Birds On Ice

Difficult To Qualify For Home Mortgage

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Officials of two home mortgage institutions in Greenville said last week that money, and all different kinds of financing, are available for home-buyers. The problem, they emphasized, is that borrowers are not able to qualify for loans.

Larkin Little of Home Savings and Loan Association said, "home loans are available, but at extremely high (interest) rates."

Conventional loans, Little noted, range from 15½ to 16½ percent, while VA and FHA loans are available at 13½ percent.

"The difficulty," Little emphasized, is that, "borrowers are not able to qualify for mortgages. The money is there. They just can't afford it.

As More Hostages Appear On New Film Footage

Rajai Says No Release Unless Demands Are Met

By United Press International

Iran released new film footage showing another 15 of the American hostages Saturday and Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai warned the 52 captives "will never be released" unless the United States responds to Tehran's demands.

At the same time, Secretary of State Muskie and his deputy, Warren Christopher, met three Algerian diplomats acting as intermediaries between the United States to discuss a formal reply to the Iranian demands.

The latest hostage film, the third to be transmitted in three days, showed 15 hostages, 12 of whom delivered messages to their families, according to CBS News, which transmitted the tape from Iran.

Like the earlier footage which showed 26 of the hostages, the captives on the new film extended holiday greetings to their families and friends and thanked Americans for supporting them during their 420-day ordeal.

Two of the hostages — David Roeder, 40, of Washington, D.C., and Michael John Metrinko, 33, Olyphant, Pa. — were shown singing the Christmas carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful."

Eight of the 49 hostages held at an undisclosed location remained unheard from. The three hostages held at the Iranian Foreign Ministry in Tehran also did not appear on the films.

CBS said it was told by the Iranians at the other end that the eight hostages did not appear because they did not want to.

The 15 hostages seen Saturday were in a different room than the other 26 and they apparently were among the Americans who met with two Iranian Protestant ministers for Christmas services.

Iran's latest demand calls for the United States to deposit $24 billion with the Algeria as a guaruntee that Iran's assets will be returned and as collateral for the shah's undetermined wealth. Secretary of State Edmund Muskie has called the demand "unreasonable."

An Iranian Foreign Ministry spokesman said nearly 200 ambassadors and diplomatic representatives were present at the meeting at the Foreign Ministry, where three of the 52 hostages have been held since Nov. 4, 1979.

In the new film, four of hostages in the group of five were shown wearing red T-shirts embalzoned with the American bald eagle that they received last Christmas.

"I apologize for being out of uniform," the hostage without a T-shirt, Duane Gillete said, adding he did not get one when they were handed out last year "but would like to get one."

His remark sparked laughter from the other hostages, who were apparently all military men.

"We appreciate the support of the American people," Gillete, 24, a Navy communications specialist from Lacaster, Pa., said. "Without them, the situation would be that more difficult."

There was some difficulty at times determining who was speaking because the sound was not synchronized with the film.

The American television networks all received the film, sharing costs for its pool transmission.

Citizens' Funding For Cuban Militia

MIAMI (AP) — The president of Cuba's State Finance Committee said Friday the communist island will depend on citizens' contributions to finance a new "territorial militia" ordered last week by President Fidel Castro, according to Havana radio.

On Dec. 20, Castro told a rally that Cuba and its Latin American neighbors face a "real danger" of a U.S. invasion under the administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan and ordered formation of a civilian militia. He urged Cubans to donate spare time and vacations to a military training program.

The militia, which will operate in every Cuban city, has already been organized in some areas, Friday's broadcast said.

"The military training must be done without affecting production, services and studies," the broadcast said. "The uniforms and other military items must be acquired by the militiamen themselves."

Committee President Francisco Garcia Banos said the financing campaign "is an example of how the people face the situations imposed by the enemy."

Garcia Banos said 8 percent to 9 percent of his country's 1981 budget, scheduled for approval Saturday by the People Power Assembly, would be devoted to "defense and interior order."

The broadcast, monitored in Miami, said the financing campaign would be led by a national commission chaired by Roberto Viega, secretary general of Cuban Workers Central and a substitute member of the powerful Politburo of the Communist Party.

Leaders of the Cuban Women's Federation, the National Association of Small Farmers, Committees for the Defense of the Revolution and various student groups will also be named to the commission, the broadcast said.

Carter Collarbone Broken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter broke his left collarbone while cross-country skiing at Camp David Saturday and his painful shoulder was put in a harness he must wear for the remainder of his term.

"The president was in considerable pain," said deputy White House press secretary Rex Granum.

Granum said Carter was skiing down a slope on a nature trail behind the historic Aspen Lodge on three inches of snow when his ski caught on a rock and he fell on his left elbow and shoulder.

Carter went skiing for the first time this winter early Saturday morning at Camp David for an hour to 90 minutes, then decided to go out agin in the afternoon, Granum said. Mrs. Carter was skiing too, he said.

The president and his wife had arrived at Camp David late Friday afternoon from their home in Plains, Ga., where they had spent four days with family and friends over Christmas.

Granum said Carter, suffering "a great deal of pain," was taken back to the lodge where Rear Adm. William Lukash, the president's physician, put his arm in a sling and immobilized his shoulder.

He was flown in a helicopter to Bethesda Naval Medical Center for treatment and left about an hour later with his arm in a sling.

Granum quoted Lukash as saying the president suffered a fracture of the medial aspect of the left clavicle, the area closest to the breastbone.

Special Counsel Quits Haig Inquiry

BOSTON (AP) — Terry Lenzner, a former Watergate investigator who was hired by a Senate committee probing Alexander Haig, has resigned his week-old post with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the Boston Herald American reported Saturday.

The Herald said Lenzner, an expert on Haig's role as chief of staff to former President Richard M. Nixon, quit his Senate job a week after accepting the post.

"Apparently the law firm Lenzner works for was hesitant about him working for us," said Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., a member of the committee that will hold confirmation hearings on President-elect Reagan's nomination of Haig to the post of secretary of state.

"It's too bad, this costs us a week of work," said Tsongas. "The cards are stacked in Haig's favor."

Tsongas leads the opposition to the appointment of Haig, a former NATO commander. Tsongas wants to investigate dozens of illegal wiretaps of government officials from 1969 to 1971 when Haig served as top aide to Henry Kissinger, then national security adviser.

Winter Brings Snow And Flood

Light snow prevailed along the Atlantic Coast from central South Carolina to Delaware on Saturday, while rivers swollen by heavy rain and melting snow caused flooding in the Northwest.

Travelers' advisories were posted because of light snow over southern Delaware, southeastern Maryland, southeastern Virginia and west-central North Carolina. Other parts of the region had rain and drizzle.

It was the first snowstorm of the season for South Carolina with 4 inches falling in the Charleston area.

Rain was subsiding in the Northwest, but flooding remained a serious problem. Several hundred residents of Ebby Island in the Snohomish River east of Everett, Wash., were urged to evacuate Saturday after breaks appeared in dikes surrounding the 24-square-mile island.

A shift to offshore breezes cooled the Los Angeles area, which had record high temperatures Christmas Day.

In Northern California, heavy fog made driving hazardous and forced the closure of the three major

Erie Drilling Could Bring In $5 Billion

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Natural gas drilling in eastern and central parts of Lake Erie could provide Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania with nearly $5 billion in revenue, according to a new federal report.

The environmental impact statement made no recommendations on whether the states bordering the lake should allow drilling but offered estimates of how much revenue could result from drilling.

The study, released in draft form by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said Ohio — which controls more lake area than any other governmental body bordering the lake — would stand to gain the most.

It estimated Ohio's 1.8 million acres in the central and eastern basins could be leased for drilling purposes and produce $4.3 billion revenue over 40 years. It estimated 65 percent of the drilled wells would be successful.

It said drilling in New York's 373,000 acres of lake could produce $406 million for the state over 30 years in cash bonuses from gas exploration firms, royalties, bids and rental fees, and Pennsylvania's 370,000 acres could bring in $247 million during the same period. It estimated about 85 percent of the wells drilled in the New York waters would be successful as compared to 70 percent in Pennsylvania.

Successful Blood Driv

By JILL ALLEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The bloodmobile held Friday at the Greenville Moose Lodge "was a real success," according to Ott Alford, county chairman of the bloodmobile program. "Our goal was to have the largest drive ever in the history of Pitt County, and we did it," he said, mentioning that the goal did not include campus drives.

Despite it being scheduled during a holiday period, 364 people turned out to donate their blood, with a total of 342 pints collected. The goal for Friday's drive was set at 300, based on hopes of exceeding the past record here of 280 pints.

Alford not only was pleased with the amount of blood collected, but by the broad representation of community people who showed up to make donations. Many young people and more women than usual were donors. Also, 50 donors were "first-time givers." Alford was especially pleased with the donors, which he fe

Iran Launches Suicide Raids

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran said its "soldiers of Islam" launched suicide raids on Iraqi positions at the besieged oil refining city of Abadan on Saturday and engaged the invaders in hand-to-hand combat.

Iraq, in turn, said grenade-throwing infantrymen advancing under a protective barrage from tanks attacked Iranian defenders on the eastern and northern approaches to Abadan and its helicopter gunships raided the refinery complex again, setting new fires.

Neither side gave any casualty figures for the action at Abadan, a port city on the strategic Shatt al-Arab estuary. It has been under siege since the first weeks of the war, now in its third month.

Both countries reported air and sea assaults and Iran said its paratroopers were engaged in trench-to-trench combat in northwestern Kurdistan province, where Iraq launched a new invasion last week.

Fighting was reported at the Iranian highway town of Susangerd, in the central front, along with the Abadan assaults at the southern tip of the 550-mile battle lines. Western reporters are barred from the battle zones by both countries and there was no independent confirmation of the claims.

Saudi Arabia reported all 42 Islamic nations invited to attend a summit meeting Jan. 24 in Mecca, including Iran and Iraq, had agreed to be present. Information Minister Mohammad Abdo Yamani was quoted as saying the war would be discussed.

"Iraq responded favorably and positively at the Amman summit (conference last month in Jordan) and here it is again indicating it is ready to negotiate and accept peace," the Saudi Arabian news agency quoted Yamani as saying. "What is needed is a correct strategy to convince our brothers in Iran of the futility of this war which has dragged on for too long."

The war broke out Sept. 22 when Iraq's President Saddam Hussein abrogated a treaty setting the middle of the Shatt al-Arab waterway as the common border between the two countries. The estuary is Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

In another development, Saudi King Khaled was quoted by a Kuwaiti newspaper as saying sophisticated American radar planes had detected Iranian warplanes en route to bomb Kuwait-Iraq border posts last month. The planes, called AWACS for Airborne Warning and Control Systems, were sent to Saudi Arabia after the outbreak of the war.

"I was concerned when Iranian warplanes bombed your territory and I here reveal that the Saudi defense minister ... received an early warning from the AWACS planes and we were prepared to come to the aid of our brothers in Kuwait," the paper quoted the monarch saying.

Peace-making efforts by the 94-nation non-aligned movement, the Islamic nations and the United Nations have failed to produce a cease-fire in the war.

Former Congressman, Banker, Dead At 100

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles S. Dewey Sr., an international expert on industry and finance and a former Republican congressman from Illinois, has died of pneumonia at the age of 100.

Dewey, who served as an assistant secretary of the Treasury in charge of fiscal affairs from 1924 to 1927, died Thursday at his Washington home, according to a family spokesman and the Northern Trust Bank of Chicago, where he was a vice president in the early 1920s.

With his financial expertise, he was in charge of reducing the size of the U.S. paper currency during the presidency of Calvin Coolidge, a task said to result in millions of dollars in savings in paper and printing costs.

He directed the reorganization of Poland's monetary and financial systems as the American financial adviser to the Polish government and a director of the Bank of Poland from 1927 to 1931.

In 1931, he returned to Chicago and became active in the Republican Party. In 1941, he won election to the House of Representatives from Illinois' Ninth District. He served for four years.

In Congress, Dewey suggested that United Nations members make raw materials contributions to a postwar stabilization fund in an effort to break the power of cartels. He later was an observer to the Bretton Woods Conference setting up the International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

He was named a vice president of the old Chase National Bank in 1945, taking a leave of absence three years later to become agent general on the Joint Congressional Committee for Foreign Economic Cooperation (the Marshall Plan). The panel studied and reported to Congress on foreign aid programs.

Three Mishaps Listed

Three mishaps were reported this weekend causing a total of $2,600 damage.

A mishap occurred Friday at 3:30 p.m. on Greenville Blvd. causing damage to two vehicles.

Josephine Helen Barnett of Cary was charged with DUI when her car struck the vehicle belonging to Timothy Seagle Allen of 2105 E. Fifth St. here, police reported. Damage to each car was estimated at $300.

Memorial Drive was the scene of a two-car collision Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

Edward Earl Taft of Baltimore Md. was charged with a safe movement violation when he collided with a car operated by Lynn Mercer Coggins of Rt. 11, Greenville. $1000 damage is the estimated damage to each car.

THEFT FROM CAR

A radar device was stolen from a vehicle in the Pitt Plaza parking lot here Friday night about 10:30, according to police reports. The owner of the vehicle was identified as Walter Gordon Douglas of 117 Jamestown Road. Entry to vehicle was assumed to be by force.

FIRE DAMAGES

A minor fire in a local backyard workshop was reported Saturday afternoon at 12:17.

The incident occurred behind the home of John Barham Spilman, 1723 Forest Hills Drive. Reports indicate that the source of the fire was an improperly installed wood stove.

No injuries were reported and the blaze was extinguished within a few minutes by local firefighters.

Saturday, David Langley Jr. of 1117 Douglas Avenue was charged with driving the wrong way on a dual lane roadway and with DUI in an accident which occurred on N. Memorial Drive.

CHARGE PLACED

Curtis Levone Adams, 25, of 1507-A Fleming Street, was charged with possession of marijuana Friday at 6 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and Trade Streets. Police reported Adams' initial charge was an inspection violation.

Burial Blocked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entombment of multimillionaire Ben Weingart was blocked after his funeral Friday by a court order requested by his longtime companion who has been demanding an investigation of his death.

Laura Winston, who was with the financier for 16 years, is listed in the will to receive only $10,000 of his $221 million estate. A coroner's autopsy Wednesday attributed Weingart's death Monday at Good Samaritan Hospital to kidney failure.

There was no immediate word whether a coroner's inquest would follow Superior Court Judge Jack Swink's order forbidding burial or cremation of the 92-year-old philanthropist's body pending a court hearing Dec. 30.

Success Depends On Hard Work

The public defender system for the third judicial district has been instituted with the appointment of Greenville attorney Don Hicks to the position by Gov. Hunt. Hicks will formally begin his duties on Jan. 1.

He has already begun assembling the staff of six attorneys, two investigators and secretaries to carry out the duties of the office.

Beginning the public defender system was not without controversy. There was some objection in the district to the system, as opposed to the old method of appointing attorneys in private practice to represent those defendants who cannot afford an attorney.

Still the public defender system has worked in other areas of North Carolina and in other states. It would seem to us to be a more orderly way of handling indigent defendant defense.

The success of the system, however, will depend on a lot of hard work from the outset by Hicks and the people he selects to inaugurate the system.

It will depend on choosing the most competent people available to fill the authorized positions. It represents a major change in procedure for defending indigents and we hope for success for Hicks and the staff he will assemble.

Misguided Effort Loses Dog

There are those who think they are doing dogs in the Pitt County Animal Shelter a favor by letting them out.

Rarely is that true. The animals turned out are on their own to forage for themselves. More important, as a "Hotline" item indicated their owners could be on the way to pick them up.

In that case an owner found her dog in the shelter. The next day when she met the dog warden to retrieve the dog, they found all the animals had been let out.

It a sad situation, the result of somebody's misguided effort.

Not Fixing Is Costly, Too

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There's a special section in the report of the Commission on Transportation Needs and Financing written just for those people who argue that the state can cut back on building more roads — just maintain what we have.

It seems that revenues have fallen so that the Highway Department isn't doing very well at that task. Some 10 years ago the state averaged resurfacing 2,600 miles every year. More recently, that has been cut to only 1,300 miles — half the need.

This year, only 740 miles have been resurfaced.

What happens when you neglect this maintenance program? "As the small crack appears on the surface of the highway and grows larger without repair, the pavement fails and the resurfacing process is no longer effective. Reconstruction of the road becomes necessary .... If we do not protect the investment we now have ... we stand the real possiblity of having to rebuild a major portion of the system at a staggering future cost," the commission reported.

What that report is talking about are crumbling shoulders, potholes, and rough places. It will cost a lot to fix those problems, but the commission presented a subtle message to motorists:

You are gonna pay either way — either in more money to keep the roads up, or more money to keep your car running. At a time when more people are trying to keep cars longer, and reep them in better shape both for fuel efficiency and longer life, the commission report makes this observation:

"If our transportation system is allowed to deteriorate each of us will suffer greater damage to our personal vehicles (frequent alignments, bent rims, worn out shock absorbers, tire and brake wear, damage to steering mechanisms, and shorter vehicle life); less personal safety; increased travel time; lowered fuel efficiency; and less individul comfort and convenience."

With Humor

Craig Lawing, the Charlotte auctioneer who will be a top leader in the North Carolina senate in the coming session, offered some advice to new legislators at an orientation the other day. True to form, Lawing called upon humor to make his main points.

Study and think about the serious business at hand, he urged newcomers. Don't be like a colleague who turned to a fellow senator to inquire: "What do you think about this abortion bill?"

To which the newcomer responded: "If we owe it, we oughta pay it."

And always be ready to respond when called upon to serve, Lawing insisted; then recalled that on a recent trip to a Las Vegas gaming room, he bumped into a man carrying a little dog under his arm. Why are you carrying it? Lawing asked.

"He doesn't have any legs," the stranger said; to which Lawing wondered if it were born that way or lost them accidentally.

"He was born that way," the man replied, and as Lawing reached out to pet the dog, he asked his name.

"He doesn't have a name. If you called him, he couldn't come."

Clued In

State officials are urging the public to call or write about ways money can be saved in the highway maintenance and construction effort.

A couple of months ago, those little glass and metal reflectors were installed on a major Raleigh street which is part of the state road system. Then, just weeks later, the resurfacing crews came along and covered them up with new pavement. Now, they're putting new glass and metal reflectors back in the street.

Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw drives that road between home and office practically every day.

Sunday Morning Notes

Christmas is over and we only have a few days to contemplate the passing year of 1980.

It was a surprising year.

Who would have thought, for instance that the hostages would still be held in Iran? And who would have believed interest rates of 21 percent at year's end.

For that matter, few would have predicted that Jimmy Carter would be voted out of office and that Ronald Reagan would be the newly elected president

Locally not all of us would have believed a new east-west thoroughfare would be nearing completion as the year ended. (Don't believe it? Try out 14th Boulevard west of Dickinson Avenue).

Most of us had heard many times about the big snow of 1927. They didn't have snows like that anymore. But in 1980 we did. It came on the same day as it predecessor March 2, and was approximately the same depth. Like the 1927 snow, this one went away fast as the first breezes of Spring wafted over the area.

Many of us, though, saw more snow than we have ever seen before at one time. It paralyzed us and fascinated us. It was a sight to see.

There was a time when Christmas most brought home the fact that times were hard. There are still plenty of people who recall when their families were too poor to afford much — an apple or an orange and perhaps a cheap toy was all the kids got. A pair of roller skates was considered a Christmas to remember.

Despite all the complaints about the economy, things are not that way anymore.

Everybody gets most everything they want.

These are still hard times, though. We've just shifted the agony to January when all those credit card purchases bills start rolling in

Well, the theory these days is if you don't buy it today, it will just cost more tomorrow. And so it is in inflationary times.

Perhaps one father looking at bicycles summed it up, "You know, in my day you could have bought a car for what these things cost."

Maybe so, but even in those days autos weren't ten-speed.

A Compromise

(Kannapolis Independent)

There's quite a debate about whether the N.C. Department of Instruction should take over the operation of school buses or continue to leave this responsibility in the hands of local administrators.

The debate was sparked by reports of losses of millions of dollars a year because of lack of supervision, theft and waste of fuel and parts. The state auditor's office recommended that the state assume the responsibility for transporting of students.

We doubt the wisdom of this move. It's impossible for somebody to sit at a desk in Raleigh and determine what the transportation needs are for every county and town in the state, and oversee the operation of school buses. This additlional responsibility in Raleigh surely would require another layer of bureaucracy in education, and we don't need this.

We acknowledge, too, that bus operations have varied in scope and in efficiency from system to system. This probably has resulted because of too much flexibility in guidelines and the implication that if a school bus operation ran into financial problems all the administrators had to do was ask Raleigh for more money. As a consequence, the operations in some cases have become haphazard, or worse.

We prefer a compromise.

Operation of the school buses should be left to local administration, but the guidelines from Raleigh should clearly define who should be provided transportation, how frequently the buses stop and how long they should wait for students, and whether dual runs are justified. And the guidelines should be uniform.

Local school systems should be given adequate funds to opeate the buses, taking into account whether the routes are rural or in towns, in the sandhills or in the mountains, and other factors that might affect costs. Then the local educators should be made to understand that they had to stretch the dollars throughout the year.

We have observed that school people, like others, can squeeze pennies when they have to.

Won In Spite Of Odds

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Have you dreamed of hitting the lottery big and solving a lot of your problems?

Your chances of winning $1 million are one in 10 million, according to the Massachusetts state lottery. To win $100,000, you would have to beat odds of five million to one.

Arthur Hoener, who had never won anything in his life, beat both those incredible odds on an investment of a little more than $1,000.

The odds against winning both are about one in 50 trillion — that's trillion! — according to William E. Perrault, mathematician and director of the Massachusetts lottery.

And it's the first time it happened in the nine-year history of the state's lottery.

Hoener won $1 million in May 1977. Last October he hit again for $100,000.

But the lifestyle of the 51-year-old Hampshire College art teacher hasn't changed dramatically. He isn't throwing money away.

"It's hard to break habits of 30 years," he says. "I still go to the gas stations where I can buy the cheaper gas.

"In terms of my style of living, I was doing pretty much what I wanted to be doing when I won the million so that I did not take off and go and do the thing I wanted to do because I was doing it. I enjoy teaching and I'm pretty good at it so the idea of just stop teaching doesn't appeal to me at all."

But he did put enough money aside to take a year's leave of absence from his $30,000-a-year job to go to Connecticut to paint and work on a book.

His winnings are being paid over a period of 20 years in installments of up to $48,000 annually after federal income tax deductions of 20 percent.

He says that right now he is investing in Arthur Jr., 22, Carolyn, 20, and Irene, 18,

THE INSIDE REPORT

Long-Term Threat Exists

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WARSAW, Poland — The threat of imminent Soviet intervention has faded, as imperceptible as winter twilight, but the longer term threat from Moscow will continue indefinitely.

That is true in spite of nearly one full month of surface peace in the struggle for reform and "renewal" that Lech Welesa and his Solidarity union of 10 million workers carried into the heart of Communist Party leader Kania's Politburo. Welesa's spectacular success in winning party approval for his "free" union has stirred hot embers of nationalism and political revival in every nook and cranny of Poland.

Even the optimists in Poland, a nation whose history has steeped its people in skepticism, doubt that these embers can be kept from flaming up at grave risk of Soviet invasion in the months ahead. Solidarity has loosed passions, and passions have an appetite that grows with success.

"What makes Solidarity important is my confidence and faith in a better tomorrow," a worker at the big steel plant near here told us. "The Communist Party should change its whole Central Committee and let younger people take charge, but of course they won't do that."

We were sitting around a long bare table in the office of the steel mill with three workers who helped organize the mill's 10,000 workers under the Solidarity banner. The three workers — call them Jaworski, Szimenski and Shadowski — spoke with a freedom that seemed amazing in view of the presence during our one-hour interview of a top "management" official who listened carefully and made several notes. That would simply have not been possible before the shipyard workers won their sit-down strike at Gdansk last summer.

"Could you have talked to a newspaper reporter this way a year ago?" we asked. "No," Jaworski said, "not nearly so frankly." Solidarity, he said, should use its influence to change the tight centralized control of state planning bodies in Poland's bankrupt industrial sector and should insist on decontrolling investment policies that choke production and are geared to ridiculous products like color television. A color-TV set by Pol-Color costs 46,000 zlotys; an average steel worker's wages are 6,000 zlotys a month.

The conversation, typical of talk between Poles and outsiders all over Poland during these days of basic change, turned political. We asked how Solidarity could conceivably refrain from direct "political" pressures in the Communist Party, since its purpose, like any union in the U.S,, was to advance the workers' wages, working conditions and economic welfare. Yet, the compact between Solidarity and the communist government denies the union any "political" role at all.

"We are not a political organization," Shadowski insisted. "We have a right to try and influence the (party's) Central Committee, the administration of justice and other functions of the state, but we are not political. We have already influenced in a highly-visible way what is published in our press — much more than before — and what is shown on our television. The truth is being revealed and we are no longer afraid to speak freely."

But in the U.S., we said, unions are political organizations, as well as economic. The third worker, Szimanski, now took over the conversation.

"Solidarity could and should become the backbone of the Communist Party itself," he told us. "If it were not for certain elements within the party that resist change, a certain rabble-rousing element, there would be much less friction. But we deny political intentions."

Solidarity wants a "parallel road" with the Communist Party, we were told. But the party fears that. The party insists on a very broad interpretation of its "leading role," and both the party and Solidarity know that if the "leading role" is ever visibly impaired, Soviet troops will invade. Allowing Solidarity to compete with the party on a "parallel" path could undercut the "leading role." Instead, the party

Strength For Today

LOSERS & GAINERS

Not long ago a man whose only son had died in Vietnam was startled by the frightened shouts of children at a nearby pond. Running to them he arrived just in time to rescue a six-year-old boy who had ventured too far out and was already lying unconscious beneath the surface of the water.

There was a certain pathos in this event The man had saved the life of a boy; yes, but his own boy was long past saving. The man must have been aware that he was doing for some other parent what no one else had done or could have done for him..

Yet, pathos or not, this man was on the right road to happiness and consolation for his own personal griet. The surest way to forget our own burdens is to help some other person with theirs. In generous acts for others' good, we truly lose ourselves, and in losing ourselves we lose our sorrows as well. Jesus said that if we lose our lives we shall find them. — Elisha Douglass.

End Uncle Sam Santa Claus?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Lest you forget, there's a real world out there that doesn't acknowledge the existence of Santa Claus. It wants to cut down on handouts, benefits, tax loopholes and the like from Uncle Sam's bag.

In other words, it wants you to worry about losing them, the reason being that these goodies are often unfair and very often inflationary. And they don't want you to forget it, even at Christmas.

Therefore, if you are deeply submerged in the slumberous comfort of the season, please realize that the forces of economic righteousness are wide awake. Consider, for example, this proposal from Goldman Sachs.

The economics unit of that major investment house wants to restrict the tax deductibility of consumer interest costs because, it says, such deductions spur inflation, cut the savings rate, and keep taxes high.

All good reasons, most people would agree, but at what cost — to the credit card user, to the automobile buyer, to the family with the big mortgage and, in general, to a generation of people deep in debt?

To cut the tax deductibility of interest would be to cut the oxygen hoses of families submerged in a red ink sea who have been able to cope because their big debts often given them big income tax refunds.

Goldman Sachs explains: "In effect, consumers deduct inflation from their borrowing costs more than once — once because they repay their debts in dollars that are worth less, and again because they can deduct the inflation premium in interest costs from their taxable income and, thereby, reduce their taxes."

It's true, and by now most debtors understand the process. In fact, many Americans haven't slipped into debt but have pursued it. To owe money, they conclude, is the way to obtain a subsidy from Uncle Sam.

It is also the way to live well today. It is the way to riches. It is the way to get more than 100 cents on the dollar, a remarkable feat considering that lenders get a loss less than 100 on their dollars.

Savers today are penalized. They forgo buying a product until they have enough money saved, only to realize that the buying power of their savings shrink rather than grow, and that the price of the product rises. It leaves them with no product and shriveled savings.

The borrower obtains the product and all the benefits of it today. He doesn't have to wait. He pays for it in cheaper dollars. He gets a tax deduction. He gets the appreciation in value because of inflation.

And so, to a generation of borrowers the Goldman Sachs proposal is frightening. The investment firm would use the added revenue resulting from the change to finance "a substantial reduction in taxes on consumer savings and investment returns." That is, to aid savers.

In the eyes of the borrower, the most devastating thing you can say about such a proposal is that it appears to make sense. Shouldn't savings be encouraged so the country will have capital to rebuild? Shouldn't excesses of demand be curtailed so as to restrain inflation?

But, so long has the country been in debt, so long have various units of government run up deficits, so long have people been accustomed to buying even when they didn't have the money (only the credit)...

...that the very notion seems aimed at distrupting what has come to be the good life, the life of the contented debtor.

"Humbug," says the debtor, submerging himself in holiday games and cocktails. "Those do-gooders don't even rest at Christmas. They don't even believe in Santa Claus."

A Tie For 2 'Admired'

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — First lady Rosalynn Carter and Mother Teresa of Calcutta are tied for first place as the women most admired by the American public.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher is in second place, followed by former first lady Betty Ford in third.

Named fourth and fifth are Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso and former Texas Congresswoman Barbara Jordan.

In sixth place on this year's list is TV commentator Barbara Walters, followed by Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in seventh.

In eighth and ninth places are Nancy Reagan and former first lady Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, respectively. Actress Jane Fonda rounds out the top 10.

Many of the same personalities led in 1979 as well: Rosalynn Carter; Betty Ford; Mother Teresa; Margaret Thatcher; Barbara Walters; Lillian Carter, the president's mother; former first lady Patricia Nixon; singer Anita Bryant; Coretta King, civil rights activist, and Jacqueline Onassis.

Survey respondents in these studies, which the Gallup Poll has conducted for more than three decades, are asked to give their choices without the aid of a prearranged list of names. This procedure, while opening the field to all possible choices, tends to favor those who are currently or have recently been in the news.

Here are the questions asked in the survey:

"What woman that you have heard or read about, living today in any part of the world, do you admire the MOST? Who is your SECOND choice?"

Most Admired Women

1980	1979
1. Rosalynn Carter	1. Rosalynn Carter
Mother Teresa (tie)
2. Margaret Thatcher	2. Betty Ford
3. Betty Ford	3. Mother Teresa
4. Ella Grasso	4. Margaret Thatcher
5. Barbara Jordan	5. Barbara Walters
6. Barbara Walters	6. Lillian Carter
7. Indira Gandhi	7. Patricia Nixon
8. Nancy Reagan	8. Anita Bryant
9. Jacqueline Onassis	9. Coretta King
10. Jane Fonda	10. Jacqueline Onassis

Receiving frequent mention, but not included in this year's top 10 are (in alphabetical order): Anita Bryant; Shirley Chisholm, New York's representative from the 12th congressional district; Elizabeth II, queen of England; Lady Bird Johnson, the former first lady; Coretta King, and Pat Nixon.

Choices Of Men, Women Compared

The top three choices of MEN in the current survey are, in order: Margaret Thatcher, Mother Teresa and Rosalynn Carter. Women picked Rosalynn Carter first, Mother Teresa second and Margaret Thatcher third.

The differences in choices by religion are also noteworthy. Protestants give first place to Mrs. Carter, while Margaret Thatcher and Betty Ford take second and third places, repectively. Among Catholics, Mother Teresa is the runaway top vote-getter, followed by Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Thatcher.

The 1980 audit is based on personal interviews with 1,549 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically-selected localities across the nation during the period Dec. 5-8.

For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be 3 percentage points in either direction.

putting the three older children through college at a total cost of up to $36,000 a year, although he would have found a way to do it even if he hadn't hit the lottery.

There are two other children in the wings, 14-year-old twins Donna and Virginia, in junior high school. Their allowance hasn't been increased yet, he says with a laugh. "They are great kids. They do a lot of baby-sitting and they actually don't need an allowance."

Hoener sent his parents in Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., on a trip to Florida, something they had always wanted to do.

He bought a new station wagon to replace the old one which was dangerous to drive because the bottom was rusted out and fumes were coming up under the floor. His guess is that the whole family is better dressed. Although he doesn't always look at the prices on menus, he does scan newspapers for bargain sales and recently picked up a $16 staple gun for $10.

"It just doesn't make any sense to throw money away, does it? Economic freedom is an important freedom. It means you can think much more freely about your options."

Hoener is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y. He turned down football and art scholarships at a number of schools, opting to study graphic design at tuition-free Cooper Union in New York because he felt it was the best. His parents were trying to put three sons through college at just about the same time.

While he was at Cooper, he worked in the advertising business. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees in painting at Yale, taught at Boston University and ran an advertising agency and design service in Boston before coming to Hampshire College 10 years ago.

He and his wife, Peggy, bought a 15-room home built at the turn of the century with a big barn behind it for his painting and land for his organic gardening. He has a 7¾ percent mortgage and says that because it is so small, paying it off doesn't make much sense.

wants to "surround" and "swallow up" Solidarity so that its identity is eventually smothered by the party.

The paradox for Solidarity is painful; it has built up, quite peacefully, a powerful head of steam but it is now compelled to slow down for fear of overwhelming the Communist Party — and thereby inviting Soviet aggression.

In slowing down, as Walesa has warned repeatedly of late, Solidarity is being split by more radical and activist factions willing to push the party to the wall even if it means Soviet troops patrolling Polish streets.

Every Pole we talked to, including Walesa himself and Communists with close contacts to the Politburo, agrees that Solidarity must be content to advance toward its goals slowly and deliberately, never frontally challenging the party. So the game becomes a delicate, three-sided balancing act; Solidarity making dangerously-slow advances to correct a political and economic system that is rotten to the core; the Communist Party permitting this slow advance, while always talking confidently about its ultimate controls, and dissidents in both the party and the union denied the right to escalate the struggle, but always on the verge of making the kind of trouble that will bring in the Russians.

After one week in Poland, we could find no one with any certainty as to what will happen in the months ahead. But in spite of surface calm today and the peaceful crowds that attended the emotional unveiling of the Gdansk memorial to workers killed 10 years ago, there is a consensus of sorts. That consensus borrows from 200 years of Poland's tragic history and concluded that the newest crisis will end by a subversive Soviet intervention in the tradition of Targowica.

In 1793, the Polish nobility agreed to cede some of its power to commoners and drafted a constitution — the second written constitution in the Western world. Known as Magnates, the nobles granted important constitutional rights to a new parliamentary system.

As I Recall It

Today, The Dancing Ban Is Apparently Ignored

By NOEL YANCEY

When hundreds of Wake Forest University students went jitterbugging on the campus back in November 1957, they were not celebrating a football victory over Carolina or State. They were bunny hopping in defiance of the State Baptist Convention which had just overwhelmingly reaffirmed a 20-year-old ban on dancing on campuses of Baptist institutions.

"To Hell with the Baptist State Convention," they shouted as they burned J.C. Canipe, president of the convention, in effigy. The demonstration continued the following day when the students halted their chapel service midway and began marching out. The choir, which had been singing a hymn, switched to the Deacon fight song, "Here's to Wake Forest..." Outside, the students staged another impromtu dance on the patio outside Reynolda Hall.

In these days when college administrators would welcome a diversion as innocent as dancing among their charges, it is difficult to fathom the decision of the 4,000 Baptist delegates at their meeting in Raleigh in continuing its 29-year-old ban on dancing. "We disapprove and condemn the modern dance as a means of social amusement," said the resolution which the delegates reaffirmed. "We recognize that it is demoralizing and that it tends toward immorality."

The convention spoke after trustees of Wake Forest and Meredith College in Raleigh had voted to authorize on-campus dances for the remainder of the college year.

"We had condoned no evil," said W.H. Weatherspoon, a Raleigh attorney and member of the Meredith trustees. "We have undertaken to watch over it...In spite of all the preaching...the students dance at home...and have for years..." He pointed out that 93 percent of the Meredith parents had requested in writing that their daughters be allowed to attend off campus dances.

Lois Johnson, dean of women at Wake Forest, argued that dancing is "a generally accepted social activity these days...If you could see our students riding off to hotels in Raleigh and Durham (to dance) while our gymnasiums stand empty, I believe you would see why our policy of permitting dances protects boys and girls."

C.B. Deane, a former congressman and long-time recording secretary of the convention, defended the trustees' decision by pointing out that the students go to college "with recreational attitudes developed while they were members of your church and mine."

But the Rev. E.W. Price Jr. of High Point, a former member of a dance orchestra, argued that dancing "inflames sensuality." The Rev. M.O. Owens, head of the Gardner-Webb College trustees, admitted he had "danced a good deal" in his time, "but I don't believe it helped me spiritually." He said his two young daughters danced, "but I don't let them do it at home. Every time they do it, they know I don't approve."

The Rev. Wendell Davis of Statesville, said the Wake Forest and Meredith trustees reminded him of a foolhardy goat that butted heads with a freight train. "I admire their courage, but I can't admire their judgement," he said just before the delegates, who represented more that 800,000 North Carolina Baptists reaffirmed their stand against dancing.

A few months later, after the protests by the students has subsided, the Wake Forest trustees approved a resolution in which they bowed to the decision of the convention but reasserted that they run the university.

The 43-year-old order outlawing on-campus dancing remains in effect, but is now completely ignored. Dances are common both at Wake Forest and Meredith and on the campuses of other Baptist institutions.

"It's done on both campuses, and we don't hear anything about it from the Baptist State Convention," said a Meredith spokesman who

An Old Forgotten Road Is Often Real Treasure

CULLMAN, Al. — There are roads and roads and roads...

There is the modern freeway, spewing traffic at dizzying pace; the jammed city street, reeking with exhaust fumes; the meandering farm-to-market road; and all too infrequently now, the old forgotten road, wandering, like a free spirit, to nowhere.

That is my kind of road! I offer it as a sure cure for melancholia, claustrophobia, pressures, and the general feeling that there is really nothing interesting in the world anymore.

In Cullman, Alabama, an old road ran behind the subdivision where we lived. The road was a deletion, a series of curves bypassed by a man in his efforts to build straighter highways. It left the paved farm-to-market road just below our house and appeared to end after a quarter mile or so.

But my little girl and I went walking one afternoon. Half a mile from the last juncture, we found what at first appeared to be no more than a rift in the honeysuckle growth; peering through, we saw again our wayward road, frolicking through a strand of young pines, heading, eventually, for tall timber.

My little girl took my hand. "Where does it go, Daddy?"

"Back into the past," I said. "Back into the sunset."

"Can we go, Daddy?"

"Yes, baby, we can go."

So we went, as often as we could, afternoons, weekends, and at odd intervals, exploring the old road.

We saw the plums green in springtime and see-through red or yellow come summer; we saw mocking birds playing chase in the hedgerows, stitching the trees with lace; we heard the insects' rasping symphony in the ancient cornfield; we saw the field mice scurrying for cover at our intrusion.

My little girl was almost fascinated with the old homesite we found. The house had been razed, and all that was left was the chimney, rearing tall against the sky. My little girl could stand inside the big fireplace, and see the clouds through the top. I explained to her how perhaps a thousand fires had been lit there on cold mornings, issuing dense black smoke; and how, in the evening when the fire was low and had to be re-kindled, a little plume went up into heaven so lazily you could almost climb it like a stair.

We found the well, its curbing rotted and gone, overgrown with vines and weeds. Out away from the well the barn had stood, the ghost of an old wagon marking the spot; there was the metal portion of a single-tree, a rusty clevis, and pieces of a "Ball" fruit jar, blue as my little girl's eyes.

"People lived here, Daddy? Where did they go?"

"To town, perhaps, as we did."

"Tell me about them, Daddy; tell me about the people."

So I told her about them, how some of them lived and died and never got out of the state in which they were born — my father, for one, her grandfather. But how do you explain deprivation to a modern four year old?

Winter-time along the old road was helpful in this respect. On sunny days, with my little girl bundled up in warm clothes, we walked the frozen path on mushrooms of earth-encrusted ice. High above us, the starlings were always webbing the bright sky, crying their defiance at their poor luck in finding food.

"The birds, Daddy! What are they doing?"

"They're hunting for something to eat."

Her eyes went dim. "Gee, Daddy, I'm glad we don't have to hunt for food." She looked back often to the birds, scouring the heavens; there was wonder and awe in my little girl's face.

The wind, coming down across the mountains from the north, was honed to knife-edge sharpness. But I would wait until we were cold, until her lips were blue, before building the fire. I wanted her to hurt a little, this soft child of suburbia, so she would know the pleasure of the pain's ceasing; I wanted her cold lest she never really cherish the warmth of the fire.

Going home was the best time of all. We squatted, hugging the fire before I covered it with dirt; her little girl's mind was already fixed on a nap and a warm bed. She had stopped letting me carry her in the presence of others, but, homeward-bound along the old road, I got a bonus on many an evening — the pleasure of "toting" her sound asleep for perhaps the last quarter mile.

New Year Resolutions Call For Contemplation

New Year's is still several days away, but I thought I'd make my New Year's resolutions early so that I would have time to think about implementing them. Accordingly, I sat down last Saturday and composed my list.

The first item on the list was "Wash the windows." I knew that they needed washing when, after checking the weather through the window in the den, I emerged from the house carrying an umbrella and the sky was Carolina blue.

The second item was "Take down the Christmas decorations before July." It's embarrassing when your kid tells every adult who will listen that the Easter Bunny left her candy in her Christmas stocking.

The third item was "Stop reading books on childrearing." I'm like an addict. Every time I see a new book on parenting, I have to buy it. I keep hoping that someday I'll find the secret to coping with Meg. Of course, I ought to know by now that the answer can't be found in any book. Nowhere do they say anything about kids who speak like Bill Buckley and think like Edgar Allen Poe.

The fourth item was "Don't lose your temper, at least not more than once a day." The qualification at the end of this resolution may appear to dilute the intent, but when you're living in the twilight zone, you've got to make allowances for an occasional case of nerves. The only way to live in total patience with Meg is to be lobotomized, and I'm not quite ready for that step yet.

The fifth item was "Don't complain." This was the biggie on the list. I grew up in a family in which "small talk" was thought to refer to pain in a specific region of one's back. It took me years to figure out that when a person asked me how I was, they weren't looking for an episode of "Doctor's Hospital." I have tried to get away from this orientation, but moving to Smithfield was a real set-back. Eliminating references to my house and my town severely limits my ability to converse.

I was pondering a sixth item for the list when Phillip came in and began to read over my shoulder. These are great resolutions. You can't possibly intend to keep them."

"Of course not."

"Then why did you bother to write them down?"

"Just chalk it up to a sudden impulse to try my hand at fiction."

New Controversies Posed By Old Principles

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — New controversies often involve old principles. That's the case these days out in Kansas, where some lively arguments are being heard about a proposal to authorize pari-mutuel gambling. George Neavoll, editor of the editorial pages of the Wichita Sagle-Beacon, is foursquare against the idea. If I were in Kansas, I'd be about threes-square in favor of it. Let us break a lance.

My brother Neavoll finds the whole proposition "wrong, wrong, wrong." He scoffs at the notion that pari-mutuel betting would produce significant revenue for the state of Kansas — maybe $14.7 million a year, less than 1.5 percent of total revenues. Taxes are the least of his concerns.

Mr. Neavoll is more deeply troubled by the social and moral issues of legalized gambling. "Low-income people who can afford it the least — and because of their deprived status are tempted the most — are hit the hardest." My brother cites a study showing that in New York, bettors in the lowest income class wagered the highest percentage of their income. "Of those New Yorkers with incomes of less than $10,000, less than 10 percent played the horses, but their gambling took 2.17 percent of their annual paycheck."

This "cruel enterprise," he contends, leads thousands of new bettors into temptation, and contributes toward the ranks of an estimated six to nine million compulsive gamblers. Moreover, pari-mutuel betting suggests to the gullible that it's possible to get something for nothing, that one doesn't really have to work, and that it's possible to beat the system and live on easy street. Mr. Neavoll's strong advice to the lawmakers at Topeka is: Vote it down!

Well, that is a powerful case, but not a convincing case. Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems to me that in a free society we ought to be very leery of fixing public policies out of some superior appreciation of the Finer Things of Life. Consider this benighted New Yorker, Billy Brooklyn, the one with an income under $10,000 a year, who spends $217 annually betting on the bangtails. My brother out in Kansas thinks this is just teddible, teddible, teddible. I don't think it's teddible at all.

Live and let live, says I. Different strokes for different folks! De gustibus non est disputandum. And all that sort of thing. Our governments at every level already are deeply involved in the entertainment business. Our federal taxes subsidize symphony orchestras (including Wichita's), choral groups, theater companies and the like. Our state and local taxes subsidize parks, zoos, stadiums and ice-skating rinks.

My thought is that if Billy Brooklyn wants to squander his $217 (or invest it, or risk it, or simply spend it) by putting four bucks a week on the horses, that's Billy's business. If he would rather go to the opera, OK. Or take the kids to the zoo. Fine with me. Maybe his $217 buys $217 worth of dreams or excitement or tall stories, and now and then a lovely memory of a 20-to-1 shot that came home in the mud. Why don't we just leave Billy alone?

Thirty-two states now permit pari- mutuel tracks. Fourteen states have lotteries, and Colorado, Arizona and the District of Columbia last month approved measures toward that end. Two states have casinos. Others have legalized dog tracks and jai alai. Last year nearly $9 billion was wagered in public gaming. That may not make it right, but it does suggest that the pastime is popular. And the states, incidentally, took in nearly $2 billion in taxes as their share of the pot.

Maybe it's immoral for government to authorize sin and then tax the proceeds, but the practice is ancient in public finance. We've had taxes on whiskey and cigarettes for more than 200 years. Sixty-odd years ago we tried to keep Billy Brooklyn from buying booze. The misguided effort produced the long dark night of Prohibition — a fiasco that the state of Kansas helped to create and later refused to correct. Kansas wouldn't even let its people vote on the repeal amendment in 1933.

For the record: This is no personal crusade from a broken-down horse player. Old dad is so square he wouldn't bet on the next tide or the phases of the moon. My idea of a pleasant evening in Las Vegas is to stay in the hotel room watching "Tale of Two Cities" on the tube. But Billy doubtless has a different idea. He's entitled.

Doubt Daughter's Confession

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Fayetteville couple says they don't believe reports that their 28-year-old daughter has confessed to witnessing the 1970 murders of Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald's family.

Clarence Stoeckley said his daughter, Helena, and her husband visited their Fayetteville home briefly this fall. Both parents say their daughter is a stranger to them.

Ted Gunderson, a former FBI agent now working as a private detective, said Helena Stoeckley has signed a confession saying she witnessed the ritualistic slayings.

According to Ms. Stoeckley's reported confession, she was a member of a "sex- and drug-oriented cult" that planned the murders to punish MacDonald for his dealings with some members.

Army investigators have dismissed her statements, saying she was "an expert at confessing."

Says Ms. Stoeckley Told To Keep Quiet

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Los Angeles private investigator says he has a signed confession from Helena Stoeckley in which she claims she was ordered by the Army to keep quiet about the MacDonald murders at Fort Bragg.

Ted Gunderson said he was one of several persons who watched her sign the confession two months ago, saying she witnessed the multiple slayings during the early hours of Feb. 17, 1970.

In the statement, she said she was ordered in 1972 by an Army criminal investigator to quit talking about her alleged involvement.

Gunderson said the woman's conscience wouldn't let her heed the order.

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald was convicted in 1979 of the bludgeoning and stabbing deaths of his wife, Collette, and two daughters, Kimberly and Kristen.

A federal appeals court overturned the conviction, saying MacDonald had been denied his right to a speedy trial. The full court last week upheld that ruling.

Insurance Costs Differ Statewide

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Motorists in Charlotte are paying a lot more for auto insurance than motorists in Raleigh because of a significant change in the way North Carolina insurance companies figure rates.

Overall, insurance rates went up 5.9 percent Dec. 1, just under the 6 percent annual maximum allowed by the Legislature.

Insurance companies assigned a higher proportion of the $35-million-a-year increase to drivers in High Point, Charlotte, and military bases like Fort Bragg, saying drivers in those areas have more accidents or costlier accidents than do drivers in the rest of the state.

Rates for Charlotte motorists will go up 23 percent for basic liability coverage.

Liability insurance that last month cost a Charlotte driver $93 a year now costs $114. Liability rates for Raleigh drivers rose just $2, from $86 to $88.

Insurance officials argue that drivers in Charlotte and other high-risk areas comprising 20 percent of the total drivers in the state should pay premiums that more nearly reflect accident costs.

Petitions To End El Salvador Aid

CLEVELAND (AP) — An Ohio congresswman was handed petitions bearing 10,000 signatures on Saturday urging the federal government to "take whatever measures are necessary to permanently stop all forms of military assistance and U.S. intervention in El Salvador."

U.S. Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, was given the petitions at a news conference by the Sisters' Coalition for Justice and the Central America Solidarity Committee.

U.S. economic and military aid to El Salvador was suspended following the Dec. 2 slaying of four Catholic missionaries, two from Cleveland and two from New York. But economic aid since has been resumed, and the suspension of military aid has been ineffective because some equipment ready for shipment still is being delivered, Ms. Oakar said.

Ms. Oakar said she favors an end to aid to the civil-military junta ruling the Central American country.

"I do not know what the alternative (to the junta) is at this time," said Ms. Oakar. "If we're going to give money abroad, we ought to do it economically. I do not relate to giving bullets to other countries."

Experiment Without Approval Claimed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Six doctors at UCLA Medical School have been reprimanded for performing experimental bone marrow transplants on dying patients without approval from a school committee entrusted with safeguarding patients, the Los Angeles Times reported Saturday.

But members of the Human Subject Protection Committee are dissatisfied with reprimands and are demanding a full investigation by the school's administrators, the newspaper said.

Under federal law as well as university rules, all such experiments must be approved by the committee before being performed.

Failure to do so, the Times said, could lead to a cut-off of federal research funds to the individual researchers and to the institution.

Afghans Storm Soviet Embassy In Tehran

By United Press International

Afghan refugees stormed the Soviet Embassy in Tehran Saturday and burned the Soviet flag in a violent protest on the first anniversary of the Russian invasion of Afghanistan. Demonstrations also were mounted in India and West Germany.

Iran's official Pars news agency said scores of members of the Front for the Liberation of Afghanistan, shouting "Russia will be defeated," entered the grounds of the Soviet Embassy in Tehran.

"They pulled down the Soviet flag and burned it and installed the picture of Imam Khomeini on the gate of the embassy," Pars said. Some sources said the demonstrators were driven off with iron bars.

The protesters condemned "the occupation of their country by Soviet troops," Pars said. Another protest was reported in Mashad, near the Afghan border.

The Soviet Union called criticism of its occupation a "slanderous hullaballoo" and said its 85,000 troops in Afghanistan were just defending the nation against "an undeclared war" by the United States and China.

The first Soviet forces arrived in a Dec. 24-25 airlift last year. On Dec. 27 the installation of Babrak Karmal as president and the execution of his predecessor was annouced.

In New Delhi, some 400 Afghans, screaming "Brezhnev, we kill you" and burning huge pictures of the Soviet leader, gathered in front of the Soviet Embassy.

Islamic leaders told more than 3,000 people the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan was "a godless tyrrany" and called for the Moslem world to help the Afghan rebels.

"For one year we have fought the Russians with our barehands," Afghan student leader Rasoul Hymat shouted. "With no help from anyone we will make Afghanistan the graveyard of Russia."

The demonstraters held a banner with a photograph of two Afghan schoolgirls with faces hideously disfigured in a bombing raid.

"How long can the Western world let this go on?" asked a resistance worker. "We have been fighting this superpower with guns made in kitchens. Have you no heart?"

In Frankfurt, West Germany, some 300 Afghans marched through the city chanting "Soviets out of Afghanistan." A march in Bonn drew another 600 Afghan students. An Afghan was detained briefly in Frankfurt for burning an effigy of Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

In Egypt, President Anwar Sadat followed a pledge of arms with a call for "collective confrontation" by the Moslem world. He urged rebel leaders to set up a united provisional government "which Arab, Moslem and all free countries of the world would recognize."

Sadat launched a week-long campaign in Egypt to raise funds and collect humanitarian supplies for the Afghan fighters.

Soviet Tass analyst Yuri Kornilov said the protests were a "slanderous hullaballoo" that was using "the anniversary of the introduction... of a limited contingent of Soviet troops" to increase tensions in Afghanistan.

In Rome, King Mohammed Zahir Shah, exiled sovereign of Afghanistan since 1973, broke his silence on the "anguished" year to say his thoughts were with the "millions of Afghans who suffer from the foreign occupation."

New Fighting Breaks Out In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Leftist guerrillas battled with government troops near the northern frontier Saturday amid growing signs the insurgents plan to launch a major offensive against the U.S.-backed regime.

Ferman Cienfuegos, a member of the five-man guerrilla command, was quoted as saying leftists had decided to launch a final offensive before Ronald Reagan takes office Jan. 20.

"The situation in El Salvador will be red hot by the time Mr. Reagan... reaches the presidency," Cienfuegos said in interview published by the New York Times.

Cienfuegos said the guerrillas would establish a "democratic revolutionary government" willing to establish friendly relations with the United States despite U.S. economic and military support for the ruling junta.

In El Salvador's northern Chalatenango province, a military officer said guerrilla shooting pinned down a military detachment in Arcatao, 59 miles north of the capital, for a second day.

Other guerrillas Saturday attacked San Antonio La Cruz, six miles south of Arcatao. After heavy fighting late Friday, government forces recaptured Las Vueltas, 10 miles to the northwest, the officer said.

All three towns lie in rugged, mountainous terrain largely controlled by leftist guerrillas operating near the Honduran border.

was not even aware of the convention ban on dancing.

"My guess is it just sort of evolved," said a Wake Forest spokesman when asked who had authorized dancing on the Winston-Salem campus in light of the convention stand.

"It has just faded away, and it never was resurrected again," said Marse Grant, editor of the Biblical Recorder who recalled that the 1957 convention action resulted in nation-wide publicity, including a double-page spread in Life Magazine. "My feeling is that nobody had the stomach to go through again what we went through at the 1957 convention," Grant added when asked why no action had been taken either to enforce or repeal the dance ban.

Home Mortgages Difficult . . .

$35,000 home loan. "At today's rate," for the same loan, he explained, that same person would have to make $30,000 a year in order to make the monthly payment.

He said that for a 95 percent loan on a $65,000 house — borrowing $61,000 at 17 percent for 30 years — the monthly payment would be $870, plus taxes and insurance. "A borrower would have to make $48,000 a year to qualify for that loan."

Bill Reagan, president of North State Savings and Loan, noted that mortgages with variable interest rates, "make it easier for borrowers to qualify," but suggested that many people still have problems.

Some loans, he said, are available for 14 to 14½ percent initially, with the interest rate increasing, "a half a percentage point per year, with a 5 percent ceiling."

Another alternative, Reagan noted, are fixed-payment adjustable rate mortgages under which the payments are fixed for five years and the rate is adjusted quarterly.

He noted that to qualify for loans, the monthly payment generally should not exceed 25 to 28 percent of a person's gross income and not exceed 33 to 36 percent of a person's total debt.

"There is money available, but at what price?" Reagan questioned. "It's pretty hard for a young couple to qualify," for a loan because of the, interest rate and cost of housing, which now runs about $38 to $54 per square foot.

Cellist Gokcen Has Entered Competition

RALEIGH — Selma Gokcen, cellist and faculty member of the School of Music, East Carolina University, has entered North Carolina Symphony's Kathleen and Joseph M. Bryan Young Artists Strings Competition to be held in Raleigh, Friday, January 2 — Monday, January 5.

Ms. Gokcen holds the bachelor's and master's degrees from The Juilliard School, and also studied at the Geneva Conservatoire of Music, where she received First Prize in 1972.

She is a former winner of the Aspen Music Festival Competition, of the Houston Symphony Young Artists Competition, and the North American Young Artists Competition. She also took part in a concert tour of Peru for the U.S. State Department in 1975.

Now in its ninth year, the Bryan Competition is recognized as one of the major artists competition in the Southeast. Awards total $3,800 in cash prizes ($1,000 for first place winners in piano and string competitions), plus opportunities for winners to appear as soloists with the North Carolina Symphony during the 1981-82 season.

To Direct Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Special effects expert Douglas Trumbull will direct "Brainstorm," an action-adventure film for MGM, to be filmed this summer in North Carolina.

Trumbull was director of special photographic effects for such science fiction thrillers as "2001: A Space Odyssey," "The Andromeda Strain," "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," and "Star Trek: The Motion Picture."

Almanac This Week

WASHINGTON — ECU Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer will be making three appearances this week on "Almanac," the early morning show airing weekdays from 6 to 7:30 a.m. over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington. The schedule this week is:

— Monday, Dec. 29 — Hosts Dick Jones and Jim Mallory begin the week with the first of a series on East Carolina University, in discussions with Chancellor Brewer.

— Tuesday, Dec. 30 — A lunch traditionally thought to bring good luck on New Year's day will be discussed and the fixings demonstrated by Pat Reed of the N. C. Pork Council.

— Wednesday, Dec. 31 — The start of Beaufort Community College's winter quarter is the topic, with Ada Byrd, the college's Public Relations Director as the guest.

— Thursday, January 1, 1981 — The ECU Medical School is the topic to be discussed in this second guest appearance by Dr. Brewer.

— Friday, January 2 — Chancellor Brewer is again the guest as he talkes a look at the position athletics occupies at East Carolina University.

ECU's Dr. Still Author Of New Naval History Book

Dr. William Still, Jr.

ECU News Bureau

The presence of America's Navy in European and Near Eastern waters during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries is the subject of a new book by an East Carolina University historian.

Dr. Wiliam Still, Jr., professor of history at ECU, is the author of "American Sea Power in the Old World: The United States Navy in European and Near Eastern Waters, 1865-1917," published this month by Greenwood Press.

The 280-page book, which includes several photographs of ships and naval officers, is Number 214 in Greenwood's "Contributions in Military History" series.

Author Still traces the American naval presence from its beginnings as a European squadron during the Civil War, designed to protect American shipping from Confederate raiders — a noncombatant role which did have significant implications for America's foreign policy.

A specialist in military and naval history, Dr. Still is the author of "Iron Aflaot: The Story of the Confederate Armorclads" (Vanderbilt University Press), "Confederate Shipbuilding" (University of Georgia Press), and articles in various historical journals.

A Nature Lover's Food Feast

CAIRO, W.Va. (AP) — Like every seasoned gourmet, Edelene Wood insists on perfection: the rattlesnake steak succulent and tender, the worm cake rich and moist, and just a hint of spice in the thick, creamy raccoon salad.

On a bright, sunny day there is nothing this intrepid Parkersburg resident likes better than a walk through the woods with a group of "wild people." They may even taste the trees and nibble the grass before sitting down to a roast beaver, some sizzling possum sausage, a dish of fried lillies and maybe just one more helping of ant cake and nettle ice cream.

"You don't normally think of beaver or worms as food, but we prepare everything from berries to bear. You can even make a very fine daiquiri from stronghorn sumac," says Asher Kelley, West Virginia's state forester.

Each fall, a small congregation of woodsmen, country folk and armchair adventurers from around the country spend a day or two at nearby North Bend State Park. They have special permission from the state to gorge themselves on whatever they can pluck, dig or drag out of West Virginia's forests, for one weekend only.

Dosing themselves with herbal remedies and gulps of fiery strawberry wine, the members of this hardy band of scavengers eat in much the same fashion as the first pioneers who came over the mountains.

Carowinds

CHARLOTTE — In a seven-city talent search to find singers, dancers and musicians for its 1981 live shows program, Carowinds will start out in Greenville and then visit six other North and South Carolina cities during January.

From 4 to 7 p.m. on Sunday, January 18, Carowinds talent scouts will audition applicants from the Greenville area at the A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus.

Frank Perez, Carowinds Live Shows Manger, estimates that over 600 will be auditioned to find 100 performers and technicans needed for the 1981 shows.

Representatives from Kings Productions of Cincinnati, Ohio, will accompany the Carowinds personnel — Kings produces live shows for Carowinds; Kings Dominion in Richmond, Va.; Kings Island, Cincinnati; Hanna Barbera's Marineland, Los Angeles, Calif.; and Canada's Wonderland, Toronto.

Appointments are not needed for singers, dancers and musicians. However, musical groups should contact the Carowinds live shows department prior to auditioning — (write to: Carowinds, P. O. Box 240516, Charlotte, N. C., 28224 by phone, 704-588-2606).

Interviews for technicians, Hanna Barbera characters, guardettes and usherettes will be held at the Carowinds audition site on January 25.

Old Country

The A. J. Fletcher Recital Hall on the East Carolina University campus is to be the site of auditions for entertainers for employment with The Old Country, Busch Gardens in Williamsburg, Va.

From 1 to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, January 14, jugglers, cloggers, violinists, tuba players, sopranos, tap dancers, mimes and country music bands will be auditioned on a first-come-first-served basis.

For these tryouts, performers are asked to limit their material to a three-minute presentation, but should be prepared to present additional material on request.

Talent scouts from The Old Country, Busch Gardens are seeking entertainers to fill 200 openings on the park's summer entertainment staff.

Many of the entertainers selected will be appearing in one of three new shows making their debuts in 1981 — "Kaleidoscope," an all-new musical revue; "The People's Choice," based on stories of the Old West and spoofs on soap operas; and "Good Time Country," a country music fest featuring singers and dancers.

Additional entertainers will perform festive songs and dances of Italy and Germany on the open-air stage of the Italy hamlet and in the Bavarian beer hall.

In addition to the Greenville auditions, other auditions will be held in 14 other cities in North Carolina, Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and Maryland, and Washington, D. C.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — A potpourri of personalities from 1980 programs of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" shows will be seen in a Year End Review on today's "Hospitality House," airing over WITN-TV, Channel 7 from noon to 12:30 p.m.

Among personalities to be seen are "the butcher" Merle Ellis, Princess Marie-Blanche de Broglie of France, Dr. Max Abbott, president of the N. C. Symphony Orchestra, and Peter Burden, chief crime reporter of the "London Daily Mail."

Others in brief appearances are a teacher from London, a member of the Isle of Man House of Parliament, and performers in area theatricals.

Piano Finalists

RALEIGH — The Bryan Young Artists Competition for piano finalists, with the North Carolina Symphony, will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday, January 3 in Memorial Auditorium, Raleigh. James Ogle will conduct the orchestra for this event, which is open to the public without charge.

Gail Ritzer's Art Exhibited

RALEIGH — Clay sculpture and paintings by Gail Ritzer of Greenville will be seen in an exhibit which opens Friday, January 2 at the Council on the Status of Women, 526 North Wilmington Street in Raleigh. The show will be up through January and can be seen weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ms. Ritzer, a candidate for the master of fine arts degree at East Carolina University, with a major in ceramics and a minor in painting and art history, has recently exhibited her works at the N.C. Museum of Art in Raleigh, and in Kinston, Wilson, Greenville, Goldsboro, Raleigh and Henderson.

Renewed Interest Shown In Rococo Furniture

By DUSTON HARVEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — When John Henry Belter built his gaudy rococo furniture in the mid-19th century, a matching couch, six chairs and center table cost $1,200.

When one of Belter's elaborately carved tables came up at an antique auction recently, the winning bid was $60,000.

The price was symbolic of the renewed interest in the past decade in the American Rococo Revival, the favorite style of the wealthy in the 1840s, '50s and '60s.

"It was an especially splashy style and perfectly right for the middle of the 19th century," says Marvin D. Schwartz, an art historian and lecturer for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

"It was an ornament-conscious moment," he explained. "It was a period when using historic precedent was important. It was a time when there was interest in realistic detail."

Rococo was a French style of the late 17th and 18th centuries characterized by S-and C-shaped curves combined with fruit, flowers and leaves. It was revived in the mid-19th century both in Europe and the United States. The Europeans favored a more delicate, generalized version modeled on the French original.

"In the U.S., there was no French furniture to use as the source," Schwartz said. "The result was more bold and specific motifs."

Belter, a German immigrant who patented four innovative techniques for mixing lamination and wood shaping with traditional carving, made his furniture in New York City between 1844 and 1863. When business boomed, he had 40 craftsmen working for him.

Schwartz organized the first Belter exhibit, which premiered at the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington, Mass., moved to the Art Institute of Chicago through Jan. 4 and will go to the Cooper-Hewitt Museum in New York March 10-May 10, the Mississippi Museum of Art in Jackson June 19-Aug. 30 and the Louisiana State Museum in New Orleans Oct. 3 to March 7.

The revived interest in Belter and the rococo in recent years is part of a general revolt in all the arts against the stark lines and shapes of modernism, said Milo D. Naeve, the Art Institute's curator of American Arts.

"There is more universal interest now," said Schwartz. "There is a new wave of realists in contemporary art and a desire to build consciously on the past. Part of it is a reaction to Bauhaus and other modern designs."

But, he noted, the furniture of Belter has always stood out from that produced by his imitators a century and a half ago.

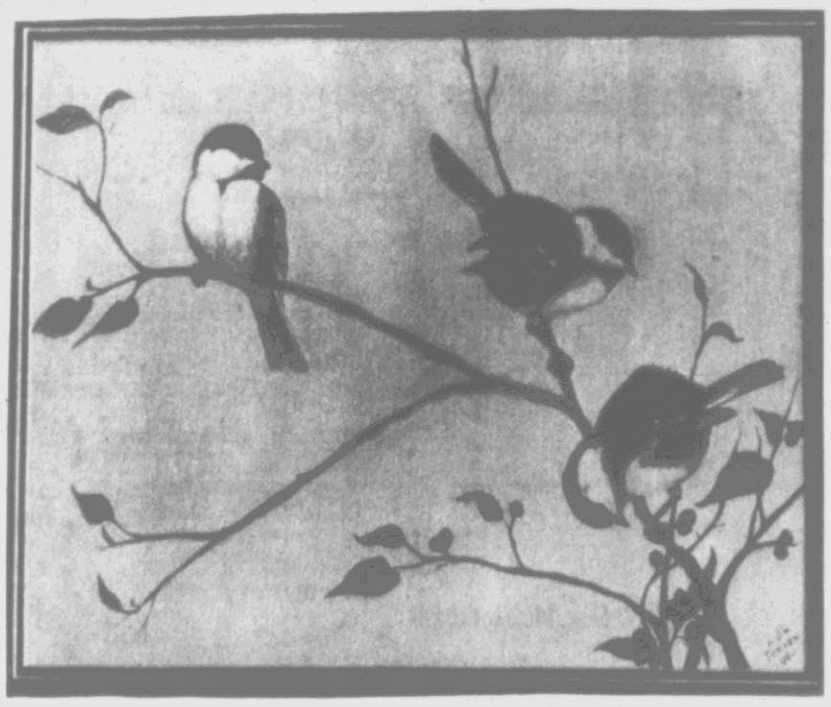
"The history of interest in Belter furniture has been quiet and steady. When other Rococo pieces went for $10, his brought $100...

"Dealers discovered in this century they could sell his furniture in the South. They would buy it in New York and sell it easily in New Orleans."

Belter was better, Schwartz said, because of the quality of his materials and the workmanship of his artisans. In 1861, a credit-rating firm warned his furniture "was too good to be profitable" and the company failed after his death while his less fussy competitors poured their profits into real estate.

The exhibit is built around objects from the collection of Gloria and Richard Manney of New York. Other pieces come from museums around the nation.

In addition to Belter's work, the show includes furniture made by his contemporaries as well as paintings, sculpture, silver and porcelain from the period. Strauss waltzes — "the daring new sound of the time," according to Naeve — play in the background.



LAINGEN PAINTING — This painting by Bruce Laingen, a hostage held in Iran, was originally sent as a birthday present for his son, L. Bruce Laingen. When the painting was received in September, Bruce's mother, Mrs. Penne Laingen, decided to use it as the family Christmas card. In the lower right corner are Laingen's initials 'LBL' and Tehran 1980. (AP Laserphoto)

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By LINDA M. STANCILL

Consumer education books recently added to the library's shelves help you get more for your money and provide information of vital importance to the health and safety of you and your family.

In "Shopping Smart", John Stossel, consumer editor of WCBS-TV, tells you how to buy everything you want at a price you can afford to pay. He shows how to hold the line against today's soaring prices and get top value for every dollar you spend. Some of the ways he can help you save include food, health, your car, appliances, your house, cosmetics and travel. Learn how to cut your meat bills in half, the best and worst buys in convenience foods, how to save on prescriptions, how to buy a new car way below the sticker price, how to save on airline tickets and how to vacation free. Packed with hundreds of money-saving tips, this comprehensive guide also includes names and numbers to contact for further information and a listing of consumer complaint agencies.

The "Consumer's Brand-Name Guide to Household Products" by Carol Ann Rinzler is a useful and fascinating aid for householders who want to use these chemicals safely, effectively and economically. Rinzler provides valuable, easy-to-understand information that can not only save money but lives. She gives product descriptions for everything from air fresheners to laundry detergents to mothproofers to wallpaper cleaners. Under each listing there are five separate categories of information: Safety rating, What's in it, How it works, What it can do for you and What's better, safer, or cheaper.

"The People's Pharmacy-2" by Joe Graedon explodes old myths and discloses startling new facts about the drugs you use. It offers clear, concise, up-to-the minute self-care information of vital importance to the health of your family. In this companion volume to "The People's Pharmacy," Graedon tells you how to decipher your doctor's illegible prescriptions, avoid booby traps in over the counter pharmacies, choose the most reliable drugs for the special problems of the elderly, find the most effective cures for insommia and depression, etc. Crucial sections on drug and food interactions, arthritis medications, vitamins and valium are included in this all new consumer guidebook.

"The People's Emergency Guide" edited by Jeffrey Weiss offers fast, simple and accessible steps you must take to save your life, your family, and your belongings when emergency strikes. It covers everything from coffee on the rug to an impending hurricane or a child with a head wound and provides countless saftey tips and money-saving pointers to help avert trouble before it strikes. It includes a medical guide and safety tips for use inside as well as outside the house. With over 400 informative illustrations and diagrams, it's designed to help you cope successfully with the major and minor crises of everyday life.

PBS Specials

A program featuring the music of Felix Mendelssohn and one drawing from past treasures of American country music are among Public Broadcasting Service programs to be aired during the coming week over the University of North Carolina Center for Public Television, Chapel Hill, (Channel 25, Greenville). Brief details are:

— Monday, December 29, 8 p.m. — Sir Georg Solti conducts the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in a performance of Mendelssohn's "Concerto for Violin in E Minor," with Kyung-Wha Chung, soloist. The orchestra will also perform another Mendelssohn composition, "Symphony No. 3 in A Minor," better known as the "Scottish Symphony."

— Saturday, January 3, 8 p.m. — "Classic Country Featuring Stars of the Grand Ole Opry" premieres on this date. The first of a 39-week series, the programs were filmed in the 1950s and feature performances by talents such as Hank Williams, Mother Maybelle Carter, JIm Reeves and Rod Brassfield, Minnie Pearl, Roy Acuff, Ernest Tubb and many others — some gone, some still around and active.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jean Peters will play a leading role in the CBS production "Peter and Paul" after an absence of four years from the screen.

She plays Priscilla, a wealthy Roman convert to Christianity. Anthony Hopkins plays Paul.

ECU Ambassador Program

ECU News Bureau

Some of East Carolina University's best students are participating in a new Ambassador Program, designed to enhance the image of ECU.

The purpose of the program, according to Donald L. Lemish, Vice Chancellor for Institutional Advancement and Planning, is to "provide a volunteer corps of students to serve in public relations, admissions and fund raising efforts."

"We have some great students at ECU and we want to expose these students to our friends and supporters. What better way is there to project an image of the university?" Lemish said.

The basic responsibility of the Ambassadors is to serve as hosts and hostesses during the various activities of the university to entertain legislative friends, corporations and donors.

Other duties consist of conducting tours of the campus, assisting the admissions office in recruiting students and telephoning members of the alumni during the phone-a-thon fund raising project conducted by the development office.

In addition to promoting the university, Lemish says the program is providing the students with the opportunity to meet important people and is helping them develop the kinds of special skills that are necessary for acquiring roles of leadership. The Ambassadors are also eligible to receive awards for their participation.

There are currently about 120 volunteer participants in the program. Directed by Rick Robbins, Annual Support Director for the ECU Development Office, the program is funded by the Alumni Association.

Ambassadors from this area are Becky Diana Little of Rt. 3, Ayden, Debbie Jean Harris of Farmville, and Lynne Ball and Carole Lynn Calder, both of Greenville.

Art Historian Slain In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Noted art historian and contemporary art critic Dr. Gregory Babcock was stabbed to death in his apartment in San Juan's Condado section, police said Friday.

Babcock's body, clad in underclothes and bathed in blood, was found by neighbors Christmas morning on the balcony of the 10th-floor apartment in the El Mirador condominium. Police said he had been stabbed in the right side and the back of the head.

The apartment showed no signs of forced entry, police said.

Babcock, a resident of New York City, was described by a friend and colleague as a professor of art history at New York University and William Paterson College in New Jersey.

More Women Students In U.S. Med Schools

CHICAGO (AP) — Women now make up more than one-quarter of all new medical students, a threefold increase in the past decade, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association said in its 80th annual report on medical education.

The journal also said medical schools are considering a reduction in class sizes because of reduced federal assistance to students and an easing of the doctor shortage.

According to the report, released Friday, about 28 percent of all new medical students entering in 1979-1980 were women. Last year they accounted for 25.2 percent of first year students in the nation's 126 medical schools.

Ten years ago, only 9.2 percent of new medical students were women.

The total number of women in medical school was 16,315, the report said. There were 8,318 ethnic minorities enrolled this year, at 13.1 percent of the total only a small change from the previous year, the report said.

The journal noted a striking change in the decline of psychiatry as a choice of specialty among women, from 14 percent in 1977 to less than 10 percent in 1979.

More women were chosing family practice, obstetrics-gynecology, and, to a lesser extent, general surgery as specialties, the report said.

Total enrollment in the country's medical schools increased 2.3 percent to 64,195 students in the 1979-1980 school year, with applications running twice as high as the number accepted each year.

A record 15,135 doctors were graduated last year, but although this number has been increasing every year, the trend will not continue, the journal said.

"Although the major expansion of the medical education system initiated in the early 1960's had not yet exerted its maximum effect on total student enrollments, most institutions were already beginning to consider or to implement reductions in class size," the report said.

"Public perception was growing that the need for increased numbers of physicians has been satisfied."

LETTER WRITING — some people say the art of letter writing is dead, but you could never get Terry Fox to believe that. When he returned to his Port Coquitlam, British Columbia, home in September after cancer spread to his lungs and forced him to halt a cross-Canada run, Fox was greeted with three to five hefty post-bags of mail a day. Nursing Home Shortage

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — With North Carolina facing a shortage of beds in nursing homes, the Beverly Manor Nursing Home can only fill eight of its 120 beds.

The problem is getting approval for Medicare-Medicaid patients. Until that approval is granted, the nursing home can only take paying patients.

The center was granted its state license Dec. 19.

Emma Powell, office manager, said 23 Medicaid patients are on a waiting list to get into the 60-bed intermediate care unit, which takes up half of the center.

That's one indication of the extreme shortage of nursing home beds in Charlotte.

"The hospitals are already calling. It doesn't take long to fill up a nursing home, there's such a demand for them."

She predicted Beverly Manor will be full by February.

"It seems like there's just such a demand for them," she said.

"I've had calls from people in Concord and Hendersonville who want to move their relatives back to Charlotte as soon as they can. Right now, they have to take the first available bed under Medicaid regulations, and that might be 200 miles away.

"If we had another 250 beds, I think we could fill them," she said.

DePaul Bombs UCLA; Irish Upset 'Cats

Aguirre-Led Fast Break Outruns Bruins

CHICAGO (AP) — Like a masterful traffic cop, DePaul Coach Ray Meyer kept UCLA spinning its wheels while his top-ranked Blue Demons, fueled by a game-high 23 points from All-American Mark Aguirre, ran like the wind to a 93-77 nationally televised college basketball victory Saturday.

"Nobody is going to run on us when we don't want them to," said Meyer, whose Blue Demons picked up their ninth victory without a loss and pushed his career total to 632 — tops among active coaches.

"We cheated a little bit on (Rod) Foster with our zone by having Clyde (Bradshaw) overplay him," added Meyer. "We had to keep them from coming up the floor with a man, or two-man advantage. We didn't rebound as well as we wanted to but we closed down their fast break in other ways."

While the Blue Demons lost the battle of the boards 38-37, they effectively shut off the outlet pass from Bruin center Kenny Fields, who tied Aguirre with a game-high nine rebounds. Blue Demon center Terry Cummings, who added 19 points and eight rebounds, said, "We didn't think we'd win this game on quickness. The teams are too close for that. But it came down to raw board work and that's my favorite kind of game."

UCLA absorbed its first loss in seven outings and Foster, who led the Bruins with 19 points, credited DePaul "for not letting us run. Nobody dreamed that Mike (Sanders) and I would shoot 1-for-11 in the first half and DePaul is too good a team to fall behind. When you make mistakes against them you won't recover."

Bruin Coach Larry Brown concurred. "I've been telling people for weeks that we're too inexperienced to compete against the good teams. And they are a great team," he added. "One, their coach is one of the greatest ever; they've got a point guard (Bradshaw) who is second to none in the country; and an All-American at forward who has finally grown up — he has nothing left to learn, he can do it all."

Both teams roared out of the starting blocks, with DePaul's Teddy Grubbs providing six quick points for an early 16-14 Blue Demon lead. A steal by Clyde Bradshaw which led to Skip Dillard's breakaway layup pushed the DePaul cushion to 24-20 with seven minutes left in the half.

From there, Aguirre scored seven of his 15 first-half points to key a 15-3 scoring stretch that lifted DePaul to a comfortable 39-23 margin with almost three minutes remaining.

Only Darren Daye's 11 first-half points kept the Bruins in the game at the new Rosemont Horizon. He scored their final six points as DePaul, shooting 63 percent from the floor, took a 47-29 lead at the intermission.

DePaul was able to open an 18-point lead by nullifying UCLA's great quickness at the guard spots. Rod Foster, who led the Bruins with 19 points, had only one at halftime and his backcourt partner, Michael Holton, had none.

After Cummings opened the second half with a short jumper, UCLA tore off eight quick points to close within 49-37. But Cummings countered with a pair of baskets and Dillard led Aguirre for a breakaway slam dunk.

Tripucka Pours In 30 To Pace Notre Dame

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps said his basketball team had to stop Kentucky's offensive rebounding, remain patient against the Wildcats' zone and hit its free throws in order to win Saturday night's game.

The No.8 Irish seemingly met all three objectives in their 67-61 upset of the No.2 Wildcats.

Notre Dame managed a 23-22 rebounding edge and won the game from the foul line with a whopping 25-5 advantage in free throws.

"I told our players if we could play them in the 60s, we could beat them," Phelps said. "Every game we've lost down here has been in the 80s or the 90s."

Phelps said the Irish mixed defenses to take the Wildcats out of the racehorse offense they prefer.

"They're a good basketball team," Phelps said. "But we kept our composure and poise and came away with a great win."

"We just didn't play the way we usually play in this Notre Dame series," said Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall. "Normally, we come out and really attack our opponent defensively. After 12 minutes, we lost that.

"The whole problem was defense," he added. "We were fouling because we were losing our men. When you send someone to the line 28 times, and we go seven times, we're making a lot of mistakes defensively."

Forward Kelly Tripucka scored 30 points, including 14 free throws in the second half, to help Notre Dame break a seven-year losing streak against Kentucky.

The Irish used a smothering zone defense and a ball-control offense to record their seventh straight victory since a season-opening loss to UCLA, handing Kentucky its first loss in seven games.

The Irish had a 25-1 free throw advantage in the second half in recording their first triumph over Kentucky since a 94-79 victory in 1973.

Center Orlando Woolridge, who tossed in 15 points, hit a three-point play with 10:34 remaining to break a 34-34 tie and give Notre Dame the lead for good. Kentucky, in heavy foul trouble most of the second half, never again got closer than three points and trailed by as many as seven down the stretch.

Sam Bowie, Kentucky's center, led his team with 18 points, 12 of which helped the Lady Bucs Wallop Minutemen

By John Stallings
Special To The Reflector

FLUSHING, N.Y. — East Carolina coach Cathy Andruzzi knew it was coming soon, but she didn't think it would happen after a 10-day layoff after exams.

The Lady Pirate basketball team put together a solid 40-minute effort Saturday afternoon to outclass taller Massachusetts, 88-64, in the opening round of the Queens Holiday Tournament.

The win boasted East Carolina, 6-1, to the semifinals at 6 p.m. today against Northwestern, a 64-57 winner over North Carolina A&T earlier in the afternoon.

"I was very pleased and very surprised at the way we played after 10 days off," Andruzzi said after the game. "This was by far our best game of the season. We beat a much taller team with a solid team effort. Everybody played and everybody played well. We ran the break well and played defense extremely well against a much taller team."

The fast break and torrid shooting from Kathy Riley and Sam Jones doomed the Minutemen early in the game. Riley, a senior all-america candidate, poured in 10 of her team-season high 31 points in the first 3½ minutes as the Lady Pirates burned out to a 12-4 lead.

After a Massachusetts basket, Jones, who scored 25 points, tossed in six straight points to begin a 10-0 tear which game ECU a 22-6 lead with just 6½ minutes gone in the game. Massachusetts could not closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

After holding a 43-31 halftime lead, ECU got baskets from Mary Denkler and Marcia Girven before a Jones free throw ballooned the lead to 48-32 with 18:08 left.

ECU center Girven, who is 6-0, played less than four minutes in the first half after picking up two quick fouls, yet the Lady Pirates managed a 39-34 rebound edge for the game against a Minuteman front line that measured 6-2, 6-1, 5-11.

"We really controlled the boards on our end of the court," Andruzzi said. "We had 25 turnovers, which looks bad until you notice we forced 34 turnovers."

Many of those turnovers came late in the first half when the Lady Pirates were running wild. In the second half, an exhausted Massachusetts squad simply could not keep pace with the ECU fast break.

"We just didn't want the game as much as East Carolina did," said Minuteman coach Mary Ann Ozdarski. "They outhustled us.

"Forty (Riley) and 21 (Jones) are very nice basketball players. They worked well together, they ran well and passed well. But the whole team played good basketball"

At the half, Riley and Jones accounted for 31 of the Lady Pirates 43 points and the Minutemen did little to stop their production in the second half. For the game, ECU fired in 52.5% of its field goals while Massachusetts hit for 43.7%. Riley poured in 15-of-23 attempts and Jones 11-of-19 to lead the way.

Julie Ready, who was limited to just six points in the first half, finished with 23 points for Massachusetts and freshman Nadine Jackson tallied 11.

Point guard Laurie Sikes dished a team-season high seven assists and Riley made five steals. On the boards, Girven led both teams with nine rebounds while Jones added eight and Riley seven. Jackson led Massachusetts, now 3-3, with seven.

"Northeastern is very strong inside," Andruzzi said of Sunday's foe. "If we can keep the ball out of the middle and bother their perimeter shooters, we'll be rolling. We've got to play good defense against them to win it."

Northwestern is 6-1.

Getting A Stretch

Bluebonnet Bowl Tar Heels' Reward

HOUSTON (UPI) — North Carolina got its first look at the Astrodome Saturday, and coach Dick Crum called the early morning, two-hour drill enjoyable and satisfactory.

The Tar Heels arrived in Houston Friday to begin preparations for a New Year's Eve meeting in the Bluebonnet Bowl with Texas.

The Longhorns arrive in town Sunday, with their initial practice set for Monday.

Wednesday night's game renews a series that began in 1947 and has seen a 28-year hiatus.

Crum said after the first practice that he doesn't think the Astrodome surface will affect the Tar Heels in anyway.

"It's pleasant to play there," said Crum, who guided North Caroliana to a record-setting 10-1 regular season mark. "We've played on the turf a couple of times before and I can't see that it makes any difference. We're going to have several opportunities for workouts at the Astrodome so by game time we should be pretty accustomed to it."

Crum called Texas "a good team, every bit as good as anyone we faced this season."

The Tar Heels took a 41-7 thrashing at the hands of Oklahoma as its only loss of the season. Meanwhile Texas dealt the Sooners one of their two setbacks this season, 20-13, in the annual Red River shootout.

"Texas is not a 7-4 team," said Crum. "They were hurt by injuries all season but they are going to be healed-up for us. If everyone had been healthy all year, they could have gone through the regular season unbeaten."

The injury-riddled Longhorns expect to have their backfield duo of A.J. "Jam" Jones and Rodney Tate healthy for the Bluebonnet. The swift, strong Jones rushed for 657 in just 7 games, carrying 146 times and tallying nine touchdowns. Tate ran 58 times for 230 yards.

The Longhorn offensive attack centers around the talented quarterback tandem of Donnie Little and Rick McIvor. Little has 486 yards on the ground while throwing for 1,098 yards and five TDs. McIvor, a drop-back passer, has 45 completions in 87 tries for 751 yards and three TDs.

All-American Kenneth Sims anchors a Texas defense that has held opponents to just over 142 yards per game rushing and 141 in the air.

Crum said the Tar Heels arrived in Houston with no serious injury problems and he expects everyone to be in top form Wednesday.

"We're in excellent shape physically," he said. "Of course, we just got here, but we worked out several times in Chapel Hill and everybody sure looked OK."

North Carolina also features a dinamic running duo. Amos Lawrence and fellow tailback Kelvin Bryant paced the powerful Tar Heel ground attack, one of the most potent in the country. Lawrence had 1,118 yards and 11 touchdowns on 229 carries, while Bryant raced 177 times for 1,039 yards and 11 scores.

Conley Whips Rose In Finals

Panthers Blast Farmville For 3rd

D.H. Conley are the J.H. Rose Christmas Tournament champions for the second consecutive year.

Led by Keith Gatlin's 22 points and Sammy Tucker's 16, the Vikings whipped host Greenville Rose, 74-61, Saturday night in the tournament finals.

Earlier, North Pitt routed Farmville Central, 68-37, to capture third place in the two-day event.

"We played better inside tonight," said D.H. Conley coach Shelley Marsh, whose Vikings are now 8-1. "And our defense kept them outside, which is what we wanted.

"All in all it was a good victory for us. A win is always good, but this helps us get ready for the second half of the season. Right away we have to face Greene Central, a conference team."

For the first half neither team could take control. At the end of the first period it was knotted at 14-14 and at the half the Vikings led, 33-30. But gradually in the second half — particularly in the third period — Conley began to assert itself underneath.

The Vikes led going into the final period, 52-45, and continued to mount their advantage in the last eight minutes to come away with the 13-point victory. For the Rampants, it was their second loss of the season in eight outings.

Rose was led by James Brewington's 17 points while Donald Johnson chipped in 14. Other Vikings in double figures were Anthony Burney with 14

Lowe Keys 'Pack By St. John's, 64-55

NEW YORK (AP) — Sophomore guard Sidney Lowe, the key to North Carolina State's ball-control offense, scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half, all on free throws, helping the Wolfpack to a 64-55 victory Saturday night over St. John's in the finals of the ECAC Holiday Festival basketball tournament.

In the third place game earlier at Madison Square Garden, George Noon and Angelo Reynolds led a surge in the second half that gave Penn an 82-66 triumph over Iona.

Lowe scored six points in a 14-5 spurt that gave N.C. State a 52-42 lead with seven minutes left in the game. The teams traded baskets for another three minutes and N.C. State Coach Jim valvano ordered his team into a slowdown.

St. John's had no choice. It had to foul and the man with the ball was Lowe.

In the final 3:16, Lowe hit 9 of 10 free-throw attempts, at one time hitting four in 30 seconds to give the Wolfpack, 7-2, a 61-48 lead.

Lowe was voted the Most Valuable Player of the tournament.

St. John's, 7-2, outscored N.C. State 10-3 in a three-minute span early in the second half to pull within one point, at 38-37, with 12:24 left in the game. St. John's forward David Russell had six points in that streak.

But Valvano called timeout to talk things over, and the Wolfpack began to play its ball-control game.

Thurl Bailey scored 17 points for N.C. State, and Art Jones had 10.

Russell led St. John's with 14 points, reserve guard Billy Goodwin had 13 and Curtis Redding 10.

N.C. State ran off eight points, four by Jones, to get things going with an 8-1 lead. St. John's did not score its first field goal until Russell hit a stuff shot 5:50 into the game.

N.C. State later scored six more in a row, and the teams traded baskets to the half, when the Wolfpack led 25-17. St. John's could manage only a miserable 27.5 per cent from the floor in the first half.

Center George Noon and playmaking guard Angelo Reynolds led a surge early in the second half that carried Pennsylvania to its victory over Iona.

Pirates Face Iowa State In Elm City Classic

ECU Returns To Action Monday

A Staff Report

East Carolina University's Pirates return to action on Monday night, playing Iowa State in the first round of the Elm City Classic in New Haven, Connecticut.

The two teams collide in the tournament's second game, set to begin at 8 p.m. Hosting Fairfield will take on Brown in the 6 p.m. opening game.

Tuesday night, also at 6 and 8 p.m., the consolation finals and championship finals will be held.

The Pirates go into the tournament following a three-game losing skid, which included two games in the Iron Duke Classic in Durham — and Coach Dave Odom isn't sure that the Pirates shouldn't have beaten both of the foes they faced in that tournament, Detroit and Brown.

Oddly enough, the possibility of a second East Carolina-Brown meeting in this tournament is not beyond thought.

The performance of the Pirates in the Iron Duke left Odom perplexed. "We came here with the idea that we could win the whole thing," he told the press following the second straight loss by the Bucs in the tournament.

"But sometimes you have to fail in order to succeed. We're now at our low ebb. We must come back after our short Christmas breat and get ready to make things better."

Better is what the Pirates need to do. Odom's goal at the start of the five-game swing that started with a loss to Penn State two weeks ago was no worse that a 2-3 mark. Now, East Carolina must win the Elm City tournament to reach that goal.

And, as has been stated before, no East Carolina team, since the school entered Division I competition, has won an invitational tournament.

Odom doesn't look for Iowa State to be any pushover. Johnny Ore, who was a legendary coach at Michigan, is in his first year at Iowa State, and has already been quoted as saying he would have the Cyclones in the Top Twenty in a couple of years.

This year's club, however, has gotten off to a slow start. The Cyclones are 3-4 going into the tournament, having beaten Drake, 74-72, Northern Iowa, 83-69 and, last Tuesday, Alabama-Birmingham, 58-55.

Iowa State has opened the season by lossing to Vanderbilt, 94-87, before dropping games to Southern Methodist, 58-55, Creighton, 77-73, and Iowa 85-59.

Iowa State starts 6-3 Ron Harris and 5-9 Lefty Moore at guards, 6-6 Robert Estes and 6-2 Malvin Warrick at forwards, and 6-11 Ron Falenschek at center.

Moore at 13.2 and Estes at 11.7 are the leading scorers.

Fairfield has a 3-3 mark, while Brown is 1-4. East Carolina carries a 1-4 mark into the tournament.

Mark McLaurin, who scored 32 points in the two Iron Duke games, has become the leading Pirate scorer with an 11.3 average. Barry Wright is hitting 11.0, while Michael Gibson is scoring at a 10.6 mark.

The Pirates will also see the first action by newcomer Charles Watkins, a 6-3 guard, who has just joined the team.

Following the Elm City tournament, the Pirates return home for a January 3 home date in Minges Coliseum against Campbell College.

Dye Still Waiting For Auburn's Move

From Staff & Wire Reports

Former East Carolina and Wyoming coach Pat Dye has his bags packed and he's ready to go. The question is whether Auburn is ready to provide him with a place to unpack.

Dye resigned as head football coach at Wyoming last Tuesday following only a year at the school after being pressured by school officials who wanted to know whether he would stay for the remaining two years of his three-year contract.

For now, however, Dye is a coach without a school. Auburn has not offered him, the job and it appears school officials may wait until the first of the year before making a decision.

A Montgomery, Ala., newspaper reported on Tuesday Auburn trustee Charles Smith as saying Dye had been selected as the new coach, replacing Doug Barfield, who resigned last month. Smith, however, later claimed he was misquoted and said an angry Dye telephoned him Tuesday night.

"He was very upset," Smith said, adding that he told Dye he was misquoted but that it "didn't seem to calm him down."

Dye has reportedly been interviewed twice for the job and is considered to be among the finalists, which include Auburn assistant Al Kincaid, Dallas Cowboy assistant Dan Reeves and St. Louis Cardinal assistant Billy Atkins. Late this week Auburn reportedly was set to interview two or three other coaches, including Pittsburgh's Jackie Sherrill.

Dye coached Wyoming to a 6-5 record this season — only the school's second winning season in 12 years. In explaining his resignation after only a year at the school, Dye said, "I had a great experience being here for a year. I had much rather this opportunity come along four years from now after we had a chance to get the program off the ground and build a foundation that is a lot more stable.

"I imagine based on what's happened in the last month, they are going to be glad to see me get out of town," he added. "I don't feel that way toward them, but I can understand their feelings."

Dye, who complied a 48-18-1 record in his six years at ECU, installed the wishbone this year at Wyoming and brought the school its first winning season in four years. But the opportunity at Auburn proved to be too much for Dye and so he resigned, effective Jan. 1.

"(Because) I'm one of the candidates, I'm going to be patient," Dye said after announcing his resignation. "Because of the situation at Wyoming they couldn't be patient. That's the reason I resigned."

"If you (Wyoming) get a good coach, I don't know how you're going to keep him," Dye was reported as saying. "A coach with ambition and who has set high goals for himself is going to have opportunites along the way."

Sounding much like he did as he resigned the ECU job last year, when, ironically, he did not have a job either but was being considered for the N.C. State position, Dye said he did feel the Wyoming program would continue to improve.

"I have no reservations about the future of Wyoming football," he said following his resignation. "It will be great because of the leadership at Wyoming and because of the athletic director."

More Than 50 Applying For Wyoming Job

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The University of Wyoming has received more than 50 applications so far for its vacant head football coaching job, UW President Edward Jennings says.

The university has launched a nationwide search for a new coach and has dispatched Athletic Director Bob Hitch and UW Vice President Bill Solomon to interview some of the prospects.

"There's no timetable, but we hope to name a coach as soon as possible," Jennings said in remarks published Saturday. "There've been very many applicants — over 50 by now — and of course, there've been other people who have made inquiries."

Cowboy head coach Pat Dye announced his resignation earlier this week to pursue the vacant head coaching job at Auburn University in Alabama.

Jennings said the university is not ruling out any candidate and could pick from the pro, college or high school coaching ranks. And the UW president said the university is not necessarily seeking a "big name."

Among the latest names to surface in the Laramie rumor mill are fired San Diego State Coach Claude Gilbert, retiring Notre Dame Coach Dan Devine and Cheyenne Central High School Coach Jim McLeod.

KSU Upsets Razorbacks

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ed Nealy sank a free throw with two seconds left in overtime to give Kansas State a 47-46 upset victory over No.17 Arkansas in a nonconference college basketball game Saturday night.

Kansas State got possession of the ball after Rolando Blackman, who led all scorers with 22 points, tied up Darrell Walker with six seconds left. Nealy was then fouled by Scott Hastings as the Wildcats inbounded the ball.

The victory raised Kansas State's record to 6-2, while Arkansas fell to 7-3.

Neither team ever led by more than four points, and the game was deadlocked at 22-22 at halftime.

Blackman hit a three-point play to give the Wildcats a 38-35 lead, and Kansas State maintained the three point margin until Walker hit a free throw with 2:37 left on a play that saw Kansas State center Les Craft foul out.

Scott Hastings hit a layup at 1:58 to pull Arkansas even at 42-42, then the Razorbacks went ahead 44-42 on a Walker dunk. Nealy's basket with about 1:30 left made it 44-44.

Arkansas then tried to play for the last shot, but a Walker pass sailed out of bounds as time ran out in regulation play.

Jacksonville 64
Ga. Tech 41

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Purdue's Drake Morris scored 24 points and teammate Brian Walker added 14 in the second half Saturday night as the Boilermakers defeated a desperate Florida team 95-87 to win the championship of the 30th annual Gator Bowl Basketball Tournament.

Jacksonville held Georgia Tech scoreless for the first 10 minutes of the consolation game, then went on to a 64-41 romp for third place.

Purdue led by as many as 19 points in the second half and the Gators were unable to catch up, despite Ronnie Williams' record-breaking 36-point performance.

Florida led only briefly in the opening minutes of the game, then Purdue jumped to an 11-2 lead with 15:32 to play in the first half. The Boilermakers took a 42-31 advantage to the locker room.

Purdue continued to dominate in the second half, jumping to a 15-point lead with 12:10 left, then making it 19 points with 9:20 to play.

But Williams, a 6-foot-8 freshman forward, refused to give up, scoring 11 points in the closing minutes. He broke two 1955 Gator Bowl records by Louisiana State's Roger Sigler, who had scored 34 points and 14 field goals. Williams sank 15 field goals.

The victory boosted Purdue's record to 7-2. Florida saw its four-game winning streak shattered and fell to 5-2.

Joining Morris in double figures were Keith Edmonson with 18 points, Walker with 16, Russell Cross at 13 and Mike Scearce at 12.

Ken McCraney and Mike Milligan both scored 11 points for Florida.

In the earlier contest, Harvin Council had 13 points and seven rebounds to lead Jacksonville.

Georgia Tech didn't get on the board until 9:46 had elapsed. The Yellow Jackets got their first points on two free throws by Dave Cole and had only 12 field goal attempts in the half, equalling an all-time school low set earlier this year.

The loss dropped Tech to 3-6, despite a 15-point second half performance by 6-foot-9 center Lee Goza. The Dolphins bettered their record to 4-6.

Council led Jacksonville with 13 points, while Garry Grier added 10.

Georgia Tech was led by Goza's 15 points, while Fred Hall was next with eight.

Texas Tech 56

Washington 68
Yale 62

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota guard Mark Hall scored 17 points, leading the Gophers to a 72-56 victory over Texas Tech Saturday night for their seventh straight Pillsbury Classic championship.

The Gophers, 6-1, had little trouble with the Southwest Conference school, forging a 37-18 halftime lead and getting scoring from all but one of the squad.

Washington won the third-place game with a 68-62 triumph over Yale. Dan Caldwell and Don Vaughn each scored 16 points for the Huskies.

Hall sparked Minnesota to a 21-7 lead against Texas Tech early in the game with a leaping steal and spectacular behind-the-back pass to John Wiley, whose slam dunk capped a string of 12 straight points.

Tech's freshman guard, Bubba Jennings, finished with a game-high 22 points. He had 14 in the first half, including all five of Tech's field goals.

Trent Tucker scored 13 points for Minnesota, while Randy Breuer added 12 and Ben Coleman had 10.

Vaughn scored 14 of his points in the second half as Washington, 6-3, erased a 35-32 halftime deficit.

Washington trailed by seven points before scoring eight straight, the last basket on a jumper by Vaughn, for a 44-43 edge midway through the second half. The Huskies took the lead for good moments later on a jump shot by Bob Fronk at 12:37.

Steve Burks came off the bench and contributed 11 points, including five key free throws, while Andra Griffin added nine points for the Huskies.

Tim Daaleman led Yale, 0-5, with 18 points and 15 rebounds. Steve Leondis and Butch Graves each had 14 for the Bulldogs.

Vanderbilt.....93
Alabama.....91

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt guard Mike Rhodes scored eight points in the final minute to spark a 93-91 come-from-behind victory over Southeastern Conference foe Alabama Saturday night.

Rhodes, a 6-foot-5 senior, scored 22 points — 16 in the second half — to erase a nine-point Alabama lead with less than four minutes remaining in the game.

Rhodes brought the Commodores to within one point, 85-84, with a 20-foot jump shot with one minute to play. He added another 20-footer, then stole the ball and hit a short jump shot with 29 seconds left to put Vanderbilt ahead for good, 88-87.

With 27 seconds remaining, Rhodes sank two free throws resulting from a technical foul on the Alabama bench, called when the Crimson Tide asked for a sixth time out — one more than is allowed.

Irish Upset 'Cats...

Wildcats to a 24-24 tie at halftime.

Tracy Jackson added 14 points for Notre Dame, while Kentucky got scoring support from Dirk Minniefield with 14, Derrick Hord with 13 and Chuck Verderber with 12.

The Wildcats and Irish were tied four times in the second half. The lead changed hands six times before Woolridge's pivotal play midway through the period.

Kentucky, playing at times with three freshmen and two sophomores on the floor, never seemed to solve Notre Dame's defense and seldom realized success in the middle. One of the Wildcats' bread-and-butter plays, an alley-oop pass which the 7-foot-1 Bowie coverts into a slam dunk, paid off only once — at 9:49 of the first half when Kentucky took a 16-12 lead.

Hord then scored inside for an 18-12 edge, equalling Kentucky's biggest advantage of the game. Following a tip-in by Woolridge and a tip-in by Bowie, the Irish scored three quick baskets for a 20-20 tie. The run included two short-range baskets by Woolridge sandwiched around a 15-footer by Tripucka.

Tripucka, a 6-6 senior, was named winner of the Bernie Shively award given annually to the game's most valuable player. The award is named for the late Kentucky athletic director.

Green, Rogers Set For Gator

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — For Pittsburgh's defensive end Hugh Green, the Gator Bowl game between Pitt and South Carolina Monday night represents the culmination "of what we've worked for for four years."

For South Carolina's tailback George Rogers, the game is "the most prestigious bowl game we've ever played in."

Green, winner of the Lombardi, Maxwell and UPI College Player of the Year awards and runner-up for the Heisman Trophy; Rogers, the Heisman winner, and Outland Trophy winner Mark May of Pitt appeared Friday at a news conference.

Green, who was in on 118 tackles, including 17 sacks, this year, said he wants "to end (his college football career) on a good note — winning the national championship.

"We started off slow this season and were critiqued for it very badly. We were underrated as a result. We, the seniors, got together then as a group and decided we would show people what we were made of."

For Pittsburgh to win the national title, Green said No. 1 Georgia, the only major college team still undefeated, will have to lose to Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl and No. 2 Florida State will have to bow to Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

And, of course, Pitt will have to defeat South Carolina.

"We wanted to be ranked No. 1 and we wanted to play against someone with a high prestige and that's George Rogers," Green added. "If things work out the way we think they will, we may be playing in the Gator Bowl for the national championship."

Rogers lauded Pitt's defense, noting the Panthers have second-team All America Ricky Jackson with Green as defensive ends.

"It's a challenge for me to run against the No. 1 defensive team in the country," he said.

"We're going to have to pass on them to be in the game," said Rogers, who leads the Gamecocks' run-oriented offense. "... the key to the game is if we can pass against them."

South Carolina's passing attack has been inconsistent, according to Coach Jim Carlen, although the Gamecocks' passers have completed 93 of 181 passes for 1,276 yards and seven touchdowns.

What will he say if he sees No. 99 (Green) blocking his path Monday night?

"Take it easy on me," said Rogers jokingly. "Don't hurt me in my last game."

Arkansas Routs Tulane

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sophomore running back Gary Anderson, revitalized after a four-week rest, scored two touchdowns from long range and set up another score with a 44-yard run as Arkansas clobbered Tulane 34-15 in the Hall of Fame Bowl Saturday night.

Anderson returned a punt 80 yards for one touchdown and cut back across the grain for 46 yards and another score as Arkansas jumped out to a 28-0 halftime lead. Both the punt return and the scoring run set records in the 4-year-old college football bowl game.

Both teams finished the season with 7-5 records.

Anderson was moved to wide receiver for the Razorbacks' regular season finale but returned to running back for the bowl game. He was switched to receiver because of the pounding he took during the season, because that is where he is expected to play next year and because Arkansas needed help at that position.

He rushed for more than 500 yards in the Razorbacks' first seven games, but managed only 46 yards in 14 carries in the next three contests.

Fresh, he was too much for Tulane, carrying eight times for 126 yards in the first half. Anderson wound up with 156 yards on 11 carries.

Oiler 'O' Challenges Raider 'D'

Browns Pick Houston To Win

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Some of the most interested spectators of Sunday's National Football League playoff game between Houston and Oakland will be the Cleveland Browns.

And many of the Browns believe the Oilers, Cleveland's American Football Conference Central Division rival, are likely to win that wild-card matchup.

"I want Houston to win, because I really want to play them again for the whole ball of wax," said receiver Dave Logan. "They are not convinced that we are worth a damn, and I want to prove that we're the better team."

Likewise, said tight end Ozzie Newsome.

"For the first time, I'll be rooting for Houston to win so we can play them here," he said. "I think the Oilers will win because they have my type of players, the big-play guys."

If indeed Houston wins, Cleveland will host Buffalo next Sunday. But if Oakland is victorious, the Browns will face the Raiders in that one.

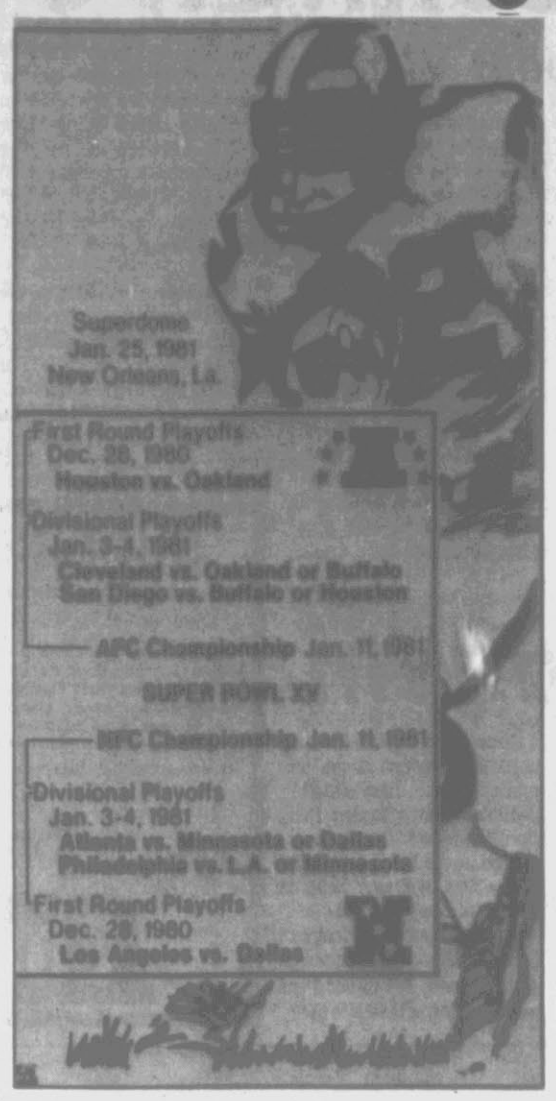
"We are hoping to play Buffalo — not because one team is better than the other, but because the odds would favor us since Buffalo is a run-oriented team and we do better against the run," said receiver Ricky Feacher. "So I hope Houston beats Oakland, though I don't really care that much."

Quarterback Brian Sipe prefers to look at the game more as an opportunity to scout the opposition, but he says television makes that task difficult.

"To me, all televised games do is tease me," Sipe said. "I want to see the defenses, and TV doesn't show enough of them. All you see are the results of plays, not how they materialized or developed."

Still, he, too, expects Houston to beat Oakland, "but don't ask me why."

The Browns had workouts on Friday and Saturday, as the coaching staff continued chopping up game films of both Buffalo and Oakland.



OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — When the Oakland Raiders and Houston Oilers meet in their National Football League playoff Sunday at Oakland, it could be a case of an irresistible force vs. an immovable object.

The force is Houston's offense, with Earl Campbell doing the rushing and Ken Stabler the passing. Thanks to them, the Oilers were second to San Diego in offense this season in the NFL.

The object is Oakland's defense, led by linebacker Ted Hendricks and ball-hawking cornerback Lester Hayes, a unit which some feel is as good as the defense that helped the Raiders win the Super Bowl in 1976.

Oakland and Houston, both 11-5, are the wild card teams that will begin the American Conference playoffs. The National Conference wild card game, also Sunday, will have Los Angeles, 11-5, at Dallas, 12-4.

The Rams, behind quarterback Vince Ferragamo, will be trying to knock Dallas out of the playoffs for the second year in a row. Last December, Ferragamo fired three touchdown passes against the Cowboys, a feat he repeated in a 38-14 Monday night victory two weeks ago.

Raider fans will be familiar with the sight of Stabler throwing passes to All-Pro tight end Dave Casper. Both played for many years with Oakland before being dealt to Houston in separate deals.

Stabler, who came to Houston for Dan Pastorini, said, "It'll be nice to see the guys I played with again." But he emphasized. "The main thing is not to get caught up in all the rhetoric about going back to Oakland."

Campbell, by far the leading rusher in the NFL, racked up 1,934 yards this season, including 203 in last week's regular season finale.

"We'll be playing against probably the greatest pure passer and best and most powerful running back the game has ever known," said Raiders defensive end John Matuszak.

The Raiders will be led on offense by recycled quarterback Jim Plunkett, who came off the bench in the fifth game of the season when Pastorini went down with a broken leg.

Another former Oiler, running back Kenny King, came to Oakland in an off-season trade for safety Jack Tatum. He went on to lead the Raiders in rushing and gain a Pro Bowl berth.

"I feel like this is going to be my playoffs, I really do," said King, who will be coming off an ankle injury that kept him out of action last weekend.

The NFC game at Dallas will determine whether Los Angeles advances to play in Philadelphia or Dallas moves on to Atlanta.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said there's no doubt Ferragamo will try to throw long against the Cowboys.

"Our secondary will play hard," said Landry, adding, "We got our confidence back" in last week's 35-27 win over Philadelphia.

Herrmann, Purdue Nip Tigers

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "I had a good time back there," Mark Herrmann said Saturday.

That was a typical understatement from Purdue's soft-spoken All-American quarterback and major college football's all-time passing king, who wound up his career by completing 22 of 28 for 289 yards and four touchdowns in the Boilermakers' 28-25 victory over Missouri in the 22nd annual Liberty Bowl.

Herrmann threw scoring passes of 8 and 27 yards to Bart Burrell, his high school teammate from Carmel, Ind., who broke one Liberty Bowl receiving record and tied two others by catching eight of Herrmann's tosses for 113 yards.

"Herrmann is just outstanding," said Purdue Coach Jim Young. "He did a great job of reading their secondary. I believe when he is on, he is just unstoppable."

Warren Powers, whose Missouri team had not yielded more than 267 passing yards in a game this season, agreed with Young.

"Herrmann played like we thought he was going to play," Powers said. "If you don't put pressure on him, he's going to do what he did. He just does a good job of passing and their line gives him a lot of protection. If you blitz, he'll pick you apart."

Missouri had enough to sack Herrmann three times, but for the most part, he had plenty of time to pick out his receivers.

"They played a lot of zone today," said Burrell. "Mark told us just to run until we got open."

Herrmann's first touchdown pass to Burrell opened the scoring at 11:29 of the first period and the 27-yarder gave the Boilermakers a 28-12 lead with five minutes left in the third quarter. It also enabled them to withstand a Missouri rally that produced a 45-yard field goal by Ron Verrilli, a safety, and Terry Hill's 1-yard touchdown plunge in the final 19 minutes.

The 6-foot-4 sharpshooter also threw second-period touchdown passes of 43 yards to Steve Bryant and 5 yards to All-American tight end Dave Young, the nation's leading receiver during the regular season.

But despite his aerial fireworks, which smashed the Liberty Bowl mark of 218 yards set by David Jaynes of Kansas against North Carolina State in 1973, Herrmann fell 54 yards shy in his attempt to become major college football's first 10,000-yard passer. Including three bowl games, he wound up with 9,946 yards.

Herrmann, who completed 13 of 17 passes for 180 yards in the first half, paced the Boilermakers to a 14-0 lead early in the second quarter before Missouri got on the board when George Shorthose and Ron Fellows combined on a 92-yard kickoff return.

Missouri's James Wilder scored on a 1-yard run at 8:44 of the second period, but the Tigers trailed 14-12 because Verrilli missed the conversion try after their first touchdown and Phil Bradley's two-point pass attempt after Wilder's touchdown was intercepted.

Sharing the spotlight with Herrmann and his receivers was place-kicker Rick Anderson, whose successful conversion after each of Herrmann's touchdown passes accounted for the decisive points.

After Purdue was stopped at the Missouri 4-yard line on its second possession, Herrmann took the Boilermakers 56 yards in eight plays for their first score.

The second touchdown drive covered 76 yards in five plays, with Herrmann lofting a 43-yard bomb to Bryant, Purdue's fastest footballer since Olympic sprinter Larry Burton.

Missouri then brought its supporters to their feet when Shorthose took the ensuing kickoff on his 8-yard line and handed off to Fellows on a reverse. Fellows sped down the left sideline, cut back inside at the Purdue 25, and completed a return that was 1 yard short of the Liberty Bowl record.

and Tommy Joyner with 13.

On the all tournament team from the two schools were Conley's Burney, Gatlin and Tucker and Rose's James Perkins, Johnson and Brewington. Also named to the team were North Pitt's Vince Parker and Greg Hines and Farmville Central's Ronald and Ricky Dixon.

In the consolation game, the Panthers, now 4-8, dominated from the outset. Hitting upwards of 55 to 60% in the early going, North Pitt Moved to an 11-8 first-period lead and then extended that to 29-16 at the half.

In the second half, the Jaguars, now 1-9, fell further and further behind as they were outscored 20-8 and 19-13 in the final two periods.

"This was a good team victory. We played our best ballgame of the year," North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans said afterward. "From top to bottom, it was just a good game for us.

"We shot 52 percent for the game and even better than that in the early going," he added. "We also did a better job on the boards and even got an offensive rebound or two."

Coming off a narrow 53-51 loss to Conley in the opening round of the tournament Friday night, Deans was concerned about how his club would respond. But the Panthers quickly dispelled any and all of Deans worries, at least for this night.

"I really didn't know how they'd come out but we came out and showed a little character in the way we came back tonight."

Rose Rocks Farmville Central, 84-62

Guards Cherry, Perkins Spark Rampant Victory

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell knew Greenville Rose's height advantage would cause his club problems. What he didn't know was the problems the Rampant quickness, especially at the guards, would cause.

"Our guards should have been able to handle it, but they didn't," Terrell said. "We made too many turnovers and got behind too far and couldn't ever catch up."

After a slow start, the Rampants combined a height advantage with quickness from the front court that created turnover after turnover to run away with an easy 84-62 victory over Farmville Central Friday night in the first round of the J.H. Rose Christmas Tournament.

"I thought the key was our quickness, especially at the guards," Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "(Guard James) Perkins is our sixth man, but he could start on many teams. He's a clutch player and really helped us tonight."

Besides forcing the Jaguar guards into turnovers with his quickness, the 5-5 Perkins also contributed 11 points. Fellow guard Freddy Cherry was the game's high scorer with 16 points while Donald Johnson and John Sheppard added 10 each for the Rampants.

Farmville, now 1-8 overall, was led by Barry Gay's 13 points. Gay, the tallest Jaguar at 6-2, worked inside much of the night against a Rampant team that boasts three players at 6-4 or better and two more at 6-3. No other Jaguar scored in double figures and on this night none drew any praise from their coach.

"We just played terrible," Terrell said. "They're as good a team as we'll play all year. They have more talent than anyone we play this year. But we made too many turnovers and too many mental mistakes.

"In the first quarter we started out playing very well, but then we made turnover after turnover and that gave them so many points on layups we were just never able to catch up."

Farmville led in the early moments and with two minutes to go in the period was up, 13-10. But an 8-2 spurt gave the Rampants an 18-15 lead as the quarter ended.

Rose, troubled much of the first half by turnovers itself, quickly extended that advantage to 24-17 on a short jumper by James Carter before taking a 33-23 lead at the half.

Up until then, despite the turnovers, the Jaguars were still in the game. But a 9-3 surge sparked by Johnson had the Rampants up 42-26 midway through the third period.

Johnson, held to just two points in the first half, scored the first four points of the third period and, with the help of Cherry's three-point play, gave the Rampants control of the game.

Farmville closed to within 44-34 with 3:33 left in the quarter but Rose answered that challenge by outscoring the Jaguars 12-3 in the final three and a half minutes to take a 56-37 lead going into the final period.

Rose worked its margin to 26 midway through the quarter only to see Farmville close to within 13 before going home with the 22-point victory. The 84 points the Rampants scored were the most this season and it left Brewington both pleased and concerned.

"We weren't as sharp as we should have been in the early going. I don't know, maybe it was the layoff," he said. "But we also might have been looking ahead a little. When you play a team like this your kids have a tendency to look ahead."

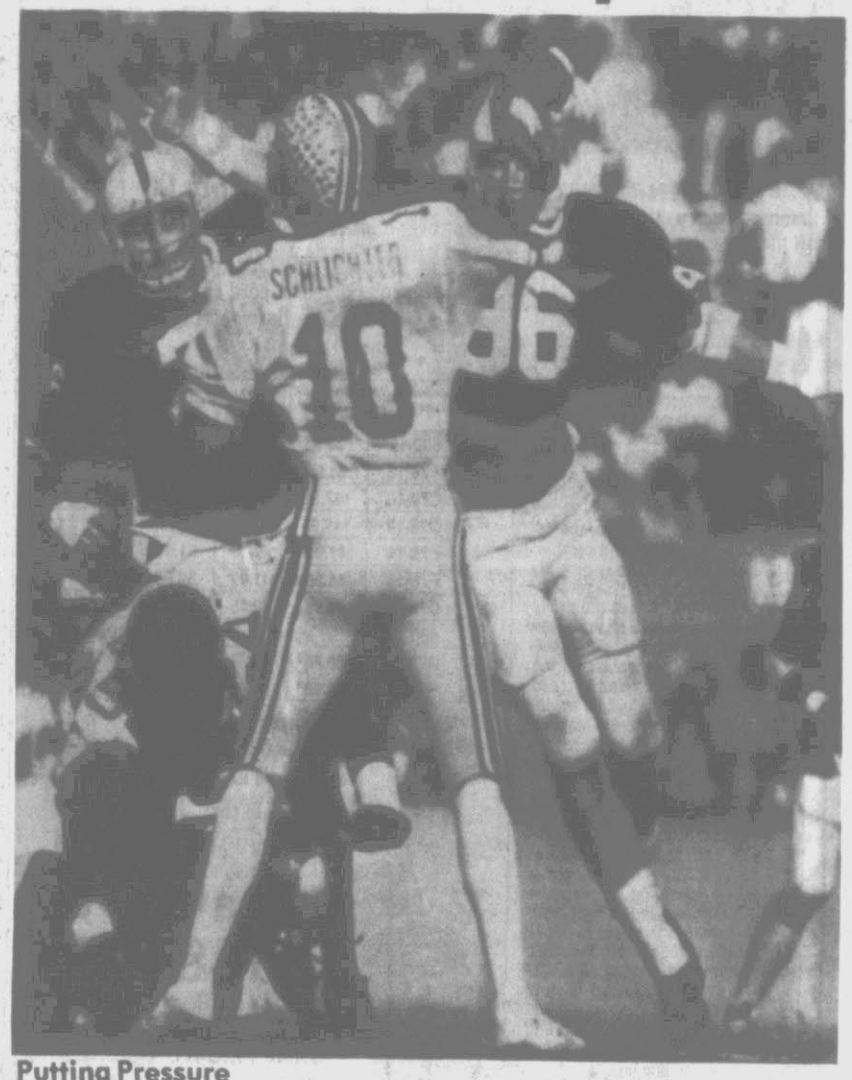
Second Half Charge Lifts Lions Past OSU, 31-19

Freshman Spurs PSU To Fiesta Win



Putting Pressure
Penn State defenders Micky Urquhart (left) and Frank Case pressure Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter (10) during second half of Fiesta Bowl. Schlichter, who passed for three touchdowns in the first half, couldn't put together a scoring effort the entire second half as the Buckeyes lost to the Nittany Lions, 31-19. (AP Laserphoto)

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — All week long, Penn State Coach Joe Paterno was saying a quarterback would decide the outcome of Friday's Fiesta Bowl game between his 10th-ranked Nittany Lions and No. 11 Ohio State.

"But I feared that it would be (Buckeye junior Art) Schlichter," said Paterno. "I didn't think it be our guy. He's just a freshman."

Overcoming a slow start, Todd Blackledge directed Penn State to three touchdowns in the second half as the Nittany Lions notched a 31-19 come-from-behind victory over Ohio State.

Blackledge, a native of North Canton, Ohio, who was shunned by Buckeye recruiters, directed a Penn State ground game that amassed 351 yards. He also hit four of eight passes for 68 yards in the final 30 minutes.

"It takes me awhile to get going," Blackledge said. "I've been doing that all year and I hate to keep doing it. But I knew it was going to work out. We just came out and played control football in the second half."

Sophomore tailback Curt Warner led the way — rushing 18 times for a Fiesta Bowl record-setting 155 yards, 45 more than the entire Ohio State squad managed in 39 carries.

He scored his team's first touchdown on a 64-yard run on Penn State's initial play from scrimmage, setting another new Fiesta Bowl standard.

"We feel we can run against anybody," Warner said. "Our offensive line is that good. I just went with the flow."

Ohio State jumped to a 19-10 halftime lead behind Schlichter's record-tying three touchdown tosses and 244 yards passing.

Schlichter, who wound up with a career-high 302 passing yards with a 20-for-35 performance, managed only five completions in 13 attempts in the second half.

After Warner got Penn State on the scoreboard at the 1:07 mark of the first quarter, Schlichter found flanker Doug Donley on touchdown passes of 23 and 19 yards and hit split end Gary Williams with a 33-yarder for an 19-7 lead.

Placekicker Herb Menhardt booted a 38-yard field goal with eight seconds left to cut Penn State's halftime deficit to nine.

Shot At Buzzer Gives DHC Win Over N. Pitt

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

D.H. Conley coach Shelley Marsh had the plan. All he needed was the man to make it work. He found him in sophomore guard Keith Gatlin.

With four seconds to go Gatlin took a pass inbounds near the right hashmark, turned and, with North Pitt guard Greg Hines as close as he could get without fouling him, lofted a shot towards the basket some 25 feet away.

By the time the ball was finished rippling through the net, the buzzer had sounded, giving the Vikings a hard-fought, 53-51, victory over North Pitt Friday night in the opening round of the J.H. Rose Christmas Tournament.

"He was suppose to take the shot, we had planned it that way," Marsh said of Gatin's game-winner. "He was suppose to drive as close to the basket as he could and then shot it.

"I told him that whatever he did we didn't want him to lose the ball. We wanted to get a shot off. With four seconds to go we had our rebounders under the boards ready."

It was that prospect — a last second tap-in — that had North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans having nightmares on the bench.

"I told them about the second shot," Deans said. "More games are lost on that than on a long shot like that. That's the nightmare, not losing like this. I can live with this.

"Greg Hines had the kid covered as well as we could have wanted. He did an excellent job. He (Gatlin) just made the shot."

The 6-0 Hines not only did an outstanding job defensively on the 6-4 Gatlin, he also contributed 10 points, including eight-for-eight from the foul line.

For a time, however, it appeared Gatlin's last-second heroics would not be needed. The Vikings led by eight at one point in the second half only to see the Panthers, who never led, continue to chip away at the lead.

After cutting the deficit to three at the end of the third period, North Pitt tied it up five times in the last four minutes, at 43, 45, 47, 49 and 51. Down 43-41, Paul Tucker hit a jumper from deep in the right corner.

Sammy Tyson's baseline jumper gave DHC the lead again, 45-43, but two buckets by Vince Parker, who led the Panthers with 17 points, sandwiched around two free throws by Gatlin left the score knotted at 47-47.

After turnovers by both teams on their next possessions, Tyson, who finished with 14 points, hit two consecutive follow shots but Hines hit two free throws and Parker hit a short jumper to keep the score tied at 51-51 with seven seconds left.

Moments later, the game ended when Gatlin hit his long-range bomb.

"There in the fourth quarter we were just standing around. I don't know how many offensive rebounds they had, but it was a lot," Deans said. "Our rebounding is really disturbing me. The fact that we're there and won't get in to it and fight for the rebound is really what's bothering me.

"We made them take some shots I know they didn't want to. That's the way we hoped it would be. But they kept getting the rebounds and getting second shots. It's like I told the kids, that's what killed us."

Still, in almost all respects, this game was the opposite of the last meeting between the two teams. Nearly two weeks ago, DHC defeated North Pitt, 42-37. It was a game neither coach was pleased with. This time it was different.

"Both teams played much better than the last time we played," said Marsh, whose Vikings are now 7-2. "The fans got their money's worth tonight."

Deans, whose Panthers fall to 3-8, couldn't have agreed more, though obviously he would have liked to have won.

"This would have been an important win for us," he said. "But we didn't get it. We did play a lot better, though. I'm proud of the way they kept coming back. They kept plugging away at the lead. They didn't let bad situations become worse."

In the early going there were few bad situations for either team. Both teams played well in the first period. As a result, neither could take command of the game.

Conley worked out to a 12-8 lead with three minutes to go and led at the end of the quarter, 18-14. The Panthers tied it at 20-20 midway through the second period, but Conley scored the last four points of the period to take a 24-20 lead into the half.

The Vikings stretched their lead to eight, the biggest of the night by either team, at 30-22 on a jumper by Anthony Burney. Burney, Gatlin and Sammy Tucker had 12 points for the Vikings.

Again, however, the Panthers fought back, outscoring Conley, 11-6, to cut the margin to 36-33 going into the final period. From there, it was anyone's game until Gatlin's shot ended the tournament's opening game.

"We knew it was gonna be a dogfight," Marsh said. "And it was. But I'm pretty much pleased with the way things went."

Mavericks Claim 5th Victory In 28 Games

Surprise! Dallas Gets A 'W'

By The Associated Press

With the Dallas Mavericks, winning isn't everything. In fact, it's been next to nothing, considering the amount of times they've been in that column this season.

Friday night was one of those rare occasions.

"The crowd helped us," said Coach Dick Motta after a 119-111 National Basketball Association decision over the Denver Nuggets for only the Marvericks' fifth victory this year in 28 games.

Abdul Jeelani was a big part of it for the Mavericks as well, scoring 20 points off the bench.

"He's been sick," Motta said of his forward. "I told him to get sick again. That's the thing we've been missing the last few games, having a guy coming off the bench and having a super game."

While Jeelani was pouring them in, the crowd was pouring it on Kiki Vandeweghe of the Nuggets. He's been in disfavor in Dallas ever since refusing to join the Mavericks as their No. 1 draft pick. The Nuggets obtained him in exchange for their first-round draft choice in 1981.

Rockets 114, Pistons 94

Moses Malone poured in 33 points and grabbed 14 rebounds to lead Houston over Detroit. The game was marked by the first appearance since March 4 of Pistons forward Bob McAdoo, who missed 51 straight games because of injuries. McAdoo scored 15 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in 30 minutes of play.

76ers 113, Kings 103

Julius Erving threw in 30 points and pulled down 15 rebounds to spark a second-half rally that carried Philadelphia over Kansas City. It was the 76er's 10th straight victory, and raised their record to 33-4, best in the NBA.

Hawks 108, Nets 95

John Drew scored 21 points to lead Atlanta over New Jersey, spoiling the home debut of new Nets Coach Bob MacKinnon. It was the third straight loss since MacKinnon took over for Kevin Loughery, who resigned Monday after 7½ years as coach of the Nets.

Bulls 100, Cavaliers 98

Ricky Sobers hit three clutch baskets late in the game to spark a closing 13-3 spurt that gave Chicago its victory over Cleveland.

Warriors 110, Jazz 109

Lloyd Free scored 28 points for Golden State, including the last eight of the game, as the Warriors edged Utah.

Lakers 116, Pacers 115

Jamaal Wilkes scored 33 points, including a key three-point play with 21 seconds to go, to lead Los Angeles over Indiana.

Trail Blazers 96, Sonics 90

Mychal Thompson's 27 points paced Portland over Seattle for its fifth straight road victory.

Kings Sign Lambert

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Kings have signed John Lambert, a 6-foot-10 forward-center who recently was released by the Cleveland Cavaliers, and waived Gus Gerard to make room on the roster for Lambert.

"John gives us a little more size," Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "He also can run the floor and shoot the ball a little bit. He not only will be able to back up the center position, but also the strong forward position."

Lambert was a first-round draft pick by Cleveland in 1975 out of the University of Southern California and has averaged just under 4 points a game during his professional career.

Whittenburg's FTs Lifts N.C. State Past Iona

NEW YORK (AP) — North Carolina State basketball Coach Jim Valvano was joking, but there may have been a grain of truth in it.

He saw his Wolfpack battled down to the final buzzer by the Gaels of Iona, the school where he coached last season. He didn't come out a winner until sophomore guard Dereck Whittenburg hit three important free throws in the final 4:07 for a 61-58 victory Friday night in the first round of the ECAC Holiday Festival.

"For a while at the end, I almost started yelling, 'Go, Gaels! Go, Gaels!'" Valvano said. "I was way down on the other end of the court, and I almost turned to the wrong bench."

St. John's beat Penn 66-58 in the first game of the tournament behind the shooting of Curtis Redding, and the Redmen will meet N.C. State in Saturday's title game. The victory gave St. John's 1,200 in its history, a plateau reached by only three other schools — Kentucky, North Carolina and Kansas.

Valvano left Iona in a state of confusion. He coached the Gaels to a 25-9 record in 1979-80, but Iona lost four starters to graduation and a fifth, junior center Jeff Ruland, was declared ineligible by the NCAA because he signed with an agent.

Valvano was replaced by his assist, Pat Kennedy, who has the Gaels off to a 3-6 start.

"I can't say this was our toughest loss of the year," Kennedy said. "It's such a young team, and every loss is a tough one when you're building. It would have been a great win."

The Wolfpack, 6-2, came in heavily favored, but Valvano credited Iona's size and tenacity for making it close.

"They tattooed us on the boards, and we're the No. 1 team in rebounding in the Atlantic Coast Conference," Valvano said. N.C. State was outrebounded 42-27, but when three of Iona's five starters — including two big men — fouled out in the final six minutes, the edge wore off.

The Wolfpack led 52-42 on a jumper by Kenny Matthews with 12 minutes left, and it was a struggle the rest of the way. Iona ran off six straight points to trail 52-48. After a Wolfpack timeout, Whittenburg and Art Jones hit jumpers, but Iona came back with another six points, four on baskets by Steve Burtt, to trail 56-54.

N.C. State went into its four-corners offense, slowing things down a bit, and Wolfpack center Thurl Bailey went to the line for two as 6-foot-10 Iona center Kevin Vesey fouled out. Burtt got Iona back within two with a steal and layup, but 13 seconds later, he picked up foul No. 4, sending Whittenburg to the line for two more and a 60-56 Wolfpack lead with 4:07 left.

With 3:32 remaining, 6-10 Iona forward Mike Ice fouled out, and Whittebnurg hit one of two for a 61-56 lead. Iona guard Tony Iati hit a long jumper with 2:45 left to make it 61-58, and the two teams traded missed baskets to the end.

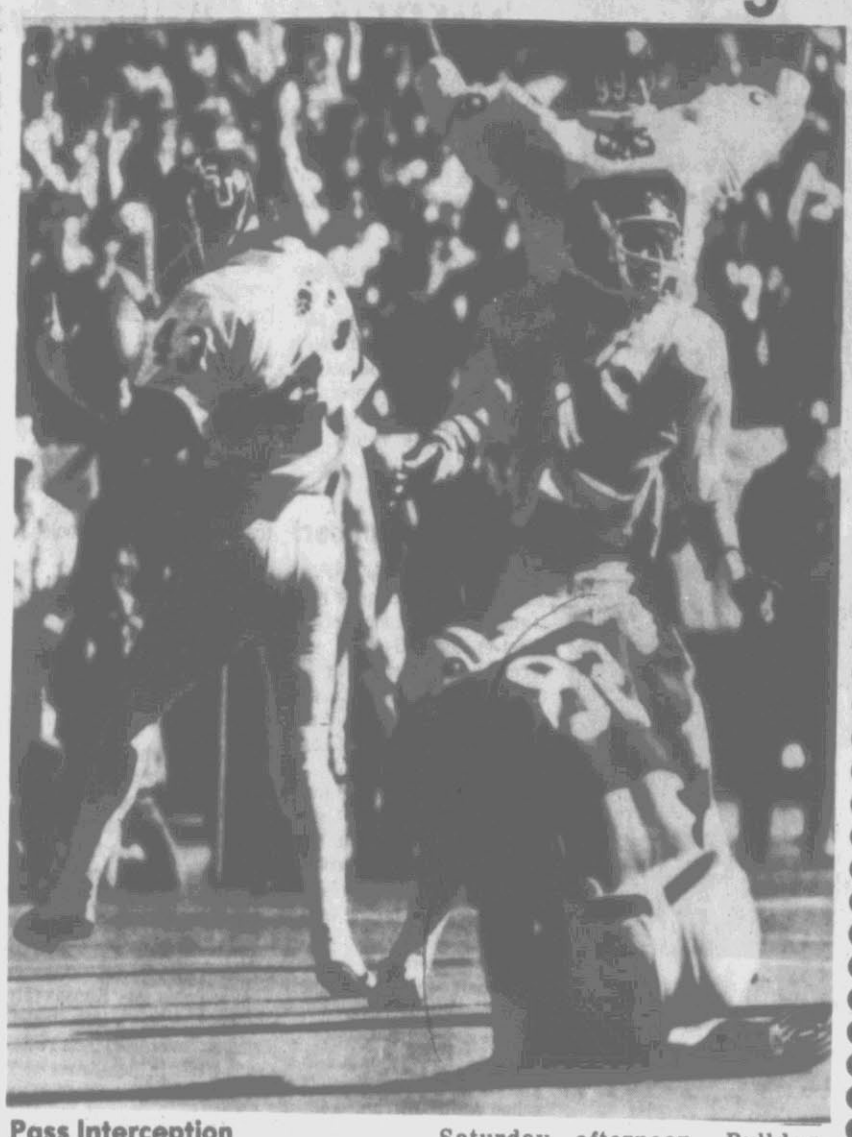
Nebraska Intimidates Bulldogs



Pass Interception
Mississippi State linebacker Rusty Martin (43) gathers in Nebraska pass intended for tight end Steve Davies (82) in Sun Bowl action Saturday afternoon. Bulldog teammates Robe Fesmore (6) and fellow linebacker Johnnie Cooks (99) celebrate the interception. (AP Laserphoto)

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Taking full advantage of secret practice sessions, Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne used almost every exotic in his playbook Saturday except his famed guard-around and the No. 8-ranked Cornhuskers intimidated Mississippi State 31-17 in the 46th annual Sun Bowl.

Osborne called a touchdown-scoring reverse on the Cornhuskers' first play from scrimmage and kept going to his bizarre calls until Nebraska owned a comfortable 17-0 halftime lead. Nebraska used reverses, laterals off passes, a flea flicker and a fake field goal to confuse the Bulldogs.

The Cornhuskers also took advantage of six Mississippi State mistakes, four lost fumbles and two interceptions.

"We worked on some different plays ... some worked and some didn't," he said. "It was our plan to try to do somethings differently."

He added, "We used just about everything we worked on that was a little unusual. The fake field goal we had worked on all year."

Quarterback Jeff Quinn, who threw two touchdown passes and was named the most valuable player, hugged his mother after the game and wept.

"There are just so many memories ... I'm just happy it (his collegiate) career ended this way," Quinn said.

The 14-point favorite Cornhuskers came out wheeling and dealing to score on their first offensive play and the stung Bulldogs could never get back into the game.

Split end Todd Brown dashed 23 yards for a touchdown in the first 2½ minutes of the game after a Bulldog bobble to set the tone of the game on this perfect football day.

The play came on a perfectly timed reverse that left the Bulldog defense tangle-footed as Brown scored untouched.

Big Eight Conference runner-up Nebraska continued to play it loose although a lateral pass and a flea flicker in which the fullback tossed the ball back to Quinn, who threw an incompletion, failed to produce any points.

However, a fake field goal setup Kevin Seibel's chip-shot 22-yarder in the second quarter.

Nebraska, which finished the year 10-2, led 17-0 at halftime on Quinn's 8-yard touchdown pass to tight end Jeff Finn.

Mississippi State of the Southeastern Conference had its moments as freshman quarterback John Bond spanked some second half life into the Bulldogs, who finished the season 9-3.

Bond ran for a score and threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to fullback Michael Haddix with 1 minute to play in the game.

Bond took the Bulldogs to the Cornhusker 30-yard line before Dana Moore kicked a 47-yard field goal to get State on the board 7:12 deep in the third period.

After Andra Franklin charged 2 yards for a touchdown to make it 24-3, Bond engineered Mississippi State on a classy 76-yard drive in which he completed passes of 22 and 24 yards. He scored himself on a fourth-down keeper from a yard away.

Nebraska defensive end Jimmy Williams was voted the MVP for the linemen.

Mississippi State only made five first downs in the first half and never got out of its own end of the field. The Bulldogs also didn't complete a pass in the first half.

Mistakes had the Bulldogs reeling from the very start. Mardey McDole fumbled a punt and Nebraska's Steve Davies claimed the ball at the Mississippi State 23. On the next play, Brown scampered around right end behind center Dave Remington's clearing block for the touchdown.

Nebraska had a chance for another cheap score after Moore fumbled the snap while trying to punt on State's next possession. He was swarmed down at the Bulldog 20. However, linebacker Rusty Martin saved the Bulldogs in that situation by intercepting a Quinn pass at the 21.

With the Cornhuskers leading 7-0 late in the second quarter, Ric Lindquist picked off a Bond pass at the State 28-yard line. On fourth-and-four, Nebraska faked a field goal and Quinn flipped a pass to fullback Jim Kotera for 5 yards and a first down. Nebraska worked the ball to the Bulldog 3-yard line where Seibel kicked a 22-yard field goal.

Nebraska struck again with 1:58 to play in the first half thanks to a 55-yard Quinn-to-McCrady pass to the Bulldog 8. On first down, Quinn rolled out and hit tight end Finn for the touchdown.

Redskin Girls Win 8th Straight

ROBERSONVILLE — 'Tis the season for Christmas tournaments and the Martin County version got started last night with three games. In the boys' game, Williamston defeated Jamesville, 58-44, while in the girls' games Jamesville upset Williamston, 26-23, and Roanoke whipped Bear Grass, 54-29.

For the Roanoke girls it was their eighth victory of the season against no defeats. Bear Grass falls to 4-6.

The Lady Redskins led all the way, jumping out on top, 14-8, at the end of the first period and then taking a 26-12 lead at intermission. In the second half Roanoke outscored the Bears 11-9 and 17-8 to take home the victory.

The Redskins were led by Wanda Roberson's 18 points while Sylvia Parker added 15. Bear Grass was paced by Angie Mizelle's 15 points.

In the other girls' game, Williamston took the intial lead, at 8-4, at the end of the first eight minutes ,but then was outscored, 9-1, in the second period to trail at the half, 13-9.

In the second half the Lady Bullets pulled out to a 20-14 lead going into the final period and held off the Tigers at the end for the upset victory.

Jamesville was led by Angela Hagens' 10 points while Cathy Everett had 12 for Williamston.

In the boys' game, Vincent Washington pumped in 16 points and three other played added 10 to give the Tigers the win over Jamesville. Tom Bennett, McKinley Williams and Chrish Peel all hit for 10 points for Williamston to lead a balance scoring attack.

The Bullets were led by Gerald Keyes' 19 points and Kerwin Cross' 10 points.

Williamston started quickly, moving out to a 20-11 lead at the end of the first quarter and led at the half, 36-28.

In the second half the Tigers outscored the Bullets 10-8 and 12-8 for the 14-point win.

The tournament takes Sunday off before resuming play Monday night when Williamston's girls play Bear Grass and Roanoke's girls meet Bear Grass.

Irish Fullbacks More Than 'Glorified Guards'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — They call themselves "glorified guards" and joke about token opportunities to run with the football, but fullbacks John Sweeney and Pete Buchanan know they're important cogs in the Notre Dame offense.

Actually, they start the Notre Dame offense. The plays are called by the coaches, and Buchanan and Sweeney alternate down-by-down acting as messengers.

They'll be relaying plays from the sideline on Thursday when seventh-ranked Notre Dame meets No.1 Georgia in the Sugar Bowl.

Both are sophomores in eligibility, but Buchanan was red-shirted with an injury last season. He had been scheduled to start after spending his freshman season as a backup to Jerome Heavens.

But he broke his ankle 10 days before the 1979 season opened.

"That's what gave me my chance to play," Sweeney said.

Sweeney had 50 carries and four pass receptions during this season. Buchanan had 27 carries and two receptions.

One of Buchanan's receptions was a mistake, Sweeney said.

"Coach (Dan) Devine called a 75-streak, and Pete thought he called a 70-screen, and that's a play we don't even have," Sweeney said.

Nevertheless, that's the play that was called in the huddle.

In the spirit of fair play, Sweeney told one on himself.

"I did one last year — the same sort of thing," he said.

"The coach called I-left, screen left. That would have been a screen pass to Vagas Ferguson. I called I-left, screen right. That was a screen to me, and that's a lot of difference.

"They threw it downfield, fortunately, so I didn't get in trouble."

Although both were nationally recruited as running backs, they are primarily blockers in the Notre Dame system. Neither resents his role or the fact that they share time.

"There isn't any jealousy at all," Buchanan said.

"We're glorified guards, I guess. That's what Coach calls us."

Sweeney said it was sort of a shock to find out that other backs were going to do the running and get the glory. But he also said he understands why things are as they are.

"I thought I was pretty fast when I was in high school, but I got here and found out what fast is," he said. "I felt like I was just standing still."

Halfbacks Phil Carter and Jim Stone, who gained 1,730 yards this year running behind the fullbacks' blocks, walked into the room while Sweeney and Buchanan were talking.

Buchanan greeted them with a joke. "We're going to boycott," he told the halfbacks.

But Sweeney said that wouldn't work.

"They'd find someone else to take our place in a hurry. There are a lot of people who would jump in there and run into linebackers," he said.

Both said they have watched a lot of film of Georgia and were impressed by what they saw.

"Do they get the turnovers!" Sweeney exclaimed.

"They're a big-play defense," Buchanan added.

"You can move the ball on them, but every time a team starts a drive, Georgia stops them — comes up with the fumble or the interception. I guess that's why they're No.1," Sweeney observed.

Since a lot of their blocking is aimed at clearing linebackers out of the point of attack, both paid a lot of attention to the way the Georgia backers played during the season.

"They fill fast," Sweeney said.

"That's for sure," said Buchanan.

Georgia runs a six-man front, lining up with a pair of defensive guards protecting the middle.

"They're a lot different. They're uncanny the way they get the fumbles and interceptions," Buchanan said. "A lot of times, their guards are in the backfield before the play gets started."

And if a big defensive guard slides into the hole, one of the fullbacks will have to clear him out, instead of taking on a lighter linebacker.

"I just hope our guards will handle them," Buchanan said.

Both said their biggest thrill of the season was the experience of climbing to the top of the national rankings with such a young team and the 7-0 victory over previously undefeated Alabama.

They also agreed on their biggest disappointments: the 3-3 tie against Georgia Tech, which tumbled them from No.1 in the polls, and the season-ending 20-3 loss to Southern California which knocked them from second to seventh.

Sweeney singled out Alabama as the toughest game of the season.

"That's weird. I thought USC's defensive line was the toughest, but Alabama's defensive backs were tough," said Buchanan.

"This may sound weird, but I got beat up most by Air Force," Sweeney said. "I got bell-ringers the whole game."

They said that although they were light-hearted this far away from game time, their mood would probably change as their meeting with Georgia drew closer.

Illinois Whips Ohio, 84-54

#19 Utah Upset By Drake In Far West

By The Associated Press

Even in victory, no matter how lopsided, winning coaches on winning teams seem to find fault.

Coach Lou Henson of 18th-ranked Illinois was no different Friday night after his team moved into the final round of its own Fighting Illini basketball tournament with an 84-54 victory over Ohio University.

"We never could quite put it away in the first half," Henson said. "In the second half we played much better. We played more intense, we hit the boards much tougher, we played better defense."

Illinois trailed 18-16 in the first half until outscoring Ohio 17-4. Mark Smith scored six of his 18 points in that surge, and the Illini led 39-31 at the halftime.

Illinois really put the game away by scoring 10 straight points to move ahead 53-35 midway through the second half, and Illinois improved its record to 6-1 while Ohio remained winless.

"What's an 0-7 guy say?" Ohio Coach Danny Nee asked. "Illinois has the size, the speed and the depth to be a winner in the Big Ten. I didn't see too many weaknesses.

Nee added: "We're the best 0-7 team in the country."

Oklahoma edged Bradley 53-52 in the opening game of the Illini tournament and will face Illinois in tonight's final.

In the only major upset of the day, No. 19 Utah lost to Drake, 69-68, in the first round of the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore. Charlie Nichols stole the ball from Utah's Danny Vranes, who fouled with 12 seconds left. Nichols sank the first of two shots for the final margin of victory.

Barry Walker sank five free throws in the final minute of overtime to give Oregon an 82-78 victory over Cal State-Fullerton in the other first-round game in the Far West Classic.

The second round of the Far West has No. 4 Oregon State playing Northwestern and Rhode Island facing Princeton. The semifinals were scheduled for Sunday with the finals on Monday.

North Carolina State and St. John's, N.Y., will play tonight for the title of the ECAC Holiday Festival at New York.

N.C. State got 23 points and three crucial free throws down the stretch from sophomore guard Dereck Whittenburg to edge Iona 61-58. The game marked the return to the Garden of N.C. State Coach Jim Valvano, who coached Iona to a 25-9 record last season but left for Raleigh, N.C., this year.

Curtis Redding scored 19 points — three during a 9-0 burst midway in the second half that gave St. John's a 49-40 lead — and the Redmen coasted to a 66-58 victory over Penn.

A pair of freshmen paced their teams in the Gator Bowl. Russell Cross, playing much of the game in foul trouble, scored 18 points as Purdue downed Georgia Tech 53-45. Ronnie Williams scored 22 points and hauled in 11 rebounds to help Florida to a 65-59 victory over Jacksonville.

In the Pillsbury tournament, Ben Coleman scored 15 points and Trent Tucker added 14 as Minnesota ran off 23 straight points midway in the game to clobber Yale 95-54. Ben Hill scored 32 points, and Nelson Franse sank six free throws in the second overtime as Texas Tech struggled past Washington, 98-85.

Frontcourt mates Ron Davis and Robby Dosty each scored 16 points to help Arizona clobber Cal-Santa Barbara 87-58 in the Copper State Classic. Alvin Brooks scored 18 of his 19 points in the second half to power Lamar over Grambling State, 88-82, in the other game.

Sports Quotes

Some notable quotes from the World of Sports:

"I have nothing to prove to anyone. If I haven't proved it by now, I certainly won't in one silly playoff game." — Former Oakland Raiders tight end Dave Casper, now with Houston, on returning to Oakland for Sunday's American Conference wild-card game.

"It has been interesting, but not necessarily disppointing. When you think of what all has happened to this team, mainly injuries, you realize that a lot of guys functioned under tough circumstances. I'm optimistic that we'll be back next year." — Pittsburgh cornerback Mel Blount, after the Steelers were eliminated from the NFL playoffs for the first time in nine years.

"Whatever it takes to win. No use losing and being nice guys. We've tried that before." — Coach Gary Green of Washington, after the Capitals and New York Rangers were assessed 176 penalty minutes in the Caps' 7-3 NHL victory. Two nights earlier the Caps beat Philadelphia in a game involving 174 penalty minutes.

Starr Still Coach, But Not GM

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers' board of directors voted Saturday to retain Bart Starr as coach through the 1981 season, but to hire a new general manager.

Starr, who quarterbacked the Packers to five National Football League championshps during the 1960s, has been the club's general manager and head coach since Dec. 24, 1974.

No new general manager was named, but club President Dominic Olejniczak said a search would begin immediately.

Starr, whose record in six seasons has been 31-57-2, planned to meet with about two dozen news media representatives assembled in the locker room at the Packer headquarters.

However, the news conference was held up when Starr declined to address the group because of the presence of Milwaukee Journal reporter Dave Begel. Starr and Begel have feuded on and off for more than two years and Starr has refused to talk with Begel since early this season.

Olejniczak announced the decision after a 2-hour, 40-minute meeting of the club's 45-member board of directors.

"The action taken was by a unanimous vote of the board of directors," Olejniczak said. "Number 1, we have unanimously voted to enable Bart Starr to carry out his assignment and fulfill his contract as coach. Number 2, we did go on record to separate the two positions of coach and general manager. The details are being worked out. It will take time. We will go to work immediately."

Olejniczak said no thought has been given as to who the board might hire as general manager, and that it is not been decided how the duties of the general manager will be structured.

"It's been my experience in many years in the National Football League that many clubs have a general manager and you can't tell me that any two have the same duties and responsibilities," Olejniczak said.

He said Starr was called into the meeting near the end and "gave a fine report."

Asked how Starr had taken the news, Olejniczak said, "There was no reaction. I don't know if he was pleased or not. I don't know how he felt inwardly, but he addressed the group the same as he did before."

Olejniczak replied with a flat, "No," when asked if there had been much discussion about firing Starr as coach or about whether or not his contract should be extended.

Starr, addressing members of the electronic media, admitted the board's action had surprised him.

"I don't have a great deal to say because I haven't had a great deal of time to reflect on it," said Starr, 46.

Asked whether it was a good situation for him to remain for one year as head coach and to try to motivate players with the knowledge he might not be back, Starr said, "No, it's not. You do the best you can. I hope the new general manager likes the coach. I think it's imperative."

Asked if he might resign as coach if he does not like the way the job of general manager ultimately is structured, Starr said he preferred not to comment because what he might say at this time might be "ill-advised and inappropriate."

"I just want time to reflect on this," he said. "This is coming at me like it's coming at you — right between the eyes. I think a number of factors will weigh heavily. I'll let you know in 24 hours or more."

While speculation about Starr's status swirled during the last few days, Starr had said last Monday that he wouldn't be opposed to remaining in just one of the two capacities.

"I'd think about it, if that's what they wanted to do," Starr said at the time. "The dual role is very demanding. It's logical to assume that if you are concentrating all of your energies on one or the other, you're going to be more effective. But I'm answering in a hypothetical sense."

Starr said at his Saturday news conference that the best hypothetical relationship between a coach and general manager "is when the general manager assists in the area of personnel a great deal."

"I spend, and have spent in the last five years, a great deal of time scouting," he said. "One thing I point to with pride is knowing every person in the league and having a pretty good book on him. But it's very time-consuming."

He said that separating the jobs "could help in the sense that it could mean more football time and less scouting time."

Starr said when he was hired in the two capacities that his most important immediate job was to build a solid foundation. He was asked Saturday whether he felt that foundation was being pulled out from under him.

"No," he replied, emphatically. "That's the very thing we're going to operate on. The only thing we're embarrassed about here is our record on the field. I think in evey other area, we've matched or surpassed the goals we had in mind five years ago."

"This is an organization that is a lot better structured than when we took over," he said. "The biggest disappointment I have is our lack of success on the field. I honestly thought we'd have a lot better record at this stage."

Starr's job first appeared in jeopardy immediately after the 1979 season. The Packers had finished 8-7-1 in 1978, when they missed a playoff berth by half a game, but plummeted to 5-11 in 1979.

Starr blamed a devasting run of injuries as having been primarily responsible for the Packers' regression in 1979. Still, he saw fit to fire defensive coordinator Dave Hanner, who had been with the club for 28 years as player and assistant coach, in a move to upgrade a defense which finished last in the NFL against the run in 1979.

The Packers committed themselves to changing from the 4-3 defense to the 3-4, and made Penn State All-American defensive tackle Bruce Clark their No. 1 pick in the 1980 collegiate draft.

Clark, the fourth player chosen in the draft, was projected as the nose guard anchor in the realigned defense. George Cumby, their second first-round pick, was added for help at outside linebacker.

But grumbling resurfaced when Clark, who had expressed misgivings about playing nose guard and about playing in Green Bay, signed a two-year contract with Toronto of the Canadian League.

While some fans applauded the Packers for not offering Clark an astronomical salary, others were critical because the club had announced record profits and had boosted ticket prices for 1980.

Cumby, whose selection on the first round had been criticized by some Packer players, played little during his rookie season because of two knee injuries.

Viewpoints

According to a poll conducted by Advertising Age, 69 percent of the men surveyed think women have changed for the better in the past 20 years, but only 46 percent of the women felt the same way about men. The modern men say they like today's women because they are more aggressive, ambitious, self-confident and intelligent.

Business Notes

NEW FACILITY

Bill Ipock, president of Happy Stores of North Carolina Inc., announced that the company has opened a new convenience food store at Tenth and Evans Street.

Ipock said the store will specialize in wholesale and retail ice delivery.

GENERAL MANAGER

Park Broadcasting Inc. has named John Faulk as general manager of its WNCT AM-FM radio stations in North Carolina, according to Roger Turner, vice president-radio for the corporation.

Turner said that Faulk was promoted from his position as station manager of Park's WDEF AM-FM in Chattanooga, Tenn. He joined WDEF radio in 1978 as operations manager.

An Alabama native, he began his broadcasting career in 1956 in the Huntsville-Decatur market. He and his wife, Mary, and their son, David, will live in Greenville.

JOHN FAULK

HELPED DECORATE

Edward Glenn of Jefferson Florist here joined some 40 florists from 15 states who donated their time and skills to decorate the White House for the holiday season. The activities have become a florist industry tradition for the past decade.

Glenn said that the theme this year is primarily victorian, and features topiary trees with boxwood and ivy cascades. He added that the materials used by President and Mrs. Carter include ecru lace and dusty rose ribbon, fabric flowers, dolls, jesters, clowns and toys by Hartford, Conn. interior designer Louis Nichole.

More than 50,000 visitors to Washington during the holiday season will see the decorations, and there will be two candlelight tours on Dec. 29 and 30.

TOP UNDERWRITER

Harold H. Pittman, CLU, agency manager for Life Insurance Co. of Virginia in Greenville, Rocky Mount and Williamston, has been named Rocky Mount's top insurance underwriter for 1980.

Pittman also serves as vice president of the Eastern North Carolina CLU Association and is immediate past president of the Rocky Mount Life Underwriters Association.

Last Minute Gift-Buying

Shoppers shrugged off their financial worries and swarmed into stores in a rush during the final days before Christmas, an Associated Press survey indicates. And business the day after wasn't bad either.

"It's like the day before Christmas here," Jack Maddy, manager of a Sears store in suburban Kansas City, said Friday.

"Shoppers are buying more today than Wednesday. We're twice as busy now as we were a week before Christmas," said Sally Balandine, sales clerk at a J.C. Penney store in Greenville, S.C.

Before this week, the traditional Christmas gift-buying season had been a disappointment to many retailers, in part because of backlash from rising interest rates and fears of recession.

But the eleventh-hour shopping surge lifted the spirits of many retailers, the AP survey of shopkeepers indicated Friday.

"What started out to be a moderate December turned out to be gang busters," said a spokesman for Lazarus department stores in Columbus, Ohio.

The Lazarus spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the biggest sales surge came last Saturday and Sunday. But many other retailers reported their best gains on the final three days before Christmas.

Market Makes Modest Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, operating at about half-speed in the midst of the holidays, managed to keep its year-end rally alive Friday with a modest advance.

The session was the quietest in more than two years at the New York Stock Exchange, with many traders taking a long Christmas weekend.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 3.33 to 966.38. That gave the average a 29.18 gain for the week, to go with a 20.05-point advance the week before.

Big Board volume came to just 16.13 million shares, down from 29.49 million Wednesday and the lightest total since a 14.59 million-share day on Nov. 24, 1978.

Aerospace issues recorded some of the day's best gains. Boeing led the active list, up 1⅜ at 42⅛; General Dynamics, also active, gained 1⅞ to 39⅛, and Lockheed rose 1 to 32½. McDonnell Douglas added ⅜ to 47¼ and Northrop ⅛ to 59.

Among glamor issues, International Business Machines climbed ½ to 69; Texas Instruments 2½ to 123; Johnson & Johnson 2⅛ to 100, and Humana 1⅝ to 69¼. Humana, a hospital-management company whose stock traded as low as 28⅛ earlier this year, reached an all-time high.

International Harvester picked up ⅞ to 26¼. On Wednesday Teledyne Inc. disclosed that it had increased its stake in Harvester to just under 10 percent.

Homestake Mining, which estimated a 10 percent quarterly earnings decline Wednesday, fell 2¾ to 69⅞ in active trading. Among other gold-mining issues, ASA was down 1⅜ at 68⅜; Dome Mines 1¾ at 88¾, and Campbell Red Lake Mines ¼ at 58¾.

Gold prices have declined on balance in 1980, reversing a strong uptrend since the mid-1970s that carried them to record levels above $850 an ounce about a year ago.

Given the slow pace of activity and a dearth of news, analysts said it was difficult to read much of significance into the market's over-all showing. About the only economic news of the day, in fact, was something that didn't happen.

New York's Citibank kept its prime lending rate unchanged at 21½. In so doing, it declined to match a reduction to 20½ percent posted earlier in the week by San Francisco's Wells Fargo Bank and Chase Manhattan of New York.

The daily tally on the NYSE showed about five gainers for every three stocks that declined, and the exchange's composite index rose 0.33 to 78.28.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 18.57 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials gained 0.84 to 155.32, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 0.69 at 136.57.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index picked up 1.72 to 354.22. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed at 201.28, up 1.14.

$195 Million Sale Reported

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Allegheny Ludlum Industries sold its specialty steel division to local investors for $195 million, rejecting at the last moment a bid by Dallas financier and football team owner Clint Murchison Jr.

"As negotiations for closing (with Murchison's group) neared the deadline, management pressures arose for the sale of the specialty steel company to Pittsburgh-based investors, and that was the route finally taken," said Allegheny Ludlum in a statement Friday.

George W. Tippins, president of a Pittsburgh-area machinery company that bears his name, is the principal in the purchase group.

Allegheny Ludlum's shareholders voted Tuesday to approve the sale of the steel division so the company could diversify into areas that would bring a better return on investment, a company spokesman said.

Murchison, who owns the Dallas Cowboys football team and also has interests in oil, real estate and television, said he understood the pressure to sell to local investors.

Ann Spell's Turned Her Life Around

She and their two sons stayed on in a shabby tenant house miles out in the country with no car, no phone and little hope for the future.

Ann applied for and was granted Aid to Dependent Children assistance through Pitt County Social Services. She soon began receiving $183 a month with which to pay utilities, buy wood or coal, and buy food that wasn't covered by Food Stamps.

"I found out," she said, "that living on welfare is just existing. There was no money for a car or telephone, no extra money for clothes, not much contact with the outside world. My sons, Billy Ray and Jeff, went to school and came home on the school bus, but I couldn't go anywhere unless someone came and got me and I hated to ask. What I end up doing, especially in the winter, was cleaning up the house real fast and then spending the rest of the day watching television. I hated the way I felt inside, but I didn't know what to do to change anything. I felt like I was asleep having a bad dream and just didn't know how to wake myself up."

"I'd worked as a nurse's aide in Richmond back soon after I was married, but I understood that, by that time, you could do that kind of work only if you had a high school education and I didn't. Besides, I wondered how I'd get to and from a public job if I had one."

Ann's not much of a talker, but a friend began to take note of her hopeless feelings and to try to get her to talk about them. She suggested that Ann look into a high school equivalency test preparation course at Pitt Community College. Another friend got wind of the the jist of the conversations and began to encourage her, too, and even took her out to see Charles Dickens at Pitt Community.

Dickens, who coordinates the Human Resources Development program, told her that another HRD class would start in June and that, she, no doubt, would qualify. The friend said she'd get Ann back and forth to the eight weeks of classes designed to help people earn high school equivalency and give them the skills and confidence needed to enter or re-enter the world of work.

"I'll never forget that first day," Ann said. "I was so nervous. All the girls in the class looked so much younger than I am (Ann turned 38 this past Friday) and all of them seemed so self-confident and said they hadn't lacked much finishing high school. I felt so out of place. If Mrs. Hazel Barrow, Mr. Dickens and A. J. Tyson hadn't been so nice, I probably wouldn't have gone back."

"Ann was shy," Mrs. Barrow recalls. "We couldn't get her to say anything at first. But little by little, she opened up and we found out how capable she is and how motivated she was to use that capability. We now feel that's she's probably the most remarkable student we've ever had. She embodies all the qualities we try to foster in our program and has used these qualities to turn her life around."

Ann was part of the Aug. 8, 1979 HRD graduating class. She remembers that she felt good to have the program behind her, but a little fearful for the future, because the job prospect contacts she'd made as part of the program had not yet been fruitful. She still felt she wanted to be a nurse's aide or do some other work in a hospital or nursing home atmosphere. She had applied at a number of places, including Greenville Villa Nursing Home.

Mrs. Shelby Brannon, then Director of Nursing at Greenville Villa, called her in late September and asked her to come to work in early October.

"Ann is one of our most valued employees," Greenville Villa Medical Services Director Janette Moody said. "She does fantastic work, always arrives early, and is never absent without very good reason. I wouldn't trade her for anything. She cares for some of our sickest patients and does a terrific job."

"I like my work," Ann said. "I think of every person I care for as special and treat every one just like I'd treat someone in my own family."

During this special year, Ann has had her family heartaches. Her grandmother who helped rear her, Mrs. Nellie Shelley, died just before she began work. Her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, died in March. Her grandfather who helped rear her, the Rev. Herbert Shelley, died in June of this year, and her father-in-law, Joseph Spell, died Dec. 9.

Every other area of her life has improved, though. She had a phone installed, with her friend co-signing, while she was still in the HRD program. Another friend gave her a good used car. "All my relatives couldn't believe that one," she remembers with amusement. "'Nobody gives you a car,' they said. But here it is. It's a 1964 Plymouth, not pretty to look at any more and with a lot of miles on it, but it's a good reliable car and it's made the difference in whether I can get out and go to work, go to church, go visit friends and relatives, take my aunt to buy groceries, take the boys to school events, do all the things I'd always wanted to do, but couldn't."

About as month after she started working, Ann, at the urging of a friend, went to see local realtor, Mrs. Winnie Evans. She'd heard that she might be able to assess whether she'd qualify for an FHA house loan. During all the time previous, she'd been looking for a house to rent, but had been unsuccessful in finding one within her price range that the owner would rent to a woman with two children.

Mrs. Evans listened to Ann's description of her situation, verified her employment, and took her to the FHA office here. Walter Everett, the office manager at that time, reviewed her situation and said she'd qualify for a hardship loan because of the unsafe condition of the house in which she and her children were living at that time.

The wait for the loan was long, but Mrs. Evans already had a house lined up for her. With $500 earnest money borrowed from friends and paid back well in advance of the closing of the loan, the arrangements were made for Ann to take up payments on a house near Fountain, the community near which she was reared. Friends and relatives helped her and her sons move in in May, 1980.

"Our house is beautiful!" she said. "It's the coming true of a dream I'd never dared let myself have. There's a bedroom for each of the boys and one for me, a nice kitchen, a place to wash clothes, and it's warm and dry and has running water and a bathroom — all things we didn't have before."

"We haven't gone through a winter there yet," she said. "But I don't think it's going to cost me so much. The boys and I are gone a lot, with them in school and me working, and at bedtime we turn the heat way back and wrap up in quilts I used to make during those long days of staying at home. I won't ever get a clothes dryer. I love hanging out clothes. And I'm putting in my freezer all the food I can get hold of this year. I've frozen a lot of sweet potatoes and collards and corn. Next summer I'm going to have a garden and really fill it up."

Her pay as a nurse's aide isn't much over minimum wage, but she feels her fringe benefits are good and with the hardship FHA loan, she is assured that her house payment will always be in line with whatever she's earning.

There still is not a lot left over for extras, but there's much more than there used to be. Ann's an expert at money management, at shopping for bargains in stores and at yard sales, and at refusing to buy on credit or create any debts she cannot pay. "For the first time, my boys and I have a good place to live," she said. "A place where I can invite people home and be proud.

"For the first time in my life, I feel good about myself and thankful to God Who I know wants only good in my life. He's shown me this by letting so many opportunities open up for me in the last year and a half. I thank Him many times every day and love every minute of what I'm doing," she said.

Her job as a nurse's aide at Greenville Villa has been a major factor in Ann Spell's new more prosperous and fulfilling way of life. She takes the pulse of a favorite patient, Mrs. Nancy Dennis.

Psychologists Give Resolution Advice

BY STEVE GILLIAM

GREENSBORO — New Year's resolutions are for keeping, not for breaking, but it takes more than a little planning, effort and work to make them stick all year long.

Dr. Rosemery Nelson

Facing the fact may be the key to losing the 10 pounds or kicking the two-pack-a-day habit that's been topping your resolution list, according to two behavorial psychologists at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

"There's nothing magic about New Year's resolutions and it's no easier to lose weight, quit smoking or anything else after the resolution is made," said Dr. Rosemery O. Nelson, a professor in UNC-G's Department of Psychology. "The goals are made but the effort is not, and that's why the resolutions often fail."

Dr. Nelson and Dr. Scott Lawrence, an associate professor, believe that most people who resolve to do better are sincere. The hitch comes in translating their goals into action that will last.

"The best predictor of future behavior is past behavior," said Dr. Lawrence. "If a person hasn't been able to make good on his resolutions, then he probably hasn't thought through how he'll accomplish the tasks."

One reason that people can't keep their promises is that they often make too many, with most of them being self-improvements in which the person isn't really interested.

"If you start out the new year with 10 resolutions, the chances are good that you won't be able to keep any of them for very long," said Lawrence. "It's best to pick one thing that you really want to accomplish as a goal. New Year's resolutions are very cheap if people aren't going to work at keeping them."

Dr. Nelson noted that some people are better than others at keeping their resolutions and added that they practice what psychologists call "rule-governed behavior."

"These are people who actually have trouble breaking rules they make for themselves, whether the rules come as New Year's resolutions or some other form," she said. "They have the ability to rigidly follow the rules they set for themselves. Population-wise, though, they are a very small number."

People who are serious about their resolutions, Nelson and Lawrence indicated, might want to follow a few suggestions to insure some success during the year. They are:

Resolve for the short term rather than for the entire year and break the resolution down into daily steps to follow. If weight loss is your goal and your diet calls for 1,200 to 1,500 calories daily, then stick to it.

Record your progress on a daily chart. This will give you an idea of how you're doing and also some of the problems that come up in keeping your resolution.

Make realistic resolutions. It's important that your goals can be achieved and that you get some positive feedback on your accomplishments, so don't strive for the impossible.

Try to set conditions under which you can accomplish your goals. If you want to be better organized at work, clean your office if it's messy and keep it straightened up. Or if you want to lose weight or stop smoking, join the appropriate organizations.

Publicize your resolution with your family or friends and ask them to remind you if they find you straying from the goals you've set.

Set periodic rewards for yourself. If you've gone a month without breaking a resolution, then treat yourself to an evening out, new clothes, a record album. Make it something you want but be sure you earn it by sticking to your resolution.

"Another thing to remember about resolutions is that people are bound only by tradition to make them at New Year's," said Dr. Nelson. "Trying to make changes in one's life by a calendar date is not necessarily the best way to proceed.

"Some people might want to postpone them a month or so until the holiday hassles have passed, since that time of the year is a little hectic. It might be a little easier to wait until things get back on an even keel."

Jane Frances Farley Married Here Saturday

MRS. TIMOTHY COLEMAN BARBER

Jane Frances Farley of Greenville and Timothy Coleman Barber of Hamlet exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 4 p.m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church here. The Rev. Lawrence P. Houston Jr. and the Rev. D. Raby Edwards, uncle of the bride, officiated at the single-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Roland Farley of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Coleman Barber of Hamlet.

Mrs. E. Robert Irwin, organist, and Barbara Lynn Hicks, soloist, provided wedding music.

The bride wore a formal-length gown of white chiffon designed with a portrait neckline outlined in scalloped clipped rosepoint lace and beaded with pearls that continued over the empire bodice and encircled the waistline. The sheer split bishop sleeves featured deep calla pointed cuffs and covered button closures. The modified A-line skirt was accentuated with pleated side panels and bordered with the lace that extended to an attached chapel length train. Both skirt and train were edged at the hemline with the matching lace. She wore a waltz-length mantilla bordered in clipped rosepoint chantilly lace and embroidered with pearls. She carried a nosegay of red roses, purple statice and baby's breath.

Mary Grayson Deyton of Greenville served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Joni Jay Buck, Elizabeth Alliaude White, and Laura Cherry White, all of Greenville. They wore honey matte jersey dresses featuring an open neckline, shirred bodice, and honey silk venise lace yoke and cap sleeves. They carried nosegays of red rosebuds, white miniature carnations, purple statice, and baby's breath.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Rodney Wilson Barber, brother of the bridegroom, John Blount Farley, brother of the bride of Greenville, Edward Whichard Scales Farley, brother of the bride, Edward McDowell Newsom of Durham, Stephen Melvin Lore of Smithfield, Robert Elvin Bruce of Hamlet, and William Miles Harter of Cleveland, Ohio.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at Brook Valley Country Club by the parents of the bride.

A bridesmaids' luncheon was given Friday by Elizabeth and Laura White and Mrs. Steven M. White.

Friday night a rehearsal dinner was held at the Greenville Rotary Club.

A wedding breakfast was given at the Ramada Inn Saturday morning by friends of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's College and Duke University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Duke University and is currently a second-year law student at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. The couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

Coltrane Vows Said

MRS. ROBERT EVERETT COLTRANE

Sharon Ann Serva and Robert Everett Coltrane were united in marriage Saturday at 4:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. Richard R. Gammon officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Serva of Greenville and the bridegroom of Big Spring, Tex., is the son of Mrs. Paul Hall of Cincinnati, Ohio and Mr. W.F. Coltrane Jr. of Charleston, S.C.

Warren Bass of Greenville played the organ for the ceremony and Shannon Gilley of Big Spring, Tex. served as interpreter.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silesta over white peau de soie. The gown was designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk floral Venise lace beaded with pearls continuing over the empire bodice. The long point d'esprit sheer sleeves were embellished with appliques of sculptured Venise lace and scattered with lace motifs, finished at the cuffs with matching lace.

The flared accordian pleated skirt and attached chapel length train were bordered at the hemline with scalloped silk Venise lace.

She wore an imported braid garden hat trimmed with re-embroidered alencon lace in a scalloped design, beaded with pearls and rhinestones. One side to the brim was styled with hidden silk flowers, and matching flowers on the outside. The back of the hat was complemented with a pouf bow and streamers of illusion.

She carried a Williamsburg bouquet of white roses, red carnations and silk lily of the valley tied with lace streamers.

The matron of honor, Marian Serva sister-in-law of the bride from Hanau, Germany, wore a formal-length gown of Singapore teal embroidered lace over matching matte jersey. The neckline was designed with high ruffles and the bodice featured self fabric covered buttoned closure at center front. The full sheer lace sleeves were styled with ruffles at the cuffs. A rolled tie-sash encircled the waistline from which fell the gathered skirt. She carried a Williamsburg bouquet of Christmas red carnations and holly with lace streamers.

The mothers of the bride and groom wore formal length gowns and were remembered with white rose corsages.

Keith Stephens of Greenville served as the best man and the usher was Sgt. Bruce E. Serva, brother of the bride from Hanau, Germany.

Following the ceremony there was a reception dinner at the Holiday Inn. The traditional first slice of cake was cut by the couple and music was played by Otto Dykstra. Mrs. Theresia Dixon presided at the guest register.

After a wedding trip through Charleston, S.C., New Orleans and Houston, Tx., the couple will live in Big Spring, Texas.

The bridegroom, who attended East Carolina University, is an interpreter for the deaf at South West Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring. The bride, who graduated from East Carolina University with a BA degree in special education, formerly taught in the Pitt County Schools in Exceptionalities.

Vicki Sue Cox, Mr. Heath Were Wed In Vanceboro

MRS. CARLTON GENE HEATH

VANCEBORO — Vicki Sue Cox and Carlton Gene Heath were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Buddy Sasser of Vanceboro.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hubert Cox Sr. of Vanceboro and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heath Jr. of Vanceboro.

A program of wedding music was presented by Susan Lambert of Winterville. Beverly Seamster of Vanceboro sang "Love the World Away" accompanied by Alton Smith of Vanceboro on guitar. The Rev. Sasser sang "The Wedding Prayer." The bride sang "You Took My Heart By Surprise" to the bridegroom.

The bride's dress designed by her aunt was a formal gown of candlelight qiana created with a lace bodice. The queen victorian neckline and waist featured ivory satin bows. She carried a silk bouquet of pink and candlelight sweetheart roses accented with candlelight stephanotis and matching streamers. The bride's headpiece featured candlelight stephanotis.

Beverly Seamster of Vanceboro, maid of honor, wore a formal gown of burgandy qiana. The dress featured a blouson top and sunburst pleated skirt. She carried a nosegay of silk roses in pink, burgandy and candlelight with matching streamers.

Bridesmaids were Susie Cox of Vanceboro, sister-in-law of the bride, Dianne Carawan of Vanceboro and Vicki Powell of New Bern. Their dresses and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

Starla Adams of Vanceboro, cousin of the bride, wore a pink formal dress and a candlelight silk rose corsage. She carried a basket with thank you scrolls from the bride and bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Jimmmy Cox of Vanceboro, brother of the bride, Mike Heath of Vanceboro, brother of the bridegroom, and Carlton Heath of New Bern.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of lavender qiana with a flared sunburst pleated skirt accented with a dark lavender sash. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of silesta pink accented with silesta sequin trim featuring a matching jacket. Both wore corsages of silk candlelight roses.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Lennie Adams of Ayden, and the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Ella Hudson of Greenville, wore corsages of silk candlelight roses.

The wedding was directed by Shirley Adams of Vanceboro, aunt of the bride. Johanna Cox of Vanceboro, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest register.

A cake cutting was held Friday night following the wedding rehearsal in the church fellowship hall. Sandi Powers of Fayetteville poured punch and Shirley Adams served the wedding cake.

The bride is a graduate of West Craven High School and Mount Olive College. She is employed with the Vanceboro Pharmacy, Vanceboro. The bridegroom graduated from West Craven High School also, and is employed with National Spinning Company of Washington. After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside near Vanceboro.

Found at last! A new recipe for a delicious company dessert that actually improves when it is made several days ahead of serving and stored in the refrigerator. From conversations with a good many cooks I know they want just that. So here it is: a Chocolate Peanut Chip Torte. A lovely dessert to behold and to savor.

CHOCOLATE PEANUT CHIP TORTE

6 large eggs, separated
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1-3rd cup all-purpose flour
1-3rd cup packaged plain bread crumbs
12-ounce package (1½ cups) peanut-butter flavor chips, finely chopped
1 pint heavy cream
¼ cup unsweetened cocoa

Line the bottom of a 13 by 9 by 1¾-inch baking pan with wax paper cut to fit exactly.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, beat the egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually beat in 1-3rd cup of the sugar until stiff peaks form; reserve.

Without washing beaters, in the smaller mixer bowl, beat egg yolks until thickened and pale yellow; gradually beat in 1-3rd cup of the remaining sugar until thick and ivory color. At low speed, beat in the vanilla, flour and bread crumbs until evenly distributed. With a rubber spatula, fold in 2-3rds cup of the chips and about 1 cup of the reserved egg whites; now fold this mixture into the remaining egg whites. Turn into the prepared pan and spread evenly. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until the surface springs back when lightly touched — 30 minutes.

Place torte in pan upside down on a wire rack. Cool completely. Turn torte in pan right side up. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges; turn out of pan onto a cutting board; remove wax paper. With a long serrated knife, using a sawing motion, cut the torte lengthwise in half, then cut each half horizontally to form 4 thin layers.

In the clean, dry large bowl of the electric mixer beat together the cream and cocoa until soft peaks form; gradually beat in the remaining 1-3rd cup sugar until stiff peaks form.

Cover the edges of a serving platter with strips of wax paper; place one layer of the torte in the center so its edges just cover the inner edges of the paper. Spread the layer with about 2-3rds cup of the cocoa-cream; repeat layering and filling; frost top and sides with the remaining cocoa-cream. Slightly and carefully tilt torte on platter and sprinkle sides with the remaining chips, patting some of them down with your fingertips. Remove the wax paper strips. Cover with a tent of foil. Store in the refrigerator. The torte will be at its tenderest best after several days of storage.

Makes about 12 servings.

Recycle Shower Curtains

Sew bibs for baby or aprons for young "artists" from an old plastic shower curtain, suggests Judieth Mock, extension clothing specialist, North Carolina State University.

Binding around the edges and ribbon for ties add a decorative touch, the specialist points out.

The recycled garments can be wiped clean with a sudsy sponge or machine washed. Remember, plastic articles should only be dried on the "air" setting of an automatic dryer.

Dear Abby

Poignant Memories Among 20,000 Answers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: I asked my readers where they were on Dec. 7, 1941, when they learned the news of Pearl Harbor. Some interesting excerpts from nearly 20,000 responses:

"I was a first-class petty officer aboard the U.S.S. Oklahoma at Pearl Harbor. Abby, 445 of my mates were killed on that ship, so I have no trouble remembering where I was."

LOUIS C. TEMPLETON, EL CAJON, CALIF.

"I was an Army wife in the hospital at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, near Pearl Harbor. I had given birth to our first baby on December 3. When the bombs started to fall, we thought it was bombing practice at Hickam Field. A hysterical nurse rushed into the maternity ward to tell us that we were being attacked by the Japanese! All the new mothers wondered if our babies were safe and if we'd ever see our husbands again. Soon they started bringing in the wounded and dying, and we were all put to work making gauze pads. What a nightmare!"

PHYLLIS M. WALEN, TAMPA, FLA.

"I was a very young girl, hiding in our basement in Leige, Belgium, listening to the radio. Had we been caught listening to the BBC we might have been shot, as we were under German occupation. Although the attack on Pearl Harbor was infamous, because of it the U.S.A. entered the war, which was the beginning of our freedom."

MICHELINE STONE, MUKILTEO, WASH.

"I was a 15-year-old girl, sitting in a theatre in Buffalo, N.Y., watching a movie called 'King's Row,' starring Ronald Reagan."

GRACE BROWN, HENRIETTA, N.Y.

"We were playing bingo in the basement of a church when a woman ran in and told us that somebody had attacked Pearl Harbor. The dummy next to me said, 'She was probably asking for it. I wonder what she was wearing.'"

SYLVIA IN SYRACUSE

"How could I forget Dec. 7, 1941? That's the day I lost my only brother and my fiance. They were both on the U.S.S. Arizona. They didn't have a fighting chance."

MINNEAPOLIS MEMORY

"I was a quartermaster on a merchant tanker off the coast of New Jersey. I was steering the ship when the chief mate came running to ask, 'Where the hell is Pearl Harbor?' Believe it or not, nobody knew."

THOMAS W. ROE, AUSTIN, TEXAS

"I was in a pal's rec room in Chicago attending a meeting of the Youth Committee Against War. We were planning our Midwestern conference when the host's mother excitedly called us upstairs to hear President Roosevelt announce on the radio that we were at war with Japan! We formally voted to disband, stood for a silent prayer and left with the hope that perhaps after the war was over we would try again for peace in our time. We had failed."

EMIL J. DOUBEK, ORLAND PARK, ILL.

"What a break! As past president of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, Inc., I ask you to spread the word that we're having our 40th anniversary meeting in Honolulu in 1981! We have 8,000 members and welcome more. Membership is open to all Army, Navy and Air Corps personnel who were at Pearl Harbor on that day of infamy. For information write to me: HANK SHANE, Cmdr., USN-Ret., 7961 1st Ave. South, St. Petersburg, Fla. 33707."

"I was 19 and living in Yoder, Wyo., when I first heard the news of Pearl Harbor. I cancelled my plans to enter the university and immediately enlisted in the U.S. Army, where I was to spend the next four years. I served in Italy with the famous 442nd Regiment, which was made up of Japanese-Americans. It was known as the "Go for Broke" regiment — the most decorated unit in American history. Daniel Inouye, who later became a U.S. senator from Hawaii, was a member of that unit. He lost an arm in battle. Respectfully,"

HASHIME SAITO, TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR HASHIME: And to our everlasting shame, approximately 100,000 decent, law-abiding American citizens were held in concentration camps for the duration of World War II. Their "crime"? They were of Japanese descent.

DEAR ABBY: My father died of a massive coronary a year ago. He was 73 and enjoyed good health until his death. Since then, my mother, also 73, has been carrying on as if she were the only woman in the world to lose a husband. She had a good life with Dad and should be grateful she had him for 52 years and that he died without suffering.

My mother is driving me crazy! She lives near me, and spends most of her time here whining and saying she has nothing to live for, and that one of these days she will take a handful of pills and end it all. When she's not here, she's on the phone complaining. She is not disabled in any way and had many friends when Dad was alive, but she doesn't want to see them now. All she wants to do is make me miserable. She won't even turn on her TV. She'd rather cry and feel sorry for herself. I have a brother, but he's no help.

Her constant theme now is, "I can't live alone," which I interpret to mean she would like to live with my husband and me. If she ever did, that would be the end of our marriage!

My husband is thinking of asking for a transfer out of town. What else can we do?

MOTHER TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: Your mother needs professional help in coping with her loss. There are counselors and support groups in almost every community. Call your community mental health center and senior citizens' services and find out what's available. Support from those who have had the same experience can be enormously healing.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 24 and always felt I had a lot of common sense as well as being fairly intelligent, but apparently I was wrong.

People who cared about me were constantly after me to stop smoking — not for their sake, but for mine. My standard answer was, "I have a lot on my mind right now, major decisions to make, etc., but as soon as things calm down I'll quit smoking." Meanwhile I was smoking 2½ packs a day. Not until I read your article about National Smokeout Day did I realize I wasn't being honest with myself. It's easy to say, "I'll quit tomorrow." But if you can quit tomorrow, why not today? After reading your column, I quit cold turkey.

So thanks for making me see the light. There are enough things out there over which you have no control that can take your life. Why deliberately ask for it?

FORMER SMOKER

DEAR FORMER SMOKER: Don't thank me. I merely tossed you a rope. You caught it. Congratulations, and hang in there!

Out-of-town wedding guests? Here at Anne Marie's we suggest you put some special thought into making these guests feel especially welcome. For instance, you might send the travelers maps of the routes to your ceremony and reception. Hand draw the maps or have them made up by a printer—then mail them as soon as your guests RSVP. You might also privide maps of your city, along with folders of any local tourist attractions you think your guests may enjoy while they are in town. They'll thank you for such thoughtfulness.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There isn't a woman in America who cannot empathize with the foreign car import problem.

For years, women have been battling the foreign competition of sex symbols who arrive hourly on our shores to rival our American-made models.

We were so naive we didn't realize it was ever a battle — until we had lost it.

Here we were complacently turning out Mona Freemans from Baltimore, Md., Annette Funicellos from Utica, N. Y., and the little compact number that was so popular, the Debbie Reynolds from El Paso, Tex., when along cam two Italian imports: Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida. The country went crazy. Everyone wanted to own a Sophia Loren or a Gina Lollobrigida.

Before we knew what had hit us, France sent us Brigitte Bardot, Switzerland shipped out Ursula Andress and even Great Britain, with whom we had thought ourselves allies, produced a model tht was to become an American classic: Elizabeth Taylor.

The imprts made no sense. They were bigger, harder to handle, breathed heavily in love scenes. But they had stunning trunks, sleek lines, parked easily and had good trade-in at the box office. And that's obviously what American men were looking for.

At any rate, they kept coming: Julie Christie, India; Liv Ullman, Japan; Jacqueline Bisset, England; and Catherine Deneuve, France. But the day American women really faced up to their competition was the morning we looked around to discover the streets were full of Swedish stars: Ann-Margret, Signe Hasso, Ingrid Bergman, Anita Ekberg and Britt Ekland.

There was a meeting called in upper New York State in which a concerned American woman announced, "We really must do something about all these Bosomy Boat People."

There were suggestions to export Teresa Brewer to Japan and expand a Ruth Buzzi plant in Westerly, R. I., but we knew what the real answer wa. We had to start producing models that looked like the foreign imports.

I am happy to say it has taken a while, but we are making progress. We have an Angie Dickinson, a Loni Anderson, and a Farrah Fawcett who look Swedish, a Raquel Welch who could pass for Italian and a Bo Derek who could be the top of any line anywhere.

Is it working? Is it working! You tell me! Who is Rula Lenska and why didn't she sell?

Engagement Announced

Mrs. Alberta Fisher of Newport News, Va. and Dr. Richard E. Snyder of Poquoson, Va., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Ellen, to George Leslie King, son of Mrs. Carolyn D. King of Greenville. A Jan. 10 wedding is planned.

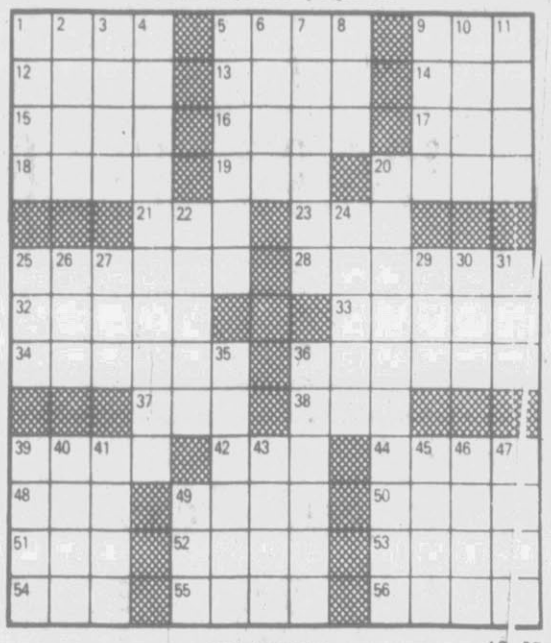
12-27

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



CRYPTOQUIP 12-27

E N A M N A R D J G L V D H F M G J E N A ' M E G A H G A D L A V R F B B D H B D N H

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — DEEP SNOW WILL DRIFT F 'AST INTO WILD PATTERNS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals L

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Have Answers As To Cheeses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Of all the tests you've ever taken, this could be the cheesiest.

Question: Of all cheese produced in the United States, what percentage is Swiss? Mozzarella? American cheddar?

According to Department of Agriculture figures, cheddar accounts for 43 percent, mozzarella 16 percent and Swiss 6 percent.

Wisconsin remains the largest producer by a wide margin followed by Minnesota.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Because of planetary influences you could run into some problems of a minor nature early in the day, but conditions return to normal later. Conserve your energies.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to understand the expectations of those who have power over your affairs today. Gain more prestige in public matters.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is fine for studying new interests and making plans for the future. Show more thoughtfulness for others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Finish that work you started and then be off to the fascinating activities that appeal to you. Sidestep an opponent.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can work out a difficult problem with the help of others early in the day. Plan the new week wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Attend to routine chores early in the day so you'll have time for social activities later. Show others you have poise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Daytime hours are best for being with good friends and relatives, and reserve personal duties for the evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Pay more attention to family members and have more harmony at home. Make plans to have more abundance in the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take those extra steps that are needed to gain your personal aims. Sidestep one who likes to impose on you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try to please close ties today instead of worrying about personal affairs. Engage in favorite hobby.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Daytime hours are best for handling personal matters. Schedule social activities for the coming week.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of private affairs early in the day and then join congenials at recreation you enjoy. Have a delightful time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You need to apply yourself more to gain your personal aims at this time. Show more consideration for the one you love.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who will want to please others and will be willing to obey all rules and regulations in order to do so. Direct education along entertainment lines and service to others for best results in lifetime.

Longer-Lasting Christmas Tree

NEW YORK (UPI) — With proper care, a Christmas tree will keep indoors for up to three weeks, says Hada Lugo de Slosser of Cornell University's Extension Service.

That care includes a plentiful water supply at all times and a location away from heat sources such as fireplaces, radiators and stoves and television sets.

Mrs. de Slosser says a tree in a warm room absorbs one to two quarts of water a day. To allow it to absorb keep a high moisture content, she recommends making a fresh cut across the trunk at least one inch above the old cut before you set the tree up in a fairly good-sized water reservoir stand.

You can also use a commercial additive designed to retard needle drop and increase fire resistance — but experts at Cornell's Department of Natural Resources say most such products have proven only marginally effective at best.

Food Budget Stretcher Tips

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Stretching your food budget gets harder every day. New tips that help get scarcer. Here are few from the new house organ published by a major food manufacturer:

—Plan a week's menus at a time, and select meats first, since they represent a third to a half of most food budgets.

—Take a copy of the menus with you to the market. Unadvertised specials might save you money if you can substitute one food for another.

—Don't cash your paycheck at the market — the extra cash can make you extravagant.

—Having two family members shop with separate baskets may save time but it may also cost more because of impulse purchases.

These tips are from Libby Life, an employe publication of Libby, McNeill & Libby, Inc.

Sowing Wild Oats Reaps Displeasure Of Amish

By RICH KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer

INTERCOURSE, Pa. (AP) — The Sunday afternoon sun gleamed brightly off the red Ford van, parked off a macadam lane near here in the heart of Amish farm country.

Inside, two Amish youths, dressed in the traditional black pants and white shirt garb of the Old Order sect, sat in all the splendor of contemporary adolescence.

The van's dashboard was covered with shag carpeting, a "Keep on Trucking" poster adorned a sidewall behind the seats, foam dice dangled from the rearview mirror and a CB radio and eight-track tape player were tucked under the dash.

The image, no doubt, would have startled tourists who come here hoping for glimpses of the quaint Amish society: straw-hatted farmers working their fields with mule-drawn plows and families huddled in black horse-drawn carriages clip-clopping along the two-lane roads.

The Old Order Amish, who number about 5,500 in this farm area of southeastern Pennsylvania, shun cars, electricity and other modern trappings out of a belief that "old is best."

The intrusion of cars is a thorn thrust into the Amish community by its young seeking to sow wild oats before embracing a simple life of dedicated farm or manual labor, interviews with current and former members of the community reveal.

"A lot of Amish have cars," a youthful driver says matter-of-factly. "My parents don't like it. But they got over it. They can't keep bugging you. They don't want to send you away from home. They know we'll get wild and won't come back."

Church leaders, both to their congregations and to individual youths, try to dissuade them from toying with modern ways.

Parents, some of whom either look the other way or are afraid to press the issue too hard, hope whatever charm their young find in roaring down farm roads in hopped up cars will pass.

One former Amishman, who asked not to be identified, explains parents' feelings this way: "We have to tolerate immature behavior with the expectation they'll eventually grow up and become mature and responsible. It's nothing more than normal adolescent behavior."

Although Amish youths have been attracted to cars for years, their rites took a harsh turn earlier this year.

A number of the youths took to playing a game with the cars that alarmed both Amish and non-Amish alike. One youth would perch on the hood of a car while another drove it at breakneck speed across a field and then slammed on the brakes. The object was to see how far the youth on the hood would fly through the air.

The wild driving sometimes was mixed with drinking.

One 16-year-old Amish girl, hanging from the window of a speeding car, fell and was killed.

The incidents drew the attention of residents outside the community and were reviewed in an extensive story by a local newspaper, the Lancaster New Era.

Fearing for the well-being of their young and for damage to their community's image as a simple, Christian fellowship, Amish bishops admonished their congregations to clamp down on their children's joy riding, drinking and carryings-on.

"That was effective," says an Amish minister, who adds that church leaders constantly work with the young people to keep them on the straight and narrow.

Seated in his plainly furnished kitchen one night recently, with a hissing gas lamp providing the only light in the house, the minister says only a small percentage of the community's teenagers were involved in the renegade behavior.

"The biggest amount of young folks are respectable," he says.

Parents shoulder much of the blame, he says, because the young are not church members and therefore are beyond the reach of the bishops.

"To give them more than they get at home is pretty hard," he says. "Absolutely it's the responsibility of the parents."

The minister says he's heard the argument about sowing wild oats, but doesn't much like it.

"You have to look at it that way; it's a human fact. But in my family, we didn't talk about sowing wild oats. My father said always sow good oats."

He says the situation is out of control when local police authorities become involved, as they did this year, mainly because of underage drinking.

"It shouldn't be that way; what happened here was bad," he says.

Writing in one of his many books on the Amish, John Hostetler, a Temple University sociology professor, said acceptance of the automobile would lead to a breakdown of the tight-knit Amish community. It would "open the floodgates of social and cultural change," he wrote in his book, "Amish Life."

Ironically, the size of the Lancaster County Amish community has given its youth the cover they need to sample life behind the wheel, several sources say.

"We just don't know as many of the young people as we used to," says the minister, noting that the Amish population in the county has doubled over the last 20 years.

In smaller Amish enclaves, such as in Mifflin and Snyder counties in Pennsylvania, everyone knows each other and flings in a car would neither go unnoticed nor long be tolerated, says one former Amishman.

"In no way could this kind of activity occur in small communities," he says. "The peer pressure is great in small communities."

Although of concern to parents and church leaders, the car antics may in a way help the Amish community survive by serving as a safety valve, says Merle Good, a local author who was raised a Mennonite and runs a center to further understanding of the Mennonite and Amish ways of life. The Amish are a breakaway sect of the Mennonites.

"It's not a new thing for Amish young people to run around," he says. "It's a place where the steam is let off ... It helps maintain the tradition. It's very much like average teen life."

Sees Hope For Stroke Victims With Surgery

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit neurosurgeon says there may be new hope for stroke victims — cerebral bypass surgery.

Dr. James I. Ausman, chairman of the neurosurgery and neurology department at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, is part of a delegation of neurosurgeons involved in a five-year study to determine whether bypass surgery can help stroke patients.

The operation could prevent further strokes in those who already have experienced a minor one and avert strokes in those who show warning signs that indicate a stroke may occur, Ausman says.

The disease is one of the nation's top killers, claiming the lives of more than 200,000 Americans and costing the country more than $12 billion each year, according to Ausman.

"The general opinion of the public is that once you have a stroke you're through," Ausman said. "That's not true and there's abundant evidence to prove it."

Ausman and 67 other surgeons met in Detroit recently to assess progress in the $5 million, five-year study of 1,000 stroke-prone patients.

In what is known as the International Cerebral Revascularization Project, the surgeons are treating half of their patients with the best medical treatment available and the other half with the same treatment supplemented by the cerebral operation.

The operation, first developed in 1967, involves the microsurgical connection of a scalp artery to a brain artery using suture materials thinner than a human hair.

The procedure, which can last as long as 12 hours, provides an alternative course for blood which could not otherwise travel to the brain because of cholesterol-blocked channels.

Ausman said more than 800 patients had been included in the study since it began two years ago. The surgeons hope to find additional patients within the next year and complete their work by 1986.

"Early observations by many doctors were that the patients would be better and the warning signs of stroke would go away with the operation," Ausman said. "This study is to see if those observations will stand up under detailed scientific analysis."

The surgeon said the operation had gone through "years of controversy and agony" because no study was conducted before it was introduced.

"If the operation shows itself to be of value, there are potentially another 50,000 patients who could receive the operation each year," he said.

Ausman estimates more than 90,000 bypass operations will be performed in 1980, including those within and outside the scope of the study.

"We don't want to create false hope for those who suffered a disabling stroke years ago," he said. "But for recent stroke victims there is new hope if people recognize their symptoms and seek help."

Symptoms include temporary weakness, numbness, loss of speech and dimmed vision or blindness.

Booklet On Solar Uses

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — If you are considering a solar water heating system for your home, a free government booklet may help you make up your mind.

Among other things, the booklet shows how to estimate fuel savings in gallons and cash for your particular home and area of the country.

Heating water accounts for about 20 percent of home energy usage — and in one year, a solar unit can meet 50-70 percent of a household's demand for hot water, says a consumer newsletter from the General Services Administration. Savings, it adds, can run as high as $100 for the first year.

The free booklet describes how solar water heaters work, and includes guidance on choosing the right solar energy system for your particular needs and a dealer-installer if you decide solar suits you.

To obtain a copy of "Is Solar Water Heating Right for You?", send a postcard with your request to Consumer Informtion Center, Dept. 600J, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

The booklet includes a coupon for ordering a more detailed government book, "Hot Water from the Sun", available for $4.75 a copy from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Safer Water Drive Begun

NEW YORK (AP) — The United Nations has launched a 10-year program to provide safe drinking water for everyone.

U.N. experts say a quarter of the earth's 4 billion people now drink dirty water and some 2 billion have no toilet.

It estimates that up to 80 percent of diseases in developing countries could be prevented by clean water and improved sanitation. The cost of this program will be $30 billion annually for the next 10 years.

After a club lead, we ended up down one when trumps failed to break. Six hearts was on ice. East thought that West had an off-shape two no trump opening bid, and maintained that, somewhere along the line, West could have clarified matters by supporting hearts. West claimed that, in effect, he had supported hearts at every opportunity—every bid he made was a cue-bid agreeing hearts as trumps. Who was right? —R. Gonzales, San Francisco, Calif.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—West bid his hand perfectly. With his wealth of controls he was interested in a grand slam and he wanted his partner to place full value on a card such as the queen of diamonds, if he held it.

Perhaps it is easier to understand the logic of the situation if we analyze it in depth. When East bids three hearts over two no trump, West knows nothing about his partner's hand other than the fact that it contains at least five hearts. West does not have many options available over his partner's reponse. He can bid three no trump, denying three hearts; he can raise to four hearts, showing at least three hearts but denying interest in slam unless East has a goodish hand. Or he can cue-bid to show heart support and a maximum no trump with slam interest.

While in terms of high cards West has only a minimum two no trump opener, in support of hearts he has a ruffing value, and his hand is laden with aces and kings, making it worth more than its actual face value (by now we all know that aces and kings are undervalued slightly in the point count). So he confirmed slam interest by cue-bidding, which, at the same time, agreed hearts as the trump suit.

No matter what West does thereafter, hearts remains the agreed trump suit. Note that six hearts can't be defeated even though West's two jacks are wasted values. Make them the queen of diamonds, and a grand slam is a laydown despite the fact that there is a combined high-card count of only 31 in the two hands.

Fire Protection Changes Come After Many Dead

By JACK KNEECE
United Press International

Fire began on the lower floors, raced up the elevator shafts like a living thing, spread room by room, burning paint from the walls, carpeting, furniture and spreading panic like billowing smoke among the screaming guests.

The blaze was in a "fireproof hotel."

"People began leaping from the building, preferring this death to one by fire," recalled the second person to run to the scene.

That was Ed Rogers, then an unemployed newsman. He remembered he had been reading a Somerset Maugham novel when he heard the first siren. He dropped the book, raced to the fire.

But the fire was not the MGM Grand fire in Las Vegas that killed 84, nor the Stouffer's fire north of Manhattan that killed 26 — both recent fires that created a flurry of demands for tougher fire ordinances.

This was the Winecoff Hotel fire in Atlanta on December 7, 1946 that killed 119 people. Rogers — who won his job with United Press International by covering that fire — said it also created a rash of calls around the nation for stiff new fire regulations.

"I was the second man on foot to arrive at the scene," recalled Rogers. "I have many vivid memories of that fire that I can never forget. Trapped people started a sheet rope, but so many climbed on it that it broke, leaving one woman hanging in the air.

"Finally she let go. When firemen got out a net, it attracted so many wild jumps they finally had to hide it. Although there were many ladders, only two were below the sheet rope.

"And there were so many bodies raining through the air that some hit one of the ladders, catapulting a fireman, who rotated like a marionette through the air and through a canvas awning.

"I'll never forget one man pleading for a ladder. His room filled with smoke. Then it glowed. Then there were flames. Then the flames raced up his suit. Then the fire enveloped his head like a halo. Finally the only thing visible was his hand at the window."

What has changed since the Winecoff fire, the MGM Grand fire, the Stouffer's fire? How have modern fire codes kept pace with modern construction techniques, new materials and new technology?

To find out, UPI conducted a nationwide survey.

The survey shows a crazy-quilt pattern of fire codes that range from the strict and efficient to antiquated regulations of pre-World War II vintage.

Many of today's modern hotels, condominiums and high-rise apartment buildings — with sealed windows, plush carpeting, supposedly fire-proof stairwells and modern heating and air-conditioning — can instantly turn into giant chimneys that become efficient devices for rapidly killing the occupants by fire or smoke.

Modern plastics, nylon and acrylic carpeting, polyurethane foam cushions, built-in atriums, lax fire codes, grandfather-clause fire laws that permit existing buildings to violate new codes, inefficient or nonexistent sprinkler systems, a lack of smoke alarms and "it-can't happen here" attitudes make mass deaths in high-rise fires a growing problem around the nation. While the MGM Grand and Stouffer's Inn fires in recent weeks claimed 110 lives, there are 1,000 fires a month in hotels and motels around the nation. That's an average of over 33 a day. The annual loss is about $90 million, according to the U.S. Fire Administration.

"We lose 160 lives a year — double the loss of the MGM Grand fire," said USFA Director Gordon Vickery, "but we usually lose them in ones and twos and people don't pay much attention. It takes a disaster like this."

"It's unfortunate," said Fire Chief Ed Wilson of Kansas City, Mo., "but most of the changes in fire (protection) practices come on the stacks of charred bodies."

Wilson said the modern sealed-window construction quickly allows a fire to consume all the oxygen in a structure, leaving only smoke to asphyxiate those inside.

"This is a situation that makes it so very necessary to have air tanks in order to have breathable air. You get up on the 10th and 11th floor and you start breaking out windows — you've got shrapnel flying down all over the area."

In Atlanta, scene of the Winecoff fire, state legislators alarmed by the Las Vegas and New York fires are drafting legislation to provide for a statewide fire code. It includes tax incentives and requires sprinklers in big buildings.

In Las Vegas, some escaped from the roof of the structure by helicopter, but not enough could go on each trip.

McDonnell Douglas has developed a "flying fireman" platform that can, with a helicopter, remove 16 persons at a time. But a company spokesman said it has sold only one since its development in 1978 — to the city of Los Angeles.

In Florida, fire codes have been toughened considerably since 1974. But Miami and Miami Beach fire officials say there are deficiencies in many high-rises that could lead to tragedies.

"The potential for a major disaster is here," said assistant Miami Beach Fire Chief Bruniard Dorris. "We've got a large number high-rises, some of which meet only minimum fire code standards. And we have a lot of elderly residents, which increases the potential."

The Miami area standards went into effect in 1974. They require, for buildings three-stories or higher, sprinkler systems, fire alarms, smoke detectors, smoke-removal systems, hoses and hydrants on each floor, a public address system, and a control panel that pinpoints the location of the fire. It is close to an ideal set of regulations. Unfortunately, Dorris said older hotels account for a majority of those in the popular beach area, and he said they lack such sophisticated equipment.

When fire breaks out

Dade County, Fla., Fire Chief Edward Donaldson said people in a high-rise should always know where the exits are and that elevators are not fire exits.

He recommended — as did others around the nation — that high-rise dwellers feel the door knob. If it is hot, leave the door closed and wait for rescuers. If the hallways and exits are clear of smoke, leave quickly.

Donaldson went to Las Vegas to learn from the MGM experience. "Most of the people who perished in the MGM Grand did so because they left their rooms," he said.

Other firefighers advised filling bathtubs with water, soaking towels and using them to seal smoke out of rooms at doors and ventilators.

San Francisco Fire Chief Andrew Casper said, "We are starting a program of enforcement and have already sent to the city attorney's office information on 5 of the 10 high rises that are not in compliance with the strict fire prevention code passed by the 1977 legislature."

Casper said, in addition to sealing doors with wet towels, residents should, "even before they unpack, look for a second way out in an emergency... "Every room should have a notification plaque telling guests where to go and what to do."

High cost affects safety

Many modern hotel and high-rise building owners apparently resist installing modern safety devices because of increased costs.

Frank Parrick, estimator for the architectural firm of Skidmore Owings and Merrill in San Francisco, said, "There is a wide variation in costs of fire prevention methods. If you put in sprinklers, you are probably talking about $1.25 to $1.50 per square foot...

"Then there are elevator controls... that keep an elevator from stopping at a floor on which there is a fire."

"You are probably talking about somewhere in the neighborhood of $5 a square foot. That of course is just a guess, but it's an educated guess."

Many states are hesitant to require retrofitting older buildings with sophisticated equipment.

But Los Angeles Fire Chief Dick Olsen said California passed laws at the state level about five years ago requiring retrofit of fire systems in existing high-rises.

"In Los Angeles, we have 485 high-rises for which the fire department is in the process of ordering major revisions.

"They include enclosing stair shafts, checking alarm systems, the means of ventilating, windows and in some of the older high rises with long, dead-end corridors, a requirement that they be no longer than 20 feet without stair shafts or sprinklers and communications systems. "In new buildings, those built since 1974-75, they have to be fully sprinklered, but older buildings don't have to have the sprinklers."

Fighting high-rise fires

Olsen and other fire chiefs of major population centers have a well-orchestrated method of fighting high-rise fires. As many as 300 firefighters can answer a high-rise fire in Los Angeles.

"The first company to arrive goes to the floor on fire. The next one takes overall charge and sets up a lobby command.

"As other companies arrive, they take other responsibilities, set up a staging area two floors below the fire for men and equipment.

"Then we get into helicopter operations and it keeps continually expanding with the magnitude of the fire."

'It could happen here'

Honolulu, which has luxury hotels similar to the MGM Grand, sent two fire officials to study the Las Vegas fire.

They said there are similar conditions in Honolulu to those that led to the MGM disaster, especially in the Waikiki area.

"We don't want to frighten people, but it could happen here," said Fire Chief Boniface Aiu.

He said the conditions include lack of adequate alarm and sprinkler systems, stairwells that don't function properly and lack of effective evacuation plans.

Aiu said he would like to see early fire detection systems in all high-rises, with the smoke and heat-sensitive devices installed in every hotel room and linked to a central city fire alarm system.

He said it is important to have a sprinkler system on every floor, even if it means retrofitting.

In Little Rock, Ark., where construction has begun on a 19-story riverfront convention center, Mayor Webster Hubbell said, "We've gotten more calls about that lately than anything else." City director Myra Jones said, "We don't want to have happen to us what happened to them" in Las Vegas.

Capt. A.J. Leiker, head of the Denver, Colo. fire prevention bureau, said there are 258 high-rise buildings in Denver — most of which do not have sprinklers. He said there is no retroactive plan to install them.

Leiker said one thing firemen have to remember when answering a call to a high-rise is that some sealed windows must remain sealed in order for smoke evacuation systems to work properly.

In Newport, R.I., Fire Chief Paul Gagne asked for stricter fire safey measures at the 132-room Newport Treadway Inn after the MGM Grand fire. Manager Klaus Ihde said he will comply by adding either smoke detectors, heat detectors or a new zone alarm system.

To teach guests

Seattle, Wash., is in the midst of a hotel-building boom. Hilton, Sheraton, Western International and several smaller chains are putting up new luxury towers this year.

Although the last major high-rise fire was in an old hotel, the Ozark — the blaze killed 21 elderly people in 1970 — it led to a complete upgrading of the city's fire codes.

Despite this, Seattle Fire Marshal Bob Hansen, who visited the MGM fire scene, said the city's current standards are not good enough to prevent a similar catastrophe.

"We don't have a building that big in Seattle, but sure, something like that could happen here."

He said he will recommend improvements in the Seattle code and inspection procedures as soon as Nevada authorities complete their investigation of how the fire started and spread.

"There is a profound need to educate people who live and work in high-rise buildings to the procedures they should follow in the case of fire. Errors were made in the evacuation procedures at Las Vegas that contributed to the death toll."

He said guests at the MGM Grand turned emergency stairwells into smoking chimneys when they propped open the exit doors in a futile attempt to draw fresh air into the upper floors of the hotel.

Sprinklers vs. safety core

Hansen said the 1979 Seattle code requires high-rise buildings to be equipped with giant fans to blow fresh air into stairwells and keep smoke out until occupants escape. He said such "pressurized stairwells" will not work if the doorways are propped open.

Unlike most cities, the Seattle code doesn't require sprinklers on every floor. It concentrates on a "life safety core" where occupants can withstand a fire for four hours.

"From what I've seen in other cities, I'd feel more comfortable staying in a hotel in Seattle," said Hansen.

Although some have resisted sprinklers on the grounds that they damage furnishings, Providence, R.I., Fire Marshal Thomas J. Doyle, who calls sprinklers the best high-rise fire deterrent, has a ready reply:

"It's a question of having the carpets cleaned or carrying out the bodies. I've never known anyone to drown from being sprinkled..."

Because one of the guests at the MGM Grand saved himself and others by using a cigarette lighter to find stairs in the dark hallways, Rhode Island Fire Marshal Earl Shannon suggests people pack a flashlight in their belongings.

In the Washington, D.C., area, Alexandria Fire Chief Charles Rule had a somber fear: "It could happen here anytime and we've been expecting it to happen. We have the potential for many miniature MGM Grand Hotels."

"What it comes down to is dollars," said Arlington Fire Chief Thomas M. Hawkins Jr., who is uneasy about Arlington's complex of high-rise offices and apartments known as Crystal City.

"You can only require so much and then you can make some general suggestions to people. But you're talking about hundreds of thousands of dollars" to make improvements.

Safety systems that work

In simultaneous fires in Atlantic City, New Jersey's new Brighton Hotel Casino only days after the MGM fire, sprinklers automatically put out suspicious flames on the seventh and fifth floors before the fire department arrived.

The Flamingo Hilton, just north of the MGM Grand, is said to have one of the best state-of-the-art fire systems in the nation, a product of the latest tough standards.

There are smoke detectors and intercoms in each room — a reminder that some MGM survivors said they learned of the fire by watching television in the very building afire.

Each room has a sprinkler system and automatic alarm systems.

But despite this modern setup, Flamingo general manager Horst Dziura said the system is almost too sensitive.

"A cigar can set the system off. A high wind like we have today can blow dust through the window and set it off. We have so many false alarms it comes to a point where everybody gets too relaxed about it."

But he said the six minor fires the hotel has had remained minor because of the system. Each of them was extinguished right away.

Still Alert And Vital, Clara Bruce Forbes Hadley Is Making Plans For 1981

A Beautiful Woman Celebrates 100th Birthday

A BIRTHDAY PORTRAIT . . . This is the official birthday portrait of Clara Bruce Forbes Hadley made a few days prior to her 100th birthday. (Photograph courtesy Dean's Photography)

In the century that has passed since Mrs. Clara Bruce Forbes Hadley was born in Greenville on December 28, 1880, there have been dramatic changes witnessed by a still vital, active woman celebrating her 100th birthday today.

For most of us, the United States means the 48 continental states plus our fairly recent additions of Alaska and Hawaii. At the time of Clara Forbes' birth, 38 states had been admitted to the union.

And to most Americans alive now, the Spanish American War is something we read about in history books. But for Mrs. Hadley, the years when young Americans were going forth to battle in Cuba and the Philippines, Clara Bruce Forbes was coming into young womanhood.

The final years of the 19th century and the early years of the 20th century were her courting years. Mrs. Hadley recalled typical courtship arrangements of those days. "Things were very different from people's dating today," she chuckled. "We just sat with our beau in the parlor, very well chaperoned and talked or listened to the phonograph. Courting when I was young was very inexpensive."

Rugged Little Town

"Greenville was a rugged little tobacco town when I was young," Mrs. Hadley declared. "There were no paved streets, no electricity and no running water. Greenville only had a few stores on Evans Street, where the mall is now."

She laughed to recall "There were only two banks, the National and the Guaranty, one cafe, but there were ten barrooms, for the men. Since reputable women didn't even frequent the one cafe, the establishment catered for people, especially for parties."

Some of the stores where Clara Bruce Forbes and her friends shopped at the turn of the century were Zeno Moore and Brothers, J. B. Cherry and Company, Frank Wilson's and J. L. Wooten's store. Speaking of the John Flanagan Buggy Comnpany that burned to the ground in 1898, Mrs. Hadley said "I believe it was one of the most prosperous market places in town."

Well Was Town Center

One of the most intriguing recollections revealed by Mrs. Hadley is about the old town well. "At Five Points," she recalls, "a lone well, powered by a handpump, supplied the entire town with water.

"The townspeople not only watered their teams there and acquired water for their households," Mrs. Hadley explained, "but they socialized there too." Water from the well flowed through the milk house of her parents' home not far away, helping to keep fresh milk cool.

"When winter came and the river froze, the men in town could cut blocks of ice for the ice house and in summertime they sold it for about a nickle a block."

Wanted Development

But even in those days of simple life styles, Mrs. Hadley explained, citizens of Greenville "were desirous of development." She referred to a publication, "Greenville and Pitt County at the Turn of the Century," written by D. J. Whichard. "Oh, for factories and a good hotel in Greenville," he wrote. "We don't feel like letting up on the agitation of these things until they are realized."

Farmers from the local area contributed a great deal to activity around Greenville. Mrs. Hadley said that "they came in buckboards and buggies and bought supplies for the week ahead.

"Farm girls shopped for high top, button shoes and for dresses with narrow skirts, long trains, bustles and tight fitting bodices. Young males played ball and horseshoes." Mrs. Hadley referred to her own expertise in pitching horseshoes.

As with townsfolks, farmers made the town well a focal point. "They gathered at the well or on street corners and swapped news of births, deaths and marriages," she said. "Many of the men tarried at the stables. There wealthy county gentlemen competed for recognition, either with tall tales, or talk about their skills or their crops."

Code For Young Ladies

"Modesty and culture were imperative in those days," Mrs. Hadley remembers, "especially among the young ladies.

"They were expected to be soft-spoken and well mannered. This attitude contributed to a mode of dress that would stagger the mind of our fashion-minded contemporaries.

"It was unthinkable," she chuckled, "to wear a short skirt. It was considered extremely immodest to expose our ankles. Bathing suits concealed everything except our face, hands and feet.

"However," she added, "women of distinction and those who were a little more conscious of their sex appeal wore corsets beneath their bathing attire."

Father A Landowner

Mrs. Hadley's father, Alfred Forbes, was a wealthy landowner and farmer. His homeplace stood on Evans Street where the former Belk-Tyler parking lot is located.

Her mother was Clara Jane Williams, a native of Pitt County.

Seven children were born to Alfred and Clara Jane Forbes — two sons, Charles and Fred Forbes, and in addition to Mrs. Hadley, four other daughters — Hortense (Moye), Rose (Quinerly), Glenn (Best) and Helen (White). "Each time a baby was born he erected a house on Evans Street or nearby," Mrs. Hadley commented. The seven homes for the seven children eventually covered the area of what is now the former Belk-Tyler parking lot down to Taff Office Equipment Company, and in the area behind present day Sheppard Library across to White's Store location on Dickinson Avenue.

"Father employed seven household servants and several families for farm work," Mrs. Hadley recalls.

"And I'll never forget how we bathed back in those years," she reminisced. "Father had a tub installed in the kitchen and the servants heated water for it in an iron pot in the back yard."

In the summer, Clara Bruce Forbes visited and rode horseback. Winters she read and went on sleigh rides.

"When the freight boats came up the Tar River from Washington and unloaded," Mrs. Hadley recalls, "the young ones walked to the river for rides on them."

She spoke with fondness of the circus that came to town every year. "Our father always gave each servant a ticket to the circus. And of course we had a family day too, when we took picnic lunches and ate on the grounds."

College, Then Marriage

After two years away from Greenville, attending college in Greensboro and at the Conservatory of Music in Durham, Clara Bruce Forbes returned home.

Soon she met George B. W. Hadley, a farmer and cotton buyer from La Grange. Mrs. Hadley recalls "from our first glance of each other on the crude streets of Greenville, our love blossomed, and in 1901 we were married."

After their marriage, they moved to La Grange, and returned to Greenville a few years later, settling into their 15 room, eight bedroom house on Evans Street.

The spacious two story house, across the street from Sheppard Memorial Library, survived until the early 1970s, when it became one of the last homes in that area to go by the wayside in the commercialization of downtown Greenville. (An article in "The Daily Reflector" about the Hadley home at the time of its being razed referred to it as "The House That Love Built."

In the three decades the house was home to George and Clara Hadley, they became the parents of five children — three sons, Herbert Hadley, a physician; Jake Hadley, a retired insurance man; and George, now deceased — and two daughters, Mrs. Rose Fambrough, and Jane Hadley, a teacher, also deceased.

Mrs. Hadley pointed out that all her children "were delivered at home by Dr. James Green."

Mrs. Hadley has seven grandchildren and eight great-granchildren. George Hadley died in 1933 at the age of 64.

Second Car Owner

At their Evans Street home, the Hadleys employed a cook, a housekeeper and a gardener. And the couple had a variety of transportation at hand.

"I had a surrey with a fringe on top," Mrs. Hadley recalls with delight. "We also had a horsedrawn Victoria, an elaborate carriage-like vehicle that we used for weddings, funerals and parties."

Clara Bruce Hadley was the second person in Greenville to own a car. She said it cost about six hundred dollars. "I'm not sure, but I think it was a Hudson," she said. "It was a huge car with plush upholstery and it seated nine passengers."

Since she had a chauffeur, she did little driving herself. "I could drive it forward, but I just couldn't back it," she laughed.

Progress Made

As the early years of the 20th century passed by, Mrs. Hadley said that Greenville was slowly progressing into modern ways. "In March, 1905 we received electricity," she recalls. And, according to "Greenville and Pitt County at the Turn of the Century," it was about this time that the fire department took steps to modernize and expand. The publication reported: "A new steam engine was given a thorough test. Mr. Hadley's horses were used to carry the engine to the river and to the cistern at Fourth and Evans."

Also at this time, an appeal was made to townspeople to "organize a first class board of trade to induce industries."

The same publication reveals that Greenville's economy was improving. One entry reveals that "Tobacco warehouses employed about 300 hands for an average of 75 cents per day, amounting to a payroll of a thousand (dollars) a week, for all warehouses."

Remembers Celebrities

Mrs. Hadley expressed nostalgic memories of prominent celebrities whose appearances enlivened the local scene. Two that she mentioned are the evangelist Billy Sunday and band leader Kay Kyser.

"Kay Kyser is from Rocky Mount," she said, "and he became nationally known as a big band leader and for his 'College of Musical Knowledge.'"

Other nostalgic recollections of good times include "the many occasions we rolled back the rugs and danced to a fiddle and bow or to records played on a Victrola, which had to be wound by hand.

A lover of music, Mrs. Hadley is herself a talented organist. For many years she played in churches and at weddings

"Sometimes," she said, "wedding rehearsals lasted almost all night." She added that a few years ago "doctors advised me to give up playing."

Outlives Policy

A development that amuses Mrs. Hadley is that of outliving an insurance policy. "I think I'm one of a very few to have done this," she smiled. Years ago she acquired a policy naming her children as beneficaries. "Well, one day," she laughed, "they collected it and I'm still living. They love to kid me about that."

Mrs. Hadley isn't the only one in her or her husband's family member that has enjoyed a long life. Her husband's cousin from Mount Airy, fondly referred to as Aunt Swan by the family, celebrated her 107th birthday a few years ago. Clara Bruce Hadley relates an incident when a reporter interviewed Aunt Swan on that occasion.

"'Well, Mrs. Hadley,'" the reporter remarked. "'I sure hope I can do this again next year.'" "Aunt Swan looked at him for a minute, then quipped, "Sonny, you look healthy enough to me. You just might make it.'"

Being 100 may mean it's time to slow down just a little, but Mrs. Hadley already has a slate of "things I'm going to do in 1981, as soon as my birthday celebrations and Christmas is out of the way."

Just recently she sold some timber from forest lands to Weyerhaeuser. "When the young many buying the timber mentioned the company's big loss from the eruptions at Mount Saint Helens, I asked him right away if he had enough money to pay me for my timber," Mrs. Hadley laughed. "He did, fortunately, so now I'm going to get busy after the first of the year in getting the logged over area reforested. You have to think about the next generation," she added.

She also displayed her very young sense of humor when she related that she at one time "thought about inviting Governor Hunt to come down to help me celebrate my one hundredth birthday, but then I decided not to. I was afraid that it might become a political stampede instead of a birthday party."

Many Friends

Clara Bruce Forbes Hadley looks and acts much younger than her 100 years. She attributes her long life span to good health — "I've had very few health problems and never had an operation" — and also to a conservative life style. "I never drank alcohol or used tobacco," she said.

Her many sterling qualities have won her a host of friends and admirers over the years. For the past several weeks, church friends and others have been celebrating with her the coming of her 100th birthday and the beginning of her second century of life.

A remark by another who lived a full span of years is appropriate to Mrs. Hadley's long life.

Playwright George Bernard Shaw wrote: "Life is no brief candle to me. It is a sort of splendid torch which I got hold of for the moment and I want to make it burn as brightly as possible before handing it over to a future generation."

To all who know and love Clara Bruce Forbes Hadley, they are hoping that hers is a candle to hold for years yet to come.

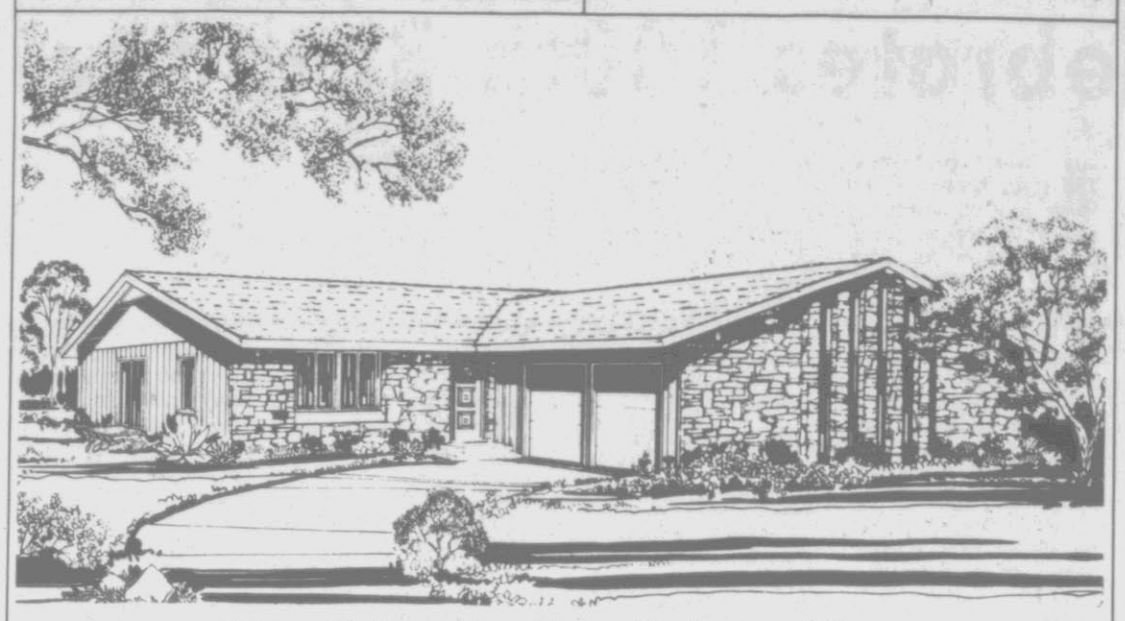
PLAN YOUR HOME

The Bingham



Stone Trims Airy Four Bedroom Plan

By Jerry Bishop

Edged in multi-colored stone and contrasting siding, the Bingham shows a design that blends a striking exterior with an interior based on space.

Rooms are large, and none of the four bedrooms measures less than 12 by 12. Beginning with the spacious tiled foyer, open planning is used effectively.

the closeted foyer creates immediate access to all areas of the home and offers an open stairway directly to the basement, hallway to bedrooms, entry to formal living rooms, and a hallway extension to the family room. For formal entertaining, the living room is perfectly placed to welcome guests but discourage cross-traffic. Bordering formal dining room soaks in scenery and extends its boundaries outward via sliding glass doors to the deck.

Beyond the formal living and dining room,s the home's casual living areas are open and airy and take in, by view and access, the sizable rear patio. The family room stretches 20 feet from foyer to patio to allow plenty of room for family activities, and the kitchen equipped with planning desk, is poised to serve both dining room and family room. A handy niche for washer and dryer is tucked away in a corner of the family room.

Accessible from the foyer or family room, the sleeping wing takes in four ample bedrooms, two large full baths, and a generous sprinkling of closet space. The masterbedroom, sizable in itself, annexes a walk-in closet, dressing area with built-in vanity and double sink, and bath with towel closet. Another bath and linen closet are reached through the hallway.

The Bingham luxuriates in storage space and provides, besides the full basement, an oversized double garage with its own storage area and three entrances.

Wide-Ranging Choice Of Wallpaper Is Not 'New'

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

It's a great temptation to see today's wide-ranging choices in home furnishings as a kind of modern miracle: the end result of a long line of progress. But according to some interesting research, choice is not exclusively a prerogative of the 20th century.

For example, in a new book, "Wallpaper in America," Catherine Lynn reveals that a great variety of motifs, styles and actual papers in all price ranges was available in America during the mid 18th and 19th centuries.

And American writers liked to celebrate that variety. In 1875, for example, a writer in Scribner's Monthly noted that "the modern householder has one great advantage over his predecessors . .. He may gather under one roof the styles and fashions of a dozen nationalities and centuries."

Actually, the choice was equally great in Europe. But it was the Americans who liked to emphasize their many choices, Ms. Lynn noted. In her richly researched history, which offers a number of fascinating color and black-and-white illustrations of wallpapers and interiors, she shows that even as far back as the first part of the 18th century rather modest homes featured imported wallpapers. Past writers have focused on the use of imported wallpaper from France by the American elite. But her research, conducted over seven years as curator of the Cooper-Hewitt Museum's wallpaper collection and later as curator of the Atlanta Historical Society, shows that wallpaper was widely used by middle-class Americans.

"Wallpaper was the style carrier, art for the many, a means of spreading new ideas about design," she said in an interview, adding that "one of the things that interested me most was the boldness of choices in modest homes." Apparently, Americans used wallpaper to dress up humble rooms. It was not frowned on to use a different style of paper in every room of the house, she said.

In the mid-19th century, for example, flocked papers were preferred for the dining room. Colors such as crimson, maroon and green were common. For parlors, light-colored papers with gold accents were generally chosen. Bedrooms usually had flowered papers.

In those days, wallpaper was regarded as superior wall decoration — at once less expensive and more attractive than other treatments. And writers such as Harriet Beecher Stowe advised American women to choose patterns that would inspire and uplift their families.

It was thought that wallpaper could be a force for a higher moral tone in the home as well as offering a superior sense of protection and comfort than plain, painted walls.

Although the manufacture of wallpaper was well-established in the United States by the mid-18th century, imported papers from France, England and the Orient set the style. As early as 1790, Philadelphia's newspapers carried many advertisements for French and English wallpapers. Ms. Lynn found ledger books still in the possession of old French firms with the names of hundreds of American retail accounts.

French designs were characterized by highly realistic, beautifully colored scenes and floral designs. They were preferred at first. By the late 1870s, however, the esthetics of the English arts and crafts movement became fashionable. Influential design writers declared that wallpaper should not attempt to fool the eye by looking three-dimensional and realistic. English papers with abstract, flat designs then became more popular.

During the 1870s and 1880s, interest in wallpaper was at a high. By the 1890s, innovative architects and theorists were evolving new standards that discouraged ornament and precluded the use of wallpaper.

Modernists such as architect Frank Lloyd Wright dismissed wallpaper with scorn. Novelist Edith Wharton called wallpaper "unsanitary and decoratively unsatisfactory."

For at least the next 60 years, wallpaper ceased to attract the attention of design writers. However, wallpaper manufacturing continued unabated to appeal to American consumers' love of variety and novelty.

Today, says Ms. Lynn, there is a new interest in going back to take a look at actual decorating practices in the past. Her book is one of a variety of new researches that correct our ideas about the past.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A water-heater insulation jacket.

Manufacturer's claim — That placing this insulated jacket around a water heater reduces the amount of energy needed to keep the water at the controlled temperature ... that it can be installed without special skills and without special tools ... that it has been approved by the Department of Energy ... that its thick, appliance-type, fiberglass insulation blanket is faced with washable white vinyl, plus a top plate for use on electric models ... that the kit contains precut tape with specially formulated adhesive ... and that it pays for itself quickly, since 25 to 35 percent of the total water-heater operating cost is energy being used to replace heat lost from a poorly insulated tank.

THE PRODUCT — An emergency survival kit for home, auto and boat.

Manufacturer's claim — That the kit has two 9-inch flares, a self-contained flashlight and even assorted hard candies for nourishment ... that it also contains a sealed can to provide heat for cooking, six flip-open cans in which to heat the food, as well as spoons, cups, 50 waterproof matches and a half-gallon of pure drinking water ... that there are 12 first-aid items in all ... and that the kit is packed in a heavy-duty container with a carrying handle.

THE PRODUCT — A heat reflector for conserving radiator and convector heat.

Manufacturer's claim — That the reflector is a panel with a rigid foam cellulite insulator containing millions of air cells laminated to a highly reflective aluminum foil ... that the panel is placed between the radiator, convector or baseboard heating unit and the outside wall, forming an insulating barrier that reflects heat back into the room ... and that it can be used with steam or hot water radiators and recessed or flush-mounted convectors, covered or uncovered.

(Do-it-yourselfers in houses and apartments will find much helpful information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.

(The insulation jacket is made by Thermo, S & S Industries, P. O. Box 17087, Nashville, Tenn. 37317; the survival kit by Pyramid Survival, P. O. Box 867, Poughkeepsie, N.Y. 12603; and the heat reflector by Wiedenbach-Brown Co., 435 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. 10014.)

Looking To Old Houses

CINCINNATI (AP) — Young couples today are looking to yesterday to fill their housing needs.

Their targets are the Victorian and early 20th-century houses of architectural value that have become low-rental properties in inner-city districts.

"The European trend back to the inner-city living began in the '70s, and is now, and will continue to be, an important growth area in our cities all through the '80s," says Jim Rankin of Scovill's Housing Products Group.

"These are often young people who are looking for spacious older homes at a relatively low cost," he said. "They see the revitalization going on in inner-city areas, and they too want to take advantage of living conveniently close to their jobs and entertainment. They can afford to buy an outdated home and take their time in remodeling to suit their own lifestyles."

Rankin noted the trend, he said, by tracing sales of built-in appliances, such as radio intercoms, bath cabinets, electric heating products and security systems, to downtown areas that are being revitalized.

'PROVOCATIONS'

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam claims that Chinese troops "intensified armed provocations" this month along the Vietnamese-Chinese border in three provinces.

Stove Caution Is Emphasized

"We are seeing an increase in the number of home fires this year, and find a lot of calls are caused by wood burning heaters," Pitt County Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner said recently.

A pleasant, old-fashioned wood burning stove or free-standing fireplace can add charm and romance, as well as warmth, to a home, Joyner said. "But it can also cause a serious fire hazard."

Joyner emphasized that wood-burning stoves and fireplaces, "must be installed and operated properly, with ample clearance around unprotected walls and other combustable material for flues and stoves. Temperatures in the flues of wood-burning stoves can range from 1,000 to 1,400 degrees," the fire marshall pointed out.

According to Joyner, pipes and flues should be kept clean and only dry, seasoned wood should be burned.

Joyner suggested that the draft on wood-burning stoves should be opened to let the fire burn hot and with an open flame before adding fresh wood; then leave damprs open for several minutes after the wood is added, has ignited and is burning fully.

In the morning, after an overnight "low burn", drafts should be opened to let the fire burn hot for 15 minutes and at least once each week, the draft should be opened wide to let the fire burn "full blast," for about 10 minutes.

Such practices, Joyner emphasized, should help clear away normal build-ups in flues and pipes — one of the major causes of problems.

The fire marshall noted that metal chimneys can cause problems if they are the wrong type or not installed properly.

Chimneys should be cleaned at least annually, or after burning a cord of wood, Joyner suggested, in an effort to prevent problems.

He said cleaning can be done by pulling a chain or weighted burlap sack up and down the chimney, or by using a steel-bristle brush like chimney sweep's use.

To deal with chinmey fires, according to Joyner, "throw a hand full of baking soda, coarse salt or partially discharge a dry chemical fire extinguisher into the fire box, and close dampers and air vents to cut off the supply of air to the fire." He added that coarse salt or baking soda can be thrown into the chinmey, "if you can get up on the roof.

"If necessary, and as a last resort, throw or spray water into the stove and close the door. This might warp the stove, but the steam should limit the intensity of the flue fire," Joyner noted.

NEW YORK (AP) — When all the other tourists had snapped their photos and departed, Norm Kerr remained, even though twilight was settling on an ageless wonder of the Orient.

The final shot taken by the Kodak photographer of the Great Wall of China was eventually chosen as one of the coloramas that are periodically seen at Grand Central Terminal here by 250,000 commuters each day.

Compulsiveness For Car Care

BURLINGTON, Mass. (AP) — "Automobile maintenance requires the car owner to adopt the compulsiveness of auto-race mechanics," says Dick Berggren, editor of a car-racing magazine.

For example, he says, check tire air pressures once a week; check fluid levels — such as radiator water, engine oil, transmission fluid — every 500 miles, and spray the carburetor periodically with an aerosol carburetor cleaner to keep it at optimum efficiency.

Q. — I had a can of varnish in our basement for a couple of years. It had been opened originally when purchased, but the cover was put on securely almost at once and never opened again. Recently, I used the varnish on a wooden table I made. It seemed to be all right when I finished, but a short time later developed a kind of whitish appearance. What caused this and how can I get rid of it?

A. — It seems likely that, as sometimes happens, the seemingly tight cover was not tight enough. If your basement was even the tiniest bit damp, some of the moisture probably got into the can. The condition you describe is known as "blooming" and it can often be removed by washing the wood and rubbing it with warm water and a clean cloth, being very careful to dry it thoroughly. There are a number of other possible remedies, but if the warm-water wash doesn't work, your best bet is to refinish the wood. Don't use the same varnish.

Q. — We have an outside deck on our house that seems to have mildew on it in several places, not severe, but enough to cause us some concern. What's the best way to remove it?

A. — An ordinary household bleach and water should do the trick, but better find out what is causing the mildew or you'll have it back soon. Mildew is a fungus that grows where there is dampness and little or no sunlight.

Q. — I expect to make a brick wall sometime in the next few months, or, as my wife says, more probably in the next year. Anyhow, is there some rule of thumb for estimating how many ordinary bricks will be required?

A. — Figure seven bricks for every square foot.

Q. — A friend of mine from a different part of the country was discussing lumber prices with me the other day. We found a very great difference in the prices. I thought lumber prices were the same all over, based on supply and demand. Isn't this so?

A. — Supply and demand works in the lumber industry the same as it works elsewhere, but the starting prices vary greatly. Much of the cost of lumber includes how far the wood has to be transported. If you buy pine where pine is being grown, it's cheaper than in an area where it isn't. The same goes for all other woods.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual replies cannot be given.)

GONE FISHING

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The most grueling sport of all?

"Fishing," says Clayton J. Dixon, holder of 62 trophies for baseball, bowling, tennis and fishing.

On weekends from March to October, Dixon competes in fishing tournaments which start at 6 a.m. and last until 4 p.m. During that time he does not eat or drink, spending the entire 10 hours on his feet casting his line and reeling it in.

An industrial-relations manager at Sealright Co. here, Dixon estimates that in a day he casts from 3,600 to 6,000 times, an average of 6 to 10 times each minute.

CREAM LIQUEURS

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 70,000 cases of Irish cream liqueurs were sold in the United States in 1978.

Last year, the number rose to 157,000 cases, a 125 percent increase, according to Renfield Importers.

Do-It-Yourselfers Rediscover Adobe

By MARK BARABAK

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Do-it-yourselfers hunting refuge from soaring housing costs and Southwesterners seeking native chic have spurred a surge in adobe construction.

The comeback is fueled by energy consciousness and new-found appreciation for the rustic appeal of mud-brick building.

"Aesthetically, it's a very individual thing," said Aubrey Owen, of Abiquiu, N.M. "It's a natural material from the earth you re-form with your hands. When it's finished it has a unique character, a look and feel that makes it a living thing."

Long before the Spanish conquistadors arrived, Indians in the Southwest used hand-molded sun-dried earthen blocks to build huge complexes.

The scarcity of timber and stone assured its predominance until the 1940s when adobe gave way to modern materials.

Now, said builder Robert Barnes of Tucson, "the primary appeal may be more economic than aesthetic."

"Aesthetically it's quite pleasing and it doesn't take a lot of trained expertise to work with," said Ed Doogan, a board member of the Arizona Adobe Association. "If you make a mistake it's very forgiving and often looks quite nice."

"It lends itself to an individual sort of self-help thing," said Albuquerque architect Antoine Perdock. "And in our energy-conscious day it's an advantageous material in that it requires very little energy for production."

Construction cost estimates vary. Some range as high as $70 a square foot, nearly twice the rate for conventional materials.

Builders and architects agree the greatest saving can be had by those who purchase the bricks preformed and do the construction themselves.

"Contractors tend to put in better quality hardware, doors and cabinets that they don't really have to," Barnes said.

"Adobe's been tagged with a reputation as being very expensive because when developers build with it, they throw in things like stained glass and wrought iron which drive up the price," Doogan said. "Adobe itself is not that expensive."

"There is some debate whether the insulation value is better than conventional walls," Perdock said. "But adobe does have a heavy thermal mass, meaning it can store heat, then radiate it inward, rather than out through the roof."

Adobe is being used for construction of so-called passive solar homes — built facing south to take maximum advantage of the winter sun.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are able to work out a better financial arrangement early in the day. Later you become more interested in the social side of life. Make sure your activities are well organized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Tackle every angle of a difficult problem in the morning and get excellent results. Cut down on expenses wherever you can.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true aims are and then go after them in a positive way. Show more interest in outside events.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get together with associates and make plans to be more productive in the future. Improve your appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need a more worldly viewpoint if you wish to expand in career activities at this time. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact good friends who can assist you in gaining your most cherished wishes. Be wise and careful in spending your money.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best for widening your vistas and gaining your aims. Later confer with influential person for support you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle important business affairs early in the day so you'll have time to study new projects later. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Come to a better understanding with associates and cooperate more with them. Keep commitments you have made.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at work ahead of you and gain benefits. You are able to make rapid progress at this time. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Talks with associates can produce excellent results at this time. Exercise more patience in handling a civic matter.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't neglect to look into new interests that are appealing to you. Show more affection for family members.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have those talks with allies and plan how to become more successful in days ahead. Make this a most productive day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who can easily gain the right perspective in business matters, so send to the right schools and this can become a successful and happy life. Teach early in life to be more understanding of others.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Liberalism In Maturity

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — In some instances the opinions of mature women are "somewhat more liberal in 1980 than those of their 18-year-old sons and daughters," say researchers at the University of Michigan.

In general American women's attitudes about appropriate roles for themselves have changed dramatically over the past 20 years, say Arland D. Thornton and Deborah S. Freedman. Thornton is study director at the university's Institute for Social Research and Ms. Freedman is a researcher at the Population Studies Center.

Their more liberal attitudes extend to appropriate activities for mothers, employment outside the home and who should make family decisions, the researchers say. Thornton adds that their ideas generally are not much different from those held by the women's 18-year-old daughters.

"The notion that older people are more conventional, more bound by tradition, just because they are older, just doesn't hold up," he says.

The researchers' comments are based on findings from the Study of American Families, which has followed a group of 1,000 Detroit area women over the 1962-1980 period.

CHANGING SCENE

PEKING (AP) — China's Buddhist Theological Institute, housed in the 1,300-year-old Fa Yuan Monastery in Peking, has reopened 14 years after it was closed during the chaotic Cultural Revolution.

See Decline In Cholera Cases

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — According to the World Health Organization, there was a decline in the incidence of cholera across the world in 1979.

Last year a total of 54,817 cases were reported as compared with 74,632 in 1978. However, two additional African countries — Gabon and Sudan — were added to the list of those reporting cases of the disease.

Couple Get Good Buzz In Phone Co.

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer

SUNFLOWER, Miss. (AP) — Does the name Bobby Sledge ring a bell? If you live in Sunflower, it has to.

Sledge and his wife are the Sledge Telephone Co., a family business serving 450 persons in and around this delta town.

"I guess you could say we're the front office, the back office and the repair shop," Sledge said. "I maintain my own lines and if there's a pole to be put up, I set it. If there's a telephone to be installed, I install it."

In a time when family-owned businesses are giving way to large corporations, Sledge says he believes telephone users in his area like the personal touch his company affords.

"Many of our customers are friends and neighbors, so we try to keep them happy," he said. "They know they can reach me or my wife any time they need help."

"This business has been in our family for well over 50 years," Sledge said. "I bought it from my mother in 1968 and my father sold it to her."

Sledge, 51, said his company worked in cooperation with South Central Bell Telephone Co. to link the Sunflower telephones with the rest of the country.

The Sunflower system has no operators or information assistants, with these tasks handled by South Central Bell employees in larger cities.

Serving friends and neighbors can have its drawbacks, Sledge admitted, particularly when the time comes to raise the rates.

"We wait as long as we can before going to the Public Service Commission and asking for a higher rate," he said. "It's more personal with us than with a big utility or business. Here it's not the telephone company, it's Bobby and June Sledge.

"You just don't go in for rate increases unless you have to because the people who will have to pay the increases are the ones who call on you at home or who come by for a visit and bring their payment.

"Why, sometimes they wait until they see us at church to tell us their phone is out of order."

WILSON ACRES
Passive Solar Design
"The Most Apartment For Your Rental Dollar"

The "true" cost of your apartment each month includes not only rent but also your monthly utilities. Wilson Acres Apartments are Greenville's newest. Because of energy saving design features such as heat pumps, thermal pane glass, insulated doors and extra insulation throughout, your monthly utility bill will be considerably less than most apartments in Greenville.

Add your monthly rent at Wilson Acres to your greatly reduced monthly utility bill at Wilson Acres and we think it's the most apartment for your rental dollar.

New 2 bedroom apartments. ENERGY EFFICIENT with washer/dryer hook-ups, dishwasher, frost-free refrigerator, self-cleaning oven, Cable TV hook-ups, heat pumps, tennis, pool, saunas, laundry and club house facilities, ample parking, 3 blocks from ECU, $295 per month.

When you're looking for living affordably, can you afford not to look at the energy efficient townhouses at Wilson Acres? 752-0277 evenings 6-10 p.m. and weekends call 756-2766.

Interest Rate Squeeze Consumers And Business

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

Borrowing money never has cost more in America, and the pinch is hurting millions of Americans. Buyers can't afford loans to buy cars and homes, and the people who make and build them are losing jobs. Christmas shoppers seem to be cutting back.

The rising interest rates have prompted cries of "madness" from businessmen and warnings of an "economic Dunkirk" from top advisers to President-elect Ronald Reagan.

But Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker seems to be determined to use high rates as the key weapon in the battle against inflation. The prime lending rate charged by banks to businesses has risen to 21 percent, and may go higher.

Rising interest rates deal a double-whammy to many businesses. Their customers cannot afford to borrow to buy products, and they must pay the soaring rates to finance inventories.

"Small businesses haven't a prayer with today's interest rates," said Paul Butcher, the owner of Butcher Lakefield Lumber Co. in Weston, W.Va. "There is no way they can borrow money and pay it back with the small percentage of profits they make."

"The best we can do is break even," moans Mike Hamilton, the owner of Hamilton Oxygen Service Inc. in Birmingham, Ala., who says he has been unable to raise prices enough to keep up with financing costs and loss of volume.

Other businesses would be jubilant to break even. Chrysler Corp. is the best publicized case of a company on the ropes, but the number of business failures is up more than 50 percent from last year.

Some are benefiting from the high rates. Collection agencies report booming business and repairmen of some items are getting more calls as consumers put off buying new cars and appliances.

But those suffering are growing more vocal, especially as signs grow that this round of high interest rates will last longer than the one this spring, which ended in a short recession. Many economists think another — and longer — recession will arrive within a few weeks.

"The interest rate policy of the Federal Reserve System is driving the economy of the United States into self-destruction," said an advertisement, complete with skull and crossbones, placed by Lone Star Industies Inc., a Greenwich, Conn., cement and construction materials manufacturer.

Lone Star Chairman James E. Stewart said the ad campaign was undertaken to tell the government its goals cannot be achieved "by hurting the people all the time."

Charles L. Brown, the chairman of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., says "restoration of a money market that permits the financing of new construction on reasonable terms" is crucial to the economy. AT&T says higher rates will cost it — and its customers — $175 million this year.

So far President Carter has been content to let the Federal Reserve do what it wishes. Reagan's attitudes are unclear. Some aides are promising quick aciton, but are not saying what that action will be.

Those backing the tight money policies think that "a squeeze on the economy," as Volcker put it, is needed to bring inflation under control, something that was not accomplished in the brief recession earlier this year.

The idea is that there will be fewer loans made at high rates. But so far banks are doing good business, as many businesses borrow to finance inventory or to avoid issuing long-term bonds at high interest rates.

But the banks aren't doing good business in mortgage loans or auto loans. And that is causing agony for both would-be buyers and sellers.

George Hester, an Augusta, Ga., postal worker and father of three, said he has been trying to sell his three-bedroom home for the past four months so that he can buy a larger house for his family.

"Interest rates are so high that this house won't sell," he said. "Since rates got above 13 percent, no one has looked at it."

"All information we are getting shows that the housing industry is simply being strangled by rising interest rates," says Michael Sumichast, chief economist for the National Association of Homebuilders. Housing starts declined last month, and sales have been slipping for several months.

In the first nine months of this year, 1,643 auto dealerships closed their doors. There are about 20,000 dealers in the country, and some auto industry analysts say another 1,200 could be out of business by March. A total of 188,250 auto workers are out of work indefinitely.

Car dealers have been hurt by both the decline in sales and the cost of keeping a wide selection of models on hand to attract buyers. The dealers are now paying as much as 2 percent a month — $120 on a $6,000 car — just to keep it in the showroom.

"Right now, it's just a matter of survival for dealers," says Jack Oliver, the general manager of Beaudry Ford in Atlanta. "If (high rates) last nine months to a year, it would be disastrous for the automobile industry."

Lee Iacocca, the chairman of beleaguered Chrysler Corp., couldn't agree more. His company will not make a profit in the final three months of the year, as he had forecast. Instead it will lose $200 million and is again seeking federal aid to survive. He calls high interest rates "madness."

The idea of double-digit mortgage rates was once unthinkable. Now they are as high as 18 percent. Many with houses are reluctant to move, and such companies as Fireman's Fund Insurance are finding it necessary to subsidize mortgages to get executives to take transfers.

In Raleigh, N.C., real estate agent Barbara Heineman says a computer company executive is considering turning down a promotion and transfer because he doesn't want to give up an 8.5 percent mortgage. She says anyone earning less than $400 a week is almost shut out of the mortgage market.

A lot of people have little choice but to borrow. Farmers "still go ahead and borrow and gripe" to pay for seed for planting, says Michael Catlin, a field representative for the Production Credit Association in Salina, Kan. But he says they are cutting back on purchases of new equipment.

Some farmers are trying to reduce the size of their loans by selling crops from earlier harvests to raise cash, rather than continuing to store the crops in hopes that prices will rise. That was one factor in the recent decline of commodity prices.

Retailers say buyers are scarce for durable goods, such as refrigerators and washing machines, as consumers are content to make repairs rather than purchase new appliances.

"Anything that has to be financed has stopped dead," said Richard Falck, senior vice president and treasurer of K mart Corp., the nation's No. 2 retailer after Sears, Roebuck & Co.

One silver lining for those with money to spend is that the high rates are encouraging merchants to cut prices more rapidly. There are a lot of pre-Christmas sales going on.

"The markdown level for the year is sharper than in previous years," says John Gerdel, a vice president at Sanger-Harris department store in Dallas. "If sales do not become much brisker you will see much greater reductions as retailers want to purge their inventories."

But even lower prices won't help the victims of the country's economic problems. The steel industry is in a deep slump, and companies are unwilling or unable to borrow the money needed to modernize their plants. Laid-off steelworker Jerry McNally is feeling the pinch.

"I don't know when I will find another job," said the 35-year-old father of three from Youngstown, Ohio, "and I don't know how I'd pay any bills (for gifts bought on credit) after Christmas."

Accident Costs Continue Rise

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cost of traffic accidents continues to rise despite a decline in their numbers.

The increase is due to the rising costs of auto repairs and medical care, according to the 1980-81 edition of Insurance Facts, a publication of the Insurance Information Institute trade association.

The estimated economic loss figure for 1979 was $56.4 billion, a 7.1 percent increase over the previous year. That figure includes the cost of paying for property damage, plus legal, medical, hospital and funeral bills, loss of income from work and the administrative costs of insurance.

Carter Seventh Incumbent Loser

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter became the seventh incumbent President to lose office in a general election.

Before Carter, the most recent was Gerald Ford, who was defeated by Carter.

Millions Of Flowers Adorn Floats

California gals with a hankering for a flower in their hair will be out of luck New Year's Day. Every available blossom in the state will most likely be found on one of the 61 floats that will highlight the 92nd annual Tournament of Roses Parade. It's impossible to give an accurate count, of course, but 'those in the know' estimate that about 20 million fresh flowers will be used. And that's a lot of posies!

Television star and conservationist Lorne Greene is this year's Grand Marshal, and CBS and NBC will have cameras posted along the 5.5-mile parade route. Michael Landon and Kelly Lange are returning as NBC's hosts, with Bob Barker, Phyllis George, John Schneider and Loretta Swit helming CBS's coverage.

Float decoration begins about 48 hours prior to the parade. The hardier blossoms, such as chrysanthemums, are applied first, and more delicate flowers just before parade time. In fact, huge shipments of vanda orchids, gingers and heliconias are flown in literally hours before the parade begins.

THEN AND NOW — Lorne Green and Michael Landon, who starred as father and son on NBC-TV's "Bonanza," series (background photos), will be together again on home screens when Green serves as Grand Marshal of the 92nd Pasadena (Calif.) Tournament of Roses Parade and Landon provides commentary of the New Year's Day event Thursday, Jan. 1 (11:30 a.m.-2 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Film Taken From Play

Joanne Woodward, Christopher Plummer and Valerie Harper head an illustrious cast in "The Shadow Box," an ABC Theatre presentation airing Sunday, Dec. 28 (8-10 p.m.). The film is adapted from Michael Cristofer's award-winning play about three families who face life's ultimate challenge with anger, wit, compassion and great courage. This marks Paul Newman's television directorial debut.

Others appearing are James Broderick, Sylvia Sidney, Melinda Dillon, Ben Masters, John Considine and Curtiss (cq) Marlowe.

At a wooded California hospice for the terminally ill, three patients taking part in an experimental program are unaware that they have awakened to one of the most momentous days in their lives.

Joe (Broderick), a blue collar factory worker, happily greets the arrival of his wife, Maggie (Harper), and son, Steve (Marlowe), who have come to live with him. Brian (Plummer), a failed writer, and his younger friend, Mark (Masters), are surprised by Brian's former wife, Beverly (Woodward), an alive, outrageous free spirit. The third patient is a querulous old woman named Felicity (Sidney). She fantasizes about the return of her beloved long-dead daughter, while slavishly tended by her other daughter, the mousey Agnes (Dillon).

Punctuated by visits to the office of an 'interviewer' (Considine) who helps those in need deal with their feelings toward death, the drama unfolds as these patients find their situations complicated by loved ones, who must become reconciled to the pervasive presence of death.

Will Be Starring

Jean Stapleton will star as the devoted mother of a seemingly well-adjusted teen-aged son who becomes unpredictable and violent in "Angel Dusted," an NBC World Premiere movie.

Stapleton's character is Betty Eaton, whose son goes beserk after smoking a marijuana cigarette soaked in 'angel dust.' Through the mother's determination and love, the boy gets medical and psychiatric help.

Stapleton won three Emmy Awards for her performance as Archie Bunker's wife, Edith, on "All in the Family." She also received two Golden Globe Awards, two American Academy of Humor Awards, the Genii Award and is the recipient of honorary doctorates of humane letters from Monmouth (N.J.) College and Boston's Emerson College.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Please tell me something about Sylvester Stallone. D. BENFIELD, HICKORY, N.C.

A: Stallone, whose performance as the plodding boxer in "Rocky" hurtled him into stardom, knows what it's like to be on the ropes. Born in New York's Hell's Kitchen 34 years ago, he was a failure in school, a college drop-out, a beach bum in Europe and a sometime actor who got a part in his first film — "The Lords of Flatbush" — because he looked like a mugger. His father's a hair dresser and his mom is a one-time show girl. Sly's 'on-again, off-again' marriage to Sasha has somehow survived 10 tumultuous years and numerous distractions — the most recent one was a sexy blonde named Susan Anton.

Q: I've seen a new comedian named Gallagher on several television shows lately, and would like to know something about him. R. GALLAGHER, WELCOME, N.C.

A: The zany guy is a Florida native of the free-spirit school who says he's been "in and out of trouble" for years. The most memorable fracas occurred during his years at the University of Southern Florida: he fed four piglets cafeteria food as a means of protesting the food's lack of quality. But the creatures grew into healthy, fat pigs on the diet! Gallagher, who's a frequent guest on "The Tonight Show," is an established figure among the new breed of Hollywood comedians.

Q: I'd never seen Chris Sarandon in any show before his dual role on the Hallmark Hall of Fame production, "A Tale of Two Cities." What else has he been in? A. JOHNSON, PARKTON, N.C.

A: Chris' TV credits include a starring role in "You Can't Go Home Again" and "The Day Christ Died," in which he portrayed Jesus. His first motion picture was "Dog Day Afternoon," and he won an Oscar nomination for his performance as the suicidal transvestite. Other films are "Lipstick," "The Sentinel" and "Cuba." His primary interest, however, is the stage.

Astaire Chosen

Fred Astaire has been chosen by the American Film Institute's board of trustees as this year's recipient of the AFI Life Achievement Award.

Astaire will be honored at a dinner in Los Angeles in late February or early March which will be televised by CBS.

Past winners are John Ford, James Cagney, Orson Welles, William Wyler, Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, Alfred Hitchcock and James Stewart.

Sims Will Star

Tawni Sims will star in the title role of "Jayne Mansfield — An American Tragedy." The motion picture is an adaptation of the best-selling book "The Tragic Secret Life of Jayne Mansfield."

Familiar Faces

While filming "Golden Gate," Perry King was asked by producer Lin Bolen to bring a selection of photographs of himself from his younger days for use as set dressing in the movie. One is a group shot of Perry with six other members of the St. Paul's Literary Society made when he was attending St. Paul's Preparatory School in Concord, N.H. Included in the group is a young man who has made quite a name for himself as a cartoonist: Gary Trudeau.

Chairs Crusade

Danny Kaye has been named national chairman for the American Cancer Society's 1981 Annual Crusade.

Film Rooted In History

"Orphan Train," to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Dec. 31 (8-11 p.m.), is deeply rooted in a little-known chapter of American history, that occurred between 1854 and 1929. Involved were approximately 100,000 neglected, abandoned and destitute children, who were transported by the Children's Aid Society from New York City slums to points west. They were then placed with new families and given a second chance at life. Many of these orphans grew up to be leading citizens, including one U.S. Supreme Court Justice and two governors.

Jill Eikenberry and Kevin Dobson star in this fictional account of what may have occurred on that journey west.

Eikenberry's character is Emma Symns, a dedicated yet untested social worker who organizes the train trip after being shocked into action by the public hanging of a slum youth. Helping her secure the first orphan train is a photographer Frank Carlin (Dobson), who then accompanies her to photograph the journey. He finds himself increasingly involved with both the children and their chaperone.

Linda Manz is seen as Sarah Inglis, a young orphan whom Emma rescues from a house of prostitution. Graham Fletcher-Cook plays Liverpool, an orphan from England who became a cabin boy, then 'jumped ship' when his vessel reached New York harbor. Melissa Michaelson portrays JP, abandoned by her actress-mother.

The train sequences seen were filmed in Hill City, S.D., located in the heart of the beautiful Black Hills, and an authentic old steam locomotive was used. New York City sequences were actually filmed in the historic sections of Savannah, Ga.

During the location filming, the "Orphan Train" cast and crew received a number of visits from some very special guests — men and women, now in their 70s and 80s who, as youths, had traveled on the real orphan trains.

23 Jesus Is The Answer

Duties Assigned

Frank Sinatra, who's producing and directing the entertainment for the Presidential Inaugural Gala, has named Johnny Carson as the master of ceremonies.

Among the performers who'll be appearing at the event are Dean Martin, Rich Little, Ethel Merman, Jimmy Stewart and the original Osmond Brothers.

Faces Evoke Memories

The names fit together like entries on the guest list of the most wonderful party ever, a party made up of one's very best friends — a party that lasted ten years.

John, Paul, George and Ringo. Or the other way around. The order varied according to which fan you talked to. But millions knew who they were, and thought of them as a unit. They somehow thought the new music would never stop, and that the group would never break up. But it did, and they did. Only the memory didn't end.

In spite of John Lennon's tragic death, this memory returns when "Birth of the Beatles" is rebroadcast as ABC's Friday Night Movie, Jan. 3 (9-11 p.m.). The faces representing those most famous faces are Stephen Mackenna; Rod Culbertson; John Altman, and Ray Ashcroft. All four have vivid memories of the Beatles and have put these memories to good use in their portrayals.

"There was John — he was the smart one. And funny, too," says Stephen, who's actually played Lennon twice before. "He had the very devil in his smile, which was just a little crooked, and very tight over his teeth." Stephen has been a professional actor for about 10 years, plays a little guitar, and is probably the closest look-alike in the cast.

"Paul, of course, was the cute one," says his counterpart in the film, Rod Culbertson. "Definitely very romantic, the last to get married — and the only one to only get married once. Everybody figured he probably wrote the really pretty love songs, because that's the way he was. You could just tell." Rod's been a Beatle fan since he was 14 and happens to be the only cast member who is married.

John Altman, who is cast as George Harrison, was also a special fan of his, and managed to gather collector's item records and tapes to study for the tole. "He was real mysterious, you know?" John says. "You never could tell exactly what he was thinking, but you knew it was real deep."

Ray Ashcroft, portraying Ringo Starr, is the only one in the cast who is also a working musician when he isn't acting. He also happens to be the only one who's bold enough to say that after seeing the Beatles perform in person, he still preferred the Rolling Stones. Ray is quick to add, however, that of the four, Ringo was his favorite. "He was adorable. He was the huggable one, that's all you ever had to know.

A Superlative Runner

Herschel Walker was a highly recruited running back, and Georgia's Vince Dooley proved to be the lucky coach to land him.

Thursday, Jan. 1 at 2 p.m. on ABC-TV, Walker will test his merit against a team noted for outstanding defense, Notre Dame. The game will be the most coveted of all bowl games this season, because in all likelihood, the national champion will emerge.

The Georgia Bulldogs have been ranked number one in the nation for quite awhile now, and they aren't looking to relinquish it on the final day of their season.

Walker was the second leading rusher in the nation this season, taking a bow only to another superlative running back, George Rogers of South Carolina.

The Georgia freshman was also one of the few freshman ever seriously considered for the Heisman trophy.

This will be his first trip to a game which will go into history. It will all depend on how this freshman can handle the pressure and perform. The Georgia running game is almost totally dependent on his moves and his ability to gain yardage.

The Fighting Irish will not be laying down in front of Walker, waiting for him to gain a couple of hundred yards. They will be fighting Walker and his offensive line every inch of the way.

All American linebacker Steve Crable will be one of the defenders interested in dulling a little of Walker's glory. There is also safety Steve Cichy. Cichy hopes the defensive line and linebackers of Notre Dame will be able to stop Walker short.

If Cichy is forced to make a lot of tackles, it could be a long day for the Irish. Also, one must not forget Notre Dame's strong defensive line end.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — GLEN CAMPBELL says he and TANYA TUCKER will be tying the marital knot on Valentine's Day.

Las Vegas tourists went into a tailspin the other night when they spotted "THOSE AMAZING ANIMALS" co-host JIM STAFFORD having dinner with MARGARET TRUDEAU, ex-wife of the former Canadian Prime Minister.

Playing the 'bad guy' on a daytime series has its drawbacks — just ask NICHOLAS CORTLAND, now seen as Dr. Winston Kyle on "SEARCH FOR TOMORROW." An irate viewer accosted him on the street recently and kicked him in the back! "But the next day, another woman bought me a cone in an ice cream parlor, and that made up for it," he added.

BILL RAFFERTY has no regrets about having spent several years as a professional bill collector. "It was great training for a career in show business," says "REAL PEOPLE'S" roving reporter. "It forced me to learn how to deal with people — and it sure can get crazy at times."

It's generally known that the glow of popularity the OSMONDS once enjoyed has dimmed considerably. It's also common knowledge that the general public harbors many less-than-favorable attitudes about them. But the clan members, especially MARIE, aren't bothered. "We're very close, and my family would do anything for me," she says. "We don't argue, but that doesn't mean we don't disagree sometimes. My family is primarily responsible for my success."

Remember PEGGY ANN GARNER, the child actress who won an Oscar for her performance in the 1945 film "A TREE GROWS IN BROOKLYN"? She's now seen in the recurring role of a kennel manager on "GENERAL HOSPITAL."

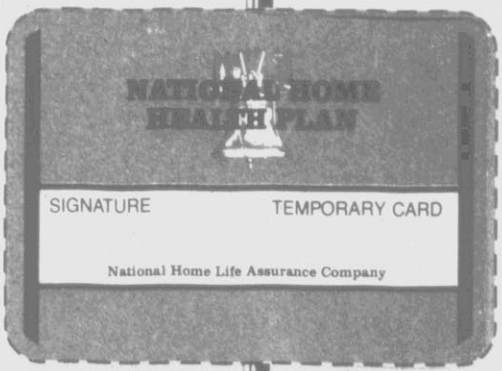
Here is your Temporary Card for

THE NATIONAL HOME HEALTH PLAN



Guarantees Everyone 16-63
Hospital Cash Protection up to . . .

$1,500.00 –A MONTH–

$50.00 –A DAY–

- Benefits paid direct to you.
- Benefits paid for life if necessary.
- Benefits paid in addition to any other company's coverage you have.
- Benefits paid for any covered hospital stay.

National Home Life Assurance Company

"I urge you to read this important message from National Home"

Dear Friend:

This special booklet for the National Home Health Plan contains your Temporary Card . . . a card that can help take the worry out of hospital stays within a few short days from now.

Like most Americans, you must be deeply concerned about how runaway costs affect you. The President recently shocked us with some astounding facts: "Health-care costs are rising $1 million an hour, 24 hours a day—doubling every five years."*

That's why our benefits can be extremely important to you when you have the National Home Health Plan . . . even if you already have a "basic" plan such as a company group plan, or Medicare. Because as good as these plans are, they may not cover all the expenses of hospitalization.

And now you can enjoy the added convenience of charging your premiums on your Visa or MasterCard. It's an automatic record of your payment.

I urge you to read this booklet carefully, discover all the benefits of the National Home Health Plan, sign and keep your Temporary Card and use the enclosed application to get your Hospital Protection Policy.

Sincerely,

Vance L. Clayton

UP TO $1,500.00 A MONTH – $350.00 A WEEK –

Detach, sign and carry this
TEMPORARY CARD

Latest figures from the American Hospital Assoc. report over 37 million Americans landing in the hospital in just one year. And you can be one of them. For many people from North Carolina hospitalization will come suddenly and without warning.

That's when your National Home card can be so important.

If you're hospitalized before you have received your policy, simply call the toll-free "800" number printed on your card. A National Home Service Representative will verify your coverage and help you initiate fast claims action.

CARRY THIS CARD AT ALL TIMES

If you are hospitalized for verification of coverage
Call toll-free (800) 523-7900

As soon as your application form is received and your policy issued, you are eligible for cash benefits for covered hospitalization. Should you be hospitalized before receiving your policy and permanent card, use the toll-free number printed on this card. Your personal Service Representative will verify your coverage and help initiate your claim.

Not Proof of Coverage

- Pays You Benefits
  Our checks are made out direct to you (or anyone you wish). YOU CONTROL this money. How and when you spend it is up to you.
- Pays You Benefits
  For any covered hospitalization from the very first day for covered accidents and after the third day for covered illnesses.
- Pays You Benefits
  In addition to any other company's insurance you may carry.
- Pays You Benefits
  FOR LIFE, if necessary, for any covered accident or illness.

Under 65

$1,500.00 a month
$50.00 a day
You collect from the very first day of hospitalization for accidents and after the third day for illness and for each day thereafter—for life if necessary.

$6,000.00 a month
$200.00 a day
We pay $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) for you—and $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) for your spouse—when any covered accident hospitalizes insured husband and wife at the same time. Yes, you collect $6,000.00 a month ($200.00 a day) in all while both are in the hospital—even for life.

$2,500.00 or $5,000.00
Accidental Loss Benefits
We pay you lump sum cash benefits for complete accidental loss of limbs or eyesight. If you suffer complete loss of a hand or foot or the sight of an eye within 90 days of any covered accident, you collect $2,500.00. Or, you collect $5,000.00 for the loss of two limbs or the sight of both eyes.

When You Reach Age 65

$750.00 a month
$25.00 a day In Addition to Medicare
Upon reaching age 65, you collect $750.00 a month ($25.00 a day) from the very first day of hospitalization for covered accidents and after the third day for covered illnesses. Then, when you have collected $1,500.00 for 60 days of continuous hospitalization, National Home's payments to you will double to $1,500.00 a month ($50.00 a day)! And they continue at this rate for the rest of your hospital stay—for life if necessary.

$3,000.00 a month
$100.00 a day
You collect $3,000.00 a month ($100.00 a day) while both insured husband and wife are hospitalized at the same time for a covered accident.

Everyone Collects

$600.00 a month
$20.00 a day Nurse at Home Benefits
You collect for a registered, licensed practical or vocational nurse for an 8-hour shift at home if your doctor has you hire one within five days following a covered hospital confinement. Benefits continue for as long as your hospital stay—up to one full year.

All North Carolinians 16-63

PLAN

Plan A

$50.00 A DAY

Optional Benefits

$900.00 a month

$30.00 a day Children's Benefits

You collect these benefits when your child is hospitalized for any covered accident or illness, when you have Coverage for Children—no matter how long the confinement may be. Coverage begins the very first day for accidents and after the third day for illnesses.

$50.00 a day

Maternity Benefits

Daily hospital benefits are paid for maternity care in the hospital when Coverage for Children and Maternity Benefits have been added to the basic plan. The woman must be covered for the entire pregnancy. Regardless, complications of pregnancy are covered like any other sickness.

Important:

All cash benefits are not taxable, according to Internal Revenue Service rulings.

And Now You Can Charge It!

By charging your monthly premiums, your protection will always be paid by Visa or MasterCard on time—automatically! You won't have to worry about missing a premium due date, and your monthly charge statement will be a permanent record of your protection. Of course, you can still pay directly to the company, by check or money order if you prefer.

The choice is yours. Either way, you'll enjoy the additional security of the Hospital Plan that pays cash direct to you!

You Are Not Covered For:

Loss due to act of war, mental disease or disorder, or use of narcotics. Pregnancy, unless Optional Maternity Benefits are chosen. Certain confinements or care in facilities (such as nursing or convalescent), as defined in your policy. The first three days of hospitalization due to illness.

Pre-existing Conditions Are Not Covered For The First Year.

Join over 2,000,000 Americans who have National Home's Cash Protection!

Your first month's protection costs only 25¢! Then, depending on the National Home Health Plan you choose, continue for as little as $6.25 a month!

Act now. . . . you cannot be turned down!

The Deductible Feature that saves you money—up to 26%!

Almost everyone has some insurance or savings to take care of a short hospital stay. Hospital coverage for those first few days is very expensive. It can raise your rates as much as 26%. Many of us don't need it and shouldn't have to pay for it.

The National Home Health Plan deductible feature pays you cash benefits from the very first day for accidents and after the third day for illness.

You get the solid protection you need against the big bills of a long hospital stay. Plus, the "3-day deductible period" lets you save on your rates over first day coverage—from 13% to 26% depending on your age and the plan you choose.

Get the most for your premium dollar . . . get the National Home Health Plan with the deductible feature that saves you money.

Now . . . go to the application. Mail it with a quarter in the envelope provided.

That quarter lets you and your entire family try the plan for a full month. If you decide to continue, you may do so at the reasonable rates shown below. But there's no obligation. If you should decide to return your policy within 30 days of receiving it, we'll even refund your quarter.

And now you can pay future premiums by using your Visa or MasterCard. Charge them by supplying your card number below the application. You'll have the opportunity of joining the thousands of National Home policyowners who are already enjoying the convenience of paying for their cash protection through credit cards.

As you can see, this is a no-risk offer. You can't lose. But remember, once you're hospitalized, it's too late to get this protection for that confinement at any price. So mail in your application today.

25¢ covers your entire family the first month.

Then continue, if you wish, at these monthly rates.

A Company You Can Rely On!

National Home Life Assurance Company is headquartered in the historic area of Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. National Home is a member of the National Liberty family of companies.

- NATIONAL HOME protects people in all 50 states and the District of Columbia
- NATIONAL HOME has over $7,000,000,000 (seven billion dollars) of life insurance in force and is currently paying out over $90 million a year in cash benefits under various health insurance plans. We're proud to serve America's growing insurance needs.
- NATIONAL HOME is the nation's leader in making a wide range of life and health insurance products available directly to the consumer.
- NATIONAL HOME has earned an A (Excellent) rating from the A.M. Best Company. A.M. Best is the recognized authority in rating insurance companies solely on financial stability and operating performance.

Before buying, the value-minded consumer should ask...

What if I make a lot of claims? Will you cancel my protection?

Absolutely not, National Home's protection is guaranteed renewable as long as you pay your premiums. We will not cancel your protection because of how many claims you make. We cannot cancel your protection no matter how old you become. Your protection is guaranteed renewable for a lifetime. Only you can cancel.

Suppose I take out coverage at age 49. Will my rate go up the next year when I turn 50?

No! Your rate does not increase with advancing age. If you take out coverage at age 49, you will always pay as if you were 49 no matter how old you become. (As you can see, it's in your interest to apply as soon as possible.) And we can't single you out for a rate increase because of too many claims, either. Your rate can only change if there is a general rate adjustment on all policies of your class in your entire state.

Are you prompt about paying?

You bet! There's no fuss, no unnecessary delay. Our written claims philosophy emphasizes the importance of prompt and equitable settlement of all claims.

And, of course, cash payments are mailed directly to you, unless you prefer to assign your benefits to the doctor or the hospital. All the money is yours to spend as you see fit.

Is there any way I can save on my premiums?

Yes! You can save 5% to 16% if you choose to pay quarterly, semi-annually or annually.

Do I really need this additional cash protection?

Americans now face "health care costs that are rising one million dollars an hour, 24 hours a day!"* Each hour the gap widens between total medical costs and what any one insurance plan can possibly pay. So if you already have basic hospital insurance, keep it! But these days, you need a lot more.

When you're hospitalized, you'll be hit with a whole list of bills that your basic plan may not pay. Bills for things like doctor fees, ambulance, lab tests, blood transfusions...the list is endless. You must pay these extra bills out of your own pocket unless you act now to protect yourself.

That's where the National Home Health Plan comes in. It's additional cash protection that works with your present coverage to support it...not replace it.

So think of your basic hospital insurance and the National Home Health Plan as your "Health Protection Partners". Together they will help you close the gap between what your basic plan pays and the surging cost of today's quality health care.

* President Carter

Here are some of our policyowners who are glad they acted in time!

"Your service was excellent and your claims staff should be recognized for their superb work. The continuing increases in hospital costs are unreal. Your financial help is greatly appreciated."

Mr. Anthony Larios
Belleville, NJ

"I have always been pleased with your company with the knowledge I have of increased medical costs, it's really a comfort to know I have a reputable company to help out in time of need. Thank you."

Kathleen M. Lindas
Kenosha, WI

"Your service was excellent and prompt, which I appreciated very much, since my major insurance didn't cover all the costs. Thank you."

1. No Individual Rate Hikes...

We promise never to single you out for a rate increase...regardless of your age, state of health, or the number of claims you make. Unlike many plans, your rates will not increase automatically when you turn 65...or for that matter, any other age. In fact, your rates can only change if the same action is taken on all policies of this series (NH38-376B) in your entire state.

2. Lifetime Coverage...

This protection is guaranteed renewable for life. You cannot be cancelled no matter how old you become...or how many claims you have...or for any reason whatsoever as long as you pay your premiums. Only you can cancel your coverage. You may have coverage under only one policy of this type.

3. 100% Money Back Guarantee . . .

You must be completely satisfied or your money will be promptly returned. But see your policy first before you decide. If you decide not to keep it, send it back within 30 days of receiving it and we'll promptly refund your quarter. There will be no further obligation.

4. Direct Payment...

We guarantee to pay you direct, or if you prefer, we'll pay your doctor or hospital. You can decide to spend this money any way you see fit. And we pay you regardless of any other company's protection you may now have or may get in the future.

Housewives: Make jobs happen!

FOR SANDRA WINSTON, author of The Entrepreneurial Woman

What advice do you have for a woman like me who wants to be financially independent but has two kids, 5 and 2, and a hard-working construction worker for a husband, with unreliable employment? — E.M., Amarillo, Texas

● Test your entrepreneurial spirit by trying part-time sales, small manufacturing or a service business — all based at home. If you like sales, try to work for a company such as Avon, Mary Kay, Tupperware or Amway. All give excellent training and growth opportunities. If you prefer service or manufacturing, start a typing or baby-sitting service, or try dressmaking, jewelry-making. Research how to price your product or service by checking out competition. Start small... put up notices on community and/or supermarket billboards. Word of mouth is effective.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Why do most New Year's resolutions go down the drain, and do men or women break them more? — W.P., Minot, N.D.

● We checked with psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers, who informed us that "unfullfilled resolutions are usually caused by their being too ambitious or too vague at the time they were made. Specific resolutions are more attainable. It's good to balance a negative with a positive. If you are going to give up something which you know is harmful, replace it with something else, to fill the void. Women are the greatest 'breakers' since they are more prone to focus on negative qualities. A man can stand by a mirror, look at himself and see 'Mr. America.' His wife most likely will stare at her reflection and see a dozen things that are wrong with her."

Bettmann Archive

Those resolutions: Think small.

FOR ROBERT LANSING, star of Island Claws

I saw your Thanksgiving special, Life on the Mississippi, based on Mark Twain's experiences as a riverboat pilot. Were he alive, how do you think he'd feel about the 1980's? — B.C., Wenatchee, Wash.

● He would have enjoyed the death of romanticism. He was not a romantic. He would have been interested in existentialism. He would admire least what he admired least about his own society — self-important people who could not laugh at themselves.

FOR TAMMY GRIMES, star of Broadway's 42nd Street

Was it necessary to try out the show in so many cities, before opening on Broadway? — J.B., Flint, Mich.

● Yes. The purpose of a preview is to gauge audience reaction. That's the time for fixing, trimming, adding. Previews in New York are not the same thing. There is too much pressure and tension. It's much more relaxed out of town. Boston is wonderful for tryouts. It's important to try out comedies. We find that people laugh at different things across the country.

FOR ROBERTA PETERS, Metropolitan Opera soprano

Since you were recently in Peking, give us a "quickie" report — E.R., Westchester, N.Y.

● I found that none of the women wear makeup, except on the stage. We went to the Canton Opera and there the makeup was heavy, but beautifully applied. The women have excellent complexions. Western food is not always available. We had scrambled eggs, toast, jam and coffee for breakfast. But it was difficult to find Western food for lunch or dinner.

FOR DR. J.C. D'AMICO, chairman, Division of Orthopedic Sciences, New York College of Podiatric Medicine

Is it true that most people have one foot bigger than the other? — S.W., Anchorage, Alaska

● Yes, it's true that most people have one foot about a half-size bigger than the other. In right-handed people the left foot has been shown to be larger, and in left-handed people the right foot has been shown to be larger. This difference in size of the feet is probably due to fetal development.

FOR ARNOLD PALMER, professional golfer

If one does not play golf for a while, does one lose one's touch, and how can one stay in form during the winter? — N.M., Parkersburg, W.Va.

● It does not take long to get a little rusty if you take a rest from golf — but the rust comes off quite easily with a little practice. Many people who live in cold climates stay with it in the wintertime by simulating the golf swing, without a club, at regular intervals, just to stay loose and retain the fundamentals of the swing.

FOR LIVIA SYLVA, cosmetologist

Why do you claim that your mother started the Women's Lib movement — in Romania? — L.I., Pittsburg, Kan.

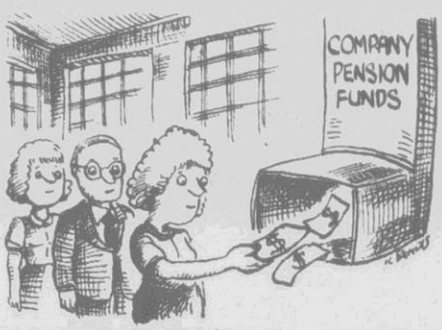
● Because in that country — where I was born — women rarely went out to work, let alone have a professional career. My mother was a doctor, a GP with a private practice. Her hobby was collecting ingredients for complexion creams. She experimented on herself with the result that, at 73, she had the face of a woman at least 20 years younger.

PRO AND CON

Should Pension Plans Be Required for All U.S. Companies?

PRO Donald S. Grubbs Jr., pension consultant

The average worker earns about $12,000 and can expect to receive an annual Social Security benefit, in today's dollars, of about $5,000. This $5,000 will keep him from starving, but, by itself, will not provide an adequate retirement income. Some retirees will enjoy an adequate income because they will receive a good employer pension to supplement Social Security, but most will not receive any pension from their current employer. To solve this problem, we must require every employer to provide a pension for every employee.



CON Everett Allen, chairman, Pension Policy Committee of the Assn. of Private Pension and Welfare Plans

Private pension plans have grown enormously since the middle 40's in terms of people covered, benefits paid and assets accumulated. By eliminating Federal regulatory burdens and creating tax incentives for savings, continued growth of the private system will be encouraged. The cost of mandatory plans might force some employers out of business or some employees to accept lower wages or forgo raises. Ours is a free society. Where possible, it's better to accomplish social objectives on a voluntary rather than a mandatory basis.

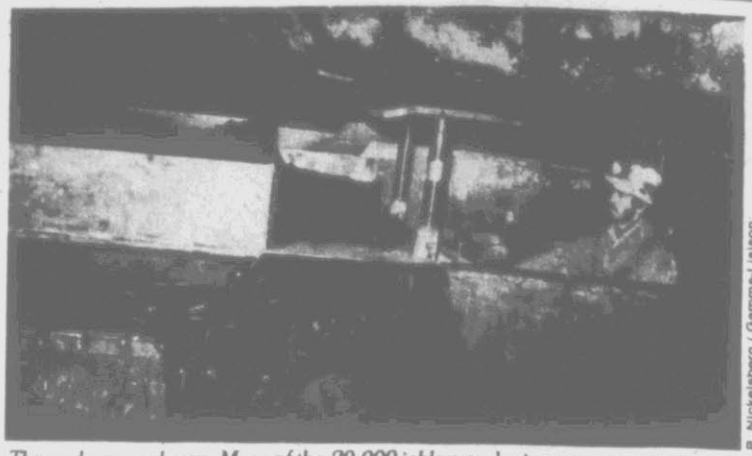
Banking on Coal to Solve Our Energy Woes

More than 25 percent of the world's coal lies right here under U.S. soil. It's far cheaper than oil — so why aren't we using more of it?



R. Nickelsberg / Gamma-Liaison

The underground man: Many of the 20,000 jobless coal miners may return to work.

By Michael D'Antonio

The ships — often more than 100 of them — clog the Chesapeake Bay, forming a misted convoy that stretches beyond the horizon. Patiently waiting their turns at the docks lining Hampton Roads, Va., or to the north at Baltimore, the freighters from Europe and Japan are swarming for cargoes of American coal.

Study after scientific study shows that the United States is "the Saudi Arabia of coal." The numbers are impressive. Coal is the world's most abundant fuel, and more than one-quarter of it lies under American soil. More than 1.7 trillion tons have been mapped by the U.S. Geological Survey, which estimates a similar amount is just waiting to be found. With recoverable reserves of 440 billion tons, America has a supply that could last more than 100 years, even with stepped-up production rates. And economists predict that because coal costs just over one-fourth the price of oil in equivalent energy, many nations' demands for coal could rise 500 percent over the next decade.

On the domestic front, electric utilities in Maine, Massachusetts, New York and other Northeastern states — where imported oil is most heavily used — have been planning and slowly making coal conversions in recent years. At one time, of course, coal had been king in these states, but as inexpensive oil became widely available in the 1950's and 60's and environmental standards were tightened, traditional coal users switched to oil. Then the energy crisis hit.

While it's clear coal could be one of America's strongest weapons in the energy war of the future — and an extremely profitable export — optimistic projections are being scaled down as transportation problems, environmental concerns and technological barriers slow coal's development.

In 1977 President Carter called for a leap in U.S. coal production, from 680 million tons in 1976 to more than 1.2 billion by 1985. He pointed out that while coal accounted for 90 percent of the country's fuel reserves, it held just an 18-percent share of consumption. And with OPEC, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, hiking prices to more than $30 per barrel, coal looked like a stable, logical alternative for America and the world. (Increased coal production could also put some of the 20,000 jobless miners back to work.)

But since Carter's proclamation, Congress has failed to adopt a sweeping, Government-financed program for converting American utilities and industry to coal. Although this year's production is expected to top 800 million tons, industry projections target 1985 levels well below Carter's goal.

The conversion programs have been blocked, in part, due to the efforts of environmentalists. Without expensive "scrubbing" equipment, or de-sulfurization, coal burns with more polluting side effects than oil. Environmentalists are also concerned about large-scale strip mining of Western coal — which lies in shallow deposits — because ecologically damaging techniques must be used to extract the fuel. The cost of restoring strip-mined land, as required by law, has limited development of Western coal reserves.

The technological advances that are expected to make coal cleaner and more efficient also have been slow to come about. While scientists know how to turn coal (even lower-quality Western coal) into clean-burning gas and liquid (synthetic fuel), production facilities for gasification and liquefaction are still several years and billions of dollars away.

"The technology and development of these processes in the United States is coming on much more slowly than we first expected it would," says Rick Fenton, an analyst for the U.S. Senate's Environment and Public Works Committee. The same is true, says Fenton, of new techniques for direct use of coal that will burn the fuel more cleanly. The methods are known, but the practical application of them still lies a way down the road.

The third hurdle facing coal is transportation. While railroad officials say they have plenty of cars and locomotives for moving coal, port facilities are so inadequate that ships often wait weeks to pick up loads bound for export or for American ports far from the mines.

"There are two sides to the problem, most definitely," says Daniel Fields of the West Virginia Coal Association. "The buyers and sellers of coal say the railroads were woefully unprepared for the coal boom, that they weren't looking ahead, and now we've got 100 ships in the Chesapeake Bay waiting to take on coal. The other side is that the railroads say the problem is inexperienced buyers and sellers who aren't coordinating their activities. They say they could handle the volume but the ships are being scheduled incorrectly."

No matter where the blame actually falls, there is definitely a bottleneck in the coal-delivery system, and it's at the docks. The Eastern coal-moving railroads all seem to have plenty of trains, but handling-equipment at dockside is already overburdened.

Though domestic conversions and consumption of coal lag behind Government goals for energy independence, the ships in the Chesapeake Bay bear testimony to an exploding export market for American coal. Foreign nations seeking a steady, low-priced alternative to OPEC oil have discovered American coal, and the demand keeps climbing.

Traditionally, U.S. mines have exported more metalurgical coal for use in steel production than steam coal, which is used for generating electricity and for industrial boilers. But in the past few years delegations of coal buyers from around the world — France, Germany and Japan, for instance — have visited the U.S. and signed big purchase agreements for steam coal. Last June, at an economic summit in Venice, the world's industrialized countries pledged to double their use of coal by 1990.

Coal men are confident that they can supply what America and the world needs. New mines have opened in the Eastern coal states of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Pennsylvania, and most companies report they are operating well below their capacity. Economists say that, by 1990, coal will be the nation's most important export commodity — and with improved coal-burning technology and new synthetic fuel plants, coal production should increase annually by 11 percent or more. People in the industry say they can clean up coal and mine it safely. They also say snags in coal's transportation network can be smoothed out.

Coal will skyrocket because it makes good economic sense. The World Coal Study, conducted by scientists from 16 countries, concluded that coal will have to supply between half and two-thirds of the world's energy needs by the year 2000, compared to 25 percent now. That increase can take place only if the United States becomes part of greatly expanded international coal trading — and decides to make coal the energy king once again. FW

"Books That Shaped My Life"

In which 12 celebrities reveal their love affair with the printed word.

Burt Reynolds, actor
"The first book I ever read was Catcher in the Rye [J.D. Salinger] — it made me a voracious reader, which was a good thing because I was 21 at the time."

Placido Domingo, opera tenor
"As a young boy in Spain touring with my parents' Zarzuela troupe, I always carried around recordings by American tenor Jan Peerce, whose glorious voice was an inspiration. When Mr. Peerce put out his autobiography Bluebird of Happiness, I was probably one of the first to read it. Not only is Jan a great singer but he has always had the courage of his convictions, and is still going strong at 76."

Joyce Carol Oates, author
"Lewis Carroll's marvelous Alice books had a very positive early effect upon me: I loved the narrative pace, the inventiveness, the sheer delight in nonsense, and yet the underlying seriousness of theme. Later, the mystery, unashamed emotion and vivid evocation of setting in Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights probably influenced aspects of my own "Gothic" novel Bellefleur. I was deeply impressed by Hemingway, Faulkner and Dostoyevsky."

Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist
"The Philosophy of Physics [Vincent E. Smith] had an enormous effect on me. It gave me an idea of the delight of physics — if I'd read this book earlier, I might have been a physicist instead of a psychologist. All of Freud's writings were enormously influential on my work. And I love Michener, any Michener. Reading him is like stepping into a different time and place."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson,
President of Operation PUSH
"The Bible has been in the center of my home and life since I was a little boy. Its history, poetry and lessons speak to the condition of all in need of basic human rights in America. Jesus embraced His enemies with love, thus converting them into brothers and sisters. Liberation, turning enemies into friends with love, is the mission of the human rights movement. So, for me, the Bible is a source of inspiration and a guide for our destination."

Dick Cavett, TV host
"My favorite book is The Moonstone, by Wilkie Collins, because it's Gothic and very old. It's interesting enough that it's fun to read and read again."

George Gallup, pollster
"The books that had an important impact on me include James Bryce's The American Commonwealth, the most accurate and revealing observation about the role of public opinion in a democracy — although it was published in 1888."

Gay Talese, author
"Although I am a nonfiction writer my writing style has been influenced by fiction writers such as F. Scott Fitzgerald, Graham Greene, John Fowles, Irwin Shaw. For craft and power of description I often re-read favorite short stories such as Shaw's "Girls In Their Summer Dresses."

James A. Michener, author
"Honoré de Balzac's Le Père Goriot, which I read at 14, staggered me with its vastness and depth and gave me a taste for books not written in English. Arnold Bennett's The Old Wives' Tale showed me how a narrative consisting of many strands could be held together by virtue of great storytelling. A stupendous Dutch work is Max Havelaar by Multatuli, which proved to me that novels could contain anything the author wished to thrust in, provided the writing was done with skill and passion."

Tom Wolfe, author
"First and foremost: Honey Bear, by Dixie Willson, a narrative poem that my mother read to me over and over when I was little and which I quote (or steal from) in small slivers in everything I write.

"Studs Lonigan by James T. Farrell convinced me of the power of realistic prose, and The Grapes of Wrath [John Steinbeck] made me aware of the technical virtuosity possible within that approach."

Tatum O'Neal, actress
"My work requires my traveling a great deal, and I like to read books about particular countries while I'm there. While filming International Velvet in London I was engrossed in Charles Dickens — David Copperfield and Oliver Twist were my favorites. In Japan I read Tale of Genji, [Baroness Murasaki], a fascinating 11th-century adventure, and Kay Thompson's Eloise, set in New York City, is a favorite for trips there.

George Burns, comedian
"Well, I liked all of Horatio Alger. Every book that cost two cents helped my life. In those days you could buy 'em...I used to buy 'em for two cents and sell 'em for three."

if you prefer to just "try out" the club on a trial basis see special offer on next page

Yes, here's a "juke box" that will play your favorite music for hours on end! Just "push the buttons" for the 10 albums you want and write in their numbers on the application. Then fill in the entire application and mail it, together with your check or money order for $1.86 as payment (that's 1¢ for your first 10 selections, plus $1.85 to cover shipping and handling). In exchange, you agree to buy 8 more tapes or records (at regular Club prices) in the next three years.

How the Club operates: every four weeks (13 times a year) you'll receive the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternates from every field of music. In addition, up to six times a year you may receive offers of Special Selections, usually at a discount off regular Club prices, for a total of up to 19 buying opportunities.

If you wish to receive the Selection of the Month or the Special Selection, you need do nothing—it will be shipped automatically. If you prefer an alternate selection, or none at all, fill in the response card always provided and mail it by the date specified. You will always have at least 10 days to make your decision. If you ever receive any Selection without having had at least 10 days to decide, you may return it at our expense.

The tapes and records you order during your membership will be mailed and billed at regular Club prices, which currently are $7.98 or $8.98—plus shipping and handling. (Multiple-unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.) And if you decide to continue as a member after completing your enrollment agreement, you'll be eligible for our generous, money-saving bonus plan.

10-Day Free Trial: we'll send details of the Club's operation with your introductory shipment. If you are not satisfied for any reason whatsoever, just return everything within 10 days for a full refund and you will have no further obligation. So you risk nothing by acting now!

Special Start-Your-Membership-Now Offer: you may also choose your first selection right now—and we'll give it to you for at least 50% off regular Club prices (only $3.99). Enclose payment now and you'll receive it with your 10 introductory selections. This half-price purchase reduces your membership obligation immediately—you'll then be required to buy just 7 more selections (instead of 8) in the next three years. Check box in application and fill in number.

Joanne Woodward and Paul Newman

The Private Life of Hollywood's Adorable, Durable Duo

One day in 1953, four of the most beautiful blue eyes ever seen met. Now 27 years later — 22 as a married couple — the team of Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward is still going strong, both onscreen and off.

By Diane Judge

"Everyone forgets I used to play sexy, voluptuous, loose-living women and made movies like The Stripper," says Joanne Woodward, sporting a foxy smile as she emphatically ties a knot in her needlepoint. "I've been playing dreary schoolteachers for so long that people think that's what I'm really like. Well, I'm not a frump in The Shadow Box. I play Beverly, a flip lady whose needs are more physical than moral. The play is about death, but it's not sad. It's a joyous, revelatory experience."

Joanne is starring in the TV version of The Shadow Box, a Pulitzer-prize winning play about three terminally ill patients and their families. The program — which airs Sunday, December 28 on ABC — is very much a family affair for Joanne. It was co-produced by step-daughter Susan Kendall Newman and directed by husband Paul Newman.

Joanne laughs at her own excitement for the program, and one senses there's a joyous Joanne Woodward emerging from her own personal shadow box. At an age and time of life when many actresses are letting go of slipping careers, she appears to have a tighter grip on her work and life than ever before. She's slimmer, has cut her honey-brown hair becomingly short, and she sort of, well, shines. She is self-assured and obviously "at home in her skin," as the French say. This born-and-bred Southern belle seems to have the work ethics of a Connecticut Yankee, which, of course, by adoption she is, as she and Paul Newman and their children have lived in Westport, Conn., for years.

Joanne admits to feeling personally responsible for the TV version of The Shadow Box, (which also stars Christopher Plummer, Valerie Harper, James Broderick, Sylvia Sidney and Melinda Dillon). "My stepdaughter, Susan, was looking for a project to produce. She has given up acting at the moment because she found she had more creativity and intelligence than she could use as an actress. I remembered the film rights to Shadow Box were available and suggested Susan call Michael Cristofer, the playwright. Susan came home and said, 'Okay, if you'll star, and Dad will direct, I've got a deal.'" Joanne laughs. "What could I say? Yes! that's what.

"I know some may call this nepotism but I call it networking. Networking is an important thing in our lives. The use of a network of friends and influential people is the basis of our community. Anything that helps our community spirit in these troubled times is O.K. by me." A hint of sadness enters her warm voice, and she pauses a moment to reflect on some unspoken thought. "If it's O.K. to network with friends, why not with our families? They need our support and the knowledge that not only do we love them, but we have respect and know their worth." Spreading her needlepoint before her, and returning to her previous conviviality, Joanne mocks what she knows to be true. "Of course, it helps if your family is talented — and mine is."

The two key members of this talented family met in 1953, when both were understudies in the Broadway play Picnic. Paul Newman was married at the time, with three children. Maybe it was because between them, Paul and Joanne have four of the most beautiful blue eyes ever seen, but a few years later they were married and now have three daughters of their own. (Scott Newman, Paul's son from his first marriage, died tragically two years ago at the age of 28.)

Soon after the pair met, their respective careers took off like rockets. Paul became a star with his third movie, Somebody Up There Likes Me, and one of the biggest box office stars of all time with films such as Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, Exodus, The Hustler, Hud, Cool Hand Luke, Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid and The Sting.

Joanne won an Oscar in 1957 for her harrowing portrayal of a woman with three personalities in The Three Faces of Eve, and went on to star in 22 more films, including The Long Hot Summer, From the Terrace (both with Paul), A Fine Madness, Rachel, Rachel, and Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams. (She did take a few years off to raise her kids.) Though she is considered one of the screen's best actresses, the question she is asked most often is not, How have you managed such a long and successful career and raise a family at the same time? Rather it's. What is it like to be married to Paul Newman? A person could get testy, but not Joanne — at least not in public or print.

Joanne never managed to find pat answers for questions such as that one, and the pair have more or less stopped talking to the press. Joanne is a trouper, however, and when there is a special show or project she feels needs help, she will talk. Her problem is that she's just too candid, and she often gets herself and her family in the hot waters of gossip. "I had lunch with my daughter, Lissy, just before an interview the other day," confesses Joanne, "and this 18-year-old says to me, 'Mom, please don't mention my name. Every time you do I get into some kind of social problem.' I wish I could remember just when it was that I stopped being Big Mama in that family.

"There are advantages to getting older, though I don't want to sound like Pollyanna. Paul and I can go out in public more easily. It's almost as if we've become senior citizens and are to be shown some kind of community respect. That's a blessing. I used to go nuts when we were hounded so, and poor Paul was practically publicly stripped. I tried to be philosophical and claim it 'went with the territory' — to quote Arthur Miller. You know, you lost your privacy, but got the best tables in restaurants. Now it's easier to protect our privacy."

Back in 1968 Joanne allowed her husband to direct her in the movie Rachel, Rachel. She was nominated for an Academy Award, but it was the first of several dowdy female roles, and the image most likely encouraged a question she was never asked but heard whispered: What can Paul Newman see in her?

Obviously, he saw a happy, fertile future. The pair have both the time and money to indulge in favorite pastimes — his is racing hot cars, and hers is ballet (she attends performances frequently and takes a class every day). Riding horses is also a current passion, and the Newman-Woodward menage is often seen at convenient horse shows. Joanne's needlepoint should read, "Busy Hands Are Happy Hands," but instead it is a picture of a black and white horse.

Both Joanne and Paul have become ardent directors. Joanne just finished directing a movie for PBS based on Shirley Jackson's last story, "Come Along With Me." Paul regularly returns to his alma mater, Kenyon College, and directs theater. He continues to act, of course, and his upcoming films include Fort Apache and Absence of Malice with Sally Field.

The Shadow Box has been an important project for Paul, too. He admits that he always found the ending of the original play unsatisfactory. So when Cristofer confessed he never could end his plays, both he and Paul changed the ending — for the TV version — to everyone's liking.

"I think what Michael's play has done for me is change a lot of the old ways that I thought about death and dying," says Joanne. "There is a speech in the play where my ex-husband tells me how he only sleeps four hours a night because the sunrises and sunsets have become so precious to him. I realize how many of us have to wait until we are told we are dying before we begin to evaluate what is precious to us. Every day of our lives is the most precious. I'm so thrilled that we could take such an active part in this production. It was a labor of love for all of us. I can't wait till the rest of the clan grows up, and joins us. Then we can have a real nice clan bake."

ALL ABOUT ULCERS

An estimated four million Americans have ulcers. Though doctors have no "cure" to offer, there are some simple ways to ease the pain.

By Gloria Hochman

Trudi Smith

It's a myth that ulcers afflict mainly high-powered male executives. Anybody can have an ulcer—women, blue-collar workers, even children.

Every night, 35-year-old Michael sinks into his bed, exhausted after a pressure-packed day as an executive for an advertising agency. But he knows that two hours later, he will be jolted out of a deep sleep with a gnawing pain in his upper abdomen. He will creep out of bed, head for the kitchen and soothe his discomfort with a two-inch wedge of pound cake and a glass of milk.

Sara, 27, a production-line worker at a clothing factory, doesn't have any trouble sleeping. But a couple of hours after every meal, she experiences a burning sensation in her stomach. At first, she thought it was caused by the heavily spiced food she ate frequently. But even when she changed to a very bland diet, she still had trouble. Sometimes, there are weeks of intermittent misery, followed by pain-free periods. But the burning sensation always returns.

Michael and Sara are two of an estimated four million Americans with peptic ulcers. One in every 10 men and one in every 25 women will probably develop this condition during their lives. Although the pain can be severe and sometimes incapacitating, the disorder is not usually serious, rarely shortens life expectancy and, most often, can be treated through simple medication.

A peptic ulcer is a hole, usually one-quarter to one-half inch in diameter, in the lining of the stomach or of the duodenum (the first portion of the small intestine below the stomach). It develops in these areas of the gastrointestinal tract because they are bathed with digestive juices (containing acid and a substance called pepsin) secreted by the stomach. Usually these juices help digest food, but, for unknown reasons, some individuals produce excess acid or cannot tolerate the normal amount of acid they secrete. Patients with duodenal ulcers (the more common type) tend to produce too much acid. Those with gastric ulcers cannot tolerate normal amounts of acid. A distinctive feature of ulcers is their tendency (as in Sara's case) to heal, only to recur weeks, months or even years later.

Traditionally, the high-powered executive under stress was thought to be the most likely ulcer candidate. However, there is no reliable evidence that this is true. In fact, studies show that unskilled male wage earners tend to be the most prone to develop ulcers.

Some people do have a greater tendency to develop ulcers. They include:

- persons whose close relatives have ulcers. Recent research indicates that susceptibility to ulcers is inherited.
- persons with blood type "O," which is associated, in some people, with increased production of pepsin, a stomach enzyme.
- heavy smokers.
- heavy aspirin users. One study in a clinic for arthritics showed that of patients who had taken three or more grams of aspirin a day for more than three months, 25 percent developed ulcers. This was true, whether or not the aspirin was "buffered" (coated to reduce the chance of stomach upset). However, many of these patients had no symptoms, and their ulcers were discovered only by endoscopic (instrument) examination of the stomach.
- persons being treated with steroids, such as prednisone, for long periods of time.

Diet, long thought to be a culprit in instigating the disorder, is now considered to have little bearing on either the development of or the course of an ulcer, although eating anything will usually bring relief from pain (the protein in food acts as a buffer). "Ulcer diets" have been abandoned as useless by many practitioners, and patients are no longer burdened with the nuisance of frequent meals, bedtime snacks or spice-free dinners.

There is considerable controversy over whether or not drinking alcohol increases the risk of developing ulcers. Contrary to myth, there are some practitioners who believe that moderate or even heavy drinking has no bearing on ulcer formation or perpetuation. But Dr. William H. Lipshutz, associate professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania and head of the section of gastroenterology at Philadelphia's Pennsylvania Hospital, forbids his patients to use alcohol.

Until recently, the overwhelming number of those with ulcers were men; however, the rates are becoming more equal among men and women. Few children suffer from ulcers, but it happens occasionally. In these cases, early detection and treatment are important because children tend to have higher risk of complications.

Most patients experience the discomfort of ulcers — usually a burning, gnawing feeling — for a long time before seeking medical help. Often, physicians can diagnose the condition merely by taking a family history and listening to patients' description of their symptoms. More definitive diagnosis is obtained through an X-ray of the gastrointestinal tract or through endoscopy (examination of the stomach through an instrument). When blood is found in the stool or there is a history of vomiting or back pain in addition to typical complaints, the patient may be hospitalized for further studies.

In the overwhelming majority of cases, the patient can be treated with medication. Antacid medications may be prescribed, commonly in doses of one ounce, to be taken one to three hours after meals and at bedtime. The active ingredient in antacids (magnesium-aluminum hydroxide) seems to be effective in reducing gastric acidity and, for many patients, brings prompt relief from pain. About 80 percent of ulcers subsequently heal in four or five weeks. The main side effects of antacids, especially those with a high content of magnesium hydroxide as opposed to aluminum hydroxide is diarrhea.

Increasing numbers of physicians are recommending cimetidine (Tagamet), a drug which has been used on about 15 million patients throughout the world since 1976. It has been marketed for use in this country to treat ulcers since 1977, and there have been claims that it is more effective than antacids, especially in preventing the recurrence of duodenal ulcers. Few side effects have been reported.

Though the majority of ulcer patients never develop complications, some do experience such problems as internal bleeding (20 percent of cases), perforation of the entire thickness of the wall of the duodenum or stomach (5 percent of cases) or blocking or slowing the emptying of food from the stomach to the intestine (2 percent of cases). Where these problems are evident, the patient requires additional study, and possibly surgery. (Surgery for ulcers involves either cutting the stimulatory nerve to the stomach or removing the part of the stomach that produces hormones that secrete acid.)

John, a 50-year-old engineer, who underwent surgery last year, reports, "I have felt fine ever since. The surgery was uneventful, and I got back to work and to my regular routine quickly."

Although the incidence of ulcers has declined dramatically in the last 20 years (no one knows why), Dr. Lipshutz says that, in most cases, "once an ulcer patient, always an ulcer patient. I think the use of antacids or Tagamet for long periods is important. If patients adhere to their medication schedules, there is no reason why they should not live normal, healthy lives." FW

As your metabolism slows down gaining weight is easier, losing weight is harder.

ANNOUNCING: The META-TAB diet tablet system. Finally, a diet tablet plan that tackles the REAL reason for adult weight gain, the slowdown in metabolism that comes after age 30.

Just because you're getting older, doesn't mean you have to get fatter.

Medical Science has finally developed a diet tablet program that's specifically designed to off-set the slowdown in metabolism that comes with getting older. It's called the META-TAB Diet Tablet System. This incredible new tablet system is specially formulated for people over 30 years of age who have experienced this metabolic slowdown.

Never before has a diet pill system dealt with this wide-spread, universal problem that affects almost everyone. The META-TAB Diet Tablet System actually speeds up the body's slow, fat burning metabolism. It forces the body to burn fat at an awesome rate of speed.

NOW YOU CAN QUICKLY BURN UP 10, 20, EVEN 50 LBS. OR MORE

With the META-TAB System, you speed up your slowing fat burning metabolism. As you accelerate this metabolism, you quickly begin to shed pounds. Never before have weight loss results been so dramatic (short of total fasting). Watch in amazement as you:

- LOSE up to 6 lbs. the first 48 hours
- LOSE up to 10 lbs. the first 7 days
- Continue to LOSE 20, 30, 40 lbs. or more

The reason the META-TAB System is so effective, is that it tackles one of the biggest reasons for adult weight gain, SLOWING METABOLISM. Remember, this program attacks the problem at its source.

NOW, GETTING OLDER DOESN'T MEAN GETTING FATTER

Now, you don't have to gain weight as you become older. On the contrary, with the help of the META-TAB System, you can now lose more weight than you ever thought possible. By dramatically speeding up your fat burning metabolism, excess fat is burned off at a rapid and steady rate. If you're over 30, chances are you know how hard it is to lose weight. And it seems like it gets harder and harder as times goes by. BUT NOT ANYMORE.

The META-TAB Diet Tablet System launches you on the most incredible fat burning spree ever. By stepping up your fat burning metabolism, you can oxidize 20, 30, 40 lbs. or more. Since calorie intake is reduced, you lose weight. Naturally, the amount of weight and the number of inches you can quickly lose depends on how much you are over your ideal weight.

As you continue with the META-TAB System, you soon find yourself getting closer and closer to your weight loss goal. Then, in record time, you reach your ideal weight. Finally, you have achieved that slim, sexy, beautiful figure you've always wanted. And that's just the beginning.

After you have reached your goal, the META-TAB Diet Tablet System is actually formulated to help you maintain your new slim figure for years and years, without gnawing hunger pangs.

VITAL NOTICE

The META-TAB Diet Tablet system is an extremely fast and effective means to conquer obesity. Even though the system causes people to drop pounds and shrink inches rapidly, it is still safe. However, before beginning this or any other weight loss program, you should check with your physician to make sure you are in normal health. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes or thyroid disease, should only use as directed by their physician.

META-TAB CONTROLS HUNGER

The META-TAB Diet Tablet contains one of the strongest and most effective appetite suppressors found anywhere. With the META-TAB SYSTEM, hunger simply does not interfere with your weight loss program. Refusing fattening foods like candies and desserts will be easier than ever.

The META-TAB formula is so effective that some people want to stop eating altogether. But this is absolutely NOT recommended. A nutritious eating plan is part of the META-TAB System. Naturally, when you reduce calories you lose weight.

The META-TAB Diet Tablet System is fast and effective. It controls hunger and raises your energy level. As it accelerates your fat burning metabolism, fat deposits and bulges are quickly burned up. Results are fantastic.

WATCH AS YOU:
LOSE up to 6 INCHES off your WAIST
LOSE up to 5 INCHES off your HIPS
LOSE up to 3 INCHES off your THIGHS

Yes, all this but WITHOUT crash dieting, WITHOUT brutal exercise, and WITHOUT gnawing hunger pangs.

Doctors And Experts Agree: "IT'S THE BEST DIET PILL EVER"

Doctors, Medical Journals, and National publications have been giving the META-TAB formula rave reviews. Here's what just some of the experts have been saying about the META-TAB Tablet formula:

"An amazing weight loss pill has been developed that will enable virtually anyone to reduce easily — without trying to diet, without giving up favorite foods — and with no fear of dangerous side effects."
Nation's Largest Newspaper

"One of the best things in our arsenal against obesity... any normal person will lose weight... even people with unhealthy diets, who don't improve their eating habits."
M.D. Top Obesity Specialist
Long Island Hospital

Also, a panel of experts for the U.S. Government has found the formula to be both safe and effective. Now, millions of overweight people nationwide can reach and maintain their ideal weight faster and easier than ever before.

A NEW WAY OF LIFE IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

The rewards of fast weight loss are overwhelming. After you have achieved your new figure, friends and relatives will look in amazement. People you haven't seen in years will be astonished by the new you. Compliments on your new appearance will probably be an every day occurance. And there's more.

- MORE self-confidence
- MORE sex appeal
- MORE energy
- MORE attractive figure
- GREATER zest for life

With the new META-TAB Diet Tablet System, you can combat the slow metabolism that comes with age. Now you can finally burn off those excess pounds faster and easier than ever before. Finally, a diet tablet plan that tackles the Real reason for adult weight gain, the slowdown in metabolism that comes after age 30. And it's guaranteed.

WE DON'T PROMISE RESULTS WE GUARANTEE THEM

If you want the experience of shedding years of built-up fat, then this remarkable new META-TAB system is for you. Finally a diet pill program that attacks the real reason for adult weight gain is available to the general public. We urge you to try the META-TAB system at our risk. If you are not happy in every way with it, simply return the unused portion within 30 days and you'll receive a full refund — No questions asked.

Please order right this minute, while you're still thinking about it. The sooner we receive your order, the sooner you can be on your way to a thinner, more attractive you. Please order now, without delay.

Cold-Weather Dressing Can Be Fun

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Ergonomics. It sounds like something to do with the economy, but it is actually the scientific word for the study of how humans interact with their environment — including the weather. Within the broad field of ergonomics, scientists use the term "Clo unit" to describe the insulation provided by an item of clothing against the air temperature.

These studies are not only fascinating to scientists. They have given us helpful information for keeping the chill from our bones when the mercury drops.

The body, like a house, is kept warm in cold weather through insulation — in the body's case, provided by clothing. Since air is the best form of insulation, several thin-but-warm layers of clothing — with air sandwiched in between — will keep you warmer than a single, heavy piece of clothing.

A good way to stay healthy in winter is to use layering to maintain a comfortable body temperature so that you neither perspire nor shiver. Wearing several layers of clothing can be helpful when you're shopping, for instance, because you can add and subtract layers depending on whether you're indoors or out. And, if you're working indoors, layers are great for keeping you cozy and the thermostat turned down.

The experts tell us that the best outdoor outfit for winter dressing should always include a covering for your head and ears because about 50 percent of body heat is lost through the head. A wool-knit cap is your best choice, since the air trapped within the fibers will help maintain body warmth. Next, protect your neck and chest. A good idea is to layer a knitted scarf over a thin silk one, particularly on bitter cold mornings. A vest or sweater, layered between a blouse and jacket, is a good source of added warmth. Beneath, you might wear a leotard and tights or a thermal T-shirt and long johns if you want extra protection.

Tight clothing is out in winter — especially around your feet or hands — because it encourages the constriction of blood vessels. Mittens are better than gloves for warmth. But, if you'd rather wear gloves, remember that loose-pile or silk-lined leather ones tend to be warmer than tight knitted styles. Warmer yet, are knitted gloves worn under an oversized leather pair.

Tight-fitting boots (or those in unlined rubber) tend to make feet more sensitive to cold. Instead of a pair of thick socks, choose a thin pair of wool or cotton-knit socks layered over tights.

Last, complete your winter dressing with a water- and wind-resistant outer layer, be it a simple windbreaker or a down or polyester-filled quilted jacket or coat.

Remember, wool clothing generally provides more warmth than other materials. Cotton and silk add comfort because they permit perspiration to evaporate. And now there is a new synthetic fiberfill called Thinsulate being used as thermal insulation in outerwear. It's designed to give superior warmth without bulk.

Look smart in a chill-chasing down coat, blazer and muffler. By Bill Blass.

Shopping for Outerwear

1. Pay careful consideration to garment design and construction. Look for features such as: knit cuffed sleeves and pants, which will prevent cold air from entering the garment, or for snap or Velcro-type closures that can adjust cuffs, necklines and hoods for greater warmth.

2. Check the garment's outer shell. A tightly woven material such as nylon or a polyester cotton blend will prevent the wind from penetrating.

3. If you opt for a quilted style, look for one that has widely spaced quilt lines. A quilt line compresses the insulation, reducing its effectiveness and creating a heat-loss area.

4. Finally, be wise to correct garment fit. If the garment is too tight, it will compress the insulation. Too loose a fit is equally bad because cold air can enter so freely. When trying on a garment, take time to move, bend and stretch in it. FW

Recipe Bouquet at the Close Of the Year

By Marilyn Hansen

This week, at the brink of the new year, we bring you a collection of 1980 recipes that our own FAMILY WEEKLY readers have asked for repeatedly in their letters from all over the country. Happy New Year to all of you and keep those letters coming!

JAMES BEARD'S "CHICKEN WITH FORTY CLOVES OF GARLIC"

"This is a Provençal recipe I taught for years in my classes — and which never failed to astonish the students. They couldn't believe we would use 40 garlic cloves, but the slow braising softens the garlic to a lovely buttery consistency and delicate flavor."

8 chicken legs and thighs (or use 16 legs or thighs)
4 ribs celery, cut in long strips
2 medium onions, chopped
6 sprigs parsley
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon (or 1 teaspoon dried)
½ cup dry vermouth
2½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
Grated nutmeg
40 cloves garlic, unpeeled

1. Put the oil in a shallow dish; add the chicken pieces, coating with oil.
2. Cover the bottom of a heavy 6-quart casserole with a mixture of the celery and onion; add the parsley and tarragon and lay the chicken pieces on top.
3. Pour the vermouth over all; sprinkle with the salt, pepper and a dash or two of nutmeg and tuck the garlic cloves around and between the chicken pieces.
4. Cover the top of the casserole tightly with aluminum foil and then the lid (this creates an airtight seal so the steam does not escape).
5. Bake in a preheated 350°F. oven for 1½ hours without removing the cover.
6. Serve the chicken, pan juices and whole garlic cloves with thin slices of heated French bread or hot toast. The garlic should be squeezed from the root end of its papery husk onto the bread or toast, spread like butter and eaten with the chicken. Makes 8 servings

SHEPHERD'S PIE

1 medium onion, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups cooked roast beef, coarsely ground or diced
1½ cups beef gravy or 1 can (10½ ozs.) beef gravy
1 teaspoon oregano leaves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
4 cups seasoned mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

1. Sauté onion and celery in butter until tender. Stir in meat, oregano and gravy. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire. Heat through.
2. Pour hot mixture into buttered shallow 2-quart casserole.
3. Spoon mashed potatoes over hash. Sprinkle with cheese and paprika. Bake at 350°F. for 40 minutes. Makes 6 servings

SAUSAGES PROVENÇAL

2 lbs. sweet Italian sausages
2 cups dry white wine
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup coarsely chopped onion
4 cloves garlic, coarsely chopped
3 large tomatoes, peeled and chopped
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon basil leaves
2 teaspoons sugar
½ cup chicken broth
2 pkgs. frozen (10-oz. size) lima beans, thawed
¼ cup chopped parsley
Salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Place sausages in heavy skillet. Pour in 1 cup wine and ½ cup water. Heat to boiling, then reduce the heat. Cook, uncovered, until liquid has reduced by one-half.
2. Pour off liquid; reserve. Heat skillet and brown sausages well on all sides. Remove from skillet; set aside.
3. In same skillet in 2 tablespoons butter or in drippings, cook onion and garlic until browned, stirring. To skillet, add reserved sausage cooking liquid, tomatoes, pepper, bay leaf, basil and sugar. Cook 3 minutes and add remaining wine, chicken broth and sausages; cook, uncovered, three minutes longer.
4. Add lima beans and 2 tablespoons parsley. Cover and cook slowly for 45 minutes longer, stirring occasionally.
5. Season to taste with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Sprinkle with remaining parsley. Makes 6 servings

SPICED BUTTERMILK POUND CAKE

1 cup granola or coarsely chopped walnuts
2 tablespoon sugar
3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup butter or margarine
2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup buttermilk or sour milk*
Creamy Vanilla Frosting
3 tablespoons granola

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease well and flour a 10-inch tube pan.
2. Combine granola and sugar and sprinkle on bottom of pan.
3. On large sheet of waxed paper, stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg.
4. In large bowl, beat butter until softened; gradually add sugar and continue beating until light.
5. Add eggs and vanilla; beat until light and fluffy.
6. At low speed, beat in flour mixture (in fourths) alternately with buttermilk (in thirds), beginning and ending with flour mixture; beat only until combined.
7. Spoon batter over granola in prepared tube pan. Bake 60 to 65 minutes or until a cake tester, inserted in center, comes out clean.
8. Cool in pan on wire rack, about 10 minutes, then turn out on rack and cool completely.
9. Frost the top with Creamy Vanilla Frosting and sprinkle with a little additional granola. Makes 12 to 16 servings

*To sour milk: place 1 tablespoon vinegar in measuring cup; add milk to fill to 1 cup level.

CREAMY VANILLA FROSTING

⅓ cup butter or margarine, softened
3½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar
3 or 4 tablespoons light cream or milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract

1. In medium bowl, with electric mixer at medium speed, or wooden spoon, beat butter with sugar, 3 tablespoons cream and vanilla until smooth and fluffy.
2. If frosting is too thick to spread, add remaining tablespoon cream.

Makes enough to fill and frost an 8- or 9-inch layer cake; frost a 13 × 9 × 2-inch cake or 10-inch tube pan

SOUR DOUGH STARTER

3½ cups unsifted, strong, bread-type flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 pkg. active dry yeast
2 cups warm water

1. Combine flour, sugar and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl. Gradually add warm water to dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Cover with transparent wrap; let stand in warm place for 2 days.

To use in recipe: Measure out amount called for in recipe and use as directed.

To replenish starter: To remaining starter, add 1½ cups strong bread-type flour and 1 cup warm water. Beat until smooth. Store, covered, in warm place. Stir before using. If not used in one week, remove 1½ cups starter and follow directions for replenishing.

ONION SOUR DOUGH BREAD

1½ cups Sour Dough Starter (see recipe)
3¾ cups (about) unsifted, strong, bread-type flour
3 tablespoons sugar
2½ teaspoons salt
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon cornmeal
Egg white, beaten
1 tablespoon water
⅔ cup finely chopped onion
Caraway seed

1. Two days ahead, prepare Sour Dough Starter.
2. Combine 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast in a large bowl.
3. Combine milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquid is very warm (120°F.-130°F.). Margarine does not need to melt.
4. Gradually add milk-margarine mixture to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.
5. Add 1½ cups starter and ¼ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally.
6. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 3 to 10 minutes.
7. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
8. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half. Cover; let rest 15 minutes. Shape as desired (see below).
9. Place on greased baking sheets which have been sprinkled with cornmeal where dough is to be placed. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
10. Combine egg white, and water. Brush mixture generously over loaves. Top loaves with chopped onion and sprinkle with caraway seed.
11. Bake in preheated 400°F. oven about 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

LARGE LONG LOAVES

Roll each half of dough into an oblong, 12" × 8". Tightly roll from 12-inch side; pinch seam to seal. Pinch ends and fold underneath.

SMALL ROUND LOAVES

Divide each half of dough in half again. Form each piece into a round ball; flatten slightly. Makes 2 large long loaves or 4 small round loaves

Liquidation Sale for Visa and MasterCard Holders— FREE GENUINE DIAMOND for participants responding by Midnight, Dec. 30.

This is to inform all area cardholders in good standing that you are credit-rated to participate in a precious stone liquidation sale.

To liquidate a $2,000,000.00 inventory immediately, Poole's Ltd. Gem Liquidators has been authorized by a cash-starved gem dealer to offer a Free .25 pt. genuine Diamond (mounted in jewelers setting) to participants entering the sale today through a toll-free telephone call. The only good-faith purchase required is a single parcel of 3 fully faceted, polished precious stones consisting of a genuine emerald, a genuine ruby and a genuine sapphire, a total of 3 carats, all for $14. (This is no misprint). You may use your credit card to acquire as many parcels as you wish until our liquidation inventory is sold out. To avoid disappointment, we ask you to phone early. (Deadline for calling in your order and claiming your Free gift: Midnight Dec. 30). Orders will be shipped fully covered by Certificates of Authenticity legally binding for your protection.

Anyone in the trade who reads this announcement will see this $14 sale price for the insider's opportunity it is: a price not fixed by retail or wholesale value but under emergency conditions which force a cash-short dealer to go outside normal distribution channels for instant cash on an inventory by liquidation.

There's no obligation beyond your $14 payment per 3-stone parcel plus $1 for shipping, handling and insurance. (Note: If you're a gem dealer disclosure of your resale number is required by law).

All purchases are returnable within 90 days—by anyone in the trade or not—for a prompt refund.

You are not obligated to return the diamond, which is given to you absolutely free without conditions to cardholding participants.

High Tars Finish Second To Merit!

MERIT low tar/good taste combination scores convincing 3 to 1 victory over high tar leaders.

There's a low tar cigarette that's challenging high tar smoking—and winning.

The cigarette: MERIT.

High Tars Finish Second

Latest research proves smokers prefer MERIT.

Blind Taste Tests: In tests where brand identity was concealed, a significant majority of smokers rated the taste of low tar MERIT as good as—or better than—leading high tar brands. Even cigarettes having twice the tar!

Smoker Preference: Among the 95% of smokers stating a preference, the MERIT low tar/good taste combination was favored 3 to 1 over high tar leaders when tar levels were revealed!

Long-Term Satisfaction: In the latest survey of former high tar smokers who have switched to MERIT, 9 out of 10 reported they continue to enjoy smoking, are glad they switched, and report MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried!

MERIT is the proven alternative to high tar smoking. And you can taste it.

I praise my mother's cooking,
She had a special touch.
Her seasoning was never Too little or too much.

She rarely used a notebook
Or asked a recipe.
Her instinct and her genius
Sufficed, as one could see.

I praise my mother's cooking,
I've done so all my life,
But not, I have to tell you,
In the presence of my wife.

It had been a violent snowstorm high in the mountains, and a team of Red Cross rescuers set out on its noble task. First by helicopter, then on snowshoes, the team slid, stumbled and climbed a mountain to a cabin. The rescuers pounded on the door, and soon it opened. "We're from the Red Cross," one of the team announced.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Happiness: Is It Where You Live — or How?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. How satisfied you are with life is likely to depend on where you live.
2. The happiest people are those with the fewest responsibilities.
3. One of the cardinal elements in achieving happiness is to be yourself.
4. Most people would be happy if they had more money.
5. In terms of happiness and life satisfaction, the quality of life in this country has improved over the last two decades.

ANSWERS

1. True. It is concluded from studies at the University of Michigan that "Americans differ in their satisfaction with life according to where they live. It is not the region of the country in which they live that makes a difference or the vagaries of the weather. It is the surrounding social environment (the personal relationships with others) which is associated with people's sense of well-being. In general, the larger the surrounding population, the less likely the individual is to express satisfaction, not only with his or her neighborhood and community, but also with life in general."

2. False. University of Maryland studies defined responsibility "not as obligation but managing one's life..." The extent to which the exercise of responsibility characterized a person's lifestyle tended to go hand-in-hand with the degree of happiness and satisfaction derived from living.

3. True. Until you can act naturally, according to your own nature, you will never be really happy — and that the more you act like yourself, the nearer you will come to the fulfillment of your own needs. Studies at the University of Florida on the dynamics of human relationships bear this out.

4. False. The results of the University of Michigan study (cited above) indicated: People tend to overestimate the effects that additional income would have on their lives. It is inadequate as a predictor of satisfaction in areas of life concerned with relating — marriage, family life and friendships. And it also fails to relate to the most important contribution to satisfaction with life, one's satisfaction with self.

5. True. But it would be so only for some people and false for others. Surveys conducted by the Institute for Social Research have shown that the last two decades have not been years of tranquility in this country. And it is concluded from the data that the quality of life has improved for some parts of the population and declined for others and that the overall balance was moderately negative. The investigators note that...while the country has become less happy (on the whole), happiness is more evenly distributed, and in this sense our society has become more just. FW

Woman turns $1 into $18,000.00 in Las Vegas by using her Personal Biorhythm Analysis

By PAUL VANDERWIST

It was the best birthday Mrs. Sturm could have ever hoped for. On July 14th, Mrs. Audrey Sturm left her home in La Puenta, California for Las Vegas equipped with only $150 and her personal Biorhythm Analysis. As it turned out, she didn't need the $150.

Mrs. Sturm planned her trip this week because her Biorhythm Analysis said she was having an eight day Biorhythm Hot Streak. After a few days of winning steadily at "21" ($300.00) and Bingo ($250.00) she decided to go for the big money. Buying a $1 Keno ticket with 8 spots, Mrs. Sturm quickly collected $18,000.00.

Mrs. Sturm described the experience in her own words: "My eyes could not believe the results posted on the Keno board! There is no doubt in my mind that I would have missed all of this, if I had not known when my Biorhythm Triple High Jackpot Days were!"

Mrs. Sturm is not the only person who wagered a little money to win a lot. People nationwide have been dazzled by how easy it is to quickly turn small pocket change into an immense fortune by using Biorhythm.

AUDREY STURM CASHED IN again and again by following the advice of her personal Biorhythm Analysis.

Here are just a few other stories of people who risked very little and cashed in very big by simply letting their Biorhythm Analysis point the way to riches.

"I hardly believe this myself, but I have PROOF. Walking thru a local casino today, I dropped a nickel in a special slot machine and wow! Four sevens lined up for a payoff of $1417.85! The kicker? Today was the first day that my Biorhythm Analysis code reads Triple High Jackpot Day."

Mrs. June Morgan
Reno, Nevada

"On my first Triple High Jackpot Day, I played the Pick-4 numbers game in New Jersey No. 2887. When I called that night and heard the winning number, I couldn't believe it. No. 2887 came up and paid $3,203!"

Joseph Kowalczyk
Newark, New Jersey

Of course, hundreds more people have experienced phenomenal luck using their personal Biorhythm Analysis. But before I tell about some of the other amazing success stories, let me first explain a little about Biorhythm.

WHAT IS BIORHYTHM?

The word Biorhythm is derived from the Greek words 'bio' meaning life and 'rhythmos' meaning regulated beats. There is considerable evidence that we all have three Life Beats (Biorhythm Cycles) 1. A 23 day Physical Cycle, governing energy and sexual stimulation 2. A 28 day Emotional Cycle, governing love and happiness. 3. A 33 day Mental Cycle, governing money and career. These three Biorhythm cycles begin the day we are born and flow throughout our entire lives. They alternate between high and low cycles. When at least two Biorhythm Cycles are on high, you experience a Multi-High Jackpot Day. When at least three cycles hit on exactly the same day, you experience a Triple High Super Jackpot Day. Everyone has these special days. Unfortunately, most people do not take advantage of them.

RESEARCH BREAKTHROUGH

The Biorhythm Research Association was interested in learning if it was really true that good luck was immensely greater on multi-high jackpot days. To help the Association's research, hundreds of people across the country had their personal Biorhythm Analysis prepared and reported what happened when they used their analysis. Because of limited space, we have listed only a few of their remarkable stories.

"This was just unbelievable! On anticipating my first triple high jackpot day, I talked my husband into going to the racetrack much against his wishes. He hit a daily double, and I myself hit not one mind you, but four exactas. All in one day – this never happened before coming home with a total of $500.00 (in one day)."

Dolores Juliano
Asbury Park, N.J.

"On October 10th while in Reno, Nevada, I experienced a multi-high jackpot day. I marked a keno ticket. I was elated when 7 out of 8 numbers were called for a cash total of $2,391.90."

Elizabeth Leber
Pittsburg, CA

JACKPOT DAYS! When two or more Biorhythm Cycles hit high on exactly the same day, you experience a Biorhythm Multi-High Jackpot Day.

BINGO BONANZA

"After going to the same place to play Bingo for 5 years and only winning small amounts, I found out when my Biorhythm Jackpot Days were and only went then. I finally hit one the big one for $1200.00. Now I won't go except on Multi-High Jackpot Days. My husband laughed before, but not now."

Mrs. Shirley Jones
Homestead, Florida

WIN BIG AT THE RACES

"Not having ever won anything in my life, I decided I needed help. So I used my Biorhythm Chart. I was very skeptical of the whole thing. But you have made a believer out of me. The trifecta that I played on my jackpot day came in and paid $500.00."

Mrs. Gilbert Lea
Flushing, New York

NEW CAR

"On August 17th, I won a new Camaro car worth over $7,000.00 on a local T.V. show. The contest had been going on for several weeks and I sent my cards on my jackpot days. The chances of being called must have been one in thousands as the drum was loaded. I enter contests and now watch my Biorhythm very close. Thanks for introducing me to the Biorhythm system. I am truly grateful."

Mrs. Ruth Wilson
Fillmore, California

More recently, Mrs. Wilson won a Sunfish sailboat and a 22 foot Crestline stern drive motor boat. Mrs. Wilson has to date won 17 big prizes valued at over $16,000.00, by using her personal Biorhythm Analysis.

Nobody mentioned in this article ventured very much money to win big. When you are equipped with your personal Biorhythm Analysis, you simply don't need to. With Biorhythm, the odds can be greatly in your favor.

Omar Watts was a 59 year old nightwatchman struggling to support a wife and five children. On October 27, his Biorhythm Analysis indicated a Triple High Jackpot Day. It was on this day that Omar chose to quit his job as a nightwatchman. His purchase of a 50¢ ticket had just won him Ohio's first million dollar lottery.

The Biorhythm Research Association has just about completed all their research. But they are still interested in gathering more names of big jackpot winners. If you sent them your birth date, they will individually prepare your one year – 365 day Biorhythm Analysis. Along with your Analysis, you will receive a research blank, which will offer you cash incentives to simply tell the Association all about the unbelievable luck, love, wealth, success and happiness your Biorhythm Analysis has brought you.

MRS. AUDREY STURM COULD NOT STOP WINNING IN VEGAS – Thanks to her personal Biorhythm Analysis. Biorhythm is the measurement of the up and down flow of your mental, physical, and emotional life cycles. When the three cycles are high, you experience a Triple High Jackpot Day. Mrs. Sturm's Biorhythm cycles for the week of July 14th are superimposed over the scene of her $18,000.00 triumph, the Golden Nugget. This article explains how you can have your own analysis prepared and learn your Biorhythm Jackpot Days.

HOW IS AN ANALYSIS PREPARED?

A Biorhythm Technician will process your birth information. Your keypunched card will be fed into a giant IBM 370 – 145 computer. The computer will then complete the complicated calculations to determine the positions of your Biorhythm Cycles every day for the coming year. Your Biorhythm Analysis will not be preprinted, as the computer individually prepares each analysis just like a person would. But the computer's tremendous speed enables the Association to prepare reports for the public at low costs.

WHAT CAN BIORHYTHM DO FOR YOU?

With your personal 15 page, 3,000 word Biorhythm Analysis, all of the following benefits can be yours:

- Your luck can instantly improve. Your Analysis will point out your Multi-High Jackpot Days. These lucky days are the best times for you to enter lotteries, drawings, raffles, play bingo, go to the races, play cards, or try any games of chance.
- Your Biorhythm Analysis can make you lucky at love. You'll be told when your Physical (sexual) and Emotional (romantic) high days will occur, so you can take full advantage of them. When you know ahead of time you'll be at your best, your self-confidence will improve. Members of the opposite sex will sense this and be attracted to you.
- Your Analysis will help you perform better on the job and accelerate advancements. Profitable times (intellectual highs) to make career and investment decisions will be pinpointed.
- Your Analysis will notify you when to be on the lookout for hidden talents which may be surfacing. It will then point out the best times to develop these talents.
- By knowing the best times to do things and when to relax and recharge, you'll do everything better than you have before. You can use your Biorhythm Analysis to begin an all around program of self-improvement.
- You will learn your Biorhythm Hot Streaks. These strings of lucky days are the best times to go on vacation, business trips, gambling sprees, or do anything where uncertainty is involved. The odds for success can be greatly in your favor.

Biorhythm has been thoroughly tested. Over 5,000 companies nationwide use Biorhythm. Many American airlines use Biorhythm. Biorhythm has been covered by most major newspapers, magazines and has been featured on "To Tell The Truth" and "Monday Night Football."

HOW CAN YOU ORDER YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHM ANALYSIS?

If you are interested in immediately cashing in on all of the built-in luck, love, wealth, success and happiness you have coming to you, then simply do this: Send the name, current address, date, month, year and place of birth for each person on a piece of paper along with the $3.65 plus 30¢ postage and handling in cash, check or money order, for each one year Biorhythm Analysis (365 days for 1¢ a day). Make checks payable to Biorhythm Research Association. If you have Master Charge or VISA, you may charge your purchase by sending the following information: A. name of your card B. credit card number C. card expiration date.

Mail your orders to BIORHYTHM RESEARCH ASSOCIATION, Dept. D—22, 401 Market Ave. N., Canton, Ohio 44750.

You take absolutely no risk when you order. Your Biorhythm Analysis is covered by a one year – 365 day – full money back guarantee. If your luck does not dramatically improve in all areas of your life, simply return your analysis. You will receive every penny of your purchase price back – no questions asked.

The Association's research project may not last much longer. But right this minute, you can have your personal one year Biorhythm Analysis individually prepared for just 1¢ a day! Please act now!

How to Answer Your Curious Young Child

By Jody Gaylin

There you are, standing on the sidewalk chatting with your neighbor, and your 2½-year-old little boy pipes up with, "Mommy, why is Mrs. Taylor so fat?" It's a rare parent who manages a graceful and unembarrassed comeback. As anyone with small children knows, their questions are apt to occur at the oddest moments. But no matter how much their queries may throw you for a loop, you owe it to your youngsters to answer each and every one of them.

The late child-development pioneer Jean Piaget divided children's questions into two types: those concerning place and name (the "what's") and those involving cause and time (the "why's"). As soon as your child becomes verbal, he begins asking questions, trying to figure out what makes the world work. Dr. Lee Salk, professor of psychiatry and pediatrics at Cornell University Medical College and author of Dear Dr. Salk, believes that one of a parent's key responsibilities is to provide the answers, to satisfy and nurture his child's curiosity. Here are a few guidelines.

Camerique

A child really wants to know why.

- First rule: Keep it simple. When your small daughter asks, "What is that man doing?" pointing to a repairman up on a telephone pole, don't launch into an explanation of electronics. As New York child psychiatrist Richard Kresch notes, a toddler's thinking is concrete: He has little capacity for abstract thought. So answer plainly and directly, free of elaborating details or analogies. Dr. Kresch suggests that one way of judging if he understands is to ask him if he can tell you what you just told him.
- Don't lose your temper. Children are naturally inquisitive and curious, eager for new facts. It requires a great deal of patience to answer all the questions a toddler puts to you during the course of one day, says Dr. Salk, but remember that he really does want to know.
- Don't ridicule or mock your child, no matter how silly the question seems to you. Remember that at age 3 or 4 a child's thinking is egocentric. He relates everything he sees to himself. And at that age, as Dr. Benjamin Spock points out in his book Baby and Child Care, a child begins to develop new fears because his imagination is sophisticated enough to picture dangers he has not yet experienced. Don't try to bully him out of his fears. Instead, comfort, hug and reassure him.
- Avoid giving your child the impression that his question unnerves or embarrasses you. Sooner or later your child will come up with some real zingers, asking where babies come from, or about death, divorce, God, sex. Answer in a good-natured, matter-of-fact tone of voice.
- Curb your impulse to shush your child when he asks embarrassing questions at inappropriate moments, says Dr. Spock. Either answer him as simply as possible on the spot or tell him that you will talk about it later.
- Finally, always tell the truth. If, for example, a relative dies and your small child asks you where he is, tell him that Uncle Joe died — no matter how little you think he will understand. Then when he asks you, "What does that mean?" give a simple explanation. If you are religious, you might say something about God taking Uncle Joe to heaven to take care of him. It is crucial that you not say something vague like, "He's gone away," because later on when you "go away" on vacation, your child may become fearful that you won't return.

When a toddler asks where babies come from, forget those stories about the stork or cabbage leaves. Even a 3-year-old suspects the truth lies elsewhere just from overhearing conversations. He will be satisfied with a short explanation such as "Babies come from a special place inside Mommy." Children really do not want intimate details. As Dr. Salk notes, they are curious about reproduction, not sex — although most parents confuse the two.

If you lie to your child, you run the risk of his discovering the truth from other people and then being afraid to ask you more complicated questions. FW

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the amazing SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISOMETRIC + ISOTONIC)... the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab with proper caloric reduction... to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS™... the new EASY speed method for figure beauty

What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the Isotonic and Isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS

I later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is... a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now... build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS – the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER?

Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery. • No doorknobs needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age • Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.)–fits anywhere!

"I'm over 50 and I thought my fat and flab was with me for life... SYNOMETRICS "burned" it off in only 7 days. In fact results came so fast I had to cut my daily 7 minute workout to 5 minutes to slow down the slimming process. It's the most amazing method I've ever tried... and I've tried just about every gadget and gimmick I've seen in magazines and TV."

Iron Clad Money Back Guarantee

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results... or your money back promptly and without any question.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Soaps Clean Up

Tom's involved with Betty, who's really the mistress of Tom's illegitimate stepbrother, Ralph, by his father's fourth marriage to Betty's great-aunt, who is now plotting to cut Betty's niece, Luella, out of her will since Luella is also seeing Tom.

Millions of Americans are hooked on such afternoon soap opera plots as this contrived one, and according to Carolyn Cline, assistant professor at the University of Alabama's School of Communication, "There are countless more closet soap opera watchers out there. The proliferation of small portable TV's has enabled many professionals to tune in at work."

Cline, who recently completed a five year study of soap operas, observes that "Soaps give us a way of escape, a way of finding new realities, new situations, new friends. They make it seem like there's a solution to every problem. And on soaps, there are only glamorous problems. Nobody ever has trouble with his mortgage or with the bathtub drain."

Tune in tomorrow for more.

Memory, Depression And The Elderly

Older people's complaints about memory loss, often attributed to senility, may instead be a sign of depression, new research at California's Andrus Gerontology Center reveals.

A team of researchers, led by graduate student Sam Popkin, compared two groups of persons over age 60. The members of one were diagnosed as suffering from clinical depression; the other group was normal. Both groups scored the same on actual memory tests, but on questions comparing complaints about memory (Do you misplace things, forget appointments, etc.)' the depressed group complained of far more memory problems. After being treated for depression, though, their memory complaints dropped to normal.

According to Dr. Dorothy Gallagher, who headed the study, "When older patients complain of memory difficulties, doctors should think twice before chalking them up to senility and check for signs of depression." She estimates that only 5 percent of the elderly are senile, but that 20 to 30 percent suffer from depression.

Hook 'Em With Books

As children watch more and more television, it's inevitable that they are also reading less and less. And recent studies in California have shown a direct correlation between increased hours of TV-viewing and declining test scores in children.

But how can you get your child to sit down and read? In his new book, Your Child Can Be a Super Reader, New York City reading and English teacher Len Kusnetz offers some advice, including a recommended list of books, magazines and games.

"Too often reading is treated like punishment for kids," says Kusnetz. "So in selecting books for your child, personalize your choices. Give him something that is really going to excite him. Even if the child reads only sports books or science books, he'll be reading. His vocabulary will increase — the key to reading success — enabling him to move on to more varied and challenging things."

How to make reading fun-damental.

The Joys Of Noise

Fred Newman wasn't really a rotten kid: He just liked to make noise. So much so that in school he would trade his noises with other kids, "like swapping baseball cards." Now 28, Newman has turned his craft into a business. His new book, MouthSounds, contains tips on how to make some 70 noises — from animals to instruments, from a classic raspberry to a '62 Buick, from a telephone dial to a 1,000-watt hair dryer. A 13-minute plastic record with all the sounds is included.

To help make you the life of your New Year's Eve party, here are Newman's tips on how to perform your favorite and mine, the Hawaiian Nose Hum.

1.) Keep your mouth closed.

Jerry Darvin

Practice, practice, practice.

2.) Press the tip of an index finger beside one nostril, closing it.

3.) With a high falsetto, hum your favorite Hawaiian melody. With the free index finger, stroke down on the open nostril, closing it momentarily as you begin each note. The result should be a mildy percussive, nasal guitar sound.

Don't be afraid to practice in the bathroom, adds Newman. Tile provides a fine echo effect.

The Party's Over

You wake up New Year's Day around noon. Your head throbs so much that the confetti falling off your party hat is intolerable noise; your stomach churns like Mt. St. Helens; and your mouth tastes as though you've been chewing on a motorman's glove. You need hangover help — fast!

Well, Dr. Leon Marder, associate professor of psychiatry and medicine at U.S.C., prescribes black coffee and migraine medicine (not aspirin, it can intensify an upset stomach) to constrict alcohol-dilated blood vessels in the brain causing the headache; fluids such as orange juice or Gatorade to offset dehydration and sodium depletion; and sleep to slowly metabolize the alcohol.

Meanwhile, Dr. Seymour Diamond, director of Chicago's Diamond Headache Clinic, has some sweet advice on avoiding your next hangover altogether: After drinking, eat a few teaspoons of honey. The honey contains a sugar called fructose, which helps you metabolize alcohol faster, reducing the chance of hangover.

Promises, Promises

Joan Rivers's New Year's resolutions for 1981: I resolve to use less energy — I will clean house only on even-numbered months. And I resolve to stop asking my gynecologist for an engagement ring.

Only FLOWER OF THE MONTH Delivers Your Choice of Any One of These Easy-To-Grow Indoor Blooming House Plants COMPLETE WITH HANGING BASKET

TRAILING BEGONIA

(Genuine Belgium Pendula Begonia)

From Belgium, Begonia capital of the world, comes the heavenly crimson Trailing Begonia. Truly beautiful, this variety blooms indoors or outdoors with a myriad of exquisite pink-red flowers which cascade over the hanging basket into a "living falls" of vivid color, enhanced by a background of lustrous fresh green foliage. Incredibly lush! Blooms profusely even in shade! Blooming size tuber with hanging basket is yours for only 10¢, postpaid, on this introductory offer!

JASMINE BASKET

Sparkling, dependable house plant offers an extra bonus in addition to its rich, shiny, deep green leaves and profusion of pretty daisylike white flowers. The "extra" is its heady, tantilizing fragrance, one of the most aromatic of all house plants. Already potted in 2¼" pot. Very easy to care for, will prosper in normal indoor environment. Your bonus with trial membership for only 10¢!

CHOCOLATE SOLDIER

(Episcia cupreata)

Very few plants can boast both outstanding foliage AND gorgeous bloom, but Chocolate Soldier is one! The leaves are variegated in deep forest shades of green, highlighted by an unusual pebbled texture with a metallic sheen. Then out burst the numerous blossoms of brilliant orange-red, all the more breathtaking in contrast to the dark, shiny leaves. With blooms and foliage together in the hanging basket, which is included, you have the world's greatest introductory offer for only 10¢!

Prince Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE OSWALD OF SAXONY ARRIVES AT CAMELOT WITH THE SECRET OF THE WILD BOY LOCKED IN HIS HEART. "THEY'VE JUST SAT DOWN TO SUPPER," A STABLEBOY INFORMS HIM. "A TABLE AWAITS YOU." TOMORROW OSWALD MUST RESOLVE A FEW PROBLEMS WITH OLD SIR BRENDAN ABOUT FREYJA'S DOWRY. BUT TONIGHT GREED TAKES A BACK SEAT TO GLUTTONY.

NO SOONER HAS HE ENTERED THE GREAT HALL THAN HE FLEES IN PANIC. "THEY ARE ALL MAD," HE CRIES. "FIVE HUNDRED PEOPLE AND THEY SPEAK NOT A WORD BUT GESTURE LIKE LUNATICS."

KING ARTHUR SUMMONS HIM BACK. "WELCOME TO CAMELOT, PRINCE OSWALD. FORGIVE US OUR STRANGE HABITS. MY ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD HAS BEEN USING SIGN LANGUAGE FOR MONTHS NOW, OUT OF DEFERENCE TO OUR YOUNG GUEST." THE YOUNG GUEST SIMPLY GLOWERS.

NOW VAL GROWS CONCERNED. THE WILD BOY HAS NOT TOUCHED HIS FOOD. HE STARES WITH GLASSY EYES AT THE CREST ON OSWALD'S TUNIC. SUDDENLY THE BOY SPRINGS FROM HIS SEAT. VAL TRIES TO HOLD HIM BACK AND RECEIVES A TASTE OF THE WILD BOY'S RAGE.

THE WILD BOY LANDS ON OSWALD WITH A FELINE POUNCE. HIS BARED TEETH SINK INTO THE PRINCELY SHOULDER AS HIS ARM RISES FOR A MORTAL BLOW. ONLY GALAN'S QUICK THINKING SAVES YOUNG FREYJA'S BETROTHED FROM A DISMAL FATE. WITH THE BOY DISARMED AND IN TOW, VAL APPROACHES KING ARTHUR.

© 1980 King Features Syndicate, Inc. World rights reserved.

"MY LORD," SAYS VAL, HIS JAWS CLENCHED IN ANGER THAT MUST NEVER BE UNLEASHED, "THIS BOY HAS BETRAYED OUR TRUST. I WILL SEE THAT HE IS PUNISHED."
