Polish Unrest Spreading To Farmers; Talk Strike

By ROLAND PRINZ
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Labor and economic unrest in Poland spread for the first time today to agriculture when private farmers accused the government of reneging on an agreement to approve their new independent union.

Organizers of a private farmers' union claimed the government initialed but refused to sign the papers legalizing their independent union. They scheduled a meeting in Warsaw Sunday to discuss their grievances.

"Strikes are a matter for tomorrow, for today there is the meeting of delegates," said one of the organizers, Wieslaw Kecik.

The farm trouble developed as the official Polish media joined the independent labor movement in denying charges from Moscow that "counter-revolutionaries" were causing new unrest among industrial workers.

The Soviet media did not repeat the charges today, but the official news agency Tass accused Washington of making "provocative" statements about Poland.

Independent farmers occupy a strong position in Polish agriculture, in constrast to other countries in the Soviet bloc where collectivized, state farms are the norm.

Private farmers in Poland work about 52 percent of the country's tillable land and account for 78 percent of all agricultural production. The small-farm system, low level of agricultural mechanization, lack of adequate transport and uneven government support for agriculture are considered by Western experts to be key factors in the country's acute economic crisis.

The Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu, Warsaw radio and television and the Polish news agency PAP said a Soviet report of disorders at the Iskra bearing and sparkplug factory in Kielce were unfounded.

Trybuna Ludu said the factory's deputy technical director and party first secretary told it "calm, honest work was going on, and that this was due in no small measure to Soldiarity," Poland's biggest independent union.

Warsaw radio and television and PAP said despite an hour's shutdown because of a power failure, Monday's first-shift production at Iskra was 130,000 bearings and 20,000 sparkplugs, which "was even better than on previous days. This is yet more proof that things are going better and better at Iskra."

A spokesman for Solidarity said, "We were told by workers in Kielce that nothing has happened in the past two months," meaning since the strikes that followed the creation of the first unions free of Communist Party control in the Soviet bloc.

But the Soviet news agency Tass charged that "counter-revolutionary groups operating under the cover of local Solidarity sections" caused disorders at the Iskra plant and disarmed the factory's guard.

It said such groups were leading Poland toward "further destabilization, toward the aggravation of the political struggle" and to "open confrontation" with the Communist Party.

East Germany's ruling Politburo met today to discuss Poland and expressed conviction the Poles could solve their problems "in the interest of socialism and peace." The official ADN news agency said the Politburo session was called to review results of last week's Soviet bloc summit in Moscow.

Moscow television also carried a report it said was filmed at a textile plant in Lodz. A worker complained about labor unrest and said the situation was "getting worse; there are elements who would like to aggravate the situation in the country and who are trying to worm themselves into the working environment. They do a lot of harm. I believe we must fight against them to prevent them from having an opportunity to move into undermining activities."

Moscow television has rarely showed footage of unrest in Poland. The broadcast added to speculation that the Soviets were planning to intervene in Poland and were trying to demonstrate widespread unrest that could be used in an attempt to justify intervention. A similar tactic was used in 1968 when the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact invaded Czechoslovakia to crush liberal reforms.

Redevelopers Discuss 2 Completion Agreements

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Redevelopment Commissioners last night discussed a draft of a project completion agreement with the city regarding the close-out of the Central Business District and Southside programs.

Commissioners, who expressed general concurrence in the contents of the draft, agreed that some input should be received from the city before details of the important agreement are settled.

Joe Laney, executive director, pointed out that it had been agreed earlier by the city and the Department of Housing and Urban Development that the two urban renewal programs would be closed out, effective early in 1981. HUD has since issued new guidelines for applying for Small Cities funding and stipulated that if any categorical programs are still in existence in applying cities, those programs should be closed out.

Laney said that, as discussed previously, by changing the status of the Jones-Lee house on Evans Street from the demolition schedule to rehabilitation, HUD's requirement that the CBD project be substantially complete would be satisfied.

However, while Southside is complete for all practical purposes, some minor acquisition, relocation and project improvement work remains and therefore does not satisfy HUD's definition of "substantially complete," the director noted. That work would remain for the staff under the completion agreement.

According to Laney, it is expected that the early close-out of the local projects will result in a turnover by the commission to the city of cash funds well in excess of $1 million to be used in local CD project work. In addition, there will also be approximately one-half million dollars in land proceeds which will be realized by the city's Community Development program as land in the project areas is sold.

Since Greenville is not an entitlement city under the CD funding format and is not assured of continued annual funding, the commission is asking that funding for approximately a year of operations be channeled back to the agency from the turnover money.

The commission, it was

Suspected Lennon Killer Apparently 'Stalked' Victim

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A 25-year-old Hawaii man who apparently stalked John Lennon for three days was held today on a charge of gunning down the former Beatle, as the music world mourned the death of the legendary songwriter and singer.

The suspect, Mark David Chapman, was taken under heavy guard to the Tombs prison in downtown Manhattan early today to await arraignment.

A police source, who asked not to be identified, said Chapman gave different stories to detectives about the slaying. But he said Chapman was "emphatic" that he knew he was shooting the 40-year-old Lennon, who helped make the British rock group into superstars and pop-culture legends in the 1960s.

More than 1,000 people gathered this morning outside the Dakota, a luxury apartment building on Manhattan's Upper West Side where Lennon lived with his wife, Yoko Ono, and their 5-year-old son, Sean, and where he was shot Monday night after stepping from a limousine.

Crucial Senate Test Vote Is Awaited Today

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of fair-housing legislation are looking to Southern Democrats, a group largely opposed to past civil rights bills, for the votes they need to win a showdown.

"It's close and there are perhaps a half-dozen senators who haven't made up their minds yet," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the floor manager of the bill, said Monday night during a break in private negotiations.

With two crucial test votes set for today, Kennedy and other sponsors hoped they could satisfy enough wavering Southern senators to get the support they need to break a filibuster led by conservative Republicans.

But less than an hour before the first of two test votes was scheduled, backers of the bill sought a delay in the showdown. It was not immediately clear whether the delay would be granted.

Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia denied that the request indicated that liberals supporting the bill had failed to line up the 60 votes they need.

But Republican Leader Howard Baker said, "I would say they'd have a difficult time" getting the required support.

Under the Senate's rules, supporters of the bill need to prevail on two motions to keep the measure alive. The first one requires a majority, but the other needs 60 for approval.

"It's not broken down," Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., one of the uncommitted senators, said after the private talks wound up for the evening Monday.

"I'm still hopeful. A lot of us really want a bill," Boren said. The measure is designed to enforce a 1968 civil rights law that bans discrimination in housing.

In addition to Boren, senators expected to cast the swing votes were Democratic Sens. J. Bennett Johnston and Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Sam Nunn of Georgia, Ernest Hollings of South Carolina and Lawton Chiles of Florida.

All of them supported the liberals in their successful attempt to break an earlier filibuster on the bill last week.

Suggests Headlights On As A Silent Memorial

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Beatles-John Lennon-Yoko Ono fans in Eastern North Carolina and possibly all over America who drive today may burn their headlights in silent memorial tribute to John Lennon, the Beatle murdered last night.

If so, it will be at the suggestion of Washington, N. C. disc jockey, Allan Handelman, who shared the idea early today during a telephone conversation with the ABC News Network reporter Nick Alexander in New York, the city of Lennon's untimely death.

"To me the Beatles were John Lennon and the Beatles," longtime fan Charles Lawrence of Nostalgia Newsstand here said. "Without any of the other three, the group might have continued as a force in music, but without John, they'd have been nothing. He was the intelligence, the wit of the group."

John Van Dyke at WRQR radio in Farmville said he'd been getting Beatles and John Lennon requests all morning and expected to do a special tribute program to

REQUEST INTERLIBRARY LOAN

I need copies of whatever articles your newspaper published during the time of the arrest and trial of a friend of mine in 1977. Any help you can give me would be appreciated. I live in New Bern. B. R.

Virtually every issue of "The Daily Reflector" ever published is on microfilm at both Sheppard Library here and Joyner Library at East Carolina University.

Sheppard does not have a microfilm copier, however, so it would not be helpful to use its services unless you can come to Greenville.

A better suggestion was made by Meredith Foltz of Sheppard. She said you can request that your public library in New Bern use the state interlibrary loan system to request that the microfilm copies you would like to have be searched for and copied at Joyner Library, ECU, and forwarded to your library. The bill, which should be nominal, will be sent with the copies from Joyner to your library and presented to you as you pick up the copies.

NEEDS FURNITURE

Marvin Stocks, formerly of Falkland, has had several strokes and is paralyzed on the left side. He is moving into an apartment specially equipped for a handicapped person and is in need of furniture and other household goods. The Salvation Army has asked Hotline to make an appeal on his behalf. Gifts may be taken to the apartment, Wilson Acres M-5, or to the Salvation Army headquarters, 237 Dickinson Avenue.

Survived Wreck Ordeal

DRIVER PINNED UNDER CAR — Rescue workers from Winterville and Greenville Rescue squads, work under a car to free the driver after a collision near Winterville Monday night. According to Trooper A. G. Wright, a car driven by Phyllis Lavonne Gray, was headed south on N.C. 11, and made a left turn into the path of a northbound car driven by Tommy Lee Valentine, of Winterville. The Valentine auto, after impact, overturned throwing Valentine and two passengers out of the car and landed in an upright position on top of Valentine. Rescue workers said Valentine's hand was caught in the area of the motor causing serious injury to his hand and arm. Valentine was semi-conscious during the 20 minute rescue. The passengers were identified by the investigator as Harrison Lee Thompson, of Winterville, and Donnie Edward Warren, of Greenville. Wright said Warren was seriously injured with leg and arm injuires. Ms. Gray, according to the trooper, was also injured in the accident. Wright said Ms. Gray was charged with failing to yield the right of way. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Navy Deployment Team Designed To Aid Families

Associated Press Writer

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — It used to be said that if the Navy wanted you to have a family, it would have issued one in your seabag.

Navy brass seemed indifferent to the wrench — physical and aching — for its men and their families as their ships left the piers on deployment. Indifferent to the months of wondering, coping, desires tucked away. To reunions jarred by strangeness ... and strangers.

But times, and the Navy, have changed, as evidenced by the second visit of a chaplain-social worker-psychiatrist team to ships returning from the Indian Ocean this month.

The team's assignment is to help make reunions joyous instead of jolting — to, in the words of all three team members, "make a good thing better."

It started as a one-shot deal last May aboard the aircraft carrier Nimitz and her two cruiser escorts as they made their way home to Norfolk. With this month's visit to the Eisenhower battle group before its scheduled arrival here Dec. 22, it will be twice done.

And although the program is in no way institutionalized, the response of the Atlantic Fleet command is: "We are going to try to do this on a continuing basis."

More than 2,000 men on the Nimitz alone showed up for the team's seminars, which tried to give them a "heads up" on what to expect from wives, children, family, the economy, after nine months' absence — trying to prevent problems rather than patch up crises later.

The team hopes to repeat on the Eisenhower what happened on the Nimitz, where the response — from the ship's command, the team, the crews — was overwhelmingly positive.

The consensus was "Why hasn't this been done before?"

This time, world tensions had kept the Nimitz on weary cruise, and the ship command's asked for information to update the crew on the nine months missing from their lives.

It was the chance for which the team, sponsored by the Navy's Family Services Center, was ready.

But the program also rode in on new tides within the Navy — a Navy caught up in social changes and economic hardships, watching family needs twine tentacles around the sailors and suck them out of the service.

"We're so concentrated on the world war, we're getting beat. We're not getting beat in the Indian Ocean. We're getting beat in (Navy family) housing," said Capt. David S. Hunsicker, the team's chaplain and head of the Navy's Family Services Center here, itself an outgrowth of the Navy's new concerns.

"The Navy has undergone a radical change. It has endorsed the concept that it retains families, not sailors," said Dr. Lenard Lexier, civilian psychiatrist with the team.

"The family," said the Nimitz's executive officer, Capt. Richard C. Macke, "is a command concern."

The deployment team idea worked partly because the Nimitz command, led by Senior Chaplain Cmdr. H.T. Hiers, defined its perceptions of the men's needs and lent its credibility and cooperation to the team.

"This team hit the ground running," Hiers said. "A lot of the success was predetermined because the crew had trust for the command."

"It points out that the Navy men see themselves as having a dual rate," Lexier said. "They're technologically competent in their Navy rate. What they are hungry for is help in the family rate of father."

"They told us on the Nimitz they feel inadequate as fathers," Hunsicker said. "They said, 'I can understand a nuclear reactor. I can't understand my 12-year-old daughter.'"

So they learned the stages of child development, Lexier's specialty, and the theories of emotional disengagement.

They learned about leaving pictures and tapes of themselves at home to maintain an emotional link; that taking the wife off for a honeymoon can cause anger in the kids; that sulkiness in teen-agers may be an expression of love, a coating for their pain at Daddy's absence; that the pier is the place for hugs and kisses, not for solving problems.

"It took us a while to find the right tone," Parry said. "But we found we could tell them it was appropriate to be anxious without being judged accusatory."

Nimitz Command Master Chief Ken Mantle, the ship's top enlisted man, who admitted learning a few things himself, said the visit left "an afterglow...The key word is concern. We showed the guys on the ship the leadership is concerned about them. They will respond favorably when you say you care."

Now the team will try to do it all over again on the Eisenhower, which is due here Dec. 22 after more than 250 days in the Indian Ocean.

"We're going to keep doing it," Hunsicker said. "We're going to keep doing it every way we can."

India Asks No Interference

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev today that India wants no further interference in this region.

"We sincerely hope that the independence, sovereignty, territorial integrity and non-aligned status of the countries in the region will not come under strain or jeopardy through conflict and interference," Mrs. Gandhi declared at a heavily-guarded indoor civic meeting for the visiting Soviet state president and Communist Party chief.

Accompanied by declarations of Indo-Soviet friendship and praise for Brezhnev as a world statesman, Mrs. Gandhi's message about non-interference was regarded as a strong reference to the Soviet military presence in Afghanistan and the Moslem insurrection there.

It was the second such Indian message in two days for Brezhnev. Indian President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy told him at a Monday night banquet that "we in India remain opposed to any form of intervention — covert or overt — by outside forces in the internal affairs of the region."

Afghanistan, the most sensitive issue in Indo-Soviet relations, prompted Soviet and Indian authorities to shift the meeting — billed as a "mass rally of citizens" — to an indoor assembly hall where it was attended by about 1,000 invited guests. The originally-announced outdoorlocation was the historic Red Fort.

But the presence of militant Afghan exiles in the capital forced the shift indoors on Soviet advice, Indian officials said.

Some Afghan, Moslem and other Indian political groups staged two anti-Soviet demonstrations Monday, the day of Brezhnev's arrival, and his motorcade was diverted to avoid one of them.

Brezhnev for the second consecutive day never came close to mentioning the awkward issue of Afghanistan. His speech traced Soviet contributions to Indian industry, science and "defense capability" and praised Mrs. Gandhi's father, the late Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, for pushing Soviet-aided industrialization.

TODAY'S STORY

(Cyrano, hoping to win Robertina's love, has, from his balloon, parachuted an Ariane Clark gift towards the garden where strolls his adored.)

So busy was Cyrano with pulling at ropes, adjusting knots, dancing about, and admiring the cleverness of his plan—so busy that he failed to see the approach of the daredevil balloonist, Arsine de Catastrop, another suitor of Robertina's.

The canny Arsine, sizing up the situation at once, swooped his balloon from the heavens, undercutting Cyrano, and almost jetting into the Garden. He landed just in time to see Robertina pick up the gift. "From Ariane Clark!" she exclaimed. "Pure class!" She looked up. "From you, Arsine?"

"I confess it," he said, bowing. "Will you come with me in my balloon?"

"Oh, Arsine!" And she stepped daintily into his balloon. Arsine laid on the fire and off they flew.

Cyrano came on down, but he might as well not even have landed. And a bee stung him besides.

Elegant People Named

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — The shrinking world of beautiful people have honored the world's 20 most elegant men and women of 1980, from a fashion designer in cowboy boots to a countess in plastic shoes.

The French and Italian high fashion designers' associations presented gold watches to the winners of the 5th annual "The Best" awards for elegance.

Two of the 10 women chosen, Mrs. Ronald Reagan, wife of the American president-elect, and Mexican socialite Maria Reyero, could not attend.

A male winner, Moroccan King Hassan II, declined his invitation to the party that went into the early hours Saturday at a 17th century mansion once owned by court beauty Marquise Marie de Sevigne.

Other winners attending the champagne candle-lit banquet were jet-setters such as Paris nightclub proprietor Regine, and Soraya, the former Iranian empress in a black velvet dress from the Nina Ricci salon.

Asked about the American hostages held by Iran, she smiled, "Why talk politics? This is a party".

Paris fashion designer Claude Montana, young and mustached, accepted his prize in black leather fringed pants, cowboy boots and a silver buckled belt out of Montana, U.S.A.

French Countess Jacqueline de Ribes, who by winning a second time indicates elegant people are not numerous, wore clear plastic slippers with her white sleek satin Dior gown.

Another prize winner, Italian furrier Carlo Tivioli, showed up in sporty moccasins with tassels. And winner Sonia Rykiel, the Paris fashion designer, wore short black trousers, one silver-shod foot casually crossed over a knee and her red frizzy hair sticking out on all sides like an Egyptian sphinx.

American actress Margaux Hemingway, niece of author Ernest Hemingway, swept into the candlelit champagne party in a billowing, ruffled black taffeta Dior ball gown with black ostrich plumes jutting from her hair. She looked as if she wished she were back wearing jeans in her native Idaho.

Other female winners were French actresses Francoise Fabian and Manuelle Papatakes, Argentine socialite Leu Terracini and French dancer Ghislaine Thesmer.

Past winners who presented the awards included designer Pierre Cardin in his new jutting "pagoda" shoulders. Italian actress Gino Lollobrigida wearing the lowest-cut gown in history presented to a U.S. embassy diplomat the gold watch for Mrs. Reagan.

FINANCES

If your debts seem endless, there are some ways to handle the financial crisis:

First, keep on working to insure income, advises Dr. Justine Rozier, extension family resource management specialist, NCSU. Also get family cooperation on keeping house payments, food costs, utility payments and similar costs as low as possible.

Dr. Rozier further suggests you pay your bills even if you can pay only a small amount on each bill each month. In addition examine your spending. Why did you buy or charge that last purchase. Was it necessary?

Being out of debt is a good feeling. So budget your income and your spending Dr. Rozier concludes.

Dear Abby

Mother Has Equal Stock

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When I was outside getting my newspaper, I saw my son running up the street, leaving his bicycle abandoned on the sidewalk. I called out to him, "If someone steals your bike, I'm not buying you a new one!"

He shouted back, "You didn't buy me the first one — Daddy did!" At first I was angry, then I realized it was true. I had never worked outside the home, so everything we had was paid for with Daddy's paycheck.

All I had ever given our son was an enema when he was sick, a bath when he was dirty and a whipping when he was naughty. The chocolate chip cookies and taffy apples he loved so much weren't really from me because without Daddy's paycheck, I wouldn't have had the ingredients.

Perhaps one day I will become a "liberated woman" and get a job that will bring in some money. Then I'll feel like an equal partner.

ANONYMOUS MOM

DEAR MOM: Your contributions as a wife, mother and homemaker are as important as your husband's paycheck, which makes you an equal partner, so don't put yourself down. Your son needs some perspective on the true nature of the parental partnership. (And a little discipline wouldn't hurt, either.)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please urge your readers to make the small but worthwhile investment in electrical outlet plug caps.

Last night our 3-year-old inserted a car key in an outlet. Fortunately he received only a mild shock, and the only damage was a burned-out fuse and two terrified parents.

I've read several letters in your column from parents offering various warnings after it was too late for them. We were lucky. I hope you can find room in your column for this warning, too.

T.A. NACKERS, ST. FRANCIS, WIS.

DEAR MR. NACKERS: Thanks for pointing out an obvious but seldom mentioned danger to youngsters.

DEAR ABBY: What to get our elderly mother, Dad, grandparents, aunts, uncles and friends for Christmas?

We all have fancy robes, gowns, tablecloths, napkins, etc., stored away, but what we would appreciate most is to have things done for us that we aren't able to do ourselves.

For example: Furniture moved, windows and doors repaired, pictures and mirrors hung, trees and bushes planted, and so on. It would be wonderful to receive a Christmas card saying, "Make a list of things you want done and I will be over on Saturday from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. to do them. And that will be your Christmas present from me."

Over 200 Attend Doll Tea Sunday

Approximately 200 visitors viewed the doll displays at The Salvation Army Auxiliary's annual Doll Tea held Sunday afternoon at The Citadel.

Mrs. Lee H. Hannah and Mrs. Lyman Ormond Sr. judged the displays and presented a trophy for the Best Doll Display 1980 to the Eastern Star.

The dolls had costumes over their clothes and were shown conducting "A Children's Christmas Church Service." A nativity scene, a reader and choir was included.

First Christian Church chose the theme "An Old-Fashioned Christmas." They received second place for their interpretation. Oakmont Baptist had "A Cozy Christmas" display and won the third place ribbon.

Those attending were served refreshments by members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Publishers are always asking, "Where are tomorrow's authors coming from? Who will write our humor? Our mysteries? Our history? Our fiction? Our how-to books?"

The naive little fools. Don't they realize our future generation of writers is already at work in a little commune outside Cincinnati setting down words that surface in every utility room across the land? They are the authors of laundry labels. Every day some housewife picks up their labels of detergent dogmas ... their drip-dry warnings, their cool iron prose. It's fiction at its very best.

Have you read "Care of your rug" by inspector 56? It's a hard-cover label with a rather simple plot. "Spot clean with soap and water or use carpet cleaning fluids." But it's the hilarious footnote that titillates the imagination of the reader: "This rug contains 100 percent miscellaneous odd lots of undetermined animal fiber content."

I had a coat once that contained the same undetermined animal fiber and every time someone turned off the light, it ran under the kitchen sink!

And how's this label in a blouse for a real mystery plot? "Do not dry clean. Do not bleach. Do not wring dry. Do not hang in the direct sun. Do not iron. Do not hang on wire hanger." It makes one wonder what would happen if you wore it!

And check the whodunits. The ones that read, "Warning. To preserve the life of this garment, wash in ..." That's it. The rest of the message is sewn into the seam.

Some authors write laundry label novels. They don't know when to shut up, and write more about the care of a sweater than you want to know. This is especially true of the foreign labels. First, there's the listing of the characters: "100 percent acrylic, acryllique, polyacryl." This is followed by an illustration of a tub of water with a 30 degree sign on it, a little pyramid which slightly resembles an iron with an X on it, and a circle with an X through it which I assume represents either the sun or the moon.

Just below is another message: "MADE IN ITALY. Hand wash separately in lukewarm water (90 degrees Fahrenheit or 30 degrees Celsius). Do not wring or twist or dry in the sun or near the heating."

I call this fiction because a label in the identical sweater read "100 percent Acrylio, Acryllique, Polyacryl, Dry Clean Only. Do not use petroleum or chlorinated solvents or the coin-operated method of dry cleaning."

My favorite label is the label out to get your attention. It doesn't matter what it says. It's four inches square, made with thorns and needles and placed strategically at the back of your neck. You may not like it ... but it's a label you can't put down!

A picnic ham is not actually a ham, put part of the pork shoulder.

Little Hope In Reports

A group of Scandinavian construction workers reported seeing Americans prisoners in a work gang in Vietnam.

Such reports undoubtedly raise the hopes of families which still believe their loved ones are alive in Vietnam, but the reports should be viewed with doubt.

It is possible that Americans remain in Vietnam; however so far the United States has been unable to verify any reports it has received.

It is cruel to keep families clinging to the hope that their relatives are still alive in Vietnam. We wouldn't deny anyone their hopes, but unconfirmed reports are not much to cling to.

Another Fire Disaster Occurs

A second major hotel fire — this one in Harrison, N. Y. — in recent weeks has left 26 business executives dead.

It followed the fire at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas in which 84 persons died.

It tells us that municipalities should look closely at thier building and fire laws to see what can be done to prevent such disastrous fire. Perhaps sprinkler systems are needed, and better plans of evacuation.

The price is high in lost lives when hotel fires develop.

A Grip On Purse

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Money is power when it comes to running North Carolina's government. Few politicians understand that better than Liston Ramsey, soon to be speaker of the N.C. House of Representatives.

Nominated recently by the Democratic caucus of House members — action which assures his election in that agency which is dominated by Democrats — Ramsey takes the post at a time when change is drastically reshaping the way the political process works in this state.

Ramsey is right where he wants to be. He has no desire to run for governor; no aspirations to any higher office. Indeed, he insists only half in jest: he already holds the most powerful post in the state.

Two significant developments make that observation true to a considerable degree:

— That a governor of this state can now run for a second term means that office will become more political, with the first-term occupant devoting considerable attention to re-election maneuverings as opposed to program development, and in the second term will become a lameduck much sooner than in the past.

New Power

— Staff expansion and computer capability make it possible for the legislative branch to seriously challenge the closely held knowledge and expertise of the executive branch. Knowledge and the full-time staff to devise strategy and plans, and produce the paperwork to back up proposals, has been a major deciding factor weighted in favor of the governor and his people.

Combine these conditions with the natural desire in a democracy to guard against a concentration of power in any one agency or individual, and it is obvious that things will move swiftly in coming months for the General Assembly to broaden its control over state government,much as the U.S. Congress has done while nibbling away at the "Imperial Presidency".

There are important differences between the Senate and the House in the General Assembly which further enhance the notion that the Speaker of the House can become a singularly important post. In the Senate, the presiding officer is the lieutenant governor. He is not a member of the Legislature itself, and over the years there has developed the tradition that the occupant of that position is running for governor. Thus, many decisions in that post can be interpreted as politically inspired, and as self-serving in the sense that the individual must first consider the future impact should he actually become governor.

For Speaker Ramsey, neither accusation can be made. He can argue that the Legislature is his primary concern when it comes to the inevitable power struggle between legislative and executive; and he can disclaim politics since he has no desire to run for governor.

For Life?

Given the potential for developing his speakership into a truly powerful post, the obvious question of Ramsey is: Do you aspire to be Speaker-for-Life?

The answer may or may not be a joke: "I'm already 61, so that couldn't be too long anyway," the Madison County mountaineer responds. He will not get pinned down on whether he will seek more than four years in the job.

Ramsey will step down from his work on the Advisory Budget Commission since membership on that board represents endorsement of the governor's budget recommendations. Now, Ramsey sees himself more in the role of adversary.

The key test of how far the speaker will be able to go — indeed, how far he wishes to go — in gaining strong control over the spending process in state government is how he sets up the important money committees of the House of Representatives.

A unified taxing and spending body and a powerful committee to seriously dig into existing state programs, rather than merely rubberstamping the ongoing activities as has been the practice, will signal the emergence of "new power" for North Carolina.

A Better Voting Idea?

WASHINGTON — Back in 1845, for reasons that must have seemed good at the time, Congress fixed the Tuesday after the first Monday in November as the national Election Day. Now Congressman Mario Biaggi of New York has what he regards as a better idea: Let us vote on the Sunday after the first Monday in November, and let us have uniform hours of voting across the land.

The idea merits discussion. I'm not sure it merits adoption — let us creep up slowly on anything labeled "reform" — but in the lull that has followed upon last month's election it may be useful to kick around a number of complaints about our electoral process.

Why did Congress ever settle upon Tuesday in the first place? Doubtless some gnome at the Library of Congress, having nothing better to do in an idle hour, could prowl through the Congressional Record of 1845 and find out. Offhand, Tuesday would appear to have nothing more in its favor than any other day.

Mr. Biaggi makes the point that most Western European democracies vote on Sundays, and their turnouts regularly are much higher than ours. Last month we in the United States cast about 52.2 percent of the potential vote. In their most recent elections the Swedes voted 90 percent, the West Germans 89 percent and the Italians 88 percent.

The gentleman's proposal on voting hours has more immediate significance. We all know what happened last month. Television reporters in the East questioned voters as the voters emerged from the polls. By late afternoon it was apparent that a Republican landslide was underway. At 8:15 NBC awarded the White House to Mr. Reagan. It was then only 5:15 on the Pacific Coast. At 9:30 President Carter read his concession statement. Western polls had still an hour and a half of voting time remaining.

The effect of these pronouncements can now be measured. Four years ago, according to the county registrar, 10 percent of the vote in Los Angeles was cast in the final hour, between 7 and 8 p.m. Last month less than 2 percent of the vote was cast in that hour. California officials had . projected a turnout in the state as a whole of 79 to 82 percent of those registered. In the end, only 73 percent actually voted.

In the individual case of Congressman James C. Corman of the 21st District, the pronouncements may have cost him re-election. A 20-year veteran of the House, Mr. Corman lost by 776 votes out of 176,000 cast. The black and Hispanic votes that had gone heavily for him in the past simply did not turn out. The same thing may have happened in Oregon, where Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of House Ways and Means, lost by 3,500 votes in nearly 300,000 cast. There, too, election officials noted an abrupt falloff between 7 and 8 p.m.

Now, so long as the First Amendment remains in the Constitution, there is no way to prevent TV reporters from asking questions and broadcasting the answers. Canada forbids this kind of thing, but Canada has no constitutional inhibitions. News is news, and the networks' job is to report it, not to suppress it.

Mr. Biaggi's solution is firmly rooted in Article II of

May Retain Mansfield

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President-elect Reagan probably will ask Democrat Mike Mansfield to stay on as ambassador to Japan at least for the next year as dramatic reassurance for the Japanese establishment.

Mansfield, 77, the former Senate majority leader, has become the most popular U.S. ambassador ever sent to Japan since his appointment by President Carter in 1977 following retirement from the Senate. Japanese leaders have feared Reagan would replace Mansfield with a less prestigious and less sympathetic ambassador.

Mansfield has enjoyed his tour of duty in Tokyo and probably would have stayed on had Carter been re-elected. The possibility that he also might say yes to Carter's Republican conqueror stems from Reagan's visit to Japan in April 1978. Initially wary and prepared to dislike each other, Reagan and Mansfield quickly developed a congenial relationship based on mutual respect.

Reagan vs. Stockman

President-elect Reagan has made Rep. David Stockman of Michigan a possible exception to his general exclusion of incumbent congressmen from the Cabinet mainly because of Stockman's performance as stand-in for Reagan's presidential opponents in debate rehearsals.

A former aide to Rep. John Anderson, Stockman played Anderson's part in Reagan's rehearsal for their debate. Stockman did such a good job that he also took Jimmy Carter's role in Reagan's preparation for his debate with the president. .

Stockman turned out to be a lot tougher debater than either Carter or Anderson. "I think I beat both Carter and Anderson," Reagan told a friend after the election, "but I know I never beat Stockman."

Nofziger's Last Advice

Before setting off on a leisurely auto trip from Washington back home to California, longtime Reagan aide Lyn Nofziger passed on a final piece of public relations advice to the president-elect's senior staff: Spread out announcement of the Cabinet selections.

Nofziger advised against announcing the Cabinet all at once (as Richard Nixon did and has recommended that Ronald Reagan also do) or in two or three packages (as Reagan's senior aides are now inclined to do). Nofziger advised that announcing Cabinet members one at a time would not only maintain a steady flow of positive news but would guarantee each lesser Cabinet member his place in the sun for at least one day.

A footnote: Apart from finding a successor to Nofziger as a sage public relations counselor; Reagan does not yet even have a new press secretary to succeed him. James Brady, who was once John B. Connally's campaign press secretary and is now Reagan's Washington-based spokesman, is not considered close enough to the new president to be Nofziger's successor.

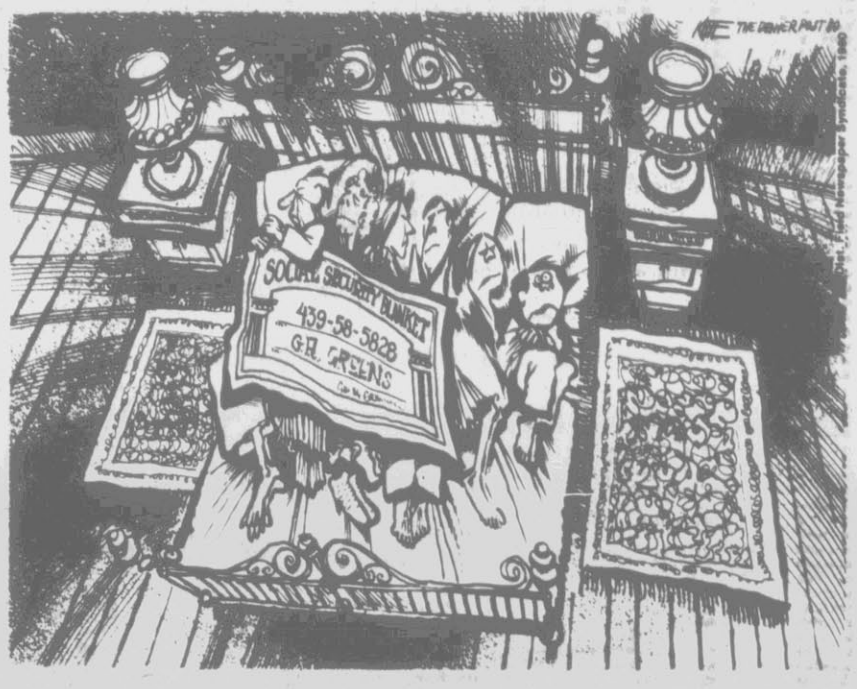

Van Cleave Out?

William Van Cleave, the stormy leader of Presidentelect Reagan's defense transition team, has been quietly removed from the tentative list of prospects to be deputy secretary of defense.

Nor is it any longer likely that Van Cleave will become deputy to Richard Allen, who is sure to be named national security assistant to the president. Allen and Van Cleave have had acute disagreements and sharp words during the transition. Accordingly, Van Cleave may end up outside the main policy-making sphere, perhaps as secretary of the Air Force.

Van Cleave's friends say this represents a determined plan to prevent Van Cleave from bringing his hard-line defense views to bear on Reagan administration policy. His critics deny this, contending that Van Cleave's abrasive personality has

To the editor:

The Postal Service attempts to justify their proposed nine-digit ZIP codes by saying: "(We) must take advantage of advancing technology." In view of their past performance with the five-digit ZIP, it's highly unlikely that the new nine-digit model will provide much "technology" benefit to us postal customers. An improved system is needed, but instead of saddling us with unwieldy nine-digit codes, let's apply some common sense logic to a better system.

First, we need to eliminate the unnecessary duplication of using two of the ZIP digits to represent a postal area and also requiring a two-letter abbreviation for the state. Let's simply use the standard state abbreviation, which we already know and remember, a part of an improved ZIP instead of digits.

Secondly, to meet the need for more local zones than the existing five-digit code can provide, consider that:

1. The average person reads and remembers combinations of letters much better than string of digits.

2. One can make many more arrangements of the 26 letters of the alphabet than with only 10 available digits (800-fold more seven-letter codes than seven-digit codes)

3. Automatic scanning machines are already developed which can "read" letters of the alphabet as easily as digits.

Let us, then replace all the ZIP digits with the good old alphabet. An alphabetical ZIP would be shorter, scanning machines cheaper and we folks could more easily remember them and make fewer errors. As an example, the existing line of address that reads "Greenville, N. C. 27834- would become simply "GRVLENC," instead of a monster like Greenville, N. C. 278346920.

If you readers agree that an alphabetic system has got to be superior to a set of one billion nine-digit numbers, please let your congressman and/or Postal Service know.

Strength For Today

NO CONFLICT EXISTS

It is remarkable how many people continue to maintain that there is a conflict between science and religion. Actually there is none, for science deals with the seen world and religion with the unseen. The only way we can arrive at a knowledge of religious truth is by exercise of faith — a sort of sixth sense. The object of our faith must be the Bible, the church, and the messages which God is sending to our groping, inquiring minds.

Science, on the other hand, deals with material things. Scientists, working within their fields, know nothing about the truths which religion reveals. As individuals, however, many scientists have their religious convictions just the same as other people do. But they are led to these convictions not by science but by faith.

There is never any conflict between science and religion if each stays within its own area. They are not contradictory in outlook and teaching but complementary. — Elisha Douglass

Heating Advice Is In Conflict

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — To switch or not to switch — that is the question.

Whether 'tis nobler to bear the slings and arrows of outrageous oil prices.

Or get a natural gas furnace.

For millions of homeowners — faced with fuel oil prices that have more than doubled since 1977 — it really is the winter of their discontent. And the experts are giving conflicting advice.

A new government study says as many as 6 million homeowners should consider switching from oil heat to natural gas to save themselves money and the country up to 725,000 barrels of oil a day.

But that study, by the Environmental Protection Agency, contradicts the findings of an October report by an energy-oriented consumer group.

The Consumer Energy Council of America concluded, "Converting heating systems from oil to natural gas is one of the least effective ways for consumers to reduce their energy bills."

The council — made up of consumer, labor and senior citizen groups — estimated that as many as 95 percent of homeowners who have changed their heating systems in the last two years may have made a mistake.

The EPA, however, concludes: "Whenever an existing oil furnace or boiler wears out, any homeowner who ... has ready access to a gas main should install gas heating equipment. The best gas heating equipment is equal to or better than the best oil heating equipment from an efficiency and cost standpoint."

How could two groups come up with such seemingly different conclusions?

Part of the reason is that no one really knows what will happen to the price of natural gas.

Heating oil now costs about twice what natural gas does in most parts of the country. All sides agree that difference will eventually disappear, but no one can say for sure when.

Under the 1978 Natural Gas Policy Act, more than half the gas produced domestically will be freed of government price controls on Jan. 1, 1985, with the rest being decontrolled over the next several years as old contracts expire.

But many of President-elect Ronald Reagan's top energy advisers support a speed-up in decontrol. If that occurs and the price difference between the two fuels shrinks more quickly, homeowners may find they won't recoup conversion costs.

The American Gas Association, however, predicts natural gas will be 20 percent to 50 percent cheaper than fuel oil for most regions over the next 10 years. In that time, the homeowner who converts can save up to $9,500 in energy costs, the association says.

But the energy council says both the association and the EPA are putting too much emphasis on the costly option of remodeling an existing heating system when cheaper conservation measures would bear greater returns.

According to the council's figures, a consumer who installs $680 worth of insulation will save $8,786 in fuel costs over 20 years but would save only $2,135 in fuel costs by replacing his oil furnace with a gas unit. It put the cost of the furnace switch-over at $1,300.

The EPA study agrees that homeowners should add insulation, storm windows and weather stripping to reduce fuel use before spending money on conversions. But the EPA was still more bullish in its estimate of the number of homeowners who could benefit from a switch to natural gas.

The agency estimated that 8 million of the 12 million homes with oil heat have furnaces that are more than 10 years old and are thus candidates for conversion.

The study said 6 million of these furnaces are located in parts of the country as cold or colder than Kansas City and Baltimore and would thus consume enough fuel to make conversion attractive.

But it appears many homeowners aren't waiting for the experts to reach a conclusion on the switch-over debate. Gas industry statistics put the number of conversions in the last two years at 748,000 and the Iran-Iraq war threatens to drive heating oil prices even higher this winter.

CP&L Rate Increase Is Scheduled For Friday

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Power & Light Co. has won approval to raise its North Carolina residential rates on Friday by 10.78 percent, a jump that will boost a "typical" consumer's monthly bill by $3.54.

With that increase, a consumer who uses 1,000 kilowatt-hours per month will be paying $11.66 a month more than he did last year. The new rate will be $53.20 a month for each 1,000 kilowatt-hours.

Despite the increase, CP&L President Sherwood H. Smith Jr. said the rate hike was insufficient and only "hastens the time and increaes the amount we will have to seek the next time."

CP&L was granted a 7.13 percent increae in March. In October the state Utilities Commission approved a charge of $4.62 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours for the December-July period because of unusually high fuel costs last summer.

The utility had sought an increase of 13.9 percent in the latest filing. Such an increase would have boosted CP&L's revenue by $91.3 million a year. The actual increase granted will boost revenue by $71.8 million.

The Utilities Commission said the rate increase was granted to cover construction costs, including a new unit at CP&L's coal-fired Roxboro plant, and inflation. The commission said the increase was the minimum that could be granted that would allow CP&L to maintain good service.

"Since the request we made was for the minimum we feel is needed if we are to fulfill our obligation to the public, the granting of less rate relief only hastens the time and increases the amount we will have to see the next time we make a request for a rate adjustment," Smith said in a written statement released after the increase was approved.

The commission also ordered CP&L to submit a new residential conservation rate that gives a 5 percent discount for all killowatt-hours used in homes that meet certain insulation guidelines. That discount would not apply to basic service charge, which is $6 for all customers.

CP&L also was told to submit a "time of day" rate within 45 days that would be available for residentialcustomers. Such a schedule would call for higher rates for power used during hours of peak demand and lower rates for power used during periods of low demand.

Differ Over Court Power

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two state Supreme Court justices have taken opposing views on the authority of a District Court judge who ordered Wake County to spend $45,000 a year for treatment of an emotionally disturbed teen-ager at a Texas school.

Wake County has challenged the ruling by District Judge George F. Bason, contending he does not have the legal power to make such an order. Bason ordered the boy enrolled in a private school in Austin, Texas, last September after concluded North Carolina does not have adequate facilities to treat him.

During arguments by opposing attorneys Monday, two justices expressed divergent views on the question.

"I can't for the life of me find out what he (Bason) did wrong," said Justice J. Phil Carlton during an argument by a Wake County attorney.

But Justice J. Frank Huskins said he sided with the county.

"It seem sutterly ridiculous to me to say that a district judge can send a boy to Texas or Honolulu or wherever and get Wake County to pay for it. I can't believe the Legislature ever intended to put this on the books," Huskins said.

Expect Increase In Hiring Graduates

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Employers are projecting a 10 percent increase in the number of new graduates they will hire in 1981, according to a College Placement Council report released today.

More than half of the 565 employers surveyed said they expect economic conditions to improve in the first half of 1981 compared to the last half of 1980. Another 33 percent foresaw no change and 11 percent predicted conditions will worsen.

At the bachelor's level, hiring of engineering graduates is expected to increase 16 percent. At the master's and doctoral levels, increases of 25 and 53 percent, respectively, are projected.

The science, math and other technical categories showed a 5 percent gain in projected job opportunities at the bachelor's level, 21 percent at the master's level and 29 percent at the doctoral level.

In business-related disciplines, a 7 percent gain at the bachelor's level and a 15 percent increase at the master's level are indicated, the report said.

Significant increases were predicted in several large-volume employer categories. Petroleum and allied products reported hiring needs are up 34 percent, while the category of utilities-public, which includes transportation, anticipated hiring 24 percent more graduates.

Federal agencies anticipate a 15 percent increase at the bachelor's level and an 11 percent increase in hiring at the master's level, the report said.

The College Placement Council assesses the employment outlook for college graduates each December and June.

A New Navy Candidate

Ronald Reagan's national security advisers in Washington were stunned when the president-elect's "kitchen cabinet" of elderly millionaires in California recommended one of their own to be secretary of the Navy: a 62-year-old Cadillac dealer from Thousand Oaks, Calif., named Robert Nesen.

Although Nesen was assistant secretary of the Navy in charge of financial management for three years during the Nixon-Ford administration, his name is unknown in defense circles. His claim to the job stems not from qualifications in national security but from his status as a faithful supporter of Reagan's political ventures dating back to 1966.

Until the kitchen cabinet!s recommendation, the naval post seemed a choice between former Sen. James Buckley, who personally is highly regarded by Reagan, and Dr. John Lehman, a defense consultant who is a favorite of key naval officers. Whether the president-elect will set aside both of them and accept his kitchen cabinet's choice is being watched closely at the Pentagon.

the Constitution, which empowers Congress to fix both the day and the time for choosing presidential electors. He would open polls everywhere between the hours of 12 noon . and 9 p.m., Eastern Standard Time. This would mean 11 to 8 o'clock in the central states, 10 to 7 in the mountain states, 9 to 6 on the Pacific Coast, and 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Hawaii. Everyone would have nine hours in which to vote, and they would be the same nine hours from Boston to Honolulu. Put that in your pipe, John Chancellor, and smoke it if you please.

Many other "reforms" also are under discussion, but most of them, such as a single nationwide primary for presidential nominees, would provide cures worse than the disease. The changes proposed by Mr. Biaggi as to day and hours are not radical changes, and they might well be changes for the better. Unless persuasive objections are offered, I'd be inclined to give his plan a fair try.

Winterville's Block Grant Budget Is Amended By Bd.

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE — Tony Carter of Talebert Cox, Inc. presented a Community Development Block Grant budget amendment to the Winterville town board during a public hearing at the board's regular meeting last night.

Carter told the board the amendment revised the older budget by $4,137, making a total for block grant resources $315,137.

The board approved the budget.

In additional business Carter told the board there had been contract revisions on the Lyndale Daniels, Hilda Carmon, and London Corbett properties. Approximately $4,215 was needed to complete the renovations on the three homes.

Carter said the contractor that began the work on the homes was relieved of his duties, not performing his work properly, and the additional funds were needed to complete the work by another person.

In additional business, Alderman Bobby Crawford reported on the James King property on Person Street concerning property rights.

Discussion was heard on the matter and no action was taken by the board.

Board member Leland Tucker reported on the situation of the train speed limits on the Seaboard Coast Line track that runs through Winterville.

Tucker said no agreement had been located between the town and the railroad concerning the 35 MPH speed limit. Tucker made the motion the board hold a public hearing on the change of the train's speed limits.

The motion carried, and Mayor Walter Dail set the public hearing at the next regular town board meeting at 7 p.m., January 12.

In further old business, Alderman E. C. Hines said work on the clean-up of the North Winterville Cemetery would begin this Saturday.

A preliminary agreement was presented to the board by town clerk Elwood Nobles between the Rural Fire Association and the Town of Winterville for expense sharing.

Nobles read the agreement, stating the percentages that would be the responsibility of the Rural Association.

The agreement was turned over to the town attorney for a legal document to be drawn up for the town.

Carl Dean was appointed as the Zoning Enforcement officer replacing Roger Stancil. The board gave Dean permission to go ahead with the proceedings to tear down delapidated houses.

A request was made by David Hooks of the Winterville Jaycees for use of city water for a car wash to raise money for needy families for Christmas. The request was granted.

Jim Mellon, representing the freshmen class at D. H. Conley High School requested permisson of the board to hold a door-to-door toothbrush sale in the near future. Permission was granted for the sale.

A resolution was approved by the board supporting the Bloodmobile drive to be held in Greenville December 26.

mentioned last night, anticipates that financial support will be continued at least until approximately December of 1981.

Board members went on record last night stating the need for an orderly transition for commission employees to community development, with monetary aspects of the transition worked out. Staff funding at approximately the current level is being sought in order to complete the Southside acquisition and relocation work, as well as final work in CBD.

Laney said that the commission is "not trying to perpetuate the staff forever," but some work remains to be done. The project completion agreemnt has been discussed in general terms already with the city, it was mentioned.

He added that if HUD has the necessary close-out documents for the local projects in hand by Jan. 12, it is anticipated that HUD will consider the projects closed out.

In other business, commissioners authorized Laney to proceed with trying to find a prospect who would be interested in purchasing the Jones-Lee property for the purpose of bringing the structure up to standards. Laney will advertise the property for bids, stating the rehabilitation provision.

HUD, Laney noted, recommended that the commission consider the fact that if a developer is not found who is willing to undertake the rehabilitation work on the structure, it may be necessary to look at demolition procedures.

The executive director said the rehabilitation work would have to bring the house up to standards set by the National Register. No word has been received from the National Advisory Council on the acceptance of the house in the federal register, Laney said.

In advertising the property, the minimum bid would involve the price of the land, since no value has been placed on the structure.

Commissioners gave their approval for improvements to proceed on two pedestrian walkways in the downtown area. The alleyway beside the structure housing the Internal Revenue Service office on Evans Street will be resurfaced and planters added, while the alley between Cotanche Street and Reade Circle in the block between Fourth and Fifth Streets will be paved.

Faye Brewington, Southside project manager and staff real estate officer, reported that three acquisitions were handled since the November meeting, involving a severance in the West Greenville Thoroughfare area, as well as a parcel in West Meadowbrook and a 30-foot radius for 14th Street improvements at the corner of Evans and 14th Streetin South Evans.

One demolition took place in Southside and one relocation was handled in the West Meadowbrook section, she said. Options were also obtained on three parcels in West Meadowbrook during the month, according to Mrs. Brewington.

Commissioners voted to pay the travel expenses incurred by Mrs. Brewington at a real estate and relocation workshop conducted recently in Burlington by the Community Development Association of North Carolina.

Storage Shed Is Damaged

Greenville Fire-Rescue Department officers reported heavy damage resulted to a storage shed at 1206 Clark St. from a 2:28 p.m. fire yesterday.

Firemen reported the shed and grass at the Clerk Street location were involved in the fire which was started by children playing with matches.

Officers noted that fire units returned to the scene about 4:05 p.m. when the fire re-kindled.

John Lennon.....

David Geffen, president of Geffen Records for which Lennon recorded, said Miss Ono, upstairs in one of the couple's apartments, was "very upset" by the crowd after daybreak.

"They're a bunch of crazy people out there ... they're drunk and rowdy. It's like a party," Geffen said.

A smaller, more subdued crowd had stood vigil outside the building on 72nd Stret across from Central Park late Monday night.

Police said Chapman told them he had a license for the gun used in the shooting but could only produce a bill of sale for the weapon, a Charter Arms .38 caliber revolver, purchased in Hawaii.

Lennon had autographed a record album for Chapman about 5 p.m. when he was accosted by the young man as he left his apartment complex to go to a recording studio.

The police source said that at one point Chapman indicated he was annoyed that Lennon had only scribbled his autograph on the album.

Lennon, who was the co-author with Paul McCartney of such famous songs as "I Want to Hold Your Hand," "Yesterday" and "Let it Be," was returning from the studio when the shooting occurred.

Yelling "I'm shot," Lennon staggered and collapsed face down after the shooting at 10:50 p.m. Monday. Police rushed the former Beatle to Roosevelt Hospital, a mile away, in a squad car.

"Tell me it isn't true," sobbed Miss Ono, when doctors pronounced the songwriter dead soon after. Lennon had said in an RKO radio network only hours before his death that he hoped to die before Miss Ono because he "couldn't carry on" without her.

Even six hours after the shooting, 150 people knelt and recited prayers outside the building.

Hundreds of fans lit candles and ringed the hospital in silent tribute.

McCartney, reported in "deep, deep shock and saddened" by the slaying, was in his Sussex farmhouse in southern England and was refusing to see anyone.

Former Beatle Ringo Starr broke off a vacation to fly to the United States, and George Harrison also was deeply upset and had canceled a recording session scheduled for today.

Memories Of Watergate Plague Haig's Chances

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., who watched first-hand as Watergate destroyed Richard M. Nixon's presidency, is finding that memories of the eight-year-old scandal are still strong enough to threaten his own appointment as secretary of state.

Sources close to the incoming administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan said Monday that Haig's chances of being named to the nation's top diplomatic job are fading as Reagan and his advisers weigh the residual dangers from Watergate.

One source, asking not to be named, said that "it was virtually all over for Haig" and that a decision was likely soon to eliminate him from contention.

Another transition source said, "The question is whether or not they are willing to start out their administration by bringing all the old stuff from Watergate back into it."

Haig was Nixon's last chief of staff and the former president's staunch defender as the Watergate cover-up unraveled.

Haig first counseled Nixon to hang on, but, after hearing the tape on which Nixon acquiesced to the Watergate cover-up, told the president: "I just don't see how we can survive this one."

The transition sources added, however, that even though Haig appeared in serious trouble, problems with other possible contenders for the State Department post could still lead to Reagan's appointing the former NATO commander and riding out the expected storm on Capitol Hill.

And Reagan himself said Monday as he left Los Angeles on a trip East that Haig's connection in the Watergate affair was "having no effect whatsoever on whatever I decide" about offering Haig the State Department job.

Reagan was asked if Haig's past made him less inclined to select Haig. "No, no, not at all," he said.

On Saturday, Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said Haig's Watergate ties would come under "intense scrutiny" at confirmation hearings if he were nominated by Reagan.

Although aides to the president-elect believe they have the votes to push the confirmation through the new Republican-controlled Senate, they fear the victory would come at a high political cost.

It could conceivably give the Democrats, now on the political defensive, a rallying point and a chance to embarrass the Reagan administration.

One source said Haig is also opposed by some conservative Republicans who distrust his longtime connections with former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Reagan said during the flight to New York that he expected to announce some names of his 13 Cabinet members in Washington, where he arrives Wednesday morning.

Later, close Reagan aide Michael Deaver said he thought the first announcements would come Thursday.

The final list of choices, however, could be very different from reports of leading Cabinet candidates that were circulated last week.

Sources said the mounting concern over Haig has revived interest among Reagan's advisers in Nixon's Treasury secretary, George Shultz, who had been a leading contender for the State Department post until he withdrew from consideration late last month.

If Shultz remains unavailable and if Haig is dumped, the sources said, Reagan might be forced to make other changes in his tentative Cabinet lineup. Nixon's budget director, Caspar Weinberger, could become secretary of state instead of secretary of defense, as still appears likely.

That, in turn, could make Donald Rumsfeld, the Ford administration's defense secretary, a leading contender for the same position again, one source said.

In addition, one source said Walter B. Wriston, chairman of Citicorp, the nation's second-largest bank, had been dropped from consideration to be secretary of the treasury, a post he seemed to have the inside track on.

Conflict-of-interest questions that arose from Wriston's $2.25 million in stock holdings at Citicorp became an insurmountable obstacle to his heading the Treasury Department, the source said.

Citicorp has interests in federal loan guarantees and the freeze on Iranian assets, issues that Treasury is involved with.

Reagan conceded Monday that the Cabinet selections had been "delayed by that new ethics act. It's the first it's been put into operation for a transition."

Sources also said Donald T. Regan, chairman of the nation's biggest investment firm, Merrill, Lynch & Co., and Charls E. Walker, former deputy treasury secretary under Nixon, had now emerged as leading candidates for the Treasury job.

Sources also said Reagan had at least tentatively settled on:

—Rep. David Stockman, R-Mich., to be director of the Office of Management and Budget.

—William Casey, his campaign manager, to head the CIA.

—Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., to run the Department of Health and Human Services.

—GOP deputy chairman Drew Lewis to head the Transportation Department.

—His personal attorney, William French Smith, to be attorney general.

Although Haig has never been linked to the Watergate break-in or the cover-up which led to Nixon's resignation in 1974, he represented the embattled president at some of his most difficult moments during the scandal.

Haig carried out the firing of Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox during the so-called Saturday Night Massacre in 1973.

Haig has also been criticized by Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who said the retired general had tried to frustrate the Watergate investigation.

Haig, 56, is president of United Technologies of Hartford, Conn., a major defense contractor.

In another transition development, the chairman of a law enforcement task force appointed by Reagan said the group will recommend passage of a federal death penalty and mandatory sentences for armed criminals.

The chairman, Evelle Younger, said the consensus of the task force is that prison sentences should be mandated "on crimes of violence where a weapon is used."

Classification Change Involved

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Driver licenses issued or renewed in North Carolina after Jan. 1 will reflect a change in classifications for motorists.

Gone are the designations "chauffeur" and "operator." In their place will be three codes marked simply as A, B or C.

Most motorists will fall into the "C" category, with authorization to drive vehicles weighing 30,000 pounds or less.

A Class B license will be needed by commercial bus drivers or medium truck operators while the "A" category will go to those who operate vehicles such as tractor-trailers.

A motorcycle endorsement may be issued for each category.

Robeson County's Case Left In Limbo

MAXTON, N.C. (AP) — A refusal by the U.S. Supreme Court to hear an appeal by eight Robeson County parents who defied a school assignment plan to keep their children in a once traditional Indian school has left the case in limbo, according to one of the parents.

Braxton Chavis, the father of three of the 13 children involved in the case, said Monday the court had confused the school problem even more.

"I just don't think it's just and honest," he said.

"Judge Brannon, when he tried us in Lumberton, said he was going to give us the privilege to go and get this thing spelled out. But they haven't spelled anything out ... All they're doing is refusing to spell it out for us."

Superior Court Judge Anthony Brannon presiding over the parents' trial in February 1979 after they refused a Robeson County Board of Education order to send their children to Ozendine Schoo. Instead, the children were sent to Prospect School, an all-Indian school until 1965.

Brannon sentenced the parents to not less than 15 nor more than 20 days in jail and ordered the children sent to the proper school. The jail sentences were suspended.

Chavis said all 13 children are now attending Oxendine School.

"He (Brannon) was a fine judge, an honest man. When I deal with people like that, I've got to abide with what they say. We're sending our children to Oxendine," Chavis said.

Other parents involved in the case are Mr. and Mrs. James Oxendine, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Bullard, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Barton and Sanford Barton, all of Maxton..

Chavis and the other parents, who claim to be Tuscarora Indians, maintained that their status as American Indians exempted them from guidelines established by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the 1960s.

In Southern Pines, the parents' attorney, Bruce Cunningham, said he would meet with them in a few days to discuss their future plans.

"I have a feeling that from this point on the parents will abide by Judge (Anthony) Brannon's decision," he said.

Peace Prize Winner

At ceremonies in Oslo, Norway, today, Adolfo Perez Esquivel is scheduled to pick up the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize. Perez Esquivel has led the Peace and Justice Service for Latin America. His nonviolent struggle for human rights in his native country has often angered the government's top officials. In 1977 and 1978, Perez Esquivel was held in jail for 14 months and tortured, although the government never charged him with any crimes. Now the government may end up paying for some of Perez Esquivel's work. According to a law his country passed in 1977, the government provides a salary of $5,000 a month to each of the country's Nobel Prize winners.

DO YOU KNOW — What country does Perez Esquivel live in?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Jordan has supported Iraq in the Iran-Iraq war.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices resumed their recent slide today after a weak early attempt to rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which tumbled 22.53 points Monday, fell another 4.43 to 929.27 by noontime today.

In less than three weeks since it briefly touched 1,000, the average has fallen more than 70 points.

Losers outnumbered gainers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market still was struggling with the prospect of high and still-rising interest rates.

The small UMB Bank & Trust Co., an American subsidiary of an Israeli bank, today increased its prime lending rate from 19 to 19¾ percent. Analysts said it would be no surprise if other, larger banks made similar moves before long.

At the same time, open-market money rates on such securities as Treasury bills continued climbing.

Precious-metals stocks declined broadly as gold and silver prices fell. Homestake Mining lost 2⅞ to 79¼; ASA 1¼ to 74¾; Dome Mines 2¼ to 97¾, and Campbell Red Lake 1⅛ to 59⅞.

The NYSE's composite index dropped .51 to 74.61. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.71 at 339.56.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 24.16 million shares at noontime, against 25.74 million at the same point Monday.

Stench Came With A Recycling Plant

GARNER, N.C. (AP) — Oil company experts are using a common household product — one with a distinctive smell of its own — in an effort to battle a big stink in this North Carolina town.

The source of the problem is a state-owned oil recycling plant on the eastern edge of Garner, a community which didn't really want the plant in the first place.

"They told us it wouldn't have any smell but, obviously, they were wrong," convenience store operator Cecil Pearson Jr. said Monday. His store is across U.S. 70 from the plant.

"I've been sick ever since Saturday night," said Alred Day, 78. "Yesterday, I was sick as a dog. The smell was so bad around here, I couldn't hardly breathe."

Bob Dunn, an engineer for Phillips Petroleum Co., which built the plant and was helping get it in operation, said the smell is coming from a suphur compound called mercaptan, used during startup to set off a chemical reaction that in turn starts the recycling process.

The odor is somewhat akin to that of the compound used in natural gas to give that product a distinctive smell.

Dunn said engineers at the plant are using Chlorox to combat the smell of the mercaptan.

He said the odor was "an unfortunate side effect. We try to contain (the fumes) as much as possible during the startup, but some of it got away.

"We shut the plant down last night and we won't start it up again until we have the problem under control. We hope to have it corrected in a day or two," Dunn said.

Garner residents hope the Chlorox works. They say something has got to be done.

"It smells like rotten eggs," said Philip Penny, a Garner police dispatcher. "Sometimes (the smell) gets so strong you have to hold your nose."

Will Conduct Area Survey

Local representatives of the Bureau of the Census will conduct a survey of employment in this area during the work week of December 15-19, Joseph R. Norwood, director of the Bureau's regional office in Charlotte, announced today.

The survey is conducted for the U.S. Department of Labor in a scientifically designed sample of approximately 84,000 households throughout the United States. Employment and unemployment statistics based on results of this survey are used to provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the nation.

For example, Norwood said, in October the survey indicated that of the 105.2 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.6 percent, about the same as in the prior two months.

Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals, Norwood said.

Will Look For Torture

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran will investigate its jail system and if it finds prisoners are tortured then "the torturer must be prosecuted," the nation's prosecutor general, Ayatollah Sayed Abdul Karim Moosavi Ardabili, said today.

Charges of torture surrounded the special anti-narcotics courts and led to the resignation Sunday of the judge who ran them, Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, who has sent hundreds before firing squads since Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolution ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi in February 1979.

"The imam (Khomeini) was very bereaved about rumors that torture is practiced and has demanded that an investigating commission be firm in dealing with prisons and if it is true that prisoners are tortured, the torturer must be prosecuted," Ardabili said after meeting with Khomeini.

Ardabili added that "we have made a revolution so that practices of torture during the shah's era are not repeated." He vowed to form a commission as soon as possible. His remarks were broadcast by Tehran Radio.

Conley Blood Drive A Success

A "well organized" blood drive Monday at D. H. Conley High School resulted in the collection of 191 pints of blood, according to Mrs. Ruth Taylor of the Pitt Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor said that the collection total, realized through the participation of students, faculty and staff at Conley, represented the school's best Bloodmobile effort.

Special appreciation was extended by Mrs. Taylor to Bob Carraway, school principal, for his coordination of the visit, and also to the women of the Greenville Service League and volunteer nurses for their work. She added that the Conley visit marked the first school drive, other than Rose High School here, that the Service League has participated in.

Mrs. Taylor said that in addition to the units collected, there were 24 deferrals for various health reasons.

The next Bloodmobile visit involves the special Dec. 26 holiday drive at the Moose Lodge, stressing the theme, "An After Christmas Party — Give a Gift of Life."

East Carolina Sweeps Cage Twin Bill

Pirates Have Little Trouble With Berry

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina picked up its third victory of the young season last night, downing Berry College of Rome, Ga., 75-53.

It was a game that almost didn't come about.

Berry, a small NAIA school near Rome, Ga., suffered a bus breakdown near Fayetteville, and didn't arrive at Minges Coliseum until just prior to the scheduled tipoff time.

And even then, East Carolina Coach Dave Odom questioned whether they really came to try and win or to just keep from being totally embarrassed.

"I really don't think they tried to win the game," Odom said. Berry used up a great deal of the time moving the ball around, trying to find an open shot. It generally took a lot of time, but the Vikings did shoot well once they did decide to put the ball up.

Both teams shot well, in fact. East Carolina bombed through 51.0 per cent of its shots, while Berry nailed in 51.2 per cent. Rebounding too, was even, with each picking up 27 of the loose balls.

If there was a real difference in the statistics, it came in the turnover column. There, the Pirates enjoyed a 15-turnover advantage, 34-19. Most of those turnovers came as the Pirates, hawking the ball on defense, were too quick for their smaller foes.

"We had a tough time playing this game," Odom said afterwards to the media. "I suspect it was almost as tough as the time you'll have writing it up.

"We didn't know what to expect from them. They were late. It was an unsettling thing," Odom said. "But it was an experience for our players. They are a day older and a day more mature."

And while Odom said that Berry showed a lot of poise, he added that "they didn't try to win."

Odom, too, said he was glad to have the type of game where he was able to play everyone. "We have a very important part of our season coming up. These five games (against Penn State Saturday, and then two tournaments) will be a big challenge for us. We will be the underdogs in just about every game, but at the same time, I think we have the chance to win them all. We could win 'em all, or lose 'em all. It's that kind of schedule."

Last night, however, it didn't appear that the Pirates were in much danger. They took the initial lead, and after a 2-2 tie, pulled steadily away to hold as much as a 14 point lead in the first half. The Pirates had fairly balanced scoring throughout the half, with David Underwood leading the way with seven, thanks to a 5-for-7 appearance at the free throw line.

Mark McLaurin put the Pirates ahead at first, then Herbert Gilchrist put them ahead for good at 4-2. Michael Gibson followed with a shot from underneath for a 6-2 lead, and that margin held until Gibson slammed one through on after stealing the ball for a 10-4 margin.

Morris Hargrove ran the margin to ten for the first time at 16-6 near the midpoint of the half, and it reached the apex of the first half at 31-17 with 3:02 left when Underwood hit two free throws.

Berry put on a run after that,cutting it to nine, 33-24, but the Pirates hit the final three points, all by Underwood, for a 36-24 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Pirates hit the first three baskets, the first by McLaurin and the next two by Barry Wright, for an 18-point spread, 42-24. It held there for a while, before Berry put on another spurt and cut it back to 11, at 58-47, as Jim Owen led the surge. Alexander Chambers got a three-point play to finish the drive.

But the Pirates again pulled away, led by Wright, and steadily pulled away to the final 22-point margin.

Berry used a zone defense throughout most of the game, and Odom said he was glad to see it. "We haven't seen much zone and it gave us an opportunity to work against it before these next five. I'm sure we're going to see more zone and we needed the work against it."

The Pirates also used the game to work on some of their defenses, including the press. "We're not a very good pressing team right now," Odom said. "But we did get it going some there at the start of the second half."

That helped produce some of the 34 turnovers.

East Carolina's scoring was led by Wright and Underwood, who both finished with 12 points. McLaurin added 11.

Berry also had three in double figures, led by Willie Robinson with 17, Owen with 16 and Chambers with 11.

Underwood led the Pirate rebounding with seven, while Robinson had seven for Berry.

East Carolina travels to Penn State for its next outing Friday.

Come Here, Ball

Deacs Toast Their Ranking

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Just as the game began, the announcement was made — Wake Forest was now the 13th-ranked college basketball team in the country.

The visiting team of John Carroll was shocked and still had not recovered after the Deacons had trounced them 110-59, Monday night.

"We were awestruck," Blue Streak coach Sam Milanovich said of the announcement during the warmups. "Some of the boys saw the UNC win and were quite impressed. We were not expecting them to be as great a ball team as Wake Forest is."

Wake Forest is coming off a big win over 10th-ranked North Carolina Saturday in the championship game of the Big Four Tournament.

Deacon coach Carl Tacy was delighted with his team's play and their new national ranking.

"We were very pleased with the play of our centers tonight," Tacy said. "Jim (Johnstone) made several key plays and helped to break the ball game open early.

"We're delighted with the news we got earlier this evening that we broke into the top 20. We're still savoring the Big Four title, but it will be short-lived when we get down to serious work and clean up some areas. We have a much tougher game on Thursday against Florida Southern. They are a very good ball club and cannot be taken lightly."

Wake Forest junior center Johnstone led the Wake Forest with 20 points, mostly during a big first-half assault that buried the Blue Streaks early.

Johnstone and the Deacons came out red hot and outscored John Carroll 30-12 in the first 10 minutes. Johnstone led the scoring charge by hitting five of seven from the field and 4 of 4 from the line for 14 first-half points.

Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy began substituting freely after grabbing the big lead and still the Deacons led 56-25 at the half.

Wake Forest continued to build the lead in the second half, outscoring the visitors 54-34.

The Deacons put four other players in double figures. Frank Johnson had 18, Mike Helms 16, Alvis Rogers 10 and freshman Glenn Mayers 11.

John Carroll was paced by John Columbo with 22.

The unbeaten Deacons up their record to 5-0. John Carroll falls to 1-2.

Riley Comes Off Bench To Pace Lady Pirates

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

For over 29 minutes East Carolina's Kathy Riley sat on the bench, looking on in a forced exile as the Pirates battled a tough and tenacious Campbell College.

Then, with 10:49 to go and ECU behind 50-47, Riley, who did not start because of disciplinary problems, had her sentance on the bench commuted by Coach Cathy Andruzzi.

All Riley did following her belated arrival on court was score 19 points — 14 in the last 4½ minutes — and spark the Pirates to a hard-fought 75-66 win over the Lady Camels Monday night in Minges Coliseum before a crowd of 1,000.

Afterwards, however, Riley could not talk about her performance. When asked about the game Riley, in a soft voice, said, "Are you media? I can't talk to you unless you get an O.K. from Coach Andruzzi."

Andruzzi did talk about her star forward, who going into the Campbell game was the Pirates leading scorer averaging nearly 19 points a game.

"Kathy didn't deserve to start," Andruzzi said. "No one's a super star on this team and no one gets a starting position unless she works for it.

"She didn't miss practice," Andruzzi added, when asked why Riley didn't start. "She just didn't have the proper attitude. This isn't a democracy. It's a dictatorship of two."

Andruzzi was, however, pleased with Riley's performance. "She deserved to play in the second half and I thought she played well," Andruzzi said. "She didn't take a bad shot. She came in a did a good job."

There's no denying that. Only a minute after entering the game Riley, sandwiched between two Campbell players, drove the middle for a layup that pulled the Pirates within one, 50-49.

A Campbell bucket made it 52-49 but Riley connected on two-of-three free throws in the next two minutes to pull the Pirates even at 52.

ECU went ahead for good, at 53-52, on a free throw by Sam Jones and stretched that lead to three when Marcia Girven hit a jumper.

From there, Riley took control of the game. She connected on a three-point play at the 4:31 mark to give ECU a 62-54 lead and then, after rebounding a missed free throw, muscled inside to put the Pirates up, 65-58.

After the two clubs traded baskets, Riley hit two free throws and then took a pass from Girven inside for a bucket and suddenly ECU had a nine-point bulge at 71-62.

The Camels closed to 71-66, but three free throws by Riley and one by Jones sealed the victory, the Pirates fourth of the season against one loss. The loss was the Camels' first loss in four outings and left Coach Betty Jo Clary puzzled at her team's inability to stop Riley.

"We shouldn't have permitted one player to take over control of the game like she (Riley) did," Clary said. "We're a much better team than that. It hurt. She is a good ballplayer without question, but we shouldn't have let her take control like that."

Clary added that she would have rather seen Riley start. "I'd have preferred that because our whole game plan was set up around her," she said. "Her and Sam Jones. We did a better job on Jones."

Jones, who was the Pirates second leading scorer going into the game with a 16.8 average, managed just five points (two-of-nine from the field) but did pull down 10 rebounds.

Taking up the slack left by Jones were Girven and Heidi Owen. Girven worked inside for 19 points (nine-of-15 from the field) and pulled down a game-leading 13 rebounds while Owen hit for 11 points.

"Heidi and Marsha came in and did a good job for us, as did Fran Hooks and Mary Denkler," Andruzzi said. "We used 10 players tonight and they all did a good job.

Had it not been for that good job, the Pirates might have had more trouble than they did.

The lead changed hands or was tied seven times in the first half. Neither team managed over a three-point lead until Campbell went six minutes without a bucket, enabling ECU to take a 34-26 lead with 2:51 left before intermission.

The Camels worked back within three, 36-33, at the half on a three-point play by Melvarie Watson. Watson and Ronda Muller both had 12 points for the Camels. Sharon Williams led the visitors with a game-high 21 points.

In the second half, Campbell tied it up at 42-42 and went ahead, 46-42, with 12:43 to go. Moments later, however, Riley appeared on the scene and by the time she was through the Pirates had a nine-point victory.

"I'm just glad we're out of this game," said a relieved Andruzzi afterwards. "We just weren't into the game tonight. Mentally we were out of it.

"We don't have any excuses. We just didn't play a good brand of basketball tonight. But I'm not taking anything away from Campbell. They've got ballclub. I'm just glad we have 10 days to get ourselves together."

ECU's next game is not until Dec. 18 when they begin play in the Carolina Christmas Tournament in Chapel Hill.

NOTES...

•Besides her 19 points and 13 rebounds, ECU's Marsha Girven also logged the most playing time of any Pirates. Girven, the Pirates' leading rebounder going into the game with a 9.8 average, played the entire 40 minutes.

•Riley was not the only Pirate suffering on the bench because of disciplanary problems. Lisa Fennell was another, and she didn't get into the game at all. Said Andruzzi: "She missed a practice and her excuse was not a good one. And when you miss practice you don't play. She didn't have the right attitude to represent East Carolina and so she didn't play."

•Another Pirate who did not play Monday night was Lydia Rountree. Rountree, who has a career 11.5 average in her four years at ECU and was averaging 7.5 points a game this season, was not on the bench Monday night. Rountree and Andruzzi reportedly got into an argument during halftime of the ODU-ECU game. According to Andruzzi, Rountree's status "is yet to be determined."

The Pirates now lead the series with Campbell, 18-1. ECU's only loss was a 70-69 defeat in the opening game of the 1978-79 season — Andruzzi's coaching debut at ECU.

•Campbell's Joette Rogers, who scored four points, is a former Bear Grass High School star.

Newcomer Hill Helps Team Gain NBA Victory

SEATTLE (AP) — Armond Hill says he's glad to be in Seattle, and after a 104-99 National Basketball Association victory Monday night over the San Antonio Spurs, the SuperSonics are glad, too.

"I felt very comfortable," Hill said. Coach Lenny Wilkens "told me to just go out there and play."

With rookie starter Bill Hanzlik, a 6-7 guard from Notre Dame coping with foul problems throughout the game — the only NBA contest Monday night — Hill wound up with 10 points in 26 minutes the second time he donned a Seattle jersey.

More importantly, the former Atlanta Hawk and Hanzlik combined to slow down San Antonio's George Gervin. Gervin scored a game-high 23 points, including eight in the final five minutes when the Spurs reeled off 12 straight to leave the Sonic fans gasping.

Gervin sank 8 of 13 shots from the field, but he has been averaging more than 22 shots and 29 points a game, No. 3 in the league.

"You're not going to stop him," said Hill, who was paired against Gervin many times when the two played in the Eastern Conference. "He's going to score. You just try to bother him."

Hanzlik, pressed into a starting role with Paul Westphal disabled by a stress fracture and Gus Williams sitting out a contract dispute, said Hill "told me how he played him last year. We forced him out high. He's a smart player. He'll drop it inside."

With their fourth straight victory raising them to .500, the Sonics "are starting to jell," Wilkens said. "I thought we got a little bit soft in the fourth quarter. We got into foul trouble and became a little tentative. You can't do that against a team like San Antonio."

The Sonics, who led almost all the way and at one point by 19 early in the fourth quarter, are "an excellent rebounding team," San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck said. "Our defense struggled and we didn't execute well, but you can give Seattle credit for that. John Johnson really hurt us in the first half with his passing and his point production.

"Our free-throw production (23 of 37) was poor, and you have to make your free throws and take care of the basketball on the road," Albect said.

Jack Sikma led seven Seattle players into double figures with 17 points. He also had 11 rebounds but the Spurs' Dave Corzine hauled in 15.

Miami Wins In OT After Super Catch

MIAMI (AP) — New England free safety Tim Fox sat in front of his Orange Bowl dressing cubicle staring in disbelief.

Minutes before, the five-year veteran from Ohio State had been beaten by Miami wide receiver Duriel Harris on a 54-yard pass play, which set up Uwe von Schamann's 23-yard field goal that gave the Dolphins a 16-13 overtime victory over the Patriots in a nationally-televised game Monday night.

Fox said he was at a loss for words to describe the play where he and Harris raced down the right sideline and leaped as the ball, thrown by Miami rookie quarterback David Woodley, sailed toward them.

"I don't know what happened," said Fox, who took a swipe at the ball as Harris gathered it in at the New England 15-yard line. "I thought I had a chance to knock it down. It was an amazing catch."

Harris stumbled to the 5 and on the next play — at 3:20 of the extra period — von Schamann kicked his third field goal to cap the game-winning 6-play, 82-yard scoring drive.

"He just outjumped the defensive back," said Woodley, who added that he was counting on Harris' leaping ability to make the play work. "You've got to hope. When you've got a receiver like Duriel who can go up, you can hope."

The victory was sweet revenge for the 7-7 Dolphins, who were beaten 34-0 at New England on Oct. 12. The Patriots, 8-6, meanwhile, lost for the second straight time and fell two games off the pace set by American Football Conference East leader Buffalo.

The Pats host the Bills next Sunday, but Monday night's game shattered their chances of winning the division title outright.

New England could still gain a tie for the crown, however, by beating Buffalo and then closing the season with a victory at New Orleans. Meanwhile, the Bills would have to lose on the final day of the season to San Francisco. In the event of a tie, New England would win the division and an automatic playoff berth with a better conference record.

The Patriots, who have lost 13 in a row in Miami, used second-period field goals of 23 and 33 yards by John Smith to take a 6-0 halftime lead. von Schamann responded with a pair of his own — from 27 and 24 yards — to the score at 6 after three quarters.

Tight end Russ Frances' diving, juggling catch of a 38-yard touchdown pass from Matt Cavanaugh, starting in place of the injured Steve Grogan, gave New England a 13-7 lead with 12:55 left in the fourth quarter.

The Dolphins forced the overtime, however, by a launching a time-consuming 10-play, 78-yard drive which Woodley capped with an 8-yard scoring touchdown pass which deflected off the hand of tight end Joe Rose into the grasp of wide receiver Nat Moore in the end zone with 2:28 to go.

"I thought Joe had it, then I thought incompletion. I couldn't believe it," said Woodley."

Horace Ivory returned the ensuing kickoff 39 yards to give the ball at their own 46. Cavanaugh moved the Patriots downfield to the Miami 20-yard line, where Smith came on to attempt a potential game-winning field goal with three seconds left. Miami nose tackle Bob Baumhower blocked the attempt, however, and the game went into overtime.

"We've got the best field goal kicker in the league from inside the 20-yard line. We thought we'd make it for sure, but we blew it," said Patriots Coach Ron Erhardt.

"The snap was good, the placement was good, everything looked good," said Cavanaugh, who was holding for Smith. "I'll have to see the films to find out what went wrong."

Smith was equally puzzled.

"I had my head down when I kicked it," he said. "And when I looked up, I saw all those arms."

Several crucial penalties hurt the Patriots, including a holding call on the first play of the second period which an apparent 7-yard touchdown pass from Cavanaugh to Andy Johnson on the first play of the second quarter.

Woodley, an eighth round draft choice from Louisiana State, completed 15 of 24 passes for 192 yards. Cavanaugh, playing with a bruised left knee, was 12 of 16 for 163 yards.

Miami fullback Woody Bennett led all rushers with 77 yards on 15 carries. Rookie running back Vegas Ferguson picked up 47 on 12 tries for the Patriots and fullback Don Calhoun added 45 on 14 attempts.

Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, Wake All Ranked On AP's Poll

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall is willing to wait for No.1, but the way his Wildcats played last week, he may not have to wait long.

DePaul, Kentucky, UCLA and Maryland retained the top four positions in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday as defending national champion Louisville, reeling from three straight losses, fell from the ranks of the Top 20.

But the story last week was Kentucky. The Wildcats posted an impressive 70-64 victory over then ninth-ranked Ohio State and came back three days later to edge No.5 Indiana 68-66.

"Being No.2 instead of No.1 really doesn't make a whole lot of difference," Hall said in a telephone interview. "Right now, I'm more worried about playing Kansas this weekend. It's a long season and this team is going to win a few that it shouldn't and lose a few they should win.

"We're a good team," added Hall. "Maybe some day we'll be voted No.1 by your group."

But not this week.

DePaul, 3-0, collected 32 of 58 first-place votes and got the nod as the nation's No.1 team from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters with 1,128 points. Kentucky, 3-0, was 24 points back after garnering 20 first-place votes.

Last week, DePaul held a 38-15 advantage in first-place votes and had 1,171 points to Kentucky's 1,085.

UCLA, an easy winner over St. Mary's, Calif., last week, grabbed three first-place votes and 1,002 points. Maryland got one No.1 vote and 967 points in keeping the No.4 position.

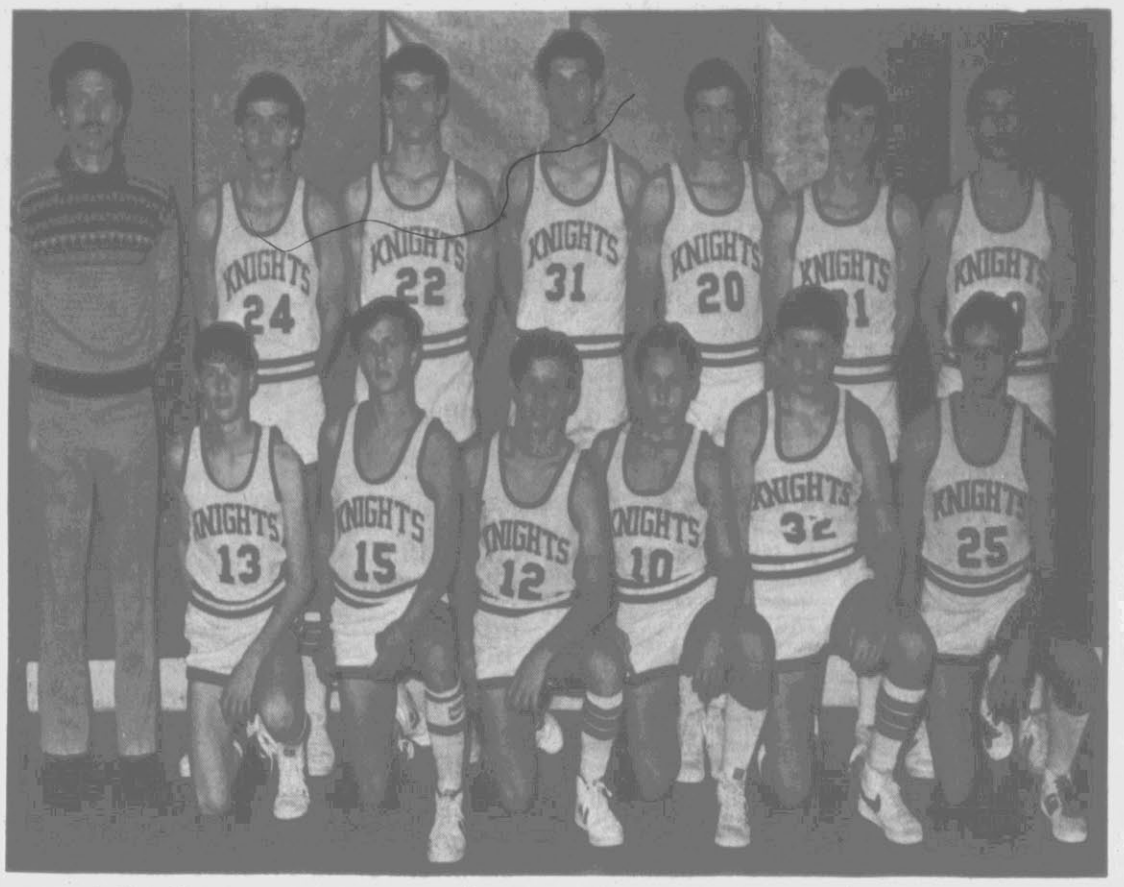

Oregon State and Virginia each moved up a notch, taking over the fifth and sixth positions in the poll, respectively. The Beavers, 3-0, got one first-place vote and 883 points, while the Cavaliers captured one No.1 nod and 847 points.

Indiana slipped to No.7 with 769 points, while Ohio State, Notre Dame and North Carolina rounded out the Top 10.

Georgia, FSU Top Grid Poll

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Georgia Bulldogs are the No.1 team in the country in today's Associated Press final regular-season college football poll but their anticipated national championship Sugar Bowl shootout with Notre Dame lost some of its glamor over the weekend when the Fighting Irish were beaten by Southern California and fell from second place to seventh.

Georgia, the nation's only unbeaten and untied team, has been No.1 for five weeks and undoubtedly will nail down its first-ever national championship if it defeats Notre Dame on Jan. 1. But the Bulldogs will have plenty of challengers if they lose.

Georgia (11-0) received 60 of 64 first-place ballots and 1,274 of a possible 1,280 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

While Notre Dame's 20-3 loss to Southern Cal knocked the Irish out of the runnerup spot they had held for three weeks, Orange Bowl-bound Florida State jumped from third place to second by defeating unranked Florida 17-13 and finishing with a 10-1 record. The Seminoles, ranked No. 2 for the first time ever, received the other four first-place votes and 1,208 points.

Pittsburgh, another 10-1 team, climbed from fourth to third with 1,127 points while Oklahoma (9-2), Florida State's Orange Bowl opponent, went from fifth to fourth with 1,027 points.

The USC-Notre Dame and Florida State-Florida games wrapped up the regular season. The national championship will be decided following the bowl games when The AP releases its final poll at 6:30 p.m., EST, Saturday, Jan. 3, 1981.

Michigan (9-2) and Baylor (10-1) each moved up one position to fifth and sixth with 947 and 914 points.

Then came Notre Dame (9-1-1) with 860 points, followed by Nebraska, Alabama and Penn State with 801, 800 and 644 points, respectively. Nebraska and Alabama traded positions from last week.

The Second Ten consists of Ohio State, Southern Cal, North Carolina, Brigham Young, UCLA, Washington, Mississippi State, South Carolina, Southern Methodist and Miami (Fla.).

Last week, it was Ohio State, North Carolina, BYU, UCLA, Washington, Mississippi State, Southern Cal, South Carolina, SMU and Miami.

There were no new teams in the final regular-season Top Twenty, although Southern Cal's impressive triumph over Notre Dame vaulted the Trojans from 17th place to 12th.

Bowl-bound Top Twenty teams also include Pitt and South Carolina in the Gator, Michigan and Washington in the Rose, Baylor and Alabama in the Cotton, Nebraska and Mississippi State in the Sun, Penn State and Ohio State in the Fiesta, North Carolina in the Bluebonnet (versus Texas), BYU and SMU in the Holiday and Miami in the Peach (against Virginia Tech).

Greenville Christian Looking For Banner Year On Basketball Court

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Despite opening the season with four losses in five outings, Greenville Christian coach Dale Thatcher remains convinced this could be the Knights year.

"I'm anticipating a great year, maybe even better than last year," said Thatcher, whose Knights were 11-5 during the regular season only to lose in the semifinals of the conference tournament.

"I hope this is the year for us to win the conference. The thing is, everybody else feels the same way," he added. "We won't walk over the conference, though. The coaches are just too good for that."

The Knights opened the season with four straight losses in a tournament in Tennessee. Greenville's first victory came last Friday, a 45-43 win over Bethel, a win that Thatcher feels may prove to be the turning point for his club.

"We lost all four games in Tennessee. They were all close but the kids got a little bit down," Thatcher said. "People were expecting us to come right out busting away and that's not the way it's going to be.

"We're going to have to work hard together. Defense is definitely going to be the key. We can score with anybody. But we haven't been able to stop the other team.

"We want to run, but when the other team scores that kills our break," he said. "If we can shut the other team down we'll be all right."

How well the Knights do this season may depend not only on their defense but on how well they can replace Jeff Parnell, the area's leading scorer last season.

Starting this season for Thatcher are: guards John Parnell (5-10, junior, Jeff's brother) and Ben Haddock (5-11, senior), center Bill Hurst (6-3, senior) and forwards Troy Hudson (5-10, junior) and David Hollingsworth (6-1, junior).

This is Haddock's fourth year while Hurst and Hudson return for their second season at Greenville Christian. Parnell is a transfer and Hollingsworth played on the junior varsity last season.

Top reserves for the Knights this year are senior Jim Laney (6-2 center) and sophomore Jerry Butts (6-2, center/forward). Other reserves include sophomore Joel Nason (5-9, forward) and freshmen Chris Stox (5-8, guard) and Mike Bragg (5-9, forward/guard).

"We're not as big as we were last year but most of the teams we play won't match up with us in size," Thatcher said. "We've really stressed getting the ball inside and taking advantage of our opponents inside."

Thatcher also said that this year, unlike in the past, the Knights can run the break from almost any place on the floor.

"Last year we'd look for the outlet pass and go from there," Thatcher said. "This year our forwards can handle the ball as well as our guards. That allows us to run the break from almost anywhere."

"This year we also have a perimeter game," he added. "Last year we relied on Parnell inside a lot. But this year we've got the guards that shoot the ball and we should be able to put points on the board, although we haven't done that all that much yet."

The Knights get their next chance at getting points on the board — and improving on their record — when they open play in the Wilson Tournament beginning Thursday. Greenville returns home next Tuesday to face Mt. Calvary.

Atlanta Thinks It's Pittsburgh

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

You may call them the 1980 Atlanta Falcons if you wish, but Wallace Francis has a better idea. "We're the 1974 Pittsburgh Steelers all over again," he says.

And they have belief. Not just in each other. In a Higher Power.

They are one of the National Football League's surprise teams of the year — yet they aren't surprised by the success and attention which has flooded their way this year. "We knew all along how good we were, what we could do," says Francis, one of the team's premier wide receivers.

"We really are the team the Steelers were in '74," he says of the team which won the first of what was to become four Super Bowls in six years. "Remember, they'd been losers for something like 40 years. Then they finally built a tradition. They got the key players in a couple of drafts; they began believing in themselves. Same here. We've got a bunch of guys here who have the talent and the belief we can win.

"Maybe we don't have the same kind of winning tradition yet," continues Francis, "but, hey, most of us haven't been together more than a couple of years. But we have ourselves one solid foundation."

Francis is in the perfect position to talk about the birth of this contender. He arrived in 1975, compliments of a trade with Buffalo, the same season the Falcons signed free agent wide receiver Alfred Jenkins and drafted quarterback Steve Bartkowski.

Bartkowski was supposed to be the savior. He was a 6-foot-4, blond with a cannon arm from California, where kids become throwing quarterbacks shortly after learning how to walk. He was "Peachtree Bart," who drank deeply of the Atlanta nightlife. And he was a bust. Personal accomplishments on the field notwithstanding, he was quarterbacking a team which lost twice as often as it won. Finally, in an exhibition game two years ago, he was literally booed off the field.

He sat in the locker room and cried. Then he pulled himself together. He found the Lord. He found peace of mind. And from the pieces of a nearly shattered career he found success.

He speaks now of his life with God, of how "He changed my priorities all around," of how the whole team paid for his mistakes.

Arizona State Has Easy Time In Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Kansas State's basketball team had a Devil of a time with Arizona State Monday night.

"It was as bad as I have ever seen our team play," said Kansas State Coach Jack Hartman after an 84-61 loss to the 15th-ranked Sun Devils.

"We didn't challenge anybody. We just had a total breakdown."

Arizona State forced the Wildcats into numerous mistakes, jumped to a 45-33 halftime lead and coasted the rest of the way.

"We knew they would be good," said Hartman. "They were good last year and they are a lot more mature this time around. They've got good people at every spot — good size guards and a front line that is very effective."

The ease of the victory frankly surprised Ned Wulk, the Arizona State coach.

"We expected them to control the game more," said Wulk. "That's why we went to the press to try and disrupt them. I think we had to get off to a good start to get ahead of them."

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 DePaul drubbed Northern Illinois 93-56, No. 6 Oregon State routed Portland State 102-58, No. 12 Texas A&M turned back Sam Houston State 75-58, No. 13 Wake Forest walloped John Carroll 110-59 and No. 18 Michigan defeated Akron 98-69.

Lafayette Lever scored 18 points to lead five players in double figures for Arizona State. The Sun Devils were on their way once Sam Williams and Paul Williams keyed a 12-point streak in the first half.

Arizona State led 45-33 at halftime and opened as much as a 24-point lead at 69-45 at the six-minute mark. Rolando Blackman led the Wildcats with 14 points.

Terry Cummings scored a game-high 23 points and Skip Dillard added 18 to lift DePaul over Northern Illinois. Cummings, a 6-10 sophomore, hit 9 of 10 shots from the floor while Dillard bombed from long range, hitting 9 of 14 field goal attempts.

"We had a lot of evening-up to do, because we got caught on Northern's home court last year," said DePaul Coach Ray Meyer, referring to a sweaty, overtime 57-55 decision last season.

Charlie Sitton and Steve Johnson controlled the inside with 42 points and 19 rebounds as Oregon State beat Portland State. Portland State took an early 7-6 lead four minutes into the game, but the Beavers, led by Sitton and Johnson, outscored the Vikings 26-5 to take control at 32-12 with 7:46 left in the half.

"I've been learning a lot and picking up more and more as each day goes on," said Sitton, a freshman who was hesitant in his first three games. "I'm finally getting my confidence and I felt like I could do a few things tonight."

Rynn Wright, Vernon Smith and Rudy Woods combined for 43 points to lead Texas A&M over Sam Houston State. Wright scored 20 points, Woods had 12 and Smith added 11 for the Aggies.

"I believe they are totally by themselves as far as the Southwest Conference goes this year," Sam Houston State Coach Bob Derryberry said of the Aggies. "If there is a team that beats them out for the title I don't want to see it because it would be awesome. They are the best team that I have ever coached against in more than 700 games in high school and college."

Jim Johnstone scored 20 points to pace Wake Forest past John Carroll. Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy began substituting freely once the Deacons held a 56-25 lead at the half.

Mike McGee scored 35 points as Michigan took an easy victory over Akron. Michigan opened the game with a full-court press and quickly jumped out to a 25-7 lead midway through the first 20 minutes. Akron never really got into the game against the taller, experienced Michigan squad, which built a 52-23 halftime lead.

"I think we did a good job, considering the type of game it was," said Michigan Coach Bill Frieder, who took over after several years as an assistant to Johnny Orr, now at Iowa State. "The starters played up to their potential in both halves.

"The subs looked a little jittery and didn't play very well, but that is to be expected. I had hoped the subs would have done better. Eventually one of them will have to come in and do the job in one of the closer games."

Elsewhere, George Morrow scored five points in the final five minutes to lead Creighton over St. Louis 64-57, David Greer's 20 points triggered Bowling Green past Cornell 61-47, Darrell Lockhart, Frank Poindexter and Earl Banks scored 16 points apiece as Auburn defeated Tennessee Tech 77-62, Keith Edmondson's 18 points led Purdue past Butler 82-61, Todd Haynes sank four free throws in the final 16 seconds and had a game-high 27 points as Davidson scored a double-overtime 79-73 decision over Marshall and a 21-point, 17-rebound performance by Stanley Williams paced LaSalle to a 73-63 decision over Bucknell.

Also, Cliff Levingstone and Ozell Jones combined for 35 points to lead Wichita State to an 80-61 victory over Long Beach State, Phil Spradling's 18 points powered Tulsa over Oral Roberts 72-69, Jose Slaughter and Bryan Beard combined for 35 points, leading Portland to a 71-66 decision over Eastern Montana.

Conley Wins Fifth Straight

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley captured its fifth victory of the season in wrestling last night, 51-12, in a match closer than the score would indicate.

"They gave us a pretty good match," Coach Milt Sherman said. "It was a good experience for the team."

Conley won ten of the 13 weights, including one by forfeit. Six of the Conley wins came on pins, while White Oak took one pin in its three wins.

Reginald Moore recorded his fifth win of the year in the match, all of them coming on pins.

The two teams will become rivals next year when Conley moves out of the Eastern Carolina Conference into the Coastal Conference. Conley is now 4-0 against Coastal opponents, and is still to face West Carteret, called by Sherman the class of the league.

Conley is now 5-0 on the year and travels to Havelock on Thursday.

Lennon's Troubled Years Behind; Music Emerging

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It seemed John Lennon had finally put the turmoil of his past behind him: the screaming hysteria of the Beatle years, the tangled lawsuits that followed the band's breakup, the long fight with U.S. immigration officials, the troubles that beset his marriage.

At 40, John Lennon had just re-emerged into the public eye after five years of being a "househusband" — tending to his home and 5-year old son — when he was killed Monday night, gunned down outside his New York apartment.

He and his wife, Yoko Ono, had released a joint album, "Double Fantasy," his first recording effort since he retreated to family life. He appeared relaxed and happy in promotional interviews; a tour was in the offing.

"Double Fantasy" is an excellent album — certainly more personal and upbeat than his solo LPs — and it has fared well with the critics. But like all his post-Beatle works, it will probably always live in the shadow of the hundreds of pop masterpieces he wrote with Paul McCartney between 1964 and 1970.

There were two other Beatles, of course — George Harrison and Ringo Starr — and they occasionally chipped in a tune or two. But for all practical purposes, as far as songwriting went, Lennon and McCartney were the Beatles, and theirs is probably the most widely played and familiar body of contemporary music in the world.

They dominated and stretched the parameters of pop music in a way no one had ever done before or since, and they did it by changing — both in what they were saying and how they were saying it. Like the art of Picasso, their music did not became static and settled; it evolved and broke new ground.

By the time others began imitating and expanding on their approach, the Beatles would already have moved on to something else.

In the years they were together, you could mark the passage of time by their albums. The early Beatles sang simple, happy pop harmony in such songs as "I Want To Hold Your Hand," their first U.S. hit from "Meet the Beatles."

A year and a half later, they introduced Indian sitars into the instrumental vocabulary of rock with "Norwegian Wood" from "Rubber Soul" and "Help."

In 1966, "Yesterday" and "Eleanor Rigby" proved that sentimentality and strings were pop music, too. "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" in 1967 marked the band's incursion into psychedelia, followed up several months later with "Magical Mystery Tour" — probably the band's two most similar albums.

"The Beatles" in late 1968 — better known as "The White Album" — addressed political themes with songs like "Revolution," gave a nod to country with "Rocky Raccoon" and also yielded up a birthday song, "Happy Birthday."

By 1969, with the album "Abbey Road," the songs were more sweeping, less offbeat — "Here Comes the Sun," "Come Together." "Hey Jude" followed in early 1970, and the title cut of their last studio album heralded the breakup: "Let It Be."

If the Beatles had a leader, it was Lennon. From the time Beatlemania exploded, his sharp and often dark wit kept him in the limelight.

He was the "intellectual" one, the oddball who gave the early Beatles a claim at being more than just a run-of-the-mill Liverpool club band. He even had a best-selling book of humor, the pun-laden "In His Own Write."

Lennon became ever more controversial as the years passed. His marriage to Miss Ono, a Japanese-born avant-garde artist, was credited with leading to the demise of the Beatles.

He took up her name, identifying himself as John Ono Lennon — as well as some of her interests. He made lithographs showing himself and Miss Ono making love and experimented with film. He took up radical political causes. In 1974, during his 15-month separation from Yoko, he got into a drunken brawl at a Beverly Hills nightclub.

He recorded, too, with the Plastic Ono band, and was praised for his efforts, which included the classic anti-war chant, "Give Peace a Chance." But the man who couldn't write a flop as a Beatle never really got off the ground commercially as a solo act, certainly not in the way McCartney succeeded with his group, Wings.

That's probably the real tragedy of Lennon's untimely death. He will always be remembered for his Beatles works, although he probably wouldn't have wanted it that way.

He died before he really got around to "Starting Over."

Hallmark Turns To PBS Role

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Hallmark Hall of Fame," the flower of television drama series for 30 years, has been priced out of commercial TV. Beginning in February, the series will move most of its productions to PBS.

In the future, Hallmark will sponsor only one dramatic presentation on network television annually.

Thus winds down one of popular television's worthiest efforts, a series that sought to edify and to entertain, while enjoying a certain commerical success.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" was the first "Hall of Fame" presentation, on Christmas Eve 1951. The series comprised 136 dramas, earning more Emmy Awards — 47 — than any other television series.

"Ahmahl and the Night Visitors" was the first television opera; a 1953 "Hall of Fame" version was the first national netowork colorcast. The 1953 "Hall of Fame" presentation of "Hamlet" was TV's first Shakespearean production. In 1961, Hallmark became the first sponsor to win an Emmy.

"Hall of Fame" began in the days when single-sponsor television was affordable, and therefore, common practice. Eventually, the series came to represent a seasonal memento from TV's Golden Age.

Even the Hallmark commercials seemed exceptions to that often intrusive media form; they were well-produced two-minute playlets, little seasonal, family oriented tableau that made the business of card peddling almost pleasant.

Hallmark says it can't afford it anymore.

Network time costs about $1 million an hour. The mounting of a "Hall of Fame" production on PBS, where Hallmark will be mentioned in understated tones only as an underwriter, is about a third of that.

The only "Hallmark Hall of Fame" broadcast on network TV this year was last week's "Tale of Two Cities." The next presentation, "Mr. Lincoln," will be on PBS Feb. 9.

Hallmark has recently begun to buy spot advertisment on network television; that is, the purchase of advertising time on a market-to-market basis, rather than buying entire nationally broadcast programs.

"We couldn't continue to do 'Hall of Fame' and spot advertising because of the accelerating costs," says Fred Bocun, a Hallmark spokesman.

Going to PBS isn't tantamount to leaving the air, but almost. For reasons of viewer habit, lack of promotion, or whatever, the best of public television is watched by tiny fractions of the audience size that views the worst of commercial TV.

"Maybe we can change that," says Bocun. "Maybe we can bring some of them over to PBS."

Betsy Feels Young Again

NEW YORK (AP) — There's nothing like getting a part in a new television series to make an old pro feel young again.

Betsy Palmer, long-time panelist on "I've Got a Secret," says she feels as young now as she did when she was acting in 1950s dramatic programs like "Philco Playhouse" and "Studio One."

Miss Palmer, 54, will appear as Maureen Galloway, a widow facing spinsterhood, in NBC's "Number 96." The program, which follows the adventures of a group of apartment house residents, will debut Wednesday.

In an interview with the Daily News, Miss Palmer said her character will experience what many women in their 50s go through when they're alone. She will get involved with lovers and start drinking too much.

Miss Palmer says the program will be "spicy," but in good taste.

"It allows you to peek so far and no more. Just at that point when you might pull back, it takes a comic twist," she says.

Miss Palmer has kept busy in recent years appearing on Broadway and in regional theatre. Though returning to television and Hollywood, she's not giving up her two houses in the East — just in case NBC forecloses on "Number 96."

CBS Is Seeking A Cable System

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS has become the first commercial network to formally petition for a waiver that would let it own cable TV systems. The network says the systems would be used "as an advanced technology development laboratory."

Explaining its position in a 15-page petition filed Monday, CBS says it wants to enter the cable ownership field "on a limited scale" and is merely taking advantage of "this commission's policy of encouraging the development of new technologies and competition generally."

If granted a waiver, the network said it would specifically agree to make sure its total number of cable subscribers did not exceed one-half of 1 percent of the total number of cable subscribers nationwide, or 90,000, whichever is less.

According to industry estimates, cable operators currently have about 17 million subscribers. Using CBS' formula, the 90,000 limit would apply as soon as the total number of subscribers passed the 18 million mark.

"CBS has traditionally sought to be in the forefront of the development of advanced technology communications products and services," the network said Monday. "Utilizing a limited number of cable systems as an advanced technology development laboratory, CBS believes that its skills and experience can make a real contribution.

Defer Sinatra Consideration

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Consideration of Frank Sinatra's application to be licensed as a consultant to Caesars Palace hotel-casino in Las Vegas has been postponed until Feb. 10.

The singer's attorneys asked for the delay because of scheduling conflicts, said Richard Bunker, chairman of the Nevada Gaming Control Board.

Bunker said Monday that board agents have traveled to seven other states and six foreign countries during an eight-month investigation into Sinatra's background, but he declined to comment on their confidential 39-page report.

Costs of the investigation must be paid for by Sinatra.

Sinatra applied for permission to work as an entertainment and public relations consultant at Caesars. He once lost a Nevada gaming license because he played host to a reputed mobster at his Lake Tahoe club.

Diane Ladd To Play 'Martha'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Diane Ladd will play Martha Mitchell, wife of the former attorney general, in the theatrical film "Martha."

Miss Ladd, who is currently apparently as Belle in CBS' "Alice," will also serve as executive producer.

She called the late Mrs. Mitchell an "outspoken lady" who became "a gigantic media star who was famous for the truth, no matter what."

Filming Slated Begin Jan. 5

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Fonda and Kris Kristofferson will star in "Roll Over" for Orion-IPC Films.

They will begin work on the contemporary drama in New York on Jan. 5. Alan Pakula will direct from a screenplay by David Shaber.

Lindsay Wagner Plays Publisher

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lindsay Wagner stars as the head of a Texas publishing empire in "Callie and Son," a CBS movie written by Thomas Thompson.

She plays a poor girl who gives up her illegitimate son at birth, then marries a millionaire and reclaims her son, played by Jameson Parker.

The screenplay was written by Thompson, the author of "Blood and Money," the story of a Texas family.

Films Put Into Own Division

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — CBS Theatrical Films has become a separate division of CBS Inc. and will make movies starring Sally Field, Jill Clayburgh and Richard Gere.

The unit has already completed one movie, "Back Roads," starring Miss Field and Tommy Lee Jones. Miss Clayburgh has agreed to star in "Ohio Shuffle," about a woman on the run from a mental institution.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: E equals O

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Opening lead: Jack of ◇.

When this hand was played in a recent pair tournament, a large percentage of the declarers knew exactly now to handle the trump combination. But they were so infatuated with the trump suit that they overlooked another key element of the hand and went down!

There are a variety of ways of getting to four spades—obviously the best contract at duplicate. At rubber bridge, five clubs might be a whit better. The jack of diamonds was the usual opening lead, and when dummy came down, declarer was delighted with his prospects—it seemed that he would have to lose no more than two trump tricks and the ace of clubs.

The declarers were so anxious to extract the enemy trumps that they won the ace of diamonds and immediately led a low spade to the jack—that guarded against even a 5-1 trump break. But see what happened!

West won the queen of trumps and shifted to ace and another club. Declarer won in his hand and frantically led another trump. East won and gave his partner a club ruff—down one.

Have you spotted the simple stratagem that would have saved declarer from his own folly? At trick two, declarer should cash the queen of hearts before touching trumps!

This maneuver makes the contract ironclad. Suppose that West wins the queen of spades and, as before, plays ace and another club. Declarer wins in dummy and cashes the ace and king of hearts, discarding two clubs from his hand. Now he can get back to his hand with a high diamond and lead the king of spades.

West wins and returns a club, but declarer can ruff high, draw trumps and claim the rest of the tricks, thus making his contract.

Reject Report About Garwood

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A 1965 report on Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood's disappearance in Vietnam has been rejected as evidence at Garwood's court-martial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy.

Trial Judge Robert E. Switzer, a Marine colonel, disallowed the investigative report after a witness testified that a portion of the report was based on lies he had told to protect himself.

The report was compiled by Garwood's commander, then Capt. John Studds. Defense attorneys had argued that Studds, who is now a lieutenant colonel, had not prepared a report based on his knowledge but had used information that later was recanted.

Switzer acted after former Marine Pfc. John Geill testified with the fie-man jury out of the room. Geill said the information attributed to him in the report was false.

The report showed that Geill had seen Garwood leave the compound at about 6 p.m. the day Garwood disappeared. However, Geill acknowledged Monday that he actually saw Garwood last during the afternoon at the USO in Da Nang.

"I wasn't supposed to be in the USO. I was on restriction for being UA (unauthorized absence)," Geill said. "I was covering for myself and Garwood."

Under cross-examination Geill said a Naval Investigative Service agent had questioned him earlier about Garwood and had told Geill, "We can't get him (Garwood) on a desertion charge. He's got a lot of money coming. We'll get him on fraudulent enlistment."

Garwood, 34, returned to the United States in 1979, 14 years after he disappeared while serving near Da Nang as a jeep driver. The government contends he remained in Vietnam voluntarily after becoming a turncoat. Garwood has maintained he was a captive of the North Vietnamese.

In testimony earlier Monday, Dr. Floyd Kushner of Ormand Beach, Fla., testified that Garwood elbowed American POW David Harker after American prisoners were lined up for questioning about the killing of the prison commandant's pet cat.

"We were fed three cups of red, vermin-infested rice a day. The camp commander had a pet cat, and we decided to kill it for the protein," Kushner testified. "Russ Grisset and I killed the cat, and, while cooking it, we were caught.

"The whole camp went into an uproar. We were marched to the fence and asked to admit to who did it.

"Russ came forward and admitted it. Russ was beaten and kicked and I was beaten," Kushner said.

"Harker was elbowed by Garwood. He (Garwood) was on the other side of the fence," Kushner added.

Harker testified earlier that he had been struck by Garwood after the incident. Harker acknolwedge that the blow was more of a slap than a closed-fist punch.

Grissett later died in captivity, on Dec. 2, 1968. Kushner said Garwood came to Kushner's hut that day and appeared "deeply moved."

Kushner quoted Garwood as saying: "I've got to get out of here. I can't take any more. I told him (Grissett) to follow me and he would live. But he followed Eisenbraun (another prisoner) and he died."

Kushner said Garwood also mourned the death of North Vietnamese leader Ho Chi Minh.

"When Ho Chi Minh died, the camp went into mourning and the guards and Garwood wore a black ribbon on their lapels or breasts," Kushner said.

Gov. Grasso Is Back In Hospital

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Gov. Ella Grasso, suffering from liver cancer, is back in Hartford Hospital undergoing tests after three days of nausea.

Mrs. Grasso, who is resigning as governor at the end of the year because of her cancer, will undergo "diagnostic evaluation of a possible gastrointestinal problem," hospital spokesman James Battaglio said Monday.

The governor's physicians did not yet know if the intestinal problem was related to the liver cancer diagnosed Nov. 24, Battaglio said.

Mrs. Grasso had gone home Dec. 1 after undergoing treatment for phlebitis in her left leg and chemotherapy for the cancer.

Only 54 days left to be a very shrewd buyer.

Jeannette Cox Realty has purchased a limited amount of first mortgage money at 12⅜%. These funds are available to qualified buyers on a first-come, first-serve basis for any of our listings. The money is available to finance up to 90% on homes to $100,000 and 80% on homes $100,000 to $200,000.

Preparing Official History Of East Carolina Univ.

DREAM TO BE REALIZED — Miss Emma L. Hooper, a faculty member for 34 years, has donated her papers, manuscripts, records and documents to East Carolina University for preparation of an official history of the university.

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
ECU News Bureau

When an official history of East Carolina University is written, it will be the fulfillment of a dream of Miss Emma L. Hooper, the tiny lady who was "unofficial" historian of the institution's first 60 years.

It was a blushing Emma Hooper who, a year before her retirement after 34 years on the faculty, received a kiss on stage for having penned a moving historical pageant to mark the school's Golden Anniversary.

It was Emma Hooper who, during years of teaching English composition and encouraging literary preciseness, carefully collected papers, records and documents which she knew would be invaluable some day in reconstructing East Carolina's early years.

On at least two occasions, she was asked to write the history herself, and she remained in Greenville for two years after retirement working on the project at her own expense. By then she was 70. But after going "home" to Memphis, Tenn., in 1961 she continued for another 10 years until infirmities stopped her.

Now Miss Hooper, 92 years old last month, has donated to the university her voluminous and treasured papers, including an unfinished 1,300-page narrative, in the hope that finally a history will be complete and published.

"I wish there were more I could do to expedite the plan for completion of a history on the founding and development of the university," Miss Hooper says.

ECU, in turn, has commissioned a faculty historian, Dr. Mary Jo Bratton, to research and write an official one-volume history to be completed in 1982, coinciding with the 75th anniversary of ECU's founding.

This, says Miss Hooper, "gives thoughts that are thrilling, humbling and even frightening." Her niece, Mrs. Carl E. Davis of Memphis, wrote that completion of an East Carolina history is Miss Hooper's "dream."

Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer has assured Miss Hooper that "your contribution to this momentous project will be suitably commemorated upon publication of the book.

"Our alumni, students, faculty, staff and friends will forever remember with gratitude your years of outstanding service to the university and especially to the preservation of its records, developments and traditions," Brewer said.

Professor Bratton said Miss Hooper's manuscript and her other materials will be "of great value" in assembling the history.

"In the absence of a University Archives, the initial work in preparing a history of East Carolina has involved the discovery, location and identification of various records," Dr. Bratton said.

When shipped here, Miss Hooper's papers filled two large boxes — 15 cubic feet — and in addition to the manuscript history included original papers, drafts, notes, clippings, printed materials and other related papers. These have now become the property of ECU and are being arranged and will be maintained permanently in the university's Manuscript Collection.

Miss Hooper meanwhile is being kept informed of progress on the project through university officials and friends. She lives in Memphis (at Wesley Highland Manor, a geriatric high rise) with a sister, Lottie, who is 97 years old, and a brother, Ervin, who is 87.

She was born in Mississippi and graduated from Mississippi State College for Women (MSCW) at Columbus, Miss., and taught school in Mississippi. In 1924 after completing her master's degree in English at the University of Virginia, she joined the faculty of what then was East Carolina Teachers College under its first president, Dr. Robert H. Wright.

She remained on the faculty under five presidents, for 34 years, making her home in faculty apartments in Ragsdale Hall where she stored her collection of historical documents in a trunk.

In 1934, Dr. Wright asked her and the late Mamie E. Jenkins, a member of the original faculty, to collaborate in writing a pageant for the 25th anniversary.

The Hooper-Jenkins pageant was written but never presented because of Dr. Wright's death which occurred during its planning.

In 1968, however, Miss Hooper wrote another, entitled "East Carolina's Spade: To Serve," a four-episode pageant based on her records and documents. It was presented on May 3 and 4, 1958, and when Miss Hooper was called to take a bow, she was given a hug and kiss by the president, Dr. John D. Messick. Friends recall that she blushed shyly.

The spade described in the pageant was the one used by Gov. Thomas J. Jarvis when ground was broken for the first six campus buildings in ceremonies on July 2, 1980. The original spade, now a piece of ECU memorabilia, was saved from discard by Miss Hooper's long-time friend, Agnes Barrett of Greenville, who also assisted Miss Hooper's salvage of many papers and records. Mrs. Barrett served as secretary to several East Carolina presidents and as secretary to its board of trustees.

She recalls that when an administration of a president changed or a new board of trustees came in, many old records were marked to be thrown away. However, she stored them in the trunk of her car for Miss Hooper's use.

About a year ago, Miss Hooper wrote to Agnes Barrett that her heart was "full of gratitude for all you have done." She was so encouraged, she wrote, that "I began again my long-held incomplete history of the first sixty years of East Carolina University ... I am sitting now in the midst of what I am trusting will — I'm afraid to use the word soon ... will be on the way..."

DR. MARY JO BRATTON, ECU history professor, will research and write the East Carolina University history to culminate the dream of Emma Hooper, now 92, who lives in Memphis Tenn. (ECU News Bureau Photos)

Cable TV Rate Increase Voted By Ayden Board

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — A rate increase of 85 cents per month was granted to Greenville Cable TV by the Ayden Town Board during its meeting Monday night. The board refused the increase last month, saying Ray Bell from the Cable TV company presented insufficient evidence to justify the raise.

The rate increase only affects customers who subscribe to mini-service. The super-service rate remains the same. "I hope that next time Mr. Bell comes before us for a rate increase he will have sufficient information the first time," said Commissioner Dixon.

"We couldn't provide the town with the figures for Ayden because Ayden is part of the system, which includes Greenville and all of Pitt County," explained Bell. "What we did was compile a percentage cost, approximating cost of construction, gas, and maintenance, as well as the approximate amount lost." Bell added that the increase for the entire town amounts to $53.55 and will affect 63 customers.

The board also approved a one cent per kilowatt hour electric rate increase effective in January. Town Manager Don Russell explained the reason for the rate hike, saying, "At the time we went on Carolina Power and Light we had a set of figures we thought CP&L would be likely to use. Since then they've had a price hike, which we thought would not go into effect until November 18, but went into effect in August."

Town Manager Russell said that the town had planned on paying 1.19 cents per kilowatt hour but was actually paying 1.9 cents per kilowatt hour. "This means we had a $147,000 increase we had not accounted for. After careful study we have determined that it will take a one cent per kilowatt hour increase to make our revenues," he added. "In addition, our fossil fuel charges have escalated. We had anticipated fossil fuel charges of $3 but have paid ones as high as $4." Russell said lower fuel charges this winter should make up for the higher charges.

Jeff McAllister from the Pitt County Council On Aging appeared before the board to request it consider purchasing a new bus. The Council uses Ayden's bus to transport senior citizens from the Winterville - Ayden - Grifton area. "Last year the bus carried over 11,000 people," he commented. "It was bought in 1959 and is not safe or dependable. The bus, for the last year, has averaged $95 per month in repairs."

In other business, the board elected Mayor Ross Persinger to serve as a Mid-East Commission board member. Persinger will replace Commissioner Dixon. Ted Hahn and Sue Moody were also appointed to three-year terms on the Recreation Commission.

A resident of New Street appeared before the board and requested that it install an area light in the vicinity of 1010 New St. According to Utilities Director Mike Finney, there is 225-230 feet between lights on the street. The board agreed to consider the situation.

The board also voted to close the town office and services two days for Christmas, December 25 and 26.

Lennon around noon.

The first two albums Frank Feree sold when he opened Apple Records at 10:30 a. m. were Lennon's newest made in collaboration with his wife, Yoko Ono, "Double Fantasy."

Van Dyke said this album, only recently released, according to "Billboard Magazine," is already No. 12 on the charts, with the single, "Starting Over" already fourth on the top 100 list.

"Starting Over" is a favorite of mine right now, Al Salisbury said, adding that he wasn't too much of a Beatles fan during his earlier years, but likes Lennon's latest effort very much.

"For the past 10 years, Lennon hasn't been much of a force in music," Lawrence said, "but that makes him even more admirable as a person. He's taken out the last five years to be a househusband and raise a son that he and his wife wanted very much to have. He's proved that he's a wonderful human being, not just a pop hero. I can't think of over four or five people outside my immediate family that I'd mourn more than I'm mourning John Lennon today."

Several of the persons interviewed commented on the irony of Lennon's come-back hit's being titled "Starting Over." Van Dyke shared some of the words: "Our life together is so precious together. We have grown. We have grown..."

"Lennon was just now getting back with the public. He'd said in an interview just yesterday how good he felt about 'starting over'," Handelman said. "Now it's all shattered. And the hopes the fans held for a reconciliation between him and Paul McCartney and even of the Beatles somehow or another getting back together again are all ruined."

Former disc jockey Joe Jenkins recalled early Beatlemania and even the days just prior. "I was on the air on WOOW radio one morning in the early 60's," he said, "when this girl called and asked to hear 'I Want To Hold Your Hand.' I had to admit to her that I'd never heard of it, but I got several more calls making the same request within the next day or so, so the owner sent me down to the Music Shop to buy the single. And from the first playing, it took off. I couldn't play it enough to satisfy the fans. The first thing you knew, all we needed to play was the Beatles.

"No one on the planet, with the exception of Mohammed Ali, was better known than John Lennon," Lawrence commented. "People that well-known always incite hate in deranged people."

"I wasn't a great admirer of his," Durwood Smith said, "But I think it's tragic any time some lunatic takes another person's life."

Patsy Galloway voiced a similar reaction. "I'm saddened when anyone is killed so senselessly," she said. "And I'm made more aware of how fortunate I am that my family lives in a relatively peaceful place like Greenville."

"It's one more incident, a flashback, if you will, to the violence of the 60's," Peggy Smith said. "The Beatles, more than any other group, symbolized and indeed created the 60's atmosphere and lifestyle. It's ironic, yet almost predictable, that something like this would happen."
