Tax Talk Crowds

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Hundreds of people crowded into two courtrooms at the Pitt County Court House and spilled out into the halls last night as they attended a Farm Bureau sponsored meeting on the county property tax situation, including the present revaluation of real property.

Farm Bureau president Atlas Wooten, opening the meeting, told those gathered, "we're coordinating an effort," and "hope to stay coordinated. We must look for some way out of the situation...if there is one. We want to see what is available to us."

Wooten's opening remarks were made to a full Superior Court room - all seats taken, all standing room full, and the hallways leading to the courtroom packed.

After he opened the session, he suggested that those who were waiting in the halls move to the District Court room for a second session. And many did move...filling the district courtroom seats and standing room, with many standing in the hall there, too.

Just as at a property owners meeting in Winterville last week, Ralph Tucker was elected chairman of a committee to meet with the Board of County Commissioners to ask for relief from the revaluation. Eugene James was named vice-chairman of the committee.

Tucker described the revaluation of property as, "a problem we need to have resolved as quickly as possible." Attorney Charles McLawhorn Jr. outlined for both courtroom audiences the general nature of property taxes in North Carolina. Saying that ad valorem taxes are, "a tax on property itself," noted that the law requires that property be, "appraised at its true value in money," taking into consideration, "past and probable future income," and other factors.

Under state law, the attorney continued, appraisers are, "required to visit...every plot of land," when they appraise property during a revaluation.

He also outlined the various appeals owners have if they feel their property is incorrectly valued - from informal hearings with the appraisal firm, to the Board of Equalization and Review, the State Property Tax Commission, and finally the court system.

McLawhorn also suggested that property owners, in questioning their property value, should look at possible clerical errors, the possibility that the land classification is not correct, and question whether crop allotments constitute real property.

Because the crowded conditions forced last night's meeting to be divided into two sessions, Tucker said another meeting would be held in the near future in a place large enough for all those who wish to attend.

Hostage Spokesman Says 'Support' Overwhelming

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) - Forty-one of the 52 former hostages of Iran opened their first news conference today by paying respect to the eight servicemen who died in last April's failed rescue attempt.

"They put their lives on the line," said Bruce Laingen, the charge d'affaires of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was seized by Iranian militants on Nov. 4, 1979.

Laingen acted as moderator for the mass news conference, the first the former hostages have held since they were freed on Jan. 20.

Laingen told the reporters they were facing 52 "proud, free and happy Americans" and said their families had demonstrated, during the hostages' 444 days of captivity, "nobility and courage."

Laingen praised the eight who died in the rescue attempt for "their readiness to put their lives on the line because they wanted us to be free."

He said the hostages "need time to reflect a bit in terms of policy questions," and he said all the freed Americans "want to reach out with thanks to all our countrymen."

He said the former hostages "have been humbled by what we have seen of the magnificence of the support" they received. And, paraphrasing Winston Churchill, he said, "Never has so small a group owed so much to so many."

He cited as an example a California schoolgirl's valentine that reached the hostages in August. It "told us it's just not America without you," he said.

After the news conference the group was to fly to Washington for an official welcome home at the White House. Their route to the mansion was exactly the same as the one President Reagan took a week ago, - the day he was inaugurated president and the day the hostages were freed.

Laingen said the sight of 200,000 who lined the road from Stewart Airport to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point on Sunday was evidence "that America is strong... that America has heart... that America is prepared to reach out to people in distress."

He said the hostages looked forward to paying their respect to the new president.

"We have great pride in the way our country demonstrated its respect for the defense of principles of international decency and civility," Laingen said.

The support of Americans back home, he said, helped the hostages "to cope with the abuse of fundamental human rights that were so violated."

The first question, to Laingen, was how the former hostages will be able to cope when the media attention fades.

"I can assure you," Laingen said, "that we're prepared to go out and become rank-and-file common citizens again." But, he said, it isn't easy. "It's the first time we've experienced this and we hope it's the last time," he said.

The most emotional scene, Laingen said, was at the airport in Algiers when the hostages, together in the same place for the first time in a long time, were slapping each other on the back.

Laingen was asked whether the negotiations for the hostages' freedom opened the way to hostage takings in the future. He replied that the arrangements for their release "are in the national honor."

Kevin Hermening, a Marine whose mother went to see him in captivity over the objections of the U.S. government, said his captors didn't change their treatment of him after that. "Of course," he said, "I was very glad to see her."

Another former hostage, Marine Sgt. James Michael Lopez, 22, of Globe, Ariz., was asked about reports that after the April rescue mission, a number of hostages were subjected to torture in the desert.

"Were we subjected to torture, no sir," he said. "I think that what you're referring to is the fact that we were dispersed around the country (afterward) and it was done in such a helter-skelter style."

Marine guard William Gallegos, 22, of Pueblo, Colo., who was interviewed while in captivity - an interview that was shown in the United States - said "the State Department understood what I was trying to say... I was trying to say the treatment was good for my fellow colleagues so we would not be mistreated; so we would be treated well."

Hostage Katherine Koob, whose singing of "Away in a Manger" stood out in the Christmas interviews released to American television by Iran, told the news conference she picked that carol because it's a favorite in her family.

"I was concerned about the reaction of my nieces and nephews to my captivity," she said. "It was my way of sharing Christmas and also praying with all of the people (Please turn to Page 2)

Over 800 Missing In Fire On Vessel

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) - An Indonesian passenger ship that caught fire and burned for 12 hours sank in the stormy Java Sea today and Indonesian officials said more than 800 people were missing.

Rough seas prevented a flotilla of rescue vessels from reaching the burning vessel and its panicked passengers.

A spokesman for the National Search and Rescue Operation said only 304 of the 1,137 people aboard were known to have been rescued from the 2,420-ton Tampomas 2. A search was going on for survivors.

With the fate of more than 800 people unknown, there was a possibility that the Tampomas 2 could be the worst ship disaster since 1954 when the Japanese ferry Toya Maru sank off the coast of Japan with the loss of 1,172 lives.

The 1912 sinking of the Titanic claimed 1,517 lives.

The spokesman said earlier reports by Indonesian officials that the ship was being towed and that there were only minor injuries among the passengers were not correct.

He said none of the ships sent to help the stricken vessel could get near it in the rough seas. Some passengers abandoned the ship in lifeboats and were picked up by other ships.

"We tried to contact the boat, but it sank," he said.

He said a rescue plane that approached the ship reported about three-fourths of the vessel ablaze, thick black smoke pouring from the stern, and knots of people jammed at the bow.

Hundreds of people, relatives of the passengers, gathered at the shipping line's headquarters in Jakarta, then went home after darkness fell.

The rescued were being taken by ship to the port of Ujong Pandang, where the ship had been headed, the spokesman said.

The ship was crossing the Java Sea from Jakarta to Ujung Pandang and was 220 miles from its destination when the fire broke out Sunday night in one of the 166 cars aboard, shipping sources said.

Indonesian officials at first said there were only minor injuries among the people aboard, although the fire caused an "almost uncontrolled panic."

They said the 82 crew members brought the fire under control Monday afternoon, and that four ships of the Indonesian shipping line Pelni, two Indonesian navy mine sweepers, and an Indonesian navy plane were sent to help the Tampomas 2.

CHILD BELIEVED NEGLECTED

I know of a family situation in which a child is being neglected and it troubles me. How do I seek help for the child anonymously?

Call the Department of Social Services, Pitt-758-2167, and ask to speak to a supervisor in Children's Services. State the facts as you see them. You must give the names and address of the parents, of course. The social worker is bound by law not to reveal your identity, if she/he knows it, and must act within 72 hours in a case of alleged neglect. She/he must act within 24 hours in a case of alleged child abuse. After 72 hours (or 24 in an abuse case), you may call the same supervisor and inquire about the determination made in the case.

Be very sure you're not acting out of malice, Children's Services worker Rebecca Starkey, warns. If you know you're not, please call right away, she added.

NEED FURNISHINGS

The Salvation Army has asked Hotline to appeal for Henry and Brenda Harris of Rt. 1, Grifton, whose house burned two weeks ago.

The Harrises have two daughters, one of whom is handicapped. They desperately need a refrigerator and also have need of other furnishings.

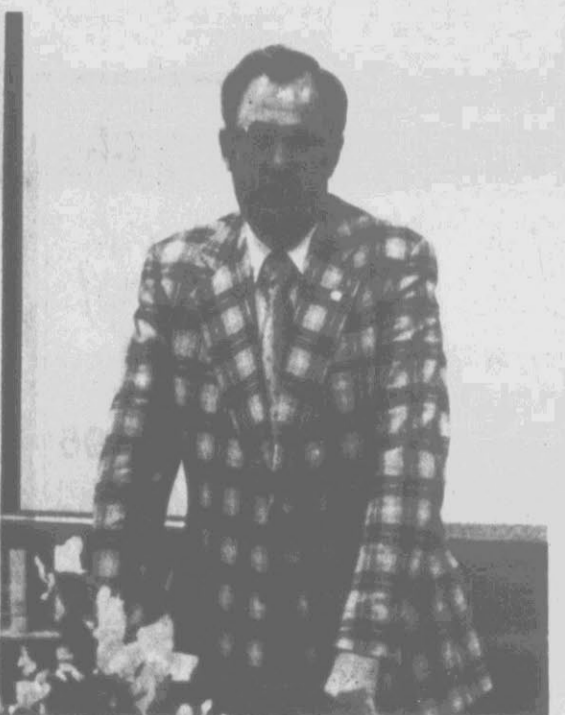

Tax-deductible gifts for the family may be sent or brought to the Salvation Army, 2337 W. Dickinson Avenue, Greenville. Inquiries about the needs of the family may be made by calling Salvation Army secretary, Linda Whorton, 756-3388.

See Nickel Jump In Gasoline Price

By WILLIAM GLASGALL

Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) - The average retail price of gasoline in the United States has jumped nearly a nickel a gallon since OPEC's last round of crude-oil price increases began in mid-December, an industry analyst said today.

Dan Lundberg, publisher of the Lundberg Letter, a Los Angeles-based trade newsletter, said his survey indicated the national average retail gasoline price was $1.2719 a gallon as of Sunday, up 2.28 cents since Jan. 19 and up 4.47 cents since Dec. 19.

The latest gasoline price increases also reflected the lifting of price controls from domestically produced oil, Lundberg said in a telephone interview. The controls started to expire last January and are set to run out by the end of September.

The Lundberg Letter surveys about 14,000 filling stations nationwide. Results of the latest price survey, prepared for delivery to a chamber of commerce meeting in San Diego today, were provided to The Associated Press.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter and the supplier of 8 percent of U.S. oil needs, raised its price for a barrel of crude oil by $2 on Dec. 15. There are 42 gallons in a barrel.

The 12 other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries subsequently voted to let the average price of the cartel's oil rise about 10 percent, to a maximum of $41 a barrel. World crude oil prices have risen more than 150 percent since the Iranian revolution cut that nation's oil output sharply in late 1978.

The United States obtains about 40 percent of its oil from abroad. Half its imports come from OPEC.

While retail gas prices are rising, the profit the average dealer earns per gallon declined this month and remains well under the 17.7 percent-a-gallon maximum set by the federal government, Lundberg said.

Fuel use has declined steadily as the price of gasoline has risen. Lundberg said the average retail price of gasoline in the United States was $1.1807 last year, up from 69.83 cents in 1979.

Acting Today?

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan is expected to lift oil price controls this afternoon, a White House official said today.

The official asked that he not be named.

The source's comments echoed those of Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. who indicated that a White House announcement on the subject was imminent.

The Republican leader conferred with the president this morning in a hastily scheduled meeting, and said the removal of oil price controls was discussed.

Livestock Group Gives Honors

By MARY SCHULKEN

Reflector Staff Writer Several persons and businesses were honored Monday night when the Pitt County Livestock Association held its annual awards banquet.

The association presented three major awards and numerous "Friend of Livestock" certificates of appreciation. Robert Burt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burt, received the Youth Award, given each year to the young person who achieves the most in relation to livestock. Burt is involved with 4-H and participated in the Livestock Association's Pork Production Contest this year.

The Dedicated Service Award was presented to Bynum Driggers, Extension Agricultural Specialist with the N.C. Extension Service. Driggers conducted a swine building workshop in Pitt County this fall.

Ben Gardner, vice president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, accepted the Distinguished Service Award for the Farm Bureau and Farrior and Sons. This award is given for distinguished service to the livestock industry during the year. The two recipients were instrumental in implementing improvements in the association's building on the Pitt County Fairgrounds.

Charles Gaskins was elected president of the Pitt County Livestock Association for 1981, replacing John Brown. The association voted Howard Burt vice president and voted to keep Glen Stewart in the secretary-treasurer position. These officers were chosen by the nominating committee and confirmed by the association members. The nominating committee for 1981 consists of Eddie Jones, Ray Sumrell and Ben Lewis.

Outgoing President John Brown spoke briefly to the association, recalling the major events of the past year. (Please turn to Page 8)

Damage Results From Wrecks

An estimated $5,350 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:05 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, involving cars driven by Betty Jo Williams of 1230 Farmville Blvd. and Bethany Ruthe Randalls of Washington.

Damage from the mishap was set at $2,000 to the Randalls car and $250 to the Williams auto.

Freddie Jackson Jr. of 306A Elks St. was charged with hit and run driving and driving while his license was revoked following investigation of a 1:50 p.m. collision on Fairlane Road, 200 feet west of the Club Drive intersection.

Police reported the Jackson car collided with an auto driven by Kanchanlal B. Patel of 109 Steward La., causing $1,700 damage to the Patel car and $500 damage to the Jackson vehicle.

A 5:15 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street involved cars operated by George Dickey Hinson of Clark's Trailer Pk., and Welma Sitterson Bateman of Plymouth.

Damage from the collision was set at $300 to the Hinson car and $250 to the Bateman vehicle.

Cars driven by James William Lilley of Route 4, Washington and Nicholas James Harris of Route 4, Greenville, collided about 4:45 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 150 feet north of the Third Street intersection.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $150 to the Lilley car and $200 to the Harris auto.

School Students Pay Respects

WINTERVILLE — Students at W.H. Robinson School paid tribute to the returned hostages during the past week by decorating a tree on campus.

Principal Blanie Moyer placed the first yellow bow in the tree and each day prior to the actual return to the United States individual classes added to the tree.

When the 52 ex-hostages returned to American soil, the entire student body assembled on campus, near the U.S. flag and the decorated tree, and sang patriotic songs.

Painting Class Is Scheduled

Pitt Community College will start a beginning landscape oil painting class on January 28 at Greenville Square Shopping Center. Class will meet from 7-10 p.m.

The registration fee is $5. There will be no fee for senior citizens 65 or older. Students are responsible for their own supplies.

For further information contact PCC's Division of Continuing Education at 756-3130, ext. 238 or 266.

Alford Chosen Boss Of Year

Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, has been chosen by members of District 14 Association of Educational Office Personnel (AEOP) as the district's Boss of the Year.

District 14 is comprised of 16 eastern North Carolina Counties. At the AEOP's annual meeting in December, members chose Alford for this honor, which was announced on January 12.

As District 14 Boss of the Year, Alford's name has been placed in nomination for the competition of the State Boss of the Year Award. The state winner will be announced at the end of the annual meeting of the N. C. AEOP, to be held in Raleigh March 18, 19 and 20.

Selection for the award is based on a person's character, leadership, support for and interest in the AEOP organization, and professional involvement in other educational organiza-

Terry Shank New President

Ms. Terry Shank has been installed as the new president of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County.

The director of cooperative education at Pitt Community College, Ms. Shank is a native of Patterson, New Jersey. She holds a master's degree in adult education from East Carolina University and a bachelor's degree from Oberlin College Conservatory, Ohio.

She is also a graduate of the Realtor's Institute at Chapel Hill, and has had additional study at New York University and Hofstra College, New York.

TERRY SHANK

In Greenville, Mrs. Shank has been active in several fields. She is a member and former chairman of the Greenville City Board of Education, has served as a member of the board of directors in the League of Women Voters and on the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors.

Currently, she is chairman of the Local Concerns Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce and is secretary-treasurer of the N. C. Cooperative Education Association. Ms. Shank is the mother of three sons.

Bani-Sadr Claims Plot

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr has charged his political enemies plotted to assassinate him by attacking his car with rocket-propelled grenades or staging a car "accident" while he toured Iranian front lines in the war with Iraq.

The accusation was made Monday in the president's daily "war diary" column in Tehran's Enghelab Islami newspaper, which Bani-Sadr controls, a foreign editor of the newspaper told The Associated Press in Beirut by telephone.

Bani-Sadr is also Iran's commander in chief.

The editor, who asked not to be identified, said Bani-Sadr gave this account:

He learned of the plot Jan. 14 in a report from army intelligence and a 40-page document from an unnamed political group in Iran. It called for an attack in Khuzistan Province during a trip from the military airport at Dezful to the provincial capital of Ahvaz, about 50 miles from the Iraqi border.

The plan provided for a declaration of "national mourning" after the assassination.

Winter Sports Medals Won

Two Pitt County Special Olympians, Tommy Moran and Michael Turnage, captured medals at the Fourth Annual Southeast Region Winter Special Olympics held recently at Appalachian Ski Mountain in Boone.

More than 150 participants from Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee and North Carolina met in the mountains for the three day event.

Each participant received two days of training at the French Swiss Ski college in Boone prior to the competition.

Moran, from Winterville, won the Gold Medal in the Giant Slalom, and Turnage, of Grifton, won the silver medal in the downhill race.

Other officers elected at the recent annual meeting are: Charles R. Ross, president-elect; Lauretta Lewis, secretary; Pam Kachmer, treasurer; Alton Warren, assistant treasurer; Melba Howard, chapter delegate; and Dr. Frank Fuller, member-at-large.

Mrs. Shirley Hines, eastern regional vice president of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina installed new board of directors members — Rev. Wayne Adkinson, Winterville; Eloise Caraway, Farmville; Daisy Latham, Bethel; Dr. Wiley Hines, Sam Johnson, Carolyn Means, Garrie Moore, J.W.H. Roberts, Zula Rouse, and Roy Selby, all of Greenville.

About two dozen other board members, from Farmville, Ayden, Grifton, Bethel, Fountain and Greenville were recognized for their contributions during the past year.

Guest speaker for the annual meeting was Jane Benbow, Community Program Developer, Office of Prevention, of the N. C. Department of Human Resources. Her topic was "Prevention for Mental Health."

Robert H. Jenkins, a psychology student at East Carolina University, was awarded the David W. Hardee Scholarship, one given each year by the Mental Health Association in Pitt County.

Senior Citizens Hold Meet

Town and Country Senior Citizens held their meeting Thursday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Seventy members were present, along with three guests.

Invitations to the Greenville Public Works Department Open House February 1 from 2-4 p.m. were extended to the club members. Members were also invited to attend Greenville's Community Schools program at Wahl-Coates School January 27.

January birthdays were recognized and special tribute was paid to James Ward. Members were reminded to bring a Valentine to the February 5 meeting.

Mrs. Ennin gave the club five boxes of materials to be used for quilts.

A thank you note was read from the Social Services in appreciation of the $75 for the foster children's Christmas Fund.

Mrs. Phillip Adler was the guest speaker and gave a talk on Argentina, where she was born and raised.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Margaret Howle, Mrs. Julia Houle, Sallie Reagan, Miss Clara Seago, Mrs. Mildred Manning, Mrs. Rosa Woods, Mrs. Helen Sermons, and the Rev. and Mrs. Henry Lofquist.

The Rev. Lofquist closed with thanksgiving prayers for the safe arrival of the 52 hostages in West Berlin.

Listing Deadline

Pitt County Tax Supervisor Jimmy Hardee reminded property owners today that Saturday is the deadline for listing real and personal property for tax purposes.

State law requires all property to be listed for taxes during the month of January. Hardee noted that there is a penalty for late-listing.

The tax official encouraged property owners who have not listed their property to list them as early as possible this week to avoid long lines at the last minute.

He noted that the listing places will be open until noon Saturday.

Hostages, Press....

Charles A. Jones Jr., of Detroit, the only black who was continued to be held after others were released at Thanksgiving in 1979, had told reporters earlier he felt he was being treated like an animal in a zoo.

He told the news conference he was referring to the entire group. "We were fed at certain times. We were being watched all the time. That's what I was talking about," he said.

Jones said his treatment, as a black, was no different from any of the other hostages.

Laingen was asked if the former hostages consider themselves heroes.

"No, as a matter of fact, I don't," he said.

And William J. Daugherty, of Ossining, N.Y., who was said by the militant captors to be an agent of the CIA, told the news conference that the hostages feel, almost unanimously, "that the real heroes of this event have been the families."

Applause filled the room when he said that.

"We knew what was happening to us and the families did not," he added. "We did not experience the roller-coaster emotions of next week you're going to be released, (then) no you're not."

Toward the end of the news conference, Lt. Cmdr. Robert Engelman, 33, of Hurst, Texas, was asked about reports that some of the hostages had mental problems as the result of their long captivity.

"It was a period of extreme stress," Engelman said. "But what impressed me most, boarding the plane, was the ability to just close the door on it..."

"A lot of the stress was relieved just by walking aboard that aircraft... I myself feel very well, physically and mentally," he said.

The news conference lasted exactly 45 minutes. In all, 41 of the 52 former

GE Contributes To New Center

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — General Electric Co. and the Research Triangle Foundation have become the first private donors to North Carolina's new Microelectronics Center.

George Herbert, chairman of the center, said Monday GE had donated $250,000 while the foundation had given $300,000.

Gov. Jim Hunt is seeking private donations of $6 million to go with his proposal for state expenditures totaling $24 million during the next two years to develop the center.

Commission To Consider Varied Items

A variety of items are scheduled for consideration by the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning & Zoning Commissions at Wednesday's regular 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Business on the joint board's agenda includes: presentation of the annual report; amendments regarding rules of procedure; consideration of an amendment to the Greenville Thoroughfare Plan in accordance with the NC Department of Transportation;

Zoning Ordinance amendments; discussion of requirements for approval of plats; discussion of gold and silver buying; and group housing standards.

The city board will consider: revised preliminary plat of Fairlane Farms, located on Hooker Road south of Fairlane Subdivision; Phase II of Tucker Farms Development, located west of and adjacent to Carolina East Mall; and Block B, Lots 21-37 of Shenandoah Subdivision, located on Tobacco Road, north of Greenville Boulevard.

'Bit' On Old Practical Joke

ATLANTA (AP) — State Rep. Ed Perry thought he was too smart to fall for a prank traditionally played on first-term lawmakers.

When he got a note, purportedly from Gov. George Busbee, requesting an immediate audience in the governor's office, the Democrat scribbled a reply that, "Governor, I'm busy voting, and I'll be down when I'm through."

Perry's tormentors immediately got Busbee's executive secretary, Tom Perdue, to inform Perry that the governor was terribly offended.

Perry showed up at the governor's office later to apologize and Busbee, who by then was a party to the proceedings, informed the first-term lawmaker that in his six years in office, he had never been subjected to such rudeness.

Federal Judge Denies Motion

U. S. District Judge F. T. Dupree Jr. has denied a motion by a former Greenville Police Department lieutenant that the court order Mayor Don McGlohon, City Manager Ed Wyatt and Police Chief Glenn Cannon to reinstate him to his former position.

Laughinghouse, a veteran of 16 years with the department, filed a complaint against the three men in U. S. District Court on January 14, alleging discrimination in his dismissal from the department in December. The complaint asked that he be reinstated and that he recover $100,000 in actual and punitive damages.

Although Chief Cannon has declined to comment on the officer's dismissal, informed sources have said the shift supervisor had violated department regulations by being under the effect of alcohol while on duty.

Dupree's January 23, order said the motion to reinstate Laughinghouse was denied, because, "It does not appear from the facts shown by the duly-filed affidavit or by the verified complaint that the plaintiff will sustain immediate and irreparable injury before the defendants can respond," to the complaint.

However, the Judge also ordered the clerk of court to schedule, "a preliminary injunction hearing at the earliest convenient date," on a motion by Laughinghouse for the defendants to, "refrain from employing a replacement for said position, and, "maintain the plaintiff in his former position."

Collections Of Taxes Are Reported

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during December totaled $319,703, according to figures reported by Mark G. Lynch, Secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

The December collection in Pitt compared with $252,998 recorded for November and $281,426 in October.

Net collections in several neighboring counties for December, November and October included: Beaufort, $126,601, $134,395, $139,710; Carteret, $155,246, $140,857, $160,677; Craven, $218,203, $190,828, $199,067;

Edgecombe, $142,040, $125,059, $135,035; Greene, $15,981, $16,024, $14,955; Lenoir, $208,984, $174,974, $193,502; Martin, $74,205, $62,933, $66,444; Nash, $260,945, $235,830, $246,360; Wayne, $280,461, $248,373, $247,064; and Wilson, $234,642, $210,090, $214,380.

Lynch said that net collections in the 99 participating counties in December amounted to $18,701,526, compared with $17,685,673 in November and $17,367,736 in October.

MRS. JOHN ALBERT LANG III

Couple Weds On Saturday

WINSTON-SALEM — Davis Chapel at N. C. Baptist Hospital here was the scene of the Saturday evening wedding ceremony of Cheryl White Stenberg and John Albert Lang III.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Bryant Kendrick. A program of wedding music was presented by Barbara Matthews, organist, and Martha Shealey, vocalist.

The parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. James A. White Jr. of Winston-Salem and Mrs. John A. Lang Jr. of Greenville and the late Col. Lang.

The matron of honor was Claudia Shepherd of Winston-Salem. Honorary bridesmaids included Laura Lang of Greenville, Martha Shealey of Lakeworth, Fla., Michelle Moore of Bellaire, Ohio, and Christa White of Winston-Salem.

The best man was Larry Fields of Washington, D. C., and ushers included Richard Lang of Raleigh, Thomas Coltrain of Greenville, Harold Moore of Bellaire, Ohio, and Roy Shealey of Lakeworth, Fla.

Flowers girls were Lauren Fields and Alyssa Stenberg.

The bride wore a candlelight formal gown of alencon lace fashioned with a fitted bodice, full sleeves and skirt of chiffon. She carried a bridal bouquet of orchids.

The honor attendant wore a formal wine colored velveteen skirt with appliques and a matching jacket. She carried a bouquet of roses, baby's breath and fern.

Miss Fields wore a wine velveteen dress and carried a basket with rose petals. Miss Stenberg wore an ecru lace dress trimmed in wine velveteen and carried roses.

The couple will live in Alexandria, Va., after a wedding trip to the Virgin Islands.

The bride is a graduate of Wake Forest University. The bridegroom graduated from Duke University and received an M.D. degree from UNC-Chapel Hill. He is now an internal medicine specialist in the U. S. Air Force and is stationed at Andrews AFB. His rank is major.

A reception was held at the Woman's Club after the ceremony.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. Blanche Kittrell and Mrs. Bertha Jones were first place winners in the Wednesday morning game played at Planters Bank with 638 percent.

Others placing were Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. C. D. Elks, second; Mrs. Fred Adams and Mrs. Tom Lunney, third; Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. Jean Cox Jones, fourth; Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Morton Jr., fifth.

Wednesday afternoon winners, North-South were:

Mrs. W. R. Harris and Mrs. J. M. Horton, first with a 566 percent game; Mrs. Beulah Eagles and Mrs. Willie Cummings, second; Mrs. William Parvin and Mrs. Cifton Toler, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. Fred Sorensen and Mrs. Bertha Jones with Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr.

East-West: Mrs. Aline Cone and George Martin, first; Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. George Martin, second; Mrs. C. D. Elks and Mrs. Stuart Page, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. Robert Exum and Emma B. Warren with Claude Goodman and Dave Proctor.

Saturday afternoon winners, North-South were: Mrs. W. R. Harris and Mrs. J. M. Horton, first with a 626 percent game; Mrs. Fred Adams and George Martin, second; Mrs. Myrt Johnson and Mrs. Elizabeth Roque, third; Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts and Mrs. Lacy Harrell, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Aline Cone and Mrs. C. D. Elks, first with a 651 percent; Joe Hatch and Gary Bryant, second; Mrs. Eloise Gabbert and Mrs. C. F. Galloway, third; Mrs. Irene Hardy and Emma B. Warren, fourth.

The Saturday, Feb. 7, game will be cancelled.

Removing Cake From Pan
Allow layer cakes to cool on cooling rack 15 minutes and tube cakes 25 minutes (unless recipe directs otherwise) before removing. This allows the cake structure to set enough to maintain good volume.

Run a knife gently around edges to loosen cake. Wrap cooling rack with paper towel and place upside down over cake. Carefully invert the pan and rack. Lift pan off cake; allow cake to cool completely before frosting.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

On a flight from Washington to Phoenix recently a group of airline stewardesses were gathered in the kitchenette tossing a paperback back and forth.

Now I'm no fool. I knew they weren't reading a manual on how to floatate when your cushion springs a leak.

When I asked the title, one of the girls explained it was a book that was selling like hotcakes called "The Greatest Little Bachelor Book in Texas" by Sue Goldstein. It profiled 200 Texas bachelors, complete with pictures and phone numbers.

"Girls! Girls!" I said, taking the book from them. "How lucky you are to have me on this flight to save you from this immoral bit of exploitation. You don't shop for a mate in a Sears Wish catalogue, Love finds you when you least expect it."

"She's right," said one of the girls. "I met this guy in a Star Wars line and we lived together two years."

"I mean, look here on page 289. Sugar Bear's idea of excitement is to play in a fountain after a formal dinner party. Do you know how impractical that is?"

"There's always Tedrific on page 221," said a little brunette. "He believes in soaking the dishes in his hot tub."

I grabbed the book back. "He also thinks ERA means 'earned run average.' Forget him! As a married woman of 31 years, I should read through this book and give you the value of my expertise on who would make a good husband."

As we neared Phoenix, I made some notes. Jim on page 53 considers his favorite contact sport shopping on Christmas Eve. Mike's greatest assets on page 115 are his thighs and his smile. A podiatrist on page 99 led a rally for Harold Stassen and drives a '59 Edsel. Seadog on page 116 is hooked on Ryan's Hope and has a pet boa constrictor.

"What do you think?" they asked as we touched down.

I looked at the volume that not once had touched upon the real pitfalls of marriage: Interstate Snoring, Premature Nodding Off, Howard Cosell Rash, Terminal Cheapness, Consistent Insensitivity, Extra-Marital Affair. With

MORNING COFFEE

Zwieback Torte Coffee

ZWIEBACK TORTE

New way to make an old standby.

12 zwieback (from a 6-ounce package)

1 cup walnuts

2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

6 large eggs, separated

2 cups sugar

Crumble zwieback and pulverize in a food processor with the steel blade — there should be about 2-3rds very fine crumbs; remove blade and turn crumbs into a large bowl. Return blade to processor and add the walnuts; using rapid on-off turns, chop until medium-fine; remove blade and stir nuts into zwieback with the baking powder. Return blade to processor; add the egg yolks; turn on processor and through the feed tube gradually add the sugar, processing until blended; remove blade and add yolk mixture to zwieback mixture; use your hands to combine. Beat the egg whites until stiff and add to zwieback mixture; using one of your hands as you would a spatula, fold in the whites until blended. Turn into two 9-inch round layer-cake pans whose bottoms have been lined with wax paper and the paper greased and floured. Bake in a preheated 300-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 25 to 30 minutes. Loosen edges and turn out on wire racks; remove paper; cool completely. Layers will be on the thin side. Tightly cover each layer separately and refrigerate overnight. Before serving, lightly sprinkle bottom layer with orange liqueur, then sandwich layers together, filling and frosting them with whipped cream flavored with orange liqueur.

Dear Abby

Refreshing Draft From Spring Of Inspiration

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Yesterday's column was filled with names (submitted by my readers) of those who managed to succeed against the odds. Today's is a continuance of that list:

Have a thalidomide child born with a dwarfed, twisted body without arms, and you have a Terry Wiles, who, with the aid of mechanical devices, learned to play the electric organ, steer a motorboat and paint.

Amputate the cancer-ridden leg of a handsome young Canadian, and you have a Terry Fox, who vowed to run on one leg across the whole of Canada to raise a million dollars for cancer research. (Terry was forced to quit halfway when cancer invaded his lungs, but to date has raised about $20 million.)

After having lost both legs in an air crash, let a British fighter pilot fly again with the RAF, and you have a Douglas Bader, who, with two artificial limbs, was captured by the Germans three times during World War II — and escaped three times!

Blind him and you have a Ray Charles, George Shearing, Stevie Wonder, Tom Sullivan, Alec Templeton or Hal Krents.

Label him "too stupid to learn," and you have a Thomas Edison.

Make him a "hopeless" alcoholic, and you have a Bill Wilson, founder of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Tell her she's too old to start painting at 80, and you have a Grandma Moses.

Afflict him with periods of depression so severe that he cuts off his own ear, and you have a Vincent Van Gogh.

Your list would not be complete without a smiling Max Cleland, who lost both legs and an arm in Vietnam and now heads the Veterans Administration in Washington, D.C.

Don't forget Patricia Neal, the fine actress who suffered a severe stroke, but rehabilitated herself against overwhelming odds.

Blind him at age 44, and you have John Milton, who, 16 years later, wrote "Paradise Lost."

Call him dull and hopeless and flunk him in the sixth grade, and you have a Winston Churchill.

Punish her with poverty and prejudice, and she may survive to become another Golda Meir.

Pit her against sexual discrimination, and you have a Madame Curie.

Tell a young boy who loved to sketch and draw that he has no talent, and you have a Walt Disney.

Take a crippled child whose only home he ever knew was an orphanage, and you have a James E. West, who became the first chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

Rate him as "mediocre" in chemistry, and you have a Louis Pasteur.

Make him a homosexual, and you have a Michaelangelo and a million other talented people.

Not all disabilities are physical and visible. And not all who have won against the odds are well-known celebrities.

Every family has its own heroes and heroines for whom there is no medal distinguished enough to reward them for their accomplishments.

It is to you, whose names do not appear here but deserve to, that I dedicate this column.

Review Procedures

Pitt County Memorial Hospital has taken note of the Craven County hospital situation where there are allegations of food diversions. Bob Barnes, associate director/general services told the board of trustees last week that controls on food purchases at the Pitt hospital virtually guarantee that a similar situation won't develop here. That is reassuring. It is a good time, however, for all government agencies in our area to review their purchasing procedures, as well as safe guards to make certain that no supplies are being used in any but the proper way. Every governmental agency is a trustee of public property and eliminating of waste and theft should be the first priority. Particularly is this true of health services agencies where many supplies are used and cost are soaring. Now is the time to review all these procedures and to make certain the public gets what it pays for.

Right To Be Dissatisfied

Former President Carter's assistant for religious affairs, the Rev. Bob Maddox, says conservative religious groups which backed Reagan for president will soon become dissatisfied with him. Maddox, who is coming to Pitt Community College as an assistant to the president, feels Reagan won't live up to the expectations of the right-wing.

That is likely to be a correct assumption. America's left is expecting the worst from the new administration, and can hardly be disappointed. The right-wing has strong expectations that its interests will be met. There hasn't been a president yet who didn't have to compromise and find middle grounds.

Haig Is Top Policy-Maker

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — Within hours of his confirmation as secretary of state, Alexander Haig put final touches on a document for President Reagan's signature that would enthrone the State Department and its new boss as undisputed foreign policy-makers in the Reagan administration. The document, drafted by Haig and his staffers on the seventh floor in Foggy Bottom, would end 12 years of National Security Council (NSC) staff dominance over U.S. foreign policy. Specifically, it would establish two working committees to be chaired ordinarily by high State Department officials instead of, as in the past, by the NSC staff director. The document is doubly significant because of its authorship. Though a presidential directive, it was written not by the new presidential assistant for national security (the NSC staff director), Richard V. Allen, but by Secretary of State Haig. Haig knows more about how the NSC apparatus works than anyone else in the Reagan administration. Having gained that knowledge during the Nixon years as NSC director Henry Kissinger's top aide, Haig knows what he wants from Reagan: a return to the system of 20 years ago when State Department officials, not White House operatives, ran the committees that control national security communications to the Oval Office. The rise of Al Haig and the decline of the NSC staff system draws mixed reviews within the Reagan administration. Allen himself utters no dissent. Reflecting the president's wishes, he is helping Haig. Eyebrows lifted when Allen hired Maj. Gen. Robert L. Schweitzer, one of Haig's lieutenants at NATO command in Europe, as a key NSC staffer. That gives Haig a potent ally in the White House. But Haig as potential Cabinet strongman generates distrust in higher elevations of the Reagan administration. Edwin Meese, the president's closest aide, is said by insiders to consider California Supreme Court Justice William P. Clark as a counterweight to Haig. Clark's selection as deputy secretary of state, despite his lack of foreign policy experience, was based on loyalty to Reagan proven in service as the president's first chief of staff as governor of California. Even with Clark at State, however, Haig's rise will not be stopped quickly. That was affirmed when Haig sent his unprecedented proposal to the White House reconstituting the NSC; not along lines laid down by Allen but fitting his own desires. Such a concession by Kissinger or Jimmy Carter's NSC director, Zbigniew Brzezinski, would have been unthinkable. The very fact that at this writing the new president has not yet issued his first directive on his desired NSC setup is revealing. By Dec. 30, 1968, Kissinger had completed the most elaborate study ever made of the NSC structure, which was quickly approved by Richard Nixon in a series of directives that opened his presidency. On Jan. 19, 1977, Brzezinski got Carter's signature on changes he wanted in the NSC system, with Carter's approval going out Jan. 20 as Presidential Directive No. 2. Allen's failure to perform with the same dispatch demonstrates the sincerity of Reagan's often-expressed dislike for the NSC's staff system of the last dozen years. Reagan simply does not regard the NSC as an invaluable tool of presidential policy-making, as did Nixon, Gerald Ford and Carter. Instead, known for his like of uncomplicated bureaucratic structures, Reagan has said he was appalled at infighting between State Department and NSC that accompanied the dominance of Kissinger and, to a lesser extent, of Brzezinski. Reagan's attitude is Haig's launching pad, and few here doubt the secretary of state's capacity to exploit and ex-

Food Price Impact

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — American cars, clothes, cameras, TV sets, or other consumer goods may not be in much demand in foreign retail stores. But food is. And that is one of the biggest forces beneath the steady climb in grocery store prices we have been facing in recent years. Economists at North Carolina State University say that roughly half of the food now produced in this country is shipped overseas. Prior to the 1970s, only about 20 percent was exported. The immediate effect is simple: the added demand for food products abroad keeps the supply at home under strain so prices go up; the value of the U.S. dollar in foreign exchanges makes purchase of our food products attractive; and, consumer pressures at home, such as the beef boycott of several years ago, no longer have any impact because overseas sales immediately take up the slack.

boomed to give farmers expanded markets and added income. "Any explanation of U.S. agricultural prices must incorporate the effects of foreign business cycles, weather, wars, and trade embargoes. These events affect the foreign demand for American agricultural products and this increases the relative prices of these products." Lapp and an stores which help to boost food costs, the specialists found. People want foods that are fast and easy to fix, increasingly so as more women enter the work force; and more people are eating meals away from home — both work to push food prices higher. As for the common myth that "middlemen" are behind higher retail food prices, the university study dismisses that contention in light of the stiff competition among food marketers. Turning to land prices, the university study could find no reason to link soaring land (Please turn to Page 6) associate, Thomas Grennes, conclude. Besides inflation and foreign trade pressures, another major factor influencing food prices is marketing. Michael K. Wohlgenant at State University says that of some $240 billion spent by consumers for domestic farm food products, "one-third went to agricultural producers while two-thirds of that amount was for marketing costs" such as processing, storing, transporting, and distributing the goods. Marketing Labor costs make up almost a third of the marketing costs, with the other two major components being packaging (eight percent), and transportation (five percent). Radio In Marketplace

WASHINGTON — The Federal Communications Commission struck a blow for freedom a couple of weeks ago. It abolished most of its own petty little regulations on radio broadcasting, and it took this step for the best of all reasons: The marketplace, the FCC concluded, can do a better job than bureaucrats can do. For more than 50 years, dating from the Radio Act of 1927, the federal government has exercised authority over radio broadcasting. That act mandated that stations were to be operated "in the public interest," and in 1934 the commission was created with power to define how the public interest should be served. In the nature of things, this led inevitably to rules and regulations, to reports and records, to monitors and notices, and to all the paperwork on which bureaucrats thrive and businessmen expire. Radio stations were required to undertake elaborate "ascertainment procedures," by which they would determine community issues in need of public discussion. The stations had to maintain comprehensive program logs. Other rules dealt with the minutes and seconds that could be allocated to commercials. Still other regulations mandated minimum amounts of "non-entertainment programming."

With its order of January 14, the FCC scrapped almost all of these requirements. From now on, said Chairman Charles D. Ferris, radio broadcasters "will be able to follow their own path in determining how to serve their community's needs and interests in ways that reflect the realities of today's radio market." That market is remarkably active. At the last count, the commission had issued licenses to 4,575 AM stations and 4,358 FM stations. All but 1,086 of these are commercial stations that depend upon advertising for survival. When the commission first proposed to abolish its rule on commercials (not more than 18 to 20 minutes an hour), protests were heard that many stations would broadcast commercials wall to wall. The commission disagreed: "The quantity of advertising is generally so far below the guidelines as to demonstrate that competition and other marketplace forces, not regulation, most effectively restrict advertising loads." Audiences, advertisers and station owners, in the commission's view, will help prevent commercial abuse. The same considerations led to the commission's abandonment of old rules on non-entertainment programming. In the past, AM stations were expected to devote at least 8 percent of their air time (and FM stations 6 percent) to news and public affairs. Most stations, now exceed those guidelines. In markets with seven or fewer stations, more than 80 percent of the stations now broadcast in excess of 10 percent news and public affairs. Listeners want news, weather advisories, traffic reports and the like. It's good business to provide such information. No reason exists to believe that broadcasters will stop such services. Neither is it likely that the broadcasters' new freedom will put a damper on ethnic programming. More than 400 stations in 239 markets now cater to black audiences, and 139 of these provide "full-time black-oriented programming." Other stations — 270 of them — serve Spanish-speaking listeners. The marketplace has created a demand, and the marketplace will meet it. Surely this is the right way to go about relieving the (Please turn to Page 6)

Other Editors Say Tax Legislation

(Washington Daily News) As we read and study proposals for tax increases in North Carolina, we realize that the General Assembly is going to be faced with many tax challenges and it must make many decisions which will go directly to the pocketbooks of our citizens. In a period of inflation and with costs skyrocketing all the time, for one to say that this state can get by without any new tax levies or increased levies in this session might be merely idle gossip. We wish it were practical not to be faced with such a decision. We suspect that all over our state counties and municipalities will have to find new sources of taxation shortly, too. Then where will the legislature turn for additional monies? First of all, we read that one proposal would put a special added tax on hotels and motels in our state. To tax special interests in such a manner is both impractical and unwise, we feel. If the legislature can come face to face with a new tax on hotels and motels, then what is to keep it from putting the same tax on restaurants, hardware stores, jewelry stores, repair shops, banks, and just about any enterprise we wish to name? Taxing special items always seems easy for the state to make the collections. When new or increased taxes are offered, we must consider the impact and think in terms of what it might do to the enterprises involved. We would suspect that efforts will be made to increase tobacco taxes; and then increased liquor taxes always comes up. The proposal to increase gasoline taxes has gained considerable momentum, if we listen to the proponents; but we doubt that the real masses of people have spoken out as of this time. But the higher gasoline goes per gallon, the fewer gallons are sold and the less taxes collected. How about increasing state income taxes? This course is always considered, and it will be considered for sure this time. It might well offer the easiest way out for everybody, but it will be felt mostly by the workers whose pay checks each pay period are lessened. On top of talk of increased taxation will be the biennial effort to remove the sales tax from food on the one hand and to increase the sales tax on the other hand. This fight could be a real one. We do believe new taxes or increased taxation will come forth during the session. The question is not that of increasing taxes or not, as we see it. The real question is where to place the burden.

Strength For Today MORAL VICTORY'S COST Moral character is something that must be sought after. Nature bestows it upon no one. Of course nature sometimes seems to grant some people a disposition to do good rather than evil. But usually this is the result of a good home environment. Real victory over our evil tendencies is something never attained without the discipline of struggle. For example, the Journal of John Wesley, one of the great saints of all time, reveals that this most godly of men continually struggled against the very weaknesses which assail the rest of us day by day. Ignatius Loyola and St. Francis of Assisi both lived worldly lives as young men and then only with difficulty turned their lives toward Christian faith and service. Jesus Christ makes good his promise to transform human life; but we must cooperate. Religious faith and moral character are attained only as the result of struggle. — Elisha Douglass

To the editor: Now that the 52 American hostages have been freed, many of us may press for retribution from Iran. However, it should be realized that there remains jailed in Iran a 53rd American. It was mentioned briefly Jan. 20 by CBS evening news that Elizabeth Dow, a journalist arrested last May was left behind when the exchange took place last Tuesday. For over 24 months, the U. S. exercised extreme caution in dealing with Iran to assure the safe release of the 52 hostages. Funds For The College-Bound

By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer The high price of higher education is forcing more and more families to look for outside help to pay the bills. And the start of a new year marks the start of the search for financial aid. The average cost of four years of college at a private school for a student who lives on campus already is nearly $25,000, according to the College Board. The board's estimate is based on tuition and other charges for the 1980-81 academic year. Next year will be even worse. Officials at one Ivy League school, Brown University in Providence, R.I., said recently, for example, that tuition, room and board and fees for a typical student during the 1981-82 academic year could top $10,000. Changes in government aid programs in past years make it easier for families to get help — regardless of income. Most help, however, is still linked to a family's financial status. Schools and scholarship agencies, as well as the government, rely on standard forms to determine eligibility. The forms are designed to determine how much you and your family can reasonably be expected to contribute to the cost of college. They take into account things like the number of family members in school, as well as overall income. The difference between the amount a school costs and the amount you are expected to contribute, is the amount of aid for which you are eligible. NOTE: Some government programs provide aid to all eligible students. In other cases, however, you may qualify for a scholarship and still not get one since there usually is not enough money to help all eligible students. The financial aid forms are available from high school counselors; they should be completed as soon after Jan. 1 as possible, using information from 1980 tax returns. The most commonly used national forms are the Financial Aid Form or FAF, distributed by the College Scholarship Service of the College Board and the Family Financial Statement or FFS, prepared by the Amer-

FAMILIES TO SUE IRAN — Attorney Melvin Belli said Monday that his law firm has been retained by several families of former hostages who want to sue the Iranian government for damages, despite a U.S. guarantee, in the release agreement, that no private suits would be filed. Belli will sue anyway, hoping the federal government will change its policy. "I would like to sue Khomeini himself, but I think you're limited to suing the government", he said. (AP Laserphoto)

Reveals One Hostage Suicide Attempt

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — One of the American hostages tried to commit suicide while being held in Iran and the militant captors took steps to prevent other attempts, according to former hostage Moorhead Kennedy Jr.

"I don't know how serious it was or whether it was just somebody demonstrating something to the students," Kennedy said Monday in an interview with Barbara Walters of ABC television.

Kennedy said he knew who had made the attempt, but would not reveal the person's identity.

He said he learned of the incident in February 1980 after the Iranian militants roused him and several hostages from their rooms and forced them into a cold hallway, where they were lined up before a mock firing squad.

Afterward, Kennedy said, the Iranians would not let him have his belt back and he discovered that his room had been ransacked and his tie taken.

"We didn't know then that there had been a suicide attempt. And what they were doing was shaking us down for anything which might be used to help somebody commit suicide," Kennedy said.

A hostage suicide, he said, "would have been very bad for the students. They didn't want any suicides."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Kennedy said the "only mistake" America made during the hostages' captivity in Iran was the rescue attempt last April.

"Even if it had succeeded, a lot of us would have been killed," Kennedy said. "Even if the planes got in, we would have been shot up on the way out."

Kennedy, of Washington, D.C., also said he thinks the U.S. should honor its agreement with Iran.

"It's terribly important that we honor it," Kennedy said. "It's important to the Third World that we maintain our position of leadership. We're a great nation because we're morally strong."

In another interview, broadcast by ABC-TV, Kennedy spoke vividly of others being tortured by the militants.

"We heard torture, uh, long howls and the little yelps at the end as the pain was eased," he said. "Whipping's bad, you hear the crack of the whip, and then this uh, the person lets out his or her breath — ahhhh!"

In the AP interview, Kennedy said that except for the aborted rescue mission, he approved of the way former President Carter handled the hostage crisis.

"I think President Carter's way of handling it, not panicking, was the right one," Kennedy said. "Our restrained posture gave us credit. We should have used this restrained posture all along."

Kennedy, who was an economic attache to the embassy when it was seized, was spending his second day of freedom relaxing with his wife, Louisa, who has been a spokeswoman for the hostage families and their four sons.

Exhausted but exhilarated, he said he was overwhelmed by the reception the hostages were receiving. "I have been terribly, deeply touched."

Kennedy described his captors as "crazies" and said that what he missed most about America was its "civility."

"Americans are civilized and balanced people," he said. "Being in the hands of these crazies, we missed the quality of our American life."

Kennedy said the militants repeatedly told the hostages they were punishing America for its role in the Vietnam war.

"When they led us out of the embassy on Nov. 4, the guards whispered in my ear, 'Vietnam, Vietnam,'" Kennedy said.

He added that the militants papered the hostages' cells with posters of crippled Vietnamese children.

Kennedy quoted the militants as telling the hostages, "We're paying you back for Vietnam."

Kennedy said he is seriously considering quitting the State Department but not out of bitterness.

"I spent 20 happy years in the foreign service," he said. "If I leave the department, it will be because I want a different challenge ... I paid my debt to the United States. I shouldn't have to continue if I don't want to."

Asked what he plans to do, Kennedy replied, "Something interesting and fun."

Ingram Seeking Edmisten's Aid

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Insurance Commissioner John Ingram sought help today from Gov. Jim Hunt and Attorney General Ruff Edmisten in winning legislative support of his fight against what he considers unauthorized surcharges on automobile insurance policies.

Ingram, Hunt and Edmisten, who have joined in a suit challenging surcharges imposed by the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility, scheduled a meeting to map strategy for pushing legislation through the General Assembly that would restrict the surcharges.

Rep. Richard Barnes, D-Winston Salem, has introduced a bill backed by Ingram that would prohibit surcharges above a 6 percent annual ceiling on auto insurance rate increases.

The reinsurance facility, a pool formed by insurance companies to provide coverage for drivers who cannot obtain liability insurance from individual companies, has described the surcharges as a means of recovering losses. Ingram and the other state officials contend they actually constitute rate increases.

Ingram, who predicted at a news conference Monday that Barnes' bill ultimately would win legislative approval, said the surcharges are costing North Carolina motorists $1 million a month.

However, Ingram said Barnes' bill could have rough passage through the House Insurance Committee, which Ingram charged was excessively oriented toward the insurance industry.

"There are many legislators who want the surcharges stopped, but they must have a chance to vote the people's will," Ingram said. "If this bill is bottled up in committee, the fight will be more difficult to get a vote on the floor."

"People are mad about the surcharges. They want it changed right now. I say it (Barnes' bill) would pass overwhelmingly in the House if they vote the will of the people back home," Ingram said.

A check of financial statements filed with the Legislative Ethics Committee shows six of the House Insurance Committee's 17 members have some ties to the insurance industry and four of the Senate committee's 11 members have industry ties.

House committee chairman Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Greensboro, has no ties to the industry, but she voted for an industry-backed bill in 1977 that stripped Ingram of his rate-making power.

pand his influence over foreign policy in the months ahead. Yet, beside Meese's caution, stemming from his desire to protect the president, there are skeptics of Reagan's decision within the national security bureaucracy.

They say privately that whatever confusion the old system caused, it guaranteed the Pentagon and the intelligence community equal, sometimes superior access to the Oval Office. To give the State Department so much control over the national security system, they contend, could block that access, by accident or design. If they are correct, national security could suffer. Haig shows no such concern. Yet, his ability to deal with the critics and make the new system work will decide just how high will be the rise of Al Haig that began with a presidential directive drafted in the State Department.

Tax-Exempt Status Given Foundation

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Foundation Inc. has been granted tax-exempt status by the Internal Revenue Service, according to Herb Bailey, PCMH Director of Community Relations and Development.

"This means, of course," he said, "that all gifts for the hospital's benefit and growth made through the Foundation are tax-deductible." The sole purpose of the foundation, chaired by Wilton R. Duke of Farmville, is to raise, receive and allocate gifts for the hospital.

Duke said the Foundation has an ongoing endowment fund, the income from which is and will continue to be used to build better health care facilities for the hospital and eastern North Carolina. Only through long-range investments and planning can this be accomplished. He urged that anyone interested contact him or any other trustee of the Foundation, including John F. Minges, vice chairman; Betty Speir, secretary; Kenneth K. Dews, treasurer; or William H. Watson.

Gifts can be in the form of bequests or memorials and may be designated for a particular area such as the West Bed Tower, to open soon, for a particular piece of equipment, or for general use or addition to the endowment fund.

The mailing address of the foundation is Box 6028, Greenville; Bailey's phone number, 757-4869.

Haynsworth To Retire As Judge

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., whose nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court was rejected by the Senate a decade ago, plans to retire April 6 as chief judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

In a letter to President Reagan, Haynsworth, 68, of Greenville, S.C., said Monday he expects to "devote more time to the judicial process than I am now able to afford."

As a senior judge he'll be able to sit as a member of three-judge panels but won't participate when the full court hears an appeal. The 4th Circuit includes Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Haynsworth was nominated for the Supreme Court by then-President Nixon, but some senators charged that as a federal judge he had acted on cases involving companies in which he had a financial interest. Haynsworth was never accused of being dishonest, but senators questioned his sensitivity to judicial ethics.

SCOUTS TO MEET

Boy Scout Troop No. 191 of Greenville will hold its meeting Wednesday night at seven o'clock at Mount Calvary FWB Church, on the corner of Hudson and Ward Street. All members and officers are asked to be present. George Joyner is the scout master.

Step Up Monitoring Of N.C. Corn Products

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State food and drug protection officials are stepping up their monitoring of corn products for aflatoxin, a poisonous, cancer-causing product that can kill humans and other animals if consumed in sufficient quantities.

Lenoard F. Blanton, acting director of the Food and Drug Protection Division, obtained approval from the Council of State Monday for an emergency allocation of $128,000 to expand his investigative and analytical staff.

Blanton said the money would be used to fund 11 new jobs through the end of the current fiscal year, allowing his agency to expand its effort to curtail the flow of contaminated corn products, especially those intended for human consumption.

Agriculture officials and state health director Dr. Hugh Tilson urged North Carolinians last week to use exercise caution in consuming corn meal. The warnings came after state inspections of corn meal produced in this state turned up several batches that contained aflatoxin in excess of legal limits.

Blanton said tests carried out at the 45 operating gristmills in the state turned up eight with corn meal that was contaminated.

He said additional testing is under way at six of those mills: Webb's Mill in Spring Hope, Davis Milling Co. in Deep Run, Lane and Byrum's Mill in Tyner, Blue Ribbon Mill in Seven Springs, Baile's Old Mill in Oak Ridge and Lewisville Roller Mill in Forsyth County.

Products produced by the other two mills, Randolph Mills in Franklinville and X-Way Mill in Laurinburg, have been cleared for human use.

The state Department of Agriculture invoked emergency regulations last week requiring gristmills to test all dried corn for aflatoxin before milling it for human consumption.

Although aflatoxin contamination has been widespread in North Carolina and South Carolina corn crops, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration said Monday it had not encountered sufficient problems in the Southeast to affect its standards for interstate shipment of corn.

The federal agency, at the urging of officials from the Carolinas, revised its limitations last fall to allow corn containing up to 100 parts per billion aflatoxin to be shipped across state lines. The limit earlier was 20 ppb.

Aflatoxin is produced by mold that develops on corn during prolonged periods of hot, dry weather such as the two states experienced last summer.

burden of overregulation at the federal level. The FCC is not abandoning its authority entirely. When licenses change hands, or new stations come into being, the FCC will continue to require statements on public interest programming. The Fairness Doctrine remains in effect. Various technical requirements have not been lifted.

But the overall effect of the commission's order will be to promote diversity and responsibility among the radio stations. Doubtless there will be some abuses. Freedom inevitably invites abuses, but such abuses are not likely to persist. A station's failure to serve its audience, as Chairman Ferris remarked, "will result in economic penalties at least as severe as those the commission could impose."

FORMER REP. RICHARD KELLY — Richard Kelly of Fla. bids reporters farewell outside the courthouse in Washington where he was convicted Monday on charges of accepting a $25,000 bribe. Kelly was the only Republican Congressman charged in the FBI's Abscam investigation. (AP Laserphoto)

Former Congressman Is Convicted Of Bribery

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Richard Kelly, declaring "I have not been a crook," is vowing to press his challenge of the propriety of the FBI's Abscam investigation as he appeals his bribery and conspiracy convictions.

"The war goes on," the former Florida congressman told reporters after a jury deliberated 6½ hours Monday before convicting him and two co-defendants of taking part in a $250,000 bribery conspiracy.

U.S. District Judge William Bryant set sentencing for Feb. 23. Each defendant faces a maximum prison term of 25 years, including 15 years on the most serious bribery charge.

Kelly, 56, the only Republican member of Congress indicted in the Abscam probe, was convicted of taking a $25,000 bribe from an FBI agent posing as a representative of two Arab sheiks seeking legislation to immigrate to the United States. He testified he accepted the payoff only to conduct his own investigation of men he said he regarded as shady characters.

Kelly, a former state judge, said he will continue to press that assertion and expand his own probe of Abscam to include the government, which he claimed entrapped him by inducing him to take the money.

The government "has not proved that I've been involved in any kind of corruption," Kelly insisted. "The story of my life has been that I have not been a crook. I have not tried to save my own hide at the expense of the people."

Vowing to appeal, Kelly said the verdict was disappointing, but he added: "The process is a good one, and the trial part is an important part... but that's only one part."

The government is now six-for-six in Abscam trials involving members of Congress, with Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., D-N.J., scheduled to go on trial March 30.

Previously convicted were Democrats Michael Myers of Pennsylvania, John Murphy of New York, Frank Thompson of New Jersey, John Jenrette of South Carolina and Raymond Lederer of Pennsylvania. Of those, only Lederer is still in Congress, although he may face disciplinary action in the House. Myers was expelled after his conviction and Jenrette resigned as the House ethics commission considered recommending his expulsion. Murphy and Thompson both were defeated for re-election.

Kelly, who was defeated in a Florida Republican primary last year, was shown on videotape stuffing packets of $100 and $20 bills into his suit and pants pockets and telling undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso, "It's a deal."

Kelly returned $24,826 of the payoff to FBI agents who questioned him 24 days after he took it.

The government said Kelly's co-defendants, businessman Gino Cuzio of Longwood, Fla., and accountant Stanley Weisz, of Smithtown, N.Y., were middlemen in a scheme in which Kelly eventually was to receive a total of $100,000.

Kelly was convicted of bribery and Weisz and Cuzio of aiding and abetting bribery, punishable by up to 15 years in prison. All three were convicted of conspiracy, which carries a maximum term of five years. And each was convicted of a separate count of traveling across state lines to further an illegal activity, a crime punishable by up to five years' imprisonment.

Attorneys for Weisz and Cuzio said they would base their appeal on arguments of government misconduct in the Abscam investigation.

Weisz, 54, was shown on videotape taking a $50,000 payoff from the FBI agent posing as a representative of the fictitious Arab sheiks at a hotel at New York's Kennedy Airport. Weisz testified he regarded the money as a legal finder's fee for introducing Kelly to the supposed Arab sheiks' representatives.

Cuzio, 49, who introduced Kelly to the FBI undercover operatives, said he took part in the deal because he regarded the supposed sheiks' aides as "con men" whom he was trying to outwit.

Teachers To Hold Workshop

South Greenville Title I Teachers will be sponsoring a "Make and Take Workshop" tonight. The workshop is being held for the purpose of showing parents how to make games which can be used to help children with skills they may be weak in. The workshop will be led by Betty Quinn, Greenville City Title I supervisor.

Students who attend Title I classes at South Greenville are invited. Refreshments will be served.

Varied Bills Offered Monday

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A series of bills aimed at giving husbands and wives a more equal right to property — and obligations — acquired during marriage has been filed early in the 1981 General Assembly.

The latest round of bills came Monday night, as the General Assembly met only briefly to begin its second full week of the new legislative term.

In other action, a bill was filed in the House that would establish a program to compensate rape victims for the expenses, up to $500, of medical examinations required by the courts.

Among the marriage proposals was one filed for introduction Tuesday by Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Chapel Hill, which would make father and mother both liable for support of children. Backers of the measure said it could have the effect of benefiting men who win custody of children in a divorce and are in a position to seek child-support payments from their former wives.

Another bill filed in the House and similar to earlier

Senate legislation would establish a legal presumption that all property acquired in a marriage would be owned jointly by the husband and wife — regardless of whose name is in the title to the property.

"So in the time of a divorce," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Patricia Hunt, D-Chapel Hill, "it would be presumed to be jointly held."

Current state law gives the property entirely to the spouse named on the title, usually the husband, Mrs. Hunt said.

Mrs. Hunt said her bill goes farther than an earlier, Republican-backed bill in the Senate. She said the House bill would allow a judge to consider the length of marriage and the amount of work — either in the home or elsewhere — a wife did when considering how much of a share she should be entitled to.

"We're giving them some leeway to make it equitable, however that comes down," she said.

A third bill introduced in the House Monday night deals with the legal right of survivorship, allowing for equal division of rents and other income from property. Currently, Mrs. Hunt said, that income legally goes to the husband.

Most of those and similar bills that will be introduced later are backed by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment, Mrs. Hunt said. "Since our Equal Rights Amendment appears to be in trouble, we've been looking at what we can do in statutory law," she said.

In other action:

Rape Victims

Rep. Kenneth Spaulding, D-Durham, filed the measure setting up a rape victims' assistance program. "I think it is unconscionable and unfair that a rape victim has to pay for the medical examination and medical expenses as well as suffer the physical and emotional trauma of a rape," Spaulding said.

Seeks Election Of N.C. Republicans As Judges

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — No Republican has been elected to a Superior Court judgeship in North Carolina in this century, and state Rep. Howard Coble, R-Greensboro, wants to see that changed.

The GOP, even though it holds the state's two U.S. Senate seats and four of its 11 congressional seats, doesn't have a fighting chance when it comes to the judicial races, says Coble.

To alter that, Coble is sponsoring legislation that would have regular Superior Court judgeships elected by voters within their judicial district.

Currently, candidates for the Superior Court bench are nominated in primaries in their own judicial districts. But when the general election comes, all the voters across the state elect winners for seats in each of the 30 judicial districts.

Given the state's still overwhelming Democratic voter registration, and the fact most voters don't know who the candidates for judge are, Democrats always win.

"If my bill is enacted by the General Assembly, the process of electing Superior Court judges will then at least include the ingredient of fair play," says Coble.

"Judicial campaigns conducted in a defined geographical area would be less expensive and less time-consuming for the candidates," he added. "It also would enable voters to elect Superior Court judges whom they know, whose abilities are known to them and whose character and reputation are clearly revealed."

In Republican districts, figures Coble, it might allow a Republican to win, too.

Coble, who has been known to push losing causes in the past, acknowledges he is "swimming upstream" with the bill he plans to introduce soon in the heavily Democratic House.

Coble has relished his role in the past as a thorn in the side of the Democratic majority, such as his two attempts in past years to reduce legislators' salaries.

He sponsored a similar judges bill two years ago. It was passed out of committee but lost 85-23 on the House floor, gaining the support of only nine Democrats.

While acknowledging he has some partisan motives, Coble also argues that electing judges within their dis-

Seek Thwart Bid-Riggers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State estimates on the cost of highway projects may be made public in the future in an effort to thwart bid rigging by contractors, state Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw said Monday.

Bradshaw said the proposal was motivated at least partially by a concern that total security could not be assured.

"The estimate doesn't mean anything if you don't have collusion outside (among contractors)," he said. "You still have to bid against the free market."

The contract estimates are used by the state Board of Transportation in reviewing bids by contractors. Generally bids that exceed the estimate by 10 percent or more frequently are rejected.

A federal investigation of bidding on highway projects has resulted in the indictment of or guilty pleas from 15 paving companies and 23 executives on charges related to bid rigging.

tricts would give more blacks and females a chance to win election.

Of the 58 current regular Superior Court judges, 57 are white, male Democrats and one is a black, male Democrat, he said.

There have been a handful of GOP Special Superior Court judges over the years, but they were all for the specially designated judgeships appointed by the governor — not for the regular seats elected statewide.

"Ratification of my bill will not result in the election of an overwhelming number of Republican Superior Court judges," he said. "Ratification will make it possible for some Republican lawyers to be elected in some areas."

"It may also encourage more blacks and females — Republicans and Democrats alike — to seek election to this judicial office," Coble added.

Solar Energy Site Tour Was Held

A solar energy use site tour for area policymakers was held yesterday as one of the highlights of Solar Action Month.

Taking part in the bus tour were legislators and community leaders from Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe, and Halifax Counties.

Seen were the passive solar home of Dr. and Mrs. James L. Mathis, featured in Sunday's "Daily Reflector" and a solar-assisted hog parlor owned by Don Wilcox.

Prior to the tour, the group gathered in Greenville and heard "Some Basics about Solar Energy" from Leon Neal, applications engineer of the N. C. Science and Technology Research Center. "We had a very educational and exciting tour," Robbie Tugwell, local coordinator for Solar Action Month, said. "It was great to see first-hand operating solar systems."

The event was sponsored by the Solar Action Program, the Energy Conservation Office of Greenville Utilities, and the Greenville Energy Program. Greenville Mayor Don McGlohon welcomed the group.

About 400 persons took part in a tour of three passively solar-heated and one actively solar-heated house held Sunday for the general public, Tugwell said.

Carters On A Vacation

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, left for a holiday in the Virgin Islands today after being delayed at the airport for 55 minutes by heavy fog.

The Carters' itinerary included a charter flight from nearby Americus to Atlanta, then a flight by commercial carrier to St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, by way of Miami. Carter aides said the former first family would be accompanied by their daughter, Amy, and son, Chip. The trip is to last one to two weeks.

"It's the first time in 15 or 20 years he will be able to go, and stay and come back whenever he wants to," said Jody Powell, Carter's friend and former press secretary.

The Carters will spend the vacation on St. John's island at a rented U.S. Parks Service cottage.

A week ago today, Carter left office as the 52 Americans held in Iran were freed. Philip Wise, Carter's appointments secretary, said the trip would give the Carters a "chance to be by themselves and sort of put things into perspective."

John Faircloth said Monday. Faircloth said the arrests involved 65 burglaries, several cases of drug sales and one auto theft. Most of them were based on information collected by two State Bureau of Investigation agents who operated a business called the P&L Bait Shop, he said.

Faircloth said stolen goods valued at about $66,000 were recovered.

A program and a slide presentation on the Virginia Pork Festival was given by Swanson Jennings and Bobby Flippen, Virginia agricultural extension agents. The Virginia Pork Festival, held in Emporia, Va., drew 12,000 people last year.

Hold Human Rights Boss

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Unidentified gunmen kidnapped Victor Medrano, director of El Salvador's Human Rights Commission, a spokesman for the commission announced.

The spokesman said Medrano was abducted Monday, but no details were available. Police could not be reached for confirmation.

The commission incurred the enmity of the rightist side in the leftist-rightist war raging in this tiny Central American country by blaming it for 80 percent of the 13,000 political killings last year. A member of the commission, Magdalena Enriquez, was kidnapped, tortured and killed in November, and the president, Marinela Garcia, is living outside the country.

At least 1,000 more people have been slain in El Salvador this year, most of them in a leftist guerrilla offensive against the moderate military-civilian junta. The national guard, El Salvador's army, is reported attacking guerrillas holding out in mountainous areas, but skirmishes continue in slum areas of San Salvador.

Air force jets destroyed a twin-engine plane carrying arms for the guerrillas at a dirt landing strip about 70 miles east of San Salvador on Sunday and a second small plane Monday after it landed in the same area, officials said.

The junta said the pilot of the first plane was captured and was an employee of the Nicaraguan airline, Lanica. It said this was further evidence of outside aid to the guerrillas.

No information on the second plane was reported.

The junta and the U.S. government accuse Nicaragua's left-wing government of complicity in the smuggling of Soviet and Cuban arms to the leftist guerrillas. The revolutionary regime in Nicaragua is openly sympathetic but claims it is providing no support to them.

songwriter Tim Hardin died from an overdose of heroin.

Hardin, 39, was found dead in his apartment on Dec. 29. Bob Dambacher, chief of investigations for the coroner's office, said Monday that Hardin's death was ruled accidental.

Hardin was best known for his romantic ballad "If I Were a Carpenter" and was prominent in the folk-singing circuit in the 1960s.

Career Day Is Held At Aycock

Nine Greenville agencies and businesses hosted members of Aycock Junior High's ninth grade Career Guidance class for an active Career Day recently.

Each student worked all day on a job chosen according to his interests and abilities, and was directed by an employer who volunteered to involve the student in their work as much as possible to simulate a day of work.

Participating students and their employers were: James Brown, Greenville Police Department; Michael Harris, Pair Electronics; Patricia Huggins, Tammy's Day Nursery and Kindergarten; James Taft, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company; Lisa Salisbury, ECU Personnel Office; Rachel Wells, Abram's Barbecue; Sonya Williams, Greenville Parks and Recreation department; Victor Wilson, Home Builders Supply Company; and Stefanie Simpson, Dr. Joseph Bateman, DVM.

The Career Guidance program at Aycock is under the direction of Mrs. Susan Becker.

Would Like Carter Library

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The mayor of this town of 683 says he hopes Jimmy Carter will establish his presidential library here, but he concedes it "probably will go to Atlanta."

Mayor Linton "Boze" Godwin said it's too early to expect a decision on where the Carter archives will be stored, because Carter, a Plains resident, "has had too much on him to bother with these kinds of things."

Some residents, such as Maxine Reese, say Plains should forget trying to get a Carter library and concentrate on getting a museum for the tourists.

"I don't think we need a huge museum," she said, "but we need something. Jimmy Carter went in (to office) as a mystery, he came out as a mystery, and people are coming here looking for Jimmy Carter."

South Africa's Flood Disaster

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Swirling floodwaters that flashed through the semi-desert Karroo region of South Africa may have claimed more than 200 lives, according to press reports from the area. So far there has been no official tally.

"Our whole town has disappeared," said Mayor J. Ellis of the grain and lamb marketing center of Laingsburg, the area hit hardest by torrential rains Sunday and Monday.

He told a television reporter with the South African Broadcasting Commission that the water rose six feet in less than 10 minutes.

"There was nothing to be done," he said. "You just couldn't do anything."

Residents in the town of 4,000, about 160 miles northeast of Cape Town, reported at least 140 people missing and 15 bodies recovered.

Among the missing were 19 to 21 residents at an old-age home who were swept away and believed drowned. Many residents took refuge on roof tops when a river through town overran its banks and unleashed a massive wall of water.

A reporter who flew over the town in a helicopter said, "The devastation is absolutely incredible" and described a torrent of water from the normally placid and shallow Buffels River swirling through Laingsburg.

The town's cemetery was washed out and goalposts at the local rugby field were nearly buried in mud, the reporter said.

Nearby towns reported rainfall ranged from about 4.7 inches to 9 1/2 inches during a 36-hour period Sunday and Monday.

Other towns hit included Touws River, Ladismith and Montagu, declared disaster areas by the government.

Prime Minister P.W. Botha told Parliament the situation was "critical" and rescue work was hampered by communication outages and severed rail and road links.

Authorities said damage to homes and public buildings, utilities, transportation facilities, vineyards and wheat, cattle and sheep ranches would be in the millions of dollars.

The Karroo is a mostly flat, arid plateau in the southwestern end of Cape Province and the current summer rains are said by some to have caused "the biggest natural disaster in South African history."

Ranked Rats Hosting Arch-Rival Wolfpack

"It really hasn't sunk in it," Coach Cathy Andruzzi of the East Carolina Lady Pirates said Monday afternoon.

What had not sunk in was the fact that the Lady Pirates had, for the first time in the school's history, been nationally ranked. The standings, announced Monday morning, listed the Pirates as the 19th best team in the country.

The ranking followed East Carolina's 84-78 road victory over the University of Virginia, then ranked 15th. The Cavaliers fell to 17th on this week's listing.

Ahead for the Pirates are two more ranked teams, and East Carolina gets to play both of them on the Minges hardwood.

First comes 13th ranked N.C. State, 12-4, on Wednesday, followed by Number Eight, Southern California, 13-1, on Friday. Both games start at 7:30 p.m.

"This (the ranking) is really prestigious for the school, and our program," Andruzzi said. "It's where we want our program to go."

But, the coach said, the Lady Pirates are not going to let the ranking go to their heads. Not with State and Southern California coming up. In fact, the Pirates are looking no further than arch-rival N.C. State, a team that has not lost in state competition for around five years, according to Andruzzi.

State comes into the game after edging past North Carolina at Raleigh, then bowing to Maryland at College Park in two ACC games.

Trudi Lacey leads the Lady Wolfpack with an 18.0 average, while Angie Armstrong is next with a 13.0 mark. Connie Rogers rounds out those in double figures at 12.2. Lacey is the leading rebounder with an 11.0 average.

East Carolina is led by Kathy Riley with an 18.8 average, while Sam Jones is hitting 14.7. Mary Denker has climbed to 12.3, while Marcia Girven is hitting 10.3. Girven is also the leading rebounder with a 9.1 average.

"We really want N.C. State bad," Andruzzi said. "If we beat them, the national ranking will sink in more."

"We have the opportunity to improve our record, and if we improve it, then our ranking should improve too. But our record is the most important thing. Beating State is a big thing for us."

While Andruzzi is not worried about the mental aspect of her players' game, she is worried about the physical. Monday afternoon, point guard Laurie Sikes was in the infirmary, and Fran Hooks and Darlene Hedges were both trying to shake off the flu bug. Denker was in the process of recovering from a bout with the bug.

"Laurie told me that getting ranked should be an inspiration for us," Andruzzi said. "She said we haven't peaked yet, and I think that's a good way for us to approach these two games."

State, after having lost to Maryland, is expected to come roaring in by Andruzzi. "They've seen us play several times. They'll want to beat us. They haven't been challenged in the state, and they feel that maybe we can challenge them. They'll not take us lightly."

Southern California, meanwhile, presents awesome problems, bringing in one of the tallest lineups the Pirates face. "They run the ball a lot, they have all around depth, and are a definite final four contender. Playing them and keeping the score down will be a problem. They are averaging about 91 points a game," Andruzzi said.

The coach then basked a little more in the Top Twenty limelight. "It means a lot to our program. It shows what we can do. And we're not really where we want to be yet. We're in a step-by-step program, and the rankings really came sooner than I had expected."

And now, with the two games this week, Andruzzi's "Rats," as they term themselves, have a chance to make a bigger impression.

Underwood Leads Rally, 65-59 Pirates Nip Baptist In Overtime

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Dave Odom's Pirates have a thing about overtime games. If you manage to get in one with them, you'd better beware. Those five minute games are the ones the Pirates do best.

Last night proved another example of it. Baptist College, which probably had no business being in the game anytime during regulation play, forced an overtime when McKiether Bodison hit an 18-foot jumper with three seconds left in regulation time. That tied it at 53-53.

But in the overtime, the third year and the sixth in the Odom tenure, the Pirates finally came to life thanks to the leadership of David Underwood, and powered to a 65-59 victory.

The win evened the Pirate record at 9-9 on the year, while Baptist tumbled to 2-14.

It was a game in which neither team was able to pull away from the other. Baptist, after leading by as much as six points in the early minutes of the game, saw the Pirates come back to take the lead, but never by more than four. East Carolina held only a 29-28 lead at the half.

In the second half, the Buccaneers of Charleston came back to forge ahead again, this time by as much as seven, a margin they held at 47-40, when two three point plays helped the Pirates to come quickly back to tie it and then take the lead.

The visitors were helped along by fine shooting, hitting 55.1 per cent of their shots from the floor, many of them up close as they moved past the Pirates along the baseline. In contrast, East Carolina hit just 44.9 per cent of their shots.

One key factor in the victory was the turnaround the Pirates made on the backboards in the second half. Down 15-10 in rebounds at halftime, the Pirates controlled the boards, 22-12, led by six each by Michael Gibson and Underwood.

"I certainly have to give Baptist a lot of credit," Odom said afterwards. "They don't have the talent that we have, but they came closer to playing to their maximum than we did. And they did it under the duress of not having their head coach with them."

The Baptist coach, Phil Carter, in his first year at the school, was back in Charleston. His wife was in the hospital having a child.

Odom said he did not feel that the Pirates underestimated the Buccaneers. "We had 'em scouted, and we did as much work on them as anybody. But sometimes when you allow a team not as good as you to stick with you, you have trouble shaking them."

"But behind every cloud, there's a bright spot, and there was one tonight. It was the first time we've been that far behind to a team we should beat and come back. That's a tribute to our young players."

Odom praised Underwood, who scored 22, including six of the 12 points in the overtime. "He showed a great deal of competitiveness. He showed a side that I've always known was there. He's a clutch player."

"He's like a duck. A duck does better in wet weather, and David plays best against certain teams. He's at his best against shorter teams with some quickness."

Odom noted that the Pirates didn't shoot well for the third straight game, and that the defensive pressure wasn't what it should have been. "Are some of our guys out of shape?" he questioned. "At times it seemed like it, but I don't know how they can be out of shape."

Odom got philosophical: "There is a period in late January and early February, when teams have a slippage. In some teams, you don't notice it, while you do in others. Right now, we seem to be in this period."

The contest was a nip-and-tuck affair all the way. After East Carolina scored the opening basket, the game was tied on 13 occasions, and saw the lead change hands an equal number of times. It bounced back and forth throughout the first half, with the Pirates grabbing their greatest lead at 27-23 on a break-away dunk by Charles Watkins, who failed to reach double figures for the first time since his first game as a Pirate.

In the second half, Baptist pulled out to a seven-point lead, helped along by a three-point play by Howard Richardson with 15:32 left, making it 41-34. The two teams made three exchanges of baskets until it reached 47-40 with 9:35 left in the contest.

At that point, Mark McLaurin scored on a drive and was fouled, completing the three-point play with 8:08 left. Just after the ball was inbounded by Baptist, the Pirates stole the ball and Barry Wright scored, also getting fouled. The two three-pointers quickly closed it to 47-46, and Underwood scored a minute later off a rebound to put East Carolina back up, 48-47.

Baptist never led again. They tied it on a free throw by Eddie Talley, but he missed his second shot, and the Pirates went back up by as much as four, 52-48. A Baptist basket and free throw cut it to one, and Wright hit the first of a one-and-one to give the Pirates a two-point lead again with 22 seconds left.

Bodison then scored with three seconds left to force the overtime.

In that, East Carolina scored first, but Baptist twice tied it before Underwood hit a baseline jumper to put the Pirates ahead for good, 59-57. Watkins hit from the lane, and Tom Szymanski and McLaurin both made two free throws before Baptist managed one final basket.

"I think the turning point came when we changed from man-to-man to a half-court trap when they tried to hold the ball. We didn't get the ball, but a foul helped turn it over when they missed at the line," Odom said.

In addition to Underwood's 22 points, Wright added 13. Eddie Talley led Baptist with 15, while Bodison had 12 and Richardson had 11.

East Carolina travels to Norfolk, Va., on Wednesday to face Old Dominion, the only team to beat DePaul this year.

Vikings Win, Set New Record

JACKSONVILLE — D.H. Conley's wrestlers rolled to a 47-12 victory over White Oak last night, setting a new school record for dual meet victories.

The win brought the Viking record to 15-0 on the year, and the 15 wins broke the old mark of 14 wins in a season by Conley.

Conley won 10 of the 13 weight classes. One of the three losses came at 197, where Coach Milt Sherman wrestled Michael Long up a weight class against White Oak's R. Goodson, third place finisher in the state last year, for the competition.

Conley closes out its regular season slate on Thursday, playing host to West Carteret.

The Patriots have lost only two dual matches, and have won the championship of the Coastal Conference, which Conley, the Eastern Carolina Conference champ, will join next year. That match gets underway at 7:30 p.m.

North Pitt Seeking To Ease The Miseries

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Greene Central has caused its share of misery this season for fellow Eastern Carolina Conference teams but North Pitt coach Cobble Deans hopes his Panthers can ease the pain come Tuesday night.

Said Deans, whose Panthers play host to the league-leading Rams tonight, "I hope we're going to help them out of our misery."

The Panthers, however, haven't exactly been innocent of causing some misery of their own lately. North Pitt, 9-8 overall and 8-3 in the ECC, rides a six-game winning streak into tonight's game, the first of two crucial contests this week. Friday night the Panthers must travel to D.H. Conley, currently second in the ECC.

"This is a big week for us," Deans said. "If we come out of this week with one win out of two I will be fairly pleased."

"Greene Central's in the drivers seat right now, but no one's out of it. We've got a chance. This an important game, but I was just as concerned about Thursday's and Friday's games."

Playing without swingman Greg Hines, who is averaging around 10 points a game and is the teams #3 rebounder, the Panthers edged past Farmville Central, 47-43, Thursday and then defeated Southwest Edgecombe, 57-52.

"I was concerned that we would be without Hines," said Deans of Hines, who is expected back tonight after having the flu. "I'm pleased with the way came out and now that they're over this game (against Greene Central) has to be the biggest for now."

The Rams, 13-3 overall and 9-1 in the ECC, beat the Panthers, 55-45, earlier in the season but Deans feels his club is a different one now.

"We've improved a lot since then," Deans said. "We didn't play our best game but neither did we play our worst against them. "Our rebounding is coming around, even though we basically have only three doing the rebounding: (Vince) Parker, (Dennis) Bradley and Hines." Parker is the Panthers' leading rebounder pulling down just over eight a game.

Deans also said that his bench has come to life and has given the Panthers much needed support, particularly when Hines was out last week.

"We're getting more contribution from the bench," he said. "Toby Crandol is helping us on our front line, Ronnie House is exercising leadership that we've been lacking and Richard Heller is helping us in spots, too, as is Jerry Simpson. And Paul Tucker has really done the job offensively for us coming off the bench."

Because of that, and because of his club's recent success, Deans tells the Panthers are ready for the Rams.

"I kind of think so," he said.

Plymouth Tops Jags

FARMVILLE — Plymouth, bouyed by four forfeits and two early wins, defeated Farmville Central, 43-25, Monday night in a nonconference wrestling match.

The Jaguars, now 6-4, forfeited the first three weight classes and dropped further behind after Plymouth recorded two decisions in the next three matches.

Farmville plays host to Southern Nash Thursday.

- Summary:
- 100 — Terrance Moore (P) won by forfeit.
 - 107 — Lonnie Coom (P) won by forfeit.
 - 114 — Robert Bonds (P) won by forfeit.
 - 121 — Ronda Jackson (P) d. Joel Shackleford, 19:0.
 - 128 — Jerry Foreman (FC) d. Michael Carmac, 13:3.
 - 134 — Andre Phelps (P) d. Jay Tyson, 30:12.
 - 140 — Greg Smith (FC) d. Dwayne Downing, 4:2.
 - 147 — Tony Hyman (FC) won by forfeit.
 - 157 — Roger Joyner (FC) won by forfeit.
 - 169 — Chris Sutton (FC) won by forfeit.
 - 187 — Thernus Biggs (P) d. Charles Sutton, 17:8.
 - 197 — Darryl Sutton (P) won by forfeit.
 - HWT — Ronnie Locust (FC) p. Troy Tew, 4:17.

"The kids really want it. Greene Central is not that much better than any other team. They're still a good team, though, and anything less than our best effort and we won't be able to beat them"

In other games on Tuesday night, D.H. Conley (12-4, 8-2) travels to Ayden-Grifton (8-7, 6-3), Jamesville plays host to Pantego, Ahoskie travels to Roanoke (14-2, 7-1) in a key Northeastern Conference game, and Williamston travels to Washington.

Thursday night Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central.

Friday night Ayden-Grifton journeys to North Lenoir (10-7, 6-5), Southwest Edgecombe (2-14, 1-9) goes to Farmville Central (1-14, 1-10), Roanoke is at Tarboro, Jamesville is at Aurora, Greenville Christian at Mt. Calvary, Williamston at Ahoskie and Columbia at Bear Grass (7-14, 5-10).

In wrestling Thursday, Southern Nash travels to Farmville Central (6-3) while West Carteret travels to D.H. Conley in a key nonconference match. The Vikings are ranked 5th in the state and join the West Carteret in the Coastal Conference next season.

Stormin' Norman Quiets Florida Crowd

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Things are usually uproarious when Florida and Florida State tangle in anything ... and Monday night was no exception.

With Mickey Dillard scoring 22 points and five teammates joining him in double figures, Florida State avenged an earlier defeat and beat Florida 82-71...but not without some extra-curricular activities on the part of the Florida fans.

With just over seven minutes remaining, Florida freshman Mike Moses was charged with a fifth personal foul. Coach

Norm Sloan protested and was hit with a technical. That set off the crowd of 8,321, largest ever to see a Florida home game. They hurled ice, trash and frisbees onto the court.

Sloan grabbed the microphone. "Hey," he shouted, "please don't do that."

Let me handle this."

The crowd quieted down but the Gators were unable to handle the Seminoles. Bobby Parks added 14 points for Florida State, Kris Anderson had 13, Rodney Arnold and Elvis Rolle 11 each and James Bozeman 10.

Florida lost three starters on fouls and was whistled for 30 fouls to 23 for the visitors.

"We have to play however the officials call the game and it was very physical," said FSU Coach Joe Williams. "A lot of people got bumped inside." Despite a heavy schedule, all members of The Associated Press Top Twenty were idle. However, Southern California hopes to crack the rankings shortly now that Dwight "Lightning" Anderson is eligible. The fleet 6-foot-3 transfer from Kentucky, where he was the second leading scorer as a freshman, finally got into action at the start of the second half when the year he had to sit out as a transfer was up. He made only four of 11 shots but scored nine points and grabbed seven rebounds as the Trojans warmed up for Saturday night's visit to No. 1-ranked Oregon State with a 72-66 triumph over California. Jacques Hill paced the Trojans with 16 points, including six free throws in the final 2:19.

In an upset of sorts, St. Bonaventure knocked off Syracuse 74-71, erasing a six-point deficit in the last three minutes as Earl Belcher scored nine of his 23 points in the final 1:52.

Deep in the heart of Texas, LaSalle Thompson scored a career-high 32 points, including two crucial free throws in overtime, as the Texas Longhorns shaded Texas A&M 67-63 in a Southwest Conference game that had 14 ties and 20 lead changes.

"I thought we played better than they did and deserved to win it," said Coach Abe Lemons.

Said A&M's Shelby Metcalf: "I felt good about the ballgame. It's probably the most disappointing loss that we've had." Huh?

Elsewhere, Houston moved into undisputed possession of first place in the SWC by edging Baylor 53-51 as David Bunce stole the ball from Pat Nalley and fed Michael Young for an uncontested layup with two seconds left.

In other SWC games, Arkansas downed Rice 57-52 behind Scott Hastings' 21 points and David Gadis scored 18 to help Southern Methodist upset Texas Tech 58-48. Marquette defeated Xavier of Ohio for the 23rd time in a row, this one by a 78-59 count as Michael Wilson scored 19 points and Oliver Lee added 18.

Zam Frederick's 29 points led South Carolina over Richmond 93-77, John Bagle's career-high 30 points helped Boston College trounce Villanova 73-60 and Ronnie McAdoo had 22 as Old Dominion, conqueror of DePaul, flattened Stetson 75-65.

Tulsa held Drake's Lewis Lloyd to a career-low 16 points and beat the Bulldogs 86-77 in a Missouri Valley Conference game. Wichita State buried Indiana State 93-59 in another MVC contest. In the Sun Belt Conference, North Carolina-Charlotte ended a seven-game losing streak and stretched Georgia State's string of set-backs to 13 with a 97-75 run-away.

Dale Solomon scored 24 points in leading Virginia Tech to a 75-69 Metro Conference victory over St. Louis. In the Southern Conference, Furman blew most of a 15-point lead in the final 7:13 and nipped The Citadel 67-65, Marshall downed VMI 63-53 and Appalachian State converted 10 of 11 free throws in the final three minutes to beat East Tennessee State 65-60.

In Southland Conference openers, it was Southwestern Louisiana over McNeese State 97-81, Texas-Arlington over Arkansas State 66-64 on Melvin Polk's 12-footer as time ran out — Arkansas State said a TV replay showed it actually came after the buzzer — and Lamar over Louisiana Tech 66-64 to extend the Cardinals' home-court winning streak to 40 games.

Oregon State, Virginia Tied At Top Of Associated Press Cage

By The Associated Press
Oregon State and Virginia, the nation's only major unbeaten college basketball teams, shared the No. 1 position in The Associated Press poll Tuesday after finishing in a tie for the top slot.

Oregon State, which held No. 1 alone last week, and Virginia, 16-0, each received 29 first-place votes and 1,147 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Three members of the poll did not submit ballots this week, while one other tabbed Louisiana State for the No. 1 position.

The Beavers, who held a 40-19 first-place vote advantage over Virginia last week, raised their record to 15-0 with two victories last week, including a 97-91 overtime thriller against Washington.

The Cavaliers, ranked second a week ago, were simply awesome last week. They pounded then No. 19 Clemson 74-59, thrashed George Washington 86-56 and whipped highly regarded Ohio State 89-73 in a nationally televised game as sophomore center Ralph Sampson poured in 40 points.

DePaul edged Louisiana State for the No. 3 position, collecting 1,039 points — 14

Oakland Set To Honor Its Returning Champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The official parade to honor the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders was set for today. For hundreds of fans, it was the second or even third time they had a chance to celebrate since the Raiders mauled the Philadelphia Eagles 27-10 Sunday in New Orleans.

More than 3,000 exuberant rooters filled the streets of downtown Oakland Sunday night, and on Monday, about 1,000 were on hand to greet the players as they arrived at Oakland airport — even though it had been requested that fans stay away.

Raiders players, coaches and staff were to ride in today's parade, which was to begin at Lakeside Park at 11:30 a.m. PST. The route would take the caravan down Broadway to City Hall.

At 1 p.m., Mayor Lionel Wilson was to introduce the players and present them with awards commemorating Oakland's victory.

The Raiders arrived in Oakland Monday night three hours late following a series of mistakes in their departure plan.

The Raiders' group, including players, their families, club officials and media representatives, flew from New Orleans on two chartered airplanes.

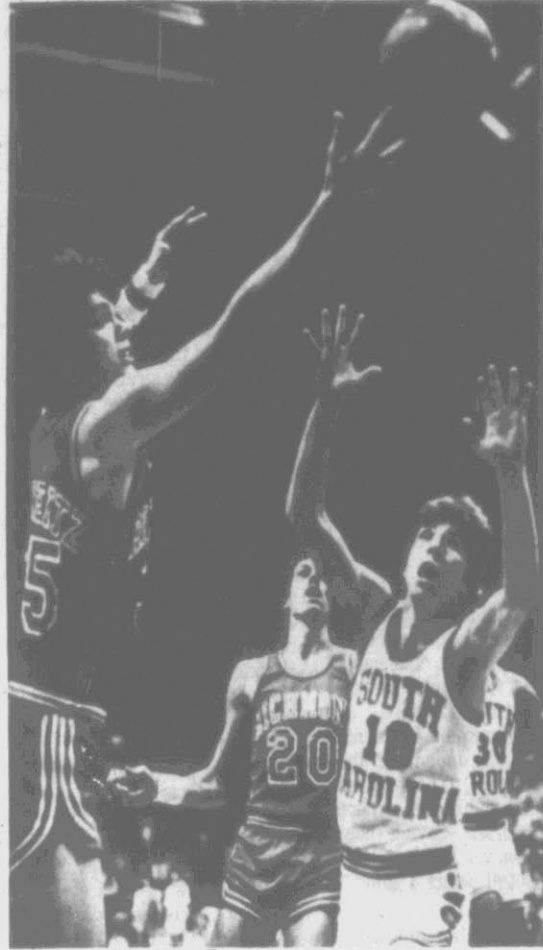

The buses which took the travelers from their hotel to the airport in New Orleans first pulled up to a pair of aircraft chartered for the Philadelphia Eagles, the losers in Super Bowl XV.

Once the right planes were found, there was a three-hour delay in takeoff because of problems in fueling the planes and loading luggage and equipment. A few players boarded the bus with bloody marys in their hands, but no alcohol was allowed on the chartered flights.

Most of the champion players had less than five hours sleep overnight. A team party at a New Orleans hotel lasted until 3:30 a.m., when the band stopped playing. And the departure schedule started at 10 a.m. when luggage was loaded onto trucks.

There were some tears at the airport along with the frustration. The Raiderettes, the team's cheerleading group, boarded the first plane to load but then were asked to leave to make room for players and their relatives. Many of the young ladies left the plane with long faces and a few broke into tears.

Fans Welcome Eagles Home

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They failed to see their big dream come true, but Philadelphia Eagles' fans and players continued to show the winning spirit that coach Dick Vermeil has talked about all season.

Some 200 fans, chanting "We're still number one," welcomed the National Football League team Monday as it returned from New Orleans, where the Eagles were crushed 27-10 in Super Bowl XV by the Oakland Raiders.

"I wish I could give them all a big kiss," Jan Cox said as the team arrived at Philadelphia International Airport. "Fans don't support teams enough when they lose."

"I cried so much after the game that I flooded our basement," joked Cissy Jacono, 16, of Wilmington, Del. "But I'm happy they're back. They're still champs."

Vermeil, whose theme has been that dauntless character is a necessary ingredient of a truly great athletic team, took over in 1976 after coaching UCLA to the Rose Bowl. His record with the Eagles has improved every year — 4-10, 5-9, 9-7, 11-5, 12-4 — and he took them to the playoffs the past three seasons.

Owner Leonard Tose, who has had losing seasons nine of the 12 years since he purchased the team, said as he entered his waiting limousine: "Of course I feel let down and I'm sad."

"But I feel a mixture of failure and accomplishment. After all, we still are the NFC (National Football Conference) champions. And we hope to be back in the Bowl next year."

For his part, Vermeil said he was feeling "a little low."

"We just blew a hell of an opportunity, we didn't get (the job done)," Vermeil said. Before they left New Orleans, quarterback Ron Jaworski gave credit to his Oakland counterpart, Jim Plunkett, who was voted the game's Most Valuable Player. Jaworski also recognized the reality of the game.

"They made the big plays when they needed them," he said. "I am not one to reflect on my individual performance. We needed a team effort and didn't get it."

Jaworski sent a message to the team's legion of fans: "I am sorry we did not take advantage of the opportunities that we had. But we will be back."

Sunday's appearance was the Eagles' first in the Super Bowl. Only two teams — other than Green Bay in Super Bowl I — ever won on their first tries. They were the New York Jets and Pittsburgh Steelers.

"We will be back. We have character players," Tose said. Middle guard Charley Johnson said: "We're going to meet the Raiders down the road in another championship game and maybe it will come out different."

Fifty-Eight Ask Arbitration

NEW YORK (AP) — World Series star Willie Aikens of the Kansas City Royals and relief ace Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals signed contracts while 58 players, including Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk, beat Monday's deadline by filing for salary arbitration.

Among those who filed for arbitration Monday were outfielders Steve Kemp of the Detroit Tigers and Gorman Thomas of the Milwaukee Brewers, catcher Rick Cerone of the New York Yankees, third baseman Carney Lansford of the Red Sox, Minnesota Twins shortstop Roy Smalley and pitchers Joe Sambuto of the Houston Astros and John Candelaria of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

According to the owners' Player Relations Committee, the last-day group of 58 players to seek arbitration brought the 1981 total to 98, well above last year's record of 65.

However, four others besides Aikens signed later in the day — outfielders Rick Miller of Boston, Dick Davis of Milwaukee and Billy Sample of Texas and Minnesota first baseman Danny Gooden.

Fisk put his name on the list as a protection in case he loses another arbitration case which could make him a free agent. The Players' Association contends the Red Sox failed to send Fisk a 1981 contract by the Dec. 20 deadline.

Besides Aikens, who hit 20 homers and drove in 98 runs last year and then hit four homers in the World Series, the Royals also signed shortstops U.L. Washington and Rance Mulliniks and pitchers Mike Jones and Dave Wehrmeister.

Sutter, who went to arbitration as a member of the Chicago Cubs a year ago and was awarded a $700,000 salary, signed a four-year deal with the Cardinals, who acquired him last month. Miller, who is expected to be the Red Sox' center fielder following last week's trade of Fred Lynn to California, signed for three years.

The Philadelphia Phillies signed 10 players to one-year contracts, including pitchers Randy Lerch, Nino Espinosa and Warren Brusstar and outfielder Lonnie Smith, while the Yankees came to terms with outfielder Bobby Brown and catcher Dennis Werth.

The California Angels announced that former Milwaukee pitcher Bill Travers, who declared for free agency when the 1980 season, had agreed to terms on a four-year contract.

Pantego's Class 2A-1A Boys team keeps rolling along with 40 straight victories and the lead in Associated Press' North Carolina high school basketball poll.

Pantego boasts an 18-0 record and grabbed nine of 12 first-place votes to edge out Union Pines by eight votes for the top spot. Monroe climbed a notch from third to fourth in the Boys 2A-1A class.

Meanwhile, all of the other leaders have kept their place from last week. Chapel Hill's boys still hold a firm grip in the Boys 4A class with a 15-0 record. Hickory is second and Wilmington Laney is third.

North Davidson's boys have a steady lead over R-S Central and Durham Jordan in the 3A class rankings.

Goldsboro leads the Girls 4A class with a 13-0 record and nine of 12 first-place votes. Kannapolis is second, while Chapel Hill is third.

Graham still tops the Girls 3A class, sporting a 15-0 mark. Southwest Edgecombe is second and Statesville third. East Rowan climbed from seventh to fourth.

Wake Forest-Rolesville's girls are heading the 2A-1A class with a 16-0 record. Chocowinity still is in second place, while Northampton is third. West Stanly dropped a notch from fourth to fifth, with Avery County claiming fourth place.

Here is how a statewide panel of sportswriters rates North Carolina high school basketball teams this week for The Associated Press. Points are determined on a basis of 10 for a first-place vote, 9 for second, then 8, 7, etc. First-place votes are in parentheses:

This is to inform the public that under 545.14(e) of the Rules and Regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System, the Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Eastern North Carolina, 543 South Evans Street, Greenville, North Carolina, has filed an application with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board for permission to establish a branch office to be located at, or in the immediate vicinity of, US64 and US17, Williamston, North Carolina.

Anyone may write in favor or protest of the application. Your comments may discuss, but are not limited to, the applicant's record of performance in helping to meet the credit needs of its local communities. Four copies must be sent to "Supervisory Agent, Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta, 260 Peachtree Street N.W., Atlanta, Georgia 30343" by February 13, 1981. An additional 20 days to submit comments may be obtained by writing to the Supervisory Agent by February 13, 1981.

Anyone sending a substantial protest may request a hearing on the application as set forth in 543.2(f). For a protest to be considered substantial, it must be written, received on time and contain at least the following: (1) a summary of the reasons for the protest; (2) the specific matters objected to in the application or in the applicant's community service record; (3) facts, including any relevant economic or financial information, which support the protest; and (4) any adverse effects on your organization or community which may result from approval of the application.

You may look at the application and all comments filed at the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta, unless any such materials are exempt by law from public disclosure. If you have any questions concerning these procedures, contact the Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta.

Hosting All-Star Game Means A Lot To City Of Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — The National Basketball Association All-Star game Sunday is like that television commercial that boasts two great tastes in one candy bar. For the host city, it means both money and prestige.

"You can't be specific, but an event like this means anywhere from $1 million to $1.5 million in new money to the economy," said Richard DeChant, senior vice president of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association. "Some of that money may come from local people, but it will be part of a new influx to the economy." Bob Ulas of the Greater Cleveland Convention and Visitors Bureau, said, "More important than the money to me is the image thing. This will show 2,000 people who never would have come to Cleveland that this is a big league city on the comeback."

By Friday afternoon, many of the people directly involved with the weekend festivities will be in Cleveland. Most will stay downtown, about 25 miles from the Coliseum in Richfield, where the game will be played. "Most of these people want to be together, and that's why we've put them downtown," said Ken Mulcrone who handled the NBA account for the visitors' bureau. "The hotel properties are larger, and the ride out to the Coliseum is simple."

The main event before the game will be the All-Star Banquet Saturday night. The $100-a-plate affair is a tribute to Bob Hope and past and present NBA All-Stars. Between 1,200 and 1,500 people are to attend, and proceeds go to the USO, DeChant said. There will be business meetings, talk about a possible NBA expansion to Vancouver, British Columbia, and various parties sponsored by athletic-based industries peddling shoes to beer.

"This thing has taken about 10,000 man hours to put together," DeChant said. "But it's just like the debate (in November between presidential candidates Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan). It gives Cleveland a chance to be seen."

Charger Placekicker Is Chosen 1980's Most Courageous Athlete

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Placekicker Rolf Benirschke, who overcame a disabling intestinal disorder known as Crohn's Disease to resume his career with the San Diego Chargers, has been named Most Courageous Athlete of 1980.

"It's something I had no control over," said Benirschke Monday night in accepting the award from the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association. "My comeback is nothing heroic," he added. "Look what I had going for me — my family, the community, the Chargers. But two million people who have it, have to make it alone. To me, that's courageous."

The 25-year-old Benirschke underwent two operations for removal of part of his colon, his weight dropped from 180 to 125 pounds, and afterward he had to completely rebuild atrophied muscles.

Although he exhibits no symptoms of the disease now, Benirschke has a constant reminder — the ileostomy bag that collects his body wastes.

"You learn to live with it," said Benirschke, who kicked 24 of 36 field goals and 46 extra points for a team-record 118 points during the regular season.

Crohn's Disease is a mysterious ailment in which the lower portion of the intestines becomes scarred, usually from inflammation. The disease can be controlled but not cured.

Benirschke discovered he had the disease in 1978, his second year in the National Football League. "I thought I had food poisoning," he said of his first symptoms.

He kicked 18 of 22 field goals, the second best percentage in the league, but couldn't kick off and his weight began dropping.

In the first game of 1979, Benirschke tied the club record with four straight field goals, extending his string to 13 consecutive field goals without a miss.

But the next week against Oakland, Raider cornerback Lester Hayes flattened Benirschke on an extra-point attempt.

Suffering broken ribs, he spent two weeks in the hospital, checking out to play in the Chargers' next two games. It was the fourth game, against the New England Patriots in Boston, that Benirschke knew he couldn't go on.

"I can laugh about it now, but I was crying on the sidelines," said Benirschke. "Now I realize Hayes may have saved my life. When I went to the hospital...they found I had a perforated colon. But for the broken ribs, I probably would have gone on playing without seeing a doctor."

The Chemistry Is There, So Suns Don't Question Their Success

By ALEX SACHARE AP Sports Writer

Ask Dennis Johnson about the Phoenix Suns' success and he just shrugs his shoulders.

"I don't know what it is but the chemistry is there, so I'm not going to worry about it," said Johnson, who scored 20 points as the Suns beat the New York Knicks 99-94 Monday night. "We're a good road team. We may lose one or two, but that's the maximum for us."

Actually, the Suns had lost their last four road games before beating New York to raise their road record to 18-12 and their overall mark to 41-14, best in the National Basketball Association's Western Conference.

By winning, Phoenix stayed 5½ games ahead of Los Angeles in the Pacific Division race. The Lakers beat the Portland Trail Blazers 124-112 Monday night. In the only other NBA game, the Utah Jazz defeated the Detroit Pistons 102-99.

The Knicks shot just 38 percent from the field against the Suns' sticky defense and were outbounded 46-38. After erasing an early 16-point deficit and pulling in front by four points late in the third quarter, the Knicks were outscored 33-24 in the final 14 minutes with Phoenix getting key contributions from Johnson, Walter Davis and Rich Kelley.

Johnson scored 14 of his 20 points in the third quarter and keyed a crucial 15-3 spurt that put Phoenix ahead to stay 81-73 two minutes into the final period. Davis, who added 17 points, helped nail down the victory with seven points in the final 7:10.

And Kelley, who has started the last seven games at center because Alvan Adams is hampered by a sprained left ankle, got five big points and two steals down the stretch after Adams reinjured his ankle late in the third quarter. Included in that spurt was a steal, court-length drive and layup — a rare occasion for the gangly 7-footer.

"That was a fun play," said Kelley. "I didn't really want to go all the way. I kept looking for someone to pass the ball to, but there was no one there. So I had to take it in."

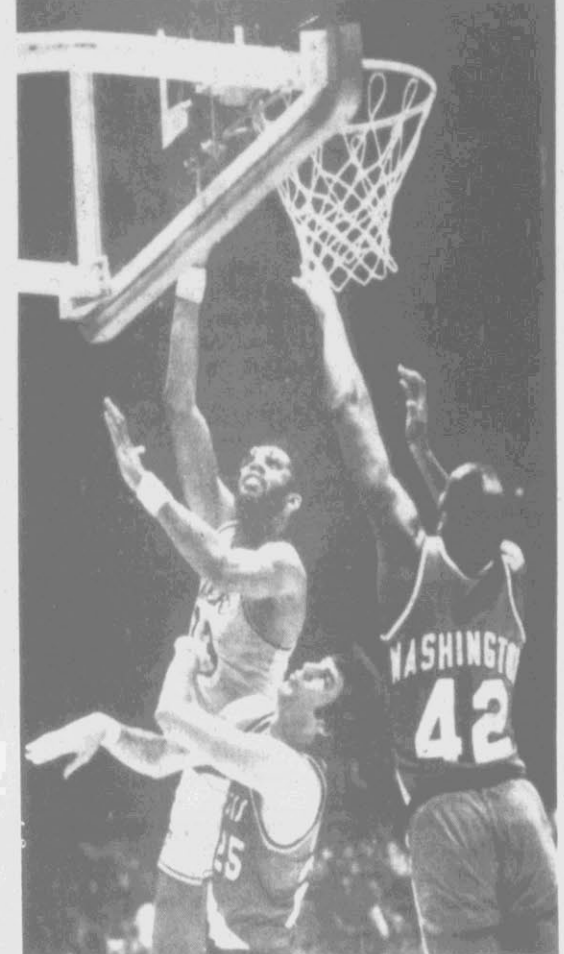

Len "Truck" Robinson contributed 16 points and 12 rebounds for Phoenix, while Bill Cartwright scored 21 points and Ray Williams had 20 for the Knicks, who lost their third in a row.

Lakers 124, Blazers 112 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 24 points and pulled down 12 rebounds to lead Los Angeles past Portland. Guard Norm Nixon had 23 points and 18 assists and Jamaal Wilkes contributed 19 points for the Lakers.

Los Angeles led by only four at 47-43 with two minutes remaining in the first half but outscored Portland 32-12 over the next eight minutes to pull away.

Jazz 102, Pistons 99 Rookie Darrell Griffith scored 35 points, including four in the final 24 seconds, as Utah edged Detroit.

Griffith's basket put the Jazz on top 100-99 with 24 seconds to play. Detroit's John Long tried to work his way free for a baseline jumper but stepped out of bounds with seven seconds left, then Griffith clinched the victory with two free throws for the final points of the game.

Looking For Two Los Angeles Lakers' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (33) shoots to the basket around Portland Trailblazers' defenders Tom Owens (25) and Kermit Washington (42) during the first period of the game Monday in Los Angeles. The Lakers won the NBA matchup, 124-112. (AP Laserphoto)

One of the best books we have read in a long time is "Partnership Defense in Bridge" by Kit Woolsey (Devyn Press, 1327 Walnut St., Shelbyville, Ky. 40065, 303 pp., paperback, $8.95). Most books on defensive play concentrate on one hand only. But bridge is a partnership game, in the play of the cards as well as in the bidding. Woolsey sets out to show how the actions of both defenders are inter-related.

For example, consider this hand from the book. To test your defense, cover up the East and South hands and imagine you are sitting West defending against four hearts. You lead the queen of clubs, won by the king as partner contributes the three. Declarer runs the queen of hearts from dummy to your king. What do you lead to the third trick?

The answer lies in the card partner played to the first trick. The three of clubs was a discouraging card, suggesting a shift. The obvious switch is to a spade—partner can't want a diamond shift, because the ace of diamonds is unlikely to go away. And if he wasn't prepared for a spade, he would simply have played a high club at the first trick to request that you continue that suit.

But it is not enough to shift to the ace of spades. You should cater to the possibility that partner has the doubleton king of spades. Lead a low spade. Partner wins the king, returns a spade to your ace and ruffs the spade continuation for a one-trick set.

The price of the book may be slightly high, considering that it is a paperback. But buy it all the same—you should recover the outlay in one evening's bridge even if you play for very low stakes.

Note one point in the bidding. South had no hesitation in going to game after his partner made a jump raise. Two aces is an excellent holding opposite a partner who could make a jump rebid.

Karen Valentine In NBC Movie

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Award-winner Peter H. Hunt will direct "Skeezee," an NBC movie starring Karen Valentine.

Hunt, who won a Tony as best stage director for "1776," has directed several TV movies and pilots and the recent "Life on the Mississippi" for public television.

"Skeezee" is the true story of a mongrel dog who becomes a "canine co-therapist" helping emotionally disturbed children.

Claim 25,944 Children Abused

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Nearly six of every 1,000 children in North Carolina was the victim of child abuse in 1979-80, the state Division of Social Services reported Monday.

The division said 25,944 children were reported abused or neglected during the 12-month period. About 42 percent, or nearly 11,000, of those reports were substantiated, the division said.

According to the division's report, almost 51 percent of those abused were girls. And 40 percent of the substantiated cases involved children less than 6 years old.

Compelling Account Of Hitler's Finale

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's dark fascination with Nazi themes (or exploitation of viewer fascination with the subject) has yielded a strangely compelling three-hour account of the final days of Adolf Hitler's demented Third Reich.

"The Bunker," a CBS dramatization of James O'Donnell's book (airing tonight), probes the heart of dying madness, Hitler's stench-permeated underground headquarters during the last 105 days of his life.

In researching the book, O'Donnell communicated with servants and soldiers who were in the bunker and, presumably, he surmised the rest. "I can't guarantee that what you're about to see is historic truth," the narrator says in introduction, adding that it is likely as close as we'll come.

Why we'd want to come close at all to this particular truth is never considered, of course; in fact, "whys" are disturbingly absent from the story. Perhaps that will be for ABC's upcoming miniseries "Rise and Fall of the Third Reich" to consider.

As it is, the attraction of "The Bunker" resides in that grim curiosity that brings customers to the Bonnie and Clyde death-car exhibit at cheap traveling carnivals; it is ugly, human, and very much at work here.

A rare Hitler at once distracted and magnetic: At an instant he huris himself into a storm of megalomania, then halts and slips into a countenance 180 degrees away. It is a fluid, volatile Hitler, rotting with dope and disease; it is madness brought to life.

And what an effete pack of bullies that inner gang is revealed to be; squirming from Hitler's craziness and from their own inclinations to end it, they hail the mad vision to the finish.

Except, that is, for Albert Speer, the Reich's brilliant architect and Hitler's muni-good guy. You wonder, though, how Speer, humanity's friend, came to draw a 20-year prison sentence as a war criminal.

Two more notes: Cliff Gorman is superb as the blindly fanatic Goebbels; and Piper Laurie is the ethereal Mrs. Goebbels, who calmly murders her children before joining her husband in suicide.

"The Bunker" will revolt you even as it draws you in. It will fascinate you, and leave you wondering why.

A Review

'The Idolmaker' Proves An Entertaining Movie

Just a few days ago I extolled the virtues of an unusual, original movie about American Indians in Utah, "Windwalker."

There's another movie currently at the Buccaneer Theater, which, as a representative piece of Americana at a much later date — the rock and roll years of the 1950s, is an exceptionally entertaining film.

"The Idolmaker," directed by Taylor Hackford and written by Edward Di Lorenzo, is not just another stitched together piece of teen-age entertainment fluff. The snappy, pulsating score by Jeff Barry ties in convincingly with the dramatic story line, with music and plot consistently complementing each other — much in the manner of "West Side Story."

Ray Sharkey, as Vinnie Vacarri, gives a superb, high-energy beat to the role of a man determined to succeed. Convinced that as a prematurely balding 27-year-old age without the good fortune of possessing what he calls "the look" to enrapture the vast market of teen-agers who made rock and roll stars into national idols, Vacarri hits on the next best solution — that of taking talented unknowns and manipulating them into music idols.

As in "West Side Story," there's a definite ethnic orientation — in the "Idolmaker" it is Italian. This gives a distinct flavor to the story and is a valid choice, considering the American talent in music, operatic and popular, that has come to the forefront from Americans of Italian descent.

Once he has determined his course of action, Vacarri is totally dedicated to the path he has chosen for the success of his first, then his second candidate for rock and roll stardom. His singular determination, understandably, leads to an abrasive situation of frustrations, jealousies and eventually rebellion against his dictatorial manner.

It is the sustaining of this complex interplay of human emotions set against the rewards of success framed within the music itself that gives "The Idolmaker" its satisfying scope and intensity of drama.

Both young men who are shaped into overnight stars are unknowns, an interesting true life parallel to the movie. Tommy Dee, played with a dashing flair by Paul Lund, is the first youth taken under Vacarri's wing. An accomplished saxophone player in a local night club, Dee is soon transformed into a teen idol.

On the advice of his mobster father (from whom Vacarri had long been estranged), Vacarri begins, while his first candidate is still hot property, to develop a second teen age rock and roll king. This is an Italian restaurant bus boy, Caesare, sensitively portrayed by Peter Gallagher. The formula works again, and soon Caesare is America's newest sexy male rage of rock and roll audiences.

Along with the synchronized interplay of keyed up emotions and music, "The Idolmaker" is admirable in recreating the feel of electric responses young idolizers give to their charismatic favorites.

The film's principal settings — a lively, poor but colorful neighborhood in New York, and the glamorous trappings of modern stage presentations, are both realistically realized.

"The Idolmaker" is a film that young and old audiences will enjoy, for the same and for different reasons.

Chances are the songs in "The Idolmaker" will rise high on music charts and that Paul Lund and Peter Gallagher could soon become familiar names in American popular music.

Loveland Offers Its Postmark

LOVELAND, Colo. (AP) — Lovers who want to give their valentines a special sign of affection can send their cards to Loveland, where they will be stamped with a postmark from the "Sweetheart Town" and remailed.

The valentines will be stamped in red ink with a four-line poem and a special postmark reading "A Sweetheart of a Town on Valentine's Day."

The poem will read: "Dan Cupid's gone a-questing, 'All lonely hearts to find; 'And thru his sly endeavors, 'Every heart is valentined."

More than 300,000 valentines are expected to be handled here this year, the 35th year the service has been performed.

Dennis Anderson of the local Chamber of Commerce the valentines come from around the world, including Poland and Czechoslovakia. Valentines should be pre-stamped with adequate postage, then placed in an outer wrapper and addressed to Postmaster, Loveland, Colo., 80537. The service is free.

Aged Beauty Will Move

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mary MacLaren, 81-year-old former beauty queen of the silent-film era, has agreed to move out of her fire-gutted home, but officials say the building she's moving into has been condemned as uninhabitable.

The actress' home of 64 years was damaged Jan. 13. Before the fire, which caused about $25,000 worth of damage, the home had been condemned by the Los Angeles City Department of Building and Safety.

After the fire, Miss MacLaren declared: "I'm not going to leave my house. ... I'll sleep here till I die," but following a visit Monday by the Los Angeles County Health Department, Miss MacLaren said she and three others renting rooms in her home were moving temporarily to another building on the same property.

Russ Johnson of the county health department said of the second building, "about half the walls have holes in them, as well as the ceiling. ... I'm sure it will never be accepted on a permanent basis" by city and county agencies.

Miss MacLaren co-starred with Douglas Fairbanks Sr. and Rudolph Valentino and played the queen in the 1921 film "The Three Musketeers." Her late sister, Katherine MacDonald, also was a silent-film beauty.

Considering Iran Trade

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Just a week after the American hostages were freed, one company says it may resume importing Iranian oil, while other firms wait for an official go-ahead to do business again with Iran.

The Reagan administration, meanwhile, says "there is no question" it will honor the basic hostage release deal, which also lifted the trade embargo imposed by the former President Carter after the 52 Americans were seized in November 1979.

At the same time, the Treasury Department reassured business executives that the agreement does not require them to turn over disputed assets to Iran. "We're not forcing you to fork over the money," said Richard Davis, assistant treasury secretary for enforcement and operations.

Iran and the United States once were major trading partners. Iran imported American weapons, oil field equipment and food while selling oil to the United States.

The Commerce Department said last week it had been besieged with calls from companies that want to know how to resume trade with Iran. Some businesses have received requests from Iran to buy spare parts for equipment already owned by the Iranians.

The department, noting that the Reagan administration is reviewing the agreement, has been cautioning businesses to wait for an official announcement before resuming trade.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company, said Monday it is studying the possibility of resuming Iranian oil imports.

Exxon spokesman Bill Smith said no final decision has been made and no one representing the company had discussed any new sales with the revolutionary government of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Before the Iranian revolution, Exxon, as part of a consortium that included Mobil, Texaco, Chevron, Gulf and several smaller U.S. firms, purchased a considerable amount of oil from Iran. At the time, the United States depended on Iran for up to 700,000 barrels of oil a day, about 4 percent of U.S. needs.

Gulf spokeswoman Susan Breen said Monday "it's just too early to say" if her company would consider resuming oil imports from Iran, although Gulf executives are "looking at some legal aspects" of such an arrangement.

Ashland Oil Co. has no plans to resume Iranian oil imports, said spokesman Phil Block.

Although U.S. trade with Iran is expected to increase, it is unlikely the total in the next few years will reach levels of 1979, when the United States sold $4.1 billion of goods and services to Iran and imported $2.9 billion in goods, mostly oil.

The Washington Post reported Tuesday that Watts Regulator Corp., a Lawrence, Mass. firm which makes safety and control valves for heating and plumbing, has received inquiries from several Iranian firms since the hostages were released.

The newspaper said company export manager Paul Richie is anxiously awaiting an answer from the administration on the legality of trade with Iran so he doesn't lose out to competitors in Europe and Japan.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. has received a telephone request from Iran for one of its small motor divisions for Iran. The Post said "We're just waiting to see what the U.S. government's policy is, what American companies should do in this case."

Westinghouse spokesman Christopher C. Newton said. Some companies are angered over the hostage deal, in which banks with loans outstanding to Iran were repaid immediately, while businesses with claims were left with uncertain prospects for repayment.

Claims of more than $3 billion have been filed by about 388 firms.

On Monday, the Treasury Department said regulations being prepared "will make clear that contested liabilities and assets need not be transferred under (former President Carter's executive orders)" and that none of the orders affects disputed performance bonds, letters of credit or other such obligations.

Presidential adviser Edwin Meese III said Monday there never has been any question the basic agreement with Iran for release of the hostages will be honored. But he said government attorneys and other officials are trying to determine whether "there may be some portion of the agreement in violation of the United States or international law" or which would be unfair to Americans with claims against Iran.

Among parts of the agreement that might be challenged are those requiring U.S. claims against Iran to be withdrawn from American courts and to be decided by an international arbitration panel. Also being questioned is a prohibition against removing assets of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his family from the United States.

Complaints Up On Mail Orders

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - Complaints about mail order companies are on the rise despite a federal rule designed to protect consumers, a congressional report says.

The study suggests the Postal Service and the Federal Trade Commission should work more closely together on the problem.

"Consumers send over 100,000 mail order complaints a year to the Postal Service, Better Business Bureau and the Direct Mail-Marketing Association," the General Accounting Office said.

Additional complaints probably go directly to the businesses involved, the report added.

The GAO cited Postal Service statistics showing consumer complaints went up 17 percent in fiscal 1979 despite a 1976 FTC rule designed to curtail mail-order problems. The rule requires companies to send most items within 30 days or mail notices explaining the delay.

The report said more consumers complain to the Postal Service than to the FTC and praised the Postal Service system of processing the complaints. However, it said the FTC often fails to obtain the information.

"The Postal Service's computer complaint files contain key data on mail order delivery problems that could be used to monitor compliance with the mail-order rule," the report said. "In three of four field locations contacted, FTC regional officials had not made arrangements to routinely obtain and analyze service complaint data."

The GAO quoted officials of the two agencies as saying they seldom coordinate their mail-order activity until one or the other targets a specific case for investigation.

Although FTC officials said the mail-order rule is effective, "officials from other organizations familiar with consumer mail order problems, and some FTC staffers, held a different view," the report said.

It quoted the Better Business Bureau of New York City and New York State officials as among those saying the FTC should be doing more to enforce the rule. "Postal Service officials in Boston, New York and Washington also believe there is substantial non-compliance with the rule," the GAO said.

Hazardous Wastes, A Problem Thus Far Ignored

By ELLEN L. SLOTT
United Press International
In nearly every state in the nation, 1981 promises to be a critical year in resolving that long-range, continually unfolding problem of hazardous and radioactive wastes.

From Maine to California, the discovery of dangerous, life-threatening wastes seeping through the ground or pervading the air has brought a new awareness of the problem and changes in the disposal of such wastes.

"Everybody thinks it's a new issue," said Connecticut state Rep. John Anderson. "It's been around for years and years but nobody wanted to think about it."

But more and more frequently the public is vividly reminded of the problem when, for example, an explosion rips through an old abandoned toxic waste dump as one did last April in Elizabeth, N.J.

The poisonous blaze at the Chemical Control Corp. site burned out of control for more than 10 hours. It shut down schools and factories in neighboring towns and in nearby Staten Island, N.Y.

Now, many of the nation's legislatures are considering bills to control wastes disposal, to update existing laws and add new ones. A UPI survey shows it is one of the three key issues the legislatures face this year. The others are tight budgets and reapportionment.

The Chemical Control explosion in Elizabeth was only one example of how the past practice of disposing of toxic wastes in almost any convenient manner is coming back to haunt communities from coast to coast.

In Tennessee, toxic chemicals were illegally dumped in the Bumpass Cove Landfill in 1975. Angry residents claimed in vain that it was polluting their water system and caused the death of an 8-month-old baby girl.

"I got an old dog and every time he goes into the landfill he comes back with some of his hair gone," said Ernest Tipton, a resident of the mountain hollow.

In Oklahoma, cancer-causing polychlorinated biphenyls or PCB's seeped into the Fort Gibson Reservoir from a fertilizer plant resulting in the contamination of fish.

In New Jersey, some 600 Jackson Township residents can no longer drink their well water. It was contaminated by a nearby municipal landfill where chemicals were dumped. It has resulted in skin rashes and kidney diseases.

In Virginia, officials shut down the Life Science Products Co. in Hopewell because large quantities of kepone, which it produced, seeped into the Lower James River and the Chesapeake Bay. The areas were closed to fishermen, causing incalculable damage to the state's fishing industry.

The firm's workers, initially poisoned by the pesticide, have since been purged of the chemicals. However, researchers say it may take another 15 to 20 years to determine whether those workers will develop cancer.

In Colorado, dumping of hazardous wastes at the Lowry Bombing Range Landfill east of Denver has contaminated the shallow ground water. It is too early to tell if the public health is in danger.

"There are 100 million gallons of God knows what at the site," said James Martin, director of the state Hazardous Materials Division. "We've just been lucky we haven't had someone killed out there."

In New York, chemicals from the Hooker Chemical and Plastics Corp. began seeping into the basements of homes along Love Canal at Niagara Falls in 1978. Some 800 families, who claim an unusually high incidence of miscarriages, birth defects and cancer, may eventually be relocated permanently.

Throughout the past year many states have enacted laws that trace hazardous wastes from cradle to grave. Some are even tougher than the federal Environmental Protection Agency's National Hazardous Waste Management Program which went into effect late last year.

During this new year, Robert Gardiner, director of Maine's Natural Resources Council, said state legislatures will concentrate even more on the issue of hazardous and radioactive wastes. He said the new legislation will differ from that already passed.

"The earlier bills sought to cut down on illegal disposal and environmental hazards," he said. "Now we'll be seeing an effort to create safe guidelines for the storage and disposal of hazardous wastes."

Some states, such as Delaware, require that all manufacturers of hazardous wastes be responsible for seeing that the wastes are adequately disposed. If the wastes are eventually dumped, the state can tell who had it last.

"This is designed to eliminate the midnight dumper phenomenon," said Thomas Eichler, head of Delaware's Division of Environmental Control.

Arkansas requires that the disposer certify what he did with the wastes and send copies of that certification back to the generator of the waste.

Some states, such as Missouri, have passed laws taxing hazardous wastes and placing surcharges on receipts of dump operators.

Virginia has taken the federal law a step further in requiring transporters of hazardous wastes to give the health department an annual report on their activities.

"We need to look at the records ... to see just what is happening," said William Gilley, director of the state Division of Solid and Hazardous Waste. "There's a lot of things we still have to know. But I don't subscribe to the idea that what you don't know won't hurt you — it might."

The newest concept, already instituted by some states but being haggled over by others, is establishment of dump sites and resource recovery plants. The latter are facilities that transform dangerous wastes into safe disposable materials.

The obvious problem is location.

"We cannot afford the feeling 'not in my backyard,'" said Massachusetts Environmental Affairs Secretary John A. Bewick. "Either we find locations for hazardous waste treatment facilities and secure landfills in Massachusetts or we will end up a decade later with even more improperly and illegally disposed wastes in all of our backyards."

In New Jersey, an ambitious bill that would set up hazardous waste treatment plants finally passed a Senate committee in December but must still face action in both houses.

In Oregon, the state already has a disposal site at Arlington for dumping hazardous wastes and a treatment system for neutralizing certain chemicals goes into effect in February.

Minnesota, to encourage local communities to develop sites, established financial incentives for them to develop solid waste management plans.

Its law created a commission with the power to establish disposal sites for non-nuclear hazardous wastes by overriding local zoning laws, if necessary.

Wisconsin suffered a setback in selecting solid waste dump sites under a recent state Supreme Court ruling that said the state does not have the power to override local zoning ordinances.

In the wake of the ruling, the state has launched a "Wisconsin is Watching" campaign to alert local law officers and citizens to illegal midnight dumping.

Arizona's Department of Public Health Services is examining 10 sites in the central and western portions of the state for a possible hazardous waste disposal location.

"This is not a comfortable thing to do," said Sen. Bob Usdane, R-Phoenix. "The public will not want it in their area. Anyone of the 10 will quickly develop the constituency not to have it there."

Kansas Gov. John Carlin has proposed that several states form a compact to deal with waste disposal.

"The more cooperation we can get from other states," he said, "the fewer sites will be needed and the lower the costs."

In the meantime, states are still faced with illegal dumping and the difficulty of enforcing it.

In Arizona, for example, the vast open spaces have attracted dumpers while making it virtually impossible to survey them at work.

State police in Maine and New Hampshire have been stopping trucks along the highways examining their contents.

The attorney general's office in Illinois, which describes itself as "becoming the dumping ground for the nation," has taken some action against illegal dumpers but the problem has sometimes been establishing who is to blame.

Enforcement is "not what it could or should be," said

Sandra McAvoy of the Illinois Environmental Council.

Finding who is to blame is at the heart of the hazardous waste problem and the reason so many instances of dangerous conditions are not resolved.

Residents in Jackson Township, N.J., and Bumpass Cove, Tenn., have filed suits against the operators of their landfills but health officials are reticent on whether the chemicals did, in fact, cause the high incidence of health problems. Admission would open up all sorts of legal problems.

Many states, particularly in the midwest, are concerned less with hazardous wastes than they are with the disposal of radioactive wastes.

Residents in Illinois, which has more nuclear reactors than any other state, want a ban on out-of-state spent nuclear fuel at General Electric's spent nuclear fuel storage site in Morris.

Hawaii's problem with nuclear waste is more unique in that it is centered on the nuclear-powered submarines anchored and drydocked at Pearl Harbor.

The Navy has been close-mouthed about where it has been disposing of the waste material from the submarines and has aroused a good deal of citizen protest.

Colorado's problem with nuclear wastes is from old sites rather than new ones.

More than 30 old radium sites have been discovered while Grand Junction and Durango have old uranium mill tailings emitting radon gas.

The federal and state governments have been trying to clean up the old tailings sites for several years. The tailings were used for years for landfill under homes, schools and offices before health officials realized they posed a potential long-range problem.
