New Pitt Office Building Dedicated Here Sunday

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Several hundred people were on hand for the dedication of the new Pitt County office building at 1717 West Fifth St. yesterday.

First District Congressman Walter Jones, who spoke at the brief ceremony, said, "I would like to commend the board of county commissioners and other officers for having the wisdom of using federal funds for capital improvements, rather than recurring expenses where no one can predict the longevity of the revenue sharing program."

According to Jones, the building was constructed in 1949 as the Pitt County Memorial Hospital, "as a total cost of $1.44 million," including $1 million in federal funds. "In 1959, the 'A' wing was added at a total cost of $1.67 million. Federal funds again accounted for $1 of the total," the congressman said.

Renovation of the building to house county offices and East Carolina University School of Medicine clinics (in the A wing), cost $2.33 million, he explained, including $2.18 million in revenue sharing funds.

Jones noted that the original structure contained 85,840 square feet, while the "A" wing added another 25,305 square feet.

"The office building, with more than 100,000 square feet of space in use at this time, now houses 350 employees," Jones explained.

In closing, Jones noted, "I am indeed honored to be here and to dedicate this building to the services of the citizens of the great County of Pitt. And again, I commend the board of commissioners and other leaders in having the forethought for spending public funds for this much needed facility.

Ed Warren, chairman of the board of county commissioners, presided at the dedication program.

He noted that the 17.5 acres of land for the building was given to the people of the county by the heirs of Jesse Rountree Moyer, who died in 1935, "to provide better medical care for the citizens." of the area.

The family members giving the property to the county in 1949 included Moyer's wife, Novella Higgs Moyer, and his children, Novella Higgs Moyer Williams, Martha Emily Moyer Hadley, Jesse Rountree Moyer and Joseph Sidney Moyer.

As the county office facility, the building houses offices for the county manager, county finance officer, county planner, data processing, the electrical inspector, buildings and grounds, Department of Social Services, the Agricultural Extension Service, and the County Board of Education, as well as the ECU medical school clinics.

Polls Open At 6:30 For Tuesday's Vote

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

Months of spirited campaigning on the national, state and area levels winds down today as voters focus their attention on Tuesday's general election activities.

In Pitt County, where over 35,000 residents are eligible to vote, six ballots will be distributed to poll visitors as they exercise their opportunities to help determine a variety of political races.

The ballot for state officers, U.S. senator and congress; state senator and representatives, district judges and county officers; state judicial officers; a constitutional amendment; and an election to the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District board of supervisors.

The general election format will afford voters the opportunity to either mark a straight ticket if they choose to support all candidates of a party on a ballot, or split the ticket and vote for candidates of more than one party.

Miss Register urged Pitt voters to read the instructions printed at the top of each ballot and to mark their ballots carefully so that valid votes will be cast.

The presidential ballot, which includes the vice presidential candidates, lists candidates from six different parties for voter consideration. Choices include: Democratic (D), Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale; Republican (R), Ronald Reagan and George Bush; Libertarian (L), Ed Clark and David H. Koch; Citizens (C), Barry Commoner and LaDonna Harris; Independent (I), John B. Anderson and Patrick Lucey; and Socialist Workers (SW), Clifton DeBerry and Matilde Zimmermann.

The ballot for state officers, U.S. senator and congress involves a variety of offices. They include: Governor, James B. Hunt Jr. (D), I. Beverly Lake (R), Bobby Yates Emory (L), and Douglas A. Cooper (SW); Lieutenant Governor, James C. Green (D), William Cobey Jr. (R), and Craig Franklin (L); U.S. Senator, Robert Morgan (D), John P. East (R), F. W. Pasotto (L), and Rebecca Finch (SW); Secretary of State, Thad Eure (D) and David T. Flaherty (R); State Auditor, Edward Renfrow (D), and James F. McIntyre (R); Attorney General, Rufus Edmisten (D), and Keith S. Snyder (R); Commissioner of Insurance, John Ingram (D), and Edwin W. Tenney Jr. (R); and U.S. Congress, First District, where Walter B. Jones is unopposed in his re-election bid. Several other state offices on the ballot are uncontested.

Contested races on the ballot for state senators and representatives, district judges and county officers include: State Senator, Vernon E. White (D), Julian Allsbrook (D), Herbert W. Lee (R), George Alton Grayiel (R); and State House, Ed N. Warren (D), Sam D. Bundy (D), and M. W. Aldridge (R). A number of other offices are uncontested, involving judgeships, register of deeds, and county commissioner.

The only contested race on the ballot for state judicial officers involves a judgeship on the Court of Appeals where Willis P. Whichard Jr.

(D) and Robert R. Browning (R) are seeking election. All other judicial spots on the ballot are uncontested.

Voters tomorrow will be asked to cast a ballot involving a constitutional amendment. The ballot contains "for" or "against" boxes on an amendment requiring justices and judges of (Please turn to Page 6)

Reagan Edge In Final Poll

By George Gallup

As The most volatile election campaign in 45 years of modern polling history comes to a close, Ronald Reagan has regained a slight edge over Pres. Jimmy Carter, 47 to 44 percent. Reagan's lead, however, falls within the range of sampling variation.

Interviewing in today's final pre-election survey was conducted between Thursday, Oct. 30, and 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 1.

For the Gallup Poll's final pre-election analysis this year, about 3,500 persons were interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically-selected election precincts across the nation.

These survey results, of course, reflect the division of presidential preferences at the time the interviews were conducted and do not constitute a prediction of which candidate will win the election. Events subsequent to the completion of interviewing on Saturday could obviously affect the actual vote on Election Day. For example, if either party, through strenuous efforts on or before Election Day, gets a higher proportion of its followers to the polls than does the opposition, then obviously this can make a difference. The winning party has generally been found to be putting in more work at the grass roots level.

Following is the trend among likely voters prior to the final survey.

Table with 5 columns: Test Elections (Choices of likely voters), Carter-Mondale, Reagan-Bush, Anderson-Lucey, Other, Undecided. Rows show data for Oct. 24-26, Oct. 10-12, and Sept. 12-15.

Popular Vote Not Electoral Vote

It is important to bear in mind that the current survey findings refer to the popular vote, not the electoral vote. To report the electoral vote, it would be necessary to conduct separate full-scale surveys in each of the 50 states.

Some error is inherent in all sample surveys. No measuring instrument dealing with human behavior is perfect. Although the problems that arise in every election seem to be similar to those that have been faced in previous elections, each contest involves unique variables and problems of measurement. A margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points either way in the vote for each candidate should be taken into account.

Militants Give Iran Govm't Responsibility For Hostages

By The Associated Press Iranian militants met with spiritual leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today and then turned over "responsibility" for their 52 American captives to the Iranian government. U.S. officials, who are considering Iranian terms for their freedom, said the development was a major breakthrough toward their eventual release.

"We will from now on delegate responsibility for the (hostages) safeguarding to the government and will engage in the most important current issue of the revolution, defense of the Islamic homeland," Tehran Radio quoted a statement from the militants as saying. The militants were referring to Iran's current border war with Iraq.

Plans for the physical transfer of the hostages will be worked out following a "meeting before midnight" (3:30 p.m. EST) between the government and the militants, officials of the Iranian prime minister's office reported.

The militants' statement said the government during that meeting would "introduce (their) representative for delivery of the American spies."

The aides to the prime minister said Algeria was delegated to handle talks with Washington and the captives' release if the U.S. government meets Iran's demands. They said that in the meantime Iraq will continue to have custody of the hostages, who will "remain where they are," presumably meaning the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

In Washington, White House press secretary Jody Powell said the transfer "is something we have seen since the very outset as being an important step toward their eventual release. That's something we have labored long and hard to get this spring and thought we had it there for a few hours and did not. So if this happens, it's a very encouraging sign."

Presidential aide Jack Watson, in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" program, called the planned transfer "a very positive development." Asked if it was a major breakthrough, Watson replied: "Indeed it is."

Representatives of the Islamic militants who seized the American Embassy and its staff last Nov. 4, 366 days ago, met for two hours today with Khomeini following the approval Sunday by the Majlis, Iran's parliament, of terms for the release of the Americans. Tehran Radio said one of the militants read a statement to Khomeini asking the government to relieve the militants of responsibility for the hostages and allow them to join the war against Iraq.

Tehran Radio said Khomeini thanked the students and added: "The service which these young people rendered by seizing and holding these corrupt individuals eliminated the fears in the minds of the peoples, nations and governments and the picture they had of the spectre of the great powers."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai met with Algeria's ambassador in Tehran, and the two agreed Algeria would take care of the hostage talks with Washington, a spokesman for the official Pars news agency said.

The ambassadors of Switzerland and West Germany also met with Rajai this morning, Pars said, and the Swiss ambassador submitted a message from President Carter to Rajai, but there were no immediate details, the agency said.

Carter Aides Hopeful Over Hostage Prospects

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two of President Carter's top aides expressed pleasure at the announcement today that militants holding the 52 American hostages in Iran will transfer the captives to Iranian government control.

"If the transfer to the government takes place, it will be a very encouraging sign," White House press secretary Jody Powell said. He said the White House received word of the arrangement about 3 a.m. EST.

The transfer "is something we have seen since the very outset as being an important step toward their eventual release," Powell added. "That's something we labored long and hard to get this spring and thought we had it there for a few hours and then did not. So if this happens, it's a very encouraging sign."

And in an interview on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" program, White House chief of staff Jack Watson called the transfer plans "a very positive development."

Asked whether this was seen as a major breakthrough on something that has been a stumbling block, Watson replied: "Indeed it is."

Meanwhile, the White House press office issued a statement saying that the president met with advisers for 45 minutes this morning during which recent developments in Iran were "thoroughly analyzed."

"The president and his advisers felt that if the hostages were transferred to government control, this would be a significant step," the statement added.

The transfer development came a day after Carter acknowledged that he could not predict when the hostages will be freed and U.S. officials said two of the Iranian demands could pose severe obstacles.

CETA Contract Approved For Pitt

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County commissioners this morning approved acceptance of a contract for $309,400 in Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds and decided to give further study to a request for the adoption of a noise ordinance for the county.

The CETA funds - about half the amount received last year - will be used to provide jobs for CETA workers from October 1, 1980, through September 30, 1981.

In asking the board to consider a noise ordinance, James Taylor said at present "nothing can be done other than try to reason with people," who disturb their neighbors with loud noises. "There's no recourse other than just endure. We need something that the people of Pitt County can take advantage of when it's needed."

Commissioners also agreed to give further study to a request by Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner to combine the fire marshal, emergency management (civil defense), and rescue squad coordination functions of his office under a new title, Director of Emergency Services.

Joyner said there would be no structural change in the move, "just a name change giving one agency the responsibility."

In other business today, the board approved the final plat for section one of Greenwood Forest Subdivision on the Stantonburg Road, and awarded a $50 prize to Ann Allen of the county finance officer's office for the best yearly suggestion creating a 15 mile-per-hour speed limit for the road between the new county office building and the health department.

A number of appointments were made by the board, including: reappointment of Odell McLawhorn to the Ayden Planning Board for Extra-territorial Jurisdiction; Miss Addie Gore and Ms. Acolia Simon Thomas to the Juvenile Task Force; the reappointment of Mrs. Willie Mae Carney of Bethel, Mrs. Christine Galloway of Grimesland and Mrs. Miriam House of Grifton and the appointment of Ms. Gretchen Weeks of Bethel and Ms. Linda Howard of Grimesland to the Council on the Status of Women, and Miss Jacqueline Jones of Grimesland as a member of the Mental Health Area Board.

Board members also postponed action on a request to endorse the Emergency Medical Services Area VI application for federal funding until given an opportunity to review the application.

Pitt Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson reported that the hospital's business and personnel offices will move from the hospital building to the Hawkins Building on Memorial Drive (the building formerly occupied by the U.S. Census office) on November 22.

MORRIS CHAIR VALUE?

I have a Morris reclining chair that I've had for many years. My nephew wants to buy it, but I don't have any idea of its value. I've contacted local antique stores, but none of them have been able to help me. M. M.

Hotline referred you to the "Antique Monthly," an antiques newspaper published monthly by Boone Inc. P. O. Drawer 2, Tuscaloosa, AL 35402 (price - $14 per year). We were even fortunate enough to find in its "Antique Furniture Forum" question-and-answer column a question corresponding to your very need. The column writer told a Connecticut woman that a Morris chair in totally good condition, whether original or refinished, probably should bring $300 to $350 in her area. The chair dates from the late 1800's, he said.

Research Review Meet Set

All tobacco growers, dealers, fertilizer, pesticide delayers, warehouse men, members of farm credit groups and their wives are invited to attend the 22nd annual Extension-Research on Wheels Review as guests. The review will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on December 2 at the Jane S. McKimmon Education Center in Raleigh.

The meeting will include a review of problems that occurred this year, according to Roger Cobb, assistant agricultural extension agent. Suggestions on how to deal with these problems in 1981 will also be discussed. A summary of the 1980 Extension Research on Wheels tests will also be discussed. The cured leaves of 22 varieties, including three new ones, will be available to be viewed. The story of Ridomil will also be told.

A coffee break and recognition luncheon are planned to provide adequate opportunity for tobacco talk. Copies of "Extension-Research on Wheels Flue-Cured Tobacco Summary Report of 1980 Data" and "1981 Tobacco Information" will be available at the close of the meeting.

Persons planning to attend should contact Roger Cobb at the Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196, to make reservations. Reservations should be made by November 14.

Nazi-Klan Prosecutors Begin Final Arguments

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — One year ago today, five members of the Communist Workers Party were killed in a brief but violent outburst of gunfire at a CWP-sponsored "Death to the Klan" rally.

For the last five months, four Ku Klux Klansmen and two American Nazis have been on trial in those deaths. In the intervening months, attorneys for the Klansmen and Nazis have charged the rally was a trap to give the CWP a martyr. Widows of the slain demonstrators and other CWP spokesmen have repeatedly labeled the investigation that followed the deaths and the current prosecution a sham, alleging conspiracy on the part of the government.

And, today, the prosecution will begin its closing arguments in the trial — one of the longest in North Carolina history — by calling those deaths cold-blooded murder at the hands of men District Attorney Michael Schlosser has characterized as being filled with "hatred, bigotry and prejudice."

Schlosser has given no indication how long his staff's summation will take, but court sources have indicated it will be midweek at least before the trial goes to the jury of six men and six women. Superior Court Judge James Long will charge the jury after the prosecution concludes its closing arguments.

Defense attorneys gave their concluding statements last week.

One after the other, the attorneys depicted defendants Jerry Paul Smith, David Matthews, Coleman Pridmore, Lawrence Morgan, Jack Fowler and Roland Wayne Wood as men who love guns, uniforms and the "simple solutions" offered by the Klan and the Nazis — groups whose philosophies they don't really understand.

Backed up by testimony from witnesses, the defense has attempted to show that the defendants were lured into a trap by publicity-seeking communists beat on creating a violent confrontation to boost their cause.

It was a carefully arranged trap, according to the defense — one engineered by members of the CWP with the help of a police informant. It was designed, the argument goes, to bait the Klan into killing black children who stood near the site of the CWP rally.

The rally was held in a predominantly black public housing project. One of the victims — Sandra Smith — was black. She also was the only woman killed.

Signe Waller, widow of one of the slain men and now an outspoken public voice for the CWP, has denied the entrapment allegations although she and other CWP members have refused to participate in the trial.

"This whole martyrdom thing is a straight-up lie," Mrs. Waller said after the defense rested its case. "Saying the victims wanted to die — that's about as low as you can stoop. No one in their right would want to be a martyr."

Mrs. Waller frequently has argued that the shootings were planned by the government and carried out by Klansmen and Nazis acting as government agents.

"With military precision they picked out people and executed them," she said. "That's as plain as the nose on anybody's face."

Based on testimony at the trial and news videotapes shot during the conflict, the shooting broke out just seconds after a nine-vehicle caravan of Klansmen and Nazis drove into the CWP assembly point. A stick fight broke out and then shooting began. In the news members of the Klan-Nazi caravan can be seen arming themselves with weapons stored in one of the vehicles.

Testimony by an FBI sound expert who studied the news tapes indicated only 88 seconds elapsed between the first and last gunshot.

CWP members and sympathizers paid tribute Sunday to the victims of the 1979 confrontation. About 120 people watched as relatives of the slain communists placed wreaths on the graves of the four victims buried in Greensboro's Maplewood Cemetery: James Waller, Cesar Cauce, Michael Nathan and William Sampson. The fifth victim, Ms. Smith, is buried in Piedmont, S.C. A wreath in her honor was placed at the base of a temporary wooden monument.

The CWP has won agreement from the city to erect a large tombstone at the graves that will bear an inscription expressing the party's political philosophy.

"In the past year, we have been turning grief into strength," Mrs. Waller said during the service. "Faith in the party and people is stronger than ever. Our determination to overthrow (this) monopolistic class is greater than ever."

Once again it's time to fumigate those tobacco beds for next year. Fall is the best time to fumigate because we have several days in October, November and the first of December which are good times to fumigate. If you wait until spring, you may be taking a big risk since weather conditions may not be favorable for fumigation.

Successful production of flue-cured tobacco depends on producing a good supply of strong, healthy plants on your farm. Plant bed sites should be chosen carefully. A plant bed should be located on a southern slope of about 5 percent. It should be located to take advantage of wind breaks against cold, drying winds. The plant bed should be a good one that's well drained. Ditches around the plant bed prevent water from entering the bed.

Methyl bromide will do an excellent job of control if it is used correctly. It controls weeds, grasses, nematodes and some diseases.

The seed bed should be relatively free of undecayed vegetation before fumigation. Prepare 80-100 square yards for each acre of tobacco to be transplanted. Smaller farms probably need more yardage, and larger farms can usually get by with less yardage.

Fumigation needs to be done when the soil moisture is about right for plowing. If the soil is too dry the weed seeds aren't wet enough and won't be killed. If the soil is too wet the fumigant won't be able to penetrate the water pockets for proper control. The air temperature should be 55 degrees Fahrenheit or higher at application. For best results fumigate when the soil temperature is above 60 degrees F at the four-inch level. Do not fumigate if the soil temperature is below 55 degrees F.

Arrests Made Downtown

Greenville police, Saturday night, arrested Alford Cornelius Alston of 800 West Fourth St., on charges of possessing hashish and marijuana with intent to sell following a 10:35 p.m. incident in a parking lot at the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers arrested Alston after allegedly finding a quantity of marijuana and hashish in his possession.

Cannon noted that Darryl Jack Dockery, 20 of 105 Oakdale Rd., was charged with possession of alcoholic beverages in an unauthorized place and possession of alcoholic beverages under the age of 21 in connection with the same incident.

The chief noted that both men were seated in the same car at the time officers observed Alston with what was allegedly a marijuana cigarette.

Woman Dies Of Severe Burns

EAST MEADOW, N.Y. (AP) — A teen-aged woman who set herself afire two weeks ago and ran across the field during a school soccer match has died at Nassau County Medical Center, hospital officials said.

Peggy Hayes, 19, of Nesconset, parked her car behind the Great Hollow Junior High School on Oct. 17, set herself ablaze and then ran across the athletic field, officials said.

Miss Hayes, a student at Suffolk County Community College, was burned over 65 percent of her body and was given only a 25 percent chance of survival.

Cataract is a type of cloudiness which develops in the lens of the eye. This loss of transparency is a result of chemical and physical changes which may be due to diabetes, dietary deficiencies, German measles during pregnancy or other causes. Cataracts are not growths, nor are they contagious. They are not caused by, or aggravated by reading or other tasks. An eye examination at least every two years after the age of 40 will certainly aid in cataract detection. At any age, dimmed vision should prompt an examination. In its early stages, cataracts can often be circumvented with proper treatment.

If you are experiencing visual difficulties, make an appointment for an eye exam immediately. If your doctor determines that corrective lenses are required, you may then bring the prescription to CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1705 6th, Physicians Quadrangle Building A. Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦K1092 ♦AKQ5 ♦AJ1098
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 2 ♣ 2 ♦ 5 ♣

What do you bid now?

A.—East's preemptive tactics have made scientific exploration impossible. Partner could easily have a hand that would make a grand slam a laydown, but he might also have some where six diamonds would go down. It is reasonable to assume that partner has a diamond and spade honor for his free raise, so we would venture six diamonds—which should be no worse than on a finesse. Besides, the opponents might sacrifice at seven clubs, and bail you out when the slam was going down.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦982 ♣AQ63 ♦98742
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT Pass
3 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—We would be inclined to make a slightly speculative raise to game. While partner's jump to three hearts was not forcing, you do have the queen of his suit (even though it is singleton) and an ace. Had our trump queen been in any other suit, we would have passed.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦103 ♥872 ♦AJ7 ♦AKQJ2
Your right hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

A.—Though your hand is worth 16 points, we would consider a takeout double. Your hand lacks flexibility—most of the points are concentrated in one suit and your holding in the other major is very weak. We would settle for an overall of two clubs. Unless partner can take some forward-going action, it's unlikely that you have the values for game.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦75 ♥K104 ♦AKQ73 ♦A83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 1 ♣ 1 NT Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Your hand contains 16 points in high cards and a good five-card suit. Partner should have 9-10 points for his free response of one no trump. Waste no time in contracting for game in no trump—any other action puts intolerable pressure on partner.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦AJ93 ♥1092 ♦K93 ♦AK2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♣ 2 ♦
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Normally, 4-3-3-3 distribution is a deterrent. However, don't let it dampen your ardor when partner has shown a two-suiter and all your points are in prime cards. You should not lose more than one minor suit trick, and there must be an excellent chance that partner can hold his major-suit losers to two. Bid four spades.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♦J10762 ♥9 ♦K103 ♦10976
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Dble. Pass 1 ♣
Pass 3 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Although a jump in a new suit by a takeout doubler is not 100 percent forcing, it should be passed only with a trickless hand. That does not describe your hand, which contains a king, a jack and a five-card suit. You have nothing to be ashamed of. So bid three spades to confirm a real suit.

Couple Speaks Vows In Sunday Ceremony

WINTERVILLE — Deborah Carolyn Cobb and Alfred Perry Tetterton Jr. were united in marriage at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church Sunday. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Wayne Adkisson.

Organist Annette Braxton and soloist Tammy Stocks, both of Winterville, presented the nuptial music including "More" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cobb of Winterville and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Tetterton Sr. of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza and Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline defined with Venise lace. The long fitted sleeves were adorned with lace appliques of Venise lace and double ruffles of organza at the wrist. The semi-fitted skirt had double tiers of ruffles edged with Venise lace and extended to a chapel train at the hemline. The bride carried a nosegay of yellow and white daisies. Her mantilla was waist length silk illusion with a double border of Venise lace worn over a Juliet cap.

Maid of honor was Miss Terry Cobb, sister of the bride, of Winterville. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Donna Dickinson, cousin of the bride of Farmville, Mrs. Rebecca Jones and Miss Kathryn Kittrell of Greenville.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of peach silesta. The gown featured an accordion pleated attached cape with a jeweled neckline and full A-line skirt. She carried a nosegay in yellow and white.

Bridesmaids wore formal gowns similar to the maid of honor in apricot color. They each carried a long-stemmed yellow mum with baby's breath.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom were remembered with white cymbidiorchid corsages and grandmothers were also remembered with white corsages.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers included Van Johnson III, Beecher Kirkley, Pratt Sherman, all of Greenville and Danny Tetterton, brother of the bridegroom of Wilson.

MRS. ALFRED PERRY TETTERTON JR.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony. Mrs. Marie Allen, aunt of the bride, assisted in serving cake. Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Mozingo, aunt and uncle of the bride, said good-byes.

Following a wedding trip to the North Carolina mountains, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is a buyer with Hollowell's Drug Store, Inc. The bridegroom is a graduate of Wayne Community College and is employed by Procter and Gamble.

The bridegroom's parents gave an after-rehearsal pig picking at their home for the wedding party.

Dear Abby

Female Cops Get Green Light

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A policeman's wife, signed JEALOUS, recently wrote that her husband was on squad car duty from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. with a "cute, single, bright, funny partner." She was upset that the two of them were riding around together all night, frequently "bored," so she asked her husband to request a male partner. When he refused, she sought my advice.

I told her to quit nagging her husband; that she had nothing to worry about.

Well, my mail has been running 100 to 1 against my advice. A few sample letters in agreement with me:

DEAR ABBY: Applause, applause! Your answer to JEALOUS was right on! I've been married to a policeman for 12 years, so I know what I'm talking about. He's worked the graveyard shift with female partners, but I wasn't jealous.

Wouldn't the two of them be rather conspicuous snuggling in a parking lot in a patrol car? Or checking into a motel for a few hours in uniform? And how would they handle answering the car radio and making calls in the middle of a romantic encounter?

I am far more worried about the prospect of my husband being taken from me by a strung-out dope addict, a trigger-happy robber or some belligerent drunks in a domestic squabble than by a "cute, single, bright, funny policeman."

NOT JEALOUS IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you told JEALOUS not to get worked up because her husband worked nights with a woman partner. Nowadays nearly every job involves contact with the opposite sex. Women are fighting fires, flying airplanes, working on oil rigs and marching alongside men in the military, too.

If JEALOUS thinks she will eliminate temptation by demanding that her policeman husband work with men only, she's dreaming. A man in uniform is like a magnet to most women. If he's going to cheat, he's not about to risk doing it on the job. He'll meet her off the job when they're both out of uniform.

REALIST IN JERSEY

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for reassuring the jealous wife that her husband's female partner didn't necessarily represent a threat to her marriage.

Most women who choose police work as a career are anything but feminine. They're rough, tough and strong. In fact, you have to look closely to tell whether they're male or female in uniform. They're just not the type to fool around on duty. They have too much to lose. It's still more difficult for a woman to be hired for the force than a man. After going through all that rigorous training she won't take the chance of blowing it, and they are watched closely.

I am not a police officer, but I have worked with the department for nearly 20 years, during which time I've had lots of time to size up the situation.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR ABBY: One good piece of advice you gave JEALOUS was to ride along one night to observe her husband and his partner on the job.

I happen to be a female flight instructor and have at times sensed a jealous wife, although I am a happily married woman.

I encourage my married male students to invite their wives to ride in the back seat on long cross-country flights. This cures them. When they see me at work and get to know me, they realize I'm all business and the jealousy disappears.

Many men have told me they didn't like the idea of having a female flight instructor, but after they get into the plane with me and find out that I am an excellent instructor, they forget that I am a woman.

Once a policeman's wife sees her husband doing his job, she will realize he doesn't have the time to fool around.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

If you are looking for a bright new idea in holiday decorating, then "quick-stitch" a needlepoint boot on red or green plastic canvas and fill it with greenery — real or artificial. Or use it as a container for small gifts or let it take the place of a Christmas stocking and let Santa fill it with goodies.

The design shown has a pair of candles nestled in holly leaves. Only the design is stitched with the colored canvas serving as the background.

To obtain directions for making the needlepoint boot, send your request for Leaflet No. 1155 with $1.00 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Pat Trexler, "The Daily Reflector," P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order a kit containing the colored plastic canvas and all necessary yarns by sending check or money order for $11.00 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Request Kit No. 1155R for red canvas or Kit No. 1155G for green canvas. The floral arrangement is not included.

Seldom can any idea in needlecraft be honestly described as brand new, but the red and green plastic canvas on the market this year is a totally unique and new concept in needlepoint. And it's making a big hit with busy folks who want their stitching to be quick, easy and fun!

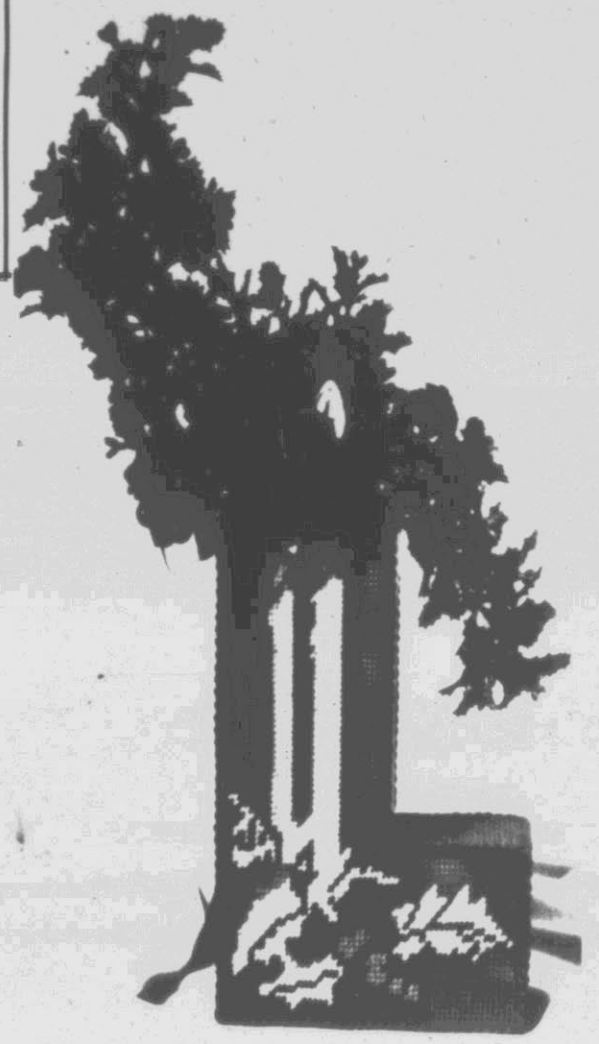

It is so new, in fact, that there are only a few patterns designed specifically for it. So let's talk today about a few ideas for using this new product, which is currently available in a seven-mesh size.

Almost any charted design planned for cross-stitch or traditional needlepoint can be used. To determine the finished size of any charted design, just count the number of stitches used in either direction and divide by seven, giving you the finished width or height of the design.

For example, suppose you found a chart for a pair of Christmas bells. You count across and find that there are 28 stitches used for the widest part of the bell and 24 stitches from top to bottom. This would mean that the finished design would be four inches wide and approximately three and a half inches deep.

That might be too large for a tree ornament, but could be ideal for a coaster or for the corner of a Christmas place mat. The sheets, by the way, are approximately 13 1/2 inches by 10 1/2 inches, so they can be used for small place mats. With just a single motif stitched in one corner, think what conversation pieces they would make at a holiday dinner party.

You can make almost any size container for holiday greenery. Make your arrange in any old jar or glass around the house and then make a needlepoint container to the right size. Remember, all you have to do is stitch a motif or two, whip the edges together and you have a truly unique centerpiece or mantel decoration.

Another thought is to make a box or basket to hold and display your Christmas cards. Again, just scatter a few holiday-type motifs on the canvas pieces cut to the desired sizes for the sides of box and whip edges together. For an open box, you will probably want to line it with red or green felt to hide the back side of the stitches — unless your stitching is very neat on the wrong side.

The choice of yarn is up to you. Try various scraps of yarn you may have around the house. Personally, I like using either four-ply knitting yarn or Persian-type needlepoint yarn, but use anything which gives an effect pleasing to you.

Dig deep into your box or bag of leftover yarns, cut the canvas into any desired shape and let your imagination go!

Intensification of that line of attack removes all doubts about the last few days of Carter's campaign from New York to California. His usually cautious aides indulged in overoptimism in assessing Carter's prowess in the debate, but that cannot obscure Carter's political mastery of submerging inflation, unemployment and high interest rates in the rhetoric of the campaign and elevating the war-and-peace issue. War, peace and nuclear arms are now all there is.

Considering that his voter approval rating in the polls one year ago was at record lows, Carter's success in forging that issue out of such meager raw material bespeaks political genius of a quality that transcends short-lived euphoria after the Cleveland debate.

message about how North Carolina voters respond to campaigns that are almost totally based on television commercials — as has been East's.

A victory by East or one of the other state Republicans would be a triumph for Helms, as he has gone to lengths to endorse the club's candidates in television commercials.

But if they do not win, Democrats may conclude that Helms' organization is not as powerful as had been feared.

Hunt has been talking during the past week of this election being a test of the Congressional Club's potency at the polls. And though he declines to discuss the possibility he will take on Helms in 1984, other Democrats are clearly thinking about that.

Candidate East Ends Campaign

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Republican senatorial candidate John East began his final swing across North Carolina this morning from the Pitt-Greenville Airport, with campaign stops scheduled for Raleigh, Charlotte and Greensboro, before tomorrow's general election.

East, accompanied on the final day of his campaign by his wife and two daughters, told the gathering of well-wishers that he has felt his bid to unseat Democratic Senator Robert Morgan would be won or lost in the east.

"I want to assure the people of Eastern North Carolina that I will do everything I can to work for the well-being of this part of the state...the whole state and the United States."

"I don't know that there has been a single issue," in the campaign, East noted. If there has been, he suggested that it has been, "the effectiveness of this (Democratic) administration," with the support of such people as Morgan. "Their leadership and stewardship has not been very good," the candidate charged. "Their ineffectiveness is the key issue."

East cited the Carter administration's lack of support for farmers and the textile industry, and ineffectiveness in controlling inflation, as factors that affect people in North Carolina.

As for the Panama Canal issue, East said, "I think it was one of the great mistakes," in turning over the canal to Panama. "We were tested...threatened with force if we didn't give it up."

That, according to East, led to the, "unraveling of our position," around the world.

According to the candidate, "I am my own man...an independent thinker. I offered to debate Robert Morgan," he continued, but suggested that, "their (the Democrats) record is so poor," that Morgan would not debate.

East encouraged those at the airport to, "start at the bottom of the ballot and work up," when voting tomorrow, saying, "they tried to obscure our race by putting us on the bottom of the ballot."

East, an East Carolina University political science professor, said "I would like to thank the people of Eastern North Carolina for the support they've given me in this campaign. People in Eastern North Carolina have a lot to be proud of."

"I am ready to work with the people of the East for progress over the next six years."

East will vote here tomorrow, then travel to his campaign headquarters in Raleigh to await the election returns tomorrow night.

Surgical Technologists Hold Session

The Association of Surgical Technologists of Eastern North Carolina (Chapter 205) held a workshop on the campus of Pitt Community College November 1.

This chapter embraces the cities of Greenville, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Williamston, Kinston, Washington and New Bern.

Appearing on the program were physicians from the area, including Dr. Daniel Edwards, "Gallbladder Surgery"; Dr. Al Ferguson, "Surgical Aspect of End Stage Renal Disease"; Dr. Charles Robb, "Vascular Surgery"; Dr. Robert Timmons, "Malignancies of the Central Nervous System"; Dr. James Bowman, "Ilio-tibial Tenodesis"; and Dr. Jack Welch, "Anesthesia Consideration."

The objectives of the Association of Surgical Technologists are to motivate and encourage surgical technologists to accept responsibility for continued education; to study, discuss and exchange professional knowledge, expertise and ideas in the field of surgical technology; to promote a high standard of surgical technology performance in the community for quality patient care; to stimulate interest in continuing education for the technologist; to encourage community hospitals to employ certified technologists through cooperative efforts with other professional medical organizations; and to work cooperatively with associated professional medical organizations in the development of criteria leading to certification of surgical technologists.

The first certification of surgical technologists was in 1971 and the Eastern North Carolina Chapter 205 came into existence the same year. The workshop program consists of Nancy Hudson, general chairman; Gail Harris, program committee; Audrey Williams, registration committee; Nancy

In addition, J. Earl Sermons is unopposed on a ballot for the board of supervisor of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District.

All six ballots are displayed for voter familiarity in today's edition of "The Daily Reflector" on pages 14 and 15.

The Pitt elections office filed with the State Board of Elections a current county registration figure of 35,147. In the 1976 general election, almost 70 percent of the 31,110 registered voters in the county visited the polls and election officials are hopeful that clear weather will aid in Pitt having another heavy turnout on Tuesday.

"The Reflector" will tabulate returns tomorrow night and all poll holders are reminded to call the newspaper office (752-6166) as soon as precinct results are available.

OPEC Summit Talk Postponed

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq announced today the indefinite postponement of an OPEC summit conference scheduled to be held here Tuesday on the oil cartel's 20th anniversary and said several cartel members requested the move because of the Iran-Iraq war.

The conference was to have been attended by the heads of state and government of the 13 nations belonging to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. Iran and Iraq are members of the cartel.

Iraq and Iran exported a combined total of about 3.8 million barrels of oil per day before shipments were halted by the war over control of the disputed Shatt al-Arab waterway and other territory.

Iraq announced postponement of the summit conference Oct. 8, but a spokesman at OPEC headquarters in Vienna said then that a new date for the meeting would be announced later.

In a telephone call to Western reporters, the wife of Arkady Stepanchuk, 35, said she herself was involuntarily interned in the institution Oct. 13, when she went to visit her husband, and was released today. She said her three children were placed in a foster home while she was hospitalized.

Some Don't Vote

In 1976, more than 80 million people were eligible to vote in the United States. But only 54 percent of them bothered to vote in the presidential election that year. As a result, the votes of about one-fourth of all voting-age Americans were enough to elect Jimmy Carter president. In our country's election history, non-voters have always outnumbered those who actually voted for the winning presidential candidate. To try to get more non-voters to go to the polls, the state of Nevada now offers a choice on its ballots for those who aren't satisfied with any of the available candidates. They can vote for "none of the above."

N.C. Candidates Launch Final Efforts To Sway Electorate

By The Associated Press
North Carolina political candidates took to the road — and airways — today for a final effort to swing support their way in Tuesday's general election.

U.S. scheduled a series of news conferences across the state in their drive to reach as many places as possible on the final day of campaigning.

The Democrats — Gov. Jim Hunt, Sen. Robert Morgan, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, state Carter-Mondale campaign chairman Wallace Hyde, state party chairman Russell Walker and the Council of State members — scheduled stops in Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, Greenville and Wilmington airports.

Collisions Result In Damage

An estimated $3,100 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated here by Greenville police Sunday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Hooker Road, involving cars driven by Hanna Roberts Chapman of 410 Arbor St., and Lydia Ann Sireddo of 811 College View Rd.

No charges were made by officers who estimated damage at $500 to the Chapman car and $700 to the Sireddo vehicle.

Officers reported a car driven by Moses Lee Leavy of Route 1, Greenville, collided with a utility pole about 5:50 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth Street and Moye Boulevard, causing $500 damage to the car and $600 damage to the pole.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two vehicles involved in a 12:05 a.m. mishap on Cotanche Street, 75 feet south of the Second Street intersection.

According to police, a car driven by John Harlie Furman of Route 2, Greenville, collided with a parked car owned by David Wright Miller of Route 1, Farmville.

president of Shaw University and one of the conference coordinators. "Ministers are the best people in the community to assure black votes."

"I call your attention to the recent resurgence and growth of the fundamentalist movements," said Brenda Wagoner, president of the North Carolina Women's Political Caucus. "One lesson black folks can learn from this is that whether you like it or not, they have moved things."

"The time has come for black ministers and black churches to use the power that's right there in our pockets. We are sitting on the same power and we aren't doing anything with it," she said.

In the national election, President Carter received editorial endorsements from The Charlotte Observer and the Greensboro Daily News. Republican Ronald Reagan was given an endorsement by the Winston-Salem Journal.

The Observer editors characterized the choice between the two candidates as "a choice between yearning for the past and facing the future, between quiet courage and easy bluster, between a profound understanding of the perils of the nuclear age and a dangerous view of international politics as some kind of game to be won ... Carter is clearly the safest, sanest and most promising choice Americans can make on Tuesday."

The Greensboro newspaper said the economy and the arms race are the two major issues in this year's presidential campaign. The editors said that Reagan's stand on the arms race is a dangerous one and his economic plans are unrealistic.

One Carter mistake cited by the editors was Carter's failure to give Americans a strong sense of where he would like to see this country go. But they concluded that Carter "is better equipped now to learn and to adjust than Gov. Reagan would be. The choice is not clear or easy. But then neither is the harsh world the next president will inherit."

The Winston-Salem Journal criticized Carter saying, "He has remained an outsider, inadequately versed in the exercise of power in the context of Washington, insufficiently competent to deal with a Congress of his own party."

The Journal said 'Reagan would bring to office a consistent, constructive world view that reflects the thinking of the American mainstream. And he would bring to office the unifier's impulse that would serve him so well in dealing with Congress and leading the American people.'

The Art of Carpeting & Decor

by Larry C. Whitlow

Most remodeling is done for gain of space, storage or larger and better living areas. Architectural changes, however, can be complicated. As a result, an imaginative home decorator uses different means of camouflage. For example, a windowless basement, or a sloping-walled attic, is often regarded as 'dead space' that can not be made livable without complete remodeling. With little more than bold colors and patterns this area can be made fun to live in and even fashionable. Hand made rugs and hangings, for example, are both inexpensive and unique. They are also interesting pieces on which to base a color scheme.

You'll find many interesting floor samples when you visit with us at LARRY'S CARPETLAND, INC. 3010 E. 10th St., 756-2300. Armstrong, Congoleum and Mannington vinyl floors, as well as Courtistan Oriental Rugs and Calloway area rugs are available. We'll be happy to help you with decorating that new addition. Open Mon. thru Fri. 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Sat. 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

DECORATING TIP: Grasscloth vinyl is stain-resistant and washable which makes it a good material for a dining room or kitchen.

Three Robbers Not FBI Men

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — An elderly Watauga County man was robbed of $300,000 in watches, silver and handguns by three men who claimed to be FBI agents, sheriff's officers said Sunday.

Jerry Vaughn, a sheriff's detective, said the robbers carried forged credentials identifying them as FBI agents and also had a search warrant.

They told the victim they were looking for watches supposedly stolen in Indiana, Vaughn said. Vaughn said the robbery occurred Saturday afternoon at the victim's home. The victim's name was withheld for his protection, the detective said.

The robbers wore threepiece business suits and hats. Vaughn said one of the three men produced a small handgun before they left but there was no shooting.

Believing the men were federal agents, the victim showed them a box containing 150 gold pocket watches valued at approximately $75,000, Vaughn said.

Two of the men went searching through the house and found a safe in the basement, authorities said. They apparently asked the man to open the safe, which contained another 300 watches, silver, silver coins, silverware and six handguns. The merchandise was valued at $225,000.

Vaughn said the robbers handcuffed the man to a support beam in the basement and escaped with the merchandise. A neighbor found him about 15 minutes later.

No one but the elderly man was at home during the incident.

Vaughn said area jewelry store owners have been asked to look for the merchandise in case the men try to sell it. The State Bureau of Investigation and law enforcement agencies along the East Coast also were alerted, he said.

Injury Is Reported Saturday

One person was reported injured and an estimated $7,070 property damage caused in a series of three traffic collisions here Saturday.

Greenville police reported Leroy Worsley of 614 Pitt St. was injured when struck by a car while walking along Memorial Drive, a half-mile south of the Airport Road intersection about 7 p.m.

Investigators reported an estimated $100 damage resulted to the car, driven by Mary Jones Jones of 1004 Ward St.

Cars driven by Gary Stephen Hall of 2621 South Wright Rd., Gwen Martin Turnage of New Bern, and Beth Watson Burnette of Route 3, Raleigh, collided about 9:50 a.m. on Charles Street, 20 feet north of the Sulgrave Road intersection, police reported, causing $500 damage to the Hall car, $2,000 damage to the Turnage car, and $150 damage to the Burnette vehicle.

Cars driven by Tommy Lee Valentine of 1303 South Greene St. and Mark Anthony Davis of Rocky Mount, collided about 10:45 p.m., according to investigators, at the intersection of Fifth and Hudson Streets.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $20 to the Valentine car and $700 to the Davis auto.

Nine Biggest States Seen Decisive Battlegrounds

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the nine biggest states that are the decisive battlegrounds in the 1980 presidential election, there should be some early indications on Tuesday night whether President Carter or Ronald Reagan has an edge in the race for the White House.

In most cases, the large cities and whether they deliver their usual big Democratic majorities will be what both candidates will be watching.

Reagan has spent a lot of time during this long campaign appealing to people who normally contribute to those big Democratic majorities to desert Carter and vote Republican this year.

His appeal has been directed particularly at blue collar workers, many of them hard hit by inflation and unemployment, and to Jewish voters unhappy with Carter's handling of U.S. relations with Israel.

To counter Reagan's appeal, Carter has portrayed his Republican opponent as a conservative opponent to traditional Democratic Party principles.

Both campaigns talk about Democrats "coming home" on Election Day, the theory that many Democrats who talked about supporting Reagan over Carter will return to their habitual voting pattern when faced with the final decision on Tuesday.

However, some analysts think many of those people may not vote.

Voter turnout appears likely to be more of a problem in the big states for Carter than for Reagan.

Here, state by state, is a rundown on what to look for in the big states on Tuesday night:

NEW YORK
With 41 electoral votes, the second biggest prize among the states, Carter came out of New York City in 1976 with a margin of more than 716,000 votes and carried the state by more than 288,000.

The New York City returns will give an early indication whether Jewish voters are deserting Carter in substantial numbers. Watch also for the size of John Anderson's vote. The independent presidential candidate has the endorsement of New York's Liberal Party. If he runs well, it hurts Carter.

Reagan must counter the New York City Democratic votes with big GOP majorities in the suburbs and Upstate New York. In a losing cause, Gerald R. Ford carried the Long Island counties of Suffolk and Nassau by a total margin of 67,000 votes. Ford topped Carter by more than 35,000 votes in Westchester County and by 39,000 in Onondaga County in the northern part of the state.

NEW JERSEY
Three densely populated counties — Hudson, Essex and Middlesex — across the Hudson River from New York have big Democratic majorities in registration. In Hudson County that margin is 11 to 1, but the county also is an area targeted by Reagan in his appeal for blue-collar votes. If the vote is close in those three Democratic counties, Reagan probably will carry the state.

Bergen County, in the same area of the state, gave Ford a majority of more than 56,000 four years ago when he captured New Jersey's 17 electoral votes.

PENNSYLVANIA
The third largest state with 27 electoral votes, the key to Carter's hopes in Pennsylvania is his majority in Philadelphia. Normally a Democrat needs a majority of 150,000 to 200,000 in Philadelphia. Four years ago, when he carried the state, Carter's margin in Philadelphia was 255,579.

There are signs Carter will run behind normal Democratic majorities in the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton areas with large blue-collar and ethnic voting populations targeted by Reagan.

OHIO
One of the closest big state votes in 1976 saw Carter take Ohio's 25 electoral votes by a margin 11,116 out of more than four million total votes.

Cleveland and Akron came through with a Democratic majority of 135,000 for Carter over Ford, while Cincinnati and Columbus produced nearly offsetting majorities for Ford.

Cleveland is the place to watch this year to see if the Democrats can match their 93,592 majority for Carter in 1976. If Cleveland's blacks don't turn out in large numbers and if the large ethnic blocs shift to Republican, Carter is in trouble in the state.

MICHIGAN
Detroit turns out one-third of the Democratic vote in the state and gave Carter a majority of 200,179 in Ford by 197,028 votes.

By contrast, Democrat Donald Riegler defeated Marvin Esch in the Senate race that year by a margin of 196,000 votes. Riegler carried Detroit by 278,000 votes.

Reagan has not run well in Michigan in the past, but some polls show him the winner. However, if Carter can improve a little on his 1976 margin in Detroit, he could carry the state since Reagan isn't likely to run as well as Ford in other areas of Michigan.

ILLINOIS
Experts usually divide Illinois into three areas for political forecasting: the city of Chicago, its surrounding suburbs and Downstate Illinois.

Anderson is a factor in the contest for his home state's 26 electoral votes.

Carter must carry Chicago by at least 350,000 votes and do better in the suburbs than he did in 1976, when Ford carried the suburban counties by 376,600. That left Carter with a lead of only 42,400 going into the Downstate areas which Ford carried by 155,300.

Anderson is likely to cut into the Reagan vote in the suburbs. If Anderson runs well, it would make Carter's task easier.

FLORIDA
Carter will have trouble matching the usual large Democratic majorities in the Miami area because of disaffection among black and Jewish voters.

Carter carried the state by 166,469 in 1976. His margin in the Miami area was 92,000. He is not expected to come close to that Miami margin this year, and Reagan is given a strong chance to carry Florida. If Carter causes a surprise by matching his 1976 showing in Miami he could hold the state.

TEXAS
Both sides agree that a big turnout favors Carter in the contest for the state's 26 electoral votes. Unlike most of the big states, the largest Texas cities provide Republican majorities. Reagan strategists say a 100,000 margin for their candidate out of the Dallas and Houston totals would be enough to offset the expected Democratic majorities in the eastern and southern parts of the state.

Carter received 87 percent of the Mexican-American vote four years ago. Reagan hopes to keep that percentage below 80 this year.

CALIFORNIA
Reagan's home base is the biggest prize with 45 electoral votes. The early returns usually come from heavily Democratic Northern California. Carter would have to open up a lead of at least 150,000 in the early returns to offset later totals from heavily Republican districts in Southern California.

Carter lost California to Ford by only 140,000 votes in 1976. Carter never has won an election in the state. Reagan, who served two terms as governor, never has lost an election there.

Three Men Die In Fiery Crash

By The Associated Press
Three Greensboro men were killed in a fiery automobile accident Sunday in Richmond County.

They were among 14 people who died in traffic accidents in North Carolina during the weekend. Those deaths raised the highway toll for the year to 1,243, compared with 1,263 at the same time last year.

Mount, David Nettles, 43, and Cleveland Nettles, were killed in a two-car collision on an exit ramp on Interstate 95 west of Rocky Mount.

Jeffrey Lee Davis, 18, of Spring Hope also was killed when his car struck a tree off a rural road near Spring Hope.

The Highway Patrol said Curtis McCray and two Greensboro brothers, Ronald Brown, 25, and Joseph Brown, 26, died in the Richmond County accident. Their car ran off U.S. 220 about two miles north of Ellerbe, crashed into trees near the highway and burst into flames.

Nancy Moorfield Bradsher, 43, of Rocky Mount was killed in a head-on collision on N.C. 62 eight miles south of Milton. Another head-on collision on U.S. 64 seven miles from Tarboro took the life of Steven Allen Hodge, 27, of Mount Pleasant, S.C.

Curtis Neal Brooks, 31, of Prospect Hill died when his car ran off N.C. 62 seven miles north of Burlington. A two-car accident at an intersection on a rural road 10 miles north of Raeford killed Carter Dwyer Stephens, 26, of Fayetteville.

The victims were trapped in the car, the patrol said. Two people from Rocky Norman Talmadge Lane, 54, of Asheville was killed when his car struck an embankment in his hometown. A.C. Whitley, 51, of Hays was killed when his car left a rural road eight miles north of North Wilkesboro and struck a tree.

John Charles Herring, 16, of Mount Olive was killed when his car overturned on a road near Mount Olive. Another Wayne County accident took the life of George Andrew Taylor, 63, of Pikeville.

Backer Claims Only Friendship

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — TV evangelist Jim Bakker says he joined President Carter on a campaign trip last week out of friendship and not out of political preference.

Bakker, who has said he will not endorse a presidential candidate, spent most of Friday with Carter, flying with him from Memphis to Jackson, Miss., and then appearing with the president in a motorcade and a speech.

Bakker, head of the Charlotte-based PTL television network, was invited to make the trip by Carter, PTL spokesmen said. The spokesmen said Bakker and Carter spent much of the flight in private conversation, with Bakker praying and reading Bible verses.

Mumified Body Found In Home

ELMONT, N.Y. (AP) — The mummified remains of an 88-year-old woman who had not been seen for four or five months have been found in the bedroom of her home, police said.

Police said they discovered the remains of Julie Spath on Saturday after other relatives of the woman told police they had not seen her since May or June. Police said the woman apparently had been dead for several months. The cause of death was not immediately determined.

A nephew by marriage, 46-year-old Everett Oest, and his two daughters, aged 12 and 19, had been living with the woman, police said.

Why Ed Warren belongs in the House.

We need the representative in the N.C. House that can best represent the needs of Pitt and Greene Counties in education, health care, agriculture and business. That's why we need Ed Warren.

Ed understands our education needs.
Ed Warren knows our educational system from the inside. He has been a principal in Belvoir, Falkland, Ayden and Greenville. Plus, he has worked with Pitt Community College and East Carolina University. Ed understands the needs of the total public education system.

Ed has business and local government experience.
Ed Warren is a small businessman. By being in tobacco farming and sales, and as a rental agent, he knows what's involved and what it takes to make a living. He views government spending with an equally conservative eye.

Ed knows how to keep our health system healthy.
As past Chairman of the Pitt County Hospital Board of Trustees, Chairman of the Pitt County Health Board, past Chairman of the Mental Health Association, and past Chairman of the Pitt County Heart Fund, Ed knows our health system, too.

Ed is an active farmer.
Ed Warren has been involved with agriculture since the day he was born. In fact, he spent his early years working the land for a share of the profits. He knows what it's like to farm nowadays and he understands the farmer's problems, because he still farms.

You can be sure that Ed will see that farmers get a fair shake from state government.

See Big Stakes Involved In Legislative Elections

By CHARLES C. HILL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — General legislative elections are scheduled Tuesday in 43 states, and Republicans are using national money and expertise in an effort to restore GOP dominance after more than 20 years of Democratic control in most states. The stakes are higher than ever this year, with the added cachet of reapportionment.

State legislatures, after the final 1980 census results are in, will redesign the congressional and legislative districts according to population shifts. How those boundaries are drawn can significantly affect the 1982 congressional elections.

Democrats now control both houses in 30 legislatures, Republicans control 13 legislatures, and the other seven are split.

The Democrats are depending on voter registration and turnout drives for all candidates — local, state and national — to maintain their dominance.

Les Francis, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, says one reason for the party's reliance on these measures is that Democrats don't have "the financial resources the Republicans have."

Francis said he expects Democrats to retain their legislative advantage in the Nov. 4 election, although he noted that "if the Democrats stay home, Republicans will be elected."

Republicans haven't held an edge in control of state legislatures since 1955.

But the man in charge of local elections for the Republican National Committee, Joe Gaylord, said he expects the GOP to trim the Democratic margin to 25-17 and contends there's an outside chance they could draw even at 23-23.

The Republican National Committee has contributed more than $16 million to state legislative candidates. The GOP Action Committee (GOPAC), created to raise money for state races, has given $500,000 to 350 Republicans challenging incumbent Democratic legislators.

"The principal reason for going through this is to try to win back some of the congressional districts that have been gerrymandered," said JEB Carney, executive director of GOPAC.

"We received 46 percent of the vote in congressional elections in 1978 but only won 36 percent of those races," he said. "What we're after is a fair reapportionment in 1981."

Francis doesn't expect any upsets, but said even if they occur, "there's only so much you can do" with reapportionment.

He said of the Democrats' registration and turnout effort: "We had hoped to be able to do more. The fact of the matter is it's difficult to raise money and for Democrats, it's impossible to raise money in the same amount that the Republicans do."

The Republicans also had hoped to do more.

Carney said GOPAC's original goal was to raise $1 million for 700 candidates. The program was cut in half when GOPAC didn't get as much money as it had hoped for and found fewer candidates that met its criteria, he said.

"We don't support incumbents and we don't support candidates who are in a sure position of winning, and we don't support anybody who has enough money already," he said.

"By design, our win rate will be low, simply because we are not giving to sure winners, and generally speaking (we are giving) to people who are running for the first time," Carney said.

"We only need a little better than 110 victories in the right districts to win control of half the legislatures in the country," he said.

Gaylord said he expects the GOP to gain control of legislatures in Maine, Montana, Pennsylvania and Washington, and said the party has a chance to gain the upper hand in Alaska, Delaware, Illinois, Minnesota, New York, Ohio and Tennessee legislatures.

He said he expects the Democrats to retain control in Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas and West Virginia.

Democrats also control legislatures in seven states that do not have a general legislative election Nov. 4: Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Jersey and Virginia.

Republicans control both houses of legislatures in Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming.

Nebraska's unicameral legislature is technically non-partisan, but Republicans outnumber Democrats.

Word Is Spreading Wallace Eyes '82

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — For the first time in 16 years, George Wallace isn't running in a presidential campaign. And to hear him tell it, his name may never appear on a ballot again.

But from Mobile to Dothan to Bridgeport to Florence, the talk among old-time state politicians is that Wallace, a three-time governor of Alabama, will hit the campaign trail in 1982 for governor or some other office.

"He hasn't said he will run again, but we have gotten the word to keep the wheels of the Wallace campaign well-oiled. We are doing that," said a long-time aide.

"I'll never say never," Wallace said in an interview, puffing on his ever-present cigar. "But right now, I have no intentions of running again. All things have to come to an end. I have served my time and that time is now over."

Wallace, 61, sought the presidency four times in his career — 1964, 1968, 1972 and 1976. Wallace is a paraplegic, a victim of a 1972 assassination attempt while campaigning for president in Laurel, Md.

Wallace is now director of rehabilitation services for the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

"Right now, I can't think of anything that would make me change my mind and run for governor again. I stay busy right here," he said.

Anderson Cites Voters' Rights To Know 'Deal'

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Insisting that American voters have a right to know "what deal is struck," independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson says the 52 American hostages in Tehran "must come home with honor."

very, very considerable reservations."

Anderson insisted that he was "not at all concerned as to whose political benefit it might accrue" if the hostages are released by Election Day because their return "is so important that any political effect that it has is wholly secondary."

But Anderson did not put political considerations totally aside, insisting that Carter must "make clear before the election what the United States government is prepared to give up in exchange for release of the hostages."

two traditional parties, they can have an impact. Nineteen-eighty will be remembered as a year when somebody shows it can be done," he said.

Anderson reacted cautiously Sunday to reports that the Iranian Parliament had approved release of the hostages if four conditions set by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini were met.

"I think we ought to know before election day what deal is struck," he said.

The Illinois congressman spent the final weekend of his longshot independent campaign for president in California, Oregon and Washington, three states where he is stronger than in most of the rest of the nation, but still a distant third to President Carter and Republican Ronald Reagan.

"The Commission is of the opinion that it is in the public interest for uniform intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates to be maintained for all telephone companies under its jurisdiction. Accordingly, the Commission has assigned this matter to Docket No. P 100, Sub 53, has instituted an investigation into said intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates, has made all telephone companies under its jurisdiction parties to the investigation and has set the matter for hearing. The Commission's investigation is for the purpose of determining if changes should be made in the present intrastate rates for these services and, if so, if the rates should be made applicable to all telephone companies under the Commission's jurisdiction."

Anderson said the release of the American prisoners would be good news, no matter who gets the benefit in the presidential race.

"I've been the plaintiff in more lawsuits around the country than I ever dreamed possible," Anderson told a Vancouver, Wash., audience, describing his battle to get on the ballot in all 50 states. "I'll be remembered for my lawsuits if nothing else."

"Our candidacy does show that if enough Americans become really dissatisfied with the candidates of the

But Anderson said one of those four conditions, American release of Iranian assets in the United States, might not be "as innocent as it appears" because that could include some previously purchased Phoenix air-to-air missiles.

"I'm not a military expert," Anderson told a Portland news conference, "but this is the kind of sophisticated air-to-air weapon that, if shipped in any quantity, might raise the possibility ... that it could hazard American aircraft that are in that area today and might possibly be involved in defense of American and western vital interests."

LONG DISTANCE MESSAGE TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

The changes in long distance rates herein under consideration include changes in rates for all categories of intrastate toll calls, changes in the mileage bands, and the establishment of two new discount time periods during weekdays of 8:00 A.M. to 9:00 A.M. and 1:00 P.M. to 2:00 P.M. The present and proposed schedules are shown below.

Anderson said that as president he would not necessarily rule out delivery of Phoenix missiles in a deal releasing the hostages, but that he would have "some organized crime as head of the St. Louis underworld.

The money apparently represented St. Louis organized crime's interest in the casino. The casino was owned largely by St. Louis interests until it was purchased by entertainer Wayne Newton for $85 million last month.

Investigators kept couriers under surveillance, but no arrests have been made. The money was not seized for fear of alerting principals that an investigation was under way, the newspaper reported.

None of the 10 couriers had an arrest record or known connections with organized crime.

Before Newton's purchase, the principal owner of record of the Aladdin was Peter J. Webbe, former chief deputy St. Louis licence collector.

Casino Money Said For Mob

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police intelligence sources say between $1 million and $2 million was "skimmed" illegally from a Las Vegas casino over the past three years and diverted to the St. Louis underworld, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Post-Dispatch said Sunday that couriers — some of them businessmen and some of them casino employees — delivered as much as $50,000 monthly to St. Louis during a 20-month period. The money was skimmed off profits at the Aladdin Hotel casino to avoid taxes, the newspaper said.

The money reportedly was delivered to John J. Vitale, described by police as the interim successor to Anthony Giordano, Giordano, who died in August, was identified in a 1972 report of the Missouri Task Force on Organized Crime as head of the St. Louis underworld.

The money apparently represented St. Louis organized crime's interest in the casino. The casino was owned largely by St. Louis interests until it was purchased by entertainer Wayne Newton for $85 million last month.

Investigators kept couriers under surveillance, but no arrests have been made. The money was not seized for fear of alerting principals that an investigation was under way, the newspaper reported.

None of the 10 couriers had an arrest record or known connections with organized crime.

TO ALL TELEPHONE COMPANY SUBSCRIBERS NOTICE OF HEARING

DOCKET NO. P-100, SUB 53
BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the North Carolina Utilities Commission has instituted an investigation into the rates, charges, and regulations applicable within North Carolina for long distance, WATS and interexchange private line service. This action is made necessary as a result of the Commission's review of Bell Telephone and Telephone Company's application for rate adjustments for long distance, WATS and interexchange private line service, changes in intrastate toll rates, and changes in interexchange private line rates for Southern Bell, AT&T, and other carriers operating in North Carolina.

The Commission is of the opinion that it is in the public interest for uniform intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates to be maintained for all telephone companies under its jurisdiction. Accordingly, the Commission has assigned this matter to Docket No. P 100, Sub 53, has instituted an investigation into said intrastate long distance, WATS and interexchange private line rates, has made all telephone companies under its jurisdiction parties to the investigation and has set the matter for hearing. The Commission's investigation is for the purpose of determining if changes should be made in the present intrastate rates for these services and, if so, if the rates should be made applicable to all telephone companies under the Commission's jurisdiction.

LONG DISTANCE MESSAGE TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICE

The changes in long distance rates herein under consideration include changes in rates for all categories of intrastate toll calls, changes in the mileage bands, and the establishment of two new discount time periods during weekdays of 8:00 A.M. to 9:00 A.M. and 1:00 P.M. to 2:00 P.M. The present and proposed schedules are shown below.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose today in the final trading session before the election. Volume was light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks climbed 8.27 to 930.20 in the first two hours of trading as advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange issues.

A leading government economist, Courtney Slater, said she believes the economy is still growing and predicted the gross national product, after adjusting for inflation, will rise in the fourth quarter at a rate greater than the 1 percent annual increase shown in the third quarter.

Concerns about interest rates continued to affect the market. Morgan Guaranty raised its rate on loans to brokers by one-half point to 14.5 percent and there were widespread predictions that the Federal Reserve will raise the discount rate after the election.

Richardson Merrill was up 2 1/2 to 34 1/2 after agreeing to sell its prescription drug business to Dow Chemical for $260 million. Dow was unchanged at 32 1/2.

Among stocks showing strength in early trading were Boeing, up 1 1/2 to 37 1/2, Becton Dickinson, up 1 to 42, and International Business Machines, which climbed 3/4 to 67.

Lake Report Unreceived

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Elections Board still has not received the campaign finance report for Republican candidate for governor I. Beverly Lake Jr., board director Alex Brock said today.

The report was due under state law last Monday, a week ago. Brock said today that he notified Lake's campaign that its report was late on Thursday and that representatives of Lake's campaign said Friday evening they had been sent by registered mail.

A spokeswoman for the Lake campaign, Susy Flemming, said today she did not know what the status of the report was.

Brock said he would again notify the campaign's attorney if the report isn't forthcoming.

But any such action would probably not come until after Tuesday's election, he said. Brock said he would give the Lake campaign a few more days to see if the report turns up.

The Lake campaign is already subject to a $100 penalty — $20 a day for the first five days it is late. Brock said the report would have to be postmarked before last Saturday to avoid further penalties.

State law makes failure to comply with campaign finance reporting requirements a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of as much as a $5,000 fine for the campaign committee and one year in jail.

Gov. Jim Hunt, Lake's Democratic opponent, filed his report last Monday and showed he had raised more than $2.2 million.

Tenth To Die In House Fire

CHICAGO (AP) — A fire that swept through a two-story house on the city's South Side last week has claimed its 10th victim, a 7-month-old boy, officials say. Devon Anderson, who died Sunday, had been in critical condition at the University of Chicago Hospital since Tuesday's fire, which also killed his two brothers and a sister and six other children. The boy's mother, Brenda Boyd, 29, remained hospitalized in fair condition, a hospital spokesman said. Police are still investigating the blaze. Initially, police investigators said the fire was set, but on Sunday said they had no evidence of arson.

CHICAGO (AP) — A fire that swept through a two-story house on the city's South Side last week has claimed its 10th victim, a 7-month-old boy, officials say. Devon Anderson, who died Sunday, had been in critical condition at the University of Chicago Hospital since Tuesday's fire, which also killed his two brothers and a sister and six other children. The boy's mother, Brenda Boyd, 29, remained hospitalized in fair condition, a hospital spokesman said. Police are still investigating the blaze. Initially, police investigators said the fire was set, but on Sunday said they had no evidence of arson.

WINTERTVILLE — Mrs. Martha Moyer Braxton, 83, widow of Walter T. Braxton, died at her home here, 123 Cross St. The funeral service will be conducted at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by her pastor, the Rev. Willis Wilson. Burial will follow in the Reedy Branch F.W.B. Church Cemetery.

Mrs. Braxton was a lifelong resident of the Winterville community and a member of Reedy Branch F.W.B. Church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Jean B. Humbles of the Lake campaign, Susy Flemming, said today she did not know what the status of the report was.

Brock said he would again notify the campaign's attorney if the report isn't forthcoming.

But any such action would probably not come until after Tuesday's election, he said. Brock said he would give the Lake campaign a few more days to see if the report turns up.

The Lake campaign is already subject to a $100 penalty — $20 a day for the first five days it is late. Brock said the report would have to be postmarked before last Saturday to avoid further penalties.

State law makes failure to comply with campaign finance reporting requirements a misdemeanor, with a maximum penalty of as much as a $5,000 fine for the campaign committee and one year in jail.

Gov. Jim Hunt, Lake's Democratic opponent, filed his report last Monday and showed he had raised more than $2.2 million.

Youth Wins Three Ribbons

Miss Katrina Steinbeck of Greenville received three ribbons on her entries in the North Carolina State Fair.

Including first place, blue ribbon, friendship bracelet; second place, red ribbon, woven reed basket; and fifth place, yellow ribbon, cross stitch picture.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steinbeck. She is a fourth grade student at South Greenville Elementary School.

Peanut Meet Will Be Held

Peanut farmers in Pitt and surrounding counties will have an opportunity to voice their opinions on the current peanut program November 5 at 10 a.m. at the Farm Bureau building on Greenville Boulevard.

The current peanut program was initiated in 1978 and will be in effect through 1981. After the 1981 growing season, the present program may be reinstated or new programs developed.

In order to obtain the attitude of peanut farmers on how peanut acreages and allotments should be handled, or if a new program is desired, the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association will be gathering suggestions to present to legislators in Washington, D.C.

Persons who raise peanuts or rent land for peanut production, or who have opinions on how peanuts should be regulated should attend this meeting. Refreshments will be served at 9:45 a.m.

CUB MEETING

Cub Scout Pack 330, sponsored by Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church here, will meet Tuesday evening, Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. at the church.

A pack spokesman said that all boys who are eight years of age or have finished the second grade, and are interested in scouting, are invited to attend the meeting with their parents.

'Keeping Up With The Joneses'

NAIA President Leroy Walker Argues It's Killing College Football

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It's an infectious and potentially terminal disease afflicting major college sports, particularly football — and the doctor has a name for it.

"Keeping up with the Joneses is killing us," says Dr. Leroy Walker, former Olympic track coach, educator and current president of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

"Unless stringent measures are taken, and taken soon, we will wind up with two concepts in our university system — one with the emphasis on education with sports an ancillary, the other a collection of athletic factories, highly commercialized, dedicated to entertainment rather than learning.

"Before it's too late, we must return to the philosophy of Plato, who said sports and education are not just for an elite few but for everyone, men and women alike. Plato originated Title IX."

Walker, president of North Carolina Central University in Durham, N.C., is a Paul Revere sounding an alarm and a summons for a return to sanity in sports.

Calling attention to abuses which have brought penalties to half the teams in the Pac-10, including Southern Cal and UCLA, probations for Auburn and Oklahoma State and scandals at New Mexico and Long Beach State covering various violations, the well-known Southern educator listed three principal concerns:

1. Over-commercialism.
2. Commitment to entertainment rather than education.
3. Deterioration of ethics in sports.

"But who," he added, "is going to bell the cat?"

"The trend is for more and bigger stadia, more appearances on national TV at $400,000 a pop, stronger and more successful teams regardless of the cost, win, win, win."

"It's time for a new Sanity Code."

Walker recalled that the National Collegiate Athletic Association, threatened with runaway abuses among football powers in the 1950s, invoked a code of conduct outlawing under-the-table payments to star athletes, restricting scholarships and imposing strict penalties for infractions and over-emphasis.

"It is a false assumption that you need potential pros to fill 100,000-seat stadiums such as you have at Michigan," he said. "A couple of years ago I attended a Yale-Harvard game. There were 50,000 people in the stands."

"It was a close, exciting game. Everybody had a wonderful time. Remember these are schools that don't have spring training, no intensified recruiting, scholarships awarded on academic merit. Yet they can give you as good a show as anybody."

Few can speak as knowledgeably of the collegiate situation as this self-educated black man, born in Atlanta, one of 13 children, who attended Benedict College in Columbia, S.C., got his Masters Degree at Columbia University and his PhD at New York U., all the while winning 12 letters in four sports.

He is renowned as the track and field coach who accompanied the first U.S. team to Mainland China, tutored the U.S. team in the 1976 Olympics and became an executive board member of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

As president of the NAIA, headquartered in Kansas City, he presides over a complex of 515 colleges with 1.2 million students which is called the "little brother" of the NCAA. The body, made up largely of smaller colleges, holds 250 different district playoffs.

"Two hundred of our schools have adopted full women's programs," he said. "We pride ourselves in the fact that we have turned out some of the nation's most prominent athletes and never had a major scandal."

"Also, we have never had a national championship on network TV. We are like any other minority. Our entire budget is less than $1 million — less than what the NCAA pays for lobbying and legal fees, less than what Southern Cal gets for one appearance in the Rose Bowl."

The "Who's Who" of sports is loaded with NAIA graduates — Walter Payton, Too Tall Jones, Harvey Martin in football, Lou Brock and Vida Blue in baseball, Willis Reed and Lucius Jackson in basketball, Ralph Boston and Bruce Jenner in track and field, to name only a few.

Said Walker: "You don't need to be rich and big to produce an athlete and a scholar. It's best when you can have both."

Cale Slices Dale's Points Advantage To 29 With Victory

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Neither Cale Yarborough nor Dale Earnhardt would give an inch.

Here they were Sunday, racing doorhandle to doorhandle with just three laps to go in the Atlanta Journal 500 Grand National stock car race.

But it was simply a two-way psyche job for a race still two weeks away.

Yarborough's Chevrolet was well ahead of second place Neil Bonnett's Mercury, and Earnhardt had third place sewed up and was a lap behind the two leaders.

But neither would give any quarter in this brief sprint that symbolized their ongoing battle for the championship.

Yarborough's victory, by two seconds over Bonnett, sliced Earnhardt's margin in the series to just 29 points with only the finale at Ontario, Calif., on Nov. 15 remaining.

It would have meant little neither in the results for either to slow and let the other go ahead. Yet they roared dramatically and dangerously side-by-side to the finish line, with Yarborough first by the length of a hood.

"That was the worst thing I've seen in all my years of racing," Yarborough said. "There was no need for him to do that, but I wasn't going to let him get away with it."

But there was no real hostility in the voice of the 40-year-old veteran from Timmonsville, S.C., going for his fourth national championship in what apparently is his final season as a full-time driver.

He was too happy about his second victory in a row and sixth of the season to really explode about the challenge from the 29-year-old Earnhardt.

"You can bet I'm going to talk to him about it, though," Yarborough said.

"I wasn't sure I was a lap down," the brash Earnhardt explained. "If I could have gone ahead and the scoring had been in error, I'd have been the winner. I think Cale understands my position."

Asked if the incident was a bit of psyching by both drivers in their tense championship duel, Yarborough shrugged, but there was a twinkle in his eyes.

Yarborough started 12th on the 40-car grid, but came to the front quickly after an early multicausal accident eliminated polesitter Bobby Allison, his younger brother Donnie and Darrell Waltrip from contention. There were no injuries.

Other challengers fell away because of mechanical problems or simply the speed of Yarborough's car.

"I don't think I've ever run a race where the car ran better all day long. We didn't have to make a single chas UNUSUAL," Yarborough explained.

He won first prize money totaling $31,600, averaging 131.190 mph on Atlanta International Raceway's 1.522-mile banked oval.

Yarborough led 269 of the 328 laps in the 500-mile race, taking the lead for good with 16 laps remaining after Bonnett mounted one last challenge.

Face Cleveland Tonight

Bears Out For Revenge

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two intangible aspects of tonight's nationally televised National Football League game would seem to favor the Chicago Bears over the Cleveland Browns, but Browns Coach Sam Rutigliano disdains both.

First, the Browns are coming off an emotional 27-26 victory over the archrival Pittsburgh Steelers, and an emotional letdown against the Bears has been discussed since the moment the game with the Steelers ended.

Second, Cleveland edged the Bears 33-31 during the pre-season, largely because starting Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe played the entire game and pulled out the victory by picking apart some second-string Chicago defenders. Revenge could be a high Chicago priority this evening.

"I don't think of the possibility of an emotional letdown as a problem," Rutigliano said. "Preparation is the key word, not the will to win. An emotional letdown is a danger if you're not prepared, and we will be. Beating the Steelers was a great achievement, but achievements come from continuous efforts."

His club has shown emotion toughness several times this season, the coach said.

"We fought back from those two disappointing losses at the start of the season to New England and Houston and from a game (against Denver) we should have won more than any other," Rutigliano said. "Now, we must continue with the same effort, through preparation. We learned after we almost lost to Green Bay that we have to do more than just show up for a game."

Regarding the pre-season contest in Chicago, which the Browns won after falling behind 28-6 at the half, Rutigliano said he had originally planned to give some work to his reserve quarterbacks.

"But Brian needed the work, so we changed our plans. We kept the regular offensive line in because we didn't want Brian working behind inexperienced players and possibly getting hurt."

The Bears enter the game 3-5, the Browns 5-3.

Steelers Win—But Just Barely

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It wasn't very stylish. In fact, it was very un-Pittsburghlike. But it was enough.

"We got a win. It's been a month since the last one. This feels good," defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the Steelers, still in the uncomfortable position of a place elsewhere than first, ended a three-game tailspin — their worst in four seasons — by edging the Green Bay Packers 22-20 Sunday.

"We won. I don't care how we did it. It's a good feeling and hopefully it's a turning point," added Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw. In fact, they won it by the margin of a safety, one of two first-quarter blunders by rookie Buddy Aydelette of the Packers, whose errant snaps of the ball in punting situations led to nine of the Steelers' points.

A loss Sunday would have matched Pittsburgh's longest nosedive since 1969, when Chuck Noll became the Steelers' coach and began his odyssey with a 1-13 season. "We'd lost three games in a row," Noll said. "After that, any kind of victory is impressive. We're headed in the right direction. We are starting to get it back."

Elsewhere in the National Football League it was Houston 20, Denver 16; San Diego 31, Cincinnati 14; Oakland 16, Miami 10; New England 34, the New York Jets 21; Atlanta 30, Buffalo 13; Los Angeles 45, New Orleans 31; Philadelphia 27, Seattle 20; Dallas 27, St. Louis 24; Detroit 17, San Francisco 13; Tampa Bay 30, the New York Giants 13; Baltimore 31, Kansas City 24, and Minnesota 39, Washington 14. Chicago visits the Cleveland Browns tonight.

"I thought our team played darn well," Coach Bart Starr of the Packers said. "It's unfortunate that nine points came as a result of breakdowns. It's something we have to live with and do our best to overcome."

Woody Peele

East Carolina's football team took a step closer to another winning season Saturday night, but the difficulty in which that win came showed that from here on out it will not be an easy task.

While Greg Stewart provided good leadership against the Indians, and earned valuable experience, he and his teammates have another tough task ahead of them.

Right away, they must face the team — the only team so far — that beat Florida State, a team that hung a 63-7 whipping on the Pirates. The Miami Hurricanes are a tough team, and the Pirates will again be hard-pressed to keep their 106-game scoring streak alive. That streak now stands third in the country, moving up after N.C. State's 110-game streak came to an end against Maryland on Saturday.

Following Miami will be Eastern Kentucky. While most folks may not be familiar with that team, it was the national Division II champion last year, and has lost only twice this season. It will be another stern test.

And finally, the Pirates will close out the year against N.C. State. The Wolfpack has fallen on some hard times, and strangely enough, could be the weakest of the remaining foes. However, when the Pirates and Wolfpack meet in Carter-Finley Stadium, the record books go out the window and it's anybody's scrap.

With the injuries the Pirates have sustained, coupled with their youth, winning four of eight games is good, but it really should have been better. Southwestern Louisiana will forever haunt the 1980 team as one that got away.

And before the year is over, it could mean the difference in another winning year.

During the William & Mary game, we had the opportunity to talk with some people from the Virginia area about the possibilities of a new non-football conference.

Last year, six schools, East Carolina, William & Mary, Richmond, Old Dominion, James Madison, and Navy came within an eyelash of announcing the formation of a new league. However, at the time, William & Mary opted out at the last minute, and things fell through. Navy, since then, has joined another group.

Last month, William & Mary, Old Dominion, James Madison and Richmond announced that they will withdraw from the ECAC's Southern Division next year.

This brings hopes of a new conference to life again.

While East Carolina officials have been mum about anything going on, William & Mary athletic director Ben Carnavale hinted that some meetings have been going on. He indicated that there seemed to be the proper setting for the formation of a new league, involving the five schools, plus another. He indicated that once these six got together, there would probably be others interested in getting in also.

Harold Pearson, a veteran newsman from the Richmond area, also said that reports have begun to pick up in Virginia of the possible formation of a new league. He said that the sixth school, not Virginia Commonwealth, reportedly was currently involved in another conference, but wanted out. He, too, felt that others would be interested once the league is formed.

However, it is unlikely that more than one or two others would be asked to join in. The reason for the four quitting the ECAC was the rule providing for round-robin league play for conference to receive automatic NCAA byes, and the ECAC was too unwieldy for that.

What will happen is still yet to be decided. However, we would hope that those involved — and we hope that does include East Carolina — will act with deliberate haste. A league could begin functioning by next basketball season if not long delayed in its formation.

Steinbrenner, Howser Meet

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner met with Manager Dick Howser Sunday night, reportedly to discuss Howser's future with the team, and the 30-minute session ended with no apparent solution.

"We had a nice meeting, talked things over and exchanged ideas," Steinbrenner said. "We will probably meet again in a few days."

Howser flew to Tampa from his winter home in Tallahassee, Fla., to meet with Steinbrenner and General Manager Gene Michael Sunday afternoon. But the Yankees owner kept Howser waiting for nearly six hours before he arrived at the Bay Harbor Inn hotel at 8 p.m. from his horse farm in Ocala, Fla.

"The main thing is we're not finished yet," said Michael. "Give us a little more time and it will all come out correctly. It's not easy to go over things of such importance."

Although the Yankees won 103 games and the American League's East Division, they were swept by Kansas City in the league playoffs and Steinbrenner has made critical statements about the way Howser handled the club in his first year as manager.

"We had a meeting and we kicked around ideas. I'd rather not talk about the area of the ideas we discussed," said Howser. "You're going to get a lot of no comments from me from here on in."

One of the reasons for Steinbrenner's displeasure was a complaint Howser made to a reporter about the owner's failure to consult with him in Steinbrenner's effort to sign former Boston Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer as third base coach.

Heels Tigers After Sooner Loss

By BILL WERONKA
Associated Press Writer

Through seven games sixth-ranked North Carolina has built quite a defensive record — allowing only 39 points and 528 yards rushing.

But Saturday, 16th-ranked Oklahoma made a shambles of the Tar Heels' proud defense — rushing for 495 yards and beating them 41-7.

The loss halted a 10-game winning streak for UNC dating back to last year.

The Tar Heels suffered from missed opportunities, turnovers and the dazzling maneuvers of Sooner quarterback J.C. Watts, who ran for 139 yards and three touchdowns.

North Carolina coach Dick Crum said Watts was the main reason for the Tar Heels loss before the 74,825 fans in Norman, Okla.

"He can do so many things with that offense," he said. "He can go inside or outside, and when he fires those pitch-outs — well, there aren't many who can get it out there that quickly. Watts is the key to their whole offense."

Tailback Amos Lawrence was the only bright spot for North Carolina on a bleak afternoon. He rushed for 106 yards and became the school's all-time leading rusher.

In conference action Maryland, 6-3, remained the team with the best shot of capturing the Atlantic Coast Conference title should the Tar Heels, 3-0, falter. The Terps shut out North Carolina State, 24-0, and boosted their conference record to 3-1. The Wolfpack fell to 4-4 over-all and 2-3 in the ACC.

In conference action next week North Carolina tries to bounce back against Clemson and the Deacons try to snap their losing streak at Duke. In other games, N.C. State travels to Penn State, Virginia hosts Rutgers and Georgia Tech hosts North Duke.

UVA 16, TENN. 13

Last year Virginia celebrated when it upset Georgia 31-0. Saturday's celebration was much like that one as Cavalier place-kicker Wayne Morrison kicked four field goals and the Cavalier defense shut down the Vols offense.

"No one pushes us around anymore," Cavalier coach Dick Bestwick said. "It shows people that we have brought our football program further than anyone could have imagined."

CLEMSON 35, WAKE 33

It almost turned into one of days for Clemson. A number of pass interference calls, a blocked punt, two inside kicks and the Deacons had scored four touchdowns, all in the fourth quarter. But along the way they missed a couple of two-point conversions and trailed by two points. Still they had another chance after recovering the second inside kick. But Clemson's Terry Kinard intercepted a Jay Venuto pass with 44 seconds left to salvage the victory.

Quite an achievement considering the Deacons were down 35-7 early in the fourth quarter, thanks to interceptions, fumbles and penalties.

Clemson coach Danny Ford was relieved after the game, but said he wished he could have stopped the game after the third quarter.

It was a record day, though. Venuto set an ACC record with 56 passing attempts and receiver Kenny Duckett caught his ninth touchdown pass of the season for an ACC record. Clemson place-kicker Obed Ariri put four field goals through the cross bars to bring his career total to 56, tying an NCAA record.

MARYLAND 24, NCSU 0

Wolfpack coach Monte Kiffin put it simply. "We just didn't play well," he said.

Maryland tailback Charlie Wysocki led the way for the Terps, going over 1,000 yards for the season with 132 yards rushing.

The Terps also ended the Wolfpack's 112-game scoring streak.

DUKE 17, Ga. TECH 12

The Blue Devils have had this problem of playing two halves of football this year. They had the same problem Saturday, building a 17-0 halftime lead and then holding on for dear life.

"We play in halves," Duke coach Red Wilson said. "I don't know what it is about us getting big leads and not being able to hold them. If I knew that, I'd be the psychic of all time."

Happiness is What I sell!

Johnson Is Making People Take Notice

By The Associated Press
Marques Johnson has a way of making people take notice. Sunday night it was the Indiana Pacers who watched the Milwaukee Bucks' forward bombard the nets for 40 points.

"Forty is a magic number because other players will pick up the paper and say, 'Hey, that guy scored 40,'" Johnson said.

"But really, what it means is our 10th win in a row," he said. "The points came tonight. Tomorrow they could go to someone else. Everything was just falling smoothly for me, and I was in the right place at the right time."

The Bucks, playing without star center Bob Lanier, cruised to a 135-121 National Basketball Association victory as Johnson matched his career high point production.

The Bucks used a switching, trapping defense to jump out to an early 32-12 lead as Johnson scored 18 points in the first 9:05 of play. The defense forced several turnovers which Milwaukee converted into easy layups.

"That's the name of the game — to get as many easy baskets as you can," Johnson said. "We were pretty equal in terms of talent, but we broke their press fairly easily and got a lot of 2-on-1 and 3-on-1 situations."

"That's really demoralizing to the other team when you get those easy baskets after they've just worked so hard to get their own."

The Bucks played without star center Bob Lanier, who rested his chronically sore knees. "That is frightening," Indiana Coach Jack McKinney said. "They're a very, very good team, and they proved tonight they can play very well without any one guy. They can play well enough to make up for the lack of any one player."

Quinn Buckner added 20 points for Milwaukee while

Billy Knight and Johnny Davis had 20 each for the Pacers.

Blazers 102, Cavaliers 96
A third-period surge, led by Jim Paxson, led Portland to victory as the Trail Blazers broke a four-game losing streak. In one stretch, Paxson scored six straight points and handed out three assists in a 14-4 Portland spurt.

Ron Brewer topped the balance Portland scoring with 18 points while Mike Mitchell led the Cavs with 23.

Nuggets 123, Lakers 121
Two free throws by David

Thompson with two seconds remaining snapped a tie and gave Denver its come-from-behind victory over Los Angeles. Thompson finished the game with 31 points as Denver came from 10 points down in the final period.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar then missed a 17-foot jump shot at the buzzer that would have knotted the score.

Alex English and Dan Issel added 29 and 25 points, respectively, for the Nuggets. Jamaal Wilkes paced the Lakers with 26 points.

Rosettes Start 1980 Campaign

The Rosettes' Nancy Johnson took one first and three third to capture the all-around Class 3 championship this past weekend in a six-team gymnastics meet here.

The meet, a Class 3, 2 and 1 compulsory meet, included teams from Wilmington, Fayetteville, Jacksonville, Southern Pines and Durham and required all 92 participants to do the same routines. Class 1 is the hardest level of competition, followed by Class 2 and then Class 1.

The Rosettes ended up fourth in Class 3 competition as a team and third in Class 2 as a team.

Johnson, in the 12-14 age group, paced the Rosettes in their opening meet of the season with a first in the uneven bars (7.8) and thirds in floor exercise (7.9), balance beam (5.8) and vaulting (7.7). All of which added up to a first in the Class 3 all-around competition with a score of 29.2.

Jennifer Newton was fourth in the all-around with a score of 27.15. She was first in floor exercise (8.2), second in balance beam (6.15) and fifth in vaulting (7.25).

In Class 2 competition in the 15-and-over age group, Judy Benson finished third all around while Jenny Johnsrude also was fourth. Benson came in with an all-around score of 28.45, taking second in balance beam (7.65), third in floor exercise (7.65), fourth in vaulting (7.9) and fifth on the bars (5.25).

Johnsrude's all around score was 27.6. She finished first in vaulting (8.95) and fourth in floor exercise (7.4).

In other results for the Rosettes:

•Christy Garrison, in 9-11 age group (Class 2), was first in balance beam (7.2), second in floor exercise (6.55) and fourth on the bars (4.15).

•Carmela Weber, in 15-and-over age group (Class 2), was fifth in floor exercise (7.3), fifth in vaulting (7.85) and fifth in all-around (25.60).

•Kristi Jennings, in 9-11 age group (Class 3), was third in floor exercise (8.2).

•Ginger McLendon, in 15-and-over age group (Class 2), was fifth in balance beam (6.9) and sixth in all-around (25.40).

Others competing but not placing were Tracy Howell, Trica Burk and Sue Ellen Nashnar.

The Rosettes next meet will be on Thanksgiving weekend when they travel to Charlotte for the Turkey Tumble Invitational.

Loss Leaves Bear Upset

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Defending national champion Alabama's 6-3 loss to Mississippi State in Jackson Saturday was not your everyday loss — Bear Bryant had something to complain about.

"I know it's going to be a lot tougher beating us the next time," Bryant said Sunday. "If not, I'll go back to plowing."

The Bulldog victory, the first in 22 years versus the Crimson Tide:

•Halted the nation's longest winning streak at 28.

•Kept "The Coach" from getting his 304th career victory.

•Dampened the Tide's bid to become the first team in college football history to win three consecutive national championships.

•Limited an awesome ground attack that had been averaging over 300 yards per game to just over 100 yards.

After 28 Saturday afternoons, including two national championships, Bryant has explained why his forces have won. Saturday, there were new questions and answers.

"Before the game, I didn't think we were serious enough," Bryant said. "They (the players) were carrying on Friday night on the bus like somebody had escaped from the idiot house."

But Bryant wasn't the only one disturbed.

"I just can't accept it," said freshman running back Linn Patrick, who recalled his immediate postgame reaction: "I just wanted to cry."

Steelers Just Barely Nip Pack...

Bradshaw gave Pittsburgh its first touchdown with a second-period 7-yard pass to Lynn Swann, returning after missing three games with a cracked rib. And after Matt Bahr kicked two field goals to put the Steelers on top 15-14, Bradshaw gave them what turned out to be the winning TD on a 4-yard pass to Rocky Bleier with less than five minutes to play. Lynn Dickey passed for all three Green Bay TDs.

"When you get a chance to play, you do the best you can," said Bleier, who replaced hobbling Franco Harris and rushed four consecutive times for 33 yards before catching Bradshaw's TD toss. "Other backs are bigger, they're stronger, they're faster and they're younger. They should play," Bleier added. "But I have an opportunity to contribute and be a benefit to the team in situations like that."

Oilers 20, Broncos 16

Houston's Earl Campbell was a mile high against Denver's superb rushing defense. He didn't become the first NFL player ever to gain 200 or more yards in three consecutive games, but he gained 157 yards and scored two touchdowns.

"There are a lot of imposters, but there ain't but one Earl Campbell," said Coach Bum Phillips after the Oilers took sole possession — temporarily, anyway — of first place in the American Conference's Central Division. "They're a game ahead of the Steelers and one-half ahead of the Browns."

Chargers 31, Bengals 14
The AFC Central is the only division to have just one team with a losing record — Cincinnati. The Bengals double-covered San Diego's game-breaker, John Jefferson, in the first half, so Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts picked them apart with passes to tight end Kellen Winslow. Then, when Cincinnati's attention shifted to Winslow, Fouts killed 'em with TD tosses of 9 and 16 yards to Jefferson in the third period.

The only "failure" in the game was Fouts' failure to match his own record of four consecutive 300-yard passing games, finishing with 270 yards. "We're not in this game for records," he snorted. "We're just trying to win games."

Raiders 16, Dolphins 10
Oakland, written off before the season as an also-ran, remained in a first-place tie with the Chargers at the top of the AFC West as Jim Plunkett, written off a few years ago as a washed up quarterback, continued his remarkable comeback.

He threw three first-half touchdown passes of 13 yards to Raymond Chester and 17 yards to Bob Chandler to guide the Raiders to their fourth consecutive triumph since taking over for Dan Pastorini, out for the year with a broken leg.

Patriots 34, Jets 21
New England moved into first place all by itself in the AFC East, compliments of the Jets and Atlanta.

The Jets dug themselves a nice little hole before the game was more than 12 minutes old, falling behind 17-0 on Steve Grogan's 33-yard x3pass to Russ Francis, a 75-yard punt return for a TD by Roland James and a field goal by John Smith. It ballooned to 24-0 in the second quarter when Grogan and Stanley Morgan teamed on a 9-yard TD toss.

Falcons 30, Bills 14
While Buffalo was falling out of a first-place tie, Atlanta was staying in one, with Los Angeles in the National Conference West as Lynn Cain ran for two touchdowns and Tim Mazzetti kicked three field goals for the Falcons, who wiped out the Bills' early 14-point lead.

Rams 45, Saints 31
Quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who is looking to renegotiate his contract with the Rams, gave the front office something to think about when he pierced the winless Saints' secondary for five TD passes, tying a club record.

He didn't go for a sixth, he said, "because I'm interested in winning ball games. I'm not interested in setting records."

Eagles 27, Seahawks 20
"Eight years in this league, and I haven't had an easy one yet," Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski said after his 5-yard pass to Billy Campfield put the Eagles ahead of Seattle with 2:43 to play and kept the Eagles the team with the best record in the league, 8-1.

Cowboys 27, Cardinals 24
Dallas, one game behind the Eagles in the NFC East, cut it even closer as Danny White flipped a 28-yard TD pass to Tony Hill with 45 seconds left to beat the Cardinals.

It wiped out St. Louis' lead built on Jim Hart's 34-yard scoring pass to Mel Gray early in the final period.

Lions 17, 49ers 13
Detroit's Gary Danielson also played it cozy, scoring on an 8-yard quarterback keeper with 3:42 left in the game to vault the Lions past San Francisco. Danielson also teamed with rookie running back Billy Sims on a 41-yard scoring pass in the first quarter.

Bucs 30, Giants 13
Ricky Bell ran for 130 yards and a pair of touchdowns and Garo Yepremian kicked three field goals as Tampa Bay handed the Giants their eighth successive setback.

Colts 31, Chiefs 24
Last week Baltimore's offensive line allowed Bert Jones to be sacked 12 times in a loss to St. Louis. This time the Colts protected him perfectly and were rewarded by him with two scoring passes. And the Baltimore defensive line did its share with 10 quarterback sacks against Kansas City.

Vikings 39, Redskins 14
The Vikings, whose scoring was limited to just one field goal in their last two games, turned to Steve Dils as their starting quarterback because of Tommy Kramer's injured hand. Dils, in his first pro start ever, came through with two TD passes against the Redskins.

"I'm just as surprised as anybody," he said.

Winchell's Shot Brings ECU Win

Brad Winchell's goal with 15 seconds left gave East Carolina's soccer team a hard-fought 3-2 victory over Richmond Sunday afternoon.

The victory left the Pirates at 5-14-1 with two games left.

"It was a big win for us," ECU coach Brad Smith said. "This gives us a chance to tie the school record for wins in one season (seven)."

After a scoreless opening period, ECU shot in two goals in a two-minute span. Brian Winchell scored one of the goals and brother Brad got the other. Richmond tied it up later in the half.

Then, with but 15 seconds to go, Brad Winchell shot in the winner.

Goalie Steve Brown continued to give the Pirates outstanding play at goal with 12 saves in the match.

ECU plays host to N.C. Wesleyan Nov. 6 at 3 p.m. and then travel to Coker College Nov. 9.

East Carolina 0 3-3
Goals: ECU — Bd. Winchell (2), Br. Winchell; UR — Sullivan, Viazacno; Assists: ECU — Hays; UR — Schwerdt; Shots: ECU — 19, UR — 21; Saves: ECU — Brown, 12; UR — Henderson, 11.

SEAMEN STRIKE
LONDON (AP) — About 12,000 British seamen began a one-day strike today, virtually halting British shipping from England, to protest moves by the Cunard Line to transfer two of its three cruise ships to a Bahamian flag of convenience and hire lower-paid foreign crews.

Baby Shares A Jail Stay

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — John Paul Gaetano will have plenty of time to reflect on his stay in jail. He's only 6 months old.

The child committed no crime and received no sentence, but spent 24 hours in jail. He accompanied his parents, Jeanne and David Gaetano, who were arrested and convicted of trespassing after a sit-in protest at an Alexandria abortion clinic. They left jail Sunday after serving a one-day sentence.

Mrs. Gaetano, before entering the jail Saturday, explained that her main reason for insisting that her son go with her to jail was that she is breast-feeding him "and I haven't left him before for any real length of time."

"After all," she added, "we were arrested together."

Officials said Mrs. Gaetano and John Paul were put in one isolation cell away from the other inmates and that her husband was put in another isolation cell. The Gaetanos were allowed to take with them to the jail a portable crib, diapers and other items for the baby.

Bragging Burglar May Have Broken Into 2,000 Residences

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A bragging young burglar who delighted in breaking into homes while the owners slept and may have been responsible for 2,000 thefts is keeping police guessing even after his death.

Paul Hass, 22, who had been arrested several times, told authorities with pride that he was the North Shore Burglar of Long Island, N.Y., the Gunbarrel Burglar of Colorado and the Malibu Burglar of California.

"He was a premier burglar," said Boulder County sheriff's detective Carroll Allison, who tracked Hass for weeks in 1979 during a rash of break-ins at expensive homes. "That was his profession. Just as some kids grow up to be a doctor, Paul Hass grew up to be a burglar."

Hass was slain Oct. 21, when Westport, Conn., homeowner Irving Kaye shot him once in the back of the head during a break-in, officials say.

Now police are trying to figure out where all the loot from his burglaries is stashed.

Lt. Bruce Goodman of the Boulder sheriff's department says he's convinced Hass rented safe deposit boxes throughout the country. Some of them may never be found since Hass often changed identities, using stolen driver's licenses and other identification cards, Goodman says.

"If we could put all our cases together, I'm sure we could solve 1,000 to 2,000 burglaries," said Sgt. Ronald Rafferty of the Suffolk County, N.Y., police department.

Hass, who violated probation in New York, was arrested in Boulder in 1979. He was being held in connection with the Colorado break-ins, but had not been convicted of them. Authorities said he told them about his exploits before escaping from jail shortly before Christmas of 1979. He remained at large until his death.

In Connecticut, Westport Police Lt. Ron Malone said Hass was suspected in a rash of burglaries during the nine days before he was killed.

Authorities said Kaye, a wealthy manufacturer of pool tables, was awakened by noise and noticed his television set missing.

Hass was shot near an indoor swimming pool in the home. Authorities said they found $2,700 in his pocket.

Officers who had been assigned the job of tracking Hass said he operated on the theory that when people are home, the money is there. Hass would break in while the owners slept, picking up purses and wallets. He had told friends in Boulder that he would go into bedrooms and take money while people slept.

"His attorneys seem to feel he got a special kick out of being in a house while the owners were home," said Barry Feldman, assistant district attorney in Suffolk County.

"Some people would tell us later that they have vicious dogs and they couldn't understand why the dog didn't bark," Feldman said. "But Hass had a way with dogs. He carried food for the dogs. In a couple of cases the dogs probably led him to the jewels."

Hass struck 60 times in 60 days in the Boulder area, police say, with many of the break-ins taking place in the expensive Gunbarrel neighborhood. Allison, who spent several sleepless nights waiting in a car for Hass to strike, said it was tough to catch him.

"If you can be impressed by a criminal, I was impressed by Paul Hass," said Allison. "It was a challenge to catch him."

TOBACCO GROWERS' OPEN DOOR POLICY

PRESIDENT CARTER'S and SENATOR MORGAN'S

administrations' open-door policy to tobacco growers has strengthened our support program.

Among their many accomplishments are:

- Recent trade negotiations resulting in a roll back of tariff in the European Common Market, our largest export market.
- Four-Leaf Program (Grower supported).
- Sand Grades (Grower recommended).
- Stricter acreage compliance (Grower recommended).
- Cut out speculation in fall leasing (Grower recommended).
- Withdrawal of price support on the eight grades (Grower recommended).

President Carter has made strong public commitments to our tobacco program, among many are:

- Wilson, N.C. visit in 1978 in support of the tobacco program.
- Kinston, N.C. 1980 visit by Vice President Mondale in support of the tobacco program.
- Winston-Salem, N.C., 1980 - President Carter said: "I will do whatever is necessary to close the tariff loophole in the importation of scrap tobacco."

Nursing Suit Is Due This Week

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Arguments are scheduled in Wake County Superior Court this week on a suit filed by Duke Hospital seeking a court ruling on who decides what a nurse's duties are and which jobs normally filled by a nurse may be handled by other personnel.

Duke filed the suit in April against the North Carolina Board of Nursing in an effort to settle a dispute over the use of unlicensed nursing assistants for such jobs as administering shots or monitoring intravenous injections in hospitals.

Duke and some other hospitals have used unlicensed personnel in those capacities for several years. The board of nursing has objected, contending the practice is dangerous.

The nursing board also argues that the practice violates state law stating that certain "mechanical acts" may be performed by an unlicensed person who is under the supervision of a registered nurse or physician.

"People should ask themselves this," said Ernestine Small, president of the North Carolina Nurses Association. "Are we getting what we pay for when we enter a hospital? Is the person walking into my hospital room qualified to treat me." Duke officials contend the practice is safe and helps hold the cost of medical care by freeing nurses to do more complicated jobs.

The Duke suit followed threats by the nursing board to withhold accreditation for Duke University's school of nursing. The board also has contended that Duke's action is a direct attack against the board's authority to set and maintain standards for the nursing profession.

Russell Tranbarger of Greensboro, nursing board member and director of nursing for Moses Cone Hospital, said if institutions are allowed to set standards, it could lead to unequal standards of nursing care.

The state hospital association, which represents more than 150 hospitals across North Carolina, joined Duke in the suit. The nurses association, which represents 3,500 registered nurses, and the N.C. Licensed Practical Nurses Association intervened on the side of the state nursing board.

The nursing board has no record of how many hospitals in the state use unlicensed personnel because it has the authority to examine only those hospitals which are affiliated with a school of nursing.

"HERE'S SOUTHERN RAILWAY'S ANSWER TO THE ENERGY SHORTAGE FOR THE FURNITURE INDUSTRY."

"THE LONG AND..."

The simple fact is, that the way the energy situation is today and, undoubtedly, will be tomorrow, railroads make more sense for long hauls than trucks do.

Because railroads are a lot more energy-efficient than trucks.

But does that mean trucks will soon be a thing of the past for the furniture industry? No. We think trucks have a very definite place in the future of transportation.

As long as trucks are used in the right place

Harold H. Hall, President Southern Railway System Washington, D.C. 20013

...THE SHORT OF IT"

The right job for trucks is the short haul where the railroad begins and ends—at distribution warehouses like this one.

We believe so much in this concept, and its important implications for the future of this country, that we've set up a system to capitalize on our advantage for long hauls and trucks' advantage for short hauls. We've made interchange agreements with over 150 trucking firms all over our route to give you dock to dock service even when your dock isn't on our railroad.

We think the wave of the future is to have each mode of transportation do what it does best.

We have the energy for the long haul.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — RETIRED COP COTTONED TO POP CONCERT REPERTOIRE.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 4, 1980

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine for making plans to expand your activities and gain added benefits in the future. Be careful where money matters are concerned and avoid trouble.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning is best time to handle financial matters since later the aspects are not good. Use reason and good sense.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to concentrate on getting ahead in your line of endeavor. Take extra steps to please the one you love.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan your workday well so that you don't waste energy and get the most out of your efforts. Sidestep a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Go after your personal aims vigorously and you can surely gain them. Avoid tendency to talk too much.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make a point to see higher-ups who can assist you in career activities. Don't waste time with one who is a pain in the neck.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Put a new course of action in operation now and get excellent results. Good organizational work is the key to success now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is the best time to handle important business matters. Strive to be happier and more prosperous in the days ahead.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better agreement with a dynamic associate and make the future much brighter for both of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are more enthused about the work ahead of you, you can easily gain your aims. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make certain an important business plan is set up nicely so that you can have added income in the future.

Said Linked To Program Supply

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Times says it has learned the Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating ABC President Elton Rule's real estate partnerships with a number of producers who supply programs to the network.

Monday's Times said documents filed with the state and the county show Rule's partners in three previously undisclosed real estate ventures include Leonard Goldberg and Aaron Spelling, whose Spelling-Goldberg Productions is ABC's major program supplier.

Spelling and Goldberg are currently under investigation by the county district attorney's office for possible criminal fraud stemming from allegations that Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner, among others, were cheated out of their share of the profits for the "Charlie's Angels" TV series.

It is not illegal for officers of public corporations to enter into unrelated investment partnerships with outside suppliers, but the Times said the SEC is investigating whether Rule disclosed the extent of his personal investments to ABC's board of directors and its 15,000 shareholders. The newspaper did not say how it learned of the investigation.

The deals in which Rule is involved are limited partnerships and there is some question whether such partnerships are required by SEC rules to make disclosures.

The newspaper said SEC officials in Los Angeles and in Washington declined to comment on the extent of the investigation. The Times quoted one unidentified SEC staff attorney as saying: "If you've got a supply relationship and you've got this other relationship under the surface, you could make a strong argument that it ought to be disclosed."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to spend more time on home affairs so that everything there is more harmonious. Be careful of outsiders.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Having informative talks with associates can result in mutual benefits. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one with much organizational ability and should be given an opportunity to express this quality early in life. Teach to use reason when dealing with others. Be sure to give good religious training.

Some Concessions To Unreality Are Required Of A TV Watcher

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Certain concessions to unreality are required of the serious TV watcher, a fact I accepted as a lad when I realized that cartoon characters only had four fingers. In loftier context, I later learned, this unspoken pact was termed "The willing suspension of disbelief," but its essence was clear to a 5-year-old:

If you want to watch Bosco, you ignore his funny hands.

Through the years, a thousand TV inconsistencies have floated safely past me, protected from the harsh light of realistic inspection by my implicit covenant with television those many years ago. Thus was Jerry Van Dyke's mother allowed to be an automobile (until "My Mother the Car" was yanked), and Mr. Ed a talking horse.

Occasionally, though, one's rational portion rudely asserts itself, seizing upon a random TV incredulity and simply rejecting it. The rejects buzz around in your head like unspent pennies.

Then there was "I Dream of Jeannie." Here was a story about an astronaut (Larry Hagman) who found a beautiful, sexy genie (Barbara Eden) who was constantly professing her devotion to him. He was portrayed as something of a swinging bachelor, yet he never took advantage of the situation. He beckoned her to get him out of trouble with Dr. Bellows, the unit shrink, but not once did he unbutton his shirt and say, "Jeannie, a man has certain needs..."

It curled my toes. It should be noted that Larry Hagman, as J.R. Ewing, seems finally to have freed his libido.

There are more, but the recalled aggravation is getting to me. Besides, a "Hogan's Heroes" repeat is about to come on. Now, that's believable.

Surgery For Actor Talked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Doctors will decide within two weeks whether to remove a dead tumor on Steve McQueen's neck, according to the man who is helping to guide the actor's treatment for cancer.

The surgery could be performed when McQueen returns to the Mexican hospital where he has been undergoing a nutrition-based therapy.

McQueen, 50, left the Plaza Santa Maria Hospital in Baja California last week for what was described as a vacation at his ranch in Santa Paula.

William Kelley of the International Health Institution in Dallas, interviewed Saturday by the Los Angeles Times, said a decision on whether to operate would be made within two weeks.

"One tumor on his neck is probably dead and may have to be removed," the health consultant said.

McQueen was admitted to the hospital in August. While at home, Kelley said he was supposed to be following the same regimen as at the hospital, including an organic diet, coffee enemas, large doses of vitamins, the controversial drug Laetrile, and intramuscular injections of animal cells believed to trigger human antibodies.

"He just wanted to get back and see his chickens and his horses and his motorcycles," Kelley said.

Plans Remake Of 'Gunga Din'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Stuart Whitman, now filming "Butterfly," will produce a remake of "Gunga Din."

The Rudyard Kipling classic was filmed in 1936 with Cary Grant, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Victor McLaglen. Whitman, who plans to play one of the major roles, acquired the right from the National Historical Trust of England.

GOVERNOR DIXY LEE takes the oars during a rafting trip. Gov. Ray has ridden many kinds of transportation, but the only one that took her by surprise was the rollercoaster trip through state politics. (UPI Photo)

Dixy Lee Ray Took A Lot Of Rides; Wildest As Governor

By GORDON SCHULTZ
OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — Gov. Dixy Lee Ray likes to ride almost anything.

A blimp, hydrofoil, logging truck, steam locomotive, farm tractor, supertanker, airplane, garbage truck and sports car — she sat at the controls of all of them when she was not behind her desk in the governor's office.

Only one ride caught her by surprise. It was a twisting, turning rollercoaster trip through Washington state politics. She thrilled on the way up but the downhill slide came quickly and was steeper than she expected.

She bought her ticket in 1976 when she decided she was a Democrat. Before that, as a University of Washington professor, director of the Pacific Science Center, and Atomic Energy Commission chairman during the Nixon administration, she was rigidly independent.

Her victory in the Democratic primary four years ago caught political observers off guard. She was riding a post-Watergate tide for non-politicians.

Her campaign themes were reduced government spending, less regulation and greater administrative efficiency. People liked her fresh, homespun proach. Her stocky figure, adorned in an open-collared shirt, blazer and skirt over knee socks and canvas shoes signalled something different.

She became the Washington governor by more than 133,000 votes in her first try for public office.

Victory was sweet. On election night she sipped champagne and waltzed across the floor with some of her admirers under the bright television lights. She also cast some shadows that would eventually make her a controversial public figure. She loved and despised, ridiculed and admired.

"Our success tonight is the failure of the newspapers to elect the people they wanted to elect. So they backed the wrong horse. Do you think I'm going to forget that?" she proclaimed when the dancing stopped. It was the first of many harsh comments.

Once in office she summarily dismissed all of the remaining agency directors hired by her predecessor. When some complained of her abrupt dispatch, she said, "No one owns a job. From now on we'll send them a Kleenex at the time they're fired if they're going to be a crybaby."

Visitors to her office looked askance when a painting of her two pet dogs appeared on the reception room wall in the space traditionally reserved for the governor's portrait.

Many of her new directors were recruited from the ranks of her early campaign supporters with little regard for ability. She was forced to replace two in her first year. Several others quit or were fired later.

Her rapport with the Legislature was strained from the beginning. She vetoed a bill to ban supertankers on Puget Sound, angering many fellow Democrats.

U.S. Sen. Warren Magnuson came to the rescue with a last-minute amendment placing the ban in federal law. She referred to him as a "dictator," berating him for not consulting her in advance.

Her relations with the press turned icy when she abruptly cancelled news conferences at the Capitol. She complained the press corps was persecuting her. She disliked sparring over her inconsistencies.

Once she named a litter of piglets born on her farm after individual capitol reporters and gleefully handed them packages of frozen sausage after the slaughter.

Her first press secretary quit within six months. She said he would be the last but three months later she hired another. Conferences resumed later but were discontinued in 1979 before her second frustrated spokesman quit.

A passionate supporter of nuclear energy, she lectured anyone who would listen. Because she thought President Carter was not pushing nuclear power hard enough, she told reporters he had wax in his ears and was frightened in his mother's womb. She belittled all critics, particularly environmentalists. Ralph Nader, a favorite target, was described as "a totally ignorant man (with no credentials and no expertise in anything)."

Within six months of her election she said she would be a candidate for another term. A premature announcement? No, only honesty, she said.

In her second year, problems with appointees continued. Her choice for adjutant general of the Washington National Guard came under fire when it turned out he was receiving a police disability pension. She charged the press with "character assassination." She eventually backed off, but not before some ranking officers who belittled her choice were fired or demoted.

When the 1979 Legislature convened, she supported full state funding of public schools a year ahead of a court-ordered deadline. Legislators were skeptical but accepted her plan.

More surprising was her budget request for the following two years, a 36-percent increase. Conservatives swallowed hard. Relying on a healthy economy, she sweetened the medicine with some modest tax reductions and cuts in a state-supported welfare program for temporary assistance. Most recipients were able-bodied anyway, she insisted.

An earlier veto of money for a new state prison and subsequent overcrowding soon haunted her. She was also confronted with problems of poorly-packaged nuclear waste arriving for burial on the Hanford Reservation, one of three available national sites.

At first she defended dump procedures, then suddenly closed the facility with a tirade against the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. It opened four months later with promises of more stringent controls.

This year one lawmaker raised a constituent's question on prisons at a cocktail party. She snapped, "You can tell your constituent to go to hell."

Often she vetoed bills without telling key legislators in advance. Once a group of voters came to watch her sign a bill for buying a park. Chins dropped when she vetoed the measure as the sponsor watched helplessly.

As the primary election approached, the governor's campaign treasury topped $726,000, doubling her 1976 effort. The construction trade unions called her "labor's girlfriend" and the business community was more generous with her than the leading Republican candidate.

She dismissed her Democratic challenger, state Sen. Jim McDermott, as a free-spending liberal tied to teacher unions which she openly detested on grounds the teachers were more interested in paychecks than students.

McDermott, joined by three Republicans vying for their party's nomination, made her behavior in office the primary issue. A sagging economy forced reductions in her budget as her opponents predicted.

Her personnel turnovers, feuds with legislators, hostility toward the news media, and abusive attacks on almost anyone who didn't share her beliefs were too much for voters to bear.

When the results were in, McDermott swamped her by more than 87,000 votes. It was the first time in 72 years a first-term incumbent governor failed in the primary. Her ride on the state's political rollercoaster was over.

Try Routine 'Cures' for Hiccups

It is terribly disconcerting and embarrassing to suddenly begin to hiccup. At home I can manage it, but in a restaurant I feel ridiculous. For some strange reason, it seems to be amusing to the rest of the diners. Is there any fast way to break an attack of hiccups? — Mr. K.R., III.

Dear Mr. R.:

Hiccups, or hiccoughs, are spasms of the diaphragm which in most cases stop without any help. The stress and tensions and embarrassment in a restaurant tend to make them worse. I would suggest that at the first sign of them you excuse yourself from the table and try the routine "cures" that have been used successfully for years.

Try to drink a glass of cold water without stopping, or chew on a hard crust of bread. Or hold your breath for 20 seconds. If none of these break the cycle, breathe into a paper bag holding the opening tightly over the nose and mouth. This causes a concentration of carbon dioxide, and by rebreathing the air in the bag, the hiccups are interrupted. By the way, and this is important, do not breathe into a plastic bag for this may cling to the mouth and is hazardous.

No, there is nothing amusing about an attack of hiccups.

About every two or three weeks I get severe pains in my abdomen. They last for about six hours and then disappear. My doctor has not been able to find any reason for this and I wonder if you can help. — Mrs. L.G., Okla.

Dear Mrs. G.:
The greatest help I can offer you is to suggest that you persist in finding the cause of your pain even though you have been unsuccessful up to this time.

"Pain in the abdomen is not a disease. It is a symptom of many diseases. Physicians will admit that the diagnosis of the cause of abdominal pain is one of the most difficult and often mystifying problems that come to their attention. It takes astute judgment for the doctor and for the surgeon to be able to come to a definitive conclusion as to the causes of abdominal pain.

To illustrate how astute that judgment must be I will point out to you only some of the many reasons for such pain. Disorders of the intestinal tract, appendicitis, gallbladder disease, ovarian and menstrual disorders, ulcers of the stomach and duodenum, vascular conditions, kidney problems, liver and spleen disorders, pancreatic disturbances, and even heart and lung conditions.

This fraction of the many causes of abdominal pain gives you some idea of how diligent you must be in your cooperation with your doctor to track down the cause of your distress. It may take a great deal of energy but it is worth the effort.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Firm but reasonable discipline is an excellent way to let your children know how dearly you love them.
