Vicious Fighting, Conflicting Reports As Persian Gulf War Swirls Into Fourth Week

BASRA, Iraq (UPI) — The Persian Gulf war, still focused on the fighting for Iran's major oil ports, swirled into its fourth week Saturday with both sides issuing conflicting claims.

Iran reported a third consecutive day of vicious "hand-to-hand fighting" in Khurramshahr on the Shatt al-Arab waterway, relentless artillery duels at nerby Abadan and "heavy fighting" far to the north.

Iraq said its forces beat back Iranian attempts to counter-attack and break its slowly tightening siege of the two ports and its hold on a broad strip of territory in Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan province.

But on the 27th day of the war, the outcome seemed as much in doubt as the fate of the 52 American hostages, who were spending their 350th day as captives of Iran's Islamic revolution.

At the United Nations in New York, Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai raised the hostage crisis at a news conference that did little to dispel uncertainty over the captives' fate.

At one point, Rajai said the hostage crisis "could go a long way" toward being solved if the United States would take back the four ultra-sophisticated reconaissance planes it loaned to Saudi Arabia to monitor developments in the Iranian-Iraqi war.

But he also reiterated Tehran's position that the hostage issue was in the hands of Iran's parliament, which Rajai said would meet soon to set its conditions for freeing the Americans. He also said he had come to the United Nations "only" to discuss the war and would not negotiate on the hostages.

On the battlefronts, both sides indicated savage if small-scale fighting.

Baghdad said Iranian forces counter-attacked in oil-rich Khuzistan province but were beaten back by Iraqi forces. Drawn-out fighting continued for two of Khuzistan's main cities, Abadan and Khurramshahr.

Tehran radio said "hand-to-hand fighting was continuing" in Khurramshahr's business quarter and its "residential areas are under heavy rocket and shell fire."

"In Abadan, (Iraqi) forces outside the city are shelling the residential areas," Tehran said. "Iranian artillery is pounding the Baathist (Iraqi) positions," it said.

Far to the north, Tehran reported "heavy fighting" in the mountainous area of Gilan, 25 inside Iran.

'Closeup' Helps Teens Grasp Government

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

"I don't believe the president should get out there and support the anti-smoking campaign."

"It was only a registration and since it takes an act of Congress to declare war, I don't think there's any danger from just registering."

"I think not having liquor-by-the-drink forces people to drink more than they want because then they brown bag and feel like they must drink the whole bottle."

These were a few of the comments made by students participating in Pitt County Schools' first Closeup experience Friday and Saturday. Closeup is a local version of the state and national Closeup projects, both aimed at familiarizing high school students with the workings of their government.

Kenneth Vidato, community coordinator for the Washington, D.C. Closeup Foundation, said in his keynote address to the participants Friday morning, "It (Closeup) is about you and what you think." Vidato spoke about issues concerning the world today and encouraged students to voice their opinions, or to form opinions if they didn't have them already. "I want you to tax your mind a little," he added. Students listed their concerns as inflation, adult unemployment, energy and the draft.

When asked specifically what North Carolina issues they considered crucial, they responded with "Unemployment" and "the Communists Workers — Nazi-Klan trial."

Pitt County is the first county in the state to organize a local Closeup project. Speaking about how the idea began nationally and statewide. Vidato said, "It first got cranked up in 1971, but its beginnings came after the era of the sixties. Closeup began as a effort to deal with the hostility and disinterest toward government that developed at the onset of the seventies."

According to Vidato, the community concept of the program is significant. "It's important for you," he commented "to get perspective from legislators and students not only from your own area but from other areas also.

"Closeup is an experience for everyone," he stressed, "not just the academically elite, but for everyone. It's for those who make straight A's as well as those that are doing average work.

"Closeup is not only for leaders, but also for those who may not be student body president, student government president or in the honor society."

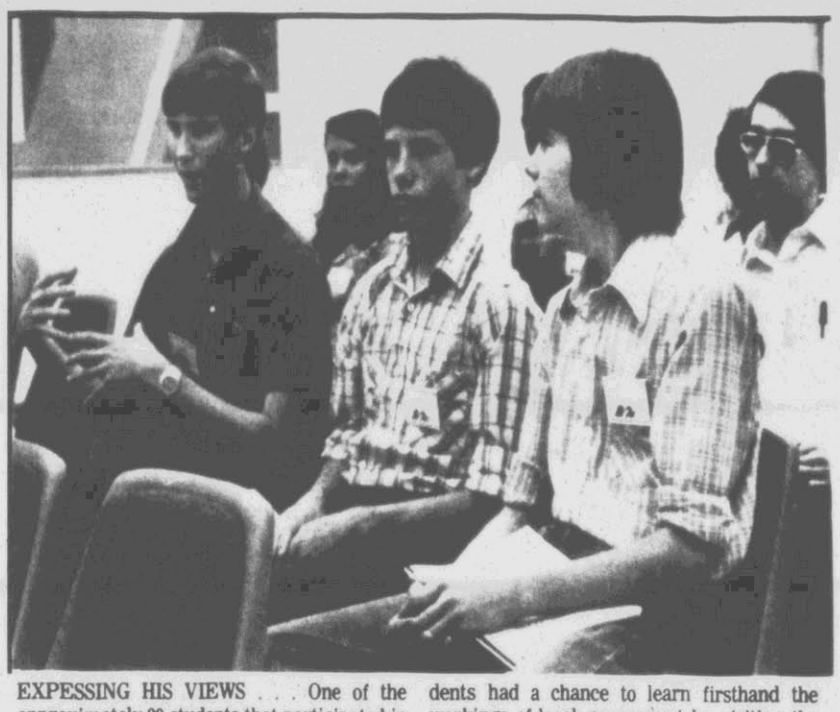

On Friday other sessions for the students were conducted by Edward Garrison, director of social services; Mark Owens and Thomas Patterson of the Pitt County School Board; Jimmy Hardee, tax supervisor; and Reginald Gray, county manager.

On Saturday a panel of mayors and town advisors spoke to the group at D.H. Conley High School. The students also had a chance to talk to County Commissioners Alton Gardner, Bob Martin, Bruce Strickland and Ed Warren. In addition, George Saleeby of the Pitt County Democrats and James McIntyre of the Pitt County Republicans met with the participants.

According to the organizers of Pitt County Closeup, the idea for a local program was inspired by the three-day North Carolina Closeup attended by Pitt teachers and students last spring. The purpose of the experience was to provide students with an opportunity to learn about Pitt County government by seeing how it works and by asking questions.

The students who attended these sessions represented sophomores, juniors and seniors from all four county high schools.

The organizing committee included Sarah Hunt from Farmville Central; Delano Wilson from Ayden-Grifton; Helen McClanahan from D.H. Conley; Gigi Guice from North Pitt; and Christina Drye from Pitt County Schools.

EXPESSING HIS VIEWS . . . One of the approximately 90 students that participated in Pitt County's first Closeup Friday and Saturday voices his opinion about North Carolina's gas tax, one of the many subjects broached during the two-day learning experience. Students had a chance to learn firsthand the workings of local government by visiting the various county offices and having conferences with county leaders. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Debate Between Carter-Reagan Could Determine The Winner

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A debate between President Carter and Ronald Reagan just one week before election day, and perhaps lasting no more than an hour, could determine who will be president the next four years.

The campaign that began two years ago for early birds George Bush and Phil Crane, in the late summer of 1979 for Sen. Edward Kennedy and a year ago for the rest of a once-crowded field, now has a little over two weeks to run.

In one sense, Carter has been running ever since he won his first term in 1976 and Reagan's campaign for the White House began in the 1968 campaign against Richard Nixon.

Both men are running on clearly defined records that represent what Carter calls "probably the most profound differences between two candidates of any election in history."

If final agreement is reached to hold a debate in Cleveland Oct. 28, the Tuesday before election day, the candidates will want to put their opponents' records on nationwide television for the voters to decide.

Both camps feel they can win the debate and the election.

Carter believes he will convince the television audience of millions Reagan is a dangerous warmonger who would lead the nation into a nuclear conflict. And he will use Reagan's record to try and show his opponent would damage key social programs like Social Security, the minimum wage, unemployment insurance and medicare.

Reagan will place the blame squarely on Carter for high unemployment, inflation and the nation's other economic woes.

On the defensive, each man will contend his record is not as bad as his rival pictures it.

Carter is expected to blame the rapid increase in Arab oil prices, over which he had no control, for inflation.

Conditions May Be Set For Release Of Hostages

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai said Saturday Iran "very soon will set" conditions for releasing the 52 American hostages.

But he warned the presence of U.S. AWACS reconnaissance planes in the war-torn Persian Gulf was a major "obstacle" to freeing the hostages and urged that the planes be withdrawn as "a great sign of good will," suggesting that might be one of the conditions.

Rajai, in a news conference at the United Nations, reiterated Tehran's position that the fate of the hostages held for 350 days is in the hands of the hardliner-dominated Iranian Parliament, which he said would soon announce its conditions for settling the crisis.

He did not give a date, saying only that the "moment is not far away" and "the question (of the hostages) will be final and solved."

Rajai spoke in Farsi and his remarks were translated by an Iranian aide who himself spoke faulty English. But it appeared that by "final and solved" he was referring only to Parliament's action — not to the possibility the hostages might be set free.

Rajai, who came to the United Nations to address the Security Council on the Iran-Iraq war, also appeared to contradict himself several times without realizing it, casting some doubt on how literally his remarks were meant to be taken.

At one point, he indicated the thorny question of a U.S. apology for its past actions in Iran — a long-standing Iranian demand for freeing the hostages — was almost resolved.

"From the passage of time and from what we have heard from responsible people in government and those officials close to the U.S. government, this condition in practice has already been conveyed," Rajai said.

But then he added "all that remains is that something be put on paper" — a written apology that he said should be a "confession" by the United States.

President Carter has said the United States will not apologize for anything to gain the release of the hostages.

Kosygin Is Seriously Ill, May Be Replaced On Tuesday

By KIRSTEN O. LUNDBERG

MOSCOW (UPI) — Alexei Kosygin, 76, prime minister of the Soviet Union since Nikita Khrushchev's ouster in 1964, is seriously ill and Western observers are speculating he will be replaced at a plenum of the Communist Party Central Committee Tuesday.

Bets for a successor are on First Deputy Premier Nikolai Tikhonov, only one year younger but far more robust than the ailing Kosygin.

"There's a lot of speculation Kosygin might be replaced at the plenum," said one Western diplomat, a view supported by other diplomatic sources. "They need someone at the helm during the implementation of the next Five Year Plan with full powers as premier. Tikhonov may be elevated.

"But any move at this plenum depends very much on Kosygin's real state of health," the diplomat added. "If he's really out and the others know he's that bad, then he's not coming back. But the others wouldn't oust him prematurely."

There's also a chance Kosygin may try to hang on until next February, when the Communist Party congress meets for its once-in-five-years deliberations.

Tuesday's plenum of high party officials has been given little publicity and could be a forum for reshuffling government officials. It comes on the eve of a two-day session of Parliament, the Supreme Soviet.

This is not the first time Kosygin, out of public view since the closing ceremonies of the summer Olympics Aug. 3, has disappeared for a long time. He was out of circulation for more than four months at the end of last year, reappearing on his 76th birthday Feb. 22.

But the heart troubles from which he repotedly suffers returned, and he has been absent from several important meetings, most recently a Council of Ministers meeting last Tuesday. Several scheduled meetings with foreign visitors have been cancelled and they were told Kosygin was hospitalized.

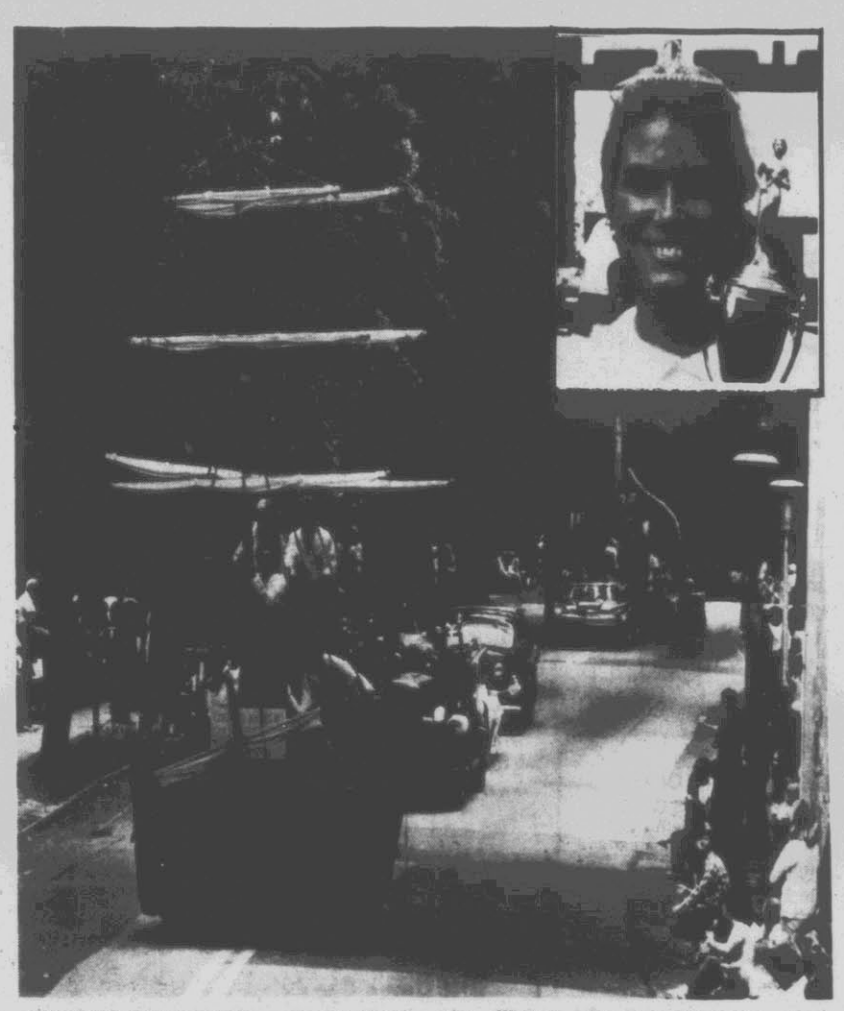

Heir-apparent Tikhonov is a low-key politician who was promoted to full membership in the Politburo only last November at another plenum. His promotion had been expected in 1976, when he was named deputy premier after Kosygin reportedly suffered a stroke while swimming and nearly drowned.

Tikhonov comes from the Dnepropetrovsk region, also President Leonid Brezhnev's home area, which led to stories of patronage. During Kosygin's up-and-down periods of illness, Tikhonov has served as de facto premier and reportedly already runs things even when Kosygin is able to make public appearances.

Tikhonov's wife died in early October. In a stoic manner reminiscent of Kosygin himself, Tikhonov appeared at the airport shortly afterwards to see off visiting Indian President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy. In 1967 Kosygin took his place on the reviewing stand at a May Day parade 30 minutes after his wife's death.

Eight of the 14 full Politburo members are over 70 and four more are over 65.

There are strong indications, however, that the Soviet Union's leaders may prefer to delay announcement of a Kosygin successor until after the 26th Party Congress in February.

HOMECOMING PARADE — Bands, floats, fire equipment and old cars highlighted Saturday's East Carolina University Homecoming parade, shown here traveling down Fifth Street. Even though it rained, it was a good day for the Pirates, who won 24-14 over Western Carolina University. Ann Yeager (inset), representing the Intra-Fraternity Council, was crowned queen of the homecoming. Story on alumni activities is on page 3. (Reflector Photos by Tommy Forrest).

Begin Warns More Strikes

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Despite criticism from Washington, Prime Minister Menachem Begin has warned Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon they can expect more "preventive" Israeli raids like the latest airborne and infantry strike against guerrilla bases north of the border.

"Israel's defense forces will continue to fight the terrorists because their known aim is the destruction of Israel," Begin told a group of senior army officers Friday, only hours after his troops returned from their first major thrust into southern Lebanon in two months.

Begin, who is also acting defense minister, said the raid was part of a policy of "preventive action," aimed at keeping the guerrillas on the defensive and protecting Israel from terrorist incursions.

In Washington, State Department spokesman John H. Trattner said the Carter administration has repeatedly "deplored continuation of violence in Lebanon and stated our opposition several times to the strategy of preemptive strikes. That opposition continues and remains clear."

Friday Wrecks

An estimated $3,800 in property damages occured here Friday in traffic accidents according to reports of the Greenville Police Department.

A vehicle driven by Myra Renee Hill of 5 Mountain View Drive, Canton, struck a vehicle driven by Donna Blackwell Briley of 204 Harrell St. Friday at 4:32 p.m. on Charles Blvd.

Estimated damage to the Hill vehicle was $1,000 and $900 to the Briley vehicle.

A vehicle driven by Leon Edward Therrien of 1202 Bearhollow Road, Greensboro struck a vehicle driven by Albert Louis Singleton Jr. of 1715 Circle Drive Friday at 6:05 p.m. on Fifth Street.

Estimated damage to the Therrien vehicle was $500 and $300 to the Singleton vehicle.

A vehicle driven by Angela Renee Briggs of 201 Stancil Drive struck a vehicle driven by Max Michael Richardson of Rt. 8, Box 452 Y Friday at 3:54 p.m. on 14th Street.

Estimated damage to the Briggs vehicle was $800 and $300 to the Richardson vehicle.

ECU Medical School Studies Left Handedness

By GEORGETTE HEDRICK
ECU Medical Writer

Gammy, keggy, quiffy, bawky, watty, wacky-handed, kay-pawed.

The British have coined the most names for that significant minority in the population who posess one trait that has made them the target of enmity and suspiscion on and off throughout history.

These are the five to 15 percent of the population who are left-handed, more commonly known to North Americans as "southpaws."

Left-handers, because they are the exception to the rule of right-handedness, have been accused of being mentally retarded, stubborn, inclined to lead lives of crime, poor penmanship and unlucky, to name a few of the negative labels placed upon them.

But what causes left-handedness? During recent years, research on the subject has snowballed, and a geneticist at the East Carolina University School of Medicine is one of many investigators who believe that the preference for the left hand is not chosen by an individual but determined by the organization of the brain.

"There is a segment of the population whose brain is built differently, and we're trying to find out why," says Dr. Charles E. Boklage, assistant professor of microbiology.

Boklage outlines his research and theories in a chapter of "Neuropsychology of Left-Handedness," published in May by Academic Press. The volume represents the latest research on the subject by American and Canadian experts in the fields of learning, psychology and brain organization.

Scientists and physicians have attributed handedness to structural asymmetries of the human body, cultural conditioning, pathological condition of the brain and hereditary mechanisms.

According to Boklage, the trait for left-handedness, which is often hereditary, is related to the basic organization of the left and right sides of the brain.

"All the basic symmetries and asymmetries of the human body are established in cells in the first two weeks of gestation," says Boklage. "We have some evidence that the trait is laid down extremely early in the development of the embryo, perhaps as early as the first five or six cell divisions of the newly fertilized human egg."

"In their early development, eggs know what to do — how to make a person, a puppy or a cow. They also have information that discerns 'left' from 'right,' and that's why you don't see a person with a left hand attatched to a right arm," says Boklage, who admits it is not known exactly how this left-right information is transmitted.

What studies do show is that most left-handed children have two right-handed parents. More left-handedness occurs among artists than non-artists and particularly among architects. Left-handed people are more flexible in their hand preference and have more unusual fingerprints.

Futhermore, left-handed people are more likely to lose their speech as a result of a brain injury, but they are also more likely than a right-handed person to recover the ability for speech. Boklage attributes this fact to studies which show that 95 percent of right-handed have speech centers on the left side of the brain, while as many as 60 percent of left-handed people have som speech abilities in the right hemisphere.

In the recently published book, Boklage reveals the results of a study he conducted on 800 identical and fraternal twins and their families.

He found that if either one or both of the parents were left-handed, they were 50 percent more likely to have a left-handed child. He also documented that left-handed parents were more likely to have twins.

Futhermore, the results showed that left-handedness occurs almost twice as often in twins as in single children and that parents of twins have twice as much left-handedness as their own brothers and sisters.

Boklage also uncovered an unusual relationship between schizophrenia and hand preference. He found that schizophrenic identical twins in which either twin was left-handed spent less time in the hospital and usually were diagnosed as having a milder form of the disease.

"The correlation between twins and left-handedness may be attributable to the unique cell divisions that prepare the egg for fetrtilization," says Boklage, who recently led a session on the biology of twinning and presented his research on handedness at the International Congress on Twin Studies in Jerusalem.

"It is also during this early stage of embryo development that left and right information is transmitted, and we believe that hand preference is linked to the differences in the left and right hemispheres of the brain."

In all the universe, Boklage says, left and right are most important in the human brain, and left-handers — the exceptions to the rule — are providing clues to brain organization.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Catherine DiPisa, a 78-year-old widow, lived alone in a small apartment in one of the bleak public housing projects that dot Manhattan.

She was a white woman who lived in East Harlem, but her days were passed in an uneventful fashion familiar to milions of senior ctizens.

On Saturday police arrested four neighborhood teen-agers and charged them with shooting and killing Mrs. DiPisa on the elevator as she rode to her 15th-floor apartment.

Police said one of the four boys, Robert Jones, 14, shot Mrs. DiPisi in the head once with a .22-caliber handgun in a robbery that netted the youths $3.

They said the boys followed her onto the elevator and fled the building after the shooting.

Outstanding Alumni Awards

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University honored two successful businessmen and the founder of a Florida law firm Saturday with its annual Outstanding Alumni Awards as a highlight of ECUs Homecoming 1980.

Also, three former Pirate athletic stars were presented ECU Sports Hall of Fame awards during ceremonies at the Homecoming awards luncheon hosted by Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer and the ECU Alumni Association.

The awards presented at the luncheon were restaged at halftime of the Homecoming football game at Ficklen Stadium between ECU and Western Carolina University.

Recipients of the Outstanding Alumni Awards of 1980 were:

James H. Maynard of Raleigh, president and chairman of the board of Golden Corral Corp. which operates family style steak houses throughout the south and California. Maynard is a member of the ECU board of trustees, the Chancellor's Society, the ECU Educational Foundation-Pirate Club and a director of the Alumni Association. his wife, the former Connie Mizelle, is also an ECU graduate.

JAMES MAYNARD

Luther M. (Luke) Taylor of North Palm Beach, Fla., founder of the L.M. Taylor lawyers firm specializing in the general practice of law. He received his law degree from Stetson University after being in the import-export business in Florida. He is a member of the ECU Alumni Board of directors, a member of the Chancellor's society and the Taylor/Slaughter Alumni Center bears his name. His son, Daniel, is an ECU student.

LUTHER M. TAYLOR

Samuel J. Wornom III of Sanford, founder and owner of Pantry Stores and until recently an owner of Macks Stores, headquartered in Sanford. He is a member of the Alumni board of directors, a member of the Chancellor's Society and an active Alumni Association supporter.

SAMUEL J. WORNOM III

Inductees into the ECU Sports Hall of Fame, presented awards at the luncheon, were Cecil A. Heath, 1954-55 standout in both basketball and baseball and captain of both teams in 1954 and 1955; Carlester Crumpler, star football running back 1971-73, who holds four individual season school records and four career school records on the gridiron; Danny Kepley, star linebacker for the Pirate football team, 1972-74, who won the Most Valuable player Award in 1974, Outstanding Senior Award and Outstanding Player in 1974 and other awards and honors.

Chancellor Brewer made the presentations of both the Outstanding Alumni Awards and the Sports Hall of Fame Awards at the luncheon attended by nearly 400 alumni and special guests. Among special guests were members of the 1950 ECU football team, which celebrated its 30th anniversary at Saturday's Homecoming.

The annual Homecoming Parade featured nearly 100 units including 15 floats and six bands and was called "the biggest ever" by alumni officials.

An open house and coffee hour were held at the Taylor/Slaughter Alumni Center on Saturday morning prior to the festive parade. An alumni social at the Greenville Moose Lodge was held following the football game and a "Carrousel of Bands" was staged at Mendenhall Student Center Saturday night.

A Reagan Rally

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's Republican neighbors in Sumter County are staging a rally for Ronald Reagan Sunday right here in the president's home town.

If there are any Reagan supporters in Plains they have yet to come out of the closet.

But the good Democrats of Plains are trying to be, well, democratic about it.

Maxine Reese, in charge of getting out the vote for Carter in Plains, tried to take the high road.

"It's a free country," she sniffed.

"They won't get no support from the blacks in Plains," said Bobby Sims, 34, who works for a rubber company. "We black people don't believe in Republicans."

Billie Melton, 76, a farmer, allowed as how he believed he had heard something about the rally, but didn't expect it to amount to much.

"Now I've been knowing Jimmy Carter just about all his life," he said.

Foreign Doctors Add To Surplus

Elsewhere on today's opinion page Dr. John R. Gamble, Jr., representative from the 38th district and a medical doctor, writes concerning the projections which show a physician surplus for the nation by 1990.

A particular concern, as he notes, is the influx of approximately 20,000 foreign physicians a year. Dr. Gamble says the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics has indicated it would be willing to admit 22,000 per year, and it has been estimated that we are approaching the point where 25 percent of the total number of physicians in practice are foreign. Of the 70,000 surplus physicians projected by 1990, some two-thirds will be foreign born, who will enter the nation from 1980 to 1990.

If that is the case, it certainly makes sense to curtail the number of foreign physicians entering the country. Frequently they are coming from nations which have a more severe shortage of physicians than the United States, and if we can believe the projections, American medical schools now are capable of training enough physicians to take care of our own population.

We would not wish to totally ban the entrance of foreign physicians into the country. A certain number would come to take research or educational positions. Others would be admitted to pursue postgraduate or specialized training. If there is a particular need a foreign physician should be admitted, and physicians who came when we faced a severe shortage should continue to practice here.

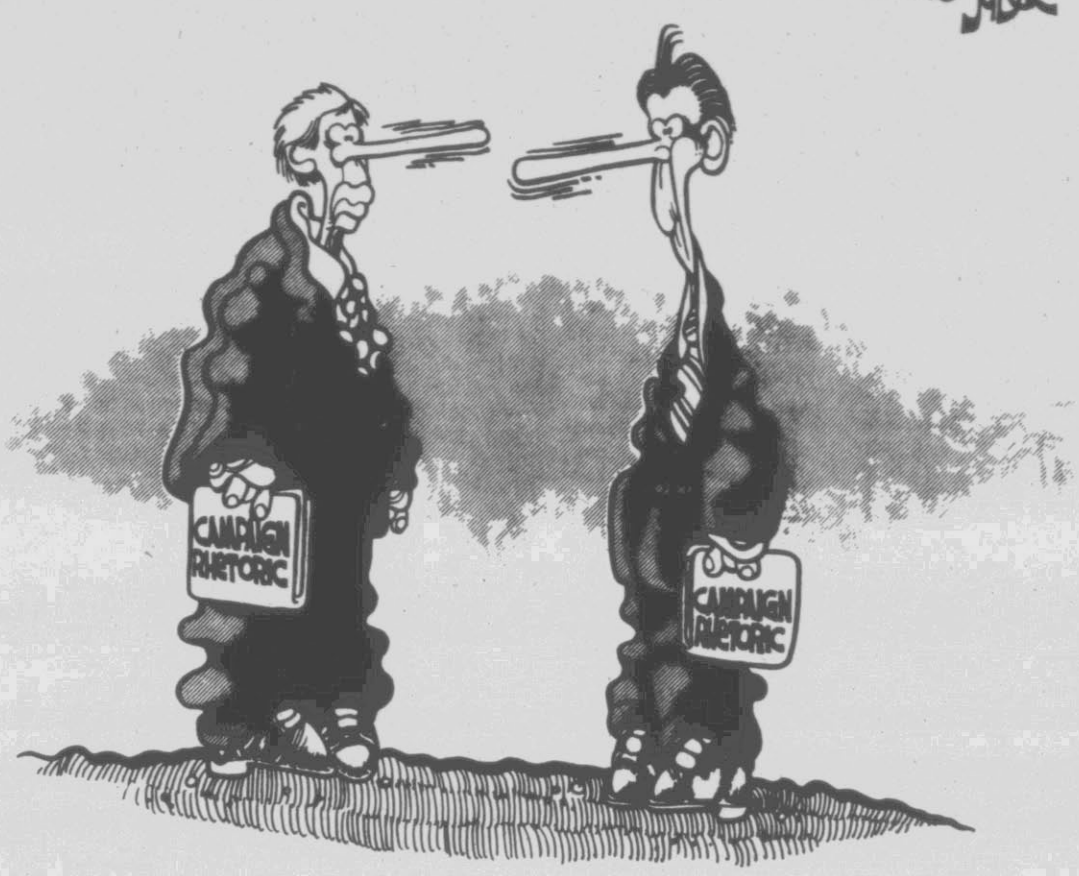

But why rob an undeveloped nation of its physicians in the future if we are training our own adequate supply?

Fellowship Club Draws Democrats

The fourth annual North Tar River Fellowship Club meeting was held at the M. K. Blount Farms' River Road Ranch last week.

This election year it featured Gov. Hunt, Sen. Morgan, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, a number of members of the council of state and numerous local officials.

The event is rapidly becoming one of the top gatherings of Democrats in this area.

Parks Given Low Priority

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Governmental parks and recreation programs took some hard knocks in a recent survey of citizens regarding use of their tax dollars.

Up to 45 percent of those questioned considered parks and recreation the most expendable government program if sharp budget-cutting becomes a necessity.

Almost a fourth of the respondents said tax-supported colleges and universities could be the first cut back; 11 percent chose streets and highways; eight percent said cut government help for the needy; and only three percent picked public schools... and ... clearly the most popular government function — public safety — would be tgrimmedby only two percent.

The survey is made each year by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations chaired by New York Mayor Abe Beame and made up of U.S. Congressmen, federal, state and local officials, and private citizens.

Results of the survey have been circulated to county commissioners across North Carolina by the Association of County Commissioners in its regular publication "CountyLines".

Another part of the poll sought to find which taxes are most unpopular. The federal income tax was a clear winner with 36 percent rating it the worst. A fourth of the participants put local property taxes in first place as the worst tax, while 19 percent selected state sales taxes. State income taxes were unpopular with 10 percent.

Action Promised

Reports from several newspapers in the state regarding local tax office handling of applications for property tax homestead exemptions for the elderly, and a recent column in this space on that matter, are stirring considerable response in Raleigh.

Gov. Jim Hunt has aides looking into the matter, promising action to relieve the problem. He says it is unlikely that anything can be done this year, despite the immediate need, but promises steps in the 1981 General Assembly.

A legislative study commission on the aging is also looking into the situation and will draw up changes in the state law. And staff members of the fiscal research division of the General Assembly are studying the North Carolina exemption program in comparison to other states with an eye to possible major change in the law.

BILL NOBLITT

This year, the date for filing application was changed from December 21 to April 15. Many qualified taxpayers who had waited until their local tax bills arrived to file for the cut rate (bills normally go out in August or September) found the deadline already gone nd local tax supervisors unable to bend the rules.

Those over 65 with income below $9,000 are given a $7,500 reduction in valuation which — if the local tax rate were one dollar per $100 — amounts to $75 on the tax bill. Application is supposed to be made at tax listing time in January, but the law allows application later. The change of that cutoff date by the General Assembly at the insistence of county officials who said the December date fouled up their budget-making system triggered the problem.

Small Print

Another problem with the system came to light in Kannapolis as a result of the news accounts of the homestead situation: a reader complained that the small print on tax-listing forms made it all but impossible for older people to read and figure out what to do in the first place.

A legislative committee will review the entire program, with proposed changes in the income level, increased benefits, and easier application procedures likely to result.

Sunday Morning Notes

Time. There's either not enough of it, or there is too much of it.

It dominates all our lives, and determines where we will be and how long we will stay.

There are moments that stick with all of us. For your columnist the most magic hour I ever learned was 3:10. That was when school was out at Wahl-Coates.

Now 5 p.m. is a magic hour for most office workers and those on regular day time hours. Of course, there are 5 p.m.'s on Mondays and 5 p.m.'s on Fridays. There's a world of difference, you know.

The governor, Sen. Morgan and other politicians pretty well wrapped up Pitt County last week. Hunt and Morgan made morning appearances in Greenville and returned that night for the North Tar River Fellowship Club meeting.

Both were back the next night for a district Democratic rally and there were other appearances in the area.

Gov. Hunt spoke briefly at the Fellowship Club. He concluded, "It is true I don't live on the banks of the Tar River. I live on the banks of Contentnea Creek, but I trust, Ed Warren, (club president) that that will be forgotten tonight."

Well, any river, stream or creek will do . . . as long as it's in Eastern North Carolina.

Warren recognized various politicians present and asked for comments. The comments varied in length, according to whether or not the speaker had any oposition.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has opposition, but when his turn came, he said, "I just want to say thank you."

Taken aback, Warren asked with a laugh, "Anything else?"

"Thank you again," Green replied.

A lot of the same people attended an affair at the W. M. Scales home for pitcher Gaylord Perry where they feasted on barbecue. Then it was to the Fellowship Club that night where the fare was again . . . barbecue.

Many of the same people were at a Chamber of Commerce 7:30 a.m. meeting where Sen. Morgan spoke. The menu? Not barbecue. It was coffee and doughnuts.

Whatever the menu, taking an active part in political life means a lot of eating and an occupational hazard for politicians is putting on weight.

The governor and Sen. Morgan left the Fellowship Club meeting before the food lines form. Since both keep their figures, that must be the answer as to how it is done.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

In my opinion, you judge an incumbent on his record in office.

Senator Morgan and President Carter keep telling us that America is still the strongest military power, in spite of the fact that only half our armored divisions are fit to fight and half of our nuclear carriers are not combat-ready. Recently three present military chiefs of staff opened up and told Congressional committee their men and equipment were not combat-ready and Russia is equal or superior to us — Russia has twice the number of combat ship of the U. S. A.

Mr. Morgan voted against reducing the CETA budget, even though North Carolina's performance is horrible. Did you know your state taxes will pay the federal government $166,000 because the state is not requiring Union President Hobby to pay up? Sen. Morgan voted with the Union boys. 1. Allowed union bosses to use forced dues for political purposes. 2. Forced construction contractors to hire union labor on federal projects. 3. Voted against right-to-work law for school teachers.

Sen. Morgan has hurt the farmer by voting for many inflationary programs such as: Mr. Morgan said, "Agreements reached with Red China are not only lucrative but promise to open our farmers and industries a market." What market, when 17,000 textile workers lost their jobs resulting from Communist China imports! Last week Mr. Carter signed an agreement with Red China to increase their textile quotas materially. How can we compete with labor earning only 14 cents per hour?

Why would H. W. Secretary Patricia Harris, enemy of tobacco business and Rockefeller bankers, pay to attend a fund-raiser for Mr. Morgan. Sen. Morgan voted to pay Panama to take over the Canal, who then used the money to bail out Rockefeller's banks, holders of their unpaid loans.

Health Food's Revival

By JOE BIGHAM
Associated Press Writer

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Amaranth, an ancient plant that has been all but forgotten in modern America, may achieve a renaissance as a protein-rich health food.

It was a staple grain in Mexico and South America before European explorers arrived. However, Spanish conquistadors discouraged its cultivation because amaranth held ritual significance in religion and human sacrifice in Mexico.

The tall, spiky-leafed plant with colorful, often dark purplish-red leaves largely died out as a food in the New World but was eventually introduced to China, India and Africa.

Now, amaranth may be making its way back across the oceans, spurred by a National Science Foundation study that termed it one of the 20 most promising new crops in the United States.

Experiments are under way to adapt the plant to climates and soils in the United States. Some health-food stores and a magazine are promoting the work, and General Foods is growing some amaranth.

One study is being conducted at the University of California department of agronomy in Davis by S.J. Jain and Holly Hauptli who hope to find the best strain for California conditions.

"Interest in grain amaranth as a major crop has grown in recent years, mainly due to its excellent nutritional quality," Jain reported.

It contains up to 18 percent protein compared to 9 percent for wheat and has "a well-balanced array of essential amino acids," he said.

Test plots have yielded up to 2,000 pounds per acre "which is a good yield compared with (other) high protein crops," Jain said.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Coasting Is All Downhill

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The blunt-instrument assault on Ronald Reagan which so outraged editorial commentators has planted fears of war in the minds of American voters that will result in President Carter's re- election unless Reagan's coasting campaign stirs itself to dramatic response.

The abrupt turn of events was first reflected in a variety of polls beginning Oct. 7, and accelerated over the weekend of Oct. 11. President Carter's remorseless campaign was working. He had passed Reagan in Ohio, Illinois and possibly Texas, taken a big lead in New York and pulled nearly even in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Florida. The momentum was all with the president three weeks before election day.

The non-response by the Reagan campaign is a clue to how his big lead was dissipated. At a moment of crisis for his candidacy, the Republican nominee and his entourage were off for one of their periodic transcontinental migrations to California. Reagan himself rested, while his staff leisurely conferred. There was no emergency meeting, because there was no sense of emergency.

By the beginning of the new week, reality was intruding on the Reagan campaign. But it remains to be seen whether the jerry-built high command can bring itself together for some decisive counterstroke: a revitalized media campaign, a special half-hour televised speech, even a debate challenge.

Actually, polling across the country still shows overwhelmingly negative reactions to both Carter and Reagan (and, lately, Rep. John Anderson as well). The difference is that the public thinks that Carter merely ruined the economy while Reagan might start World War III. "I can guarantee that the American public will absolutely not vote for anybody it thinks will start a war," one worried Republican strategist (not on the Reagan high command) told us.

This is testimony to the effectiveness of Carter's strategy. Looking at pollster Patrick Caddell's surveys last summer, campaign manager Hamilton Jordan knew from the start that the president's only hope was to paint Reagan as a man of war. "Just wait till we get to the housewives," one Carter strategist gleefully predicted. With Jordan as Mr. Inside and Robert Strauss as Mr. Outside, this has been the whole of the Carter campaign.

Whenever behind in past political campaigns, Carter's response has been to assault his opponent. It has worked before, and it is working this time. The president himself did overplay his personal attack and apologize so that, as one Carter insider said privately, he "could continue to do what he was doing before." More important, media expert Gerald Rafshoon's crisply-directed TV spots each night proclaimed the connection of Reagan and war.

This has received incomparable aid from the Strength For Today

JEKYLL AND HYDE

A statue of the famous English poet, Lord Byron, used to stand in the library of Trinity College, Cambridge. One day the librarian was showing it to a prominent British preacher. "What a grand genius he was," exclaimed the preacher, looking at one side of the face. "His rich endowments of personality and mind are displayed in every feature."

But then the preacher looked at the other side of the face. To his surprise he saw that it was scowling and leering with that sensuality which made the name of Byron notorious during his own generation. The librarian remarked, "The artist wanted to show the two sides of Byron's character, the genius and the dissolute worldling."

The existence of the two natures within every person's breast is a reality which has to be faced. No one is so righteous as to be entirely exempt. Man's soul is a battlefield, and the contestants are darkness and light. — Elisha Douglass

Forecasting Continues An Art

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Economic forecasting has improved from the days of omens and portents, but it remains an art rather than a science. It is hard as mathematics and computers, but soft as its basic assumptions.

In making his hard, decimalized projections, Dr. Lawrence R. Klein, this year's winner of the Nobel Memorial Prize for Economics, is forced by the nature of forecasting to build on various soft assumptions.

Klein, for example, foresees a moderate recovery in 1981, with gross national product rising 4.6 percent, inflation averaging 9.2 percent, and unemployment settling to around 8.2 percent in the final quarter.

Critics point out, however, that the firm mathematical depictions of the economy that are characteristic of what is called econometrics are built on a quivering substructure of subjective assumptions.

In the projections of Wharton Econometric Forecasting Associates, of which Klein is chairman, at least four important assumptions are made:

—That a tax cut will become effective at the beginning of 1981.

—That the reduction will be about $27 billion, "with roughly half of the benefits going to individuals and half to firms."

—That the Federal Reserve will follow a course of moderate monetary restraint. "This implies that growth in the monetary aggregates will be moderate and that interest rates will rise, but not precipitously."

—That the Saudi Arabian price for oil "will average $34 a barrel in the first quarter of 1981, and that the average of other OPEC producers will rise by a somewhat lesser amount." Saudi oil now is about $30.

Because such assumptions precede the mathematical equations, which seek to relate how the various segments of production and consumption interact on each other, the results sometimes are far wide of the mark.

Klein and other users of mathematical models concede their results are only as good as their assumptions. A good econometrician must therefore be widely knowledgeable as well as scientifically precise.

Klein, of course, has these qualifications, being solidly grounded in economics and the world of academe, and widely connected in both the political and business worlds, where his models are eagerly awaited.

Clients of econometric firms, such as Wharton Associates, Data Resources Inc. and Chase Econometrics, need not accept the models as inflexible, but can adjust them to their own forecasting needs.

As tools, therefore, they remain useful no matter what criticisms are leveled at their imperfections. If an assumption is questioned, for instance, a different assumption can be made and the model adjusted.

Never, however, can one avoid the assumptions, and in a world that grows more interrelated, the job becomes increasingly complex.

Moreover, nobody can consistently foretell political upheavals, wars, and the myriad, natural phenomena such as volcanic eruptions or severe droughts. Nor is mass psychology fully understandable.

Because of this, the award is likely to be seen as recognition for having advanced the art, and having solved some problems along the way, rather than having accomplished a goal.

So long as humans act like humans the future is likely to remain a continuing puzzle. And if mankind ever catches it, of course, the very act might change it.

You might say we've come a long, long way, and that professor Klein has done more than his share to push us along, but that the future is still out there in the ether where it's always been.

Slight Edge For Reagan

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — As the presidential campaign enters its final stage, the GOP ticket of Ronald Reagan and George Bush holds a slight 45 to 42 percent edge among likely voters over the Democratic ticket of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale, with the Independent slate of John Anderson and Patrick Lucey winning the support of 8 percent.

The results reported today, based on interviewing conducted last weekend, represent gains for both the Democratic and Republican tickets since mid-September when the Reagan-Bush ticket was the choice of 41 percent of likely voters to 37 percent for Carter and Mondale.

The vote for the Independent ticket has declined seven points over this same period, from 15 percent in September to 8 percent today.

A comparison of the two most recent surveys indicates that the Republican slate has gained four percentage points and the Democratic ticket five points as a result of the decline in support for the Anderson ticket, as well as a downtrend in the number of voters who remain undecided.

Following are the questions asked:

"If the presidential election were being held TODAY, which would you vote for — the Republican candidates Reagan and Bush, the Democratic candidates Carter and Mondale, or the Independent candidates Anderson and Lucey?"

Those who named other persons or who were undecided were asked:

"As of today, do you lean more to Reagan and Bush, more to Carter and Mondale, or more to Anderson and Lucey?"

Following are the latest results compared with those recorded in the earlier (Sept. 12-15) survey, based on the choices of likely voters:

Test Elections
(Choices of likely voters)

	Reagan-Bush	Carter-Mondale	Anderson-Lucey	Other/Undecided
LATEST (Oct. 10-12)	45%	42%	8%	5%
Sept. 12-15	41	37	15	7

Turnout Is Crucial

The turnout on Nov. 4 can be crucial in case of a close election, as now appears possible. Historically, only slightly more than half of eligible voters bother to vote on Election Day. To identify those voters most likely to cast their ballots, the Gallup Poll has developed a scale of voting intention which has been used during the last seven presidential elections. When the sample is broadened to include all registered voters, the race is a virtual deadheat, with the Democrats winning 43 percent and the Republicans 42 percent. The Anderson-Lucey ticket receives 10 percent of the support of registered voters.

Should Anderson Withdraw?

Anderson's support among registered voters had been as high as 24 percent, in mid-June. Following the nominating conventions of the two major parties in July and August, Anderson's support stood at 14 percent (in mid-September). Today, as noted, he is the choice of 10 percent of registered voters.

Although Anderson's support has slipped in recent weeks, a majority (58 percent) say he should not withdraw from the race. In September the comparable figure was 63 percent.

What Is Rate Of Defection?

One of the key questions being asked today is — how are Democrats, including former Kennedy supporters, lining up in the current presidential battle? Prior to the Democratic convention in July, Carter suffered a record rate of defection among Democrats, many of whom were Kennedy backers at that time. Only about half of Democrats chose him over Reagan and Anderson.

Following the convention, however, many Democrats rallied behind Carter, giving him a boost in the race against Reagan and Anderson. Nevertheless, in the latest survey, 18 percent of Democrats defect to Reagan and 5 percent to Anderson.

The table below, based on the choices of registered voters, shows that the GOP ticket is suffering less defection than the Carter-Mondale slate. It is also interesting to note that among Independents, Anderson wins as high a proportion of the vote as does Carter.

Vote Of Registered Voters
By Political Affiliation

	Carter-Mondale	Reagan-Bush	Anderson-Lucey	Other/Undecided
Democrats	72%	18%	5%	5%
Republicans	11	81	4	4
Independents	28	39	27	6

familiar Republican propensity to sit on a lead, though this time there was no proper lead; Reagan never surpassed 40 or 41 percent, not enough to win unless Anderson's vote held firm. The primary Reagan tactic was caution: Avoid mistakes.

That was embodied in the TV spots prepared for Reagan by Los Angeles advertising executive Peter Dailey. The so-called "California documentary," showing Reagan saving his state from bankruptcy in 1967, has become a staple of primetime television — unrelated to Carter's attacks or, indeed, to the political world of 1980.

Complaints about Dailey's sleepy spots by Republicans who previewed them have resulted in unanswered phone calls and no action. There has been no coordinated media response to the Carter onslaught. "We are coasting," conceded one Reagan insider, unaware that new polling data show them coasting to defeat.

Starting Oct. 7, pollsters around the country began to catch the Carter trend, but the Reagan campaign was oblivious. On Oct. 10, Reagan strategists in Washington brainstormed how to counteract the "October surprise" that they feared the president would conjure up to overtake Reagan. Other Reagan insiders grappled with the "Reagan administration's" transition. One senior Reagan aide confided that the election was won.

Assuming that reality has penetrated this euphoria, no quick response is at hand. It is late in the day for new TV advertising. Some Reagan advisers believe the answer might be to buy a half-hour of prime time for Reagan to go into the American voter's living room to talk about national security, foreign policy and — mostly — peace.

Or, a more dramatic response: Accept Carter's debate challenge, renewed over the last weekend by Strauss. "I think the governor (Reagan) always wanted to debate," one aide told us. But none of his senior advisers did, particularly those former associates of Gerald R. Ford whose first choice for president when the year began certainly was not Ronald Reagan. Their lack of confidence in the candidate led to Reagan coasting, which could well be a slow route to oblivion.

The Davis researchers have spent the past two years learning to grow the grain, said Jain, who was familiar with amaranth in his native India.

Now they hope to select the most promising types to build upon and develop the best characters, he explained in a telephone interivew.

"As you go along, you have your own local problems of adaptation to disease, light," he said. "Eventually, you do get to breeding your own type."

One of the features the researchers hope to develop into amaranth is a plant 5 to 10 feet high that can be harvested by machine.

But Jain predicted that amaranth "won't be grown over thousands of acres. It probably will become more popular as a back-yard gardening project."

The Great N.C. Textbook Uproar Back In '41

By NOEL YANCEY

When the state Board of Education back in 1941 disregarded the recommendation of the state Textbook Commission and adopted a North Carolina History textbook for fifth graders written by the secretary of the state teachers organization, it soon found it had the proverbial bear by the tail.

The furore broke out when the Daily Tar Heel, University of North Carolina student newspaper, charged that "political favoritism" has prompted the board to pass over a history text written by two UNC scholars in favor of one by Jule B. Warren, a former newspaperman who was secretary of the North Carolina Education Association and a member of the state School Comission.

The Tar Heel pointed out that the board had ignored the finding by the Textbook Commission that a text written by Dr. A.R. Newsome, head of the UNC History Department, and Dr. Hugh Lefler, a member of the UNC history faculty, "is by all odds the most outstanding, complete, scholarly, authorative, best organized and suited to our needs."

Former Gov. Clyde R. Hoey, who was ex officio chairman of the education board which was then composed of members of the Council of State, said "politics had nothing to do with the selection" and that the board turned down the Newsome-Lefler text, "The Growth of North Carolina," because it felt it was too advanced for fifth graders.

Nell Battle Lewis, a columnist for the News and Observer, leaped into the fray. She devoted five of her weekly columns, "Incidentally," to what she called "A Political Stink." She asserted the Warren book contained "so many egregious errors and so many omissions...it should not be taught in our public schools."

As omission, she pointed out that Warren had included "no general European background" for his history and that he had started with the English and Sir Walter Raleigh and made no mention of Columbus and of French and Spanish expeditions "to our shores."

She went on to cite a large number of errors in the Warren text. She said Warren had merged the two famous James Iredells of North Carolina history into one man, saying that he was both governor and the first North Carolinian to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. Actually, she said the first James Iredell served on the Supreme Court but was never governor, and his son of the same name, was governor but never a member of the court.

Warren, she said, had mistakenly written Willie Mangum's birth date so that he had him serving as president of the Senate at age 15 and that a similiar error had resulted in Edward Mosely "demanding liberty 23 years before he was born." She said Warren had Charles McDowell dying in 1775 but still being a hero of the Battle of Kings Mountain which was not fought until 1780. She said Warren had Joseph Martin dying in 1786 but also had him fighting in the Mexican War which came in 1846-49 and said he trained the first North Carolina contingent of Confederate troops (presumably in 1861).

Miss Lewis said that Newsome-Lefler, had aroused the ire of the Democratic politicians, who composed the Board of Education, by saying that in the conservative victories in the 1932 and 1936 Democratic primaries "there was so much evidence of corrupt activity by party workers at the voting places...that many citizens demanded laws to make clean and honest elections more certain."

Confronted with the numerous errors in the Warren text revealed by Miss Lewis and others, the Board of Education under the leadership of Gov. J. Melville Broughton ordered that the 105,000 copies which had been distributed to the schools at a cost of $45,000 be withdrawn so they could be corrected, and he commissioned Dr. C.C. Crittenden, secretary of the State Historical Commission, and H. Arnold Perry of the DEpartment of Public Instruction, to make a through examination of the book for factual errors.

Meanwhile, Broughton asked A.J. Maxwell, then commissioner of revenue, to make an analysis of the Newsomw-Lefler book. The revenue

Doctor Is 'In'; But Not Always In The Office

LAFAYETTE, GA. — At the Strawberry Mountain Medical Center, the doctor is always in, though not necessarily in the office. Sometimes he is in the garden.

Why would a doctor want to leave a lucrative family practice in cosmopolitan Atlanta to end up in a rural office almost a mile down a dirt road in the nortwest Georgia mountains, thirteen miles from the nearest town?

The answer is obvious to Eldon Hoose, M.D., general practitioner, country doctor and proprietor of the Strawberry Mountain Medical Center. In an urban place like Atlanta, too many people want to see the doctor, which means the doctor can't spend enough time with each patient, which often means the patient is unhappy and goes still to another doctor, and the vicious cycle accelerates.

over the past 10 years of his career, Hoose says, he developed a gradual dissatisfaction with the "system" of U.S. medicine. He has no quarrel with his fellow doctors; he believes most are professionally competent and up-to-date.

But a doctor gets into a situation with such demand on his services that his practice and his hospital work pretty well guide what he does with his life. The demand is for acute medical care and the system is one in which he has little control," Hoose says.

For Hoose, opening a rural practice was a way to gain control over both his profession and his own life.

Winona Cochran is the Strawberry Mountain Medical Center's receptionist, lab technician, bookkeeper and nurse. She is also a 50 percent partner in the practice. And she is the doctor's wife.

They met while both worked in the emergency room of a hospital. She says she didn't like him at first, but he was the best doctor she had ever worked with. Pretty soon, somewhere between the sponges and the forceps, more was sewed up than the patient.

If the Hooses wanted a slower pace, they have been rewarded so far. In the first four days after the office opened last year, they had a total of five patients. Business has picked up some now, but there are still days when the doctor and nurse do more waiting than the patients.

Of course the office is not in a high-traffic location. To get there you drive east from LaFayette, over the mountain ridge into West Armuchee Valley, turn at the Strawberry Mountain Medical sign (the doctor made it himself) and drive down the tree-canopied dirt road.

But Hoose says he knew business would be slow at first. "I may have to be here three years before the people build up enough confidence in me to accept what we are trying to do — improve on the system somewhat."

Hoose beleives in preventative medicine, and that concept depends heavily on the patient's confidence and acceptance of the doctor's advice.

"Diseases like cancer, hypertension, obesity, heart disease and diabetes are preventable and controllable. When you concentrate on getting people healthy and keeping them that way, you shorten both their illness time and recovery time.

"Basically, my focus is toward preventing people from getting so sick they have to go to a hospital. We doctors aren't taught much about healthy people. We're 'medical doctors,' not 'health doctors.' We spend 98 percent of our time studying illness and sickness and how to take care of it."

In preventative medicine Hoose says, "You spend most of your time explaining to people what they are going to do to themselves."

Hoose believes his rural, slower-paced practice will allow him more time with each patient. This is important because "The more time uou spend with people, the more effect you have on them."

Hoose's approach is unfamiliar to many. "Our very first patient came in and said, 'What's preventative medicine?' IUsaid, 'It's nothing fancy. Just nutrition, exercise and ecological awareness of our bodies and our lifestyles and living conditions are doing to them.'"

Adds nurse Cochran, "We want to have enough time to work with each patient, to explain why, if we tell them to drink six glasses of water a day, that water is going to help their systems and make them feel better. Our practice is slow right now, but we don't want more than 25 - 30 patients a day."

At the Strawberry Mountain Medical Center, it seems, too much success will be considered failure.

THINK THAT'LL BE OF ANY HELP TO HIM?

Given A Choice, Count On It; She Frustrates

By GAIL MICHAELS

I've always heard that to help a child develop self-confidence, the parent is supposed to give her choices. That's not always easy to do. The major problem I find when I try to give Meg a choice is that she and I do not agree on anything.

If I let her choose her own clothes when we're shopping, she invariably wants the $75 Little Miss velvet blazer and tie-dyed dungarees.

Even letting her choose what to wear each morning is a hassle. She follows one rule-of-thumb: if it's a matching set, break it up. The ABC shirt graces the striped jumper, and the polka-dot blouse tops plaid pants. If I object, she points out that they go together because they all share the color blue.

I keep trying to find some common ground between us, but there is none. When we moved, I decided that she should have a hand in decorating her room — with my guidance, of course. She didn't want my guidance. She wanted blue furniture, a red velour bedspread, and a kelly green rug.

Knowing that this color scheme would bring on a violent case of nausea each time I entered her room, I immediately narrowed her range of choices. She already had a blue rug. She had to stick with it.

The blue furniture was out, too. My parents were redecorating their home, anf they offered us my sister's bedroom furniture, a beautiful suite of yellow campaign furniture, just right for a child's room.

Naturally, when my parents threw in the quilted ranibow-striped bedspreads, the red velour passed out of consideration. But I felt sure that after we painted the room and she helped me chose curtain material Meg would be satisfied with the new look.

She was not. In the first place, she didn't want the room painted. She insisted that the dirty green walls went with the new furniture. She liked them. They cheered her up.

They did not cheer me up. The color was the same regulation green that was used in every school building and emergency room built in the U.S. during the 1950s. We were going to buy white paint whether Meg liked it or not.

I finally got smart with the curtains. I picked out two materials and asked Meg to choose between them. She didn't like either one. She wanted Darth Vader on a red and black background. She got a pink, yellow, and blue print.

The final product was bright and cheerful, but Meg was not to be appeased.

"Did you see my new room?" she asked an old friend who was visiting our new home.

"Yes, it's very pretty. You and your mother did a good job of decorating."

Meg snorted. "I bet you can't guess what I choosed."

"No, what did you choose?"

"Nuthin!!"

Projected Physician Surplus Proves Suspect

By Dr. JOHN R. GAMBLE Jr.

A recent federally funded report of a projected physician surplus in 1990 is suspect and fails to address many of the real issues. Unfortunately, reports from institutions are usually biased and self-serving.

Back in the mid-seventies (1970s) we heard there were adequate physicians, but maldistribution was the problem. No one, however, could identify where the surpluses existed to balance the maldistribution formula. One problem then is how is it that these experts talk among themselves and not with health care recipients? We were also told that by the early 1980s that we would have an overage of physicians and there was no need to increase medical school output. However, there are others who think that we are just now training an adequate number of American citizens to be physicians, and we know the current pool of qualified students to enter medical school still exceeds the available spaces.

During that period when we were told of adequate (or excess) physicians, the medical establishment was accepting and encouraging (by not objecting) an influx of approximately 20,000 foreign physicians a year. In fact, the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics indicated they would be willing to admit 22,000 per year. A recent estimate placed the percentage of foreign physicians practicing in the United States at a point approaching 25 percent of the total number of physicians in practice. Further, the same federally funded report indicates that, of the 70,000 surplus physicians projected by 1990, approximately two-thirds will be foreign physicians who will enter the United States in the same ten-year period, 1980-90.

Hardly anyone denies the increasing need for physicians in all fields of medicine (with the possible exception of general surgery). This need is based on the increased utilization of medical services in a health conscious society, on the rapid breakthrough occuring in many fields that makes so many more illnesses treatable, and the increasing number of the elderly (and disabled) composing the population.

I felt then, as now, that our priorities in the health field should be (1) to provide fully adequate (and promptly available) medical services in all fields; (2) to allow the market place to have an influence in the distribution of physicians. With the help of fine tuning the medical post graduate training (as suggested in the report), the output of the categories of physicians can be matched to meet the needs of the market place — in particular the smaller communities; (3) for each state to provide adequate medical education opportunities for its own qualified and talented citizen taxpaxers to become physicians rather than continue to place dependance upon the importation of physicians from other states and nations; (4) to continue to receive foreign physicians for the purpose of their post graduate training, but to impose realistic regulation on the number remaining as permanent residents. And thereby cease our role of contributing to the severe physician shortages that exist in many of the nations of these physician's origin; and (5) to increase our efforts in the important field of preventative medicine.

I firmly believe that, if the medical establishment and federal authorities act responsibily and address the real issues and do something about them, there will be no surpluses in 1990 nor 2000.

As Yancy Recalls

commissioner reported that the book met "none of the requirements" for a North Carolina history textbook, and he sharply disagreed with statements in the book about the Democratic Party, the Reconstruction period and North Carolina's rank among the states.

maxwell said Newsome-Lefler had concluded "North Carolina is still a rut" because they had written, "But it was still poor and backward in 1940 in comparison with most of the states. It ranked among the lowest fourth of the states in education, teachers' salaries, libraries, daily circulation of newspapers, health, doctors, hospital beds, total and per capita wealth and net income..." Maxwell then cited many statistics in an effort to refute the historians.

A few weeks later Broughton issued a statement in which he said that Crittenden and Perry had reported the finding of more than 1,000 factual errors in the Warren book and that it would be prohibitively expensive to correct it without a complete reprint of the book.

So, the state withdrew from the schools and junked the 105,000 copies of the Warren book. Under an arrangement with Warren, it had the text corrected and the book reprinted for use in the schools. Warren had agreed that he would not begin to collect royalties until after the state had recoverd its investment in the corrected text.

Warren, meanwhile, had issued statements in which he pointed out that the vast majority of factual errors in his book were minor, that all first editions of books contain errors and that no book in North Carolina had ever been subjected to such a scrutiny as his had received.

And, he said, he could not understand how Crittenden had found so many errors in his book in view of the fact that Crittenden had read the manuscript before publication. To which Crittenden said, "no comment."

Warren also asserted "Any suggestion I used political trickery or pressure to secure this adoption is a lie." Then he ruefully recalled the complaint of the prophet Job who wished "mine adversary had written a book."

Genentech Generates Bucks

By GARY KLOTT
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last Tuesday morning, Robert Scheller, a $10,000-a-year research fellow at the California Institute of Technology, suddenly was worth $1.3 million with his 15,000 shares of Genentech Inc. stock — the week's sensation on Wall Street.

On Friday afternoon, after the new glamor stock lost some of its glitter, the former Genentech employee was worth only $840,000, which still is not bad for a 26-year-old who wears mainly T-shirts, lives in a small apartment and doesn't own a car.

And although Genentech fell nearly $33 a share during the week's trading, the market debut of the issue still was one of the most memorable in Wall Street history.

Over the past several months increasing attention has been focused on the relatively new and exotic science of genetic engineering and the promise that it holds in developing microorganisms capable of doing everything from fighting cancer to cleaning up oil spills.

So it was widely anticipated that when investors finally were offered the opportunity to get in on what could be an enormously lucrative future with a genetic engineering firm of some repute like Genentech Inc., interest would be exceptionally strong.

But no one expected the kind of hysteria that developed when 1.1 million shares of Genentech stock were put up for grabs Tuesday morning.

The public stock offering of this small 4-year-old South San Francisco company with only a dribble of earnings and an uncertain future turned out to be one of the most spectacular new-issue debuts in Wall Street history.

Investors considered themselves lucky to get even a few shares at $35 each in the initial offering by a 90-member underwriting syndicate. Brokers had nowhere near the number of shares allocated to meet the demand of even their best customers.

Less than a minute after the stock was released for trading in the over-the-counter market at 10:25 a.m. Tuesday, the price of Genentech skyrocketed to $80 a share. At one point the hysteria pushed the price to $89.

The stock closed Tuesday at a bid price of $71.25 with 528,000 shares, nearly half the amount issued that morning, changing hands.

"I've never seen anything like this before," said one 20-year Wall Street veteran.

As the Genentech hysteria settled down into mild euphoria, investors were trying to figure out just how much the stock was really worth while the Securities and Exchange Commission was reportedly looking into the possibility of market manipulation and allegations that some brokers refused to sell Genentech stock unless the customer bought other blocks containing poor performers.

Knocking On Doors In Search For Killer

By WILLIAM COTTERELL

ATLANTA (UPI) — Police backed by a reward of more than $100,000 began knocking on doors and appealing for public help Saturday in solving the disappearance of 14 black children, nine of whom were slain, over the past 15 months.

As police fanned out in Atlanta Housing Authority tenements and poverty pockets on the south side, groups of civilian volunteers began searching for bodies of the still missing children.

The Atlanta Bar Association put up $10,000 more for the reward fund Friday — topping the $100,000 mark in collections and pledges, and the city council was expected quickly to approve soon a $20,000 appropriation for the city's share of the "City of Atlanta Evidence and Information Fund."

Gov. George Busbee had earlier dipped into his emergency fund for $10,000, which was matched by a private donor and a group of Atlanta businessmen. A local radio and television station put up another $15,000 and the remainder of the $100,000-plus fund was put together through smaller contributions.

"The response has been overwhelming, far more quickly than what I had expected," Mayor Maynard Jackson said, when advised that it took just three days for community organizations and individual donors to meet the $100,000 goal he had set.

"The people of Atlanta are pulling together. We're demonstrating some real concern for each other, black and white, rich and poor," Jackson said.

In a show of uniformed strength, the special police task force set up to work on the children case began going door to door, asking residents if they might have seen anything even remotely helpful in tracking down the killer or killers of the children.

Police officials said they would eventually knock on every door in the city, if necessary, in their search for clues.

City Councilman Arthur Langford said his United Youth-Adult Conference would organize teams of volunteers to look for missing children, starting in the Dixie Hills section of Atlanta. He said the volunteers would search a different area near the homes of the missing children each Saturday.

Over the past 15 months, 14 children have disappeared and nine of them have been found dead. The only common thread running through the cases is the timing — roughly one death or disappearance every two and a half weeks.

Surfer Escapes Attack By Great White Shark

TRINIDAD, Calif. (AP) — Curt Vikan considers himself lucky that all he lost was a surfboard when a great white shark attacked him in eight feet of water off Moonstone Beach.

"The great white swatted my side with his tail, but I did't even get a bruise," Vikan said.

But the shark took several bites out of the surfboard Friday and left Vikan a souvenir — a serrated tooth that Vikan found imbedded in the fin of the board.

Vikan, a 19-year-old student at College of the Redwoods who has been surfing for eight years, had gone with two friends to the beach, outside of Eureka and about 240 miles north of San Francisco.

The entire incident lasted only five or six seconds, Vikan said, and left him "terrified ... scared.

"I was paddling over to an area where I wanted to surf," he said. "The next thing I know my board was torn out from under me, and I found myself treading water."

Vikan screamed to his friends, who were in closer to the beach.

"Right away I pretty much knew what it was," he said. "It was a great white, between 10 and 15 feet long. I saw the back of his head and the dorsal fin. That's when the tail hit the side of me. A swat ... about half of him was out of the water.

"He had the rear of the surfboard in his mouth ... I thought he was turning around toward me, and I wanted to grab the tail. I reached for it, and the shark shook the board around a few times. ... The next thing I know, the shark disappeared."

Vikan swam to the remains of the battered surfboard, crawled aboard and paddled furiously for shore.

"I felt kind of nauseated, scared. Actually, I guess I kept my cool the whole time," Vikan said.

On the beach the three friends found a piece of the shark's tooth embedded in the surfboard's fin.

"We took it to the Humboldt State University Marine Laboratory and the scientists were really excited," said Vikan.

Marine biologist John De Martini said that judging from the size of the tooth, the animal was 10 to 12 feet long. De Martini said it was no secret that sharks, among them great whites, live in the ocean off the coast of northern California.

$1 Million Reserve Asked For Handicapped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Human Resources Secretary Sarah T. Morrow has asked the Legislature to set aside a $1 million reserve to treat the state's seriously disturbed and handicapped adolescents.

The two-year reserve would set up an annual budget for a 24-bed treatment center that was recently established at John Umstead Hospital to care for the children, Ms. Morrow said Friday.

The request was seventh on the list of 115 priorities presented by the department to the Advisory Budget Commission, which makes recommendations to the General Assembly.

Department officials are asking $19.4 million in state funds to expand its programs over the next two years. Operating costs are expected to total $588.8 million for the period.

Ms. Morrow said human resources officials could not say exactly how many seriously disturbed children now lived in North Carolina. Unofficial estimates have ranged from 50 to 300.

A survey on disturbed children has recently been completed by a team from N.C. State University. However, Ms. Morrow said, she has not had time to evaluate the report.

The 1980 Legislature appropriated $500,000 to establish the unit at Umstead in the wake of complaints from state judges that the state had no adequate treatment facility for these young people.

The Umstead unit, which has 13 staff members, will cost about $981,000 a year to operate, Ms. Morrow said. Two young people are being treated at the center currently.

"This is expensive — about $41,000 per year per child," she told the commission. "On the other hand, it's less expensive than sending them to Texas."

Last month, a Wake County District Court Judge ordered that Wake County must pay $45,000 a year for the treatment of a 16-year-old youth at a school in Austin, Texas.

That case is to be review by the state Supreme Court, but the boy is attending the school at county expense until the appeal can be resolved.

TV Bosses Talk About Campaign

By BILL STRONG
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Television news has become a part of the American political process, but network news bosses insist they aren't creating campaign news, they''re just coveringhit.

"We've been trying to give substance to what's been a vapid campaign," said Burton Benjamin, vice president and director of news for CBS.

The TV news executives also predict the candidate of the future will bypass traditional politicking and build support through the media.

Television news has become part of the American political system simply because it's the best way for voters to see and hear the candidates, said ABC-TV News President Roone Arledge.

"Like it or not, TV has become part of the political system," Arledge told a television industry group Friday.

But Arledge and his counterparts at CBS and NBC agreed that although TV network news may be part of Campaign '80, its role is passive — restricted to reporting the views of the candidates.

The news executives, speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Boston-New England Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences, also said it's not television's fault the electorate is cynical and that stories on the issues have taken a back seat to reports on campaign strategy.

"People are cynical about the candidates because of the candidates," said Arledge.

The networks "can't make the candidates discuss something they don't want to discuss," Benjamin said.

President Carter has complained several times about network coverage of the campaign, saying the networks are not covering what he calls "the real issues." He contends the networks have covered more of the campaign's style than its substance.

Arledge, Benjamin and NBC News President William Small also took issue with the claim made by the White House, among others, that TV "created" independent candidate John Anderson by giving the Illinois congressman more than his fair share of coverage.

"Our job is to report what's important," Small said. "Anyone who says Anderson is not important is kidding themselves."

"For us not to cover him would have been a dereliction of duty," Benjamin said.

But without TV, Anderson would not have been taken seriously, Arledge added.

He called Anderson "the prototype of the candidate of the future," who will "bypass the normal political process" by gradually building enough support among voters to compel the attention of the media.

Commenting on Anderson's slump in recent polls, Benjamin joked, "If he's our creation, we haven't created him very well — he's gone down like a stone."

All three network news executives said they would provide live coverage of the upcoming one-on-one debate between President Carter and Ronald Reagan.

ABC chose not to provide live coverage of the Baltimore debate between Anderson and Republican candidate Ronald Reagan.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pets of the week are eight black puppies five weeks old whose mother was killed.

Their mother was mixed breed, their father full-blooded German shepherd. Call Charles Beddard, 756-7419.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are four mixed-breed puppies, already dewormed. Their mother is a medium-sized dog, 758-0797.

Four kittens also need homes. Three are black and white and one yellow. They are friendly, house broken, wormed and accustomed to children and dogs, 756-7285.

Nine black, brown and white mixed breed puppies need homes. They are five weeks old and eat dry dog food. Their mother was a medium dog, 758-5325.

To place animals in the Adopt-a-Pet column, call Elizabeth Savage, 756-4867; Barbara Haddock, 752-9922; Heather Chaney, 758-0556; or Carol Tyer, 752-6166, Ext. 286.

Wrong Answers On Videotape

ATLANTA (AP) — On the streets and beaches of Tampa, Fla., the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A. recorded on videotape the reactions of people to questions about Lutheranism, and got a lot of wrong answers.

For example, to the question, "Who was Martin Luther?," frequent responses about the 16th century founder of Protestantism were "one of the disciples" or "a black civil rights leader."

FALL REVIVAL

Rose Hill FWB Church, near Winterville, will have its fall revival, October 20-24 at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Royce Reynolds will be the guest evangelist. Special music will be provided each evening. The pastor of the church, Rev. N. Dan Beamon, invites the public.

Stevens-Union 17-Year Battle Considered Nearing Settlement

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP) — Negotiators are attempting to work out the final details of a settlement in the 17-year battle between J.P. Stevens and the textile workers union.

But, a union source said Friday that negotiations between the company and the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union were reportedly stuck over some issues, including arbitration of worker grievances.

Despite denials from top company and union officials that the two sides had reached an accord, industry and union sources confirmed the two sides have agreed to settle.

Union officials indicate they expect the union to present an agreement Sunday to union members in Roanoke Rapids. And, they say, the expect members to accept it.

Union organizers have sought since 1963 to bring 34,000 production workers at 81 Stevens mills under the union banner. The campaign has grown into a symbol of the fight to unionize plants in the south. It is the longest labor dispute in the nation.

The impending agreement would cover about 2,500 workers in seven Stevens plants in Roanoke Rapids, where the union won its first election in 1974. Several other plants are expected to be included in the final agreement - including Stevens plants in High Point, Allendale, S.C., and Montgomery.

The Charlotte Observer reported Friday that the union has agreed to drop its nationwide boycott of Stevens's products and its campaign to force directors outside Stevens management to resign from the company's board.

If the aagreement is ratified by Stevens workers Sunday, the union probably would announce the settlement at AFL-CIO headquarters in Washington on Monday.

Stevens is the nation's second largest textile company, with 1979 sales of $1.83 billion. The industry makes sheets and pillowcases, towels, tablecoths, bedspreads, carpeting and other consumer products as well as automotive and apparel fabrics. Stevens employs about 34,000 production workers in 81 plants, 63 of them in the Carolinas.

Stevens, a leader of the largely nonunion Southern textile industry, resisted unionization adamantly. Stevens was found guilty so many times of violating federal labor that the National Labor Relations Board and federal courts regarded it as the nation's No. 1 labor law violator.

The 1979 movie, "Norma Rae," was based on the life of Crystal Lee Sutton, a Stevens worker and union member during the Roanoke Rapids organizing campaign.

N.C. AFL-CIO president Wilbur Hobby said he expected the agreement would "give new heart to the labor movement to do some more work in the South and in North Carolina, which I think has the labor movmement's greatest potential."

Alcohol Plant

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced Friday that Continental Fuels Corp. of Pittsburgh will build a $67 million fuel alcohol plant near Selma that could distill about 25 million gallons of alcohol a year.

"This plant will put North Carolina in the forefront of gasohol production in the country," Hunt said. "Potential economic and energy benefits from this plant are tremendous."

Mixed with gasoline, the plant's alcohol output would produce 250 million gallons of gasohol annually. Gasohol consumption in the first six months of 1980 in North Carolina was 5.9 million gallons.

The plant will distill an annual 10 million bushels of corn and will be fueled by wood.

Searchers Abandon Hope

AL ASNAM, Algeria (AP) — One week after a devastating earthquake reduced much of this city to ruins and killed more than 6,000 of its 125,000 inhabitants, rescue workers virtually abandoned hope of finding more survivors.

French rescued teams went through the city in a final house-to-house check for signs of life before bulldozers moved in and began scraping the twisted steel and shattered concrete remnants of homes, offices and buildings into piles of rubble.

Using sophisticated electronic gear to probe for signs of life, searchers had worked round-the-clock since last Friday's quake. But officials said no survivors had been found since Thursday when eight people, including an eight-year-old girl, were pulled from the rubble.

By official count, more than 6,000 bodies were found. Thousands more are believed buried in the rubble, and even an approximate death toll has not yet been fixed.

Authorities said 18,000 lodgings, virtually all those in the city, will have to be rebuilt completely following the quake which was 10 times stringer than one that leveled the city in 1954 and killed more than 1,600.

Tens of thousands of survivors faced a new hardship with the onset Thursday of the autumn rains. Many survivors have received tents, but thousands of others, particularly in the hard-hit mountain villages surrounding the city, are sleeping in the open.

Helicopters Friday surveyed the villages, many of which have not yet received any aid.

Meanwhile, government prosecutors prepared for trials of about 100 people accused of looting or diverting material from the flood or relief supplies that has flowed in from around the world.

Virginia Men Convicted In Bombing

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Inability to refute hearsay and circumstantial evidence has resulted in conviction in a bombing conspiracy for a former Lee County coal operator and his former labor consultant.

Ronald Moore, former owner of M&M Coal and Land Development Corp., and Jerry Shepherd of Atlanta, who worked for a Bristol labor relations firm, were convicted Friday in U.S. District Court of conspiracy to blow up a mine auger during a national miners strike nearly three years ago.

U.S. District Judge James Turk fined Moore, who also was convicted of insurance fraud, $11,000 and suspended payment of $2,500 of the fine. Shepherd was ordered to pay $5,000 of a $10,000 fine.

Both men were placed on probation and ordered to perform 100 hours of community service.

The insurance fraud charge against Moore came from his attempt to collect $110,000 on the auger, which a former partner said cost only $61,000 when bought in 1971.

Evidence showed Moore's firm obtained a court injunction limiting the number of pickets the day after the blast.

A seven-woman, five-man jury sat through three days of testimony and challenges to honesty of government witnesses, then returned the verdict in 55 minutes.

Defense attorneys objected throughout the trial that evidence against their clients was circumstantial and hearsay, but federal rules permit looser evidence in conspiracy trials.

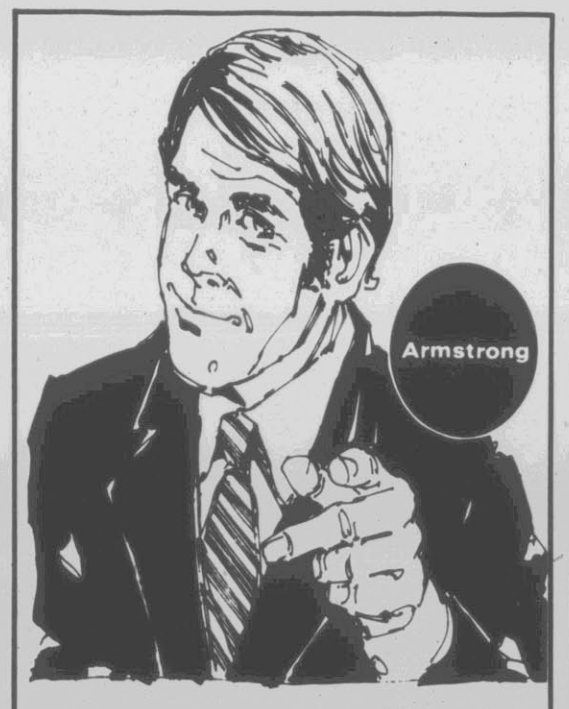

"There's no way they could have done it...but it's hard to buck the law," said Moore's father, Royce Moore, as he puffed a cigarette in the hall outside the courtroom.

Shepherd denied flatly that he suggested a drastic action to call attention to the crippling strike and the mob of pickets who blocked Moore's coal company gate.

Moore denied he authorized, intentionally or unintentionally, over the telephone a plan to destroy the auger, which bores coal from strip mines.

The dynamite blast occurred the night of Dec. 8, 1977, two days after the UMW strike started.

The government's case rested on three former Moore employees, all of whom have admitted their part in the conspiracy, who said Moore okayed the plan after Shepherd suggested it.

American Visitor Urges Afghan Aid

By JIM ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Louis Dupree says the same mountain cave in Afghanistan used as a refuge by families of warring tribesmen in the Bronze Age now is used by the refugees fleeing the Soviet helicopter gunships.

Dupree, who has spent the last few months with Afghan rebel fighters, told of the cave in an interview following his return in which he urged more U.S. support for the rebel cause.

Dupree has become to the Afghan war what the French journalist and historian, Bernard Fall, was to the Vietnam war: an expert with understanding of the language, country, people and the war that they are fighting.

He does not want to embarrass the Pakistani government, so he does not say if he has been with Afghan units that have infiltrated from the Pakistani refugee camps into Afghanistan. The kind of expert knowledge that he has about the war, however, does not seem to be second-hand.

Among the credentials establishing Dupree's authority is the fact that he is periodically denounced in the Soviet party newspaper Pravda, most recently for "heading an army of 30,000 mercenaries."

Dupree, by profession an anthropologist with Pennsylvania State University, is a Harvard Ph.D. who used to be an impassioned dove about the Vietnam War. He has become a super-hawk about Afghanistan: "I wish I did have an army of 30,000 men."

There are other things he would like to have, particularly some shoulder-held heat-seeking anti-aircraft missiles, which he thinks are the only thing that could possibly destroy the Soviet weapon that appears to be routing the Afghan rebels, the heavily armored Mi-24 helicopter gunships.

Dupree says, "They hover just above roof level, like giant dragon flies, destroying everything beneath them."

The light weapons used by the Afghans cannot penetrate the armor of the Soviet gunships and so, he says, the gunships reign supreme, creating vast free-fire zones along the border with Pakistan.

He believes the U.S. should send money and weapons through Pakistan to Afghanistan, particularly the heat-seeking missiles that would fly up the exhaust tubes of the Mi-24 gunships.

Dupree estimates — and he cautions that this is an "intelligence estimate, which means somebody guessed" — that the anti-Soviet forces have suffered as many as 250,000 to 300,000 casualties in the fighting. More than 1 million refugees are in Pakistani camps alone.

That, he believes, is one of the Soviet motives: to create chaos and ethnic imbalances in Pakistan and to make the country splinter beneath the weight of the Afghan refugees.

He believes that the larger Soviet motive in going into Afghanistan was to provoke a confrontation with the United States at a time when the Soviet Union believed that the United States (which had appeared powerless in Iran) was weak and ineffectual.

In that strategy, Dupree believes, the Soviets were right, but they miscalculated.

"They (the Soviet leaders) didn't listen to their advisers on ethnic matters who told them what kind of fighters the Afghans are. They believed that they would be in and out of Afghanistan within two weeks."

Now, after 10 months of war, Dupree believes that the Soviets are bogged down and that it would take "at least a million troops" to subdue Afghanistan.

Dupree believes that, since the original purpose of the Soviet invasion was to confront and humiliate the United States, the Western response has to be in the same terms.

In addition to financial aid and weaponry, he says that would also mean giving firm guarantees to any country helping the Afghan rebels — such as Pakistan or China — that the United States would permit no harm to come to them from the Soviets because of their help to the rebels.

Dupree, whose book, "Afghanistan," is a scholarly classic which he is now updating, is also aware that in the post-Vietnam climate such an action would be unlikely. But fresh from the jammed hospitals of the Pakistani refugee camps, he believes something has to be done.

Super-Cow Is Regarded As Individual

By BRENDA ROTZOLL

ROCHESTER, Ind. (UPI) — Harold L. Beecher says he didn't feed anything special to Beecher Arlinda Ellen to make the Holstein cow produce more milk than any cow in the world.

But she did help herself to a dietary supplement — all the sour green apples she could reach on a tree in the Beechers' farmyard.

Ellen broke the 50,000 pound a year barrier when she produced a record 55,660 pounds of milk in 1975 on the Beechers' 350-acre dairy in farm in north central Indiana.

She has kept the title of world's champion milk producer every year since then, as verified by milk yield tests performed by the Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

In Indiana, Purdue University agricultural extension agents measure the yields and determine the butterfat and protein contents. The yearly yield average is extrapolated from this.

To prevent fakery, the Holstein-Friesian Association of America sends out surprise checkers to make sure nobody fudges on the records.

Ellen, who is registered with the association, was tested 12 times by extension agents and nine times by the association's checkers before she was awarded the title, Beecher said.

Beecher, 53, his wife, Norma Jean, and their eight children regard Ellen as an "outstanding individual." They dislike the terms "perfect cow" and "supercow," which many have used to describe her capacity to produce three times the usual yield of milk.

"She is an individual," Beecher said. "There's no other way to describe her because there never was one like her before."

"Genetically, she had the makeup to be a real fine milk cow. But why she's three times better than most is still a mystery," Beecher said.

He credits Ellen with winning the title herself, maintaining he gave her no exotic feed.

"We didn't feed her anything but the basic stuff," Beecher said. "She had to do a lot of it on her own."

Unless, of course, those sour green apples were part of the magic.

Ellen's fame has drawn thousands of visitors to the Beechers' farm near Rochester, a town of 5,000 which holds a Round Barn Festival every summer because such barns abound in Fulton County.

The Beechers have shared meals with many an unexpected visitor, and even booked a bus for one.

They still keep a guest book for visitors to sign, but stopped counting a long time ago. Beecher estimated 8,000 people have made the trek to see Ellen.

"We've had people from 50 different countries and it hasn't slowed down much. Every year, we're amazed at how many people come to the farm and call about her," he said.

Agricultural delegations from Russia and Poland, dairy farmers from all over, vacationing extension agents and agricultural trainees from other countries still come.

Beecher said many agricultural trainees "get in an old jalopy and travel around the country looking at cows. Most are Japanese. We can't communicate very well with some of them."

Many are disappointed when they learn Ellen isn't home.

After her victory, Ellen was removed from an old barn into a newer one, complete with her own box stall. But since April of 1979, she has been at American Embryos Inc., in Middleville, Mich. The Beechers placed her there because she hasn't borne any offspring since 1977.

Workers at American Embryos have been implanting her fertilized eggs in several other cows, through a process commonly called "super ovulation." Beecher said one of the recipients is expected to calve in January.

Of her eight offspring, four bulls are "in service" at an artificial insemination plant, trying to reproduce more cows just like mama.

Beecher is upset with the arguments of writers like Mark Kramer, whose book "Three Farms: Making Milk, Meat and Money from the American soil," argues that dairy breed improvements put poorer farmers out of business.

Kramer's book argues such improvement "forces all farmers, regardless of inclination, to participate in a mad race to keep up with the Beechers."

"I don't think any dairy farmer went out of business here," Beecher said. "It's easy to blame someone else fo your own failure."

Ellen has been a money maker. In 1975 she earned a net of $3,500, and she has made a lot of money for the Beechers ever since.

But she means more than fame and fortune to the Beechers, who regard her as one of the family.

They visited Ellen in August, and even after a year's absence, Beecher said, Ellen was "affectionate" and seemed to recognize the family.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

Children of all ages will find something to their liking among the exciting variety of new books that have recently arrived in the children's room at Sheppard Library. So much good reading deserves a morning of browsing. The following are a few special titles to look for.

"It's A Baby!" is an ideal real-aloud book for families who have, or are expecting, a new member. With warm, candid photographs and an easy-to-understand text, George Ancona follows Pablo, a baby boy, through the adventures of the first 12 months of his life. "It's Not Fair," by Robin Supraner, will appeal to youngsters who have begun to feel some of the frustrations that accompany the joys of having a baby in the family. In this lively, colorfully illustrated book, Andrew's big sister complains that he gets to do anything he wants — biting, hollering, room-wrecking, every imaginable horror — and no one ever bats an eyelash. "Just because he's the baby! It isn't fair!" The spunky heroine of this story finds, however, that being the oldest does have one wonderful advantage. Parents and children alike will see themselves in this fun-filled attempt to cope with the old reality that "...things aren't always that fair."

Older readers are certain to enjoy Susan Beth Pfiffer's new novel, "Just Between Us." Cass, the heroine, is a sharp girl but suffers from a familiar shortcoming — she can't keep a secret. Not only that, she isn't sure when something is a secret. In an effort to help her reform, Cass's mother (a behavorial psychology student) offers to reward Cass at the end of each day if she keeps a secret told to her in the morning. Cass tries everything to keep quiet. Some days she doesn't talk at all. It begins to look like she's winning the battle against her big mouth until her two best friends trap her in the middle with their own secrets. How Cass handles this situation involving discretion as well as secret keeping makes a thoughtful and entertaining story.

Miss Pickerell fans will welcome the reappearance of that remarkable lady in her very contemporary 13th adventure, "Miss Pickerell Tackles The Energy Crisis." In an effort to prevent the closing of the Square Toe County Home for Retired and Disabled Animals, she agrees to star in the International Antique Car Fair in England. But when she, her cow Nancy Agatha, her middle nephew Euphus, and the Governor land in London, they find the antique car fair parade has been called off because of an energy crisis. In her determination to pursue Euphus's idea to use Etanol as a substitute fuel, Miss Pickerell is seen beseiging the American Embassy, making a fiery speech in Parliament, and crossing the English Channel in an ancient helium balloon. As usual, Miss Pickerell can be counted on to come through, with a lot of good fun along the way.

A Reminder: Story hour in the children's room for three and four year olds, Wednesdays at 10:30 - October 15 through November 26.

Ayden Theatre Offers 'The Hobbit' Next Week

"THE HOBBIT" SCHEDULED FOR NEXT WEEK..."The Hobbit," an adaptation of J.R.R. Tolkien's tale of adventure and enchantment in Middle-earth, will be presented by the Ayden Theatre Workshop next Thursday and Friday at 8 p.m. and next Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Ayden-Grifton High School Auditorium. Above, three of the elves, from left to right, Susan Branch, Megan Craft, John McLawhorn and Michael Adams, capture Thorin Oakenshield, leader of the dwarves. (Photo By Scott Daughtery)

AYDEN — The Ayden Theatre Workshop will present "The Hobbit" on October 23 and 25 at 8 p.m. and October 26 at 3 p.m. in the Ayden-Grifton High School Auditorium. Admission is $2 at the door.

"The Hobbit" is an adaptation of J.R.R. Tolkien's tale of adventure and enchantment in Middle-earth, involving a quest by a group of dwarves, a great wizard, and a little hobbit they have engaged as a burglar to rescue an ancestral treasure horde from a fierce dragon. Their journey is a dangerous one; in addition to the dragon, they encounter trolls, goblins, armed elves and the mysterious Gollum. All of the roles are played by children, ages four-14.

Season tickets are still available and will be on sale at the door for $10. The tickets are good for the remaining seven shows of the season.

The Ayden Theatre Workshop is a cooperative effort of the Pitt County Community Schools Program and the Ayden Recreational Department, funded by the Town of Ayden and a Grassroot Grant from the North Carolina Arts Council.

'SHOGUN' PROTECTED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Shogun," claimed by its producers to be the most expensive mini-series ever made for television, was insured by one of the largest policies ever issued on an entertainment project.

An insurer of motion picture and television programs, Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies, provided a total of $48 million protection on the Paramount show that covered cast performance, the master copy of the negative film, faulty camera work, props, sets, wardrobe, extra expense, and third party damage.

The over-all cost of the production was estimated at $20 million.

Octubafest Presentation Oct. 22

Octubafests have become familiar events throughout the United States since their introduction ten years ago by Harvey Phillips, professor of tuba at Indiana University.

The Octubafests present the tuba in a series of musical settings designed to spotlight the tuba as a solo instrument capable of artistic expression, as well as an ensemble voice for deep beauty and artistic projection. The Octubafest had its origins in the festive German celebration of Octoberfest, with its abundant music-making.

The Octubafest presented this year by the ECU School of Music is Friday, October 3, and Wednesday, October 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the A.J. Fletcher Recital hall. The first program featured student soloists and chamber ensembles; the second will feature student soloists, chamber ensembles, and the ECU tuba ensemble.

Selections presented in the October 22 program will include Suite No. 1 for Tuba and Piano, Power, Suite for Bass Instruments, Etre Ou Ne Pas Etre (To Be Or Not To Be), Dances for solo euphonium and three tubas, Feelings, and Pop Suite.

Members of the ECU Tuba-Eupnonium Ensemble include John R. Jones, Joe Alexander, D. Greg Woods, Sherwood Kressley and Steve Wilson on tuba; and Norman Simmons, Tim Burgess and Kevin Richmond on Euphonium, a tenor tuba similar in shape to a baritone with a mellower tone quality that often has a double bell.

Student Center Presents Show

Mendenhall Student Center presents the ECU Department of Drama's production of "The Doctor In Spite Of Himself" October 27 - November 1. The first three nights are special dessert performances limited to ECU students, faculty, and staff. The final three performances are full dinner performances and are open to everyone.

"The Doctor In Spite Of Himself" was written by Jean-Baptiste Moliere. This production is directed by Travis Lockhart of the ECU Department of Drama. The show hinges on the antics of a drunken peasant who convinces a wealthy family that he is a prominent physician. They believe that he can cure their daughter of muteness, and as the bogus doctor blunders around, he accidentally manages to unite a pair of young lovers and bring harmony to the household.

Dinner and dessert will be catered by the ECU School of Home Economics. The dinner menu consists of sliced roast turkey breast, veal parmigiana, delmonico potatoes, spinach casserole, buttered mixed vegtables, bran and blueberry muffins, tossed salad with French or thousand island dressing, champagne peach with shortbread, coffee and tea. Cherry cheesecake and apple pie will be served at the dessert performances.

Dessert performances begin at 7:15 p.m. and dinner performances are at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for the dessert performances are priced at $3 for ECU students and $4.50 for ECU faculty and staff. Tickets for the dinner performances are priced at $7 for ECU students and $9 for non-students. All tickets must be paid for no later than 72 hours after reservations have been made. For further information and reservations, contact the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, 757-6611.

SHRINE SALUTE

WNCT-TV, Channel 9, will have a one hour program "Nashville Salutes The Shrine," Tuesday, October 28 from 7-8 p.m.

The salute to shrinedom was filmed in Nashville, Tennessee at the Grand Old Opry and will feature many of the popular Country Western stars such as Barbara Mandrell, Roy Acuff, Ray Stevens and others. During the filming, more than 4,000 Shriners were in attendance.

Powerful Memoir From Manchester

GOODBYE DARKNESS: A Memoir of the Pacific War. By William Manchester. Little, Brown. 401 Pages. $14.95.

William Manchester, who long ago won note as biographer, novelist and historian, now turns his literary skill to a totally different task — a personal look-back at World War II. What emerges is a powerful work indeed.

He focuses on the individual experiences, including his own, of those who took part in the major battles of the Pacific. Here in gripping detail are the heroics, the terror, the bewilderment, the blunders and the bloody agony of human beings, what it's like to kill and to come within a gnat's eyelash of being killed.

Beset by lingering nightmares from his own ordeal, and having tried in vain for years to write about the war, Manchester sought to exorcise the ghosts by revisiting scenes of major battles. And one by one they are graphically fought over again through accounts of those who survived. Withal, Manchester seeks desperately some philosophy to encompass it all.

The less-than-careful reader may get the impression that the author took part in all of the combat described. He did not, but he certainly was in some of the fiercest. Manchester's narrative technique is an odd and seemingly unnecessary one, employing a sort of backward projection method. But let's be forgiving, since he says he found that was the only way he could write the story.

"So I have nightmares," he explains at one point, "And so I have returned to the islands to exorcise my inner darkness with the light of understanding."

Did he succeed? The book's title holds the answer.

Local Dancer To Be In Show

Babs Winn, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W.B. Winn of Greenville and a 1973 graduate of East Carolina University, will be appearing at Mickey's in New York City October 20-28 in Handa Productions latest musical revue, "Stampin".

Ms. Winn was a physical education major and minored in dance at the university. She was a cheerleader throughout her career at J.H. Rose High and ECU, where she became head cheerleader in 1972-73. Ms. Winn taught at Ramona's School of Dance, played in summer stock at the university theatre and appeared in the outdoor drama "The Lost Colony," in the summer of 1974.

Ms. Winn moved to New York six year ago as a professional dancer and began a career as a singer in 1978. She has been seen at the Duplex and Ted Hook's On Stage in Manhattan and has had several soap opera appearances. "Stampin," is Ms. Winn's second show with Handa Productions.

Special Price For Students

The Bordeaux Dinner Theatre has inaugurated a special price for area students (17 and under) on Friday nights "at least through the run of "My Fair Lady"", according to producer Ed Lillard.

The student rate is available only for Friday evening performances and is $11.50 including dinner, show and tax. The rate represents a $5 reduction from the regular Friday evening ticket.

"My Fair Lady," held over through November 2, plays Wednesday through Sunday evenings and reservations may be obtained at 323-0111 or at the Bordeaux Dinner Theatre. 1701 Owen Drive, Fayetteville, N.C. 28304.

Exhibit Set At Museum

Hoodoos, "mud cracks", rill marks, the sediment of ancient oceans and other geological formations are highlighted at the North Carolina Museum of Life and Science in "Earth Sculpture," an exhibit of photographs by David M. Baird.

The 50 dramatic photographs present an artist's view of natural sculpture cause by erosin, lava flow, and glaciers, among other natural causes. Geologist Baird has traveled, camera in hand, in North America, Scandinavia, the British Isles, the Galapagos Islands, New Zealand, South Africa, and Iceland to take the photographs included in the show.

Baird's black and white photographs capture the perfect smoothness of water worn pebbles; the stark irregularity of wind-sculpted stone; and the delicate flaked texture of dried mud flats. Baird had recorded the unique marks of geological activity millions of years ago — one photograph shows a wrinkled, leathery skin of solid lava formed as the liquid basalt beneath it continued to flow. Another photograph shows the results of cooling lava shrinking as it hardened to form crevices and cracks with geometric precision.

In addition to Baird's photographs, five photographs by Duke University Professor and Museum Board Member Duncan Heron will be added. Professor Heron's photographs illustrate local earth sculpture. In addition a slide show will be shown on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays at 3:30 p.m. Other films will also be shown, including "Hot Spot", a volcano film.

James Ogle To Conduct At Tarboro

Associate conductor James Ogle will lead the North Carolina Symphony Chamber Orchestra in its only Tarboro performance of the year Tuesday, October 21, at 8 p.m. in Martin Middle School Auditorium.

Bassoonist Gregory Vaught will perform Antonio Vivaldi's "Concerto in E Minor for Basson and Orchestra." The remainder of the program will include Emil Nikolaus von Reznicek's "Overture to Donna Diana," Edvard Grieg's "Holberg Suite," Serge Prokofiev's "A Summer Day," Darius Milhaud's "Suite Francaise," and selections from Lenoard Bernstein's "West Side Story."

Gregory Vaught has played bassoon and contrabassoon for the North Carolina Symphony since 1974. A native of Boise, Idaho, he is a graduate of Indiana University, Vaught has performed with the Boise Philharmonic, the Indiana University Philharmonic and Opera Orchestras, and the Owensboro (Kentucky) Symphony, and he has performed in solo and chamber music recitals in Indiana and Idaho.

Now in his third season as associate conductor of the North Carolina Symphony, after serving four years as its assistant conductor, James Ogle spent this past summer at Tanglewood in Massachusetts as one of a select group of young conductors chosen to study with the greats of the conducting world.

Admission to this concert is by season subscription, or tickets may be purchased at the door. Prices are $6 for adults, $4 for senior citizens and students 16 and over, and $2 for children 15 and under.

Angela Lansbury Even Makes Her Own Bread

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Even on the road, Angela Lansbury makes her own bread.

"It's the only way I can know what goes into it," she explained in the 18th floor apartment near Lincoln Center which she shares with manager-husband Peter Shaw.

We were talking about the forthcoming tour of "Sweeney Todd." She originated the role of Mrs. Lovett — "The Best Pies in London" — on Broadway, where she played it for 13 months. The tour opens at Washington's Kennedy Center Oct. 25, and later takes her to Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

"I can't afford to be in a position of not being able to perform," said the English-born actress. "Therefore I cook all my own food before the show.

"If I get bad mayonnaise or hollandaise in a restaurant — and you can, in warm weather, if they don't refrigerate it — it can upset me very easily. Once I had a bad pizza (in Denver) which made me ill for 24 hours. Fortunately it was a Sunday ...

"We try to create a home wherever we go. (Peter always is with me.) We try to bring along everything with us to make it as home-like as possible. We bring a car so we can see the countryside.

"I bring my sewing machine and my shortwave radio — to keep in touch. The sewing, the knitting, is an alternate activity which slows me down, allows me to relax.

"Please try these chocolate biscuits. Someone gave them to me when I left Ireland and I can't eat them. I have to get in shape for the tour.

"I don't exercise. I know the value of it, but I get enough of that on stage. I do a lot of walking — and breathing. A deep breath when you're exhausted is like a shot in the arm.

"I'm very mineral-and vitamin-minded at the moment, as everybody is. I take them religiously: B complex, C, E, zinc, manganese, magnesium, kelp — very important — calcium, specially for women of my age."

She was 55 on Oct. 16.

"I feel 35.

"I used to feel 28 all the time.

"There are days when I feel heavy spirited and heavy in body. It's a slow rhythm. But when I feel well I live to a faster rhythm and my spirits are buoyed up by that.

"It's a decision. Once the decision is made you just feel differently."

Angela Lansbury had just returned from England, where she filmed "The Mirror Crack'd," the first of three Agatha Christie movies in which she has contracted to play the famous spinster-detective, Miss Marple. Also in the film are Elizabeth Taylor (Angela played her older sister in "National Velvet" way back when), Kim Novak, Rock Hudson and Tony Curtis.

"I was absolutely tickled to death when they asked me to do the role. I know I'm too young for it really. But it's fun — the makeup, the wig. I'm also very glad to get my foot back in the movies again. I didn't make any for eight years before 'Death on the Nile.'

Poet To Read Own Works Sunday

Robert Pinsky, poetry editor for "The New Republic," will read selections from his own poems at the N.C. Museum of Art on Sunday, Oct. 19. The reading will begin at 3 p.m. on the first floor of the museum, with a reception afterward.

Pinsky, now teaching at the University of California at Berkeley, will be in North Carolina as the recipient of the first $1,000 prize awarded by Saxifrage, an independant group of poets, for his second book of poetry "An Explanation of America." He will also be reading in Greensboro and Carrboro.

Said by Robert Lowell to be "a poet intellectually interesting and technically first rate," Pinsky has been the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship and numerous awards, including those given by the American Academy of Arts and Letters and "Poetry" magazine. The "Times Literary Supplement" called his first book "the best work by any younger poet within recent memory."

Beginning this year, Saxifrage is awarding annual prizes, alternately in poetry and fiction, to works published by small presses and university presses. In addition to Pinsky's prize, his publisher, Princeton University Press, received $500.

Madrigal Tickets Are Almost Sold

ECU News Bureau

Although East Carolina University's Christmas Madrigal Dinners are weeks away, tickets for the series, scheduled for Dec. 2-6 are almost sold out. Very few seats remain for any of the five evenings, so interested patrons are urged to make reservations immediately, according to the Mendenhall Student Center program office.

Again directing the ECU Madrigal Singers in their performance of early Christmas music is Dr. Charles Moore of the ECU School of Music voice faculty. The singers, along with other performers (acrobats, magician, juggler, minstrel) and the Lord and Lady of the Manor, portrayed by James and Franceine Rees, wear authentic costumes of England's Elizabethan period.

All Night Dance Is Sponsored

The Fayetteville Museum of Art, with co-sponsor Belk, is having an all night dance at Cumberland County Memorial Arena from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday, November 1.

Woody Herman, one of the giants of jazz, and his Thundering Herd will provide the music which includes Carole King and John Coltrane tunes. Tickets will be sold by tables of eight. One check for $100 — $12.50 per person. Contact the museum for table reservations at P.O. Box 35134, Fayetteville, N.C. 28303 or 485-1395.

As patrons enter, they are announced and seated at long tables where they are served a traditional English Christmas feast and watch the festivities.

Tickets to the dinner series are available at the ECU Central Ticket Office, telephone 757-6611.

Art Work On Display

ECU News Bureau

Art work in two — and three-dimensional media by Patricia Owens Williams of Fountain, a senior student in the ECU School of Art, will be on display in ECU's Joyner Library Oct. 31 - Nov. 6.

Ms. Williams is showing acrylic, oil and watercolor paintings; woodcut and intaglio prints and stoneware ceramics.

A candidate for the BS degree in art education, she is currently student teaching in the Rocky Mount schools. She is a recipient of the Lillian Jenkins Scholarship Award at ECU and plans to pursue a teaching career upon graduation, later returning to her art studies at the graduate level.

Patricia Williams is the daughter of Leroy Owens of Fountain.

ECU Acquires Pre-Colombian Artifact Collection

By GEORGE A. THREEWITTS
ECU News Bureau

An ancient loom, used by the Incas of Peru many centuries before the Spaniards arrived there in the 1500s is among a lagre collection of well preserved Pre-Columbian artifacts acquired by the Archaeology Laboratory of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology at East Carolina University.

Donated for permanent loan by private collectors, the artifacts include: textiles, copper, silver and bone from Peru; ceramic vessels and jade from Central America; and pottery and other artifacts such as knives, hatchets and projectile points from the Mayan area of Meso America. They are dated from 300 B.C. to the 16th Century.

"The donors felt that the collections would be more valuable to an academic institution than being maintained in private hands," says Dr. David Phelps, professor of anthropology whose speciality is archaeology. The donors are: Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie C. Rodgers; Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Green of Marco Island, Fla.; Dr. Donald H. Tucker of Greenville; Mr. A.C. Tomkins, Jr. of New York; and Dr. Lawrence E. DeMann of New York, among others.

Phelps said the artifacts would be used for study at ECU and for display as an interpretive exhibit of South American culture.

A very important part of the collection, says Phelps, are the textiles including cloth, an actual loom and weavers' tools. They were found buried with the dead in dry caves on the coast of Peru and are usually well preserved.

"They represent the type of preservation that we don't normally get...and are extremely important in understanding that part of the Inca and Pre-Inca cultures that one doesn't normally see in other cultures because of the lack of preservation," he said.

Most of the ceramic vessels included in the collections are of the type that are used for ceremonial purposes. Of these, many contain hieroglyphic bands as part of their decoration.

Knives and other assorted weaponry and tools are carved from beautiful obsidian, a volcanic glass. Numerous ornaments are made from copper, silver and jade.

Phelps said that the artifacts will be used primarily for study by ECU faculty and students in history, art, anthropology and archaeology. He noted that the Central american collection which is from Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua will be of particular interest to students enrolled in ECUs Costa Rica program. The program regularly takes students to Costa Rica for further study in Latin American history, culture and language.

"With a quarter of a million dollars worth of collections from the high civilization areas of the Americas plus the extensive collections that we have from our own research in North Carolina and the Southeast, we have the potential for a meaningful interpretation of the prehistoric cultures of all the american subcontinents," Phelps said.

Parts of the collection will be on public display beginning in late October in the Gray Gallery of the ECU School of Art.

All interested person should make plans to attend the first meeting but participants may join the sessions at any time.

For more information about the class or other programs at the center, telephone 752-4137 between 3 and 5 p.m.

Gave Lesson In Geography

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Gallatin County, Montana, maintains it is part of the United States, even if Chase Manhattan Bank doesn't think so.

The trouble began when the county sent a warrant of $15.95 to Macrobiotics Inc., of Whitestone, N.Y. A warrant is a type of check.

But Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest bank, refused to cash the warrant and sent it back to Macrobiotics stamped "Canadian check."

Macrobiotics then wrote the county saying, "We respectfully request that you send a check for the like amount in American dollars."

In replying, Janet Lackey, a deputy county clerk, gave the company a lesson in history and finances.

"The warrants have the same purchasing power as a so-called check," she wrote to the company. "Obviously this new, innovative system has not yet been introduced to the East.

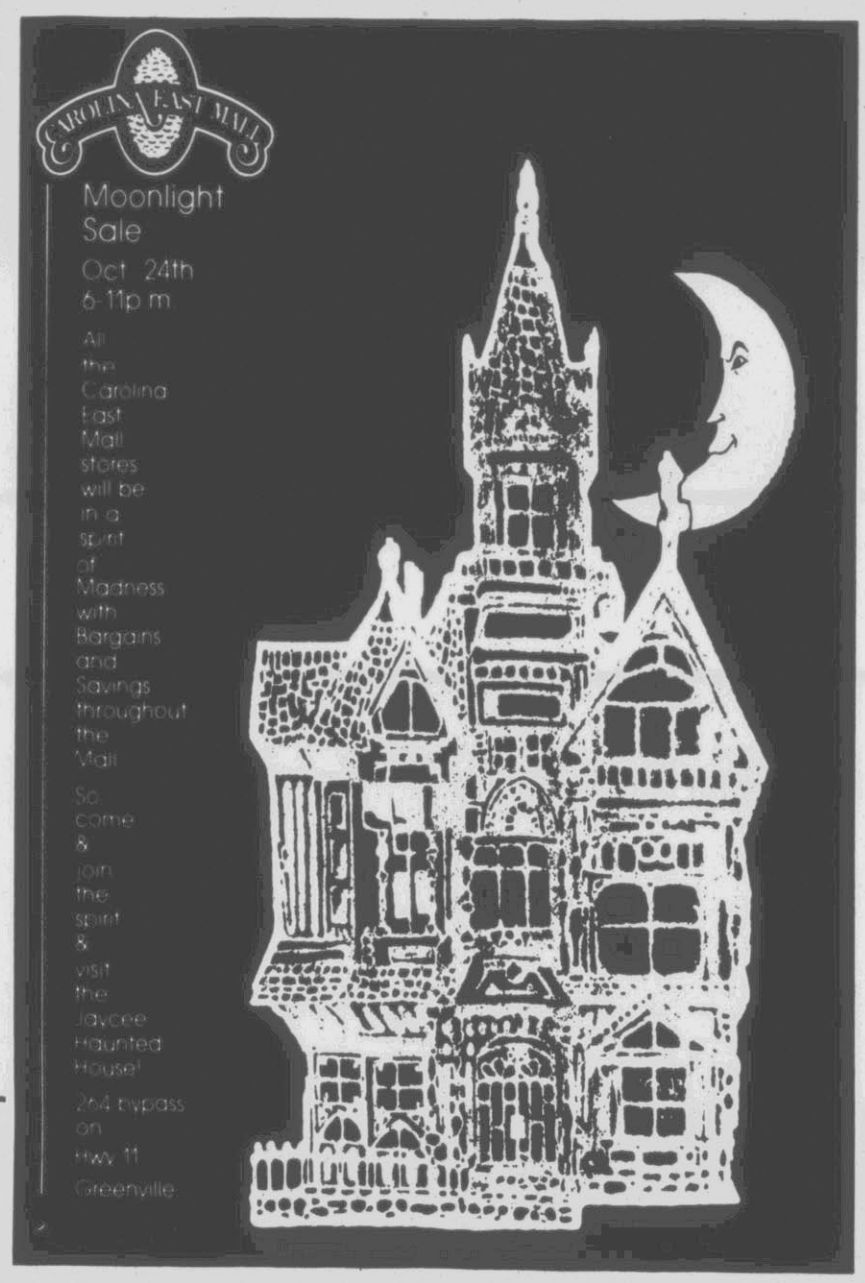

"We would also like to point out that Montana has been part of the continental U.S. since Nov. 8, 1889. We have enjoyed all the privileges of statehood since that time, including the U.S. monetary system."

She included a U.S. map and "outlined in red our location for your geographical information," plus a page from a dictionary that briefly describes Montana.

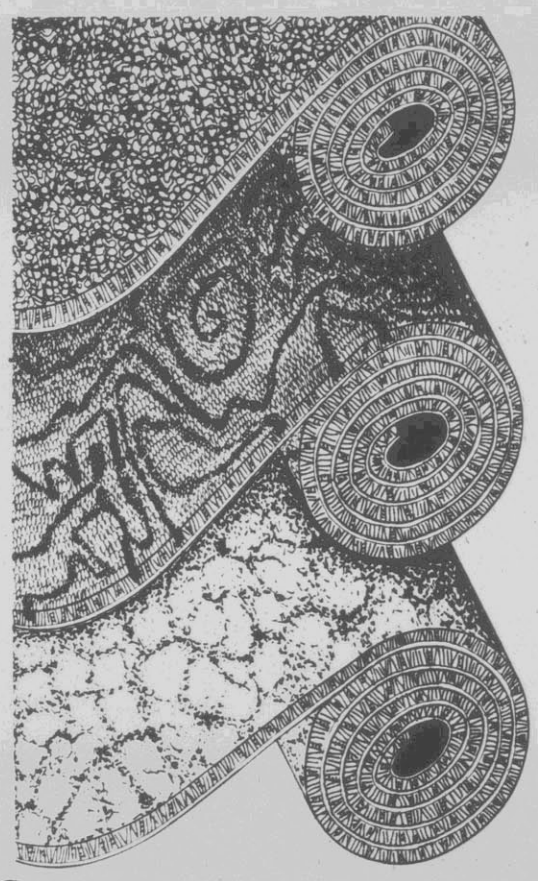

"We know where New York is," she said.

Clown Also Takes Lumps

ROBIN SINDORF, a clown and daredevil, dances into the rodeo ring and delights the crowd by teasing a hulking, snorting bull. (UPI Photo)

By CHRIS CHRYSTAL

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Robin Sindorf, a clown and a daredevil, dances into the rodeo ring and delights the crowd by teasing a hulking, snorting bull that weighs nearly as much as a Volkswagen, and daring him to gore her.

As one of the first female barrel clowns in the business, Robin is a rodeo performer, but not much of a horseback rider, she admits.

She prefers disco dress to cowgirl garb, and brings a touch of it to the clown role she plays on the western rodeo circuit.

Robin is a clown with a contemporary, feminine touch. She curls her long dark hair before each performance, and appears in the ring wearing loose fitting cutoff blue jeans over a leotard and tights or a shiny satin shirt. Her face makeup is a simple white star-shaped design, which never varies.

When the bull enters the ring, Robin earns her pay.

Distracting the bull from goring the rider he has just bucked off, Robin faces the same risk as a matador.

"There's a lot of guys who won't get in that barrel," said Robin, 21, a Texan who put down her pom-poms after a stint as a Dallas Cowboys cheerleader, left the world of beauty pageants where she won some titles, and took on the rough and tumble life of the rodeo.

She waves a white bra at the bull, which gets a laugh from the crowd. Then, perched atop her barrel, she swipes at the thundering mass of beef with a broom.

"When the bull dumps his rider and comes for me, I jump in the barrel," said Robin. "It's really frightening to peer out and see him standing there."

Occasionally, crouched in her special fiberglass cocoon, Robin is propelled around the ring on the end of the bull's horns, or pitched as high as 15 feet into the air.

If she fell out, the bull probably would stomp and gore her, she said. So she clings to the straps inside the barrell, and braces herself against the staves.

Two years ago millions of football fans could see Robin on television doing cheerleader routines for the Dallas Cowboys. The 5-foot 8-inch, green-eyed brunette enjoyed the fanfare for awhile, but did not try out for a second season. "I had the feeling I wasn't going anywhere."

She had met Doug Wylie, a professional rodeo bullfighter, and they began dating. Robin went to work for a beauty pageant operator in Reno, Nev. and Doug worked the rodeo circuit.

She began hanging around the rodeo, doing odd jobs and begging for a chance to break in.

"Doug said 'why don't you get in the barrel? We need a gimmick out there,'" Robin remembers.

"I said 'well, heck, I'll do it once.' I didn't ever think about doing it again. But the people just went wild. Even the bullrider was cheering me on.'"

Now she travels with the Flying U Rodeo to 68 rodeos a year in California, Utah, Washington and Idaho.

Quakes Could Damage Nuclear Weapons Research Laboratory

By PAUL RAEBURN
Associated Press Writer

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) — The deadliest weapons on earth are developed at a secret laboratory in a valley crisscrossed with more than a dozen earthquake faults, just 40 miles from San Francisco.

Critics say quakes could damage Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, a center for nuclear weapons research, and cause deadly plutonium to be released in wn area where more than 5 million people live.

"The plant should be moved out. The earthquake hazards are too high," says Elyse Axell, spokeswoman for Friends of the Earth.

That's a "minority view," counters Jeff Garberson, a lab spokesman. Lab officials insist the facility can survive quakes without releasing radioactivity.

In January, a pair of earthquakes measuring 5.5 and 5.6 on the Richter scale caused "significant damage" to a wall in Building 322, where plutonium experiments are made.

But the lab's report of the incident said there was no damage in the part of the building that actually holds the plutonium and concluded there was no danger of a plutonium leak.

Lab scientists estimate that the strongest quake likely to hit the lab would have a magnitude of about 6.5, which would represent ground motion roughly 10 times that of the two January temblors.

If such a quake hits, said Frank Tokarz, a structural engineer and reactor safety expert at the lab, "There will be some hairline cracks in walls, but there will not be ultimate collapse."

But John Rutherford, a structural engineer who inspected Building 332 on behalf of the Friends of the Earth, said, "There could be release of plutonium" if a 6.5 quake hits the Livermore area.

Weapons research requires the lab to keep as much as several hundred pounds of plutonium on hand for experiments.

"If you wiped out a nuclear power plant, the risk would be much, much greater than it would at one of our facilities," said Tokarz.

But one lab scientist, who asked not to be identified, said "we got fried" in April 1979 at a public hearing on a draft environmental impact statement that "was flung together." Critics issued harsh challenges to claims that the lab was safe from earthquakes.

The scientist said the draft review got in trouble by using conflicting data from separate government reports.

Lab seismologist James Scheimer is preparing a new draft of the environmental impact statement for the lab, and lab officials say it should be ready for public hearings sometime next year.

The Livermore lab is a sister operation to the Los Alamos National Laboratory. Both are operated by the University of California, under contract to the U.S. Department of Energy.

But Los Alamos, unlike Livermore, is located on a remote hilltop in sparsely populated New Mexico. Livermore — founded in 1952 on the site of a World War II Navy training base — has become a target for anti-nuclear protesters, peace activists and environmentalists because of its proximity to San Francisco.

Because of increased public concern, the lab has begun a detailed study of the geology of the Livermore Valley.

"There are two very different interpretations of the geology," said seismologist Scheimer. "That disparity is what we're trying to pin down."

Last November, Scheimer and 11 other scientists and engineers began setting up 10 seismic stations in the Livermore Valley.

He said the data collected so far indicates that the plutonium building is safe. "I haven't found anything that makes me think the numbers used to evaluate that building are in error," he said.

The earthquake issue has been raised mostly by outsiders. But the lab is also embroiled in internal debates.

One concerns how much money should be spent on advanced weapons development, what the lab describes as "a nursery for sprouting the ideas of tomorrow."

Livermore gets almost all its funding from the DOE rather than the Department of Defense, despite the fact that most of its work is devoted to development of nuclear weapons.

The arrangement dates back to 1946, when Congress put atomic weapons under civilian control. Because nuclear weapons played a weighty role in foreign policy, it was felt they should not be left to military control.

The Atomic Energy Commission was later incorporated into the Energy Research and Development Administration, and then into the DOE.

More than half of Livermore's current $420 million budget is devoted to development of nuclear weapons and other defense items, with most of the rest going to energy research.

During the 1970s, lab funding increased 41velop new weapons for the future.

Jamscam Evidence Set

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — A state grand jury will meet in Asheboro Monday to hear evidence on the diversion of more than $191,000 from a charity foundation maintained by the North Carolina Jaycees.

District Attorney Russell Walker Jr. said Friday he would submit at least one indictment to the grand jury. That indictment is speculated to be directed at a former high-ranking Jaycee.

The action comes after a six-month probe by the State Bureau of Investigation.

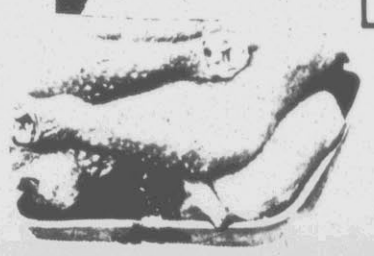

"As district attorney I have seen enough information resulting from the investigation to cause me to present certain allegations to the grand jury alleging violation of criminal law," Walker said.

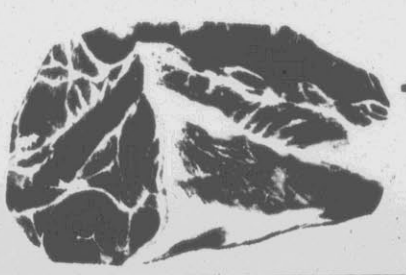

A special white-collar crime unit of the state Attorney General's office has been investigating the scandal, which has come to be known as "Jamscam."

Much of the money siphoned from the charity foundation had been earmarked for the N.C. Jaycee Burn Center in Chapel Hill. Local Jaycee chapters sold jars of grape jelly to raise the money.

Sutton, Nelson Pace ECU Past 'Cats

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Theo Sutton and Carlton Nelson each picked up 100 yards in guiding the East Carolina Pirates to their second straight win, a Homecoming victory over Western Carolina, 24-14.

It was the best game of the season for the two, who helped present Coach Ed Emory with his first victory in Ficklen Stadium in three tries. It also evened the East Carolina record at 3-3 on the year.

Sutton, who scored the first Pirate touchdown on a 5-yard run, ended the game with 115 yards on 20 rushes, while Nelson rushed for 107 yards on 16 lugs, and hit four of seven passes for 51 yards.

Anthony Collins scored on a 1-yard run, and Ernest Byner went over from the two to account for the other Pirate touchdowns. Bill Lamm kicked three PATs and a 34-yard field goal for the rest of the scoring.

Western Carolina got one score on an 89-yard run by Anthony James, and the other on a 1-yard run by Leonard Williams. Dean Biasucci kicked both extra points.

The Pirates also had a "phantom" touchdown scored by Collins one the first play of the second period.

With the ball at the ECU 38, Collins followed Sutton into the line, as Nelson faked first to Sutton, then handed off to Collins. The speedy halfback sprinted past the defense, broke clear and went 62 yards for an apparent score.

But the officials brought the ball back, with no explanation.

Later, at halftime, a check revealed that one of the officials went for the fake to Sutton and blew the play dead at the line of scrimmage. Rules then call for the replay of the down.

It nearly turned into a fate-full call as the Pirates fumbled it away on the next play.

"This was a great personal win for East Carolina. It was a crucial game for us to win at home," Emory said.

"Our guys played four quarters better todaythan all year, especially the defense. Our defense played assignments today. Except for the 89-yard run, we had virtually no breakdowns. We almost played a perfect first half of defense. I didn't realize that we could control their passing game that well."

The Pirates did control it, getting to the quarterback several times for sacks. Starting quarterback David Mashburn played only briefly — and without explaination. Sub Ronnie Mixon went most of the way, hitting 12 of 24 attempts for 154 yards, more than 100 yards less than the team's average. Gerald Harp, the number one receiver in the country, caught just two passes

Kansas City Whips Phillies, 5-3

Royals Tie Series

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The names come right out of baseball lore — Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth, Duke Snider, Mickey Mantle. They are some of the game's greatest sluggers, but none of them ever accomplished in a World Series what Willie Aikens of the Kansas City Royals did Saturday.

Aikens rocketed a pair of home runs — his second two-homer game of the 1980 series — as the Royals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 Saturday to tie the best-of-seven series at 2-2.

The homers, in the first and second innings, sent Aikens crashing into the World Series record book alongside the game's immortals and left him standing at the plate, admiring their flight.

"When I hit a baseball well and I know it's going out, I like to watch and get some enjoyment out of it," said Aikens.

There was no doubt that either of the two were going out. They were a pair of rockets, labeled from the moment they left his bat.

"I'm a streak hitter and I'm on a pretty good streak," smiled Aikens, who was named after Willie Mays, another of the Hall of Fame crowd.

Actually, when the series returned to Kansas City this weekend, Aikens was concerned.

"I really haven't done too well here this year," said Aikens, who had 20 home runs during the regular season. "There's no doubt in my mind, this is the biggest park in the American League and the ball doesn't carry at all. That's hurt me a lot. I've hit a lot of long flies back to the track that would be homers in other parks, but are outs here."

That was no problem in Game 4. His homers were huge blasts — the first one a ringing liner and the second a majestic, high drive.

"I'm just on a streak and everything seems like it's going good for me," said Aikens.

Philadelphia Manager Dallas Green is beginning to look for a little help with Aikens.

"If you've got a book on him, I'll use it," he said. "I do believe we're not pitching him right. But he's on a roll."

Their second straight victory at home enabled the Royals to tie the series and insure a return trip to Philadelphia for at least a sixth game. In Sunday's fifth game, Philadelphia will use rookie Marty Bystrom against Kansas City's Larry Gura.

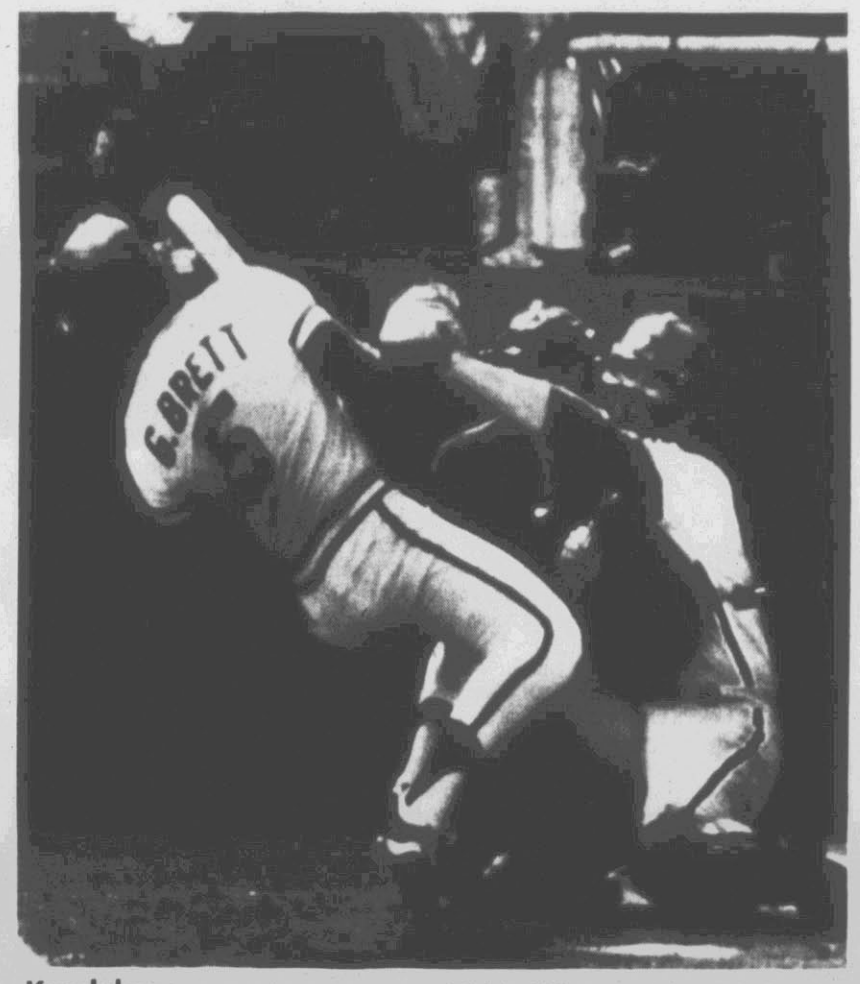

Aikens exploded his third and fourth homers of this series in the first two innings as the Royals rushed into a big early lead. Then Dennis Leonard, loser of the first game, made the bulge stand up with a gritty nine-hitter before being relieved in the eighth.

Aikens also had two homers in the opening game of the series and became the seventh man in history to hit four or more homers in a single series. Duke Snider did it twice, and the others to accomplish the feat were Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth, Hank Bauer, Gene Tenace and Reggie Jackson, who owns the single-series record of five homers.

Four players — Gehrig, Ruth, Snider and Mickey Mantle — all had two-homer games twice in their careers, but Aikens became the first man to do it in a single series.

Aikens also became the fourth player in

Blue Devils Stun Clemson, 34-17

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Duke Coach Red Wilson knew a victory had to come sometime this season, but the way the Blue Devils mauled Clemson 34-17 must have surprised even the second-year Duke mentor.

His freshman quarterback Ben Bennett led the assault that piled up 24 unmatched points in the second half, catching a 13-yard touchdown pass from halfback Mike Grayson in the process as the Blue Devils pinned the upset on Clemson.

The final nail in the Clemson coffin was an 87-yard run down the sidelines with a pass interception by Dennis Tabron.

Wilson said as he basked in the warmth of victory, "This is a great win for us that has been a long time coming. I feel very strongly that this is a beginning for us."

Of his young quarterback, Wilson said, "He is still only a freshman but he is already pretty good."

Bennett had a spectacular afternoon, completing 23 of 32 passes for 257 yards.

Bennett said it wasn't that Clemson's secondary was playing poorly, "I just threw to the open receivers."

He added, "Desire is what won this game."

Tiger Coach Danny Ford said of Bennett, "He made us look like we didn't know what we were doing at times. He was extremely good."

Tabron, whose scoring run came early in the fourth period as Clemson attempted to get back in the game, said as the Tigers' Frank Magwood had the ball, "I just reached in and grabbed the ball and I had the sidelines clear."

Bennett threw a 5-yard scoring strike to Glenn Tillerey as the Blue Devils began their second half surge.

The Grayson-Bennett pass on third down caught Clemson's defense by complete surprise. Bennett had no defenderes within 10 yards as he caught the ball and scored untouched.

Tabron's theft from the hands of Tiger wide receiver Frank Magwood also caught Clemson by surprise. The defensive back set sail down the sideline and scored easily.

Magwood had two other interceptions in the game and set an Atlantic Coast Conference record with 112 yards in interception returns.

The victory after five losses evened the Blue Devils' ACC record at 1-1, the same as Clemson's. The Tigers fell to 4-2 overall.

Duke's Grayson had a 2-yard scoring run to go with his reception touchdown and Scott McKinney added 20 and 43 yard field goals to go with his four extra points.

Homer Jordan teamed up with flanker Perry Tuttle for a 46-yard touchdown pass-run for the Tigers' most spectacular offensive play. Brendon Crite picked up a touchdown on a 1-yard run for the other Clemson score. Obed Ariri kicked a 23-yard field goal.

Clemson, which had relied primarily on its defense in the first games of the year, saw that unit come apart under Bennett's probing passes.

Defense Leads Oregon To 7-7 Tie With #2 USC

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Oregon football Coach Rich Brooks disdains tie games and won't even make an exception for his team's stunning 7-7 deadlock Saturday with second-ranked Southern Cal.

"This tie is against a quality football team," Brooks said. "But it's disheartening to know that the players executed as well as they did and came up short of victory."

"We are not very happy with a tie," he added. "But I guess I am glad SC didn't pull out the wind at the end."

"I can't say enough about our defensive game plan," the Oregon coach said. "We made USC earn everything it got."

The Trojans, 5-0-1, who entered the game as two-touchdown favorites on a 25-game unbeaten streak, got 158 yards rushing from bruising tailback Marcus Allen, but he was stopped on the biggest of the fourth quarter — a fourth-and-one situation at the Oregon 32-yard line.

"It was a great defensive play," said Southern Cal Coach John Robinson.

"I felt we brought that tie on ourselves," Robinson said. "We had many opportunities. The penalties seemed to be the rule of the day for us."

Southern Cal was penalized for 85 yards, including three costly holding calls.

Oregon, 2-2-2, would have won the game except for a fumble recovered on the Trojan 1-yard line. On the play, one official signaled that Oregon tailback Reggie Brown had crossed the goal line for a touchdown before the fumble but he was overruled by another offi7al.

UNC 'Fakes' Pack, 28-8

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — If at first you don't succeed, try a fake punt again somewhere down the line.

North Carolina followed that strategy Saturday and it triggered a 28-8 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over North Carolina State, giving the eighth-ranked Tar Heels a 6-0 record for the first time in 32 years.

Steve Streater galloped 37 yards for a touchdown on a fake punt midway through the second period and Rod Elkins flipped a 22-yard scoring pass to Victor Harrison 43 seconds later after a fumble to put the Tar Heels in front 14-0.

"On the fake punt, Streater is taught to look for certain things," Coach Dick Crum explained. "It's not a play called from the bench. In certain situations, he has permission to run if the defense is giving us certain things. Those things were there today. We tried that earlier in the year and he ended up having to punt on the dead run."

Elkins and Harrison teamed up on another touchdown pass in the final period and the sophomore quarterback scored himself on a slick 10-yard bootleg early in the third quarter as North Carolina stretched its winning streak to nine games dating back to last season.

The triumph also kept the Tar Heels atop the ACC with a 3-0 mark. State is 3-3 over-all, 1-2 in conference play.

"Defensively, we're still playing a little bit better every week," Crum said. "No, I'm not ready to say just how good this defense is. I want to wait a little bit longer."

N.C. State coach Monte Kiffin called Carolina "a great team. Every great team I've been around in my days at Nebraska and Arkansas, they've had a great defense. And that's what North Carolina has. Their front seven is really physical. They do an outstanding job.

"A big play in the game was the fake punt. We were doing pretty well up until that time. Then the fumble and we're behind in a hurry."

Carolina's last three touchdowns followed North Carolina State turnovers. On the first play after Streater's touchdown, defensive tackle Donnell Thompson jarred the ball loose from State quarterback Tol Avery and linebacker Darrell Nicholson recovered at the Wolfpack 17. The Tar Heels needed only two plays to score despite a five-yard motion penalty.

On the first play of the second half, Carolina linebacker Calvin Daniels intercepted an Avery pass and returned it 11 yards to the State 19. This time, the Tar Heels covered the remaining distance in three plays.

Carolina's final touchdown came on an 11-yard pass from Elkins to Harrison with 5:49 left in the game capping a seven-play, 71-yard drive that followed David Singleton's interception. En route to the score Kelvin Bryant carried four times for 57 yards.

Meanwhile, North Carolina's vaunted defense led by Thompson, Lawrence Taylor and Daniels did let the Wolfpack across midfield until the final minute of the first half. Streater's punting kept State bottled up in its own half of the field, forcing the Wolfpack to start from inside it 20 on four of its seven possession in the first half.

State finally scored against Carolina's second-string defense with 3:15 remaining, with backup quartrerback Ron Laraway's five-yard keeper capping an 85-yard march.

With a record Kenan Stadium crowd of 51,845 looking on State played on fairly even terms with Carolina until Streater's fake punt caught the Wolfpack napping. On fourth-and-seven, the former high school quarterback took off around right end, cut back inside defender David Shelton at the 20 and scored easily at 6:24 of the second period.

'Bama Buries Vols, 27-0

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Peter Kim boomed four field goals and Ken Coley and Major Ogilvie scored touchdowns as top-ranked Alabama turned to an unyielding defense and buried Tennessee 27-0 in a regionally televised Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

The Crimson Tide, reeling off their 27th consecutive victory, held Tennessee to minus two yards on offense in the first half and turned aside three third-quarter threats with two pass interceptions and a blocked field goal.

The outstanding defensive effort, led by Mike Pitts, Thomas Boyd and Jeremiah Castille, enabled Alabama to hand Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his 302nd career victory in his chase of the all-time record of 314 held by Amos Alonzo Stagg.

It also was Alabama's 25th consecutive SEC victory and its 10th in a row over Tennessee in one of the top collegiate rivalries in the South. It gave the Tide 33-23-7 series advantage.

It also was the 94th career shutout for Bryant-coached teams, coming before a southern-record crowd of 96,748 who watched in a second-half driving rain.

Kim, a sophomore from Hawaii, had field goals of 31, 47, 41 and 24 yards. Coley's touchdown came on an eight-yard run in the second quarter and the Tide added a two-point conversion on Don Jacobs' pass to Ogilvie.

Ogilvie's score came from the one with only 28 seconds remaining after Mike Clements returned an interception two yards to the Volunteers' 20.

The unbeaten machine, now 6-0 overall and 3-0 in the SEC, dusted off a couple of old plays in scoring drives — a 20-yard gain on a flea-flicker and a 23-yard pass completion out of the shotgun formation.

Tennessee's record dropped to 3-3 for the year and 1-2 in the conference.

The Alabama defense was so dominating that Tennessee netted only 59 yards in the game and finished with only five first downs.

The huge crowd gave the Vols an ovation on their initial first down. It came on quarterback Jeff Olszewski's 2-yard keeper with 6:36 remaining in the third quarter.

Three of the first downs came on that series, the last on a 27-yard interference infraction against Castille at the Alabama 32, but the threat ended on Pitts' interception in the end zone.

Tennessee immediately had another opportunity on Greg Gaines' fumble recovery at the Alabama 19, but Castille broke through and blocked Alan Duncan's 32-yard field goal try when holder John Warren juggled the snap.

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Freshman running back George "Buster" Rhymes returned the opening kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown and quarterback J.C. Watts rushed for three touchdowns Saturday, sparking 18th-ranked Oklahoma to a 35-21 Big Eight Conference triumph over Kansas State.

Rhymes also bulled in for a 1-yard touchdown. Watts' touchdowns were from 4, 2 and 14 yards and he also threw a two-point conversion pass to fullback Stanley Wilson.

Kansas State's scoring came on three Darrell Dickey passes — 10 yards to running back L.J. Brown and 13 and 36 yards to split end John Liebe.

The win gives Oklahoma a 3-2 overall record, with a 2-0 record in the Big Eight to share the conference lead. Kansas State is now 2-4.

Houston.....13

IRVING, Texas (UPI) — Steve Bradham's second interception of the day stopped Southern Methodist's comeback hopes with five minutes left in the game Saturday and carried the Houston Cougars — guided by a freshman quarterback making his first start ever — to a 13-11 victory over the Mustangs.

The victory kept the Cougars alive in their quest for a third consecutive Southwest Conference championship, even though Houston's overall record stands only at 3-3.

Audrey McMillian, Houston's third-string quarterback who was forced into the starting role because of injuries to teammates, had taken only four snaps from center before Saturday, but he smoothly led the Cougars to a 13-3 lead late in the third quarter.

Georgia.....41
Vanderbilt.....0

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Freshman sensation Herschel Walker exploded for 283 yards — a Georgia single-game rushing record — and scored three times on runs of 60, 48 and 53 yards as the unbeaten and sixth-ranked Bulldogs pounded winless Vanderbilt 41-0 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

The 6-foot-1, 218-pound Walker ran over two defenders in racing 60 yards the first time he touched the ball with only 1:14 gone in the game. He set up Rex Robinson's 30-yard field goal with his next carry, a 38-yard burst later in the opening quarter and then ripped off his 48-yard TD early in the second period.

Walker, who now has 746 yards for the season, snapped the 35-year rushing record set by Charlie Trippi early in the final period when he burst 53 yards up the middle to give Georgia a 34-0 lead.

Walker did not return to the contest after that carry, giving him the 283 yards in 23 attempts, breaking the record of 239 set by Trippi in 1945.

Penn St.....24

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Tailback Curt Warner scored on touchdown runs of 3 and 6 yards while fullback Booker Moore slashed for 100 yards Saturday, extending 12th-ranked Penn State's winning streak over Syracuse to 10 with a 24-7 victory.

Freshman quarterback Todd Blackledge iced the victory, Penn State's fifth in six starts, with a 13-yard touchdown strike to freshman Kenny Jackson. Jackson set up the fourth period score with a 22-yard punt return to the Syracuse 25.

Penn State had breezed to a 10-0 halftime lead on Brian Franco's 26-yard field goal and Warner's 3-yard burst which capped a 67-yard, 10-play drive.

But Syracuse, 3-3, scored in the opening seconds of the third period when linebacker Mike Zunic intercepted a Blackledge pass and returned it 11 yards for a touchdown. Defensive linemen Ken Kollar and Herb Butzke hurried Blackledge into making an ill-timed throw.

But the Lions padded the margin two possessions later, using a vaunted ground attack to march 80 yards in nine plays to put the game away. Moore, who only had 11 carries, shredded the Syracuse defense with a 40-yard run as the big play in the drive.

Baylor.....46
Texas A&M.....7

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (UPI) — Jay Jeffrey swamped Texas A&M defenders with three touchdown passes in the second quarter and 13th-ranked Baylor used a stifling defensive effort Saturday to stop the Aggies 46-7 and remain unbeaten.

The sixth win without a loss marked Baylor's best start in 26 years and the Bears' fourth win over a Southwest Conference opponent gave them two more victories in SWC play than anyone else.

Junior tailback Walter Abercrombie ran 71 yards for a touchdown in the third quarter with the game already decided. After Baylor took its first-team offense out in the third quarter, the Bears got an 18-yard scoring run from quarterback Mike Brannan and a 12-yard scoring pass from quarterback David Mangrum.

Senior kicker Robert Bledsoe had a 43-yard field goal into the driving rain less than six minutes into the game and then added five extra point kicks to break the school's career scoring record of 182 points.

Notre Dame.....30

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Linebacker Mark Zavagnin pounced on a blocked punt for one touchdown and set up another with a pass interception Saturday to lead fifth-ranked and undefeated Notre Dame to a 30-3 victory over Army.

Jim Stone, Blair Kiel and Ty Barber scored on short runs and Harry Oliver booted a 49-yard field goal as the Irish notched their fifth straight victory of the season and left Army with a 2-3-1 record.

Zavagnin recovered a punt blocked by John Krimm in the final minute of the first half to give the Irish a 17-0 lead at intermission.

Dave Aucoin's 41-yard field goal early in the third quarter averted an Army shutout and put the Cadets back in the running.

But Bob Crable recovered an Army fumble which led to a touchdown late in the third quarter and Zavagnin's intercepted pass set up still another score early in the fourth quarter before the Irish went to their reserves.

Nebraska.....48
Oklahoma St.....7

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Reserve I-back Craig Johnson rushed for three touchdowns and quarterback Jeff Quinn passed for two more as 10th-ranked Nebraska crushed winless Oklahoma State 48-7 in a Big Eight football clash Saturday.

Johnson, subbing for the injured Jarvis Redwine, scored on runs of 3, 17 and 1 yards as he rolled up 105 yards in 20 carries before a Nebraska homecoming crowd of 76,021.

Oklahoma State's Cowboys, 0-5, scored their lone touchdown following a Nebraska fumble on the Cornhusker 26 early in the second half when quarterback Houston Nutt hit Ron Ingram with a 14-yard scoring strike.

After grabbing a 14-0 lead before Oklahoma State's first snap of the ball, Nebraska, 5-1, struggled through the rest of the first half.

Pittsburgh.....42

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Backup quarterback Rick Trocano, summoned from defense after Dan Marino was hurt, led a 28-point surge in a five-minute span of the second quarter that gave 11th-ranked Pittsburgh a 42-14 college football victory over West Virginia Saturday.

Trocano, who started the game at safety, threw a pair of touchdown passes after Marino was sidelined late in the first quarter with a recurring knee injury. And Pitt, 5-1, rebounded from a loss the week before at Florida State.

With the score 7-7 in the second quarter, Trocano hit four of five passes on a 75-yard touchdown drive. Fullback Randy McMillan dove 1 yard for the touchdown with 9:09 elapsed in the quarter, and Pitt added three more touchdowns in a span of 4:49.

A series later, Trocano and freshman flanker Dwight Collins combined on a 53-yard touchdown pass.

Notre Dame Set To Hire Prep Coach?

NEW YORK (AP) — Gerry Faust, a successful high school coach from Cincinnati, will succeed Dan Devine as Notre Dame's football coach at the end of the season, the New York Times reported in its Saturday editions.

Citing sources in Notre Dame's department of athletics, the Times says Faust is the first choice of the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of the university. Faust would become the first of Notre Dame's 24 head football coaches to come directly from the high school ranks.

Faust has coached Moeller High School to four Ohio state championships in the last five years, and the school has sent 17 players to Notre Dame since he began coaching there in 1963.

"You know I'd take the Notre Dame job," Faust said in an interview with the Times. "I pray for it. It is the only college job I would accept. But to be honest with you, I have not been formally offered the job. No one has spoken to me yet. But if I got the opportunity I'd be more excited than the man who wins the presidency next month."

On Thursday, the Patriot Ledger of Quincy, Mass. reported that Harvard Coach Joe Restic would succeed Devine, who announced his resignation last August. Notre Dame's retiring athletic director, Moose Krause, said Friday that Restic was in contention for the prestigious head coaching job.

"We're thinking about various guys we'd like to talk to and certainly Joe is high on our list," Krause said. "We're not going to talk to him or anybody else until the end of the season."

series history to hit homers in consecutive innings. The others were Ruth, who did it twice, Jackson and Ted Kluszewski.

The Royals came out swinging against Philadelphia starter Larry Christenson and it paid off.

Leadoff man Willie Wilson, battling a 1-for-13 series slump, opened with a single to left. Before Christenson threw a pitch to the next batter, Frank White, he threw over to first, hoping to keep the speedy Wilson close. But the pickoff attempt was in the dirt and skipped past Pete Rose into right field. Wilson raced around to third base on the error.

After White flied out, George Brett drilled a 1-1 pitch down the right-field line, scoring Wilson. It looked like a double, but Brett hustled it into three bases, sliding hard into third. He needn't have bothered, because Aikens was up next.

The strapping first baseman hit an 0-1 pitch on a line over the 385-foot sign in right field. The ball fell just short of the waterfalls that decorate the area beyond the outfield wall in this beautiful ballpark.

That made it 3-0 for Kansas City, but the Royals didn't stop there. Designated hitter Hal McRae drilled a base hit to center and hustled it into a double. When Amos Otis followed with another double for a 4-0 lead, it finished Christenson, with Dickie Noles reliving. Christenson had made 22 pitches in his brief stay and allowed 12 total bases.

A walk to Clint Hurdle and an infield single by U.L. Washington loaded the bases, but Noles retired Wilson to end the inning.

The Phillies nicked Leonard for a run in the second. Garry Maddox dropped a one-out single to right. Manny Trillo forced him at second, but when Washington's relay was wild for an error, Trillo advanced to second. Larry Bowa followed with an RBI single, making it 4-1.

But the Royals got that back in their half with Aikens. This time he hit a monster of a homer, high and deep into the Royals' bullpen in right. The ball bounced once and then disappeared into the tunnel behind the warmup area.

The crowd of 42,363 demanded a curtain call from the slugger, and Aikens came out of the dugout, waving his hat to acknowledge the cheers. The home run was the last of the Royals' scoring for the afternoon, but not the last of the cheering as the Kansas City crowd hailed the Royals through the closing innings of the game.

The two homers gave Aikens seven hits and eight runs batted in for the four games of the series. His batting average so far is a remarkable .467.

In the fourth, Noles sent Brett sprawling with a pitch just under his chin. Kansas City Manager Jim Frey dashed from the dugout, gesturing and shouting at the Phillies' pitcher, and for a moment it seemed this series might have a beanball brawl on its hands.

But the umpires interceded and after calming Frey down, warned both managers that any more close pitchers would result in expulsion of the pilot and the pitcher involved. The threat worked, and peace prevailed the rest of the way.

Leonard had an early four-run lead in the opener but squandered that one. This time the Kansas City righty held the Phillies off, protecting the 5-1 bulge until the seventh. Then he surrendered a run when Trillo doubled, moved to third on Bowa's single and scored on Bob Boone's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth, the Phillies picked up another run. Rose opened with a double and that brought in Dan Quisenberry, ace of the Kansas City bullpen. Rose advanced to third on an infield out and scored on Mike Schmidt's sacrifice fly. But it was the last gasp for the Phillies.

The come-from-behind style that has marked the club in its travels through the National League Championship Series and the first two games of this World Series wasn't there on Saturday.

Rampants Finally Succeed In Failure

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WINDSOR — Rose High School's Rampants, who had done their best to give away the game for the past several weeks, finally found a team that was willing to accept it Friday night — the lowly Bertie Falcons.

The resulting 12-9 win by the last place Division I team, knocked the Rampants, ranked second in the state by the Associated Press, out of first place in the league, and left their playoff hopes in severe jeopardy.

Wilson Fike, Rose's next opponent, rolled over Beddingfield Friday night, taking over sole possession of first in the conference. That places the Rampants in a "must win" situation against the Golden Demons this Friday night.

"It finally caught up with us," Rose coach Dave Bumgarner said in disgust. "We played poor, we played poor, and we played poor, and finally we gave it away.

"You can't expect to play like we've been playing these last few weeks and continue to win. We deserved to get beat and they beat us."

Bertie came out fired up for the contest, and they never let down. Unlike Beddingfield last week, they didn't lay the ball on the ground to give Rose a chance to recover. In fact, they did not fumble at all.

Rose, beset by fumbles all year, did put it on the ground — as usual. The Rampants fumbled five times in the game, losing four of them. One of those set up the first of the two Bertie scores.

Dwayne Gilliam got the first score on a one-yard pass from Karl Spruill. The other score came in the opening minutes of the third period, on a two-yard plunge by Darryl Bazemore.

Rose's lone touchdown came on a one-yard dive by Roger Williams, with Scott Taylor adding the extra point. Bertie gave Rose a safety late in the game.

That play nearly backfired on the Falcons, however, as Chris McLawhorn ran the free kick back to an apparent score.

However, it was nullified by an illegial block — wxich took place unnecessarily, far behind the play. It was the third time this year McLawhorn had run a kick back for a score only to have a needless block behind him kill the play.

Rose also failed to score on a third and goal situation at the one-inch line, when a controversial call left the Rampants short.

In general, Bertie outhustled Rose from the start. They outblocked the Rampants on the line, many times bursting through to throw Rampant backs for losses. Rose, usually on up there in the statistics, rushed for just 114 yards — 88 of which came in the first period of play. Fifteen of 48 plays run by Rose were for negative yardage.

"They just beat us in every phase of the game," Bumgarner said. "They outblocked us, outhit us. We made errors, bad plays, had unnecessary penalties, and those fumbles."

The coach, however, doesn't feel that the high ranking of the team gave the team too much overconfidence. "I'm not worried about the rankings, but about winning the conference title. We just haven't played to our potential — really since the Kinston game. We've played well in streaks and been able to overcome the mistakes we've made.

"But not tonight. We never got the play that would fire us up. It just got worse and worse," Bumgarner said.

Rose quickly got off a threat, moving in one play from its own 41 to the Bertie 37, but on the second play, the first fumble came, and Rose coughed it up.

Getting it back, the Rampants then moved for their first score. The drive took only 54 yards, but ate up over four minutes off the clock. Quarterback Kenny Barnes hit Donald Johnson for 20 yards to the Bertie 37 for the first first down. The longest run in the drive was a nine-yard reverse by McLawhorn that put the ball on the four. Alonza Taylor took an option around the left for three yards, and Williams went over the middle of the line for the score from the one. With 5:03 left in the first period, Rose held a 7-0 lead.

Bertie then used a 50-yard pass play to set up a theat. Spruill hit James Walton for the pass from the Bertie 32 to the Rose 18. Only a speeding Marty Barnes managed to pull Walton down and save a touchdown.

Thanks to a pass interference call, Bertie got a first down at the seven, but then had a proceedure call hurt the Falcons and kill the drive. A 26-yard field goal try was well wide.

Rose moved in just two plays to the Bertie 41, but again coughed it up on a fumble.

After getting the ball back on a punt, the Rampants then fumbled again, giving up excellent field position to the Falcons. The turnover came on the Rampant 15 yard line, and it took just five plays for Bertie to score.

Spruill hit Gilliam for nine yards on first down, then, after three rushing plays moved it to the one, Spruill and Gilliam again connected for the final yard.

A two-point try failed, leaving Rose ahead, 7-6 with 9:28 left in the half.

The only other threat of the half came on Bertie's next series, when it moved from its own 40 to the Rose 33 before being forced to punt.

Bertie took the opening kickoff in the second half and marched 60 yards for the score that won it.

Rose was penalized on first down for being off-sides, and gave up 23 yards on a Spruill to Gilliam pass on third and six. That carried to the Rose 33. After a first down at the 22, Jeffrey Cherry broke away for 15, putting the ball on the seven. Wayne Speller got five yards up the middle, and Bazemore went over right tackle for the final two putting Bertie ahead, 12-7 with 7:59 left.

Again, a two-point try failed.

Rose drove from its own 35 to the Bertie 12 before a third-down halfback option pass failed when Williams slipped down trying to throw. A 21-yard pass from Barnes to Johnson sparked the drive. A 35-yard Taylor field goal attempt was wide.

Rose then drove again from its own 40 late in the third period. Again Barnes and Johnson keyed the drive with a 22-yard aerial.

Rose finally got a first down at the three, and looked almost certain to make it in. But Robert Barnes lost a yard on first down, and Barnes was hauled down a yard and a half short on second. Brown, trying to go over right tackle on third down, appeared to come down with the ball on the goal line, but the offials spotted it an inch away from the goal line. Barnes was then stacked up on the fourth down play, failing to get that important inch.

Bertie failed to move the ball, and with 5:11 left, Raymond Wilson ran with the ball instead of punting, finally moving back into the end zone to give Rose a safety. That cut it to 12-9 with plenty of time left.

On the free kick, McLawhorn, appearing to be caught at his own 45, broke away and raced a total of 67 yards to the end zone, but well behind him, a flag was thrown for an illegial block at the 36, and Rose had to start at the Rampant 49.

They failed to move it, however, and kicked it away. Bertie failed to keep it and kicked it away with 1:18 showing on the clock.

Rose then moved from its own 40 to the Bertie 36 before a fourth lost fumble sealed it for the Falcons.

The loss dropped the Rampants to 6-1 overall and 3-1 in league play. Bertie climbs to 2-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

Rose plays host to Fike on Friday in its annual Homecoming game, with the Rampant title hopes definitely on the line.

Southwest Interceptions Key Cougars In Win Over Conley

PINETOPS — Southwest Edgecombe took advantage of D.H. Conley mistakes Friday night to gain an 18-7 win over the winless Vikings.

All three of the Cougar scores were set up by Conley turnovers as Johnny Joyner was almost a one-man show for the team, intercepting three passes during the evening. Two of those eventually went for scores.

Southwest got its first touchdown in the second period following one of those Joyner interceptions. The drive took only 30 yards after the turnover, with Wayne Mayo getting the final three.

Later in the period, Darryl Hussey picked off another Conley pass, returning this one 32 yards for the touchdown, giving the Cougars a 12-0 halftime lead.

It stayed that way until the final period, when Conley finally got on the scoreboard after a 69-yard drive. Chris McDaniel pulled in a nine-yard pass from Leon Cox for the score and Michael Long's PAT cut it to 12-7.

But another interception, again by Joyner, put the game on ice for Southwest. The drive took just 15 yards, with Jeff Battle passing 18 yards to Joyner after an initial loss.

Conley had an early chance, moving to a third and goal at the one, but the Vikes couldn't push it in. Later they twice drove inside the 30 without getting points.

The loss dropped the Viking record to 0-7, 0-5 in league play. Southwest climbs to 5-2, 4-1 against league competition. The Vikings play host to Charles B. Aycock, while Southwest travels to North Lenoir on Friday.

Crumel's Efforts Lead 'Birds By Jags

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — The Anthony Crumel Express rolled into Farmville Friday night and after sputtering early left town with the Jaguars' heart in tow.

The Crumel Express — also known in some circles as Southern Nash — rallied from a 14-point first-period deficit to score 20 points in the fourth quarter for a 32-22 victory over a valiant Farmville Central club in a key Eastern Carolina Conference battle.

Sparked by the second-half running of Crumel, who ground out 162 yards and two touchdowns, and the play reserve quarterback Jeffrey Lucas, the Firebirds upped their record to 5-1-1 overall and 5-0 in the ECC and remained tied for the league lead with Charles B. Aycock.

"I can't say this was my biggest win since I've been here, but it was a sweet one for the guys," said coach Ron Pinner, who beat Farmville for the first time in his four-year stint at Southern Nash. "We've got three games left and if we win those three I'll say the last one was the biggest ever."

The Firebirds meet C. B. Aycock in the last game of the season, a battle that now appears will decide the ECC championship.

For Farmville, however, there will be no league title this year. After winning the ECC championship the last four seasons, the Jaguars are all but out of the race with a 4-2 ECC record. Farmville is 4-3 overall.

Because of this, and because this may have been his team's best game of the season, it was a particularly disheartening loss for Farmville coach Gene Brewer.

"We've come a long way since early in the season," Brewer said. "But we just weren't strong enough to stop Crumel. Everybody I talked to said that you had to stop Crumel if you wanted to stop them.

"We changed defenses but it just didn't seem to help. We played probably five defenses and four variations off those but we just couldn't find anything that would stop him consistently."

Just how important Crumel is to the Firebirds — who were without their starting quarterback, McCullen Wiggins, who went down last Friday with a knee injury — was apparent in the first half, especially when compared to the fourth period.

The Jaguars held Crumel, the league's leading rusher at 1,024 yards, to minus five yards in the first 12 minutes and a mere 41 yards at the half. In the third period Crumel had 31 yard, but it was the fourth period that he really began to spearhead the Firebird attack, running 90 yards and both his TDs.

"(Farmville defensive tackle Ronnie) Locus was taking away our dive in the first half and so we had to counter by going outside more," Pinner said. "They took the dive away from us as well as anyone has."

The Firebirds also began running more counters and misdirections. "That hurt us some in the second half," Brewer said. "But we didn't have a good defensive game overall, but anytime you play against a good back like that you aren't going to have a good defensive game.

"We felt like we'd be able to move the ball on them, it was just a matter if we could stop Crumel."

For the first period, at least, that was how it went. The defense stopped Crumel and the offense drove for scores in its first two possessions.

Taking the ball from their 37 following an offsides penalty on the first play from scrimmage, the Jaguars moved methodically down field. Wesley Carmon, who rushed for 74 yards in 11 carries, burst outside for 19 two plays into the drive. A 15-yard penalty moved the ball to the Southern Nash 21 and eight plays later Carmon went over from the one. Arthur Wooten's kick put the Jaguars up, 7-0, with 7:27 left in the first period.

The Jaguars held Southern Nash without a first down and forced a punt. Roger Joyner, who rushed for 90 yards in 15 carries to bring his total for the year to 811, caught the George Horrison punt on the 32 and raced down the left sideline 42 yards before being run out of bounds.

Three plays later, on third and six from the 22, Carmon muscled through three tackles en route to a 13-yard gain. Then, on third and goal from the two, Carmon went over to give the Jaguars a 14-0 lead with 1:17 left in the opening quarter.

Southern Nash, its star stymied for all of the first period and much of the first half, answered the Farmville challenge on its second possession.

The drive started with a one-yard loss by Crumel and a five-yard delay penalty but was kept going thanks to a 15-yard pass interference penalty on third and 16. Later in the drive Lucas hit, who was three-for-three for 58 yards on the night, hit tight end Jerry Wellons with a 27-yard completion down to the nine. Three plays later Lucas swept around right end for the score. The PAT kick was foiled by a bad snap.

The Jaguars, however, gave the visitors from Stanhope another chance moments later when Horrison intercepted a Jeff Cutler pass and returned it six yards to the Farmville 39.

It took the Firebirds eight plays to take advantage of the turnover, with Elvis Perry going over from the one. The run for two by Lucas failed, leaving the score at 14-12 at the half.

The second half was another story. After an exchange of punts in the early going, the Firebirds began to take charge. Looking like anything but a sophomore quarterback who had played no more than a five or six plays going into this game, Lucas engineered a 21-play, 76-yard drive which took the last five-and-a-half minutes of the third period and the first three of the final quarter.

In the drive, which was aided by a 15-yard penalty for piling on, Crumel carried six times for 30 yards, including the last four when he burst up the middle untouched for the TD. The pass for two failed, but the Firebirds led, 18-14, with 9:22 left in the game.

Stung by the score, the Jaguars quickly countered. Taking a pitch out on the initial play of the drive, Carmon fumbled once, fumbled again, and then, after shaking off a would-be tackler, fumbled again, this time out of bounds. The end result? A 20-yard gain that put the ball on the SN 40.

Three plays later Joyner, finding the middle clogged, slipped outside and sprinted the remaining 32 yards for the TD, giving the Jaguars a 20-18 lead with 7:38 left in the game.

Then, following a five-yard penalty against Farmville, Greg Henry took a pass from Cutler, faked one defender to the ground and then scooted into the end zone for the two points to give FC a 22-18 advantage.

Unfortunately for Farmville, Crumel was still only warming to the occasion. On the first play from scrimmage following the kickoff, Crumel raced 30 yards. Lucas followed with a 15-yard run and then, two plays later, the sophomore quarterback slithered into the end zone from 12-yards out. With Crumel's run for two from seven yards away after a penalty, the Firebirds led, 26-22, with 5:52 left.

"That hurt," Brewer said. "If we could have come out and made it tough for them instead of him coming out and popping one like that...."

Less than a minute later that hurt became a major pain when Carmon fumbled at the FC 39. Two plays later Crumel followed a 33-yard run with an 11-yard run for the score to put the game out of reach.

"We showed tremendous ability in our comeback," Pinner said. "We talked to the kids before the game about believing in themselves and they came out in the second half and showed that."

Brewer felt much the same way about his squad. "They've worked so hard to get where they are that I'm real disappointed for the kids," he said. "They've gone far and beyond where we thought they'd be. They've done everything we've asked of them and more.

"We're not blessed with a lot of ability but they gave all they had. That's all you can ask. It just wasn't in the cards tonight."

The Crumel Express made sure of that.

Ahoskie Ends Unbeaten String Of Williamston

AHOSKIE — Ahoskie's unbeaten Cougars went up against the unbeaten Tigers of Williamston Friday night, and when it was over, the Cougars were all alone in first place in the Northeastern Conference.

Ahoskie handed the Tigers their first loss, 28-7, dominating play in the second half to win going away after a tight first half.

Each team put one score on the board in the first half. Ahoskie scored first, in the opening period. David Smith scored from the 34 and Quinn Vaughan added the extra point.

Williamston got its only touchdown of the night in the second quarter. Mike Peele scored on a 15-yard pass from Jim Lilly and Victor Thomas booted the PAT that tied it up.

Early in the second half, however, Ronald Eley intercepted a Williamston pass and returned it 42 yards for the go-ahead score. Vaughan again kicked for a 14-7 lead.

Ahoskie added two insurance touchdowns in the final period. Gerald Mitchell scored on an 84-yard pass play from Glenn Mitchell, and Tim Harrell ran 23 yards for the other touchdown. Vaughan added both PATs.

Williamston is now 6-1 on the year and 3-1 in league play. Ahoskie is 7-0 and 4-0. The Tigers play host to Edenton on Friday.

Charger Turnovers Pace Hawks

By PAUL COLLINS
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — North Lenoir took advantage of five Ayden-Grifton turnovers in ruining the Chargers' homecoming Friday night, 20-6.

Ayden-Grifton fumbled the ball away four times, but it was an interception that was most costly. Leon Davis intercepted a Bernard Ricciarelli pass and returned it 70 yards for a touchdown on the opening play of the second quarter.

Guy Sanderson's extra point made the score 7-0 and staked the Hawks to a lead they never relinquished. Cleveland Coley's one-yard touchdown run brought Ayden-Grifton within one point, but the Hawks' Michael White added two fourth quarter TD's to ensure the victory.

Ayden-Grifton started like gangbusters, stopping Lenoir cold on its first possession. The Chargers then began moving almost at will on the Hawk defense. Using its passing game as effectively as its ground attack, Ayden-Grifton moved to a first and goal at the Hawk five.

The Chargers saw their golden opportunity slip away two plays later, however, when Gregory Jackson fumbled and Orlander Moore recovered for the visitors at the North Lenoir six.

The Chargers were able to stop North Lenoir, but once again they were unable to hold onto the ball. Davis grabbed Riciarelli's pass on his own 35 and sprinted past the stunned Ayden-Grifton offense to give his team its first score.

So despite gaining just 14 yards in slightly more than a quarter of play, the Hawks held a 7-0 lead.

Ayden-Grifton came right back on its next possession. Ricciarelli's 19-yard pass to Chuck Smithwick moved the ball to the 38, and Coley's sprint around right end put the ball at the Lenoir 42. Ricciarelli connected again four plays later, this time hitting Chris Strickland for 20 yards to the one.

Coley took the ball over on the next play, giving his team its only score of the night. Coley's attempted two-point conversion failed after0a delay of game penalty moved the ball back to the seven.

The Charger defense stopped North Lenoir again, and Ayden-Grifton seemed in perfect position to take control of the game. Hawk punter Sanderson was unable to handle a poor snap from center on fourth and two, and three Chargers swarmed in and tackled him at the NL 35.

Once again, though, the Chargers didn't seem to want the ball. Coley's fumble at the 24 ended the Ayden-Grifton threat and turned the ball over to the Hawks for the third time in the half Ayden-Grifton was little better in the second half. On the second play of the third quarter Lenoir recovered yet another fumble on the Charger 31. A clipping penalty killed the Hawk drive and enabled the Chargers to take over on their 32.

The Lenoir defense began to assert itself on the next series, stopping the Chargers for losses on two consecutive plays and forcing a punt. Vance Barfield's punt got off a 17-yard punt setting the Hawks up at the Charger 49.

Neither team could move the ball until Lenoir began to drive with two minutes left in the quarter. A 22-yard screen pass to White and a 17-yard burst over right tackle by James Cratch moved the ball to the Charger 25.

White took the ball inside the ten and the Hawks had a first and goal at the seven. Mike Boykin sacked Hawk quarterback Kevin Battle at the 15, and after an incomplete pass North Lenoir faced fourth and goal from there.

Sanderson's 32-yard field goal attempt was short, but a roughing the kicker penalty gave the Hawks an automatic first down at the six. White scored easily on the next play to give his team a 13-6 lead.

The game's final touchdown came with 29 seconds remaining. White was seemingly stopped by the middle of the Charger defense but managed to get outside and outrun the defenders for a 46-yard score. Sanderson's extra point made the final score 20-6.

Ayden-Grifton's frequent turnovers overshadowed an outstanding performance by Ricciarelli The Charger quarterback completed 17 of his 20 passes for 177 yards

"The score dictated our passing game," A-G coach Dixon Sauls said. "The real story would be our fumbles though. Our own mistakes contributed to our downfall."

Ayden-Grifton fell to 3-5 overall and 2-3 in the conference and will face D.H. Conley next week. North Lenoir is now 5-2 and 3-2.

Safety Gives Maryland Victory Over Deacons

From Wire Reports

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Maryland defensive end Mark Wilson tackled Wake Forest quarterback Jay Venuto for a safety with 10 minutes to play Saturday and the Terrapins snapped a three-game losing string with an 11-10 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

The Terrapins, 4-3 overall and 1-1 in the ACC, took a 9-0 lead in the second quarter on Dale Castro's 36-yard field goal and Wayne Wingfield's 1-yard run. Wake Forest, 3-3 and 1-2, went ahead in the third period on Phil Denfeld's 39-yard field goal and his extra point following Wayne McMillan's 1-yard scoring dive.

Castro's 59-yard punt through a driving rainstorm, which put the stadium clock out of order, rolled dead at the Deacon 2 early in the fourth quarter. A running play gained 3 yards and Wilson nailed Venuto on the next play for the winning points.

Wake Forest moved from its 3 to the Maryland 47 with 3 seconds to play and Venuto's desparation pass toward Bill Ruffner was knocked away at the 7 on the final play of the game.

The Terrapins lost quarterback Mike Tice in the first quarter with a bruised hip. Reserve Bob Milkovich came on to complete 6 of 14 passes for 75 yards.

Venuto, under heavy pressure from the Terrapin defense, completed 23 of 42 passes for 282 yards. However, the Deacons were held to just 39 yards on the ground.

Yellow Jackets Nip Roanoke

ROBERSONVILLE — Homecoming games are supposed to be exciting — but not at the expense of the home team losing the game.

Roanoke Rapids' Chris Wray obviously doesn't understand that. The Yellow Jacket halfback rushed for 93 yards and scored two touchdowns — both in the first period — to help his team spoil Roanoke's homecoming, 14-13, Friday night in a Northeastern Conference football game.

It was the first league victory for the Yellow Jackets in four games and evened their overall record at 3-3-1. Roanoke drops to 5-2 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

The Yellow Jackets, after fumbling on their opening possession, came back to score on their next two possessions. Wray ran the first score in from 26 yards and Chuck Ward added the point after.

Then after forcing a punt — both teams punted six times — Roanoke Rapids was back for more. This time Wray took it 43 yards to give the Yellow Jackets a 14-0 lead.

Roanoke came back to score on a six-play drive in the second period. Jesse Everett got the TD on a one-yard run and with Neal Cargile's kick the Redskins trailed, 14-7.

In the third quarter the Redskins edged even closer when Linwood Williams picked up a blocked punt and rumbled 42 yards for the score. The kick, however, was blocked, and Roanoke trailed, 14-13. That was as close as the Redskins got.

Late in the game Roanoke drove to the Yellow Jacket 34 late in the game but the clock ran out.

Roanoke travels to Tarboro this Friday.

Falcons Sprint Past Panthers

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock continued its unbeaten path through the Eastern Carolina Conference, gaining a 55-0 victory over North Pitt Friday night.

The Falcons are now 7-0 overall and 5-0 in league play. North Pitt falls to 1-6 overall and 0-6 in the league.

Aycock scored just once in the first period, but caught fire from there, and roared away from the Panthers, who never offered a scoring threat.

The first touchdown came on a two-yard run by Ken Grantham, with Andy Bunn running over a two-point conversion.

In the second period, the Falcons added two more scores. Nicky Burroughs scored on a 34-yard pass from Paul Thomas, and Grantham scored on a one-yard run for the two. Vernell Grantham added a two-point conversion after the second TD.

In the third period, three more Falcon touchdowns were recorded. Vernell Grantham got the first two, on runs of 52 and 35 yards. J.L. Gurley scored the third, from a yard out.

The last period saw two more scores by Aycock. Jeff Gray scored from the eight and Robert Ruffin went over from 15-yards out.

North Pitt plays host to Greene Central, and Aycock visits Conley on Friday.

Auburn 'Intercepts' Yellow Jackets, 17-14

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Thanks to Ken Luke's interception and Al Del Greco's pressure-packed field goal, Auburn claimed a 17-14 victory Saturday over Georgia Tech.

At the same time, it handed the Yellow Jackets a moral victory—one which Tech Coach Bill Curry wouldn't accept.

"I don't have anything to say. I'm sick for these guys," said Curry. "There's only one kind of victory. When you accept a moral victory, you lose perspective."

Curry was dismayed because, late in the fourth quarter, it looked like Tech might pull off a major Deep South upset or at least come out with a tie despite crippling injuries to key players.

But Luke a deflected pass to set up Del Greco's 21-yard field goal in the closing minutes as the Tigers escaped a tie and gave them a 39-38-4 lead in their longtime rivalry with Tech.

"We've got the lead in the series now, but it was a hard fight to the end," said Auburn Coach Doug Barfield. "I'll have to compliment our defense because they hung in there and came up with the big plays at the end."

Auburn, now 4-2, seemed stuck with a tie against Tech, which had won only once in five games and was playing without its top passer and runner. But Luke's interception put Del Greco in range for the winning field goal with only 3:45 left in the game.

Before that, Tech quarterback Ted Peeples, filling in for the injured Mike Kelley, had kept the Yellow Jackets in sight of a possible upset. He repeatedly hurt Auburn with his passing and scoring the tying touchdown in the fourth quarter on a razzle-dazzle pass play.

The score that tied it at 14 all came when Peeples pitched to Steve Henderson on a sweep to the right. Then Henderson stopped and fired back to Peeples, who was running alone down the left side and caught the ball for a nine-yard touchdown.

But with the score locked late in the fourth quarter, Peeples' pass slipped through Jack Westbrook's hands and veered into the arms of Luke, who rambled 19 yards to the Tech 11.

Del Greco's winning boot came after Auburn was stopped at the four.

Auburn, led by senior tailback James Brooks and quarterback Charles Thomas, moved the ball almost at will at times, but turned sluggish at other points.

Brooks had 134 yards rushing on 31 carries and scored Auburn's first touchdown. Thomas fired a 23-yard pass to Byron Franklin for the second score in the third quarter.

Brooks was shooting for his third straight 200-yard rushing effort, which would have been a Southeastern Conference record. But after getting 53 yards in the first quarter, Tech seemed to key on him and contained him.

Tech tied the score at 7 all on a 67-yard drive in the second quarter. Westbrook got the touchdown from two years out.

Auburn opened the game with an 80-yard march for a touchdown that made it look as if Brooks & Co. was on its way to a rout.

With Brooks carrying nine times for 41 yards and Thomas picking up 36 on two, Auburn kept it on the ground all 80 yards for the score, which Brooks punched over from the two. Del Greco's kick made it 7 0.

But Tech shut the door on Auburn for the rest of the half, letting the Tigers get no closer than the Yellow Jacket 48.

The Tech drive which tied it 7-7 was highlighted by bursts of 16 yards by Ronny Cone and 17 yards by Matt Bryant as well as Peeples' completions to Bill Rogers for nine yards and Marlon Hegges for 13, both getting key first downs.

Westbrook, a junior not even listed on the depth chart, got the score from the two. Johnny Smith's kick made it 7-7.

Auburn jumped back in front 14-7 in the third quarter as Thomas capped a 71-yard drive with his touchdown strike to Franklin.

The Tech score which tied it at 14 all came when Wally Cawthon recovered Thomas' fumble at the Auburn 21 and a penalty put Tech in business at the Auburn nine.

Peeples' flip-back touchdown from Henderson looked like it might hold up until Luke came through with his late interception.

Mississippi St.....34
Miami (F).....31

MIAMI (AP) — Dana Moore booted his second field goal of the game, a 37-yarder with 12:21 remaining, and the Mississippi State defense withstood 18th-ranked Miami's 21-point explosion in the third quarter as the Bulldogs held on for a 34-31 college football upset Saturday.

Moore's field goal snapped a 31-31 tie after the Hurricanes had rallied from a 24-10 halftime deficit with three third-period touchdowns.

Miami lost an opportunity to salvage a tie when placekicker Jeff Davis missed a 21-yard field goal attempt with 4:21 to play.

The victory gave Mississippi State a 5-2 record, while Miami, which lost to No.5 Notre Dame a week ago, fell to 4-2.

Miami took the opening kickoff and marched 77 yards in 10 plays to take a 7-0 lead on Smokey Roan's 18-yard sprint through the right side of the Bulldogs' defense.

Mississippi State countered with a 15-play 78-yard touchdown drive on its first offensive possession. Halfback Michael Haddix was the workhorse in the march, carrying eight times for 50 yards, and fullback Donald Ray King covered the final yard for the touchdown with 4:49 to go in the first quarter.

The Bulldogs took command of the game on two Miami turnovers later in the first quarter.

Mississippi State linebacker Johnie Cooks intercepted a Jim Kelly pass and ran 20 yards for the Bulldogs' second touchdown. Haddix ran 2 yards for a touchdown early in the second quarter as Mississippi State moved out to a 21-7 lead.

The teams exchanged field goals in the final five minutes of the first half.

Miami scored two touchdowns in a 3:14 span to gain a 24-24 tie. Fred Collins ran 2 yards for a Mississippi State touchdown which gave the Bulldogs a 31-24 advantage, but Miami's Mark Rush returned the ensuing kickoff 29 yards for a touchdown to knot the game at 31.

Florida.....15

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Brian Clark kicked five field goals Saturday as the football-hogging Florida Gators defeated the hapless Mississippi Rebels 15-3 in a Southeastern Conference game.

Clark, a 6-foot-2 junior, kicked field goals of 19, 43, 27, 38 and 47 yards as the Gators improved their record to 4-1, including 2-1 in the SEC.

His 38-yarder with 3:49 left in the game clinched the victory and his 47-yarder with 1:09 left after an interception by defensive back Tim Groves set a Florida school record.

Mississippi countered only with Todd Gatlin's 49-yard field goal in the first quarter and the Rebels fell to 1-6, 0-2 in the conference.

Freshman quarterback Wayne Peace, rushing effectively himself, used the running of Doug Kellom and James Jones to control the ball while the Gator defense quelled the high-powered Mississippi offense.

Kellom finished with 93 yards on 20 carries while Jones rushed 16 times for 61 yards.

Ohio St.....27
Indiana 17

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tailback Calvin Murray's best day as a college football player — 35 rushes for 224 yards — led ninth-ranked Ohio State to a 27-17 victory over Indiana in Big Ten Conference play Saturday.

Murray, a senior from Woodbine, N.J., scored on runs of 3 and 37 yards, helping the Buckeyes remain undefeated in the conference. Ohio State is 5-1 overall and 3-0 in the Big Ten.

Indiana, 4-2 overall and 1-2 in the conference, lost for the 17th straight time to Ohio State before a crowd of 87,957, the 75th straight sellout at Ohio Stadium.

Murray, whose previous personal highs were 19 carries and 135 yards for a single game, had 149 yards by halftime. The Buckeyes led 17-10 at that point.

Mike Harkrader, Indiana's all-time rushing champion, became the seventh player in Big Ten history to surpass 3,000 career yards. Harkrader, playing before his seriously ill father, Jerry Harkrader, ran 18 times for 117 yards.

Ohio State kicker Vlade Janakievski ran his field goal streak to 12 in a row over the last two seasons before missing from 39 yards early in the third quarter. The senior specialist converted from 20 and 27 yards earlier in the game.

Iowa.....25
Northwestern.....3

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Phil Suess threw two touchdown passes Saturday, including one to Phil Blatcher, who rushed for 148 yards, to lead Iowa to a 25-3 homecoming victory over injury-riddled Northwestern.

The win improved Iowa's record to 2-4, snapped a four-game losing streak and was the first homecoming victory for the Hawkeyes since 1974, when they beat Northwestern 35-10.

Iowa is now 2-1 in the league while Northwestern dropped to 0-7 overall and 0-5 in the conference.

Va. Tech Bombs Virginia, 30-0

From Wire Reports

BLACKSBURG, Va. — "Obviously, it was probably the poorest we've played in the 4½ years I've been here," disappointed Virginia Coach Dick Bestwick said Saturday of the Cavaliers' 30-0 drubbing at the hands of Virginia Tech.

"They ran the ball right at us and we couldn't stop them, and if you can't stop people in this game and they can control the football like they did, you're going to have an outcome like this."

The loss dropped the Cavaliers to 2-4 and boosted the Hokies' record to 6-1.

Bestwick said the absence of All-American Stu Anderson hurt the Cavaliers.

"But that had nothing to do with the outcome of the game," he said.

"Turning the wrong way — I wouldn't even guess how many times that happened, a half a dozen times maybe. When you have that happen, there is no way you're going to get any continuity, even if you're doing other things well."

Virginia Tech Coach Bill Dooley said his team put together "a solid performance offensively and defensively.

"I did not think we would win by this kind of margin," Dooley said.

"But I did feel before the game that we would be able to move the football on Virginia. And our defense has been consistent throughout the season."

Dooley praised tailback Cyrus Lawrence, who scored two second half touchdowns for Virginia Tech, as well as Johnnie Edmonds and quarterback Steve Casey.

"I know this was a disappointing loss for the Virginia team," Dooley added.

"Let me say that Virginia is a good football team. They had some players today who were hurting and that may have made some difference."

It was Tech's first shutout since last year's 6-0 homecoming win over Richmond and the Hokies' largest victory margin since 1960 in a 40-0 win over Virginia.

Virginia slogged through a rainy afternoon and ventured into Tech territory three times, twice in the final quarter.

Lawrence, a sophomore tailback, scored on two fourth-quarter runs of 5 and 1 yards. Tech's other scores came on a 5-yard pass from Steve Casey to Rob Purdham, a 26-yard jaunt by Johnnie Edmonds and Dennis Laury's 27-yard field goal.

The Cavaliers, 2-4 after losing to Tech for the first time in four years, never threatened to score. They could get no further than the Tech 42 until late in the game.

The Gobblers began dominating the contest on the first series as they used 14 plays and more than six minutes to set up Laury's field goal.

In the first half, Tech ran off 46 plays to only 22 for Virginia to take a 17-0 halftime lead.

After Casey's touchdown pass to Purdham with 6:20 remaining in the second quarter, the Gobblers exploded to score in three plays the next time they got the ball for the intermission advantage.

Reserve quarterback Jeff Bolton passed 41 yards to Mike Giacolone to move the ball to the Cavalier 26 and Edmonds scored on the next play.

Tech's defense, led by Robert Brown and the entire secondary, forced Virginia into three interceptions, the last one by defensive tackle Padro Phillips, on the second play following Lawrence's 5-yard touchdown run with 10:29 remaining in the game.

Lawrence shared the previous record of 34 carries with Terry Smoot and Kenny Lewis.

Virginia halfback Tommy Vigorito rushed nine times for 56 yards, moving him into second place on the all-time Cavalier rushing list.

Tech opened its scoring in the game at 8:44 with a Dennis Laury field goal after a 15-play, 63-yard drive from the opening kickoff. It was the only score in the first quarter.

Tech quarterback Steve Casey hit end Rob Purdham on a five-yard pass play at 6:20 in the second quarter to end a 52-yard, 10-play scoring drive.

About two minutes later, tailback Johnnie Edmonds took the ball from reserve quarterback Jeff Bolton and ran 26 yards for a touchdown. That capped a 67-yard drive in only three plays.

Laury failed on only one point-after attempt.

Virginia's Tommy Vigorito had nine carries for 56 yards to lead the Cavalier ground game.

Lawrence led Tech's rushing with 194 yards on 40 carries, and Casey completed 6 of 11 passes for 74 yards.

Navy 24
Villanova.....15

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Fred Reitzel passed for one touchdown and ran for another, and Steve Fehr kicked a school-record 49-yard field goal, to lead Navy to a 24-15 college football victory over Villanova Saturday.

The Middies led 24-0 at halftime but were held in check in the second half as the Wildcats rallied with scoring drives of 97 and 72 yards against the defense which began the game ranked No. 1 statistically in the nation.

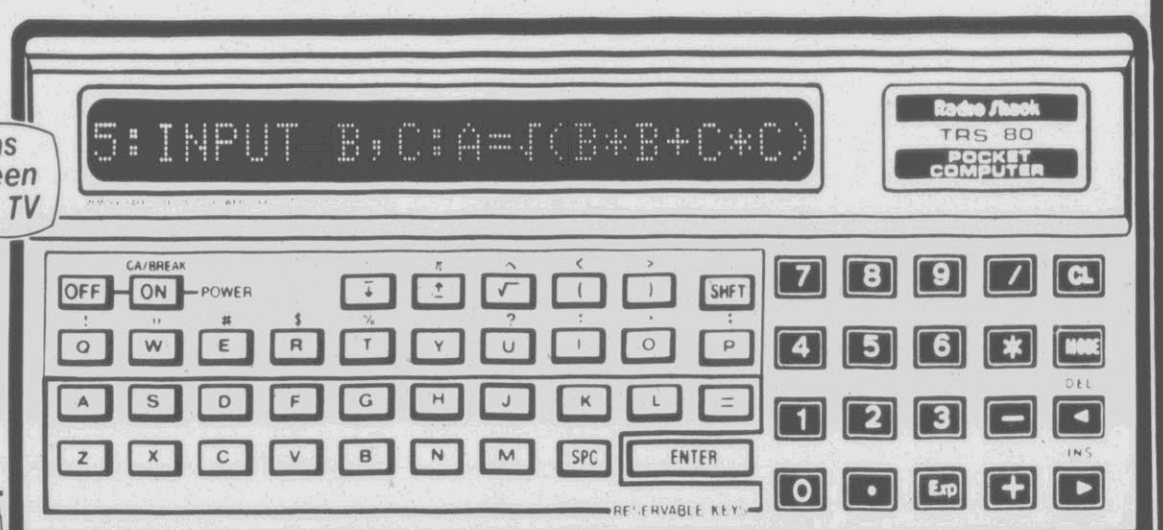

Navy, now 4-2, took advantage in the second quarter of a partially blocked Villanova punt that traveled just 19 yards to the Wildcat 31. Five plays later, Greg Papajohn took a Reitzel pass at the 2 and walked into the end zone.

On their next possession, Reitzel moved the Middies 58 yards in seven plays, rolling in untouched from 4 yards out for the score. He finished with 10 completions in 22 attempts for 102 yards.

William & Mary....21
Rutgers 18

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tom Franco scored from the 12-yard line in the third quarter, and William and Mary held on to defeat heavily favored Rutgers 21-18 Saturday in college football action.

William and Mary, now 2-5, trailed the Scarlet Knights 10-6 at the half but rallied in the second half behind Franco and quarterback Chris Garrity.

After a 50-yard kick return by Keith Best allowed William and Mary to place the ball in play at midfield, the Indians moved the ball to Rutgers' 39-yard line. On first down, Garrity hit wide receiver Ed Schiefelbein with a touchdown strike to give the Indians a 12-10 lead.

Garrity then again hit Schiefelbein on a two-point conversion play.

Richmond 17

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Dan Fritz' 62-yard pass to Louis Rolan set up Floyd Allen's winning 3-yard touchdown run with 48 seconds left as Virginia Military's Keydets edged Richmond's Spiders 22-17 Saturday in college football.

Richmond drove to the VMI 7 with 13 seconds remaining, but three Steve Krainock passes fell incomplete in the end zone with Keydet cornerback Mike Eden knocking down the final attempt on the last play of the game.

Oklahoma.....35
Kansas State.....21

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Freshman running back George "Buster" Rhymes returned the opening kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown and quarterback J.C. Watts rushed for three touchdowns Saturday, sparking 18th-ranked Oklahoma to a 35-21 Big Eight Conference triumph over Kansas State.

Gamecocks Rout Cincy, 49-7

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Quarterback Garry Harper scored two touchdowns and his reliever, Gordon Beckman, ran 47 yards for another to take 15th-ranked South Carolina to a 49-7 rout over winless Cincinnati Saturday.

The Gamecocks were awesome in their attack, piling up 469 total offensive yards, while holding the Bearcats to 254 total yardage.

Nearly everyone on the Gamecock squad got in on the scoring, all of which came in the first half.

The victory put South Carolina at 6-1 for the year and dropped Cincinnati to an 0-6 mark. Running back George Rogers, the nation's third leading rusher going into the game, rolled for 128 yards on 22 carries to pass the 1,000-yard season mark for his third straight year.

Michigan 37
Minnesota.....14

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Butch Woolfolk ran for two first-half touchdowns and John Wangler fired two scoring passes to Anthony Carter Saturday to help Michigan to a 37-14 Big 10 triumph over Minnesota.

The one-sided victory before a near-sellout homecoming crowd of 56,297 marked the Wolverines' third straight triumph and improved their record to 3-0 in the league and 4-2 overall.

Minnesota, 1-2 and 2-4, has lost 12 of the last 13 annual battles for the Little Brown Jug.

Missouri 45
Colorado.....7

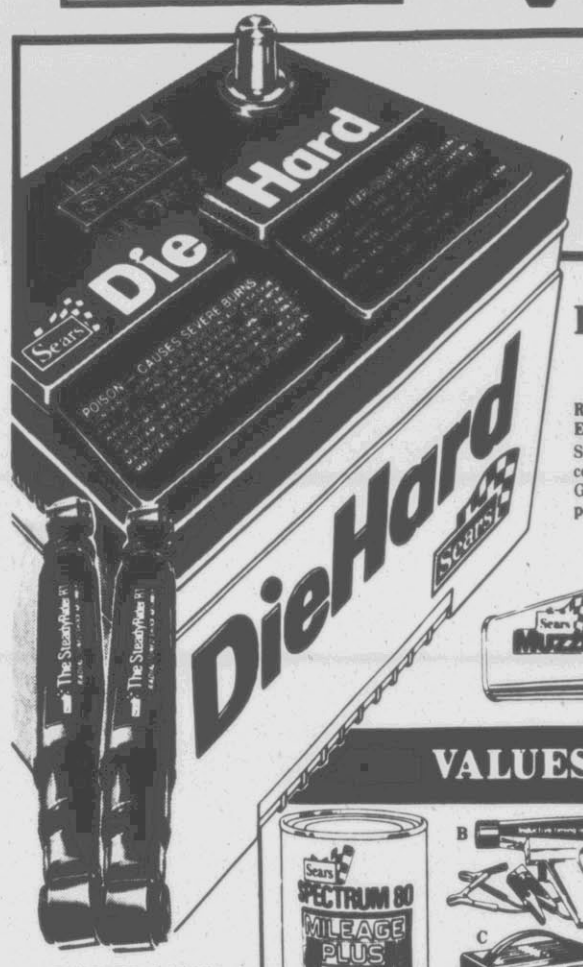

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Terry Hill scored three touchdowns Saturday and running mate James Wilder ran for 106 yards, including a 32-yard scoring dash, to lead the 17th-ranked Missouri Tigers to a 45-7 drubbing of the winless Colorado Buffaloes.

On The Move

East Carolina's Theo Sutton (36) moves around the block of teammate Will Saunders for yardage Saturday against Western Carolina. Sutton had his best game of the year, gaining 115 yards on 20 carries as the Pirates gained a 24-14 victory over the Catamounts. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

FG Lifts Huskies By Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Chuck Nelson kicked a 25-yard field goal as time ran out to give the Washington Huskies a 27-24 Pacific-10 football victory over No.20 Stanford Saturday.

The Huskies drove 72 yards after Stanford's Ken Naber tied the score with 1:27 remaining by kicking a 26-yard field goal. Nelson's game-winning kick came after pass receiver Anthony Allen went out of bounds at the Stanford 8 with two seconds remaining.

The Huskies beat the Cardinals at their own game, passing, in scoring the victory, which gave them a 2-1 conference record and a definite edge among the five Pac-10 teams eligible for the Rose Bowl.

Quarterback Tom Flick threw touchdown passes of 41 and 28 yards to Aaron Williams in the first period, and Flick completed six passes in the game's final drive. On the winning drive, Flick had a 21-yard completion to Williams and a 24-yarder to Ron Blacken.

Stanford, which came out of the regionally televised game with a 1-2 conference record, got two touchdown passes from John Elway, who also ran for a touchdown.

Stanford trailed 21-7 early in the second quarter after Kyle Stevens made a 2-yard touchdown run that concluded an 80-yard drive, and the Huskies made it 24-7 later in the period on a 35-yard field goal by Nelson. Elway threw touchdown passes of 42 yards to Darrin Nelson and 13 yards to Vincent White as the Cards roared back.

Washington's record for all games is 5-1. Stanford is 4-3.

USC Tied. . .

"The explanation the offi7al ge me was that the player crossed the goal line but the ball didn't," Brooks said.

"It was just one of those calls that controversy surrounds," Robinson said. "I don't think he was in the end zone."

Southern Cal took a 7-0 lead with 10:31 left in the first half when wide receiver Jeff Simmons made a controversial diving catch of a 38-yard pass from Gordon Adams deep in the end zone.

Most in the capacity crowd of 42,733 thought Simmons was out of the end zone but officials ruled the touchdown good.

Oregon, which lost to Cal 31-6 last week and hadn't beaten Southern Cal since 1971, just missed a touchdown with two minutes left in the half when the Trojans recovered tailback Reggie Brown's fumble on the Southern Cal 1.

The Ducks tied the score with 1:24 left in the third period on a 3-yard run up the middle by fullback Terrance Jones.

Sophomore quarterback Kevin Lusk, who started the game but shared duties with ailing Reggie Ogburn, connected with Greg Moser on a 66-yard pass play to the Southern Cal 9 to set up the score.

Both teams had minor scoring threats in the final quarter.

Southern Cal's drive was stopped on the Oregon 32 when Allen was belted for no gain on a fourth-and-one situation.

Oregon had the last scoring opportunity, moving to the Trojan 42-yard line before Lonnie Lott intercepted an Ogburn pass with less than a minute to go.

The Pirates intercepted three passes, two by Clint Harris, who returned them 57 yards.

"Our secondary played good," Emory said. "Had we lost a cornerback today, we would have had no one else to put in. (Chuck) Bishop was in the infirmary today (strep throat). (James) Freer and (Willie) Holley did a fine job and Harris is coming."

Emory said he was surprised that Western didn't throw more. "We were trying to play them with seven or eight defenders and make them run. We dropped both ends off."

For the second straight game, the Pirates also played in a driving rainstorm. Twice during the conflict, heavy rains swept the field. "We're good mudders," Emory added. "But I just can't believe this weather."

East Carolina appeared headed for pay dirt on its first possession, moving from the Western 46 after a 46 yard kickoff return by Collins. But Mike Hawkins fumbled on the second play, at the WC 35.

The Pirates, who briefly penetrated the midfield stripe midway the first period, finally got a scoring drive started at the 5:57 mark. Taking over after a Smokey Norris interception at the ECU 47, the Pirates used ten plays to make it to the end zone. The longest run on the drive was a 17-yarder up the middle by Collins. Earlier, Nelson had kept it around the left side for 13 from the 38 to the 25. Collins' run moved it from the 2 to the 6. After another yard by Collins, Sutton barrelled through the middle for the final five with 1:26 showing in the first period.

It took only 52 seconds, however, for Western to tie it up. They took over the ball on their own eight after the kickoff, and the first play netted three yards.

James then got the ball on a quick pitch, and he cut around the right side, quickly sprinting past the Pirate defenders to go 89 yards for the Western touchdown that tied it at 7-7 with 34 seconds left in the quarter.

After Collins' near-touchdown on the "phantom" whistle, the Pirates fumbled it away at their own 49. Mixon hit tight end Eddie McGill for a quick 13 yards to move it to the 26. The drive finally petered out at the 17, where Clifton Williams made a stop on James with fourth and inches to go.

The Pirates drove back to the Western 32 before losing it on downs, but they forced a punt and got it back on their own 22.

Nelson hit Hawkins for 17 yards on second down from the 24 and then Collins broke away for 21 to the 38. Nelson picked up good yardage on the second play after that before fumbling, with the Pirates managing to retain possession at the 18. Collins again ripped off 15 to the three, and Collins went over on third down from the one with 37 seconds left in the half for a 14-7 lead.

The Pirates got a field goal out of their first possession of the second half. They drove from their own 34 to the Western 17, helped along by a 32-yard rip on first down by Sutton. But the drive fell short of a first down, and Lamm kicked a 34-yard field goal upping the lead to 17-7 with 9:19 to go in the period.

Western got a break when Holly fumbled a punt and the Catamounts recovered at the ECU 20. They scored in five plays, with Williams going over left tackle for the final yard with 3:34 left in the quarter. That cut it to 17-14.

Early in the final period, the Pirates drove for the killing score. Taking over on their 31, the Bucs got a first down when Nelson picked up nine yards on third and three. Nelson then hit Hawkins for eight yards and a first down on third and six. Sutton added 13 yards, while Nelson got 14 more on big plays that moved it to the eight of the Catamounts. After Nelson skirted the right side for six, Bynum got the final two yards for his first collegiate score. With 6:23 left, that ran it to 24-14.

Western tried to come back, moving from the 20 to the ECU 15 before a fumble turned it over. Just two plays before the misplay, the Pirates had seemingly knocked the ball loose from Mixon, but the officials ruled he had started his forward motion to pass. Biggest plays on the drive were a 20-yard pass to Harp and an 18-yarder to McGill, both by Mixon.

On the fumble play, Western's Mark Womack suffered a neck injury and was removed from the field on a stretcher and carried to Pitt Memorial Hospital for a check-up. Preliminary findings from the field attendants said that his injury appeared to be only a sprain, but the trip to the hospital was done for safety purposes.

Western fell to 2-5 with the loss.

East Carolina now travels to meet nationally ranked North Carolina in Chapel Hill next Saturday, seeking to upset the Tar Heels.

Perry Without Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees reportedly have decided not to offer a contract to veteran right-hander Gaylord Perry, who was acquired in mid-August from the Texas Rangers.

The 42-year-old Perry, who has won Cy Young Award in both the American and National leagues, is 11 victories short of 300 lifetime victories. He has a career record of 289-230 with Cleveland, San Francisco, San Diego, Texas and the Yankees.

His record was 10-13 in 34 games this year.

Two New York newspapers, the Post and Newsday, reported Saturday that Perry would not be back with the Yankees. He would be free to make his own deal with another club.

Brett Returns, Helps Kansas City Get Back In World Series

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — It was a great relief, George Brett said, just to be able to play, but when it came his turn in the 10th inning, all he could do was wait and walk.

Make no mistake, Brett let it be known from the start that he was out to play. His solo home run in the first inning started the Kansas City Royals to their first victory in their first World Series. It helped take the pressure off, and it helped keep the Royals franchise from virtual elimination in its first World Series in 12 years of existence.

The Royals had lost the first and second games of the Series in Philadelphia. On Friday night, they desperately needed a victory. No team ever has recovered to win a best-of-seven Series after falling behind 3-0.

When the Royals came to their sternest test, however, it was lumbering Willie Aikens who held the bat in his hand. Aikens, as he has so many times this year for the Royals, delivered a run-scoring single in the 10th inning that gave Kansas City a 4-3 victory in Game Three Friday night.

"It felt good just to be able to play," Brett said, "and that home run helped me relax."

Less than five hours before he strode to the plate in the first inning, Brett was in a hospital bed, recovering from minor surgery to relieve the pain from his inflamed hemorrhoids.

"The pain is all behind me, thanks to two great doctors in Kansas City," Brett quipped.

Brett, who had to leave the second game of the Series in the sixth inning because of the painful swelling, had a chance to score the winning run in the eighth inning when he doubled and Aikens came to the plate.

"The score was tied 3-3, I was on second and there were two outs," Brett said. "I just told Willie to hit the ball hard somewhere."

Instead, Phillies right-hander Dick Ruthven struck out Aikens, and the big first baseman had to wait another turn. It came in the 10th.

Phils left-hander Tug McGraw had come in to pitch the 10th, and U.L. Washington led off with a single. McGraw then walked Willie Wilson, who had gone hitless in four previous at-bats. Frank White, the next hitter, took a called strike, then squared away to bunt. He let the pitch go by him for another strike, but Washington already had commited himself to go to third. White was out trying to steal third by a country mile.

"In a situation like that, the guy on second always is trying to get a jump," Royals Manager Jim Frey said. "It was his eagerness to get to third. That's a play some teams put on; they throw a slow pitch and hope that if the batter misses, they can trap the runner off base. You still have to blame the runner, though."

White struck out for the second out of the inning, and that left Wilson alone on first.

Frey then had a decision to make. If Wilson steals second, McGraw takes the bat out of Brett's hands by walking him. That would bring up Aikens.

Frey delegated the decision to Wilson. He did not order him to steal, but neither did he order him to stay put.

"I have a 'no steal' sign that I have used, but it wasn't on," Frey said. "Of course, I like to have George hit, but Willie has been a big RBI man for us. It's still easier for Willie to hit a single than it is for George to hit a double."

Wilson stole the base easily, Brett walked, and Aikens stepped to the plate. He had 98 RBI during the season and would have been the best man to to hit in that situation, had he not been playing on the same team with Brett and had he not been a left-handed swinger facing a lefty pitcher.

The first pitch was high, a ball. Aikens took a mighty cut at the second pitch and missed.

"I do have a tendency to overswing sometimes," Aikens said.

Aikens sent the next pitch toward the gap in left-center, and Phils center field Garry Maddox set out in pursuit. Maddox, a Golden Glover with exceptional range, could not get to the ball, and it bounced against the fence on one hop, easily scoring Wilson with the winning run.

"I just told myself to calm down, hit the ball," Aikens said. "I wanted to concentrate enough to get a basehit, to drive in a run.

Aikens said he hit a fastball on the outside part of the plate.

"I saw the ball going toward the gap, and I know Maddox plays a shallow center field," Aikens said. "I saw he was in, and after the ball up in the air, I knew he couldn't catch it."

The Phillies, who tied a World Series record by stranding 15 runners in an extra inning game, tied the score 3-3 in the eighth inning on a run-scoring single by Pete Rose, his first hit in 11 at-bats in the Series. Larry Bowa singled for the third time in the game, stole second and Royal reliever Renie Martin walked Lonnie Smith. Rose then looped a singld into right field that scored Bowa.

"Two and one is still a comfortable position," Rose said. "Let me ask you? Which clubhouse would you rather be in, the 2-1 clubhouse or the 1-2 clubhouse? And we still have two more games at home, if worse comes to worse.

"Anyway, the more games we play, the more money there is for everybody."

After Brett gave the Royals a 1-0 first-inning lead with his homer, Philly struck right back, tying it 1-1 in the second on a bizarre play that seemed to befuddle Royal right-hander Rich Gale.

With one out, Trillo got the Phils started with a single that bounced off Gale's foot. Bowa followed with a single, and Gale walked Bob Boone to load the bases. Smith then hit a shot toward Gale. Gale flagged it down, hesitated and, with plenty of time to go to the plate, threw instead to first, allowing Trillo to score.

"That was just a case of a young guy getting a little flustered," Frey said. "A better fielder or more experienced player might have thrown home, but frankly I was glad to get the out."

The Royals forged back in the lead in the fourth when Aikens hit a one-out triple, his first in the major leagues, and scored on a single by Hal McRae.

Again, however, the Phils got it back in the next inning when Mike Schmidt, who broke out of his batting slump with two hits in Game Two, led off with a home run, his first in 19 postseason games. That spelled the beginning of the end for Gale, who lasted only a third of an inning more.

The Royals scored a seventh-inning run on a homer by Amos Otis, his second of the Series, but those never-say-die Phillies, who have trailed at one time or another in all five playoff games and the three Series games, sent the contest into extra innings with Rose's hit in the eighth.

Dan Quisenberry came on after Rose's hit and escaped trouble after allowing leadoff singles in both the ninth and 10th innings. Bob Boone led off the 10th with a single, and pinch hitter Greg Gross sacrificed him to second.

Quisenberry walked Rose intentionally, and Schmidt, the hero of Game Two, lined into an unassisted, inning-ending double play to Frank White at second.

The Royals will start Dennis Leonard, the loser in the first game, against Phils right-hander Larry Christenson, who pitched three games in September after being sidelined for nearly a month with a severe groin injury.

"I think I'd still rather be in their shoes," Brett said, "up two games to one. But I'm not dissatisfied. Winning in the 10th inning like we did could put momentum on our side. We didn't play well in Philadelphia. We did tonight."

Winning Whack

Willie Aikens of the Kansas City Royals lashes a single into left-center to score teammate Willie Wilson from second base with the winning run in the tenth inning of Friday's World Series game in Kansas City. Wolves Nip Badgers

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Fullback Dave Mohapp plunged for a touchdown and Mark Doran added a third-quarter field goal Saturday as Wisconsin turned back a Michigan State comeback try and edged their Big Ten rival 17-7.

Wisconsin iced the triumph late in the game when Michigan State's Tom Morris fumbled a punt and the Badgers recovered it in the end zone for a touchdown.

Michigan State managed a third-quarter scoring pass from quarterback John Leister to flanker Otis Grant. But the Spartans, unable to mount a ground attack all day against a rugged Badger defense, were prevented from putting together consistent offensive drives.

Purdue.....45
Illinois.....20

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) -Mark Herrmann, on the verge of becoming the top passer in the history of major college football, threw four touchdown passes Saturday to lead Purdue to a 45-20 victory over Illinois.

Illinois quarterback Dave Wilson went to the air for three touchdowns and surpassed Herrmann's single game Big Ten passing mark with 425 yards. Herrmann set it earlier in the game with 371 yard.

From the beginning, it was an aerial battle before a crowd of 62,121, but Illinois got started too late and could not overcome Purdue's 24-point lead.

EC V'ball Team Falls In Finals

UNC-Charlotte defeated East Carolina, 15-4, 15-0, Saturday afternoon to win the East Carolina Volleyball Invitational Tournament.

The Pirates, now 11-20 on the season, defeated Virginia Tech, 15-10, 15-10, and High Point, 9-15, 15-8, 15-12, to advance into the finals.

East Tennessee State wound up third while Winthrop defeated Wake Forest, 6-15, 15-2, 15-8, in the consolation finals.

The Pirates take to the road Oct. 24 and 25 when they travel to Maryland for the Maryland Invitational Tournament.

Lakers Win 2nd Without Jabbar

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

For one game in last spring's playoffs, or for two games this week, the Los Angeles Lakers have proven they can get by without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

"But when you talk about the long haul, we know that the Man has to be here," said Lakers Coach Paul Westhead.

Westhead expects to have Abdul-Jabbar, who suffered an eye injury, back in the Laker lineup on Sunday. But in the meantime, the Lakers won their second game without him Friday night, handing the tough Phoenix Suns their first loss of the National Basketball Association season 116-109 and raising their own record to 4-0.

"Our guys have a sense of respect for Kareem and they want to win it for him when he's not there," Westhead said of the all-star center. "But the guys have to work too hard with Kareem on the bench. They want him back."

Los Angeles ran off 10 straight points midway through the final quarter to take a 99-92 lead and never trailed after that. Jamaal Wilkes led the Lakers with 34 points, Norm Nixon had 29 and Magic Johnson 24.

Westhead said that despite the loss of Abdul-Jabbar this week, his team did not lose confidence. The reason was the way the Lakers responded to the absence of Abdul-Jabbar by beating Philadelphia in the sixth and final game of the championship series in May.

"They know they can play," said Westhead. "That sixth game last season will be with them forever. I think they always know they can go out and win a game even without Kareem."

"I think we proved to ourselves, as well as a lot of other people, that this is a team," echoed Wilkes.

They certainly proved it to Phoenix Coach John MacLeod.

"Without Kareem in there, they are a much quicker team," he said. "They are tough with Kareem, and they are tough without him. There really is not much of a difference."

Nets 114, Bullets 112

Mike Gminski tapped in a missed shot by Mike O'Koren with nine seconds to play as the Nets outscored Washington 10-2 in the final 2:31 to win.

Baskets by Cliff Robinson, Mike Newlin, Foots Walker and Gminski put New Jersey ahead 112-110 with 46 seconds remaining and Elvin Hayes tied it for Washington with 34 seconds left before Gminski, the rookie center from Duke who scored 14 points, got the winning basket.

Hawks 113, Knicks 101

Eddie Johnson scored 26 points as Atlanta raised its record to 3-0 and handed New York its first defeat. The Hawks led from the start but needed a 12-3 burst midway through the fourth quarter to put the game away.

Kings 103, Mavericks 91

Kansas City, led by Scott Wedman and Otis Birdsong, raced to a 64-37 lead late in first half and coasted past the expansion Mavericks. Wedman finished with 25 points and Birdsong 21 to offset a career-high 28 points by Dallas guard Geoff Huston.

Bulls 98, Cavaliers 79

Chicago's defense limited Cleveland to 14-for-39 shooting in the second half as the Bulls pulled away to win. Chicago went ahead to stay 51-50 in the third quarter on a driving layup by Reggie Theus, who led all scorers with 19 points, and outscored Cleveland 34-13.

Nuggets 129, Clippers 116

Denver closed out the first quarter with a 24-2 spurt to lead 34-19, stretched the advantage to 61-42 at halftime and was never threatened by San Diego, which got 35 points from rookie forward Michael Brooks. David Thompson scored 31 points and Dan Issel 30 for the Nuggets.

Rockets 102, Blazers 99

The Rockets went ahead 95-89 with 10 straight points midway through the fourth quarter and held on to beat Portland. Moses Malone had 33 points and 14 rebounds for Houston.

Pirates Win Four

East Carolina won its first four matches Friday to move into the championship bracket in its own ECU Invitational volleyball tournament.

The Pirates, now 9-19 overall and 1-6 in NCAIAW play, defeated East Tennessee State, 15-11, 15-13, Virginia, 15-2, 15-3, Winthrop, 11-15, 15-6, 15-8, and Wake Forest, 15-3, 15-10, to advance into Saturday's championship bracket.

Appalachian State, which won three of its four matches Friday, was also to be in the championship pool.

Winthrop ended the first day of play at 3-1 also, while Wake Forest, UNC-Charlotte, Virginia Tech and High Point finished at 2-2. East Tennessee and Virginia Commonwealth were at 1-3 while Virginia finished 0-4.

"We had lapses now and then," ECU assistant coach Lynn Davidson said about the Pirates' match with Winthrop, "but we pulled together in the third game.

"I told them 'You've got to go to the floor for me,' and they did it and I loved it."

Earlier Friday, the Pirates defeated ASU, 15-13, 15-12, 12-15, 15-7, in a match unrelated to the tournament.

Edwards Brothers Lead Disney Play

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The Edwards brothers, Danny and Dave, combined for a better-ball, 7-under-par 65 and retained a 1-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $350,000 Walt Disney World National Team Golf Championship.

"We weren't quite as sharp as we were the first two days; kind of spotty," said Danny, 29, a veteran of six years of PGA Tour activity.

"But you're just not going to have four days when you shoot lights out. Let's just hope this was our bad round and we'll play good tomorrow."

"I think it may have been partly psychological," said Dave, 24, who is completing two years on the Tour with this season-ending event. 'We thought all week that the Palm course would be the toughest, and maybe that worked against us."

The leaders all the way, the Edwards had scores of 60 on the Buena Vista course and 63 on Magnolia before taking their 65 at the Palm. The unique format called for one round on each of the three courses before the final round Sunday at Magnolia.

Their 188 total was 28-under-par and a single stroke off the tournament record.

Rookies Doug Campbell and Mike Gove, 2 strokes back after 36 holes, moved to within a single shot of the top spot at 189 after a 64 at Magnolia.

Gary Koch and Curtis Strange birdied eight of their last nine holes for a 60 at Palm and moved into third at 191, three strokes off the pace.

Jim Dent and Artie McNickle were next at 192 after a 63 at Magnolia.

Defending champions George Burns and Ben Crenshaw headed a large group at 193 after shooting a 64 at Buena Vista.

They were tied with Mac McLendon and Leonard Thompson, Lon Hinkle and Craig Stadler, Dan Halldorson and Dana Quigley, Dave Barr and Ed Fiori and Barry Harwell and Mike Harmon.

McLendon-Thompson shot 65 at Buena Vista, Hinkle-Stadler 63 at Magnolia, Halldorson-Quigley 66 at Palm, Harmon-Harwell 66 at Palm, and Barr-Fiori 64 at Buena Vista.

Spinks Rallies, KO's 'Yaqui' In Seventh Round

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Michael Spinks came from behind Saturday to put away veteran Alvaro "Yaqui" Lopez in the seventh round of a free-for-all light-heavyweight brawl.

Spinks, 24, of St. Louis, extended his streak to 15 victories by scoring his 11th knockout with powerful blows to Lopez's head 47 seconds into the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round fight.

Spinks said his victory earned him a shot at Eddie Mustafa Muhammad's World Boxing Association title.

"I want it all. I think I can do it now," said Spinks, the younger brother of former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks.

Spinks rallied in the sixth round after Lopez dominated the earlier rounds with his patented aggressiveness and a powerful left that kept Spinks on the defensive.

Lopez, 28, of Stockton, Calif., greeted each of Spinks' attacks with pounding lefts that sometimes sent Spinks retreating to the ropes.

But in the seventh round, Spinks, who had held back his right, began using combinations. As Lopez stood against the ropes, Spinks' left put him down for the first time.

Seconds later, after Lopez retreated to the other side of the ring, a vicious Spinks flurry capped by a right to the jaw put Lopez down for the second time. Referee Vincent Rainone stopped the fight.

"You hit me good with a left and a right, and boom," Lopez told Spinks later, shaking his head.

Spinks, who said he's been stale since his last fight in August when he knocked out European contender David Conteh, said his opponent was "very tough."

Spinks said he found it hard to get excited about the Lopez fight until the sixth round.

"When he hit me on my right side," Spinks said, "I turned on the Spinks jinx."

Childress Paces Late Qualifying

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Richard Childress led the pack Friday to gain the 21st starting position for Sunday's American 500 at the North Carolina Speedway.

Childress's turned in a speed of 138.556 mph around the 1.017-mile track as a 36-car field was completed for the $167,165 NASCAR chase.

Dave Marcis has the 22nd spot after standing on his Thursday time. Marcis lost an engine in his Caprice during a practice run, triggering one of three crashes during the day.

Southern 500 champion Terry Labonte, following a half-lap behind, got into the oil slick left by Marcis's auto and spun into the first-turn railing.

"We broke a spindle and bent the ball joints," Labonte said with a sigh. "It doesn't look too bad. The track already looks slick and I didn't see the oil. As Ray Melton (the track's public address announcer) says, 'I just kissed the wall gently.'

"We have a lot of practice time in front of us, that's for sure. We plan to do a lot of running Saturday morning to make sure the car is indeed OK."

Marcis, winner of the Charlotte 300 sportsman race two weeks ago, said, "No warning. It just went. I've got the same engine in the car now I used at Martinsville (in Sept. 28's Old Dominion 500). Hopefully, it's got 500 more miles in it."

Junior Miller and Bub Strickler also crashed in the first and second turn area. Miller made the field, but Strickler didn't.

Here is a list of qualifiers for Sunday's American 500 to be held at North Carolina Motor Speedway. Included are drivers, types of cars and qualifying speeds for Thursday and Friday.

1. Donnie Allison, Chevrolet, 142.648 mph
2. Cale Yarborough, Cherolet, 142.643
3. Darrell Waltrip, Chevrolet, 142 265
4. Neil Bonnett, Mercury, 141.265

The Greenville Tennis Club is holding its annual awards banquet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. The dinner is being catered by Parker's Barbecue and will cost $1 for club members and $3 for non-members. Reservations must be made in order to attend. Contact Kay Crawford, 203 Queen Anne's Road, Greenville, for information and reservations.

New officers for the coming year were elected at the last club meeting. They include Al King — president, Ed Rhem — vice-president, Jinny McDonnell — treasurer; and Will Martin — secretary.

Award presentations and discussion of past and future plans will follow the dinner.

Tampa Bay To Test Reunited Duo

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

All-Pro tight end Dave Casper and quarterback Ken Stabler, for years one of the most feared passing tandems in the the National Football League, are together again. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers will find out Sunday if they're still cause for alarm.

The Houston Oilers, who got Stabler from Oakland during the offseason by sending quarterback Dan Pastorini to the Raiders, acquired Casper, Stabler's favorite target, earlier this week in exchange for undisclosed future draft choices.

"It seems they have some guy down there playing quarterback that I've heard of before," Casper said with a smile when the trade was announced.

"We are thrilled to be able to get a player of Dave's ability," said Oilers Coach Bum Phillips, who added he'd have his latest find in the lineup Sunday. "Casper is a quality, clutch receiver that should fit in with what we want to do here."

What Phillips would like to do more than anything else, of course, is catch the Pittsburgh Steelers, who always seem to be just ahead of them in the American Conference's Central Division.

That's the way it is now. Pittsburgh, which doesn't play until Monday night against the visiting Denver Broncos, is 4-2 while the Oilers and the Cleveland Browns are each 3-3.

Sunday's other games are Dallas at Philadelphia, New England at Baltimore, Buffalo at Miami, Green Bay at Cleveland, Minnesota at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Washington, Seattle at the New York Jets, Atlanta at New Orleans, Detroit at Chicago, Kansas City at Denver, Los Angeles at San Francisco and the New York Giants at San Diego.

Casper, 29, almost certainly will be used in a double tight end alignment with Mike Barber on the other end of the line. Barber's greatest effectiveness is in blocking for Earl Campbell, and that creates another problem for the Bucs.

Campbell, slowed by injuries for several weeks, burst back into form last Sunday with a 178-yard rushing game. And Barber, when he wasn't leading the way, caught a 26-yard touchdown pass from Stabler. But it went for naught as the Oilers, with a chance to pull into a first-place tie with the Steelers, were upset 21-20 by Kansas City.

The game is the second meeting between ever Houston and Tampa Bay (the Oilers won the first one 20-0 in 1976) and the second since the 1978 trade that gave the Oilers the chance to draft Campbell. In the deal, the Bucs got tight end Jimmie Giles plus the draft choice that enabled them to select quarterback Doug Williams.

Several division leads will be up for grabs Sunday. In Philadelphia, the Eagles host the Dallas Cowboys, each team at 5-1 and sharing first place in the National Conference East. Wilbert Montgomery, Philadelphia's leading rusher who sat out last Sunday's 31-16 victory over the Giants due to a recurring groin injury, is due back in the lineup. And the Eagles, with the top-rated defense in the league, will be trying to cool off Danny White, the NFL's top-rated passer.

Baltimore's Bert Jones, who gunned down Buffalo last Sunday to hand the Bills their first defeat and drop them into a share of the American Conference East lead, now goes after the co-leader, New England. The Colts are likely to have a bit more trouble this time. They've got a pass defense ranked 13th (next-to-last) in the AFC and will be going against Steve Grogan, who leads the conference in passing.

In San Francisco, the 49ers, routed by Los Angeles 48-26 two weeks ago and 59-14 by Dallas last Sunday, seeks to rebound against the Rams and move into a tie with LA atop the NFC West.

SKILLFUL PUNTER

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Neill Armstrong of the Chicago Bears was talking about Bob Parsons, who does his punting.

"Parsons probably won't ever lead the National Football League in punting," Armstrong said. "The winds at Soldier Field, where we play our eight home games are too tough. But he is a master at placing the ball and often negates runbacks."

The record book bore that out. In the 1979 season, Parsons led the NFL in punts downed inside the opponent's 20-yard line with a total of 26.

Officials To Hold Meeting

The Greenville Officials Association will hold its organizational meeting Thursday, Oct. 23, at 6 p.m. in the Jaycee Park recreation building.

Anyone interested in officiating recreation and/or junior high basketball is invited to attend. For further information, call 752-5214.

Rumors Cause Price Drop

By KATHY OSOBA
AP Business Writer

Continuing, unconfirmed rumors that the U.S. hostages in Iran might be released soon as a result of a deal between the two countries caused precious metals prices to fall sharply Friday despite encouraging economic news.

Ignoring what would normally be bullish news for prices in the past few days, gold, silver and platinum prices declined.

Jack Boyd, director of commodities research for Drexel Burnham Lambert in New York, contends that once the hostages are released, the Treasury Department will resume gold bullion sales. The Treasury ended its monthly gold auctions in November 1979, the month the U.S. hostages were seized. Boyd and other market analysts contend that the government will not sell gold until the hostages are released because the seizure of the hostages was a major rea-son gold's price escalated last winter.

Boyd and others say the government would appear to be profitting financially from the international incident if it sold gold while the hostages were still being held.

Anticipation that the hostages will be released soon caused holders of gold futures to sell their contracts in anticipation of renewed government auctions. Technical selling emerged when the key price of $669 was broken in the December contract, analysts said.

Futures on the New York's Commodity Exchange fell $11.30 to $17.50, with the spot contract quoted at $659.20 per ounce.

Silver fell the daily trading limit in sympathetic selling with gold since precious metals prices tend to move upward or downward in harmony. Futures were 50 cents lower in all deferred contracts, while the unrestricted October contract declined 69 cents to close at $19.97 per ounce.

Wood and interest rate futures declined, both in reaction to rising interest rates and swelling money supply figures that are causing analysts to fear government tightening of interest rates to curb inflation.

Reports that Chase Manhattan Bank had raised its prime rate to 14 percent hurt both the lumber and plywood markets.

Curt Cunningham, market analyst for Bache Halsey Stuart Shields in Seattle, said the housing starts figure was bullish, but the economic news overshadowed it.

The interest rate level affects the ability of homeowners and developers to borrow mortgage money and has a direct impact on the number of new homes built.

Analysts have also questioned the government's housing figures, saying that a large number of federally subsidized units were included in the 1.544 million units started in September.

"A very large component of that rise is federally subsidized units," said Cunningham. "Some might say some federally subsidized projects were rushed into the works to make this last housing starts report look good before the election."

Once there was only life insurance.

Now there's variable life.

Why do you buy life insurance? Because you want guaranteed financial security for your loved ones. If that sounds like the usual life insurance policy, you're right. But, now you can get lifetime insurance coverage with one big difference: Variable Life Insurance – the life insurance policy with growth potential through investments in the stock market. We think it's one of the most important innovations in life insurance in the last sixty years.

There's more: in addition to this growth potential, you still get a guaranteed minimum death benefit, no matter what happens in the stock market.

Here's how it works: Funds supporting your policy are invested in a Separate Investment Account, which is managed by the professional investment staff of The Equitable. Your insurance coverage may increase or decrease annually, depending on the Account's investment results with SaveSystem.

Beat the Card Game

Shop with cash and the SaveSystem Card, and get a discount on everything you buy.

Even if you use credit cards to shop, you'll have to pay cash sooner or later. And you'll pay extra for the luxury of putting it off. But by using East Federal's exclusive SaveSystem card, you'll not only avoid paying interest, you'll earn it. Here's how it works:

When you open a SaveSystem Account at East Federal, you get a free SaveSystem Card and a directory of participating merchants. Then whenever you pay in cash or check, present your SaveSystem Card and get a rebate on everything you buy! That rebate is then automatically deposited in your SaveSystem account where it earns daily interest. It's like saving a little bit of everything you spend! And that makes a very pleasant addition to your monthly SaveSystem statement!

An exciting new feature of East Federal's Compass Account.

Stop by East Federal or any participating merchant today. We'll process your account immediately and send you your free SaveSystem card and directory of over 250 participating stores. SaveSystem . . . Only at East Federal.

I'd like to cash in on the System!

An Autumn Visit To Tryon Palace

HISTORIC TRYON PALACE. . . shows the world of a royal governor as it existed in the decade of the American Revolution. Inside, hostesses, dressed in period dress, escort visitors through the palace rooms.

A typical North Carolina fall day, an early foggy morning turning into a crisp October day with a bright sun breaking through, was the ideal beginning for a tour of historic Tryon Palace and walking tour through the palace's gardens and grounds.

Chrysanthemum Sunday was observed at the palace last Sunday. Chrysanthemums in bright hues of orchid, gold, yellow, burgundy, bronze and white were in full bloom, especially in the formal Kellengerger Garden. The kitchen garden is planted with fruits and vegetables as it was in earlier days. Here the fruits and vetables for the dining tables of Tryon Palace were raised. Cordoned and Espaliered fruit trees form fences around the inner gardens and grace the garden walls. Herbs for seasoning and medicinal purposes are also grown here.

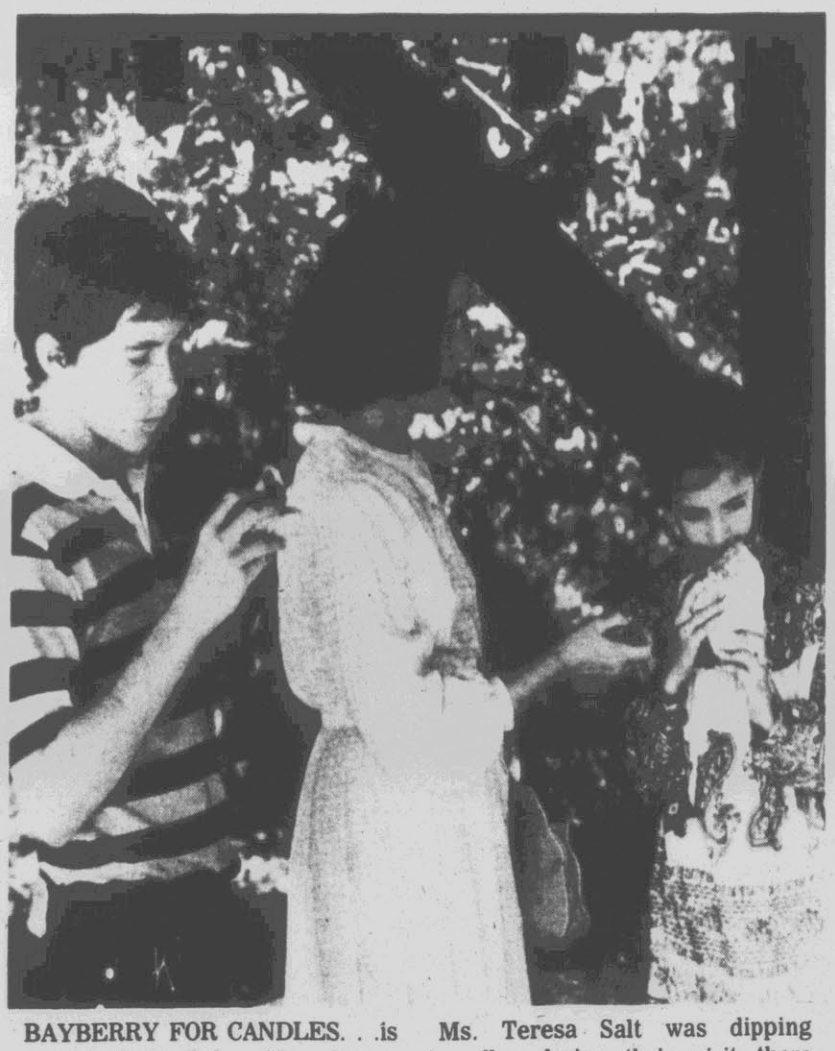

The Maude Moore Latham Memorial Garden, with its memorial pavilion, honors the restoration donor, Mrs. Maude Moore Latham. The garden is of the English landscape design. Tulips and violas bloom here each spring followed by a variety of plants blooming through the summer and chrysanthemums each fall.

Mrs. Nancy Hicks and children, Roby and Wendy, of Greensboro toured the palace Thursday followed by a walking tour of several of the gardens.

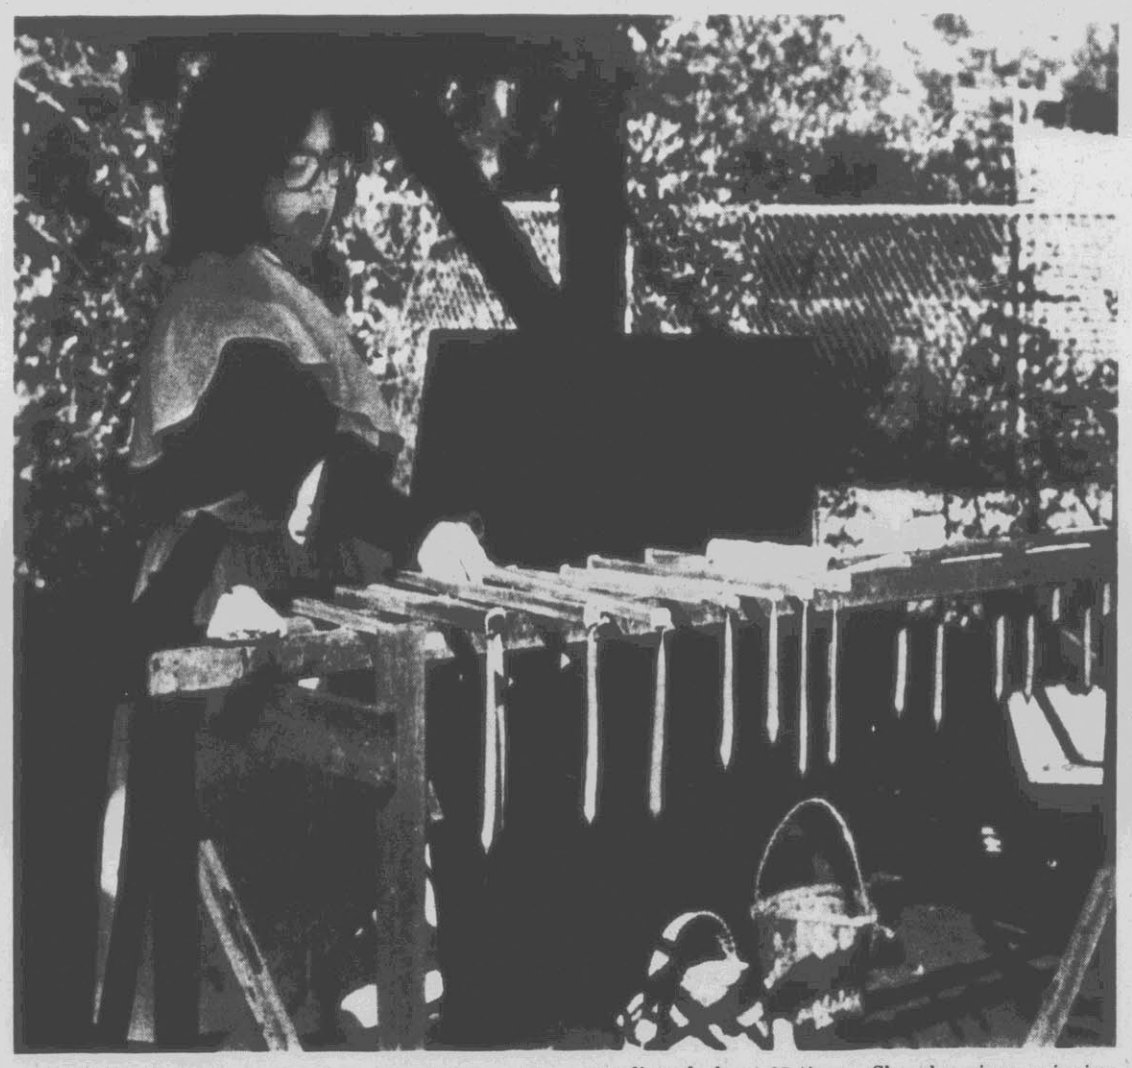

MAKING A WISH. . .in a small fountain in the formal Kellenberger Garden at Tryon Palace is Wendy Hicks of Greensboro. She is joined in the wish by her brother, Roby. Chrysanthemums in orchid, yellow, burgundy, gold and bronze were blooming. Chrysanthemum Sunday was held last weekend at the palace.

Text And Photos By Rosalie Trotman

BAYBERRY FOR CANDLES. . .is examined by Roby, Mrs. Nancy Hicks and Wendy of Greensboro. Ms. Teresa Salt was dipping candles during their visit there Thursday.

CANDLEMAKING. . .is demonstrated on the palace grounds by Teresa Salt of Cove City. She said the candles, made of bees wax and bayberry, are dipped about 25 times. She also gives spinning and weaving demonstrations.

Asst. Secretary Of Defense Wore Flowered Hats

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tiny Anna Rosenberg sits behind a huge desk on the 26th floor of a skyscraper in New York.

She looks to weigh no more than 98 pounds soaking wet and stand about five feet tall. The full sleeves of the white satin blouse she wears are cuffed at the wrist and look like wings when she waves her arms.

The little jacket that matches her black skirt is hung over the back of her chair. It is the only casual touch in the impeccably correct executive suite.

The office is a corner one and out one set of windows in the distance one sees the needle atop the Empire State building. A little closer in, the view is of Grand Central Station and the Pan-Am building.

Inside, bowls of roses and other freshly cut flowers from Mrs. Rosenberg's country gardens vie with potted plants for attention. The office furnishings include a crystal chandelier and plush white sofa and chairs.

Mrs. Rosenberg's hands are in perpetual motion. Tugging at the double strand of pearls. Fluffing her hair. Arranging and rearranging papers on the desk. Toying with a vanilla wafer in the saucer holding her cup of caffeine-free coffee.

She talks about her trip to China, Australia, Japan, Hawaii — all within 15 recent days. She topped this off with a trip to Chicago. All of these trips were business-connected for one of her public relations clients, the Encyclopaedia Brittanica.

In China arrangements were made to have the meat and potatoes parts of the encyclopaedia translated into Chinese. This is the short version of the reference work. The chore will take four years.

The arrangements were made with Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping.

Mrs. Rosenberg, president of her own prominent public relations firm and once the highest ranking woman in the U.S. government, is 78.

It is all of 28 years since she was U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense and a 12-page spread about her in "Life" magazine of Jan. 21, 1952 issue called her "the busiest woman in the United States."

As assistant secretary of defense she was in charge of manpower requirements, procurement and utilization and policy.

"Life" also called her by her nickname, "Madame Bangles," for all the bracelets she wore. The "assistant secretary of defense" always wore a flowered hat.

The white-walled, bright blue carpeted office that she occupies today contains plaques, medals, and autographed pictures of the U.S. Presidents she served, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson.

The words before the signatures include "affectionately," "with affection to my faithful friend," "faithfully remembering your dedicated service."

There is a picture of Jimmy Carter in the collection and one of Eleanor Roosevelt.

As consultant to FDR, Mrs. Rosenberg visited U.S. troops in Europe.

"The President wanted me to find out what the soldiers wanted when the war was over," she said. "I told him when I returned — 'They want a chance to better themselves, to go to school'."

And that, as Mrs. Rosenberg tells it, was just the boost the FDR needed to push the plan for a G.I. Bill of Rights providing for college educations for hundreds of thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen when the war ended.

In Truman's administration, Assistant Secretary of Defense Rosenberg visited troops and their commanders at the battlefronts in Korea.

Now her concerns are for her public relations clients such as the American Hospital Association, Blue Cross & Blue Shield Associations of America, the Encyclopaedia America, the American Cancer Society, G. & C. Merriman Co., publishers of Merriam-Webster dictionaries.

Mrs. Rosenberg, who marched for suffrage as a teenager, was questioned out on women in business, the Equal Rights Amendment, the draft, abortion and other topics.

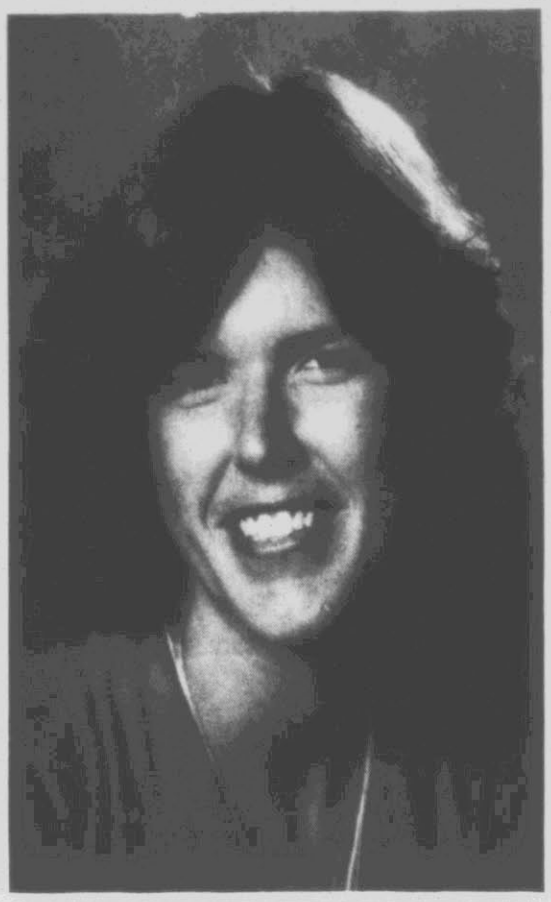

Here are some of her observations:

—On succeeding in business, which she has done for the last 35 years: "You make up your mind and do it. You don't fret and say it takes too much effort or time. You spend Saturdays in the office. You have to love people. After Mr. Hoffman died, I put more into it." (Paul G. Hoffman, her late second husband, was at president of Studebaker Corp., president of the Ford Foundation, head of the Marshall Plan in Europe, and director of a number of United Nations programs.)

—On the armed services today: "I am very worried about the services. We have machines in the Navy that not enough people know how to operate. The voluntary armed forces probably need to be paid more. It is shameful some service families have such low incomes they must use foodstamps. The recruits need some good

Couple Exchanges Vows

RALEIGH — Faith Bible Fellowship Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Janice Lorraine Branch and Robert Gentry Harris III.

A program of music was played by Priscilla Anderson. Teresa Ange sang "The Wedding Song" and "Gentle Shepherd." Bobby Hamilton sang "The Wedding Prayer." Jan Summerlin of Raleigh directed the wedding. Susan Jones of Raleigh presided at the register. Programs were given out by Gail Harrington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O. Branch of Rt. 4, Raleigh. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Robert Gentry Harris II of Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Karen Harris of Winthrop, Me.

The bride wore a formal gown, styled by her mother, fashioned with a contoured high waistline, lace bodice and sleeves. The underskirt was of taffeta with an overskirt of chiffon trimmed with lace appliques. The bodice, sleeves and waistline were trimmed with lace which was repeated on the hemline and train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a beaded crown. Chantilly lace trimmed the veil. She carried an open white Bible with white roses and peach colored flowers with white ribbon streamers tied with forget-me-nots.

The bride's mother selected a formal gown of pumpkin colored qiana polyester. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal dress of green. Both were presented corsages of peace roses.

The bride's sister, Linda Gail Branch of Cary, was honor attendant and wore a formal melon colored gown of satin crepe styled with a high waistline and spaghetti straps. The gown was accented with a chiffon cape. She carried a basket of fall flowers and wore flowers in her hair. Bridesmaids were Martha Brady of Laurinburg, Kim Mason and Ruby Murphy of Greenville, Paula Smith and Beth Alexander of Raleigh. They wore formal gowns of cotton polyester in a melon print styled like the maid of honor's. They also carried baskets of flowers.

The flower girl was Michelle Branch of Raleigh. She wore a dress like the bridesmaids and carried a basket of fall flowers.

Ushers were Johnny Hill of Ayden, Terry Allen of Grifton, Bradley Branch, Greg Branch and Kenny Branch, all of Raleigh. The ring bearer was Troy Crawford of Raleigh.

Honorary bridesmaids were Cindy Bryan, Parthene Dove, Lisa Dixon, Leisa Gentry, Amy Gentry, Jackie Gentry, all of Raleigh, Wendy Gallup of Cary, Tammy Patterson of Mor-

Leadership Seminar Held

GREENSBORO — Two residents of Pitt County attended the McIver Conference IV, a leadership seminar for alumni held recently at the University of North Carolina here.

They were Mrs. Martha Smith Ferrell of Greenville, active in the Alumni Association's field program, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kittrell Proctor, also of Greenville, a trustee of the association.

The conference, designed for alumni who are active in leadership roles with UNC-G alumni programs, was held as a part of the university's 88th annual Founder's Day observance.

MRS. CLIFFORD STANLEY STRICKLAND JR.

Candlelight Wedding Performed

SANFORD — Cynthia Leigh Yarborough and Rodney Edward Harris spoke their wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Grace Chapel Church here. The Rev. Robert Yandle, pastor of the bride, officiated using the doluble ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Yarborough of Sanford. She is a graduate of Lee Senior High School and is employed by Greenville T. V. and Appliance, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Teel Harris of Rt. 4, Greenville. A graduate of Greenville Christian Academy, he is employed by his father.

A program of organ music was presented by Daile Cox Yarborough of Winston-Salem. Tommy Hamilton of Sanford sang "We'll Walk With God," "One Hand, One Heart" and the "Wedding Prayer." A trumpet trio was composed of Betty Ciliberto, Barry Cashion and Sammy Hamilton.

The bride's sister, Sylvia Yarborough Stokes of Greenville, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Lisa Sherrill Williams of Sanford, Teresa Thomas Jordan, Lori Ann Brown and Catherine Thomas, all of Greenville. The flower girl was Shannon French of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and groomsmen were Jeffery Teel and Thomas Christopher Harris, brothers of the bridegroom, Edward Briley and Kent Brown, all of Greenville. Kevin Grant of Greenville was ring bearer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk-ened organza, silk Venise and chantilly lace over peau de soie fashioned with a high neckline with a sheer yoke, fitted bodice with a natural waistline and long full bishop sleeves with cuffs. Silk Venise lace adorned with bridal pearls and iridescents trimmed the neckline, yoke and bodice front while chantilly lace accented the waistline sleeves and cuffs. The full skirt, highlight with appliques, was designed with a flounce trimmed with chantilly lace and flowed into a chapel train. She wore a mantilla of chantilly lace attached to a fingertip veil of illusion bordered with lace and accented with appliques. She carried a cascading bouquet of white and pink carntions and burgundy roses.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of dubonnet embroidered lace over dubonnet matte jersey designed with a high ruffled lace collar, sheer yoke with self-fabric covered buttons, long sleeves, elasticized waistline and gathered skirt. She carried a white Testament, a gift of the bride, covered with dubonnet net, pink carnations and pink and dubonnet streamers. The bridesmaids dresses were identical to the honor attendant. They each carried the bride's gift covered with net and flowers with dubonnet streamers. The flower girl's dress was dubonnet embroidered lace fashioned similar to the attendants.

The bridegroom's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Thomas Sr., great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Thomas Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harris of Greenville.

Mrs. Betty Sue McNeill assisted with the wedding and Mrs. Christy Schultz Yarborough presided at the register.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the Farrell Building. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Stan Mann and wedding cake was served by Mrs. Inez Brown and Mrs. Charity Yarborough. Mrs. Stella Mashburn poured punch. Mrs. Grace Woolard assisted. Floating hostesses were Miss Patricia Lanier and Miss Marjorie Holmes.

Good-byes were said by the bride's parents.

The parents of the bridegroom gave an after-rehearsal dinner Friday evening at the Holida Inn.

After a Florida wedding trip, the couple will live in Greenville.

Wedding Vows Solemnized

The marriage of Martha Early Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Watson Barnes of Ahoskie, and Clifford Stanley Strickland Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stanley Strickland Sr. of Rich Square, took place Saturday morning at 11 o'clock in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Carol Goehring performed the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Warren Bass, organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. The best man was the father of the bridegroom.

The couple will live here following a trip to the North Carolina and Virginia mountains.

The bride attended ECU and graduated with a B.S. degree in special education. The bridegroom attended Pitt Community College and graduated with an associate degree in air and water resources.

A wedding brunch was held at the Rotary Building here following the private ceremony and was given by the bride's parents.

Flavored Milk Said No Factor

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dietician Pat Orman says parents who worry about their children drinking chocolate-flavored milk in school lunch programs shouldn't be concerned.

Ms. Orman says the sugar in chocolate milk is quickly swallowed and doesn't remain in contact with teeth long enough to be a significant factor in tooth decay. She also says parents have erroneous notions about the amount of sugar in the drink and oxalic acid in the cocoa.

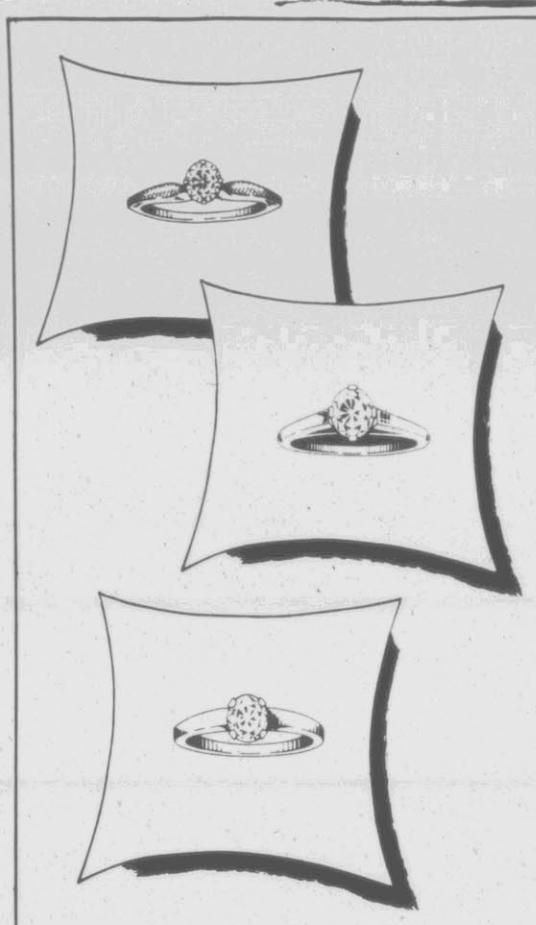

Ms. Orman is a nutrition specialist with the Los Angeles Unified School District. She ranks milk with puddings and custards as desserts that contribute valuable nutrients to children's diets — when they are used in sensible amounts.

Miss Clark Speaks Vows Friday Evening

MRS. BRIAN ERWIN GRAY

Susan Teresa Clark and Brian Erwin Gray were united in marriage Friday evening at the First Christian Church. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Dr. Will Wallace.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Worthington of Greenville and the late Mr. George G. Clark. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Wellington Burbank Gray of Greenville and the late Dr. Gray.

Nuptial music was provided by organist Tom Hawley and soloist Anne Gunn.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a formal gown by Mendicino of ivory satin over ivory peau de soie designed with an open Queen Anne neckline. The empire bodice was overlaid in imported English net and trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with florettes of pearls and sequins. The long-fitted sleeves were accented with inserts of peau d'ange lace that extended to the wrist. The front of the modified A-line skirt was enhanced by panels of beaded peau d'ange lace that continued around the attached cathedral length train. Both the skirt and train were bordered at the hemline with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls.

She wore a waltz length veil of ivory illusion edged in scalloped alencon lace held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in alencon lace beaded with pearls and rhinestones. She carried an ivory satin covered prayerbook with red American Beauty roses and ivy.

The matron of honor was Becky Brock of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Brenda C. Gray, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Debbie Harrelson, cousin of the bride, both of Winterville, Mrs. Sharon Boyd and Lynn Hannah, both of Greenville.

The attendants wore lavender doeskin gowns overlaid with Floral chiffon in shades of fuscia and lavender. The chiffon overlay featured a round neckline with butterfly sleeves. They carried brass hurricane lamps with sprays of English ivy, fuscia, orchid, lavender and purple pixie carnations tied with fuscia satin bows and white baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pink chiffon featuring a sweetheart neckline enhanced by embroidered lace. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of seafoam silesta designed with a U-neckline and gathered draped bodice. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Bruce W. Gray, the bridegroom's brother, served as best man. Ushers included Mike Sutton of Ayden, Mike Barwick of Warsaw, Mose Stocks, Don Sullivan and Gordon Clark, brother of the bride, all of Greenville.

Ring bearer was Malcolm W. Gray of Winterville, nephew of the bridegroom.

He carried an ivory satin and lace pillow.

A reception given by the bride's parents and her sister, Becky Brock, followed the ceremony.

A rehersal dinner was given by the bridegroom's mother at the Beef Barn on Thursday.

After a wedding trip to Disney World, Fla., the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attended East Carolina University and is employed at Belk-Tyler. The bridegroom is a graduate of ECU in geology and works with the state as a geological surveyor.

Kitchen Chemist Running A Risk

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — People who play chemist in the kitchen or bath by mixing their own cleaning solutions risk accidental poisoning from chlorine gas, the same gas that maimed or killed soldiers in World War I.

Pharmacy Prof. Roger Maickel says the gas is released when you add bleach to a household cleaner. Maickel, a Purdue University poison expert, says self-medication with a mixture of drugs can be just as dangerous. Before combining drugs or drugs and alcohol, consult your doctor or pharmacist, he says.

Gene Kelly received a special Academy Award for his innovative contributions to the dance in movies.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

New parents worry about the dumbest things.

I guess we all did. It comes with the territory. I remember a nervous neighbor of mine who read somewhere that a child should have two "stools" a day. As compelling as it was for me to hang around and wait for the quota to be met, she finally devised a code to keep me informed. She'd simply put a cardboard sign in her window announcing, "One!" or "Two!"

Needless to say, she drove the bread man crazy. (Not to mention the kid growing up remembering his mother as a red-faced woman hanging over the crib making weird noises.)

I always thought the No. 1 concern of new parents was the selection of a name until I heard a story from a grandmother this week whose daughter had just had a baby. Everything had gone well. The baby had a name everyone could live with, was in good health and schedules were being met. Then came the hitch. "What does the baby call Grandma?"

In keeping with modern attitudes, her first name was suggested. Samantha? The child would be old enough to drive before she could handle that.

How about Grandma Maiers?

Too formal. Besides, to be consistent, she'd have to call her other Grandma by her last name which was Fliederhofer.

Wait a minute. Since everyone called Samantha "Sam," how about Grandma Sam?

Negative. Already the child had a problem with two parents who shared the same name. Couldn't you see a teacher asking, "What's your daddy's name?" Jerry. "And your mother's name?" Jerry. "And your grandmother's name?" Sam. Forget it.

Was she comfortable with "Granny"? Absolutely not. It suggested a silver-haired, plump woman with apple cheeks.

"Grandmama?" She'd have to have her hair done every week to live up to that one.

"Nanny?" Sounded like a hired grandmother who flies with her umbrella open.

"Nana?" That's the sound a goat makes.

"Namo and Nonee?" Aren't they the whales at Sea World?

Finally, someone said, "What about Grandma?"

"It's catchy," said Jerry.

"It's different," said Jerry.

"I think it's me," said Samantha.

On The Young Side

The elections committee of the SGA announced the nominees for the homecoming court and last week students had a chance to vote on the names.

Nominees for sophomore princesses are Lori Little, Marsha Tart, Gena Heath, Harriet Morris, Laverne Blackwell and Tuwonda Little. Junior nominees are Elizabeth Longino, Mandi Maiolo, Lou Taft, Caroletta Metcalf, Linda Taft, Sonya Morris, Debbie Suggs and Kathy Justice.

Senior girls nominated for homecoming queen are Teresa Brown, Sylvia Taylor, Kochie Richardson, Sharon Smith, Emily Wilson, Denise Lewis, Sarah Houston, Sheila Collie, Marjorie Crane, Debbie Cannon, Patty Lucido and Jenny Nobles.

In additon to the pricnesses are the nominees for Mr. and Miss School Spirit. Nominated for Miss School Spirit are Joyce Staford, Barbara Taft, Teresa Brown, Jackie Brown, Karen Wheeler and Sheila Collie. Male nominees are Tom Brown, Barry Tyson, Johnny Jackson, Anthony Sheppard, Donald Johnson and Jerome Cox.

Seven junior varsity cheerleaders were selected by try-outs to fill vacated spaces on the homecoming cheering squad. The girls chosen include Gena Heath, Caroline Lee, Leanne Wiseman, Lisa Leggett, Lisa Kittrell, High Song Kim and Lori Little.

Last Saturday, the Rose High Marching Band participated in ECU's Annual Band Day. High school bands from across the eastern part of the state competed. Rose's drum majors, Jim Bearden and Mike Pollard, received second place in their category of competition. The band also attended another contest yesterday in Chesapeake, Va. Band members are presently collecting old papers for recycling in order to raise money for a field trip — to attend a band festival in Daytona Beach, Fla., in April.

Charles Carmen, a senior at Rose, as been named a commended student in the National Achievement Scholarship Program for Outstanding Negro Students. He scored in the top seven percent of all black students who took the PSAT/NMSQT in October, 1979. The approximately 3,000 commended students are included on a roster which is sent to various colleges and universities.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 19, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time when you have conflicting views with others. Be sure to accept differences in a philosophical manner. Don't force any issues with family members at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make certain you handle any responsibilities you have in a most precise manner. Engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Use diplomacy instead of forcefulness with mate and you get along better. Make long-range plans to have more abundance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to please family members and come to a better understanding with them. Take no risks where your reputation is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to have greater income in the days ahead. Analyze your aims and gain the support you need from others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Concentrate on how you can be more productive in the future. An intuitive prompting could be erroneous now so don't follow it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Try to enlist the help of loyal friends for a new project you have in mind. Make practical plans for the days ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make some needed changes at home so that you have more comfort there. Allow time for recreational activities you enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day to engage in activities that most appeal to you. Adopt a philosophy that can be good for you in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to have more harmonious relations with family members. Make plans that can bring advancement in your career.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Outline projects you want to put in operation in the future. A good time to visit good friends and relatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use good sense in handling matters of communication and get excellent results. Make this a worthwhile day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Enjoy small pleasures you like in the company of congenials. Show more devotion to mate and express happiness together.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be very ambitious so give the best education possible in preparation for a most successful life. Spiritual training is important here and so are sports that teach fair play. A good family life in this chart.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, OCT. 20, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make sure that you do nothing today that could upset one who has authority over you. Strive to make progress in your line of endeavor. Secrets come to light at this time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do nothing that could cause a severance of connections with an associate. Be sure to keep an important appointment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on the future and then make concrete plans to improve it. Take modern treatments to improve your health.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try a new approach with friends and reach a better understanding with them. Know what is expected of you by associates.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to be tactful and clear thinking to patch up a problem of long standing. Take no risks with money at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can get along better with associates by adopting a new attitude. Take no chances with one who has harmed you in the past.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your duties well and figure out a way to handle them more efficiently. Don't do anything that could anger your mate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use a different approach in a civil matter and get excellent results. Avoid one who is detrimental to your best interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make work the keynote in your activities today and accomplish a great deal. Not a good day to engage in new interests.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be extra patient in the face of any pressures today and you win out. Strive for greater prestige in civic affairs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be tactful with family members and maintain harmony at home. Take no chances with a well-known troublemaker.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use good judgment in the handling of problems connected with regular routines. Come to a better understanding with mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your monetary prowess is better now than for some time so make the most of this now. Obtain data you need from the right sources.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a capable person who can study new ventures and understand them well. But it's important to teach to finish one thing before going on with another. Don't neglect ethical training early in life.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

ASK OMAR

Q.—We had an interesting situation the other night. Partner opened the bidding with one spade and then jumped to three hearts over my one no trump response. I held: ♠Qx ♡Kxx ◇Qxxx ♣Jxxx. Obviously, I wanted to play in game. I knew my partner held at least five spades, but I wasn't sure how many hearts. Since partner was probably going to be forced to ruff a minor suit, I didn't want to risk playing in a 4-3 heart fit, so I jumped to four spades. It turned out that partner was 5-5 in the majors and, after being forced to ruff clubs, he lost trump control and ended up down one in four spades when four hearts could not be defeated. Would you have raised to four hearts? Partner insists I should have.—J. Gordon, Albany, N.Y.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—There is a simple but very important piece of theory involved in this situation, and it is surprising how few relatively good players are aware of it. Basically, both you and your partner are wrong in your treatment of the hand you held.

There is no reason why you should try to guess partner's holding. Surely it is much simpler to have him describe his hand than for you to guess, even if you are blessed with divine inspiration.

First, let's consider partner's jump shift to three hearts. That is unconditionally forcing to game. Therefore, there is no compulsion for you to bid game directly. You can afford to make a waiting bid below game level. After all, partner is compelled to bid again since it was he who created the game-forcing situation.

If you bear this in mind, your course of action becomes obvious. Just take a simple preference to three spades for the moment. If partner has five hearts, he can now bid four hearts, which you will pass. If he has strength in the minor suits, he can bid three no trump. And if he is unbalanced with long spades and only four hearts, he can raise to four spades. That way, you get the best of all possible worlds.

REVIVAL

There will be a revival beginning at the Medowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church on Monday night October 20 through October 25. The services will begin each night at 7:30 p.m.

The guest evangelist is the Rev. Kenneth Dixon from Harker's Island. There will be a ladies quartet from Winterville Pentecostal Holiness Church singing Saturday night. The pastor, Rev. Phillip Bland and congregation invites the public to attend.

Excited Over Indian Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archaeologists say they've excavated in western Maine the oldest Indian home site and tools ever located in a part of the United States that was covered by glaciers during the last Ice Age.

Dr. Richard M. Gramly of the Maine State Museum on Thursday called the unearthing of the 11,000-year-old site and thousands of tools "very rare and exciting."

Gramly also said that a killing ground where migrating herd animals were attacked and slaughtered was discovered near the living area. He said it's the only known instance of such a combination east of the Mississippi River.

Michigan Wines Seek Respect

By MARY A. DEMPSEY

PAW PAW, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan wines are struggling to shed their image as brown bag, street corner libations and earn a respectable place in fine goblets on American dinner tables.

The state's rapidly expanding wine industry has refined its product considerably from the heavily sweetened fruit juice of its infancy.

"To say that Michigan wines are sweet wines is no longer true," said Patrick Laughlin, president of the Michigan Beer and Wine Wholesalers Association.

"We have come to the point where we have very, very fine wines. Some of the better wines are Michigan wines."

Michigan's version of the famous Napa Valley of California is a 35-mile-wide swath in the southwestern part of the state.

"We have a micro-climate in southwestern Michigan because of the winds off the lake," said Robert Raffin, vice president of marketing and sales at Warner Vineyards, the state's largest vintner and a 40-year-old family-owned venture.

Cooling breezes from Lake Michigan keep the grapes from scorching in summer. Heavy snowfall insulates the vines in winter.

The West Michigan Tourist Association says the state ranks fourth in wine production, behind California, New York and Ohio. California produces about 90 percent of U.S. wine, other states sharing the remaining 10 percent.

Raffin said 16,000 acres are planted in grapes — about 95 percent in vineyards bordering the lake.

Michigan wines received their greatest boost when President Gerald R. Ford, a native Michigander, served them at state dinners in the White House.

Although they are sweeter than European wines, the Michigan varieties have begun competing with California's in Midwest markets. Production statewide rose 4 percent in the past year.

Many vintners have followed Warner's lead and stepped up advertising and marketing.

"Michigan wines, going back historically, were sweet dessert wines — fortified wines," Raffin said. "Fortified means we added alcohol and sugar."

Experiments in conjunction with Michigan State University yielded French-American hybrid grapes, which survived Michigan's winters, thrived in its summers and resulted in finer table wines.

"The wines are sold mostly in the Midwest but that doesn't mean they aren't of high enough quality to go elsewhere," Laughlin said. "If people just tasted them, they would see."

Warner and some other Michigan vintners have begun jazzing up labels and bottles in hopes of grabbing a larger share of the growing market.

Consumers can now find seyval blanc, brut champagnes and pale whites at prices ranging from less than $2 to $10 a bottle.

Vintners experiments also aim to develop hardier grapes, alter the weather and keep birds away from the precious fruit.

training, benefits and incentives to make that a career."

On women and the draft: "Women should not be eligible to be drafted until they have equal rights."

On the Equal Rights Amendment: "It should have passed long ago."

On legalized abortion on demand: "I think a woman has a right to do with her body what she wishes. It is a tragedy that women of means can get abortions and others cannot."

On women in business: "Many women in business try to act like a man and even dress like a man. It just doesn't work. You have to be a woman, look it, act it, and you must work harder than the men."

On the hardest thing in business: "To get people to listen."

On the second hardest thing in business: "To get people to follow the advice they asked for."

On the hardest thing for women in business: "To get men to give them a chance."

Mrs. Rosenberg said she wishes women in business would really dress like women.

"I mean frilly blouses with suits, not man-tailored shirts," she said.

She recalled that when she was assistant secretary of defense, a senator told her once:

"Madame Secretary, you have worn on your hats at one time or the other over the years practically every flower or every state except mine."

Mrs. Rosenberg said when he identified his state's posie as "the sunflower," she told him, "You can't wear a sunflower on a hat."

She looked serious after a little chuckle over that and said:

"You couldn't then and you can't today. It would look ridiculous."

Tom Rosenberg, senior partner and son of Anna Rosenberg, said her firm is marking its 5th birthday. He said it has pioneered in many areas and gave these examples:

Extensive use of personal participation of the President at the White House for the Teacher of the Year program.

Designed and executed the first televised stockholders meeting.

Developed the first national TV campaign in behalf of the nation's hospitals.

Mrs. Rosenberg does more than sit at her desk and pontificate.

She is a familiar figure, running up and down the corridors and dashing about at the annual meetings of her clients. Sometimes, observers smile in amazement when they see Alex McMahon, spindly, tall president of the American Hospital Association, standing at attention and hanging onto every syllable from Mrs. Rosenberg.

When Mrs. Rosenberg speaks, many powerful men listen.

They have learned the first lesson Mrs. Rosenberg insists on from clients.

Listen.

Bishop Muzorewa's Former Repect Turned Into Ashes

ABEL MUZOREWA, the U.S.-educated black minister, was in the early 1970s a power in Rhodesia. Now, the 55-year-old Muzorewa is denounced and even jeered in the streets. (AP Laserphoto)

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

SALISBURY, Zimbabwe (AP) — For years he was hailed as the man who would lead Rhodesia's blacks to control their own destiny. Today this African land's first black prime minister is an outcast.

Abel Muzorewa now is denounced as a murderer, traitor and white puppet in the parliament of Zimbabwe, the name of this former British colony since independence six months ago.

The 55-year-old Methodist bishop is often jeered in the streets, and mostly he leads the life of a recluse in a $120,000 mansion in the well-to-do Salisbury suburb of Borrowdale.

"Muzorewa is a broken, bitter man," a family friend confided recently. "He can't understand how he was the idol of the people a year ago and the pariah today."

Shunned by former aides as well as the new black leaders of Zimbabwe, the U.S.-educated cleric spends less time in parliament, the Executive National Assembly, and more in the pulpit of the American-funded United Methodist Church.

"He's too proud to sit in the Assembly and be insulted," a white legislator said, referring to the attacks on the bishop by assemblymen of the two guerrilla armies who fought a seven-year war for independence.

Few of his old foes — the black nationalists of Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union (Patriotic Front) or Joshua Nkomo's Patriotic Front — will concede that Muzorewa played a role in steering the country to black-majority rule after nine decades of white domination.

"You killed our children, you murderer," one member of parliament shouted at the diminutive figure in the Assembly recently. "Go back to your white masters."

It wasn't always that way.

In the early 1970s Muzorewa — educated at the Central Methodist College in Fayette, Mo., and Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn. — was a power to be reckoned with in Rhodesia, as the country was then known.

He mobilized blacks throughout the country to overwhelmingly reject proposals of the British Conservative Party government at the time to end a rebellion against Britain by the white government of Prime Minister Ian D. Smith, begun in 1965.

The deal would legitimately have kept the reins of power in white hands indefinitely, and Muzorewa formed the United African National Council to fight it while most other nationalist leaders — including Mugabe and Nkomo — were in political detention.

For his efforts, Muzorewa was hailed as a hero by the blacks, secretly encouraged by the nationalist leaders in Smith's jails and banned by the white government from traveling around the country — or, for a time, leaving it.

Later as the guerrilla war escalated in 1974 and the nationalist leaders were released to negotiate a settlement with Smith, Muzorewa was chosen as their overall leader.

But while the bishop pressed for peace, the militants wanted more war.

The United African National Council split into factions, and Muzorewa and other moderates struck a deal with Smith called the "internal settlement." It excluded the militant guerrillas and led to elections won by the bishop in April 1979.

Muzorewa, as prime minister in a nominally black government but with whites wielding most of the power, was denounced by the guerrillas as a puppet.

And it did seem that his white-officered army, air force and police mounted deadly raids against guerrillas loyal to Nkomo and Mugabe in neighboring countries without the knowledge of their prime minister, avowedly a man of peace.

The rise and fall of Muzorewa as an African prime minister took 10 months and was a unique milestone in the continent's contemporary history.

He was the first black leader to allow himself to be voted out of power when he signed a British-drafted constitutional accord with Nkomo and Mugabe last Dec. 21, after four months of talks in London.

That settlement led to a Dec. 29 cease-fire in the war followed by elections in February when Muzorewa's party was crushed. He won only three of the 100 seats in the Executive National Assembly.

Fifty-seven were won by Mugabe, 20 by Nkomo and 20 others were guaranteed under the constitution to whites of Smith's Rhodesian Front Party.

"He's never lived down the fact that he has fewer seats in Parliament than the whites," said a former Muzorewa aide who defected to Mugabe. "But he can't believe that he lost the elections."

Analysts who undertook a post-mortem of the balloting found that most of the 3 million voters shunned Muzorewa because he failed to end the war that claimed 27,000 lives — most of them black — split families, cost jobs and school places, and drove a million refugees to foreign countries.

Mugabe and Nkomo together won the overwhelming bulk of the votes because they had the power to silence the guerrillas' guns, the analysts reasoned.

Soon after he lost at the polls, Muzorewa sent his wife, Maggie, and their four sons and a daughter to the United States, fearing reprisals by the victors against his family. At least two of his own brothers have also fled the country, and he has sent his parents back to their remote village.

Muzorewa lives behind a high fence in Borrowdale, surrounds himself with bodyguards, frequently switches routes into the city to avoid possible ambushes or kidnap attempts and refuses to meet the press.

He occasionally leaves his Methodist church offices on Salisbury Street, where the capital's prostitutes ply their trade, to visit the nearby headquarters of his United African National Council.

Honor Fraternity Is Again Best In Nation

ECU News Bureau

The East Carolina University chapter of Phi Sigma Pi national honor fraternity has been chosen as outstanding chapter in the nation for the 15th consecutive year.

Tau Chapter received the Joseph Torchia Outstanding Chapter Award at the fraternity's convention in Washington.

Dr. Jack W. Thornton of Greenville (1204 Oakview Drive), was installed as national president of the fraternity. Thornton is an economics professor at ECU and Tau Chapter's advisor.

Dr. Richard C. Todd (1045 W. Rock Spring Rd.) was reinstalled as national alumni representative. Todd is a history professor emeritus of ECU.

Mike Bell of Greenville, Tau Chapter president, attended as the local chapter's delegate to the convention. Cindy Browning, Tau's vice president and also of Greenville, served as the student representative on the national grand council.

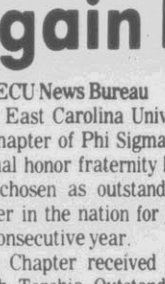

Other fraternity members attending the convention included Ellen Ballance and Tim Ballance of Fremont, Ray Barnes of Wilson, Doug Cline of Charlotte, Pam Cole of Fayetteville, Tom Hall of Surry, Va., Bob Horne of Rocky Mount, Howard Tucker and Jim Kittrell of Greenville, Randy Sessoms of Southern Pines, Gary Tiffany of Raleigh and Randy Ziglar of Winston-Salem.

The Chapter is the oldest fraternal organization on the ECU campus and is the largest chapter of the national honor fraternity.

Everyone agrees, wedding gifts are wonderful — only sometimes they can pose problems. For instance, what do you do when your wedding is postponed for some reason? We knew one girl whose grandparents unexpectedly won a trip to Hawaii — scheduled to depart the day before her wedding.

Here at Anne Marie's we feel that if your wedding must be postponed for some reason, you may still keep your gifts, though you must let your guests know about the postponement as soon as possible.

Do give them the new date if it has been confirmed — and then get busy and use that extra time to catch up on your thank-you notes!

Peanut Production Termed Good Commodity For Pitt

A MOUNTAIN OF PEANUTS...In the warehouse of Keel's Peanut Company in Greenville, nearly one-half million pounds of peanuts sit waiting to be dryed and processed. The worker climbing to the top of the stack appears dwarfed by the immensity of the slopes. According to Rufus Keel, this year has been an above average one in Pitt County for the crop.

Texts and Photos By Mary Schulken

Peanuts are an expanding crop in Pitt County and according to Agricultural Extension Agent Sam Uzzell, the future for production of the crop here is promising.

"As an edible crop they have a bright future in the next few years," said Uzzell. "Consumption per capita of peanuts has grown steadily in the last decade."

Pitt County has a litle under 6,000 acres of peanuts under cultivation, mostly around Bethel. "There are a few acres near Greenville, south of the river," explained Uzzell, "but most of our growers are around Bethel. Peanuts do well in sandy soil, of which we have some there."

The agent explained that a market also exists for the crop in the county. "We have two peanut companies, one in Bethel and one in Greenville. This is one reason we have growers here, because there is a close market nearby."

Growing peanuts has its advantages and disadvantages. "Peanuts fall into the middle of the planting schedule, after the corn and tobacco and before the soybeans," said Uzzell. People can work it into their schedule for this reason." Another advantage to the crop is that all parts of it are usable.

"The best nuts go into cocktail peanuts and confections, and the poorer quality ones go into peanut oil, peanut butter and seed," Uzzell commented. "Ones that are too large for planters can be sold for boiling or parching." The peanut plants are valuable also. After the nuts are harvested, the plants can be raked and baled like hay and fed to livestock as forage. "Peanut forage, like peanuts themselves, has a high nutritional value," added the farm agent.

According to Uzzell, most of the county's peanuts end up as the finest, in cocktail peanuts and confections. A large number of them also go back to seed.

The disadvantages of peanut production include the high cost of the machinery needed for the crop, such as a peanut combine. Most machinery connected with peanuts can be used only for the crop and not doubled up with corn or soybean production. Another disadvantage is the long growing season. "An early frost can hurt your peanuts badly," explained Uzzell. "Also, peanuts don't compete well with weeds because the plants are low-growing and spaced out in the row."

Peanuts share some of the same diseases with tobacco, such as nematodes and southern stem rot. Other diseases include black root rot, leaf spot and spider mites. "Spider mites are those same pests that attack your house plants," said Uzzell.

Peanuts are planted at the beginning of May, and in Pitt County, this year's harvest is almost complete. "Usually the end comes around the middle of October," commented the farm agent, who terms the yield a "fairly good harvest. With the rain we had a couple of weeks ago I wondered what would happen to the crop, but the dry weather the last week or so has been good for it."

Both Uzzell and Rufus Keel of Keel Peanut Company in Greenville agree that this year's average yield has been 2,300 to 2,400 pounds per acre.

"Last year," said Keel, "we averaged about 2,400 pounds per acre and this year was slightly less than that. Pitt County is fortunate, though, because we had 20 inches of rain this year and some places haven't had anywhere near that much."

Keel added that he didn't know of any acres in the county that would not be harvested. "And I know plenty of places in the state that will not harvest at all," he explained.

According to Keel, Pitt County will produce the largest percentage of high quality peanuts of any county. His company will handle four to five million pounds of the crop this year, and supply 20-25 percent of the seed in North Carolina.

Peanuts are harvested with a V-shaped digger that goes underneath the ground, cutting the tap root to the plant, leaving the roots and peanuts exposed on top of the soil. "After this step," explained Uzzell, "you leave them for a few days to eliminate moisture. Then a combine strips the peanuts from the plants, leaving the greenery ready to become forage."

Pitt County peanuts are the North Carolina-Virginia type, with normally two seeds per pod. Many are the Florigiant or NC 6 and NC 7 varieties, known for high yields and resistance to insects. According to Uzzell, peanuts, which are legumes, originated in the highlands of Brazil and still grow wild there, although they do not resemble the varieties found here.

"The reason we have had a strong market for peanuts in the past few years is because of their great food value," explained the farm agent. "They are a valuable food crop. Rich in protein and amino acids, they have appealed to those looking for high nutritional value." Peanut oil, for example, cited Uzzell, is very low in polyunsatuates.

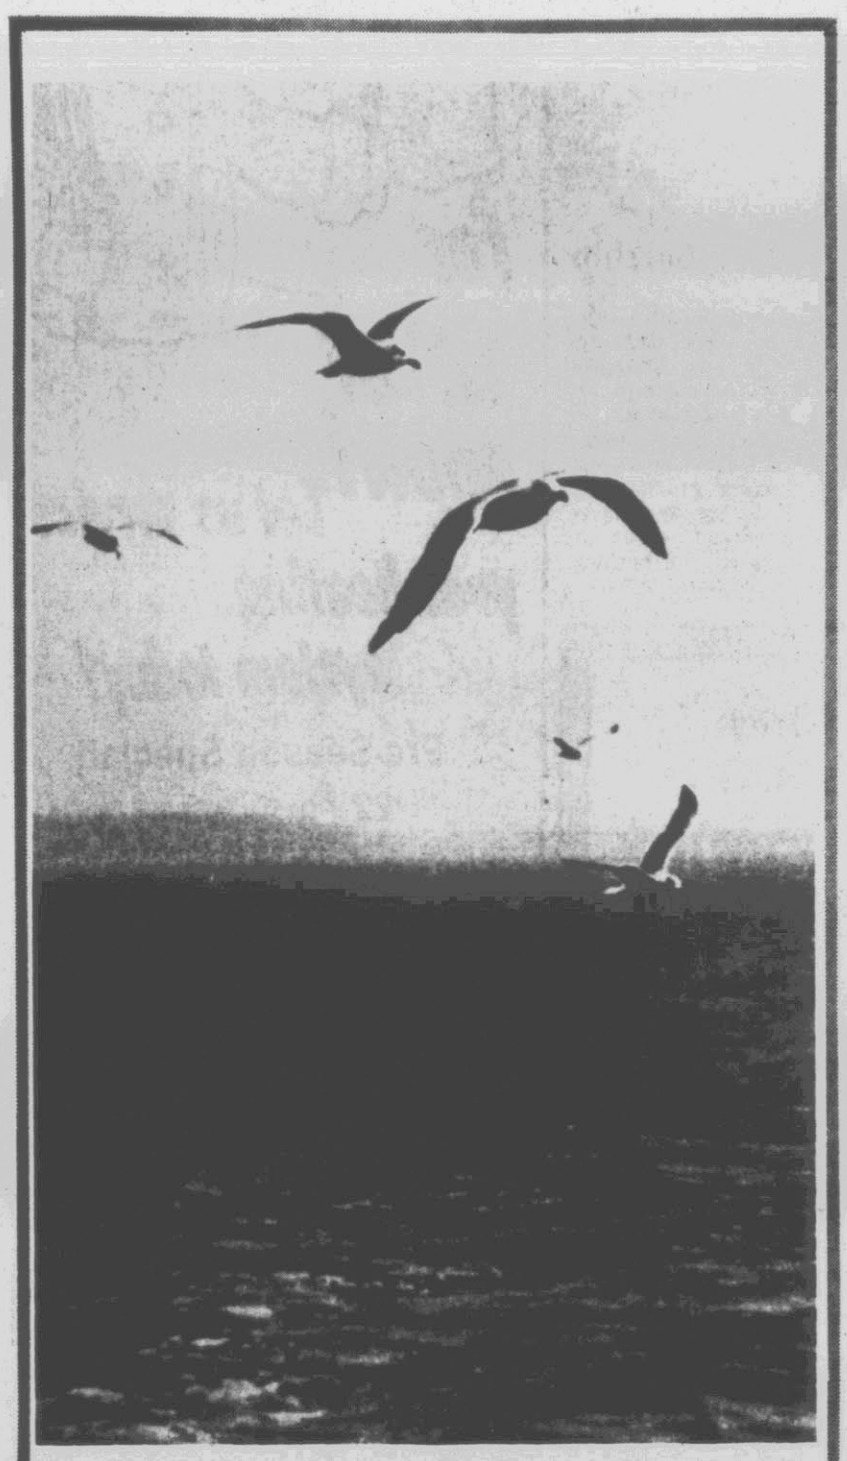

In the United States, 53.4 percent of the peanuts grown are marketed for domestic food uses (peanut butter and confections); 26.8 percent are crushed for oil; 9.9 percent are exported and 7.1 percent are used as seed. The small number remaining are sold to be parched or boiled.

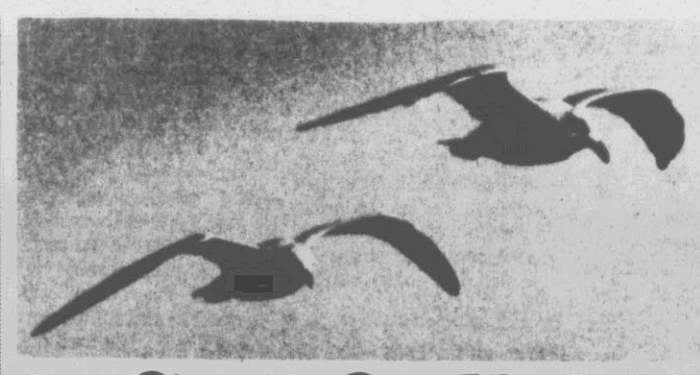

NO PART OF THE PEANUT PLANT IS WASTED...After the nuts are harvested from the plants, the plants can be raked and baled for forage. Peanut forage, like peanuts themselves, has high nutritional value for livestock. The empty peanut shells can also be used by nurseries for mulch. High quality nuts go for cocktail peanuts and confections. Lower quality ones go into peanut oil, peanut butter, and seed. Those that are too large for planters can be bagged and sold for boiling and parching.

COMBINING . . . Peanuts are combined after they are dug and dried for a few days. A V-shaped digger goes underneath the plant and cuts the tap root, bringing the peanut to the top of the ground. After the moisture is eliminated, a combine like the one above strips the peanuts off the bushes. The machinery used to harvest peanuts is expensive and can't be doubled for other crops, which prevents more farmers from getting into peanut production.

Sea Gulls Are Great Show-Offs

A trip to any of North Carolina's beaches or estuaries usually means a confrontation with one of nature's greatest show-offs, the sea gull. Personality-wise, the sea gull is an enigma.

Independent, graceful creatures, gulls are capable of both proud survival and persistant begging. A scrap of bread convinces even the most resistant ones to drop their mask of indifference to the human race and join the flotilla of feathers fighting for food.

At other times, gulls keep their distance, hunting fish and gliding with the air currents. Cool and aloof, they eye the humans who invade their marine territories cautiously.

Whether they're clowning or being serious, gulls are entertaining. Swooping at minute flashes in the water, they can come out of a smooth flight and go into a 90 degree nosedive in an instant. Their ability to regain their composure after an unsuccessful swoop or an embarrassing landing is remarkable. If a gull misses a fish, he just splashes down in the water near the spot he misgauged, looking like he planned it that way all along. Bobbing like a Clorox-jug fishing marker or an over-sized cork, he waits until folks are no longer watching and takes to the air to try it again.

Of the gulls that grace the North Carolina coast, the two most common are the solid pearly white gull and the black and white variegated gull. The solid gull is the more widespread of the two. The second, less common bird is the dark-faced one that looks as though he just stuck his head in a bottle filed with black ink.

Then there's the story about the young gull that was spotted several miles out to sea by a fisherman. The bird was contently floating along on a piece of driftwood, his head cocked aside and his eyes shut.

Natural Stone, Light Create Inviting Outdoor and Indoor Life

By Jerry Bishop

Diamond-light windows, a glowing wood-burning fireplace, and annexed sun deck combine to fashion a living-dining room that sparkles with personality.

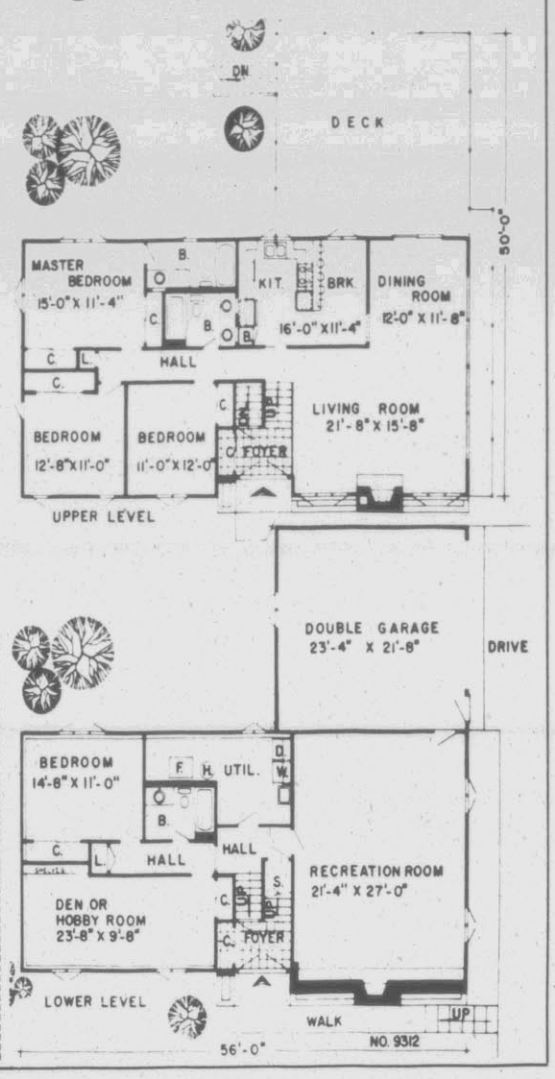

The foyer in the Ardan is the separating area for the lower and upper levels of this spacious contemporary home. On the upper level a living room flows into a dining area and onto a sun deck, designed for an easy traffic flow and expanded use of natural light for casual living. Nearby is a U-shaped kitchen, complete with breakfast nook and counter to invite quiet snacks or quick meals. A full bath with double vanity opens onto the hallway and two bedrooms are tucked into the front area of this level. To the rear is the master bedroom, with its own bath and double closets. In addition a linen closet is located in the hall and each of the other bedrooms of course have large closets.

On the lower level of the Ardan, a 21 by 27 foot recreation room is provided. This area is, in essence, free space, to be used by each family to suit its own particular tastes. It can go from ping-pong room to game room to hobby room to conversation corner, or it could provide a sleeping-living area for the boys of the family, or for the girls of the family. The possibilities are really quite limitless.

Also on this lower level is a fourth bedroom, a den or hobby room, a separate bath and a utility room. Roomy closets and a line closet round out the storage.

Each room in the Ardan is designed with lovely windows, with a feeling of air and light and space.

Scandinavian Design Has Indications Of A Revival

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Home-furnishings styles ebb and flow. What's popular in one decade goes out of style the next and then often makes a comeback.

Scandinavian home-furnishings design is an example of this process.

After a period of world influence which lasted from just after World War II until the early 1960s, Scandinavian design then went out of fashion. But there are indications that a revival of interest may soon take place in the United States.

A major exhibition of Viking art at New York's Metropolitan Museum this winter is expected to spark some interest. And home-furnishings authorities are beginning to talk about the practicality of simple, small-scaled Scandinavian furniture.

"It's so appropriate for the small spaces we are going to have to live with in the '80s. And it's a nice antidote to the bulky look we now have," explained Ronald Bulpin, a designer from Fort Lauderdale Fla., whose comments were seconded by a number of designers at a meeting recently in New York.

Today's emphasis on natural fibers and on living in harmony with the environment is in keeping with the basics of Scandinavian design. In the period following the war, Scandinavian designers taught the world to appreciate the beauty of natural materials. The smooth and bubbly quality of blown glass, undisguised wood surfaces left unstained or lightly oiled, unpolished leather and pottery glazes that resemble the earth continue to be distinguishing characteristics of Scandinavian design.

In the Scandinavian countries of Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden, design excellence in everyday objects, rather than flamboyant, individualistic pieces, is the goal. There appears to be less distinction between fine arts and applied arts than in the United States. And Scandinavian designers seem to have a more important role in determining the final looks of home-furnishings products than in this country.

It is traditional for home-furnishings manufacturers to seek out designers and to listen to them. The Danish ceramics manufacturer, Bing & Grondahl, for example, has a number of artists on its payroll. The artists, who earn salaries of some $25,000 a year, according to the company, are given studios and the freedom to work on whatever they wish.

They are asked to come up with ideas for new products for the company, but doing so is not a job requirement. Their one-of-a-kind studio work is exhibited at crafts shows.

According to Ebbe Simonson, president of the firm, the program has been in existence since the 19th century and benefits the company directly.

"It keeps us from getting stale and too oriented to the past," he said. "It gives every employee a sense of being part of a creative enterprise" and, thus, results in better products.

Among furniture makers, there is often a strong association between a designer and manufacturer who work together to bring the designer's work to fruition. A good design is expected to stay in circulation as long as it functions well and meets the needs of consumers.

Each of the Scandinavian countries has quasi-official arts and crafts societies to foster and promote traditional crafts and new industrial design at home and abroad.

In Denmark, for example, Den Permanente, the permanent exhibition of Danish arts and crafts, was founded in 1931. The society maintains several shops where objects for sale are chosen by a committee of artists and craftspersons.

In Norway, Husfliden has shops in most towns where the best arts and crafts, both hand and machine-made, are shown and sold.

Such groups help to keep the old skills alive by providing an outlet for the sale of objects made with these skills.

And these groups have kept intact a unified sense of Scandinavian design so that regardless of fashions and demand elsewhere in the world, the work remains vital in the Scandinavian countries.

Scandinavian design has influenced the world partly due to its rational approach. Functional studies of space requirements and design requirements for home furnishings were conducted in Sweden, for example, as far back as the 1940s.

As a result of such studies, a complete line of furniture for older people with diminishing strength and agility was developed. Another set of requirements discovered through research led to the design of furniture for small children. This childrens' furniture was imported into the United States and helped change American attitudes about furnishing children's rooms.

With such a rational attitude to the continuing problems of space usage and function, it seems clear that Scandinavian design will never disappear, even in periods when it goes out of fashion for a while.

Garden Clinic

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. Is fall a good time to add organic matter to my garden soil? What materials do you recommend? (J.C. Fayetteville)

A. Yes, fall is the best time to improve the organic matter content in your soil. Large amounts of peat moss, compost, grass clippings, barnyard fertilizer, shredded bark, leaves, and even newspapers can be mixed into the soil to improve drainage and aeration. Organic matter also allows better root development for next year's vegetable crops. (Larry Bass, extension horticultural specialist)

Q. I have wooden posts treated with copper arsenate supporting my grape vines and blackberries. Are they harmful to the fruit? (G.B., Buies Creek)

A. No. Many posts are pressure-treated commercially with copper chrome-arsenate preservatives. This reacts with the wood and does not wash out in service. Thus there is no danger of the chemicals harming the fruit. I would not recommend do-it-yourself treatment with copper arsenate. (Mike Levi, extension forest resources)

Q. Are there any varieties of apples and pears which are resistant to fire blight? (R.C., Lexington)

A. None are immune, but many varieties have some resistance. The Red Delicious apple is generally less affected by fire blight than other varieties. The more susceptible apple varieties are Jonathan, Golden Delicious, Lodi, Yellow Transparent and Stayman. Magness and Moonglow pears are relatively resistant to fire blight. Kieffer, Orient, Starks Delicious and Dawn have some resistance. Bartlett and Clapp's Favorite are highly susceptible. (D.F. Ritchie, extension plant pathologist)

Q. What is the recommended wood to use in building a deck? (J.F., Lumberton)

A. I would suggest southern yellow pine that has been pressure treated with waterborne salts. This pressure-treated lumber is odorless, paint and stain receptive, non-leaching, and cheaper than redwood. It is available all across North Carolina. Cypress, redwood and western red cedar heartwood are the most naturally durable woods for the South. However, these woods are much more expensive than southern yellow pine. (Kim Powell, extension landscape norticulturist.

Let's Talk Real Estate

by Connally Branch

There is no real difference between the meaning of the terms valuation, estimate of market value and appraisal. The first two are broader and tend to be economic in origin. They emphasize theory. Appraisal refers more to specific practice, methods and techniques. The worth of any such report is determined by the experience, sometimes the compensation, and certainly the qualifications and the motives of the individual behind it. Anyone can make an estimate of market value but an expert gives one that is the most reliable. Appraising is not an exact science, but it can be done skillfully and reliably by an expert, usually your real estate broker.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

If you put too many things into a bureau drawer, you might have a difficult time opening it. You could also have trouble opening and closing a drawer regardless of the size or nature of its contents.

A too-filled drawer usually opens part of the way, then gets stuck. Tugging at it gently will sometimes solve the problem, but a strong, impatient tug can damage the drawer or the object that is causing the jam. Try using a wooden ruler or some other tool to prod inside the drawer to dislodge the offending item.

If a drawer will not open even a little, insert the blade of a putty knife or something similar into the opening between the drawer and the bureau frame. Don't try to show how strong you are. Prod very carefully. If you get no result, see whether the bureau is so constructed that the contents of the drawer can be reached or the drawer itself pushed out by removing the drawer above or below it.

Should none of this work, then you have no choice but to take off the back of the bureau. In nearly all cases, this is not as difficult as it might seem. Usually the back of the bureau is made of thinner material than the frame and is attached in such a manner that it can be removed fairly easily. Once the back is off, you will be able to reach into the drawer to get at the contents or find some other way of loosening the drawer.

Even an empty bureau drawer will become balky if the runners or drawers are warped, or the drawer joints are loose, or the bottom of the drawer is pulling away from its frame, or something else is out of whack.

Your first step is to determine which of these problems is affecting that particular drawer. Let's say you examine everything carefully and can't find anything especially wrong. Nothing seems to be loose. The runners are tightly in place. The drawer seems solid.

In that event, try rubbing paraffin or some other lubricant along the sliding parts. Work the drawer back and forth a few times. Sometimes this is all that is required to get things working smoothly again.

If the drawer still sticks, sand the drawer edges and the slides, but this must be done very carefully. Sand a little, test a lot, since you do not want to remove too much wood. When you finally get the drawer moving back and forth smoothly, coat the sliding parts with a 50-50 mixture of shellac and denatured alcohol. Sealing the wood in this fashion will prevent moisture from entering it, which was probably the cause of the trouble in the first place.

If anything was loose during your original inspection, common sense will tell you how to repair it as long as you remember to work very carefully. Some parts of the drawer are very thin and can be damaged during a too-hasty repair job. Always use wood glue rather than screws or nails wherever possible.

If, during the inspection, you discover the drawer front has to be lifted slightly to open the drawer all the way, place a couple of thumb tacks in the runner at the front end. This will lift the drawer front slightly so that it slides easily.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much helpful information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666)

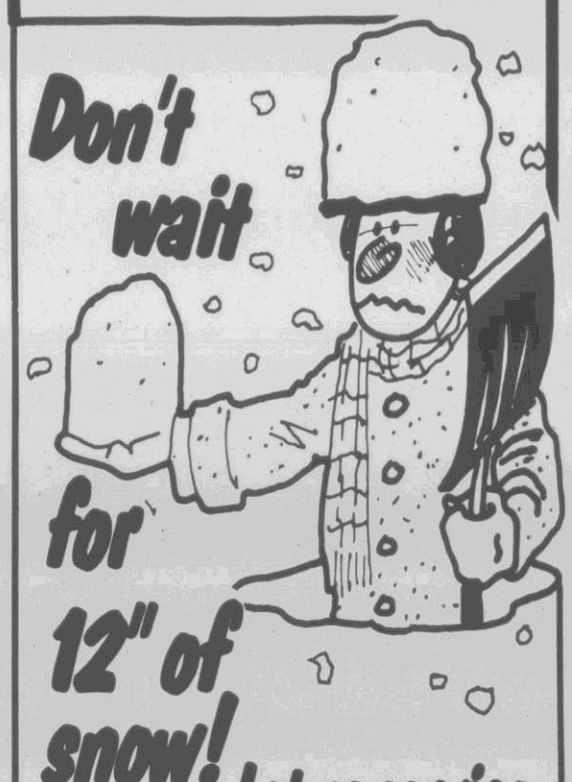

Register Rise In Membership

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time since the mid-1960s, the Episcopal Church has registered an increase in membership.

The Rev. John A. Shultz, statisical officer, says diocesan reports for 1979 show that baptized membership rose one-half percent to 2,841,350 and that baptisms increased 3 percent to 60,276.

RENTAL PROPERTY

The Housing Authority of the City of Greenville has been authorized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to provide Housing Assistance Payments for 75 housing units under the Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program. The program guarantees owners a fair market rent to repair and renovate existing housing units for low and moderate income families.

For further information call 752-3118 or write to Post Office Box 1426, Greenville, North Carolina, and request an Owners Proposal Package for the Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program

Priority to this program will be given to the South Evans, West Greenville, and West Meadowbrook neighborhoods in the Community Development Areas, which are illustrated on a map provided in the proposal package. Proposals are requested prior to October 31, 1980, and preproposal conferences will be scheduled with owners as required.

Gas Tankers Are Fought By Eskimos

By WILLIAM C. MANN
Associated Press Writer

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Haunted by fears for their way of life, Greenland's Eskimos are fighting to keep Canadian gas tankers away from their shores.

Their fight has seen some success, but is still far from won. Some Canadian officials maintain that if the Eskimos do succeed in stopping the tankers, it could be a major setback in Canada's energy plans.

At issue is the Arctic Pilot Project, an ambitious plan to deliver liquefied natural gas from Canada's high arctic to its eastern provinces, which now import natural gas from abroad even though the Canadian west has large reserves.

The planned tanker route is through the icy Davis Strait between Greenland and Canada.

"Nobody is officially protesting. There's nothing specific to protest," said T.S.E. Jones, first secretary of the Canadian Embassy in Copenhagen.

He referred to diplomatic-level complaints by Denmark, which handles foreign affairs for Greenland under a home-rule arrangement.

Nevertheless, opposition led by Greenland forced the petrochemical giant Petro Canada to scrub its original plans for the $1.5 billion project last July.

Its latest application for Canadian government approval, submitted in August, moved the proposed tanker routes more toward the center of the 300-mile-wide strait "to take into account the opposition of the Greenland people," Jones said.

"The Greenlanders claim the project will destroy the sources of their economy, fishing and sealing," he added. "In doing so it will destroy their way of life, which dates back hundreds of years."

John Monro, Canada's minister of Indian affairs and northern development, visited the 850,000-square-mile island last month to hear complaints of the Inuit, the tribal name of the Eskimos.

A report of his meeting with the Landsting, Greenland's 22-member Parliament, said representatives of the northern sealing districts rejected the project categorically.

They told Monro that the breaking of the ice, the noise from the tankers and the risk of oil pollution would destroy their traditional livelihood, the report said.

The project originally was scheduled to start in 1983, when lower Canada would begin receiving 250 million cubic feet of gas daily.

Jones said the approval process restarted in August should take three to four years, after which the Canadian Cabinet would make a final decision weighing political and diplomatic considerations.

"It is by no means certain that the project will be approved," he said.

The campaign against the project began in earnest early last summer when leaders of the 100,000 Inuit of Greenland, Canada and Alaska met to form the Inuit Circumpolar Conference. A resolution condemning the project was adopted overwhelmingly.

The 41,000 Greenland Inuit got further support from a member of Monro's delegation, Peter Ittinaur, elected by Canadian Inuit to that country's Parliament. He claimed Ottawa has not included Inuit representatives in discussions about the project.

If the project falls through, current technology seemingly could not exploit rich new gas fields in Canada's North West Territories that Petro Canada claims have cost $600 million for exploration since 1961.

"Much of the high arctic is shifting ice, and a pipeline (to lower Canada) would last one or two days," Jones said.

Canada now ranks fourth among the world's natural gas producers behind the United States, the Soviet Union and the Netherlands. Canadian wells sent 3.16 trillion cubic feet of natural gas into world markets in 1977, 6 percent of the world's marketed production.

HOMESTYLE

See the inside story for ideas and product information that will help you to make your home more liveable.

Myriad of decorative ideas for the home

Homestyles today reflect needs of modern times

It is no simple task to "keep the home fires burning" these days. In recent years, rising energy costs and spiraling inflation have prompted homeowners and apartment dwellers alike to establish homestyles which are increasingly economical.

An economical household, however, need not mean that comfort and decoration be sacrificed. It simply means that planning must be thorough, and decisions carefully made.

Today's consumers are setting up house on a more permanent basis than their peers of a decade ago. Decorating items, such as carpets, tiles, wallcoverings and furniture, are being selected for their durability, while items such as shelves, mirrors and other accessories are being selected for their versatility.

Planned efficiency

A wise investment can be a money-maker in the long run. The resale value of a piano or whirlpool bath, for example, increases with time, and gives the owner considerable pleasure as well.

Made wisely, changes in home decoration can increase the energy efficiency of a house or apartment. Ceilings, carpets and draperies act as insulators against both heat and cold, while at the same time adding to the decor of a room.

Energy efficiency should not be restricted to the use of fossil fuels, however. Economizing on the expenditure of human energy for household chores is equally important in our modern society.

Sign of the times

Homestyles have changed since the days when grandmother spent hours putting up jams or stuffing pillowcases with feathers. Today, nearly half of the working force in the U.S. is comprised of women, many of whom are working mothers.

As a result, the modern woman finds herself confronted with two demanding roles: that of career person, and that of homemaker.

Simplify housework

Cutting down on the time-consuming task of housekeeping is therefore of primary importance to today's busy homemaker.

There are a number of modern appliances that will do just that: microwave ovens, slow-cooking pots, and space-saving organizers, to name just a few.

Stain-resistant fabrics, tiles and countertops are also time savers when it comes to cleaning.

In addition, furniture should be arranged to allow maximum freedom of movement, so that maneuvering with a vacuum or dust mop becomes quick and easy.

Consider the possibilities

Decorating a home today takes more variables into account than ever before. Today's fast pace lends itself to a homestyle that is efficient as well as comfortable, practical as well as imaginative.

Considering the variety of household products on the market today, economics of time, space or energy never has to mean an economy of imaginative decoration!

Elegant walls are back in vogue

By LIS KING

Elegance and romance have returned to the world of wall fashions and will stay with us through most of the '80s.

So goes the happy message from David Hardie and Jerry Papia, two of the country's foremost wallcovering designers.

"People are again turning to oriental themes, French prints, floral designs reminiscent of English chintzes, and such traditional textures as silks, damasks and linens," says Papia, who designs for the Thomas Strahan Company.

Hardie, chief of styling for Style-Tex, concurs, but adds that for transitional and contemporary rooms the metallic sheen of mylar is making a strong comeback.

"But it's not a harsh look," says Hardie. "It's very low-keyed, almost leaves the same impression as antique metal . . . and the mylar motifs are quite different from the supergraphics of the early '70s.

"Today, the themes are soft and romantic: bamboo stalks, wildflowers, forsythia branches . . ."

Very new on the wallcovering scene are groups of multiple coordinated patterns and great emphasis on companion fabrics.

"Design and color coordinated patterns are not new, of course," says Papia. "But there used to be just two of them, usually a large-scaled floral and a small geometric.

"Now we're designing whole groups of go-together patterns, both in wallcoverings and fabrics. And this gives the creative do-it-yourself decorator lots of elbow room.

"With all those mix-and-match patterns ranging from quiet to bold, she can coordinate an entire room—walls, window treatments, slipcovers, pillows, lamp shades, etc."

Just how do wallcovering designers know what people will want in their homes next year and even in years to come?

Hardie and Papia agree that color preferences in home furnishings follow women's fashions closely.

Says Hardie, "It's natural . . . The eye gets accustomed to a certain color and gravitates towards it when it's time to decorate.

"Lately, peach and wine colors have been big women's fashion successes, for example. Well, peach is already predominant in wallcoverings and fabrics, and now the wine hues are making strong inroads."

But how about design? Well, there you have to be a psychologist and sociologist.

Explains Papia, "Decorating a home is an emotional business, and most people reflect what's going on around them. If the times are troubled, there's a tendency to create restful home atmospheres."

Adds Hardie, "The poster-graphic wallcoverings and hard-edged furnishings of the early '70s came in the aftermath of the op and pop fads of the '60s.

"Finally tired of this turbulent period, we turned to earth-tones and the natural look, feeling that this would create serenity.

"Just recently this look began to bore rather than soothe. And now tight budgets and the energy shortage are creating a psychological need for luxury and the romance of other places, other times.

"So, suddenly, we're seeking out the watermarked silks, ribbon motifs, and romantic batik prints reminiscent of Josephine's Paris, Scarlett's Tara and gentle islands everywhere."

All that luxury and romance is quite affordable, by the way. Wallcoverings and fabrics for a whole room will cost less than a new sofa, and yet do more than a grand piano or a rare oriental rug.

Hang the wallcovering yourself and save extra dollars. A new leaflet takes you every fun and easy step of the way.

For the leaflet, send $1.00 to Style-Tex, National Gypsum Decorative Products Division, 10 New England Executive Park, Burlington, MA 01803.

Make home a dream

Picture your dream house. Is it a sprawling ranch house, a dignified 20th century townhouse, or a Cape Cod style clapboard house? Is it modern or traditional, or a mixture of both?

What about the interior? Do you picture cozy rooms with fieldstone or brick fireplaces, or do you imagine ultra-modern, streamlined furniture?

Is the view from the living room window an expanse of trees, or the hustle and bustle of city streets far below?

As you take stock of this, you will begin to realize the sort of person you are—and the sort of home in which you would like to be living.

If the latter is relatively close in style to your present abode, great!

If not, now may be the time to think about changing it, to fit in with your ideal.

Whether your changes are as major as reroofing or residing your home, or as small as the purchase of a few new knick-knacks to display in the living room, they'll make you feel "at-home."

Create a tropical paradise indoors

PUT A TOUCH OF THE TROPICS in your home all year round. This multi-purpose room is furnished with casual rattan upholstered modules in citrus green. The rattan motif is repeated on the floor and in the upholstery fabric. The greens combine with yellow and naturals to provide a comfortable, cheery setting. Reflections from the mirror give a feeling of added space and abundant greenery. The window treatment is unusual, yet easy to duplicate, by combining rattan panels with Flexalum Decor Blinds in bitter lemon. The blinds enhance the sunny effect of the whole room, while controlling light and heat.

Chimneys Need A Good Sweep

RALEIGH — Renewed interest in wood and coal for home heating has revived an old and traditional skill in North Carolina — chimney sweeping.

"Master Sweeps" still use the wire brushes and rods for cleaning chimneys that they have used for over 100 years. But today's "sweeps" also have highpowered vacuum systems.

Chimney sweeping is important because wood and coal, when burned, give off a by-product called "creosote". Creosote can build up to several inches thick in the flue of the chimney. It is highly flammable and dangerous.

Creosote can be flaky or hard and it resembles tar. The only sure way to know if your chimney has a buildup of creosote is to inspect it. You can inspect the chimney yourself,using a mirror or flashlight if necessary, or you can call in a chimney sweeep to make the inspection.

If creosote deposits are found, you again have two choices — try to clean the chimney yourself or turn the job over to a professional chimney sweep.

John Jamnick, a Master Sweep of Fayetteville, says a chimney sweep will take about two to two-and-a-half hours, depending on what he finds.

He will either "sweep" from the the bottom or top, Jamnick said. If he sweeps from the bottom of the fireplace, he will use lightweight, screw-together rods with wire brushes attached to fit your flue. If he sweeps from the top, he will go on the roof and use a wire brush with a weight attached.

"Both methods do a quick and thorough job," Jamnick said. Soot, creosote and debris that comes down the chimney will be vacuumed up, causing no mess in the home.

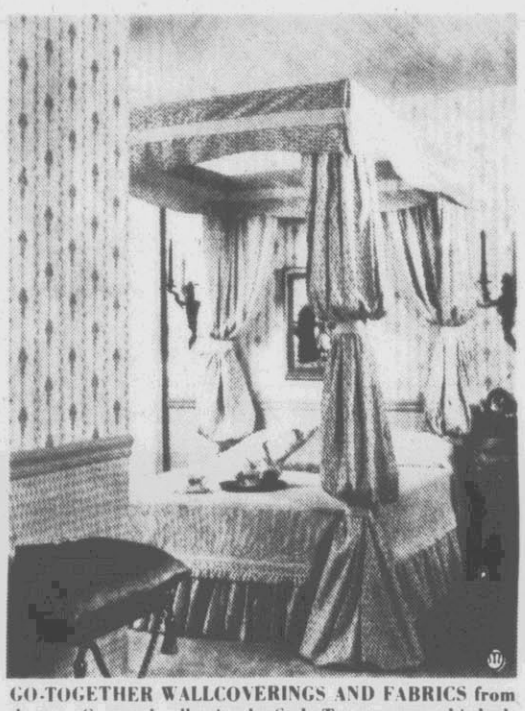

Jamnilck believes the professional cleaning methods are better than homemade methods using chains, brushes or "live chickens dropped down the chimney once a month."

Jamnick is especially concerned about homes in which free-standing woodstoves or fireplace inserts have been installed. "It is imperative that the flues and chimneys connected with these installations be inspected at least once a year," he said.

Creosote builds up much quicker with a woodstove than with a fireplace, he said. This is because of the slower, cooler fires, which aids creosote formation, and the bends and angles in some woodstove installations, which make perfect places for deposits of creosote.

Jamnick is a firm believer inusing wood and coal to save petroleum fuels, but points out that maintenance is an important part of getting coal and woodburning units to work efficiently and safely.

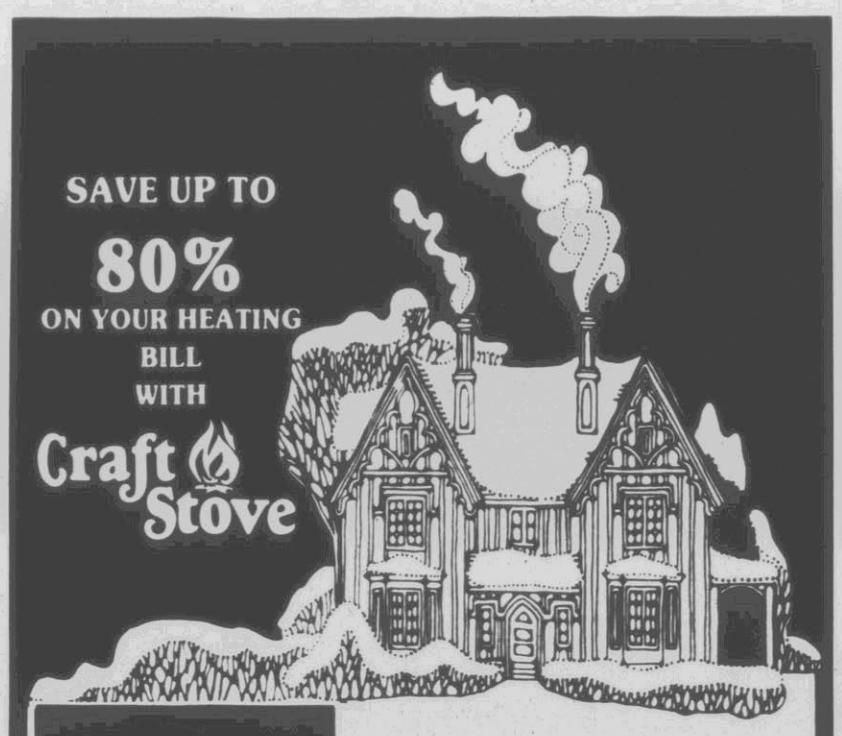

"Where there is wood and coal smoke, there will be creosote," he says.

Dinnerware perks up a party

Summer is on the way and it's time to start planning patio parties, barbecues and impromptu buffets.

Arriving right on time for all occasions is Lily's "Party Porcelain™", the newest in disposable dinnerware.

It's biodegradable

Lily's new collection is beautiful and practical. "Party Porcelain™" makes it easy for the hostess to express imagination while feeling confident that Lily's quality crafted designs will "wow'em."

"Party Porcelain™" comes in red, blue, yellow and green colors. It will not bend, resists moisture and cutlery marks, and is excellent for use in microwave ovens.

"Party Porcelain™" is coated with a glossy laminated plastic film but is 99 percent biodegradable.

Makes living easy

Cups are made from durable insulated foam—perfect for hot or cold drinks—and matching napkins are 3-ply luxury tissue.

So, in the summertime when the living should be easy but sometimes isn't, expect the unexpected and make your next unrehearsed party a summer sensation with trend-setting "Party Porcelain™"

It's perfect for lighthearted lunches, cheery sunrise breakfasts, dazzling dinner parties, champagne celebrations and midnight snacks with pizzaz.

For more information write: Lily, Inc. 245 N. Main St., Old Town, ME 04468.

PARTY-PERFECT disposable dinnerware is both beautiful and practical. Lily's new collection, "Party Porcelain™" is available in red, blue, yellow and green, will not bend, resists moisture and cutlery marks, and can be used in a microwave oven. Cups are made from durable insulated foam, perfect for hot or cold drinks, and matching napkins add the finishing touch at patio parties, barbecues and last-minute buffets.

Keep pace with changing home scene

Decorative accessories should be just as much a part of any redecorating plan as new paint or wallpaper, carpeting, furniture or window treatments.

"It's all too easy to become permanently wedded to items like mirrors, pictures and plaques just because they don't wear out," observed Mary Ann Wills, Burwood Products Company decorating consultant.

"But when they've worn out their welcome by no longer contributing to the total effect, then it's time for some changes."

These days, for example, many families who have tired of Spanish and Mediterranean furnishings are shifting to something else.

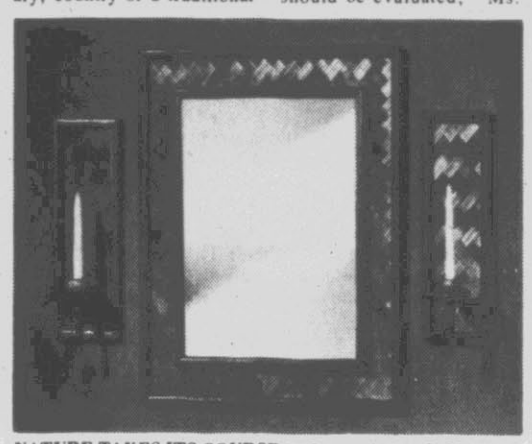

If the switch is to contemporary, country or a traditional style, some of their accent pieces are likely to look out of place.

When an accessory becomes inappropriate to its setting, it should be either discarded or used elsewhere and a new piece found to take its place.

To complement furnishings in country or contemporary style, for example, there are new Burwood coordinated collections of mirrors, clocks, sconces and framed prints keyed to the natural look.

One group combines natural woven bamboo with wood moldings, while others offer grasscloth, basketweave and cork.

"Each time a family moves or refurnishes, accessories should be evaluated," Ms. Wills said. "Refurnishing, in the case of the typical family, is likely to occur least twice in the family's lifetime, possibly more."

NATURE TAKES ITS COURSE in decorating, aided by Burwood Products Company, Traverse City, Mich. Woven bamboo-and-wood-framed mirror and sconces are from new Festival collection of coordinated wall decor. Plate glass mirror, 25 by 31 inches, is priced at about $49.95, 17-inch tall sconces at $29.95 the pair. Matching quartz clocks and framed prints are available.

It begins with setting up the first home. Choices of furniture and accessories at this stage are often dictated by a restricted budget as well as limited space.

Later, when the family has moved to larger quarters and children have outgrown their more inquisitive stages, refurnishing is in order.

Pieces bought earlier may be moved to the family room or a second home, making way for more sophisticated and more expensive furniture.

Still later, as children grow up and leave the nest, the couple may move to smaller, more efficient quarters.

Some furnishings are retained, but to them are added new items more in keeping with the style and scale of the smaller home.

Through the intervening years, other things happen. Walls are repainted or papered, draperies and floor-coverings are replaced, and furniture is re-upholstered. In other words, things are kept up to date.

"But what of those tired wall accessories that really don't fit in anymore?" Ms. Wills asked. "If your living room contains such pieces that you can't bear to part with, at least try to find them another home—massed with other oldies in the breakfast room or family room, perhaps.

"Then enjoy the pleasure of selecting something new—and just right—for those empty spots in your pride-and-joy living room."

WHETHER MAKING CANDY, JAMS or other types of sugar cookery, using a microwave oven can be faster and require less fuss than with conventional methods. The Radarange® Microwave Oven Touchmatic™ Candymaker adds another dimension to the process. It is a special temperature probe with settings ranging between 200°F and 310°F. The Candymaker offers consumers more accurate temperature reading of sugar cookery than standard candy thermometers and is designed specifically for the Radarange Touchmatic microwave oven, models RR-10A and RR-9TA. A recipe booklet is included in the kit. Many of these recipes and cooking tips will be demonstrated at candy making classes held by Amana dealers and distributors across the country.

If you've been a secret admirer of Victorian furnishings—afraid to let it out lest the modernists snicker—you can come out of the closet now.

And bring with you that overstuffed divan, that gigantic rococo sideboard, that imperial floor lamp with fringed shade. Victoriana's back in vogue.

Actually, it was never out. Though contemporary tastes lean more to the sleek and understated, even the most up-to-date decor reflects interior design principles that originated or came to full flower in the "Gilded Age."

Take a moment to study the adjacent photo—a recreation of a Victorian sitting room by the interior designers at Armstrong. How many distinctively Victorian interior design precepts can you discern?

Here are three major ones:

• Pattern, Pattern Everywhere–Our 19th century ancestors had a passion for pattern and texture. They insisted that all room surfaces—ceiling, floor and walls—earn their keep in the decorating scheme of things.

Out of the past

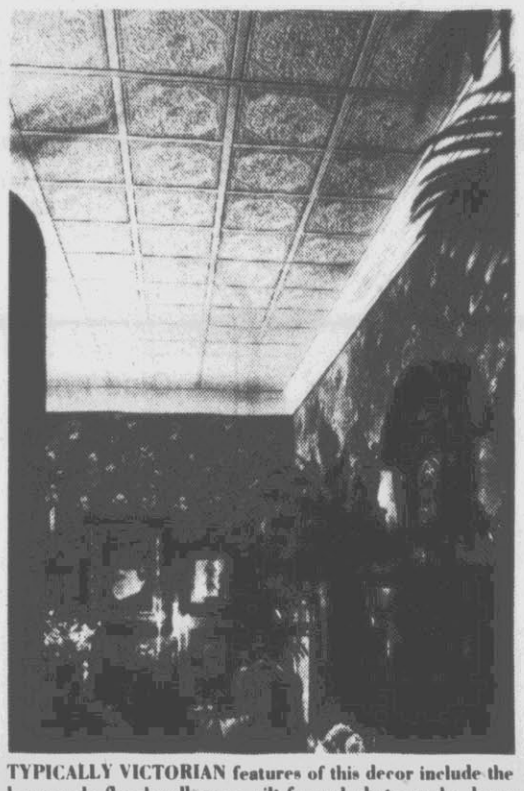

Notice in the photo the large-scale floral wallpaper and ornate ceiling design. The ceiling looks like the kind of sculptured plaster only an empire-era duke or earl could afford, but it's actually a suspended ceiling called "Victoria."

The 2'x4' panels and metal grid are color-matched. They are an easy, inexpensive way for do-it-yourselfers to add a regal touch to a special room.

• Let's Be Eclectic–Most rooms today aren't totally done in a single motif (Colonial, Mediterranean, etc.); they're mixtures of several different styles.

Designers call this "eclecticism," and the Victorians were probably its first and foremost practitioners. They borrowed decorating ideas from every conceivable historical period and world region.

Though not hodgepodgy like some Victorian decors, the room in our photo draws inspiration from many sources.

TYPICALLY VICTORIAN features of this decor include the large-scale floral wallpaper, gilt-framed photographs, large palms and massive parlor cabinet. The ornate ceiling design—another "Gilded Age" favorite—looks like sculptured plaster but is actually an acoustical suspended ceiling from Armstrong called "Victoria."

At right, for example, a medieval influence is reflected in the massive Gothic parlor cabinet; a Far Eastern influence in the brass peacocks atop the cabinet; and a French Louis XVI influence in the armchair.

• Accessories Never Excessive–"The more the better" was the Victorian rule of thumb for accessorizing a room.

Application of this rule often led to a cluttered look, but the intent was admirable: to make the home a cozy refuge from the increasingly industrialized world outside.

Victorian heritage

The accessories in the tastefully finished room in the photo are typically Victorian. The gilt-framed family portraits evoke the period's fascination with the newly introduced art of photography.

The bell jar with floral arrangement inside was a standard ornament, as were the plants Victorians loved to festoon their rooms with—hanging from the ceiling, on wall shelves, in floor stands.

In fact, affluent homes had special areas, called conservatories or solariums, just for displaying plants.

Itching, chafing and dry skin? Maybe you are allergic to household chores

You've heard about "dishpan hands." Maybe you've even heard about "housewives' eczema," the "in" term for dry, irritated skin.

Whatever the terminology, allergic reactions to household products may be more common than you had ever before suspected.

Household irritants

An estimated 10 to 15 percent of skin allergies that prompt visits to the doctor are caused by housework. Strong detergents, cleansers and solvents are particularly irritating to the skin.

While pinpointing the exact cause of a skin allergy is often difficult, the symptoms are all too familiar: a localized rash, an annoying itch, painful cracking and scaling of the skin.

Relief from itching is the first step in treating an allergy. This is necessary not only to provide comfort, but also to eliminate the danger of infection from continued scratching.

Relief can be found by applying a hydrocortisone product, such as Cortaid from The Upjohn Company, to the affected area. Cortaid is available as a cream, lotion or ointment, and is the first hydrocortisone product available without a prescription.

The only way to be completely rid of an allergy is to remove its cause. In some cases it is obvious; in others, the cause may never be determined. In such a situation, the individual should avoid contact with all suspicious substances.

Protective gloves should be worn to prevent exposure while working with possible irritants. For greater comfort, use cotton-lined rubber gloves and powder the inside to prevent perspiration.

Exercise caution

Avoid contact with excessively hot water—another cause of rough, chapped hands. Try to use long-handled brushes whenever possible for dishwashing and other household chores.

You may also want to use laundry detergent more prudently. Too often, detergent residue remains on clothing, sheets and towels after the rinse cycle.

Bring flowers and plants indoors this fall

Spruce up your table this Thanksgiving with flowers

The presence of dried wheat at Thanksgiving celebrations throughout the ages has made it symbolic of giving thanks. Part of the custom of displaying the wheat is to arrange it with seasonal flowers.

Among the flowers available at Thanksgiving time at the florist's are chrysanthemums, proteas, lilies and carnations.

There are many kinds of mums — the large, football kind, pompons and standard mums. They come in an assortment of autumn colors — gold, maroon, rust, bronze and orange.

Among lilies, the orange varieties are most appropriate for Thanksgiving decorations. While they make up a bountiful arrangement for the main table, a few sprays of red carnations might garnish the serving table nearby.

A very special flower that is ideal for Thanksgiving decorations is protea. This large, rather extraterrestrial-looking bloom comes shaped like a star or a cone, and its colors are the traditional Thanksgiving yellows, oranges and reds.

Proteas dry naturally without losing their shape or color, and they will stay attractive for a year or more.

If your family likes everything in the Thanksgiving feast to be homemade, you can make your own floral centerpieces. All you need besides flowers are a sharp knife, and floral conditioner and foam from the florist.

A choice container is a wicker basket. You can line it with a glass or plastic bowl that holds water. Scrub the bowl with water and detergent to disinfect it and prolong flower life.

Then, using the knife, recut the stems of all the flowers. To create a pleasing floral composition, cut the stems to different lengths. Remove at least one-half inch from each stem, making a diagonal cut, which improves water intake.

Then, cut a block of floral foam to fit into the bowl. Fill the bowl with tepid water and begin arranging your flowers.

Insert the tallest ones in the center first, then fill in the sides with the flowers with shorter stems. A few wisps of dried wheat add the finishing touch. Set the bowl into the basket.

To prolong the life of your Thanksgiving flowers, add some floral conditioning powder to the water. This conditioner inhibits the growth of bacteria and can increase the life of flowers by as much as 50 percent.

That way, your flowers will last for many days after your Thanksgiving feast — and you'll be giving thanks for that!

WOULD YOU LIKE TO SPRUCE UP your Thanksgiving table? Your local florist has mums, lilies, carnations, proteas and other flowers in assorted autumn colors. Try combining these cut flowers with dried wheat — the traditional symbol of giving thanks — for a festive holiday centerpiece.

IT'S EASY TO ARRANGE FLOWERS yourself to decorate your home. This one, containing a few daisies, carnations and roses, brightens up the bathroom. Depending on which kinds of vases and flowers you use, you can create arrangements for the dining room table, kitchen and bedroom, too.

Create flower arrangements that add a touch of warmth to a room

Flower arranging requires no formal instruction, just a love of color and fragrance, an eye for what looks good where, and the desire to create. Here are three different styles of flower arrangements that you can make yourself to decorate your home.

The first is a small, pin cushion-shaped design of carnations, daisies and a few roses arranged in a shallow container, such as a ceramic bowl.

Begin by cutting the flower stems to slightly different lengths. Insert the longest stemmed mum at the center and, rotating the bowl, insert the other, shorter flowers, alternating mums and daisies.

The final arrangement will be small and pert, a decorative accent on a low coffee table.

The second arrangement, taller but still as casual as the first, is composed of 10 or 12 carnations and six sprigs of huckleberry foliage. For this arrangement, a pitcher or teapot is an appropriate container.

Cut a block of floral foam (available at florist shops) to fit inside the container. Insert huckleberry sprigs into the foam with the bulk of the sprigs toward the spout.

Then, fill in with the carnations. The tallest flower should be nearest the spout of the pitcher or teapot, and the others should be placed so that they descend toward the handle.

This casual arrangement makes a charming centerpiece on a lunch table, or even on a kitchen counter or night table.

The third arrangement is more formal, a suitable decoration for a dinner party. It consists of six red roses, 12 sprigs of podocarpus foliage, a few stems of baby's breath and a transparent vase about six inches tall.

Instead of using floral foam, which can look obstructive in a clear vase, crisscross the stems of the flowers and foliage to hold them in place.

Set podocarpus of different heights so that they cascade around the neck of the vase. Foliage stems should reach the bottom of the vase...in order to support the roses.

Next, place the rose bud with the longest stem in the center of the vase. Fill in with the other rose bud stems of gradually decreasing length. The finished design should be triangular.

The flower arrangement will be most symmetrical if you rotate the vase as you add the flowers. Make sure the rose blooms don't touch each other — each rose should be distinct from everything else in the arrangement. Relocate any podocarpus that hides a rose.

Regardless of the style in which you plan to arrange them you should recut the stems of all flowers as soon as you get them home. Cut at least one-half inch on a slant from each stem using a sharp knife rather than a scissors. (Scissors pinch the stems and inhibit water intake.)

In addition, arrange flowers in tepid water and mix floral conditioning solution with the water to prolong the life of the flowers.

Nothing adds a touch of warmth to a home like fresh flowers. Whether they decorate the bedroom, living room, entrance hall, bathroom or kitchen, flower arrangements are extra special if you arrange them yourself.

Lock up garden freshness

Gardening is one of the few hobbies that pays for itself. Even small gardens can save big dollars, with big benefits: economy, enjoyment, the healthiness of working outdoors, home-grown nourishment and the personal satisfaction that goes with "I grew it myself."

City dwellers with big windows or access to rooftops or patios can also cut grocery bills. Vining plants such as string beans can be planted on trellises.

A colorful cascade can be created with three or four tiers of planter boxes filled with peppers, eggplant, squash and cherry tomatoes.

Growing is only half the story. What to do with what you can't or don't want to eat right away is the other half.

There are definite advantages to freezing foods as opposed to other methods of storage — frozen foods retain far more vitamins and nutritional value, and are faster to prepare.

Growing and cooking in bulk for freezing saves money, energy, time and increasing fuel costs.

Air is one of food's worst enemies, so only the finest storage containers would be used.

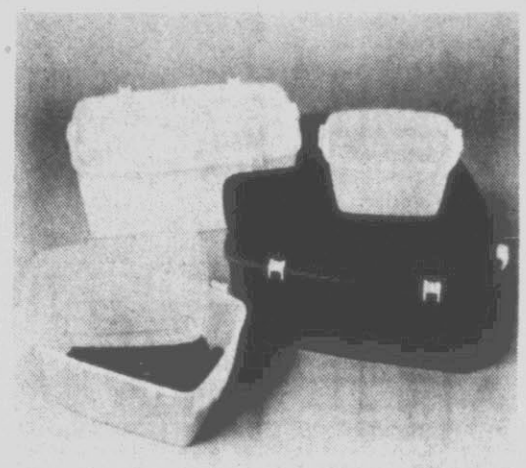

Cheap plastic containers, not designed to withstand freezing temperatures, will become brittle and crack, leaving the contents unprotected.

Hammarplast, Inc., recently introduced Food Lockers — high impact polyethylene containers in a space saving rectangular design with the unique double-seal protection of press-lock lids and sturdy plastic clamps that secure freshness.

Food Lockers' air tight storage ability prevents freezer burn, messy spills and the loss of color, flavor, moisture and valuable nutrients.

Food Lockers are ideal for all frozen foods — sandwiches, cakes, vegetables, fruit and meat, as well as liquid freezables such as soups and stews.

Dishwasher safe Food Lockers come in sizes ranging from 1 quart to 1½ gallons. Available at department stores everywhere or write to: Hammarplast, Inc., 212 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10010.

LOCK IN VITAMINS AND NUTRITIONAL VALUE by freezing fresh produce that you can't or don't want to use immediately. Plastic storage containers, such as Hammarplast's Food Lockers, which are made to withstand freezing temperatures, are ideal. An added plus, the unique double-seal protection of press-lock lids and sturdy plastic clamps secures freshness.

Add zest to rooms

Area rugs are big news decoratively. People are realizing that a beautiful rug does not replace their cherished wall-to-wall carpet—but is an addition to a room, often giving the extra touch of zest in color, pattern or texture that can turn a bland room into an exciting one.

There are two points to bear in mind when buying an area rug. The first is the stunning ability of a well-placed area rug to create the feeling of a room within a room.

This is particularly true when it is used in an open space plan where living room, hall and dining area flow into one another without intervening walls.

Then, an area rug will create an "island" that, when furnished with comfortable seating and a good lamp, makes a pleasant yet unconfined space for someone to sit, read, relax, do telephoning, listen to music or watch television.

In a fairly large multipurpose room, an area rug can mark off the dining space or a corner with a game table, giving visual distinction at the same time.

And its traditional use, in entrance hall or passage, sets the mood for the whole house—lively or tranquil as the owners wish.

The second point to remember is that an area rug is like a fashion accessory and should be used in the same way.

Whirlpool bath for home

SOOTHING, MASSAGING ACTION of a whirlpool bath was once the exclusive province of athletic training rooms and health clubs. But now it has come home, according to Sears spring-summer catalog. The new combination tub and hydro-massage unit—roomier than a standard bathtub—can be installed in the same five-foot area of the bathroom. Inside the tub, four finger tip-controlled jet spray nozzles provide massage action and recirculate up to 77 gallons of water per minute. The whirlpool bath, contour designed with arm rests, has a molded top edge to reduce water spills and a timer. It is available for about $1,200 plus charge for installation.

New look in carpeting makes decorating easy

Decorating is now easier than ever before—thanks to a new dyeing process that creates a totally new look in carpeting.

The new process, called Vividye™, applies a random flow of color to the carpet surface.

The result? Elegant abstract designs of harmonious colors that blend together just as the colors in a piece of fine marble.

Decorating is easier because furnishings and accessories can be selected to complement or accent any of the highlight tones in the carpeting.

Different color tones

Vividye, available only from Galaxy Carpet Mills, was first introduced in Aquarella, a cut-and-loop construction available in nine different color combinations.

According to Galaxy's Consumer Fashion Director Marti Hill, this new carpet received such extraordinary consumer response that the company introduced three additional Vividye items, including a dense heavyweight nylon saxony carpet and two more cut-and-loops.

Color a mood

All of the new carpets are available in eight different colorations.

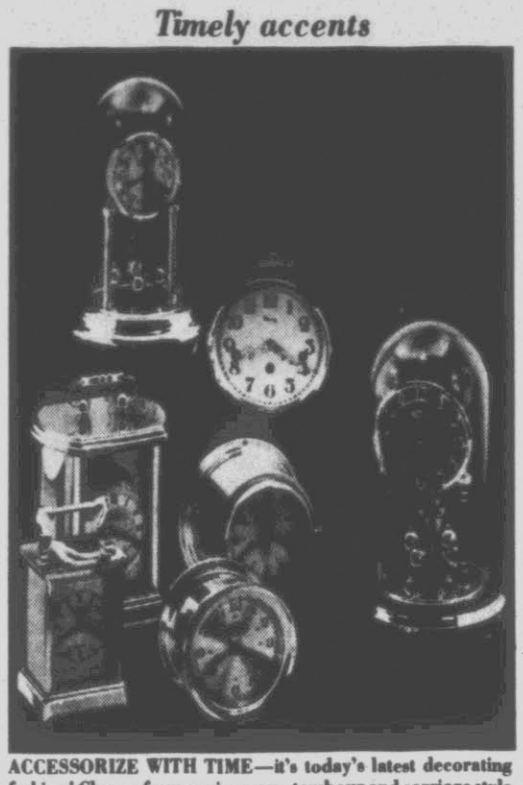

"Vividye carpeting creates moods from subtle to bold, from casual to formal, depending upon the colors that are used," Hill says.

"And because of the random shading and subtle highlights, Vividye virtually hides soil, so these carpets are as practical as they are beautiful."

Timely accents

ACCESSORIZE WITH TIME—it's today's latest decorating fashion! Choose from anniversary, tambour and carriage style in a new collection from Ridgeway, America's famous maker of traditional time pieces. Retails range from $99 to $299.

Creative and thrifty scrap-art projects

WALLCOVERING INSPIRES all kinds of creative touches. Here, a tiny flower sprig pattern called "Little Old New York" dresses up a room in more ways than one. Leftovers turn stock shutters into a window treatment and join colored papers to make eye-catching patchwork art. Wallcovering, from the new Wall-Tex Miniatures collection, is pre-pasted, but Elmer's Glue-All does the trick on the scrap art projects.

"I can't stand it anymore and I'm going to do something about it — right now!"

Ever look at a room in your house that way? The next time it happens, don't stay mad. You can do something wonderful for the room and yourself — right now!

Start with a quick trip to the nearest decorating store to pick up some wallcoverings.

Country prints

If it's been a while since you last looked, you'll find some delightful surprises — like super little country prints in easy pre-pasted form from the makers of Wall-Tex wallcoverings. In many stores, you can buy wallcoverings like these right off the rack!

New patterns on the wall can do wonders for a room. But that's not all. With the left-over scraps, you can create wall art, window treatments, even furniture.

It's a quick and fun way to fill your house with decorative touches that are personally yours.

To get you started, here are some ideas:

• Make a "patch-art" wall hanging. A wallcovering print and colored paper can be cut and pasted into a replica of your favorite patchwork pattern.

Trace the basic patchwork parts, cut them out of wallcovering and paper, then glue them onto a plywood panel.

Elmer's Glue-All is good for all kinds of projects like this. It gives you time to position your work, and holds securely. Mount panel on a frame before hanging.

• Decorate shutters. Stock shutters are one way to create an effective window treatment — and they get special charm when you decorate them with wallcovering panels. Frame the panels with glued-on molding or even colored tape.

• Dress up tables. Inexpensive cubes or parsons tables become custom furniture when you cover them with wallcovering.

Projects made easy

Think of the possibilities — especially in a family or children's room — when you have furniture covered with washable wallcovering in your favorite pattern!

All these projects are easy to do — and they're just for openers. These days, with more and more people using wallcoverings, magazines and books abound with scrap art projects.

WHEN KITTENS LEARN TO EAT, milk helps in the transition. However, since milk is high in ash (mineral matter), it's wise to eliminate it from the diet as soon as possible. A food specially designed for cats, available through pet shops and breeders, will nourish the kitten to achieve its full potential.

Bringing home a new kitten? Make sure diet is the best!

A new kitten—whether it comes from a neighbor, a shelter, a pet shop or a cattery—soon becomes an important member of your house.

If your kitten is to realize its full potential in growth, strength and beauty, you should give special attention to its diet from the start.

Like a human baby, a kitten responds best to a nutritionally superior diet. Check the pet shop, breeder, cattery or your veterinarian for their recommendations.

They may suggest a specially formulated diet, not available in supermarkets. Called Science Diet Feline, it was developed by veterinarians to offer the optimum nutrition to cats—whether they be kittens, adults or nursing mothers.

Beneficial feature

This food is also low in ash (mineral matter). Since f.u.s. (feline urinary syndrome, or urinary blockage) is thought to be related to diets which contain high levels of ash, this is a good plus.

How do you help the kitten make the transition to "real food" when he's used to "good ol' Mom?" Cow's milk may be used in the transition phase, but should be discontinued soon.

Here's what to do: With a fork or electric blender, mix a canned food, such as Science Diet Feline, with warm milk to form a gruel.

Feed this mixture for a day or two, gradually decreasing the milk portion, then eliminating it.

Next, by gradual steps, introduce the animal's "lifetime" food—and here, you may stay with canned, or switch to soft-moist or dry.

Feeding plan

Until the kitten is 12 weeks old, feed four or five times a day the amount he will eat in 20 minutes. Then feed three meals a day until he is six months old.

After six months, he'll do well on two feedings—or possibly one.

Have fresh water available at all times. This is extremely important if you are using soft-moist or dry food!

Your pet is entitled to the best food available—but this doesn't mean salmon or calf's liver.

From France, cuisine that sparkles, delights

French food is classic cuisine at its finest. It is also, increasingly, the rage.

From haute cuisine, which sparkles with special touches and expensive delicacies such as truffles, pate de fois gras and champagne, to hearty peasant fare from every region of France, to the newest wrinkle in the apron, cuisine minceur, an approach which combines haute cuisine technique with a reduced calorie approach, French food is finding favor in restaurants and homes alike.

As a result, the uninitiated is likely to find him or herself a victim of mass confusion, whether trying to decipher a menu while dining out or trying to follow a recipe in the kitchen at home.

Understanding certain basics is sure to enhance dining pleasure.

• Au gratin–refers to a dish which is sprinkled with cheese, then baked. Potatoes au gratin is a delectable casserole which combines potatoes, cheese, milk or cream and flavorings, and which is baked till brown.

• Saute–to fry lightly in a little fat. Depending on the region of France and the food being fried, butter, olive oil or plain vegetable oil is used.

Low-flame flavoring

Butter imparts a delicate flavor to meats, especially chicken and veal, but burns easily unless it has been clarified, so it should be used only over a low flame.

Olive oil used should be a good grade of virgin oil—it should be fruity to the taste. A good olive oil is ideal for salads or for vegetables sauteed till they're crunchy, not soft.

Vegetable oil is used in dishes where the flavor of the food is so strong as to mask the flavor of the oil in which it has been cooked, or when the flavor of the oil does not add anything to the dish.

• Fines Herbes–a flavorful mixture of herbs, such as chives, parsley, tarragon and thyme, used to enhance the taste of a wide variety of dishes, from omelettes to stews.

• Bouquet garni–flavorings, such as carrot, parsley, celery, tied up together in cheesecloth, and put into a stew, to add a savory taste.

When the stew is done, the bouquet garni, in its cheesecloth sack, is simply removed before serving.

• Souffle–a baked fluffy dish made with egg yolks and milk into which stiffly beaten egg whites have been folded.

May be an appetizer, main dish or dessert and may be made with everything from cheese to chocolate.

From across the ocean

Some familiar French dishes include

• Boeuf Bourguignonne–A stew of beef and vegetables prepared in a red wine sauce, in the manner of Burgundy;

• Boeuf en Daube–Also a stew of beef and vegetables, this one hails from the South of France, the Midi;

• Cassoulet–Stew of shell beans, pork, mutton and goose or duck, prepared in an earthenware crock which gives it its name;

• Choucroute–Cabbage cooked with sausages, this dish is a specialty of areas in France near the German border, such as Alsace and Lorraine;

• Coq au Vin–Chicken parts cooked with vegetables in a red wine sauce;

• Bouillabaisse–Fish stew which originated in Southern France, along the Mediterranean coast. Served as a main dish, accompanied by crusty bread;

• Vichyssoise–Cream soup of potatoes and leeks, served cold and garnished with chopped, fresh chives.

Quality water cuts down kitchen woes

Though haute cuisine may be finding its way into the hearts — and stomachs — of hungry Americans, many homemakers would just as soon put cooking on the back burner.

Plagued by stymied souffles and bungled bouillabaisse, they opt for the ease of nutritious meat and potatoes meals that are quick to prepare and free valuable time for other activities.

For people who do a slow burn at the sight of a cookbook, there are a number of tips for speeding both preparation and clean up time.

According to Water Quality Association, cooking or cleaning with conditioned or soft water can make light work of kitchen chores. Because the water has been rid of hardness minerals, it won't interfere with the natural taste of foods or the cleaning power of soaps and detergents.

Can't stand the heat?

They advise that, "if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen" . . . and a little faster, by following this advice.

When cooking . . .

• Boil potatoes in salt water before baking to hasten preparation time.

• Dry lettuce quickly by placing leaves in a clean pillowcase and spinning it for a few seconds.

• Get maximum taste out of peas, beans and other legumes by cooking in soft water. Because the water has been softened to remove hardness minerals, vegetables retain their color, hold their true taste, remain more tender and offer maximum nutritional value.

Clean-up tips

For cleaning up . . .

• Remember that heating the frying pan before adding shortening will prevent foods from sticking.

• Put foil beneath foods that may boil over in the oven and line broiler pans with foil to catch splatters.

• Before using a grater, grease it lightly with salad oil to facilitate easy clean-up.

• For quick clean-ups, wash dishes in soft water. Pots and pans will come clean with less effort, and detergent goes further when there are no hardness minerals to contend with.

Dishes can be air-dried because soft water eliminates streaking and spotting.

• Use paper or wax cups to store small leftovers. If they're not eaten, the whole thing can be quickly and easily discarded, cup and all.

Following these hints can shorten your stint in the kitchen and take much of the dread out of KP duty.

Answers to often-asked questions about ceilings

It's not surprising that spring is the traditional fix-up, spruce-up season. As the great outdoors reembellishes itself following the ravages of winter, homeowners get the urge to set things right in the great indoors.

Many spring refurbishers like to start at the top—by putting up new ceiling tiles or lay-in panels. Tiles are 12-inch squares cemented or stapled to the old ceiling; panels are 2' x 4' oblongs supported by a grid.

Ceiling tiles and panels are tried-and-true problem-solvers. They cover cracked plaster and exposed joists, lower too-high ceilings, add pattern to plain drywall.

Choosing is easy

Choosing the right ceiling for a given household project is easy. It becomes even easier with a little background information prior to visiting the store.

Here are some answers from Armstrong to questions frequently asked about the ceilings it manufactures:

• Q: Can I cement my new ceiling tiles to any surface?

• A: Yes, any reasonably smooth surface that is structurally sound and cleaned free of dirt and grease.

• Q: What about cementing new ceiling tiles directly over old tiles?

• A: It's best to remove old tiles first to ensure an adequate hold.

• Q: What tools are needed to install lay-in panels (suspended ceiling)?

• A: The job can be done using these common household tools: chalk line, measuring rule, hammer and nails, metal snips, pliers, two-foot or four-foot carpenter's level, string and utility knife.

• Q: Will tile or panel ceilings insulate my room?

• A: Rarely will ceilings do a good job of insulating. Almost all glass fiber, mineral fiber and wood fiber ceilings have minimal insulation value. If you want to insulate the area overhead, do it the right way—with building insulation. And don't insulate overhead when the room above is also heated.

SUSPENDED CEILINGS, such as this "Bennington" model from Armstrong, can be installed as little as three inches below the existing ceiling. If fluorescent light fixtures are incorporated, a drop of five to six inches is all that's needed.

• Q: Can I put ceiling tiles in the bathroom?

• A: Yes, if the bathroom has a window or is vented to the outside with a fan.

• Q: Can I install a new ceiling over an embedded radiant-heated coil ceiling?

• A: No. You will suffer an appreciable loss of heating efficiency, and the new ceiling will not remain stable.

• Q: What's the minimum distance my new suspended ceiling has to be lowered from the existing ceiling?

• A: A minimum of three inches is required. If fluorescent light fixtures are incorporated, a drop of five to six inches is necessary.

• Q: If I add fluorescent lights to my suspended ceiling, how many fixtures will I need?

• A: The standard rule is that for every 75 square feet of ceiling area, you need two 4-foot fluorescent tubes.

• Q: Should tiles or panels become slightly soiled over time, how can they be cleaned?

• A: A special coating enables them to be washed with a sponge soaked in a solution of warm water and mild detergent.

• Q: Can tiles or panels be painted?

• A: Yes, if desired. Be sure to clean them first, to remove dust and loose dirt. Marks, scratches and gouges should be repaired with filler. Apply a water-based paint.

Some Things To Know About Buying Firewood

RALEIGH — You are interested in buying yourf first load of firewood, and you know as much about firewood as you do about snowmobiles. Nothing.

You turn to the want ads. Several people are offering firewood for sale. Their ads mention such things as "split oak", "mixed wood", half-cord", "face cord", "pick-up load", and "seasoned".

Relax, Dick Allison, forestry specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, can help you ask the right questions when you place your order.

"First, ask what kind (species of wood is being sold," Allison suggests. "The amount of heat in wood is determined by its weight and moisture content, not by its volume. Heavier woods, such as hickory, will provide almost twice the heat of light woods, such as whitge pine."

Here are the weights in pounds per cubic feet of the most common woods available in North Carolina figured on the basis of 20 percent moisture:

Hickory, 46; white koak, 45; red oak and beech, 43; sugar maple and birch, 42; ash, 41; slash and longleaf pine, 40; red maple, 37; loblolly and shortleaf pine, 35; sweetgum, tupelo, elm, sycamore and Virginia pine, 34; red cedar, 33; yellow poplar, 30; and white pine, 25.

Second, ask the seller when the wood was cut. Newly cut (green) wood may contain up to 50 percent moisture. You may be able to get it to burn — eventually. But much of the heat will go driving off the moisture instead of heating your home.

Allison says six to eight months are usually needed for firewood to dry properly. Split wood will dry faster than unsplit wood. Also wood will dry faster during warm weather and if it is stacked off the ground.

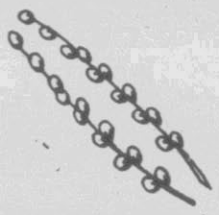

"Look at the end of the logs," Allison said, "a lot of little cracks indicate the wood has started to dry."

Third, ask the seller how much wood — in cords — he is offering for sale. "Much wood is sold by the pick-up load," Allison said, "and pick-ups come in many sizes. The only legal measurement for firewood in North Carolina is the standard cord, and the best way to measure wood is to stack it on the ground."

Such a stack includes both the wood and air spaces between the wood. Since you are interested in buying wood, not air, here are some tips to remember about stacking wood.

Straight pieces of wood will stack tighter than crooked wood. Large diameter logs that have been split will leave fewer air pockets than small or unsplit logs. Wood shrinks slightly as it dries, so you will get more actual wood in a cord of seasoned wood than in a cord of green wood.

The traditional rule of thumb in North Carolina is that "an honest cord of wood is rabbit proof". This means the wood should be stacked so tightly that a rabbit cannot squeeze through it.

Enter world of Orient with a sake celebration

One of life's gentle pleasures is sake, Japan's famous light rice wine.

The Japanese serve sake to honor birthdays and anniversaries, to enrich friendships or when relaxing with family and friends.

It is mellow and full-bodied with a nut-like flavor that adds a special touch to all occasions.

Sake is much more than just a drink, turning the most ordinary of ingredients into gourmet dishes and cocktails. Unique taste sensations are discovered with a sip of a sake sour or a sake martini.

When served alone in the traditional manner, sake reflects the Japanese way. Drinking sake calls for an atmosphere of friendship and camaraderie. Traditionally, it is used to seal friendships, end quarrels and pledge loyalty.

Served in small, delicate porcelain cups called sakazuki, the very act of pouring a drink signifies friendship.

A guest's cup should never be left empty and, when filled, should be filled to the brim.

Sake is usually served warm to bring out its heady, hearty bouquet. However, today it is also enjoyed chilled or on the rocks.

Serving sake to guests is an act of good taste, conveying a most harmonious, pleasant and warm feeling.

Easy, new do-it-yourself design idea: ceramic tile countertop in living room

Want to add something new and exciting to your living or dining room? How about a ceramic tile countertop?

It's a unique design idea that's flexible and practical and it's easy to do yourself.

Use it as a display area for plants, collectibles and objects d'art, or as an easy-to-clean buffet or bar for entertaining.

Back-mounted ceramic tiles in flexible, easy-to-cut sheets are available from American Olean Tile Company and make the job go quickly and easily.

The installation shown here features small-unit porcelain ceramic mosaics and American Olean suggests the following procedure for installing these water and stain-resistant tiles over ¾" exterior grade plywood.

Choose a suitable adhesive and a suitable grouting material. You'll need a notched trowel to apply the adhesive and a rubber-faced trowel for grouting.

In addition, you'll need a yardstick and pencil, a beating block, squares of clean burlap and nippers to cut small pieces of tile. These inexpensive materials are available at your local hardware store.

You might also want to rent a water-cooled saw or hand cutter to make the job go faster.

It is a good idea to protect the surrounding floor and walls before beginning. Plan layout of counter for fewest number of cuts possible. If wall is uneven, cut tile to conform to wall using a water-cooled saw or hand cutter.

Use nippers if only a small strip of tile needs to be cut, making sure to smooth the rough edges of the cut tile with a carborundum stone.

HANDSOME, VERSATILE CERAMIC TILE COUNTERTOP serves as a display area for plants and collectibles as well as an easy-to-clean serving area and bar. Easy to install yourself, ceramic tile is by American Olean Tile Company.

Mix adhesive according to manufacturer's directions and spread with notched trowel covering a small area at a time.

Begin installation with internal corner cap trim piece, then install the tile sheets and cap trim pieces along the front.

Be sure to align all joints. It is important to set the tile firmly in the adhesive by tapping with a wooden block.

Grout the following day, mixing the grout according to the manufacturer's directions.

You might want to use a colored grout which adds design value and helps camouflage food and wine stains.

Spread the grout with the rubber-faced trowel, forcing the grout into the spaces between the tiles.

Next, sprinkle dry grout over surface to absorb excess moisture. Rub the surface with burlap.

Clean excess grout from tile by spreading water-dampened sawdust over tile and then rubbing with burlap again.

American Olean suggests using a silicone sealer or saturating grout joints with Genuine Old English Lemon Oil Furniture Polish to seal them and help prevent staining.

Your new ceramic tile countertop will usually require only wiping with a damp cloth to keep clean.

Ceramic tile is available in a multitude of colors, textures, shapes and sizes suitable for countertops. Choose your favorite and have the satisfaction of installing it yourself.

The Virginian Out-Performs Other Inserts

-Unlike other fireplace inserts that are mounted flush against the fireplace opening, the Virginian projects forward to provide natural radiant heat in three directions. This also gives you a handy cooking surface.

-The Virginian is designed to extract heat from the hottest part of the stove-the upper interior.

-Unlike flush-mounted inserts, the Virginian's side spacing allows for a free flow of air all around the unit. More of the heat naturally flows into your home, instead of being trapped behind the insert and lost up the chimney. This is especially important during a power failure when the blower is not in operation.

-The use of the Virginian's blower will circulate over 8,000 cubic feet of hot air per hour throughout your home, thus helping to eliminate concentrated heat build-up in one room. Due to the Virginian's double door design, you can simply open both doors, attach the firescreen, and enjoy a cozy and romantic fireplace atmosphere.

-Unlike most inserts, the Virginian has a large firebox, big enough to give you an unattended overnight burn. 8 to 12 hours on one loading.

The Virginian vs. Flush-Mount Inserts

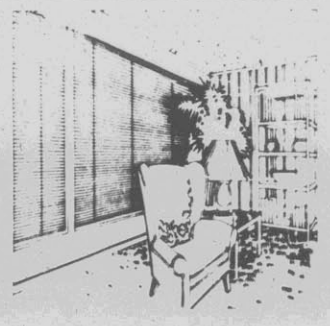

The Virginian	Others
The Virginian "throat-enclosure plate" prevents creosote from building up on top of the insert.	No throat enclosure plate, therefore creosote can drip down from the chimney on to the insert, eventually destroying the metal.
No creosote build-up on your fireplace brick.	Creosote forms on the fireplace brick.
Directs gases out the chimney.	Gases are trapped behind the insert, posing a severe safety hazard.
Heat generated by the part of the unit that sets back in the fireplace is directed into the living area.	Heat generated by the part of the unit that sets back in the fireplace is lost up the flue.
Easy, economical maintenance because any creosote build up is contained in the flue and not on the insert.	Creosote builds up on top of the insert and in the fireplace. This must be cleaned out. Cleaning by a professional chimney sweep can be as much as four times the normal cost of cleaning a flue.

Simple changes wake up a kitchen

Many homes today are built with kitchens open to other areas of the house, pointing toward a more informal lifestyle (and less costly construction too).

The advantages? Today's cook can socialize with guests without being marooned in a separate room. Also, guests find it easier to pitch in and help without getting underfoot.

Disadvantages? Everyone sees your kitchen . . . which may be great. Or it may send you running for the nearest take-out restaurant.

If you feel less than comfortable about having mixed company nearby while you cook, maybe it's time for some inexpensive kitchen "pick-me-ups."

An attractive, organized kitchen—one that encourages you to entertain—need not cost a bundle. Consider some of these low-cost "face lifts."

If you have a multi-color scheme on walls, provide extra dash by picking out your favorite from those colors and investing in matching kitchen accessories . . . dish towels, sink mats and perhaps serving trays and mugs for that kitchen counter where guests often perch.

Color coordinating these visibles will help give your kitchen a well designed look.

Carry the color into drawers with shelf and drawer liner. Rubbermaid has just introduced a new gingham pattern liner in bright colors. (Its tack back adhesive means you dampen the shelf once and apply and remove easily . . . no sticky residue.)

While sprucing up drawers, cutlery trays and drawer organizers cost little and will save time and exasperation . . . no more hunts for that lost bottle opener or favorite paring knife! And no more embarrassment when cluttered drawers refuse to open!

Turntables, slide-out drawers and other inexpensive organizers quickly transform unruly cabinets.

If you really want to impress kitchen visitors, leave corners behind turntables free and clear; you'll be amazed at the difference. (Often, close scrutiny will yield bonus space too . . . duplicate spice jars left half-filled can be combined into one, for instance.)

Such minor changes help make your kitchen a pleasant spot to work or entertain. Whether it's a set of new linen napkins, a splurge on fresh flowers or something as basic as new shelf liner throughout the kitchen, simple changes can put a whole new spice in this part of your life.

Now, about that dinner for 16. . . .

SIMPLE TOUCHES help make a kitchen special. Wire baskets, a coffee grinder and gingham shelf liner key into the country look of the hutch. The cup 'n' plate carousel, a practical note, stores cups more safely than when nested and frees space for other dishes.

JUST ONE WALL featuring new beveled mirror strips from Binswanger doubles the space and glamour of a dining room. The strips, which come in widths from 4" to 24" and in lengths up to 100", are great for trimming mirrored walls and adding architectural interest.

ANY SPACE CAN BECOME A SHOWPLACE with Decorettes' new "Collectors"™ series of ready-to-assemble shelving units styled in today's popular wicker and cane look in white, almond and wood-tone colorations. Hang them or stack them in multiples—the price is right. For instance, this unit, retails for under $70. Decorettes is a division of Dart Industries Inc.

EXPAND WITHIN LIMITS OF HOME WITH ATTIC CONVERSION

As a child, you probably walked up the stairs to your attic with mounting apprehension. Each creaky step brought another creature of your imagination to the fore: flying bats, creepy monsters, shadowy ghosts.

As an adult, you may be walking up the stairs with an equally vivid imagination. Only this time the images are of a warm fireplace, plush carpet, exposed beams and a daybed covered with pillows.

If so, you are one of the many contemporary homeowners "beating" inflationary housing and construction costs by expanding within the limits of your home.

The attic is the perfect place to add a family room or extra bedroom, says the National Home Improvement Council. The "shell" of the structure is provided and, in most cases, electrical wiring is already installed.

Basements and two-car garages are also appropriate spots for "internal additions."

Another way to expand living space without incurring the cost of an ordinary room addition is to tear down some interior walls and to reorganize the space more efficiently.

This is especially effective in older homes with tiny kitchens surrounded by small mud rooms and defunct pantries. Removing some walls can turn a tiny, dreary kitchen into a large inviting family area.

Professional contractors can give expert advice on converting rooms to their full potential, says the National Home Improvement Council.

A reliable contractor will also ensure the correct amount of insulation is installed, additional electrical wiring meets safety standards and all building codes are met.

ENERGY-SAVING

Use cold water rather than hot to operate your food disposer. This saves the energy needed to heat the water, is recommended for the appliance and aids in getting rid of grease. Grease solidifies in cold water and can be ground up and washed away.

For people who work . . .

Clay pots that work overtime!

Our lives today are busier than ever. Families in which both partners work outside the home are becoming more common and many young men and women are remaining single by choice and pursuing careers.

After putting in a full day at work—in the home or outside—no one relishes the thought of working hard at preparing dinner.

The alternatives

Until recently, the choices were limited—'eating out,' an increasingly expensive proposition or, as a last resort, the frozen 'instant' meal—another overpriced answer low on taste and nutrition without even ambience to recommend it.

Now, working folk rejoice! There's a convenient, inexpensive way to enjoy delicious, healthy meals that are a snap to prepare and sacrifice neither taste, money nor time . . . cook in clay!

Cooking in clay produces outstanding results with any food. It helps simplify complex recipes and deliciously enhances simple fare.

Inexpensive cuts of meat become tender and you add no fats or oils for unwanted calories. And, nothing could be simpler.

The three basic steps to remember are soak, fill, bake. Soak the pot in water for 10-15 minutes before use.

Some of the water is absorbed and released during cooking as tiny particles that blend with the foods' natural juices and enhance flavor.

Fill the pot with ingredients. Cook meat, poultry or fish together with vegetables and potatoes for delectable one-pot meals.

One-pot cooking

Place the pot in the center of a cold oven and set the temperature. That's it until dinner time!

Since the pot remains covered, the oven remains clean and, because you can cook it all in one pot, you won't have a sink filled with a discouraging assortment of dirty pots and pans to confront.

With many pots on the market to choose from, great chefs and just plain good cooks favor those, such as the famed Romertopfs from West Germany, that are unglazed outside and in.

Quick and easy meal

Here's a tempting one-pot meal that teams the clay pot with the microwave oven for a meal that's as delicious as it is quick and easy.

SHRIMP AND ITALIAN SAUSAGE RISOTTO ROMERTOPF

From Clay Cookery, by the Editors of Consumers Guide®

- 1 lb. mild Italian pork sausage, casing removed
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 cup white rice, uncooked
- 13-14 oz. chicken broth
- ¾ cup dry white wine
- ½ cup shredded Parmesan cheese
- 1 lb. raw shrimp, shelled, deveined
- Minced fresh parsley

Soak pot in water for 10-15 minutes and drain.

Crumble sausage into cooker and place, covered, in microwave oven.

Microwave on full power, stirring once, until sausage loses pink color (about 8 minutes). Pour off and discard drippings.

Stir in onion and garlic; microwave covered on full power 3 minutes.

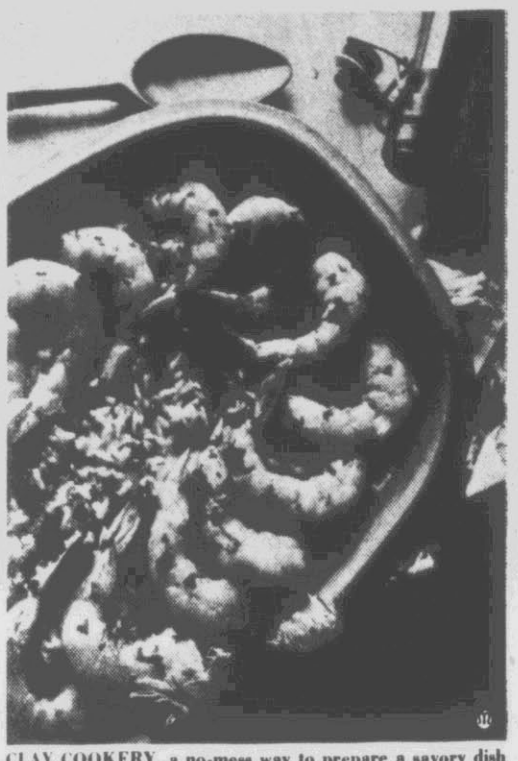

Stir in rice, broth and wine; microwave, covered, on low power (defrost), 40-45 minutes, just until rice is tender.

Stir in cheese.

Arrange shrimp, tails at center, in even layer over rice.

Micowave covered on full power until shrimp turn pink, about 5 minutes.

Let stand, covered, for about 5 minutes and garnish with parsley.

CLAY COOKERY, a no-mess way to prepare a savory dish such as Shrimp and Italian Sausage Risotto Romertopf, helps simplify complex recipes and enhances simple fare. Cooking in clay also cuts down on time spent in preparation and clean-up—important in today's fast-paced society.

Water-based coating fights rust

Homeowners can now buy a new water-based acrylic coating combining the protection of traditional oil-based rust-inhibitive paints with the convenience of soap-and-water clean up.

According to James O'Connor, director of technical services at Rust-Oleum Corporation, the new coating offers the protective benefits of the best oil-based rust-inhibitives, plus the easy clean up and fast drying features favored by most do-it-yourselfers.

Valid concept

The idea of using a water-based coating on metal surfaces to prevent corrosion may seem contradictory to some homeowners.

However, O'Connor says successful industrial use of the product for several years has proved the validity of the concept.

Wide range of uses

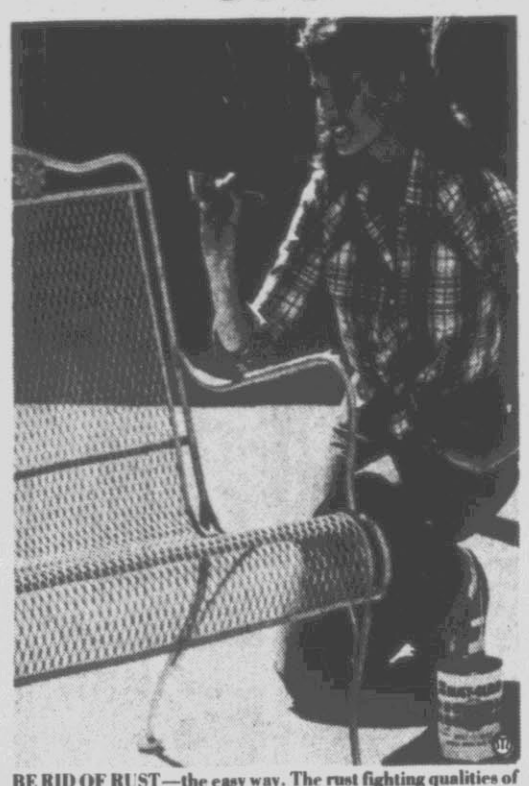

New Rust-O-Crylic® water-based coatings from Rust-Oleum are ideal, he says, for use on interior and exterior metal and wood trim; aluminum and steel storm windows, awnings and doors; brick and concrete walls; swing sets; metal sheds; aluminum and galvanized gutters and down-spouts; ornamental ironwork and many other decorative and maintenance jobs around the house.

They adhere especially well to galvanized steel, aluminum and concrete—traditionally difficult for many types of paint.

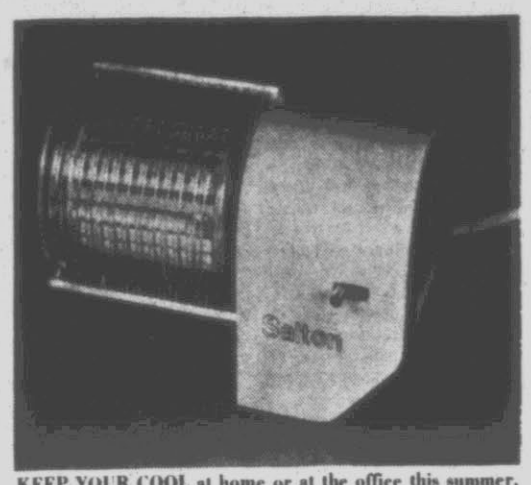

Available in eight durable semi-gloss finishes, flat white, flat black and a rust-inhibitive primer, Rust-O-Crylic coatings can be applied by brush, roller or spray. They can even be applied over damp surfaces.

The new coatings are non-flammable, lead free and non-polluting. They meet the stringent 1982 environmental standards of the California Air Resources Board for both indoor and outdoor solvent emissions.

Rust-O-Crylic water-based coatings are available nationally in paint stores, hardware stores and home and decorating centers.

BE RID OF RUST—the easy way. The rust fighting qualities of the best oil-based rust preventives have been combined with easy soap-and-water clean up in Rust-O-Crylic® water-based coatings from Rust-Oleum Corporation.

KEEP YOUR COOL at home or at the office this summer, without wasting energy. Salton introduces the Personal Fan, a small, portable cooling unit, perfect for use with air conditioning or on a night table while sleeping. The Salton fan has two speeds and creates a gentle, directed breeze that won't disturb the papers on an office desk.

Beat the heat of summer

When you're hot—you're hot! So "cool it" with Salton's new Personal Fan.

This unique product is a small, efficient cooling unit that operates on a mere 20 watts and costs less than a penny for 8 hours use.

The Personal Fan is perfect for use with air conditioning (which now according to presidential request, should not be set lower than 78°).

The whisper quiet operation of the Personal Fan is made possible by an air impeller—it works like a little turbine engine.

The Personal Fan is ideal on the night table for sleeping comfort without sleep-disturbing noise.

The Salton Fan has two speeds and is adjustable for directing the air flow precisely where cooling comfort is desired.

The Personal Fan creates a gentle, directed breeze that won't disturb the papers on an office desk. The carefully designed grillwork makes it safe enough for the nursery.

A trim 6½" x 3" x 4" high, it's available in black, brown or white for blendable style on desk top, table top, counter top. The Salton Fan is tops! EASY INSTALLATION: just plug into a wall socket.

Country squire's family room benefits from follow-through

Great-looking rooms don't just happen. They're the result of careful planning and, especially, attention to detail.

More often than not, it's the decorating details that lift a room out of the ordinary and elevate it to the status of a showplace. (As in another sphere, the right gloves, hat or shoes can make an equally big difference.)

For a look at how professional interior designers handle such matters, let's observe their technique in a colonial family room as they assembled it from scratch.

The Williamsburg-decor room, fit for a country squire, was literally decorated from the ground up, starting with an Armstrong Solarian floor which gave the designers their color scheme.

The floor design consists of small ceramic tile-like blocks of alternating terra cotta and almond. The almond squares feature stenciled insets in terra cotta.

To add punch, the designers selected regimental blue for the accent color. They topped the Solarian floor with an area rug, made from broadloom remnants, in almond bordered by regimental blue.

The area rug defines the family room's conversation center where the main furniture grouping was placed: a traditional sofa and a charming and unusual pair of wing chairs in "Poppa Bear" and "Baby Bear" sizes. All are upholstered in regimental blue.

Next were added a Queen Anne oval commode, console table and silver chest in cherry wood whose color value is closely related to the terra cotta in the flooring.

The console table does triple duty as a desk, sideboard for entertaining and display space for collectibles.

Brass accents abound in the room, including the swivel floor lamp, wall lamp, coal scuttle, fireplace tools and—surprising choice—Victorian coffee table, which sounds a note of eclecticism among the colonial furnishings.

In the choice of wallpaper, the designers again took their cue from the flooring, specifying a provincial print whose small-scale pattern matches, in size, the flooring's decorative insets. The paper's predominant color is terra cotta. Unpapered walls are painted almond.

Since little things count, all the room's trim (baseboard, door and ceiling molding) was given a coat of terra cotta paint—a detail people might tend to overlook in their own decorating.

Because accessories also count, the pillow on the larger wing chair is thoughtfully covered in a terra cotta and white geometric pattern whose scale matches that of the wallpaper and flooring.

A fiddle and a long-stemmed pipe, among other objects, complete the country squire-Williamsburg theme.

And for a touch of whimsy, the designers contributed an antique hobby horse and a "pooch pillow" (bulldog-shaped stuffed pillow on the smaller wing chair).

Furnishing a room is not enough. It's necessary to follow through. And that means paying close attention to the decorating details, just as the designers of this family room have done.

How to sort out what's what in vinyl floors

By LIS KING

So much has happened to vinyl floorcoverings in the past decade that it behooves shoppers to give function at least as much consideration as fashion.

The problem is that it's tough to sort out what's what. For, manufacturers' terminology is confusing; product information is often skimpy; there are almost as many grades of vinyl sheet goods on the market as there are patterns and colors; and, contrary to common belief, all vinyl floors are NOT perfect for all rooms.

Help is available

But, take heart. To help shoppers make the right choice, Biscayne Decorative Products, a young flooring company born into the age of consumerism, offers some meaningful explanations and hints.

• Analyze the function of the room you're decorating or remodeling, before you even enter the floor-covering shop.

A foyer, for example, has to stand up to more footprints than the living room, and must take muddy boots and dripping umbrellas in the stride, too.

Extra tough and carefree

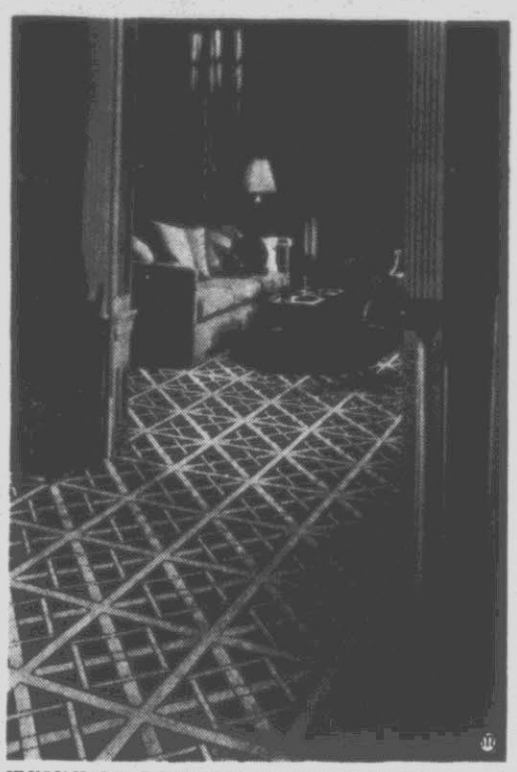

This means a vinyl floor with an extra tough wear layer and a carefree no-wax finish.

• A dining room usually has to put up with heavy furniture and spills galore. So the floor to pick is one with excellent indentation resistance and cleanability.

• A floor that's as soundproof as possible is important for rooms where little kids play, dads use noisy tools, or teenagers disco. A generously cushioned floor will spare your nerves.

• Function means less than fashion in the fairly formal living room. You probably spend relatively little time in this room and, since it's such a public space, you want it up-to-date.

This means fairly frequent decor changes and there's really no need to spend a lot of money on all those technological goodies.

IF YOU HARBOR RECURRING DREAMS of a wildly elegant custom tile floor but your sense of practicality screams vinyl, this design by Biscayne Decorative Products should placate both sides. The design, called "Plantation," has all the grand manners of an antebellum mansion, but cushioning and Biscayne's celebrated acrythane finish render it soft, quiet, warm and supremely carefree.

• Buy only a top-of-the-line vinyl floor for a kitchen that's as much used as meeting place, play pen, crafts studio, party site and family room, as it is for cooking and eating.

Here you want it all: top wearability, resistance to household spills, quiet and comfort underfoot, and no-wax beauty.

• Gravure-printed, cushioned vinyl sheet goods are the way to go for the widest range of colors and designs. Biscayne's designers prefer this process to all others because it allows authentic reproduction of any design, whether photographed or drawn.

• Cushioned floors aren't just quieter and more comfortable underfoot. They're also warmer, an important aspect, considering today's heating costs, and they install in half the time of ordinary inlaid vinyls. That saves you money, of course.

• Not all vinyls are terrific, warns Biscayne. Some products feature fillers and even a lot of air rather than the high-density vinyl foam that provides such impact resistance and tensile strength.

The product that's pure vinyl, from the backing to the printing inks, is obviously the best.

• Almost all top or even middle-grade vinyls are billed as no-wax floors. But, Biscayne emphasizes that there is no resilient floor that won't dull in heavy traffic areas over a period of time.

It helps to dust mop, sweep or vacuum the floor daily to remove dirt and gritty particles that may lessen the shine.

• The newest and most acclaimed of the no-wax wearlayers is a process which Biscayne calls Diamond Glow.

It combines urethane, vinyl and acrylic, which is processed through an ultra-violet oven, and the result is a super-tough, non-porous finish with top stain and scratch resistance. The combination of Diamond Glow ingredients is known as miracle acrythane.

• There are two other types of wearlayers: vinyl and solvent-based urethane. Both products are good, but have their drawbacks.

In comparison

Vinyl is a tough, non-porous product, but it can't match the gloss retention of the urethanes. The latter, however, rates fair to poor in stain and abrasion resistance.

• Damp-mopping with a light detergent is all the normal care any good no-wax floor needs. If a dulled area appears in the traffic path of the vinyl wearlayer, a light buffing with a nylon pad will restore the luster.

Urethane wearlayers, however, SHOULD NOT BE BUFFED. Applying a light coat of any acrylic finish will bring even a severely dulled area back to life.

• Top-grade vinyl's life span is 15 to 20 years, but most people change it more often, simply because they want a new look.

And, since vinyl costs less than many other floorings, such fashion changes are affordable.

• The natural look dominates the vinyl flooring scene at the present time, with brick, tile, wood parquet and plank looks leading the pack.

• Biscayne designer Dan Davis recommends brick and tile designs in warm earthtones for today's popular country kitchen.

"These designs are such classics that they'll go with any country look, be it South-of-the-border, the French provinces, or our own New England," says Davis.

• Vinyl makes the decorative tile styles of the Old World very affordable, and such floors are no longer limited to kitchens and baths.

Today, they're finding their way into rooms all around the house, even bedrooms.

• If you are looking for all-out elegance, you can't go wrong with marble or parquet patterns.

• The earthtones are still today's big colors but blue and white are coming on strong, according to Davis.

Just coming in are some greys, dusty pinks, peaches and mauves reminiscent of the '30s. They look good with contemporary furniture and suit the Art Deco look.

• What is the most versatile vinyl design imaginable? Biscayne's Davis picks a white brick pattern.

Complements many decors

"It can create a period look or go totally contemporary; it can be as rustic or formal as the furniture you use with it; and it's a flattering background for any style area rug and upholstery fabrics.

"It's also a great unifier for a room that mixes furniture styles and colors."

To learn more about the wonder vinyls, send $1.00 to Biscayne Decorative Products, 3350 NW 112th Street, Miami, FL 33167.

You'll receive a beautifully illustrated booklet that reviews today's greatest flooring styles and gives ideas on how to use them in your home.

Vacuum your troubles away

Your vacuum cleaner, indispensable though it is for routine carpet cleaning, has many other uses, too. Here are some tips from The Eureka Company for getting the most out of your trusty upright, canister or Power Team:

• Shampooing your rug or carpeting? Use your vacuum cleaner before and after the job to ensure removal of ground-in dirt — and to leave your carpet pile looking soft and fluffy.

Before shampooing, vacuum the rug and pad thoroughly to raise deeply embedded dust and grit to the surface.

Following the shampoo, vacuum thoroughly again to pick up loosened dirt and bits of foam after the pile has dried.

Then vacuum more frequently than usual for a week, to raise the pile and make it fluffy. Note: Whether you're shampooing or not, it's a good idea to vacuum the pad yearly.

• Choose the vac that's right for your home. An upright, with its revolving motor-driven brush and easy maneuverability, is best for large areas of wall-to-wall carpeting.

Canister cleaners are more versatile than uprights because of their easy-to-attach tools and their greater maneuverability on stairs.

However, a canister relies on powerful suction alone to remove dirt, while an upright has motor-driven brushes with beater bars that actually lift and shake the carpet to remove dirt.

Power Teams, which are canisters with a separate motorized brush in the rug-cleaning head, combine the strong suction and tool accessibility of a canister with the dirt-removing ability of an upright.

Stick vacs and hand vacs? They're excellent as second cleaners, kept handy for quick pick-ups.

• Vacuum slowly. Seven slow individual strokes, forward and back over a given area of carpeting, is a good rule of thumb for thorough dirt pickup; three strokes suffice for a quick once-over.

Floor plants allow you to decorate with living sculpture

If you want to create a striking focal point for a good-sized room, try one or more floor plants.

A floor plant, according to florists, is simply any house plant or miniature tree that is large enough to be displayed decoratively on the floor. It does more than fill a space; it functions as a kind of living sculpture.

Select plants to fit your setting rather than choosing ones you like and hoping they will adapt. In addition to being the right size, shape, color and texture, the plants should be able to grow well in the available light, temperature and humidity range of the room.

Since large plants are not cheap, it will pay to choose ones that will thrive, not merely survive, in their setting.

Indoor drama

Most local florists have a number of dramatic floor plants that grow well under normal indoor conditions. Florists can help you select the plants that are best suited to your needs.

Unlike most flowering plants the white flag (spathephyllum clevelandii) actually prefers a dim location — it won't bloom under bright light.

It has beautiful, shiny green foliage and flowers that resemble calla lilies. Actually, these flowers are white leaves behind tiny, nearly-invisible blossoms. Spathephyllum can grow up to four feet tall and will thrive in a warm room and evenly-moist soil.

For smaller rooms

The corn plant (Dracaena fragrans) also thrives in low light. Resembling a giant corn stalk with leathery green leaves, it is relatively narrow in growth habit, making it suitable for smaller rooms or for use in groups in larger ones. Take care not to over water the corn plant, and it will remain hardy.

Philodendron selloum — the cut or split-leaved philodendron — can form a striking, bushy shrub if you stake it and pinch it back periodically.

It grows well in low sunlight or under artificial light. It also requires regular feedings of a high-nitrogen fertilizer. Keep the soil evenly moist.

The weeping fig (Ficus benjamina), a lovely, willowy tree, makes a fine floor plant, but is a bit more temperamental than some of the others mentioned.

It needs bright light — a south or west window is ideal. Take care not to overwater it.

Dieffenbachias (dumbcanes), a family of showy, thin-leaved shrubs, are attractive individually or in groups. The variegated kinds need more sunlight than the all-green ones, but most will do well in a bright north window or a few feet from a south or west one. Feed them often and avoid soggy soil.

Statuesque and bushy

The umbrella tree, or schefflera, is a statuesque and bushy tree with profuse, small leaves. It requires bright light and warm temperature, but will not tolerate direct sun or hot blasts.

Schefflera responds well to artificial light. Mist it often, but water only when the soil is dry.

FLOOR PLANTS do more than fill a space; they function as a kind of living sculpture. When selecting floor plants, consult your local florist for advice.

When selecting floor plants, consult your local florist for advice. Indicate the amount of light and heat the room receives and the size plant you would like, and the florist should be able to recommend a selection of plants to give your room that perfect finishing touch.

HAVE A PARTY AND SAY, CHEESE

Cheeses are nutritious and wholesome, a delicious addition to any meal whether served alone or as part of an interesting dish.

For a cheese party, approximately one pound per six people, of one or a variety of cheeses, will satisfy even the most avid cheese lover.

A dip is a wonderful entertaining convenience for busy people. Dips can be made and refrigerated a few hours before serving.

For informal luncheons and dinners only the extent of the imagination places a limit on the potential of cheese to create an open-faced broiled smorgasbord.

Decorative drama with leftovers

AN APPRECIATION FOR LEFTOVERS is helping many Americans combat galloping inflation. But leftovers need not come from your kitchen table—they can also come right off your walls. Wallcoverings are a nearly untapped source of fashion accessorizing for furniture, trims and just about anything that could use a flash of color. The room above is decorated with "Fantasia" and "Fantasia Stripe," companion wallcoverings from Pantastote Inc., Wallcovering Division's "The Preferred Look" collection. "Fantasia Stripe," carried from the adjoining hallway, covers the ceiling. Its harmonizing 100 percent cotton fabric, also called "Fantasia Stripe," when fashioned into a tablecloth and applied to window moldings, provides a dramatic focal point.

Crab Imperial

POWER LEVEL: High (10), Medium High (7), Medium (5)
MICROWAVE TIME: 12½ to 16 min., total

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¾ teaspoon pepper
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 cup dairy half & half
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons minced green pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced pimiento
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 lb. lump crabmeat
- ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup melted butter

In 1½-qt. casserole place butter.

Microwave at High ½ minute, until melted.

Stir in flour, salt, pepper and mustard until smooth.

Microwave at High 1 minute.

Very slowly stir in half & half until mixture is smooth.

Add lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, green pepper and pimiento.

Microwave at High 3½ to 4½ minutes, until thickened, stirring every minute.

Stir a little of hot mixture into egg, then add egg to rest of sauce.

Microwave at Medium High 1 to 2 minutes.

Drain crabmeat.

Remove any shell or cartilage.

Stir sauce into crab.

Divide crab mixture into 6 to 8 shells or small ramekins.

Combine crumbs and butter.

Divide over top. Microwave at Medium High 6 to 8 minutes, until heated.

Makes 6 to 8 servings.

THE BEAUTY OF THIS ELEGANT COASTAL ENTREE is a total microwaving time of less than 16 minutes. A colorful cream sauce and blend of seasonings makes this General Electric recipe special. Serving suggestions: White wine, tossed green salad with light dressing and French bread.

Nature thrives indoors

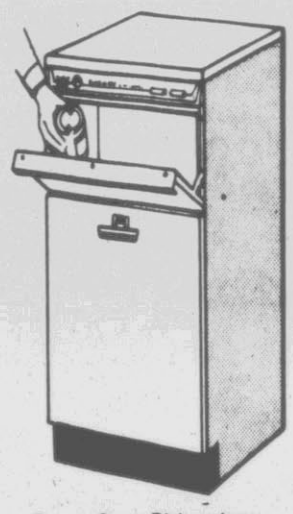

FLOWERS BLOOM YEAR 'ROUND and wild creatures pose and play in a wide assortment of accessories that delight the eye and warm the spirit. It's a wonderful way to bring nature's loveliest, most colorful and fanciful creatures indoors to add charm and personality throughout the house. In an infinite variety of shapes and sizes, accessories are to the home what cosmetics are to fashion. They are the final artistic touch that adds a special sparkle and flair to the entire ensemble. Accessories are the essential non-essentials that make a home a very personal, very special place. The handsome assortment shown above, collected from showrooms in the New York Merchandise Mart, provides ample proof that the flowers and trees, the birds and the bees, and all creatures large and small, will be well represented in accessories on display in leading stores across the country in the months ahead.

DAYTIME

Move Over, J.R. . . . Here's Abby!

J.R. Ewing, that evil villain of "Dallas," might well have to take a back seat to the machinations of the newest resident of the show's spinoff, "Knot's Landing," when Donna Mills joins the cast as Abby Cunningham. 'Abby,' a blue-eyed, ice-cold blonde, is without doubt one of the most unscrupulous, scheming — and certainly most dangerous — female characters to appear on television in years. So far, Mills has relished every bit of nasty work each script has called for her character to do.

"I've played everything from a lawless fugitive to a nun," she laughs, "but I've never been so excited about a role before. I'm joining one of the most exciting shows on television and working with the most professional cast I've ever met. The role is wonderful. I'm the woman you love to hate."

Abby is the younger sister of Sid Fairgate (played by Don Murray), who's described in her brother's underestimation as 'high spirted.' But the gal is more than simply a woman with a zest for living. She's beautiful, selfish, manipulative, and oh, so smart!

This season's opening episode of "Knots Landing" introduces the recently divorced (naturally!) Abby as she moves from her home in San Luis Obispo to start over in San Diego. She stops for a brief visit with her brother, then decides to stay in Knots Landing. After all...think about what the community offers — a wealth of free babysitters to be used, a whole brood of handsome young husbands to be stolen, and a batch of careers to be ruined. In fact, there's a long list of various situations — all tumultous — to be entered into with her casual, but devilish style.

Abby, once a cheating wife and still the neglectful mother of two youngsters, will be "Knots Landing's" chief troublemaker. You can bet your boots on that!

Although Donna Mills is an extremely talented actress, she spent most of her young life studying to be a dancer. "I feel like I spent my entire childhood with my foot on a ballet bar," says the Chicago (Ill.) native. This strict training, in addition to a stringent exercise program, has produced one of Hollywood's shapliest young actresses.

When Abby and J.R. start their 'tryst' on "Knots Landing" this fall, it will actually be a reunion for Donna and Larry Hagman. They starred in a comedy series of yesteryear titled "The Good Life."

MEET DONNA MILLS — who may well turn out to be the nastiest lady on television when she moves to "Knots Landing," in the role of 'Abby Cunningham.'

Fearless Foursome

Business executives' ulcers begin to act up and top government officials get that 'up-tight' feeling each Sunday when CBS-TV's hard-hitting magazine series, "60 Minutes," takes to the airwaves.

The program's co-editors, Dan Rather, Harry Reasoner, Mike Wallace and Morley Safer, are fearless when it comes to the topics they focus on each week. Nothing stands in their way, and viewers know that what they see is no watered-down version of a news event. Nor are the four men sensation-seekers, selecting topics with the Neilsen ratings in mind. They simply give the American viewing public pertinent facts about timely topics. And that's not necessarily what certain viewers want to know, either!

There seems to be a combination of elements that draws viewers to the program, and, of course, the four co-editors are high on the list.

Wallace's no-holds-barred interviewing technique and enterprising reportage are well-known.

Safer is another no-holds-barred correspondent who has reported on news events throughout the world for over 10 years.

Reasoner, whose journalism career began back in 1942, is one of television's most respected correspondents.

Rather, recognized as one of the most knowledgeable reporters and analysts, has been covering the political scene for CBS since 1964. He's leaving "60 Minutes" later this fall, but an equally creditable correspondent, Ed Bradley, will replace him.

Streisand Stars In Film

Barbra Streisand stars again as Fanny Brice in "Funny Lady," making its television premiere as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Oct. 19 (8-11 p.m.).

"Funny Girl" traced Brice's rise to stardom in the Ziegfeld Follies, and her unhappy romance off-stage to gambler Nicky Arnstein. "Funny Lady" picks up where the first film left off, bringing Fanny's career up to date on Broadway and radio, and introduces her to fabled showman Billy Rose after her divorce from Arnstein. Once again, she clowns her way through all the funniest comedy routines, sings all the best songs and loves all the wrong men.

James Caan and Omar Sharif portray the men who brought a light to Fanny's eye and a hurting to her heart. Roddy McDowall is cast as a faithful friend who helps her pick up the pieces after each shattered romance, while Ben Vereen is the fellow performer who helps to make her on-stage life magical enough to balance the backstage realities.

The year is 1930, the world is in a depression, but Fanny's not. Showman Billy Rose has entered her life, providing her with some of the most spectacular musical hits of her career and, not so incidentally, with a worthy sparring partner. The two trade verbal punches — sometimes not so verbal — until they brawl their way to the alter in a wedding made, if not in heaven, at least in Tin Pan Alley.

THE FUNNIEST GIRL IN TOWN has grown up to be a very "Funny Lady," and Barbra Streisand stars once again as Fanny Brice in the television premiere of the musical comedy on the Sunday Night Movie, Oct. 19 (8-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Unfortunately, Fanny's first love, Nicky Arnstein (Sharif), reappears, bringing with him the memory of what used to be. But this memory will eventually leave her with neither man, and only the love of a few million people to keep her warm.

"Funny Lady" brings to television the age of elegance associated with Broadway and Ziegfeld in the 1920s and 30s, in a series of colorful and lavish production numbers. In addition to Streisand's sequences — highlighted by the sensational "Great Day" — there is a show-stopping rendition of "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charley" by Vereen.

Streisand got the best of everything for the film, including over 40 exquisite costumes, designed by Emmy-winners Bob Mackie and Ray Aghayan. One incredible gown for the "Great Day" number required two-and-a-half weeks of hand beading to create.

Reynolds Donates

Burt Reynolds, a former student at Florida State University, has given the school a check for $600,000 enabling FSU to fund a $1 million-endowed chair under the state's Eminent Scholars Program.

Reynolds' gift will be matched by $400,000 from a State of Florida Trust Fund. Interest derived from these sources will finance the Burt Reynolds Chair in Professional and Regional Theatre in the Florida State School of Theatre.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Are there any plans to write the character named John Dixon out of "As the World Turns"? No one as mean as he is can come out on top forever. F. SPENCE, LILLINGTON, N.C.

A: You wanna' bet? 'Creeps' like John never die — they just get meaner! If it's any consolation, in real life Larry Bryggman is a terrific guy, very pleasant and easy going. He's also been happily married for 18 years and is the father of two kids.

Q: Please tell me something about Susan Seaforth Hayes, who's one of the stars of "Days of Our Lives." T. SKELTON, FREMONT, N.C.

A: Susan's marriage to her co-star, Bill Hayes, reads like a story-book romance — they met and fell in love on the show, then were wed in 1974. It's odd, but their relationship seems to thrive on constant togetherness. "We look at the same things, the same way," Susan notes. "Our priorities are identical, and we both want the same things out of life."

Q: I heard a rumor that George Reeves, who played the lead in the "Superman" TV series, shot himself. Is this true? K. CORNELL, FT. BRAGG, N.C.

A: I'm sorry to say that it's true. "The Adventures of Superman" ceased production in 1957. Two years later, Reeves, a fine actor who became so strongly identified with his character that no one would hire him to play anyone else, committed suicide. He was 45 years old. Incidentally, he made his motion picture debut as one of the Tarleton twins in "Gone With the Wind."

Q: I think Tim Conway is the best comedian around. Please tell me something about him. D. HUFFMAN, ICARD, N.C.

A: Tim's originally from Willoughby, Ohio, and broke into TV via the old "Steve Allen Show" in the early 1960's. He and his wife, Mary Ann, have six children, ranging in age from 18 to 10. Conway's a diligent do-it-yourselfer around the family home, a rambling rancher in Encino, California. He also enjoys golf and tennis and spends a lot of time writing sketches for his show.

Q: Is Carol Burnett's name a professional one, or was this her name at birth? H. BRAWLEY, WILMINGTON, N.C.

A: The talented gal was named Carol Creigton Burnett when she was born April 26, 1935, in San Antonio, Texas.

Clothes Available

Copies of casual wear worn by the cast members of "General Hospital," "One Life to Live" and "Love in the Afternoon" are being manufactured and marketed under a licensing agreement reached between ABC Merchandising, Inc. and Strawberry Shirtcake, Inc., Dania, Fla. The project was generated by the tremendous popularity of the network's daytime serial dramas and its viewing theme, "Love in the Afternoon." The line of merchandise includes T-shirts, heat transfers, night shirts, dorm shirts, scrub shirts, sweat shirts and related casual wear. All items are moderately priced. The clothing is being distributed through a variety of outlets — department stores, chain stores, mail order, college bookstores and T-Shirt specialty shops.

Gambler Faces Stacked Deck

Omar Sharif portrays a man internationally known for his romantic conquests, as well as his success as a high roller in the world's gambling capitals in "Pleasure Palace," airing on The CBS Wednesday Night Movies, Oct. 22 (9-11 p.m.).

Victoria Principal also stars, along with Jose Ferrer, J.D. Cannon and Hope Lange.

Louis Le Fevre (Sharif), connoisseur, gourmet, gambler, lover and sportsman, sees the same beautiful lady (Lange) in one gambling capital after another. When he finally meets her he is intrigued to learn she owns one of Las Vegas' largest hotel-casinos, and accepts her invitation to visit.

Arriving in Las Vegas, Le Fevre learns Madelaine may lose her controlling interest in the hotal to a business syndicate which is trying to force her out. The woman's daring plan is to have Le Fevre represent her in a gambling showdown with the syndicate, with control of the hotel-casino as the ultimate prize.

Ferrer is cast as Pokey, Le Fevre's business partner, whose job it is to turn his partner's gambling winnings into solid business investments. Cannon is Mr. Howland, head of the syndicate attempting to take over the hotel, and Gerald O'Laughlin is Benny Hackett, casino manager of the hotel. Principal portrays a beautiful lady of mystery who shows up at the hotel at the same times Le Fevre does. Then she uses her considerable charms to attract his attention.

"She's a fun character to play," says Victoria, "because of the mystery and intrigue around her. Of course, there's always a little period of adjustment for me to take on a character — to get inside my skin, so to speak."

As for Pamela Ewing, her character in "Dallas," Victoria says she is quite confortable playing her now. "I feel I've gotten to know her quite well."

Gambling may not be Victoria's game, but she is a lady who is not afraid to take chances.

New Talent Show

Chuck Barris is producing a new talent show for TV, titled "The Million Dollar Talent Show." The one-hour weekly variety show will present relatively unknown talent in competition, with $1 million in cash going to the winner.

A panel of 10 judges, selected from the audience, will rate the performers. Each segment's winner will receive $10,000 and the runner-up $2,500.

Barris, who's to host the show, says the idea came from auditions for "The Gong Show." "We encountered a great deal of talent in our auditions for that series," he explains. "But many of the talented performers did not fit its theme."

According to Barris, the new program will be similar in format to "The Ed Sullivan Show," but he stressed that it will be presented in a "straight, dignified manner."

Prices Were High

Following a brief vacation in Japan, Michael Landon is now back at his desk writing scripts for "Little House on the Prairie." "It was my first time in the Orient, and I found it fascinating," says Landon. "But the prices were frightening — twenty-five bucks for a pound of tuna!"

DONALD SUTHERLAND stars in the horror film "The Invasion of the Body Snatchers," premiering Friday, Oct. 24 (8:30-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

An Eerie Tale Airs

If you remember a science-fiction movie of yesteryear, "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," you're in for a treat. An updated version of the thriller was filmed two years ago, and now it's coming to television Friday, Oct. 24 (8:30-11 p.m. on ABC). This clever blend of hip humor and horror is just as good as the original — maybe even better!

Donald Sutherland stars with Brooke Adams and Leonard Nimoy. Others featured are Kevin McCarthy (who starred in the original), Jeff Goldblum, Art Hindle, Lelia Goldonia and Veronica Cartwright.

The story evolves around flowering pods from space that touch down on earth, then duplicate sleeping humans. The setting is San Francisco, the heart of the country's 'flower children,' and a town whose inhabitants are already a bit 'spaced out.'

Forms Company

Michael Cole has formed his own production company, and his first project is a telefilm, "The Pittsburgh Kid," a boxing story adapted from Paul Rapp's original screenplay titled "Kid." This is the story of Billy Conn, the former light heavyweight champion who held the title until 1940, and later fought for the world heavyweight title. Conn fought Joe Louis twice — in 1941 and 1946 — suffering knockouts both times. Cole will portray Conn in the film, scheduled to begin production next summer.

'30 Minutes' Begins Season

With a new co-editor, a new special feature segment, and a new studio, "30 Minutes" is off and running on another season of weekend telecasts (Saturdays, 1:30-2 p.m. on CBS).

Joining Christopher Glenn as co-editor of the network's weekly magazine for teen-agers is Betty Ann Bowser, who's replacing Betsy Aaron. Bowser, 36 years old, is married to Chris Kelley (a CBS News Correspondent), and they have two children, Patrick and Matthew.

When she's not trotting around the globe in search of a story, Bowser is a real homebody. Her family is an "all-consuming concern," and she describes herself as "an absolutely crazed cook" who can "take calories out of anything," as she avidly prepares her dietetic gourmet meals.

Jittery Gymnast

Carol Johnston, the one-armed collegiate gymnastics champion who is the subject of Disney's new film "Lefty," claims that a case of shaky nerves made high school dating a little difficult.

"I felt edgy around the guys because I didn't know what they were thinking," says Carol. "I thought they wouldn't want to go with me because I have one arm. But that wasn't what they were thinking. It was my nervousness around them that they were concerned about. It made them feel so uneasy."

Enjoys Winning

"I enjoy winning," says Pittsburgh Steelers' coach Chuck Noll. "If some people find this fact boring, we hope to bore the heck out of them."

Davis Narrates

Actor Jim Davis will narrate "1,000 Years of China," a one-hour special being produced for worldwide syndication by Edward Shaw Prods.

'Money Players' Defined

The so-called "Money Players" are those guys who produce game after game; the baseball player who knocks in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth or the basketball player who reaches in his bag of tricks, fools the entire defense, gets fouled and sinks the winning shot from the line.

In football, all you have to say is "Franco Harris" and you don't even need a description. Harris epitomizes the money-player concept the same way Reggie Jackson does it in baseball: no words needed because the images of constant success in the clutch are so clear.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, beneficiaries of the Franco Harris money machine, hope to cash in on another game in their quest for an unprecedented third consecutive Super Bowl crown when they take on arch-rival Oakland on ABC's Monday Night Football.

The game will be televised on Monday, October 20 beginning at 9 p.m., live from Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh.

Ever since the Immaculate Reception in 1973 that defeated the Raiders for a berth in the AFC final, Harris has come up with play after play to win tight contests.

Terry Bradshaw may be at the throttle of the high-powered Steeler attack, but Franco IS the throttle. Early this season, he moved into third place on the all-time rushing list.

He has already rushed for at least 1,000 yards for eight of his 10 seasons and Pittsburgh has taken to passing the ball more frequently to him.

In fact, he caught 36 passes in 1979 and led the team with 14 receptions during the playoffs: now that's a money player.

Franco enjoys immense popularity in the Pittsburgh area, but it's not only because of his exploits on the field.

Many charitable and civic organizations in the Pennsylvania city have taken advantage of his notoriety, and he has graciously accepted more than his share of opportunities to help those groups.

He has worked tirelessly for a wide variety of youth activities, including the National Association for Retarded Children, the Pittsburgh School for the Blind, Children's Hospital and the YMCA.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — JOHN TRAVOLTA's comment to a London Newshawk that MARILU HENNER is the girl in his life came a little too late. "There are many days now when I contemplate marriage with Marilu," he confided. "Perhaps I will marry her in the end." As soon as the cute co-star of "TAXI" heard this, however, she phoned her longtime pal to tell him she was on her way to New Orleans to marry actor FREDERICK FORREST!

"CHARLIE'S ANGELS" co-star JACLYN SMITH flatly refused to do a couple of Oh-So-Naughty nude scenes in "NIGHT KILL," her first big feature film. "I wanted nothing to do with that," she says. "I don't think nudity in films is essential. Anyway, it's in my contract...no nudity for me!" she declared.

DEBBIE REYNOLDS is coming back to TV via a starring role in "ALOHA, PARADISE." She's playing an 'Auntie Mame-ish' boss of a Kona hotel in the telefilm, also labeled as a 'pilot.'

Most people aren't aware of the fact that CATHY LEE CROSBY is extremely active in L.A.'s NARCONON chapter. A couple of weeks ago, the co-host of "THAT'S INCREDIBLE" even flew to Washington, D.C., where she addressed the House Select Committee on Narcotic Abuse and Control.

LARRY HAGMAN is still shaky following a harrowing experience that happened during the filming of a segment for "AMERICAN SPORTSMAN." Hagman's boat was surrounded by a school of 30 sharks which attacked the 300-pound marlan he'd just caught. "It was more terrifying than anything 'J.R.' would have conjured up," quipped the "DALLAS" star.

ENJOY THE REWARDS OF PAINT-FREE LIVING

Made of solid vinyl, this astonishing siding needs no painting. It shrugs off the punishment of sun, wind, rain, ice and snow. It can't rot, peel or blister like wood . . . won't rust, dent or corrode like metal. What's more, it insulates your home to make it warmer in winter and cooler in summer. Saves fuel and makes the home quieter. Adds to the home's value. And how beautiful it is! See it. Touch it. Test it yourself. Mail the card today!

The right books for the right kids.

FOR JUDY BLUME, author of juvenile books

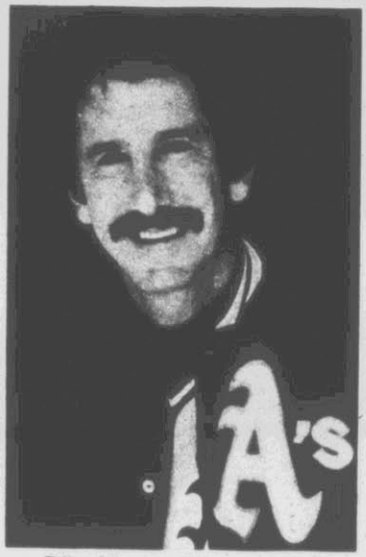

Would you say that children between 8 and 13 years old read less now than they did when you were that age? Have their tastes in stories changed? — S.A., Rapid City, S.D.

● We keep hearing that kids aren't reading today. But I receive hundreds of letters each month from my young readers. I think it's a question of getting the right books to the right kids. When I was 12, I wanted to find myself in the books I was reading, but I couldn't, so I felt alone. Today I write the kinds of books I wanted to read when I was that age. Kids need to find satisfaction in their reading, and, to many, that means finding themselves. It isn't that their tastes have changed. It's that there is more reading material available to them today. They have more choices.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Does Billy Martin think his fist fights set a good example to the young people who look up to him? — E.B., Bangor, Maine

● Billy is not proud of his record of fighting. He contends that there is something about him that causes others to pick fights; that he has never started an altercation. Since getting fired by the Yankees last year, he's trying much harder to walk away from arguments. Incidentally, Peter Golenbock, who co-authored Number 1 with Billy Martin, tells us: "Billy was very cooperative. The only problem I had was that every once in a while he'd fly off to one of his many friends across the country. Work had to wait until he returned. The entire time we were together Billy drank nothing but Perrier. And, no, he didn't hit me once."

Billy: His own fight manager?

FOR PAT PAULSEN, comic

You are always so controlled on stage. Was there ever a time when you lost your cool? — B.G., Joliet, Ill.

● Yes, when I was starting out, doing impressions. I got to my "show stopper" of Marlon Brando, as he was best known then, for A Streetcar Named Desire. I took off my coat to show my ripped, seedy T-shirt — and a moth flew out! When it happened, it threw me off balance. But the audience obviously thought it was part of my act, and they roared.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER, comedienne

Fact or fiction that you're as zany behind the wheel as you are on stage? — L.V., Kalamazoo, Mich.

● I'm not zany, but in my younger days I was careless. When I'd been driving for 13 years and should have known better, I pulled out of a parking lot without looking, and the car that hit me from the left pushed me into a car on the right. My then husband was waiting for me at home. I can still hear the mouthful I got when I eventually turned up.

FOR ANN MILLER, co-star of Broadway's Sugar Babies

You have the complexion of a 20-year-old. What's the secret? — H.L., Oklahoma City, Okla.

● No secret, just common sense. I scrub my face thoroughly before I go to bed, then slap on night cream. I believe that all skin must be oiled (I use Vaseline for rough spots on my hands and feet). During the day, if I'm not going out, I use a moisturizer on my face. I also believe in multiple vitamins. And to get off stage makeup or street dirt, I use cold cream.

FOR VAN JOHNSON, co-star of The Kidnapping of the President

What do you miss about the good old movie days? — G.M., Athens, Ga.

● Not much, because I don't agree that they were the "good old days." At that time, the studios did everything for their stars — gave them houses, medical coverage, even put words in our mouths. We were so insulated that away from the studio we could not cope in the real world.

FOR MARVIN MITCHELSON, attorney

We hear a lot about your successes, but what about your failures? — P.S., Reno, Nev.

● What can be more crushing than have someone walk out on you? In 1973, when I first brought the case of Michelle Triola Marvin against Lee Marvin (asking for a million-plus in palimony), the judge left the bench as I was arguing her case — an experience I wouldn't like to have again. As everyone knows, the Appeals Court overruled that judge.

FOR ELIZABETH L. POST, etiquette expert

When someone talks to you, and you have a mouthful of food, what is the correct thing to do? — G.B., York, Pa.

● If one is spoken to while one is working away on a big mouthful of food, he or she should swallow first before talking, even though the other has to wait a few moments. But if one has just a little amount of food in his or her mouth — which will not be all that noticeable while talking — then it is in good taste to answer right away.

Should Bicyles Be Required To Be Registered?

PRO Representative Phyllis Kahn, Minnesota State Legislature

I favor bicycle registration because 1) A centralized computerized registration system is more effective as a law-enforcement tool than separate locally maintained non-connected systems. This includes theft-prevention, greater efficiency and less cost in returning recovered bicycles and prompt identification of accident victims. 2) It represents a legitimizing of the bicycle as a vehicle deserving of the rights, privileges and responsibilities of other vehicles with which it shares the road. 3) It's a way for bicyclists to pay for some part of trail and road improvements.

CON Darryl Skrabak, executive director, San Francisco Bicycle Coalition

No. Registration is useful for only one thing: to help recover stolen bikes. It doesn't do that very well. A registration decal or sticker is easily removed. More permanent is the serial number stamped into the frame of every bicycle sold in the U.S. Every bike owner should record this number. Even a serial number won't identify parts stripped from the frame. Make registration mandatory, and the sale of a used bike becomes cumbersome. It means waiting in lines. It means expense and bureaucracy costs. Leave this hassle to the motorists.

Merit Loyalty Grows.

"Former high tar brands not missed," report MERIT smokers in latest survey.

Taste Quest Ends

Latest research provides solid evidence that MERIT is a satisfying long-term taste alternative to high tar cigarettes.

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and reported MERIT is the best tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine–100's Reg: 10 mg "tar," 0.7 mg nicotine–100's Men: 11 mg "tar," 0.8 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Dec.'79

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

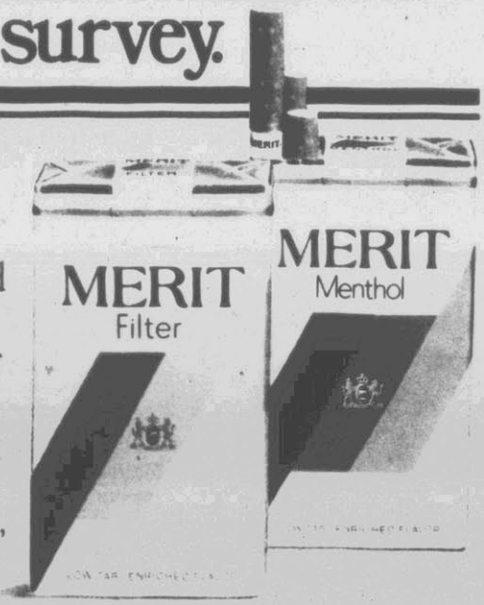

Smoker Tests Offer More Proof

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar.

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed.

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

The Crisis in Our Schools

Experts claim that almost half of today's high-school graduates are "functional illiterates." Here 16 authorities explain why — and suggest what should be done to cure our ailing schools.

H. Armstrong Roberts

Education under siege: Why can't Johnny read — or write?

By Mary Long

Of the 130,000 readers who responded to a recent FAMILY WEEKLY poll, 82.3 percent said they believe that today's schools are inadequately preparing children for the future.

Parents have good reason for concern. Experts estimate only 50 to 60 percent of today's high-school graduates are functionally literate. The others are functional illiterates who, in the words of one educator, "will bring society to its knees."

It is said that education reflects the prevailing conditions of society. Today, inside the school walls as well as outside them, one discovers a breakdown in authority relations, self-absorption, fear, suspicion and violence. Also, a nostalgia for better or simpler times.

To find out about what we can do to help our schools, FAMILY WEEKLY traveled across the United States, talking with people who are committed to the future of public education.

VIRGINIA V. SPARLING
National PTA President

"A strong PTA can make the difference. There have been numerous studies recently which have shown that when parents have access to the schools and have the opportunity to be part of the decision-making process in the educational system that affect their child, that child not only learns more, but the parents then feel more as though they are a part of that system, and there is, on their part, greater support for their child's school and the entire education system."

DAN ALEXANDER
President, Board of Education, Attorney
Mobile, Alabama

"We have allowed the quality of our teachers and the quality of the education they receive in our colleges to go straight downhill. Here in Alabama we have an accredited university that graduated 1338 teachers in 1972. They rated a percentile score of three (3) on the National Teachers' Examination. Fifty (50) is average. These people are now our well-tenured teachers.

"Teachers must be tested before they are certified. Then, they should have a trial period — a year or two — before they become permanent employees. We've got to go back into our Colleges of Education. We've got to require higher scores before students are even admitted. We've got to require more substantive subjects in the Education College classroom. And we've got to be tougher concerning the requirements for graduating."

RAJ CHOPRA
Superintendent of Schools
Council Bluffs, Iowa

"The most effective project we have had in Council Bluffs was our Teachers' Day. We felt if teachers feel good about what they are doing, if they have a positive feeling about the contribution they are making, then their attitude is going to filter through to our young people. And we found that we had been right: Our test scores in the past two years have improved significantly.

"We must start talking about what is good about America, what is good about our teachers, what is good at our public schools."

JOHN KOTSAKIS
Field Representative
Chicago Teachers Union

"In the last 10 Gallup polls, the public has named discipline as the number-one problem in our schools.

"However, boards of education, school administrators and teachers have been getting a mixed message from the public. One message is: 'We want our schools orderly and we want our kids in safe environments.' The second message is: 'Our children and students have rights.'

"The authority of principals and teachers to make decisions and take actions regarding the discipline of children has been challenged by court suits across this country.'

"Good sense might tell a principal to remove a violent student, but often he can't do it. One possible solution would be to bar students who have been involved in criminal activity from returning to the regular school setting. They would be placed in a separate setting — not necessarily a penal one. Special schools or programs would have to be devised for these students."

BEVERLY BIMES
1980 Teacher of the Year
Hazelwood East High School
Hazelwood, Missouri

"We are going through a stage in which we question all authority, and as a result teachers do not receive the trust and faith and respect that they once did. Teachers, who do not get financial gratification from their work, now do not get the moral gratification, either.

"So these fine, very dedicated teachers are leaving the profession. Also, we are no longer attracting the talented, intellectually capable students into teaching.

"There are many fine, dedicated teachers. But people had better give them a pat on the back, or soon they'll be gone."

TOM PENDLETON
Youth Counselor
Project DOME
(Community Education Project)
New York City

"Our educators have to open their eyes a bit wider. A school program that leads only to college and a liberal-arts degree is not realistic.

"Schoolwork has to incorporate a greater amount of projects in which the student learns by doing something, building something, going somewhere. In our program, classes include activities such as photography, carpentry, cooking.

"Our big goal is to make the students capable of taking care of themselves — in a way they feel comfortable with and that isn't anti-societal."

SENATOR S.I. HAYAKAWA
California

"Depending on the community, the labor market and the interests of their students, administrators should develop learning activities that provide diversity and variety in school programs: alternative schools or schools-within-schools — perhaps programs of two days of school and three days of work per week could be initiated — to assure that students will be qualified to meet the employment challenges of the 80's."

GLENNA NORTON
High School Teacher
Detroit, Michigan

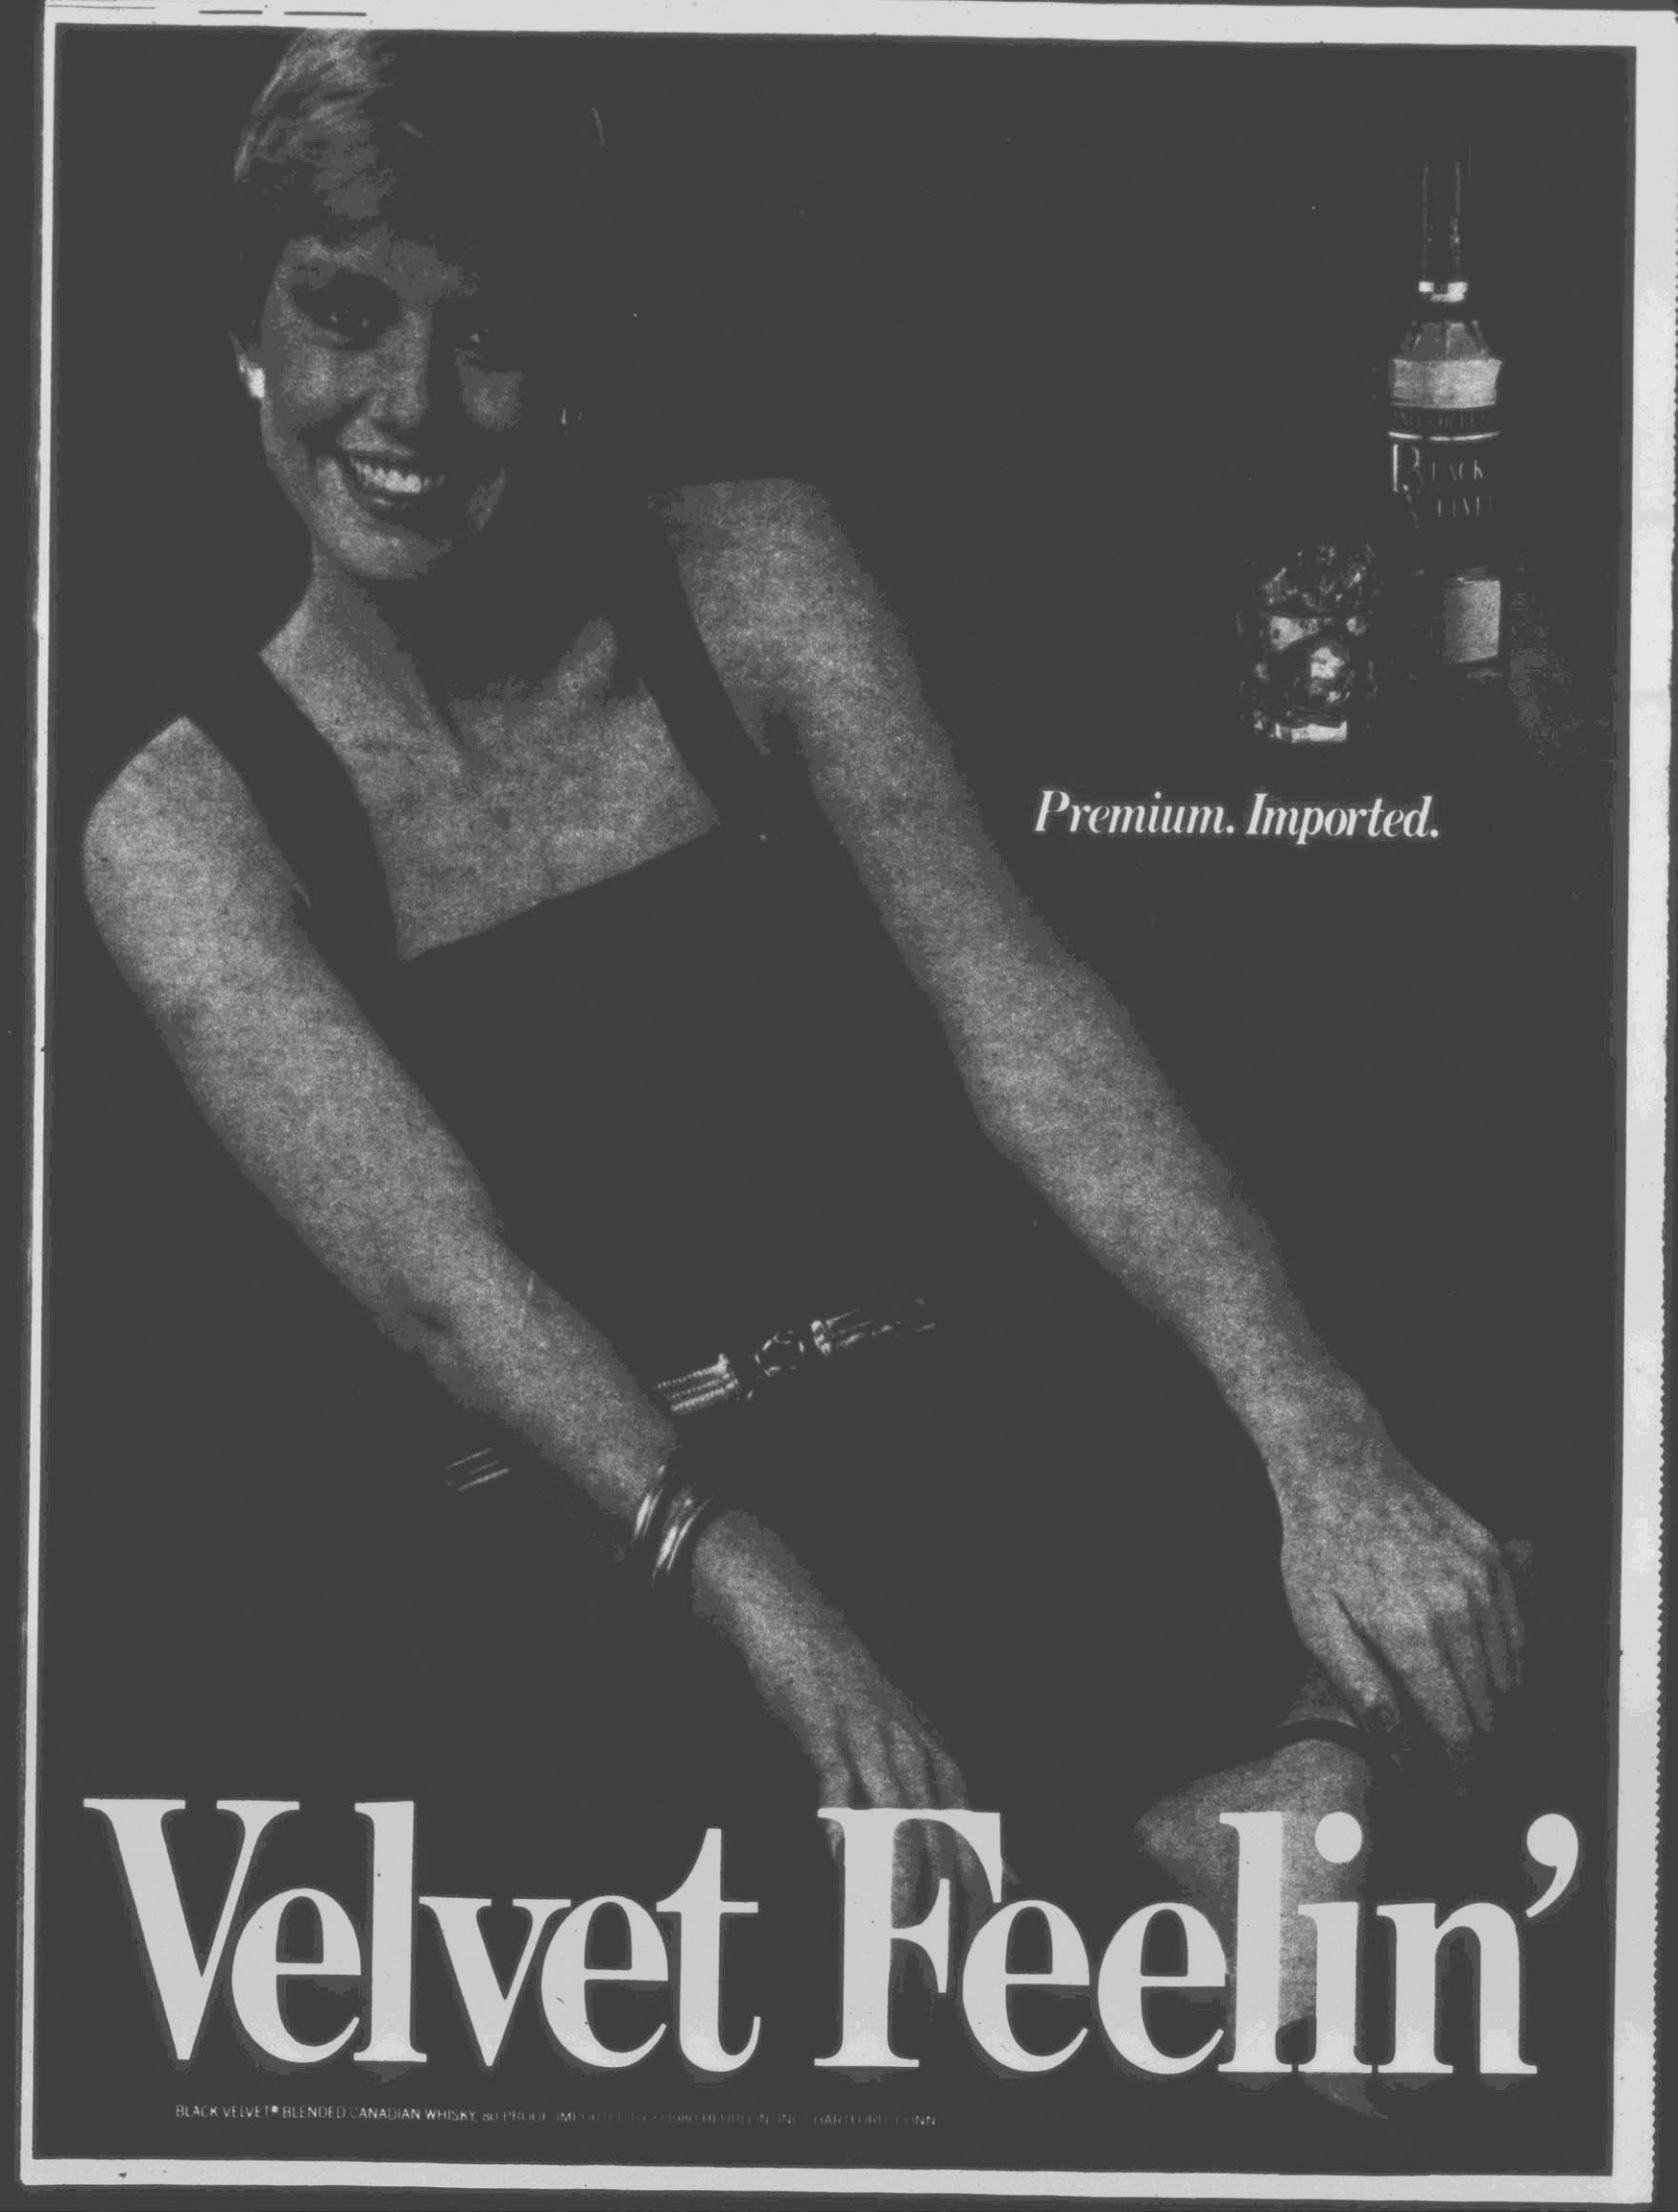

"Students are definitely not prepared the way they used to be. Their inability doesn't have to do with their intelligence or capabilities; it has to do with the opportunities and the preparation they have had, and with their motivation.

"I so often feel defeated because of the apathy of both students and parents. You see the students sit there day in, day out and never do an assignment, never participate in class, or else they don't come to class at all...I will send out failure slips to notify parents well in advance of card-marking that their child is failing and that I would like to talk with them about it. At the last conference time, I sent out over 75 of these slips. Three parents responded.

"Kids have a lot to contend with, I know. But some days I feel like a fighter who's on the ropes. It's tough to speak to a child in the hallway about something and have obscenities thrown at you. So you arrive at the stance: I'm not going to do or say anything, I cannot take the risk."

RON ALRIDGE
TV Columnist
Chicago Tribune

"Students are spending a lot more time with the TV than they are spending with any other activity except sleeping. Children have got to be helped to learn how to use TV and not abuse it.

"TV really can be put to good use. For instance, it's a natural aid for a teacher. And there's good evidence to suggest that, used properly, TV can help children improve their reading skills."

WILSON RILES
Superintendent of Public Instruction
California School System

"I think student achievement is the number-one problem, the big issue for education in the 1980's.

"We've done two major things in California to improve the situation. Our big switch was to return more of the educational power and activity to the school site. An equal number of parents, teachers and school administrators decide how a particular school is to be run — what's going to be taught, how they're going to use their money, and so on.

"In the years since the program has been put into effect, we've seen substantial improvements in achievement levels and test scores.

"The next major step we took was to pass a minimum proficiency law. A minimum level of competency, particularly in the basic skills areas, must be proven. If a student fails, the school is responsible for remedying this by meeting with the parents, deciding how to correct the problem and giving the students the help they need."

PAUL COPPERMAN
Author, The Literacy Hoax,
President, Institute of Reading Development

"The primary reason that academic achievement has declined in the last 15 years is the breakdown in the authority relationship between teacher and student. This is due in part to the fact that the philosophy of education changed in two major respects. First, the focus of public schooling shifted from average and above-average to below-average ability students. The social mission of the school was, through 1964 to train students so that they would be able to make significant contributions to the society. This mission was redefined in the late 1960's to facilitate the creation of a just society by enhancing the educational development of disadvantaged students.

"The second major shift was away from rigorous, cognitive learning which emphasized a demanding curriculum to psychological objectives such as maintaining self-esteem, encouraging creativity and development of independence of judgment. Both these shifts communicated to the teacher that he should not place strict academic demands on students.

"We, the older generation, essentially created a monster by fostering certain attitudes in the younger generation, and the lack of literacy is one price.

"One obvious solution is a return to the concept of adult responsibility and authority in relationship to young people, to an acceptance of the adult's responsibility to place rigorous demands on students' performance and to create highly structured schools which will do that.

"We need to free the public schools from Federal and state government and courts' intervention and return the system to school administrators and principals who will make demands of teachers who, in turn, will make demands of the students."

DR. ERNEST L. BOYER
President — The Carnegie Foundation for the Advanced of Teaching,
Former United States Commissioner of Education

"The central problem of the schools in America is the confusion about purposes. Not too long ago there was agreement, supported by the community, as to what the schools should accomplish.

"In recent years, especially at the high school level, there has been great ambiguity as to what the schools are trying to accomplish. We've moved increasingly to electives, not in any careful way, but in a random way, responding to pressures here and there. Students are to pick and choose, with very little guidance.

"The solution to the question of purpose begins with each school. But I think it's wrong for school people to say to the community: "Why don't you tell us what you want?" I think one of the obligations of being an educator is to help educate the community as to what the educational needs are.

"As for curriculum, I'd like to see the latter years of schooling become a transition period — in which students could enter some specialty: the arts, sciences, technology, business — allowing them to begin to test their own aptitudes in relation to the life experiences for which they're preparing."

SHIRLEY MOUNT HUFSTEDLER
Secretary of Education

"In the barrage of rhetoric about problems in education, we sometimes lose sight of the fact that our schools are vibrantly alive and operating successfully in cities and towns across the nation.

"I don't mean to imply that schools don't have problems. But I think that a proper perspective reveals that many of the problems of the schools — violence, crime, drug and alcohol abuse, teen-age pregnancy — are really problems of society in general.

"There are other problems, however, with regard to which concerned efforts by different levels of government are bringing out substantial improvement in American education.

"For instance, we are educating the handicapped children of this country more effectively today than in the past. We are making giant strides in our struggle to overcome the damaging legacies of discrimination on the basis of race, national origin and sex. We are making inroads in achieving equal opportunity for those disadvantaged by poverty."

ART GISSENDANER
Education Reporter
Arizona Republic, Phoenix

"Here in Arizona, and it's true for California and New Mexico and other states as well, we have what you might call a "mixed bag" — a number of different ethnic groups and a variety of cultures. A lot of the parents are illiterate, they speak little or no English, and they are afraid of the school districts and the teachers. They pass the problem along to their children, and it reinforces the separatism, the violence problems and the problems with learning. What we need are more bilingual education programs. We need more programs that will get these parents out of their homes and that will speak to them and their children in their own language."

BEL KAUFMAN
Author, Up The Down Staircase,
Former school teacher

"The schools are indeed in trouble. I went back recently as a substitute teacher to update my information about New York City schools and I found that what I had described 16 years ago in Up The Down Staircase was a kind of Utopia compared with what I found in today's inner-city schools.

"The problems are no longer educational, they are societal.

"The youngsters know there is no hope, that there are no jobs. They have no motivation to learn. They no longer believe in education and what it will do for them.

"By the time children are in elementary schools, it often already is too late. They have come from fatherless homes, have been exposed to poverty, drugs. But since we cannot have a better world overnight, I believe recovery should begin on the one-to-one level, teacher to student. Talented teachers are able to make a student feel his or her sense of worth.

"But we are not offering incentives for such people. We must offer them maximal conditions — smaller classrooms, fewer classes, no non-teaching duties, decent salaries, above all, dignity, and the respect of the community."

ROLAND BARTH
Professor, Harvard School of Education,
Director of the Study on the Harvard School of Education,
Author of Open Education and the American School and Run School Run

"Only recently have educational policy makers come to realize that the school principal has an extraordinary influence over the quality of education and the quality of life under the roof of the schoolhouse. The school principal has the opportunity to make it all work — or not.

"Principals must learn that there are incentives for improving teacher performance more desirable than fear. Teachers become independent and effective when they are expected to examine and challenge the educational system, when they are encouraged to develop their own curricula, when they have a part in making school-wide decisions.

"Several conditions can inhibit or enhance a principal's effectiveness. Large schools, in particular, accentuate all the debilitating realities of the principalship — the demand for authority and responsibility, the isolation at the top, the time crunch.

"Principals are also crippled when they must deal with a bureaucracy in which the administrative layer must be preoccupied with monitoring and controlling the layers below. The obvious alternative to large, controlling bureaucracies is democratization and decentralization. This means shifting the locus of many educational decisions from the central office of the individual school." FW

Nosebleeds: Nuisance Or Warning?

By Paula Dranov

At some point in life, almost everybody gets a nosebleed. The reason is usually simple: an injury to the nose or, more commonly, irritation from too much blowing or poking. Capillaries are very close to the nose's surface, especially in the front, and that makes the nose very vulnerable to bleeding.

Most nosebleeds stop quickly of their own accord. But if you have been hit in the nose or have banged into something, there may be some swelling, enough to make it hard to determine whether or not your nose is broken. Even if it is, not to worry. Broken noses heal in a matter of weeks, and most of the time there's little or no change in appearance.

Some nosebleeds are symptoms of more serious conditions. Ones that occur for no apparent reason may indicate that something is wrong.

In middle-aged people, nosebleeds often are a late symptom of high blood pressure (hypertension). Nosebleeds in an adult should be reported to the doctor promptly so that if high blood pressure is the cause, medication can be prescribed.

Another cause of nosebleeds in adults may be chronic sinus trouble or allergies which result in inflamed, irritated or swollen nasal passages that may bleed easily. Dry heat in winter also may be the culprit by causing crusts to form in the nose, which are ripe for bleeding.

Nosebleeds occur with a number of serious ailments but they are usually preceded by and combined with other symptoms alarming enough to signal a need for treatment. These diseases include rheumatic fever, endocarditis (a bacterial infection of the heart lining), pernicious anemia and aplastic anemia.

Nosebleeds also may signal a Vitamin K deficiency. This vitamin is essential for blood clotting, and deficiencies may also result in bleeding from the gums, vagina and stomach.

The most frightening condition associated with sudden, unexplained nosebleeds is leukemia, but here again there usually are other, serious symptoms that appear first — severe fatigue, malaise and enlargement of the lymph glands, spleen and liver.

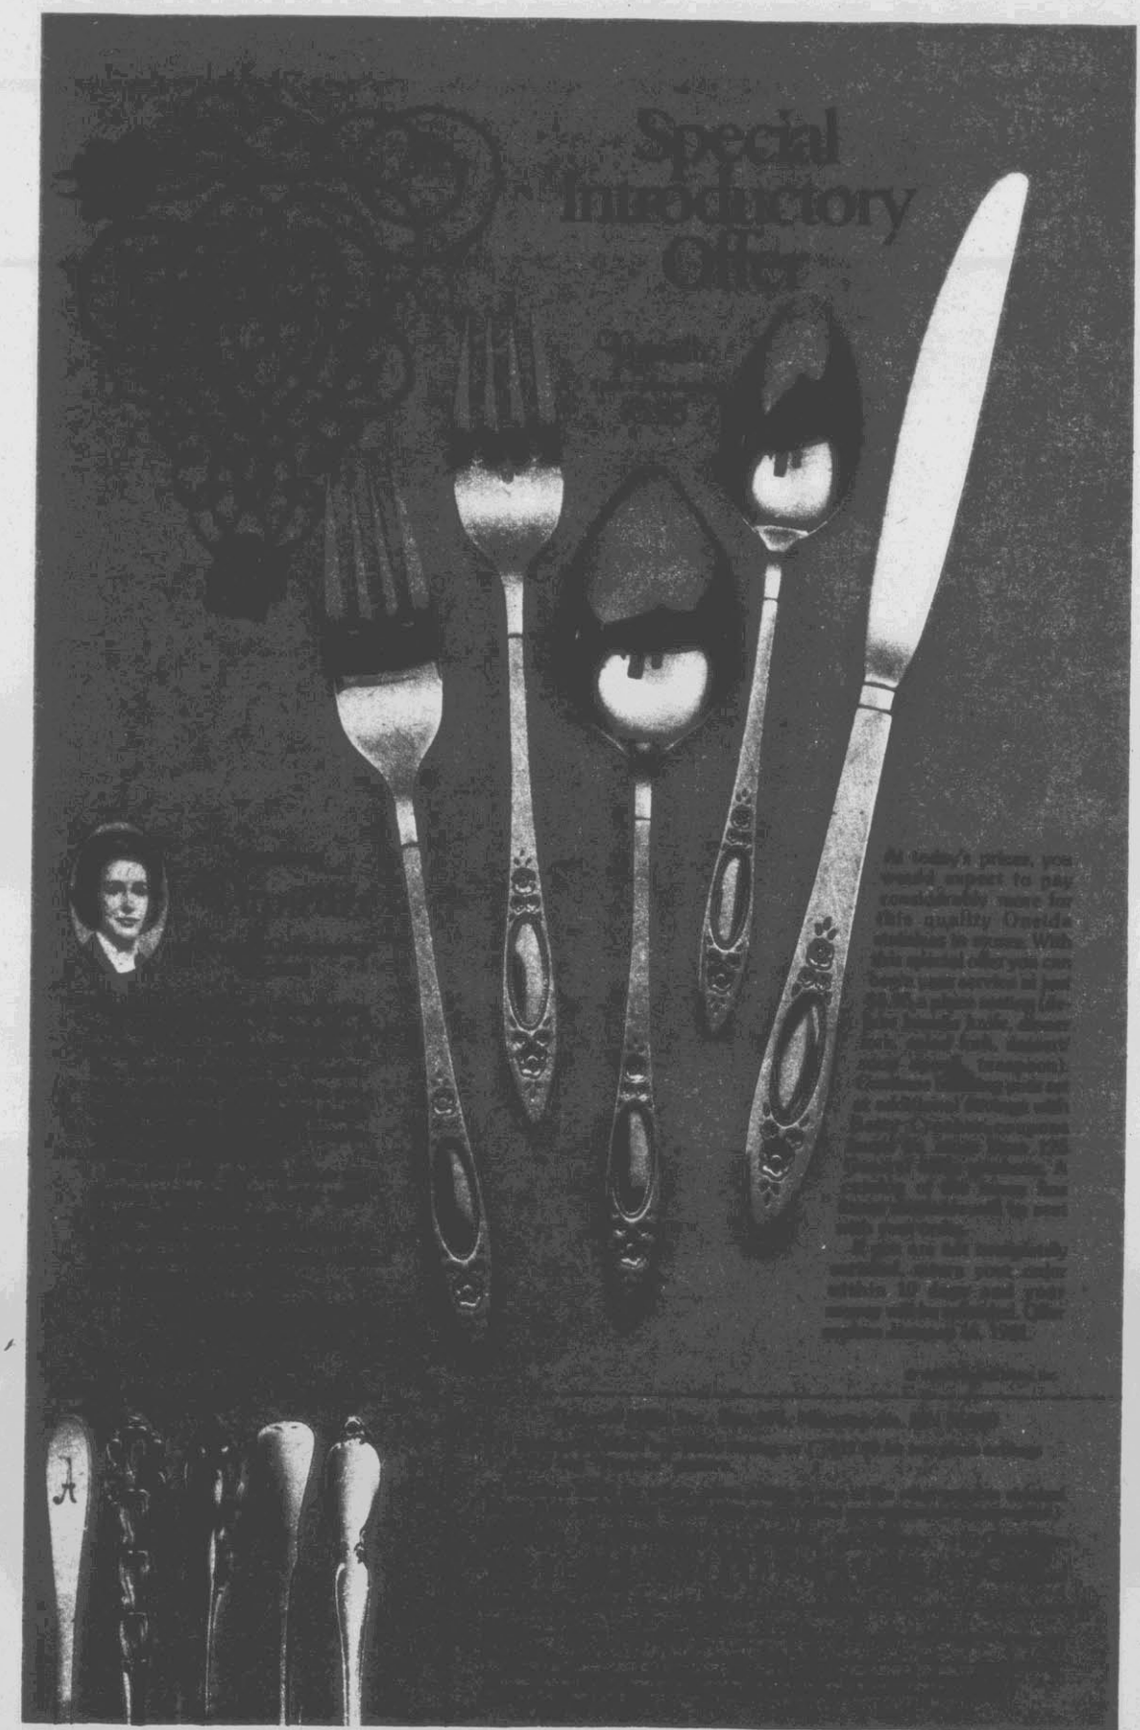

Some children have a tendency to have many long nosebleeds, and no one is exactly sure why. Constant nosebleeds can be stopped by cauterization, usually with silver nitrate, which seals the ends of the capillaries. It is a simple procedure, but sometimes capillaries have to be sealed more than once before they finally close.

All told, a nosebleed by itself is rarely cause for concern in a healthy individual. Most commonly, nosebleeds are over so fast you don't have to do much about them. But if they persist, here's what to do:

- Sit down, loosen clothing around the neck and put cold compresses on the nose and the back of the neck.
- Press the nostril on the bleeding side against the bone and hold it there for about five minutes.
- Then, carefully plug the nostril with sterile cotton.
- Don't blow your nose for a few hours after the bleeding stops.

Remember that frequent, unexplained nosebleeds or those that don't stop promptly do require a doctor's attention. FW

Needlepoint—You Can Even if You Never Have Before

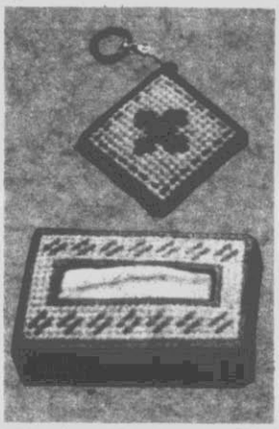

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Create a tree ornament.

If you've never tried needlepointing, these clever ideas are a good place to start. The attractive items are small in size, easy to work and take very little time to complete. If you're experienced and like to have something to work on that's small enough to carry in your purse, they are ideal.

For the beginner, we suggest needlepointing on a small grid instead of the traditional canvas. The work goes quickly, and there is no blocking required. The plastic grid is durable, easy to handle and readily available.

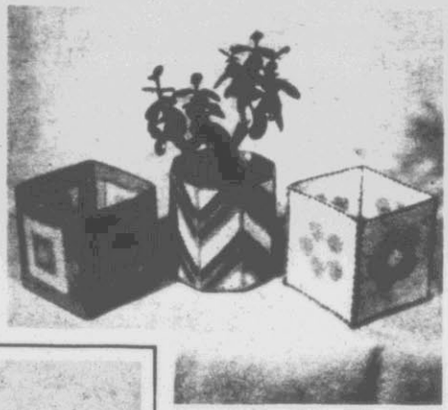

A key-ring fob and tissue box are worked on plastic.

You can make a variety of items — tissue boxes, cache pots, wall plaques, Christmas ornaments, small sachet or pincushions and key-ring fobs.

Wall plaques with favorite sayings are fun to make, either on plastic or canvas, with plain or fancy borders. Sometimes, with canvas, you can eliminate the background needlepoint entirely.

Needlepoint with dimension is another variation. Here you work the background in one stitch and a single color, then embroider flowers, polka dots, berries and bows on that background. A satin-stitch vase filled with a bouquet of yarn flowers tacked to a plain background, for example, makes a handsome dimensional picture.

For a unique and thoughtful gift, make a needlepoint keepsake ornament with a different design on each side of the finished cube. Or create a six-wreath ornament with tiny red berries and velvet ribbon bows, which are added after the white background and dark green wreaths are completed. Then embroider the year and your initials for a personal touch.

Attractive cache pots can be easily made with knitting yarn.

Dimensional pictures are a cinch to turn out.

Complete directions, plus basic how-to needlepoint instructions, charts and illustrations, for all the items mentioned, are included in a leaflet you can send for.

Winning Recipes from the Great Boston Bean Bake-In

By Marilyn Hansen

This year, the city of Boston celebrates its 350th birthday. The famed "gateway to the sea" has been the scene of countless festive events all year. A culinary highlight was the Great Boston Bean Bake-In, held July 12 on the promenade of the new City Hall. Finalists in the four contest categories happily cooked away under the helpful eyes of the Boston Jaycees. As one of the "celebrity" judges, I thoroughly enjoyed participating in the contest, a true measure of the vitality of Boston and its people today.

BOSTON TRICORNERS

- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1 can (9 ozs.) brick oven baked beans, mashed
- 2 cans (8¼-oz. size) pineapple chunks, drained and chopped
- 2 cups finely diced, fully cooked smoked ham
- 1 egg
- ½ cup cottage cheese
- 1½ lbs. Muenster cheese, shredded
- 1 pkg. (1 lb.) phyllo or filo dough
- ¾ lb. butter or margarine, melted

1. Combine onion, green pepper, mashed baked beans, pineapple and ham.
2. Beat egg until fluffy; stir in cottage cheese and Muenster cheese. Add to bean-ham combination; mix well.
3. Open filo dough and cut each sheet of dough in half on its width. Place damp tea towel over these sheets of dough to keep them pliable, taking one at a time to fill.
4. Brush one sheet of filo dough with melted butter. Fold buttered sheet into thirds, lengthwise. Butter again and put one tablespoon of filling into one corner.
5. Fold up corner of dough to the side forming a triangle. Fold over and over (flag fold), keeping the triangle shape.
6. Place triangles on cookie sheet and brush tops with butter. Repeat with remaining dough.
7. Bake at 350°F. for 15 to 20 minutes, or until delicately browned. Serve hot. These can be made ahead of time and frozen, then baked when needed.

Makes approximately 65 triangles

Grand Prize Winner and First Prize Appetizer category. Recipe submitted by Bertha Narinian, Belmont, Mass.

SAUSAGES PROVENCAL

- 2 lbs. sweet sausage
- 2 cups dry white wine
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 4 cloves garlic, coarsely chopped
- 3 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ teaspoon basil leaves
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- ½ cup chicken broth
- 2 pkgs. (10-oz. size) lima beans, thawed
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- Salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Place sausages in heavy skillet. Pour in 1 cup wine and ½ cup water. Heat to boiling, then reduce the heat. Cook, uncovered, until liquid has reduced by one-half.
2. Pour off liquid; reserve. Heat skillet and brown sausages well on all sides. Remove from skillet; set aside.
3. In same skillet in 2 tablespoons butter or in drippings, cook onion and garlic until browned, stirring. To skillet, add reserved sausage cooking liquid, tomatoes, pepper, bay leaf, basil and sugar. Cook 3 minutes and add remaining wine, chicken broth and sausages; cook, uncovered, three minutes longer.
4. Add lima beans and 2 tablespoons parsley. Cover and cook slowly for 45 minutes longer, stirring occasionally.
5. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Sprinkle with remaining parsley. Makes 6 servings

First Prize Main Dish category. Recipe submitted by Susan Ebert of Newton, Mass.

BEER-BAKED BEANS

- 1 lb. dry navy beans
- ½ lb. chorizo sausage
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 4 tablespoons molasses
- 2 tablespoons ketchup
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 can (12 ozs.) beer or ale

1. Wash and drain beans, then cover with water and soak overnight.
2. Remove outer casing from chorizo; discard. Chop chorizo meat.
3. Drain beans and turn into crockery bean pot. Add all remaining ingredients and mix well in the pot.
4. Add more beer if needed to cover beans. Cover bean pot and bake in 275°F. oven for 6 hours. Check every hour to see if liquid is adequate. Add water if necessary. Makes 6 to 8 servings

First prize Traditional Baked Bean category. Recipe submitted by Mrs. Tiana Garrison, Bridgewater, Mass.

NEW ENGLAND HARVEST BAKED BEANS

- 2 cans (28-oz. size) brick oven baked beans
- ½ cup ketchup or barbecue sauce
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- ½ cup maple syrup
- ¼ cup packed brown sugar
- 3 teaspoons dry mustard
- 2 cups diced tart apples
- ¼ to ½ lb. slab bacon, sliced

1. Combine beans, ketchup, cider, maple syrup, brown sugar, dry mustard and apples.
2. Pour mixture into 2-qt. baking dish. Arrange bacon in one layer on top.
3. Bake, uncovered, in preheated 350°F. oven for approximately 45 minutes or until bacon is cooked and beans and liquid are bubbling throughout entire casserole. Serve hot.

Makes about 8 servings

First Prize: Brick Oven Baked Beans, category Recipe submitted by Victoria Firtko, Boston, Mass.

OLD-FASHIONED BOSTON BAKED BEANS

- 1 lb. Great Northern, small white or navy beans
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1½ teaspoons dry mustard
- ½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- Dash cayenne
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup molasses
- ¼ cup packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup cider vinegar
- ¼ lb. lean salt pork, cubed
- Boiling water

1. Soak beans overnight or 8 hours; do not refrigerate. Drain beans, combine salt, spices, onion, molasses, brown sugar and vinegar and mix with beans.
2. Pour half of mixture into crock pot (or 2-qt. baking dish). Layer half the pork, then the rest of the beans. Top with pork.
3. Pour in boiling water to cover beans. Cook at slow cook band of crock pot cooker, 200°F.-210°F. for 13 hours or bake at 300°F. for 6 hours.
4. Add boiling water if needed during baking. Freezes well.

Makes 1½ quarts, 6 servings

Finalist in Traditional Boston Baked Beans category. Recipe submitted by Barbara Donnelly, Arlington, Mass.

BEAN AND BEEF BOUNTY

- 1 lb. ground beef
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- ½ cup finely chopped onion
- ½ cup sliced celery
- 1 can (8 ozs.) tomato sauce
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- ¾ to 1 clove garlic, minced or mashed
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1 large can (3 lbs. 7 ozs.) or 2 cans (12-oz. size) brick oven baked beans

1. Brown ground beef; add green pepper, onion and celery. Sauté until beef is brown and vegetables are limp.
2. Stir in tomato sauce, water, vinegar, garlic, mustard, brown sugar, salt and pepper. Simmer for 5 minutes.
3. Place beans into greased 2-quart baking dish. Spread meat mixture over top. Bake at 375°F. for 45 minutes.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

REWARD!

We'll pay you $130.00 for this 1972 penny!
It's slightly different from most 1972 pennies, yet there are coins like it in circulation right now! Do you know what the difference is?

Our brand new, 1981 Coin Guidebook shows you how much America's best coin dealer guarantees to pay for hundreds of valuable coins.

For Certain	Dated Before	Up To
Nickels	1914	$95,000.00
Gold Coins	1932	$88,000.00
Silver Dollars	1935	$75,000.00
Quarters	1955	$ 5,000.00
Half Dollars	1901	$ 1,200.00
Pennies	1961	$10,000.00
Dimes	1926	$ 310.00

Certain special coins listed in the guidebook dated before the dates given above are valuable. Valuable coins are rare. Only a few coins dated before the dates given above are extremely valuable.

Did you spend this coin today? Think of the many other valuable coins that might slip through your fingers in your change each day. Some coins will bring you over $1,000.00. Mr. D.J. of Vancouver, Wash. recently found a penny like the one shown in the picture above.

Order your Coin Guidebook now so that you can learn the rare dates and how to spot valuable coins. Coins don't have to be old to be valuable. Hold on to your coins, but don't send them to us until you read the very important mailing instructions in the Coin Guidebook. Satisfaction or Refund.

☐ I enclose $2.99 + 50¢ postage and handling; send me your new, 5" x 8" quick-reference edition 1981 Coin Guidebook which shows how to spot valuable coins and tells how much you guarantee to pay for them.

Don't Call Gerry Cooney 'Boxing's Great White Hope'

By Barry Wilner

Ever since Jack Johnson knocked out Tommy Burns in 1908 to become the first black heavyweight champion, the sport of boxing has seen fewer and fewer white faces. It seems that every time a white boxer who shows some promise comes along, he immediately is tagged the "Great White Hope." In recent years, Jerry Quarry and Duane Bobick have fallen to the canvas and by the wayside trying to live up to the billing.

Now, enter Gerry Cooney.

But Cooney wants to make something perfectly clear right from the start. He doesn't care what his manager or his trainer says. He doesn't bother with the promoters and the press ballyhoo. He's going to do things his way.

"Great White Hope?" he says with disdain. "Not me, no way. I don't want that tag or any other label.

"I fight because I like it and to see how far I can go. But I'm not working to be the next white heavyweight champion. I want to be the next heavyweight champion, period."

Cooney's got a legitimate shot at it, too, since he is currently one of the three or four top-ranked contenders for the heavyweight title.

It may take a while for Cooney to achieve that distinction, though, because he has been brought along very cautiously by co-managers Dennis Rappaport and Mike Jones and trainer Victor Valle. Cooney, 24, turned pro in 1976 and is undefeated in 23 fights, including 20 knockouts. But he has met just one highly ranked opponent — Jimmy Young, whom he easily defeated by a technical knockout in the fourth round this year.

Wide World

Still, the 6 foot 6 inch, 225 pounder has steadily climbed in the rankings and is the name most often mentioned to meet the winner of the WBC title match between Larry Holmes and Muhammad Ali.

For now, however, Cooney's contingent is taking it slowly, not wanting to risk a blemish on the fighter's untainted record. (His next bout is Oct. 24 against Ron Lyle, whom Cooney should handle easily.) But Gerry isn't complaining. "I'm patient, I know I'll get my chance," he says. "I want to be ready when that happens. I have all the confidence in my managers and Victor."

Mike Jones defends the way Cooney has been handled, pointing to the fact that his boxer has reached the top rankings without being rushed or forced to meet any real quality

As reported in news stories in the New York Times, Washington Post, Chicago Tribune, Miami Herald, Ecologist, Paul Harvey News .....

ROACH PRUFE, No. 1 in UNIVERSITY TESTS

In a report just released by the UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA and published by the ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA, eight commercial and test products that include a broad spectrum of insecticides were tested against a product called "ROACH PRUFE." The University concluded "Our experience under field conditions has shown that when properly applied, the ROACH PRUFE formula provides a degree of cockroach control that is usually superior to all other registered commercial or consumer products."

Alan Brite, who 30 years ago developed and lent his name to what is now a standard household cleaner, Copper Brite, stated: "Because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUFE as an insecticide, they do not try to avoid it by scattering to other parts of your residence as they do with the other insecticides. Plus the electrostatically charged powder sticks to their bodies, which they then carry back into the walls spreading among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in your walls."

Odorless, Easy To Apply

ROACH PRUFE is odorless, non-evaporating, non-staining and non-flammable. It is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and other hidden areas. It can be used in homes, schools, hospitals, restaurants, plus new construction.

Brite has a problem, however. He says most retailers apparently think it's unprofitable to stock ROACH PRUFE on their shelves when the same customers will come in again and again to buy the other insecticides. So until they do, he's decided to sell his product direct to consumers.

ROACH PRUFE costs $7.95 plus 95¢ for postage for a one-pound can, add 6% tax in California. One can covers up to a 9-room residence, plus one can for basement and garage. To obtain the product, send a check or money order to Copper Brite Inc., Dept. 93 at 5147 West Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90016. Copies of the University tests are available by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Copper Brite, Inc., Dept. A.

Gerry Cooney

Wide World

Cooney tussles with Jimmy Young prior to their recent bout. In the real test of strength, Cooney scored a fourth-round T.K.O.

opposition. "It takes time for a boxer to develop his skills," says Jones. "If you rush them, most of the time they never stay up there, like Leon Spinks, [who took the title from Muhammad Ali after fighting only six pro bouts] and John Tate [the former WBA title holder].

"We're not concerned with the opinions of others. We knew from the beginning we'd have pressure to rush him, but we always felt we had to take our time. Gerry was very cooperative about it. Now, we feel he's ready for anybody."

Valle, the trainer, agrees. He remembers the raw talent he was handed back in 1976, when Gerry left the amateurs following his father's death. Cooney might well have beaten Tate for the heavyweight spot on the 1976 U.S. Olympic team, but the finals were held the same week his father died, so Gerry forfeited.

The tragedy hit him hard. "When I was a kid, I always wanted to be a fighter and my father saw it, so he pushed me," says Gerry. "I come from a big Irish family, and we used to fight all the time. My father and brother were amateur fighters.

Cooney always was a tremendous power puncher, but he had little feel for the finer aspects of the sport. That's where Valle came in. "He came to me as a puncher, that's all," says Valle, a veteran of 40 years in the fight game. "He didn't know a thing about defense or being scientific. He was wild and had little leg movement.

"I had to start all over with him, but I saw the talent was there. He had to learn the tricks — balance, movement, precision. We could work on that all the time in the gym but he needed to learn it in fights."

He has obviously learned his lessons well. Owner of a devastating left hook, Cooney is most dangerous from in close. "Nobody in his right mind would go with him inside," notes Valle. "He'll kill you inside."

The major knock on Cooney is that he's a knockout artist and unable to survive long bouts. Indeed, he has only been carried the distance three times as a pro, and one of those fights, with Eddie "The Animal" Lopez, was scheduled for 10 rounds but was cut to eight because of television commitments. (Claims Cooney, "I won all eight rounds and had Lopez ready to fall.")

Strange thing is, outside the ring, Cooney is hardly the ferocious type. "He's like two different people, inside the ring and out," adds Jones. "Gerry's playful and a joker, but he's also sensitive."

Cooney's people like to relate this story as proof:

"One day, when Gerry was doing his road work, Victor was in a car following him," remembers Jones. "All of a sudden, Gerry had stopped running and Victor couldn't find him. Gerry had heard a woodchuck crying in pain. Apparently it had been hit by a car and Gerry was administering help. Victor asked him, 'What are you doing?'

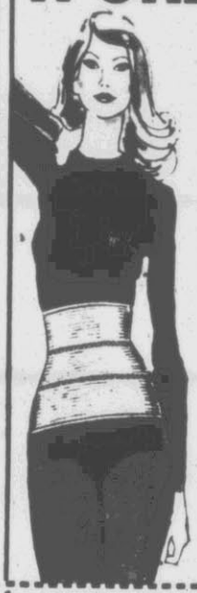

" 'We gotta do something about this woodchuck,' Gerry said. So he took the animal to the main building, called a vet and fed it while he waited for help to arrive."

Unfortunately for Cooney's opponents, though, none of them is a woodchuck. And he has no intention of treating anyone in the ring with such tender, loving care. FW

FREE MONEY!

Are you a Social Security chump? That is, are you ignorant of the fact that some FORTY MILLION of your fellow Americans are now riding the Social Security gravy train?

Did you know that nearly 10 million of them are under the age of 60, averaging A MERE 30 YEARS OF AGE?

Did you know that the Social Security cash giveaway now exceeds A STAGGERING $125 BILLION ANNUALLY and that individual pensions can reach as high as $1,233.50 A MONTH?

Are you aware that the government's biggest problem is giving all the money away? That is, that more people are entitled to Social Security pensions than apply for them, that the government's hardest task is finding the millions of individuals who are eligible for cash but don't claim it?

Did you know that this sum of unclaimed money amounts to UNTOLD BILLIONS?

Would you like to find out if YOU are entitled to share in this Social Security bonanza—perhaps with a fat monthly pension or lavish lump-sum cash payment?

Sylvia Porter, the nation's most highly respected personal-finance advisor, says: "In recent years the Social Security law has so vastly expanded the list of benefits and beneficiaries that many newly eligible beneficiaries aren't even aware that they qualify, and many prospective beneficiaries don't know what they may qualify for or when. Thus, many Americans are losing out on benefits."

To help alert the American people to the availability of these undistributed fortunes, a manual has just been written. Its title is FREE MONEY! HOW TO CASH IN ON SOCIAL SECURITY. And a copy is yours FREE—ABSOLUTELY, POSITIVELY FREE! FREE!! FREE!!!—with a one-year subscription to Better Living. How much does a subscription cost? Incredibly, ONLY $2.95!

Obviously, to reap the Social Security benefits you must first QUALIFY under Social Security rules. So the first thing that you are going to need is reliable information. That's where the manual FREE MONEY! comes in: It provides authoritative, up-to-the-minute facts that tell whether you're eligible to collect Social Security and, if not, how to become eligible.

FREE MONEY! is chock-full of answers to such pertinent questions as:

- How can you qualify for a pension even though you've never worked a day in your life or contributed a cent in Social Security taxes—or even nearly reached 65?
- How can you satisfy the eligibility requirements of Canada and the U.S. and collect Social Security from BOTH countries?
- Is it true that Social Security income is both TAX-FREE and INFLATION-PROOF (increased automatically to offset inflation)?
- Why, under Social Security, does it often pay for a couple to live together rather than marry?
- Why is it CRUCIAL to periodically check the balance of your Social Security account, the one held in your name by the government, and how can you do so?
- Does it ever pay to hold TWO Social Security cards?
- How can a divorced man or woman collect benefits on an ex-spouse's earnings?
- Since it has been shown that different Social Security offices will grant pensions of differing amounts based on the same family and employment history, how can you "shop" for the biggest possible benefits?
- Since, as studies have revealed, millions of workers OVERPAY Social Security taxes, how can you check and perhaps get a refund?
- Is your Social Security account THE SINGLE MOST VALUABLE ASSET YOU POSSESS without your even knowing it?
- Has Social Security become so valuable that you should, as some have done, tattoo your account number on your body?

PEOPLE QUIZ / By John E. Gibson

Persuasion: Is It a Sleepy-Time Ruse?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you want to influence your spouse toward your way of thinking, the best time to implant the suggestion in his or her mind is at bedtime.

2. Women are more suggestible, more susceptible to persuasion than men are.

3. Trying to persuade a person not to do something because it poses a possible threat to his health or well-being can have precisely the opposite effect.

4. If you wish to persuade someone to do you a big favor — involving a financial consideration, a service or whatever — first ask him for a small favor, one that's easily granted. That will increase the chance of his saying yes when you hit him for the big favor.

5. As any salesman will tell you, some people are much easier to influence than others — and it's easy to tell who they are, if you know what to look for.

6. If a man doesn't want to be talked into something he wouldn't ordinarily want to do, he should give pretty girls who want something from him a wide berth.

ANSWERS

1. True. Veterans Administration studies have shown that the period shortly after going to bed, when a person is in a drowsy state — neither really asleep nor wholly awake — "is characterized by a high degree of suggestibility, receptivity and responsivity." Psychologists term this half-asleep, half-awake period the hypnagogic state. And when a person is in this state, input (in the form of suggestions or ideas) is received by both the conscious and unconscious mind simultaneously. So when you murmur suggestions into your spouse's ear during this period, you're timing them perfectly.

2. False. A University of Massachusetts study of sex differences in influence ability evaluated the findings of leading researchers and concludes that "when all available evidence is considered, the widely accepted idea that there is a sex difference in influence ability... appears to be wrong." And findings of University of New Mexico studies likewise reject the notion that females are more persuasible than males.

3. True. Studies of individuals' reactions to such warnings, conducted at Britain's Plymouth Polytechnic School of Behaviorial and Social Science, have shown that the significant main effect of such warnings can boomerang. They can then actually increase the desire to do what the warning inveighs against and cause the person to reject the idea that something he is doing, eating or participating in poses an actual threat to his physical or mental well-being. The warning may also be interpreted as an attempt to dictate what the individual should or should not do, thus depriving him of free choice. ("They can't tell me what to do!" "I don't intend to change my ways just because something is supposed to be threatening my health — I don't scare that easily!")

4. True. Studies at Brandeis University cite findings showing that "once an individual has complied with a small, sometimes trivial, request, that person will be more likely to comply with a larger and more substantial demand made in the future." Behavioral specialists call this the foot-in-the-door phenomenon. Alternative explanations for the effectiveness of this technique have been considered and found wanting. Further research is deemed necessary to fully explore the psychodynamics of this strange and complex phenomenon.

5. True. Research at the Institute for Human Development, Fairfield University (Conn.) shows that people who are easiest to influence tend to have certain personality characteristics; that high suggestibility (susceptibility to persuasion) is associated with feelings of pessimism, apathy, emotional distance and a high degree of anxiety. The study also showed that people who believe that chance and luck play a greater part in success than personal effort and ability are the most susceptible to persuasive techniques.

6. True. The person most likely to sell a man on something he really doesn't need or want is a pretty girl with an attractive smile — and an axe to grind. University of Toronto studies on physical attractiveness and persuasion indicate that "physical attractiveness significantly enhances communicator persuasiveness" and that attractive people tend to possess characteristics — such as poise and self-confidence — that dispose them to be more effective communicators than others. It is noted that when the communicator also happens to be a member of the opposite sex from the recipient of the message, the sex-appeal factor markedly increases the effectiveness. Thus, a woman confronted with a good-looking salesman is likely to be more susceptible to persuasion than if he were just average-looking. FW

when I planned to retire before fifty

this is the business that made it possible

A true story by John B. Haikey

Starting with borrowed money Duraclean gave me the opportunity for financial security ... In eight years I sold out at a profit and retired

"Not until I was forty, did I make up my mind that I was going to retire before ten years had passed. I knew I couldn't do it working for others. I had to start a business of my own.

"I investigated a lot of businesses offered as franchises. I felt that I wanted the guidance of an experienced company—wanted to have the benefits of the plans that had brought success to others, plus the benefit of running my own business under an established name that had national recognition.

"Most of the franchises offered were too costly for me. But I found that the Duraclean franchise offered me exactly what I had been looking for.

"I could start for a small amount. (Today, only $2588 starts a Duraclean dealership, and the company will finance the balance of the total $7895 cash investment over 45 months.) I could work it as a one-man business to start, and operate from my home. No overhead, no salaries to pay. Equipment would fit in my car trunk. Best of all, there was no ceiling on my earnings. I could build a business as big as my ambition and energy dictated—as fast as I wished.

"So I started. I took the wonderful training furnished by the company. I followed the simple plan outlined in the training. During the first period I did all the service work myself. By doing it myself, I could make much more per hour than I had ever made on a salary. Later, I would hire men, train them, pay them well, and still make an hourly profit on their time that made my idea of retirement possible.

"What is Duraclean? An improved space-age process for cleaning upholstered furniture, rugs and tacked down carpets. It lifts out the dirt by means of an absorbent dry foam.

"That's the business I was able to start with a small investment. That's the business I sold out at a substantial profit before I was fifty."

E.L. ("Ragtime") Doctorow Hits the Right Note Again

By Tony Scherman

E.L. Doctorow hit on a career choice early: "I was 8 years old when I decided to become a writer. And," he adds wryly, "I considered myself an artist for years before I felt obliged to actually sit down and write."

In his early 20's, Doctorow, now 49, finally felt obliged, and he began the lonely — and often unprofitable — job of fiction-writing. Despite three books and critical acclaim, Doctorow supported his family for over two decades by teaching and working at other jobs. In 1975 his fourth novel was published; and suddenly Edgar Lawrence Doctorow was not just a hit with the critics. He was rich. The book was Ragtime.

A marvelous novel that sold over three million copies, Ragtime is now being followed by Loon Lake. But, while Ragtime was big and brassy and bounced from start to finish like a well-tuned player piano, Loon Lake is quiet and enigmatic.

It takes place in 1936, when a scrappy street kid named Joe takes off to ride the rails, California-bound. His travels eventually lead to Loon Lake, the magnificent estate of Bennett, a mysterious multimillionaire, a lodge complete with roving packs of wild dogs, a drunken poet-in-residence and the strange blond Clara. Joe learns the ways of the rich here, until his wanderlust gets the better of him, and he hits the road again — this time with Clara in the millionaire's Mercedes. Not until the book's very last line does the reader see how far Joe really goes and the price he pays along the way.

"Please don't reveal the ending," says Doctorow, sipping a cup of coffee in his Sag Harbor, Long Island, house. "I like to keep 'em reading." He actually began the book not knowing how it would end, and "it composed itself. Whenever I write with a conscious plan, it always turns out lousy," he says.

Doctorow usually starts with a feeling or a particular image, and though his books are the subject of endless discussion, Doctorow himself hates to analyze them. "If you want a message," he says, invoking the old saw, "call Western Union."

The author admits that writing novels is never easy: "It's no sane life. There are only two good moments: when you know that what you're writing will become a book, and when it's finished."

© Paul Davis

Doctorow: At age 8 he decided to be a writer, at 49 he is the author of five books — and a millionaire.

The difficulties of writing are compounded by fame. "Sure I feel more pressure after Ragtime. I'd be lying if I said I didn't." Ragtime's public career did not end between book covers: The film version is expected to be released in the fall of 1981.

The novelist is no stranger to the movie business. After growing up in New York City and putting in time at Ohio's Kenyon College and in the Army, Doctorow worked in the 50's as a script reader for a film company. While reading a lot of "terrible" Westerns for work, Doctorow decided to write a Western himself. The result was his first novel, Welcome to Hard Times, which was turned into what he calls "a genuinely lousy movie" starring Henry Fonda.

It was Doctorow's third novel, The Book of Daniel, that established his reputation in literary circles. By this time he was no longer a script reader; he'd gone into publishing, worked his way up to editor-in-chief at Dial Press and then left to teach writing at Sarah Lawrence College. In the meantime, Ragtime had begun, typically, by accident. Living in a 1906 New Rochelle (N.Y.) house, Doctorow imagined Harry Houdini dropping in to visit the house's original residents, and Ragtime's unique blend of fact and fantasy began to take shape.

Doctorow was delighted by Ragtime's success, but notes, "The novelty of fame wears off surprisingly quickly, and then you're still alone, the same person you've always been, facing that blank piece of paper."

Though he no longer has to, Doctorow continues to teach, currently at Princeton. He's looking forward to the publication of his wife's (Helen Henslee) first novel, which she's just finishing. The three Doctorow children are grown up: One daughter is in publishing, another is a bluegrass musician and the youngest, a son, attends Bard College.

When Doctorow is in the throes of a novel he works seven days a week, five hours a day. Loon Lake has left him with lots of energy, though: "I may even have a new book going by the end of the year." What'll it be about? "Oh, I really can't tell you!" he says quickly. "I'm not being evasive. I just won't know until I write it." FW

There isn't any such thing, skeptics will say. Whereas the superstitious are apt to regard any stroke of extraordinary good fortune as miraculous.

In between these two viewpoints lies the basic truth of these supernatural events which everyone should strive to understand. Because miracles do happen. To deny their existence is to contradict the testimony of Holy Scripture, for it was by performing miracles that Jesus led men to recognize His divine mission.

A miracle is, in its simplest terms, a manifestation of supernatural power... a sign of divine presence... an event through which God strengthens our faith and moves us to improve our conduct.

If you'd like to know more about miracles, their purpose and how to recognize them, write today for our pamphlet entitled "Miracles — Signs of God's Favor." It will be sent free and nobody will call on you.

The Alternatives:
Presidential Candidates John Anderson and Ed Clark

By Michael D'Antonio

For the first time in more than a decade, Americans who complain that a choice between Democrats and Republicans is no choice at all, will have alternatives at the top of their ballots on Nov. 4. Most prominent are Independent Presidential candidate John B. Anderson and Libertarian Party candidate Edward E. Clark.

Anderson and Clark have battled their way onto the ballots in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. And while Clark's 3- to 6-percent support in the public-opinion polls suggests he won't move into the Oval Office in January, Anderson's rating — which has recently fluctuated around 15 to 20 percent — shows what he has called "a campaign in the lift-off stage, ready to soar."

Breese-Skoogfors / Gamma-Liaison

John Anderson is a 58-year-old Congressman from Rockford, Ill., who lost his bid for the Republican nomination but not his determination to be President. "I saw polls that indicated that 55 percent of the American people were unhappy with the choice of Jimmy Carter or Ronald Reagan," Anderson says, looking back at his April decision to launch an independent drive for the White House. "I saw polls that said almost two-thirds of the people thought I should run, that it would be good for the political process."

So before he was definitely sure whom he would be running against, Anderson signed up for the long road trip to election day in November. He says he was sure his candidacy would offer some clear alternatives to the American public. After the Democratic and Republican national conventions, Anderson remarks, "I was even more sure."

"The Republican platform," says Anderson in a FAMILY WEEKLY interview, "is regressive on issues. It fails to support the ERA; it seeks outright military superiority at any cost and it even seeks to repeal the 55-mile-per hour speed limit." The Democratic convention renominated a President whom Anderson calls "an ineffective leader," and that turn of events, he says, spurred his campaign.

As for the individuals he'll face in just a few weeks, Anderson remarks, "Ronald Reagan is a fine man but his sensibilities are tied to the past; he represents a political nostalgia for simpler days. I don't think we can walk backward into the past with him, though." And Carter, says Anderson, "has demonstrated he is the consumate and complete politician" who goes through "chameleonlike transformations" to fit the political mood of the nation. For most of the campaign, Carter and Reagan have criticized each other and left Anderson pretty much alone.

As summer turned to fall, Anderson was granted Federal Elections Commission funding as a major candidate, a League of Women Voters invitation to debate Carter and Reagan and a firm position on the ballots in every state and Washington D.C. Anderson was in a position to make a run for the money.

The independent candidate seems elated by the progress of his campaign and confident about his chances for success. "I am really excited," he says. "The decision of the League of Women Voters tells the country I'm a credible candidate."

As far as issues are concerned, Anderson generally straddles the center, leaning toward the conservative on fiscal questions and toward

REFUND NOTICE TO ACNE-STATIN PURCHASERS

If you are one of the thousands who responded to print and television ads for Acne-Statin, and you were unhappy with the product's performance in treating acne, we have news for you.

What you may not know is that as the result of actions taken under Sec. 5 and Sec. 12 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the makers, marketers and endorser of Acne-Statin have agreed with the FTC to establish a "restitution account" to give you back at least some and very likely all the money you spent on purchasing Acne-Statin. The total of refunds may amount to nearly $200,000!

SETTLEMENT WITH ACNE-STATIN PROMOTERS GETS YOUR MONEY BACK

Under the agreement with the FTC, the makers, marketers and endorser of Acne-Statin will "cease and desist" from advertising the product as a cure for acne—no product can cure acne. They have also agreed to establish the restitution accounts so you can get some if not all of your money back. In case you've forgotten, the price of Acne-Statin was around $10 a bottle.

While the agreements between the FTC and the makers, marketers and endorser of Acne-Statin do require all of the consumer refund money from these parties, they do not constitute an admission by these parties that they violated the law.

YOUR ELIGIBILITY

If you bought Acne-Statin before Sept. 15, 1980, and haven't already received all the refunds you think you are entitled to, you're eligible for a refund check. But you must apply in writing before Jan. 13, 1981.

Because you bought Acne-Statin through the mail, your name and address will be matched against those records and, if verified, added to the list of refund eligibles. This procedure should work in nearly every case, but to insure that your refund request will be honored, you may wish to enclose some proof of purchase such as copies of your cancelled checks. We must emphasize that providing proof of purchase is not required for you to receive a refund. On Jan. 13, 1981, the processing of refund requests will begin. If there is not enough money in the restitution accounts to fulfill all of the verified requests, the money will be fairly divided among all of those eligible for a refund.

HOW TO APPLY

To receive your fair share of the refund money, just fill out the coupon below and mail it to ACNE-STATIN REFUND, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. Remember the deadline is Jan. 13, 1981, so fill out the attached coupon and mail it today. If you don't apply, you won't receive a refund under this program. It's your money.

The Alternatives (continued)

Libertarian Ed Clark: Laying the groundwork for the 1980's and 90's.

the liberal on many social issues.

On the Federal budget, for example, Anderson says a balance of Federal tax receipts and expenditures is a positive goal, but he won't promise to balance the budget during his first term in office, as Carter promised in '76.

"He [Carter] said he would balance the budget in his first term and he said we could depend on it. We couldn't depend on it," Anderson says. "And now Ronald Reagan has set the same unrealistic goal. I would concentrate on bringing down inflation. If we're going to have tax cuts they have to be phased in gradually, and if we're going to cut Federal programs, they can't be the ones that affect the poor and the elderly on fixed incomes."

A Representative from Illinois' conservative 16th district since 1960, Anderson has been criticized by liberals and conservatives alike. As a young Congressman he repeatedly offered a special bill to require Federal recognition of Christianity, although he now says he objects to combining church and state.

On the more liberal side, Anderson was an early critic of President Nixon's excessive use of Executive privilege and vigorously called for explanations of Watergate even before most Democrats. Anderson has actively supported Federal family assistance plans for the poor.

Anderson is a Midwestern small-town lawyer educated in the East at Harvard. He's had broad experience in foreign affairs as a U.S. foreign service officer, and in Congress he chaired the Republican Conference for nearly 10 years and held seats on the Rules Committee and the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

One of the independent's most controversial proposals calls for a 50-cent-per-gallon tax on gasoline which he says would force conservation, cut oil imports an estimated 700,000 barrels per day and generate $61 billion per year in revenue for the Federal Government. That money would be used to cut in half current Social Security taxes.

"Either we tax ourselves in the form of higher prices for our petroleum products," Anderson says, "or we allow OPEC to tax us in the form of higher and higher prices for crude oil." Critics say gas prices are already too high, and the tax would cripple consumers.

In regard to defense, Anderson says he would propose defense spending significantly below Reagan's proposals. He does not support the $65 billion MX roving missile program; in fact, he has endorsed no new major strategic weapons program. The money, he explains, "would be better spent increasing the pay for military people who now need food stamps to survive." If any part of America's defense should be bolstered, he adds, it's the Navy.

At public appearances Anderson seems intent and purposeful. His thick white hair and theatrically measured voice provide a dramatic presentation. Anderson admits to an occasionally "preachy" tone in his speeches, but he is considered by his peers to be the most effective debater in Congress.

With no plans for the rest of the 80's, except to occupy the White House, Anderson says he can envision a scenario that wins him — and running mate, Patrick Lucey — key victories in the Northeast, his native Midwest and the West.

Libertarian candidate Clark, on the other hand, admits that his goal is really just to lay the party's groundwork for the 1980's and 90's. "The objective is to be as strong as the Republicans and Democrats by the mid-1980's," Clark, 50, says, "and to be the biggest party as we enter the 1990's."

Libertarians believe the Government's role in society must be second to the freedom and rights of individuals. Their philosophy includes eliminating Government from virtually every part of society — from education to foreign policy. Their specific programs include a massive tax cut joined by across-the-board program cuts in every area of Government and the closing of 75 percent of all U.S. embassies and consulates abroad.

Listening to Clark, a soft-spoken Californian transplanted from Massachusetts, and a former "nominal Republican," it becomes clear that he thinks the message, not the man, is most important. "You have to start with the premise that in our society it is the individual, and the rights of the individual, that are most important," he says. "After that, the Libertarian philosophy will fall into place for you." FW

QUIPS & QUOTES

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

PAPERED OVER

Wallpaper comes in many colors,
The very bright as well as dullers.
It comes in quaint and mod designs,
In floral patterns, circles, lines,

With views of whaling ships, old cars,
Or far-off photographs of Mars,
Gay mottoes, rubbings from a tomb,
Art work by children, I presume,

The West, with cowboys and with cattle,
Peace symbols, also flags and battle.
Wallpaper often I have viewed,
And with these words I now conclude,

A statement that I think will stick:
What pleases some, makes other sick.

ITSA FREUD

The attractive woman psychiatrist was attending a convention of her kind. At one of the lectures, a fellow practitioner sitting next to her began gently to pinch her — here and there. Annoyed, she was about to deal him an angry word, when she changed her mind. Why should I get angry? she thought. After all, it's his problem.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

My 3-year-old nephew loves to accompany my dad as he does his farm chores. One day, after a truck ride to the hilltop, my dad asked him to "call the cows." My nephew did, and his little voice echoed against the Virginia mountains. With great surprise in his voice, he exclaimed, "Granddaddy, somebody helpin' me!" —Wilma Hale Anderaon, Ind.

Helping Your Child Conquer Everyday Fears

By Simi Horwitz

Mary L., a 4-year-old, is terrified of the dark and remains convinced that once the lights go out a three-eyed monster will gobble her up. She will not go to sleep unless her mother lies down in bed with her.

Mary has a phobia — defined as an intense, often irrational, fear of something. According to the experts, approximately 80 percent of us have had a childhood phobia of one sort or another. Fortunately, most of these are transitory and there is usually no need for alarm.

Of course, these facts don't make it any easier for Mary or the thousands of other children who have phobias. The dark, monsters and animals are common sources of terror for many children. As children get older, school may cause a phobic response. In fact, it is the most common phobia that plagues youngsters.

Experts stress that children's phobias can be assuaged by parents who are informed, understanding and most of all patient.

The Origin of Phobias

"A child's world is large and scary. Oftentimes, he feels alone, uncertain or even overwhelmed," says Carol Lindemann, Ph.D., Director of the Phobia Center at New York's Psychological Center. "Fear can be a natural and self-protective response. New and unexplained experiences seem threatening and a youngster's lack of knowledge combined with his vivid imagination work together to intensify his panic."

Stress, illness or a change in routine are some of the common roots of childhood phobias. A traumatic experience is frequently the cause.

After 7-year-old Johnny was stuck in an elevator for a hour, he developed an inordinate fear of elevators. Mary, the 4-year-old terrified of the dark, had recently entered a hospital for surgery. As a result of waking up in pain, afraid, and alone, she subsequently developed a phobia about the dark.

Simi Horwitz is a freelancer who writes on general topics.

Helping Your Child

All the experts agree the sympathetic parent will have the best results in alleviating his child's phobias. For instance, Johnny can be coaxed into trying an elevator again if his mother is gentle and reassuring. She should explain to him that his bad experience is not typical. Perhaps she can even urge him to take a short ride with her. Several days later, a longer ride. Within a few weeks, Johnny should be willing to get into an elevator alone. But his mother should not push.

"Fear of abandonment, or separation anxiety, is often at the bottom of night-time phobias," says Dr. Lindemann. "The youngster feels helpless and has no control. Reading a story, playing a game or installing a nightlight are good beginning tactics."

Preventing a School Phobia

By far, the most typical and debilitating phobia in childhood involves school. Going to school for the first time can be an exciting experience or it can be terrifying. The child's reaction largely depends on the parents' attitudes.

Parental attitudes are "imparted very clearly the first, second and third years of life," says Stuart Kaplan, M.D., Director of Child Adolescent Psychiatry at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center. "Parents should make every conscious effort to sound positive about school."

Try to be as casual as possible, advises Dr. Kaplan. The emphasis should not be on academic competition. Children should be made to feel that learning is fun, that school is where they will get together with other children.

But even with the most supportive parents, some children are still phobic about leaving home. Watch for clues. Children often express their anxieties by withdrawing, by developing headaches or stomachaches, or by regressing in behavior — sucking their thumbs, curling up in a favorite blanket.

The Manipulative Phobia

Many older children use their phobias to control parents. For instance, screaming, crying or in some other way demonstrating fear of being alone, may succeed in keeping parents at home.

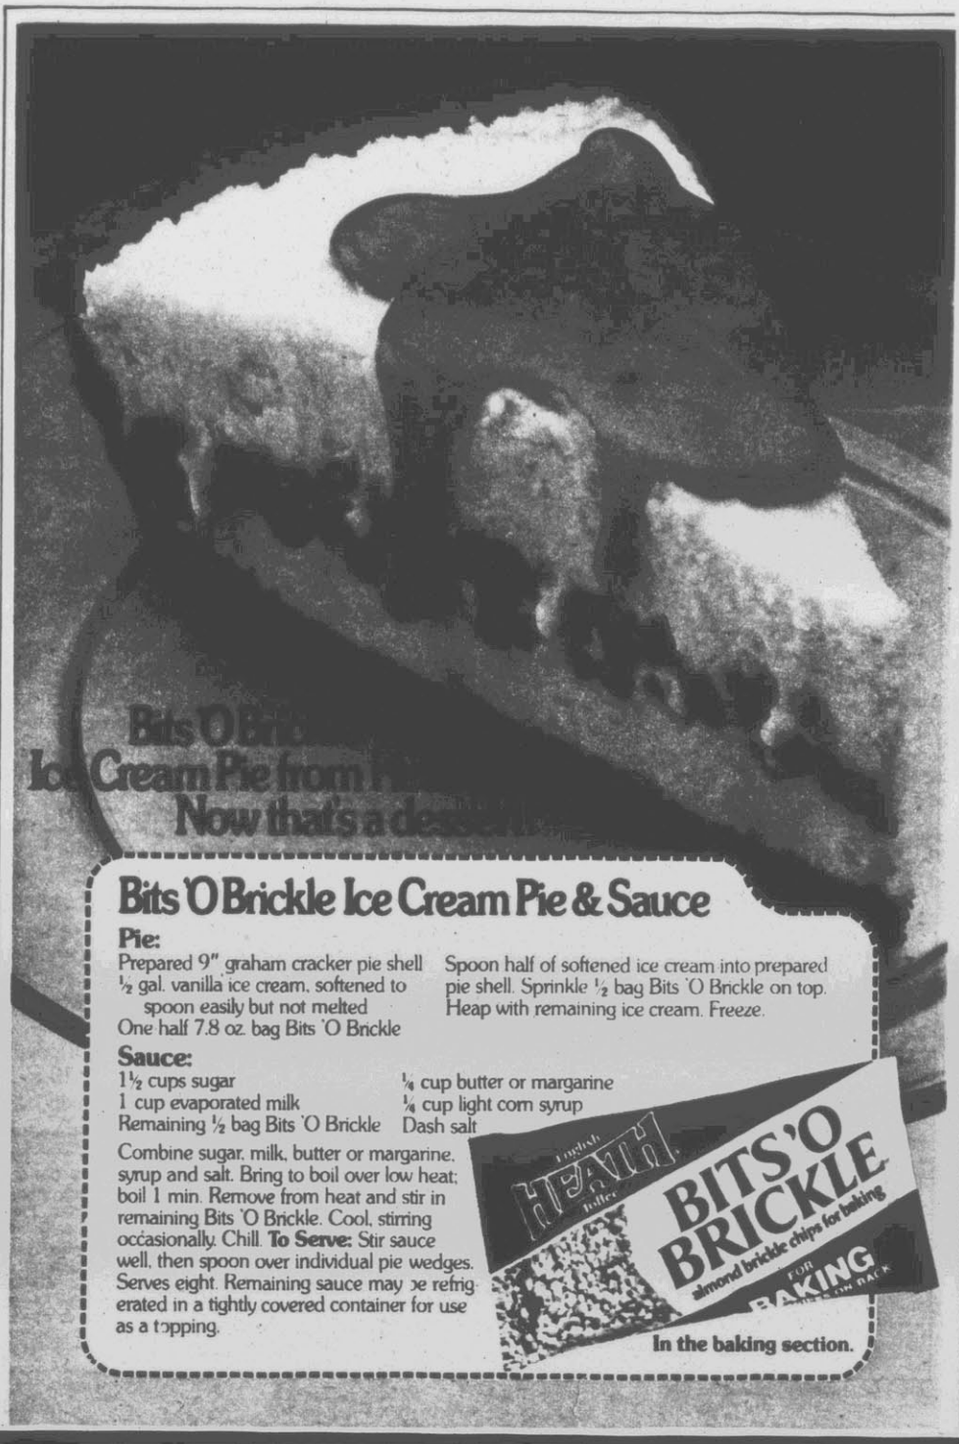

"Although the child's fears may be very real at first, he or she soon learns that parents can be controllable by histrionic displays," says Dr. Lindemann. "The parent must be patient, but firm in conveying the limits that will be tolerated. Usually, a tantrum will end soonest when it is ignored and waited out. Most important, stay calm yourself and don't compound your child's overwrought emotions."

Authorities suggest that the parent should begin by reasoning with a child who refuses to be left alone. Then distract him with other pleasures or promises. But eventually, they must wean him of his dependency upon them. That means, they should go away for the weekend, get a baby sitter and let the child get used to the idea of being on his own.

Professional Help

If a child's phobias are multiple, last more than a year or seriously interfere with the parents' lives, perhaps counseling is called for. A family doctor might be a first step.

There also are phobia clinics in most major cities. A local hospital or university may be a good referral point. FW

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Thy Neighbor's Check

One thing that has always fascinated people is how much money everyone else earns. Author David Harrop set out to satisfy our curiosity and peeked into the paychecks of all kinds of people, ranging from the President ($200,000 annual salary) to a typical plumber($19,069).

Burt Reynolds, actor, $3 million per film

In his new book, America's Paychecks: Who Makes What, Harrop estimates that, in 1977, a general practitioner averaged $51,030 yearly, while an orthopedic surgeon had to operate on $91,940. The median salary for lawyers in 1979 was $32,500, while a high-school teacher chalked up $14,982. Policemen in a city like Houston, for example, earned $15,632 in '78 while firemen could paint the town red since they earned $30 more a year.

Jessica Savitch, anchorwoman, $200,000

Dave Parker, baseball star, $1 million a year

And while Marlon Brando got $3.7 million for his brief appearance in Superman, it is estimated that 75 percent of all professional actors and actresses earn less than $2,500 a year. Similarly, although Judith Krantz sold the paperback rights to Princess Daisy for $3.2 million, Harrop, a freelance writer and editor, says he makes about $20,000 a year. But he anticipates this year pulling in another $25,000-$30,000 from sales of the book.

Louis Nizer, attorney, $350 an hour

Lost Wyeth Found

A painting by famed American illustrator N.C. Wyeth (father of Andrew, grandfather of Jamie), missing for more than 30 years, was found recently, hanging by a nail in a New Jersey manufacturing plant.

Employees at the New Brunswick E.R. Squibb & Sons plant heard about the missing painting — one of five commissioned by Squibb during World War II — and realized that the painting they had been passing every day for years could be the one.

Sure enough, it was certified the real thing and its value placed at upwards of $25,000. Three of the other Wyeths remain missing.

Charlotte Raymond / E.R. Squibb

The art-ful dodger: Brushed by for 30 years.

The $1 Million Pyramid

Jim Onan of Gurnee, Ill., is building himself a pyramid. But unlike the pharaohs of ancient Egypt, he doesn't want to be buried in it, he wants to live in it.

Linda Damiani

Onan's pièce de résistance in progress.

Devotees like Onan believe that pyramids possess a strange energy that can, among other things, preserve food, sharpen razor blades and lessen pain. Onan says his 30-year back problems disappeared after he started work on his structure.

Onan, 42, is a building contractor and began work on the pyramid in 1978 with the help of his cousin and two brothers. When completed, the pyramid will be six stories high with 17,000 square feet of living space — roughly one-ninth the size of the Great Pyramids. Approximate cost of the project: $1 million, excluding the gold leafing with which Onan plans to cover the pyramid.

"Basically, the whole thing is no big deal," says Onan, who hopes to move in by next year. "All I did was copy somebody else's masterpiece."

Relieving Job Stress

Warning: Work may be hazardous to your health. Especially if that work is fraught with such stress inducers as office politics, unrealistic deadlines and responsibility without authority.

"We need some stress in our lives to be productive and creative," notes Dr. Robert Tager, faculty member of U.S.C.'s Andrus Gerontology Center. "But too much stress can cause increased blood pressure, higher pulse rates and muscle tension. These can later lead to diseases like high blood pressure, heart disease, peptic ulcer and some forms of arthritis."

Tager notes that learning to really manage stress takes time. But he offers a quick in-office first-aid treatment for it: "Ask yourself what's causing the stress reaction. Next ask yourself if it's worth worrying about. Then take a deep breath, let it out slowly and repeat a couple of times....You can do this 10 to 15 times a day, and it might help take the edge off things."

Traffic Deaths To Rise?

America's rapid shift to smaller cars in an effort to conserve fuel may push up the rate of highway fatalities because of the cars' decreased mass, recent reports indicate. Federal highway officials predict that highway deaths will jump 26 percent by 1990 from the 51,083 fatalities in 1979. The officials added, however, that a number of factors, including implementation of such safety features as seat belts that wrap around automatically and airbags that inflate upon impact could lessen the projected increase.

Grading The Schools

After reading our cover story on America's educational system, you may wonder whether your child's school is doing a good job. The Council for Basic Education has a concise but complete checklist available to help you. The list offers questions on curriculum, teacher attitudes and capabilities, administrative procedures and parental access. You can obtain How Effective Are Your Schools — A Checklist for Citizens by sending 25¢ to The Council for Basic Education, Box FW, 725 15th St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20005. Orders of 20 or more receive a 20-percent discount.

You don't have to wait. It's here now! The help you need for catastrophic medical bills... payable both IN and OUT of the hospital.

MUTUAL OF OMAHA'S $1,000,000 CATASTROPHIC MAJOR MEDICAL COVERAGE

can provide these added dollars for covered sickness and accidents at a cost most families can readily afford. Yours over and above your basic hospital benefits.

Nearly every American family has its own horror story of the rampaging costs of an extremely long illness.

Either the family knows such a story, or they have personally experienced it.

Most people now realize that a family's earnings, bank accounts, entire life savings can be wiped out—swept away by the costs of a catastrophic illness—the kind of illness (or accident) you hope against hope will never happen, but which, unfortunately, sometimes does.

But even a catastrophic illness need not be a financial catastrophe. Now you can give yourself and your family the protection you need against the runaway bills caused by catastrophic illness or accident.

At Last, The Million Dollar Answer.

Mutual of Omaha's Catastrophic HealthCare Plan supplements the basic co[verage] ple have, which is fine for ordinary bills—but can't be expected to cover the cost of a truly catastrophic illness.

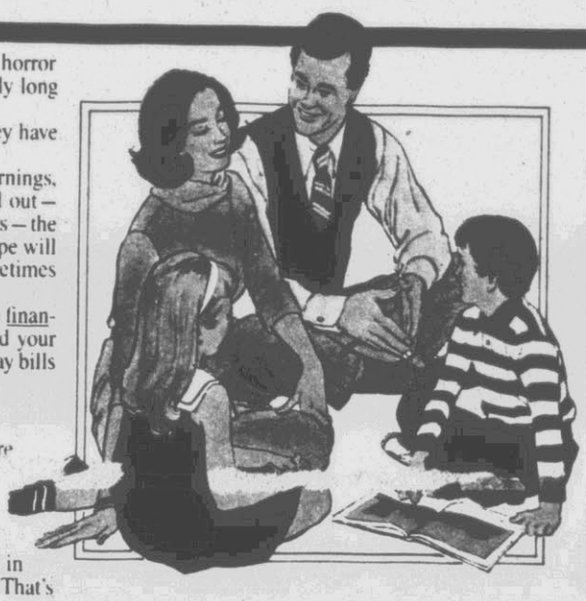

Mutual's new Plan provides up to $1,000,000 in protection for every member of your family. That's a MILLION dollars over and above your basic hospital coverage, which may sound like more protection than you could possibly need. But some people may, unfortunately, have to use all or most of it when faced with a long-term illness. That's when they'll be thankful they have Mutual's Catastrophic HealthCare Plan. It's the answer to medical bills that can run into hundreds of thousands of dollars today.

Why Coverage IN And OUT Of The Hospital?

When dealing with a long illness, where hospital costs of from $170 to $200 a day* are involved, it is sometimes economically and even therapeutically advisable to care for the patient out of the hospital.

Your present health insurance plan may only pay for hospital care. This plan can pay whether the patient is hospitalized, or recuperating at home, or in a convalescent facility. It pays for treatment by a physician or surgeon. X-ray and laboratory examinations. Drugs and medicines requiring a prescription and purchased upon a physician's order and dispensed by a licensed pharmacist ...and much, much more!

Source: American Hospital Association; President's Council on Wage and Price Stability.*

How Much Does It Cost?

We'd like to explain how much this plan costs right here in this ad.

But it's really not that easy. Because the plan's cost depends mainly on how much medical insurance you now have. If you already have adequate basic protection against hospital and doctor bills, your premiums will be quite low.

However, if you don't have much basic coverage—or none at all—premiums will be higher. But then, your need is far greater, too!

You should know all the facts about this plan, and a Mutual of Omaha service representative will be happy to furnish these facts without obligation to you.

You'll learn about exclusions, reductions or limitations, deductibles, terms for continuing your policy in force and much more.

So why not tear off the postage paid reply card and mail it today. You may not be able to avoid catastrophic illness or a catastrophic accident. But with our Million Dollar Answer you can avoid the risk of catastrophic bills.

Free New Book

helps you fight inflation ... shows you how to stretch health insurance dollars and get more for your money...plus how to plan now for a better, more secure future.

Mail the postage paid reply card today and get all the facts, plus your FREE copy of Mutual of Omaha's new book that tells you "How You Can Profit from a Health Insurance Checkup." Or write to: "Checkup," Mutual of Omaha, Mutual of Omaha Plaza, Omaha, Nebraska 68131.

65 or over? Get full facts about Mutual Care Hospital plans that can work hand-in-hand with Medicare to help pay most hospital-surgical-medical bills Medicare doesn't fully cover.

While the $1,000,000 Major Medical plan is not available in AR, CT, NH, & SC, other plans are available in all states.

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT STANDS ACCUSED OF MURDERING LAMBERT OF CORNWALL. VAL'S DIPLOMATIC MISSION HAS TAKEN A BIZARRE TWIST. ONE OF THE DEAD MAN'S BROTHERS, BRIAN, GUARDS HIM. THE OTHER, CHESTER, SITS AS JUDGE. "YOU'LL HANG LIKE A COMMON CRIMINAL," BRIAN HISSES.

"PRINCE VALIANT, THE EVIDENCE IS CLEAR. YOU MURDERED MY BROTHER OVER THE AFFECTIONS OF A WENCH. YOU ARE A FALSE KNIGHT. GOOD RIDDANCE, SAY I."

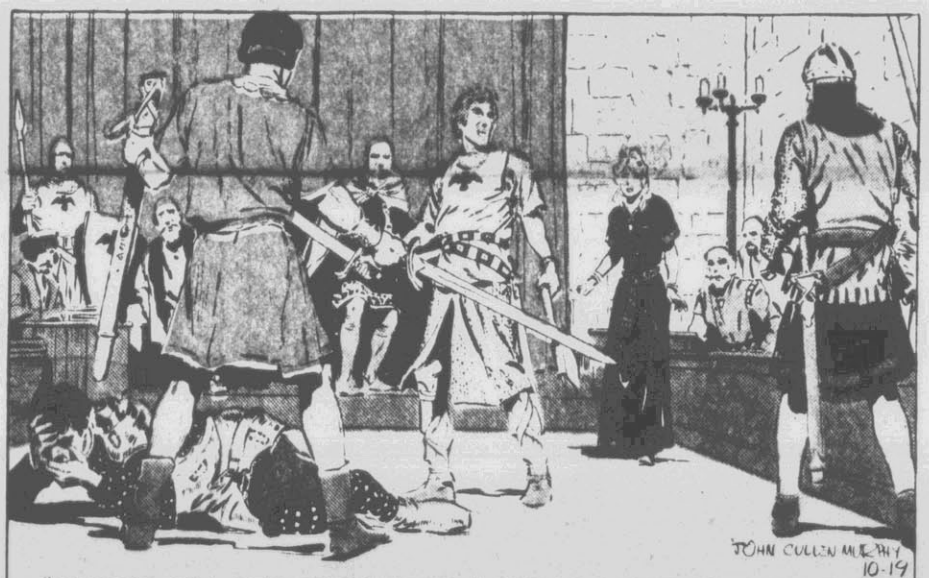

ALETA'S CLEAR VOICE SUDDENLY INTERRUPTS CHESTER'S SPEECH. "THAT WOUND ON YOUR FACE IS FRESH. YOU TRIED TO KILL ME LAST NIGHT AND GOT THAT SCAR AS YOUR REWARD. I CAN PROVE YOU HAD MOTIVE ENOUGH TO KILL YOUR BROTHER -- AND YOUR FATHER."

"VAL! CATCH! LOOK OUT FOR BRIAN," ALETA SHOUTS. CHESTER'S JUSTICE IS NOT BLIND. WITH A MURDEROUS GAZE HE RISES TO REVEAL A MAIL HAUBERK BENEATH HIS ROBES. IT IS TWO AGAINST ONE.

UNHINDERED BY HEAVY ARMOR, VAL IS NIMBLE. HE AIMS THE HILT OF THE "SINGING SWORD" AT BRIAN'S ONE VULNERABLE SPOT. THERE IS A LOUD CRACK.

"GUARDS, KILL THIS FALSE KNIGHT," SCREAMS CHESTER. NO ONE MOVES. TYRANNY BREEDS FEAR BUT RARELY LOYALTY, AND THE GUARDS HAVE SENSED THE WINDS OF CHANGE. ONLY THE SENESCHAL DRAWS HIS SWORD.

I HAVE A LETTER FOR YOUR HUSBAND FROM GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY

WHO'S GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY ?

IT'S PROBABLY A BUSINESS ACQUAINTANCE. BUT WHY WOULD SHE SEND THE LETTER HERE ?

STEAM IT OPEN, BLONDIE

NO, THAT'S WRONG··· IT'S ADDRESSED TO DAGWOOD··· A WIFE SHOULD TRUST A HUSBAND AND RESPECT HIS PRIVACY

I'LL GO CALL HERB AT THE OFFICE, MAYBE HE KNOWS WHO SHE IS

I'LL CALL CORA DITHERS

GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY ? NEVER HEARD OF HER··· WHY ?

DAGWOOD GOT A LETTER FROM HER, AND BLONDIE WON'T OPEN IT

JULIUS, HAVE YOU EVER HEARD OF A GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY ?

ABERNATHY, ABERNATHY··· NOPE, DOESN'T RING A BELL AT ALL··· WHY ?

NOBODY EVER HEARD OF GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY

I KNOW

I CERTAINLY DO ADMIRE THE TRUST YOU HAVE IN YOUR HUSBAND

IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO GO, TOOTSIE

HI, HONEY

HI, DEAR

THIS LETTER FROM GWENDOLYN ABERNATHY CAME FOR YOU TODAY

YOUNG RAYMOND 10-19

WELL, DON'T JUST STAND THERE··· READ THE LETTER

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE

by Dik Browne

WHEN YOU GET MARRIED YOU'LL HAVE A BEAUTIFUL WHITE SPICE CAKE

WHY SPICE CAKE ?

SPICE CAKE PRESERVES VERY WELL SO YOU KEEP A PIECE TO BRING YOU HOPE AND GOOD LUCK IN YOUR MARRIAGE!

IT'S A TRADITION. LOTS OF PEOPLE DO IT.

HOW ROMANTIC! DID YOU SAVE A BIT OF YOUR WEDDING CAKE ?

COULD I SEE IT, MOMMA ?

YES, BUT WE MUST BE CAREFUL! EVIL SPIRITS ARE ALWAYS JUST WAITING TO GET AT IT!

SNIFF! SNIFF! DO I SMELL CAKE, HELGA ?

SEE WHAT I MEAN?!

DOUBLE WHAMBO!! DISGUISE OVER A DISGUISE! THE MAID OF NINE TURNS OUT TO BE —

MADAME LYNX! —POSING AS THE CRUSADER GAL!

I THOUGHT SHE WAS BLOWN UP... BACK IN TURKEY!

BUT WE CAN'T BROOD ON THAT NOW...

THE SOVIETS PLANTED HER OUT HERE BECAUSE THEY WERE TOLD WE WERE COMING

WHICH MEANS THEY KNEW ALL ABOUT OUR MISSION TO FIND THE PUMPING STATION

SHE MUST HAVE BEEN LEADING US INTO A TRAP

HAP, WHAT ABOUT THE RADIO ?!

NOTHIN' COMIN' IN

CAIN'T TELL IF OUR SIGNAL IS BEIN' BLACKED OUT

LOOKS LIKE OUR OWN PRIVATE WAR FROM HERE ON!

HEY—MISS UNDERGROUND PLUMBING IS COMING OUT OF IT!

HELLO, LYNX, REMEMBER US ?

SO—YOU KNOW!

YOUR FRIENDS SEEM TO REALIZE YOUR COVER HAS BEEN BROKEN!

AND YOU ARE NO LONGER USEFUL AS THE FAKE MAID OF NINE...

THEY MEAN TO BLAST US OFF THE MOUNTAIN

AND THEY DON'T SEEM TO MIND IF YOU BLOW WITH US!

IF-IF YOU DO NOT SHOOT ME.....

I CAN SHOW YOU A WAY OUT!
