Vows U.S. Will Keep Oil Waterway Open

By TIM AHERN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter, while vowing anew that the United States "will take whatever steps are necessary" to keep the vital Persian Gulf oil lanes open, says the United States could accomplish that mission using naval and air power and without ground troops. Carter also said Wednesday he sees no progress in the "foreseeable future" on winning the release of the 52 American hostages in Iran, despite reports that a breakthrough could occur.

The president, during a campaign appearance in Secaucus, N.J., predicted that the Iran-Iraq war will not escalate "to any major degree in the near future." But even if it should, he said in answer to questions, the United States has enough naval and air power in the Persian Gulf region to protect the oil lanes.

Iran threatened earlier in the week to block the Strait of Hormuz, the 29-mile-wide gateway to the gulf, through which an estimated 40 percent of Western oil is shipped.

The Arabians Sea could clear the strait, they said. Carter said that should the strait be blocked, the resulting interruption in the oil supply would not only cause major economic problems but also would "endanger our own national security."

But, he warned, "we have a very large naval task force there with superb fighter planes to take care of our needs to keep that strait open." "So I believe that those forces already in place, Navy, naval air, will be adequate. I don't see any ground forces of troops going to that area."

Carter's words were backed up by a report today in the Washington Post that the United States and its allies have a fleet of at least 60 warships in the Indian Ocean area, including 32 U.S. ships. The U.S. task force includes two aircraft carriers.

The coordinated buildup, which has been kept quiet, gives the allies twice the number of the 29 ships the Soviet Union has in the area, the Post said.

In addition to the United States, France has 20 craft in the area, Australia has five and Britain two, the newspaper said.

Carter and top administration officials, meanwhile, doused as "completely speculative" recent published reports that a breakthrough is near on the 11 1/2-month hostage crisis in Iran.

Invaders Claim Abadan Cut Off Iran, Iraq Trade Aerial Blows

By STEVE K. HINDY Associated Press Writer BASRA, Iraq (AP) - Iraqi MiGs pounded Tehran's oil storage tanks today and Iranian warplanes bombed Baghdad and other Iraqi cities, the Iraqi command reported. Iran claimed it forced Iraqi troops to retreat in the Abadan area.

States "will take whatever steps are necessary" to keep the vital Persian Gulf oil lanes open, says the United States could accomplish that mission using naval and air power and without ground troops.

Iran claimed that its army killed 1,000 Iraqi troops in airborne assaults in the Ilam sector, 250 miles northwest of Abadan. Iraq reported "fierce battles" on the outskirts of Dezful, a military headquarters city and oilfield center 140 miles north of Abadan.

around Abadan and Dezful. Iraq made no mention of the Ilam sector.

Abadan, 30 miles up the Shatt al-Arab from the Persian Gulf, and the oil port of Khorramshahr, 10 miles to the northwest, were the two Iranian strongpoints on the estuary that forms the southern end of the border between Iran and Iraq and has been a major territorial issue between them for centuries.

Iraqi troops and tanks that advanced eastward above Khorramshahr and Abadan and then turned south toward the gulf on Wednesday cut the highway between Abadan and the oil fields to the east, the refinery city's last supply line, the Iraqi News Agency reported Wednesday night. The agency said the commander of the battlefront's southern sector told a visiting INA team his troops had taken control of Abadan's radio station, captured 100 Iranian military personnel including two high-ranking officials, destroyed a "huge" amount of armored equipment.

Egypt, Israel Summit Talk Appears Unlikely Now By End Of This Year

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - A Mideast peace summit by the end of the year now appears unlikely, even though U.S. officials say the latest round of formal talks between Egypt and Israel produced some progress on a Palestinian autonomy agreement.

Linowitz said a new American memorandum incorporating the Israeli and Egyptian proposals will be prepared and another negotiating session will be held Nov. 17 in the Middle East - in either Egypt or Israel, according to U.S. officials.

Joseph Burg, the chief Israeli negotiator, said, "I am sure that the summit will take place, but I am sure we will have to make many, many talks, meetings, negotiations, in order to make it fruitful."

Earlier, Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak said a summit that failed to solve the Palestinian issue would be a "complete disaster."

The Israeli move at the two-day session, which encouraged American mediators, may make it easier to define the powers of the council that will be elected by the Palestinians, sources said.

Winding up the negotiations Wednesday, U.S. mediator Sol M. Linowitz claimed progress and credited both sides with a serious attitude and determination to reach agreement.

Linowitz said both Israel and Egypt took some new positions, but he refused to be specific.

Annual Event Attracts N.C. Demo Leadership

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The fourth annual gathering of the North Tar River Fellowship Club at the M.K. Blount Farms' River Road Ranch attracted a "Who's Who" among state Democratic Party leaders Wednesday.

Some 300 Democrats and a host of politicians, many of them seeking re-election in November, turned out for the late afternoon fellowship and dinner.

Among the party officials and candidates on hand for the club meeting were Gov. Jim Hunt and U.S. Senator Robert Morgan, who both ended a day-long round of appearances in Greenville; Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten; N.C. Commissioner (Please turn to Page 2)

REFLECTOR HOTLINE

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

COUPON CLIPPERS?

Is there a coupon clippers' club in the Greenville area? Who should I contact. A. T.

Hotline called the East Carolina University Continuing Education Department Non-Credit Programs Division because it recently sponsored a program on this topic. We thought they might have had contact with persons interested in this kind of effort.

Sure enough, Phil Martin supplied us a name of a member of the Greenville Coupon Club, Deedy Vincent. She said the club, which was formed in April and is affiliated with a national coupon club, has been meeting twice a month, but will meet probably the first Tuesday of each month, beginning in December. The next meeting is set for Oct. 28.

Presently about 10 members keep in touch and exchange coupons and refund forms among themselves and with contacts all over the nation. Members average saving $5 to $10 a week using coupons and it's possible to earn up to $50 a month on refunds, she said. Truly interested new members will be welcomed she said. She suggested that anyone interested in joining contact Frances Knox, 752-0681.

The group, which has been meeting in members' homes, is seeking a low-cost permanent place to meet, she indicated. Anyone who has a prospect for them is asked to call Knox.

The Wednesday Daily Reflector is a good source for coupons, Vincent commented.

Hunt Sees Confidence In The Course Of N.C.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE - N.C. Gov. Jim Hunt is seeking a second term in the November election. (AP Laserphoto)

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

LA GRANGE, N.C. (AP) - There is a poll Gov. Jim Hunt likes to cite as he confidently campaigns around North Carolina, and it's not the one showing him with a lead of better than three-to-one.

North Carolinians were asked last summer by Hunt's New York pollster how they feel about the direction in which the country is moving; did they feel good about it or not? By two-to-one, as Hunt tells it, they did not.

"Then the question was asked, 'Do you feel like our state of North Carolina is headed in the right direction?'" Hunt says, warming to his point. "And by a two-to-one majority the people of this state said, 'Yes, we think our state is.'"

Hunt doesn't try to document those results or convince anyone of their authenticity.

But his frequent reference to the poll before all kinds of audiences reflects the careful enthusiasm and irrefutable optimism Hunt projects as he approaches his re-election goal. He uses it to illustrate his campaign theme - that North Carolina has made unprecedented progress in the past four years and needs Hunt to help it continue for four more.

Candidate Lake Hoping Home-Stretch Decisive

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Isaac Beverly Lake Jr. doesn't do a lot of hand pumping, back slapping or fiery orating as he campaigns for governor.

He doesn't face too many of the endless barbecue lunches and chicken dinners that politicians often have to endure, either.

Instead, Lake's Republican campaign is pinned on the cumulative effect of biting news-conference attacks on Gov. Jim Hunt and on what he hopes will be a home-stretch gallop of television advertising.

"This is all right. It's to some extent less grueling than a strictly campaign whirlwind tour." Lake, 46, says of his method of running. "This is a slower pace, but we mix a lot of politics in with it."

Despite the sharpness of his attacks on Hunt, Lake's campaign has kept a generally low profile. Most of the political gatherings he attends are on weekends, and he spends most of his week in his own Raleigh law office or going to private meetings with individuals or small groups.

The meetings are always with the goal of raising enough money to put his commercials on the air. (Please turn to Page 17) of Agriculture Jim Graham; Secretary of State Thad Eure; Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, First District Rep. Walter Jones; State Treasurer Harlan Boyles, N.C. Labor Commissioner John Brooks; and Sen. Ed Renfrow, who is seeking the state auditor's post

Also introduced to the Demo gathering were Rep. Sam Bundy, Rep. Horton Rountree, the district court judge nominee from the Third District; State Senator Vernon White; State ABC Board chairman Marvin Speight, Betty Speir, first vice president of the State Democratic Party; and area, county and local government officials.

Ed Warren, current chairman of the Pitt Board of County Commissioners and a candidate for the N.C. House of Representatives from the Eighth District, was master of ceremonies yesterday and made the introductions.

Warren, one of the club sponsors, was re-elected as president of the organization for the coming year.

The club president said that fall is the "best time of the year to have a political party."

Hunt, speaking briefly to the gathering, said there are a "lot of wonderful things and places in our country, but you can't find it any better than right here" on the Blount Farm. The governor said there are "not many places in the country where people pull together as they do in North Carolina."

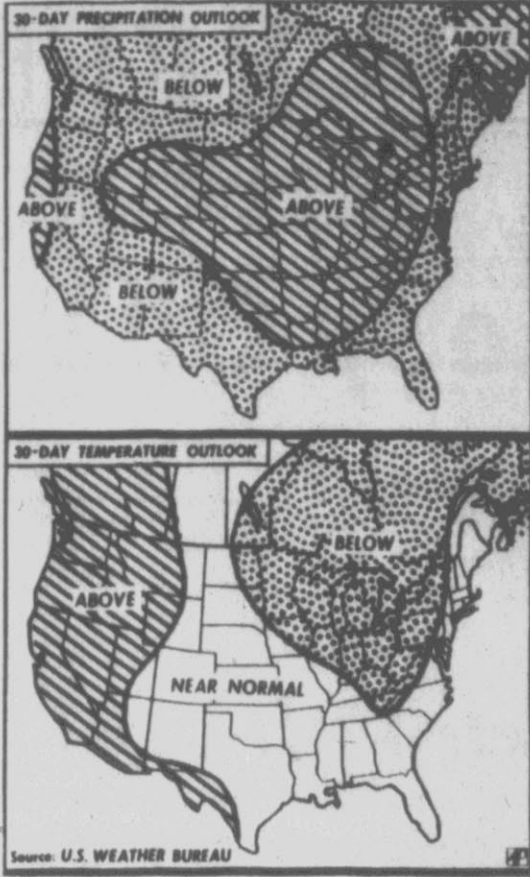

Hunt reported that the people of the state have made a "strong and clear decision to move ahead" and he suggested that "North Carolina is literally on the verge of taking off."

Many of the politicians declined opportunities to make brief remarks to the membership and Jones typified the light hearted atmosphere, when he was invited to speak, by observing, "With no opposition, I decline."

Daniels-Cox Vows Said

MARLBORO — The Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church was the setting for the wedding of Miss Sheila Diane Cox and Bobby Lynn Daniels of Farmville Sunday afternoon, Oct. 5, at three o'clock. The Rev. Scott Sowers officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of music was rendered by Janie Sowers, organist. Judy Bowens was soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. William Pridgen and the late Mr. Simon W. Cox. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Rosa B. Daniels of Farmville and the late Mr. George Lanier Daniels.

Given in marriage by her mother and stepfather, William Pridgen, the bride wore a floor length gown of chantilly lace styled with a Victorian neckline with an illusion yoke and full length puff sleeves accented with a ruffle over the hand. Bridal satin ribbon encircled the waist ending with flowing streamers accenting the back of the gown. The full length lace skirt extended into a chapel train. A layered chantilly ruffle bordered the hemline of the gown. Her chapel length mantilla edged in lace with an illusion blusher was attached to a lace cape with seed pearl accents. She carried a bouquet of silk blue and white roses, lace, white and blue streamers interspersed with gypsophilia.

Mrs. Sharon Wilson was honor attendant for her sister. Bridesmaids were Miss Teresa Cox, cousin of the bride of Winterville, Ms. Jean Smith, sister of the bridegroom of Greenville, Tama May and Leigh Ham of Farmville. Luann Pridgen, sister of the bride, was miniature bride.

Chris May was miniature bridegroom. The bridegroom's brother, Ray Daniels, was best man and ushers included Simon R. Cox of Ormondsville and Reggie Cox of Farmville, brothers of the bride, Mike Bowen of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom, and Tommy Cobb of Farmville.

For a wedding trip to Sweetwater, Tenn., the bride changed into a blue and white crepe knit dress and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will make their home in Farmville.

A graduate of Farmville Central High School and Pitt Community College, the bride is employed at Greenville Christian Academy Kindergarten, Greenville. Her husband, a graduate of Farmville Central High School, attended Pitt Community College and is employed at TRW, Greenville.

Mrs. Bobby Lynn Daniels

Mr. and Mrs. David May presided at the register and Mrs. Connie Harrell of Greenville, aunt of the bride, directed the ceremony.

The bride's parents and friends honored the couple at an after-rehearsal party in the church fellowship hall.

Mrs. Phyllis Daniels, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, poured punch and cake was served by Mrs. Wayne Cox, sister-in-law of the bride.

Dear Abby

Stick-In-The-Mud Will Stay Stuck

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a fine, educated, dignified gentleman for two years. I'm divorced, in my 40s; he's in his mid-50s and has never married.

My problem is his programmed way of life. He takes me out every Wednesday and Saturday nights only. And always where he wants to go. If I want to see him on any other night, it's absolutely no. And nothing can move him.

He lives alone and has never invited me to his place where we could have complete privacy. If I suggest going to his apartment, he gives me a speech about appearances, his dignity, reputation, and what the neighbors will think. Meanwhile he thinks nothing of staying overnight at my place with my three children sleeping upstairs and my neighbors looking on.

I cater to all his preferences in food, entertainment and even late-night TV, which I do not enjoy. I am constantly feeding his ego. There has been no mention of a possible future or any kind of commitment together. I seem to be getting nowhere.

What are my chances of a future with him?

STYMIED IN BUFFALO

DEAR STYMIED: I would say you have no future with him. And from your description of him, I think you're lucky. Unless you want to share the rest of your life with a selfish, inconsiderate, egocentric, spoiled, inflexible prig.

DEAR ABBY: What is wrong with an adult with a master's degree who seems to enjoy correcting the pronunciation errors of another adult loudly and in the presence of others at any social gathering? Shouldn't this be done privately — if at all?

Not only does the recipient of this treatment become embarrassed, so do those present. How can this be handled gracefully? Should the one corrected apologize for the error, thank Mr. English-teacher for his useful help, or never open one's mouth again in conversation when he is present?

SENSITIVE

DEAR SENSITIVE: Such "helpful corrections" should be done in private — if at all. Those who correct others publicly (and loudly) do so not in the spirit of helpfulness, but in an effort to show their own superiority.

They are the losers because they show themselves to be insensitive and arrogant. When corrected, say, "Thank you."

DEAR ABBY: The letter from that poor kid whose mother made her (or him) play the piano for company brought back memories. When I was a kid, my mother used to make me play my guitar and sing for company.

One evening after entertaining the company at my mother's insistence, I took off the Mexican-type sombrero I always wore for my performances, turned it brim-side-up and passed it in a circle before the guests.

To my mother's horror, they all tossed money into the hat. Needless to say, that was the last time my mother ever asked me to perform for company.

Behold the Humble Hummels!

Rare Hummels on Display October 17 and 18!

A precious moment of youth in all its innocence and wonder, captured forever, to be enjoyed over and over again.

To anyone who has ever collected Hummel Figurines that special magic they cast doesn't have to be explained. If you have never had the chance to get close to these treasures, the opportunity is now at hand.

THE MERRY WANDERER

On October 17 and 18 Mrs. Arnette King — Smith, the foremost authority on Hummels in the south, will be in our gift department. Accompanying her will be a collection of Hummels including some very rare pieces. She will also be lecturing and giving you a personal appraisal on any Hummel Figurines that you bring with you.

Mrs. King — Smith's lecture will be scheduled for Saturday, October 18 at 2:00 p.m. In this lecture she will be covering such topics as:

The History of Hummel Figures — From the sketches of Sister M. I. Hummel to their present hand made production in Germany.

Trademark Identification — All the intricacies involved in recognizing the various markings, the periods of time that each represents and the rarity of certain issues and the reasons for their scarceness.

Investment Potential — The economics of collecting Hummels. (Hummel Figurines went up 20% last year, a fact many of you investors will be interested in.)

Come and take advantage of this opportunity to meet Mrs. King — Smith and attend her lecture. Also don't forget to bring in your Hummels for the free appraisal. It should prove to be an exciting event for collectors, would be collectors and anyone who would just like to look and learn about these beautiful and fascinating collectables.

Improving Relations?

What's going on in Cuba?

The Cubans have announced plans to release all United States citizens who are being held in their jails.

There are 37 of them, some held on undisclosed charges, some for hijackings and other offenses. Some the U. S. will welcome back; others can face trials in this country if they return.

Nevertheless the move is seen as a conciliatory one by Cuba towards the United States. Cuba has also closed a port which was used as a pick-up point for refugees fleeing to the U.S. and it recently returned two alleged hijackers for U. S. trial.

Whatever Cuba's motives, it is not expected that major improvements will be seen in U. S.-Cuban relations for some time — not in the sense of diplomatic recognition.

There are still Cuban troops meddling in Africa, and there is a Russian military presence in Cuba. Castro agents are still at work throughout South America.

Still none of these huge problems will be resolved until there is a dialogue between the neighboring nations. This may be the first tiny step, but like all international differences some improvement in relations eventually will have to come.

Preserve The Lighthouse

If nature has its way the historic Cape Hatteras Lighthouse may soon topple in the ocean.

The mighty lighthouse will be the victim of beach erosion and the new policy of letting the sea claim its own.

It seems clear now that not much can be done to halt the constant shifting of North Carolina's Outer Banks. Still the lighthouse has a unique history.

Surely some way can be found to move the structure and preserve it for future generations.

Not All That Bad

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Suddenly, just in time for the November elections, the recession is over and inflation is under control.

A skeptic might wonder. Indeed, a cynic might question whether the recession ever really got underway, except for certain hard-hit industries like cars and steel where the classic definition would make that condition a depression.

Even economists who seldom see eye-to-eye agree that it's a recession when your neighbor is out of work, a depression when you are out of work.

Loss of jobs is the standard means of measuring the general state of the economy with an eye to whether or not a recession is at the door. But consider this: the most recent report from the research and statistical branch of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission analyzes what happened two months ago. Federal figures lag even further behind.

We learned in September that, in July, the unemployment situation in North Carolina moved ahead of the national joblessness rate for the first and only time during the current recession. The rate hit 8.1 percent; some 229,000 Tar Heels out of work.

Was it all that bad? Not really, says J.B. Archer, chairman of the Employment Security Commission. July is the traditional time for textiles to "vacation" a lot of employees for a couple of weeks; furniture and auto components also took down time attributed to softness in the auto industry and home-building industry, but rather quickly got back into gear as new models entered auto assembly lines, and lower interest rates gave a boost to construction.

And then, there were lots of college students quitting their jobs and getting ready to go back to school; they filed for unemployment pay, as did numbers of teachers and other school personnel who can qualify as out of work when they are changing overwhelming majority of those remain on unemployment less than two months; a third of them for only one or two weeks.

White Males

It is popular to promote programs for young minorities who are often depicted as the bulk of the unemployment problem, and both state and federal training programs aim toward that bloc. Actually, most of those claiming unemployment pay are white (70 percent) and male (52.7 percent).

To further confound the situation, Archer points out that it is entirely likely that some areas of the state can have full employment — everybody who really wants a job had one — while the unemployment rate runs seven percent.

place of unemployment. Educators returning to the same job don't qualify; but in making a move, large numbers are officially "out of work". Further, says Archer, a lot of people are classified as unemployed who have no intention whatsoever of taking a job.

Sure enough, came August and the unemployment rate fell to seven percent, and Archer, looking at more recent data, says coming weeks will see the rate fall even lower.

In fact, the chairman explains, the "real" unemployment rate is closer to three percent in North Carolina — that is, individuals really prepared to work, looking for a job, and having a hard time.

Numbers actually drawing jobless pay back up that observation. While August figures report nearly 200,000 "unemployed", only 71,741 persons filed claims for unemployment insurance payments, and the

Reagan On The Record

WASHINGTON — Let me paraphrase Mark Anthony, as transcribed by Mr. Shakespeare. The trivial things men say live after them, the substantive stuff is oft interred with their bones. So has it been with Ronald Reagan.

The foolish notion persists that Mr. Reagan has been avoiding the issues — that he has addressed few topics beyond the Ku Klux Klan and the theory of evolution. The notion ought to be dispelled. Agree or disagree with the gentleman as you may, he has addressed himself publicly, and usually quite explicitly, to just about every substantive issue of the day.

In the field of foreign affairs, Mr. Reagan has bluntly set forth his views on China. He would "develop and strengthen" our relationship with the People's Republic, but he also would resist any effort that might threaten the security of Taiwan. His statement of August 25 on these issues may have infuriated the masters of Peking, but it was clear, knowledgeable and to the point.

The Republican nominee has promised, if elected, to return Greece to the military command structure of NATO. He has called for fresh negotiations on the limitation of strategic arms. He has talked about Mexico, Canada, Israel, Cyprus, Japan and Western Europe. Quite properly he has refused to be drawn into speculation on what he would now do about Iran, Iraq, Libya and Afghanistan. Taken as a whole, his comments on foreign affairs reflect no profound expertise, but neither can they fairly be appraised as the statements of an ignoramus. In any event, there they are.

Not surprisingly, Mr. Reagan has devoted most of his campaign to issues here at home. My own file of Reagan speeches and statements is nowhere near complete, but it covers a political waterfront: inflation, unemployment, tax policy, budget deficits, energy development and military preparedness. Mr. Reagan has talked about a loan guarantee for the city of New York; He's for it. He has talked about registration for a future draft: He's against it.

At random, my file shows that Mr. Reagan has dealt with a policy on housing, with the needs of small business, with farm exports and auto imports, with Cuban refugees and black colleges. He has talked about welfare and education. He has spelled out his objections to the plans of "free" and "comprehensive" national health insurance proposed by his opponents.

Now and then, for my own taste at least, Mr. Reagan has been too explicit. For one example, he persists in calling for a 10 percent across-the-board reduction in tax rates. At this juncture, no one can confidently say what taxes should be reduced, or by what percentage, for the budget of 1982. A wise and prudent reduction might be 5.6 percent, or 11.2 percent, or some other figure. The economy might not permit any reduction at all.

The point I am making is that Mr. Reagan has talked his head off, and the question that troubles me is why so little seems to have sunk in.

Carter Felt A Backlash

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WARREN, Mich. — President Carter's attacks on Ronald Reagan as a racist warmonger, while helping bring back to the party fold some waverers in this blue-collar Democratic stronghold, have hardened anti-Carter sentiment among voters who backed him in 1976 and must be recaptured to carry Michigan and other pivotal states.

The president still falls short in blue-collar country. This was typified by a 30-year-old autoworker who backed Carter four years ago but has been turned off by his slashing at Reagan. "Carter's trying to slam Reagan for only one reason," he told us. "He knows he is going to lose the presidency and he's panicking."

He was one of 63 registered voters whose homes we visited in several precincts in southern Macomb County, a lower-middle-income Detroit suburb filled with autoworkers, many of them unemployed. Armed with a questionnaire prepared by Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, we obtained these voter preferences (in votes, not percentages): Carter 29, Reagan 21, Anderson 5, undecided 5, won't vote 3.

That is a substantial decline from Reagan's dizzying heights last May when we interviewed in the same precincts. He then actually led Carter in this 3-to-1 Democratic area. But even Reagan's diminished strength in precincts that Carter carried by 62 percent while losing Michigan to Gerald Ford is bad news for the White House.

One-fifth of the 29 Carter voters and nearly two-thirds of the other 34 voters called the president's campaign "mean and negative." It is this reaction that prompted Carter's admission to ABC's Barbara Walters of "mistakes" in his anti-Reagan attacks even though "I don't think I'm mean, Barbara."

Our interviews confirmed White House concern over voter reaction to Carter's tactics. A 41-year-old insurance salesman told us: "Now Carter's called Reagan a racist, I guess the next thing he'll do is go back to Reagan's Hollywood days and call him a red. Weren't they all commies out there in the '40s?"

Many pro-Carter voters, on the other hand, have been fortified by Carter's assaults on Reagan. "Reagan might end the recession real fast," said a 42-year-old housewife, "but we'd be in World War III quickly."

This suggests Carter's strategy in painting Reagan as unsafe was good politics but was overplayed, alienating the pro-Reagan and undecided voters he needs. "I don't believe anything Carter says anymore," a 41-year-old mother of three told us.

This reaction spells special trouble for Carter with supporters of Rep. John Anderson. All but one of the five Anderson backers called Carter "mean and negative." These are voters the Carter camp desperately hopes will desert Anderson between now and Nov. 4 and come to the president. That prospect now seems lessened.

Despite Reagan's decline here from last May, these voters still give him a higher rating than Carter on "leadership," on "handling the economy" and, by almost 2-to-1, on giving the country "a strong defense."

Reagan's vulnerability on the war-and-peace issue shows up in answers to the question: "Which is better able to deal with the Russians?" When we asked that in May, Reagan edged Carter narrowly. Today, despite Carter's charge that Reagan wants to launch a "nuclear arms race" and has an itchy trigger-finger, Reagan is only slightly behind Carter: 25 of our voters with an opinion named Carter, 20 named Reagan as "better able" to handle the Russians.

Reagan actually has gained support for his demand that the U.S. spend more money on defense. While Anderson backers split down the mid-

To the editor:

During the recent meeting of the Pitt County School Board, much progress was made in a teacher evaluation compromise. The teachers' own potent organization, as well as a board willing to compromise, can be thanked for the result. Many other requests were made at this meeting, three of which may be of interest to others.

The first request was for a ruling to eliminate from consideration for advisory councils, individuals related to school officials or employees, since this may obviously result in a conflict of interest. Advisory council influence what topics will or will not go before the board, as well as the vote of their school board member. The school board responded that there would be neither discussion nor consideration of the request.

Later, a request was made to fund improvements at Winterville and Stokes. Mr. Baldree, principal of Grifton Elementary, reminded the board that he had earlier made a similar request for his school and received no response. The board made no comment, but decided to fund the present requests anyway. This gives rise to the question of priorities. No one minds waiting his turn, but it becomes discouraging when one's turn never comes, and what appears to be random funding takes its place.

Finally, a request was made for evening meetings, in order that concerned citizens have the opportunity to attend outside working hours. This, too, merited little discussion and was refused consideration. After the meeting, someone commented that no one would come, even if meeting were held at night. Perhaps, but it certainly looks as if it could do no harm.

It appears that when people are well organized and make an appearance, as many of the teachers did on Tuesday, much can be accomplished. If this is true, parents have much to learn.

Strength For Today

THE FOUNDATION
"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent Word."

The Bible is of course the cornerstone of this foundation. This book was not dictated from heaven, with man acting as a mere automaton writing down what he was commanded to write. This book has grown up through exciting and tragic experiences which have comprised the history of a great people. It is the distillation of individual spiritual experiences too sacred and intimate in their nature to have been told in any way other than they are told — with bated breath, in majestic utterances, with a beauty that has held generations enthralled.

The Bible is not just another book. It is vastly more than great literature. It is the Word, the message of God.

God is speaking — actually speaking to us. How incredible that so many people should be indifferent, inattentive, even jeering and hostile! — Elisha Douglass

A Powerful Independent Sector

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — You are familiar with the business sector. You are aware of the government sector. But you probably do not even recognize this sector of American life, or if you do, cannot name it.

It is one of the largest influences in American life, but as one commentator said, some of the simplest statistics about it are not collected, scholars rarely study it, teachers seldom teach about it.

It consists of a vast array of vital entities such as colleges, churches, voluntary hospitals, philanthropic foundations, symphony societies and research centers devoted to the general welfare.

It's members are private and nonprofit, but they operate for the general welfare and spend more than $80 billion a year. And they depend on donations of 50 million Americans to continue their work.

This is the independent sector. "We believe passionately in it," said Brian O'Connell. It is, he said, a creative force, an outlet for free expression, a voluntary movement, a uniquely American development, and an alternative to business and government, the two other sectors.

He fears, however, that it is often overlooked, as unknown in some respects as the dark side of the moon, although in his view it not only represents the American people but IS the American people.

To be overlooked is not just difficult to understand, he comments, but injurious too, particularly since institutions of the independent sector depend on contributions for health and survival.

In the past decade, he said, giving is down 10 percent, and at least part of the reason is a consequence of the sector's poor recognition. O'Connell is president of the six-month-old Independent Sector — the organization and the sector share the name — so named by members who seek to be more clearly categorized as the third sector of society.

"Business isn't the guilty one, said O'Connell, former director of the Mental Health Association. Last year corporations gave a record $2.3 billion, exceeding foundation contributions for the first time.

He doesn't place blame directly on individuals either, because they continue to provide 90 percent of charitable and philanthropic giving. In fact, O'Connell declares, neither does he blame government.

Still, he concedes, the federal government has created a problem, one that is related to the third sector's lack of recognition. It was done inadvertently, he said. The intent was to help, not hinder.

The source of the damage appears to be the Internal Revenue Service code relating to charitable, tax-deductible contributions. Six times in the past eight years the standard deduction has been increased, until it is now $3,400 for a married couple, compared with $1,000 in 1970.

Itemization is better for those who depend on contributions, according to O'Connell. He refers to a survey showing itemizers contribute three times as much to charity as those who take the standard deduction.

Now, says O'Connell, almost every independent sector organization, large or small, community-based or nationwide, religious or secular, "is faced with the prospect of having to curtail its activities." Increases in the standard deduction, he maintains, parallel the percentage declines in giving. But small percentage declines, he emphasizes, can have amounted to hundreds of millions of dollars.

And so, as one of its first pieces of business, the Independent Sector — the foundations, the corporations that give, and the major voluntary organizations — are seeking a change in the tax law.

They are supporting two bills, S.219 and H.R. 1785, which would authorize taxpayers to itemize and deduct charitable contributions regardless of whether they also take the standard deduction.

As O'Connell sees it, nobody in government really intended to deprive or endanger the independent sector, and the strong support the bill has received in Congress suggests that others too feel the same way.

To O'Connell, who has spent a lifetime in the independent sector, it means more than the preservation of existing institutions.

"One of our most basic jobs" he says, "is to keep open the freedoms that lead to new causes."

Oil From the Gulf

What if all oil shipments stopped coming out of the Persian Gulf? Many world leaders have been thinking seriously about that question since fighting broke out between Iraq and Iran two weeks ago. The Persian Gulf, which Arabs call the Arabian Gulf, covers about 100,000 square miles. Besides Iran and Iraq, other countries bordering the gulf include Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Oman and the United Arab Emirates. Persian Gulf countries supply about 12 percent of the oil used in North America, 58 percent of Western Europe's oil, and 76 percent of the oil used in Japan. The importance of Persian Gulf oil has made the dispute between Iran and Iraq an international concern.

Sharp Increase In N.C. Crime Report

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dramatic increases in the number of reported rapes were recorded in North Carolina's five largest cities during the first half of 1980, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said Wednesday.

Robert Pence, FBI director for North Carolina, said he believes that one reason for the larger number of rapes is that more rapes are being reported.

"There have probably been a lot of rapes all along that simply were not being reported," Pence said. "In the nation and in the state, rape victims are treated differently now — with much more sympathy. It encourages rape victims to step forward and report the crime."

The number of reported rapes went up by 92.3 percent in Greensboro and 60.9 percent in Charlotte. In Raleigh, rape was up 47.8 percent and 20.5 percent in Winston-Salem. Durham had the smallest increase in rape at 3.3 percent.

Nationally, rape was up 12 percent.

The FBI said the overall crime rate in Winston-Salem decreased by 7 percent compared with the first half of 1979. Durham's crime rate dropped by 6 percent.

Greensboro had the largest increase in crime in the state with 17.8 percent.

Nationwide, crime was up by 10 percent. Violent crimes, including rape and murder, also rose by 10 percent.

The crime rate was up 10.9 percent in Charlotte for the first half of the year. Raleigh had a slight increase of 0.7 percent.

Although rape cases increased in all five cities, other violent crimes, such as murder and aggravated assault, decreased or showed only small increases.

Pence said he was pleased with the state figures.

"For instance, Durham, where the crime increase has been the highest in the state for the past two years, the crime rate fell," Pence said. "That shows citizens and law enforcement officers are working together. And the figures show it works."

The murder rate was down in three of the five cities, dropping 44 percent in Raleigh, 36.4 percent in Winston-Salem and 44 percent in Durham. Greensboro's murder rate was up 28.6 percent, and Charlotte's rate rose by 10.7 percent.

Robbery was down 5.5 percent in Greensboro, 16.5 percent in Winston-Salem and 2.9 percent in Charlotte.

Robbery was up 8.5 percent in Durham and 13.7 percent in Raleigh.

Burglary was up 18.6 percent in Charlotte, 16.5 percent in Greensboro and 5.2 percent in Winston-Salem. It dropped 14.2 percent in Raleigh and 12.4 percent in Durham. Aggravated-assault cases were up 16.5 percent in Charlotte, 11.7 percent in Greensboro and 7.8 percent in Winston-Salem. Assault was down 15.1 percent in Raleigh and 27 percent in Durham.

Larceny was up 6.7 percent in Charlotte, 3 percent in Durham, 20.6 percent in Greensboro, 7.8 percent in Raleigh and down 13.6 percent in Winston-Salem.

Car theft rose 9.7 percent in Charlotte, 7.1 percent in Durham and 5.1 percent in Greensboro. Car thefts dropped in Raleigh by 9.8 percent and in Winston-Salem by 7.4 percent.

Two answers suggest themselves. One is that the public isn't listening to much of anything this fall, and the other is that the nature of television reduces serious statements to so many bumper stickers.

Much as I hate to acknowledge it, as a newspaperman, I suppose it is true that most persons get most of their national news from the morning and evening TV. Unavoidably, they get mighty little — 30 seconds here, two minutes there, a snappy quote, a few ringside teachings from the school of lets you and him fight. This is not the fault of the TV producers, reporters and anchor-men. They are prisoners of the stopwatch, trapped in the inexorable coils of the clock.

Mr. Carter's campaign suffers from the same handicaps, but Mr. Carter has incumbency working for him. Besides, we know pretty well where Mr. Carter stands on the issues that matter. True, he sometimes does not stand, but merely wobbles. Even so, his record speaks for him. Mr. Reagan has no such national record. In thousands of words of speeches and statements, he is trying his best to cultivate one. The newspapers are covering him more extensively than the networks, but if all we hear about Mr. Reagan is what we get between the weather report and the Dow-Jones average, he has a hard row to hoe.

die, voters supporting Reagan favor increased defense spending by 8-to-1 and Carter backers by almost 5-to-1. Higher defense spending is a key Reagan campaign pledge, even though he has treated it gingerly in his campaign.

That conservative Republican Reagan continues strong in this Democratic autoworker heartland, depressed by the economy and anxious over the future of the country, is a portent for Nov. 4. If Reagan holds this support in hundreds of similar worker habitations across the country, he will win the election — helped by the president's "meanness" backlash.

Governor Addresses Area Chamber Of Commerce

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt told members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce yesterday that "Small business is literally the backbone of our economy," with 80 percent of the jobs, nationwide, provided by small businesses.

Hunt said to chamber members at a "Meet the Candidate" session sponsored by the chamber. Earlier in the day, Hunt held a press conference at which he distributed a position paper on agriculture. The governor also attended the meeting of the North Tar River Fellowship Club here last night.

"I want to commend you," Hunt said, "for living in Greenville. If there's one area ready to take off...with a tremendous, fantastic future, it's this area."

Small businesses make "tremendous contributions to our economy," Hunt emphasized, and are, "literally the backbone of our economy.

"When a company establishes new operations in our state, a whole chain of economic activity is set in motion. We estimate that for every new job directly created by our industrial development program, there will be two additional jobs from support industries that service the new facility. This, of course, benefits existing small business and provides opportunities for new small businesses to be formed."

Hunt said, "I strongly believe that business, government and consumers must work together to help improve the quality of life for all our citizens."

"That is one reason why I created the Small Business Advocacy Council in May...to find out ways that government can work with small businesses in North Carolina. I want to give small businessmen a voice in government."

Pointing out that the council was meeting in Greenville, yesterday, Hunt said, "I have charged this council to be a vigorous advocate for any changes in state statutes, rules or regulations that it thinks will benefit small businesses."

According to Hunt, the changes might include abolishing or amending existing statutes or rules, or proposing new legislation or agency programs. "And I want this council to publicize existing programs that we have to help small business, but perhaps are not as well known."

The governor noted that it appears that, "more educational programs," are needed to help both employees and managers of small businesses. "I want the council to study that possibility."

He continued, "I am also strongly interested in promoting more exporting by businesses in the state. The potential for exporting North Carolina products is tremendous...and not just tobacco, but in a great array of fields."

Hunt also suggested that the council should look at the state's tax structure, as well as the government's procurement practices and, "examine the possibility of government competition with small business."

"We want to work with the small business community and make it easier for them to grow and prosper."

"Small business is such a vital part of our economy, and it deserves more of a voice in state government."

During a question and answer period, Hunt emphasized, "Eastern North Carolina has tremendous potential," and told the chamber members, "you have a heavy responsibility as business people to help us achieve that potential."

He said that efforts to increase productivity in government are underway. "We're working hard to cut down in growth in government. The fewer people we have to regulate, the fewer regulations you will have."

Hunt added that training programs are under way to, "make those people we've got work more efficiently."

Responding to another question, the governor pointed out that the North Carolina Alternative Energy Commission has been established to develop alternate forms of energy, while studies are underway to determine the possibility of giving tax credits for passive solar homes, and establishing a major re-

Atmosphere On Pluto Detected

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Scientists have detected a thin atmosphere of methane on the distant planet Pluto, and they say the discovery discredits the theory that Pluto is not really a planet at all, but some other type of body, such as a comet.

"We feel that the recent discovery of (Pluto's) satellite and the present detection of an atmosphere will do much to enhance its image and establish Pluto as a more regular and respectable member of the planetary community," said Uwe Fink of the University of Arizona.

Pluto's moon was discovered in 1978.

Some scientists have speculated that Pluto was a comet or an asteroid, or even a runaway satellite of Neptune.

Fink, an associate professor with the university's Lunar and Planetary Laboratory, disclosed the discovery of an atmosphere Wednesday during the annual meeting of the Division for Planetary Sciences of the American Astronomical Society in Tucson.

"Pluto is the last planet for which the presence or absence of an atmosphere was in question," Fink said.

The tiny planet's atmosphere is composed of methane gas and is about 1-300th as dense as the total Earth atmosphere, he said. Current data suggests the presence of no other gases in Pluto's atmosphere.

"It is the least dense atmosphere in the solar system, but it's not too different from the atmosphere of Mars," Fink said.

Researchers discovered the atmosphere after observations in May with a special light detector attached to a spectrometer designed and built by the lab. The spectrometer, which measures light waves, was mounted on the university's 61-inch telescope.

Scientists were looking for methane on Pluto because atmospheres of "all the major planets contain a lot of methane. So if there was an atmosphere on Pluto, then methane was a likely candidate."

"There's the possibility that the atmosphere exists only when Pluto is closest to the sun and then freezes out to a surface methane frost when Pluto is farther away," Fink said.

But because Pluto takes 248 years to revolve once around the sun, it won't be far enough away for astronomers to check the hypothesis through observations for 100 years, he said.

Pluto's orbit brings it to within about 2.8 billion miles of the sun at its closest point and 4.6 billion at its farthest.

trofitting program designed to put, "solar into old homes."

North Carolina Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham also attended the chamber meeting, presided over by Howard Wilson, chairman of the Meet the Candidate task force.

Will Again Ask For Hotel Funds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte City Council will request federal funds to help build a downtown hotel in the second request the council has submitted to the Department of Housing and Urban Development this year.

The council voted Monday to submit a plan for a $35 million, 420-room hotel. The proposal calls for a $4.8 million HUD grant to the city.

A proposal to build a $68 million, 524-room convention center is already before HUD, which deferred action on the proposal until next year.

Three N.C. Congressmen File Financial Reports

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Three North Carolina congressmen have filed campaign financial reports listing more than $30,000 each in contributions from political action committees.

Democratic Rep. Charlie Rose, seeking re-election in the 7th Congressional District, led the list of reports filed Wednesday with $44,950 from political action committees.

Two other Democrats, Reps. W.G. Hefner and Stephen Neal, also topped the $30,000 mark in PAC contributions.

In his report, Rose said he had received contributions from 30 PACs during the quarter ending Sept. 30.

Rose listed contributions of $56,827 for the year and spending of $21,622.92. Rose shared his income with other Democrats, listing contributions of $1,000 each to Neal in the 5th District, to 6th District Rep. L. Richardson Preyer and to 11th District Rep. V. Lamar Ger Jr. of Asheville.

Among the contributions were $2,000 from the Dairymen Inc.'s North Carolina PAC, $500 from MacDonald's PAC and $1,000 each from North Carolina dental and medical PACs.

Rose's opponent, Republican Vivian Wright, reported contributions of $10,864, expenses of $12,191 and a $3,000 loan from herself to the campaign.

Hefner's opponent's report had not been received by late Wednesday.

Wednesday was the deadline for the last federal campaign finance report due before the Nov. 4 election. Copies also are filed with the state campaign reporting office, but reports for some candidates — including both running for the U.S. Senate — were not filed by late Wednesday.

In the 4th District, Democratic Rep. Ike Andrews reported receiving $39,376.29 in contributions, including $22,500 listed from PACs. Andrews also listed a $2,500 payment to his campaign from himself for "reimbursement for 1978 contributions from various political action committees."

His opponent, Republican Thurman Hogan, reported raising $27,473 and spending a slightly larger amount. Of his contributions, $8,000 was a loan from his finances, $8,630 was from Republican committees and $3,850 was from other PACs.

Among the other reports filed were:

— 1st District Democratic Rep. Walter Jones, who is unopposed, reported raising $49,997.50 this year.

— 3rd District Republican candidate Larry Parker reported raising $7,815.79.

— 10th District Democratic candidate James Icehour reported raising $9,268.

Democratic Sen. Robert Morgan's campaign staff said Morgan had spent $393,452 in his bid for re-election. Contributions to his campaign were listed at $353,151.

Aides said a report for Republican John East, who is challenging Morgan, was not ready.

Womens Day

Women's Day will be observed at the Nazarene Church of Christ on Eighth Street, Sunday.

The morning speaker will be Shirley Atkinson of Holy Mission of Greenville, with the Joyful Singers of Ayden, providing the music.

The speaker for the 3 p.m. service will be Mrs. Mattie Ann Smith of St. Rest Holiness Church of Winterville, with the St. Rest's choir number two.

A queen's contest will be held during the afternoon service and Miss Nazarene of 1981 will be crowned.

Contestants for the contest include Phyllis Streeter, Dallas Davis, Louisdell Powers and Bessie Lee.

Proceeds from the contest will go to the church's building fund.

The Rev. E. B. Williams said the public is invited to the services.

Political action committees operate under federal law, and many are funded by contributions from corporation employees.

Neal's report showed that he had received $89,200.60 for the year and had spent $55,648.38. He reported contributions of $33,143.38 from PACs and another $8,500 from political party committees. No report was filed Wednesday with the state office by Republican opponent Anne Bagnal.

Hefner reported raising $61,347 and spending $35,338. Hefner reported receiving $40,300 from political action or political party commit-

Association Names Officers

The annual meeting of District 14 of the North Carolina Association of Educational Office Personnel was held here Tuesday, with members of the Pitt County-Greenville City AEOP hosting the session.

President Marion Cross of the Edenton-Chowan Schools presided.

Officers elected for the coming year included: president Marion Cross, vice-president Myrtle Rivers (Elizabeth City State University), and secretary-treasurer Mary Louise McGee (Hyde County Schools).

State AEOP president Nettie Hair attended the meeting.

Drought Sneaked In, And Vital Lake Has Dried Up

OLD TAPPAN, N.J. (AP) — Of all of nature's ways of teaching humility to man, the most insidious is drought. Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, floods, tornadoes, these mighty menaces announce themselves grandly, call attention to themselves. Drought does not. Drought, no less a sneak, is a sneak.

It sneaked up on this area recently. A confused, stunned 14-year-old ran home with the news.

"Our lake is dry. Lake Tappan is dry. I walked all the way across it. It was really ugly. Kind of scary, too."

In the world of a 14-year-old, a big lake, in this case a reservoir, has a special place. It is clearly the dominant feature of his slice of the planet, not so much a source of water as a place of adventure.

In all his young years of exploration and wonder, the lake had never failed him and now it was dry, and there had been no warning of that, and he seemed to feel personally betrayed. Scary.

But, then, drought is personal because everyone is individually vulnerable. There is no huddling together in a storm shelter, no stacking sandbags along a levee. Only nature can stop a drought, when nature is good and ready.

The National Weather Service keeps a table called the Palmer Index Chart to rank the intensity of drought across America.

The drought in this area is graded "severe," as bad as the drought that crept up on Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and much of the southeast, not as bad as the "extreme" drought suffered in Wyoming, Montana and the Dakotas.

Even words like "extreme" and "severe" do not describe the creeping evil of a drought. Only when a boy's own lake dries up before his eyes does the scary ugliness sink in.

The boy's father recalls a wicked drought in Texas during the 1950s. Without alarm or siren or outcry the ground simply dried up, and with it many people's lives.

He remembers ranchers gathered over coffee at a cafe, speaking in tones usually heard in a funeral parlor.

They were discussing the use of a blowtorch as a farm implement. Their need was to burn the spines off the prickly pear cactus so the cattle would have something, anything, to eat. It had come to that.

Every Bogart fan knows what the real treasure of Sierra Madre was. It was water, not gold.

Drought robs man of that treasure, drop by missed drop, without anybody noticing, until it happens that one awful morning the lake is dry.

The governor landed his helicopter on that cracked lake bed the other day to be photographed there, to tell people to pay attention, to ration their water, the treasure is gone.

He never had to do that, of course, when a hurricane hit this coast. Hurricanes are out in the open. They don't sneak.

Apparently his message got through. That 14-year-old's sister, who is nine, appeared downstairs in her bathrobe the other night carrying a tumbler.

"This is the water I used to brush my teeth," she said. "Do you have a plant I can pour it on?"

Maybe it takes eyes young enough to view a lake in wonder to realize how scary it is when it is no longer there.

WALKING ON WATER — These three youngsters would be under 15 feet of water in Lake Tappan reservoir if normal rainfall conditions existed in their area of northern Nedw Jersey. A drought has completely dried up this 3.2 billion gallon reservoir. (AP Laserphoto)

'Sting' Had Funny Side For Lawmen

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) — Undercover cops ran a successful "sting" here despite some comic quirks in their year-long operation. They had to dispose of a truck of hijacked bananas, evade fellow policemen as they drove stolen cars and turn down an invitation to join the Chamber of Commerce.

"Operation Yellowjacket" netted $1.25 million in stolen goods that the agents bought for a mere $83,000 while posing as fences at a Pelham storefront. Dozens of people were arrested in pre-dawn raids Wednesday.

TRIO IN REHEARSAL...Violinist Rodney Schmidt, pianist Paul Tardiff and cellist Selma Gokcen rehearse the Beethoven Triple Concerto for their October 17 appearance with the ECU Symphony Orchestra. With the orchestra score at the rear of the piano is conductor Robert Hause. The performance is set for 8 p.m. in Wright Auditorium. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

As suspects were being processed at Westchester County police headquarters, Inspector Salvatore D'lorio described the hazards and hilarity his men encountered in the streets.

Once, an officer bought a stolen car, slid into the driver's seat and casually shook a folded towel lying next to him, D'lorio said. A grenade rolled out onto the floor.

The startled agent dove out of the car, which rolled down the street without a driver. The grenade did not explode.

Most of the fenced items were stolen cars, checks, jewelry and furs, but police also were offered 11 women from a pimp's stable and the services of a group of women whose specialty was pilfering meat from supermarkets.

"We could have bought anything," said Police Commissioner Thomas Deane.

The sting, funded by $300,000 in federal money, also required the acting talents of the officers.

On one occasion, agents were offered a stolen electronic organ and demanded to see how it worked. As one suspect played the organ, three others danced and sang on the sidewalk and the cops joined in.

D'lorio said one unhappy agent had to tell a man that his dog had died because it was tossed out a car window by car thieves as they made their getaway.

The agents had no trouble finding suspects willing to sell them stolen property, and news of the fencing spread "by word of mouth," D'lorio said. But the agents ran into trouble from other cops who didn't know about the operation, he said.

When they purchased a hijacked truck with a load of bananas, the agents wanted to return the fruit but couldn't tell local police without blowing their cover.

So they settled for an anonymous call reporting that the bananas had been found.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Body Identified As A Missing Youth

ATLANTA (AP) — The body of a black youth found in 1979 has been identified as one of the missing children being sought in a massive search for a child killer by Atlanta police.

The identification this week of the body of Alfred James Evans, 14, of Atlanta, who has been missing since July 25, 1979, apparently brings to nine the number of children under age 15 killed in Atlanta or south suburban East Point in the last 15 months. But investigators said the cause of death has not been determined.

Smith was last seen July 20, when he left to go roller skating. He was the first of the known victims.

MEETING
Overeaters Anonymous will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Tammy's Day Care Center on Cedar Lane.

All finesses are not equal — some are necessary, while others should be avoided like the plague. Unfortunately, when you play the hand, there are no visible signposts to guide you. You have to learn from experience which is which.

The bidding was quite normal. South might have doubled three hearts, but since there seemed to be reasonable chance of running partner's diamond suit, his choice of three no trump at equal vulnerability cannot be seriously faulted.

West dutifully led his singleton heart and East saw that there was no reason to duck this trick — if West by any chance had another heart, then declarer had started with the bare queen-jack. So he took the ace and king of hearts and continued with a low heart, clearing the suit.

There was no way declarer could come to nine tricks without utilizing dummy's diamonds. The natural way

Area People On Committee

Les Fuchs of Greenville and Mrs. Betty Speir of Bethel, have been named to the Carter-Mondale North Carolina Steering Committee by the Carter-Mondale North Carolina Re-Election Committee.

Re-election committee chairman Wallace Hyde, who made the announcement, said, "these steering committee members will play key roles in the campaign," and, "will devote the majority of their time to supplementing the efforts of our campaign co-chairs and also serve as Carter-Mondale spokespersons in their areas of the state."

REPORT CARDS

Spokesmen at Rose High School said this morning that report cards for the first six weeks of the school term will go out today.

They added that report cards for the other schools in the city system are scheduled to be given to students today also.

TO PREACH

The Rev. Charles Tyner will preach Sunday at Sycamore Hill Missionary Baptist Church at 11 a.m. Deacon Clarence Bradley invites the public to attend.

Workshop Is Planned

A Futures Market Workshop will be held Wednesday October 22 and Thursday October 23 at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office in Greenville.

The two sessions will begin at 4 p.m. and end at 9 p.m. with an hour break for dinner. The workshop will focus on how to use forward contracting to help make more profitable management decisions and reduce the risk of adverse price changes during the production and storage process.

Videotaped presentations, practical exercises and handout materials will be used in the workshop, to be conducted by Mike Regans and Sam Uzzell, agricultural extension agents. Dr. Everett Nichols, extension grain marketing specialist and Dr. John Hanson, extension livestock marketing specialist, will lead the discussion and answer any questions on the material during the last two hours of the session on October 23.

Registration for the workshop will be limited to 20 people and a registration fee of $8 is required to cover the cost of the two meals. To register for further information, contact the office at 758-1196.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 17, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to sit back and observe the progress you have made, and to make plans to have even greater progress in the days ahead. You have good opportunity to express your talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Analyze your position with friends and know which to retain and which to let go out of your life for best results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Conditions in the business world may appear strange now, but later can turn to your benefit. Be more self-assured.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't rush into a new interest before making a careful study. Take no risks with

Schools Observing Nat'l Lunch Week

A Mexican fiesta today for students in kindergarten through the third grade, highlighted National School Lunch Week in the Greenville City school system.

As part of the fiesta, students were encouraged to wear Mexican costumes. Kindergarten students this week have colored pictures of carrots, cabbages, fried chicken and oranges, while first grade students have colored pictures of various fruits. Second graders have colored different fish, and third grade students have drawn and colored their favorite foods.

Winners in the coloring and drawing contests include:

Third Street School;

your reputation at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Come to a better understanding with the one you love. A new contact can bring many benefits your way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Resolve a problem you have with an associate and cement better relations with this person. Be wary of newcomers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to finish regular routines before engaging in amusements. An argument with a friend is not serious, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't try to be forceful with others, or you could regret it later. Don't neglect a worthy friend of long standing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be sure to keep promises made to family members. A new project needs more study before going ahead with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more objective in dealing with others and get better results. Use extreme caution in motion and avoid possible accident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan how to save more money instead of spending more than you can afford. Show others you have wisdom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A time to be calm and serene while going after a personal aim. Be sure to use your money wisely at all times today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Taking on a martyr complex will gain you nothing at this time. Quietly get things done in a sure and positive manner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who has much ability in scientific matters, so send to right schools where your progeny can learn modern methods and gain good background for life's work. A most unusual profession could emerge here.

The closely watched average has not closed that high since Jan. 11, 1977, when it reached 976.65.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production rose 1 percent in September for the second monthly gain after six months of decline.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income rose 0.9 percent in September for the second largest monthly gain of the year. It said personal consumption expenditures grew at a slightly smaller rate, 0.7 percent, while savings increased.

The U.S. recovery seems to be coming at a time when a number of other major countries are sliding into recession, the Conference Board noted in a report that said the economies of West Germany, Japan and Italy are declining. Britain is already in a major recession.

Oil stocks, bolstered by expectations the Iran-Iraq war will reduce oil supplies, again led the rise. Gulf Oil was up 3/4 at 47 1/2, Mobil added 1/4 to 81 and Occidental climbed 3/4 to 33 1/4.

Texaco, which announced what it called encouraging results of a North Sea oil well, was up 1/2 to 39 1/2 as the volume leader on the Big Board.

Teleprompter, which has agreed to be acquired by Westinghouse for $38 a share, rose 5/8 to 34 in the first trading since Monday, when the company asked for a halt in trading. Westinghouse rose 1/2 to 28 1/4.

Big Board volume totaled 30.87 million shares in the first two hours, compared to 18.94 million at the same point in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index, which set a record Wednesday, rose .45 to 77.69. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index, also already at a record high, was up 4.03 at 365.14.

Schmidt's Eighth-Inning Double Sparks Philadelphia To 2-0 Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt stood at home plate, his bat over his shoulder and his body twisting. A little English might have kept that ball in fair territory, he thought.

It curved, maybe five or 10 feet foul, arching high over the foul pole down the left-field line, and instead of a home run, Schmidt had a meaningless foul ball. They call it a long strike.

"I thought it might have a chance, but it hooked just like my golf drives," Schmidt said of his fifth-inning drive. "I know it doesn't mean anything, but I think that foul ball might have helped me get going."

When Schmidt, the Philadelphia Phillies' slugging third baseman, got going, he sent the Kansas City Royals home with a handful of woes. Schmidt's eighth-inning double drove in the winning run, and the Phillies downed the Royals 6-4 Wednesday night for a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven 1980 World Series.

The Series moves to Kansas City for games on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, if necessary. The Royals face the unenviable task of rebounding against a team that has scored 13 runs in the first two games of the Series, having won 7-6 on Tuesday, and they may have to face it without All-Star third baseman George Brett.

Brett had to be removed from the game in the sixth inning when an inflammation of his hemorrhoids, a problem that began only about a week ago, started to bother him too severely. Royals Manager Jim Frey said he was not certain of Brett's status for Friday.

"We'll have to wait," Frey said. "He has two days and it's a day-to-day thing. We hope he's better."

The Phillies started left-hander Steve Carlton in Game 2, a 24-game winner during the regular season, "Lefty" had struggled in the playoffs against Houston. In the fourth game, his second start, he went only 5-3 innings, his shortest stint of the season. He couldn't keep his pitches around the plate.

Wednesday night, the silent left-hander was in trouble again. In eight innings, he gave up 10 hits, six walks and three earned runs with 10 strikeouts.

"He's done a lot of pitching in the last six months," Schmidt said. "But that shows you that Steve, even at his worst, can keep us in any game."

The Phillies got off to a 2-0 lead in the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Manny Trillo and a run-scoring single by Larry Bowa.

Kansas City got one run back in the sixth when Amos Otis singled, advanced to second when John Wathan walked and scored on a throwing error by Trillo on a high chopper by Willie Aikens.

The Royals scored three times in the seventh. Carlton walked the bases full, and Otis slugged a two-run double, followed by a sacrifice fly by Wathan. The score was 4-2 and Philadelphia's "Comeback Gang" went to work again.

They had to come back from a 4-0 deficit to win the World Series opener. They trailed at one time or another in all five of their National League Championship Series games with Houston.

"It seems like we're waiting for the other team to score first," Phils first baseman Pete Rose said. "We know we're going to have a big inning, but you can't keep waiting for that."

Philadelphia's big inning came in the eighth. Royals' lefty Larry Gura, 18-10 during the season, had retired the first 13 Phillies he faced, but Frey had to yank him after six innings when he complained that he had run out of gas.

"When he came off the mound after his last inning, he said he didn't feel he had his fastball anymore," Frey said. Enter Dan Quisenberry, 33

Relieved Rose On Road Again, Faces Upset-Minded Bertie

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School, after losing its number one state ranking and nearly losing its unbeaten status last week, turns its eyes toward Bertie Senior High School this week, in a game that shouldn't be that great a test for the Rampants.

But one never knows. "You know, we haven't won at Bertie the last two times we've been over there," Rose coach Dave Bumgarner said.

The Rampants will be on the road for the second straight week, coming off a 7-6 last minute victory over Beddingfield's Bruins last Friday night. That score cost them their number one ranking on the Associated Press poll as they fell into the number two position this week.

The Beddingfield game was one in which the Rampants outplayed their opponent from ten-yard-line to ten-yard-line, but couldn't push it in, fumbling three times inside the ten, and twice within the five.

It was only a late mistake by Beddingfield, which fumbled the ball away at its own 13 that allowed Rose to finally push it over.

"It was a continuous lack of concentration in the area where you can't afford to make mistakes," Bumgarner said of the game. "We were not intense enough when we got down there, realizing that we had to get six points on the board."

The coach felt that the Rose offense did what was asked of it most of the way. "We ran the ball well, although we didn't get as many yards as I'd hoped we would. We did a lot of good things in the game, but not what counts most — touchdowns.

"I've also got to be very pleased with Scott Taylor's kicking," Bumgarner added, noting that his kick was what won the game.

The Rampants fumbled eight times in the game, and that worries Bumgarner. "We work hard on trying to eliminate things like that," he said. "But once you get on the field, it's an entirely different situation. We run a high risk offense, too. But you can preach and preach and still not prevent these youngsters from fumbling. If anybody does have a cure for it, I wish they'd let me know."

Have the Rampants learned anything from their close escape?

"We've had good practices so far this week. But I don't know if that was because of the win or because we didn't have school Monday and Tuesday," he added.

While Rose will be facing

Bertie, there may be some problem of looking ahead at Wilson Fike, or maybe even looking sideways at the Fike-Beddingfield game. Fike is still, like Rose, unbeaten in league play, and is the next opponent after Bertie.

"The Beddingfield-Fike game is important. I think Beddingfield is the best team we've seen so far this fall. Their offense did a good job at the start, and I don't know why they didn't continue with it."

"I'll admit that we were scared of them. Then, too, we were 5-0, we were set for a bad

Being on the winning end of a score is a nice thing. Being on the winning end after three straight losses is even better. Being on the winning end after three straight losses and having to overcome great odds is just a little more icing on the cake.

"I'm extremely happy about our comeback Saturday against Richmond," East Carolina coach Ed Emory said. "Especially when it's a comeback like we had to have against them."

"But," he continued, "we really felt like we shouldn't have had to make a comeback."

Emory pointed out at his weekly press conference Wednesday that the Pirates averaged eight yards a play during the first half of the 24-22 victory. "We just stopped ourselves. We had two fumbles, two holding penalties and two or three illegal procedure penalties. I'm very disappointed that we didn't have more than seven points."

As it was, the Pirates were down 15-7 at halftime, and very shortly thereafter, were down 22-7, but roared back in the final period to score 17 points and win the game.

"We lost our poise late in the period. With about two minutes to go, we went back to punt, and had a kick blocked out of the end zone for a safety. One of the linemen thought he saw something different and blocked away from his touchdowns.

Rick Scoppe

Conley Gains Volleyball Title

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — Backyard volleyball it wasn't. D.H. Conley and Southwest Edgecombe take their volleyball seriously, very seriously. Just how serious was displayed Wednesday afternoon.

After losing the opening game, 15-9, Conley rallied to sweep the next two, 15-5, 15-9, to defeat Cougars in a one-match playoff for the Eastern Carolina Conference championship.

For Conley, which wound up in a first-place tie with Southwest at the end of the regular season, it was a third straight ECC title.

The win, which left Conley at 15-1 on the season, moved the Valkyries into the district playoffs where they will face the Coastal Conference champ.

The date for the first-round match has not been set but it must be played before Oct. 20.

"I should say I'm happy," D.H. Conley's first-year coach Martha McCaskill after the victory. "We lost five of six starters off last year's team and we're just lucky to win."

"This is a good group of girls. What else can I say? They got in there and worked hard at practice all year and it paid off."

For Farmville, a win is crucial if the Jaguars hope to have a chance of winning their fifth straight ECC crown. The Jaguars, 4-2 overall and 4-1 in the ECC, have already lost to Aycock and can not afford another league loss.

The Firebirds still must play the Falcons, with whom they are tied at 4-0 for the league lead, and a therefore a loss would not drop them out of the race.

"This is not a do-or-die situation," Pinner said. "We've got four tough games in a row. Farmville Central has kind of slipped into the picture here of late. They're peaking at the right time."

But so may Southern Nash. Two weeks ago the Firebirds walloped previously unbeaten North Lenoir, 70-0. Last week they had an off-date, which allowed the Firebirds time to return to reality.

"We got a real fine effort both mentally and physically from our team," Pinner said. "But we were so high that I'm glad we had this past week off. It gave them time to get their feet back on the ground."

"I've talked to people who are suppose to know and they say it usually takes about 10 days to come down from that type situation," Pinner said. "Well, in this game you have only seven days. We've got four tough games in a row now and so we don't want to get as emotionally high for Farmville."

Instead, Pinner would just as soon see his offensive line do what they've done so well of late: open holes for Anthony Crumel, the league's leading rusher with 862 yards. Crumel, who has scored 10 touchdowns this year, is complemented nicely in the Firebird veer attack by Elvis Perry, who has rushed for over 300 yards this season.

"Last year, we rushed for over 2,000 yards and passed for over 900," Pinner said. "This year, we even more of a run oriented club. We've had good success with it this year."

The Jaguars have their own outstanding runner in Roger Joyner, who has gained 821 yards this season. "They're different type of runners," Pinner said. "Joyner's got good speed and likes to get outside. Anthony's more of a dive player. I think Anthony's longest run for a

For a time Wednesday, however, it appeared all the work might not pay off with the league crown. In the opening game, Conley managed to get within two once, at 7-5, and three once, 11-8, before watching the Cougars finally win by six.

The second game was all Conley. The Valkyries jumped out to a 11-1 behind the serving of Mary Mitchell, who scored nine straight points, and then hung around long enough to win by 10.

Then came the third game, perhaps the best of the day. Southwest jumped out to a 3-0 lead but Conley tied it and then went ahead, 7-5. DHC's Sherri Waters then served up three straight points to give the Valkyries a 10-5 advantage.

SWE closed to within two, 11-9, but got no closer as Mitchell served for the final four points to give Conley the title.

"Our subs really came through for us today," said McCaskill, whose Vikings had two starters — senior Tammy Streeter and junior Cheryl Tyson — leave with injuries during the match. "They had played some early in the season but lately, with our tough schedule, they hadn't had that much playing time. But they got in there and did the job."

Title Action

Two Southwest Edgecombe players hit at the ball as an unidentified D.H. Conley player attempts to score during the Eastern Carolina Conference's playoff action yesterday at North Pitt. The two schools tied for the regular season title, but Conley won the right to represent the league winning the playoff, 2 games to 1. (Reflector Photo by Rick Scoppe) touchdown this year is 11 yards. He's had some runs of 40, 45 yards, but he hasn't really broken a real long one yet."

If either team has a decided edge it may be in the kicking game, where Southern Nash boasts of punter George Hardison, who is averaging over 40 yards a kick. Farmville, on the other hand, is averaging just over 30 yards a punt.

"The kicking game could make the difference," Pinner said. "I think we stack up pretty even with Farmville and that may make the difference. I may be wrong, though, and we could go over to Farmville and play like a bunch of clowns."

That, however, is doubtful on either side.

Collins, Lucky To Be Playing, Aids In Win

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

Doug Collins isn't playing with reckless abandon, but he is playing. And that is something of a minor medical miracle.

The veteran Philadelphia guard popped in 18 points Wednesday night to help the 76ers to a 119-111 National Basketball Association victory over the New Jersey Nets.

Collins, who tore ligaments in his left knee just before the 1979-80 playoffs, got back into the Philadelphia lineup about half a season sooner than the doctors who diagnosed his injury and operated on him had predicted.

"I just do what I can do best. I'm just thankful I can play," the 29-year-old Collins said softly. "It took a lot of hard work and a lot of prayers were said."

He shot mostly from the outside, depending on jump shots from the baseline and rarely penetrating the thick of the battle. In earlier days, Collins was known for playing underneath the basket with something akin to reckless abandon.

"I'm trying to be a more intelligent player, not throwing myself in there recklessly because that sets you up for injury," he explained. "I just take it one day at a time."

The 76ers, coming back from a 20-point loss to the New York Knicks a night earlier, got 27 points from Julius Erving, who said, "Both the Knicks and the Nets are in our division and it was very important that we beat one of them."

The Nets got a game-high 28 points from Cliff Robinson.

Lakers 112, Kings 107
Jim Chones, filling in for injured Kareem Abdul-Jabbar at center, scored six points in overtime to lift the Lakers to the road victory. The 6-foot-11 Chones hit the Lakers' first three baskets of the overtime and Jamaal Wilkes and Earvin "Magic" Johnson each scored baskets as the Lakers outscored the Kings 10-5 in the overtime period to secure the victory.

Rockets 103, SuperSonics 100
Calvin Murphy and Moses Malone combined for 50 points to lead the Rockets to a narrow victory. Houston trailed 98-97 with less than a minute to play when Robert Reid dropped in a jump shot to put the Rockets ahead to stay.

Reid added two free throws with eight seconds remaining and Tom Henderson scored to ice the Rockets' first season victory against two losses. Seattle dropped to a 1-3 record.

Murphy finished the game with 27 points. Malone had 23 and Reid 19. Seattle's Paul Westphal had 30 points.

Nuggets 133, Mavericks 98
Veteran guard John Roche connected on five field goals and six free throws without a miss in the first half to spark Denver to its first victory of the season. Roche helped the Nuggets build a 70-47 halftime lead against the new expansion franchise. The Mavericks, playing only their third game, fell to 1-2 with the lopsided loss. Alex English wound up as the night's leading scorer with 26 points, Dan Issel added 25 and Roche 21. Jerome Whitehead and Richard Washington topped Dallas with 14 points each.

Suns 107, Jazz 93
Center Alvan Adams pumped in 31 points and power forward Len Robinson added 29 and 16 rebounds, 15 in the second half, to help the Suns remain unbeaten in three games.

Adams scored 19 of his total in the first half to keep the Suns even at halftime. Phoenix broke the game open midway through the third quarter, outscoring the Jazz 10-2 over a three-minute span to take a 71-62 lead — Adams collecting three baskets in the burst.

Utah forward Adrian Dantley was high for the game with 32, but was held to four during the third period, and 12 in the second half. On Boone added 15 and Allan Bristow 14 for the Jazz.

Bulls 108, Pacers 97
Indiana suffered a second-half sag as Chicago came from behind to win its first game of the season. Larry Kenon topped the Bulls with 22 points and Reggie Theus added 19 for the winners.

The score was tied 79-79 after three periods, but the Pacers were scoreless for the first four minutes of the fourth quarter.

Artis Gilmore added 18 points and Bobby Wilkerson had 16. Indiana, which lost for the first time in three starts, was paced by guard Johnny Davis with 22 points and 11 assists.

Warriors 95, Trail Blazers 92
Bernard King scored all nine Warriors' points in the final 2½ minutes as they overcame a 19-point deficit in the second half.

The Blazers still led 90-86 after forward Calvin Natt made two free throws with 2:34 remaining, but King then scored the first two of his crucial points, sinking a short jump shot. The forward sent the Warriors ahead to stay, 93-92, on a layup with 43 seconds left.

Has Time On Mound Ended For Perry? He Doesn't Know

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Gaylord Perry, the old grey-beard of major league baseball, looks down the road toward the future for the first time with that time clouded in uncertainty.

Approaching his 42nd birthday, Perry has far outlived a lot of other big league hurlers, and still has a shot at winning 300 games. He's less than 20 away from that goal at this point.

Whether he will have a chance to make it up in the air, however.

"I have no idea what I'll be doing next year," Perry admitted yesterday while attending the annual party for him sponsored by First State Bank and W.M. (Booger) Scales.

Perry's 1980 season began in somewhat of a cloud. Late last year, he left the San Diego Padres before the year was up, asking to be traded, preferably to the Texas Rangers. Perry had pitched earlier with the Rangers and had liked the Ranger organization.

Sure enough, as the 1980 season drew around, Perry was traded — and to the Rangers. One reason for Perry's return to Texas was his friendship with Ranger owner Bob Short.

But during the year, Short sold out of the organization, and that eventually helped lead to Perry's being traded late in the year to the New York Yankees.

It wasn't that good a year either, as Perry had only a so-so 10-13 record.

"It wasn't the type of year I like," the Williamston native said. "The big problem was not being in the regular rotation in the late stages of the season. In the last month or so, I didn't get the kind of work I needed to stay in shape."

Perry came to the Yankees when the team seemed in trouble in its quest for an American League Eastern title. He provided some spark, winning his first outing, and getting a loss in his second, mainly because of errors behind him.

"I pitched well in those first two games, but they skipped me because we were in Oakland, and they didn't want me to pitch there. That hurt me too."

He got only a couple of starts after that, leaving the rotation the final days of the season. He was in the bull-pen for the American League playoffs, but saw no action.

As to next season, Perry is very uncertain. He goes into the free agent pool this year, too. "I don't know if I will be pitching," he admits. "I might be home farming. It's just too early to tell right now. I'm just not going to make up my mind now."

That would leave the 300-victory goal a vanished dream. "Aw, that doesn't mean that much," Perry said.

With his longevity in the majors, Perry should have some advice for the younger pitchers. "The key is hard work, dedication and the willingness to learn. You have to learn as many pitches as you can and get them over the plate."

As to staying as many years as Perry has: "Well, there are some of us like that around. Staying active in the winter helps, keeping you in shape."

Perry doesn't have a "toughest batter" in his career. "There are a lot of tough ones. (Pete) Rose is tough to get out, (Willie) Stargell can get that key hit off you. (George) Brett is another."

"I'd say the toughest batters are those who get the key hit when they're needed, the extra base hit with men on."

And the World Series: "I've got to go with Philly," Perry said, walking away to talk with another fan and once more sign a fresh, white baseball.

Victory Is...

assignment. It turned out that he didn't see what he thought he did, and his man blocked the kick.

"They really got nine points out of that, since we got a bad kick off the free kick and they came back to score a touchdown before the end of the half," Emory added. "It could have been downhill from there."

The coach said the staff tried to stress positive things in the locker room and made some adjustments. Still, Richmond was able to come back and score again before the Pirates finally got on track.

After closing to 22-17, the Pirates failed to pick up a first down late in the game and gave up the ball on downs, but still managed to get it back and take it in for the winning touchdown. "I was worried after we didn't get that first down. But on the touchdown, A.C. (Collins) gave a great effort to get into the end zone."

Emory feels that a lot of good things can come from the game. "We won, and we won under adverse conditions. We had to make a 15-point comeback and we had to do it in miserable weather on a slick field. That game had to help (quarterback Carlton) Nelson, and it showed that we can protect the football if we have good concentration."

Defensively, Emory felt that the front line gave a good effort. "I think they changed their plan from more passing to run and pass, and that helped us because our pass defense is not as good as it should be," the coach added.

The Pirates have a tough job ahead of them, however, if they are to even their record at 3-3 this Saturday. Their fragile pass defense will be going up against the number eight passing team in the country in Western Carolina, ECU's Homecoming guest for the 2 p.m. contest.

Aycock In 22-14 Loss

E.B. Aycock suffered its second setback in junior high school football yesterday, bowing to Washington, 22-14.

Aycock rolled up a 14-0 lead in the first half, only to see Washington rally to gain the win. Cyrus Blackwell put Aycock ahead in the first period with a 2 yard run, while Willie Levette scored on a one-yard run in the second quarter. Jay Wynne kicked both PATs.

After the second Aycock score, however, Washington rallied for two to take a 16-14 lead by halftime. Steve Manuel raced 67 yards for one score, then passed to Ed Pritchard 19 yards for another. John Modlin ran over both PATs.

The insurance score came in the final quarter when Manuel went 23 yards.

Manuel ended the game with 140 yards, while Blackwell led Aycock with 97.

Now 3-2, Aycock travels to Bertie next Thursday.

Washington 0 16 0 6-22
Aycock 7 7 0 0-14

Women In Title Win

Greenville rolled to an 8-1 Eastern Carolina Tennis Association victory over New Bern's women's team yesterday.

Greenville's lone defeat came in the number four singles where New Bern's Dru Eckberg beat Mary Angela Lee.

The match was the final one of the fall season for Greenville, and their 5-0 record made them Division III champions.

Summary:
Frances Cain (G) defeated Mary Flanagan, 6-0, 6-0.
Carlie Wille (G) defeated Julia Hudson, 6-0, 6-2.
Nancy Powell (G) defeated Betty Lancaster, 6-2, 6-0.
Dru Eckberg (NB) defeated Mary Angela Lee, 6-3, 6-1.

Schmidt Leads Philly Victory...

Defensive Tackle Curtis Spell

Relieved Rose...

(Continued From Page 13) game, and in just about every way it was a loss for us because we didn't play like we are capable of. We were very fortunate to win," Bumgarner said. "In fact, I'm glad we're not number one this week."

Bertie, which has only one victory to its credit has been having its problems this year. Graduation last year struck the team heavily, and the team has gone through a coaching change too.

Their only win was over Hunt, 8-7, in a game that saw the Falcons score on a 70-yard fumble return and a two-point conversion late in the contest.

"I saw them scrimmage at the start of the season, and I was impressed by them," Bumgarner said.

"We've gotten beat over there the last two times in close games. We lost in overtime, 13-12, in 1976, and 6-0, in 1978. I sure don't want to get involved in a close game this year."

For Bertie, it will be the final football meeting with Rose as a Division I member. The Falcons will leave the conference at the end of the academic year, rejoining the 3-A Northeastern Conference.

Alonza Taylor continues to lead the Rose rushing with 328 yards, while Roger Williams is next with 277. He's followed by Kenny Barnes at 243, Jeff Porter at 238 and Robert Brown at 204.

Barnes has not hit on 18 of 43 attempts, having suffered his first interception of the season against Beddingfield. He's charted 521 yards for four touchdowns. Top receivers are Chris McLawhorn with 10 for 319 yards and Donald Johnson with seven for 197.

Barnes is the leading scorer with 38 points, followed by Taylor with 36, Williams with 26 and Johnson with 24.

Kickoff at Bertie is set for 8 p.m.

(Continued From Page 13) saves during the season and considered the AL's top relief pitcher. If the game had gone according to script, that should have been the end of it. Quisenberry got the side in order in the seventh, but he walked Bob Boone to lead off the eighth.

Pinch hitter Del Unser drove Boone in from first with a double to the wall in left-center. Rose bounced to first baseman Pete LaCock, a defensive replacement, sending Unser to third. Bake McBride's chopping single over the head of second baseman Frank White drove in Unser, tying the score 4-4. That brought Schmidt to the plate.

Schmidt, who led the majors with 48 homers in the regular season, had hit a dismal .208 in the playoffs. In the final game of the league championship, he went 0-for-5, striking out three times. He had an infield single, two walks and a strikeout in the Series opener.

"The champagne would have tasted a hair sweeter if I had gotten my uniform dirty in that game," Schmidt said.

In Schmidt's first time up Wednesday night, he grounded to third. In second trip, he fouled Gura to a 3-2 count, and fouled off a pitch. Schmidt sent Gura's next pitch a mile, but foul, before grounding out again. In the sixth, he hit a harmless single, and then, in the eighth, it was all on the line.

Schmidt sent Quisenberry's first pitch to the wall in right-center on one short hop for double and a 5-4 Philadelphia lead. Rookie Keith Moreland, starting as designated hitter in place of the ailing Greg Luzinski, singled to score Schmidt before pinch hitter Greg Gross finally grounded into an inning-ending double play.

"The bench exploded when Boone walked," Moreland said. "We get that feeling. We exploded on the bench and on the field, too, just like we've been doing all year."

Ron Reed took over for Carlton in the ninth inning. He struck out pinch hitter Darrell Porter, who did not start against the lefty Carlton and was hitting in the spot that would have been occupied by Brett. Reed then yielded Hal McRae's third single of the game, but retired the side by getting Otis to hit into a fielder's choice grounder and striking out Wathan.

It's hard to tell how much the absence of Brett had hurt Kansas City since his replacement, Dave Chalk, walked in his only appearance, but the words of Aikens before the game may have been prophetic.

"Without him, we're a .500 ballclub," Aikens said. "With him, we're a winning club."

The Royals will pitch Rich Gale, 13-9 during the season, against Dick Ruthven, 17-10, in the third game Friday. It is a must game for the Royals; no team ever has recovered from a 3-0 deficit to win the Series.

Asked how he felt now, Phils Manager Dallas Green replied: "Not too shabby. I'll take two wins any day. It looked like that last one would be a loss for a while, but we geared up. We got some juice going. That's been Philly baseball in September and October."

Green had only one complaint. He felt the baseballs had not been rubbed up properly.

"Lefty struggled, but because of the baseballs, not because of Lefty," Green said. "They were as slick as I've ever seen them. I'm going to make a complaint to the commissioner and the umpires about them because we have to do something."

The Royals, meanwhile, were in a sticky situation.

"The next couple of games," Otis said, "we'll see what these teams are made of."

Lake's Campaign...

"We concentrate on press conferences and finance," said Carter Wrenn, treasurer of the Congressional Club, the political organization that is handling Lake's schedule and much of his campaign work. "Our decision is to steer away from civic clubs. We feel like our time is better spent on (generating) press coverage."

It contrasts with Hunt's routine of airplane tours and a half-dozen or so speeches a day. While Hunt's public schedule filled two pages on a recent week, Lake's listed only two public events—and one of those, a rally in Cabarrus County, was canceled.

Such has brought expressions of concern from some traditional Republicans who have differed with the Congressional Club, the group built around GOP Sen. Jesse Helms and whose support lured Lake from the Democratic Party last year.

"It's below the activity I would expect of a gubernatorial candidate," said James Godfrey, 8th District GOP chairman and a veteran of former Gov. James Holshouser's campaign.

In his daily meetings with individuals or groups of 10 or so, Lake tells potential contributors that money given now will go directly for his television advertising. He hopes to spend $150,000 to $200,000 on television commercials, beginning in mid-October.

"If you're not talking to a group about finances your talking to your county chairmen, discussing strategy and things like that—what needs to be done, who needs to be contacted and who needs to be called," Lake said.

Published polls in recent weeks have shown Lake to be far behind, trailing Hunt by as much as three-to-one. Lake has disputed those findings, however, and says his own polling shows the race much closer. He does not reveal details of his polling, however.

"We're exactly where we thought we ought to be a year ago," Lake said a month before the election. "We're roughly 8 to 10 (percentage) points from where we need to be to win, in that range."

Joseph Grimsley, manager of Hunt's well-beeled campaign, has publicly suggested that Lake's campaign is in trouble financially because of Hunt's fund-raising success and the amount of time Lake is having to spend on that job now.

"Money's always a problem," responds Lake. "I've never seen a campaign where money is not a problem."

The public view of Lake in this campaign, relentlessly attacking even his opponent's personal character, seems in contrast with the quiet, almost reserved Lake that served two terms in the state Senate as a Democrat and six years as assistant and later deputy attorney general.

As a legislator, Lake was an active conservative and advocate of fundamentalist Christian groups, and sponsored a 1977 anti-pornography law. But he also was a supporter, even a sponsor, of some legislation pushed by Hunt.

Lake originally supported and co-sponsored Hunt's so-called "New Generation" bill, which formed county committees to guide child health care and other services. He later opposed it after House conservatives attacked the measure as intruding on families in raising their children, but the measure passed.

"I read it hurriedly, and after reading it in session went ahead and signed it. I didn't see anything blatantly offensive about it," Lake says now. "When it got over in the House, they found out, thank goodness, that there were some other implications."

He also was floor manager of Hunt's proposal for uniform sentencing of criminals and backed the governor's bills establishing minimum competency and achievement testing in the schools. He now criticizes the sentencing law as too mild and the testing as too easy.

"I've said all along there are things I like about Jim Hunt, personally. We have gotten along. We have been friendly; not friends but friendly," Lake said. "But there are some basic philosophic differences. He's a consummate politician and I'm not. I think that's his basic weakness."

Lake's attacks have centered on what he calls corruption in government: abuses in the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act contracts the state had with labor leader Wilbur Hobby and others; highway construction bid-rigging; political assessments of sheriffs written for the administration by a state law-enforcement agent; the use of political patronage in hiring.

"We have the most corrupt administration we have had in this century," he said.

Lake has also released what he labeled a positive platform. Among its proposals is legislation restricting busing to achieve racial integration—a law Lake says would require children to attend schools closest to home except when ordered otherwise by the courts.

He disputes characterizations that his campaign has been largely negative and accuses the press of misrepresenting him.

"They've said, in effect, if you're up against... unnecessary taxes, waste, corruption, you're negative," he said. "It's like saying if you're against cancer, you're negative."

Lake is hoping the endorsements of his father, I. Beverly Lake Sr., and of Helms will bring him votes. His pictures with both are included in brochures distributed by the campaign.

Helms' organization has provided assistance in raising money, runs the daily operation of his campaign and has advised him on the attacks on Hunt.

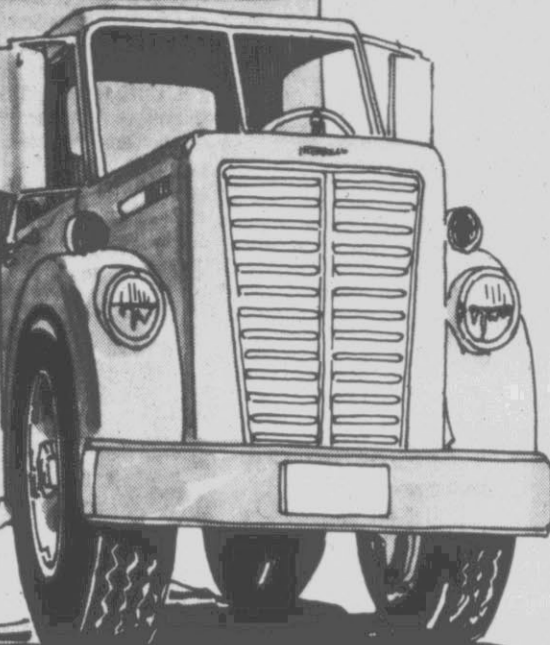

Lake Sr. has appeared at news conferences for his son, and the candidate says he believes his father's popularity—despite the controversial nature of his campaigns—helps him now.

Hunt's campaign distributed earlier this year brief histories of the elder Lake's two unsuccessful campaigns for governor, and Lake says that was an attempt to inject race into their campaign. But he declines, when asked, to discuss his views when his father campaigned in support of segregation.

"I'm not going to get into the issues that prevailed in 1960, period," Lake said. "And if Hunt wants to get into them... that's something he'll just have to live with."

Urge Return To Language

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A non-profit research group says North Carolina must expand its educational programs to include more foreign language and foreign-area instruction.

The North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research, reporting on a study of all levels of education in the state, said the changes are needed to help the state attract foreign corporations and their investments.

Susan M. Presti, a researcher from the center, said foreign languages are not offered in any elementary schools and in only 75 percent of the state's high schools.

She said 33 percent of the high schools offer third-year instruction in a language. She also said high schools should expand curriculums to include study of non-Western nations.

"Only one high school in the state teaches Russian, and none teach Chinese," she said.

Other suggestions by the group included encouragement of foreign study by teachers and students.

Dubious About Capabilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top U.S. military commander says he's concerned about the ability of what he called an "obsolescent Army" to sustain a defense of Western Europe in the event of an invasion by Soviet Bloc forces.

Gen. Frederick Kroesen, Army commander in Europe, said Wednesday the 223,000 U.S. troops under his command could "initiate" such a defense, but "it's the sustaining of that defense that gives rise to concern."

In a related development, the U.S. commander of the 180,000-man combined American-South Korean field army says his troops would be able to repel an invasion by the North Koreans.

"If we go to war tomorrow morning, we go with an obsolescent Army," the top U.S. soldier in Europe said in assessing his troops' capabilities against an invasion by Warsaw Pact nations.

Kroesen said the Army has been plagued by outmoded equipment, some of which "is not much improved over what we had in World War II." He claimed the Army plans to rely too heavily on reserve forces in the event of an emergency.

He also told the Army Association convention that about 24,000 Army families live in what he called "disreputable" quarters in Europe.

Meanwhile, Lt. Gen. Eugene P. Forrester expressed a "high sense of confidence" that his U.S. and South Korean troops could beat back any North Korean attack.

Forrester told the Army convention that "morale is very high" and said there have been "record-setting re-enlistment rates" in the U.S. 2nd Division, the only U.S. Army division remaining in Korea.

'Very Large Telescope' Also Ultra-Sensitive

SOCCORO, N.M. (AP) — It is so big that its components are moved along railroad tracks — yet so sensitive that its creators say it could pick up CB radio signals from a one-watt rig operating on the planet Pluto.

It's the world's largest radio telescope, and scientists say it will revolutionize astronomy. They've given it a name befitting its role: the Very Large Array Radio Telescope, known familiarly as VLA.

Dr. Frank Press, science adviser to President Carter, called the facility one "worthy of a nation like the United States — the world's leading scientific nation."

"Astronomy is about as pure a science as there is where (practical) applications, if any, are in the distant, distant future. It is a science we do because it is exciting, it is beautiful, it enthralls our young people."

The telescope, funded by the National Science Foundation, took eight years to complete and cost $78 million. Unlike optical telescopes, which use lenses and mirrors to gather light, the VLA listens to the noises of the universe.

It is made up of 27 dish-shaped antennae, each one 62 feet in diameter, 92 feet high and weighing 210 tons. They are arranged along three arms of railroad track laid out in the shape of a Y to take advantage of the earth's rotation when scanning the skies. Two of the arms are 13 miles long, while the third measures 11.8 miles.

A 36-wheel transporter moves each antennae to one of 72 observation stations. Signals received by the antennae are fed into computers that correlate the readings, deleting unwanted and unneeded noises. The computer then creates radio maps of the skies. The site is ringed by mountains, which protect it from much of the electronic interference of TV, radios, aircraft and the like.

The VLA operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, stopping only for maintenance and some holidays.

The system was partially completed and began gathering data in 1975. Last April, scientists confirmed, for the first time, the existence of light waves from a dying star in a galaxy over 50 million light years from earth.

Scientists plan to use the telescope to study the structure and evolution of stars, supernovae, X-ray sources, quasars, black holes and problems related to the formation and distribution of molecules.

As part of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory, the VLA will be operated under contract with the National Science Foundation by Associated Universities Inc. AUI is sponsored by nine universities: Columbia, Cornell, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rochester and Yale.

Open Hearings On Bus Rates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Utilities Commission opened hearings Wednesday on a proposed 23½ percent rate increase for intrastate bus rates.

If approved, the increase would raise the price of a one-way Raleigh-Charlotte ticket from $9.55 to $11.50. Charter bus rates would be increased by 21 percent to 185 percent.

The rate proposal would produce $2.3 million in additional revenue for Greyhound, Trailways Southeastern, Carolina Coach and Seashore Transportation.

In assessing the balance on the Asian peninsula, Forrester said the 750,000-man North Korean Army is in a position to strike with little warning across the demilitarized zone against the South Korean Army of 600,000 and 31,000 American Army troops.

Good, honest sausage and liver pudding. Just like Granddaddy used to make.

More than fifty years ago, we founded a whole business on two of our grandfather's recipes.

For the country sausage, he used the leanest cuts of ham, bacon, shoulder and loin, seasoned with a secret combination of garden spices. (For 10 years, only Grandma knew the secret). To the liver pudding, he added pork cuts for extra flavor and texture. And all over Guilford County, people said Neese could make both taste better than "home made".

In all the years, we've never taken anything out of those original recipes. And we're not going to add anything, either. For example, while most other packers add preservatives and fillers, we don't. (As our package plainly states). And while most other packers ship all over the nation, we ship only to nearby towns and country stores. Which means our products are always fresh. Naturally.

We can't tell you our product recipes, but we would like to tell you 77 others. For everything from Sausage Loaf to Liver Pudding en Casserole. Write for your free—and fascinating—copy of our recipe book.

Neese. Good, honest liver pudding and completely natural country sausage. Just like Granddaddy used to make.

Liver Pudding Custard? I'll have to taste it to believe it. Please send the recipe book—for free.

Makes Singing, Dancing Debut

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Catherine Bach, Daisy on CBS' "Dukes of Hazzard," will make her singing and dancing debut on ABC's "Nashville Palace" on Saturday, Oct. 25.

Roy Clark is host, and the guests include Mickey Gilley, Andy Griffith, George "Goober" Lindsey, Barbara Mandrell, the Oak Ridge Boys and Slim Pickens.

SON DIES — The 24-year-old son of actress Mary Tyler Moore, Richard Carlton Meeker Jr., shown in this 1978 photo, died Tuesday in Los Angeles of a self-inflicted shotgun blast. The shotgun blast may have been either an accident or suicide, police said Wednesday. (AP Laserphoto)

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Baby Comes Home," tonight on CBS, is a lovely little surprise — a pre-fab, made-for-TV entertainment that comes alive with rich characters and dialogue. It doesn't vanish from your mind during the commercial breaks.

Actors' Strike Officially Over

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The actors' strike is officially over for members of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, with approval of a new three-year contract on a vote of 572-390.

The last AFTRA chapter to vote on the contract was New York's, where the vote was 155-123 Wednesday night to accept the new national prime time television and motion pictures contract.

A nationwide mail ballot by the Screen Actors Guild — the other actors union that went on strike — was to be tabulated Oct. 23 in Hollywood.

Chicago AFTRA members voted in favor of the contract 49-31 Tuesday, but the Los Angeles local voted down the pact last week by a 228-220 margin.

The film-TV community, dropped to its knees by a crippling 10-week actors strike, got back on wobbly feet this week as actors voted on the contract.

"Our (TV) series will all be going by the end of next week," Ed Medman, vice president-legal affairs at the Burbank Studios, home of Warner Bros. and Columbia Pictures, said Wednesday. "We'll probably be at full capacity (films and TV) in December, the beginning of the year."

At Universal Studios, the industry's largest single employer with about 7,000 workers, TV shows were "a good way into production," according to Universal TV spokesman Ben Halperin.

More than 5,000 ballots flooded SAG headquarters Tuesday alone, leading SAG officials to predict the heaviest voter turnout in SAG history would ratify the new contract despite a split in actor ranks over the pact's controversial home video provisions.

"It'll probably pass but by less than is usual in these circumstances," said SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner, who noted the original Oct. 20 vote deadline had been extended because the ballots, mailed Oct. 6, had been slow in reaching the East Coast.

Once the SAG vote is out of the way, producers are expected to resume stalled talks with striking musicians, whose picket lines at seven major production centers were being crossed by actors.

Producer Suing Libyan Gov't

ROME (AP) — An Italian film producer has filed suit against the Libyan government, claiming that Col. Moammar Khadafy reneged on a promise to star in a movie the producer had planned.

Dante Vacchi, 55, alleged in the suit, filed Wednesday, that he lost $57,600 in unreimbursed expenses preparing a script and hiring technicians to shoot a 90-minute film entitled "Khadafy, Islam and Socialism" in 1978.

Khadafy, Libya's leader, agreed to play himself but never showed up during the two weeks planned for the shooting, the suit charged. The suit in Rome's civil court names Ibrahim Mohammed Bechari, Libya's director-general of Information and Cultural Affairs, as the defendant.

Carney Playing In Volcano Role

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP) — Veteran actor Art Carney, who won an Oscar the last time he played an old man named Harry, has been signed to play lodge keeper Harry Truman in a movie about the eruption of Mount St. Helens.

Financed largely by Oregon investors, the picture is slated for filming later this month near Bend, Ore., according to Michael Murphy, a Portland lawyer and the film's executive producer.

Carney is 61, Truman, who refused to leave his lodge and his 16 cats before the cataclysmic May 18 eruption, was 84.

seclusion and near-agnoraphobia.

"When you get a little older, my dear," she explains to a concerned young lovely, "and every one in that great magazine-television land out there is telling you to pick up your breasts, lift up your buttocks, be as perfect as those underwear ad ladies — then what happens? What happens is you begin to feel invisible...and I don't like it."

The sight of that Earth-mother Dewhurst persona — so large and steady — swirling in change-of-life craziness carries an impact that couldn't be written into the script. She is perfect.

Warren Oates is just fine as the steady-guy husband who was ready for a little adventure but gets a white-knuckle roller-coaster ride. And Mildred Dunnock as Dewhurst's peppery mother is a wholly satisfying entertainment unto herself.

The resolution is a heavy-handed contrivance unworthy of the unfolding it concludes. But you'll just be so taken by the characters you'll be willing to indulge a weak story.

Protesters hoping to strike back at television programs deemed offensive may want to think twice before launching into noisy negative publicity campaigns, at least, if the aim of the protest is to hurt the target program's ratings.

It seems that any publicity is still good publicity.

Despite the fevered protests of Jewish groups and an organized boycott, CBS' "Playing for Time" — in which anti-Israeli Vanessa Redgrave portrayed a half-Jewish Auschwitz survivor — scored a big victory in the ratings.

And "Beulah Land," NBC's ante-bellum soap opera, dominated last week's ratings. All three segments of the six-hour miniseries finished in the Nielsen top 10.

"Beulah Land" had been the object of a long, intense protest campaign by a coalition angered by the movie's portrayal of blacks.

The protests against both programs clearly benefited them, at least in the ratings. And ratings speak in distinct, loud tones in network executive suites.

PCA Has Annual Meet At Minges

The annual stockholders meeting of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association was held Saturday night at Minges Coliseum.

Some 900 people attended the session to elect nominees for two directors and to transact other business for the association.

Arnold B. Parris, president, reported to the stockholders that Pitt-Greene PCA had a membership of 1,313 members with loans totaling over $46,500,000 in the past fiscal year. Federal Land Bank loans in Pitt County totaled over $23 million with 400 farmers, he said.

David Harold Smith of Ayden, chairman of the board of directors of the association, presided at the session. Other directors present were James E. Manning of Walstonburg, Wayne K. Stokes of Greenville, T. Weldon Shingleton of Stantonsburg, and Arthur Roscoe Barnhill of Greenville.

Entertainment was presented by The Ramblers of Greene Central High School.

May Lower Drinking Age

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan voters who raised the state's legal drinking age from 18 to 21 two years ago will vote Nov. 4 whether to knock it back down to 19.

Proposal B, placed on the ballot by a resolution of the state Legislature, is a "reasonable compromise," says state Rep. Richard Fitzpatrick, a Democrat from Battle Creek who has become chief spokesman for "Citizens for a Fair Drinking Age."

"We don't have a right to protect adults from themselves," says Fitzpatrick. "This is a basic issue of civil rights and fairness."

Owners of taverns and bowling alleys who lost substantial business when the age was raised have contributed heavily to a $200,000 campaign in support of Proposal B.

Leading the fight to defeat the proposal and keep the drinking age at 21 is Allen Rice, a Methodist minister who heads the Michigan Council on Alcohol Problems. "The Legislature just doesn't understand what the people of Michigan want," Rice says. "I'm disturbed and unhappy that political mileage is being made out of this."

Much of Rice's campaign is based on traffic safety, although state police statistics show the percentage of young drivers involved in traffic accidents was about the same in 1978 and 1979.

Michigan lowered its drinking age from 21 to 18 in 1972. The Legislature raised it to 19 in 1978, but before that law could take effect, voters raised the age back to 21.

"Nineteen was never given a chance to work," says Douglas Hargett, executive director of the campaign for Proposal B.

Radio Series Is Offered

The Pitt County Mental Health Center is offering a series of public service segments daily on WOOB radio.

Designed to promote mental well-being as well as offer information about center services, the October radio segments deal with stress, alcoholism, scope of center services, and information about seminars for parents of adolescents.

The weekly segment, "What's On Your Mind," featuring Dr. Robert P. Nenko, center psychiatrist, has been discontinued, according to Moderator Nancy M. Middleton. However, anyone having specific mental health questions is invited to send these in the center for possible inclusion in public service messages.

Hunt Campaign.....

"We are making great progress. In many fields, the greatest progress we've made in the history of North Carolina," says Hunt.

And it's usually followed soon by his imploring line: "But my friends, this is North Carolina, and we can do better."

That style, though sometimes derided by his opponents as insincere hyperbole, has been enormously successful.

With it, James Baxter Hunt Jr., 43, has won office by an overwhelming majority; has done what no other governor could do by winning passage of a constitutional change allowing him to seek a successive term; and has positioned himself close to becoming the first North Carolina governor to win a second four years in office.

Not incidentally, he's also managed to break that jinx that has afflicted every governor since Terry Sanford — by surviving four years as governor with his popularity and political future apparently intact.

"Jim Hunt is just the best politician I've ever seen," said La Grange Mayor Randolph Pridden after watching Hunt before 100 people inside this small town's fire department, just about 50 miles from the governor's own rural Wilson County home.

"I never thought I would see a governor who would repeat. Every other governor has gone out unpopular. But he's a local person who has gone and won the grassroots," Pridden added.

Hunt's standard speech is sermonlike, reciting his accomplishments and urging cooperation. "There's so much to be done, and yet we can do it if we work hard, work together," he says, crescendoing.

Reflecting his own rural background, Hunt always emphasizes roads and the need to keep building them. He spends much of his time building a case for more highway revenues, and he's widely expected to back a study commission's recommendation to increase gasoline taxes next year.

Asked if there might be any other tax increases in a second term, Hunt gave a carefully worded "no."

"I have no thought of any other tax changes, tax increases," he said. "I have no reason to believe any would be necessary at all."

Hunt mainly stresses his administration's effort in education, the reading program and achievement and competency testing, and the state's economic growth. He always has figures available for each county he is speaking in, telling them in La Grange that 1,500 new industrial jobs have been created in Lenoir County during his administration.

Hunt says he taught himself to give speeches as a boy by practicing Future Farmers of America talks while riding a tractor. And he genuinely seems to enjoy campaigning, as he recognizes dozens of people by name at every stop.

"That's my business," explains Hunt.

Hunt never mentions Lake by name in these speeches, but makes occasional references to his opponent that appear to be intended to remind voters of Lake's association with his father's segregationist campaigns for governor 20 years ago.

"I'd be campaigning even if I didn't have an opponent," said Hunt, studying his next speech while aboard his chartered airplane. "But maybe I wouldn't be saying all the same things, like 'let's not turn back the clock.'"

Hunt's success so far is based in part in his personal style and his ability to pull conservative, moderate and liberal Democrats alike into his organization.

It is also rooted, however, in the sophistication of that organization, which is systematized in almost every precinct. Given his 60 percent vote total in 1976 and his nearly 70 percent total in the primary over former Gov. Bob Scott this spring, it may be the strongest organization this state has seen in decades.

Hunt's is the direct opposite of the organization built around Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who has lent its expertise to Lake this year.

While Hunt's is built on personal contacts at the bottom level, the precincts and counties, Helms' is based on computer-technology management and fund-raising by mail.

Lake, and before him Scott, attacked Hunt on his organization, charging he has used his gubernatorial succession power to build a vast machine based on patronage and political appointments.

But Hunt declines to respond to those and other barbed charges hurled by Lake. "I'm not going to get into that," he tells reporters, showing irritation. "There's more than just a campaign here. We're trying to set the direction for the state."

And Hunt has benefited by keeping a high visibility throughout his term. He holds a news conference every week and has become skilled at answering hostile questions. "He speaks to a camera better than any politician I've ever seen," one veteran television reporter says.

Lake has also attempted to exploit the embarrassments of the Hunt administration and build a case that Hunt's is a corrupt administration.

Particularly, he cites charges of mismanagement in its job-training contracts with labor leader Wilbur Hobby and the political assessments of local sheriffs written by a state law-enforcement officer, Mather Slaughter, which were disclosed earlier this year.

New disclosures in the Comprehensive Employment Training Contracts have continued to dog the administration, and an FBI investigation is under way. But Hunt doesn't usually mention those issues on the stump, and when pressed he cites the millions of dollars in CETA contracts that have gone unquestioned.

"I think the people regret it," Hunt, in an interview, said of Lake's attacks. "I think it's a very counter-productive way to campaign.

That approach is frowned on by people now, and that's why he hasn't made any headway with it."

Public Hearing Is Postponed

A public hearing to have been held by the Legislative Research Commission on the Rights of Adopted Children tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. has been postponed to Friday, Nov. 7, at 2:30 p. m. It will be held in the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade streets.

This hearing is one of four being held throughout the state on proposed legislation concerning adopted children's rights. An additional hearing will be held in Raleigh, probably the third week in November.

WEEK'S SERVICES

A week service will be held at Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church October 20-26, with the following Churches participating.

Monday — Corey's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Tuesday — Poplar Hill.

Wednesday — Philippi Church of Christ.

Thursday — Nazarene Church of Christ (Disciples).

Friday — Joe's Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

Services begin each night at 7:30 p. m. The pastor, Rev. Clifton Gardner invites the public to attend all of these services.

The proceeds will be for the building fund.
