

Interim Rate Boost Is Set By Utilities

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Greenville Utilities Commission last night approved an interim electric rate increase to track a 9.6 percent wholesale rate hike by GUC's power supplier, Virginia Electric and Power Co.

GUC Director Charles Horne told commission members that the action, to become effective February 1, means an increase of about 6 percent for the average residential customer. He added that the average residential customer will pay about $3.50 more per month under the new rates schedule. Horne noted that if the VEPCO rate increase were not tracked to GUC customers, it would cost the commission $160,000 per month.

In setting the new interim rates, commissioners changed all electric rate schedules varying amounts, according to recommendations of consultants, rather than give a 9.6 percent across-the-board rate hike. Under the new schedule, the basic facilities charge for residential and small general service customers will remain the same.

An initial motion to approve the rate hike for all schedules except Schedule 10 (County, Municipal or Housing Authority Outdoor Lighting Service), by City Manager Ed Wyatt, was defeated, as was a second motion to approve the proposed rate hike as recommended across-the-board.

A final motion, to approve the increase effective February 1 for all schedules except Schedule 10, which will become effective March 1, was approved.

Although no action was taken on other matters last night, commissioners discussed service to gas customers and the continuation of the Comprehensive Community Energy Management Program (CCEMP).

In the area of gas service, the commission suggested that Horne provide a draft policy for its consideration at the February meeting which would permit the commission, over possibly a two to three year period, to move from its present position of providing "full service" including piping for customer appliances and appliance service, to one of providing service to the meter only (similar to electric and water), with the exception of answering gas leak and pilot lighting calls.

In discussing the CCEMP program, most commissioners indicated their desire for the City of Greenville to take over administration of the program implementing the plan, scheduled to be submitted to the federal government in March, which has been designed under Phase I of the project.

In October 1978, the commission, acting for the city, contracted with Argonne National Laboratory to prepare a CCEMP plan. The cost of continuing the plan into Phase II has been estimated at $100,000, with about 60 percent of the cost funded by a federal grant.

Wyatt told the commission he would like for the commission to continue administration of the program, with a phased turnover to the city beginning in 1982.

City Councilman Dick McKee said he would consider a phased administrative turnover to the city early in the 1981-1982 fiscal year (which begins July 1).

Iraq "until total victory" was achieved, Iran's official Pars news agency reported.

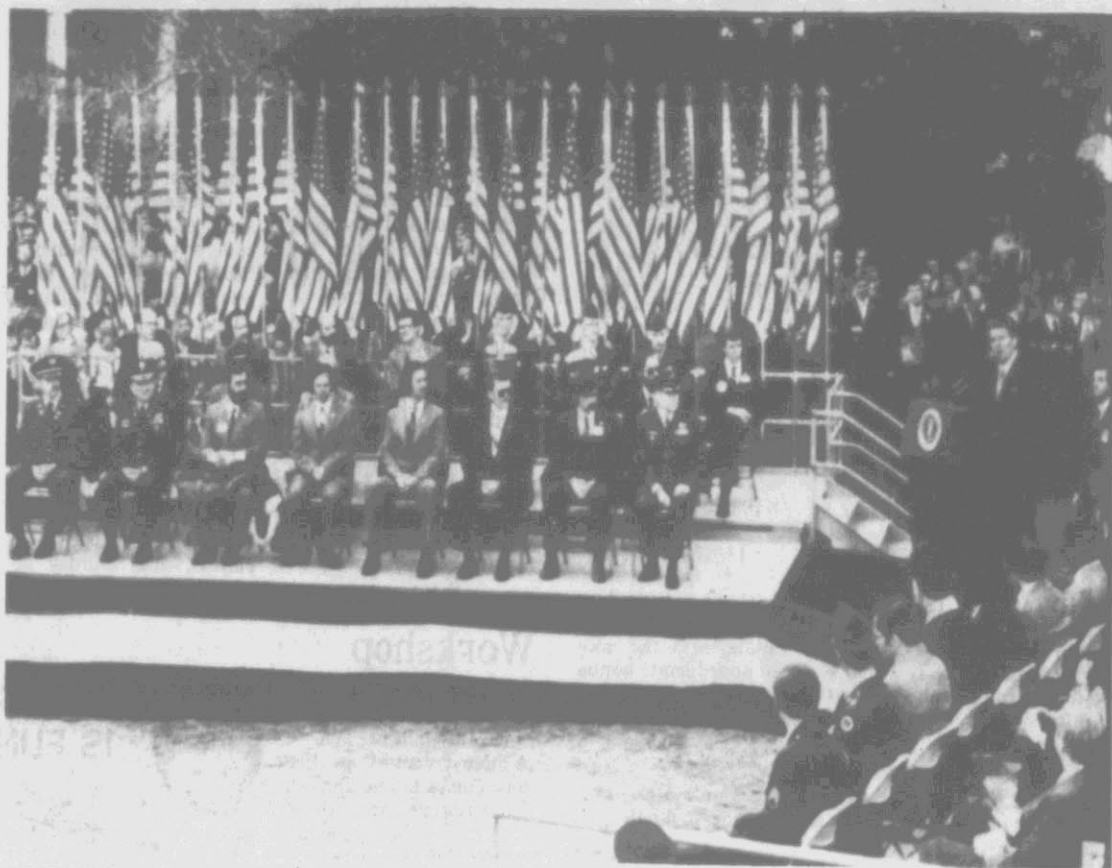

Pars said the 80-year-old patriarch of the Iranian revolution issued his orders during a meeting in Tehran with leaders of the Revolutionary Guards, a paramilitary organization that has fought the invading Iraqis alongside the regular Iranian armed forces.

Khomeini also heard reports from Iran's Supreme Defense Council on the progress of the more than 4-month-old war, according to the report, but made no reference to the power struggle between the Bani-Sadr and the clergy.

Writing in his Tehran newspaper Enghelab Islami Tuesday, Bani-Sadr said one band of plotters planned to shoot him Nov. 19, the Shiite Moslem holy day of Ashura, during a speech he was to make at a rally in Ahvaz, the beleaguered capital of Khuzistan province, where much of the war with Iraq is being fought. He said paramilitary units discovered the plot.

The president, who is commander in chief of the armed forces, said the army secret service reported a second plot on Jan. 14. His motorcade was to be attacked by rocket grenades during a trip to Ahvaz from the air base at Dezful, 75 miles north of the provincial capital, he said.

Although Bani-Sadr did not identify the plotters by name, he left no doubt that he meant Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai and his associates in the cleric-led Islamic Republican Party.

Power Struggle In Iran Is Heating Up

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and the conservative Islamic clergymen opposed to him exchanged more charges as their power struggle heated up.

Bani-Sadr claimed two plots to assassinate him had been uncovered in the past two months. The militant Islamic mullahs charged that supporters of the Westernized, moderate president ransacked an office of their Islamic Republican Party.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, meanwhile, ordered Iran's armed forces today to continue the war against

52 Freed Americans Finally Go Home Today

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — And today they really go home.

Their 444 days of bondage in Iran are more than a week behind them, their decompression period is over, the official welcome in the nation's capital is a warm remembrance, and the 52 freed Americans are finally heading home.

Washington embraced the hostages Tuesday and President Reagan threw open the White House to them and their families in a display termed "absolutely staggering" by L. Bruce Laingen.

The air of jubilation at the White House was tempered by a stern warning from Reagan that any terrorists ever again daring to seize American captives would face "swift and effective retribution."

Today, after most of them spent the night at a suburban Arlington, Va., hotel, the hostage heroes were dispersing to cities and small towns around the country.

They anticipated at least 30 days' vacation, although some expressed interest in returning to work sooner.

"Where's my next post?" asked Katherine Koob, one of the two women held in captivity for the entire 444 days, as soon as she arrived in Washington.

"If I had my choice, I'd report back to duty tomorrow," said Marine Sgt. John D. McKeel, 27, of Balch Springs, Texas.

Although most of the former hostages remained at the hotel, John E. Graves returned home to suburban Reston, Va., where neighborhood children gave him a candlelight welcome Tuesday night. "I can't believe I'm here, but I am," said Graves, 53, a senior foreign service inspector.

The homecoming will wait a little longer yet for Robert Ode, at 65 the oldest of the former hostages. He was admitted Tuesday night to an Arlington hospital suffering from pneumonia, severe bronchitis and exhaustion. He was listed in fair condition.

With 6,000 guests spread out on the White House South Lawn, and a nationwide television audience watching live coverage, Reagan capped the freed Americans' first week of liberty Tuesday, saying:

"Your freedom and your individual dignity are much cherished. In the representation of this nation you will be accorded every means of protection that America can muster.

"Let terrorists be aware that when the rules of international behavior are violated, our policy will be one of swift and effective retribution.

"We hear it said that we live in an era of limits to our power," Reagan added. "Well let it also be understood there are limits to our patience."

Laingen, the charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran when it was overrun by an Islamic mob Nov. 4, 1979, replied: "Our flight to freedom is now complete."

HOTLINE

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell you, problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

OPERATOR! QUICK! EMERGENCY!

I am concerned that we don't have a quick emergency telephone number here. When I was a child living in Portland, Ore., I always knew that I could dial 0 — Operator — and get a telephone operator immediately. So if I had to have the police department or the fire department or whatever, the operator could help me. Here I have tried to get operators and have had to wait for six or eight rings. So I am wondering, what can we do to get this type of quick emergency number so that children and people who don't see well and those who wake up in the middle of the night and can't quickly find a number and dial a seven-digit number? I have called the telephone company and was told to write a letter to the company. I will do this, but somehow I feel that my one letter might not have the effect that bringing the issue from the public through Hotline might have. J. B.

Frank Havens, District Traffic Engineer for Carolina Telephone, said operators here do still relay emergency calls each and every day. "What they do," he said, "is start putting the call through immediately to the proper emergency assistance organization and at the same time request the phone number of the person calling as a precaution. We don't emphasize that this is one of our services," he said, "but we know very well that people in panic need operator assistance, and that children can be taught to dial zero a lot easier than they can be taught several emergency numbers."

A 0 (zero) call, he said, appears on the operators' panel as a lit-up bulb. There is, at the present time, no way that it can be known before it's answered, whether it's an emergency or not. Operators are expected to answer all calls as quickly as they can get to them, but there is never any way to gauge just how many will come in at any given time.

Havens added that he remembers a number of years ago in another city a way of using a special digit (or two or three digits) to get an operator in an emergency and a way of having a special part of the operator's board light up so that this type of call would be given priority. Many times, he said, these calls were not true emergencies (which may have been one of the drawbacks of the system). He promised to check on this idea and see if it would be feasible here.

Israel Target Of Islam Summit

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
TAIF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — An Islamic boycott office with twice as many members as the Arab League will be created to blacklist firms dealing with Israel. Habib Chatti, secretary general of the 42-member Islamic Conference, said today.

In an interview with The Associated Press and The New York Times, Chatti said the boycott office would be modeled after a three-decade old, 20-member Arab League blacklisting agency.

"It will be set up," Chatti said during the fourth day of the Islamic summit here. "We will take the list of the Arab League and use that for information."

He said no specific firms had yet been singled out and added, "We have not yet begun our task."

The extension of the boycott to the broader Islamic world made up of 800 million Moslems is part of the anti-Israel strategy being formulated by the summit to pressure Israel into withdrawing from Arab lands conquered in the 1967 Mideast war, especially the eastern sector of Jerusalem.

Asked if the Arab oil weapon would be used against Israel, Chatti said, "Every weapon must be used ... including oil." He said whether it would be employed depended on the situation. "Maybe it won't be used now and perhaps not at all." However, Chatti suggested the oil weapon would be reserved for use at key periods. "You don't use a missile to hit something small," he said.

On Tuesday, the summit called for the immediate withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan but did not pledge any money or arms to the Moslem rebels fighting the communist Afghan government.

A resolution adopted by the conference also named a five-nation committee to work with U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to bring peace to the central Asian nation.

Pro-Soviet Syria, which has a friendship treaty with the Soviet Union and gets its arms from Moscow, and Marxist South Yemen opposed the resolution, conference sources said.

"No benefit can be expected for the people of Afghanistan out of words of denunciation and condemnation because these words will not fill the stomachs of the refugees, nor will they impose withdrawal of foreign troops," Syrian President Hafez Assad told the conference.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud al Faisal, said a representative of the Afghan rebels addressed the summit, which "reacted with sympathy." But the Islamic Conference made no pledge to aid the mujahedeen, or "holy warriors," as the rebels call themselves, a spokesman for the rebels reported.

Waldheim, attending the summit as an observer, plans to name U.N. Undersecretary Javier Perez de Guillar of Peru to try to mediate the Afghan crisis, U.N. sources said. It was expected that the Islamic committee would be made up of Pakistan, Saudi Arabia, Iran, Guinea and Tunisia.

Conference sources said Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq told the summit he had "intimations of flexibility" from the Soviet Union and Afghan President Babrak Karmal. But they said Saudi King Khaled wants to take a hard-line stance against the threat of Soviet penetration toward the Persian Gulf.

The Saudis have given money to the insurgents and are said to want the rebels' representatives at the negotiating table. The rebels say they won't deal with the Karmal regime — which was barred from the summit meeting — but won't oppose others' efforts to get the estimated 80,000 Soviet troops out. Meanwhile, they continue to seek arms and medical supplies from sympathetic countries.

Assad during his speech Tuesday also attacked the United States, accusing it of responsibility for the 1975-76 civil war in Lebanon and of plotting "to subdue this region to imperialist and Zionist domination."

"The United States persists in demonstrating its enmity toward the Arab nation."

Almost Like A Spring Day

A TASTE OF SPRING IN THE MIDST OF WINTER — Warm, spring-like temperatures and abundant sunshine teased area residents into shedding their coats Tuesday and turning their thoughts to lighter subjects than school and work. Above, ECU students Kathy Perry from Winston-Salem and Eddie Habit from Virginia Beach, Va. found a spot at Green Springs Park to enjoy the afternoon and each other's company. According to Greenville Utilities' Water Plant, the high temperature yesterday was 67 degrees Fahrenheit and the low was 43 degrees. Although rain spread over the county early Wednesday morning, the temperature at 8 a.m. was still warm at 51 degrees. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Dear Abby

Leave Cake With Hostess

By Abigail Van Buren

1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: In our town when people are invited to a party, they are often asked to bring something to serve. My wife is famous for her delicious cakes, so that's what she usually brings.

At the end of the evening, if there is any cake left over, my wife matter-of-factly picks it up and takes it home. I am embarrassed, feeling that she should leave whatever is left for her hostess. My wife disagrees with me, insisting that the cake is "hers."

My question: What should happen to the leftovers when food is brought by the guests?

LOUISVILLE, KY.

DEAR LOUISVILLE: Unless it's clearly understood beforehand that everyone takes home his or her own leftovers, your wife should leave the cake for the hostess. It would seem an appropriate bonus for having had the party at her house and cleaning up afterward.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a grown man who bathes maybe twice a year, never washes his hair and doesn't own a toothbrush?

ASKING IN ASPEN

DEAR ASKING: Nothing.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you because I am a very private person, but I have nowhere else to turn.

I've been married for 21 years to a man I'll call Bob. (No children.) Fourteen months ago was the last time we had sex. I've never been very interested in sex, but I enjoyed the intimacy of it. As I look back on our marriage, Bob never was overly sexy, but he performed. I thought we had a good marriage.

About the time our sex life stopped, Bob developed a friendship with a man. Their friendship grew from getting together, just the two of them, one evening a week, to spending weekends together. Last summer Bob spent his entire vacation with this man, excluding me. That's when I strongly suspected that he was gay. When I confronted him with my suspicions, he flatly denied it. I begged him to go with me to a counselor. He refused. I offered him divorce or separation. He wanted neither. He says he "cares for me," but he no longer "loves" me.

Abby, I still love him and don't want to give him up even if he is gay. I'm too embarrassed to discuss this with anyone I know. My heart is broken and I am desperate. Please help me.

MASS. HOUSEWIFE

DEAR HOUSEWIFE: It's unfortunate that you don't want to "give him up," because it appears that he has already given you up. You both need counseling, but you can't force it on Bob if he refuses to accept it. Please go for counseling without him. You desperately need to learn how to cope with a painful situation that is more common than you know.

R VALUE
Insulating is of course a very good way to increase energy efficiency. However, to compare kinds of insulation, you have to know how to measure effectiveness.

One way is to determine how well the material resists the flow of heat. This resistance is represented by the letter "R". And the larger the "R" value, the better.

The second way of expressing the effectiveness of insulation is by indicating the rate that heat will pass through the material. This is usually designated by the letter "U". In this case, the smaller the "U" value, the better.

Most insulation manufacturers use the "R" value to designate effectiveness. Here in North Carolina, the following "R" values are considered minimum: for ceiling, 30 — for walls, 19 — and the same for floors.

INSTALLING BATT AND BLANKET INSULATION

If you're installing batt or blanket insulation, you'll want to observe the safety rules. For example, if you're working in the attic, you'll want to provide good lighting, and you'll need to lay boards or plywood sheets over the joints or trusses to form a walkway and working surface.

Keep in mind that vapor barriers should always be placed next to the living area. And, if you're adding new insulation over old, and the new insulation has a foil or paper vapor barrier, slash the foil or paper at frequent intervals. This helps prevent moisture from being locked in.

Install floor insulation with the vapor barrier next to the floor. Floor insulation may be supported by wire insulation supporters called "tiger teeth." Take special precautions to keep combustible insulation materials away from chimneys. And never place any type of insulation within three inches of a recessed lighting fixture.

WINDOWS NEED SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS

Remember that windows can be one of the worst energy wasters in your house. In fact, a single-paned window has a very low resistance to heat. So, if you're planning to build — or buy a house, you may do well to decide on the minimum number of windows you can live with. Also try to find a house design where most windows are grouped on the south side. This exposure will help you to benefit from the sun's energy in winter.

You might consider using at least two layers of glass on all windows. The dead air space trapped between the two layers gives an R value of one and a half to two. A third layer of glass — or triple-glazing — can increase the R value to about three. So the location of windows does need serious consideration when building, remodeling or buying.

Beautiful Baby Contest Is Planned

The Greenville Jay-C-Ettes will hold a Beautiful Baby Contest Feb. 20 and 21 at Carolina East Mall, with all proceeds to benefit the March of Dimes.

The baby whose photo collects the most money-votes will be awarded a trophy and other selected prizes. First- and second-runners-up will be recognized.

To register your child, submit either a 5x7 or an 8x10 photograph of him or her with his/her name, birth date, sex and your name and mailing address on the back. A $1 registration fee is required to cover the cost of the return of the photo. Children 24 months old and younger are eligible to be entered.

Advance registration will be held during February at the children's physicians offices of Dr. Ed Davis and Drs. Shappley, Bramley and Willson or by sending the photograph, information and registration fee to Linda Asbell, Rt. 7, Box 492, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Mrs. Asbell, the Jay-C-Ettes chairman, said, "This project is really a celebration of all our beautiful babies and is a good way for parents to show their support to the March of Dimes by entering their children."

Voting will be held at Carolina East Mall the afternoon of Feb. 20 and all day Feb. 21. The public is urged to support this project, local Jay-C-Ettes say.

May Trees Be There

Trees have been cut to make way for thoroughfares locally, but there has been near unanimity that the beautiful trees which line E. Fifth Street should never be removed. Alas the life of a tree is finite. Several years ago some of the trees had to be removed because they were aging. At present city and ECU crews are removing more of them, not to make way for more asphalt and concrete, but because they have become decayed and dangerous.

Because a tree is renewable, however, these will not be lost forever. The wood obtained from the old trees is being sold for firewood and the proceeds from the sale will be used to plant new ones in their places.

The new plantings won't provide shade overnight, of course, but, mixed with the healthy trees remaining, they will grow to restore the beauty of the street for future generations. May it always be.

Kidney Transplants Are Next

That more sophisticated medical procedures are in the future for Pitt County Memorial Hospital is underscored by the announcement that kidney transplants will soon be performed there. The transplanting of a donated kidney can mean a return to normal life for many who suffer from kidney failure. People from the east have had to leave the area in the past to have the operation done. Soon they won't, and our area is better off for it.

THIS AFTERNOON Aimed At Youths

By BILL NOBLITT RALEIGH — A series of steps aimed especially at youthful drug offenders will be outlined to the 1981 General Assembly by a special committee of the House of Representatives.

Among the proposed laws will be a statewide ban on the sale of drug paraphernalia, a measure already taken by a host of local governments alarmed at the increase of drug use on school campuses.

Beyond that, however, the Select Committee on Drug Laws will propose that stiffer penalties be handed to anyone convicted of selling drugs to a student, and that simple possession of any amount of drugs on a school campus be made prima facie evidence of intent to sell or deliver the goods. "Prima facie" is a legal term for presumed guilt, with the defendant held responsible for proving innocence, a reversal of the usual legal process.

BILL NOBLITT

Several Directions Former State Rep. J.E. Lambeth of Thomasville chaired the committee which heard from a variety of school and drug abuse specialists before drawing up the list of proposals. New law, changes in current law, and suggested policy guidelines for state agencies are among the measures outlined.

A key witness was John Murphy, superintendent of schools in Wake County which is one of several local school systems in which massive drug crackdowns resulted in numerous student arrests.

Murphy suggested that all middle and upper grade teachers ought to be given drug awareness and recognition training, that the largeness of schools and resulting ratio of students to administrators, and stiffer penalties for drug selling on campus seemed in order. He also pointed to "open campus" rules which allow students to leave during lunch or at other times as a major contributing factor in drug abuse.

Here is a brief rundown on the various committee proposals: A statewide in-school suspension program should be set up, and State Board of Education policy should allow students to be expelled from school only as a last resort, with in-school suspension and drug education as essential remedies. The State Board of Education is asked to pursue a policy encouraging schools to provide better administrative ratios, and swap information among local schools on how best to supervise and close up public school grounds to outside traffic. Local school systems are asked to provide drug awareness training for all teachers in grades six through 12. Education Drug education programs at which first and second offenders may be provided court-ordered instruction as part of sentencing would be established, with costs largely borne by those ordered to attend. State laws on possession of a controlled substance currently provide light penalties for such simple possession when intended for use of the owner. Penalties for those selling drugs have been made much harsher: the hope being to discourage sales. The committee proposes that simple possession of drugs on a school campus, however, be viewed as intent to sell or deliver. And, the committee suggests study toward imposing stiff and mandatory sentences against any non-student selling drugs to a student whether on or off campus during school hours. Several of the proposals are orchestrated with similar proposals outlined by the Governors Crime Commission, and will later be affected as well by proposals coming from the Courts Commission. When this work is completed, it is expected that major changes in drug abuse law and procedures will result.

To the editor:

I read with interest the letter from Mr. Clark concerning the Moral Majority and its stand against some books which are in publication today. It seems Mr. Clark does not fully understand the reason or meaning behind such passage of scripture as Genesis 19, 34 and II Samuel 13 in comparison to books which the Moral Majority is fighting. The books that are on the market today are written to destroy the morals of our society and to break down the home. The Bible does not have illustrations for us to indulge over or make light of, but to show us the seriousness of sin and the consequences that men must face when they do sin.

In regard to the Song of Solomon (which is considered a poem), the intention is to show "Incarnate Love," that love which is clean, moral and wholesome; that love which is God-fearing. I encourage Mr. Clark to read Hebrews 13:4. I agree with Mr. Clark that we should not ban the Bible and that we should "hide the Word in our hearts that we might not sin against God."

To the editor:

As a Greenville citizen, taxpayer and professional pilot, I feel there should be some additional information brought to the public's attention concerning the new terminal building at the airport. This building, to my understanding, will cost approximately $300,000. This is a very large amount to appropriate when the Airport Authority has no contractual agreements with the present commuter airline. The present agreement allows Sunbird to stop service at Pitt-Greenville with 30 days notice, just as Wheeler did. If this termination occurred, what use would the airport have for a $300,000 building and no airline service? To build a new terminal with such a flimsy agreement seems to exhibit bad judgment on someone's part. I urge all concerned citizens to examine this issue closely and make sure we are not going to have a new terminal with no airline service for it. J. Hilton Carson

RETAINING CHARITY We are sometimes told that the welfare state at some point in the future will develop to the point that charity will become unnecessary. Whether the welfare state will, or can, or should develop to this point is a question much too complex to deal with here. But we can be sure that there are certain things it cannot do. Tanks For The Food

WASHINGTON — Every once in a while, someone comes up with a magic word that will end the energy crisis. The latest one is "gasohol." It is now possible to make fuel for cars from grain products, potatoes and practically anything that can be grown on a farm. Several major oil companies are starting to get into the gasohol business. Since we are the largest food-producing nation in the world, energy experts are very optimistic about the future of the new fuel.

But food experts are pessimistic, and with reason. This is what could happen in the next few years on a farm in Nebraska: A buyer from an oil refinery and one from a grain dealer show up at the same time.

ART BUCHWALD

"We'll take your whole crop," the refinery buyer tells the farmer.

"Wait a minute," the grain dealer says. "We need that wheat for bread."

"Gasohol is more important than bread," the refinery buyer insists. "The more fuel we can make at home, the less we have to order from abroad."

"People need bread more than they need gasoline," the grain buyer protests.

The farmer finally says, "I don't care what you're buying it for. What are you paying?"

The refinery man says, "We'll give you $5 a bushel."

The grain merchant says, "We'll give you $5.50."

The refinery man says, "We'll give you six and we don't even care what the wheat looks like."

The grain man is getting nervous. "We'll pay six-fifty, but that means the price of bread will go right through the roof. You can't let people go hungry this winter."

The refinery man says, "People would rather have a full tank of gas than a full stomach. You can't waste good wheat on bread."

The farmer says, "Keep talking price. I ain't interested in any other arguments."

The refinery man says, "We'll give you $7 and throw in two large harvesting machines as a bonus."

"We can't compete with that," the grain man says. "Well, OK, we'll pay $8 a bushel and paint your house."

The refinery man says, "We'll give you $9 a bushel and a two-week vacation in Acapulco."

The farmer says, "Do I hear $10?"

The refinery man says, "Ten dollars."

Percy Plays An Old Role

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — The delay in President Reagan's intended nomination of California Supreme Court Justice William Patrick Clark has been caused mainly by reservations raised by Sen. Charles H. Percy (R-Ill.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Clark, 49, Reagan's chief of staff early in his governorship, has agreed to take the No. 2 State Department post under Alexander Haig after early reluctance and has moved into an office in the department. But opposition within the Foreign Relations Committee has delayed the nomination at least temporarily.

"Percy is the problem," an aide to Reagan said. "He's telling us that Clark would have trouble getting confirmed." After Percy's strong push for Haig's successful confirmation as secretary of state, Reagan's advisers are reluctant to blatantly disregard the senator's wishes.

Percy confirmed that he had asked the White House for "consultation" on the Clark appointment. "I have never met Justice Clark," Percy said. "I did have some comments volunteered to me that would seem to me that we should stop, look and listen."

Percy did not fully reveal what those "comments" were but said they concerned Clark's ability to handle "the complexity of foreign policy today" and added that "his role as a (California Supreme Court) justice was not without controversy."

Percy's carefully-worded reservations jibe with more outspoken criticism by Democratic members of his committee. They complain both that Clark has no foreign policy background and possesses inadequate legal credentials. He did not graduate from law school and failed the California bar examination on his first try, neither unusual for lawyers in California. Percy said Clark's lack of a legal degree was "not a plus."

Clark was Reagan's chief of staff in Sacramento during the first three years of his governorship. In 1968, he was appointed by Reagan to the Superior Court. He quickly climbed the judicial ladder to the Court of Appeals and finally in 1973 to the Supreme Court, all on Reagan appointments.

Reagan is described by his aides as intent on having Clark at the State Department and is delaying only to maintain at least a facade of harmonious relations with Percy. But Reagan aides are grumbling at Percy, reminiscent of the irritation felt toward the Illinois senator by President Richard M. Nixon's aides a decade ago.

Aware of the similarity, Percy said the Reagan White House would have to learn as did the Nixon White House that "my support is not automatic." While declaring "I have a completely open mind about Clark," Percy added he wanted to explore "his personal ability" to handle the job.

Percy questioned whether Clark was up to the standard of the Carter administration's deputy secretary of state, Warren Christopher. He wants Christopher's successor, he said, to be "at least comparable in quality and if possible, even better."

Even SEC Critics Defend It

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Even some of the staunchest advocates of cutting back on big government were a bit startled the other day when advisers to President Reagan waved a scalpel in the direction of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Like any other regulatory body, the SEC, created in the 1930s to prevent the kind of financial chaos and abuses that helped lead to the Great Crash of 1929, has its critics.

Stockbrokers cried "disaster!" in 1975 when the SEC prodded their industry to give up fixed commission schedules in favor of open price-competition (although six years later Wall Street is anything but a disaster area).

Mutual fund managers often complain that the SEC has loaded them down with so many rules and regulations that they are barely able to compete with other kinds of financial-services companies.

But when someone starts talking about slashing the SEC's budget, and drastically changing its basic missions — as a report of President Reagan's transition team did — many Wall Streeters quickly change their tune.

"From what I can see, this report was badly conceived and badly done," said one top executive who requested anonymity.

"In my experience, these things are often written by people with a special axe to grind," observed another industry leader. "I don't think very much is ever going to come out of it."

The report itself acknowledges that the SEC has a history free of scandal, and a "deserved reputation for integrity and efficiency." But it also contends that the agency needlessly interferes with and hampers the functioning of the nation's capital-raising machinery.

"The SEC can and does raise artificial barriers in certain circumstances to the free accumulation and formation of capital through regulations requiring excessive, unnecessary and continuing disclosure requirements," it says.

On that basis, the report suggests something close to a 180-degree shift in the emphasis of the SEC's mission. Rather than concentrating on enforcing securities laws as a kind of Wall Street police force, it says, the SEC should work to limit regulation of the securities industry, in order to create the freest possible environment for encouraging private investment.

"Encouragement of capital formation is a very desirable objective," said Arthur Levitt Jr., chairman of the American Stock Exchange. However, he said, de-emphasizing the watchdog role of the SEC could well reduce investors' confidence in the markets, and thus lead to precisely the opposite result.

A central figure in the debate is Stanley Sporkin, the chief of the SEC's enforcement division. The report suggests that Sporkin, a 20-year SEC veteran who takes his job very seriously, might have to be replaced.

With his activist approach, the 49-year-old Sporkin would not be a good bet to win many popularity contests on Wall Street. But if, as the agency's "top cop," he isn't universally loved on his beat, he has won plenty of respect.

The story is told that one financier who ran afoul of the SEC, frustrated by Sporkin's tenacity in running him to earth, paid him the grudging compliment: "Stanley, you're the best of the worst."

Says a securities industry executive who has known Sporkin for more than a decade, "If you're looking for someone to criticize Stanley, it isn't going to be me. He's a formidable investigator who performs a very important public service."

United Over Restricting Surcharges

By W.A. WERONKA JR. Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram and Attorney General Rufus Edmisten all agree on one thing — they want some form of legislation to protect safe drivers from automobile insurance surcharges.

The three met in closed session Tuesday but Ingram said they "agreed in principle" to support such legislation. A bill along those lines, and backed by Ingram, has been introduced in the state House by Rep. Richard Barnes, D-Winston-Salem.

But Edmisten and a Hunt spokesman said they will have to take a look at all aspects of Barnes' bill before deciding whether to support it.

Edmisten said the three would meet again in the coming weeks to examine the bill more closely, but added, "the bill does embody the lawsuit we have filed."

The bill would ban surcharges above the 6 percent limit on annual auto insurance rate increases. The surcharges have been applied by the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility to recover losses. The facility is a pool formed by insurance companies to share expected losses incurred by policy holders they consider to be poor risks.

The state, at the request of Hunt and Ingram, is challenging the legality of those surcharges in court. The case is pending before the state Supreme Court.

But Ingram said he believes speed is essential in enacting the legislation because the court action is costing North Carolina drivers $3 million a month in court costs and surcharges.

"The chairman (of the House Insurance Committee) has said that she would rather wait until the court takes action," Ingram said, referring to Rep. Mary Seymour, D-Greensboro. "But the people can't wait. We need immediate action."

Mrs. Seymour said Tuesday that she did not say the Legislature should wait for the court to act. She also said Ingram has quoted her as opposing the bill, which she denied.

"The commissioner has not communicated with me on the issue," she said. "I have not taken a position on it. But I think it is something we need to look at very carefully. It is definitely a concern of the consuming public. We will give it a fair hearing so all sides can be heard. How much time that will take I don't know."

Mrs. Seymour said any recommendation by Hunt, Edmisten and Ingram will get "careful attention by the committee."

The refinery man says, "You mean you have corn, too? Why didn't you say so? We can use all the corn you've got."

May Have Clue To More 'Pill' Safety

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Duke University scientists think they've found a chemical defect that can determine which women are most likely to develop dangerous blood clots while taking birth control pills.

And the scientists said Tuesday even moderate exercise seems to make a dramatic improvement in the deficiency, theoretically reducing the risk of "one of the most well-known and feared complications ... of the pill."

"We have discovered what we feel is an underlying defect in the system (by which the body dissolves clots in the blood stream) that predisposes women to clot while they take the pill," said Dr. Salvatore V. Pizzo of Duke's medical school.

He said an inexpensive test developed at Duke to identify such apparently high-risk patients could become a screening tool for all women considering the pill. But he said the test won't be generally available for several years.

Until then, he said, "the prudent answer is that exercise would be a reasonable prescription for any woman who's using birth control pills."

The hormone manipulation that enables the birth-control pill to prevent pregnancies is known to raise the risk of blood clots, but the vast majority of women use the pill without encountering this problem.

Pizzo told an American Heart Association seminar today that clots affect scarcely 20 of every 10,000 women who use the pill. But he added, "for the unlucky few who do develop blood clots, the consequences can be devastating."

By blocking blood vessels, clots can cause heart attacks, strokes and other problems. In the most extreme cases, women die from the complication — "it happens 200 or 300 times a year," he said.

Pizzo said the reason for the increased risk among some women is uncertain, but among the suspects is a protein called plasminogen activator, the trigger of a chemical system that dissolves clots on blood vessel walls. If the trigger is missing, the whole system breaks down.

The Duke team measured activator levels in 20 women who had developed clots while taking the pill. The measurements were taken after the women had been off the drug for at least a year.

"We found levels of this protein were significantly decreased in 90 percent of the women who had suffered clots," Pizzo said, adding that the risk of clotting while on the pill is six times greater in women with low levels of the activator.

However, he said, about 30 percent of all pill users have lower-than-normal levels and most have no problems.

The task then was to find a probable hazardous level. A danger point was found,

Pizzo said, in a North Carolina family with an apparently inherited defect that sends activator levels to such low points that affected males "have a severe clotting problem, whose onset begins as early as 14."

"It seems to me prudent to exclude from taking the pill any women whose level of this protein is less than that measured in this family," he said, adding that would exclude only about 1 percent of pill users.

Pizzo conceded the number of women in the study was small, but he said the clotting problems were so rare it was difficult to find even 20 subjects to study.

A second study tested healthy men and women before and after a 10-week exercise program at Duke.

"All the subjects showed some increase in activator levels, but the most dramatic increases were in patients who had low initial levels," he said.

He said such increased protein values should theoretically reduce the clotting risk.

Bountiful In Acronyms

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority is changing the name and the acronym — held in so much favor by government officials — of its Office of Community Development.

TVA's directors informally have approved changing the name to Office of Economic and Community Development to promote its new image as an industrial recruiter as opposed to a social worker.

But a couple of officials commented that the change and the new acronym, OECD, may create some temporary confusion along with the problem of memorandums occasionally going to the wrong place.

There is not much difference between OECD and OEDC, the Office of Engineering Design and Construction responsible for building TVA's dams and nuclear plants.

A tongue-tied bureaucrat, or one having trouble with his bifocals, also could send a memo intended for OECD or OEDC to OACD, the Office of Agriculture and Chemical Development where the fertilizers are made.

KACEM SEBTI SHOW . . . opens at the Baptist Student Center, East 10th Street on Saturday, January 31, with a reception open to the public beginning at 7:30 p.m. The exhibit will be up for one week. Here the artist is shown outside his studio space with two recent works, one of a mask with necktie mounted on a hub cap, the other a work incorporating a Coca-Cola sign and a discarded doll as the primary components. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Sculpture Show Opens Saturday

A one-week exhibit of sculpture by Kacem Sebti is going on view at the Baptist Student Union, 511 East 10th Street on Saturday, January 31. A reception, open to the public, will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Sebti, a native of Casablanca, Morocco, will be showing about 20 works, mostly recent assemblages done in relief. His earlier work was basically in wood, and he will be showing a few wood pieces in this show.

"Much of my recent work incorporates cultural rejects from our local society," Sebti commented. "pieces of wood, metal, lots of different things."

The pieces he has chosen for his exhibit include ones assembled of cast offs such as old dolls, small gears and other metal pieces from machines and clocks, commercial signs, pieces of glass, etc.

Sebti has exhibited previously in Greenville, including a show at The Mushroom, and in eastern North Carolina at places such as EEII's in Belhaven. He also has had shows in Morocco, including one at the U.S. Cultural Center in Casablanca.

Sebti has lived in Greenville since 1972, and is currently a member of the Greenville Fire Department.

Report Jelly Sales Boom Across State

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Jaycees say their grape jelly sales have never been better despite the adverse publicity the organization received several months ago in the "Jamscam" scandal.

"People who used to buy one or two jars are now buying five," said state President John Lowery of Lincolnton. "It's funny how the 'Jamscam' thing seems to have helped."

"Jamscam" refers to public disclosures by some Jaycee members that money raised through the grape jelly sales for charitable purposes had been diverted by Jaycee officials for other purposes, including membership fees for fake Jaycee chapters.

Lowery said that the Jaycees have "the highest number of chapters participating ever, about 70 to 80 percent," in the current sale which began Jan. 19.

Interest has been so high, Lowery said, that the Jaycees may contribute an additional $200,000 to the North Carolina Jaycee Burn Center in Chapel Hill. About $400,000 has already been given to the $2.3 million burn center, a regional facility dedicated in November for treatment, research and education concerning burn-related injuries.

Lowery said the Jaycees had considered doing away with jelly sales in the aftermath of the scandal, but finally decided to keep the program because no other fund-raising technique has been so consistently successful.

"People maybe sympathize with us," Lowery said, "because they know the Jaycees are a good organization. I've been astounded by the support across the state this year."

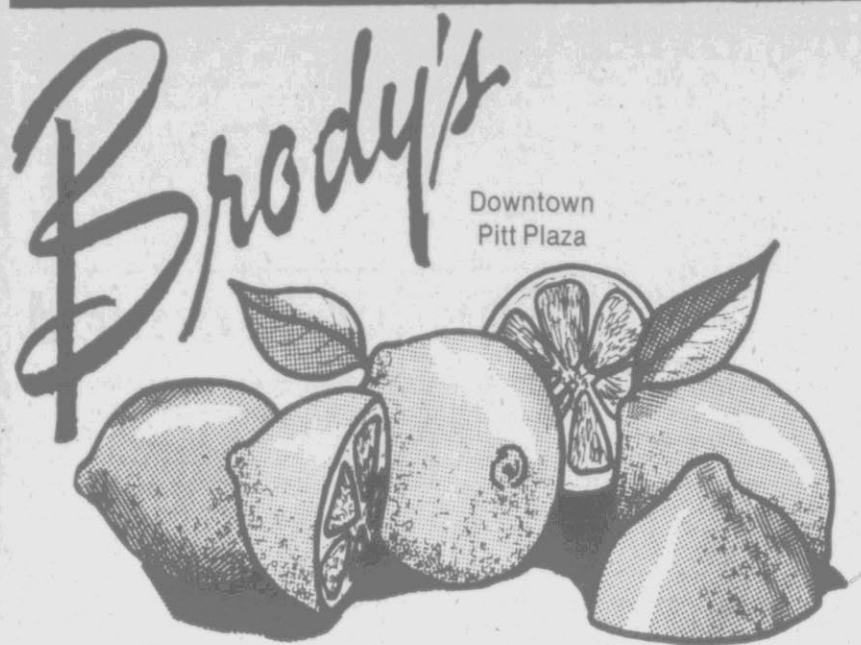

Lowery said he believed the Jamscam matter has been put to rest. He and other Jaycee leaders pledged last year to repay about $191,000 diverted from the Jaycee Foundation to other matters.

Jaycee officials admitted the jelly money was used to pay national membership dues for non-existent Jaycee members and even "paper chapters" of Jaycees who existed only in rollbooks.

Cars Collide At Intersection

Police Department investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $200 to the Wilkerson car and $800 to the Garrett vehicle.

Starr Heads Fund Drive For Center

W. Douglas Starr of Greenville has been named to head the $1 million Capital Fund Drive for the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center to be begun Feb. 1.

It is hoped that $225,000 can be raised in Pitt County and $75,000 in Martin County, Starr said, with another $200,000 to come as special gifts; $200,000 from various benevolent foundations; $150,000 from the State of North Carolina and $150,000 from Pitt and Martin County commissioners. Flu Epidemic Reports Heard

ATLANTA (AP) — Flu specialists are already deciding how to mix their potions to combat next year's sneezes, sniffles and fevers, but they've delayed — until probably next month — a decision on how many strains of the virus to attack.

The annual Surgeon General's Meeting on Influenza, a gathering of academic specialists and public health officials from around the nation, recommended Tuesday that next season's vaccine keep the components that fight the A-Bangkok and B-Singapore strains.

A decision to combat a third strain, A-Brazil, was left up in the air.

Gathered at the National Centers for Disease Control here, the experts heard influenza reports from Rochester, N.Y.; Tecumseh, Mich.; and Houston, which confirmed CDC reports that influenza outbreaks this season were severe, said spokesman Don Berreth.

Reports indicated "the influenza caused by A-Bangkok virus peaked just before school Christmas vacation, dropped during the two weeks (of Christmas vacation), and is rising again," Berreth said. No exact figures were presented.

The influenza meeting is held annually to make recommendations on the technical formulation of vaccines for the next flu season. It is attended by representatives from the CDC and the National Institutes of Health and influenza experts from universities, state health departments and vaccine manufacturers.

The CDC's latest influenza report showed the number of deaths from flu and pneumonia has risen for six consecutive weeks. Widespread outbreaks of flu were reported in 13 states and regional outbreaks occurred in 24 states.

Widespread outbreaks are those occurring in counties with more than 50 percent of a state's population, while regional outbreaks occur in counties with less than 50 percent of the population.

Berreth said the large outbreaks this season meet the CDC's definition of epidemic — a greater than expected number of cases of the disease.

Widespread outbreaks of influenza have been reported this winter in Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Virginia, North Carolina, Indiana, Minnesota, Arkansas, Colorado, North Dakota, Utah, Alaska and Oregon.

Regional outbreaks were reported in Connecticut, New Hampshire, Vermont, New Jersey, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Montana, South Dakota, California, Nevada and Idaho.

Jersey, Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Montana, South Dakota, California, Nevada and Idaho.

Police Told 'Get Tough'

DEADLY FORCE — Terre Haute Police Chief Gerald Loudermilk takes aim at the problem of crime in this Indiana City. He recently issued a new gun policy designed to give officers a freer hand in using their weapons in dangerous situations. (AP Laserphoto)

By MASHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer
TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Roy McMasters says he would rather play Russian roulette than go jogging in Terre Haute, where the police chief has just instituted a "shoot-to-kill" policy.

and he dropped a fully loaded weapon," he said. "When I asked them why they didn't shoot, the only thing they could tell me is that they could have, but they didn't know whether they'd get in trouble. They didn't know whether we'd get sued."

"If my people are out there thinking like that, I'm going to end up with a dead police officer on my hands," Loudermilk said.

In Loudermilk's 19 years on the force, however, no Terre Haute police officer has been shot or wounded in the line of duty.

And crime may be up here, but the rate is one many other cities this size might envy.

There were four murders in 1980, up from three in 1979. Robberies almost doubled last year, to just under 150. There were 20 rapes and 67 aggravated assaults in 1980, compared with 14 rapes and 38 assaults in 1979.

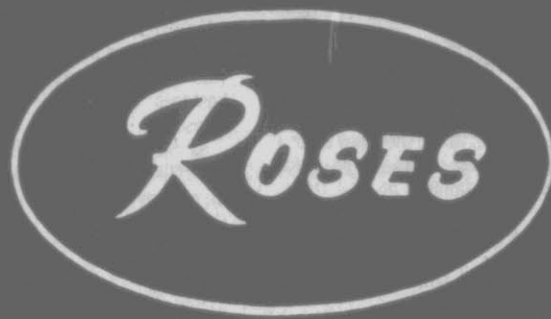

But Loudermilk said he isn't taking any chances. Since he was made chief a year ago, he has collected $7,000 in private donations to form and outfit a special 30-member tactical unit. The unit, equipped with the most modern weapons, will be even tougher and more prepared for emergency than the riot squad that it will replace.

That might be great news in some big cities, but in Terre Haute, the riot squad hasn't been used in years. The last time it was called out was 10 years ago, to help quell a racial disturbance on the Indiana State University campus, Loudermilk said.

Despite the contrast between the city's mild history and Loudermilk's tough talk, most response has been favorable. There has been some criticism, like that from McMasters, an inmate at the federal prison here whose comments were printed in the Terre Haute Tribune.

Under the old policy, there was always a question in a police officer's mind as to whether or not he would get in trouble if he used his gun," Loudermilk said. He decided to issue the policy after two city officers failed to shoot a robbery suspect leaving a house, he said.

"They chased him down,

Chamber Requests Interchange

The board of directors of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce unanimously adopted a resolution requesting an interchange on the new location of U.S. 264 between Farmville and Greenville at its regular meeting Friday.

According to Bob Griffin, chairman of the board, the resolution requests the N.C. Department of Transportation to consider providing an interchange on the new U.S. 264 thoroughfare between Farmville and Greenville allowing county residents who live along the Stantonsburg Road to gain access to the new facility without driving either to Farmville or Greenville.

Board members discussed the population and subdivision growth along the Stantonsburg Road area prior to adopting the resolution. President Ed Walker also reported that the Pitt County commissioners and the Town Council of Farmville have recently adopted similar resolutions promoting the interchange.

The resolution will be mailed to Tom Bradshaw, N.C. Department of Transportation secretary.

Now, Going Home

"Mr. President, I give you ... 53 Americans who will always have a love affair with this country and who join you in a prayer of thanksgiving for the way in which this crisis has strengthened the spirit and resilience and strength that is the mark of a truly free country," Laingen said. Thousands upon thousands of people — 250,000 by one

Washington police estimate — lined the former hostages' route to the White House from Andrews Air Force Base, where they flew after a two-day rest period with their families at West Point, N.Y. On their way from the White House to their hotel, they stopped at the State Department for another rousing welcome.

Government workers emptied out of office buildings along Pennsylvania Avenue, sidewalks were a sea of yellow ribbons, and a huge American flag hung over the avenue in an archway formed by the ladders of two fire trucks.

"We knew we would get a big reception, but I don't think any of us was really prepared for how wonderful it was," said Steven M. Lauterbach, 29, of Dayton, Ohio, who was an administrative officer at the embassy. "It just stunned us."

"The American people would never forget us or turn on us," said political officer William J. Daugherty. "The Iranians tried to tell us they would, but we didn't believe it."

In addition to the 52 freed last week, Reagan invited to the ceremony Richard Queen, the hostage released last summer because of illness; 13 hostages who gained their freedom earlier; family members; relatives of the eight men killed in the aborted commando raid last April; the surviving members of the raiding party; six other Americans who escaped Iran with the help of Canadian officials; and government and congressional leaders.

"This closes the chapter for us," said the father of one of the men who died in the rescue raid.

The events of the day left Reagan teary-eyed, just as his meeting with the former hostages' families did Sunday and as a report on the treatment of the hostages in Tehran did Monday.

Reagan's voice broke with emotion at one point when he was talking to the former hostages inside the White House.

As the president and first lady Nancy Reagan watched them arrive at the White House in commuter buses, "they both started to tear up there and Mrs. Reagan went to get some more tissues," White House press secretary

James S. Brady said.

The president gave each of the 52 just-freed Americans and Queen a miniature U.S. flag in a rosewood box, accompanied by a card he signed Tuesday morning in the Oval Office. He said each would be given one of the 53 flags that flew behind them on the White House South Lawn.

PERIODONTAL DISEASE-EARLY DIAGNOSIS

You have just completed your regular dental checkup. You breathe a sigh of relief. "No cavities, but your gums are in poor shape." You are mistakenly relieved. The sad fact is that more teeth are lost because of periodontal disease (gum disease) than from any other factor, including cavities.

Fortunately, it can be treated successfully if it is diagnosed early. Unfortunately, you have no way of knowing of its onset other than by dental examination because there is normally no pain or other symptoms in its early stages.

Once this silent disorder advances, though, the gums and even the jawbone may become inflamed and eventually break down. But this extreme can be avoided if the dentist regularly examines your mouth both visually and with x-rays. He can determine whether there have been any changes in the mouth tissues or the bone around your teeth. He will also look for early tooth decay, impaction, tumors in the jaw area and abscesses in tooth roots. To insure healthy gums and teeth, you must combine regular dental examinations with effective brushing and flossing.

A public service with the aim of promoting a better dental health environment. From the dentists of Pitt County.

Siamese Twins Died In Separation Operation

By ANNE PERRY
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nine-day-old Siamese twins died after a daylong operation in which doctors partially separated them only to discover the girls' hearts were fused, says a spokeswoman for Vanderbilt Medical Center.

The twins, Samantha Dawn and Marie Lynn Self, were joined from the top of the sternum to the navel. They died late Tuesday after about nine hours of surgery, said Ginger Carnahan.

The babies' parents, Katherine Self, 18, and Roger Self, 19, of Maryville, were unavailable for comment after the deaths were announced. It was Mrs. Self's first pregnancy.

Dr. James O'Neill, who led the surgical team, said the twins "were just not able to survive."

"We were able to do the majority of the abdominal area until we realized there was a problem above that couldn't be fixed," he said.

Ms. Carnahan said the babies' hearts "were found to be completely fused, and this proved to be uncorrectable."

The Sels agreed to permit an autopsy, Ms. Carnahan said. Funeral arrangements were pending.

The full-term babies were born by Caesarean section Jan. 18 at the University of Tennessee Memorial Hospital in Knoxville.

They were immediately moved to the Vanderbilt facility where a 15-member medical team performed extensive tests to try to determine what organs the infants shared.

Tests showed the twins had separate stomachs and reproductive organs, but shared a large liver. The heart fusion didn't show up in the tests.

Doctors scheduled the operation, with the Sels' permission, after the twins' condition stabilized.

O'Neill said the separation "was the only alternative we had."

Without the operation, the twins would not have lived "many more days," he said. Siamese twins occur about once in every 50,000 births.

A federal program that provides charity care will help defray the family's medical costs, Vanderbilt officials said. The hospital also received offers of money and other assistance for the parents from concerned citizens, Ms. Carnahan said.

Gov. Declares An Emergency

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Lee Dreyfus has declared a highway emergency to speed federal funds for the repair of a Mississippi River bridge that has been closed.

The closing of the bridge, which connects Prairie du Chien, Wis., with two small Iowa farming communities, affects the health, welfare and safety of residents in both states, Dreyfus said Tuesday.

The span, which carries U.S. 18 across the river, was closed Jan. 16 because of a crack in a steel beam. The nearest bridge is 30 miles upstream.

POPULATION PROSPECT

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The world's population is expected to climb from 4.3 billion to about 6 billion by the year 2000 and could be 12 billion by the middle of the next century, a U.N. official projects.

REVIVAL SERVICES

Revival services will begin Monday and continue through Friday night at Popular Hill Free Will Baptist Church, beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening. Guest speaker will be the Rev. Willie Joyner.

Church pastor, the Rev. Jasper Tyson, invited the public to attend.

'Desertion' Is Ruled Out

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood has won a court-ordered acquittal on the government's charge that he deserted in Vietnam but a military judge, who said he feels "sympathy for the accused," let stand an allegation that Garwood collaborated with the enemy.

The surprise ruling by Col. R.E. Switzer came Tuesday on a routine defense motion calling for dismissal of all charges against Garwood, 34, an Indiana native who spent 14 years in Vietnam after disappearing from public view in 1965.

Switzer also dismissed charges that Garwood attempted to persuade other Americans to stop fighting and that he verbally abused a U.S. prisoner of war.

In addition to the multi-count collaboration charge, Garwood still faces a decision by the five-officer jury on an allegation that he physically abused Army Pfc. David N. Harker by striking him in the ribs.

Conviction on the collaboration charge, viewed by the prosecution as the most serious of the allegations, could result in life imprisonment and forfeiture of the $147,000 in back pay credited to Garwood's account during his stay in Vietnam.

Switzer said that, in the 11 weeks of testimony, the prosecution had failed to offer evidence that would convince a reasonable person that Garwood was guilty of the three charges. Later, in an interview, Switzer said his action in allowing the other charges to go to the jury "does not mean that I feel the accused is guilty of the remaining charges."

In the courtroom, Switzer also told the opposing attorneys: "I do have sympathy for the accused. I have a great deal of empathy for him, having led men in combat in my early years."

The jury is scheduled to hear closing arguments next Monday before beginning its deliberation.

Garwood appeared somewhat surprised at Switzer's announcement, but a smile played across his face when the decision registered on him.

"Justice is happening," defense lawyer Vaughan Taylor said. Prosecutors would not comment.

In calling for dismissal of the charges, chief defense attorney John Lowe compared Garwood's treatment at the hands of the Viet Cong to that of the former American hostages in Iran. He said the hostages were shown in news film telling of the humane treatment they had received in Iran, but now stories of torture are surfacing.

"The symptoms they have described could very well be Bobby Garwood talking," Lowe said.

But, Lowe said, "There will be no ticker-tape parades for Bobby Garwood, there will be no medals from the president. There will just be a long road back to humanity through years of psychotherapy. Let there be no doubt about that."

The defense called several medical witnesses who testified that Garwood suffered from a mental disease that had been aggravated by physical and mental torture by the Viet Cong. Psychiatrists testified that the illness had developed in Vietnam to the extent that Garwood was not aware of any criminality involved in his actions to survive.

The solicitation charge dismissed by Switzer accused Garwood of using a bullhorn to try to persuade American soldiers to give up. The prosecution never presented any testimony that Garwood took part in such appeals.

The verbal maltreatment charge specified that Garwood told Army 1st Sgt. Richard F. Williams, "I spit on you and all people like you disgust me" and "You're in the military only for the retirement, blood money made off Vietnamese people."

Williams died while in captivity but Harker, who is now a parole official in Virginia, testified that he was struck by Garwood while in a jungle prison camp. He said he would give Garwood "the benefit of the doubt" and say that the blow was a backhanded slap. Other witnesses said Garwood delivered a "sucker punch" or light blow.

Several POWs testified that Garwood wore the uniform of the North Vietnamese, carried a rifle for his captors, served as an interpreter and took up the cause of the enemy.

Garwood did not testify but details of his story were relayed to the jury by the psychiatrists testifying for his defense. The witnesses quoted Garwood as saying he was captured while serving as a jeep driver near Da Nang and subsequently was housed at various Viet Cong POW camps, eventually winding up near Hanoi.

The Marine returned to the United States in 1979 after passing a clandestine note to a Finnish businessman during a chance meeting in a Hanoi restaurant.

CUTTING BACK

PEKING (AP) — China plans to further cut back its military spending, which was reduced 13.2 percent last year to about $13 billion, the Xinhua news agency reports. No estimate of the 1981 expenditure was announced. No estimate of the 1981 expenditure was announced.

Make-Believe Town Teaches Kids Economic Facts

By MARK PETERSON
Associated Press Writer
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — It's tough turning a profit in these hard economic times. Just ask 10-year-old Keith Jacobs.

"Business is pretty lousy," moaned Keith, the recent proprietor of an Exchange City jewelry shop. "We're lowering prices, and I guess we're going to have to do some advertising on the radio. I'm worried about the bank loan."

The picture was even bleaker at James Games, just across Town Square Business there was so bad that owner James Bengal was considering cutting salaries. He too owed the bank money, and with only one game sold by midday, the heat was on.

Luckily for Keith, James and thousands of other Kansas City youngsters, Exchange City is just a make-believe town run by kids. There'll be no collection agencies biting at their heels if debts go unpaid. They'll simply have to try to figure out, along with teachers and classmates, what went wrong.

"Making the students aware of how economic concepts relate to real life is our goal," said Ellen Pittman, program director at the mini-town where children become bankers, producers, shopkeepers and consumers for a day. "It's sink or swim. Some of them make a profit, others go broke."

"We want the kids to see what goes on in the economic world before they have to get out and really deal with it," Janice Kreamer, founder and executive director of Exchange City, said. "The dismal state of our national condition points up the need to educate people at an earlier age."

Other educators seem to agree. The program, part of Kansas City's Learning Exchange, a non-profit teacher resource center, is booked through the end of the school year. An estimated 5,000 youngsters will participate before June.

Mrs. Kreamer, 33, conceived Exchange City two years ago. The 8,500-square-foot town, located inside what was an empty warehouse, has its own bank, snack shop, city hall, retail shops, newspaper, radio station, factory and computer game center.

"Townfolk" spend half the day earning money, half the day as consumers. Each of the more than 60 jobs has its own set of responsibilities. For example, managers of retail shops are responsible for paying rent and taxes, signing paychecks and keeping the books. They take out bank loans to buy stock in the town's factory, where small easy-to-assemble games like 3-D tick-tack-toe and tiddlywinks are churned out.

Pupils spend four weeks preparing in the classroom for the one day they'll spend as junior capitalists. They study basic economic principles, fill out job applications and interview with teachers for the position they want.

Mrs. Kreamer said fifth-graders were chosen for the program because many youngsters get their first jobs baby sitting, shoveling snow or mowing lawns at that age.

Mrs. Pittman said what makes the program unique is the degree of authenticity, right down to the brick storefronts. "Everything here works, from the communications system to the assembly line and time clock in the factory," Ms. Pittman said.

The town was built with a $100,000 grant from Hallmark Cards Inc., Mrs. Kreamer said, and beginning next school year, a large chunk of the $140,000 annual operating cost will be paid with grants from several business foundations. The rest will come from fees that schools pay to use the facility, about $125 per year to send up to three classrooms to Exchange City.

Once the business day begins, Exchange City usually hops.

"We had two kids go in and rob the bank last week," Ms. Pittman said. "That really stirred things up."

She said the town's tiny police officer quickly apprehended the bandits and dragged them before a judge.

Beneath the headline, "Bank Robbed," that day's newspaper reported the culprits were fined $5 each, more than one-third their play money earnings for the day. An announcer for the radio station, ECLX, broadcast news of the heist over the town's public address system.

The facade of the pilfered bank hints at the neo-classic architecture style popular in Kansas City around the 1920s, while other building fronts "connote a world of tomorrow," said Herb Duncan, who helped design the city.

"We did not try to 'kid-proof it'" Duncan said. "Exchange City is not a juvenile experience." Indeed, Exchange City is much more than child's play.

"What I learned about economics was great," said Sheri Watts, a fifth grader from Shawnee Mission School District in Kansas. "I thought it was very neat." Todd Flagler, who ran a successful T-shirt business, learned how to take advantage of a hot item. With a line of customers waiting to buy his product, 10-year-old Todd jacked up the price of a T-shirt from $2.50 to $3. A few waiting customers groaned, but none left.

'Hotline' For Lawn Products

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — A lawn products manufacturer has changed his hotline number for homeowners seeking quick answers to specific lawn questions. The new number is (800) 543-TURF, except in Ohio, where the number remains (800) 762-4010. The company's customer-service WATS system has 12 lines manned by experts during weekday business hours. Last year they handled about 93,000 calls for O.M. Scott and Sons.

MONKEY BUSINESS — Pebble Doll, owner-operator of Pebble's Pet Palace in Barberton, Ohio, holds her two capuchin monkeys, Willie and Poncho. The monkeys are to be trained to help quadriplegics such as seeing eye dogs are trained to help the blind. Miss Doll, herself a paraplegic, is in a legal battle with Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, Mass. to keep the monkeys. The monkeys originally came from Tufts, and they have sought to regain them with a suit filed in Summit County Pleas Court. (AP Laserphoto)

Push Sharing In Divorce Cases

By W.A. WERONKA JR.
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Several witnesses urged a Senate committee Tuesday to approve legislation providing for equal distribution of property in divorce cases, but those backing the proposal disagreed sharply on what form of legislation is needed to accomplish their goal.

The testimony came at a hearing by the Senate Judiciary III Committee on a legislative day devoted almost entirely to committee activity. The House and the Senate met for about 15 minutes, with no action taken in either chamber.

A package of bills aimed at cracking down on the trafficking of stolen valuables was filed in the House. And, the House and Senate committees on congressional redistricting met for the first time.

Two bills concerning equal distribution of property already have been introduced in the 1981 session. The first, and simpler bill, calls for equal distribution of property acquired by either spouse during the marriage, including inherited property. Such awards would be in addition to alimony or child support awards.

The second, and lengthier bill, has the same goal but would not allow for the division of inherited property.

The first bill, proposed by Sen. Bill Redman, R-Statesville, is based almost word-for-word on current New Jersey law, which was among the nation's first equitable distribution statutes. It was enacted in 1971.

Redman told the committee the New Jersey law should be used as a model because it has withstood a number of court tests. However, he added that the weakness of the law is its lack of definition of the property to be distributed.

Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gastonia, introduced the second bill. "I felt it necessary to define marital property and spell out some considerations to be made by the court in the consideration of equitable distribution," she said.

Meyressa Schoonmaker, a Winston-Salem attorney who helped Ms. Marvin draft the bill, told the committee "both bills have one common goal of recognizing the contribution by the partner who cares for the children...."

North Carolina should learn from the New Jersey law, but include a clearer definition of property and methods of distributing the property in its laws, Ms. Schoonmaker said.

Ms. Marvin's bill calls for judges to consider such factors as the income of each spouse, the length of the marriage, the need of a parent to occupy the home and the mental health of each spouse in dividing up property upon divorce.

Ms. Schoonmaker predicted the bill probably would reduce the number of court cases by making it easier for the couple to divide property without a judge's help.

Stolen Goods
A pair of Charlotte Democrats, Reps. Parks Helms and Ben Tison, sponsored measures to help law enforcement agencies trace stolen goods and obtain convictions in fencing operations.

One of the bills would regulate dealers of second-hand precious metals — gold, silver and platinum — by requiring them to post a $10,000 bond and undergo investigation by county sheriff's departments before being granted a license to operate.

The bill would prohibit second-hand metal dealers from operating in trailers and mobile homes and it would require dealers to report transactions to law enforcement agencies.

The other bill would allow prosecutors to obtain convictions of people receiving goods when the accused "believes or has reason to believe" the goods are stolen.

A third bill would allow a personal income deduction of up to $3,000 for installing home burglar alarms.

Redistricting
House and Senate committees on congressional redistricting got started on their chores and received a warning that whatever reapportionment plan they devise stands a good chance of facing a lengthy and complicated federal court challenge.

"There is, I regret to say, a strong probability whatever we decide may end up in court," said Sen. Helen Marvin, D-Gastonia, chairman of the Senate panel. "Given the mood and times, the likelihood of legal challenge must be recognized."

Lawyers for the committee warned they should be careful to avoid opening their plan to challenge on constitutional grounds or on the basis of the 1964 voting rights act. As a result, the chairmen said all meetings would be tape-recorded and transcribed for an official record, and public hearings may be held in the far eastern and western sections of the state.

Budget
A legislative budget committee began its search for budget cuts by starting with the General Assembly's own spending. The general government subcommittee of the joint Base Budget Committee agreed to trim $185,000 budgeted for the General Assembly next year.

The money was cut by reducing the budget projection for the length of the 1982 session from 10 weeks to nine weeks. Even at that rate, however, next year's session would still run about twice as long as the Legislature has normally met for its even-numbered year short session.

Colleges
Legislation requiring stricter accounting of spending by local community colleges was filed in the House by Helms, who said the measure was recommended by the state Community College Board.

The bill would require for the first time that local community and technical colleges provide separate accounting of how they spend state and local money.

CPA's
The House Judiciary III Committee approved a bill that would force certified public accountants from outside the United States to pass a national examination before they could practice in North Carolina.

Currently, the Board of CPA Examiners has the authority to review a foreign accountant's credentials and decide whether he should be able to practice in the state.

Orders Jaycees To Open Doors

BOSTON (AP) — The national Jaycees' policy of excluding women from membership violates state law, and local chapters must admit women, a member of the state Commission Against Discrimination has ruled.

Commissioner Sam Stonefield said in a 44-page decision Tuesday that excluding women violates the state's public accommodation law.

Energy stocks had led Tuesday's rally, with investor interest stemming from the Reagan administration's announcement that it would order removal today of the remaining oil price and allocation controls that would otherwise have expired in September.

Among today's prices, Exxon was down 1/8 at 77 1/2 after gaining 1 1/2 on Tuesday when it reported a slight decline in its latest quarterly profits.

Analysts said the market was anticipating a decline in the prime corporate lending rates charged by major banks.

Shortly after the market opened, Marine Midland Bank announced a half-point reduction in its prime to 19.5 percent. The prime has been stuck at 20 percent at most big banks for about three weeks.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 10.58 to 949.49 after losing more than 33 points in the previous six sessions.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 9-5 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 42.26 million shares, against 35.38 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .74 to 75.19. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 4.84 at 343.41.

Several Want Colorful Tags

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In some states they're plain. In others, they bear the silhouette of trees or bells.

They are automobile license plates and no matter what they show, they're often the last thing many people remember about a state.

At least that's the argument of several state legislators who want to jazz up the plain, red-and-white North Carolina tags.

A bill filed Tuesday by Sens. Henson Barnes, D-Goldsboro; Melvin Daniels, D-Elizabeth City; J. J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Lewisville; and Bill Redman, R-Statesville, would put the words "First in Flight" at the top of the state license plate.

The bill also would place a replica of the historic Wright brothers biplane and the dunes of Kitty Hawk in the background of the license plate. "People tend to look at the palmetto tree on the South Carolina tag and the sun on the New Mexico tag," said Redman, who tried unsuccessfully to introduce the bill in 1979. "I think this is something people would like to see."

The Wright brothers made man's first powered flight in December 1903 on the North Carolina coast at Kitty Hawk.

The North Carolina license plate was not always plain. It used to carry the phrase "First in Freedom," referring to the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence which was signed in Charlotte before the national Declaration of Independence was signed.

But in 1975, some North Carolina residents placed masking tape across the slogan to obscure it. The courts upheld that action and the slogan was removed.

"That was a good phrase. I liked it but it was an abstract idea," Barnes said. "The folks on the Mayflower and in Philadelphia could make the same claim. But this is a fact you can't get around."

Redman agreed, adding that, "this should not alienate anyone."

Both indicted they've received positive feedback on the proposal, which would require all plates made for use after 1981 to bear the insignia.

PTA Ire Is Stirred By New Lobby

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A newly formed alliance of public school officials and the state Congress of Parents and Teachers has raised the ire of the North Carolina Association of Educators, which says it will not "look kindly" to any attempts to revise pay schedules it helped devise.

Loretta M. Martin of Thomasville, president of the NCAE, said Tuesday the new alliance may be "anti-teacher" and was especially critical of the PTA's participation.

"The last time I looked, the 'T' in PTA still stood for teachers," Mrs. Martin said, warning that the PTA "should not be surprised to find teachers less willing to join its local units, to attend meetings on their own time at night, and to participate in the typical fund-raising activities that PTA's sponsor."

In addition to the PTA, the alliance includes the North Carolina Association of School Administrators and the North Carolina School Boards Association.

Spokesmen for the alliance said Monday it would lobby in the Legislature for its views on 10 education issues, including revision of pay schedules for school employees and opposition to collective bargaining by school employees.

Other programs targeted by the alliance included opposition to state financing of private elementary and secondary schools, support for the proposed $600 million school bond referendum, opposition to state-mandated programs that don't include financing, clarification of state laws on programs for exceptional children, re-drawing state laws on education, resolution of financing inequities, and assurance of lay representation on the state board of education.

Mrs. Martin, who noted the pay schedules are still in their first year, said the proposed revision was "another attempt by some administrators to raise their own salaries at the expense of teachers."

Rams, DHC Tied For First; Panthers 1/2-Game Back

North Pitt's Best Too Much For Rams, 55-48

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — North Pitt played its best basketball game of the 1980 season Tuesday night and it could not have come at a better time for the Panthers, or a worse time for Greene Central.

Going into the game, the Rams led the Eastern Carolina Conference by one game over D.H. Conley and a game and a half over North Pitt. No more. The Rams have the Panthers to thank for that.

Bouyed by the return of swingman Greg Hines from the sick bed, North Pitt surged to a 55-48 win over Greene Central Tuesday night. The victory, the Panthers seventh straight, moved North Pitt within a half game of first place with a 9-3 league record.

The loss drops the Rams to 9-2 in the league and, coupled with D.H. Conley's 58-51 win last night over Ayden-Grifton, leaves them tied with the Vikings for first. North Pitt plays D.H. Conley Friday night.

"This was a good team effort from minute one to the last minute," North Pitt coach Cobbie Deans said.

"We took some good shots and really played well offensively."

"We moved the ball around well and looked for the good shots and for the good shooters. With the exception of the defensive boards this was the best game we've played all season."

"We were kind of fired up for them," added Deans, whose club had lost a 55-45 decision to Greene Central earlier in the year. "We wanted to play."

It would be hard to play much better than the Panthers did Tuesday night. Going into the game, Deans said he thought his team was ready and few in the rowdy crowd Tuesday night would disagree.

For the game, North Pitt, the ECC's top shooting team (52%), hit nearly 60 percent from the floor (22-37) and turned the ball over only nine times. Greene Central, the league's worst shooting team from the floor (39%), hit 46.6 percent from the field (21-45) and had 13 turnovers.

The Rams, now 13-4 overall, won the battle of the boards, outrebounding North Pitt, 23-14, led by Phillip Hill's nine rebounds. But North Pitt shooting and all-around play offset the deficit on the boards.

The Panthers, now 10-8 overall, were led by Hines' 15 points and Dennis Bradley's 13. Both Vince Parker and Ronnie House had 10 each. Greene Central was led by David Joyner and Hill, both of whom had 12 points, and John Ray, who had 10.

Eight of Joyner's 12 points came in the final eight minutes when the Rams sliced a 14-point lead to six only to see the Panthers rebuild it behind the shooting of House, Hines and Bradley.

The Rams, who never led, trailed at the end of third period, 40-26, before outscoring the Panthers 11-3 in the first four minutes of the final period and cut the deficit to 43-37. During that run, Ray scored twice inside and Hill had a three-point play.

It was as close as the Rams would get.

Moments after a time out, North Pitt's Bradley scored on a layup and added two free throws to push the margin back to 10, 47-37. The Rams cut it to seven on two 20-foot jumpers by Joyner, but House then drove the lane for a twisting layup and added four free throws in the last minute to give the Panthers a 55-43 cushion with 55 seconds left and all but seal the victory.

"We didn't play that bad," Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin said. "We had a bad night shooting but they played

Lady Rams Endure 3 OTs For Victory

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

BETHEL — First came overtime #1. As if that wasn't enough there was overtime #2. And just for good measure overtime #3 was thrown in. All of which ended up serving as an apt preface for the North Pitt-Greene Central boys' game.

It took those three overtimes to decide the girls game Tuesday night and when the 32 minutes of regulation and nine minutes of overtime was complete, Greene Central endured, 54-52, longer than North Pitt.

For the Lady Rams it was their seventh victory in 11 outings. Greene Central is 4-7 in the ECC.

"I'm pleased, but I'm pleased to win any game we can," Greene Central Jim Fulghum said. "I thought we got a good effort from our girls. Some of my girls have been sick and we haven't had the whole team together in two weeks."

"I especially thought we got a good effort from Letha Taylor. She had been out with the flu but she came back strong tonight."

Taylor scored 17 points on the night but it was teammate Sharon Suggs who carried the burden in overtime. Suggs scored 18 points, eight of which came in the three overtimes.

For a while, however, it looked like the game might end on time. But the Lady Rams wouldn't have that. Trailing 36-32 with 1 1/2 minutes left, Greene Central tied it at 38-38 on two free throws and a field goal by Taylor and a layup by Suggs.

In the first overtime neither team managed more than a one point lead and the first three extra minutes ended with the teams tied at 42-42.

The second overtime saw Greene Central move ahead, 48-45, on a bucket and two free throws by Suggs and a layup by Sylvia Swinson, but the Panthers rallied.

North Pitt tied it up on a follow shot by Linda Harrell and had a chance to win it with two seconds left when Greene Central was tagged with a technical for calling a timeout the Rams didn't have. But Jeannette Brown, who ended the night with a game-high 20 points before fouling out in the third overtime, missed the technical to send the game into a third OT.

"I couldn't believe she missed that free throw," North Pitt coach Randy Avery said. "But that's the toughest kind to hit. You're out there all alone with no one on the foul line and the fans screaming."

It was Avery who did much of the screaming in the final extra period. While he watched, Suggs canned two free throws and put in a follow shot and Swinson took a pass underneath for a bucket to give Greene Central a 54-50 lead with 31 seconds left.

Harrell scored inside moments later for North Pitt but it wasn't enough as the Pant-HERS dropped to 7-11 overall and 4-8 in the league.

"We had our chances," Avery said. "We hadn't ever been in this type of situation and maybe that hurt us. It was a learning experience, that's for sure."

Greene Central led after the first period, 10-9. The Pant-HERS, employing a full-court 2-2-1 press and switching defenses throughout the game, managed to take a 22-19 lead at the half.

North Pitt continued to lead at the end of the third period (27-25) only to see the Lady Rams tie it up and send the game into overtime — three of them.

Terps Taken To OT; Duke Nips Rutgers

By The Associated Press

A pair of Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams traveled north Wednesday night and found Yankee territory a little inhospitable, as 14th-ranked Maryland needed a late surge from Buck Williams to pull off an overtime victory over Pittsburgh and Duke just got by Rutgers, 53-51.

In Pittsburgh, Williams, held to seven points in regulation play, scored six crucial points in overtime to lead the Terps to a 69-66 victory.

Pitt held a seven-point lead with 2:56 left in the second half. But Albert King hit a bank shot and followed with a three-point play to cut the margin to 62-60. Teammate Greg Manning scored on a baseline drive to tie the score at 62-62.

Maryland gained the last possession, ran down the clock, but Greg Morley missed a 15-foot jumper with one second left to send the contest into overtime.

The 6-foot-8 Williams began his heroics by putting Maryland ahead to stay, 64-62, with 3:59 left in overtime on a basket underneath. Williams followed with a pair of free throws.

A jump shot by Pitt guard Dwayne Wallace with 24 seconds left in overtime pulled Pitt to within 67-66, but Williams swished two more free throws with nine seconds on the clock to secure the victory that raised Maryland's record to 14-4.

In Piscataway, N.J., the surging Blue Devils — winners of three straight — employed its new slow-down offense and Gene Banks' 18 points to generate a win over Rutgers.

Rutgers had its chances to send the game into overtime, but Kelvin Troy missed three shots in the final seconds. Rutgers pushed the ball up the court to Troy, after Tom Emma missed on the front end of a one-and-one with 11 seconds left in the game and Duke leading 53-51.

Troy penetrated and got off a bank shot that rimmed the basket and fell out. Troy rebounded his own shot and again missed a bank, while his desperation tap-in attempt rimmed the basket and fell out at the buzzer.

The wins give the Blue Devils a 11-7 record.

In ACC action Wednesday night, Virginia, tied with Oregon State for No. 1, hosts sixth-ranked Wake Forest. North Carolina travels to Clemson, and North Carolina State meets Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Goals Not AP Poll Concern OS Coach

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller says he is not upset that his team has dropped into a tie with Virginia for the top spot in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

Miller says the poll doesn't have anything to do with his goals — winning the Pacific 10 Conference title and the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship.

Oregon State had been alone in the No. 1 spot for the past two weeks.

"It doesn't make that much difference to us," Miller said on Tuesday. "I think that anybody that understands the organization of the AP poll can see how it happened."

"It (the poll) can be basically dominated by the Eastern voters because they have far more in numbers than the West or the Midwest," Miller said. "The fact that Virginia looked very good on television, I hear, probably didn't hurt."

"It's unusual," he added. "Usually you have to get beat before you, in a sense, go down in the rankings. But to me individually its very immaterial because it has nothing to do with the project we have in mind or the goals we are trying

Ahoskie Stuns Roanoke

ROBERSONVILLE — Employing a slow-down attack throughout much of the game, Ahoskie, behind Glenn Mitchell's 22 points, stunned Roanoke, 40-39, Tuesday night in a Northeastern Conference basketball game.

Earlier, the Roanoke girls won their 16th game in 17 outings, defeating winless Ahoskie, 60-32.

Until Tuesday night Ahoskie's boys had won just two games while losing 12. But sparked by a four-corner attack that constantly got the ball in Mitchell's hands, the Cougars were able to stay close until a 16-8 fourth period led them to an upset of the Redskins, who are now 14-3 overall and 7-2 in the league. Ahoskie is 3-6 in the conference.

Despite the slowdown, Roanoke led after the first period, 10-8, and at the half, 22-16. The Redskins increased their lead to 31-24, entering the final eight minutes but Ahoskie outscored the home-standing Redskins by eight in the fourth quarter to escape with the victory.

Roanoke, which never led in the final period once it lost the lead midway through the quarter, had no one in double figures. Both Maurice Chance and Angelo Spruill had eight for the Redskins.

In the girls' game, Roanoke surged to a 16-4 lead after the first period and had little trouble from there in winning their eighth conference game.

Other Dooley Talks Peaches & Blizzard

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

If Bill Dooley's Virginia Tech team has a good year next season, he might be excused if he tries to find a bowl game other than the Peach to participate in.

Dooley has taken three teams, including this year's Gobblers, to the Peach, and each time has come away a loser. The VPI athletic director and head football coach was the speaker for the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

"We were fortunate enough to be invited to the Peach Bowl," he said of this year's club, "but I've had some unfortunate experiences there."

In 1970, Dooley's North Carolina team was ahead of unbeaten Arizona State, 26-21, at halftime, and a rare Atlanta blizzard was underway. "I told the players that we had them where we wanted them with the weather like it was. Those kids were all from out in the desert where the sun shone all the time. Well, they came back out and scored four times and we didn't score again. Turned out most of them were from Ohio and Pennsylvania and states like that."

In 1976, Carolina again went to the Peach, and in the practice sessions, his top runner Mike Voight was injured and missed the contest with Kentucky. Dooley praised the player who stepped in for Voight, Greenville freshman Doug Paschal, but it wasn't enough as the Wildcats gained the victory.

Louisville 'Eyeing' Daylight At End Of Tunnel

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Now that the Louisville Cardinals have regained their shooting eye perhaps they can start to see daylight at the end of the tunnel.

College basketball's defending national champions finally put it all together Tuesday night, shooting 57 percent — their season average was only 46 percent — in trouncing Providence 71-55 at Louisville. The victory still left them under the .500 mark at 7-8.

"If we can just shoot and be relaxed we will be a good team," said 6-foot-6 forward Derek Smith, who led the Cardinals with 24 points, 12 rebounds and four assists. Louisville isn't thinking Top Twenty thoughts just yet but four ranked teams were in action and all won, although No. 14 Maryland had to come from seven points behind in the final three minutes before edging Pittsburgh 69-66 in overtime.

Meanwhile, eighth-ranked Notre Dame crushed Cornell 80-57, No. 16 South Alabama downed Jacksonville 55-48 and No. 20 Connecticut whipped Massachusetts 98-64.

In winning for the fifth time in its last six starts, Louisville connected on 28 of 49 shots from the floor.

have," said Coach Denny Crum. "The problem is we haven't been consistent. We would play well but shoot badly and couldn't get the parts together."

The Cardinals took command of the game with a 13-4 burst early in the second half — they shot 61.5 percent after the intermission — to open a 49-33 bulge. Smith had help from Jerry Eaves, who accounted for 19 points on 9-of-13 accuracy.

"My touch is coming back just as the team as a whole is shooting better," Eaves said. "Notre Dame had no trouble with Cornell as John Paxson scored 15 points, Tracy

Jackson added 14 by making seven consecutive shots and Kelly Tripucka had 13. The Irish trailed 10-6 before the Jackson-Paxson show sparked a 12-2 burst with four points apiece.

"We played without intensity early in the game," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps, who cleared his bench in the second half. "They hit some shots and we didn't do the right things defensively inside."

Cornell's Tom Miller thought the Irish could have named the score.

"I think Digger backed off on us a little bit and I appreciate that," he said. "We're not a very talented team. I think our kids will learn something in playing a team like this."

Albert King and Greg Manning rescued Maryland in regulation time and Buck Williams, held to seven points in the first 40 minutes, hit six in overtime to propel the Terrapins past Pitt.

Maryland trailed 62-55 with 2:56 left but King hit a bank shot and a three-point play and Manning's baseline drive tied the score with 1:27 to go. Williams put the Terrapins ahead to stay with a basket one minute into overtime and added a pair of free throws a minute later.

King was Maryland's high scorer with 23 points and Manning added 19 while Pitt got 17 apiece from Sam Clancy, Dwayne Wallace and Lenny McMillian.

"We came back and won. That's one thing we did good tonight," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, who noted his team was fortunate that Pitt missed some crucial free throws in the closing minutes. "We fouled right and they missed them," he said. "We were just lucky. If they had made them, we'd have lost. It was our night; it wasn't theirs."

Ed Rains scored four of his 18 points on late free throws to help South Alabama turn back Jacksonville in a Sun Belt

Conference game. After trailing by as many as 11 points, Jacksonville pulled within one early in the second half but four points by Tony Hafley gave South Alabama some breathing room.

Mike McKay and Chuck Aleksinas scored 18 points apiece to lead Connecticut over Massachusetts. The winners broke a 24-24 tie by scoring 15 consecutive points late in the first half, with McKay getting eight of them.

Elsewhere, Gene Banks' 18 points led Duke over Rutgers 53-51, Tulane shaded Cincinnati 65-60 in a Metro Conference game behind Joe Holston's 17 points, Western Carolina quandered a 14-point lead before overcoming Tennessee-Chattanooga 76-70 in Southern Conference action and Michael Jackson and Charles Bradley combined for 40 points as Wyoming stopped Nevada-Las Vegas Rebels 71-66.

At Binghamton, N.Y., Dick Baldwin became college basketball's fourth all-time winningest coach when Broome Community College defeated Alfred Tech 70-40. The 59-year-old Baldwin jumped past Ed Diddle of Western Kentucky with his 760th coaching triumph, all at Broome.

Some Night! Nuggets 143, Pistons 123

By The Associated Press
Nuggets Coach Doug Moe entered his team's game with the Detroit Pistons Tuesday night with a touch of fear. When it was over, Moe probably wished the Pistons would hang around in Denver a bit longer.

"I was scared to death going into this game," said Moe of the prospect of facing a Detroit squad which, despite the second-worst record in the National Basketball Association (13-41), had played well lately. "We can't afford a letdown against a team with a poor record. I thought it would be a tough game."

The only one it was tough on was the scorekeeper, who had to keep track of 266 points, 143 of them belonging to the Nuggets, 123 to the Pistons.

"I think our fast break just broke their defense down," added Moe, who saw his club score 80 points in the first half to establish an 80-62 advantage. "They got discouraged."

The Pistons had to be encouraged by their play recently. That's why Moe was worried prior to the game.

"Do you realize what they have done in their last four games?" he asked. "They beat Philly 82-75. Can you imagine that team holding Philly to 75 points?"

"Then they go into Boston and lose by two points, then beat Cleveland easy, then lose to Utah in the last minute."

But the Pistons couldn't hold the Nuggets to 75 points in the first 24 minutes and were demolished.

"We're sixth in the league in defense," noted Pistons Coach Scotty Robertson, "but we didn't play it tonight. We're not very good offensively but we've been able to stay in games by playing a little defense."

Dan Issel paced the Nuggets with 29 points, though he sat out most of the second half. David Thompson had 26 points without scoring in the final 15 minutes, and rookie Kiki Vandeweghe added 22.

Phil Hubbard led the Pistons with 24 points and John Long had 22.

Bullets 106, Hawks 104
Washington moved to its eighth win in the last nine outings while Atlanta dropped to 1-12 in January, its worst record ever for the month. Elvin Hayes had 23 points for the Bullets, including four crucial points down the stretch as he twice stretched Washington leads from one to three points.

Greg Ballard added 22 for the Bullets and Kevin Grevey had 19. John Drew led Atlanta, which was up 63-47 at halftime, with 23 points.

Cavaliers 114, Pacers 109 and Mike Bratz handed out 12 assists as the Cavs spurred from a 90-90 deadlock in the fourth period. A 12-2 run over a three-minute span made the difference for Cleveland.

"Lately, we've been poised at the end of games," said Cavs forward Kenny Carr. "Early in the season we weren't and were giving games away, but now I think we've matured as a team."

"They could've quit because we kept the pressure on them down the stretch," said Indiana's George McGinnis. "But they didn't. They made the big plays down the stretch."

Lakers 111, Jazz 104
The defending NBA champions won their 10th straight at home behind Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 27 points. Norm Nixon had 20 points and 12 assists for Los Angeles and the Lakers put away Utah with a 15-6 burst in the final four minutes of the third quarter.

Darrell Griffith scored 22 points for the Jazz.

Nets 112, Mavericks 100
The Nets dominated play inside, led by Cliff Robinson, who scored 28 points in the last three periods after being scoreless through the first quarter. New Jersey, winning only its second road game in the last 14, opened a 17-point edge and scored 26 of its 47 field goals on either dunks, layups or tip-ins.

Clippers 119, Kings 114
Sven Nater had 17 points and 16 rebounds and reserves Henry Bibby and Ron Davis each had 18 points to spark San Diego.

Phil Ford had 24 points and 10 assists for the Kings, who had a three-game winning streak snapped. Ford's fellow backcourtman, All-Star Otis Birdsong, returned to the lineup after being sidelined with a heel injury suffered on Jan. 14. Birdsong, showing no ill effects, came off the bench to contribute 21 points.

"It just happened that the bench was the combination that did it for us tonight," said San Diego Coach Paul Silas. "We played good defense in the second half and cut off their fast break."

Bulls 118, Warriors 101
Chicago put the game away in the second quarter with a 36-24 spurt for its fifth consecutive victory. The Bulls' bench, led by Dwight Jones with 18, scored 56 points.

Vikings Whip Chargers Win Leaves DHC In First-Place Tie

LITTLEFIELD — Sammy Tyson, Keith Gatlin and Sammy Tucker combined for 42 points to lead D.H. Conley past Ayden-Grifton, 58-51, Tuesday night in an Eastern Carolina Conference basketball game.

Earlier, in the girls' game, D.H. Conley blasted winless Ayden-Grifton, 58-25.

The win left Conley's boys tied for first in the ECC following Greene Central's 55-48 loss to North Pitt Tuesday night. Both the Vikings and the Rams are 9-2, one-half game ahead of North Pitt, which is at 9-3.

Ayden-Grifton, now 8-8 overall and 6-4 in the ECC, led after the first period, 12-9, and at the half, 23-20. But a 17-11 third-period surge by the Vikings put Conley ahead, 37-34, going into the final eight minutes, during which Conley was able to maintain its lead.

The Vikes, now 13-4 overall, were led by Tyson's 16 points, Gatlin's 14 and Tucker's 12. Ayden-Grifton was led by Timmy Edwards' game-high 17 points. Both Thomas Anderson and Clarence Baker had 11 points for the Chargers.

In the girls' game, Conley led after the first period, 9-8, but outscored the Chargers by eight (16-8) in the second quarter to take a 25-16 lead at intermission.

A 12-2 third period all but sealed the win for the Valkyries. And if that didn't, a 21-7 final period did. Conley, now 9-6 overall and 5-6 in the ECC, was led by Darlene Cannon's 10 points. Ayden-Grifton, now 0-15 and 0-10, did not have anyone with more than five points.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Greene Central Thursday night in a game rescheduled from last week. D.H. Conley plays host to North Pitt Friday night.

Mayberry Signs For Big $$$

TORONTO (AP) — They're calling it a contract to beat all contracts when matched against what other Canadian professional teams have paid their athletes, but big John Mayberry wants its contents kept secret.

The Toronto Blue Jays announced Tuesday they had signed the slugger first baseman to a four-year, multi-million dollar deal, "which, on an annual basis, will make him the highest paid athlete ever to play for a team in Canada."

On a request from Mayberry, the American League baseball team refused to divulge the amount involved, although it's been the policy this year for the Blue Jays to reveal salary terms of all major league players' contracts.

Speculation is that the deal amounts to $3.2 million with bonuses included, or about $800,000 a year.

Blue Jays president Peter Bavasi, asked how Mayberry's contract ranked with other players on Canadian-based professional teams, said: "We checked it out. On an annual basis, no one is close."

Mayberry, 30, hit a club-record 30 home runs in 1980 and drove in 82 runs. He was eligible to become a free agent at the end of the 1981 season.

Mayberry was an AL All-Star with Kansas City Royals in 1973 and 1974. He had a career high 34 homers and 106 RBI with the Royals in 1975. Obtained by Toronto for cash in 1978, he hit 22 home runs in his first seasons and in 1979 belted 21 homers, had 74 RBI and batted .274.

His batting average slipped to .248 in 1980, but he recovered from injuries to finish with a strong September.

Blue Jays' vice-president Pat Gillick, who negotiated the contract, said major league player salaries were escalating dramatically.

"And while this may not be a favorable condition for the clubs, it is the current economic reality in baseball."

Vermeil: An Eerie Feeling At Halftime

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Dick Vermeil saw the grim look of a loser as early as halftime on the faces of his Philadelphia Eagles, whose Super Bowl dreams were crushed by the Oakland Raiders.

"At halftime there was just an eerie feeling, an eerie, quiet feeling," said Vermeil, who led the Eagles to their first Super Bowl appearance Sunday and watched them lose 27-10.

"There was that faraway look in a lot of people's eyes. I think that all of a sudden, there was a feeling of shock," he said.

"The other thing," Vermeil said, "was that the Oakland Raiders never allowed us to get excited. You start the ball game a little bit tight. You move the ball, but then they get moving. They get a broken play for an 80-yard touchdown.

"And when you get behind and are losing, sometimes you get too concerned about catching up. And, hey, there's no guarantee we're going to get back there. I'd like to believe we can. I'd like to believe the players feel they can.

"But right now, I just can't pinpoint anything for why we played like we did," he said.

Vermeil discredits the first-time jinx and jitters theory as why the Eagles folded on the field.

"No, I don't think being there for the first time was any factor," he said. "We just, for one reason, or another, didn't handle the total situation as well as we should have. That is from my standpoint on down.

"When a team plays like we did, with the disappointments we had, we must have done some things wrong," he said.

"I really feel let down, disappointed in myself. I feel we let down the community a little bit. They were so excited about us going down there."

Pam Pack Whips Williamston, 63-52

WASHINGTON — Washington High School swept a pair of games from Williamston last night. The Pam Pack won the girls' game, 33-32, and took the boys' by a 63-52 score.

In the girls' game, things got off to a slow start, with Washington gaining a 4-0 lead after one period. In the second, both teams came to life, but Washington outshot the Tigerettes, 18-10, for a 22-10 halftime lead. Williamston then outscored Washington, 10-3, in the third period, closing the lead to 25-20. In the last quarter, Williamston again outscored the Lady Pack, 12-8, but fell short, never catching up.

Kim Guilford led Washington with 15 points, while Gail Smith had 11 and Romeo McPhail had 10. Tom Bennett led Williamston with 14, while Woody Sadler had 12 and Vincent Washington had 10.

Williamston travels to Ahoskie on Friday for its next outing.

well. North Pitt looked as good as I've seen them tonight.

"We just got behind early and kept coming back and then getting behind and coming back. It's hard to do that, especially with the turnovers we had," Godwin said. "A lot of them came at crucial times, just when we were in the middle of a run."

The game started out on the run — with the Panthers playing the rabbit and the Rams the greyhound. North Pitt surged to an 8-2 lead early on a layup by Hines and stretched that to 15-8 at the end of the first period.

After North Pitt went up 19-8, the Rams scored seven straight points to cut the lead to 19-15. The lead stayed at four the rest of the half, which ended with North Pitt up, 27-23.

The Panthers wasted little time in regaining control of the game in the third period, outscoring the Rams 9-0 in the first five minutes and 13-3 for the period to lead, 40-26, at the close of the quarter before holding off a late surge by the Rams for the victory.

Afterwards, Deans had praise for everyone, even the fans. "We're getting more support now from the student body. The junior high cheerleaders were out here tonight and that helped too," Deans said. "The enthusiasm is growing."

Then Deans turned to his prize swingman. "We didn't know about Greg. You never know how a kid is going to react (after being out sick with the flu)," Deans said. "But he was evidently he was better than we thought."

The same could be said of North Pitt.

Watson Opening 1980 Campaign With Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson, golf's leading light over the last four seasons, opens his 1981 campaign this week confidently anticipating an improved performance.

"I'm ready to go. I'm very antsy to start playing golf. I'm very ready for it to begin. I'm champing at the bit," Watson said.

It is entirely possible, however, that the start of his season could be delayed. The 40th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am is scheduled to begin Thursday on three Monterey Peninsula courses.

But, as always in this event, that start depends on the weather. And the current conditions are what the touring pros call "Crosby weather"—rain, wind and cold.

A major storm swept in from the Pacific Tuesday and lashed Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Cypress Point with wind and rain. The forecast called for more of the same for today and Thursday.

"We could be delayed getting started," Watson said Tuesday after the blustery weather had forced the courses to be closed to practice. "It's going to be Mud City out there," he said with a glance at the wind-whipped rain.

"Another day like this, we very well could have to hold off (the start)," said Jack Tuthill, tournament director for the PGA Tour.

But the weather failed to dampen Watson's bubbling enthusiasm.

"I've practiced hard (at home) in Kansas City the last six or seven weeks, four or five hours a day," said Watson, who won a record fourth consecutive Player of the Year designation in 1980, which he called "my most consistent season."

In addition to again winning the player of the year honor, he became the first man in history to go over $500,000 in single-season earnings, won the British Open and six American tournaments.

And he hopes to improve. He expects to improve. "I've worked hard the last few weeks, working basically on my swing, my set-up," he said. "I'm very confident about my technique, very confident with the way I'm swinging the club."

His major goal for the year, Watson said, was "to play well in the U.S. Open," but, he said, "really what I'm trying to do is to improve what I have, my swing, my technique. When you have that, it makes it easier to play. It makes it more fun to play. Nobody likes to struggle out there."

And Watson has had few struggles in recent years. Last season he finished in the top 10 in 16 of 22 American starts, had a stroke average of 69.95 and won $530,808 in official money-earnings.

"I'd like to improve," he said.

And he said he felt he had a chance to start that improvement in the famed Crosby.

"I usually play well here. There are two of my favorite courses in the world. And I'm very happy with my swing. This early in the year, after a long break, I'll make some mistakes in judgement, but my enthusiasm more than makes up for it.

"I'm antsy to get started," he repeated.

Adding spice to the tournament field is the presence of Jack Nicklaus, winner of the U.S. Open and PGA last year and holder of a record 17 major professional titles.

"You always sense his presence," Watson said.

Other standouts include defending champion George Burns, Johnny Miller, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Jerry Pate, Ben Crenshaw, Australian David Graham, a winner last week, and Lon Hinkle, a runner-up in two of three events this season.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday are scheduled for national television coverage by CBS.

N.C. State Men, Women Swim Past East Carolina

RALEIGH — N. C. State swam past the East Carolina men's and women's swimming teams last night in a dual meet. The Wolfpack topped the male Pirates, 73-40, and took a 75-61 victory over the Lady Pirates.

Doug Nieman was a double winner for the Pirates, taking both of the distance freestyle events. Jan Wiklund was the only other individual winner for the men, capturing the 200-yard freestyle. East Carolina also won the final relay, but the outcome had been decided by then.

The Lady Pirates also won three individual events, all coming late in the meet. Jennifer Jayes won the 50-yard freestyle, while Dordi Henriksen took the 50-yard butterfly. Julie Malcolm won the 100-yard breaststroke. Again, the Lady Pirates won the final relay, but there too, the final outcome had been decided.

The Pirate teams participate in a tri-meet with Tennessee at South Carolina on Saturday.

Chicago White Sox 2 Days From Sale?

CHICAGO (AP) — After months on the auction block, the Chicago White Sox may be just two days away from having a new owner.

The team's stockholders were to meet today and were expected to approve sale of the American League baseball club to Jerry Reinsdorf and Eddie Einhorn for $20 million.

The stockholder vote, following approval by the board of directors earlier this month, is regarded so much a formality that league owners have scheduled a meeting Thursday at which they are expected to approve the sale.

Twice before, league owners turned down the sale of the White Sox to Edward J. DeBartolo Sr., a Youngstown, Ohio, millionaire builder.

DeBartolo was approved by the White Sox directors and stockholders but league owners held a special meeting last October and turned him down. The vote was 8-6 in favor, with DeBartolo falling two short of the 10 votes needed.

White Sox directors again voted to sell the club to DeBartolo and the stockholders approved, but league owners turned him down again at the major league winter meetings in Dallas in December. DeBartolo was able to get only three approving votes the second time.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail both openly opposed sale of the club to DeBartolo. The reasons given were absentee ownership plus the fact that DeBartolo has extensive racetrack holdings in Louisiana, Ohio and Illinois.

The fact that Reinsdorf, a suburban Highland Park real estate investor, also had put in a matching bid for the club strengthened the position of DeBartolo's opponents.

Their contention was that local ownership was available and preferred to absentee ownership. There was also the fear that DeBartolo might move the club to New Orleans and the Superdome.

DeBartolo long ago had been on record that he wanted to buy a baseball team and move it to New Orleans, although when he entered the scene to buy the White Sox he repeatedly denied he would move the club.

In fact, DeBartolo said he would put up a security bond of up to $5 million to insure against the possibility of moving the franchise.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE:

CRYPTOQUIP 1-28

Fred Friendly Feels TV Gone Wrong

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Fred Friendly, who helped midwife the very birth of the television industry, took time out from his busy "retirement" schedule last week to mourn the way the creature grew up.

"It's a billion-dollar penny arcade," he said. "Its capability in the news area has never been greater. Its performance has never been worse... Commercial television makes so much money doing its worst that it can't afford to do its best."
Friendly spoke with the sorrow of a father discussing an offspring gone wrong, and well he might. He had high hopes for it in the days when he, Edward R. Murrow and other giants in the field battled on behalf of an excellence he says has shamelessly eroded.
Friendly was co-founder, with Murrow, of "Hear it Now" on CBS radio — a program he saw grow into the first comprehensive news magazine, "See It Now," when television came of age. He also helped create "CBS Reports" which became the soul and backbone of the network's news coverage.
Friendly won some of the battles — notably in the McCarthy era when he and Murrow stood almost alone among TV broadcasters against the senator's now infamous inquisition. He also lost a few, finally resigning his post as CBS News president in a much-publicized collision with the network's policy-makers in 1966.
Regrets remain.
"One thing I failed to do was to make people understand how this great national asset was being wasted," he said. "You can't do it because eventually you exhaust yourself. You're like a moth flying against a strong wind."
Now retired from full-time teaching at Columbia University and from his communications advisor post with the Ford Foundation, Friendly sees little hope for an electronic giant shackled by a ratings system with a taste only for vapid sitcoms.
"The fact that the nightly news is 22 minutes (after commercials) is a disgrace at a time when the American people need to know so much," he said. "It's impossible for intelligent people to watch much of it... and I don't believe many of the people who program it watch very much of it."
"I don't know what's going to change that... It's an anomaly. A paradox. I don't think there's been anything quite like it in the history of America."
"When Murrow and I first started doing 'See It Now,' the whole program cost Alcoa $15,000 to $20,000 for a half hour. Today a minute costs $150,000 to $200,000. That's grotesque."
But it is the "intelligent" people who do not watch who bear much of the blame in Friendly's eyes for the pre-dominance of what he calls "popcorn television."
"The people who are not watching are like the people who don't vote on election day," he said. "We have abdicated to people who want to spend their day in a billion-dollar penny arcade all the mandate for decision making. That's the reason it's all full of popcorn and fast food for the eye."

"If you were to go the news stands, where people are buying newspapers, and say, 'I want to do a little survey about what was on the air last night,' you'd find they'd get about 10 percent. If you went to the very people who don't care about the news, who don't care about America, who don't vote, and did that same survey, they'd get 80 to 90 percent, because they do watch."
So, of course, do the so-called "Nielsen families" — the sample audience by which the A.C. Nielsen Co. rates television fare for advertisers who then decide what shall live and what shall die, with little regard for quality.
"It's an aberration and everybody knows it's an aberration," Friendly said. "The ratings don't indicate who's really seriously watching anything. A lot of people turn their set on in the morning and it stays on all day long."
But Friendly shifts from sorrow over the waste to alarm over the effect when he discusses young people and the 22-minute newscast that necessitates the telling of a lead story in 90 seconds.
"It can't be done," he said. "You can't do anything in a minute and a half. But it is not only that it cannot be done, it suggests to the viewer that it can be done — it's so beautifully packaged and so professionally presented."
"A demographic study will show you — old people read newspapers, but my students don't read newspapers. When they see that 22 minutes, that is all the news, the whole news, so help me God! When it's an index! That's all it is — all it was ever intended to be!"
Friendly may despair, but despair will not keep him out of the battle to salvage the minds of a "popcorn television" generation. He is writing two books, and he said he will continue to teach part-time at Columbia and lecture extensively — none of which sounds like a standard bill of retirement.

Gleefully, Friendly concurred.
"I still feel like I'm getting off one moving train and onto another one," he said. "There is a franticness about me that is my companion."
Then he quoted the late CBS producer Arthur Morse. "He once said to me, 'Fred, you'll never have a nervous breakdown, but you sure are a carrier.'"
Even with a headwind, the moth still flies.

A New Protagonist In Today's Redneck Derby

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's the budding television star now, rushing to the saloon table in sweatshirt and shades, launching straight into a pitch for his new TV show, it's an inspired monologue, equal parts Hollywood hype and sweet redneck trash:

"My, my, my," says he, of his TV character, J.D. Reed, "Ol' J.D., he likes the Flyin' Tigers and takes shots at the establishment, he's John Wayne. He's the everyday dude's Robin Hood, he's a coward. I wear this Civil War Confederate Cavalry hat that has been in the family since 1865. He's the ugliest, funkiest, raunchiest, crappshootin'est dude you'll ever see... But he's real."
"I'm standin' there with my belly hangin' out and my shoulders stooped and I'm listenin' to that J.D. and, son, I tell you, he's real. He's a charmer. He'll charm you, but not with that ugly face, he won't. He's got to have real bullets. I tell you, we eat it up and get into it. It's throwin' babies up in the air time. It's me, I promise you."

elaborate con jobs, good ol' boy humor and production values second to none."
Oh, One of those.
J.D. Reed will sort of roam around the country with his partner, played by Geoffrey Scott, occasionally stumbling into circumstances that will allow a Jerry Reed song, "See, J.D. plays the guitar, so if they get in a bind he can do a quick sit-down gig for butterbean money."
In forwarding "Concrete Cowboys," CBS is hoping to right things on Saturday night, where "Freebie and the Bean" and "Secrets of Midland Heights" were both trounced, and canceled. It's a night that belongs to ABC's "Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island," especially tough for a new show. Reed is unmoved by the evidence.
"It don't matter where they put us," he says, "if it's time, it's gonna happen. Ain't nobody got nothin' to say about it if it's right — just look out and talk about what's comin' behind. This guy's right; the time is right."
"I know everything's against us," he adds, "but don't mistake me for someone who gives a damn about the what's against us. I don't."

Living Costs Closely Eyed

By LILLIAN SWANSON
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Armed with sharp-pointed pencil, tape measure and thread counter, price sleuth Loretta Petracca keeps close tabs on how much it costs to live in the United States.

She's one of 350 data collectors in 85 cities who dig up prices for the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index.

The CPI, published monthly, is a measure of the average changes in prices for a marketbasket of goods and services. The latest index, released Friday, showed that consumer prices jumped 12.4 percent in 1980, the second year running that prices have risen more than 10 percent.

The index has come to be an important measure of government policy. It also has a profound impact on paychecks.

The increase in December was 1.1 percent, according to Friday's report, and Labor Department officials say a 1 percent increase in the CPI can trigger a $1 billion increase in incomes.

That's because of the number of collective bargaining agreements and payments such as Social Security tied to its fluctuations. The Labor Department estimates that more than 8.5 million workers have collective bargaining contracts tied to the CPI.

Mrs. Petracca, of nearby Mount Lebanon, is keenly aware of the CPI's clout.

"I think that's why we try to be as exact as we possibly can," she said. "You cannot assume. 'You have to check everything.'"

At a department store on a recent visit, she pulled a thread counter from her purse to check whether a dress fabric was single or double knit. A tape measure confirmed that a cosmetic case was the size she was supposed to price.

"You feel a little silly sometimes," she admitted.

At a grocery store she weighed produce, checked ounces on detergent boxes, looked for cents-off specials on toilet tissue and asked store officials to explain why when prices rose by 10 percent or more from the previous month.

With a pencil ready, she walked down the aisle pricing a variety of goods, from catsup to grapefruit. But pricing isn't confined to the supermarket.

Her price monitoring also includes the cost of tires, gasoline, a movie ticket, fabric, an air mattress, a man's suit, eyeglasses, a bus ride and newspapers. More than 350 categories of goods and services are quoted by the price checkers, who like Mrs. Petracca, work part-time.

The price checkers receive computer printouts of the items that are to be checked each month. They try to price identical items across the country, but there are regional and seasonal differences. The checkers have some discretion in substituting items so long as they match as closely as possible the description of the items to be priced.

Stores participate in the survey on a volunteer basis and are guaranteed anonymity.

Mrs. Petracca spends at least three weeks a month visiting stores for products and making telephone calls for services. She's paid $5.90 an hour.

All the data collectors send their figures to the Labor Department in Washington, where the overall picture is compiled. Every month, the department publishes a monthly and an annual rate of price changes for the country, along with price variations for 28 local communities.

The index for December 1980 was 258.4, meaning a basket of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $258.40 at the end of 1980.

The CPI was started in 1919 to help set wages for shipbuilding workers. Since then, it has gone through five major revisions, with the latest in 1978.

The Labor Department says its main survey, the CPI for urban consumers, covers about 80 percent of the population.

In Pittsburgh, Mrs. Petracca slips in and out of supermarkets quickly because she recalls where the items she wants are shelved. Store workers recognize her and offer friendly greetings.

"Up! Up!" said a produce clerk with a laugh when Mrs. Petracca put two heads of lettuce on a scale for pricing.

"This is the lady who makes our raises come through."

Do prices ever come down? "Rarely," Mrs. Petracca said. "Produce does fluctuate. But mostly prices go up. I very seldom see them go down."

She said her price monitoring doesn't affect what she buys for her family when she's "off duty."

"Old habits die hard. I keep using the same things."

But her job keeps her more aware of what things cost than most housewives.

"I look for bargains just like many people do. But it does keep you very aware of price changes."

FOCUS

War in El Salvador

In the past year, several thousand people have died in a bloody civil war in El Salvador. Thousands more have fled from their homes because of the fighting. El Salvador is the smallest country in Central America. It is about the size of Massachusetts. Most of El Salvador's people work as farmers, but only a few people own most of the land. Since last March, the government has tried to change this, so that more farmers can own the land they work on. Various groups who oppose the government's "land reform" program have been fighting against the government, and against each other. Every day, more people die in the war.

DO YOU KNOW — What ocean borders El Salvador?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The A.F.L. merged with the Congress of Industrial Organizations (C.I.O.) in 1955.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

Bridge is often a race between declarer and the defenders. Declarer strives to set up enough tricks to make his contract before the defenders can establish enough winners to defeat the hand. The race goes to the swiftest, and to lose a tempo could easily mean the loss of the contract.

After North had supported his suit, South's hand revalued to close to an opening bid. He might have probed for game with three clubs, which would have been forcing. However, the texture of his suit was so good that he decided to be a little aggressive and jumped straight to four spades himself.

After the lead of the queen of hearts, those declarers who live in a world where all suits break and all finesses succeed are likely to be defeated by good defense. Assume that declarer wins the opening heart lead and plays a trump. East wins the ace and shifts to a club. Declarer inserts the queen, but instead of gobbling up the trick with the ace, West allows declarer to win. Sooner or later declarer must take the diamond finesse. East wins the diamond and reverts to a club, and West scores two clubs to complete a one-trick set.

Declarer can make the hand if he realizes that time is all important here. Since his weak spot—clubs—has not yet been attacked, he is one step ahead of the defenders. He should win the opening heart in his hand and immediately take the diamond finesse. East can take the king and, in an attempt to catch up, shift to a club, but he cannot make up for lost ground. When West allows the queen of clubs to win, declarer cashes dummy's high diamonds, sluffing a club from his hand. Now declarer can afford to turn his attention to the trump suit. His only losers are one spade, one diamond and one club.

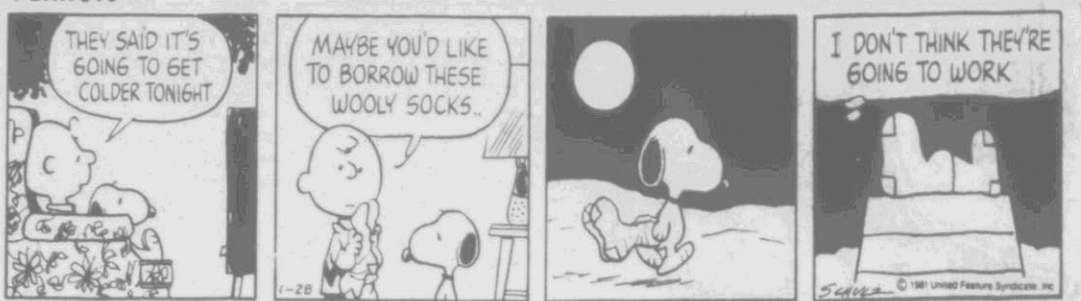

Another 'Twist' To Be Learned

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a special twist young parents should learn, says Chubby Checker, king of the 1960s "twist" dance craze. It's the "twist" needed to properly reseal child-resistant caps on hazardous household products and drugs.

"Reseal the caps so they are child-resistant after every use," Checker urges. "It's worth a twist of your wrist to save a child's life." The latest figures, through 1978, released by the National Center for Health Statistics, reveal that deaths of children under 5 from aspirin poisoning have dropped 72 percent since child-resistant closures were mandated in 1972. Deaths of preschoolers from accidental ingestion of all covered products, such as prescription drugs, anti-freeze, drain and oven cleaners, are down 63 percent.

Protective Glasses Are Urged In Raquet Sports

By FRED FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Anyone who plays a racquet sport should wear protective glasses, whether or not he or she needs corrective lenses or wears contact lenses, says Dr. Paul F. Vinger.

Vinger estimates there were 9,000 to 10,000 eye injuries suffered in racquet sports in the United States last year.

"Racquet sports are picking off people in their productive years," he says. Proper protective eyewear could eliminate 90 percent of these injuries, he says.

Vinger is clinical instructor in ophthalmology at the Harvard Medical School. He became interested in sports related eye injuries shortly after setting up practice in Lexington, Mass., 11 years ago. He was shocked by the high number of eye injuries from ice hockey. "I thought it was my obligation to report it to the authorities."

That got him involved in heading a task force to write face protector standards for the American Society of Testing Materials. He is author of a number of medical papers on sports-related eye injuries and currently works with the National Society to Prevent Blindness.

"It looks like the next major effort will be gathering data and urging standards for racquet sports," he says. Here for an NSPB meeting, he noted the dramatic effect face mask protectors have had on hockey. The society estimates mandatory face masks have prevented more than 70,000 eye and face injuries in the U.S. in 1979 alone at an estimated saving of $10 million in medical costs.

His interest in racquet sports eye injuries stems from the boom in these sports and a corresponding increase in the number of such injuries.

Injuries tripled between 1973 and 1978, according to the most recent statistics from the Consumer Product Safety Commission. Vinger's own estimate for last year would more than double the figures for 1977 and 1978.

Proper protective gear for racquet sports differs between two groups of these sports — the net sports such as tennis and badminton and the same side sports such as racquetball, squash and handball.

Pending completion of a standard for racquet sports, the NSPB recommends industrial quality safety glasses with plastic lenses or sports eye protectors which incorporate such plastic lenses both for those who wear corrective lenses and those who do not. The latter can obtain them with clear lenses.

Vinger says that those who wear streetwear eyeglasses with plastic lenses for tennis or badminton are a lot safer than those who wear no glasses at all. He says they offer substantial, but not complete, protection for these sports. They are not good for same side sports, however.

Among other points he feels are important. —"Contact lenses are no protection. The impact is simply transmitted by the lens to the eye."

—"The plastic lens should be polycarbonate." It is tougher than other kinds of plastic lenses and also is scratch resistant.

Amid the physical fitness craze and the youth kick, many people may be reluctant to wear glasses. But Vinger says glasses for racquet sports can be attractive.

A number of manufacturers have marketed fashion styled protective glasses available in both corrective and clear lenses. Bausch and Lomb, for example, has produced special racquet sport protectors with frames in various styles and colors.

The advantage of the current project to achieve an accepted standard for racquet sports protectors, he says "is that when a player asks what type to wear, he or she can be assured that any product that meets the performance levels required by the standard will provide adequate protection."

This does not mean total protection but as much as 95 to 99 percent safety, he says.

Vinger says one manufacturer has already promoted tennis glasses which he terms "totally inadequate." The firm made modifications when the matter was brought to its attention.

Vinger says one kind of injury is a particular problem, the traumatic retinal detachment.

"Any blunt injury should be seen by an ophthalmologist, especially if suffered by a child," he says. He's seen cases which were not diagnosed until three years later.

"I know a priest who was hit in the eye by a ball thrown to him when he was playing tennis. The swelling was minimal so he didn't bother about it until he began to have serious trouble some weeks later. Then he came in and we found he had a hole in the retina."

The injury can usually be treated with relative ease if discovered soon after it occurs. If not, major treatment is involved and there is the possibility of the loss of the eye.

Badminton may seem less dangerous than other racquet sports but Vinger says that in Malaysia, where it is most played, it is a leading cause of eye injuries. "The shuttlecock just fits the eye."

In his medical papers, he has avoided dealing with some simple methods of avoiding eye injuries because they concern the practice of the sport, rather than medicine.

PROTECTIVE EYE-WEAR — Dr. Paul F. Vinger displays some protective eyewear and says anyone who plays a racquet sport should wear glasses. (UPI Photo)

Up-To-Date Sentiments On Valentine

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The sweetly rhymed messages of love that have been popular on printed valentines for more than a century are still very much a part of the Valentine's Day tradition. But there appears to be a growing segment of the population demanding new approaches to one of mankind's most vexing communications problems - expressing love and affection, according to a major publisher of valentines.

The ever-popular traditional valentine appears to be losing ground a bit each year to a new type of valentine with modern graphics and unusually candid and personal prose sentiments, says Alan Doan, editorial manager for Hallmark Cards here.

"These newer valentines are not limited to simple loving sentiments," Doan says. "They often express love in the context of modern situations, like the fragile condition of the family unit and the strains imposed on two-paycheck marriages."

"More interesting is what appears to be a growing demand for very frank prose statements," he adds. "Many people seem to be taking their annual valentine statements of love more seriously. They're telling us they no longer need to adorn expressions of love with flowery rhyme and frills."

"It's an attitude right out of the '60s, but it's just beginning to have an effect on valentines, which are among the most traditional greeting cards published."

Successes in last year's valentine line offered the first real evidence of this changing attitude, he notes. This 1980 Hallmark sentiment touched on the problems faced by a wife working outside the home, and proved to be a best seller:

Captioned "For My Husband," it reads: "We don't always have as much time together as we'd like, but there are many times when my thoughts turn to you. I don't always take the time to tell you how much I love you but I hope you know how very much I do."

In this year's line, family relationships are explored still further, Doan says, citing as an example the "deep, heartfelt emotions that are expressed in frank, almost confessional fashion" on a new card captioned "For You, Mother":

"So many times when I could have said 'I love you, Mother' the words were never spoken... And so many times when I should have said 'Thank you, Mother' I let those times go by... But today I want to let you know that I'll always love you... I'll always be grateful for everything you've done for me."

Another, captioned "For Mother and Father," expresses gratitude for a close, enriching family relationship that has survived the stresses of a chaotic world: "At a time when it seems like everything's changing I just want you to know how much it means to have your unchanging love."

Even the very romantic "Sweetheart" captions today often exhibit a more direct, conversational style:

"My love for you is so beautiful that it defies description... I can only say that nothing in my life has ever been as wonderful."

Traditional valentine designs, typically adorned with red hearts, flowers and lace, have also been touched by new contemporary approaches, Doan notes.

Dan Cupid, the supreme embodiment of romantic love for centuries, is today being seriously challenged by the less fanciful butterfly as the symbol of love for the valentine consumer, he says.

Throughout the 1981 line there are more experiments with color, like mauves and dark blues, oriental silkscreen patterns, bold graphic florals, rainbow and lettering designs - repeated key words forming a pattern.

"These new approaches tend to belie the long-held notion in the greeting-card industry that a valentine isn't a valentine unless it contains red hearts and flowers and long rhymed verse," Doan points out.

Islanders' Linked By A School Boat

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
SANDY ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — "You going to get us a bridge?" Ruby Simmons demanded of the two reporters at the landing on Waccamaw Neck, where the state's only school boat was loading up.

Two of Mrs. Simmons' primary school-aged children were boarding the yellow and black Prince Washington, and two more would ride an hour later when the 32-foot craft returned for high schoolers.

Mrs. Simmons wasn't so lucky. She rowed herself the nine-tenths of a mile from Sandy Island in an open skiff and stood shivering in sub-freezing temperatures waiting for a ride to her technical school class. That evening, she would row back.

The school boat carries 26 children in two shifts from the island to a wooden pier at Waccamaw Neck, where a bus meets them for the trip to Waccamaw school eight miles away, or to Winyah High School in Georgetown.

It is the only regular link between the 20 to 30 families on the island and the mainland. The only other way to get back and forth is by small private boat.

"We could sure use a bridge," said Mrs. Simmons. Clustered around her at the landing were about a dozen battered small boats and an equal number of cars, evidently owned by island dwellers or visitors.

Timothy Tucker, who has operated the school boat for seven years, said he has no boat of his own and no other way to get to his part-time carpenter's job on the mainland.

"I just make sure I get everything done I need to over here by Friday, because the boat doesn't run on weekends," he said.

The Prince Washington has been making the daily trips since she was built in 1967. Before that, there was another boat. Officials don't remember how long it was in service, only that it became necessary when the school on Sandy Island closed.

The state Department of Education owns the boat. Maintenance official Larry Mims said fuel for the past six months cost about $475. Last summer's annual overhaul and minor maintenance since then cost about $1,275, he said.

Island residents almost succeeded some years back in getting a regular ferry service established between the island and the mainland. But the plan fell through, and a boat that had been purchased for it was sold.

Tucker also drives a jeep to take some of the children from their homes to the island's landing. The jeep had to be carried across the river on a construction company barge. There are several jeeps and pickups on the island, carried over on barges or makeshift rafts, but no paved roads.

The diesel-powered school boat has a black hull and white superstructure with yellow trim. The children ride on benches inside the unheated cabin, which Mims said should be rebuilt soon.

It's the only ride of its kind in the state, but the passengers take it all in stride. "I don't think it's so special," said one jaded rider. "Not to me."

Another Banker Cannot Accept

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Another banker, Oscar D. Lindemann, has resigned from the investment committee of the American Lutheran Church because of its convention decision to get rid of stock in companies doing business in South Africa. He is the second banker to do so.

"Since I am unwilling to follow the dictates of my church's convention and unable to accept the responsibility for such action, I must resign," Lindemann wrote to the church's board of trustees.

Earlier banker Roger A. Severson of Minneapolis had resigned for similar reasons.

Animals Are Studied As Forecasters

By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Only once before had Mark Holthouse noticed such strange behavior in his dog. That time, it was quickly followed by an earthquake that shook California.

This time, he was taking no chances.

Holthouse, a north central Ohio farmer whose home rests on the bottom of a dry lake bed near the village of Celeryville, called the Associated Press bureau in Washington, D.C., late one night a few weeks ago to ask if a quake had occurred. None had.

"You'd better watch," he told a reporter. "One night."

Within 20 hours, one did. The temblor struck a sparsely populated area along the California-Nevada border east of Mono Lake the following afternoon, registered 4.7 on the Richter scale, powerful enough to have caused moderate to substantial damage in a built-up area.

How did Holthouse know? He didn't, he said. But he thought with the dog acting up, just maybe...

"On the porch, off the porch, bark, bark, bark," he said of his Doberman pinscher, Lady. "And for no reason at all."

Quite possible, some scientists say. Others say it couldn't have happened over so great a distance. But no one, at least in the United States, can dismiss with certainty abnormal animal behavior prior to earthquakes, they agree.

"The Chinese put a great deal of credence in it — they say animals can predict earthquakes a half-hour to the day before," said Bob Wallace, chief scientist at the U.S. Geological Survey's Office of Earthquake Studies in Menlo Park, Calif.

"The Chinese live near and with their animals more than we do. I guess we just have to believe them," Wallace said.

The Chinese have used a network of more than 100,000 volunteers to study earthquake indicators for some 15 years, and in that period some earthquakes seem to have been forecast by animal behavior, said William Kautz, a staff scientist for SRI International in Menlo Park.

The non-profit research agency, formerly known as Stanford Research Institute, began studying animals as earthquake indicators in 1977, funded by the Geological Survey.

"But here, (in the United States), nobody knows what's possible or impossible or what's going on," he said.

So even though some American scientists say it's fantastic that a dog in Ohio could anticipate a quake in California, some 2,200 miles away, no one knows for sure.

"I'm very, very skeptical," Wallace said. "But we know so little about it yet in a really controlled way. I don't want to dismiss anything yet."

"You can't really judge whether it's significant or not," Kautz said, "since there are earthquakes going on all the time throughout the world."

Hallan Noltimier, a professor of geology and geophysics at Ohio State University in Columbus, was even more dubious.

"There's no way a dog in Ohio can determine there's going to be an earthquake in California," he said, "unless the dog is using a (shortwave) radio to talk with a dog in California."

Then it is possible that a California canine — or cow, cat or crow — could predict a cataclysm in the state which the National Security Council says has a greater than 50 percent chance of being struck by a devastating earthquake within the next 30 years?

"We're testing the notion," said Kautz.

SRI has set up an observation network in California similar to China's, enlisting more than 1,700 volunteers to report any unusual animal behavior. Farm and wild animals are included, but up to 70 percent of the animals are household pets.

Automobiles Shed Pounds To Save Gas

By JIM MCKAY
 Associated Press Writer
 PITTSBURGH (AP) — American automobiles are shedding pounds to save fuel, nibbling on a new diet of aluminum and plastic that is threatening the dominance of steel in the auto industry.

"The most exciting development programs currently under way in Detroit include doors, hoods and trunk lids made from reinforced plastics," said Gregory Gallagher, transportation market manager for PPG Industries' Fiber Glass Division in Pittsburgh.

"In addition, structural parts made of composites will include wheels, rear springs, bumper systems and similar components."

At General Motors, the nation's largest carmaker, "light-weight materials are going to play an important role," James Sines, manager of purchasing, forward planning and research, said in a telephone interview from Detroit.

"It's going to depend not only on what the steel people do, but on what their competitors do. It is definitely an opportunity for those suppliers who are creative and innovative," Sines added.

The auto industry has traditionally been steel's largest single customer, until recently buying about 22 percent of annual output. But steel shipments to Detroit have slowed because of slumping sales and shrinking cars.

The American Iron and Steel Institute, an industry group, estimates automotive steel shipments in 1980 fell 40 percent from the year before.

Steelmakers, who realize heavy luxury cars have gone the way of cheap gasoline, are striving to make lighter and stronger materials. "There's very little we can do...to keep our total pounds per vehicle unchanged, but it's our intent to keep our percent of the vehicle as high as possible," said William Riffe, a U.S. Steel Corp. specialist in Detroit.

The average net shipping weight of a General Motors four-door sedan in 1970 was 3,895 pounds compared to 3,228 pounds in 1980. In the 1970 car, steel accounted for 2,443 pounds or 63 percent of the weight. Last year steel in the average car totaled 59 percent, or 1,919 pounds.

While steel content dropped 4 percent over 10 years, the use of plastic and aluminum in cars roughly doubled, plastic from less than 3 percent to more than 6 percent and aluminum from 2 percent to nearly 4 percent.

Rick Slocum of National Steel Corp. predicts no dramatic change in the material mix of cars up to 1985. "Beyond that it's going to be a function of the price of gasoline," he said. "And who knows what that's going to be?"

Still, the plastics industry, which began a big development push after the 1973 oil embargo, appears to be on the threshold of breaking into the auto market in a big way, with high-strength, reinforced materials.

PPG recently rebuilt a Cadillac Seville almost entirely out of fiberglass composites, shaving about 700 pounds from the car's weight.

Plastics, however, must overcome production problems — automakers are still geared for steel, with huge capital investments in steel stamping and assembly facilities.

Aluminum, which might more easily be used as a steel substitute, also has its problems. Marvin Gantz, a vice president for mill products in the Aluminum Company of America, recently told security analysts the passenger car market "is less than thriving at the moment."

Alcoa abandoned a multimillion-dollar plant construction project inavenport, Iowa, last year after losing promised orders from the auto industry.

Aluminum's price has risen more than 50 percent in the last three years, but Alcoa contends aluminum has a long-term advantage.

"When taking into account fuel savings present with use of light materials such as aluminum, we believe the cost is actually cheaper in the long run," said Gordon Wangersheim, an Alcoa spokesman.

Right-To-Lifers Disclaim Riding Reagan Coattails

By PATRICIA Mc-CORMACK
UPI Health Editor
Are Right-to-Lifers riding on President Reagan's coattails?

Hardly, says Dr. Mildred F. Jefferson, president of the National Right-to-Life Crusade, who thinks it could be the other way around.

Dr. Jefferson's analysis of the Reagan landslide differs from many analysts that the landslide was a mandate against incompetence in the federal government and a protest against inflation.

Ronald Reagan got elected to the presidency, as she sees it, as the result of a new politics "that gives government back to the people."

"The political analysts are wrong," she said. "We are adamant about that as she is about abortion being wrong."

"We are creating a new politics," she said, "and it embodies a restatement of the best of the old — a government of the people returned back to the people."

"We have been working eight years to bring this about."

By "we" Dr. Jefferson said she was referring to all persons fighting abortion and seeking a Human Life Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Dr. Jefferson, who was a member of the Republican campaign's Family Policy Advisory Committee, said such an amendment would establish legal protection of life inside as well as outside the womb. She has hopes it will become law before 1990.

About the new politics: "It is neither right wing or left wing or anything else," Dr. Jefferson claims. "It is made up of the middle class and it is black, white, rich and even poor. We are not a part of anybody's group."

By that, she means that Right to Life is not tied up with movements to stop E.R.A. or put prayer back in the schools, the Moral Majority or anything else. Right to Life critics frequently say the movement is tied up with those other ones.

Dr. Jefferson, a Boston general surgeon, has been awarded 22 honorary degrees in recent years. She is a native of Pittsburg, Texas, a graduate of Harvard Medical School, and assistant professor at the Boston University School of Medicine and a staffer at Boston University Medical Center's University Hospital. She said she has been fighting abortion since 1970 when the American Medical Association altered its policy on the controversial subject.

That year, as Dr. Jefferson tells it, the AMA said abortion is okay in a state which has legalized it. If, for example, in such a state a woman and her doctor in private decided on abortion, the physician was not guilty of unethical medical conduct.

"This was an about-face from the traditional policy that a doctor must protect life and do no harm," she said.

After the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1973 that abortion was no longer unlawful, Dr. Jefferson plunged into the Right to Life movement.

She was president of the National Right to Life Committee between 1975 and 1978; chairman, between 1974 and 1975. Later she founded the separate Right to Life Crusade to help groups not affiliated with the Right to Life Committee to "plug into" the cause.

Dr. Jefferson has a reputation for not backing away from confrontation with groups or individuals who do not share the Right to Life view of abortion.

She also has a reputation for being a skillful fighter.

"You must be on a lot of enemies lists," a visitor remarked recently.

"I don't think of such things," Dr. Jefferson said.

She was asked about hate mail.

"I get some — as anyone does who is in the public eye and involved in controversy."

Has she ever had tires slashed?

"I don't own a car," she said.

"Do you ever feel threatened?" the visitor asked.

"I'm not foolhardy," Dr. Jefferson said, explaining she does not go out of her way to raise ire of those who do not see eye to eye with her.

Dr. Jefferson was asked about one of the most controversial and heart-wrenching issues concerning abortion — that of parents faced with making a decision whether to abort a defective fetus to prevent birth of a baby with handicaps.

(The technology for determining the condition of the fetus is called amniocentesis. A doctor slips a sharp tube into the abdomen of the mother-to-be and draws out a bit of fluid in which the fetus floats by analyzing cells in this fluid, doctors can tell whether the fetus is defective. The technology has been said to mark the beginning of the era of survival of the fittest fetus.

(Other prenatal technologies make it possible to view the baby in the womb, to image it, and even to tell the sex.)

The technologies also raise ethical questions on which experts disagree, for example: is it ethical to abort a defective fetus and start a new pregnancy if you are a parent-to-be who wants a non-handicapped baby? What about abortion as a sex selection technique — aborting a male fetus if you want a girl, or vice versa?)

There is no hesitation about Dr. Jefferson's views on the questions.

Aborting a defective fetus, she says, is "throwing the baby out with the defect," she said. Aborting because the fetus is the "wrong" sex, she says, is equally disgusting and wrong in itself and also upsets a balance of the sexes apparently set up by nature.

What about the difficulties of caring for a defective child?

"My sympathy and concern go out to persons with such problems," Dr. Jefferson said. "But parents have a duty, a right and obligation to care for their children."

Dr. Jefferson fears aborting defective fetuses or those not of the preferred sex could mark the beginning of a horror era.

For example, it could lead to aborting fetuses with dark hair when one wanted a blue-eyed blonde. Or the abortion of all except fetuses who could be determined, so far as is possible, would reach adulthood as tall, thin. Or whose IQ is not high enough for parents-to-be.

The crux of the controversy, as Dr. Jefferson sees it, is a conflict of world views.

She said the conflict is the Judaic-Christian world view versus the secularist-humanist world view.

"The Judaic-Christian world view," she said, "holds that man is made in the image of God and is not in control of his own destiny."

"The secularist-humanist world view holds man is an accident of nature and must be in control. It places man at the center, a concept of selfhood."

"This secularist-humanist view condones freedom to select abortion, suicide, euthanasia. It is a concept of personal control. This is self-centered and self-defeatism."

She believes the people in the new politics, by their vote in November, showed they reject the secularist-humanist view.

When Ronald Reagan was elected president, Dr. Jefferson was among the first to declare it "a victory for Right to Life politics."

"The foundation of President Reagan's stunningly successful campaign is the coalition of our massive and diverse pro life, pro family forces," she said. "We believe that the first function of government must be to insure and to guarantee the human rights of its citizens and that the most important of these is the right to life."

"The right to life in politics is not a candidate's option. In our priority politics, if a man or woman does not understand the obligation of government to preserve and to protect life, we consider that candidate unworthy of elective office."

"We intend to apply this principle to every office from town dog-catcher to president of the United States.

"We are bringing the government of the people back to the people."

As Dr. Jefferson sees it, that, in a nutshell, is the "new politics."

DR. MILDRED JEFFERSON, president of the National Right to Life Crusade, says Ronald Reagan got elected as the result of a new politics "that gives government back to the people". (UPI Photo)
