sand.

The fabric keeps sand from "pumping up" into the stones and allows water to drain down without blockage so that the stones are held in position, Waldron explained

See Increased Home Insulation

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (UPI) — A large public utilities corporation reports sharply increased use of home insulation and other means by its customers to save on the expense of heating homes.

The General Public Utilities Corp. said a survey of its 1.3 million residential customers in New Jersey and Pennsylvania revealed that about half of them now have at least six inches of insulation in the attics of their homes and that 90 percent have storm windows or double-pane glass.

In both cases, the percentage is much higher for homes constructed during the past two years, according to Veronica A. Gearhart, the company's economics analyst.

Among the owners of older homes homes, nearly one-fourth replied that they added insulation during the past two years and one-third said they added storm windows.

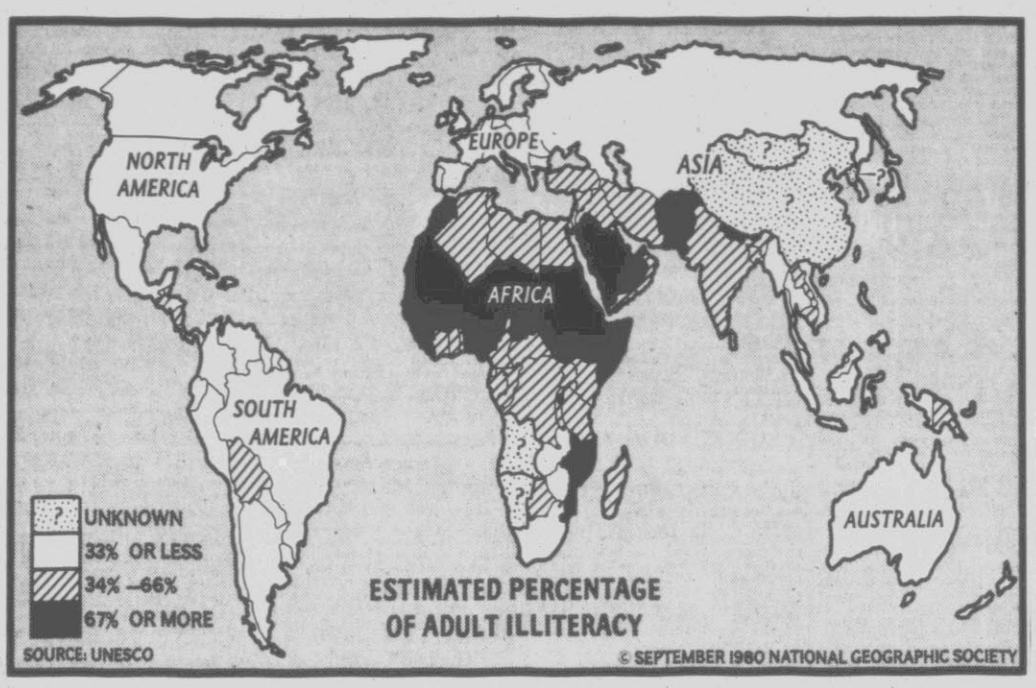
One-Third Of The World Cannot Read Or Write



ILLITERACY is concentrated on two continents – Africa and Asia – according to UNESCO. The only African countries believed to have 33 percent or less illiteracy are Zambia, Zimbabwe, and South Africa. Figures are not available for Angola and Namibia (indicated by question marks). In Asia, illiteracy is highest in Pakistan, Afghanistan, Nepal, and on the Arabian Peninsula. Figures for North Korea, Mongolia, and China are not known, although China claims to have reduced illiteracy to 15 percent. In South America, only Bolivia has a rate higher than 33 percent.

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic News Service

NEW YORK — Almost one-third of the people in the world - 814 million - don't know how to read or write, according to UNESCO estimates.

That includes two-thirds of the people in Africa and a third of those in Asia, excluding the Soviet Union.

In at least 10 African countries and four Arab states, the estimated illiteracy rate surpasses 80 percent. In numbers of illiterates, the top ten nations are India, Indonesia, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Nigeria, Brazil, Ethiopia, Egypt, Iran and Afghanistan. Each has at least 10 million.

Pupil Explosion

Population booms in some countries are wiping out gains in the classroom. Literacy campaigns in India, for example, have not kept up with the numbers of people needing instruction. By the year 2000, India is expected to have half of the world's illiterates.

In most parts of the world, women illiterates outnumber the men. Female illiteracy in Africa and the Arab states, where women have less access to schools, is about 85 percent. In Yemen, on the Arabian peninsula, 99.5 percent of the women can't read or write.

According to projections by UNESCO, there will be 884 million illiterates worldwide by 1990 — a rise of 70 million in a decade. But the prediction is not as grim as it sounds: The percentage of illiterates is falling.

Increasing school enrollments have gradually educated larger proportions of the population so that the estimated number of literates is rising faster than the number of illiterates. The projected 884 million will represent only about 26 percent of the world population, down from a current rate of about 29 percent.

And there are other bright notes. The governments of Cuba and Tanzania, for example, claim their literacy drives have turned predominantly illiterate societies into more literate ones.

Although some who are burdened with the task of eradicating illiteracy might pat themselves on the backs over the successes, others caution that literacy figures, especially predictions, are suspect.

Rosy Statistics

"You have to take those projections with an enormous pinch of salt", warned Dr. Kenneth King of the International Development Research Centre in Canada, which funds research on world problems including illiteracy.

"For one thing, the figures assume that attending school ensures literacy. We know a lot about how many kids start grade one, but less about who attends grade four, and even less of what the kids know later."

Governments taking literacy surveys often rely on the individual's word about his reading abilities. So literacy figures can represent mere guesses, sometimes inflated to boost a nation's image. Actual illiteracy, some authorities say, is more widespread than statistics show.

"Some countries have confessed illiteracy rates that are extraordinarily high, so the actual figures must be really extreme". King said.

The biggest problem in gauging world literacy is that no one is sure exactly what it is. As a UNESCO publication mused: "No one is completely literate, although some persons are more literate than others."

In the early 1950s, as world attention first turned to illiteracy, UNESCO, the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization, drew up this definition: "A person is literate who can with understanding both read and write a short, simple statement on his everyday life." But, as has been pointed out since then, does such a test mean anything in an advanced society such as the United States?

"You go into the South Bronx or Brooklyn and find people who can perform better than literates in the Third World, but it's worthless because they can't get a job without a high school education," said Carman St. John Hunter, co-author of "Adult Illiteracy in the United States."

The United States' official literacy rate is 99 percent. Yet the actual number of illiterates is not known, according to Paul Delker, director of Adult Education in the U.S. Department of Education. Besides uncounted illegal aliens, there is an unknown number of high school graduates who have diplomas but not the ability to read a job ablication.

Functional Incompetents

A university of Texas study has found 20 percent of American adults to be "functionally incompetent" — lacking the skills to perform such a basic task as writing a note to their child's teacher.

Illiteracy, in the United States is proportionately highest in the South and, predictably, among minorities, the poor, and the elderly. Private organizations and the government spend millions of dollars every year on the problem, but probably attract only a small fraction of the illiterates, some of whom are financially successful and keep their illiteracy closeted.

For Harry Harper, a 34-year-old sheet metal worker who grew up in NewYork City, the inability to read became an intolerable frustration. Now he takes an elevator twice a week to the top of a Manhattan skyscraper for free reading lessons offered by the Literacy Volunteers of America.

He hopes to pick up what he missed before dropping out of school in the seventh grade, blaming "the system" for failing to teach him the basics.

"I felt left out of a lot of things," Harper said. "I want to read some good books, like American history and mystery stories."

Teaching the rest of the world to read is a more complicated prospect. UNESCO tried it from 1967 to 1973 in a campaign that encompassed 11 nations. Its aims — to demonstrate the economic and social values of literacy and to pave the way for a larger world literacy effort — were only partly met.

"Neither literacy nor development can be willed into existgence by international agencies," a UNESCO report later concluded. "At best they can perhaps prick the conscience of national governments."

Illiteracy Relapse

The progrm did spawn literacy campaigns by the governments of Algeria, India, Mali and Tanzania. But it was plagued by problems such as high dropout rates, and in at least one Asian country the majority of pupils finishing four years of primary education were illiterate again within three years.

UNESCO learned that literacy is not merely an educational issue but also a psychological, cultural, sociological, and economic one. And the program raised the chicken-and-egg question: Which comes first, literacy, or economic development?

"Many nations believe literacy is the key to development, and this is probably false," author Hunter said. "If you learn to read but there's nowhere to use your skills, it does little good. The highest levels of literacy have come about in countries already on their way to industrial development."

Mrs. Hunter is a technical specialist for World Education, a New York-based organization that is changing its approach to spreading literacy.

"The priority of World Education used to be straight literacy, but we found that it wasn't the learner's priority," a staff member explained.

Now the organization promotes community development with projects such as one in a town in Kenya, where women have organized a bakery to raise money. The project led to the women's desirfe to improve sanitation facilities in the town and now many have asked for literacy classes.

Tight Budgets

Economic and social realilties are holding back progress in much of the Third World. Developed countries spend far more per inhabitant on education than developing countries do. About half of the school-age children in Africa and Asia do not go to school.

A high percentage of those are girls, a situation that concerns economists. "Of all the disparities, none is of greater hindrance to development than that based on sex," a World Bank policy paper states. Studies have shown that women with even marginal reading skills take better care of infants and practice birth control more effectively.

Third World literacy efforts suffer from other problems. In Senegal, in western Africa, literacy programs must be carried out in six languages — Wolof, Serer, Peul, Diula, Mandingo, and Soninke. In Somalia, on the eastern African coast, roads had to be built in rural areas before literacy classes could begin, and teachers battled rough living conditions as well as prejudice among their nomadic pupils. Severe drought finally curtailed the effort.

There have been some well-advertised successes, many in socialist nations where a literacy class can come with a dose of ideology.

UNESCO figures are not available, but China claims to have reduced illiteracy from 85 percent to 15 percent since 1949, intertwining the program with language reform and destruction of class barriers. The Soviet Union asserts it eliminated most illiteracy before World War II. In Cuba Castro sent brigades of young teachers out to eradicate illiteracy in 1961. They apparently came close.

Pockets of illiteracy persist in the Caribbean, notably Haiti, where an estimated 71 percent of the people can't read or write.

Some Latin American countries have used the methods of Paulo Freire, a Brazilian educator who has advocated literacy as a tool to help the poor improve their lives. Under his method, students might discuss building with bricks, the construction of their houses, and housing as a community problem before the written word for brick is ever introduced.

COLD LOCATION

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Plastic pipe will help supply energy here next year in one of the coldest locations in the world.

The pipe had to withstand temperatures down to minus 40 F so it could be used to replace steel pipelines for the gas-distribution system serving 600 customers.

This city is located at the northern tip of Alaska, more than 300 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Listed 100 U.S. Bests

BOSTON (AP) — After six years of cross-country trips, C. Paul Luongo has come up with a list of America's best bets, not only from soup to nuts but also from roller rinks to hot-air balloons.

His "America's Best! 100" includes the best steak (at Murray's in Minneapolis), potato chips (Maui Potato Chip Company, Hawaii) canoes (Touring Canoe, from L.L. Bean, Freeport, Maine) and even hotel butlers (Hyatt on Union Square, San Francisco).

"The most heat, by far, came from my choice of pizza (The European Restaurant, Boston)," says Luongo.

"People in Alabama say they have the best. Someone in Nebraska — I didn't even know they had Italian food there — insists the best is at Valentino's in Lincoln. Woody Allen says John's Pizza in Greenwich Village....The list could go on forever. Obviously, I couldn't eat at every pizzeria in the United States or I would gain 40 pounds."

The best sources for suggestions on the best things? U.S. Senators, Luongo says. "They're so eager to boost their state, and about half of them responded to our questions.

He said Maine Sen. Edmund Muskie, now secretary of state, "listed about eight things — everything from L.L. Bean and toothpick manufacturers to his choice of the prettiest sunset."

Luongo's best fried chicken was from Popeye's Famous Fried Chicken, Jefferson, La.; outdoor roller skates, RC Sports, Inc., Olathe, Kan.; and hot-air balloon festival, Albuquerque International Balloon Fiesta, Inc., New Mexico.

The best department store, Marshall Field & Co., in Chicago has offered a Luongo-guided tour of all 100 goods and services listed in the book as a Christmas present this winter. The "best" price: $250,000.

PENNYPINCHERS — Bob Stewart, president of Engineered Custom Plastics in Easley, S.C. dips his hand into a box of Pennypinchers, a plastic coin clip designed to replace paper wrappers. The company bought U.S. marketing rights to the item designed by a Canadian inventor. (AP Laserphoto)

Yes, if you are looking for a home or if you are selling your home, our team of nine real estate people will work hard for you. We are interested in finding you the right home in the right place with the right financing. We will work with you until we find you that home, whether it is today, tomorrow, next week, next month or next year. We want you in the right home because we want you to be happy.

If you are selling your home, our company specializes in residential sales new or old, in all price classes. Our entire staff, advertising program, personal contacts, referral system will be geared to the selling of your home. We are open Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons to provide our buyers and sellers with better service.

Additionally, we are members of the largest not-for-profit referral service in the world. That means that we are experts in relocation and that over 1000 real estate firms in the U.S. and overseas will send us the names of people coming to Greenville and looking for a home. We are experts in relocation.

We are a full service real estate agency specializing in residential properties in all price classes, rentals, commercial properties and investment properties. We provide a full range of important real estate services.

In summary, we believe in service, professionalism; integrity and basic old time Eastern North Carolina friendliness. Never any pressure, just lots of help, because we never forget, that we work for YOU!

A Saga Of The Old South Comes To NBC-TV

The saga of a great southern plantation and the women who loved the land more than any man is dramatized in "Beulah Land," premiering on NBC-TV Tuesday, Oct. 7 (8 to 10 p.m.). The six-hour miniseries continues Wednesday and Thursday, (9 to 11 p.m. both nights).

The story covering a period of 45 years (1827-1872), centers around the Kendrick family, owners of Beulah Land, and those connected to the plantation by history. The Kendricks are linked with the Davis clan — owners of a neighboring plantation — their slaves and those who resent the Kendricks' power. It follows Beulah Land from the heights of splendor through destruction during the Civil War and its rebuilding in the reconstruction period.

Lesley Ann Warren stars as the indomitable mistress of the plantation who is both admired and reviled. Co-starring are Michael Sarrazin, Meredith Baxter Birney, Eddie Albert, Hope Lange, Dorian Harewood, Paul Rudd, Paul Shaner, Martha Scott, Allyn Ann McLerie, Jenny Agutter and Don Johnson. The cast also includes Clarice Taylor, Robert Walker Jr., Bibi Osterwald, Laurie Prange, Franklyn Seales, Ruth Cox, Taylor Lacher, Jean Renne Foster and Madeline Stowe.

As the drama begins, Beulah Land is being ruled by the stern hand of Deborah Kendrick (Lange), a widow with a son, Leon (Rudd), and a daughter Selma (Stowe), when two young sisters, Sarah and Lauretta (Warren and Birney) first visit the plantation with their guardian, Penelope (Scott).

Sarah agrees to marry Leon but Lauretta, a flirt with an eye for adventure, elopes with an actor for a life on the stage.

From the beginning, Sarah's real love and Leon's rival is the land itself. Then, when Deborah dies, Sarah, a strong-willed woman, takes over the running of Beulah Land with the aid of Floyd (Harewood), son of slaves and the plantation's overseer.

As the years pass, Leon seeks affection from other women and Sarah becomes more tightly woven into the land. Only one man, an artist named Casey Troy (Sarrazin), tempts her to forget her obsession. The start of the Civil War and the arrival of Sherman's troops shatter the life at Beulah Land, but Sarah vows to rebuild the plantation from its own ashes.

A HAPPY DAY — Paul Rudd and Lesley Ann Warren star as two young people who marry and undertake the responsibility of managing a huge plantation in the ante-bellum South, in "Beulah Land," an epic miniseries airing Tuesday, Oct. 7 (8-10 p.m.), Wednesday, Oct. 8 and Thursday, Oct. 9 (9-11 p.m. both nights) on NBC-TV.

ANNETTE FUNICELLO, who is seen as she is today, made her motion picture debut in "The Shaggy Dog," which concludes on "Disney's Wonderful World," Sunday, Oct. 5 (7-8 p.m. both nights) on NBC-TV.

Annette 'Would Not Wait'

Annette Funicello says the years she spent working for Disney were some of the happiest of her life. "Every day was better than the one before."

Born in Utica, the former Mouseketeer moved to Los Angeles with her parents when she was four, and shortly thereafter began taking dancing lessons. Some years later, Walt Disney spotted her performing ballet at Burbank's Starlite Bowl and invited her to audition for "The Mickey Mouse Club."

In addition to her Mouseketeer role, she appeared in the "Spin and Marty" series, which led to parts in "Zorro," "Babes in Toyland," "The Misadventures of Merlin Jones" and "The Monkey's Uncle." Another hit film was a delightful canine comedy, "The Shaggy Dog," concluding on Disney's Wonderful World Sunday, Oct. 5 (7 to 8 p.m.), on NBC-TV.

Troubles Lurk In Ocean

Three men fight for their lives and try to save a town from the awesome power of a terrifying 25-foot, three-ton killer in "Jaws," returning to TV as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Oct. 5 (8 to 10:45 p.m.). The box office hit is based on Peter Benchley's runaway best-seller of the same name.

Roy Scheider stars as Brody, the police chief of a small island where the money spent by summer tourists supports the local residents all year long. Robert Shaw plays a sea captain named Quint who has seen the face of death and lived, while Richard Dreyfuss is Hooper, the young expert whose science is crushed and swept away by the raw might of the shark.

Another summer season is just beginning in the picturesque East Coast beach resort when sudden terror strikes — a teenage girl, swimming in the middle of the night, is attacked and torn apart by a shark. The town elders try to deny the presence of the shark; a presence that would frighten away visitors and bankrupt the island. But other deaths follow, and the shark cannot be denied.

It can only be killed — and even that is an almost impossible task.

Motivated by a sense of desperation, Brody, Quint and Hooper board an initially sturdy ship to do battle with the monstrous eating-machine. Their attempts bring the terrifying situation to a smashing climax as the shark becomes too close for comfort and begins systematically destroying their vessel.

The graphic results of the shark's rapacious appetite are spine-tingling. But even more effective than an occasional limb floating by is the sudden and utter psychological shock at moments of complacency. "Jaws" moves from beginning to end with the pace and exhilarating gear of a roller-coaster ride.

The film a 1975 release directed by Steven Spielberg, attracted massive — and terrified — audiences throughout the nation. It even inspired critic Judith Crist to say it "provides us with chills enough for the hottest of summers and hydrophobia (salt-water division) for life."

A KILLER SHARK in the waters of a resort area draws three brave — or foolhardy — men into a hunt that could mean their lives when Roy Scheider, Robert Shaw and Richard Dreyfuss (l to r) star in "Jaws," airing as the Sunday Night Movie, Oct. 5 (8-10:45 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

The Bad Guys!

Telly Savalas, who's cast as a convict in the four-hour TV film "Alcatraz and Clarence Carnes," won his first Oscar nomination back in 1962 when he co-starred as a convict in "The Birdman of Alcatraz."

Asked if playing the parts of convicts made him more sympathetic to criminals, Savalas laughed and replied, "No. It's just a role. The bad guys get what they deserve."

Pair Wins $$$$$

Dick Martin and Dan Rowan were awarded $4,625,000 in their lawsuit against George Schlatter and George Schlatter Prods. in the Compton branch of the Los Angeles Superior Court. The trial lasted six weeks.

The two contended that Schlatter used the old format of "Laugh In" without their permission when he produced the new series which aired in 1977-78.

One of the reasons for the action was the slander of the title in a statement Schlatter made to the press. He admitted under oath that he 'planted' an article in a Hollywood trade paper stating that he owned the original "Laugh In."

The award included $750,000 punitive damages.

JACK WARDEN and Anne Jackson portray the roles of Cornelius and Kathryn Morgan Ryan in "A Private Battle," a special airing Tuesday, Oct. 7 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Who was the little girl who played Tabitha on "Bewitched"? Was she the same one who played the part throughout the years? C. HOLLOWELL, STEDMAN, N.C.

A: Erin and Diane Murphy were the identical twins who took turns before the cameras as Tabitha. They were two years old when the series began, and literally grew from toddlers to adolescents on the show (it aired from 1964-1972).

Q: My mom is in love with John Davidson. I'd like to know if he is still separated from his wife. How do I write to him? A. NEWHOFF, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: You'll be happy to know that the genial guy is still at 'outs' with his wife. Write to him c/o "That's Incredible!" ABC-TV, 4151 Prospect Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90027. P.S. — If your mom's a bit on the 'feisty' side, I'd not let her read this!!

Q: Is the little lady who played the grandmother on "The Waltons" still alive? J. NEWBERRY, MT. OLIVE, N.C.

A: Beloved actress Ellen Corby is alive, but still suffering from the effects of a stroke. She makes brief appearances on the series whenever her health permits her to do so.

Q: Please tell me something about Donna Dixon, who's a cast member of the new series called "Bosom Buddies." F. POWELL, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: Donna is a native of Alexandria, Va., who was attending Mary Washington University when her dad talked her into entering the Miss Virginia U.S.A. pageant. From there, of course, she went on to the Miss Universe festivites. Then she entered — and won — the Miss Washington D.C. pageant, which took her to the Miss World event. After all the accompanying 'hoopla,' Donna lived for a year in a remote Indian village in Columbia, S.C. with the Parador Indian tribe, where she studied anthropology.

Battle For Bonus

Going into the second leg (11 races) of the NASCAR Winston Cup season, only 32 points separated four drivers in the battle for the $10,000 bonus that goes to the individual who garners the most points. Dale Earnhardt held a slim, two-point edge over Cale Yarborough, while Benny Parsons trailed Earnhardt by 23. In the fourth spot was Richard Petty, who was nine points behind Parsons.

Galaxie Music!!

"Music From the Galaxies," a compilation of musical highlights from several space films — "Star Wars," "Star Trek," "Superman," "Battlestar Galactica," "Meteor," "Alien" and "The Black Hole" — has just been released by CBS Mastersound.

Music from these films was digitally recorded with the London Symphony Orchestra.

Acts Like Tourist

Anne Lockhart, the fourth generation of her family to embrace acting, says she grew up "In, but not of, Hollywood. I attended my first Hollywood party at 22, and walked around like a tourist from Idaho."

Pair Wins $$$$$

Dick Martin and Dan Rowan were awarded $4,625,000 in their lawsuit against George Schlatter and George Schlatter Prods. in the Compton branch of the Los Angeles Superior Court. The trial lasted six weeks.

The two contended that Schlatter used the old format of "Laugh In" without their permission when he produced the new series which aired in 1977-78.

One of the reasons for the action was the slander of the title in a statement Schlatter made to the press. He admitted under oath that he 'planted' an article in a Hollywood trade paper stating that he owned the original "Laugh In."

The award included $750,000 punitive damages.

Show Is Barbour's Friend

"Our show is a friend," says John Barbour, "and the hosts are all real people to the television viewers.

"We do the show with taste, intelligence, humor and humanity, and right there is why the public has taken our show into their homes and given us the responses we've had."

Barbour is a co-host along with Sarah Purcell, Skip Stephenson and Byron Allen of "Real People" (Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV). He's also the show's co-producer.

"There have been many attempts to copy our show," Barbour continues, "but look at '60 Minutes.' There were copies there yet the original survived. And we are surviving. What we keep learning is how much aware and wonderful people really are. When we go into a city, all status barriers are broken, from street-cleaners to superior court judges."

Some of the series' segments continue to snowball. "Look at Carol Johnson," Barbour continues. "She is the one-armed gymnast. We did her story earlier this year. A young boy saw it and wrote to Carol. He had lost an arm and damaged another. Carol visited him and we filmed it. We'll show that sequence on a show soon. And Carol starred in the Disney film 'Lefty' — such positiveness to come from our initial airing."

Barbour says he and the rest of the staff present eccentrics "with affection." There are no more heroes anymore, he continues, "and more and more people want to be in charge of their own lives. They are their own heroes.

"Look at our Black Air Force reunion and our gathering of POWs at a convention in Las Vegas — this is human interest at its height!"

Barbour is usually attired in a three-piece vested suit when he is seen on "Real People."

"Recently," he says, "I went to Hawaii for a vacation and as long as I walked around in shorts and a t-shirt, no one stopped me. But the first time I put on the suit to do a piece for the show, then they knew who I was. So much for the power and identification of television."

'Grandma' Play

Bob Banner Associates is developing a play about Grandma Moses, which will be a Broadway production before becoming a TV movie.

This is basically what Banner did with "My Sweet Charlie," which was first performed on stage, then went on to become an Emmy award-winning TV special.

The new show is tentatively titled "American Primitive, an Evening With Grandma Moses."

Brett: Now For Second Goal

"In the past, the (Kansas City) Royals have always played good, exciting baseball with a lot of desire and hustle...and I expect us to continue with that type of play. We have some of the top players in the league and if enough of them have good years, everything else will fall into place. We believe we will be a good offensive club again in 1980 because of a good combination of hitting and speed."

Those were the words of Kansas City manager Jim Frey before the current Major League Baseball season began, and now that its time again for the two league championship series, no one can deny he spoke the truth.

Not only does Frey's team include some of the better hitters and hustlers in the majors, it probably has the best in those departments — George Brett and Willie Wilson, respectively.

The Royals, by far the best team in baseball going into the post-season playoffs, clinched the AL West division handily, while the other three divisions were still witnessing real shootouts.

The league championship series, which began on Tuesday, continue today (Oct. 10) with the NL East pennant winner meeting the West division champ in the afternoon (2:30 p.m.), and the Royals visiting the AL East winner in the evening (8 p.m.). These are the third games in each league's best-of-five series. If necessary, the series will continue on Saturday and Sunday.

Brett, as of the third week in September, was topping all major league players with a .400 batting average, and if he holds on tothat statistic, he will become the first player to hit that well in 39 years. Boston's Ted Williams was the last one to accomplish that feat when he finished at a .406 clip in 1941. Since the turn of the century, a total of eight players have batted .400 or better a total of 13 times. Detroit's Ty Cobb hit over .400 three times (1911, 1912 and 1922), as did Rogers Horsby for St. Louis (1922, 1924 and 1925).

Brett's first goal was to help his team make the playoffs, his second goal is to help the Royals win the World Series. Brett would naturally also like to attain the .400 level, but that will come second handedly to his other goals because, to him, winning as a team is more important than personal statistics.

In order for a hitter to win the batting championship in his league, a total of 502 plate appearances are required. Through Sept. 9, he was still 55 appearances short. However, if Brett does not go to the plate 502 times this season, he may still win the title under a special rule already on the books.

Speedster Willie Wilson is another Royal who has been making things happen for his club. Last year, in his second full season in the majors, he established himself among the game's most exciting players with a brilliant all-around showing. His forte is stealing bases, and he led the circuit in that department in 1979. This year he is a close second to Montreal's Ron LeFlore, who is still stealing bags with a broken hand, although he will not enter the batter's box again in 1980.

As an example of Wilson's hustle is the fact that he had six home runs last year and five of them stayed inside the ball park.

GEORGE BRETT will be leading the Kansas City Royals of the American League West division as the Major League Baseball Championship Series continues Friday, October 10 (8 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Baseball Fever Surges

BASEBALL FEVER is surging as the American and National League Championship Series begin this week. The best-of-five playoffs begin Tuesday, Oct. 7, with the National League West pennant winner visiting the Eastern champion at 8 p.m. on ABC-TV.

With autumn in the air and the leaves beginning to turn from green to red, brown and yellow, baseball fans across the country are turning their attention to the post-season picture, as the top-running teams try to extend their 1980 campaigns all the way into the World Series.

ABC Sports will present live and exclusive coverage of baseball's American and National League Championship Series, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 7 (8-11:15 p.m.). The opening telecast will match the NL East champion against the winner of the NL West in the home city of the Eastern club.

The first day-night telecasts will be seen on Wednesday, Oct. 8, as the East division pennant winner travels to Kansas City in the American League opener (2:30-5:30 p.m.), and the NL East participant hosts the NL West titlist in Game 2 (8 p.m.).

On Thursday, Oct. 9, the NL teams will have a travel day. In the AL, the KC Royals will entertain the East winner in Game 2 of that series (8 p.m.).

Day-night broadcasts will be on tap for the rest of the championship series in both leagues with action shifting to the home of the NL West and AL East champions.

RCA The Roommate Model FD468R
RCA's sharp bright compact color TV now available with ChanneLock Remote Control—a precision electronic tuning system so automatic there's no need to fine tune—ever. From the comfort of your easy chair, you can turn the set on and off, adjust volume up or down and tune in either direction through all channels, stopping only at programmed positions. Other deluxe features:
•RCA's energy-efficient XtendedLife Chassis—designed for excellent performance and long life—uses only 82 watts of power on average.
•Automatic Color Control and Fleshtone Correction.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — Isn't CHEVY CHASE the irresistible guy who caused GOLDIE HAWN to wander from the ever-lovin' arms of hubby BILL HUDSON? Chevy hotly denies 'anything happened' when the two filmed "FOUL PLAY," but others swear he's the one!

MICHELE TRIOLA MARVIN, once the live-in mate of actor LEE MARVIN, was arrested the other day for shoplifting clothing valued at $200 from a Beverly Hills department store. SO....you can't help but wonder...what happened to the $104,000 she was granted in last year's landmark case??

It's true! CHER's been fined $180 for singing too loudly during a stint in Las Vegas this summer! What's more, Caesars Palace has been cited for letting her do so. The gambling mecca's health officials' instruments quivered at 115 decibels, 25 above the allowable 90-decibel maximum.

More about CHER: NBC nixed her request for a special that would spotlight her new act with heavy rock band BLACK ROSE. "It's not what the public expects from Cher," reports a source close to the network.

Who says racquetball is a 'safe' game? CHUCK BARRIS certainly won't. The game show 'wizard' is now in a body cast because of a painful collision with football player/actor ED MARINARO on a racquetball court.

BARRY MANILOW is so 'hot' in England that tickets to his six concerts were completely sold out within just six hours!

LeVAR BURTON was a student at USC when he was pegged for the starring role in "ROOTS." Now he's back on campus teaching in the Drama Department's Masters program.

Nobody's suffering from NBC's bad streak of luck more than its prexy, FRED SILVERMAN, who cracks, "The way things have been going, I'm convinced if 'DALLAS' were on NBC, whoever took a shot at J. R. would have missed."

Speaking of J.R. — LARRY HAGMAN, tired of hanging around his Malibu pad waiting for the AFTRA/SAG strike to end, grabbed his fishing gear and headed for The Virgin Islands, where he's pulling in blue marlin. It's a 'working vacation,' however — ABC SPORTS' "AMERICAN SPORTSMAN" is covering the action for an upcoming segment.

Yesteryear's song bird KATHRYN GRAYSON just shed 60 pounds, thanks to a song-and-gelatin diet. Now she's vying for a comeback in films and TV.

Together again after spending 12 months in 'Splitsville' are MEREDITH MacRAE and GREG MULLAVEY.

Classic—twice over!

The Racquet Club

Suit by

Hart Schaffner & Marx.

Two great classic looks in one suit: Racquet Club® natural styling and gray flannel. This flannel, pure wool with a satin touch, takes handsomely to the trim shaping of the natural look. Hart Schaffner & Marx tailors it in easy-moving lines with authentic detailing: soft shoulders, narrowed lapels, stitched edges, a center vent and a vest. Racquet Club and gray flannel: two good looks for this fall and winter. Naturally.

Gas rationing: not all that rational.

FOR BARRY L. VAN LARE, special administrator for gasoline rationing

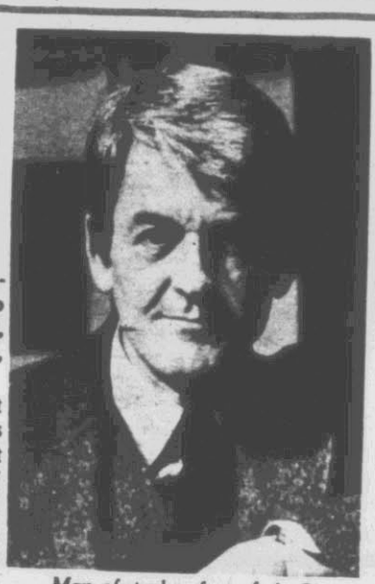
How much could the price of fuel be lowered if we had coupon rationing? —James J. Carter, Anderson, Calif.

● The purpose of the Standby Gasoline Rationing Plan, which was developed in response to a Congressional mandate, is to provide for the orderly and equitable distribution of a short supply of gasoline. It is not likely that a price decrease would result should the rationing plan be implemented. While rationing will limit the demand for gasoline in the U.S., the market forces affecting the price of gasoline are not only influenced by this country's demand but also by that of the entire world. As long as we compete in the world market and other countries bid up the price, we can expect to see the price of gasoline increase, with or without rationing.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

I just saw Hal Holbrook in The Kidnapping of the President, and I'd like to know if he's a man of steel in real life, just the way he is in the film? —M.E., Albany, N.Y.

● Hal told FAMILY WEEKLY that "nerves of iron" aren't included in his personal assets and that he panics just as easily and as quickly as the rest of us, especially when he's tired. He said his most frightening experiences have taken place on his 40-foot sloop. "A couple of years ago when I was sailing to Hawaii with a couple of other guys we got a little bit too macho and lifted the jib (a sail on a movable mast) in a big squall (50-knot winds) so the boat picked up speed and was literally moving under water. I started to scream at the guy at the helm." When he's not on his boat, and instant action isn't required, Hal's practice is this: "I cool it."



Man of steel or feet of clay?

FOR SUZANNE SOMERS, of TV's Three's Company

Were you really heavy once, and how did you lose the weight? —L.S., Santa Fe, N.M.

● I was on the chubby side, and a nutritionist changed my way of life. At that time, I was involved in Cordon Bleu cooking, and quite good at it. Need I say more? She had me eliminate all fats, except three tablespoons a day. She told me, "If you want pie, remember where that piece of pie goes." With that kind of warning, it's easy to lose your appetite for pie.

FOR EDDIE RABBITT, country singer-composer

How does your present lifestyle differ from the days before you became well known? —W.P., Little Rock, Ark.

● Truthfully, I don't live that much differently. Most of what I make goes right back into the business — on equipment and salaries for my musicians. However, I did move my parents out to Nashville from New Jersey to have them closer to me. They love it here, and they say it's the nearest thing to Ireland they've seen this side of the Atlantic.

FOR DR. HUGH R.K. BARBER, professor and chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at New York Medical College

I always like a glass of wine with my dinner. Now that I am pregnant, should I give it up? —B.B., Easton, Pa.

● Drinking less than one ounce of alcohol a day has not been shown to have harmful effects on the fetus. But it has been established that pregnant women who have five or six drinks on occasion or 45 drinks per month can expect children who will have problems.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE LINDY (MRS. HALE) BOGGS (D.-La.)

What social changes do you envision if women are drafted? —N.M., Reno, Nev.

● I do not foresee the drafting of men or women in the near future. If registration is a necessary deterrent to aggression, I believe that young women will react as patriotically as their foremothers did. The involvement of women in military affairs may have quite a positive influence for peaceful settlements.

FOR JUNE LOCKHART, actress

Is it hard for you to shake off your "mother of 'Lassie'" image? —B.G., Rapid City, S.D.

● It is hard. Audiences of my age (who grew up with me) still see me as the woman who used to call Lassie in to dinner. For instance, when I did Murder at the Howard Johnson's in Las Vegas, I got the feeling that people didn't come to be thrilled but in the hope I'd forget myself and call for Lassie during a tense scene. I don't think they accepted me as a serious actress.

FOR HELENE HANFF, author of Underfoot in Show Business

How did writing for TV in the 50's differ from the way it is now? —B. Carre, Flint, Mich.

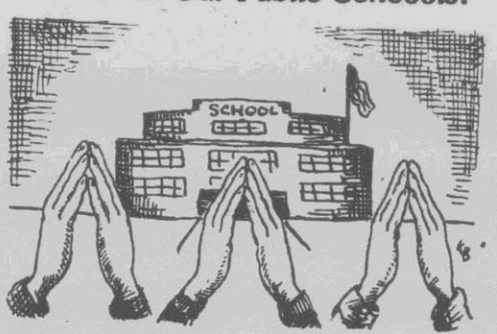
● In the 50's, all kinds of physical restrictions were imposed on writers — television plays were shot live, so there was no time for costume changes or an easy shift from one scene to the next (continuity). Technical video problems were unfamiliar to the writers, and quite often the plot became secondary to the technique.

PRO AND CON

Should Prayer Recitation Be Allowed In Our Public Schoools?

PRO Dr. Jerry Falwell, president, The Moral Majority

The decay in our public-school system experienced an enormous acceleration when prayer and Bible-reading were removed. To forbid prayer is a violation of the First Amendment and a contradiction of our nation's spiritual heritage. Our schools are now permeated with secularism and humanism which teaches that man is his own god, that moral values are relative and that ethics are situational. Not only are those philosophies destroying our educational system, but they are producing schools marked by terror and violence that turn out radical youths and degenerate families.



CON Reverend M. William Howard, president, National Council of Churches

No one can prevent a child from praying in school. But allowing group prayer recitation would inevitably slight children of minority religions, making them feel inferior to their schoolmates. Prayer is simply too sacred, too intimate to be scheduled by government. Responsibility for religious training belongs in the family and the house of worship. Should we transfer that responsibility to teachers who may not even practice a religion? In an effort to enhance the faith of our children, we would instead be subverting it, turning prayer into a rote and trivial experience.

Does Life begin at 40? Middle Age Crazy offered Ann-Margret another strong role as wife to panicky Bruce Dern.

20th Century-Fox

On Screen and Off, Ann-Margret Copes with A Mid-Life Crisis

Eight years ago, Ann-Margret almost died in a 22-foot topple. Last year, she suffered an emotional collapse. But she keeps coming up fighting, and her career — and her confidence — are all the better for it.

By Rena Dictor Leblanc

"I'm a survivor!"

Strange words coming from a beautiful, wealthy woman ensconced in a luxury suite in a Las Vegas hotel, whose show-business career is in full blossom and who thrives on a close relationship with her husband of 16 years.

But at 39, actress-singer-dancer Ann-Margret is very much a survivor. She suffered a near-fatal accident eight years ago and an emotional collapse last year, and she has found new strength and confidence along with her battle scars.

"My years of experience have taught me to be aware of what my priorities are, what is really important in my life and what is baloney."

Ann-Margret's most recent film, Middle Age Crazy, deals with how the specter of approaching "mid-life" plays emotional pinball with people in our society. And that's one of the things she has recently come to terms with herself: "Approaching middle age has given me more of an awareness of myself. I'm learning more than ever what it is I want to do, rather than always doing what I think people expect of me. Age is a natural progression. I don't worry about it. Whatever age I am, I want to be the best I can be."

In Middle Age Crazy, Ann Margret plays the wife of a man (Bruce Dern) who on turning 40, decides to recapture his youth with a much younger woman. Both husband and wife go through turmoil over whether their life together is still worth working for. Unlike the characters of the movie, though, Ann-Margret says she has never felt she'd like to chuck what she has for something else: "There's no amount of money that can make me do all that I do if I didn't love it."

The actress, who went from her role in Middle Age Crazy to work in the film Lookin' To Get Out, co-starring Jon Voight and Burt Young, stresses that she is quite pleased with how her life is going. But her outlook today is a far cry from what it was last year when the world seemed to be crumbling around her: "I had gone for six years without taking a vacation. So last year I got very ill. I just overdid it. I pushed myself too hard."

She had been working nonstop for months, filming two movies, starring in several specials, keeping up a steady stream of appearances in Las Vegas and Lake Tahoe: "I tried to ignore my exhaustion. I went out and filled a 10-day Las Vegas commitment. And then I really collapsed. I was crying all the time. I was tired, nervous as a cat; I couldn't make decisions. All I wanted to do was sleep, and I couldn't even do that."

She told her husband-manager Roger Smith that she needed a vacation, and the two retired to their beach house in California. "At first, all I did was sleep, walk on the beach and eat. I gained 15 pounds in two weeks. Then I traveled a lot and had lunch with people I love, some of whom I hadn't seen for 10 years...for 10 years.

"I would do this and that, things that normal people would do that they would consider very ordinary. But, it was very special to me. I loved it. I felt great after my vacation. Thank goodness I realized how badly I needed it.

"One thing I learned from my illness is that I'd better live my life one day at a time. You know how hard that is for a normal person. It's especially hard for somebody in my business, where everything is, 'O.K., we'll do a film eight months from now'...I've really got to try and tell myself, 'O.K., you're going to enjoy this day.' As much as I can I try to be with people I want to be with, do what I want and be the best I can."

Wide World

Driving ambition: Her singing, dancing, acting and hard work make her a popular attraction in Las Vegas.

This wasn't the first time Ann-Margret had to find the strength to pull her life together. Eight years ago she fell 22 feet from a stage platform just moments before one of her Las Vegas singing and dancing acts. Her cheekbone, jaw and arm were fractured and plastic surgery was required to repair the damage to her face.

Though there have been tough moments, Ann-Margret's career has been a most successful one, and she has come a long way from her roots in Sweden. She was born Ann-Margret Olsson in Stockholm, and settled in the United States with her family at the age of 5.

It was George Burns who discovered her while she was singing with a band during vacation from Northwestern University. He asked her to appear with him at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, and her career was launched. Says Burns: "Everybody gives me credit for discovering Ann-Margret. But all I did was use her in Las Vegas for her first major appearance. The audience discovered her."

Not long afterward, she made her debut on national television with Jack Benny. This led to a screen test by 20th Century-Fox, her first movie, A Pocketful of Miracles, and later a starring role in the film version of Rogers' and Hammerstein's State Fair. Her 30 other films include, Bye, Bye, Birdie and The Cincinnati Kid, as well as a number of B movies — such as Kitten With a Whip — from which she became typecast as a sex kitten. But then in 1972 she was nominated for an Academy Award for her role in Carnal Knowledge and again in 1976 for Tommy. Moviegoers and critics began to see her as an actress of merit.

Despite these accomplishments, Ann-Margret admits that she still felt haunted by her old image ("I think of myself as a performer and as actress. A sex symbol is Ren other people see me spec

IF YOU NEED TO BUILD UP YOUR BLOOD DON'T COUNT ON VITAMINS

Iron poor blood is the most widespread nutritional ailment in America today. In fact, it's a problem that millions of American women face.

And all the vitamins in the world can't help, because vitamins don't contain iron.

Take GERITOL, America's #1 iron and vitamin supplement. GERITOL is so rich in iron, just one tablet each day gives you more iron than even a pound of calf's liver. Plus vitamins that are essential to good health.

GERITOL will actually build iron poor blood back to normal. That's what makes it different from just plain vitamins—and so important to you.

as."), and she has only recently begun to gather real confidence. "I still have this thing about me where I'm shy, like my parents were. You know, that's something that can't be operated on. The passing years have helped make me less shy. And the Oscar nominations have helped because they were from my peers, and they think that I have done good work."

The actress reveals that one person who has helped her through her crises is her psychologist: "I've been seeing her for four years. She saved my life. If you can have one person that you can talk to and reveal all of your fears and ask all of your questions and everything, it's wonderful. This doctor knows how to redirect your thinking."

She also gives credit to her husband, both for being an emotional support and for guiding her professionally. Smith, who once starred in the television series 77 Sunset Strip, decided to give up acting to become her manager.

A handsome, graying man with an intense, but genial, manner, Smith is meticulous about every detail concerning his wife's career. Because Ann-Margret has not received many scripts with roles that she feels are right for her, she and Roger are preparing a script for a film called Dreams, which will go into production next year. Says the actress: "It will be the gutsiest thing I've attempted."

The Smiths' 16-year marriage is, of course, something of a Hollywood record. Ann-Margret says that it has worked because they both have a great sense of humor and they try above all else to be nice to each other. "I think it's very hurtful and dangerous when couples pick at one another," she says thoughtfully. "It becomes a habit and people don't realize that it's happening. Pretty soon it gets so bad, you can't stop it. We try to be nice to one another every day."

> "I'm learning what I want to do, rather than what people expect of me."

According to Ann-Margret, the fact that Roger plays the dual role of manager and husband doesn't put a strain on their marriage. Rather, she says, they "thrive on it."

Her husband's emotional and career support has been of great importance to Ann-Margret. Could she have faced the pressures of stage and screen stardom without Roger Smith by her side? "I would have answered that question differently 10 years ago, maybe even five years ago," she confides. "I would get all mellow." (She affects a demure, shrinking expression.) But the years have brought a new confidence. "Right now it doesn't matter who I'm with. I'd make it." FW

Babies: Brighter Than You Think

Some parents expect too much, too soon, from a baby. Others do not expect enough and, as a result, may hinder their child's early development.

A study by medical researchers at the University of Washington, in Seattle, indicates that many parents are not aware that newborns can see and hear at birth. Most of the first-time mothers surveyed believed babies don't see or hear clearly for almost two months. A few even thought babies were oblivious to their surroundings until they were nearly a year old.

According to pediatric nurse Dr. Kathryn Barnard, infants raised by parents with low expectations of their abilities had lower scores on physical and mental development tests than infants whose parents were aware of their capacities to be stimulated and to respond.

The study reinforces the importance of communicating with infants from the moment they are born. But the researchers caution against over-expectations which can lead to problems and disappointments.

What Makes Middle-Aged Women Happy?

Two studies shed new light on why some wives and mothers are finding middle age the most rewarding time of their lives. Dr. Dawn Schoenholz, a Santa Monica, Calif., family counselor, talked with 200 women whom she classified as Continuers, Searchers or Changers.

Continuers have remained in the traditional roles of wife and mother; those who did so voluntarily are highly satisfied, while those unable to break out of old molds are highly dissatisfied.

Searchers fall between these two extremes. Because they are taking action to find a new pattern of living, they are not unhappy, yet because the answers remain elusive, they are somewhat discontent. Searchers focus on new interests rather than past disappointments.

Changers make the most of each stage of life. They look back at the past without regret and accept the future as a challenge to be conquered.

Significantly, most women studied believe that the influences of their upbringing — the attitudes of their parents and the environment in which they grew up — led them to make the lifestyle choices that they have. Yet the same influences which some blame for their unhappiness are credited by other women for positive results.

Another study, by psychologists Rosalind Barnett and Grace Baruch, reports that most women in the middle years are experiencing a new sense of self-esteem. This is true for wives as well as unmarried women, those with or without children and working as well as nonworking women. Middle-aged women believe they have the right to pursue their own needs and goals, and those who have the most responsibilities seem to be the happiest. FW

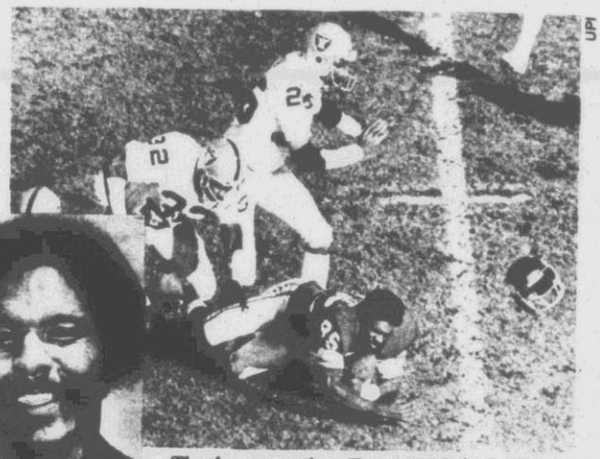
The Violent World of Football's Jack Tatum

By Ron Borges

It was noon on Good Friday, the holiest hour on the holiest day for much of the country. But while many residents of Sacramento, Calif., flocked to church on this cool, spring day, Jack Tatum sat in a crowded bookstore surrounded by an adoring line of those who worship hard-hitting American football and autographed stacks of his book, They Call Me Assassin.

"Sign mine 'To Pete — Good Stick — Jack'" one N.F.L. devotee implored. Tatum, who would sign over 200 copies of his best seller before this day was out, smiled politely and did just as he was asked.



UPI

UPI

The Assassin strikes: Tatum (#32 above) flattens Minnesota Vikings receiver Sammy White, knocking White's helmet completely off.

By its nature, football is a violent game. This reality surfaced perhaps most frighteningly on the night of August 12, 1978, when defensive back Tatum, then with the Oakland Raiders, broke the neck of New England wide receiver Darryl Stingley with a devastating but legal hit. Stingley will probably never walk again.

"I don't think I'm a dirty player," says Tatum, traded this spring to the Houston Oilers. "Everything I do is within the rules. But when you go on the field the spirit of the rules goes up in the stands with the owners and sportswriters.... There is a line for everybody, but how do you know where it is? When they don't get up right away? If I don't hit Stingley, it's six points and I'm a bum. Where do you stop?"

Many say Tatum never stops. Throughout his 10-year career Tatum has been known as the N.F.L.'s chief enforcer. He was fined by the League office in 1975 for "unnecessary roughness"; a year later, Steeler head coach Chuck Noll put Tatum and several other players in the category of "the criminal element of the N.F.L." N.F.L. Commissioner Pete Rozelle met with Tatum earlier this year and told him the League would be keeping a close eye on him.

Tatum, though, does not believe that the men who run his sport really care about the game's increasing violence. "The owners are running the whole show," he says. "They make the rules. If they want to change the game they can. They could outlaw the slant pattern [the one Stingley ran when Tatum leveled him]... But they're selling brutality and violence.

"There is so much pressure to win; don't blame the players if someone gets hurt," Tatum continues. "You're taught to make them pay for every yard they got so that in the fourth quarter their will to win will be warped. They won't want to make that extra yard."

Tatum learned his football lessons early, beginning when he was a 15-year-old at Passaic (N.J.) High School. "I didn't start this particular game," he remembers, "but I went in as linebacker and knocked out the first string quarterback and then the second string quarterback. The crowd cheered. They loved it. After that, I became first string."

Tatum continued his aggressive tactics as an All-American at Ohio State, where he played for one of football's chief "winning is everything" proponents, Woody Hayes. Drafted in the first round by the Raiders in 1970, Tatum gained notoriety for his "knockouts," tackles that render opponents unconscious. In fact, he and fellow Raider safety George Atkinson had a contest to see who could knock out more players over a season. Tatum won.

Perhaps the most ironic thing about the entire Tatum affair is that away from the field he is one of the quietest men in the game. He was called "The Reverend" in Oakland, a leader who could settle a situation with a few brief words.

Raider safety Mike Davis relates that it was Tatum who actually kept the lid on his teammates. "When I would get upset with a player and want to go after him," says Davis, "Tate would just say, 'Cool it and play the game. Don't let them get to you.'"

Although Houston already has a fine defense, the Oilers decided that the specter of Tatum might be the final ingredient necessary for the A.F.C. championship. Jack Tatum knows the job Houston wants done — the same job he did in Oakland.

"It's the way they want the game played," Tatum insists. "I don't think I have anything to feel guilty about. The Stingley thing was a terrible accident, but it's the game that's to blame." FW

COOKING WITH CLASS

When adults learn to cook, they generally start with one new dish and try it a few times until they feel that they have mastered it. It takes a while to progress toward serving a complete dinner. By planning carefully, however, and making use of today's efficient appliances, a showpiece dinner can be prepared by a dedicated beginner.

How to make a turkey and broccoli bake even better? The creamy, smooth taste of Velveeta process cheese spread, of course. It's one of many good ideas that keep popping up.

#8 TURKEY AND BROCCOLI BAKE

¼ cup Parkay margarine
¼ cup flour
1 cup milk
Dash of pepper
½ lb. Velveeta process cheese spread, cubed
2 10-oz. pkgs. frozen broccoli spears, cooked, well drained
Cooked turkey slices

Make a white sauce with margarine, flour, milk and pepper. Add process cheese spread; stir until melted. Layer broccoli, turkey and sauce in 10 x 6-inch baking dish. Bake at 350° 25 minutes. 6 to 8 servings. Variation: Substitute ham for turkey.

FAMILY WEEKLY COOKBOOK

Cooking With Class: A Dinner for the Aspiring Cook

CHICKEN PISTACHIO PÂTÉ

- 1 (3-lb.) broiler-fryer, quartered
- 1 carrot
- 1 sprig parsley
- 1 onion, 2 whole cloves
- 1 stalk celery
- 1 bay leaf
- 5 peppercorns
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups water
- 1 chicken liver, reserved from broiler-fryer
- 12 ozs. duck livers
- 1 cup water
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- ¼ lb. sweet butter
- 1 cup chicken broth, reserved from cooking chicken
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
- ½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon sage
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- 1 cup chopped pistachio nuts
- Small lettuce leaves
- Cornichons (tiny gherkins)
- Pickled onions
- Crackers or thin pumpernickel or rye bread

1. Poach chicken. Place chicken quarters, neck and gizzard in 4- to 6-qt. stock pot or Dutch oven. Set aside chicken liver. Add carrot and celery cut in large chunks, parsley, peeled onion with 2 whole cloves stuck into it, peppercorns, salt and water.

2. Heat to boiling, uncovered; reduce heat, cover and cook at a slow boil for 45 to 60 minutes or until chicken leg moves very easily at joint.

3. Refrigerate chicken in broth covered in bowl until cool enough to handle.

4. When cool enough to handle, or next day, remove chicken from broth. Remove skin and chicken meat from bones; keep in separate piles, discard bones.

5. Heat broth and strain. Discard vegetables and seasonings.

6. Meanwhile, turn reserved chicken liver and duck livers into 1-qt. saucepan; add 1 cup water. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer about 5 to 7 minutes until livers are just cooked through. Strain; reserve liver broth and livers.

7. Combine chicken broth and liver broth in stock pot and heat to boiling, uncovered. Allow to boil rapidly, reducing the broth down to 1 cup liquid. Will take about 10 to 15 minutes.

8. Process livers at high speed in food processor, using metal chopping blade. Or use electric blender, blending a little at a time. Add reserved chicken skin, 1 cup hot reduced broth; process at high speed until very smooth.

9. Add butter, 1 tablespoon at a time, and process until smooth. Add 1 teaspoon salt; then nutmeg, pepper, sage and brandy. Process at high speed until very smooth.

10. Turn pureed mixture into large bowl; stir in reserved shredded chicken and ¼ cup pistachios.

11. Line a 1½-qt. bowl with 2 sheets of plastic film. Pour in pâté mixture. Cover with film and refrigerate several hours or overnight, until firm.

12. When ready to serve, remove film; turn the pâté out onto a serving plate. Cover surface of pâté with remaining chopped pistachio nuts, pressing into surface of pâté.

13. Garnish pâté with shredded lettuce leaves, gherkins, cherry tomatoes and pickled onions. Serve with crackers and/or small, thin slices of pumpernickel or rye bread.

Makes 5 cups pâté

Editor's note: Pâté may also be poured into small individual crocks.

OUR COLOR PHOTO: A FALL TREASURE

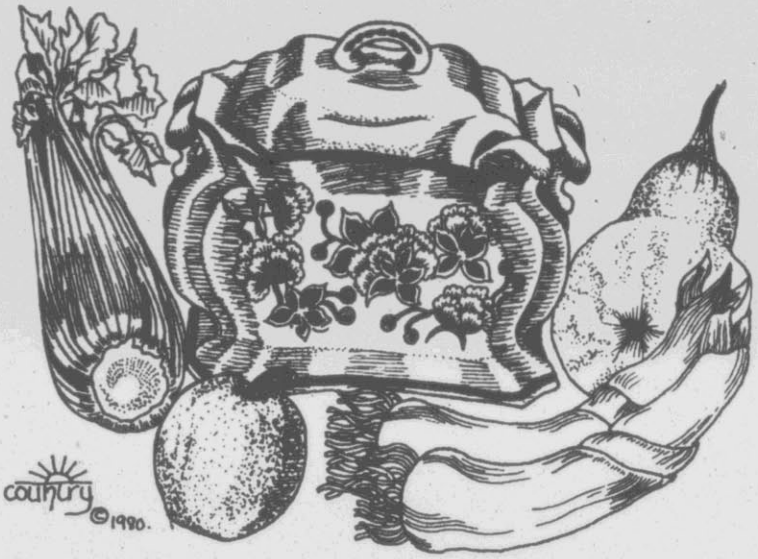
Farberware Advantage Saucepan, Farberware Open Hearth Rotisserie; Hanging Skillets: Farberware and Farberware Advantage.



BISQUE OF SQUASH AND GREEN APPLE

2 lbs. butternut squash, peeled and cubed
2 onions, peeled and quartered
4 tart green apples, peeled and quartered
2 ribs celery, quartered
5 sprigs parsley
2 leeks or 1 bunch scallions, white part only, cut in chunks
6 cups chicken stock
4 egg yolks
½ cup light cream
Salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Using metal chopping blade, place squash, onions, apples, celery, parsley and leeks in bowl of food processor; process at high speed just until coarsely chopped. Or chop by hand, using French knife.

2. Turn chopped vegetables into stock pot; add chicken stock. Heat to boiling, cover, reduce heat and simmer for 30 to 35 minutes until vegetables are tender.

3. Turn vegetables with some of the broth into food processor and process at high speed until pureed. Or use electric blender or food mill.

4. Return pureed vegetables and all broth to stock pot.

5. In small bowl, beat eggs and cream together; add small amount of hot soup, about 1 cup, beating rapidly, then add to soup.

6. Heat just to boiling point, stirring gently to cook egg-cream mixture. Taste soup. Add salt and pepper to please yourself.

7. This soup can be made one or two days prior to planned serving. (Refrigerate, covered in glass, porcelain or stainless container to keep color and taste pure) But omit egg and cream mixture and add just before serving. Garnish with freshly shredded apple. Makes 2 quarts

PORK LOIN WITH GINGER-LIME GLAZE

1 tablespoon fresh-grated Hawaiian ginger
½ cup honey
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup dark or golden rum
¼ cup fresh lime juice
1 large clove garlic, crushed
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 (5½-lb.) pork loin, bone in

1. Combine all glaze ingredients; ginger, honey, soy sauce, lime juice, rum, garlic and pepper. Use to marinate pork loin roast for 24 hours. Turn roast occasionally.

2. Place pork loin on spit of electric rotisserie. Check balance. Or place on rack in roasting pan.

3. Cook pork on spit of electric rotisserie or bake in preheated 325°F. oven about 3¾ hours or until meat thermometer reads 170°F. internal temperature; baste frequently with ginger glaze.

Makes 1 cup glaze (8 roast servings)

NIGHT-BEFORE BRIOCHE

3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour (approximate)
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, cut into pieces
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (105°F. to 115°F.)
4 eggs

1. With metal blade in place, combine flour, butter, sugar and salt in bowl; process 15 to 20 seconds to combine. Dissolve active dry yeast in warm water; pour through feed tube. Add 3 eggs. Process until ball forms; continue processing 60 seconds to knead dough. (If dough does not form a ball on top of blade within 10 seconds, add flour, a tablespoon at a time, through feed tube until ball forms.) Carefully remove dough from processor bowl. Shape into a ball and place in a greased bowl, turning to grease top.

2. Or mix by conventional method: In large bowl, combine flour, sugar and salt; stir to mix. Dissolve active dry yeast in warm water. Heat butter until just melted. Combine yeast mixture and butter with flour and beat hard until well mixed. Add 3 eggs, one at a time; beat hard after each addition. Turn out onto floured board and knead about 8 minutes, until springy. Shape into a ball and place in greased bowl, turning to grease top.

3. Cover dough; let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch down; cover. Refrigerate overnight.

4. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough into 2 pieces, one about ¾ weight of dough and one about ¼ weight of dough. Divide larger piece into 10 equal pieces. Form into small balls. Place in greased 3½-inch brioche pans. Divide smaller piece of dough into equal pieces. Form into pear shapes. Make a deep hole, about one inch wide, in center of larger ball in pans. Press narrow ends of pear shapes into holes in larger balls. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1¼ hours.

5. Bake in preheated 375°F. oven for 10 minutes. Remove from oven; beat remaining egg and brush on brioche. Bake 5 minutes longer or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

Makes 10 individual brioches

STEAMER VEGETABLE MELANGE

Carrots: allow 1 or 2 per person
Broccoli: 2 bunches
Cauliflower: (1-lb.) head
Red cabbage: 2 (1-lb. size) heads
White turnips: 1 per person
Herb butter: recipe follows
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Steaming is moist heat-cooking without contact with water. It will take half-again as long as boiling but results are excellent: bright, true color and texture slightly firm to the bite.

2. Prepare vegetables for steaming so that all are of approximately equal size.

3. Carrots, peeled and cut to size. Use slim, young, halved or small (2-3 inch) carrots.

Broccoli: Trim off coarse ends, separate into neat, uniform stalks.

Cauliflower: Trim off coarse green stalk and leaves. Can be steamed whole or separate into flowerets. If flowerets, timing will be approximately the same as for carrots and broccoli.

Red Cabbage: Wash thoroughly, damp-dry with towels, cut into wedge portions.

White Turnips: Use small turnips, peeled and left whole, or quarter large turnips.

4. Pour 2 or 3 inches boiling water into saucepan. Insert steamer and vegetables. Return to boiling, cover.

5. All vegetables should be removed when just firm-tender; arrange in large bowl or platter and serve with soft herb butter and freshly ground black pepper. Makes 8 servings

STEAMING TABLE

Vegetable	Steaming Time In Minutes
Carrots	3 to 5
Broccoli	8 to 10
Cauliflowerets	5 to 10
Whole Cauliflower	20 to 25
Turnip quarters	8 to 10
Red cabbage wedges	8 to 10

HERB BUTTER

¼ lb. butter, cut in chunks
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
1 tablespoon finely chopped chives
1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh basil

1. In bowl of food processor, using metal chopping blade, process all ingredients until blended.

2. Pack butter into crock or bowl; cover and refrigerate.

ORANGES AND KIWI CURACAO

8 navel oranges
Boiling water
⅔ cup water
⅔ cup sugar
⅓ cup curaçao or other orange-flavored liqueur
4 kiwi fruits

1. Peel 6 oranges; cut in crosswise, cartwheel slices; place in bowl.
2. Peel kiwis; slice crosswise into ¼-inch-thick slices; add to oranges.
3. With vegetable parer, peel remaining 2 oranges, removing outer-colored peel only. Cut peel into thin slivers.
4. Squeeze juice from peeled oranges; reserve.
5. In small saucepan, cover slivered peel with boiling water. Boil peel for 5 minutes; drain. This is called blanching.
6. Combine drained peel, ⅔ cup water, ⅔ cup sugar and reserved orange juice; heat, stirring, just until sugar dissolves. Add curaçao; pour over oranges and kiwi.
7. Cover bowl and chill 4 hours or longer. If making day before, add kiwi slices on day of serving, as they are a very delicate, tender fruit. Makes 8 servings

MADEIRA CAKE

1 cup butter or margarine, cut in chunks
1 cup sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
1¼ cups sugar
5 eggs
3¼ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
½ cup dried currants
½ cup diced citron peel
White corn syrup

1. Place metal chopping blade in food processor. Add butter, sugar and lemon rind to bowl of food processor. Lock cover in place and process at high speed until well mixed. To mix conventionally, soften butter with electric mixer at low speed. Add grated lemon rind and sugar gradually to butter, beating at medium-high speed until blended and fluffy. This is called creaming.
2. Add eggs through feed tube of processor and process about 7 seconds until well mixed. Conventionally, add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition.
3. Unlock cover and add flour, salt and baking powder. Lock cover in place and process until mixed. Remove food pusher and add milk through feed tube; process until blended. Conventionally, using electric mixer at low speed, add flour in thirds, alternating with milk, beginning and ending with flour.
4. Add currants through feed tube and use pulse control just to blend through mixture. Conventionally, add currants, beating in at low speed.
5. Unlock cover; remove food processor bowl. Turn batter into greased 10-inch tube pan.
6. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 30 minutes. Place citron pieces on top of cake in a decorative fashion and bake an additional 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 325°F. and continue baking until cake tester, inserted in center of cake, comes out clean — the test for doneness.
7. Cool on wire rack for 10 minutes. Loosen cake from side of pan and remove. Invert cake so that citron top is up to cool completely.
8. Just before serving, glaze citron with a little corn syrup. Makes 12 servings

Editor's Note: This is a rich type of poundcake of the colonial era, when it traditionally was served with a small glass of Madeira, a sweet dessert wine.

Butter Buds®

3 ways better than butter!

94% fewer calories than butter or margarine

Cook with Butter Buds and season with it! The 100% natural butter flavor of Butter Buds adds a buttery bounce that brings out the best in food—without the calories.

99% less cholesterol than butter • 94% fat free

Dietary studies show that most important in lowering blood cholesterol levels is a decrease in the consumption of saturated fats. Butter and many margarines have a high level of saturated fats.

Costs much less than butter

One four-ounce box of Butter Buds (8 packets) equals the flavor of two pounds of butter, but costs less.

Butter Buds is the essence of butter without the calories, cholesterol or cost of butter.

As easy to use as 1, 2, 3.

1 Mix one packet (8 level tsps.) with ½ cup (4 oz.) of hot tap water.

2 Shake well to make 4 oz. of delicious melted butter flavor.

3 Pour over or stir into any food you cook.

Pour Butter Buds Liquid over cooked vegetables (like baked potatoes, green beans, corn-on-the-cob), fish, noodles, rice and pancakes; or mix in casseroles, sauces, gravies.

Recipes included in every box. No refrigeration needed until reconstituted.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

FOUNTAIN OF MY YOUTH

I wonder if the fountain pen
Will ever be with us again,
The pen we filled with ink at banks
And such without a word of thanks.

The pen with which we used to nourish
Our signature with flair and flourish,
The pen that sometimes left a spot
Or spreading smear or ugly blot.

In this, the ballpoint era, few
This pen and blotters ever knew,
And those who turn life back a page
And reminisce, betray their age.
—Richard Armour

MALE CALL

They talk about a woman's work
As never being done.
It could be 'cause she's holding now
Two jobs instead of one.
—Current Comedy

JUMPING THE GUN

"If I were to die," a wife asked her husband plaintively, "would you marry again?"

"Wouldn't you want me to?" the husband replied cautiously.

"Would you give her everything of mine — my clothes, my jewelry, my car, my golf clubs?"

"No, not your golf clubs," the husband protested. "She's left-handed."
—Lane Olinghouse

PENNY WISE–POUND FOOLISH

In spite of feeling stuffed
And wanting to be thinner,
I can't resist dessert—
If paid for with the dinner.
—Jean B. Boyce

CURRENT EVENT: We should be ready for those new electric cars promised soon. After all, Americans are best at saying, "Charge it!" —G.B.

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Which Are the Best Years of Our Lives?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You have more fun while you're young.

2. The most carefree time is during the bloom of youth — mid-teens to mid-20's.

3. Your attitude toward life depends on how old you are.

4. Whether older people lead more interesting lives than young people is a moot question.

5. The older people get, the more afraid they are of dying.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies on the relationship between age and pleasurable activities, sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health, indicate that people in their late teens and early adulthood do have more fun than older people — not because those of middle age or older lack the capacity for the enjoyment of pleasant activities but because they engage in these pursuits less frequently. The older person, the investigation showed, fully enjoys the things that give him pleasure, but he just doesn't do them as often as he used to.

2. False. A University of Michigan Survey Research Center report indicated that all age groups reported more problems and serious concerns than when they were younger, but the greatest increases in the negative aspects of living were among the younger age groups. "Young people more often spoke of anxiety symptoms, such as trouble sleeping, nervousness, headaches, loss of appetite or upset stomach."

3. True. Findings of a Michigan State University study show that most older people view life with greater optimism and do not share the young adults' frequently voiced attitude toward aging: "I just hate the thought of getting old." A San Diego State University study of the attitudes of youthful and older people showed that "most notably, older subjects rated their lives as better than younger subjects projected their lives would be at the same age."

4. True. How interesting a person's life is — how free from boredom and frustration — depends more on attitude and outlook than on actual activities. Studies on individual differences in occupational boredom, however, conducted by behavioral scientists at Britain's University of Keele, showed that "feelings of boredom were negatively correlated with age," which is another way of saying that older people are less subject to boredom than the more youthful.

5. False. The Michigan State University study compared the differences in the attitudes toward death of young adults and men and women past middle age. Results showed aged adults to have a much more positive and optimistic attitude toward death than young adults, to regard the event with less fear and foreboding. FW

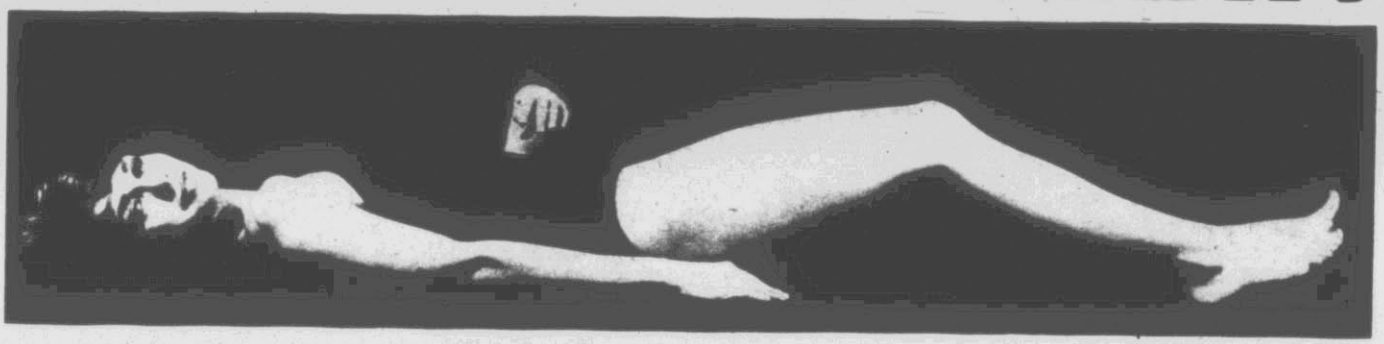
HOW TO RUB YOUR STOMACH AWAY!



Sound impossible? Then let us quote directly from Dr. Stephen Chang:

"What is going to be discussed here is a disarmingly simple method to lose weight and inches.

"This weight loss method does not come from Western medicine. No, its source is the wisdom of the ancient Chinese sages. . . arrived at through literally 6,000 years of observation and study of the natural principles of healing. It is only now that this ancient wisdom of the body is becoming available to you."

"The simplest and most natural way to lose weight is by this effortless, two-minute exercise."

"There are two principal components to this exercise. The first part begins by lying flat on your back. Relax. Put the palm of your hand on your navel. Then simply rub—nothing more—in exactly the way I am going to show you." (See page 5 of Dr. Chang's Confidential Report.)

"What is really taking place while you are rubbing your stomach away is this. When the hand is gently passed over the body this way, energy invisible to the naked eye passes from that hand through the skin. So. . . you are actually 'brushing with energy' the cells and tissues throughout the stomach area."

. . . This electricity from your own hand gently massages the intestines, the blood vessels, and the digestive and eliminatory system. Fatty accumulations and deposits are disturbed from their resting places and eventually broken up. They are then passed into the eliminatory system and out of the body."

"By such apparently simple means, the superfluous areas of the stomach and abdomen are literally rubbed away."

"What I must impress upon you is that losing weight is largely a matter of increasing the efficiency of the digestive organs. Have you ever tried cutting down on your food intake, or changed your diet overall, and still found yourself unable to lose weight? This is most probably because your digestive and eliminatory processes are not what they should be.

"Well, this exercise is a kind of gentle and natural colonic irrigation. . . excess fat is being burned off. Fatty tissues around the stomach and intestines are metabolized and then discarded."

"You needn't feel you must do it for more than two minutes at a time. . .

"The exercise should be performed twice a day (or more if you like) while lying on your back. The best times to do it are the first thing in the morning and then again before you go to sleep.

"If you persist, you will reap other benefits as well. It will improve the conditions of your heart, because you will have reduced its burden. You may very well notice an upswing in your level of vitality."

They rubbed away their stomachs. Why shouldn't you?

Documented case histories, told in Dr. Chang's own words.

I lecture frequently on college campuses, and was one day in Upstate New York. The dean of studies, who was very overweight, looked much older than her years. I suggested the exercises. In just a few weeks she had lost five inches in her waist, hips, and thigh areas. She became a younger, more vibrant woman, and is today head of one of the most important academic institutions in the nation.

John a bank president, was overweight, sluggish, constipated. And, at age 55, he was almost ready to give up. His secretary urged him to try the simple exercises. By applying the exercise faithfully, he regularized his bowel movement, and lost 40 pounds.

A very pretty, but extremely overweight woman of 29 came up to me to say that she feared she'd never shed her excess inches—she was wearing a size 18 dress, and that was tight on her. After trying the exercises, she realized that they are actually fun to do, and within two weeks she noticed how loose her size 18 dress was becoming. Today she is down to a size 11. When I first met her, she appeared to be in her 40s—and today she can easily pass for her very early 20s.

Although I wouldn't recommend that a person continue to eat and drink excessively, let me give you an example of a man who did just that and still managed to lose inches. Paul C. was nothing short of obese, and he was still gaining weight. He told me that eating was his chief pleasure in life and he didn't see that he would be willing to give it up. "But is there a way for me to lose this stomach?" he asked, but I recommended that he do the Exercise. I got a call from him a month later, and he told me gleefully that he had already lost three notches on his belt! He continued to lose weight until he had stabilized into a normal range, but he still shows his friends his old belt.

Morgan was one of my most difficult cases. He'd come to me just after he'd lost his influential job as head of a major airline. Partly because he was under so much stress, he had become a compulsive eater, and was getting no exercise. He determined to stay faithfully with the Exercise, did in fact slim down and firm up, and shortly thereafter was hired as president of a major food concern. I see him often, and he looks younger today than he ten years ago.

Several years ago I spoke to a group of overweight wives of physicians. After my talk, one young woman said: "Dr. Chang, I don't think my marriage is going to last. What can I do?" Well, she was about 5'9", and weighed almost 210 pounds. I suggested the exercise. Several weeks later the young wife called me to say that her figure was "straightening out." I saw the couple quite recently, and she is nicely proportioned. Her husband now paid her close attention (as did all other men in her presence).

Prove it to yourself at our risk. . .

Dr. Chang's Confidential Report, "How to Rub Your Stomach Away," can be obtained nowhere else but through this advertisement.

Because it is simple, and therefore so short, its cost is only $4.98, plus $1 postage and handling. This is far less than any reducing plan, book or pill that we know.

Put it to work for you one week, one month, or one year. If it does not do everything he has said, simply return it for your full purchase price back.

Simply send an envelope with $5.98—cash, check or money order to Dr. Chang's Report, Personal Realization Incorporated, Dept. FW105 535 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

Take a Walk– To Good Health

By Victor A. Schlich

According to pollster Lou Harris, America's favorite recreation is walking. Ninety million of us hike, backpack or just plain hoof it for exercise.

As you probably know, your body needs regular, vigorous activity that increases the supply of oxygen to the cardiovascular system — the heart, lungs and bloodstream. This helps you cope with stress, minimizes fatigue and keeps energy levels high.

What you may not realize, though, is that walking — at a brisk pace — is actually a form of aerobic exercise, just like jogging. In fact, though we tend to take walking for granted because we do it all the time, it may be an even better form of exercise than many sports.

A recent study conducted by the University of Illinois on a variety of sports found that virtually all consisted mostly of intermittent activity. There were many starts and stops and sudden bursts of energy required. None had walking's pattern of continuous rhythmic, vigorous motion.

An effective walking program isn't difficult, yet it can't be developed overnight. The American Medical Association warns sedentary people to begin cautiously. Keep your walking pace within your physical limits. Don't push yourself too far, too fast.

Begin by walking a mile in 20 minutes. When you can do this comfortably, slowly stretch the distance until you cover three miles in 45 minutes with no discomfort. That's considered the optimum pace for an effective walking program — one mile every 15 minutes.

At that pace you pump valuable extra oxygen into your cardiovascular system. It's also the magic pace at which you can begin to lose weight while tightening up flabby muscles.

One pound of fat equals 3,500 calories. Eat 500 calories less a day and you'll lose a pound a week. Or, maintain your food intake and walk four 15-minute miles a day for nine days and lose the same amount of weight.

Walkers find the activity not only relaxing, but a creative stimulus, as well. For example, German philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche once said, "Only those thoughts that come by walking have any value." And Hippocrates, the ancient Greek physician, prescribed walks to prevent mental disturbances and to control expanding waistlines.

One of the simple beauties of walking is that anyone can walk anywhere at any time. Yet, the A.M.A. warns that feet can take quite a beating and urges comfortable, well-fitting shoes.

Bruce Katz, a researcher who studied footwear problems, tells walkers, "Pay close attention to shoes, or you won't walk much, very far, happily. After all, you're looking for shoes that take you walking on happy feet." He offers these tips:

Pick soles carefully. Crepe or natural rubber are best for sidewalks and pavements. In rough terrain, though, tough leather or composition soles are better.

Select shoes that breathe. This means leather, canvas or fabric uppers. Plastic does not breathe. Normal feet perspire a half-pint of moisture daily. Unless this is dissipated, foot fungus problems can result. FW

"You WILL Lose EVERY Unwanted Pound EVERY Unsightly Inch OR WE WILL PAY YOU $100.00!!"

Aren't you tired of outrageous claims like these? We are too! But we've got the best waist belt system on the market and we want you to try it. Here's some straight talk—When you need to drop those unwanted pounds and lose those unsightly inches, just wrap our exclusively constructed belt around your waist or hips, adjust our special fastening system to fit snugly but comfortably, and already it starts working to make you trimmer, lighter and feeling fit. Yes, you just wrap it around you and those extra pounds and inches shrink away. That's why we call it Shrink-Wrap!

You Can Lose 2-3 Inches in 24 Hours!

Here's The Secret!

Many years ago a funny thing was noticed by skin divers after they returned from a dive. When they changed from their wet suit to street clothes, their pants sometimes fell down: always, their pants were loose. After a while, somebody decided to check his weight on a scale. He and his fellow divers all thought that the scale was broken because in each case the reading was many pounds less than their most recent weight level. Then someone who didn't dive got on the scale. Lo and behold, it was the correct weight! Finally, one of the scientists figured it out. There were three reasons—all of them related to the special wet suit rubber that divers wore to protect themselves from the freezing water.

Reason #1—Wet suit rubber is the finest, most expensive made to provide insulation and warmth. It was so good that it actually retained and reflected the body's own heat causing excess fluids in the body's tissues to literally "melt away."

RESULT—Lost Pounds And Lost Inches!

Shrink-Wrap is made from the finest strongest wet suit rubber to make use of your body's own heat and concentrate it to melt away inches in areas of specific fluid retention like the waist and hips.

Reason #2—In order to function properly, a wet suit must be worn by the diver snugly, resulting in a constant force being applied to his body. This isometric effect can actually add tone to loose muscle tissue.

RESULT—Tighter Muscles, A Trimmer, Slimmer Body!

Shrink-Wrap can be adjusted as snug as you like for as long as you like. Put the isometric effect to work for you immediately. Readjust its special fastening system as needed for good circulation and a comfortable fit.

REASON #3—Diving and swimming are activities that burn additional calories. This is like adding coal to a fire. It amplifies the heating effect which is retained and reflected by the special wet suit rubber.

RESULT—More Lost Pounds And More Lost Inches!

Shrink-Wrap comes with its own 5 minute exercise program [illegible] will help you to add more fuel to your [illegible] fast. You'll shed unwanted pounds and lose unsightly inches even more rapidly.

Manufactured exclusively for The New Body Boutique, Inc. which is not connected with any other waist belt company.

The Packaging of Presidential Candidates

By Jerry Buckley

In just a few weeks, millions of Americans will go to the polls to select a President. The three major candidates are well known. But behind these three men there are three others who play a crucial role in the election of the President. They are the image makers, the men whose job is to sell their candidates to the American people.

For Jimmy Carter, that job falls to Gerald Rafshoon, a member of the President's inner circle of Georgians who has been molding the Carter image since 1966. In Ronald Reagan's case, the job belongs to Peter Dailey, a Los Angeles advertising executive who headed Richard Nixon's media campaign in 1972. And the man with perhaps the toughest job of all is David Garth, the veteran media whiz who is handling John Anderson's long-shot campaign.

Television has changed the nature of American politics over the past 20 years in such as way that a candidate, whether it be for the Presidency, the Senate or even a state assembly, now often has a media adviser to help him.

At the Presidential level, the packaging of Richard Nixon in 1968 was probaby the first big-time instance of the image maker at work. Nixon had vivid memories of his 1960 televised debates with John Kennedy and how, with sweat and pancake makeup melting on his face, he looked so unappealing in comparison to the tanned and self-assured Kennedy. He was determined that such an image would not be presented again.

The role and the influence of the media image maker has been increasing in scope and sophistication ever since. Political advertising — "paid media" — is the single-most expensive element of a modern Presidential race and for many lesser offices as well. This year, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan have each been allocated $29.5 million in Federal funds for their general election campaigns. Each will spend half of that money on media, the vast majority on television commercials.

The logic is simple. More people can be reached for less money through television than any other medium. John Martilla, a Boston political consultant, notes, "If you want your candidate to win, you have to use all the available tools, and right now there is no question but that television is the best tool."

The specific work that a media adviser does for a candidate varies. In some races Garth, for instance, provides a complete package, from filming commercials and placing them on the air to writing speeches and issuing press releases. In addition to other duties, Rafshoon coordinates all the President's appearances and speeches.

But in this year's Presidential race, the main service that Rafshoon, Garth and Dailey provide is advertising, and that means primarily producing commercials for use on television. They then buy advertising time on television shows, carefully selecting those shows that will reflect positively on their candidates. The image makers stay away from shows that depict violence or corruption or other negatives because they don't want their men to be associated with such things even in a remote way. The commercial slots before and after the evening news are deemed the most desirable, followed by sports shows, family shows and specials.

Despite the fact that the type of work they do is quite similar, the three men running the media campaigns for the major candidates are as different as the candidates themselves. Dailey, a Californian and long-time Republican, is the least known of the three and is the only one who does not produce political media for a living. Dailey, 50, is the president of Dailey and Associates, an international ad-

ROACH PRUFE, No. 1 in UNIVERSITY TESTS

In a report just released by the UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, eight commercial and test products that included a broad spectrum of insecticides were tested against a product called "ROACH PRUFE." The report concluded "Our experience under field conditions has shown that when properly applied, the ROACH PRUFE formula provides a degree of cockroach control that is usually superior to all other registered commercial or consumer products."

Alan Brite, who 30 years ago developed and lent his name to what is now a standard household cleaner, Copper Brite, stated: "Because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUFE as an insecticide, they do not try to avoid it by scattering to other parts of your residence as they do with the other insecticides. Plus the electrostatically charged powder sticks to their bodies, which they then carry back into the walls spreading among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in your walls."

Odorless. Easy To Apply

ROACH PRUFE is odorless, non-evaporating, non-staining and non-flammable. It is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and other hidden areas. It can be used in homes, schools, hospitals, restaurants, plus new construction.

Brite has a problem, however. He says most retailers apparently think it's unprofitable to stock ROACH PRUFE on their shelves when the same customers will come in again and again to buy the other insecticides. So until they do, he's decided to sell his product direct to consumers.

ROACH PRUFE costs $7.95 plus 95¢ for postage for a one-pound can, add 6% tax in California. One can covers up to a 9-room residence, plus one can for basement and garage. To obtain the product, send a check or money order to Copper Brite Inc., Dept. 97 at 5147 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90016. Copies of the University tests are available by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Copper Brite, Inc., Dept. A.

3 To 1 Merit Victory!

High tars take back seat to MERIT technology in tests comparing taste and tar levels.

There's a low tar cigarette that's challenging high tar smoking—and winning.

The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Finish Second

Latest research proves smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

Packaging Candidates

vertising and public-relations firm based in Los Angeles. In 1972 he headed the November Group, a separate advertising agency set up for Nixon's re-election campaign. In May of this year, Reagan's campaign organization asked Dailey for his expertise, and he set up Campaign 80, a separate advertising agency based in Washington that will spend about $15 million to try to get Reagan elected.

"I see my role as that of a translator," Dailey says. "I translate governmentese and political rhetoric into words and ideas that the average voter can understand....The real thing is the candidate. There is too much talk about how the campaign will be run and not enough talk about why it is being run."

Selling Jimmy Carter is nothing new to Gerald Rafshoon. In 1966 Rafshoon, then an advertising executive, heard a radio spot for Georgia State Senator Jimmy Carter, who was running for governor. Rafshoon called up a friend of Carter and told him, "Your man has the worst advertising I've ever heard." Soon thereafter, Rafshoon took over, and he has been with Carter ever since. He helped Carter win the Georgia governorship in 1970, and he coordinated the media strategy that turned an obscure, one-term Southern governor into the President of the United States.

Brooklyn-born Rafshoon, 46, is an irreverent, fast talker, but when he talks, Jimmy Carter listens. Carter offered him a staff position in 1976 but Rafshoon declined. He opened a public-relations firm in Washington and was keeping a low political profile. But in the spring of 1978, with Carter sinking in the polls, Rafshoon was brought to the White House to rework Jimmy Carter's image, a process often described as "Rafshooning."

Rafshoon, like any top media adviser, is a master of detail. He told Carter to shorten his speeches so they wouldn't be so "damn boring." He advised Carter to fire Bella Abzug from her post on the National Women's Advisory Council. He even had the drapes that hung behind the President at his televised news conferences changed because he didn't like the color. Rafshoon's strategy this time has been to portray Carter as a sincere man who has taken tough stands in a tough job.

Rafshoon is nothing if not outspoken in defending his role. "Sure I packaged Jimmy Carter during the [1976] campaign," Rafshoon has said. "But there was nothing dishonest about it. I presented him as he is...."

This has been David Garth's first shot at electing a President, but there are some who believe that if anyone can get John Anderson elected President, it is Garth. He has an impressive list of winners, from Senators such as H. John Heinz of Pennsylvania and Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, to governors such as Hugh Carey in New York and Brendan Byrne in New Jersey, to mayors such as Ed Koch in New York and Tom Bradley of Los Angeles.

Garth is the Vince Lombardi of his trade. He has said many times, "I play to win. I make no apologies for it. And to win, you give it your best shot, everything you got. You gotta be tough." Like Rafshoon, he doesn't miss a detail. If he thinks his candidate's tie is the wrong color or pattern, he orders him to change it. In 1977 he told Koch to lose 25 pounds. Koch did.

Before a candidate is accepted by Garth, his staff researches the candidate thoroughly. (Garth works mainly for liberal Democrats, with an occasional exception for a progressive Republican.) On more than one occasion a prospective candidate has emerged from the initial interview marveling at how Garth seemed to know more about him and his city or state than he did. Once Garth accepts a candidate, more research begins, including detailed studies of the electorate, past voting patterns and opponents' voting records. And then the media onslaught begins.

Garth is not a flashy cinema-photographer. He knows television and he knows politics. A typical Garth-produced campaign ad will not have a lot of fancy music or happy family shots. The candidate talking, the candidate in action, with plenty of facts on the screen and in the narration. That is a Garth commercial.

Some critics charge that Americans are being sold a President just as they are sold a bar of soap. But Herbert Alexander, director of U.S.C.'s Citizens Research Foundation and the author of several books on Presidential campaigns, notes, "There is a limit to what you can package. You have to have a good product."

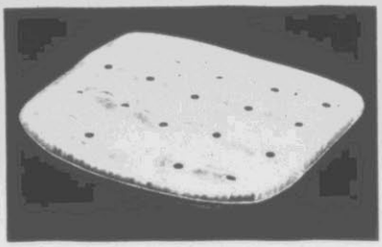
Spending millions of dollars on a media campaign and hiring an expert image maker doesn't guarantee a winning election. Garth has had several losing races. Gerald Rafshoon handled Mario Cuomo's unsuccessful 1978 race against Ed Koch in New York City. Edward Kennedy, John Connally and many others spent millions of dollars during the primary season on media campaigns, using some of the best experts in the country, and they all lost.

Sums up Alexander, "A television candidate alone can't win. But a candidate can't win without good television." FW

Now! Guaranteed Relief From Rectal/Vaginal Pain!

Sitting Was Agony—Then I Created the "Miracle Cushion"

A True Story...



If you suffer from pain in the rectal or vaginal area caused by the pressure of sitting, relief is available at last! If you're recovering from surgery, suffer from chronic anal discomfort or just feel sore from prolonged sitting or driving, I GUARANTEE RELIEF OR YOU PAY NOTHING!

IT ALL STARTED WITH HEMORRHOIDS

I recently suffered from hemorrhoids. Driving back and forth to and from work was torture. The "donut" cushion I bought at the drug store was useless. I was surprised to find there was nothing else available to give me relief.

THOSE "DONUT" CUSHIONS INCREASE THE SWELLING

I complained to my doctor who is a prominent colon rectal surgeon. He explained how the "donut" aggravates the condition because it increases swelling. The idea is to reduce the pressure by proper weight displacement. He said: "It would be great if you could sit on a waterbed like the hospitals use for patients with bed sores and arthritis." The idea hit me — why not a water-CUSHION!

SUCCESS WITH POST-OPERATIVE PATIENTS

Luckily, it happen to be a successful manufacturer of inflatable and foam rubber products, you have seen them advertised by various companies. Working with my designers, engineers and doctor, we created several water-cushions in a few days, incorporating the latest waterbed technology. The surgeon gave them to his post-surgical patients to test, including myself. The results were unanimous . . . total success in every case! The outcome was so encouraging, the "cushion" is being presented to a medical convention. Just think: if it works for post-operative patients, what it will do for you. I keep one in the car — now I "float" to work.

NOT AVAILABLE IN STORES

As one of the test patients said: "It's a miracle!" So that's what I call it. The "MIRACLE CUSHION" is not available in stores. It's made of rugged water bed material, strong enough to support the burliest heavyweight. Just fill it with water, lock it, and forget it. The top side contains a layer of foam for added comfort. The 16" x 17" cushion can be emptied and folded to fit in a pocket, purse or suitcase. It's light enough to be portable when filled, and it fits on the top of any chair, bench, or car seat. So if you make your living sitting down, if you're a trucker or a typist, drive a taxi or tractor, "Miracle-Cushion" is for you. It makes a great gift, and your long suffering friends and relatives will thank you forever.

WHY SIT WHEN YOU CAN "FLOAT"?

Cholesterol Update: Is Too Much Really Harmful?

By Paula Dranov

Ever since the word cholesterol entered the popular vocabulary some 20 years ago, it has had a negative connotation. Cholesterol is another term for animal fats — found in such staples of our diet as eggs, butter, milk, cheese and red meat — and we've been told repeatedly that the higher the level of cholesterol in the blood, the higher the risk of heart disease.

The latest recommendation on the subject, however, directly contradicts what we've been hearing all along. The Food and Nutrition Board, a prestigious arm of the National Research Council, recently issued a report declaring that there is no reason for healthy people to watch the amount of cholesterol and other fats they eat.

The board, which sets the recommended dietary standards for the U.S., contends that since there is no proof that eating less cholesterol will prolong life, there is no point in telling people to avoid it.

This startling departure from the nutritional advice we've been bombarded with for 20 years has not yet won widespread endorsement. In fact, authorities in medicine and in the Government have raised questions about the manner in which the board reached its conclusions and the allegiances of its members. The Food and Nutrition Board is not a Government-sponsored entity — its work on the cholesterol report was commercially sponsored. Then, too, the board is composed of nutritionists and biochemists, some with ties to the food industry. No physicians served on the panel.

The American Heart Association, which has long recommended a "prudent" low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, challenged the board's conclusion that there is no relationship between the amount of cholesterol consumed and heart disease. And Dr. Robert Levy, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute — a division of the National Institutes of Health — argued that the report represents the opinions of the board members, not new scientific facts.

Studies in recent years have revealed that the deposits that clog the blood vessels of heart-attack victims contain cholesterol. So far, however, the evidence against cholesterol remains largely statistical: If your blood cholesterol level is high — more than 250 milligrams per tenth of a liter of blood — your risk of heart disease is higher than it would be if your blood cholesterol level were in the normal range of 120 to 250 milligrams. It certainly doesn't mean that if your cholesterol level is high, you will have a heart attack or that if your level is normal, you won't.

This past year has brought forth a number of new recommendations, reiterating the advice about cholesterol we've been hearing. For the first time in history, the Federal Government issued a series of dietary guidelines aimed at establishing a national nutritional policy, including avoiding too much cholesterol.

The American Health Foundation went even further and concluded that the average adult should aim for a blood cholesterol level of 180 to 190 milligrams.

What is a health-conscious individual to do? First and foremost, keep this in mind: Though the Food and Nutrition Board differed from the other experts on one issue, it emphatically agreed with them on another — the need to maintain normal body weight as an important step in staying healthy. Ironically, that in itself tends to limit consumption of animal fats (fats are high in calories). In the long run, watching your weight probably means that you're cutting down on cholesterol anyway. WHAT IN THE WORLD

The Smith Brothers

Jim Smith of Harrisburg, Pa., was getting sick of the suspicious looks he received whenever he signed his name at hotels. So, 11 years ago, in a fit of pride, he started the Jim Smith Society, whose membership is restricted to...well, people named Jim Smith.

Founder Smith says he believes Jim Smith is the second-most common name — to John Smith — in America, and his society now boasts 984 members (in 10 countries), including 50 father/son Jim Smiths, 12 three-generation Jim Smith families and four female Jim Smiths (including mother/daughter combo, Jimmie Mae and Jimmie Lou). Smith admits, "I don't know how I'd take to admitting a Jim Smythe," but the club does

Minding Your Business

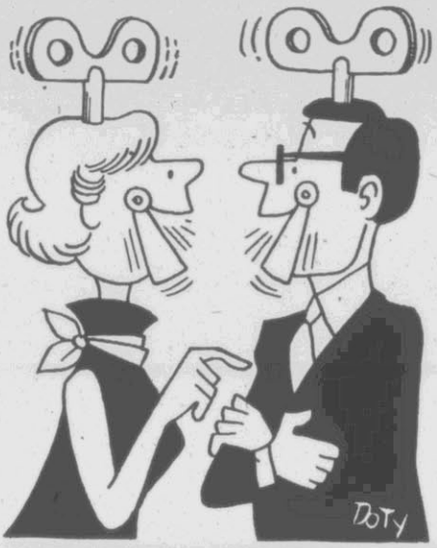
Ever have a complaint about a product and not know where to go? Well, in commemoration of National Consumer Education Week, which begins Oct. 5, Nell Stewart has some advice for you. Stewart is president of SOCAB (Society of Consumer Affairs Professionals in Business — a 1,600-member organization of business and government representatives), and she says that "Business wants to hear what you have to say."

If you are unhappy with something you bought, she suggests you first write the consumer affairs department of the company that manufactures the item (the company's address is usually on the label). The letter should state what happened — in factual, not emotional, tones — and what you want the company to do about it.

"In most cases you will hear within about three weeks," notes Stewart. "If not, write to the president of the company, and if you're still not satisfied, contact a third party, such as the Better Business Bureau or your state's Consumer Protection Agency."

But, stresses Stewart, the consumer does have certain responsibilities. "Seventy percent of complaints are attributable to not reading instructions," she points out.

Yakkity-Yak



We all know people who seem never to shut up, and usually we think them rude or selfish. But according to University of Louisville sociology professor Howard Borsuk, they may be trying to shield themselves from hearing something they don't want to hear. Or the compulsive talker may talk as a way of controlling people and situations.

The best thing you can do — if you can ever get in to say it — is point out the problem to the person, although Borsuk notes, any severe underlying insecurity may require professional help.

"In general, we all have a very natural tendency not to really listen to people," says Borsuk. "A good part of our attention is on what we're going to say next.... It's a shame, but that's what keeps psychiatrists so busy. They get paid to listen."

This Little Piggy Wore Tennis Shoes

In Pamplona, Spain, they have the running of the bulls. In Tempe, Ariz., it's the jogging of the pigs.

Pigs, chosen because their circulatory and digestive systems closely resemble those of humans, were recently reluctant participants in an Arizona State University study on exercise and heart disease.

"Getting the pigs to begin running was no problem," according to George Seperich, an assistant professor of agriculture who conducted the research. "But, after a lap or so, some persuasion was needed." Persuasion was supplied by one of Seperich's graduate students running behind the pigs with a long, two-pronged fork.

Eighteen pigs were chosen for the study; six began jogging when they were piglets; six when they reached the pig equivalent of middle age, and six went their whole lives without jogging. When a pig reached 200 pounds, it was sent to the slaughterhouse. Not surprisingly, for the pigs who never exercised, we can now say only, "Th-th-th-th-that's all folks."

Bringing home the bacon.

Are Childless Wives Happier?

Women who choose never to have children report higher levels of marital satisfaction than do mothers and women postponing children, a University of North Carolina at Greensboro study reports. Child-free women noted that they spend more time with their husbands, talk with them more often and have sexual relations more frequently.

The Anderson Difference

The media's love affair with John Anderson seems to be over. In early July, George Washington University political scientist Michael Robinson noted that the TV networks were "infatuated" with Anderson. Robinson, who has been monitoring media coverage of the candidates, said that Anderson received highly favorable treatment in all measured factors.

"But now it's gone completely the other way," notes Robinson. "He's getting the most negative coverage of any candidate."

Robinson reports that media coverage of new candidates tends to follow a pattern, starting out positively and then dropping, whether they continue successfully or begin to falter.

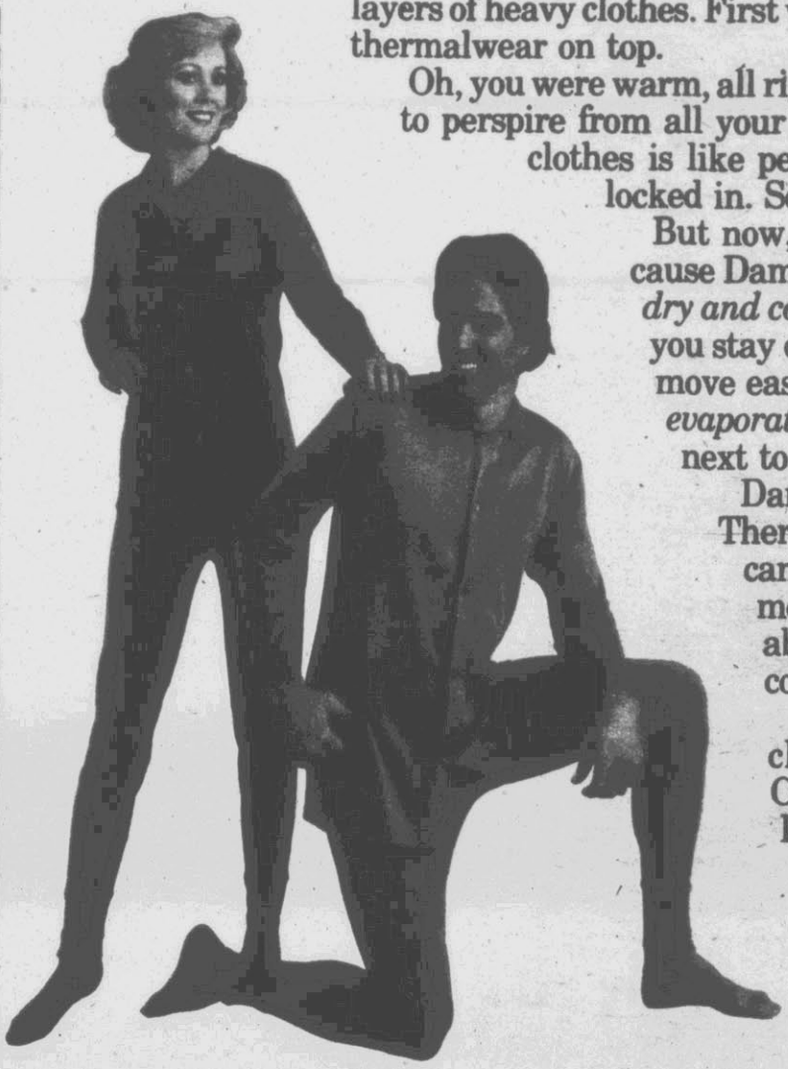
Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

9 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Jan. '80

Take the road to flavor in a low tar cigarette.

COLD ALL WINTER LONG?



It's 10° outside . . . Even getting colder. So you bundle up in layers and layers of heavy clothes. First with long underwear . . . then bulky, restrictive thermalwear on top.

Oh, you were warm, all right. Like in a Turkish bath. Because you began to perspire from all your activity. And perspiring in that mountain of clothes is like perspiring in a plastic bag! The perspiration is locked in. So there you are. Wet and miserable.

But now, at last, Damart has solved the problem. Because Damart invented underwear that keeps you warm, dry and comfortable no matter how cold it is or how long you stay out. Underwear that's soft and light so you can move easily. Underwear knitted to let the perspiration evaporate through so you always stay warm and dry next to your skin.

Damart does this with a new miracle fabric—Thermolactyl. No other underwear does this! You can wear Damart indoors too, and turn your thermostat into the 60's. You'll feel perfectly comfortable and enjoy dramatic savings in home heating costs.

Damart is so comfortable that the Mt. Everest climbing expedition wears it. So does the Chicago Bears Football Club, New England Patriots and Philadelphia Eagles.

THERE IS NO WARMER UNDERWEAR MADE!

Fill out and send to:
DAMART Dept. 13530
1811 Woodbury Ave.

YES! Rush me your FREE DAMART Catalog . . . I want to enjoy the fantastic warmth of Thermolactyl Underwear, a DAMART* exclusive. (I understand there is no obligation.)
