

House Demos Said Ready To Accept Budget Cuts

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Budget Committee want to give President-elect Ronald Reagan the opportunity — and the obligation — to live up to his campaign pledge of cutting federal spending.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., the committee chairman, said he would introduce today an across-the-board 2 percent spending cut as part of the binding federal budget ceiling for fiscal 1981.

It would be up to Reagan to decide how to make the cuts after he takes office in January.

"Adoption of my amendment would allow the new president the opportunity to present his proposed cuts to the new Congress in January," Giaimo said Monday. "If he were unable to achieve these cuts, presumably he would ask for an increase in the spending ceiling."

But Giaimo said the action was not intended to embarrass Reagan, who pledged during his campaign to cut spending.

"I'm not interested in calling the president's bluff," Giaimo said. "I'm interested in getting control of spending. ... I'm not trying to be vindictive."

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., a contender to replace the retiring Giaimo as committee chairman in the next Congress, called the 2 percent cut "quite a chunk for the new administration to come in and meet."

But, Jones added, "they're (the Republicans) going to have to govern some now ... they don't have a free ride anymore."

Jones was asked if the cut was aimed at "calling Reagan's bluff" on spending cuts or if it was just a response to the election results. "I'll take the latter," he said, laughing.

But Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, interviewed on ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America" program today, said Giaimo "is playing political games with us" in calling for the immediate spending cut.

"... It's up to the Reagan administration to take their first fair shot at it, not to Giaimo or any other Democrat," Baker said. "It is Reagan's turn at bat; the country gave him that."

Although fiscal 1981 began Oct. 1, Congress has yet to approve a binding budget resolution, as required by its rules.

A draft of the budget resolution drawn up by the committee staff calls for a $648.7 billion budget with a deficit of $38.4 billion.

But Giaimo called the projected deficit, based primarily on spending bills already passed by the House, clearly "unacceptable to many if not to most members of Congress."

He said his amendment would reduce the deficit $13 billion by cutting all federal spending — except defense — by 2 percent.

That staff projection is based on a tax cut of $30 billion to $32 billion, compared with the pending $39.8 billion reduction proposed by the Senate Finance Committee and endorsed by Reagan.

Although the Senate tax-cut bill has bipartisan support for passage this year, the House committee draft does not anticipate passage until next summer.

The committee met in advance of the post-election congressional session that begins Wednesday in order to have a budget resolution ready for quick action.

Algeria Forwarding U.S. Reply On Hostage Issues

By MAGDA EL-SANGA
Associated Press Writer
ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher met again today with Algeria's foreign minister to further explain the U.S. response to Iran's terms for releasing the 52 American hostages, Algerian sources reported.

They said the American position was discussed at a luncheon given by Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia and that Algeria would forward the response to Iran following the explanation.

Christopher delivered the American reply in a meeting with Benyahia on Monday for transmission to the Tehran government. Christopher flew to Algiers with Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Carswell and three other U.S. officials from Washington. They planned to remain in the Algerian capital to await Iran's response.

It was assumed that the text of the U.S. reply was forwarded to Tehran within hours of the one-hour meeting. But early today Radio Tehran said: "U.S. and Algerian officials have remained silent on the U.S. reply to Iran's conditions, which is expected to be conveyed to the Iranian government in the next few hours."

Meanwhile, the Algerian Foreign Ministry denied rumors that a high-level Iranian delegation was enroute from Tehran for indirect negotiations with Christopher through the Algerians.

Although the contents of the U.S. message were kept secret, officials in Washington summed them up in general terms.

They said along with the pledge to stay out of Iran's affairs, given repeatedly in recent months by President Carter and other U.S. spokesmen, the note explained the legal obstacles to meeting the Iranian demands for cancellation of all American claims against Iran and the return to Iran of all assets the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and close relatives transferred abroad.

The fourth condition called for the freeing of more than $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen by President Carter. U.S. officials have said there will be no difficulty in canceling the freeze order, but several billions of the assets are also blocked by legal claims by American firms and individuals against Iran.

"We would like to be as positive as possible, but they have to understand the legal and other complications," one official who asked not to be identified told The Associated Press.

"Generally, it's a positive response," he added. "It's hard to say what flexibility, if any, there is in the Iranian position. Also, how much will there be to end the thing."

Qualified sources said the U.S. reply was "long, detailed and complex."

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Christopher delivered it in person "to explain to the government of Algeria several complex legal and financial aspects."

Officials in Washington said one of the American mission's principal tasks was to try to find out if the Iranians planned to release the hostages if the terms were accepted or planned to hold them until the conditions were actually met, as the Majlis specified.

Algerian officials said their government's only interest was to facilitate a solution to the hostage crisis. Algeria is Iran's intermediary with the United States, which broke diplomatic relations with Iran after Islamic militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and its staff on Nov. 4, 1979. The Algerian ambassador in Washington delivered the Iranian terms early last week after the Majlis, Iran's parliament, approved them on Nov. 2.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said it was not known when Christopher would return to Washington. Nor was it known if any Iranian officials were in Algiers, but State Department officials in Washington said it was highly unlikely that Christopher would meet with them if they were.

Pileup Deaths Due Dense Fog

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — As the minutes ticked by, vehicle after vehicle entered the fog and slammed into a growing heap of twisted, smoking metal.

When the fiery chain reaction stopped, seven people lay dead and 17 injured in a half-mile of wreckage that included two dozen vehicles, police said.

The chain-reaction pileup, which involved eight tractor-trailers, began about 7:10 a.m. Monday as near-zero-visibility fog hung over Interstate 15, the California Highway Patrol reported.

So tangled was the wreckage that a snowplow had to be used to clear the mass of metal described by coroner-investigator Nelda Britton as looking like "a junkyard."

"People were nuts," said Christopher Short, 20, of Rialto, one of those injured. "They didn't even hit the brakes ... just wham, wham, wham. It was awful."

One or two of the victims may have been trying to flag down traffic as fog-blinded motorists kept plowing into the wreckage, witnesses said.

"I'm pretty sure two guys were run over waving traffic," said Jeff Maxson of Bellflower.

County Chief Deputy Coroner Leo Reyes said two victims "were burned to a crisp." Five men and two women died.

Referendum On Mixed Drinks Is Included On City Council Agenda

A lengthy agenda, including consideration of a request to call for a referendum on the sale of mixed beverages, is scheduled for Thursday night's regular City Council meeting.

The council received a letter from the Greenville Restaurant Association requesting the governing board to call for a public vote on the mixed drink matter. The letter was submitted by Bob Sauter on behalf of the association and signed by the owners of 12 local restaurants.

The council has several options regarding the matter: it can act on the request and ask the Pitt Board of Elections to conduct a referendum; it can deny the request of the association; or it can suggest to the restaurant association that the group secure petitions signed by at least 20 percent of the city's registered voters requesting the referendum.

If the council requests the board of elections to conduct a referendum, the date will be set by the elections body. The earliest that a referendum could be held would be in March.

Other business on the agenda includes: appointments to boards and commissions; public hearings on a rezoning request, on the annexation of Section IV of Westhaven Subdivision, on an amendment to the uses permitted in Industrial and Offensive Industry zoning classifications, on an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance, and on a recommendation that Sedgfield Drive, from Hooker Road to St. Andrews Drive, be deleted from the Thoroughfare Plan;

Could Appeal On Auto Import Rule

By GLENN RITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The U.S. International Trade Commission decided today not to propose restrictions on imports of cars and trucks, turning down a plea by American automakers who have blamed foreign competition for record losses and unemployment.

The panel, by a 3-2 margin, rejected claims by U.S. automakers and the United Auto Workers that imports more than any other factor are responsible for the devastating economic problems of American motor companies.

Without a determination that imports have been the major factor in the decline of the U.S. auto industry, President Carter has no legal authority to negotiate import restrictions with foreign automakers.

U.S. automakers and the autoworkers' union had wanted the commission to recommend a system of quotas or tariffs to hold down the number of imports while American companies retool their plants to produce more smaller vehicles preferred by buyers.

That recommendation would have gone to Carter, who had promised to act quickly on the issue. Now, however, Carter will not be able to take any action, experts said.

However, the automakers can appeal to Congress to pass new tariffs on imported automobiles or legislation designed to limit the number of foreign-made cars and trucks allowed into the country.

During arguments before the commission, automakers and the union contended that an onslaught of Japanese vehicles in particular had helped devastate the domestic industry.

"The Japanese auto manufacturers have turned a deaf ear to every request that they exercise restraint during the American industry's time of peril," United Auto Workers president Douglas Fraser told the commission last month during extensive hearings.

The union chief told the commission that if U.S. automakers were given "sufficient time to complete their massive programs to convert plants tooling and auto design" to produce small, fuel efficient cars, they can compete effectively against imports.

Ford Motor Co., which joined the UAW in pressing for trade limits, insisted that no other factor has been more significant than imports in damaging the U.S. auto industry.

"The difference between now and any prior (downturn) is the dramatic increase in car and truck imports," Ford officials told the commission.

"Timid remedies won't get the job done," said Philip Caldwell, Ford's chairman. Ford asked for a temporary five-year quota that would cut by about 1 million per year the number of foreign cars allowed into the country, most from Japan.

The UAW also wanted the duty on imported cars raised to 20 percent and asked that a 25 percent duty on trucks be maintained.

But representatives of the Japanese auto industry argued against such restrictions, contending that Detroit had suffered because U.S. automakers were not quick to supply American buyers with the kind of cars they wanted.

Many economists, including Alfred Kahn, departing inflation adviser to Carter, strongly opposed import restrictions, saying it would penalize consumers by raising prices of all cars.

Foreign carmakers also contended that a recent drop in sales of U.S. cars has been due to a general drop in demand — not to an increase of imports.

"I must say that none of us is comfortable when thousands of American automobile workers are out of work," said Ralph T. Millet, chairman of the Automobile Importers of America. "But, import restrictions would not put a significant number ... back to work in the foreseeable future."

Little To Change Official Grain Supply Forecasts

Say Water Southeast's Major Asset Of Future

STATESBORO, Ga. (AP) — Georgia and the Southeast may become the world's "last frontier in food production," state and federal conservation officials said Monday.

But without good water management, wells in south Georgia could run into problems, they told a group of agriculturalists.

"The western states have reached a food production plateau. All the water available there is being used for food," said Dwight Treadway, Soil Conservation Service state conservationist.

"As the world population increases and the United States plans to export food products to improve our balance of payments, this area becomes more important," he said.

The Southeast has enough underground water to yield about 21 billion gallons a day safely, Treadway told a group at Georgia Southern College.

"If managed properly, Georgia and the Southeast could become the agricultural center of the world," Treadway said. But "excess pumping could cause saltwater encroachment, dry wells and other problems."

Irrigation has not been widespread in Georgia, where the annual rainfall is approximately 50 inches. But droughts in recent years have accelerated the move to irrigation, said James Jackson, assistant director of agriculture and natural resources for the University of Georgia cooperative extension service.

In 1960, there were 525 wells used for irrigation in the state, Jackson said. That number rose to 582 in 1970, then to 2,939 by 1979.

Approximately 145,000 acres were irrigated in the state in 1970, he said, up from 98,000 acres in 1960. By 1979, 842,000 acres were under irrigation.

"I don't know what future use will be. The increase in agricultural irrigation probably will be phenomenal if we can get low interest loans in view of the droughts," Jackson said.

Although most officials believe the Southeast's water resources will be adequate for future demand, they cannot be certain, said Harold Gill, chief of the hydrolysis studies section of the U.S. Geological Survey. One reason for the uncertainty is that the government has no way to measure how much water agricultural users take out of the ground, he said.

Agriculture is currently exempt from ground and surface water legislation, which requires permits from industries and municipalities using more than 100,000 gallons of water a day, he said.

"We're trying to develop a water budget to be sure how much is there and how much we can take out, but we can't develop a water budget we don't know how much our largest user is taking," Gill said. To help draw up a water budget, Gill asked those farmers with irrigation wells to tell his office the location and size of their wells.

Youth Week Proclaimed By Mayor

The current week of Nov. 9-15 has been proclaimed by Mayor Don McGlohn as Youth Appreciation Week in Greenville.

According to McGlohn, Optimist International has for the past 23 years developed and promoted a program entitled Youth Appreciation Week. He noted that "citizens of Greenville have indicated a desire to join with the Optimist in expressing appreciation and approval of the contributions of youth."

In his proclamation, the mayor noted that "the vast majority of the youth are concerned, knowledgeable and responsible citizens." He contended that "the accomplishments and achievements of these young citizens deserve recognition and praise of their elders."

McGlohn stated in issuing the proclamation, "By this action, let it be known that we have faith in the ability of today's youth as they assume responsible roles in the future of mankind."

Formation Of Chapter Talked

Possible formation of a chapter of the Phoenix Organization was discussed Thursday, November 6 by a group of Pitt County citizens.

Pat Higgins, acting chairman, introduced Gus Moeller, an authority on prisons and prison reform. Moeller explained the purpose of Phoenix, an organization to serve volunteer efforts in criminal justice.

The Pitt County chapter will be a local arm of the state organization which addresses the needs and concerns of thousands of volunteers involved in various activities and programs dealing with probationers, inmates, parolees, juveniles, their families and victims of crime.

Those attending represented various religious, educational, volunteer and social service groups. There was general agreement of the need for such a support group and committees were formed to reach out to the community. The next meeting will be announced when a date is set.

While Bullock acknowledged that a lot of the support for Moral Majority may come from Baptists, he said they are attracted by the political, not religious, persuasion of Moral Majority.

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Not much has happened in the last month to change the government's official view that grain supplies will be tightly stretched to meet domestic and foreign demand in the coming year.

The latest indication came on Monday with the Agriculture Department's new estimates showing farmers are harvesting sharply reduced crops of corn and soybeans. Some other crops, notably cotton, also were shriveled by last summer's drought and hot weather.

Officials said the 1980 corn harvest now is estimated at 6.46 billion bushels, virtually unchanged from prospects a month ago but still 17 percent less than last year's huge harvest.

The new corn estimate, based on surveys the first of the month, compared to the record 1979 harvest of 7.76 billion bushels.

Officials also reported further declines in harvest prospects for cotton and a few other 1980 crops. But there was some improvement in yields of soybeans, rice and sorghum from

Pitt NAACP Pleased With Turnout

The Pitt County Branch of the NAACP was pleased with the voter turnout of the minority community during the recent election, it was reported during its November meeting at Zion Chapel F.W.B. Church, Winterville, Sunday.

The branch sees the large turnout as being directly related to its encouragement of voting and registration for voting and those efforts of other community organizations.

The nominating committee made its report on officers to be considered for 1981. A secret ballot will be held Dec. 14, with all members entitled to vote. A public notice of all candidates will appear shortly prior to the next general meeting date.

The branch will establish a policy of monitoring all public governmental meetings, it was reported. It has been represented at the Pitt County and Greenville Board of Educations during most recent meetings.

Health Fair Being Given

The Pitt County Medical Auxiliary is presenting a health fair to city and private fourth grade students at St. Peter's School Wednesday and Thursday 9 a.m.-2 p.m.

The auxiliary has also presented for third grade students, in conjunction with the American Lung Association, travelling puppet shows on pollution and will continue to do so in the future.

estimates made a month ago. The department's Crop Reporting Board said that as of Nov. 1 about 86 percent of the corn had been harvested in the major states, compared to only 54 percent a year ago.

It is the first annual decline in U.S. corn production since bad weather shriveled yields in 1974, reducing the harvest to 4.7 billion bushels, a 17 percent drop from 5.67 billion bushels produced in 1973.

North Carolina's corn production was forecast at 62 bushels per acre for a total of 107,880,000 bushels.

Overall, the department's "all crops" production index for 1980 was shown at 129 percent of the crop production in 1967, a base year used for comparison. Last year, the index rose to an all-time high of 144 percent.

Soybean production was estimated as of Nov. 1 at 1.77 billion bushels, a 22 percent decline from last year's record of 2.27 billion. A month ago the crop was estimated at 1.76 billion bushels.

North Carolina's soybean production was forecast to be 19 bushels per acre for a total of 37,620,000 bushels.

Sorghum grain was estimated at 550.6 million bushels, a 32 percent decline from the 1979 harvest of 814.3 million. However, the latest estimate was up from the October forecast of 547 million bushels.

Cotton production was put at 11.2 million bales, down 23 percent from 14.6 million in 1979. The October estimate was 11.6 million bales. In North Carolina, the yield for forecast to be 404 pounds per acre and a production of 53,000 bales.

The department did not issue new production estimates for wheat and a number of other 1980 crops that already have been harvested. This year's wheat crop was a record of about 2.36 billion bushels, with most of it being harvested before the full impact of last summer's drought.

Corn is the largest grain crop grown in the United States and, as livestock feed, is a vital element in the production of meat, poultry and dairy products for American consumers.

Along with wheat and soybeans, corn also is a leading commodity among U.S. agricultural exports to scores of foreign markets, including the big overseas buyers such as Japan and the Common Market countries.

Grain prices at the farm have risen from earlier slumps and generally are above year-ago levels. The most recent five-day average prices computed by the department show wheat at $4.47 a bushel and corn at $3.14 a bushel.

A year ago, wheat prices at the farm averaged $3.94 a bushel and corn $2.27 a bushel, according to official records.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says prospects for this year's tobacco harvest declined slightly in the last month but that the crop still is expected to be about 17 percent larger than in 1979.

Total production — mostly, made up of flue-cured and burley types — is expected to be about 1.78 billion pounds, compared to 1.53 billion last year. A month ago, officials estimated the output at 1.79 billion pounds.

Based on Nov. 1 indications, the flue-cured crop was estimated at 1.1 billion pounds, up 16 percent from last year, and burley at 555 million pounds, up 25 percent, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Monday.

Baptists Urged To Unify Forces

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The president of the Baptist State Convention urged the 1.1 million-member denomination Monday to unify its forces despite a controversy over whether the Bible is infallible.

"The latest unit measurement that has been dividing us is called Biblical inerrancy," the Rev. Cecil E. Sherman of Asheville said at the 150th annual session of the Southern Baptist group.

Supporters of inerrancy believe that the Bible is without error and that every word can be considered the truth. Opponents believe there are occasions in the Bible when human error occurs.

"You think all Baptists are like you," Sherman said. "I think all Baptists are like I am. We are surprised when we discover that we are diverse on a number of things."

"Someone started measuring me by the theological yardstick of inerrancy. I do not measure up," said Sherman, pastor of Asheville's First Baptist Church. "I do not hold an inerrant view of the Bible."

"I have never said that someone who holds an inerrancy view of the Bible should not be on one of our boards, but there are some that have said, if I do not hold to an inerrancy view of the Bible, I will not be on one of our boards."

Sherman said that without trust and unity among Baptists, "the whole Baptist mission support breaks down."

He said the inerrancy issue has caused a sharp split in the 13.4 million member Southern Baptist Convention. Sherman delivered the convention's presidential message to about 2,500 delegates Monday night.

Earlier, Baptist Men executive director Edwin Bullock of Raleigh reaffirmed the church's political independence from other organizations.

"We are concerned with moral conditions and moral problems," said Bullock. "But we pride ourselves on being independent. A church operates on its own ideas."

Bullock said his group has no connection with the Moral Majority, the religious and political organization that many political observers say was instrumental in the election of several conservatives Tuesday.

While Bullock acknowledged that a lot of the support for Moral Majority may come from Baptists, he said they are attracted by the political, not religious, persuasion of Moral Majority.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I don't cheat on my income tax. I don't lie about my age on my driver's license. I don't tell my dentist I floss when I don't. So how come I have trouble looking honest? Ever see me going through customs? You can't miss me. I always look like a poodle who has just missed the paper. I contend you can always tell when a person is lying. He looks you directly in the eyes and with a sincerity that belongs in the pulpit says, "You can believe me." Maybe it's because people have more riding on a lie than they do on the truth. I try too hard with the truth

... especially when I bear the burden of it. When my husband asks, "How did that dent get in the car door?" I approach the car like a bullfighter with irregularities... a little stiff-legged, a little hesitant. Don't be too quick to find the spot... nor too dumb to recognize it when you see it. Now, run fingers over it slowly, clear throat, and say in an even voice, "I don't know. This is the first time I've noticed it. Who could have done such a thing? I didn't do it! I certainly would have remembered. Did someone say I did it? They lie!" Don't talk too much. Go for more indignation. "That's a terrible thing to do and then run." Look him in the eyes. He's getting suspicious. "I suppose I could have done it, but..." Ten minutes later, I am making a full confession for something I didn't do. I've seen honest people wrestle with the problem for years — people who feel like Jack the Ripper because they mistook a $1 for a $5 when they paid their bill, or who were stopped going through airport security for a piece of foil wrapped around their gum. My Armageddon occurs when my charge is called in for verification. It only takes three or four hours, but it seems longer. First, I try to look bored like it's just a formality. Then in a move of self-assuredness I begin arranging the package under my arm like it's only a matter of seconds. When the salesperson is not looking at me, I search her eyes for some sign of panic or mistrust. My eyes lack coordination (like Marty Feldman) and my throat becomes dry. Sometimes I hum. If I have to go to the credit office, will I make a joke out of it or pass out? Honesty... it's painful. Trust me. You have to believe that.

Reese Helms Is Speaker

Reese Helms was guest speaker at the meeting of the Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, international honorary sorority for professional women educators, Thursday night. Manager of the energy conservation department, Greenville Utilities, he discussed the use of insulation, temperature of a water heater, R-Value and E-300 requirements, reading electric meters, use of wood stoves or fireplaces to supplement heating and directional locations of homes for energy conservation. He described himself as an "unsalesman," one who teaches people to use less of their product. He was introduced by Shirley Moore, vice president.

Thelma Switzer and Alethia Brickhouse were honored for being original charter members of Alpha Nu. Ann Byrd conducted the induction service for Glenda Carrawan, new corresponding secretary. Members were asked to bring books and magazines to the next meeting to be distributed to hospitals and nursing homes. The group will adopt a child from Social Services and will provide Christmas gifts. The December meeting will be social and an auction of crafts will be held. A January meeting will not be held. A meeting and workshop have been scheduled for February.

Dear Abby

Silence Implies Agreement

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every family get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my children are now old enough to understand the talk, and I don't want some of the erroneous, bigoted statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. (They are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent, quiet discussion; they just yell a lot.) My husband's family always initiates these political discussions. How in the world can I remain silent without destroying my children's belief in my ideals?

KEEPING THE PEACE

DEAR KEEPING: A noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked-off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up. Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-year-old daughter wants to wear a chain around her ankle. We decided to go with whatever you said.

When I was growing up (I'm 37), only females of ill-repute wore them. "Nice" girls didn't wear ankle bracelets — as we called them back in those days. Is this still true?

SEEKING INFORMATION

DEAR SEEKING: It wasn't true then, and it still isn't.

DEAR ABBY: Please continue to emphasize the fact that charities should not waste money. When I give blood to the Red Cross, I don't want a thank-you letter. When I walk door-to-door collecting for another charity, I don't need to be invited to a formal ball for dinner and dancing to be officially thanked for my help. If the public knew of this kind of waste they would be up in arms.

One of the best ways to sight-see upon arrival at your destination is to rent a car. You can move at your own pace and take time to really see things. Here are a few tips. Work expenses out ahead of time to avoid problems later. Take turns driving and map reading. Perhaps you can work out a schedule whereby each person will drive for so many hours. Give each other a certain amount of time alone. Perhaps one person can go sightseeing while the other person takes scuba lessons. Too much togetherness can be irritating as well.

One of the best ways to start a trip is by stopping at QUIXOTE TRAVELS INC. 319 Cotanche St. 758-3456. We have recently added computers to our office. They provide fast service because they are directly connected to all airlines and major carriers throughout the country. For vacation or holiday reservations, see us and we'll take care of the rest. We're the exclusive American Express agent in Greenville and the surrounding counties.

TRAVEL TIP:
When driving at a vacation destination, spend a little more on a hotel. You will want to be as comfortable as possible on your return each day.

Happy Birthday Walter

Those of us who work hard for charities want all the money to go where it can help the cause.

HELEN IN SAN PEDRO

DEAR HELEN: Right on! The best example of using every cent to "help the cause" reminds me of a wonderful fund-raising idea used by Goodwill Industries of South Florida a few years ago. They sent invitations that read:

"The annual Goodwill Industries dinner will not be held this year at the Americana Hotel. No cocktails will be served at 7 p.m. No dinner will be served at 8 p.m. The master of ceremonies will not be Jackie Gleason. The invocation will not be read by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale, and the guest speaker will not be Dear Abby.

"Stay home and have a restful evening, but please send $50 per person or $100 per couple." Needless to say, it was hugely successful. P.S. The moral to that story is: Many people are so bored with fancy fund-raising bashes, they'd cheerfully pay to stay home!

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman barber who styles and cuts men's hair in one of the better barber shops.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of men who come into this shop with wax in their ears. I've seen wax buildup so thick it's a wonder they can hear. I'm not talking about poor, ignorant people. My clients are intelligent, well-dressed and well-to-do or they couldn't pay the kind of money I charge for a haircut.

I don't have the nerve to tell them. If I did, I'd probably never see them again, and I don't want to lose any clients. If you have a solution, please print it. I can't be the only barber with this problem.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Try this on those with the wax buildup: "I once had a client who thought he was going deaf. He went to an ear doctor who examined his ears, then performed a simple ear irrigation to flush out the wax. The painless procedure took less than 10 minutes, after which the patient's hearing was restored immediately." They'll get the hint.

TODAY'S STORY

Spidrey had no sex Appeal to speak of. Dark brown eyes and a diverting mole but Stop Right There. All else was spinach.

Motspur was almost six feet tall, but he was the most unnoticeable person in any room where he happened to be. Except for the fact that she was present at his Birth, his own mother was hardly Aware of him. If he had any muscles, nobody knew it.

One day Motspur saw Spidrey, and something Stirred inside him. But being so unnoticeable, what could he do?

Walking down Arlington Boulevard, Motspur chanced to see in the Window at Ariane Clark a dark brown Bauble, the color of Spidrey's eyes. So he had it beautifully Wrapped and bore it to Spidrey.

"From Ariane Clark!" she said. "O Class!" And Noticed Motspur. Motspur shivered.

"What do you want of me, though?" asked Spidrey, narrowing her eyes.

Visitors Are Welcome

The third annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival formally got underway this week.

It will be highlighted by decorating contests, tobacco bundle contests, tractor driving and pipe smoking contests. There will be major events such as the Tobacco Queen's contest, a preliminary to the Miss North Carolina pageant and the festival parade on Saturday.

Next week the Tobacco Farmers' Show will get underway and there will be a golf tournament and tobacco tying and tobacco spitting contests.

The festival will end with the commissioners' luncheon on Nov. 20, where Young Farmer and Farmer of the Year awards will be presented.

It is obvious there will be a number of entertaining and fun-filled events during the festival.

It also has the more serious purpose of honoring a crop which has been with us since the nation was founded and it lets those who are involved in the production and processing of tobacco know that they are appreciated.

The festival and farmers' show will continue through Nov. 20. We welcome the visitors to our county and we hope they and our own citizens enjoy the activities.

Farmers Will Survive Year

Interestingly as the Tobacco Festival begins, sales will be completed on the Greenville Tobacco Market.

It will join other Eastern Belt markets in shutting down soon.

It has not been a perfect year for tobacco producers. Still, quality tobacco has sold well. Farmers faced uneven weather conditions this year that left some areas with good crops, some with bad. In addition there were the soaring costs of producing the crop due to energy costs and inflation in general.

Our farmers will survive the year, and look forward to better conditions in 1981.

An Alarm Sounded

By BILL NOBLITT
 RALEIGH — Economic growth in North Carolina and other states in the South and Southwest would be drastically affected by a pair of proposals now under consideration in the U.S. Congress.

The net result of the federal program will be laws which encourage construction of industrial plants in decaying inner cities with extremely high unemployment rates — and that means northern and Midwestern cities — and, make it near impossible for a firm to close a factory in one location and relocate in another.

Several industrial location specialists talking with economic developers from across North Carolina at a recent seminar sounded an alarm for those concerned with growth in the South if those two proposals — which, it was said, have considerable support — are passed into law when Congress reconvenes next year.

The Plant Closing Act is one of the most frightening to those familiar with it, and it is characterized as a measure which "flies in the face of the free enterprise system."

No Closing

Essentially, that measure says that no owner of an industrial plant can close that plant without:

— Giving a two-year notice; and,

— Offering to sell the plant to the employees at a price established by appraisers supplied by the federal government.

The inner-city development approach is still being debated and amended, but that program will provide financial incentives through tax credits and otherwise to encourage location of factories in decaying inner-city areas so that jobs for currently unemployed or underemployed will be available where they live.

The criteria to qualify for those tax breaks are written so that the older, rundown, and crowded cities of the industrial Midwest and Northeast will get the lion's share. As John R. Weaver, manager of the real estate division of I.E. Dupont Corporation put it at the seminar: "Twenty years ago, all we had to do was choose a site and the only hurdle we faced was buying it. That has changed drastically."

Weaver pointed to the flood of local, state and federal regulation now in place which make locating a plant considerably more difficult — but conceded that many of the regulations were necessary to correct abuses which were taking place.

But of the new proposals now in the works, Weaver said flatly: "They scare me."

A coalition of Congressmen from the declining areas of the nation are pushing these two proposals; the same organization which is also seeking to attack, at the federal level, right-to-work laws in the various states which discourage unionization; and to make uniform various welfare and unemployment programs so that benefits in the South would rise to a higher level paid in the North and Midwest.

Fight Back

Gov. Jim Hunt feels that the tax incentives to inner-city production operations is not a threat to growth in North Carolina, but labels the Plant Closing Act "unreasonable and inefficient... a real threat to growth of the South."

Hunt said the state's Washington office has been working in opposition to that measure, and others which pose an economic threat, and he has been working with the Southern Growth Policies Board and Southern Governors to defeat the legislation.

The most effective approach will be through unified opposition from a caucus of Southern leaders working together with those from the Southwest and the Far West, and Hunt said he

COULDN'T WE INSTALL A BEGINNER'S GATE?

By JOHN J. KILPATRICK

Double Standard Plaintiff

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court heard argument a few days ago in one of those recurring cases involving the equal rights of women, only in this case it was the equal wrongs of women. Let me lay out the facts and the law, and let us ponder a proper course in justice and in social policy.

On a sultry summer evening in 1978, Michael M. and a couple of his buddies were cruising around Sonoma County, just north of San Francisco. At a bus stop they spied a young woman, identified only as "Sharon," and her sister. The boys picked up the girls. They drove somewhere down by a railroad track and paired off, more or less, to drink a bottle of wine and fun around.

Michael wound up necking on a park bench with Sharon. One thing led to another and they had sexual intercourse. At a pre-trial proceeding, there was some evidence that he slapped her a couple of times before she consented, but in this case the element of force, if any, is irrelevant. The thing is, Michael M.

was 17 1/2 years old, and Sharon was 16 1/2 years old. Under the law of California it is flatly unlawful for any male to have intercourse with any female under the age of 18, unless, of course, they happen to be married.

Three weeks after the incident, Sharon had Michael arrested for what amounts to statutory rape. If convicted, he faced up to three years in prison. No trial has been held, pending the outcome of the Supreme Court argument. Michael's contention, you see, is that the law is discriminatory: The law prohibits intercourse with a woman under 18 but not with a man under 18. In the plaintiff's view this is an impermissible double standard. It is the kind of thing the pending Equal Rights Amendment is meant to prevent.

Michael's attorneys cite a couple of California cases, one of them dating back to 1895, that explain why the law was adopted long ago. It was "to protect the virtue of young and unsophisticated girls from vile tampering with their persons." The California courts have held that a young woman under the age of 18 "is too innocent and naive to understand the implications and nature of her act." Michael's attorneys hoot at this Victorian presumption.

On the contrary, counsel contends, today's adolescent females are likely to be experienced in such matters. (California law permits them to acquire birth control devices without parental consent.) One national survey indicates that 45 percent of all girls 15, 16 and 17 years old have had sexual intercourse. Applying the survey data to California, which has 840,000 such females, the attorneys contend that as many as 36 million acts of unlawful intercourse occur each year — but only a few hundred arrests ever are made. The statistic boggles the mind, but it could be discounted by 30 million acts and counsel's point would remain. The law manifestly is violated so widely that its enforcement becomes capricious.

To these contentions the state replies that the law is not really concerned with maidenly virtue as such; it is concerned with teen-age pregnancies, and the prevention of such pregnancies is a compelling state interest. In any event, the remedy for a discriminatory statute lies with the legislature at Sacramento and not with the courts. The states have power to define statutory rape as they wish.

Well, if you were sitting on the U.S. Supreme Court, how would you call it? In a series of decisions over the past 10 years, the high court repeatedly has nullified laws that discriminate on account of sex. The case most closely in point involved a minimum age for purchasing beer in Oklahoma — 21 for males, 18 for females. The court held the statute void.

My own inclination would be to remand Michael M. for trial. I have not much sympathy for a young buck who picks up a 16-year-old girl at a bus stop and leads her down a railway path. The law has some obligation to assert a

A New Team Is Forming

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
 WASHINGTON — Now being considered for No. 2 in Ronald Reagan's State Department is outgoing Democratic Sen. Richard Stone, defeated in his primary election run-off in Florida, whose name was successfully used by the Reagan campaign to juice up the Jewish vote in late October.

Stone was named, in an intentionally premature mid-October press release, to Reagan's post-election transition team, along with Sen. Henry M. Jackson, who also has top credentials in the Jewish community. Stone had flatly ruled out use of his name until after the election.

But worried about a last-minute fall-off in the pro-Reagan Jewish vote, Reagan's operatives pumped out their press release and planted stories in the Jewish press that both Stone and Jackson had been tapped by Reagan. That word spread like wildfire to Jewish voters, giving Reagan a late lift in Jewish communities. Reagan admires Stone's foreign policy, particularly in Latin America. A top State Department post for the senator could result.

Chairman Brademas?

In the hours following their traumatic defeat, many Democrats mentioned one of the most prominent victims of the carnage as a leader for the trying times to come: Rep. John Brademas of Indiana as Democratic national chairman to succeed John White (who may fight to keep the job).

The names mentioned from the White House were Los Angeles lawyer-banker Charles T. Manatt, ex-California state chairman and currently the party's national finance chairman, or Housing Secretary Moon Landrieu. But there is massive resistance to any future chairman like White or Manatt who has the Carter imprint. Brademas, articulate and well-respected, might match the outstanding performance by William Brock as Republican national chairman after his defeat for re-election in 1976 as a senator from Tennessee.

The one negative against Brademas is his enthusiastic support for liberal programs that cannot be disconnected from the Democratic demise. A more conservative choice would be Rep. Tom Foley of Washington, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee. But the national chairmanship is now a full-time job, and Foley would not likely be willing to resign from Congress after beating off a determined Republican challenge this year.

Reagan Taps Williams
 Eyebrows lifted at word that Ronald Reagan had tapped Edward Bennett Williams, the famed trial lawyer who used to be the Democratic Party's chief fund-raiser, to advise the incoming Republican administration how to handle national security and intelligence affairs.

The explanation goes to the heart of Reagan's view of the Soviet Union. Reagan remembers when Williams offered his services as counsel to "Helsinki dissidents" in Russia thrown into jail for demonstrating against their government's violations of its human rights pledges in the Helsinki agreement of 1975. Reagan and his national security advisers were deeply impressed.

Reagan personally asked Williams to join the transition team. He said that Williams' work on President Ford's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, abolished by Jimmy Carter, gave Williams special insights into how Reagan should organize an expanded, hard-hitting intelligence system.

A footnote: Some Reagan insiders see Williams as an ideal U.S. ambassador in Moscow. "He talks straight and hard," one told us, "which is just what Reagan wants."

Beware Of Begin
 President-elect Reagan is being wisely advised not to put out a fat welcome mat for Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin when he arrives on a visit here next week, ostensibly to see President Carter but in reality to lobby Reagan on his Mideast policy.

Reagan during a direct question ducked his Thursday press conference whether he planned to do nothing, saying he would do nothing to usurp Carter's role as president until Jan. 20. Reagan won an unusually large percentage of Jewish votes on Nov. 4.

Israel's friends in the U.S. feel that Begin wants pictures of himself with Reagan for political advantage in next year's Israeli election. But most politicians here with close ties to Israel are hoping that Begin loses the election to the far more moderate Labor Party, setting the stage for a more flexible Israeli posture on the dangerous West Bank and Jerusalem problems.

Debater Reagan
 Ronald Reagan's Cleveland debate performance, which won him the presidency, was markedly better than his showing in any of the dry runs leading up to the real thing.

That duplicated Reagan's earlier experience against Rep. John Anderson. In fact, it was Reagan's poor showing in the Anderson rehearsals — not his impressive performance in the actual Anderson debate — that led many senior advisers to counsel against accepting President Carter's debate challenge. Reagan is simply not a practice player.

However, Reagan did fall short of his dry run in the Cleveland debate on a point carefully rehearsed to handle Carter's predictable raising

Other Editors Say Bigger & Bigger

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)
 Intercollegiate sports continues to be a bigger and bigger business. The television networks appear to be in complete charge of what teams you see play on Saturday afternoon, and the money being paid for television and radio rights would make old-time athletic directors turn over in their graves.

If our memory is correct, Carolina and Notre Dame received $25,000 apiece for television rights when the two teams, both in the top ten, played in Yankee Stadium. An item appeared in the press recently stating that NBC had paid $7.3 million for television rights for the Rose Bowl game in 1983. The contract was for but one year.

The Sporting News reports that "Dave Hart, director of athletics at the University of Missouri, has landed a contract for the Tigers that could be a landmark for the collegiate sports business. A package worth an estimated $6.2 million over five years has been agreed to by the Missouri Network of Jefferson City, Mo., for the broadcast rights to the University of Missouri football and basketball games."

"Besides broadcasting the games, the Missouri Network will print the football and basketball press guides and tickets, produce highlight films for football and basketball, provide an advertising agency at the athletic department's disposal for promotional purposes, hire a consultant to reside on campus the year round, provide media spots and billboard advertising and produce dinners for donors in St. Louis and Kansas City."

The game is fast becoming secondary to the school involved and the fans who buy the tickets — not to mention the players and coaches who participate.

Strength For Today

"TELL HIM THANKS"
 A little boy, son of a prominent family, was dying of an incurable disease in a London Hospital. His mother, in anguish because of this tragedy, kept putting off the day when she must tell her son what was going to happen. But then a woman who cleaned the floors in the hospital rooms, full of sympathy for the mother said, "This is too much for you. Let me tell him."

So this humble woman went to the boy's room and said to him, "Andy, God made you. He loves you. He sent His Son to die for you. And now He is going to take you to live with Him forever."

The boy stared in astonishment at the woman with whom he had always had a cheerful chat when she came to clean the floors.

"Say that again," he said softly; and when she had repeated the words, he replied with a smile, "Tell him thanks. Tell Him lots of thanks." — Elisha Douglass

Economic Instability Prevails

By JOHN CUNIFF
 AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Uncertainty, indecision and insecurity are the triplet offspring of economic instability. They are found, as you would expect them to be found, whenever lenders are asked for long commitments.

In housing, for example: "Yes, we have mortgage money to lend," said the banker to the young couple. "We'd like to do business with you."

The couple was elated, briefly. "The interest rate will begin at 14 percent, plus three points (three percent of the mortgage, paid in advance)," said the banker. "And there'll be a $150 application fee."

Though shocked, the couple remained seated. The banker continued: "We are now offering the rollover mortgage." A pause. "That is, the interest rate is subject to adjustment." Another pause. "Each year."

The couple was appalled. They sought to buy a house because they saw it as the only way to get ahead, since inflation seemed destined to grow faster than their income, especially since they were expecting a child.

With a house, they had thought, they could at least nail down one expense, the monthly interest charge. But now, they learned, that too had become impossible because the lender would adjust rates hereafter.

They took the application form, but after leaving the bank they told a friend they wouldn't fill it out. They were confused and bitter. In one five-minute conversation their long-range plan had evaporated.

Shortly afterward, the friend returned to the bank, in a very small Connecticut town, where an officer explained that the bank had dropped the long-term, fixed-rate mortgage without any announcement.

"We had to drop it," he said. "We don't see stability returning to the mortgage market for years to come, so we cannot make long-term commitments anymore. Hereafter we just float with the times."

In the bond markets: "Bonds are now bought for price appreciation potential and not for income protection," said Henry Kaufman, the Saloman Brothers partner and, in the eyes of many, the high priest of the bond market. The whole world of debt investments has changed, Kaufman declared a few weeks ago in a speech to a group of those who seek to raise money and those who seek to make money by investing in bonds.

The audience was aware of Kaufman's concern, because some of them had sought to raise long-term funds and found relatively little interest among investors. And investors seeking safety couldn't find it.

That's not the way it used to be. In the past, the bond markets were so stable that a wealthy investor could buy highly rated issues and simply put them away in a vault while the interest accumulated.

Now, of course, inflation might exceed the interest earned, so investors don't like to tie up their money for 15 or 20 years. And why should they, when short-term rates are sometimes higher?

The long-term debt market has become volatile and dangerous instead of stable and relatively risk-free. On some days, it seems, the bond market fluctuates as wildly as the stock market.

As stability left the bond market the three triplets took over. "Uncertainty became the dominant factor dictating business and financial decisions," said Kaufman. How could you figure what an investment would be worth five years from now? Even five months?

Kaufman observed that "the traditional analytical framework" for credit markets and interest rates "is being shattered" by financial and economic excesses. No longer was there certainty.

"A few decades ago, a speaker on this subject would have stressed... interest rate stability, the merits of call protection, the value of contractual interest payments, the high quality of private debt and historical interest rate relationships," said Kaufman.

But in 20 years these traditional measurements have vanished, he said, shattered by the earthquakes of inflation, debt explosions, credit crunches, financial failures and new investor and borrower attitudes.

And replaced by insecurity, uncertainty and indecision.

Ayden Board Turns Down Cable TV Rate Increase

Hearing Held In Winterville On Increase For Cable TV Rates

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE — A public hearing was held at the Winterville Town Board of aldermen meeting Monday night on an increase requested by Greenville Cable TV, Inc.

The cable television company cited the reasons for the increase as due to newer television sets being able to receive the Super Service package offered without the customer subscribing. The increase would allow recovering cost between the programming and the set top converter. A customer already subscribing to the Super Service package would not be increased, but a subscriber not receiving the package would have an increase of 85 cents per month.

It was noted that the movie service offered — Showtime — would remain $9 per month.

The cable company said new programming planned included channel 28, WPTF, Durham; channel 11, WTVD, Durham; Cable News Network; and an additional full service movie network, Home Box Office, Channel 11, WTVD, is already in operation as part of the super service package.

The board members approved the rate increase and program additions by the cable company. In regular business of the town board, town advisor Carl Dean presented the revised planning and zoning ordinance to the board for final approval.

Dean explained the new zoning map and told the board the rate of growth of Winterville was on the rise, and the map would allow for future planning.

The board, after some discussion, passed the planning and zoning ordinance.

Mayor Walter Dail told the board that repairs to the roof of the town office building had been completed, and the board approved payment of the bill.

The board also approved the purchase of an ad for the Ruritan birthday calendar.

Mayor Dail was reappointed to the Mid-East Commission by the board, and approval was also given to the 1203 application for Emergency Medical Services System in Eastern North Carolina.

Alderman Leland Tucker brought before the board the need for a reduction of the speed limit of trains on the Seaboard Coast Line track that runs through Winterville.

Tucker said the speed limit now is 35 MPH between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and Ayden's limit is 20 MPH. Tucker added the need for the lower limit was the amount of traffic over the crossings during the day, and there are no signals. He added there had been a number of accidents on the tracks in the past few weeks.

Mayor Dail commented that an agreement was signed in 1977 with the railroad for work to be done in the town at the crossings, and the 35 MPH speed limit for the trains was included as part of the contract.

Glenn Strickland, principal of A. G. Cox School, told the board that a school bus failed to stop before approaching the railroad crossing on Cooper Street but stopped on the tracks and was nearly struck by a train. Strickland added that the collision was so close that the train engineer called the school. The driver of the bus was relieved of his duties after the incident, Strickland said.

Mayor Dail added that signals have been approved for future installation at the Cooper Street crossing and on Main Street. A time table was not given for the project.

The board decided to observe the speed of passing trains for the next month and a report by Tucker will be given at next month's meeting.

Willie Elbert ask the board for the town's help in cleaning off the North Winterville Cemetery. The board gave the matter to Alderman E. C. Hines for assistance in removing the brush from the graves.

Approval was given to A. G. Cox school for door-to-door sales of cookies, November 17-25, to benefit the instructional and athletic departments.

AYDEN — The Ayden Board of Commissioners turned down an 85 cent monthly price increase for the cable television franchise Monday night at the town meeting.

Ray Bell, general manager of Greenville Cable TV, requested the price hike to compensate for the rise in gas prices, the minimum wage and consumer index. "We are not out to gouge the people," said Bell when asked why the raise was necessary.

Greenville, Winterville and

Pitt County had already approved the increase from $7.50 to $8.35 per month; however, Commissioner Elliott Dixon told the cable TV representative, "You haven't presented justification for the rate increase." He then made a motion that Bell present the statistics on capital investment in Ayden as well as a record of income, loss and/or profit.

The price hike would affect only subscribers to the mini-service. Superservice customers would not be included in the increase. There are 63 such subscribers in Ayden.

A petition requesting the addition of a sidewalk on Fairmont was discussed by the commissioners and town members. The sidewalk is needed to provide the children with a place to walk besides the street. "The road is dangerous on the walk from Fairmont to town," explained a spokesperson. The board moved to look into cost matters and included the problem in next year's budget.

An ordinance was passed calling for a stop sign to be erected at the intersection of Blount and Boulevard. The sign would require traffic to stop at Blount and make Boulevard a through street.

The audit report presented by the town CPA during the workshop last week was approved.

The town allowance for mileage was increased from 15 cents to 25 cents per mile. According to Town Manager Don Russell, this increase will affect persons using their own vehicles during the annual League of Municipalities convention as well as firemen, police and rescue squad members. Russell added that the rescue operation has the most costly travel expenses.

Some $276.27 in old age tax exemptions were approved to be refunded to several town citizens.

The Fair Housing Ordinance was discussed and waived until the December meeting. The ordinance requires non-discriminatory action in selling homes and is in conjunction with the New Horizons community development block grants instrumental in the town's plans to renovate four homes in the near future.

Bids were discussed for renovation of the four homes and it was moved to accept the least expensive bid since all contractors were aware of the work specifications.

Forty other homes are slated to be repaired by the community development organization through block grants from federal agencies.

J.J. Brown was appointed to the citizens advisory committee that recommends homes to be reconstructed.

The go-ahead was given on installation of lights on the A.G. Cox Grammar School field and the addition of exhaust systems in the gym. The lights are being provided by the county and the town has to erect them. Cost of the fans will be $2,700, half of which is being paid for by the county. The town will pay $1,350 which will come from local sources and town funds.

A request by Pitt Community College to display two banners in the downtown area promoting adult basic education program was approved.

A resolution was passed to ask the state for a warning light to be installed on the corner of Lee and Venters Streets.

A motion was made to close the portion of Hart Street that crosses the railroad because the street presents safety problems. Mayor Ross Persinger commented, "Back years ago we had a young man killed there."

A motion was made by Commissioner Dixon for the health department to look into the noise problem caused by the grain bin.

Lance May Sue Hometown Bank

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — Bert Lance, former U.S. budget director acquitted this year of bank fraud charges, says he may sue his hometown bank to get reimbursement for $1.1 million in legal expenses.

Lance headed the Calhoun First National Bank from 1963 to 1974 and is still, along with members of his family, its largest stockholder. He also made a reimbursement claim against the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta, which he also headed before going to Washington.

CLAIMS FORTUNE — Japanese truck driver Hisao Onuki, shows off a Yen 100,000,000 check ($469,000) moments after picking it up at the Lost and Found window of a government office in Tokyo. Onuki found the money on the street in April, in cash, and turned it in to authorities. Under Japanese law the 42-year-old Onuki was eligible to claim it last Saturday. He did so Tuesday morning. He'll keep 67 percent of the money after taxes. (AP Laserphoto)

Safe Driver

Award Made

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Charles W. West has been a professional truck driver for 35 years, including the last 31 years with Byrd Motor Line Inc. of Lexington.

In that time, he's logged 3.6 million miles behind the wheel of a truck. He has never had a traffic violation, and has never caused an accident. In fact, he's had only one accident — when another vehicle ran into the rear of his 18-wheeler.

On Monday the 61-year-old West was presented the 1980 North Carolina "Driver of the Year" award, making him eligible for participation in national competition sponsored by the American Trucking Association.

West said his safety record could be attributed to a blend of faith and skill.

"The most important things are driving defensively, keeping alert and having the right attitude toward other drivers," West said.

He added, "You see a lot of things on the road that might make you mad, but you've got to control your temper. When you're upset, you make mistakes, and you can't afford mistakes when you're driving."

West said he will continue to drive so long as he feels good, but he also said, "I don't believe I'll drive another three million miles."

If there is one trait that distinguishes the bridge expert from the average player, it is his ability to plan ahead. See if you can find the correct play to trick two on this no trump slam after West leads a low spade, which you win with the queen.

Purists might claim that South is a point short for his two no trump opening bid, but his fifth diamond adequately compensates. North made the value raise, and West led his fourth best spade. Cover up the East and West cards and decide how you would play your slam.

You have six tricks in the black suits. If the diamonds lie favorably, you have twelve top tricks. If you have to lose a diamond trick, you will need the heart finesse for your twelfth trick. Which suit do you tackle first?

You gain nothing by first playing on diamonds. Do you gain anything by taking the heart finesse at trick two?

Certainly! If the heart finesse loses, you must hope that you can bring in the diamond suit without loss. However, if the heart finesse wins, you can afford a safety play in diamonds!

So at trick two, run the queen of hearts. When this holds, lead a low diamond from dummy and simply cover whatever card East plays. No matter what East does, it is a simple matter to hold your diamond losers to one.

Assume that East plays the nine. The king wins and, when West shows out, lead a low diamond to the jack and East's queen. Now you have a finesse position for the ten. And if East follows with the six of diamonds on the first round of the suit, your eighth will win the trick.

Observe that if you lead to a high diamond at the second trick, you cannot recover if the defense does not make an error.

Bureaucracy Hurdle For Butner Chapel

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Murdoch Center at Butner has raised $250,000 to match a similar amount from the state to build a chapel for the center's mentally retarded patients, but state bureaucracy may block the project. A staff report prepared for the Capital Health Systems

Agency, which says it must approve the chapel project, has recommended that a permit of need be denied.

The center raised its share of the money with such events as basketball games, bake sales and pig-pickings. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten recorded a song to help support the project.

Backers of the chapel said they were not aware approval by the CHSA was needed until a month ago. They thought the chapel concept was approved when the General Assembly agreed to appropriate $250,000 in matching funds.

McAllister Is Speaker On Aging

Jeff McAllister, director of the Pitt County Council on Aging, was the guest speaker for the Sunday morning meeting of the Baptist Brotherhood of Immanuel Baptist Church.

McAllister outlined the work of the Council on Aging and the history of its development as an important agency for senior citizens of the county. Of special interest to the church men was the information about programs for the homebound aged. McAllister told of the great need for churches and other organizations to become part of a volunteer corps for delivery of food to the homebound and for volunteers driving of the aged to meet doctors' appointments and run various errands.

He stressed the importance of any person who conceives an imaginative or innovative program or plan for giving assistance to the some 10,500 persons over 60 years of age in the county to bring these ideas to his office.

He told of a Church of the Day program being carried out in some communities, whereby church accept volunteer responsibilities for assisting his office. He said he welcomes opportunities to discuss with any group the needs his office has in this regard. His office is at 1717 W. Fifth Street; his phone number, 752-1717.

Mike Hennicke, director of the Butner facility, said Monday the CHSA staff report goes against the Legislature's wishes and undermines the credibility of fundraisers who told contributors that the state's part of the money was already approved.

"We're between a rock and a hard place," said Hennicke. "Our posture is to appeal — as far as we can go."

Hennicke said he still was confident the chapel could be erected, saying: "My personal feeling is, in the final analysis, the chapel's going to be built at Murdoch."

State officials said CHSA approval was needed because of state requirements that capital expenditures in excess of $150,000 by a health care facility must have a certificate of need.

"Hopefully, in the future, perhaps these kinds of projects can be separated from the directly medical and health-related facilities," said William G. Vaughn, director of the state certificate of need section.

The CHSA staff recommended disapproval of the project because:

— It has not been in Murdoch Center's long-range plan.

— The center and mental hospital complex have other more pressing needs.

— There may be less expensive alternatives, such as using and perhaps renovating a current building.

Final determination on the chapel at Murdoch is in the hands of the Division of Facilities Services of the state Department of Human Resources. Three public hearings are planned before a decision is made, and the CHSA report must be considered by a committee and then by a regional board.

Hennicke said he questioned whether the project really should be subject to the requirements for a certificate of need. He acknowledged that the center "is not without a whole host of needs... (but) I think this is a legitimate need."

Murdoch's chapel is one of four such facilities proposed for the four state institutions for mentally retarded people.

The long-range goal of the fund raising campaign with cooperation from the Legislature was to build $500,000 chapels at each of the institutions.

Charles Dunn, a leader of the fundraising drive for Murdoch, predicted there will be "a lot of people upset if this (CHSA staff) ruling isn't overturned."

"Anybody who has looked into the situation will recognize the need for the chapels and the benefit they are to those residents who are able to participate," Dunn said.

College Team In Bus Wreck

MOUNT OLIVE, N.C. (AP) — A bus carrying 14 members of the Mount Olive College basketball team overturned at a rural intersection Monday night when its brakes failed, the Highway Patrol reported.

College President W. Burkette Raper said none of the players was injured seriously, although all were examined at Wayne Memorial Hospital in Goldsboro.

The accident occurred at the intersection of state roads 1317 and 1318 in northern Duplin County.

Marooned Haitians Said Rationing Food Supplies

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Some of the 118 Haitians stranded on a small Caribbean island for more than a month are reported to be rationing food supplies while they await a rescue delayed by mechanical problems.

Several of the Haitians are sick, according to a television news crew that visited Cayo Lobos, north of Cuba, on Monday. Some of the women are pregnant and one complained of headaches, cramps, nausea and other illnesses.

The NBC News crew also reported that five South Florida fishermen whose boat burned and sank had joined the Haitians on the football field-sized island.

The U.S. Coast Guard has made periodic food drops to the Haitians since first spotting them Oct. 9. But that activity was halted Friday after Bahamian authorities assured the Coast Guard it would pick up the refugees.

It was not immediately clear when a Bahamian government vessel would leave for Cayo Lobos.

Bahama News Bureau Chief Bill Kalis said rescuers hoped to begin the 30-hour trip sometime Monday night.

Bahamian officials said problems with the steering mechanism of a 130-foot government tender delayed a departure scheduled for earlier in the day.

The Bahamians plan to take the refugees, who had been trying to reach Miami, to the Haitian capital of Port-au-Prince. The skipper of the 35-foot boat that brought the Haitians to Cayo Lobos told NBC that the refugees would be punished if they returned to Haiti.

"If I go back to Haiti, the police make trouble, make trouble for the Haitians," Claude Peters, 25, told the network.

Peters, the only one of the Haitians who speaks English, said a storm forced the Haitian boat to the island a month and half ago. Five passengers died during the trip, and the boat later drifted away, he said.

On Monday, five Miami fishermen on a Caribbean trip landed on the island after their boat caught fire and sank.

Magdaleno Olivero, Jose Mateo, Faustino Ferro, Julio Roja, and Gabriel Allende rowed to the island after the mishap.

"They're all very nice," Mateo said of the Haitians. "They don't have much, but they have shared their food and water with us."

Meanwhile, Tropical Storm Jeanne, packing 55 mph winds off the western tip of Cuba, was not expected to hamper the rescue effort, the National Hurricane Center in Miami said. Cayo Lobos is about 20 miles off the northeastern coast of Cuba.

A Coast Guard plane began weekly supply drops after spotting the refugees. The Bahamian government began negotiating the rescue with the Haitian government Oct. 10, and got a response six days later, Kalis said.

More than 25,000 Haitians have fled their homeland — considered among the world's most impoverished nations — for jobs and refuge in South Florida in recent years. Another 25,000 have gone to the Bahamas, where they are considered illegal immigrants and deported.

Set Alcohol Plant Plans

BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — A privately owned Beaufort County company announced plans Monday to build a $100 million plant near Belhaven to produce ethanol from corn.

The plant would be fired by peat and waste wood, according to Richard Seale of Washington, president of deFort Industries.

Seale's company, which created its name from the last two letters in Hyde County and the last four letters in Beaufort County, is made up of Beaufort County farmers and businessmen.

The plant is projected to produce 100,000 gallons of ethanol daily from about 40,000 bushels of corn. Work on the project reportedly could begin as early as March.

Seale said the plant would employ about 150 people but would generate an additional 200 to 300 jobs in support industries, especially to supply peat and wood for fuel.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Lingering Pain After Shingles Attack

About three months ago I had an attack of shingles. It was all over my chest and back. Even after this length of time I still have pains in my back. Could my doctors be overlooking some other disease that might be present?

— Mr. W.D., S.D.

Dear Mr. D.: It has never been satisfactorily explained why some patients recover from a bout of shingles without any lasting or persistent pain, while others have neuralgia which may last for many months.

Shingles, or "herpes zoster," is an infection of the nervous system. Tiny blisters crop out over skin areas of the body. Shingles can occur over the face, the lower back and legs, and most often around the chest wall. The diagnosis of shingles is readily made by the characteristic lines the blisters follow, from the spinal cord to the front of the chest. The condition is caused by a virus.

Unfortunately, it is difficult to explain why shingles occur. They seem to occur more frequently among people who have been devitalized by chronic illnesses and malnutrition. In the early stages, cortisone is used to reduce the severity and duration of this distressing condition. Some doctors have found that large doses of vitamin B-12 are effective. Soothing lotions and powders applied to the shingles are also helpful. Soft coverings over the chest wall seem to reduce the pain. And aspirin remains one of the most effective drugs to control the distressing pain.

By now you must be bored and annoyed with the persistence of your discomfort. Your psychological distress is playing havoc with your fortitude. That is why you are becoming anxious about some other condition that might be responsible for the pain that has lasted so long.

Please be assured that there is nothing unusual about the delay in your total recovery. Do not now embark on a new diagnostic search which will compound rather than alleviate your distress.

My daughter was born with a spina bifida. She is now 8 months old and growing well. Can such a child eventually lead a normal life? — Mrs. G.F., Okla. Dear Mrs. F.: Spina bifida is an abnormality of development that is immediately recognized in the newborn child. It is a failure of the bones of the spinal column to fuse properly. The degree of incapacitation depends entirely upon the extent of the condition.

With early treatment and surgery, the nerves of the spinal cord are kept from becoming involved in this anatomical problem. The microsurgery that is available today has greatly enhanced the possibility of total recovery from this condition.

The brilliant advances in surgery have made it possible for many patients with spina bifida to live normal lives with normal productivity.

File 76 Charges In Drug Probe

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — City and county authorities filed 76 drug-related charges against 19 people Monday as the result of a three-month undercover investigation.

More arrests were expected, police said.

Cleveland County Sheriff's Deputy Eddie Brown said it was the largest number of arrests ever made in the county in a drug case.

"An undercover agent was hired in the summer and he moved around the city in a beat-up, old car making drug buys," Brown said. "Only the top brass in the sheriff's department and city police departments knew about it."

N.C. SHP Holding Vacancies For Women, Blacks

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Highway Patrol agreed Monday to reserve 75 percent of its vacancies during the next five years for blacks and women. The agreement came in a consent decree filed in U.S. District Court that apparently resolves a suit filed by the Justice Department, alleging discrimination against blacks and women, and a private suit filed in 1974 by the state's first black trooper.

Unless objections are raised by Dec. 1 by parties involved in the suit, the decree will become effective Jan. 1 and will be in effect until Jan. 1, 1986. After that, the patrol would be free to hire as it wished.

Burley Mitchell, state secretary of crime control and public safety, said that, under the agreement, "essentially we'll hire 50 percent blacks and 25 percent women, if they're available, if they apply and if they're qualified."

He said the decree does not "require us to hire anybody.

It says we will move (black and female applicants) to the head of the list and consider them first."

"If they (blacks) don't apply, we'll take as many as are qualified, up to 50 percent," Mitchell said. Mitchell said that, although a recruiting program at black colleges and among community leaders is under way, past experience made him pessimistic that the goals will be attained.

There is a waiting list for patrol vacancies, with most of those on the list being white males. Patrol officials said that for the last four years an average of 70 vacancies have been filled through two training programs.

Most of those programs have included only a small number of black males.

In Washington Civiletti said the long-term hiring plan was an effort to have the percentage of black and female troopers equal the percentage of qualified blacks and women in North Carolina's civilian labor force. Currently, women comprise 41.3 percent of the labor force and blacks make up 19 percent.

Isaac Avery, an assistant state attorney general who represented the patrol in negotiations with the Justice Department, said patrol school candidates are selected chronologically, based upon the date of application.

"Now, instead of having one chronological list, we'll have three — one for blacks, one for women, and one for whites," Avery said.

Under the decree and if sufficient black and female applicants are found, a standard 40-member patrol training class would consist of 20 blacks, 10 women and 10 white males.

There are now 53 blacks among the 1,150 state troopers. The only woman trooper was hired last March.

In addition to the percentage goals, the decree calls for the state to:

— Promote black troopers in proportions equal to the percentage of their representation on the patrol. To achieve that, the length of service for line sergeant — the lowest supervisory rank — was reduced from seven years to four years to increase the number of eligible blacks.

— Hire minority applicants for 30 percent of all civilian job openings, such as radio dispatcher.

— Initiate a recruitment program aimed at women and waive minimum height requirement of 5-feet-6 for women. The validity of the height and weight requirements for all patrol applicants was left unresolved and will be settled in court, the Justice Department said.

The Justice Department filed its suit against the patrol in 1975, alleging violations of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 relating to hiring and promotion of minority members.

Trooper Charles H. Johnson, who now is assigned to Forsyth County, filed a private class-action suit in 1974 alleging a pattern of discrimination in the hiring of troopers.

FOCUS

Lame Ducks In Congress

The last session of Congress for several House and Senate members is scheduled to begin tomorrow in the nation's Capitol. Some of the outgoing members were defeated in last week's election. Others decided to retire rather than run for election again this year. Such lawmakers, who are still in office even though their successors have already been elected, are called "lame ducks." This year's "lame-duck" session of Congress will consider bills dealing with government spending, Alaska park lands, and a program to clean up chemical wastes. New senators and representatives elected last week will take their seats when the next session of Congress begins in January.

DO YOU KNOW — How many senators represent each state in Congress?

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a strong advance today, encouraged by signs of a letup in upward pressure on interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 7.68 to 941.47 by noon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by a 2-1 margin in the overall tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A relatively quiet session was expected with many investors taking a Veterans Day holiday.

Late Monday the bond market rallied on the news that retail sales posted an unexpected decline last month. The figures were seen as evidence that the pace of economic activity might be slackening again, taking some upward pressure off inflation and interest rates.

Today stock prices followed the bond market's lead.

Aerospace issues, which have been strong for the past week in anticipation of increased defense spending under President-elect Reagan, continued to gain ground.

General Dynamics rose 1 1/4 to 75 1/4; Boeing 1/2 to 36 1/2; Lockheed 3/4 to 33 1/4; McDonnell Douglas 1/4 to 41 3/4, and Northrop 3/4 to 52 3/4.

Oils also advanced. Standard Oil of California rose 1/4 to 93; Superior Oil 3 to 193; Conoco 1 1/2 to 64, and Atlantic Richfield 1 to 65 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index gained .70 to 75.31. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.61 at 337.37.

Jury Views TV Tapes Of Killing

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jurors in the murder trial of six Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis looked twice today at a videotape of a "Death to the Klan" rally at which five leftist demonstrators were slain.

The tape, taken by a cameraman for WXII-TV in Winston-Salem, was shown to the jury as court opened this morning. After retiring to further deliberate, jurors returned a second time and were given permission to see the tape again.

The jury began deliberation last Friday of first-degree murder charges against six Klansmen and Nazis who are accused of gunning down five Communist Workers Party members during a rally at Greensboro on Nov. 3, 1979.

Superior Court Judge James M. Long allowed the jury to have the television tape stopped at several points for a closer look at the activity.

The tape shows the scene of the rally site before the confrontation as a racially mixed crowd sang pro-Communist songs and practiced "Death to the Klan" chants.

Although the WXII tape does not show the actual shooting, as do other television videotapes the jury has seen, it shows a scene of confusion as the shooting began and bodies lying on the street afterward.

Rule Elector Ineligible

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The attorney general's office ruled Monday that Rep. J. Reid Poovey, R-Catawba, is ineligible to serve as a North Carolina presidential elector, but Poovey said he would show up to vote anyway.

Poovey, disagreeing with the ruling, said he would not contest the opinion from the attorney general.

"It's not that big a deal. I guess the vote will be cast by somebody else," he said. "But we'll get the vote either way, and that's what's important. It makes no difference who casts the vote."

Poovey was one of 13 Republicans chosen last May to serve as an elector if Ronald Reagan won the state's popular vote. His eligibility as an elector was challenged because he then would be serving in two elected offices.

"We think Poovey would be ineligible to serve as a presidential elector because under the (state) constitution, you cannot serve two electoral offices concurrently," said James Bullock, senior deputy attorney general.

Poovey said, "I think he's mistaken. I think as long as I don't accept pay for the other duty, I'm free to serve. If I accepted pay for voting, then I would not be operating in accordance with the law."

"As I understand it, we have various officials now serving in other capacities at all levels of state government who do not get extra pay. I think that's where the hitch is. I plan to forfeit the pay."

Research Signal For Earthquakes

NEW YORK (AP) — A scientific team from Columbia University has begun a research project with a group of Chinese scientists to chart changes in gravity around Peking as a aid to predicting earthquakes.

The three-member American group left New York Oct. 19 carrying 11 gravimeters to measure the earth's gravitational field, the university said Monday.

The Chinese and American researchers plan to set up gravimeters at 15 sites in the 50,000 square miles around Peking, one of the most seismically active regions in the world.

Flying To Bring New Techniques

CHICAGO (AP) — A specially outfitted DC-8 jet will carry doctors around the world next year on a mission to teach new eye-care techniques and learn local specialties.

Project Orbis will bring "hands on" lessons in new types of surgery and treatment to some 900 doctors, says Dr. James Paton, an ophthalmologist at Baylor University in Texas and a founder of the non-profit group.

Damage from the collision was set at $50 to the Hall car, $200 to the Cook auto, and $400 to the Hays truck.

An 8:15 a.m. mishap on Westhaven Road, 200 feet east of the Amber Lane intersection, involved cars driven by Hilda Stanford Alford of 109 Westhaven Rd., and Karen Elizabeth Forehand of 302 Westhaven Rd.

Police estimated damage at $350 to the Alford car and $250 to the Forehand vehicle.

Suspend License Of 12 Pilots

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Licenses of 12 pilots have been suspended by the Federal Aviation Administration for violations of air safety rules with flights around Mount St. Helens, authorities said.

The FAA suspended the licenses of 11 pilots for entering a restricted flight zone around the volcano, FAA regional counsel Hays Hettinger said Monday. The other suspension was for an unauthorized landing at Yakima Airport during heavy ashfall from the May 18 eruption, he said.

Another 17 cases are being processed by the FAA, which has investigated nearly 50 alleged violations of restricted airspace since the mountain came to life March 27, Hettinger said.

two years prior to last year's election. He was first appointed to the board in October of 1971 and then reappointed for his second tenure in 1976.

During the regular meeting, commissioners approved Hoke Contracting Co. of 400 N. Memorial Drive as a bidder on property owned by the commission off Memorial Drive in the West Meadowbrook section.

Laney explained that the commission-owned land, located adjacent to Hoke property, involves three tracts totaling some over 40,000 square feet. The property is zoned under the "flood plain" designation and Laney said that the company indicated plans to utilize the land for outdoor storage. Hoke Contracting also agreed to beautify and landscape the property, Laney added.

The executive director said that if Hoke Contracting is successful in bidding on the parcels, it will square up the Hoke property line.

In other business, commissioners accepted the bid of Stephen F. Horne II and Phillip R. Dixon, partners in a local law firm, on a disposal parcel on Evans Street across from Sheppard Memorial Library, subject to City Council approval.

Laney said that the law partners submitted the only bid on the 16,289 square foot lot, offering the minimum bid of $48,867. The attorneys indicated plans to build an office structure on the tract to house the law firm.

According to Laney, three inquiries were received since the last meeting regarding purchase and development of commission-owned property on Reade Circle in the Central Business District. Commissioners last month discussed the possibility of the property being used as a site for a farmers' market.

Laney said that two of the inquiries involved possible multi-family use, involving townhouse units or a mid-rise, while the third involved interest in building an office structure on the property. It was agreed that Laney should discuss the property situation with city personnel, with respect to the residential or commercial development of the tract, as well as zoning.

Leftists Take Helm Of Labor

LONDON (AP) — Leftist Michael Foot has taken the helm of Britain's divided Labor Party with pledges to fight the stationing of U.S. nuclear weapons in Britain, the international arms race and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's austerity policies.

The opposition party's 268 members of the House of Commons broke a tradition of moderate leadership more than half a century old Monday when they elected the 67-year-old former radical socialist the party's new leader. Foot, who favors Britain's gradual withdrawal from the European Common Market but says he would not pull the country out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, defeated centrist Denis Healey by 10 votes in a runoff ballot.

Left-wing Laborites, jubilant over their victory, said the election of the popular Foot would unify the party. Other leaders of the party's right wing joined Healey in accepting the outcome, and Healey said he would run for deputy party leader, the post Foot held under his predecessor, former Prime Minister James Callaghan.

But there was speculation that Foot's time in office would be short because former Energy Secretary Tony Benn, the firebrand of the party's left wing, will try to unseat him next year when a new election procedure is adopted. It will replace the parliamentary caucus, which the moderates have dominated, by an electoral college in which Benn's supporters in the trade unions and the local party organizations will be represented.

There was speculation also that Foot's victory and the possibility of his replacement by Benn would give impetus to former Laborite Roy Jenkins' ambition to lead a new centrist party.

Oilers, Back In Character, Pull Out 38-34 Victory Over Patriots

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers almost forgot that they were Monday night when they jumped to a 24-6 halftime lead against the New England Patriots.

But the Oilers, who prefer a good cliffhanger to a blowout, quickly got back in character in the second half when they almost blew the lead and treated fans to their weekly chamber of horrors before pulling out a 38-34 thriller.

It wasn't decided until cornerback Greg Stremick intercepted a Steve Grogan pass in the end zone with 20 seconds left to play.

And it took a couple of Monday night specialists, quarterback Ken Stabler and running back Earl Campbell, to lead the Oilers through.

Stabler, who has posted a 10-1 record in Monday night games, completed 15 of 17 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns.

Campbell, in his fifth consecutive 100-yard performance in Monday night games, gained 130 yards on 30 carries and scored on runs of three and seven yards.

"It's not a matter of 'I' but 'We,'" said Stabler when asked about his Monday night success. "We've got an outstanding offensive team with a lot of talent."

Campbell, who had only 46 yards rushing in the first half, said he was trying too hard.

"A lot of the problem in the first half was my fault," Campbell said. "I was trying to push things too much. In the second half I just slowed and let the offensive line do their work. Their defense came at us very hard. They've got a great club. There's nothing you can say bad about them."

The Oilers took an unaccustomed 24-6 halftime lead on a 45-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch. Stabler's touchdown passes of 79 yards to tight end Mike Barber and 4 yards to tight end Dave Kasper and Campbell's 3-yard run.

New England could muster only field goals of 45 and 26 yards by John Smith.

But Grogan, who finished with 25 completions on 39 attempts for 374 yards, brought the Patriots to life in the third quarter with a 39-yard touchdown pass to Harold Jackson and Don Calhoun's 1-yard run.

The race really heated up in the fourth quarter with Campbell scoring on a seven-yard run and Grogan matching it with a 21-yard touchdown pass to tight end Russ Francis.

Stabler came back with a 16-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Mike Renfro, but Grogan had one more shot, a 15-yard scoring pass to Francis with 1:28 left in the game.

But it still wasn't over. New England's Motti Tapuru recovered an onside kick and the Patriots reached Houston's 19-yard line before Grogan threw into the end zone and Stremick ended the threat with his interception.

"I was looking for the corner on the interception," Stremick said of his first interception of the year. "I was taking a chance on thinking corner, but I acted like a receiver and I went up and shielded him from the ball."

New England Coach Ron Earhardt, who saw his team drop to a 7-3 record, was disappointed at his team's missed scoring chances.

"We had plenty of chances to win tonight, but the best team did not win," he said. "We're just as good as they are and we had plenty of opportunities to prove it. I feel very proud of our football team."

Oilers Coach Bum Phillips was equally proud of his team. "We played as good offensively as we possibly could have," Phillips said. "You all may not think our defense played well, but I'm telling you those people have put points on the board against everybody."

Oilers defensive coordinator Ed Biles gave credit to Grogan.

"I'm sure when you look at the films you'll see we didn't play all that bad. Grogan just drilled the ball in there where they could catch it. They were just good passes."

Pastorini, Latest Playgirl Pinup, Claims He Did It Just For Fun

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Dan Pastorini is no longer exposed to the rush of quarterback-hungry linemen — but he's exposed himself to far more widespread attention of late.

The tall, blond quarterback of the Oakland Raiders, following in the footsteps — sort of — of ex-cheerleaders Lynita Schilling, Jacqueline Rohrs, Andrea Mann and others (not to mention Burt Reynolds), has traded in his working togs for a birthday suit.

In the December issue of Playgirl Magazine, Pastorini, the one-time husband of one-time bombshell June Wilkinson, displays for all the world to see just what he's made of.

Well...not entirely. He's almost coy, almost shy, as though it were an embarrassed giggle rather than a hearty laugh he was having into the lens.

"I thought it was kind of odd anyone would want to photograph this body nude. It's all beat up," Pastorini said, reflecting back on the suggestion first made last summer, shortly after Houston traded him to the Raiders.

"I just did it for fun. I was laughing through the whole thing. When they first asked, I said, 'Nah!' but a lot of my friends said to go ahead and do it. So I told them that if it was in good taste, I would."

And he did. And it is.

"I don't think it's disgusting or anything. I don't think I showed any more than Jim Palmer does in those underwear commercials," Pastorini said of the Baltimore Orioles' pitcher.

A few years back, there might have been an uproar of earthquake proportions had Pastorini or any other National Football League star opted for nothing but the bare essentials in a national magazine.

Remember when Burt Reynolds center-folded himself in Cosmopolitan? It was considered somehow radically chic, a real departure.

And remember a couple of years ago, when NFL cheerleaders began attracting more attention than the players they were rah-rahing? Remember how a bunch of them showed up in Playboy Magazine in various states of attire (or lack thereof) and how the purity of the league and its teams suddenly came under fire?

Lynita Schilling remembers. She was one of the San Diego cheerleaders. When she and a "teammate" appeared in the buff, the whole troupe of Chargettes was summarily dismissed.

The same thing happened to Jackie Rohrs, fired by the Chicago Honey Bears for her lack of modesty. And Andrea Mann was cut by the Baltimore Colts because her total ensemble in the magazine layout amounted to a pair of high-heeled shoes.

A double standard? Maybe. But also a change in the times.

Those cheerleaders and today's Chargettes, Raiderettes and the rest could probably put in an appearance in Playboy this year without so much as ruffling a pom-pom.

Besides, along with Lynita and her friends, Pastorini has had a couple of other photogenic types running interference for him.

His predecessor in the Oakland huddle, Ken Stabler, was photographed last year sprawling around with that marvel of modern chemistry, Carol Doda. And a couple of other guys who wore the silver and black of the Raiders, Ben Davidson and Otis Sistrunk, made appearances in X-rated movies.

Georgia Moves Up Into Top Spot, Southern Cal Vaults Into Second

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

After 38 years, the Georgia Bulldogs, the nation's only unbeaten-untied major team, moved into first place in The Associated Press college football poll today for the first time since late in the 1942 season.

Following Saturday's 26-21 come-from-behind triumph over Florida, Georgia received 54 1/2 of 66 first-place votes and 1,299 1/2 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

The Bulldogs were runnerup to Notre Dame a week ago but the Fighting Irish were held to a 3-3 tie by Georgia Tech, a 1-7-1 team, and slipped from first place to sixth.

Southern California, fourth last week, moved into second place with six first-place votes and 1,180 points following a 34-9 victory over Stanford.

Florida State, a 31-7 winner over Virginia Tech, held onto third place with 1,172 points.

Nebraska moved up from fourth to third with two first-place votes and 1,105 points for a 55-8 rout of Kansas State. Alabama, the No. 1 team two weeks ago, rose from sixth to fifth with 1,067 points by defeating Louisiana State 28-7.

Notre Dame was sixth with 1,045 points, followed by Ohio State. The Buckeyes, who won a wild 49-42 slugfest from Illinois, received the remaining one-half first-place vote and 924 1/2 points.

Pitt, Penn State and Oklahoma rounded out the Top Ten. Each moved up one position from last week as UCLA skidded from eighth to 17th. Pitt received 868 points by trouncing Louisville 41-23. Penn State earned 765 points for a 21-13 triumph over North Carolina State and Oklahoma totaled 618 points following a 21-19 victory over Kansas.

There was some shuffling of positions but no newcomers in this week's Top Twenty. The Second Ten consists of Michigan, Baylor, Brigham Young, South Carolina, North Carolina, Purdue, UCLA, Southern Methodist, Mississippi State and Florida. Last week it was Oklahoma, Michigan, BYU, North Carolina, South Carolina, Baylor, Purdue, SMU, Mississippi State and Florida.

Borg Defeats McEnroe In Swedish Net Finals

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — They rolled out a slow vinyl slab carpet on the fast indoor court and changed the tournament's format to a 32-man draw, giving Bjorn Borg another advantage and John McEnroe another disadvantage.

McEnroe tried to beat the odds, but couldn't and fell 6-3, 6-4 to the five-time Wimbledon Champ in Monday's showdown of the $175,000 Stockholm Open tennis championships.

It was McEnroe's defense and Borg's jinx, just like the U.S. Open.

Borg has eight unsuccessful attempts in the U.S. Open, the only major title that has eluded him. And it was the eighth time the world's number one tried to win the Open in Stockholm, an half-an-hour ride from his hometown Sodertalje.

In the end, the slow court at the Royal Tennis Hall here helped Borg to avenge the bitter U.S. Open defeat to McEnroe, which ended the Swede's chance to make the Grand Slam.

"I wanted this one badly, very badly — as much as I wanted the U.S. Open," said Borg who picked up $34,000 and a lot of lost pride.

"You can't compare this one with the major championships, but it's something special to win here. After all, I grew up near here."

He was so happy that he showed up for a news conference afterward, something he had failed to do after his four earlier matches. It cost him $2,000 in fines under the Grand Prix rules.

Borg was only 15 when he played this tournament for the first time, losing a three-setter in the opening round. Two years later, he gained the finals for the first time but lost after a decisive tiebreaker to American Tom Gorman.

The tourney — the world's oldest Grand Prix indoors — used to be played on a fast court loved by the serve and volley specialists. McEnroe, the best fast court player around, won here 1978 and 1979.

The reason why he didn't repeat was simple, although the New Yorker fought bravely. Borg is most steady player and has most allround skills. He's good on all surfaces, slow, medium or fast.

"The slow court favored me," Borg admitted. "John couldn't play his usual attacking game. He had to stay back on the baseline and wasn't able to come in as often as he's used to."

McEnroe has yet to prove it on clay. Although he captured the 1977 French Open mixed-doubles title with Mary Carillo, he hasn't won much else.

Borg, one the other hand, is the greatest clay court player ever with an unprecedented five triumphs of the endurance test in Paris and most other titles on that surface.

"It's one thing I would like to do — win one of the big clay court titles," said McEnroe.

"But to do that I have to be like Bjorn — be more patient. I can do it for a few games, but you have to be consistent during the whole match. Just like Bjorn."

The 24-year-old Swede, without a tournament victory since his Wimbledon triumph over McEnroe and his marriage to Mariana Simionescu last July, raised his lifetime record to 6-4, exhibitions not included, over McEnroe. The triumph also avenged a loss to McEnroe here 1978 — the first time Borg was defeated by a younger player.

East Carolina University's men's basketball team will go on public display for the first time this Saturday.

Coach Dave Odom's second Pirate team will hold its annual Purple-Gold game Saturday, starting one-half hour after the completion of the ECU-Eastern Kentucky football game at Ficklen Stadium. The basketball game will be played at nearby Minges Coliseum.

Odom's team features only four members of last year's team, which posted the first winning record in five years. The four include Michael Gibson, Tom Szymanski, David Underwood and Mark McLaurin.

There will be no admission charge for the game, which is open to the public.

Harris Is The Winner

It was women's day in the Daily Reflector Football Contest this week, as two women took the prizes in the pickings.

First place went to Betty Harris of 1101 Cortland Road, Greenville. She correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games listed, and two of those misses were ties, counted as wrong in the contest.

Her victory came on the basis of the point total guess. Her guess of 69 was closest to the actual total of 91 scored in Ohio State's 49-42 victory over Illinois.

Second place went to Dora Sumrel of P.O. Box 1045, Greenville, who also correctly picked the winners in 29 of the 32 games, missing only one besides the ties. Her point total guess was 67, two further off from the correct total.

The final contest in this year's series appears on the following pages.

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 500 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 400 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Win Is Not Totally Pleasing

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Coach Tom Nisalke was happy with his team's 108-106 win over Indiana, its 10th in the young National Basketball Association season.

But he said he wasn't pleased with the way the Jazz turned the game over to Indiana in the final minutes of play Monday night.

"The Pacers did a great job with the press," Nisalke said. "They didn't use it until late in the game, but when they did, we didn't react to it well at all."

The Indiana-Utah contest was the only NBA game Monday night.

Leading 93-82 midway in the final period, Utah fell into a spell of sloppy ball handling, thanks to the Pacers' press. The Jazz turned the ball over 11 times in the quarter. At one point, they suffered through five straight possessions without getting a shot off.

Meanwhile, Indiana's Billy Knight scored 18 of his game-high 36 points in the final period as the Pacers overtook the Jazz at 103-102 with a minute and a half to play. But Allan Bristow and Billy McKinney converted a pair of free throws each in the final 30 seconds, and Utah grabbed a squeaker.

Adrian Dantley led the winners with 33 points and rookie Darrell Griffith came through with 29. Bristow finished with 15.

James Edwards, the 7-foot-1 Indiana center, scored 19 for the losers, and Mike Bantom came through with 16.

"Jack (McKinney) has done an excellent job with that team," Nisalke said. "Billy Knight is not just a good player, he's a great player, and he showed everyone why tonight."

"We played fairly well with a depleted corps of starters," McKinney said. "But we played badly enough to lose by letting Utah get the shots."

Pacer starters Johnny Davis and George McGinnis sat out the game with injuries, but McKinney said both should be ready for action in the near future.

Utah wound up with 26 turnovers in the game. Indiana guard Dudley Bradley was responsible for a third of them, picking off nine steals. Knight's 36 points was his high for the season. He came into the game with a 15.1 scoring average.

Dantley, the league's leading scorer with 33.6 points per game, managed to maintain that average. He scored 19 points in the first half, but was effectively contained in the final quarter during which he managed only four points.

Mike Schmidt Named Player Of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Schmidt, the slugging third baseman who led the Philadelphia Phillies to their first world championship in 97 years, was named National League Player of the Year by the Associated Press today.

Schmidt easily outdistanced the field, leading a Philadelphia sweep of the first four places in the balloting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

He received 368½ votes, finishing far ahead of Philadelphia pitcher Steve Carlton, who last week won the National League Cy Young Award. Carlton received 81½ votes. Phillies bullpen ace Tug McGraw was 13th in the balloting with 13, followed by peppercorn first baseman Pete Rose, who had nine.

Schmidt set a major league record for third basemen with 48 home runs, breaking the mark of 47 set by Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews in 1953. It was the fourth time in the last seven seasons that Schmidt has led the NL in homers.

He also won the National League runs batted in crown with 121.

A perennial Gold Glove third baseman, Schmidt was selected to the All Star team for the fifth time last season and either led or was among the NL leaders in several other batting categories, including total bases, sacrifice flies, slugging percentage and runs scored.

Schmidt was the driving force in the Phillies' pulsating race to the National League East Division crown and had the game-winning RBI in each of his team's last five regular-season victories. It was his home run in the 11th inning on the next to the last day of the season in Montreal that ended the Expos' chances and clinched the division title for the Phillies.

NBC Attempting To Stem Flow

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Several years ago, when college football was at its zenith and television was in its infancy, a guest checked into a Philadelphia Hotel for the Army-Navy game and found in his room a coin-operated TV set.

After unpacking his bags, he put a quarter into the slot and settled back in an easy chair, only to find the TV audio on the blink.

"I've got 30 minutes of blessed silence," he said, with a sigh of unrestrained relief.

The same blessed silence is what Don Ohlmeyer, enterprising executive producer of NBC Sports, is seeking in his plans to air an "announcer-less" National Football League game later in the season.

"We haven't made a final decision, although I am very interested in the experiment," said the young network executive, up to his turtleneck sweater in messages and memos in his Rockefeller Center office. "We are contemplating it for the New York Jets-Miami game Dec. 20 in Florida, granting the Dolphins aren't in playoff contention."

A TV football game without announcers?

"Unbelievable!" is the instantaneous and natural reaction.

"Bless you, Donald, go get 'em!" undoubtedly would be the groundswell from the majority of the nation's viewers, their ears stinging from the incessant battering of the chatterbox.

"I have always wanted to see if we could tell a story without using the announcers as a crutch," Ohlmeyer said. "All our top people are involved. What we are aiming at is a superior product."

"I have a feeling that once we have tried it, even the hardcore viewers may say, 'Gee, we miss the announcers.' At the same time, they may decide they like the show with less talking."

In other words, Ohlmeyer's purpose is to try to recreate the game for the parlor viewer to make it just as pleasurable as if he or she were watching from the stands — with all the sounds and drama of the actual stadium with needed details provided by graphics.

"We have critics who contend that announcers talk too much. They say, 'Shut up! Let it happen.' I am not convinced that some of this criticism isn't legitimate. At NBC, we have taken strong steps to curb the problem. This is just another move in that direction."

Ohlmeyer divides the TV sports audience into two basic groups — the hardcore fan who probably knows more than the announcer and is turned off by repetition of mundane information, and the softcore fan — the housewife and nonsports buff who just tune in the big events such as the World Series, the Super Bowl and the Kentucky Derby.

"These spectacles can't be classified as strictly sports events — they are happenings," he said. "So you have millions in the audience who are not familiar with the sport. You have to give them something else. You can't bore them with a routine description of the game."

Ohlmeyer compares it with having a group of 20 or so people over to the house for a fun afternoon.

"Everybody's watching the game — some more than others," he adds. "Then there are a few who tell the others what's going on. It's pleasant and relaxed. That's the kind of product I would like."

ABC's Monday Night Football, one of the highest rated shows on TV, is a proponent of the "three men-on-a-mike" syndrome, featuring the no-break commentary of Howard Cosell, Frank Gifford and alternately Don Meredith and Fran Tarkenton.

The show, which ironically Ohlmeyer produced before moving over to NBC, has been roundly criticized for its constant jabber.

"Monday Night Football had perfect chemistry for breaking into prime time TV," Ohlmeyer says. "No one can deny it has been a success. But that was 10 years ago. Some time, you have to go home again."

Ohlmeyer added that NBC, which this year had broadcast rights to the World Series, the Super Bowl, Wimbledon tennis and the boycotted Moscow Olympics, is moving toward reduced audio.

"In the World Series, we told our announcers, Joe Garagiola, Tony Kubek and Tom Seaver, 'Hey, you don't have to talk every second. You've got three hours, so you don't have to give all the facts or read 57 cue cards in five minutes."

"They agreed. They low-keyed it and let the dramatic incidents tell themselves without any distractions. In the Super Bowl, only Dick Enberg and Merlin Olsen will be in the booth. And they're not going to be talking their heads off, either."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Y equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. ## Workshop Planned On Handicapped

Herb Stout of Raleigh, president of Parents and Professional for Handicapped Children, will speak at a workshop for Lenoir and Greene County parents and professionals in Kinston Thursday, November 20.

The workshop will be held from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church, 2101 N. Heritage St. Topics will include legal rights of handicapped children in education, parent participation in education plans, due process and community advocacy.

The workshop is being organized by Lynn Whitley, northeast regional advocate with the Governor's Advocacy Council for Persons with Disabilities (GACPD), who will also be a workshop speaker. "Anyone in the area who has a child with special needs should attend," Ms. Whitley said. "The workshop is designed to help participants in planning for their children's education. Parents of preschoolers with special needs would also benefit."

Child care will be provided at the meeting, and an interpreter for the deaf will be available if requested. For more information, contact Ms. Whitley at 103 Oakmont Drive, Greenville, 27834, or telephone 756-8742.

MEETING CANCELLED

City Workers Join Training Programs

A number of city supervisors and department managers have begun participating in a series of management training and development programs.

During October, 19 supervisory employees were enrolled in a 25-hour supervisory leadership development program at Pitt Community College. The program is designed to provide basic management skills and techniques to first and second level supervisor.

On Oct. 27 and 28, 36 supervisors including department heads, division heads and other supervisory personnel completed a training program concerning human behavior and management styles, conducted by the Institute of Government.

In November, the city is conducting an Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action workshop. Following the program, the city will conduct the last phase of training for 1980 with a two-day program on Dec. 2 and 3. Participants will be exposed to the concepts and theory concerning employee motivation, and organizational communications.

The city reported that two department heads were accepted to attend specialized professional development programs. Fire/Rescue Chief Jenness Allen has returned from a two-week executive development program for fire service managers, while Ben Shivar, community development director, has been accepted to attend the first annual CD administration program at the Institute of Government.
