

Gripped In Deep Cold

By The Associated Press
Record cold spread over nearly all of the nation east of the Rockies today, stalling thousands of cars and causing critical power shortages in some regions.

Citrus growers fretted for their oranges in North Florida where the thermometer dipped below freezing. More than 8,000 New Yorkers complained about cold apartments as arctic air sent temperatures diving. Car batteries died and fuel lines froze.

"We are absolutely swamped with road service calls," said Steve Harwell of the Virginia Automobile Association in Richmond, where the temperature this morning was a record 6 degrees.

A spokesman for AAA in western Connecticut said they got 3,500 "can't start" calls Saturday and Sunday and 500 between 6 a.m. and 8 a.m. today.

The National Weather Service said the cold weather was not quite as severe as Sunday morning, when readings were as much as 40 degrees below zero, but was more extensive.

Readings of below zero were recorded from the upper Mississippi Valley, through the Great Lakes region and the Ohio Valley into the Northeast.

Record low temperatures for the date were set in numerous cities, including subzero marks in Beckley, W.Va., -10; Caribou, Maine, -20; Detroit, -8; Hartford, Conn., -10; Portland, Maine, -13, and Worcester, Pa., -12.

In North Carolina, where temperatures dipped below 10 degrees in most inland areas, Duke Power Co. warned of possible rotating blackouts unless customers voluntarily cut back power consumption.

"This is an emergency," said Alex Coffin, a spokesman for Duke Power. "We're not crying wolf." Temperatures fell as far as 42 degrees below zero Sunday — in Old Forge, N.Y., in the Adirondack Mountains — and this morning it was 4 below zero in Boston, 1 below in Pittsburgh and just 11 above in Raleigh, N.C.

At least one death, that of an unidentified man found on a Philadelphia street, was attributed to the deep freeze.

In Cleveland, about 270 patients were evacuated from a hospital when a boiler blew up, knocking out the heat while the temperature outside dove below zero.

"We just totally destroyed the record," said National Weather Service meteorologist Dean Gulezian of the conditions in Houlton, Maine, where the mercury slid to 41 below Sunday.

The icy storm system swept into the Northeast Saturday from Canada, spreading snow squalls from the Great Lakes and Upper Ohio Valley into western New York. Sunday's frigid blasts were the icing on the cake.

While health officials from Minnesota to Maine warned of the dangers of frostbite.

Doors Opened To Cloning A Mouse

By KEVIN MCKEAN

TORONTO (AP) — Like something out of a science fiction movie, researchers in a Swiss laboratory have developed techniques that could lead to the cloning of a simple mammal, such as a mouse, and ultimately a human being.

The method makes it possible to produce clones — exact genetic copies — of a mouse embryo, something that had previously been achieved only with plants and lower animals.

But scientists said that because of several important limitations, the discovery falls far short of immediately allowing human beings to be cloned or lost limbs to be regenerated. The discovery's importance is expected to be limited to scientific research.

"Worries about cloning humans are very far away for purely practical reasons," said Dr. Davor Solter of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia, a scientist who works in the field. "Even if we did know how to clone a human, I don't know why we would want to do it."

The main commercial application of cloning would require being able to make clones from adult cells, so that one could, for example, make multiple copies of a cow that happened to be an

Many Actions Taken By County Commissioners

By CAROL TYER

The Pitt County commissioners this morning passed a resolution of appreciation to Ed N. Warren, one of their own who has resigned in order to fulfill his obligation as a newly elected representative of Pitt and Greene counties to the N. C. House of Representatives.

Pitt Memorial Hospital General Director Jack Richardson invited the commissioners to the February 17 meeting of the hospital board of trustees, which will include a celebration of the 30th anniversary of the hospital.

Following a request by Sgt. Thomas E. Toler of the 514th Military Police N. C. National Guard Company here, the commissioners granted the use of county-owned kitchen equipment now stored in the county office building to the National Guard. The equipment was used when the office building was a hospital. The commissioners expressed belief that it would be better off being used than gathering dust, adding that it is to be returned by the guard if it's ever needed and requested by the county.

A request by Social Services Department Director Ed Garrison to unfreeze a clerk-reception 3 position in the Food Stamps area was granted. This is a budgeted job, the salary for which has been paid by federal CETA funds for some time, but for which CETA funds are no longer available.

The approval was given for two mental health projects, following requests by Steve Creech, area mental health director.

The first is a social setting detoxification program to be funded through a state alcoholism clinical services grant and through unexpended driving under the influence fine funds. There has been a need for this program, Creech said, since laws have been changed so that intoxicated persons cannot be jailed and thus are often left on their own on the streets. This will be a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week program carried out in cooperation with the Flynn Home and the local AAA group, he pointed out.

The second: the commissioners approved the setting up of a 30 by 96-foot greenhouse at the old county home site for use in vocational training for emotionally disturbed persons being maintained by mental health in halfway house setting. The program will be the second in the state, patterned after an eminently successful program in Chapel Hill.

Register of Deeds Elvira Allred reported that $15,189.95 in recording fees was collected in December, an increase of $2,464 over last December's collections.

Tax Collector W. R. Smith reported that $3,310,904.86 in taxes was collected in December. He said he picked up about 600 pieces of mail this morning, in cluding a check for Burroughs-Wellcome Corporation, the biggest single taxpayer in the county.

Tax Supervisor Jimmy Hardee reported that revaluation notices will be mailed tomorrow afternoon. Valuation of county property, he said, has more than doubled since the last evaluation, up from about $1 billion to about $2.3 billion.

Rituals Launch New Congress

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Congress with more Republicans and more conservatives is opening shop with plans to give Ronald Reagan a head start on installing his government once he assumes the presidency.

Senate committees scheduled a week of hearings on the president-elect's Cabinet nominations in hopes the Senate can vote on confirmation on Inauguration Day, Jan. 20.

Until then, Congress has no legislating to do.

The Senate, controlled by Republicans for the first time since 1955, and the House, still led by Democrats, scheduled only the swearing-in of members and ceremonial proceedings today. They will meet in joint session Tuesday to count the votes cast by presidential electors and then adjourn until Jan. 19.

The confirmation hearings may give Reagan his first taste of battling with Capitol Hill.

Considerable controversy surrounds the selections of retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. for secretary of state and of Colorado lawyer James G. Watt for interior secretary.

Haig, who now heads United Technologies Corp., will be questioned by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his role as White House chief of staff during the closing days of the Nixon administration. Some senators also have questioned the wisdom of having a military man running the State Department.

The Haig hearings are expected to open Friday.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday that President Carter will authorize the National Archives to search for specific presidential tape recordings and documents sought by Senate Democrats for use in the Haig hearings.

But two Republican senators said Sunday Watergate should not play a major role in Haig's confirmation.

"The most crucial part of the hearings is where he wants to go... how he would conduct the office of secretary of state," said Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland.

Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah, appearing with Mathias on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program, added: "Even if he (Haig) has some problems... it appears to me that he has served with distinction as commander in chief of our NATO alliance... I'm tired of the Watergate syndrome and I think the American people are, too."

The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee will open hearings Wednesday on Watt. Some environmentalists oppose Watt because he has been in the forefront of a battle to open Western lands for oil and mineral development.

Despite scattered opposition to Haig and Watt, the Senate is expected to confirm both, because presidents traditionally are given wide latitude in selecting a Cabinet. In fact, not since 1959, when the Senate refused to approve Lewis Strauss as commerce secretary, has a Cabinet nominee been rejected.

The Senate Finance Committee will conduct a hearing Tuesday on the nomination of outgoing Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., to head the Department of Health and Human Services. That will be followed by a hearing on Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan, chairman of Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc.

Also scheduled Tuesday are confirmation hearings on Malcolm Baldrige, chairman of Scovill Inc., as commerce secretary; John Block, Illinois farm commissioner, as agriculture secretary; and Caspar W. Weinberger, a former secretary of health, education and welfare, as defense secretary.

Hearings will be held Wednesday for Pennsylvania businessman Drew Lewis, nominated for transportation secretary, and New Jersey construction executive Raymond J. Donovan, picked to head the Labor Department.

Senate Republicans, who hold a 53-47 majority, are keeping their leaders, but they are taking on more power with the new GOP control. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee is the new majority leader; Ted Stevens of Alaska is Baker's deputy.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., steps down to minority leader, with Alan Cranston, D-Calif., as his deputy.

East Sworn In Today As Senator

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

WASHINGTON — John East, a former political science professor at East Carolina University, took the oath of office shortly after noon today to become the first United States senator ever elected from Greenville and Pitt County.

East, a Republican, defeated incumbent Democrat Robert Morgan in the November 1980 general election to become the second GOP senator from North Carolina in the Nation's Capitol.

East was among more than 30 senators to take the oath today, as the 97th Congress, with the largest Republican membership in years, came into being.

The GOP-controlled Senate will have 53 Republicans, 46 Democrats and one Independent, while the Democratic-controlled House of Representatives will have 242 Democrats, and 192 Republicans.

Although the largely ceremonial opening session of the 97th Congress ends tomorrow, senators plan to remain to hold nomination hearings on the Reagan Cabinet nominations in hope of confirming the Reagan team immediately after the inauguration on January 20.

An estimated 100 Greenville area residents were here for the swearing-in and were scheduled to attend a 2 p.m. reception in the Dirksen Senate Office Building.

Representing the City of Greenville here today was Mayor Don McLawhon.

"This is one of the real exciting things that's happened to Greenville, to have him (East) as senator. It's good for Greenville."

"I'm not sure many of us realize what it means to have a senator from our town," the mayor continued.

"I'm looking forward to working with him and having him help us, as the case might be," McGlohon continued, pointing out that, "only 100 communities in the entire country can have a U.

S. senator."

Another Greenville resident in Washington today was Dr. Allen Taylor. East's election, he said, was a "great satisfaction... not just from a partisan point of view, but from having known him (East) personally."

According to Taylor, East, "is one of the most outstanding candidates throughout the United States," and "well qualified for the position."

"I think North Carolina will have a senator (in East) who will be one of the top 10 senators in the 100-member Senate."

John Howard, another Greenville resident, said, "I feel like we'll have a highly intelligent senator representing us. Coming from Eastern North Carolina, he will be sympathetic to our tobacco program."

Continuing, Howard said, "I feel like, in four or five years, he could emerge as one of our leading senators."

"He'll be a senator for all the people," Dixie Green of Greenville said.

East moved into his Dirksen building office Saturday, and the office opened for business this morning. East's wife Sis, said the staff of, "seven or eight is small but very efficient."

"A cliff hanger," is the way East described his narrow victory over Morgan, former chairman of the ECU board of trustees and former N.C. Attorney General.

He said the narrow margin of his victory serves as, "an obvious reminder," that no one is entitled to the job forever, but is, "given a brief period by the people of this state to do your best."

The senator said, "I had confidence that we could win. Now having won, I think to myself, 'My golly. How did you ever think you could do it?'"

And according to the 49-year-old former U.S. Marine, "We will certainly do everything we can to see that the best interests of this area, and of the state, are represented."

Cold Weekend Temperatures

Cold temperatures dominated the weather in Pitt County this weekend, bringing heavy frost and frigid winds to the area.

According to Greenville Utilities' Water Plant, the high temperature for Saturday reached 51 degrees Fahrenheit and the low dipped to 24 degrees F. Sunday was much colder, with highs around 39 degrees and lows touching 15 degrees.

No rain was recorded during Saturday but on Sunday the Water Plant reported "a trace" of precipitation. Monday at 8 a.m. the Tar River stood at 2.4 feet on the National Weather Service gauge. According to Malcolm Greene, assistant director of Greenville Utilities, no weather-related electrical problems were experienced during the weekend. "We have not had any outages due to the weather," he said. "We did operate our load management equipment this morning to keep ourselves from reaching a peak," added Greene.

"Our demand this morning was not as high as last summer but the highest we've experienced this winter. I would like to caution people, though that we have had a large amount of power used during the last few days."

See Test Tube Twins In April

LONDON (AP) — The world's first test-tube twins may be born in April in Australia as a result of a new development in the procedure for fertilization outside the mother's womb, according to a report in the British magazine New Scientist.

The magazine's correspondent in Canberra, the Australian capital, reported that two sets of twins are among nine embryos fertilized outside the womb, returned to the women from whom they came and now progressing normally at two Melbourne hospitals.

The report said the women were treated by Carl Wood, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Melbourne's Monash University who has developed a procedure for fertilizing human eggs produced by induced ovulation.

All four previous test-tube babies were born after eggs were taken from the mothers during their natural cycle of ovulation, the magazine said. It reported that Wood gave the mothers fertility drugs to induce ovulation, the process by which a mature ovum is produced and discharged from the woman's ovary.

As a result, doctors in future can schedule the time of ovulation and fertilization in advance, the magazine said, adding that such predictability will make it easier for clinics with limited resources to offer routine test-tube fertilizations.

The magazine said Wood treated 160 women last year. Five of the women who became pregnant produced two embryos. Some of these have since aborted, the New Scientist said, but two sets of non-identical twins remain. The first are to be born in April, it added.

The parents were not identified.

Farm Scene

The supply-demand balance in agriculture may be likened to an accordion that pulls and squeezes, a roller coaster that rises and dips, or a wind that blows hot and cold. Whatever one's favorite analogy, the incontrovertible fact is that overall supply-demand relationships are always changing. They never stay fixed for long. Worse, they are not highly predictable. Supply and demand can get out of line faster than anyone can anticipate.

Not nearly everyone is predicting tight supplies for grains, soybeans and some other commodities throughout the current (1980-81) marketing year. This will be true here at home and worldwide. A principal cause is the smaller 1980 crop in the United States.

Balance Continues
The United States demand balance may continue snug in the future, say many forecasters. This is especially likely if exports stay on an up-trend and if, in addition, a lot of grain goes into production of ethanol.

World Food

The theme was that yes, indeed, the world food situation is tight. Not only were the U.S. crops down, but the 1980 Soviet grain crop now appears to have been smaller than expected earlier. Although some other countries, notably western Europe, had good harvests, the winter growing conditions in the Southern Hemisphere are not too good.

If the onward-upward forecasts are correct, market for grain and other farm products will not only bring strong prices but will press on production capacity. Very little grain went to feeding livestock and poultry. Consequently the meat, milk and egg contents of diets, all preferred foods, showed no grain.

ANNOUNCE SUSPECT IN RIPPER CASE

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A1073 ♦AQ982 ♦KJ72
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—When we are void of partner's suit, we tend to take a pessimistic view of our hand. Still, we can't help feeling that our hand has enough values to produce a slam opposite a partner who could open and then jump. We would make one more try by bidding four clubs. That can't be a cue-bid, because we have not yet agreed upon a suit and partner surely has the ace of clubs himself. If he persists with four no trump or four hearts, we would resign.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦1092 ♥A872 ♦AK93 ♦95
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Now that partner has rebid his spades, your support is more than adequate. There is no point in wasting time—raise to four spades. Take a demerit if you even considered a clever bid like three hearts. You don't have the values for a slam, so why confuse partner.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦QJ4 ♥AJ ♦AKQ83 ♦965
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.—If you have a bid that describes your hand accurately, use it. The correct call is one no trump. That shows a hand that is equivalent to a one no trump opening bid—balanced, 16-18 points. An overall of two diamonds would not come close to describing the strength of your hand.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦QJ4 ♥AJ ♦AKQ65 ♦965
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—In the balancing seat, an overall of one no trump shows somewhat less than it does in the immediate seat—about 12-15 points. With 17 HCPs, you are too strong for that action, so you must first double and then bid no trump over any response partner might make.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦5 ♥AJ762 ♦AKQ3 ♦652
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one club. What do you bid now?
A.—Reverse your black suit holdings, and you might have some justification for a takeout double. But as it is, we do not think you are strong enough to first double and then bid hearts over your partner's probable spade response. However, you must get into the auction, and we would suggest an overall of one heart. If partner doesn't act over that, you haven't missed a game.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦83 ♥95 ♦KQ8742 ♦964
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ 2 ♦ Pass Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—What started out as an unpromising hand has suddenly developed enormous potential. Partner's bidding has shown a hand just short of a demand bid, and if he has a diamond fit, as he should, you will make a lot of tricks. Tell partner about this by jumping to four diamonds. Since you could not bid two diamonds at your first turn, partner won't be expecting any more from you.

Few Shepherds For N.C. Today

By BOB CAIRNS
NCSC News Bureau

More than 100 years ago, back in the 1870's, shepherds watched their flocks by night on hillsides in North Carolina.

"We were a hungry, underclothed state, and sheep were a very important commodity," says Dr. Lemuel Goode, a North Carolina State University animal scientist.

Now, sheep farming and shepherding still exist in North Carolina but on a limited basis, Goode said.

"In the 1870's, there were about 278,000 sheep in the state. Today, there are only around 7,500," Goode noted. "The flocks are small now and scattered in counties from the Appalachians to the seacoast."

According to Goode, sheep are being raised in Allegheny, Ashe, Watauga, Buncombe and Haywood Counties in the Appalachians and in Forsyth, Guilford and Alamance Counties in the Piedmont. Some sheep are also being raised in Pasquotank and Chowan Counties in the east.

"These wool bearing animals are best suited to the cooler climates found in our Appalachians," Goode said. "The heat and humidity in the eastern and central part of our state make a comeback for sheep farming doubtful in North Carolina."

He explained that the natural competition of sheep with the state's cattle for grazing lands has resulted in farmers replacing sheep with cattle as a major livestock enterprise.

"Sheep, like everything else, have become more expensive to raise," Goode said, "and of course the increases are being reflected in the price of our lamb."

According to Goode, North Carolinians who enjoy lamb might fight inflation by purchasing their meat in quantity from a North Carolina sheep farmer.

"A 50 or 60 pound lamb can be purchased dressed for about $1.30 to $1.50 a pound," he noted.

Today the state's flocks have diminished and shepherding has been replaced by electric fencing, but if a North Carolinian has a taste for some lamb chops, they're still available—right here in North Carolina.

Arrests Made By Police

Local police arrested two Greenville men Saturday night on common law robbery charges following investigation of an incident that allegedly occurred in the parking lot of a local business.

Chief Glenn Cannon said that officers arrested Glenwood Earl May, 27, of 209-A Pennsylvania Avenue, and Johnny Lee Greene, 39, of 700-D W. 14th Street, and charged them with the common law robbery of Theodore Wilson of 1016 W. Fifth Street.

The chief said Wilson reported that $32 in cash was taken from him in an altercation in the parking lot at Biscuit Towne on Charles Boulevard.

Bond for May and Greene, who were arrested around 11:45 p.m., was set at $300 each with first appearance hearings scheduled for today in District Court in Greenville.

Court Back To Garwood

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — The court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood resumed today after more than two weeks' layoff for of the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Chief defense attorney John Lowe said he would continue presenting testimony about Garwood's mental state and the conditions that led to the filing of charges that he deserted and collaborated with the enemy in Vietnam.

Garwood, 34, of Adams, Ind., is the first American POW to stand trial for his conduct in Vietnam.

He spent 14 years in Vietnam after disappearing as a 19-year-old jeep driver based near Da Nang. He returned to the United States in 1979, saying he had been held captive by the Viet Cong.

The government contends Garwood remained in Vietnam voluntarily, becoming a political turncoat and a member of the Viet Cong.

Dr. Emmanuel Tanay of Grosse Point, Mich., the first defense witness, testified that Garwood had been pushed to the brink of suicide by physical injuries, torture and deprivation as a POW.

The prosecution completed its case Dec. 15 after presenting 13 witnesses, including nine former POWs.

Shoots Fiancee And Kills Self

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A top aide to Gov. John Dalton who had been carrying a gun because of threats on his life shot himself to death after wounding his fiancee, police said.

Larry Murphy, 34, was found dead in the upstairs bedroom of a suburban Chesterfield County home owned by William Whitaker, the fiancee's father, police said Sunday.

Margaret Whitaker, 22, was listed in stable condition at a hospital with gunshot wounds to the left arm, shoulder and right leg, police said.

Three Arrests For Drug Counts Here

Three persons were arrested by Greenville police in separate incidents over the weekend on drug possession charges.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, officers arrested Roger Jordan Smith, 22, of Rt. 2, Box 266-B, Goldsboro, around 12:40 a.m. Saturday on a charge of felonious possession of cocaine.

Chief Cannon, who said that Smith was arrested as he sat in a parked car at the corner of Third and Evans Street, noted that bond was set at $5,000 with a first appearance hearing scheduled for today in District Court here.

Samuel Mark Vestal, 19, of 106 Sherwood Drive, was arrested around 12:10 a.m. Saturday at the corner of Fourth and Reade Streets and charged with possession of marijuana, according to the chief.

A first appearance hearing was also scheduled for today in District Court in Greenville.

Chief Cannon reported that Christopher C. Wilson, 18, of P.O. Box 102, Stokes, was arrested Saturday at West Greenville Gym and charged with possession of marijuana.

A $200 bond was set for Wilson and a first appearance hearing set for Jan. 22 in District Court here, Chief Cannon said.

Children Die From Smoke

CHADBOURN, N.C. (AP) — Two small children died Sunday of smoke inhalation on a house fire that authorities said apparently started when a suitcase fell on a gas heater in their bedroom.

Medical Examiner Bill Rhodes said the children, Enliss McCoy, 15 months, and her brother, Eddie McCoy, 5 months, were found in a bed in the three-bedroom frame house two miles west of Chadbourn.

Rhodes said their grandmother, Rosa Lee Crawford, 62, was found unconscious beside their bed after she had apparently tried to rescue them. Mrs. Crawford was reported in satisfactory condition at Columbus County Hospital Sunday night.

Rhodes said no one else was in the home at the time of the fire, which caused only minor damage to the bedroom.

He said the children were living with their grandmother and grandfather, Dozer Crawford, while their mother was living in Philadelphia.

Rhodes said the suitcase, filled with clothing, apparently fell from a dresser on to the heater.

Billy Graham Now In Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — American evangelist Billy Graham arrived in Poland Sunday night to receive the first honorary degree given to an American by the Polish Theological Academy.

A spokesman for Graham said he would meet with Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński, Poland's Roman Catholic primate, on Tuesday before the award ceremony.

The American clergyman goes on Wednesday to Hungary for a three-day visit and will receive an honorary degree from the Hungarian Calvinist Church, officials of the church said in Budapest today. He is expected to meet with Imre Miklos, president of the Hungarian government's Church Affairs Bureau, and will visit Debrecen, in eastern Hungary, the center of Hungarian Calvinism.

Graham visited Hungary in 1977 and preached a number of sermons. It was the first evangelistic visit by an American to a communist country in Eastern Europe. He visited Poland the next year and delivered several sermons.

Peanuts and Dr. Carver

The next time you dig into a bag of peanuts, or bite into a peanut butter sandwich, think about George Washington Carver. Carver, a black American who was born a slave, discovered hundreds of valuable uses for peanuts and other crops that grow in the South. Carver developed more than 300 products using peanuts. They included milk, butter, flour, soap, wood stains and ink. He made 118 more products with sweet potatoes, and 60 products using pecan nuts. He even invented a way to turn wood shavings into synthetic marble. Carter died on January 5, 1943. Two years later, Congress designated January 5 George Washington Carver Day.

Candlelight Ceremony Performed On Sunday

PRINCETON — Nancy Mabel Jones of Rt. 2, Princeton and Benjamin Earl Doughtie Jr. of Greenville were united in marriage Sunday at 6 p.m. during a candlelight ceremony held at the home of the bride here.

Dr. Horace W. Ricks of Selma officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donnie Hue Jones Jr. of Rt. 2, Princeton. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Doughtie of Bethel.

A program of wedding music was performed by Wayne Talton, pianist, and Kimberly Ann Tart, soloist, both of Princeton, and Donnie H. Jones III of Morehead City, brother of the bride and soloist.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight Brussels lace over satin. The empire bodice featured a Queen Ann neckline with antique peau d'ange lace. The sheer bishop sleeves had matching lace and peau d'ange lace cuffs. The full chapel train skirt had peau d'ange lace with panels extending into the hemline. The gown was complemented by a fingertip mantilla of Brussels lace embroidered in antique peau d'ange lace. She carried a bouquet of silk burgandy wine roses accented by pink miniature silk carnations sprinkled with gypsophylla.

Jenny R. Upchurch of Claremont served as honor attendant. She wore a formal gown of burgundy wine lace over satin with a high neckline and full lace sleeves. She carried a mixture of pink silk wildflowers. She wore baby's breath and an ivory lace circlet of wildflowers in her hair.

Jennifer Rains Jones of Morehead City, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a knee length pink chiffon gown with ivory lace around the collar, accented with a burgundy satin sash. She carried a white wicker basket with mixed pink and white silk wildflowers and wore a circlet of pink and white flowers in her hair.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Robert Alan Jones Jr. of Morehead City, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

A reception followed the ceremony at the bride's home. A three tiered cake was served. Mrs. Jean Wright served as hostess.

The couple will live in Greenville following a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride is a graduate of Princeton High School and is now a junior at ECU. The bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School and is a graduate of North Carolina State University. He now works at Electric Supply Co., Greenville.

Couple Marries Sunday Afternoon

MUSHROOM AND ONION SOUP
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, rinsed and patted dry
2 tablespoons butter
1 medium onion, finely diced (½ cup)
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1-16th teaspoon pepper
10½-ounce can condensed chicken broth, undiluted
1½ cups milk
In a food processor with the coarse shredding disk, coarsely grate mushrooms; or knife-chop coarsely. There should be about 3 cups.

In a medium saucepan melt the butter; add the onion and cook gently, stirring often, until golden brown and tender. Add mushrooms and cook rapidly, stirring often, until wilted — have heat high enough so mushrooms do not give off their liquid. Stir in the flour, salt and pepper. Off heat, gradually stir in the broth and milk, keeping smooth. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, cook until thickened. Makes 3½ cups.

Note: Because this soup is a gray color, you may want to sprinkle servings of it with minced fresh parsley or chives.

Louise McLawhorn Gurganus and Jerry Wesley McRoy were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in a double ring ceremony performed by Dr. Harold W. Deitch.

The ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Culbreth, Greenville.

The bride is the daughter of Nettie McLawhorn and the late Horace V. McLawhorn of Winterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claudell McRoy of Stokes.

The house was decorated with two three branch candelabra and a spray of mixed flowers.

The bride wore a formal length dress of cream silk trimmed with beige satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white silk gardenias.

Following the ceremony the couple was honored at a reception given by Myrtle McRoy, Joyce Bailey and Alice Culbreth.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is production clerk at Fieldcrest Mills. The bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School and is materials handler at Burroughs Welcome.

Dear Abby

Your Choice Could Be A Poor One

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a fellow for over a year. He's 30 and I'm 26. He wants to marry me, but, Abby, he has one fault that really turns me off. His table manners are terrible! He holds his fork in his fist like a small child who is just learning how to eat by himself.

He stabs at his food with his fork and eats so fast he makes me nervous. When I try to correct him in a nice way, he gets angry and says, "If it bothers you, don't look at me!" I realize that a man could have worse faults such as drinking, dope or chasing women, so maybe I'm out of line to complain about something as petty as this, but sitting at the same table with him sometimes irritates me to the point of not being able to eat.

He's honest, hard-working and generous. Do you think I'm being too picky?

IRRITATED

DEAR IRRITATED: His refusal to accept constructive criticism shows him to be stubborn and inconsiderate. Don't marry this man unless you want to be reminded three times every day that you made a poor choice.

DEAR PRIVATE: Try this: "It's mind over matter, so if you don't mind, it doesn't matter." (Cribbed from Rabbi Samuel A. Friedman, Silver Springs, Md.)

DEAR ABBY: Quite often I read in your column what I call "the other woman lament." I understand her position, but from where I stand, I think her position is most enviable.

I'm a respectable married woman but would almost welcome being "the other woman." If I were "the other woman," my lover would probably remember me on my birthday and special holidays. My husband does not. My lover would probably compliment me from time to time. My husband does not—even though I am considered an excellent cook and housekeeper, attractive, and weigh within 3 pounds of what I weighed when he married me. My sex life would probably be much improved, as my husband seldom wants sex, and when he does, he satisfies only himself. My lover might even tell me he loves me occasionally. My husband never does.

The respectability and security of marriage are important, but they're not enough. In the next life (if there is one), I want to be "the other woman."

ENVIOUS

DEAR ENVIOUS: Before committing your next life to "the other woman," please read this letter from my files:

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to "the other woman," who is in love with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays. Never call him at home.

Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and he hasn't slept with her for 10 years.

Don't ever expect his wife to divorce him — even if she catches him. She knows you are not his first and won't be his last. Also, she is not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you.

However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate, and find another married man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin) and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me ...

HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: How can I get out of telling my age when I am asked point blank? I'm not the type to reply, "It's none of your business."

PRIVATE PERSON

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Visual acuity, the acuteness or sharpness of vision, is stated by the term 20/20. This means that at a distance of twenty feet, one sees the size letter on the examination chart that is considered normal for twenty feet. The larger the bottom number of this visual fraction, the more abnormal is the vision. 20/20 does not necessarily denote perfect vision because there are other visual skills involved. These include side vision, muscle action, focusing ability, coordination, depth perception and others. Also, 20/20 does not indicate the effort or strain necessary to perform this task well.

If corrective eyewear is necessary for you to gain optimum vision, then let CLEAR VUE OPTICIANS, 1706 6th Physicians Quadrangle Building A, show you the functional and fashionable eyewear that is a "vision of styling." We offer the functional and fashionable eyewear that meets your vision requirements as well as your fashion preferences. Stop in today and "see" what we are talking about. Tel. 752-1446.

EYE TIP: A person's visual acuity may be normal at the 20 foot distance and below normal at reading distances.

Hope For Good Year

Robert Griffin, manager of the Procter and Gamble facility here assumed office as chairman of the board of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce on Jan. 1.

The chamber here, as elsewhere, is a unique organization in that it is supported by business and private memberships. By its very nature, however, it has to be involved in community development and general betterment of the area. It has to be involved with the various governing bodies of the area, improved business conditions, industry seeking and many other activities to carry out its mission of building a better community.

To do all that the chamber will operate with four councils: community development, economic and industrial development, organization and membership and public and governmental affairs.

It is important to the chamber's work that the area's leadership be involved, and there will be 25 committees, an estimated 75 task forces with over 1,000 volunteers to carry out the work.

There is no local organization more suited to providing leadership for desirable growth and improved quality of life than the Area Chamber of Commerce. We hope for an outstanding year under Robert Griffin's leadership.

America Grew During 1970s

There are still protests to be heard, but the U. S. Census Bureau says there are 226,504,825 people in the United States as of last April 1. It was a 11.4 percent increase during the decade between censuses.

There have been interesting shifts in population, significantly from the northeast to the Sun Belt states. It means that several states will give up congressional seats and others will gain.

There will be much more analyses of the data gathered by the Census Bureau, but we have seen some of the effects of population shift in recent elections as the nation became more conservative.

THIS AFTERNOON

A Feud Simmers

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — State Treasurer Harlan Boyles has twice, now, publicly questioned important steps in the works at high levels of state government; each time causing unrest in the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt.

Boyles is credited with almost single-handedly cutting the support from beneath a $600 million statewide bond issue for public school construction. That proposal was vigorously pushed by State Superintendent of Public Schools Craig Phillips, with Gov. Hunt's endorsement, questioning only the timing and amount.

The 1980 General Assembly put the matter on the back burner despite a committee endorsement and general establishment backing after the word circulated from the treasurer's office that a bond issue would require repayment, and the millions of dollars each year would obviously have to come from the education budget.

Then along came a proposal from a study commission which Hunt established to take a look at highway department funding needs calling for the obvious — an increased gasoline tax among other suggestions.

Delay
The governor delayed making a recommendation, but during his re-election campaign he repeatedly pledged no new taxes — excepting the possibility of a higher gas tax if needed.

Boyles, back in October and November, was already saying there were ways to get the job done without a higher tax: cutting spending in the Highway Department, cutting expensive land purchases for sprawling expressway interchanges, considering ways to let prime users pay more for the roads, and taking into account the smaller cars and slower speeds now the rule.

Both the school bond matter and the gasoline tax are expected to be hot items on the agenda for the 1981 General Assembly which convenes later this month for a session likely to run well into July.

Thus, the circumstances are arranged for new clashes between the two top state officials. The governor remains aloof from the fray, but his key advisors and aides are openly miffed with Boyles. True to the general rule in politics — if you aren't for us, you're against us — some of Hunt's people go out of their way to put down the treasurer in private conversation.

Hunt's only comment, asked about Boyles' position on the gas tax — was that if the treasurer had any ideas — he should come forward. The word then spread that Boyles was backing off his opposition to the tax; that the study commission report and Hunt's reaction would stress the need for cost savings in the highway program. But Boyles did not back down.

So again the comments began to circulate within the Hunt organization, echoing the observation which last year accompanied the back-scenes tilt over the school bonds.

Sour Grapes

Boyles, the Hunt people argue, is only stirring up trouble because he has not been accorded the adoration which his mentor and predecessor — the late Ed Gill — received. The new treasurer expected to achieve that stature immediately and as a right, the complaints go. And the ultimate putdown is applied to Boyles as it has been to others who came out

Transition Team's Job

WASHINGTON — Nobody knows how many there are. There could be hundreds — even thousands. They are members of Reagan's transition team, and they are sweeping through government buildings, trying to find ways to cut out waste and sloth in the bureaucracy. It isn't an easy job, but it has to be done.

As soon as word is passed that a transition team is on the premises, every bureaucrat rushes to his or her desk and gets to work. Bureaucrats have been through it all before, and the transition people are, in most cases, babes in the woods.

This is how it goes:

A transition team member stops by a desk.

"What are you doing?" he asks the bureaucrat.

"I'm working on these authorization papers for my supervisor."

ART BUCHWALD

"Where is your supervisor?"

"He took holiday leave and I believe he is in New Hampshire skiing with his family."

"May I see these authorization papers?"

"Of course, sir. As you will note, in the first 40 pages, the authority concurs with the regulations as laid down by the secretary. The next 32 pages deal with the impact study, and this bound report, which is attached, was done by an outside consulting firm."

"We still have one more study to come in, which was done by another consulting team, checking out the findings of the first consulting firm. By the way, I voted for Reagan."

"What exactly are you authorizing?"

"Funds for deregulation of the clam-digging business."

"Why do you need money to deregulate an industry?"

"If you read the report, you'll see that it takes as much money to deregulate an industry as it does to regulate one. My father and mother were both Republicans."

"We're looking for ways to cut out waste and sloth in government. Do you have any ideas?"

"Can I speak frankly, sir? I've been working on this problem secretly for seven

'Epitaph' For U.S. Policy

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Holding Carter III may well have written the epitaph for President Carter's foreign policy when he said the bureaucratic fight between Zbigniew Brzezinski and the State Department produced a "Tower of Babel" that had many voices purporting to speak for the U.S. government.

Hodding Carter, chief spokesman for State when Cyrus R. Vance was secretary, calls the national security adviser a "rat terrier" and writes in the February issue of Playboy that the president should have told him to "shut up."

It is the latest and perhaps the loudest shot yet fired in the bureaucratic war that has been going on between the State Department and the National Security Council, now headed by Brzezinski, since the NSC was elevated from obscurity in the Nixon administration by Henry A. Kissinger.

The council, formed after World War II, is the White House organization responsible for gathering and channeling intelligence and foreign policy information to the president.

The fight between the NSC and State reached its peak last spring when Vance quit as secretary in the wake of the failed attempt to free the 52 American hostages in Iran.

Brzezinski recommended the military mission be mounted and Vance opposed it. Carter chose Brzezinski's view, and the soft-spoken Vance submitted his letter of resignation after discovering that the raid had been approved at a meeting to which he had not been invited.

Though Vance indicated the raid decision was the chief cause of his departure, there have been persistent reports — which he has done little to dispute since leaving the administration — that he and Brzezinski were embroiled in a running battle for supremacy throughout their tenure in the Carter administration.

President-elect Ronald Reagan and his top advisers, dismayed by the furor surrounding Brzezinski, say the situation will be different in the new administration. The national security adviser's status will be downgraded, they say, with the secretary of state's office given primacy in advising, and perhaps more important, speaking for the president in foreign affairs.

In a recent interview with the New York Times, Vance said, "It is of fundamental importance that there be only two spokesmen for the government on matters relating to foreign policy: the president of the United States and secretary of state." Though he did not refer to Brzezinski by name, Vance clearly had him in mind when he said, "any other arrangement leads to confusion."

Vance's successor, Edmund S. Muskie, has also refused to criticize Brzezinski by name.

But in a pre-election interview, he said he would recommend changes in the management of foreign policy if Carter were re-elected. Without mentioning Brzezinski, he said, "We need constantly to work at the challenge of communication, identifying our respective roles and avoiding confusion in that respect."

United Nations Ambassador Donald F. McHenry, on the other hand, referred directly to Brzezinski when he said recently, "A person who has the job of coordinator, which I would perceive (the NSC director's) position to be, would do well to coordinate and leave the public role of foreign policy to the secretary of state and to the president."

Other Editors Say A Quick Study

(Greensboro Daily News)

On a quick trip to Raleigh, incoming Agriculture Secretary John R. Block immediately ingratiated himself with the state's farm community by saying he opposed the government's anti-smoking campaign and supported the federal tobacco price support system.

Block, who came here at the invitation of Sen. Jesse Helms, also appeared to know which side his department's bread will be buttered on in the 97th Congress. Senator Helms is in line to be chairman of the powerful Senate Agriculture Committee.

Block also quickly picked up on Helms's pet theme that the food stamp program, which is managed by the agriculture department, should be one of the first programs in line to be cut. "We all know there's fraud and waste in the program," Block said. "Too much of our resources are going for non-productive programs....Farmers want to see less government and that's just one of the places it can be reduced some."

That may be. But it's always amazing to see how selectively some officials apply their theories of less government. Government interference in the tobacco market is welcome because it guarantees stability from year to year. Farm price support systems for many farm products have literally grown up with government.

Government programs to discourage smoking or provide food stamps for the needy, however, are immediately suspect in the same circles. While it seems there is always waste and fraud in the food stamp program, no one ever entertains the idea that an occasional penny or two might be misspent in a federal farm subsidy or loan guarantee program.

Indeed, some farm-state Republicans such as Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas are leery of slashing the food stamp program too heavily because the impact could hurt farm profits.

Tobacco farmers are right when they say uninformed critics don't understand how the price-support system works, nor how much good it has done for the economies of states across the South. Likewise, some in this state may not have fully considered the economic good food stamps have done in helping the poor and the unemployed stay afloat and become more productive citizens. Both programs, no doubt, deserve a more sympathetic hearing than they've received in recent months.

Strength For Today

THE HUMAN ELEMENT

The human element always remains the most important element in everything. We look at a manufactured product, and the thought occurs to us that the price we must pay for it is due to the material it contains. Actually, what we pay for is the skill, know-how, and the labor involved in making the material and putting the parts together.

For example, there is only twenty cents worth of steel in an electric razor that costs $40. There is only about $600 worth of steel in a $6,000 automobile.

Our century is a century of labor-saving machinery, yet the human element still remains the factor of greatest significance. Men may appear to have become robots, and probably some are, but no robot ever designed a jet engine or a precision instrument. Even the men who put the parts together work under requirements of skill which were unknown a hundred years ago. The idea that the machine age robs people of the skills of a bygone era is false. — Elisha Douglass

Shop By Calendar, And Save

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Shopping by the calendar can save you hundreds of dollars.

Almost everything you need will probably be on sale at some time during the year. As a general rule, you'll save the most if you buy things out of season or at the end of the season.

Make a list of the items you'll need throughout the year — including gifts. Buy them on sale and store them until they're needed. Here is a month-by-month guide of what to look for when:

JANUARY — The traditional white-sale month, with big discounts on linens and towels. Storewide clearance sales offer bargains on holiday merchandise, from Christmas cards and ornaments to toys and gift items. Other good buys include clothes dryers, furniture, radios, stereos, refrigerators and freezers. The earlier you shop, the better the selection. Beware of fad items that will lose their popularity before you're ready to use them.

FEBRUARY — Lincoln's and Washington's birthday sales and final markdowns on January leftovers. Check out air conditioners, bicycles, bedding, dishes, curtains, glassware, men's shirts, rugs and carpets. If you're a home gardener, check catalogs and start early indoor seeds to be transplanted later.

MARCH — Pre-season sales on spring clothing and end-of-season sales on winter items. Plan ahead and look for next year's winter coats, sportswear and sports equipment. Other bargain items may include housewares, china, laundry appliances, storm windows and luggage.

APRIL — Use your income-tax refund — if you get one — to shop for building materials, paint, garden items, wallpaper and outdoor furniture. After Easter, April 19, you can look for sales on women's dresses and coats, men's and boy's clothing and pre-season summer bargains.

MAY — Mother's Day and Memorial Day sales. Now is the time to replenish stocks of winter blankets, get children's camp clothing and any vacation luggage you might need. Make a list of things you'll need for summer — if you didn't get them at last year's end-of-season sales — and start looking for bargains.

JUNE — Father's Day sales, plus end-of-semester sales on school supplies, including typewriters. Other potential good buys include cars, tires, men's clothing, hosiery, lingerie and summer sportswear.

JULY — Storewide clearances again. The biggest markdowns are likely near the end of the month, but your choice may be limited. After the Fourth of July, check sales on shoes, bathing suits, air conditioners, hats, appliances, garden supplies, outdoor furniture and sports equipment.

AUGUST — A second round of white sales. Also worth checking: summer clothing, coats, fall fabrics, camping items, furniture, bedding, lamps, back-to-school supplies and pre-season discounts on fall clothing. Look for auto sales toward the end of the month.

SEPTEMBER — Labor Day sales, back-to-school promotions and pre-season specials on winter merchandise. Final sales on summer clothing, garden supplies and outdoor furniture. Watch for good buys on china, glassware, furniture, bedding and silver. If you're a theater or concert-goer, check on season tickets at a discount.

OCTOBER — Sales on the last of the old-model automobiles, along with Columbus Day coat promotions. Take advantage of post-season sales on bicycles and fishing equipment and pre-season deals on ski items. Other good buys may include auto batteries, electric blankets, children's fall clothes and lamps.

NOVEMBER — Veterans Day sales. You'll also find the lowest prices of the year on paint, hardware and other home-improvement supplies, along with relatively good buys on blankets, stoves, water heaters and used cars. Look for bargain bulbs, trees and shrubs for late fall planting. Try to shop early; the sales will disappear toward the end of the month as stores switch to full-price Christmas merchandise.

DECEMBER — The major retailing month of the year and the worst time to buy. Sales are few. If you've planned wisely, you should be able to avoid big purchases.

Brzezinski himself has publicly said little about the bureaucratic battles. Initially a low-profile job, the position of NSC director took on added stature during Richard M. Nixon's presidency, when Kissinger mounted foreign policy initiatives involving the Soviet Union, China, the Middle East and Indochina — often without even informing Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers eventually resigned during Nixon's second term and was replaced by Kissinger, who held both jobs for a time.

In his criticism of Brzezinski, Hodding Carter said the adviser "apparently saw himself as another Henry Kissinger." And "while he had neither Kissinger's intellect nor his political savvy, he did share one important asset: immediate access to the president."

The NSC-State competition has attracted the attention of Congress, too.

"I think we have developed a mischievous system that often leads to two secretaries of state," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, when Muskie was confirmed last May.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., said he wanted to "send a signal" to President Carter that Brzezinski should lower his profile. "A more anonymous staff person" should be the president's national security adviser, he said.

That is exactly what Reagan appears to be planning.

Richard V. Allen, who will be the national security adviser in the new administration, will be just that, say Reagan aides — an adviser, and not an articulator of foreign policy. Reagan transition planners say Alexander M. Haig Jr., Reagan's choice for secretary of state, will be the prime foreign policy adviser.

Geo. Bush Vows
A 'Low Profile'

NEW YORK (AP) — George Bush says he plans to keep a low profile as vice president and promises, "I will not have hurt feelings when people ask, 'What happened to George Bush?'"

In an interview in Time magazine, Bush said he had not been given any specific functions by President-elect Ronald Reagan though he has talked to Reagan about his responsibilities.

"But I think the Mondale formula is a good one," Bush said, referring to current Vice President Walter Mondale. "That is what I would like to be. What I want is for people to wake up in two years and say, 'You know, this guy really did something,'" he said.

"How much I do depends on how little I have to say about it publicly," Bush said.

Bush has spent most of his time since the election in Houston, assembling the 25-member staff that will accompany him to Washington.

against any Hunt plan: He is just running for governor and trying to get attention.

Boyles, on the other hand, sees his role as the state's main financial advisor as a serious and controversial one to be honored regardless of the outcome. Indeed, during his later years when Gill was not always in the best of health, it was Boyles as his chief assistant who drafted the position statements and analyzed the knotty financial situations which Gill spoke out on. This guiding force was responsible to a large degree for the state's record of fiscal conservancy.

Threatened Rail Strike Averted

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A tentative contract settlement has averted a strike slated to start today that would have paralyzed Conrail commuter and freight service from New York to Boston.

The settlement, reached Saturday, ended a two-year contract dispute between Conrail and District F of the United Transportation Union. District F was the last of 11 districts nationwide to come to terms with Conrail.

The settlement brings average salaries for brakemen, ticket-takers and conductors to $78 a day, according to union district General Chairman William Beebe.

years, but no one will listen to me. That's why my wife also voted for Reagan. First, we have to set up an ad-hoc committee on waste and sloth, which would create a department independent of the inspector general's office. This department would be staffed and housed in its own building so that it would not be contaminated by the people who are throwing the taxpayers' money down the drain. I have the plans here for the new building if you would like to see them."

"It's a very large building."

"When you're looking for waste and sloth in the government, you can't operate on a shoestring. Once we get the department in shape, I suggest we turn it into an independent agency, which would report directly to you."

"But I'm only on the transition team. I don't believe I'll be around after January 20."

"That's a pity. It was your idea, and you can't see it consummated. Can I have your name, sir? I'd like to tell the president-elect you're the most valuable transition team person I've talked to."

"It's Elrod. Melvin Elrod, of Tulsa, Oklahoma."

"It's an honor to meet you, Mr. Elrod. My name is Duval, Harvey Duval. My supervisor's name — the one who is skiing in New Hampshire — is Garfield Fieger."

"What kind of supervisor is he?"

"A very fine person. You can go into his office. It's the one that has a personally autographed photo of President Carter on the wall."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up a sharp gain in heavy trading today, aided by hopes for lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 15.79 to 988.57 by noon.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 3-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

On Friday many large banks lowered their prime lending rates from 21 1/2 to 20 1/2 percent. Today, Morgan Guaranty Trust of New York cut its basic rate on blue-chip loans to 20 percent.

Hopes that the recent downturn in interest rates might continue were reinforced today with the Federal Reserve's report of a decline of more than $2 billion in the basic measure of the money supply.

Among stocks sensitive to interest-rate prospects, American Telephone & Telegraph rose 7/8 to 49 3/4; Great Western Financial 1/2 to 18 3/4, and Pacific Power & Light 3/4 to 16.

Polaroid led the active list, up 1/4 at 25 1/4. A 513,600-share block traded at 24 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index gained 82 to 79.08. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.57 at 358.17.

Volume on the Big Board reached 29.04 million shares by noon, up from 12.22 million at the same point Friday.

Several Wrecks Investigated

A series of accidents that occurred in Greenville during the period since Jan 1 resulted in one injury and damages estimated at over $8,400.

Officers said that Edward Lee Moore of 319 Old London Inn was injured and taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital following a 9:20 p.m. wreck Saturday on Memorial Drive near the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Police reported that the wreck involved vehicles operated by Moore and Thomas Earl Heath Jr. of Rt. 4, Greenville. Damage was estimated at $1,600 to the Heath vehicle and $1,100 to the Moore automobile.

Moore was charged by investigating officers with failure to yield and driving under the influence.

Damages estimated at $2,300 resulted from a 1:40 a.m. wreck Sunday on Lawrence Street near 11th Street, according to officers, who said that the accident involved vehicles driven by Douglas Glen Daniel Jr. of 202 S. Library Street and a parked vehicle owned by Robin Hoggard Wynne of Rt. 4, Williamston.

Police, who charged Daniel with failure to reduce speed, said that no injuries occurred. Damage to the Daniel car was set at $1,800, while the parked vehicle sustained damages estimated at $500.

No injuries or charges resulted from an 8:55 p.m. wreck Saturday on Cotanche Street near E. 14th Street. Police said the accident involved vehicles driven by Eva Elizabeth Pittman of 625 Maple Street and a parked vehicle owned by Sylvia Jean Ross of 343 Tice Circle.

Damages were set at $1,000 to each vehicle and $100 to a utility pole owned by Greenville Utilities, which was struck in the accident.

Willie JoAnn Mizzelle of Rt. 4, Greenville was charged with a safe movement violation following investigation of a 1:35 a.m. mishap Jan. 1 on Cotanche Street near Fourth Street.

Police reported that no injuries occurred in the accident, which involved the Mizzelle vehicle and a car operated by Louis John Hollow Jr. of 220 E. 14th Street. Damages were estimated at $800 to the Hollow vehicle and $200 to the Mizzelle car.

A 5:44 p.m. wreck Saturday on W. Fifth Street near Memorial Drive involved vehicles operated by Douglas Leon Moore of 1701 Arlington Road, Hopewell, Va., and Dalton Reese Swindell of 1102 Dalton Avenue.

Damages estimated at $200 to the Moore vehicle and $150 to the Swindell car resulted and officers reported no injuries or charges.

appointment will be formally considered when the party executive committee meets Feb. 14.

Walker is expected to be re-elected at that meeting, as well as Betty S. Speir of Bethel, first vice-chairman.

According to George Saleeby of Grifton, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party, Faulkner will be responsible for the day-to-day operation of the North Carolina Democratic Party in her position. "She will be at the headquarters in Raleigh each day and man the operations there," he said.

"Mrs. Faulkner has been an outstanding Democrat in Pitt County," added Saleeby. "She is well-qualified for this position."

Cloning....

excellent milk producer, said Solter.

But the discovery may have great scientific importance, said Dr. Michael I. Sherman of the Roche Institute of Molecular Biology in Nutley, N.J. He said it would open up new tools for studying the functioning of genes in growth, aging and cancer.

The technique was developed by Dr. Karl Illmensee of the University of Geneva and Dr. Peter C. Hoppe of Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine, who was working with Illmensee. It will be reported later this month in the scientific journal Cell.

The method can be used only to make clones of embryos which are in the earliest stages of development.

The two scientists removed the nuclei of cells growing in 4-day-old mouse embryos. They were inserted into newly fertilized eggs of mice of a different strain. The original nuclei of the eggs were removed.

The eggs — with their transplanted cell nuclei — were then implanted in female mice of a third strain and allowed to come to term.

Of hundreds of such transplants performed, only three survived to become living adult mice. Tests using enzyme and genetic markers showed that each of the three mice was genetically identical to the embryo from which its nucleus had been plucked, but not to the egg into which the nucleus was implanted or to the female mice who carried the animals.

A British scientist, Dr. John Gurdon, proved more than a decade ago that a similar feat could be performed using cells from frog embryos. The work of Illmensee and Hoppe simply extends this discovery to mammals.

One scientist who worked on the project but who asked not to be identified, said that the experiments should properly be referred to as "cell nucleus transplantation" rather than cloning because the three mice were not genetically identical with each other but only with the embryos from which they sprang.

"If all the offspring had come from the same embryo, that would be a clone. But they weren't," he said.

But other scientists said Illmensee and Hoppe had managed to produce multiple copies from a single embryo in later, but still unpublished, work.

Retaliate Over Takeover

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Prison authorities have retaliated against three inmates who allegedly led the takeover of Lafayette Parish Prison by putting them in solitary confinement, their lawyers said.

"They had not been issued blankets, sheets, towels or soap and only when I came did they give the inmates toilet paper," said attorney Henry C. Remm of Acadiana Legal Services. He said he visited them Friday.

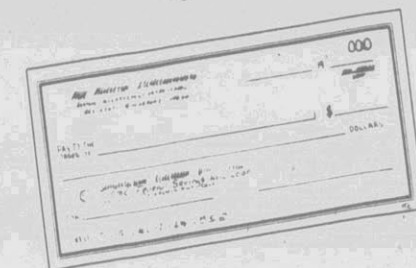

The inmates, Robert Pierre, Byron Lucas and Frederick Smith, have been identified by authorities as the men responsible for a New Year's Day takeover of the prison by 94 inmates who took two jailers hostage.

"We placed them in solitary confinement to isolate them from each other and the rest of the prisoners until the investigation of the incident is completed," said Capt. Harry Saucier of the sheriff's department.

Abandoned House Unlinked To Deaths

ATLANTA (AP) — Police have found no connection between an abandoned house where Bibles and strange paintings were nailed to walls and the deaths or disappearances of 15 Atlanta children, says Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown.

The house, which had a strong, foul smell, was pointed out to searchers who were combing southwest Atlanta Saturday for clues about the missing or dead children.

Volunteer search captain Katherine Whetstone described the house as smelling "like decaying flesh." It also had several Bibles and "strange paintings" nailed to the walls inside. Shovels, an ax and a hatchet were strewn around the floors.

But so far, there is "nothing to suggest that there is any relationship between that and our ongoing investigation" into the child cases, Brown said in an interview. "If there is evidence uncovered that relates to our investigation, we're not going to talk about it publicly."

"To even imply that there is a relationship is incorrect at this point," he said. David Westbrook, owner of the house, said he rented out the structure, but did not know where the tenants were. He said they had left their possessions behind.

Eleven Atlanta-area children have been slain and four others reported missing over the last 18 months, compared with seven such cases during a 17-month period between 1977 and 1978, according to statistics.

Police made arrests in all seven of the 1977-78 cases, but the recent slayings, all involving black children, remain unsolved.

Denies Charges Taking Bribes

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — City Police Chief Arthur G. Hess says he is innocent of charges that he took two bribes worth $4,000 from a state informant.

Hess, 45, was charged Saturday in Columbia with taking $3,000 earlier in the day from the informant for the state Law Enforcement Division in exchange for a promise to go easy on gambling enforcement. He was also charged with taking a $1,000 bribe from the informant in October.

"I'm not guilty and I'm confident the end result of a trial will come out that way," Hess said Sunday.

Slain In Camera Quarrel

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — A 28-year-old Cuban refugee has been stabbed to death in what authorities are describing as the first slaying at the refugee holding center here.

Hernandez Silvio Cuni was stabbed in the belly with a homemade knife Saturday in an argument over a camera, authorities said. He died on his way to the hospital, authorities said.

Another refugee, Beltran Julio Perez, 25, was being held Sunday in the Sebastian County Jail on suspicion of committing a crime on a government reservation.

Ram Loss Spurs Dallas On To NFC Title Game

ATLANTA (AP) — Danny White's heroics advanced Dallas into next Sunday's National Football Conference title game but an embarrassing loss three weeks ago may be an even bigger reason the Cowboys are still alive in their quest for a third Super Bowl victory.

White, the quarterback heir to former Cowboy great Roger Staubach, fired two touchdown passes to Drew Pearson in the final 3:40 Sunday, the last a 23-yarder with 42 seconds remaining, to lift the Cowboys to a 30-27 quarterfinal playoff victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Dallas now meets the Eagles in Philadelphia next Sunday for the right to play the AFC winner in the Super Bowl, Jan. 25.

"Everybody was embarrassed by our loss to the Los Angeles Rams," said White, referring to the Cowboys' 38-14 drubbing on the nationally televised Monday night contest three weeks ago.

"We just sat down and said, 'Hey, we're the Dallas Cowboys.' We've got to play better than that. This team established itself on spirit and pride," said White, a six-year veteran who has guided Dallas to a 14-4 record in his first year as a starter after Staubach retired.

The Cowboys came back to beat the Eagles in the final regular season game, then knocked off the Rams 34-13 last week before Sunday's come-from-behind thriller.

The Falcons, behind the throwing of Steve Bartkowski, who hit on 18 of 33 passes for 320 yards, led 27-17 on Tim Mazzetti's second field goal, a 34-yarder with only 6:37 left.

Earlier, Bartkowski hit on touchdown tosses of 5 yards and 60 yards, Lynn Cain scored on a one-yard plunge and Mazzetti booted a 38-yard three-pointer.

The Cowboys had scored on a 38-yard field goal by Rafael Septien, a 1-yard run by Robert Newhouse and TD strikes of 5 yards and 14 yards, the last to Pearson with 3:40 remaining.

"After that embarrassment to the Rams, we decided to play 60 minutes every game. Even if the score was 60-0, we would keep plugging away," said White.

"We got that first one to Drew and then the defense rose to the occasion and suddenly we were only three points down and had the ball," said White who was uncanny in the second half, hitting 15 of 20 passes for 239 yards after going only 10 for 19 and 89 yards in the opening half.

"This was the biggest game I've ever played in," said White. "Sure there was a lot of pressure but I need to get in those situations."

Gamble Ends Browns' Season

CLEVELAND (AP) — They weren't supposed to even be in the playoffs. Yet here they are, just one step from the Super Bowl.

It's enough to make a grown man cry.

"If I start talking too much about this," Coach Tom Flores said, surveying the jubilation in the Oakland Raiders' locker room, "I might get tears in my eyes."

The tears in the Cleveland Browns' eyes are drying today — the tears of frustration, of dismay, of seeing a chance at a championship inching closer and closer, then having it cruelly snatched away at the last instant.

It was Flores' clever decision to kick into the wind to start the second half which began the Browns' downfall, because it forced them to fight that wind in the final quarter.

But ultimately it was Cleveland's own doing which led to its undoing Sunday, to the Raiders' 14-12 victory which placed them in the American Conference title game next Sunday in sunny San Diego, far from the bitter cold which whips in off Lake Erie and brings tears to the eyes of anyone foolishly enough to face that sub-zero wind.

Coach Sam Rutigliano of the Browns chose not to face it in the final minute. He opted for a gamble, a shot at a touchdown rather than a kick into the teeth of that wind, an attempt at a game-winning field goal.

And that gamble almost certainly killed the Browns. The team which had spent the season on the precipice, looking down the yawning throat of defeat one Sunday after another, yet escaping each time by the skin of its teeth, finally got swallowed up.

"Sam took a chance. He could have thrown snake eyes," said Lester Hayes, the Oakland cornerback who stole quarterbacks blind all season, who swiped two of Brian Sipe's passes on Sunday.

But the interception which destroyed the dream of yet another Sipe-inspired heart-stopping triumph belonged to strong safety Mike Davis.

It came on second down on Oakland's 13-yard line, with 41 seconds to play. Ozzie Newsome, the receiver in the end zone, never had a chance.

"Ozzie was my man all the way," said Davis. "Sipe was sliding out of the pocket and didn't seem to want to risk the run ... I saw Ozzie look up, so I looked up and I saw Sipe let go of the ball."

And Davis, diving, wound up with it, cradling it while free safety Burgess Owens and then the rest of the exultant Raiders enveloped him and began celebrating their victory.

Rutigliano, of course, defended his decision to ignore — for one play, anyway — place-kicker Don Cockroft and shoot for the big six points. "If we threw on second down," he said, "we could run on third and still go for the field goal."

And for Cleveland, field goals had been hard to come by. Cockroft had made two, from 30 and then 29 yards, both in the third period with the wind at his back. He had also missed two, from 47 and 30 yards away, both in the second period with the wind in his face. Another attempt had gone awry on a botched snap from center. And the only conversion Cockroft attempted, after Ron Bolton's 42-yard second-quarter touchdown run with an interception, had ended with Oakland's Ted Hendricks batting the ball down.

All in all, not the best of days. Which is why Cockroft couldn't second-guess his coach.

"It was very logical," he said of Rutigliano's decision, "because we were having trouble with the entire kicking unit."

But up in the press box, surveying the scene, Al Davis, the owner of the Raiders, couldn't resist a second guess. As he stuffed a celebratory piece of chewing gum in his mouth, he announced: "I don't know what the heck they threw that ball for." And as if to punctuate his observation, he balled up the gum wrapper and flung it away.

And so, today, the Raiders turn their thoughts to San Diego, where yet another challenge awaits them, namely the most devastating passing attack in the National Football League. "I'm looking forward to seeing my old friend John Jefferson again," Hayes said of the Chargers' superb wide receiver. "It's a challenge to face someone on a par with me."

And it will no doubt be a pleasure playing on soft, warm grass which gives way under the feet and cushions the falls. "This was the worst surface I've ever played on," said Hendricks, the Raiders' linebacker.

Maryland-Carolina Clash Wednesday

By The Associated Press
Ninth-ranked Maryland moves its quest for the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season basketball championship into high gear this week with two challenges, at Chapel Hill Wednesday against seventh-ranked North Carolina and at home Saturday against Duke.

Pre-season media favorites to win the ACC regular season title, the Terps have come through the holidays with a 2-0 conference record and 10-1 overall after an early season loss to Louisville.

The game at Chapel Hill will catch North Carolina hard on the heels of back-to-back losses, while Maryland is coming out of a surprising squeaker Saturday night with William and Mary as coach Lefty Driesell's effort to let his subs get some game time nearly backfired.

With the score standing at 64-49 and a Maryland victory seemingly assured, Driesell began clearing his bench. The Indians took the offering gladly, cutting the margin to 67-64 with eight seconds remaining. Maryland sent some of its regulars back into the game to save the victory.

Greg Manning had 22 points for Maryland.

In other games involving ACC teams Saturday, North Carolina fell to Kansas 56-55 as Al Wood missing a jumper and freshman Sam Perkins failing on the followup in the closing seconds, Wake Forest opened its ACC warfare with an 87-61 victory over Georgia Tech, Clemson took N.C. State 76-68 in another conference game.

Ram Loss...

Drew Pearson, the 8-year veteran who has been the Cowboys' big-play receiver for many years, said the winning touchdown was "nothing special."

"Danny is a fine quarterback and if you're open, he'll get the ball to you," he said. "It was a great feeling but I didn't feel the satisfaction of it all until the final whistle."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry, known for his stoic face, even was seen smiling after the victory.

"What can you say? It was just a tremendous thing (the comeback)," he said. "When we got down by two touchdowns (24-10) in the third quarter, I thought our chances of coming back were slim. But the ball bounces funny sometimes."

It was the second time White had beaten the Falcons in the playoffs with second-half passing, leading the Cowboys to a 27-20 triumph two years ago after Staubach was sidelined at halftime with Dallas trailing 20-13.

"He was just super, amazing..." said Landry. "You know, actually, he's a first-year quarterback although he's spent some time in the league."

"He was simply amazing on a couple of plays, the final touchdown to Pearson and the 5-yarder to Billy Joe Dupree," said the coach who has taken the Cowboys to 15 playoff appearances in 16 years.

For the Falcons, who finished with a 12-5 record after winning the West NFC title, the loss left most of the players in a state of shock.

Raider Vets Know What It Takes

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, having been there before, already knew what it took to win the big one. The Cleveland Browns are just learning.

"You have to pay a big price for a championship," said Browns receiver Reggie Rucker after Cleveland dropped a 14-12 American Football Conference playoff verdict to the Raiders on Sunday. "Now we know the price you have to pay."

The loss could not have been more heartbreaking for the Browns, pro football's "Cardiac Kids" — nor the victory more heartwarming for the Raiders.

"I think maybe we've underestimated them all year," said owner Al Davis of his Raiders. "It seems they know what it takes to win."

Indeed, many of the Oakland veterans have been around since the Raiders topped Minnesota in the 1977 Super Bowl.

But the club was far from a favorite to reach the playoffs this season after trading away quarterback Ken Stabler and having newcomer Dan Pastorini fall victim to an early season leg injury.

Then a surprising Jim Plunkett took over and guided Oakland to a 9-2 mark during the final 11 games of the season, and his passing on Sunday, erratic as ever, was good enough to sustain two long drives culminating in a pair of Mark van Eeghen touchdowns.

"It's been a long year," said relieved Oakland Coach Tom Flores. "We worked hard, and we had our ups and downs. Before the season, people thought we'd get four or five wins. I thought we were good enough for the playoffs, and once you get there, anything can happen. We've beaten some very good teams along the way, and today was one of them. It's a great feeling."

The Raiders had plenty of reasons for being happy to leave Cleveland behind. Most obvious was the weather, which provided a frozen Municipal Stadium surface and a game-time wind chill factor of 30 below zero.

"It'll be a lot warmer next week," said running back Kenny King, looking forward to playing in San Diego against the Chargers for the AFC championship. "It was slick out there, and it was cold."

In truth, though, the weather had become an ally of the Raiders in the game's closing seconds.

The Browns attempted to pass their way into the end zone on second down rather than preserve the ball for a Don Cockroft field goal attempt into the wind. Mike Davis' interception of the toss, aimed at Ozzie Newsome, with 41 seconds left erased what was shaping up to be another of the Browns' patented come-from-behind victories.

"I knew it was over, it was all over," said Newsome. "I tried to strip him of the ball, but he held on."

"I wish we could have that pass back," echoed receiver Dave Logan. "I was open, but I could not question Brian (Sipe) or his throws. He has done too well all year."

"But it wasn't a satisfactory way to end the season. We exceeded a lot of people's expectations, but we didn't exceed our own."

The Browns were widely expected to finish third in the tough AFC Central Division, behind Pittsburgh and Houston, but injuries took the Steelers out of the picture and Cleveland edged the Oilers for the division title by virtue of an NFL tiebreaker.

Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano refused to criticize the playoff performance of his team.

"I told Brian I loved him," said Rutigliano. "I thanked the team for a fine year they gave the city of Cleveland and the coaching staff. I'm not personally disappointed. I am disappointed we didn't push this thing farther. I was glad to be a part of it."

White: Pass Risky, But Got There

ATLANTA (AP) — A hero's role was only minutes away for Atlanta Falcons' defensive back Tom Pridemore — then it suddenly was snatched away.

and third-ranked Virginia dropped in-state rival Virginia Tech 64-51 in a non-league battle.

Clemson, returning home after winning the Rainbow Classic in Hawaii, took advantage of N.C. State's 38 percent shooting in the first half to grab a 35-28 lead and then hold on for the victory. The Tigers were led by Davidson transfer Chris Dodds' 25 points and 15 more were added by freshman Vincent Hamilton.

"State has a good club and if we're going to finish on the bottom of our league like everybody has said it's going to be a helluva year," Clemson coach Bill Foster noted.

In a disappointing homecoming for coach Dean Smith, the Tar Heels shot only 35 percent from the floor for the night.

North Carolina overcame a six-point deficit to pull within one point with nine seconds left. That's when the Tar Heels called on Wood, who missed, and Perkins' follow also failed.

The ACC schedule this week: Tonight — Virginia at Delaware.

Wednesday — Clemson at Georgia Tech, Maryland at North Carolina, N.C. State at Virginia, Appalachian State at Wake Forest.

Saturday — Duke at Maryland, North Carolina at Virginia, Clemson at Wake Forest, Georgia State at N.C. State.

Pridemore said Sunday after Danny White fired two touchdowns passed to Drew Pearson in the final 3:40 to give the Dallas Cowboys a 30-27 comeback victory over the Falcons in a National Football League quarter-final playoff game.

Pridemore had stopped a Dallas threat early in the third period when he recovered a fumble by Preston Pearson at the Atlanta 15. Then, his 22-yard return to the Cowboy 38 of a pass interception set up a 34-yard field goal by Tim Mazzetti that gave the Falcons a 27-17 advantage with only 6:37 remaining.

White, a five-year backup before taking over this season for the retired Roger Staubach, put together scoring drives of 62 yards and 70 yards for the touchdowns to Drew Pearson — 14 yards with 3:40 left and 23 yards with 42 seconds to go — to propel the Cowboys into the National Conference title game next Sunday at Philadelphia.

"Things were mighty bleak after that (Mazzetti) field goal, but we decided it was not over yet," White said. "I was throwing well and I knew we could come back. I hoped the defense could get the ball back quickly. They did and we hung in there. The pass to Pearson was risky, but we got it in there."

"It was a great feeling," Drew Pearson said of his winning reception, "but you don't feel the satisfaction of it all until the final whistle."

"Atlanta is the best team we have faced this year, the hungriest team we have faced this year, and was the best prepared," said Dallas defensive back Charlie Waters.

"I feel our playoff experience helped us a lot today," said Tony Dorsett, the Cowboys runner who was held to 51 yards on 10 carries.

"They have a great young team with great young players, so we will probably be seeing some more of them in the future," Dorsett added. "They play football like it's supposed to be played. We were very fortunate to win."

"It just wasn't meant to be," said Atlanta linebacker Joel Williams.

"You're not supposed to lose games when you have a lead like that," said Jeff Mellow, a defensive lineman for the Falcons, who were appearing

Choice of the HarvestMasters

Make your pounds with Coker in 1981!

A lot of flue-cured growers came up short this past season. Many had only half their normal crops, and quality suffered. Dollar losses were heavy.

How about you? If making your 1980 poundage was a problem, why not let stress-tolerant Coker tobaccos make up your shortage in '81?

Plant one or more of our best-sellers, Coker 48, Coker 347 and Coker 319. Growers prefer these because they consistently deliver the pounds when the going is rough, compared to less drought-tolerant tobaccos. They make the most of more favorable seasons, too.

You'll like our new mosaic-resistant release too—Coker 51. It yields with Coker 48 and makes the best quality leaf of any mosaic-resistant variety yet introduced.

BNDAG PNIJMDIJKZ IMNIJKP
PKGKZBKAG

Saturday's Cryptoquip — ARE NANNY GOATS REALLY TIMOROUS, GRUBBING RUMINANTS?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: D equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

'Frankenstein' Has Lost Its Old Thrills

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — It kills me to say it, but Broadway's new "Frankenstein" is a stiff.

It's loaded with fake smoke and fog, machines that hum and crackle, flashes of lightning, thunder, ominous bass organ rumblings and a laboratory that goes boom and self-destructs in an apocalyptic finale.

But Victor Gialanella's stage adaptation of Mary Shelley's monster classic has few thrills and no chills other than those blowing into the Palace lobby on a freezing Sunday opening night.

This edition, set in and around the Frankenstein estate in Geneva in the mid-1800s, suffers from rigor mortis of the dialogue. Not even a mighty special effects effort by Bran Ferren can make it go.

David Dukes — hired but a few weeks ago when the show's concept was changed, ditto the leading man — plays Victor Frankenstein, the young scientist who creates a monster from human odds and ends he's had filched from graves of the newly departed.

Of course it proves not only his undoing, but that of two grave robbers, his young brother, his young brother's dog, his pretty fiancée, an innocent nanny, his best friend and his father.

Among other things, we hear his back broken on the broad shoulders of the monster (a suitably grotesqued-up Keith Jochim) a good storm has unexpectedly charged up. This causes a small "oooh" from some witnesses, but that's about it in the scary department.

It may be that we've seen the 1931 movie of "Frankenstein" too often, the one where Boris Karloff did the monster honors. But even today that strikes me as more frightening than this well-done. But here it's not well-done. There's little spark, except in the lab, of course. And even there the monster's first lurchings and unearthly howls seem unchanged from the original Karloff.

And not even such a fine an actress as Dianne Wiest, cast as Frankenstein's fiancée, can do much with a line like this, to his best friend (John Glover), a fellow scientist:

"He's changed, Henry. He's not the man we used to know."

Or this to Frankenstein from Henry, who is persuaded, briefly, to lend a hand: "Do you aspire to be a god?"

Some may be surprised to learn our monster speaks. He's taught in the show's only moving scene by John Carradine, superb as an old blind man who gives the creature his first taste of compassion and food, then is slain by the grave robbers who in turn are dispatched by the outraged monster.

The idea is to emphasize the creature's humanity by giving him speech, a workable guest brain, and making

Ex-TV Critic Trying To Sell His Color Set

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Arts Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — For sale: 19-inch color TV. Set's great, shows aren't.

I post that on the bulletin board and certain parties, none of sound mind, now kid me about it. They guffaw and note that I once toiled as a TV critic and now want to sell the old set.

But this is An Idea Whose Time Has Come. The idea may have originated in the summer of '78, when I still chronicled TV and its inmates.

I had an interview then with a Charlie's Angel — I forget her name, but so did she. She'd recently cut a record album. "Say," I inquired, "how many octaves can you sing?"

"I don't know," she revealed, "When I sing, it's purely organic."

A lot of interviews were starting to sound like that. So were a lot of shows. Some were even terrible. There wasn't much reason to watch TV even if you could find the shows, a hard task in itself.

Counter-programming at the networks had gone stone bozo, air dates constantly shifted, confusion reigned. Indeed, it's said NBC had a news show called "Prime Time Sunday, or Monday, or Tuesday, or Wednesday, or Thursday, or Friday, or Saturday."

With all that, with epics like "Supertrain," "Dukes of Hazzard" and "That's Incredible" looming, it seemed wise to split, take up a new dodge, and henceforth watch TV as a civilian.

So I did. Not all was bad. There was Bill Moyers' stuff and the thoughtful, gracefully written CBS "Morning" news to enjoy. And David Hartman, whom newswires laughed at because he'd been an actor, proved a pretty good interviewer on "Good Morning, America."

But at night, most shows seemed beamed up from the Land of Dumb. And even the few good ones were interrupted by frenzied network drum-beating for coming shows, not to mention ever-thickening clusters of commercials. Pretty soon it all became a blur.

It was an eyeball version of the drone of all-news radio wherein you hear: "Trading mixed, 15 killed, light and variable clouds, hostage crisis continues, Erik Estrada gets divorce, World War Three breaks out, cold grips Northeast, coming up next..."

Nothing registered. I saw but didn't see, heard but didn't hear. The set stayed dark more often. Try more public TV, suggested the culture buff I know. OK, I says.

him a sympathetic character whom life deals a bad hand. But it soon falls flat.

So does most of the play, which is done straight, with no jokes save for Carradine's turn and several false trips to a closet in which we just know the monster lurks (surprise, he isn't).

The tone of earnestness gets dull fast. It's only sporadically relieved by brief, smoky special effects and periodic monster cries for revenge that get serious when the harried Frankenstein ups and destroys the poor guy's would-be mate.

Tom Moore directed, but in a losing cause. The most remarkable sights are Douglas Schmidt's brilliantly detailed sets and Carrie Robbins' fine period costumes, both the elegant and shabby kind.

Dukes, so good in last season's "Bent," exhibits considerable grace under short-notice pressure here. But there's not much he, the monster or the rest can do with the stiff dialogue let loose here.
