Supreme Court To Rule On Male-Only Draft Law

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to judge the constitutionality of a male-only military draft.

Some 4 million men were required to register for the draft last July. If the justices uphold a lower court's ruling — and their decision probably will not be announced until sometime next spring or summer — the government might have to destroy all records of that registration.

have to amend the Military Selective Service Act to include women as potential draftees.

A three-judge federal court panel in Philadelphia last July 18 struck down the nation's 31-year-old draft law because it excluded women.

record here, however, reveals that women do serve a useful role in the military and provide important skills ... flexibility is not enhanced but is in fact limited by the complete exclusion of women."

objectives" and are "substantially related" to achieving such objectives.

Applying that standard of judicial scrutiny, the three-judge panel said the draft law "unconstitutionally discriminates between males and females."

While government lawyers limited their arguments to the validity of draft registration, the three-judge panel's decision struck down the entire Military Selective Service Act, which includes military induction as well as registration.

Military induction has not taken place since 1973. Even if military registration and the draft were upheld, Congress would have to pass a new law to allow for call-ups to resume.

Ironically, the legal challenge that led to the three-judge decision was filed in 1971 as a protest to the Vietnam war, and for years lay dormant.

That all changed last December when President Carter reinstated draft registration in the wake of the Soviet Union's intervention in Afghanistan.

The Carter administration's plan for a July 21 registration of all 19- and 20-year-old men was jeopardized by the Philadelphia panel's ruling. But Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan granted an emergency request by the government and allowed the registration to be carried out.

Brennan said he believed the government's formal appeal to the Supreme Court would attract the necessary four votes for granting full review.

Strickland Elected New Chairman Of Pitt Board

Bruce Strickland of Bell Arthur was elected chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners at the annual reorganization meeting of the board this morning.

ties to the North Carolina House of Representatives. He was elected to the House in the November 4 election.

Commissioners are expected to appoint a replacement for Warren, who has served on the board for the past six years, in the near future.

month's voting.

Following the reorganization of the board, commissioners heard a request from the Rev. Van Dale Hudson, speaking for the Concerned Citizens Committee of Pitt County, to call for a referendum on the "continued existence of ABC stores in Pitt County."

Describing the Concerned Citizens Committee as an organization opposing the sale of liquor in the county, Hudson said, "the need for such a vote very definitely exists."

He explained that in 1973, Pitt voters voted, "two-to-one against liquor by the drink," while in 1979, county voters defeated liquor by the drink by 51 percent.

Hudson continued by saying the committee feels, "the Board of Commissioners should take the same initiative in such a referendum as it did on the liquor-by-the-drink referendum in 1979."

"We're convinced it was a dry vote," Hudson emphasized. "We ask this board to be fair and equally consistent," with the committee's request as it was in calling for the referendum in 1979.

Hudson, saying the board could save money by calling for a referendum on February 13, when the City of Greenville is scheduled to hold a referendum on liquor-by-the-drink sales, asked the commissioners to set a deadline for a decision on the committee's request.

In response to that request, the board told Hudson an answer to the request would come after the city referendum.

"The point is, the vote will come," on whether to continue operation of ABC stores in the county, Hudson told the board, suggesting that the committee would begin a drive to petition the board of elections to hold a referendum on the ABC store ques-

TEACHER BUYING SERVICE DEFUNCT

I bought membership last year in Teacher Buying Service, a company that was supposed to be just that — a way for member teachers to buy name brand products less expensively than they could be bought locally. I paid $23 for a year's membership and some of my friends bought $130 permanent memberships. When I sent in local quotes on a ceiling fan to the company in August, I got nothing back. Then I tried to call the company and found that the phone was no longer in service. The company is located in Miller, Mo. What gives? M. L.

According to Cary Augustine of the Consumer Protection Division of the Missouri Attorney General's Office, the company is out of business and his office has been investigating its dealings and attempting negotiation. "Apparently they don't have sufficient assets to cover all their debts," he said. "We understand that the Internal Revenue Service has a lien against the company's assets. After they've settled up, we plan to work out an arrangement for whatever money is left to be returned to customers on a pro rata basis."

"We have a list of orders that have not been delivered and will get a list of both permanent and year memberships."

He expressed doubt that money would ever be returned for membership fees, but hope that proportionate parts of order refunds might be made. He said he cannot estimate how long in the future it might be.

The company was formed in 1972 and apparently operated, he said, as National Preferred Consumer Testing, then as both National Preferred Consumer Service and Teacher Buying Service. "We heard no complaints for many years," he said "—only after the company got into financial straits."

North Carolina and Texas are the states in which the most memberships have been sold recently, he said.

Anyone who wishes to may contact his office in the Supreme Court Building, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101, he said, though it will probably be just as well to wait and depend on the attorney general's lists. "We're doing everything we can," he said, "but the outlook isn't good."

Cautious Rise By Indicators' Index

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key barometer of the nation's economy continued to improve in October, but by far less than the robust gains registered during the previous three months, the government said today.

The Index of Leading Indicators rose 0.9 percent, with a jump in consumer goods orders contributing most heavily to the increase, the Commerce Department said.

However, October's rise contrasted markedly with a revised 3.1 percent spurt in September's index. It had climbed 2.1 percent in August and 3.6 percent in July as the economy began to emerge from the sharp, but apparently short, recession.

During the worst part of the recession, the index fell precipitously — 2.2 percent in March, 4.3 percent in April and 2.4 percent in May before a 1 percent increase in June.

The relatively modest improvement in October appears to jibe with predictions by most leading private forecasters that the economy's recovery is waning, largely because of escalating interest rates.

Private economists generally see little, if any, economic growth in the next four to six months, although few say another recession is imminent.

"This certainly indicates the economy is about to go into another period of at least very slow growth," said Robert Gough, vice president of Data Resources Inc.

"The only thing that is encouraging is the (rise) in consumer goods orders," he said. However, Gough cautioned that this improvement "masks underlying weakness."

Interest rates have yet to peak, and their continuing increases have continued to inhibit retail sales. This will show up in future indexes, he said.

The Commerce Department said seven of the 10 available leading indicators showed improvement in October. The average work week increased from 39.5 hours to 39.6 hours, while the layoff rate continued to decline from 1.5 percent in September to 1.4 percent.

Consumer goods climbed more than $2 billion on an inflation-adjusted basis.

Tax Report

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during October totaled $281,426, according to a report issued by Mark Lynch, secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The October figure in Pitt compared with $294,275 in net collections recorded in the county in September.

Neighboring county totals for October and September included: Beaufort, $139,710, $135,845; Craven, $199,067, $212,329; Carteret, $160,677, $171,644; Edgecombe, $135,035, $132,898;

Greene, $14,955, $7,605; Lenoir, $193,502, $194,027; Martin, $66,444, $72,928; Nash, $246,360, $235,904; Wayne, $247,064, $233,829; and Wilson, $214,380, $173,790.

Lynch said that total distributions in the 99 participating counties for October amounted to $17,367,736, compared with $17,330,198 in September.

Public Defender Plan Has Rountree's Backing

Some lawyers and public officials have publicly called for elimination of a scheduled public defender system for Pitt, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico counties, calling the proposal unnecessary and too costly.

Craven County commissioners have taken the lead, urging Gov. Jim Hunt to delay appointment of a director for the program and calling for repeal of a law authorizing the system.

Despite the opposition, spokesmen for Gov. Jim Hunt and the N.C. Administrative Office of the Courts said the program will be established in January.

The program would be the second multi-county public defender system in North Carolina. A similar program was established earlier for Cumberland and Hoke counties.

The system, in which a publicly funded staff of lawyers represents indigent defendants, would be similar to programs now operating in Charlotte, Greensboro, Gastonia and Asheville.

A former Greenville legislator, H. Horton Rountree, sponsored the legislation calling for the public defender system in his area. He said it was a response to rising costs for court-appointed attorneys, noting the districts was in the top five in North Carolina in terms of legal fees paid by the state.

"Something has got to be done to hold these indigent expenses down," Rountree said.

Rountree said the public defender could weed out defendants who do not qualify for legal aid.

According to the administrative office of courts, about $335,144 was paid to attorneys the the district during the fiscal year ending in June. State officials said the four-county district handled about 16,400 indigent cases in that period.

Rountree, who is now a District Court judge, said the system would improve representation by using lawyers who specialize in criminal law.

Hunt is now expected to appoint a director for the four-county program this month.

PITT 4-H'ERS ATTEND CRIME CONTROL RETREAT — Four persons from Pitt County attended a 4-H Crime Prevention Retreat held in Reidsville recently to learn how to plan and conduct crime prevention programs in their home counties. Burley Mitchell Jr., secretary of the Department of Crime

4-H Joining Crime Fight

North Carolina 4-H leaders, volunteer leaders and extension agents are joining hands with the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety to reduce crime.

Statistics indicate that losses from farm thefts alone amounted to more than $3 million in 1978. Many more losses are not reported.

The crime prevention program has been adopted as a statewide 4-H project by the state 4-H council, composed of state and district 4-H officers and representatives of county 4-H councils.

Four persons from Pitt County attended a 4-H Crime Prevention Retreat last week at Betsy-Jeff Penn Center near Reidsville. The purpose of the retreat was to teach participants how to plan and conduct crime prevention programs in their home counties, according to Dale Panero, 4-H agent.

Burley B. Mitchell Jr., secretary of the N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, was the featured speaker. Other speakers included Dr. Dalton Proctor, associate state 4-H leader with the Agricultural Extension Service, and L.D. Hyde and Richard Martin of the Crime Prevention Division of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

Workshop sessions were held on marking personal belongings and farm equipment, neighborhood community watches, juvenile crime, and home security.

Those from Pitt County attending the retreat were Clinton Tucker, Simpson; Kelly Wall, Ayden; Jane Harmon, ECU campus; and Hugh Benson, Greenville Crime Prevention Officer.

Blame Fire On Careless Smoker By Ferry Craft

DETROIT (AP) — Careless cigarette smoking has been cited as the cause of a fire that erupted at a group home for adults, killing five elderly men, authorities said.

The blaze broke out about 1 a.m. Sunday at the Donahue Foster Care Home when bedding ignited after a resident lit a cigarette, officials said.

Seven of the home's 12 residents escaped, as did the supervisor, on duty. One of the residents got away by jumping out a window, authorities said.

The five victims, ranging in age from 57 to 69, apparently died of smoke inhalation, officials said.

Hugh Benson, Greenville Crime Prevention Officer.

The retreat was funded by the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety and conducted by the Agricultural Extension Service. The Extension Service, headquartered at N.C. State and A. & T. Universities, conducts the 4-H program for 110,000 youngsters with the aid of 15,500 volunteer leaders.

Large Rescue Blame Fire On Careless Smoker By Ferry Craft

SEATTLE (AP) — A ferry has rescued about 240 passengers from the cruise steamer Virginia V, which lost power and ran aground in Puget Sound, U.S. Coast Guard officials said.

Officials said the 115-foot Virginia V, one of the last Puget Sound steamers, was on a chartered cruise Saturday night when a steam valve blew and the ship lost power.

Officials said a passing tugboat towed the drifting Virginia V to calm waters.

Farm Scene

By Roger Cobb
Agri. Ext. Agent

The corn season in Pitt County was less than good. The high cost of production, coupled with a less than favorable growing season, spelled a loss for many Pitt County farmers. Weeds were also a problem in the 1980 corn crop. The 1981 corn crop may receive a good growing season with a bumper crop. However, due to the bad 1980 crop it appears likely that corn seed may be in short supply. Farmers should make plans to get their orders in early for the particular varieties they desire. In addition, the 1981 crop may be a good one, but plans need to be made now about controlling weeds in the crop.

In order for farmers to control their weeds, they will have to be on top of their own weed situation and use all the methods available to control weeds. Crop rotation, cultivation, competition, and herbicides are fundamental weed control tools.

Crop rotation is a very basic weed control tool in any crop. Rotation of different chemicals will also help to control certain weeds. Certain weeds are easier to control in some crops than others. Cocklebur and morningglories are much easier to control in corn than soybeans. A corn-soybean rotation will help cut down on the population of broadleaves and morningglories.

Crop cultivation is an old method of weed control. One or two very timely cultivations can be a very useful and economic method of weed control. Cultivation is not as widely used as herbicides, but it can be used to control weeds as well as aerate the soil.

Crop competition is one of the cheapest methods of weed control and very often is the least used. A strong, vigorous, growing crop can quickly cover and shade the ground. This helps shade out any weeds that come up in the crop. Herbicides often break down quickly, so an early canopy is very important. All good production practices such as fertilizer, proper seeding rate, good insect and disease control add up to a very competitive crop.

Herbicides are a very widely used method of weed control. Herbicides must be chosen carefully to do the best job for you on your fields.

Before choosing a herbicide growers must be aware of (1) the crop to be grown; (2) the weeds present; (3) soil type and organic matter; and (4) the herbicide capability.

Knowing the weeds present is vital to choosing the correct herbicide. All herbicides won't control weeds. You must know the weed species present in order to obtain the herbicide that will best control that weed or weeds.

Knowing your soil type and organic matter contents and higher clay contents require light applications of pre-plant or pre-emergence herbicides. Extremely light soils require light applications of pre-plant or pre-emergence herbicides so crop injury will not result. You want to use the proper rate to avoid crop injury, pollution, or improper weed control.

Last, the herbicide capability is very important. Some herbicides control grasses and some control broadleaves better. It is essential that you know which weeds your herbicide can control.

Uruguay Regime Given Setback At The Polls

By DANIEL GIANELLI
Associated Press Writer

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — In a rare setback for an authoritarian Latin American regime, Uruguayan voters have rejected a constitution making military control of their government permanent. But the country's military rulers will continue in power.

With 97 percent of the vote in Sunday's referendum tallied, the count was 862,490 votes against the constitution proposed by the military and 629,683 in favor, or 58 to 42 percent, the Interior Ministry announced.

The leaders of the armed forces who seized power in 1973 had made it clear before the referendum that even if defeated, they would continue to dominate the government. But civilian political leaders hailed the referendum outcome as a triumph of democratic ideals.

Blanco Party leader Carlos J. Pereira called for "all Uruguayans to search for a national consensus that will bring a true democratic opening."

"There is only one winner and that is the people of Uruguay and their faith in democracy," said Jorge Battle, a leader of the Colorado Party.

The referendum was Uruguay's first election since 1971.

The proposed constitution provided for election of a two-house national congress next year, a transition president approved by the military until 1986, then the free election of a president.

However, the elected president would share power with a national security council made up of the commanders of the armed forces, and a political control tribunal appointed by the military would have had the authority to remove the president and all other government officials for "ethical, moral or civic" reasons.

President Aparicio Mendez, the 76-year-old figurehead installed by the military in 1976, said in a televised speech Friday, night that rejection of the constitution would delay but not change the military's plans to restore limited democracy.

Uruguay was a model of democracy until 1973, when the military took control of the government because of the operations of the Tupamaro urban guerrillas, labor unrest and a growing economic crisis. The generals dissolved congress, barred more than 12,000 people from political activity and in 1976 replaced President Juan Bordaberry with Mendez.

All political parties have been barred from meeting since 1973, and most of their leaders are prohibited from running for office until 1991. But both the Colorado and Blanco parties, which polled 82 percent of the vote in the 1971 election, remained well organized. They mobilized their supporters by word of mouth to reject the government charter, saying it would ratify dictatorial powers the military has used to imprison and torture thousands.

Lacking an official party and wide popular support, the government relied on votes from the huge official bureaucracy, the less-educated and rural classes and others responding to its patriotic appeals.

The Art of Carpeting & Decor

by Larry C. Whitlow

A rug can often become the decorative center of a room. It can itself be an object d'art, especially if a newer area rug with colorful and exotic designs. With a large, brightly colored or vividly designed rug, it is a good idea to work the rest of the room around it. That means subdued patterns and colors in other areas and on upholstery and curtains. If there is a particular theme pattern, try to emphasize or match it with wall covering or other accessories. For example, Oriental prints do well with an Oriental rug. An abstract design can complement an abstract rug with swatches of color.

Woody Allen says that for the first 17 years of his life, the only books he read were comic books. But even while he was reading "nothing but Donald Duck and Batman," his talent as a writer was becoming apparent in the compositions he wrote for school. As a teenager, he started writing jokes and sending them to newspapers. His writing since then has helped him become one of the world's best known comedy stars. Besides humorous books and stories, Woody creates the ideas and writes the scripts for the movies he appears in. Woody Allen was born in Brooklyn, New York, 45 years ago today.

No dusting powder, after-shave or cologne. (They probably have several unopened boxes gathering dust on their closet shelves.)

Grandpa doesn't need another necktie, and Aunt Bessie doesn't really want any more brooches, necklaces or bracelets.

With the price of groceries so high, folks who live alone on a fixed income probably would be delighted to receive a basket of goodies. Include small cans of salmon, chicken, ham, tuna, vegetables, fruit, instant coffee, tea bags, crackers, cookies and instant soup mixes.

Older people who live in confined quarters do not need more "things" that are ornamental only. Don't send music boxes, statuettes or other bric-a-brac.

Another thoughtful gift is lined stationery with envelopes and a generous supply of postage stamps. (Enclose some felt-tip pens, too.)

The homebound will appreciate a box of greeting cards for all occasions so that they, too, can send birthday, anniversary, graduation, get-well and condolence cards to others. (Be a sport! Stamp some envelopes.)

Don't give anyone a gift of clothing unless you're absolutely sure the size is right. That goes for the color and style, too.

If you're tempted to pass along a scarf, purse, wallet or some other useless little doodad you received for Christmas three years ago, please don't. It's a pretty fair bet the recipient will find it just as useless as you did. (Besides, you might get it back the year after next.)

If someone on your gift list is living on a pension, a check for any amount would be much more appreciated than a frivolous little trinket. Or give someone who's counting pennies a year's subscription to a newspaper or magazine you know he or she will enjoy.

Please, don't ever send a gift in a box bearing the name of a store unless you bought it there. Should the recipient want to exchange it, he will be embarrassed, the store clerks will look bewildered, and it won't make you look too good.

If you buy a gift on sale, be sure it's appropriate, since if the recipient tries to take it back he will be told, "Sorry, sale merchandise is not returnable."

Don't give anyone a pet unless you're absolutely sure it's wanted and will be properly cared for. And if you want to delight someone who considers his pet a "member of the family," include a tin of cat or dog food for the pet.

Don't give wine or liquor unless you're sure the recipients imbibe. Candy, nuts and fruitcake make wonderful gifts for those who aren't counting calories, but please have compassion for those who are, and lead them not into temptation.

Resist giving toddlers stuffed animals and dolls that are bigger than they are. And parents will thank you for not sending their children horns, drums, sirens or whistles. If you give a child a game or book, be sure it's in the appropriate age range.

Instead of giving someone a gift with permission to "exchange it if it's not what you want," save yourself (and him) much time and effort and give him a gift certificate in the first place.

Holiday time can be very depressing for people who are alone, so if you know someone who might be alone and lonely, give him (or her) the best gift of all — an invitation to spend the holiday with you and your family. Loneliness is the ultimate poverty.

LOVE, ABBY

...On Your Gift List

It is not too soon to begin planning the best Christmas gift any of us can offer.

On Dec. 26 there will be a media sponsored Bloodmobile visit to Pitt County. It is sponsored by "The Daily Reflector", WNCT-TV and WOOW radio.

Blood Chairman Ott Alford says it is a first-time visit at that time of year.

And why the day after Christmas? Well the need for blood is great during the holiday season ... and it is a time of good will. It is a time to think about our fellow man and to share our own good fortunes.

It has been done in Hampton, Va. and it was highly successful.

Why not think about it as we prepare for the holiday season? This is the season of gift-giving. Each of us has the opportunity to give a potentially life saving gift to someone we will never know.

Now, Term Paper Time

WASHINGTON — It's that time again when term papers are due and all over this land the phone is ringing with calls from desperate students.

"Mr. Blueveld?"

"Buchwald."

"Yes, that's the name. I'm doing a term paper on the Federal Reserve Bank Board and I would like to ask you a few questions."

"I'm terribly sorry, but I don't know anything about the Federal Reserve Bank Board."

"You live in Washington, don't you?"

"Yes, but living in Washington does not necessarily mean you are clued in on the Fed."

"I need this paper by Thursday."

"Why don't you call the Fed yourself? I'm sure they have a department that handles questions from students writing term papers on them."

"Maybe I can write a term paper on you. What do you do?"

"I just mess around in the newspaper."

"My essay has to be three pages long. Could you fill that up for me?"

"He or she is right."

Homes Added To Toll

As of the weekend, winds had died down in California where forest "fire storms", whipped on by high winds had swept through whole residential areas leaving house-after-house destroyed.

The fires had also destroyed thousands of acres of woodland.

Forst fires are terrifying. Once they get underway they are difficult to stop. Given the right conditions of dry woodland and high winds, they can be virtually impossible to stop. Once they were confined to rural areas, but with the encroachment of urban sections on the woodland the fires can destroy expensive homes.

The loss of timberland is disastrous, but now the loss of many homes can sometimes be added to the toll of forest fires.

Adds To Millions

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The prevailing attitude in government is plain: it's only a small amount, let's go ahead with that.

This is not to pick on the State Board of Education. That establishment which oversees the public schools is one of only a couple of dozen supervisory boards or agency review committees which meet regularly to say Yea or Nay to what is going on.

Rarely do the members, who serve at little or no pay and give a great deal of time, leadership and energy to their posts, have the necessary time and depth of knowledge to sort out all the little bits of information put before them.

On the big items, the bosses will cover the subject thoroughly, even though faced with seemingly endless stacks of contracts, proposals, policy papers, reports...

At many of the business sessions, tucked away deep in the agenda and accompanied by jargon-filled explanations and lots of federal government dates and bill numbers and abbreviations, is a request for approval of contracts for special studies or consultant services.

No Totals

Legislative study committees have tried time and again to ferret out just how much of this consulting business goes on in state government; with no success.

Generally, only a small amount of money is involved in each contract. If a total could be run up, it would run into the millions.

At its monthly meeting the other day, the State Board of Education routinely approved a collection of special contractual agreements with various parties. The results are recorded here only to illustrate the situation which is widespread throughout state government agencies, along with some candid comments by a high-ranking official of the Department of Public Instruction who gave some blunt answers to some blunt questions:

Yes, a lot of this is waste and ought to be cut out. Many times it represents somebody who doesn't want to do the job — or who doesn't have time to do it himself — so they hire somebody. Sometimes it's just a way to give a job to a person while they are out of work during the summer. What is produced is mostly paperwork which will be reproduced and circulated all over the place and either thrown away or filed away ...but the prevailing attitude is that it's there for those who want to look at it.

Here is a review of some of the projects:

The Hickory Board of Education gets $3,000 in federal funds to make a color videotape and a handbook "for the purpose of training teachers and cafeteria managers about food experiences for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students."

And More

Kenny Brown of New London, N.C. received $2,500 in federal and state money to "write a finished manuscript about how to involve parents in the high school driver education program..."

Another $11,000 was spent on various writers to produce a manuscript for driver education teachers to "use in the enrichment of instructional offerings."

Another $3,000 was spread around to various writers to turn out two or four chapters each in "A Guide for Cooperative Coordinators in Business and Office Education."

A firm called Innovative Educational Support System, Inc. of Kernersville got $4,075 in federal money "To develop an exemplary guide demonstrating a variety of teaching techniques and strategies to modify and supplement existing curriculum for special needs students."

Several individuals received from $100 to $1,000 each for such works as "Supplemental Competency Statements for Energy/Power Section of Exploratory Industrial Arts, Energy/Power and Transportation, and Energy and Power Technology," reviewing, coding, and preparing an annotated abstract for selected curriculum materials, and editing workbooks or outlining curriculum guides.

Other Editors Say A Plus For ECU

(Henderson Dispatch)

Friends of East Carolina University and others in North Carolina concerned about higher education will be pleased to learn that Chancellor Thomas Brewer will continue in his present position in Greenville.

Information had emerged last month that a presidential selection committee of the University of Louisville was considering offering Chancellor Brewer the job as president of the Louisville, Ky. institution. Members of the committee were in Greenville last week for interviews in depth in the course of their studies.

Subsequent reports indicated that the East Carolina chancellor was one of two finalists for the job.

However, Chancellor Brewer let it be known Thursday that he had withdrawn himself from consideration for the Louisville presidency.

"We have much work ahead of us at East Carolina University," Brewer said in an Associated Press news report. "I have said before and I say again, it is a privilege to serve as chancellor of this fine institution."

In this instance, Kentucky's loss is North Carolina's gain. At East Carolina, it appears from this distance, Chancellor Brewer has done an effective job in directing the university, one of the largest in the Greater University of North Carolina system.

He took over the helm at Greenville following retirement of former Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, who had served some two decades and had become an established leader at the university and in North Carolina. Filling Dr. Jenkins' shoes was no easy assignment.

However, Chancellor Brewer made the transition a smooth one and has implemented his own program of progress, designed to keep East Carolina in the forefront of educational institutions in the Southeast.

It is gratifying to know that the chancellor will be remaining with us in the Tar Heel State.

Strength For Today

IMPROVING OUR MINDS

Benjamin West, the great portrait painter, was so devoted to art as a child that he made his paint brushes from hair taken from a cat's tail and his paint from the juice of poke berries. Robert Fulton as a youth rigged up his fishing boat with a paddle wheel which could be turned with a crank. Louisa Alcott wrote verses when she was still a youngster and turned old fairy tales into plays which she and her sisters enacted in their barn. Mozart was giving concerts before he was ten.

These, of course, were precocious children. Yet we are constantly discovering that both children and older people have vast natural resources which are never utilized. The most usual factor in the lives of bright children and young people is that they come from homes characterized by intellectual interests, or that someone has made a concerted attempt to lead them into areas of knowledge which children seldom enter. All of this should re-emphasize for us the creative possibilities of parenthood. — Elisha Douglass.

1984 Fever Takes Shape

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt has yet to begin the second term he won for himself, and already 1984 fever is running high among those who'd like his job.

Supporters of the potential candidates are attempting now to circulate word that last month's election results should be read as good signs for their choice and doom for the others.

Perhaps the most visible posturing for the 1984 governor's race continues to be among supporters of Democratic Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

Large black buttons bearing the words "Governor Edmisten in Eighty-Four" have been circulating around Raleigh since the election — a product, Edmisten political chief Charlie Smith says, of an overzealous supporter.

Edmisten allies also have been saying that the attorney general actually "led the ticket" last month.

He got 73,000 fewer votes than did Hunt, but his nearly 1.1 million votes amounted to 62.6 percent of the vote over his unknown Republican opponent — a hair larger than Hunt's or any other Democrat's margin of victory.

And his allies, asking not to be identified in print, have been offering the view that Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green's unexpectedly close reelection margin peels trouble for him. But Green is continuing to make noises of his own, and he told a reporter last week that so many of his friends are urging him to run for governor four years from now that "I feel very humble."

Keeping his counsel but remaining in view was Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, who was at the focus of the deliberations last week of the Advisory Budget Commission, which he heads. Others are surely at work on their 1984 plans now, too.

And on the Republican side, the startling capture of the state's second Senate seat is being read as a sign of vitality for the GOP — enough so that party leaders believe their gubernatorial nomination will be more sought after following the Hunt years.

Already the GOP posturing is under way, too.

State Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Hickory, secured himself a platform from which to run by winning last week the top Republican leadership position, joint caucus leader. And Ballenger, who keeps in close touch with reporters, suddenly began telling them he had changed from a certain candidate to an undecided one.

Smith, Edmisten's administrative deputy attorney general, says all this is healthy. "Anyone who has any interest in the governorship should get their balloons up, and in the next year we'll see which ones are going to fly," he said.

Other Edmisten allies, speaking privately, stress that Green trailed other statewide Democrats. The 46 percent of the vote won by novice GOP candidate Bill Coby, and the fact Green lost some large counties carried by Hunt, are signs of political vulnerability by Green, they argue.

"He's completely dead. It's all over for Green," one close Edmisten adviser has been saying. "He can't consider a race against Rufus."

Green's race was closer than he expected. Two legislators, asking not to be named, said Green expressed distress at his margin of victory during their meetings with him in the two weeks after the election.

His total vote was less than he received in 1976, and his percentage was smaller than any winning lieutenant governor in recent elections.

"That's just political talk," responds state Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Charlotte, a chief

Creditors Dread Bankruptcies

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The bankruptcy business is booming and creditors are complaining.

The recession is partly to blame for the growing number of people who are growing broke. But lenders say a revision in the bankruptcy law — and advertising by some lawyers — is equally responsible.

The change took effect a little more than a year ago. In general, the new law allows debtors to keep more of their property when they file for bankruptcy. It also makes it easier to wipe out your debts without actually going bankrupt or paying back all the money you owe.

The National Consumer Finance Association, which represents finance companies, has started a campaign against the revised code. The group is publicizing examples of people who abuse the law. It is warning that lenders are going to be much more careful with their money.

"The current abuses of bankruptcy must be stopped," says E.C.A. Forsberg, the chairman of the board of the association, in an article in the latest issue of "Credit," the group's magazine.

Forsberg cites the case of an unnamed couple with a gross annual income of $78,000 who, he says, eliminated $22,000 in debts by filing for bankruptcy "when alternatives were possible for them — alternatives that would have allowed them to meet their credit responsibilities."

He also writes of what he calls "a rash of lawyer advertising offering bankruptcy counsel." Forsberg adds: "Much of this advertising is merely an offering of service. But is it proper for a lawyer to advertise that going bankrupt will not harm your credit? It's happening."

The American Bar Association, in a consumer guide to credit and bankruptcy, makes it clear that filing for bankruptcy DOES affect your ability to get credit. The association points out that the fact you filed for bankruptcy will remain on your credit record for 10 years. The lawyers' group add, however: "Bankruptcy is intended to give you a fresh start to rebuild your economic life, and you should feel no disgrace in exercising your right to do so."

It is hard to compare statistics on bankruptcies before and after the new law went into effect. That's because a husband and wife now can file a joint petition instead of two separate ones. During fiscal 1980 — the year that ended June 30 — there were 22 percent more bankruptcy petitions filed by individuals than there were in fiscal 1979. But estimates of the increase from 1979 to 1980 in the number of people represented by those petitions range up to 60 percent.

There are two ways to file for bankruptcy — Chapter 7, or straight bankruptcy, and Chapter 13, or the wage-earner plan. Under Chapter 7, the debtor gives up most of his or her assets. The assets are converted into cash to pay off as many creditors as much as possible. Under Chapter 13, the debtor agrees to repay lenders over an extended period of time under a plan approved by a bankruptcy judge.

Certain assets are exempt from bankruptcy. The amount you could keep used to vary widely from state to state. The revised law set a federal standard. A debtor who files for bankruptcy under Chapter 7 can, for example, keep up to $7,500 worth of equity in a home and up to $1,200 in an automobile. States are allowed to reject the federal exemptions and set their own standards and at least a dozen already have done so.

Revisions in the wage-earner plan also helped debtors. Under the old law, someone filing for bankruptcy under Chapter 13 usually had to agree to repay all debts. The changes allow the debtor to repay less than the full amount. In some cases, unsecured creditors — who granted a loan that did not have collateral like a house or an automobile — cannot collect any of the money that is owed them, as long as the bankruptcy judge agrees that the debtor is acting in "good faith." Congress already is considering tightening this provision, however, changing the language of the law to require debtors to use their "best effort" to repay all outstanding debts.

Revenue Sharing Continues As Priority For Cities' League

By DAVID PACE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Obtaining an extension of federal revenue sharing is the top priority of the National League of Cities, officials of the organization say.

Legislation authorizing the revenue sharing program expired Sept. 30. The House has passed a bill to extend the program for three years, but a Senate bill that would give it another five years of life has failed to make it out of committee.

With congressional leaders shooting for a Wednesday adjournment, most municipal officials attending the organization's annual convention in Atlanta were pessimistic Sunday that a revenue sharing bill could be approved prior to adjournment.

League spokesman Randy Arndt said league officials will be urging the Senate this week to accept the House version rather than risk a conference committee that could kill the legislation for the current session of Congress.

The league is also calling for the development of an economic recovery program for the country that will not overlook the needs of the cities and the creation of a White House council of urban advisers.

League officials said economic recovery may be the only way to help cities facing financial crises because of predictions that the administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan will cut back many federal urban aid programs. "I see a very conservative tide being created in this country and as a black person who has been involved in helping those less fortunate, the only hope I see is in economic recovery," said League President Jessie M. Rattley, who is a city councilwoman in Newport News, Va.

"If the rhetoric of the campaign holds true, there's going to be an increase in defense spending," she said. "And you don't have to be much of a mathematician to know that cuts are going to come in programs that affect cities."

Greetings In Native Tongue

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles, on a three-week visit to this former British colony and neighboring Nepal, made points with a large crowd of farmers when he greeted them in their native tongue.

The 32-year-old heir to the British throne then switched to English during the Sunday visit and told the crowd of 5,000 he was impressed with what he had seen and heard during his visit.

"I hope your buffaloes continue to yield good quality milk and your harvests are ever fruitful," he said.

Sudden Killer Said Inherited

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Healthy athletes who die on the playing field and patients who succumb unexpectedly in surgery may be victims of an inherited muscular disorder, a researcher at the University of Nebraska Medical Center says.

The disorder, malignant hyperthermia, may be responsible for many deaths previously attributed to heart attacks and strokes, according to Dr. Daniel Wingard. Malignant hyperthermia is a genetic syndrome triggered without warning by exceptional stress, Wingard said in a recent interview.

Wingard, an authority on the syndrome, said it isn't as rare as once thought. He said he believes it claimed at least 15,000 lives in the United States last year, half of them during surgery.

Malignant hyperthermia is thought to be a disorder in which a victim's muscles "fire or tense simultaneously" causing body temperature to rise rapidly. Wingard said he believes at least one in every 3,500 Americans carries the type of gene that makes a person susceptible to the syndrome.

He cited a Fremont family in which 32 deaths were attributed to the syndrome.

"We're talking about the deaths of young, healthy people, not old, sick people," he said. "Not much (research) was done on it until the last several years because it was thought to be so rare."

Researchers have discovered malignant hyperthermia is the primary cause of deaths while a patient is under anesthesia and may account for many surgical and post-operative deaths, Wingard said.

There hasn't been an anesthetic death attributed to malignant hyperthermia in Nebraska for two years, Wingard said. He credited this to the increased awareness of the syndrome and approval given last year by the federal Food and Drug Administration for the intravenous use of the drug Dantrolene, which combats the malady.

He said he is most concerned about how the syndrome contributes to the deaths of young athletes, especially football players.

In 1965, for example, Mack Lee Hill, a fullback for the Kansas City Chiefs, died unexpectedly during knee surgery. Malignant hyperthermia killed him, Wingard said, adding that the syndrome probably causes most mysterious athlete deaths.

Sign language interpreters from the East Carolina University Program for Hearing-Impaired Students and the ECU Sign Language Club will be involved in a special three-day program promoting closed-caption television here Dec. 4-6.

Sponsored by Sears,

Roebuck and Co., the Lions Club, the National Captioning Institute and the Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf, demonstrations of closed-captioning apparatus will be shown at the Sears store in Carolina East Mall from 5 to 9 p.m. Dec. 4-5 and from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Dec. 6.

ECU interpreters will be present to assist deaf shoppers, and store personnel will demonstrate two options available to persons wishing to receive closed-captioned television programs: an adapter for attachment to television sets and new model sets with built-in adapters.

According to the National Captioning Institute, an increasing number of programs on the four major networks are broadcast with closed-captioning, visible only to viewers with adapters or specially-equipped sets. These programs are labeled with "CC" or an international symbol in many television guides.

A special videotape featuring performer Nipsey Fabray will be shown during the demonstration periods. The tape includes segments from various closed-captioned television programs.

Green ally. He points out that Cobey spent $180,000 on television and Green, while spending more than half a million dollars, bought no television time in the fall campaign.

"I think he did well, when you consider the time, effort and money we didn't spend," Lawing said. "If we'd spent another $150,000, we could have improved the thing 3 percent."

"If the pendulum is swinging back to the conservative side, that puts him ahead of Rufus Edmisten," Lawing added. "And Edmisten's opposition didn't spend a dime. Charlie Smith doesn't have nothing to crow about."

Green, in an interview last week, said he saw no problems in his vote and was still considering the 1984 race for governor.

"Many of my supporters around the state have talked to us about it and are still talking to me about it," he said. "We'll certainly take a look at it and if the support is there, we're certainly going to consider it."

The differences between the Green and Edmisten camps are ironic, though predictable. In the spring primary when Green eked past Carl Stewart, Edmisten's chief backers lent strong if unofficial support to Green — with the aim, Stewart loyalists believed, of eliminating their man from the 1984 scene.

But now it seems likely, Lawing acknowledges, Green and Edmisten are heading for a confrontation. "I think the handwriting is on the wall," he said of Green. "If he lives and the creek don't rise, he'll be a candidate."

Caloric Test for Balance

Can you explain what a "caloric test" is for the ear? My friend tried to explain it to me. This only added to my confusion. — Mr. E.S.L., La. Dear Mr. L.:

What you have called a "caloric" test is really known as the "caloric" test — a highly technical test that is used by ear specialists and neurologists in order to find out if there is a problem that involves a patient's hearing or balance mechanism.

There are three tiny semicircular canals in the inner ear which are responsible for maintaining balance and equilibrium. Fluid circulates through these small canals.

No matter what the position of the head is — whether standing, lying down, or on the side — this tiny mechanism works in a remarkable way to maintain steadiness and balance. It is said that no more wondrous structures exist within the body than these minute semicircular canals.

The caloric test is a painless one, although certainly mildly uncomfortable for about 30 seconds. The test yields much valuable information about the hearing and balance mechanism that lies so deep within the inner ear.

The caloric test is performed by squirting a small amount of ice water into the outer ear canal. This stimulates the eardrum and the equilibrium mechanism. Within seconds, a sense of dizziness occurs and lasts for about 30 seconds and then disappears.

When the equilibrium mechanism is normal, the ice water produces rapid eye motions (nystagmus) and a sensation of falling to one side. When the balance mechanism is not entirely normal, or when there is some neurological disease, these responses to the cold water test do not follow.

I think it's terrible that newspapers should print as a fact that an alcoholic who is dry can take an occasional social drink. My husband and I have worked far too hard to fall into this temptation. What do you think? — Mrs. P.M.C., Kan.

Dear Mrs. C.:

I absolutely and totally agree with you. An alcoholic who is "dry" and who has his problem under control is still an alcoholic. There is no such thing as an ex-alcoholic. Alcoholism, like diabetes, is a lifetime problem that demands constant and rigid control.

I read the original scientific article that suggested that in some cases an alcoholic may return to moderate drinking. Despite this report, it is the opinion of those who are knowledgeable concerning alcoholism — and certainly my personal feeling — that the alcoholic who has worked so hard with his family's support to rehabilitate himself should not expose himself again to the slightest risk of recurrence of his illness.

There are many more gratifying rewards than a "social drink" that can only threaten the destiny of your family.

Fire Engine Is Damaged

An estimated $1,000 damage resulted to a Greenville Fire-Rescue Department fire engine about 6:30 p.m. yesterday when it was struck by a car while parked at the scene of a fire on Hopkins Drive.

Greenville Police Department investigators identified the driver of the car involved in the mishap as Willey James Tyson of 306 Manhattan Ave., who was reported injured in the mishap.

Police said the 1961 model American LaFrance fire pumper was parked at the scene of a minor fire at 1608 Hopkins Dr., when the Tyson car struck the front of the fire vehicle, causing $1,000 damage to the truck and $500 damage to the car.

Investigators charged Tyson with driving under the influence in connection with the mishap.

In Bits And Pieces, A Bionic Man Is Taking Shape

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

The "$6 Million Dollar Man" of television fame — a concoction of computerized parts — is taking shape in bits and pieces for real humans.

Some believe the 1980's will be the decade of bionic breakthroughs as technicians, engineers, computer experts and medical scientists merge their talents. They aim to touch off the second stage of the bionic revolution.

Their dreams are to make spittin' images of major organs such as heart, lung, liver.

"It is just the beginning," said Dr. Willem Kolff, one of the do-ers and dreamers. "People don't want to die."

Kolff, inventor of the artificial kidney, heads the University of Utah's Institute for Biomedical Engineering in Salt Lake City. He has "high hopes" for an artificial heart under development there.

"It is just barely beginning," he said.

"My philosophy is that we should not make an artificial organ unless it restores somebody to a happy existence.

"We want to improve the quality of life more than prolong life. If we can only prolong misery we should have the courage to refuse."

Other researchers are pushing work on artificial hearing and sight. Artificial blood is undergoing tests in the United States and Japan.

Steps in the bionic revolution start as a far-out idea. They move to drawing board. Then they travel to laboratories. Models are made and then tested on animals.

REPLACEMENT PARTS — Artificial replacement parts for the human body...now available or on the way...are indicated, with estimate of costs. (UPI Photo)

With permission from Uncle Sam's Medical Devices Bureau, the next step, a gingerly one usually, is clinical trials involving humans.

Years go by before any of the gee-whiz products in the bionic pipeline become a part of medical armament. Some idea of how long it takes: the first artificial kidney machine — whose parts included cellophane sausage casings — was built during World War II.

The first stage of the bionic revolution made total hip joint replacement routine. There are now about 80,000 a year in the U.S. alone but some need to be redone over time.

Dr. Michael G. Ehrlich, Harvard professor of orthopedics, said in an "American College of Surgeons Bulletin":

"The incidence of loosening of the total hip which may ultimately require replacement (again) is rising alarmingly."

Finger and knee joint replacements occur without fanfare. But total joint replacement for shoulder, elbow and ankle still are not commonplace.

The first stage of the revolution also put cardiac pacemakers online as a lifeline for half-a-million people — a number boosted

The wearer "thinks" the arm into action. Electronic circuitry picks up the message from the brain.

Persons fitted with the myoelectric arms can tie their shoes and do a lot of things amputees of old couldn't do.

The first myoelectric arm was fitted on a Santa Ana, Calif., auto accident victim in 1975. Involved were experts from the Medical Products Division of General Atomic and Rancho Los Amigos Hospital affiliated with the University of Southern California. Northwestern University developed the arm.

Other researchers are looking into use of vitallium and other steel alloys as replacement for bones.

Here is an inventory of parts resulting from the application of science and engineering:

HEAD: artificial skin, contact lenses, artificial cornea, facial prosthetics, chin implants, ear cartilage, nose cartilage.

TORSO: Artificial lung, breast augmentation, artificial heart, pacemakers, heart valves, artificial esophagus, artificial liver, bile ducts, arteries, tendons, a penile prosthesis, artificial pancreas, artificial kidney, intrauterine devices, ostomy devices, artificial joints, joint cartilage, long acting drug dose systems.

EXTREMITIES: artificial arms, artificial legs — with 150 types of knee joints and 50 ankle variations available, some with sensors in heel to help a person keep balance.

The coming decade of giant steps in bionics is being fueled by research centers in Maryland, California, New York, Massachusetts, Texas, Utah, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, Illinois, Minnesota and other states.

"The future of biomaterials and biomedical engineering is bright," says a report in the "Bulletin" from Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, Ala.

"Prosthetic devices to supplement or replace the functions of the heart, the eye, the ear, and the pancreas all are expected in the 1980s.

The government is continuing to increase funding for both basic and applied research in biosystems technology and industry is expanding.

"Superhuman bionic people are not on the horizon but we can count on some worn out parts being replaced by artificial ones in our lifetime."

Dr. Keith Reemtsma, of Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and head of surgery at Presbyterian Hospital, New York, said:

"It is impossible to predict whether biomechanical devices or transplantation alone will solve the problem of organ failure."

"From our experience with kidney and heart failure it is more likely that a combination of organ transplantation and mechanical support will be the most effective."

The latest word in experimental organ systems comes from doctors at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis: They reported Nov. 7 that a 58-year-old diabetic has become the world's first human to have implanted an artificial pancreas.

It is a tiny pump about the size of a hockey puck. It is buried under the man's skin. Similar pumps deliver drugs to some cancer patients.

The artificial pancreas delivers insulin on a continuous basis. The hope: this will eliminate insulin shots. The implant is refilled with insulin by syringe every two weeks.

Ordinarily insulin would be supplied by the man's pancreas. But it does not work right. That is what diabetes is all about.

Some diabetics wear an artificial pancreas around their waist instead of having it implanted. The wearable pancreas was developed by Dr. Paul Malchesky of Cleveland Clinic.

Another kind of bionic medical history is unfolding under direction of researchers in Baltimore, Md.

The scientists have implanted automatic defibrillators inside six persons at high risk for more attacks of cardiac arrhythmia.

Past medical events made the pioneer wearers of the device likely candidates for sudden death. They are the world's first humans to have implanted defibrillators monitoring their bum hearts continuously.

This is not just stuff for aging folks. The first three to be fitted with the device developed by Dr. Michel Mirowski and colleagues at Johns Hopkins Medical School and Sinai Hospital in Baltimore, included a boy, 16.

Kidney dialysis, the life-saving but time-consuming mechanical washing of the blood of persons with failed kidneys, is on the way to improvements, too. Some persons are using a continuous dialysis system that enables them to go about business almost as usual.

But even better dialysis systems to remove poison from blood are on the drawing board or under investigation. Included: tiny plastic coated granules of charcoal that would be swallowed.

In the course of working their way out the digestive tract these would draw impurities out of the blood — purifying it — the way kidneys do.

Pie-Thrower On Contract

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State University students can put out a "contract" on any professor who displeases them, and a clandestine mob will make a "hit" — with a pie in the face.

Members of an organization called "the chefs," with pseudonyms like Riboflavin, Thiamine and Niacin, boast they have splattered 25 professors with fruit and cream pies this year.

"What we do has been called random insanity," said Thiamine. "But pie-throwing is an art and we are merely the artists. The pies are our brushes. The professors' faces are our canvases."

The hitmen wear chef's hats, shirts and aprons. They mask their faces, with slits for the eyes.

The pie-throwers have eluded authorities so far, even though one attack was captured on videotape during a lecture that was being recorded.

Two Wrecks Are Reported

An estimated $2,700 property damage resulted from two Saturday night collisions investigated by Greenville police.

Heaviest damage, according to officers, resulted from a 10:40 p.m. mishap on Fourth Street, 60 feet west of the Hickory Street intersection, involving a car driven by Wanda Wynne Stancil of Grimesland.

Investigators reported the Stancil car ran off the road, hit the curb and overturned, causing an estimated $2,000 damage to the vehicle.

April Marie Maxam of 2605 East Tenth St. was charged with driving under the influence and hit and run driving following investigation of an 11:45 p.m. collision on Fourth Street, 80 feet east of the Oak Street intersection.

Officers reported the Maxam car collided with a parked car owned by Susan Laffinghouse of Greenville, causing an estimated $500 damage to the Maxam car and $200 damage to the Laffinghouse auto.

Denver Has Photo Showing

NEW YORK — Singer John Denver, whose sentimental tunes have taken him to the top of the record charts, is looking for a new high — this one in photography.

Manhattan's Hammer Galleries will be holding a debut showing of Denver's photographs this week. The show will feature 60 prints of color landscapes and wildlife scenes, according to People magazine.

Denver, 36, said he's been a shutterbug ever since he was a child and has almost "missed the bus to concerts" because he was out taking photographs.

The prints will sell for $900 each. Denver said the proceeds will go toward his Windstar Foundation, which studies ecology and energy.

neys do. The toxins would be absorbed by the charcoal.

The implanted insulin pump from the University of Minnesota and the implanted defibrillator from Johns Hopkins are being used on humans only with permission from the Food and Drug Administration.

Artificial blood a while back was given for the first time in the United States in an emergency to an anemic man who refused a transfusion on religious grounds.

The FDA had to give permission for that, too, even though the manmade blood has been used in Japan with no apparent liver damage. The "blood" is fluorocarbon which transports oxygen and carbon dioxide — which is what real blood does.

There continues to be concern, however, that the stuff could build up in the liver. So the jury's still out.

Materials in such artificial devices that replace organs or body parts must be proved non-toxic, non-carcinogenic and safe in other ways. That is one reason development of even a good-seeming device on the drawing board can turn precarious.

The FDA gets its authority in this field via the Medical Device Amendments of 1976, Public Law 94-295. This made the FDA's Bureau of Medical Devices the government agency responsible for approving, registering and policing new non-drug systems "intended for use in man and other animals."

Consider the complexity involved in one bionic device — the implantable heart defibrillator from Johns Hopkins and Baltimore's Sinai hospital.

Conceived and invented by the director of Sinai's Coronary Care Unit, the device is implanted just under the skin in the upper abdominal area of selected patients at risk for ventricular fibrillation — rapid, uncoordinated disturbances in cardiac electrical activity.

The implanted device is programmed to monitor the heart continuously; to recognize life-threatening arrhythmias. Then it automatically delivers electric shocks through an electrode directly in contact with the heart. The shock automatically restores the heart's normal rhythm.

The implant is a highly miniaturized version of the type used in hospitals and by emergency squads to deliver shocks to the heart from an external source.

It delivers a fraction of the voltage — just enough to give the heart a chance to right itself. If the first shock fails, more are delivered to restore rhythm. The last two are more intense than the first.

So what is the advantage? Permanent availability to the patient of life-saving technology. The device makes the diagnosis and delivers the appropriate therapeutic decision automatically.

The first six users were judged at high risk of sudden death from heart arrhythmias. Each had previously had such attacks and had their hearts restored by ambulance teams.

How many persons might benefit from perfection of the Johns Hopkins implant on trial? Authorities estimate 300,000 persons suffer attacks of ventricular fibrillation annually — and the vast majority die shortly after onset.

Currently, chest surgery is necessary to implant the automatic defibrillator but Dr. Myron L. Weisfeldt, head of Johns Hopkins Medical School's Division of Cardiology, is hopeful ultimately the device can be implanted without opening the chest wall.

At Johns Hopkins, as with other institutions, there is an implantable pain-control device under test.

Overseeing development of this device for patients with intractable pain is Dr. Paul Long, chief of neurosurgery.

At the press of a button by the patient, the device — called a tissue stimulator — sends electricity to block pain impulses along a nerve pathway. When the button is pressed, the nerve is shocked. Pain is blocked. The device can be recharged by a plug that is stuck into a wall socket.

On the artificial sight front, a project is underway at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons Medical Center in New York.

Some blind patients have seen patterns of light. An array of 64 platinum wires on a tiny teflon strip were implanted on the visual cortex of the volunteers.

A lead extends through an opening in the skull to electronic equipment. Electrically, the needles are stimulated.

Dr. William Dobbelle, Columbia investigator, has reported that when Braille symbols are flashed as a pattern, the volunteers can read the symbols five times faster than usual.

Dobbelle has estimated it would take 256 needles stuck in the visual cortex to produce an image similar to a black and white photo of the human face.

He and others caution, however, that there are many unknowns about the electronic eye. Unanswered questions include: will too much electrical stimulation damage the brain? Will heat in the process hurt it?

Dr. John Norman at the Texas Heart Institute has kept patients going for a week with a heart pump in the abdomen. This restores certain functions of an ailing heart — allowing time for a transplant or surgical repair.

In some cases the pump lets the ailing heart rest and then it regains function.

"We have seen that the heart can recover, that the injury can be reversible, and that we can totally support circulation until it does," he reported.

At the University of Utah there is the air-operated artificial heart that Tom Kessler has been working on under Kolff's direction. It keeps a calf alive for 120 days and then the calf gets too big for the heart. Kessler is head of the Prosthetics Laboratory at the University's Institute of Biomedical Engineering.

Also on the drawing board at the Utah institute: artificial blood vessels that pulse the way human ones do.

At Brown University's Artificial Organs Laboratory, Rhode Island, there is an implantable booster lung. It is designed to get oxygen to blood. It is described as being made of microporous Teflon sponge surrounded by skin grafts.

An artificial sphincter — ringlike muscular closure — for malfunctioning urinary bladders has been developed by Dr. Brantley Scott at Baylor University in Houston. It is operated hydraulically.

A pump connected to a reservoir of salt water is placed near the bladder. The pump then inflates a cuff around the urethra. This blocks passage of urine. When pump is released urine flows.

If any one asks, the experts involved in the bionic revolution develop biosystems. They use biomaterials.

Biomaterials engineers are the ones who apply biomaterials and the various chemical, mechanical and electrical engineering technologies needed in the development of medical devices and instruments.

The "Bulletin" at Southern Research Institute says:

"The materials must be nontoxic, noncarcinogenic and cause minimal foreign body reaction. Before any new biomaterial or device can be introduced for clinical use, its safety and efficacy must be documented."

"Medical Device Amendments of 1976, Public Law 94-295, made the Food and Drug Administration Bureau of Medical Devices the government agency responsible for approving, registering and policing new non-drug systems intended for use in man and other animals."

Who are some of the specialists linking talents to bring about the second stage of the bionics revolution?

Chemists, physical chemists, biochemists, metallurgists, ceramicists, surgeons, dentists, veterinarians, pathologists, hematologists, physiologists, pharmacologists, toxicologists, microbiologists.

All those working together makes bionics a "multidisciplinary" field. Biomedical engineering and biomaterials were recognized as true specialties with the formation of the Biomedical Engineering Society about a dozen years ago.

Eight years ago the Society of Biomaterials was formed. But that's not all. Many colleges and universities train undergraduates and graduates in these fields. Bionics is here for real.

Former Mormons Form A New Religious Sect

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A group of former Mormons upset with the church's opposition to the proposed federal Equal Rights Amendment are forming a new religious sect.

Lee Ann Walker, an organizer of Zion's First International Church, said the group will have no formal set of rules or beliefs, but will be a "way station" for Mormons who are leaving their faith.

"The break in lifestyle when you leave the Mormon church is so dramatic, you just don't fit in at another church," she said.

Byron Marchant, an excommunicated Mormon and one of the new church's Quorum of Twelve Apostles, said the organizers will meet today in Liberty Park to proclaim the founding of their group and raise a flag, "inscribed with the words, 'Liberty, Equality, Family.'"

One of the key reasons for their dissatisfaction with the Mormon church, said Ms. Walker, is the opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment voiced by Mormon leaders. The ERA would ban discrimination on the basis of sex.

Ms. Walker, a Salt Lake City lawyer, said the church's lobbying against the ERA has caused many Mormons to re-examine their beliefs and reject their church's teachings.

Mormon President Spencer W. Kimball and his two counselors have issued statements condemning the ERA on grounds it would undermine the family structure in America. Kimball has said the church supports equality for all people, regardless of race or sex, but he has said the ERA is not the way to achieve that goal.

Although church leaders normally are not involved in politics, the First Presidency — consisting of Kimball and his two counselors — declared the ERA "a moral issue" on which it felt obliged to take a stand.

The date for creating the new church, Dec. 1, was chosen because it is the first anniversary of the excommunication of Sonia Johnson, a Sterling, Va., woman expelled for challenging the church's lobbying — both openly and covertly — against the ERA.

Ms. Johnson maintained that she was excommunicated for being in favor of the ERA, but Mormon officials said she was cut off for vocally criticizing the church's leaders and its policy.

Ms. Walker and Marchant compared themselves to protestants who rebelled against the authority of the Roman Catholic Church.

"These Mormon protestants believe the Mormon prophet and priesthood are unnecessary and are exercising unrighteous dominion in their political activities in opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment to the United States Constitution," the two said describing the group.

Word For A Scrabbler

NEW YORK (AP) — A requin is a voracious shark, but Michael Wolfberg admits he didn't know that when he scored 100 points with the plural of that non-household word before going on to capture the Greater New York Scrabble Players Championship.

The Concord, Mass., computer programmer boosted his per game average to over 400 points Sunday to best 200 other participants at the two-day competition.

Wolfberg, 38, said he didn't know exactly what requin meant, and admitted that he had already had to make up the word "diurie" at an earlier, desperate point in the game.

"I had been unsuccessfully challenged on three words, and if you win a challenge the other player loses a turn," he said. "So I decided it was time to go for more."

He got an extremely high one-word score for requins because he tacked it onto another word already on the board, and he used all his letters in one move, which is worth bonus points.

New Encyclical Involves Mercy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II says he has composed an encyclical letter on the subject of mercy, the second such doctrinal message of his reign.

"The church and the world need mercy, which gives expression to love stronger than any sin and any evil," the pope told a crowd of 10,000 on Sunday from his balcony overlooking St. Peter's Square.

The letter, "Dives in Misericordia" (Riches in Mercy), will be made public Tuesday, Vatican officials said.

His first encyclical letter in March 1979 pledged that the Roman Catholic Church under his pontificate would act as the "guardian" of freedom and of man's true dignity.

Malpractice Insurance Available To Ministers

By ROSALIND ROSSI
United Press International
One minister wonders if clergymen may be forced to issue disclaimers before delivering sermons.

A lawyer says churches may some day be wise to post notices outside confessionals or counseling rooms warning consumers "of the subjective nature of the cure."

Clergymen throughout the nation are discussing a new form of insurance with all the fervor given to the latest theological pronouncements. The local pastor can now be insured against lawsuits charging him with "bum advice."

There were days — before a flood of malpractice claims drove doctors and lawyers to insurance companies — when no one would have considered suing their pastor. But they are considering it now.

A groundswell of malpractice claims has beset the hallowed halls of the nation's churches and temples. There is a new crop of insurance policies to guarantee that, when doling out advice, men of God have more than God on their side.

Some ministers consider the protective robes of clergymen's malpractice insurance an uncomfortable mantle. Others are concerned preachers may be held accountable for whatever they say from the pulpit or in the confidence of counseling. Many wonder if the concern about malpractice claims may become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Others say, in today's suit-crazed times, it's as necessary as fire insurance. A handful of religious denominations have signed up their churches in a nationwide block for the coverage.

"Forty or 50 years ago, most people wouldn't have thought of suing their church but I can tell you from experience that these lawsuits are now being brought with quite a bit of regularity," said John Cleary, corporate attorney for Church Mutual Insurance Company in Merrill, Wis.

Church Mutual, which has specialized in church coverage since 1898, was the first company to offer clergymen "counseling professional liability insurance."

"Ministers were telling our salesmen that they had heard of lawsuits being brought against ministers and the ministers were incurring legal expenses and they were concerned and wanted some protection," Cleary said.

Church Mutual offers the coverage as an addition to a church "multi-peril" policy. For an average fee of $25 a year, it insures ministers for up to $300,000 in damages and legal fees for suits charging them with malpractice in counseling.

In the language of the Church Mutual policy, a clergyman is covered for legal fees and "all sums which the insured is legally bound to pay as damages because of acts, errors or omissions of the insured arising out of the counseling activity of the insured."

The coverage started the spring of 1979 in Wisconsin and is now offered in 27 states, Cleary said. Several other insurance companies have since followed Church Mutual's lead.

Insurance and church officials agree clergymen's malpractice suits are a relatively unexplored legal territory and many cases are settled out of court. As a result, case law on the issue is scarce. In fact, attorneys say most suits have been tossed out of the courts. But one recent California case is being watched and may set precedent.

On April 4, 1979, a young man opened a closet door in his Burbank apartment to find the body of his roommate. Police suspect Kenneth Nally, 24, had put a shotgun to his head two days earlier.

The resulting lawsuit sent shock waves through church officialdom.

Nally's parents filed suit in Los Angeles County Superior Court on March 31, 1980, charging malpractice by officials of Grace Community Church was a factor in their son's suicide.

Edward Barker, attorney for the parents, said young Nally had been going to church officials for counseling for about five years instead of going to a psychiatrist. Church officials discouraged Nally from seeking psychiatric care although they knew he had attempted suicide before, Barker said.

Instead of urging Nally to seek professional psychiatric help, the suit charged, pastor John F. MacArthur Jr. told Nally "to engage in prayer, read scriptures and listen to tape recordings of sermons" he had delivered.

The suit charged officials of the Protestant church had exacerbated Nally's condition by downgrading his Roman Catholic upbringing and "telling him that Catholics (such as his parents) would not go to heaven after their death."

"He was suicidal," Barker said. "The church should have directed him to good psychiatric help. They were counseling a seriously mentally ill person. They took the responsibility and didn't have the training to back it up."

Church attorneys argued the court would violate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion if it became entangled in such a lawsuit and sought to have it dismissed.

"For 2,000 years — even longer — pastors, rabbis and priests have been meeting with people who have problems of a number of different natures," said Grace Community defense attorney Sam Ericsson, who has been deluged with calls about the case from concerned clergymen.

"When you start talking about counseling by the church, spiritual issues are inextricably entwined and for the court to become entangled in spiritual issues is improper.

"When you start asking courts to second guess counsel given by pastors, rabbis and priests, I think the First Amendment is being violated."

However, on June 13, Judge Thomas Murphy refused to dismiss the suit, ruling First Amendment protections did not preclude the Nallys from suing the church for malpractice, wrongful death and negligence. A trial date has not yet been set.

"I think we've already set precedent," said Barker. "We got past the demurrer and, in terms of precedent, we got past the first important stage."

Barker, Ericsson and other legal authorities had been able to find only one similar case that had not been rejected out of hand by the courts. Its repercussions have left Elder DeWitt Hill wondering if he should sign up for clergymen's malpractice insurance.

Hill, pastor of Greater Trinity Church of God in Christ in Little Rock, Ark., was sued in December 1978 by Charles Washington, who complained his ex-wife had lost her affection for him because of Hill's preaching.

Washington had divorced his wife, Lucille, in July 1978, ending a marriage of 18 years. His suit against Hill sought $1 million in damages.

"I was shocked," Hill said. "I didn't think he would carry it that far because I had been counseling him not long before then."

"He claimed it was my teaching, the way I interpreted the Bible, that caused his wife to look on him as sinful and an ungodly creature."

"We don't believe people can drink, smoke, curse, go to horse races or dog races. He was a Baptist. He believed there was nothing wrong with that. Because his wife wouldn't go to dog races, horse races, with him, he thought it was something that I taught that caused it."

On Jan. 9, a Pulaski County Circuit Court jury refused to award any damages. But Hill had spent $2,500 on attorneys fees.

"Clergyman's malpractice insurance?" Hill asked. "I'm not too familiar with that."

When told specifics of the coverage, Hill said, "I think I will look into that. What's the name of the insurance company?"

Several denominations have already looked into the coverage.

Some 1,500 congregations of the Lutheran Church have signed up in a nationwide policy, according to Lee Fister, a spokesman for the Lutheran Church in America's New York headquarters.

Atlantic Insurance Companies, Inc., New York, last year added the coverage to its nationwide policies for the Lutheran Church in America and the United Methodist Conference. Policies written by Preferred Risk Mutual Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, cover the Presbyterian Church and the Church of the Nazarene.

"We seem to be becoming a more litigious society day by day," said Chad Hensley of Preferred Risk Mutual. "Everybody sues everybody. And the cost of defending those things (malpractice suits) is astronomical. People buy it not because of the judgments but because of the defense costs involved."

The Church Insurance Co. of New York, a non-profit organization owned by the Episcopal Church pension fund, has insured Episcopal churches nationwide against clergyman's malpractice lawsuits, said insurance spokesman Charles Cascio.

"At the moment, it's an expense," said Rev. John Baiz, pastor of Pittsburgh's Calvary Episcopal Church, which is covered as part of a general plan for all 80 Episcopal churches in the area. "And no one has sued."

"If someone sues, it's invaluable. It's like fire insurance."

Some ministers consider the coverage a "peace of mind" policy. Said Pastor Loren Mullins of Warren United Methodist Church in Lincoln, Neb., "For the price, it seemed like a wise move."

Nearly 200 members of the Chicago Board of Rabbis recently received the following letter in the mail:

"In response to several inquiries and much discussion, the Chicago Board of Rabbis is offering a professional liability program exclusively for the CBR. Many factors were carefully considered before deciding to offer this program. However, the work and duties of today's rabbi place him in a sometimes vulnerable position.

"There is always the possibility that the rabbi may be held personally responsible for some alleged malpractice, error or mistake arising out of the performance of his professional services, regardless of training and experience."

Richard Freeman, insurance agent with Associated Agencies in Chicago, said the CBR policy is offered through Western World Insurance Co. in Keene, N.H. The coverage ranges from $205 a year for a $300,000 liability limit to $437.25 a year for a $1 million limit.

"It seems like everybody is talking about this. It's just amazing," Freeman said. "And insurance companies are finally able to respond."

Many insurance representatives refused to offer examples of cases that might be covered for fear of encouraging suits but Freeman offered two.

He said the CBR policy might be used by rabbis whose marriage counseling allegedly led to the breakup of a marriage.

Or it would cover a rabbi accused of ruining marriage plans that hinged on the conversion to Judaism of a prospective spouse.

"Many rabbis perform the conversion and part of the tradition is to make it relatively difficult (to ensure the desire to change faiths is genuine)," Freeman said.

"Let's say the rabbi convinced the person that he or she really didn't want to convert and that causes a break-up. The rabbi could be sued."

Rabbi Mordecai Simon, CBR executive director, said the CBR felt the coverage should be made available to members, although it is optional.

"People always came to clergymen and rabbis for direction and advice," said Simon.

Spent $350,000 Making Fast Food Diner Special

By JEFF BARNARD
Associated Press Writer
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Hungry people who walk into Nicholas Janikies' restaurant first feast their eyes — on 10-foot glass-paneled doors from an Atlanta mansion, a fireplace from a Philadelphia townhouse and a $6,000 lead crystal chandelier.

Then they order Whoppers on plastic trays. Janikies spent $250,000 to make the inside of his Burger King restaurant look like a swank Victorian-era saloon. The trash bin is solid oak trimmed with mahogany. The floors are teak parquet with wool carpets. The walls are covered with custom-built solid mahogany panels and bookshelves.

Janikies calls his Bankers Quarters restaurant the Burger King of the 1990s. "I must be an egotist. I wanted this corner to have a landmark for Burger King in downtown Providence," says Janikies, the owner of 26 other Burger Kings in Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Vermont.

"I would love people to say, 'Wow, how did he do it?'"

He did it by spending as much on the decor alone as most franchisees spend to open the doors of a standard Burger King.

"The old theory of the fast food business was you didn't want people to be too comfortable," says Janikies. "You want people to have their food and leave in 20 minutes."

When the restaurant opened last summer, noon-time diners were given leaflets urging them not to linger too long so others could savor the atmosphere.

But loungers are welcome during the mid-afternoon lull.

"I didn't even get anything to eat. I just bought a Coke and sat down to read the paper," says William Richmond of Providence.

Mary Perrino of Cranston comes in every day after work for a cup of coffee and, sometimes, a hot dog.

"I come for the food and it's a beautiful place to relax in," she says. "I tell everybody about it."

While Janikies' Bankers Quarters has earned him a reputation in the fast food business, it was not the first franchise to go beyond the norm. "I've been doing this since 1971," says Daniel Murray, owner of 12 Burger Kings in New Hampshire. "I think this is going to be a trend. I think as the competitive conditions tighten up, people will be looking for a way to differentiate themselves from the masses."

Murray built a Burger King on the shore of Lake Winnepesaukee with big windows for the view and a dock for passing boaters.

"We tried to build in a certain atmosphere," he says. "If a fellow uses redwood instead of just red wood, and the guy across the street is running a white tile hamburger stand, he is in an excellent competitive position."

"I think all the major outlets, particularly Burger King and McDonald's, are — as the saying goes — putting a lot of effort into removing the 'stand' from hamburger stand."

Janikies says he has hired the man who designed Bankers Quarters to upgrade his other restaurants but quickly added he will not go to those extremes again.

While Burger King's $1.5 billion in gross sales last year trailed the $5.4 billion of McDonalds and $2 billion of Kentucky Fried Chicken, the Pillsbury subsidiary was alone in posting real growth and is catching up in sales per restaurant, says Paul Reinhard, manager of Burger King corporate relations.

Since 1967, Janikies has built an organization that employs five district managers, a personnel manager, a comptroller and a construction department. He has also progressed from thinking he was dining out on a meatball sandwich to collecting antique Mercedes automobiles.

He followed his first Burger King in Cranston in 1969 with 15 more in Rhode Island, eight in Massachusetts and three in Vermont.

He gives credit to his immigrant Greek parents for teaching him to work hard and save his money.

"It's a good feeling to know that I just followed the old left foot in front of the right foot theory and it happened," Janikies says.

At various times, the federal government has held title to some 80 percent of the nation's total land area.

Social Activist Dies At Age 83

NEW YORK (AP) — Dorothy Day, a crusader for social justice who renounced Communism 50 years ago to convert to Catholicism and launch the Catholic Worker Movement, has died at the age of 83.

Miss Day was "a trumpet calling for all of us to find Christ in the bread lines, the jails, a tenant farmer, migratory worker or Negro," said the Rev. Dennis Geany, one of many Catholic priests and laymen who came under her influence.

She herself summed up her life's work more simply some years ago as an effort "to bring about the kind of society where it is easier for people to be good."

Miss Day died Saturday in her room at Maryhouse, a residence for homeless women on Manhattan's Lower East Side. Maryhouse was one of some 40 homes for poor men and women that she helped to set up across the country.

A spokesman at Maryhouse said Miss Day had suffered from a heart ailment for years and lately had been virtually confined to her room, where she was visited by many of the destitute people she had aided over the years.

With her when she died was her daughter, Tamar Hennessy, who was fathered by Miss Day's common-law husband, Forster Batterham, in the days when Miss Day was a bohemian in Greenwich Village. At that time she also wrote for Marxist publications and was a member of the Socialist Party and later the Intentional Workers of the World — the "Wobblies."

Miss Day credited her daughter's birth in 1927 with her conversion to Catholicism, saying the "mystical feelings" she had long had about Catholicism culminated in a desire "to have my child baptized, cost what it may."

She renounced Communism, but continued as a social activist, writing in the liberal Catholic magazine Commonweal and later in the Catholic Worker newspaper, which she founded in 1933 with Peter Maurin.

The Rev. Raymond A. Schroth, former editor of Commonweal, called Miss Day "the inspiration behind the creative force of the American Catholic left." He said the Trappist author Thomas Merton, union organizer Cesar Chavez and the antiwar priests Daniel and Philip Berrigan were among her "children."

She often found herself opposing the late Cardinal

Francis Spellman. She was asked what she would do if the cardinal ordered her to stop publishing the Catholic Worker.

"I would gladly obey," she said, adding: "There are many ways, you know, to handle a cardinal."

DOROTHY DAY

Miss Day, who said she lived by the belief that "the coat in your closet belongs to the poor," neither sought nor accepted government aid for her group's settlement houses.

"Dorothy believed very strongly that you don't have to ask permission of the government to be charitable," Dan Mauk, managing editor of the Catholic Worker, said Sunday.

Mauk said Miss Day never took personal credit for the Catholic Worker movement or its achievements: "Dorothy really felt it was Peter Maurin's program... (she said) he was the man with the ideas."

A private funeral was scheduled for Tuesday. A public memorial mass is also planned.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in selling blamed on expectations of a continued rise in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.10 to 985.24 by noon.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said further increases were expected soon in the bank prime lending rate, now at 17 1/2 to 18 percent, and the Federal Reserve's discount rate, now 12 to 14 percent.

"You can't ask the market to continue to barrel ahead in the face of this rate spiral," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc.

Wachtel noted that rates on margin loans — borrowings by traders using stock as collateral — now generally stand above 20 percent, a level that could be expected to discourage buying and holding stocks on margin.

Point-plus losers among the blue chip and glamour issues included Eastman Kodak, down 1 1/2 at 68; General Electric, off 1 1/2 at 60 1/2; Walt Disney Productions, down 1 1/2 at 49 1/2; and Texas Instruments, off 3/4 at 145 1/2.

Pilots Disclaim Illegal Imports

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Two American pilots detained by military authorities here for two weeks denied new charges today that they violated Philippines laws by stopping over in Manila on their way to deliver arms samples to the Malaysian government.

Duane Heist, 38, of Emmaus, Pa., and Robert Rummel, 30, of Lancaster, Pa., "professed their innocence in a motion to dismiss charges their cargo was an illegal importation in violation of local customs laws. Earlier, they were charged with illegal possession of explosives. A hearing on the illegal importation charge is scheduled next week.

The flyers, employees of the Lancaster-based Electronic Systems International, Inc., along with their twin-engine Aero Commander plane, have been grounded in Manila since they landed on Nov. 18, allegedly without diplomatic clearance.

Both the U.S. and Malaysian embassies here have formally confirmed to Philippines authorities that the 10 Claymore mines on the plane were legitimate cargo ordered by Malaysian police for testing and that the plane had prior clearance to refuel in Manila enroute to Malacca.

However, Philippines authorities, suspicious following a wave of terrorist bombings in Manila which the government of Ferdinand Marcos alleges were masterminded by U.S.-based dissidents opposed to his

Syria Doubling Border Forces

By LOUIS FARES
 Associated Press Writer
DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Syria doubled its forces on Jordan's border to 50,000 troops and 1,100 tanks over the weekend, well informed sources said today. Observers in Damascus said armed conflict could break out any day.

They said a letter from Saudi King Khaled, who is trying to mediate the conflict, to President Hafiz Assad contained threats, and appeared to have been counterproductive. The substance of the threats was not known, but Saudi Arabia is a big financial backer of the Damascus government.

Saudi Prince Abdullah Bin Abdul-Aziz, deputy premier and commander of the national guard, delivered the letter to Assad during a three-hour meeting Sunday, Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat also conferred with Assad for more than two hours Sunday, and an aide to Arafat described the border situation as "very serious."

King Hussein of Jordan strengthened his forces on the Syrian border Sunday, saying they would not attack the Syrian troops facing them but would "cut off the arm" of anyone attacking them. Jordan is a U.S. ally, while Syria is the Soviet Union's chief ally in the Middle East.

Surviving her is a sister, Miss Ethel Purser of Vanceboro.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home Monday from 7 to 9 p. m. At other times they will be at the home of Miss Purser.

Another Rescue Of Boston Transit Due

BOSTON (AP) — Legislators were convening today to consider a proposal that would bail out the city's cash-strapped transit system and avert a threatened shutdown of public transportation.

The Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority used up its $302 million budget for 1980 two weeks ago and if the Legislature fails to come up with financial help, the system could be shut down at midnight Friday under terms of a court order.

The governor reportedly was ready to compromise on a bail-out package including a tough "management rights" section stripping power from transit unions. The package also called for personnel cuts and a reduction in overtime, legislators said.

But John J. Gallahue Jr., president of the Boston Carmen's Union, said Sunday that some proposed changes violated the union's contract and, if passed, would force the union to go to court and try to hold up federal funds to the MBTA.

"The legislative package is a Band-Aid approach and harmful to labor," said Gallahue. "It doesn't address the funding problem. We'll have the same problem next year."

He said also he believed union members would agree to work without paychecks the rest of the year to keep the system moving, if they were assured of eventually getting their pay.

The legislative session was the second in a month called to rescue the ailing MBTA. King issued the recall order Friday after the state Supreme Court ruled that the

UNC Defeats Arkansas For Alaska Title

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Among the hoariest of sports clichés is the one that says good big men will beat good little men. North Carolina lent credibility to the saying with its 64-58 victory over Arkansas in the championship game of the Great Alaska Shootout.

The game was either tied or the lead changed hands 15 times in the first 10 minutes of the second half Sunday night. But with the score tied at 42, Arkansas' 6-foot-10 center Scott Hastings — voted the most valuable player in the tournament — fouled out.

The biggest of the Razorbacks left on the floor was 6-6 and their quickness was not enough to cope with the 13th-ranked Tar Heels front line of James Worthy, Sam Perkins and Pete Budko, all 6-9.

North Carolina began dominating at both ends of the court and pulled to a 10-point lead. Then the Tar Heels spread out their offense, slowed the tempo and held on until the buzzer.

In other games Sunday, Louisiana State breezed by Georgetown 76-67 for third place, Missouri nipped Alaska-Anchorage 54-53 for fourth and Colgate thrashed Nicholls State 94-77 for seventh.

Cleveland In 'Control'

Browns Nip Houston, Now Alone Atop Central

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Browns can rightly claim control of their own destiny now, but they can't help but benefit from one of the most crucial showdowns of the 1980 National Football League season Thursday night when Houston plays host to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Browns unlocked a tie in the American Conference Central Division Sunday by winning a 17-14 thriller over the Oilers, whose Thursday night confrontation with Pittsburgh should pare the race to two teams.

"It was obviously a very big win for us," Browns quarterback Brian Sipe said. "We are in control of our own destiny."

Pittsburgh's 23-10 victory over Miami left the Steelers and Oilers tied for second in the division at 8-5, while Cleveland moved in front by a game at 9-4.

Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said his team still was on the road to recovery from a series of disabling injuries to players like wide receivers Lynn Swann and John Stallworth, running backs Rocky Bleier and Franco Harris, Jacks Ham and Lambert and quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

"We hope we're on the right route," Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said.

Steelers safety Don Shell shrugged off Pittsburgh's rugged schedule that sees them play two games in five days.

"I'm ready. I'm psyched. I'm fired up. I'm ready to go," he said. "Ain't got time to worry about how tired you are or how physically ready you are to play ... if we had to play tomorrow, I could go out and play."

Fullback Cleo Miller ran for two short-yardage touchdowns to give Cleveland a 14-0 lead in the second period. Don Cockroft's 25-yard field goal in the third quarter provided the Browns with their eventual winning margin.

Houston had a chance to tie the game in the fourth quarter, but Toni Fritsch missed a 38-yard field goal attempt when he scuffed his foot.

In the AFC East, New England failed to take advantage of Buffalo's 28-24 loss to Baltimore by losing 21-17 to San Francisco. That left the 8-5 Patriots one game back of the Bills, 9-4.

The San Diego Chargers moved a half game ahead of Oakland in the AFC West with a 22-21 victory over Philadelphia. The Chargers are now 9-4, and the 8-4 Raiders face a must situation when they host Denver tonight.

The loss dropped the Eagles to 11-2 and one game ahead of Dallas, a 51-7 winner over Seattle on Thursday, in the National Conference East. Minnesota took advantage of Detroit's 23-17 overtime loss to Chicago on Thursday to move into a tie for the NFC Central lead with a 23-20 victory over winless New Orleans.

The NFC West race remained much the same with both division-leading Atlanta, 10-3, and Los Angeles, 9-4, on the winning side of the ledger. Atlanta edged Washington 10-6, and the Rams whipped the New York Jets 38-13.

Elsewhere, it was St. Louis 23, the New York Giants 7; Cincinnati 20, Kansas City 6, and Tampa Bay 20, Green Bay 17.

Steelers 23, Dolphins 10
Harris topped off his best game of the season with a 9-yard touchdown run that sealed Pittsburgh's victory. Harris ran for 116 yards in the game on 28 carries.

"It's gratifying," Harris said, "but even more important than that, it's really jelling offensively. We're putting everything together. That's the important thing."

Harris' touchdown capped a 98-yard drive that began as the Dolphins were threatening to take the lead. Steelers cornerback Ron Johnson forced a fumble by Dolphins running back Tony Nathan on the 1, and 15 plays later, Bradshaw had guided Pittsburgh to paydirt.

49ers 21, Patriots 17
Joe Montana threw three touchdown passes, all after the 49ers had intercepted Steve Grogan passes, to lead San Francisco to its second straight victory.

Grogan was intercepted six times as the 49ers set a club record. Two of the interceptions were by Ricky Churchman and one was by Keena Turner that killed a New England drive late in the fourth quarter.

Colts 28, Bills 24
Curtis Dickey ran for two touchdowns, and Baltimore scored each of its four TDs after some sort of Buffalo miscue. Dickey scored twice in the second half after an interception and a recovered fumble.

Colts quarterback Greg Landry, substituting for the injured Bert Jones, threw for a score after a fumbled punt, and he ran for another after Buffalo punter Greg Cater was tackled on his own 8.

Chargers 22, Eagles 21
Dan Fouts threw two scoring passes, and Rolf Barmischke kicked three field goals as San Diego ended Philadelphia's eight-game winning streak.

Fouts had 342 yards passing and went over the 300-yard mark for the sixth time this season, equaling for the second straight year the NFL record set by Joe Namath.

Philadelphia rallied to within a point on an 11-yard scoring pass from Ron Jaworski to Wilbert Montgomery with 2:50 left, but the Chargers picked up on first down and ran out the clock after the kickoff.

Denver Needs Victory To Stay In Playoff Race

Broncos, Raiders Battle Tonight

OAKLAND (AP) — The Denver Broncos, coming off a pair of high-scoring performances, face a stiff challenge tonight when they meet the Oakland Raiders, who have relied heavily on defense lately.

"I can see the pride growing game after game," says Burgess Owens, the free safety on the Oakland defensive unit which has become one of the most respected in the National Football League.

The Broncos take a 7-5 record into the nationally televised game and will be virtually out of the American Conference playoff race if they lose. They trail San Diego, 9-4, and the Raiders, 8-4, in the AFC West.

The Raiders were 2-3 early in the season and facing a major adjustment on offense, with journeyman Jim Plunkett thrust into the starting quarterback role after Dan Pastorini suffered a broken leg.

Plunkett, who hadn't started an NFL game in two years, came through with some outstanding passing and the defense was outstanding week after week as the Raiders went on a six-game winning streak. The streak ended last week with a 10-7 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

"They are the most physical team we've faced,"

Philadelphia's Wilbert Montgomery said after going up against the Raiders' defense, which yielded only 13 first downs and 271 yards.

Oakland's standout players on defense have been cornerback Lester Hayes, the NFL interception leader with 10, and linebacker Ted Hendricks, having perhaps the best season in his 12-year pro career.

The Oakland offense managed only 275 yards last week, with 86 coming on a late touchdown pass from Plunkett to Cliff Branch. In the last two games, Plunkett has completed only 19 of 58 passes and been sacked 12 times.

Denver has won its last three games and six of the last eight. Two weeks ago, the Broncos outscored the New York Jets 31-24 and last week they rolled past Seattle 36-20.

Craig Morton, the 37-year-old veteran who has beaten out younger Matt Robinson for the Broncos' quarterback job, threw two touchdown passes against Seattle despite being weakened by the flu. He is now the third-ranked passer in the AFC.

The Raiders have the best Monday night record in NFL history, 15-1-1. A sellout crowd is expected tonight — but maybe not until midway in the opening quarter.

A group of fans concerned over owner Al Davis' attempt to move the Raiders to Los Angeles is asking ticketholders to stay out of the stadium until five minutes after kickoff in a "Save the Raiders" no-show demonstration.

Archie Manning threw three second-half touchdown passes for New Orleans, but the Saints saw any chance of their first victory erased when Minnesota linebacker Matt Blair blocked a 25-yard field goal attempt by Benny Ricardo.

Falcons 10, Redskins 6
Atlanta won a club-record seventh straight and held the slipping Redskins to Mark Moseley field goals of 51 and 46 yards.

Steve Bartkowski threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Alfred Jenkins early in the third quarter, and Tim Mazzetti kicked a 23-yard field goal in the fourth quarter for the Falcons.

The loss was Washington's fifth straight.

Moseley's last field goal came with four minutes left in the game after an apparent Redskins touchdown pass of 24 yards from Mike Krucezk to Ricky Thompson was nullified by penalties against both teams.

Rams 38, Jets 13
Vince Ferragamo threw four touchdown passes, and Elvis Peacock, who replaced the injured Wendell Tyler in the first quarter, gained a personal high 152 yards for the Rams. Tyler left with a dislocated elbow.

Two of Ferragamo's scoring strikes were to Willie Miller.

The Rams defense sacked Jets quarterback Richard Todd six times and in the third quarter held New York to minus-2 yards total offense.

Cincinnati scored 13 points in the fourth quarter on Jack Thompson's 1-yard touchdown pass and a 57-yard romp by Pete Johnson, a 250-pound fullback, to break open a

Thompson came off the bench in the first quarter when Ken Anderson complained of dizziness. Anderson's 4-yard strike had put Cincinnati ahead 7-0.

Buccaneers 20, Packers 17

Kevin House snared a tipped pass from Doug Williams at the Green Bay 1-yard line with less than two minutes to play, setting up Tampa Bay's winning touchdown.

The pass from Bucs quarterback Doug Williams covered 44 yards, but first it hit the hands of Green Bay safety Johnnie Gray before bouncing to House, who was brought down on the 1 by Steve Luke. Tampa Bay running back Johnny Davis scored on the next play, with 1:58 left in the game.

Green Bay had one last chance to send the game into overtime, but recent-acquisition Jan Stenerud's 45-yard field goal try with 17 seconds left was wide to the left.

Wright, Others, Star In ECU Win

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ATHENS, OHIO - Although only one game into the 1980-81 season, East Carolina may be on its way to finding a replacement for George Maynor and his 17 point scoring average.

George, meet Barry, freshman Barry Wright.

"Barry's going to be a lot like Maynor," ECU coach Dave Odom said. "He's going to get us the baskets when we need them like Maynor did."

In the Pirates' 70-65 opening-season victory over Ohio University Saturday, Wright did just that.

With ECU trailing 46-45 but in the midst of a 17-to-6 spurt midway through the second half, Wright put in a missed Mike Bledsoe jumper to give ECU the lead. The Pirates never trailed again.

"I thought I played so-so," said Wright, who had 17 points (seven-of-11 from the field). "I concentrated more on defense tonight. I was going against their top scorer and I knew we needed to stop him."

Stop him he did. Going into the game, Odom decided to play the 6-5 Wright on OU's star guard, Kirk Lehman, a 6-0 junior who averaged nearly 18 points a game last year and was named second team All-Mid-America. Odom hoped that having to shoot over the taller Wright would bring Lehman's percentage down.

Odom's strategy paid off. Lehman scored but 10 points, hitting on only four-of-14 shots from the field, while also committing five turnovers and fouling out late in the fourth period.

Wright wasn't the only one contributing to the Pirate victory. ECU got 17 points from Mark McLaurin, 14 of which came in the second half, and 11 points from Dave Underwood. Senior Tom Szymanski contributed eight points and pulled down nine rebounds, tops in the game.

PIRATE NOTEBOOK

"Szymanski and Underwood played their best games yet at East Carolina (Saturday night)," Odom said afterwards. "I took a chance starting both of them because they hadn't worked together much so far, but it worked O.K."

Odom, however, was not entirely pleased with his team's play.

He noted that the Pirates were not looking for their second and third options in the offense. Instead, finding nothing open, the Pirates would reset their offense and start over.

"We didn't get the easy shots tonight and we did not react after the first option in our offense," Odom said. "We're going to have to work on that and get them to look for the other options."

Odom was not pleased with his club's running of the 'Pirate Pause.' Ahead 61-56 with 2:30 left, ECU went to their slow down attack. Twice the Pirates turned the ball over — once being called for a five second count and then losing the ball on the jump ball and then on a steal — in less than a minute to see their lead shrink to just two, 61-59.

Having seen enough, Odom changed his tactics. "We were completely disoriented in our delay game," Odom said. "I called timeout and when back to our offense. I took a chance, because they might have said, 'Well, he hasn't got much confidence in us running the pause.' But they handled it well."

NOTES From Athens...

Coach Dave Odom enters his second year with East Carolina in search of a second straight winning season.

The last time ECU had two consecutive winning seasons in basketball was in 1973 and 1974. The Pirates were 13-12 in '73 under Tom Quinn and 19-9 in '74 under Dave Patton.

Ohio University is almost as young this season as the Pirates. The Bearcats have four freshmen, four walk-ons and one junior college transfer on their 1980 squad.

The Bearcats also have a new coach, Danny Nee. Nee was an assistant under Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps for four years before coming to OU.

A native of Brooklyn, Nee played on the same Power Memorial High School basketball team as Lew Alcindor (now Kareem Abdul Jabbar).

OU's Convocation Center, where the Pirates played the Bearcats Saturday night, is cross between the Charlotte Coliseum (outside) and the Clemson's Littlejohn Coliseum (inside). The Center holds 14,000.

Following Saturday's game with Ohio U., the Pirates face the University of Maine at Orono, Me., on Wednesday. ECU defeated the Black Bears last year, 67-65, in overtime last season. In their opening game of the season Friday, the Bears lost to tough Texas A&M, 66-57. A&M was ranked in the top 20 in most preseason polls.

ECU's first home game will be Dec. 6 against Texas Wesleyan.

The ECU basketball media guide is out. The 80-page booklet can be purchased from the ECU sports information office for $3.

Jim Woods is back for his 12th year on the Pirate Sports Network. The Greenville outlet is WOOW (1340 am). Games will also be broadcast on WTTN-FM (93.3).

Dial-A-Pirate with Coach Dave Odom is also available now. For a daily two minute message call 757-6900.

Taylor Named ACC Player Of Year

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Quarterbacks in the Atlantic Coast Conference this year kept a close watch on No. 98 of North Carolina. But it didn't do much good as the big man in Carolina Blue terrorized them all season.

Sixteen times Tar Heel outside linebacker Lawrence Taylor dropped opposing quarterbacks for losses as North Carolina rolled up a 10-1 record and won the ACC title. Sunday Taylor was named ACC Player of the Year, becoming only the fourth player other than an offensive back to earn the honor.

Taylor was the runaway choice of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, receiving 94 of the 122 votes cast. The other three non-offensive back winners of the award were Maryland center-linebacker Bob Pelligrini in 1955, Duke tackle Mike McGee in 1959 and Maryland tackle Randy White in 1974.

The 6-foot-3, 242-pound senior was a solid player at UNC his first three years but did not stand out. He was even switched to middle guard his sophomore year because of a depth problem. Taylor said Sunday, he once had a passing thought of making player of the year.

"When (Jay) Venuto made it last year, I said I wish I could make it," the Williamsburg, Va., native said. "But I said, 'No way,' because I'm not an offensive player."

But with the beginning of the 1980, Taylor straightened out what he termed an attitude problem and was ready to play. He was settled in at outside linebacker, which is UNC's term for defensive end.

"The main thing was working with all the new coaches," he said of coach Dick Crum's arrival his sophomore year. "I had to get my attitude together. Once I got my attitude together, the rest came together. It was hard for us (the players) and the coaches to get together. But this year it all came together."

Besides his 16 quarterback sacks for 127 yards in last yardage, Taylor had 69 tackles (22 for losses), caused three fumbles, recovered three fumbles and broke up two passes. But that doesn't tell the whole story.

In a 9-3 victory over Texas Tech, the Red Raiders were on the UNC 2 with time running out when Taylor dropped the quarterback, caused a fumble and recovered it. At Clemson, his quarterback sack saved the game. The Tigers were on the North Carolina one with less than a minute to play. The Tar Heels won 24-19.

That was only a couple of the plays that made Taylor the most feared ACC lineman since White, an Outland Trophy winner and now a pro star for Dallas. Most of the opposing offenses tried to run away from him, which meant they had to run to the short side of the field.

Several factors, besides the attitude change, helped Taylor. In the off season he worked on his speed and when the season began he was running the 40 in 4.6 seconds. The other factors were the 10 other men on defense.

"Playing with the 10 guys I had on defense, I could afford to take chances," he said. "If I made a mistake I knew they would make up for it. The whole team contributed to me winning player of the year. I'm real proud of myself and the team."

Crum was pleased for Taylor and said he was "deserving of the award but it took 10 other guys to get him where he is."

Taylor is considered a top pro prospect, mainly because of his physical style of play that earned him the title of the "ACC Hit Man."

"I enjoyed it," he said of the nickname. "I like to play physical football. But I'm a

Dooley Reportedly Offered Tiger Job

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn University reportedly has offered Georgia Coach Vince Dooley a five-year contract worth about $1 million to become head coach and athletic director at Auburn.

The report in today's Montgomery Advertiser came as Dooley denied published accounts that he had agreed to return to his alma mater, Auburn, succeeding current Tigers' Coach Doug Barfield.

But Dooley, in Birmingham for the Southeastern Conference winter meetings, did not rule out the possibility that he might take the Auburn job. "I have no comment," Dooley said. "Anything I'd say wouldn't come out right."

For the past week, there have been numerous reports that Barfield would resign and that Dooley, whose Georgia Bulldogs currently are ranked No. 1 in the nation, would return to the school where he played quarterback from 1951-1953.

Those reports intensified Sunday, but no official announcements have been made by Barfield or university spokesmen at Auburn or Georgia.

The Advertiser, quoting Auburn sources who asked not to be named, said Dooley was offered an open-ended five-year contract worth about $1 million to become head football coach and athletic director. The newspaper said Auburn's present athletic director, Lee Hayley, would be offered another administrative post.

Official announcement of the developments reportedly would be made this week.

Toni Fritsch of the Houston Oilers made 21 of 25 field goals in 1979, which gave him a career record of 119 successful kicks in 178 tries.

Rogers Is Heisman Favorite

NEW YORK (AP)—George Rogers of South Carolina, the nation's leading rusher, was the favorite for the Heisman Trophy but freshman tailback Herschel Walker of Georgia and defensive end Hugh Green of Pittsburgh were bidding to end the award's domination by senior running backs and quarterbacks.

Rogers role as the favorite got a boost Sunday night when he flew to New York and was escorted into the Downtown Athletic Club, where the winner will be announced, and where he apparently was to spend the night.

Also expected to finish high up when the voting for the 46th annual Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding college football player was announced today were quarterbacks Mark Herrmann of Purdue, Jim McMahon of Brigham Young and Art Schlichter of Ohio State; running backs Jarvis Redwine of Nebraska, Freeman McNeil of UCLA and Marcus Allen of Southern California; linebackers Mike Singletary of Baylor and Lawrence Taylor of North Carolina and defensive back Kenny Easley of UCLA.

Schlichter was the top returning finisher. He was fourth last year behind running backs Charles White of Southern Cal and Billy Sims of Oklahoma—the 1978 winner—and Brigham Young quarterback Marc Wilson, all seniors.

Other returnees from last year's top 10 were Rogers, who was seventh; Herrmann, eighth, and Florida State middle guard Ron Simmons, who finished ninth but had an injury-plagued off-year in 1980.

No freshman or sophomore has ever won the Heisman Trophy. The only players to win it as juniors were Doc Blanchard of Army in 1945, Doak Walker of Southern Methodist in 1948, Vic Janowicz of Ohio State in 1950, Roger Staubach of Navy in 1963, Archie Griffin of Ohio State in 1974 and Sims in 1978. Staubach was a quarterback, the others running backs, and Griffin was the only one to repeat as a senior.

Rogers, fourth on the all-time major college rushing list, leads the nation this year with 1,781 yards, an average of 161.9 per game. He has gained more than 100 yards in 20 consecutive games. Walker wound up with 205 yards Saturday in No. 1-ranked Georgia's 38-20 victory over Georgia Tech. His total of 1,616—a 146.9 average—is fourth nationally and broke the freshman record of Pitt's Tony Dorsett (1,586 yards in 1973).

Herrmann finished second nationally in total offense and fifth in passing and set career NCAA records for pass yardage (9,188), completions (717) and attempts (1,218). This season, he completed 220 of 340 for 2,923 yards and 19 touchdowns, while missing one game.

McMahon led the country in total offense and passing. During BYU's 12-game regular season, he was 284 of 445 and set a pair of NCAA marks by passing for 4,571 yards and 47 touchdowns. He has gone over 300 yards in his last 11 outings.

The Heisman Trophy has gone to an offensive back each year with the exception of two-way ends Larry Kelley of Yale in 1936 and Leon Hart of Notre Dame in 1949. Both were noted more for their offensive exploits.

The University of Pittsburgh waged a late-season campaign for Green, a defensive end, spending an estimated $3,000-$5,000 on multi-colored posters of Green, a defensive end, which it mailed to 4,000 persons across the country.

The Heisman balloting closed Friday.

Bucks Win Without 3 Starters

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Boston Coach Bill Fitch can cope with his team losing to Milwaukee. After all, the Bucks are one of the strongest teams in the National Basketball Association and lead the Central Division with a 20-6 record.

But losing to the Bucks Sunday night, when they were without three of their regulars...well, that was too much for Fitch to handle.

"I can't say anything nice about my basketball team," Fitch said after his Celtics dropped a 107-105 decision to the Bucks even though Milwaukee stars Marques

Johnson, Bob Lanier and Brian Winters missed the game because of injuries.

"They only had eight guys, but they went out there and did the job," Fitch said of the Bucks. "They did what I like to see. They played together better than they might save if they had everyone."

Sidney Moncrief filled in at Winters' guard spot and scored 23 points, Pat Cummings stabled for Joxson at forward and scored 10 and defensive standout Harvey Catchings opened at center in place of Lanier. Junior Bridgeman, playing his usual sixth-man role, led Milwaukee with 25 points.

Milwaukee led 100-91 with three minutes to play, but Boston chipped away and pulled within two points on Chris Ford's 15-foot jumper with 13 seconds left. The Celtics then fouled Quinn Buckner, who missed both free throws, but the strategy failed to pay off when Boston was unable to come up with the tying basket.

Bucks Coach Don Nelson, a former Celtic player, took his team out of its usual running game and into a pattern offense. "We wanted to be patient and not get into a running game," explained Nelson. "We wanted to spend our energy on defense and rest on offense, stay close and nurse the clock.

We carried out our game plan perfectly."

Suns 117, Rockets 111
Rookie guard Kyle Macy came off the bench and scored 14 points in an eight-minute stretch of the second half as Phoenix built a 99-90 lead with 7:12 left and then held off the Rockets.

Walter Davis scored 25 points and Macy had an NBA-high 21 as Phoenix raised its record to 224, best in the Western Conference.

Bulls 122, Lakers 108
Center Artis Gilmore scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half and grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds to lead Chicago to only its fourth road victory in 12 outings.

The Bulls took command with a 39-point third quarter for a 90-83 lead and pulled away.

Sonics 113, Nets 89
Seattle recovered from a 15-point second period to outscore New Jersey 65-39 in the second half and break a three-game losing streak. John Johnson and Vannie Johnson led the Sonics with 20 points apiece.

New Jersey, which dropped the opener of a five-game road trip, has lost five of its last six starts.

Clippers 120, Warriors 100
Freeman Williams scored all 24 of his points in the second and third quarters for San Diego, including nine in a 24-8 surge that gave the Clippers a 93-78 lead going into the final period.

Says Fighter's Trainer

Duran Should Change Life Before Fighting Again

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Welterweight Roberto Duran should not fight again "unless he changes his life completely" and agrees to train correctly, in the opinion of his manager.

Carlos Eleta says the Panamanian boxer was not prepared for his Tuesday night bout in New Orleans with Sugar Ray Leonard. Duran's lifestyle and crash dieting to make the weight limit of 147 pounds for the World Boxing Council title bout were to blame for the weakness and cramps he felt before quitting the fight, Eleta said.

It showed when he walked away from Leonard in the eighth round, said Eleta, who has been staying with the Duran entourage at the DILido Hotel here.

The manager said he "spoke to" the fighter after hearing him tell a Miami Spanish-language radio station Friday that, "I'm going back to the ring" and wants to fight Leonard again. Duran has avoided reporters since making that statement.

"You have to understand this about Duran," said Eleta, a Panamanian industrialist. "In our country, he is like a god.

Everybody is after him. Do this. Do that. People invite him to places all the time and Duran is very difficult to control.

"I finally had to take him out of Panama to train for the fight because he was up to 180 pounds."

A 2½-month crash diet and intense training helped Duran get within the welterweight limit, Eleta said Saturday. "Two or three days" before the fight, Duran took a diuretic to reduce the water in his body, the manager added.

"The body can only do so much," he said. "After all that work, he got down, more or less, to a welterweight, but he was feeling weak. He thought by eating a lot before the fight, he would feel stronger. He ate much more than he should have."

Duran has said he ate a bowl of beef consomme, three T-bone steaks, french fries, orange juice and tea on fight day.

Rosettes' Lee Takes First In All-Around

CHARLOTTE — Caroline Lee was first in the all-around competition in the Class 3 division and Judy Benson was third all-around in the Class 2 division to lead the Rosettes at the Turkey Tumble Gymnastics Invitational meet held this past weekend.

The tournament, which had teams from across the state, began Friday and continued through Sunday. Team scores were kept by some squads, but the Rosettes did not have enough girls to keep a team score.

Lee led the Greenville team, winning the balance beam with a score of 7.9 and the floor exercise with a score of 7.6. She also was third in the vault (8.25) for an all-around total of 28.3, the best in her 15-and-over age group.

Benson was tops in the Class 2 competition with a third on the uneven bars (6.35) and the balance beam (7.6) and a fourth in the floor exercise (7.2). She had an all-around total of 28.6, third in her 15-and-over age group.

Other Rosette results were: Class 2 — Christy Garrison, 2, floor exercise (7.35), 4, uneven bars (5.65) and 6, all-around (26.8); Jenny Johnsrude, 4, vault (8.1); Ginger McLendon, 3, floor exercise (7.5), 6, balance beam (7.0).

Rose Wrestlers Inexperienced

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's wrestling team has gotten off to a poor start, losing its first two matches, but coach Gary Niklason feels that the biggest problem, inexperience, can be overcome.

"Our outlook is still somewhat uncertain," Niklason said. "I can see that we will definitely be strong in some areas, but in others, we have new wrestlers who don't have the experience yet. But I think the program is going in the right direction."

The Rampants lost some top-flight wrestlers, including two-year state champion Ron Butler at the heavyweight slot. However, Curtis Spell, who wrestled in Butler's shadow for two years, appears to have learned well and may be ready to follow in the champion's footsteps this year.

Other top losses included Allen Best at 145, Jeff Atkinson at 138, Charles Gunther at 185 and Reggie Eaton at 155.

"We have several wrestlers back who are definite contenders for sectional honors this year," Niklason feels. These include Wayne Joyner at 132, Dennis Kilcoyne at 105, Vincent Murphy at 112, Jay Holly at 126, Johnny Green at 167, Stuart Ward at 195, and Spell at the heavyweight.

"We have some good athletes among our newcomers, who just need that time to become good wrestlers, too," the coach said.

He feels, however, that it will be a difficult task for the Rampants to be in a position to win the Division I conference championship. "Beddingfield has to be the favorites. They won it last year, and they return everyone but one. I don't know how the rest of the league is going to stack up after them."

The Rampants have some extra help this year, too, in the presence of East Carolina matman Frank Schaefer, who is aiding Niklason in the coaching.

Top people at the individual weights include: Ken Davis at 98 pounds, Kilcoyne at 105, Murphy at 112, sophomore Curtis Daniels at 119, Holly at 126, Joyner at 132, sophomore John Ormond at 138, Jimmy Jones at 145, sophomore James Richardson at 155, Green at 167, Robert Brown at 185, Ward at 195 and Spell at heavyweight.

"Brown has only recently joined the team, but we think that he will be a good wrestler for us," Niklason added.

Others who may add help to the roster include 138-pounder Greg Britt and Lee Whitaker.

"We are lacking in depth at several places," the coach said. "We have only one wrestler at 98, 105, 167, 185, 195, and heavyweight. Injuries could really cause us some problems."

"I really can't predict where we might finish in the conference, or how we'll do in dual meets. But I do think that we'll be okay by the time the divisional and sectional meets roll around."

The 1955 Los Angeles Rams had Pete Rozelle as their general manager, George Allen as end coach, and Norm Van Brocklin as quarterback.

Rose Wrestlers

But North Carolina's own quick backcourt duo of Jimmy Black and Mike Pepper held Walker scoreless for the first 28 minutes Sunday. He finished with nine and Reed with five. The two 'Hogs' had averaged a combined 34.5 points in the two previous games.

"Arkansas didn't shoot as well... but I like to think our defense had something to do with that," said Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith, "plus we have some shot-blockers in Worthy, Perkins and Budko."

"If we had another big man, we'd be a great basketball team," said Arkansas' Coach Eddie Sutton.

He said his guards had a bad night but agreed with Smith that the Tar Heels' defense was partially responsible.

Hastings scored a game-high 20 points, the only Razorback in double figures, while Worthy got 16, Al Wood 14 and Black 13 for North Carolina.

LSU Coach Dale Brown was mighty unhappy with the way his Tigers played Saturday against Arkansas so he restructured his lineup Sunday against 16th-ranked Georgetown.

The Tigers made Brown look like a genius as all five starters scored in double figures. The final score was closer than the game as LSU led by as many as 22 points and was in control throughout the second half.

"I'm really convinced that with the class teams, the really gifted teams, it's all locked up in here," said Brown, tapping the side of his head. "We learned from that failure."

"We came up here to get our baptism of fire and we certainly accomplished that feat," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson. "We wanted to find out a few things about our team and we did. Now it's time to go home and do some work."

The other top-20 team, Missouri, needed a shot at the buzzer to beat Alaska-Anchorage. Carl Amos scored on a followup with six seconds left to cut the Seawolves' lead to 53-52.

Alaska-Anchorage was unable to get the ball in play in the required five seconds, leaving Missouri to inbound the ball under the Seawolves' basket with one second remaining.

Six-foot-11 Steve Stipanovich was in the air heading for the basket when he took a lob pass and banked it off the glass for the game winning basket.

Mike Ferrara broke the single-game and three-game tournament scoring records in Colgate's victory that concluded the third annual affair. Ferrara's 37 points gave him 83 for the tournament. That bettered the marks of 35 and 77 set in 1978 by Mike Olliver of Lamar.

Mirage Bowl

TOKYO (AP) — It was Freeman McNeil's farewell appearance for UCLA and he said yanbona in memorable fashion.

The Bruin tailback ran for three touchdowns and set a school career rushing record Sunday as the Bruins belted Oregon State 34-3 in the fourth annual Mirage Bowl at Tokyo's National Stadium.

McNeil rushed for 109 yards in the first half as UCLA, which finished the season 9-2, roared to a 31-0 halftime lead over its Pacific-10 conference rival.

Oregon State, it turned out, flew across the Pacific Ocean to clinch the worst season in its history.

Still, Coach Joe Avezzano of the 0-11 Beavers praised his team, which had only nine seniors on the 70-man roster, for refusing to quit.

"They could have rolled over and been beat as bad as possible," said Avezzano. "I don't have any reservations about looking my players in the eye and feeling good."

If Avezzano was feeling good, then Bruins Coach Terry Donahue should have been euphoric. Instead, Donahue mentioned the players he'd be losing to graduation. Donahue said that the 18 fourth-year men on the UCLA squad playing their final game Sunday, comprised "one of the top senior classes in the history of the school. Their loss will be a severe blow."

Especially the loss of McNeil. The speedster, who sat out the second half, ended his four-year career with 3,195 yards rushing, surpassing the record of 3,181 yards set by Wendell Tyler, now of the Los Angeles Rams.

OSU picked up three first downs on its first offensive drive and penetrated to the Bruin 32 before missing a field goal attempt.

From that point on, it was all Bruins. McNeil scored on a 2-yard plunge with 7:39 left in the quarter and came back with a 10-yard run around the left side 56 seconds later after UCLA safety Tom Sullivan recovered Beaver Quarterback Ed Singler's fumble on the OSU 21.

At the beginning of the second quarter, UCLA put together a 12-play, 58-yard drive that ended with McNeil, who carried the ball 18 times, diving off right tackle for the last yard.

Heels Place 3 On All Tourney Club

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Scott Hastings, a 6-foot-10 junior center from the University of Arkansas, was named the most valuable player by tournament officials at the third annual Great Alaska Shootout which concluded Sunday.

Hastings averaged 21 points and 8 rebounds a game while shooting .800 from the field and .882 from the free throw line. He was one of three Razorbacks, along with U.S. Reed and Darrell Walker, to be accorded honors after the three-day tournament.

Shootout champion North Carolina, which whipped Arkansas for the title, was represented on the all-tournament team by Al Wood.

James Worthy and Sam Perkins.

Other selections were Mike Ferrara of Colgate, Eric "Sleepy" Floyd and Eric Smith of Georgetown, Jon Sundvold of Missouri and Leonard Mitchell of Louisiana State.

Ferrara, a 6-4 senior guard, set single-game and three-game scoring records for the tournament with 37 points in Sunday night's final game. That gave him 83 for the tournament, six more than Mike Olliver of Lamar scored in 1978. Olliver also held the single-game mark of 35.

Little Adverse Reaction Seen

By The Associated Press
There have been reports that North Carolina's public image has suffered because of incidents such as the Greensboro Nazi-Klan trial, but state spokesmen say they have not encountered any adverse reaction.

State Secretary of Commerce Lauch Faircloth, who was with Gov. Jim Hunt in California when the Greensboro trial ended, said none of the industrial executives they talked to brought up the trial.

"Certainly," Faircloth said, "the state has had more than its share of Wilmington 10s, Joan Littles, Charlotte 3s or the Greensboro problems... (But) my opinion would be that it would have very little effect, particularly as far as industrial development or quality of life is concerned."

Acquittal of six Klansmen and Nazis on murder charges in the shooting deaths of five communists in Greensboro brought outcries of protest from some blacks and civil rights activists.

Pollster Walter DeVries of Wrightsville Beach, who had said North Carolina's progressive image was not as deep as it appeared on the surface, said the Greensboro trial has done nothing to improve the national view of the state.

DeVries said the state has "a nasty image out there."

"The closer you get to North Carolina, the less progressive it seems," DeVries said. "I would guess that what this last Greensboro incident has done is reinforce that perception."

But DeVries acknowledged that few tangible problems are likely to result from the image. He agreed with Faircloth that most companies, which might plan to locate in a state, are unlikely to worry about the socio-racial climate of the state.

Those who see the state's image as having deteriorated point to several incidents during the past six years, including some of those mentioned by Faircloth:

— The Wilmington 10 case in which a group of black activists were given lengthy prison sentences for their alleged involvement in racial violence.

— The Charlotte 3 case in which three blacks were sentenced to a total of more than 55 years in prison for allegedly burning a riding stable.

— The bitter labor dispute at J.P. Steven's Roanoke Rapids plant.

— The case of Joan Little, a black woman who fled Women's Prison, where she was serving time for burglary, saying she feared for her safety if she was forced to return.

— The widely publicized collision between state and federal officials over the desegregation of North Carolina's university system.

Rescued From Sinking Vessel

HONOLULU (AP) — A Chilean merchant ship has rescued 30 crewmen from a 750-foot Italian vessel that was sinking in heavy seas, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

The crewmen of the freighter Sandalion were taken aboard the Chilean ship Arauco on Saturday about 1,500 miles southeast of Tokyo, a spokesman for the Coast Guard said in Honolulu. The Sandalion's master reported two hatch covers had been torn off and water was flooding the hold.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — CRYPTIC MESSAGES USUALLY INTRIGUE MODERN CRYPTOGRAM ADDICTS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals K

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦72 ♠K1032 ♦J107 ♣KJ63
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—This is a close decision. We would not fault you if you elected to pass, but since the two tens give your hand body and partner might have a very good hand, we would raise to three hearts. But then, we are optimists by nature. We might be more insistent about the rectitude of our course were we vulnerable, where the rewards for bidding game are much greater.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦82 ♠AQ763 ♦AQ1073 ♣K
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner must have a fair hand. Your bid of two diamonds was not forcing, yet partner opted to raise. Actually, he could have quite a good hand but is reluctant to take stronger action for fear of getting overboard. We would raise to four diamonds to give him another chance. He might even have three-card heart support which he can now show without increasing the level.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦A10762 ♥J854 ♦A93 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Cue-bids are normally forcing to game, but not after partner has made a takeout double. In that case, partner is requested to bid his best suit—the level of the contract is still open to question. Note how well a two club cue-bid works here. Regardless of which major partner shows, you intend to raise to the three-level, inviting partner to continue on to game if he has sound values for his initial action.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South with 40 on score you hold:
♦863 ♥7 ♦Q10873 ♣Q652
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—When we have a part score, we are prepared to go to great lengths to try to complete the game. However, there is a limit to our courage, and we have reached it with this hand. Call us chicken if you like, but all too often we find that, if we respond one no trump with this rag and the opponents compete, partner will refuse to let go of the bit and the result is an expensive penalty.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AJ43 ♥J5 ♦10973 ♣Q65
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
2 ♠ 2 ♦ ?
What action do you take?
A.—The one thing you must not do is double—that conveys a specific message to partner: you have values in the enemy suit and nothing outside. Here you have a very good hand, and you should be thinking in terms of slam. The way to show your interest to partner is to start off with a cue-bid of three spades, followed by a club raise at your next turn.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ76 ♥QJ ♦AJ543 ♣83
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—You have a hand that is easily good enough for two forward-going bids, so there is no need to distort the auction. Bid your longer suit first. Assuming that partner rebids two hearts over your two diamond response, you can then show your spades.

The Nielsen Diary Helps Fill Week's Activities

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It arrived in the mail last week:

"Here is Your Personal Nielsen TV Viewing Diary. Your household is one of many thousands across the United States invited to be a part of Nielsen TV ratings." The TV slave's dream.

"We believe you will enjoy this survey week, knowing that your Viewing Diary will be a definite help to the TV industry. This may be one of your few chances to make your viewing preferences known."

Inside the packet was a cardboard container with two quarters attached.

"Please accept the enclosed money as a token of our appreciation. However, the real reward for keeping and returning your Diary is getting more of the programs you like to watch by letting the TV industry know the programs you do watch."

Oh, yes.

We received two diaries, one to be kept by each TV set. We were asked to provide information about persons likely to be viewing our two sets — age, race, languages spoken and such, and whether the head of the house was male or female. We got stuck on that, so we skipped it.

tougher because we were home in the morning. We watched the Ohio-State Michigan game, and had to record it in both diaries since we had it on both sets (so I wouldn't miss anything while eating breakfast). We went to a football game during the day, and then to a party, so the TV was off for the rest of the day.

Sunday, we went to the mountains to cut firewood, so the sets were off again. I was beginning to despair of my rare chance to let the TV industry know of my viewing preferences.

Sunday night changed things — a full five hours of tube watching. It began at 6, with a rerun of "M-A-S-H," followed by the remainder of a Walter Matthau movie. Then, "Archie Bunker's Place." At 8:30, my wife watched "One Day at a Time," while I fed the dogs and watched "Conspiracy of the Yagyu Family," a Japanese soap opera.

day of our Nielsenship. It is also the worst TV night of the week, a night invariably introduced by my wife as, "A crummy TV night, tonight." We read until 11, then watched a "M-A-S-H" rerun.

I felt I'd let the TV industry down and had squandered my chance. I realized that in our week as a Nielsen household, we watched 19½ hours of TV, way below our average. Of those 19½ hours, 16½ hours were spent watching "M-A-S-H," football and pay TV.

Come to think of it, I did help the TV industry.

Being A Clown Not All Fun And Games

NINETY SIX, S.C. (AP) — Being a clown isn't all fun and games. Just ask Sam Drummond.

Drummond, 28, recently was accepted into the clown troupe of the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus after attending circus clown college in Venice, Fla., for nine weeks.

"I practiced all my life to be a clown, starting off as a class clown," Drummond said. "I remember telling my first joke in the third grade, something like being asked where my answer to a question came from and saying is came off the chalk. And if I remember correctly, I got a whipping for it too."

Drummond said he has always liked playing a clown, and putting on clown make-up.

"I had read about the clown college in a circus program and finally decided to apply. I sent some photos in my application. About two years ago I visited the circus office and showed them some videotapes of my being a clown, so I guess they remembered those," Drummond said.

He was accepted along with 58 others out of 4,500 who applied for the nine-

Generally A Losing Year At Box Office

NEW YORK (AP) — Some popular Broadway plays may be sold out for months, but it was a losing year overall at the box office with production losses up more than 500 percent, according to financial reports released on Saturday.

Documents filed with the state attorney general's office for the year ending May 31, 1980, show that Broadway productions lost $11.8 million. That compares to an industry-wide loss of $2.1 million during the same period in 1979.

However, several of the 136 productions on Broadway during the year reported a boom year.

Profitmakers included "Annie," $4.6 million; "Ain't Misbehavin'," $1.5 million; "Deathtrap," $621,678; "They're Playing Our Song," $776,359; "Dancin'," $367,777, and "The Elephant Man," $256,440.

But big losses by other productions dragged down the industry.

According to the report, the big losers were "Coming Uptown," $1.4 million; "Daddy Goodness," $1.2 million; "Harold & Maude," $836,655; "The Most Happy Fella," $629,358, and "The

'Smart Robots' To Work On Assembly Line Sought

By LILLIAN SWANSON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A robot that can tell the difference between a 2-inch screw and a 3-inch bolt and decide what to do with them makes a better worker than a robot that balks when anything but the bolt comes down the assembly line.

Development of such a "smart robot" is the aim of 30 scientists and engineers at Carnegie-Mellon University's new Robotics Institute, who hope their research will create the footsoldiers of the robotics revolution now sweeping industry.

"In a nutshell, we are trying to put artificial intelligence in robots," said Dr. Angel Jordan, dean of CMU's Carnegie Institute of Technology.

"Current robots are nothing more than mechanisms that are programmed to do certain tasks in repetition. We want to add an element of artificial intelligence so they can make decisions or cope with changes," Jordan said in a recent interview.

A major project already under way is the development of robot systems for a "factory of the future" that have both human and robot workers.

But your future neighbor in this future factory won't look like the stumpy R2-D2 of "Star Wars." Industrial robots in CMU's labs instead are mechanical arms of varying degrees of flexibility, linked to computer

"brains." Jordan said the new robots will have a sense of touch and what amounts to three-dimensional vision.

The Robotics Institute officially will open Dec. 9 with a seminar and a half-dozen robot demonstrations, said the institute director, Dr. Raj Reddy.

CMU President Richard Cyert said one big goal of the new institute is to develop robot systems equal to or better than those of the Japanese, who are the current world leaders.

The Japanese claim a total 30,000 robots in their factories. At the Zama factory of Nissan Motor Co., one of the most automated in the world, 96.4 percent of the body parts of Datsun cars are welded by robots performing in military-like precision.

Introduction of robots into U.S. factories has been slow, despite initial claims of increased productivity, reduced errors and lower labor costs. About 4,500 robots are in use in the nation today, according to an official at Unimation Inc., a robot manufacturer.

The need to boost productivity in American factories is a big factor behind the push toward smarter robots.

"As a country we must increase productivity," said Cyert. "The robots look like a major factor in developing such increases."

Cyert said he believes the economy of the future will create new jobs faster than the labor force can grow. Robots can take up the slack, he said. Besides stepping into mill jobs, robots could be developed for hazardous jobs such as coal mining and nuclear work.

Tony Massaro, director of the robotics technology division of the Westinghouse Electric Corp., said robots already are moving into some of their least desirable factory jobs, such as spray painting and material handling.

Westinghouse has 30 robots working in its plants and plans to expand the force to 200 by the end of next year, he said.

Westinghouse, besides taking part in several CMU-Robotics Institute projects, including the automated production of turbine blades, has given the institute $1 million this year and has promised $4 million over the next four years.

Another high priority at the institute is to speed the transfer of technology from lab to labor, Reddy said. He said the normal transfer time from the research and development stage to actual use in industry is 10 years, but institute officials hope to cut that to four years or less.

Massaro said Westinghouse has not encountered any problems from workers who have been replaced by robots.

"But that's not by chance," he said. "We have a systematic way of introducing them. We tell everybody up front what is happening and get them involved."

He said some of those displaced were moved into robot maintenance: "We've not laid anybody off, but we've put them in better jobs."

CMU is not ignoring the impact of job displacement either.

"We have a responsibility to the nation to anticipate what types of impact robots might make," Jordan said. "We are analyzing the impacts. We don't have the final answers, but we are working on it."

Business Notes

HEADQUARTERS VISIT

Beatress H. Heath of Greenville, a beauty consultant with Mary Kay Cosmetics Inc., has returned from a "Director-in-Qualification" week at the firm's corporate headquarters in Dallas.

The headquarters visit, according to the firm, is the first step in a three-month qualification period to becoming a Mary Kay sales director. There are over 1,600 sales directors in a sales force of 70,000 in the company, which reported 1979 net sales of $91.4 million.

The beauty consultant, who joined Mary Kay in 1977, is married to John R. Heath and has two children.

JOINED AGENCY

Randy E. Davis has joined the local agency of The Life Insurance Co. of Virginia as a representative, according to Harold H. Pittman, CLU, agency manager.

Life of Virginia has over 150 offices in the United States with more than 2,300 sales and service representatives, the company reported.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

The board of directors of Peoples Bank & Trust Co. declared a dividend of 32 cents per share on the bank's common stock for the fourth quarter of 1980.

Peoples Bank said the dividend is payable Dec. 31 to shareholders of record on Dec. 17. The ex-dividend was set for Dec. 11.

The bank, headquartered in Rocky Mount, has 48 offices in 27 cities.

STANADYNE

Stanadyne Inc. of Hartford, Conn., announced that it will construct a new plant in New Bern for the manufacture of its line of diesel fuel injection components.

The company said that construction of the 60,000 square foot building is scheduled to begin in early 1981 and will be operational by midsummer of next year.

The New Bern plant will become headquarters for the North Carolina Division of Stanadyne Diesel Systems Group.

HALFWAY MARK

Winn-Dixie Supermarkets announced that it has passed the halfway point in a program to convert 500 of the chain's 1,207 outlets to Universal Product Code (UPC) scanning by 1982.

The company said that as of Nov. 24, more than 250 of its stores in 13 Southeastern states had been equipped with electronic check-out scanning systems.

Winn-Dixie installed its first scanners in March of 1978.

ELECTED DIRECTOR

Leon A. Dunn Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of Guardian Corp. and subsidiaries of Rocky Mount, has been elected to serve a three-year term as director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, the bank reported.

Dunn was elected by member banks of the Fifth Federal Reserve District, which serves North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

Born in Greenville, Dunn was reared in Ayden and graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1960 with a B.S. degree in industrial relations. He is married to the former Pattie G. McCay of Ayden and they have two daughters.

Reagan Health Said Excellent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's personal physician says the 69-year-old president-elect is in excellent health and "quite able to handle stress."

In an interview published Sunday in U.S. News & World Report, Dr. John Reynolds said Reagan had no medical problems during the recent campaign.

Reynolds, a Los Angeles internist, said the most recent complete physical examination he performed on Reagan took place last year in Santa Monica, Calif.

The physician noted that Reagan has a moderate hearing loss, which might make it difficult for him to hear questions at a press conference if there were a lot of background noise.

Other long-term medical conditions include hay fever and a painful thumb on the right hand due to degeneration of the cartilage, according to Reynolds. The physician termed the thumb problem a "normal symptom of aging."

Reagan on Jan. 20 will become the oldest man ever inaugurated president.

CAROLINA TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

NOTICE OF HEARING DOCKET NO P-7, SUB 652

BEFORE THE NORTH CAROLINA UTILITIES COMMISSION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company, Tarboro, North Carolina, has made application to the North Carolina Utilities Commission for authority to adjust its rates and charges for telephone service to its North Carolina subscribers. Carolina proposes in its application to increase its gross annual revenues approximately $25.5 million. The proposed changes in rates, charges and regulations would affect virtually all local services provided by the Applicant.

BASIC LOCAL SERVICE

The present and proposed rates for basic local service are shown below along with the amounts of the requested increases. The present rates include the provision of one standard telephone set per main station line. The proposed rates consist of separate rates for the telephone set and for the main station line. The telephone set rate would apply in addition to the proposed main station line rate when Carolina provides the telephone set. Only the main station line rate would apply if the customer chooses to furnish his own telephone set. Both the present and the proposed rates include the basic and Extended Area Service components.
