Anderson Claims 'Better Answers'

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — John B. Anderson said today his own televised debate appearance next week is designed to demonstrate "to the American people that I have better answers than" either President Carter or Ronald Reagan.

At a news conference, the independent presidential candidate said he would appear on the Cable News Network Tuesday night and answer the same questions posed to Reagan and Carter during their debate in Cleveland.

"It is an effort to try to get — it isn't an equal time because we will never be equal to the networks — but it is the best we can do," Anderson said.

He said the two-hour program made available to Cable News subscribers is an effort to show he is "a full-fledged national candidate."

While the president and Republican Reagan are debating in Cleveland on the three major television networks, Anderson will be in Constitution Hall in Washington to give his answers.

Aides to Anderson said the idea is to give him some broad public exposure on a night some political observers believe will be the climactic event of the 1980 presidential campaign.

"After all, he's been part of this debate question from the start," said campaign press secretary Tom Mathews.

Mitchell Rogovin, Anderson's campaign lawyer, said Thursday, "It's not a perfect world. Obviously we would rather be in Cleveland."

Anderson was excluded from the one-on-one debate between Carter and Reagan because of his falling position in the public opinion polls.

But under a format announced Thursday, Anderson could be seen by as many as 3.5 million CNN subscribers. In addition, the network has also said that it will make its telecast available to any local television station which chooses to carry it instead of the debate broadcast from Cleveland by NBC, ABC or CBS.

CNN will broadcast the Cleveland debate, then switch to Washington, where correspondent Daniel Schorr will ask Anderson the identical questions posed to Reagan and Carter.

As Anderson finishes each answer, then the network will switch back to a taped-delayed telecast from Cleveland, then again switch back to Constitution Hall, where Anderson will continue to answer the same questions.

The cable network show will last two hours, between 9:30 and 11:30 p.m., EST, compared to the 90-minute live Cleveland version.

Constitution Hall will be filled by members of the public invited to attend and reporters covering Anderson's end of debate night.

This morning, Anderson, who has had trouble gaining support from blue-collar workers, went to a Buffalo steel plant before dawn to greet employees and tour the facility.

While most of the steelworkers were friendly, one brushed by Anderson saying, "We gotta get to work. We're not politicians."

At another point, Anderson asked a group of workers, "How many of you have been laid off?"

There was no response.

Later today, Anderson planned to campaign in western Massachusetts and then push on to Connecticut before returning to Washington on Saturday.

While campaigning across Michigan and western New York State on Thursday, Anderson sharply changed tack in his approach to criticism of Carter on the American hostages in Iran.

Inflation Jumps Back To Double-Digits In Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation jumped back into double digits in September as consumer prices, led by rising food costs, rose a full 1 percent, the government said today in its last inflation report before Election Day.

Last month's rise translates into a 12.7 percent compound annual inflation rate, compared with the 13.3 percent rise in 1979. From January through September, consumer prices have risen 12.1 percent at an annual rate.

The inflation issue has become a central theme of the presidential campaign, with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan sharply attacking President Carter's handling of the economy. At one point, he accused the administration of manipulating economic statistics for political purposes, a charge officials strongly denied.

September's consumer price figures proved worse than August's 0.7 percent increase and the zero movement registered in July. Inflation was at an even 1 percent in June.

The report showed retail food prices once again rising sharply, while housing costs began to accelerate following this summer's decline. Gasoline prices, however, fell for the fifth consecutive month.

September's inflation performance as measured by the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was far more favorable than the pace last winter when consumer prices were racing at more than an 18 percent annual rate.

However, the 1 percent increase was worse than many economists predicted. Moreover, food prices are expected to accelerate in coming months, say economists, including Carter's chief inflation adviser, Alfred Kahn.

The Labor Department also reported that average weekly earnings after deductions for Social Security and federal income taxes decreased 0.4 percent from August after seasonal adjustments. Over the year, spendable earnings declined 6.7 percent after inflation was taken into account.

Patrick Jackman, a Labor Department economist, said the difference between September's 1 percent jump and August's 0.7 percent rise was due largely to a slowing in the decline of mortgage interest costs.

He said sharply higher costs of pork and beef also played a significant role in last month's price acceleration.

"September's 1 percent increase is representative of the true, current inflation rate," said Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources Inc., a private economic forecasting firm. "Indeed, inflation is in the double-digit range."

Eckstein said "special factors" have affected recent, past consumer price reports, but "we cannot blame (last month's) increase" on unusual events or quirks.

Cautions Against Undue Optimism On Hostage Front

The Associated Press Vice President Walter F. Mondale said today the latest signs of possible movement on the hostage crisis should be approached with "substantial caution" because "we've been through this so many, many times."

Mondale said no U.S.-Iranian negotiations were under way to determine the conditions for release of the 52 American hostages, who today spent their 356th day in captivity. But he repeated the Carter administration's position that the four basic conditions set by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini could be the springboard for resolution of the crisis.

Officials in Tehran say the Iranian Parliament is expected to set out the final conditions this Sunday. The Parliament speaker, in remarks reported Thursday, further fueled expectations of a break in the crisis, saying the United States would not have to meet all conditions immediately.

Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani was asked in an interview with the French newspaper Le Monde whether Iran would free the hostages if the United States simply accepted Iran's demands, or whether Iran would wait until the Carter administration acted on its promises.

"There are certain conditions which the Americans can execute immediately — for example, unfreezing our bank deposits, pledging to end all interference in our internal affairs, (and) renouncing definitively the plots which it has ceaselessly fomented against us," he replied.

"If the other conditions are difficult to satisfy immediately, Parliament could demand guarantees, still to be defined, and free the hostages without delay."

The four basic conditions spelled out last month by Iranian leader Khomeini were return of the shah's wealth, dropping of American court claims against the Iranian government, unfreezing of $8 billion in Iranian assets in U.S. banks, and a U.S. promise not to interfere in Iran's internal affairs.

U.S. officials say the first two conditions might be the most difficult to meet because of American laws, but that the other two could be fulfilled by White House action.

Mondale, interviewed on NBC-TV's "Today" show this morning, was asked whether the United States is prepared to meet Iran's demands.

"We've said several times that the terms as set forth by Khomeini some time ago provided the basis for progress," he replied.

Fifty-One Dead In School Blast

ORTUELLA, Spain (AP) — This poverty-stricken Spanish mining town was draped in mourning black under a driving rain today for the funeral of 49 of its children, killed when a powerful gas explosion leveled their grammar school.

The governor of Vizcaya Province issued what he said was the final toll: 49 children aged between 6 and 8, and two adults. Initial reports said as many as 64 people were killed, but officials said some were counted twice.

One of the adults was a teacher and the other a plumber, who investigators said could have unwittingly caused the explosion. They said there were indications that a soldering iron the plumber was using near the school's gas-fired heating boiler may have set off the gas explosion.

Because of the rain officials said the coffins will be laid out in a factory instead of the town square, where the ceremony originally was scheduled to be held. Officials predicted a crowd of about 40,000 will attend the burial in the town's only cemetery this afternoon.

At the Vatican today, Pope John Paul II joined more than 200 bishops gathered at the world synod of Roman Catholic bishops in a prayer for the victims of the explosion. The month-long synod on Christian family life is scheduled to end Saturday.

About 30 children remained hospitalized, at least six of them in critical condition, following the explosion Thursday.

"We were studying or drawing when a terrific blast shook the building," said eight-year-old Javier Abad, one of the survivors. "Walls opened and fell on us and the floor caved in around me. I saw some of my best friends disappear."

Witnesses said some of the children were hurled through windows in the four-story building by the powerful explosion.

"I saw some children falling down to the ground from the high floors," said one witness. "It was so terrible I really lack words to explain what my eyes saw."

The devastating blast, heard as far as 10 miles away, brought parents running to the "Marcelino Ugalde" school. Witnesses said some relatives jumped onto the mound of smoking rubble in a frantic effort to find their children and had to be restrained by rescue workers.

Parents Given Green Light To Fight Cults

By GERRY NELSON
Associated Press Writer
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Supreme Court, in its first ruling in a "deprogramming" case involving a religious cult, suggested today that parents may go to great lengths to free their children from cult domination.

The court did not spell out precisely how far parents could go when they believe a child has been alienated from family life by involvement in a religious cult.

In cautious language, the court said that where parents believe a child's judgmental capacity has been impaired, and when the child seems to assent at some point, then a temporary confinement is not illegal.

But the court also said that deprogramming poses a threat "to public order," and did not flatly endorse "kidnappings," the physical removal of a child from a cult.

In a 5-2 decision, the court rejected an appeal by Susan Junglauss Peterson, who sued her parents for false imprisonment after they turned her over to a deprogrammer in May 1976. She was 21 at the time.

The court said the use of "coercive persuasion," or brainwashing, by religious cults impairs the judgmental capacity of children — even though they are legal adults.

The jury exonerated Mr. and Mrs. Norman Junglauss on the false imprisonment charge. It awarded $1 in actual damages against Veronica Morgel and Kathy Mills, who acted as deprogrammers at the request of Norman Junglauss, and assessed punitive damages of $4,000 against Mrs. Morgel and $6,000 against Mrs. Mills. The high court let stand those awards.

Mrs. Peterson had grown up on a farm near Bird Island, graduated second in her high school class and then attended Moorhead State University. There, she joined The Way of Minnesota, Inc., and ultimately devoted virtually all of her time and energy to the cult.

The Minnesota court said, in effect, that some religious cults exist because they use coercive persuasion on vulnerable people, who then lose their ability to make informed judgments.

"Society, therefore, has a compelling interest favoring intervention," the court said.

One dissenting judge, James Otis, called such deprogramming "totally at odds with the basic rights of young people to think unorthodox thoughts, join unorthodox groups, and proclaim unorthodox views."

Women's Symposium Is Set

ECU News Bureau
"A Growing Up of Women," a symposium on the challenges facing contemporary women, will be offered at East Carolina

University Monday, Nov. 3
Sponsored by the ECU Committee on the Status of Women, the program features a presentation by Dr. Patricia Gurin, professor of psychology and faculty associate at the University of Michigan Institute of Social Research. Gurin is co-author of the book, "Black Consciousness, Identity and Achievement."

Her presentation is scheduled for the symposium's opening session in the Fletcher Music Center Recital Hall, 1-2 p.m. Following will be afternoon small group discussions and workshops on various issues of interest to women, including career development and management skills.

The evening session, scheduled for Freddie's Restaurant on Fifth St., 6:30-9:30 p.m., will be a dinner program with a panel of speakers.

The symposium day sessions are open to the public, with a fee of $7 for the evening program (dinner and panel discussion) or $3 (panel discussion only).

According to Mary Ann Rose, chairperson of the campus Committee on the Status of Women, the symposium will "address the changes necessary for mature decision-making and problem-solving" among American women today.

"Specifically, women will speak about how their areas of expertise can help others with real problems, the essential needs of a woman 'growing up' to meet challenges of life, career and family," she said.

Further information about the symposium is available from Ms. Rose or Peggy Balcome at 757-6061.

Dear Abby

Wedding Bells Will Toll

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our mother recently announced her intention to marry a very fine 70-year-old gentleman who insists that he is very much in love with her. Mom, who is 66, has been a widow for three years. The gentleman (I'll call him Claude) would make an ideal companion for Mother, but here's the problem:

Claude's wife was killed instantly two years ago by a hit-and-run driver. It was a terrible shock to Claude, and he talks about his dead wife constantly. We admire him for respecting her memory, but he seems to think of very little else. As soon as Mom introduces Claude to one of her friends, he brings out several pictures of his late wife, which he always carries, and starts talking about her tragic death. Sometimes he gets emotional and cries.

Naturally, Mom is hurt by all this, but she tries to be understanding. She said when she and Claude were out last Sunday, he drove out to the cemetery to visit his dead wife's grave. (Mom had no idea where they were going until they got there.) She said he cried and carried on so bad she had to drive home.

Do you think Mom should marry Claude in December as planned?

CONCERNED CHILDREN

DEAR CHILDREN: You are wise to be concerned. Urge your mom not to rush into marriage with Claude. It is apparent that he has not yet recovered from the shock of his wife's tragic death, nor has he stopped grieving for her. And until he has, he should not remarry.

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged married woman with children. I belong to an organization that provides fellowship and fun.

I mistook one gentleman's friendliness for affection and became more than a little fond of him. By the way, he's married, has children and grandchildren. I never had or have any intention of becoming close to him, but for some stupid reason, which I am unable to explain, I wrote him a letter telling him about my feelings for him. As soon as I realized what a foolish thing I had done, I began to feel ashamed, embarrassed and terribly sick about the whole thing. There is no way I can avoid seeing this man. I will have to face him again — and soon.

How should I act? Please help me, Abby. I am desperate.

SIGN ME STUPID

DEAR STUPID: Try to act as natural as possible. Make no reference to the letter. If he mentions it, be honest and tell him that you regret having written it, feel stupid and embarrassed, and to please forget it. Then you forget it.

DEAR ABBY: I used to be one of those married men whose wives would write to you complaining that their husbands would stop at bars after work and come home anywhere from one to three hours late for dinner.

No more. Here's how I was cured: I recently phoned my wife (from a bar) to tell her I was "detained at the office" and would be home in 20 minutes. (I was already 2 hours late.)

Before I could say a word, I heard my wife's voice in a calm and perfectly modulated tone say, "When and if you decide to come home, you will find your dinner in the oven. I have left. Please do not try to find me because I have had it. And by the way, George, go to hell. This is a recording."

I rushed home, frantic. The house was dark and my wife's car was nowhere to be seen. When I went into our bedroom, I found my wife in bed! She quickly switched on the light and said, "That was no recording. It was 'live.'"

The missing car? She had parked it around the corner on a side street to prolong my agony. "But next time," she warned, "it might be for real."

A Review World Of The Hobbits Entertainingly Presented

AYDEN — From Underhill, through the Wilderland, to the Lonely Mountain, a hobbit, Bilbo, and his dwarf companions travel to their ultimate goal, burglarizing Smaug the Dragon of his stolen jewels. "The Hobbit" a play based on J.R.R. Tolkien's fantasy opened at the Ayden-Griffon High School Auditorium last night.

The cast of Ayden Theater Workshop players, featured Daphne McLawhorn as Bilbo

Baggins, Jeff Adkins as Gandalf, Wendy Rouse as Dwalin, leader of the dwarves, Beth Norris as the Elven Queen and Robert Stanfield as the voice of Smaug the Dragon, who presented a highly comical, delightful evening of entertainment.

Daphne McLawhorn in her portrayal of Bilbo completely captivated the audience. Her small stature and impish grin were perfect for the part of the hobbit, a small, comfort loving, witty member of the Shire (The place where hobbits live), who gets deceived into joining a raiding party of dwarves headed for the mountain. Her antics were quite amusing and aptly captured the character that Tolkien portrayed in his book.

Jeff Adkins as Gandalf is a wise choice for the wizard. He not only stands head and shoulders over the other cast members but carries off his part with a touch of wit, and wisdom.

Several dwarves in particular were quite outstanding including Kili and Fili played by Julie Garrison and Susan McLawhorn. The simple minded twins are sent on each investigative mission, and usually manage to bungle it. Other dwarves who played their parts admirably included Merrie Adkins as Balin, the oldest of the dwarves. Her shuffling, bent over cane walk added an extra touch of humor to the performance.

Scene three was perhaps the most amusing part of the play. A few mishaps occurred when the cast's cookies were switched to peanut butter crackers, which caused quite a bit of laughter and mumbles. It went smoothly enough and did not detract, but added to the comical flavor of the entire play. The trolls in this scene were quite engaging, especially Tom, played by Jonathon Beckert, whose gravelly voice and sarcastic comments enlivened the action.

The most professional scene is set in the Goblins' cave, in which Bilbo encounters an insane creature named Golum portrayed by Garret Stanfield. Golum is a creature who has out of necessity talked to himself for eons, because he lives at the bottom of the cave in a pool of water. Bilbo, who has just discovered the magic ring that makes the wearer invisible, comes upon Golum and they engage in a duel of riddles.

To some who may not be familiar with the character of Golum it may have been very confusing with all the

"My precious, sould we, yes, yesses," etc... that make up Golum's vocabulary. However, Stanfield did an excellent job of portraying the extremely complex creature who, once he discovers he has lost his ring, leads Bilbo out of the cave.

A weak point of the production is the final scene, where Bilbo and Dwalin encounter and slay the dragon, whose voice is projected over a loud speaker. Smaug's voice was a little loud and overcame the parts of the other characters.

The Ayden Theatre Workshop actors made what could have been a disastrous event indeed into a very lively and comical production. The character's were all very distinct, and individual in their own right. Each had a different brand of comic reaction which was delightful when combined into a whole. The audience really felt a part of the performance and laughed right along with the cast.

Planets Line Up On Election Day

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — While voters line up at the election booth Nov. 4, three planets and the moon will be lined up in the early-morning sky — and a Detroit astrologer says they will put President Carter "at the top of his power cycle."

Other Michigan astrologers, aware of the rare conjunction of Jupiter, Saturn, Venus and the moon, say the heavenly bodies augur confusion on Election Day and predict results of the balloting might not be known for several days.

An astronomer at Michigan State University says the planets' coming together is "just a beautiful thing to look at, that's all."

Astronomer Robert Victor of Michigan State's Abrams Planetarium says Jupiter, Saturn, Venus and the moon may be viewed in a cluster in the east-southeastern sky about an hour before sunrise Nov. 4.

The planets should be visible all over the nation.

A similar conjunction will occur in late August 1981. That will be the last until the year 2000, when the conjunction will be blocked by the sun and not visible from Earth, he said.

Some Lansing and Detroit astrologers said the revolutions of the heavenly spheres bode well for Carter. Others predicted that the final choice between Carter, Republican Ronald Reagan and independent presidential candidate John Anderson may not be known as quickly as such results usually are.

"The planets are planning on confusing us," said Jeannette Ridenour-Snyder of Lansing, who has drawn star charts for 45 years.

There seems to be a consensus among local astrologers that the election will not be decided by the popular vote, and the final results may not be known for several days, Mrs. Ridenour-Snyder said.

"If I were running the government, I'd put off the election until the following Tuesday," she said.

Her review of Carter's and Reagan's star charts shows Carter more likely to prevail. Mrs. Ridenour-Snyder, a Republican, added she has not read Anderson's chart.

The stars shine on Carter, agreed Douglas H. Miller of Detroit, a professional astrologer for 18 years.

"There's a powerful conjunction of planets on Carter's side," he said. "With all the planets falling on his sun, Jupiter and Venus give a kind of wallop — he'll be at the top of his power cycle."

'Shroud' Report Due In January

ESPANOLA, N.M. (AP) — A scientific study of the authenticity of the Shroud of Turin should be complete within three months, according to Raymond Rogers, a spokesman for the researchers.

The shroud, which is purported to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ, bears the likeness of a bearded man with wounds like those the Bible says were suffered by Jesus.

Preliminary reports by some of the 18 scientists involved in the study cast doubt on the authenticity of the shroud. Dr. Walter McCone, a Chicago microscopist, said the cloth probably dates from about 1400. Rogers said Tuesday a full report would be released by January.

JEWELRY LORE

WELCOME TO GEM WISE. Over the years it has been possible for me to learn many interesting things about precious gems and fine jewelry both from a historical and a technical or gemological standpoint. There are also certain points that are helpful to anyone buying fine merchandise—basic guides to intelligent selection as well as information on the wear and care of gems. In this column I will try to bring you something each month about our wonderful world of gems.

For example, did you know that ruby and sapphire are both the same gem mineral called corundum? Only when the sapphire attains a certain shade of red can it be called a ruby; otherwise it is pink sapphire. Other "sister" gems are emerald and aquamarine, both members of the beryl family. A light emerald is aquamarine. Again, color is the only difference.

If you are interested in history, the story of Agnes Sorel and Charles VIII of France is a charming tale. She was the first woman to use diamonds as a means of attracting the king's attention. She also started the feminine vogue of wearing diamonds. Previously they were worn only by men.

In buying fine jewelry, one of the most important things to know is your jeweler. His knowledge and business ethics should be above reproach. Through GEM WISE I hope you will come to know me and our firm a little better.

Hope Time Well-Used

The long-awaited presidential debate between President Carter and GOP challenger Ronald Reagan is now formally scheduled. It will be Oct. 28 beginning at 9:30 p.m. and lasting for 90 minutes.

The two candidates will be face-to-face and John Anderson, the independent candidate, will not be a part of the debate.

Agreement was reached between the candidates this week and it is billed as a no-topic-barred confrontation. The debate will be in Cleveland's Convention Center and, of course, will be on national television.

The format, as established by the League of Women Voters, is to have a panel of four people, chosen by the League, to question the candidates.

The staging of the debate has become important, for there are large numbers of undecided voters across the nation. Undoubtedly many of them will make up their minds based on their impressions of the candidates in this confrontation.

The questioners and the candidates have a real opportunity to convey the opinions of the candidates to the people on Tuesday night. We hope the time is well used

Soviets Must Look At System

The Soviet Union's grain harvest is once again a poor one and it brought a new economic plan forth from the Supreme Soviet.

The disappointing harvests come so regularly in the Soviet Union that it is obvious the weather is not always the blame. The system must be the culprit and no new economic plan is going to solve that. Only individualism will provide the incentive which that nation needs to solve its poor agricultural production problems.

THIS AFTERNOON

Filling Out Forms

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — County social workers are out there helping the poor people. Right?

Wrong. At least a third of their time is spent filling out forms which feed Raleigh's computers.

The bureaucratic system has grown so bulky, complex, and time consuming that the professionals are warning the state's political leaders that they must "act immediately to simplify the system before the sheer weight of it undermines the services we seek to give those persons we are required by law to serve."

That is the message which Louise W. McCutcheon, chairman of the Durham County Board of Social Services has sent to Gov. Jim Hunt among others.

Along with her thoughtful and detailed analysis of the paperwork maze, Mrs. McCutcheon sent a "flow chart" which is used to train employees in handling the forms.

The flow chart takes up six full-sized pages — that's nearly six feet. Imagine all the forms fastened end-to-end. The social services chief from Burke County once glued all those forms together to display before a legislative study committee. The paperwork measured more than 21 feet.

Superform
Referring to programs known in the bureaucracy as "Title XX," an array of welfare and medical assistance aids, Mrs. McCutcheon describes:

— An application form with instructions so complex the average worker has neither time nor patience to decipher it, and lists of services through which lines must be drawn as action is taken so that after about a year the forms become "an unreadable mess." Three other forms which duplicate the basic information on the first form accompany this phase.

— An eligibility information form is designed for the state's statistical system and simply retreats information already entered on other forms; this data goes to Raleigh, comes back on a turnaround computer sheet, updated, sent back, and a new turnaround comes back.

— Day sheets require an 11-digit identification number "for every service given every client at any time" and this is done "to feed a computer," often resulting in number errors which can prove all but impossible to correct once in the computer.

— Then there are notices of action, notices of denial, and a "General Purpose Form designed to use when no other form will do."

— Finally, there is the turnaround form which is computer data constantly moving back and forth to Raleigh which, says Mrs. McCutcheon, "when received, is usually very out-of-date and of little use."

Defeated
"The complexities and the redundancies of the system clearly tend to defeat the purpose," Mrs. McCutcheon complains. And besides, is costly and time consuming.

"We conservatively estimate that an absolute minimum of 30 percent of the line worker's time is required if the Title XX paperwork is done correctly and on time.

"In our protective services division alone, this 30 percent represents well over $100,000 annually of worker salaries."

If Durham is spending $100,000 wastefully, then the statewide excess cost must be well over half-a-million. And if North Carolina is spending that much, then nationally, the waste must be in the neighborhood of $25 million.

Of it all, Mrs. McCutcheon sums up: "For social workers involved in efforts

Let's Drink To That

WASHINGTON — "Hi, my name is Congressman Marbitt and I'm running for reelection from your district. I know there are many questions you would like to ask me so I will start taking them from the floor."

"Congressman, you were arrested for making passes at a 16-year-old sheep dog and pleaded guilty to the charges. Why should we return you to office?"

"I have a drinking problem which I'm working on now, and I have confessed my wrongdoing to God. I don't think what I have done has anything to do with the issues of this campaign."

"Sir, you were also caught in an FBI sting operation and found guilty of taking $10,000 from an FBI undercover agent. Do you believe with that background we should vote for you?"

"At the time I took the money I had a drinking problem. I was drunk all the time and didn't know what I was doing. But I always served the people of this district well, even when I had a buzz on. My case is now up for appeal and I don't believe this is the place to discuss it."

"Mr. Congressman, isn't it true that you charged an illegal immigrant $5,000 to get a private bill passed through Congress making him an American citizen?"

"I charged $1,000 and the money went to my law firm, not to me. My opponent has tried to make political hay with this story, but I would like to tell you exactly what happened. I was drunk at the time. The pressures of this job can drive anyone to take a nip once in a while. I took my first one when I got up in the morning. By eleven o'clock I was smashed. I didn't even remember putting the bill before Congress until some rotten reporter smeared it all over the front pages of the newspaper. This country is getting fed up with an irresponsible media that keeps prying into the private lives of its citizens."

"Congressman, can we talk about the hit-and-run charges pending against you after an accident on Route 95?"

"I've discussed the accident in detail and never hid it from my constituents. I had

Other Editors Say Litter Cleanup

(Henderson Dispatch)

The concentrated effort of the North Carolina Department of Transportation during the past year or so to clean up roadside litter apparently is showing significant results.

A report submitted during the transportation department's recent meeting in Oxford described this fall's cleanup project, the latest of three stages in the state, as highly successful.

This fall's campaign was conducted during a week in early September. According to the report, approximately 300 department maintenance crews, with the help of 86 outside organizations and about 1,000 citizens, picked up litter along the highways across the state.

As a result of the coordinated effort, about 2,500 truckloads, or 10,000 cubic yards of litter were collected from 6,345 miles of North Carolina highways.

That represents an increase of five percent in cleaned road mileage over that accomplished during the campaign last spring. The number of outside organizations participating increased by 23 percent over those in the spring.

However, there was a reduction of some 32 percent in the amount of litter removed. State Secretary of Transportation Tom Bradshaw explained, "hopefully, the fact that less litter was removed from more mileage of highway in the fall campaign than the spring campaign means the public is responding to our efforts in a positive way."

Once an area has been cleaned up we are encouraging individuals to keep it clean. We are very pleased with the overwhelming successful results of our fall litter pickup campaign.

The anti-litter projects not only help remove unsightly clutter along North Carolina roadways; they also help eliminate potentially hazardous and unsanitary conditions. And not the least in importance, the cooperative efforts are a big plus in seeking to ease the strain on the highway department's budget.

In view of declining revenues for the state highway program, litter cleanup gets a lower priority in maintenance activity. Roadside litter control, statewide, has been costing the state over $1.6 million annually.

If the cooperative cleanup efforts continue and citizens become aware of the need for preventing littering in the first place, we can not only help keep North Carolina beautiful but we can also be saving some of our tax dollars.

Strength For Today

THE HANDS OF GOD

A short time ago, a group of people assembled at an airport to take a long trip. As they entered the plane, some took seats in the front compartments, some in the rear. A short time afterward there was a fearful accident. Those who had taken seats in the front of the plane were killed or seriously injured. Those who had gone to the rear were scarcely bruised.

Why? No one, of course, can tell. This tragic circumstance reminds us that in the midst of life we are in death. We must accept the fact that in this life human destiny is not wholly, or even partially, in our own hands. It is in the hands only of the One who created life itself. We cannot pass judgment. It is fruitless for us even to speculate.

We can only accept the fact that life ultimately is determined by a Creator who is also a merciful Father. Hard as our circumstances might be, we should never forget that His love is always working on our behalf. — Elisha Douglass

Campaign Is Tough Job

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP)

— It is a campaign of unlikely alliances, a campaign waged at a leisurely pace that belies the political season and blends instead with the temper of the gentle, Deep South autumn.

Even now, near the end, the themes are not quite fixed and the message varies.

"Sure, it's a tough job," says Ronald Reagan. "The whole election is a tough job."

Perhaps, but by the standards of campaigns gone by the Reagan roadshow is a relaxed affair.

On Wednesday, for example, the Republican presidential nominee spent a long campaign afternoon at a Mississippi home for needy, wayward children, wrapped it up for a speech for townpeople at a twilight barbecue and then flew to St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend the night.

His public appearances Thursday began at noon, with three stops on the way north to Middleburg, Va., for a four-day break in campaigning while he studies and practices for his debate with President Carter.

The debate has to some extent put the campaign on hold — it is the event that counts now, and Reagan intends to be well rested and rehearsed for the confrontation with Carter in Cleveland next Tuesday night.

Reagan calls the race a close one, says undecided voters are "the smoking gun" that could spell victory for him or for Carter in the big swing states. Customarily, the challenger facing a contest like that heads straight for those big states to stage a campaign sprint, not Reagan. There has been no evident quickening of his pace in the final phase of the race.

His next to last week as a candidate took him to Illinois with 27 electoral votes and to Florida, with 17, but for one appearance in each of those battleground states. It also sent him to a cattle ranch outside Kansas City to appear before 250 enrolled and invited Republicans, which amounts to preaching to the choir. Then he spent half a late campaign day at a ranch home for needy and neglected children in northeastern Mississippi, touring, talking and finally addressing a twilight barbecue.

It was the week Reagan gained the endorsement of black Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette, Miss., and of former Mississippi Gov. John Bell Williams.

The endorsements were not notable for their enthusiasm.

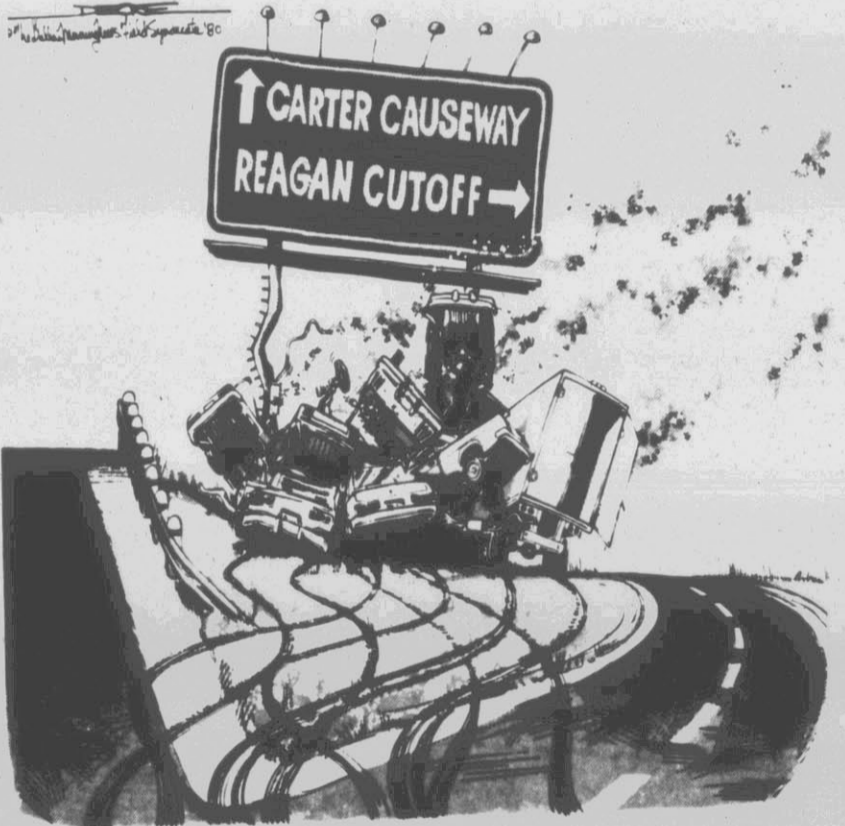

Evers, a maverick and one-time Democrat, said he couldn't support Carter for anything because the president makes too many promises and "grins too much." So he came to Columbus to see Reagan and offer his support. "I wanted to ask him point blank if he is as bad as people say he is. He said no."

Williams, a Democrat who a generation ago tried to hold the congressional line against civil rights legislation, said he had come to Columbus to announce his support for Reagan, too.

"I don't know how good a president Governor Reagan will make ... but I'll tell you one darn thing," he said. "My teacher taught me way back yonder in grade school that you can't take away from zero."

As for themes, Reagan began with a nationally televised defense of his military and foreign policies.

Tax Cut Fever Spreads In U.S.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

Nearly 2½ years after California voters shook the political establishment by approving Proposition 13, tax-cut fever is spreading faster than ever across the nation.

On Nov. 4, voters in 18 states will consider various tax-cutting amendments and initiatives, by far the most states to do so in a single election year.

The so-called tax revolt continues unabated despite the unusual absence of Californians. In June, voters there defeated "Jaws II," a proposition by Howard Jarvis that would have cut state income taxes in half.

This November, states like South Dakota, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon and Utah are considering measures patterned after Proposition 13, which rolled back property taxes to earlier levels, then capped them for the future. The Utah measure would also eliminate sales tax on food.

But propositions in other states would go to very different lengths to carve back taxes.

Iowa voters are considering a measure dubbed "Con-Con," a proposal to call a state constitutional convention. Its backers, including "Iowans for Tax Relief," make no bones that the first order of business would be an amendment to rein in state taxes permanently.

Among the hardest fought tax battles are being waged in three large, industrial states — Michigan, Massachusetts and Ohio.

Ohio provides a twist — a tax proposition with the enthusiastic endorsement of public employee unions, including the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME).

AFSCME Director of Economic Affairs Marcia Caprio terms Issue 2 the "a classic labor-citizen-big business confrontation." It proposes property tax relief for 45 percent of households, an income tax increase for those earning more than $30,000, and a greater tax burden for banks and other businesses.

But a suit filed by the Ohio Manufacturers Association may keep the issue from ever coming to a vote. A state appeals court on Monday ruled Issue 2 was an improper change in tax laws, and ordered it off the ballot. The decision will be appealed to the state Supreme Court.

Massachusetts, among the most heavily taxed states in the nation, will consider "Proposition 2½," which would gradually limit property taxes to 2½ percent of property values. That cut, plus a proposed sharp reduction in the motor vehicle excise tax, might reduce taxes by $1 billion over the next several years.

Michigan voters will choose among three different tax measures on Nov. 4, the most radical being the "Tisch proposal," which would roll back property taxes to 1978 levels, then cut them in half.

Gov. William Milliken, campaigning hard for his own, less drastic tax relief measure and against the Tisch proposal, says the Tisch measure would close state colleges and mental hospitals, force the layoff of three-fourths of the state police and more than a third of the state's 70,000 employees.

Author Bob Tisch, a Shiawassee County drain commissioner, calls such statements "scare tactics."

A third Michigan proposal would end use of property taxes to finance public education, raise taxes on industrial and commercial property, and boost the income tax 6 to 10 percent.

Among other states with tax-related measures:

—Arkansas, New Jersey, Louisiana, Washington and West Virginia voters take up ballot measures to boost homestead exemptions or increase tax relief for the elderly and disabled.

—A Missouri ballot measure would prohibit state spending from increasing any faster than personal income, and would require voter approval of any future increases in fees or taxes.

—Montana voters consider an initiative to index the income tax to inflation, and make up any loss in revenues with a sales tax increase.

—In Nebraska, a proposed constitutional amendment would force the legislature to reduce public education's reliance on property taxes.

—A North Dakota initiative would raise the oil extraction tax and use the proceeds to lower property taxes.

Life As It's Lived

Slow Motion Is Proven To Be One-Way Street

By GAIL MICHAELS
If there ever was a slower child on earth than Meg Michaels, he had to be operating in another dimension. Her preparations for school make a slow-motion replay of a touchdown look like time-lapse photography. The more I hurry her, the faster she decelerates.

If we are 5 minutes late, she stops to turn down her socks, to readjust her sweater, and to check her pockets for acorns. If we are 10 minutes late, her lunch box accidentally opens on the way out to the car and she has to collect its contents and meticulously replace them, at which time she realizes that her shoes are on the wrong feet. If we are 15 minutes late, she remembers that she hasn't brushed her teeth and that two months ago she lost a caterpillar in her closet which she absolutely has to have for Show-and-Tell that day.

This is typical not only of school but of everything she does. I can ask her to do a simple thing like washing Zachary's teething ring, and by the time she gets back with it, Zachary has cut the tooth.

Naturally, this irritates me. One of my stock expressions has become, "When I tell you to do something, I want you to do it that very second, not later!"

The only proof I have that she's listening to me is her reaction when she wants me to do something. I am supposed to jump when she announces that she wants breakfast. Under no circumstances am I to let anything so unimportant as a screaming baby interfere. "I'm hungry now," she complains. "Not later."

Heaven forbid that I should try to read a book. The moment I happen to glance at a printed page, Meg needs a story - right now - a playmate - right now - an inspection of her progress (as usual, slow) in cleaning up her room - right now.

"If you don't come now," she told me one day, "I'll whine until you do."

"Don't threaten me, Meg!" I snapped. "Using threats makes people angry, not cooperative."

She didn't look as if she could be bothered with this tidbit of philosophy. But several days later she ran into my bedroom and said, "Come outside. Daddy wants to take our picture."

I immediately shifted to second gear. I had rather pull the lint off Phillip's socks than let him take my picture. He has never taken a picture of me yet in which I didn't either look like a cadaver or a wide-mouth bass. The potentially good pictures are always out of focus.

I don't know if I've mentioned this tonight or not, but I am an alcoholic, and as soon as the stuff touches my lips I'm a goner. But let me say this. I can be a better congressman now than I've ever been before because I'm aware of my problem and I'm willing to face up to it. Wouldn't you rather have someone represent you who knows he can't handle booze than someone who doesn't?"

Language Conference Was Held

The Ninth Annual Language Conference was held Thursday and Friday at the Willis Bldg.

Speakers for the event included Dr. Donald W. Thomas, director of "Project Semiotics" of Brookline, Massachusetts Public Schools.

Items in the format touched on subjects such as "Language: A Lens For Life," "Examining The Language Lens With Your Students," dialects, grammar, visual communication and others. Additional speakers at the two day event included Dr. Joseph Milner, chairperson, Department of Education, Wake Forest University, Dr. Connie Eble, associate professor Department of English, UNC-Chapel Hill, Dr. Erwin Hester, chairperson Department of English, ECU and other faculty members of ECU.

One purpose of the conference was to set standards and introduce new concepts, such as Semiotics to be used in English education. Semiotics, "the study of signs that suggest factual conditions or qualities not immediately evident," was the definition Dr. Thomas gave his concept. Other ideas brought up included language as an environment and a sub-group of the general whole, communication.

The conference closed Friday with a program presented by three ECU faculty members, Dr. Donald L. Lawler, Dr. Charles W. Sullivan and Dr. McKay Sundwall on "Language Study in Ernest."

Novel About A Dixie In Brazil

NEW YORK (UPI) -- A spokesman for Bantam Books says a novel based on the true story of Southern families who relocated to Brazil at the end of the Civil War and established a community there much like their Dixie homeland is being written by award-winning author Cynthia Van Hazing.

The novel is based on original research by Gary J. Neeleman, formerly a newsman in Brazil, including interviews with direct descendants of the former Confederates and historic materials supplied by them.

those charges now. But I do not see what that has to do with holding political office. I have served this district well, I stand for the American Flag, the family, and abolishing waste in government. You must choose between me, an acknowledged alcoholic, and my opponent, who not only is a tri-lateralist, but a humanist and a closet SALT II supporter."

designed to blunt Carter's contention that a Republican victory would make war more likely. He spent Monday amplifying on that theme, insisting that he is no warmonger. One day of that, and Reagan changed the subject. Suddenly, he was willing to answer any and all questions about the plight of the American hostages in Iran, a subject he had played down for weeks. He blamed Carter for their long captivity, saying that administration weakness led to the kidnapping. Reagan had said it before but not lately. By Wednesday, that subject was off limits again. "I am not going to comment on this anymore because it's obvious they tried to make a political issue out of this."

In every speech, Reagan went back to the basics, reciting his litany of complaints about Carter economic policies. "I'm going to keep talking about his record, which I think is the issue of this campaign," he said. "I think it is apparent that his whole campaign has been one of attacks, trying to make the issue of this campaign me..."

It has, indeed, and even Reagan had to concede that Carter has pursued that strategy with some success. It should be quite a debate.

Could the price of hamburger, or blue jeans, or gasoline affect the outcome of next month's presidential election? September's Consumer Price Index, scheduled to be released today, could reveal part of the answer. The government prepares a report on the Consumer Price Index each month, to measure changes in the cost of living. The index shows changes in the prices of groceries, clothes, rent, and other goods and services, such as transportation, medical care, fuel and recreation. The Consumer Price Index used today measures current prices against prices in 1967. According to that index, items costing $1 in 1967 cost $2.33 at the beginning of 1980.

Oil Profit Growth Slows As Petroleum Use Falls

WASHOUT — Jim Martin, a Santa Fe supervisor from Fresno, overlooks the flood damage that washed out the only remaining levee and swept two engines of the Santa Fe Railroad into the water Thursday. Waters from the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers flooded thousands of acres in the Upper Jones Tract and threatened the water supply of millions of people in the East Bay area. (AP Laserphoto)

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The oil industry's profit growth is slowing sharply from the torrid pace it set in 1979 and early 1980 as petroleum use continues to fall following more than 1½ years of world oil-price increases.

"Energy conservation, particularly at the consumer level, coupled with a weak economy has substantially reduced sales volumes (of petroleum products) and cut into profit margins," Jerry McAfee, chairman of Gulf Oil Corp., said Thursday after Gulf reported its first quarterly earnings decline in two years.

"Last year's strong (oil) demand and tight supplies have given way to a buildup in inventories and price reductions at the gasoline pump," causing a 41 percent drop in Gulf profits, the chairman of the nation's fifth-largest oil company said.

A sharp rise in oil prices triggered by the Iranian revolution resulted in quarterly profit gains of about 100 percent or more last year and early in 1980 for many large oil companies.

But the nearly 150 percent jump in world oil prices since the end of 1978 has forced consumers to cut their use of gasoline and other products and has resulted in a buildup of world oil inventories to a record 5.5 billion barrels — or 231 billion gallons.

That supply is 500 million barrels above normal and is enough to supply the non-communist world's oil needs for 10 days.

With ample oil supplies on the market and consumption down, there has been "an overall softening of product prices," said John McKinley, president and chief operating officer of Texaco Inc., the nation's third largest oil company, which reported a 9 percent increase in third-quarter profits.

Texaco also said that its third-quarter petroleum-product sales were down 19 percent in the United States and 13 percent worldwide from 1979 levels.

But rising crude oil and natural gas prices in the United States helped spur a 21 percent gain in domestic earnings despite a 10 percent drop in oil production and a 15 percent decline in gas sales, the company said.

Among earnings reports: —Texaco said third-quarter earnings totaled $636.4 million, or $2.37 a share, on sales of $12.6 billion. A year earlier, earnings were $583.7 million, or $2.15 a share, on sales of $10.2 billion.

In the first nine months, Texaco said operating earnings were $1.7 billion, or $6.45 a share, on sales of $38.4 billion. The total excluded a $402.3 million profit on a sale of Belridge Oil Co. stock to Shell Oil Co. Texaco earned $1.2 billion, or $4.51 a share, in the first nine months of 1979 on sales of $27.1 billion.

—Gulf said quarterly earnings fell to $244 million, or $1.25 a share, from $416 million, or $2.13 a share, a year ago. Earnings for the first nine months rose to $1.1 billion, or $5.65 a share, from $956 million, or $4.90 a share. Sales fell to $6.6 billion from $6.7 billion in the quarter, but rose to $21.2 billion from $18.4 billion in the first nine months.

Texaco said its annualized return on shareholders' equity in the first nine months of the year was 20.7 percent; Gulf said its return on equity was 16.4 percent in the year ended Sept. 30.

Business Week magazine says U.S. oil and coal companies recorded a 25.7 percent return on equity, while all industries tallied a 15.9 percent return, in the year ended June 30.

Return on equity comprises the ratio of net income to the book value of the common stock holders' investment in a company, plus capital surplus and retained earnings. The ratio allows comparison of one corporation's results with those of others.

Office Is Besieged By Many Phony Deliveries

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Workers at the Aetna Life and Casualty Co. office here don't have much use for motor oil in their line of work, but 2,000 cases of it were delivered recently.

Florists have been delivering unordered bouquets, pizza stores have sent unrequested pizzas and countless exterminators have rushed to the scene to kill non-existent bugs.

Janitors, carpet cleaners, air conditioning repairmen, caterers and tow-truck operators have all knocked on the office door, only to be told politely that their services weren't needed.

Police say the phony deliveries are apparently the work of one man, but they're not sure who he is or how to stop him if they find him.

Pete Lovelace, manager of the claims office, said Thursday he believes it's all the result of a spat between a woman who works with him and her estranged husband.

"Apparently, he is doing this in hopes we will fire his wife, and we aren't going to do that," Lovelace said.

The deliveries are so frequent and the delivery people so angry that the company has hired a guard to handle the complaints, he said.

Lovelace said the deliveries began Oct. 14, a day after he refused to allow a man who identified himself as Frank Gazzo to talk to his wife, Mary, an Aetna trainee.

"The guy had been driving arrived to make deliveries, and on Wednesday, the number jumped to 30.

"I really feel sorry for the vendors," Lovelace said. "It would be nice to get rid of the guard we had to rent because he is costing us $80 a day."

Attempts to reach Gazzo were unsuccessful.

Police Sgt. Dale Lauck said that when calls started coming from vendors, he and other officers checked criminal statutes and could find no law that was being violated.

came the flood of bogus deliveries.

"The first day wasn't so bad," Lovelace said. "All we got were deliveries from three different pizza places, a case of beer and five different florists, who delivered three bouquets each."

"It really got bad on the 20th, though. On that day, seven carpet-cleaning companies, one office-supply firm, two-pest control companies, two caterers, two janitorial outfits and a dry-cleaning company came."

Navy Ponders Disposal Of Old Nuclear Submarines In Ocean

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says it is studying the possibility of disposing of old submarines by sinking them in deep ocean water after removing nuclear fuel from their reactor plants.

Another disposal alternative under study calls for removing entire reactor compartments from obsolete submarines after "defueling" the power plants, and then burying the compartments on land at a federally owned site. It is uncertain what the Navy would do with the submarine hulls.

"Either of these alternatives would be carried so as to provide containment and isolation of the radioactive material in the reactor plant from human activities," the Navy said when asked about reports of such studies.

Navy officials indicated the first candidates for such disposal are the old Polaris missile-firing submarines Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, currently being de-activated at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Wash., before being taken out of commission next year. The two Polaris subs are being retired to make way for the new and bigger Trident boats in the Navy's nuclear striking force.

As the Navy explained it, when a vessel is decommissioned, the nuclear fuel is removed from the power plants and shipped to Energy Department facilities.

"However, after the fuel has been removed, portions of the reactor plant are still radioactive as a result of the operation of the nuclear reactor and, therefore, must be disposed of in a manner which will have a negligible impact on the environment," the Navy said.

In discussing the two approaches now under study, the Navy said one alternative is to "place the entire submarine at a site in the deep part of the ocean where there is virtually no likelihood of its being disturbed by human activities, seismic action or ocean movement."

The Navy declined to indicate what ocean areas it may have in mind for such disposal.

"Preliminary information indicates that the submarine would be intact after landing on the bottom and that the reactor plant ... would remain intact," the Navy said. "Corrosion of the metal of the hull and the reactor plant would then be the only way that the radioactivity would be released."

But the Navy said such corrosion "is a very slow process because of the low temperature at great ocean depths and the use of corrosion-resistant metals in key parts of the reactor plant."

Moreover, the Navy said, during the many years that corrosion would develop, "a significant reduction in the radioactivity would result because of normal radioactive decay."

As for the land disposal concept, the Navy said this option "would take advantage of the containment provided by the submarine's reactor compartment, which would form an outer ... container of high strength and durability."

"The potential effect on the environment from the land disposal alternative is expected to be extremely low," the Navy said.

The Navy now has three attack submarines in what is described as "protective storage." They are the Triton, retired in 1967; the Halibut, taken out of service in 1976, and the Nautilus, decommissioned last year.

The Triton is in the James River near Norfolk, Va., the Halibut at Bremerton, Wash., and the Nautilus, the nation's first nuclear-powered submarine, at Mare Island, Calif.

He is a leader in ecumenical relations and is one of eight members of the governing body of the World Methodist Council (WMC), a world-wide association of 62 Methodist denominations.

The drama to be presented at the district conference will trace the 200 years of the Sunday School and will be performed by young adults from Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, Greenville.

BISHOP W.R. CANNON

According to District Superintendent Dick Commander of Greenville, other agenda items include election of district trustees and presentations by boards and agencies of the North Carolina United Methodist Conference. ## North Pitt JROTC Takes Trip

North Pitt High JROTC Rangers conducted its first field exercise of the 1980-81 school year on the beach at Oregon Inlet October 17-19. Mess and billeting were provided by the U.S. Coast Guard.

The training weekend provided an opportunity for the Rangers to see the Coast Guard at work. The cadets were given a briefing of the history and mission of Coast Guard operations. A tour of the station provided a first-hand view of the radio room, life-saving boats and repair facilities.

Saturday afternoon was devoted to learning compass use, ambush and patrol tips, and military radio procedure. At sundown the Rangers practiced their skills in a beach patrol exercise. All instruction was by Ranger Cadets.

The Rangers, whose strength for this year is 56 cadets or nearly 50 percent of the total cadet strength, are commanded by Cadet Major William Cooley Jr. Cooley said he was impressed by the Coast Guard operation and that the weekend provided the Rangers with a realistic view of service by the U.S. Coast Guard and the opportunity to see what they could expect throughout the school year.

Failing Health Said To Force Kosygin Resignation

By MARC ROSENWASSER
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Alexei N. Kosygin, an almost mystical survivor in the often turbulent world of Soviet politics, has quit after 16 years as premier because of ill health. His first deputy, 75-year-old Nikolai Tikhonov, succeeded him as the No. 2 man in the Kremlin leadership.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev announced the shakeup Thursday in a speech to the Supreme Soviet, the national Parliament.

Brezhnev offered no praise for the outgoing premier, but nonetheless Soviet and Western analysts believe the 76-year-old Kosygin, who reportedly has suffered circulatory problems and at least two heart attacks in recent years, resigned voluntarily, leaving in good political standing.

"He has been trying to resign for some time," said a Soviet source who knows the Kosygin family. "He just wanted to rest, to fish. But other Soviet leaders have been reluctant. Perhaps they've been wondering how to replace him."

The choice of Tikhonov, who became Kosygin's top deputy four years ago, appeared to strengthen Brezhnev's control of the Kremlin leadership. The two men have been close friends and associates since they worked together on development projects in the Ukraine in the 1930s.

Tikhonov was not expected to implement any major changes and because of his age, most observers believe he is likely to be only an interim replacement as premier.

Kosygin came to power in 1964 following the ouster of Premier Nikita Khrushchev. He joined a leadership "troika" with Brezhnev and Nikolai Podgorny.

In recent years, he controlled the Soviet economy and supervised the day-to-day running of the government. His leaving is not expected to have any major impact on Soviet policy.

Before his health failed, Kosygin handled numerous assignments as a diplomatic troubleshooter. In 1965 he went to Peking to try to reverse the growing ideological split between the two communist giants. In 1967, he met with then-

President Lyndon B. Johnson at Glassboro, N.J. for the first U.S.-Soviet summit since the stormy meeting between then-President John F. Kennedy and Khrushchev in Vienna, Austria in 1961.

More recently Brezhnev and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko took complete charge of foreign affairs and Kosygin's public image faded.

He was absent Thursday when Brezhnev told the Parliament:

"Alexei Kosygin points out that he needs rest and release from vigorous activities because his health has worsened recently. He therefore requests to be relieved of his duties."

Kosygin had not been seen in public since Aug. 3, the closing day of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow, and is believed to be hospitalized.

If, as generally believed, he left of his own will, he would join former President Anastas Mikoyan as one of the few top Kremlin leaders to resign voluntarily. Mikoyan resigned in 1965, paving the way for Podgorny to take over the presidency. Podgorny was ousted 12 years later and Brezhnev took over his job.

Kosygin, an economics expert and former Leningrad mayor, was 13 years old when the Bolsheviks swept to power in 1917. Twenty-three years later he became deputy premier under Josef Stalin and took over as premier in 1964.

In his memoirs,

Khrushchev, Stalin's successor, said he "simply can't explain" how Kosygin survived the brutal Stalinist purges in Leningrad in the late 1940s.

Observers attributed his ability to survive to intellect and hard work, but they also cited his luck and political savvy.

Kosygin joined the Red Army at 15 in the heady days two years after the revolution.

He got his early experience and education in plant management and engineering. In 1938 he was working in a textile mill when he was suddenly given the Leningrad mayoralty after many of the city's top leaders perished in Stalin's purges.

By 1943 he was a full member of the ruling national Politburo. In 1952 his career suffered a mysterious setback and he lost his Politburo membership. It took him eight years to make a comeback and Khrushchev restored him to full membership in 1960.

Kosygin's wife Klavdia died of cancer in 1967 and in a rare public show of emotion he bent to kiss her in her coffin at the graveside.

Kosygin's son-in-law, Dzhermen Gvishiani, holds a senior government post as deputy chief of the Soviet state science and technology committee.

Damage Results From Wrecks

An estimated $2,800 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here last night by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted when a car allegedly driven by Joseph Teel of 900 Ward St. came from a driveway, crossed the street, and collided with two cars parked in a driveway at 406 Elizabeth St.

Police, who charged Teel with auto larceny in connection with the 8:30 p.m. incident, identified the owner of the car driven by Teel as H & N Body Shop, 1310 North Greene St. Owners of the other two cars were listed as Booker Tyrone Walston of Ayden, and James Mack Walston of 406 Elizabeth St.

Damage was set at $1,000 to the B. T. Walston car, $500 to the J. M. Walston auto, and $900 to the car driven by Teel.

Christopher Columbus Henderson Jr. of 300 North Sylvan Dr. was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of an 8:10 p.m. collision on Glenwood Avenue, 100 feet east of the Sunset Avenue intersection.

Investigators reported the Henderson car collided with a parked truck owned by Pugh's Tire and Service Center, at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets, causing $100 damage to the Henderson car and $300 damage to the truck.

Preparing Children for the Hospital

One of the kindest and most thoughtful social advances is now taking place all over the United States. For years, psychologically astute doctors have insisted that one of the greatest contributions that can be made to the health of a sick child in the hospital is the presence of his parents and family.

At one time, not so many years ago, hospitals and their administrators laid down firm rules that kept sick children separated from their parents — their greatest source of security. They believed that the presence of the family interfered with the efficient handling of the sick child.

Now they know better. For it has been shown repeatedly that the presence of one or more parents not only markedly reduces the child's fears, but also minimizes the need for nursing care. Psychiatrists and psychologists attest to lifetime emotional benefits that accrue to children who have been properly prepared for hospitalization.

As one who was concerned for many years about the impact of a hospital experience on the emotional destiny of a child, I vociferously pleaded with hospital administrators to permit a parent to stay overnight with a child who was hospitalized. When a child is separated from his parent — his source of maximum security — he feels frightened and abandoned, especially when no adequate explanation has been given him for the hospitalization or surgery.

To reduce the emotional trauma of these experiences, I supervised the writing of two children's books to help parents prepare children for every phase of the hospital stay. The first book, "A Visit to the Hospital," was published by Grosset and Dunlap, and now, the second, a pop-up story book, "Going to the Hospital," has been published by Random House.

Readers will understand, then, why I am so pleased to learn that buildings near hospitals are being renovated to house the families of severely and chronically sick hospitalized children. These buildings provide inexpensive residential facilities, so that parents and relatives who live far away can be in closer contact with their sick children. This idea started originally about six years ago in Philadelphia.

The response was so gratifying that similar facilities are being set up all over the country. They are known as the "Ronald McDonald Houses." These refurbished houses are purchased with money donated by local McDonald restaurants. For a minimum fee they provide private bedrooms and bathrooms and kitchen facilities.

Another important advantage of this sociological experiment is that families can share experiences with each other, and give each other comfort and support during these difficult periods.

Special programs are being set up so that doctors who are actively treating the children can offer guidance and encouragement.

New Temple For The Refugees

By LAURINDA KEYS
Associated Press Writer
NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) - To thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian refugees and Thai immigrants, the new Wat Thai temple is just like home.

It should be the temple, to be completed and dedicated next spring, was designed in part by the Thai Department of Religious Affairs, and most of its decorations, including ornately carved teak window frames still being installed, were made in Thailand.

According to the 12 monks who live on its premises and the hundreds who worship there each week, the Wat Thai temple is unique in the United States, but is built in the architectural style common in temples throughout Thailand.

"In terms of architecture, it is the only true Thai temple in the United States," said temple secretary Sawat Yinguang.

He said more than $250,000 has been spent on construction over the past seven years, with donations raised locally and in Thailand.

There were some concessions to geography. The plans for the temple were drafted by a local architect to meet city building codes, and the name of the giant statue where monks sit to chant prayers translates to "Buddha of the City of Los Angeles." Also, many of the carvings are wood reproductions of jade art works in the temples in Thailand.

The temple isn't quite finished, but nevertheless, it has become a worship center for adherents of the Theravada Buddhist sect, which is more than 2,500 years old.

"The temple is the visual focal point of the Buddhist way of life. It is where ceremonies are observed, prayers recited and special meetings held," said monk Evan Poe.

The variety of nationalities which have made up the Southeast Asian community in the metropolitan Los Angeles area since the end of the Vietnam War is recognized at the temple, although its heritage is Thai.

The temple is home for 12 monks, who have been sent as missionaries on resident visas from Thailand. They renounce all worldly possessions, cut their hair and shave their eyebrows, and live in two buildings adjacent to the temple on the three-acre, park-like property in the midst of a residential area in North Hollywood. A few lay members are allowed to live the monastic life temporarily.

The Theravada monks plan their day around morning and evening prayer, breakfast and lunch, conducting ceremonies and blessing houses.

The temple is open all the time and the Buddhist religious calendar is followed for services.

But, in another concession to locality, the monks have been holding regular services on Sundays and special festivities on Saturdays, when their members have the day off.

HIDING IN THE LEAVES

One of the adventures of Autumn is hiding in a pile of leaves. Not really hiding, though. The fun is in poking your head out and surprising someone!

When we're growing up, every season brings its adventures. Our days are full of opportunities for having fun.

Hopefully those days will also be marked by adventures that help build character. With each passing season the soul as well as the body needs to grow.

The opportunity for youngsters whose families are concerned for their spiritual development is in religious education.

We don't belong under the debris of Fall - our convictions are the heralds of a new Spring.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

As a result of an inquiry made through Senator Helms to get clarification from Governor Reagan on his stand on tobacco issues, I received a letter from Governor Reagan.

I sincerely believe that every farmer should be aware of this.

This is the context of the letter.

Quote

I would like to take this opportunity to write to you and several other well-known North Carolina tobacco farmers to spell out my views on federal tobacco programs.

First, I want to assure you that I fully support this nation's tobacco price support program. Tobacco price supports have helped to sustain more than a quarter-of-a-million family farms in 16 states, and have proven to be an unqualified success. The Secretary of Agriculture in a Reagan/Bush Administration will represent my feelings in this regard, as will all officials and agencies which play a role in tobacco programs.

I also want to assure you that my Administration will end what has become an increasingly antagonistic relationship between the Federal government and the tobacco industry. The Carter Administration has all too often singled out the tobacco industry for selective criticism and damaging restrictions. Tobacco—no less than corn, wheat, or soybeans—should be viewed as a valuable cash crop with an important role to play in restoring America's balance of trade. I can guarantee that my own Cabinet members will be far too busy with substantive matters to waste their time proselytizing against the dangers of cigarette smoking. I can also guarantee you that I will seek Senator Helms' views on any decision my Administration makes concerning federal tobacco policies.

Sincerely,

Ronald Reagan
RONALD REAGAN

1. We Believe: President Carter could end the unlawful importation of quality tobacco classed as scrap with a telephone call—every day of delay costs tobacco farmers $500,000.00 in lost sales.

2. We Believe: Proper identification of tobacco imports would help our deficit trade balance and reduce stabilization stocks.

3. We Believe: The import tobacco problem has had ample study. It has been two years since Senator Jesse Helms instigated his attempts to correct this situation—U.S. General Accounting Office investigation has determined these tobaccos are improperly classified.

4. We Believe: The millions of tax dollars spent in an attempt to change smoking habits could be better spent on research, or saved.

5. We Believe: U.S. Department of Agriculture should be more receptive to producer problems as it was intended.

6. We Believe: We need new leadership in Washington to reduce deficit spending and inflation.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slipped lower today as the government reported that consumer prices rose 1 percent in September.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks slipped .94 to 938.57 in the first hour of trading, as declines outnumbered advances by a 7-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange. The average fell 15.61 points the previous day.

The inflation figure was the last to be released before the election, and it seemed to show that inflation was again rising. The Consumer Price Index rose 0.7 percent in August.

Food prices rose 1.6 percent last month, slightly less than August's 1.7 percent rise. But housing costs accelerated 0.7 percent, up from 0.1 percent, reflecting the recent rise in mortgage interest rates.

Pirates Seek To Upset Number 7 Heels

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Never before have the Pirates of East Carolina played against a football team ranked as high as North Carolina's seventh-ranked Tar Heels.

But Saturday, they become the third of five ranked teams the Pirates face this season, as the Heels host the Bucs in a 1 p.m. Kenan Stadium affair.

Florida State and Southern Mississippi, two former Pirate foes are also ranked this week by the Associated Press, while one upcoming foe, Miami, was ranked earlier. Eastern Kentucky is among the top ten in the Small College Poll.

Perhaps none of them are as strong as the Heels, however, ranked in the top ten in scoring defense, rushing defense and total defense.

According to the NCAA, the Heels are tenth in overall defense, allowing only 230.7 yards a game. Just 79.0 of these have come on the ground against the rugged North Carolina line, ranking them fourth in the country.

And the Heels have allowed just 36 points in six games, a 6.0 average, best in the nation.

"People have tried to establish a passing game against them," Pirate coach Ed Emory pointed out, "and haven't been that successful. We need to try and establish our running game, but it isn't going to be easy."

"They have outstanding personnel and we'll have to fight for field position all day. We have to have a sound kicking game and good coverage. We can't give them anything easy."

Meanwhile, the Pirates are going to have to do something that no one else has been able to do against the Heels: move the ball.

"They have no weak links on defense. Our offensive linemen are really going to have to come off the ball to have a chance," Emory added.

Defensively, the Pirates will have a tough job too. "Famous Amos (Lawrence) is always a threat, and they also have (Kelvin) Bryant. But (Rod) Elkins is the key to their offense. If you can stop him, you have a chance. Their scheme is designed to make it tough to get to him, however."

Emory said the Pirates were looking forward to the challenge. "We've said all along that we wanted to play the best teams in the country. This is where we want to be."

"We're going to have to play inspired football. On paper they're better than we are," Emory said. "But we're not playing on paper, we're playing on turf, and turf is where it counts."

Only once this season have the Heels allowed more than nine points to an opponent. Furman, their opening foe, scored 13 in losing. Georgia Tech stands as the only shutout foe. East Carolina, by the way, will be going for its 105th straight scoring game, the fourth longest streak in the country.

The defense of the Heels is led by linebacker Darrell Nicholson, with 42 primary and 27 secondary tackles. Tackle Harry Staback is next with 29 primary and 17 assists. Lawrence Taylor, another All-American candidate, has 28 primary and 10 assists, having caused two fumbles and recovered one. He also has made 11 backfield tackles for minus 69 yards, tops among the Carolina defenders as harassers of quarterbacks.

Offensively, the Heels are paced by Lawrence, who has rushed for 524 yards. Bryant is right behind him with 462, giving that backfield duo nearly 1,000 yards on the season running from the tailback position. Fullback Billy Johnson has accumulated 265 yards.

Elkins, who has been reached — but not often — has hit on 52 of 98 passes for 661 yards, with ten touchdowns and six interceptions. Tight end Mike Chatham has 12 receptions for 137 yards, while Bryant, coming out of the backfield has caught nine for 173 yards. Three others have eight catches, wide receiver Jo Richardson (103 yards), wide receiver Victor Harrison (92), and Lawrence (79).

Another big weapon for the Tar Heels is the punting of Steve Streater, with a 43.2 yard average, 12th in the nation.

East Carolina's offense is led by quarterback Carlton Nelson, who has hit on 26 of 52 passes for 276 yards. Oddly enough, the Pirates have not passed for a touchdown this year.

Nelson also has 317 yards rushing, while fullback Theo Sutton has picked up 339, halfback Anthony Collins has 333 and halfback Mike Hawkins has 299.

Nelson's primary receiver has been Collins with eight catches for 77 yards, while wide receiver Vern Davenport had seven for 93 and Hawkins had seven for 64.

The game is the seventh in the series between the two schools, and the next-to-last under present UNC policy. The Tar Heels have declined to play East Carolina again after 1981, seeking out-of-state opposition instead. UNC leads the series, 4-1-1. Last year's game ended in a 24-24 tie after the Pirates rallied to take a 24-21 lead late in the game, only to see the Heels come back with a 47-yard field goal in the final minute of play.

East Carolina will return home next Saturday to face rapidly improving William & Mary, while the Heels travel to meet another nationally-ranked opponent, Oklahoma.

West Carteret Stops Valkyries

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's volleyball season came to an end Thursday, but not before the Valkyries went down fighting.

West Carteret withstood a fierce first-game comeback by Conley and then after losing the second game rallied to tie the Valkyries and then go ahead to take a 2-1 victory and advance to third round of the district playoffs.

Down 13-0 in the opening game, the Valkyries rallied to score 10 straight points only to lose their serve and see the Patriots, champions of the Coastal Conference, serve out to win the game, 15-10.

The Valkyries came back to capture the second game, 15-7, to tie the match and send it into the decisive third game.

Conley went ahead early by as much as four points, only to see the Patriots tie the game and then go on to win, 16-14.

The loss ends the Valkyries season, a season that saw Conley go 16-2 under first-year coach Martha McCaskill.

"It was a very exciting match," McCaskill said. "We didn't play our best, but they're the type of team that you don't make mistakes against and get away with them."

"That first game is what cost us," she added. "We were down 1-0 and had to come back and then in the third game they got the momentum. It's tough to lose, especially after the kind of the season we had."

In all, the Valkyries lost only five games all season — two of which came yesterday and ended their season.

"That just makes it even harder to take. We did have a great season, though."

Cubs Top Fike, 20-6

WILSON — Rose High School's Rampant Cubs rolled to a 20-6 football victory over Wilson Fike yesterday.

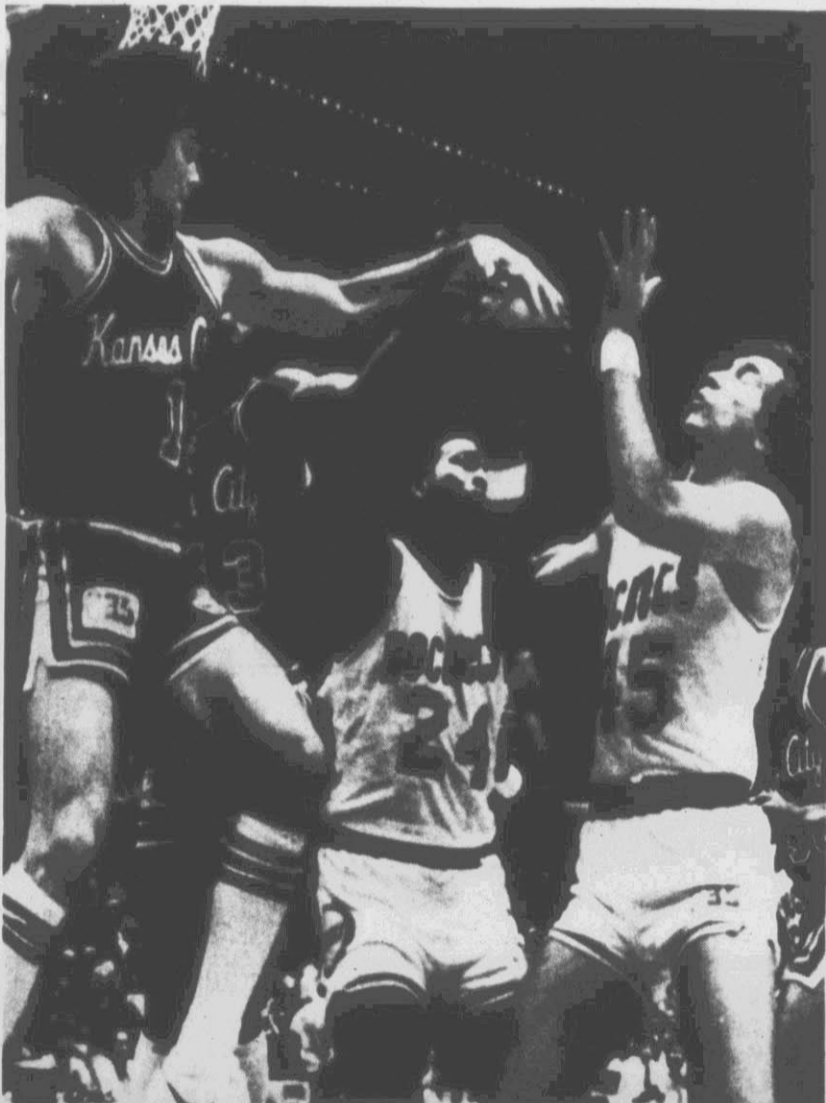

Donnell Lee, whose running and pass-catching highlighted the day for the Rampants, scored the first Rose touchdown in the first period. He went over from five yards out, with Horace Barrett kicking the extra point.

In the second period, Reggie Clark broke through to block a punt, with John Marshall recovering for the second Rose touchdown. Barrett again kicked the PAT for a 14-0 halftime lead.

After Fike got its score in the third period, Rose scored again in the final quarter to wrap it up. David Snead pulled in a ten-yard pass from Kenny Kirkland for the score.

The victory left Rose with a 7-1 record. The Cubs play host to Wilson Hunt next Thursday.

Davenport Taking Aim At Receiving Category

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Vern Davenport, the senior split end from Griffin, doesn't mind following in the footsteps of one of the top receivers in East Carolina history. In fact, he's just glad he's got the chance to be there at all.

Davenport originally came to East Carolina five years ago as a walk on. He was later awarded a fifth year since he didn't play in enough games in the early part of his career.

For the most part, he stood in the shadow of Terry Gallaher, who holds just about all of the pass receiving records at the university. Davenport is hopeful that before the year is over, he, too, can leave an impression on the record books, although it won't be quite the same kind.

In his brief career, Davenport has caught 33 passes, and needs just seven more to move into the school's Top Ten in receptions. His yardage is currently 436, leaving him only 81 yards short of the Top Ten. He would like to make both select groups before this season comes to an end.

Playing behind Gallaher might have cut down on his own playing time, but it was well worth it, Davenport said.

The lanky end has the ability to get himself open time after to help another that for a coach to," Davenport said. "You tend to listen, since he's out there doing it. When I was on the sidelines, I watched Terry and saw how he did things. I listened to him in the huddles and in conferences."

Gallaher's advise was "watch me, listen, pay attention and do what I do." The lessons paid off.

Now that role has fallen on Davenport, and he enjoys it. He's teaching back-up split end Larry O'Roarke the way it's done, and it appears to be paying off.

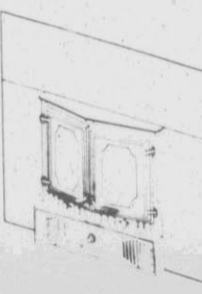

time for receptions. "If you run your pattern like you're supposed to, it's not that hard to get open. It's no big secret if the play is designed well. I don't try and outrun anyone, just knowing where I'm going and getting there gets the job done."

Davenport credits this to "two great teachers," receiver coach Henry Trevathan — and Gallaher.

"I'm close to Coach Trevathan, and I believe in his philosophy," Davenport said. That philosophy is to allow that player ahead to do most of the coaching. "I think for the most part, it's easier for one player

Mack Waived, Thompson Signs

Two former East Carolina University basketball players figured in professional moves yesterday.

Oliver Mack, twice the Most Valuable Player for the ECU Pirates, was placed on waivers by the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association. Mack was waived to make room for another player who was removed from the injured list.

There was no report available on whether another team might pick the former high-scoring Pirate.

Meanwhile, Rosie Thompson, the most prolific scorer in East Carolina history was signed by the St. Louis Streak of the Women's Professional Basketball League. Thompson was originally drafted by the league's Iowa club, but became a free agent when that club folded.

The Streak is coached by a former Pirate coach, Larry Gillman, with another former ECU staffer, Herb Dillon, acting as assistant.

Woody Peele

Last week's tough slate of games gave the panel a little more of a shakeup than was expected. Rick Scoppe climbed back into the lead all alone, while Etha Allen tumbled from fourth place into fifth, with Tom Baines making a move toward getting back to respectability.

This week's slate promises to have some more tough games, and the outcome might produce some more changes in the standings.

Currently Scoppe leads the parade with a 67-17 record, while this writer managed to hang on close with a 66-18 mark. Our guests stayed in third with a 65-19 mark, while Baines is next at 64-20. Allen comes fifth with a 61-23 mark, while Joe Jenkins continues to trail, 58-26.

Our guest from last week, Henry Hinton of "Carolina Today" managed only an 8-4 record, next to the poorest so far among the guests. This week's guest is another member of that program's panel, Kathi Diamant, who promises to whip Henry and make another mark for women's lib.

Before we get to the panel, we'll look at the high school situation.

In a surprise last week, every high school in the Pitt-Martin-Greene area lost — except Greene Central, which did not play. That left us with a 5-2 mark for last Friday, and a 41-10 overall mark.

Tonight, Ayden-Grifton plays at Southern Nash. The Firebirds are rolling toward their meeting with Charles B. Aycock at the end of the season. They might start to look ahead to that, but not this soon. Southern Nash will win this one.

Greene Central meets North Pitt in a game of frustrated teams. Both have taken their lumps this year, and one of them will finally record a conference victory, and just the second overall. We have to look at the Rams as the favorite here. The open date last week could help them.

C.B. Aycock meanwhile, will be at Conley. This is the chance for the Vikings to pull off a big one. They've shown signs of getting it together, but not this week. Aycock to remain unbeaten.

Farmville Central plays host to Havelock in a non-conference game. The Jaguars and their guests usually play an exciting game, but this year it's unusual in that neither is having their usual banner year. We'll lean to Farmville in this one.

Elsewhere, it will be Edenton over Williamston, Tarboro over Roanoke, and Scotland Neck over Jamesville.

Turning to the panel, we find Rose mixing it up with Wilson Fike in a very important game. The Rampants were ranked number two in the state last week, but after bowing to Bertie slipped to ninth. Fike, unranked, has a chance to move onto the poll this week. They already hold down first in the conference and could eliminate the Rampants from the championship with a win.

It's a very key game to say the least. The panel gives a slight nod to the Rampants, on a four to one ballot.

East Carolina travels to Chapel Hill to face the strong Tar Heels. Tradition says this one will be close. It could be, if the Heels look ahead to Oklahoma, and the Pirates play their best. But the panel goes with the Heels, giving them a 5-1 nod. (It's that guy Jenkins again, going against the odds to try and catch up.)

Our other consensus picks: Clemson and N.C. State, a toss-up; Tulane over Georgia Tech; Arkansas over Houston; Mississippi State over Auburn; Syracuse over Rutgers; Maryland over Duke; Wake Forest over Virginia; Minnesota over Iowa; Pittsburgh over Tennessee; Western Carolina over Marshall.

Six Teams Battle For Position In Attempt To Catch Tar Heels

By BILL WERONKA
Associated Press Writer

Just like the jockeying for position early in a horse race, six football teams in the Atlantic Coast Conference Saturday will be trying to put themselves in the best position for catching leader North Carolina should the Tar Heels falter in the stretch.

Nationally seventh-ranked North Carolina leads the race with a 3-0 mark. But after that the place and show combinations appear headed for a photo finish.

In a three-way tie for second place are Maryland, Clemson and Duke with 1-1 records. In another three-way tie for third are North Carolina State, Wake Forest and Virginia with 1-2 conference records.

The Tar Heels, 6-0, will not affect the race this Saturday since they host East Carolina in a 1 p.m. non-conference game in Kenan Stadium. But the other six teams contending for the title will be battling it out among themselves.

Duke, 1-5, hosts Maryland, 4-3, in a regionally televised game at 12:35 p.m. in Wallace Wade Stadium. N.C. State, 3-3, welcomes Clemson, 4-2, to Carter-Finley Stadium at 1 p.m. and Virginia, 2-4, visits Wake Forest, 3-3, in Groves Stadium at 1 p.m.

Georgia Tech, 1-6, hosts Tulane in a 1:30 p.m. game at Grant Field, but the Yellow Jackets are not eligible for the ACC title.

It has been 45 years since a North Carolina team won its first seven games and the Pirates look to be a likely victim for the unbeaten Tar Heels. East Carolina is not as formidable as in years past, getting off to a shaky 1-3 start. But it has won its last two.

UNC coach Dick Crum, however, knows he can't let his team overlook the Pirates because of a big game with nationally ranked Oklahoma coming up. He remembers how his team struggled to obtain a 24-24 tie with the Pirates last year in Chapel Hill.

Crum is hoping his team won't forget, either, and is preparing them to handle ECU's wishbone offense. Pirate coach Ed Emory is hoping UNC will forget and is preparing for that.

"What we're in for in Chapel Hill is a mental fight," Emory said. "Their mental fight is that they don't want to look through us and on to Oklahoma. They are going to take each game as they come up, and that's what Coach Crum is saying. But sometimes it doesn't matter what you're saying, your young men will not do exactly like you say."

Emory continued, "Our mental fight is to go up there — and we are capable of winning at Chapel Hill, very capable — and do the things it takes to win."

Duke is coming off its biggest win in two years — a 34-17 upset of Clemson. The win ended an 11-game losing streak and marked its first ACC victory since 1978. Maryland has struggled most of this year and barely nipped Wake Forest last week, 11-10, with a fourth-quarter safety. The Terps have not put many points on the scoreboard this year, but as usual their defense is their strong point.

Duke, on the other hand, has found its offense via the passing arm of freshman quarterback Ben Bennett and the Blue Devils have 13 receivers who have caught passes. And the Blue Devil offense was impressive against Clemson. Ironically, the last time Duke beat Maryland was 1972, which also was the last year it appeared on TV.

N.C. State and Clemson are both coming off losses. And there are other similarities. Both are young and rebuilding, and both are trying to put some life into their offenses. Whoever finds the answer first will probably end up on top. The Wolfpack edged the Tigers last year at Clemson, 16-13.

Wake Forest coach John Mackovic said he plans some changes in this offense after last week's loss to Maryland.

Knicks Look Back On Their Past, Take A Page, Move Into First

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

The glory years of the New York Knicks are well documented in the annals of the National Basketball Association, and if those championship teams of 1969-70 and 1972-73 are to be remembered for nothing else it will be for their ability to make the big play.

The stars of that era — Willis Reed, Dave DeBusschere, Walt Frazier et als — have departed, but the young Knicks ripped a page from the book of their predecessors in a 109-107 overtime victory Thursday night against Boston. And their reward was undisputed possession of first place in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

First the Knicks, 4-1, got a 3-point goal from guard Ray Williams with 11 seconds remaining to force the overtime. Then forward Campy Russell tossed in the winning basket with 18 seconds remaining in overtime.

But it took still one more clutch effort, center Bill Cartwright's rejection of a layup by Boston's Chris Ford with three seconds remaining in the game played at Hartford, Conn.

Spurs 128, Warriors 109
"The Spurs are now a big team and play a big man's type of game," said Golden State Coach Al Attles after his Warriors became San Antonio's fifth straight victim.

Attles said the San Antonio defense played a key role in the game, and the statistics were illustrative of that. The Spurs forced the Warriors into some poor shots in the second period, and rolled up a 34-21 advantage to break the game open.

George Gervin led the way for the Spurs, now 6-1, with a game-high 25 points. James Silas chipped in with 16 points and Reggie Johnson had 15 for San Antonio.

Kings 105, Rockets 96
Kansas City had too much offense for Houston, which couldn't cope with Otis Birdsong, who pumped in a game-high 37 points. The Kings spotted the Rockets a first-period lead but forced them into nine second-period turnovers to reverse the tide.

Birdsong got help from Jo Jo White, who scored all 12 of his points in the decisive second period, and Phil Ford, who added 16.

Southern Miss Gets Big Chance

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Southern Mississippi has made the Associated Press Top Twenty for the first time in history...just in time to take on top-rated Alabama.

Saturday's clash will send two of only eight undefeated and untied teams against each other. Alabama, which has won 27 straight, is 6-0, the same as the Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles.

Southern Miss is rolling along behind the running of Sammy Winder, a junior who is averaging 100.8 yards rushing per game and leads the nation in scoring with 78 points. The Golden Eagles' problem, however, is that Alabama is 10th in the country in rushing defense, allowing only 104.3 yards per game, and in seventh in total defense.

The only other major college unbeaten team is eighth-ranked Southern California, but the Trojans were tied last week by Oregon.

In other games involving the Top Twenty this week, Southern Methodist is at Texas, No.3 UCLA is at California, No.6 Florida State is at Memphis, East Carolina is at No.7 North Carolina, No.9 Nebraska is at Colorado and No.10 Ohio State is at Wisconsin.
No.11 Baylor travels to Texas Christian, No.12 Pitt is at Tennessee, No.13 Penn State is at West Virginia, No.16 Missouri is at Kansas State.

Aycock In 13-8 Win

WINDSOR — E.B. Aycock Junior High School scored in the final period to nip Bertie Junior High, 13-8, yesterday in a defensive struggle.

The Aycock defense held Bertie to only 20 yards in rushing in the game.

Aycock scored in the first period on an 11-yard run by Cyrus Blackwell, and Jay Wynne kicked the extra point.

Bertie came back in the second quarter to take an 8-7 lead when Kirk White blocked a Jaguar punt and returned it nine yards for a touchdown.

Steven Sexton ran over the PAT for the lead.

It stayed that way until the final period when Blackwell scored on a 65 yard pass from Mike Shock, giving Aycock the victory.

Aycock will play host to Kinston next Wednesday.

More Verbal Blows Exchanged By East And Morgan

By The Associated Press
 Republican senatorial hopeful John East and Democratic incumbent Sen. Robert Morgan traded more verbal blows Thursday in their campaigns leading to the Nov. 4 general election.

East also received what was described as unsolicited help from "The Review of the News," a magazine linked to The John Birch Society, which published a seven-page article criticizing Morgan's voting record as one which "has attempted to appease the Northern Liberal Establishment."

Both East and Morgan were campaigning and could not be reached for comment on the magazine article. East said earlier, however, he has never had any ties with The John Birch Society.

Tom Ellis, head of the Congressional Club — which is leading East's campaign, said he knew of no link between the society and East.

"I'm sure he doesn't (have a link)," Ellis said. "And, I'm sure (Gov.) Jim Hunt had no connection to the Ku Klux Klan and they endorsed him."

Morgan's campaign press secretary, Gibson Prather, said of the article:

"I just don't believe that the people of North Carolina are ready to turn a U.S. Senate seat over to the John Birch Society. These are the people who called (President) Eisenhower a communist sympathizer."

East, pledging his support to the tobacco industry, made appearances Thursday in Winston-Salem and Greensboro. He repeatedly attacked Morgan's voting record.

"Right now, the North Carolina vote in the Senate counts for zero. Sen. Morgan frequently cancels out Sen. (Jesse) Helms. What I think I would offer is a vote other than to cancel out Sen. Helms," East said, referring to North Carolina's senior senator, who is a Republican.

East was joined on the campaign Thursday by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., who said East would be among five or six Republicans who will join the Senate as a result of this year's elections.

Morgan also campaigned in Winston-Salem and later joined Gov. Jim Hunt, who also is seeking re-election, at a 5th Congressional District Democratic rally.

Morgan announced a series of fund-raising events scheduled during the closing days of the campaign, including a joint appearance with Hunt at a $100-a-couple reception in Raleigh Saturday night. Morgan said he will stop at fish fries Monday in Cary, Wendell and Wake Forest. Another fundraiser will be held Tuesday at the North Ridg Country Club in Raleigh, followed by a reception in Hickory on Wednesday.

In Southern Pines, Republican gubernatorial nominee I. Beverly Lake Jr.

decried what he called Hunt's "corrupt political machine."

Lake spoke to about 100 Moore County members of the Conservatives for Good Government, urging them and other voters to reject "professional politicians" and return morality to state government.

"We must put principle above politics," he said.

"That is what this campaign is all about."

The Conservatives for Good Government has endorsed Lake and local Republican candidates in Moore County. The group also has come out for some Democrats, including incumbents Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

Lake criticized the growth in state government during the Hunt administration and the increase in state spending, citing a new $8.5 million state office building under construction in Raleigh as an example.

He accused Hunt of directing "a reign of terror" over state government employees during this political campaign.

Before joining Morgan for the 5th District rally, Hunt released a position paper outlining his proposals for alternative energy sources.

Hunt's proposals included various tax incentives, opening a trust fund for construction of a solar home in each of the state's 100 counties, research of new energy technologies and continued regulation of state utility companies.

Hunt said during a campaign news conference he could not put a price tag on the proposals.

"We must understand that the world is not running out of energy," Hunt said. "It is running out of cheap oil and gas."

Hunt also proposed the state maintain tax credits for conversion to wood and production of gasohol and conduct extensive research into the potential environmental hazards of peat mining.

He repeated his earlier attacks on "the inordinately high rates" charged by Virginia Electric and Power Co. in northeastern North Carolina, calling Veeco the "the number-one (utility) regulatory issue."

Hunt, who has publicly called for Veeco to sell its operations to Carolina Power & Light Co., acknowledged that the companies' rates currently do not differ greatly because a nuclear unit at CP&L's Brunswick station was down for part of the summer.

But Hunt called the narrow gap "a temporary aberration" and said he hopes Veeco will decide voluntarily to sell its North Carolina operations.

"If the company refuses to do so, I would give careful consideration to legislation that would give the Utilities Commission authority to reassign service areas," Hunt said.

Geneticist Is Out Of A Job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Martin J. Cline, the UCLA professor who performed the first known genetic engineering experiments on humans, has resigned as chief of the university's division of hematology and oncology at the request of the university officials.

Dr. David Solomon, chairman of the department of medicine, said he asked Cline to give up his position temporarily until the issues raised by such research are settled.

"We in the department are not passing judgment and have not reached any judgment on the probity of his experiments in Israel and Italy," Solomon said.

Cline added a new gene to the living cells of a 21-year-old woman July 10-11 in Jerusalem and a 16-year-old girl on July 15 in Naples while attempting to cure a fatal inherited blood disease known as thalassemia.

The procedure, developed in animal research by Richard Azel of Columbia University, involves removing a small amount of bone marrow from the patient. An appropriate gene is snipped from cells from another source. Marrow cells and genes are then mixed, and some cells are supposed to accept the genes into their genetic make-up.

The changed cells are theoretically capable of making normal hemoglobin. The marrow cells are then injected back into the patient, where they could divide and produce more and more changed cells.

The results of the procedure were not immediately conclusive. After three months there was no indication the new genes were producing normal blood cells.

The National Institute of Health is now investigating the experiments.

UCLA's human subjects committee on July 22 rejected Cline's proposal to try the treatment on campus with victims of sickle cell anemia, an inherited blood disorder that primarily affects blacks.

Cline said he attempted the experiment overseas, not to evade the decision of the UCLA committee but to conduct the procedure in places where thalassemia was encountered more frequently.

REAGANITES AT CARTER RALLY — A supporter of Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan wears a Jimmie Carter mask during a rally for President Carter at John Connally Airfield in Waco, Texas this week. While a few of the people gathered were Reagan supporters, most of the 5,000 spectators greeted the President warmly. President Carter made a three-city sweep in Texas, stopping at Beaumont, Waco and Texarkana. (AP Laserphoto)

The exact cause of her death has not been announced. An autopsy was conducted Wednesday.

Miss Carter was in Jacksonville to visit friends, authorities said.

Sees Charge Of Murder

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A murder charge was filed Thursday against Jeffrey Kellum, 19, in the death of a young Virginia woman who died four days after she was found badly beaten and raped.

Kellum, 19, of Route 5, Jacksonville, was held without bond in the death of Crystal Carter, 22, of Virginia Beach. Miss Carter died Wednesday in a Greenville hospital.

Sheriff Billy Woodward said Miss Carter was found partially nude and barely conscious Monday afternoon by two men who had gone to a secluded area off Gum Branch Road to practice shooting.

Bruises on her face and cuts on the back of her head indicated that Miss Carter had survived two days in the woods before being found, rescue workers said.

East Names Farm Group

ROBERSONVILLE — Kenneth Roberson of Robersonville, has been named to the Farmers for East Committee, a group which John East of Greenville, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate in the November 4 election said will be a "permanent committee that I will, if elected, turn to for advice on farm issues."

East said his objective is to "insure the survival of the family farm in North Carolina — and it's no exaggeration to say that the survival of the family farm may well depend on the outcome of the November election."

"There is no issue of greater importance in North Carolina than agriculture," he noted.

Citing attacks on the tobacco Stabilization program by the Carter administration, East said his opponent in the November voting, Democratic Sen. Robert Morgan, "has done nothing to effectively challenge the Carter administration's anti-tobacco policy. I am willing to work with Sen. Jesse Helms to counter the administration's anti-tobacco policy."

East said, "for example, the administration's callous ruling to permit foreign countries to disguise quality tobacco as 'scrap' and dump it on the American market at cut-rate tariffs has cost farmers millions of dollars in lost sales."

As a senator, East said, "I will work to see that government begins to cooperate with farmers to solve their problems. That is the kind of agricultural policy that will revive our economy and preserve the family farm."

Opening lead: Six of ♦.

Would you like to become a bridge columnist? Certain analytical powers are a prerequisite, so study the diagram above, then decide whether you would rather play or defend six spades with a trump lead.

The bidding is typical of what happens when someone preempts—but neither North nor South can be faulted! Nevertheless, North-South could consider themselves lucky; left to their own devices, they would have realized that they had only a 4-3 spade fit and would undoubtedly have ended up in six no trump, a contract which, as the cards lie, stands no chance at all.

Not that six spades is a bargain. You choose to defend, naturally. Declarer wins the trump in dummy and leads a club to the jack and West's queen. West continues with a second trump. This time declarer wins in hand and ruffs a club with dummy's king of trumps. What does East discard?

If East lets go a heart, dummy's fourth heart will become the twelfth trick—dummy's two low diamonds will be discarded when declarer draws trumps. And if East discards a diamond, dummy's diamonds are all good.

So you happily plop yourself down in the South chair, but wait a moment—it is too early to decide that you would rather declare six spades. Have you considered what happens if, on the club ruff in dummy, East "discards" a low trump, a card for which he has absolutely no use?

Now East is in the happy position of discarding after dummy when declarer cashes his two remaining trumps. If dummy sheds two diamonds, East can afford to spare a diamond. If dummy parts with a heart, East has no need for his fourth heart.

Naturally, you chose to defend, didn't you?

Guilty Plea Is Drug Sales

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Onslow County men pleaded guilty Thursday to charges accusing them of selling 50,000 diazepam tablets to undercover agents in June. Superior Court Judge John R. Jolley Jr. ordered five-year prison sentences and $5,000 fines for Harvey Linwood Taylor, 40, of Sharpsburg and Nelson Nash Riggs, 41, of Pollocksville. Jolley allowed the men to wait until Nov. 14 before beginning the prison sentences. They will be eligible for parole consideration immediately.

Realtors Plan Rides To Polls

The Make America Better Committee of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors will provide transportation to the polls on election day for voters who have no way to get to the voting booth.

Louise Hodge, chairman of the committee, said anyone wanting transportation is to call his local realtor and give his name, address, precinct number and the time he wishes to vote.

She added that voters who are not familiar with a particular realtor may contact the board office by calling 756-4211 or 756-5395, and the board will relay the information to a realtor who will provide transportation.

Mrs. Hodge said only a few used the offered service last year, but because of the interest in national elections, the committee expects more people to use the service. "We urge them to call us, we want to help them," she commented.

Real Sportscaster A Joy To Listeners

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Somewhere, hidden beneath thick layers of specious babble, pseudo-analysis and shameless promotional exploitation, there was a World Series on NBC recently. Wasn't there?

Announcing the games for NBC were two former ballplayers, Tony Kubek and Joe Garagiola, and a former umpire, Ron Luciano. Helping them was another ballplayer, pitcher Tom Seaver. Helping him was another ballplayer, pitcher Paul Moskau.

Helping viewers was the nearest radio, on which Vin Scully — not a former ballplayer, or even a current ballplayer, but a genuine, honest-to-goodness sportscaster — was calling the game for CBS Radio.

Oh, Vinny, thank you for that clear voice, for that removed-yet-interested style. Thank you for that God-granted inflection that separates the standard baseball occurrence from the good, the good from the rare. Thank you, Mr. Scully, for sparing the superlatives.

What lapse of sense prompted the rise of the ballplayer-sportscaster? Was it the thought that former jocks would lend some special perspective, perhaps even spill a little locker-room insight? There's a thought that belongs in the Wrongo Notion Hall of Fame.

The average fan in the bleachers has a better built-in gauge of baseball than any former ballplayer. Through shrunken vocabulary or chronic fraternalism, Kubek, Garagiola & Co. are incapable of allowing a routine play its mediocrity.

In last Sunday's fifth game, Kubek slipped over the edge. Kansas City second baseman Frank White, who by grace of the announcers' poverty of imagination had made a series of "great" plays, tried and failed to nab a Philly runner. The effort sent Kubek skyward.

"The amazing thing is," Tony gushed, "Frank White almost made ANOTHER great play!"

It was Tony, too, who told us that George Brett has been just "outstanding with men on base." Unfortunately, NBC's director chose just that moment to slip a graphic on the screen indicating that Brett was hitting a meager .167 with men on base. Indeed, George proceeded to ground out.

Garagiola is the company shill. It is his job to pretend that he can't wait to see some of that garbage that he's constantly interrupting the game to promote. In Game 5, with the tying run in scoring position with two outs, Joe reckoned it was a good time to talk about NBC's third rerun of "The Outlaw Josey Wales."

Tom Seaver ("Tommy," as he was called by his broadcasting buddies) has earned the reputation as one of the best ballplayers—"color-men," perhaps because he can speak without shouting. But Tom, so terrific a ballplayer, is as bad as the others. It was Tom who uttered the first "There's no tomorrow" during the final game. When Philly catcher Bob Boone singled in a run off of a good Paul Spletter pitch, Tom knee-jerked, "Another mistake by Paul Spletter!"

What mistake? It was a fine pitch, down and dropping, that Boone hit off the end of his bat. Tom quickly came back with, "Actually, it wasn't that bad a pitch."

You could cut through this stuff by watching NBC and listening to CBS. But then you might not have known why all those ladies were on your screen where the World Series was supposed to be. See, NBC taped a special segment for Thursday's "Games People Play," a tug-of-war between the Phillis wives and Royals wives. Such a contest has no inherent merit, so NBC used the Series to build interest. We got to see Mike Schmidt's wife, Ron Reed's wife and Tug McGraw's wife, Phyllis. She was a favorite.

Who do you think will win, Mrs. McGraw? "Oh, I don't like to predict," she tells us. "I like to take it one day at a time..." By the end of Sunday's game, Phyllis McGraw was a star. NBC even offered a shot of the famous Phyllis hands, tightly clasped.

"Absolutely praying," Garagiola reverently observed. When Tug McGraw got the final out Sunday, NBC zoomed to a shot of Phyllis. Why? Because, as Joe explained a thousand times, "We taped a tug-of-war between the wives of the Phillis and the wives of the Royals. I'm telling you, you're going to enjoy it. I'm not gonna tell you who won, but it was quite a battle." Oh, please tell, Joe.

You may now quit feeling sorry for NBC because it lost the Moscow Olympics and that great chance for on-air promotions. They made up it in this World Series.

It will be two years before NBC does another World Series. Pray that by then that the network will have learned this one, simple truth about our beloved national game: Baseball requires ballplayers to play it, broadcasters to say it.

The six were introduced Thursday by Jean Doumanian, the new producer of the late night comedy program, who promised a show "at least as good as the old one." The program begins its sixth season at 11:30 p.m. EST on Nov. 15.

Five performers, Jane Curtin, Garrett Morris, Laraine Newman, Gilda Radner and Bill Murray, quit the show after last season.

Ms. Doumanian said the new members of the cast are Ann Riskey, who has appeared in "Annie Hall," "Manhattan" and "Stardust Memories;" all Woody Allen films; Denny Dillon, who has appeared on Broadway; Charles Rocket; Joe Piscopo; Gail Matthius; and Gilbert Gottfried.

Actors Strike Officially Over With Ratification

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The longest actors' strike in Hollywood history is officially over following the Screen Actors Guild's overwhelming ratification of a three-year contract.

The total vote in the union's mail-in balloting showed 18,577 in favor of the contract and 3,697 against, SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner announced Thursday.

She said the number of returns set a new record in balloting by the 45,000-member union.

SAG's sister union, the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists, whose members appear in videotaped productions, approved the contract last week.

Although the vote put the official stamp of approval on the back-to-work process, most actors — particularly those in TV shows — had already returned to their jobs under an interim authorization that took effect Oct. 5.

The voting was preceded by considerable rank-and-file debate over controversial home video provisions of the contract, which was hammered out Sept. 25 after months of talks with representatives of the Motion Picture Industry Negotiating Committee.

The strike began July 21 and stretched through 11 weeks of traditional peak production time for the fall TV season. Many of the new fall shows had to be delayed, including Lorimar Productions' long-awaited "Who shot J.R.," episodes of CBS-TV's "Dallas."

Tens of thousands of people — not only crew members but workers dependent on the Hollywood trade, from caterers to gardeners to animal wranglers — were thrown out of work as the $40-million-a-week film and TV industry shut down.

The new contract gives the actors a 32.25 percent increase in minimum pay — previously $225 a day and $785 a week — after three years and for the first time allows actors a share in revenues from programming made for the fledgling home video market.

The actors will receive 4.5 percent of the gross sales for pay TV programs after the shows are broadcast 10 days in a year's time, and the same percentage of the producers' gross from the sale of videocassettes and videodiscs after a sale of 100,000 units combined.

SAG and AFTRA had originally sought 12 percent of the gross after producers recouped a percentage of costs based upon the number of actors they employed on a program. Many actors said their negotiators had settled for too little.

The actors also received up to 37 percent increases in prime-time reruns, a dental plan and a 0.5 percent boost in pension, health and welfare contributions by producers.

Still on strike are studio musicians who play scores for films and TV shows. The American Federation of Musicians, whose members have been picketing all major film studios, is to resume negotiations with producers next Monday.

The musicians went on strike July 31, the day their old contract expired and talks broke down over their bid for rerun payments for filmed TV shows.

Both Sides Talking In Opera Walkout

NEW YORK (AP)—Negotiations aimed at salvaging at least part of the 97th season of the Metropolitan Opera recessed early today with negotiators saying only, "We're still talking."

The talks at an undisclosed site, conducted under a strict news blackout, recessed at 2 a.m. and were resuming at 2 p.m. today, according to Rosemary LeBoeuf, a staff mediator of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The dispute between the opera company and its orchestra led to a cancellation notice for the whole season, which had been scheduled from Sept. 22 to April 18.

Before the shutdown, management had estimated a belated opening would require two weeks' preparation. But more time might be needed now, since some opera stars have made commitments to appear elsewhere and many other performers and craft employees have scattered in search of work.

The key issue is the orchestra's demand for a four-day performance week rather than a five-day week.

The Met said the cost of such a week, if applied to all

1,900 Met employees in 19 unions, prompted it to cancel its season rather than incur rehearsal expenses without assurances that it could offer a full season of performances.

Tries Riding A Mechanical Bull

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor LeVar Burton bucked his luck in his first attempt to ride a mechanical bull, but was a little more successful the second time around.

Burton, the star of the television miniseries "Roots," was resplendent in snakeskin cowboy boots Thursday as he chatted briefly with champion bull rider Larry Mahan before mounting "Buck 'n' Bull," a new model being introduced by F.W. & Associates of Phoenix, Ariz.

Seconds later, Burton was sprawled out on the pavement. Mahan then adjusted the settings on the machine to "tame" the bull and Burton rode triumphant.

Mechanical bulls, popularized by the John Travolta movie "Urban Cowboy," are devices that rock back and forth at varying speeds and test the rider's ability to hold on.
