Growing U.S. Outrage Not To Scuttle Iran Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Growing outrage over reports of brutality against the American hostages won't scuttle the deal with Iran if the agreement complies with the law, the Reagan administration says.

Amid suggestions in Congress that mistreatment would justify reneging on the accord, a State Department statement Thursday said, "This administration, consistent with domestic and international law alike, fully intends to carry out the obligations of the United States."

But Vice President George Bush said the new administration "will review every page (of the agreement), as any prudent administration should do."

William Dyess, a State Department spokesman, conceded that emerging reports of brutality against the hostages "certainly will not make it any easier" to go ahead with returning some of the remaining Iranian assets held in the United States.

Dyess added that he "did not mean to imply that the reports will have any influence" as President Reagan weighs whether to follow through on the settlement reached in the final hours of Jimmy Carter's presidency.

At the White House, press secretary James Brady said the accounts of mistreatment would not affect the administration decision.

Bush said Reagan was outraged and "very angry" Thursday after reading a four-page, handwritten report from Carter detailing his visit to the former captives, who are recuperating in West Germany.

Carter's report, delivered by former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, described "acts of animals" and "savagery against absolutely innocent hostages."

Since the hostages were freed Tuesday, there have been reports they were beaten, starved and mentally tortured.

Carter called the Iranians "savages" and "hoodlums," but he urged Reagan to fulfill the "solemn agreement" that led to the Americans' release. National honor is at stake, he said.

After reading Carter's report, Reagan was overheard telling Bush, "I'm going to have to consider what our attitude is going to be with regard to this." Resolutions were introduced in both the House and Senate Thursday to support Reagan if he decides not to carry out the freedom accord. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., also announced that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will hold public hearings into the "brutal treatment, even atrocities," the Americans underwent.

But Baker said any decision on backing off the settlement should wait until "the wounds heal a little."

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., the Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said his inclination would be to abide by the agreement. "It's a question of honor," Percy said. "A deal's a deal."

However, Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., said that when Carter negotiated the deal freeing the hostages, "he did not know how cruelly some had been treated" and Reagan "has ample justification for setting aside any part of the treaty which he deems inimical to U.S. interests."

Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., today introduced a bill that would direct Reagan "to require the government of Iran to punish those persons responsible" for the hostage seizure.

In Tehran, Iranian Executive Affairs Minister Bezhad Nabavi denied there was any mistreatment. He called the former captives "comfort-seeking diplomats" who did "not understand the meaning of kindness." Nabavi said the United States was making the brutality claims to seek world support for abrogating the agreement.

The deal basically swapped the hostages' freedom for billions of dollars in Iranian assets frozen by Carter after the Americans were taken captive in November 1979.

Former Hostages Flying Back To U.S. On Sunday

By JAMES F. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The freed American hostages are scheduled to fly to the United States on Sunday for reunions with their families, U.S. officials said today. And the chief of the medical team examining them said some show guilt feelings and other signs of temporary psychiatric illness.

Announcement of their impending return to a "private location" for the reunions followed a $15,000 shopping spree today by 51 of the 52 Americans.

State Department spokesman Jack Cannon did not say where they would meet their families. But military officials in the United States said the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, Dover Air Force Base in Delaware and McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey are being considered.

Dr. Jerome Korcak, head of the State Department medical team examining the former hostages in Wiesbaden, said they were "generally very happy" at the news. But he also spoke of psychiatric symptoms and physical ailments following their 14½-month ordeal in Iran.

Korcak said some hostages feel guilty about statements they made to the Iranians during the 444 days of captivity.

The Iranians, meanwhile, denied reports that the hostages were treated brutally by their captors.

A spokesman for the U.S. Consulate in Frankfurt said that medic Donald R.

Hohman, 39, of West Sacramento, Calif., was expected to return with the other hostages. Hohman was transferred to Tehran in August, 1979 from Frankfurt and his wife and two sons continued to live in Frankfurt during his captivity.

Korcak said the psychiatric symptoms include episodes of flashbacks and disrupted sleep, part of what he called post-traumatic stress syndrome. Asked whether he thought they will recover, he said: "It's variable, but it passes with time and proper treatment."

"As might be expected, the 52 Americans are in varying states of mental and physical health," Korcak said.

"A number of those released are showing signs of transient psychiatric illness, including post-traumatic stress syndrome which is directly related to their captivity in Iran."

Korcak refused to discuss individual cases, saying that would violate the patients' rights to privacy. He said the treatment begun here would continue in the United States.

He said "some feel guilty," mentioning that one hostage had made anti-American statements on condition some of his colleagues would be released.

Korcak said another hostage made a television statement after being told his mother had died and that if he made the statement he would be allowed to return to the United States for the funeral.

He apparently was referring to U.S. Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel of Balch Springs, Texas, who reported being told his mother was dead and finding out when the hostages were freed that she was alive.

Iran on Thursday denied that the hostages had undergone brutal treatment at the hands of their captors. Iran's chief hostage negotiator, Behdad Nabavi, called the Americans "comfort-seeking diplomats" who were "ungrateful" and who did "not understand the meaning of kindness."

Korcak said weight losses by the former hostages ranged from 10 to 80 pounds, and some were so depressed they are not leaving their rooms or participating in activities at the hospital.

"Many of the hostages have described beatings to us," Korcak said, adding that the beatings were administered in ways that would not leave marks on the body.

One hostage who was beaten into unconsciousness continues to suffer from a ringing in the ears, he said.

The beatings were administered at times during interrogations to obtain safe combinations and other information, Korcak said, and others were beaten as punishment for escape attempts.

"We're seeing about what we expected, but you can't tell from looking at a person," Korcak said of the psychological toll of the hostages' captivity.

Brothers Reunited

evening. The Hohman brothers joked about the amount of weight Donald had lost while he was held hostage, and the "scalping" he'd received earlier in the day when his abundant beard was shorn. (AP Laserphoto)

Labor Dept. Reporting Consumer Prices Rose 12.4 Percent In 1980

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices climbed 12.4 percent in 1980, marking the second consecutive year of double-digit inflation, the government reported today. The report confirmed the nation's longest spell of high inflation since the end of World War I.

The year-end report by the Labor Department showed that despite a deep recession last spring, consumer prices rose nearly as much as in 1979, when inflation jumped 13.3 percent.

Not since 1918-1919, when the United States was returning to a peacetime economy, has inflation exceeded 10 percent for two years running.

The government said the Consumer Price Index rose 1.1 percent in December, about the same as in the three preceding months. Once again, substantial increases for mortgage interest costs, transportation and food paced the latest rise.

For the full year, housing and transportation costs were the principal contributors to the inflation rate, as they were in 1979, the government said.

Inflation forecasts for 1981 show no relief for consumers. Most economists expect large gains in food and energy prices to maintain inflation at current levels.

In a separate report today, the Labor Department said that the after-tax buying power of the typical American worker declined by 4.8 percent last year because of high inflation. It was the second year in a row that real earnings were eroded by inflation. Over the last two years, buying power shrank by 10.1 percent, the government said.

Housing costs rose 13.7 percent in 1980 after jumping 15.2 percent the year before. The largest increase was for mortgage rates, which were up 23.3 percent, while house purchase prices were up 11.4 percent.

Transportation prices increased 14.7 percent in 1980, compared with an 18.2 percent increase the year before. Prices in this category were paced by an 18.3 percent rise for used cars, an 18.9 percent for gasoline and a 25.6 percent jump for public transportation.

Food and beverage prices rose 10.1 percent last year, almost identical to the rise in 1979. Sugar and other sweets showed the largest increase, up 35.7 percent.

Clothing costs were up 6.8 percent for the year, medical care prices rose 10 percent and entertainment costs were up 9.6 percent.

Overall, the Consumer Price Index in December stood at 258.4, which means that a marketbasket of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $258.40 at the end of 1980.

The Carter administration, in its final economic report last week, predicted that inflation will continue at about 12.5 percent during the first year of the Reagan administration.

President Reagan, who is seeing his first Consumer Price Report since entering the White House on Tuesday, has vowed to fight inflation and reinvigorate a sluggish economy by slashing the federal budget and tax rates. Reagan's economic advisers say it could take a year or more for the new president's policies to work.

However, departing Carter administration economists warned that Reagan's planned tax cuts would only worsen inflation by overstimulating the economy.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics noted that if the volatile effects of mortgage interest costs were eliminated from the current method of computation, the inflation rate last year would have been 10.8 percent.

The Carter administration had suggested last week that the price index be revised to eliminate the exaggerated effects mortgage rates have, and the proposal appears to have support in Congress.

The 1.1 percent rise in prices last month is up slightly from 1 percent in each of the three prior months. If the rise were to continue at the December rate for a full year, inflation would be 13.4 percent.

The government said housing, transportation and food and beverages accounted for more than 90 percent of last month's increase.

Jaycees DSA Is Given Phil Dixon

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Jaycees honored young local attorney Phil Dixon last night as the recipient of the chapter's Distinguished Service Award for 1980.

Dixon received the Greenville chapter's highest service award during the 35th annual DSA banquet, held this year at the Ramada Inn. The award activities coincide annually with the observance of Jaycee Week both on a local and national level.

The Jaycees also announced the selection of Jerry Creech, a member of the local chapter until 1979 and a past president, as the 1980 Boss of the Year.

The award presented to Creech was initiated several years ago to honor a boss of a local Jaycee who has provided support of the organization through his employee. Creech was nominated by Preston Sisk.

Edward M. Walker, president of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, was guest speaker for the annual meeting and made the DSA announcement and presentation. Walker spoke to the Jaycees on "You're Made to Succeed."

Dixon is a partner in the Greenville law firm of Dixon & Horne.

The 30-year-old lawyer, born in Louisville, attended East Carolina University and received a B.S. degree in business while maintaining a 3.3 grade average. He received his J.D. degree from the University of North Carolina School of Law.

The DSA nomination data on Dixon noted an active involvement in the Student Government Association at ECU, including a tenure as SGA vice president in 1970-71 and chairmanship of the N.C. State Student Legislature. He was the recipient of the Scholastic Achievement Award from the ECU School of Business.

In law school, he was a member of Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity and served on the board of directors of the Student Bar Association for two years. Dixon served as a North Carolina government intern under the Marshall of the N.C. Superior Court in 1971 and he also served as an SBI intern and associate editor and editor-in-chief of "The Law Record" at UNC in 1972, 1973 and 1974. He was associate justice of the UNC School of Law Honor Court in 1972-73.

Dixon served as a summer law clerk for the Greenville law firm of Harrell and Mattox in the summer of 1973 and he was a library research clerk at UNC in 1973 and 1974.

He was admitted to practice law on Oct. 14, 1974 and then served as research assistant for the N.C. Court of Appeals. In 1976, he joined the law firm of Gaylord, Singleton and McNally and on Feb. 1, 1978, he entered into a law partnership with Stephen Horne.

Among his present involvements, according to the data, are: Deacon, vice chairman of the board and Sunday School superintendent at First Christian Church; board of directors of the Greenville Arts Council; various committee memberships on the Chamber of Commerce; charter member and 1979-80 president of the Greenville Sports Club; member of the board of directors of the Noon Rotary Club; ECU Alumni Association; division chairmanships in the 1979 and 1980 United Way campaigns; and ECU Pirates Club.

"Phil takes a low profile with his involvements and could not be considered flashy," the nomination data pointed out. "It is obvious that he does not seek recognition, but rather the personal satisfaction of seeing the fruits of his labors materialize."

Dixon and his wife, Candace, have a nine-month-old son, Phillip R. Dixon Jr., and reside at 113 Westhaven Road.

Creech, a Benson native, is owner of Carolina Microfilm Service at 1209 S. Evans (Please turn to Page 2)

'Beat The Peak' Said Paying Off

Greenville Utilities Commission director Charles Horne said today that the utility's "Beat the Peak" load management program has resulted in an estimated gross savings of about $924,600 during the three years of its operation.

Of that amount, about $333,000 has been returned to the utility's customers who voluntarily participate in the program, through credits on their utility bill during the Summer months, resulting in a net savings of some $591,600.

Horne said GUC's residential customers participate in the load management program by agreeing to have radio controlled switches placed on central air conditioning units and water heaters. The switches are then used to interrupt the low of electricity to the appliances for short periods when the system's predetermined peak demand is reached.

Some 4,442 of the switches have been installed on air conditioners, while 4,610 have been installed on water heaters during the three-year period.

By reducing the peak demand, Horne said, substantial savings in wholesale power costs can be realized. He added that over the three-year period, the "Beat the Peak" program has resulted in savings some $1.21 million in wholesale power charges.

The commission, according to Horne, pays a demand charge, "as sort of a penalty" for its peak demand potential, "all year. The lower this demand is, the lower the year-round charge is.

Energy Education Efforts Earn PCC Recognition

ADDRESSES ACADEMY — Marguerite Yourcenar, first woman Academician, addresses fellow academy members and guests, including French president Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, during her reception speech Thursday in the Academie Francaise building in Paris. Ms. Yourcenar, who lives now in the United States, broke 346 years of all-male tradition, and she paid tribute in her address to the "invisible troop of women that perhaps should have received this honor sooner". Behind her is the Academie bureau. (AP Laserphoto)

Pitt Community College's efforts in the area of energy education have been selected by the North Carolina Community College system as its nominee for regional and national recognition. The recognition program is sponsored by the Office of Vocational and Adult Education of the U.S. Department of Education.

In the letter of nomination to the U.S. Department of Education, Dr. Larry Blake, president of the N.C. Community College system, called the PCC energy program, "an innovative one that addresses the energy question from a variety of viewpoints."

Dr. James H. Young, director of Institutional Development, characterized the PCC energy program as "both comprehensive and pioneering. PCC has been a national pace-setter in providing a variety of programmatic responses to identified energy education needs."

In a prepared written summary, Dr. Young cited such highlights as the fact that Pitt was one of the first colleges in the nation to design, develop and implement a degree-granting program in energy technology.

The college conducted comprehensive research to determine the specific competencies needed by energy technologists and designed its program around these attributes. The PCC associate degree program has been outlined at several national conferences and has been used as a model by other colleges.

In addition to the Energy Technology curriculum, the report cites numerous other facets of PCC's comprehensive education effort. Among these is the current construction of a passive solar house. This structure was designed by PCC instructor Sam Arnett and is being built by PCC students in carpentry, masonry, electrical installation, heating, refrigeration and air conditioning with assistance from students in architectural technology and energy technology. The 1,500 square foot house is slated for completion in January, 1982.

In other efforts, students from architectural technology and energy technology assisted the Greenville Utilities Commission in conducting more than 100 energy audits for local residents. Carpentry students from PCC also assisted GUCO in constructing a scale model house to demonstrate proper construction and insulation techniques.

The Pitt Community College alcohol fuels training program also represents a primary portion of the overall energy education effort. This program was one of the first 14 of its type sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy. Its focus has been to design and build appropriate equipment and to provide instruction covering the small-scale, on-farm production of fuel ethanol.

The PCC alcohol project has received national attention as a leader in small-scale technology. More than 100 area citizens have enrolled in the alcohol fuels seminar at PCC and one of its graduates was recently featured in a national magazine for his pioneering work in producing fuel alcohol from sweet potatoes. Additional components of the PCC comprehensive energy program include conducting a total energy audit of the college campus and formulation of a technical assistance plan for optimum energy efficiency in campus facilities. Also, the college is currently assessing the feasibility of using two recently-acquired wood-fired boilers to augment or replace a portion of the existing oil-fueled campus heating system.

The PCC auto mechanics department has converted one campus vehicle to a dual carburation system which uses propane as its primary fuel. Also, numerous energy-related courses have been offered through the college's Division of Continuing Education. These have included such topics as alcohol fuels, solar heating, solar hot water systems, and home energy conservation.

Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., PCC president, called the program nomination "a distinct honor. We are proud of the great variety of approaches we have taken to assist people in understanding and solving the nation's energy problem," he said.

"We still view energy as a national and international problem of major proportion. We must attack this problem with all available resources, including systematic education of the public, in order that they might better understand the problem and better equip themselves to cope with it."

The PCC energy program will now be considered in competition with nominees from seven other southeastern states for a regional exemplary program award. If successful at the regional level, it will be one of ten considered for the national outstanding Vocational Educational Program Award to be presented in Washington, D.C.

Advise Cutting State's Budget

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Leaders of a legislative budget committee today recommended that $200 million be trimmed from the proposed state budget during each of the next two fiscal years.

The recommendation was made during a meeting of the joint Base Budget Committee of the General Assembly as it reviewed spending proposals for the upcoming biennium.

Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Mount Gilead, chairman of the Senate committee, said the proposed reduction is a "conservative goal" and amounts to only a 6 percent reduction in expenditures from the general tax fund.

He said the reductions are necessary for a number of reasons. One is that revenue growth estimates may be high. The estimates for 1981-82 are 12 percent but Jordan said that figure may be closer to 10 percent and that 2 percent difference amounts to about $56 million.

He also said appropriations for current operations exceed estimated tax revenues by more than $100 million. That excess, he said, was taken from the budget's credit balance and is "only one-time money."

"There are virtually no funds available for supplemental budgets or special appropriation bills," he said, adding that includes new projects.

Another factor that must be considered, he said, is the possibility that the General Assembly will enact legislation reducing taxes and reducing the amount available for spending.

Jordan said the $200 million dollars in reductions would make available only about $50 million in new revenue, after reducing the growth estimates and deducting the excess from the credit balance.

"With all the pressure we're getting from the public not to increase the gas tax, we've got to find some money somewhere," Jordan said, adding another item to the list. "Plus it's time to cut out old programs."

See Rise In Unemployed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The unemployment rate in North Carolina rose slightly in November, but the Triangle continued to lead the state with the lowest jobless rate among metropolitan areas.

Overall, the state unemployment rate in November was 6.5 percent, up 2 percent over October. The nation's jobless rate for November was 7.1 percent.

In Durham County, unemployment dropped in November to 4.2 percent, down .6 percent from October. Orange County's unemployment figures showed a slight gain on October's tallies, up 3 percent to 3.9 percent.

The state Employment Security Commission reported that the combined unemployment rate for Durham, Orange and Wake counties for November was 4.5 percent, up .1 percent from October.

Unemployment in the state's other six metropolitan areas was: Charlotte-Gastonia, 4.9 percent; Greensboro-High Point-Winston-Salem, 5.7 percent; Asheville, 6 percent; Burlington, 6.6 percent; Wilmington, 8.3 percent and Fayetteville, 10.3 percent.

Suit Filed To Retain Charter

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A local chapter of the United States Jaycees, threatened with losing its charter because it admits women as members, has filed suit against national headquarters.

The Palo Alto Jaycees have allowed women to participate in the civic group's activities through the female Palo Alto Young Citizens. Although not elected, women have performed some of the same tasks as Jaycee officers.

The suit, filed last week, alleges discrimination against women and seeks a permanent injunction preventing the national group from revoking the charter. Officials of the national Jaycees were unavailable for comment.

Admits His Firm Does Do Business With N.C.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, after consulting an attorney, has amended his financial disclosure statement to show his highway construction company does business with the state.

Sen. Conrad Duncan, D-Stoneville, who was appointed last week to the powerful tax-writing committee post, added the reference to his state highway contracts in the economic statement required by law for all legislators to file.

Duncan, in an interview, said his previous omission of the listing was due to a difference in interpretation of the law. "It went in this morning. I checked it out," Duncan said Thursday.

Duncan took the step after The Associated Press reported that, in his economic interest statement, Duncan had left blank a section asking legislators to list any business which they or companies they are associated with conduct with North Carolina state government.

Duncan is chairman of C.R. Duncan Construction Co. Inc. of Rockingham County and his wife is also an officer.

The company currently holds $10.5 million in state contracts for road and bridge construction projects now under way.

Duncan said he did not originally list his business with the state because he had thought the form requested information only about "selling things" to the state. He said he decided to add the reference after the AP report and after consulting a lawyer.

"It didn't really state about public contracts. That was the reason," Duncan said. "It was a matter of the way it would be interpreted."

Duncan said he took the step after consulting "a real good attorney" who is a member of the Legislature. He did not name the lawyer.

In adding to his report, Duncan wrote that his company did state highway and bridge construction but did not list any specific projects or amount of the projects.

Under a provision asking for the nature of business done with the state, Duncan wrote:

"Building highways and bridges. (This work is advertised 30 days prior to bidding). Seal bids are taken, opened and publicly read, then awarded to lowest bidder."

Duncan was named to finance post last week by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. With it comes a seat on the budget-writing Advisory Budget Commission.

Duncan has said he does not consider his position in charge of the powerful Finance Committee, which will consider proposals to raise more money for the highway program, or ABC seat to pose a conflict of interest with his state business.

Duncan said he was asking for a written opinion from the state attorney general and believed it would support his view.

Nevada Again Rejects ERA

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — For the fifth time, the proposed federal Equal Rights Amendment has been rejected by the Nevada Senate.

After voting on the amendment, the Senate passed a motion for "no further consideration," killing the ERA in the Senate for the 1981 session. Sen. Floyd Lamb, a Democrat from Las Vegas, said Thursday he "just wanted to get rid of" the measure. He used the same tactic to bury the amendment, which would ban discrimination based on sex, early in the 1979 session.

The measure must be ratified by 38 states by June 30, 1982, to become part of the U.S. Constitution. It has been approved by 35 states, although five have rescinded their approval.

Possibly Stole 'Time Bombs'

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — People who have been taking cannonballs from a Civil War monument in downtown Hagerstown may be stealing "time bombs," because some of the shells are still live, officials say.

Parks Superintendent Douglas Stull said Wednesday that a plan to weld the remaining cannonballs together, thus preventing further theft, was abandoned when a work crew noticed a plastic-like material sticking out of one shell. Black gunpowder was found inside the ball.

Carrier Back In Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The powerful Soviet aircraft carrier Kiev has returned to the Mediterranean Sea for the first time in about nine months, Pentagon sources said today.

The Kiev is one of Russia's two aircraft carriers. It has been operating in the Atlantic Ocean since last April.

Pentagon officials said they were not certain whether the 40,000-ton carrier, rated one of the world's mightiest warships, would remain in the Mediterranean or would proceed to its home port on Russia's Black Sea coast.

The United States is operating one aircraft carrier, the John F. Kennedy, in the Mediterranean. Before the Persian Gulf crisis, the United States normally kept two carriers with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Others Cause Difficulties

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the Jewish woman with the Catholic husband, telling about all the trouble they had over their Christmas cards. (She didn't mind sending Christmas cards, but she didn't want anything too "religious.")

How silly can people be? I'm Protestant and my husband is Jewish. For 46 years we have had to listen to all kinds of dire predictions about the "difficulties" we'd have to face because of our mixed marriage. (The only "difficulties" we've had to face came from other people not minding their own business.)

I hope that mixed-marriage couple settle on a Christmas card that says "Seasons Greetings." They should skip the religious sentiments altogether. They have to live with each other — not with the cards!

WELL-MIXED IN RENO

DEAR WELL-MIXED: Well said.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SENSITIVE AND INSECURE IN DELAWARE": No one said it better than G.K. Chesterton: "There is a great person who makes every person feel small. But the really great person is the one who makes every person feel great."

DEAR ABBY: There is nothing new about the theory that the practice of wearing tight shorts can reduce a man's fertility. For hundreds, perhaps thousands of years, shepherds have decreased the size of their herds by wrapping the ram's testes in sheepskin pouches. The added warmth destroys the sperm, rendering the sheep infertile. You did your readers a valuable service by printing that letter.

H.B., WACO, TEXAS

DEAR WACO: I very nearly threw that letter out, thinking it was a put-on, but after checking it out and printing it, I received many more confirming the theory that the practice of wearing jockey shorts could diminish a man's chances for fathering a child. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am glad you printed that letter about jockey shorts. My husband and I had already started adoption proceedings when a neighbor, bless her heart, told me about the big difference my husband's shorts could make. We laughed at first, but two months after he started wearing loose boxer shorts, I got pregnant. We couldn't believe it!

We have three beautiful children now, and our family is completed, so my husband went back to wearing jockey shorts. (I also had my tubes tied when the last one was born.)

Thanks for educating the public, Abby. You can reach more people in one day than we could in a lifetime.

PAT IN HOUSTON

DEAR PAT: And to make the theory of jockey shorts more binding, try this on for size:

DEAR ABBY: I recently read an article in a medical journal stating that if men continue to wear jockey shorts and tight jeans, the need for artificial insemination will increase drastically!

It stated: "The male anatomy was created so that the testicles draw close to the body in cold weather and drop in hot weather. It is a natural thermostat at work. Interference with this causes a serious drop in sperm."

The article indicated that American men have increasingly lower sperm counts, and the problem is compounded by the wearing of tight clothing.

For population control throughout the world, wouldn't it be a great idea to export tight jeans?

Reception On Tuesday

RALEIGH — Mrs. Carolyn Hunt, North Carolina's first lady, will be hostess for a reception at the Governor's Mansion for Mothers' March Chairmen and key March of Dimes leaders from across the state Tuesday from 10 a.m. until noon.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. JoAnn M. Benson, director of staff development, March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, White Plains, N. Y. Other special guests include Mrs. Hazel Chapple, regional director, Atlanta, Ga. and Stephanie Bonner, Fayetteville, 1981 North Carolina poster child.

Mrs. Benson has been associated with the March of Dimes since 1970, serving as director of staff development. She implements nationwide staff training to carry out programs for the prevention of birth defects.

The March of Dimes supports a variety of programs in genetic counseling and high risk pregnancy, nutrition, prevention and care at UNC, Bowman Gray, Appalachian State University, East Carolina University and at major hospitals.

Bride-Elect Entertained

A miscellaneous floating shower honoring Miss Terry Ann Kovalchick was held at the home of Mrs. Katie Lou Kittrell Saturday evening. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Ruth Crawford, Mrs. Jan Kittrell and Mrs. Zelma Savage.

An arrangement of red carnations and white mums flanked by burning white tapers centered the dining table which was covered with a white lace cloth.

Miss Kovalchick, February bride-elect of Steven Carr Hardee, was presented a corsage of white mums by the hostesses. Mothers of the bride couple were also remembered with white mum corsages.

Appearing In Pageant

GREENSBORO — The 1981 North Carolina's Junior Miss Pageant will be held here tonight and Saturday evening at Warr Memorial Auditorium.

Allison Dixon Keel, Greenville Junior Miss, will be participating. She is a student at J. H. Rose High School.

The winner of the pageant will go on to compete in the 1981 America's Junior Miss Program in March in Mobile, Ala. The North Carolina pageant is an ongoing project of the Greensboro Jaycees.

Thrifty Skillet Main Dish Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor
These days I am constantly on the lookout for casserole-style skillet dishes that contain a minimum of meat but are flavorful and satisfying. With each of these dishes, a salad and dessert can complete the meal.

Here then is a new recipe for this sort of skillet dish; it's a medley of Polish sausage, brown rice, mushrooms and cabbage. Because parboiled brown rice is used, each grain stays separate.

In my test kitchen, we tried the recipe during the day; at suppertime I reheated the Polish sausage and brown rice combination in my microwave oven and invited three neighbors to be tasters. Their verdict: it's a great main dish for an informal supper.

POLISH SAUSAGE AND BROWN RICE
2 tablespoons butter
1 1/4 pounds (about) fully cooked kielbasa, sliced diagonally about 1/4-inch thick
1 medium onion, quartered and thinly sliced
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, fairly thinly sliced through caps and stems
1 cup parboiled brown rice
2 and 2/3 cups water

1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons dried dillweed, see Note
2 cups loosely packed thinly shredded cabbage
Topping: 1 cup (or less) commercial sour cream
In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat, melt the butter. Add the kielbasa and brown lightly. With a slotted spoon, remove kielbasa and reserve.
Add the onion and mushrooms to the drippings in the skillet and cook over moderate heat, stirring often, until the onion is wilted and the mushrooms give off some of their liquid — about 5 minutes.
Add the rice, water, salt, dillweed and reserved sausage; stir well. Bring to a boil; continue cooking, tightly covered, over low heat until the water is absorbed and the rice is tender — about 50 minutes.

Add the cabbage; it will seem bulky for the size of the skillet, but stir it in. Cover tightly and let stand on the turned-off surface heat unit until the cabbage warms and shrinks — 5 to 10 minutes. Serve at once. Pass the sour cream as a help-yourself topping.
Makes 4 main-dish servings.
Note: when fresh dill is available, mince enough to make 3 tablespoonfuls and use instead of the dried dillweed. As a garnish, spoon a little of the sour cream over the center of the kielbasa and rice mixture and top with a sprig or two of the fresh dill.

Gas lighting was installed at the White House in 1848.

'Scrap' Needs Limiting

As one of his final acts, former President Carter initiated a procedure which could restrict the import of foreign tobacco labeled as "scrap."

Gov. Hunt said Carter asked the International Trade Commission to study the tobacco import matter. Imports can be restricted if it is concluded that a federal subsidy is threatened by foreign goods. That is exactly what the tobacco interest say that the "scrap" tobacco import situation is doing.

It has helped push up the inventories of tobacco held by Stabilization Corp.

Hunt noted that it will now be up to the Reagan administration to continue the initiative. The investigation by the commission will take two to three months.

Certainly the action is proper. The so-called scrap tobacco is replacing home grown leaf in tobacco products.

Officials of the Raagan administration have indicated that they will continue to support the tobacco program. Limitation of "scrap" imports is an important part of keeping the program sound.

Our Honor Is Important

Some influential newspapers have urged President Reagan to ignore the remaining provisions of the agreement with Iran for the hostage release.

If we were concerned only with the miserable government of Iran the idea would be tempting. However, other nations of the world are watching to see if the United States will keep its agreements. If we are to continue to be the leading power, we have to demonstrate more than most that we will keep our word.

On the surface there appears to be nothing in the agreement that we can't honor. To break the agreement would not build our position as leader of the western world.

The Fuel Is Jobs

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Jobs are the fuel which make political machinery run most efficiently.

This is especially true as applied to good, clean, high-paying jobs around the courthouse, and involving a lot of lawyers who are more active than most people in civic, community, and political affairs.

When Gov. Jim Hunt suggests, as he does in his new budget, that a lot of new jobs for judges, assistant district attorneys, and court administrators should be funded, he would normally be greeted with loud votes of appreciation from legislators.

Not this time around, however, for Hunt also proposes in the small print that he be given the power to name the people to hold the jobs.

This flies in the face of past practice when members of the General Assembly have gained favor at home by being able to specifically designate new jobs in the courts, and even swing some weight in picking new employees.

until October when it was supposed to have been implemented a year ago, and of the Presumptive Sentencing Act; both favorite proposals of the governor in past years.

All along, Hunt has been insisting that both measures could be put into effect in

With that one paragraph tucked away deep inside the proposed budget, Gov. Hunt would take all the political clout and glory there is in filling the new jobs. He already has the power to name the 20 special superior court judges as well. He is the "Director of the Budget," and the "Advisory Budget Commission" is his rubberstamp organization in such matters.

The local stampede is already underway to build a case for new personnel. And longtime courthouse observers agree that there will be few local court officials who, given the opportunity, would say they don't really need any more judges or prosecutors.

And legislators who have, in the past, basked in the (Continued on Page 5) most areas without difficulty if court personnel would buckle down to the chore at hand, but judges and prosecutors have argued hotly that there is no way they can handle the increased workload with present personnel. So Gov. Hunt has said that if a local court can demonstrate that it must have more personnel in order to get the speedy trial and fair sentencing measures rolling, they should have them.

Thus comes the area over which the governor and the lawmakers will clash: "Funds appropriated in Section Two of this Act to the Judicial Department as a reserve for implementation of the Speedy Trial Act and of the Presumptive Sentencing Act shall be allocated to the Judicial Department by the Director of the Budget with approval of the Advisory Budget Commission based on documented needs for implementation of the programs by the Judicial Department."

The Honeymoon Is Over

WASHINGTON — "I would like to see President Reagan," I told the man in the frock coat and striped pants behind the desk.

"I'm sorry," the man replied. "The president is on his honeymoon."

"Who is he on his honeymoon with?" I demanded.

"The American people, Congress and the press. Every president is entitled to a honeymoon after he is sworn into office."

"That's ridiculous," I said. "The president of the United States doesn't have time for a honeymoon. There is too much work to be done."

"He's working in the honeymoon suite, but he is not to be disturbed."

"For how long?"

"It depends. Some presidents have had a honeymoon period for as long as six months. Others have had one for as little as a month."

"And so I'm supposed to cool my heels in the lobby while President Reagan is drinking champagne and cuddling up to the American people?"

"You can sit over there on the couch if you want to. He might come down, but I doubt it."

ART BUCHWALD

"I can't wait around for the president to have a honeymoon with the American people for six months. I've got a job to do."

The man behind the desk said, "We're sorry, sir. But our orders are the president is not to be disturbed until his honeymoon is over."

"Can't I speak to him on the phone?"

"What do you want to speak to him about?"

"The economy, inflation, the state of the world and the price of heating oil which people can't afford."

"We couldn't let you speak to him about those things or you'd spoil his honeymoon. We have instructions to only let him speak to friendly members of the press, congressional leaders and influential friends, who think he's a wonderful person. Every president is entitled to that. Even President Carter had a honeymoon with the American people when he was first sworn in."

"I think there is more going on upstairs than meets the eye. I believe you're keeping something from me that the American people should know about."

"I told you. The president is on his honeymoon with the American people. You should know, sir, that on a honeymoon you can't believe anything bad of the person you're with. That's why it's called a honeymoon. You've got four years ahead of you. What's the big rush in writing about him now?"

He's the only president I've got. I owe it to my readers to point out what he's doing wrong."

But he's only been president for two days. What could he possibly do wrong in two days?"

"That's what I'm trying to find out. Couldn't I just peek in the honeymoon suite and see what they're doing?"

"It's out of the question. The American people would never stand for it. If you busted in on the president's honeymoon, they would have your hide."

"I'll bet you anything that if columnist George will come in right now, you would let him go up to the suite."

"Yes, we would. But that's because he's part of the honeymoon party."

"I thought this was a free country!"

"It is, sir. That's why presidents are permitted honeymoons."

Other Editors Say Math In Attic?

(The Raleigh Times)

The wheel of ways to teach mathematics keeps turning, and its latest spoke to return to view is what you might call the OLD old math. That distinguishes it from the old math, the new or post-Sputnik math (now in disgrace), and the new new math. The OLD old math, which someday may become the new old math, goes back to around 1900. It is not taking the country by storm — yet.

Its recent rediscovery, according to the Chicago Tribune, is Stan Hartzler, who as an Illinois teacher coached his high school math teams to five conference championships using turn-of-the-century textbooks.

In them, Hartzler says, he found artfully constructed, easy-to-read lessons. "Students could learn by themselves and wouldn't have a lot of questions ... (the books) have a continuing sequence of problem-solving, and they continually challenge the students to use their minds." One of the first things he noticed, using them, was a rapid drop in youngsters' questions about last night's homework.

The old texts' authors were often one-room school teachers. They "didn't have time to lecture — they had to move on and teach other children reading." Many an urban teacher today barely has time to lecture either — she's too busy doing required paperwork or keeping order.

Of course, the old books didn't sport glossy graphics aimed to catch teachers' eyes and sell thousands of copies. But the new ones are mostly written by teams with the defects committee authorship implies. Their homework exercises, Hartzler says, aren't even written by the "authors" but by high school teachers who happen to live near the publishing firm.

Today's texts stress drill, not stimulation of a student's own thinking ability and confidence. "Students are taught to rely on the text and the teacher, rather than using their own minds," Hartzler believes — and the goal is too often imparting only enough skill to cope with college entrance or other standardized exams and not a bit more.

Hartzler, now teaching at the University of Texas at Austin, is collecting more old math books for a doctoral thesis.

But if you've got one in your attic, maybe you'd better lend it to your child instead of mailing it to Hartzler. Heaven only knows how long it will take the establishment to get back to what worked in 1900.

Strength For Today

REAL AUTHORITY IN THE CHURCH

A little child who had attended Sunday-school in one community and then had moved to another was somewhat disturbed to find that after her change of residence she would have to go to a church of another denomination. The first Sunday she rushed home from Sunday-school, her face radiant. "Mother," she cried as she burst into the house, "guess what! They have Jesus in this church just as they do in the church we left back home."

There are thousands of adults who never make the discovery which this child did. Yet it is a simple truth that comes down from heaven itself that Jesus is to be found in every Christian church, regardless of its creed or its ecclesiastical allegiances. And from this truth grows an even greater one — that wherever Jesus Christ is, there is his Church. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ," said St. Paul, "he is none of his." And the corollary of that truth is that wherever the spirit of Jesus Christ is, there is his church. — Elisha Douglass

The 10-Day Stock Show

By TERRY RYAN

Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — It's ranchers and cattle, the Old West and designer jeans, weekend cowboys, 4-H and Future Farmers, and big money. For 10 days each January — 11 days this year to mark its 75th anniversary — the National Western Stock Show comes to Denver.

For cattlemen it is the Super Bowl, World's Fair and a national convention rolled into one. They come from 45 states and six foreign countries, and what they do here will affect the quality and price of beef on your table a year or two from now.

It may be possible to live in Denver and be unaware of the National Western, but a person would have to ignore 100,000 visitors in boots, trucks and horse trailers packing city streets, supermarket clerks in cowboy hats, TV weathermen in full cowboy drag and an occasional distinctive aroma.

The show began Jan. 14, with the last shows and sales scheduled for Saturday and the last rodeo performance for Sunday. Before the show ends, more than 330,000 people are expected to ante up the $2 to enter the 40-acre National Western grounds 3½ miles north of downtown Denver.

More than 80,000 of those visitors will come from out of state, pumping $32 million into the local economy. Another 20,000 will be Coloradoans from outside the Denver area.

The first National Western was held in a circus tent in 1906. There had been cattlemen meetings earlier in Denver, but when the National Livestock Association convened in 1897, the bash became a brawl. It was nine years before anyone tried again.

The National Western added a rodeo 50 years ago, and it is now one of the three biggest and richest on the pro rodeo circuit. The Stock Show (it's capitalized in Denver) includes horse shows and sales, sheep shows and sales, hogs, chickens and even rabbits. In its heart of hearts, however, the National Western is cattle.

George Schlichau, a breeder from Haven, Kan., stood at the back of the auction arena this week as the bids ticked past $18,000 on a Hereford bull. "Denver is recognized by most all the cattle business as the best of the shows," said Schlichau. "This is the World Series."

An hour earlier, half interest in a Hereford breeding bull sold for $301,000. Lean animals with more red meat and less fat are the major concern of cattlemen these days, said Schlichau, and they will pay to get them.

"That is what the consumer wants — less fat," Schlichau explained. "To get that you are looking for animals with long muscles and less back fat. The other thing you are looking for is something that will consume roughage and put it into weight."

Many steers are going to slaughter now at 950 to 1,100 pounds, down from 1,200 to 1,400 pounds a couple of years ago. Much of that additional weight was expensive, corn-produced fat put on in feed lots. Cattlemen now want animals to put on more weight on range grass or roughage from grain fields. Their success will affect how much steaks and hamburger cost at the meat counter.

More than 14,000 animals and $11 million changed hands last year during the National Western. More than 25,000 animals were shipped in this year, and no one is even guessing at the total sales figure.

For many stockmen, the National Western is a combined family vacation, business trip, shopping outing and fraternal gathering. Hotels in Denver are full, taxis scarce, and the newspapers run special advertising sections. January is the best time of the year for ranchers to get off the ranch.

Steve Simmons and his wife brought a pair of heifers and two bulls from their Angus operation near Williamston, Mich. The animals were for sale, if the right offer was made, Simmons said, but the main (Continued on Page 5)

To the editor:

It is shocking to know, for the year ending June 30, 1980, the 10 Pitt County ABC stores sold a total of $4.3 million worth of the NO. ONE addictive drug — an increase of 25 percent in five years. Greenville and Pitt County cannot afford more outlets.

ANNUAL ESTIMATED COST OF ALCOHOLISM IN PITT COUNTY: (Lost production; direct health care, fire loss, cost of crime, and cost of social responses) was $9,572,160.

For Pitt County, the estimated revenue received from the ABC stores is $453,394.02. Excise tax from beer sales is $261,402.22 and from wine sales, $24,149.57, making a grand total in revenue of $738,946.71.

The above figures reveal for every $1 received in revenue from liquor, beer and wine sales in Pitt County, there was a $12.95 alcohol-related cost.

Greenville and Pitt County cannot afford more outlets for the distribution of liquors.

Indictment Yet to To Be Proven

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As industry is challenged to reindustrialize, said the professor, nothing is more ridiculous than the claim that too many businesses are run by financial people who manage for dollars alone.

"There are many things wrong with corporate America," he said, "but that indictment has yet to be proven." It is fallacious, he said. It isn't backed up by facts or informed observation, he said.

Professor Eugene Jennings, Michigan State University, is an authority on corporations, having all his adult life studied and written about them, and advised those who make major decisions about their direction.

Presumably, he said, critics think financial wizards know too little about the fundamentals of business, including markets, technology, production and workers. "They are accused of having tunnel vision that brings an analytical preoccupation with facts and studies," he said.

Jennings maintains there aren't that many money men running big corporations anyway, but that those who do are as rounded as others. Their backgrounds do not eliminate the possibility of their possessing vision or a willingness to take entrepreneurial risks, as charged.

He points out that some industries doing poorly, such as steel, autos and consumer electronics, are without large numbers of financial men in decision-making jobs. The problems cannot be blamed on money men.

"In fact," he says, "in the largest industrial corporations the percentage of chief executives with financial backgrounds is about 15. They are seldom found in command positions in steel, an industry run largely by operating and manufacturing people, or in consumer electronics, where sales and marketing types prevail."

There is a mistaken notion, the professor continues, that there is something in a finance background that precludes taking an overall and long view. "Furthermore, there is an assumption that there is something in a financial education that precludes vision and risk."

Not so, he says. Such characteristics are not in the education. "You cannot educate for vision or willingness to assume risk in any field of endeavor. They are qualities that are in individuals."

Jennings traces the recent evolution of management leadership from manufacturing types in the 1950s, to sales-marketing people during the rapid growth of the 1960s, to financial people in the 1970s. "But the latter never got above 22 percent (of chief executives) in any year."

Now, he says, business has an insatiable appetite for people thought to have a well-rounded background because they managed business units. "In the past three years they represent 40 percent of the top jobs."

Such changes, he reasons, are due to the flexibility of U.S. business to respond to changing problems. But the changes also generate criticisms, such as those against people with financial backgrounds.

"In fact, a case can be made that U.S. business hasn't given proper attention to financial management," Jennings asserted.

"I have never failed to find that the best financial people are the first to know the limits of their discipline," he explained. "Time after time I have seen people from manufacturing and marketing over-rely on numbers, especially in crises."

And so Jennings the observer and adviser on corporate life shrugs off the criticism against financial people, and in fact some of the other criticisms about the "types" who run American industry.

"The ultimate criticism will be that business is headed too much by businessmen," he said.

"We show all over the country but there is nothing like Denver," Simmons said as he stood at his stall space in the National Western's Beef Palace. "It is social in a way. We see our friends from all over the country here, and see what they are doing."

As Simmons talked, children from a suburban Denver school district were being ushered around the grooming racks two aisles away. Show cattle are washed, sprayed, fluffed, oiled and polished in a way that simply astounds city folks, young and old.

Thomas Watts, a Denver physician, was walking with his wife and three children from the stockyard pens toward the exhibition buildings. A friend had shown some animals that day, and his children just liked being there. "It's a good way for city folk to see how country people live," Watts said.

Phantom Jets

Replacing B52s

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Defense Department said Thursday 24 F-4E Phantom fighter-bombers will be assigned to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base to replace B52 bombers scheduled for reassignment to other bases next year.

Lt. Gen. Charles Blanton, Air Force deputy chief of staff for programs and evaluations, said a practice bombing range in Dare County and the attitude of the people of the Goldsboro area toward the military were key factors in the decision.

The 24 additional Phantom jets will bring to 96 the number of fighter-bombers assigned to Seymour Johnson. The fighters are part of the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing.

overlook the rules." "I'm afraid not, sir. The presidential honeymoon suite is off limits to people like yourself, and there is nothing you can do to persuade me to let you go upstairs."

Political cartoonists Herb Block, Oliphant, Conrad, and columnist Jack Anderson all came into the lobby at the same time.

"Is the honeymoon over yet?" Block asked me.

"Heck no," I said. "As far as I can tell, it's only just begun."

"Oh boy," said Anderson, "are we in trouble?"

"I gave Nixon a week," said Oliphant. "I'm afraid this one could be a lot longer."

"Well," I said, "might as well sit in the lobby and relax. Did anyone bring a deck of cards?"

THE "SUGAR WALK" — John Holley of Morganton watches his dog "Sugar" take an afternoon stroll in his front yard, in the unique way that only Sugar can. The poodle was hit by a car two months ago and was never supposed to walk again since its pelvis was crushed. But within a week the feisty dog was getting around on its own by walking on its front legs. Now whenever Sugar goes for a walk, heads turn as she strolls with her back legs waving in the air. Off-Shore Oil Hunt Fought NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Interior Department has not fully considered possible harmful effects on fishing and shipping if ocean bottom, including some off Virginia, is leased for oil production, environmentalists say.

As a result, environmentalists urged federal officials Thursday not to offer a small part of the 1.4 million acres stretching from 60 miles off the southern tip of Assateague Island to New Jersey because commercial fish spend winters near there.

A state official and a fishing industry representative told a public hearing that the Interior Department has not adequately considered the chance that ships might hit oil rigs or that the rigs may impede commercial fishing.

But oil industry spokesmen said exploiting oil reserves off the Virginia coast is essential for the nation's security, and that they are anxious to begin exploration.

The biggest problem posed by the leasing is that it will be years before technology is sophisticated enough for commercial production of oil in waters deeper than 2,000 feet, the oilmen said. Large portions of the land up for lease are in waters at least that deep.

Exxon, Shell, Texaco, and Tenneco were among the oil companies at the three-hour hearing sponsored by the Interior Department.

The department's draft environmental impact statement says there is some risk in exploring and producing oil in the area, but that the benefits outweigh the risks.

The chance of oil spills is small and the oil rigs would be so far from shore that spilled oil would be carried out to sea, the statement says.

Geologists, the statement notes, estimate that from 0.36 to 7.3 billion barrels of oil and from 1.9 to 28.5 trillion cubic feet of natural gas lie beneath ocean bottom in the area, which is subdivided into 253 blocks of ground, each about three miles on each side.

The proposed leasing would be the fifth for lands off the East Coast. Only three blocks developed so far have yielded oil or natural gas, but not enough to merit commercial production.

Thursday's hearing is one of a series of steps before any bids for the leases can be made. A final environmental impact statement must be completed and the proposal must be reviewed by the governors of all the states affected by the leasing. The secretary of the Interior will then make a final decision on the project.

Life As It's Lived

A Switch Efficiently Finds Seat Of Problem

By GAIL MICHAELS
I have this feeling that the new psychology is subsidized by the aspirin industry. Why else would psychologists of otherwise normal intelligence advocate abandonment of tried and true methods of punishment in favor of a system which produces nothing but headaches?

I know that after I say this there are people who will be after my hide, but some days I long for a switch. A switch is efficient at getting the point across. In fact, when I was a child, I was acquainted with many of its points. And if I've developed any deep-seated hostilities about that, I am unaware of them.

Best of all, a switch is quick. The punishment and the anger at the misdeed are over within 5 minutes, and the parent and child can be back in each other's arms.

Time-out and its variations are also supposed to be quick. I'm here to testify that they aren't. Five minutes in a rocking chair doesn't seem to phase Meg. Neither does praise. Although she basks in it, if she's faced with a choice between praise and doing what she wants, she does what she wants.

Doing what she wants usually entails arguing. Meg would argue with an enraged bull over the shade of red in her dress. She certainly doesn't shrink from arguing with me.

"I don't want to pick up my toys," she told me in answer to a recent request.

"I'm sorry, but you must. They are too small for Zachary to play with safely," I said, appealing to her reason.

"Then put him in the playpen."

"He needs exercise just like you. Besides, I'm tired of the mess."

"What about your mess?" I was losing my patience. "Don't sass me, young lady! Just pick up your toys!"

"I'll do it tomorrow."

I thought I showed tremendous restraint. "Do it now!" I screamed.

"I don't feel like it."

"Then maybe you had better sit in your chair until you do."

She howled and sobbed as I escorted her to her chair. Five minutes later she quieted down long enough to call me. "I need to talk to you, Mommy!"

"Are you ready to clean up?"

"No. I want to tell you that you punish me too much."

"I wouldn't have to punish you if you would learn to mind without arguing."

"No, no, no!" She stamped her foot. "You're not supposed to say that!"

"Why not?"

"Because Daddy told me to tell you when anything was bothering me. He didn't say for you to answer back."

"He meant that he wanted you to be able to discuss your problems with us. You think you get punished too much, but I don't think you do. And if you would listen to me, you wouldn't get nearly as many punishments as you do now."

"Well, I don't want to listen. I hate cleaning up."

"Meg, I'm not going to stand here while you argue with me."

She rolled her eyes. "I'm not arguing, I'm having a discussion."

Pass the Bayer, please.

High Bills Are Expected

WINTERVILLE — Electric bills will be high for residents this month, but not as high as they could be, according to the town clerk, Elwood Nobles.

"We had a 9.6 percent increase as of Jan. 14 from our supplier," he explained. "but the town will not increase the rate charged its customers during that period." From Dec. 30 until Jan. 14 the town paid the old rate for electricity, but since then, they've paid a higher rate, Nobles said.

Meters will be read Jan. 30. "Since consumption has been high this month, the town will absorb the price hike," said Nobles. "The rate will probably increase at the February reading, though," he added. The fuel charge will increase from $6 to $8 this month.

Law Firms Want Delay

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirty-five New York-based law firms representing clients with some $1 billion in claims against Iran have asked the Reagan administration to halt any action concerning Iranian assets until questions are answered about the legality of Jimmy Carter's orders prohibiting suits against the Persian Gulf nation.

Former President Carter signed orders barring suits and claims against Iran as part of a deal to free to the 52 Americans who were being held prisoner by the Iranians. Former U.S. Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti has asserted that Carter had the authority to make such a deal.

But Lawrence Newman, chairman of the New York Plaintiffs Steering Committee on Iranian Litigation, sent President Reagan a telegram Thursday asking for a meeting with the attorney general and the secretaries of state and the treasury to discuss the "legal validity and effect" of Carter's order.

Newman, of the firm of Baker and McKenzie, said Carter's actions raised "serious questions of fundamental fairness" and raised "serious constitutional and other legal questions."

The 35 firms represented by the steering committee represent more than 100 clients with claims against Iran's assets in this country.

By DAVID MINTHORN Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet media castigated the United States throughout the hostage crisis, but its harshest accusations are coming now that the 52 Americans have been freed.

CIA psychologists, the official news agency Tass charged Thursday, were dispatched to the U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, to "brainwash" the former captives before they meet with reporters.

"The American authorities obviously fear that the former hostages could declare for all to hear that they do not have hostile feelings for the Iranian people," said Tass.

It dismissed the reports from the freed Americans that they were tortured, beaten or mistreated during their 14 months in the hands of the Islamic militants.

"Rumors are being circulated...that the arrested Americans were allegedly poorly treated," said Tass. "It is implied that Iran should bear responsibility for this."

Soon after the U.S. Embassy and its staff were seized on Nov. 4, 1979, the Soviet government went on record in favor of the release of the hostages on the basis of international agreements on diplomatic immunity.

But while the government paid this lip service to the cause of international law, the publications and broadcasts it controls were charging that the United States was bullying Iran and using "blackmail and pressure" to try to force it to release the captives.

The Soviet media consistently proclaimed sympathy with the revolutionaries and repeatedly stressed that the U.S. Embassy personnel were "charged with espionage."

The media became more antagonistic toward the United States last weekend after the negotiations for the release of the hostages entered their most delicate phase. Moscow newspapers, television and radio claimed that another military attack to free the hostages had been prepared and "could come at any moment."

The U.S. government accused the Russians of "scurrilous propaganda" and hinted that they were trying to torpedo the talks.

As the final agreement took shape, Tass claimed the United States was forced to bargain for the hostages after it failed to save them by "provocative" military action and other "blackmail and pressure."

Despite the anti-American tone of the reports supplied them, some Muscovites expressed sympathy for the captives and approval that they were freed.

"It's terrible what Iran has done to them," said a student two weeks ago. "I hope they get out all right."

"It's good the Americans didn't have to pay any of their own money to get them back," a young writer said.

"I saw your hostages on television after they were freed," said a housewife said with obvious pleasure. "They seemed to be in good condition."

And despite the Soviet government's obvious attempts to curry favor with Iran's revolutionary regime, Iranian officials accused the Soviet government on Thursday of insulting "propaganda ballyhoo" because of Moscow's official protest after a hostile demonstration at the Soviet Embassy in Tehran on Dec. 27.

Several dozen people scaled the wall around the embassy grounds and burned the hammer-and-sickle flag to protest the first anniversary of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. Most of the demonstrators were Afghans, but Iran is one of the Moslem nations that have sharply condemned the Soviet intervention in the Moslem neighbor.

Payroll Checks Are Stolen

The theft of 15 payroll checks from the W. H. Sullivan & Co. office at the East Carolina University medical school construction site near Pitt Memorial Hospital on Wednesday, is under investigation by the Greenville Police Department.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, the checks, contained in an envelope, were taken from the office a short time before the theft was reported, at 2:15 p.m.

The checks, drawn on Northwestern Bank in Greensboro, and dated 1-21-81, ranged in amounts from $150 to $300.

Negotiating On Coal Exports

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — The state Commerce Department said Thursday negotiations have begun in an effort to find coal shipments for exporting through the state port at Wilmington.

Coal exports recently began at the port in Morehead City.

Department spokesman Steve Meehan said at least one company has expressed interest in making shipments through Wilmington. He did not identify the company.

If the contract is worked out, Meehan said, additional land for coal storage might have to be acquired near the Wilmington docks.

Resolution Condemning Iran Before N.C. Senate

Economic Forecasters Argue Effects Of Chrysler Collapse

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — If Chrysler Corp. collapses, the economic effects would be severe, but just how severe is something much debated by economic forecasters.

There is general agreement that economic distress will be far more serious in areas where Chrysler is heavily concentrated — such as Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Not everyone agrees that a complete collapse is assured, even if the company is forced to seek protection from the bankruptcy courts. That's because Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code makes it possible for a company to continue operating with court protection from creditors.

But Chrysler has said a court filing would dry up sales immediately, and some experts believe motorists then would have to pay for their own warranty repairs and sue for the money — a sure-fire way to repel buyers.

On Wednesday, the first United Auto Workers unit to vote on pay cuts to help save Chrysler approved the reduced contract overwhelmingly, the UAW said.

The Winfield Foundry unit in Detroit, part of Local 3, voted 71-2 to accept pay cuts of about 13 percent after March, a UAW spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday.

Those cuts and other concessions from UAW members are designed to save Chrysler $622 million by September 1982.

About 61,000 active and 47,000 laid-off UAW members in the United States and Canada must complete ratification votes by Feb. 2 before the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board will authorize $400 million in new loan guarantees that the struggling automaker says it needs to stay in business.

Allen Sinai of Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass., economic consulting and forecasting firm., predicted in August 1979 that a total collapse of Chrysler would throw 500,000 to 600,000 people out of work by a year after the collapse started, counting jobs at suppliers and dealerships. Of those, 200,000 would still be out of work two years after the initial collapse.

That would boost national unemployment by 0.5 percent, he said, with a reduction in the real growth rate of the economy by 0.6 percent to 0.9 percent.

Those predictions now are out of date, but Sinai said

WEEKEND SERVICES

The following services for the weekend have been scheduled for Holy Mission Church, 905 Dickinson Ave.:

On Friday at 7:30 p.m. there will be a Prayer and Praise service with Missionary Gladys Murphy from Grifton; Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Holy Communion will be served with Eldress Rhoda Knox from Good Hope F.W.B. Church, Winterville; Sunday morning worship will be held at 11 a.m. with the pastor, Eldress Shirley Atkinson and the senior choir in charge; at 2 p.m. dinner will be served; at 3 p.m. a special service will be held with Eldress Evon Best from Cherry Lane F.W.B. Church speaking.

The public is invited to attend all services.

GOSPEL SING

There will be a gospel sing at Fleming Chapel Church Saturday at 7 p.m. featuring the Cool Brothers of Cove City and the Southern Jubilees of Greenville.

The sponsor, the Rev. Linwood Chadwick, invites the public to attend.

CLUB TO MEET

Hills Dale Community Club will meet Saturday at 4 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Sally Taylor, 403-B Dudley Street, according to the president, Rosa Weaver.

recently a Chrysler failure now "would not change our conclusions very much."

Sandra Shaber of Chase Econometrics Associates, a forecasting affiliate of Chase Manhattan Bank based in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., predicted in November 1979 that Chrysler's downfall would mean 176,000 layoffs in the first six months of 1980. A Transportation Department study at the same time reached a similar estimate for job losses but did not count dealer jobs.

Chrysler is a far weaker power in the auto industry than it used to be. The company's sales of domestic cars and trucks shrank 48 percent from 1.62 million in 1978 to almost 847,000 in 1980.

OPENING SERVICE

The public is invited to attend the opening service of Berry's Temple Full Gospel Original F.W.B. Church, located on Highway 264 west of Saratoga. The service will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. with a sermon by the pastor and founder, Elder J.N. Perry Jr.

from two out of every 19 to two out of every 27.

When 1979 began, Chrysler had about 140,000 employees in the United States and Canada, of whom 117,000 were active; at the start of this year about 83,000 were active and about 47,000 were on long-term layoff — a job shrinkage of 30 percent.

Sinai believes "the devastating effect (of a collapse) on the supplier industry" would be greater now than a year or two ago.

"The ability of other companies to stay in business was much more robust then," he said. "A lot have taken down their (loan) commitments and the banks are much more cautious now."

Not only are sales to Chrysler much lower, but sales to other automakers also are way down.

For those reasons, according to Sinai, the small supplier is probably deeper in debt now and even less able to withstand the loss of Chrysler's business. An estimated 70 percent of Chrysler's 20,000 vendors do most of their business with Chrysler.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A resolution calling the taking of American hostages an act of terrorism, torture and barbarism and condemning Iran for its actions has been placed before the state Senate.

Two Republican legislators, Sen. Julius Wright of Wilmington and Sen. Don Kincaid of Lenoir, the Senate minority leader, filed the legislation late Thursday for introduction in today's session.

"The 1981 General Assembly condemns the nation of Iran for its treatment of American citizens being held as hostages," the resolution reads.

"This treatment consisted of various forms of torture and barbaric deprivation of even the most minimal necessities due any human being," it said.

Youth Services

Youth services will be held at Rock Spring F.W.B. Church Sunday at 11 a.m. with the assistant pastor, Eldress Martha Tyson, the no. two choir and ushers in charge.

An appreciation service will be held for Charles Davis, the no. two choir musician, at 5 p.m.

The W.L. Phillips Traveling Choir is asked to meet in the fellowship hall immediately after the morning worship services.

Further, the resolution pledges "support for the president of the United States in whatever punitive action he may decide to take against the nation of Iran."

The measure came after lawmakers spent another slow day Thursday, taking little action in committees or on the House and Senate floor, yet filing a stream of new legislation.

Legislative budget committees continued routine budget reviews, and the new chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Sen. Conrad Duncan, D-Stoneville, amended his personal financial disclosure statement to show that he holds large highway paving contracts with the state.

In other legislative action:

Doctors
The only real action was in the Senate, where senators came up with a way to solve the high cost of medical care, at least for themselves. They passed a resolution, and sent to the House, which calls on the North Carolina Medical Society to provide a doctor in the Legislative Building when the General Assembly is in session, free of charge.

The sponsor, Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, said the medical society volunteered the service, since there no longer is a doctor serving in either chamber as a legislator.

Revenue Sharing
A bill was filed in the House that would establish a state-county revenue sharing program. The measure, recommended by a legislative study commission, was filed by Rep. Graham Bell, D-Gastonia. It would set up a program returning several million dollars a year in state tax collections to counties and cities, for use as needed.

Speaker
Rep. Allen Barbee, speaker pro tem of the House, introduced a bill that would give House Speaker Liston Ramsey the power to appoint one person to several state boards and commissions, including the state Economic Development Board.

Transportation
The House Transportation Committee, meeting for the first time, saw a slide presentation on the findings of Gov. Jim Hunt's blue-ribbon study commission. The 16-minute presentation is being shown to groups across the state to publicize the need for highway work.

The presentation noted highway costs have jumped 251 percent in the last 13 years while gasoline tax revenues have been leveling off. The gas tax revenues amounted to $19 million less in 1980 than in 1979.

Elderly
A Senate bill was filed that would make it a felony to commit certain crimes against an elderly person. Sens. James Speed, D-Louisburg, Bob Wynne, D-Raleigh, and Rachel Gray, D-High Point, introduced the bill which would apply to people age 60 and older.

The bill would make it a felony to seriously injure, rob or damage more than $400 worth of property belonging to an elderly person.

Taxes
Rep. J. Reid Poovey, R-Hickory, filed a bill that would do away with the $15 minimum intangibles tax filing fee and substitute a $15 tax credit.

Budget
Two bills representing Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed 1981-83 state budget were filed in the House by Reps. Al Adams, D-Raleigh, and Rep. William Watkins, D-Oxford. The joint Appropriations Committee already has begun going over the $11.9-billion spending package.

Why you should vote for mixed beverages in Greenville, even if you don't drink.

This February 17th voters in Greenville will be deciding whether to continue brown bagging or allow sale of mixed beverages in qualified restaurants and private clubs. It's an important election. Because the mixed beverage vs. brown bagging question not only effects our method of serving, controlling and taxing alcohol, but it involves the attitude Greenville's citizens have toward the future. That's why you should vote for mixed beverages even if you don't drink yourself.

Mixed Beverages in restaurants gives better control of drinking.

No one claims that carrying an open bottle of spirits is an effective method of controlling alcohol consumption. Yet, brown bagging laws force drinkers to do just that.

Mixed beverages in restaurants will eliminate brown bagging in qualified establishments. So, drinkers won't have to transport alcohol in order to enjoy a mixed drink with their meal.

In addition, establishments serving mixed beverages are required by law to maintain strict standards regarding their building, employees, hours of consumption, even the handling and storage of alcohol. And, the state ABC Board reports that there have been very few enforcement problems in cities with mixed beverages. In fact, in two years of mixed beverages in North Carolina, not one incident involving minors has been reported. Establishments serving mixed beverages are concerned about keeping their licenses and are, consequently, strict on enforcing drinking requirements.

Mixed beverages do not increase alcohol consumption.

Cities passing mixed beverage referendums have not experienced an increase in alcohol consumption. So, it's odd that opponents of mixed beverages contend that mixed drinks increase alcohol consumption. An analysis of past consumption figures provided by the state clearly shows that consumption does not increase.

The fact of the matter is, when a restaurant serves a mixed drink, exactly 1 1/2 ounces of alcoholic beverage goes into that drink. When people mix their own, no controls exist. And, people are likely to mix stronger drinks as the number of drinks increases. With mixed beverages, this problem is eliminated.

Mixed beverages mean more revenue to the city of Greenville.

If you don't drink, you should be pleased to know that sales of mixed beverages will contribute to Greenville's revenues. Every 4 liters of spirits sold as mixed beverages is taxed an additional $10. And, 90% of that tax stays with the local government.

Over the past two years, cities and counties with mixed beverages have collected over $3.5 million in added revenue for their own use. This means that mixed beverages supplement our normal tax system.

People who drink in Greenville, whether they live in Greenville or not, will help support city government programs.

Mixed beverages can help Greenville grow.

It's a fact. Industries from the 48 states with mixed beverages are more likely to locate in areas with progressive alcohol laws. And, since Greenville was recently designated a Regional Growth Center for Eastern North Carolina, we can add to our leadership position by passing mixed beverages.

Greenville's citizens have the opportunity to help attract industry that gives our people good, well-paying jobs, and improves our entire economy. This may be the most important reason for you to vote for mixed beverages in Greenville.

Get out and vote for Mixed Beverages on February 17th.

A recent poll shows that Greenville's voters are overwhelmingly in favor of mixed beverages. But, if people like you don't vote in this election, we'll miss a great opportunity to keep Greenville at the forefront of Eastern Carolina cities.

We can get rid of brown bagging in our restaurants, control alcohol, bring revenues to the city, and keep Greenville one of the best places to live and work in North Carolina.

Please get out and vote for mixed beverages in Greenville on February 17th in the Greenville city referendum.

Vote YES for Mixed Beverages on February 17th.

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

The stage magician can make things disappear before your very eyes. An accomplished dummy player can make much the same thing happen at the bridge table.

While South held a good hand, he was not strong enough for any action other than a simple rebid of two hearts over his partner's one no-trump response. Fortunately, North strained a little to raise to three hearts, and South gladly went on to game.

West led the queen of diamonds, and with the spade finesse doomed to fail, it appears that declarer must lose one trick in that suit, one diamond and two trumps. Even looking at all four hands, it doesn't seem that declarer can avoid going down one. But watch what happens if the hand is played correctly.

Declarer won the first trick in dummy and immediately took the spade finesse. That failed, and West continued with the jack of diamonds to declarer's king. Declarer cashed the ace of spades and led the jack. Since dummy's diamond would be discarded if either West failed to ruff or ruffed high, he ruffed with the seven. Declarer overruffed in dummy, crossed back to his hand with the ace of clubs and led a fourth spade. West discarded a diamond and declarer ruffed on the table.

A club ruff provided an entry to the closed hand so that declarer could lead his last spade. West shuffled a club and declarer discarded dummy's diamond loser as East ruffed with his low trump. Declarer ruffed the club return and led a trump and great was the fall thereon—West's ace and East's king crashed together. Declarer lost only a spade, a spade ruff and one trump trick!

Note that it would not have helped if West discarded his last diamond on the fifth spade, for that would have set up dummy's nine. Declarer could counter that by ruffing the spade in dummy and whether or not East overruffed with the king, one spade and two trumps would be all that the defenders could collect.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Millions Of Unborn Children
NEW YORK (AP) — Cardinal Terence Cooke says that more than "eight million unborn children" have been destroyed in the nation since the Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1973. In a letter to be read in all 400 congregations of the New York Archdiocese, he urged people to intensify efforts "to end this great tragedy of our times."

Expects Reagan Will Lose Favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Carter's assistant for religious affairs, the Rev. Bob Maddox, says the "religious right" that backed Ronald Reagan for the presidency "is not going to be satisfied" with him.

The conservative religious coalition will give Reagan a "better shake" than it gave Carter, but "it's only a matter of time" before the new president fails to live up to right-wing expectations, and falls out of favor, Maddox adds.

Maddox, a Southern Baptist, says he is taking a new job as assistant to the president of Pitt Community College in Greenville, N.C., and also will be visiting lecturer at East Carolina University there.

Report Drop In Church Rolls

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — United Methodist Church membership in the United States is now 9,584,768, down 68,943 from last year, the church reports. The total does not include 500,000 members in Africa, Europe, the Philippines and India, nor approximately 1.35 million preparatory members.

The Evening Star

The brilliant evening star is a symbol of many things to many folk. Mariners hail it as a good omen, for it usually forecasts a clear, calm night and smooth sailing. The shepherd tending his flock on a desolate hillside gratefully notes its appearance in the heavens, for its friendly light offers an intangible sort of companionship during his lonely vigil. To many, the star is representative of God's infinite power and wisdom.

Just as this star touches hearts in countless different ways, so may the Church bring to those in all walks of life, peace and comfort which lead to a happier, more fruitful pattern of life.

Let us make the Church our guiding light. We can brighten our lives if we accept the teaching of the Scriptures as guideposts along the pathway to future endeavors.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices suffered a mild decline in early trading today as the government reported that prices are up and real incomes down for Americans.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks declined .85 to 939.59 in the first two hours of trading, while losers outnumbered gainers by a 7-6 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In Washington, the Labor Department reported that consumer prices in December rose 1.1 percent, boosting the 1980 increase to 12.4 percent and providing the country with its second consecutive year of double-digit inflation.

Wages also were up, but not by nearly the same amount, and the department said the after-tax buying power of the typical worker fell 4.8 percent.

Oil issues were generally weak as major oil companies reported fourth quarter profits that were little changed from the boom levels of 1979.

Mobil, whose profits in the quarter were up 5 percent, was down 1/4 to 76 1/2. Texaco, which today reported a 6.3 percent decline in fourth-quarter 1980 earnings, was unchanged at 43 1/2. Gulf, whose profit figures have not been released, was down 3/4 to 40 1/4 as the NYSE volume leader.

Texas International was up 2 1/4 to 56 1/4 in active trading. It topped the most-active list on Thursday with a 9 1/4-point gain after announcing a natural gas discovery in Louisiana.

Volume on the Big Board was 16.82 million shares by noon, compared to 17.38 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of common stocks fell .08 to 74.68.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .45 to 341.23.

Drug Cache Aboard Ship

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Customs agents, following up on an anonymous tip, found two tons of marijuana Thursday that had been overlooked when a Panamanian freighter was seized for drug smuggling in early 1980.

President Confers On His Economic Program

By JAMES GERSTENZANG Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid new indications of inflation's impact on the economy, President Reagan met today with the Republican allies who will have to provide the push he needs if his economic program is to get through Congress.

Drug Cache Aboard Ship (continued)

The second batch of marijuana was discovered after an anonymous letter, written in Spanish and mailed from South America, was sent to the U.S. Customs office in Wilmington in care of Bob Young, a reporter with WWAY-TV in Wilmington. The television station turned the letter over to federal officials. Customs agent John M. Dolan said the marijuana was wrapped in burlap and some of it was marked as fertilizer and seed. The Jell II was seized on Feb. 25, 1980, along with two smaller vessels from Brunswick County, the Ox and the Southern Pride. Following the seizure, eight crew members aboard the Jell II were deported and eight other people were convicted on drug-smuggling charges.

Oil Profits Dip As Fuel Consumption Declines

By WILLIAM GLASGALL AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. and Ashland Oil Inc. today reported lower earnings in the past quarter, each saying declining fuel consumption left them unable to pass on the full effects of rising crude oil prices.

Texaco, the nation's second-largest oil company, said its 6.7 percent earnings drop was the first since it posted a decline in the third quarter of 1978.

Ashland, ranked 18th, said its 73.4 percent plunge in quarterly profits resulted in part from "the depressed level of economic activity in the United States and a reduction in fuel use by motorists and industry."

The reports followed announcements Thursday by Mobil Corp., Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) and Getty Oil Co. of modest quarterly earnings gains.

Texaco said fourth-quarter earnings fell 6.7 percent to $500.3 million from $534 million a year before. Per-share earnings fell to $1.86 from $1.97, but sales rose to $14.1 billion from $12 billion.

For 1980, Texaco's earnings were up 27.3 percent to $2.2 billion from $1.8 billion in 1979. Per-share earnings rose to $8.31 from $6.48 and sales rose to $52.5 billion from $39.1 billion. Texaco's 1980 earnings figure excluded a $402.3 million gain on the sale to Shell Oil Co. of its shares in Belridge Oil Co.

Ashland said earnings in the first fiscal quarter ended Dec. 30 plunged 73 percent to $20.2 million from $75.9 million a year earlier. Per-share income fell to 55 cents from $2.44 and sales rose to $2.07 billion from $2.03 billion.

Texaco said its return on shareholders' equity, a measure of profitability, rose to 19.7 percent last year from 17.7 percent in 1979. Ashland's return on equity was not available.

Texaco said its fourth-quarter earnings drop reflected "the adverse impact" of a $2-a-barrel crude oil price hike by Saudi Arabia which was announced in mid-December but made retroactive to Nov. 1. The decline also resulted from "reduced profit margins" in refining and marketing operations, and from "a continued decline" in oil production in the United States, Texaco said.

Texaco, Mobil, Exxon Corp. and Standard Oil Co. of California own the consortium which receives most of the 10 million 42-gallon barrels of oil Saudi Arabia produce daily.

A year ago, Mobil's final-quarter earnings were up 72 percent over the last quarter of 1978. Getty's earnings for the period showed an increase of 80 percent and Sohio's were up 174 percent as world petroleum prices soared.

Oil demand decreased last year, offsetting some of the effects of the rapid price increases. The price of crude oil worldwide climbed 127 percent between the end of 1978 and the beginning of 1980, and then rose 20 percent more last year. The increase pulled up prices on domestically produced crude, which is gradually being freed from federal price controls.

The rising prices were a main factor in a drop in oil use of 4 percent in industrialized nations and 7 percent in the United States last year.

Mobil said its oil-product sales declined 10 percent worldwide in the fourth quarter and 4 percent in 1980, and reported its crude oil production was off 12 percent for the quarter and 9 percent for the year.

Sohio, which owns 53 percent of the oil reserves in Alaska's Prudhoe Bay, said the field's 1980 output was the highest in three years.

Mobil said it earned $565 million, or $2.66 a share, in the fourth quarter, up 5 percent from $538 million, or $2.53 a share, in the same period of 1979.

Mobil's 1980 operating profits were $2.82 billion, or $13.27 a share, against $2.01 billion, or $9.46 a share, a year before.

Sohio said in Cleveland it earned $475.8 million, or $1.93 a share, in the fourth quarter, up 5.5 percent from $451 million, or $1.86 a share, a year before.

Sohio's profits rose to $1.81 billion in 1980 from $1.19 billion the previous year as sales climbed to $11 billion from $7.9 billion and per-share earnings rose to $7.37 from $4.91.

Getty said in Los Angeles that fourth-quarter earnings totaled $211.1 million, or $2.57 a share, up from $182.6 million, or $2.22 a share, a year before.

Getty's 1980 earnings rose to $871.8 million, or $10.60 a share, from $604.4 million, or $7.34 a share, in 1979. Annual sales rose to $10.4 billion from $5.1 billion.

Medical Technologist Is Killed

Pitt County Memorial Hospital medical technologist Dan McAuliffe, 31, died this morning when his motorcycle was struck by a car while he was on the way to work.

Trooper Mills of the N.C. Highway Patrol said the motorcycle being ridden by McAuliffe was struck about 6:30 a.m. by a car driven by William Vernon Swain Jr., 24, of Washington just outside the Washington city limits on Highway 264 West.

McAuliffe, the only one injured in the accident, was transported to Beaufort County Hospital by the Washington Rescue Squad. He died at the hospital.

The motorcycle was demolished and the car suffered about $1,000 damage. Investigation is continuing, Trooper Mills said.

McAuliffe lived with his wife, Betsy, and their son, Nicholas, on a sailboat at McCotter's Marina near Washington.

Pirates Face Hungry 'Pack

East Carolina University interrupts N.C. State's Atlantic Coast Conference schedule for a 7:30 p.m. game in Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh on Saturday.

The Wolfpack, 8-7, comes into the game riding a three-game losing streak, and having won only one of its last six games, all in the ACC. East Carolina, 8-8, comes in with three straight wins, including a 65-64 overtime victory at UNC Charlotte on Tuesday.

After bowing to nationally ranked North Carolina and Wake Forest, 73-30, and 60-52, respectively, the Wolfpack had high hopes for a win over Duke University in Reynolds on Wednesday. However, the Blue Devils spoiled the 'Pack plans with a 56-47 win, using a spread-type offense.

"You never know how a loss like that will affect you," ECU Coach Dave Odom said. "The natural feeling is that the loss was unexpected — a major upset. You would believe that they will be highly motivated to make up for it at our expense, but losses have a funny way in college basketball."

Odom said he could not believe that N.C. State feels that the East Carolina game is an important one. "They have Georgia Tech on Wednesday and North Carolina on Saturday. They need a win, but I don't believe that they'll put a lot of emotion into it."

"They need a win before their own people for respect."

Swimmers Host Wilm.

East Carolina University's men's and women's swimming teams will play host to UNC-Wilmington in a meet at Minges Natatorium Saturday.

The meet is set to begin at 1 p.m. The Lady Pirates are coming off a big win over William & Mary last weekend, 82-48. They are 4-1 in the year, having lost only to AIAW Division I member North Carolina.

The men come into the meet with a 1-3 mark, having beaten Appalachian State in their last meet, 67-28. Earlier they lost to Old Dominion, Maine and North Carolina.

"Wilmington's guys beat Old Dominion, and should prove tougher than their girls," coach Ray Scharf said. "Overall, I think it should be good, tough meet."

but it's not the end of their year if they do lose to us. They can still do well the rest of the season and in the ACC tournament," Odom added. "I really think that (Jim) Valvano will try to get them up just enough to beat us. How can they worry about getting up for us when we've been beaten by Brown twice?"

The Pirates, however, don't plan to put any added emphasis on the game. "We'll approach it like any other game. We're not going to spend three days on the four corners for one game. It's not that important. We'll do what we think we have to do to have a chance to win, but we're not going to hold it for 40 minutes. We are going to be trying to score."

Sidney Lowe, State's playmaker, missed the Wake Forest game, and saw some action against Duke, although he was not that effective. "I don't know if he'll play against us or not. They said they would evaluate his foot after the Duke game, and he might not play against us and Georgia Tech," Odom said. "But with their talent and experience, they should believe they can beat us without him."

Thurl Bailey has been the leader of the Wolfpack most of the way. He's averaging 13.7 points a game and pulling 6.1 rebounds. Art Jones is next with a 12.0 mark, followed by Derek Whittenburg at 11.5. Kenny Matthews is just outside double figures with a 9.6 average, while Lowe is averaging 9.1.

"Bailey, (Scott) Parzych and Jones are all playing well for them now," Odom said. "Matthews had a poor shooting night against Duke, but I think he'll probably snap back for us."

East Carolina will be led into the game by guard Charles Watkins, hitting 15.9 points a game. Mark McLaurin is the only other Pirate in double figures with a 10.9 average, while Barry Wright is close with a 9.3 average.

David Underwood, the fourth leading scorer, has an 8.4 average, while starter Michael Gibson is hitting 8.2, and Tom Szymanski has a 6.6 average. He's also the leading rebounder with a 6.6 average.

East Carolina returns home on Monday to face Baptist College of Charleston, then takes to the road again for its only other game of the week, against Old Dominion in Norfolk on Wednesday.

Lady Pirates Face JM, UVa.

East Carolina's Lady Pirates take to the road for a pair of games this weekend, one in which they'll be trying to knock off a nationally ranked team.

Saturday afternoon, at 2 p.m., the Lady Pirates will be in Harrisonburg, Va., to take on James Madison. Then, on Sunday at 11:15 a.m., the Pirates will be in Charlottesville, Va., to meet 15th ranked Virginia.

It will be the second meeting of the year for the Bucs and Cavaliers. They met in the finals of the Queens Invitational Tournament, with Virginia taking a 58-52 win over a cool-shooting Pirate team.

The game with Virginia, too, is the start of a three-game swing through a group of nationally ranked teams. East Carolina will play host to 12th ranked N.C. State on Wednesday, and to 10th ranked Southern California on Friday, January 30.

James Madison comes into the game with only a 3-13 record, and that, combined with Virginia's standing, could cause the Lady Pirates to look beyond them.

"I don't think we'll do that," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "James Madison is better than their record, no question about that. They are as good as a lot of teams we've played."

Still, Andruzzi admits that she's concerned. The first half against West Virginia gave her reason. But the second half gave her reason to think that the Pirates can overcome that problem, too. "I didn't think that we would have a let down (against West Virginia), but we've had so many emotional games. It's hard to get up, and up, and up."

"But we needed that second half to prove to ourselves that we can get up for every game."

And the James Madison game is important in another respect. "We don't want to go to Virginia with a loss behind us," Andruzzi said. James Madison is led by a couple of 6-footers in the forecourt. The leading scorer is 6-0 sophomore center Deana Meadows, hitting 12.1 points and 7.4 rebounds a game. Donna Farebaugh, a 6-1 junior forward, is scoring 11.1 points and grabbing 8.1 rebounds.

The other starters include Ann Sonoga, a 5-9 senior forward, averaging 9.8; Besty Blose, a 5-7 freshman guard, 4.5; and Sandy Kaye, a 5-4 sophomore guard, 4.1.

Last year's leading scorer, Cathy Hanrahan, is not listed as a starter, but is scoring 7.0 points a game.

Andruzzi said that she did not know what effect, if any, the earlier loss to Virginia will have on the Pirates. "Playing them in Virginia will give them a great advantage. They're hot now, too. And they have Crissy Reese (6-1 sophomore center) back, after an injury. She

Wood Leads Tar Heels To 74-60 Victory Over Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — In the words of North Carolina coach Dean Smith, forward Al Wood was "sensational" Thursday night as the 17th-ranked Tar Heels upset unbeaten Wake Forest 74-60.

Wood led an impressive Tar Heel front line that poured in 57 points and grabbed 30 rebounds, as many as the entire Deacon basketball team could manage all night.

"That was a real All-America performance," Smith said of Wood, who finished with 25 points and 17 rebounds. "Forget about his points — but I don't want you to forget about it — but his rebounding, leadership, assists and defense were great."

Wood, who has had his troubles on offense this year, said, "It is just a matter of who you play and how the ball bounces. Tonight I gave 100 percent and so did the other guys and the ball bounced our way."

There was a bit more to it as the Tar Heels ended the Deacons' 14 game winning streak, the longest since their 1926-27 season.

"Wake Forest did not shoot very well," Smith said.

Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy had to agree with that assessment as the Deacons hit only 30 percent in the first half and 38 percent for the game. The poor first-half performance caused them to fall behind 28-19 and they were never able to make up the ground.

"One thing we didn't want to do was fall behind early," Tacy said. "Their zone caused us problems. But our offense was the worst it had been all year. It's hard to play catch-up when you're 10 to 12 points behind."

Wake Forest did make a run at the Tar Heels in the second half, getting to within three points, but the North Carolina front line of Wood, James Worthy and Sam Perkins put some distance between them as the game wore on.

At the end the Deacons were forced to foul and fell further behind as North Carolina took advantage of the opportunities.

"I think we are a smart team," Smith said. "Our inexperienced team is becoming an experienced one because of Wood's leadership. I think our tough early season games helped prepare us for the conference games."

Smith said that, while the team would not be thinking about this game in February, it was "a fun game" even though he felt sorry for Wake Forest. But the Deacons were not feeling that sorry for themselves.

"This is just a temporary setback," Tacy said. "I think our character will show and we will bounce back."

The Deacons' senior guard, Frank Johnson, said that he hated the team had lost, but "it does tend to take a little of the pressure off. It'll be up to us to work hard and stay with what made us 14-0."

In addition to Wood, three other players placed in double figures. Worthy had 19 points, Perkins 13 and Jimmy Black 10 for the Tar Heels.

Mike Helms led Wake Forest with 16 points, followed by Alvis Rogers and Jim Johnstone with 12 each.

North Carolina is now 13-4 overall and 4-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Wake Forest falls to 14-1 and 4-1 in the conference.

The game marked the first contest played by North Carolina freshman forward Matt Doherty since he broke his thumb six weeks ago. Doherty played for 27 minutes and scored six points.

Matmen Host UNC

A series comes to an end Saturday night as East Carolina University's wrestling team plays host to the University of North Carolina. The meet, in Minges Coliseum, gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

One of the more popular meets in the past, drawing 2,000 to 3,000 in its heyday, the schools are meeting for the last time due to East Carolina discontinuation of the sport after this year.

The Pirates come into the meet following a grueling schedule last week, in which they competed against Northern Iowa, and in the Liberty Baptist Tournament, a two-day event.

The meet against Northern Iowa turned out to be a thriller, with the Pirates trailing by one point as the final weight class began. However, Northern gained a pin over heavyweight Nate Wigfall to win the match.

James Ellison, a 177-pounder, took first place in the Liberty Baptist Tournament, the only Pirate to win a class.

East Carolina's other 177-pounder, Butch Revils, is ranked fifth in the country, holding a 13-0 record.

Vikings Win 13th Straight

HOLLYWOOD — D. H. Conley's wrestlers captured their 13th straight wrestling victory of the season last night, downing Havelock, 38-17.

Conley won eight of the 13 weight classes, while Havelock took four. One ended in a draw. Of Conley's eight wins, two came on pins. Havelock won one on a pin.

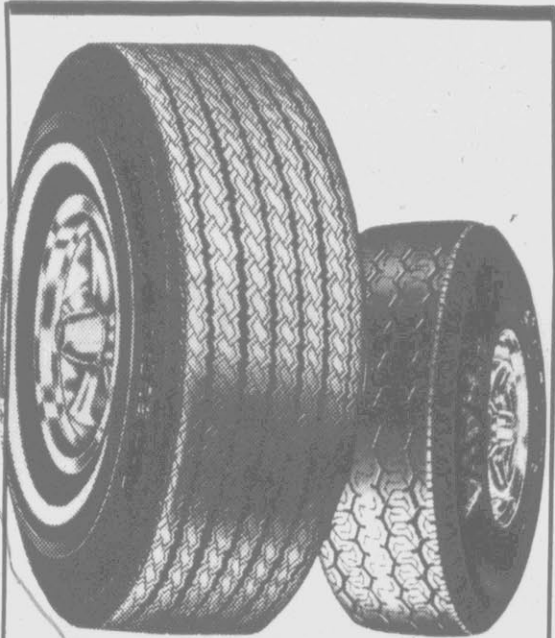

Alexander Crandell remained unbeaten for the Vikings, running his record to 18-0. William Green and Michael Long are now 18-1, while Reginald Moore, Shannon Carson and Raymond Small are 17-2.

Moore, a freshman, downed senior Jeff Teal, 19-2, greatly improving on his earlier 8-7 victory over Teal.

The Vikings will be out to tie a school record for victories on Saturday, when they travel to North Pitt for a 5 p.m. match. Three other Conley teams have won as many as 14 matches in a year, and this year's team can match that Saturday. No team has won more than 14.

- Summary:
100: Reginald Moore (C) decisioned Jeff Teal, 19-2.

Over the next week, East Carolina University's women's basketball team will think it is already playing in the national championships. Coming up, between Saturday and next Saturday are dates with no less than three nationally ranked teams.

And a good showing by the Lady Pirates in those games could propel them into the national spotlight too.

The Lady Pirates open the eight-day war against unranked James Madison, and that could prove to be the toughest game of all. With the three opponents the Pirates have following James Madison, they might be guilty of looking ahead, although Coach Cathy Andruzzi denies it.

Then, on Sunday morning, just before noon, they'll be in Charlottesville, Va., to meet the University of Virginia, ranked 15th in the nation. The two met earlier, with Virginia gaining a victory in the Queens Invitational Tournament finals.

The Lady Pirates then return home on Wednesday to host 12th ranked N.C. State, and will entertain 10th ranked and once-beaten Southern California on Friday.

Those last three games should provide a great deal of interest, and if people in the area haven't seen women's basketball, then perhaps this would be a good time to become introduced to it.

You probably won't see any better.

The hopes for the formation of a new conference which would include East Carolina have been growing recently. Whether those hopes are to be brought to fruit this year will probably be known during the next week or so.

East Carolina Athletic Director Ken Karr said that for a new conference to be able to properly schedule itself for next year, it must be set up by no later than February 15. Otherwise, scheduling for basketball for next year would be serious jeopardized.

Five schools appear set: ECU, William & Mary, Old Dominion, Richmond and James Madison. But it takes six schools for the NCAA to recognize the group as a conference.

There could be a sixth school interested, but whether that sixth school would meet the approval of all the other five is in question. There could be as many as four or five other schools interested. If so, then the group can pick and choose.

Developments over the next couple of weeks will be closely watched.

Autopsy Report Stirs Up Storm

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stella Walsh, winner of an Olympic gold medal in the women's 100-meter dash in 1932, had male sex organs, according to an autopsy that confirmed reports which outraged Cleveland's Polish community.

Chromosome sex tests were inconclusive, and further tests are under way, said assistant Cuyahoga County coroner Lester Adelson.

The report, released Thursday, said Miss Walsh, a Polish-American well-known in Cleveland, had no female sex organs.

"The report speaks for itself. Everything is there as I objectively reported it. We used every means to find the truth," said Adelson.

He said additional tests being performed at Case Western Reserve University Medical Center and university hospitals are required "because of the complexity of the situation."

The coroner's report was obtained through the courts by television station WKYC, which had come under fire from Cleveland's Polish community for broadcasting a report questioning Miss Walsh's sex last month. WKYC reported the night before Miss Walsh's funeral that coroner's tests indicated she might have been a male.

"I'm not interested in sensationalism. I'm not interested in prurient interest. The only ax I'm grinding for is the truth," said Adelson.

Casimir Bielen, editor of the The Nationality Newspapers & Services and a longtime friend of Miss Walsh's, said common knowledge about her difference had been turned into "an ugly, sensational disclosure smearing the Olympian reputation of Stella Walsh."

Bielen said Polish-Americans objected to suggestions that Miss Walsh's medals might be withdrawn and that she was a man masquerading as a woman to compete against female athletes.

Miss Walsh, who won several medals in the 1936 Olympics in addition to her 1932 gold, represented her native Poland under Olympic rules then in effect. She had lived in the United States since she was a year old.

The 69-year-old athlete worked for the Cleveland recreation department before she was killed in an apparent robbery last Dec. 4. There have been no arrests in the case.

Bielen, who made a $5,000 contribution to the "Olympian Stella Walsh Defense Fund" established last month, said after her death that Miss Walsh was part male and part female.

"When she was a little girl...in the heart of the Polish community, everyone was aware that she was a little different from the others. It was accepted. It was something we all knew about. When she was younger, she was teased by the other children," he said.

Phillips: Lot Of Work Ahead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Oilers coach Bum Phillips says his new team, the New Orleans Saints, has more talent than many people think, despite a 1-15 record last season, which was the worst in the National Football League.

"I think...I know...they're a whole lot better football team than their record shows.

"Two years ago, they were 8-8, and other than two Hail Mary passes against Atlanta, they are 10-6 and in the playoffs," Phillips said at a news conference Thursday.

The conference was called to announce his new job as head coach in New Orleans, the eighth one the team has had in 14 seasons.

"Right now, I'm fixing to go back home, pick up two pair of Levi's, 40 pair of boots and head on back by Tuesday.

"I got a lot of work ahead of me," the folksy Phillips said.

He said he signed a five-year contract with the Saints, but declined to disclose his salary.

Phillips' hiring has been an open secret for several weeks. Team owner John Mecom Jr. said the 57-year-old Phillips became his leading candidate when he was fired by the Houston Oilers after the AFC wild-card game.

"We've kept this as good a secret as we did our game plans for the 1-15 season," Mecom joked.

Phillips said his first job would be assessing the talent he inherits from Dick Nolan, who was fired with four games to go in the 1980 season.

"I've got a month of solid work ahead of me just to find out where we are," Phillips said.

Phillips said he had not had time to analyze college football talent for this spring's draft, but he said he would not rule out trading draft choices for established veterans.

That was the reason general manager Steve Rosenbloom and Dick Steinberg, vice president for personnel, resigned on Tuesday.

Mecom has said Phillips will not have the title of general manager but will have the authority and responsibilities usually vested in that job.

Phillips also refused to rule out any trades for veteran Saints players — including quarterback Archie Manning.

"But I'll tell you one thing. They'd have to come up with a hell of a lot of choices," Phillips said.

Some Saints veterans feared a wholesale house cleaning when a new coach came in, but Phillips said he did not plan to take such steps.

"We didn't have a large turnover at Houston and we don't anticipate one here," he said.

Houston was one of the NFL's doormats when Phillips took over in 1975. After an opening season of 10-4, then 5-9 and 8-6 in the next two years, the Oilers were in the playoffs for three straight seasons.

Oilers owner Bud Adams said Phillips was fired because he refused to hire an offensive coordinator.

And Phillips said he does not plan to have an offensive coordinator in New Orleans either.

Late Basket Stops Knights

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville Christian blew a 14-point halftime lead and then lost a three-point lead with 30 seconds to go as the Knights dropped a 54-53 decision to Falls Road Thursday night in a high school basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Falls Road defeated Greenville Christian, 30-18.

In the boys' game, the Knights led 38-24 at intermission only to see Falls Road rally to take a 44-43 lead at the end of the third period.

The Knights managed to regain the advantage in the final period and with 30 seconds to go led by three, 53-50. A 25-foot jump shot brought Falls Road to within one.

Then, following a traveling call against Greenville while in its stall, a 20-footer with 20 seconds left gave Falls Road the lead for good. The Knights raced down court but were again called for traveling and moments later the game ended with Falls Road the victor.

The win left Falls Road, which was led by Jim Pully's 18 points and 12 each by Kevin Fisher and Chuck Ramsey, atop the conference with a 4-0 mark and an 8-2 overall record.

Greenville, which was led by Ben Haddock and John Parnell, both of whom had 14 points, is now 3-1 in the league and 7-6 overall.

In the girls' game, a 7-1 second quarter and a 7-2 final period gave Falls Road the victory over Greenville Christian.

Greenville led after the first period, 9-8, but a 7-1 second-period surge gave Falls Road a 15-10 halftime lead. Falls Road added to its lead in the third period (23-16) before coasting home with a 7-2 final period to take the victory.

Falls Road was led by Gina Edwards' 11 points. The Lady Knights had no one in double figures.

Rhode Island's AD Suspended

SOUTH KINGSTOWN, R.I. (AP) — Rhode Island Athletic Director Maurice Zarchen has been temporarily suspended with pay by University President Frank Newman.

The athletic director's activities have been under scrutiny by a panel probing alleged improprieties in the handling of athletic scholarships and equipment.

"This action is taken to facilitate the investigation and not to prejudice Maurice Zarchen," Newman said Thursday after suspending the athletic director. "Many of the allegations appear unfounded."

Former wrestling coach Alan Nero first made the accusations a month ago. Since then the panel has quietly interviewed Nero and about a dozen other people in the university community.

In a prepared statement, Newman said he was suspending Zarchen, athletic director for 18 years, on the strength of a preliminary report from the panel, which he said raised a number of potentially serious issues. He did not elaborate.

Zarchen declined all comment.

Newman said he was suspending Zarchen to ensure that the investigation did not interfere with the daily operation of the athletic program.

The panel's final report is expected next month, and an acting athletic director will be appointed in the meantime, Newman said.

North Pitt Nips Jaguars

FARMVILLE — Gordon Dunn and Dennis Bradley both scored 11 points to lift North Pitt to a 47-43 win over Farmville Central Thursday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, Farmville Central's Etta Gorham pumped in 16 points to lead the Jaguars past North Pitt, 49-41.

The win, the fifth straight for North Pitt's boys, brought the Panthers to 8-8 overall and 7-3 in the league. Farmville, losers of its last nine games, drops to 1-15 and 1-9.

North Pitt led after the opening period, 15-12, but the Jaguars, who were led by Melvin Sutton's game-high 18 points, grabbed the lead at halftime, 27-26.

The Panthers regained the advantage with a 14-6 third period and led, 40-33, going into the final eight minutes. The Jaguars outscored North Pitt, 10-7, in the fourth period, but it wasn't enough.

In the girls' game, North Pitt moved out to a 10-6 lead after the first period and led at the half, 19-17. But a 16-13 third period brought the Jaguars a one-point lead (33-32) before Farmville poured it on by outsourcing the Pant-HERs by seven in the final period to take the victory.

North Pitt, led by Connie Dupree and Alice Pittman, both of whom had 10 points, is now 7-9 overall and 4-6 in the league. Farmville is now 6-8 and 4-6.

North Pitt travels to Southwest Edgecombe tonight while Farmville Central goes to Ayden-Grifton.

Soul-Searching Meeting Turned Corner For Oakland's Raiders

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Their record was 2-3 and Coach Tom Flores' face was sending a shiver through some of the veteran players on the Oakland Raiders.

"He had a look of dismay," said guard Gene Upshaw, captain of the team. "He looked like a man wondering where his next job would be, like a man saying to himself, 'What's going on here? What have I gotten myself into?'"

Tackle Art Shell, who plays alongside Upshaw on the left side of the Raider offensive line, saw the same ashen look in Flores and it hit him in the pit of his stomach.

"I told Gene, I thought we needed a meeting," said Shell. "He called it. Closed doors. No coaches."

There was some soul searching done at the session and a lot of the Raiders will tell you that the team which will play Philadelphia in the Super Bowl Sunday, turned the corner that day.

"We were ready to blow apart," said running back

Mark van Eeghen. "We had just lost to Kansas City 31-17 and it could have been 61-17. We had 11 games looking us in the face. There had been some back biting and finger pointing. You know 'He missed a block,' or 'He didn't make a tackle.'" All the signs of a season falling apart faced the Raiders. They had to find a way to save it.

"The elders spoke," said defensive end Cedrick Hardman. "Some feelings were aired. We got a lot done. We re-established our faith in old fashioned football. We turned it around 180 degrees."

Upshaw, the eldest Raider, presided.

"Gene is an excellent leader," said Hardman. "He sometimes appears to be a direct descendent of (Raider owner) Al Davis."

"I told them the coaches were doing all that they could, but the players were not putting out 110 percent," Upshaw said. "I said they'd better get going or we'd have new coaches and new players in the room and that's something I don't want at this stage."

Then it was Shell's turn. "The essence of what I said was that we had a hell of a coaching staff and they were getting us prepared. But we were not getting the job done on the field. I said I thought we should all reassess whether we were giving all we should in mental preparation, practices and the games."

Then Shell quoted one of his favorite philosophies from ex-Raider Coach John Madden. "Big John used to say, 'If you're not gonna help us, get out of the way because we're comin' through.'"

The message took and created a togetherness atmosphere among the Raiders. It helped Thursday when rambunctious defensive end John Matuszak was located dancing on Bourbon Street at 3 a.m. and was fined $1,000 for his curfew indiscretion.

"It was Wednesday night and I had to get out a little bit. I was wrong and it cost me $1,000," said Matuszak.

"It was my one night out, four nights before the game. I wouldn't do anything to affect the outcome of this game," he added.

After the 2-3 meeting, Oakland won nine of 11 regular season games and three more in the playoffs, posting the 16th consecutive winning season for the franchise, longest streak of success in the National Football League.

At about the same time, Philadelphia was zooming to an 11-1 start, posting the best record in the league. Then suddenly, the Eagles seemed to go flat, losing three of their last four games. But there were no team meetings, no soul searching sessions for this team.

"We didn't feel it was a slump when we lost by one point to San Diego and got beaten by Atlanta and Dallas," said quarterback Ron Jaworski. "Those are three fine football teams. We could have won those games and we didn't play poorly. Once in awhile you get beat.

Oregon State Captures 14th Win; Only Two Teams Still Unbeaten

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

You can't put the knock on Wood, certainly not after North Carolina triple-threat forward Al Wood knocked third-ranked Wake Forest from the unbeaten ranks with his scoring, rebounding and passing Thursday night.

Wood scored 25 points, including all seven in a 7-2 burst in the second half that gave No. 17 Carolina a comfortable 48-38 lead en route to a 74-60 victory, its 13th in 17 games. Wake Forest had won its first 14 starts.

With the Demon Deacons' demise, the only two unbeaten major college basketball teams are top-rated Oregon State and runner-up Virginia. Oregon State (14-0) continued its winning ways with a 66-53 Pacific-10 Conference victory over Washington State that gave Coach Ralph Miller his 500th career triumph.

Elsewhere, ninth-ranked Iowa won on Big Ten rival Indiana's court for the first time in 10 years, edging the Hoosiers 56-53; No. 11 South Alabama's 14-game winning streak, the nation's second longest, was snapped 86-70 by Virginia Commonwealth; No. 16 Michigan needed two overtimes to down No. 15 Illinois 80-76 in a Big Ten contest and defending national champion Louisville, struggling to reach the 500 mark, lost for the eighth time in 14 games, dropping a 60-55 overtime Metro Conference decision to Memphis State.

Wake Forest fell behind North Carolina 28-19 at halftime thanks to dismal 29 percent shooting. The Deacons were within 41-36 with 11:08 remaining when Wood dropped the bomb.

"You can forget his points, although I don't want you to," said Coach Dean Smith. "His rebounding and his assists were the key to this game."

Oregon State bounced out to a 24-16 halftime lead over Washington State. Steve Johnson, the Beavers' 6-10 center, scored 16 points, hitting seven of nine shots and blocking five by the Cougars. Washington State Coach George Raveling called time with 20 seconds left and presented Miller with the game ball.

"I'm not knocking it," Miller said of his 500th victory. "It's better than 499. I'm happy with the players. It is another victory on the way to the defense of our (Pac-10) title. I thought Steve played very well. He didn't make any stupid fouls. If he keeps doing that, he will be able to stay in games longer. This was one of his smarter games."

Sophomore guard Bob Hansen nailed down Iowa's triumph at Indiana by sinking four free throws in the final 10 seconds — his only points of the game — to keep the Hawkeyes tied for the Big Ten lead. Indiana rallied from a 46-40 deficit to tie the score with 7½ minutes left but the Hawkeyes went into a stall for three minutes before Kenny Arnold's short jumper put them in front for good.

South Alabama proved a gracious host for Virginia Commonwealth. The Jaguars trailed by only a point at halftime but quickly fell out of contention in the second half as the visitors shot a sizzling 64.6 percent for the game.

And Memphis State ended Louisville's 16-game Metro Conference winning streak behind Hank McDowell's 18 points and 10 rebounds. Two free throws by McDowell gave the Tigers a 55-54 lead in the overtime period, Phillip Haynes added two more and Dennis Isbell's dunk with 38 seconds to go finished off the Cardinals.

Chess Clubs Set Match

The Greenville Community Chess Club and the Burroughs Wellcome Co. Chess Club will hold a tournament at South Greenville Recreation Center on Sunday, starting at 1 p.m.

Each club will be represented by a team which will play its opponents in best two-out-of-three matches.

This is the first head-to-head meeting of the clubs, who participated together in a tri-meet last year. In that, Burroughs Wellcome downed Greenville, and finished second to East Carolina's Chess Club.

Both clubs are sanctioned by the United States Chess Federation. The tournament is open to the public.

Lady Pirates...

"I think a lot will depend on how we feel about the game," she added. "We have to have a good night and be intense."

Virginia is loaded with height. They start 6-2 freshman Linda Mitchell at center, 6-0 sophomore Ann Bair and 5-10 senior Valerie Ackerman at forwards, and 6-0 junior Melissa Mahoney and 5-8 sophomore Jill McKone at the guards.

Mitchell is the leading scorer with a 12.9 average, while Ackerman hitting 11.0 and Mahoney, 11.3. Bair has a 7.4 average and McKone, 7.7. Bair is the leading rebounder with a 7.3 average. Reese averages 6.4 points a game.

"No game is a critical one for us," Andruzzi said. "We take them one at a time. What really counts is the state tournament."

She admitted, however, that it would be great to come back to Greenville with a 15-3 record.

N.C. Lighthouses Continue To Guide Mariners In

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — The days of a lighthouse keeper checking his whale oil supply and climbing the stairs of his tower to keep the flame burning have faded into history.

But the lighthouses that the keepers faithfully cared for are still on duty along the North Carolina coast and their lights still guide mariners in from "The Graveyard of the Atlantic."

There are eight lighthouses in operation today along the 301-mile coast line — mostly along the northern section of the coast.

The tall, circular structures, all over 100 years old, are located at Oak Island, Federal Point and Bald Head Island to the south, and at Cape Lookout, Cape Hatteras, Bodie Island, Ocracoke Island and Currituck Beach.

All lighthouses in the state are owned and maintained by the U.S. Coast Guard except the Cape Hatteras tower, which belongs to the National Park Service.

Chief Warrant Officer Henry Styron at the Coast Guard's Hatteras Station said all the houses are sound structurally despite their advanced age.

"They were really well built and we've seen no problems with them at all," Styron said. "The only real problem that we've had is with the lighthouse here at Hatteras, and that is an erosion problem, not anything wrong with the tower itself."

The Hatteras lighthouse, which is listed in the National Historic Registry, has received widespread publicity recently because of the severe erosion damage around its foundation.

The 110-year-old brick tower is only 90 feet from the ocean, and experts have said it will not last through the winter if a severe storm hits the coast.

The park service spent $60,000 last fall to extend an asphalt and sandbag jetty around the Hatteras lighthouse for extra protection.

All eight North Carolina lighthouses play an integral role in the state's coastal history, according to Outer Banks historian David Stick.

In his book, "North Carolina Lighthouses," published by the state Division of Archives and History, Stick said the towers provided protection for early sailors and made coastal shipping possible in North Carolina.

In that book, Stick gave a brief history of each tower, pointing out its unique characteristics. For instance, the Cape Fear Lighthouse on Bald Head Island was the state's first, completed in 1795. The Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is the tallest in the United States at 208 feet and contains 1.5 million bricks.

Until 1930, the lighthouses came under the jurisdiction of the old Lighthouse Board. Later, care and maintenance fell to an organization called the Lamplighters, a forerunner of the Coast Guard.

The Coast Guard's duties include painting the exteriors, cleaning the powerful lenses and making routine inspections.

"We usually paint every five years and we inspect the towers quarterly," Styron said. "The eight lighthouses are due for a fresh coat of paint in the next fiscal year."

The Coast Guard no longer has to turn the lights on and off in the towers. The lights automatically come on at dusk each day and go off at dawn, with emergency generators available at each point for use in the event of a power failure.

Even though the lighthouses don't play as vital a part as they did before the development of modern navigational equipment, they are a visual link to the state's maritime history.

coastal residents want to preserve.

"Maybe lighthouses are no longer needed," Stick said, "but if the time comes when the century-old towers are abandoned... it will mark the end of a glorious piece of history of the North Carolina coast."

Gantry Crane Bumps Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — As engineers pumped liquid hydrogen into the space shuttle's fuel tank, a moving gantry on another launch pad hit a Delta rocket, causing "considerable" damage to the multimillion-dollar rocket, officials say.

There were no injuries in the accident, which had no connection with the space shuttle.

It occurred Thursday as workers were preparing the rocket for a March 12 launch of a weather satellite. The gantry, a special moveable tower, was moving up to the Delta to hook on three solid fuel rocket boosters when hit the top of the rocket, NASA officials said.

The rocket tipped and came to rest tilting into the tower, they said. The accident put a six-inch dent in the collar between the rocket's bottom and middle stages, but some fuel lines to the bottom stage and warped the assembly, according to a spokesman.

Hugh Harris said the damage was "considerable," but had not been assessed. One official said the 10:25 a.m. accident would cost at least several thousand dollars and might render the rocket, owned by McDonnell Douglas Corp., useless.

In 1977, a Delta cost $17 million.

"Officials don't know how much damage has been done and nobody knows whether the launch will have to be delayed," Harris said.

Meanwhile, aerospace workers finished the first half of a "tanking" test on the shuttle, loading 384,000 gallons of hydrogen at 423 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Crews were to pump 140,000 gallons of liquid oxygen, at 297 degrees below zero, today.

Engineers checked for leaks in the tanks and other fuel lines on the Columbia and said the first half of the test went well.

It is a dress rehearsal for a key flight readiness firing of the shuttle's engines Feb. 10. The Columbia, scheduled for its first launch in March, was moved Dec. 29 from the cavernous Vehicle Assembly Building to its launch pad for final tests.

The winged, three-rocket Columbia is the first of four shuttle spacecraft intended to replace the single-use rockets currently employed in the U.S. space program.

They will be used to carry satellites into orbit and for transporting astronauts, scientists and experiments into space. The Columbia is designed to stay in orbit up to a month before gliding back to Earth on its wings.

Bess Truman To Be Going Home

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Former first lady Bess Truman is expected to go home Saturday after being hospitalized for nearly four weeks, says her physician, Dr. Wallace Graham.

Mrs. Truman, 95, was admitted to Research Medical Center here on Dec. 30, suffering from a urinary tract condition and a skin irritation.

"She smiled when I told her the news, and is very happy that she will get to go home," said Graham.

Mrs. Truman, widow of President Harry Truman, was listed in satisfactory condition on Thursday.

None for the Thumb

When the 1980 National Football League season began, Pittsburgh Steeler fans were counting on their favorite team to win "one for the thumb"; a fifth Super Bowl ring. But injuries to several key players hurt the Steelers, who finished the regular season with a 9-7 record and failed to make the playoffs for the first time since 1971. When Super Bowl XV gets underway in New Orleans this Sunday, the teams competing for the big prize will be from Philadelphia and Oakland, not Pittsburgh. The Steelers, the only team ever to win four Super Bowls, must wait till next season to try again for a fifth Super Bowl title.

DO YOU KNOW - What longtime Steelers running back retired at the end of the 1980 season?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER - Mecca is in Saudi Arabia.

Vitamins Said Aid To Retarded

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - A combination of vitamin and mineral supplements can produce dramatic gains in intelligence for mentally retarded children, a study by a Norfolk-based team of scientists has concluded.

The study, led by Dr. Ruth F. Harrell of Old Dominion University, will be published in the January issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences in Washington.

The study is based on the theory that hereditary mental retardation is caused in part by chemical-nutritional deficiencies that hinder the brain's functioning.

During the experiment, the children were given pills containing especially large amounts of vitamins A, D, C, and E, and several minerals, including magnesium and calcium.

Specialists in mental retardation from medical schools around the country cautioned Thursday that they cannot know for certain whether the treatment works before the findings are duplicated by other experimenters.

However, Dr. Edward Zigler, an internationally known expert in mental retardation and Sterling Professor of Psychology at Yale University's medical school, said, "The results are very exciting. I've been in the field for 25 years, and it would be the single most important advance that I've heard about."

Zigler, who has served on numerous presidential commissions on mental retardation, warned against any suggestion that a cure

NOTICE OF RESALE OF LAND BY COMMISSIONER
NORTH CAROLINA
PITTCOUNTY
Under and by virtue of an order of resale by Honorable Sandra Gaskins, Clerk of Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, on January 13, 1981, made in that certain Special Proceeding pending in said court entitled "Kenneth Paul Warren et al vs. Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association and The Federal Land Bank of America," the same being File No. 80 SP 352, the undersigned Commissioner will on the 30th day of January, 1981, at 12:00 Noon, at the Court House door in Greenville, North Carolina, offer for resale to the highest bidder for cash certain tracts or parcels of land lying and being in that certain Township of Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

TRACT NO ONE: Lying and being on the western side of N.C.S.R. #1517 and being bounded on the north by the lands of Elizabeth W. Farmer, and the east by N.C.S.R. #1517, and on the south and west by the lands of the H.O. Warren Heirs, and containing 3 acres, more or less, and being that same tract or parcel of land as appears on survey by Joe M. Dresbach, R.L.S., and designated thereon as Tract 1A, as the same appears of record in Map Book 15, page 6 of the Pitt County Public Registry, reference to said map being made herein and incorporated by reference as if fully set forth herein for a more full and accurate description thereof.

TRACT NO TWO: Lying and being on the western side of N.C.S.R. #1517 and being bounded on the north by the lands of the H.O. Warren Heirs, on the east by N.C.S.R. #1517, on the south by the lands of James Whichard and on the west by the run of Grindie Creek, and containing 3 acres, more or less, and being the same tract or parcel of land as appears on survey by Joe M. Dresbach, R.L.S., and designated thereon as Tracts 6 and 1B as the same appears of record in Map Book 15, page 6 of the Pitt County Public Registry and being that same Tract as shown as Tract No. 1 containing 4.4 acres, more or less, on Map of Division between E.E. and Frances Warren as the same appears attached to the deed appearing of record in Book R 47, page 314 of the Pitt County Public Registry, reference to both of said maps being incorporated herein by reference for a more full and accurate description of said land.

The facts of land above described will be sold subject to all 1980 Pitt County Ad Valorem Taxes and any outstanding drainage assessments now due and owing on said property. The successful bidder at said sale will be required to deposit a sum equal to ten (10%) percent of the first $1,000.00 of said successful bid and five (5%) percent of the excess of said successful bid pending confirmation of said sale by the Court. This 13th day of January, 1981.

Ignoring Odds Over Twins' Separation

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - The teen-age parents of 5-day-old Siamese twins say they want doctors to separate the girls despite the odds against total success.

"I wouldn't want my babies to die. But if they can't live a normal life and can't walk, what kind of life would that be?" asked Katherine Self, 18, mother of Samantha Dawn and Marie Lynn Self.

"If I have to choose, I will pick the healthier baby. That would be the logical thing to do," she said Thursday.

Mrs. Self has been a patient at the University of Tennessee Hospital in Knoxville since her daughters were born Sunday and has not seen the infants, who are joined from the sternum to the navel. The girls are under care at Vanderbilt Children's Hospital in Nashville.

Her husband, Roger Self, 19, was given bus fare by their hometown Maryville churches for the 180-mile trip to Nashville for consultation with Vanderbilt doctors.

"My husband told me this morning they are going to try to separate them," Mrs. Self said Thursday from her hospital room.

"The doctors are going to take them off the respirator slowly and then wait until the

Arguments Fly As Anti-Abortionists Support Ban

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The arguments flew back and forth like emotion-charged confetti as pro- and anti-abortion activists gathered in the nation's capital on the eighth anniversary of the Supreme Court's decision allowing abortion.

An estimated 50,000 opponents, styling themselves the "March for Life," hiked from near the White House to the Capitol to lobby for passage of a constitutional amendment to reverse the court's decision and ban abortion.

Some of them later met with President Reagan, who is on record favoring such an amendment.

Looming ahead is a struggle, likely to be long and bitter, over the amendment, which was introduced in Congress earlier in the day by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif.

If passed by Congress, the amendment would have to be approved by three-quarters of the state legislatures before it could become part of the Constitution.

Although outnumbered, there were plenty of people on hand from the other side, announcing their plans to fight approval of the amendment by intense lobbying of both federal and state legislators.

"It took the Supreme Court to make abortion legal, it will take the legislators in Congress and the states to keep it legal," said Karen Mulhauser, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

She denounced the proposed amendment as an intrusion into individual and family rights and said her group is launching a national organizing campaign in an "Impact 80s" program to defeat the amendment.

The National Organization for Women said it was distributing leaflets and running neighborhood information campaigns in 42 cities Thursday in support of the right to abortions. That group plans a pro-abortion lobbying effort in Congress Feb. 4, Women's Rights Day.

Opposition to the amendment also was announced by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The March for Life group, many of them carrying red roses, was estimated at 50,000 strong by Washington police. Pennsylvania Avenue was closed between the White House and the Capitol for the march.

"This is not time to rest on our laurels," Helms said at a news conference. "Forces who describe themselves as 'pro-choice' will never give up."

The amendment, introduced in Congress two years ago but never adopted, says, "The paramount right to life is vested in each human being from the moment of fertilization without regard to age, health or condition of dependency."

In answer to questions, Dornan said he did not know whether the amendment would outlaw birth control devices or ban capital punishment.

"If it would stop abortions, I don't care if it stops capital punishment," said Dornan. "I have never been high on capital punishment. A better deterrent would be life imprisonment without parole."

The National Organization for Women has charged that the proposed amendment would prohibit such birth control methods as intrauterine devices and most birth control pills because they work after the egg has been fertilized.

Nellie Gray, president of the March for Life, responded that once fertilization has taken place, destruction of the egg should be illegal "whether it is done by pills or devices or salt solution or knives."

Suellen Lowry of the abortion rights league charged Thursday that approval of the amendment would require unprecedented surveillance of Americans. It might result in registration of pregnant women and even raise the potential of prosecution in the event of a miscarriage, she said.

In other abortion demonstrations Thursday, Lt. Gov. Joseph Pauliso of Connecticut told 75 persons at an anti-abortion rally in Hartford, "The taking of an innocent infant from the womb of a mother is murder." Other demonstrations were held in New Haven and New London.

In Denver, about 500 persons rallied at the State Capitol building to hear a group of speakers endorse the anti-abortion movement.

And in Cleveland Heights, Ohio, a clinic offered free abortions this week in observance of the historic

Supreme Court ruling. In Cincinnati, members of the National Abortion Rights Action League picketed outside the Federal Building in support of legalized abortions.

Bars Consideration Of Others Still Detained

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A military judge has again refused to allow jurors in the court-martial of Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood to consider testimony about the possibility of other Americans still being in captivity in Vietnam.

The question of American POWs remaining in Vietnam arose Thursday as a Navy psychiatrist testified that Garwood had reported seeing a "couple of hundred other Americans" before he left the Southeast Asia country in 1979.

"Garwood said he didn't know exactly who the Americans were, but that he was upset and concerned that he was not debriefed like other people," Capt. Benjamin R. Ogburn told the jury of five Marine officers hearing Garwood's trial on charges of desertion and collaboration with the enemy.

After hearing Ogburn's testimony, Col. R.E. Switzer, the presiding judge, ruled it was irrelevant and ordered the jury to disregard it. Switzer earlier had denied defense efforts to obtain expanded information about the possibility of Americans remaining in Vietnam.

Garwood, who was in Vietnamese hands for 14 years, declined any comment after the court session Thursday.

As of July 1980 one American was still classified by the Defense Department as a prisoner of war in Southeast Asia and 19 were carried as missing in action. Earlier, a total of 1,350 Americans had been classified as POWs or missing in the region, but the list was subsequently revised.

Ogburn's testimony came as the prosecution completed its rebuttal of defense testimony. Garwood's defense team scheduled at least one rebuttal witness for an abbreviated session today.

The testimony about other POWs came up during Ogburn's discussion of complaints by Garwood that he had not been debriefed as thoroughly as other returning prisoners.

Tree Trimming On E. Fifth St.

The trees along E. Fifth Street in the area of the East Carolina University campus are undergoing much needed trimming and pruning as part of a joint city-ECU effort, according to Mayo Allen, director of Public Works.

Allen said that the project, involving trees along the Fifth Street right-of-way from Reade to Maple Street, will take approximately one more week to complete.

Unfortunately, Allen pointed out, it has been determined that nine of the trees will have to be removed due to disease. He noted that the city and ECU regret that trees have to be cut down but he said falling debris from the diseased trees creates a safety problem.

Allen said that the trees will be replaced, using funds realized from the sale of wood from trees that are removed.

The city spokesman mentioned that Doug Caldwell from the university and Terry Ogletorpe, who heads the city's right-of-way and beautification section, are involved in the joint project. He said that the university's bucket truck is being used, with manpower coming from the city and ECU. The director added the work is aimed at preserving the healthy trees along Fifth Street.

Allen noted that in the interest of safety, Fifth Street will be barricaded during the day while crews tackle the tree work.

"We are very pleased that crews from the university and city have joined forces for this work," he observed.
