Iran Oil Port Said Captured By Iraqi; Jordan Stepping In

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Fighting was reported all along the 300-mile invasion front today and Iraq claimed the embattled Iranian port city of Khorramshahr had become "an advance stronghold" for Iraqi troops. Iran said the Iraqi penetrations had been halted in several areas and Iranian forces had forced the Iraqis to retreat in other sectors.

Jordan's prime minister ordered a mobilization of all transport vehicles to carry food and supplies to the Iraqi army. The mobilization and the reported loan of Jordanian air bases appeared to move Jordan closer to full-scale involvement in the war, and came after a visit by Jordanian King Hussein to Baghdad.

The Iraqi news agency carried a dispatch from Khorramshahr saying "the heroes of the battle are loftily standing" in the city and its port. It said Iraqi forces were rendering various services to the people of the area.

An Iranian military communique said Iranian jets raided military targets inside Iraq, "including air bases, radar installations, troop columns and military garrisons as well as oil and military-industrial installations."

The communique denied that the Iranian jets attacked civilian areas, although it said they had dropped leaflets over Baghdad. The Iranian air attacks ended a unilateral Iraqi cease-fire moments after it started.

Another Iranian communique said four people were killed and 25 UNDEAD WHEN Iraqi jets bombed the town of Kouhdasht, in Lorestan province. Kouhdasht is about 100 miles from the Iraqi border, in the central sector of the war front.

Iranian radio and television broadcast an interview with President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr in which he said Sunday's Iraqi air raids involved one or two planes, adding: "They were not considered to be attacks. Such raids are simply intended to restore the morale of a misled army."

An Iraqi spokesman said earlier Iranian warplanes made two raids on the Baghdad area and other Iraqi cities beginning at dawn Sunday, when Iraq had said it would stop fighting if the Iranians did likewise. Iraq said it retaliated with raids on the Tehran airport and oil installations elsewhere and would continue the war "in view of Iran's non-response to the cease-fire."

The Iranian communique said its forces at the northern end of the front, near Qasr-e-Shirin, were resisting concentrated Iraqi attacks, halting an Iraqi penetration there.

An Iraqi advance was also stopped in the central sector near Mehran, while Iraqi forces were driven back "some distance" Sunday in Musian, Takkeh and Pay-e-Pol, according to the communique broadcast by Tehran Radio. It said the Iranian forces achieved "impressive successes" in the central sector, taking partial control of the Karkeh river.

Training Approved For Energy Aides

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning approved the training of Department of Social Service employees to handle the new energy assistance program for low income families this winter.

DDS director Ed Garrison told the board that county residents stand to receive an estimated $675,000 under the program, designed to help pay heating cost for the estimated 10,300 eligible families this year.

Dunn explained that the proposed new regulation is in addition to the present regulation which makes it illegal for persons who have a bow and arrow or firearms to fire-light deer.

The new regulation, he said, will prohibit shining lights at deer or sweeping a light in search of deer by anyone, whether armed or not.

"It's an enforcement tool to help enforce the fire-lighting law," and "I would recommend it," Dunn noted.

Commissioners today also adopted a resolution congratulating Pitt Register of Deeds Elvira Allred on her election as president of the N.C. Association of Registers of Deeds at the group's annual meeting here last week.

Jack Richardson, director of Pitt Memorial Hospital reported to commissioners that the medical facility is ready to proceed with a $1.2 million program to expand food service, lab, medical records and inhalation therapy areas at the hospital.

He emphasized that it is not known at this time if federal or state money will be available for administration costs.

In other business this morning, the board voted to request the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission to hold a public hearing or a proposed new regulation that would outlaw shining lights at deer in Pitt between the hours of 11 p.m. and 30 minutes before sunrise.

The Pitt County Wildlife Club had requested the board to request a hearing.

Commissioners today also adopted a resolution congratulating Pitt Register of Deeds Elvira Allred on her election as president of the N.C. Association of Registers of Deeds at the group's annual meeting here last week.

Jack Richardson, director of Pitt Memorial Hospital reported to commissioners that the medical facility is ready to proceed with a $1.2 million program to expand food service, lab, medical records and inhalation therapy areas at the hospital.

He noted that the first phase will be to construct shell areas for the expansion during this fiscal year, and complete the interior of the shells next fiscal year.

Ralph Hall, director of the hospital's physical plant noted that with the completion of the proposed expansion program and the new bed tower now under construction, some $35 million will have been invested in the hospital, including the $16.7 million cost of the original building several years ago.

Around Ahwaz, the capital of the oil-rich Khuzistan province, an Iraqi column was "crushed" in the past few days and the area has been cleared of Iraqis, the Iranians claimed.

At the southern end of the front, the Iraqis were continuing to shell Abadan, from the Iraqi side of the Shatt al-Arab waterway. But Iran claimed that Iraqi armored forces had been forced back from around the port city of Khorramshahr, where fierce street fighting has been raging for nearly two weeks.

In Tehran, the Iranian Parliament cancelled a public session that was to have discussed the 52 American hostages. Tehran Radio said most of the deputies had gone to the war front. Today is the Americans' 338th day in captivity.

There was no report of the damage done by the raiding Iranian planes, but Iraq claimed its pilots destroyed two "jumbo jets" at Tehran's Mehrabad Airport and 20 helicopters at besieged Khorramshahr, sank an Iranian ship loaded with rockets and 10 gunboats in the Shatt al-Arab estuary at the head of the Persian Gulf, "set ablaze" oil tanks in Khorramshahr and a refinery at Tabriz, in northwest Iran, and attacked an airstrip and oil installation near Tehran.

Protest Border Violated

PEKING (AP) — Soviet soldiers crossed into Chinese Mongolia and exchanged fire with Chinese frontier guards Sunday in an incident that cost the life of one Soviet soldier and a Mongolian herdsman, China's Foreign Ministry said today.

Four Soviet soldiers in a motor boat crossed the Argun River frontier into Chinese Inner Mongolia and tried to abduct the herdsman, who resisted and was killed, according to a Peking Radio broadcast. The Soviets shot at the Chinese border guards, who returned fire and killed one of the Soviets, and the other three intruders escaped back into their territory, the radio said.

China made a strong protest to a Soviet Embassy official demanding that the Soviet Union "punish the culprits of this incident and stop all armed provocations along the Sino-Soviet border." There was no immediate comment from the Soviets.

In the protest note given to G.V. Kireev, Soviet interim charge d'affaires, China said "it must be pointed out that the Soviet side is doomed to failure in its attempt to profit from creating border tension and that it must bear full responsibility for all the consequences arising therefrom."

An Iraqi communique also claimed 12 Iranian fighters shot down and the destruction of two Iranian rocket bases and 11 Iranian tanks. It said all Iraqi planes returned safely to their bases, but admitted five Iraqis were killed and 16 wounded.

An Iranian communique claimed the shooting down of nine Iraqi jets during raids on several towns inside Iran ranging from Tabriz in the north to the oil-loading terminal on Kharg Island in the south.

Iran gave a different account of the Iraqi raid on Tehran and said nothing about any other Iraqi air attacks.

Cruise Ship Passengers Safe After 36 Hours In Lifeboat

By JEAN KIZER
Associated Press Writer

SITKA, Alaska (AP) — Passengers from a lifeboat that rescuers at first missed in the pitch-dark night and stormy waters of the Gulf of Alaska finally came ashore 36 hours after they abandoned the burning cruise ship Prinsendam.

In one of the biggest sea rescues in history, they and more than 500 other people were brought safely to land.

"After the Coast Guard left, we were left all alone in the fog and it was very, very scary. The waves were incredible. There wasn't much talking. We tried to conserve energy and warmth," said Regina O'Malley of New York City.

"Everybody was terrified...We knew that if we couldn't see a plane, they couldn't see us either," said Sgt. Jose Rios, one of two Air Force paramedics who were with the 18 forgotten passengers.

By Sunday night, they and the other passengers from the 400-foot luxury liner had been accounted for and were safely ashore, said the ship's owner, Holland America Cruises. Most were to head for their homes today by jet and bus.

The Coast Guard said 383 passengers landed in Valdez at the trans-Alaska oil pipeline marine terminal late Sunday night, and 150 people were brought into this southeast Alaska port, 500 miles southeast of Valdez.

The Coast Guard had ended its search late Saturday night in the belief that all the shivering occupants of the lifeboats and lifeboats launched by the Prinsendam had been picked up by helicopters, the supertanker Williamsburgh and Coast Guard cutter Boutwell.

But when a head count that night came up 18 short, and the Air Force could not account for two paramedics who had been dropped to the water in scuba gear to help with the rescue, search units went back into action. The people aboard the last lifeboat were rescued Sunday by the Boutwell.

Waves had washed over the sides of the lifeboat drenching the occupants, who suffered from constant seasickness and cold, said Ms. O'Malley.

"The waves were incredible, I'd say 30 or 40 feet," said Peter Kapetan of Fairfield, Conn.

The last search plane those in the lifeboat saw passed over at 6 p.m. Saturday, and they saw nothing else until the Boutwell pulled into view about seven hours later, Sgt. Rios said.

"At moments, depression would come over us, but when the tanker finally came, we felt we were going to make it," said Joan Davidson of Highland, N.Y.

The Prinsendam's engine room caught fire early Saturday morning and as the fire spread out of control, passengers were ordered into lifeboats about 6 a.m.

The liner, on a 30-day cruise to the Orient, was still burning early today, unmanned and adrift between the two Alaskan ports, about 120 miles off Yakutat. Billows of white smoke were pouring from the ship, and search units reported a red glow below decks.

The first vessel to reach the Prinsendam was the 1,000-foot Williamsburgh, which had taken on 1.5 million barrels of Alaska crude oil and was headed for Corpus Christi, Texas, around Cape Horn when it was pressed into service as a rescue vessel.

Rescued passengers aboard the Williamsburgh arrived in Valdez about 11:30 p.m. after up to 10 hours in lifeboats and almost another 24 hours jammed into tanker quarters designed for about 35 crewmen.

"They were just stacked in there; they were wall-to-wall," said Cmdr. James Woodie of the Coast Guard station at Valdez.

Mount Olive Wins Statewide Rescue Contest

CHARLOTTE — The Mount Olive Rescue Service heavy duty rescue team took first place in statewide rescue competition here Saturday, while a team from the Newton-Conover Rescue Squad, headed by Joe Burris, formerly of Greenville, and a former member of the Greenville Rescue Squad, placed first in first aid competition.

The competition was sponsored by the North Carolina Association of Rescue Squads at the group's 24th annual conference held here Friday and Saturday.

The honor for the Mount Olive team was the second in just over a month. The Mount Olive rescue team represented North Carolina in competition sponsored by the International Rescue and Emergency Care Association in New Orleans, on August 29, and placed fifth in that international rescue competition.

Mount Olive, which took second place honors in state competition last year, was asked by the N.C. Department of Insurance to represent the state in international competition after the Greenville Rescue Squad disbanded earlier this year and the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department decided not to field a competition team.

As winners of the N.C. Association of Rescue Squads' heavy duty rescue championship last year, the Greenville team would have represented the state in New Orleans, had they chosen to, according to Mount Olive Rescue Service Capt. Ray Brogden.

(Greenville teams have represented North Carolina in international competition for a number of years. In 1962, Greenville became the first United States team ever to win an international heavy duty rescue championship. Greenville also won back-to-back international championship in 1977 and 1978, and placed fourth in international competition last year. In all, Greenville teams have won 13 international first aid and heavy duty rescue trophies since 1961, and 28 trophies, including 15 first place awards, in state competition.)

As winners of Saturday's competition, Mount Olive will have the opportunity to represent North Carolina in international competition in Toronto, Canada, next August. By winning first place in the first aid competition, the Newton-Conover

The President and the Court

The outcome of next month's presidential election could have an important effect on the nation's highest court, and the decisions it makes between now and the end of this century. The president appoints Supreme Court justices, who then must be approved by the Senate. Because they are appointed for life, justices often serve long after the presidents who appointed them are gone. Five of the current Supreme Court justices are over 70 years old. If President Carter loses next month's election, he could become the first president since Andrew Johnson to leave office without making a Supreme Court appointment. A new Supreme Court term begins today.

Paycheck Hits The Jackpot

CUERO, Texas (AP) — Paycheck hit the jackpot at the Turkey Trot, taking home the coveted Traveling Trophy of Tumultuous Triumph.

The pride of Worthington, Minn., Paycheck lost in the second heat of the annual race to Texas turkey Ruby Begonia.

But in the end, Paycheck took the title and honors as Turkey Capital of the World for his home city.

Ruby Begonia's 1:35.3 bested Paycheck's 1:45.4 on the 100-yard trot, run right down the middle of Cuero's widest street.

But Ruby couldn't live down her capricious performance in the first heat last month in Worthington. In that race, she flew the coop, roosted on a roof and refused to come down. The default cost her 38 seconds, tacked on for a total score of 3:30.25.

It just wasn't enough to beat Paycheck's 3:10.35.

Worthington has won the trophy five times and Cuero, three.

CAR COLLIDES WITH BOAT — One person was reported injured Sunday night when a car collided with a boat. According to Trooper Coy Taylor a car and boat owned by Robert Edward Culifer, of Lucama, was parked on the right side of the road way, at Frog Level, about one mile west of Greenville, when it was struck in the rear by a car driven by Shirley Jean Brown, of Ahoskie. Taylor said Ms. Brown received minor injuries and was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital. The investigator said the Culifer auto had experienced car trouble and the auto was unoccupied at the time of the accident. No charges were made in the 10 p.m. accident. An estimated $1,500 damage was caused to the Culifer car and boat, and about $1,000 was caused to the Brown vehicle. ## Mt. Olive Wins....

Rescue Squad will have the opportunity to represent the state in first aid competition in Toronto.

"It was a real victory for the Newton-Conover team," according to David Yount, commander of the N.C. Association of Rescue Squads. Yount, who heads the Catawba County Emergency Medical Services system said Burris, a former Greenville Rescue Squad member and Greenville Fire-Rescue Department employee, joined his organization in March, and later became a member of the volunteer Newton-Conover Rescue Squad.

Burris, who was a member of a number of prize-winning Greenville rescue and first aid teams, "talked it up and got a team together," Yount explained. "Winning top honors in a field of 17 teams in the competition is a tribute to his leadership and skill," he said, noting that it was the first time the Newton-Conover Rescue Squad had ever participated in the state competition.

"It's a shame," Yount said, "that the Greenville squad disbanded and dropped out of the state association. Greenville teams were always the one to beat. That's what everyone strived for. It looks like now that Mount Olive, and hopefully Newton-Conover, will be the ones everybody is after."

Two former Greenville Rescue Squad members assisted Mount Olive in preparing for the international and state competitions. According to Ray Thompson, captain of the Mount Olive rescue team,

New Officer In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The town has hired a new policeman, Herald Dean Hines, Jr., who is scheduled to begin work Monday night, according to Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

Hines, 24, is a native of Winterville and resides at 417 E. Main St. He graduated from D.H. Conley High School. He has been a member of the Winterville Fire Department for some time.

"This will bring our police department up to three men," said Nobles. "I am glad that we once again have been able to get a man raised here that knows the situation. We are fortunate, too, to get a man of his character."

Hines is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.D. Hines, Sr. He is married to the former Elizabeth June Branch.

Coordinator To 'Reassure'

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The Carter-Mondale campaign, trying to allay concern that the ticket is retrenching in North Carolina, planned today to send letters of reassurance to state and local Democratic leaders, state campaign coordinator William Albers said.

Albers, confirming that his own duties in the state are being reduced, said in an interview Sunday that campaign activities will not cease and that other members of the state campaign staff will not be affected by his own new assignment.

Albers was in Asheville for the Democratic Party's annual Vance-Aycock dinner, which attracted about 900 party members.

As a result of a campaign reassessment last week, Albers said he now will serve as coordinator for a section of northern Virginia and will spend only part of his time in North Carolina.

"It's just a re-allocation of resources, my time, because we think we've got a shot at winning Virginia and we've got a good, solid organization here," he said.

Wallace Hyde, Asheville businessman and Carter chairman for the state, will assume some of the daily campaign management duties formerly held by Albers.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, who delivered the principal speech at the dinner Saturday night, said the reassessment by the campaign staff is part of a national adjustment one month before the election.

"We're doing this all around the country," he said. "We haven't raised as much money as we'd like and we're having to double up some."

Although Virginia went for Gerald Ford in 1976, Albers and Powell said recent polling by the Carter campaign indicated improvement for their chances there. Private and published polls have also given a comfortable lead to Carter in North Carolina, Albers said.

He cautioned, however, that he did not consider North Carolina "safe" for Carter.

Sen. Jesse Helms "and the Republicans, I think, are going to unleash a lot in North Carolina in the final weeks," Albers said.

Democrats went home from the Vance-Aycock weekend with many expressing optimism about the state ticket's chances in next month's election. And while concerned about the close Carter-Reagan race nationally, most appeared encouraged about the picture for Carter in North Carolina.

Good health is a product of heredity, environment, nutrition and exercise. Nutritional deficiency, resulting in malnutrition or disease, is one of the major problems in modern society despite adequate food supply, primarily because of ignorance of good nutrition. A well balanced diet, rich in all essential nutrients, is necessary to maintain a healthy body and mind. Authorities have found that a number of diseases can appear when there is a deficiency of one or more nutrients. Most diseases caused by such deficiencies can be corrected when all essential nutrients are supplied. However, in some instances of severe deficiency, irreparable damage may be done. Overweight is often a by-product of nutritional deficiency, since foods lacking in nutrition are often high in calories. Diet Center can teach you to correct overweight and keep it in check by eating a totally balanced diet. Call your local center today.

by Larry C. Whitlow

Stenciling is a centuries-old paint technique recently revived in updated designs and color combinations. It is just about the least expensive way to put patterns on a floor and has the extra advantage of being easily covered with a coat of paint if desired. A stenciled corridor, for example, is a great way to link two areas of a small home or apartment. With the floor carrying the color message, simple lightly-scaled furniture in solid colors will make the total design a comfortable environment in which to live. Choose wicker furniture, Parsons tables, Mexican chairs and drawer and shelf built-ins to keep the design simple.

Choose your carpeting, area rugs, and vinyl floors from the many fine samples we have on display at LARRY'S CARPETLAND INC., 3010 E. 10th St., 756-2300. We are not bashful in saying that we have the finest selection of Oriental and area rugs in Eastern N. Carolina...and we work hard to provide you with complete satisfaction. Add a winter wonderland look to your Christmas tree with these crocheted golden bells, silvery angels and frosty white snowflakes, all designed to be made from cotton crochet thread.

To obtain directions for making the crocheted ornaments, send your request for Leaflet No. C-1079 with $1.00 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or, you may order Kit No. K-1079 by sending check or money order for $11.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains sufficient yarn in white, gold and silver to make three to four dozen ornaments. The instruction leaflet is included as well as postage and handling charges.

Your crochet hooks and knitting needles can be a big help in winning the battle with inflation. Christmas gifts and decorations can often be made from leftover yarns. Even if you hold down a full-time job as office worker or busy mother you might be surprised at how much you can accomplish with a couple of hours each evening and some weekend afternoons.

Crocheted stars are pretty on a Christmas tree or as decorations on packages. You can make them from fine baby yarns or cotton crochet thread, using a steel crochet hook. I would suggest a size five or six hook for these.

To begin, chain five stitches and join with a slip stitch to form a ring. Next chain two and work 14 half-double crochets in the ring, joining with a slip stitch in the top of the chain made at the beginning of this round.

For the next round, work as follows: (Chain seven, slip stitch in the second chain from the hook, work a single crochet in the next chain, a half-double crochet in the next chain, a double crochet in each of the next two chains and a treble crochet in the last chain; skip two half-double crochets of the previous round and slip stitch in the next half-double crochet.) Repeat the steps between parentheses four times more and you will have a five-pointed star.

For those of you who only know how to work single and double crochet, here are instructions for making the other two stitches used.

To make a half-double crochet, wrap yarn once around the hook (yarnover), draw up a loop through the stitch, yarnover and draw hook through all three loops on the hook at one time.

To make a treble crochet, wrap the yarn twice around the hook before inserting the hook into the next stitch. Yarnover and draw yarn through two loops. Repeat this last step twice more and the treble crochet is complete.

While snowy white stars are exquisite on a green tree, you can make them in any color or try some in metallic yarn for a special touch of glitter.

If you make them from crochet cotton, you may want to starch them. You can use spray starch, but they will have more body if you will make a heavy solution of boiled starch.

In the coming weeks, I will share with you many ideas to save money on your holiday preparations.

Harassment Can Be Either Male Or Female

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: HARASSED IN GARLAND, TEXAS, complains that there are numerous organizations to protect women against sexual harassment but none to protect men. He describes himself as the president of a large corporation who is constantly being propositioned by female employees. HARASSED says, "It's hard to reject these offers because rejection is the ultimate insult."

Abby, sexual harassment means any persistent, unwanted sexual overtures from another. If someone makes a pass and gets rejected and that's the end of it, that is not harassment; when the passes continue, despite rejection, that's harassment!

I can understand how a male executive can feel uncomfortable saying no, but if he does, his job or income is not threatened.

On the other hand, if a female says no to her boss, it may cost her an increase in salary, a promotion or even her job. And if she resigns, she may not get very good references. S.R.K., ANN ARBOR, MICH.

DEAR S.R.K.: Today, there are many women executives to whom male employees are subordinate, so it's not a matter of discrimination against women — it's who outranks whom. In other words, rank has its privileges. Now let's hear it from Columbus, Ohio.

DEAR ABBY: HARASSED IN GARLAND, TEXAS, sure got off some beauts when he listed some of the subtle (?) approaches bosses get from their secretaries. He submitted that men need some sort of organization to protect them against sexual harassment on the job from their female subordinates.

I couldn't agree more. In addition to the old "My car's in the shop; if you drive me home after work I'll pour you a cool one," add these:

"Let me buy you lunch."
"Guess what? I dreamed about you last night."
"Gee, you smell nice. Come closer."
"My husband is a swell guy, but he's impotent."

There is little argument that color plays a major role in our perception of the size of the objects. For example, the brighter the color of a car, the larger the automobile will appear to be. Yellow, therefore will seem to be the largest of a selection of different colored, like-model cars. White will follow yellow on this size perception list followed by red, green, blue and black. The reason for this is that when brightness strikes the eye's retina, it will tend to spread out.

Rules For Congressmen

It's a sad day for our country when the Congress of the United States has to expell one of its members.

It has happened, however. Rep. Michael "Ozie" Myers has been expelled following his conviction of accepting a bribe in the Abscam operation carried out by the FBI.

Myers was the first congressman to be expelled since the Civil War. The congressman maintained that he was being treated unfairly, and the outlook is that he will be returned to Congress in the upcoming election by the voters of his district.

It was a distasteful duty of Congress. Expelling a member who was elected by the people of his district is difficult, indeed. Congressmen have been convicted of crimes before, of course and there have been cases of their being re-elected following such convictions.

Perhaps it shouldn't be Congress' burden to censure or expell such members. Perhaps it should be made clear in the law that persons convicted of certain major crimes are not eligible to serve in Congress.

Certainly the American people should be able to expect certain levels of conduct from any member of Congress, even those from another district or another state.

Trudeau Plan A Bold Move

A constitution that guarantees freedoms of thought, religion, press, life, liberty, security from arrest without being informed of charges and protection from cruel and unusual punishment sounds ideal.

Canadian Prime Minister Elliot Trudeau wants to bring the British North America Act of 1867 to Canada, but he wants it amended by Parliament before it is returned to guarantee those freedoms.

The proposals have brought on controversy in that neighboring nation whose peoples are of such varied make-ups.

They would, in effect, amend the Canadian constitution externally through the British Parliament.

It is a bold move for unity on the part of Trudeau. If he can bring it off, the constitution could be a rallying point for solidifying Canada.

THIS AFTERNOON Look To Victims

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — All too often, the victims of crime and witnesses pressed to help the law enforcement community bring criminals to justice have complained that they are abused by the system more than the perpetrator is punished.

Members of the Governor's Crime commission, made up mostly of officials in the criminal justice field, has found some merit in that protest. The "mechanical, methodical process of pursuing, protecting, and punishing offenders" has set up a system which has "stepped over the body of the victim," that study commission declares in its legislative program for 1981.

BILL NOBLITT

The commission's concern cuts two ways: one, regard for the citizen mistreated; but, equally, the concern that "one who has been antagonized by the systems impersonal operating methods is not likely to feel obligated to assist the prosecution."

Agreeing that its proposals are only a start in the right direction, the commission developed several recommendations for change:

Restitution
A seemingly minor change in the order in which restitution money collected from convicted criminals is distributed is actually rather important. The current law requires that the money go to various governmental agencies, the court, the lawyers, and, finally, the victims. Victims are at least moved up on that list, if not to the top, at least to the middle. Lawyers would move to the bottom, with city or county governments and fines to the local school fund coming beneath payment to the victims.

Also, restitution now is made as the convicted criminal pays installments into the clerk of court's office. This means victims most often wait long periods of time to collect; sometimes never being fully restored as ordered by the court.

Most states which have restitution programs either fund them with taxpayer dollars, or use the direct criminal-to-victim payback. The commission is proposing that the state "seed" a restitution fund with $6 million, and then keep it solvent by having all restitution money paid to local courts by the convicts regularly funneled into that central bank. Victims would, then, receive 80 percent of the court-ordered amount immediately, waiting until the convict makes final payment to get the remaining 20 percent.

Witness Aid
To help witnesses avoid the delays and inconvenience so often associated with court proceedings, the commission proposes to expand an experimental witness assistance program already working in four judicial districts.

Coordinators working for the district attorneys would keep witnesses up to date on any delays, continuances, or other proceedings, and help them find the right courtroom at the proper time. The commission says "their contribution to alleviating anger and frustration among witnesses and to improving the image of the entire legal community is heralded," and suggest the program statewide.

The Elderly
Two key proposals are spelled out for the elderly who, because of fixed incomes and physical frailty, suffer excessively from crime.

Other Editors Say Now, The Pay-Off

(Salisbury Post)
The least surprising endorsement of the year came from the North Carolina Association of Educators. It will support Governor Jim Hunt and Lt. Governor Jimmy Green for re-election.

In other words, the political pay-off has arrived for the Democratic candidates. Thanks to Hunt and Green — and the prospect of a general election — the General Assembly gave the teachers a 15 percent increase in pay-and-benefits this year. The year before Governor Hunt had fought to keep the teachers' pay hike within the President's guidelines, around seven percent.

The difference, of course, was solely in the timing. While we believe the Democratic ticket could have won without the NCAE endorsement, the governor is too good a politician not to hedge his bets.

It may be, however, that the governor will find that he has a tiger by the tail. At the same press conference where the NCAE announced its endorsement of Hunt and Green, the teachers' union took advantage of the presence of the press to announce it now wants another pay raise.

Although the last raise is barely in effect, the NCAE wants the state to start paying it another raise equivalent to the increase in the cost of living retroactive to last April. It is estimated this would cost $255 million annually.

In addition, the NCAE wants to unionize the faculty of the North Carolina public university system, and in so doing remove control of faculty salaries from the UNC Board of Governors. We anticipate that the NCAE may find itself choking on this proposal.

The endorsement of Hunt and Green was accompanied by extravagant praise for them — although, more specifically for Hunt.

One official declared "Governor Hunt has already earned the right to be called a great education governor."

Another said teacher morale is at an "all-time high" because of the "revolutionary changes" during Hunt's administration.

There is merit in the claims that Governor Hunt has been a good friend of public education, in spite, at times, of opposition from the teachers and their union.

But the hyperbole that the NCAE leaders engage can best be described in semi-polite slang as bushwa. The NCAE does not love the governor for pushing for competency testing or for extended reading programs. It loves Governor Hunt because he is filling their pocketbooks with cash. Let him insist on competency testing of teachers, and we will soon see how faithful their love is.

OUR GOD — AND THE LIVING UNIVERSE

Every leaf on a tree is a chemical factory which works nearly twenty-four hours a day. We are living beings established in a world — and a universe — which is teeming with active and continuous life.

Why, then, do some people believe that God is dead just because we cannot see Him? The omnipresence of life is overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Moreover, the Bible speaks of the living God who has revealed Himself to man. The presence of the Divine is in all that we do, think, or experience. — Eljsha Douglass

Hunt Looks To Highways

An AP News Analysis
By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — As he campaigns around the state, Gov. Jim Hunt is carefully laying the groundwork for what may well be his next major political battle should he win re-election next month.

With an eye cast beyond the Nov. 4 election with Republican I. Beverly Lake Jr., Hunt is preparing audiences — and state legislators — for tough decisions that the General Assembly will have to face next year to come up with more money for the state's highway system.

In his standard campaign speech, Hunt often refers to highway money problems.

"We have got to have some additional revenues," he said at a recent rally. "We have got to keep our road program going."

Hunt doesn't come out and say so, but he is leaving audiences with the distinct impression that a much talked-about proposal to increase the tax on gasoline is inevitable and that he will fight for it next year.

"Why, sure he is. That's exactly what he's telling them," George Harper, a member of the state Board of Transportation from Kinston, said after watching the governor spend an afternoon of speech-making.

"If we don't have some more money, we're not going to be able to take care of what we have. We won't even be able to fix our own potholes," Harper added.

If Hunt's acknowledged lead in his race with Lake holds up, it may be that his plan for generating new highway revenues — and his success in promoting it in the General Assembly — will determine whether he can keep in a second term the legislative clout he enjoyed throughout his first.

And the way he handles it may determine whether Hunt can continue to avoid the fate of other recent North Carolina governors — leaving office with their popularity diminished and political successes over.

Any new tax proposal has the potential to be politically damaging for a North Carolina politician, and a gasoline tax can be especially explosive as voters are reminded of it everytime the pull up to a pump.

New and increased taxes during Gov. Bob Scott's administration, including a two-cent rise in the gas tax in 1969, were generally believed to have hurt his popularity — and may have even been a lingering element in his crushing loss to Hunt in the Democratic primary this spring.

Hunt, while avoiding a firm commitment to a tax increase, frequently refers to the need for more highway tax money and dismisses alternative plans, such as one boosted by Lake, as only a short-term solution.

"I'm looking for people to become prepared, understand what's involved and build an underlying support," Hunt said in an interview.

"There will have to be additional revenues and the general fund does not look good now. We've got to have a plan that will last, not one good for just one year," Hunt said.

The Hunt administration's concern for the dwindling bank account for road construction and maintenance is well known already. State Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch underscored the concern anew last week when he announced that gas tax collections plummeted 12.3 percent during August — normally a vacation time that sees a lot of driving and keeps the gas-tax coffers filled.

The tax collections are falling due to decreased gas consumption by energy-conscious motorists, and state officials maintain rising highway construction costs will spell doom for the state's road system.

The commission named by Hunt to study the problem, headed by former Gov. Dan Moore, is nearing a recommendation for two things: an additional 4 percent sales tax on the wholesale price of gas and a lifting of the $120 ceiling on vehicle sales taxes.

The moves are designed to increase an estimated $188 million in yearly collections. The new gas tax, unlike the present 9 1/4 cent-a-gallon tax that would be retained, would grow with the rising cost of gasoline and raise the price at the pump by about a nickle a gallon at current prices.

Shah's Foresight Helps Today

By SAJID RIZVI
United Press International

Expert opinion at the beginning of the Persian Gulf war was that Iran — rent by months of revolution, its economy a shambles, its army disorganized — would fall easy prey to Iraq, especially if it lost its oil-producing capacity.

Thirteen days later, Iran seemed to be in better shape than it was at the beginning, partly because of the foresight of the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Embattled Iran is using oil from huge depots set up by the shah and it is getting spare parts for its U.S.-built warplanes both from European sources and from the large stockpiles secured by the shah before his overthrow in February 1979.

Although Iraq started the conflict with a surprise offensive, Iran was expecting a war anyway, if not necessarily with Iraq.

Predictions of fighting, famine and isolation began with the seizure of the American hostages 336 days ago. Moslem fundamentalists confidently anticipated an American rescue attempt and laid contingency plans. Targets were not quite met amid government infighting, but clear outlines did emerge.

Iran has reported 22 attempts to topple Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and Iranian leaders said that in some cases soldiers of the late shah planned to use Iraq as a springboard. Safeguards were planned.

The Iranians also claimed to know of "enemy plans" to seize or sabotage the country's oil installations. These charges were not related to Iraq, but they indicated Iran did realize that its soft underbelly, the oil-rich Khuzestan province bordering Iraq and the Persian Gulf, was vulnerable.

Despite interference by militarily ignorant "envoys of the Imam," professional soldiers made contingency plans which were never disclosed.

Economic sanctions resulting from the hostage-taking led to a massive scramble during the summer to stockpile food in silos and cold-storage depots across the country.

One obvious question is how can Iran's food distribution system, based on fuel-guzzling railroads and trucks, continue to function when the chief oil-refining facility at Abadan is out of action?

The answer is that the Iranians are dipping into fuel storage tanks which the shah set up across Iran. They are also seeking, or already receiving, part of their fuel requirements from abroad, most likely overland from the Soviet Union.

Iran's revolutionaries enforced fuel conservation at gunpoint, resulting in a sharp drop in consumption from the normal 700,000 barrels a day.

It would be no surprise if Iran already has become an importer of foreign fuel, particularly heating oil for the winter which has now begun.

Soviet and East European supplies eagerly filled the gap when the European Economic Community joined the U.S. trade boycott last summer.

The Iranian military is reported to be getting vital spares for its U.S. weapons systems through private middlemen in Western Europe. Iran Air, the state-run national airline, is also believed to be receiving Boeing spares from the same sources.

Farm Scene

By SAMUEL N. UZZELL
Agri. Ext. Agent

Nematodes are microscopic roundworms that live in the soil. Many species of nematodes cause no damage to plants or animals, but many do cause economic losses to plants. There are thousands of species that also live in fresh and salt water, but the nematodes most important to eastern North Carolina are the few species that feed each year on tobacco, corn, soybeans, peanuts, and other widely planted crops.

In Pitt County, where certain fields have been in cultivation for decades, nematodes can be a serious detriment to crop production. Nematodes are able to live and move freely in sandy soils. Compact, tight soils such as clay or silt restrict nematode movement. It is no surprise that the sandy coastal plains soils of North Carolina suffer nematode damage each year. Where nematode populations have reached high levels poor yields can be expected. Yearly nematicide treatment is called for.

Fortunately for North Carolinians, the North Carolina Department of Agriculture has the capability to identify both the population level and the species of nematodes in the sample, and based upon this information, predict the need for a nematicide in next year's crop. The cost of this service is only one dollar and can save the grower many times that amount.

The damage caused by nematodes is sometimes painfully obvious and other times masked by other situations. Plants often appear yellowed, wilted or tend to look like micronutrient deficiencies. These symptoms occur because nematodes feeding on the roots inhibit the absorption of water and nutrients. The worst damage caused by nematodes is perhaps that their feed allows the entry of plant pathogens. Where nematodes are in high number, the loss of plants due to soil fungus diseases is always higher than where there are no nematodes.

Nematode sampling is usually done in the fall as soil samples are taken. As with soil samples, the upper eight inches of ground is probed. This is the potential rooting zone for most crops. It is also the area that will hold the most nematodes. Samples from a field should be taken at random and from all portions of the field.

Last year in Pitt County 531 nematode samples were submitted from 64 growers. Of these samples, 204 were from tobacco, 178 from corn fields, 88 on soybeans, and 46 on peanuts. There were 34 samples from other crops. These growers found that taking soil and nematode samples is an integral part of sound farm management.

This year, another nematode drive is in the making. Any soil or nematode sample that is taken and is returned to the Pitt County Extension Office by October 9 or October 16 will be taken to the Nematode assay lab in Raleigh. Each nematode assay should have one dollar check to cover the cost of processing.

Anyone interested in joining the 1980 Pitt County Nematode drive should contact Sam Uzzell at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office. Time spent taking nematode and soil samples is time well spent.

Peanut Meeting Is Planned

P.R. (Bobby) Smith, assistant to the secretary of agriculture, with the support of the peanut associations and organizations in the Virginia-Carolina area, will conduct a meeting in Courtland, Va., in the courtroom at 10 a.m., October 7.

The meeting will permit peanut growers and others interested in peanut legislation to express their opinions concerning the current peanut legislation and needs to be included in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1981.

Smith will open the meeting with a general statement, followed by Milton Erickson, who will give economic background concerning peanut legislation. Joe Sugg, consultant to the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association will preside, allowing every person present an opportunity to present a statement not to exceed five minutes in length. When all have had an opportunity to present a statement, those needing additional time will be permitted to make additional comments.

Those not desiring to make a public statement are encouraged to provide a written statement at the meeting or mail a written statement to Russell C. Schools, executive secretary, Virginia Peanut Growers Association, P.O. Box 149, Capron, Va. 23829, or to the executive officer in charge of their farm organization who will see the statement is forwarded to Washington.

Hunt, in building what appears to be the argument for a new gas tax, counters those who say a shaky gas-supply outlook for the future means this is not a time to build new roads.

"We can't stop building roads and we can't let the ones we have start crumbling on us," he said. "If we do, I assure you our economic growth will come to a halt."

Television Set, Phone Double As Bank Tellers

By THOMAS RIZZO
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Flip on your television set, pick up your phone, and you can pay a bill, check the community calendar or look up something in the encyclopedia. It's called Channel 2000, an experiment in home banking and electronic information that starts today for 200 Columbus households.

At the touch of a button, televisions turn into computer terminals that can bring to the TV screen items ranging from the public library catalog to math problems.

Channel 2000 is a joint project of Banc One Corp., a bank holding company that has pioneered electronic banking services, and OCLC Inc., which operates a computer network for libraries.

The aim of the four-month experiment for participating Banc One customers is to evaluate the practicality of an electronic home banking and information service, according to project director John Russell, a senior vice president of Banc One Corp.

Not only is stay-at-home banking expected to prove convenient for customers — no more in-person visits for depositing checks or paying bills — but it also should cut labor and postal costs for banks, which no longer will have to process and mail statements, Russell said.

The system consists of an ordinary television set, a telephone and a special adapter unit developed by OCLC. Once the adapter is attached to VHF antenna connections, the TV becomes a computer terminal.

Channel 2000 engages when the customer dials a special code and places the telephone handset in the cradle of the adapter.

Poll Has N.C. Demos Continuing Out Front

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

— Democratic candidates in state and national races are holding their dominant positions in North Carolina, according to a Charlotte newspaper poll.

The poll, conducted by The Charlotte Observer between Sept. 23 and 26, showed only slight variations from earlier polls in the relative standing of Democratic and Republican candidates.

In the closest state race, according to the poll, Democratic Sen. Robert Morgan with 54 percent leads Republican John East with 28 percent. Of the others surveyed, 17 percent were undecided and 1 percent preferred someone else.

Those figures indicate that East has closed the gap between him and Morgan by 4 percentage points.

The poll showed President Carter with 46 percent, and GOP presidential nominee Ronald Reagan with 34 percent.

In the top state race, 69 percent of the voters surveyed said they would vote for Democrat Jim Hunt for governor, while 21 percent said they prefer Republican challenger I. Beverly Lake Jr. Of the remainder, 9 percent were undecided and 1 percent preferred other candidates.

The poll was based on interviews with 413 registered voters across the state in the poll. The margin of error was plus or minus 4.9 percent.

The Charlotte Observer poll used a method called random digit dialing, which allows interviewers to survey people with unlisted and unpublished telephone numbers as well as published telephone numbers.

The number of respondents in each county was based on the county's percentage of the state's registered voters.

Carter's percentage was the same as in an earlier poll conducted Sept. 2-5 by The Observer. Reagan's total increased 1 percentage point. Independent candidate John Anderson had 4 percent and all other candidates 1 percent.

Fifteen percent of those surveyed were undecided.

In another state race, the poll showed Democratic Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green ahead of Republican Bill Cobey 60 percent to 22 percent. Seventeen percent were undecided and 1 percent preferred other candidates.

The newspaper's polls show slight gains for Republicans in state races and perhaps a trend from undecided to Republican.

Wallace Hyde, Carter's campaign chairman in North Carolina, said the poll results did not surprise him. Hyde said campaign staff polls show the president leading by a larger margin, about 19 percentage points.

Clark Horvath, state executive director of Reagan's campaign, said he believed the two candidates are closer than the Observer poll indicates.

"We have two polls that were done in the field to show us within 3 points of Jimmy Carter here," he said.

Little Change For Consumers In Economic Turns

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Coping with the ups and downs of the economy for the past 12 months has been a lot like riding a roller coaster: You feel awfully dizzy when you get off, but you end up pretty much where you started.

"Nothing much has changed," said Fabian Linden, an economist with the Conference Board, a research group sponsored by business. "I think the consumer's in a somewhat better condition...but there's no 'gee-whiz' change."

A year ago today, the Federal Reserve Board announced a major anti-inflation campaign. The first move was an increase in the discount rate — the amount the board charges its member banks who want to borrow money.

The roller coaster ride began.

Interest rates of all kinds went up. The prime rate — the amount banks charge their very best customers — hit a record 20 percent in April. It got harder and harder to find someone willing to lend money for a mortgage. In March, the Federal Reserve imposed controls on consumer borrowing and credit card use. Credit dried up. The cost of buying now and paying later increased.

The economy slowed. It slowed so much there was a recession. During the second quarter of this year, the gross national product fell at an annual rate of 9.6 percent. Prices stopped rising so quickly. By July, interest rates had dropped. The prime rate was below 11 percent. The Consumer Price Index was unchanged for the first time in years. At the same time, however, unemployment was rising. The housing and auto industries — which depend heavily on borrowing — were in trouble.

The controls on consumer borrowing were lifted. Interest rates started rising again. So did installment debt. And the Consumer Price Index. Last month, the Fed increased the discount rate — which had dropped to 10 percent — by a full percentage point, a move President Carter called ill-advised. By the end of last week, the prime rate was at 14 percent, almost where it was a year ago.

What does it all mean? Has anything changed?

A Kansas woman, who didn't want her name used, wasn't sure. Rising prices are still a problem, she said, even though she and her husband together earn more than $30,000 a year.

"We don't buy things that maybe we would have bought on impulse," she said. "Money just doesn't stretch as far...Anywhere you can, you cut corners."

Emily Card is an expert on money — particularly credit. She helped draft the Equal Credit Opportunity Act passed by Congress in 1974, directed the Women's Credit Rights Project of the University of Southern California and is now on a fellowship at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard.

The last 12 months, she said, have left consumers sadder, but wiser. "A year ago, we were all a little more innocent," Ms. Card said. Today, consumers are wary, she said, adding, "Once again we are going to see a period of unpredictable credit rates for the consumer."

Look at a few numbers.

In September 1979, outstanding consumer installment debt — not counting mortgages — increased by a record $4.45 billion. Outstanding debt kept growing, although at a slower pace, through March 1980.

Then came controls. During April, outstanding installment debt decreased by almost $2 billion — the first drop in almost five years. The downward trend continued through July, the latest month for which figures are available.

By July, however, consumers were loosening the pursestrings a bit. On an overall basis, debt repayments exceeded credit extensions. But new borrowing rose for the first time since February.

Americans are regaining some of their optimism. The Consumer Confidence Index put together by the Conference Board declined steadily from October 1979 to May 1980, then started rising again. The index — measured against a base of 100 during 1969-70 — stood at 65.8 in August, and Linden said preliminary figures showed a "whopping improvement in September." That would bring the index near last September's 78.2 level.

Personal savings dipped to a record low late last year, representing only about 3 percent of disposable income. The savings rate increased to over 5 percent earlier this year, as consumers became worried about the future and found it harder to borrow. Now, however, credit is again widely available — although it still costs more. And the savings rate has dipped back to just above 4 percent.

Inflation has slowed. The Consumer Price Index rose seven-tenths of a percent in August; from September through March it rose 1 percent a month or more. But new increases in interest rates will show up in the index soon and will combine with higher food prices to push inflation into the double-digit category again.

Some things have changed. The Labor Department said workers' buying power — after taxes — went up three-tenths of a percent in August. But it was still 6.5 percent below what it was a year earlier.

Fear Not For Artist's Strange Brown Figures

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer
ALDERSON, W.Va. (AP) — Strange, brown creatures lurking in the fields stare intently at visitors driving up the gravelled driveway to Mark Blumenstein's mountaintop home.

Fear not. These creatures are more apt to evoke smiles than fright.

They're whimsical metal sculptures fashioned by Blumenstein from junk farm machinery.

And what began seven years ago "with three tractor seats under the stairwell" has turned into a success story for the transplanted Philadelphian.

"Well, I don't like to discuss money," the 37-year-old artist said while sitting in his studio. "But everytime I go somewhere, I need a larger vehicle to carry my art."

"It gets hard on the back," he said with a smile.

Blumenstein left the city life and moved to West Virginia "to follow my art," he said. "That's true."

He grimaces when speaking about his days as a technical and promotional specialist for a photographic equipment company in Philadelphia. "That's then," he said with a shrug.

"There is no beginning and end to the art," he said. "It evolves as I do."

Using what he calls the "remnants of society and castoffs," Blumenstein creates sculptures resembling wide-eyed prehistoric birds, whimsical water-spouting dragons and time machines. Nearly any scrap of farm machinery is fair game — mowing machine cutting bars, tractor seats, sickles and metal tractor wheels.

Armed with a welding torch and glue, Blumenstein turns a door spring into a bobbing tongue; nuts become crossed eyes; washers and bolts emerge as spectacles.

Pieced together, they become sculptures, mobiles, chairs and jewelry.

"My life is carried through with trying to appreciate the more humorous sides," Blumenstein said as he pointed to a new creation housed in a red fire box.

"They don't have names," he said, explaining that he lets the buyer name the creation. Blumenstein said, for instance, that he wouldn't name a sculpture "Harry" because "somebody might say it doesn't look like Harry."

Blumenstein gives a rather ethereal explanation for his creations.

"I feel I don't come up with the ideas for them," he said. "The thought has been there. The product is my art and the essence of the feeling I express to the metal. What you see is me."

The creations resembling time machines come from his nighttime fantasies. "I've always been able to fly — in my mind, in my dreams."

It used to be that Blumenstein had to hunt for the metal scraps at dumps and recycling centers, but now he says people bring the old metal to him at his farm at Alderson.

However, the success that brings the discarded machinery to his door also has disturbed the solitude he sought when he came to the rolling hills that surround his home in eastern West Virginia.

"I'm somewhat bothered by curiosity-seekers," he bemoaned. "People just drive right up here. I'll just get a gate man, that's all."

On the other hand, he said he feels "blessed."

"Folks come to me now for my art. Some artists can work everyday but can't feed themselves."

Blumenstein displays most of his works at small gatherings and some art exhibits in the Philadelphia, Washington, New York areas.

The bespectacled, curly haired artist said he works in his studio daily. "I work whenever I can," he said. He thought for a minute and added, "I go to play. I really don't go to work."

The Iraqi Information Ministry hustled the foreign press off to the Iranian border city of Mehran Friday after President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr claimed it had been recaptured. The journalists found the Iraqis in full control of the almost deserted city.

Foreign reporters also were taken to the sites of bombing raids on civilian targets and to the Rachid Military Base southeast of the city and the international and military airports to the west after raids on them.

But there have been no press tours to Kirkuk and Mosul, both oil producing and refining centers that have been repeatedly hit by Iranian air strikes.

The touring reporters have come under artillery fire and the bombs of Iran's U.S.-made Phantoms.

Iraq's defense minister and deputy chief of staff, Gen. Adnan Khairallah, who is President Saddam Hussein's brother-in-law, has held two news conferences and surprised reporters by his frankness.

Last Saturday, he confirmed that the nuclear research plant in Baghdad had been attacked in an air raid Sept. 30. The Information Minister had denied the attack took place and the French reporter who first got the story from the French Embassy was expelled for sending it out.

Khairallah also explained the discrepancy between Iraqi claims that such cities as Ahwaz and Khorramshahr had fallen and Iranian claims that they had not. The general said in Iraqi military parlance, a city had fallen when it was in range of Iraq's artillery.

The Iraqi press is strictly controlled by the government, and no Western correspondents have been stationed in Baghdad full time. Only in the past year have they been admitted to the country with any regularity.

Now, in addition to reporters from the agencies, networks and major Western newspapers, there are large press groups from France, which gets 23 percent of its oil from Iraq, Brazil, which gets 45 percent of its petroleum, and Japan, which gets 30 percent.

Reporters for small weekly and daily newspapers, many of them from Third World nations that often are invited to Baghdad for various events, are allowed to stay for five days. They are replaced by similar reporters waiting in Amman, Jordan.

From the balconies of their rooms, the reporters can watch the Iranian jets screaming down a few hundred feet above the building.

Reporters have been taken by bus to Basra several times for visits to frontline positions at Khorramshahr, Ahwaz and Dezful.

Sharif Saddened By Blacklisting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Omar Sharif, the Egyptian-born actor who has been blacklisted by Arab states for appearing in a film made in Israel, says Arabs should not travel to the Jewish state until the Palestinian question is resolved.

In a telephone interview from France with Beirut's English-language weekly Monday Morning, Sharif said he had been blacklisted for playing a minor role in the movie "Ashanti," produced by Georges Alain Vuille.

Sharif said he dropped a leading role and took a guest part after the decision was made to film in Israel. His part was filmed in Palermo, Sicily, he said.

The decision to blacklist Sharif and his films by the Arab Boycott of Israel office in Damascus, Syria, "makes me sad. I like to go to the Arab countries and now I can't," he was quoted as saying.

But Sharif said, "I don't think Arabs should go to Israel now — not until the Palestinian problem is resolved."

Sleep Studies Aid Drug Use

By LILLIAN SWANSON

PITTSBURGH (AP) —

Researchers at Western Psychiatric Institute say sleep patterns provide a quick way of predicting which drugs used for treating severe depression will help a patient.

"The way the sleep changes the first two nights predicts very nicely what is going to happen clinically three or four weeks later," said Dr. David J. Kupfer, a director of the institute's sleep center, one of the leading facilities of its kind in the nation.

Kupfer said doctors attempting to treat patients suffering from depression often must try one drug after another before finding one that is helpful. The center's research is aimed at cutting down that time, and putting a patient on the road to recovery sooner.

Doctors have long known that patients who are depressed have sleep patterns that are different from the norm. The difference is in the onset and intensity of rapid eye movements, called REM, the period of sleep when people dream.

With healthy people, the first REM period begins about 90 minutes after falling asleep. The REM periods last longer and become more intense over the night.

People who suffer from severe depression begin REM sleep much sooner and may have the most intense REM period first. Or the intensity may remain constant over the night, Kupfer said.

Using that information, Western Psychiatric researchers tested the effect of amitriptyline, a commonly used drug for depression, on sleep habits. They found that if the drug was going to help a patient, there were marked changes in the onset of the REM period within two days.

"It's an objective measure. A predictor," Kupfer said. Kupfer presented the center's findings in a paper to the American Psychiatric Association convention in San Francisco in May.

With evidence in hand for the effects of the most commonly used drug, the center has turned its attention to the changes in sleep patterns linked to other drugs used for depression. Researchers also are trying to determine why sleep patterns change with depression.

The studies are conducted in hospital rooms that were designed to look like hotel rooms, with a double bed, dresser and framed prints on the walls of each room.

"No one has trouble going to sleep," Kupfer said, slapping a firm mattress.

A wall jack that holds a handful of thin wires is the only indication that each room is a laboratory. At bedtime, the wires are attached to a patient's head and researchers in another room monitor the sleep patterns.

The center works with patients at the institute and does follow-up work on people who spend a few nights a month at the center.

The researchers are trying to help people who have recurring problems and patients whose illnesses are difficult to diagnose.

"Good treatment for depression does exist. If it's untreated it can go on for years at a terrible cost to people and their families," Kupfer said.

Heroin Charges Are Placed

Greenville police, Friday afternoon, arrested two Greenville residents on charges of trafficking in heroin, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

The two were identified as Deanie Wilhima Cherry, 26 of 1207 Clark St. and Jerry Lloyd Cooper, 20 of 1110B Douglas Ave.

According to Cannon, the two were taken into custody at the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets by officers who recovered $875 worth of heroin.

Both Ms. Cherry and Cooper were placed under $20,000 bond each pending a court hearing in the case.

Large Cache Of Hashish Seized

JEWETT, N.Y. (AP) — Federal and state narcotics agents have seized a 1,000-pound cache of Lebanese hashish — with an estimated street value of $5 million — plus $200,000 in a raid on what police described as an important point in a New York drug distribution system.

About 15 agents and local police officers on Sunday raided a secluded, four-bedroom mountain home in this Catskill Mountain town and found the hashish in five footlockers.

State police estimated the street value of the hashish at $5 million.

They also arrested Canadian Delmer Alton Ray, 44, of Ottawa. He was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Bender Solomon and ordered held on $500,000 bond at the federal section of the Montgomery County Jail in Fonda.

Charged with possession of more than 1,000 pounds of hashish with intent to sell, Ray faces preliminary court action on Oct. 14.

Greene County District Attorney Seymour Meadow said Sunday's seizure followed an investigation that began in August when firefighters found postal mail sacks containing 3,700 pounds of hashish in a burning building in Catskill.

No arrests have been made in the August find, Meadow said.

Joseph Valicenti, Catskill state police investigator, said federal and state police are investigating a "hashish smuggling ring" and plan to

Three Arrested In Break-In

Three men were arrested about 7:18 a.m. yesterday by Greenville police on breaking, entering and larceny charges as they allegedly attempted to take $320 worth of shoes and $80 worth of caps from Shiver Shoe Repair Service at 822 Dickinson Ave.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the three as Arthur Lee Tyson, 19 of 427 West Third St., Johnny Ray Taft, 18 of 1612 Hopkins Dr., and Jessie C. Kornegay, 26 of Ayden.

He said the three allegedly gained entrance to the building by breaking out the glass in the front door, and were arrested as they attempted to leave the building with the merchandise.

All three were placed under $1,000 bonds pending court action in the case.

The seizures of two large quantities of hashish in Greene County indicate that the area is being used as a distribution center for New York City and upstate areas, Meadow said.

Cobey Aware Of Big Odds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With every poll showing him far behind, Republican William Cobey acknowledges he has only the slightest chance of becoming North Carolina's next lieutenant governor.

"It's hard for me to perceive of winning unless Governor (Ronald) Reagan carries this state," Cobey said in a recent interview. "My answer is, I can't."

Cobey resigned as athletic director of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to enter the race, challenging Democratic incumbent Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

His race has surprised many, Republican and Democratic alike.

Sidney S. Eagles Jr., campaign manager for Democratic Sen. Robert B. Morgan, is among those who have difficulty believing the race.

"Somewhere in North Carolina is the greatest salesman, who persuaded Bill Cobey to give up a safe job and tickets to the ACC Tournament and run for lieutenant governor when there is no race," Eagles said.

Green has indicated he plans to spend only $50,000 on his campaign for the fall election, and Cobey's plan for a $250,000 campaign has been scaled down to about $100,000.

His campaign staff said Green is working toward 1984, but Green has refused to write off the current campaign.

"You are always real concerned about an election, and I'm real concerned about this one. I'm doing all I know what to do," Green said.

Arlene Pulley, Green's campaign manager, confirmed that Green is looking ahead to the 1984 race for governor, but also denied that they were writing off Cobey.

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — The idea of renovating an old home in the country carries a great deal of appeal to some families, but the cost — and the labor — may be greater than most would-be buyers realize.

Old homes may be cheap to buy, but they are expensive to fix up for even the handiest handyman.

"Now you could get yourself a real bargain if you can do all the work yourself. But you should realize that most of these old houses were built to standards that are different from the modern idea of comfort and safety," said Kenneth Rose of Brewer-Rose Construction Co. in Clinton.

"We've had quite a few people call us about the cost of renovating an old home. In just about every case they have decided on a new home after I quoted them a figure.

"Just putting the insulation in might cost you $5,000," Rose said. "You have to pull the plaster and slats, put the insulation in and then put up new walls.

"Hopefully, you will remember to put the new wiring in at the same time," he added. "You can buy the materials to frame a new house for about $10,000 so you better plan to save a lot by doing the work yourself to make it worthwhile."

Real estate agents say all farm homes are hot property, however, if they are available.

"I could sell all the old farm property I could get my hands on," said Jackie Bissett of County Wide Realty in Clinton. "There is quite a bit of interest in older property, especially among younger couples who have more energy than money." "When you consider that a new home costs about $30 a square foot to build, the idea of buying an old house for $3,000 to $10,000 is very attractive," said Fes Turlington of Turlington Real Estate.

"Many of the houses look bad, but if they are cleaned up they are really in good shape," he added. "The wide floorboards, ceiling beams and fireplaces are very, very expensive in new homes."

Turlington and some of the other agents contacted agreed that some old homes can be bargains for the buyer with the time and skill to renovate. "The workmanship and the materials that went into some of these old homes would be hard to find today," Turlington said.

Sharon and Bill Pope are one young couple who have gone through a love-hate affair with an old home. They are proud of the end results, but still remember the blisters and cobwebs.

"And the piles of tobacco sticks and bales of hay stored on both floors," Sharon Pope said. "We worked nights and weekends for eight months before we could move in."

Doing much of the skilled work and all of the heavy labor themselves, Mrs. Pope estimates they still could have bought a small new home with the money they spent.

Instead, the 100-year-old Alton-Hathcock House, six miles out of Clinton, boasts four bedrooms, a kitchen, living room, dining room, foyer and two full baths. The two-story house also has new siding, plumbing, electrical, insulation and central heat and air conditioning.

The price tag is about $20,000.

"It cost us more than we thought, but we get a lot more house for our money," Mrs. Pope said.

Fire Failures Studied By Furniture Industry

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Leaders of the furniture industry, admittedly set back by government testing that belies their own, have ordered a top priority study to determine why chairs designed to be fire-resistant failed federal flammability tests.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission staff, 71 percent of the sampled furniture built in compliance with industry standards failed a flammability test.

The industry, which has been attempting to raise standards voluntarily, has been given until Dec. 1 to produce material satisfactory to the CPSC or face the prospect of mandatory federal standards for furniture.

"We were absolutely appalled by the results the CPSC reported," said William Stevens, co-chairman of the industry's Upholstered Furniture Action Council. "We feel the referee hit us."

Stevens is executive vice president of Broyhill Furniture Industries in Lenoir.

Industry leaders say proposed federal standards could deal a blow to North Carolina, where some 83,000 employees produce about 25 percent of all American-made furniture. Last year, the industry lobbied successfully for a voluntary program, estimating the government's mandatory standards would cost $1.3 billion and add $100 to the cost of every $500 sofa.

Government figures show 2,500 people burn to death or suffocate each year because of smoldering cigarettes dropped into furniture.

The 12-member furniture council's executive committee agreed at a meeting in Washington last week to re-test furniture through the Guilford Laboratories of Greensboro. The independent lab's research helped the industry establish its program last year.

Its testing indicated that furniture built to the new standards, using treated fabric at crucial points, was 89 percent more fire-resistant than noncomplying pieces. Of the improved furniture tested, 4.5 percent ignited.

Both testing programs placed 18 to 24 burning cigarettes on a piece of furniture and covered it with a sheet to create a miniature hot-box.

The industry has criticized the commission's statistical methods, which recorded as a 100 percent failure any test where one of the cigarettes created a scorch measuring as much as three inches.

Also the industry called the staff's method of selecting furniture unreasonable, saying the staff selected pieces of fabric likely to burn, such as heavier fabrics made of natural fibers like cotton and wool. Man-made fibers tend to melt rather than to ignite.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices rose today amid hopes that the recent rapid rise of interest rates may be nearing an end. A small bank reduced its prime lending rate.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.46 to 956.14 in the first two hours of trading as advances outnumbered declines by a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

The sharp drop in the money supply, reported after the market closed Friday, was seen as easing the pressure on the Federal Reserve to tighten credit further and push up interest rates.

No banks immediately moved to match the 14 percent prime lending rate set last week by Citibank, and Southwest Bank of St. Louis cuts its rate from 13.5 percent to 13.25 percent. Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker last week said banks had moved too fast in boosting interest rates.

Oil issues were generally up in early trading amid more reports that Saudi Arabia is boosting production to offset the loss of oil exports from Iraq and Iran. Phillips added 1 to 5 1/2.

Operator Of Store Is Robbed

FOUNTAIN - A Saturday night armed robbery at a rural store near here is under investigation by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that the robbery at Willie Jackson's Store on Rt. 1, Fountain off Highway 222 was reported at 8:31 p.m.

The owner, according to the sheriff, told officers that a black male entered the grocery, armed with what appeared to be a .22 caliber pistol, and demanded money. Sheriff Tyson said that an undetermined amount of cash was taken in the incident.

Jackson, who was not injured, told deputies that the robber fled in a car following the theft.

Pupils Out In Boycott

BOSTON (AP) - Most white students boycotted South Boston High today as the racially troubled school reopened for the first time since fighting erupted last week between black and white pupils.

School officials said 41 blacks, 24 whites and 16 other minority pupils went into the building this morning. The school has an enrollment of 950, but only the school's 281 ninth graders were supposed to attend today.

Classes were dismissed Thursday after a melee in the auditorium. Several pupils were hurt, and five required hospital treatment. One student was arrested.

The school was closed Friday and reopened today on a staggered schedule.

An additional class is supposed to come back each day until the school is fully reopened on Thursday.

Neighborhood leaders who oppose court-ordered busing were quoted over the weekend as saying they wanted white students to stay out of school until all can attend later in the week.

South Boston High School has been a focal point of anti-busing sentiment since the city schools were integrated under federal court order in 1974.

Polish American Support Shown

NEW YORK (AP) Polish-Americans carried banners supporting workers who organized independent labor unions in Poland as more than 120,000 persons marched on Fifth Avenue in the 44th annual Pulaski Day parade.

Among the dignitaries in the reviewing stand Sunday was Zbigniew Brzezinski, national security adviser to President Carter.

The holiday honors Casimir Pulaski, a Polish-born hero of the Revolutionary War.

Polish workers conducted strikes across their nation recently and forced the Communist government to recognize their unions.

COMMISSION MEETS

The Pitt County Sediment Control Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the county commissioners' room on the first floor of the County Office Building at 1717 West Fifth St.

Included on the agenda is a review of the erosion and sedimentation control plan for Strawberry Banks Subdivision on secondary road 1719 near Ayden.

MY THANKS!

"People everywhere in life from every walk and station, from every town and city and every state and nation, have given me so many things intangible and dear. I couldn't begin to count them all or even make them clear. I only know I owe so much to people everywhere and when I put my thoughts in verse it's just a way to share the musings of a thankful heart, for nothing that I think or write is mine and mine alone..." It's just a very special thanks to Dr. J.A. Koozot and assisting doctors, the nurses and staff on the North wing of the third floor at Pitt Memorial Hospital, Meleastic Civic Club, Les-Gayettes Civic Club, Gospelaires, The Eastern North Carolina Regional Association of Black Social Workers, the AFDC Service Unit of Pitt County Department of Social Services, Holy Trinity Church, Dr. W.L. Jones and members of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church, the staff at Cox Floral Services, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Minister, members, and friends of various churches for thinking of me in so many ways. Your phone calls, visits, cards, monetary gifts, floral arrangements, other gifts, and above all your prayers during my recent two weeks as a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital and my recuperation period home.

"Dear God, we thank You for Your great love revealed to us through the prayers and unselfish service of others. Grant that we may follow their example. In the name of the Compassionate Christ we pray. May God Richly bless each of you."

L.A. Faces Astros In 1st Regular-Season Playoff

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Houston and Los Angeles meet today in the first regular-season playoff game in the National League since 1962, and the Astros know, to a man, they must put the past behind them.

Facing elimination for three straight days, the Dodgers swept Houston at Los Angeles to force a sudden-death game in Dodger Stadium. The teams wound up the regular season with 92-70 records.

"The last three games are in the past," Astros second baseman Joe Morgan said. "We just have to go out and kick ourselves."

Ron Cey, who drove in the tying run to send the first game of the three-game set into extra innings, was the hero again Sunday. Cey slugged a two-run homer in the eighth inning off reliever Frank LaCorte to give Los Angeles a 4-3 victory.

"They really rose up to the occasion, and you can't take that away from them," Astros outfielder Terry Puhl said. "They had their backs to the wall, and we can't forget the last three days, but it doesn't do any good to worry."

The Dodgers were involved in the last NL regular-season playoff, a three-game series against the San Francisco Giants in 1962 before the league had split into divisions and instituted a playoff for the pennant. They lost that set 2-1.

The winner of today's game will begin the NL championship series Tuesday in Philadelphia.

"We played aggressively from the start of this game and we have to do it tomorrow," Astros Manager Bill Virdon said after the game.

Los Angeles entered the eighth inning trailing 3-2. Steve Garvey, leading off, hit a bouncing grounder to Astros third baseman Enos Cabell. Cabell got caught between hops, and booted the ball for an error, allowing Garvey to reach first.

Cey, who had taken the tape off his sore right leg earlier in the game, worked the count to 3-2, once fouling a ball off his left foot before he hit a LaCorte fastball deep into the stands in left-center field.

"Frank is basically a fastball pitcher. On a 3-2 count, I didn't think he would try a curve," Cey said. "I was swinging for anything I could get."

Cey said he removed the wrapping from his leg because he hadn't been "turning well...so after the second time up I took the wrap off so I could swing more freely."

Houston led 3-0 at one point. The Astros scored twice in the second off Dodgers starter Burt Hooton on run-scoring singles by Alan Ashby and Craig Reynolds. Puhl doubled home another run in the fourth.

Dave Lopes drove in one Los Angeles run in the fifth with a single, and the Dodgers got within one in the seventh on an RBI pinch single by 42-year-old Manny Mota.

Expos 8, Phillies 7

Jerry White hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the 10th to lift the Expos over the Phillies, who had clinched the NL East title the day before with a 6-4, 11-inning victory in Montreal.

Philadelphia had erased a 5-5 tie in the top of the 10th on an error by shortstop Jerry Manuel and John Vukovich's RBI single.

Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt wound up the season as the NL home run (48) and RBI (121) leader.

Pirates 1, Cubs 0

Don Robinson tossed a four-hit shutout, and Bill Robinson drove in Pittsburgh's only run. Robinson, the pitcher, walked one and struck out seven, and he got all the support he needed in the fourth inning. Vance Law tripled and rode Bill Robinson's single home.

Despite going 0-for-4, the Cubs' Bill Buckner wound up with the NL batting title with a .324 average. Keith Hernandez of St. Louis hit .321.

Reds 1, Braves 0

Dave Collins drove in a run in the eighth inning with his third hit of the game, and Joe Price and Tom Hume combined on a three-hitter. Price checked Atlanta on three hits through eight innings, and Hume pitched a scoreless ninth.

Padres 7, Giants 3

Bill Fahey drove in three runs with a two-run double and a single to give Jerry Coleman a victory in his last game as San Diego Manager. Coleman was fired as manager and reassigned to director of broadcasting Sunday.

Rookie right-hander Tom Telman scattered nine hits for San Diego.

Cardinals 3, Mets 2

Ty Waller, running for Ken Reitz, scored the winning run on a wild pitch by Pete Falcone in the sixth inning. Falcone had loaded the bases on a single by Reitz. Steve Swisher's double and an intentional walk. Left-hander John Martin scattered seven hits for the victory.

Lions Bite The Dust

Bills NFL's Only Unbeaten Team

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Presenting, all alone atop the National Football League standings, unbeaten after five weeks, ladies and gentlemen... the Buffalo Bills!

Yes, the same Buffalo Bills who were league patsies not so long ago are the only unbeaten team left in the NFL after rallying for two touchdowns in the final period to edge the previously undefeated San Diego Chargers 26-24 Sunday.

"I'm surprised we are 5-0," admitted Bills quarterback Joe Ferguson. "We didn't do well in the preseason and we only won seven games last year. The season we went to the playoffs with O.J. Simpson (1974, when Buffalo was 9-5) was exciting, but being 5-0 is the highlight of my career."

The Detroit Lions, the only other club to win its first four outings, tumbled from the unbeaten ranks by committing a series of turnovers that helped the Atlanta Falcons to a 43-28 victory.

At the other end of the standings, two clubs remain winless — the New York Jets and New Orleans Saints. The Jets were beaten by the New England Patriots 21-11 while the Saints got clobbered by the St. Louis Cardinals 40-7. The Kansas City Chiefs, meanwhile, posted their first victory of the season, beating the Oakland Raiders 31-17.

Elsewhere, the Denver Broncos trimmed the Cleveland Browns 19-16, the Seattle Seahawks upset the Houston Oilers 26-7, the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Minnesota Vikings 23-17, the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Miami Dolphins 30-17, the Green Bay Packers edged the Cincinnati Bengals 14-9, the Los Angeles Rams outscored the San Francisco 49ers 48-26, the Philadelphia Eagles downed the Washington Redskins 24-14 and the Dallas Cowboys trounced the New York Giants 24-3.

Tampa Bay is at Chicago tonight. Buffalo's renaissance dates back to Jan. 11, 1978, when Chuck Knox left the Los Angeles Rams to become head coach of the Bills, who had won just five games the previous two seasons. Knox, who compiled a 54-15-1 record and won five division titles in five seasons with the Rams, led Buffalo to a 5-11 record in 1978 and a 7-9 mark last year before hitting paydirt this fall.

Buffalo's fast start has special meaning for linebacker Isiah Robertson, who spent eight seasons with the Rams before joining the Bills last year.

"After being in Los Angeles and seeing what Chuck Knox did there, and seeing what he's doing here in Buffalo, it is like deja vu," said Robertson.

Both of Buffalo's fourth-quarter touchdowns, which wiped out a 24-12 deficit, were the result of San Diego mistakes.

Chargers punter Rick Partridge was tackled at his own 16 following a high snap from center, and the Bills scored on a 9-yard pass from quarterback Joe Ferguson to tight end Mark Brammer with 10:43 to play. Then linebacker Jim Haslett intercepted a Dan Fouts pass and returned it 17 yards to the San Diego 21, and five plays later Joe Cribbs scored from the 3 with 7:28 left.

"There are a lot of ways to win a football game," said Knox. "It wasn't any fluke. We struggled offensively but we came up with the big plays." San Diego Coach Don Coryell agreed. "We made our share of errors, and Buffalo took advantage of them," he said.

Falcons 43, Lions 28
Atlanta's defense accounted for 23 points — a 16-yard blocked punt return by Frank Reed, a 30-yard fumble return by Buddy Curry, a 42-yard fumble return by Joel Williams and a safety when Williams nailed Detroit quarterback

Quick Pitt Stop Helps Earnhardt Win National

HARRISBURG, N.C. (AP) — There were 43 lead changes in Sunday's $320,000 National 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

But thanks to a quick pit stop, Dale Earnhardt charged into the lead on the last 46 laps from the finish.

His 13.1-second pit stop enabled him to build as much as a three-second lead over Buddy Baker and Cale Yarborough and win the race to the checkered flag.

It was Earnhardt's second straight win on the Grand National circuit and his fifth win this season. He earned $49,050 for his first-place finish and increased his lead in the NASCAR money race this year with $432,675 in total earnings.

And in his race for the NASCAR driving championship, Earnhardt widened his points lead. His total points of 4,217 lead Yarborough by 115. With only four races left this season, Earnhardt said the pressure was not on him to win the title.

"The pressure is on them (the challengers)," he said. "I'm ahead. They're behind."

It was Earnhardt's first win at Charlotte, and it proved more satisfying than his first career win as a rookie last year.

"All of my win have been great," the Kannapolis, N.C., native said. "But winning here at Charlotte in front of my hometown crowd is something I've always wanted to do. I'm higher now than I was at my first win at Bristol (Tenn.)."

Once Baker pushed his Buick past Yarborough and into the lead, Earnhardt had dropped back to third, but all three cars were within a few feet of each other, as they had been most of the day.

About that time, Earnhardt went to the pit and got out in a hurry. His two competitors followed but could not equal his time. That proved the deciding factor as Earnhardt took the lead for good. He held off a late charge by Yarborough, who finished second 1.83 seconds back. Baker finished third despite skidding off the track in the final lap.

"That was a deal with the pit crew playing a little strategy," Earnhardt said of his final pit stop ahead of his two rivals. "I just drive the car as hard as I can and my crew did a great job and we won another one."

Yarborough, who collected $30,400 for second, simply said, "We got beat." But he added, "We had some tough breaks, but we just got beat. Two things happened on that last pit stop. I ran out of gas and coasted in. Then I put the gear in low, it fell into reverse.

"That sounds funny, but it happened. But I was running Earnhardt down. It was just a matter of time. We didn't have enough time."

60-Foot Birdie Putt Helps Sullivan Win

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Young Mike Sullivan had the necessary ingredients to win his first tour victory Sunday in the $200,000 Southern Open Golf Tournament — a little luck and a spectator who thought he had blown it.

The 25-year-old Sullivan clinched the $36,000 first prize with an amazing 60-foot birdie putt on the 14th hole to win by five shots over a faltering Johnny Miller.

Sullivan shot a 69 for a 269 total, 11-under-par over the 6,791-yard par-70 Green Island Country Club course. Miller and Dave Eichelberger were next at 274. Miller had a 69 and Eichelberger a 67.

Sullivan's lead, however, had shrunk to only two shots as Miller put the pressure on by knocking in four birdies over the first nine holes, before the big putt on No. 14.

"Before that I had been struggling but that put me over the hump," said Sullivan, enjoying his best season since joining the tour in 1977. "Johnny said it was 75 feet. The only thing I know is that it took a long time going in. I'd say it was at least 60 feet."

The putt, which gave Sullivan a 4-stroke lead after Miller bogeyed the hole, was the key shot but Sullivan said there was another turning point.

That came as he was walking to the 12th hole after shooting a bogey on the 11th and Miller was within one shot when a "guy in the gallery said 'well, it's all over now,'" Sullivan said.

"I'd like to see that guy now and show him how over it was," said Sullivan, who proceeded to drop in a 15-foot birdie on the 12th hole.

Sullivan and Miller each parred the next hole before Sullivan knocked Miller out of contention on 14 with the 60-footer and Miller three-putted for a bogey.

Defending champion Ed Fiori had a 70 for a 280 total, the same as Arnold Palmer who shot a 72.

Reggie, Oglivie Tie For HR Title

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Ben Oglivie went out with a bang — Reggie Jackson just went out. The result was a tie for this season's American League home run title.

"I don't want to try to hit one every time, but I did try for it today," Oglivie admitted Sunday after his 41st homer helped the Milwaukee Brewers win a 5-4, 15-inning game against Oakland.

Oglivie's blast tied Jackson for the league lead and came while the New York Yankee slugger was in the clubhouse, having departed early from the regular season-ending 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Yankee Manager Dick Howser lifted Jackson after his right fielder tripled in the second inning, pulling his batting average up to .300 for the first time in his 15-year professional career. Howser, in fact, phoned the pressbox from the dugout to make certain the hit put Jackson's average at .300.

The triple was a drive to left off Detroit's Dan Schatzeder on which left fielder Steve Kemp missed a diving attempt. Jackson wasn't too concerned about his milestone hit, though.

"The ball I hit, the guy could have caught it. Does that mean I'm not a .300 hitter?" said Jackson. "To me, .300 is not where it's at unless you hit .300 with 30 home runs and 100 RBI."

Jackson hit 41 homers with 111 RBI along with his .300 average (actually .2996, but rounded out to .300 in the record books.)

"It's not just .300, you have to take into consideration what a guy does with it," added Jackson. "I can hit .300, yet there are ballplayers who can hit .300 and can't hit 40 home runs, or 30, or even 20. To me, a guy who hits .280 with 30 home runs is a lot more valuable than a guy who hits .307 with two home runs and 41 RBI. I just can't believe .300 is such a big deal."

"Did Oglivie hit a home run? That's my main concern."

Informed that Oglivie had homered, Jackson's reply was not printable.

Yankees 2, Tigers 1

Rookie Tim Lollar, making his first major league start, allowed two hits in six innings and Eric Soderholm slammed a two-run homer, as the AL East champion Yankees beat the Tigers.

Royals 4, Twins 0

Paul Splittorff and Rich Gale combined on a one-hitter and Hal McRae hit a three-run homer to help West-winning Kansas City close out its regular season with a shutout of Minnesota.

Kansas City's George Brett did not play, leaving his average at .390, highest in the major leagues since Ted Williams hit .406 in 1941.

Orioles 7, Indians 1

Scott McGregor gained his 20th victory, the 22nd Baltimore pitcher to reach that plateau in 13 years, as he hurled the Orioles over Cleveland with late-inning relief help from Dennis Martinez.

Rangers 3, Mariners 2

John Grubb's double scored Jim Norris from first base in the ninth inning to lead Texas past Seattle. The hit snapped a 2-2 tie created in the Texas sixth when Bump Willis scored from second on an error.

Blue Jays 4, Red Sox 1

Roy Howell and Willie Upshaw had three hits apiece and Jackson Todd pitched a five-hitter to lead Toronto over Boston.

Despite a last-place finish in the AL East, the Blue Jays finished with 67 victories, the most in the club's four-year history.

White Sox 5, Angels 3

Wayne Nordhagen and Harold Baines delivered key hits to lead Chicago over California behind the combined nine-hit pitching of Steve Trout and Mike Proly.

Can Lakers Do It Again?

NBA Opens Regular-Season Play Friday Night

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Can a Magic act work as well the second time around? If so, the Los Angeles Lakers may become the National Basketball Association's first repeat champion since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics.

The Lakers, led by peerless center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and dazzling rookie guard Magic Johnson, stormed to the league crown last season, beating the Philadelphia 76ers in six games in the championship series.

Abdul-Jabbar was the mainstay throughout the season as well as the playoffs, winning most valuable player honors for the sixth time in his brilliant 11-year career. The ebullient Johnson, a vital spark to the once-listless Lakers, proved his versatility and his value when he filled in at center for the injured Abdul-Jabbar in the finale of the title series and played the game of his young life, coming up with 42 points, 15 rebounds and 7 assists to bury the Sixers.

The NBA opens its 35th season with nine games Friday night and the race for the championship looks to be as wide open as ever. Balance has been a hallmark of the NBA in recent years with the title going to six different teams the last six seasons.

The Lakers, with Abdul-Jabbar playing better than ever and the 21-year-old Johnson having a year of pro experience under his belt, could be the team to buck that trend. Guards Norm Nixon and Michael Cooper and forwards Jamaal Wilkes, Jim Chones and Mark Landsberger form a strong supporting cast for Coach Paul Westhead.

But the Lakers are far from a shoo-in. Other clubs that rate right up there include the Celtics, 76ers and Milwaukee Bucks of the Eastern Conference and the Seattle SuperSonics and Phoenix Suns of the Western Conference, with the Atlanta Hawks and Kansas City Kings not far behind.

The NBA, coming off a strong season which saw increases in both live attendance and ratings for the CBS Sunday Game of the Week, has expanded to 23 teams this season, moving further into football country with the addition of the Dallas Mavericks.

In a subsequent realignment, Dallas, San Antonio and Houston were placed in the Midwest Division and Chicago and Milwaukee shifted to the Central Division. That makes the Mississippi River the dividing line between the Eastern and Western Conferences — a stunning display of logic almost unheard of in pro sports.

Dallas will be coached by Dick Motta, who guided the Washington Bullets to the title only three years ago. Six other clubs open the season with new coaches — Bill Musselman of Cleveland, Scotty Robertson of Detroit, Jack McKinney of Indiana, Stan Albeck of San Antonio, Paul Silas of San Diego and Gene Shue of Washington.

Guard George Gervin of San Antonio has won the scoring title the last three seasons and shows no signs of easing up. He just signed a new long-term contract with the Spurs that includes an unusual bonus clause based on the number of games the team wins.

The league's Board of Governors turned down recommendations from its coaches and general managers that three-man refereeing teams be used, saying it did not feel there were enough qualified referees right now for the system to work. This has been a key point in negotiations between the NBA and the referees' union over a new contract for officials, whose old pact expired in June.

Referees have been working the exhibition schedule without a contract, but there is no assurance they would do so once the regular season begins.

Twelve of the 23 teams will make the playoffs — the four division winners, plus the next four clubs in each conference.

Here's how the races shape up:

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division

Boston and Philadelphia both look like 60-game winners.

Boston's front line was worn down by Philadelphia in last year's conference finals, but it shouldn't happen again.

Central Division

Milwaukee is the team to beat. The outlook for Atlanta is clouded by off-court problems and preseason injuries. Cleveland, Detroit and Indiana all have new coaches, but too many of the same old problems. Chicago, however, could be a big surprise.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

Midwest Division

Kansas City is the strongest team in the NBA's weakest division. Defense remains a subject largely unknown to the San Antonio Spurs. Houston must get some rebounding help and Denver needs an improved offense if either is to make the playoffs. New Orleans could have a strong scoring attack and Dallas should do better than most expansion clubs.

Pacific Division

As long as Abdul-Jabbar stays healthy and maintains the enthusiasm he rediscovered last season, the Lakers are the team to beat in this rugged division. The arrival of Westphal instantly changed Seattle from a team that relied on defense to win to one that can score with any.

"I don't think they were freak plays," said Reed. "That's what happens when you hit people. If you hit them hard enough, they're going to leave the ball on the ground."

Detroit Coach Monte Clark agreed. "They kicked our rears and handed them to us on a platter," he said after watching the Falcons race to a 34-6 halftime lead with their highest scoring half ever.

Rain Ends Play, EC Golfers 14th

LAUREL FORT, Va. — The final round of the James Madison University Invitational golf tournament was rained out and as a result Saturday's results ended up being the final scores.

Thus, East Carolina wound up 14th in the 24-team field with a two-day total of 638. Roanoke College ended up first with a score of 606, while James Madison was second at 609 and Guilford College was third at 617.

The Pirates were led by Don Sweeting and Mike Moya, both of whom had two-day scores of 158, 13 strokes behind the winner, Elon's David Graham.

ECU was 17th after the first day and moved up to 14th after Saturday's play. The tournament was played at the Groundhog Country Club in Laurel Fort, Virginia.

Oakland fumbles and registered six quarterback sacks en route to its first victory. "When the defense gives you the points like that, it sure can make you awfully confident," quarterback Steve Fuller said.

Linebackers Gary Spani and Whitney Paul scored the first touchdowns of their careers on fumble returns as the Chiefs sprinted to a 31-0 lead.

Raiders quarterback Dan Pastorini suffered a broken right leg during the first half and will probably miss the rest of the season. Reserve Jim Plunkett, playing catchup, completed 20 of 52 passes for 238 yards but threw five interceptions.

Patriots 21, Jets 11
Cornerback Mike Haynes, who ended his contract dispute with New England just 1 1/2 weeks ago, made his first start of the season a memorable one by running back a blocked field goal 65 yards for a touchdown. That run, which set a club record, gave the Pats a 14-6 lead and the winless Jets never recovered.

Cardinals 40, Saints 7
Ottis Anderson carried 22 times for 126 yards and Wayne Morris rushed for three touchdowns for St. Louis, which has won its last two games. Veteran quarterback Jim Hart says he knows why. "Attitude, that's all," he said. "All of a sudden you feel like you can win. It's contagious. I can't think of a thing that didn't work."

Broncos 19, Browns 16
Fred Steinfort kicked four field goals for Denver while Randy Gradishar got the Broncos' only TD when he raced 93 yards with an interception tipped to him by fellow linebacker Tom Jackson.

Seahawks 26, Oilers 7
Jim Zorn hooked up with Sam McCullum for touchdown passes of 22 and 24 yards as Seattle upset Houston.

"I'm embarrassed," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips. "I've never had a team make as many mental and physical errors as we did today."

Steelers 23, Vikings 17
Terry Bradshaw passed for one touchdown and ran for another as Pittsburgh built a 23-3 lead, then had to hold off a Minnesota rally.

"What should have been a romp turned into a close game," said Bradshaw, who completed 16 of 28 passes for 236 yards, the 12th time in his career he has surpassed the 200 mark. "Haven't you ever gone to work and gotten a stomach ache about noon? Well, we got our stomach ache at halftime."

Pittsburgh's Franco Harris carried 22 times for 102 yards, his 36th game over the 100 barrier.

Colts 30, Dolphins 17
Bert Jones completed 18 of 26 passes for 282 yards and three touchdowns and ran for another score as Baltimore beat Miami despite a 272-yard, two-touchdown passing effort by the Dolphins' Bob Griese.

"We've got a lot to learn, and today we learned from the best in the league," said Miami safety Glenn Blackwood.

yards as the Packers won shortly after Coach Bart Starr received a unanimous vote of support from the club's Board of Directors.

Cincinnati Coach Forrest Gregg wasn't celebrating Starr's good fortune. He had his own problems.

"We had lousy tackling," said Gregg. "We played a lousy football game, gentleman. There's no question about that. We didn't come here to play."

Rams 48, 49ers 26
Vince Ferragamo passed for 304 yards and four touchdowns as the Rams rolled over the Giants. Los Angeles has scored 127 points in winning its last three games after starting the season with two losses.

"We are becoming a big-play team, a team that can put a lot of points on the board," said Ferragamo, who guided the Rams to the Super Bowl after Pat Haden was injured last season and has taken over for the injured Haden again this year.

Eagles 24, Redskins 14
Ron Jaworski threw two touchdown passes for the Eagles, Wilbert Montgomery ran for one score and Harold Carmichael caught four passes, extending his NFL record to 117 consecutive games with at least one reception.

Cowboys 24, Giants 3
New York's Alvin Garrett fumbled the opening kickoff to start the Giants on their way to their 12th straight loss to Dallas. Cowboys quarterback Danny White threw two scoring passes but wasn't thrilled with the victory.

Soccer Club Defeated, 4-1

WILSON — The Wilson Soccer Club, led by Bill Brooks' two goals, defeated the Greenville Soccer Club, 4-1, Sunday afternoon in a N.C. Soccer League match.

Wilson, now 3-1, jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the first half but was held scoreless in the second half by the locals. Jeff Chescon knocked in Brooks' first goal before Wilson sandwiched two goals around a goal by John Partchimer.

Larry Penn scored Greenville's only goal on a penalty shot. Greenville, which lost to Wilson in the opening game of the season, 2-1, in double-overtime, was without six of its starters Sunday.

The loss drops the local club to 1-2 in the Midwest Division of the N.C. Soccer League. The league is divided into six divisions across the state, three in the east and three in the west. Along with the Greenville Soccer Club in the Midwest Division are Wilson, Elizabeth City and Greenville High Life.

Goalie Greg Quintard had 18 saves for Greenville, which has next weekend off before traveling to Elizabeth City Sunday, Oct. 19.

Rose High School's Rampants took a giant step toward the Division I Football championship Saturday night with their 36-22 victory over Rocky Mount.

The Rampants and Gryphons had been picked as the overwhelming favorites in the Division I race by the league's coaches. But that victory doesn't mean that the race is over — not by a long shot.

Still ahead for Rose are five more games, and you can be sure that those five opponents are all going to be gunning for the Rampants. Upsetting the leader is something that everyone looks forward to.

Next week's opponent, Beddingfield, is capable of pulling off a win, should the Rampants let their guard down. Another Wilson school, Fike, is showing signs of being a championship contender, as some of the coaches feared they would.

Rose must accomplish several goals if they are to win the championship. To win the rest of their games, they are going to have to be totally prepared to go out each time and do their best. They are going to have to cut out the costly penalties such as they had against Rocky Mount. They are going to have to hang onto the ball, and not fumble as they did against Enloe and Northern Nash.

Whether they can do these things and get into the playoffs again remains to be seen.

Certainly their being ranked number one in the east will be another incentive for their opponents. And by the time next week's rankings are out from the Associated Press, the Rampants may be the number one team in the state.

The ranking are fine. But every coach, including Rose coach Dave Bumgarner, will tell you that the rankings now mean nothing.

What counts is whether you are number one when the December 5 games have been played.

Saturday afternoon's football game between UCLA and Ohio State was a pleasure to watch, but we felt that the commentators on the broadcast got a little carried away with their tirade against the official for throwing out a UCLA player for slugging a photographer on the sidelines.

The replay showed that the player had been shoved, intentionally, by the photographer, before he turned and struck back. Unfortunately for him, the official saw only his blow.

As happens so many times, the offended suffered an extreme penalty. However, the officials have to rule on what they see, not what could or could not have preceded an event.

The broadcasters should have acknowledged this, realized that the official, like all of us, is only human. Instead, they kept bringing it up again and again even trying to get an interview with the official afterwards — the only purpose of which could have been to point out his mistake.

For the photographer, it may have seemed like old times. Being a cameraman in Columbus, Ohio, used to have its risks — and not from visiting players. Remember another fellow named Woody?

Young-Whitworth Win LPGA Crown

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — No woman has won more money swinging a golf club than Kathy Whitworth or Donna Caponi Young.

So it is appropriate that the veterans have become the dominant force in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Team Championship.

With Whitworth blasting the ball onto greens like old times and Young coming up with a string of birdies late in Sunday's final round, the two ran away with the 1980 team event with a record-breaking 24-under-par 195, good for a 4-stroke victory.

It was the second team victory in three years for Young and Whitworth, who have finished no worse than fifth in the four-year history of the event.

They earned $10,500 apiece — a piddling amount compared with the $1.6 million the two have won in their long LPGA careers — but Young says she intends to come back "forever, or as long as my partner will keep playing with me."

"Kathy Whitworth undoubtedly is one of the greatest people who ever walked the Earth," Young said. "When this tournament came about, she was the first person I called."

As for herself, Young confided to having "a helluva year." She has won $209,000 and is a close second to Beth Daniel on the earnings list. Money won in the team event played on the par-73, 6,308-yard Riverside Golf Club doesn't count in the official earnings.

The winners had scores of 8-under-par 65 in each of the three rounds. They had one bogey in three days and Young

'Reality' TV May Peak In Gory Death

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television's fascination with so-called "reality programming" may peak one of these days with the gory death — on screen — of a reckless daredevil.

You can almost see and hear the teaser: Tune in "That's Incredible" and watch Fearless Fenwick dive 50,000 feet from a Nike missile into a ripe cantaloupe.

Then the camera cuts to a three-shot of the show's hosts, John Davidson, Cathy Lee Crosby and ex-footballer Fran Tarkenton, their faces contorted with horror, as Fenwick misses the cantaloupe and splatters all over the screen.

It nearly came to that this summer when motorcyclist Gary Wells blew his jump over the fountains of Caesars Palace in Las Vegas, breaking a lot of bones and injuring his heart.

The same show, under the guise of entertainment, put an end to the career of another jumper, a nut who leaped over speeding automobiles. Last season he jumped one car, then almost was killed attempting to leap two cars.

Ratings for "reality" shows have been high, encouraging the networks and syndicators to develop new people, animals and event programs.

Currently, viewers have a choice of "Real People," "Those Amazing Animals," "Speak Up America," "That's Incredible," "The Guinness Game," "Games People Play" and, sporadically, "The Guinness Book of World Records."

They include everything from unusual birthday parties to Roger Staubach's retirement testimonial dinner.

"We want to use events the way other shows use interviews, as a dramatic technique to present people as they are."

"My feeling is that if a person is doing something for the first time, striving for a prize, is being honored or caught up in an emotional crisis, people tend to be more honest and certainly more interesting."

"I think there are enough events and interesting people to provide an endless source of shows. It's like the old theme of 'Naked City' — there's a million people in the city and each one has a story."

"We're not staging or dreaming up things," he said. "We're only doing what is really happening. We don't set up events but that doesn't mean we won't cover spectacular happenings."

"We're not a talk show either. We focus exciting actualities happening to unknown people and to celebrities — everything from unusual birthday parties to Roger Staubach's retirement testimonial dinner."

"We want to use events the way other shows use interviews, as a dramatic technique to present people as they are."

"My feeling is that if a person is doing something for the first time, striving for a prize, is being honored or caught up in an emotional crisis, people tend to be more honest and certainly more interesting."

"I think there are enough events and interesting people to provide an endless source of shows. It's like the old theme of 'Naked City' — there's a million people in the city and each one has a story."

Hillier, of course, assumes each story is interesting, a theory that is far from proved.

He holds with another theory — that reality shows are nothing new. He says they have their genesis in such oldies as "People Are Funny," "Truth Or Consequences," "You Asked for It," "This Is Your Life" and "Candid Camera."

"They were genuine people programs," Hillier said. "But they were all shot in studios before minicams were developed."

"With the advent of lightweight technology, we're all able to go out into the field and actually show what is happening instead of bringing people into a studio to re-create events.

"I think this type show will be around for a long time. In their own way they perform the same function as magazines. I also believe you have to lump '60 Minutes' and '20-20' into the same category."

Hillier is convinced Hollywood razzle-dazzle and inclusion of stars as hosts detracts from the realism and credibility of people and event shows.

Unlike some reality shows, "The World of People" doesn't have celebrity hosts. Hillier hired his seven emcees from local TV stations around the country.

"We make our headquarters in Sausalito because if we're going to have an original company, we should be in an original place," he said.

"The roots of reality shows are in local television's coverage of local events. Now that Hollywood is involved, they've become distorted by the injection of show biz."

"The result is a peculiar conglomeration of show business overlaid with magazine business and talks shows like 'Speak Up America' — a mixture of evangelical meetings, 'Laugh-In' and game shows.

"Our show is different because it has integrity. We're not creating funny characters and situations. We focus on legitimate events which TV is really all about."

Doctor Cannot Predict McQueen Will Recover

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer
SANTA MARIA, Mexico (AP) — A doctor who has been using the controversial drug Laetrile to treat actor Steve McQueen for cancer says there is no way of predicting when — or even if — McQueen will recover.

But Dr. Rodrigo Rodriguez said Saturday that McQueen was showing steady signs of improvement.

McQueen issued a statement last week through his publicist acknowledging that he has a rare and generally incurable form of lung cancer, mesothelioma, that is generally associated with exposure to asbestos. McQueen had previously denied he had cancer.

The 50-year-old actor said he was recovering under a nutrition-based therapy devised by a one-time dentist, Dr. Donald Kelley, who is associated with the International Health Institute in Dallas. General Hospital Santa Maria, where McQueen has been staying for 2½ months, is affiliated with that institute.

McQueen already has been at Santa Maria, about 75 miles south of San Diego, more than twice the usual stay, Rodriguez said, "but it is impossible to say how long he will be here."

and doctors in Los Angeles had decided that surgery or chemotherapy would be useless.

But McQueen was responded well to the unconventional therapy — including Laetrile, an organic diet and psychotherapy — offered at Santa Maria, Rodriguez said.

"He is more animated," Rodriguez said. "When he came here, he was in a great deal of pain. He could hardly move from the bed to the chair."

"But he is not in such pain, now. He walks through the gardens and drives his car around the grounds," the doctor said, adding that McQueen also swims occasionally. The hospital, which was a resort until last year, features tennis courts, a swimming pool and a fancy restaurant.

Injections of Laetrile "have been used from time to time," Rodriguez said.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from apricot pits. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has said there is no evidence that it is useful in treating cancer and has banned it from interstate transportation.

Federal Mediator Quits Opera Talks

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes that the Metropolitan Opera might be able to save its canceled 1980-81 season have been further dampened by the withdrawal of a federal mediator from contract talks between the opera company and its employees.

Wayne L. Horvitz, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said Sunday he had achieved no progress since President Carter asked him to try to help settle the dispute last Thursday. He said he was withdrawing from the negotiations at this time because his involvement would be "counterproductive."

"The parties' respective positions on the major issue that divides the association and the orchestra remain unchanged," said Horvitz.

The issue he referred to is a demand by some opera employees for a four-performance work week instead of five. The Met has rejected the plan as too costly.

Horvitz said his Sunday-afternoon meeting with the representatives of dancer and chorus member unions brought no progress. He reported the same after meeting Saturday with the Met and its musicians.

Horvitz said he will remain on call if the federal mediation service can be of any assistance.

The Met's season was to have started Sept. 22, but was postponed when the labor troubles threatened rehearsals. Met officials then canceled the company's September-to-April season on Sept. 29.

Met spokesman David Reuben responded to Horvitz' statement by saying, "We can't say much more than we're not optimistic" about ever salvaging the season.

80th Birthday For Helen Hayes

SPARKILL, N.Y. (AP) — Actress Helen Hayes celebrated her 80th birthday five days early at a combination birthday party and fund-raiser at a Victorian estate here.

Among those who turned out Sunday to honor Miss Hayes and contribute to her pet project, restoration of the 77-year-old Tappan Zee Playhouse, were fellow actresses Celeste Holm, Maureen Stapleton, Maureen O'Sullivan, Hermione Gingold, Arlene Dahl and Patrice Munsel.

Guests wore Victorian-era costumes and listened to a barbershop quartet and the Rockland (County) Symphony Orchestra perform music of the period.

Miss Hayes turns 80 on Friday.

Symphony Turns To Fund-Raising

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With its first musicians' strike now a part of history, the North Carolina Symphony is turning its attention to fundraising and image-making.

Max Abbott, the symphony's first full-time paid president, says he hopes a new conductor and better public relations will help dispel the symphony's black-tie, stiff-collar image.

The one-week strike may not help that cause, Abbott said especially when it comes to raising money. And Abbott said fundraising may become crucial as the symphony tries to increase the $1.1 million state appropriation that makes up 45 percent of the symphony's $2.6 million annual budget.

"I don't think the strike or the walkout helped us worth a darn as far as working with the Legislature," Abbott said. "It's not going to help us a bit raising funds in the state."

John A. Williams, state budget officer, agreed that more money from the state is unlikely.

"Money's going to be awfully hard to come by in this next (legislative) session," Williams said.

"I don't see any programs being expanded in state government except those which have been mandated by the previous legislature or the federal government. Money is just tight."

But Abbott said he wants "the state to more adequately pay its share. We now get about 45 percent from that state, but 65 percent of our budget is spent doing what the state wants us to do."

"We also want to work with corporations more, getting them to endow chairs and participate more," Abbott said.

"People need to be continually realize that these are full-time musicians," he said. "This is their livelihood, and they devote the major part of their lives to playing in a symphony orchestra."

Julie Christie In Another Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Julie Christie stars in "Memoirs of a Survivor," adapted from the book by Doris Lessing.

It is Miss Christie's first film since "Heaven Can Wait." The story tells of a society thrown into anarchy by a catastrophic conflict.

David Gladwell will direct the movie on location in London and Norfolk, England.

James Garner Is Trying Records

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor James Garner of "The Rockford Files" and Polaroid camera fame is trying his hand, or rather his voice, at something new.

Under the tutelage of country music star Waylon Jennings, the 52-year-old actor recorded some country music demos at Nashville's Cedarwood Publishing, according to People magazine.

Garner, a longtime fan of country-Western music, is quoted as saying, "I never thought much about singing until Waylon talked me into it."

His presence at the recording company dazzled at least some of the employees. Asked by People whether Garner can really sing, one female staffer replied, "Who cares?"

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠10854 ♠AJ96 ♣Q ♠AQ82
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ 2 ♠
What action do you take?
A.—Whenever you have to trust someone in the auction, believe your partner. Despite the fact that both opponents were bidding, he entered the auction at the two-level even though he was vulnerable. It looks as if West bid out of fright, so you should not let the opponents off the hook. Double, and keep doubling wherever they alight.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 ♠AQ92 ♠8754 ♣K982
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Your hand could easily produce four tricks on defense—even more if partner has the right hand. With the vulnerability such as it is, a double is a standout. If the opponents should, perchance, make their contract, you will have done no serious harm, for you will not have doubled them into game. But if the cards are favorably placed for the defense, you could easily collect 500 or more.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A9652 ♠A7 ♣KJ103 ♣J5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Considering the fact that partner is a passed hand, it is most unlikely that your hands will stretch to game. Therefore, you should settle for the safest part score. You know that partner has at least five hearts for his two-level response; you don't know whether he has any spades at all. Pass—anything else courts disaster.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9542 ♥7 ♣AK873 ♣KQ6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ 2 ♥ Dble. ?
What action do you take?
A.—Fie on you if, for even a moment, you considered rescuing partner. Unless partner has taken leave of his senses, you should be delighted by the turn of events. Partner has made a vulnerable overcall at the two-level and you are presenting him with three or four tricks. Even with trumps stacked against him, partner should have a good shot to fulfill his contract. Pass.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ762 ♥8 ♣KJ53 ♣K82
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You have 12 points in high cards; partner has shown a balanced hand with values in your short suit. Therefore, if you have a game on this hand, it can only be in no trump. So why not make the descriptive bid of two no trump, giving partner the option of going on to game if he has something in reserve. Your hand is not worth a more aggressive action. Take a demerit if you rebid two diamonds—a bid that does nothing to encourage partner.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ82 ♠A965 ♠83 ♠A76
Partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A.—The one bid you should not make is two no trump. Despite your balanced 13 points, this hand with its plethora of "aces and spaces," is better fitted to a suit contract—if you can locate a 4-4 major-suit fit. The most flexible way to accomplish that is to respond one heart. If partner has four hearts, he will raise you. If he has four spades, but not four hearts, he will introduce his spade suit at the one-level, and again the fit is found. Should none of these possibilities materialize, you can then opt for no trump.

One Century Ago, A Partnership Launched Pharmaceutical Giant

TARZAN FILMMAKERS USES KIT... In this scene from an early "Tarzan" movie, medical supplies to treat a leg injury are taken from a "Tabloid" First Aid Kit. This was an authentic touch since Burroughs Wellcome Company products played an important role in the exploration of Africa. After learning that RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK — It was on Sept. 27, 1880 that two young American pharmacists signed a deed of partnership creating a fledgling business that has since grown into one of the largest privately-owned pharmaceutical companies in the world.

The two young men, Silas Burroughs and Henry Wellcome, both graduates of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, decided to choose London, England for the location of their new company. The major reason behind their decision to start a new business was a new way to make medicine for ease in taking — in the form of a compressed tablet. Although the tablet form of medicine was first made in England as early as 1843, great technical advances had taken place in America in the 1870s — while in England it was still a time of potions, powders and pestles.

In London, Burroughs Wellcome Company quickly developed a lead in the technology of compressing medicines into tablets. Wellcome coined the word "tabloid" (a combination of tablet and alkaloid) as a trademark for the company's products. It became one of the most famous of all registered trademarks. Tabloid newspapers were later so called because they compressed news onto small pages.

Opens U.S. Office

The two were soon directing a healthy business with holdings around the world. By December 1906, sales in the United States were large enough to justify opening a New York branch office.

Burroughs-Wellcome Company, U.S.A. remained based in New York until its move to North Carolina in 1970.

Burroughs died unexpectedly of pneumonia in 1895. Wellcome ruled the business by himself until his death in 1936.

An inspired millionaire, Wellcome once explained that he chose to spend his wealth "in support of research as another man might want to spend his on a racing stable." In 1894, he established the first in-house research facility within a pharmaceutical company.

Many drugs to prevent disease and cure illness in humans and animals have since been developed within the Wellcome Research Laboratories. In the past 30 years alone, Wellcome scientists have discovered compounds used for malaria, leukemia, gout, a wide range of bacterial diseases, and kidney transplants.

In April, Burroughs Wellcome introduced the latest new drug to come from its Research Triangle Park laboratories. Viroptic(R) is used to treat the leading cause of blindness in developed countries, herpes simplex virus infections of the eye.

The future of Burroughs Wellcome Company's research promises to be as exciting as its past. The company is working on several projects, including an anti-viral drug, a new anti-convulsant for treating certain type of epilepsy, a drug to prevent blood from clotting in the arteries, and interferon.

Medicine Chests

Over the years, the company has participated in explorations of another kind. Beginning with Sir Henry Stanley's forays into the heart of Africa, almost every famous explorer since has carried a "Tabloid" medicine chest presented by Burroughs Wellcome Company. The chests played a vital role in the discovery of both the North and South poles. They were taken on expeditions to the Himalayas and on the conquest of Mount Everest. They met the needs of the great aviators during their pioneering flights, including Charles Lindbergh on his first journey across the Atlantic in the Spirit of St. Louis.

Burroughs Wellcome continues its medical support of explorers in the age of space travel. The Apollo Space Ships and Skylab contained Burroughs Wellcome products.

Unique Structure

When Sir Henry died in 1936, the terms of his will created a unique corporate structure. The Wellcome Trust, a board of seven men, was established as the sole stockholder of all the affiliated Wellcome companies around the world.

Instead of declaring a dividend to public stockholders, Burroughs Wellcome Company ultimately distributes its profits to The Wellcome Trust. The trustees then use the money to fund research programs all over the world.

From 1976-78, the trustees supplied about $24 million to medical and veterinary research. The trustees do not fund the research programs carried out in the company's own laboratories in Research Triangle Park. This research is paid for by sales of the company's products.

Three Locations Burroughs Wellcome's corporate headquarters and research laboratories are located in Research Triangle Park. Manufacturing takes place at the company's facility in Greenville and the Animal Health Division is in Kansas City.

Burroughs Wellcome's ten years in North Carolina have been years of tremendous growth. Sales dollars have increased 265 percent and the number of employees in North Carolina has doubled. The company has expanded its facilities several times and continues to outgrow them. A 95,000 square foot Toxicology and Experimental Pathology Building is currently under construction on the company's Research Triangle Park site.

Ranked Second

Last year, the company's products ranked second in the number of new prescriptions written and third for total (new and refill) prescriptions. This means that approximately 55 million Americans visited a drugstore during this period to purchase a Burroughs Wellcome product. Ten of the company's products are included in the top 200 drugs — an enviable record not held by any other pharmaceutical firm.

The coming decade appears equally promising for the company, according to Dr. Fred A. Coe, Jr., president and chairman of the board: "I am confident that we will meet and successfully handle the challenges of the 1980s. From the first year the company showed a profit, progress has been almost continuous. Sales have increased during all but seven years since 1919, four of which occurred during the Great Depression.

"This is a remarkable performance for any corporation. We plan to continue to be a leading innovator in the pharmaceutical industry, introducing new drugs to alleviate suffering and illness."

Deciding On Water-Use

KERNERSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Kernersville alderman scheduled a meeting tonight to vote on whether the town will reopen its main reservoir for public use.

The 50-acre lake has been closed since 1977 after a chemical spill polluted the water.

State officials notified the town two weeks ago that water in the reservoir was safe.

Four of the five Kernersville aldermen have pledged to vote to reopen the lake, but opposition has been expressed by some residents who want an additional analysis of the water.

An estimated 30,000 gallons of hazardous chemicals flowed out of tanks at the Destructo Chemway Corp. waste-disposal plant into the reservoir in June 1977. The town has bought most of its water from the city-county water system since that time.

Several court suits are pending in connection with the spill. In a $1.5 million suit filed by the town, the city demands that two waste-disposal companies and other defendants drain, scrape and refill the lake.

Wipers Require Winter Care

NEW YORK (AP) — Windshield wipers are among the most important safety features on a car and need special care — especially in winter.

Snow and ice can damage the system. So, Fram Corp., a manufacturer of auto products, recommends lifting the blades carefully when cleaning a frozen windshield to avoid tearing the rubber wipers.

Also, remove packed snow from the windshield before turning the wipers off. If the blades cannot reach the bottom of their arc, the motor still can draw current and burn out a fuse.

Golden Drug for Arthritis

Have you ever heard of gold being used for arthritis? A friend of mine told me about this. — Mr. S.P., Ind. Dear Mr. P.:

A solution of gold has been used for many years in the treatment of specially-selected cases of rheumatoid arthritis. The use of gold compounds by injection has had enthusiasts and antagonists among physicians.

Cycles of enthusiasm seemed to find new adherents and new detractors. Because of the toxic effects of gold compounds, they were even abandoned at one time.

Recently, there has been a resurgence of interest because of a new gold preparation that now can be taken by mouth. The drug, auranofin, seems to be effective against some cases of rheumatoid arthritis and its toxicity is distinctly lower than injectable gold.

This gold drug was discussed at a meeting of the Arthritis Foundation. Seven hundred and fifty patients are now enrolled in an ongoing project at the University of Miami, with the hope of evaluating the efficacy of auranofin.

The advisability of the use of this drug by your family physician can be determined only by his total evaluation of your particular problem.

My husband is 38. They've just found that he has high blood pressure. He is being treated with drugs. He is in terrible fear, however, that his life will be shortened and that he will not live to see his family grow up. How can we comfort him? — Mrs. T.D., Ky. Dear Mrs. D.:

I would speculate that some levels of anxiety must have existed or to the time that he was told that he has hypertension. This news must certainly have exaggerated his basic fears and added to his emotional distress. Undoubtedly, your husband's doctor must have assured him that most cases of high blood pressure are readily controllable today.

It is well-known that patients with high blood pressure who continue to take their prescribed drugs can attain normal longevity. Hypertension today is a controllable disease. Those who are treated live longer than untreated hypertensives with the same blood pressure levels.

After your husband gets over the initial anxiety about his condition, he will settle down to a level of greater tranquility when he finds that the prescribed drugs are keeping his blood pressure within normal range. When hypertensives reduce their weight to normal, when they try to avoid unusual stresses, there is little threat to longevity.

PRISON OFFENSE

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A judge in Afghanistan has sentenced scores of schoolchildren to prison terms after the confessed to staging a series of anti-Soviet demonstrations in Kabul last spring, the Afghan government announced.

RADIOACTIVE WATER

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP) — People everywhere are drinking radioactive water, according to an environmentalist who has just completed a study of drinking water.

Carol Keough reports in her book, "Water Fit to Drink," that not all of this is due to nuclear development. She says nature provides cosmic rays and radioactive elements in the earth's crust and atmosphere.

"This natural radiation, called background radiation, is unavoidable," she says. While exposure to radiation is harmful and should be avoided, people have always been exposed to background radiation.
