Carter, Reagan Face-To-Face Tonight

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
CLEVELAND (AP) — President Carter and Ronald Reagan campaign face-to-face, at last, tonight.

It's 90 minutes, Democratic president versus Republican challenger, for the debating championship of a campaign shadowed at the end as at the outset by the uncertain fate of the American hostages in Iran.

In a close contest for the White House, with just one week to go before Election Day, the nationally televised and broadcast debate could make or break a president.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll showed Reagan narrowly ahead in the current preferences of likely voters — but with 25 percent still undecided, and about as many saying the Cleveland debate will be a major factor in their final decisions.

The survey showed Reagan preferred by 42 percent of likely voters, Carter by 36 percent, independent John B. Anderson by 10 percent, the rest scattered or uncertain. But the poll indicated that millions of Americans have made only tentative decisions on how to cast their ballots. The margin of error was 3 percent.

Anderson, who protested bitterly and futilely when he was dropped from the debate roster, is staging his own rebuttal in Washington. He is to answer the same questions the major party candidates get in a show to be televised by Cable News Network that will include, too, the Carter-Reagan debate.

In a race so close, with the hour of decision so close, the two candidates in the real debate may well prove to be cautious, repeating familiar campaign themes, wary of the slip or the misstatement that could cost votes.

Carter campaigned his way to Cleveland and said he was ready for Reagan. The president was spending the day in his hotel, across the street from the ornate, 900-seat Music Hall debate scene, at his last-minute studies and rehearsals.

Reagan did his studying at home, at his rented estate in Middleburg, Va., before coming to the bunting-draped debate city to appear briefly at a downtown rally, then wait out the final hours until the 9:30 p.m. EST confrontation.

Four panelists were to question the candidates, whose aides tried to anticipate topics and questions, and put them to the debaters in private rehearsals.

Television commentator Howard K. Smith serves as moderator — as he did when John F. Kennedy and Richard M. Nixon met 20 years ago in the first of the televised presidential campaign debates.

"I feel good ... I'll be ready," Carter said as he arrived in Cleveland on Monday. He came by way of Huntington, W.Va., and a campaign stop at which he accused Reagan of shifting positions. "He has flip-flopped, depending on which audience he's facing," Carter said.

The president said he doesn't know "which Ronald Reagan I'm going to face" in the debate.

Reagan conferred Monday with former President Gerald R. Ford, a veteran of three debates with Carter in his losing campaign four years ago. He said he told Reagan "to anticipate some show of Carter meanness."

"For example, I remember a finger-pointing episode ... he made a big show of it," Ford said. That would have been when Carter was declaring that Ford should be ashamed of his administration's economic record.

Ford said he advised Reagan to hammer at Carter's handling of the economy. "No president has had to defend such bad economic news since the days of the Depression," he said.

Reagan and Ford also discussed the hostage situation. The Iranian Parliament failed to reach any decision Monday on the fate of the 52 Americans taken captive one week short of a year ago. The question is to be taken up again on Wednesday.

In Washington, administration officials said there was no basis for predicting the imminent release of the hostages. Carter said he had no new word on the situation.

"The general feeling in Teheran is that the decision will not have a relationship to the American presidential election," said State Department spokesman John H. Trattner.

Raps U.S. Sideline Role

Khomeini Rejects Peace Talks

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said today that "peace is not acceptable" with Iraq because of the "crimes committed" against Iran in the Persian Gulf war.

The Iranian leader also lashed out at President Carter, saying "Which war has Mr. Carter gone to? He is sitting in the White House" while Iranians were being killed in battle.

The speech, broadcast by Tehran Radio, made no mention of the American hostages.

Addressing himself to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Khomeini said, "you have killed so many Moslems and done so much crime that (it) is incomparable in history. How can you expect our (president) to have a session with you and discussions and say the Shatt al-Arab (waterway) is yours? Leave us alone."

"Which war front has Mr. Saddam (Hussein) gone to? Maybe he is afraid" that his army would rise up against him.

"What was your reason for doing all these (crimes) that now you go here and there seeking peace?" Khomeini asked. "How can we accept peace? Peace with whom?"

Khomeini vowed Iran would continue to fight "even if we get killed or hurt or suffer trouble. We do not have any peaceful way with them (Iraq)."

Nevertheless, Khomeini said Iran might relent on its no-compromise position if Hussein "stops this, if he takes his hand off the Iraqi people or if he repents and says, 'I have become a Moslem.'"

"We have given away so many martyrs (people killed in the war), now we should sit at the same table and talk?" Khomeini added. "This is a religious issue. It is not what we want, it is an Islamic issue."

Khomeini's rejection of direct negotiations with the Iraqis came as 94 non-aligned nations discussed peace strategy to halt the war. A seven-man mediation mission is to visit Baghdad and Tehran soon to seek a ceasefire.

Iraq said its tanks made new assaults today on the northern and eastern approaches to besieged Abadan and said Iran's oil refining center was a "dying city."

Iran said Abadan's defenders prevented the Iraqis from crossing the two river bridges on the main highways into the city on the Iranian coast of the Shatt al-Arab estuary.

Both Iranian and Iraqi communiques reported fierce fighting at the Karun River bridge on the southern edge of Iran's port city of Khorramshahr, nine miles northwest of Abadan, and at the Bahmanshir River bridge on the eastern outskirts of Abadan.

Iraq claimed its forces overran Khorramshahr, the other major Iranian city on the waterway, last Friday, but Iran has admitted the loss of only parts of it so far.

Tehran Radio reported that Iranian "popular forces" including revolutionary guards, navy rangers, police and army cadets stationed on the eastern end of a bridge linking Khorramshahr and Abadan had prevented Iraqi forces from crossing it. The radio said the Iraqis were "trying hard" to prevent the Iraqis from taking over the small eastern sector of the city.

Baghdad Radio said the conquest of the two bridges was essential for a final onslaught on Abadan to "liberate the whole of Shatt al-Arab," Iraq's and southwest Iran's water route to the Persian Gulf.

As the stalemate continued at Abadan, Iran revealed earlier that the Iraqis advanced past the besieged city and extended their control of the Shatt al-Arab coast. An Iranian communique said Iranian jets on Monday attacked Iraqi tank columns and artillery batteries near Khosrowabad, 15 miles southeast of Abadan.

Apparently part of the Iraqi force that encircled Abadan to the east last week and cut off its last supply routes continued on down the coast and was only about 15 miles from the Persian Gulf.

Iraq ceded the eastern half of the waterway to Iran in 1975 but is now fighting to get it back.

Other war communiques reported mostly aerial activity.

Pitt County Registers Drop In Unemployment

Pitt Employment Security Commission manager James Hannan reported a drop in the unemployment rate had been registered for the county.

For Pitt County, the September unemployment rate was 5.7 percent — .9 of a percentage point lower than the state average, and 1.4 percent lower than the national average. This local level, however, is 1.3 percent higher than the Pitt County unemployment rate of 4.4 percent in September, 1979.

Hannan noted the September unemployment percentage represents a steady improvement over the preceding two months — for July it was 7.7 percent and for August the figure was 6.3 percent.

Hannan also reports that the number of initial unemployment insurance claims registered locally have taken a climb — from 448 in August to a total of 689 in September.

The state's economy continued to recover in September as unemployment dropped to 6.6 percent, the lowest level since May this year, according to figures released by the state Employment Security Commission.

The unemployment rate dropped 4 of a percentage point from the North Carolina August rate to remain below the national unadjusted rate which was 7.1 percent in September. In comparison, North Carolina had an unemployment rate of 4.8 percent in September, 1979.

Another favorable indicator is that for the second straight month the average work week of production workers in manufacturing industries rose. The rate rose from an average of 38.7 hours per week in August to a 39.3 average in September.

The most significant shift in employment was a 12.1 percent increase in government employment, representing 43,900 workers — as school-related personnel returned to work.

Midwest Is Hit By Snowfall

By The Associated Press

One man was killed in Colorado, schools were closed in Nebraska and political campaigning slowed to a crawl in Iowa as a record-breaking snowstorm swept through parts of the upper Midwest, leaving thousands without electricity.

Seven inches of snow fell Monday on Des Moines. In Nebraska, up to 9 inches blanketed roads and shut down schools. Up to 6 inches of snow left a blanket of slush on Colorado highways.

Snow and poor visibility were blamed for the crash of a single-engine plane southwest of Grand Junction, Colo., on Sunday. The plane and the body of Greg Perry, 25, of Grand Junction, were discovered Monday in a snowy canyon.

Iowa's storm made the campaign trail perilous for several politicians, including Republican vice presidential candidate George Bush.

Bush was delayed more than three hours by a snowstorm in the Cedar Rapids area, and a rally there fizzled without his presence.

Republican U.S. Senate hopeful Charles Grassley canceled several campaign stops, and Republican congressional candidate Cal Hultman was sidelined when his campaign car slid off an icy road into a ditch north of Cumberland. Hultman was not injured.

Thirty Freed By Cuba Glad To Get Home

MIAMI (AP) — Thirty Americans released from Cuban jails — after up to 11½ years of captivity — were home at last today, and even the five who returned to the arms of the law were glad to be back in the United States.

"The (U.S.) jails will look like a country club, a paradise" compared to Cuban prisons, said Melvin Cale of Detroit, who faces hijacking charges along with three others who arrived Monday to the cheers of a flag-waving crowd. A fifth man was held as a parole violator.

About 200 relatives, friends and supporters — some wearing yellow ribbons — cheered as the chartered Boeing 737 touched down at suburban Tamiami Airport after the flight from Cuba.

Energy Audits To Be Offered

The architectural drafting technology department of Pitt Community College will be cooperating with the energy office of the Greenville Utilities Commission in conducting home energy audits as a public service.

The audits will be initiated during the month of November at which time the PCC students will analyze and measure about 200 homes. The home owners then will be advised how to better conserve energy, eliminate heat losses and calculate payback periods. The student inspectors will check insulation, pipes, windows, doors, wattage, hot water heaters, furnaces and fireplaces. The owner will also be instructed how to read their own electric meters.

Home owners who wish to have their property inspected may sign up for this service at the Energy Fair to be held at the Willis Building October 31 and November 1.

Edwin F. Martin, Jr., chairman of the PCC architectural drafting department, said this student involvement will constitute a good learning experience.

"Architects are concerned with energy efficient buildings and architectural technicians must understand energy conservation methods and building codes which apply to energy conservation," said Martin.

"Phil Morin, Greenville energy project coordinator, will supervise the students during the audit," he added. "These students will work (Please turn to Page 8)

LWV Completes Position Study

A study to determine the number of women who have served during the past 10 years in elective and appointive government positions throughout Pitt County, including those in Greenville and other Pitt County towns, has been completed by the League of Women Voters of Greenville/Pitt County.

The League's Local Government Committee, chaired by Ruth Trevathan, conducted the study during the past league year.

In county government, there are 57 persons serving in elective positions in the 10 townships and the board of county commissioners. Of these, 55 are men, and two are women. In two of the 10 townships, Bethel and Winterville, no woman has ever run for an elective office.

During the last 10 years a total of 13 women have run, two more than one time, for elected positions in the other nine townships and the county board of commissioners. Of the 13 who have run, five have been elected.

In Greenville, there is one woman serving on the City Council of seven elected members. Four women are serving on the nine-member school board. During the last 10 years, 14 women have run, two more than one time, for elective office, with a total of five women elected.

There are 213 persons serving on various appointive boards and commissions in the county and its townships. Forth-five are women. During the past 10 years, a total of 65 women have been appointed to these boards and commissions.

In Greenville, 136 persons are serving on appointive boards and commissions. Thirty-three of these are women. During the past 10 years, 63 women have been appointed to these city boards and commissions.

Trevathan said it is clear from these data that the percentage of women who serve in either elective or appointive positions is not and has not been proportionate to the percentage of women registered to vote in Pitt County. As of October, 1979, women voters outnumbered men 16,521 to 13,788. The total registration as of Oct. 23, 1980 was 35,147. Of this number, 19,069 are women and 16,055 are men, she said.

Break-In Arrest Made

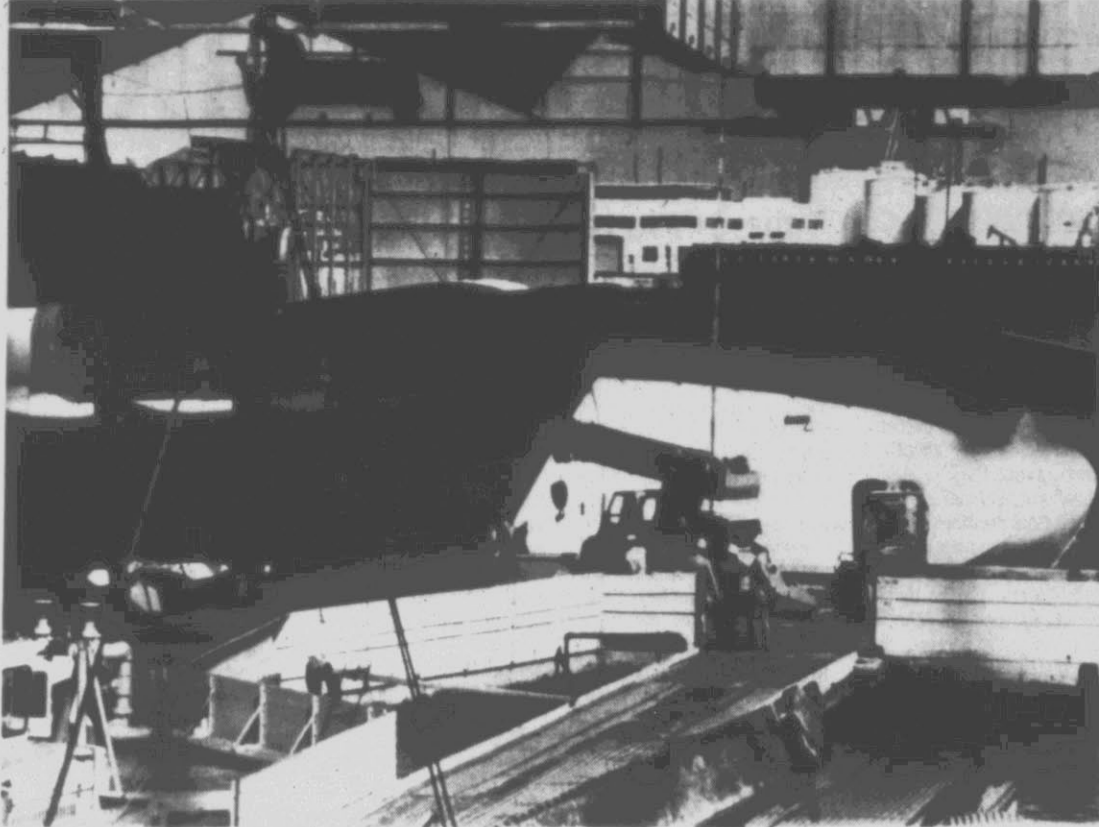

A Rt. 1, Vanceboro man was arrested Saturday by Pitt County authorities and charged in connection with an Oct. 22 break-in at White Concrete Co. on Highway 258 South near Farmville.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Floyd Collins Williams was charged following his arrest with breaking, entering and larceny and also possession of stolen property.

The sheriff said that White Concrete reported that cash and personal property amounting to $125 was taken from the office area of the facility. In addition to $25 in currency, the company told deputies that a radio, car battery, portable cassette recorder, stamps and personalized checks were taken in the incident.

Entrance was gained after a window was broken in a bathroom, Sheriff Tyson said.

Bond for Williams was set at $15,000, with a hearing scheduled for Nov. 4 in Greenville.

Judge Agrees To Rule On One Garwood Juror

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A military judge will rule next week on whether he will remove one of the jurors chosen for the court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, the Indiana native charged with desertion and collaboration with the enemy in Vietnam.

The trial phase of Garwood's court-martial is scheduled to begin Nov. 6, climaxing several months of pretrial hearings to determine the validity of the charges against him, witnesses to be called, numerous legal technicalities and finally jury selection.

Col. R.E. Switzer, the Marine judge who will preside over the court-martial, said Monday he will rule Nov. 5 on a defense request calling for the removal of Marine Col. Kenneth Millice from the panel of six jurors.

Defense attorney John Lowe called for Millice's removal after Switzer questioned the jurors to determine whether they had been prejudiced against Garwood by publicity dealing with unrelated civilian charges that he assaulted a 7-year-old girl.

Lowe said he was not satisfied with Millice's response.

"Can you look at Pfc. Garwood here today and tell him you will totally disregard any impression you have?" Switzer asked Millice.

"I think I can," Millice replied.

Lowe argued that the assurance was not positive enough to allow Millice to continue as a juror.

A substitute juror would not be required if Millice is removed. Under military law a jury in a general court-martial must have only five members.

Two other jurors also acknowledged hearing or reading about the civilian charges filed against Garwood in nearby Jacksonville early in September. But they told Switzer they would not be prejudiced by the information.

Garwood is being court-martialed for offenses that allegedly occurred during the 14 years he was listed as missing in Vietnam. He is accused of acting as a guard and interpreter for the North Vietnamese, carrying a weapon and going on patrol with Communists guerrillas and with trying to entice other Americans to surrender.

Farmville Sees Strong Prices

FARMVILLE — Prices Monday were stronger on the Farmville Tobacco Market than on last Thursday. More quality tobacco and less nondescript grades accounted for an average that exceeded the last sale day by approximately $4 per hundred pounds.

Several sheets of quality cutters and leaf grades sold for as much as $1.95 per pound, and were company purchases. More cutters were on the floors yesterday than in the past few weeks. Stabilization receipts accounted for 4.30 percent of gross sales.

The market sold 689,166 pounds yesterday for $1,115,375 and an average of $161.84. To date, the market has sold 29,453,790 pounds. Money is $44,619,614 for a season average of $151.49 per hundred pounds.

Student Nurse Week Planned

The week of Oct. 27-31 has been designated as National Student Nurses' Week. Both Pitt Community College and East Carolina University chapters of the Student Nurses Association (SNA) have planned a variety of activities for the week.

SNA, a national organization, was organized in 1953 and its chief purpose is to aid in the development of the individual student and promote contributions to the improvement of health care. The association functions in the community by acting to improve health care and recruiting future nurses.

Agree To Erect Hatteras Jetty

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — The National Park Service agreed Monday to erect a $60,000 jetty between the century-old Cape Hatteras Lighthouse and the Atlantic Ocean in a stopgap measure to protect the 190-foot structure from erosion.

A weekend storm whipped ocean waves into the beach at Cape Hatteras, causing heavy erosion that left only 70 feet of sand between the historic lighthouse and the water.

William A. Harris, superintendent of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, said work on the jetty begin Friday and should be completed before mid-November.

Repair crews hauled chunks of asphalt and concrete to the lighthouse during the weekend, filling in areas around the structure's foundation.

Harris said the park service would decide later what permanent measures — if any — would be taken to protect the lighthouse, which is listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

The lighthouse is the tallest in the United States.

The park service has followed a policy of not attempting to interfere with natural occurrences along the shoreline. That is one of the proposals before the service now, along with proposals to move the lighthouse to another, safer site or building a permanent protective barrier.

Some researchers have predicted the ocean will reach the lighthouse within two years if nothing is done.

Jim Howard, a spokesman for the park service's regional office in Atlanta, described the erosion threat as a classic conflict pitting the need to protect historic resources and the need to let nature take its course.

He said that, in the case of the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse, the park service would review the cost of saving it compared to the benefits before making a decision.

Howard said a report outlining the alternatives is scheduled to be released in the next few weeks and a decision on the lighthouse's future will be made early next year.

Doctors' Pockets Not As Full As Their Books

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As a physician, I know this problem is a genuine source of concern to almost every physician.

It may come as a surprise to many, but all doctors are not rich! Far from it. We have house and car payments to make, children to raise, and business expenses just like anyone else trying to make a living. Add to that the exorbitant premiums for malpractice insurance.

People wouldn't think of going to the grocery store, filling station or beauty parlor without cash, a check or credit card. But they come to their doctor's office and say, "Bill me," or, "My insurance company will take care of it."

Abby, some insurance companies wait 60 to 90 days (and longer) to pay a bill — assuming it's covered — and sometimes it's not covered!

Unfortunately, the doctor has to pay his rent, office help and family expenses within 30 days. If after three or four months the doctor hasn't received a dime from the patient or his insurance company, it's customary for his office to phone the patient and request payment, whereupon the patient usually becomes highly indignant! This person would probably froth at the mouth should his paycheck be held up for one day! Yet, that's what the doctor's bill is — his paycheck.

It's unfair that the doctor is usually the last one to be paid, and sometimes he's not paid at all! Sign me

AN M.D. WITH $35,000 ON THE BOOKS

DEAR M.D.: I'm using your letter as a reminder to those who owe their physicians — and their dentists, too!

DEAR ABBY: I have recently become engaged to a man whom I have dated for two years. We set the wedding date and plan to buy a home. He owns two cars.

Now he tells me that everything will be in HIS name only for the first five years of our marriage — in case it doesn't work out.

I feel that he doesn't trust me, and that our marriage will be on a trial basis. He is 35 and has lived with his parents all this time.

I love him very much, but I'm confused.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: If you can "love . . . very much" a man who insists on a pre-marriage contract on HIS possessions, lots of luck. The marriage ceremony is silent on "trials." The vows imply "trust," but your intended wants to hedge. Back off.

DEAR ABBY: Although we were outnumbered, I was on your side of the controversy over whether the gracious hostess asks her guests if they want refreshments, or if she "gets up off her bottom" and serves something.

I am a Finn, and a hospitable Finnish hostess automatically serves refreshments without taking a survey. If a guest does not care for refreshments but takes a token sip of tea and nibbles at a cookie, the gracious hostess says nothing. She certainly does not attempt to "sell" her refreshments. Nor does she say, as most Americans say, "It's not very fattening, if that's what's worrying you." Neither does she say, "Just taste it. I went to all the trouble of making it." And worst of all she never says, "If you don't eat it, I'll have to throw it out!"

DEAR PAT: I have a beautiful knit suit which is much too long for today's fashions — otherwise it looks very much like some quite expensive suits I saw in a fashionable boutique. I tried turning up a hem, but it looked bulky and amateurish. Can you tell me how to salvage the skirt? The boutique prices were mind-boggling so I will feel elegant wearing it. — SALLY J., DENVER, COLO.

I am assuming, Sally, that yours is a handknit and, if so, you can easily shorten it with no one being the wiser.

Let's suppose that the skirt is four inches too long. Open the side seams five inches above the lower edge. At this point, cut a stitch at one side edge and then cut a stitch at the other edge — on the same row. Next, pull the yarn out of the stitches that formed that row. You will now have a row of stitches which you can place on a knitting needle, ready for a border to be worked. By cutting the skirt off one inch shorter than necessary, you have an allowance for a one-inch border. If a wider border is desired, just cut off more.

Ribbing, garter stitch or seed stitch are good border choices. If you prefer a hem to a border, cut the skirt off at the exact desired finished length, slip stitches to a knitting needle and work a row of reversed stockinette stitch to form a turning ridge. To work reversed stockinette, purl a row on the right side or knit a row on the wrong side. The resulting ridge gives a sharp turning edge for the hem.

After the turning ridge is worked, work the hem in stockinette stitch for the desired length. Bind off very loosely and blind-stitch in place.

If you would prefer a crocheted edging, cut the skirt just slightly shorter than desired finished length. Slip the first two raveled stitches onto a crochet hook and pull the stitch nearest the hook through the other stitch, thus binding off one stitch. Slip the next raveled stitch onto the hook and bind off one more. Repeat this step across row. Then, working into the bound-off edge, work two or three rows of single crochet for the finished edge.

Whichever finishing method you choose, you will be using the yarn cut off from the bottom of the skirt. When you ravel the yarn it will be heavily "crinkled." To smooth it out, wrap the raveled yarn around a large book or a shoe box. Slip the yarn off and tie it in two or three places. Dip the yarn in cool water, squeeze out excess moisture and then hang it to dry over your shower head.

Usually the weight of the wet yarn as it hangs will pull out the crinkles.

Because of the large volume of mail she receives, Pat is unable to answer your letters personally. However, she welcomes all questions and hints and will use those of general interest in the column whenever possible.

No Answers As Yet

Inflation was in the news once again last week. The final government report before the November election showed an inflation rate of one percent for the month of September. On an annual basis the rate would be 12.7 percent compared with last year's 13.3 percent. It represented some speeding up in inflationary forces since the rate from January through September was running at 12.1 percent. For September, the inflationary rate was blamed on higher food prices, rather than fuel prices as in the past.

The food price rise was not unexpected, given poor crops this year and the inflationary costs of farming catching up. What's more food prices are expected to continue to climb in the months ahead. The inflation information may have political implications; yet no one really seems to have the answers as to how to slow it down. Clearly more stable energy prices would help, and an end to the inflation psychology is needed. Somehow we don't think the Nov. 4 election is going to solve these problems.

No Soviet Policy Change

Alexei N. Kosygin has resigned as premier of the Soviet Union due to ill health. He was immediately replaced by his first deputy, Nikolai Tikhonov. Almost certainly there will be little change in Soviet foreign policies. President Leonid I. Brezhnev remains and Tikhonov was a trusted deputy.

Merit Pay Policy

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The subject which can get public employees riled quicker than any other is merit pay. The notion that one individual doing the same job for the same period of time could get more pay than his colleagues waves a number of red flags: politics, personalities, nepotism. But at least one local government in North Carolina has implemented a merit pay program and finds it working quite well. Some others are just beginning to investigate the matter, including Robeson County. And studies are underway to devise a workable merit pay plan for public school teachers; action which would likely spill over into other areas of state government should it come to pass.

line with those paid in private industry, a factor often overlooked when governments set salaries. The system runs counter to traditional public pay plans

BILL NOBLITT

Ed Kitchen is personnel director for the City of Greensboro which, in 1975, adopted a merit pay system which eliminated across-the-board pay hikes for all city workers, and bases pay on performance. Does it work? Kitchen explores the system in an article published by the Institute of Government at Chapel Hill in its periodical "Popular Government".

which make advancement through salary steps automatic with years of service, and grant across-the-board pay increases to all employees at one time. That method necessarily means that average or below average workers make the same as superior ones; that the worker eventually peaks and can get no more major advances; and that supervisors have no way of penalizing the individual who has reached the top and has slipped in performance.

All of which, Kitchen believes, has led to "the pervasive belief that public employees have a quasi-property right to perpetual annual salary increases."

The Greensboro plan sets up job rates which can be reached more quickly by better workers, allows them to move higher, and allows regular pay raises for those performing well. When the pay scale is periodically adjusted upward to meet inflation and changing conditions in the labor market, it does not mean the individual employee automatically gets a higher amount; only that he can if he qualifies for it.

The Rules
Some rules for administration: above standard employees are rewarded; standard workers are paid on the scale; new employees need some time to learn the job thoroughly before moving into the system; a below-standard rating calls for counseling by a supervisor and a delay in raises until performance improves — within 90 days; and frequent evaluation sessions between employee and supervisor are essential. Other Editors Say Halloween Debate

(The Raleigh Times)
By setting the Carter-Reagan debate for tonight, the League of Women Voters has foiled a much better plan we were, like good patriots, about to offer.

The League would have served voters, candidates and country far better by scheduling the debate on Halloween. This would have guaranteed the largest possible home viewing audience — approximately 225 million American adults who dare not leave home after dark on Oct. 31 because they might get tricked instead of treating if they weren't there to answer the door.

Of course any debate at all will be a welcome respite from what emanates endlessly from our TV sets in the guise of campaign coverage. Half of this drenching, debilitating spray is paid commercials, many of this year's — state and national — the most fallacious and deceptive products yet of marketing minds unencumbered by honor or morals.

The other half consists of "penetrating analysis" by professional newsmen. Unfortunately, these analysts don't spend most of their air time penetrating the real and relevant differences between Carter and Reagan.

Instead, they unveil matters like what schedule changes the campaign staffs have made today and why, or what half-truths each candidate may want to espouse before interest-group audiences in key states to counteract results of the latest poll. A debate will get closer, at least, to fundamentals.

Most Halloweeners put on masks. The candidates don't need to. They've already got them, those smooth, cosmetized, well-worn smiles and gestures and safe answers that by now fit like second skin.

The four penetrating-analyst panelists who will question Reagan and Carter, though, need to bring their masks of objectivity and courtesy — and keep them glued on. Their colleagues who queried Anderson and Reagan in that earlier debate wore fangs instead, indulging themselves disgracefully, before cameras pandering to their childish egos, in nods and headshakes, hectoring and interruptions and finger-pointing.

It is Carter and Reagan who ought to be revealing themselves and each other on Oct. 28. Maybe we'll all be better off, after a year's worth of manipulation and masks, if they finally let warts and all hang out. In any event, save this Tuesday evening.

THE UNDECIDEDS MAY DECIDE IT!

Dreadful Complacency

WASHINGTON — So the presidential elections come down toward the wire, and the broad issues remain just as they were defined three months ago: our economy at home, our peril abroad. Mr. Carter's miserable record in grappling with inflation is painfully clear. The pathetic state of our defenses is not yet wholly understood.

Now comes from the respected American Enterprise Institute a publication that spells out our defense problems with appalling clarity. "The Problem of Military Readiness," by Melvin R. Laird and Lawrence J. Korb, is must reading. Mr. Laird served as secretary of defense, 1969-73; earlier he served for 16 years in the House as a member of the subcommittee on defense. Mr. Korb is the institute's resident director of defense studies. We could not ask for two more qualified analysts.

Their measured conclusions will come as a shock even to those who have been following the recent arguments over readiness between Defense Secretary Harold Brown and his three chiefs of staff. The professional leaders of the Army, Navy and Air Force have spoken publicly of a "hollow" Army, an inadequate Navy, an ill-prepared Air Force. Mr. Brown has pooh-poohed their complaints.

The situation is far worse than even the joint chiefs have indicated. Mr. Carter alone cannot be saddled with the blame; there is plenty of blame to go around. Ten years of yielding to the pacifist clamor that arose after Vietnam have imposed a terrible price. Our ground forces are outnumbered and outgunned. "Our naval forces are in much worse shape numerically than our ground forces." In a European conflict, we could put 3,300 planes in the air; the Warsaw Pact nations have 7,500.

If war should develop, our forces within the United States would have to be moved swiftly to a battle zone. Moved in what? Our airlift is so inadequate that a mechanized division of 17,000 persons could not be transported to the Persian Gulf region in less than a month. To put 200,000 men in the area would require six months. "Sealift is in even poorer shape than airlift." Experts believe 3,000 cargo ships would be required to reinforce a war in Europe. The Navy has 37 vessels for this purpose; another 160 rest in a reserve fleet; the whole of our Merchant Marine numbers 560 ships.

The great virtue of the Laird-Korb study is that it explains in layman's language exactly how capability reports are prepared. Defense effectiveness depends upon a combination of structure (men and weapons), modernization, sustainability and readiness. In every area the picture is bleak.

Readiness, for one example, depends in part upon the level of training. The armed services have lost so many men after first or second terms of enlistment that average skills are far below acceptable levels. In last year's skilled qualification tests, 98 percent of tank repairmen failed, as did 91 percent of aviation maintenance personnel and 83 percent of transportation personnel. Among the few who scored 100 percent were three bassoon players and 16 missile mechanics.

The Marine Corps traditionally goes first in amphibious operations. But the number of combat-ready amphibious ships is declining so swiftly that "the Marines of the mid-1990s may have to go to shore in rented rowboats."

The two authors hold out little hope for early relief. Our shipbuilding program has picked up slightly. Newly enacted pay raises should help the retention rate for both officers and enlisted personnel. By 1990 an expanded airlift capability should be able to move 200,000 men to the Persian Gulf in one month instead of six. Perhaps the Soviet Union will kindly wait until we catch up.

But the Soviets show no sign of slowing down. We are building 50 tanks a month; (Continued on page 5)

Carter Sees Failing Base

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WACO, Texas — The spectacle of Jimmy Carter barnstorming through the South two weeks before the election as foe of big government and defender of the oil industry reveals that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan's victory plan is off schedule, with time running out.

The president's men are still genuinely confident that, thanks to the return of Democratic voters and hopefully a break in the Iranian hostage situation, they will be on top Nov. 4. But they privately admit they had expected to be moving well ahead by now, with undecided voters flooding to Carter. The source of the shortfall is easily identified: the president's deteriorating Southern base.

Carter this election could not rely on a solid South, as in 1976, while concentrating on big Northern industrial states. Ronald Reagan leads in four Southern states and is no worse than even in four more. As Carter campaigned in Texas, the Democratic politicians who greeted him confided that Reagan has a clear lead for this state's 26 electoral votes.

The president's Southern chickens are coming home to roost. After voting in 1976 for a fellow Southerner they believed shared their ideals, rural white Southerners feel betrayed. In Texas and Louisiana, not only big oil moguls but small royalty owners were incensed by Carter's windfall profits tax.

No politician can abruptly alter his tone more easily than Jimmy Carter. In the oil-producing states, the windfall tax whose passage he boasts of so much elsewhere goes unmentioned. It is as if Carter's greatest energy triumph had been repealed mysteriously.

In two days of oil-state campaigning, he referred to the tax just once (without the pejorative "windfall" description): his speech to an airport rally in Waco began by promising next year to "eliminate the tax on the small royalty owners of Texas and Oklahoma and Louisiana." Here, at Beaumont and in New Orleans, he congratulated himself for oil decontrol — a feat never mentioned by the president elsewhere.

The familiar theme of branding Reagan a nuclear-happy warmonger is muted in the hawkish South, where the president claimed he had restored the nation's defenses, which actually are considered by non-partisan experts to be in deplorable condition. Carter improbably took credit for the Trident missile, the air-launched cruise missile and the new battle tank and armored personnel carrier. Even more improbably, Carter declared: "Defenses were weakened under Republicans, but under Democrats we're putting (sic) our nation strong."

Everywhere, Carter stressed his credentials as a Southern conservative. "I'm from the Deep South, from Georgia," he said in Beaumont. "My philosophy in government is probably about the same as yours. I don't believe that government ought to stick its nose in the minds and hearts and jobs of people in the private enterprise system."

But two weeks from Election Day may be too late to keep Carter's Southern chickens away. The deaf ear the president turned to pleas from Texas Democratic leaders to stop scapegoating the oil industry is well-remembered. In the South especially, Democratic politicians truly dedicated to Carter's re-election are hard to find.

His campaign chairman in Louisiana, former Gov. Edwin Edwards, has assaulted Carter's energy policy and not concealed personal contempt for the president. Introducing Carter at a fundraiser in New Orleans, Edwards could not resist calling the president "a little hard-headed." The $500-a-plate dinners were there for Edwards, not Carter.

Carter's men are counting on Edwards to carry Louisiana, but insiders say he is just going through the motions to mend fences for a run at governor in 1983. The wily Sen. Russell B. Long believes Carter's organization is inadequate to carry the state, and not enough time remains to build one.

The organizational problem is even worse in Texas, where the Republican Party figures to turn out all Reagan voters. The same cannot be said for the Democrats. Although defections by local Democratic politicians are rare, so are aggressive efforts to turn out voters.

To the editor:

Ronald Reagan has implied that the "October surprise," the freeing of the hostages, is being rigged by President Carter to coincide with the last days before the election. Reagan's 70-year-old memory apparatus appears to falter if he cannot recall the many attempts made during the past year to meet with responsible Iranian officials. His observation that the release could have been effected long ago is correct if we can ignore the Ayatollah. It takes two to tango and the Ayatollah won't dance. Neither Reagan nor Carter nor even Iranian President Bani Sadar can decide when the hostages go free. The date for that happening, if it happens, will be of the Ayatollah's choosing and he has demonstrated no affection for Jimmy Carter in the past.

Fear Of Change In Brezhnev?

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The current top-level shakeup in the Kremlin suggests that 73-year-old Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev may be developing "a pathological fear of change, of being overthrown," says a leading American specialist on Soviet affairs.

Jerry F. Hough of Duke University voiced the assessment after last week's resignation of ailing Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and his replacement by Nikolai A. Tikhonov, 75, a long-time political associate of Brezhnev.

In view of this year's poor grain harvest and other economic problems, the failure to bring a younger man into the No. 2 post could undercut the Soviet leadership's legitimacy and perhaps boost the chances for protest work stoppages or other incidents, Hough said in an interview.

Other U.S. specialists on Soviet affairs differed about the implications of the Kosygin-Tikhonov changeover, but they joined Hough in expressing surprise at the move's timing and the lack of extensive public praise for Kosygin, who had been premier 16 years.

In announcing the retirement Thursday at a Soviet parliamentary session, Brezhnev said Kosygin, 76, was leaving for health reasons but voiced no praise. It was not until a day later that the official Tass news agency said Brezhnev had expressed his "cordial gratitude" for Kosygin's "big and fruitful work."

One U.S. analyst said the "rather summary fashion" in which the affair was handled could work against Western speculation that Kosygin's departure presages a system of honorable retirement for other elderly members of the ruling Communist Party Politburo.

The average age of the Politburo's 15 full members is 69.

Hough, who has done detailed research into the career patterns and complex interest groups within the Soviet elite, commented about the shakeup: "The striking thing about Tikhonov is not simply that he's 75, but that he's yet another of the boys out of Dnepropetrovsk."

This referred to the Dnepropetrovsk region of the Ukraine, where Brezhnev became head of the local party committee in 1939. Tikhonov graduated from a Dnepropetrovsk metallurgical institute in 1930 and later rose to the top ranks of the area's industrial hierarchy.

According to Hough and other U.S. analysts, Tikhonov's decades-long experience with the Soviet iron and steel industry appeared to be at odds with the expansion of light industry and consumer products stressed in a major speech by Brezhnev last week to the Communist Party Central Committee.

The Tikhonov appointment, Hough said, was "clearly an illustration of Brezhnev's power. The talk that he was weak, that Afghanistan showed he'd been defeated or something — that's just got to be wrong. ... But it seems to me also to show his bad judgment and what's becoming a pathological fear of change, of being overthrown."

Comic Play Is Martin Production

WILLIAMSTON — "I'll Get My Man," a comic play about a mild British cleric whose sister advertises for a wife for the bachelor worthy, and the cleric's nephew, a television hero series who happens at the same time to seek refuge from pursuing females in what he thought would be a place of quiet seclusion, is the opening production of the Martin Community Players dinner theater season for 1980-81.

The play will be presented tonight, Wednesday and Thursday nights in the cafeteria of the Williamston High School. Tickets are $7.00 per person for dinner and the play. Dinner serving time is 6:30 p.m., with curtain time for the play at 8 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling the Moratoc Park Arts Council, 792-6530 between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

The seven-member cast has Sam Speller and Reno Council in the roles of the cleric and the TV hero respectively. Actors in supporting roles are Lucia Peel as Mrs. Barrington-Locke, a nosy merry widow; Bob Maple as the stuffy, proper Bishop of Lax; Jan Ocamb, the looney Josephine de Brissac; Tami Bowen, a pop-rocker; and Sharif Iskander as the photographer in pursuit of a spicy story.

Morgan Confident Of Outcome

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John East, a college teacher seeking his first political office, and Robert Morgan, the Democratic incumbent battling for a second term in the U.S. Senate, approach the end of their long race with Morgan still confident he's the frontrunner.

But East, who has maintained a steady diet of 30-second television commercials since August, believes he has made inroads into Morgan's support and considers the race closer than any published polls have shown lately. "We're extremely encouraged," East said with the election a week away. "I'd say it's a dead heat race."

Morgan has predicted he will win 93 of the state's 100 counties.

His campaign leaders, while more cautious, say their polling agrees with The Charlotte Observer's survey last week that showed a slight gain by East but the Republican candidate still trailing Morgan by 20 percentage points with 15 percent undecided.

"Journalists ought to stick to journalism and let pollsters stick to polls," East said of the Charlotte results. "It's so totally out of whack with what we're finding that I find it beyond belief."

East's campaign style from the beginning has been based on raising questions about Morgan's record and painting the incumbent as an "ultraliberal" in his advertising.

He has focused his television advertising on three main issues, all of which are aimed at depicting Morgan as lacking commitment to a strong American defense and foreign policy.

They are the Panama Canal treaty, which Morgan supported in 1978 and East ridicules as a "giveaway"; foreign aid to Nicaragua, which East condemns as supporting a Marxist ruler; and the B-1 bomber, which East says Morgan voted against.

Those charges and others raised by East have rankled Morgan and Democrats. In almost every speech Morgan has rebutted them point-by-point. The canal treaty has brought peaceful relations in Latin America while protecting American interests, he contends, and the aid to Nicaragua is an effort to keep that country's new government from becoming a Soviet satellite after the United States extensively supported a dictatorship there.

On the B-1, Morgan says East and his campaign, run by the political organization of Sen. Jesse Helms, have distorted his position — so much that Morgan has shown flashes of anger on the stump and even threatened legal action.

Morgan voted for development of the new bomber on several occasions until President Carter canceled the project. He then voted to delete funding for it from the budget, says Morgan.

"What they're trying to do is put together an image of Robert Morgan as soft on communism and soft on defense, without saying one word about what they are for," Morgan said.

He has also attacked East on the money issue, noting that much of the $1.1 million East had raised by mid-October was from out of state.

Morgan charges that much of it is from "big oil," oil-company executives and oil-company political action committees who believe East will help them repeal the windfall tax on oil profits.

Morgan has pursued an intensive schedule since Congress recessed and has used TV advertising extensively. Some ads counter East's charges and point out that East, a professor at East Carolina University, has spent his career on a college campus and has no government experience.

East, who is confined to a wheelchair because of polio, has pursued a schedule more like that of a confident frontrunner than of a challenger. He has made only a modest number of campaign appearances and, while he has brought in a half-dozen Republican senators, he has often excluded the news media and public from their private receptions and dinners where money-raising is the object.

He has also spent many of his days on what his staff calls "one-on-one meetings with supporters." East describes his schedule as intensive, but Morgan charges that the GOP candidate has tried to seclude himself from questioning.

Afghan Engineer Goes Into Exile

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The chief engineer of Afghanistan's Public Works Ministry, Dr. Abdul Ali, fled to Pakistan to protest the Soviet occupation of his country.

"The Soviet advisers are in virtual control of civil administration in Afghanistan. Under these circumstances I could not continue in service and decided to quit Afghanistan and to take refuge in Pakistan," he told a news conference today.

Ali was the second high-ranking Afghan official to defect within a week. Akhtar Mohammed Paktiawal, a delegate to the UNESCO general conference in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, denounced the Soviet intervention before the conference Saturday and flew to West Germany.

Ali said since the Soviets sent some 85,000 troops into Afghanistan in December 1979 to try to put down a revolt by Moslem rebels against the communist regime, "no public works project has been implemented and the ongoing projects and the ones already completed in the past have been destroyed or are inoperative."

"Economic exploitation of Afghanistan is going on, and only those projects are being undertaken which benefit the occupying military forces," he said.

Ali cited one bridge over the Amu Darya River that he said was being used exclusively to move Soviet troops and military equipment into Afghanistan.

Paktiawal, the refugee from the UNESCO conference, applied for political asylum in West Germany Monday and was assured by the mayor of Frankfurt that the application would be processed as soon as possible, officials in Frankfurt said.

Frankfurt police said Paktiawal was placed under their protection at an undisclosed location.

Convention Is Planned For 4-H's

Pitt County 4-H leaders will have an opportunity to join other leaders across the state at a Volunteer 4-H Convention November 1-2.

The convention theme is "Sharing The Lead," according to Dale Panero, associate extension agent, 4-H.

"This convention has been planned and will be conducted by volunteer 4-H leaders who represent all districts of the state," Panero said.

Leaders will make presentations or supply demonstrations on their particular involvement in their county and/or district programs.

The highlight of the convention will be the approval of a constitution and the election of officers for a North Carolina Volunteer 4-H Leaders Association. Panero pointed out that the program also includes workshops, sharing sessions, idea fairs, displays, exhibits, a square dance and a pig picking.

The registration begins at 8 a.m. on November 1 and the convention will end at noon on Sunday. It will be held at the McKimmon Center at North Carolina State University. An $8 registration fee includes a materials packet, the luncheon and the pig picking on Saturday. Additional information and registration and lodging forms can be obtained from the Pitt County 4-H Office, 1717 W. Fifth St., Greenville, or by calling 758-1196.

Sen. Helms To Attend East Dinner

John East, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate will campaign here Thursday with a dinner at 8 p.m. at the Moose Lodge.

Sen. Jesse Helms is scheduled to attend the dinner, one of the final campaign events before Tuesday's general election.

In recent campaign stops, East has addressed what he feels are major issues in the campaign. Among them are, "the strength and stability" of the farm economy in North Carolina, and he has criticized Sen. Robert Morgan — his opponent in the November 4, balloting — and Pres. Carter, for the anti-smoking campaigns and the cut-off of tobacco production research during the present administration.

Ayden-Grifton Has Visit

Some 111 units of blood were collected during the Ayden-Grifton High School American Red Cross Bloodmobile visit Oct. 13.

More than 35 percent of those eligible to contribute did so, according to Ott Alford, Blood Committee Chairman.

"The county quota is based on four percent of the total population and, while the group of 17-year-olds and older, plus faculty and staff members represent a select group, the percentage of giving is noteworthy," Alford said.

He commended Sue Noble and the TASK Force who provided the in-school leadership during the visit and noted that 14 employees from Blue Bell Inc. of Ayden participated.

Kitchen adds that the system must remain free from political pressures or outside interference.

Says Kitchen of the impact on the work force: in January, 1975, 43 percent of all city employees were at top pay. Four years later, with merit pay in effect, only three percent of all city employees were at top pay, most were scattered through the pay plan, with the biggest cluster at or near "standard" scales.

With approximately 80 percent of all public dollars being spent for salaries and fringes, and with standard across-the-board pay increases such as the recent 10 percent state pay hike substantially eating up budget increases, public officials are taking a hard look at a better way to get better work from its people over the long run.

Open House Is Planned

RALEIGH — The National Weather Service will host an open house at its facility at the Raleigh-Durham Airport on November 8, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

A conducted tour for visitors will help explain forecasting, observing and equipment for the 1980's, and will include a view and demonstration of the new computer communications system, meteorologist in charge of the facility John R. McClain said.

In addition to the tour, satellite photographs, flood forecasting and operation of the NWS's three radio broadcast stations will be discussed.

"People are affected by weather every day," McClain said. "We believe residents that are informed about weather are likely to make the kind of weather decisions that make their lives better and safer."

The tour will begin at the Emory Air Freight facility next to the National Weather Service office, and signs will direct visitors to the old cargo building at the airport where free parking will be available.

Initiative

When America votes a week from today, most of the country's attention will focus on the race for president and other elective offices. Because of an action called initiative, citizens in several states will also vote on possible new laws the voters themselves have suggested. In states that use initiative, any person may draw up a proposed law. If enough voters sign a petition supporting it, the proposal goes to the state legislature, or to the people for a vote. The initiatives on state ballots next week include a South Dakota proposal to regulate nuclear power, and a plan in Oregon to ban leg-hold animal traps.

Spending Over $2 Million For Hunt's Re-Election

Morgan Urges Farmer Vote To Protect Crops

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

U. S. Senator Robert Morgan, speaking to a group of about 40 farmers here yesterday at noon, urged the election of Democratic Party candidates in the November 4, election to protect the nation's farm programs, including the tobacco price support system.

"I grew up on a tobacco farm," Morgan told the group, explaining that the federal farm programs is, "written in Congress for four years," and will be re-written by the 1981 Congress. He added that, "We have to vote money for it every year. If you don't have the money, you don't have a program."

"I am a supporter of the program," Morgan, who noted that President Carter, also a farmer, supports the farm program, also.

"He (Carter) has supported the appropriations every year."

However, Morgan questioned Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's support for farm programs.

Morgan said, "For 15 years, Gov. Reagan has been talking against our farm program. Only in the last 60 days has he said he's for it."

"In 1965," Morgan said, Reagan termed it a, "sin not to return farming to a free market."

"In March 1976," Reagan said he, "intended to put farmers on notice...start planning for an end to assistance in production and marketing," Morgan explained, while, in June 1980, Reagan suggested, "get the government out of the way and turn farmers loose in the free market."

According to the senator, "I have supported the farm program bill every year," the only North Carolina senator, "who has supported it every year."

Morgan emphasized, "if there's ever been a time we need it (a Democratic majority in the Senate and U.S. House of Representatives), we need it now."

Citing Republican campaign literature, Morgan said, "I've never seen such fabrications in my life."

Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor emeritus of East Carolina University, and an advisor to Gov. Jim Hunt, introduced Morgan at the meeting.

"I've known him for a third of a century," Jenkins said of Morgan, "and he's a doer. In the past several years, tobacco has become a whipping boy."

Morgan, he continued, "has been telling the other side of the story."

"Tobacco helps everyone," in North Carolina. "Whip tobacco farmers and you whip everyone."

By The Associated Press

Gov. Jim Hunt filed campaign spending reports Monday showing that he has spent more than $2.1 million dollars in his effort to become the first North Carolina governor elected to a second successive four-year term.

Hunt, who campaigned in Durham Monday, reported contributions of more than $2.2 million.

The Hunt campaign reported contributions of $808,803, of which nearly $71,000 was in loans, since the May primary. It reported expenditures since the primary of $990,292, but said $141,000 of that was invested and should be subtracted to show $849,292 in actual expenses.

In another report, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, also seeking re-election against a Republican opponent, reported spending $577,618 so far this year. But only about one-fifth of that amount has been spent on his general-election campaign.

Monday was the deadline for the financial reports, but Republicans I. Beverly Lake Jr., who is opposing Hunt, and William Cobey, the GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, did not file their accounts because of a computer problem.

The reports covered the period from May 10, four days after the spring primary, until Oct. 18.

Hunt's report listed contributions from 15 political action committees, amounting to $15,655. Among the biggest ones were $3,000 each from the Building Industry PAC and the N.C. Realtors PAC; $1,500 from Ticaro PAC, the committee of employees of a textile company in Gastonia; and $1,000 from the N.C. Medical PAC, N.C. Dental Association PAC and N.C. Mobile Home Manufacturers PAC, among others.

Green's figures reflected amounts raised by two committees, his own campaign organization and the Jimmy Green Cabinet committee. The two reported spending just over $112,000 since the primary, but spent some $465,000 on his primary campaign. He reported contributions of $23,275 from political action committees.

Monday was a relatively quiet day for the candidates. Hunt appeared before a Durham civic group to answer charges made by Lake last week that he was leading state government toward socialism. Lake, who has been suffering a throat virus, appeared unannounced at a Republican news conference saying he wanted to "show everybody I'm not dead."

Republican Senate candidate John East had no public appearances scheduled Monday, but the American Action for Constitutional Action announced in Washington that it had endorsed his candidacy as the best to support and preserve Constitutional government. Democratic incumbent Sen. Robert Morgan toured the eastern part of the state, talking about farm issues.

Lake showed up at the end of a news conference called by state Republican Party Chairman Jack Lee, telling reporters he planned to campaign in the final week before next Tuesday's election although he had not seen his schedule.

"We will be moving around the state quite a bit," Lake said.

Hunt's speech to the joint Rotary and Kiwanis clubs in Durham came exactly one week after Lake appeared before the same group.

Hunt told the clubs state government has grown by 10 percent during his administration. In the previous Republican administration the rate was 19.9 percent, he said.

"So I think we have done pretty well the last four years," Hunt said. "We have slowed down the growth of government at a time when our population is growing and our state is booming."

In Raleigh the Libertarian candidate for lieutenant governor, Craig Franklin, issued a statement pledging his support to the Equal Rights Amendment.

Meanwhile, the controversy continued over the political involvement by fundamentalist religious groups, especially the Rev. Jerry Falwell's Moral Majority. Indications Monday pointed to a possible backlash effect as a result of Moral Majority's active campaign, which has tended to back Republican candidates.

However, the group's state chairman, the Rev. Lamar Mooneyham of Durham, said Monday that he was confident Moral Majority's campaign "is going to have an effect. This is a strong Democratic state, but I think there are going to be crossover votes. I think the voters have become aware and aroused."

"I think there are going to be a lot of surprises. I think Mr. East is a very winnable choice," Mooneyham said.

Marse Grant, editor of the Biblical Recorder and a spokesman for the Baptist State Convention, said he believes the backlash from mainline churches will offset the fundamentalists drive.

"This is a compliment to the old, rugged individualism of most Tar Heels. This is not a state that easily goes to Jerry Falwell or anyone else," Grant said.

Lee and his Democratic counterpart, state party chairman Russell Walker, each took turns criticizing candidates of the other party.

Lee called his news conference to accuse Green of using a state helicopter, at state expense, to support his bid for re-election as lieutenant governor. Green's campaign manager, Ariene Pulley, denied the charge.

Walker issued a statement to point out that Morgan has held 22 news conferences since Labor Day and that a majority of East's meetings are closed to the public and reporters. He also noted that reporters have traveled with Morgan, but are not allowed to do so with East.

"This man is hiding behind a million dollar media image filled with distortions," Walker said.

Prolonged Final Arguments Seen

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A defense attorney contends photographs of a street confrontation that apparently show Klansmen and Nazis attacking communist demonstrators actually portray men defending themselves like "cornered cats and dogs."

"Have you ever seen a dog, cat or even a little bird cornered and about to be killed?" asked attorney Robert Cahoon. "He'll attack. He can't do anything else. There are times when your only defense is to attack."

Cahoon's observations came during closing arguments in the five-month-long trial of six Klansmen and Nazis charged with murder and felonious rioting as a result of the street fight last Nov. 3. Five demonstrators were killed during gunfire that broke out at a "Death to the Klan" rally sponsored by the Communist Workers Party.

Cahoon, first of the defense attorneys to give his closing argument, was scheduled to conclude his statement today. Other defense attorneys are expected to follow with statements on behalf of their clients.

The arguments are expected to take most of this week, with the case going to the jury early next week. The defense has based its case on pleas of self-defense, with the defendants testified the gunfire was preceded by stick-wielding demonstrators.

District Attorney Michael Schlosser told jurors Monday that the Klansmen and Nazis, who were members of a motorcade that drove into an assembly point for the CWP rally, were motivated by "hatred, bigotry and prejudice."

Schlosser contended that it would be an indictment of the nation's judicial system "if you let these six killers walk out of here free."

Cahoon, who represents Nazi defendant Roland Wayne Wood, 35, of Winston-Salem, described the defendants Monday as "essentially loyal, hard-working Americans who love their country and its flag."

"The defendants have sat over there and have listened to themselves described as murderers and bad people — through it all, and they have been under a lot of pressure. They have shown nothing in the world but respect for the police, the courts and the prosecuting attorneys," Cahoon said.

Lenoir Arrest Made For Pitt

Bennie Swift Mooring of Rt. 1, Lillington is in Lenoir County Jail under $13,000 bond for Pitt County following his arrest on 13 counts of forgery involving checks passed at three Pitt stores.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Mooring, alias Frankie Johnson, is charged with forging the signature of Mrs. G. S. Nichols of Rt. 1, Greenville on 13 checks made payable to Frankie Johnson.

According to the sheriff, the forgery incidents took place over a period of several months and occurred at Ballard's Supply and Grocery, Rt. 2, Farmville, Earl's Convenient Mart on Rt. 1, Greenville, and at Lila's Grocery at Bell Arthur.

The 13 checks totaled $875, Sheriff Tyson said.

A hearing will be scheduled in District Court in Greenville, he added.

Local Youth In ORAU Program

OAK RIDGE, TENN. — Greenville resident Timothy Caspar, a senior majoring in botany at Duke University, has completed a ten-week research appointment in the U.S. Department of Energy's (DOE) Student Research Participation Program.

Caspar was assigned to the Savannah River Ecology Laboratory in Aiken, S. C. and studied how microscopic growth affects the metabolism of submerged plants.

He was among 100 students from 80 college and university campuses across the nation, selected from over 260 applicants, who spent the summer in DOE's research facilities around the country.

The program is made possible by Oak Ridge Association Universities (ORAU), a not-for-profit association of 50 colleges and universities. ORAU is a major avenue through which students and faculty participated in energy research and development programs at approved DOE facilities.

Mae Ready To Go Home

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Mae West, hospitalized three months ago following an apparent stroke, is ready to leave Good Samaritan Hospital, sources say.

Hospital spokeswoman Betty Sheller refused to confirm or deny the report, but a source at the William Morris Agency who asked not to be identified said Miss West, 87, was to be released on Monday.

Miss West's agent, Jerry Martin, said he did not know whether the movie star was leaving the hospital but added he probably would not learn of her release until she was already at home.

"She has been getting stronger and stronger every day," Martin said. "She's been getting out of bed and moving around a little."

Sources also told The Associated Press that the stroke left Miss West's speech impaired, but neither the hospital nor the agency would elaborate on her condition.

Miss West launched her career in the 1920s and is widely remembered as the blonde bombshell with the throaty "Come up and see me sometime" voice. She starred most recently in the 1978 film comedy "Sextette," as a leading lady on her sixth honeymoon.

Arrest Made After Break-In

Greenville police, early Sunday morning, arrested Michael Arthur Martin, 25 of Bethel, on breaking, entering and larceny charges after he allegedly broke into the Fast Fare at 3101 South Evans St. and took 13 gallons of anti-freeze.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a passing motorist saw the break-in in progress and reported it to an officer about two blocks from the scene of the 1:50 a.m. incident.

The responding policeman, the chief noted, chased the Martin car to the intersection of Evans Street and Greenville Boulevard, where he took Martin into custody.

Cannon said entrance to the store was gained by breaking out a window.

part-time after school during the week and on Saturdays. In a meeting to be held this week, Morin will visit the architectural drafting class and explain the plans and fundamentals as to how the energy audit will be conducted.

Martin said these audits will show property owners how to conserve energy. "This is accomplished," he said, "by simply understanding basic principles of conservation and where the energy is usually wasted."

Thirty Freed...

"He looks so great to us! He's home! He's home!" shouted Earl Dacus of Jonesboro, Ark., as he and his wife hugged their son, John. "I have his (plane) ticket right here. We're taking him back to Arkansas. We're going home. We've been partying for two weeks and the biggest party is tonight."

When Walter Clark of North Miami Beach left the plane, his wife, Juanita, screamed with joy and his daughter, Elaine, wept.

"Oh, I'm ecstatic! It's the happiest day of my life!" Mrs. Clark said as her husband, who was jailed on an immigration charge, waved.

"It's the greatest country in the world," Tony Bryant, an acknowledged hijacker and former Black Panther Party member who was among the five held by U.S. officials, said of the United States.

Ten federal marshals accompanied the flight from Havana. Bryant and four others were led from the jet in handcuffs and taken to a federal facility in Dade County.

Cuban President Fidel Castro announced Oct. 13 that he was pardoning 33 Americans of alleged offenses ranging from "illegal entry" to drug smuggling to air piracy.

U.S. officials said three of the 33 decided to stay in Cuba. They were identified only as Charles Hill, Jeffrey John Hoban and Lester Perry. Authorities said Hill hijacked a plane to Cuba in 1972 and was later released, but landed back in jail for passing bad checks. No other details about them were available.

Some relatives of the freed prisoners criticized President Carter, the U.S. State Department and other officials, saying they lacked interest in the jailed Americans.

"The State Department had nothing to do with them getting released," said Christopher Contino, whose brother Mark was freed. "Our congressman and Fidel Castro were responsible for bringing them home."

The 30 men looked somewhat gaunt but seemed in relatively good physical shape. They complained of psychological harassment by Cuban authorities, meager diets of "fish scraps and bread" and said they had trouble communicating with relatives while in jail.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $3,600 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage reported resulted from a 6:15 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 30 feet north of the Third Street intersection and involved a truck driven by Willie James Houston of Route 3, Kinston, and a car driven by James Earl Harris of Route 4, Greenville.

Police, who charged Harris with driving under the influence and careless and reckless driving, estimated damage at $600 to the Houston truck and $1,900 to the Harris car.

Investigators reported a car driven by Ann June Heffelfinger of 109A North Meade St. collided with a parked car owned by Kenneth Allen Rouse of Route 4, Greenville, about 8:18 a.m. on Washington Street, 35 feet north of the Second Street intersection.

Damage from the mishap was set at $800 to the Heffelfinger car and $300 to the Rouse auto.

GMC Reports Record Losses

DETROIT (AP) - General Motors Corp., the world's biggest automaker, bottomed out into the record books with a $567 million loss for the third quarter, the largest three-month loss in U.S. corporate history, but analysts and GM officials say the worst may be over.

And with quarterly reports from Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. still to come, Wall Street analysts say GM's July-September loss, announced Monday, is not likely to stand as the U.S. corporate record. Some analysts predict a Ford loss of $700 million.

The third quarter is always the worst for automakers, coming at a time when buyer interest is low and the companies are retooling for new cars.

But 1980 is still exceptional. The four U.S. automakers are on their way to their worst year ever, with losses exceeding $4 billion. GM will show its first losing year since 1921.

The former quarterly loss record was $562 million by U.S. Steel in the last three months of 1979. GM's worsening losses were far worse than U.S. Steel's, however, because U.S. Steel's figures included a charge for major plant closings.

GM Chairman Thomas Murphy and President Elliott Estes said in a statement that GM was hurt by recession and inflation, the shift to smaller cars which yield lower profits, and an inability to recover cost increases. They said rebates also cut into profits, as did retooling costs.

They said GM's profits would be held down as long as the recession lasts, adding they saw "many reassuring signs" of economic recovery.

"We have weathered the worst. Recovery, although gradual, has begun," they said, noting GM has recalled 38,000 laid-off employees and more will be coming back to work.

Jim Graham Here Wed.

James A. Graham, North Carolina commissioner of agriculture will campaign here tomorrow on behalf of Pres. Jimmy Carter and the rest of the Democratic Party ticket.

Graham will be at the Pitt-Greenville Airport from 9:15 to 9:45 a.m. as part of a one-day tour of Eastern North Carolina.

Graham is chairman of a 100-member Farmers for Carter Committee.

He said Carter, "a Southerner and a farmer...understands the problems our farmers have dealing with unpredictable weather and economic problems," and supports, "a strong farm-support program and tobacco program."

Jets Top Dolphins—Just For Howard

NEW YORK (AP) — Beating Howard Cosell Monday night seemed to be more important to the New York Jets than beating the Miami Dolphins. After they had turned back

Miami 17-14, losing their first shutout in four years only in the final minute, the Jets targeted the ABC sportscaster as a prime motivator. "I guess it shut Howard up for a little while," said Jets quarterback Richard Todd, whose run-oriented attack enabled New York to build a 17-0 lead on Scott Dierking's 1-yard sweep, Todd's own

16-yard scramble and Pat Leahy's 48-yard field goal. "If we had lost, he would have found fault with everything we had done."

Then, sarcastically reflecting on the chorus of boos which greeted the Jets' first appearance on the field and the number of anti-Cosell banners in the Shea Stadium stands, Todd suggested: "Howard's not as well liked as we are, but he deserves it. It's self-made."

Joe Klecko, the right end on the New York defense which limited Miami's total offense to just 167 yards before the Dolphins mounted their two scoring drives in the final 6:21, noted: "Monday Night Football is a big factor. Cosell is a big factor. He gets on the TV, he can tear you apart. We didn't want that to happen."

Dierking, though, looked at the television exposure a little more positively. "We've got a whole nation which hasn't seen us," he said. "This was a chance for us to start all over again in front of the whole country."

The victory was, in fact, a rebirth of sorts for the Jets, a preseason pick by many to win the American Conference's East Division title and by some to reach the Super Bowl. Their season, though, is a shambles at 2-6, the worst in the conference.

"We're better than our record," Todd said. "This time we didn't do anything stupid. No penalties. No missed assignments. Just drove it right down their throats... it sure feels good to win one at home. Heck, we were 1-6. It feels good to win one anywhere."

For Miami it was a very costly loss. A victory would have kept them within a game of New England and Buffalo, who share the AFC East lead. "We had a real opportunity to stay in the race, but now we're back to 4-4," Coach Don Shula said. "We missed an excellent opportunity to be up there."

Todd completed 11 of 20 passes for 175 yards while David Woodley, the Miami rookie playing in place of Bob Griese, threw the ball 42 times completing 22 for 224 yards.

But 154 of those yards came in the final 6½ minutes when the Dolphins scored on an 11-yard pass to Tony Nathan with a minute left and — following a successful onside kick — Nathan's 1-yard dive 11 seconds from the final gun.

"Mixed emotions," Woodley said. "I feel good coming up with two touchdowns, but bad because we came up short. The bottom line is to win and it doesn't matter how good your performance is if you lose."

Shula said Woodley "showed a lot of poise. He would have looked a lot better if we hadn't dropped a few passes in critical situations."

Woodley couldn't disagree. "The first time we had the ball we went in for a touchdown on a 28-yard pass to Joe Rose) but it was called back (on tackle Jon Giesler's holding penalty). Then it seemed every drive, something went wrong. That's part of the game. You're supposed to overcome that. But we just ran out of time."

After that missed touchdown, safety Ken Schroy of the Jets buried his team on its own 1-yard line with an interception. But Todd guided New York the length of the field in 17 plays, the last one Dierking's right-end sweep at 1:19 of the second period to cap the march which took 9:22.

"Fantastic!" Klecko crowed. "Ate up the whole quarter, that drive. Just sat on the bench and watched our offense put it to them. Just great!"

"It's great when you can keep the ball away from the other team for seven of eight minutes," Dierking added. "All they can do is sit on the bench getting cold and watching us drive down the field."

The second New York drive, covering 74 yards in 14 plays, chewed up another six minutes and ended with 59 seconds left in the first half when Todd, unable to find a receiver, sprinted down the left sideline, crashed over cornerback Gerald Small at the 5 and sprawled over the goal line.

"The holes were just huge openings," Dierking said of New York's first-half blocking, when he gained all of his game-high 53 yards before leaving with a strained calf muscle. "It went just like it did in practice. The line was opening up and all there was left for me was to run through it."

Leahy had been on shaky ground because of his erratic place-kicking of late. But on what turned out to be his most important kick of the night, he was perfect on the 48-yard field goal which made it 17-0 at 8:29 of the final quarter.

"I thought I would make it — but, then, I always do," Leahy said. "I'm just glad it's over. This is the toughest week I've ever had."

That Losing Look

Houk Promises Attitude Changes For Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Ralph Houk, cheerful and chomping on a cigar, says he wants to have "a lot of fun" as new manager of the Boston Red Sox. His players may not find his methods particularly enjoyable.

"I believe in discipline but I don't think you can treat all players alike," said Houk, who is known as a tough boss. "Some players have to be patted a little bit and some have to be kicked a little bit."

At a news conference Monday at which Houk's signing of a two-year contract was announced, Boston General Manager Haywood Sullivan said one of the problems with last season's disappointing team was "the attitude of the group ... the attitude of a winning club should be better."

He said he hoped Houk would improve that and also reverse a decline in attendance which he cited as one of the factors in firing Don Zimmer on Oct. 1 after 4½ years as manager.

"I don't know whether he will (draw fans) or not. You don't know until you try," Sullivan said.

The 61-year-old Houk has been longing for another shot at managing since leaving Detroit after five years in the job there. Starting in 1961, he had spent 11 years as manager of the New York Yankees with a two-year stint as general manager.

"Last summer I began to get itchy feet," said Houk, who had retired to Florida. "You can only play golf so many days and fish so many days and then you find yourself picking up the papers and reading the box scores."

Sullivan said that during a conversation with a third person last summer he learned "by accident" that Houk was interested in getting back into baseball.

Asked whether the Red Sox approached Houk, Sullivan said, "not exactly. It was kind of a mutual kind of thing." He did not elaborate.

Sullivan said "there were a lot of other candidates" but Houk was the only one he talked with.

Houk said that after he left the Tigers he didn't think he would return to baseball and that "two weeks ago I never dreamt I'd be here."

"Everywhere you go to manage it's a challenge," he said. "Certainly replacing Casey (Stengel) when I did in New York was a challenge. (Billy) Martin was well liked in Detroit when I replaced him."

The Yankees lost the World Series in Stengel's last season but won it during the first two years of Houk's reign. At Detroit, he handled a team in transition. The Red Sox are at a similar stage, having moved some youngsters into key roles last season.

Houk said it was difficult to discuss what personnel changes should be made since he has been out of baseball. He also declined to discuss his thoughts about a coaching staff.

Houk, who has managed 16 seasons in the major leagues, is the senior manager in time of service.

Big Plays Win For Edenton

WILLIAMSTON — It was an evening of big plays for Edenton.

The Aces, held to 113 yards total offense by a tough Williamston defense, scored on a 75-yard return of a blocked field goal by Thomas White and then White caught a 64-yard pass from Steve Holley to give Edenton a 15-3 victory over the Tigers Monday night in a Northeastern Conference battle.

Williamston, now 6-2 overall and 3-2 in the league, held the Aces scoreless in the first half of a game rescheduled after it was rained out Friday night. The Tigers led at the break, 3-0, on a 22-yard field goal by Victor Thomas.

The Aces, now 6-2 overall and 5-0 in the conference, took the lead in the third period when Thomas White picked up a blocked field goal attempt and rambled 75 yards for the TD. Marvin Mooring's kick made it 7-3.

In the final period, Edenton padded its advantage when Holley hit White with a 64-yard scoring toss — over half of the Aces total offensive output for the night. White then hit Eddie Morris for the two points.

The Tigers' attack was hampered severely throughout the game by six interceptions. One bright spot for Williamston was the running of Harry Beach, who ground out 80 yards in 24 carries.

Williamston travels to Plymouth Friday night.

Texas Drops, Carolina Climbs Into Sixth Spot

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Texas dropped out of the national championship picture after suffering its first defeat of the season while UCLA, Notre Dame and Georgia moved up to contest Alabama's bid for an unprecedented third consecutive college football crown in today's Associated Press poll.

The Crimson Tide of Alabama led the rest of the pack for the seventh week in a row with 57 of 65 first-place votes and 1,289 of a possible 1,300 points by defeating Southern Mississippi 42-7 and knocking the Golden Eagles out of the AP Top Twenty after their first appearance ever in the ratings.

However, Texas was upset 20-6 by Southern Methodist and skidded from second place all the way to 12th.

UCLA, Notre Dame, Georgia, Florida State, North

Carolina, Southern California, Nebraska and Ohio State all moved up one position along with Baylor, which jumped from 11th place to 10th.

UCLA, a 32-9 winner over California, received the other eight first-place votes and 1,222 points. Last week, Alabama led Texas 57-2 in first-place ballots and 1,250-1,147 in points with 63 panelists participating while UCLA was third with four first-place votes and 1,108 points.

Third-place Notre Dame defeated Arizona 20-3 and received 1,141 points while Georgia earned 1,105 for blanking Kentucky 27-0. Then came Florida State with 985 points after downing Memphis State 24-7.

North Carolina received 940 points for trouncing East Carolina 31-3, idle Southern Cal pulled down 859 points, Nebraska crushed Colorado 45-7 and totaled 852 points, Ohio State shut out Wisconsin 21-0 and earned 771 points and Baylor turned back Texas Christian 21-6 and received 719.

The nation's six remaining unbeaten-untied teams are Alabama, UCLA, Notre Dame, Georgia, North Carolina and Baylor.

The Second Ten consists of Pitt, Texas, Penn State, South Carolina, Missouri, Oklahoma, Brigham Young, Michigan, Southern Methodist and Purdue. Last week, it was Baylor, Pitt, Penn State, South Carolina, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Washington, Brigham Young and Southern Mississippi.

However, Arkansas lost to Houston 24-17, Washington was upset by Navy 24-10 and Southern Mississippi bowed to Alabama.

Meanwhile, Michigan whipped Illinois 45-14 and returned to the rankings after a four-week absence, SMU made it back after a two-week lapse by defeating Texas and Purdue reappeared for the first time in seven weeks by downing Michigan State 36-25. All three newcomers have 5-2 records.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel Index provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

HUNTER ORIGINAL OLDE TYME CEILING FANS

This was the fan that went 'round the world. These Hunter ceiling fans, the 1903 originals, swirled away heat in the steamy jungles of Africa, in the deserts of Morocco, on the shores of India and in the plantation homes of the South. A lot of people who remember those days still refer to all ceiling fans as "Hunter Fans". Johnny-come-lately's can't fool them—they know Hunter is the original.

One Leading Question Goes Un-Asked Tonight

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tonight, Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan go at it for 90 minutes on prime time television. Four panelists will ask questions, with each candidate having a chance to answer and to address the other fellow's contentions.

The big question, however, the query near the heart of the leader-choosing process, will not be asked. That is, what TV shows do you guys watch?

It's a fair question. After all, studies suggest that the citizenry comes by its perception of the world through television. Shouldn't our leader be in touch with us?

Very well. Happily, TV Guide magazine considered the matter, and asked each of the three leading candidates, including John Anderson, what he turns to when he flips on the tube.

The candidates' responses are not encouraging. Anderson says he's been too busy to watch TV. When he's not too busy — that is, when he's not running for president — he watches the news and "several public affairs programs."

No wonder the Anderson campaign is fizzling. People who would be impressed by that answer don't buy TV Guide. Tube freaks buy TV Guide. Anderson should have said, "I've been pressed for time lately, but I always make room in my schedule for reruns of 'The Partridge Family.'"

It might have humanized the guy, tempered that slightly pedantic image he's picked up.

Reagan's answer was better. He's been awfully busy, too, he says, but he watches the tube "whenever possible." He likes sports, Johnny Carson and "Little House on the Prairie."

Had Reagan been a little faster on his feet, he might have said, "I love to stay up late nights to watch 'Rock Concert.' And 'Dallas.' Sue Ellen's really easy on the eyes."

President Carter, like Anderson, claims he doesn't have time to watch TV, adding that he really wishes he could. He's looking forward to being able to do so again, "though hopefully not in the near future."

That's very presidential, but it could be asked what he was doing all that time in the Rose Garden this year. Maybe he didn't have an extension cord.

Anyway, all the other questions will be asked tonight, and this debate will have the added attraction of actual confrontation. It is the first time that the 1980 presidential candidates have had the chance to challenge one another.

The 90-minute debate will be divided into two parts, with panelist questions and backup questions coming in the first half, the interchange between candidates in the second half.

This debate will be carried by all three networks (ABC dodged the Reagan-Anderson debate to show a movie).

Although Anderson has been dumped by the sponsoring League of Women Voters and isn't invited to Cleveland for the debate, he'll be debating anyway. Ted Turner's Cable News Network will edit Anderson into the debate.

Gala Farewell Is Given Beverly

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Sills' retirement from singing was just what she wanted — a great big party. No tears, a minimum of pomp and $1 million raised for the New York City Opera.

And it was more: Ethel Merman in red, belting out "There's No Business Like Show Business," Leontyne Price singing "What I Did for Love," and a waltz with Walter Cronkite.

From the moment Carol Burnett walked pigeon-toed into Act 2 of Johann Strauss' "Die Fledermaus," shouting "Beverly! I know she's in here," opera was out and fun was in. The party at Lincoln Center's New York State Theater was sold out. Those who attended the farewell for one of the nation's foremost opera stars paid $250, $500 or $1,000 for dinner and the show, and standing room was $75. The program will be televised by PBS on Jan. 5. Miss Sills, 51, who will continue as managing director of the New York City Opera, has insisted Monday night's performance was her last on an opera stage.

The program, with Miss Sills in a sequined and feathered gown of navy blue as Rosalinda, brought a host of revelers — many of them new to opera roles — on stage for the Act 2 cafe party scene.

After Miss Burnett, who sang, "It's goodbye Donizetti, bring on the spaghetti. It's today," came Sherrill Milnes with "Maria" from "West Side Story," and pianist Bobby Short with a foot-tapping performance of "Nashville Nightingale."

Then came Eileen Farrell in "I've Got the World on a String" and Donald Gramm with "I Want What I Want When I Want It" and his words for Miss Sills: "She Gets What She Wants When She Wants It."

Some singers used microphones, others didn't. Some, like Mary Martin, didn't need microphones. She sang, to much applause, a coy-voiced "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" accompanied by an almost naughty dance.

James Galway entered tooting a pennywhistle, then played "Danny Boy" on his gold flute.

Some opera stars opted for popular tunes. Renata Scott sang "Somewhere Over the Rainbow" while tenor Placido Domingo's "Grenada" could make one forget all others.

Julius Rudel conducted it all with gusto, and ballet was not neglected — Cynthia Gregory performed a solo and Heather Watts and Peter Martins appeared in a pas de deux.

A highlight, introduced by Dinah Shore singing "Just one time, sing just one more time" was Miss Sills and Miss Burnett in a repeat of a duet first seen on their television special.

They traded lines about suffering, swapping arias and blues songs. Miss Sills sang Liu's death in "Turandot," and Miss Burnett spliced in "Limehouse Blues."

Then came dancing, accompanied by the chorus singing the waltz from "Die Fledermaus." As Miss Sills started to trill above them, CBS anchorman Cronkite entered to waltz her around, followed in turn by actor Burt Reynolds and Philharmonic conductor Zubin Mehta.

Next appeared the Boston Opera's Sarah Caldwell, Lady Bird Johnson, Joan Mondale and Mayor Edward Koch. They did not join the dance.

Miss Sills closed with a folk song she learned at age 10, her hand on the shoulder of pianist Charles Wadsworth.

GOREN BRIDGE

By CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF © 1980 by Chicago Tribune

North-South vulnerable. South deals. NORTH ♠ 103 ♥ 85 ♦ KQ96542 ♣ K10

WEST EAST ♠ AQ97 ♠ J654 ♥ 1063 ♥ J942 ♦ 3 ♦ 87 ♣ Q9843 ♣ A76

The bidding: South West North East 1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Four of ♠.

There is no bridge law that says you have to make your opponents' job easy for them. Let them work things out for themselves.

Despite the fact that he held only 8 points, we heartily endorse North's decision to bid three no trump. He had the worst possible distribution for a suit contract and not enough strength to try for eleven tricks. His long suit would be a splendid source of tricks.

West led his fourth-best club, declarer played the ten from dummy and East won the ace. With the long diamonds staring him in the face, East decided to look for more fertile fields. Mentally, he tossed a coin between the major suits, and fortunately it came up spades. He shifted to the jack of spades. The defenders quickly reeled in the first five tricks and were happy to concede the last eight to declarer — down one.

South's performance was distinguished by a lack of guile. It was reminiscent of the ostrich hiding its head in the sand when faced with danger, thinking that, because it cannot see its enemy, it is invisible.

South's play to the first trick was virtually sure to force a switch, regardless of whether East won with the queen or the ace. Declarer would not play low from dummy without a club honor in his hand. He should at least give the opponents a chance to go wrong while giving himself a better chance to make the hand.

Declarer should play the king of clubs from dummy at the first trick. If it holds, he is home with overtricks. But even if it loses, all is not lost.

There is still a combined club stopper on the hand, and now East is on the spot. It is possible that West's club holding includes the queen and jack, in which case the only way to defeat the hand is to continue the suit. If East does, the contract will be safe. In fact, West will have to cash the spade ace after winning the club queen to prevent a second overtrick.

News, Communications Become Political Struggle

By PAUL CHUTKOW
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia
(AP) — Extremely complicated issues have dominated a U.N. conference here on the world's news media, journalists and the broad concepts of communications and press freedoms. It has developed into a political struggle, pitting Western ideologies against those of developing nations and the Soviet bloc.

Last week the question passed through another significant phase at the conference here of the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization — UNESCO.

Here in question-and-answer form is an examination of the entire issue:

Q Why is UNESCO involved in what is described as a political struggle involving the flow of international news?

A UNESCO's charter gives it latitude to involve itself with communications issues and the debate has become impassioned and controversial. The U.S., British and some other governments have complained that UNESCO has become a political forum. Many Communist and developing countries, however, argue that the issues of education, science, culture and communications are all inseparably intertwined with politics.

Q Much of the controversy has centered on something called "The New World Information and Communications Order." What is that?

A This is the name that has become attached to a campaign at UNESCO by Communist and many developing countries for greater power in global communications planning and in the distribution of news.

Q The name sounds rather vague. What is this campaign really all about?

A It is vague in both name and substance and one of the arguments at the conference here was whether or not to spend a lot of time seeking definitions. For the moment, the delegates decided not to, letting the 153 member nations of UNESCO hold onto their own views of what the new order should be. Those views are often conflicting and they reflect the world's differing views of the press and its role. In the Soviet view, the press is a tool of the state that is to be used to further the interests and policies of the government and international communism. Soviet proposals for the "new order" seek to propagate that view.

Among the developing countries, many governments prefer the Soviet model and many others at least agree that the media must be "used" to serve the more pressing needs of economic, social and political development. Many say Western models of the press are "luxuries" they cannot afford.

Almost all the developing countries see in the new order the hope of gaining technical and financial assistance to help them gain the capability of sharing equally in the world's communications and news distribution, both of which they claim are now dominated by the West.

Q What about the United States and other countries that believe the press must be free of government control and in fact serve as a check on government?

A This "new order" poses a delicate diplomatic dilemma for the United States, Western Europe and other nations such as Canada, Australia and Japan. All of them have expressed their understanding for the communications needs of developing countries and many have come forward with varying degrees of actual or promised assistance. The United States, Britain, West Germany and Switzerland tried at the UNESCO conference here to oppose some of the ideological demands while at the same time reacting sympathetically to the practical demands.

Q Did they succeed?

A There are conflicting opinions on this. U.S. journalist and educator Elie Abel, one of the chief communications negotiators for the U.S. delegation, claimed that "we didn't give anything away" in negotiations over a resolution on some broad principles of communications on which everyone could agree.

The U.S. delegation also feels it blunted the most radical initiatives and gained some important guarantees in negotiations over the structure and mandate for a new international aid program in communications, created within the framework of UNESCO. The extent to which this is true will become clear only when the new program gets down to work.

Proponents of the new order gained approval to have UNESCO studies and conferences to define "responsible" reporting and on ways to "protect" journalists, and to hold a conference to see if journalists were complying with a 1978 resolution calling on them to promote peace and understanding and human rights and to oppose apartheid, racism and war-mongering.

Q Resolutions, seminars and declarations don't seem very important. Why is this such a big issue?

A In many ways, they are not very important and the sums of money involved amount to only about $15 million. The U.S. news media is divided on how important these actions at UNESCO are. None of them has any legal effect.

But Claude Rousset, former director of the French news agency Agence France Presse and a consultant to the French delegation, summed up his own feelings and the conclusion of many of the Western news organizations that have been following these events. He said that such resolutions and declarations intensify a climate of suspicion about the press and give a "moral alibi" to governments that are inclined to impede their national press and the functioning of the international news organizations, and to deny visas to foreign correspondents.

Q In some of the votes at the Belgrade conference, only a handful of Western countries said "no" to some of these initiatives, and that most were approved by an overwhelming majority. The United States pays 25 percent of the UNESCO budget and the West together more than 50 percent. What are Western countries going to do now?

A They are not talking openly about stopping payment of their dues. The United States tried that once and later decided it didn't work. Britain and others are now advocating that Western countries get together and give a higher priority to communications issues. All agree this conflict over "information power" is not going away.
