

Compromise Teacher Evaluation OK'd

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County teachers claimed a victory yesterday with the approval, at the Board of Education's monthly meeting, of a teacher evaluation plan that compromises both the board's position and the teachers' positions.

"NCAE-ACT claims victory over the passage of the Pitt County plan of evaluation," said NCAE Vice President Helen Johnson. "The removal of the requirement to evaluate oneself and to point out one's own weaknesses is definitely a victory."

Superintendent of Pitt

County Schools Ott Alford expressed pleasure that the plan was passed. "I am very pleased, of course. The fact that the teachers were there in support of the plan is good and the fact that not as much concern over the plan was expressed pleases me," said Alford. "To me this says that the recent modifications spoke to their concerns."

The final draft of the plan of evaluation incorporates a four-column rating scale: above average to outstanding, satisfactory, improvement needed and unsatisfactory. The former plan called for a five-point rating system, one of the objections the teachers had to the plan.

The final draft also clarifies the role of the supervisor in evaluation, another teacher objection. The supervisor is to visit each teacher assigned to them at least once a year, giving written suggestions when needed. Copies of the suggestions go to the teacher, the principal and the supervisor's file. The supervisor may also be called in at the request of the teacher, principal, superintendent of instruction, or the superintendent, to do a formal evaluation.

"We are happy with the role of the supervisor," said Johnson at Tuesday's meeting. "Most of all, though we are happy with the elimination of self evaluation, of setting our weaknesses down on paper."

Rather than self evaluation, the final draft calls for the first several months of each school year to be a period of goal-setting. Teachers will have a conference with the principal and list goals to be pursued during the year. These goals are to be written, but no copies will be sent to the central office.

The principal will visit and observe each of his personnel, with this observation, along with less formal indicators of performance and goals set for the year, being considered in the completion of the formal evaluation report. A conference will be held by the principal with the teacher prior to filing the report. Copies of it go to the teacher, principal and the superintendent. All ratings (above average and outstanding to unsatisfactory) must be documented, with suggestions for improvement provided with satisfactory, needs improvement and unsatisfactory ratings.

The final draft calls for the indicators, or the determinations of what is above average, satisfactory, etc., to be a source document and to be used throughout the county to insure reasonable expectations on the part of all personnel. The final drafting of these indicators will go to the board November 1 and if accepted will be made available to the teachers.

Evaluation, states the plan, should be an ongoing process beginning on day one and continuing throughout the entire year, not limited to one or two 30-minute observations.

"We appreciate the positive modifications," commented Johnson. "We do have objections still. With all the remaining flaws, it is much better than what we would have had a month

Air, Ground War Continues Iraq Supported By North Yemen

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq and Iran carried on relentlessly today their ground and air war while pro-Western North Yemen was reported to have joined Jordan in expressing support for Iraq.

The United States has pledged to supply military hardware to neutral Persian Gulf nations that feel threatened by the Iraq-Iran war.

Iraq was reported to have received five shiploads of Soviet-made military spare parts and ammunition through Jordan's Aqaba port since the outbreak of the war 17 days ago. The Soviet Union denied offering military aid to Iran.

Iraq claimed to have inflicted heavy losses on Iranian forces on the ground while the air war concentrated on supply lines.

Iraqi forces have stepped up air and artillery attacks on Abadan and battled holdouts in the port of Khorramshahr, seeking to complete their conquest of the Iranian side of Iraq's waterway to the gulf.

Iraq sent air strikes for the second straight day against the Iraqi oil center of Kirkuk, 200 miles north of Baghdad, and the southeastern Iraqi city of Al Amarah, which controls the supply lines of Iraq's invasion force in the oil-rich section of southwestern Iran.

Iraq's military command claimed to have downed three Iraqi MiG jets, two near Dezful and one near Ahwaz in the southern sector of the 300-mile-long battlefield on the 17th day of the war. Iraq acknowledged the loss of two MiGs.

The Iranian communique reported by Tehran Radio said Iraqi forces concentrated an attack on Dezful's key military base and Shushtar, 20 miles to the southeast on the road to Ahwaz, capital of Khuzistan province.

Iraq's military command, in a communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio, said its ground forces dealt "heavy blows to the enemy," which resulted in 48 Iranian troops killed and five captured.

Most of the casualties came, the communique said, when Iraqi troops attacked Iranian convoys carrying revolutionary guards and army regulars. Seven truckloads of militiamen and three of troops were "wiped out," the communique said. It did not pinpoint the battle sites.

Iraq said it suffered five dead and three wounded along with the destruction of two of its tanks. The Iraqis also reported that two Iraqi civilians were killed and 26 wounded in the Iranian raid on Kirkuk, which it said damaged oil installations and homes.

Jordanian officials in Amman said King Hussein of Jordan and President Abdullah Saleh of North Yemen, in a telephone conversation, affirmed their countries' "pan-Arab support of the Iraqi people in their efforts to regain their rights over their territories and waters." Iraq, Jordan and North Yemen are Arab nations while Iran is non-Arab Persian.

North Yemen lies on the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula. The pro-Soviet South Yemen is providing its port facilities for cargo ships carrying supplies to Iraq through the Jordanian port of Aqaba, sources in Beirut, Lebanon said.

The Beirut sources said five ships flying Iraqi or Jordanian flags and loaded with cargoes from the Soviet stockpiles in Marxist-governed South Yemen and Ethiopia have docked at Aqaba. The sources said the supplies were carried by truck to the Iraqi border.

Jordanian King Hussein's declaration of support for Iraq earlier this week prompted cautionary warnings from the United States and Britain. But U.S. officials reported East European, Indian and Lebanese ships were being diverted to the Jordanian port of (qaba with supplies for Iraq, and the Jordanian government announced it was mobilizing fleets of trucks to ferry supplies to Baghdad.

In Moscow, a Foreign Ministry spokesman termed "slandorous and false" a Tehran Radio report that the Soviet Union had offered arms to Iran. Tehran Radio reported earlier this week that the Soviet ambassador to Iran made the offer and Iran turned it down.

In a major policy speech in Boston, Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the United States will honor "requests for assistance from non-belligerent friends in the (Persian Gulf) area who feel threatened by the conflict."

the professor told the Times, and they are still unpublished.

The first patient, a 21-year-old woman, was treated at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem on July 10 and 11. The second patient, a 16-year-old girl, was given the gene treatment on July 15 at University Poly Clinic in Naples.

Both women suffer from a disease called beta thalassemia major, which is quite rare in the United States but common among people native to Mediterranean countries. On the UCLA campus, Cline planned to use patients suffering from another hemoglobin disorder, sickle cell anemia, which afflicts a large number of blacks.

Patients with beta thalassemia major lack the ability to produce a component of normal hemoglobin, the molecule in red blood cells that carries oxygen to body tissues.

Both patients are alive and doing well, Cline said. Neither was bedridden at the time of the treatment, he added, despite the seriousness of their conditions.

The Office of Protection From Research Risks in the National Institutes of Health, the federal agency that funds the largest single share of non-military scientific research, now is investigating Cline's work, the Times said.

At issue is whether Cline followed federal guidelines for protecting human subjects from possible harm, the newspaper said.

Until recently, genetic engineering was confined to the test tube.

COUNTY NOISE ORDINANCE?

My neighbors who live about 3 to 4 tenths mile across the field from me play their stereo so loud it's maddening. You'd think they'd blow themselves out of the house when we can hear it so well at such a distance. The Sheriff Department deputies went there one night recently at our request, but once they left the music was just turned up louder still. The deputies say there's nothing that can be done, since Pitt County doesn't have an anti-noise ordinance. In the meantime, my family and I face another sleepless night. J. T.

Hotline talked with Pitt County Sheriff Chief Deputy Brooks Oakley who said the Sheriff Department does get a goodly number of noise protest calls these days. It's bound to get more and more common as the county is more and more developed, he said. He said that a noise ordinance for the county similar to what most municipalities have may be needed. It's hard to enforce a disturbing of the peace law for noise alone, he said.

Anyone who supports a noise control ordinance may contact the county manager's office.

SEEKS CHESTNUT SALESMAN

I recently was pleased to have a man deliver five pounds of chestnuts to my house. He left a note telling me the very reasonable price, but did not leave his name and address. I think he assumed I would remember his identity from last year when I bought from him, but I don't. If he or someone who knows him will contact me, I will be glad to pay him the money I owe him. A. Genetic Implant Technique Used

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A California professor has become the first scientist known to use new techniques of genetic engineering in human subjects even though the university denied him permission to do so at its facilities, according to a published report.

Dr. Martin J. Cline, a specialist in blood disorders, attempted to treat two patients who had a fatal blood disease by placing normal genes in their defective bone marrow cells, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The procedure was performed in Italy and Israel at a time when Cline was waiting for permission to do it at the University of California at Los Angeles. That permission was later denied.

The results of Cline's experiments with the two people are still inconclusive,

Farmville Board Acts On Items

FARMVILLE — The Farmville town board last night set a public hearing for October 22, to hear proposals for cable television service for the community.

Three companies, Alert Cable TV, Farmville Cable Inc., and Tar River Communications, are expected to present their proposals for service at the 7:30 p.m. session in the court room at the Municipal Building.

The board adopted an ordinance last night clarifying zoning boundaries along property lines in Marlboro and rezoning of property north of the Highway Business zone from light industrial to R-5 residential. The board also adopted ordinances establishing a bus loading zone on Greene Street, establishing a number of no parking zones on Wallace, and South George Streets, and on Wright Drive, setting one no parking zone on Perry Street, installing a traffic light at the intersection of George and Wallace Streets, and installing a stop sign on Wright Drive at the Perry Street intersection.

In other business, the board approved the purchase of a tractor from Herring International for $7,109, denied a request for the purchase of a service truck for the downtown services crew, approved the auction sale of an abandoned auto found in the 600 block of West Church Street on January 17, and approved an application for a $112,500 Clean Water Bond grant to help fund a proposed $450,000 water main extension to Lang's Cross Roads.

The town board authorized the temporary refund of $46,563 to Collins & Aikman for a payment C&A made under the industrial cost recovery program. The refund was based on the fact that the Environmental Protection Agency has delayed the enforcement of the ICR collection requirement until June 30, 1981.

The board last night also approved the transfer of $13,027 to be added to $55,000 already earmarked for the purchase of a new fire truck.

Jenrette Quickly Found Guilty In Abscam Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A distraught Rep. John W. Jenrette, admittedly shocked at the swiftness of his Abscam conviction, says he's re-evaluating his race for a fourth term. But for now, he's still in.

Jenrette, crying on his wife's shoulder, needed half an hour to regain his composure after a U.S. District Court jury convicted him of bribery and conspiracy Tuesday, then walked out of the courthouse and told reporters, "Yes, I'm going to run."

But the South Carolina Democrat, his eyes still moist and his voice cracking, added that he and the 10 Democratic chairmen in his district planned to meet "to determine the best course."

Later, Jenrette, an acknowledged alcoholic who says he hasn't had a drink in six months, said, "I'm not going to let this destroy me."

The jury of eight women and four men had deliberated less than five hours before Jenrette and his co-defendant, John R. Stowe, a Richmond, Va., businessman, were convicted of all three counts in the indictment.

Jenrette, at the defense table, greeted the verdict by bowing his head and sobbing into his hands. Stowe was impassive, as he had been through much of the five-week trial. Rita Jenrette leveled a stern stare at the jury as foreman Sylvia Parker announced the de-

Re-Election Is Believed Likely

By SHEILA ALLEE
Associated Press Writer
South Carolina political leaders have been largely noncommittal about Congressman John Jenrette's bribery conviction, but at least one Democratic Party leader says the 6th District representative will win re-election despite everything.

Johnny Harrelson, chairman of the Democratic Party in Georgetown County in the 6th District, said, "I would say to John Jenrette hang in there. He will win despite everything."

Jenrette gave every indication he would "hang in there" after he was convicted late Tuesday of conspiracy and bribery. The Democrat said he would continue his bid for re-election against Republican John Napier and would consult with county party chairmen for their input.

Harrelson said he thinks for the money, Jenrette had promised to introduce the legislation for the sheiks, who were actually mythical creations of the FBI.

Jenrette, describing himself as "very much in shock," said he was "beginning to wonder about the whole system."

Jenrette is innocent and was framed.

"It haunts me to believe that someone like John Jenrette who has worked as hard for us as he has was a victim of entrapment," Harrelson said.

Another Democratic Party leader in the 6th District, Rep. B.J. Gordon, disagreed with Harrelson.

"All indications were that he was guilty," Gordon said. "I tried to get it over to the constituents in the 6th District. Not that I had anything personal against Jenrette, but because of the problems he had I didn't think I should support him with clouds hanging over his head."

The Kingstree Democrat said, "I could not persuade enough blacks in the 6th District to see my point. Now we all have a problem — how are we going to combine forces to beat Napier."

Public Hearings Set For Thurs.

Seven public hearings are among the business items scheduled for Thursday's 8 p.m. City Council meeting at city hall.

The hearings are scheduled on three requests for rezoning, on an amendment to the zoning ordinance relative to street access, on a request that a portion of a cul-de-sac be closed, on a proposal by Greenville Cable TV Inc. for revisions in its rate and programming schedules, and on Community Development program performance.

Other items on the agenda include: appointments to boards and commissions; consideration of the adoption of a memorandum of understanding between the city and the Department of Housing and Urban Development relative to the New Horizons Program;

Consideration of an ordinance deleting the Max R. Joyner and Collice Moore property, east of Greenville Boulevard, from the fire district; application by the Pitt County Health Department for renewal of the permit granted for the mobile home located behind the Health Department; amendments to Greenville Utilities' electric, water, and sewer capital project budgets.

Scheduling of five items, recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission, for public hearings in November; consideration of three recommendations submitted by the Traffic Commission;

Consideration of four applications for privilege licenses; consideration of tax releases and refunds; consideration of ordinances relative to the cutting of weeds; and consideration of a resolution abandoning an unused sewer easement on the southwest corner of the intersection of US 264 Bypass and NC 11.

Economy And Defense Are People's Concerns

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor
"Issues people show the most concern about are the state of our economy and our weakened national defense," said Mrs. John East of Greenville. Dr. East is the Republican candidate seeking election to the U. S. Senate.

"John is particularly interested in the problems facing farmers. When I am talking with groups myself, I enjoy discussing family issues. People are concerned about the government's intervention into family life. Women's groups, for instance, are interested in hearing about John's feelings about pro-life, ERA and the Christian's involvement in politics this year. When someone asks me certain specifics about John's platform, I prefer to have him respond," she continued.

"John and I discuss a lot of political topics, particularly since it has been our life together this past year."
"The most interesting part of the campaign is how well we have been received across the state and that people are anxious to hear the issues articulated to them. Probably the most disappointing thing is we have had to refuse so many invitations even though we campaign 16 hours a day. It's a full-time job. With all the work we have put into the campaign, we are looking forward to victory on Nov. 4. We have felt a great deal of support around the state from both parties who are concerned about the course this nation is taking. People are concerned about the leadership of our country," she added.

When asked what she had enjoyed during the campaign, she said, "Most of all I have enjoyed traveling with John, meeting the people everywhere we have been and hearing about their concerns."

The Easts have lived here 17 years, having moved from Florida. They have two daughters, Chip (Kathryn) and Marty (Martha).

"John was serving in the U. S. Marine Corp stationed in North Carolina when Chip was born. My dad said she looked like a chipmunk storing her winter food in her cheeks — the nickname remained," Mrs. East said.

Marty is a senior at ECU majoring in therapeutic recreation, as did Chip. Chip now works for the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

John decided to leave his law practice and go into university teaching because of his interest in young people. That's why we chose to come here and East Carolina University," Mrs. East recalled.

The couple met while students at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind. They graduated the same year and were married following East's being commissioned into the Marine Corp.

Last night the family attended a reception and dinner in Kinston. John Connally was the special guest appearing in behalf of East for Senate.

Traits Don't Exclude Neatness

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for many years and agree with your advice about 99 percent of the time, but your comment to PROUD GRANNY didn't sound like you. Granny wrote that she let her grandson and five of his boyfriends use her beach home for a weekend high school graduation celebration and the boys had left the place immaculate! The floor had been scrubbed, the bed linen and towels were laundered, and they even left her a thank-you note, signed by all the boys, plus a box of candy and a $10 bill to cover the cost of their long-distance calls.

You agreed that they were wonderful young men, then you spoiled it all by tagging on the P.S.: "Sounds like they may have had a little help from some chicks."

Abby, I'm disappointed and amazed that you, a vocal proponent of the ERA, would make such a sexist comment. Courtesy, neatness and housekeeping skills are not strictly feminine traits. I think you owe the young men an apology.

LET DOWN

DEAR LET: I agree, and I hereby apologize. My "P.S." was intended as a little joke, but a surprising number of readers took me seriously.

***

DEAR ABBY: With reference to the letter from HAPPY COUPLE who were all set to be married by the only person in the area who had the authority to marry them: He was a forest ranger, but the bride's mother and grandmother disapproved of him because he had long hair and a beard.

May I offer the following comments:

1. Forest rangers are not authorized to perform marriages.
2. As a retired forest ranger, I have yet to see a ranger with long hair and a beard.
3. In your reply to the couple, you said, "Perhaps you should remind your mother and grandmother that Jesus Christ had long hair and a beard." So be it, but look what happened to him.

ARTHUR IN ALBUQUERQUE

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with a wonderful man whom I will marry the minute my divorce is final. That's the problem. My divorce is not yet final, and from the way the lawyers are holding things up, I don't know when the divorce will be final.

My fiance wants to give me a diamond engagement ring and make the announcement. We are totally committed to each other, and all that's holding us up is my divorce.

Would it be proper to go ahead and announce our engagement before I am officially divorced? I have been separated from my husband for five months, there's no chance for a reconciliation, and I am definitely going to marry this man I'm in love with.

What do you say?

IMPATIENT

DEAR IMPATIENT: Wait until you are officially divorced before you become officially engaged.

Workshop Recently Held At MCC

WILLIAMSTON — "Women — Stepping In, Stepping Out," a workshop about women in non-traditional jobs, was held at Martin Community College last week.

The event was co-sponsored by the college, the Work Options for Women Program and the Martin County Council on the Status of Women.

Lillian Lee, director of Work Options for Women, and Joan Gutmann of the Raleigh Council on the Status of Women gave facts about women employed in the state.

A panel of women currently employed in non-traditional jobs shared their experiences. Including Gladys Hathcock, a field welder with Brown-Root Construction Co.; Patti Shankle, a machinist with United Machine Works, Inc.; Sylvia Corey and Neda Fagan, mechanics at Coats and Clark; Brenda House, a sawmill supervisor with Weyerhaeuser; and Lucy Outerbridge, team coordinator for Procter and Gamble.

The employers' panel was represented by Maxine Brown of Procter and Gamble, Mark Reinhart of ACP, Cynthia Peyton with Employment Security Commission and Brenda House of Weyerhaeuser.

Jimmie Sniffen, consultant for women's issues and also an artist from Greenville, talked about sex bias and self-esteem.

More Actors Back At Work

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Americans are closer to discovering who shot J.R. as more actors, including "Dallas" star Larry Hagman, were called back to work after the longest strike by actors in movie and television history.

Hagman, who plays TV's most hated oil man and most loved villain was told with the rest of CBS-TV's "Dallas" cast to report to work next Monday by Lorimar Productions.

Returning to work on videotaped shows Tuesday were Carroll O'Connor of "Archie Bunker's Place" and Bonnie Franklin of "One Day at a Time." They were back on sets despite their union local's rejection of a proposed contract negotiated during the 11-week strike that began on July 21.

The American Federation of Television and Radio Artists' Los Angeles chapter on Monday rejected the contract by a 228-220 vote and asked the union's national board to rescind an interim back-to-work order.

But AFTRA national executive secretary Sanford "Bud" Wolff said Tuesday it would take a few days to convene board meetings in Los Angeles, Chicago and New York. A retraction of the work order was "by no means a foregone conclusion," he added.

Wolff said Monday's vote resulted from "emotionalism."

"The people in San Francisco voted for the contract last night (51 to 7), and that means the majority voting thus far are in favor of it (271 to 235) ... I believe the contract will ultimately be ratified."

The Screen Actors Guild, whose members are in filmed television shows and movies, was conducting a mail-in ballot.

The proposed contract calls for an immediate 15 percent increase in base wages with another 15 percent increase Jan. 1, 1982, a 30 percent increase in residuals paid for reruns of most movies and television programs, and an increase in pension and welfare benefits.

It also includes a formula under which actors would be paid a percentage of the gross from all programs made for the home pay television market. Payments could begin after programs have been exhibited on home video channels for 10 days during a one-year period and after the first 100,000 cassettes and 100,000 discs have been sold.

FOCUS

Fire!

On this day in 1871, a disastrous fire broke out in the city of Chicago. According to legend, the fire started when a cow owned by Mrs. Patrick O'Leary kicked over a lantern in a barn. The fire burned for more than a day, destroying the city's downtown area and killing at least 300 people. On that same day in 1871, another fire broke out in northeastern Wisconsin. That fire wiped out the town of Peshtigo and several villages. About 800 people died. The Peshtigo and Chicago fires helped call attention to the need for better ways to fight and prevent fires. This week, Fire Prevention Week, is part of that effort.

System Will Be A Guide

Pitt and three other counties in the third judicial district will be moving for the first time into the public defender system Jan. 1.

The public defender's office will be the counterpart of the district attorney's office, with the DA staff prosecuting the cases, and the public defender furnishing attorneys for those who can't afford them.

A public defender will be appointed by the governor and he will assemble a staff of six attorneys to serve the district.

It will be a major change in the way indigent defendants are represented. Some years back defendants frequently had no attorney to represent them unless they were charged with a capital crime. After court decisions forced adequate representation for defendants, the practice was to appoint private attorneys to represent defendants. While the public defenders staff will represent a large part of those needing attorneys, there still will be times when private practice lawyers will be used.

Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro and Buncombe County currently have public defender systems and the third judicial district will be the fifth system to be established.

What is done here will be a guide to other multi-county districts. Hopefully the public defender system will provide adequate representation at a lower cost to the state.

Honors Those Who Gave

The Order of Wright Circle was a glittering affair at the Greenville Country Club Saturday night.

It no doubt provided an enjoyable evening, but it primarily served an important purpose — that of honoring those who have given substantial gifts to East Carolina University.

If ECU is to become a great university it will be essential that funds from private donors become a regular part of its financing. Those who have given in the past have helped raise the institution well above average standards. Their generosity is to be appreciated.

THIS AFTERNOON

Shifting Programs

RALEIGH — While North Carolina county commissioners spell out a variety of new ways to raise some money, the big dollars would be trimmed from county government's backs by program transfers.

In resolutions adopted at their annual convention recently, the commissioners called for legislative proposals to the 1981 General Assembly which would transfer fully to state responsibility the financing of Medicaid health services, and instructional programs in the public schools.

Medicaid, a joint federal-state-local effort, provides health care for the poor and elderly. Nursing home care for the elderly has become the biggest outlay, and total annual cost has mushroomed to nearly half-a-billion dollars in North Carolina. The local share of this cost has skyrocketed from $7.2 million just five years ago to $35 million this year; representing more than four cents per $100 valuation on the average property tax rate in the state.

Also, the local share in school costs has been rising steadily till it now stands at more than $400,000 per year. State assumption of these two items would provide considerable financial relief to local government officials.

Higher
Meanwhile, the county commissioners are also seeking added income from a variety of sources. The major change would be another penny on the sales tax for local government, raising that tax to a nickel. Local governments, county and municipal, already have authority to collect one cent and all except Burke County do so. The state collects the tax and distributes it to local governments either on a per capita or an ad valorem basis. The local take totals nearly $50 million.

Noting state pressure to upgrade and expand court facilities and increasing court activity, county commissioners propose that court costs be increased "a minimum of 50 percent" which would push district court costs to more than $40; and superior court costs to $105.

Inflation has revaged several fees which counties collect such as criminal process fees ($2), civil summonses and such ($3), jail fees ($5 per day), and pistol permits (50 cents).

County commissioners propose that criminal and civil service fees be raised to $15; jail fees to $12 daily; and weapon permits to $5.

Another resolution seems minor on the surface, but actually would trigger considerable debate around the state: a law requiring that excise stamps showing the full sales price in real estate transactions be bought and placed on deeds.

This action serves two major purposes: counties currently lose considerable income because the excise stamps in the proper amount are not normally attached to deeds; and, the actual purchase price would help substantiate higher valuations for tax purposes in many instances.

Sales Price
Additionally, the actual sales history is needed in order for tax offices to computerize and modernize the revaluation process in an effort to constantly upgrade property values rather than continuing the current revaluation on an eight-year cycle.

There is strong opposition to full disclosure of purchase price through display of excise stamps from business and real estate interests around the state.

DANGER THAT STALKS A MODERN BATTLEFIELD!

BY ART BUCHWALD

But, God Doesn't Vote

WASHINGTON — God is really getting a workout during this election year. There was a time when the TV preachers devoted their programs to telling us how angry God was with the way we were behaving in our private lives, which of course is their business.

But now we're being told that God has a vested interest in who we put in public office, and some Fundamentalists sects known as the "Moral Majority" are spending loads of money to defeat any body whose voting record doesn't go along with their interpretation of the Bible.

They are calling for a holy war against those who are for the ERA, abortion, school busing and against the B-1 bomber.

I always thought the nice thing about God was that he stayed out of American politics. But after watching the TV shows for the past few weeks, I was beginning to wonder.

So when I spoke to God the other night I asked, "Who are you going to vote for this year?"

God seemed very angry. "I never take sides in an American election."

"But there are a lot of people down here who say you want Reagan."

"That's ridiculous. I hardly know the man, though I have seen his movies."

"But the Bible thumpers keep quoting you all the time. They say you've definitely made your mind up and we better all go along with you or we're headed for damnation."

"With all due respect to these people, they don't know what in the devil they're talking about. I've told them time and time again that I don't give political endorsements. If I did, I wouldn't be God. I have a good mind to sue them for using my name without my permission."

"I don't blame you," I said. "And I for one never believed them when they kept quoting you on the political issues."

"What scares me," God said, "is that these TV ministers are not only telling the American people whom I support, but they're raising all their money in my name. They keep warning the viewing audience that if they don't send in their checks, I'm going to be very upset. I don't deal in money — never have, and never will. But they're telling those poor souls out there that if they don't come up with a contribution, they won't have salvation. I'd appreciate it if you put the word out that anyone is free to send in any amount of money to a TV minister, but their money isn't buying a place in heaven. It's buying limousines and $500 suits for the people who are making the pitches."

"God, you sound mad."

"I am mad. I'm trying to keep the whole world from blowing up and those preachers down there say my only concern is to defeat George McGovern in South Dakota."

"I wish you could somehow get the message over that you aren't for or against anyone running in our elections this year. It would certainly clear the air for all of us."

"I can't do it. I believe in the separation of church and state. I've stayed out of American politics since 1776 and that's why you people are still around. I'm sorry. I have to go now, I have the Moral Majority on hold."

Style Stirs A Hostility

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
PHILADELPHIA — President Carter, campaigning last Thursday in two crucial states where he now trails, spent 12 hours escalating misrepresentations about Ronald Reagan as a mad nuclear bomber, but a questioner suddenly brought him up short, showing the limits of this central tactic of the president's campaign.

A bone-tired Carter was asked during a live interview over Philadelphia's WCAU-TV whether it was not "kind of harsh" to suggest a vote for Reagan would be a vote for war. "That would be too harsh, yes," the president replied quietly. "That certainly would be."

Carter had suggested exactly that a week earlier. He kept insinuating it over and over last Thursday but soon discovered that this is not the same as trashing Carl Sanders in Georgia in 1970 or even Teddy Kennedy in last spring's primaries. The president's words are being so closely scrutinized that he cannot get away with all his old tricks.

Since Carter must back away from the overt war-monger accusations, his attack ultimately boils down to policy disagreements with Reagan over the merits of the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union. In a political climate that demands stronger defense and tougher diplomacy, that disagreement is not necessarily a political advantage for the president.

Carter's managers believe he has no alternative. It is not that he trails Reagan so badly but that he lacks both momentum and an overriding campaign theme. Unlike other Democratic presidents, he cannot fall back on bread-and-butter issues. So the Carter camp relies on the tactic it knows and practices best: Assault the opponent.

That was the situation as the president began a daylong swing through Ohio and Pennsylvania, two states he won in 1976 and may have to win in 1980. In each, he trails in the polls by around 5 percentage points (about the same as his national deficit).

Guided by Pat Caddell's polls, the new wave of Carter television spots seeks to exploit public doubts about whether Reagan as president would take the nation to war. They bear Gerald Raifshoon's inimitable trademark of relentless attack.

On the eve of Carter's Ohio-Pennsylvania trip, television viewers across the country saw variations of two basic Carter commercials: a half-dozen or so California voters, interviewed on the street, worrying that their former governor would "shoot from the hip" as president; a review of past Reagan statements threatening to show or use military force. Jimmy Carter himself? He was scarcely mentioned.

Reagan's interview with the Associated Press that day coincidentally provided ammunition for the president's trip. Opening the day with a Dayton "town meeting," Carter called Reagan's reiterated opposition to SALT II "a departure" from "a national commitment to peace." By the end of the day, Carter had refined his charge. "Gov. Reagan announced that he was going to abandon the SALT II agreement and replace it with an American nuclear arms race," he said in that TV interview.

In fact, Reagan told the AP that because he believes SALT II favors the Soviets, he would immediately seek new arms negotiations and simultaneously increase arms production as a bargaining lever. That basic disagreement over arms control strategy and policy was twisted by Carter into an accusation that Reagan does not want any arms control at all.

This is traditional and habitual for Jimmy Carter. Reagan's 1975 suggestion that a destroyer might accompany U.S. tuna boats to Ecuador if a fishing rights dispute were not resolved now becomes, in the president's words here, as follows: "He advocated sending in the American Navy."

The tactic transcends military affairs. At a Philadelphia fund-raiser, Carter quoted Reagan in the AP interview as advocating repeal of the oil windfall profits tax and abolition of the Department of Energy. In fact, Reagan said the former was not possible now and he "would look very closely at" the latter. "He (Reagan) wants to eliminate conservation measures including the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit," said Carter. In fact, Reagan is not specifically on record for any such elimination, including repealing the speed limit (which is contained in the Republican platform).

This Carter style irritates more than editorial writers. In suburban Lansdowne, Pa., a woman questioner contrasted Carter's past "upbeat and positive" tone with "negative aspects ... in political television commercials attacking your opponents" — specifically TV commercials condemning Rep. John Anderson for his "Jesus Christ Amendment" 15 years ago.

"I have never heard of the TV spot that you refer to about Anderson and the Jesus Christ Amendment," Carter replied coolly. He was right. It is a radio commercial, played heavily in Democratic areas. The president's answer reflected his campaign style. The campaign is intended to eat up Reagan's lead, but in fact it was arousing hostility from the Philadelphia television interviewer, the woman in Lansdowne and very likely a great many other voters who expected something better.

To the editor:

Does one detect, amongst Republicans, a Chimpanzee Connection? First Bonzo/Reagan in the forgettable film, "Bedtime for Bonzo"; then Bush/Chimpanzee/ Helms in Helms' statement that he would support the Reagan candidacy even if a chimpanzee had been nominated for the vice-presidency.

Democrats, stir! Consider this scenario: At Bonzo's suggestion, the Republicans call for a series of daily meetings through the land for the entire week preceding Election Day. They know the Democrats will spy.

At the first meeting, chimpanzees are slipped in; so, too, in subsequent meetings, a few at a time, but building up daily.

The Democrats, who have been away listening to speeches and living it up, come back, take peeks, and start thinking that they are seeing chimpanzee. They are afraid to mention it, even to one another, for fear of being committed. Surprisingly, the Republicans slip in more chimpanzees. Election Day approaches. The Democrats are looking at each other sidewise. They are rolling their eyes.

Soon they can't tell a chimpanzee from a Republican. The night before Election Day, the Democrats sneak out of their houses. What do they see? Chimpanzees. Nothing but chimpanzees. They think they are losing their minds. All rush home and lock themselves in their rooms, their heads buried in their pillows.

Election Day comes and goes, the Democrats deep in their pillows. All offices are forfeited to the Republicans who proceed triumphantly to Washington, their bags loaded with bombs for Russia, fierce letters of Ultimatum to Panama, locks of Jerry Falwell's hair, and horse manure to drop in the streets to remind us that the Good Old Days are reborn. The chimpanzees follow in vans.

You better mind your mess, Democrats!

Strength For Today

WITH GRATITUDE
Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the great missionary to Africa, once said that the basis for victorious living "was not to take life for granted but to take it with gratitude."

Because there is much we cannot change in human life we tend to take it for granted. We accept with sometimes cynical resignation its unfavorable aspects and accept without appreciation its joyous offerings.

All of us are guilty of this to some extent. We take our health for granted, and the love that surrounds us, and the loyalty of our friends. Most of us never really appreciate how fortunate we are. And part of this attitude is a tendency toward exaggerated expectations.

But we should follow the advice of Dr. Schweitzer and take life with gratitude. A loving God made it, a loving God sustains it, and a loving God will bring it at last to the purpose He has always had in mind for His children. — Elisha Douglass

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Does it really matter to know that producer prices of finished goods really rose 0.4 percent rather than fell 0.2 percent last month, as measured in the traditional way?

It does, of course, when you consider that the election is but a month away, that numbers often are accepted these days without question and that the "improvement" was claimed as proof of economic leadership.

As some people now know, the methodology was changed from other months and other years by including, for the first time, data on cash rebates given to dealers by American car manufacturers.

Because of this data, which make today's producer price index noncomparable with that of previous months, the administration was able to say that a 4½-year string of rising prices had been broken.

Pressed to explain, the Labor Department maintained indignantly that the change in methodology and the nearness to the election was mere coincidence and that its mission had not been undermined by politics.

But the Bureau's integrity needn't be involved at all for you to be wary of numbers. In this, the computer age of man, we often accept the numbers as absolute and sometimes substitute them for hard thinking.

To do so is to risk being misled, because numbers are as fallible as those behind them, and as exploitable as those who interpret them.

Not too long ago, for example, the Federal Reserve misstated the weekly money supply figures because it believed the computer. Later it found a massive clerical error at one of its reporting member banks.

A decade or so ago, when the Commerce Department was touting the approach of a trillion dollar economy, it erected a display calculator in its lobby that measured every gain in gross national product. There was a celebration when the day came. There should have been none; the trillion dollar mark was achieved by counting inflation as a product.

Prominent economists, including Julius Shiskin, former commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, have long maintained that public focus on the monthly jobless figures often misleads as well as leads.

An example came a few days ago with the announcement that September unemployment dropped — to 7.5 percent of the civilian labor force from 7.6 percent. A one-tenth of one percent drop, a drop that could result from error, a drop that might later be revised out of existence.

Such revisions are common in retail sales. When the percentage gains or reverses are reported for a particular month, you may be almost certain that the previous month's figures are simultaneously revised.

This situation can produce almost comic results. During a prolonged period of stagnant retail sales you might find regular monthly gains being reported. In the following month they revised lower.

At the moment, the Census Bureau is accused by some big-city mayors of seriously undercounting their populations. The claims may or may not be correct, but it wouldn't be the first time the bureau has miscounted.

Several years ago the bureau publicly denied accusations of a multi-billion dollar error in estimates of unfilled orders at the nation's factories, and denounced those who made the accusation. Then, with minimal publicity, it confessed that the error approached $50 billion.

Beware the numbers. Good as they are — and professionals say those compiled in the United States are the best anywhere — they can mislead. Those who compile them can mislead; those who interpret them, too.

The numbers, after all, are products of fallible human beings. The humans who devise the methodology may be at fault; those who program the computers might be; so might those who collect the data.

Not all numbers workers are perfectionists, either. Asked why he made projections from numbers he knew to be faulty, a bank vice president confessed: "They're the best available; nobody has anything better."

Vows To Fight NBC Allegation

DENIES MOB LINK — Entertainer Wayne Newton emphatically denied any connection with organized crime during a press conference Tuesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Wayne Newton says he'll fight a court battle "that could last the rest of my life" to refute allegations in an NBC News report that organized crime was involved in his purchase of a hotel casino here.

Newton, a former teen-age singing prodigy turned nightclub entertainer, said he "would welcome any kind of an investigation" to dispel the news report that organized crime was linked to his recent $85 million purchase of the Aladdin Hotel.

At a news conference Tuesday night in the opulent Middle East-styled hotel, Newton said he will launch a lawsuit today against the network.

The law requires that NBC be given an opportunity to retract the story, Newton said. The suit will be filed — with or without a retraction — in New York, Los Angeles and Nevada, he said.

According to NBC, Newton, 37, faces a federal grand jury investigation into his relationship with reputed organized crime leader Guido Penosi.

Newton said NBC executives asked him three months ago about an interview to discuss Penosi. He declined because he feared an inaccurate story would scuttle negotiations for the hotel, Newton said.

"I do know Guido," Newton said. "I've never threats were made on the life of his daughter, now 4. He contacted Penosi after police were unable to do anything about the threats, he said.

Newton denied NBC's report he had made 11 phone calls to Penosi. "I've never talked to him 11 times in my entire life," he said.

Since the network's news special, Newton said he has had a five-year movie deal canceled by a studio and his family has received crank calls.

"The damage to my family is unforgivable," he said.

Harry Reid, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Commission, said the news report was missing "a lot of hard facts," but "if something develops, we'd be glad to follow up on it."

OPEN HOUSE

Open House was held at both Fieldcrest plants in Greenville on Sunday, Oct. 5 to celebrate Textile Week in North Carolina. Several hundred guests toured the Karastan Spinning plant and Karastan Worsted plant to observe the process of manufacturing carpet yarns. Refreshments were served.

Toastmasters Meet Tonight

The Greenville Toastmasters Club will hold their regular meeting Wednesday, Oct. 9 at Western Sizzlin. Dinner will be at 6:15 p.m. and the program will begin at 7:15. Guests are invited to attend.

In addition to the regular program Toastmaster Betty Topper will conduct a workshop-like session on organizing speeches and correct breathing technique.

Toastmasters is an international organization devoted to the development of communication and leadership skills. For more information about the club, contact Pat or Charlotte Flanagan, 756-7192.

Drug Charges Are Preferred

Two Beaufort County men were arrested by Greenville police last night on charges of possession of cocaine and possession of marijuana, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

The two were identified as Russell Dennis Donnelly of Route 6, Washington, and Robin Timothy Banks of Washington.

Cannon said the two were taken into custody by officers in a parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets. He noted that a small quantity of marijuana and cocaine, as well as several Empirin 3 tablets were confiscated.

ALUMNI MEET

The first meeting of the Hampton Institute Alumni Association of Pitt County will be at the home of Mrs. Jean Darden on Trent Circle, today at 5:30 p.m. All alumni are urged to attend.

County commissioners also agreed to push for state-county revenue sharing with each county receiving a set percentage of the state's General Fund tax revenue to help bear the local cost of state mandated programs.

And that old argument about local property taxes on motor vehicles continues to nag officials. A resolution calling for the state to require documentation of listing for local property taxation prior to issuing a motor vehicle license is in the package. Estimates are that local governments are losing up to $10 million in taxes to those who don't list their vehicles, and a variety of methods have been put forward to close this escape route, but so far none has been developed which is acceptable to state and local officials, and to automobile dealers.

UNC Policy 'Hit' Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — An education specialist testifying for the government said Tuesday University of North Carolina planning does not include adequate proposals for locating new problems at black institutions or for eliminating unneeded duplicate programs. Robert Dentler, head of education research for ABT Associates Inc., made the statement during cross examination by UNC attorney Joseph Lavin at a hearing to determine whether federal funding will be cut off the university system. Dentler, in three days of testimony, has called for major program exchanges at UNC campuses to attract more whites to traditionally black institutions. Under questioning by Lavin, Dentler said there are probably "thousands of examples" where the shifting of programs from one campus to another has been successful in causing desegregation.

noted that North Carolina is "one of the most active states for The Year of the Coast," and has, "one of the better coastal zone management programs in the nation...if it is implemented as it's written."

He explained that The Coast Alliance is designed to promote public awareness of the value of coastal resources and the need to protect them from further loss; to promote the protection of the coastal environment; and to discourage private development and public investment in flood-prone areas; as well as to increase public access to the coast.

"There are extreme pressures on the coast line," Taylor suggested, such as, "urban development, water supply, hazards from storms, erosion..." He said The Coast Alliance attempts to bring these problems into focus and suggest, "what can be done to meet the problems."

The Coast Alliance, according to Taylor, was formed in early 1979 by, "virtually all national environmental organizations," with representatives of labor unions, urban groups and sports and commercial fishermen, to promote sound, effective solutions to the problems that confront the wise use of coastal resources.

Taylor described The Year of the Coast as a campaign to educate citizens about the value and importance of coastal resources and the need to take action to protect and restore them. He noted that because of the efforts being made by the state, in North Carolina, "we're trying to complement the efforts of the State." Taylor noted that persons interested in The Coast Alliance or The Year of the Coast may contact him at 3

Vet Celebrates 105th Birthday

NEW YORK (AP) — Jesse Highsmith says he starts "each day with a song," and credits that habit with helping him to sing in the new year each year for the past century and then some. Highsmith, a veteran of the Spanish-American War and World War I, celebrated his 105th birthday Tuesday at Manhattan's Park Crescent Nursing Home where he was joined by his granddaughter and several of his great-grandchildren. Born in North Carolina in 1875, he came to New York around 1900. He worked building railroads and retired in 1954 to take a position as an elevator operator, which he kept until he was 98.

Plead Guilty To Bid - Rigging

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Three North Carolina paving companies and their top executives pleaded guilty in federal court Tuesday to charges that they rigged bids on highway projects in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow W. Jones ordered the companies — Blythe Industries Inc. of Charlotte, Propst Construction Co. of Concord and Cumberland Paving Co. of Fayetteville — to pay fines ranging from $75,000 to $250,000.

Jones ordered active prison terms of 120 days for F.J. Blythe Jr., president of Blythe Industries, and 60 days for Robert E. Barnhill Sr., board chairman of Cumberland Paving.

He delayed sentencing for Barnhill's son, Robert E. Barnhill Jr.; James L. Propst, chief executive officer for Propst Construction, and DeWitt Hodges, the company's vice president. Blythe's firm was fined $250,000, Barnhill's $200,000 and Propst's $75,000.

In a plea-bargaining agreement, in which they were granted immunity from additional prosecution, the executives pleaded guilty to "engaging in a conspiracy to submit conclusive rigged and non-competitive bids" on highway projects in Sampson, Rowan and Mecklenburg counties.

In Raleigh Highway Administrator Billy Rose said the companies probably would be removed from the list of qualified bidders when the State Board of Transportation meets Friday.

All five of the executives agreed to cooperate with the government in an investigation of bid rigging on paving projects. That investigation came to light earlier this year when Rea Construction Co. of Charlotte pleaded guilty to similar charges of rigging bids on projects in North Carolina and Virginia.

U.S. Attorney Arthur Feiveson said Tuesday the government expects to complete the investigation in North Carolina by the end of the year. About 20 other companies have been subpoenaed by a federal grand jury investigating the bidding process.

The elder Barnhill was the only defendant to address the court Tuesday. He told Jones, "Your honor, sir, all I can say is that I'm sorry. I made a mistake."

Before sentencing Barnhill, Jones read from a letter written by Superior Court Judge George M. Fountain of Tarboro, a friend of Barnhill's. "He said you were one of the finest men he had ever known," Jones said of the letter. "Knowing the judge as I do, I take that letter as speaking the truth."

In arguments to the court, Propst attorney John Hugh Williams of Concord depicted the company as a small family owned concern that had been victimized by larger competitors.

"For more than 20 years those that have owned asphalt plants have assigned territorial rights," Williams said. "Anyone submitting bids could not do business without dealing with the owner of the (asphalt) plant."

Williams said paving contractors that owned asphalt plants controlled the work in their areas because they controlled the asphalt, which can be transported on a practical basis no more than about 50 miles.

He said Propst, which did not own a plant, was forced to turn over paving work to the major pavers in order to win contracts.

Two Injured In Wrecks Yesterday

Two persons were injured and an estimated $975 property damage caused in a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Investigators reported William Oliver Vicks, 73, of Winterville received minor injuries when he stepped into the path of a car driven by Pamela Kim Lemacks of 2502A East Third St., about 8:05 a.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Reade Streets.

No charges were made and no damage resulted to the Lemacks car, officers noted.

Carlton Ray Scott Jr., of 7078 East Gum Rd. was injured when the car he was driving collided with an auto operated by Laura Elizabeth West of Oakmont Square Apts.

Police estimated damage from the 4:08 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road at $200 to the West car and $50 to the Scott auto.

Cars driven by Sarah Wylie Williamson of 1405 East Wright Rd. and George Albert Howard III of Jacksonville, collided about 7:55 a.m. on Farmville Boulevard, 228 feet east of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Officers estimated damage at $350 to the Williamson car and $75 to the Howard auto.

A 9 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 11th and Charles Streets involved cars driven by Debra Ruth Ellison of 1407 East Fifth St. and Thomas Worth Hardin of 114 Riverbluff Apts., investigators reported.

Damage was set at $200 to the Ellison car and $100 to the Hardin car.

Foundation Plans Trust

At its quarterly meeting on Monday night, members of the Greenville Foundation voted to establish a trust to receive funds for the restoration of the Robert Lee Humber House.

This historic house has been presented to Greenville and Pitt County and will be renovated through contributions made by people interested in the project.

A fund raising drive will get underway shortly in an effort to raise $40,000 for the renovation.

Early next year, the building will be occupied by an eastern branch of the North Carolina Division of Archives and History.

Gifts for the restoration project can be sent to: Greenville Foundation, Box 1607, Greenville, 27834. Donations should be marked for "Historic Humber House Restoration."

School Board.....

ago." "The plan is still a very good one," said Superintendent Alford. "It has not been watered down." "I feel it will definitely improve the quality of instruction," he added. Johnson commented that she felt the two basic uses of evaluation, improvement of instruction and job rating, must be stressed. "The two should be kept as separate as possible," she said.

Also on the agenda at yesterday's meeting was approval for funding of a covered walkway at Stokes Elementary and W.H. Robinson, as well as funding for media center shelving at Sam Bundy. The amount needed was approximately $25,000.

Assistant Superintendent of Testing John McKnight gave a report on the Scholastic Aptitude Test results for the 1980 seniors, which indicated Pitt County's mean verbal score was 375, compared with a national mean of 424, a state mean of 393, and a southern regional mean of 409. In math, Pitt County's mean was 422, compared with 466 for the nation, 445 for the southern region and 429 for North Carolina.

"SAT scores have risen significantly in Pitt County, however," explained McKnight. "During the past two years gains of 26 points on the verbal section and 39 points on the math sections were realized."

Farmville Board....

approved the membership of Waynesville in Power Agency Number 3, and named a number of people to various committees and boards.

The appointments included: Betty Dunn, re-appointed to the Recreation Advisory Committee; Douglas Vines Faison to replace James Taylor on the Farmville Housing Authority; and Melvin Chestnut, Lucy Runley, Rose Day Evans, Richard Dupree, and Sara Albritton as members of the Community Development Advisory Committee.

PERMIT APPROVED
City Manager Ed Wyatt announced the approval of a request by G. R. Whitfield School for permission to solicit donations of gifts from local merchants Oct. 7-31 for the school's Halloween Carnival. Wyatt said the request was submitted by Ms. Dorothy Daniels.

The board agreed to give further study to two agenda items: a proposal to approve a $15,420 contract with Pridden Consultants Inc. for an industrial wastewater pre-treatment inventory; and a proposal to create a housing officer position under the Community Development Director, with a salary range of $8,902 to $11,378 per year.

Synthetic Fuel Panel Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The panel set up to oversee the nation's $20 billion crash program to develop synthetic fuels holds its first organizational meeting today, according to its director, deputy energy secretary John Sawhill.

Sawhill says it's "vital" for the Synthetic Fuels Corp. to start business immediately.

Describes Toll In Kabul Morgue

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Some 25 Russian corpses, many of them deliberately mutilated by Afghans, leave Kabul's military morgue each week, a nurse who recently worked there said today.

The nurse, Nili Rahim Panchiri, also told reporters that the Soviet forces have set up at least one cemetery near the Afghan capital for burial of their dead.

Miss Panchiri, 26, said she had worked for more than a year in the Armed Forces Medical Science Academy Hospital in Kabul, which includes the central military morgue. She was able to see much of what went on and had close contacts with Russian nurses assigned exclusively to treat Soviet patients and with her supervisor, a Soviet neurologist, Dr. Malatkov, she said.

The nurse said she came to India last month with her brother and 11 other relatives of her father, the late Mohammad Rahim Panchiri, former steward to the King of Afghanistan, Zahir Shah, who since 1973 has lived in exile in Italy.

The 13 children and adults are applying here for immigration as political refugees to the United States.

Miss Panchiri said she saw attendants bring in the uniformed body of a Soviet general from the Panjshir Valley, scene of heavy fighting, with a bullet through the head and the eyes gouged out, Miss Panchiri said.

She said she saw at least two Russian corpses arrive beheaded and others with ears and limbs removed.

Miss Panjiri said through an interpreter that when she saw the mutilated Russian corpses, "in my heart, I felt some kind of joy about what they (Afghan rebels) had done." She added that prior to the Soviet invasion last December, "we did not feel that kind of hatred" toward Soviet citizens.

There have been occasional reports of Afghans avenging the occupation of their country by mutilating the bodies of Soviet soldiers, and also of punishing Afghan collaborators and settling scores with rival groups by cutting off ears and noses.

Miss Panchiri described the dead Russian general as a large man, but she could not remember his name. She said Russian dead were placed in good quality wooden coffins that were later encased in ornamental metal covers. The metal casings are made at Janglak, a Soviet-built foundry in Kabul, she said.

Afghan dead, more numerous than the Soviets, were sent from the morgue wrapped in coarse cloth for burial, Miss Panchiri said.

About 150 beds in the luxury, air conditioned wing have been allocated to Soviet patients in the 400-bed hospital, now crowded with more than 100 patients jammed into wards designed for 25 and beds overflowing into corridors, she said.

IRS Chief Plans To Step Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Internal Revenue Service says he's stepping down at the end of this month.

IRS Commissioner Jerome Kurtz, 49, is leaving to re-enter private law practice, a spokesman for the nation's tax collection agency said Tuesday night.

DR. CHARLES R. MOSLEY — of Asheville will be the guest preacher at Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Farmville Prices Decline

FARMVILLE — Prices declined sharply Tuesday on the Farmville Tobacco Market, including some of the better grades of tobacco. Quality cutter and leaf grades accounted for top prices of $1.75 and $1.80 per pound.

Volume of less desirable grades continued to increase. Low grades of variegated tobacco accounted for most of the decreases in price. Stabilization receipts accounted for 11.84 percent of total sales.

The market sold 433,821 pounds Tuesday for $633,068 and an average of $145.93 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 24,766,607 pounds for $37,247,500 and a season average of $150.39 per hundred.

Ambassador Mansfield Sees New Interest In Asia

By JOHN NEEDHAM
TOKYO (UPI) — The lean, angular man from Montana moves through the government ministries of Tokyo as easily as he walked the corridors of the U.S. Congress during his record tenure as Senate majority leader.

A sailor in World War I at age 14, then a soldier and finally a Marine, a coal miner with a seventh-grade education and then a university professor, a politician and now the U.S. ambassador to Japan: Mike Mansfield.

He is 77 years old now and planning to retire in January. He grins when he says other Americans finally are realizing what he's known for half a century — Asia is the key continent.

In 10 years in the House and 24 years in the Senate, serving on foreign affairs committees and specializing in the Far East, "What concerned me was that most of the time I was almost alone in the House and the Senate in showing an interest in this part of the world."

It's changing now, he believes. "The European bias still is maintained, but I think that a shift has taken place and more interest, much more interest, is being shown about the Pacific and East Asia."

Montana newspapers cover a table in his office. Auto-graphed pictures of house and senate leaders are displayed. Mansfield makes coffee for his visitors and begins most answers with laconic Gary Cooper-like phrases: "None at all," "Yes," "Certainly."

He's probably better known, at home and in the country where he now works, than any other U.S. ambassador. "He has become one of the very few ambassadors here (perhaps the only one) out of about 60 whose name the average Japanese knows," Kimppei Shiba wrote in his column in the Asahi Evening News earlier this year.

"He didn't hesitate to tell the Japanese what he thought," Shiba said. "Neither did he spare his own countrymen."

Mansfield told UPI, "I've had arguments with the (U.S.) defense and State departments -- and the administration."

"I have never believed in the old adage about a diplomat -- if a political appointee can be so described -- as a person sent abroad to lie for his country."

"I try to operate out here as I operated in the Senate as majority leader and that was to tell the truth, lay all the cards on the table, consider the plusses and minuses. And I think it's paid off."

A year ago he expressed it much the same way, saying he called things as he saw them.

"I've got to live with myself and if I can't do an honest job I don't want the job," he said. "I don't need the job. I've got a good pension on which I could go back, on which I'm losing money really, because of the cost of living index which goes with it."

Japanese government officials express admiration for Mansfield, and respect for his extensive contacts with the Congress and personal friendship with President Carter. The officials say they listen to the ambassador's advice. A Japanese Foreign Ministry official dealing with North American affairs noted this year that Mansfield "has a deep understanding of Japan and he spares himself no trouble to work for Japan. He is an irreplaceable asset for Japan."

While Mansfield explains to the Japanese the importance of Congress, he explains to Washington what he sees as U.S. mistakes.

"I am disturbed sometimes by the threats, demands and pressures coming out of Washington," he said, "because that is not the way to get the Japanese to do what we want them to do and what they will do, but it is a way to create a counterproductive reaction, which will not be beneficial to either of our countries."

Mansfield's more than three years in Japan have been spent worrying about Japan's huge trade surpluses with America, about its car exports, its defense spending, about getting Tokyo to follow Washington's lead in dealing with Iran and Afghanistan, about working out an agreement on plutonium reprocessing.

He said he has had no disappointments and has accomplished his goals. He goes out of his way to credit the professional diplomats in the embassy.

Mansfield agreed with a questioner that probably his main advantage over a professional diplomat is the contacts he has with Washington politicians, whose action in such fields as trade legislation can have a profound impact on Japan.

The ambassador said he believes Washington's most important bilateral relationship is with Tokyo, having replaced the old Washington-London tie, because "as the U.K. has been regressing, the Japanese have been progressing."

"He's done really well," said a diplomat from one nation friendly with both the United States and Japan. "I envy him. He seems to have friends all over and influence at the Foreign Ministry and in Washington."

Reporters find Mansfield, unlike most diplomats, speaking on the record, putting his name to his statements, not ducking behind "no comments" or vague answers.

Part of that comes from his political background, part from being a man with his own constituency who doesn't worry about getting fired if he says something wrong. Part may come from his having done Carter a favor, giving up retirement after only a few months to take the job.

Mansfield said he turned down offers of ambassadorships elsewhere before Carter offered Japan, a nation he first saw in 1922 when the ship taking him and other U.S. Marines home put in at Nagasaki.

He got married when he went back to Montana and his wife told him he wouldn't live too long working in the coal mines, so he'd better get an education.

For a year he went to the Montana School of Mines by day and worked in the mines at night. In the depths of the Depression his wife gave up her job teaching school in Butte, cashed in her insurance policy and financed his way through the University of Montana at Missoula.

Mansfield hadn't finished eighth grade and wound up getting his high school diploma toward the end of college. Then he picked up a master's degree and started teaching Far Eastern history.

"It was in the Marines that I developed my interest in this part of the world," he said. He honed his interest in Congress, serving four years as Senate deputy majority leader under Lyndon Johnson and 16 years as majority leader himself, a record.

"I'm not an expert on the Far East," Mansfield said. "...I'm a student of the Far East."

Mansfield is wrapping up his term as ambassador, having promised Carter he would stay through the president's first term. He plans to split his retirement between Florida and Montana.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Cholesterol Does Count!

Ever since my husband read that "cholesterol doesn't count" he's been on a wild binge of eating anything he wants. It seems he deliberately chooses all the foods he's been denying himself. Eggs that once were limited to four a week are now consumed daily along with bacon, real butter and fatty meats.

I'm concerned not only because of the weight he's gaining, but also because I just can't believe this switch in scientific opinion is to be really relied on. — Mrs. T.C., Calif.

Dear Mrs. C.: You are not alone in your confusion. Since that study first was reported by the National Academy of Sciences, stating that there was no need to restrict the consumption of cholesterol in the diet, many people all over the country have prematurely returned to their bad eating habits.

For many years, people have learned to readjust their patterns of eating and have benefited by reducing their intake of saturated fats and high cholesterol foods. Perhaps one of the greatest advantages of the reduction of butter, meat fats, cheese and eggs in the diet has been the control of weight. For it is accepted by all scientific groups that added weight puts an enormous burden on the heart, lungs and the total cardio-vascular system. This in itself should be sufficient reason for limiting foods with high cholesterol content.

At the present time, nutrition experts, physicians and scientists particularly interested in cholesterol have by no means departed from their original concept that high cholesterol levels in the blood are directly related to arteriosclerosis, coronary artery disease and stroke.

Long, ongoing studies in the United States and other countries have shown that there is a distinct relationship between high levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream and an increase of deaths from coronary disease.

Experimental animal studies have repeatedly shown that arteriosclerosis can be developed by feeding the animals a high cholesterol diet. When they are then placed on a restricted diet — limiting animal fats — the calcium deposits of the arteriosclerosis seem to dissolve, and the blood vessels tend to return to normal.

These and many other studies have been applied to man, and indicate that the reduction of animal fats and cholesterol in the diet is definitely beneficial to health.

Your husband is doing himself a great injustice by "going on a binge" that is still contrary to the good judgment of your own physician and physicians all over the country. He is simply relieving himself of guilt by supporting his uncontrolled eating with a report that still needs tremendous substantiation.

Ancient Bridge Needs Overhaul

VISEGRAD, Yugoslavia (AP) — The 400-year-old bridge on the Drina River, made famous by the late Nobel Prize-winning Yugoslav author Ivo Andric, is badly in need of a major overhaul, government officials say.

The bridge, built between 1571-1577 by the court of the Ottoman Empire, still serves as a busy crossing point between the Yugoslav republics of Bosnia and Serbia over the Drina River.

Andric published the novel "Bridge on Drina" in 1945. In 1961, he became the first Yugoslav author to receive the Nobel Prize for literature, and the novel has been translated into dozens of languages.

Andric called it "a bridge unequalled by any in the world" as he described the destinies of people whose lives were closely intertwined with the bridge and the town of Visegrad, on the Bosnian side of it.

Now officials say the stone bridge has become the victim of the years and needs its third major overhaul.

The bridge was damaged in both world wars, and the last major repairs were finished in 1952. But the bridge has retained its original look.

The bridge is the most famous landmark on the land route between the capital, Belgrade, via Sarajevo, to the Adriatic resort of Dubrovnik. Officials say over 8,000 vehicles cross the structure daily.

Divers have discovered a large cavern in one of the 11 arches which carry the construction.

Other arches and the foundations of the bridge are also heavily damaged and experts have devised elaborate but expensive plans to repair the aging bridge.

Repairs of the cobblestone bridge road have been almost completed, while cultural institutions and civil engineering firms have signed an agreement for carrying out the repairs of the arches and foundations.

Arthritis An Ancient Malady; Few Victims Cured

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twelve years ago, Ann Taa enjoyed tennis, softball, volleyball and other sports. Then her thumb started to hurt.

As the months went by, the soreness and swelling moved to other fingers, then to her other hand and up to both wrists. In time, the pain spread to most of her joints. "I couldn't even reach up to brush my hair," she said.

Mrs. Taa has rheumatoid arthritis, one of medicine's enduring mysteries, a painful affliction shared by some 30 million Americans.

"The pain is such a tremendous thing," said the 45-year-old Los Angeles woman. "You just feel like lying down and crying all day. It really knocked me for a loop."

Arthritis is actually a collection of about 100 related diseases. It's an ancient malady — arthritic damage has been found in Egyptian mummies and fossilized dinosaurs.

And with few exceptions, there is no cure. Doctors can only guess at the cause.

"Arthritis is generally considered to be the most widespread, crippling, disabling and often most painful of all the chronic diseases. In many ways it is the most baffling," said Dr. Ephraim P. Engleman, head of the Rosalind Russell Medical Research Center for Arthritis at the University of California-San Francisco.

And yet, he said in an interview, "The U.S. government and the medical establishment have grossly neglected arthritis ... which is after all the commonest source of chronic disability."

Engleman, who headed a National Commission on Arthritis established by Congress in 1974, said federal funding for cancer research runs about $1 billion a year. Arthritis, he said, gets less than $50 million "and I think that exemplifies where we are."

Arthritis is usually described as a disease in which the critically important immune system, which defends against invaders from bacteria to splinters, somehow goes haywire and attacks the body it's supposed to protect. The result can be severe inflammation, swelling and irreversible destruction of tissue, especially the cartilage and bone of the joints.

Although a cure for most forms of arthritis seems years away, doctors now have an elaborate arsenal of treatments from aspirin and exercise to extremely potent drugs and surgery. Most agree a diagnosis of arthritis is no longer an automatic sentence to lifelong pain and increasing disability.

"Arthritis patients don't die any earlier than other people, on the average," said Stanford University's Dr. Halsted Holman. "But their disease waxes and wanes over many years. If it's properly managed ... the average patient will suffer very little permanent limitation of movement."

After working her way through a variety of treatments, Mrs. Taa wound up at the UCLA arthritis clinic, where a few years ago she began receiving injections of a chemical containing gold.

Today, she said, "I'm back to almost normal. I still get tired easily, but I'm not in any pain at all."

The disease is turned off, but it is not cured. If the gold is stopped, the arthritis probably will return.

The machine invented by Dr. Guillotin in the 18th century was taken out of storage in 1972 in France to behead two men. The first to die was Roger Bontems, 36. Seven minutes later Claude Buffet, 38, was beheaded. Both had been condemned to death for the slaying of two hostages during a prison riot.

Clinic director Harold Paulus said a few varieties, such as infectious arthritis, are routinely cured with antibiotics. But these are exceptions.

"There are different types of arthritis and the different types will have different treatments and different outcomes," he said. A few can be fatal.

By far, the most common is osteoarthritis, which accounts for half of all cases. This "wear-and-tear" arthritis may afflict more than 75 percent of Americans over age 65. Like most arthritic diseases, it hits women more than men.

The normally smooth cartilage that covers the mated bones of joints becomes cracked and rough, bony spurs protrude and movement can be agony. Osteoarthritis seems to be in a class by itself, since the immune system's involvement is uncertain.

Rheumatoid arthritis, with 6½ million American victims, tends to be more severe. Like most of these diseases, it can strike any age group. "There are more than a quarter of a million children in this country who have some form of arthritis," Engleman said. "That's more children than (were stricken) during the height of the polio epidemics."

Engleman, who says early diagnosis and treatment can prevent permanent crippling, stresses the need for public education about arthritis and its symptoms.

"One of the most important early warning signs ... is a sense of stiffness in the joints that is most marked in the morning when you first get out of bed. The stiffness may last 10 or 15 minutes or it may go on for an hour or two. It's most commonly seen in the small joints of the fingers or the feet.

"Then, subsequently, some joint swelling is noted and that also seems to be worse in the early morning."

Many of the diseases are characterized, he said, by peculiar symmetry. If arthritis hits a joint on the right side of the body, it will probably attack the same joint on the other side. Education, Engleman said, is not just for arthritic patients, but for their families as well.

"It's very common in female patients that the husband will have no concept of what it means to have constant discomfort, weakness and fatigue," he said.

Sometimes the patient needs nothing so desperately as rest.

"If she's a housewife with two or three children," Engleman said, "that means a way has to be found to reduce that load and you have to have the family's cooperation. This can mean so much to that patient, but it's a commodity you just can't go out and buy."

Few Takers For Vietnam Olive Branch

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Olive branch extended, Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach moved purposefully along the corridors of this year's United Nations General Assembly.

His country was in its 35th year of continuing war, at odds with weather that has buffeted rich rice lands with two devastating typhoons in a recent month, and isolated politically from much of the world.

He had come on an annual mission to seek accord with former enemies, and peace with the present ones.

But there were few takers. "We are prepared to proceed with normalization of relations (with the United States) without conditions," he said.

Nearly six years ago, the United States ended its Vietnam involvement by snatching from the rooftops the last of its embassy staff as Saigon was collapsing to victorious North Vietnamese troops.

Vietnam was once the central focus of American concern but it has been bumped into the political backwaters by the flood of worry over militant Islam and endangered oil supplies. In an interview with The Associated Press, Foreign Minister Thach lamented the indifference.

"Normalization with America is important to us and for security in Southeast Asia. The less volatile the situation the better," Thach said. But American officials charge that Vietnam's aggressive designs are unsettling the region, and will not meet with the Vietnamese official during his visit or reopen long-collapsed talks (on normalizing relations).

The foreign minister described the situation as "a vicious circle" of diplomatic conspiracy centered on China. "The United States is playing its China card. It does not want to displease China," he charged. China invaded Vietnam for several weeks early in 1979 after years of border clashes that culminated in the expulsion of many Chinese inhabitants.

"As long as America plays its China card we are not in the game," the Vietnamese official said.

Thach charged that in addition to keeping 10 infantry divisions on Vietnam's northern border and 10 nearby, the Chinese "are training several thousands of Vietnamese in Hainan and Yunan provinces for use in guerrilla operations. And a similar number of Lao and Cambodians."

It was concern over China's "4,000-year tradition of attacking Vietnam from two directions, to make us a sandwich," that helped convince Vietnam to move into Cambodia and overthrow the Chinese-supported Pol Pot regime in 1979, Thach said. Southeast Asian neighbors of Cambodia, particularly Thailand, fear further Vietnamese expansion. Thach has met with Thai officials at the United Nations in an attempt to resolve the border issue.

The Vietnamese official said attempts to unseat the Pol Pot delegate and replace him with a representative from the Vietnamese-backed Cambodian regime will probably fail when the matter comes up next week.

"We have no illusions there will be a change," he said. "But we would hope that some delegations will have a heavy conscience when they vote for Pol Pot." There are continuing allegations in Cambodia of widespread atrocities by the former regime. The United States favors seating the Pol Pot delegation.

The foreign minister insisted that Vietnamese troops will leave Cambodia entirely "as soon as possible." He said, "We have no interest in staying on in Cambodia. Our troops have been there twice before, during the French war, and again during the Johnson-Nixon war. We pulled out both those previous times. We will do it again."

That will happen "when the task of common defense is over," a goal complicated by the unsophistication of the Cambodian army. "We have plenty of soldiers, but all the cadre, all the potential officers, were killed in the Pol Pot genocide. How long does it take to make a colonel, a general?" Thach asked.

The Vietnamese Army is needed back home. "After the war with the Americans, we hoped to concentrate all our energies on rebuilding our country. But we have had to divert them in the national defense," Thach said.

"We have tightened our belts not once, but twice," Thach said, adding that his own monthly rice ration has been decreased from 16 kilograms to 13 (35 pounds to 29). Two typhoons in August and September destroyed one fifth of the season's rice crop.

The Foreign Minister said the Vietnamese console themselves in their troubles by looking at the perspective of history.

"Our soldiers starved during the French war, but none starve today even though rations are low. During the American war, we were under massive bombardment in battle much worse than today. So if we look at the recent past, we are less pessimistic."

More TV Episodes Of 'Star Trek' Are Talked

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Devoted fans of "Star Trek" — grieved when the five-year mission of the USS Enterprise was cut short, not by marauding Klingons or Romulans but by earth-bound ratings — may be in for a treat.

Gene Roddenberry, creator of the 1960s science-fiction television series, says talks are under way to produce new television episodes featuring Capt. Kirk, Mr. Spock and Dr. McCoy.

Roddenberry told an audience at the University of Central Arkansas at Conway Tuesday that he had been negotiating with Paramount Pictures about the possibility of producing the new series.

After his speech, Roddenberry said Paramount executives had contacted him several times last week and had arranged to meet with him when he returns to Hollywood next week.

The release last December of "Star Trek — The Motion Picture," which he produced, apparently spawned the interest in a new series, Roddenberry said.

"We currently have a recession in Hollywood that has kept us from doing a sequel" to the movie, he added.

"Paramount has called me a couple of times during the last week while I've been away from the city, saying that they don't want to keep 'Star Trek' on the shelf while we're waiting to do a sequel and they want me to talk to them immediately when I get back to town about finding some way to bring 'Star Trek' back to television," he said.

The original series, which went on the air in 1966, acquired a cult following although it had only a three-year prime-time run on NBC. Ten years later, reruns of the show, which featured one-hour encounters between the valiant Enterprise crew and a host of cosmic villains, were being carried on more than 140 stations and in 47 other countries.

Conventions of Trekkies, as devotees are known, drew thousands to hear speakers affiliated with the show and trade in Star Trek memorabilia.

Roddenberry said he would not be interested in making a weekly series like the original, but would favor "six or eight 90-minute or two-hour shows each year."

Admirers See American Craze For Soybean Curd

By ELLEN PORATH
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — It looks like an albino brick. Or a soap eraser with a thyroid problem. Steve Marshall's brother calls it "toad food."

But tofu lovers at The Bountiful Bean Plant here say the lowly soybean curd, a dietetic mainstay in the Orient for nearly 2,000 years, is heading for a popularity boom in this country to rival that of yogurt several years ago.

When the boom comes they will, no doubt, face it in their own unique style.

Debra Bachmann and Christopher Burant took over the Bean Plant two years ago when it was still a seedling. Two men had started the tofu-making business in a cramped East Side building earlier in 1978, but gave it up when they couldn't keep up with demand.

When Ms. Bachmann and Burant joined the business, tofu (pronounced TOE-foo) was made in a large bathtub in the back of the building, at the rate of about 200 pounds a week.

Since then, the Bean Plant has installed shiny new equipment that allows its six employees — called "beaners" — to produce about 1,200 pounds of tofu a week. One 40-pound batch takes about an hour to make, about one-quarter of the time needed under the Bathtub Method.

The tofu is delivered to nearly two-dozen food stores and cooperatives in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

Marshall, who received his master's degree in biochemistry from Stanford University before giving up the academic life, has been working at the Bean Plant for about two months.

He said he likes tofu because the food has no cholesterol, little fat and only 150 calories per half-pound. It is more easily digested than meat, and 8 ounces of tofu contain as much protein as 3 1/4 ounces of steak or 5 1/2 ounces of hamburger. And a pound of tofu has cost 80 cents at the Bean Plant for the past year and a half.

Tofu's nutritional qualities are not apparent at first glance. Or second, third or 10th.

It is cold, grayish-white, occasionally slippery and sometimes squishy. It floats. It is bland to the point of tastelessness — a factor tofu addicts say makes it more versatile. It is, in a phrase, kind of funny-looking.

Although dyed-in-the-pod soybean enthusiasts may eat tofu plain — scrambled like eggs or marinated in soy sauce — tofu is best added to other foods. It can be crumbled into salads, cut into cubes and added to soups and casseroles or substituted for the cheese in grilled cheese sandwiches, aficionados say.

Proponents believe tofu production will grow by leaps in the next few years. Soybeans are taking root in American diets.

"I think it's going to grow," Ms. Bachmann said. "It's going to be another yogurt. Eight years ago no one heard of it; now it's a part of everyone's diet."

Ms. Bachmann said she wants to convince grocery stores to carry tofu in delicatessen sections. As soon as the U.S. Department of Agriculture develops a legal standard of identity for tofu, she would like to see it used in institutions, university student unions, day care centers, public schools and hospitals.

"It's not an airy, feed-the-world thing," she said. "We're business people."

To make 40 pounds of tofu, 15 pounds of soybeans are soaked overnight and then ground with water in a Japanese soybean grinder which beaners affectionately call "Racknar," a word from a Moslem mystic sect.

"It means 'total destruction,'" explained Marshall.

The ground beans are boiled 30 minutes in "Hart," the steam-jacketed kettle. The bubbly, grayish concoction is done when it has boiled over three times, said Marshall, who wears brown waders, a huge plastic apron and a red bandanna to protect himself during the steamy production process.

The boiled beans are strained twice to remove hulls and other fibers, used in soyburgers or sold to local pig farmers.

Concentrated sea minerals are then added to the soymilk, curdling it. The whey is poured off and the curds pressed in "Ruby" — the bean press. The resulting trays of firm, thick tofu are cut into hand-size chunks and stored in "Rudy," a sink filled with cold water.

Even leftover whey has a use, Marshall said: "It's an excellent detergent for washing the place up afterward."

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices marked time today as traders nervously watched conflicting interest rate trends.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was unchanged at 960.67 in the first half hour of trading as declines outnumbered advances by a 7-6 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

There are conflicting signs regarding interest rates. No other bank has matched the 14 percent prime lending rate set last week by Citibank, and many analysts think that widely watched rate has peaked.

But interest rates edged up in the bond market Tuesday and some banks continued to post increases in mortgage rates.

Oil stocks, which have been volatile as Mideast fighting affects the petroleum market, were mixed in early trading. Exxon lost 1/8 to 7/8 and Occidental dropped 1/8 to 3/8. But Mobil rose 1/8 to 7/8 and Standard of Indiana added 1/8 to 7/8.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average fell 5.03 to 960.67 as declines outnumbered advances by an 8-7 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 50.31 million shares, against 50.13 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index fell 39 to 75.65. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.26 at 344.36.

OPEC Delays Summit Session

VIENNA, AUSTRIA (AP) - A summit conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, scheduled for early next month in Baghdad, Iraq, has been indefinitely postponed, the Iraqi embassy announced here today.

No reason was given for the postponement, but it was presumed to be the result of the continuing war between Iraq and Iran, both OPEC member nations.

The summit, which was to be attended by heads of state and government from the 13 member countries, was scheduled to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the organization's founding. Delegates also intended to endorse OPEC's long-range production policies.

The Iraqi embassy said a new date for the session would be announced "in good time."

Postponement of the Baghdad summit and prior meetings of government ministers from member countries appeared to further delay the group's longstanding effort toward agreement on long-term pricing and production policies.

The Iraqi embassy said a new date for the session would be announced "in good time."

Protecting Iran Assets

NEW YORK (AP) - With supporting documentation from Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, the federal government has launched legal action to block lawsuits by American banks and corporations seeking billions of dollars that Iran owes them.

The Carter administration also has appealed a federal judge's refusal to delay the suits, saying they could be a "serious risk" to negotiations for the safe return of the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran.

The administration filed its motions Tuesday in U.S. District Court before Judge Thomas Kevin Duffy.

The government said it wants to participate in the commercial litigation and asked the judge to certify his Sept. 26 order denying a State Department request for an indefinite delay in the 96 lawsuits.

Federal lawyers also asked Duffy to stay his denial of a delay until an appeals court has reviewed his decision.

"A stay of judgment proceedings would best serve the vital foreign policy interests of the United States in resolving the present crisis successfully," said Muskie in a statement accompanying the government's motions.

The bank and corporate suits were filed to recover losses on defaulted bank loans, business contracts and property losses resulting from nationalization in Iran.

The plaintiffs must win court attachments of Iranian assets, once the Carter Administration unfreezes them.

Last Jan. 4, Duffy granted a State Department request for a 60-day delay in proceedings because of delicate hostage negotiations.

A-G Battles DHC, Panthers Host SWE

By RICK SCORPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton took more than a passing interest in a passing attack in the early part of the season. But it was not until that passing attack was balanced by a running attack that the Chargers started to win.

After scoring 14 points in their first three games — all losses — the Chargers have suddenly found an offense the past two weeks. Ayden-Grifton has scored 36 points in its last two games — and won both, including a 14-0 win over North Pitt this past Friday evening.

This week the Chargers, now 2-2 in the ECC, will look for their offense to be even more offensive when they travel to Hollywood to face winless D.H. Conley, a 29-6 loser to Farmville Central last week. The Vikings are 0-4 overall and 0-3 in the ECC.

In another game in the area, North Pitt (1-4, 0-4) looks to end a four-game losing streak when the Panthers play host Southwest Edgecombe (3-2, 2-1).

In other games last week, Williamston extended its unbeaten string to five with a 6-3 win over Washington, Southwest Edgecombe defeated Greene Central, 15-12, Roanoke whipped Plymouth, 20-7, and Aurora handled Jamesville, 30-24.

The schedule this week includes Farmville Central (3-2, 3-1) at North Lenoir (4-1, 2-1), Roanoke (4-1, 1-1) at Washington, Williamston at Tarboro and Jamesville (1-5, 1-4) at Mattamuskeet.

First Playoff Win In 64 Years

Phils Whip Astros

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The first 64 years are always the toughest.

If you don't believe that axiom ask the Philadelphia Phillies.

Greg Luzinski's two-run homer in the sixth inning triggered the Phillies' first post-season victory at home since Grover Cleveland Alexander beat the Boston Red Sox in the 1915 World Series.

The Phillies beat the Houston Astros 3-1 Tuesday night in the first game of their best-of-five National League Championship series.

The Phillies had lost 10 straight post-season games at home, including two in that 1915 Series, two in the 1950 World Series to the New York Yankees and six in divisional playoffs in 1976, 1977 and 1978.

Steve Carlton, the Phillies' 24-game winner, was credited with the victory although he wasn't as overpowering as during the regular season.

Still, Carlton worked seven innings and allowed just one run.

"He wasn't the Steve Carlton we've seen in the past," said Phillies Manager Dallas Green. "But that's why Lefty is such a great pitcher. He wins without his best."

"He lets them hang on the bases," Green said, referring to the seven Astros stranded in the first four innings.

Green lifted Carlton for a pinch hitter in the seventh despite a 2-1 lead. The Phillies had a runner on third and two out.

"I just felt he (Carlton) was a little sluggish. There was no use wasting him with the 'chief' in the bullpen," said Green.

The "chief" was reliever Tug McGraw, who had four wins and three saves in September and one victory and two saves this month in the Phillies' drive to the NL East title.

McGraw came in and retired six of seven batters to save the game for Philadelphia.

McGraw was asked how much he could pitch, since he's been out there almost every day for a month.

"I'm not ready to fall out of the tree," replied the zany left-hander. "I feel fine physically."

McGraw said he had a lot of confidence in himself right now, but not so much that he'd let it eat him up.

"I think going out there every day breeds fun and enthusiasm not cockiness," McGraw said.

Luzinski's home run came on a 3-2 pitch and landed high in the first tier of seats in left field. It was the only hit of the game for the outfielder who has struggled most of the season.

"I usually slump in September, but for some reason get charged up in the playoffs," said Luzinski, who has had hits in all 12 of the Phillies' playoff games.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on singles by Jose Cruz, Cesar Cedeno, and a two-out base hit under the glove of second baseman Manny Trillo by rookie Gary Woods.

Astros' pitcher Ken Forsch held onto the slim lead until the sixth when Pete Rose opened with an infield single. Bake McBride struck out and Mike Schmidt flied out.

Forsch then went to 3-2 on Luzinski and boom. The ball flew out of the ball park for a 2-1 Phillies' lead. The Phillies added an insurance run in the seventh on Garry Maddox' single, a sacrifice bunt from Larry Bowa, Maddox' steal of third and a slicing single to left by pinch hitter Greg Gross, who was batting for Carlton.

Rose Ranked No. 1 In State H.S. Poll

By The Associated Press
Greenville Rose faces the jinx this week as the third top-ranked 4A team in as many weeks in The Associated Press poll of North Carolina high school football teams.

Rose moved to the top in the ratings after last week's leader, Kannapolis, was tied 6-6 by Winston-Salem Reynolds. Kannapolis dropped to sixth this week.

Two weeks ago, Northern Durham was No. 1 but lost its next game, 12-8 to Chapel Hill. Northern Durham is eighth-ranked this week, the same as last week.

Rose, 5-0, could have problems this week, as it faces Beddingfield, with a 4-1 record.

Other leaders in the voting by a statewide panel of sportswriters are the same as last week — Lexington in 3A and Southwest Guilford in 2A-1A.

Rose got 11 of the 18 first-place votes and totaled 167 points. Second, with 146 points, was Fayetteville Terry Sanford. Chapel Hill, Greensboro Page and Hickory round out the top five. New to the 4A top 10 is Fayetteville Pine Forest, which replaces Jacksonville.

In 3A, Lexington got 12 first-place votes and out-distanced runner-up Burlington

Brett: Royals Will Break Jinx

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas City's 8-4 season record against the New York Yankees this year means the Royals are about to break the Yankee jinx in the American League playoffs, says George Brett.

"We beat them eight times and they beat us four," the Kansas City third baseman said Tuesday on the eve of the fourth playoff meeting in five years between the Yanks and Royals.

"We all believe this is our year," said Brett, whose .390 average this season was the best in the major leagues since 1941. "We think winning eight out of 12 proves we've got the best team."

Larry Gura, who hasn't won in six weeks, was to start for the Royals against New York's Ron Guidry. The Yankees, who beat the Royals in this best-of-five series in 1976, '77 and '78, will be facing a left-hander who hasn't won since Aug. 25.

Gura finished with an 18-10 record and whipped the Yankees three times while compiling an earned run average of 2.95. But since pulling a groin muscle in late August, he shows five losses and three no-decisions in eight starts and an ERA of 5.70.

"I don't think it's a physical thing," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey, who also stirred a bit of unrest among many of his players by naming John Wathan to start in right field instead of Clint Hurdle. "He got in a groove early, and was making excellent pitches. Then his control was not quite as good. But he's physically fit."

Guidry was 1-2 against the Royals while compiling an 18-11 record and 3.56 ERA. The two left-handers differ dramatically in style, Guidry throwing an overpowering fastball and hard slider while Gura must rely on control and finesse.

"I've struggled a lot this year," said Guidry. "I struggled a lot last year. I went into the bullpen last year for about three weeks. I went into the bullpen this year for about a month. And yet, I've still managed to come out and win 18 and 17 ball games."

Gura refused to talk to writers after Tuesday's workout. Wathan, a right-handed hitter who excelled while filling in at catcher this year, batted .305. But he is not the equal to Hurdle in the outfield, and in spacious Royals Stadium, with its slick artificial turf, this could be telling.

"I think Hurdle's probably a better right fielder," admitted Frey. "I would have to say Hurdle has more experience out there. But I think Wathan has a better chance of hitting against Guidry than Hurdle."

"I think I can do an adequate job," said Wathan. "I'm not the best outfielder, but I'm above average."

Center fielder Amos Otis said he and left fielder Willie Wilson will have to make adjustments.

"I've got to shade to right field more than normal," said Otis. "Willie and I will both have to shade over to help him. It's not like he's a regular outfielder."

Yankees Manager Dick Howser disagrees with Brett's assessment of the regular season series.

"We played the Royals when they were awfully, awfully hot," he said. "The way they were playing, they could have beat the 1928 Yankees. No team can stay as hot as they were. This is a whole new season for everybody."

To Cerone, the curly-haired catcher who stepped in for the late Thurman Munson and helped spark the Yankees to the best record in baseball by hitting .277 and driving in 85 runs, falls the task of dealing with Wilson and the rest of the Kansas City base thieves.

"Wilson is going to get his stolen bases," said Cerone. "If we get him, it's a plus. What we've got to do is handle their other runners. But we're the only team in the league who threw out more than 50 percent of all runners trying to steal."

Did Double Dose Of Medicine Sap Ali's Strength?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Muhammad Ali said he had been feeling tired and weak for days before his heavyweight title fight against Larry Holmes in Las Vegas, Nev. last week — and he believes he knows why.

"I jogged three days before (the fight) and I couldn't even pick up my legs," the former champion said at a news conference at UCLA Medical Center at which he revealed he had been taking medication for a thyroid condition.

"When I took one tablet I felt fine," he said, but he said he doubled the dosage against doctor's orders, and that apparently sapped his strength and contributed to his loss to Holmes.

Holmes, 30, retained his World Boxing Council crown when the exhausted and soundly beaten Ali, 38, could not answer the bell for the 11th round.

Ali said he had doubled a daily dose of Thyrolar prescribed by his doctor two weeks before the bout, increasing the prescribed amount because a regular dose had increased his vitality and "all of my vitamins, I always take one extra."

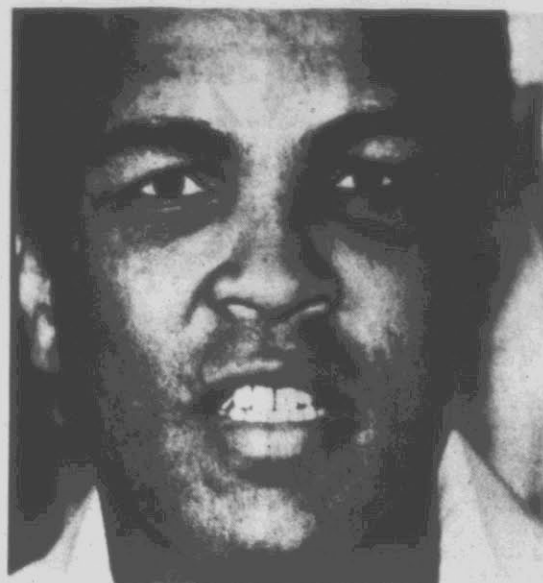

Ali's doctor, Dr. Charles Lee Williams Sr., said in Chicago that he prescribed the Thyrolar for what he diagnosed as a thyroid imbalance, but he did not say how he came to that conclusion.

Ali underwent tests at the UCLA center Monday and Tuesday and was given a clean bill of health by doctors, who said the fighter suffered "no residual damage" from the fight.

However, the three-time champion also said he may check into the Mayo Clinic for an examination soon. Then he plans to step into the ring to determine whether the medicine did affect him during the fight or whether he is "washed up."

Ali stressed that his physical complaints and visit to the hospital were "not an excuse" for the loss to Holmes.

When he first started feeling fatigued and weak, he said, he didn't seek medical help because he thought his problems were due to insufficient conditioning.

Ali Tells Of Thyroid Drug
Muhammad Ali, showing little evidence of the beating he took from WBA champ Larry Holmes, tells a press conference how an overdose of thyroid medicine made him weak and unfit for the fight. Ali said he doubled the daily dose his doctor had prescribed to lose weight. (AP Laserphoto)

Asked whether he could beat Holmes if he were not fatigued from the drug overdose, Ali smiled and said: "Oh, yeah. I can beat Holmes. I shall return."

UCLA internist Dr. Dennis Cope said the Thyrolar overdose "results in fatigue, weakness, and a waste of (physical) energy. Six grains is much more than should be normally taken."

Ali's weight had dropped from about 254 pounds some three months ago to 217½ at the weigh-in for the fight. Ali said he believed the drug caused him to lose weight more rapidly, but that was not why he was taking it.

World Series: No. 1 Sports Show

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The ensuing five days will decide the cast for what has been repeatedly hailed as America's No. 1 sports spectacle — baseball's World Series.

Will it be an "Amtrak Series" between the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies? Or a "Friendly Skies" venture between the Yankees and Houston Astros? Or a scrap between the new kids on the block, the Astros and Kansas City Royals, whose births date only to the 1960s and who have never been in the World Series before?

Also, how much will "Old Man Mo" have to do with the outcome? You know Mo — Mo-Mentum, who seems to get his grubby fingers in everything.

Did he desert the Royals when they virtually clinched their division title by the Fourth of July and spent the rest of the summer picking their teeth in the dugout? And did 'Mo jump on the bandwagon of the Astros in their last gasp playoff victory over the comeback LA Dodgers?

Who can tell?

Maybe such speculation is immaterial. Perhaps it's a sure lock for the poised and talent-rich Yankees, going after their 32nd pennant and 23rd world championship in the last 59 years.

Every Series has had its heroes. Who this time? Reggie Jackson, Tommy John or Goose Gosage of the Yankees? George Brett, the Royals' .390 bat machine? The gutsy Pete Rose or slugging Mike Schmidt of the Phillies or the Royals' Joe Niekro, whose forkballs flip and flutter like a berserk butterfly?

Maybe none of these. History has shown us that the best-of-seven game, baseball climax always produces high drama but not always the predictable or expectable.

Joseph L. Reichler, a onetime AP cohort now an aide to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the sport's most noted historian, has documented this fact in his slick, coffee-table volume "The World Series," printed a couple of years ago.

"Babe Ruth emerges as perhaps the outstanding World Series hitter of all-time and Bob Gibson the most effective pitcher," says Reichler. "But the Series has been full of upsets and surprises and almost always produces some historic feat or incident."

The Yankees shouldn't get chesty about winning 103 games, most in the majors. Teams holding the all-time record for victories in both the National and American Leagues were World Series busts.

The Cubs, who won 116 in 1906, lost to their Chicago neighbors, the White Sox. And the Cleveland Indians, who won 111 in 1954, were swamped by the New York Giants.

Who could have imagined that catcher Fred Snodgrass would miff an easy fly ball and pave way for the Boston Red Sox to beat the great Christy Mathewson and the Giants in the final game in 1912? Or Roger Peckinpaugh, the American League's MVP, would commit eight errors to allow the Pirates to beat the Washington Senators in 1925?

Goats have been as plentiful as heroes. In the Yankee-Dodger Series in 1941, Mickey Owen, Brooklyn catcher, lost a third strike ball at his feet, opening the door to a Yankee victory. In 1939, Cincinnati's catcher Ernie Lombardi got knocked dizzy by a sliding Charlie Keller, allowing Joe DiMaggio to score for what proved to be another Yankee triumph.

"I hate to go so far back in the records," Reichler apologized, "but I would have to pick Babe Ruth as the all-time batting star of the World Series. He hit three home runs in two different games and batted .625 in one series."

"Only Reggie Jackson's three home runs on consecutive first pitches in the Yankees' 1977 Series against the Dodgers has been comparable. Reggie's five home runs in the Series, of course, set a record."

Wherever you go...we're ready to serve you!

Luzinski: I Knew It Was Gone

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was a 3-2 pitch, a fast ball. It hit the end of Greg Luzinski's bat and started climbing toward the moon.

The Houston Astros outfielders never moved. There was no need to.

Luzinski's homer came in the bottom of the sixth with the Phils down 1-0. Two runs scored and Philadelphia went on to win its first post-season playoff game in 65 years, downing Houston 3-1 to go one-up in the National League championship playoffs.

"I knew it was gone the minute I hit it," said Luzinski, who now has five post-season homers, second only to Los Angeles' Steve Garvey, who has six.

Astros pitcher Ken Forsch, who served up the game-deciding ball, said it was down and in. "It was a 3-2 pitch so obviously I had to throw a strike," Forsch said afterward. "I challenged him with a fast ball and he got the best of it."

When Luzinski, who's been in a slump most of the season, was introduced before the game a ripple of boos spread through the stands. And they came again when he struck out in the first, and popped out in the fourth.

But when he hit the homer, cheers rained onto the field, as if all was forgotten.

"I know the fans have been on me," the "Bull" said in the lockerroom. "But they have been on a lot of the other guys too."

"I was glad for him," said shortstop Larry Bowa. "It's been especially tough on him this year."

Steve Carlton got the win, although he appeared to be laboring. He was lifted in the seventh, and Tug McGraw mopped up.

"I felt he (Carlton) was sluggish," said Phillies Manager Dallas Green. "He wasn't the Steve Carlton we've seen all year. Lefty wasn't Lefty tonight."

A-G Battles DHC...

The Chargers, riding a two-game win streak, face D.H. Conley, a team still in search of its first victory.

"They're a very dangerous team," Sauls said. "They're much better than their record would indicate. And anytime you're playing an opponent with a good football team that has yet to win a game you've got to be concerned."

"I'd rather have them win a game," he added. "I know they'll be highly motivated for this game."

A year ago the Chargers were coming off a 42-28 win over North Pitt when Conley whipped Ayden-Grifton, 27-12. Obviously, Sauls hopes the same thing doesn't happen this season.

"They took it to us last year. We weren't motivated last year and it hurt us," Sauls said. "D.H. Conley always has an aggressive football team, and they always play us aggressive. I just hope our team will be ready. I think — I know this is a cliché — the team that is motivated going into the game will win."

The last two weeks, it has been the Chargers who have been motivated. Two weeks ago, the Chargers whipped a larger Greene Central club, 22-12, and then came back this past week to blank North Pitt.

"The North Pitt game was the first game in which we were really able to control the ball offensively," Sauls said. "Our backs — Greg Jackson and Cleveland Coley — ran hard and combined for over 200 yards. Our offensive line, led by Donovan Arnold and Kevin Craft, got off the ball the best they've done all year."

"And that helped our defense. They were able to rest. They weren't on the field as much as they have been, and that obviously gave North Pitt less chances to score."

"Hopefully, our attitude will continue to improve and we'll be able to build on these two wins. There's still a lot of room for improvement, though."

North Pitt

It was a startling statistic that North Pitt coach Pat Smith offered. And it, perhaps more than anything else, helps explain the Panthers' four-game losing streak.

"In our last 52 times rushing, we've gained 51 yards," Smith said. "So, that's part of our problem. But I just don't know."

In their 14-0 loss to Ayden-Grifton last week, the Panthers rushing for 14 yards in 22 carries. The passing attack wasn't much better, gaining 72 yards. A-G coach Dixon Sauls said the rain and soggy field hampered the Panther option attack. Smith didn't wholly agree.

"To a certain degree that might be true," Smith said. "But we just weren't physical. We couldn't do much outside but I wouldn't want to use that (the wet conditions) as an excuse."

"We were just completely outplayed. We were flat. We didn't have a good week of practice. We only got outside one day — Thursday. But Ayden-Grifton has improved quite a bit. They just ran right at us."

Smith can expect more of the same this week when his Panthers play host to Southwest Edgecombe. But for now, the North Pitt coach is more concerned not about the Cougars but his team.

"Southwest has a good team. They've played some good games," said Smith of the Cougars, who got within two, 20-18, before losing to unbeaten C.B. Aycock, 26-18.

"I just hope we can play with more emotion this week," Smith said. "Right now, our guys are not playing with emotion. They're not playing team football. They're all just playing for the individual and not the team."

D.H. Conley

As D.H. Conley coach Jimbo Walker sees it, the Vikings would have had trouble beating anybody the way they played in their 29-6 loss to Farmville Central last week.

"We couldn't have beat the Sisters of Mercy School," Walker said. "We just didn't play worth a darn. We were not aggressive. We just didn't seem to be up for the game."

"I just couldn't believe it. I especially thought we'd be up for Farmville," he added. "Twice we got inside their 10 and didn't score. That killed us. Usually, we fumble inside the 10. But this time they just stopped us. That isn't suppose to happen."

"One of those times we were at the four. God darn, if you can't get it in from there you're in trouble."

Much of the blame for the Vikings' winless record is a result of errors. In a 14-9 loss to West Craven, Conley recovered two fumbles inside the Eagle 30. Neither time did the Vikings score.

Against North Lenoir, the Vikings were again plagued by fumbles, dropping the ball four times, including once inside their five. North Lenoir won, 21-18. Against Southern Nash (4-0-1, 4-0), the Vikes took a 13-0 halftime lead only to fall flat in the second half and lose, 28-13.

Walker is hopeful his club can forget the past when they take the field against Ayden-Grifton Friday evening.

"We've got to get back to basic football. You wouldn't believe the tackles we missed last week," Walker said. "We made him (Farmville halfback) Roger Joyner look like a million bucks. I know he's good, but not that good."

Joyner gained 268 yards rushing against the Vikes. In Ayden-Grifton, the Vikings will have to contend with two capable backs.

"From what I've seen on film I know they must be getting better," Walker said. "They've got their quarterback (Bernard Riccarelli) back and that halfback (Greg Jackson) is a good runner."

"I'm worried a lot. They've got a good team. But we need a win. We need to win this one."

Farmville Central

How do you approach a team just beaten 70-0? Very cautiously. That's exactly how Farmville Central coach Gene Brewer sees it.

"I don't think this is a good situation going to go into," said Brewer of his team's trip to Wheat Swamp where it will face a North Lenoir team coming off a 70-0 whitewash at the hands of Southern Nash.

"You never know how they're going to react," he said. "They've got some good athletes and anytime you've got good athletes you have to be concerned about how the team will react."

Of course Farmville isn't exactly lacking in good athletes itself. One of the Jaguars' best is halfback Roger Joyner. Going into last week's game with D.H. Conley, Joyner had rushed for 269 yards in four games. Against the Vikings, Joyner rushed for 268 yards in the Jaguars' 26-9 conquest of D.H. Conley.

"Roger had a real good game," Brewer said. "But other than that, I didn't feel we played that well. Defensively, we weren't aggressive enough. Offensively, we missed some of our blocking assignments."

Except when Joyner ran the ball. Brewer hopes for more of the same against North Lenoir (4-1, 2-1).

"They've got a good quarterback in (Kevin) Battle and a couple good running backs," Brewer said. Going into the Southern Nash game, Battle had thrown for 169 yards while halfback Michael White led the team in rushing with 277 yards.

Hoping to stop the Hawk attack will be a Jaguar team that Brewer said has improved nearly every week this season. "We're still not playing defense like I think we're capable of," he said. "but I feel we have made progress as the season has gone along. But we still need to get better."

Rampant Girls Last In Race

STANTONSBURG — Rose High School's girls' cross-country finished last in a three-way meet yesterday held at Wilson Beddingfield.

Beddingfield won the event with 30 points, while Northern Nash was second with 41. Rose finished with 56.

M. Battle of Northern Nash took the individual title in 21:45, followed by Y. Witherspoon of Beddingfield in 22:12. Third was J. Webb of Beddingfield in 22:30, followed by K. Richardson of Beddingfield in 22:35.

The top Rose finisher was Bobbie Holloway in 22:56, good enough for fifth place. She was followed by Nash's S. Dunn in 22:58, Heather O'Neal of Rose in 23:03, P. Evans of Nash, 23:12; E. Garris of Beddingfield, 23:15; and E. Perry of Nash, 23:28.

Other Rose finishers were Linda Winstead, 11th in 23:34; Tammy Mayo, 17th in 25:43; Maria Howard, 20th in 28:13; Faith Lee, 24th in 35:06; and Kathy Queen, 25th in 35:06.

Rose returns to action Thursday, hosting Beddingfield. Rose is now 4-4 overall.

Not since the Boston Celtics of 1968-69 has the National Basketball Association had a repeat champion, which would seem to indicate the Los Angeles Lakers can be automatically written off.

In this case, though, don't count on it. The Lakers, who open defense of their title in Seattle Friday night before a national television audience, retain all the key players from last year's club. Age should not be a problem and the experience gained in the championship run can only benefit guards Magic Johnson and Michael Cooper and Coach Paul Westhead, who won as rookies last year.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is coming off one of his finest seasons, when he played with a verve that has been missing in recent years with the old, blase, laid-back Lakers.

Can they repeat as champions? Two of their toughest rivals are right there in the Pacific Division — the Seattle SuperSonics and Phoenix Suns.

Here is a team-by-team look at the NBA West, with clubs listed in alphabetical order:

Dallas Mavericks

The Mavericks chose to go with youth in the expansion draft, passing up big-name veterans for kids who will play hard every night. It's a wise strategy, since hustle can translate into a surprising number of victories. The most familiar name is Coach Dick Motta, who had the Mavs diving and scrambling in preseason. Center Tom LaGarde, a starter at Seattle two years ago before injuring a knee, is a steal if he's healthy and could help Dallas win a respectable 25 games.

Denver Nuggets

A healthy, happy David Thompson is essential for a Denver team that won just 30 games last year. Dan Issel led the Nuggets with 23.8 points and 8.8 rebounds per game last season, but the 6-9 center will be 32 later this month and may wear down. Much is expected of rookie power forward James Ray, and much is needed if Denver is to make the playoffs. T.R. Dunn, formerly of Portland, will see considerable action at guard.

San Diego Padres center fielder Dave Winfield declared Tuesday that he would become a free agent, saying he was looking forward to seeing what he would bring in the re-entry draft.

"It's probably best that I test the open market," said the 29-year-old slugger, who led the league with 118 runs-batted-in in 1979 but had a subpar year in 1980 and was the target of frequent boozing by the San Diego fans.

In March of this year club president Ballard Smith revealed that Winfield was asking for a 10-year contract worth some $13 million in salary and bonuses and that the veteran player also insisted on right of refusal to a move by the Padres to any other city.

Appearing on television here Tuesday night, Winfield criticized the use of the word "demands" to describe terms of his contract. He said that he didn't intend to block any move of the club, but wanted to be declared a free agent should a move take place.

Winfield, who batted .276 with 20 home runs and 87 RBI this year, said that he likes it in San Diego and that had the Padres signed him 18 months ago, the fans wouldn't have booed him this year.

"I remained silent after the first proposal was made because I wanted to concentrate on baseball," he said.

Winfield, who batted .276 with 20 home runs and 87 RBI this year, said that he likes it in San Diego and that had the Padres signed him 18 months ago, the fans wouldn't have booed him this year.

'68 Celtics Last To Win Back-To-Back Titles
Lakers Seek To Repeat As Champs

Center Moses Malone is a great inside scorer and unparalleled offensive rebounder, but passing is not among his talents. Lee Johnson, the 6-11 No.1 choice who played in Europe last year, may help under the boards. With Rick Barry having retired, Robert Reid should finally come into his own and could, with guard Allen Leavell, help Houston shake its reputation as the slowest team in the league. Guard Calvin Murphy is 32 and forward Rudy Tomjanovich will reach that age next month.

Kansas City Kings

How far the Kings go could depend on how much they get from 32-year-old center Sam Lacey, whose forte is passing. Guards Phil Ford and Otis Birdsong are first-rate, small forward Scott Wedman is a good one and second-year man Reggie King is coming on at power forward. Three newcomers provide depth — veterans Leon Douglas and Jo Jo White and rookie Hawkeye Whitney.

San Antonio Spurs

George Johnson, a shot-blocking center, was signed as a free agent, giving the Spurs at least one defensive-minded player. He may be the only one. Three-time scoring champion George Gervin should get his 30-35 points per game, but losing forward Larry Kenon as a free agent could muffle the fireworks show. Two playoff keys — guard James Silas staying healthy and power forward Mark Olberding improving.

Utah Jazz

At best, Ben Poquette is a backup forward. At Utah, he's a starting center. Enough said about the center position. The addition of Dr. Dunkenstein, Louisville guard Darrell Griffith, should live them things. Forward Adrian Dantley may average 30 points per game, but the Bernard King giveaway didn't help a team short on frontcourtmen.

PACIFIC DIVISION

Golden State Warriors

After finishing last three years in a row, Golden State underwent a drastic overhaul. Newcomers Lloyd Free and Bernard King may be good for 50 points a game and holdover John Lucas is a good playmaker, but defense is a problem. Rookies Rickey Brown and Larry Smith should help up front, but the big question is how much rookie Joe Barry Carroll can do as a pro pivotman.

Los Angeles Lakers

Los Angeles is a seven-man team, but several players handle two positions and having Abdul-Jabbar in the middle makes it work. Norm Nixon is an all-star caliber guard, Jamaal Wilkes a silky forward. Jim Chones shares power forward with board banger Mark Landsberger and also plays backup center. Michael Cooper can play guard or forward, is super-quick and the club's best straight-up defender. And Magic Johnson can play any position ever invented.

Phoenix Suns

Phoenix figures to spend the early part of the season experimenting. Coach John MacLeod wants more rebounding, so 6-10 Jeff Cook will play more with Alvan Adams and Len Robinson up front and Walter Davis will join Dennis Johnson at guard.

Portland Trail Blazers

If Mychal Thompson is recovered from his broken leg, he may displace center Tom Owens, a handy player but not much of an inside force. Rookie guard Kelvin Ransey was expected to step in as the team's playmaker, but has yet to sign. Billy Ray Bates, Ron Brewer and oft-injured Dave Twardzik are the other guards, while forwards Kermit Washington and Calvin Natt are solid. Thompson holds the playoff key.

San Diego Clippers

Bill Walton has a foot injury — again. Without Mr. Bill, the Clippers will struggle for .500. Swen Nater led the league in rebounding with 15 per game, but rookie Michael Brooks is the best of a weak group of forwards.

Seattle SuperSonics

Seattle won the title two years ago and will make a strong bid to reclaim it. Sonics fans drool over the prospect of Gus Williams and Westphal at guard, with Freddie Brown off the bench — the most explosive guard trio in the league. But Williams, a free agent, has yet to sign. Jack Sikma and Lonnie Shelton are two young veterans who can bang the boards, and second-year man James Bailey is another tough customer. Veteran forward John Johnson is the oil that makes the machine run so smoothly.

Crum, UNC Looking Forward To Wake Forest

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The prospect that his team might lose has North Carolina coach Dick Crum really looking forward to playing Wake Forest this Saturday.

"This is one of those games I look forward to," Crum said at his Tuesday news conference. "It's no fun going into a game, knowing you're going to win. And you wouldn't be in coaching if you went in expecting to lose."

But there is a little more than fun involved in the game. The lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference is on the line. Both teams are 1-0 in league play.

Plus, the eighth-ranked Tar Heels, 4-0, boast their highest national ranking since 1948 and the days of Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice. They also have not won five straight games in a season since that 1948 season. They won six in a row that year before tying William & Mary. The only game they lost that year was to Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl.

And, there is the matter of revenge. North Carolina lost to the Wake Forest last year, 24-19, in Chapel Hill. But that time tailback Amos Lawrence pulled a hamstring and was held to 34 yards, and backup tailback Kelvin Bryant was out with an injury.

But, according to Crum, Wake Forest "is a better team than they were last year." And, although the Deacons are known for their passing game, Crum added, "The hidden factor in their offense is their running game. That's the most improved phase of their game."

He also was complimentary of the Deacon defense.

"In all three of their last games, they have only given up one touchdown," he said. "If you only give up one touchdown a game, you have a doggone good chance to win. They are really a complete football team. I expect the game to be a real dogfight."

The Tar Heel defense, however, is no slouch. They have not given up a touchdown this year. And against Georgia Tech last Saturday, they held the Yellow Jackets to only 112 yards total offense. This season the defense has allowed only 74.8 yards a game on the ground, and only 130.8 in the air. But Crum knows a touchdown-less season is improbable.

"It's tough to play major college football without giving up a touchdown," he said. "They (the players) know it's going to happen. It could be this week because Wake Forest has an explosive offense. But I don't think it will affect us whenever it happens."

Crum's main concern this week is pass defense, despite holding Georgia Tech to only 87 yards in that department.

"The pass rush has to be improved," he said. "It has worked well, but we haven't played anyone who protects the passer like Wake Forest protects (Jay) Venuto.

"But we can't concentrate totally of protecting against the pass. If we go in there thinking pass, they will kill us with the run." A record crowd of more than 38,000 is expected in Winston-Salem's Groves Stadium for Saturday's 1 p.m. As a matter of trivia, the Tar Heels will the highest-ranked team ever to play in the stadium.

And the Tar Heels won't be hampered by injuries this year. "We're as healthy as we've been all year long," Crum said.

Vol Scout 'Found' In NC Locker Room

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — A Tennessee scout made his way into North Carolina's locker room after last weekend's football game with Georgia Tech at Chapel Hill, a High Point newspaper reported Tuesday.

The High Point Enterprise, in a copyright story, reported that Jim Hall, a part-time assistant coach for the Vols, discussed Georgia Tech's snap cadence with UNC linebacker Darrell Nicholson.

The report brought expressions of concern from UNC coach Dick Crum and other Atlantic Coast Conference coaches. But Tennessee coach Johnny Majors said that, "to me, it's making a mountain out of a molehill."

"The Tennessee coach should not have been in the locker room to begin with and he certainly should not have been talking with players," Crum said.

"Prior to the game, word came to me that the Tennessee coach asked to talk to one of our players and I said no. How he got in there is beyond me."

Ralph Chancey, administrative assistant to Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors, said Hall reported that "he has two friends who are Carolina coaches and they let him in the locker room."

"I would doubt that seriously because no one on our staff even knew the guy was in the locker room," Crum said.

Majors defended Hall, saying he had done nothing wrong.

"Our coaches know they are not to do anything unethical. I'd throw them out on their ear. Many, many times a coach goes into a locker room to exchange films or whatever. He was not instructed to stay out of the locker room. We have nothing to hide," Majors said.

Duke's Bennett This Week's ACC Rookie

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke freshman quarterback Ben Bennett has been named Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the week for his performance against Indiana this past weekend.

Despite the Blue Devils' 31-21 loss to the Hoosiers, Bennett had an outstanding game as he passed for 163 yards and one touchdown on 10 completions.

Bennett, who went into the game in the second quarter, led a Duke rally that saw a 17-point Indiana lead whittled down to three before a turnover stopped a Duke surge.

For Bennett, a 6-2, 190-pound native of Sunnyvale, Calif., it was his third 100-yard effort in four games. His season total of 510 yards gives him the third highest total in the conference.

Volleyball Roundup

Ayden-Grifton 1, Farmville C. 1

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central split a two-match volleyball battle Tuesday afternoon.

The Jaguars, now 3-7, won the first, 15-9, 16-14, behind the serving of Rose Lang, who scored seven straight points. Lisa Ward had eight straight for A-G in the second game.

The Chargers, also 5-5 on the year, won the second match, 15-10, 15-13, on the serving of Linda Brown (seven straight) and Evelyn Artis (six straight).

The Chargers travel to Greene Central Thursday while Farmville plays host to D.H. Conley.

Conley 1, SW Edgecombe 1

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley and Southwest Edgecombe, both undefeated going into their meeting yesterday, had to settle for a split in their Eastern Carolina volleyball clash, each winning one match.

In the first match, Conley won the first game, 15-4, but Southwest came back to take successive 17-15, 15-10 wins to take the set.

Sherri Waters served up 12 straight in the first game for Conley.

Conley then rebounded to win the second match in two straight games, 15-1, and 15-13. Vivian Barrett had seven straight for Conley.

The win leaves Conley with a 10-1 overall record and 9-1 in the league, while Southwest is also 9-1.

Conley travels to Farmville Central on Thursday, while Southwest hosts North Lenoir.

Southern Nash 2, Greene Central 0

STANHOPE — Southern Nash, taken to three games in both matches, defeated Greene Central, 2-0, in an Eastern Carolina Conference volleyball match.

The Firebirds, now 6-4, won the first game, 15-7, but the Rams came back to capture the second, 15-4, before Southern Nash came back to win the third, 15-4.

In the second match, Southern Nash again won the first, this time 15-12. Greene Central, now 1-9, won the second, 15-5, before the Firebirds once again won the third game, 15-3, to win.

The Rams were led by Pam Shackleford's 26 points and Allison Battle's 12 points.

Greene Central plays host to Ayden-Grifton Thursday.

Rugby Tourney Set For Here This Weekend

The East Carolina Rugby Club will sponsor the North Carolina Rugby Union Club-Collegiate Championships this weekend in Greenville.

The tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday, with games starting each day at 9 a.m. and continuing until 5 p.m. All matches will be played on the ECU Intramural fields, located beside Ficklen Stadium, and those adjacent to the Allied Health Building.

No admission will be charged for the tournament.

University Gets Faulkner Books

By DAVID SPEER
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Douglas C. Wynn of Greenville says it wasn't hard for his family to give away their collection of William Faulkner books, because that is what they planned to do with them all the time.

"We had always planned to give it to the university," Wynn said of the family's collection.

Wynn and his wife recently donated 240 books, papers, articles and letters to the John Davis Williams Library at the University of Mississippi.

The collection, which has an estimated value of $28,500, was started 25 years ago when Mrs. Wynn's father gave them 37 of the books as a wedding present.

The rest came from book auctions and publishers' catalogs, or as gifts, and "some were things we sort of picked up by accident," Wynn said.

The collection contains first editions of many of Faulkner's novels, limited signed editions, foreign editions and short stories.

One of the rare items in the collection is a copy of Faulkner's first book, "The Marble Faun," inscribed to the man who fired Faulkner from his position as postmaster at the University of Mississippi.

The book, now worth about $6,500, is inscribed, "To Mr. Mark Webster, to whose friendship I owe extrication from a very unpleasant situation, William Faulkner."

The Wynns had been keeping the collection in their home. Wynn said the books filled eight good-sized boxes when they were packed for shipping to the university and took up "one sort of desk with shelves in it and probably three 6- or 7-foot shelves in the library" when it was in the house.

"We did have several people looking out for things for us, people in the book business, and had some book dealers here call us when something new was coming out," Wynn said.

He said he and his wife actively worked on the collection, keeping an eye on catalogs and advertisements for mail auctions for items they wished to add to the collection.

"If we could afford them, we would buy them," he said.

In the mail auctions, the Wynns would mail off a bid on an item and then wait to see if it had been accepted.

"Some things we got and some we didn't get," Wynn said.

Other rare books donated to the library include a copy of the only English edition in the novella "Miss Zilphia Grant" published in 1932. The Wynn copy is number 108 of a limited edition of 300 and is worth about $850.

A copy of "Sherwood Anderson and Other Famous Creoles" published in 1926 is included in the collection. It is one of only 250 printed and is worth about $900.

Signed first editions of "The Hamlet," "Idyll in the Desert" and "Absalom, Absalom" were also collected by the Wynns.

"We finally came to the realization that we had collected about everything we had been looking for," Wynn said. "We thought it was high time we went ahead and gave it to the university."

MAY VISIT MECCA
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli Moslems will be able to make pilgrimages to Mecca despite the war between Iran and Iraq because Jordanian officials have arranged transportation to Saudi Arabia.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — When Malvina Cueria began work as a dental assistant, bright lights flashed from unshielded X-ray tubes and her boss used leeches to drain abscessed teeth.

Her title, with the elegance of the early 1900s, was "lady in attendance."

Her employer, Dr. C. Edmund Kells, may have been the first dentist ever to X-ray a living person's mouth. And he definitely created a stir when he first hired a female dental assistant in 1885.

But he also held onto a technique typical of the mid-1800s:

"If a patient had an abscessed tooth, he would send a porter to the drugstore and get a leech. The porter would bring it back in one of those little cardboard containers like you get goldfish in," Mrs. Cueria remembered.

"He would take this old wormy leech and put it in this tube that had a hole at both ends. The smallest end was for the mouth. He would apply that right to the abscessed region. This leech would just suck up all the infection out of the area and swell up."

"That was the only time I didn't assist him, because I couldn't stand that leech," she said.

Mrs. Cueria, now 87 and living on the fashionable Esplanade Avenue in New Orleans, was the first dental assistant to be certified under the "grandmother" clause of the National American Dental Assistants' Association.

She will be honored later this month at the group's national convention, where she will talk about the unexpected dangers of turn-of-the-century X-ray machines.

"On one occasion, shortly after Dr. Kells had X-rayed the secretary and me, we both lost our hair from the middle of our foreheads to the middle of our heads and as far down as the temple," she remembered in an interview.

"Dr. Kells was very distressed at this, and began to X-ray mice to see if they would lose their hair. It did not affect the mice at all. Fortunately, we had long hair and were able to arrange it to hide the bald spots until it grew back," she said.

X-rays were still new, and the machines had to be focused each time they were used. Only a decade or so earlier, Kells had had to focus his machine on his own hand before using it on a patient.

He had a new-fangled meter by the time Mrs. Cueria (pronounced "curia") began work for him. But the machine still was nothing like the sleek, lead-shielded-plastic-and-metal ones now in use.

"It was just a plain glass tube. It had no covering on it whatever," she said. "When he would turn on the X-ray, bright-colored lights would flash all over. When he was X-raying a patient, I would hold a palmetto fan over their faces. When he X-rayed me, Rose — the secretary — would hold the fan."

She worked for Kells until her marriage in September 1915, and again when her daughter — born 11 months later — was about 12 years old.

"Dr. Kells began writing a lot and he asked me to come back and work with him. So I worked with him off and on after that."

In the interim, Kells had lost his hand to skin cancer.

"He started with trouble in his thumb. Then they removed his hand, then they removed his arm, up below the shoulder," she said.

By that time, Mrs. Cueria was no longer working for him. She was helping a young friend of her brother's set up a dental office next to Kells' when, after the final amputation, Kells killed himself.

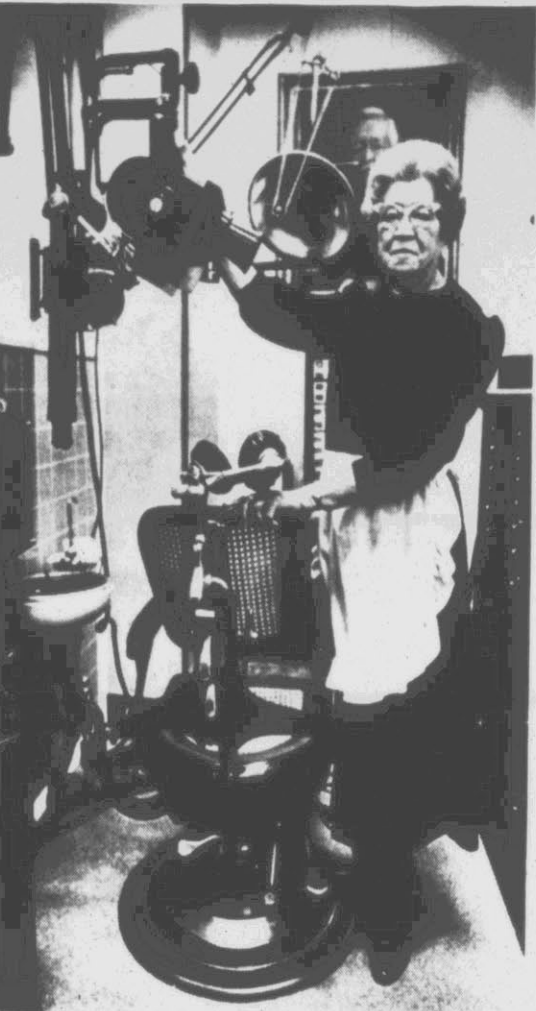

Mrs. Cueria said she had no ill effects from the X-rays. And indeed, despite her age, she is emphatically up and about — as vice president of the Cathedral Deanery Council of Catholic Women, as a member of a group called Patio Planters, and taking care of her own houseplants.

She worked professionally until 1969.

During World War II, Mrs. Cueria had helped start the first 104-hour study course for dental assistants.

She was a spry 68 when the dean of Loyola University's dental school asked her to start a program there in 1961. "It was sit-down, four-handed dentistry, teaching students how to work with assistants."

That program lasted nine years. "In the meantime, LSU had built its lovely school ... and I could see why they weren't allotting us any more money. Our equipment was very old. Out there, everything was of the latest type."

Fears May Run Out Of Lumber

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The United States may run out of lumber by the year 2000 unless management of privately owned timber is improved, says an official of the Society of American Foresters.

A homebuilding boom is expected to begin in the next decade and unless forest management is improved, lumber companies will have to cut more trees than they plant to keep up with the demand.

The 1979 Miller Reclamation Program scheduled the Spring Semester (January 28-April 23rd) was rewarding for the registered organizations who competed in our Pick 'Em Up program.

The Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority qualified for the Grand Prize in the open division and selected the cash sum of $600.00.

In the fraternity division, the Phi Kappa Tau's qualified for a Grand Prize and selected the cash sum of $600.00. The Kappa Alpha fraternity qualified respectively and selected the $200.00 cash prize.

Prizes were awarded to winning organizations at our Miller Pick 'Em Up Seminar held Tuesday, September 30th, to kick off this year's Miller Reclamation Contest.

NEW MILLER COLLEGE RECLAMATION PROGRAM

Here's how your campus organization can win exciting prizes, such as stereos, wide screen TVs, and other valuable prizes. Not only that, but cash can be collected on a weekly basis. You will also help conserve energy, since a 95% energy savings is realized in the recycling of aluminum cans. Any recognized campus organization is eligible to participate. (NO PURCHASE NECESSARY.)

Points will be awarded for Miller cans and bottles (where legal) turned in each week. Bottles will be awarded one (1) point per pound, and aluminum cans will be awarded ten (10) points per pound.

In addition, each organization will receive the current cash market value per pound of all aluminum cans turned in each week.

Groups will compete in two divisions for a grand prize: the Fraternity (to include all Fraternities) and the Open Division (to include all Sororities, dormitories, and other campus organizations). The top finisher in each division will win a choice of a grand prize (eligible for a super grand prize if the point requirement is met). Regardless of division, the next three top groups with the highest point totals will win an exciting Runner-up prize.

To be eligible to win a prize, a group must reach a pre-determined minimum point level as follows: Super Grand—7,500 points;

Grand—3,000 points; and Runner-up—1,500 points.

The Miller Pick 'Em Up Program must end one week before final exams commence and winners will be notified immediately thereafter.

Prizes will be awarded at the beginning of the next program.

Enter the Miller Pick 'Em Up Contest TODAY! For full details, collection schedules, and free pick-up bags, contact your Miller Campus Representative.

In the event that a certain prize is unavailable due to circumstances beyond our control, you will be offered a suitable replacement of equal or greater value.

Personnel from reclamation centers, employees of Miller Brewing Company, its bottle and can suppliers, its distributors, any permittees or licensees, and their immediate families are ineligible.

*Bottles may not be collected or earn points, in this program in certain states (example: Ohio). Check with your Campus Rep for all details concerning these special restrictions.

THIS PROGRAM IS NOT SPONSORED OR ENDORSED BY THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT OR ANY BRANCH OR AGENCY THEREOF.

Family Affair At Yale Univ.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Yale University is making it a family affair this year, with sons and daughters of alumni making up nearly a quarter of the freshman class.

University officials said the figure reflects a growing interest in Yale by children of alumni and has nothing to do with the fund-raising efforts that usually are directed at graduates.

This year 24.3 percent of Yale's 1,250 freshmen are children of alumni. Eight years ago, the figure was 13.7 percent. Yale officials say the increase in alumni children has not squeezed out minority group members.

No Place To Hide From Calif. Quake

AP Science Writer

ALTADENA, Calif. (AP) — Charles F. Richter, whose name is linked like none other to the study of earthquakes, says Californians have no place to hide from the earth's tremors so they'd better learn how to survive them.

But the 80-year-old seismologist, who devised the Richter scale that's used around the world to gauge the size of quakes, has little patience with newcomers who become obsessed with a fear of nature's trembling.

"One can only ask why, if they feel this way, do they come here in the first place?" he said in an interview. "The state is over-populated already. We don't need people out laying the groundwork for panicky behavior in an emergency."

Richter, who has studied earthquakes for half a century at the California Institute of Technology, retired years ago although he remains a partner in a local consulting firm.

He said he's often asked where you can go to escape the risk of earthquakes.

In California, he said, the answer is simple: "Nowhere."

Nationally, Richter said, "the least earthquake risk in the 48 states is Florida and the Gulf Coast of Texas. But then I have to ask them how they like hurricanes."

"Every area has its own risks so the only alternative is to go somewhere else and accept some other risk."

But if Californians must accept the inevitability of earthquakes, they must also make careful preparations to limit their damage. Richter said recent years have seen a growing recognition of the risks.

This new concern, he said, is reflected in Los Angeles' official Earthquake Awareness Week, which begins Sunday and includes a series of disaster drills and public education projects. Richter, an outspoken advocate of earthquake planning, is prominently listed as a sponsor of the program.

His primary concerns are skyscrapers and old masonry structures that predate modern building codes.

About skyscrapers, he said, "The problem has improved with better engineering, but personally I'd rather see fewer of them."

About old structures, he said, "These old and unsafe buildings are our outstanding risk problem in earthquake country, and there is a pretty fair concentration of them in every older population center in California."

Sitting in his modest home on the edge of this foothill suburb of Los Angeles, Richter conceded that on a personal level, "even those of us who are professionals sometimes neglect things."

He motioned toward a giant grandfather clock and said, "That clock should be anchored to the wall a little better and I really shouldn't stack those books so high."

His small living room-office is spectacularly cluttered. An ancient typewriter rises above newspaper clippings and scientific papers filed in boxes that once held brown-and-serve rolls. A seismograph that hasn't worked for several years stands against a wall. Cardboard boxes resurrected as file cabinets hide the fireplace and books are scattered everywhere.

Richter says he's slowing down.

An Ohio farm boy whose family moved to Los Angeles when he was about 12, Richter has spent his entire career at Caltech where he joined the seismological laboratory in 1927.

Five years later, he devised the measure of earthquake magnitude that bears his name. Richter, however, never calls it the Richter scale; it is "the scale," "the magnitude scale," or "that confounded scale. They really ought to find a better name for it."

It was developed specifically as a means of ranking the 300 or so Southern California earthquakes that Caltech was recording on its seismographs each year. It's value was quickly realized, however, and modifications by Richter and other earth scientists produced an open-ended scale that's used to describe earthquakes anywhere in the world.

Reagan Slings Some Carter Oratory Back At Him

By The Associated Press
Without commenting on the nature of political campaigns, it can be said that Ronald Reagan took the latest bit of oratory slung at him and slung it right back.
On Tuesday, the Republican presidential candidate called President Carter "a badly misinformed and prejudiced man" and said "he's reaching the point of hysteria."
And, Reagan said, the country deserved an apology from the incumbent Democratic president for his remarks Monday when he talked about the bleak outlook for the nation should Reagan be elected.

"You'll have to determine whether or not America will be unified or if I lose the election — whether America will be separated, black from white, Jew from Christian, North from South, or rural from urban," Carter told Democrats in Chicago, repeating, too, hints that Reagan as president would drag the United States into war.

Independent candidate John Anderson, meanwhile, had words Tuesday for both Carter and Reagan. "I am appalled by the low level to which I think both of the traditional party candidates have taken this campaign," Anderson told an audience in Cambridge, Mass.
But Anderson saved his sharpest barb for the president, saying: "I think that Mr. Carter's desperate attempt to reduce the campaign to absurd simplicities is really masking his own fear that he is now not going to win the election."

Carter was at the White House and off the campaign trail Tuesday, but his campaign chairman, Robert Strauss, defended the president's comments about Reagan, saying Carter was merely trying to delineate the "distinct differences" between the two men.

Strauss said in a written statement that Reagan, in his reply, was paying attention only to Carter's "language" and not the substance of his comments.
"This should be a campaign of issues," he said. "We're trying to see that it becomes one."
Reagan's aides, meanwhile, made an apparent attempt to explain their candidate's latest comments, releasing part of an interview in which Reagan denied he was trying to associate Carter with bigotry.

Asked what he meant by saying Carter was prejudiced, Reagan told WPVI-TV of Philadelphia that "when I used that word I thought, to me, it was very plain that I was talking about that he's the one that's been talking about me on these lines and maybe he's prejudiced against me because I'm running for president."
Reagan, asked if he thought Carter a "dirty fighter," also told reporters: "Well, I think he's a badly misinformed and prejudiced man."

And he said of Carter at another point, "Certainly he's reaching a point of hysteria that's hard to understand."
Beyond the political rhetoric:
—The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that Anderson name must appear on the Georgia general election ballot, and Anderson aides said this meant the independent candidate would be on the ballot in all 50 states.

—Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie denied speeches he has made defending U.S. foreign policy are partisan in nature. "You have an awfully suspicious mind," Muskie said when asked by reporters if his speeches across the country weren't political in nature.

CRYPTOQUIP 10-8

GSKETESPX GXAE D TGH HAGJWD- PKJ AGSWKA

Yesterday's Cryptquip — OUR MELLOW AGE IS NO GUARANTEE OF FORTIFIED WISDOM.

Today's Cryptquip clue: S equals L.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Stars Of Past In 'Ragtime'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary Steenburgen will star in "Ragtime," adapted from the book about the turn-of-the-century by E.L. Doctorow.

Dinah Quitting Her Talk Show

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dinah Shore is giving up her daily talk show, "Dinah and Friends," after 10 years.

Miss Shore is considering offers of other television projects when her contract expires in mid-October.

She became a talk show hostess in 1970, first with "Dinah's Place" on NBC, then in syndication with "Dinah's Place," which was renamed "Dinah and Friends" a year ago.

DISCOUNTS POSSIBLE NEW YORK (UPI) — Homeowners may find they can obtain discounts on their homeowners' insurance if they have an approved burglar alarm and/or fire alarm system, according to the Insurance Information Institute.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 9, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Carry through with a course of action that has proved satisfactory in the past and resist the urge to change present arrangements by which you have had success and happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to gain your aims by using more modern methods and get fine results. A direct course is the best to follow now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Private endeavors are fine to follow now, but be sure to carry through with what associates expect of you without deviating.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have excellent plans for getting ahead, but don't be too hasty in putting them in operation. Make good arrangements first.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to be more successful in business dealings and be more productive. Be more reassuring to mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Listening with interest to what allies have to say helps them to cooperate more with you, and you with them. Be wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making needed changes where your work is concerned will bring more worthwhile results. The evening can be a most happy one.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have had a new interest in mind for some time, so delve into it now and get excellent results. Take no risks in motion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) There are conditions at home you want to clear up, but you could lose out on an important business matter, so postpone for now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Obtain important data you need from the right sources, then go ahead with plans you have made. Smile and be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Assets from different sources could come your way at this time. The daytime may be taxing, but the evening can be delightful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit anyone to force you into some situation that you know is not right for you. Be poised at all times today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Express your fine ability when called upon to do so today and please higher-ups. Come to a fine understanding with co-workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily get along well with others, so be sure to give the best education you can afford and future success is assured. Give ethical training early in life. Sports are a must in this chart.

South, declarer at four spades, checked his losers and found only three. Somewhere along the line, he had forgotten to learn to count his winners, to see if there were ten tricks for the taking.

Since his only four-card suit was not biddable, North elected to open with the "convenient" bid of one club. After his partner's one spade response, North decided that a rebid of one no trump would be more descriptive than a raise to two spades with only three-card support and a completely balanced hand. However, when South supported clubs, North felt it was time to reveal his spade holding. He subsequently accepted his partner's invitation because of the solid honors he had in South's long suits, and, as a result, a good four spade contract was reached.

West led the king of hearts and continued with the queen, which declarer ruffed. South could see only two diamond losers in addition to the heart he had already lost, so he proceeded to draw trumps in three rounds. Now he set about trying to establish a diamond trick by leading low from his hand toward dummy. However, West was alert. He rose with the ace of diamonds and led the ten of hearts, forcing declarer to ruff with his last trump. When East won the king of diamonds, the defenders still had a heart to cash for a one-trick set.

Declarer should have realized that he would not have time to set up a diamond winner. Instead, dummy's high trumps should have suggested the possibility of a dummy reversal.

After ruffing the second heart, correct technique is to lead a low trump to the nine and ruff another heart. The king of clubs serves as an entry to dummy for a third heart ruff. Declarer overtakes his king of spades with dummy's ace and draws the outstanding trump with the queen, discarding a diamond from his hand. Now he can cash three more club tricks for his contract. In all, declarer scores three ruffs, three trumps and four clubs — and although he doesn't make a diamond trick, he does fulfill his contract!

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. # Off-Network Television Sees Big Wave Of British Comedy

By PETER J. BOYER
 AP Television Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) —

American off-network television has been swamped by a wave of British comedy, a circumstance to be welcomed or loathed, depending upon how you feel about anatomical jokes and guys in drag.

The crusader of British TV comedy is one Benny Hill, a round, innocent-looking pudgy whose humor is singularly off-color (and sexist, some insist), relying heavily on cleavage shots and puns employing the word "arse."

"The Benny Hill Show" has been surprisingly successful since its export to America three years ago, a phenomenon that the British television industry doesn't pretend to understand. "Benny's so English," says an executive of Thames Television, which produces "Benny."

Actually, viewers here don't really have to listen to Benny's jokes to get a chuckle out of the show. There is something about an Englishman doing silly things that strikes the American funny bone. And apparently, cleavage and short skirts still have their lure.

One of Hill's standard routines is a skit set on a beach in France. The doors to the men's and women's changing rooms, marked Hommes and Femmes, are positioned in such a way that Benny thinks he's going into the men's room when he's really walking in on the ladies. There's a scream, and Benny runs out with a dozen half-dressed women in pursuit.

When you think about it, comedic genius is not heavily present in that skit. But such has worked so far for Hill.

Hill's success has inspired other exports from Britain's TV comedy mainstream, "Dave Allen at Large" and, this season, "The Morecambe and Wise Show."

"Morecambe and Wise" has long been Britain's favorite comedy team, a 20-year hit on the BBC. Recently, Eric Morecambe and Ernie Wise left the BBC for the Independent Television Network, and sold their old BBC shows to Time-Life Television for syndication in America.

Time-Life seems to be marketing "Morecambe-Wise" as a "Benny Hill" look-alike, a tactic deplored by Ernie Wise. "Benny's blue, and we're not," Wise says with a faint scowl. "Eric and I are much more family oriented. It is much more American, too, only it's done in an English way."

Actually, it turns out that Time-Life pretty much pegged "Morecambe-Wise" correctly, at least from an American perspective.

In one of their big routines, Ernie Wise — a respectable-looking, middle-aged man, dons a wig and tight skirt to perform "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." The British audience roars at this one, though it might require an especially indulgent sense of humor to appreciate that on this side of the Atlantic.

Senior Club Has Meeting

The Town and Country Senior Citizens Club held a meeting last week in the St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Seventy-five members attended.

Sarah Ashton announced members and friends wishing to go on the trip to Atlantic Beach Nov. 21-22 are requested to make reservations immediately by calling her at 752-2912.

Ashton reported that $115.20 was made at the Bake Sale. This money will go to the travel fund.

Jeff McAllister, director of the Council on Aging, and John Turnage, from Outreach, were guests. Club members assisted them in getting 3,000 Pitt County Senior Citizens Newsletters ready for mailing.

Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Hathaway, Mrs. Mary Jenkins, Mrs. Gertrude Nicholas, Mrs. Pearl Lautures, Mrs. Josephine Rawl, Mrs. Jessie Little, Mrs. Susie Wood, and Mrs. Louise Jordan.

Public TV Plans Meeting Locally

An Ascertainment meeting, conducted by staff members of the North Carolina Center for Public Television, Chapel Hill, will be held beginning at 11:30 a.m. on Thursday, October 9, at Ramada Inn.

Suzanne Navin, of the station's community relations division, said the meeting, to which 25 community leaders in Greenville have been invited to provide input, is designed to determine public needs in all fields of public broadcast. Those invited represent a cross section of the community. Ms. Navin added that the ascertainment hearings are also required by the FCC.

In addition to Ms. Navin, persons from the UNC Center scheduled to be at the meeting include the center's director, John W. Dunlop; Michael Rierson, assistant director; Charlene Bassett, production division; Mary Leaver, development division; and Walter Johnson, engineer for the Farmville transmitter site for Channel 25, the local public television station.

Formerly known as UNC-Television, a name change effective September 28 resulted in the new name, the North Carolina Center for Public Television.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 25 through Oct. 1.
HOUSE

ADJOURNMENT — By a vote of 161 for and 231 against, an attempt to delay adjournment of the House was defeated. Republicans were behind the move. They wanted to force the Democratic majority to complete work on the high-deficit fiscal 1981 budget before election day. As a result of this vote, the House will take final action on the budget during the lame-duck session.

Members voting "nay" wanted to adjourn on Oct. 2 and confront the fiscal 1981 budget during the lame-duck session.

Reps. James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."
 Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.C. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11 voted "nay."

REFUGEE AID — By a vote of 303 for and 94 against, the House approved and sent to the President a bill authorizing a $100 million program to help school districts meet the costs of educating the children of Cuban, Haitian and Indo-Chinese refugees.

The bill (HR 7859) would give schools at least $450 per year for three years for each Cuban or Haitian child. Districts with large numbers of Cuban, Haitian or Indo-Chinese refugee children would receive up to an additional $750 per child. The bill also includes payments to schools for refugees enrolled in adult classes, along with aid to state and local governments in areas where there are large numbers of refugees.

Supporter James Corman, D-Calif., said that if Congress fails to add the 10 weeks "upward of half a million American families will exhaust unemployment benefits and possibly be reduced to

with the influx of new refugees resulted from federal immigration policy, it is equitable that the costs be met by all federal taxpayers and not entirely by local taxpayers."

Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, an opponent, said that since the bill would aid those who have not been granted official refugee status, it continues "the piecemeal approach to establishing immigration policy in this country."

Members voting "yea" favored the aid to school districts.
 Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea."
 Jones, Fountain, Martin and Broyhill voted "nay."

JOBLESS PAY — By a vote of 336 for and 71 against, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 8146) providing 10 more weeks of unemployment checks for the jobless. This is on top of the 39 weeks now available in the state-federal program. The extra 10 weeks of eligibility, which would be in effect for a six-month period beginning Oct. 1, would be totally funded by the U.S. Treasury at a cost of $1.3 billion.

Supporter James Corman, D-Calif., said that if Congress fails to add the 10 weeks "upward of half a million American families will exhaust unemployment benefits and possibly be reduced to seeking public assistance."

 Opponent John Rousselot, R-Calif., noted that the bill, advocated by President Carter, had been rushed through the House. He called it "alarming" that the administration would want Congress to "take out the rubberstamp and pass a $1.3 billion program into law after so little debate and deliberation."

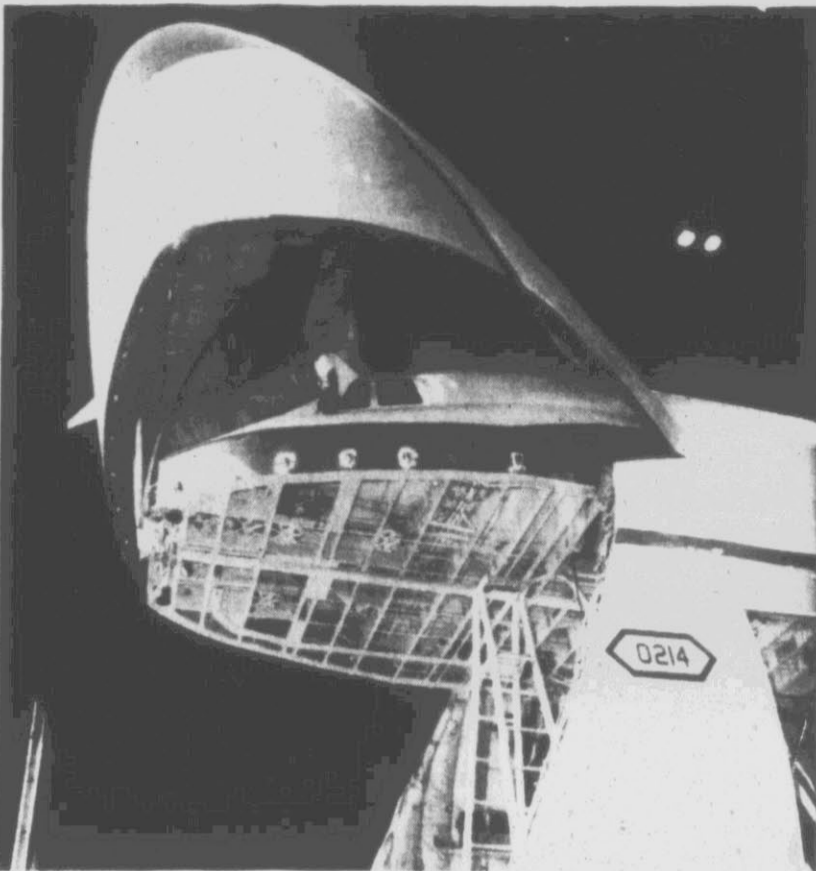

Members voting "yea" wanted 10 weeks of unemployment compensation to be added to the 39 weeks already available.
 Fountain, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Broyhill voted "yea."
 Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Martin and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE GRAIN EMBARGO — The Senate voted 43 for and 39 against to lift the embargo on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union. The aim of this procedural vote is to prevent the Administration from spending money in an appropriations bill (HR 7584) to enforce the embargo. After Russia invaded Afghanistan, President Carter imposed the embargo as a punitive measure. The bill was sent to conference with the House. Several more legislative hurdles need to be cleared before the embargo is lifted.

Supporter Larry Pressler, R-S.D., said the embargo "has not been successful. It has cost one group, American farmers, a great deal."
 Opponent Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., objected to using an appropriations bill as a vehicle for changing foreign policy, and added: "Nothing works completely but this embargo has worked."
 Senators voting "yea" wanted U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union to be resumed.
 Sen. Jesse Helms, R. voted "yea."
 Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.
FEDERAL HIRING — The Senate refused, 29 for and 58 against, to delete $1.5 million from the Department of Commerce budget. Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said the money would fund 26 high-level positions in the areas of "integrated planning and management," "a consolidated grants management function," aiding small and disadvantaged businesses, promoting tourism, and administering merit pay and promotion in the civil service. This vote included the money in HR 7584, a fiscal 1981 appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.
 Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who supported the move to eliminate the outlay, said "I guess it is a little petty for a senator to question the addition of just $1.5 million, but we have to save money wherever we can."
 Hollings said the expenditure to promote tourism in the U.S. "will rebound to us financially as well as otherwise."

 Senators voting "nay" wanted to spend $1.5 million for the 26 positions.
 Helms voted "yea."
 Morgan voted "yea."

CUTTING TAXES — By a vote of 54 for and 38 against, the Senate tabled an attempt to consider a bill (HR 5829) cutting personal and business taxes by $39 billion during the fiscal year which began Oct. 1 (FY 1981). Republicans such as Ronald Reagan and many GOP senators advocate an immediate tax cut, while President Carter and many Democratic senators want to delay any massive cut. The vote thus became intertwined with presidential politics.
 Supporter Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., called the attempt to force a vote "pure political gimmickry," and added: "In this pre-election climate... it would not be the kind of atmosphere... in which to legislate a tax cut."
 Opponent William Roth, R-Del., said "let me make it perfectly clear. Any member... who votes against allowing the Senate to consider this tax cut is voting for a tax increase on the American people."
 Senators voting "yea" wanted to postpone enactment of a massive tax cut.
 Morgan voted "yea."
 Helms voted "nay."

Seek Treatment Abroad

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece, though homeland of the god of healing, Asclepius, and of the father of modern medicine, Hippocrates, faces an exodus of the sick.
 Greeks increasingly prefer to seek treatment abroad because of a lack of confidence in their own doctors and a related belief that costs are lower elsewhere in terms of the standard of treatment.
 "If something is diagnosed abroad, they will accept it much better than if a Greek doctor tells them exactly the same thing," laments obstetrician and gynecologist Leftheris Tzamaniis, 36.
 According to Bank of Greece figures, the amount of money officially exported by Greeks for medical purposes doubled from $5.7 million in 1977 to almost $12 million last year. That does not account for the money spent by those who pick up minor medical care on vacation abroad and don't request more than the normal $250 tourism allowance for currency export.
 Two of the largest package-tour operators in Athens said many of their customers, particularly people going abroad at least partly to seek medical help. Certain London hotels are crowded with such Greeks, who sometimes face long waits when they arrive without appointments, wanting to see a Harley Street specialist.

A message to users of Rely tampons from Procter & Gamble.

Women who use Rely tampons should stop using them and return the unused product to Procter & Gamble for a refund.

Government studies show that tampons are associated with an increased risk of Toxic Shock Syndrome (TSS). This is a newly-discovered disease that affects mainly women who use tampons during their periods.

Toxic Shock Syndrome can be very serious and is believed to be responsible for a number of deaths. Almost all women who have had the disease have recovered.

Some recent studies indicate that Rely was apparently involved with Toxic Shock Syndrome to a greater extent than other tampon brands.

Toxic Shock Syndrome was first reported in November 1978. It is believed to be caused by a toxin produced by a bacterial infection (Staphylococcus aureus). In June 1980, the U.S. Center for Disease Control (CDC) first linked it to tampon use. No one yet knows how or why tampons are associated with this disease.

In June, based on research conducted up to that point, CDC said that tampon use alone was not sufficient to cause the disease. CDC also said that no particular brand of tampon was more involved than others.

But on September 15, CDC announced a new study. It compared women who had Toxic Shock Syndrome with women who did not. The study confirmed that Toxic Shock Syndrome was associated with tampon use. It also indicated that Rely was apparently involved with more cases than any other brand. Here are the key data available to date:

	DEFINITE TSS CASES REPORTED TO CDC
	Cases Involved	Rely Brand	Other Identified Brands	Unidentified
CDC Study #1 (completed June 20)	52	17	43	2
CDC Study #2 (completed September 12)	50	35	22	0
Other cases reported to CDC (through September 23)	140	24	19	100
Total CDC cases	242	76	84	102

group concluded that the available data were still fragmentary, but advised that the results of the latest CDC study should not be ignored.

Therefore, on September 22, Procter & Gamble announced it was suspending sales of Rely and that it would refund money to consumers who had Rely in their homes.

The Food and Drug Administration offers this advice to consumers:

"The current evidence indicates that women should stop using Rely. Women who want to reduce their risk of toxic shock even further may want to consider not using any tampons at all, or using napkins part of the time during their periods.

"Women using tampons who develop a high fever and vomiting or diarrhea during their periods should stop using tampons and see their doctors right away."

The FDA and CDC have said they will continue studying Toxic Shock Syndrome to find out what causes it and why it is associated with tampons. Procter & Gamble will participate with the government in this important effort.

In the meantime, Procter & Gamble advises women not to use Rely tampons and to return unused Rely for a refund.

You should know these symptoms of Toxic Shock Syndrome:

- High Fever (102°) and
- Vomiting or diarrhea

If you have these symptoms during your menstrual period, discontinue use of tampons and see your doctor at once.

Send your unused Rely tampons with your name and address to:
 Rely,
 P.O. Box 8448,
 Clinton, Iowa 52736.
 And you will receive a refund including cost of mailing.

NOTE: You may see Rely advertisements in the November issues of various women's magazines. Unfortunately, these issues were already printed when the decision to suspend sales of Rely was made on September 22, 1980.

Mental Strain Due An Ailing Economy

By JANE SEE WHITE
 Associated Press Writer

A middle-aged, unemployed Detroit chemical worker reached a point where he couldn't look his wife in the eye. Every time he did, he said, he burst into tears.

In nearby Lincoln Park, a young married couple lost their jobs, their house, their car, their television and their telephone. Both began extramarital affairs. Both began abusing their two small children.

These are just two of the cases cited by beleaguered mental health workers around the country who report a growing mini-epidemic of depression, alcoholism and family violence.

As they did in a similar Associated Press survey three months ago, mental health officials lay much of the blame on the continuing strain of dealing with inflation, recession and unemployment.

"Historically, when financial conditions from a national perspective are tighter, we will witness an increased incidence of breakdown," said David Turkot, an Atlanta psychologist.

Wholesale price figures released Friday marked the first drop in that economic barometer in 4 1/2 years, although August's Consumer Price Index had prices 12.8 percent higher than a year ago. Bank prime interest rates skipped higher this past week, which eventually will make loans prohibitively expensive to many consumers.

In addition, the national unemployment rate is now 7.5 percent. That's 8 million Americans out of work.

"Three out of five people who come to us for help are unemployed. Our volume is up 25 to 35 percent," said Judson Stone, director of the Six Area Coalition Mental Health Center in Lincoln Park, Mich.

Unemployment in Wayne County - where Lincoln Park is located, just outside Detroit - was 15.6 percent in June, the latest statistic available, said Rick Rosen of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

"We use unemployment insurance figures for our statistics and they've been so overloaded there with new applicants that they can't get the numbers to us," he explained.

In Baltimore, unemployment was 9.9 percent in July. Two months later, 26,200 people there applied for 75

Social Security jobs.

"It is a desperate picture," said Phyllis Diggs, director of the North Baltimore Mental Health Center. She said 15 to 20 percent more people are seeking the center's help this year than last.

"It's been increasing steadily for the last five or six months," she said. "The way it comes out is in more depression, heavy drinking and some family violence."

None of this surprises Thomas Cottle, a sociologist and psychologist at Harvard Medical School who has studied unemployment's emotional impact for 15 years. Cottle calls unemployment "a killer disease."

"In our culture, working is close to the center of life. Our culture teaches that if you don't work in an acceptable way, then you're supposed to be depressed," Cottle said.

a million symptoms show - tooth decay, kidney failure, alcoholism, sexual infertility."

To make matters worse, Cottle said, the mentally ailing unemployed often don't seek help: "A lot of people want to go for help, but they don't want to bear the extra burden of feeling that along with being out of work, they're also crazy."

Local conditions swell the tide of troubled Americans, as well - like drought. Southeastern Arkansas, for example, had only one inch of rain from May 16 to late September.

"We usually get 12 to 14 inches. The farmers are really hurting," said Clarence Perkins of the Southeast Arkansas Mental Health Center in Pine Bluff, where client volume has increased 15 to 20 percent.

In Stone's service area near Detroit, unemployment from the ailing auto industry and related businesses is nearing 30 percent.

"The hardest hit in terms of numbers are the young people, young married couples who have no resources to fall back on," he said. "They feel impotent and angry and take it out on each other and the children."

"The next largest group is older - a guy about 50 years old who's permanently laid off. He can't pass the physical for a comparable job, so he's facing a future doing things like overnight work as a security guard for less money than he used to make."

Inflation batters some Americans more than others, agreed psychologist Richard Kiley of Appalachian Mental Health Center in Elkins, W.Va.

"The elderly ... already lived through the Depression in the '30s. They're worried about losing their homes a second time. There's a great deal of anxiety and depression," he said.

"We're also seeing many of their children, who feel depressed and guilty because they want to help their geriatric parents, but they can't afford to."

"People came to us a year ago depressed and crying, but now we're seeing people who are suicidal," said Jack Viar, director of the Tri-County Community Mental Health Center in North Kansas City, Mo.

But Viar isn't so sure the economy deserves full blame for a 15 percent rise in volume at his center.

"I've been wondering why our inpatient unit is running full all the time. ... We've had other recessionary times and I don't recall the volume going up the way it has the last five or six months."

"I think it's not only because of inflation and recession. It's Mount St. Helens erupting and riots in Miami and hostages in Iran and the Russians invading Afghanistan. You turn on the 6 o'clock news and you walk away with a sick feeling in your stomach."

"These are depressing times. And on top of that, your job's not secure."

Lucey Counting On Undecided

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Independent vice presidential candidate Patrick J. Lucey says polls showing the Anderson-Lucey ticket losing every state in the November election are accurate, but he added that could change in the campaign's remaining four weeks.

Opinion polls by The Associated Press and four other news organizations show independent presidential candidate John Anderson would not win any of the Electoral College votes that actually decide the election.

Lucey said pre-election polls do not fully reflect the strength of independent candidacies. And he said the undecided vote remains a major factor.

"The only ray of hope is the number of undecideds is constantly rising. This is a rare phenomenon," he said at a news conference.

The Crossword Puzzle Is An American Invention

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Fifteen letters, two words: The only American invention more popular than the martini.

If you quickly thought, in ink, "C-R-O-S-S-W-O-R-D P-U-Z-Z-L-E," then you are probably among the estimated 40 million U.S. fanatics whose daily or weekly fixes take them down and across.

"It's an addiction," said Michelle Arnot, one of only about 300 regular crossword "constructors" in the country. "Once you become a good solver, that's it. You're hooked for life."

"And it's the cheapest entertainment going," said Margaret Farrar, the octogenarian grande dame of crosswords.

A transplanted English editor, Arthur Wynne, originated the modern "word cross" in the New York World newspaper in 1913, but Mrs. Farrar made it "America's favorite licit indoor activity in the days before television."

Hired as the World's crossword editor in 1920, she took a $25 advance to edit the first crossword book — and the first book ever published by Simon & Schuster — in 1924. Mrs. Farrar, who was later crossword editor of the New York Times, easily recalls the crossword craze that swept the country in the Roaring '20s.

There were contests and tournaments. Many newspapers ran crosswords every day. Linguists hailed the puzzles for reviving fine old words. Psychologists said crosswords were a healthy way for young people to socialize.

In 1925, a group of Mah-Jong manufacturers sent crossword publishers a Valentine: "Roses are red, violets are blue, We'd like to cut your throats for you."

The crossword quickly spread across seas and languages, spawning cryptic, crostic, double-crostic, anagram, scrambled and other assorted word puzzles.

Among newspapers, only the staid New York Times resisted crosswords. Until 1942.

That's when publisher Arthur Hayes Sulzberger reputedly tired of buying competitors' papers to do the crosswords.

So Sulzberger hired Mrs. Farrar, of whom mystery detective "Nero Wolfe" creator Rex Stout once said:

"If I were bound for a desert island, the 10 books I would want along would be 10 crossword puzzle books edited by Margaret Farrar. Then I wouldn't bother to look around for footprints."

Indeed, many addicts find satisfaction even when they don't finish a puzzle. Said Noel Coward: "When I make '1 Across' fit in with '1 Down,' my day is made."

Manhattan commuter John Chervovskis gauges his day according to how quickly it takes him to do the daily crossword on the train to work. He says that for three years, it has not taken him more than seven minutes, "in arrogant ink."

While crossword tournaments are again in vogue, with up to 200 participants expected at the unofficial national championship next March in Stamford, Conn., most solvers view puzzles as simply a pleasant pastime.

Will Weng, another retired New York Times crossword editor now editing books, said the 15-by-15-square daily puzzles, progressively more difficult through the week, can be completed in a half hour without a dictionary. The 23-by-23 Sunday puzzle is designed to take a couple of hours, with references.

Eugene Maleska, the current Times crossword editor, says constructors earn $20 for daily and $100 for Sunday puzzles.

Maleska advised that "a good crossword contains words everybody knows. The definitions are the key."

He said American definitions, while still not as convoluted as those in the London Times puzzle favored by aficionados, are becoming more zippy.

For instance, instead of "Bird's home," the clue for "nest" might be "raven's haven," or "nutcracker suite." Maleska said he is also demanding less reliance on the traditional "crossword" words like gnu, esne, lbo, anoa, anet and anil.

Nonetheless, Maleska said, he still receives three times as many puzzles as he can use, and he has an edited and approved backlog through 1981.

None of the crossword editors were concerned their puzzles are getting too hard. Mrs. Farrar recalled a printshop mixup left one 1950s puzzle with numbers scrambling clues. "We got a ton or two of angry letters," she said. "But we also got letters from people who solved it anyway. They wanted more like it."

Trials Planned After Election

DENVER (AP) — Three men arrested in egg-throwing incidents involving independent presidential candidate John Anderson will be tried after the Nov. 4 election.

Jose Calderon, 34, who claims to be the leader of Colorado's Communist Worker's Party; Carlos V. Romero, 27; and Esmerejodado Guerrero, 26, were arrested in August following egg-throwing incidents during the National Governor's Conference. All three were charged with assaulting a member of Congress.

Gold Miner Basically A Lone Wolf

By GARY R. PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer
GUANAJUATO, Mexico (AP)—Samuel Rodgers was an American once; his parents gave him that birthright here in this picturesque town. But today he is a Mexican, living in a pristine but lonely cul de sac working his mountain gold-mining claim.

"I'm living here because I'm a lone wolf. I always have been. I don't get lonely. I just love it here. You could say I've been prospecting in these hills alone most of my life and I've probably walked 150,000 kilometers (90,000 miles) around here," the affable miner said.

Sam, 55, did not study geology. He learned it, by walking through the mountains above the town. He learned to make his tools by reasoning and looking at how others did it.

He reads at night by carbide lamp, and with his dusty pants, tall rubber boots, and weatherbeaten face, he looks like a '49er from the California Mother Lode country.

Sam lives on sandwiches and on strong coffee brewed in a soot-blackened pot. He purchased a small claim (called a concession) here six years ago, dug a few feet into a hillside, covered it with canvas and that has been home since. His days are spent washing ore or working a nearby claim. There is no electricity, no telephone. If you want to get in touch with Sam you have to write to him.

When Sam needs something from civilization he straps on his pack and heads four miles up a steep, rocky path to a dirt road where he catches a ride to town, another three miles away.

The tall, thin, bearded and blue-eyed miner is well known in his hometown. He stands out with his hat and pipe. He speaks perfect English and Spanish.

In 1943 Sam enlisted in the U.S. Army. He was 18 and still had dual citizenship. After serving in Europe as a medic, he became a Mexican citizen, giving up his U.S. citizenship. He served a hitch in the Mexican army.

His last visit to the States was in 1974.

"I was born here and never felt any particular connection to the United States, but I wanted to serve in the Army. I came back, I guess knowing I wanted to be a miner here one day, and knew I couldn't own a concession if I wasn't a Mexican."

Sam's mother was a Methodist missionary sent to Guanajuato in 1922. His father came here in 1892 to mine the hills where the Spanish once exploited the Indians to fill the royal coffers in Madrid.

Sam went to school here and went off to war. He came back and in 1948 met an American woman. They married a year later and moved to Mexico City. After 19 years and two sons, they separated, he said, and she moved to Texas. He came back here in 1969, bought his claim five years later and has not looked back to the years in Mexico City.

"This has been a break-even proposition so far. There is some gold, but it takes work," he said as he panned gold in a small, spring-fed pond above his base of operations, where three hired hands wash down ore on weekends.

"I've invested more than 1.8 million pesos ($92,000) here in the past six years, and it always is a struggle."

Guanajuato is a beautiful colonial town, about 150 miles northwest of Mexico City, with narrow, cobblestone streets that wind through an ancient subterranean system, but Sam's diggings are in a spot far lovelier.

If the weather is good a four-wheel-drive vehicle can usually get to it. By burro or on foot is the sure way, although the 8,000-foot elevation takes the breath away.

Where the passable road ends, on a bluff about 9,000 feet up, Sam's blue tent is visible, far down in a cul de sac.

What if something happens and he needs help?

"I guess you could say I'd be up a creek," he laughed. "I'd just have to wait until somebody came by."

Classroom Animals Are Incentives

NEW YORK (AP) — The teacher's pet may have four legs and be the students' pet as well, as children nationwide care for — and learn from — their classroom animals.

Whether it's the kindergarten turtle or the sixth-grade rabbit, live animals have been found to enrich the educational basics — reading, writing and arithmetic — as well as more advanced subjects including accounting and science, says the Pet Information Bureau.

"Pets lead even 'lazy' students to do independent research such as reading about the animal's background and habits," explains Susan Goldman, a New York public-school teacher.

"Young children," she adds, "can learn valuable lessons in responsibility and cooperation with others by caring for a classroom pet. Academically, they learn to count, draw and spell faster when these lessons are enlivened by residents of the class aquarium, for example, or the class hamster."

Many animals make good classroom pets, according to Steven Trombetti, director of the information bureau. However, he points out, it's important to choose the proper pet for a particular age group and its learning requirements. Pets that are easily cared for are best for younger grades, he says. Fish, turtles and reptiles, for example, are educational and easy to care for.

"On the other hand, fourth, fifth and sixth-graders are fascinated by gerbils, guinea pigs, birds and rabbits," he notes. "These pets require greater care and demand responsible behavior more typical of older children."

"Teacher-assigned reading helps students decide and vote on those pets best suited to their classroom. Many classes even organize field trips to local pet shops for advice on suitable classroom and home pets and their care."

Included among other benefits derived from pets in the classroom, Trombetti says, are:

—Art lessons bring out latent talent when children are asked to illustrate scenes from their favorite animal stories or join in a class project to make a pet mobile to hang over the "pet station." The mobile can include a picture of each pet, name and favorite food.

—Exercises which involve writing and research skills suddenly become much more enjoyable when the subject is a topic of interest, such as a favorite animal. Spelling bees have been organized using words that relate to pets, as well.

—Geography and history lessons are enlivened by discussions centering on the evolution of certain animals.

—Pets are also used to introduce such subjects as careers, when discussing what pet-related jobs are available; the weather and how animals adapt to various climates; and industrial progress, describing how animals once performed tasks now done by machines.

—Lessons in accounting and mathematics are illustrated by the amount of time and money needed to care for a pet. Graphs and charts are developed to monitor a classroom pet's weight and daily food intake. The metric system becomes second nature to children when they keep track of their pet's weight, size and food intake in metric measurements.

—Through discussion of the proper nutritional requirements of classroom pets, students develop a better understanding of their own food needs. Instead of reaching for that fast-food snack, they learn that an apple or carrot or glass of milk is better for them as well as for their pet.

Other science and health lessons, such as the study of anatomy and scientific classification of animals, are facilitated by bringing some of those animals into the classroom.

POPULATION CURB PEKING (AP) — Chinese population experts have suggested moving some of Peking's factories and people to satellite towns to help keep the Chinese capital's population under 10 million, the Peking Daily newspaper reports.

Compare Our Prices!

A FEW WORDS ABOUT FOOD SHOPPING: It's The "Total" cost of your food bill that really counts. Some stores claim to be the cheapest on this or that; that is they have super low prices on just enough grocery items to confuse the issue...then they sock it to you on the meat prices and other grocery items. We don't claim to have the lowest prices on every item in our store, no one can truly make that claim, but we do claim to be competitive on the total cost of your food bill. We will save you money, day in and day out. Our prices are right and our services are Greenville's best. Nobody can put it all together like Overton's.

*Computed by multiplying wattage by on-time (percentage of time blanket is actually using electricity) by hours used by electric costs. Example: At a control setting of 5, in a room 62 degrees (making on-time 58%), and using estimated average and maximum electric costs per kilowatt hour (KWH), here are nightly operating costs:

Style	Watts used	Hours in use	Estimated average U.S. elec. cost	Estimated avg. cost	Estimated max. U.S. elec. cost	Estimated max. cost
Twin	135	8	4.97¢/KWH	3.11¢	8.25¢/KWH	5.17¢

King	270	8	4.97¢/KWH	6.23¢	8.25¢/KWH	10.34¢

Estimate of national average KWH rate is from the Federal Register 6/27/79. The estimated maximum KWH rate is determined from the National Electric Rate Book: 1977-1978, based on use of 500 KWH per billing period.
