Personal Spending Up Cite Economic 'Rebound'

By JIM LÜTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In a report that could signal an end to the 1980 recession, the Commerce Department said today that the U.S. economy grew at a 1 percent annual rate in the third quarter due chiefly to a sharp rebound in personal spending.

A preliminary report showed the inflation-adjusted value of all goods and services — the real gross national product — rose by $3.5 billion during the July-September period to an annual rate of $1.41 trillion. The annual rate is determined by projecting the change in one quarter over a full 12 months.

Before adjusting for inflation, GNP rose 10.2 percent during the quarter, to $2.58 trillion.

The third-quarter performance contrasted with the record 9.6 percent decline in real GNP in the second quarter. The Commerce Department said the turnaround was caused by a 3.7 percent, or $91 billion, increase in final sales after a 10.2 percent decline during the previous three months.

Personal spending, which had fallen $2.9 billion in the second quarter, rose $55.2 billion in the third. A key factor in that increase was higher automobile sales, which raised the purchase of durable goods by $24.5 billion in the third quarter after a decline in the second.

After-tax personal income rose $51.6 billion during the quarter and spending was up $54.7 billion. Savings as a portion of personal income dropped from 4.9 percent in the second quarter to 4.6 percent in the third.

Business investment rose $3.2 billion in the third quarter after a $4.4 billion plunge in the second three months of the year.

The Commerce Department's measure of inflation, called the GNP deflator, showed the price spiral slowed in the third quarter. The deflator indicated prices rose by 9.1 percent in the third quarter compared with 10.7 percent in the second.

Today's report indicated that by one popular definition, there was no 1980 recession at all — simply because the downturn was limited to one calendar quarter.

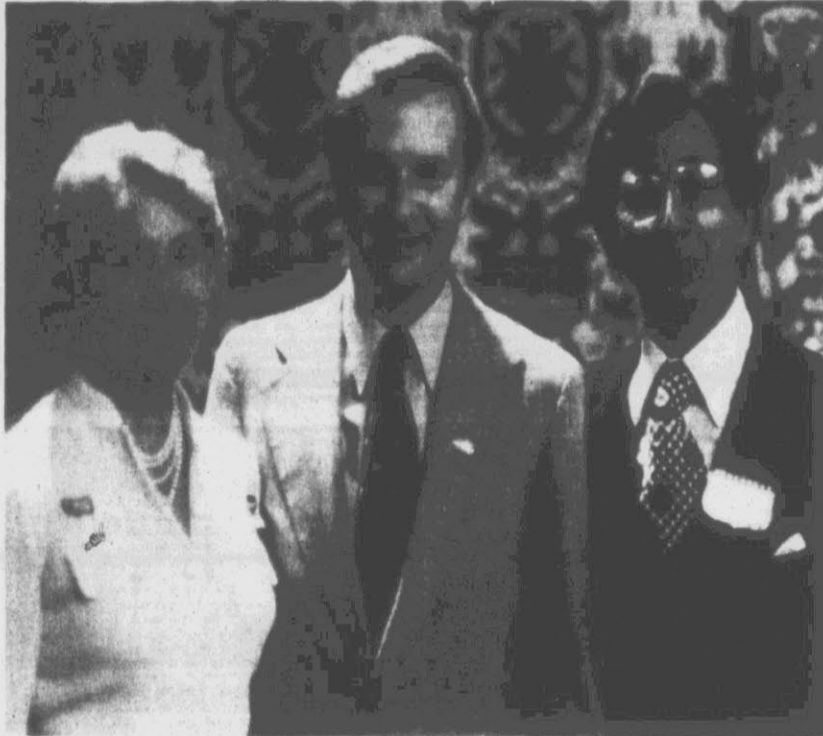

The popular definition of recession is two consecutive quarters of GNP decline. Statisticians say the economy began sliding in January or February, but the first quarter still registered an overall growth rate of 1.2 percent.

That was followed, however, by the worst quarter in history — an annual rate of decline of 9.6 percent in economic output from April to June.

That plunge, concentrated in the construction and automobile industries, resulted in unemployment of 7.5 percent to 7.8 percent from May to September, a steep decline in industrial production, a drop in retail sales and the worst slide in corporate profits in five years.

More signs of a recovery were reported by the government Thursday.

Packed House For Unity Meeting Of District's Demos

AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY... here last night, Joyce Hasting, president of the Democratic Women of Pitt County, Gov. Jim Hunt, and George Saleeby, chairman of the Pitt Democratic Party, were among the more than 700 party members from the First Congressional District attending. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage).

The theme was "unity," and if the more than 700 persons — a standing-room only crowd — who attended the First Congressional District Democratic Rally here last night displayed anything, it was a unified movement against all but Democratic Party candidates on the November 4, election ballot.

Gov. Jim Hunt was the principal speaker at the rally, which North Carolina Secretary of State Thad Eure said was the largest congressional district rally he had ever seen.

"For more than 50 years I've been going to rallies," Eure noted. "This is the largest district rally we've ever seen."

Eure, the dean of Secretaries of State in the nation, who calls himself,

"the oldest rat in the Democratic barn," said since he has traveled 15,000 miles to and from his Hertford County home to vote. "I've never missed one," he emphasized.

"I was serving my first term as secretary of state when Hunt was born," he noted, adding that he has maintained an office in the State's capital building, "longer than anyone else in history."

Eure, elected to the office in the November 3, 1936 election, said, "let's all go to the polls and carry our neighbors and friends...and wash 'em (all but Democrats) out. The sorriest Democrat in the State can administer government better than the best Republican."

The governor, who said, "I want to thank all of you for what you do for our party," noted that, "one of the things about our party I'm most proud of," is that, "it's a party with a heart...it cares about people."

"We care about our senior citizens in North Carolina," Hunt emphasized, pointing out programs that his administration has started to help the 800,000 older residents of the state, such as the Division on Aging, the Homestead Exemption Act which gives senior citizens tax relief on their homes, and the Home Health Care and Chore Service programs which helps the aged remain in their homes, rather than have to be moved to other facilities such as rest or nursing homes.

"One of the most important things to do," Hunt emphasized, is to, "continue that progress," suggesting programs which might bring more economic security for the aged, and more, "protection against crime," by making it a felony to cause serious injury to persons 60 or older.

Saying that the most progress during the past four years has been in providing new jobs for the residents of the state, and improvements in public school education, other progress has come in the field of energy and the reduction of crime, although more still needs to be accomplished.

Speaking on behalf of Sen. Robert Morgan, Hunt said that the Morgan campaign has raised $381,000 so far, "about all," from North Carolina residents, while his Republican opponent John East has received $742,000, most of which has come from

Iran Claims Its Forces Relaxed Grip On Abadan

By STEVE K. HINDY
Associated Press Writer
BASRA, Iraq (AP) — Iran claimed today its forces pushed Iraqi troops back from the embattled oil refinery center of Abadan and reported hand-to-hand fighting in the besieged port city of Khorramshahr. Iraq claimed 256 Iranian soldiers killed on its 300-mile invasion front inside Iran in 12 hours.

Iraq also offered to cease fire on its terms, but Iran's prime minister rejected the idea and flew into New York to address the U.N. Security Council this afternoon on "Iraq's aggression."

An Iranian official in Tehran denied there was any deal being discussed the release of the 52 American hostages in exchange for spare parts for American-made military equipment.

Tehran Radio broadcast a dispatch by the Pars news agency from Abadan claiming Iranian troops had forced Iraqi soldiers to withdraw up to 19 miles from the city. There was no independent confirmation of the claim. Iran also said its planes shot down two Iraqi MiGs in a dogfight over Iraq, without saying where the action occurred.

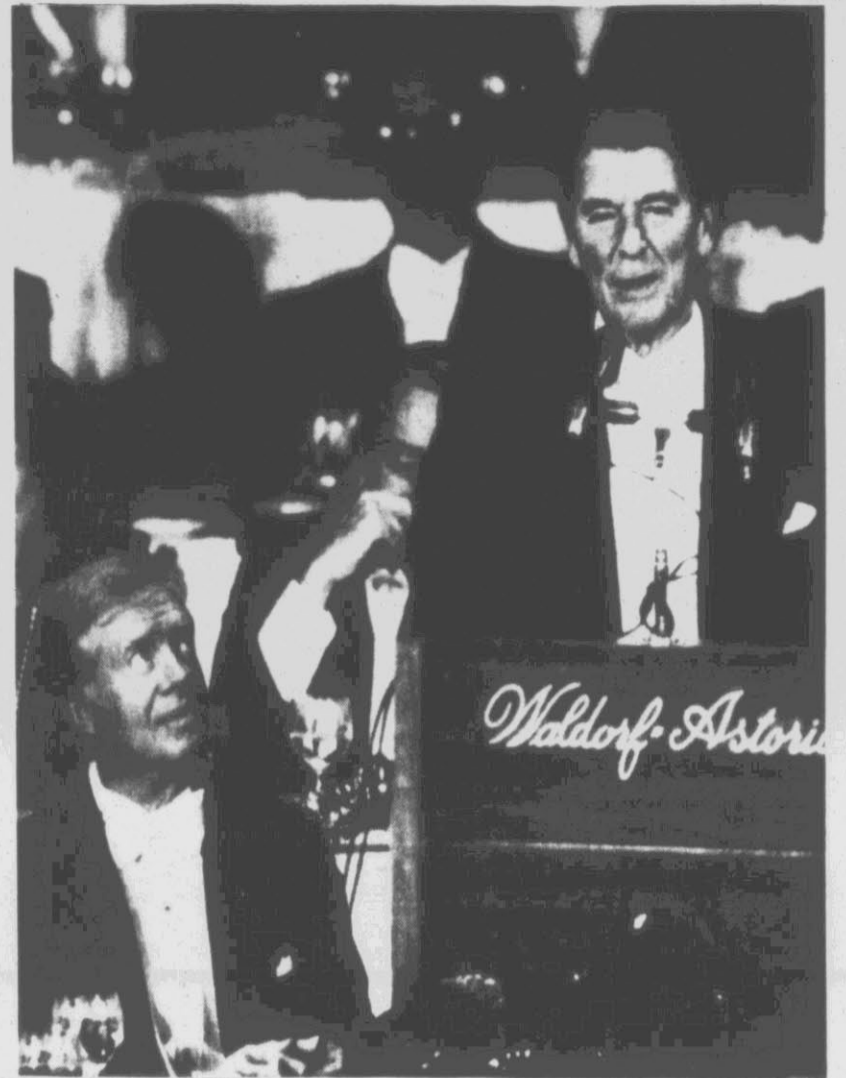

The Iraqi command said Iranian jets attacked the Kurdish towns of Sulaimaniyah and Penjaw in northern Iraq, killing four civilians and wounding four. It said one Iranian jet was shot down in the southern sector of the war front near the Abadan-Khorramshahr area.

The command said in addition to the 256 Iranian soldiers killed, 35 were taken prisoner in 12 hours of fighting Thursday night and early today along Iraq's invasion front in western and southwestern Iran. It said Iraqi forces suffered 18 killed.

The Iranian command said its forces killed 100 Iraqi soldiers in the central and northern sectors of the invasion line, and that hand-to-hand fighting raged in Khorramshahr at the southern end of the front on the Shatt al-Arab estuary, the strategic border waterway used by both Iran and Iraq to ship oil out.

Iran's official Pars news agency said "the invading infidels have not succeeded in taking over the city of Khorramshahr" and that they suffered heavy casualties in street fighting against naval commandos and townspeople. A number of Iranians have been killed, Pars added, without giving figures.

Shook Hands And Began Sparring

By The Associated Press
President Carter and Ronald Reagan shook hands and then came out — well, if not fighting — at least jabbing verbally.

The two men met Thursday night for the first time since the presidential campaign began. The scene was a charity dinner in New York at which serious political speeches are traditionally put aside in favor of humor, but both Carter and Reagan managed to get in at least one undercut at his opponent.

Across the continent in Santa Barbara, Calif., independent candidate John Anderson continued to maintain that despite his poor showing in public opinion polls he could still win the presidency.

"There's going to be a surprise on the fourth of November when the results come in," Anderson said Thursday. "When the last vote is counted, I'm going to win."

Reagan picked up the endorsement of two well-known black leaders, meanwhile, and Carter's camp disavowed a statement by another black, former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, that Reagan's rhetoric means "it's going to be all right to kill niggers when he's president."

Today, Reagan is meeting with Mayor Ed Koch for a briefing on New York's needs, and Carter is back at the White House. Anderson is campaigning in California.

The league issued an invitation to Carter and Reagan for a debate to be held in Cleveland later this month, it was learned today. But a spokeswoman said "We have not yet gotten acceptances from both candidates."

That indicated the league chose not to invite Anderson. The league scheduled a formal announcement later in the day. A representative of the league's national office was enroute to Cleveland to help with the arrangements.

Thursday night, Carter strode up to Reagan and shook hands with him at a charity dinner honoring Al Smith, the New York Democrat who was defeated for the presidency by Herbert Hoover in 1928.

Reagan, who is 69, kept up the dinner's tradition of humor by denying the "rumor" that he had been at the first dinner for Smith.

Carter, too, drew laughs when he said that Cardinal Terence Cooke, who heads the foundation that sponsors the dinner, had demonstrated "a power even greater than that of the League of Women Voters" in getting Reagan to share a platform with him.

Reagan mentioned the 52

American hostages whose captivity in Iran has come up more and more with the approach of the first anniversary of their seizure, which coincides with Election Day.

Workers Get Pay Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — With less than three weeks to go before the November elections, President Carter has formally given more than 2 million federal workers a 9.1 percent pay raise.

The pay increases Carter approved by executive order on Thursday affect about 1.4 million white-collar workers and 700,000 blue-collar employees.

The increases are retroactive to Oct. 1, the start of the federal fiscal year. Carter had originally planned to give the workers only a 6.2 percent pay hike this year.

Monroe Reelected President Of Center's Board

Dr. Edwin W. Monroe was unanimously reelected president of the board of directors of the Eastern Area Health Education Center here yesterday afternoon.

The decision to ask Dr. Monroe, associate dean for external affairs of the ECU School of Medicine, to continue to head the board came during the executive committee meeting immediately following the annual meeting of the EAHEC Board of Directors.

John Blanton, administrator of Roanoke

Chowan Hospital, Ahoskie, was elected vice president and Dr. Jack W. Wilkerson, a Greenville family physician, secretary-treasurer.

During the general board meeting, which was attended by members from throughout the 23 Eastern North Carolina counties Eastern AHEC serves, accomplishments of the past six years and plans and goals for the next five, particularly the one upcoming, were discussed.

Rotation of residents and students in medical, nursing and other health disciplines is a growing responsibility.

F. M. Simmons Patterson, M. D., executive director of Eastern AHEC since its first day, told the group. He said continuing education functions are increasing, too, and he introduced staff members who now number 23 (There were four when EAHEC began six years ago, he reminded). He explained the accomplishments and the goals of each program of AHEC, and told of the participation in and improvements made in various continuing education programs during the past year.

Some 3,357 persons took part in 138 continuing medical education programs; 4,681 in 207 continuing nursing education programs; 1,930 in 66 allied health programs; 161 in seven pharmacy education programs, and 438 in 13 public health programs, he pointed out.

Locally based continuing education will continue to be stressed throughout the far-flung Eastern region. Dr. Joel Vickers, EAHEC deputy director, said during his presentation of the five-year plan of EAHEC as it relates to the five-year plan of the State AHEC of which EAHEC is a part.

Nursing is being given increased emphasis statewide, he said, as state and regional AHEC-conducted studies shown that nursing manpower will be a serious concern during coming days.

AHEC directors from throughout the state will be meeting with nursing directors to define programs for carrying out this emphasis, it was pointed out.

EAHEC Nursing Program Director Virginia Tate heads the planning of this effort.

It was pointed out during both the board meeting and the executive session that the economic outlook is for level funding, i. e. for little increase in available funds, but continuation by the state of previously federally funded programs.

Dr. Vickers said, if money is available, efforts to promote health career choices in the schools will be increased and that special emphasis on

Nurses Looking To Future

Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. has proclaimed Oct. 12-18 as Nurses Week in North Carolina to coincide with the 1980 convention of the North Carolina Nurses Association beginning Oct. 12 at the Bordeaux Convention Center, Fayetteville.

The Governor called for support and encouragement of the nursing profession in North Carolina as it seeks to improve and expand nursing education program and to extend the role of nurses and the care they render.

Ernestine Small, R. N., of Greensboro, president of NCNA, called attention to the convention's program emphasis on the credentialing of nurses. She said registered nurses are studying the various aspects of their credentialing — educational accreditation, certification and licensure — in order to plan as a profession to meet future needs of the public for quality nursing care.

She commented, "The growing complexities of health care — exotic and potent drugs, radiation therapy, hazardous materials, and transplants, to name a few — mean that the nurses of the future must be better educated and more skilled and accountable to the clients served for the quality and safety of their practice. The credentialing of those who deliver the essential service of nursing must assure the safety of those being cared for."

"We must match up the quality of service we render with the level of care the public needs. The Association attempts to give leadership to nursing in charting the future of the profession. We are looking at the legal framework for nursing in the future this week."

said he'd "drop by" if he could.

Well, in the middle of the party, my brother phones, asking if he can drop by with our father! I told him he had a lot of nerve putting me on the spot that way, and no, he could not bring our father because it might put a strain on the entire evening.

My father contends that there would have been nothing wrong with "surprising" me and dropping by just to say hello. I feel that not everybody belongs everywhere, and had I wanted my father there, I would have invited him along with the rest of the guests. What do you think?

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a really fabulous girl. Everything was going along famously until a month ago when she got herself a dog.

Ever since this dog came into her life she seems to have transferred all the affection she had for me to the dog. She cuddles him, kisses him, strokes him and calls him all the pet names she used to call me. She even holds him on her lap the whole time I'm with her. Abby, this mutt is literally coming between us.

In case you think this is a gag, her name is Cindy, the dog's name is Tiger and my name is Norman. If you think I'm jealous, you are right. But what can I do about it?

NORMAN

DEAR NORMAN: Insist that Cindy treat you like a dog. (P.S. If she refuses, bite her in the leg.)

Hubby's Time-Outs Warrant Penalty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are friendly with another couple whom we do not see very often because of the distance between us. We have dinner at one home or the other about twice a year. Tonight they were our guests.

They arrived promptly at 6:30 p.m. and we had drinks on the patio. At 7 p.m. my husband went inside and turned on the TV to catch the beginning of a football game. After 15 minutes, he joined us, "freshened" the drinks, then went back inside to watch the game, leaving me to entertain the couple. I tried several times, without success, to root him out.

At 7:30, my husband emerged, put the steaks on the grill (on the patio), then he ran inside again to watch the game, returning in time to turn the steaks. He rushed through dinner and — you guessed it — he sneaked in to watch the game again. I made conversation with the guests until the game was over. Then my football fan joined us for a spirited 20 minutes of conversation, after which our guests departed, saying they had a long drive home.

Needless to say, I am terribly upset and wonder if we will ever see these lovely people again. What should I have done? And how can I keep this from happening again?

FOOTBALL WIDOW

DEAR WIDOW: You should have kicked your husband in the end zone as soon as he started to pull the disappearing act. And in the future, don't schedule a dinner party on a football night unless everybody enjoys football and wants to watch it together.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle something for us. My husband and I, who have been married for two years, had a party for some of our close friends before my husband began law school. All of us are in our 20s.

My 20-year-old brother was invited. He did not accept, but

Designer Plans Party Ahead

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

When interior designers give charming parties I've heard guests say, "It's so easy for them. They're always creating attractive settings."

Well, it's not quite so easy as it may seem. What helps them keep their cool and makes their parties pleasant for their guests is the one trait they have in common: They're wizards at planning — each in his or her own way.

For example, interior designer Jessie Druss who works full-time in the New York City area, says: "My secret is to plan my menu around some dishes that I can make two or three weeks before the party, dishes I can freeze and that reheat well." Mrs. Druss makes these from scratch because she always uses fresh foods.

"I have my dinner parties on Saturday nights. That gives me a free day to do last-minute preparation. And to set the table. For the dining-table centerpiece I have my 'trademark.' Over the years I've collected a large number of crystal candlesticks and I choose among them for each party, arranging them with colored candles in different ways. Or my centerpiece is fresh flowers from my garden in a low bowl.

"My husband helps enormously by doing all the party shopping. He buys the foods necessary for the dishes I prepare ahead and also the necessary last-minute shopping."

As you'd expect, Mrs. Druss enjoys presenting food attractively.

At a recent dinner party her menu was stuffed chicken breasts, carrot loaf, fresh green peas, tossed green salad and a special chocolate cake. For the main course she presented the chicken breasts on a simple white platter garnished with parsley. Another shallow white platter held the carrot loaf topped with a row of freshly grated carrots and surrounded with fresh peas.

The carrot loaf is a recipe that's been in the Druss family for years and years. We recognized it as coming from Jewish cuisine — it's a moist sweet quick bread, with the lovely flavor of cinnamon and nutmeg, that originally was baked in a ring mold.

JESSIE DRUSS'S CARROT LOAF

- 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
  - 1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
  - 1 teaspoon baking powder
  - 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
  - 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
  - 1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
  - Fine dry bread crumbs
  - 3/4 cup butter, at room temperature
  - 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
  - 2 large eggs
  - 2 cups shredded (medium-fine) carrots, slightly packed
  - 1 tablespoon cold water
- In a small bowl or on wax paper stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon and nutmeg. Generously butter an 8 1/2 by 4 1/2 by 2 1/2-inch loaf pan; coat bottom and sides of mold with the bread crumbs. In a medium bowl cream the butter and sugar; beat in the eggs until blended. Add 1 3/4 cups of the carrots and the water; stir together. Stir in the flour mixture. Spoon into prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean, about 50 minutes. Remove from pan and place on a serving dish; garnish with remaining carrot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

This loaf may be made early in the day, unmolded and wrapped in foil. To reheat, place in a preheated 350-degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. Remove foil and serve. Add the carrot garnish after reheating.

Daugherty, Carol Hignite, Ms. Dunbar, and Ms. Melton as hostesses.

Mrs. Dunbar, chairman of the observance, invites club members to attend any of the meetings.

"Political Health" was the theme of the program at the meeting of the BPW Club held last week. A mock election was held in which President Carter won.

Natalie Grady, chairman of the legislative committee, directed a skit depicting a panel discussion in which several club members represented the candidates for the presidency of the United States and a fourth fictitious candidate.

Louise Congleton portrayed President Carter.

Nancy Smith was Ronald Reagan and Lucile Moore was John Anderson. Teresa Saieed represented fictitious candidate, Slim Pickens.

A second mock poll was taken which was again by President Carter with Pickens as second choice.

Elvira Alred urged all members to vote. President Mary Lib Daugherty welcomed Mary Lib Thompson of the D. H. Conley High School business department as a guest. Mildred Pate decorated the dining room in patriotic colors. Patriotic emblems were given to each member.

We'll Have To Do It

A Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce committee has recommended that two sports arenas be constructed there as well as a 2,500 seat performing arts center.

The report recommends that a 25,000 seat coliseum be constructed and a 40,000 seat outdoor sports arena.

It was proposed that the facilities be constructed and operated by private developers. However, general obligation bonds to purchase land would be issued. The performing arts center would also be constructed with general obligation bonds.

The local situation is far different from that of Charlotte, a major metropolitan area. Obviously that area can support facilities that smaller communities cannot.

Yet Eastern North Carolina has a population as large as most major cities, and somewhere in the area comparable facilities are needed.

Here in Greenville, because ECU is located here, we already have an outdoor sports arena and soon we will have excellent facilities for the performing arts.

What we don't have is the indoor arena. A structure to seat 12,000 to 15,000 would complement the other facilities for sports and entertainment which have been developed here to serve Eastern North Carolina. The facility would already have one logical attraction in the ECU basketball team, and other events could be booked to serve our broad area.

No one is going to give us this facility. If it is ever to come it will probably have to be done by the city and county, in cooperation with the university.

Let's Put Qualification First

Here we go. Ronald Reagan has pledged to appoint a woman to the U. S. Supreme Court if he is elected.

It is, of course, nothing countless other candidates, Democrat and Republican, haven't done in the past.

Couldn't our candidates tell us they will name the best qualified candidates they can locate to high government positions? If they are women, Eskimo or Texan, fine.

We are certain there are women qualified to be on the Supreme Court, but how degrading it would be for her to be chosen because she is first a woman.

Braking Demands

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — With state and local governments in North Carolina growing at a rapid pace both in budgets and personnel, it is plain that officials are going to have to take positive steps to put the brakes on continually increasing demands for more tax dollars.

Merit pay for governmental employees is gaining increased attention as an important way to address the problem.

The recent flap over ticket-writing as one element of an evaluation plan for the N.C. Highway Patrol demonstrates the difficulty of putting a merit pay program into practice.

The Patrol is essentially a highway safety organization, not a general law enforcement or crime detection unit such as a state police force might be. Through the years the state's leadership has consistently resisted any attempt to make the Highway Patrol anything but a force whose primary role is highway safety.

Enforcing traffic law means ticketing offenders, both as a deterrent to the driver immediately involved, and as a visible warning to other motorists that the agency is on the job.

Can't Win
Ironically, the Patrol has been chided by public and press for not cracking down hard enough on enforcement of the 55 miles per hour speed limit, and pressure has been applied from time to time for more Patrol response to drunk driving.

When the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety quietly implemented the evaluation plan which would be used in rewarding troopers with promotions or raises, a number of productivity and performance measures were spelled out, one of which was a comparison of ticket writing by an individual trooper in production increased some 45 percent over that of the same month a year ago, and that the bulk of those tickets were written for drunk driving or speeding in excess of 65

comparison to his colleagues working in the same vicinity, and to the history of ticket-writing in that area. This, it was hoped, would eliminate the possibility that varying traffic conditions would allow a ticket-happy trooper to win more points.

Public reaction was swift, and even judges and district attorneys protested that having a system which even appeared to reward a trooper for numbers of tickets undercut the confidence which must be placed in the law-enforcement agency.

The evaluation plan is being rewritten, eliminating the ticket-writing measure. But the record for the month in which that program was in effect shows that ticket

NO WONDER SO MANY VOTERS ARE UNDECIDED!

BY ART BUCHWALD

Who Not To Vote For

WASHINGTON — What makes this election year different from all other years is that no one seems to be discussing which candidate he's supporting, only which candidate he's not voting for.

I went into a bar the other night, and the stranger on my left said, "Who are you going to vote against this year?"

"I haven't made up my mind yet," I said honestly. "All the candidates have given me a reason to vote against them, but I still have to wait until I see what they do in their last week."

"That makes sense. If you decide now you're going to vote against one of the three, you get committed. And if the other two say something, you might want to vote against thought he'd fade away in New Hampshire. But now that he's a third-party candidate, I'm thinking about voting against him."

"If you do that," I said, "you'll be wasting your vote. Voting against Anderson will only get you you Carter or Reagan."

"That's what my wife said," Lester told me. "A vote against Anderson is like no vote at all."

"Besides, it would endanger the two-party system. An American should either vote against a Republican or a Democrat in the upcoming election. At least we know where their parties stand on the issues."

Lester said, "It's my turn to buy you a drink. Now the way I see it, if we vote against Carter, we won't have four more years of what we've got now."

"But that doesn't mean we'll get anything better with Reagan. He's promising everything, but that doesn't mean he can deliver on any of them instead." "Can I buy you a drink?" I said.

"That would be nice. This election really gives you a thirst. You know I was against Carter a long time ago, and I was certain that I would not vote for him. But then the Republicans nominated Ronald Reagan and I said, 'wait a minute, Lester. Reagan looks like a guy you could vote against just as easily as Carter.'"

"You can say that again. Personally, I didn't have anything against Reagan until he started campaigning for office. But after hearing some of the things he said, I thought to myself, 'This guy bears watching. He could get us into more trouble than Carter — and that's saying a lot.'"

Lester warmed up to our conversation. "You know I've never had anything against John Anderson because I didn't know who he was. I

To the editor:

In the Reflector, Oct. 13, Mr. Calvin C. Henderson wrote: "Nov. 5, vote like your life depended on it." He is correct. Indeed, the very life of the U. S. A. does depend on it. We are told by this administration that the U. S. A. is militarily the strongest nation in the world. This is a falsehood and the administration knows it is false. All statistics of manpower, of standard weapons, of naval units, of super-nuclear weapons, show the Soviets to be vastly superior.

As evidence that the administration knows our condition to be inferior, consider the following sequence.

1. When Russia sent ICBM to Cuba, JFK demanded that they be removed; they were. The U. S. A. was powerful.
2. Russia started the building of submarine pens in Cuba. Nixon demanded that they be stopped. They stopped. The U. S. A. was still powerful.
3. Russia sent nuclear-capable MIGs to Cuba. Carter protested. They stayed. Then Carter accepted. The MIGs are still there. Why?
4. Russia sent combat soldiers to Cuba (not technicians, who were already there). Carter was angry, said they must go. They stayed. Carter said it didn't matter.

For the second time in 150 years, European troops were in the New World in violation of the Monroe Doctrine. The first time France withdrew its troops from Mexico when the U. S. was able to take notice. Of course, the Monroe Doctrine is now just history. Why? But the administration says we are the strongest military nation in the world. The Russians laugh. How long before we weep?

The administration asserts that we are diplomatically the strongest nation in the world. Why the setbacks around the world? Why do our allies send "feeling" delegations to Moscow? Is this the mark of powerful diplomacy?

On Nov. 4 vote like your life depended on it. It does. And those of your children!

Strength For Today

DISCREDITING THE DISCREDITORS

When the Dead Sea Scrolls were discovered, some observers felt that the time had come to rewrite the Bible. "This will show," said others, "that the Bible we have today has suffered so much in transmission that it can hardly be relied upon as an accurate record of divine revelation."

But when the shouting had died down, it was found that the material inscribed on the scrolls and the material now contained in our Hebrew Bible is, to all intents and purposes, the same. Nothing had been damaged by transmission. What the discovery of the scrolls did disclose is that scholars — particularly Jewish scholars — had through the centuries been doing a faithful piece of work. They had been copying and preserving sacred truth in a manner which has put us all in their debt.

Many attempts have been made throughout history to discredit the Bible. But after all the evidence is in, it is always plain that the discreditors have discredited themselves. — Elisha Douglass

New Carter Is 'Careful'

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
BOSTON (AP) — Tip O'Neill put it right up front: "Call it the high road or call it the low road, that's the facts." No apologist he, not when denouncing Ronald Reagan.

But then, O'Neill is speaker of the House, not a president trying to get re-elected. That's Jimmy Carter's role, and he has tempered his anti-Reagan rhetoric just a bit, lest the hard line backfire.

So he acknowledged that he might have overstated when he said the choice was war or peace, and when he claimed a Republican victory would divide Americans, black from white, Christian from Jew.

The new Carter tends to use more recent Reagan quotations as the targets of his campaign attacks. He doesn't say flatly that it is a war-or-peace election. But he certainly gives that impression.

"I'm not insinuating anything underhandedly about my opponent, but there's a pattern that concerns me," Carter said the other day, campaigning in Boston with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and O'Neill cheering him on. "My Republican opponent has called for the injection of American military forces repeatedly into trouble spots around the world..."

"You might say that's ancient history, he's changed. This year — Cuba, Pakistan, the Middle East. The choice is a very serious one."

He conjured up a 200-mile-long railroad train filled with TNT to illustrate the power of a one megaton nuclear weapon, then quoted Reagan:

"He said that he thought the best approach to arms control was to threaten the possibility of a nuclear arms race."

In Yatesville, Pa., it was Social Security: "You ... should be deeply concerned about the four different times when my Republican opponent has called for a voluntary Social Security system." Reagan denies that is his position.

In Secaucus, N.J., he urged labor leaders to put their forces to work for Democratic victory. "The quality of life of the people that you love, and the status of the country that you love in the international community, those things are at stake."

Carter isn't being kind, he's being careful. These days, many of his campaign speeches come with what amounts to footnotes, citations from the Reagan record as points of attack. Perhaps the old style was too shrill to be effective; the new style is just about as tough.

There's nothing wrong with that. Nowhere is it written that the Democratic presidential nominee is supposed to be gentle when speaking of the Republican nominee. That's not the way it works. Reagan attacks, too, when it suits his political purpose.

And it may, during these final campaign weeks. Carter strategists claim to be closing fast, although they acknowledge Reagan probably remains ahead of their man. And the president seems to be hitting his campaign stride.

Carter and his team once seemed reluctant to rely much on Kennedy, their vanquished rival for the nomination, as a partner and proxy in the general election campaign. Not now. With Carter beaming at his side, the Massachusetts senator said the president offers the voters "hope, not despair; progress, not reaction; reconciliation, not division."

"I said last year that on Oct. 15 I would be campaigning in New Jersey for the presidency of the United States, and you know what — here I am, campaigning for Jimmy Carter," Kennedy joked.

He's on the road for the ticket now, and Carter is stepping up his own political operation for the final push to the Nov. 4 election, toward a full-time effort during the last 10 days.

He bears down daily on Reagan, but there is a new theme, too, a summons to Democrats not to desert their political heritage for Reagan or for independent John B. Anderson.

"I've come here today as a Democrat in the tradition of Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, Lyndon Baines Johnson, Hubert Humphrey, to remind you of the past, to let you know what a great nation we have today and how much better nation we can have in the future," he

Unisex Concept 'Upsets' Data

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The life expectancy at birth of a U.S. female is just over 77 years. For a man it is just over 69 years. That's eight years by most calculations, but some see it as no difference at all.

They assert that to claim a difference is to discriminate unfairly. Male and female are equally human, they say, and human life expectancy at birth in the United States is 73 years. They are the unisexers.

As you might expect, the unisex concept is producing considerable confusion in the insurance industry, in which insurance costs and benefits, and annuities too, are based on precise actuarial tables.

You might even say actuarial tables, the mathematical odds, are the foundation of the business, and that the business of insurance is merely that of spreading the known risks, in the manner of a casino.

That neat, ostensibly objective arrangement is now threatened with disarray because, as some actuaries say, the unisexers refuse to believe in differences, including mathematic and genetic.

The unisexers won't buy that. Individuals are individuals, not actuarial contrivances, they say. William M. Mercer Inc., the nation's largest employee benefit consulting firm, puts it this way:

"A particular woman may not live longer than a particular man, and our discrimination laws have focused on individuals, not groups. Therefore, it is argued that sex differentiated mortality tables can no longer be used to establish different benefit amounts."

Mercer, which must advise companies on their benefits programs, is justifiably worried. It can search through legislative, judicial and regulatory decisions, but it will find more confusion than guidance.

"The differences in life expectancy have not changed," it states ruefully. "Social attitudes have changed."

Reflecting those changes, a major retirement fund — the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund — is considering a unisex mortality table to determine monthly benefits.

Under the plan, men and women of the same age would receive the same monthly benefits if they contribute the same amount of premium dollars, regardless of the likelihood that the women will collect for a longer period of time. Equality of sexes would override the actuarial tables.

While the teachers' plan might finally resolve some difficulties, it seems likely to produce others, including some that will demand a refinement of hair-splitting beyond the discernment of some judges.

What, for example, will be asked of life insurers who several years ago lowered their insurance rates for women because, they explained, the actuarial tables showed women to be the better risk?

In the name of unisexuality and equality will they be asked to raise their rates for women? Will they be asked to lower their rates for men?

So far, nobody has the answers. "The problems of unisex tables and equal benefits for equal contributions aren't simple and will require much effort to arrive at workable solutions," says Mercer.

"If the genetic argument is disregarded," it told clients recently, "the transition to unisex operation factors will be difficult."

miles per hour. Those involved in the planning for the evaluation program in the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety remain unconvinced that keeping track of ticket writing is not a legitimate measure.

Pressure
It is obvious that public pressure played a key role in scuttling the plan. Gov. Jim Hunt took a firm stance in favor; only to reverse himself in short order. That turnabout by the governor was influenced to a considerable degree by what was happening on the road: many state troopers found themselves being ridiculed by motorists who accused them of writing a ticket only because they needed a few more to get a raise.

All of which merely points up the extreme complexity of devising a fair and workable method of measuring productivity in governmental jobs, and rewarding those who perform well while penalizing the below standard worker. As government looks more and more at evaluation and merit pay in all job categories, the first step must be a method to measure performance while filtering out political and personality influences.

it. A vote against Reagan could keep us out of a war."

"That's what Carter says, but Reagan says he isn't telling the truth. If I find out Carter is lying I'm going to vote against him."

Lester said, "It's your turn to buy me a drink."

I replied, "Sorry about that. It's too bad we can't split our vote."

"How's that?"

"I'd like to vote against Carter's economic policies and Reagan's foreign policies."

"That would solve it for us," Lester agreed. "But we have to vote against the man and not his policies."

"I'm afraid so. They sure put us in a heck of a spot this year. Remember how easy it was to vote against someone in a previous election?"

"Do I? I could decide who I was against right after the conventions and never waver until Election Day. Now I'm afraid to wake up in the morning, because I never know what the candidate I'm against at the moment has done the night before."

Local Baha'i Observe Day

The public is invited to share dinner and prayers with the Greenville Baha'i community Monday, Oct. 20, at 6 p. m. at the home of Hazel Worthington, 1621 S. Pitt Street, as they commemorate the anniversary of the birth of the Bab.

The Bab (a title meaning Gate or Door) was born Mirza Ali Muhammed in Shiraz, Persia (present-day Iran) in 1819 and is seen by his followers as a messenger from God. He and his followers taught that spiritual truth is present in all the world's major religions and that, therefore, religion is one, united in devotion to one God.

Many Iranian members of the Baha'i community have been persecuted under the regime of the Ayatollah Khomeini. Recently all nine members of the National Spiritual Assembly of the Baha'is of Iran were arrested. Among the charges were harboring pro-American sentiments since a "prayer for America" is among the Baha'i prayers.

Individuals or families interested in attending the commemoration, arranging transportation, or learning more about the Baha'i faith are invited to call 752-4483.

James Earl Ray Will Vote, Too

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray, the convicted killer of Martin Luther King Jr., is taking advantage of a federal court ruling that Tennessee prison inmates have a right to vote.

Ray, who sent a postcard to the county elections board, was registered as a voter on Wednesday. Knox County Election Registrar Jim Petrone said Ray would be sent an absentee ballot next week.

Ray, 52, pleaded guilty to the 1969 slaying of King in Memphis and is serving a 99-year sentence at Brushy Mountain Penitentiary, which is 45 miles outside of Knoxville. U.S. District Judge Robert McRae ruled in August that inmates in Tennessee prisons can vote.

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — What once was destined for the stomach of a farmer's dairy cow is now a fast selling item in America's war against the gasoline pump: the lowly cow magnet.

There's a craze for the 3½-inch-long metal rods — which keep the average Holstein or Brown Swiss from digesting bits of metal they've swallowed — as a gas-saving device for cars and trucks.

Millions of the powerful magnets are being sold at farm supply stores across the United States to people who say the items boost mileage when attached to fuel lines.

Some, like 23-year-old Raymond Hunninghake of Topeka, claim to have gotten nearly four extra miles per gallon by using magnets.

The four-ounce magnets, about a half-inch wide with rounded ends, traditionally are plopped down the throats of dairy cows to lodge in the first of a cow's four stomachs. There the device attracts stray wire and metal bits that a cow might swallow while grazing and prevents so-called "Hardware Disease" or damage to the digestive system.

But Hunninghake installed them in his six-cylinder pickup truck, which he uses for a daily newspaper route. He swears that his mileage has jumped from 7.7 to 11.5 mpg in the first week of use and 10.3 in the second week. "It even seems to start better with the magnets," he says.

The magnet craze apparently began several months ago in Washington and Oregon and has since been spreading across the country.

"It's the hottest thing on the market," says Dave Stone, president of Stone Manufacturing Supply Inc., a Kansas City, Mo., company that is one of about a half dozen cow magnet makers nationwide and the sole supplier in the Midwest.

Usually, his company sells

50,000 to 100,000 cow magnets each year to farm and veterinarian supply distributors in the 50 states, Canada, Europe, Australia and Central and South America.

"We're selling 10 times that now, and we just can't get them produced fast enough," says Stone. "We got a lot of people standing in line for them."

To cash in on the craze, Stone's company came up with a new magnet specifically designed for use on car engines.

Dakota Doves Up For 'Vote'

By DAVID EGNER

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — George McGovern is not the only dove in trouble in South Dakota.

While the liberal Democratic senator faces a stiff Republican challenge, the Nov. 4 ballot also will ask whether mourning dove hunting should be allowed to resume in South Dakota.

As the campaign takes wing, forces are divided according to whether they view the dove as the symbol of peace or as a tasty dinner.

"The dove is a gentle bird, he'd like to be friends," says Maggie Warren, who's leading the fight to keep dove hunting illegal.

"Dove ... offers a meal to be enjoyed for its special flavor and tenderness," says a brochure by pro-hunting forces.

"Protect us doves ... it's a matter of Life and Death to me," says an anti-dove-hunting newspaper ad with a drawing of the bird talking to voters.

"Don't let the anti-hunters win in South Dakota," counters an ad by the Committee to Protect Hunting.

Mrs. Warren, 63, a Hermosa rancher, led a successful referendum campaign to outlaw the state dove hunting season in 1972, the year of the ill-fated McGovern presidential campaign which sometimes saw the dove used as a symbol of his opposition to the Vietnam war.

McGovern trailed badly in recent polls but has been closing the gap in his current race for re-election against conservative U.S. Rep. James Abdnor.

The Legislature voted in 1979 to re-establish dove hunting, but Mrs. Warren then launched another petition drive that blocked the season.

The Committee to Protect Hunting, a group chaired by former Gov. Joe Foss and aided financially by the National Rifle Association, is leading the fight to bring back dove hunting.

The committee cites statistics indicating no biological reason for not hunting South Dakota's 15-20 million doves — they are America's most abundant game bird and typically live less than a year anyway.

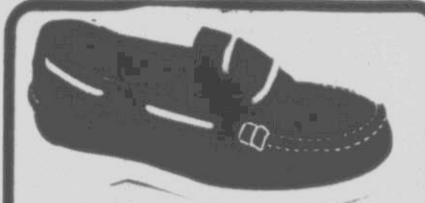

The committee also argues that more than dove hunting is at stake.

"Whether you hunt or not, I hope you will take a stand in support of individual freedom and our state's hunting heritage," Foss says.

Mrs. Warren denies she opposes all hunting, but says the dove population is declining and could be wiped out by hunting.

"I don't give a hoot where or what you shoot," she says, "except for doves."

Its name comes from a Latin word meaning "south." Australia is an important farming and industrial country, with valuable mineral resources including gold, iron ore and lead. It is the world's leading producer of sheep and wool. Inflation, unemployment and other economic problems have been key issues in the election campaign.

Over 150 Citizens Will Serve Mayor Committee

Over 150 area residents have agreed to serve on the various committees and subcommittees of the newly organized Mayor's Advisory Committee, according to Dr. Wallace R. Woolees, general chairman.

Six overall committees, each with co-chairmen, will be involved in the study effort and subcommittees of at least 16 members will serve under the six overall areas.

Serving as co-chairmen of the Protection and Safety Committee are Kelly Barnhill and Ruth F. Trevathan, while subcommittee members in that area include Lee Ball, Martha Coffman, Pat Dunn, Ray Edwards, Dick Flye, Frank Goins, Ise Hendrix, Guy Langston, Millie McGrath, R. W. MacKenzie Jr., Dallas McPerson, Tom Parrish, John Schofield, Stuart Shinn, Ed Waldrop, Andy Warren, Sam White, Sidney Womack and Mary Alice Yarbrough.

The Leisure Activities and Recreation Committee will be co-chaired by Max Joyner and Janice Faulkner, with Harvey Bradshaw, John Childers, Ted R. Ellis III, Laura Farley, "Bo" Farley, Joe Godette, Sandra Harrison, Tommie Little, Wilson McDowell, Dave Odom, Mrs. Delbert Roscoe, Tom Sayetta, Earl Tadlock, E. A. Warren, Joan B. Warren and Mrs. Sydney Womack serving on the subcommittee.

The area of Environmental Protection will be chaired by Ronald Theile and Donald Ensley, with the subcommittee for that area of study made up of Ernest Adams, Carl G. Adler, Paul Andrews, Michael Bell, Oris Blackwell, Patrick Dayson, Phillip Dickerson, William Hankins, William E. Hudson, Albert J. Lalik, Y. J. Lao, Paul Mehne, Roscoe Norfleet, Larry Oakley, Barbara Peoples, John Perry, Patricia Rice, John Schofield, Walter M. Sheppard, Sherwood Silliman, Grace Smith, Leroy Smith, Cally Stocks, Sallye Streeter, Buster Thompson, Mark Tipton, Douglas Wilms and Margaret Wirth.

The New Revenue Sources Committee will be co-chaired by J. Reid Hooper and Maxine Brown and subcommittee members will be Ernest Adams, Ernest Brown, Mrs. James Buck, Erma S. Carr, Patricia Daugherty, R. W. Davenport, Andy DeCuzzi, Marilyn Fields, Barry Gardner, Billy Laughinghouse, Donald Lewellyn, Ellen Mayer, Leigh Semester, Charles R. Smith, Barbara Streeter and Brenda Tenes.

Dr. Robert G. Deyton Jr. and Jean Darden will co-chair the Administrative Services Committee and William Cobb, George Coffman, Mary C. Daughtry, Chris Davis, Jerry Flake, John P. DeVanzo, Ella Harris, Charlie Holliday, John Howard, Roscoe King, Douglas McGraw, Melvin McLawhorn, Evelyn McNeill, Dean Painter, Bubba Rawls, Bill Regan, Gladyn Sanders and Charles Whitner will serve on the subcommittee for that area.

Woolees pointed out at this week's executive committee meeting that all committees have met and are now functioning. He added that the study is only in the fact finding stage and nothing will be official until adopted by the executive committee and sent to the mayor and city council. Before the material is forwarded to the mayor and council, he pointed out, it is planned that every citizen will have the opportunity to offer input into any area in which they are interested. The format for receiving that input is now being studied.

The advisory board, which is strictly volunteer, will identify and review the level and extent of services provided by the city and prepare a document stating the level of services desired in ten years and how those services can be most efficiently provided.

New Ordinance For Winterville

WINTERVILLE — The Board of Aldermen met Monday night to consider an ordinance to regulate door-to-door peddlers and to hear a request for a rate adjustment for cable TV service.

An ordinance declaring door-to-door peddling a misdemeanor was passed. Any person going inside a private residence without being asked first falls under the jurisdiction of this ordinance. All peddlers must go before the town board for approval before going door-to-door. "This ordinance is an attempt to cut down on door-to-door canvassing," explained Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

A request was heard from Mike Bell of Tar River Communications to set a public hearing for a rate adjustment for cable TV service. The public hearing was set for November 10 at 6:30 p.m.

Committee reports were heard from the fire and rescue committees. A meeting between the Rural Fire Association and the board of Aldermen, requested by Fire Chief Carlton Branch, was set for October 27 at 7 p.m.

Don Davenport of the county gave a report on the proposed container location at the old dump site. He asked the town to push the trash back and clean the area. The board requested that no trash be hauled in while the site is under construction. "We certainly hope everybody will help us and cooperate," commented Nobles. When completed, the site will be open for both rural and in-town residents.

In other action, the board voted to release $501.88 in taxes, most of which is old age exemptions. A bid of $2,500 to fix leaks in the municipal building was also accepted.

The board agreed to put a chain link fence around Worthington Heights-Rossington Heights sewer lift station to prevent the machinery from being tampered with.

Cecil Mizelle from Worsley, Farley Prescott and Mizelle Co. presented the audit of the town's finances for the year ending June 30, 1980. The audit was accepted as presented. Mizelle stated that the funds were in better shape than the year before.

The board also passed a regulation stating that no persons other than policemen, alternate policemen, town officials and town employees are allowed to ride in the police vehicles.

It was reported that the fuel charge for the October 20 meter reading will be $12 per 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity. The town's cost for September was $11.93 per 1,000 kilowatt hours, and the saving was passed on to the customers.

Afghan Rebels Say Valley Attack Was Defeated

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI (AP) — Moslem rebels repelled an attempt by Soviet and Afghan government forces to capture a strategic Afghan mountain pass in a four-day battle, causing heavy casualties, according to a Kabul source whose reports have been accurate in the past.

The source, who arrived from the Afghan capital Thursday, said the anti-communist rebels killed or wounded 40-50 Soviet soldiers and killed "hundreds" of Afghan Marxist volunteers and tribal mercenaries during the fighting in the Ghorband Valley, 60 miles northwest of Kabul.

"Losses on the Mujahdeen (rebel) side were heavy as well," he said.

The source said 400 Soviet tanks and armored vehicles and about 1,000 Afghan volunteers and mercenaries were involved in the attempt, which he claimed was the first major government offensive since the Soviets abandoned efforts to seize the Panjshir Valley last month. Rebel-held Panjshir lies northeast of Kabul.

There was no independent confirmation of the report, but diplomatic sources in Kabul said they had received accounts of a pitched battle in the Ghorband Valley area with heavy losses on both sides.

In a separate meeting with reporters here, an Afghan army defector claimed in a report that could not be verified that an underground network with 40,000 members was being set up around the country, preparing to move against Soviet forces.

Within three months, he said, there would be a wave of assassinations and bombings in Kabul. "The events will be very sensational," said the defector, who declined use of his name.

He said the group stole money from the Afghan government and weapons from Soviet troops.

Sometimes the Soviets readily accepted hashish in exchange for their Kalashnikovs, he claimed. "The soldiers take the hashish and get intoxicated and we overpower them and take their arms."

The rebel said he had helped set up the group shortly after an estimated 85,000 Soviet troops entered Afghanistan last December, ousting Afghan President Hafizullah Amin and installing Babrak Karmal.

Karmal traveled to Moscow Thursday for the first time since he was installed. He met with President Leonid I. Brezhnev and other Kremlin officials, and receiving a warm welcome despite speculation by sources in New Delhi that the Afghan leader might be in trouble because of continued resistance to his regime by the Afghan rebels.

Brezhnev used the occasion of a state dinner in Karmal's honor to repeat Soviet charges that America was behind an "undeclared war" on Afghanistan.

He also charged that "feverish military preparations and unrestrained propaganda — it can be even said a eulogy of nuclear war — have reached an unprece-dent scale in the United States," according to a report in the official Tass news agency.

Before the dinner, the Soviet and Afghan delegations signed a joint statement expressing satisfaction "with the successful and fruitful development of Soviet-Afghan friendship," Tass said. The news agency account made no mention of the Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

The declaration was not expected to be made public until after Karmal leaves the Soviet Union sometime this weekend, but diplomats here predicted the Afghan regime would receive pledges of massive economic, technical, political and military support.

Mildred B. Manning of 1906 East Eighth St. has been presented a certificate for outstanding volunteer service by the Pitt County Involvement Council.

Mrs. Manning, who headed the ECU post office for 18½ years, has spent some 3,000 in volunteer service in the mail room at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Gives Up All For Prisoner

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Diane Doyle gave up her home, job, family and friends in New York to come here and marry a former heroin addict who has been convicted of a sex crime and faces a murder trial.

"We want to be together, and if we can't be together in this life, we'll be together in the next," she said in an interview published Thursday in the Oakland Tribune.

The object of her love is John Doyle, whom she "met" by answering an advertisement for a pen pal in the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper.

Doyle is in the Alameda County Jail awaiting trial on a murder charge in the April 1979 killing of Oakland pharmacist Larry Jung. County prosecutor Tom Orloff says he will ask for the death penalty if Doyle is convicted.

The Doyles were married by a judge in a jailhouse ceremony in March. No conjugal visits are permitted at the jail, but the couple has been permitted to embrace on three occasions.

Doyle, 38, since 1966 has been convicted of assorted felonies including sodomy, burglary, receiving stolen property, escape and illegal possession of guns.

Court records indicate Doyle is prepared to argue at the murder trial that he was so drugged he didn't know what he was doing when Jung fell dead with a .45-caliber slug in his chest.

Mrs. Doyle, 29, says she spends much of her waking hours doing legal research to help her husband.

Large Turnout To Tour Empire Brushes Plant

State and local governmental leaders, commercial and industrial members of the Greenville area, customers and out of town guests were among those attending an open house of the Empire Brushes facilities here Thursday.

The open house activities for the guests included a tour of the new corporate structure as well as the manufacturing and distribution facilities.

Empire Brushes, which relocated corporate headquarters to Greenville, built a new 19,000 office section at the local plant and some 70,000 square feet of warehouse space.

The new circular shaped corporate structure, which will house executive offices as well as sales, finance, and bookkeeping departments, incorporates a unique feature that helps the plant meet insurance requirements of having some 350,000 gallons of water on hand. Architects designed the building around a center pool that will hold the required quantity of water.

Empire Brushes, started in New York City in 1909 by Joseph Gantz, manufactures household brooms and brushes, as well as a line of hair brushes. The company employs some over 400 people here.

Empire Brushes located in Greenville in 1964 and completed expansion phases in 1969, 1974, and 1977, in addition to the recent addition. The Greenville plant now contains roughly 375,000 square feet.

The company also operates a small plant in Meridian, Miss., where handles are manufactured for company brooms.

Remarks were made during the open house by Jack Gantz, president; Joe Gantz, executive vice president; Mayor Don McGlohon; Ed Warren, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners; and Tommy Edwards, chairman of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,250 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 5:42 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 440 feet west of the Arlington Boulevard intersection involving cars driven by Donald Eugene Sweeting II of Carboro and Roy Hester Johnson of Winterville.

Officers, who charged Sweeting with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $600 to the Sweeting car and $850 to the Johnson auto.

Cars driven by Anita Susan Byrd of 215 Tyler Dorm and Raymond Grady of 1705 South Pitt St. collided about 8 a.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets, resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the Byrd vehicle and $300 damage to the Grady car.

New Officers At Pactolus

The Pactolus Title I elected officers for their third local PAC Tuesday night.

Brenda Clark was elected chairperson, Terry Mozingo as vice-chairperson, and Irish Clemons as secretary. They will also represent Pactolus in the County PAC meetings.

Of primary concern to the group was better communication between parents, teachers, and children. Means to achieve this goal were explored and plans for further action were discussed. Some ideas were:

Parent Volunteer Workshop, Parent Visitation Day, Human Relations Workshop, Volunteer Help in the Media, and Involvement in the Halloween Carnival.

$325,000 For His 'Conviction'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A man wrongly convicted in a fatal firebombing case will receive $325,000 in damages from the city under a settlement approved by a federal judge.

Robert "Reds" Wilkinson charged that police beat him to force him to confess to an October 1975 firebombing that took five lives. His conviction was overturned when David McGinniss, a key witness against Wilkinson, confessed to the firebombing.

Six homicide detectives were sentenced in 1978 to 15 months in prison for violating the civil rights of Wilkinson and others in the case. They were released in March after their sentences were reduced.

The settlement was announced Wednesday.

Robbery Investigated

FARMVILLE — An armed robbery at Mack's Department Store at Farmville Square Shopping Center is being investigated by the Farmville Police Department.

Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper said a white male armed with a pistol walked into the store five minutes before its 10 p.m. closing time Wednesday and ordered the manager and other three employees present to turn around and not look at him and then to lie on the floor. He took a bank bag holding an undisclosed amount of money.

There were no customers in the store at the time, Manager Terry Blair told police. He encouraged his employees to comply fully with the robber's demands. No one saw how the man left the shopping center, he said.

REVIVAL

Dr. West Shields Jr., evangelist of Greenville, is performing revival services at Fleming Chapel A.M.E. Zion Church. Blanche Hopkins and the Rock Spring Travelling Choir will provide music. Services begin nightly at 7:30 p.m. The pastor, Rev. Alvin Cratic, invites the public to attend.

FAMILIAR PLACE — First Lady Roksalynn Carter, left, and daughter Amy inspect a miniature replica of the White House at the exhibition in Washington Thursday. The exhibition is the work of John Zweifel of Orlando, Fla., who started working on it 20 years ago, built the replica at a cost of more than $400,000 as a gift to the American people. It is authentic in every detail from the handcarved furniture to the hand-blown crystal chandeliers, telephones that ring, quarter-inch working television sets, clocks that keep time and hand-blown lamps that turn on and off. In the background, below, is Amy's friend Carla Foster. (AP Laserphotos)

Never Enough Storage Space For Any Family

By GAIL MICHAELS
According to Michaels' Law given any amount of storage space, a typical family will always need more.

In my whole life I've never had enough closet space. No matter how radical my approach to spring cleaning is, I can't seem to solve this problem. I've tried the Salvation Army, yard sales, and moving, but nothing helps. In no time the left-overs breed and spill into the surrounding area. In fact, my entire house could be converted into a storage room without any ascertainable difference.

The same thing goes with cars. For years Phillip and I have been taking trips in our Toyota with our knees tucked under our chins to make room for our suitcases. Even a one-day outing required enough food, toys, and clothing to keep Meg happy, reasonably clean, and buried somewhere in the backseat. When Zachary came along, we simply decided never to travel again outside a ten mile radius of our home.

But my parents, terrified that this decision would cut off access to their grandchildren for at least 15 years, gave us their old station wagon. Never mind that it gets five miles to the gallon and requires a quart of oil at every other pit stop; it does have air conditioning and enough room for the adults to put their feet on the floor.

Our only major disappointment was that we envisioned much more. Somehow, I imagined Meg stretched out in her sleeping bag on long trips or the playpen set up in the back as Zachary got older. Unfortunately, after packing for our first overnight trip since the acquisition of our four-wheeled barge, we had a space left for Meg the size of road atlas.

Not only had we packed for two seasons, the equivalent of two four-drawer chests and the master bedroom closet, but we had included a minimum number of essentials: a stroller, a porta-crib, a baby bathtub, enough toys and books to occupy Meg to the city limits, a diaper bag, a cooler, two boxes of disposable diapers, and enough of Zachary's sheets and blankets to catch what the diapers didn't.

If this wasn't depressing enough, our destination was. We stayed at the new home of childless friends. They had literally built a glass house. And until we came, it didn't have any smudges. What's more, they had one closet.

With one closet my house would look like an illegal roadside dump. Their house looked like a feature story for "Better Homes and Gardens." By unloading the station wagon we doubled the amount of furnishings.

The closet itself warranted a cover page. Our hosts didn't even bother to shut its door.

All weekend long I kept sneaking peeks at its cluttered shelves and its bare floor. By the time we finished our two-hour repacking job and started for home, I was thoroughly depressed.

"Of course," I told Phillip, "we never used to shut the door of our closet either."

"Yes, but they can shut their door if they want to."

"So?"

"We couldn't."

Fresno Minister Uses His Joke-writing Skills

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — You won't hear any hellfire and brimstone when the Rev. Bob Phillips preaches, but you could get a few laughs. The local minister writes joke books on the side — clean joke books, of course — and he says his faith is all the stronger for it.

"I think it's a real contribution to bring light and laughter into people's lives," says the 39-year-old minister. "Proverbs says, 'A merry heart worketh like medicine,' and recent studies have shown that laughing is good for your health."

Phillips was pastor of Northwest Church for 4½ years before becoming director of the Fresno Counseling Center. He has written 11 books in the last seven years, selling more than one million copies. Seven of the 11 are collections of jokes. For example: The sharp young attorney was cross-examining an elderly witness to an accident. "You say you were about 40 feet away from the scene of the accident? Let me remind you that you're 86 years old. Just how far can you see clearly?"

The elderly man responded, "Well, when I wake up I see the sun and they tell me that's about 93 million miles away."

"In my books," Phillips explains, "I've tried to stay away from swear words, from sexual innuendo, from alcohol and drug innuendo, and jokes about body excretions."

He managed to include non-offensive ethnic jokes in his seven books of about 1,000 jokes each by inventing a country which he calls Smogaria.

"It's neutral. Why offend someone when I can tell a good joke and use a neutral country?" Phillips said.

Question: Why are there so few Smogarian fashion models? Answer: Because Smogarian girls don't smile when the photographer says "cheese." They drool. (Could Smogaria possibly be Los Angeles?)

Phillips says he has the world's largest collection of clean jokes. "I collect them. Jokes are public domain, so anyone can use them. I personally have read over 28,000 pages of jokes — that's a stack of books about six feet high."

The whole thing started because Phillips enjoyed telling and listening to jokes. As assistant director at Hume Lake Christian Camp in the Sierra for 11 years he handled several conferences for couples.

He recalls the best times were usually had at the Saturday night skits filled with one-liners. (Sermons are like babies — easy to conceive — hard to deliver.)

"It is important to take a look at yourself and realize life's not so serious," Phillips says. "Humor takes a real life situation and blows it out of proportion."

Phillips books, including "The All American Joke Book" and "Lot's o' Laughs," usually bring in about $4,000 a year in royalties. One year, jokes were fairly big business for Phillips and about $16,000 rolled in. But "a large portion" of that goes to the government and charities, he says.

Humor compliments his faith, the minister believes.

Show Unity Over Energy

NEW YORK (AP) — In an unusual display of religious cooperation, most of the nation's Protestant, Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish congregations have been urged to observe this weekend as "Responsible Energy Sabbath."

Participating congregations are to commit themselves to some kind of energy-saving project for the coming year.

"Energy is a religious issue," a joint statement on the observance said. "The call for conservation is a call to conserve what God has given us, the call to turn away from wasteful consumption and create new ways to meet our human need."

Sponsors, one of the broadest coalitions of American religious groups to join in such a common effort, are:

The U.S. Catholic Conference, the Synagogue Council of America, the Southern Baptist Convention and the National Council of Churches, made up of 32 Protestant and Orthodox denominations. Altogether, they involve about 200,000 local congregations.

Bethel Church Plans Event

Bethel United Methodist Church will hold its annual homecoming Sunday, with dinner after the 11 a.m. worship service.

The Rev. Richard T. Commander, Supt. of the Greenville District of the N.C. Conference of the United Methodist Church, will be the guest minister.

Commander is in his sixth year as leader of the six-county district. He has served churches in Elizabeth City, Hamlet, Burlington, Fayetteville,

One Of Finest Fall Colorings

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — It's that time of year for western North Carolina's finest — and fine it is.

National Park Service rangers said Thursday mountain foliage is reaching its peak in fall colors — reds, oranges, yellows, pinks and purples, all intensified by the long, dry summer and clear, crisp air in the last two weeks.

The mountain area has braced for an expected onslaught of tourists this weekend and the following week, when the colors will be at their height.

Gary Barnes, a Blue Ridge Parkway dispatcher, said the color is now greater than 65 percent in the lower elevations and 90 percent in the Great Balsam mountains southwest of Asheville and in the Bluffs section near the Virginia line.

The color will peak over the weekend in those two areas and peak color is expected in midweek in the lower areas, Barnes said.

In Gatlinburg, Tenn., a spokesman for the Great Smoky Mountains National Park said foliage colors have peaked at the top of the mountains — above the 5,000-foot level.

But ranger Glenn Cardwell said the best autumn colors are yet to come along the park's foothills area.

Cardwell said traffic was normal Thursday, but highway movement is expected to be heavy this weekend, with the colors attracting tourists as well as a major football game between Alabama and Tennessee in Knoxville and a large textile show in Greenville, S.C.

"People planning to visit the park during the next two weeks should come with an abundance of patience," Cardwell said. "But traffic buildups do have one positive effect — motorists get to see more by driving slowly through the park."

Lodging is expected to be at a premium throughout western North Carolina, eastern Tennessee and northwestern South Carolina.

Dick Trammell of the Asheville area Chamber of Commerce said reservations are running heavy in Asheville hotels and that fans attending the football game in Knoxville already have filled hotels in Cherokee and Maggie Valley and in Gatlinburg and Pigeon Forge in Tennessee.

Trammell said the chamber was making plans with the American Red Cross to set up emergency housing in the gymnasium at Asheville High School.

The Chamber will be open until 9 p.m. Saturday to assist visitors in finding a place to stay, Trammell said. When all the motel rooms fill up, the emergency facilities will open.

At the Boone Chamber of Commerce, Teri Van Dyke said many of the hotels in the Boone area were filled but some cottages, condominiums and private rooms were available.

Possibly Announce Action Today On Scrap Tobacco Curtailment

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Bipartisan reports indicated that the Carter administration would announce steps today to curtail the importation of quality tobacco into this country under tariffs set up for scrap — or very poor quality — leaf.

Those reports said that Bobby Smith, an assistant U.S. secretary of agriculture, would announce in Raleigh today that such tobacco imports will be subject to a full tariff of 41 cents a pound. Tobacco now being brought in from other countries under the scrap classification is being taxed at the rate of 17½ cents a pound.

Smith was in Raleigh today for a meeting of the Tobacco Growers Information Committee.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who disclosed the planned announcement in a telephone call to The Associated Press in Raleigh, called the timing a "political ploy" and "an insult to every tobacco farmer."

Helms said a resolution of the scrap tobacco issue was long overdue, and accused the Carter administration and Democratic Sen. Robert Morgan — both of whom are seeking re-election next month — of playing politics with the announcement.

Ross Harris, press secretary for the Carter-Mondale campaign in North Carolina, confirmed that Smith was to make an announcement on the scrap tobacco issue. But she said she did not know full details of his announcement.

The announcement comes as flue-cured tobacco auction markets are nearing the end of their season. Markets in Florida and Georgia already are closed for the year, and agriculture officials estimate only about 20 percent of the 1980 crop remains to be sold in South Carolina, North Carolina and Virginia.

Although overall price averages have increased, some growers have expressed dissatisfaction over the lack of demand for their leaf — especially downstalk tobacco that would compete with the imported leaf.

Curtailment of the foreign imports could affect auction prices paid for domestic leaf.

And Fred Bond, director of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp., the grower cooperative that administers the tobacco price support program, said today such a curtailment

"would certainly give some additional incentive (for buyers) to look at our inventory for purchases of tobacco."

Bond said the last report he had showed that about 122 million pounds of foreign tobacco has been shipped into the United States this year under the "scrap" classification.

"The statement that's coming tomorrow is a political ploy, coming here right on the eve, almost, of the election," Helms said Thursday night. "All of a sudden he (Carter) has discovered the scrap tobacco problem."

Helms said he has complained to the administration for two years about the practice of importing quality foreign tobacco that has been shredded in order to pass through customs as scrap.

The Republican senator also criticized Morgan, contending that Morgan had never joined him in urging a change in the importation designation.

"Where was Mr. Morgan when I needed his help on this for two years? He wasn't to be seen," Helms said.

Candidate On Visit To Area

Ed Renfrow, Democratic candidate for state auditor in the November election, campaigned here yesterday and this morning. His opponent in the race is Republican James McIntyre of Greenville.

Renfrow, who operates his own accounting firm in Smithfield, has represented Johnston County and the Ninth Senatorial District in the General Assembly since 1974.

ED RENFROW

"We're trying to get across the state to increase our visibility and the awareness of the state auditor's office," he said today. "The office has not changed hands in 34 years (Auditor Henry Bridges is not seeking re-election)," and may people do not understand what the state auditor does, Renfrow indicated.

"The independence of it is central to the office," the candidate explained, because of its function as "fiscal watchdog" for all State agencies. "It's completely independent," of other state agencies.

In addition to the office's fiscal watch-dog role, the state auditor's office, through its Operational Audit Division, keeps check on the efficiency of state programs to insure that the various programs are cost-effective, useful and needed.

"I want to give sound warning," Renfrow emphasized, "that I'm going to speak independently," and make a constant effort to, "stay on top of things."

According to Renfrow, "no state in the Union has a cleaner fiscal record than North Carolina. The office of state auditor has served the people of the state well, and I want to continue the fine programs started and in process, that have benefited all of our citizens."

"My ambition is to do a good job as state auditor for the people of North Carolina and bring honor and credit to those who have served before me and to those who will serve after me."

CLOSEUP COMMUNITY COORDINATOR ADDRESSES PITT COUNTY'S FIRST CLOSEUP... Kenneth Vidato, community coordinator of the Closeup Foundation in Washington, D.C. gave the keynote address this morning to around 90 Pitt County high school students participating in the county's first Closeup experience. During the day, these students visited various facets of county government, such as social services, the county jail, and the courtroom. They had opportunities to talk with leaders in each department and learn firsthand the workings of the county. On Saturday a panel of mayors from the area will speak with the group. "Closeup is for everyone," said Vidato to the students. "Not just for the leaders or the academically elite, but for everyone." Pitt is the first county in North Carolina to attempt a Closeup experience. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

OVER THE COUNTER
Plainters Bank 15 1/4-16 1/4
Little Mint 7 1/4-11 1/4

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged lower today as some major banks raised their prime lending rates and the government said the economy is growing again.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues slipped 1.28 to 957.42 in the first hour of trading as declines outnumbered advances by a 8-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues. Chase Manhattan Bank was the first to raise its prime rate today from 13.5 percent to 14 percent, a rate previously charged only by Citibank and a rate that has drawn criticism from the Carter administration as too high. A number of other banks joined in the increase, including Chemical Bank, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and the First National Bank of Chicago.

The raises came one day after a leading Wall Street economist, Henry Kaufman of Salomon Brothers, warned that double digit interest rates "are here to stay." Kaufman's statement brought a sharp reaction, and stock prices fell rapidly in the last two hours of trading on Thursday. They had been at their highest levels in 3 1/2 years.

The Commerce Department reported the nation's output of goods and services rose at an annual rate of 1 percent in the third quarter, after adjusting for inflation. That is a slow rate, but it is up sharply from the record annual rate of decline of 9.6 percent in the second quarter, when the nation was in a recession.

The department's chief economist, Courtenay Slater, said the figures provide "strong evidence of the resumption of economic growth," but added that rising interest rates could choke off the recovery. She said she thought interest rates will level off and could decline during the next several months.

Pan American World Airways was down 1/4 to 4 3/4 as the Civil Aeronautics Board chose it to be the first U.S. airline in 30 years to fly to mainland China. Oil stocks were generally lower, with Mobil off 1/4 to 7 3/4, Exxon down 1/4 to 7 3/4 and Standard of Indiana losing 3/4 to 72. But Texaco, which said Thursday it will drill another well in the Baltimore Canyon area, was up 1/4 to 39 3/4 as the NYSE volume leader.

International Business Machines was up 1/4 to 68 3/4 and Westinghouse gained 1 1/2 to 29 1/2. Norton Simon lost 3/4 to 16 1/2 and Dow Chemical was down 3/4 to 32 3/4. Big Board volume totaled 20.25 million shares in the first two hours of trading, compared to 30.87 million at the same point Thursday, a day that became the fifth heaviest trading day ever. The NYSE's composite index fell .30 to 76.07 during the first two hours. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .44 at 358.44.

Turned Off Rain For Homecoming

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The downpour stopped just in time, and it didn't rain on the homecoming parade for Susan Powell, Miss America 1981.

Back in her home state for the first time since winning the title seven weeks ago, Miss Powell was returning to her Elk City hometown today.

So far, her year as Miss America is "everything I have wanted," she said Thursday.

"I like to travel," she said, noting she has covered 30,000 miles and been in 16 states since winning the contest.

Waiting at the airport in Tulsa when she arrived Wednesday night were her parents, Wendell and Vinita Powell.

"Oh, it's wonderful," she said as she climbed from the plane and stretched her arms upward.

Mount St. Helens Belches Ash And Steam In Overnight Display

By KEVIN McCULLEN
Associated Press Writer
VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens belched steam and ash nearly eight miles into the sky overnight in its sixth major eruption in as many months, spreading a light layer of grit over southwestern Washington and Portland, Ore.

The blast, less powerful than other recent eruptions, came late Thursday, three hours after scientists warned the volcano might erupt — a warning that followed repeated earthquakes at the mountain.

There were no reports of injury or damage from the eruption, and the mountain was reported "unusually quiet" this morning. On May 18, Mount St. Helens blew its top in a devastating eruption of super-heated gas and ash that killed 34 people and left 28 people missing and presumed dead. That blast paralyzed parts of eastern Washington with a thick cover of ash.

The latest eruption sent a light coating of ash over southwestern Washington and the Portland area, 45 miles to the southeast. The National Weather Service issued a three-county fallout warning for Portland, Vancouver and vicinity, saying roads could become slippery and visibility could be cut as the ash combined with fog.

To reduce the amount of ash kicked up by traffic, authorities imposed a 20 mph speed limit in Clark County cities, including Vancouver, and a 30 mph limit outside the city.

The ash was too light to measure in Portland but left streets an ashen gray, and street-cleaning crews were out early to flush the material into gutters before the commuter rush. Calm winds kept the ash from blowing, but a dense fog made it almost impossible to see across the street in some areas.

Most airlines suspended operations at Portland International Airport, where a half-hour fallout left ash lightly covering runways. The airport remained opened but was prepared to shut down if conditions worsened. Northeasterly winds carried the ash fallout over Salem and Newport, on the Oregon coast, as the cloud drifted to sea.

Steve Bryant of the University of Washington's Geophysics Department, which monitors the volcano, said two Class B seismic events — minor earthquake activity — occurred in the first hour following the eruption. But he said there was no seismic activity in the next four hours, indicating the eruption was a relatively small one.

"A very black cloud" of steam and ash spewed to more than 40,000 feet after Thursday's eruption, said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Jim Untertwagner.

The volcano quieted after the 9:58 p.m. blast, and by midnight, only a light dusting of ash had been reported in the area.

A red glow was seen at the bottom of the volcano's crater by a U.S. Forest Service pilot who flew over the 8,400-foot-high mountain less than an hour after the eruption.

"We've got reports of ash falling in LaCenter, Amboy, Ridgefield, Battle Ground and Hazel Dell, but no accidents or complications reported yet," said Linda Simpson, an information officer for Clark County, south of the volcano. "It was late enough that few people were out on the road."

The eruption was accompanied by harmonic tremors — which indicate the movement of molten rock — for nearly 10 minutes, said Don Leaver of the University of Washington geophysics center.

By 11 p.m., the Forest Service reported the volcano had ceased venting ash and only a minor steam plume to 9,500 feet was reported.

University spokesman Bob Norris said the mountain was seismically quiet after the eruption, adding: "It's not necessarily the end of it. We've seen activity die down like this before renewed activity."

At a news conference in Hazel Dell late Thursday, U.S. Geological Survey geologist Don Peterson said the eruption did not catch scientists totally by surprise. He put the time of the blast at 9:58 p.m.

From about 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday there were three to four seismic events per hour, he said, and at 7 p.m. an earthquake measuring about 3.0 on the Richter scale of ground motion was recorded beneath the volcano's crater.

Peterson was asked if he thought the eruption signified a new period of activity for Mount St. Helens, which came alive this spring after lying dormant since 1857.

"We'll just have to wait and see," he said. "At this state, it's premature to make a declaration."

The mountain's five previous significant eruptions all occurred during daylight. The last major eruption was Aug. 7.

"We had a large number of 2 1/2- to 3-point earthquakes (on the Richter scale) just before the eruption," Leaver said. "Maybe 10 of them altogether."

The blast followed a week of minor earthquakes.

Found Mate He Already Knew

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Paul Worden spent $600 advertising on radio stations and billboards for a wife, then found his dream mate was a woman he already knew.

Worden received only four replies to his ads last month but got eight more when the Bakerfield Californian ran an article about his search "for a woman who will worship me."

Worden, a federal canal operator, pledged he would "worship her and bring home the paycheck."

He had sporadically dated a San Francisco woman he met through a friend last summer. Worden said the woman, whom he identified only as Leny, learned about the ads and let him know she thought she could meet his requirements.

"I found her and I feel like a man," Worden said. "She's a ready-made wife....She's perfect in every way."

'Drought Watch' For New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has declared a drought watch and urged residents to conserve water because of low levels in city reservoirs.

"We are very concerned with the continued lack of rainfall throughout New York state," Environmental Protection Commissioner Francis X. McArdie said Thursday. The reservoirs, which can hold 550 billion gallons, are at 49 percent of capacity, he said.

A drought watch is the first step in a process that could lead to imposition of voluntary or mandatory water conservation.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory Of Malachi Lewis Evans, son of Ollie Ruth Evans and retired Army veteran, born Feb. 4, 1957 and died Oct. 17, 1979.

Though he'll never walk this way again, his spirit illuminates our surroundings. He shall forever live within our hearts and minds. His body returned to the dust, but the soul waits for Jesus. May we find peace and courage to continue facing each day without him.

We shall never forget the last day he smiled. A smile so warm that ice would melt and darkness would lighten. A smile so peaceful that anger would subside and evil would weaken. That smile came and disappeared but will always be a part of us. Thank God for granting a lasting pleasant memory with us.

We love him dearly but realize that suffering is no joy. We remember the agony and pain he endured. We saw an intelligent, young and healthy man's life dwindle to a debilitated state. We watched him struggle to reach perfection in preparation for a new life, not here but elsewhere.

And we shall never forget the strength he portrayed during his illness. Nor his never weakening faith and belief that God would take care of everything. He lost the fight for life but not his soul.

Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Graham.
"This November there's a clear choice to be made," Smith continued. Pres. Carter, he emphasized, "is at heart, a farmer himself," who, "believes in a positive partnership between government and the farmer."

According to Smith, during the past four years, there has been the best gross and net farm income in history.

"As long as Carter is in the White House, American farmers have a friend in Washington," Smith said.

"What has Reagan got to offer," Smith asked. "Frankly I don't know. I don't think Ronald Reagan can tell the good from the bad," in farm programs. Concluding, Smith said as far as the concern over the importation of quality tobacco as scrap tobacco, "I can assure you that the wheels are turning," and the Carter administration is trying, "to determine the exact nature and quality of the scrap tobacco," adding that action will be taken soon if a problem is found.

George Saleeby, Pitt Democratic chairman told the gathering, "We're going to win a big victory on November 4. Your presence here assures us of a big victory."

The rally was sponsored by the Democratic Women of Pitt County. Joyce Hastings, president of the Democratic Women acted as general chairperson.

minority recruitment will be given. Residency programs and off-campus B. S. and master's programs in a number of health specialties will be expanded, money permitting.

Dr. James Jones, who heads the Department of Family Practice of the ECU School of Medicine, praised the efforts of AHEC in fostering medical education residency programs and pointed out that the four medical and two dental residents who graduated last spring are all practicing in North Carolina, fulfilling the retention goal of this medical community. Twelve of the 28 ECU School of Medicine seniors have declared family practice as their specialties, he added, another dream come true.

Consultation clinics hopefully will be set up in a number of rural communities. Bethel is a model clinic, Dr. Jones said.

Dr. Raymond Garrison, who oversees the dental residency program of the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center here, praised EAHEC contributions to dental education in the region.

John Payne of the State AHEC office said that Eastern AHEC is seven counties larger than the next largest of the nine AHEC areas of the state. He said the quality and the scope of the programs underway here are impressive, as are the working relationships with sister agencies that EAHEC has developed.

Effectiveness of the Health Science Library's services, headed by Dr. Joann Bell, was praised and plans for computer management and monitoring of many services, via the efforts of new staff member, Beverly Browder, were told.

Increased programming in rural health centers will be carried out, Dr. Vickers indicated.

Robersonville Township Hospital was welcomed as a new member agency of EAHEC. Jean Coombs is representing the hospital on the board of directors. Other new directors welcomed include John McDaniel of Craven County, Celia Blanks of Wayne County, Charles Canfield of Pungo General Hospital, Tom Denton of Lenoir Community College, Dr. Charles Boyette of Belhaven, and Karen Steifel of Carteret County.

Catamount Aerial Attack Tests Pirates

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's pass defense has been suspect this year, and Saturday afternoon in Ficklen Stadium, the number eight passing team in the country will be out to snap a losing streak against the Pirates in the annual Homecoming game.

Kickoff between the Pirates and Western Carolina University is set for 2 p.m.

Led by the passing arm of quarterback David Mashburn, the Catamounts have thrown for an average of 244.3 yards a game, eighth in the NCAA's Division I-A grouping. One of the primary reasons for this is the receiving ability of Gerald Harp, who plays the position normally known as flanker, but called "catback" by coach Bobby Waters.

Harp, in six games so far, has pulled in 40 catches for 647 yards and two touchdowns. Four other Catamounts, split end Jeff Dean (17-282), tight end Eddie McGill (12-177), tailback Anthony James (12-89) and second unit tailback Leonard Williams (11-99) have caught as many as ten passes. Number two split end Dwayne Norman has nine catches to 157 yards.

Western's rushing game, however, has had it problems.

The Cats have rushed for only 101.5 yards a game, led by James with 323 total yards. Williams with 219 is the only other Western player with more than 100 yards rushing.

"I believe that Western Carolina is the third best team that we've played so far this year," ECU coach Ed Emory said. "I believe Florida State is the best and Southern Mississippi is number two. And why they aren't ranked, I don't know."

Emory said that Western's personnel is quite similar to Southern Miss's. "I know that they've won only two of six games, but they have a lot of experienced people. They return nine on defense and nine on offense. They have good people and they are healthy, too.

"And they haven't been forced to make a lot of changes in their lineup. There is only one person in the starting 22 who wasn't listed there at the end of spring practice," Emory added.

"Their record is deceiving. They played Clemson a very close game before losing 17-10 late in the game," he said. Western's other losses were to Tennessee Tech, 26-10; Furman, 28-14; and The Citadel, 28-21. They beat VMI, 16-14, and Middle Tennessee, 24-10.

"They really thought they had a good chance to go 9-2 or 10-1 when the season started."

Calling Harp one of the most exciting players around, Emory warned that stopping him would be a difficult task for the Pirates. Emory feels that Harp and the other Catamounts will try to get the Pirates in one-on-one coverage.

"I expect one heck of a game from them," the coach added. "We'll have to play a darn good game if we expect to win. Defensively, I expect them to be tougher on our running game, so we may have to pass

"But we want to win in Ficklen. I haven't won a home game yet, either," he said. "It's very important that we have a good game at home. It's important to the student body, to the fans, and to ourselves. But I don't think that it's a do-or-die situation."

Defensively, Western has allowed 199.5 yards a game on the ground and 114.3 through the air.

For the Pirates, the defense has given up 186.6 on the ground and 149.8 through the air. East Carolina has rushed for 239.4 yards a game, while passing for 53.0.

Mike Hawkins is the leading rusher with 294 yards, while Anthony Collins has 254, Theo Sutton has 224, and Carlton Nelson has 210. Nelson has hit on 22 of 45 passes for 225 yards, but has not yet thrown a touchdown pass.

A win for the Pirates would even their record at 3-3, while Western will be trying to up its mark to 3-4.

Last year, the Pirates gained a 31-6 win. The last time Western won was in 1962, when the Catamounts took a 20-6 victory. East Carolina leads the series, 15-13.

Brett Declared Ready For Tonight's Game

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals rested a little easier today when they learned they probably would have the services of George Brett in tonight's third game of the World Series against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Trailing 2-0 in the Series, the Royals face a virtual do-or-die situation. A loss would all but hand the Phillies their first World Series title on a gilded platter. No team in the 78 years of World Series play has rebounded from a 3-0 deficit to win the best-of-seven-game set.

Brett, who hit .390 during the season and drove in 118 runs, underwent minor surgery Thursday to have a painfully swollen hemorrhoid lanced. The operation, performed by Kansas City proctologist John Heryer took about 20 minutes. Heryer said Brett would remain in the hospital until this morning.

"It was a simple operation," Heryer said. "We simply lanced a blood clot and removed it, thereby removing the pressure and hopefully the pain."

Heryer said Brett would soak in hot tubs and keep off his feet until this morning.

Heryer said Brett probably would not be 100 percent for the game but that he should have no problems playing. Kansas City Manager Jim Frey had to replace Brett in the sixth inning of Game Two when the problem became too painful. Brett was limping and had trouble running.

At the same time, the Phillies, who won the first and second games of the Series at home, had problems with their own casualties.

Slugging outfielder Greg Luzinski, who was used as a designated hitter in the Series opener, missed Wednesday

ECU Hosts Tourney

East Carolina's Lady Pirates will be trying to shake a chain of erratic performances this weekend when they host the ten-team East Carolina Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

The tournament gets underway in Minges Coliseum at 3 p.m. today.

The hosting Pirates will be pooled with tourney favorite Winthrop, Virginia, East Tennessee and Wake Forest. Virginia Commonwealth, Appalachian, State, UNC—Charlotte, Virginia Tech and High Point comprise the other pool.

Because of Homecoming activities, championship and consolation rounds on Saturday will be played at the Rose High School gym. Play begins Saturday at 9 a.m. and I agreed to them." The 6-3, 265 pounder from Jacksonville sat out spring drills, working on his academics. Not only did he make progress, he got himself back eligible. He also lost weight and got into playing condition.

As a result, through five games, he already has 17 takedowns as a defensive tackle, plus the blocked punt and two tackles for losses. As a sophomore, when he had his best year in the past, he had only 23 tackles and two tackles for losses for the entire season.

"I realized that I had a chance to start this year. This year has been my whole career," Wigfall said.

While Wigfall's best game was against Richmond, he admits that generally his duty is to clear the aisles for linebacker Jeffrey Warren. "I get the lineman out of the way, so Jeffrey can take the back. A lot of time in the Richmond game, however, they'd come back and I'd get the tackle."

On the blocked punt, Wigfall said that earlier in the game, he'd noted that his man didn't block him, but stepped back. "When I saw that I was clear, the next time we called for a block attempt, I just went right on in."

Nate feels that most of the problems the Pirates are having this year are due to the youth of the team and the inexperience. "Any time you have a coaching change, too, you have problems. I do think that we have good coaching. But sometimes you just have to take your lumps."

Nate Wigfall

Borrowed Gear Spurs Allison

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Veteran stock car driver Donnie Allison, using a borrowed gear that added takeoff power to his Chevrolet, set a qualifying record Thursday as he won the pole position for Sunday's $166,165 American 500 race.

Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., turned the Rockingham Speedway course at a speed of 142.648 mph to squeak past Cale Yarborough's 142.643 mph.

Both speeds shattered Yarborough's two-year-old record of 142.067 mph on the one-mile track.

When it was over, Allison said he had borrowed a gear before the qualifying run from driver Darrell Waltrip.

"Waltrip let us have a gear this morning and as soon as we put it in the car, it took off. He has been kidding me about taking it back," Allison said.

He added, "Now I know how (Buddy) Baker and Cale have felt all year, knowing they had the fastest car and all they had to do was go out and hold it. ToDay I had the fastest car, but I didn't run as fast during the qualifying lap as I did in practice."

Allison said his status Thursday was a little disquieting.

"I'm not a nervous person, all of you know that. But today, I was nervous," he said.

Yarborough took note of the closeness of the qualifying speeds posted by him and Allison, commenting: "Man, that's so close they ought to give us both the pole. I can't ever remember anybody anybody coming that close."

Waltrip came in third with a speed of 142.265 mph. Sixteen other drivers will be qualified in trials today.

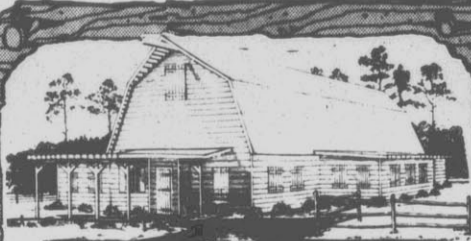

Here is a list of qualifiers for Sunday's American 500 to be held at North Carolina Motor Speedway in Rockingham. Included are drivers, types of cars and Thursday's qualifying speeds.

Woody Peele

The standings suffered another shakeup after last week's picks, with Tom Baines posting a perfect 12-0 record to climb out of the basement and leave Joe Jenkins suffering there all alone.

The leadership is now a deadlock between Rick Scoppe and this writer, tied with 58-14 records. Our guests are third with a 57-15 mark, followed by Etha Allen at 56-16, Baines at 55-17, and Jenkins at 51-21.

Last week's guest, ECU's volleyball and softball coach Alita Dillon recorded a 10-2 mark, good, but still not as good as former sportswriter Jim Kyle's 11-1.

This week's guest is "Carolina Today's" Henry Hinton. Next week, we'll ask his fellow co-host Kathy Diamant to go with us to see which of the two can do the best job.

Our high school record from last week finally brought about a perfect week, 7-0, to bring our overall mark to 36-8 on the season.

North Lenoir, which started out like a house afire, got doused two weeks ago by Southern Nash, then lost to Farmville Central last week. This week, Ayden-Grifton gets a crack at the Hawks on the Charger home field, seeking to raise its record to 4-4 with its fourth straight win. This is a toughie, but the Chargers seem to have it together, so we'll pick them in a close one.

North Pitt travels to C.B. Aycock. The Panthers have shown some good defense, and they'll need it all in this one. We can't see anyone stopping the Falcons before they play Southern Nash.

Conley is on the road against Southwest Edgecombe. The Vikings are still looking for a win, and this isn't the place to try and find it. The Cougars should handle the Vikes on their own turf.

Farmville Central plays host to Southern Nash. The two teams feature two hard running backs in Roger Joyner of the Jaguars and Anthony Crumel of the Firebirds. This should be quite a game, but we have to favor Southern Nash.

Elsewhere, it will be Ahoskie over Williamston, Roanoke over Roanoke Rapids, and Manteo over Jamesville.

Our panel has the two local games to pick, and there is some disagreement among them, but not enough to cause any toss-up selections.

First, Rose High School will be trying to remain unbeaten against Bertie, a team that has struggled so far. The Rampants will be trying to break a two-game losing streak on the Falcon field, and our panel feels that it's a good bet, with a 5-1 choice. Jenkins is the lone dissenter.

East Carolina is host to Western Carolina in the annual Homecoming game. The Pirates have been weak against the pass and the Catamounts have the number eight passing game in the country. However, the panel again feels, 5-1, that the Pirates will be able to pull it out. Again, the lone man on the limb is Jenkins.

Our other consensus picks include: Clemson over Duke; Maryland over Wake Forest; Virginia Tech over Virginia; Mississippi over Florida; Wyoming over Utah; Auburn over Georgia Tech; North Carolina over N.C. State; LSU and Kentucky, a toss-up; Houston over Southern Methodist; and Alabama over Tennessee.

49er Coach Bill Walsh Would Rather Have Flu For Two Weeks

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

If Vince Ferragamo and Danny White end up 1-2 among National Football League passers at the end of the season, they may have the San Francisco 49ers to thank.

Two weeks ago in Los Angeles the Rams met the 49ers and Ferragamo, who guided LA to the Super Bowl in the 1979 season, threw four touchdown passes in a 48-26 romp.

Last week it was White's turn. He, too, threw for four TDs as the Cowboys demolished San Francisco 59-14 in Dallas.

"I wish someone would pass me that flu bug that keeps you in bed for two weeks," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh muttered.

Perhaps he'd prefer three weeks. It's Ferragamo's turn again as the Rams, 4-2, visit San Francisco Sunday, hoping to strengthen their hold on first place in the NFC West. They lead the 49ers and Atlanta by one game.

Sunday's other games are Atlanta at New Orleans, Dallas at Philadelphia, New England at Baltimore, Buffalo at Miami, Green Bay at Cleveland, Minnesota at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Washington, Seattle at the New York Jets, Detroit at Chicago, Kansas City at Denver, the New York Giants at San Diego and Tampa Bay at Houston. On Monday night it's Oakland at Pittsburgh.

Ferragamo, who completed 20 of 27 passes for 304 yards in the Rams' earlier game against the 49ers, rode that performance to the top of the NFL passing charts. But last Sunday, White, with a 16-of-22 day for 239 yards, moved up to No. 1, bumping Ferragamo down a notch.

"The Philadelphia Eagles can play anyone well, but these two teams, Los Angeles and Dallas, seem to be the two best in the conference," says Walsh. "This is the best LA team I've seen."

One Ram he may not see is Elvis Peacock, LA's leading rusher with 387 yards. He suffered a groin injury in last Sunday's 21-13 victory over St. Louis. Eddie Hill or Mike Guman could take his place.

Going against the Rams, the league's top-scoring team with 177 points and owners of the National Conference's third-best defense, is quarterback Joe Montana, getting his first start of the season in place of Steve DeBerg, intercepted five times last Sunday in Dallas. Montana moved the 49ers nicely against LA earlier this year after taking over for DeBerg. "He handled himself pretty well," said Rams Coach Ray Malavasi.

But Montana won't have the 49ers' top running back — and the league's leading receiver — in the lineup. Paul Hofer is out with serious knee damage sustained in the game at Dallas. His replacement, Lenvil Elliott, has a sore knee, so former San Diego Charger Don Woods, signed less than two weeks ago, may have to start.

night's game with the flu and did not make the trip to Kansas City. He had a temperature of 103 Wednesday night and 101 Thursday morning.

Phillies Manager Dallas Green said Luzinski probably would join the team today. Green said he planned to use rookie Keith Moreland in the designated hitter's role, as he did Wednesday.

Also slightly injured were center fielder Garry Maddox and catcher Bob Boone.

Maddox injured his left knee when he fouled off a pitch against it in Game Two. X-rays were negative, but there was some fluid in the knee. He was expected to play. Boone still is recovering from an injured left foot sustained in a home plate collision in the playoffs with Houston.

"It's still black and blue, but the swelling has gone down," Boone said. "It's getting better."

The Phillies arrived here Thursday afternoon and headed immediately to Royals Stadium for a brief workout. The Royals, who traveled home right after the game Wednesday night, cancelled their plans to workout Thursday because of rain and thunderstorms in the morning.

Frey planned to start right-hander Rich Gale, 13-9 in the regular season, against Phillies right-hander Dick Ruthven, 17-10, tonight.

Gale did not pitch in the Royals' American League Championship playoffs against

New York. His last start was on the final day of the regular season, Oct. 5.

A 6-foot-7 fastballer, Gale won 11 straight games for the Royals from June 17-Sept. 1.

"Our basic problem in this Series is we have not been able to control Philadelphia's offense," Frey said. The Phillies scored 13 runs in the first two games against the Royals.

Heels, Wolfpack Clash In Key Contest

By TOM FOREMAN JR.

Associated Press Writer
If history has anything to do with it, North Carolina State will pull off an upset in its Atlantic Coast Conference game with No. 8 North Carolina in Chapel Hill this weekend.

And, should history repeat itself, Clemson's Tigers may get a chance to move into first place all by themselves.

The Tar Heels and the Wolfpack tangle for the 70th time in Kenan Stadium in one of three conference encounters. Clemson hosts Duke and Wake Forest travels to Maryland. In non-conference contests, Virginia Tech meets Virginia in Blacksburg and Georgia Tech is at Auburn.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE at NORTH CAROLINA

Although the Tar Heels hold a 45-18-6 advantage in the series between the two schools, the home team has not captured a victory in the annual battle since 1975, when N.C. State won a narrow 21-20 victory in Carter Stadium.

While home has not proved to be safe refuge, North Carolina has an unblemished record to maintain. In addition, several bowl scouts will be on hand to see if the Tar Heels can boost their record to 6-0 and get a firm grip on the conference lead.

The play of Rod Elkins has been vital through the first half of the season. The Greensboro native threw two touchdown passes in North Carolina's 27-9 victory over Wake Forest. Meanwhile, the Tar Heel defense permitted its first touchdown of the season in that game but remains second in the nation in scoring defense.

The Wolfpack has a good quarterback of its own in sophomore Tol Avery. So far in 1980, Avery has passed for more than 600 yards and rushed for 228 more. The backfield trio of Eddie Jackson, Wayne McLean and Chris Brown are all rushing at an average of five yards per carry.

DUKE at CLEMSON

The Tigers can claim first place if they whip the Blue Devils in Death Valley and the Tar Heels lose to the Wolfpack. But Clemson will have to survive the ACC's new edition of "Cardiac Kids."

Duke, though winless, has taken its last four opponents down to a crucial play late in the fourth quarter before losing. Last weekend, South Carolina needed a 13-play, 80-yard drive to break away from the Blue Devils for a 20-7 victory.

Ben Bennett kept the Gamecocks off balance in throwing for 112 yards, including a 63-yard touchdown pass to Chris Castor. Bennett will likely be the starter against the Tigers.

Meanwhile, Clemson itself has not been a source of power. Only Obed Ariri's 52-yard field goal with six seconds left in the game provided the Tigers with a 27-24 victory, the 20th consecutive time that a Virginia squad has failed to conquer Clemson.

WAKE FOREST at MARYLAND

Both the Demon Deacons and the Terrapins faced top-ranked competition on their home fields last weekend and came up losers. But the difference in this Saturday's game could be the respective running attacks.

Wake Forest found a strong running game with the help of Wayne McMillan earlier in the season, but North Carolina's stingy defense held McMillan to 64 yards and the entire Wake rushing game to 45 net yards. If the running game sputters, the key to the offense rests with senior quarterback Jay Venuto.

Venuto passed for 222 yards and a last minute touchdown against the Tar Heels but spent most of his afternoon moving between the 20s.

Maryland moved for more than 300 yards against Penn

State but could only get a Charlie Wysocki touchdown and a Dale Castro field goal. Mike Tice was 13 for 28 in passing but, like Venuto, gained most of his yardage outside of the goal lines.

Wysocki gained 135 yards after two previous sub-par performances.

VIRGINIA at VIRGINIA TECH
Only Clemson has prevented the Gobblers from a perfect season, but Saturday's game at Lane Stadium could help Bill Dooley's squad forget that stumbling block.

Tailback Cyrus Lawrence and wide receiver Sidney Snell have led the Virginia Tech attack, which has averaged almost 366 yards and 23 points per contest. Quarterback Steve Casey, truly a prototype of a Dooley offensive leader, has thrown just 98 times in the six games, completing 57 for 713 yards and six touchdowns.

The Cavaliers had visions of beating Clemson dance out of their heads last Saturday when a furious fourth quarter rally culminated with an Obed Ariri field goal and a 27-24 victory. Life won't be any easier in the 62nd meeting between the two schools.

Backup quarterback Lindsey Delaney moved the Cavaliers as he completed eight of 15 passes for 156 yards, and added 29 yards rushing and a touchdown.

GEORGIA TECH at AUBURN
The Yellow Jackets saw the sunshine last Saturday when they took a 7-0, first-quarter lead against Tennessee. But the Volunteers came in with the clouds and rallied for a 23-10 victory.

The loss also cost Georgia Tech the services of starting quarterback Mike Kelley, who sprained his right shoulder and will miss as many as four weeks of action. Replacement Ted Peoples was also injured in the contest, but he is expected to return to action against the Tigers.

Auburn has knocked off such lesser opposition as Richmond, Texas Christian and Duke, while dropping Southeastern Conference games to Louisiana State and Tennessee.

Cubs Rally By Bertie

Rose High School's junior varsity rallied from a ten-point deficit with two minutes to play yesterday, nipping Bertie, 20-18.

Bertie scored first in the game, getting a touchdown in the second period. Rose came back on a four-yard run by Donell Lee, tying it up. Then, on a fake kick play, Sammy Hodges passed to Lee for a two-point conversion and an 8-6 halftime lead.

But Bertie came back, scoring single touchdowns in each of the second half quarters to move out to an 18-8 lead.

With two minutes left, Rose got going again, as Lee pulled in a 20-yard pass from Hodges to get back on the scoreboard. That closed the gap to 18-14. Lee then scored on a short run in the final seconds of the game to give Rose the victory.

The Rampant Cubs are now 6-1 on the year and travel to Wilson Fike next Thursday.

When slaves first came to the coastal areas of Georgia and South Carolina, they brought with them - as their most valued possession - a little handful of benne seed which they believed held for them the secret of health and good luck. Planted near slave quarters of the early plantations, benne became a traditional part of "The Old South." Cooks in "The Big House" kitchens knew just how to use this rich, spicy, honey-colored seed to make delicious and exotic concoctions that have since been famous recipes of "dabuckra".

Alabama Faces Tough Test In Vols

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The Alabama Crimson Tide, slowed to a ripple last week compared to its usually overwhelming wave, faces one of its toughest tests en route to a possible third straight national title when it meets Tennessee Saturday.

Bear Bryant's top-ranked team, with a nation's-best 26-game winning streak, must travel to Knoxville to play before a capacity crowd of some 92,000 Volunteer fans. Tennessee, under Coach Johnny Majors, who led Pittsburg to a national title in 1976, has a 3-2 mark but one of the losses was in the last minute to second-ranked Southern Cal.

"The Alabama offense gives everybody problems," Majors says. "It will give us problems because we see the Wishbone formation only once a year. Alabama has power and finesse inside and they also have ability to get outside with the option game."

Alabama beat unheralded Rutgers 17-13 last week, rushing for only 230 yards compared to its season average of 363. The Crimson Tide dropped to No. 2 nationally in that department and is now seventh in total offense with 433 yards per game.

"We must not beat ourselves and not get into trouble offensively," Majors said, "because that's what Alabama lives and thrives on — making other teams make offensive mistakes."

Bryant, who says Tennessee "is the best team in America with two losses," depends on a stable of backs who average six or more yards per carry but don't pile up big totals. His leading rusher, freshman Lennie Patrick, is only sixth in the Southeastern Conference with 255 yards but has averaged 10.2 per carry.

"Based on what I saw last week I'm not sure we'll score that much," Bryant said. "I think they'll do some scoring."

The Alabama-Tennessee game will be televised regionally by ABC but will be carried by the most stations nationally. Other regional games include Washington at No. 20 Stanford, Brigham Young at Utah State and Houston at Southern Methodist.

Other afternoon games involving ranked teams have No. 2 Southern Cal at Oregon, Army at No. 5 Notre Dame, Vanderbilt at No. 6 Georgia, North Carolina State at No. 8 North Carolina, Indiana at No. 9 Ohio State, Oklahoma State at No. 10 Nebraska, West Virginia at No. 11 Pitt, Syracuse at No. 12 Penn State, No. 13 Baylor at Texas A&M, Colorado at No. 16 Missouri, Kansas State at No. 17 Oklahoma, Mississippi State at No. 18 Miami, Fla., and No. 19 Iowa State at Kansas. Saturday night, Boston College is at No. 7 Florida State and Cincinnati travels to No. 15 South Carolina.

No. 4 UCLA is idle, along with No. 3 Texas and No. 14 Arkansas, who moved their game, originally scheduled for Saturday, to Sept. 1.

Stanford has several highly skilled offensive players, including sophomore quarterback John Elway, wide receiver Ken Margerum and halfback Darrin Nelson, but has had problems defensively against big offensive lines.

Boston College has a mediocre record but it beat Stanford 30-13 with the help of a big offensive front, while UCLA pushed the Cardinals around on the ground in the second half of a 35-21 comeback triumph.

Washington, says Stanford Coach Paul Wiggins, "has one tackle who weighs 275 and the other is 280," which bodes ill for Stanford. The Huskies are unranked but have only one loss, a 34-10 surprise to Oregon.

Saturday's winner figures to be the favorite among the five Pacific 10 teams eligible to go to the Rose Bowl.

With the exception of the Navy game, Army has played Notre Dame more than any other team in its 91-year football history. Despite the storied past of the series, Army hasn't won in the last seven meetings since 1958, when the Cadets won 14-2 and went on to finish with the third ranking nationally.

"The Notre Dame football team is unquestionably the best we have faced this season and may just be the best team in the country if they keep working on it," said Coach Ed Cavanaugh of Army, 2-2-1. "They used a backup halfback (Jim Stone) to replace injured Phil Carter and all he does against a Miami team, which had the best defense in the nation, is gain over 200 yards. There is no question that Notre Dame provides our squad with its biggest challenge."

Rose Again Loop Champs

WILSON — Greenville Rose, despite having six of its top seven runners "under the weather," easily won its second straight Division I cross-country title Thursday afternoon.

The Rampants, led again by the one-two punch of Harry Williams and Kenny Smith, finished with 29 points to easily outdistance second-place Wilson Beddingfield which ended up with 55 points.

Northern Nash was third with 70 points followed by Wilson Fike with 86 and Wilson Hunt with 123. Rocky Mount was sixth with 139 while Northeastern was last with 170.

Rose's Williams was the meet's medalist, running the three-mile course in a record-time of 15:09. Williams broke his own record.

Rose's Smith, who also broke the course mark, was second, finishing at 15:15. Tony Hill of Fike was third at 15:27, while Steve Dew of Beddingfield was fourth at 15:47. Northern Nash's Dwight Davis was next at 16:18, followed by Beddingfield's Bruce Artis at 16:27.

Rose's Chip Little was seventh with a time of 16:37 while teammate John Ormond was eighth at 16:42. For Ormond, only a sophomore, it was his best time of the year by over 30 seconds. John Byrd of Rose came in 11th, at 16:55.

"We had six of our seven runners under the weather and to score only 29 points is just incredible," Rose coach Ron Hockmuth said. "To have a whole team run a three-mile course under 17 minutes is outstanding."

The top 12 finishers Thursday were awarded all-conference honors as well, giving Rose five all-conference runners: Williams, Smith, Little, Ormond and Byrd.

The Rampants travel to Smithfield next Friday for the sectionals, where they probably will face New Bern, the only team to beat Rose this year.

New Play Pays Off For Cleveland Cavs In Win

By The Associated Press

The Cleveland Cavaliers took their best shot Thursday night — which happened to be Mike Mitchell's jumper.

An hour before their game with the Washington Bullets, the Cavaliers worked on a new play freeing Mitchell for his jump shot and it paid dividends.

Less than three hours later, with the game on the line, the Cavs called on the play five times in succession, and Mitchell scored each time to lead them to a 90-88 National Basketball Association victory over the Bullets.

Mitchell scored Cleveland's final 14 points, including the game-winning basket with 26 seconds remaining, and finished with a game-high 30. "We just put a new play in for him, and he hit the last five in a row off that," said Cleveland Coach Bill Musselman. "We were upstairs practicing in the gym at 6:30."

Said Mitchell: "I want to be in there when it comes down to a last bucket. Whether I'm shooting it or not, I just like to be in there."

In other NBA action, San Antonio defeated Detroit 102-99 and Boston stopped Milwaukee 110-103.

Cleveland trailed 50-47 at the half and 82-76 early in the final period before Mitchell really went to work, hitting a field goal, two free throws and four more field goals to put the Cavaliers up 88-82.

"We didn't even get a good shot for five minutes," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes. "That's the key. The name of the game in the last five minutes is control."

Dandridge hit two baskets and a pair of free throws to tie the game at 88 with 38 seconds left, but Mitchell scored once more off the new play to put Cleveland on top for good.

Randy Smith led the Washington offense with 24 points.

Spurs 102, Pistons 99
George Gervin scored 26 points and led the game with a layup with 11 seconds left to pace San Antonio over Detroit.

The Spurs squandered a 22-point lead early in the final period as the Pistons took the lead late in the game. But guard James Silas sank two free throws with 1:10 left to play and Gervin secured the victory with his layup a minute later.

Detroit forward Greg Kelsey sparked the Pistons' fourth-quarter comeback, scoring 16 of his team-high 28 points.

Celtics 110, Bucks 103
Robert Parish scored 10 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter, leading Boston over Milwaukee. Rick Robey, Parish's backup at center, scored nine of his 15 points in the second half to spark the Celtics.

Marques Johnson led the Bucks with 27 points. "We tried to keep both Rick and Robert fresh," said Celtics Coach Bill Fitch said. "When you have a 7-foot guy who can beat other people downcourt, you're in pretty good shape."

LIKES KEN STABLER
HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers got quarterback Kenny Stabler in a trade with Oakland this year and Coach Bum Phillips was glad.

"Kenny is a move-the-chain and ball-control passer," Phillips said. "I'm happy he's playing with us, rather than against us."

Ridgcroft Rips Knights, 10-2

AHOSKIE — Ridgcroft rolled past Greenville Christian, 10-2, Thursday in a high school soccer match.

Ridgcroft, now 6-6, took a 5-0 lead and then coasted home with the victory. The winners were led by Howell Mortensen, who had three goals, and Shawn Francis, who had two goals.

The Knights, who had lost earlier in the year to Ridgcroft, 4-0, were led by Phil Bird, who shot in both goals for the visitors.

Others with one goal for Ridgcroft were Mike Davis, Steve Futrell, Eric Mitchell, David Evans and Mike Parker.

"We just weren't up to par for this one," Greenville

Christian coach Dale Thatcher said. "Not to take anything away from Ridgcroft, they're good."

"Our defense, I'd have to say, really hurt us. We could stay with them on offense, but we had to play defense most of the day."

Greenville Christian, now 4-5, plays host to conference foe Goldsboro Christian next Friday.

Greenville Christian 1 1-2
Ridgcroft 9 1-10

A Message for Newspaper Carriers from

Willie Stargell

"Carriers are all MVP's with me!"

The Most Valuable Player in the World Series, Pittsburgh Pirate Willie Stargell can appreciate the work his son and daughter do as newspaper carriers.

"Carriers come through in the clutch. They give you a steady job every day and an extra effort when it's needed. Carriers are all MVP's with me!"

Newspaper carriers know what it takes to get ahead and stay there. That's why so many are setting aside part of their earnings as a fund for the future.

U.S. Savings Bonds have the dependability carriers understand. They know they can count on Bonds, just as millions of Americans have for 40 years.

So the Treasury Department is proud to join Willie Stargell in his salute to newspaper carriers.

We hope you'll join us in recognizing these special young people on this Newspaper Carrier Day, 1980.

Take stock in America.

Audrey Marie Hilley, Wanted In Poisonings, Missing Ever Since

By KIM N. PRICE
Associated Press Writer
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Audrey Marie Hilley — charged with using arsenic to poison her daughter, who lived, and suspected of doing the same to several other relatives, who didn't — has been missing without a trace almost one year.

The 19-state search for the woman is complicated by investigators' growing suspicion that the Audrey Marie Hilley who disappeared from a Birmingham motel last November may be quite a different person today.

The only thing Mrs. Hilley left behind at the motel was a note. Investigators won't release its contents, but say the scribbled message makes them believe Mrs. Hilley is living a life where she "changes her personality to fit her surroundings."

"She can be kind, laughing, considerate and then brutal and hateful," said the FBI agent who is coordinating the coast-to-coast search for Mrs. Hilley.

"We believe she is living in a world with make-believe friends and enemies... When she reads this, if it's the real Marie Hilley, she will probably change her personality when she realizes what she is accused of doing."

The 47-year-old Anniston woman — charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder and attempted poisoning — is being hunted coast-to-coast by the FBI and 28 other federal divisions.

The FBI warrant against Mrs. Hilley stems from a Calhoun County indictment of Oct. 25, 1979, charging her with trying to poison her 20-year-old daughter, Carol Marie Hilley, with arsenic.

On Nov. 16, Mrs. Hilley disappeared from the suburban motel where she was living while awaiting trial, free on $14,000 bond. On Jan. 11, a Calhoun County grand jury indicted her on murder charges for the 1975 arsenic poisoning of her husband, Frank. She has also been indicted for check fraud.

The FBI agent, who asked not to be identified, has followed several hundred leads since the search began in January, all in vain.

"It's not likely I'll arrest

AUDREY HILLEY

Marie Hilley. An agent in another state will most likely arrest her," he said. "But if the real Marie Hilley reads this she will likely change her personality or relocate or get careless and hopefully we'll find her."

The agent said that interviews with Mrs. Hilley's friends and relatives, whom she hasn't contacted since disappearing, have led him to believe she may be exhibiting separate personalities.

He said she has used many aliases, among them Mandy Hilley, Julie Hilley, M.F. Hilley and Margaret Key, the real name of her aunt.

It was about a year ago that Carol Hilley almost died in an Alabama hospital. Her illness went undiagnosed for months until doctors discovered higher than usual amounts of arsenic in her blood.

The diagnosis led forensic experts to exhume the bodies of Frank Hilley, who died in 1975, and Mrs. Hilley's mother, Lucille Frazier, who died in 1977.

Death certificates indicated both died of cancer, but pathologists found enough arsenic in Hilley's remains to investigate. Arsenic was also found in Mrs. Frazier's body but in amounts below the toxic range. Officials then ordered autopsies on other relatives.

Carrie Hilley, the fugitive's mother-in-law, was ill for several weeks before dying last November. Her autopsy report has not been released, but investigators have given evidence about her death and that of Mrs. Frazier to a Calhoun County grand jury. No indictments have been returned from that investigation.

The tests were made only on relatives who had died since Carol Hilley's birth. Psychiatrists think the birth may have touched off Mrs. Hilley's behavior.

Wed at age 18, she was having marital troubles when Carol, her second child, was born. Psychiatrists and investigators alike believe she resented her daughter's birth, and that her resentment began surfacing long before they had evidence of arsenic poisonings.

As examples, the FBI agent noted two arson fires at the Hilley house, one when Frank Hilley was still alive, the second when Carol and her grandmother were in the house alone.

Urine tests to detect any arsenic were also ordered for people known to have visited the Hilley residence, including police who investigated the fires.

"One time some investigators went to that house and afterwards they became sick," the agent said. "It's possible they had been given some type of poison."

"There was a family that lived next to her for years," he added. "The children were sick all the time, but doctors could never find out why. ... This family eventually oves and the kid get well in no time at all."

Investigators say they've determined the victims were given small doses of arsenic over an extended period.

"It eventually breaks down your nervous system, you lose control of your senses and you become unable to control your body movements," the agent said, describing Carol Hilley's ordeal.

On the day Mrs. Hilley disappeared, Mrs. Key reported her car missing. It was found at a Marietta, Ga., bus depot, but the FBI hasn't yet determined whether the fugitive boarded a bus there.

The FBI agent said Mrs. Hilley is likely working in "a respectable job. She will be in secretarial work — she is a perfectionist and wouldn't take a job that low-rates her."

"She'll be living a good life," he added. "She will be in a beauty shop at least twice a week. She always dressed nice and her appearance was pleasant ... always."

Mrs. Hilley is 5-foot-1 and weighs 110 pounds. Her eyes are green, her hair brown. Her only identifying mark is a scar on a knuckle.

The FBI's search has been conducted in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, Maryland, New York, Connecticut, Nebraska, Missouri, Arkansas, Texas, New Mexico, Utah and Washington.

A Satellite TV Parabolic Dish Just For You

By JOAN HANAUER
UPI Television Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York specialty store advertises on the back cover of its Christmas gift catalogue a Satellite Television Reception System — a 12-foot parabolic dish in your backyard for direct pickup of satellite signals.

Price: $12,500. Allow three weeks for delivery.

The ad indicates the enormous changes that are expected to take place in the television industry in the next decade.

Right now 98 percent of all American homes boast television sets. The three networks — and their advertisers — capture 87 percent of the audience.

Alternative media, however, are making major inroads, according to Thomas T. Ryan, advertising vice president of Chillet Co., and chairman of the task force on television's future of the Association of National Advertisers.

The alternatives will give viewers a chance to get away from advertising — at a price.

Ryan predicts that the percentage of homes with cable television, now at 21 percent, will jump to 33 percent by 1985 and 49 percent by 1990. When it hits 30 percent, advertisers are expected to start jumping aboard in significant numbers.

Pay cable, which now has 8 percent of the market, is expected to go up to 17 percent in 1985 and reach 32 percent by 1990.

At 32 percent, pay cable could start raking in money from advertisers as well as subscribers, but the largest of the pay cable systems has no intention of doing so.

That's Home Box Office, which this year celebrated five years of national distribution by satellite. For historians, HBO's first satellite show was the Ali-Frazier heavyweight fight from Manila on Sept. 30, 1980.

According to James O. Heyworth, president of Home Box Office Inc., there are about 4,000 cable systems operating in the United States in 1980, with nearly half of those taking HBO. Heyworth estimates the HBO audience as in excess of four million people.

The 5.5 million to 6 million Americans who watch HBO, Showtime and other pay cable programming watch films, sports and specials uninterrupted by commercials and Heyworth indicated it would stay that way.

"The fact is that for 25 years the television distribution system in this country has been dominated by three commercial networks," he said.

"Television was supported by advertising dollars and it was presumed there was only enough to support the three networks. Cable and pay television are opening up the field and offering the opportunity to have television distribution financed other ways."

HBO conducts continuing market surveys among its subscribers, asking them to list the service's assets and rank their importance. Month after month, viewers check off lack of commercials as one of the things that most contributes to the value of pay television.

"The pay cable industry has grown very rapidly in the past five years," Heyworth said. "We had the existing cable systems into which we could rapidly introduce pay cable. By the end of 1980, virtually all existing cable systems will be carrying at least one pay cable channel. From now on, the growth of pay television will be tied to consumer acceptance, the proliferation of multi-pay channel offerings and the rate of growth of the cable television industry."

HBO already is putting on the market a second pay channel, Cinemax, devoted entirely to movies from current to classics.

The new markets into which cable is spreading are potential vast because they include some of the country's major markets.

In New York City, for instance, only Manhattan is wired for cable and the bidding is fierce for which cable companies will divide up the more than 1 million homes in the remaining four boroughs of the city.

One of the problems that confronts pay television operators in new communities is the fear of pornography.

"We will not carry x-rated programs," Heyworth said. "We do carry r-rated programs — rated "r" usually because of nudity — scheduled for later in the evening or night. We do not carry films for which pornography is the only hook.

"We sometimes get complaints, and there will be concerns expressed when HBO is introduced into a market — even though the same motion pictures probably played in town. The consumer has the option of not taking home box office, or buying a parental control device that with a turn of the key closes off the pay television channel."

While cable and pay television are the currently available alternatives to "free" television, other home video options are becoming available.

Video cassette recorders currently are in 2 percent of television homes and adman Ryan predicts that number will go up to 7 percent in 1985 and 14 percent by 1990. It will be overtaken by video discs, currently in such a small number of homes it turns up as 0.0 percent — but expected to rise to 8 percent by 1985 and to 19 percent by 1990.

Steve Allen Is Back In Network Favor; Prime Time Comedy Set

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last spring, just after carving for himself one of the sweetest deals in the history of television, Johnny Carson proceeded to kill a "Steve Allen Show" NBC had planned for the slot following "Tonight."

Carson didn't want comedy following his show. So, NBC kept Tom Snyder and "Tomorrow."

In vetoing the proposed Allen show, Carson was actually doing Allen and TV viewers a favor. Beginning Saturday night, Allen will have a comedy series in prime time. Steve Allen is back in network favor.

It is a circumstance to be welcomed (although it's strange to realize that even his huge talent could be subject to the trends and whims of TV fashion).

Allen's entre this time around was his brief stint in that NBC variety elephant, "Big Show," which stuck just long enough for people to realize that network television needs Steve Allen. This isn't said as a nostalgic exercise, but because Steve Allen is a genius with a sense of humor. If television can have him, it should jump.

NBC President Fred Silverman did, excitedly offering Allen the late-night job, then, after the Carson nix, this comedy series.

This could be just the right thing. It will be an hour of comedy, nothing else, with Allen and guests working skits and those patented Steve Allen impromptu devices — man-on-the-street interviews and the like. "I'm not doing a variety show," Allen says. "I make my living with comedy and that's what it will be. There will be no dancing bears." "My stock has risen, and they're willing to put me on the air now. It's purely a matter of what's box office, and I don't say that critically. Five years ago, you couldn't have sold a 'Steve Allen Show' to TV. You could have told them 'This guy's great, he's funny,' and all of that, and the network feeling was, 'You don't have to tell us about Steve Allen. But we need ratings. We need someone who's hot.'

"This wouldn't be happening now if it weren't for the fortunate accident of their needing someone with some experience to come out and say, 'Good Evening' for the 'Big Show.' There are some things that Erik Estrada is just not perfect for."

Even his job with "Big Show" was offered with reluctance. NBC wanted Burt Reynolds to act as host, asking Allen after Reynolds declined.

In the premiere show, Saturday, Allen will be joined by Steve Martin, Lucille Ball, George Kennedy, Louis Nye and Steve Landesberg, himself a talented ad-lib comedian. NBC isn't quite sure what it will do with "The Steve Allen Comedy Hour" after this weekend's showing, but there will be at least five more of them this year.

Anyway, thanks, Johnny, for making this possible. Prime time can use a few laughs.

Joanne Woodward Thinks Drug Problem Best Out In The Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Joanne Woodward applauds Carol Burnett's openness about her daughter's drug problem and says she and her husband, actor Paul Newman, probably should have openly discussed their son's drug addiction before he died of an overdose two years ago.

"Maybe it would have been a good idea if we had been able to stand up somewhere along the line and announce to the public, 'Wait a minute. Here is what is happening in our household,'" she said.

"I think it is a wonderful thing Carol Burnett has done in a similar circumstance, but the thing is you have to be able simultaneously to suggest a cure — and we never had one. ... What we had was a marvelous guy who just couldn't kick it."

Scott Newman was 28 when he died.

The Poles have often been the butt of ethnic humor. At the bridge table, however, the joking stops, for Poland has one of the strongest teams in the world — right now! And they have more stars in the wings. A young Polish pair, Kudla and Milde, won the European Pairs Championship held in Monte Carlo last May, and showed impressive form while doing so. This hand is just one of their brilliant defensive efforts.

Four spades was a popular contract, and it was usually made with an overtrick. But when Kudla and Milde were East and West respectively, Milde got his side off to a good start by leading a low trump.

Declarer won in his hand with the king of spades and immediately led the jack of diamonds. At other tables, East won the queen, and declarer eventually tried a ruffing finesse for the ace of diamonds. When that succeeded, eleven tricks rolled home.

Not so at the winners' table. Without any hesitation, Kudla took the jack of diamonds with his ace! A trump was returned, and ace of spades and another now left declarer with only one trump in each hand.

Not surprisingly, declarer placed West with the queen

'Queen' Rock Group Is Surprised And Happy With U.S. Successes

By MARY CAMPBELL
 AP Newsfeatures Writer
 Queen, the rock group from England, on a July-through-September tour of the United States, did a 1977 hit "We Are the Champions," as its final encore.

BRIAN MAY
 Guitarist of Queen

And there's as much truth as poetry there. As October began, Queen's "Another One Bites the Dust" was No. 1 on the U.S. best-selling singles chart and Queen's ninth album, Elektra, "The Game," was No. 1 on the album chart.

The group's biggest single hits in the United States have been "We Are the Champions" and "Crazy Little Thing Called Love" in 1979, says guitarist Brian May. "But it looks like 'Another One Bites the Dust' will go best of all of them. It's the hottest thing we've ever had. That's quite a surprise, especially when it's the third single off the album."

All four members of Queen write songs, with vocalist Freddie Mercury and May having written three each on "The Game" and bassist John Deacon and drummer Roger Taylor having written two each on "The Game."

"Freddie has written most of the hits," May says. "He's good at writing things which have universal appeal. The new stuff John is writing is doing very well. He wrote 'Another One Bites the Dust.'"

"That crossed over to the disco market, which is a first time ever for us. It's very near the top of the rhythm 'n' blues charts. That's another surprise. It gets us some new blood and new life in the audiences. 'Crazy Little Thing' got us some new people as well. It sold to a younger, more pop-oriented market. It brought in a few people who would have thought we were purely a heavy metal group."

"Constant change is a good factor in keeping yourself alive and the audience alive."

Queen has been together since 1971 and started being successful with fans — though some critics thought they were copying Led Zepplin — with its first album, "Queen," in 1973. The big boost came in England in 1975 with the single "Bohemian Rhapsody" and in America in 1977 with "We Are the Champions."

"We still didn't have a big break in Europe at that time," May says. "It's now the best time ever for us in Germany and France."

"And we've started to break through in South America. We're going to Brazil, Argentina and Peru in the spring. We had the No. 1 single in Brazil, 'Love of My Life.' It was released as a single in England and America and no one ever heard of it."

"One of the nice things you can do after a number of years in a rock group is get surprises in different places."

May has a family but keeps them well out of the glare of publicity. "I bring them over for at least part of a tour. I make sure I'm not away from them more than a couple of weeks."

Touring isn't so difficult for a successful rock group, May says. They fly between engagements and stay in hotels where the food is reasonable. "It's really not too bad. It's a lot easier on the body than recording."

"In a studio you tend to just work and work and not realize what time is. You don't get enough sleep or eat properly. Usually the good take comes when you've been there 10 hours — or you think it's good. You can get good ideas late at night when you're all getting a bit silly and tired. The tired brain sometimes comes up with a different idea."

Before Christmas there'll be a greatest hits album. And as soon as they return to England from the American tour, he says, they have to finish work on the music for the movie, "Flash Gordon," which will come out before Christmas.

All four wrote music, again separately. They've tried to collaborate, but it has never worked.

There will be a record album which May says will be aimed toward evoking scenes from the film more than being a straight music album. Queen will make less money on the album than any they've ever done, May predicts, because of movie business arrangements. But he's delighted they're doing their first film score and hopes more will follow.

"I think it came about because of the deal Dino de Laurentiis had with Elektra to release his future music. I think he rang up, and they said we're about the most loud and tasteless music Elektra has."

Actually, Queen's music is notable for being melodic. Its stage show goes from Mercury singing to May's acoustic guitar on "Love of My Life" to seven banks of colored spotlights descending ominously on individual cranes, smoke bombs and spacey, loud, dive-bomb music on "Tie Your Mother Down."

Script By An Oscar-Winner

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Two-time Oscar-winning screenwriter William Goldman has been signed to write a movie about an American civilian commando team who rescued two kidnapped businessmen in Iran in 1979.

The rescue team precipitated the largest prison break in history, then dodged Iranian revolutionaries and national police to rescue the two men held hostage in Tehran.

Goldman won Academy Awards for writing "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" and "All the President's Men." The movie will be made by ABC Motion Pictures.

BACK TO BASICS — The recession has hit pocketbooks, and popular electronic and space toys are giving way to the games, dolls and model cars that have fulfilled Christmas wishes for ages. Here, some of them are on display in a department store. (UPI Photo)

Christmas Toymakers Return To Basic Games And Toys Of Past

By NEAL ROBBINS
HONG KONG (UPI) — The recession has hit parents' pocketbooks.

Industry sources in Hong Kong, the toy export capital of the world, say economically hard-pressed consumers are spurning the trendy toys that have risen prohibitively in price while they were also losing some of their novelty.

Popular electronic and space toys are giving way to the same basic games, dolls and model cars that have fulfilled Christmas season wishes for ages, toy makers say.

This year alone, they say, the prices of plastic and paper, two primary toy materials, have risen as much as 30 percent.

"Under the Christmas tree this year you'll find as many toys as before, but in a lower price range," says Jerry Fishel, whose Fishel Toys Ltd. makes toys for the United States and Europe.

The recession is especially hurting the big U.S. toy market, Fishel said. One casualty of the move toward the more uncomplicated toys appears to be the boom in electronic hand-held games. By some accounts, their sales have plummeted 50 percent.

The downturn began in 1978, but producers kept on turning out the beeping, buzzing and blinking gadgets. Today, Hong Kong producers tell of instances in which electronic toys costing $17 to produce have to be unloaded for as little as $3.

Only the more outstanding electronic toys seem to be surviving the economic squeeze.

Industry sources say sales of space toys, whose popularity coincided with NASA's moon landing, have fallen off as interest in space shots and spacemen decreased.

The same sources say demand has doubled recently for the traditional toys of three or four generations ago.

Consumers are passing up $10, $20 and $30 items for those in lower price ranges and less affected by this year's price increases, which were the sharpest since 1974.

Even the basic toys cost more. With $5 last year a consumer could buy an eight-inch toy car, for example. Now, the same amount will get him a much smaller version.

Despite shifts in toy buying and higher prices, the industry remains healthy, manufacturers say, because toys seem to survive even the deepest economic doldrums.

"Bread and toys are a necessity," says A.C.W. Blaauw, who runs the annual Hong Kong toy fair.

Export figures supplied by the colony's Trade Development Council support Blaauw's statement. They show the total value of toy exports from Hong Kong so far this year as $420 million, or 35 percent higher than the same period of 1979. This British Crown Colony produces one of every three toys in the world.

Even though the figure makes Hong Kong the world's No. 1 toy exporter and the largest supplier of toys to the United States, producers say the rise in value is largely accounted for by inflation and the rising cost of materials. Production is actually about the same as last year.

And Hong Kong toymakers who produce about 1 million designs a year do not appear worried about their industry's vitality.

Says Herbert J. Rosenberg of Arco Industries, Ltd., "As long as a man has a few dollars in his pocket, he'll always buy something for his child."

Wine Merchants Grumble As Italians Adopt Beer, Whiskey

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
GREVE, Italy (AP) — Just as their wines are enjoying a surge of popularity in the United States, Italy's wine merchants are complaining that Italians are switching increasingly to beer and whiskey.

They also say people are rushing through lunch with a soft drink and a sandwich instead of a leisurely meal with a bottle of wine.

With wine cellars filled with last year's unsold product, the situation is considered critical as the industry begins harvesting this year's grapes amid predictions that 1980 will be another top year in quality and quantity.

Producers in regions such as Piedmont, home of the fine table wine Barbera, have pressed the government to step in and buy "the sea of unsold wine" to make room for this year's crop.

Italy and France, rivals in the battle of exports, have both suffered a drop in domestic consumption, according to an Italian report.

Lapo Mazzei, president of the consortium of Chianti Classico wines, told a recent wine fair in this village in the Tuscan hills near Florence that per-capita consumption in Italy has gone down steadily from 111 liters annually in 1970 to 92 liters in 1979. A liter is 1.056 quarts.

"The obvious thing to do is increase our export market," he said.

Industry specialists give several reasons for the wine glut: over production rewarded by subsidies from the European Common Market, changing table habits, a strong push by beer producers and whiskey importers, and the nagging problem of adulterated wine — what Italians call "vino sofisticato."

"The table today isn't the ceremony it once was," said Guido Scialpi, editor of the trade magazine Vini D'Italia. "With everybody in a hurry, it's not the place for socializing and conversation it once was. Wine goes with conversation."

The "osterias," or taverns, where men swap stories and play cards over a glass of wine, are becoming extinct. Instead Italians quench their thirst with a beer or a soft drink at a stand-up espresso bar.

Sales of beer in Italy have doubled in the past 20 years, while the consumption of Scotch and other imported liquor has steadily risen. Wine producers complain that heavy advertising has boosted sales of other products.

But the wine industry has also detected a consumer revolt over the continued marketing of wine adulterated by adding chemicals, other substances or sugar, which is outlawed.

Police last year closed 13 wine firms and arrested 56 persons on charges of fraud. The Ministry of Agriculture seized some 2 million gallons of adulterated wine, but experts say this represented only a small portion of the "vino sofisticato" in circulation.

Major exporters such as the Chianti Classico group have their own policing systems, but there is now a growing call in Parliament to step up controls on the smaller producers and stiffen penalties for law-breakers.

One group of wine-makers in Asti, near Turin, recently complained that some firms were selling wine for less than the price of a cup of coffee. "Given the costs, it's not possible unless the wine is adulterated," the producers claimed.

What this means in terms of consumption, say the experts, is that Italians are passing up so-called "open wine" and little-known brands for more expensive labels.

"They are drinking less but drinking better," said Scialpi.

The change in drinking tastes has come at a time when Italian wines have kept up their expansion on the American market, clearly moving past the more expensive French vintages as the most popular imports.

months this year, while French and German wines settled for 12 percent apiece.

But the wine industry here says it is not content with concentrating on the export market alone, but wants to win back Italians who have switched to beer or other beverages.

The fair in Greve in September, for instance, attracted wine lovers from around the country as well as the United States, West Germany and the Netherlands who sampled the various brands by the glass or the bottle offered from pavilions set up in the town's medieval main square. Other regions put on similar showcases for their products.

Wine firms are now also sponsoring tours of their vineyards for restaurant owners and sommeliers, wine stewards who have always been a rare sight in Italian restaurants.

Truly, More To Cheerleading Than Possibly Meets The Ear

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
OLD TAPPAN, N.J. (AP)

When the living room is carpeted with freshly painted posters in the revered colors of blue and gold, in various stages of drying...

When the den is seized and occupied by a dozen giggling female persons in short skirts feasting on doughnuts and loud music in front of an October morning fire...

When you are asked to construct a laurel wreath (spruce boughs will do) in order that victory may be celebrated in properly classic style, at a toga party...

It then begins to strike home: There is more to cheerleading than meets the ear.

In America's 30,000 or so high schools, there must exist about 360,000 cheerleaders. Standing still, which they rarely do, saddle shoe to saddle shoe, megaphone to megaphone, they could easily fill 20 football fields.

So the species is hardly endangered. It is, however, rare. Ask any father of one.

He will tell you that a high school cheerleader is a creature of tender years who has not quite decided to give up girlhood for young womanhood. She is leaning in that direction, but there is too much fun to be had for now.

She is also one who has learned that loyalty is precious and that disappointment can be overcome and that success is often so joyous it brings tears.

The cheerleaders at Old Tappan High School have learned those things in a special way. They have had to.

They have had to because the subjects of their cheering, the Golden Knights, whom they adore ("adore" is an often-used word, especially in reference to certain specific Knights; "cute" is another), have won only two football games in four seasons.

You would think that would be discouraging enough to wilt a pompon. I mean, give us a break.

Wrong. These cheerleaders want their Knights to win, all right, and once this fall they did, hence the laurel wreaths and togas. "It was the very best time I ever had in my whole entire life," the resident cheerleader reported.

But cheerleading, it seems, has less to do with a won-lost record than with, simply, cheerleading.

Win or lose, to Jeanmarie, Maura, Brigid, Donna, Janet, Wendy, Kathy, Lynn, Claudia, Toni, Kay and Carolyn, each golden autumn weekend is its own adventure, friendship its own reward.

There are cookies to be baked (for the Knights to munch while they watch a training film), posters to be painted, horns to be honked, confetti to be cut, a pre-game breakfast to be cooked and enjoyed cross-legged on the floor with girl talk and laughter and tales of Knights and ladies.

Finally, the game.

Band music. Blue and gold streamers. "Come on, Golden Knights, get up and go!" Noise. Jubilation. Heartbreak. The eternal promise of youth.

Last Saturday the score was 33-6.

"We did a lot of 'hold that line' and 'block that point,'" the resident cheerleader said gamely, peeling off her sweater.

"Maybe next week."

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The Straight Dope About Pot

You seem to tell it like it is. That's why I'm writing to you. You know the problems kids of my age (I'm 16) are having with their parents about smoking grass. They don't understand that marijuana is all around us and there isn't any party we go to where grass doesn't break out. Grass is as easy to buy as aspirin. Is marijuana really dangerous? I'm willing to listen to you because you don't seem to have an axe to grind. Lay it on us straight. — Bryan J., N.J.

Dear Bryan:

Thanks for your faith in me. There is no fraudulence in my relationship with my young readers. I'm not in cahoots with parents. When I feel that parents are too rigid I openly say so. I have enormous trust in young people. I know that this is a turbulent period in your lives, but I'm aware, too, that in an effort to break away from the restrictions of parents and teachers — in order to show their new-found independence — many teenagers refuse to listen to their warnings.

Marijuana is one of the major sources of conflict. You are wrong when you say that I don't have an "axe to grind." I definitely do. I am firmly convinced that, despite the universal availability and use of marijuana, it is a dangerous drug.

One of the most difficult problems is to break through the ignorance that exists about marijuana. Misconceptions flourish among young and old alike. Cannabis (marijuana and hashish) may appear to be harmless. It is not.

How many people do you know who have stopped being good students, who have been involved in auto accidents, who have undergone distinct changes of personality, who have lost total motivation to work and study since they became involved in pot smoking?

Be as honest with me as I am with you. How many of your marijuana-smoking friends have been tempted to experiment with harder drugs, and how many have graduated to cocaine, amphetamines, alcohol, LSD, uppers, downers and even heroin?

Well-defined scientific studies show that capabilities and efficiencies are diminished by pot smoking. Impulsive behavior, antisocial acts, lack of responsibility, poor reflexes, reckless driving, loss of inhibitions and failure to adhere to rules of safety have cut short lives that were headed for potential accomplishment and happiness.

The scientific literature is filled with studies that attest to brain damage, deterioration of body reflexes and impaired memory function. Rapid heartbeat, unsteadiness, drowsiness, lack of muscular coordination and distortion of time and space perception are all by-products of marijuana dependence.

All of these are but the tip of the iceberg of hazards that will be uncovered as further studies progress.
