More Cabinet Choices Slated

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Illinois Agriculture Director John R. Block and New York lawyer Samuel R. Pierce appear in line for Cabinet appointments as Ronald Reagan seeks to complete filling his major administration posts.

Block has been picked to be Reagan's agriculture secretary, said one Republican senator who asked not to be named. Pierce was likely to be named secretary of housing and urban development, making him the first black in the Reagan Cabinet, another Republican senator said.

Reagan's transition office was scheduled to announce additional Cabinet selections today, but press spokesman James Brady declined to say in advance how many of the five remaining Cabinet posts would be filled.

Sources on the transition team, however, said they expected candidates for at least four of the five posts would be announced.

There also were reports that Reagan planned today to name Georgetown University professor Jeane Kirkpatrick as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, a post that has had Cabinet-level status in previous administrations. If appointed, she would be the only woman holding a Cabinet-level post under Reagan unless he chooses a woman as education secretary.

Former South Carolina Gov. James B. Edwards was expected to be named secretary of energy, and the interior secretary's job was expected to go to conservative Colorado attorney James G. Watt, who has been attacked by environmental groups.

It was unclear late Sunday whether Reagan had found a candidate for his final Cabinet post, secretary of education. One problem in filling the job has been the reluctance of prospective nominees to become head of a department the president-elect has pledged to dismantle.

Reagan already has announced his first 10 Cabinet-level nominations.

In Los Angeles, where he is staying, Reagan would say only that he hoped to complete his Cabinet selections by Christmas.

Block, director of the Illinois agriculture department and the owner of a 3,000-acre farm, flew to Washington Sunday, one Senate source said.

Reagan apparently settled on Block following a meeting with him last Thursday. Block visited Reagan at the president-elect's Pacific Palisades home along with the other top contender for the post, Richard Lyng, former president of the American Meat Institute.

Block was actively promoted by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan.

Pierce also met with Reagan last Thursday but declined to say what was discussed. However, several Senate Republicans said they were told Pierce would be chosen to head HUD.

Reagan had settled on Watt for the interior job more than a week ago but an announcement was held up partly because of strong opposition, according to transition officials.

Watt heads a legal defense foundation in Colorado that has contested federal environmental regulations.

He also was reported to be flying to Washington.

Transition sources said several women had been under consideration for education secretary, but at least two top prospects fell through.

Elizabeth Dole, a former member of the Federal Trade Commission and wife of Sen. Dole, had been considered for the job but was instead named a presidential assistant on Saturday.

Marva Collins, founder of a private Chicago school for black children, also has been mentioned as a possible education secretary. But she said Saturday she was not interested in the job.

Among names still being mentioned for the post are Barbara Thompson, Wisconsin superintendent of public education, and Edward Aguirre of Hillsborough, Calif., a Santa Clara County education official.

Hostage Price Unreasonable

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Iran's latest terms for freeing the 52 American hostages have been denounced as unreasonable by Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, and hopes for a Christmas homecoming have evaporated.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has declared, meanwhile, that the United States would not pay ransom to Iran to end the hostages' 415-day captivity.

The two Cabinet officers, giving bleak assessments in separate televised interviews Sunday, indicated there is little chance of a settlement during the month left to the Carter administration.

Muskie, on NBC's "Meet the Press," said it would be very difficult to agree to terms by Jan. 20, and "It certainly is not going to happen by Christmas."

Brown, on CBS' "Face the Nation," declared that the United States could not accede to paying "ransom ... money that was never in this country" to gain release of the hostages.

Asked if Iran's terms, delivered Friday to the State Department, amounted to ransom, Brown said "anything that goes beyond the status quo ... of the situation beforehand, I think, could well be seen in that light."

Iran is calling on the United States to deposit $23 billion in Algeria's central bank as a guarantee for recovery of all deposits Iran had in western banks before militants seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran in November 1979.

Some of the deposits are subject to claims filed against Iran for losses allegedly suffered during the revolution that overthrew the late Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Muskie said Iranian officials seemed to think terms could be set and met with "just the flick of their fingers."

"We regard the response as unreasonable and as requiring of us actions beyond the power of the president to take," he said.

But Muskie said that the administration was willing to lift the economic sanctions imposed by President Carter after the hostages were seized and that it had offered to help set up an international claims commission to handle suits against Iran.

Yet Muskie said the United States has no responsibility for deposits placed in western banks before the embassy takeover. He also said the United States could not make cash guarantees that the deposits would not be seized to offset claims.

"That's not our responsibility," he said.

Muskie said he had discussed the situation with Carter before the television appearance. Therefore, Muskie said, his remarks reflected the administration's "official reaction" although it was not a formal response to Iran's message.

Later, Muskie told reporters there would be a U.S. reply once officials completed their evaluation of Iran's terms.

"We're going to try to continue the effort to achieve the release of the hostages," Muskie said.

"One thing that we do want to make clear, if it isn't clear already, is that they've asked us to go beyond the legal authority of the president," he said in a curbside interview.

"We thought it was clear, but it may not be. So it may be we're still involved in clarification."

The formal U.S. response to Iran appears to be near completion.

Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, who is handling the day-to-day negotiations, conferred for five hours Sunday at the State Department with other officials working on the problem.

He then went on a holiday vacation with his family.

President-elect Ronald Reagan, asked about the latest Iranian terms by reporters Sunday, said he was "not going to comment on that until it's my turn. Then I'll comment."

Iran Claims Negotiation Is Scheduled

By the Associated Press
Algerian intermediaries will chair "detailed negotiations" between Iran and the United States in London this week over the fate of the 52 American hostages, a British newspaper reported today. The State Department said it had no knowledge of such a meeting.

"We're not aware of any meeting in which the United States is participating in London this week," a State Department spokesman said.

The British newspaper Daily Telegraph gave no source for its brief report, the second such account of upcoming secret negotiations on the hostages to appear in less than a week. A French news agency published a similar report in Paris on Dec. 18, which the State Department also denied.

The latest report came one day after Iran demanded the United States deposit some $24 billion in cash and gold in the Algerian central bank before the hostages are freed.

Secretary of State Edmund Muskie called the demands "unreasonable" and said the hostages would not be home by Christmas. A top Iranian official said Iran could hold the 52 captives "for 10 more years." They began their 415th day in captivity today.

Muskie said it would be difficult to agree on terms for the hostages' release before Jan. 20, when President-elect Ronald Reagan takes office.

Asked about Iran's demands, Reagan told reporters he was "not going to comment on that until it's my turn. Then I'll comment."

An official English-language text of the Iranian demands released in Tehran on Sunday says Iran wants $9 billion to cover Iranian assets frozen in U.S. banks after the hostages were seized on Nov. 4, 1979. It asked $10 billion to cover the wealth of the late Shah of Iran and the return of more than 1½ million ounces of Iranian gold deposited in the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank and worth almost $1 billion at current rates.

In addition, the statement said Iran wants $4 billion in cash "or any other valid guarantee acceptable to the (Algerian central) bank, as a guarantee for the bona fide discharge of (the U.S. government's) obligations." It did not define the obligations.

"We regard the (demands) as unreasonable and as requiring of us actions beyond the power of the president to take," Muskie said Sunday on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, appearing on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation," said the United States would not yield to Iran's demands for "ransom ... money that was never in this country."

The Iranian demands, contained in a message to Washington, were made public Sunday in Tehran by Executive Affairs Minister Behzad Nabavi. Nabavi said the hostages could be released 24 hours after the demands were met. But, he added, "There is no room for bargaining."

Nabavi also said the hostages are in good health and may be interviewed for an Iranian television broadcast to be aired in Iran Christmas night.

He said all they have been transferred to "very beautiful hotels provided with complete services" at undisclosed locations.

In London, meanwhile, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Robert Runcie, renewed his appeal to Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to allow a Christmas visit to four Britons detained in Iran since August. The four — three Anglican missionaries and a businessman — were arrested in Iran shortly after British authorities in London arrested large numbers of Iranian demonstrators for disturbing the peace. The demonstrators were later released and some were deported.

In other developments, Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr traveled to the war-torn southern province of Khuzestan Sunday to discuss war strategy with military commanders on the 300-mile-long battlefield with Iran.

Chrysler Talking Pay Freeze Step

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) —

Leaders of the United Auto Workers union gathered today to discuss a wage freeze requested by Chrysler Corp. after the troubled automaker's chairman said he has nothing to offer workers "except their jobs."

The 200-member Chrysler Council, consisting of officers of Chrysler local unions, was being asked by UAW President Douglas Fraser to authorize re-opening of contracts signed in October 1979 and reduced in January in two concessions to the Chrysler automaker.

"We don't see any other choice," Fraser said after Chrysler's request last week.

The freeze, designed to save $600 million by September 1982, is an essential part of Chrysler's appeal for $400 million in government-guaranteed loans.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board must have "some indication" of the union's reaction before it could give even conditional approval to the loan request, Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said after meeting last week with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who chairs the board.

For that reason, Chrysler will wait until after the council acts before formally submitting its plan to the loan board.

"Boys, you've been the highest paid group of guys in the world. We've shared with you. It's freeze time. Chrysler has good jobs at $17.50 an hour. It has none at $22," was the way Iacocca explained his message to the union.

His figures were the approximate 1981 hourly cost of labor to the company with a freeze and the September 1982 cost without one if inflation continues at 10 percent.

Other elements of Chrysler's plan call for a price freeze by suppliers and conversion of bank loans into preferred stock. Altogether, Chrysler is trying to cut 1981 expenses by $1.5 billion.

Iacocca said the survival plan was "rigid" and not subject to bargaining in the usual sense of the word. "The pieces have to come together, or the mosaic will fall right off the wall," he said.

Any wage freeze could not be ratified until after the 69,000 active Chrysler production workers return to their plants from an extended Christmas break on Jan. 12, the UAW says.

Chrysler says at some point it will run out of cash if it does not get the loans in January. Already, the company has almost run through $800 million in guaranteed loans, and, though its sales have improved over last year, the industry-wide slump caused by peaking interest rates will cause a loss of about $200 million in the fourth quarter instead of the profit predicted during the summer.

Fraser observed last week that it was the first time the union had been involved in saving a Big Three company, "but those of us who've been around the parts industry know we've sometimes had to re-open contracts to help companies out."

Winter Slips In With Cold Blast

By MARY SCHULKEN

Winter slipped into eastern North Carolina this past weekend, bringing with it the lowest temperatures of the season.

According to Greenville Utilities' Water Plant, temperatures on Saturday ranged from a high of 46 degrees Fahrenheit to a low of 19 degrees F. On Sunday the plant recorded a low of 15 degrees and a high of only 33 degrees. At 8 a.m. today the temperature was 22 degrees F and the Tar River stood at 3.1 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge.

The sub-freezing temperatures played havoc with exposed pipes and water spigots. Area plumbers reported a number of calls for burst pipes this weekend. Frizzell Plumbing reported ten calls, the most in the area. Marion Ray Smith Plumbing and Heating had five calls, and Sam Pollard and Son had two. Stuart Shinn Plumbing had two calls also and the other plumbing contractors in the area averaged two to three calls for the weekend.

Cars were also victims of the extreme cold. According to Jerry Flake of Sears, the store had only three cases of anti-freeze left in the store Monday morning. "We've also sold a lot of jumper cables and batteries the last few days," he said. Penney's reported that sales of anti-freeze were normal for this time of the year.

"Anti-freeze has been our best seller," said Paula Corbitt of Nichols'

Automotive Department. "We have not sold an unusual amount, though, we've sold about as much as we did last year."

Reggie Nickens, auto manager of K-Mart, reported the store had sold "Quite a bit of anti-freeze, but nothing unusual for this time of the year." Nickens added that batteries and anti-freeze testers were also in demand during the past few days.

Long Sea-Duty Ending For Aircraft Carrier

By R.D. GERSH
Associated Press Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) —

For 7,000 Navy men, the eight-month job of maintaining a U.S. presence at the outskirts of Middle Eastern tensions ends today as a three-ship Indian Ocean Battle Group sails home into Norfolk.

The sailors of the aircraft carrier Eisenhower and cruisers Virginia and South Carolina will get no better present than to be home in time for Christmas with the families and friends they last saw 251 days ago.

The Navy arranged to have official greetings from Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo, Atlantic Fleet commander Adm. Harry Train and local officials done aboard the ships as they sailed into port so the pierside would be free for the reunions a long time in coming.

The three nuclear-powered ships left April 15 to relieve the Indian Ocean Battle Group led by the carrier Nimitz, which housed the ill-fated helicopters used on the aborted mission to rescue the hostages in Iran.

Although no such spotlight fell in the Ike, as the carrier is known, the Iran-Iraq fighting kept her on station through cancelled port calls for 152 straight days at sea to surpass the post-World-War-II record just set by the Nimitz.

The Eisenhower also was one-up on the Nimitz, which saw the first official break of the Navy's 66-year-old ban on shipboard alcohol, with three two-can beer allotments through the one-port call cruise to earn her the nickname of "six-pack" Ike.

There was more beer and champagne Sunday for the 62 aviators of three of the carrier's air squadrons that flew home a day early to Oceana Naval Air Station in nearby Virginia Beach. Other squadrons went home to the West Coast and Florida.

"Readiness was good. We were ready 100 percent of the time," said air wing commander Cmdr. Buz Needham.

"We had a much high readiness posture than we generally experience in the Med (Mediterranean). Daily we were required to respond to problems not more than 400 miles away. And I brought everyone I took out back with me."

Although three aircraft were lost, the squadrons had no fatal accidents.

PUPPY BROKEN OUT

The Pitt County Humane Society has asked Hotline to appeal for information as to the whereabouts of a brown, mostly beagle, dog with a white spot on his forehead. Lightning was placed in the Pitt County Animal Shelter Friday. His owner saw him there Friday night, but was unable to get him out of the fenced-in area. When she met the animal control officer there Saturday morning, they found that someone had broken all the dogs out during the night. Wedding Vows Are Solemnized Sunday

AYDEN — The wedding vows of Miss June Corrine Whitley of Atlantic Beach and John Washington Gillikin Jr. of Morehead City were solemnized Sunday at the Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church here. The 4:30 p.m. double ring ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Weyland S. Burns.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Whitley of Grifton and Atlantic Beach. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. John W. Gillikin Sr. of Morehead City and the late Mrs. Ann W. Gillikin.

Silk Venise lace adorned with bridal pearls and iridescents trimmed the neckline, yoke and bodice, accented by chantilly lace and bridal pearls. The full skirt, highlighted with appliques of chantilly lace, was designed with a deep flounce trimmed with rows of chantilly lace which flowed into a chapel train. The veil was a walking length mantilla of silk trimmed with pearls and chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses and silk lily of the valley, accented with cranberry pixie carnations, holly and English ivy with lace streamers.

Ms. Sharon J. Lewis of Morehead City served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Joyce McGalliard of Greenville, Mrs. Nancy Bowman of Greensboro, Carol Pierce of Rocky Mount, Kathy McQuaid of Beaufort and Mrs. Donna Diehl of Grifton. They wore formal gowns of burgandy lustreglo designed with a burgandy chiffon cape adorned matching silk flowers and a flared skirt. A reception was held at the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Thelbert Hart greeted the guests and Mrs. Mary Ann Holland presided at the register. Mrs. Hazel Harris served the punch and Mrs. Pauline Gillikin served the cake. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jarvis said good-byes.

The bridegroom's father gave a rehearsal dinner at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church Saturday night.

Mrs. Athelene Garris and Ronald Garris entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests with a wedding breakfast at the church Sunday morning.

Following a wedding trip to Florida and the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Morehead City. Rarely Dollars, Mostly Cents

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling NEEDS TIPS ON TIPPING that waitresses need tips to survive. But let me give you a little tip, Abby. Waitresses and waiters are not paid the minimum wage of $3.10. I've been a waiter in Louisiana for 21 years, and most of those years I earned 36 cents an hour — now it's 85 cents an hour — so if it weren't for my tips, I'd be in the poorhouse. Also, if a dish is broken or a customer walks out without paying, it comes out of my pay.

GEORGE IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR ABBY: Correction, please. Here's one waitress whose hourly pay has varied from 50 cents an hour to $1.50 depending on where I've worked. Our employers assume that we will make $3.10 with our tips. Sometimes we do and sometimes we don't. Very few people realize this. Pass the word.

HELEN IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR ABBY: I'm 53, have been a waitress for 35 years, and I love my work. In Brunswick, Ga., the tops is $1.90 an hour, and tips make up the rest. How would you like to serve four adults and five children a full-course dinner for a $1 tip? It happens.

BLONDY

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired minister, and nowhere does the Bible say that anyone is exempt from tithing, which means giving 10 percent of your income to the church. So since I give God 10 percent, no way will I put the waitress who delivers the best-caliber service on the same level with God. Therefore, I tip waitresses between 7 and 8 percent, and I am not ashamed of it.

FROM IOWA

DEAR ABBY: No complaints from California. I've got a couple of college degrees but they don't pay the rent. I dig being a waiter. I like the work, I enjoy the people I meet, and the hours suit me. A first-class waiter can make a good living anywhere in the world.

VINNIE IN L.A.

DEAR ABBY: Please let the public know the truth about how much most restaurants pay their help. Where I work, the tops is $1.86 an hour. There is no sick pay, no benefits, no health plan and no retirement. We buy our own uniforms, tip the bartenders and busboys out of our pockets, and we're charged for our own meals whether we eat here or not. Add to that the cost of buying foot-soak, corn plasters and comfortable shoes, and you'll realize how important tips are.

One of the latest introductions into the eyewear marketplace is the photochromic lens. Its popularity is based upon its unique ability to lighten or darken its tint in accordance with the amount of light that strikes it. It works due to the fact that it is sensitive to both visible and ultraviolet light. When struck by light, the invisible micro crystals of silver halide darken. With the removal of light, the crystals clear again. This photochromic process is locked into the composition of the glass indefinitely.

Eyewear has attained a place of prominence far beyond the vital function of vision correction that was once its sole purpose. Fashion, fit and convenience are of utmost importance today. At CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1706 6th Physicians Quadrangle, Building A, we are in tune with the times and offer the eyewear selection and the professional assistance required to adequately meet everyone's needs in all areas. Haithcock-Verdon Vows Are Exchanged Connie Lynn Verdon of Cary and Wiley Stuart Haithcock of Greenville exchanged wedding vows Sunday at 3 p.m. at the First Christian Church here. Dr. Will B. Wallace performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Robert John Verdon and Mrs. Mary Verdon Lewis of Cary. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elsie Haithcock of Burlington.

Mrs. Troy Jackson was organist for the ceremony.

The bride wore a gown of qiana trimmed with Venise silk lace featuring a Queen Anne neckline and covered buttons which accented the back of the dress. The chapel length veil with a Juliet cap was also trimmed with pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Barbara Berube of Virginia Beach, Va. was maid of honor while Kitty Hedgepeth of Plymouth served as matron of honor. Laura Fauceth of Burlington and Holly Harrell of Virginia Beach, Va. were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of dusty rose with a cap bodice and a floor length pleated skirt. Their flowers were bouquets of mums and baby's breath.

Best men were Stephen and Stanley Earl Haithcock, brothers of the bridegroom of Burlington. Ushers were Mike Keziah of Burlington and Wayne Cole of Myrtle Beach, S.C.

A reception was held at Peaches hosted by Rick and Ronnie Cox.

MRS. WILEY STUART HAITHCOCK

On Saturday evening, a rehearsal dinner was given by the mother of the bridegroom at Sweet Carolines for the family and wedding party.

Following a wedding trip to Vermont, the couple plans to live in Greenville. Both graduates of East Carolina University, the bride is employed at D. A. Kelly's and the bridegroom is the business manager of Peaches.

Knowledge Saved A Life

In Beaufort County a Chocowinity teacher, Jane Duke Garrett was honored with the American Red Cross Certificate of Merit last week.

The award is given only to those who "save or sustain a life by using skills learned in a volunteer training program."

Mrs. Garrett was trained in the Red Cross cardio-pulmonary resuscitation method. She came to the aid of a student last May. The youngster was choking on candy and Mrs. Garrett dislodged it and restored breathing.

"Without a doubt she saved the victim's life," the citation read.

This represented quick thinking on the part of the teacher, but she could not have reacted properly if she had not had the vital training.

All of us need to have some basic knowledge of procedures to help out in an emergency. It could mean the saving of a life.

'Wilmington 10' Now In Past

Following a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision overturning the Wilmington 10 convictions, the N. C. attorney general's office has decided against further appeals of the case.

Despite the fact that the verdict was upheld in previous court reviews the decision is wise.

Attorney General Rufus Ed-misten said the appeal would serve no useful purpose and would be costly.

There will also be no re-trial of the case. Re-assembling witnesses and evidence would be nearly impossible after all these years.

It is best now for North Carolina to put the matter into the past.

THIS AFTERNOON

Program Enjoyed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — North Carolina's fledgling Community Schools program is apparently meeting with considerable success in the 118 local school units which so far have joined in.

Participants seem to like it best. They find the local school buildings available for use in a variety of educational, recreational, cultural, social and religious activities. The red tape and administrative resistance which once typified public use of the school buildings after hours has pretty much been eliminated.

But school administrators — while they see some positive benefits — also have some reservations. Keeping the buildings open is costing added money for personnel and energy; there is more paperwork; some report an increase in vandalism and theft; and competition or duplication is being found between the schools and other agencies.

A Survey

These are the bottom-line results of a survey of the state's Community Schools program conducted by the Department of Adult and Community College Education at North Carolina State University.

The survey touched base with some 300 individuals — members of local school boards, members of community school advisory groups, school administrators, and participants — in a representative sampling of people across the state.

From the wealth of information gathered, one factor stands out. Asked simply to rate the "goodness" of community schools on a scale of one to 10, "it is impressive that the average rating from all respondents is 7.9, with little variation for each group," pollsters reported.

The large majority felt the program should be expanded with particular programs serving more people in the communities.

The General Assembly

special education programs.

To date, 118 of the state's 145 local school units are participating with 1,154 schools specifically designated as community school sites. The combined state and local budget is now over $4 million.

Results

Here are a few of the results across the state: Vance County recreation people provide supervisors in school gyms; closed schools have been turned over to community agencies for various uses in Harnett, Pitt, Randolph, Kinston, Clinton, and elsewhere. Local schools and recreational departments are building swimming pools, tennis courts, parks, and nature trail facilities in Cleveland, Buncombe, Alleghany, Union and Wake counties. Elementary students took Spanish lessons after hours, leading the local school board to put French into the lower school curriculum.

Libraries are being kept open in summers in various places; and some are experimenting with operating full public libraries in schools.

The most popular use is recreational, followed by education; then come social, civic and religious activities.

Other Editors Say Not Good Logic

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

One of the ways President-elect Ronald Reagan might impress the people would be to take steps to stop the proposed postal increase now in the works. You don't stop inflation when you have a 33.3 percent increase on a first-class postage stamp. Other postal rates would rise accordingly.

The Postal Service, for all practical purposes, has already put newspapers out of the mail subscription business. In Charlotte and other large cities throughout the country, the Wall Street Journal is now being delivered door-to-door. Our second-class postage rate to mail this newspaper has increased four-fold over the past 10 years. Mail subscriptions now actually cost us money to handle, and the rates are as high as they should be. If the Postal Service continues to increase its rates, almost all of your national magazines will be delivered by someone other than the post office.

In recent years, the cost of mailing a book has gone up 350 percent, postage for magazines has gone up 525 percent, and the cost of mailing a letter has gone from six cents to 15. The 20-cent stamp for 1981 appears to become a certainty unless President-elect Reagan or someone can slow down the Postal Service.

Most of the additional costs are in payroll, which amounts to 86 percent of every dollar the Postal Service receives. Last year an arbitrator called in to break a deadlock in wage negotiations rejected a management proposal for a seven percent ceiling on a cost of living pay increase. Such ceilings are not uncommon, but the arbitrator ruled that the wage escalator would follow the consumer price index up into double-digit levels. Most economists think the consumer price index exaggerates the effect of inflation on the cost of living.

Inflation will never stop until the federal government slows down on the wages that it pays its employees. The Postal Service now operates as a private business, but its closeness to the government and its special privilege to handle the mail should be taken into consideration when the cost of a first-class postage stamp is determined.

A LIFE OF SELF-EFFACEMENT

Fifty years ago Sundar Singh, a 14-year-old boy from an aristocratic Indian family, made a pilgrimage to Tibet to commit suicide. He was heartbroken over the death of his mother. But on the morning he planned to carry out the deed, he had a profound religious experience which made him one of the most influential Christians of Asia.

After his conversion he put on the robes of a Sadhu, one of those Hindu holy men who give their lives to fasting,

Policy Of Moderation

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration has a new approach to human rights which, while it won't affect anyone in the United States, may have some important ramifications for political prisoners around the world. The philosophy of the new approach was expressed recently by Prof. Jeanne Kirkpatrick of Georgetown University, who is a very influential Reagan adviser.

"If we are confronted with the choice between offering assistance to a moderately repressive autocratic government, which is also friendly to the United States, and permitting it to be overrun by a Cuban-trained, Cuban-armed, Cuban-sponsored insurgency, we would assist the moderate autocracy," Ms. Kirkpatrick was quoted as saying.

Nobody in his or her right mind would argue with that. The big question is, how far a moderately repressive autocratic government can go to keep the opposition down? New human rights guidelines will have to be written for the MRAG countries.

Right now the ambassadors

of Moderately Repressive Autocratic Governments are being called home for Christmas to advise their juntas on what the new American government will expect of them in the human rights field.

"Colonels, I am happy to report that we can expect all the support we need from the United States to put down the political opposition, providing we can prove our repressive government is being threatened by Cuban intervention."

"Suppose we can't prove it?"

"They'll take our word for it, if we can produce confessions from our political opponents."

"Does that mean we can still resort to torture to exact the confessions?"

"In moderation. Obviously, a certain amount of torture has to be used but we can't overdo it."

"Can we still beat political prisoners with truncheons?"

"Of course that is acceptable. But attaching electric wires to a person's intimate parts can only be done under the supervision of a doctor."

"What about dunking them in water until they almost drown?"

"If it's done with compassion. But I think we better stay away from pulling out fingernails, at least at the beginning of the Reagan term."

"Can we continue summary executions without trials?"

"Nobody in the Reagan transition team has spoken out against them. From all I can gather, the U.S. will no longer interfere in our justice system."

"Thank God. Does that mean we can still throw writers, editors and students

'Trapped' In Afghanistan?

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — One year after the Kremlin sent troops into Afghanistan, some Soviet officials have admitted they may not have weighed all the "pros and cons" in advance. But they say they are convinced it was worthwhile, and claim it has revealed some sharp divisions in the Western alliance.

"It was something we felt we had to do," a Soviet foreign affairs specialist said in a recent interview. "I don't think that when the decision to go into Afghanistan was made, there was a very careful weighing up of the pros and cons. But in the long run, it seems to have been worth it."

The Soviet Union still faces international condemnation, trade restrictions and a grueling guerrilla war in Afghanistan itself. But the officials, who declined to be identified, say they believe international opposition has passed its peak and the Soviet army is gradually pacifying the anti-communist Moslem rebellion in Afghanistan.

On the plus side for Moscow, the prospect of a militant Islamic, anti-Soviet Afghanistan on its southern border has been destroyed for the time being, the officials say. They add that Third World countries and the West have seen that the Kremlin does not shy from defending its vital interests — by force if necessary.

In addition, they believe Moscow's Afghan intervention has revealed cracks in the Western alliance.

Despite a Western trade embargo sponsored by the Carter administration, Soviet business this year with France, West Germany, Italy and Britain is running at more than the level of business last year. Canada and Australia have removed ceilings on grain sales to Moscow imposed after the Afghan intervention.

Western diplomats counter that the Soviets still face many problems over Afghanistan, perhaps so many that thoughts of other military intervention — in Poland, for instance — have been shelved.

These sources say the Soviet Army has suffered more than 7,000 casualties in a year of fighting elusive, poorly equipped guerrilla forces. It has failed to get much help from the desertion-plagued Afghan army and has no early prospect of being able to withdraw, the diplomats say.

"They thought that if the great, mighty Soviet army went in there, the resistance would just fold up like it did in Czechoslovakia in 1968," one Western specialist said. "It didn't happen."

Rival wings of the pro-Soviet Afghan government continue to attack each other under the Soviets' noses, according to reports from the area. Rebels reportedly control much of the countryside and the anti-Soviet guerrilla resistance is too diffuse to negotiate with, even if Moscow wanted to.

"I'd say the Russian army is trapped down there for at least another year or two, unless they can negotiate with someone," a Western diplomat said. "They're probably also facing the temptation of escalation, which would take them in deeper in the hope of finishing the job against the rebels."

Western sources also reject the Soviet assertion that international furor is dying down over Afghanistan. They note that U.S.-Soviet trade is expected to decline 20-30 percent from last year, mostly due to a U.S. grain embargo that many believe also has produced a decline in Soviet meat production.

To protest the Afghan intervention, the United States also shelved the SALT II treaty, putting off any effort to seek Senate ratification of the new strategic arms limitation agreement, and many Western countries have cut off or reduced cultural ties with the Soviet Union.

Yet Moscow is hoping the West and its news media have a limited attention span. The Afghan crisis was not mentioned directly in the presidential debate this year between Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, and more newspaper space has been devoted recently to Poland and the Iran-Iraq crisis than Afghanistan.

Many Soviet officials

Know Your U.S. Savings Bonds

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

If you're one of the millions of Americans who own U.S. Savings Bonds, it might pay to review your investment to make sure you know exactly what you have.

Are you taking full advantage of the tax breaks available with bonds, for example? Do you have old bonds that should be cashed in? What should you do about the accumulated interest?

Sales of savings bonds have been sagging as buyers turned to investments that offered higher interest rates. But the government estimates that one-third of all American families still own the familiar certificates.

There are two types of Savings Bonds now being sold — Series EE and Series HH. They replaced the Series E and H bonds at the beginning of 1980, but all outstanding E and H bonds still earn interest.

Series EE bonds are available in denominations from $50 to $10,000. They are sold at half their face value. Series EE bonds sold before Nov. 1, 1980 reach maturity in 11 years; those sold after Nov. 1 reach maturity in 9 years. Interest is paid when you cash in the bonds. The interest rate on bonds held to maturity was recently increased from 7 percent to 8 percent.

Series HH bonds are available in denominations from $50 to $10,000. They are sold at face value and have a maturity of 10 years. Interest is paid semi-annually. The rate was recently increased from 6½ percent to 7½ percent. Bondholders must report the interest annually on their tax returns.

Interest on Series EE bonds — and on the older E bonds — is exempt from, state and local income taxes, however. And you do not have to pay federal income tax on the interest until you cash in the bonds.

As a general rule, it is worthwhile to defer the federal tax until you are in a lower tax bracket — after retirement, for example. But there are some exceptions. If you buy the bonds in the name of your child — who has no other major source of income — it usually pays to report the interest annually. Simply file a 1040 tax return for the youngster during the first year of ownership; if the child's unearned income is less than $1,000, no tax is due. You do not have to file further returns in later years; the single return is enough to establish your intent.

Owners of older Series E bonds, meanwhile, face some key decisions starting next

The government traditionally has extended the maturity for Series E bonds so that holders did not have to cash them in if they didn't want to; the bonds simply kept earning interest. Now, however, the government has announced there will be no further extensions for the oldest outstanding Series E bonds — the ones sold between May 1941 and April 1952. Those bonds will reach maturity exactly 40 years from the date of issue; they will not earn interest after that date.

Holders of bonds can cash them in and pay federal income taxes on the accumulated interest, or they can cash in the bonds and reinvest the proceeds in Series HH bonds. Interest paid on HH bonds is subject to taxes, but the lump sum earned on the E bonds remains sheltered.

IRS Mailing

Tax Forms

GREENSBORO — The Internal Revenue Service will begin mailing more than 2,254,000 Federal tax forms packages to North Carolina taxpayers on December 29, 1980, the IRS has announced.

In most cases, taxpayers will receive the same forms which they filed last year, the IRS said.

Those taxpayers needing additional forms or publications should use the order coupon in the tax package to order, or call the IRS bulk forms toll-free number 1-800-241-3860. Post Offices, and most banks will stock a limited number of the basic forms for public use.

The IRS also announced the Publication 17, the most popular of the free material offered, will not be available to the public until about January 5, 1981. This publication should be ordered from the Southeast Distribution Center, Caller Number 848, Atlanta, Ga. 30301.

Internships

Are Available

College students from Pitt County, home for the holidays, may already be thinking about plans for next summer. They may be eligible for one of 125 state government internships which will be available in 13 different state agencies.

Students will work for 10 weeks, from June 8 to Aug. 14, earning $3.12 per hour. In addition to a 40-hour workweek, they will attend seminars to learn more about state government and how it works.

The deadline for submitting applications is Feb. 13. For more information, contact the Youth Involvement Office, N.C. Department of Administration, Room 115, 112 W. Lane St., Raleigh, N.C. 27611, 919/733-5966.

Pay Scale Of Autoworkers May See Some Cutting

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Autoworkers have long been among the best paid industrial workers in the United States, but that may be changing.
Chrysler Corp. workers are being asked to accept a wage freeze until September 1982, a move that would reduce pay by $600 million from what is called for in the company's contract with the United Auto Workers.

The freeze is being proposed as part of a package to keep Chrysler operating, and there is no question that factors other than pay scales helped cause the company's current problems.

But the proposal, which the UAW confronts today, does raise the question of whether American autoworkers are overpaid.
Richard Debs, president of United Auto Workers union Local 1776 in Ypsilanti, Mich., states the autoworkers' case:

"I hear that argument a lot. My reply is that based on the profits the corporations have been making until recently, we're not overpaid. Autoworkers are productive, hardworking people.

"Take the guy operating a spot welding gun. The cars are 70 an hour. We've been working overtime. When that fellow goes home at the end of the day, say with two hours overtime, he's one tired individual. He's welded 700 cars. There's a lot of stress. He's not overpaid.

"We do have people with a lot of absenteeism and sick time. That's what management complains about. You never hear management complaining that we're overpaid."

Debs' plant makes the successful "X-car" compact for General Motors Corp. Only a handful of plants have much overtime this year, and nearly 190,000 autoworkers are on indefinite layoff.

An hour's labor from the average wage earner cost GM $18.60 in the third quarter, and costs Chrysler $17.31 now. The worker doesn't see all of that because fringe benefits are a large part.

His union brothers at Chrysler will take a pay cut, Debs predicts: "We'll do anything to save our jobs."

That's a good thing, says Robert M. Dunn Jr., an economist at George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

"It's about time for U.S. autoworkers to stop moaning about our economic plight and do something about it, like take a sizeable pay cut," he says.

Autoworkers have been paid well, in Dunn's view, because for decades the industry has been highly concentrated, with high profits going to few producers. Because the industry was concentrated, it was easy for the UAW to organize workers and gain a larger share of the profits through strikes and the threat of strikes.

Their pay lead over other industrial workers, "remarkably, has widened as the American auto industry's troubles have worsened," he wrote recently for the Washington Post.

In the 1950s, when three-quarters of the world's cars and trucks were built in North America, automakers were more profitable than other manufacturing companies.

North America now builds about a third of the world's vehicles, imports have 26 percent of the U.S. car market and last year the automakers were far less profitable than other manufacturers.

This year, of course, there are no profits. Car companies are losing vast sums — $3.5 billion for the Big Three in the first nine months of the year.

But the autoworker — if he is working — continues to do well. According to figures compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, workers making "motor vehicles and car bodies" made an average of $11.16 before taxes in September, not counting fringe benefits. That was 50 percent more than the average factory wage. A year earlier, the lead was 43 percent. In 1963, the lead was 33 percent.

In the past, union and company representatives have argued that growing productivity justified the ever-better wages. Peter Pestillo, Ford's vice president in charge of labor relations, said recently, "Our productivity growth is still good, but the tremendous investments costs we have put us at a disadvantage."

Ford Motor Co. already has said it probably would seek union concessions if Chrysler wins a wage freeze. Dunn said General Motors Corp. could tolerate Ford success only briefly: "They can't stand a cost structure so different for their competitors. They'll scream."

Predict Holiday Traffic Deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic accidents over the Christmas holiday may claim 650-750 lives and leave another 28,000 to 35,000 people disabled, the National Safety Council says.

Those death and accident totals were estimated by the council for the period beginning at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Christmas Eve, through midnight Sunday.

During last year's four-day Christmas holiday, the council reported 693 people were killed and 30,500 were injured in traffic accidents nationwide.

Actress Directs First Of Series

CHICAGO (AP) — Joanne Woodward is directing the first of a series of hour-long films, "Sense of Humor," now filming in Evanston, Ill.

The series by Rubicon Productions is based on humorous short stories. The production stars Estelle Parsons, Barbara Baxley and Sylvia Sidney.

Convicted Of $1 Million Theft

NEW YORK (AP) — The founder of the First Women's Small Business Investment Corp. has been convicted of stealing more than $10 million from the U.S. Small Business Administration and five other lending institutions.

Sandra Brown, 41, was found guilty Saturday on 76 counts of grand larceny, forgery and conspiracy.

She was charged with defrauding the SBA and several banks between 1976 and 1979 through a network of nonexistent and poorly financed corporations.

Saturday Collisions Are Reported

An estimated $8,700 property damage resulted from two Saturday collisions, Greenville Police Department investigators reported today.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 6:30 p.m. incident at McDonald's restaurant on Memorial Drive.

Investigators reported a car driven by Kevin Timothy Logan of 325 Bubba Blvd., went out of control on Memorial Drive and ran into the McDonald's parking lot, causing damage to parked cars owned by Alton Whitehurst of Bethel, Teresa Braxton Evans of Route 8, Greenville, and Sarah Musselwhite of Route 2, Farmville.

Police, who said Logan and a passenger in his car were injured, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Logan car, $2,000 to the Whitehurst vehicle, $500 to the Evans car and $2,000 to the Musselwhite auto. An estimated $450 damage resulted to property at McDonald's also, officers said.

Logan was charged by investigators with driving under the influence.

Vehicles driven by Danny Keith Martin of Route 1, Pendleton and Kimberly Anne McLawhorn of Evans Trailer Park, collided about 5 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 200 feet south of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing an estimated $50 damage to the Martin truck and $2,000 damage to the McLawhorn car.

New Position For Dr. Cox

AUBURN — Dr. J. Grady Cox, dean of Auburn University's School of Engineering, has been named executive vice president of the University.

Cox's appointment is effective immediately according to Auburn president Dr. Hanly Funderburk.

Cox replaces Dr. Rex K. Rainer who is now serving as special assistant to Governor Fob James in Montgomery. Cox will maintain his tenured faculty position in the department of civil engineering while providing those services.

"Dr. Cox is a very capable administrator," said Funderburk. "He has the respect of the Auburn faculty and staff and he should help improve communications throughout the university."

Business Suit Said Sufficient

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A plain business suit will be in good taste for Gov. Jim Hunt's inauguration.

In a statement released Sunday, Hunt said he wanted "sure that everybody understands that this is the people's inauguration" and special attire is not necessary.

"Four years ago that was also the case, and I see no reason to do differently this time," he said.

The swearing in ceremonies for Hunt and the Council of State will be held in front of the Archives and History building on Jones Street at noon on Jan. 10. A parade and reception will follow.

system.
Cox said he would be "as fair, as professional, and as open as I know how to be," as executive vice president. "I am convinced of the president's commitment to quality academic programs in all areas and will support him to those ends completely," said Cox.

In his new position, Cox will be responsible for administering the academic, research, and extension affairs of the University on a day-to-day basis.

Cox is a native of Winterville, N.C. He came to Auburn as a Navy student in 1945. He received a degree in chemical engineering in 1948 and a master's degree in math from Auburn in 1950. He holds a doctorate from Purdue in industrial engineering.

'Rat Killing' At Grifton A Success

GRIFTON — About 500 people attended the 13th annual "Rat Killing" sponsored by Wiley Gaskins here Friday night.

"We had a good time...everybody," Gaskins said this morning, noting that "probably the biggest name," to attend the event this year was N.C. Attorney General Rufus Edmisten. The rest, the host noted, "were just ordinary folks...friends," from all across the state.

What is a "rat killing?" In this case, it's free drinks (both alcoholic and non-alcoholic), hors d'oeuvres, good food, and fellowship. It's also Gaskins' way of saying, "Merry Christmas."

"There were a third more people that I expected," since the elections are over, Gaskins noted.

Program In Arthritis

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A new program to identify and rehabilitate industrial workers with arthritis will be available to North Carolina plants in January.

"This is designed to be an innovative, model program for identifying and solving some of the problems faced by workers with arthritis," said Dr. Kenneth Mitchell, director of the program developed at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Arthritis is the leading cause of industrial absenteeism in the United States, accounting for an estimated 27 million lost work days a year and $5 billion in lost wages.

The program establishes a counseling service to screen workers with arthritis and help them get proper medical care.

"As far as we know, this is the first direct link between industry, rehabilitation services and an academic medical center for the purpose of dealing with a specific health problem..." Mitchell said.

The program's rehabilitation service will offer vocational counseling for workers who may have trouble getting or holding a job.

Burlington Industries, which took an active role in planning for the program, which is called the Industrial Rheumatology Rehabilitation Service. The company plans to use it in several North Carolina plants.

Named In Honor Of Industrialist

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University's has named its graduate school of business administration in honor Atlanta industrialist J.B. Fuqua.

Fuqua, chairman of the board of Fuqua Industries, recently gave more than $10 million to the Duke Business School. He has been a trustee of the university and a member of the business school's advisory board since 1974.

The graduate school has grown from 12 students in 1970 to more than 350 students in 1980.

Chancellor Has Slight Stroke

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Christopher C. Fordham III, chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, was hospitalized Sunday after suffering a slight stroke.

A spokesman at North Carolina Memorial Hospital said Fordham, 54, was admitted after complaining of a muscle weakness in the left side of his body.

The spokesman said Fordham was in stable condition, and was scheduled to undergo further tests.

Wood is a unique material. According to a brochure provided by the Koppers Company, "To the botanist, wood is xylem. To the physicist, it is a stiff fibrous jelly or gel. To the chemist, it is lignocellulose with a dash of minerals caught up in water from the roots. To the archeologist, wood is man's first building material and possibly his first tool. To Noah, it was buoyant salvation, to Joyce Kilmer, a miracle still. For the violinist, the archer, the architect, this oldest of structural materials is still in many ways the best — and getting better: sturdy, rich, natural, elegant, eminently workable, strong for its weight (with a higher ratio of crush strength to density than iron or steel) yet just elastic enough to resonate for the violinist or the pianist — for the architect — to bend a little and recover without breaking during an earthquake. And the clincher: wood is renewable, the one renewable building material nature provided to humankind."

Wood can last a lifetime if properly installed and maintained. The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service has information on how to install, maintain and ensure that your wood will last for years.

Wood that is used in home construction is of primary importance for most of us. Any homeowner can check for signs of wood deterioration by looking in various critical areas. Nowadays, houses are built tighter to conserve heating and cooling costs. This type of construction may mean that moisture can build up indoors without an outlet. Excess moisture can mean that some wood will be affected by wood rotting fungi.

If you are building a house, make sure that shingles form a continuous line at the eaves and drip line. Be sure that there is sufficient slashing at any place the roof intersects another surface. Beware of insufficient attic and crawl space ventilation. Never allow wood to be in contact with the soil. In eastern North Carolina it is important that water drains away from the foundation.

GREENE COUNTY'S R-9-P PROGRAM SUCCESSFUL — Michael Dyer and J.B. McLawhorn accept the second place plaque and $650 cash award for Greene County's outstanding completion of the R-9-P (Reduce Nine Pests) Disc for Dollars flue-cured tobacco program. The presentation was made by Hoover Thomas, TUCO technical extension field representative, and Furney Todd, professor of plant pathology at NCSU. Winning counties were recognized during the 22nd Annual Extension Research on Wheels Review held at NCSU earlier in December. R-9-P is a statewide community action program designed to reduce the nine major tobacco pests with a four step stalk destruction program. It also increases tobacco value by reducing pest carryover and damage next season.

such as leaking gutters, poor attic or crawl space ventilation, termite tubes in the foundation, wood in contact with the soil, poor drainage around the house and earth-filled porches. All of these building mistakes can be costly to the unsuspecting homeowner. In the attic, pay close attention to leaks around vent pipes, mildew on sheathing and insect holes in wood. In the crawl space, water leaks around pipes and plumbing, wood in contact with soil, and termite tubes on the foundation all spell trouble.

Found Marijuana On Fishing Vessel

YORKTOWN, Va. (AP) — The routine boarding of a 76-foot Panamanian fishing vessel has resulted in the seizure of an estimated $25.4 million worth of marijuana.

Eight crewmen, some American and some Panamanian, were arrested Sunday in what the U.S. Customs Service described as "by far the largest" marijuana seizure ever made in Virginia.

Twenty tons of marijuana were confiscated from the hold of the white-hulled Silvano after it was seized about 12:50 p.m., several hours after it ran aground near an oil company dock just inside the mouth of the York River.

Customs Service spokesman James Mahan said investigators do not know where the marijuana came from.

"We won't know where it's from until we can determine the boat's last port of call" or until the marijuana is analyzed, Mahan said.

Depending on where the marijuana is from, the smugglers may have paid as little as $1 million for the boat load. Mahan said the $25.4 million value placed on it is its street sales value in the United States.

Petty Officer George Stuart of the Coast Guard said the Silvano first aroused suspicion when it entered the York River at 6:10 a.m. Sunday and was reported to be "operating erratically" and failing to display running lights.

A small Coast Guard boat was dispatched to investigate and it discovered about 10 a.m. that the Silvano had run aground, Stuart said.

A boarding party of Coast Guardsmen and Customs officers searched the ship, discovered the marijuana and seized the vessel and crew, Stuart and Mahan said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose in early trading today extending the market's gains of late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 5.72 to 942.92 in the first half hour of trading.

Gaining issues outnumbered losers by about 3-to-2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some analysts say one source of optimism is the hope that interest rates have peaked although that view is far from universal.

The prime interest rates reached a record 21.5 percent at most large banks on Friday.

Today, a very small bank, the Southwest Bank in St. Louis, said it was lowering its prime business loan rate to 20 percent. No other bank immediately followed that move.

Among actively traded issues in the early going were: American Express, up 1/8 to 39 1/2; American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/4 to 49; J.P. Morgan & Co., up 1/4 to 49 1/2; and Centex Corp. off 1/4 to 40.

On Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average gained 7.00 to 937.20 after gaining more than 18 points in the previous three sessions.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin on the NYSE Friday.

Big Board volume totaled 50.77 million shares, against 69.57 million in the previous session.

Blood Visit 'Opportunity' Alford Says

This season the holiday visit of the Bloodmobile offers a "tremendous opportunity for the folks of Pitt County and eastern North Carolina" to give blood, reminded Ott Alford, chairman of the county Blood Committee.

The visit is being sponsored by the Daily Reflector, WNCT-TV, and WOOW Radio and will take place Dec. 26 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Dec. 26 visit is the first in a year and a half that has been aimed at a public turnout.

According to Alford, the media and blood officials have set a goal of 300 units of blood for the special visit and every effort will be made to encourage and secure advance pledges from area groups and individuals.

Defer Ruling On Scandal

JERUSALEM (AP) — New evidence prompted an Israeli parliamentary committee today to postpone its decision on whether to strip Religious Affairs Minister Aharon Abu-Hatzeira of his immunity so that he can face bribery charges.

The new evidence concerned the manner in which police obtained a state's witness against Abu-Hatzeira, said committee chairman Moshe Meron.

Abu-Hatzeira and his aide Moshe Gabbai are facing charges of taking about $15,000 in bribes for funneling funds to religious institutions. Abu-Hatzeira has agreed to have his parliamentary immunity removed so that he can stand trial and, he says, prove his innocence.

The committee was to rule on the immunity question today, but put off the decision until next week following a letter from Attorney General Yitzhak Zamir concerning the state's witness.

Few details were available. The new evidence concerning the manner in which the police persuaded Israel Gottlieb, a politician of Abu-Hatzeira's National Religious Party to turn state's evidence.

The case against Abu-Hatzeira rests heavily on Gottlieb's testimony. Zamir wrote that he had not known until now that police interrogated Gottlieb for eight hours before he agreed to turn state's evidence.

Zamir wrote that he had not changed his mind about pressing charges against Abu-Hatzeira, but wanted time to evaluate the new findings.

The men died in the crash Friday, and a state forest ranger rescue team reached the remote crash site early Sunday morning. Sub-zero temperatures, wind and blowing snow hampered the rescue.

Poison Gas Cloud Freed

DUISBURG, West Germany (AP) — A Dutch tanker ran aground in the lower Rhine River and released a cloud of poison gas in the heavily-populated region, police said today.

No injuries were reported in the Sunday accident, authorities said, and the cloud of styrol — a colorless, flammable gas used in the manufacture of plastics — gradually dispersed, authorities said.

Radio and television stations interrupted regular programming to report the progress of the cloud down the Rhine toward Holland late Sunday and early today. Residents along the river northwest of this industrial city were told to stay indoors and close their windows.

Styrol gas can cause symptoms ranging from headaches to loss of consciousness. In high concentrations the gas can also explode, authorities said.

Police said two of the tanker's holds were torn open when the ship went aground, releasing 96 tons of styrol, which drifted east before dispersing. The ship was unloaded to prevent further spills.

Steelers Can Only Say Who'll Play

By ALEX SACHARE

AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Steelers are out of the playoffs, their dream for an unprecedented third consecutive Super Bowl title at an end. But the Steelers will have a say in deciding which team, San Diego or New England, fills the National Football League's 10-team playoff field.

Buffalo and Cleveland won division titles and Houston and Oakland assured themselves of postseason berths by winning their games Sunday. Those decisions wiped out Pittsburgh's playoff chances.

But the San Diego Chargers must beat the Steelers tonight to make the playoffs, and they know that won't be easy.

"This is our Super Bowl," said Hank Bauer, San Diego's special teams star. "Their pride is hurt. They want to show the country they are the champions they are. Anybody who thinks they won't be motivated is crazy."

Steelers wide receiver Lynn Swann agreed, "Revenge is always a great motivator," he noted.

If the Chargers win, they will be the American Conference's West Division titlists. But if they lose, the AFC West title goes to Oakland, a 33-17 winner over the New York Giants Sunday, and the New England Patriots would go into the AFC wild-card game with Houston.

New England stayed alive by beating the New Orleans Saints 38-27, but failed to overtake Buffalo for the AFC East title because the Bills defeated the San Francisco 49ers 18-13. The AFC Central championship went to Cleveland, which edged Cincinnati 27-24, while the Houston Oilers won a wild-card berth by trimming the Minnesota Vikings 20-16.

The only other division that had not been decided was the National Conference's East, and the Philadelphia Eagles won that even though they lost to the Dallas Cowboys 35-27. The clubs finished in a tie with 12-4 records, but Philadelphia earned its first division title in 20 years on the basis of net points in division games.

However, Dallas' triumph did give the Cowboys the home field advantage in next Sunday's NFC wild-card game against the Los Angeles Rams.

In other NFL games, the Rams edged the Atlanta Falcons 20-17 in overtime, the Kansas City Chiefs outscored the Baltimore Colts 38-28, the Detroit Lions beat the Green Bay Packers 24-3, the Washington Redskins defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 31-7 and the Denver Broncos topped the Seattle Seahawks 25-17.

On Saturday, the New York Jets beat the Miami Dolphins 24-17 and the Chicago Bears edged the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 14-13.

Bills 18, 49ers 13
Buffalo won the AFC East for the first time since 1966 as Nick Mike-Mayer's third-quarter field goal from 25 yards out snapped a 13-13 tie. The Bills added a safety when 49ers punter Jim Miller was tackled in the end zone following a bad snap from center.

Patriots 38, Saints 27

The Patriots fell behind 13-3 but rallied behind Matt Cavanaugh, who threw three touchdown passes. New England's victory kept its playoff hopes alive and killed those of the Steelers — and ironically, it was engineered by a former University of Pittsburgh quarterback.

Browns 27, Bengals 24

Brian Sipe fired three touchdown passes for Cleveland, but it was a 22-yard field goal by Don Cockroft with 1:25 to play that provided the margin of victory and put the Browns into the playoffs for the first time in eight years.

Sipe completed 24 of 44 passes for 308 yards to raise his season total to 4,132 yards and join Joe Namath and Dan Fouts as the only NFL passers to reach the 4,000-yard plateau.

Oilers 20, Vikings 16

Earl Campbell gained 203 yards on 29 carries to win his third consecutive NFL rushing title with 1,934 yards for the Oilers, who have made the playoffs all three years Campbell has been with them.

Campbell, who set an NFL record with his fourth 200-yard game of the season, scored the winning TD on a 3-yard run with 1:58 left.

Raiders 33, Giants 17

The Raiders assured themselves of a playoff spot as Jim Plunkett, their resurrected passer, threw touchdown passes of 31 yards to Cliff Branch and 37 yards to Raymond Chester.

"I don't think anyone would have given us any odds that we'd be in this position at the end of the year," said Raiders Coach Tom Flores. "Everyone was saying we'd be lucky to win four games, to finish out of last place."

Cowboys 35, Eagles 27

Danny White threw four touchdown passes — tying Roger Staubach's club record of 28 for a season — and ran for a fifth score as Dallas built a 35-10 lead. That put the Cowboys 25 points in front, just the number they needed to beat Philadelphia by in order to gain the NFC East title.

But the Eagles rallied for 17 points in the final seven minutes — not enough to win the game, but more than enough to win the division crown.

Harold Carmichael, who had caught at least one pass in 127 consecutive games, had his record streak snapped. He was knocked dizzy in the first half, before he made a reception, and failed to return to action.

But following the game he said, "We won the championship, and that takes a lot of sting out of the record coming to an end."

Rams 20, Falcons 17, OT

Los Angeles beat Atlanta on Frank Corral's 23-yard field goal midway through the 15-minute overtime period.

Rams linebacker Joe Harris sacked Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski deep in his own territory to force a fumble. Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi decided to go for the win right away and sent in Corral for the game-winning kick on first down.

Chiefs 38, Colts 28

Second-year quarterback Bill Kenney, making his third straight start after not playing a down for his first 29 pro games, threw three touchdown passes to lead the Chiefs over the Colts.

Lions 24, Packers 3

Detroit, 2-14 last season, finished this year at 9-7, its first winning record since 1972. Gary Danielson completed 17 of 26 passes for 219 yards and one touchdown for Detroit.

Redskins 31, Cardinals 7

Joe Theismann fired three touchdown passes, two of them to Art Monk, as the Redskins beat the Cardinals.

Broncos 25, Seahawks 17

Matt Robinson, a surprise starter, passed for one touchdown and ran for another for Denver. Fred Steinfert added four field goals, including one from 55 yards and another from 53.

Tangerine Win Climaxed Florida's Turnaround

By FRED GOODALL

AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A Tangerine Bowl victory can't erase wide receiver Cris Collinsworth's memories of the frustration he endured through most of his four years at the University of Florida. But it at least makes it all seem worthwhile.

"I just wanted to go out a winner and we all did," Collinsworth said Saturday night after he caught eight passes, including two for touchdowns, as the Gators rolled past Maryland 35-20 before a record Tangerine Bowl crowd of 52,541.

The triumph improved Florida's record to 8-4 and climaxed one of college football's most startling turnarounds. The Gators, coached by Charley Pell, went 0-10-1 in 1979 and this season became the first team to receive a bowl berth after being winless the year before.

Collinsworth, who also caught two passes that set up short scoring runs, received the game's Most Valuable Player award for his efforts, which included returning two kickoffs for 41 yards and two punts for 9 in addition to his 166 yards receiving.

"Being MVP doesn't mean a thing to me. People said this team was down and on the way out after losing three of the last four," the Titusville, Fla., senior said. "But this team had too much heart to give up now."

Collinsworth's touchdowns came on passes of 24 and 21 yards from freshman quarterback Wayne Peace as the Gators withstood a 39-carry, 159-yard rushing performance by Maryland's Charlie Wysocki.

Terrapins placekicker Dale Castro kicked three field goals in the first half while the Gators fashioned a 14-9 halftime lead and booted a fourth — from 42 yards out — to give Maryland a 20-14 lead five minutes into the third quarter.

Florida's Roger Sibbald mishandled the second half kickoff and the Gators were forced to begin their possession from their own 4-yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Maryland safety Ralph Lary stepped in front of a Peace pass intended for Collinsworth at the Florida 15 and returned it to the one.

Wysocki, voted the game's outstanding offensive player, bulled in for the touchdown and quarterback Mike Tice ran for a two-point conversion and a 17-14 Terrapins lead only 12 seconds into the third period. Four minutes later, Castro kicked his 42-yard field goal and the Terps appeared in command.

But Peace, who missed on his first five passes in the second half, suddenly found the mark in a 13-play, 81-yard drive. Peace kept the ball himself on a one-yard sneak for the go-ahead touchdown. It was set up by a 28-yard completion to Collinsworth.

A clipping penalty on the ensuing kickoff and an illegal procedure penalty put Maryland in a hole. Wysocki, on first-and-15 from the Terps 4-yard-line, burst through the line for a 20-yard pickup but fumbled when hit by Florida cornerback Sonny Gilliam.

The Gators recovered and two plays later Peace, who completed 20 of 34 passes for 271 yards, hit Collinsworth with his 21-yard scoring pass to break the game open.

"I'm mad at myself because I fumbled and it was a crucial fumble," Wysocki said. "I wish it had been at their 30, instead of deep in our own territory."

Florida tailback Johnell Brown completed the scoring with a 2-yard touchdown run with 9:31 to go in the game.

"I'm so excited I can't really remember the key turning points," Pell said.

Good Weekend For ACC Cage Teams

By TOM FOREMAN JR.
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina forward Al Wood watched Indiana guard Isiah Thomas when both were members of the 1980 U.S. Olympic basketball team, so Wood knew the Tar Heels would be in for a rough afternoon when the two teams met in a nationally televised contest last weekend.

Wood claimed to have the cure to stop Thomas — try to contain him and make him shoot his jumper instead of allowing him to penetrate. Thomas scored 20 points with two assists.

Unfortunately, Thomas didn't offer a remedy for stopping Wood, and it cost the 11th-ranked Hoosiers a victory in Chapel Hill.

The senior forward broke a shooting slump in the first half and scored 15 of his 18 points in the second half as the No. 8 Tar Heels gained a 65-56 win.

Elsewhere in the Atlantic Coast Conference over the weekend, ninth-rated Maryland had a big scare from North Carolina State before taking an 82-75 overtime win over the Wolfpack. Duke captured its own Iron Duke Classic by whipping Detroit 111-71.

No. 12 Wake Forest was a winner in the Cable Car Classic championship, downing previously undefeated Alabama 79-66. Unranked Clemson fell to Marquette, 68-67, in the finals of the Milwaukee Classic.

Before a crowd of slightly more than 600 at home,

Georgia Tech fell to Wofford, 49-44.

North Carolina trailed by six at halftime and suffered 15 turnovers. The ballhandling improved in the second half (five giveaways), and Wood put on his shooting exhibition. He said the team started moving the ball more in the second half to help open up the shots, but also offered another explanation for UNC's seventh win in eight games.

"I think we wanted it more than they did," he explained.

Losing coach Bobby Knight said the last five minutes of his team's third loss in eight games made the difference.

"We dropped the ball, threw it away," Knight said. "It was a combination of us not executing and them putting pressure on us."

Lefty Driesell said his Terrapins were practically asleep in the first half and N.C. State almost tucked them in for the night. Sidney Lowe's three-point play gave the Wolfpack what appeared to be an insurmountable 10-point lead with 6:35 left.

But from that 61-51 score, Maryland outscored N.C. State 15-5 to send the issue into an extra period. From that point, Albert King and Greg Manning took over and tallied 10 of the Terps' 16 points.

Maryland is now 6-1, while N.C. State dropped to 5-2.

The Blue Devils walked through their own tournament, whipping Brown last Friday night and thumping the Titans behind a 20-point performance by Gene Banks and 16 points each from Vince Taylor and Tom Emma.

Frank Johnson is proving that his return to the Demon Deacon lineup has made the difference in two seasons of basketball. In the Cable Car championship, he recovered from an 0-for-7 first half shooting performance to score 14 of his 16 points and lead Wake Forest to its eighth win in as many games.

Johnson scored nine points in a 16-6 spurt to break a 37-37 tie, and center Jim Johnstone contributed three points, two blocked shots and two rebounds. Johnstone finished with 17 points and was named the tourney's most valuable player.

Clemson rallied from a 50-39 deficit against Marquette and tied the game at 63 on a basket by Vince Hamilton. With the score tied again at 65, Larry Nance was called for charging. Terrell Schiundt tapped in a missed lay-up and Marquette was ahead to stay at 67-65.

Michael Wilson added one of two free throws while Chris Dadds added two points at the buzzer.

Ayden-Grifton Chargers Feel They Can Compete With Leaders

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Last Tuesday Ayden-Grifton hit what perhaps will be the low point of its season. Charger basketball coach Bob Murphrey sure hopes so anyway.

For a half all was well as the Chargers built a 15-point lead against North Lenoir, picked to be among the leaders in the Eastern Carolina Conference this season. But the Chargers forgot there are two halves to the game of basketball.

Ayden-Grifton not only lost the lead but also the game, 58-57, prompting Murphrey to say afterwards, "We found a new way to lose."

Murphrey, obviously disappointed after the loss, was unsure how his Chargers would react when they played host to area rival North Pitt last Friday evening. "I don't know what that loss will do to us," he had said. "I'm afraid it took something out of us. But I do feel we can bounce back."

The Chargers must have been listening. They not only bounced back, but did so in style as they shot a sizzling 62% from the floor to bomb the Panthers, 78-59.

That win left Ayden-Grifton at 3-5 overall and 2-3 in the league. It also left Murphrey, whose club hit nearly 70% from the floor in the first half against North Lenoir — including nine-for-nine in the first period — convinced his team can compete with the best the ECC can offer.

"I still say this team is capable of beating some of the better teams around on a given night," Murphrey said. "Of course, we're also capable of losing to those teams on a given night."

How well the Chargers do this year may be directly related to how well senior point guard Timmy Edwards plays. Edwards was all-conference last year when he averaged 15.7 points a game.

North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans employed a diamond-and-one against the 5-11

Edwards and he still managed to score 13 points. But what impressed Murphrey more was the play of his other four starters, led by 6-2 center Clarence Baker and Thomas Anderson.

Baker, one of three starters back off last year's 3-19 squad, scored 21 points while Anderson, a 6-0 sophomore guard up from the junior varsity, contributed 16.

The Chargers' remaining two starters are senior forwards Allan Haseley (6-0, senior), who started last season for Murphrey, and 6-1 Chris Phillips, a top reserve last year. Splitting time at center with Phillips is 6-0 junior Jesse Anderson while Terry Cannon, a 5-7 senior, backs up Edwards.

Other players on the team are Ricky Dudley (6-1, senior), Jeff Montgomery (6-1, junior) and Jonathan Woods (6-2, junior).

Two other players will rejoin the Chargers later this season. Chris Strickland, a 6-0 junior, injured a collarbone and is lost until sometime after Christmas. Tyrone Gay, a 5-10 sophomore, was moved down to the junior varsity where he will receive more playing time and will return to the varsity later this year.

Obviously, the Chargers are a small team, and that has hurt them on the boards. "We're having trouble on the boards. That's been one of our problems this season," Murphrey said. "And we're not the quickest team around, considering how short we are."

"Our defense has also been spotty. We'll be real good one game and then real bad other games."

It is the offense that has kept the Chargers from falling from Murphrey's good graces. "I feel like we've got a decent offensive team," he said. "We seem to work well together and do different things well."

As for the conference race, Murphrey picked Southern Nash, D.H. Conley and Greene Central as the top three teams. But the fourth team — the ECC will send four clubs to the district playoffs — is "debatable."

"I thought early in the year we might fill that fourth slot, but we've got to get started soon if we're gonna do that,"

Murphrey said. "We should be 3-2 in the league, but we aren't."

"We haven't played bad basketball this year. We've just been inconsistent and we've got to become more consistent."

Pats Will Eye Game

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The New England Patriots will be in a huddle tonight at Schaefer Stadium, but it will be at the locker room television set, not on the playing field.

After a come-from-behind victory against New Orleans on Sunday, the Patriots still have a chance at a National Football League playoff berth, but it's dependent on Pittsburgh's game against San Diego.

"Only God knows what's going to happen," offensive tackle Shelby Jordan said. "And He's not talking."

If Pittsburgh beats San Diego in tonight's game, the Patriots, now 10-6, earn a wild-card berth in the American Football Conference playoffs, along with Houston. A Pittsburgh victory also would give the Oakland Raiders the AFC West championship.

But if the Chargers win, New England will be out in the cold for the second year, and San Diego joins the Buffalo Bills and the Cleveland Browns as division winners in the playoffs, bumping the Raiders back to a wild-card berth. In the event of a tie, Oakland wins the division and the Chargers get in as a wild-card team ahead of the Patriots.

"Most of the guys will be at the Stadium watching and hoping," said Patriots' Coach Ron Erhardt. "Their Christmas party is in the afternoon and most of them will stay around and watch the Steelers game upstairs."

"I'm going to be watching that game, rooting for Pittsburgh," defensive lineman Raymond Hamilton said.

Jabbar Does Nothing To Diminish His Image

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Sports Writer

When Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was still a gangling teenager making his mark as Lew Alcindor at New York's Power Memorial High School, a pro scout dubbed him "The Franchise."

The 7-foot-2 center, now a veteran of 12 years of National Basketball Association warfare, has done nothing to diminish that long-forgotten scout's glowing description.

The six-time league MVP has led teams in Milwaukee and Los Angeles to NBA championships. And Sunday night he surpassed yet another milestone in a memorable career, pouring in a season-high 42 points to run his NBA total to 25,006.

That made him only the fifth player in league history to surpass the 25,000-point mark and, coincidentally, helped the Lakers to a 135-122 victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

In other NBA action Sunday night, Milwaukee whipped Houston 123-91; San Diego beat Detroit 117-97, and Phoenix stopped Portland 111-100.

"I wasn't thinking about the record," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It snuck up on me. But I knew it when everyone started yelling."

"The most important thing was that he won. We have to play more intensely when Earvin (Johnson) is out. My jump shot was falling, and when that happens, it's difficult to play defense on me."

Jabbar joined Wilt Chamberlain, Oscar Robertson, John Havlicek and Jerry West—all retired—in the exclusive scoring club as the Lakers rolled up their highest point total of the year.

Bucks 123, Rockets 91

Milwaukee center Bob Lanier, who suffered a neck injury Friday night in a game at Chicago, wasn't expected to play against the Rockets, but scored 15 points, grabbed nine rebounds, handed out four assists and, more importantly, helped hold Houston center Moses Malone to 13 points and seven rebounds.

"Bob's work on Moses was the big factor," noted guard Sidney Moncrief, who pumped in the game-high 24 points to pace the Bucks. "He contained Moses for the first quarter. After that, I think the rigors of the NBA schedule kind of got to Moses."

Clippers 117, Pistons 97

Freeman Williams pumped in 28 points to pace the Clippers to their fifth straight victory.

Rookie Michael Brooks added 25 points for the Clippers as the reserves saw a lot of action for San Diego in the one-sided contest. The Pistons were led by Bill Hubbard with 27 points and reserve Wayne Robinson with 18.

Suns 111, Trail Blazers 100

Len "Truck" Robinson ignited a Phoenix surge early in the third quarter that helped the Suns snap the Blazers' nine-game win streak.

Phoenix outscored Portland 23-8 in the first six minutes of the second half to take an 81-61 lead. Robinson scored 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to pace the Suns to a 49-37 rebounding edge. Dennis Johnson added 22 points for Phoenix.

Carmichael's Reception Streak Ends After Injury

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles head coach Dick Vermeil turned from a huddle on the sidelines with quarterback Ron Jaworski and wide receiver Harold Carmichael and yelled at his defensive team on the field as the clock moved into the final 90 seconds.

"A turnover! Cause a turnover!" Vermeil screamed.

But the Cowboys ran three more plays, letting the clock expire on their 35-27 victory over the Eagles.

And so a planned short screen pass from Jaworski to Carmichael never came about, and Carmichael's record of receptions in consecutive National Football League games ended at 127.

The 6-8, 225-pound Carmichael went 0-for-3 Sunday. Dallas safety Dennis Thurman knocked him out of the game with a jarring sideline tackle on a pass three minutes before the end of the first half. Carmichael returned for one play in the second half, but was only part speed because of his injured tailbone.

"I could run straight, but I couldn't make the cuts," said Carmichael, who was pounded into the turf when Thurman put his shoulder pad and helmet into Carmichael's upper chest.

"I'm sorry he had his streak stopped, but he was hurting. He wanted to come back in, but we both felt he couldn't run his routes," Vermeil said. "I had planned to put him in the game there at the end to maybe get his catch, but we never got the ball back."

Carmichael thought about asking to go back in earlier in the fourth quarter, but Jaworski was moving the Eagles downfield on a quick six-play, 85-yard drive that cut Dallas' lead from 35-10 to 35-17.

"We were trying to get some points on the board, and our guys were doing the job. So I felt if the streak had to come to an end, well, let it. I felt bad at first, when I realized the streak was over, but what really put a lid on that, what really put a cover on that, was us winning the division championship," Carmichael said.

Although the loss dropped the Eagles into a tie with Dallas with a 12-4 record in the NFC's Eastern Division, Philadelphia won the tie-breaker for the division crown by scoring 16 more points than the Cowboys in division play.

When looking back at the Iron Duke Classic of this past weekend, it is difficult to find a reason for the play of the East Carolina Pirates.

Earlier in the week, Coach Dave Odom had expressed optimism about the tournament. He felt that his Pirates had a good chance to beat Detroit and make it to the finals of the tournament. And then, he was optimistic about the outcome against either Duke or Brown in the finals.

But it didn't come about. The Pirates not only lost the first game to Detroit, they lost the second to Brown.

It is our opinion that had the Pirates played the type of ball they are capable of, they would not have lost to either of the two teams they faced.

In the Detroit game, the Pirates seemed to stand around on offense. They did not go to the boards well, and they shoot poorly.

Saturday night, they got off to a little better start, hitting the first four or five shots of the game. But after that, the percentage began to drop and by the second half, the Bucs were hitting less than 40 per cent of them.

That type of play is not going to beat many teams at all.

Odom seemed to be at a loss as to what happened in either game.

It is tough to figure. He said that he thought that the team would be inspired about the tournament. East Carolina has not won an invitational tournament since becoming a Division I member back in the mid-1960's. That certainly should have been enough to fire the Pirates up.

But they weren't fired up. They played almost as if they didn't really care.

Maybe the drain of exams, plus the anticipation of the Christmas Holidays and the chance to see their families was too much on their minds.

The Pirates return to action next Monday when they travel to the Elm City Classic in New Haven, Conn. They face a strong opening foe in Iowa State, and will be the underdogs in that game. Fairfield meets Brown in the other game, and there exists the possibility that the Pirates and Bruins could face each other again.

At any rate, it is another opportunity for the Pirates to win a tournament.

And while a victory would be good, it would not be half as prestigious, at least to people in this area, as winning the Iron Duke would have been.

Rose High School will be hosting the annual holiday tournament it fields each year this Friday and Saturday.

This is an excellent opportunity for basketball fans in the area to see four of the five Pitt County high schools in action. Only Ayden-Grifton does not participate in the event.

We urge fans in the area to attend and support Rose, Farmville Central, North Pitt and D.H. Conley in this event.

West Duplin Nips Lifegate

ZEBULON — Willie Lancaster hit a jumper with 15 seconds left in overtime to lead West Duplin to a 57-55 victory Saturday over Lifegate in the championship game of the Zebulon Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Earlier, in the consolation game, Zebulon nipped Trinity, 87-85, in overtime for third place.

Lancaster, who finished with 25 points, just outdistanced Lifegate's Greg Jones for tournament MVP. Jones, who had 34 points Friday night against Zebulon in the first round of the tournament, hit for 32 against West Duplin, including a 10-foot jumper at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

In the overtime, West Duplin went up 55-53 early but Lifegate crept back to tie it later. Then Lancaster hit his shot to give his club the victory and hand Lifegate its third loss in six outings.

Early on it looked to be a rout. West Duplin got out to a 14-8 first-period lead and then led at the half, 30-16. Lifegate cut the deficit to 39-30 at the end of the third period and then outscored its opponent, 23-14, in the final period to send the game into overtime.

Jerry Jones added 12 points for Lifegate while Stephen

Hales contributed 17 to West Duplin's cause.

To Toughen Up N.C. Fire Code

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials say the hotel fire that killed 84 people in Las Vegas last month may help them produce a tougher fire code for high-rise buildings in North Carolina.

Kern Church, a deputy state insurance commissioner for engineering and building codes, said tragedies such as the Las Vegas fire frequently provide the impetus for safety programs.

"That's the only way we can get anything done," Church said. "You only adopt additional requirements that may cost money after catastrophes have proved that these features are necessary."

The North Carolina Building Code Council adopted a series of fire safety requirements for existing high-rises in March 1976, but the Carolinas-Virginias branch of the Building Owners and Managers Association went to court and blocked it. The court ruled the council had no power to write retroactive codes.

Earlier this month, the building codes council agreed to ask the 1981 General Assembly to make the code state law.

The code, affecting all buildings over 12 stories, would require sprinklers and at least one elevator that could be pressurized to be installed within five years; pressurized stairways with two sets of doors, and smoke detectors in return airvents within three years; and a one-way communication system so officials could direct occupants to safety within the first two years.

Jim Bookout, executive chairman for the building owners' group, has criticized the proposed code as impractical for existing buildings.

"It appeared they were overreacting, and there's not that many high-rise buildings in North Carolina," he said.

Boyles Dissents On Highway Revenue

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — While the Hunt administration has been hearing pleas for a hike in the gas tax from its transportation experts, one state official has been voicing a warning that the tax may not be such a good idea.

Harlan Boyles, re-elected state treasurer without opposition last month, has been quietly offering a dissenting view of the state's highway revenue picture.

In recent speeches to prominent groups such as the League of Municipalities and the big-business North Carolina Citizens Association, Boyles has suggested that much savings could be found in the operations of the Department of Transportation.

Boyles hasn't questioned the multi-million dollar shortages that transportation officials are projecting for the coming years so much as he has questioned the assumptions — such as the need for more and bigger superhighways — on which they are based.

"There is obviously a limit as to how much the public can respond to the needs of this state," Boyles said in a recent interview. "As a result, the state must evaluate and set priorities for the programs it undertakes."

As a result of his open questioning of the tax hike, Boyles said he met with Gov. Jim Hunt recently and was urged to keep an open mind as the governor considers whether to recommend an increase. Boyles, at the same time, said he urged Hunt to openly examine highway spending and look for savings — a move Hunt announced last week.

But Boyles says before the state embarks on a program to spend hundreds of millions of dollars more a year on road construction, it ought to take a long look at how transportation needs may change over coming years — whether gasoline shortages and new automotive technology may change the size and design of future road needs.

"It may be a period of time in which we ought to curtail or reduce our construction projects," Boyles said. "Let's ask ourselves, what does the future hold for us, given the limited fuel resources we have and limited dollar resources we have."

"More than anything else, I'm really saying that the public needs reassurance that we have sound plans for the future and that changing technologies have been made a part of those plans," he added.

Although Hunt hasn't endorsed a higher gas tax yet, and in fact sounded a note of caution about its prospects last week, Hunt administration officials have been outraged at what they see as the latest in a series of moves by Boyles against Hunt's initiatives.

Indeed, Boyles has increasingly countered the administration. In perhaps the most open split earlier this year, Boyles advised against holding a $600 million education bond referendum this year after Hunt and the Board of Education supported the project. The vote was postponed, and administration officials credit Boyles with torpedoing the bonds with his comments.

Boyles also blasted Hunt's retirement program proposal to the 1980 General Assembly. The improved benefits and early retirement program was passed anyway, but not before Boyles warned that it would add $79 million to the state's long-term debt and a legislative study was ordered.

In addition, Boyles has proposed allowing local governments to levy an extra one-cent sales tax, a proposal that has caused discomfort in the administration. And he has suggested making the 12th grade, optional in the state's public schools.

"Yes, he's trying to oppose Hunt," one high-ranking Hunt administration official said of Boyles, while asking not to be named. "And I think there are two reasons for it. He wants to run for governor himself, and he's basically angry that the governor doesn't look to him on everything."

Boyles has heard such criticism, and in his independent office of treasurer seems to enjoy a little combative rivalry. He acknowledges some of his positions have probably been puzzling to many, but he says they have been consistent with his philosophy.

"I have said to the governor I want to be constructive," Boyles said. "But there are certain traditions engrained in my background, and they are that we move very carefully in committing the state's resources."

Boyles said he has no intention to run for governor.

"I have no, absolutely no thought or desire" to run for governor, he said. "I think I have found my niche. I love it (as treasurer) and it is very satisfying."

Competing For 'Silicon Firms'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt is developing an all-out effort to create a concentrated center in North Carolina for the budding and profitable microelectronics industry, but the state isn't alone in its recruiting effort.

Maryland has even based a full-time recruiter in the so-called Silicon Valley microelectronics center that has sprung up around Stanford University.

South Carolina has sent a delegation to California in search of expansion promises. And there also are strong promotions by Minnesota, Arizona, Utah and Oregon.

The North Carolina effort, boosted by Hunt's proposed $30 million outlay for the Microelectronics Center in the Research Triangle, appears to have a good chance of landing some of the spillover from California.

E.E. Ferrey, president of the California-based American Electronics Association, says he was impressed with the apparent cooperation in North Carolina of what he called "the big three" institutions: government, education, and industry.

He said all three areas are important considerations for any company looking for a place to expand.

"No one has done a more professional job of coming in and talking to the people than North Carolina has," Ferrey said.

The stakes in the industry make the effort attractive. The industry now is generating $8 billion a year in revenue, and some say that figure will go to $20 billion in five years.

Hunt isn't interested in attracting merely a few microelectronics plants to North Carolina. He wants the state to become a respected East Coast version of Silicon Valley.

His request for $24.4 million in state funds for the proposed $30 million Microelectronics Center of North Carolina is his top legislative priority for the 1981 General Assembly.

The center would coordinate research and education at six institutions: N.C. State University, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Duke University, A&T State University, UNC-Charlotte and the Research Triangle Institute.

Woodstove May Draw The Family Together

Parents and children may see more of each other when a family switches from central heat to wood heat. The woodstove may draw everyone to the warmest room just as the kitchen used to do in the "old" days.

This more frequent interaction can lead to family growth, according to Dr. Glenda Herman, housing specialist with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service.

Daily living with wood heating is quite different from occasional use of wood at a mountain cabin on vacation. Some adjustments in the way you live in your house may be required. For instance, Dr. Herman says that replacing central heat with wood heat will mean greater temperature differences between rooms in the house and even within one room.

Placing the woodstove can cause some problems; it can take up more space than a piano and, once installed, it cannot be moved easily.

Using the stove to heat your house will make a difference in the choice of location. "If a woodstove will be your primary source of heat, put it where heated air can circulate to other areas," says Mrs. Wilma Hammett, interior design specialist with the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service.

An open area such as a family room/kitchen combination or a great room may be a better choice than a room which has only one doorway leading to the rest of the house.

If you are investing in a woodstove it is a bonus to know that the top of the woodstove is also a fine place for dishes that take a long time to cook, such as stews, soups and baked beans. "Recipes for crock-pot cooking can also be used for cooking on the woodstove," according to Dr. Nadine Tope, foods and nutrition specialist with the Agricultural Extension Service at North Carolina State University. Flat bottomed pots made of metal which conduct heat evenly give the best results. However, temperatures on the stovetop may differ from front to back and side to side. Some experimenting may be needed before you find the best place to cook different dishes.

Before installing your woodstove consult with your insurance agent. H.L. McPherson Jr., executive secretary of the Independent Insurance Agents of North Carolina, suggests talking with your insurance agent to avoid being penalized in the settlement of a claim should a loss occur.

Generally, a home owner does not have to worry about a penalty if the home is insured under a homeowners policy or if the home is located in an area which provides municipal fire protection. A 25 percent penalty in the settlement of a claim is possible if the home has no municipal fire protection and if the home is insured under a standard fire policy or farm owners policy.

When installing your stove safety should get top priority, say fire and health officials. One source of information on the safe installation of stoves and chimneys are local fire departments.

After installing your stove there are two other problems one must deal with fire wood and chimney cleaning.

When buying fire wood Dick Allison, forestry specialist for the N.C. Agricultural Extension Service says to ask the following questions:

First, what kind of wood (species) is being sold. "The amount of heat in wood is determined by its weight and moisture content, not by its volume. Heavier woods, such as hickory, will provide almost twice the heat of light woods, such as white pine.

Second, ask the seller when the wood was cut. Newly cut (green) wood may contain up to 50 percent moisture. You may be able to get it to burn — eventually. But much of the heat will go to driving off the moisture instead of heating your home.

Allison says six to eight months are usually needed for firewood to dry properly. Split wood will dry faster than unsplit wood. Also wood will dry faster during warm weather and if it is stacked off the ground.

"Look at the end of the logs," Allison suggests. "A lot of little cracks indicate the wood has started to dry."

Third, ask the seller how much wood — in cords — he is offering for sale. "Much wood is sold by the pick-up load," Allison says, "and pick-ups come in many sizes. The only legal measurement for firewood in North Carolina is the standard cord, and the best way to measure wood is to stack in on the ground."

Cleaning your chimney is essential because wood and coal, when burned, give off a by-product called "creosote." Creosote can build up to several inches thick in the flue of the chimney. It is highly flammable and dangerous.

Creosote can be flaky or hard, and it resembles tar. The only sure way to know if your chimney has a build-up of creosote is to inspect it. You can do this by using a mirror or flashlight or call in a local chimney sweep.

Again, you may either use a do-it-yourself chimney sweeping kit, or call in a professional.

It is imperative that you do have the job done however, because creosote builds up more quickly with a woodstove than a fireplace due to the slower cooler fires.

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦854 ♥962 ♦AQ984 ♦83
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♥ 2 ♦
Dble. ?
What action do you take?
A.—Partner has made a vulnerable overcall at the two-level, so he should have a good suit and reasonable values. Since you have two trumps and at least one trick for partner, there is no reason to panic. A runout to two diamonds on such a shabby suit could prove far more expensive than sitting for two clubs doubled.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦872 ♥9 ♦AK82 ♦AJJ065
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 1 ♦ 4 ♥ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Certainly you have good reason to expect that the opponents will not make their contract. But that is not the issue. Will any penalty you get be enough to compensate for a vulnerable game? We don't think so. Partner must have a fair hand and good suit for his vulnerable overcall, and your hand could easily produce five or six tricks for him. We would bid four spades.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ10872 ♦KJ93 ♦KJ5
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Despite the fact that you are void in the suit partner opened, your hand offers great possibilities. If partner does not have too many high cards in hearts and has something in the minor suits, your holding could easily produce slam. We would start to probe by bidding three diamonds.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ965 ♥A83 ♦7 ♦K1083
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
What action do you take?
A.—In support of clubs, your hand is worth 16 points—you must upgrade the king of trumps and your singleton is worth 3 distributional points. Any bid other than three clubs now will make it impossible for you to catch up later.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J1072 ♥KJ83 ♦7 ♦A872
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♦ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Don't even consider a penalty double—your trumps aren't good enough for such a bold measure at the one-level. It is a close decision between a pass and a bid of one no trump. While you are slightly weak for the latter action, you have just enough cards to suggest that partner might find it difficult to act again on his own. We would vote for one no trump.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AKJ10 ♥KQ93 ♦J5 ♦762
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass
What action do you take?
A.—First, does your hand offer any possibility of game? Opposite a partner who cannot have more than 10 points, and might have as few as 6, the answer is no. Having decided that, and considering that your hand is balanced, there is no reason to disturb one no trump. While it is possible that you are missing a heart fit, it is more likely that you will avoid having to play a 4-3 fit at the two-level. Pass.

Playwright Marc Connelly, 90, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Marc Connelly, an Algonquin Round Table regular who won a Pulitzer Prize for his drama "The Green Pastures," is dead at age 90.

Connelly, a master of light comedy and well-known for his collaborations with George S. Kaufman, died of pneumonia Sunday at St. Luke's Hospital.

"The theater is a compulsion," Connelly said recently. "It fills a great human need. It is the best social instrument of communication that mankind has devised."

The son of an actor, Connelly turned to the theater — as actor, writer and director — after several years as a journalist. He also wrote novels, short stories, screenplays and taught at the Yale Drama School.

One of the Connelly-Kaufman works, "Dulcy," had a brief revival here last month.

Others include "To the Ladies," "Helen of Troy, N.Y.," "Be Yourself" and "Beggars on Horseback."

Among his other works are the play "The Wisdom Tooth," the novel "A Souvenir from Qam," his memoirs titled, "Voices Offstage," and the comedy "Young Men in Flight."

One of New York's literary wits of the 1920s, the bald, jocular playwright met almost daily at the Algonquin Hotel with Round Table cohorts Harold Ross, founder and editor of The New Yorker; critic Alexander Woollcott; humorists Dorothy Parker and James Thurber; and newsman Heywood Brown, among others.

He wrote and directed "The Green Pastures" in 1930 and directed it again on Broadway in 1951. It also appeared on television's Hallmark Hall of Fame in 1957.

Connelly at first was unable to find a producer for the play, which featured an all-black cast and depicted how Southern plantation blacks viewed God, the Old Testament and heaven. Many producers rebuffed him, saying the play might offend blacks and clergymen.

But he eventually found a producer — Wall Street broker Rowland Stebbins — and the play opened on Broadway on Feb. 23, 1930. An immediate hit, it was performed 1,642 times in its first five years and grossed $3 million.

Connelly, a native of McKeesport, Pa., began acting in his own plays at age 8 in his father's hotel in Pittsburgh. He got his start in journalism with The Associated Press and later joined the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

When he turned to theater, he sometimes performed in skits for club shows and "was always filling in for actors in my plays who got sick," he said.

"I directed most of the plays, so I knew what I was doing. ... It's not so unusual for playwrights to be actors."

Connelly taught playwriting at Yale from 1946 to 1950. His awards included the O. Henry Short Story Award in 1930.

Shortly before his 90th birthday Dec. 13, he was awarded a certificate of appreciation from Mayor Edward Koch.

"I'm so old that I can withstand unearned compliments," he told Koch.

Connelly, who was divorced from Madeline Hurlock, had no immediate survivors. Services were scheduled for Tuesday.
